BOOK OF DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS APPROVED.

IN view of what has been published of late in reference to Mr. D. Whitmer's disbelief in and opposition to the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and to show to all Saints the binding force and the authoritative claims of that book upon all who are worthy to be called Saints, we herewith give the official statement as to the manner in which said book became a rule of faith and practice to the church. From what appears, it is evident the utmost care was used to exclude all error, and to accept and adopt nothing but what was true and wise and worthy in the sight of God. The arrangements were judicious and effective, and the methods prudent and skillful for attaining the end sought, namely, to present "the items of doctrine of Jesus Christ, for the government of his church." And to preface this official statement, we present some facts from the pen of W. W. Phelps, editor of the Evening and Morning Star, and the printer of the defective Book of Commandments in 1834. These facts are as follows, from Messenger and Advocate, Kirtland, Ohio, August, 1835, page 170:

"DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

"By an article entitled "General Assembly," in this month's paper, it will be seen that the Doctrine and Covenants of the Church of Latter Day Saints, is nearly ready for sale. At any rate it may be expected in the course of a month, as one thousand copies have already been delivered to the binder.

"Since the commencement of this work, even in Missouri, where, just before it was ready to come out, it fell into the hands of a mob, our anxiety and exertions have been unabated, to put [it] in the possession of the Saints, and all who feel a desire to be saved. We have greatly desired that this little sacred volume might go into the world, that the inhabitants thereof might know what the Lord was about to do in the last days.

We know that the word of the Lord is sure, and never fails, and, as faithful servants to him, living in the hope of a glorious resurrection with the just when the righteous arise to meet him in the cloud, we bear testimony that the revelations therein contained are true and faithful.

"We hope and pray that the Saints may be as anxious to keep the commandments, and be governed by the Doctrine and Covenants, contained in said book, as they have been for its publication: if they do observe all the requirements towards perfecting themselves in holiness, that they may serve the Lord acceptably with 'clean hands and pure hearts,' it will be well with them: but if they neglect to walk in all the ordinances of the Covenants and law of the Lord blameless, they must be chastened. The righteous shall be had in everlasting remembrance before the Lord, but the ungodly shall be cut off and forgotten; and their end no man knoweth, save he that is ordained to such condemnation. P."

From the foregoing it is seen that the book of Doctrine and Covenants was essentially just what W. W. Phelps sought to publish when getting out the "Book of Commandments." Come now with us to Kirtland, August 17th, 1835, enter the presence of the "General Assembly of the Church," called by a previous General Assembly September, 1834, note the perfect order, the divine system, the holy solemnity, the struggling of spirit to do the perfect will of God, consider well the occasion which has brought together this large body of Christ's ministry on earth, and see with what carefulness and solicitude each minister, each quorum, and the entire Assembly proceed to consider and pass their final decision, in behalf of the Church of God, on "the items of doctrine of Jesus Christ, for the government of his church." Will not the Infinite God direct this humble, orderly, prayerful assemblage aright? Will he not keep this body of his ministry from serious error in respect to doctrine and church government? If not, who may expect to be guided of him? If this great and devoted assembly, when seeking for truth, are led into radical errors, what can one, or a few men, expect to receive?

If this General Assembly, including the "choice Seer" and the chief ministers of the church, erred then in judgment, and in their testimony, what trust can we place in any man, or in any ministerial body, ancient or modern? Read carefully and consider well the following, from the Doctrine and Covenants, published in 1835, and then ask yourselves who is most likely to be correct and safe, this regularly called and organized assembly, or David Whitmer and other dissenters:

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

At a General Assembly of the Church of the Latter Day Saints, according to previous notice, held on the 17th of August, 1835, to take into consideration the labors of a certain committee which had been appointed by a General Assembly of September 24th, 1834, as follows:

"The Assembly being duly organized, and after transacting certain business of the church, proceeded to appoint a committee to arrange the items of doctrine of Jesus Christ, for the government of his church of the Latter Day Saints, which church was organized and commenced its rise on the 6th day of April, 1830. These items are to be taken from the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the revelations which have been given to said church up to this date, or shall be until such arrangement is made.

"Elder Samuel H. Smith, for the assembly, moved that presiding elders, Joseph Smith, jr., Oliver Cowdery, Sidney Rigdon and Frederick G. Williams compose said committee. The nomination was seconded by Elder Hyrum Smith, whereupon it received the unanimous vote of the assembly.

(Signed). OLIVER COWDERY, } Clerks."
ORSON HYDE.

Wherefore Presidents O. Cowdery and S. Rigdon, proceeded and organized the high council of the church at Kirtland, and Presidents W. W. Phelps and J. Whitmer proceeded and organized the high council of the church in Missouri. Bishop Newel K. Whitney proceeded and organized his counsellors of the church in Kirtland, and acting Bishop John Corroll, organized the counsellors of the church in Missouri; and also Presidents Leonard Rich, Levi W. Hancock, Sylvester Smith and Lyman Sherman, organized the council of the seventy; and also, Elder John Gould, acting President, organized the travelling Elders; and also Ira Ames, acting President, organized the Priests; and also Erastus Babbit, acting President, organized the Teachers; and also William Burgess, acting President, organized the Deacons; and also Thomas Gates, assisted by John Young, William Cowdery, Andrew H. Aldrich, Job S. Lewis, and Oliver Higley, as Presidents of the day, organized the whole assembly. Elder Levi W. Hancock appointed chorister; a hymn was then sung and the services of the day opened by the prayer of President O. Cowdery, and the solemnities of eternity rested upon the audience. Another hymn was sung; after transacting some business for the church the audience adjourned for one hour.

AFTERNOON.—After a hymn was sung, President Cowdery arose and introduced the "book of Doctrine and Covenants of the church of the Latter Day Saints," in behalf of the committee; he was followed by President Rigdon, who explained the manner by which they intended to obtain the voice of the assembly for or against said book; the other two committee, named above, were absent. According to said arrangement W. W. Phelps bore record that the book presented to the assembly, was true. President John Whitmer also arose, and testified that it was true. Elder John Smith, taking the lead of the high council in Kirtland, bore record that the revelations in said book were true, and that the lectures were judiciously arranged and compiled, and were profitable for doctrine; whereupon the high council of Kirtland accepted and acknowledged them as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote. Elder Levi Jackman, taking the lead of the high council of the church in Missouri, bore testimony that the revelations in said book were true, and the said high council of Missouri accepted and acknowledged them as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote.

President W. W. Phelps then read the written testimony of the Twelve, as follows: "The testimony of the witnesses to the book of the Lord's commandments, which he gave to his church through Joseph Smith, jr., who was appointed by the voice of the church for this purpose; we therefore feel willing to bear testimony to all the world of mankind, to every creature upon the face of all the earth, and upon the islands of the sea, that the Lord has borne record to our souls, through the Holy Ghost shed forth upon us, that these commandments were given by inspiration of God, and are profitable for all men, and are verily true. We give this testimony unto the world, the Lord being our helper; and it is through the grace of God, the Father, and his Son Jesus Christ, that we are permitted to have this privilege of bearing this testimony unto the world, in the which we rejoice exceedingly, praying the Lord always, that the children of men may be profited thereby." Elder Leonard Rich bore record of the truth of the book and the council of the Seventy accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote.

Bishop N. K. Whitney bore record of the truth of the book, and with his counsellors, accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith by a unanimous vote.

Acting Bishop, John Corrill, bore record of the truth of the book, and with his counsellors, accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote. Acting President, John Gould, gave his testimony in favor of the book, and with the traveling Elders, accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote.

Ira Ames, acting President of the Priests, gave his testimony in favor of the book, and with the Priests, accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote.

Erastus Babbit, acting President of the Teachers, gave his testimony in favor of the book, and they accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote.

Wm. Burgess, acting President of the Deacons, bore record of the truth of the book, and they accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote.

The venerable President, Thomas Gates, then bore record of the truth of the book, and with his five silver-headed assistants, and the whole congregation, accepted and acknowledged it as the doctrine and covenants of their faith, by a unanimous vote. The several authorities, and the general assembly, by a unanimous vote, accepted of the labors of the committee.

President W. W. Phelps then read an article on Marriage, which was accepted and adopted, and ordered to be printed in said book, by a unanimous vote.

President O. Cowdery then read an article on "governments and laws in general," which was accepted and adopted, and ordered to be printed in said book, by a unanimous vote.

A hymn was then sung. President S. Rigdon returned thanks, after which the assembly was blessed by the Presidency, with uplifted hands, and dismissed.

W. P. BROWN.

In this issue will be found letters from Brn. Willard J. Smith and William McNabb, relative to the late doings of a leading Whitmerite, W. P. Brown, at Cameron, Ontario. From their statements it seems Mr. Brown is of a class predicted by Paul, 2 Tim. 3:13, who "shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived."

Pretty much all we know, personally, of Mr. Brown we learned when we listened to his pulpit efforts twice when here in Lamoni last May. We then thought he had blind zeal, unsanctified ambition, bad gospel discipline, and worse spiritual judgment. His career since then confirms this opinion, and his exploits at Cameron of late "makes surety doubly sure" in this direction.

Mr. Brown's statement that "W. W. Blair was the Brigham Young of the Reorganization," will probably be news to the HERALD readers, and to all acquainted with Elder Blair, and will furnish them with the weight and measure of this Samson of Whitmerism, and also enable them to know just what his word and his judgment are worth. Elder Blair's work and life as a member of the church have been before the Saints and the world for the past thirty-five years, and for over twenty-seven years as an active minister; yet it now seems proper to state in this connection some of the leading facts in respect to his history pertaining to the church, so that all Saints, and also Mr. Brown and his kind may not be deceived, nor further deceive in respect to that matter.

Elder Blair received the gospel at Amboy, Lee county, Illinois, October 7th, 1851; was baptized into the Reorganized Church at Zarahemla, Wisconsin, by the late Z. H. Gurley, senior, April 7th, 1857, and confirmed by said Gurley, assisted by Elder E. C. Briggs. When Elders S. H. Gurley and E. C. Briggs visited Elder Blair in November, 1856, and testified that God had revealed by His Spirit to many, that Joseph Smith would, in the near future, be called to take his father's place as President of the church, he first opposed; but finally, through the overwhelming testimony which God then gave to him of that and other important facts, he accepted their testimony, formally uniting with the church the following spring, as before mentioned.

When Elders Gurley and Briggs found him he had been for years engaged successfully in general merchandise, grain and produce dealing, in farm machinery, land agency, and in farming—the latter at Amboy, and in the other lines at East Paw Paw, and Earlville, Illinois. He closed out all his business except farming, in 1857, purchased a farm of one hundred and twenty acres, four miles north of Earlville, moved his family upon his farm two miles west of the city of Amboy, and in April, 1859, in company with Elder E. C. Briggs, began calling the people to "the old paths"—"to the law and the testimony"—and thus entered upon the work of a traveling minister, and continued in it, uninterrupted by secular business, until April, 1885.

When Elder Blair united with the Reorganization, that little body of Saints numbered, probably, not fifty members, and they were poor in temporal things, but rich in faith and in the gifts and blessings of God's Spirit. And when he began his travels as a missionary, it is probable the Reorganized Church numbered less than one hundred members, and the most of them were poor in this world's goods. For years, at first, he supported his family and paid from his own means part of his personal expenses when traveling, besides aiding some other ministers and the general church funds. To these facts many can now testify.

Elders Blair, E. C. Briggs, Z. H. Gurley, sen., J. W. Gillen, and J. Bakeslee opened the missionary work of the church in Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Michigan, Nebraska, &c., &c., and he has also traveled on missions to California, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, etc., each of these tours ranging from a few months to nearly two years. He was offered, as a free gift to him, valuable property in Little Sioux, Iowa, by S. W. Condit and others, if he would locate there permanently; and two similar offers were made him at Galland's Grove, Iowa, by Alexander McCord, Uriah Roundy, J. B. Swain, J. A. McIntosh, John B. Hunt, Brn. Holcomb, and others all of which were refused, with thanks for the kindnesses proffered, for he yet had two homes of his own.

He has always contended tenaciously, every way, and everywhere, for a faithful adherence to the "written" word as authorized and accepted by the church in its general assemblies, conferences, and councils; and he has also claimed that a decent respect should be paid by all to the lawful and time-honored precedents and traditions of the church, ancient and modern. He has never had a public charge preferred against him by any member of the church; but, in common with others, the tongue of the slanderer, both in and out of the church, has got in its vile work secretly, at times, and once in a great while publicly, as in the case of Mr.

Brown. Now, if the work of Brigham Young is in harmony with this brief outline of Elder Blair's ministerial life, then, and to that extent, Mr. Brown may be right when he says W. W. Blair is the Brigham Young of the Reorganization.

Mr. Brown can hardly have alluded to B. Young's polygamous career when comparing Elder Blair to him; for, from first to last the latter has been aggressively opposed to polygamy, has fought it with voice and pen persistently, as Brighamites, Gentiles, "Josephites," and all others can testify. And as to social, and marital affairs, no cloud, nor shadow of a cloud, has ever darkened his pathway. In these respects his reputation is both "unspotted and unsuspected." But he has had enemies both in and out of the church, and this is not at all surprising. All are liable to have the enmity of weak and erring persons, and none is more likely to have them than the active, uncompromising minister of Jesus Christ.

As to what Mr. Brown says of President Joseph Smith, those who know the latter need no assurance of the falsity of Mr. Brown's statements. The same may be said in regard to his foamings, concerning the church and Joseph the Seer.

While we pity Mr. Brown, we detest his conduct, and commend for his profit the following:

"Tis slander;

"Whose edge is sharper than the sword; whose tongue
Out-venoms all the worms of Nile; whose breath
Rides on the posting winds, and doth belie
All corners of the world."

But,—

"Slander meets no regard from noble minds;
Only the base believe, what the base only utter."

Last night we had a night-vision. From an elevated position we saw beneath and away from us, in the clear waters of a broad, shallow river, an old, large, and peculiarly spotted blow-snake slowly struggling up against the current and frequently stopping to rest on some stone or driftwood in the stream. Turning and looking some distance away to the east and north we saw another one of the same kind, but more active, moving in the waters near the eastern and northern shore. We hastened and drew near to it, and with careful aim we sent an iron spear successfully through its distended neck and diseased throat.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By letter just received from President Joseph Smith we learn he will probably remain in Plano and vicinity till after Christmas. The Saints and friends in that region will keep him as long as he will consent to stay, but we shall expect him home before New Year's.

We are having mild, rather dry, beautiful weather thus far this winter.

The Lamon Gazette comes to our table neat, newsy, and full of promise. We bid it good speed and long life.

Bro. D. W. Murphy writes from Platts-mouth, Nebraska, that the Spirit of God is with them in their meetings, at times, with much power, but that they have to fight the fight of faith, as did the people of God in ancient times.

Bro. R. J. Anthony is hard at work at Kamas, Utah, has had splendid meetings in point of numbers and interest; was treated well by nearly all classes, had a discussion with Ward Pack, a leading Brighamite, who treated him gentlemanly and prospects were good for planting the work of the Reorganization in the hearts of many and gathering in a number.

Bro. J. C. Clapp wrote from Ogden City, Utah, the 10th of December that he was very busy, and that the outlook was promising. He also sent remittances for papers and book.

Brn. A. Tabbut and H. L. Farrar renew for Herald and Hope and say they are highly pleased with them.

Brn. A. L. Veitch of Galena, Dakota, renews for the papers, says they are "most welcome visitors," and that "the sermons are much appreciated."

Bro. Daniel Donovan writes from Independence, Missouri, December 13th, that prices of lands are steadily advancing in and around Independence and Kansas City, building is progressing, and bricklayers, stone masons, carpenters, etc., have plenty of work and command good wages, and it is thought next year will exceed this in progress. He also says their conference, which just closed was most excellent, and that the gifts of prophecy, tongues, &c., cheered and encouraged the Saints.

Sr. John Thornton of Montrose, Iowa, renews for the Herald and Hope, and says she "would not like to do without them."

Bro. Hugh Havey is pleased with his new home near Pittsburg, Kansas. He moved there of late from Michigan, where had resided for near thirty years. He was a member of and teacher in the Maple Valley Branch.

Bro. W. McBurney speaks highly of the late district conference at Des Moines and says,—“God blessed us with a portion of his Spirit.”

Bro. J. W. Gillen is at St. Louis, Missouri, actively engaged in the Master's work.

Bro. N. Stamm was at McDiffits Grove, Iowa, December 17th, had baptized two ladies at Des Moines a few days before, and at their confirmation in the Saints' chapel all were greatly blessed with God's Spirit. Bro. Stamm says:—"If the Reorganized Church is a dead branch, I would like to know where the live one is. I found this church in answer to prayer, and I know it to be the true church, that God has blessed me greatly in preaching the gospel, and in administering to the sick. I have had some good congregations, giving excellent attention. I found most excellent Saints in Lucas." Bro. Stamm wishes to know the address of a Bro. Bullard who lived not very far from Des Moines ten years ago.

Bro. J. A. McIntosh wrote us encouragingly December 16th, in respect to the work at Horning's Mills and vicinity, Ontario. He is having good success in his ministry and has but little difficulty in getting the people to investigate the sacred books, tracts and papers of the church, and he is diligent and active in getting them into their hands. He finds that "there has been a reaping time after they have been scattered among the people." He finds it difficult to get some investigators to see the need of "divine authority" to administer in the things of God, and he suggests that a tract on that point be prepared soon.

Bro. Wm. Pooler writing from Merced, California, exhorts the Saints to "keep the whole law, including tithing, also the Word of Wisdom. He thinks "the half-way Saint will not win the prize."

S. G. Spencer writes us from Grace, Lumpkin county, Georgia, and enquires to know the differences between the Reorganized Church and the Utah Mormons, etc., etc. We greatly wish all the Utah Mormons would make similar inquiry and listen to our answer.

Bro. Edward Carlton of Petrolia, Ontario, renewed for his Herald, December 12th, thinks every member should read it, and further says,—“I gave up using tobacco and tea which cost me about $19 per year, and I am greatly blessed with health.”

"I never saw such hard times," writes Bro. J. A. Currie, Jr., from Bandera, Texas. He also says, "Now is a day of 'strange things,' and I thank God that I am yet alive. We poor Texans were baptized, turned loose like wild mustang ponies that had been caught from the herd and kept awhile to be tamed, and our chances have been 'slim.' Some have not tried to help the Master, seemingly, some of us have been over zealous, and I think we are beginning to get a little wisdom. We must let the Lord prepare the way before us, and all we be well. The Spirit is to lead us I believe. We are not to lead Him—believe the Lord will go before his people in their daily life, as well as in the gathering."

The Bandera, Texas, Bugle, of December 17th, says: "Elder Roberts of the Latter Day Saints' church, has been preaching in the Court-house during the week. Mr. Roberts is a forcible and clever preacher."

Bro. W. N. Ray writes from Des Moines that on December 12th, Bro. N. Stamm baptized two ladies, daughters of Bro. W. Smith of Grimes, Iowa.

IMPROVEMENTS IN PALESTINE.

THE following from the London, England, Spectator in respect to the industrial progress of Syria in the past twenty-five years will be of interest to our readers, for the reason that they can see in this the fulfillment of prophecy touching that land of Israel, which was to be "prepared" for the gathering of Israel's children. It says:—

"The towns are growing, imports increasing, and trade passing from the hands of Europeans into those of native dealers. Beyreut has increased from a squalid post of 15,000 or 20,000 inhabitants to a thriving city of 80,000. It has a handsome European quarter, well paved and lighted and clean; it is provided with water works built by an English company, has a public carriage service and a large paper mill. Jaffa is equally flourishing, and the value of land in the vicinity has increased from ten to fifteen fold. The country about has been converted into a vast orange orchard. In the interior the peasantry are going into stock raising, an industry that was hardly known a few years ago, and the production of olive oil has been greatly developed. Jerusalem itself shares in this progress. The "new Jerusalem" quarter has grown up around the walls of the old city, and it is estimated that the number of buildings has trebled within twenty-five years. There is more toleration than formerly between Moslems, Jews and Christians, and schools have increased in number and are well attended."

THE Southern Idaho Independent of December 17th delivers itself of the following—and still survives:

"Even the 'Josephites' worshipping the same God, in nearly the same way, rejoice when a stone is hurled at the Mormons. How true it is, 'If you were of the world the world would love you. But ye are not of the world, I have taken you out of the world, therefore the world hates you.'"

That the "Josephites" do not hate, but really seek the present and future good of the Utah Mormons, is seen in the fact that they have sought diligently, at great expense, and in trials and perils during the past twenty-five years, in Utah, Idaho, and elsewhere, to turn them from their ruinous doctrines and pernicious practices. Had Brigham and his fellows listened to the pleadings, counsels, and admonitions of the "seed" of Joseph the Seer, the "posterity" of that great prophet of God who founded and set in complete order the church and kingdom of God in these last days, then the Lord would have turned away from them the wrath of heaven and the rod of men, and "then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea." But as their affairs have been and are still going, "the people turneth not unto him that smiteth them, neither do they seek the Lord of hosts" by turning from the commandments of men to the plainly written "law and the testimony" recorded in the books endorsed by the church and Joseph the Seer up to 1844. No; the "Josephites" do not hate the Utah Mormons; on the contrary they have faithfully sought their reformation and welfare, and their works are conclusive proof of this. God requires all to "search the commandments" in the Nauvoo and similar editions of the Doctrine and Covenants, and He pledges His word that "the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled."—Doc. Cov. 1:7. And just as sure as these things are true, just so surely will the Saints wander in blindness "fall into the ditch" and suffer the chastisement of God till they repent and turn to these commandment and live in harmony with these "prophecies and promises." The "Josephites" come to the Utah Mormons with the very books which the latter claim to honor and believe; they ask them to accept the "commandments," * * * "prophecies and promises" found therein; and they warn them that, until they do accept and live them, they will "be cast out and trodden under the feet of men;" (Doc. Cov. 98:5); and that "the kingdoms of the world shall prevail against them." (Doc. Cov. 100:2). Is this the work of an enemy? Is this evidence of hatred? Nay, verily; but of a friend.

We boldly say that no people on earth have done so much to relieve and bless the Utah Mormons as the "Josephites." This fact will in time be seen and appreciated. The Seer predicted in 1844, in Times and Seasons, saying,—"I or my posterity will plead the cause of injured innocence until Missouri makes atonement for all her sins, or sinks disgraced and degraded," etc. This is just what that "posterity" has been doing since 1860. Do the Utah Mormons believe this prediction? If so, will they tell us how and where it has been fulfilled, if not by Joseph, the son of the Seer, and the "Josephites."

The Utah Mormons can not find in the sacred books taught by the Seer the shadow of a promise of salvation except by the plan taught in the New Testament, Book of Mormon, and the Nauvoo Book of Covenants. They can not find a promise of a successor to the Seer except in his "seed"—his "posterity." Why oppose, rebel against, and denounce those who come teaching these things? It is high time this evil course was abandoned and "the law and the testimony" accepted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—What do the following verses mean? are they to be taken literally or figuratively?

"And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell. And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell."—Matt. 5:29, 30.

Ans.—The answer may be found in the Inspired Translation, Matt. 5:34, which reads:

"And now this I speak, a parable concerning your sins; wherefore, cast them from you, that you may not be hewn down and cast into the fire."—Matt. 5:34.

But the following from Mark 9:39-48, Inspired Translation, explains the matter at length:

"And whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believeth in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea. Therefore, if thy hand offend thee, cut it off; or if thy brother offend thee and confess not and forsake not, he shall be cut off. It is better for thee to enter into life maimed, than having two hands, to go into hell. For it is better for thee to enter into life without thy brother, than for thee and thy brother to be cast into hell; into the fire that never shall be quenched, where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched. And again, if thy foot offend thee, cut it off; for he that is thy standard, by whom thou walkest, if he become a transgressor, he shall be cut off. It is better for thee, to enter halt into life, than having two feet to be cast into hell; into the fire that never shall be quenched. Therefore, let every man stand or fall, by himself, and not for another; or not trusting another. Seek unto my Father, and it shall be done in that very moment what ye shall ask, if ye ask in faith, believing that ye shall receive. And if thine eye which seeth for thee, him that is appointed to watch over thee to show thee light, become a transgressor and offend thee, pluck him out. It is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God, with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire. For it is better that thyself should be saved, than to be cast into hell with thy brother, where their worm dieth not, and where the fire is not quenched."—Mark 9:39-48.

This figure harmonizes with 1 Cor. 12:12-27.

THE following terse and concise presentation of facts from the pen of our diligent brother, M. H. Bond, has the ring of a genuine gospel "vessel," and is worth volumes of wordy, pointless articles, most of which go unread and dishonored to the dark regions of—:

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

To the Editor of the Enterprise:—As a representative of a body of believers in the gospel of Jesus Christ I desire to call attention to the series of meetings being held in our hall in Clark's block. We believe not in a reformation of the gospel but a restoration, clearly predicated by prophets both in the Old and New Testaments and by Jesus himself; that the Book of Mormon is not of human but of divine origin, clearly indicated by Bible prophecy, American archaeology, unimpeached human testimony, angel ministry and God's holy Spirit to the believer.

What are our claims?

We claim, 1st., that there has been in our day a restoration—not a reformation—of the gospel as taught by our Savior.

2d.—That there has been a restoration of the church and kingdom of God after the New Testament pattern.

3d.—That this latter day work has not come unheralded, no more than did the mission of Jesus, but has come in strict accordance with and in literal fulfillment of prophecy both in the old and new testament scriptures.

4th.—That God does acknowledge and confirm the word with signs following the believer in the everlasting gospel of Jesus Christ in our day.

5th.—That the popular opinion concerning us, as stated by the contradictory evidences usually found in the history or encyclopedia, is based, as in Jesus' day, mostly upon the rumor and prejudices that follows the introduction of anything contrary to our traditions and established beliefs.

6th.—That if people desire to know the facts and the truth concerning us, they can only be obtained by hearing both sides. M. H. BOND, District Missionary for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

WAR IMPENDING.

"The press opinions of the European capitals wired here to-night contain nothing to warrant hope of a peaceful settlement of the eastern question. The situation is one of grave suspense, and the opinion grows steadily that war is inevitable. Gen Alison, speaking of the outlook, was unable to hold out hopes of a European conflagration being avoided. The period of carnage for which the world has been looking so long appears at last to be close at hand. He declared that the British army is in a thorough state of efficiency and fitness for mobilization."

The above was wired from London

England, to the Chicago Times, December 20th. Whoever reads carefully the prophecies, ancient and modern, will see that most desolating wars will occur in these last days, especially throughout Europe and Asia. Such events are "signs of the times," marking the "last days," the speedy coming of Christ, and the end of the reign of the wicked. After the terror, the glory.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"I stood on a tower in the wet,
And New Year and Old Year met,
And winds were roaring and blowing;
And I said, "O years that meet in tears,
Have ye aught that is worth the knowing?
Science enough and exploring,
Wanderers coming and going,
Matter enough for deploring

THE NEW YEAR.

OVER the "dial plate of time" the shadow has passed once more and the year 1886 is reckoned among the years of the past, among those which have gone to swell the unnumbered centuries since time began. It is always with feelings of sadness that we think upon the death of the year. Few there are to whom it has not brought changes—few who have not wept bitter tears as well as tears of joy. As the steps of the Old Year hurry away, the winds which play among his thin locks, or search out the openings in his worn garments, pass by many a snow-covered mound in the silent city, beneath which lie forms that one short year ago were the light, the life and joy of dwellings where to-night the lights are shaded and the curtains drawn; as the Old Year hurries away and the knell of time tolls his departure, old wounds bleed afresh and the sad heart shrinks from observation. The mother feels again the utter loneliness of the hours when her arms first felt so empty and her soul cried out in pain over the little form so still and cold, never to be warmed at her breast again. Father and mother again stand hand in hand beside a son or daughter called away upon the threshold of youth, when all in life was lovely and he longed to stay. Again, mother and children are gathered by the bedside of a loving father, or a strong man weeps in utter loneliness as he draws his motherless ones around him, and feels as he never felt before the need of loving words from lips which will never on earth breathe his name again.

Ah, these are not all, nor are they the bitterest of life's changes! Between many loving hearts the door has been shut and bolts been drawn by fingers which never will close over them to undo, or hands which will never open them again. Silent, sad and lonely graves of the human heart! No pure winding sheet of drifted snow marks where the mold has been heaped, nor costly monument tells the name of those who slumber there, but when love has stolen away to weep out its life in silence and alone, only the day when all things shall be resurrected, shall awake it again.

It is a quaint and beautiful fancy of Tennyson which represents the meeting of the Old Year and the New Year, "in tears," while he puts to them this question:

"And I said, O years, that meet in tears,
Have you aught that is worth the knowing?"

Then as if wishing to be more distinctly understood in the full length and breadth of the question he adds:

"Of science enough and exploring,
Wanderers coming and going,
Matter enough for deploring,

And it falls in with our mood to-night to analyze these thoughts more fully, though briefly. Science is every day and every hour of the day astonishing the world by the claims brought forward for it in every department, but what is science? When we come to ask it of the world to come, to propound to it the simple question, "If a man die shall he live again?" the chill silence of the long ages is not more dumb. There is scarcely a spot upon the globe where the explorer has not set his foot; but does all which has been brought to light by the explorer shed one ray of light upon the problem of human life—its origin, aim or destiny? Those who wander up and down upon the face of the earth, who travel thousands of miles each year in quest of pleasure or gain, what is the profit to them? From whence is their consolation drawn and where do they look for rest and peace when the journey is ended? From rock and hill from mountain and vale, the echo is thrown back to them, Where!

"Matter enough for deploring." Aye, at the very best there is enough, and humanity, poor weak humanity, is beginning dimly to comprehend its utter inability to right the wrong of life, to solve the great problem of human rights and human liberty. But deeper, more searching than all these comes the one question ever thundering at the door of the human heart: "But aught that is worth the knowing?" The immortal soul demands an answer from the life beyond! What of that? All else in comparison is vanity. But of that, What?

"Life saved for self is lost, while they
Who lose it in His service hold
The lease of God's eternal day!"

Sisters beloved, is there in this aught that is worth the knowing? Think upon it until the truth has had time enough to sink into each heart, and then as the old year passes away and the New Year dawns upon us, let us resolve for each day of the three hundred and sixty-five to make this our motto. If we are living for self, we are not living for God. If we are living for God, we are living for man, and it is utterly impossible to separate the one grand truth from the other. Self-deception is a hideous monster, and it becomes us to strive earnestly to know ourselves. If we indeed love the Savior the proof of it will be found in our striving to be like him. Let us measure our lives by his, and holding before us the clear glass of gospel truth, seek to know if we have indeed passed from death unto life—if we have been transplanted into the kingdom of God's dear Son? Let us this year strive earnestly to gain, and ever hold, "A lease of God's eternal day!"

LAMONI, IOWA, Dec. 23d.

Dear Sister Frances:—Words can hardly express the sweet peace and joy I have experienced while reading the Home Column, and in fact nearly all the pieces in the Herald. Not only the words written gave the joy and peace, but the same spirit filling the heart, and opening our understanding also, giving glimpses of the grandeur of the work that is being done—or that now is becoming so thoroughly begun, "preparing a people for God." And while I thus read and enjoy, often with tear-dimmed eyes, I long for the time to come when the will of God will be done on earth as in heaven," when the hallowed influence of the Spirit will be lasting; when all who meet and commune together will be of the same spirit of light, joy, and peace, and none beset with the cares and trials that belong to this world, while it groans beneath its weight of sin and sorrow; with the adversary and his numerous agents at work therein, to tear down and destroy the works of righteousness, and mar the happiness of the Saints. But his time is short. The great work of God's "preparation" is rapidly going on, and I sometimes think that the "coming of the Son of man" has already commenced and is being felt on the earth, as the "light of the morning," (or first rays of the coming sun) shedding his light over all things, and that which for a time has been hidden is now being revealed to view. But how long it often seems to the weary watcher from the appearing of the first rays of the morning light till the great orb of day bursts full upon the view. So it may be with the "watchmen on the towers of Zion;" though they may have seen the sure tokens of the near approach of the "sun of righteousness," many may become weary and fall asleep, or "begin to strive with his neighbor."

The midnight cry has gone forth to "wake the world from sleeping." And those who were wise arose and "trimmed their lamps;" and now are putting on their "beautiful garments," and giving the "portion of meat in due season;" while many who labored during the dark hours are becoming faint and weary.

How indicative is the figure used in the Inspired Translation, representing the "coming of the Son of man." The light of the morning naturally takes away the brightness of lamplight; their rays will not shine forth from the windows as during the dark hours of the night; and one is apt to think they do not burn so brightly. So we are to look for a similar circumstance spiritually till the partial light or knowledge is swallowed up in "that which is perfect." How many of us will be able to endure the trying time, when the great luminaries of the church will seem to be less bright? For by the light of the morning every rough place, whether crags, thorns, briars or stumbling stones, all are brought to light,

But is that all the morning light reveals? Ah, no! there are beautiful green fields; brooks of clear sparkling water to assuage the thirst; tender plants are seen to need more care; sweet little flowerets growing at our feet which might in the darkness have been trodden down unnoticed. But now "how bright the prospects are;" how promising for the "raising up a righteous generation." That work seems to be in very deed commenced; but writing and talking will not do the work. It will only incite to action, direct, and encourage those in whose hands the rising generation is intrusted,—the mothers of to-day. Let not the mothers who have large families, that require their constant labor and care, think the missionaries, or missionaries' wives are the only ones who have the privilege of doing a work for the "Master," or whose labor and sacrifice is the most acceptable to Him. There is something more needed to secure an entrance into the kingdom of heaven than simply to hear the gospel, believe and be baptized. And the best time to accomplish this needful work is while the children are under the parental roof, beginning with their young and tender years—as the sapling is easier bent than the full grown tree.

I sometimes think the mother who teaches her children obedience from principle, that they must be subject to the powers that be; to be kind, gentle, and forbearing; truthful and trust-worthy; has done more towards the final salvation of those souls than the missionary or elder who brings that many men into the church who have grown up self-willed and undisciplined; for when the former receive the gospel they receive it in spirit and principle, making themselves subservient thereto. I know it is believed by a great many in the world that when a person is converted the power of God in the heart does all the work of conquering the evil propensities and implanting good. But if this is so in any case it certainly is not so in every case. My mind sorrowfully reverts to a certain people who have believed and obeyed the first principles of the gospel, and who feel so confident of the truth of the work as they do of their own existence. Individually they are kind and obliging, and to meet and converse with them individually they each seem to be good saints, strong in the faith, and interested in the work; but as a branch they can not agree and get along with one another; neither will they be instructed by one another, or submit "to the powers that be," but seem to feel that it is rather coming down to receive instruction from any one. And what is the cause of this? It is apparent that the will has never been brought into subjection. Allowed to have their own way while children, they still adhere to it, and are allowing their children also to grow up in the same deplorable condition.

I have only spoken of this to show how much more sure the condition of salvation was to those who were early taught to be governed and to govern themselves that they may be useful members in Christ's Church; not only able to stand themselves, but to support others also. There is so much included in the domestic family circle, that as I think of it in all its beautiful representations and privileges I am led to wonder if the origin of so great a scheme was not a part of the work of redemption; and if that the Father, knowing as he did, man would transgress and be separated from His presence, and could not be taught by Him face to face, as in the Garden of Eden, had in love instituted this little school, this little representation of heaven, (as where God the Father's law would be supreme), where all could learn by experience how much is contained in the word "Father," by having an earthly father and being dependent on him for all they receive, being taught to honor and obey him, to regard his wish as their law; and that he as a true and loving father only sought his children's good in all his dealings with them; and though they might not see the wisdom of all his commands, and some would be adverse to their feelings, yet afterward would see how it was for their good; and the disobeying of those commands would work sorrow, and bring punishment. Therefore obtaining this knowledge by experience, when His written word comes to them, he (God) being their Father, they could be prepared, in some degree to understand their relation towards him; for where is there a well instructed child, with loving parents, who does not honor the name of father? The very sound of that word conveys to that child's mind one whose right it is to say and theirs without hesitation to obey; never such a thought as questioning whether such was right or wrong: it is enough that their father has bid them, and his bidding constitutes right in their sight. Thus each family becomes a representation of God's kingdom.

What loving care is thus manifested in the Father towards those who would be alienated from him, to make such provision against the snares and temptations that would surround them in this probationary state. How favorable the circumstances in which all are placed to be taught the principles of life and salvation.

And now the Lord is stirring up the hearts of the mothers in Israel to the great need of such teaching. So while the parents, those who are members of the church, are endeavoring to instruct the children aright, and teach them faith in God, they should show by their example that their trust is in God only; and that they are keeping his commands, when any are sick, to send for the elders and look to no other physician than he who framed the body, and with those who have not faith, nurse them with herbs, as commanded; and if they live, they live unto the Lord, and if they die they die unto the Lord—better that, than to die under the hands of a physician—and that they also keep the law of tithing. Oh what a hard law that seems to be with some; but what a promise is given to those who keep it. When these things are done, universally, and the Saints who now are half hearted, and living beneath their privileges shake off this lethargy and show to their children at least, that they trust in God only as the Captain of their salvation in all things. Then will the church arise and shine as a city set upon a hill that can not be hid.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 12th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Your suggestion for a missionary fund is the very thing I love to see. I was ready the moment I read it. My birth day is past, it was in September, but I could not wait so long, so I send you one dollar now, and if the Lord spares me I will send it every 11th day of September, as long as I am able to work. The gospel must be preached and the work must be sustained. If we expect to be called the children of God we must walk before the world in a way to prove to them that we are Saints. The Lord wishes to see our deeds as well as words. Words are like the wind. I wonder I have not seen any name from St. Joseph yet. There are good sisters here. Come girls and sisters try it, and my word for it God will bless you. You don't need to till your age. Send a dollar, that will do. I did not tell mine.

This is the best work on the face of the earth. It is over twenty years since I joined the church, and I have never once doubted the glorious gospel, restored in these latter days. I have had bitter trials—dark days, and they were not pleasant at the time; but oh how sweet when afterwards I saw the great mercy of God shining through them. God has said he would have a tried people, but he will help us when we do our best.

Let me say, just once more, sisters send in your birth day offerings. Surely we can afford to bring to Him an offering upon the day which recalls to us how long the Lord has watched over us to preserve our lives! Think of that little boy who gave up his candy to have the Hope. God bless you all is my prayer.

S. BOURGUOIN.

JUNIATA, Mich., Dec. 6th.

Sister Frances:—I became a member of the church about fifteen years ago; was baptized in Usborne, Ontario, by Elder Hyrum Haskins, and resided there in the midst of the very bitterest persecution. The elders left their homes and families and came under the direction of the Spirit and labored faithfully to show the people the pure principles of the doctrine, as taught by the Savior and his apostles while upon the earth; while they endeavored to preach and labor for the benefit of the people, were persecuted and driven from one place to another; were followed by women while travelling on the road, with bells; and some of the elders after preaching, were taken to the woods to be tarred and feathered in the dead hour of the cold winter nights; whilst others were followed to the woods by a drunken mob, who sought their lives. Notwithstanding all this, the work rolled on. God softened the hearts of the people, many were compelled to acknowledge and embrace the gospel; and when we met together in our social meetings to worship the Master, he poured out his Spirit upon us. The gifts of the gospel were manifested, and our hearts were made to rejoice; and we all felt to thank God that we were permitted to live in a day and age of time in which the gospel has been restored with all its gifts and blessings. Although I have been compelled to leave those Saints, yet my heart is with them; and my earnest prayer is that God will bless and guide them by his Spirit; and may they never be weary until they shall have gained the victory. The promise is only to those who continue faithful to the end. But if we allow ourselves to be led away by the things of the world, of course darkness will come upon us, we must expect it. It is the whole desire of my heart to live a consistent life, and be ready when the Master shall come. I know that I have started in the right way, and desire that my testimony may be heard in defense of the gospel; for as many can testify I have been healed and raised from a bed of pain through the administration of the elders, when even my family and friends have watched me, supposing that my last moments had come. But my life has been spared, and I have had the desire of my heart, which no doubt is the desire of every true mother to see her family grown up and embrace the gospel.

We have had meetings here most of the summer. Elder Phelps, who is an efficient and faithful laborer, has done most of the preaching here and in the surrounding school-houses; he also preaches in Vassar and other places as opportunity and circumstances permit. Of course the Herald is another preacher whom I heartily welcome every week, and think the Home Column a great improvement.

Yours in hope of eternal life,
ELIZABETH HARTNELL.

BEATTIE, Kansas, Dec. 8th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Feeling very much encouraged to go on in the work of the Lord, which I know to be true, I desire that all may know how I feel in regard to the latter day work. My heart is in this cause. I love the Book of Mormon and all its teachings, and the Doctrine and Covenants; and though I am away from the Saints, it is my earnest prayer that they may do a lasting work. I am ever thankful that the Lord saw fit to show me the right way. I rejoice that I am numbered with his Saints. I think the Home Column a great help, and it does me good to hear from all. I have been taking the Herald for seven or eight years, most of the time, and don't think I could do very well without it. I prize it very highly. I ask an interest in your prayers, that I may be found worthy when the Savior shall come, and that the dear friends I love may yet come into the fold. May the Lord watch over each and every one who is striving to do his will, is the prayer of your sister,

E. H.

Correspondence.

CAMERON, Ontario, Dec. 10th.

Bro. Joseph:—I desire to present a few thoughts to the readers of the Herald in relation to the work in this part of God's vineyard. I can truly say that the work is onward in this mission, and that good is being done. In various instances, people who for a long time have stood aloof from the great work are now submitting to the ordinances of God, and coming into the church. For this we feel glad. I never felt more confirmed in the work than at present, and I feel determined by the assisting grace of God to stand by the good old ship until we reach the haven of rest. God is blessing his ministry here.

I left Holstein on the 29th of November, reaching Shelburn in the evening where Elder J. A. McIntosh was engaged in a controversy with a Mr. Rutherford on the subject of the divinity of the Book of Mormon; and although Mr. Rutherford had boasted of how easy he was going to "take the fort," yet it was very noticeable that instead of it being a case of "laurel wreath upon the victor's brow," it was for him total failure.

I arrived here at Cameron on the 2d inst., and found the Saints in great anxiety and in need of help, as H. P. Brown was here doing all he could to disturb their quiet, and destroy their confidence in the Reorganization, etc. Right here let me tell you how it happened that Mr. Brown came here. A little over two years ago Elders J. H. Lake and J. A. McIntosh came here, raised up and organized a branch, and among those baptized was a Mr. J. F. Robinson, who was ordained an elder, and chosen "to preside over the branch. Things went well for a little while, Robinson having many revelations, etc., but many of them without evidence to the Saints of being genuine. A number were called through him to offices in the church, which made it necessary to carry the matter to the district conference. The result was the conference rejected said revelations, and condemned the matter as spurious. This greatly agitated Mr. Robinson and a few that he had duped to believe his gifts, consequently he set about preaching corruptible and false doctrine, determined to rule or ruin, and the consequence was, charges were preferred, and he was cut off. He immediately began writing to Whitmer, money was raised and W. P. Brown was sent to their rescue. He came, and before I arrived he baptized Robinson (making only the fifth time he has been baptized) and his party—seven in all—ordained some of them, and then of course the "Church of Christ" (so-called) was in full bloom. When I arrived I met the "tug of war," and after tried to arrange with him (W. P. Brown) regarding certain propositions that we might enter into a proper discussion of the differences between us. This we could not satisfactorily do, so we then opened the church for him, granting him four nights to present his doctrine, I to follow him each night; hence, on the 6th inst the warfare began. The church was crowded to its utmost each evening, and when Mr. Brown saw his arguments fail, he resorted to Braden's plan of villifying the Latter Day Saints. He told his hearers that "every household, every branch, and every quorum in this church was in contention; that unity had fled the church, and that it was tottering, and ere long would fall." He charged the elders of the Reorganization of being "impostors;" said that "W. W. Blair was the Brigham Young of the Reorganization;" and that you, Bro. Joseph, "saw the corruptions in the church, and consequently was stepping down and out, leaving the church in the hands of W. W. Blair." He also asserted that "this church did practice polygamy," that the "old organization had secret rites and endowments such as is practiced in Salt Lake City in the Endowment House," that "the Danites were organized to kill David Whitmer and others who would not acquiesce with such unholy doctrines," and that the "Reorganization smiled upon such things, declaring that the old organization was all right until in 1844." He also charged Joseph the Martyr with being a polygamist and the author of the polygamic revelation, and a host of other things that we have not space to mention. He did all this to curry favor with the Methodists, and others here who were willing to grasp at anything condemnatory of the Saints. He knew all this would be a sweet morsel for them.

While in the consideration of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants he scrapped all through, taking a clause here and another there, leaving out the qualifying parts, and thus tried to make a clash. But in every instance of this kind we were able to show his dishonesty.

One of his objections to the Doctrine and Covenants was the revelation given to James Covill. He thought the Lord must have been terribly short-sighted and did not know what was in Covill's heart, if this revelation was true. We showed that according to this logic (?) the Lord was short-sighted when he chose Judas as an apostle, and that by parity of reasoning he did not know what was in the heart of Judas when he conferred the priesthood upon him, and that if his objection stood good against the Doctrine and Covenants, then the same objection would militate against the Bible.

He also stated that the polygamic revelation was equal, if not superior to any revelation in the Doctrine and Covenants. Of course, we gave him the benefit of this statement by showing that the Book of Doctrine and Covenants said, "Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else," and hence, that Mr. Brown was rather in favor of polygamy, and that the principal reason for his objecting to the Book of Doctrine and Covenants was because the principle it taught in relation to marriage was monogamic.

Another objection he made to the Doctrine and Covenants, was because that on page 286 it reads,—"I do not require at their hands to fight the battles of Zion, for as I said in a former commandment, even so will I fulfill; I will fight your battles." After reading this, he threw up his hands in holy horror and shouted, "Here Joseph has got God going to war!" He seemingly had forgotten Zech. 14: 1-4, but we did not forget to call attention to it. And thus in every instance, God enabled me to puncture his shallow sophistry and show up his dishonesty. When I showed his dishonest way of reading the Doctrine and Covenants, and proved him a liar in scores of instances, he turned over with the mob (who had come with whisky, determined on riot), and said, "They had ought to use the pistol and the knife on me." But, thank God, brother Joseph, the Lord stood by His servant, and enabled me to successfully refute all his contemptible craft and vileness; and it has been the means thus far of greatly strengthening the Saints, and of making friends to the cause among the intelligent ones of the community.

And in regard to those who have left the Father's house, we earnestly invite them back; for if they do not return, they will surely find they have sold their birth-right for a pot of mush—and poor mush at that.

I have been informed that W. P. Brown said he was going to visit every branch in J. H. Lake's mission. I therefore would say, that in case any of the branches he visits wants help, I am ready to follow him and refute him in every place he goes. If I should be wanted, my address for the next three weeks will be Cameron, Victoria Co., Ontario, after that Holstein, Grey county, Ontario. Yours in the love of truth,

WILLARD J. SMITH.

CAMERON, Ontario, Dec. 16th.

Bro. Joseph:—I write a few lines to you stating the condition of the branch here. We have been visited of late by Mr. Brown, the Whitmerite "great-gun," and a lively time we have had in our village since. He came here just to show the Saints their errors, he said; but when Bro. W. J. Smith tried to arrange with him for a meeting, Mr. Brown would not accept. I presume he feared gospel truths. Bro. Smith agreed, after considerable discussion, to let Mr. Brown preach in our church, the terms being that Mr. Brown should present the gospel in the light he saw it in, and brother Smith to follow and correct his errors, if any. But when Mr. Brown arose, it was not to preach the gospel, but to rake up the past so-called grievances and abominations which he says the Reorganized Church went into. He launched out one anathema after another, coupling us with the Brighamites, and saying polygamy was practiced in the city of Independence, Missouri, by the Saints, and under the very nose of American law. He also said Bro. W. W. Blair was the Brigham Young of the Reorganized Church, and ridiculed the good brother, making him the laughing stock of the listening public. Well, from bad he went to worse, and the abuse he heaped upon the Reorganized Church was simply disgusting to a refined mind. He denied ever having a debate before, forgetting purposely, I presume, the dressing down he got from Bro. Luff at Independence, but owned up to it here afterward, to his shame for untruthfulness. He is a very sleek sort of a so-called gospel advocate, and he managed to gain the sympathy of the rowdy element, which was present, by the cool, calculating manner in which he abused the Saints and the glorious gospel.

But each night, when Bro. Smith arose there came a lull on the spirit of his dreams, as argument after argument were presented, and the truth of our glorious latter day work was made manifest. Bro. Smith proceeded upon the task with firmness, it being truth's battle against superstition; and he cleared up the rubbish of slander, misrepresentation, and, must I add, falsehood, to the utmost satisfaction of the Saints and many more. I might further state, our branch is now mostly all in the unity of the faith and firmly grounded in the blessed hope. We think there will be a great good done here yet, since this debate, as it will be the means of bringing many to seek for the blessed truths which pertain to eternal life.

Yours in gospel bonds,

WM. MCNABB.

MAGNOLIA, IOWA, Dec. 18th.

Dear Herald:—I have just returned home and find the Herald at hand. After perusing its contents it occurred to me that it is my duty also to inform your many readers that I still live and have an interest in the good work in which we are mutually engaged, and would be glad to illumine your pages if I could; and if I can not do as well as my comrades, if I do what I can the Master will at least approve my efforts as he does that of every other willing, helpful soul.

Since our Reunion my efforts have been confined to this district, preaching in the farming districts where I could conveniently get with my horse. I also preached a number of times in the town of Woodbine to very attentive and apparently appreciative audiences, Bro. Kibbler having kindly secured me the use of the Christian Church. From letters received from him since then, I learn that there is a desire to hear more of the good word, and it is my intention to endeavor to gratify it the earliest opportunity, and I really hope for good success in the effort. There is also a desire for "Bro. Joseph" to visit that town, which will also be gratifying to the writer. I have labored a number of times on the Willow these last two weeks. My meetings were not large, being held in private houses, but the audiences were very attentive, and some were enabled to form more favorable views of the latter day work than they had ever entertained. This last week I have preached in the house of Bro. Samuel Purcell, lately a member of the Methodist Church, but now by the grace of God he rejoices in the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Last evening, by request of Mrs. Hefford, I preached in their house, and was blest as I tried to show the dealings of God with the children of men. I trust the effort was not in vain. The roads are very bad, hence people can not get far from their homes, and I have concluded to take the truth to them, as much as I could, by their permission. Occasionally I preach at home, but prefer laboring in other places. I see the Herald contains accounts of efforts of the sisters in various places, and if my endorsement will give no offense, I will tell you what a few of the sisters of this branch have done. During last summer Sister Emerson exerted herself to get the sisters to unite and do something, by means of their needles, for the work of God. A few willing hands and hearts united with her, and they organized a Ladies Aid Society. After working three months they made a supper and disposed of the articles they had made, and they realized over fifty-six dollars, seventeen of which they put in the hands of the Bishop's Agent for the general use of the church, and the remainder is reserved to be used as the society may see wisdom hereafter in the cause of truth. Mr. President, I am glad to say that I heartily endorse the efforts of these noble, sacrificing women, and I pray God to bless them many fold in spirit and body, and increase their usefulness in the direction in which they have started. This endorsement may not meet their approval. They have not sought my endorsement, but I can hardly refrain from saying, "Well done!" And may I presume to say this of all the sisters in every branch, who have so nobly aided the cause of God, without giving offense? I will certainly risk my approval and pray for God's blessing upon them. Hoping I may make a better record in the future than in the past, I shall still labor and pray for the success of our Redeemer's cause, Amen.

SPRINGERTON, Ills., Dec. 13th.

Brother Joseph:—The conference of the South Eastern Illinois district adjourned here last night. We had a very pleasant time, considering the threatening weather. We were made welcome, and enjoyed the hospitality of Bro. Adam Bensing, and his pleasant and kind companion. Their children (Frank, Willie and Mary) made it very homelike to me.

Bro. G. H. Hilliard and daughter came with me from Jeffersonville; met Bro. John Thomas at the depot coming to conference; had a real nice time together. Father T. P. Green was in attendance and seemed full of the old-time fire. Bro. George was called upon to disturb the waters, and baptized one—quite an intelligent man, who came from Franklin county, some thirty-five miles expressly to unite with the church.

The district is in a healthy condition, showing an increase by baptism of twelve or fifteen members in last quarter; and one feature I noticed in conference, the ministry generally reported something done, showing themselves to be awake and comprehending the situation. Prospects are brightening. Bro. E. L. Kelley's debate at Tunnel Hill has left a good influence, reaching a wide circuit in this country. The glorious cause of the Master shines the brighter by such efforts. May Bro. Kelley have plenty of such work, and the Spirit to aid him abundantly, as in the past. Come again Bro. Kelley.

I shall "hold the fort" here to-night and to-morrow night, and then go south to Tunnel Hill for a week or ten days, no preventing providence. The good work goes on; Satan is angry, but his folly is manifest. I learn that some discontents are abroad in this section, and they are trying to poison the minds of the unwary and simple-minded; but I hope the good Shepherd will touch their hearts and turn them to the fold again. Have been blessed indeed in preaching the word. God has verified his promise unto me since in this mission. May His holy name be praised.

With kind love to all, I remain your brother, ALEX. HALE SMITH.

SAN BENITO, Cal., Dec. 12th.

Bro. Joseph:—Bro. Heman C. Smith attended our Central District conference, held at Watsonville, where he did some excellent preaching aided by the Spirit. He baptized two. From conference he went to Hollister, where he was met by his wife, who had been visiting friends in San Francisco. He preached several times in Hollister; and from there he and sister Smith came to San Benito, where he labored one week, and was well spoken of by all as a plain and able speaker. They next visited Jefferson Branch, stopping one week, preaching and building the Saints up in the most holy faith, baptizing two. I took him and Bro. Page to Long Valley, where we had a good time. Bro. Smith preached three excellent discourses. Bro. Smith is an able man, blessed with the Holy Spirit, and fully competent to do the work assigned him, and has got courage to ever do right and reprove wrong. Bro. Smith will meet with opposers, even among those who should welcome him to his mission and be a help to him. Some people are not willing to work themselves, nor willing to let others. The work to be accomplished is of God, and not of man. The Saints have nothing to fear so long as they keep his commandments.

The Jefferson Branch meets every Sunday; Bro. J. B. Carmichael presides, and we are blessed with the Holy Spirit and feel encouraged to go on. We have no active laborers in the district to go and preach, but expect Bro. H. L. Holt soon from Southern California.

Your brother,

J. E. HOLT.

ANTWERP, Ohio, Dec. 17th.

Bro. Joseph:—I came to this point on December 4th, and have held forth every night but one since. Prejudice is melting away, and the opposition is retreating in good order. Large crowds and the best of attention are had. Yesterday we broke the ice and I baptized four persons, all heads of families, and there are more to follow in the near future. Bro. George Stroh, of Fremont, Indiana, is with me, and greatly assists in prayer and song, besides being the very best of company. We leave for Indiana on the 20th, unless I am called to go into the water on that day, an event devoutly wished for by

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Dec. 14th.

Dear Herald:—You are a welcome visitor; and it gives me great pleasure to read your pages. I am not doing much preaching at the present, but fill a place in our branch when called upon. When opportunity offers I go out in the district and fill some of the many calls. I held four or five meetings in Sarpy county with interest. While I was holding meeting at the Buffalo School-house, I was accosted by a Reverend gentleman named Byers, a minister of the Methodist persuasion, with questions mostly on baptism. I gave out to the audience that the following evening I would speak on baptism, he to answer the next evening. The house was well filled, and the Reverend gentleman was among the first to come to my meeting. At the close he came forward and said he believed what had been taught, and rather declined filing his appointment, saying he did not want to interfere with my appointments. When the time came for him to speak, he failed to come, so I filled the place. The effects of the meetings were good. One at least was convinced, and was baptized the next Sabbath by Bro. Rumel.

Yours for truth,

JOSHUA ARMSTRONG.

VANESSA, Ont., Dec. 11th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—We feel our weakness in this great latter day work, not only because of our youth, but because of our inability to accomplish the work we would like. My heart is in this great work; it is all and all to me. I expect to become wealthy through obedience to its principles. The Master has promised me salvation, "the pearl of great price." He that obtains this surely is rich; for God can not bestow a greater gift on man. Since we last wrote to you we have labored some in St. Mary's, and enjoyed much while there, both with Saints and those not as yet connected with the church. O, how gladly would we have remained with them. It seems such a pleasure to dwell with living saints and kind friends; but we have heard the cry, "Where duty calls, or danger, be never wanting there." Urgent calls caused us to say farewell. We went to St. Thomas, and the infidels learned that they had missed the mark by driving us out of their hall when here before, so when we arrived the Saints had hired their hall again, got some bills printed stating that we had arrived and would preach, and that at the close of each lecture we would give privilege of asking questions, also ten minutes to reply to each lecture. All went on well, and I had the pleasure of baptizing six more in St. Thomas, with good prospect of more in the near future.

We arrived here on the 26th of November, and have had a good time. The Methodist preacher spent one afternoon with us and came to the conclusion that we had better be friends, and that he would leave me alone after this when preaching, if I would leave him alone. I replied that I had never had anything to say about him, that I thought him better than his doctrine, and that I would in the future (as in the past) try and preach the truth, and if that hurt him or his church, that I had no apology to make. We parted friends.

I was preaching last Sunday on the Book of Mormon when four preachers came in. After my discourse, one of them, a Rev. Mr. Sims, from the city of Brantford, arose and began a tirade of abuse on "Joe Smith," "Book of Mormon," "polygamy," etc. I have written a criticism on, "Tell it all," by Fanny Stenhouse; on "The Women of Mormonism," by Jennie Anderson Froiseth; on "Life in Utah, or the Mysteries and Crimes of Mormonism," by Beadle; on "History of the Mormons," by Samuel M. Smucker; on "History of Mormonism," by Ann Eliza Young. From some of these works this "Rev." began to prove, in his way, that the Book of Mormon was a fraud, Joseph a polygamist, and that Salt Lake abominations was the result of Joseph's teachings. I had my book with me, and from his own witness- es I warmed him till he was glad to give up and say he was not well posted on those histories, but that he wished to meet me in public debate on some of the doctrines which he understood and claimed to teach from the Bible. I told him to name his subject, time, and place; that I would not keep him waiting. He did so at once, as follows: "Resolved that baptism is essential to salvation." R. C. Evans, affirm; Rev. Sims, deny. Debate to commence that night, Sunday, Dec. 5th, at 7:30. The hall is the property of one of his friends, who would let us debate in it, but would not let me preach in it. At the time appointed the hall was full, not enough standing room even. He had been weeks working up his points, and when all was ready he put in an appearance and would have me debate with only two hours' warning. But I knew in whom I put my trust; He had never failed me yet, nor would He at this time.

The chairman called the meeting at 7:35 p. m., and my arguments were as follows: 1. God is unchangeable. 2. He commissioned John Baptist and Jesus Christ to preach the gospel. 3. Christ commissioned the apostles to preach the same gospel. 4. That gospel was unchangeable. 5. That gospel was the power of God unto salvation. 6. Baptism was one of the principles of the gospel. 7. Baptism was for the remission of sins. 8. It is essential for us to obey the gospel in order to enter into the kingdom of God, therefore baptism is essential to salvation.

We had three speeches apiece, and when his time was up the chairman called time, but he would not sit down; said the debate was over, and that he had won the day. He refused to let me speak again; said the hall was his, and that he was going to expose Mormonism. All through the debate he abused me shamefully, called me everything but a gentleman; but it has gained for the truth many friends. He closed the meeting and then said he would deliver a lecture on the curse of Mormonism, on the next Tuesday night, the 7th. He did so to a full hall. He gave us Howe, Tucker, Stenhouse, Smucker, and Ford, and but very little Bible. He abused me till the crowd cried "Shame." At the close I took the platform, the proprietor having informed my friends I could use it when the "Rev." got through. The preacher tried to make me leave the platform, but the people voted for me to go on and reply. He got in a rage, left the hall, and I replied to his batch of falsehoods till nearly twelve o'clock; and, thank God, the truth lost nothing in the minds of thinking people. He has dropped the Latter Day Saints, and the last two nights turned his lectures into revival meetings. I preached, in a house fitted up for the purpose by the Saints, last night. It was crowded. I have since learned that at his meeting in the hall last night he had six people. He closed his doors at 8:40 and went to his boarding-house rather down in the mouth. We can not tell just what the result will be. This we know, it has made us many friends. A doctor who was at the lectures has got me the skating rink in the town of Waterford to lecture in. The proprietor of the rink will seat it, heat it, light it, and take up a collection to defray expenses, and if there is any money over expenses he will give it to me.

God is truly raising up true friends for his children according to his promise. I have baptized eight since last I wrote you, six heads of families.

Yours in bonds of love that never dies,

RICHARD C. EVANS.

GALIEN, Mich., Dec. 19th.

Brother Joseph Smith:—I see in Herald of December 18th a brother is a little in doubt about the name of the Church. Let us examine the name—"The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." The word "Church" is described by a definite adjective and two adjective phrases. Now, if the brother thinks there are no Saints in the church it might be well to drop the phrase "of Latter Day Saints," and also the phrase "of Jesus Christ." I would sooner leave out the word Christ, than Jesus, because Christ means "Anointed of God," but Jesus means "He will save his people from their sins." Now, as far as I can see, the name of the church is all right, with its describing words and phrases as it now stands to distinguish it from all other churches in Christendom.

Bro. Joseph, if you can stand all the storms and waves that beat around your bark, you may give Jesus credit for leading you through this life's light and dark. I hope Jesus will so lead me that I may be called

Your brother in Christ.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—We are getting along the best we can this winter, and shall try and do all we can for the promotion of our cause. I wish you would sew my Herald and cut its leaves open before it leaves the office, for I can hardly take the time when it comes, as I am in a hurry to read the good news it brings. Surely the Herald grows better. May the Lord give its writers and its Editors good wisdom always, so it may be indeed the most interesting paper on the earth.

A PERFECT SOCIAL CONTRACT.

A FOREIGN writer on labor topics says the Tuscan mezzoria is a perfect social contract between the owner and the tiller of the soil. The landlord brings into the society the land, the stock, the implements; anticipates the necessary sums; pays the taxes. The peasant brings his arms, his diligence, his ability. At the end of the year the entire produce is divided. The consequence is that there is no popular discontent in this section of Italy.—Sel.

THE jury of twelve is said to have been adopted because the apostles and prophets were twelve. There were also twelve Jewish judges, twelve pillars of the temple, twelve patriarchs, twelve tribes of Israel, twelve stones on Aaron's breast-plate, twelve gates to the city of Jerusalem, twelve months in the year and twelve signs in the Zodiac.—Sel.

LEAVES FROM THE TREE OF LIFE, NUMBER FOUR.

THE MEANS OF PREPARATION FOR ETERNAL LIFE.

"Be ye holy, for I am holy."—1st Pet. 1: 16. "Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord."—Heb. 12: 14. "No unclean thing can dwell with God."—B. M., p. 18, par. 8. "There can not any unclean thing enter into the kingdom of God."—B. M., p. 32, par. 6. "Ye must practice virtue and holiness before me continually. Even so, Amen."—D. C. 46: 9. "No man is possessor of all things, except he be purified and cleansed from all sin."—D. C., 50: 6.

Here we have this threefold testimony, that in order so possess this gift which Christ died to secure for man, we must employ the means of preparation necessary to fit us for its reception.

Contrary to the views of the so-called "Orthodox clergy," there is a work for us to do. They say, "Only believe, and the work is done;" "God will do it all, if you will trust in him." But the whole tenor of God's word gives the lie to their theory. It was disobedience to God's law that involved the race in ruin, that drove man from the paradise of life to the rule and regions of death. If the unchanging and eternal justice of God would not brook rebellion in the beginning, are we justified in supposing it will wink at it now? Faith is indeed an indispensable factor in the preparation for eternal life, but it is not the only one that is essential to the work. There are other principles equally essential with that. It is very inconsistent to claim the absolute necessity of obedience to the demand to believe, "because it is an injunction of the Most High," and at the same time to deny the necessity of obedience to other commands which he has given. The fact is, those who urge that salvation comes by faith only, do not understand the true nature of faith, or they would know it could not stand alone in the economy of salvation. It must lead to, and produce obedience to every duty enjoined; but without faith no duty would be recognized, nor any progress made in divine life. James says:—"Devils believe and tremble," and declares that "faith without works is dead, being alone." He then challenges such "believers" to show their faith without their works, and says, "I will show thee my faith by my works." He also declares:—"By works was faith made perfect."—James 2. In fact, those who clamor for faith alone, would not be willing to say none need to repent of their sins. They would urge the necessity of repentance; and this fact destroys their theory of "faith alone," for indeed repentance is a great, and in many instances, a difficult work, and it requires a strong, enlightened, all-absorbing faith to lead to repentance. And this repentance is essential to the perfecting of faith, making it superior to the faith of devils, which was "dead, being alone." To the true believer it is plain that, since the Alwise and Almighty God has determined to dispense the gift of eternal life to man, He would determine the terms of that dispensation, and that it becomes the absolute and indispensable duty of our race to comply with those terms. The Holy Scriptures are an authoritative declaration of those terms, and from them we may learn how we may obtain possession of that glorious gift. All who accept the Scriptures as the word of God to man, acknowledge that faith is essential to salvation; but sceptics ridicule the Scriptures because faith with other principles is enjoined. They tell us that faith in God is degrading to humanity. Let us see.

However these men may neglect the moral nature of man, they strongly insist upon the highest culture for the mental faculties. In selecting instructors for themselves or their children, they select men of the highest culture in worldly matters. They confess the absolute necessity of having faith in their ability to teach, and in their profundity of their knowledge. They also believe in them as proper models of what they or their children are desired to be. Without this faith in those teachers, these learners would not in docility sit at their feet to drink in their words of wisdom—they would not care to study them as models of perfection in the sciences they desired to master, nor would they be likely to make any progress in their studies. If they have implicit faith in their teachers, are they degraded thereby? Are the chains of slavery fastened upon them by the droppings of intelligence from their lips? Because they try to imitate as near as possible those great models of intelligence, are they degraded thereby? Not a man of them would consent that such was the case. They would tell us that just in proportion as they bent their energies to learn from their intelligent instructors, and sought to pattern after those models of worldly wisdom, they were elevated in the scale of being and of usefulness in the world. Very good.

The science of life is the grandest of all sciences. God has offered to educate man in that science, not merely of the temporal, but of eternal life. He has condescended to reveal himself to man through angels, prophets and apostles, and to declare His divine character, purpose, and will, that mankind might be led to believe in Him. And further, He has sent His Son into the world, who is the "express image of the Father's person and the brightness of his Father's glory," to be our Great Teacher and our great and perfect model of all excellence, purity, perfection, truth, honor, justice, mercy, goodness and love, the embodiment of wisdom and knowledge, without variation or shadow of turning, with whom is no respect of persons, but whose faithfulness endures forever, and whose loving kindness knows no end. If it is essential to our progress in earthly knowledge, and is not degrading to our natures, to believe in our human teachers, is it not essential to our moral and spiritual progress that we shall believe in this divine Teacher? And since his precepts are the embodiment of all that is pure and good, just and true, can it be degrading to believe in him, and to accept him as our great model by whom we should seek to mould our natures and our lives? Is it degrading to cherish and cultivate the spirit of love? Does the mind become enslaved by loving and adoring the good and the pure? Will the practice of that which is lovely, holy, virtuous, pure and true, tend to degrade the heart, mind, or body? Can the sceptical world furnish any instances of liberty-loving heroism and perfect manhood greater than is found among the believers in God and Christ? Can they find any instances to equal them, to say nothing of the great pattern given us in the person and character of Christ? We invite them to the comparison. We only demand that we shall be allowed to choose the representatives on our side of the question, and allow them the same privilege on their side. And if the character of the true believer, in all ages, do not shine forth in greater splendor when viewed from every stand point than the whole galaxy of sceptical names that have ever been traced on the page of history, then we will confess the darkness of our vision, and the faultiness of our understanding. And yet after all, the best, the grandest, the noblest of these Christian heroes have failed in many points in coming up to the great model set before them, because they have failed to perfectly observe his precepts. Yet so far as they have applied the lessons taught by him, they have eclipsed the whole world in their love of virtue, their heroic struggles for liberty—not for themselves alone, but for the race—their deep devotion to truth, their high sense of justice, honor and integrity, their unbounded love and mercy, in fine, in all grand and glorious traits that go to make up a true, pure, and noble manhood. The universal history of all the ages proves that the nearer men have lived to the standard of the Christ as found in the gospel, and illustrated in his life, the more noble and exalted those men have been. I refer not to Popes, nor prelates, nor the hireling clergy who teach for hire and divine for money; I refer to the noble army of self-sacrificing heroes who gave their lives to the spread of truth for the salvation of a world without hope of worldly gain, but hoping for their reward in the joy of souls redeemed from the corruption and bondage of sin. I calmly and dispassionately hurl back the charge that faith in God, in Christ, and in the glorious gospel, is degrading or enslaving in the least degree; and I unhesitatingly and without reserve, declare that faith to be the key of knowledge which turns back the iron bolts of mystery and throws open wide the brazen gates of ignorance, that the enquiring mind may enter the temple of knowledge and wisdom and learn the great secret of eternal life, that thereby man may become heir to the grandest, broadest, and most comprehensive liberty the intelligent mind can conceive of. Indeed, the prophet has truly said, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."—1 Cor. 2:9. Again: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith: for as it is written, the just shall live by faith."—Rom. 1:16, 17. If it is true that "the just shall live by faith," then there is something for us to believe; and unless we do believe that something "we can not see life." The great Teacher says: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God."—Matt. 4:4. Every word of God is a principle, or lesson, in the great science of life, and like every other lesson can be efficacious for good to us only as we put that lesson into practice, or in other words, obey the precept taught therein. Faith in God shows us our true condition as aliens from the fold and family of God, slaves to evil, heirs of death, and utterly incapable of freeing ourselves from the thralldom of sin; for "whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin."—John 8:34. "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness."—Rom. 6:16. The cause of this slavery is disobedience. This cause must be removed before we can be made free. Hence to live by every word of God is to obey or receive every word. A true and living faith will surely lead us to this obedience; and obedience, instead of enslaving and degrading us, tends, as we have said, to elevate, ennoble, and eternally free us from the worst and most degrading slavery, that of sin, and secures to us the enjoyment of eternal life.

No better illustration of faith has been given than the one given by the prophet Alma in the Book of Mormon, which we will now in part reproduce: "Now as I said concerning faith, that it was not a perfect knowledge, even so it is with my words. Ye can not know of their surety at first, unto perfection, any more than faith is a perfect knowledge. But behold, if ye will awake and arouse your faculties, even to an experiment upon my words, and exercise a particle of faith; yea, even if ye can do no more than desire to believe, let this desire work in you, even until ye believe in a manner that ye can give place for a portion of my words. Now we will compare the word unto a seed. Now if ye give place that a seed may be planted in your heart, behold, if it be a true seed, or a good seed, if ye do not cast it out by your unbelief that ye will resist the Spirit of the Lord, behold, it will begin to swell within your hearts; and when you feel these swelling motions, ye will begin to say within yourselves, It must needs be that this is a good seed; or, that the word is good, for it beginneth to enlarge my soul; yea, it beginneth to enlighten my understanding; yea, and it beginneth to be delicious to me. Now behold, would not this increase your faith? I say unto you, yea; nevertheless it hath not grown up to a perfect knowledge. But behold, as the seed swelleth, and sprouteth, and beginneth to grow, then ye must needs say that the seed is good; for behold it swelleth, and sprouteth, and beginneth to grow, then ye must needs say that the seed is good; for behold it swelleth, and sprouteth, and beginneth to grow. And now behold, are ye sure that this is a good seed? I say unto you, yea; for every seed bringeth forth unto its own likeness; therefore if a seed groweth, it is good; but if it groweth not, behold, it is not good; therefore it is cast away. * * * And now behold, is your knowledge perfect? Yea, your knowledge is perfect in that thing, and your faith is dormant; and this because you know; for ye know that the word hath swelled your souls, and ye also know that it hath sprouted up, that your understanding doth begin to be enlightened, and your mind doth begin to expand. O, then, is not this real? I say unto you, yea; because it is light; and whatsoever is light is good, because it is discernible; therefore ye must know that it is good. And now behold, after ye have tasted this light, is your knowledge perfect? Behold, I say unto you, Nay; neither must ye lay aside your faith, for ye have only exercised your faith to plant the seed, that ye might try the experiment, to know if the seed was good. * * * And now behold, if ye nourish it with much care, it will get root, and grow up, and bring forth fruit." Again he tells us: "If ye will not nourish the word, looking forward with an eye of faith to the fruit thereof, ye can never pluck of the fruit of the tree of life. But if ye will nourish the word, yea, nourish the tree as it beginneth to grow, by your faith with great diligence, and with patience, looking forward to the fruit thereof, it shall take root; and behold, it shall be a tree springing up unto everlasting life."—Pages 293, 294.

This illustrates the saying, "Therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith." And again: "The just shall by faith;" also the promise of the great Teacher: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 7:17; and again: "If ye continue in in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32. Christ likens those who hear his word and obey it, to a man building his house on the rock; while the disobedient build upon the sand.

Dear reader, professed Christian, or avowed sceptic, are you wise to build on the sands of uncertainty? How long will you substitute the theories and imaginations of men for the imperishable word of God? The theories of men, professors or non-professors, tend to enslave and darken the mind; for with them all is uncertain, unstable, ever changing, but never bringing assurance and peace to the troubled soul; never bursting the chains of sin and ignorance. Never enabling the devotees of such theories to rejoice in the consciousness of liberty, mental, moral and physical. But, "Blessed are they that keep the testimonies of the Lord, and that seek him with the whole heart;" (Ps. 119); for they are established forever. They can say with the Psalmist: "All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies."—Ps. 35:10. "The righteousness of thy testimonies is everlasting; give me understanding and I shall live."—Ps. 119:144. "The law of thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver."—Ps. 119:72.

The above is the testimony of the true believer in every age of the world, because there has been a living, working faith. They have taken God at his word and proved the preciousness of that word by obedience thereunto; and have proved that word to be the means of life and peace here, and of everlasting joy and eternal life hereafter. The truth, purity, justice, equity, and mercy of the word of God stamps all who obey it with the like attributes and thus renders them like him and fits them to dwell in his presence, wherein they become crowned upon with glory, honor, and eternal life; while those who reject the least of his commandments and teach men so, can have no part in the Kingdom of God.

Remember then, dear reader, that a true and living faith will lead to the observance of all the precepts, commands, and ordinances of God; while a faith that ignores any of these "is dead, being alone." "For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also."—James, 2. C. DERRY.

DEATH.

"It is appointed unto men once to die."—Heb. 9:27. What a legacy is this! How serious the thought! O death, must I meet thee face to face? Shall I feel the cold touch of thy merciless hand? Is there no escape from this awful monster—no way to avert his steady approach? No. Our days are numbered and "time and tide wait for no man." True, our days may be lengthened by a smiling providence, or our life speedily terminated by reckless extravagance, but in the common, ordinary course of events, the sands of life run steadily out, terminating our earthly existence.

Is there a "better country" beyond this vale of tears—a land of peace where immortal spirits dwell and reign? Yes. "In my Father's house are many mansions," said Jesus, "if it were not so I would have told you." He would not have inspired their hearts with a hope never to be realized. "I go to prepare a place for you." Is Jesus a lover of the beautiful, the sublime? If so, how lovely and grand that place that Jesus is preparing must be? "That where I am ye may be also." We shall, then, dwell with God. God will wipe all tears from our eyes, the sad scenes of sickness, sorrow and death, will vanish, superceded by the radiance of that peace, ful abode. Then the fondest hopes of the faithful will be realized, their highest anticipations eclipsed, and joy such as the human heart can not now conceive, will thrill every bosom, will gladden to repletion every thankful heart. Our "enemy," death, is a friend at last. It opens the gate to paradise, not found, at present, on earth. It is the portal of the City of God.

Even this "enemy, death, shall be destroyed" said the apostle to the Gentiles, "when Christ shall have put down all authority and rule" and all things will become subject to God who rules majestically in love. The psalmist David said, and I think with authority, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his Saints."—Psalms 116:15. If there was no resurrection I apprehend it would be otherwise. The virtue of Christ's death is suggested in the following: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit."—John 12:24. The same importance does not attach to the death of every man, nevertheless, the apostles of Christ taught a similar principle having application to all men, "That which thou sowest is not quickened except it die." It follows then that what we lay down in death we shall take up in the resurrection. "To every seed his own body." If we have been born of God, and have kept the faith, and have fought the "good fight," we shall be raised to immortal glory in the celestial kingdom of God. Paul taught the Roman brethren, "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you."—Rom. 8:11. Then, "Death, where is thy sting, O grave where is thy victory.

THE LAND SHADOWING WITH WINGS

JOSEPH'S LAND.

THAT the above proposition is true, the undersigned verily believes. To prove the same he would, with due deference to the holders of contrary opinions, offer the following. The prophet Isaiah was a Hebrew, and probably was in Jerusalem at the time of uttering the prophecy found in Isaiah eighteenth chapter. The land "beyond the rivers of Ethiopia," would truly be the land west of the Ethiopic ocean, or Southern ocean, (see any old geography), which is the American continent. The land spoken of so fluently and admiringly of by Moses in Deuteronomy, chapter 33, and by Jacob in Genesis, chapter 49, whereon the seed of Joseph should be "shot at and hated," whose domains extended "to the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills," whose blessings comprised all the "chief things" of the ancient mountains, precious things of the lasting hills, the whole scale of the zones, from the midst of the earth, [equator], "to the utmost bounds of the everlasting hills;" the limit on the north, Alaska, on the South Terra Del Fuego.

The land on which the "stick of Joseph" should be in the hand of Ephraim, is the land on which the destruction of sinful Israel should be accomplished by having her strongholds "laid siege against with a mount," and "forts raised" against her to the bringing of her inhabitants down to the dust so "the vision of all" should be "as the words of a book," &c. What more likely than that Isaiah in spirit, seeing the Nephite land as it should be after the destruction of her populace by wars, famine, and scourge, till the time of the "setting" or "lifting" up of the ensign, in our day, should describe it as a "land shadowing with wings"—the word in Hebrew signifying wings—(Gaph-pai), or (avar), also means forts, towers, defenses, battlements, "mounds," and buildings. As the wing is the defense of the bird's body, so the use of the words extended to defenses of and for men and cities. The Jewish prophet graphically pictures the land as "shadowing," gloomily and sadly, with these silent ghostly "shades" of departed greatness and splendor, in the presence of which the latter-day "explorer" stands in humble, deferential awe, and listens in vain for the Sphinx-like walls to breathe the story of their "terrible" dead.

This view, certainly, (in our opinion), is consistent with the "facts" as portrayed in Jacob's prophetic blessing in Genesis, chapter 49, and Isaiah, chapter 29, as well as discovered by the antiquarian of to-day. These "shadows" dimly, yet certainly, bespeaking for ancient America a wonderful past, whose history is unknown (outside of the "book," or stick of Joseph) to the present occupants of the land.

That "ambassadors" will go upon the sea to Israel the parent of the nation, terrible from their beginning, but now scattered, peeled, trodden under foot, and "meted out," (on reservations), is evident from the words of Jeremiah 16:—"The Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth, and shall say, Surely our fathers have inherited lies vanity, and things wherein there is no profit." And also from Zeph. 3:9-20, we learn that the nations shall honor Israel in the day that the daughters of the dispersed from "beyond the rivers of Ethiopia," (Ethiopic Ocean), shall bring bring His offering. My authority for the definition of the word "wings" is Roy's Hebrew Dictionary.

A PLEA FOR JUSTICE.

To the Editor:—As a representative of "the sect everywhere spoken against," we desire to call the attention of the people of Brocton to the series of meetings now being held by our people, and to disabuse, if possible, by any means in our power, the existing prejudice in the minds of many against the church. It is a misfortune, for which we are in no wise responsible, that we bear the name of a people in the valleys of the mountains in Utah. Notwwithstanding the fact that this Reorganized Church has done more in the war against polygamy and the priestly assumptions and violation of the law, both human and divine, of those people in Utah, yet I often meet with people who somehow have imbibed the idea of a connection between them and us as a people. It is, or ought to be, unnecessary to state that such people really know nothing of us, and too many do not seem to want to know. And men whose calling professionally is to dispense justice, righteousness, mercy and truth, take up and bear along the popular slander and misrepresentation of our cause.

In view of the history of the past it would seem that the time had come when mankind could afford to be just with his fellow man. But ignorance, superstition, bigotry and religious intolerance are unhappily still in the present and not altogether of the past. What has not God's saving truth had to suffer under their influence and sway in past history! The very fact that there are thousands of intelligent, God-fearing men and women in our country to-day—law-abiding, honest people here in Brocton—who have submitted to ostracism for what they believe to be the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ, and who are set for the defense, anywhere and everywhere, and as against opposition from every quarter, of their claim; that, amidst all the religious confusion born of creeds and commandments and doctrines of men, God himself, in fulfillment of prophecy clearly indicated in both the Old and New Testament scriptures, has, in his divine mercy, given us, not a reformation of the gospel and of the Church of Christ at the hands of either Henry the Eighth, Luther or Calvin, but a restoration by angel ministry of both the church and the gospel of the kingdom of God,—this fact, I say, should suggest a reasonable, just and fair investigation of the facts.

If the work is of men it will come to nought without the necessity of men's stultifying themselves by a circulation of slanders and misrepresentations concerning a people whose defense they have never taken the pains to hear. If it is of God, men can not afford to pass it idly, by without care or investigation. There is a cause for the opposition to this church; but it is not for fear of the evil or untruth that may be found in it. Popular history and encyclopedia literature gave Christians and Christianity a very hard name during the first century, because written not by its friends and those who were in a position to know, but by their enemies. Tacitus says, the early Saints were "hated of mankind," and calls the religion of Jesus "a destructive superstition." Celsus says: "That Mary was divorced from Joseph, led a shameless life and wandering about fell in with a Roman soldier by the name of Pandera and who was the father of Jesus."

There is as much truth in this as there is in most of the popular stories concerning this latter day work. We are among the people to stay. Our mission is a blessing to mankind. We demand a fair investigation before passing judgment.

ONE WIFE TAKEN—THREE LEFT.

THE Utah problem appears to be slowly approaching a solution, and the indications point toward the gradual collapse of the institution of polygamy. Last spring Lester Herrick, a wealthy bishop in the church, owning a large amount of real estate, residing here, suddenly went on a trip to the coast. Spring and summer passed, but Bishop Herrick still tarried, and as he had four wives, it became suspected that not having "the fear of the Lord" before him and greatly dreading United States Marshal, he had taken to the "under-ground." Recently the bishop returned to Ogden and at once made preparations for the removal of his legal wife and his household goods to California. A very short sojourn in Ogden sufficed to complete his arrangements and he has now departed for his new home, leaving behind him three separate families, for whom, however, he has liberally provided. Those of the church profess to believe that Herrick will return to his old home when things are more settled, but the facts have become known that he has left his property in the hands of an agent to be disposed of; that the sale of one city lot has recently been effected, and that the gentleman has become the owner of estates in southern California. There is no doubt that Herrick has permanently left Utah and the church, and that if any deception has been practiced the church is the object of it. Bishop Herrick was well liked by his gentile fellow citizens and possessed their confidence. He was a man of more than average ability, shrewd and honorable in his dealings. It was a daughter of Bishop Herrick whom members of his own church endeavored to compromise with Judge Powers in order that the judge's character might be blackened, but the plan reacted upon the head of one of their witnesses who was convicted of perjury and is now serving out a five years' sentence. The lady has since been happily married to a gentile.

Another bishop in Salt Lake City, John Sharp, who is also superintendent of the Utah Central railway, declined about a year ago to "live his religion" on the occasion of his having to plead to an indictment charging unlawful cohabitation. "Guilty," said Mr. Sharp, "I promise to obey the law in future and urge others to do likewise," whereupon sentence was suspended, and so was Bishop Sharp from his bishopric in the Mormon church. A few more such examples as these and the crumbling edifice will totter to its fall.

The hiding away of John Taylor to escape trial and indictment, and the bail jumping of George Q. Cannon, first and second presidents of the church respectively, are causing much unfavorable comment among the more intelligent Mormons. A gentleman who has passed three years in Utah expresses his views of the existing situation as follows:

Polygamy is the least of the evils which the government has to contend with in its struggle with Mormonism. No endowment house ceremony of marriage is complete without the taking of a blood curdling oath to obey the priesthood in all things, religious and secular. The oath pledges those who take it to regard the United States government as their worst enemy. The climax of treason would seem to have been reached by these bigoted law-breakers; hence, while the present law may be sufficient to eventually put an end to polygamous practices, something of a more radical nature is hoped for by the loyal people of the territory to effectually divorce church and state, even if it go to the extent of governing Utah by a commission.

THE HUMBLE EXALTED.

GOD chooses the humblest instruments. He passes by the tempests, and waters the fields and gardens with his imperceptible dew. He passes by the great elephant, and bestows the hues of sapphire and amethyst upon the tiny humming-bird. He passes by the lofty pine and huge elm tree, and lavishes blossom and perfume on the violet. All history teaches the same truth. Moses was the son of a poor Levite; Gideon was a thresher; David was a shepherd boy; Amos was a herdsman; the apostles were ignorant and unlearned; Zwingli was a shepherd; Melancthon, the great theologian of the Reformation, was an armorer; Luther was the child of a poor miner; Fuller was a farm-servant; Carey, the originator of the plan of translating the Bible into the language of the millions of Hindostan, was a shoemaker; Morrison, who translated the Bible into the Chinese language, was a last-maker; Dr. Milne was a herd-boy; Adam Clarke was the son of Irish cottagers; John Foster was a weaver; Jay, of Bath, was a herdsman; Dr. Livingston sat at the loom while he studied Greek. Last and greatest of all, Jesus of Nazareth was the despised and rejected of all men. He had not whereon to lay his head, yet to Him shall every knee bow of things in heaven and of things on earth.

GO DOWN TO BED ROCK.

THE end of right character is not honesty alone, but in honesty all right character begins. There must be a bed rock of sincerity that any superstructure may be reared. Apply it in the direction of any good quality, and what hope of improvement is there unless a person means what he says, and positively purposes to accomplish it? You might as well build an ocean pier upon the shifting sands of a river-bar as to rear the structure of worthy character upon insincerity. The better purposes of such persons are only like the constantly changing waves above the constantly changing sands. Emphasize, then, the value of honesty. "Truth before all things" was the demand of Thoreau, and we must appreciate the fundamental importance of it. Emphasize its worth in the home, in society, in government.

In the Church, the apex of the pyramid we are building—no, its base rather, for the home, society, government, all rest upon the Church, and civilization, unless it be Christian, is very lacking—emphasize the vital necessity of honesty. A defect in the foundation, the Church, will be felt all through the superstructure. If there be this poor underpinning, the walls will crack, and a collapse follow. If we err at all, let us be extravagant on the safe side, and be over scrupulous as to right and justice. Our children may think their parents too sensitive in their ideas of honesty, but we can stand the strain of any such charge. If we may seem to lean too far back, there is not so much danger of falling as when we lean extravagantly forward. Whether honesty may be profitable or not, our duty is to encourage honesty in the young first of all as a principle.

A BOOM IN THE HOLY LAND.

New York Tribune: The introduction of soap, it is said, is doing much to civilize the people of the Holy Land. A large soap factory has been established on the site of ancient Shechem, and the people are beginning to use it on their persons instead of trying to eat it as they did at first. Along with the introduction of soap other reforms are going on. Bethlehem has been rebuilt and the streets are lighted with gas. Cæsarea is having a building boom, Nazareth is becoming the headquarters of big olive oil speculators. Corner lots in Joppa are going up with a rush, and real estate in Mount Carmel is largely held by speculators for an advance. All around Shechem there is a lively demand for good soap fat, and the sleepy inhabitants of Ramoth Gilead think of building a glue factory. Jerusalem is waking up also. It has a street cleaning bureau, big clocks on its public buildings, and its suburbs are being built up rapidly. Even in the Vale of Gehenna the price of land has gone up. The ladies of Jerusalem take all the Parisian fashion journals, and know all about the latest style of hair dressing.

BUSINESS AND RELIGION.

A WEALTHY, irreligious, shrewd business man in Illinois, was approached by a member of the Church of Christ for a subscription towards building a meeting house. He cheerfully put down his name for two hundred dollars, and then remarked, "I give that as a good business investment. I would rather give two hundred dollars every year than not to have the gospel preached in this community."

"How is that?" he was asked. "You do not pay any heed to the gospel. Why are you interested in having it preached?"

"Oh," he replied, "I live here with my family, and my property is around here; without the influence the condition of society would become such that neither property nor life would be safe. I would not be willing to live in any community where the gospel was not preached!"

These views of a hard-headed man of the world are confirmed by all experience. Christianity is the salt of the earth. Only the utterly abandoned would be content to live where its influence has ceased to be felt.—Selected.

Baker, William McBurney, Samuel McBurney, William Thompson, George Shimel, W. C. Nirk, W. N. Ray and J. P. Knox reported. Bishop's Agent J. S. Roth reported: On hands last report $81.38. Received since $102.25. Paid out $61.35. Balance on hand $122.28. Resolved that each branch delegate shall in the future have the number of votes he is entitled to affixed to his credentials. The following resolutions were adopted. 1. Resolved that no charge or charges shall have a hearing before the district conference or court appointed thereby, until the branch where the party sought to be charged resides shall have first performed legal, official labor with such party, and shall have furnished satisfactory proof of the same to the conference if in session, or to the district officials if not in session. 2. That no elder shall be placed under accusation until two witnesses shall have signed the same, which shall specify the acts and things done, when and where done, and shall themselves be cognizant of said facts and be required so to state in said charges, the same to be accompanied by his or her signature. W. C. Nirk was sustained as president, J. P. Knox as vice president, J. S. Roth as Bishop's Agent and book agent, and H. H. McCoy as secretary. All the spiritual authorities were sustained. Services were held as follows: Friday evening preaching by Elder N. Stamm. Saturday evening preaching by Elder George Shimel. Sunday, 9:30 a. m., prayer meeting, led by Wm. N. Ray. 10:45, preaching by J. P. Knox. 2:30 p. m. sacrament meeting, led by W. C. Nirk. At the close of this session Alexander Shimel was ordained a priest, and several sick were administered to. At 7:30 preaching by N. A. Baker. Adjourned to meet at the Richland Creek School-house on Friday, March 4th, 1887, at 7:30 p. m.

LITTLE SIOUX.

The conference of the above district met pursuant to adjournment at half-past ten o'clock a. m. Saturday, December 4th, 1886. Organized by electing J. C. Crabb president, and P. Cadwell and C. Derry associate presidents, and choosing Wm. C. Cadwell secretary. Branch reports: Spring Creek 54, including 6 elders, 2 priests, 3 teachers and 1 deacon; no changes; W. Chambers president, D. Chambers clerk. Magnolia 255, including 2 high priests, 1 seventy, 11 elders, 10 priests, 4 teachers, and 3 deacons; 1 baptized, 3 received by letter, 9 received by certificate of baptism, 1 died, and 1 orgained, net gain 12; P. Cadwell president, Donald Maule clerk. Little Sioux report was referred back to the branch for correction. Official reports: high priests C. Derry, J. C. Crabb and P. Cadwell (baptized 44); of the seventy, J. F. Mintun and G. S. Hyde (baptized 1); elders W. and D. Chambers (by letter), E. R. Lanpher, W. Chambers and H. Garner; priests J. C. Johnson, W. T. Fallon and J. Emerson; and teacher W. R. Davison, reported. P. Cadwell reported the spiritual condition of Magnolia branch as fair. J. C. Crabb reported the membership of the Little Sioux branch as large, but badly scattered, and attendance as a consequence small. Bishop's agent, P. Cadwell reported: on hand at last report $70.56, received $120.30, paid out $137.33, on hand September 30th, $53.50. An auditing committee, consisting of W. R. Davison, H. Garner, and W. T. Fallon, reported in favor of its approval; adopted. Bro. Henry Garner requested to be released from his mission on the Willow; granted. Bro. D. Chambers having requested to be released from laboring at Six Mile Grove and suggesting that L. Ellison and C. Downs should be appointed. Then it was moved and motion prevailed that D. Chambers be continued in missionary labor in the eastern part of the district with the exception of Six Mile Grove and vicinity. On motion L. Ellison was appointed in charge of the work at this latter place. On motion, a committee of three, consisting of C. Derry, H. Garner and J. C. Crabb, was appointed to confer with a like committee from the Galland's Grove district as to the advisability of arranging for a series of tent meetings in these two districts, and if thought best, to fix times and place of each meeting and report to the next conference. Quite a lengthy and interesting discussion took place with reference to the prosecution of the work in the district and the organization of branches at sundry places. Preaching Saturday evening by Charles Derry, Sunday morning by George S. Hyde, and Sunday afternoon by J. C. Crabb. Adjourned to meet at Magnolia, at half-past ten o'clock a. m., Saturday, March 5th, 1887.

FAR WEST.

Conference of the above district convened on Saturday and Sunday, December 11th and 12th, 1886, in the Saints' Church in Stewartville, Missouri; John M. Terry president, C. P. Faul clerk. Minutes of last conference were read and approved. Brethren S. Butler, W. H. Kelley and J. H. Meriam were appointed a committee on credentials. Branch Reports: St. Joseph 107; 3 received by letter, 1 died, 1 ordination. Pleasant Grove 55; 1 baptized, 1 received by certificate, 1 by letter, 1 removed. German Stewartville, no change. DeKalb 72; 1 removed, 2 marriages. Delano 92; 12 baptized, 1 expelled. Stewartville 92; 2 removed. Center Prairie 28; 1 expelled. Elders' Reports: W. T. Bozarth (baptized 14), H. C. Bronson, Wm. Summerfield, I. L. Bear, J. Drown (confirmed 4), S. Butler, J. H. Meriam, J. M. Terry (solemnized 2 marriages), D. J. Powel, Temme Hinderks, Henry Hinderks, D. S. Crawley, T. Worrall. Priests Wm. H. Kelley, A. W. Head, D. R. Baldwin, C. P. Faul, Peter Peterson, F. Uphoff. Deacon C. Householder. Committee on moving church reported. Bro. Senterlow Butler was chosen as president of district, Bro. Wm. Lewis vice-president, and C. P. Faul secretary, Wm. Lewis was sustained Bishop's Agent. Question: Can delegates vote by the yeas and nays as the record now stands. Chair answered, Can not. Bishop's Agent, William Lewis, reported. Brn. Butler, Kinneman and Head were chosen a committee to appoint two-days' meetings in the branches. An appeal from the action of the St. Joseph Branch was asked for by Bro. and Sr. Clay. On motion this matter was referred to a committee of three, Brn. D. S. Crawley, W. T. Bozarth and Thomas Worrall, to report early. The secretary reported the numerical strength of the district as follows: Number enrolled three months ago 533, number taken from the present statistical reports 548—a gain of 15. Whereas this district is large enough to keep a missionary at labor constantly; and whereas we believe Bro. H. C. Bronson could do a great amount of good to the church if he had an appointment for this district; Therefore, be it resolved that we petition General Conference at its next session to appoint him a mission exclusively to this district and that we will obligate ourself for his support. Postponed till next conference. Committee on the appeal case of St. Joseph Branch vs. William and Jennet Clay, recommend that the brother and sister be granted a rehearing. Report was adopted and committee discharged. Conference appointed Henry Hinderks, Wm. Lewis, and J. M. Terry a court to hear the case. On motion, every elder and priest in the district is requested to devote as much labor as possible during the next three months. A committee of three—H. C. Bronson, J. T. Kinneman and Alexander McCallum—were appointed to correspond with the different districts of the church in the west for the purpose of chartering one or two railway coaches to attend the General Conference to be held in Kirtland, Ohio, next April. Social meetings on Sunday, 9: 30 a. m., and at 2 p. m. Preaching by Bro. H. C. Bronson on Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. Adjourned to meet Saturday, March 5th, 1887, at 10 a. m., with the Delano Branch.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE!

The conference of the Massachusetts District will meet in Dennisport, at the Saints' Chapel, Saturday, January 29th, 1887, at 2:30 p. m. A full attendance is desired, as the appointment of delegates to the next General Conference should be attended to. Arrangements have been made with the Old Colony Railroad Company for excursion tickets, from any point on their line to North Harwich, the nearest depot to Dennisport, at three cents per mile for the round trip, which is only one cent and a half a mile each way, providing that not less than five persons purchase tickets at one depot. That is, to secure these reduced rates there will not be less than five sold at one depot, and as many more as may be desired.

A list of depots will be furnished the company at which the Saints will board the train, and only at the depots mentioned in this notice can excursion tickets be obtained:—For New Bedford, application must be made at the depot in Fairhaven; Fall River, at Bowenville station; Brockton, at Brockton station; North Plymouth, at Plymouth station; Boston, at the Boston station; Plainville, Attleboro, Providence, and Cranston Saints, and all others who may travel through Providence, can obtain their tickets at the Attleboro station,—the beginning of the Old Colony Line. Little Compton can apply at either Fall River or New Bedford.

If any of the branches have been overlooked in this notice, or any further information is desired, it can be had by writing to me.

JOHN SMITH, District President,
No. 677 Purchase-st., New Bedford, Mass.

DIED.

HUNT.—Enoch Hunt was born July 23d, 1812, at Muhlenburgh, Kentucky; was baptized into the Church of Christ at Muhlenburg in the year 1844, prior to the martyrdom of Joseph Smith the Seer, by D. P. Hunt, and confirmed by the same. After the exodus of the Saints from Nauvoo, he and his family came west as far as Council Bluffs; but having no fellowship with the evil practices of the usurping leaders of the church he returned to his native State. But desirous of the fellowship of the Saints, he returned west and settled down in Harrison county, Iowa, where the elders of the Reorganized Church found him, and becoming convinced that God was at its helm, he united with that church and lived a consistent member of the same. Being called to the office of a teacher, he filled it with honor to himself and much blessing to the Saints to whom he ministered. Loved by his brethren, and esteemed by all who knew him, he fell asleep in Jesus on the 20th of November, 1886. Truly, he was "gathered home, like a shock of corn fully ripe." He was a father to the fatherless,—nine helpless orphans finding a home under his roof; and several of these he and his loving wife raised from infancy to manhood and womanhood. If ever true hospitality was found, it was under his humble roof; and there the gospel messenger ever found the heartiest welcome. He and his loved companion walked together fifty-four years, being blessed with nine children, fifty-seven grandchildren, and twenty great grandchildren. On his death-bed he bore faithful testimony to the truth of the gospel, and earnestly exhorted his family to faithfulness in the service of God. The writer preached the funeral sermon.

He sleeps the sleep of the just,
For he lived the life of the true.
In God was his constant trust,
E'er since he was born anew.

BURTON.—At Tulare, California, December 1st, 1886, of abscess of the lung, Georgie, son of Bro. E. S. and Sr. Susan Burton, aged 2 years, 7 months and 10 days. Services at the house and grave by Elder E. L. Conoyer, of the United Brethren.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT.

This will certify to whom it may concern, that in accordance with a resolution of last Annual Conference held at Lamoni, Iowa, April, 1886, I have appointed Elder Andrew W. Thompson to labor as missionary in Los Angeles county, California. The Saints will therefore receive him as an authorized representative of the church, and administer to his needs as God shall bless them with ability so to do, while they pray for his spiritual advancement in our Redeemer's cause.

HEMAN C. SMITH,
President of Pacific Slope Mission.

EVERY man is master of his own being, is responsible for his own sins, makes his own heaven and his own hell. If he sows the wind, he reaps the whirlwind. If he sows mercy and kindness, men will return an overflowing measure of love and goodness into his bosom. If he tramples on the feelings of others his own feelings become as bitter as gall. If he degrades a woman, and helps even by a thought to make her an outcast creature, he makes the beast in him his master, and must suffer the life and the death of a beast.—Sel.

HEALING.

THE following paper was sent us by Bro. J. R. Badham, of late, and we give it place in our columns as another proof that God answers the reasonable prayers of those who seek unto him:

NEWBURY PARK, California,

March 18th, 1883.

FRIEND LIVINGSTON, ESQ.,

Dear Sir:—I received your letter of the 16th yesterday and am very glad to hear from you, what has been done for you in answer to prayer. I had heard of it and hope ere long to visit Hueneme and to have the pleasure of hearing you fully on this subject.

I am and always have been a believer in the power and efficacy of prayer, though I have seldom used and relied solely on it as the means of obtaining what I desired. I have at times, and have been astonished at the result, and I will add that I fully believe in the teachings of the Bible and have always done so with more or less faith. You will no doubt remember that I lost the power of speech—or my voice, about Christmas, 1876, now four years ago; and a large part of this time could converse only by writing and the rest of the time in a whisper, that tired and exhausted my strength. This is known by every one who has known me during these years. During this time I have had to work much harder than usual, and consequently have been somewhat run down in strength, for you know I am not very strong, and consequently was not so likely to get well or regain my voice as if I had been rested and in good condition.

Mr. Burton preached in our school house on Saturday evening and on Sunday morning and evening, March 5th and 6th, last. On Sunday evening I asked him to pray for me, that my voice, health and strength might be restored. He did so that evening at John Gries' house in the presence of Mrs. Gries, Mr. Danforth and wife and a few others.

Now the question asked by all my neighbors who heard of this, and all knew it for nothing was done secretly, "Will Mills' voice be restored?" There was considerable interest in the matter. I had faith that Mr. Burton's prayers would be answered, and joined my prayers to his, as did those present of whom I have named. This was late Sunday night. On Monday my voice was better and stronger than it had been for a great while, so the others noticed it. On Tuesday it was much improved so that John Gries said he heard me speak aloud, though I was unconscious of it, but I knew I could speak as I had tried it when alone. I was careful not to speak aloud in the presence of others till I was sure I could. On Wednesday while helping Bob drive some hogs, I called aloud to him, so that I could have been distinctly heard three hundred yards away. My voice gradually improved, and on Monday this week came out strong and full, but became tired by using it too much.

I had worked very hard—for me, all week, and from four or five o'clock in the morning till after dark, and was up till eleven o'clock at night, several nights, and was very tired, and in physically bad condition to regain my voice. Still it came. This morning I spent half an hour at Mr. Stebbins' house conversing with J. J. Hill, the old and deaf man whom you know, and you know it requires a loud and strong voice to talk to him so that he can understand. My voice is not yet clear, but a little hoarse, and I found that my talk with Mr. Hill tired me some, but not very much.

Young Mr. Zeller spent last night with me and we conversed last night and this morning. Ask him. I fully believe that my voice has been restored in direct answer to prayer and by no other means whatever. I have used no medicines, nor anything else that I thought had any influence upon my voice except prayer, and I am satisfied that my voice came in answer to those prayers. Not only that of Mr. Burton while he was here, but his continued prayers and those of others who so kindly as you have prayed for me. And I have no hesitation whatever in stating this to you and all who care to know it. Whether others will believe or whether they will not believe that my voice was restored in direct answer to prayer; this one thing remains indisputable by all who have known me for over four years past, that whereas during that time I could not speak or talk except in a whisper and with much pain and exhaustion to me, I can now speak aloud, which I can readily prove to any one who has ears to hear and will come under the sound of my voice. In conclusion I must say it is all the Lord's doings and it is marvelous in my eyes.

You may make such use of this as you may see best. I thank you and friends in Hueneme who have taken so much interest in me, for their and your kindness and prayers, and desire your continued prayers, not only for full restored voice and health, but the Spirit and ability to lead others to the Lord Jesus to be His.

Sincerely yours,
H. W. MILLS.

THE CHICAGO TIMES.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1887.

THE DAILY TIMES.

The experience of the past has demonstrated that the west requires and will liberally sustain a first-class newspaper such as THE TIMES—a journal that spares no necessary expense in the collection of the news of the world, and that gives an ample presentation of the events of each day as they occur. It is strictly within the bounds of truth to assert that THE TIMES in all its editions is the most complete, comprehensive, instructive, and entertaining journal published on the American continent; and care will be taken to maintain the high reputation that so many years of acknowledged supremacy have brought.

THE TIMES is represented at Washington, New York, and other principal cities of the United States and Europe by correspondents of experience and a high order of ability, who transmit by telegraph or mail accounts of all occurrences, and present intelligent reviews of the political and social events of the time. The vigilance of the correspondents is a guarantee that readers of THE TIMES will be kept fully informed in all that goes to constitute the history of the period.

The city news will be given more fully and adequately than it is possible for any other Chicago paper to present it. All occurrences will be reported, as they have been heretofore, with absolute impartiality. Through no other channel is it practicable to obtain such complete records of the proceedings of deliberative bodies of a national or representative character as through the columns of THE TIMES.

Merchants and bankers throughout the country have long recognized the superiority of THE TIMES' financial and commercial reports. Absolute accuracy and freedom from the influence of traders' cliques and rings will continue to characterize this department of the paper.

Literary features of a high order of merit have been added to the Sunday and Saturday editions, and to these departments some of the best writers in the United States have become regular contributors. These editions rival the best magazines in the excellence of their literary contents.

THE TIMES will continue in the advocacy of sound political principles. It will labor for the emancipation of the country from the burdens of a protective tariff, and give all encouragement to efforts for the improvement of the civil service by its divo cement from party politics. THE TIMES will remain, as it has been for more than twenty years, an aggressively independent journal, acknowledging allegiance to no party, but striving for principle and justice.

In order to meet the demands of its country patrons, arrangements have been made whereby the Sunday edition of THE TIMES is distributed by means of special and fast railway trains to cities within a radius of two hundred miles of Chicago early on the day of its publication.

THE WEEKLY TIMES.

THE WEEKLY TIMES is a complete compendium of the news of the week, with special features of late and trustworthy market reports, and a department of industrial and agricultural intelligence carefully prepared by an editor of long experience, and is printed and mailed the morning of the day on which it is dated. In these respects THE WEEKLY TIMES is superior to any mere agricultural paper, for the field it covers is infinitely more extensive than that which can be occupied by the "one idea" press.

The subscription price of THE WEEKLY TIMES is only $1 per year, postage prepaid. It is not believed that so valuable and comprehensive a library of useful knowledge can be anywhere else obtained for so small a sum. The endeavor will be to make THE WEEKLY a perfect newspaper for farmers and for families to whom it is not convenient to take a daily.

Sample copies will be sent to address on application by letter or otherwise to THE TIMES office, corner Washington street and Fifth avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

COMMENDING THE HERALD.

We have been receiving from time to time, letters commendatory of the HERALD and the tone of its editorials and articles; some of these letters we have inserted in the HERALD, both in the "items" columns and in the letter department. We have had two objects in this; the one was to call the attention of the readers to the HERALD as a necessary adjunct to the Saints' household and warfare, and the necessity of sustaining it, both among those who already take it, and as a commendation to others to take it. It was to the end of increasing its circulation and thus hastening the day of its entire self-sustaining and the making its subscription price less. Our other object was to encourage others to a correct appreciation of the spiritual work of the HERALD, by showing the estimation in which it seemed to be held by many of its readers. We did not think either of these objects was reprehensible.

We regret to notice in a letter published in this issue, as well as in others received and published, that these commendations as inserted by us, are looked upon with disfavor, and a mistrust expressed that they are calculated to disturb the moral poise of the Editors, as praise and flattery are apt to do the human mind. We confess to human weakness, acknowledge our liability to be spoiled by fulsome adulation and the cajolery of flattery, and feel warned by the interest and intervention of the friends to the general cause. We confess further that we have a striking and forcible desire for the increase and success of the HERALD and have tried to conduct the part entrusted to our care with direct reference and in aid of those engaged in its temporal welfare; and in doing this have tried not to lose sight of, nor sacrifice its spiritual character. We may have erred, possibly have done so, in our zeal and lack of wisdom; and our anxiety to overcome the damage done to the office fund some three years since, may have led us astray in the direction referred to; if so, we have room and time to amend. If our friendly critics keep on, and we be heedful of all criticism offered, we shall in time be free from all the faults complained of, or shall have no opinions that it is worth while to name, or be safe to state.

The commendations we have published have been sent us voluntarily and without solicitation upon our part, and from all parts of the field. Many of the strongest received have been in connection with renewals, or new subscriptions, and of these but few have been published. We do not see that just commendation of the work of co-workers should be misconstrued by those receiving it, and they be hurt by it being puffed up thereby and encouraged into self-importance. We feel gratified, as all men should do, when our work being done in earnest and honest intention meets with the approval of the good and the true, and shall feel deeply humiliated if it shall result in our taking it in a personal sense, rather than honest commendation of honest labor, as it was the evident intention of the writers that it should be. "Evil be to him who thinks evil of this," is true of more things than the act which gave rise to the saying; and should find a place in the christian's rules of conduct, beside Paul's maxim, "Charity thinketh no evil."

WE call attention to a letter from Elders John C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder, written from Richmond, Ray county, Missouri, denouncing the spirit which seemed to prevail at the debate between our Bro. W. J. Smith and Elder W. P. Brown, in Canada; especially that exhibited by Elder Brown, and condemning many of the things said by him.

The attention of Elders J. C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder was called to the statements and manner of Elder W. P. Brown's public discourses while they and he were at Lamoni together; and they were requested to instruct the elder to avoid such things in the future. It would appear, however, that they either neglected to instruct Elder Brown, or the latter forgot the warning given by his superior officers, or disrespected them as he has others. It should be remembered by Elders J. C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder, that Elder W. P. Brown came to Lamoni, indorsed by them and Elder David Whitmer as an Elder of the Church of Christ, and sent out by the authority of that church; and came to Lamoni stating that he was sent, acted, and spoke as directed by the Holy Ghost; that he made the same claim in Canada, and presumably at the debate; to now repudiate the spirit by which Elder Brown speaks is very damaging. Elder Brown's "convictions" may be "honest;" we do not presume to judge; but the man who professes to be filled with the Holy Ghost, and moved by charity and love toward those whom he calls his brethren though they be in error, as he thinks, will assail those brethren in the public stand in vituperative charges claiming the things stated to be the utterances of the Holy Ghost, men who are as honest and capable as Elder Brown is supposed to be, must needs be excused from accepting the statement as being dictated by common charity, to say nothing of their being inspired by the Holy Spirit.

We accept the statement of Elders J. C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder as relieving them from any complicity in the statements of Elder W. P. Brown, and feel grateful for the kind sentiments expressed; but we shall be pleased to be informed which of these men represent the Church of Christ; which of them are really authorized to speak positively and definitely for and in behalf of the church which we are asked to believe centers in and around Elder David Whitmer, as the representative of the Church of Christ.

It will be noticed that the letter to which we call attention was written from statements sent to Elders Whitmer and Snyder, by one of their own members and not from what has been sent to them from our side of that debate. It is proper for men to state their convictions in regard to principle, doctrine and church claims, and they may urge their views earnestly, zealously, and be excused if in their zeal they exceed the bounds of prudence; but there is small excuse for men claiming to be Christian men, and filled with charity, when they assail others with being moved by impure motives.

We should gladly have published the letter from Elders Whitmer and Snyder, in the same issue with the letters from Bro. W. J. Smith and McNabb; but such letter was not received until after the HERALD was out; for this reason we could not comply with their request to publish together.

SPRINKLING.

A BROTHER writes that some of his Methodist friends cite Numbers 19: 15-21, to prove that sprinkling is the proper mode of Christian baptism. Well, this is probably as good evidence as they can produce, but it has not the slightest reference to baptism. It was an ordinance for cleansing under the Mosaic law, and pertained to Israel until the law was abolished by Christ under the gospel. Paul says, "by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." "For if righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain."—Gal. 2: 16, 21. Again: "Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are under the law."—Gal. 5: 4. Numbers 19: 15-21 referred solely to cleansing under the Mosaic law, and has no reference at all to Christian baptism.

The same writer desires to know "where the custom originated with the Jews of releasing a prisoner at the passover, mentioned John 18: 39."

We are not aware that it did "originate with the Jews." On the contrary, it seems it originated with Pilate, for Matthew says, "Now at that feast the governor was wont to release unto the people a prisoner, whom they would."—Matt. 27: 15. This was a power exercised frequently under the ancient monarchies in which was exhibited not only the authority, but the clemency of the ruler.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

UNDER date of January 11th, 1834, Joseph the Seer wrote the following:

"As soon as the Governor intimated, or the news began to circulate, that the Mormons, (as the people styled the church), would be restored to their possessions in Jackson county, (if they desired to be), the "priests" of all denominations, as the men behind the scene, with the mob, began to set their springs in motion, and by their secret councils and false publications and insinuations, soured the public mind and veiled the administration of the laws, so that anything like a return to their houses and lands, or recovery of damages for losses sustained, seemed as distant as the day of judgment. The power of wickedness and darkness walked hand in hand together, and the Saints mourned."

Times and Seasons vol. 6, page 963.

Under date of January 22d, 1834, we find the following important counsel by Joseph the Seer and his fellows to the mob-driven Saints, also some items as to the conduct of the persecutors in and about Kirtland, and the doings of that "child of the devil," Doctor P. Hurlbut, the willing tool of craftier, more learned, but viler men than himself, who prompted him.

On the 22d, the presidency of the High Priesthood wrote from Kirtland to the brethren in Christ Jesus, scattered from Zion—scattered abroad from the land of their inheritance. Greeting.

We your companions in tribulation embrace the present opportunity of sending you this token of our love and good will, assuring you that our bowels are filled with compassion, and that our prayers are daily ascending to God in the name of Jesus Christ in your behalf.

We have just received intelligence from you through the medium of brother Elliott, of Chagrin, making enquiries concerning the course which you are to pursue. In addition to the knowledge contained in the above on this subject, we say if it is not the duty of the Governor to call out and keep a standing force in Jackson county to protect you on your lands, (which it appears, must be done, as we understand the mob are determined to massacre you if the Governor takes you back upon your lands and leaves you unprotected); it will become your duty to petition the Governor, to petition the President to send a force there to protect you when you are reinstated.

The Governor proposes to take you back to your lands whenever you are ready to go, (if we understand correctly), but can not keep up any army to guard you; and while the hostile feelings of the people of Jackson county remain unabated, probably you dare not go back to be left unguarded. Therefore, in your petition to the Governor, set all these things forth in their proper light, and pray him to notify the President of your situation, and also petition the President yourselves, according to the direction of the Lord. [See Revelation December 16th, 1833, Doc. Cov. 98: 12]. We have petitioned Gov. Dunklin in your behalf, and enclosed it in a printed revelation, the same of this, which we now send to you. The petition was signed by something like sixty brethren, and mailed for Jefferson City, one week ago, and he will probably receive it two weeks before you receive this.

We also calculate to send a petition and this revelation to the President forthwith, in your behalf, and then we will act the part of the poor widow to perfection, if possible, and let our rulers read their destiny if they do not lend a helping hand. We exhort you to prosecute and try every lawful means to bring the mob to justice, as fast as circumstances will permit. With regard to your tarrying in Clay county, we can not say; you must be governed by circumstances; perhaps you will have to hire out, and take farms to cultivate, to obtain bread, until the Lord delivers.

We sent you a fifty dollar United States note some time ago. If you have received it, please acknowledge the receipt of it, to us, that we may be satisfied you received it. We shall do all that is in our power to assist you in every way we can. We know your situation is a trying one, but be patient and not murmur against the Lord, and you shall see that all these things shall turn to your greatest good.

Enquire of Elder Marsh and find out the entire secret of mixing and compounding lead and antimony, so as to make type metal, and write us concerning it. Joseph has sent you another fifty dollar note, making in all one hundred dollars; write us concerning it. There is a prospect of the eastern churches doing something pretty handsome towards the deliverance of Zion, in the course of a year, if Zion is not delivered otherwise.

Though the Lord said this affliction came upon you because of your sins, polluting your inheritances, &c., yet there is an exception of some, namely, the heads of Zion, for the Lord said your brethren in Zion begin to repent; and the angels rejoice over them, &c. You will also see an exception at the top of the second column of this revelation: therefore, this affliction came upon the church to chasten those in transgression, and prepare the hearts of those who had repented, for an endowment from the Lord.

We shall not be able to send you any more money at present, unless the Lord puts it into our hands unexpectedly. There is not quite so much danger of a mob upon us as there has been. The hand of the Lord has thus far been stretched out to protect us. Doctor P. Hurlbut an apostate elder from this church, has been to the state of New York, and gathered up all the ridiculous stories that could be invented, and some affidavits respecting the character of Joseph, and the Smith family, and exhibited them to numerous congregations in Chagrin, Kirtland, Mentor, and Painesville, and fired the minds of the people with much indignation against Joseph and the church.

Hurlbut also made many harsh threats, &c., that he would take the life of Joseph, if he could not destroy Mormonism without. Bro. Joseph took him with a peace warrant and after three days' trial, and investigating the merits of our religion, in the town of Painesville, by able attorneys on both sides, he was bound over to the county court. Thus his influence was pretty much destroyed, and since the trial the spirit of hostility seems to be broken down in a good degree, but how long it will continue so we can not say.

You purchase your inheritance with money, therefore, behold you are blessed; you have not purchased your lands by the shedding of blood, consequently you do not come under the censure of this commandment, which says "if by blood to your enemies are upon you, and ye shall be driven from city to city." Give yourselves no uneasiness on this account.

Farewell in the bonds of the new covenant, and partakers in tribulation.

(Signed),

ORSON HYDE,

Clerk of the Presidency of the church.

On the evening of the 28th, brothers Oliver, Frederick, and myself, being agreed, bowed before the Lord, and united in prayer, that God would continue to deliver me and my brethren from Doctor Hurlbut, that he may not prevail against us in the law suit that is pending, and also that God would soften the hearts of E. Smith, J. Jones, Loud, and Lyman, also, Mr. Beardsley, that they might obey the gospel, or, if they would not repent, that the Lord would send faithful Saints to purchase their farms, that this stake may be strengthened and its borders enlarged. O Lord, grant it for Christ's sake: Amen.

February 1st. Every expedient preparation was making by the church in Kirtland, and Clay county, to have those who had been driven from their possessions in Jackson county, returned.

Governor Dunklin wrote to the brethren as follows:

CITY OF JEFFERSON, Feb. 4th, 1834.

Gentlemen:—Your communication of the 6th of December was regularly received, and duly considered; and had I not expected to have received the evidence brought out on the inquiry ordered into the military conduct of Col. Pitcher, in a short time after I received your petition, I should have replied to it long since.

Last evening I was informed that the further enquiry of the court was postponed until the 20th instant. Then, before I could hear any thing from this court, the court of civil jurisdiction will hold its session in Jackson county, consequently I can not receive any thing from one preparatory to arrangements from the other.

I am very sensible indeed, of the injuries your people complain of, and should consider myself very remiss in the discharge of my duties were I not to do every thing in my power consistent with the legal exercise of them, to afford your society the redress to which they seem entitled. One of your requests needs no evidence to support the right to have it granted; it is that your people be put in possession of their homes from which they have been expelled. But what may be the duty of the Executive after that will depend upon contingencies.

If upon enquiry it is found that your people were wrongly dispossessed of their arms, by Col. Pitcher, then an order will be issued to have them returned; and should your men organize according to law, which they have a right to do, (indeed it is their duty to do so, unless exempted by religious scruples), and apply for public arms, the Executive could not distinguish between their right to have them, and the right of every other description of people similarly situated.

As to the request for keeping up a military force to protect your people and prevent the commission of crimes and injuries, were I to comply, it would transcend the power with which the Executive of this state is clothed. The Federal Constitution has given to Congress the power to provide for calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrection, or repel invasion; and for these purposes the President of the United States is authorized to make the call upon the executives of the respective states; and the laws of this state empower the "commander-in-chief in case of actual or threatened invasion, insurrection or war, or public danger, or other emergency, to call forth into actual service such portion of the militia as he may deem expedient." These, together with the general provision in our state constitution that "the Governor shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed," are all [of] this branch of Executive powers. None of these, as I consider, embrace the part of your request. The words, "or other emergency" in our militia law seem quite broad, but the emergency to come within the object of that provision, shall be of a public nature.

Your case is certainly a very emergent one, and the consequences as important to your society, as if the war had been waged against the whole state; yet, the public has no other interest in it, than that the laws be faithfully executed; thus far, I presume the whole community feel a deep interest; for that which is the case of the Mormons to-day, may be the case of the Catholics to-morrow, and after them any other sect that may become obnoxious to a majority of the people of any section of the state. So far as a faithful execution of the laws is concerned, the Executive is disposed to do every thing consistent with the means furnished him by the legislature; and I think I may safely say the same of the judiciary.

As now advised, I am of the opinion that a military guard will be necessary to protect the state witnesses and officers of the court, and to assist in the execution of its orders, while sitting in Jackson county. By this mail I write to Mr. Reese enclosing him an order on the captain of the "Liberty Blues," requiring the captain to comply with the requisition of the circuit attorney in protecting the court and officers and executing their precepts and orders during the progress of these trials. Under the protection of this guard your people can, if they think proper, return to their homes in Jackson county, and be protected in them during the progress of the trial in question, by which time facts will be developed upon which I can act more definitely. The attorney general will be required to assist the circuit attorney, if the latter deems it necessary.

On the subject of civil injuries, I must refer you to the court; such questions rests with them exclusively. The laws are sufficient to afford a remedy for every injury of this kind, and, whenever you make out a case, entitling you to damages, there can be no doubt entertained of their ample award. Justice is sometimes slow in its progress, but is not less sure on that account.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed), DANIEL DUNKLIN.

To Messrs. W. W. Phelps, Isaac Morley, John Whitmer, Edward Partridge, John Corroll, and A. S. Gilbert.

Times and Seasons vol. 6, pages 976-978.

In the foregoing we have seen that it was not only "right" for the Saints to bear arms, but that it was "their duty to do so," under the then existing laws of Missouri as interpreted by the highest officers of that State. These facts added to the further fact that the Governor of Missouri disclaimed any authority to guard the Saints in their homes, by troops, if they were reinstated, and we can see the propriety of the revelations of December 16th, 1833, February 24th, 1834, and June 22d, 1834, in Doctrine and Covenants, sections 98, 100, and 102. All that these revelations contemplated was the use of purely lawful means for redress and defense. This position will be amply supported by an abundance of evidence as we proceed, all going to show that the Saints did nothing in violation of the laws of the land, at least up to 1838—if even then, and that they did not act out of harmony in these matters with what is taught in the New Testament and Book of Mormon, as found in Matt. 22:21; Rom. 13:1-7; Tit. 3:1; 1 Pet. 2:13, 14; Alma 1:10-13; 20:1-12; Book of Nephi 2:3-11; Book of Mormon 1:7; 2:4-6, &c., &c.

These matters should be carefully considered by the Saints, all the facts should be duly weighed, and when this is done it will be found that Joseph and the Saints acted within the limits of the civil law, was subject to the counsels of "governors" and others in authority, and moved as prompted by brave, manly, noble Christian hearts in their efforts to aid and defend their persecuted, outraged, smitten and scattered fellow Saints.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

FROM the Macleay (New South Wales) Chronicle we glean the fact that Bro. Joseph F. Burton, by means of that paper is setting before its readers a pretty full statement of the faith, and has got into a controversy with a party signing himself "Reporter," which further leads to enlighten the public.

Bro. B. V. Springer, when at Antwerp, Ohio, procured the insertion of the Epitome in a local journal, and this with local notices of his labors there helped to dispel the mists of error and let in the sunlight of truth.

Sr. A. M. Christy asks the prayers of the Saints that health and prosperous conditions may be given her of the Lord.

Bro. C. E. Brown of Providence, R. I., in his letter of December 25th, commends the HERALD, and Bro. A. W. Kelley of Addison Point, Maine, says: "I can't get along without the HERALD, for it is a source of great pleasure to me."

Bro. C. StClair writes from Independence, Missouri, December 24th that Bro. H. Robinson and himself had been to Sni Mills, held three meetings, the last one, Sunday night, was largely attended. They were treated well, and a fair interest was awakened. This he says is a new field, and he thinks Bro. Robinson has made a good impression there. They distributed a large number of tracts which were eagerly read and compared with the Bible. Bro. StClair desires to continue in the field but may be hindered financially.

By letter from Bro. John Eames we learn he came to Omaha, Nebraska, about the middle of December in hopes to get relief from heart affections and he has partially succeeded. He asks the Saints to pray for his entire recovery, as he desires to live and help forward the work of the Master. We sincerely hope the Lord may spare and bless him in life for many years to come.

W. H. Bybee writes us from Huntsville, Missouri, claims to be full in the faith, says he publicly teaches the faith held by the Reorganized Church, and that he meets occasionally with some of the faithful Saints in their meetings there. By request of some of the citizens he is to "deliver four sermons upon the subject of Mormonism." We wish him well in the effort, for we are anxious the entire world should know the doctrines of the Reorganization.

Bro. John Bickle, of Busseyville, Wisconsin, writes to Bro. David Dancer: "Enclosed find three dollars for the Saints' HERALD, the best religious paper in the world."

Bro. J. W. Johnson of McFall, Missouri, writes that he thinks the soldiers should give not only their names, but their company, regiment, State, rank, etc., etc., and signs to his name "Co. K., 1st M. S. M. Cav. Co. M. 13th Mo. Cav., whatever that may mean.

In "The Word and the Way," an eight page religious journal, in its issue for January 1st, 1887, we find no less than sixteen separate extracts commendatory of that paper.

THE public debt of Austria-Hungary is rising of $2,250,000,000, the interest on which raised by taxation is $2.30 each person in Austria and $3 in Hungary. The consolidated debt of France $4,000,000,000, the tax per capita this year (1886) is over $7. Germany is practically not in debt. Great Britain has a debt of about $3,700,000,000, the interest on which is $140,000,000, a tax on each inhabitant of the British Isles of over $4 per year. The debt of Italy requires a yearly tax per head of $3.75. The debt of Spain, owing to her inability to pay is not quoted. Turkey is bankrupt. Spain should pay interest on $2,600,000,000, amounting to over $3 each Spaniard, but she does not pay it, and is therefore going behind all the time. Russia owes $2,700,000,000; pays interest yearly $145,000,000, an average of $1.40 per inhabitant. The debt of the United States is $1,390,000,000, demanding $49, 500,000 yearly interest, about 81 cents per head of her citizenship.

By these statistics it may be seen that while anarchists and political grumblers are howling about the awful burden political mismanagement has heaped upon the "poor American citizen," we are really very largely better off than citizens of any other really large nation in the civilized world, with the exception of Germany.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it in order, when an elder is presiding over a sacrament meeting, and there is another elder present, to call on a priest to bless the emblems?

Ans.—There is nothing in the law and order of the church to the contrary. See Doc. & Cov. 17; 10, 22; Book of Moroni chapter 4.

BLESSING OIL.

Q.—Where is the command given for the elders to bless the oil?

A.—To consecrate, or set apart for holy purposes, is an ancient custom. See Ex. 30: 22-26; Lev. 8: 2-12; Ps. 89: 20. Whatsoever is done it should be by prayer and thanksgiving to God: Phil. 4: 6; Eph. 6: 18; 1 Tim. 4: 5, &c. These texts may serve to illustrate in a general way the lawfulness and propriety of setting apart oil for holy purposes by prayer and blessing. Joseph the Seer, called of God to organize his church and set it in order, introduced the practice of setting apart oil for all holy purposes by prayer, as may be seen in his church history. But we know of no direct command for it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. John Smith of New Bedford, Massachusetts, writes as follows:

"I was at Brockton yesterday where Bro. Bond has been holding a series of meetings with good attendance. By the continuance of his labors there, ably seconded by the branch, a good interest has been awakened; also at Attleboro the Sunday previous, was blessed with good liberty and a full house. I have a request from Maine to go and speak there upon what is essential as the 'sineews of war'—the tithing and offering question. And thus the calls increase faster than the laborers."

Bro. J. H. Lawn of Elvina, California, in a late letter, says:

The Herald and Hope are a great comfort to me and my family. Every Saint who can, ought to subscribe for them, also the Expositor. Without our church publications we as a church would soon become almost a blank in this wide world."

Bro. James Caffall, wrote from Cheyenne, Wyoming, December 21st:

"Saturday was a kind of a gala day at Box Elder, Laramie county. Four were added, a very promising young man and modest maid, just entering into manhood and womanhood, a son and daughter of brother and sister C. Doty; and two children of brother W. H. and sister C. Barrett. A branch of ten members was organized. During the confirmation of those baptized and the organization services, an unusually enjoyable time was had. The responsibility of presiding was placed on Bro. W. Doty as elder; Bro. W. H. Barrett was chosen priest; Bro. Jos.

Doty secretary, and Bro. W. H. Doty, treasurer. God help them in essaying to bear their responsibility, for if He does not help them they will not be helped. Bro. W. H. Barrett has been in this locality two years; Brn. Wm. and Jos. Doty, with their families, have recently settled there from Oregon. These three brethren are hard-fisted sons of toil. God's noblemen, the kind to adorn the hills and make the Colorado vallies blossom as the rose."

Bro. W. W. McLeod of Cormorant, Minnesota, writes of late:

"I am well satisfied with the Herald, and do not think I ever invested money in anything that gave me so much satisfaction."

Bro. T. F. Chappelow, renewing for the church papers for himself and others, says:

"The Herald and Hope are better each week. The Saints feel that they can not do without them, especially the Herald."

WE clip the following from the Sandwich (Illinois) Gazette of December 24th, and keenly appreciate this friendly notice by Dr. Robertson, coming as it does from our former home, also from the vicinity of President Smith's former home, Plano, and penned by one of the brightest, best poised minds of our times.

"Elder Joseph Smith with his friend I. L. Rogers, gave us a call last week. He has come out from Lamoni, Iowa, to visit the churches and the people in this vicinity. We were glad to meet him. He is one of the most genial and social men we have ever met, and his kindness and sincerity always impress us. As the chief editor of the Latter Day Saints' Herald he is exerting a wide influence. Our old friend, Rev. W. W. Blair, who is like him in many excellent qualities, conducts the paper in his absence and is associated with him in the editorship."

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

THE Business Manager hands us the following, which should be carefully observed by all who send money to the Herald Office. Please put your news items on one sheet of paper, and business items on another. This will save delay, confusion and mistakes.

In sending remittances for books and subscriptions, send Post-office Money Orders, Postal Notes, or Express Orders payable at Lamoni, Iowa. If Bank Drafts are sent, have them payable at Chicago, or New York. If payable at other places it causes delay and expense to us to collect them. Foreign money orders should be made payable at Leon, Decatur county, Iowa.

DAVID DANCER.

December 28th, 1886.

BOOK NOTICE.

We are out of the best bound Doctrine and Covenants, but the cheaper ones are a nice book. Those who have lately ordered the cheap Voice of Warning will receive them soon, as we have a new and revised edition at the binders. Please remember also that "Hesperis" a book of choice poems by Bro. David H. Smith is an excellent gift for either lady or gentleman.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald and Hope for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P.O. address.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"O heart of mine, keep patience!
Looking forth,
As from the Mount of Vision,
I behold,
Pure, just and free, the Church of Christ on earth,—

The martyr's dream, the golden age foretold!
And found, at last, the mystic Graal I see,
Brimmed with His blessings pass from lip to lip
In sacred pledge of human fellowship."

RETROSPECT!

THE Christmas-tide is past. The merry bells have rung out their glad, sweet chimes; the music has died into silence, and to day the sun rises above the white-robed landscape, and his beams are thrown back from a thousand sparkling crystals lying upon the frozen ground.

Knowing that Lamoni is a place possessing unusual interest for the scattered Saints, we refer very briefly to our Christmas Entertainment here. This was in connection with our Sunday School. The church was neatly decorated with mottoes, evergreens, and paper chains, the exercises consisted of music, recitations, tableaux etc. As we were interested in getting up these exercises, we prefer to give you the opinion of disinterested parties, and quote from a letter received yesterday from one who was present:

"I feel prompted to write you a word of congratulation and encouragement. Your entertainment was a success, and in its purity and chasteness could not be surpassed."

That which we intended as the peculiar feature of the entertainment, was the offerings brought by the children to the Savior upon his birthday. These amounted to $11.17, and while we are satisfied that they might have been much more, had there been perfect unity of action, we are thankful for these, and we look upon this movement in the church as a graft of pure love upon the Christmas Tree, which will eventually grow and flourish to the rooting out of the selfish fruit it has hitherto borne. Looking forward by the eye of faith we behold the time, (and that too at no distant day), when as the Christmas-tide passes by, there will flow into the church treasury a tide of free will offerings from our army of little ones, which shall send the gospel upon the wings of the morning to thousands of waiting souls. Let each one who is laboring in this cause repeat

"O heart of mine, keep patience!
Looking forth,
As from the Mount of Vision,
I behold,
Pure, just and free, the Church of

It may be that we shall not live to enter into this promised Caanan, but we tell you it will come. The heritage of shame and reproach which was left to us, will never have to be taken up by our children, for God calls his people to lives of purity, to places of honor, to the fellowship of everything which is good, the abhorring of all that is evil, and to works of righteousness. In saying to us "Let your light shine that others seeing your good works may glorify our Father," has he not said, "Unto you is entrusted the character, the reputation of our Father, and of me your elder brother." "Men do not gather grapes of thorns nor figs of thistles." There is no avoiding the fact. If Christ be in us, we will be Christ-like, followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, and our adorning will be that of a meek and quiet spirit. Self will be lost—swallowed up in the great love of God. We shall prefer others to self, and that abominable dragon who bears about with him the great I standard, will be cast out from our midst. Mothers will not ask for their children to sit, "the one upon thy right hand and the other upon thy left," but they will teach their little ones to know that all honor shall be given to those for whom God, not man hath prepared it, and that nearest the throne, praising their Maker day and night, stand those who have come up through great tribulation, "washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." Mothers who gather your little ones around your knees—teachers in our Sunday Schools, we entreat you, strive to impress upon the hearts and minds of the little ones entrusted to your care this lesson of the great teacher, "He that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve. Whether is greater, he that sitteth at meat or he that serveth? Is not he that sitteth at meat? But I am among you as he that serveth."

Saints of God, here is our example, and let each one of us put to our own hearts the question—put it honestly with a desire to answer it fairly and truly, are we striving to follow this example, or are we seeking our own way, our own preferment, instead of the way of God and the preferment which comes from him.

There is no very apparent connection between this thought and the subject of a Sunday School celebration, but the connection is there, and we wish once more to entreat teachers and parents to strive to instil into the minds of our army of little ones this altogether lovely precept. Teach them to hate selfishness, and to know that there is no surer mark of a weak mind than the desire of being preferred before others. True merit is always modest—does not desire, nor seek the highest seats in the synagogue, the best places at the feast—the choicest morsel from the platter; but having an abiding consciousness of its own worth is willing to become the servant of all in obedience to the will of the Master.

A LETTER has been sent us, containing complaints against an elder in the church as well as his family, and requesting us to write upon the evils of card playing, dancing, etc. All which the letter contains may be true, we do not say it is not, but we do say that if parties wish any attention given to communications of this kind they must sign their names and be responsible for what they write. We remember publishing a letter of this kind once, and in a short time a letter came from the officers of the branch where the first was written, saying "That every member of the branch denied any knowledge of such a letter, and they wanted the writer's name." In all cases we prefer knowing the real name of our correspondents, not necessarily for publication, if the parties prefer not, but simply for our own vindication, in case exceptions are taken to the same. We say to the sister who wrote us, "Fret not thyself because of evil doers." The church is moving on to a plane so far above all these things that those who practice them will eventually find out they have made a sad mistake in supposing themselves to be members of the household of faith. Card-playing elders and daughters of a like kind will eventually find their level. When the time comes, as come it must, that each one shall be called upon to give an account of the deeds done in the body, we shall be condemned or justified because of our own acts, and not because of what our neighbor has done. Upon one occasion a pious Catholic woman went to the confessional and while there she took occasion with her own sins to confess some of the sins of her neighbor. The priest listened patiently until she was through, and then assigned the penance she was to do for both her own sins and the sins of her neighbor. When the woman remonstrated at the injustice of this, the priest quietly remarked, "You confessed the sins of your neighbor, now you must do penance for them." We have often thought if we were brought under a like sentence every time we drag our neighbor's sins before the public, there would be fewer confessionals of the kind, and we would be more anxious in regard to making straight paths for our own feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way.

SAN FRANCISCO, DEC. 21ST.

Dear Sister Frances:—The Mothers' Column affords me much pleasure, and I consider its instructions are very good and are quite an addition to the Herald. I feel daily the necessity of living a more godly life, that my light may shine before the world, and that all my actions may emulate the meek and lowly Jesus who is our pattern and our friend.

Since the death of my husband I feel that my lot in life is full of trials, but through it all I realize my heavenly Father has been watching over me; and sometimes in my loneliness my trial seems more than I can bear, but I try to bring myself to think that he has gone on a mission and that the time will not be long before we shall meet again where there is no more sorrow and pain. It is my earnest desire to do my duty so that when the call does come I may be fully prepared; that my work may be completed and that God may say "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Of late there seems to be a better spirit in the branches; the Saints seeming to realize that the time is short, "that they must work while the day lasts, for the night cometh when no man can work."

I remain yours in Christ,

SISTER T. J. ANDREWS.

SARGENTVILLE, Me., Nov. 16th.

Dear Saints:—On the 17th morning of August, our All-wise Father took my beloved husband home. His ways are not our ways, neither are his thoughts our thoughts, yet he doeth all things well. I feel the loss, but doubtless my loved one is enjoying the gain. At times I am happy because he is happy, yet am lonely. When he was with me my greatest earthly pleasure was to make my home enjoyable, and its inmates happy. Ofttimes it required much self-denial on my part, and much physical suffering; but the sacrifice was nothing in comparison with the pleasure derived therefrom at the time, and nothing compared with the satisfaction which now is mine. Ofttimes I was brought to mighty struggling for victory—not often with members of my family, but in secret with Him who will ever fight our battles for us, if we will rely on him. In less than a year I saw my loved one's form, which weighed more than two hundred pounds, day by day wasted away to a mere skeleton; nor could our own efforts, or medical aid be of any permanent benefit. He was confined to the bed eleven weeks, and we were alone nearly all the time; and yet not alone, for he who is ever faithful to those who trust in him was with us. O, 'tis blessed to have a friend in Jesus? He truly is one who can aid us under any circumstance, whether we be in joy or sorrow. He can soften life's trials, and soothe us while in the pangs of death. He took all fears of death from my husband many weeks before his summons, and instead, gave him a comforting assurance of that rest that remaineth unto the children of God. A few weeks after he was laid in "Mount Rest," I gratefully accepted the kind offer of my brother and wife to have a home with them. If my health and strength would have permitted I should have remained in the little cot on the banks of the Bagaduce, and have supported myself. This I could easily have done, and also contributed freely to the spread of the gospel. I am not useless here, neither am I obliged to withhold my "mite" from doing good, and as long as I can shall remember my vow. The secret of happiness is found in helping others. 'Tis found when we forget self and reach out after others' woes. We as a people should learn to look out, not in; look ahead, not back; look up, not down. Had

I good sight I might be very useful yet, to say nothing about the enjoyment I might derive from my books. It has been nearly eighteen years since I have daily and nightly suffered from severe pain and smarting in the eyes. Sometimes it seems almost unendurable, at others, more mild. If any Saint can give me beneficial advice concerning the matter, either through the Herald or by direct letter, it will be received with many thanks. I also desire that every one who is impressed by the Spirit to pray that my suffering may be removed, or that I may have abundant grace to bear it, may do so. I want to do my heavenly Father's will. I felt when I saw my companion going down, and when I saw him laid away, that I had but one thing to live for, and that was to do the work that God would have me do. Pray that his righteous purpose may be fulfilled in me.

Your sister in Christ,
ALMIRA M. SNOW.

PLEASANTON, Iowa, Dec. 15th.

Sister Frances:—I always have had a desire to do something for the cause of our blessed Redeemer, but because what I could do was so little, I could not think of sending it. If I do not begin with little, I shall never do anything for my means are limited. I send fifty cents for my birth day. It was in October, but I could not think of waiting till next October.

EMELINE HALL.

VICTORIA, Illinois, Dec. 21st.

Dear Sister Frances:—I for one heartily respond to the birth-day missionary fund, for it enables every mother to do something for the cause we love; and as grand-baby's birth day comes this month, and great grandpa's next month, we thought we would unite their ages and send it as a kind of Christmas offering, the first being two years old; the last eighty-eight. Hoping every sister who has a testimony to bear to the truth of this work, may cast in their offering, remembering it is the continual dropping that wears away the stone; and let us see if our united efforts will not give such an impetus to "the stone cut from the mountain," that we can truly see it moving on over every obstacle that threatens to retard its progress.

I wish I could say a word of encouragement to the struggling ones, for I realize there are many; and they are not confined to the isolated ones, for when I have been so hungry for the society of the Saints and the spoken word that I have considered no personal exertion too great to meet with them, I have found that they too have their trials and burdens to bear which we scattered ones are exempt from.

Now I want to tell every Saint that reads the Herald, or has offered a prayer to God in behalf of the afflicted, that he has restored my son and his wife to their former health, and they are with their friends; and what gives me more cause for thankfulness, they seem to realize the necessity of a nearer walk after the pattern of all righteousness. May we never cease to give thanks to the giver of every good and perfect gift, is the prayer of your sister in gospel bonds,

S. E. COOK.

We well remember when Sister Cook wrote us last, and the sad picture which her letter brought to our minds. Her orphaned grandchildren were under her care, father and mother both being in the insane asylum, and she asked an interest in the prayers of the Saints on their behalf, saying at the same time that she believed God would restore them. To-day her heart is filled with gratitude, because they are with her once more, clothed and in their right mind; and our own heart rejoices with hers. Let us wait upon the Lord patiently, for if the desire of our hearts is in accordance with his will, he will surely grant it unto us.—Ed.

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 12th.

Sister Frances:—I love this work, and desire to help roll it forth in every way I can. I like the writing in the Hope by Sr. Eleanor,—the suggestions to the Hopes and superintendents of Sunday Schools concerning Christmas trees and gifts. We have closed our Sunday School until next spring on account of the members of our branch living so far apart, and other causes over which we had no control. I was sorry to have to do this, but may the Sunday School work go on, and may the Saints and their children be awakened to a sense of duty concerning "giving unto the Lord" is my prayer. I realize that by bringing in our "tithes and offerings" we are helping to establish the kingdom of God and send the good news over the whole world, that the kingdom of heaven may more speedily come.

Oh! how I enjoyed reading and contemplating "Christmas in the olden time," and when I think of the great love God has for his creation, in giving his only begotten Son to die for the redemption of mankind, and how in the depths of humility he was born into this world, I am led to exclaim, Away with all false pride! It shall in me no more have place. As for me, I will strive to not be found "in the putting on of costly apparel, and the adorning of gold and silver," but be clad in plain apparel that I may lay up treasures in heaven, and be prepared to walk the streets that shall be paved with gold, and live within the gates of that beautiful city that "God is to be the light thereof." Pray for me that I may be faithful in teaching my children the way of life and salvation.

MARGARET I. HEAD.

Sisters in the Spirit seem nearer to me than sisters in the flesh that are out of the gospel. We are one in Christ Jesus whoever we may be. I think the Hope is a success in every way, and the children are very much pleased with it, and if it does not get here at the regular time are very much disappointed. We have the promise of being heirs of God, and joint heirs with Jesus Christ if we can only be faithful to the end. How glorious the promise.

Your sister in the hope of eternal life,
N. R. NICKERSON.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Lavinia Lillie writes from Elliott, Missouri: "I am striving to live as near my Savior as I can. I enjoy the Home Column and weep with love and gratitude to hear how gracious the Lord is to his Saints. I send for a specimen copy of picture, and am going to try to help the Missionary Fund."

A sister writes from St. Thomas, Ontario: "I was reading the Home Column, and thought that I would tell you how much I have enjoyed it, and also that my heart is in the work. I have a family of boys and feel very much the need of being constantly on my guard, for I know that my children are watching me. I want to be able to say that I have done my whole duty before God, but especially by setting a good example before my family.

Correspondence.

DIMONDALE, Mich., Dec. 14th.

Bro. Joseph: We bade adieu to our pleasant surroundings amid the vine-clad and towering summits of southern Indiana the latter week of August to disseminate the principles which are most assuredly believed among us. The undertaking was one of great moment in view of our youth and inexperience. Yet being urged by proper authority we deemed it well to be prepared at all times to present a reason for the hope which we entertain, and so began our work first in Whitestown, a neat village in Boone county, Indiana. We occupied twenty-seven evenings in the village and vicinity during the month of September. Calumny and odium were hurled at us by the populace, abetted and strengthened by ministerial and editorial influence. We partook of Methodist liberality for two nights, but the third day the popular seal was rolled to the door. Assisted by Bro. Trout, who stands as a pillar for the truth, we procured the Town Hall, a commodious building, in which we held a number of meetings and made one reply to an attack on our doctrine by Rev. Barb (Lutheran), who took occasion to draw Mormon absurdities across our shoulders, by especial reference to the epitome. He claimed the whole of orthodox, or evangelistic organizations collectively to be the church of Christ, and urged the impossibility of the church apostatizing, by referring to Matt. 16: 18; claimed that the "burning bush" with branches was a type, or symbol of the true church in the nineteenth century, and that divinity was in the bush, and it therefore was indestructible. We think our position was strongly fortified.

About three hundred and fifty attended the reply, and error received a slight jar, for on the street corner the following morning some of that congregation were discussing that common and beautiful proposition of tar, feathers and ancient eggs. This rigid, frigid feeling, gradually gave way to favor, demonstrated by prompt legal proceedings against an eastern crank for disturbing our meeting, taking $15.45 from his earnings. An effort was yet made to show that the Latter Day Saints church was not legally recognized, in order to commute the fine. But we presented them the Articles of Incorporation, adopted by the church at the semi-annual conference held at Council Bluffs, Iowa, September 12th to 16th, 1872. These were sufficiently broad to secure all the legal positions the church could assume, for the incorporation took place under the laws of Illinois. This was all the documentary evidence in my possession; but it was satisfactory. The court quailed, and examined former decision. Excitement ran at high tide previous to this, and his Satanic majesty was as omnipotent as the Pope in his palmiest days. A sharp conflict was waged before we were properly understood. A Disciple minister accompanied us to the train, and on taking leave he remarked that in his opinion we had no enemies there. We succeeded in opening seven new points in and around Whitestown and making a few friends for the work. In all these points skepticism and infidelity are certainly on the increase. The sectarian spirit, the rage of rivalry in the various denominations, with many absurd tenets and opinions propagated, the multiplicity of religious factions, afford more reasons for the prevalence of skepticism than does any supposed weakness of the evidences of the Christian institution. Yet among those of the doubting class we discovered liberal minds who befriended us and deprecated the degeneracy of many religionists in the noble principle of liberality.

When en route for the district conference at Coldwater, at Knox, Indiana, we met Bro. and Sr. Prettyman, and held meetings at the Sandwich school-house. In this desert place some golden grain may be garnered. The banner is unfurled there by Bro. Prettyman, who with his excellent lady exemplify the religion of Jesus Christ.

We next went to Galien, spent a few days with the united band at this point; tried to address them four times, but the doctrinal features of the faith have been previously explored to the subsoil. Kindness and unity, peace and righteousness, seem to characterize this band. In company with Bro. Blakeslee we attended the conference at Coldwater, remained and labored there as opportunity presented, in company with Bro. Springer, for three weeks, during which time three were ready to yield obedience. At the expiration of that time Bro. Springer and I separated, he going to Clear Lake, Indiana; I in company with Bro. Stroh started for Rome City, Indiana, joining my brother, Columbus, at Sturgess, Michigan.

On Sunday evening a brilliant and soul-stirring sermon was delivered by Bro. Columbus to very nearly three hundred and fifty people. Rome City, or popularly, Island Park is situated in the midst of a beautiful sheet of water, an artificial channel, called "Sylvan lake." It is where Rev. Sam Jones and Rev. Talmage lectured. I believe a movement will be on foot for Bro. Joseph to deliver a temperance lecture there sometime in the summer months.

But even here, despite the facilities for the extension of Bible truth, scepticism has made inroads. Men of thought have become infidels from jarring sectarianism and irreconcilable discrepancies in the different dogmas of popular Christianity. Herein is the necessity for a return to that system of life taught by the "Good Shepherd" and his ambassadors. Men of reason fail to see the image and character of "Christ, the anointed," shining in professed disciples. Men of thought fail to discover the one way, the one gate, the one door, the one sheepfold, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one Spirit, in the present conflicting systems of scholastic divinity. They fail to discover the Kingdom of God, characterized by unity in the modern institutions, or antitype, of which the tower of Babel seems the type. The revelator has typed it in inspired imagery.—Rev. 17: 5. Hence infidels, like the silly Thracians hurling their harmless missiles at the thunderbolt, are thrusting their darts, not at Christianity proper, but at its corruptions, and think themselves knocking the bottom from under the entire Christian institution.

Rome City has a few of this character, but they seem reasonable. It is pretty well represented religiously. Prejudice is not so triumphant, but may be aroused, and we believe it a good opening for truth.

We next ventured to Flint, a small village; procured the M. E. Church, held one meeting, but owing to inclement weather and small attendance, did not repeat it. We then visited Fremont Indiana, Columbus holding the fort at a new point near Angola, Bro. Springer occupying six miles south, and the writer at Clear Lake. We remained in that locality for a few days. Bro. Columbus was called to Mason county, Michigan to defend the cause against an M. E. divine who had lectured on the teachings of Joseph the Martyr and was to repeat it on the 5th of December. Bro. Springer went to Antwerp, Ohio, and I to Dimondale, where attempts have been made to attract an audience. In our short experience the deeply rooted weeds of prejudice have grown rank. Evil predominates, demonstrating that the world is not being rapidly converted to Jesus Christ; yet we are glad to find even among the tares some golden grains whose growth have not been crushed by the ponderous weight of superstitious creedology, who will stand on the side of right, and battle for freedom of thought.

Yours hopefully,

LEONARD SCOTT.

CABOOL, Mo., Dec. 20th.

Bro. Joseph: Since my return home I have preached some at four different places four miles south of Cabool and six miles east. In the last named place the track is a little rough; the gospel has won for it some friends; the enemy can not hold himself; he has put his dear sons to throw dirt; one went down to Arkansas this winter, collected some, and sprinkled our town paper with it. Some find fault with every one except themselves. The Saints here have been much blessed with the gifts that accompany the gospel; they are firm in the faith and growing in grace are prepared to give an intelligent answer for the hope they entertain. Christ's sermons in the inspired translation of the New Testament are my best preacher, the Herald next; I would not know how to do without it.

Yours in gospel bonds,

B. A. ATWELL.

LAMONI, Iowa, Dec. 14th.

Editor Herald:—The careful and spiritual observer can not fail to see that the gospel is winning its way to the honest in heart. Those who preach it but partially, or in a fragmentary way, are robbed of the chief evidence of its divinity; and although the preaching of a fulness establishes the truth of the Master's word, viz, "Many shall strive to enter in, but shall not be able," yet for reasons which appear to be patent and good to us, we gladly prefer to declare "the whole counsel of God."

Since last writing for publication, I have delivered eleven discourses at the Bonnet School-house, about six miles from here, in answer to the vigorous, bitter, and in my judgment, very unfair attacks of E. H. Gurley. I am satisfied that the Saints in that region are confirmed in the belief that our faith and doctrine, as set forth in the three books, (Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants), will stand every fair test which may be applied to them, appearing brighter and better than ever after having passed through these ordeals.

In the latter half of October I spoke twelve times in the "Hickory" School-house, and three times in the "New Zion," both of these in Mercer county, Missouri. I also spoke four times in Pleasanton, Iowa, and felt encouraged in the belief that the "Little River Branch will yet come out of the mists of darkness which have partially enshrouded her for sometime in the past. This is speaking of that branch "collectively and not individually," and without disrespect to any one or more of its members.

From the 13th till the 29th of November I had the pleasure of laboring in connection with Bro. Duncan Campbell, and I found him to be an intelligent and conscientious minister. We divided the labor of preaching, holding services in the "New Zion" School-house eight times, "Concord" Baptist Church, once, "Hickory" School-house, five times, and once in Lineville, Iowa.

In most of the above named places an excellent impression is made in favor of the truth. We have many friends there, made by preaching and explaining the doctrine of Christ; but the "baser sort," as in olden times, seemed to be stirred to anger because the faith proved to be so much better, and so entirely different from what they had believed and represented it to be.

I believe in sustaining the church papers. As a rule, those who do not take the Herald, and those who take it and do not read it, are a long way behind in the work. But is it not high time that all should learn that the necessary labor in order that the Herald may be sent to the Saints and friends everywhere, is a part of God's work, and in principle should not be made a peculiar exception to other departments of church work. There are some things, on some lines of policy, which require special care lest they be carried too far. To illustrate: The good Elder in the field is frequently highly eulogized because he is blest in presenting the gospel to the people. Now suppose he should make it a general practice to repeat to the Saints and friends, in public and in private, those commendations, or puffs, what would be the effect on himself and others? Good or bad? After a time he would be sure to lose much confidence and respect with the better part of society; and his unwise practice would have a tendency to encourage an evil which is far too prevalent in the church as well as without. I refer to the practice of saying nice and good things to ones face.

I confess it is strange to me, that any one should see a greater guarantee of safety and triumph to the work in an editorial in the Herald reflecting the views of the Editor on some particular subject than in the acts of the General Conferences, which express the views of the combined wisdom of the church! I am not finding fault with any proper use of the Herald. Its work is important and grand. Nor do I believe that unfriendly criticism should be indulged in against those who have this matter in charge, nor against those who are contributors to the Herald; but any subtle policy, on teaching, which, in my judgment, has a tendency to lead the Saints away from God—away from his truth, and cause them to put their trust in man, I am opposed to now, henceforth, and forever.

"But," you say, "all this is simply your opinion." Yes, sir, you are nearly right; but I know more about the evidences which have produced this opinion in my mind than anybody else. If I have been fighting a man of straw, the loss will be mine, and I can not, if I would, evade the consequences of my folly.

I believe the church which we have the honor to represent will compare favorably with any other religious organization in wisdom, morality, and spirituality; and yet there is need of reform. Not that kind of reform (?) which removes the books, or any one of them, away from the Saints, but that which will bring the Saints in faith and practice, more nearly in harmony with the books. With good wishes for all, and feeling the grave responsibilities that rest upon me, in common with all the ministers of the covenant of peace, I subscribe myself your brother,

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

Dear Herald: I write this at the residence of Bro. M. A. Love, in Thayer county, Nebraska. We are now sitting around the stove—a living wreath of fourteen souls, including Bro. "Alex" McLane, the new made benedict, his modest little bride "Maggie," my wife and myself. It commenced raining on the night of the 15th, which resolved itself into a regular blizzard, with snow and wind searching every crevice, continuing until this morning, when we awoke to find beds and clothing covered with snow, and piles of it heaped up in various parts of the house. Out of doors the gale came from the north-west, cold and piercing. Chickens were found where they had sought imperfect shelter from the storm, perished and perishing; hogs and hog-pens were drifted under and filled up. The stable was crowded full of horses, colts, cattle and calves,—all enjoying comparative comfort. Surely the elements are bearing witness of the approaching end.

I have been holding meetings in this county, three miles east of Hebron, monthly for over a year except during the inclemency of last winter. This field is an excellent one, and promises good results. I find it no easy task to visit the dear Saints and friends, as I live upwards of thirty miles from this point of labor where I have been so well received and kindly treated, and should be exceeding glad if some acceptable minister could be sent, or located in this region, who could do better for them than I have done. I am burdened with the knowledge that a more energetic prosecution of the work than I am able to give is demanded. I would gladly aid any able minister to the extent of my ability in making a vigorous effort, or turn the work over to them, if by so doing I could be released from the field without detriment to the work already established.

In my own neighborhood I should be happy to report a lively, energetic life among the Saints, and a vigorous prosecution of the work in the vicinity promptly supported by all those called to be Saints hereabouts; and I heartily wish that all such were in very truth lively stones in the temple of our God. But unfortunately it is the few who have the burden to carry and the work to do. Yet notwithstanding these drawbacks, I feel to rejoice that our lives and examples have been such as to place us on a respectful footing with our professing neighbors, without any sacrifice of principles on our part, for we are now accounted worthy to receive positions of trust in the community, and to be recognized as worthy of an equal representation in the services of the new church building erected in our city by the Freewill Baptists, which gives us the morning (11 o'clock) service each alternate Sunday, and we devoutly thank God, and our neighbors for this privilege. At our recent district conference a motion was made (by Bro. Harder I am told) to establish a week of meetings in each branch of the district for the purpose of a reunion, and Bro. Harder, aided by Bro. A. Kent was assigned to aid our branch. Acting in pursuance of this arrangement we asked the privilege of the church building for the entire series, which was cheerfully granted; the M. E. pastor kindly withdrawing his regular appointment in our favor. The time came, but neither minister nor Saint from abroad to aid, nor encourage us with their presence, nor any explanatory reasons for their non-appearance. Being alone in the ministry, I went into the work with a will; but here, as sometimes the case elsewhere, I could not overcome the effect of the disappointment of hearing preachers from far off, felt by Saints and others. I spoke seven times—six of them with most excellent liberty, which kept me from my appointment here a week longer than ought to have been, and to which I am now indebted for being weather-bound with my wife four days in Nebraska—some forty miles from our home.

In my opinion no two-days nor week meetings, reunions, should be ordered by conference, or otherwise, except by consultation and approval of those who have the care of such branch, and the burden of the ministry therein. But whether this suggestion is accepted or not, I think I can promise the Saints everywhere, that when I shall arrange for, and advertise any more such provisions, it will be with the assurance of a better support from home and abroad than I had on this occasion.

JOHN D. BENNETT.

BOWRAVILLE, N. S. W., Nov. 25th.

Bro. Joseph:—We expect to leave here next Wednesday, on our way to Victoria, will perhaps get there by April or May. The brethren here are getting a meeting house under way and expect before long to have the privilege of worshipping God in their own house. There have been eight young persons baptized here lately. Our reporter in the Macleay Chronicle has given us opportunity to show up a little of our faith. I send you to-day his last effusion, and have sent my reply to him, but it will not appear soon enough for this mail. Prejudice has been broken down considerably by the articles. By letters from Victoria I learn that the brethren are getting along splendidly. Also from some of the N. S. W. branches comes good news of progress. The last Herald, October 9th, brought us your sermon, which I have commenced to read, having read it over twice and some places several times. So far I have found it excellent, but the principle underlying it is far reaching if carried out into detail and will let a great light in on many of Christ's sayings. "If they reject you they will (thereby) reject me also," is a hard thought unless light accompanies it, and when a man excommunicates all the rest of the brethren called the church, he should have as good a degree of assurance of the correctness of his act as would amount to a certainty, or he may be found to have "rejected Christ." There must be a direct, connected line from Christ to the sinner by which Christ's power of remission and pardon can be applied to such; and man is so far the arbiter of his own destiny that he may, or may not permit that power to be exercised for him, certainly only by placing himself in connection with the line; and again may break the connection, but if he does the stream of pardon is diverged, by his own act, from him, and he must live perfect, or pardon is withheld; and as eternal life is in that line, if he severs the line all the righteousness of his past life can not avail him.

We are well. Glad to hear of Zion's prosperity. Yours in Christ,

JOS. F. BURTON.

SWEET HOME, Oregon, Dec. 21st.

Bro. Joseph and Blair:—I have just finished a course of six meetings in a place where I have done the most preaching, and had large congregations, men and women coming through the rain and mud for miles to hear. Several are interested and I hope some to obey after a while. We have had terrible prejudice to work against, but it is giving way. There has been a Holiness band here and worked for nearly four weeks, but could do but very little. They stirred up some of their old members and got a few young people to join them; but it seemed that they could get up but little excitement. I commenced right after them, and showed up their positions, and I think it will have an effect hereafter. There was some kicking and squirming done, and a very well informed young man challenged me for a debate, and we have agreed verbally to meet in February. I am to affirm that the Reorganized Church is the Church of Christ; and the Lord so willing, I think it will come off.

The few brethren and sisters here in Oregon have, with but few exceptions, showed their belief by works and means; some have paid their tithing and others have told me they are going to commence. Others only need a little more time to consider and I think they will see its importance and their obligations. The roads have become so bad that it is a hard matter to get around in the country; so I will go to Portland and try to work there for a month or more. I am trying to work slowly and carefully; not by precept alone, but by example. I said in a former letter, I never have seen the time when there was so great need of example; especially by our elders. I believe our coming conference should take very firm ground with regard to its representatives using tobacco, or any kind of intoxicants.

H. HAWS.

99 Henry Avenue, BROOKLYN, N. Y.,

December 27th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—The work here is reviving, though slowly. Our meetings are held regularly Sundays at 2:30 and 6:30 p. m. Bro. George Potts is presiding elder of the branch. The Saints feel as well as can be expected under the circumstances, but I am hoping to see it much better in the future. I believe that most of the Saints are well pleased with the Herald and Hope and have no fault to find. Our united prayer and hope is for the work. The Saints are showing by their works that they desire the work to go on, by bringing their offerings as the law directs. I am hoping to do more for the work than I have ever done in the past. I am informed that the Saints at Philadelphia have started a Sunday School and it is doing well.

Yours in bonds,

JOSEPH SQUIRE.

RICHMOND, Mo., Dec. 29th, 1886.

Bros. Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair: We have just received a copy of a debate which has recently taken place in Cameron, Canada, between a Bro. Smith of the Reorganization and Bro. W. P. Brown of the Church of Christ. The copy we have was written off by a Bro. George F. Robinson, who Bro. Brown baptized. It is only the substance of each man's remarks. We want to say that we do not endorse the spirit on either side which prevailed at that debate. At least we do not endorse some things which Bro. Brown said concerning you two brethren. We want you to believe that the feeling and spirit which we have towards you and towards all Latter Day Saints, is the spirit which is manifested in Bro. David Whitmer's writings that you now have—which is the spirit of love and charity. Believe us, brethren, (God knows it), that we love you, although we believe you to be in errors in doctrine. We are opposed to public debates, believing that the right spirit very rarely prevails at them. We trust that you will not speak of that debate in the Herald. It is no argument against the Church of Christ, to publish the errors of one of its elders. Because the spirit of man occasionally comes in the heart of one of our elders, causing him to speak his convictions in plainness, is no reason why the church is not on the rock in its doctrine. The spirit of man caught Peter, and he made errors and contended with Paul, but this does not prove that church not to be the Church of Christ. Because there is one or several in the church who err, is no argument that that church is not the true Church of Christ. Bro. Brown means well. He is a better man than you give him credit for. We know his intentions to be pure and good, and we know him to be a good man and a spiritual man. He has convictions concerning some things about the Latter Day Saints, and being a plain spoken Scotchman, he speaks out his honest convictions. We have not the same convictions that he has. We believe in abundance of charity, and so look upon all men with charity. Bro. Brown said in his debate that he believed Bro. Joseph to be a gentleman, but he said some other things which we suppose you have heard or will here. We do not think as Bro. Brown does about you two brethren. We trust that you will use charity, and not notice these things in the Herald, as it is no argument whatever that the "Church of Christ" is not right in doctrine. But if you do publish these things in the Herald, please publish this letter in the same number.

Your brethren in the faith of Christ,

JOHN C. WHITMER,
JOHN J. SNYDER.

SHERIDAN, Michigan, Dec. 14th.

Brother Blair:—We have a branch here of eighteen members, and we have meetings every Sabbath. The Saints are striving to serve the Master to the best of their ability, and all, or nearly all, feel thankful to my heavenly Father for the light of the gospel, and that the gifts and blessings are again restored and enjoyed as in former days. I am striving to do what I can in the Lord's vineyard and the Lord blesses my weak efforts. The work is onward in this part, and there are a great many calls for preaching which can not be supplied for want of laborers. I was at the debate held by Bro. J. J. Cornish and a Seventh-day Adventist, on the Sabbath question. It resulted in much good to the cause of Christ, for those who once persecuted us for teaching the gospel of Christ are now our friends, and they begin to think we are in the right. To God be all the praise.

Yours in gospel bonds,

WM. DAVIS.

HILL CITY, Tenn., Dec. 19th.

Dear Herald:—Hill City is just across the river from Chattanooga, and is near enough for men to go to work in that growing city. I believe the coming spring and summer will be a good time to strike an effectual blow here for the cause of Christ. I certainly believe Chattanooga, to be the gate city of the south. It is a center for several leading railways, besides its river trade. I think an elder could do much good here. Prejudice no doubt would be considerable for a while; but, as elsewhere, in time it would wear away. I will aid all I can in the matter. If the work is truly of God, he will give the increase. I am not strong, but desire to go on. It does seem that wickedness is on the increase. Spiritualists, infidels, theaters and any thing that will draw one away from the worship of the Master, is here also.

Yours,

THEO. GERBER.

FAIRFIELD, Neb., Dec. 13th.

Bro. Joseph:—I have been preaching here for the past two weeks. There are a few who are giving good attention. Every agency is used except open warfare, to prevent the people from hearing us. Some unheard of reasons are urged why we should not be heard. God has blessed my humble efforts, and I have hopes for the future.

Yesterday I found an old sister. She was baptized in June, 1836, her maiden name was Almira Ayers, she came to your father's house in the fall of 1836, and lived there for six months. She married Amos Johnson, is poor and without relatives, except a cousin, with whom she lives. They are bitter against our faith, and are of the "Christian School" of the "Western Reserve." Sister Johnson's testimony concerning your father and the work is strong and feeling. She expressed her warm love for "little Joseph," with a flow of tears. She saw your photograph and sobbed. She desires to see you, and prays for your success.

If the Board of Publication can, let them send the papers to Almira A. Johnson, Fairfield, Nebraska. Will you please answer this enquiry, Would it be proper for a branch or district to receive this sister on her original baptism, or should it come up before the General Conference.

There is a man here attending meetings and investigating, viz: S. B. Owen, Centralia, Nemaha county, Kansas. He is stoneman and blacksmith, working on a new line of Railroad. He has had some experience in both the Baptist and M. E. Church, but from a study of the Bible came to the conclusion that they did not preach the whole truth, so he withdrew from fellowship, but kept on studying the Bible and exchanging views with others, and by them requested to preach. He did so during the past summer. He fully, freely, accepts faith and repentance and baptism as we preach it. The result of his summer's preaching is fifty-three souls without church organization or fellowship with any people. He told me he did not attempt to organize because he did not understand how, and was impressed that light should come to him. I spent most of yesterday explaining the work to him. He gave a frank endorsement of all we were able to go over, and expressed a determination to continue until he should be satisfied. The reason I write so fully is because he requested me to go to his home when he returns, and preach our faith; and as it was out of my field of labor, and there is a hundred fold more than I possibly can do in my own field, I could not promise. But while he was pressing me, something whispered "write to Bro. Joseph." I am favorably impressed with the man, and he has your address and may write you upon the subject. I will be here another week and hope to get more knowledge of this man, as he expects to attend our meetings. I expect to return home about the last of the month.

Success to you and all of God's faithful servants.

In gospel bonds,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

FAIRFIELD, Neb., Dec. 22d.

Dear Herald:—For several years we have been waiting and watching for Bro. R. M. Elvin to come and labor here, but the way has not been open until now. He has been with us three weeks and preached twenty-one excellent sermons. The attendance was fair, and good attention was given. Prejudice ran high, and many here could not endure to hear sound doctrine. Notwithstanding all this, Bro. Elvin, by his gentlemanly and Christian conduct, made many friends; and the seed sown will take root and grow. Some are believing, and others are almost persuaded. Bro. Elvin's work here is not done, and until he comes again we will endeavor to keep up the interest, at which time we pray the Father that some may be added to the kingdom.

Yours in bonds,

J. E. HOPPER.

GIRARD, Minn., Dec. 22d.

Bro. Blair:—It is a general time of health, and times very good. The most of the Saints are trying to live their religion. Our Thursday night prayer-meetings we have partially changed to speaking meetings. Two selects some subject and teach upon it, and take the lead of the meeting all through, both old and young, those without the priesthood as well as those holding it; I think it will do good. They can be better qualified to hold and manage in their different positions. We receive the Herald and could hardly do without it; have taken it since 1868, and took the Advocate from the first to the last one printed; have got them bound, and think it the best paper published, on account of the quotations from Joseph's sayings, many of them coming true every day. We are making some little stir for Christmas; will have a tree, and some pieces will be spoken. It will keep the young at home, so that they will not want to go off to dances. I wish you and Bro. Joseph could come up here, make us a visit and straighten us up. I see in the Herald of late that the combined ages of four in a certain branch made 286 years. We can beat that. Four in our branch will make 291 years—myself and wife being two of them. It will be forty-nine years next Sunday since we were married, seven miles below Richmond, Missouri. My children all belong to the church. When Bro. T. W. Smith was here some of them were very hard; Bro. T. W. told me that we should have them with us in the church. We have five sons and two daughters, also twenty-three grandchildren, and four great grandchildren, and all are living in this school district.

Hoping you will remember us at all times, and we will try and remember you with all the faithful Saints.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST.

WHAT is the church of Christ? Ans.—His “body,” for so Paul affirms, and he is good authority for both Saints and Sectarians. As most of you have as much time to turn to the Scriptures and read, as I have to copy the quotations in this article, I will merely refer to some of Paul’s testimony on the subject: Rom. 12: 4, 5. 1 Cor. 12: 12, 13, 27. Eph. 1: 22, 23; 3: 6; 4: 4; 10: 10; 5: 23–33. Col. 1: 18, 24; 11: 19.

This body must be perfect, whole, without spot or blemish. A human body is not a perfect body, if deficient in any part; lacking an eye, an ear, or a hand, or a foot it can not be called a whole or complete body; if it lacks several members it can lay still less claim to the term, and in proportion to the deficiency does its right to claim the honor of being a body decrease. The Church of Christ is a perfect body; and its members are called apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers and elders, priests, bishops and deacons, and helps, and governments. It can not be a perfect body without all the members, that God, its maker, designed for it, and put in it when he first created it. A branch is a part of the Church, as a twig or limb is part of a tree; but a branch is not the Church any more than a twig or limb is the tree. The hand is of the body, or a member of the body. It is composed of skin, flesh, nerves, sinews, arteries and veins, as is also the case with the body in general. Nor does a hand, and a foot, and an eye, and an ear, and a tongue, and a lung compose a “body.” The Church of Christ was not organized on the sixth day of April, 1830; its organization was begun at that date in the latter day reorganization of the Church of Christ; by a figure of speech only, a metonymy, in which a part is put for the whole, as man for mankind is a local organization called the church. In truth it is but a branch, or part of the church. The reorganization is not a perfect organization, it is not a perfect church; for its First Presidency, its apostolic college; its seventies or evangelists, are not complete or full. But an organization may have three presidents, twelve apostles, and seven seventies, and all other organized classes required by the law of perfect organization, and yet not be the Church of Christ, as the Utah church for instance, because not built upon the gospel of Christ, having adopted in the stead thereof a so-called “new and everlasting covenant,” called the “Law of Celestial Marriage.”

An organization in progress may be perfect as far as it has gone in organization and not be recognized of Christ as his church in embryo, or in incipency even, for the same reason. But if lacking in organization, and not being built upon the gospel it is still less entitled to the name, “The Church of Christ.” But the Book of Mormon idea is that a church, named after Christ, and built upon his gospel is His church. But it must be built. I might collect enough stones, bricks, lumber, shingles, windows, doors, and nails to form a good sized house, and having secured a good and sufficient foundation, I tumble the whole into a confused mass upon the foundation, I have not built; or I may on the other hand, erect the four walls correctly, and to the required height and stop at that yet I have not built an house.

The Church of Christ, must be fully organized, and built upon the gospel of Christ, and then as it would be entitled to do, call itself after his name. But if not built, and especially not built upon the “rock,” or upon his “gospel,” it is useless to arrogate to itself the title, “The Church of Christ.” A pig has legs and a body and a head, and a tail, and heart, lungs, liver, etc., but it is not a horse, nor is a horse a man, although he may have eyes, and ears, and various other organs and members of the body, but a pig is a pig, and a horse is a horse, and a man is a man; (bodily at least).

There is but one body “of Christ; and never was but one. And that body must be an organized and harmoniously organized body. It is simply, yet superlatively absurd to call the hosts of human institutions called churches or denominations, so many members of the “body of Christ.” That “body” existed 1,800 years ago, separate and distinct, and independent of all such institutions and centuries before any of them came into existence. It can exist to-day distinct, and superior, and independent of them, and does, and must of necessity so exist. The mere fact that a body of men and women call themselves “The Church of Christ,” is no proof or evidence at all that it is the “Church of Christ.” Is every woman called Victoria, the Queen of Great Britain? Or if the genuine Queen should call herself Martha Jane, Jemima Ann, Victoria Woodhull, would that invalidate her authority, or make her any the less the Queen?

One artist may paint a perfect life size portrait of the Queen; another chisel her perfect image out of marble, and another mould her life-like in wax; and who would say that either the portrait, or the statue, or the wax figure was the veritable, living, breathing; flesh, blood and bones, known to millions as the honored Queen of England? Jesus never said at any time to any people that they were his church if simply called by his name. If ten thousand women should take the fancy to call themselves Mrs. Fannie Cleveland, they would not therefore be considered the wives of President Cleveland by any means.

The Son of God must present “to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing;” from him is the “whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.” Webster says, among other definitions, that to edify means “to enlarge, to build up.” Now in order to enlarge or build up the church, Paul says that Christ gave “apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors and teachers.” Without these gifts, and authorities in the church, how can it be built, and particularly if it does not rest on the gospel? The Reorganization, as we call it, is built (as far as it is built) on the gospel of Christ. The unfinished part rests suspended in the heavens, ready to be lowered into the proper place, when the church gets the part already built, perfectly plumbed, and squared and leveled, and some useless and obstructive timbers laid out of the way. It often happens that even wise master-builders have to remove defective stones, or timbers, even after being put in place, whether they were not discovered as being defective at the time they were put in place, or became worth less afterward by action of the elements, or some destroying influence.

But how about the name of the church? What else is the church beside the body of Christ? or, what is really the case, what is this “body” called? I answer, the wife of Christ, or “the Lamb’s wife,” his “bride.” Now if that is so, what shall she be called? Why, says one, “The Church of Christ,” of course. Indeed! Is that his name? I answer, only in part. Let us see about his name. The angel of the Lord said,—“Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins.”—Matt. 1: 21. Luke 1: 31; 2: 21. Now he was called Jesus, because that name declared and defined his work on earth in part. It means a Savior. But he had other work to do, which being a different work, required a different name, hence he is called Christ, or the Messiah; the former being an anglicized form of the Greek Christos, meaning, in English, “the Anointed One.” Now, as neither Christ, nor Messiah, (an Hebrew name) are English, but are anglicized, one being Christ, the other Messiah, what right has any one to say that Messiah is not as truly the other part of the name of the Son of God, as Christ is? Ignorance of these facts can alone excuse any one for using the word Christ alone. Indeed, there are good reasons, which I can not take time or space now to urge, why the word Messiah should be used instead of Christ. One only I will offer, and that is, Jesus being a Jew, his national name would naturally suggest itself; therefore we would call him, “the Messiah.” And the term, “the Church of the Messiah,” is as reasonable, as scriptural, as lawful and proper, as “the Church of Christ,” and more so.

But let us see how his immediate followers, his chosen apostles, understood his name. Said Peter, “Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ.” “In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk.” “Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth . . . doth this man stand before you whole. . . . Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is no other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."—Acts 11:38; 3:6; 4:10-12.

Philip preached "The things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ." The people were baptized in "the name of the Lord Jesus." Paul calls the Son of God, "the Lord Jesus," about thirteen times in his epistles, and "Christ Jesus" over thirty times; "Christ Jesus our Lord" four times, "Jesus Christ our Lord," about eight times; and "Jesus Christ" some forty-eight times, and "Lord Jesus Christ" some fifty-five times; and "Jesus," and "Christ" very frequently. James invariably calls him "the Lord Jesus Christ." Peter nearly always calls him "Jesus Christ," or "the Lord Jesus Christ;" and John the same. Why, then, shall any one be so foolish as to insist in calling him Christ, alone? Is he not Jesus, the Savior, as well as Christ, the Anointed One? What, then, is the proper name for his church, if his true and full and proper name is the Lord Jesus Christ? Why, the Church of Jesus Christ, or, of the Lord Jesus Christ. Were not those who formed that church in the early or former days called "Saints?" And was it not the Church of Jesus Christ of former day Saints? and is it not now the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

But I am strongly in favor of calling the name of the church, "The Church of Jesus Christ;" but to more clearly explain to the world our claim that the original church, or former day organization, fell away, or died, and has been restored or resurrected in these last days through angelic administration, I hold that it should be called "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ," more in reference to the restoration of the church under Joseph the father, than to any latter day apostasy, and reorganization. The church which was organized by Joseph and others, beginning April 6th, 1830, was emphatically, a reorganized church; it was reorganized in the latter days; and the people are saints (or should be) who compose that church. What else is it, therefore, than "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, of Latter Day Saints?"

If the term "Saint" can not apply legitimately to any human being to-day because of its implied "perfectly holy state," I would reply, that beside the recorded fact of the "Saints" of other days being decidedly imperfect and sinful beings, (for instance the Corinthian "Saints,") there is nothing more demanded of a "Saint" than of a member of the "Church of Christ;" nor of the Saints as a body than is required of the "Church of Christ" as a body. Members of that body are to be as "holy" as "perfect" as "free from sin." And their bodies they are to present as a "living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God," and the church must be "a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish." Can anything more be expected of "Saints" either in heaven or on earth? And if Saints in name are not Saints in fact, and do not reach "entire sanctification," then "the church of Christ" in name, is not the Church of Christ in fact, because she may lack the same qualification, for she must be without spot or wrinkle and holy and without blemish; or as a bride in the flesh should be physically and morally perfect so should the Church of Christ be in faith and works, principle and practice, in order and organization. Where is that Church? Does any claimant to the name come anywhere nearer "filling the bill" than the Reorganization? And she is not perfect in organization, in faith, or good works, by a great deal. But is any other organization, any more perfect in this direction I repeat? The Utah church is more than fully organized, she has superfluous officials, or too many "members" to her body," and as to faith and good works; well, no comment is needed from my pen if she is to be judged by "the books." If absolute perfection in the direction we have named is demanded in order to find Saints, or the Church of Christ on earth, then there are no Saints, nor any such church. Yet perfection is to be reached, before saints in very deed and "a glorious church" are found.

The Church of Christ as represented by the Reorganization is imperfect, in not being fully developed; but a progressing, and growing church of the Lord Jesus Christ. If the Reorganization is not entitled to the name, none on earth are. The church eighteen hundred years ago reached as nearly as possible, perhaps, (in the flesh), a state of perfect womanhood, as the Lamb's bride; but like many of her type in humanity, she became blemished in character, as well as blemished and corrupted in bodily organization. She became a diseased and a fallen woman, and her restoration to health of body, perfection of form, and purity of character in the latter times is a gradual work. This work in a preparatory way, I believe began centuries ago; but the re-espousal of the bride did not take place till in these last days, when the church openly planted herself upon the fulness of the gospel and openly assumed the name of Christ Jesus, her espoused Lord. I do not consider that the church is fully married to Christ yet, for the Marriage Supper of the Lamb will not take place till he returns to earth; but she is espoused, and it is an Israelitish institution. Under the Israelitish idea, she is permitted to be called his wife, as Mary was called so by the angel, before she was officially married to Joseph. Matt. 1:18-20. But when she (the church) is married, she will be, as she must be, a perfect church, holy and without blemish, without spot or wrinkle or any such thing. Her work now is to make herself ready for the marriage. It is her duty to become cleansed from all imperfections of mind and body, and to become perfect in all parts of her organism, neither lacking in any of her members, nor having any superfluous members, or unnecessary appendages; neither believing and practicing too much or too little, but living by every word that proceedeth (and not without exception, to all that has proceeded) out of the mouth of God. She can not live to-day by every word that God has in time past given; but should "be established in the present truth," 2 Peter 1:12. No present truth, can make any past truth a lie. But all past truth is not of present application; it served its end and purpose, at least much of it has, and what is "present truth" is either old truth re-declared, and re-commanded as law to-day, or else new and unrevealed hitherto, truth. The wording of a past revelation may seem to imply a then present application only, but the principle on which it was based being of continual, and we may say, universal and eternal application, and it will necessarily remain a law of continual and universal application. Thus, when God forbade the Nephites to practice polygamy, it was on the ground of his delight in the chastity of woman-kind; and as he is an unchangeable God, he never did, and never can command polygamy, unless he changes in his regard for woman's chastity. Or in other words, if he now delights in women being unchaste, and polygamy is no longer an abomination in his sight, then he would of course (if he could by any possibility change, and still be God), command polygamy, or at least remove the restriction placed upon the Nephites, because of his then delight in womanly virtue, and his then dislike for polygamy and the like. But as no one in his sober senses will claim a change in the mind of God concerning the chastity of women, they can not in reason or justice, assume that he now permits, much less commands, what he once forbade on the very ground of his delight in their chastity. If polygamy and virtue were incompatible then, in the eyes of an unchangeable God, they must be incompatible now, and must forever be. Therefore the Utah Church, being an unchaste church, unchaste in faith and practice, (in this direction at least), she is not the church that Christ will present to himself at the day of his coming; and therefore must be repudiated by him as being an unholy, blemished, and corrupt woman, whom he can by no means marry at the Marriage Supper of the Lamb."

The church must make herself ready; she is not now ready; her work is not yet done. This was declared in the revelation of September, 1882, when the Lord declared that "Ye can not now prosecute missions in many foreign lands, nor is it expedient that the elders of the first quorums be sent out of America until the work of the reorganization of my church be more fully established." It could not mean that "the work of the reorganization" was the work that the Reorganization is to do, for the sending of the gospel to all foreign lands is evidently a part of its work; for that is the work of the twelve and the seventies, two of the first quorums. It can only mean that the work of reorganizing the church was to be more fully done, that is, filling up the quorums, determining what is the doctrine of the church, eliminating all superfluous theories, practices, and forms, if any are found. The church must make herself ready. She must have a perfect organization, a well defined system of faith, uniformity of practice, and perfect harmony of thought and action between the various quorums. These things she must do for herself. The Lord then said that it is not "expedient now to further fill up the quorums," meaning the first presidency, the twelve, the seventies, the high priests and the bishopric; for he permits the filling up of the elders', priests', teachers' and deacons' quorums. But what was not expedient four years ago, may be expedient now; at least it was expedient in the case of the seventies last April, and I believe the Lord approved of that work. I believe also, that it is expedient, or will soon be so, to fill up the seventies more fully, and the first presidency, and the twelve, and to organize the High Council, and fill up the high priests' quorum. I think that what was meant by not sending the elders of the first quorums out of the land of America was, that they were not to go and open new fields, and locate for an indefinite period in some distant land. But to go to a distant field and set the church in order where it was already established, and where it was in confusion as here, was proper, as it is the duty of the twelve to see to that very business; and as the seventies are to do like work, it is expedient that having done my work here, as I believe to be the case, I believe I should hasten on to Australia, see to the work there, ordain Bro. Burton to the office of a seventy, and leave the work in his hands; and unless the work of the reorganization is accomplished in my absence, to return and assist, as far as I have ability. I surely feel that I have done my duty here, and I do not see that I can do any more than any other elder can do.

It is needful for an elder to come here from America, and that speedily, to take my place, for I feel as much assured that I am at liberty now to leave this field as I felt it my duty to come here. I shall not wait for any one to come when I get ready to go. They can get acquainted with the people and the condition of affairs as I had to do. But the work of the reorganization of the church must go on. For the bridegroom is soon coming, and the bride must get herself ready; she must be freed from all defects, she must be neatly and tastefully clothed, and she must have on all her jewels—the gifts and graces of the gospel. And thus perfect in form and feature, arrayed in pure linen, or the gospel of Christ, which is the righteousness of Saints, and decked with the jewels her affianced gave her, she will be "adorned for her husband" and be "prepared as a bride for the bridegroom," that when the marriage supper is ready, she will have "made herself ready." She is not ready now; but as the day of the bridegroom's coming is at hand, and as "he will come in an hour when ye think not," it is evidently wise that she begins at once to make herself ready, or she will not be accepted of him. If he sees that she will not get herself ready he may reject her, and raise up a church that will regard his will more fully.

The church (or as the term means, an assembly, or congregation) of Christ is a people who have believed and obeyed the gospel of Christ in its purity and fulness, and are organized according to the pattern set forth in the New Testament and Book of Mormon, and latter day revelations, and its name is the Church of Jesus Christ, and as it has been reorganized in the latter day, having been in a fallen, apostate condition for centuries, it is lawful and proper to call it "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ," and as the people who compose it are called saints, and as these are the latter days, it is lawful and proper to call it "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. There is neither reason nor justice in objecting to any part of the title; for the church is emphatically a reorganized church, and those who deny it must prove that the church established in the days of Peter and Paul has continued on earth from then till now, and has not changed in form and features, in faith and practice or in name.

It is Jesus Christ's church, and his name is not Christ only, nor Jesus only, but Jesus Christ—or really Jesus the Christ—the Messiah. These are the last days of the Gentile dispensation. The people of God were always called saints, and are as much so now as in any other age. It is the "Church of God" because God is its founder. It is the "Church of Jesus Christ" because it is his body, his bride, his spiritual house, and he is its builder. It is "the church of the saints" because composed of saints. It can be called a Church of Christians, and a Church of Disciples of Christ, because the people who compose it are christians, or disciples, but her name is the same as her espoused Lord, and his name is not God, nor the Lamb, nor the Lord, nor the Savior, howbeit he is God, and the Lamb, and the Lord, and the Savior, and a host of other characters, nor is his name "saint" or "christian," or "disciple," but it is emphatically Jesus Christ, or Jesus Messiah. And for one, I positively prefer the latter; but either is lawful, and proper. It will not do to leave off JESUS, for if there is anything unquestionably his name, it is JESUS, given him by an angel sent from heaven to announce his approaching birth and his name. We have no right to leave off "Jesus." The thought is abhorrent to me. Everything connected with his birth, his life, his sufferings, his death, his burial and resurrection, center in his name "Jesus." There is something so soft, so sweet, so soothing, and so enchanting about the name Jesus that does not attach to the name Christ; for the latter smacks of austerity, of dignity, of judgment, and of punishment. He is the "Anointed One," the Christ appointed and elected, and he will more fully assume his official character as the Christ after a while; but now he is to us Jesus, the Savior, the Mediator, our great High Priest, our elder brother. There is such a tender, melting influence associated with the word Jesus, that I think a man must be a stranger to the love of Jesus who would think for a moment of dropping that precious name.

I honor the sectarian churches for honoring that name in their songs of praise, in their prayers, and in their preaching. I would be pleased to see it printed in golden and most attractive letters over every stand wherever our people worship, and printed or painted conspicuously in every house. No greater honor do I ask than to be worthy of being a member of the church of Jesus the Messiah, reorganized in these latter days. No greater honor can any man have in this life. And the sum of human happiness will be reached when one is permitted to sit down at the marriage supper of the Lamb.

LEAVES FROM THE TREE OF LIFE, NUMBER FOUR.

THE MEANS OF PREPARATION FOR ETERNAL LIFE.

WHILE all must acknowledge that an intelligent, trusting faith in God and Christ, is an all important and indispensable factor in the means of preparation for eternal life, for "without faith it is impossible to please him, for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him."—Heb. 11:6,—it is equally certain that that faith must embrace every word that they have revealed to us; for the Savior says, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God."—Matt. 4:4. Now the only way that a student can be benefitted by the instructions he receives is by a proper application of the lessons taught. Watt might have believed in the power of steam forever, but if there had never been a practical application of the theory, no one would have been benefitted by his belief. As we have shown, God and Christ are the great instructors in the science of eternal life, and unless we apply the lessons they teach, we can not possibly derive any benefit from them. The fact that we are to live by every word that God has given us, "line upon line and precept upon precept," and has declared, "my word shall not return unto me void," is indisputable evidence of the necessity for the revealment of that word, and at the same time of the absolute necessity that we should obey every word revealed. Is there any promise in Holy Writ that eternal life shall be given without any preparation whatever on our part? There is not a single promise to that effect. Then who shall determine the amount of preparation; the one who desires to receive it, or he who proposes to give it? All will admit that the great dispenser of the gift is, and must be the judge of the preparation required. It will also be conceded that a being of the all-glorious character ascribed to God would impose no burden, exact no duty, nor demand any service that was not absolutely essential as a means of preparation to receive the gift. And as he must determine the fitness required, so he must determine the means of preparation; and if we truly believe in him we shall not be found quibbling, nor carping at the decision he has given. The true believer accepts his every word, bows to every ordinance, obeys every command, and implicitly trusts his every promise, then, and then alone, can he prove that the gospel "is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

When Jesus commissioned his apostles to preach this gospel to all nations, he said, "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."—Matth. 28:19. What had he commanded them? There are various commands, and the fact that Christ enjoined upon them to teach the observance of "all things whatsoever I have commanded you," is evidence that obedience is required, and that without reserve, to every command; and as the sacrifice of sheep and oxen could not excuse Saul, the king of Israel, for his disobedience to God's command, (1st Sam. 15), neither will money, prayers, and tears, excuse us from obedience to any command found in the gospel of salvation. It is written, "Whosoever, therefore, shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so to do, he shall in no wise be saved in the kingdom of heaven." (Inspired Translation, Matt. 5:21). Then how foolish and vain in men to teach that "such and such ordinances and commandments are very well, yet not at all essential to our salvation." Some foolishly assert as an excuse that these commands and ordinances were for the Jews only, and for that period only.

Let me ask this class of quibblers: Was the whole of the New Testament given for that age only, or was it given for the instruction, comfort, and salvation of all ages? (Acts, 10: 34, 35; Acts, 11: 18). Was Jesus Christ sent to redeem the Jews only, or did he come to redeem the world? (John, 3: 16, 17; 1 John 2: 2). If "God is no respecter of persons," and has so declared, what kind of believers are they who claim to believe that he laid down a strict law and fixed ordinances for the Jews to obey under pain of damnation if they refused, while he simply offers the Gentiles eternal life upon their own terms, if they would only consent that "Jesus was the Christ?" In reality they deny the impartiality and immutability of God, and make him a liar. Further; where is the evidence that one part of the New Testament was given for the guidance of the Jew and another part for the direction of the Gentile? If certain commandments and ordinances are not binding upon us in this age, why is it not so stated in the record; and since it is not so stated, what right has any man to assume that which God has not declared? The great Teacher commanded that the gospel should be preached in all the world and to every creature, and that without any reserve. And since the Lord has never made any distinction, nor authorized his apostles to do it, these men have no authority for such statements? They are purely the imaginations of their own minds, or those of their leaders, and are in direct opposition to the whole tenor of God's word. Such men are undoubtedly the false "teachers" who would "bring in damnable heresies even denying the Lord who bought them;" for when they deny his word do they not deny him? 2 Pet. 2: "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?"—Luke 6:46. "This is the love of God, that we keep his commandments; and his commandments are not grievous."—1 John 5:3. "He that saith I know him, and keepeth not his commandments is a liar, and the truth is not in him."—1 John 2:4. The above refers to both Jew and Gentile. Is it the right and privilege of the breaker of our laws to even suggest, much less to determine, the terms upon which mercy shall be extended to him? If not, by what principle of justice and equity shall we claim the right to determine the terms upon which the clemency and favor of God shall be shown to us? When was erring humanity, learned or unlearned, authorized to decide what law of God he should, or should not obey? Says one, "I admit your reasoning, but I can not see what saving power there is in the various ordinances." Yet this very man would tell me that the decrees and ordinances of this government, derive their binding force from the proper, authoritative, legislative enactment of its constituted authorities, bearing the great seal of the government, and being recorded on the statute books of the nation. This class will also agree that the Holy Scriptures are the statute books of the kingdom of God, that therein are found the laws governing our relationship to him, and that every word which he has revealed therein bears the seal and insignia of Omnipotence, infinite wisdom, justice and love. Is the eternal and infinite ruler of the universe less able to carry out his purposes, enforce his law, and fulfill his high behests, than are the governments of men? Is he less faithful to perform all his word? The testimony that rings down through the ages from all who have put his faithfulness to the test, is that "He is faithful who has promised."

When the serpent was lifted up in the wilderness, and serpent-bitten Israel were bidden to look thereon and they should live, was not that a strange and unheard of method of curing those deadly wounds? Yet was it not effective? Was it the brass, the writhing form of the serpent, or the pleading look of the stricken wretches that gave the healing power? It was neither of these. It was not all of these combined; and yet without all these, Israel, that had been bitten, must have perished. The healing power and virtue was in God; and when afflicted Israel complied with his will, he was found true to his word, and obedient Israel lived.

"Even so must the Son of man be lifted up." What for? The race has been bitten by "that old serpent, the devil" and it must have perished unless an antidote had been found. Christ was that antidote. He has been lifted up, "that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life."—John 3: 14, 15. How shall we believe? By merely accepting his Godhead, acknowledging him as the Redeemer, and claiming an interest in his blood, while we reject his word, make light of his ordinances, doubt the efficacy of his promise, and then seek to be healed in our own way and by means of our own devising? If we seek eternal life in this way we shall seek in vain. The sting of the serpent will as assuredly work to our destruction as did those of the fiery, flying reptiles in the wilderness work the destruction of many who were then bitten. We are indeed to believe on him as the Son of God, the Redeemer of the world, the Messiah who was to come; and in believing thus we can not doubt his word, ignore his ordinances, nor treat his promises with contempt, but we shall be found implicitly receiving and obeying his every word, submitting to all his ordinances, and trusting in all his gracious promises. We shall be "doers of the word, and not hearers only." And when we find him saying,—"Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish," should "cease to do evil, and learn to do well." (Isa. 1: 16, 17). We ought then to "put off the old man with his deeds, and put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge, after the image of him that created him."—Col. 3. When we find it written, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God."—John 3: 5. As true believers we shall accept the great Teacher's definition of the new birth, and, following the teachings of the inspired Peter, we shall repent of our sins and be baptized for the remission of them, that we may receive the gift of the Holy Ghost.—Acts 2: 38. And thus having become "dead to sin" we shall be "buried with (like) Christ by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."—Rom. 6: 3, 4. Then our sins, like those of Paul, will be "washed away," and we shall be filled with the Holy Ghost. Acts 22: 16; 9: 17, 18. Like him we shall be "saved by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost," (Titus 3: 5), in strict accordance with the promise—"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved."—Mark 16: 16. And like the believing jailor who obeyed "the word of the Lord" by being baptized, we shall prove ourselves true believer, "and not hearers only;" for it is written, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 7: 21.

Obedience to every ordinance is essential. This is further evident from the fact that Jesus said:—"All the people that heard John, and the publicans justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him."—Luke 7: 29, 30. This same Jesus further says: "I say unto you, that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven."—Matt. 5: 19.

From the tenor of the whole word of God there is nothing written that will warrant us in rejecting any ordinance, command, precept or promise that God has given; but we are at liberty, yea in duty bound to reject the theories and teachings of men which conflict with the teachings of Christ and his apostles.

It will be remembered that while John baptized with water for the remission of sins, he predicted that Christ should "baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire." This baptism of the Holy Ghost was essential to the preparation for eternal life, but was not instituted in the place of baptism by water, for Christ emphatically declares:—"Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he can not enter into the Kingdom of God." In this language the baptism or birth of water is enjoined upon man equally with the baptism or birth of the Spirit. And since Christ has joined them together, who shall separate them? Who shall applaud the observance of the one, or depreciate—or even ignore—the observance of the other? Both are means of preparation without which we can not have eternal life. It will also be remembered that while Christ commissioned his disciples to baptize with water, he reserved to himself the prerogative to baptize with the Holy Ghost; and that Holy Ghost being a portion of the divine nature, and to be given as the seal of adoption, it must be given to those alone who have truly believed in him who have indeed repented of all their sins and have truly desired to "put on the new man." But all had not been baptized into Christ; for says Paul:—"As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."—Gal. 3: 27. Such are entitled to the Spirit of adoption whereby we cry Abba, Father, (Rom. 8: 15), "Which is the earnest of our inheritance."—Eph. 1: 13, 14. And as He is the Judge of all hearts, he alone is competent to decide who is worthy to receive this seal of adoption. Hence it is written: "He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire."—Matt. 3: 11.

On the day of Pentecost this baptism was given to those who had followed him and it was promised to "all that are afar off," if they obey the gospel call; Acts chapters 1 and 2. And it was "given to them that obey him," (Acts 5: 32), as witness the case of Cornelius, Acts chapters 10 and 11. The two cases above mentioned were without the intervention of any of his servants; but in the other cases of baptism of the Holy Ghost, the servants of God had a work to do, as in the case of the Samaritans, (Acts chapter 8), when Peter and John came from Jerusalem to Samaria and "prayed for them who had been baptized, that they might receive the Holy Ghost." "Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost."—vs. 12-19. The next case we read of was that of Saul of Tarsus, Acts 9: 17, when Ananias "putting his hands on him," that he might receive his sight "and be filled with the Holy Ghost." Then there is the case of the twelve Ephesians who had been baptized by an impostor claiming to be a disciple, but who knew nothing of the Holy Ghost, and consequently left them in ignorance of the baptism thereof. But when Paul said,—"John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe on him which should come after him, that is, on Christ Jesus. When they heard this they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues and prophesied." Acts 19: 4-6, Timothy also received that precious gift in the same way. 2 Tim. 1: 6. And this inspired Apostle Paul enumerates "the laying on of hands" as one of "the principles of the doctrine of Christ." Heb. 6: 12. Here then we find from whence the Apostles received authority to lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. And the fact that they engaged in solemn prayer that the baptism of the Holy Ghost might be given, is evidence that Christ had not given up his prerogative in that ordinance; but that throughout all time his is the sole prerogative to "baptize with the Holy Ghost and fire." But his servants were commanded to teach the people to observe all things whatsoever he had commanded, and the laying on of hands was one.

This baptism of the Holy Spirit is the "anointing" which John declared the children of God had received "the unction from the Holy One." 1 John 2: 20, 27. And when Jesus promised this "comforter" he said; "he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you."—John 14: 26. "He shall testify of me."—15: 26. "He will guide you into all truth." "He will shew you things to come." "He shall glorify me; for he shall receive of mine and shall shew it unto you."—16: 13, 14. Can we dispense with this wonderful teacher and guide in the great work of preparation? Do we not need this witness that we are the children of God? Do we not need this "seal of our inheritance?" "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." "And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him that we may be also glorified together."—Romans chapter 8. Shall we despise the appointed means of preparation and thereby grieve the Holy Spirit? No; let us accept, without reserve, every word of God, and honor every ordinance of his in the letter and spirit thereof, and thereby be enabled to read our title clear to eternal life, through Jesus Christ. C. DERRY.

"CONSTITUTIONAL LAW."

WHAT IS IT?

I ENQUIRED of the Lord instead of Mr. Thatcher's argument, and the answer came not only direct but perfectly satisfactory, namely, That law of the land which does not prohibit nor conflict with the law of God, is to be known and kept as constitutional. And consequently the Saints may know that the law that forbids polygamy upon this land is a Constitutional Law, and doubly binding on the Saints. For not less than twice, and in two periods of time, upon this land, God has said: "There shall not any man have save it be one wife." Therefore, the Courts may affix a penalty and punish for such transgression.

J. S. C.

A FEW ITEMS ABOUT THE DEVIL.

GOD has plainly warned us by his words, by his Spirit, by his Son and by the apostles, that in the last days the devil would work in a manner to deceive the people. From the very beginning, God has warned man of this great power of Satan; and in 2d Thessalonians, 2d chapter, God, through his servant Paul, has told us that just before Christ's second advent into the world, Satan would try by all his power (all his spirits or angels) to deceive the world of mankind; and this, too, before Christ was to come. Paul calls it "strong delusion," and says God would send it to them because they would not receive the love of the truth.

Now where does the strong part of the delusion come in? Right where they claim to be the spirits of the dead. It is not in performing miracles; for truly they do perform miracles. We have, right here in Independence, in the Opera House, the greatest display of power: they materialize bodies of nearly every kind, even to flowers. Guitars and harps are played in mid-air. Hands are seen with flowers in them. In fact, everything which has ever been performed—tables raised six feet high.

If they have this great power, why can not they remain in their materialized bodies with us? Because, God only suffers them to go so far in this matter, until the time comes when Satan will sit in the temple of God, and try to prove to the world that he is God. The world is now going after this great power of unrighteousness, and has great pleasure in it, because it is suited to people in a worldly sense, and is more suited to the carnal mind than the truth of God. It gives them the "broad road" to walk in, and saves all alike, the moral and the profane, all are saved alike in the spirit world. And after all, they say there is a God, but none have ever seen him, nor know anything about him. Now in this they lie, for if none have ever seen him and know nothing about him, they have no evidence that there is a God. God is the first power, the devil is the second. God says that by his word (his Son) he created all things which are or have been. God is a spirit, so is the devil. God created all the spirits; but the devil made himself the enemy of all righteousness by rebelling against God, and seeking the honor and power of God as Supreme Ruler of heaven. He was cast out, but still tries to make himself the great ruling power. His greatest effort will be when he sits in the temple of God, and tries to prove that he is God.

Why has he not attempted to prove that he is God before now? Here is the reason Paul gives: "Now ye know what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time." Ever since he was cast out of heaven and became that "old serpent," the devil has been preparing to accomplish his great purpose of overthrowing God, and taking his kingdom from him.

I will give the proof of the existence of the two powers. Never has God shown his power, without Satan's showing his also. It were needless to go back to the days of Moses, when by his miracles the devil tried to overthrow the work of God, or to the days of Christ; for in our own day we see and know of both powers at work. Its votaries say that spiritualism is the cause of all miracles, or the source of all spiritual manifestations. I admit that devils have power to perform wonders; but I know, also, that God suffers them to do these things that men may be tried, and that God also has his work going on; for he has sent, is at present sending, and will continue to send his angels to men, and God's angels do not deny the power of Satan, but warn us against him and his angels. John says there are many spirits gone out into the world to deceive the world. I say I know his statement is true, for I know of both powers. One class of angels leads men to free-love, polygamy, elopement of husbands and wives with paramours, murder of men and women, and causes persons to travel and exhibit their powers to make money. But God forbids any one's boasting of mighty faith; he shows us that we are dependent on him for all things, and requires us to forsake all evil, and to resist all the temptations which the devil sets before us, which, if we do not, we will be led into them as others are. God requires us to conform to the laws which he has given through his son, and gives us great promises if we hold out faithful to the end.

But you may ask how I know of these promises of God. Let me say that God has given us surer witness than all classes of evil spirits combined can give. He has taken men in his Spirit, and has shown them his power and a part of his glory; he has also showed them all the power and glory of the devil, who has power because he is a spirit. The devil retains his power, in common with his angels, though he is greater in power than they are, because he was greater in authority before he rebelled and lost his standing as the cherub of heaven. Therefore, being a leader and a ruler, he is spoken of as the prince of the power (or spirits) of the air. I will go further, and assert that God has always commanded his servants to write his revelations. He has manifested himself to them in order to make them his witnesses, and they have testified of God in every past age, as we do in this age of the world; they also knew of the power of Satan as we do; they came in contact with the power (or spirits) of the devil as we do; for the great power of the devil is this: the third part of the spirits who were in heaven. Just think of it! Reflect upon the great multitude who have taken bodies, then think that only two-thirds have the right to take to themselves bodies—the other third cast out of heaven, having become the angels of the devil. Then think what we have to contend with! Keep us from the powers of darkness, O God!

Miscellaneous.

MARRIED.

BLAKELY.—ARNOLD.—At the home of sister Mary Arnold, grandmother of the bride, Plano, Kendall county, Illinois, December 23d, 1886, by Elder Joseph Smith, Bro. Charles Albert Blakely and Sr. Florence Edith Arnold—all of Plano. Sr. Norman Blakely, mother of the groom, arrived from her home near Bothwell, Ontario, and was present at the nuptial ceremony.

BRUNSON — STRICKLAND.—At the Saints' Church, Plano, Kendall county, Illinois, in the evening of December 23d, 1886, by Elder Wentworth Vickery, Bro. Manson Diton Brunson and Sr. Elizabeth Nicena Strickland, all of Plano.

DIED.

LOVELL.—In the Greenville branch, near Lamoni, Iowa, December 22d, 1886, of lung fever, two children of Bro. and Sr. Nephi Lovell, namely, Anne Elizabeth and Mary Christina, the former aged 4 years, 11 months and 15 days, and the latter 3 years, 2 months and 8 days. They were buried at Lamoni in one grave. The funeral sermon was preached by Bro. H. A. Stebbins. The loss of two children in one day was a most bitter bereavement.

JONES.—At Davis City, Iowa, at three o'clock on Sunday morning, December 26th, 1886, sister Elizabeth Jones, aged 81 years, 4 months and 27 days. She was born in Manchester, England; received the gospel there some forty years ago, subsequently emigrated to Utah, and from there escaped to California, where she heard of the Reorganized Church, and was baptized March 19th, 1864, by Bro. H. H. Morgan, and was confirmed by Bro. Glauod Rodger at Washington Corners. Removed to Decatur county, Iowa, in 1875. She continued faithful in her adherence to the gospel as restored from heaven, and never missed attendance at the house of the Lord unless illness prevented her from going. Her last sickness was brief, and she departed in peace, being fully conscious and able to give instructions concerning her burial. According to her wish she was buried at Lamoni. The funeral sermon was preached by Bro. H. A. Stebbins, and Bro. Ebenezer Robinson followed with some remarks about her devotion and constancy even unto death.

Far from my native land to-day,

I lie upon my dying bed;

No kindred lingers near me now;

But friends will soothe my aching head.

What will it matter when I'm gone

Who watches my last moments here.

What matter when I'm laid to rest,

Who sheds the mourner's bitter tear.

I'll leave this earthly home of mine,

And from its cares forever free

I'll cross the portals of the tomb,

Where Jesus waits to welcome me.

DOLLIE RODGER.

HILLIS.—At Independence, Kansas, October 8th, 1885, of consumption, sister Belle Hillis. Sister Hillis was born in Maryland, September 27th, 1854, was baptized by Elder Delong at Vassar, Michigan, April, 1883. She came to Bay City on a visit, and heard and obeyed the truth before she came home.

Over the river they beckon to me,

Loved ones who've crossed to the farther side.

The gleam of their snowy robes I see,

But their voices are lost in the dashing tide.

There's one with ringlets of sunny gold,

And eyes the reflection of heaven's own blue;

She crossed in the twilight gray and cold,

And the pale mist hid her from mortal view.

We saw not the angels who met her there:—

The gates of the city we could not see,—

Over the river, over the river,

My sister stands waiting to welcome me.

FROM HER SISTER.

REUNION.

The committee appointed at last reunion to make arrangements for the one to be held in the fall of 1887, met at Logan, Iowa, pursuant to an appointment, on Tuesday, November 30th, 1886. The committee organized by electing P. Cadwell chairman, J. W. Chatburn vice-chairman, and Wm. C. Cadwell secretary for the ensuing year. It was decided to have the reunion commence on or about the first of October, 1887, the exact date to be fixed hereafter. Several propositions were submitted, but the one from Harlan, Iowa, being so much better than all others, it was decided to locate the meeting there. Brn. C. A. Beebe, H. N. Hansen, W. W. Whiting, J. W. Chatburn, and P. Cadwell, of the committee, were present, being all of the committee but J. C. Crabb, who was prevented from being present by the severe storm prevailing. It is felt by the committee that the selection of location is a good one, and that it will contribute materially to the success of the coming meeting. Further information will be given as to rates of transportation, and regulations governing on the grounds, &c., &c., in due time.

WEBB CITY BRANCH.

The name of the branch known as Center Creek, has been changed to Webb City. By order of said branch October 17th, 1886,

BISHOP'S AGENT.

Owing to a vacancy occurring by the death of Bro. Robert Thrutchley as Bishop's agent in the North-east Missouri district, and Bro. John T. THE CHICAGO TIMES.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1887.

THE DAILY TIMES.

The experience of the past has demonstrated that the west requires and will liberally sustain a first-class newspaper such as THE TIMES—a journal that spares no necessary expense in the collection of the news of the world, and that gives an ample presentation of the events of each day as they occur. It is strictly within the bounds of truth to assert that THE TIMES in all its editions is the most complete, comprehensive, instructive, and entertaining journal published on the American continent; and care will be taken to maintain the high reputation that so many years of acknowledged supremacy have brought.

THE TIMES is represented at Washington, New York, and other principal cities of the United States and Europe by correspondents of experience and a high order of ability, who transmit by telegraph or mail accounts of all occurrences, and present intelligent reviews of the political and social events of the time. The vigilance of the correspondents is a guarantee that readers of THE TIMES will be kept fully informed in all that goes to constitute the history of the period.

The city news will be given more fully and adequately than it is possible for any other Chicago paper to present it. All occurrences will be reported, as they have been heretofore, with absolute impartiality. Through no other channel is it practicable to obtain such complete records of the proceedings of deliberative bodies of a national or representative character as through the columns of THE TIMES.

Merchants and bankers throughout the country have long recognized the superiority of THE TIMES' financial and commercial reports. Absolute accuracy and freedom from the influence of traders' cliques and rings will continue to characterize this department of the paper.

Literary features of a high order of merit have been added to the Sunday and Saturday editions, and to these departments some of the best writers in the United States have become regular contributors. These editions rival the best magazines in the excellence of their literary contents.

THE TIMES will continue in the advocacy of sound political principles. It will labor for the emancipation of the country from the burdens of a protective tariff, and give all encouragement to efforts for the improvement of the civil service by its divoicement from party politics. THE TIMES will remain, as it has been for more than twenty years, an aggressively independent journal, acknowledging allegiance to no party, but striving for principle and justice.

In order to meet the demands of its country patrons, arrangements have been made whereby the Sunday edition of THE TIMES is distributed by means of special and fast railway trains to cities within a radius of two hundred miles of Chicago early on the day of its publication.

THE WEEKLY TIMES.

THE WEEKLY TIMES is a complete compendium of the news of the week, with special features of late and trustworthy market reports, and a department of industrial and agricultural intelligence carefully prepared by an editor of long experience, and is printed and mailed the morning of the day on which it is dated. In these respects THE WEEKLY TIMES is superior to any mere agricultural paper, for the field it covers is infinitely more extensive than that which can be occupied by the "one idea" press.

The subscription price of THE WEEKLY TIMES is only $1 per year, postage prepaid. It is not believed that so valuable and comprehensive a library of useful knowledge can be anywhere else obtained for so small a sum. The endeavor will be to make THE WEEKLY a perfect newspaper for farmers and for families to whom it is not convenient to take a daily.

Sample copies will be sent to address on application by letter or otherwise to THE TIMES office, corner Washington street and Fifth avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WHILE we read of cold and wretched weather in nearly all quarters, at Lamoni and vicinity the thermometer has been but little below twenty degrees, there have been no "blizzards," and for the most of the time up to the 5th inst the weather has been bright and pleasant. But we need rain for all purposes.

Bro. R. J. Anthony was at Salt Lake City, Utah, the 28th of December, and writes: "I baptized three to-day." He is in excellent spirits.

Bro. James Burch writes us from Tawas City, Michigan, December 31st. He had preached at Bay City of late, and at Tawas, also at the Glendon settlement, and intended to labor some in Alabaster. He says he could not write, nor read much when he of late came into the church. Strive on Bro. Burch, and if faithful, you will rejoice in the ability to do both with facility and profit.

Please read Bro. James Caffall's reply to our criticism upon his letter for December, 1886. The matter having taken the turn that it has we shall let it rest as it is.

The Fairfield, Nebraska, Herald has kind and commendatory words for Bro. R. M. Elvin in his labors in that place of late.

Bro. George Masters, of Sherodsville, Ohio, writes that God has increased his light and spiritual joys of late.

Bro. W. A. Bennett, writes from Graham, Texas, December 23d of last year. He is with his family in the drouth stricken portion of Texas. No rain has fallen there for three months; wheat is dying for want of it, and the prospects are poor, very poor. Bro. Bennett will be grateful for any little help any who can spare will send him, to aid him to tide through till Spring.

Bro. John J. Billings in a late letter says: "I can't do without the HERALD. I have taken it ever since I joined the church, twenty years."

Bro. C. Scott writes January 2d; "An M. E. man recently made the most unrighteous attack on the faith in all my experience. He traduced the character of the Saints and dealt treacherously with the books. But the Saints are firm."

Sr. Jennette Strauss, of Portsmouth, Iowa, writes: "The HERALD spreads before us a sumptuous meal of every needed variety. Those sermons are indeed a great treat. Its society makes a little heaven for me." Of the HOPE she says, "It is all that could be asked for in its line."

Sister Rachel S. Coates of Dorchester, Nebraska, is, in the way of conversation, aiding the inquiries of some in her neighborhood. The questions and answers respecting baptism in this issue are some of the results of her conversing with an inquirer, and are sent to the HERALD by Sr. Coates for him, of him she writes; "He and his wife are very kind to Latter Day Saints."

Bro. T. J. Hughes of Rhodes writes: "I think the HERALD the best paper I ever read. May the good work go on and increase till the prejudice and opposition shall melt before the glorious truth like snow before the summer sun."

Bro. A. B. Johns of Carson, Nevada, wishes the elders in the Northern Illinois District to call on his friends, brother and sister in Christ, Charles Thomas, who with their family reside on a farm near Catlin, Vermillion county, Illinois. Bro. Johns once knew them in England, and he is anxious for them to learn of the Reorganized Church. Catlin is six miles southwest from Danville, on the railroad leading to Decatur.

Bro. F. C. Hough, of Hearne, Texas, wants the address of Bro. A. J. Cato, so as to forward to him a letter.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

THE following is right in line with what has hitherto appeared, proving that the persecuted Saints, though exiled from their homes and property, proposed only lawful means to obtain redress and redemption.

"LIBERTY, [Mo.,] Feb. 19th, 1834.

To the Hon. John F. Ryland, judge of the fifth circuit, Missouri.

Sir:—Learning that a court of enquiry is to be held in Jackson county, at the next regular term of the circuit court for that county, or that some kind of legal proceedings, is to be commenced for the purpose of obtaining the facts, as far as can be, or bringing to punishment the guilty in that county:

We, therefore, pray your honor to avail yourself of every means in your power to execute the law and make it honorable; and believing that the testimony of some of the members of our church will be important, and deeming it unsafe to risk our persons in that county without a guard, we request that the order from the Executive, already transmitted, may be put in force.

Respectfully, &c.,

EDW'D PARTRIDGE,
A. S. GILBERT,
W. W. PHELPS,
JOHN CORRILL,
JOHN WHITMER.

Another request similar to the above was sent, same date, to Amos Reese, Circuit Attorney.

They also wrote the Judge Advocate, as follows:

LIBERTY, Feb. 19th, 1834.

George Woodward, Judge Advocate in the case of the State of Missouri, vs. Col. Thomas Pitcher.

Sir:—The undersigned request of you, if it be consistent with custom and law, an official copy of the proceedings recorded by you in the above stated case, for the purpose of preservation, as an important link in the history of our unfortunate society.

Respectfully,

W. W. PHELPS,
EDW'D PARTRIDGE,
ALGERNON S. GILBERT.

Here is another historical item which further serves to show the extreme brutality of the Saints' persecutors. The Josiah Sumner mentioned was known to the said Sumner and his family resided near Onawa, the county seat of Monona county, Iowa, a peaceful, honorable, highly esteemed citizen and member of the Reorganized Church.

I, Abigail Leonard, depose and say that on the night of the 20th of February, 1834, in the county of Jackson, and state of Missouri, a company of men, armed with whips and guns, about fifty or sixty in number, came to the house of my husband; among them was John Youngs, Mr. Yocum, Mr. Cantrell, Mr. Patterson, and Mr. Noland. Five of the number entered the house, among them was John Youngs. They ordered my husband to leave the house, threatening to shoot him if he did not. He not complying with their desires, one of the five took a chair and struck him upon the head, knocking him down, and then dragging him out of the house. I in the mean time, begging of them to spare his life, when one of the number called to the others telling them to take me into the house, for I would "overpower every devil of them." Three of the company then approached me, and presenting their guns, declared with an oath, if I did not go in they would blow me through. While this was transpiring, Mr. Patterson jumped upon my husband with his heels; my husband then got up. They stripped his clothes all from him excepting his pantaloons, then five or six attacked him with whips and gunsticks and whipped him till he could not stand but fell to the ground. I then went to them, and took their whips from them. I then called for Mrs. Bruce, who lived in the same house with us, to come and help me carry my husband into the house. When carried in he was very much lacerated and bruised, and unable to lie upon a bed, and was also unable to work for a number of months. Also at the same time and place, Mr. Josiah Sumner was taken from the house, and came in very bloody and bruised from whipping.

(Signed.)

ABIGAIL LEONARD.
Times and Seasons vol. 6, page 1023.

Five days after the foregoing requests were made to Judge Ryland, Circuit Attorney Reese, and Judge Advocate Woodward, the Lord gave, by revelation through Joseph the Seer, those highly important words of command, counsel, explanation and promise, found in section 100 of Doctrine and Covenants, which the reader will do well to now examine with care. Many had been heedless of "the precepts and commandments" given the church, and this was a fruitful cause of the "sore and grievous chastisement" which the Saints were suffering. The Lord said this of their persecutors: "On whom I will pour out my wrath without measure in mine own time." Much of this has already come to pass. In this revelation the Lord instructs the Saints in respect to the conditions, and the only conditions upon which they must overcome, prosper and prevail, namely,—“by hearkening to observe all the words which I, the Lord their God, shall speak unto them.” And on the other hand, he warns them in these words: “But inasmuch as they keep not my commandments, and hearken not to observe all my words, the kingdoms of the world shall prevail against them, for they were set to be a light unto the world, and to be the saviors of men; and inasmuch as they are not the saviors of men, they are as salt that has lost its savor, and is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out and trodden under foot of men.” This is said in view of the then future, as well as the past, for now the Lord proceeds to instruct the Saints in further measures for redress and redemption, but it must be done in the Lord's way, and in the Lord's time; and that way and that time would be made known in “the words” which God would “speak unto” his people through his appointed servants.

The Lord promises that “after much tribulation” the “scattered” saints “shall return to the land of their inheritances and build up the waste places of Zion.” But there must first be an exhibition of divine “power” in reference to that redemption, and in view of that the Lord says: “I will raise up unto my people a man, who shall lead them like as Moses led the children of Israel, for ye are the children of Israel, and of the seed of Abraham; and ye must needs be led out of bondage by power, and with a stretched out arm; and as your fathers were led at the first, even so shall the redemption be.” This leading up to Zion lies yet in the future, and it will be wise to “observe” the word of the Lord in these matters and wait for this Moses man to lead, instead of seeking to lead him. The Lord counsels “the churches” to “send up wise men” to “purchase lands,” as before “commanded;” and he promises that, when this is done, “inasmuch as mine enemies come against you to drive [mob] you from my goodly land, which I have consecrated to be the land of Zion, even from your own lands, after these testimonies which ye have brought before me against them, ye shall curse them; and whomsoever ye curse I will curse; and ye [when all these conditions are complied with] shall avenge [inflict, in a legal way, just punishment.—Webster.] me of mine adversaries.” An effort was then made, in a legal, peaceful way, to send up men and money to assist in establishing the Saints on lands of their own in Jackson and adjoining counties, but for that time they must not have less than “one hundred” men to engage in that work. This, certainly was neither to fight nor to terrorize the Missourians, except, possibly, in self-defence, but rather, (1) to try the faith of the Saints in the latter day work, including the prophetic calling of Joseph the Seer, and, (2) to leave wise men, also the citizens of Missouri and their rulers, without excuse in the final summing up and judgment of the Lord's “marvelous work.” The laws of the nation and of Missouri guaranteed to the Saints, in common with all others, the right of “life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness,” including the right of emigration, the purchase and peaceful possession of lands, of the elective franchise and the worship of God according to the dictates of their own conscience so long as they did not interfere with the natural or guaranteed rights of others. The Saints, also these national and state guarantees, and the faithfulness and integrity of civil rulers,—all were to be tested and proven in connection with the Lord's “marvelous work and a wonder,” the need and wisdom of which would appear in due time. Will the Saints prove faithful to their trust! Will the Nation and the State be faithful to their pledges! Will wise men and rulers prove just and true to their several trusts! We shall see further on; for the Infinite God, for his own glory, for the discipline of his saints, and to teach wise men and rulers the indispensable need of exact and even handed justice, equity and mercy to all, will bring all to the test and “plead” with them in view of both the present and the future; for God is laying the foundations deep and broad and strong, for the dispensation of the fulness of times in which his word and his work are to go forth to all nations, to the Gentiles first and then to the Jews; therefore his saints must be tried and disciplined and educated under the present and eternal law of God's church and kingdom; and the institutions and rulers and people of our Nation founded in the wisdom and power of God, they too, must be tried and tested in every part essential to the establishment and building up of the church and kingdom of God within it, that all might be harmoniously adjusted together, each doing its proper work and fulfilling its divine destiny, mutually aiding and blessing each the other, each being, in its respective department, the light of the world to prepare the way and usher in the universal, peaceful, and all-glorious reign of Christ as “King of Kings and Lord of Lords.”

Suffering and humility and tribulation are conditions in which are conceived and whence are born the purest, holiest, and grandest designs and achievements. Through these the church and the Nation needed to pass in order to be educated up to the wonderful possibilities attainable by the principles and laws on which they are founded and by which they must be governed, hence the trying occasions—made such by the errors and evils of men— which infinite wisdom has chosen and appointed by which and through which to manifest the excellency and power of the government of God in all things, and by which to purify, enlighten, exalt and glorify the willing and obedient ones.

In what will yet appear, the persecutions of the Saints will be seen to be a means overruled of God for their chastening and goodly progression, and by which to bring into clearer view the essential excellencies of the law of the Lord in respect to both the Church and the Nation.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Willie Queen writes from Rhodes, Iowa, January 3d:

“I was baptized six years ago into the Campbellite Church, and was baptized three years ago this coming March, by Bro. Frank McDowell; since that time I have received more light than I ever did in that church from which I came, and may God ever help me to walk in such way as to show to the world that I am a true Latter Day Saint.”

WE answer the following questions under protest, for the reason that there may be many things that are permissible, or necessary for which there are no specific provisions in the law:

Ques.—Is it legal and according to church law to nominate absent persons for branch officers in a branch business meeting, some of those absent nominees inactive for months or years, and very seldom seen in the meetings, but no charges against such?

Ans.—Yes. It is quite often done, the privilege of explanation being reserved to the absentees.

Q.—If it is legal, where is the law for such proceeding, as all branches are to be governed by the law of the church?

A.—Propriety, or necessity for such nominations is quite sufficient law.

Q.—If a branch officer desires to resign from a certain office in which he has labored for an indefinite time, and should he give a sufficient reason for offering his resignation. Is there a law to compel him to continue in that office, or that he must be nominated among other officers of the same kind, and run the same chance as the other nominees for the same office that he wishes to resign?

A.—There is no law on the matter; it is a question for the hour, and to be determined by the conditions surrounding the case at the time. No one can be compelled to serve.

Q.—Is it binding upon all members to vote on any question that comes before the house, either in favor or against?

A.—It is so understood in the rules of all deliberative bodies; though it is usual in church meetings, and promiscuous assemblages not to notice the fact that all do not vote, it being a sort of legal fiction that all do vote whenever a question is put. It is a matter of rule for each branch to settle for itself.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

THE Business Manager hands us the following, which should be carefully observed by all who send money to the Herald Office. Please put your news items on one sheet of paper, and business items on another. This will save delay, confusion and mistakes.

In sending remittances for books and subscriptions, send Post-office Money Orders, Postal Notes, or Express Orders payable at Lamoni, Iowa. If Bank Drafts are sent, have them payable at Chicago, or New York. If payable at other places it causes delay and expense to us to collect them. Foreign money orders should be made payable at Leon, Decatur county, Iowa.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is baptism an outward sign of an inward grace, or is it to wash away sins?

Ans.—Baptism is not technically speaking, an "outward and visible sign of an inward and invisible grace," though without the motive within, no man would consent to be baptized. It is the "answer of a good conscience" only in this sense, that if a man become conscious that it is a duty he owes to God to follow the Savior in baptism, he can never answer his conscience clear until he is baptized. From the answer of Ananias to Saul of Tarsus, "And now, why tarriest thou? (brother Saul)? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord."—Acts 22:16. And the statement made by Paul in his letter to the Ephesians in reference to Christ's work for the church, "that he [Christ] might sanctify and cleanse it [the church] with the washing of water by the word," (commandment). Eph. 5:26. In connection with Mark 1:4; Luke 3:4; Acts 2:38. These all show that sins were remitted, or washed away by baptism; and that this was the object of its being enjoined.

Q.—How do you explain Joshua 3:8, as compared with last verse of same chapter? Does brink of Jordan and midst of Jordan mean the same?

A.—Exactly as it is stated in the 15th and 16th verses; that when the priests who bore the ark containing the covenant reached the edge of the waters of the river Jordan, God wrought a miracle, the waters receded from the track pursued by the hosts of Israel under Joshua; the priests bore the ark into the open breach between the waters above and below them in the course of the stream, and there stood in the "midst of Jordan," not at the "brim" of the waters, nor the brink of Jordan. "Brink" is not the same as "in the midst of."

Q.—Why are prophets not needed now, as much as they were in ancient times?

A.—We know of no reason why they are not.

Q.—How does Joseph Smith know that he is a prophet, and that the Lord wishes him to be the leader of the Latter Day Saints Church?

A.—From the revelation of God through the Spirit to him; confirmed by a similar testimony to many others, during many years of ministerial labor in connection with the work of his father.

Q.—What evidence have we that we are saved? Do we get it direct from Christ, and have a conscious evidence that we are saved?

A.—After a due obedience to the command which requires baptism, through which sins are remitted, the candidate receives the laying on of hands for the conferring of the Holy Ghost, which John states is the "Comforter" the "Spirit of Truth," which when he comes will "testify of" Christ, that "Jesus is the Christ." It is by this testimony that those who obey unto life shall know that they are in a condition to be saved, and by which they are saved if they continue in his doctrine.

Q.—Aside from the Bible have we a conscious evidence that we are sinners?

A.—We think that the evidence surrounding us indicate that men are inclined to sin. It requires the evidence of the Bible, however, to show us how "all men are concluded in sin." All men are born with some part of the light which lighteth every man, and in this light, consciousness of sin exists, varying in degree according to the sphere, circumstances and conditions surrounding and modifying the lives of men. To answer categorically Yes, or no to the above question we can not.

Q.—Is it the duty of the Saints to meet for worship at the regularly appointed meetings of the branch in which they hold membership?

A.—Yes.

Q.—Are there any good reasons why Saints should habitually absent themselves from such meetings that will be acceptable either in time or eternity?

A.—Can not answer as to the nature of reasons that may or may not be acceptable in eternity. There are reasons that should be acceptable in time, such as sickness, inability imposed by circumstances beyond the control of the member. There are not many reasons that faithful members would care to state in excuse for the loss incurred in staying away from meetings.

Q.—Is it proper for the presiding officers of branches to urge the establishment and regular attendance of meetings by the member?

A.—Most decidedly—yes.

Q.—Can the Saints claim all the spiritual blessings in branch organizations under the presidency of the Aaronic priesthood as under the Melchisedek?

A.—They may claim all except those resulting from the laying on of hands for the conferring of spiritual blessings. The usual gifts enjoyed in worship may all attend the meetings presided over by priest, teacher, or deacon.

Q.—Whose duty is it in a branch to prepare the emblems for sacrament?

A.—It is the duty of whoever may be intrusted with the care of the sacramental service, goblets, plates, napkins, etc. If no provision is made it should devolve upon the deacon. The wine should have been provided for in good season by the branch. If prepared for on each occasion, provision for the purchase of material should be made by the branch, under direction of the presiding elder.

Q.—If persons in the church commit adultery, causing a separation between husband and wife, can the branch restore them to fellowship?

A.—If the act complained of is the first offence they may be forgiven, if they be fully repentant. If it is the second offence, the law provides that they can not be forgiven by the church.

Q.—Can a presiding elder of a branch lawfully call a council of the brethren of the branch, to appoint a branch officer at the close of a meeting, without having previously announced it?

A.—Yes, if no rule governing such action has been adopted by the branch.

Q.—Can a presiding elder appoint meetings without the consent of the branch?

A.—Yes; it is his duty to see that regular meetings are kept up, and extra sessions provided for if emergency requires, or wisdom directs.

ELDER JOSEPH CLAPP, who has recently returned from Utah to his home at Deer Lodge, Montana, in writing of the Utah Mormons says,—“I am astonished at the spiritual degeneracy of that people in the last thirty years.” Bro. Clapp is the son of the late Benjamin L. Clapp, one of the active ministers in the days of Joseph the Seer. He settled in Utah for a time, and seeing the great departure from the faith taught by Joseph the Seer and the Saints up to 1844, he went to California and died there some years after.

Brother Clapp, when at Ogden, met a Mr. Stoddard, who had left the Brighamites and turned Anti-Mormon lecturer. This man says: “The object of Mormonism from its very start was to overthrow this government.” Bro. Clapp called on him afterwards and told him quietly he had better stick to what he knew to be facts, and that history would not warrant him (Stoddard) in the above statement. Mr. Stoddard replied,—“Man, I was born among the Mormons.” “So was I,” said Bro. Clapp, “and the difference between us is,” continued Bro. Clapp, “that I was born twenty years before you, and I know the Church was organized agreeable to the laws of the country, and that the doctrine and covenants of the church teach loyalty to civil governments and submission to civil rulers; and that in this respect the Church took more decided grounds than any other religious body.” And yet the next time this young aspirant took the stand, he rehashed the same falsehoods. The Saints will do well to look out for Mr. Stoddard and birds of his feather.

THE DATE OF THE CRUCIFIXION.

THE following will be interesting reading to the Saints. We quote from the Christian Leader, of November 11th, 1886:

Considerable importance is attached to ascertaining the precise day on which our Lord suffered and died on the cross of Calvary. If the generally-held opinion be correct, that he was crucified on Friday, then great difficulty is experienced in proving that He rose from the dead on the third day, or on the morning of the first day of the week. We know that this opinion has been made an occasion of scoffing on the part of those who are opposed to Christianity, and as we have read several articles which have attempted to square this opinion with truth, and, as it appeared to us unsuccessfully, we propose to submit to our readers some results of recent study on this question, which we believe will assist in throwing light upon the subject.

As a necessary introduction to the proper consideration of our theme, we have to notice the fact, which is now generally well known, that the year 33 A. D., supposed to be the year in which Christ died, is not supported by any evidence worthy of notice. In a valuable work, Saville's Fulfilled Prophecy, (to which we are indebted for much of our information), we ascertain that our common era rests upon the computation made by Dionysius Exiguus, a Roman monk of the sixth century, and that his chronology was not adopted generally until the twelfth century. It is sufficient to say here that it is now universally admitted that Exiguus made an error in his calculation, variously estimated at from five to seven years. The question arises, Have we any reliable data which will enable us to arrive at a correct conclusion in reference to the year in which Christ died? We believe we have, and as we think that in fixing the year we practically settle the question, we submit such evidence as we have been able to gather to the consideration of our readers.

All the Christian writers of the first few centuries, with the exception of Epiphanes, are unanimous in their testimony that the Messiah died when the Gemini were Consuls of the city of Rome, which answers to our year 29. We give the testimony of three of these writers:

The Gospel of Nicodemus.—"The death of Christ took place in the 19th year of Tiberius Cæsar, Emperor of the Romans, on the eighth of the calends of April, during the consulship of Rufus and Rubellius (the Gemini), in the fourth year of the 201st Olympiad." Thus placing the time of the crucifixion during the consulship of the Gemini, which fixes it unalterably to the year A. D. 29.

Justin Martyr does not state the year in which Christ died, but makes a statement which is worthy of note: "That Christ did these wonders of curing the dumb and raising the dead, etc., you can learn from the Acts of Pontius Pilate." Tertullian, writing half a century later, appeals with similar confidence to these Acta Pilate. In his "Apology," or defense of Christianity against heathenism, addressed to the rulers of the Roman Empire, when speaking of the crucifixion, and of our Lord having predicted it as the Hebrew prophets had before predicted the same thing, says: "At the moment of Christ's death the meridian sun was withdrawn. Those who did not know that this was predicted concerning the Christ, thought that it was an eclipse; and reason not allowing this (on account of the moon being full, or nearly so at the time of the Passover), they denied, although you have in your Archives a relation of that phenomenon."

We refer to the "Acts of Pilate" for the purpose of showing that up to the fifth century, at any rate, Christian writers had an opportunity of verifying for themselves, from the Archives of Rome, the facts concerning Christ's death. Tertullian was in this position, and he tells us that Christ was crucified under Tiberius Cæsar, during the consulate of Rubellius and Rufus (the Gemini), thus corroborating the testimony of the Gospel of Nicodemus.

Augustine, Bishop of Hippo, in Africa, when writing at the close of the fourth century, says:

"Christ died in the consulship of the Gemini, on the eighth of the calends of April, and arose again on the third day." The testimony of many other writers might be added, but as they all agree in substance, it is needless to give them. Suffice it to say that the concurring testimony is that Christ died in the year in which the Gemini were Consuls of Rome, a year that indisputably corresponds with our year 29.

It may be asked, How was it the change or error came to be perpetuated and authorized? Briefly this: Like many other errors it was perpetuated and authorized through the action of the Papacy, of which Daniel spoke when he prophesied that it would "think to change times and laws." Pope Victor haughtily excommunicated those who refused to observe Easter as the Church of Rome did.

Having now, as we think, fixed the year in which Christ died, it remains for us to ascertain the day on which that event occurred. We are able to do this by reference to "Ferguson's Astronomical Tables," calculated with a view to ascertain the day for several years, on which the Passover was kept:

A.D.	1 of Nisan.	14 of Nisan.	17 of Nisan.
		(Passover).
28.	March 14.	Sat. March 27	Tues., March 30.
29.	March 4.	Thurs., Mar. 17.	Sun., March 20.
30.	March 22.	Tues., April 4.	Friday, April 7.
31.	March 12.	Sun., March 25.	Wed., March 28.
32.	March 1.	Fri., March 14.	Monday, Mar. 17.
33.	March 19.	Wed., April 1.	Sat., April 4.
34.	March 8.	Sun., Mar. 21.	Wed., March 24.

It will be seen according to the above table, assuming that Christ died in A.D. 29, the 14th day of Nisan fell on a Thursday, and that the third day brings us to the first day of the week, or Sunday, the day on which Christ arose from the dead. If this position be correct, and we believe it is, it removes any difficulty out of the way and saves us from the unedifying task of trying to prove as true the error which was perpetrated by ignorance and dogmatism in the dark days of Christianity, and perpetuated afterward by slavery to custom. We leave the matter for the intelligent consideration of our readers, and if by investigation they consider the position we have taken to be a right one, and find themselves thereby assisted and edified, we have accomplished our purpose and are satisfied. If, on the other hand, it can be shown that our position is wrong, we will be glad to receive correction and instruction.—D., in the Australian Christian Watchman.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Hadst thou staid I must have fled!
That was what the vision said."

WE present the readers of the Column this week with a selection from Longfellow, and we have a purpose in our mind in so doing. We will not infringe upon the space of the Column this week, for the selection itself is lengthy, but we ask our friends to read and ponder upon it; realizing that the poet who weaves his heaven inspired fancies into verse, is sent by the loving Master to be our teacher; and if we are wise in our day and generation we will cull lessons of usefulness from every wayside flower that blossoms along the pathway of our life. We need these lessons, every one, for the helps which we get in life are like the manna by which the encampment of Israel was fed, "Just enough at a time for one day," "This day our daily bread."

THE LEGEND BEAUTIFUL.

"Hadst thou stayed, I must have fled.
That is what the Vision said.

In his chamber all alone,
Kneeling on the floor of stone,
Prayed the Monk in deep contrition
For his sins of indecision,
Prayed for greater self-denial,
In temptation and in trial;
It was noonday by the dial,
And the Monk was all alone.

Suddenly, as if it lightened,
An unwonted splendor brightened
All within him and without him
In that narrow cell of stone;
And he saw the Blessed Vision
Of our Lord, with light Elysian
Like a vesture wrapped about him,
Like a garment round him thrown.

Not as crucified and slain,
Not in agonies of pain,
Not with bleeding hands and feet,
Did the Monk his Master see;
But as in the village street,
In the house or harvest-field,
Halt and lame and blind he healed
When he walked in Galilee.

In an attitude imploring,
Hands upon his bosom crossed,
Wondering, worshipping, adoring,
Kneelt the Monk in rapture lost,
Lord, he thought, in heaven that reignest,
Who am I, that thus thou deignest
To reveal thyself to me?
Who am I, that from the center
Of thy glory, thou shouldst enter
This poor cell, my guest to be?

Then amid his exaltation
Loud the convent bell appalling,
From its belfry calling, calling,
Rang through court and corridor,
With persistent iteration
He had never heard before.

It was now the appointed hour
When alike, in shine or shower,
Winter's cold or summer's heat,
To the convent portals came,
All the blind and halt and lame,
All the beggars of the street,
For their daily dele of food
Dealt them by the brotherhood;
And their almoner was he,
Who upon his bended knee,
Wrapped in silent ecstasy,
Of divinest self-surrender,
Saw the Vision and the Splendor.

Deep distress and hesitation
Mingled with his adoration;
Should he go, or should he stay?
Should he leave the poor to wait
Hungry at the convent gate,
Till the Vision passed away?
Should he slight his heavenly guest,
Slight this visitant celestial,
For a crowd of ragged, bestial
Beggars at the convent gate?
Would the Vision there remain?
Would the Vision come again?

Then a voice within his breast
Whispered, audibly and clear,
As if to the outward ear:
"Do thy duty; that is best;
Leave unto thy Lord the rest!"

Straightway to his feet he started,
And with longing look intent
On the Blessed Vision bent,
Slowly from his cell departed,
Slowly on his errand went.

At the gate the poor were waiting,

Looking through the iron grating,
With that terror in the eye
That is only seen in those Who amid their wants and woes
Hear the sound of doors that close,
And of feet that pass them by;
Grown familiar with disfavor,
Grown familiar with the savor
Of the bread by which men die!
But to-day, they knew not why,
Like the gate of Paradise
Seemed the convent gate to rise,
Like a sacrament divine
Seemed to them the bread and wine,
In his heart the Monk was praying,
Thinking of the homeless poor,
What they suffer and endure;
What we see not, what we see;
And the inward voice was saying:
"Whatsoever thing thou doest
To the least of mine and lowest,
That thou doest unto me!"

Unto me! but had the Vision
Come to him in beggar's clothing,
Come a mendicant imploring,
Would he then have knelt adoring,
Or have listened with derision,
And have turned away with loathing?
Thus his conscience put the question,
Full of troublesome suggestion,
As at length, with hurried pace,
Toward his cell he turned his face,
And beheld the convent bright
With a supernatural light,
Like a luminous cloud expanding
Over floor and wall and ceiling.

But he paused with awe-struck feeling
At the threshold of his door,
For the Vision still was standing
As he left it there before,
When the convent bell appalling,
From its belfry calling, calling,
Summoned him to feed the poor.
Through the long hour intervening
It had waited his return,
And he felt his bosom burn,
Comprehending all the meaning,
When the Blessed Vision said,
"Hast thou stayed, I must have fled?"

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 5th, 1887.

Dear Sister Frances:—I like the Mothers' Home Column very much, and have received instruction from it, and been made happy in reading it. I pray for its success, and I hope it will be kept up by the sisters. I love to read it, and so do all the sisters of Boon Creek Branch; there are not many of us. I will close my short letter by wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Your sister in the gospel,

RACHEL EVANS.

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Dec. 15th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Seeing so many cheering letters in the Home Column and such good instruction to the sisters, makes me feel that each and every one in the fold of God can do something for the advancement of his work; he says, "Work while it is called to-day." He wants us to be diligent, faithful workers, and I feel like casting in my mite for my birthday that is past,

I feel to rejoice in the work of the gospel. May God bless all his Saints and servants everywhere.

ELIZABETH CAZIER.

Dear Sister Frances: I have not words to express the joy and comfort I receive in reading the dear Herald and the Mothers' Home Column. The Herald is the only gospel preacher that visits this part of the country. We are living in western Nebraska, and I do not know of any Latter Day Saints near. Oh how my heart yearns for the society of the Saints and the sound of the true and everlasting gospel once more. I belong to the class called scattered members. Though I have been isolated from the church over eight years, I do not feel like ceasing the conflict, but feel to press on and on, until I gain the victory, even life everlasting. Think kindly of the scattered ones of the fold, for there are many that dearly love this cause, whom circumstances over which they seemed to have no control have placed them where they can not hear the gospel preached, or enjoy the society of the Saints. For all such I would kindly ask you to pray. Ever praying for the cause of Zion to prosper.

A SISTER.

We wish that the sisters in writing to us would give their names in full. We will not sign it to their letters or articles if they do not wish us to; but it is better that we have it, as in many instances we think best to write to the individuals themselves. If we as individuals will walk humbly and faithfully before our God, we can with full confidence leave the result in his hands, and can rest assured that though we were at the nethermost parts of the earth, Christ at his coming will know his own. If we like Daniel will honor our God, by keeping his law in a strange land and among an idolatrous people, God will honor us and bring us off more than conquerors, for his name's sake. As the followers of Christ we must become thoroughly imbued with the conviction that we are not here to seek our own pleasure, to do our own will; but having enlisted in the army of the Lord, we must know no will save his, and be willing to go just where, and serve just as, the best interests of the cause may demand. Think for a moment what kind of an army it would be in which no general was at the head, no officers in command of regiments and brigades, with other officers subject to their bidding.—"I am a man in authority, having under me soldiers, and I say to this one, Go, and he goeth, and to another, Come, and he cometh, and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it."

Do you not see the confidence displayed here? And well the Centurion might feel this confidence, for at the name of Rome the governments of the earth trembled. But think you the Centurion would have had such confidence in the strong arm of his government sustaining him, if he had been an unfaithful servant of that government? Nay; for the Savior taught, and all men know, that a house divided against itself can not stand. Let us choose whom we will serve, and having chosen our General, let us be faithful to his colors and submit cheerfully to his appointments, and then, whether we are upon the extreme outposts or within the walls of the city, He will extend his watchcare to us, and his protecting arm will be made bare in our defense. Soldiers in the army of the Lord can not afford to sleep at their post! We are in an enemy's country, and if the law of the land affixes the death penalty to such an offense, it is morally certain that spiritual death will follow the violation of this same spiritual law; and if there be need of vigilance inside the camp, what shall we say of the outpost? Of the soldiers upon picket duty? Only this,

"We must all be valiant soldiers

UNION, Utah, Dec. 12th.

Sister Frances:—When I saw the proposal for each sister sending as many pennies as she was old I thought it was a good idea and thought I would join the list. I have belonged to the Reorganized Church for fifteen years. We have a little branch here; my husband is presiding elder. We had a visit from Brn. Anthony and Clapp which we enjoyed. I feel good in the work and hope it will prosper. Your sister in the faith.

SARAH SMITH.

SELF EXAMINATION!

Am I working for the "Master"
Striving with both mind and might?
Am I laying up in heaven—
Treasures precious in his sight?
Am I keeping his commandments?
In him putting all my trust?
Heeding ev'ry admonition
To be faithful—to be just?
While I ask myself these questions,
Lord, assist me now to see
Each mistake—each fault and failure
I have made in serving thee.
Father, my desire is ever
Thee and thine to truly serve;
With my heart and with my substance
I would naught from thee reserve.
Then, dear sisters, of the "Column,"
In our struggle to be just,
Let us place our contributions
Where our gold will never rust.
Tho' it seem to us but little,
Often as the "widow's mite,
Oh, remember, it is precious
In a loving Savior's sight.

KATE CURRY.

THOUGHTS OF MY HEART.

PRaise ye the Lord, for He is our protector and our guide. By His Spirit we shall be directed in the truth, and into the light. Blessed Savior, Son of God, our helper and redeemer, Thou will guide our path to thy heavenly home, and let us become as useful star lights while on this earth, to bring others into thy light.

SISTER MINNIE LEMBURG.

WHEELER, Iowa, Dec. 26th.

Sister Frances:—It is past my birth-day, and too long to wait for another, for I may be beyond the veil before another birth-day; so would miss my reward for helping in the good cause, be it ever so little. Oh, that I could send ten times as much; it would be cheerfully sent. But we, sisters, have to be patient and learn to be thankful for small favors.

We have no preaching here this winter thus far, but are looking for Bro. Kemp next week. The different sects have been holding meetings all around us, but it is like husks to my hungry soul to listen to their preaching; to hear them twist the scriptures to suit their different creeds. I can but feel sorry for them and exclaim, "Oh how blinded are their eyes!" The glorious plan of salvation, how grateful ought we to be that we have ever been led to embrace it!

Dear sisters let us strive to live as becometh Saints, and be ready when Christ cometh; with oil in our lamps, and our lamps trimmed and burning. Like Sister Hyde, I feel the lack of patience to do the Savior's bidding at all times, and to guide my children by example as well as precept. How prone we are to err, and faint by the way. I know that God is able to strengthen and help us if we in our dark moments do not fail to ask Him. Let us bear each others burdens. It will help us on to the better life, to know that others share our sorrows and our delights, and that one can talk with each other with our pen. Knowing that all things will work together for good to those who love the appearing of the Savior, I remain your sister, AMANDA WOOD.

JONESPORT, Me., Dec. 9th.

Dear Sisters:—I read and enjoy the "Home Column" very much. I find much in it to aid and encourage me. I have three children left to my sole care, and I desire to train them up in the right way. Being in poor health I can not always do by them as I would like to, but I try to do the best I can, and leave the rest to my Father in heaven who careth for us all. Although I have been chastened, yet I receive many blessings at God's hands, and have much to be thankful for. I know there is wisdom in all his dealings with us, and his ways are not our ways; so whatever comes I want to be able to say, "Thy will, not mine be done." I desire to live here in that way that will be acceptable to God, that I may be worthy of a place in the kingdom.

Your sister in the faith,

MARY A. CUMMINGS.

EMERSON, Iowa, Dec. 12th.

Dear Sister:—I am not tired of the work in which we are engaged, for I know it is the work of the Lord. I have had testimony that it was true. I have three children that I would like to bring up in the good cause of Christ.

We have Sunday School every Sunday, and brother H. Kemp preaches for us sometimes. Brother E. L. Kelley was with us and preached some good sermons for us. My prayer is that we may keep the commandments, that we may ever retain the Spirit, and have a right to the tree of life.

Yours in the gospel,

SARAH L. CLITES.

MAY, Nebraskā,

Sy. Frances:—I have thought for some time that I would write to you, and as I have a new subscriber for the Hope I will enclose a few lines with the note. I—with so many others—enjoy the "Home Column," very much, and wish it success; also the Hope. I find the lessons instructive and interesting to the children. During the warmer weather we had Sabbath School in the school house, but since it has been colder we have had it at my father's house. I have lately read the "Life of Joseph," written by Lucy Smith. I think it a very interesting book. When I read how the Saints suffered at that early time it made me feel that I ought not to complain of my life's trials, for not many of us have as many as the Saints had at that time; neither are we persecuted as they were; although many may hate us for the truth's sake, yet it is nothing compared with what existed in those days.

I feel that I ought to live better and try to let my light shine, that those who are in darkness may see it; for I have not always done so. I can see now how many crooked steps I have taken, how many times I have done wrong; but I hope and pray that I may do better in the future. I ask an interest in your prayers that I may continue faithful, so that I may meet with those loved ones who have gone before. Ever praying for the welfare of the Home Column and Hope, I will close for this time.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

TRENA M. SORENSEN.

NORTH PLYMOUTH, Mass.,

December 13th.

Sister Frances:—I often think I should like to write and tell you how much good you have done me, and I feel many others, by the good instruction given therein. I used to think before the "Home Column" started, how much we mothers needed a paper for ourselves, that we might help each other by our words of advice and instruction; and I feel to rejoice when I read and feel the Spirit of the words written, and feel it is just what is needed.

KINSLEY, Kan, Dec. 26th.

Sister Frances:—I would like to say that I appreciate the "Home Column" very much; it is encouraging to us away from the church and all of the privileges of a branch. We would be very lonesome without the Herald and Hope.

We are waiting for brother Parson to make his appearance, trusting in the Lord to make the way clear for him. If any of the Saints want to know anything about the country we will be glad to tell them all we can about it, if they will write to us. I would like to say to the sisters that are alone trying to raise their children without their companion's help, Hold out faithful, for the Lord is good and has promised to hear your prayer, if you only have faith and do not doubt. I can say I know, for I have tried him. He has promised to and always will.

Brother Wyman has moved about eighteen miles from us, so that leaves them alone. May the Lord bless you and all the Saints that are trying to serve Him.

From your sister in the gospel,

MAY A. ANWAY.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 28th.

Dear Herald: We are located at Des Moines, and will be for some time in the future. The work here is certainly onward as to spiritual life. Owing to various causes little is being done in obtaining a hearing for our principles of faith; very few outsiders attend our services. In fact, so far as I can find out, but few outside the immediate precincts of the Saints' Chapel know that our people have either a church building or representation in the city. The chapel is located on the corner of Sixteenth and Des Moines streets, not a very conspicuous location. It is the only place where we hold services, and the population of the city, including suburbs, being about forty-four thousand, it will be readily perceived that a comparatively small per centage have an opportunity to hear our representatives. Our branch president, Bro. W. R. Ray, is doing all he can to restore, unite, and confirm the Saints. He has presided four months with decided advantage to the membership, but has little or no time for missionary work. It takes money to open up new places in Des Moines, and we are not overburdened with that commodity. We are now talking of procuring a "gospel tent" for next summer and fall, to be used in the different wards of the city. Some brethren whom we hope mean business and are abundantly able to set the matter on foot speak encouragingly of the matter. It looks to us as though the branch officials here have all they can do, crowded at that, to look after the interests of those within the fold without assuming missionary responsibilities for the entire city and about from four to six hundred square miles adjacent thereto, including several other towns and villages. Des Moines is an inviting field, but it will require energy, money, time and talent. I sometimes have a dreamy hope that our general conference may put this vast field in charge of a missionary who will locate here, and here spend his time, energy and ability, until the victorious banners of God's restored truth shall float triumphant from many chapels.

As to Des Moines district we have labored in three of its branches,—Boonsboro, Sheridan and Des Moines,—and found them full of good works, alive in the faith, and their general condition reflecting great credit on the earnest whole-souled men who preside over them, and upon the Saints. How any elder can complain of a lack of charity, devotion, and brotherly kindness among the Saints, we can not understand, unless, indeed, he is either ungrateful, or has traveled among people far inferior to those we have met. We believe the true elder will be really and truly supported by the true disciple, and if the proper qualification is lacking on the part of either, there may be corresponding lack of aid and hospitality. The true elder, and true disciple of Christ, will have little occasion to complain of each other, if we rightly understand the spirit of the gospel. May God help us "cease to find fault one with another," help the ministry to rid their garments of the blood of this and succeeding generations, that laymen and ministers may assist in building up Zion, that Jesus may appear in his glory and receive un unto himself a tried, a sanctified people.

Some things pertaining to my personal experience in the work are very comforting to me, I am in the faith and fully expect to so remain, God being my helper. I have nothing to boast of, only that the work of God is grand beyond all conception of human wisdom. Yours,

N. A. BAKER.

PAIGE, Texas, Dec. 26th.

Brother Joseph:—I think that prejudice has given way and we are treated as Christians now. The Methodist shut their doors against us and they have had a monthly prayer meeting and invited us to attend and take part with them, which we have done; and I think have done good work for the cause. We number about fifteen members, and have been having prayer meetings as we could get together. It has been one year since an elder visited us. We were organized in June, 1881, and most of the time since then we have been like a family of children without a guide. We have been left alone for the past year. We are longing for some spiritual food,

We have some good members and good workers if they had good opportunities. Times are hard and money scarce here. Corn was a good crop, cotton about half crop. It has been very dry here this fall, and grass is short; although stock are looking fine for the winter.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

J. L. WILSON.

DEKALB, Ill., Dec. 4th.

Bro. W. W. Blair: Our little branch of Cortland is alive and full of spirit. We hold services and prayer meeting once a week, and all goes well with us in this part of the Lord's vineyard, and to his name be all honor and praise. Ever hoping for Zion's welfare, and that truth will prevail in all things, I am,

Yours in gospel bonds,

C. D. CARTER.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Dec. 28th.

Dear Herald:—Continued at Fairfield till the 20th, with fair attendance, a few investigating the doctrine, both by giving heed to the word spoken, and the tracts were eagerly sought, when offered from the stand after preaching. The majority of the people there are from the New England States, and as a rule are very strict in religious matters. They likewise devote much time to the temperance issue that is now looming up all over our country. There was from one to nine ministers present at each meeting. At the request of some, I spoke upon the Sabbath question, and Elder G. W. Admire took occasion to review the subject: he was both fair and kind, but in dead earnest in defending their favorite topic. He and I shall continue investigation and try to fairly weigh all the evidence pro and con. This man was present at every meeting save one, and found no fault in any of the twenty-one discourses; except the one noted, and therefore I am anxious to have him receive the gospel. On my way home, spent two evenings at Wilber, preaching twice to a full house, and considerable interest manifested. The Saints there have not yet obtained all their experience in the gospel work, and well shall it be for one and all to early learn that salvation is the result of individual labor in keeping the law given for our exaltation; neither should it ever be forgotten or overlooked, that to the church has been entrusted the right and responsibility of administering the ordinances and blessings that are vouchsafed unto all who accept the truth, and therefore the church has a divine appointment to adopt and prescribe, as to rules for government, that unity and harmony may be found in all parts of the vineyard. Strange that when persons can not have their own way, but are called in question for either word or act, they will withdraw from the body, and in nearly every case are free and full in finding fault with the church, pointing out wrong and evil doing. For one I am satisfied that people see things usually by the light of the spirit they possess, like the man full of the spirit of "John Barleycorn," that thought the lamp post was drunk. When we have the true Spirit, the promised comforter, duty becomes a pleasure; notwithstanding sacrifice may become necessary unto the accomplishment of the work essential to entitle an entrance to the Father's kingdom.

The record for 1886 is about to close, and will so continue until the Just One, calls us to stand before the throne and receive for the work done during earth life. For the cause of the truth I have faithfully labored, and at times during the closing year under some very painful and discouraging circumstances, still I have continued to trust, hope and pray to Him that doeth all things well, that after trial and sacrifice shall dawn peace and assurance as to an acceptance of welcome into the final condition of eternal life. I preach unto others, "no cross, no crown," and this is from experience; and I am willing to accept the situation, in the hope of the "promised inheritance."

At Fairfield I found a sister Almira Johnson, who was baptized in June, 1836, at St. Johnsbury, Vermont. She has never united with any other church or faction, and bears a strong testimony of the truth. She followed the fortunes of the church as far west as Florence, Nebraska, since which she has awaited the recovery of the "ark of the covenant," and tears of thankfulness freely flowed as the words of gospel light were told.

The outlook in this western part of the vineyard was never brighter, and I am hopeful for the good that the years to come will surely bring. To one and all let me say, I am still on duty, and will earnestly strive to promote the best interest of Zion's cause. Thus I take my leave of 1886, and wish all Saints and their friends a "happy New Year." In gospel bonds,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

LITTLE SIOUX, Iowa, Dec. 30th.

Herald Editors:—Each issue of our excellent journal greets us with the good news of gospel conquest, chiefly upon American soil. I can not report marked success in the way of making converts to the truth; indeed it seems to me that I do but little. Nevertheless, I have sought to be diligent, and wherever I have labored God has blessed me with a measure of his Spirit. It is not my forte seemingly, to bring many into the church; yet I have some reason to believe that by my feeble efforts friends to the cause have been made. Sometimes I think that perhaps my station should be filled by some one more efficient. While the fact that the gospel is "without money and without price," places it beyond a monetary value or mercenary consideration, still it seems to me that moneys consecrated to church purposes should be dispensed with the view of accomplishing the most possible good. Hence the operation of the laws of "preferment," based upon clerical ability, which is a characteristic of other churches justly becomes a factor of our own.

I do not refuse to labor. Idleness I deplore. In some station for which I am best fitted, I wish to spend my life in the service of God. When I first embraced the gospel and received of its light I felt a willingness to consecrate my all to the service of God. I am of the same mind now. I have placed my Nebraska homestead of 160 acres in the hands of a real estate dealer to sell at $1600 as an effort in the way of observing the command to God's elect in ages past and confirmed to the "elect" to be gathered in the last days. "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."—Malachi 3: 10.

I wish to say that the last Reunion at Garner's Grove was to me a heavenly waiting, though an unexpected pleasure. Perhaps I should have exercised more faith and remained in Texas. All that I wish to say with reference to the matter is that my "faith" was to come home and recover under the bracing influences of a northern clime. May heaven smile upon the noble missionaries and Saints of the southwestern field. My association with the itinerant ministry of the church at different times and places has been a source both of pleasure and benefit to me, and I cherish a regard for them all. Perhaps I should mention that at Soldier I baptized a young man of Norwegian birth, and fair qualification.

In bonds,

GEO. S. HYDE.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Dec. 27th.

Presidents Smith and Blair:—Knowing that you are always interested in the welfare of the church, a few lines from the Boston branch may be acceptable. We are making progress slowly against strong tides and head winds; yet I am happy to say there is some advancement in the right direction. The condition of society is such that it will be by well directed and continued effort that the work will advance. There is so much to engage the attention of the people, that no ordinary or commonplace preaching on the part of the ministry of any denomination will hold them.

The public mind has been so vitiated with the excitement of this age that nothing but stimulating food will satisfy their unnatural cravings. If ever the truth reaches their hearts and minds, it will be by the Spirit and power of God. Notwithstanding all this, there are true and honest souls in the different churches and out of them, who are looking and longing for the true faith and hope of the gospel, in whose hearts there is an aching void, unfilled and unsatisfied. These are they who need the loving, tender voice of the good shepherd to lead them into the true fold. May the time hasten when they can be brought in.

We have received from time to time help from the traveling ministry, the president of the district, Bro. Bond, our missionary, and others, all of whom have done well and manifested a deep interest for our welfare, for which we feel grateful. But the circumstances under which they labor are and have been such that they could stay but one Sabbath at one time. Another detriment is, we can have our hall (26 Union Park street) only on Sundays. We are trying to hold the fort as best we can with our feeble abilities, watching and waiting for reinforcements.

It is now twenty-three years since I have been a subscriber and devoted reader of the Herald. It has been a blessing to me. I loved it when it was the little Herald, and came but once a month. I prize it now in its enlarged form and weekly visits. Especially am I pleased with the sisters' column. It is fraught with lessons of worth, breathing a spirit of purest devotion for the blessed Master and his cause. When the songs of Zion's redemption are heard, their voices will be tuned in clearest, sweetest notes of joy and praise.

In conclusion I will say, I am a believer in the latter day work as held by the Reorganization. I can not accept all that is written in the Herald as the truths of heaven, yet I know of no organization so complete, so full of that that satisfies the heart as being the church and fold of Christ,

The calling and work of the present Joseph in the redemption of Zion was clearly made known to me some eighteen years ago in a prayer meeting, by the gift and power of God. In a few more years at most my voice will be stilled in death, as they who have passed on before. But the work of the Lord will go on, and on, until all that has been promised in the word of God and by his Spirit concerning Zion and her redemption, the coming and kingdom of our blessed Redeemer, will be fulfilled. The time is nearing: This is a day of preparation. "But who shall abide the day of his coming! and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap." Let us watch and be sober as we see the day approaching.

Yours in the bonds of love and peace,
E. N. WEBSTER.

6, Lea Terrace, Glyn Rd.,
Clapton Park, near LONDON, England.

Dear Brother Joseph:—By this mail I have sent you a useful book for the Church Library, entitled "Number: a link between the human intelligence and the divine." Its author is the Rev. Canon Girdlestone; one of the most aged and at the same time most accomplished and learned divines in this country. I have myself derived great profit from a brief study and perusal of the work. I thought therefore that some other elders at, or near "headquarters might like to have a dip into so learned and profitable a book; for it will well repay their perusal.

It is most cheering to see in my valuable Herald's from time to time, such glowing and glorious accounts of the on-rolling of the work in your more free and favored land. Not that we have not in England the utmost freedom of conscience and an unfettered choice in the matter of our religious opinions; but the Americans are far beyond us in their practical expression of their freedom. For instance, I have often, when standing at some cold bleak roadside, or street corner, in various parts of this great metropolis, or outlying suburbs, felt moved by a spirit of brotherly envy of the elders in America, on account of the kind courtesy with which the brethren there are often cordially invited into some school house or chapel of another denomination, comfortably warmed and lighted, and filled with an attentive and appreciative audience, anxious and waiting to hear them. But in London they would as soon think of offering an elder their bank-book or their purse, as to offer a poor elder the shelter of a hall or room, from the inclemency of the weather.

I was greatly pleased and surprised to read in the last Herald, in a letter from a brother named W. H. Kelley, a statement to the effect that in Vale's Mills, Union county, Ohio, those not of the faith bore an equal, if not greater burden than the Saints themselves, in the erection of their chapel! In this metropolis of England, on the other hand, if it was known that we desired to build, they would not let us have the ground to build upon, for love or money. Nor is this the result of any unkind or uncharitable bearing of the members or ministry of the church towards them that are without.

We are all willing to aid and assist the members of other churches in every way that lies in our power; and I can say for the elders and Saints here, that they have given practical proofs of their good will towards those of other churches and denominations repeatedly. For my own part, I have often been sent for both on Sundays and week-nights to play the organ at one or other church, or chapel in the neighborhood in which for the time being I have resided; and never on any occasion have I refused to do so, though of course I would much rather be at our own beloved house of prayer. But this is all the return we meet with. But thank God there is a reverse to this dark picture, and the other side is bright and beauteous. Man frowns on us, but God smiles. We have particularly of late been made to rejoice under the unspeakable joy of our Father's presence, and the angelic ministrations, as shadowed forth by the holy and precious gifts prophecy, unknown tongues, interpretation of tongues, visions, etc. These hallowed seasons more than compensate us for the absence of all encouragement from our fellow mortals, and cause the darkest cloud to shew forth at times its silver lining.

O, polygamy, what evil hast thou caused in this portion of the Lord's great vineyard! For notwithstanding all that the Saints of God can do or say, they will not believe but that we are a portion of the Utah church, and are believing in secret the very abominations which they preach openly. Even an appeal to the press is of no more efficacy than an appeal to the people. Out of some eighteen or twenty letters which at various times I have written to divers papers in London, defending the work of our God, and pointing out that polygamy is not, nor ever was an integral part of the same, only one paper would publish what I sent; and I believe that other brethren have also been ignored in the same way, by whatever paper they may have written to.

Thus we in London feel to greatly need your prayers, that this priestcraft and prejudice, which so hinder the Lord's work in this great city, may be speedily swept away. Your brother,

Dear Herald:—One year ago to-day I was at home in Kansas, making preparations to start on New Years day for Webb City, Missouri, to hold a series of meetings with the Saints in that place. Since then I have been trying to do all in our power to further the work. On the third of June we started for our distant field of labor, and arrived at Bro. J. W. Morgan's, in Hyde Park, Pa., on the sixth, and was made to feel at home by the hospitality of this much respected family. There had been no missionary work done there for some time. Prejudice ran very high. Only a few came to the meetings. The doors of the school-house were closed against us as soon as it was learned that "two Mormon missionaries were here from the west." We had already began meetings in a grove near Taylorsville, but were refused that. We obtained another grove near Taylorsville, owned by a saloon keeper, to hold as many meetings there as we pleased. We kept up regular appointments there at three p. m. every Sunday, till it got too cold for outdoor meetings, and then went on the streets, and we succeeded in always getting a large crowd to listen to us. We averaged from five to six meetings a week. Since then we have kept up regular appointments twice on Sunday, and Thursday nights at Bro. Gill's hall.

The district conference convened November 26th and it was said by several to be one of the best that has been held in the district. The Spirit of the Lord was enjoyed in prophecy that caused the hearts of the Saints to rejoice in this latter day work.

Receiving a letter from Bro. W. H. Kelley, missionary in charge, I was called to labor in the Pittsburg district and Dec. 5th I started for Philadelphia. With sorrow I parted with the Saints, and I feel thankful to them for their kindness and generosity. Coming to Philadelphia, I was made welcome at Bro. A. Cameron's. I found a few Saints here trying to live their religion and keeping up regular prayer meetings on Thursday nights, and Sunday-school and prayer meetings on Sunday. There has been but little preaching done here for several years. The branch is presided over by Bro. H. Bacon, priest, a very faithful and energetic young man. He is also superintendent of their Sunday school, which is doing well.

Our congregations are small, but attentive. It has been the desire of the Saints for me to remain with them and see if we can revive the work here again. It is hard to get up an interest in a large city where there are so many amusements to attract the people. I believe a good work can be done in this place, but it will take time, patience, and faithful labor. The righteous conduct of the Saints will do much to establish the gospel in any community. All can do something for the spread of the gospel.

Dear Herald:—I feel grateful for the good you have done in these parts in putting down the prejudice entertained in this country, for we have had to bear a great deal of persecution because we believed the gospel as it was taught by the Apostles. But the pressure is giving way; the outside world look and listen with amazement. I would feel at a loss without the Herald. Please continue sending it to me. Elders scarcely ever come this way; there could be good done here if there could be preaching for us occasionally. We are needy, and want every help we can get. Pray for us that our faith fail not, that the God of peace may gather the honest in heart in one, and we may be found worthy at the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Dear Herald:—With joy I renew subscription for you to continue coming to us with cheering, comforting instruction—valuable cargoes. It is refreshing to your readers to see the noble writings of our sisters among the freight. But alas! the dear little sister—the Advocate—is dead! She was so good; but had too many life-suckers (bad payers) for her to live. No one would wish its editor to refund, because she died before her time. Dear Herald, I don't want you killed on no consideration; therefore keep a strict eye on the suckers. Our Oakland church is getting on nicely.

Bro. T. W. Smith's splendid article on tithing is very like a dream I had when an urgent call was made to rent a hall for Bro. E. C. Briggs in San Francisco. I was in debt at the time, and it troubled me. So I asked the good Lord to show me what to do. I dreamed the Lord of life told me to provide things honest in the sight of all men, and said further, "I can take care of my own work, if my people, having food and raiment, would learn to be therewith content, giving me a tenth of the surplus and annual increase. Then there would be no lack and they would get rich." Dear Herald, sometimes your articles tell me there was no Sabbath until Moses' time; others tell me the Sabbath has been ever since the creation, independent of the by-laws through Moses. But you can't help it, being the willing servant of all.

Yours for the victory,
T. W. V.

ON PROPHECY.

CONTINUED.

"LET not your hearts be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also."—John 14: 1-5.

This passage introduces us to our subject most affectingly and profitably. Now the Lord does not say here, "If I go and prepare a place for you, I will send for you. The declaration was, "I will come again, and receive you to myself." Such, then, is the blessed prospect that is set before us. Our Lord and Master, our heavenly Bridegroom, has gone to prepare "a place" for us, the "Father's house," made ready purposely for its reception shall receive the church. This is our hope. Where he is, there shall we be also. How cheering are the words uttered by the two in white apparel, Acts 1: 10, 11, "Which also said, ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." It will be a personal return then: for it was in person he was seen to go away.

The question then is, When—at what period of the history of our world will this personal return take place? Will it be before the thousand years, or after them? These two passages of Scripture, 1 Cor. 15: 51, Heb. 9: 27, introduce us, and that, I do hope, in such a way as to interest us both in heart and mind. I will at once affirm then, that the second personal advent of our Lord and Savior will take place before the millennium. We have proof of it in the word of God almost without end. We certainly can not crowd the whole into one epistle. We will however endeavor to present what we find time for as simply and as concisely as possible. Let us go now to Acts 3: 20, 21. It seems to follow very naturally those we have looked at already: "And he shall send Jesus Christ which before was preached unto you; whom the heavens must receive until the restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Mark this declaration well. "The heavens must receive" the Lord, "until" those times. When those times come, then the Lord will come. But there is a dark and awful day coming on before it; and this the world does not know; this the world does not believe; still it is true—the revealing from heaven of the Lord Jesus Christ, in flaming fire, at a time of trouble such as never has been, no nor ever shall be again; for such will introduce it. A fearful day is hastening on, not fearful to Saints, but to the wicked who obey not the gospel. There is no fear on the part of those who know Jesus, whose feet are fixed upon the right foundation. No; though the earth should melt and the mountains be moved into the depths of the sea. All shall be certainly well with them.

Let us turn to Matthew 13, and we have much there bearing on the point before us. In this parable of the sower what was the result of the sowing therein spoken of? Did the sowing then commenced go on till all the earth was one vast field of wheat! No, surely. Some of the seed fell by the way side and the fowls picked it up; some fell upon a rock and the hot sun burned it up; and some fell among thorns and it was choked by them, while only some fell into good ground and brought forth fruit unto perfection. And that fruit, that wheat, when ripe, was gathered out from among the tares into the garner, as the parable of the wheat and the tares puts beyond all doubt. He that soweth the good seed is the Son of Man; the field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom. But the tares are the children of the wicked one; the enemy that sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels; and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend and them that do iniquity, and shall cast them into a furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Who hath ears to hear let him hear. Let us now turn to 2d Thessalonians, chapter one, in which we are directed to the revealing from heaven of the Lord Jesus Christ, in flaming fire, with all his holy angels; to take vengeance on those who know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

If we turn to Luke 21: 20-27, we shall find that the Lord places the advent at the conclusion of the times of the Gentiles. If we supply a few words from Matthew's account of the same prophecy, these verses will read as follows: Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled. And immediately after the tribulation of those days, there shall be signs in the sun, in the moon, and in the stars, and upon the earth distress of nations with perplexity, the sea and the waves roaring, and men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things that are coming upon the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken; and then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory.

Mark well the sum of this testimony, "immediately after the tribulation" which concludes the times of the Gentiles, the Son of Man shall personally come. The times of the Gentiles we know are still in course; Jerusalem is still trodden down of the Gentiles; but the time shall come when the treading down shall cease, then immediately the Lord shall come; then shall Israel, in deep repentance, see the Lord once more, and say in faith, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. That will be the Lord's second personal appearing.

We will now turn to Luke 17: 20-37. Here the Pharisees demanded when the kingdom of God should come. The Lord replies to them: The kingdom of God cometh not with observation. The kingdom of God is among you. But immediately the Lord turned to his disciples and told them of a coming that should be of universal observation; for as the light of the morning that shineth out of the one part under heaven and lighteneth to the other part under heaven, so shall also the Son of Man be in his day. Inspired Translation. Here, then, is a two-fold coming of the kingdom distinctly intimated; the one, "not with observation;" the other to be visible as the lightning unto all, as it is written according to King James' Bible. To the Pharisees he would speak only of the former,—"Behold the kingdom of God is among you"—the King stands among you even now; already he is come; but you will not know him. The kingdom was not within those Pharisees. Assuredly their condemnation was that they would not receive it. Only by being converted could they enter that kingdom. But repent they would not; therefore the Lord would tell them nothing further as to the kingdom. The disciples, however, were informed of a further coming. But the Son of Man must first suffer and depart; then would ensue a period which would resemble the days of Noah; and the days of Lot until Noah went into the ark, and the flood came, the world went on carelessly in sin. Until Lot went out of Sodom, and the fire and brimstone fell from heaven, the inhabitants of that wicked city ran greedily into the depths of evil, even so, says the Savior, will the world do until the day when the Son of Man shall be revealed. "And as it was in the days of Noah so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot, they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded, but the same day that Lot left Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of Man is revealed.

The advent, when it really takes place, will be visible to all. In that day it would he of no avail to flee in this or any other direction; for whether in bed, or grinding at a mill, or in the open field, the taking and the leaving would inevitably take place. The judgments of that fearful day will as surely take away all those that they were sent to take, as the waters of the flood did all the inhabitants of the world in the days of Noah, except the eight righteous ones in the ark, over whom they had no power. Just as the flood took away all except the few preserved in order to the re-peopling of the earth, so will the second flood, at the return of Jesus, take away all but a remnant, who will form the basis of the millennium population of the earth. Some shall be left then, even by the judgment of that great day. The work does not come to an end when the second advent takes place. There is a people left still, and the millennium ensues.

There is a passage in Luke 12: 32-48 which we must not by any means overlook. It will come in here very suitably to crown the mass of evidence which the gospels, briefly as we have glanced through them, have afforded us. It will prepare us for a better appreciation of the state of mind and heart and hope and expectation in which the whole tenor of apostolic preaching and teaching, afterwards manifested. The first portion of the wonderful instruction therein given, we must quote. Nothing in the whole bible is more affecting or more solemn. Even those who greatly mistake and misapply portions of the passage, find their minds blessed and aroused, and profited by it. Those who say it means death, find the warning given in this most solemn passage continually occurring to their minds; "fear not little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the Kingdom." "Sell all that ye have and and give alms; provide yourselves bags that wax not old; a treasure in the heavens that faileth not; where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth. For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also." "Let your loins be girded about, and your light shining; and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, that when He cometh and knocketh they may open unto Him immediately; Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching. Verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them. And if he shall come in the second watch, or come in the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants. And this know, that if the good man of the house had known in what hour the thief would come, he would have watched and not suffered his house to be broken through. Be ye therefore ready also, for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not."

The flock is termed a little one to which, at the Lord's return, the kingdom shall be given. This is the character of Christ's people until his return. The true flock is still "a little flock." "Straight is the gate and narrow is the way that leads unto life, and few there be that enter therein." This declaration marks the true character of the way of life throughout the present dispensation, but now, and till the Savior comes again this is the path, walk ye in it. This passage itself affords a strong proof of our position, but in connection with the picture of a little flock which waits in a world quite hostile to it till the coming of the Lord, from heaven. Two truths indeed make up the sum of apostolic teaching. The sufferings of Christ was one, and the second coming with the glory that should follow, was another; between these two events the church is always placed. It is our own position, we look back to the sufferings, and forward to the glory. We are between the two—most blessed place to rest, and wait, and watch in until Jesus comes.

In Romans 8: 18-23 we have a wonderful passage bearing fully on our question. It is as to the glory which shall be revealed at the manifestation of the sons of God; that is, at the day when the sons of God shall appear in open manifested glory, with their exalted Lord; the period when all shall know who are, and who are not sons of God indeed. In verse 23 this manifestation is termed, "the adoption; to wit, the redemption of our body," that is, the resurrection of the just. Our souls have received the adoption, and show the redemption already; but our bodies must attain to both. Mark, then, what else is stated here. It is this: "The whole creation groaneth, and travaileth in pain together until now." And it is expressly declared that this heavy, universal groaning will only cease at the period of the revelation and resurrection here spoken of. Then, and not till then, "the creation itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, into the glorious liberty of the children of God." This groaning and travailing is just the position of creation at this very day. All the world groans beneath a still accumulalating load of sin and misery and woe. Man groans, his soul groans, his body groans, animals groan, the earth itself groans. "The whole creation" here personified so impressively, sends up to heaven a heavy, loud and agonizing groan. God in heaven hears that groan. A day of liberation hastens on. It is predicted most expressly and clearly in the passage before us. It is the bringing in of the Millenium. But with the bringing in of it, the revealing of the Saints with Christ in glory is connected. This takes place at one and the same time; at the appearing of the Lord Jesus in clouds of heaven. The event must then be pre-millennial.

In 1 Cor. 1: 5-7, we have much that bears upon our subject. They "come behind in no gift, waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." Such was their position. Paul earnestly maintained and pointed to a day when all they that are Christ's should be raised, and all the living in Christ should be changed. He did not say all the dead, whether Christ's or not. But then all those that are Christ's will be raised. Some should be changed—should never die. In 2 Cor. 5: 1-4 this solemn truth is further treated of. They earnestly desired, not to be unclothed, but clothed upon with the house which is in heaven. It was resurrection, not death, they specially desired. To the Phillipians it is said: "Our conversation is in heaven, from whence we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be like unto his glorious body."—Chapter 3: 20-21. It is not said heaven to which we hope to be sent for by Him, but heaven, "from whence we look for the Savior."

The two epistles to the Thessalonians are full of truth as to the second coming of the Savior. Every chapter in each presents it as a matter of present hope, and not distant accomplishment. They had turned to God, and to "wait for His Son from heaven."—1 Thess., 1: 9, 10.

In 4: 13-18 we have the blessed statement of the catching up of all the dead in Christ, and all the living in Christ, into the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, to to be forever with the Lord. Peter furnishes much evidence to the fact that until the advent evil will continue to go on, and that only that great event would bring it to a close. But we must pass on to James 5: 1-8. This entire passage affords very strong proof of the same truth. The rich have heaped treasures together against the last days. The oppressed people of God are exhorted to be patient unto the coming of the Lord. Till then patience would be needed, for evil and sorrow would continue until then, and that great event was hastening.

John points to the appearing of Jesus as the blessed and purifying hope of all the sons of God.—1 John 3: 1-3.

A characteristic of the last days would be the coming of anti-Christ. Yea, there would be many anti-Christ's, but the hope that is set before the church is the appearing of the true Christ in his glory. The whole New Testament is written in accordance with the view of this most solemn, most wholesome, and most edifying truth. The advent is the great event before us. Our true position is that of men who wait for their Lord, with girded loins and lights vigilantly watched and ever brightly burning. We know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh. Blessed indeed are those servants whom the Lord, when he cometh, shall find watching.

Let us pass on to Rev. 20: 1-6. "And I saw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit, and a great chain in his hand, and he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years, and cast him into the bottomless pit, and shut him up, and set a seal upon him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years should be fulfilled: and after that he must be loosed a little season." People say this is figurative language, and if granted, then at once no one doubts that the key of the bottomless pit and the great chain in the angel's hand, and the binding of Satan and the setting a seal upon him are all figures. But what are they figures of? What do they teach us but that Satan will be forcbly restrained, and that in his own abyss, for a thousand years, and so restrained that he shall not deceive the nations any more till the thousand years are fulfilled? What difficulty is there in understanding the force and meaning of figures like these, "And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them; and I saw the souls of them who were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their forehead, or in their hands; but they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished, This is the first resurrection."

Observe these last words, "This is the first resurrection." There may have been figures employed in the passage; no one questions it. But when the Holy Ghost is pleased to interpret the figurative language he has employed, when he is pleased to tell us what it means, are we to evade the force of all he says by making his interpretation figurative also? "This is the first resurrection." This is the Holy Ghost's explanation of the figures, or symbols, by which it had been set forth,— "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years."

I would commend this entire chapter to your patient attention and prayerful perusal, in your closets before God. It demonstrates that there is an interval of at least a thousand years between the resurrection of life and the resurrection of final judgment, "The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." It commences with the coming of Christ to change his living and raise his sleeping saints. It closes with the resurrection of the wicked dead, and their judgment.

Let us turn to 1st Corinthians chapter 15. The resurrection is the subject. Here we have statements which show its deep and fundamental importance. "Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen; and if Christ is not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." How solemnly important then this truth of the resurrection! "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death; by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming." Not a word is said here of those who are not his.

Turn now to 1 Thess. chapter four: "But I would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope. For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord. Therefore comfort one another with these words."

For further instruction on this, turn to 1 Cor. 15: 51, 52. "Behold, I shew you a mystery; we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed."

Turn now to Rom. 8: 16-25, which in itself sheds much light upon the subject we are considering.—"The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God; and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together." The moment when Christ's coming shall bring all this it is himself, the music of his voice, the beauty of his countenance, the joy of being forever with the Lord. He which testifieth these things saith, "Surely, I will come quickly." Does he not let out all his heart in this utterance, "Beloved, surely, I came quickly."

May the spirit in us and in all Saints respond, and that in the fulness of divine life and affection, "Even so, come, Lord Jesus." This is the positive promise of Christ, in Rev. 3: 10, to those who have kept his word and not denied his name, "Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth."

REPLY TO CRITICISM.

EDITOR HERALD.—Clay Dean once said in a political speech, "The north is constantly stirring up the south, to let them know there is a God in Israel;" of which I was forcibly reminded, in a perusal of your one and a quarter columns of criticism on my letter for December 18th, 1886. And it would seem that precincts occupied by Bro. Derry and ye Editors is sacred, and must be viewed with caution, and he who dares to enter therein must expect an editorial castigation. With due deference, said criticism is not savory to my theological olfactory nerves; my digestive organs been somewhat sluggish; and whether an effort to reply, which I deem necessary in justice to myself, will give tone to my theological being, and evince in said reply a consistent equilibrium, is not clear to my mind. Then my profuseness, and tendency to circumlocution, and your great aversion to long, wordy, and pointless articles, and advocacy of brevity, with the assurance that it is the soul of wit, looms up to my startled vision; added to which is the yawning mouth and capacious stomach of your waste basket, making the effort to reply an herculean task.

The first item in your criticism appears thus: "Bro. Caffall also seems to think that the Herald by publishing the eulogistic part of said letter is in error in that it also shares this supposed charge." If the reader will turn to the seventh paragraph of my letter, the following will be seen. "The right to eulogize one's particular friends, or tell of the purity of his desires can not be questioned." Surely there is nothing ambiguous in the above. And to write thus, and then charge, or think the Herald was wrong in eulogizing would present me as an imbecile or a consummate hypocrite.

Publish from the rivers to the ends of the earth, or write across the skies, if you will; my actual sayings I will meet them, without the exhibition of ungodly persistency, or hypocritical whining to evade the issue; and if evidence of wrong develops, by God's grace I will make the requisite restitution and retraction.

It seems a little singular that my actual sayings do not give a basis broad enough from which to fire your piercing shots, without essaying to add to its limits, by assumption, and thereby seemingly strive to impress your readers with something I did not say. Continuing my letter, I say, "But against such a method of charging wrong upon somebody, I solemnly protest; but recognize the right of any member of the body to legitimately proceed against wrong doing." "Further, direct charges of wrong doing in the columns of the Herald is wrong, but indirect charges are infinitely worse. But if those controlling, make the columns of the Herald the receptacle of such attacks, defence can not well be denied."

This, I presume embraces the obnoxious part of my letter. Your decision touching Bro. Derry's purity of intention and non-intention on your part to offend etc., is apparent all through your criticism to the reader. And your surprise and expression of sorrow, etc., leaves the impression that my procedure is reprehensible. Now let us see about it. I quote further from my letter, "Your columns of September 25th, 1886, are made luminous by effusions from a dweller of Magnolia, Iowa, of a eulogistic nature, and the writer appears ecstatic over an article which previously appeared on "Aid for the Ministry," and surely applausiveness was never more thorough. I am pleased with it, says the writer, also because it will allay the fears of hundreds of the true friends of God's glorious cause, for there are many who have feared the church was going to forsake the old paths and gradually slide into sectarian footsteps, by preaching for hire, and divining for money.

"But that plain stalwart article from your authorized pen is a guarantee that the good old ship, Zion, is not near being wrecked on the sands of human folly." In all this you see no reflection. And further say: "We understood Bro. Derry at the time to mean that he was pleased the Herald had spoken in a plain and comprehensive manner, on a much controverted point." But Bro. Derry made use of no such language, and I wonder on what precedent known in journalism, or in God's economy, you construe language to justify one, and censure another, which the literal-ty of the language does not allow. Further, what was that controverted point? that stalwart article so effectually settled? It really seems to me you take a wide latitude in assuming to understand something not spoken, and thus reach a conclusion in favor of the one whose cause you have undertaken to champion. But away with supposition, and come to the naked facts. The appearance of that article on "Aid for the Ministry" allayed the fears of hundreds. What caused that fear? A belief that the church was going to forsake the good old path and gradually slide into sectarian footsteps, by preaching for hire, and divining for money. Does not such language reflect on some one? Could the writer and the many friends of God's cause have had the terribleness of such a slide portrayed to their pure, astute, and far seeing minds, if no evidence, real, or imaginary, of inductive steps had been seen? Most certainly not. And for as much as a belief has thus obtained; it is well known on whom, or where suspicion would rest.

I dismiss this point with the decision that the above according to my understanding, is reflective or language has no significance. Further: "But that plain stalwart article," says the writer, "from your authorized pen, is a guaranter that the good old ship, Zion, is not near being wrecked, on the sands of human folly." Can evidence of wisdom exist and nobody wise? Can evidence of folly be seen, and no one foolish? And if wisdom is evinced by keeping Christ's law, is not folly seen in its violation?

Did any one before hear of such prodigious effects by one single stalwart article by an authorized pen. Those on a sliding scale from the dizzy heights of the gospel plane, for the depth of sectarian demoralization arrested, the fears of hundreds allayed the old ship Zion saved from being wrecked on the sands of human folly. Not often; yet you would have us understand, there was nothing reflective, therefore no charge. So no allaying fears, no arresting on a sliding scale towards sectarianism; no saving the grand old ship Zion from being wrecked on the sands of human folly. So the whole thing is a myth. Surely there can be no censure due, for fighting a myth. And here I might submit the case without further comment, but the triumphant manner you refer to the Herald speaking in a plain comprehensive manner on a much controverted point challenges a little invest-ment. The, as you term a much controverted point, was doubtless individual aid. And this key of the financial system had been struck long ere the stalwart article by the authorized pen appeared, and inspired many sterling Latter Day Saints.

But it had not been made to sound above the rest, for a skillful musician is wont to give a proper sound to each note, and thus creates harmony. But the above or stalwart article, struck a little harder on one key than others causing great joy in the camp of the true friends of God's glorious cause; hence the eulogy to the delight of the author, and the thoroughness of reciprocity. Of the controverted point more may be seen in the last day's action, or by reference to Conference minutes of 1886. I would like to notice the second and third paragraphs of your criticism at length but forbear unless space is granted. But in response to your interrogation in third paragraph, would say in its broad and literal sense, when I write in my official capacity, however simple, I neither speak parabolically, or seek to daub with untempered mortar. But the response to your interrogation needs a more thorough explanation to put myself right before your readers. But I am not very solicitous for in that direction one can do considerable towards pushing his way through calumny and prejudice, when necessity urges it. And if one's sterling worth and consistency fail to offer a foundation for confidence, human applause won't last him forever. God be praised for the great arbitrating time, reflected in His divine economy; whether I survive or perish.

In gospel bonds,
JAMES CAFFALL.

HUMILITY.

HUMILITY is one of the chiefest adornments of the Christian. It underlies every other grace and principle which unite to make the sons and daughters of men children of God. Without it, no amount of wisdom, or extent of knowledge could ever fashion us into the moral image of God, or in any proper sense constitute us children of the light.

Education, experience, wealth, or any other advantage that may conduce to prestige in character, does not, nor can it remove the necessity for this virtue; neither can any, nor all of these substitute this excellent and indispensable quality. He who is most richly endowed with this inestimable gift of God, is best prepared to meet the trying vicissitudes and ordeals of life; while he who is without it, is painfully subject to every annoyance and sensitive to every criticism, in which self is involved, and is without the power of forbearance, and morally incapable of the exercise of charity toward his fellowmen. Christ bore the scoffs and scorn, and pitiless criticism of a sinful world, without retaliation, because he was humble. Humility is a just recognition of mutual dependence, so far as relates to our fellow creatures, and absolute dependence upon the higher power; hence, he who is devoid of this, places himself at a disadvantage in society and in an unfavorable relation to God. What delicacy of tint, color and fashion are to the flower, humility is to the soul. Prompting its possessors to deeds of love and kindness towards humanity, it commends its happy recipient to the light and favor of Him who rewardeth all according to their deeds.

Every man should study it well and cultivate its growth. "The Lord resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble."—James 4:6. He who is truly humble can not fall.

From a preeminence unjustly, or superficially attained, we may at any moment be precipitated, but whom God exalts is honored indeed. We have the immutable promise that whosoever abaseth, or humb-eth himself shall be extolled, but he that climbeth up "some other way" is a moral thief, a spiritual plunderer, and is anathematized of God. The man that walketh uprightly in the deep valley of humiliation is treading upon terra firma, and the Lord will love him. Here are the flowers of virtue and happiness, springing on every hand; the pellucid waters of salvation flow in peaceful amplitude, and the sunshine of God's eternal peace is ever flowing to fill the recesses of every heart. The rugged mountains of adversity may rise high, and the storms of temptation may gather and rage, but the "fiery pillar" of God's love shall be our refuge by night, and the shadow of his hand our shelter by day. But from the dizzy heights of vain ambition, the unhappy victim of selfish aspiration must surely fall.

Jesus, the meek and lowly, said "If thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light." Who could wish for the exhibition of greater love than this? Who, that has tasted of the heavenly boon, could desire more? Lucifer fell from the zenith of heaven to the depths of hell. He was not humble nor was his "eye single" to the glory of God; hence he is fallen, is fallen, and the sad refrain reverberates throughout the supernal dome, and from the bright regions of eternal bliss re-echoes the wailing cry "How are the mighty fallen?" Wisdom and knowledge may puff us up without humility, but with it, never. Like charity, it "never faileth." So I conclude that "with all of our gettings we should get."—humility.

THE OLD SABBATH.

WHEN one notes the origin of the Sabbath, studies the attitude of the bible in regard to it, and follows it down through the church, the day becomes one of the rare curiosities of superstition. Let us then look at the Sabbath a little, for the facts concerning it ought to help the solution of what has come to be the Sunday newspaper question.

The day is ages older than the Jewish people or the book of Genesis. There is no rational doubt that it originated in Sabaism or planet worship. It is found among the Acadians, a Turinian people who occupied the valley of Euphrates long before Babylon became a city. If strictness and severity are tests of goodness there was a time when the old pagan Assyrians were better Sabbath-keepers than any Jew or Christian has ever been since. For the king himself was forbidden to eat any cooked food, to change his clothes, to take medicine, though ill, or even to engage in worship. As near as possible to nothing at all was the only thing one was permitted to do on the Sabbath in those "good old times."

The day did not then originate with the bible, and there is no proof that the infinite God of this universe ever commanded the keeping of any such day as Rev. Joseph Cook became so warm over in his last Monday lecture. For in two of the books of the Old Testament two inconsistent and mutually exclusive reasons are given for keeping it. One of these reasons is the childish one that God rested, as though tired out, after the six days' work of creation. But in the New Testament Jesus himself flatly contradicted that statement, though, even if He did not, science does; for it demonstrates the fact that the creative work is going on to-day as much as ever, and has always been going on. And then the Jewish Sabbath, according to the best Jewish scholarship, was no more like the one that New England has tried to support on divine authority than Easter is like the Fourth of July.

And when we come to the New Testament we find Jesus himself publicly branded as a Sabbath breaker, while the writer of the Epistle to the Colossians distinctly and in terms abrogates the Sabbath law, declaring it to be no longer binding on Christians. There is no trace anywhere of any authoritative transfer of Sabbath-keeping on Sunday. The Jewish Christians continued to keep the Sabbath, while at the same time, they met on Sunday morning to celebrate the Lord's supper, and keep in memory their faith in the resurrection of Jesus. But the Gentile Christians generally kept Sunday only. And for hundreds of years it never occurred to the early church that there was ever any question about it being wrong to work on Sunday after their religious services were over, or to engage in any occupation they pleased.

The very first law ever passed was the edict of Constantine, issued A. D. 321. But that only made it what we would call a holiday, releasing people from the obligation of labor. It expressly excepted agricultural laborers, whose crops might need attention; and it said not a word about its being wrong to work. It was not until the year 528 that all work was prohibited.

And all the way down through the history of the early church there is clearly seen an endeavor on the part of the Christian leaders to discourage what they regarded as the Sabbath superstition of the Jews. St Cyril, Jerome, Luther, Calvin, Tyndale, and others are at one on this point. They all declare the Sabbath a matter of church custom and convenience, and no part of any religious or moral law.

Sunday, as New England has known it, was an institution unheard of in either Jewish or Christian history until the time of puritanism in England. So, however good a thing it may be, let us at least tell the truth about it; and if we wish to keep it, let us rest it on the foundation on which it belongs.—Boston Globe.

UTAH, ITS EVILS AND THEIR REMEDY.

WHAT THE NEPHEW OF BRIGHAM YOUNG SAYS OF POLYGAMY'S EVILS—THE EFFECT OF THE EDMUNDS BILL AND THE PROVISIONS OF THE NEW ONE.

THERE is a growing interest here in the work of the Mormon lobby and the alleged interview of the apostle Cannon with Secretary Lamar is still the subject of much speculation, writes a Washington correspondent of The Philadelphia Press. I met Mr. John Corbin Young a few days ago.

Mr. Young is a nephew of Brigham Young, and I had a long conversation with him on the effect of the Edmunds bill, the need of additional legislation, and on the future outlook for the territory. Mr. Young became disgusted with Mormonism at the age of sixteen, and declares that not only polygamy but the control of the church is blighting the whole territory. The wiping out of polygamy in his opinion is only the first step. I have reproduced the conversation:

"To what extent has the legislation already in force, known as the Edmunds bill, affected the Mormons?"

"The effect of the prosecutions under that law has been to drive the ignorant, fanatical polygamists closer together as a rule, and probably the leaders also. Out of the 150 cases that have been brought before the court for sentence only seven or eight have promised to obey the law. The remainder prefer to take their punishment than do so. All who have been convicted have undergone sentence except those seven or eight.

"Mr Cannon was indicted on one count, and there were two complaints against him before the United States commissioner. He took what we call the underground—went into concealment. The officers tried for some months to catch him, but could not do it. Finally they offered a reward for information that would lead to his arrest. In a few days that information was forthcoming. He attempted to escape from the territory, but was found on a Central Pacific train. He jumped off the train and escaped. He was recaptured and taken before Judge Zane, placed under $25,000 bonds under the indictment and two $10,000 bonds each before the commissioner, making $45,000 in all. The bonds were for his appearance before the district court. On the day appointed he failed to appear and the bonds were forfeited."

"Then apostle Cannon is now practically an outlaw?"

"Yes; he, with Taylor and other leaders of the church remain in hiding, and keep the small fry braced up to the rack all the time. I do not believe that it would be possible to stamp out polygamy in Utah with the Edmunds bill. The penalty is not adequate to the offense. For instance, it is six months' imprisonment and a fine of $300, and that is the limit. Now there are some 12,000 or 15,000 polygamists and if they catch one man every day in the year you can see how inadequate the law would be to reach all those who are guilty."

"This being true, you are of the opinion that it will require political as well as judicial methods to stamp out polygamy? The Edmund's bill having been in force since 1882, and as I understand you, not over 150 convictions brought about by it, additional legislation is undoubtedly needed. This brings us to the pending legislation, the Tucker-Edmunds bill. What are its provisions and what will be its probable effect?"

"I can say this, the Tucker-Edmunds measure is evolutionary rather than revolutionary. It does not go to the root of the evil, it is not a measure adequate to stamp polygamy out at once, but it paves the way for the reformation to come by degrees under its operations."

"What are its provisions?"

"It provides for a marriage law, which is badly needed in Utah. It strips from the probate courts jurisdiction in all matters except in the settlement of estates. The probate courts are now exercising jurisdiction in divorce cases, and rank abuses have grown up under it. It increases the penalty for illegal cohabitation and makes polygamy a continuing offense. Under the present law the crime of polygamy is complete when the marriage ceremony takes place. It is necessary to prove the facts. The Mormons perform these marriages in the most profound secrecy. They keep the records where they can not be seen. These prosecutions have been carried on under the third clause, which makes cohabitation a crime. The proposed Tucker-Edmunds bill makes polygamy a continuing offense punishable with five years' imprisonment. When men are confronted with five years' imprisonment they will probably promise to obey the law. They would now if it were not for the fact that the priesthood are driving them to stand firm."

"Suppose that the present legislation and that which ought to pass this session of congress comes into force, and polygamy is stamped out or branded, what would you then have to overcome?"

"The issue then to be made would be the control of politics in the territory by the priesthood. The claim of the priesthood is not vox populi vox Dei, but vox Dei vox populi, and that has always been their claim. In those words it runs through many of their sermons from their earlier history to the present time. They make no concealment. They say the power does not come from the people, but comes down from God through his legally constituted channel—the prophet. They all believe that. Every man who has ever gone through the endowment house is a member of the priesthood, and they all believe in that assumption. You see how it would be. As long as they have any vestige of political power it would be used in the aggrandizement of their church."

"In your opinion, then, the evil will not be eradicated, and the territory of Utah will not become Americanized, and a part of the United States until still further action looking to the political side of the question has been taken?"

"The report of Mr. Tucker accompanying his bill more clearly sets forth the difficulty in Utah than any other statement of the kind made to congress. The report itself shows exactly what the real evil is—namely, the fact of the political power of the church, which has enabled the Mormon priesthood to create a government of their own, which they claim to be a theocracy, and which is in fact a hierarchy, a kingdom claiming to be the kingdom of God on earth, exercising jurisdiction within the jurisdiction of the United States and under republican forms. It is, in fact, a community, you might say, each member of which has taken an oath of allegiance to the priesthood which conflicts directly with his oath of allegiance to the United States. I can refer you to sermon after sermon and document after document from their orthodox works which distinctly state the constitution of the United States is an inspired document, and God's purpose for inspiring it was to prepare a human government in which, and under the laws of which this Mormon theocracy could be established. And that is the extent of their reverence for the constitution. Their allegiance is, therefore, first to their church and second to their country."

"Is it not a fact that Miss Kate Field has done a great deal to call the attention of the masses of the people to the evils of Mormonism, certainly to popularize the subject and create a sentiment against it?"

"I can say this, that Miss Field more thoroughly investigated the subject of Mormonism than any other person who has ever gone there for that purpose. As I said, she came for the purpose of remaining but a few days. She remained eight months, and she went thoroughly to the bottom of the whole subject. She got her information not only from Gentiles and apostates, but from the elite of the priesthood. She attended their ward meetings, their fast meetings, and their tabernacle meetings. She went to their archives for information; she traveled from one part of the territory to another; she investigated the whole subject. Her lecture is a very polished and truthful one."

The manuscript of the above interview was submitted to Mr. Young and revised. It may, therefore, be regarded as correct in every particular. Mr. Young is a man of unusual intelligence, and talks with great earnestness and force. He feels that congress ought to act on this question at once.

A SONG OF ZION.

We are sailing home to Zion,
To that land so bright and fair,
Where no dismal cloud of sorrow
Ever shall molest us there;
Sailing in the good ship Zion,
Guided by the Savior's hand,
By and by we'll reach the harbor
If we keep the Lord's command.

CHORUS.

For the omens of the day bespeak his coming,
And we know the happy time is drawing nigh,
In the golden fields of rest—out in Zion,
We will gather, we will gather, by and by.

Though sometimes our sky is darkened
By the clouds of dark despair,
And the billows rage beneath us,
Threatening danger every where;
Yet our sailors being fearless
Boldly raise the standard high,
Shouting "Jesus, Blessed Master!
Will redeem us by and by."

Hearken to the proclamation
Being sounded far and near,
"For the Marriage-feast of Jesus
O, ye nations now prepare."
Soon he'll come in clouds of glory,
And he'll wed the ready bride,
What a blessing for the "little flock,"
Who are on the Savior's side.

With loud hallelujahs ringing
In that bright and happy land;
We will join the angel chorus,
As we reach the golden strand;
Clad in white, with robes of glory,
We shall dwell forever more,
In the presence of our Savior
On that bright, celestial shore.

We are watching for his coming,
Soon the Lord will give command;
Even now the Saints are gathering,
In the borders of the land.
When the weary fight is over,
And we see his beckoning hand,
We shall praise his name forever
With that happy angel band.

Yonder brightest orb of heaven,
Smiling forth its golden ray;
Only faintly pictures glory,
Of that home so far away;
Where the angel chorus' ringing,
Through that bright supernal dome,
Courage brethren—press ye onward,
Soon we'll reach that happy home.

Though the storms of life are raging,
And our trials are severe;
Yet the glory of fair Zion,
Soon the Saints of God will share;
If our watch-word's "Ever Onward,"
And our motto "Peace," and "Joy,"
We will overcome our trials,
And we'll anchor by and by.

A. L. WHITEAKER Dist. Pres.

The conference of the South Eastern Ohio and West Virginia district will be held at Limerick, Jackson county, Ohio, February 26th, 1887, at 10:30 a.m. Those coming by railroad will please notify me in time and there will be provision made to meet them either at Byer or Jackson, on the 25th.

T. J. BEATTY, Dist. Pres.

Information wanted of the whereabouts of Morris Ward, aged sixteen years. Last heard from at Humbolt Wells, Nevada, about eighteen months ago. Any information will be thankfully received by his mother, Mrs. G. A. Ward, 557 East Second South street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

BORN.

HAZELRIGG.—At Santa Maria, Santa Barbara county, California, December 3d, 1886, to the wife of Charles Hazelrigg, a daughter.

MARRIED.

RAY—CLARK.—At Keokuk, Iowa, December 28th, 1886, Mr. W. Ray and Miss Emeretta Clark.

DIED.

YOUNG.—John Young, who is the subject of this sketch, was born May 19th, 1811, in what was at that time known as Jackson county (now Putnam), state of Tennessee, and died October 30th, 1886, at his residence near Galland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, aged 75 years, 5 months, 11 days. He was the son of David Young, the son of William Frederick Young, who came from Germany with his younger brother, Joshua, and settled in the state of Virginia about 1750. His mother was Elizabeth Vance Young, daughter of James Vance, the father of thirteen children, among them John Vance, who went to Utah with Brigham Young's church, was afterwards one of Brigham's high councillors, and died a few years ago at a very advanced age. The deceased was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (the writer thinks, but possibly sooner) in the year 1840, under the hands of the late Z. H. Gurley, sen., and according to an elder's certificate signed R. B. Thompson clerk, Joseph Smith president, he was ordained an elder by order of a general conference at Nauvoo, Illinois, April 6th, 1840. He did not labor much in this office in the early days of the church. Some who read this may remember what his efforts then were. After the death of the prophet he removed to Texas with the Ly-mah Wight faction; left that State in 1855 and went to the Indian Territory, remaining there until the year 1860, when he removed to where he has lived up to the time of his death—a few months over a quarter of a century—known and read of all as an honest, upright and respected citizen, a true husband, an affectionate father, always ruling his house strictly, yet in a manner to command the respect of all. He was always ready to help the poor and needy, and although he did not unite with the Reorganization until some two years ago, yet he was always a firm believer in the gospel as revealed to and taught by Joseph Smith, and so taught his family. Bro. Young leaves a wife and eleven children to lament his departure, all of whom were present at his bedside in the hour of death. And while it is indeed trying to be resigned, yet we mourn not as those without hope, for we will all meet again where parting will be no more.

Father, while we miss thee here
In this our earthly home,
Thy name will ever be near and dear
To those you left to mourn.

D. P. YOUNG.

BRAYMAN.—December 12th, 1886, at Clear Lake, Indiana, Arthur, only son of Mr. Charles and the late sister Lillie Brayman, aged six months. Funeral service on December 26th. Elder B. V. Springer officiating.

The angel mother beckoned to her darling son,
And called him hence.—God's will be done.

HICKMAN.—Sister Bernetta Hickman died December 28th, 1886, in Park City, Utah, at the advanced age of 76 years and 4 months. She was sick but a few days, when she passed peacefully away. Those who remember reading the experience of a "Mother in Israel," in the Herald, may have a fair idea of her devotion to Christ and the right. She was loved by all who knew her; she was tried even as by fire, and her rest surely will be glorious. About three weeks before her death, Sister Allen, her daughter, dreamed that her mother came and said, "I have come for you," her answer was "All right, I will go." Funeral services in the Saints' Chapel, Salt Lake City, by R. J. Anthony and Ethan Barrows.

BENJAMIN.—At Princeville, Illinois, May 19th, 1886, Sr. Levira Benjamin, aged 79 years, 1 month and 2 days.

HITCHCOCK.—At Princeville, Illinois, July 21st, 1886, Sr. Olive Hitchcock, aged 86 years, 1 month and 7 days.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTH-EASTERN ILLINOIS.

The conference of the above district convened at Springerton, White county, Illinois, Saturday, December 11th, 1886, at 10 o'clock a. m., Bro. G. H. Hilliard, president, in the chair, John F. Thomas, clerk. The minutes of last conference read, corrected, and approved. Branch Reports: Springerton 65, including 1 elder, 2 priests, 2 teachers, 1 deacon, 5 scattered; J. W. Stone, clerk. Alma 10, including 2 elders, 1 deacon; D. P. Brown, president, P. Brown, clerk. Dry Fork 31, including 1 high priest, 4 elders, 1 priest, 2 teachers, 1 deacon, 2 children blessed; J. F. Thomas, president, R. Lappin clerk. Brush Creek 114, including 2 elders, 2 priests, 3 teachers, 1 deacon, 6 baptized; I. A. Morris, president, J. Morris, clerk. Tunnel Hill 80, including 4 elders, 1 priest, and 2 teachers, 3 baptized; I. M. Smith, president, Wm. A. Kelley, clerk. Elders' Reports: J. W. Stone, J. F. Thomas, G. H. Hilliard, T. P. Green, M. R. Brown. A. H. Smith reported his labors and gave some excellent instruction. At 3 p. m. John F. Simms, priest, reported; Bro. B. Taylor reported; I. M. Smith, I. A. Morris, W. H. Brewer reported by letter. The work of the Lord is onward, and there seems a great desire in all the brethren to lend a helping hand. New fields for labor are opening up which promise well. Bro. A. H. Smith was invited to take part in the deliberations of conference. Conference ordered the purchase of a District Record also blank Branch Reports, and the clerk collected three dollars towards it. The priesthood were requested to labor in their respective fields and elsewhere as best they can. The authorities of the church were sustained. Bro. A. H. Smith, missionary in charge, was sustained. Bro. G. H. Hilliard was elected president for the next six months, and I. M. Smith clerk. At 6:30 p. m. Bro. A. H. Smith spoke on first chapter of Genesis. Sunday, ten o'clock, one was baptized, and at eleven o'clock preaching by Bro. A. H. Smith, and then the sacrament was administered by Bro. Hilliard, some excellent testimonies borne, and the Saints felt comforted. Bro. A. H. Smith preached again at night. During the quarter thirteen have been added in this district. A good feeling prevailed, and a desire to forward the work of the Lord. Adjourned to meet at Springerton, White county, Illinois, Friday evening, before the third Sunday in March, 1887.

NEVADA.

The conference of the above district met in the school-house in Jack's Valley, Douglas county, Nevada; Elder Thomas Millard presiding. Owing to a deficient notice attendance was small. Elder Millard made a short address to the conference. Report of branches: Mottsville, no change; D. J. Jones president. Carson, no change; William Riddler president. Franktown and Elko not reported. Elders reports: A. B. Johns, Wm. Riddler, T. R. Hawkins, D. I. Jones, Thomas Millard. Teachers: John Walker. Bishop's Agent, A. B. Johns reports $44 on hand. Moved by T. R. Hawkins that we sustain the authorities of the church by faith and prayer. Elder Thomas Millard was chosen district president for the next three months, and A. D. Johns clerk. Afternoon, sacrament and testimony meeting. Adjourned to meet in three months, the place to be chosen by the president. A. D. Johns, clerk.

INDEPENDENCE.

The quarterly conference of the above district convened in Independence, Missouri, December 11th, 1886. T. E. Lloyd, vice president, in the chair; S. Crum clerk pro tem. Ministerial reports: F. C. Warnkey, F. G. Pitt (baptized 8), S. Maloney, J. W. Brackenbury (baptized 1), C. St. Clair, Joseph Luff, H. H. Robinson, J. Curtis, S. Crum, R. Etzenhouser, T. E. Lloyd, A. White, M. Shaw, B. Myers, T. W. Chatburn, Geo. Hayward, I. N. White (baptized 8); priests B. Austin, A. Cox, John Allison and D. Donovan. Branch reports.—Independence 465; including 1 apostle, 1 high priest, 3 seventies, 31 elders, 16 priests, 10 teachers, 11 deacons; 10 baptized, 8 received by letter, 7 removed, 1 died. Clintonville 23, including 3 elders, 1 priest, 6 baptized. Clinton branch 28, including 1 seventy, 2 priests, 1 deacon, 11 baptized, 2 received by letter, 2 removed. First Kansas City 28, including 2 elders, 2 priests, 1 deacon, 2 received by letter. District Treasurer's Report, read and approved, showing balance on hand of $8.40. Bishop's Agent, A. White, reported. Balance on hand at last report $252.77, received during quarter $249.50, total $502.27. Paid out $435.95, leaving balance on hand of $66.32. Statistical report shows an increase in the district during the last quarter of 39, removed 9, net increase 30. On motion the authorities of the Church were sustained. I. N. White was chosen president, E. Curtis vice president, T. W. Chatburn clerk, and F. G. Pitt district treasurer. On motion the president was requested to hold two days' meetings in all the branches of the district. Sunday 11 a. m., preaching by E. Curtis; 2 p. m., prayer meeting in charge of S. O. Wadell. The Spirit of the Lord was manifested, and the Saints rejoiced. At 7 p. m., preaching by H. H. Robinson. Adjourned to meet at Independence, Missouri, in March, [the date.—ED], 1887, at 10 a. m.

NORTH-EAST MISSOURI.

The above district conference convened at Bevier, Missouri, December 11th, 1886; John Taylor president, and John T. Williams clerk. The following branches reported: Bevier 129 members, including 6 elders, 4 priests, 4 teachers, and 2 deacons, 5 removed by letter, 6 received by letter, and 1 died. Renick 27 members, including 4 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher, and 1 deacon, 1 baptized, 1 removed by letter, and 1 died. Hannibal 25 members, including 2 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 10 scattered. Salt River, no report. Elders Henry Jones, J. T. Williams, Wm. Vincent (baptized 1), Richard R. Jones, Charles Perry, John Taylor, and priest Mark Surridge. The Bevier Branch made application to conference in behalf of Elder Ephraim Rowland, recommending him to have his license restored. Resolved that this conference appeal to the Third Quorum of Elders to sanction the same and furnish Bro. Rowland an Elder's License. Resolved that Elder J. T. Williams be recommended to Bishop G. A. Blakeslee to act as his agent for the North-East Missouri District. Resolved, that Bevier Branch officers visit the Salt River Branch once a month devoted to preaching the word of life. Resolved, that this conference reconsider the previous Resolution limiting our conferences to two a year, or semi-annually; hence it was resolved that this conference repeal that action and hold our conferences three times a year. Resolved, that this conference grant Elders' Licenses to Brn. Wm. Vincent and Richard R. Jones. The remainder of the day was devoted to preaching by Elders Wm. Vincent and R. R. Jones. Sunday morning at ten o'clock preaching by Elder John Taylor, on the fruits of unrighteousness, assisted by J. T. Williams. Sacrament was administered, and conducted by Brn. Wm. Vincent and R. R. Jones; strong testimonies were given, and a good degree of the Spirit of our Master enjoyed to the consolation of the Saints. Preaching in the evening by Brn. Henry Jones and John Taylor. Resolved, that this conference tender their respects and sympathies over the loss of our faithful and beloved brother, Robert Thrutchley, and that this resolution be published in the Herald as an act of respect to the memory of our departed brother. The authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Conference adjourned subject to the call of the president through the Herald.

FRESH AIR AND VENTILATION.

THE average amount of air breathed by every person is about twenty-four cubic inches at each breath, with about twenty respirations a minute. This would be a cubic foot in three minutes and a half, or 400 cubic feet in twenty-four hours, or the contents of a room seven feet square and eight feet high. But this is only a fiftieth part of what every healthy person needs, for breathing vitiates the air rapidly, because the air exhaled has 100 times as much carbonic acid gas as the atmosphere, while twice the amount contained in the atmosphere, or eight parts in 10,000, is as large a proportion as can be breathed without injury to the health. Crowded rooms in winter, schools, etc., are sometimes found to contain three or four times as much, and headaches and other ailments are the consequences of breathing the same air over and over again. There should, therefore, be enough fresh air for every person daily to amount to 20,000 cubic feet, or enough to fill eighteen rooms ten feet square and ten feet high. This would be amply supplied by an opening, tube, or orifice three inches square, with a moderate current. In the day time there is usually enough air introduced into rooms through opening doors, cracks in window casings, and in other ways. The chief danger is in sleeping rooms, where pains should be taken to have a circulation. When the room is warm, and the air outdoors quite cold, constant and often sufficient currents are caused. A hundred persons should have a ventilating orifice equal to two and a half feet square. The general principle seems to be simple enough; the difficulty lies in the unwillingness or neglect of people to apply it.

LIVE FOR SOMETHING.

THOUSANDS of men breathe, move, and live—pass off the stage of life, and are heard of no more. Why? They did not a particle of good in this world, and none were blessed by them; none could point to them as the instruments of their redemption; not a line they wrote, not a word they spoke could be recalled; and so they perished, their light went out in darkness, they were not remembered more than the insects of yesterday. Will you live and die O men immortal? Live for something. Do good, and leave behind you a monument of virtue that the storms of time can never destroy. Write your name by kindness, love, and mercy, on the hearts of the thousands you come in contact with year by year, and you will never be forgotten. No! your name, your deeds, will be as legible on the hearts you leave behind as the stars on the brow of evening. Good deeds will shine as brightly on the earth as the stars of heaven.

VICES OF OLD PEOPLE.

THE vices of old people have a deleterious effect on the young. There are young men, who, when converted, would abandon such vices as using tobacco, but they see older Christians indulging the habit, and conclude that perhaps it is not wrong. The first thing to be said to such young men is that they are not to take human beings as models. The good man argument is never safe. The fact that good men do certain things does not prove that the things are good. Good men have held mistaken notions about many things and afterward have become convinced of their mistake. Half a century ago the best men in the churches used rum. They had not yet learned that the practice was wrong. Now a man who uses it is far behind the times. Many men have not become convinced of the sinfulness of tobacco using, but those who have, must abandon the habit. Fifty years hence the churches will condemn the habit as they now condemn intemperance.—Selected.

THE Evangelist, speaking of the expression "elect infants," in the Presbyterian confession, asks: "Why not expunge what we do not believe?" The ground upon which the change is urged is thus stated: "When the confession says, 'Elect infants dying in infancy are saved,' does it not clearly imply that infants who are not elect are not saved? If it does not imply this the sentence is meaningless. We are aware that some masters in theology have a method of explaining away the natural and obvious intent of this unhappy phrase. But in our humble judgment the phrase does not need explaining, for the meaning lies on its face; it is as plain a sentence as ever was written in English. No man ever doubted its meaning, except that he recoiled from its natural and obvious sense, and therefore wished by some reconstruction to make it say what it does not say, and was never meant to say. It was very easy to say 'All infants dying in infancy are saved,' if that was what they believed. They did not say 'All infants are saved,' because they did not believe it. They believed that non-elect infants were lost, just as the Roman Catholic Church held that infants non-baptized were lost."

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, January 22, 1887.

A BROTHER thinks we erred when we said in a late HERALD, page twenty, that an elder when presiding over a sacrament meeting could call on a priest to bless the emblems when there was another elder present; and he cites Doc. Cov., 17: 10, to show that the presiding elder has no authority to do so. Paragraph 10 reads thus:

"The priest's duty is to preach, teach, expound, exhort and baptize, and administer the sacrament, and visit the house of each member, and exhort them to pray vocally and in secret, and attend to all family duties; and he may also ordain other priests, teachers, and deacons; and he is to take the lead of meetings when there is no elder present, but when there is an elder present he is only to preach, teach, expound, exhort and baptize, and visit the house of each member, exhorting them to pray vocally and in secret, and attend to all family duties. In all these duties the priest is to assist the elder if occasion requires."

This means that a priest of an organized branch which has a presiding elder "present" in said branch, may "preach, teach, expound, exhort and baptize, and visit the house of each member, exhorting them to pray vocally and in secret and attend to all family duties," and do these things as he may find opportunity, when he will and wherever there is a need of it. But he is not of his own volition to take the lead of meetings, administering the sacrament, nor ordain other officers when the presiding elder is present; yet, as the last clause of paragraph provides. "In all these duties [mentioned in that paragraph] the priest is to assist the elder if occasion requires."

But a priest is not authorized to ordain except in an organized branch; (sec. 17: 16); and then if the presiding elder is present, he may not take "the lead" in that matter, but he may "assist the elder if occasion requires." "And this rule applies to the branch meetings and its sacrament meetings.

When the law in paragraph 10 provides that "the priest is to assist the elder if occasion requires," "in all these duties" mentioned in that paragraph, it means precisely what it says, and is to be taken as qualifying and explaining that paragraph.

A branch priest, with the consent of the presiding elder, may hold meetings within the limits of the branch and may "preach . . . baptize," etc., at the same time that the presiding elder is holding his regular meetings, but it is not proper for such priest to either ordain, or administer the sacrament in his meetings unless "occasion requires" and he does so with the knowledge, consent and advice of the presiding elder, and in this way "assist the elder."

Can it be that a presiding elder may call on a priest to assist in the sacrament meetings when no other elder is present, but then when an elder enters that meeting the said Priest loses his authority to act! and when that elder steps out of said meeting, the priest's authority to act returns to him! This is not good law, nor the meaning of the passage quoted.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

STRENUOUS efforts were made to raise men and money to purchase land and make homes in Jackson county. The following letter of the First Presidency to Orson Hyde who was then with the Saints in the state of New York will serve to show their zeal and anxiety and persevering labors to reach these ends.

KIRTLAND, April 7th, 1834.

Dear Bro. Orson:—We received yours of the 31st ultimo, in due course of mail, and were much grieved on learning that you were not like to succeed according to our expectations. Myself, Brothers Newel, Frederic and Oliver, retired to the translating room, where prayer was wont to be made, and unbosomed our feelings before God, and can not but exercise faith yet that you, in the miraculous providence of God will succeed in obtaining help. The fact is, unless we can obtain help, I myself can not go to Zion, and if I do not go, it will be impossible to get my brethren in Kirtland, any of them, to go; and if we do not go, it is in vain for our eastern brethren to think of going up to better themselves by obtaining so goodly a land, (which now can be obtained for one dollar and a quarter per acre), and stand against that wicked mob; for unless they do the will of God, God will not help them, and if God does not help them, all is vain.

Now the fact is, this is the head of the church, and the life of the body, and those able men, as members of the body, God has appointed to be hands to administer to the necessities of the body. Now if a man's hand refuses to administer to the necessities of his body, it must perish of hunger; and if the body perish, all the members perish with it; and if the head fails, the whole body is sickened, the heart faints, and the body dies, the spirit takes its exit, and the carcase remains to be devoured by worms.

Now, Brother Orson, if this church, which is essaying to be the church of Christ, will not help us, when they can do it without sacrifice, with those blessings which God has bestowed upon them, I prophecy, I speak the truth, I lie not, God shall take away their talent and give it to those who have no talent, and shall prevent them from ever obtaining a place of refuge, or an inheritance upon the land of Zion: therefore they may tarry, for they might as well be overtaken where they are, as to incur the displeasure of God and fall under his wrath by the way side, as to fall into the hands of a merciless mob, where there is no God to deliver, as salt that has lost its savor, and thenceforth good for nothing, but to be trodden under foot of men.

I therefore adjure you to beseech them, in the name of the Lord, by the Son of God, to lend us a helping hand; and if all this will not soften their hearts, to administer to our necessity for Zion's sake, turn your back upon them and return speedily to Kirtland, and the blood of Zion be upon their heads, even as upon the heads of her enemies, and let their recompense be as the recompense of her enemies, for thus shall it come to pass, saith the Lord of Hosts, who has the cattle upon a thousand hills, who has put forth his Almighty hand to bring to pass his strange act; and what man shall put forth his hand to steady the ark of God or be found turning a deaf ear to the voice of his servant, God shall speak in due time, and all will be declared, Amen.

Your brethren in the New Covenant,

JOSEPH SMITH, Jun.,

OLIVER COWDERY.

To further show that the Church determined to use every peaceful, legal means to have their wrongs redressed, we present the reader this Petition sent by the church to the President of the United States:

LIBERTY, Clay Co., Missouri,
April 10th, 1834.

To the President of the United States of America:

We, the undersigned, your petitioners, citizens of the United States of America, and residents of the county of Clay, in the state of Missouri, being members of the Church of Christ, reproachfully called Mormons, beg leave to refer the President to our former petition, dated in October last, and also to lay before him the accompanying hand-bill, dated December 12th, 1833, with assurances that the said hand-bill exhibits but a faint sketch of the sufferings of your petitioners and their brethren up to the period of its publication.

The said hand-bill shows, that at the time of dispersion, a number of our families fled into the new and unsettled county of Van Buren, but being unable to procure provisions in that county through the winter, many of them were compelled to return to their homes in Jackson county or perish with hunger. But they had no sooner set foot upon the soil, which a few months before we had purchased of the United States, than they were again met by the citizens of Jackson county, and a renewal of savage barbarities inflicted upon these families by beating with clubs and sticks, presenting knives and fire arms, and threatening with death if they did not flee from the county—these inhuman assaults, upon a number of these families, were repeated at two or three different times through the past winter, till they were compelled at last to abandon their possessions in Jackson county and flee with their mangled bodies into this county, here to mingle their tears and unite their supplications, with hundreds of their brethren to our Heavenly Father, and to the chief ruler of our nation.

Between one and two thousand of the people called Mormons have been driven by force of arms from Jackson county, in this state, since the first of November last, being compelled to leave their highly cultivated fields, the greater part of which had been bought of the United States, and all this on account of our belief in direct revelation from God to the children of men, according to the Holy Scriptures. We know that such illegal violence has not been inflicted upon any sect or community of people by the citizens of the United States since the Declaration of Independence.

That this is a religious persecution, is notorious throughout our county; for while the officers of the county, both civil and military, were accomplices in these unparalleled outrages, engaged in the destruction of the printing office, dwelling houses, &c.; yet the records of the judicial tribunals of that county are not stained with a crime against our people. Our numbers being greatly inferior to the enemy, we were unable to stand up in self-defence; and our lives, at this day, are continually threatened by that infuriated people, so that our personal safety forbids one of our number going into that county on business.

We beg leave to state that no impartial investigation into this criminal matter can be made, because the offenders must be tried in the county where the offence was committed, and the inhabitants of the county, both magistrates and people were combined, with the exception of a few; [and] justice can not be expected. At this day your petitioners do not know of a solitary family belonging to our church but what have been violently expelled from Jackson county by the inhabitants thereof.

Your petitioners have not gone into detail with an account of their individual sufferings from death and bruised bodies and the universal distress which prevails at this day, in a greater or less degree, throughout our whole body. Not only because those sacred rights guaranteed to every religious sect have been publicly invaded, in open hostility to the spirit and genius of free government, but such of their houses as have not been burnt, their lands and most of the products of the labor of their hands for the last year have been wrested from them by a band of outlaws, congregated in Jackson county on the western frontiers of the United States, within about thirty miles of the United States military post at Fort Leavenworth, on the Missouri river.

Your petitioners say that they do not enter a minute detail of the sufferings in this petition, lest they should weary the patience of the venerable chief whose arduous duties they know are great, and daily accumulating. We only hope to show him that [in] this unprecedented emergency in the history of our country,—that the magistracy thereof is set at defiance, and justice checked in open violation of its laws, and that we, your petitioners, who are almost wholly native born citizens of these United States, of whom they purchased their lands in Jackson county, Missouri, with intent to cultivate the same as peaceable citizens, are now forced from them, and dwelling in the counties of Clay, Ray, and Lafayette in the state of Missouri, without permanent homes, and suffering all the privations which must necessarily result from such inhuman treatment. Under these sufferings your petitioners petitioned the governor of this state, in December last, in answer to which, we received the following letter:

The above mentioned letter we published in this article in the HERALD for the 8th instant, pages 18, 19, to which we refer the reader.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BISHOP George A. Blakeslee, and Bro. Phineas Cadwell, were visitors at Lamoni, Monday and Tuesday, January 10th and 11th, in attendance at a meeting of the Board of Publication. Bro. Blakeslee addressed the Saints on Sunday evening upon the subject of the temporal law of the church, enjoying good liberty and making some good points. The Saints were pleased to see and hear him. Bro. Cadwell led the prayer at the morning service. Bro. Robert Holt of Kewanee, also visiting at Lamoni, led the prayer in the evening service. All were pleased that these brethren were with us on Sunday, the 9th. Brn. Blakeslee and Cadwell left for their homes on Tuesday afternoon. At the meeting of the Board Bro. E. Banta resigned the office of Treasurer of the Board, and Bro. David Dancer was appointed to succeed him. The meeting of the Board was a pleasant and harmonious one.

Bro. R. J. Anthony writes from Salt Lake City, Utah, January 7th quite encouragingly of the prospects in the mission there. Brethren Peter Anderson of Sandhedens Banner, and Bro. John Larson are doing excellent work. Bro. Samuel Eckersly, of Richmond, Utah, wrote that Brn. Anderson and Larson had visited him and done him much good. Opportunity for gospel labor while they were at Richmond was not favorable.

Bro. George A. Blakeslee reports that Bro. B. V. Springer is doing an excellent work in the corners of Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. He has baptized three of late.

Bro. J. M. Wait, wrote from Aniwa, Wisconsin, January 5th, that it was expected that a branch would be organized at Antigo soon. He reports the names of some baptized at Antigo.

On the 8th inst., we learned by letter that brother John Eames of Cheyenne, Wyoming, lately stopping for his health at Omaha, Nebraska, had so far recovered his health that he intended to start home the next day. We very much hope Bro. John may enjoy many healthful, happy, useful years in the future.

Sr. D. Chapman writes from Clinton, Iowa, that the affairs of the branch are looking up of late. They had a sacramental meeting not long since, at which they had a season of rejoicing.

We publish a letter from Elder E. H. Gurley, in answer to a late letter of Bro. J. R. Lambert. We are not conversant with the affair not having been present at any of the meetings. One thing is certain, however, that Elder Gurley seems to be unnecessarily indignant because that Bro. Lambert's opinion differs from his; Bro. Lambert thinking Elder Gurley's attack to be "bitter and unfair;" Elder Gurley thinking what he said to be very fair and said in "strong love for the church."

Sister Ella M. Fuhr writes from Grove Hill, Bremer county, Iowa, that she is all alone in the faith there, and she asks, "Can not some of the elders come this way sometime to break the bread of life. Souls are perishing around me for the lack of it." Sr. Fuhr was formerly Sr. Ella M. Smith, of Goshen, Clay county, Kansas.

In another place will be found a card from Business Manager, David Dancer, to those owing the Herald Office. All to whom it applies should read it and comply with it so far as they can. It will also be seen in another place that the price of some publications are reduced largely.

Bro. M. T. Short was at Victoria, Illinois, on the 5th inst., and says:—"I am here in the harness, battling for the right. I just opened up in this section yesternight, and prospects are flattering."

Bro. A. Haws writes of late that he thinks the Publication Board should cheapen the price of their publications. They will gladly do this if their sales can be made much larger, or if persons will donate liberally for that purpose. The HERALD is one of the very cheapest papers in America for its size and the number of its subscribers, except where the columns are largely filled with advertisements.

Bro. Henry Kemp wrote from Wheeler's Grove, Iowa, the 5th instant, had been preaching to fair audiences, and intended to remain over the 9th instant, and then go to Farm Creek and Glenwood. He says the Saints there are alive to the work, and that he is putting in his time the best he can, and also that he has the liberty and comfort of the Spirit to bless his efforts.

"A Subscriber" well said in the HERALD for June, 1886, page 381,—"The circulation of the Herald is, I believe, not over 4,000 paying subscribers, and many of those are retained on the list long after their subscription has expired. There are papers with a circulation of from 15,000 to 26,000 paying subscribers at the same price the Herald is furnished to us, and some of them furnish far less reading matter because the type is larger, and in addition to this they are largely supported by a long list of well paid advertisements."

The Interstate Publishing Company, Chicago, Illinois, have send us a copy of "School Room Games and Exercises," written by Elizabeth Y. Bainbridge, a teacher of experience and ability. Many of the games lead to exactly the same results as what are called serious studies, and there are none of them but what call for some healthy exercise of the mind. The volume has been compiled from many sources, and is one which can be warmly and conscientiously commended to school superintendents and school teachers everywhere. Price, 75 cents.

Bro. J. W. Moxon is teaching school at Buffalo Prairie, Illinois, and is doing well, so he wrote January 8th.

Bro. William Birk, of Allendale, Missouri, was at Lamoni, January 13th, arranging with Bro. Henry A. Stebbins for a series of meetings in the Saints' new church at that place. Brethren Stebbins and Charles H. Jones will begin January 15th, the Lord willing.

Bro. J. R. Lambert, accompanied by Bro. A. J. Moore, begin a series of meetings near Pleasanton, Iowa, on the 15th instant.

Bro. John Lewis of Malad City, Idaho, is mentioned in the Idaho, Enterprise, thus: "Ex-Judge Lewis gave another lecture last Tuesday evening in the Josephite chapel, on the 20th chapter of Isaiah."

Bro. John S. Keir writes from Braidwood, Illinois, January 12th, that the branch at that place is again satisfactorily organized, and things working smoothly once more. Bro. F. M. Cooper and Bro. Keir were moving together to preach the word in neighboring localities.

The children and students of the Saints interested in the history of the United States, and its material progress and prosperity, will be interested in the following item of news from a late Chicago Times. "Dr. William Perry, the oldest graduate of Harvard college, and the last survivor of Fulton's steamboat ride down the Hudson river, expired yesterday at Exeter, New Hampshire, at the age of 98."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—If the law referred to by James 1:25, is the gospel Paul speaks of in Romans 1:16, and that gospel is designated by principles as Paul speaks of in Hebrews 6, and that being established fully on the day of Pentecost, and his servants forbidden to preach anything else; and by obedience to the principles man had the promise of the abiding comforter; then could we conclude that Cornelius did receive the abiding Comforter without observance of the laying on of hands? If God changed the order after Pentecost, and bestowed it on him the same way, could we say God was perfect and his law was perfect? If he thus discarded that one principle then, would there not be good reasons to believe he would do it again?

Ans.—The case of Cornelius was an exception to the general rule, and the conferring of the Spirit upon him and his house, as stated, was for the purpose of overcoming the prejudice of Peter, upon whom tradition has fastened it; and to convince him that the Gentiles were to be made partakers of the gospel provisions and promises. This is abundantly shown by the statement of Peter when he says: "I perceive that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation, he that feareth him is accepted of him." There is no more reason to suppose that God would vary from his law given in the gospel, because he conferred the Spirit upon Cornelius, than there is to suppose that he would convert all men as he did Saul of Tarsus, instead of by preaching the word unto them by his ministers. The fact that God did not continue to put his Spirit upon the Gentiles and others without the ordinance of the laying on of hands is good evidence that he proposed to honor the "law of the Lord" as given by his Son.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. A. Currie wrote from Medina City, Texas, of late, as follows:

"Have been traveling with Bro. I. N. Roberts near three months, and he has certainly fulfilled the command, "Let the strong bear with the weak." He has been as a father to me; never rebuking, but teaching in love. I will regret to see the day when we must part. May God ever bless him. I shall do all I can to keep the trust reposed in me here. Opposition is very high at this place. I was introduced to the school teacher, (he is a Baptist preacher), and he would not speak. He failed to recognize me! How can he cry, "Be free from prejudice?"

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"When He who sad and weary, longing sore
For love's sweet service, sought the sisters' door,
One saw the heavenly, one the human guest,
But who shall say which loved the Master best?"

MOTHERS!

BECAUSE of our position editorially, we are brought into close contact with the mothers in Zion, and many times, as it were, they open to us the door of that sacred sanctuary, home, and bid us welcome to their board and fireside. It is because of this that we come to you to-day, bringing for your acceptance, at least for your kindly consideration, a few of the many thoughts which have been passing through our mind for the past weeks. We do this with the greater assurance, because confirmatory evidence has been given us that we have not been misled by these silent teachers, but that on the contrary God has more fully revealed his purposes to others than he has to us, and we find there is perfect harmony existing between our own leadings and the revelations made to them. The burden of many a letter which comes to us is, "O, that I could do more for the upbuilding of the glorious work of these latter days!" We know these expressions come from the heart, and our own heart responds to them, and it is because we know this that we come to you to-day—come in the fear of the Master and say to you, "There is a great work within the reach of every mother in Zion to do. The work is heaven appointed, and the messenger is whispering in the soul of each one, and the voice is being heard as if spoken in the ear,

"Do thy duty, that is best;
Leave unto the Lord the rest!"

There is a cry passing through the camp of modern Israel—a cry to arms and a call both long and loud for volunteers. The great events of the latter days are crowding to the front, and empires and kingdoms are being shaken from center to circumference.

"God is marshaling his armies
For the conflict of the truth."

Over the threshold of our homes are those soldiers one by one to pass out, either to be upon the Lord's side, or to join the ranks and swell the numbers of the adversary of all righteousness. What of their armor? Is there, can there be found a more important work than rests upon every mother in Zion to-day. Who is equal to it? We ask you to read once more carefully and prayerfully the letter of "Sister Emma" in Herald of January 1st. Obedience to all properly constituted authority is the key note of salvation. Are we teaching our children obedience, or suffering the devil to instil into their minds his favorite doctrine, disobedience?

It is time that we set to work in earnest, for we tell you that God has apportioned us a work individual and collective; has designed a part and place especially for the daughters of Zion in bringing to pass his righteousness in the latter days, and to some he has made this work known, and in fulfillment of his plan it has already begun. Into each household enters the human and the heavenly guest, and it stands us in hand to be very careful that one is not entertained at the expense of the other. Nothing can absolve the mother from the sin of neglecting the altar of HOME, and if all her time is demanded there, God, nor the world has any other claim upon her. Better one meal a day and but one change of raiment, than fine linen upon the body, while the soul is unkept and the wisdom of God unsought. From a dearly bought experience we write of this to-day, and while we thank God for his many tender mercies, among the greatest of these we recognize that loving forbearance which has followed us all our lives and brought us to a knowledge of many of our sins. Sisters, daughters and mothers in Zion, let us buckle on our armor anew. Let us seek day by day to discharge our duty faithfully and conscientiously; in our homes first, and then if the Master has other work for us to do, let us not fear but he will make it known to us. Doubtless when the Savior came to Bethany, footsore and weary, he needed more sorely the refreshment nature demanded than the eager desire evinced by Mary to honor him as her heavenly Teacher. But ever forgetful of self, he imparted to her freely of heavenly things, while he waited for those earthly comforts Martha was preparing, and feeling, like many of us upon similar occasions, that it was not quite fair to be left to do it all herself, without her sister's help. The simple poem we give below commends itself to us for the truth and simplicity of its thoughts, and we feel that when such hands—hard and toil-worn, are at last folded to rest, over hearts stilled forever, they have left behind them a record over which even the angels may rejoice. O mothers, toiling and lonely mothers and sisters, let your heart be stayed on God. Are not the hairs of your heads numbered, and not a sparrow falls to the ground without your Father's notice. Make him the confidant of every trial; at his feet lay down every burden, and tell him it is too great for you to carry alone. It was because he knew that your strength was not equal to it that he said, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest." Ask him for the wisdom you need, and wait upon him patiently day by day. There is but an hour longer of watching and waiting for us. Can we not spend it in prayer with him? Oh, if but a glimpse of that glory which is to be revealed could open to our view! This may not be; we must walk by faith; but strangest of strange mysteries that we can not trust him who has given his life for us.

HER GIFT.

"O precious heart of hearts, that bled for me!
May I not bring some offering to lay
Upon thy altar? 'Tis the close of day,
Yet have I brought no gift, dear Lord, to thee!"

"No offering!" O true heart, hush thy moan;
Look on those hands, grown hard with toil for those
You love. Look with the eyes that others' woes
Have caused to weep, but wept not for thine own!

O great unselfish heart, that, for the sake
Of others, hid the pain it still must bear,
The sharp, quick pang of grief, the wasting care,
All hidden lest some other's heart should break!

And is this naught? Ask Him who died for thee.
Ask Him who lives for thee and who has said,
'And inasmuch as ye have given bread
To these, my little ones, ye gave to me!'"

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 12th, 1887.

HARVARD, January 3d.

Dear Sister Frances:—I love the "Home Column" because it is a help to me, and I try to profit by what I learn from it. I was deeply moved while reading your plea, put forth in behalf of the cause, in regard to the elders being kept at home for want of means to keep them in the field. I could not restrain the tears, and I then and there, determined that if I could not surround myself with beautiful things, and dress myself and children to suit my taste, (which is naturally extravagant), and still have something left to help the cause, the rest must all go, for I love the cause the best, and will try and wait for the beautiful things which God has promised as a part of the reward when the work is done. Were it not for the privilege we have of sacrificing, how could we show by our works that we truly love the gospel of Christ? By their works ye shall know them."

Your sister,

I. M. WEBSTER.

NAMBUCCA, Australia, Nov. 22d.

Dear Sisters:—This morning is very rainy and would be quite gloomy away off here among the hills, were not my thoughts all absorbed in the one great cause—the upbuilding of Zion. My heart goes out towards the laborers in this cause, who are far away, especially the sisters. I long to meet and mingle with them, and pray God may give each one wisdom and understanding both to instruct and to receive instruction, as the need may be. I fully concur in the sentiment expressed by a sister not long since, that "we can not afford to do without the Mothers' Column again." No, we can not, without suffering loss; for this little Mothers' Column is no other than the work of the Lord, brought about in his own time, and for an especial purpose. I do not say this of myself only; and for the encouragement of all who are interested in the work, I will give my reason for so saying, that the Mothers in Israel may lay the matter more deeply to heart, and the more earnestly seek wisdom from above. Bro. D. S. Mills, (that mighty man of valor), related a portion of a vision which he received just prior to our leaving California for Australia. He said he was in the vision all the fore part of the day; was not unconscious of his surroundings, but at the same time seemed to be living in, or passing through the different stages of the great work which was about to be enacted. He looked forward to the event of Bro. Joseph's going to Utah, as the beginning of the end. But using his own words: "I had no idea what a vast work remained yet to be accomplished before the end, before even the Saints were prepared for the coming of Christ." He only gave a few items, and that very reluctantly; among them were "The Mothers in Israel, principally those of experience, had a very necessary part to perform"—a work that none but mothers could do; but would be assisted by many of the younger sisters; that soon there would be a paper started in connection with the Herald at first, but edited and carried on exclusively by the sisters, through which they were to instruct the sisters, and especially the young mothers; and those who were faithful would be blessed with such wisdom and knowledge, which if heeded, would relieve much pain and suffering."

I do not know as it is wisdom to give any more at present. I hope Bro. Mills will pardon the liberty I have thus far taken; am sure it will be confirmation to many, that the establishing of the Mothers' Home Column was not merely to gratify the caprice of a few. The time had come when the latter day work required it, and the Lord wrought on the minds of some to make the request, and on the hearts of others to grant it; and may the same spirit ever direct in maintaining it. And I hope this will not deter any from writing on any, or all subjects that will be of interest, or beneficial to its many readers—as the "editor" has invited all so to do.

The harmonious promptings of the Spirit in this work is something beautiful, if one takes notice of it; distance between the members is as nothing in our sense. The Spirit whispers to us, away out here in Australia the same things, at the same time as to the body of the Saints in America. I feel a deeper interest in this work during the past year than ever before, or more thoroughly engaged in it; and I ask myself sometimes, Is it for the good of others, that I wish to loose sight of all other interests, and be entirely devoted to this work? or is it because the "crumbs" which I receive "from my Master's table" are so delicious, I wish always to be receiving them? The Lord seems very near to us sometimes, and has given such marked evidences of his favor, I will praise him with my whole heart.

SISTER EMMA.

WEBB CITY, Mo., January 1st.

Dear Sisters:—At the beginning of the New Year I wish to add my mite to the Mothers' Home Column; that name mother strikes me as something very sacred. Mother's is the first voice the babe learns to know. How soon babies learn to look when they hear her coming and we look at their innocent faces with the tears sparkling in their eyes, and think how helpless they are and how fully they trust to our care. If they see we are troubled how often have we seen the sympathizing tear in their eyes, and we look at their innocent little wishful faces and think of this wicked world and ask the Lord to spare our lives to shield them from the vice and sin by which they will be surrounded. We see them approaching manhood and womanhood, and they still need the assistance of mother. They may appear indifferent at times, but let their minds become troubled and they will go to mother; and even if they do not go, the desire is there, at least. Do not let us think because we can not stand the storms, and earn the living that we are of little use, for the wisest and best men are those who gave their mothers credit for their early training. It was woman who was first at the sepulchre.

It seems as if the responsibility is even greater on the mother in raising a family than the father, as it falls to her lot to watch over and care for the little ones. If they are sick the mother knows just how bad they are and just what they need; that is, if she has had any chance to learn. I have seen mothers who were to be pitied, for they had not had the training to fit them for the place they occupied. Mothers, did you ever feel as dependent on the Lord as your little ones do upon you? I can say I have, and when I come to that dependence I have always found him as willing to bestow blessings as we are to care for our dear ones. Not long since my little girl was very sick with typhoid fever. We called in the elders and she was administered to, but it seemed as if she grew worse, and I told my husband she was worse, that we were not exercising that faith we should, and he said, Had we not better call in a doctor? These words caused a shiver to pass over me, as the name doctor had once before, and I said that would be certain death now; she is so low, there is nothing but the power of God can save our child, and if she dies I will stand the blame of the world, for I can not give my consent to call for any doctor. I feared God. After calling on his name then to resort to man? No, never; and we then had her administered to again. I knew a portion of the Spirit was present, but I could not receive a testimony that she would get well. This was Thursday, and Friday night after prayers, I felt we had come down in that depth of humility that we had conquered every evil spirit, and our child began to mend. And Saints, let me tell you that there is power in prayer. I have tested it time and again. I have had my children healed when they were very sick, in a day's time; but this time it was two weeks before this one could walk from the chair to the bed, after she began to mend. To God be all the praise. Let us trust him as Martha did when she said, "Lord, if thou hadst been here my brother had not died." Wishing you all a happy new year, I am your sister,

R. M. BRADLEY.

FAMILY GOVERNMENT.

A WRITER in the Christian Union, speaking up on this important subject, says:

"I can not help thinking that a set of Jacob Abbott's Franconia Stories placed in the hands of every family in the United States would do away with nine-tenths of the trials and sufferings of parents and children. For instance, Beechnut's five rules for the government:

- "1.—When you consent, consent cordially.
- "2.—When you refuse, refuse finally.
- "3.—When you punish, punish good naturedly.
- "4.—Commend often.
- "5.—Never scold.

"I think these five little dicta embody all that is necessary in home government. I read these stories when a child thirty years ago, and when I came to have children of my own, my first thing to do when they got old enough to understand was to sit and read to them these intensely interesting tales of quiet domestic life."

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec 12th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—I come once more to visit the Mothers' Home Column. Do I hear you say "Come in?" I often wish to meet you. When I read the interesting and instructive letters from my sisters I feel encouraged to press on and upward toward the bright world we started for, when we went down into the waters of baptism. How often my feet turn aside. It is very hard to keep in the right way, and I see my imperfections more and more each day I live. I can say with one of old "When I would do good evil is present with me." The blessed thought if we are faithful we shall enter in, and have an abiding place, in a mansion prepared for us, where there will be no more temptation to sin.

No more sorrow, no more sighing, cheers me onward.
No more sickness, no more dying.
Peace and rest, forever more
To those, who enter the heavenly door.

May we ever be faithful to covenants made to our Father, is the prayer of your sister.

In gospel bonds,

LUCY B. MERRILL.

Correspondence.

SEDGWICK, Maine, Dec. 31st.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Zion's cause prospers hereabouts as far as my knowledge goes. I spent part of my time during the fall in the Massachusetts District. Bro. Bond spent a portion of the summer with me in Maine. It cheers as well as edifies the Saints through Maine to receive visits from western Elders. As Bro. Bond reported our trip, I forbear. My experience while at home this fall, where my family reside, was of an interesting nature. When I moved there a year ago, it was a puzzle to me why circumstances had so rendered it. On my first visit home after my family moved there, I was invited by the pastor of the Baptist church to preach for him. This gave me a public introduction to the people of the town without any pre-arrangement on my part. Although some opposition ensued, it only stimulated enquiry as to who and what I was. While at home this fall I attended service at the Free Will Baptist church and was invited by the minister to occupy the pulpit with him and re-requested to preach, which I declined, because he had his manuscript on the desk before him ready to preach. I however agreed to preach for him that evening, which I did, and a housefull greeted me. At the close of the service I was requested by the Methodists to preach for them the following Sunday. This I considered complimentary, (for the Methodists were to open up their new place for the first time), to allow me to sort of dedicate for them, and I certainly appreciated it. The M. E. pastor took charge, and I preached to an overflowing house. The pastor appeared satisfied, and he engaged me for the Sunday following. He talked very strongly of the sectarian bias, &c. There was present that day a lady preacher of the Unitarian faith, from Boston, who also has something of a record on the temperance rostrum. I asked the M. E. pastor for the use of his pulpit for her, but he refused on account of her not being orthodox. I was amused, and thought things had come to a pretty pass when the "sect every where spoken evil against" was preferred to that exceedingly respectable and very high toned church—the Unitarian. I thought of Hood's poem: "Alas for the rarity of Christian charity," under the Methodists. I managed, however, to secure the place afterwards for myself, and invited the Unitarian lady to preach under my auspices, which she did, and I went on record on the question of "a free pulpit." I thought I could afford to sacrifice Methodist friendship for the principle involved. But somehow it did not, for their arms when we parted were still extended in welcome for me to come and preach again when I returned. The following Sunday I occupied the pulpit with the Freewill Baptist in the forenoon, and preached in the Methodist Church in the evening, ordering it so as not to interfere with the meetings of the other churches, and a good audience was present. Invitations to preach in other places in the suburbs have since come in, which we hope to attend to as opportunity offers. Such ovations of friendship and favor are cheering. But as there is no rose without a thorn, I expect his Satanic majesty will show his hand, for I don't flatter myself that he sleepeth, unless it is to redouble his forces for an attack. It does seem as if "favor in the eyes of the people" is to be granted us sufficient for the "gospel of the kingdom" to be preached as destined.

Nov. 30th.—I left home for Rockland, the home of sister Murry, who was so wonderfully healed of a cancer by the church ordinance as administered by brethren Pert, E. L. Kelley and myself, some years ago. She still enjoys good health and gospel faith. From there I went to Green's Landing, and met Bro. U. W. Green, a young man who has just attained his majority, who entered my field of labor last summer as a gospel missionary. This bud of promise is fragrant for good, and immortal laurels undoubtedly await him if faithful to the conditions of the race that we are called to run. Confidence, thus far, has not diminished in him.

At Green's Landing a revival had been going on; several were "saved" after their manner of salvation; but the evangelist went away and did not tell them what church to join. They called a meeting for the purpose of deciding what one to join. It was amusing to see the different pastors gather with them to enable them to decide. I would not be hasty in judging, but it did seem that some "wire pulling" had been done previous to the caucus.

We held meetings while there in the Saints' Chapel, fair audiences attending. Bro. Green and I then went to West Surrey. He had been there a short time previous and held some meetings, assisted by Bro. G. W. Eaton, and W. G. Pert, district president. We there found an elder of the Adventists holding forth; but our appointment ante-dating his, he gave way for us and essayed to join in with us in getting up a "reformation." So we yoked up; but we were advised by some to say nothing about doctrine, for fear of breaking up the reformation, &c. As we had only learned Christ by the doctrine of Christ, we could not agree to compromise in any such way. As the meetings progressed the contrast between truth and error became painfully apparent to those holding the latter. Our Advent yoke-fellow began to show symptoms of uneasiness, and the yoke being too heavy, he pulled off entirely when we preached on Isaiah twenty-ninth, taking with him some of the Baptists, including the minister, and they held meetings at a private house. Strange things occur sometimes, and here was one of them. These Baptists, prior to our going there, dis-fellowshipped some of their members for going to the Advent meetings, but they joined in with them willingly to fight against us; and when a man there of sceptical proclivities attacked us on the inspiration of the Bible, both Adventists and Baptists joined against us, not even caring if the Bible went down with us. We have yet, in our experience, to see the "Ensign" furl in defeat from such forces, singly or combined. The Adventist left the place, and we continued to preach to good audiences "the wonderful words of life." Our real friends were confirmed, while they that despised "grew harder still." The prospect for an ingathering there are no less than when we commenced, and probably we will reap if we faint not.

The year now passing has been one of success for the work in Maine. Several have been baptized. Bro. G. W. Eaton, of pioneer fame here, is preparing for more active service. I learn that Bro. S. O. Foss, of the Eastern district, has donned the gospel armor for constant work, assisted by Bro. J. Benner; all of which we hail with joy, and is of good omen.

Yours for the end,

FRANK M. SHEEHY.

BOX ELDER, Colo., Jan. 4th.

Dear Herald:—The work is moving in this part. The Lord has planted a branch of the true vine here, of ten members. We ought to give earnest heed to the things which we have heard lest at any time we should let them slip.

I am trusting in my heavenly Father as I ever have been since I was made an heir of his kingdom, and am trying to learn my duty as it is given in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants. We had a visit from Elders James Kemp and John Eames who gave us the bread of life freely, and we thank them, and say, Come again. Bro. James Caffall also come to our help, and we thank God for his counsel which I hope will remain with us while we are called to do duty in this life.

I would say to all who are in want of a home, that here in this country there are plenty of good cheap homes to be had. It is a good country for raising stock, plenty of timber, good water, and there is a good opening for a blacksmith. If any person wishes to know more of these matters they can address me.

Yours in gospel bonds,

W. H. BARRETT.

BANDERA, Texas, Jan. 5th.

Dear Herald:—Since writing you in October I have labored in Bexar, Wilson, Atascosa and Bandera counties; have been greatly blessed with the Spirit of God, in preaching the word of truth and regulating some disorganized branches, and by the help of God, myself and brother J. A. Currie succeeded in reorganizing the Oakland Branch, with Brother Absalom Kuykendall president, and John Barber, sen., clerk. The name of Oak Island was dropped, and the name Oakwood substituted. The Stockdale Branch, all moved away but four. Some interest was manifested by outsiders.

On the 30th of December we organized a branch at Medina City, Bandera county, brother J. A. Currie, Jr., president, sister Hattie Wight, clerk. Prospects are good for others to obey soon. I bade the Saints and friends good bye at Medina on the third inst., and came to this place the fourth inst., and will begin meetings to-night. Hope to reorganize the branch here before I leave. I will miss my traveling companion, Bro. J. A. Currie, as I had to leave him at Medina. May God bless him and the flock under his care.

I send you a copy of a letter written by Mrs. Laura W. McNeill, to her husband, foretelling her death. The letter was written Nov. 27th, 1886, she was confined December the first, and died December the 30th, 1886. The following is her letter.

I. N. ROBERTS.

"MADINA, CITY, Texas, Nov. 27th.

My Dear Husband:—Feeling how uncertain life is to one in my situation, I want to leave you some sentiments of my love and esteem. No human being could have been more devoted and universally kind than you have always been to me. I love and respect you above every one. The happiest portion of my life has been spent with you. I have never had a regret or wished it different in any respect. Now my dear husband, I hope and believe you will lead a sober, virtuous, and Christian life. I trust, God for Christ's sake has forgiven all my sins, and will take me to heaven where I will wait and watch for you. Should our child survive me, endeavor to raise it right. If there is ever anything coming to me from my father's estate I wish you to have it. My breast-pin, give to Clara McClellan, and my bracelets to Annie Saunders. Sometimes think of your devoted wife. Good bye my dearest.

Your own,

LAURA L. MCNEILL.

P. S.—I have only one request to make. Wont you please quit selling goods on the Lord's day?

I heard the letter read at the funeral.

Yours for the truth,

I. N. ROBERTS.

No. 99, Henry Avenue,

EAST NEW YORK, N. Y.,

January 5th, 1887.

Brethren and Sisters of the Philadelphia District:

—As I was appointed at our last district conference to take the oversight of the same, and as I have not had the time and means to visit the branches, as I would like, I take this means of addressing you, hoping thereby you will be able to understand me, and the duty that I am called to perform; as the time will soon arrive for us to meet in conference; and we read in Book of Commandments, sec. 17, p. 13: "And said conferences are to do whatever church business is necessary to be done at the time."

Dear brethren, as elders and priests, let us try and think wisely before we come together, as to what is best to be done, and how to do it; and let us remember that we are called to be the saviors of men, and the salt of the earth. I say again, let us try and think more wisely than we have in the past. When I think of the great commandments God has given to us, I fear I have not heeded them as I ought. Dear brethren, I would like to call your attention to the 78th Psalm, Inspired Translation, from first to eleventh verses. We will find food for some thoughts that may help us when we shall meet. I would like to see all the officials of the district attend our next conference, and as many of the members as can come, and help in the spirit of the Lord to move on the work, to the salvation of souls. Dear sisters, let us remember the words of Sister Emma Smith, the mother of our present prophet of the Lord, when she in company with her son was going to the conference; she said, "Whenever she undertook to do anything for the Lord, the evil one always has tried to prevent her from doing it." So we may experience some trials. The apostle Paul seems to have had the same experience, "When I would do good, I find evil to be present with me." Again the Lord has called us out of the world that we should not be of the world. How do these things compare with our lives? I hope the sisters will come, one and all, with their might, to be present at the conference; and let us pray the Lord to meet with us and make one in our midst. I hope the elders will try and get on the whole armor of God, and come ready to preach the word, to heal up the broken hearted, and strengthen the feeble knees; and pray the Lord to again remember bleeding Zion, and comfort her once more.

If there should be any of the traveling ministry who can attend our conference, I shall be pleased to have them come. We will give due notice in the Herald as to time and place of meeting.

Your brother in Christ,

JOSEPH SQUIRE, Sen.

NEWPORT, Nova Scotia, Dec. 20th.

Bro. Joseph:—We have just received a letter from Bro. J. F. Burton, now in Australia, in which he tries to stir us up by way of remembrance of the seasons we together enjoyed; while he and sister Burton sojourned in this country. While we think on these things there is a degree of thankfulness arises within, to know that we have been brought from nature's darkness into the light and liberty of the gospel; and again we ask ourselves are we making any sacrifice to bring others to this light? Christ said "Ye are the light of the world, a city set on a hill can not be hid." We sometimes ask ourselves, are we striving to be a light in this country; or are we hiding our talents in the earth? Are we as salt that has lost its savor? If so, we will be trodden under foot of men, and we will have no trouble in this country to find men ready to do this. My attention has been called this last few weeks to the calamities and judgments that are abroad in our own land. Men's hearts are failing for fear of these things; the signs bespeak Christ's coming near. In view of these things we would ask ourselves, and all the scattered Saints in Nova Scotia, are we among those who have made a covenant with God by sacrifices. Let us gird on the armor and go forth to the battle; there is no discount about the work we are engaged in. It will give double interest; and the more work the more reward. Remember, God asks nothing of us without offering reward. Brethren, seeing we look for such things let us be diligent, that we honor and magnify our calling. Let us remember that it is those who make themselves ready that shall be called the bride, the Lamb's wife. Rev. 19: 7. I would ask each member in Nova Scotia; can we not make a united effort to get an elder and laborer among us, for at least a few months?

Yours in Christ,

J. W. DIMOCK.

Dear Herald:—With joy I embrace this opportunity to write a few lines to your columns with regard to the work and its progress in this country. It is now about fourteen months since I became connected with the Welsh Mission, and during that period I have visited most of the branches in this the Eastern District.

Wales is full of religious societies. The congregations of the various parties are numerous in all the towns and villages. Their ministers and local preachers have power with the multitudes, and out of those various congregations men arise speaking perverse things to draw disciples after them; lovers of their own own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, high minded, lovers of pleasure, having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof. They will not endure the sound doctrine of the gospel of the kingdom. The gospel in the fulness of its blessings they deny; and they will have others not to believe such a gospel; but after their own lusts they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears, turning away their ears from truth to fables. Such is the sad picture which is to-day unvail- ing itself to a world, and speaks with convincing power in language that can not be mistaken. Such is the harvest field of Wales, and what the Saints of this country have to face and contend against if we fight a good fight in the cause we so much love.

On Saturday, the 11th inst., having been appointed a delegate of the Cardiff Branch, I visited the Ogmore Valley for the purpose of attending the district conference. On arriving there I was cordially met and welcomed by Elder Thomas Mills and others of that locality. At 10:30 the following morning I met in conference with the brethren of the district, presided over by our esteemed president, Elder W. Morris, assisted by Elder Thomas E. Jenkins, president of the Welsh Mission. The branch reports were fair, though the increase was not great. The Elders reports were in some cases especially good, and all, without exception, expressed a determination to do more and more for the work to which God has called them. At two p. m., the Saints assembled for a fellowship meeting. The brethren of the Ogmore Branch had circulated 5,000 hand bills, inviting the public to the services, and a very nice audience at the two p. m. meeting, in charge of Elder Thomas E. Jenkins. The testimonies of the brethren present were very good. The Spirit was felt very powerfully, and as we sang the songs of Zion in both languages we felt its sweet influence around us, uniting our hearts as one, and bidding us partake of the joys that can not be expressed. The audience listened with rapt attention, and it is to be hoped that many who were listening may yet be able to testify of Jesus. The evening meeting found us with a large and respectable congregation, many having to go away unable to get in, every available inch having been occupied. Elder Thomas E. Jenkins then led the preaching with an excellent sermon in English, basing his remarks on Jude 3d chapter and he very ably contended "for the faith once delivered unto the Saints." He was followed by Elder W. Morris in Welsh, and the attention of the vast audience was closely riveted as he dealt with the words of eternal life. This was followed by another sermon, in English, by the writer. Truly the masses are beginning to see that a pure and undefiled religion is the one thing needful, and my late visit to Ogmore confirms that impression. Those who are called to preach the gospel in these latter days must study to make their lives agree with what they preach. The world expects a Saint to live a life becoming a Saint, and so does the Master. "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." In company with Elders Jenkins and Morris I went to the station of Nantymoel and embarked train for home. The Saints who came with us joined in singing hymns which attracted people to see us off, and as the train moved away about a score were singing—

"We feel it a pleasure to serve thee,
And love to obey thy commands."

A very fitting and appropriate termination to our visit to Ogmore Vale.

We adjourned to meet again at Merthyr, March 13th, which I trust will be as profitable to the work as the late conference promises to be. The work in this country is undoubtedly improving, and the future indicates a great work being accomplished. The mission has men at its command who are mighty, power-clad messengers of truth, full of the Holy Ghost, and who are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, and who seek to hasten its advancement. And with those faithful brethren are to be found sisters who boldly stand by their side while they expound to the world "the doctrine of Christ." In this age we want to meet the world more especially with this credo,—I believe in the Holy Ghost. I expect to see Saints as lovely as any that are written of in the scriptures, because I believe in the Holy Ghost. I expect to see men as powerful in uttering the truth before the eyes of men, and as powerful to pierce the conscience, to persuade, to convince, to convert, as any that ever shook the multitudes of Jerusalem, or Corinth, or Rome, because I believe in the Holy Ghost. I expect to see branches rising in every valley of this mountainous district, the members of which shall be severally endued with spiritual gifts, and every one moving with spiritual activity, animating and edifying one another, commending themselves to the conscience of the world by their good works, commending their Savior to it by a heart engaging testimony—because I believe in the Holy Ghost.

I expect to see towns and villages disturbed, divided, and then reunited by subduing the whole population to Christ—because I believe in the Holy Ghost. I expect to see cities swept from end to end, their manners elevated, their commerce purified, their criminal population reformed, their poor made to feel that they dwell amongst brethren; righteousness in the streets, peace in the homes, and an altar at every fireside—because I believe in the Holy Ghost. I expect to see the world overflowed with the knowledge of God, in the day to come, when no man shall say to his neighbor "know thou the Lord," but "when all shall know Him from the least unto the greatest;" when the stone that is cut from the mountain without hands shall fill the whole earth, east and west, north and south, uniting to praise the name of the one God and the one mediator—because I believe in the Holy Ghost. This is the only source of our power. Without this our influence and faculties are ships of war and ammunition without guns or men. And our order, talent, and truth, are men and guns without fire. We want in this age, above all other wants, God's holy fire burning in the hearts of men, stirring their brains, thrilling in their tongues, glowing in their countenance, vibrating in their actions, expanding their intellectual powers, more than can ever be done by the heats of genius, or argument, and fusing all their knowledge and logic into a burning stream. You may teach a man the holiest truths and yet leave him a wretched man. Many who learn in childhood that God is love, live disregarding it and die blaspheming God. Thousands who are carefully taught that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, neglect so great salvation all their days. Did the mere truth suffice to renew, there are towns and valleys in this country where all would be Saints. But it is the accompanying power, which God alone can give, which makes the truth a sickle to reap souls for the kingdom.

Suppose we see an army sitting down before a granite fort, telling us that they intended to batter it down. We ask them, How? and they point to a cannon ball. Well; but what is that? there is no power in that? If all the men in the army hurled it against the fort they would make no impression. No; but look at the cannon. Well, there is no power in that. A boy may ride upon it; a bird may perch in its mouth. It is a machine, and nothing more. But look at the powder. Well, there is no power in that—a child may spill it, a sparrow may peck it, yet this powerless powder, and powerless ball are put into the powerless cannon; one spark of fire enters, and then, in the twinkling of an eye that powder is a flash of lightning, that ball a thunder bolt which smites as if it had been sent from heaven! So is it with the machinery of this, the Welsh Mission. We have the instruments necessary for pulling down the strongholds of darkness and superstition, built up by the cunning craftiness of the evil one, and, O for the baptism of fire! which will produce the desired effect!

It is my greatest desire to so live to my God that I may be an instrument yet in his hands in bringing many of Cambria's sons and daughters into the perfect light of the gospel of these latter days.

Your servant for Christ,

GEORGE COPE, Sec. D. C.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 3d.

Bro. Blair:—A word to you from this place is but just. Your faithful labors in years past are still in the memory of many. The district is chiefly made up of old-time Saints who saw the cunning snare of the evil one and turned to the "old paths." There has been some additions. There are still many of the old-timers who after the killing of the shepherds were scattered upon the mountains, and amid their bewilderment lost interest in the gospel and have gone into all kinds of modern theology and disbelief. I have met and talked with many of them, but have the first one to meet who denies the divinity of the work of their time. I labored in connection with Bro. W. E. Peak since our arrival until about a month ago, when he left for the Pittsburg District. Bro. Peak is a faithful youth and well calculated to sustain the gospel banner. We have the assistance of brother A. N. Bishop. I can not say that the mission has prospered as well as some, but some good has been done. I would like to see more interest taken by the local elders in opening new places and discharging other duties. Without this the kingdom of God can not do its noble work rapidly. If the laity would examine the law closely they would find no room for any thing but true saintism. The want of this is one of the leading causes why the much needed gifts are not more prominent in some branches.

Our effort this winter will be confined to private houses, excepting one small hall in a remote part of the city. I hope a couple of good men can be sent to this field the coming summer. It is about the only way to reach the honest in this large city. But caution should be taken by all to live as consistently as possible. I am much delighted with many articles in the Herald, especially to know the Elders in many parts are meeting with success. I am indebted to the Saints for their generosity. May the hand of God move upon his work in general, inspire and enlighten the minds of the Saints at all times.

Our next conference is to be held the last Saturday and Sunday in February in the Taylorville Branch. We hope it will be well attended by Saints, sinners and the Holy Spirit. Bro. John J. Morgan and I go in the morning to inspect a new place, and hope to do some good.

In gospel bonds,

EVAN A. DAVIS.

Bro. Dancer:—I enclose in this letter money for Heralds, and twenty-four copies Zion's Hope. I can not see how so many of the Saints can get along without the Herald. To me it is meat and drink. Yet I see so many of the Saints taking other newspapers, and not subscribing for the Herald. This ought not to be. I have seen some who are taking two papers a week, and yet not subscribing for the Herald. Saints that is not the way to build up Zion. Let us subscribe first for the Herald; by doing this, we would have a cheaper paper, and God's written word would spread the faster. Not only that, but you would be the means in this way of spreading the gospel. Think of this, Saints; and let us look to that day when it shall be said to us, "Inasmuch as you have been faithful over a little, (yes little) you shall be made ruler over all." Yes (over all). Think of it, and subscribe for the Herald. You will gain knowledge, and you will be kept posted of the spread of the work, and God will bless you.

I am your brother in gospel bonds,

THOMAS MATTHEWS.

WOONSOCKET, Dak., Jan. 5th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Bro. S. H. Morse and myself are enjoying much of the grace of God, and are actively engaged in the work of the Master, although other churches very much oppose us. The pastor of the M. E. Church made the assertion in his sermon on Thanksgiving Day that the anti-polygamists are only a "cat's paw" for the Utah Mormons. He also made use of a great many other words which were unbecoming a christian minister, regarding us. The people of the world came to me, asking me to come to Woonsocket and preach. They said they would advertise through the paper, and furnish me a room. I consented to go the 30th of December, and on the day fixed I went, together with Bro. S. H. Morse, whose head is almost as white as the snow. The day was stormy, but we reached Woonsocket about noon, after driving thirteen miles. We found Woonsocket people all excited; the ministers of the other sects had put their heads together to stop the work. The room being decorated and prepared for a fashionable dance. The Sanborn county banker and myself went to the authorities and got consent to use the house on New Year's night. We re-advertized by printing and posting bills, and although the night was very cold the large room was almost filled. Nearly all the business men and other very intelligent men and women were in attendance. The Spirit of God was given us. Meeting commenced at 7:30, and closed at 9:30. It was quite a long sermon, but the congregation was very attentive, and God owned and blessed me with great liberty and power. The people seem anxious for me to come again as soon as the weather moderates enough so we can keep the room warm. Some five or six have already said they are going to come into the church in the spring. The work is in the hands of a God mighty to save to the uttermost all that will come unto him. Next Sabbath I preach at the Walters' School-house. I expect a good congregation, nearly all of whom are of my former church, the M. E. God bless you and all of Zion.

Your brother in Christ,

L. F. DANIEL, Local Elder.

LAMONI, Iowa, January 5th.

Gentlemen:—In your issue of the above date, page 23, is a letter from Elder J. R. Lambert, in which he says that he had delivered eleven discourses in the Bonnet School-house—"in answer to the vigorous, bitter, and in my judgment very unfair attacks of E. H. Gurley." Permit me to say that this is the first intimation I have had of his replying to me, or that my "attacks" were either "bitter" or "unfair." I know that what I said in my five sermons succeeding the first four of Elder Lambert's, was spoken in strong feelings of love for the church, though in pity for them. With reference to the "unfair" part, I have this to say, that whoever says I used unfairness, (or as one elder charged me with misrepresenting Elder Lambert) either is not conversant with the facts, or tells a falsehood. In nothing did I represent Elder Lambert otherwise than he declared, giving him the benefit of the doubt where there was room for doubt, my conscience bearing me witness, before God I lie not. But the facts are against Lambert's position, if the Bible be the standard of evidence. There is not power enough in the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, or any other, to successfully defend the revelations of Joseph Smith as worthy of all acceptance as a rule of faith and practice for the church of Christ, by accepting the Bible as a standard of evidence, or both it and the Book of Mormon.

I am satisfied that by far the larger part of the audiences that listened to Elder Lambert and myself will testify quite different to Elder Lambert's childish cry. The facts are Elder Lambert was gloriously answered. Will you please insert the above for justice sake?

I remain yours for truth,

E. H. GURLEY.

THE DISPENSATION OF THE FULNESS OF TIMES.

BY D. S. CRAWLEY.

"HAVING made known to us the mystery of His will, according to His good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself; that in the dispensation of the fulness of times, he might gather together in one, all things in Christ; both which are in heaven, and which are in earth; even in Him."—Eph. 1: 9, 10.

Rejoicing in the spirit of fairness and inquiry as manifested in the Ghicago Times, quoted in the Herald of January 2d, wherein the writer says, "The majority of persons—Jews, Catholics, Protestants, agnostics and infidels—declare that Joseph Smith was an impostor, a fraud, and a deceiver, and that he sought to gain converts to a new religion for the purpose of using them for selfish purposes," and that "The leaders in the Mormon Church are insincere, and that all their followers are ignorant and depraved," and then says, "It is fair to presume that few of those persons ever read any of the publications of Saints, or ever attended any of their meetings." The writer says further that the church under the presidency of Joseph Smith, who was in Utah striving to overthrow polygamy and its kindred evils, never taught or practiced polygamy, but that "their creed and public religious exercises show that they are orthodox Christians," and that "the exponents of the new dispensation declare that it sheds great light on both the old and new Testament, and that it is the means of making many obscure passages clear."

And now, to establish the truth of the last clause, I will refer to some of those scriptures. As most of the Jews neglected to hear Christ's explanation of the prophecies of his first coming, (they looking only for his glorious coming in the last days), hearing their own elders exposing him, speaking all manner of evil of him, and consequently rejecting him, and bringing on their nation terrible judgments; history repeats itself in modern Christendom by their rejection of the prophecies of this last dispensation and the restoration of the kingdom to Israel before Christ's second coming, thus bringing on themselves swift destruction. I was long with them in this matter, because of my ignorance of the prophecies, and wish to present to them some of the reasons for teaching that Joseph Smith was indeed chosen of God to usher in this last dispensation.

From the text quoted, Eph. 1: 9, 10, it is evident that Paul taught of another dispensation of the gospel, one of a universal gathering together, in one in Christ, not only of things (or people) on earth, but also of people in heaven, into one place, one kingdom, one body, when he would bring his people "out of their graves, and bring them into the land of Israel, and make them one nation again," (Ezek. chap. 37), evidently referring to the time when "the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to gather the remnant of his people," when "he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."—Isa. 11: 11, 12.

Israel was taken captive by the king of Assyria 721 years B. C., (2 Kings 17: 6), and they have never dwelt in Canaan since. But Judah was not dispersed to the four corners of the earth until after Paul wrote, which is positive evidence that Isaiah spoke of a dispensation of gathering to occur long after Paul's day. God set his hand the first time to gather Israel by sending his Son Jesus to them; but they would not be gathered then; and Jesus said: "O, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how oft would I have gathered your children as a hen gathereth her brood, but you would not."—Matt. 23: 37. And in consequence thereof he says: "Behold your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."—verse 38. "And [thine enemies] shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and shall not leave in thee one stone upon another; because then knewest not the time of thy visitation."—Luke 19: 44. He further said of the Jews:—"And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations, and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled."—Luke 22: 24. Some think this means until the conversion of the Gentiles. But the "fullness" of nations many times spoken of in the scriptures, always means their fitness for destruction, their "fulness" in sin. For instance God told Abraham that Israel should be four hundred years in a strange land, and the reason was that the iniquity of the Amorites (the inhabitants of Canaan) was not yet "full."—Gen. 15: 16. When their fullness came, their overthrow came also. "And in the latter time of their kingdom, when the transgressors are come to the full, (Dan. 8: 23), meaning the Jews in Christ's time. When their fulness come in, they were overthrown. But as there is much opposition to this idea, we quote Jer. 46: 27, 28, referring to the same event and time as Jesus and Paul, when he speaks of "the fulness of the Gentiles" and the gathering of Israel. He says, "But fear not thou, O, my servant Jacob, and be not dismayed, O, Israel, for behold I will save thee from afar off, and thy seed from the land of their captivity; and Jacob shall return, and be in rest and at ease, and none shall make him afraid." And why? "For I will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee; but I will not make a full end of thee, but correct thee in measure; yet will I not leave thee wholly unpunished." See also Jer. 30: 11. Think of this, O ye nations, and be wise. That Israel was never to cease to be a nation, we quote Jer. 31: 35, 36: "Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and stars for a light by night. . . . The Lord of Hosts is his name; if those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me forever." This should forever settle the matter that all Gentile nations as nations, are to be overthrown, whilst Israel shall stand forever as a nation. To-day Israel stands as an everlasting monument of the truth of the prophecies in regard to them. Nation after nation has risen, and beat and chafed against the Rock of Judah, and have persecuted, hated, scattered and peeled her children until they as nations have sank to rise no more, whilst Israel "yet remains intact as regards their descent and nationality." Surely their punishment has been terrible, and as Paul said, "If the casting them away be the reconciling of the world, what will the receiving them be, but life from the dead."—Rom. 11: 15. This is positive evidence that they were to be received again, after Paul's day, as God's chosen people. As further proof we quote:—

"Hath God cast away his people? God forbid; For I also am an Israelite. . . . God hath not cast away his people whom he foreknew. . . . I say then, have they stumbled that they should fall? God forbid; but rather through their fall [stumbling for a season] salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them unto jealousy."—Rom. 11: 1-12. He further tells the Gentile converts that the Jews were "broken off" because of unbelief, and that they (the Gentiles) were grafted into the tame olive tree, and then asks how much more reasonable it is, that the Gentiles should be broken off, and the Israelites be again grafted, as natural branches, into their own olive tree (Christ). And that this would be the case is plainly taught in verses 25-27—"For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, (the same mystery of his will as taught in Eph. 9, 10), lest ye shall be wise in our own conceits, (similar to those of to-day who say that God will not restore Israel again), that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles be come in. And so [then] all Israel shall be saved; as it is written, "There shall come out of Sion the Deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob; for this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins." This refers to the same time that Jesus did, (Luke 22: 24), and speaks of the same event, the fulness of the Gentiles. Hence we learn that Paul places the "covenant" so often promised to be made with Israel and Judah, (See Jer. 31: 31), far in the future from his day, even at the fullness, or time of the full end, of the Gentile nations. When Jesus as mediator of that covenant came to Jerusalem, the ten tribes were not there, and Judah rejected the new covenant, or gospel of the kingdom; consequently the kingdom of God, with all its blessings was "taken from them and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits" of it,—the Gentiles. (Matt. 21: 43; Acts 13: 46). Some of "the fruits" were the gifts of the Holy Spirit.—Rom. 12: 1-10; 1 Cor. 12: 1-28. God is the same yesterday to-day and forever, (Heb. 13: 8), who gave this kingdom, body, or church, to the Gentiles, and Paul says: "But now hath God set the members, every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him."—1 Cor. 12: 18. And what these members were and are we learn in verse 28: "And God hath set some in the church; first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, helps, governments, diversities of tongues." God was "pleased" with this kind of a church then, and he is without variableness, neither shadow of turning."—James 1: 17. And the law of adoption into this kingdom was called "the perfect law of liberty."—James 1: 25. Nothing was to be taken from nor added to it. It included in its principles, "repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment."—Heb. 6: 1, 2. And "Whoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed; for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds."—2 John 9: 11. Paul taught all this doctrine and practiced the ordinances thereof, as did also the other disciples. See Acts. 8: 17. "Then laid they their hands on them, [after baptism.—Ed.], and they received the Holy Ghost," (Acts. 19: 6) "and when Paul had laid his hands upon them [after baptism.—Ed.] the Holy Ghost came on them; and they spake with tongues and prophesied." And Paul said furthermore: "But though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accused."—Gal. 1: 8, 9. Now, who is so regardless of truth as to say that this kingdom, or church, has continued with the Gentiles until now, when neither the organization that "pleased" God is found amongst them, none of the fruits of the kingdom, the gifts of the Spirit, neither the doctrine of Christ taught amongst them, but as many different doctrines as there are churches. Indeed, none of them can trace their origin farther back than to the Roman Catholic Church, while they all unite in calling her an apostate church, the mother of harlots, the mystery Babylon, of scriptures. Well, as the mother is, so are the daughters, only man made institutions having no more authority from God than the religious sects in the days of Christ, although there were many good people among them. And when amidst all this confusion, Joseph Smith declares that God had committed by the ministering of angels another dispensation of the gospel for the purpose of gathering into one in Christ, all good people, restoring again the kingdom to Israel, and began at once to preach the exact doctrine of Christ as taught by him and his apostles, and recorded in the scriptures for our instruction. Instead of acting wise as the few did in Christ's time, searching the Scriptures to see if such an event was to come to pass in our day, the mass of the worldly wise began at once, like many religious ones in Christ's day, to oppose, write all manner of books, and making appointments, to expose Mormonism as their ancestors exposed the doctrine of the Nazarene, never investigating fairly the doctrine taught, but telling all manner of tales about his origin. They knew "old Joseph the carpenter, his father, and old Mary his mother, who was only married a few months when he was born in a stable, and his brothers, Joses, James, and others. What a set! And his sisters! O dear!—all a miserable set of Nazarenes. And his apostle's were, if any odds, worse, being miserable, lazy, filthy fishermen and publicans, like their leader too lazy to work, winebibbers and gluttons, too wicked to keep the Sabbath, but strolling through other peoples fields on that day; stealing corn and eating it, blaspheming the name of God, claiming that all our pious church members are wrong, and they only are right, and to crown their infamy, when this wicked fraud was killed, as he richly deserved, these base wretches, his disciples, stole his body away, and now tell us he was resurrected! Away with such a set! They ought to be killed too." This is just about similar to the charges against Joseph Smith and his brethren. Now why not be wise like the few in Christ's day and examine the Scriptures carefully before you condemn. That the kingdom was to be overturned after given to the Gentiles, is evident from Ezekiel 21: 26, 27, speaking to Israel's king before its overthrow by the king of Babylon, he says, "Remove the diadem, and take off the crown; * * * I will overturn, overturn, overturn it [three times] and it shall be no more, till he come whose right it is; and I will give it him." It belongs to Jesus by right. The angel told his mother that she should bear a son, "And shall call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." (Luke 1: 31-33, also Isa. 9: 6, 7). David's throne and kingdom were overturned first by the Chaldeans under Nebuchadnezzar; second, by the Romans before Christ; was built up again by the Lord Jesus Christ on the foundation of the apostles and prophets; taken from the Jews and given to the Gentiles as hereinbefore shown, and must be overturned again before given to Jesus as sure as Ezekiel was a true prophet, and also given back to David's people or it would not be David's throne, or kingdom, to give to Christ; from the fact that a thing taken from one by authority can not properly be called his, until it is restored unto him. Although the kingdom was taken from the Jews and given to the Gentiles the apostles knew that the Gentiles would be broken off and Israel again grafted into their own olive tree, and all the Gentile nations overturned, for Jesus had, after his resurrection, been forty days with them, teaching them in regard to the future of the kingdom, explaining to them the prophecies concerning the great restoration of Israel. (Acts 1: 3). This is evident from the fact—When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"—v. 6. They had not yet received the Holy Spirit, which was to guide them into all truth, so they did not understand the prophecies as they afterwards did, or they would not have asked this question. As, upon another occasion, when two of them had said, when speaking of his death "But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel!" he said unto them, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all the prophets have spoken."—Luke 24: 21-25. Fools, to think that at that time he would redeem or restore again the kingdom to Israel, after they had utterly rejected him and crucified him! No: he had before told them of the terrible judgments that should befall them, even till the times of the Gentiles was fulfilled, and all the prophets from Moses, had also foretold these things. In Deut. 28th chapter, is foretold the dreadful judgments that should come on them, the taking of them to the utmost parts of the earth—"and thine eyes shall look and fail with longing for them all the day long, also the siege of Jerusalem, with the eating of their children "in the straitness wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee." Read the entire chapter. And the thirtieth chapter is just as plain in regard to their restoration, to possess the land of their fathers forever.

Jeremiah 12: 14-17 says, that after the plucking up of Judah, God will gather them to their own lands and build them up again, with all other nations that will be built with them, "but if they will not obey, I will utterly destroy that nation saith the Lord." See also 31: 4-13 and 30: 8-24; 32: 37-44, and 33: 7-26, with others too numerous to mention, all proving the gathering and eternal restoration of Israel, but after terrible punishment for their sins. So Jesus answers the apostles [Acts 1: 7] "It is not for you to know the times and seasons that the Father hath put in his own power." That work was not for them to do, nor even to know the time thereof; but they were to bear witness of his resurrection to the utmost parts of the earth, baptize them that believed, be persecuted, and finally suffer death because of their testimony. "They shall put you out of the synagogues, yea, the time cometh that whosoever killeth you, will think he doeth God's service."—John 16: 2. After they had received the Holy Spirit we hear nothing more from them in regard to the restoration of the kingdom to Israel at that time; for they knew better. But Peter on Pentecost tells them that, in the last days God would do his marvelous work, pour out his Spirit on all flesh, when there should be great signs in heaven and earth just before that great and notable day of the Lord should come, (Acts 2: 17-20), also that God "Shall send Jesus Christ * * * whom the heavens must receive till the times of the restitution of all things, spoken by the mouths of all the holy prophets since the world began"—Acts 3: 20, 21.

The final restitution of the kingdom to Israel had been the theme of all the prophets, and Peter here places it near the time of sending Jesus the second time. And to further prove that the kingdom was to be overturned amongst the Gentiles, we quote Paul who, after speaking of the coming of Christ, says—"Let no man deceive you by any means; for that day shall not come except there be a falling away first, (or overturning the church), and that man of sin be revealed the son of perdition who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God." 2 Thess. 2: 3, admitted by all to refer to the same power as Daniel 7: 8, where, after speaking of the fourth beast, (or kingdom that shall arise, the Roman power), with its ten horns, which we are told are ten kingdoms in verse 24, he saw another little horn come up, speaking great things—"I beheld and the same horn made war with the saints and prevailed against them." (Verse 21). And he shall speak great words against the Most High, and shall wear out the Saints of the Most High, and think to change times and laws, and they shall be given into his hand for a time, times, and the dividing of time."—Verse 25. "And shall destroy the mighty and the holy people," the Saints.—Dan. 8: 24. A time, times, and half time, is three and one half years, in Jewish terms 1,260 days, the same length of time the beautiful woman, bride, church, or kingdom, that was given to the Gentiles, was to be in the wilderness, (overturned), Rev. 12: 6. This is called time, times "and half a time," (Rev. 12: 14), and "forty and two months," Rev. 13: 5, where the rise and time of duration of the same power, as in Daniel, chapter 7, is foretold, which says—"And it was given unto him to make war with the saints [or kingdom] and to overcome them, [or overturn them]. Rev. 13: 7. The same power is seen in Revelations 17, supporting a woman, or church, decked with gold and precious stones, having a golden cup in her hand, full of abominations, with a name on her forehead, that is so plain that every one should recognize her, "Mystery, Babylon the great, the mother of harlots and abominations of the earth;" "drunken with the blood of the saints." The angel explains to John the mystery of the beast, and of the woman which he carried. (Rev. 17: 7). In verse 8 we are told that the beast, or kingdom once existed, but did not at the time of the explanation, but should again "ascend out of the bottomless pit," or be revived and that most of the world "should wonder at it." "And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads [of the beast] are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth," verse 9; "and the woman is that great city that reigneth over the kings of the earth," verse 18.

Almost every school child knows that the city of Rome is built on seven hills; and she is the only city that has ever thus reigned over the kings of the earth; and she did not until the division of the Roman empire into ten kingdoms; for it was only one kingdom before. But that "the way-faring man though a fool need not err therein, there is a two fold meaning of the seven heads given.—"And there are seven kings, [or forms of government], five are fallen, one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh he must continue a short space. And the beast that was, and is not, even he is the eighth." God represents blood-thirsty kingdoms by ferocious beasts. See Dan. 7: 1. There had been in Rome, at the time John was writing the above, six kings, or forms of government, viz, kings, consuls, decemvirs, triumvirs, and senators, all five having passed away, or "fallen." "One is"—the emperors—reigned in John's day, making the sixth, and after the emperors were overthrown, Rome was, for about three years, under the rule of the Exarchate of Ravenna. That continued, indeed, only "a short space," and was overthrown, or "plucked up by the roots" with two other small kingdoms, in fulfillment of Dan. 7: 8, by "the man of sin," or eleventh horn of the fourth beast, the Papal power, or combination of church and state; thus healing the deadly wound (Rev. 13: 3) given by the barbarian hordes, causing the ten divisions, uniting these kingdoms again under her church rule, thus reigning over the kings of the earth by her ecclesiastical power. In verse 12 we are told that the ten horns were ten kings yet to arise. This occurred in the sixth century; "These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength to the beast," (verse 13), "Until the words of God shall be fulfilled," (verse 17). And then they were to turn against her, and eat her flesh—consume her substance—and finally "burn with fire."—Verse 16.

We have already shown that the word of God limited her power to 1,260 days—three and one half years—forty and two months—which is the same length of time. God has told his prophets that each day in prophecy, should stand for a year,—“I have appointed thee each day for a year.”—Ezekiel 4: 6. Daniel's 70 weeks from the decree by Cyrus of Persia, until Christ and his work was just 490 years. Hence we learn that mystery Babylon was to rule for 1,260 years before God would “set his hand again the second time to gather his people,” or bring his church out of the wilderness; for it is a remarkable fact, that the beautiful church of Revelations, chapter 12, symbolized by a woman, was to remain in the wilderness only the same length of time that the church of the 17th chapter should be “carried by the beast,” or civil power. We know that she began her supreme reign about the close of the sixth century, and some historians have placed the time at A. D. 570, when the last vestige of spiritual power ceased amongst the people, and Papal Rome began her rule. Add to this 1,260, and the result is 1830, the precise time when Joseph Smith, by command of God, organized the Church of Jesus Christ. Since that time nearly one third of the population of our country has “turned against” great Babylon, the mother church, and daughters, the man-made churches of Christendom, for the protestants have no more authority than the mother church, and some of their doctrine is not as good, that wherein they allow divorce upon so many flimsy pretexts, and still fellowship the members. This their mother church does not allow.

The “mother” committed fornication by rejecting Christ as her husband, and marrying, or uniting, with the Roman power, taking the name of her new husband—Church of Rome, and this is so with her daughters,—Church of England, Church of Luther, of Wesley, of Calvin, and so on. Well might the Lord call them “harlots;” not because their female members are unchaste, for there are the noble, chaste, and God-fearing in all, but because they are churches of men, and taking their names. As God inspired a heathen, Cyrus of Persia, to have Jerusalem rebuilt, so he may put it in the hearts of such men as Col. Ingersoll and others, to fulfil his word, after the expiration of the 1,260 years, to turn the people against the church of the golden cup to eat her substance.

We read there are 17,000,000 in our country who are skeptics, do little to support churches, whilst an effort to tax the vast fortunes in church property is likely soon to succeed. The prophet said they would at last “burn her with fire.” We think all should see the necessity of knowing how to escape this dreadful judgment to come on Babylon. Jesus, when giving his disciples the signs of his second coming and the end of the world, says “And this gospel of the kingdom, shall be preached in all the world, for a witness to all nations, and then shall the end come.—Matt. 24: 14. The same gospel that Paul preached as before presented, which has never been done since the apostasy, since great Babylon “cast down the truth to the ground and practised and prospered,” (Dan. 8: 12), until preached by Joseph Smith. Some translations read “again preached,” which is correct from the fact that a bell that rings at noon to-day as a sign that dinner is ready, would be no sign whatever tomorrow if it should not cease to ring from now until that time. This idea is clearly shown from verse 37, “But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.” This needs no comment. The same generation that was destroyed in Noah's day, was warned by a prophet with a message from heaven, so also shall the same generation in which Christ shall come. In proof of this, John says after telling of the Church of Christ going into the wilderness for 1,260 years in chapter 12, and in the 13th of the rise of Babylon to reign the same length of time, he then in the 14th says, “And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, saying, fear God, and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come.”—Rev. 14: 6, 8. The verses following show that this judgment was the “End, or destruction of Babylon, just what Joseph Smith and others testify was fulfilled unto them.

THE MODERN PENTECOST.

In the year 1837 there was inaugurated a wonderful movement in England, which even to us who know “the reason why,” and the wherefore, is a matter of wonder and amazement even at this distant day. The act, “the strange act” of the Almighty commenced with the advent of Heber C. Kimball in the British Isles, whither he had been sent in pursuance of the following: (from Joseph Smith's Church History)—“God revealed to me that something new must be done for the salvation of the church. And on about the first of June, 1837, Heber C. Kimball was set apart by the Spirit of prophecy and revelation, prayer and the laying on of hands of the First presidency, to preside over a mission to England; to be the first foreign mission of the church in the last days.” Elder O. Hyde and Priest Joseph Fielding also accompanied him.

On Sunday, July 23d the first sermon of the latter day gospel was preached in the town of Preston, about thirty miles from Liverpool, and from that time the gospel began to spread abroad in the land. And in the Manchester factories; the Staffordshire potteries; along the banks of the Tyne and the Humber, in the colliery districts of Northumberland, Durham and Yorkshire, the “glad tidings of great joy” found lodgment in the hearts of the rough but honest hearted working classes. And on the glad news spread, and on, and yet on, until finally the whole land was overshadowed by the wings of the latter day phoenix which had risen from out the ashes of an almost extinguished faith.

It may be interesting to many if we trace, not the cause of this “marvelous work and wonder” of the latter days, there can be but one opinion on that point, but the preparation which had been made by the Almighty during many years for the reception of “His work, His great work.”

Many years before the advent of Heber C. Kimball, that great and grand man, John Wesley, had been moved upon by the Spirit to arouse the multitudes to a sense of their spiritual condition; and according to the light vouchsafed to him he preached repentance and faith in a crucified Savior. His preachers had invaded every village, town and hamlet in the land, and thousands had been awakened to a sense of their spiritual condition. The thunderbolt of a creed filled to overflowing with hell-fire and damnation had been hurled at them for years, until in the desperation of fear and of self-preservation, they had as the phrase goes, “given their hearts to God.” They had become religious after a fashion, not so much through love of God, as for fear of the devil.

Methodism had lost a great deal of its power and control over the masses at the time when the gospel of the latter day was introduced into England, and the reason for this was, that “The fear o' hell, that hangman's whip which keeps the wretch in order,” as Burns expresses it, had largely lost its power to scare, and the emotional revival meetings, to which Methodism owes in so great a degree its power of making proselytes, had become so common that all attempts to impress the people by them were failures, and the shoutings and rantings of those meetings together with the falling down, “under the power” and the different phases of epileptiform seizures, yclept, “the operations of the Spirit,” had become things of jest and scoff. Moreover, the schoolmaster was beginning to walk through the land, and national places of education called British schools, were opened, where, for the small sum of two pence, (four cents) per week, instruction, and that of an excellent kind, could be had. The people commenced thinking, and when once they began this process, good bye to the creeds wherein the fear of hell is the chief recruiting sergeant. The people also soon began, under the influence of cheap education and newspapers, to discriminate between the leading of a moral life through fear of the devil, and the living of a spiritual religion, one for the love of that Being who “so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life." Again, Methodism was a power for good in the land, but its powers were of the reformatory school kind. The preacher in the pulpit metaphorically speaking, grasped the sinner by the hair of his head and held him dangling over the mouth of a hell of flaming fire and molten brimstone, scaring him into a condition of absolute terror, and cowardly whining, and there he was then left for some six months, until the reaction began, as the result of six months at the mourner's bench, during which time the sinner had been under a strict surveillance from the other members, who were a sort of selfconstituted police to watch over him, and over each other, and having passed these six months in leading a moral life, with prayer and encouragement from the preachers and brotherhood, the neophyte felt the transition from his former mode of life, (especially if the convert was from among the collier, pottery, mining, or weaver class), to that of the last six months was so great, the change for the better so wonderful that he now esteemed himself a child of God, and declared that he knew he had "been washed in the blood of the Lamb;" he was then received into full fellowship, and for the future became one of the Methodist police. Methodism has wonderfully altered since that time. We now seldom hear the old thunder and brimstone teachings; it preachers (unless in those districts where the earth is believed to be flat) never hold the shrieking sinner over the mouth of hell and threaten to drop him in if he does not repent and believe as they do.

Again, Methodism, a power for good in the land so far as it was capable, a great reformatory school wherein the flames of hell was the birch, and the devil the bircher, although aggressive was not progressive. It could, would, and did attack, fight, and keep in check gross wickedness so far as it was able, but here it stopped; it was not a progressive cult. Its horizon was bounded on one side by hell-fire and torments eternal, and on the other by a blank abstraction, the highest phase of which was a harp, a crown, and a pair of wings. Its future life either a horrible torment, or a condition of semi, if not complete inanition. It could think of nothing higher, imagine nothing grander for the celestial life than an eternal harping and singing. Al el al jah. Moreover, the Methodist creed left out the greater part of the teachings of the Savior. "Only believe and yours is heaven," was its "five points." It utterly ignored the apostolic teachings of immersion for the remission of sins and the laying on of hands for the imparting of the Holy Spirit. The result was that when the people it had reformed morally began to reflect, they became dissatisfied, yet knew not exactly how to express their dissatisfaction, knew not how to put it into words. There was in them a horrible, restless doubt. Methodism begat in its converts a lively hope, but left them in a grim despair. And the result was that it split up into factions and was still splitting, Wesleyans, Wesleyan Methodists, Episcopal Methodists, Brianites, Primitive Methodists, and many others had arisen and striven to, and were striving to exorcise that horrible doubt, that state of grim unrest that was in the bosom of every thinking member. This unquiet, this feverish anxiety and restlessness, was caused by the question, which, unbidden, would ever arise, "Is Methodism the Church of Christ?" They knew not why they asked the question, or why they questioned the statement they so often heard from the pulpit, yet they did do so.

This was the condition of things when the first missionaries of the Latter Day Church arrived in England. After the first sermon preached by Heber C. Kimbal and Orson Hyde the work commenced to spread, and soon they were baptizing converts by tens, twenties, and fifties per week. After a time, when the new converts were well instructed and grounded in the faith, it was found that to supply the demands for preachers men must be called to the ministry from among the new converts. Accordingly men were ordained and sent forth without purse or scrip, plain, unassuming working-men taken from out the factories, potteries and collieries; from out of the carpenter shop, the tailor shop and the ship-yards. They were, as was said of Peter and John, Aggramaton kai Idoitai literally, unlettered and idiomatic. "Thou art a Gallilean; thy speech agreeth thereto" was said to Peter. So with these men, they could be recognized by their peculiar idioms as being from Lancashire, Staffordshire, Yorkshire, etc. These men worked faithfully and true, and so mightily grew the work beneath their hands that sectarian priests and sanhedrims wondered and asked each other the question. "Whence hath these men this power? they are ignorant and rough, speaking in the dialect of the respective localities where they were reared; yet they are robbing us of the members of our flocks on the right hand and on the left." And-straightway, right doxy and wrong doxy, who before this had been making war upon each other, grounded arms, shook hands, and entered into an unholy alliance against the work of God, and, to such straits were they pushed, they also took into the alliance their old ancient mother, the lady of the scarlet robe and golden cup, who had in bygone days served them as they now wished to serve the people of God, and who would at that very time have served them in a like manner had she had the power. But the alliance was beaten on every hand, its ministers of the right doxies and the wrong doxies were "hoist with their own petard." They invited the elders, those rough unlettered men, to discussion of their principles and faith, the Bible to be the guide, standard and rule. Said the elders,—"You invite us to discussion, to discussion we will go." But the reverends soon found that their remedy was worse than the disease, for they were beaten upon every point. They then quit discussing, and commenced to fill the land with scurrilous tales derived from the dissenters in Kirtland, and from apostates who had been cut off for their wickedness. What wast the trouble? What the cause of these right doxies and wrong doxies combining to slay this young giant from the west? According to them, it was the Church of God against a foul, deluded heresy. Imagine a Church of God composed of a lot of creeds and dogmas, each creed and dogma having a membership of its own, and warring upon all the others, debarring them from its sacramental table, called by them the Lord's table; whereas it was a doxy table, a table where your doxy would refuse to meet with my doxy although I, like you, professed to be an integral part of the Lamb's wife. In reality the fight was not Church of God versus heresy; but it was a fight of L. D. D. against L. D. S.

It was the same old cry, "Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth, and ye see and hear how this Mormonism has turned away much people, saying ours is not the gospel of Christ, but the creeds, ideas, and dogmas of men; and our craft is in danger of being set at nought." However, spite of persecution without and lies from foes within, the work spread far and wide, until in every village, town and hamlet of old England the songs of Zion could be heard on the calm and still Sabbath evenings ascending in tuneful strains to the God of Abraham.

Come with me, dear reader, to a Sabbath afternoon prayer and testimony meeting in the old country in those early days of the mission. You perceive that it is not in a richly furnished hall, nor in a comfortable chapel that the meeting is held, but in a rented room in a side street, a few rough benches and some chairs, with a platform of a few boards upon which is a table—the rostrum, or preaching place. The people are few in number, not above thirty at most, and their clothes and general appearance show that they are of the toiling millions; a people who are just able (by pinching economy and hard work, using their own words) "to make both ends meet." Presently the elder rises and gives out a hymn, and it happens to be the favorite—

So far as worldly goods are concerned they don't enjoy much, goodness knows. The small congregation rises and commences to sing; there is no choir, only the rough voices of the men and the untrained voices of the women, but as the hymn proceeds, you somehow feel as you never felt before; you look at me, then look at the congregation and see them singing as you never saw, or heard a congregation sing before. They are singing in a whole-souled, heartfelt manner, every eye is sparkling with a peculiar light, and every face seems to have undergone a change, transformed as it were, from the sober, steady, toil-lined face of labor, the cares and toils, privations and hardships of the past week seem to be all at once banished, and a peculiar rapt expression has taken its place, and by the time the hymn is ended you are aware of a certain peculiar feeling coming over you. After the prayer which followed the hymn is over, another hymn is sung and you feel that peculiar feeling still upon you, not only upon you, but the room seems to be filled with it. After the hymn, the elder commits the rest of the time into the hands of the congregation to occupy it in prayer, song, and testimony, as each may feel impressed to do; one after another rises and expresses his feelings towards the latter day work, and his love for the brethren and cause. All this time you are aware that the peculiar feeling is increasing in the room and upon you. Perhaps there is a silence for a few minutes, when all at once a brother rises, and in language which you are certain that he can not have acquired, he tells of the work of the latter day gospel upon his soul, and in rejoicing, triumphant tones and language tells how the great work is spreading and triumphing far and wide, and gathering in of his fellow workmen some who were regarded as beyond all hope both by parson and justice, and closes with an impassioned exhortation to steadfastness and purity. Scarcely has he resumed his seat, when a sister starts the glorious rallying hymn of the Saints—immediately the whole congregation bursts into triumphant song, and you,—why, what ails you? You, with tears streaming down your cheeks, turn and grasp my hand so fervently, O, so fervently! and suddenly sit down with handkerchief to your eyes, and the room seems to be—and is really—filled with that very Spirit we have just been singing of. You now begin to understand why the hymn which was first sang is a great favorite with the Saints. At the close of the meeting you hastily retire—you wish to shake hands with every Saint in the room, who seems somehow to have suddenly become near and dear to you, in fact your brothers and sisters—but your feelings are too agitated, so you retire. But you ask me if I am going to meeting to night, and say that you will accompany me.

This is no fanciful sketch, but a plain statement of facts. Neither was it the effects of a boisterous, shouting, amenning and hallelujahing emotionalism. All such demonstrations were severely frowned down from the beginning by the elders, and the teaching that the effects of the Spirit was love joy, peace, quiet and heartfelt gratitude to God and the Lamb, and not boisterous demonstrations, shoutings and cryings, as did the priests of Baal when "They leaped upon the altar, crying, O, Baal, hear us, and they cried aloud, and cut themselves with knives and lancets." "Let everything be done in order and in decency," was the teaching of the church. Is there any wonder then that the latter day gospel spread through the land? It answered the question, and pointed out to the sects the reason why they had such dreadful doubt, why they were in a condition of feverish anxiety. "Repent, and be baptized for the remission of your sins, and have hands laid upon you for the reception of the Holy Ghost, and ye shall receive it and rejoice in its blessing," was the cry uttered with trumpet-like tones by the elders, and it fell like a bomb amongst the people, startling them, arousing them, flinging them out of the narrow track of articles and creeds of men, causing them to read and understand the Savior's and apostles' teachings as they never had done before. The latter day gospel showed them why they were in doubt and restlessness, and gave words to the question which they had, in a dim, hazy way in their minds, "If this is the Church of Christ, why do we not enjoy the same blessings and joyful privileges that the early church did?" In proving from scripture that the plan of God for the spiritual salvation of the people is as unchangeable as himself, the question was answered, and the disintegrating process commenced among the different sects. The glacial age of sectarianism was succeeded by the age of fire from the Lord, and soon the whole land was in a flame.

As I have said, the latter day gospel was both aggressive and progressive, like the former day one it gave the people a something tangible, a something worth living the life of a despised disciple for. It did not like the right doxy and the wrong doxy creeds and dogmas, make the grave the ultima thule of intellectual progression and development, but taught that the redeemed would ever continue to progress in knowledge, wisdom and power intellectually, and that in the life beyond, "Onward and Upward," was the motto; that in the vast possibilities of eternities to come the poorest of God's saints—intellectually, would attain a position far, far beyond that of the wisest of mortals, for the powers and possibilities of the Holy Spirit were infinite. And such indeed must be the case, for the moment progression is arrested, that moment the great clock of eternity will strike one, and the retrograde march will commence which will not cease until suns, and systems of suns be all jumbled up in inextricable confusion, and then would occur the "wreck of systems, and the crash of worlds." This would be the result of inertia in the eternities of God. As I have already said the Saints were also taught that it was their privilege to have the Holy Spirit imparted to them by the laying on of the hands of the presbytery, and to receive of the gifts bestowed by it.

Come with me dear reader, to another Sabbath afternoon meeting. After the opening hymns and prayer, the presiding elder states that they are about to attend to the ordinance of confirmation, and calls upon some of the elders present to assist in it. The convert, who has been baptized during the week, comes forward, and is seated in a chair in view of all, then the presiding elder with those whom he has called upon to take part in the rite, generally two, lay their hands upon the head of the convert, and as the one who is "mouth-piece" speaks, you feel that peculiar influence in the room and upon the people, and it grows more and more perceptible as he proceeds, and an inexplicable calm, a sensation of rest, absolute rest, utterly undefinable is over all. The convert seems to be thrilled from head to foot, and yet, save the voice of the elder who is speaking, all is perfectly quiet and still, but submerged in a joy too great to be uttered, a peace inexpressible, into which even the speaking and singing seem to fit. This peculiar influence, this peace and presence of the Holy Spirit were felt in a greater or lesser degree—according to the faith, works, and numbers of the members, in every branch of the British mission and so great was the impulse of this wonderful movement, this pentecostal power and manifestation of the Spirit, that the church continued to grow and increase wonderfully, and the cry from all quarters was "Come and preach to us," until what with the emigration, those who remained behind and the yearly increase, the church had gathered into its bosom during the first decade fully one hundred thousands in Europe. And it was not until headquarters—under the sway of Brigham Young—had become the nest of every foul and unclean bird, (doctrine), that the work commenced to fail, the Lord to withdraw his Spirit, until at the culmination of the abomination in 1852, the whole European mission sank, dwindled, and finally died out; and now instead of being a terror to and a thorn in the sides of right and wrong doxies, it is become a laughing stock, a thing at which they shake their heads and say, "Ha! it professed to be able to save the world; see what it is come to; itself it could not save." That is what Brigham Young, and those of that ilk have done for the church since they came into power. Of a truth, Young was a "man of sin," though not "the man of sin."

So great were the longsuffering, love, and kindness of the Almighty, that He continued the ministrations of the Spirit to the church in Europe, even when the headquarters of Brigham Young had become a putrid excrement upon the civilization of the nineteenth century; for the great mass of the church in Europe was entirely ignorant of the abominations of Utah and of Young. Had not John Taylor, in July, 1850, declared that polygamy was not a doctrine of the Brighamites? The Saints in Europe believed him, and pointed to his denial, and on oath mind you, as a complete refutation of the charge so often brought against them, when, lo, and behold! in September 14th, 1852, only two years after Taylor's denial, it was proclaimed to the world, through the Deseret News, that polygamy was a leading doctrine of the Brighamites in Utah. In proclaiming that, they proclaimed John Taylor—an apostle of Brigham Young—to be a perjured deceiver and liar; for the fact had been known to him and hundreds of others ever since their arrival in Salt Lake valley. The Brighamites dare not produce the records of the endowment house wherein the polygamous sealings are recorded, and thus prove either the falsity, or truth of this charge against John Taylor, president of the Brighamites.

Because of their ignorance of these things and their faithfulness to Him, the Lord recognized the local ministry and confirmed their acts and words done in purity. But soon as they began to drink of the cup of abomination presented to them by Young & Co., the church commenced to dwindle away, losing its power and virtue, making but few converts; and those soon became troublesome and rebellious, generally leaving the sect after a few months' experience, taking others out with them, until now Mormonism as interpreted by Taylor & Co., is become a stench in the nostrils of all pure minded persons, a curse to its own rising generation and, a hideous sore upon the civilization of the nineteenth century.

Now, brother Joseph, that I have shown what the doctrines and teachings of the original church were, its principles and practice, there are a few questions which find a proper place here. First, where was David Whitmer during the years 1837 to 1842? What position did he occupy in the church during those years? Was he doing his best to hold up the hands of him who set apart Heber C. Kimball, "by the spirit of prophecy and revelation, prayer and the laying on of hands of the first presidency to preside over the first foreign mission of the Church of Jesus Christ in the last days?" Also, David Whitmer had long before 1837 listened to the voice of the charmer; and for over forty-five years no more is heard of him in connection with the church; and the man who ought to have stood shoulder to shoulder with the Seer in upholding and furthering the cause of Christ with regard to the English mission, which resulted while under the guidance of Joseph in such a glorious pentecost, refused both by precept and action to aid in the glorious work, became a log across the stream of progression and in various ways tried to injure the cause of Christ. And this is the man, who, now that he thinks forty-five years have thrown an impenetrable veil over the past, is again raising his voice, not now against Joseph the Seer, for he is where the Whitmers "cease from troubling and the weary are at rest," but against his son and heir; and again is found trying to injure the cause by imputations and inuendoes. "Now we know that God heareth not sinners, but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth His will, him he heareth. Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of the blind. If this man were not of God he could do nothing."

David Whitmer, did God, through the means of Joseph Smith open the eyes of those thousands, aye, scores of thousands who were born spiritually blind? Did those tens of thousands who had long sat in spiritual darkness and in the valley of the shadow of death see a great light? Did they receive the gift and the blessings of the Holy Ghost through the ministry of those who were set apart by revelation from God and ordained under the hands of Joseph Smith in 1837 to 1842 to that mission? If you can not, or pretend that you can not tell, there are thousands that do know, and the memories of those days are among the highest and holiest they have; days, David, that will be held in glad remembrance when the waters of the dark river are beginning to lave their feet; memories, David, that even at this day cause those Old-country brethren, when they happen to meet together and speak of those times, to grasp each others hands, and their bosoms to burn within them and the whole-souled, heart-felt feeling of each of them, with eyes dimmed with tears, yet sparkling with the light of other days, is "peace on earth and good will to all men;" "Jesus lives and I know it." Ah, David, you lost a grand thing when you listened to ambition's fatal promptings. And remember, David, and all the atrabilious, that the revelations of February, 1834, were in print years before the revelation for the opening up of the British mission was given! "Now we know that God heareth not," etc. David, was the power and influence of God's Holy Spirit displayed in a remarkable manner during the years from the establishment of that mission up to 1844? And if so, Why?

David, it is a pity that at your time of life you have yet to learn that "some guns are as dangerous at the breech as at the muzzle." You have fired off your gun, David; now 'ware the recoil.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

Appointed by the Independence (Mo.) branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to consider the advisability, &c., of securing a lot on which to build a new and larger church edifice. Read before the branch—adopted by unanimous vote, and ordered to be published in the Herald.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo.,

January 3d, 1887.

To the Independence Branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints:

Your committee appointed to consider the advisability of securing a lot for a larger church building in this city, beg leave and report as follows:—

FIRST.—That we were unanimously agreed as to the necessity of securing a lot at once.

SECOND.—That we, individually, have visited and, collectively have considered several localities, and have decided upon one opposite the Temple Lot, on West Lexington street, and have secured a lot 80 x 115 feet, for which action we submit the following reasons:

(1). That the City Council recently extended the city limits one half mile westward, and within a short time said lot and locality will be central.

(2). That a large body of our members are residing at points surrounding said locality, and the prospect is for a greater settlement of them from pecuniary as well as religious consideration.

(3). That lots of the above size a block or two nearer the Court House will cost from $2,500 to $4,000, and will probably be no more central than the above in a couple of years from now.

(4). That the above lot, situated as it is, so near to the Temple Lot, is a more desirable spot than any other, in view of our faith in the future developments of the work and the permanency of our location there.

(5). That Bro. Daniel S. Bowen generously offered to deed to the church the above lot, without cost, only requiring as a consideration that we move the house now on the premises, to a point to be hereafter designated by him, and that we agree to commence the construction of a church building upon the lot within one year from date of deed, to cost not less than seven thousand dollars.

(6). That the $2,500, or more, which would be required to purchase other locations no more desirable, when the future is considered, would go a fair distance towards paying for the erection of a creditable church edifice upon the above lot.

(7). That we have felt strongly impressed that the Providence of God has placed said lot at our disposal, and that we would be recreant to the trust you have reposed in us had we not secured it at once.

THIRD.—Your committee is unanimously of the opinion that action should be taken at once by you to secure the erection of a building that will seat about twelve hundred people in the main auditorium, and as nearly that number as possible in the basement; and for that reason we recommend:

(1). That a committee be appointed by your honorable body, not exceeding five in number, to carry into effect the above suggestion.

(2). That said committee shall be empowered to counsel with Bishop George A. Blakeslee, and with his approval, dispose of the church property now occupied by you at the highest possible figure, only reserving the right for your occupancy until the new building shall be in condition for worship therein.

(3). That said committee shall have authority to apply the proceeds of said sale towards the erection of the contemplated new building, and shall be empowered to prepare subscription lists and solicit aid thereby, according as their judgment shall determine, and also raise funds in any legitimate way for the above object.

(4). That the nominal cost of the building said committee shall aim to erect shall be about $12,000, above which amount they shall not go, unless the success attending their efforts, as above, shall in their judgment warrant it.

(5). That said committee shall have the right to secure plans, figures, &c., at once, and decide upon the design, character, and material of said building, and proceed to its erection as soon as they shall have access to a sufficient amount of money or security to warrant them in so doing.

(6). That in order to avoid unnecessary delays, interferences, or trouble, said committee shall be under appointment for one year from date of its selection, and shall report its labor to the branch once every three months; and no member of said committee shall be released until the expiration of the year, except at his own personal request, or at the request of a majority of the members of said committee.

(7). That said committee shall have power to add to its number, or call for assistance from among the church members if occasion require and wisdom direct.

The members of your committee submit that they have been carefully and prayerfully engaged in this matter, and that without regard to any consideration, save the advancement of the great work and the glory of God, both in the present and future, they have adopted the above as expressive of their unanimous and solemn conviction.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH LUFF, chairman.
F. G. PITT, secretary.
THOMAS E. LLOYD.
F. C. WARNKY.
C. A. BISHOP.

The adoption of the above by unanimous vote was followed by the appointment of F. G. Pitt, F. W. Barbee, F. C. Warnky, C. A. Bishop and Joseph Luff, as the committee provided for. This committee met on the 4th of January and elected Joseph Luff as chairman, F. G. Pitt as secretary, and F. W. Barbee as treasurer. Various duties were assigned to members of the committee, and the subscription lists are printed and ready for circulation. We expect help from all over the church. Subscriptions may be sent to Joseph Luff or F. C. Warnky, Independence, Missouri, who have this part of the work in charge. This is an effort in which all the church should feel an interest. Who will help, and help liberally in proportion to their ability? The committee desire to have the building completed within the year 1887 if possible. The Saints at Independence are responding heartily, and the citizens without the church have promised aid. From all the United States and the Islands of the Sea, we look for help and support in this worthy enterprise. Let us hear from you soon. Send by Post Office Order, or Draft, or Postal Note, to the brethren named above.

Yours for Zion's weal,

JOSEPH LUFF, chairman.
F. G. PITT, secretary.
F. W. BARBEE, treasurer. } Com.
F. C. WARNKY.
C. A. BISHOP.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT.

To all whom it may concern. In accordance with a resolution of last General Conference I have appointed Elder David L. Harris to labor as missionary in Southern California; and also Elder Wm. Gibson to San Bernardino county, California, and trust these brethren will be received in their respective fields as servants of Christ, and that the Saints and friends will minister to them as their needs may demand. In gospel bonds.

HEMAN C. SMITH,
Pres. Pacific Slope Mission.

BISHOP'S NOTICE.

I respectfully request that all Elders whose duty it is under the law to make their financial report to me, be prompt in making their reports by March 1st, 1887, in order that I may embody the same in my annual report to the General Conference at Kirtland, Ohio, April 6th 1887.

GEORGE A. BLAKESLEE,
Presiding Bishop.

GALLEN, Michigan.

TO THE MINISTRY.

The law of God requires that a record shall be kept of the names of all the members of the whole Church; and, in order to fulfill this command, it is requisite that the ministry, both general and local, should take more care than has been taken by some in the past that all whom they baptize are given Certificates of Baptism, also that they be reported to branch officials, if they are near enough to a branch to be enrolled. And if they are not then the brethren will confer a favor upon me, and upon the work, if they will keep a record of names and items of birth and baptism, then, at the time, or occasionally, send me a copy of the same that I may place upon the record of the scattering members. Particularly this account should be sent in by the first of March each year. In this way many errors would be avoided, and every member would be sure of having his or her name upon the General Church Record, as provided for in God's law. The General Church missionaries are especially asked to kindly assist the cause in this manner, as they travel to and fro, as also to take an interest in branch officials keeping correct records and making correct reports.

HENRY A. STEBBINS,
Church Sec'y and Recorder.

NOTICE.

Fremont District Conference will convene at the Gaylord School-house, February 5th and 6th, 1887. We hope all the brethren will make it convenient to attend. Let the branches bring, or send in correct reports, so there will be harmony with the branch and district records. Come one and all, and let us have a good time.

HENRY KEMP, Dist. Pres.

The following members of the Sacramento, California, branch, are requested to report by letter or otherwise. If not heard from within the next three months, they will be dropped from this branch, and returned as scattered members: John Herly, Squire Hilton, Emma L. Hunt, Otto Treishel, John Alvin Cullin Cook, Johannah Peruchi, Susannah Woodward. Address the secretary, Mrs. C. W. Blair, 2601 H. Street, Sacramento, California.

TO DELINQUENTS.

The money borrowed by the Herald Office, to replace that embezzled by L. Conover in February 1883, will be due at an early day, and we need to be in condition to pay it. We therefore ask all who owe the office to remit what they owe within the next thirty or sixty days, so that we can pay said borrowed money when due and wanted. All subscribers, so far as they can, should pay for their papers in advance. If the aid we ask for is given us promptly, we can soon pay off all this indebtedness and then begin to reduce the price of the Church papers and other publications. We are anxious to serve the Church the best we can in these matters, and hope to do better in the future than in the past. But in order to succeed, we must have the hearty and prompt co-operation of our patrons. Please do not neglect nor delay. Very truly,

DAVID DANCER,
Business Manager.

BORN.

KENNEL.—To Mr. Valentine and Sr. Mary Kennel, July 6th, 1886, a daughter. Blessed January 9th, 1887, by J. S. Roth, and named Frances Geneva.

MARRIED.

BISHOP.—HOLMES.—At the home of the bride's parents, Hudson street, Providence, R. I., January 1st, 1887, by elder M. H. Bond, Mr. Horace Bishop, of Franklin, Massachusetts, and Sr. Ora Viola Holmes.

BOWKER.—WAY.—At the Saints' Church in Girard, Minnesota, December 26th, 1886, by Elder J. R. Anderson, Bro. Arthur G. Bowker and Sr. Nellie J. Way.

"May their lives in future blending,
Know the purest of earth's peace;
May no evil cloud descending,
Cause their perfect trust to cease.
With the other each forbearing,
When the time of trials come;
Every joy and sorrow sharing,
Fill with light the halls of home."

REHWALD.—OBINE.—At San Francisco, California, December 6th, 1886, by Elder William Potter, C. F. Rehwald and Emma Obine, both of San Francisco.

THOMPSON.—BRUSTER.—At Harlan, Iowa, by Elder J. W. Chatburn, on the 27th of December, 1886, Bro. Franklin Thompson, of Dow City, Crawford county, Iowa, and Sr. Mary Alice Bruster, of Shelby county, Iowa.

SHAW.—BENTLY.—At the residence of Bro. Joseph Schmutz, in Kansas City, Missouri, by Elder Thomas E. Lloyd of Independence, Missouri, Elder Marcus Shaw of Kansas City, and Sr. Eliza A. Bentley, of Lamoni, Iowa.

DIED.

BAGNALL.—In Sacramento, California, October 21st, 1886, sister Elizabeth Sarah Bagnall; aged 73 years, 8 months and 22 days. She was a native of — Hill, Greenwich, Kent, England; born January 29th, 1813; baptized about 1846, and rebaptized into the Reorganization by Alexander H. Smith on his first mission to the Pacific Slope. Elder J. H. Parr, her pastor, who personally knew her, certified that she lived the life of a Saint, and set a Christian example before her brethren and sisters, and was of good report, and was well respected by all who knew her. The funeral sermon was preached by elder J. H. Parr, her pastor, to a large congregation assembled to pay their last respects.

LOOMIS.—At Burchard, Nebraska, at eleven p. m. Wednesday night, August 25th, 1886, sister Mary G. Loomis, aged 49 years. She was born in Coldchester, Canada; received the gospel there some thirty years ago, subsequently emigrated to Nebraska, where she resided until death. She was a faithful Christian and leaves a husband and four children, also many friends to mourn her loss.

Dear Sister Mary, fare thee well—
We'll meet again.
'Tis well to know that thou art free
From care and pain.
We'll try to ever faithful be,
And thus prepare
For the great resurrection morn,
And meet thee there.

DENNIS.—Bro. Adam Dennis was born July 27th, 1827, in Oneida county, New York, and died at the residence of Joseph McBride, in Ellsworth City, Kansas, of disease contracted in the military service of his country, aged 58 years, 7 months and 24 days. Bro. Dennis entered the Union army as a private in Co. B, Merrill's Horse, (Mo. Cav.) August 29th, 1862; was honorably discharged as a corporal, July 24th, 1865, and became a member of Ellsworth Post, No. 22, G. A. R., August 11th, 1882. His remains were laid to rest in the Ellsworth cemetery by the G. A. R., with their beautiful funeral service. He became a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints in 1845, at Nauvoo, Illinois; started west with the church in 1846; went as far as Memphis, Missouri, and finally settled in northern Missouri, near Lamoni, where he resided twenty years; was baptized into the Reorganized Church in 1871, by Z. H. Gurley, and emigrated to Kansas in 1876. Farewell, dear father, till we meet thee in that sun-bright clime. 'Twas hard to give thee up; but we know thy sufferings are all o'er. God's will be done, not ours.

DENNIS.—Clara May, infant daughter of Bro. Frank and Sr. Amanda Dennis, at Alliance, Kansas, September 24th, 1886, of erysipelas, aged six days.

HARSH MEASURES.

ON the 12th of January, the House of Representatives of the National Congress, passed the Tucker-Edmunds Bill, some of the provisions of which are very severe. The bill provides that the lawful husband or wife of any person prosecuted for bigamy, polygamy, or unlawful cohabitation be a competent witness against the accused, and for the registration of all marriages, making it a misdemeanor for any person to violate the provision requiring such registration. It also does away with all the requirements of the Territorial laws for the identification of the votes of electors at any election, and also all laws by reason of which the territorial courts have taken cognizance of cases for divorce, and the abolishment of the suffrage to woman in the territory of Utah. Penalties are provided for unlawful intercourse, and defining polygamy to be a marriage between one person of one sex and more than one person of another sex, declares it to be a felony. Another provision dissolves the Corporation known as the Church of the Latter Day Saints, also the Perpetual Emigration Fund company, and the Attorney General is directed to wind these incorporations up by process of court. All laws for the organization of the militia of the territory and the creation of the Nauvoo Legion are annulled. Polygamists are not to vote, and a test oath is prescribed for those offering to vote, imposing the conditions that they will obey the laws of the United States, and especially the laws in respect to the crimes named in the Tucker-Edmunds and the original Edmunds acts. The judges and selectmen of the county and the probate courts are at once to be appointed by the President, and the justices of the peace, sheriffs, constables, and other county and district officers by the Governor.

This bill was sent to the Senate for their concurrence, but that body did not see fit to consent to the passage of the bill, and so appointed a committee of conference with the house, for the purpose of seeking a basis of unity of action. The passage of the bill as it appears was a surprise to many, who supposed that it was cast in the committee room and would stay there till too late for action at this term of Congress. What will be its fate now remains to be seen. We have looked to see some severe laws enacted against polygamy, by Congress, sooner or later, and which from the nature of the case we have regarded as a fatality, but these provisions are extraordinarily hard, possibly too severe. Having been persistently warning the people of Utah of what might be looked for if their peculiar transgression against the laws of God given in the church from 1831 to the death of the Seer was persisted in, we feel that we have not been remiss in our duty as a watchman, nor have we called without reason. Will the leaders, those who can, if they will, now take measures to avert the impending storm most likely to burst over those illy prepared to meet it.

Did we not feel the most confident assurance that for which the church in Utah is certainly suffering and likely still to suffer, was not designed of God, or sanctioned by him, we should be alarmed at the apparent threatening to American liberties found in this bill. But the fact that the Lord, who in his own wisdom laid the political foundation upon which alone it could rise and flourish, did in most emphatic terms declare to the church that in keeping the laws by virtue of which the church was established, there would be no necessity to break the laws of the land upon which it was organized, and on which it was to achieve a final triumph, warrants us now, as it has warranted us in the past, to declare that no matter through what human instrument it may come, whatever asks, or demands that a member of the Church of Christ shall disregard or break the law of the land is not from God. And while we state this we know, full well, how that it may be urged that we should obey God rather than man; which we subscribe to most heartily; but it must not be forgotten by those in Utah who may urge this, that the presumption is not only fair but is unavoidable, that God must have known what sort of laws regarding the marriage relation would be prevalent at the instituting of the Church, and that he would also know the character of the men who would be called from time to time by the people to make the laws to govern the nation as a whole; and if he should have foreseen that there would ever come a time at which he intended to require his people to disregard the laws of the country where his work was to be performed, he would have provided for such an emergency, by shaping the legislation of Congress to that end; which any one can easily see has not been done. Up to the introduction of plural marriage the church was singularly free from suits at law against its members based upon their transgression of the laws of the states where they lived, and founded on facts but now the strange spectacle is presented, by the people who claim to be the church, of hundreds being arrested, tried and convicted for flagrant and gross violations of well known and well defined laws. To believe that such a condition of things was designed of God, is not only beyond the pale of common sense, but is, also beyond the compass of sound reason.

The leading men of the church in Utah may continue to lull the spirit of inquiry among the people, and by their peculiar sophistry make them believe that it is a crusade of hate and a persecution that is being waged against them, "for their religion's sake;" but sophistry does not change the facts, that all the rules, regulations, and laws given of God to the church at its establishment, and during its days of prosperity in propagating the gospel of which the Church was made the repository, and its elders the heralds were monogamic, under the laws of the United States also monogamic, and in states in all of which the domestic relations were monogamic. What an astounding array of most stubborn facts are these? Who can, who dare to so arraign the wisdom of God, in arranging the affairs for the bringing to pass "his act his strange act," by declaring that he intended such a condition of things as is now existing in the Valleys of Utah?

REORGANIZATION, &c.

BRO WM. BRACY of Mecosta City, Michigan, writes that there are four families there, and that they "have frequent visits from the Mormon [Utah] elders," who claim that the members of the Reorganization "had no right to reorganize," also that there are "only 20,000 members of the Reorganized Church."

As to the number of members, it is rather difficult to say, (1), for the reason that many have been baptized who are not enrolled in any branch; (2), because there have been many baptisms which have not been reported to the Church Recorder; and, (3), because many once in branches have been dropped from the records owing to their failure to report themselves.

As to the authority to reorganize the church, that came by direct commandment and was confirmed to those who heard it, by the power of the Holy Ghost, in 1851, and from that time forward.

The church "as a church," an organized body, including its quorums as such—was “rejected,” also what had been done in respect to their baptisms for their dead. See Doc. Cov. 107, 11, 13. It remained, therefore, for the Lord to reorganize His church in His own time and way. It was ordained of God that the presiding, ruling priesthood should remain in the family of Joseph the Seer, and it stands so revealed in the immutable promises of the Lord found in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, for the Lord said to the Seer,— “Therefore, thus saith the Lord unto you, with whom the priesthood hath continued through the lineage of your fathers, for ye are lawful heirs according to the flesh, and have been hid from the world with Christ in God:—therefore your life and the priesthood hath remained, and must needs remain, through you and your lineage, until the restoration of all things spoken by the mouths of all the holy prophets since the world began. Therefore, blessed are ye if ye continue in my goodness, a light unto the Gentiles, and through this priesthood, a savor unto my people Israel. The Lord hath said it. Amen.”—Doc. Cov. 84: 3, 4.

This promise assures us that the Seer's priesthood “must needs remain” in him and in his “lineage, until the restoration of all things,” etc. Add to this the following: “For this anointing have I put upon his head, that his blessing shall also be put upon the head of his posterity after him; and as I said unto Abraham concerning the kindreds of the earth, even so I say unto my servant Joseph, in thee, and in thy seed, shall the kindred of the earth be blessed.”—Doc. Cov. 107: 18. This promise makes it plain that Joseph's “blessing,” in respect to priesthood authority, would be placed “upon the head of his posterity after him.” In harmony with this the Seer predicted, January 2d, 1844, in his letter to Hon John C. Calhoun:—“I or my posterity will plead the cause of injured innocence, until Missouri makes atonement for all her sins,” etc.

The language of these quotations means, and can be made to mean nothing else, than that God appointed “the head” (the eldest son) of the Seer's posterity to be the Seer's successor in the presidency of the church. These are facts of promise that should forever settle the question as to where would be found that presidency of the church ordained and appointed of God. Those who fight against these facts fight against the appointments of God. It is imputing folly to the Almighty to say He would not provide plainly and definitely for so important a matter as the succession in the presidency of the church. He has done so, as we have seen, and here is further proof of it:

“O hearken, ye elders of my church, and give an ear to the words which I shall speak unto you: for behold, verily, verily I say unto you, that ye have received a commandment for a law unto my church, through him whom I have appointed unto you to receive commandments and revelations from my hand. And this ye shall know assuredly, that there is none other appointed unto you to receive commandments and revelations until he be taken, if he abide in me. But verily, verily I say unto you, that none else shall be appointed unto this gift except it be through him, for if it be taken from him he shall not have power, except to appoint another in his stead; and this shall be a law unto you, that ye receive not the teachings of any that shall come before you as revelations, or commandments; and this I give unto you that you may not be deceived, that you may know they are not of me. For verily I say unto you, that he that is ordained of me shall come in at the gate and be ordained as I have told you before, to teach those revelations which you have received, and shall receive through him whom I have appointed.—Doc. Cov. 43: 1, 2.

The reader will see at a glance in the above that in any case—even though he himself should lose his place as revelator to the church—the Seer should and would “appoint another in his stead”—his office. This he did do, as we have already seen in the predictions and promises quoted. And to this we may add, that the Seer did, in Liberty Jail, Missouri, in the winter of 1838–9, set apart his son Joseph to succeed him. This he did by prophecy and blessing in the presence of Lyman Wight and others. In 1844 he formally set him apart, in a council, by prophecy and anointing. This son, in the spring of 1860, came forward and claimed that God had by revelation to himself called him to take his father's place at the head of the church, and instructed him to unite with the Saints composing the Reorganized Church, revealed to him also that polygamy was false and evil. In accordance with this divine instruction he united with the church at its conference in Amboy, Illinois, April 6th, 1860, and from that time forward has supervised and directed in reorganizing and building up the Church of God, the Lord confirming the work with signs following the faithful believer. These facts show that the Saints composing the Reorganized Church did have, and do still have, authority to reorganize it.

As for the Utah Mormon Church, it was made up of the broken fragments of the “rejected” church, which a part of the then rejected quorum of apostles reorganized without command or competent authority from God, at Winter Quarters, December 27th, 1847, organizing their First Presidency composed of Brigham Young, Heber C. Kimball, and Willard Richards, and doing all this without a prophecy or promise on record pointing to it, without revelation from God to do it, and without any competent authority for such proceedings; but doing it in direct violation of the promises and prophecies and utterly contrary to the law and order of the church. Their reorganization was without the authority of God, and some of their doctrines and practices have been correspondingly false and corrupt.

The Reorganization, called and appointed of God, has from the first essayed to work and build according to the accepted word of God given to the church in the times of Joseph the Seer.

The Utah reorganized church departed from the accepted word of God given to the church in the times of the Seer, and has taught and builded contrary to it from its beginning until now. These facts should enable people to see where and with whom is the authority to build the Church of God.

THE COMING OF THE LORD.

A BROTHER writes he finds in the Millennial Star that Joseph the Seer predicted the coming of the Lord is 1891, and wishes to know if that is genuine. We can not say as to whether the seer made that statement or not; and if he did make it we are not prepared to say what is meant by it. Here is the statement, and a brief history of what apparently called it forth:

KIRTLAND, February 14th, 1835.

This day a meeting was called of those who journeyed to Zion for the purpose of laying the foundation of its redemption, last season, together with as many others of the brethren and sisters as were disposed to attend.

President Joseph Smith, jun., presiding, read the 15th chapter of John, and said—Let us endeavor to solemnize our minds that we may receive a blessing, by calling on the Lord. After an appropriate and affecting prayer, the brethren who went to Zion were requested to take their seats together in a part of the house by themselves.

President Smith then stated that the meeting had been called, because God had commanded it; and it was made known to him by vision and by the Holy Spirit. He then gave a relation of some of the circumstances attending us while journeying to Zion—our trials, sufferings, &c., &c.; and said God had not designed all this for nothing, but He had it in remembrance yet; and those who went to Zion, with a determination to lay down their lives, if necessary, it was the will of God that they should be ordained to the ministry and go forth to prune the vineyard for the last time, or the coming of the Lord, which was nigh—even fifty-six years should wind up the scene.

The President also said many things; such as the weak things, even the smallest and weakest among us, shall be powerful and mighty, and great things shall be accomplished by you from this hour; and you shall begin to feel the whisperings of the Spirit of God; and the work of God shall begin to break forth from this time; and you shall be endowed with power from on high.

President Smith then called upon all those who went to Zion, if they were agreed with him in the statement which he had made, to arise; and they all arose and stood upon their feet.

He then called upon the remainder of the congregation, to know if they also sanctioned the movements, and they all raised the right hand.—Millennial Star, vol. 15, p. 205.

If Joseph gave, by prophecy, the date 1891 as the time when Christ would come, it may not necessarily mean his final and glorious advent to reign as King of Kings and Lord of Lords. The subject matter then in hand seems to be chiefly in relation to the redemption of Zion. It is set forth clearly, as we shall see, that when Zion is to be redeemed the Lord will be present with his people, for he says: “Therefore, let not your hearts faint, for I say not unto you as I said unto your fathers, mine angel shall go up before you, but not my presence; but I say unto you, mine angels shall go before you, and also my presence, and in time ye shall possess the goodly land."—Doc. and Cov. 100:3.

But, whatever may have been intended, one thing is certain, the statement is not made with a "Thus saith the Lord."

There is a great amount of work to be done among Gentiles and Jews before the redemption of Zion, and a still greater work to be done before the glorious and final advent of Christ. The Saints should not fret, nor worry about these matters, but go to work with godly zeal and Christlike love to do the perfect will of God and build up his church and kingdom committed to them.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. M. T. Short writes from Victoria, Illinois:

"I have been here more than a week, battling away to full and attentive houses. The interest is good and growing, and the people appear like shepherdless sheep. Rural districts throw open school houses, but the village of Victoria gave Christ the 'go by,' in turning a 'cold shoulder' to one of his weak, yet worshipful servants. Nixie their churches. Some will doubtless obey ere we go hence."

Bro. T. H. Moore, of Providence, Rhode Island, January 13th, writes:

"I intend to visit my native place, Birmingham, England, in May next, if all is well. I shall report myself to brother Thomas Taylor, that he might use me according to the Spirit of God, for I would like to labor in the old fields that I did in bondage under Brigham."

Bro. A. J. Cato wrote from Berlin, Johnson county, Arkansas, January 13th:

"I have been preaching here since December 24th. Some seem to be interested, and express themselves as being satisfied with the doctrine, while others do all they can against it. I do not feel discouraged, for God is able to do his work, and I only am required to do my part—my duty, and then bide the time of my reward."

Bro. Okey J. Tary wrote from Long Reach, West Virginia, January 13th:

"I receive the Herald regularly, with which I am well pleased, and from which I derive much good. I am always glad to see letters from those I know personally, and also from others."

Sr. Emma Drown, of Stewartsville, Missouri, writes January 14th:

"I have been afflicted for a year; I have tried medical aid, but human skill has failed its purpose; I look to a higher physician; one able and willing. Pray for me, Saints; I need God's merciful help."

Sr. Anna Nielson, of Nebraska City, Nebraska, reports unfavorably a lecture on Mormonism, delivered in Nebraska City, December 3d, 1886, by Mrs. A. F. Newman, of Lincoln, Nebraska. Sr. Nielson expresses the opinion that the woman has either been misinformed on the subject of which she treats, or is willfully blind to current facts; for she persisted in classing the Reorganized Church with the Utah people. Sr. Nielson says:

"I felt rather queer to be counted in as a Polygamist; and wished that the real difference was placed before all, that they might be able to judge clearly between us and the Utah Mormons; as she warned the audience with great significance to look well to their homes and families, peradventure the wolf might come over their threshold and bring ruin to them. To me it is a mystery that those who profess such eloquence and superb education and culture, can stoop so low as to call a dead man whom they never have seen, such low, ugly names as she used about Joseph the Seer. It is a puzzle to think how she could be so ignorant of the existence and position of the Reorganized Church."

In a letter to Bro. H. A. Stebbins, dated Pembroke, Dakota, January 30th, 1887, Bro. Samuel Lovett writes:

"Quite a lively interest is shown in this vicinity towards the latter day work. Much of the prejudice has subsided, and the people are getting more reasonable. The few Saints of this place are bravely holding up the glorious banner and battling with the adversary. Quite a number are fully convinced of the truths of the everlasting gospel, but they seem to be unwilling to come down into the valley of humiliation and be buried with Christ in baptism, and take upon themselves, the much despised name of Latter Day Saint or "Mormon." Brother Sparling, president of the branch, distributes some wholesome food every Sabbath; and, although our congregations are small, the Lord meets with the few and we receive a blessing. We are very desirous of seeing some one of the bright lights of the church visit us. I believe much good would result therefrom.

Bro. Thomas Burt of Springville, Utah, renews for the HERALD, sends the name of a new subscriber, and says:

"We do not trouble when a United States Marshal comes in town, as do some Brighamites. Times have been very dull the three past years, but we hope the new year will bring a better state of things. I shall look for a better time, spiritually. We have not made much progress in numbers, but we feel encouraged, because we know the pit from whence we were digged. We are sowing the good seed the best we can. My faith is that it is taking root deep in the hearts of the honest."

Continue to "sow the good seed," Bro. Burt. In this way you and those like you will become "saviors of men." The errors and evils of Brighamism will be purged away at no distant day.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote from Edmore, Michigan, January 11th, saying:

"I feel blessed and encouraged in the work, and the only discouragement is because I can not fill one half the calls. The Saints generally are alive in the work throughout this region, and we learn some more are now ready for baptism."

Sr. Kezziah Richardson of Williamsburg, Nebraska, has words of commendation for the HERALD. She also says:

"Bro. R. C. Elvin came to this neighborhood the 3d of last November, stayed ten days, preached every night, had good congregations most of the time, some were pleased and others not. Mr. William Marshall is waiting for an elder to come this way. He says he has now found the doctrine he had been looking for during the past twenty years. Quite a number here seem anxious to hear more of the doctrine of the Saints."

Bro. Henry Whittaker of Nevada City, California, writes of late:

"I would rather miss my meals than the dear Herald. I take pleasure in reading it to the blind sectarian world to show them where the true church is."

Elder Willard J. Smith, missionary to Canada, is a sensible and worthy worker, and he includes in his work timely efforts to sell and circulate the church publications. Of late he writes from Cameron, Ontario:

"Bro. David Dancer. I am trying to get all the subscribers I can for the Herald, as I believe all who take the Herald will be better prepared to meet any opposition that may arise, if they will carefully consider its teachings. For thus having access to the 'master minds' they may know the position the church takes and be prepared to resist the attacks of those who oppose the great work."

Sr. Lou Berry, writes from Marshalltown, Iowa, January 15th, that "I have been circulating the Voice of Warning for Bro. Peters, since October last, and have awakened quite an interest. A number say if we have preaching they want to know it. One, an Advent, says that he would like to become acquainted with our people. He agrees on a number of points of doctrine, but can not think any good could come through Joseph Smith. One lady has expressed a desire to be baptized."

This is indicative of what a woman can do, if she has the will. Sr. Berry may not think that she can preach, but she does think that she wants to, and will let her faith be known to enquirers.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Bro. W. W. BLAIR visited the Saints of Lucas, Lucas county, Iowa, January 15th, preaching with them over the Sabbath, and preaching for them in their church.

Bro. Sparks, of Davis City, led the prayer at the evening service in Lamoni, on the 16 of January.

Bro. Marion F. Cooper wrote from Fairberry, Illinois, January 15th. He and Bro. J. S. Keir had been laboring together. Bro. Cooper was to be at Piper City, then at Streator for two days' meeting. He would also visit Catlin, at the request of some Saints in the west to visit friends there.

Bro. William Weston and wife write from Chelsea, Holt county, Nebraska, that they are enjoying a season of peace and restful consciousness of the truth, after years of search and study for the truth. The church is to them a harbor of rest and safety in Christ.

Sr. J. H. Merriam wrote from Stewartsville, Missouri, that they are rejoicing in the truth, though having sorrow, sickness and pain in the flesh. She represents the church at Stewartsville as being quite alive.

Sr. Kizzie E. Richardson writes from Williamsburgh, Nebraska, January 4th, that there is an opportunity for an elder to do good there, as there are a number willing and anxious to hear further upon the doctrine of the church.

Bro. R. R. Gaither wrote from Ottawa, Kansas, January 10th. He is talking to those who will listen, loaning the books of the church, and Voice of Warning, "preparing the way for a preacher," he says.

Sr. Anderson of Sycamore, Illinois, is much pleased with the HERALD and says, "I can't think of getting along without it."

Sr. Eliza A. Bentley—Shaw, in a letter dated the 17th inst., at Kansas City, Mo., speaks well of her new home and hopes to aid much in Sunday School work there. We bid her goodspeed.

The Kansas City Times for January 1st, 1887, is a twenty-eight page number, with a two page map of the city and its suburbs; it is a superb number.

Bro. Oscar Beebe, of Burnett, Nebraska, writes that times have been pretty hard, but he thinks he can see his way clear now, and he hopes to be able to spread the gospel.

Bro. Levi Graybill wrote from Wano, Cheyenne county, Kansas, January 8th. He thinks the country there as good, if not better than any part of Iowa, that he has seen. He would like the brethren at Bird City to call, or correspond with him. He lives seven miles south-east of Wano.

Bro. J. C. Foss has thirty of Bro. J. H. Peters' Voice of Warning out and at work. The weather at Cormorant, Minnesota, at the date of Bro. Foss' writing was such that the people could not get out to meeting.

Bro. J. H. Peters, of East Lake, Michigan, wishes those to whom he has sent the Voice of Warning to loan, to report to him by or soon after February 1st so that he can complete his report at once. If any are out of blank reports, they can write Bro. Peters and be supplied. The seventy-six who have reported to him of late have had most excellent success in loaning out the books.

We again remind our readers that they who write for publication should write only on one side of the sheet, otherwise their communications may never be printed.

THE railroad enterprise of this country is a most extraordinary thing. From east to west the various lines of iron rails intersect with other lines from the north to the south and from the south to north, until there is hardly a hamlet so remote that it has not its railway outlet. One of the most enterprising, as well as one of the most far reaching and complete of these roads is the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy, having its center of operations in Chicago, its iron tentacles of support, every where through the north, west, and southwest. It is said that incorporations have no souls; but, as all corporations are made up of men, the most of whom have risen to the places they now occupy by reason of industry, merit and labor, it must be true that some corporations are exceptions to the rule. We have lived for over twenty years on the line of the C. B. and Q. as it is familiarly called in the language of the road, and have always been treated by its officers and employees as if we and they had souls.

Of course, one of the principal objects for which all railway companies are formed is to make wealth; and the skill and energy of all, incorporators and employees, are directed to that end. No one ought to be so foolish as to suppose that men would combine capital and labor unto the formation of a system of roads of the character of the C. B. and Q., or any other, simply for the purpose of running it for pleasure to themselves, and the profit of those who may choose, or be obliged to use their respective roads. Another thing should appear to him who is able to read as he runs, and that is that business honesty, always the best policy, and business principles, more or less understood by all business men, do not permit wholly soulless corporations long to survive the continued exhibitions of their soullessness; and the opposite of this must be equally true, that the same business principles and honesty, manifest in the transactions of a corporation composed of soulful men, carry with them the assurances of interest in the vitality and perpetuity of the community that commend that corporation to society. The good and prosperity of the country through which a road passes, mean the success and prosperity of the road itself. And, it would be business suicide, if there is such a thing, for any corporation, of the nature of railways, to show to its patrons that it was without a soul.

Through the inquiries of Bro. G. A. Blakeslee, in regard to obtaining rates over the roads leading to the place where the Saints will hold their April session of conference, the General Passenger Agent of the C. B. and Q., learned of the fact of such conference. He at once wrote to Bro. David Dancer in respect to it, asking if their road could not make such arrangements as would be of mutual benefit to the Saints and the road. In pursuance of this thought there will likely be such arrangements made that all along the line of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway, the Saints living on and contiguous to the road, will be given the benefit of somewhat reduced rates. This will be beneficial to those who may have to go as delegates, and to those who will wish to attend out of interest and curiosity. Let the brethren bear this in mind, and if the negotiations are satisfactorily successful, we may look for a repetition of our first Kirtland Conference.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

THE Business Manager hands us the following, which should be carefully observed by all who send money to the Herald Office. Please put your news items on one sheet of paper, and business items on another. This will save delay, confusion and mistakes.

In sending remittances for books and subscriptions, send Post-office Money Orders, Postal Notes, or Express Orders payable at Lamoni, Iowa. If Bank Drafts are sent, have them payable at Chicago, or New York. If payable at other places it causes delay and expense to us to collect them. Foreign money orders should be made payable at Leon, Decatur county, Iowa.

DAVID DANCER.

THE Stewartville, Missouri, Independent, thus notices the Saints' Christmas Eve entertainment; clipping sent us by Sr. J. H. Merriam.

At the Latter Day Saints church the gifts were presented from "Grandmother's Box," which was represented by a huge trunk containing presents willed to Zion's Hope Sunday School by Grandmother. The will was found and read, and it directed that the presents be distributed by Santa Claus, whereupon Santa put in in an appearance and took charge of the distribution. The eyes of the little folks glistened with delight, and their young hearts throbbed with joy as presents were handed out, each a share and an abundance. The exercises were opened by prayer and interspersed with singing, and all passed off pleasantly under the management of Mrs. J. H. Merriam, who is superintendent of the Sabbath School.

A novel feature of this school's celebration was the forming in line, by twos, of about fifty of the scholars at the home of Mrs. Bettie Smith, opposite the M. E. Church, at seven o'clock in the evening, and marching to the church, singing as they went, the line being headed by the superintendent.

About sixty children partook of hospitalities here, several teachers were presented with handsome gifts, and many friends with mementoes of the occasion. An especially pleasing number of the exercises was a recitation of "Born on Christmas Night," by little Mary Ann Egle.

THE Saints of Independence, Missouri, are seemingly aroused to the fact, discovered by some of their visitors long ago, that the little church down under the hill, was much too small to accommodate so large a church as theirs has become. They have a membership of some four hundred and sixty or seventy, to say nothing of the constant stream of transient Saints coming and going. We therefore look with considerable favor upon the attempt to secure a larger house. We presume the brethren there will not think we are intruding when we venture to suggest that one of the safest, and in the long run the best ways to secure the erection of the building will be to depend on themselves as far as practicable, and to do all the work among themselves that they can do. It is neither selfish, nor out of the lines of prudence, to do as completely within ourselves, any work of the kind as lies in our power. The temple at Kirtland was built by the Saints when they were not only a few, but were very poor; and yet it was completed, and in good time and style. It is quite certain that in any contingency, the building of a temple or otherwise, there will be need of a building of the sort the brethren contemplate to erect. We hope that they will succeed, and manage to keep out of debt. It is bad enough for individuals to get into debt, but for communities it is much worse, because there is less necessity for it. We should dislike to see a good building put up and there be a great bill for labor and materials left unpaid; especially in Independence. The brethren must not think from this that we are unfriendly to their enterprise, for we are not. If the effort is made with a will it will doubtless succeed. The church at Lamoni will seat about six hundred in the basement and a thousand in the main auditorium.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is the 8th paragraph of 2 Nephi, wherein Lehi says he "must needs suppose * * * according to that which is written," &c., to be taken as an accurate rendition in all points concerning the fall of Adam?

Ans.—So far as it is treated of it presents the view that Lehi had of the fall. Taken with Alma 19: 10, 11 and 12; and the relation in Genesis, Inspired Translation, enable one to comprehend, to a great degree the theory of the fall and the means of restoration.

Q.—Do the teachers and deacons belong to the Aronic Priesthood?

A.—We so understand it.

Q.—If a branch has an elder, priest, teacher and deacon as branch officers, and the elder and priest resign, is the branch in a disorganized state if the branch sustain the teacher and deacon?

A.—No; a branch may exist with either officer in charge.

Q.—Is the voice, or vote of God's people the voice, or suffrage of God?

A.—No, not necessarily. The decision of God's people stated by vote is a rule of action for them. If it be in accordance with the word, or expressed will of God, the voice of the people is as the law of God to them, and will be prospered; if the voice of the people should be contrary to the word of God, while they might observe it as the rule to them, it could not prosper, but must result in disaster, and if persisted in utter ruin would follow. The voice of God should be the voice of the people; and every utterance of the voice of the people should be in harmony with the voice of God.

MISS KATE FIELD ON UTAH.

In her lecture in Washington, D. C., December 14th, under the auspices of Kit Carson Post G. A. R., Kate Field presented the following in relation to the Utah problem, in the presence of many Congressmen and distinguished citizens. There can be no doubt that Brighamism is near the last ditch, a consummation we have foreseen for the last twenty-five years, and more. Miss Field says,— Referring to the several anti-polygamy laws passed within the last twenty-three years, and to the practical impossibility of enforcing laws when a large majority of the people hold political power and are opposed to them, Miss Field illustrated the situation in Utah by a humorous anecdote. She then made a very strong plea in favor of a National marriage law, to do away with special anti-polygamy legislation.

"Such a law," declared Miss Field, "would not encroach upon the domain of ecclesiasticism. A marriage might be solemnized in accordance with any religion, but first would be in accord with the law of the land, as in France. Such a record would be a safeguard against fraud, a proof of legitimacy of children beyond the survival of witnesses, officiating clergymen and a flimsy bit of paper. Let us hope that out of this turmoil of party strife—this wrangling for spoils—may come enough of manly leaven to make statesmanship yet possible in this country of great opportunities.

"With such a law, a man within our geographical limits is either married or single—has either one wife or no wife. Beyond this dignified numeral is felony, though sanctioned by high priests in the temples of Mormondom. Shall a man be a criminal for having two living wives anywhere under our flag except in Utah, and there enjoy freedom, hold property and be crowned king and saint? So long as this endures, let us not prate of equality before the law."

A LEGISLATIVE COMMISSION REQUIRED.

Eloquently as Miss Field pleaded for a national marriage law, it is not her panacea for the political ills of Utah. "Loyal citizens," she declared, "ask not for anti-polygamy laws, nor for the disfranchisement of women, not for the disfranchisement of a class, but for the disfranchisement of all men and women and the establishment of a legislative commission, composed of loyal citizens of the Territory, appointed by the President with the consent of Congress. Such a commission governed the Territories of Florida, Louisiana and the Northwestern Territory. Gentiles are so anxious that Utah should be put in harmony with the rest of the Union as to be willing to give up the ballot and stand upon the same plane as their disloyal brothers and sisters."

IS MORMON DISFRANCHISEMENT UNCONSTITUTIONAL?

"Unconstitutional!" is the cry that goes up from Mormon throats and is repeated by certain Gentile throats. Why is universal disfranchisement unconstitutional when, according to the Constitution of the United States, which the Mormons do dearly love, says

"Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the Territories and other property belonging to the United States?" What the Constitution declares the Supreme Court endorses.

"Congress has full and complete legislative authority over the people of the Territories and all the departments of the Territorial government.

"That is plain enough. Why should nullifiers be given the ballot? Man is not born to vote. The best legal authorities have long since denied that the electoral franchise is a vested right. Congress governs the District of Columbia. There is not an elector in it. The District of Columbia is in harmony with the rest of the country, has no established church to foster, and, therefore, sends up no wail of anti-republicanism.

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibit the free exercise thereof," shout the Saints, quoting the Constitution. "We are persecuted for our religion."

"I most emphatically deny it! The Josephites, now numbering about 20,000, live in harmony with the Union. They have settlements in Massachusetts, Rhode Island—in fact, in many States—even a settlement in Independence, Missouri, the very town from which the early Mormons were driven. They believe in the Book of Mormon, in Joseph Smith as a prophet, and have as their president, Joseph Smith, Jr., the son of the prophet—a good man and citizen.

"Why this difference? Because they repudiate polygamy; because they teach obedience to the laws of the land; because their presidency does not interfere with the people's political opinions.

"It is not the spiritual but the temporal part of Mormonism that is dangerous to the Republic. If treason and polygamy be a religion, why may I not invent a religion to-morrow, and, like Freeman, offer up human sacrifice? Why should the Government say me nay? It is my religion to take human life, and a vastly better religion is it to kill the human body than to torture the souls, beget crime, and undermine the Government.

"SHALL THERE BE AN ESTABLISHED RELIGION?"

"If Congress shall make no laws respecting an establishment of religion, shall it be constitutional for a mere dependency like a Territory to establish a religion? What says the fourth section of our perverted Constitutions? 'The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union (and, of course, that includes every territory, as the greater includes the less) a republican form of government.'

"Is a polygamous hierarchy a Republican form of government? Saint and quibbling Gentile, you are hoist by your own petard! Shame on this Government for being so false to its trust."

In urging immediate action by Congress she stated that all interests in Utah demanded it, and Mormon capitalists realized its necessity quite as much as the Gentiles. A Mormon banker had met one of the Gentile lobbyists in Salt Lake City a few weeks ago and had insisted on contributing to the support of the Gentile lobby in Washington. This Mormon took the ground that the crisis in Utah affairs had arrived. The success of the Tucker-Edmunds bill meant the overthrow of theocracy in Utah; the constitutional amendment, without that bill, looked to the speedy admission of the Territory into the Union as a State, and, therefore, the clothing of that theocracy with sovereign Statehood. 'This,' said that Mormon banker, 'would mean not only the ruin and driving out of the Gentiles, but also the final absorption by the church of Mormon wealth as well. I can tell you that I am not speaking for myself alone, but for many other Mormon capitalists who are quite as anxious as I am that the Tucker-Edmunds bill should be passed at once.'

BRO. HENRY DUELL, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, sent us a circular, issued under the auspices of the Loyal League, of Utah, and signed by D. J. Hollister, from which we extract the following, as indicative of the movement.

"About three months ago an organization called the Utah Loyal League was conceived by the Gentiles, literally for purposes of self-defence. The preamble of its constitution reads as follows:

"Recognizing the necessity of organizing for self-defence that element in Utah whose existence is threatened by the pretensions and practices of the so-called Mormon Church, it is proposed by the subscribers to form an association, open to its general object and purpose, but secret as to its membership and proceedings, to be known as the Utah Loyal League, comprising a Central League at Salt Lake City, and Branch Leagues at all available places in the Territory or elsewhere. In pursuance of this purpose the following constitution is hereby agreed to."

"Article one merely prescribes the relations of the Central and Branch Leagues to each other. Article two contains the gist of the whole scheme. It reads as follows:

"Signing the following form of enrolment and paying dues as therein specified, shall be the only qualification of membership of the Utah Loyal League. But canvassers for new members shall solicit none but such as are known to be in hearty sympathy with the end sought by the association, and no candidate shall be enrolled unless vouched for by some member of the League."

The objects of the Utah Loyal League are to combine the loyal people of Utah, male and female, irrespective of politics, in opposition to the political rule and the law-defying practices of the so-called Mormon Church; to oppose the admission of Utah into the Union until she has the substance as well as the form of republican government; to raise money to maintain agents in Washington or elsewhere to labor for these ends.

"Sympathizing with these objects and believing organization to be necessary to attain them, I hereby enroll myself as a member of the Utah Loyal League, and agree to pay fifty cent upon enrollment and fifty cents every month so long as I remain a member. And I promise upon my honor not to divulge the names of the members of the League, or any of the transactions of the League."

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"For the structure that we raise,
Time is with materials filled;
Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build."

A POEM FOR ALL HEARTS.

If I should die to-night—
My friends would look upon my quiet face,
Before they laid it in its final resting place,
And deem that death had left it almost fair;
And laying snow-white flowers against my hair,
Would smooth it down with tearful tenderness,
And fold my hands with lingering caress—
Poor hands! so empty and so cold to-night.

If I should die to-night—
My friends would call to mind with loving thought
Some kindly deed the icy hand had wrought;
Some gentle word the frozen lips had said,
Errands on which the willing feet had sped;
The memory of my selfishness and pride—
My hasty words—would all be put aside;
And so I should be loved and mourned to-night.

If I should die to-night—
E'en hearts estranged would turn once more to me,
Recalling other days remorsefully;
The eyes that chill me with averted glance,
Would look upon me as of yore, perchance,
And soften in the old familiar way—
For who could war with dumb unconscious clay?
So I might rest forgiven of all to-night.

Oh friends! I pray to-night,
Keep not your kisses for my dead cold brow!
The way is lonely—let me feel them now.
Think gently of me, I am travel-worn;
My faltering feet are pierced with many a thorn.
Forgive! oh hearts estranged, forgive I plead!
When dreamless rest is mine I shall not need
The tenderness for which I long to-night.
Selected by Sister L. C. Elliott.

THE question has been asked us, if it is necessary when sending in selections, to copy them off. We answer no; we greatly prefer they should not be copied, as it is better for both ourselves and the printers that they be in print than in manuscript. Another advantage when sent in print is, that there will be no danger of giving credit to the wrong party. In these days of many writers and multitudes of books, it would be asking too much of any one person to expect they should ever have read a tenth part of that which is current, much less have charged their memories with it, and we would dislike exceedingly to publish as original, that which should prove to be a selection. Send printed matter every time when practicable, and when you can not do this give the author's name, and never forget your quotation marks. If you do not know the author, write Selected, either at the beginning or close.

Dear Sister Frances:—December 31st, 1886, was my birth-day; I was ten years old. I got one dollar for a present, and I am glad to send it for the missionary fund. The Lord has blest me this last year, and I know if I do my duty he will bless me again.

Your sister,

LOUISA AGENSTINE.

THIS letter was not sent for publication, but we can not refrain from sharing it with our readers, and we challenge the world for proof of a righteous cause supported by sacrifices such as this, ever failing. This is not a single instance. No, truly, we have met with them by hundreds, in our editorial work. More than this, Bishop Blakeslee told us in his sermon last Sunday night, (January 9th), that he had upon his books the name of every person who had ever paid to him the smallest or greatest or any amount whatever, since he had been bishop of the church, and upon that list appeared the names of ten women to that of one man. Nor was this all, but he stated that it was the small sums, the twenty-five, fifty, and seventy-five cents which were swelling the list of those who are coming up to the Lord's help. Don't be afraid to send up your twenty-five cents, or even one penny, if your soul is desirous of rolling forth the work of God, he is able to cause your penny to outweigh ten thousand pieces of gold ten times the size. As Bro. Blakeslee said, so say we, "Don't give until your heart is willing, and until you give without one single reservation." Above all we say, don't rob God of his tithes and then insult him by sending stolen money as a freewill offering. Think you God can not let out the vineyard he is suffering you to occupy to other husbandmen? We tell you he can, and we know for ourselves this day beyond a doubt that he has taken from us in past years far more than we meanly robbed him of, and we bless his name for it, and we tell you this that you may not come under the same condemnation. —Ed.

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 10th, 1887.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Jan. 9th.

Dear Sister Frances:—In reading the Home Column week after week it does me good. I am thankful that you have taken the lead in this good work for I think we can do good if we only go to work with a will. We certainly can accomplish good for the cause we so dearly love, and if we can not do as our good sister Bourguoin did, send a dollar, let us not withhold the dimes, for they make the dollars. Sisters, why should we be selfish? we have had the gospel brought to us; we have been partakers of its blessings. I can look back many years ago, before I had reached my twentieth year, and call to my mind the time when I first heard the glad news preached by a shepherd boy. Yes, I felt then as I had never felt before; that life was worth living for. It had been my sad lot to be deprived of a mother at the early age of three years, but the gospel brought peace to my troubled soul; yes, I felt that God was good to me, and although he had seen fit in his wisdom to take my dear mother from me, yet if I live right I shall meet her again.

Well, I shall pass over all the dark and cloudy days that it has been my lot to pass through, for they are too bitter to think of, and come to the time I heard it again by Brn. Blair and Briggs. I received it with joy and gladness, and I have tried to live up to its precepts, but sometimes I think I have sadly failed in living up to them as I should; but thanks be to him that has watched over me all my life; yes, through all my lonely hours, he has not forsaken me, and I still feel that I can rely upon him for strength to guide my footsteps to the end. I know that he has answered my prayers many times. In reading one of the sister's letters to-day brought to my mind an incident which happened years ago, which I will now relate: I was alone with two little children and was taken very sick and remained so until three days had passed, without any earthly help, only what the oldest of the two children could give me. On the third night, so intense was my suffering that I felt that I must die. At ten o'clock at night, while my children were sweetly sleeping I felt the chilly hand of death was upon me, and while I lay there alone thinking that before the morning I should be no more. Should I wake those children that were so sweetly sleeping and send them out in the cold and darkness after some of the neighbors? No, I could not. Just then I heard a voice by the side of my bed utter these words, "Pray to God." I did so with all the earnestness God could give unto me. I prayed to God to spare my life for the sake of those sleeping children. If I could do no other good upon the face of this earth let me live to see them able to take care of themselves. I knew no more until I awoke to hear the clock strike one, then I put my hand up to wipe the perspiration from my forehead. What a change, I then knew that God had heard my prayers when I put my whole trust in him, and in the loneliness of the night my praise ascended unto him for his goodness unto me and mine, for

I felt like a new creature indeed. I rose from my bed and helped to prepare breakfast for the children. This is one of the many answers to my prayers that I have had, and it gives me strength to press on. May God give us all strength to press on to the end is the prayer of

Your sister in hope, E. H. D.

JOHNSONVILLE, Ill., Dec. 22d.

Dear Sister:—I love the Master's cause, and want to add all the mites I can, which are few considering what the kind father has done for me. I feel that I am but a weak, unworthy child, but I love this glorious gospel. I pray I may ever be found walking in the straight and narrow path that leads to life eternal.

AUNT MARY.

PROTON, Ontario, Dec. 26th.

Sister Frances:—I have felt impressed several times while reading the Home Column that I ought to write, for I was receiving the good that flowed from it, and giving nothing in return. I have hitherto quenched this feeling by saying, "What could I say? let them who have greater talents and who know how to give encouragement write." I would speak more especially to the young sisters, as I also am young. How often do we feel to say "Oh that I were as good as this brother or that sister." Why are we not? God requires nothing more of us than of them. And if they by conforming to the law of God have become worthy of praise, can we not by the same means form our lives according to the pattern given, for if we who are young, with light hearts and few cares, can not do these things now, when will we ever be able? I think Solomon spoke wisely when he said, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them." For surely it is easier for us to overcome our faults, foolish habits and vain desires now than after long years of indulgence, when they have become as part of our nature. Therefore I think now is the time to break the cords that bind us, and learn to be gentle, meek and kind. We know by experience that we can not be perfect in a day, but if God has shown us that the work is true, can any wise sacrifice be too great for us to make to gain perfection and spread the gospel? God has given us an advice called "The word of wisdom." If this is wisdom and we are the "wise" of the last days whom Daniel spoke of, are we wise if we do not follow wisdom? I would like your prayers that I may be kept more humble, for I feel that humility is the secret of success, and I am lacking in this.

Your sister in the hope of the gospel,

MAGGIE CAMPBELL.

FREDERICK, Md., Jan. 4th.

Dear Sister Frances:—There are only four of us here. My father and sister and her daughter and myself. Father is getting old; he is eighty-five. He joined the church in its early days, and he is still strong in the faith. Oh, how often we think we would love to meet with Saints. The Herald is our only preacher; we always long for its coming. We love the Mothers' Home Column. We hope it will be the means of doing much good. We will do all we can in trying to spread the gospel. God bless you is the prayer of sister

MARY E. YOUNG.

COOKE'S POINT, Texas, Jan. 1st.

Dear Sister Frances:—I will try and write a few lines; perhaps they may encourage some poor sister like myself in her lonely condition. Last night I had a dream that awoke me; while lying thus many things rushed to my mind. All my past experience in this church, so that I could not go to sleep for several hours. I joined this church while living in Cass county, Nebraska. The next day after my husband and I were baptized, we went to a conference at Nebraska City, and had a good time, and there we had a bottle of olive-oil consecrated, and the next evening after we got home my husband took a severe pain in his back, and as he went to lay down he fell, and could not move himself, and then he said to me, I wish you would anoint my back with the oil. I did as he wished me, and immediately his back was healed, and it has not hurt him since. This was a great testimony to me so that I was encouraged, but our best friends would not come into our house. It was not long until some more came into the fold so that we had enough to organize a branch. Shortly after my husband was called to the ministry, and ordained an Elder the following year; and he presided over the branch a while. He soon found that his mission was to the world, and they released him. The demand for preaching at other points was so great that we moved to Blue-Rapids, Kansas, and there established the gospel. Old brother and sister Landers came to the town and stayed with us several weeks. My husband was away almost all the time. I was very much troubled as to how we would get our living, and he in the ministry all the time. I could not sleep it troubled me so much. While thus meditating the Saints had a prayer meeting and in that meeting old sister Landers spoke in tongues and then gave the interpretation. It was to me, she said, "Be ye comforted, this is the Lord's work. Your children shall not go hungry, nor beg for bread." Now dear Saints you can not imagine how much this conveyed to my mind; and when I feel cast down this one thing strengthens me. This is the Lord's work, and the race is not for the swift, nor the battle for the strong; it is only they that endure unto the end that will gain the crown. I am often asked the question, "Sister how can you stand it to be left alone so much; I would not let my husband leave me that way." I can but say, "This is the Lord's work and he will reward." It makes my heart rejoice when I hear of so many receiving the gospel through my husband's preaching to the world, and also the strengthening of the Saints; when I read the encouraging letters that are in the Herald, and how many dear saints are making the sacrifice to help roll on this work.

There are yet many elders that have been trying to get means sufficient to support their families so that they can go to preach; but year after year rolls away and they are no nearer ready now than at first. But this is the Lord's work, and he will accomplish it though all men fail.

This is the beginning of the new year, and by the grace of God I will try in my weakness to encourage others. I have not spent a Christmas with my husband for ten years. Although we are separate in body we are one in spirit. I desire not to lay up treasures in this world, but I have a hope in the future that cheers me in the darkest hours.

Your sister in Christ,

L. R.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Jan. 9th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I am pleased to see that something is being done by the sisters of our church. We have had the privilege of obeying this blessed gospel and we should do all we can to help send it to others, that they may be partakers of its joys and blessings with us. I want to see the work move on. It will, I know, whether I help it or not. I wish that I could write you a long letter, but I can write but very little in the English language; if I could I should be happy to testify of the goodness of God to all my Danish brothers and sisters; yes, and to all the Saints; for God has been kind to me and mine, for which I thank and praise his holy name. My prayer to God is that I may always live so that I may be worthy of his blessings.

Your sister,

ELIZA JOHNSON.

EDGERTON, Mo., Dec. 13th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I first heard this gospel in 1833, and have ever retained the impressions of the same. I had two uncles with their families and one cousin by the name of Murphy driven from Independence by the Missouri mob. One uncle and cousin came back to South Carolina afterwards, filled with the Spirit of the work gave us much information. Afterwards an elder came there preaching, when my mother, oldest sister and her husband joined the church, but was never where they could meet with any branch of the church. They have all long since passed away firm in the faith to the last. I never had another chance to join until about nineteen years ago. I have had many trials to pass through since, but God has been my refuge. He has taken to himself my beloved husband and four daughters, all members with us but one daughter; she united with the Baptist her husband's people being of that persuasion. I have received strength from our heavenly Father to bear it all with patience. I would not exchange the light and knowledge I have received from this work for all else in this world. My desire is to do all I can to help the cause. I am a cripple and am getting old, but have never seen the time I could not help some, or pay my tithing since I have had anything to pay tithing on, and feel that I have been blessed in many ways, and believe those duties as much God's commands as any of his commands; and feel that all that keeps them will receive a blessing for so doing. I live twenty-five miles from any branch and seldom meet with the Saints. I was in St. Joe November 7th inst., heard Bro. Blair preach two good sermons. The one on Sunday night I thought was the best I ever heard.

Dear sisters remember me in your prayers in my lonely state, that I may hold out to the end.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 1st.

Sister Frances:—I wish to see the work of the Lord move on. My heart is with the Lord's people. I seldom hear a Saint preach, as I stand alone, and have no one of my faith to help me along; but God does help me. I can keep his words and trust him entirely. God has heard and answered prayers in my behalf so many times. I pray God to bless his people everywhere.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Jan. 5th.

Bro. Joseph:—I left the busy cares of farm life for a little gospel work. Made a few efforts in the city of Clinton, some being impressed and awakened to investigation, while one or two seemed nearing the door. On December 27th accompanied Bro. I. N. White to the scene of his debate at Schell City. It opened at 2 p. m. on 27th, a session being held in the afternoon and evening of each day, except Friday evening; closed January 1st at nine p. m. The time was divided on the two questions, I. N. affirmed that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints to be in harmony with the New Testament scripture. W. W. Blalock then affirmed the Christian or Campbellite Church to so harmonize. Blalock proved himself a man of considerable ability, more than the average debater. In kind he ranks with Braden. Those who desire such opponents, or labor to develop them should meet him, for he will always be found ready for a combat. Intense prejudice held sway at first, and all is not yet removed, though I. N. gained many friends for himself and the good cause he represented. Outside the Christian Church the sentiment placed the "victor's wreath" on the side of gospel truth. The number of moderators acting, and the work done was amusing. Mr. Blalock selected his brother; I. N. chose the writer. Being strangers in a strange land our first man after many names were passed upon proved to be a "saloon keeper;" we failed to find him after the first session. The second principal was L. C. Huey, a minister of the Newlight faith and justice in judgment. Blalock had made copious use of John D. Lee; I. N. used it up with Bro. Heman Smith's article, of several years ago. Blalock challenged his extracts; whereupon the moderators were called upon to examine and report; the findings were:

"We find by our investigation Mr. White has correctly quoted Mr. Lee in language; and has shown a discrepancy in dates which we are not able to reconcile, and believe that Mr. White has kept within the bounds of the rules that regulate this discussion."

Signed, { S. C. HUEY,
J. M. BLALOCK,
R. ETZENHOUSER.

At the next session, moderator Blalock made an additional report: the nature of which reversed the one he had signed, together with the other two of board. In the examination that followed of the majority and minority reports, and the conditions under which they were eligible, the Blalocks made a wholesale withdrawal of what had been used so blatantly. Mr. Geo. Eaves was the third chairman, (Mr. Huey having gone home), but no rulings were called out during his sitting of one session. Mr. John Rhodes was fourth and acted till the close of the debate. I. N. read from A. Campbell's writings that he "organized the disciples." (I. N. said church). This had to be submitted for moderators to say if it said church. Mr. Rhodes concurred with us that it meant church, if anything.

A. White, D. C. White, E. Curtiss, Joseph

Brackenbury, Eva White, Abner Lloyd and wife, Bro. Reynolds and wife, and brethren Price attended; during intermissions could be found cudgeling any one with the word who took issue, much good was done in this manner. All of these Saints agreed that I. N. did his work well.

In bonds,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 16th.

Brothers Joseph and William:—Dear Saints, we are in the land of the enemy. Let us therefore put our trust in the Lord, and he will fight our battles if we will do our part. We should love one another even as Jesus has loved us. He gave his life for us. "Greater love hath no man than this." We know that "perfect love casteth out all fear." What have we to fear? If God be for us, who can be against us. Dear sisters and mothers of the Home Column, do not get weary in well doing, for it has been said to me in Beaver Falls that the Herald, with the Mothers' Home Column was the best that they had ever read. I remember the kind and loving words my mother impressed upon my mind. They are still bright as if it were but yesterday, though it is twenty-four years since she was called to rest. Our lot is hard, perhaps, but some one's lot may be harder yet. We should always remember that and be content with what we have, for there are better days before us.

Your brother in the one faith,

W. W. HODGE.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Jan. 10th.

Dear Herald:—Though I have not written you for some time, I have not been idle. Leaving Hollister we spent a week at San Benito, where I preached several times to fair audiences, then a week at Jefferson, where I preached as opportunity offered and baptized two. Thence brethren Holt and Page accompanied us to Long Valley. Had fair congregations each night for one week, baptized five. November 21st we went by rail from San Lucas to Templeton, thence by private conveyance to San Luis Obispo, and the next morning early to Port Harford where we took passage on the steamship Orizaba for San Pedro, and were a day and night on the deep. We had a delightful voyage, and the morning of the 23d were at the San Pedro wharf, and thence went by rail to Los Angeles, (the city of angels), where we found Bro. J. R. Badham faithfully battling for the right. He is "the right man in the right place," and manifests a zeal others would do well to imitate. The Saints in the Central District are a warm hearted and faithful people. We regretted leaving them so soon, but wished to get as much acquainted with my field as possible ere the annual report shall be in order.

At Los Angeles we met with the old veteran, Q. S. Sparks, who has recently put on the harness and proposes to spend the remainder of his life in the service of the God of his youth. May God bless and keep him ever. Bro. D. S. Mills also met us at Los Angeles and encouraged us with his cheerful manner, so characteristic of him. We held several meetings at Los Angeles, and enjoyed the company of the Saints. December 1st, accompanied Brn. Mills and Sparks to Santa Ana. Spent just one month at "The Swamp" and Laguna, and had a real enjoyable time. Congregations were larger, as an average, at the Swamp than at any place I have been in California. We baptized four at the Swamp and two at Laguna, and Bro. A. W. Thompson baptized one during our stay at the latter place.

January 1st Brn. Mills and French and I came to this city where we have been laboring almost day and night to get this branch in a more active condition. We have been blest, and can see a little light before us. May it increase. There are many good Saints here, and I do not think they will let the work go down or go into disrepute.

In accordance with the direction of last General Conference I have appointed Elder A. W. Thompson to labor in Los Angeles county. He has seven motherless children to support and care for, so but little time can be expected of him. But he delights to "tell the story," and will lose no opportunity to do so. We appointed Elder William Gibson to labor in San Bernardino county. He will spend his time and accomplish good. He baptized one since I came here. I also appointed Elder David L. Harris to labor in Southern California. He is a young man of excellent promise, and has taken the field in company with Elder E. J. French, a staunch defender of the faith. These brethren have gone to San Diego county, where it is said a good field awaits them. May God bless these worthy men, all of them, with power and wisdom.

I find Bro. Mills a very congenial companion. He loves the work of God, and no jealousy or love of power or authority governs his action, but to see the work prosper and the servants of God blessed is his delight. I could labor with him in unity a thousand years.

By a recent letter I learn that Bro. Thomas Daley is again in the field in northern California. He is a noble man. Bro. Haws I have not seen, but he is laboring faithfully in Oregon, while all reports concerning him are that he gives universal satisfaction. I think the Mission is looking up a little. Bro. H. L. Holt will be in the field in a few days and will go to the Central District, well qualified for his work.

HEMAN C. SMITH.

COLLINS, Oreg., Dec. 26th.

Bro. Joseph:—The Saints here are all well, as to temporal health; and always ready to contend for the faith once delivered to the Saints. There are twelve members here, others are expected in the spring, Bro. J. A. Upton and family, from Lamoni; also Bro. Dobson and family. This is a new country, what we might call one of the waste places of Zion. It is in the mountains, and very inconvenient to meet in the winter, as there are no roads except trails, or by water, which way is rough in winter. I intend to do some preaching in the spring. Our neighbors are mostly infidel, or of the class calling themselves the Band of holiness.

C. E. ALDRICH.

GREEN RIDGE, Manitoba, Jan.

Brother H. A. Stebbins:—If you know a good elder that would like to come to Manitoba and preach the gospel, I will keep his family one year, and he can have a good home when he wants to come to it. He can keep in the field all the time if he wants to. I think a good branch could be had here with a good man at the head of it. If you find an elder who would like to come to Manitoba, let him write to me. As for myself and wife, we joined the church in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1842. I think brother B. Winchester was the president of that branch. I afterward moved to Pittsburg, and was there when Joseph was murdered; I was in the Sidney muddle at Pittsburg. I did not go to the valley with them. As for young Joseph, I have watched his course for the last twenty years, and if God has a prophet, I think young Joseph is the man.

Yours truly,
C. WALTON.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Jan. 10th.

Bro. Joseph:—I feel as firm in the faith as when I first embraced it, and I have been trying to do all the good I could for the advancement of the gospel. Since last conference, have been laboring in the mission assigned me, most of the time in new places. I have carried the gospel to a goodly number who never heard it before; a great deal of prejudice has been removed. I have baptized eight persons, all heads of families; distributed tracts and loaned the Voice of Warning to a great many; they are a good help. I find some of the old leaven around here, yet not enough to cause any apprehension so long as we live up to the principles of the gospel. The work is steadily progressing here, and I see no reason why it should not continue. The brethren seem to be working together to help advance the cause. I expect to start for Johnson county this week with Bro. Loar; and I will endeavor to do the best I can under whatever circumstances I may be placed. Ever praying for the advancement of the work, I remain

Yours hopefully,
H. H. ROBINSON.

PLAINVILLE, Mass., Jan. 3d.

Bro. Joseph: I returned from Little Compton, R. I., on New Year's day, where brethren C. A. Coombs and J. B. Pierce have been conducting a series of meetings. Services have been held every evening but one since Sunday, December 26th, with larger attendance by Saints and sinners than ever before. The word of the Lord had free course, and God was glorified. Elder M. H. Bond is expected there to-day, and meetings will be commenced in Adamsville this evening. About twenty years ago Bro. John Smith could not get an opening in the last named place. Four years since, brethren Frank Sheehy and John Gilbert procured a hall, but they could not get the people out. Last winter brother M. H. Bond, C. A. Coombs and U. W. Greene had large audiences in Electra Hall. The people seemed hungry for the bread of life, and they (the people) defrayed expense of the hall. The faithful efforts and labor in the past will doubtless soon be rewarded with precious fruit. At Little Compton, Elder C. A. Coombs preached nearly every service, Elder Joseph Pierce assisting; both bearing faithful testimonies to the truth. The word of the Lord delivered sixteen years or more ago regarding this place has been fulfilled. It was spoken then "that a branch of the church should be raised up, and the honest in heart gathered in." I would that all Saints were as hospitable, and zealous as some there in Little Compton. I received ten copies of the Voice of Warning from Bro. J. H. Peters just before Christmas and all of them have been loaned and sold. Bro. Peters' enterprise is a grand one for the diffusion of knowledge, and it will make a valuable auxiliary to the work. The editorial of the Mothers' Home Column, in the last issue, embraces sentiments worthy of perusal and the facts therein contained are true in the experience of every one. Earthly friends may leave by death and desertion, yet in the Lord Jesus Christ is the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother;" he is the "same yesterday to-day and forever."

"What tho' clouds are hovering o'er me,
And I seem to walk alone—
Longing, 'mid my cares and crosses,
For the joys that now are flown—
If I've Jesus, Jesus only,"
Then my sky will have a gem;
He's the sun of brightest splendor,
And the star of Bethlehem."

Another year has fled and the mistakes made, the wrong done we can not rescind. But the present only is ours and in it we can improve on the past. The question is, will we improve upon the past and "redeem the time?" Will we overcome self; will we be charitable and exhibit brotherly kindness, meekness, and return good for evil, instead of evil for evil as we are sometimes prompted to? We can all recall mercies and blessings of the past year for our comfort and encouragement.

Jan. 6th.—Elder H. H. Thompson, president of the Cranston (R. I.) Branch, was with us at Attleboro, last evening, and preached to the edification of all present. He states that he "has recently set the town of Cranston on fire with this latter day work." The occasion was the preaching a funeral sermon of the wife of a Mr. Shays, whom the doctors had killed by experimental cutting of a cancer. The gospel had been taught in this household, and the deceased had been blessed through administration by the good brother. At the funeral about two hundred were present, including people from a number of leading denominations, and the closest attention was given to the discourse.

Last evening I received three subscriptions to the Hope and the promise of one for the Herald. With a heart's desire and prayer for the complete salvation of modern Israel, I am,

Yours in glorious hope,
ARTHUR B. PIERCE.

CLEVELAND, Iowa, Jan. 12th.

Brother Cochran:—What a great difference between the Herald of to-day and the Herald of twenty years ago! Not that it has changed in its doctrine nor editor, but in size and circulation and also in price. It is now a weekly. Then it was a monthly. Now each number contains so much more matter. It was then a source of joy, and its more frequent visits have made it none the less welcome. Then it was sustained and contributed to by the few; now by the many; and I think that each year's experience has better qualified both editor and contributor. I wish the Herald success. Our branch is in an improving condition.

Yours,
E. B. MORGAN.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Jan. 9th.

Editors Herald:—The district president, J. W. Terry, assisted by Elder D. S. Holmes, met with Rock Island Saints, Sunday, January 2d, instructing us in our organization and rectifying our acknowledge mistaken move; which mistake we earnestly pray will be the cause of our brethren and sisters of our sister city organizing into a branch of the Church that the Lord will own and bless. Elders Terry and Holmes are truly men of God, and teachers of the laws of the Church of Christ of these latter days. We intend to work steadfastly by the help of God our Savior for the building up of Zion and by all means draw the attention of our fellowmen to Christ, our salvation.

In gospel bonds,
F. G. DUNGEE.

GALIEN, Mich., Jan. 13th.

Editors Saints' Herald:—During the early part of December last, at the earnest solicitation of the Saints of the Sherman branch, I went to Mason county, Michigan, to aid in looking after a Mr. Mills of the M. E. proclivities, who had thought it of interest to attack the Saints and faith, from the stand-point of popular rumor, and in a manner to create much prejudice in the minds of those who do not know our position and faith; and which resulted in placing the Saints in a distressed condition. We found Mr. Mills stringing his malicious onslaughts out at two week's intervals, and not allowing any opportunity of replying to his array of stories, yarns and baseless statements. When we began holding services to publicly expose his trickery, and the very treacherous way in which he used our books and others, he refused to attend and did all in his power to keep his hearers from attending likewise. He misread the Doctrine and Covenants, Tullidge's History, and the Inspired Translation in many instances; as also Messrs. Kidder and Beadle. As to the false and wicked charges he made against Joseph the Martyr, and other ministers of those days, also against "Young Joseph," and the Saints, I will send you papers which you can consult. Not content with thus lecturing (?) against the work, he attacked us through the Scottsville Enterprise, and in a very vile manner sought to further spread his shameful tales.

After doing what we could during a two week's effort to lay bare his dishonest trailings, his false accusations, being unable to wait on his tortious manner of exhibiting himself, we left, though very reluctantly, he yet persisting in his ignoble work. I listened to two of his efforts; they were simply beneath respectable contempt. He tried to show from the Inspired Translation, Matt. 5: 3, 4, that Latter Day Saints baptize in the name of Joseph Smith. I tell you, it was hard to quietly sit still and in the presence of a large audience be repeatedly called "an arrant hypocrite" to our face. He also emphasized the statement that, when it came to a matter of their religion the Saints would tell lies, and then swear to them, knowing at the time they were lies! He did not scruple to make sport of the beautiful beatitude, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," because the Saints believe it, and that the adopted children of God shall so inherit "the purchased possession." He also made light of 1 John 3: 2. "We shall be like him."—Christ—when he comes, charging us with belittling God, in order to exalt themselves to his equal! And we are sorry to say it, but many do not know that the apostle John uses such language, nor did elder Mills so inform his auditors. Shame on a professed divine that will so practice on the credulity of the people. In preparing a response to Mr. Mill's written attack; as also in replying to his lectures, I found "Persecution and its causes," as now being presented to the Herald readers an indispensable. It is hard for opposers to get around official statements as found in that article. It is evidently the proper statement at the right time. Could it not be compiled, embodied in an authorized history of the church, and offered to the public at once? It would forever destroy the old charge that the Saints justly incurred the persecutions of the states of Missouri and Illinois. My judgment is that the elders need it in order to successfully defend the work at the present, and in future time. Those statements of the state officials are dangerous weapons for opposers to meet and undertake to grapple with. Also, other references in conjunction with those of the Times and Seasons, if to be had, would work admirably, I think, and like hail would sweep away the refuge of lies. If our letter breathes strongly of the spirit of theological war, I hope it will be borne in mind that we are just from "the field," and the smell of battle is yet on our garments; and it is just possible that we may be called on to renew the conflict. I hope however, that Bro. J. J. Cornish may have time to aid the Saints of Sherman some, as the scene of action is in his district.

They need the prayers of the Saints, as prejudice there is at high tide, and the opposition strong. We left the Saints in line and firm in the faith. We must not conclude this brief notice however, till we have credited the Saints there with bearing the burden of our expenses, in purview of their special call for aid. I believe the work in general in this part of the vineyard is moving onwards and the Saints are hopeful. Some are investigating the truth, and some are occasionally coming into the fold. We need the prayers of all Saints and divine grace.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
C. SCOTT.

BROWN CITY, Mich., Jan. 14th.

Bro. Blair:—I have been a member of the church for about two years, and am not tired yet. I have seen many things to confirm my faith; have seen the sick healed immediately. The work is onward here. Many are believing and many more investigating. Prejudice and false doctrine are falling, and the truth of the gospel is being established in its stead. Dear Saints, the little stone "cut out of the mountain without hands" will roll on till it fills the whole earth with glad tidings of great joy. My heart is in the work, to do the best I can for the advancement of right and truth among my fellow men. I belong to the Maple Valley branch, consisting of about sixty-two members.

Yours in the gospel of Christ,
E. J. MARTINDALE.

PREVENTING CONSUMPTION.

In a certain hospital a physician was convinced that some of the patients were hacking much more than was necessary or safe. He therefore, by the promise of rewards and punishments, induced them simply to hold their breath when tempted to cough. In a little time he was surprised himself to see how some of them recovered entirely from their disease. Constant hemming and coughing is precisely like scratching a sore on the outside of the body, as long as it is done the sore will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw in a full breath, and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and they will soon receive benefit from the process. The nitrogen which is thus occasionally retained acts as an anodyne to the irritated mucous membrane, thus allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal.—Boston Journal.

MERCY IN ELDERS' COURTS.

"BLESSED are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy."—Matt. 5:7. It has often been said that it is "human to err, but divine to forgive." This saying, although quite common, contains a sentiment worthy of high commendation by all believers in christianity. Combined with the text at the head of this article, the subject involved opens a wide field of thought, embodying in full the divine character of Christ upon the principle of forgiveness and remission of sins. This is proved in numerous instances in the Scriptures, when and wherever Christ preached his gospel to the people. "Does any man condemn thee," said Christ to the woman taken in sin. She said, "No man, Lord." "Neither do I," said Jesus. "Go thy way, and sin no more."—John 8:10, 11. "But," says one, "was not that woman in transgression?" Christ did not intimate that she was not, but the inference to be drawn from what Christ said to the woman, "Go thy way, and sin no more," is that the sin she had committed was forgiven, on condition that she sinned no more. This spirit and principle of forgiveness is one of the great gifts and virtues of the gospel ministry. When any person professing to be a Saint of God assumes the prerogative of shutting up the door of the kingdom of God against repentant sinners, or returning prodigals, they do but poorly represent the character of Christ's mission to the world, as well as the duties of him who professes to be a minister of Christ to represent his gospel. "The whole need no physician;" those that are sick are the needy. Christ came to save sinners and them that are lost. It is to this end, also, Christ and his apostles declare that the whole world were in sin and sinners; that there were none good, no not one; and it was for this purpose that Christ commissioned his disciples to preach the gospel of repentance and remission of sins in all the world, that salvation and eternal life might come to all; Jew and Gentile, Pagan and Greek, without respect to persons, that those who believe and obey might be saved in the kingdom of God. Where men who profess to be ministers of Christ limit the mercies and blessings of God to a particular class of persons, because they are popular, rich, or poor, they fail to remember the great lessons taught in the gospel as we have already stated,—God is no respecter of persons. The gospel opens a wide door; for all "who will come, may come, and partake of the waters of life freely." Paul also declares that "Christ is the Savior of all men, especially of them that believe." The gospel is a law to both saint and sinner.

There are some nice points to be understood in regard to this law. It is made up of three prominent principles, justice, mercy and truth. Justice to condemn the wrong; mercy and truth to claim the penitent. A system void of these three principles is no gospel law. A gospel without mercy is no gospel. As well to say that a man can be a saint without eyes, head, or brains, as to say that the gospel is perfect without mercy and justice combined. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul," "giving grace to the humble;" so said the wise man.

The gospel affords an abundant entrance into the kingdom of our heavenly father, to those who are impressed thereby; that God may be glorified in them who believe. This measure of love and promise of eternal life are to them who believe and obey the truth. The apostles tell us, also, that the kingdom of God is joy, peace and the Holy Ghost. This state of things appears when there is a bright spot in the character of those who profess to be the followers of Christ. It is not meet, however, to say that the Church of Christ is made up of tares and bad fish. It is true, some "sore heads" might get in among the sheep, and it is by reason of these that Elders' courts are sometimes appointed; but when this class of fault finders appoint Elders' courts, this disease of accusation should not become the characteristic of those who are appointed as judges of the law; but to be judges of the law in its perfection, as it should be, in judgment, mercy and truth; for such is the law of God.

A gospel court without these three principles combined as previously named, justice, mercy and truth, would be like a gospel of repentance without baptism; or, vice versa; a gospel baptism without repentance. The law of justice must be tempered with all of its component parts, or it is not a perfect gospel law. When the principles of an iron bound judgment against supposed, or real offenders is brought into requisition by an elders' court, without sufficient proof to sustain charges, it shows either ignorance on the part of the finders, or a wilful perversion of the law of justice, which is the law of God. The example and teachings of Christ in his sermon on the mount are also as set forth in the language of the text, a safe rule for elders' courts; as Jesus said, "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy." Again, Jesus advises the finding of a righteous judgment; for "with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." There "must needs be also "that offences come; but woe unto them by whom they come." In some cases of appeal from elders' courts to a higher tribunal in the church, decision has been reversed. This reversal of decision by a higher tribunal, ought to serve as a lesson to elders who are called to settle difficulties in different branches of the church, not to become party to the causes complained of; as a court should not be both accusers and judges in the case. Neither jealousy, supposition, nor suspicion affords sufficient ground for disfellowshipping a brother from the church. The law of God requires positive proof and that by credible witnesses. Anything short of these would make an elders' court more a figure head, occupying a position over a mob tribunal defying all law, regardless of justice, mercy or truth. Such a religious farce as this in the church of Christ would be a disgrace to the name of a Saint, and place the parties composing such a tribunal on the list of false accusers and law breakers. Elders' courts have no right to make laws, or rules of order, affecting the domestic affairs of families, in or out of the church, that conflict with the established laws and government of the Church of Christ.

Ministers of the gospel who have taken upon them the duties and responsibility of bringing souls to Christ should know that salvation is more abundantly attainable in the church than out of it. Elders who zealously labor to bring converts into the church should not labor with over-heated zeal to put members out of the church without just cause of complaint. Misjudged cases without the proper evidence repudiated by law, often recoil upon the heads of those who sat as judges; as Jesus said, "As ye have judged so ye shall be judged." This is as it should be. As Jesus said, "the same measure you meet unto others shall be meted unto you again." No wise counselor would strike a blow to injure a cripple, or strive to shut up the door of the church against a repentant sinner, or a returning prodigal; simply because they have once been in transgression.

"So long as the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return.

So said the inspired poet; a sentiment affording great hope and comfort to a repentant sinner. No man should preach a gospel that saves himself and will not save others. As a rule, it is a poor rule that will not work both ways, and it is a good one that will. As this rule carries with it the true spirit of equal justice to all, a gospel sentiment, full of mercy, justice and truth, that no truth-loving Saint can deny.

What would add much strength to our views on the mercies and goodness of God in the salvation of poor repentant sinners is the lesson our Savior gave to the world in his remark, made to the thief on the cross, Also the account he gave concerning the return of the prodigal son; a lesson that exemplifies the greatness of the character of him who gave himself as a ransom for the sins of the world; and what lesson of humanity and love could grace the profession of a Saint better than these life giving principles in a belief and a gospel replete with a fulness of power to save the most degraded and fallen sons of men, who ask for pardoning grace and mercy. A gospel so replete in its perfection of power to save, is worthy the respect that is due to the character of its author. There is no system of humanity known among men that teaches the exhibition and exercise of love to men that the gospel does not commend; and in fact the principles of humanity and love to man are the principles upon which the whole superstructure of Christianity rests. It was for the salvation and redemption of man that God gave his son Christ Jesus as a ransom for the sins of the world, "for greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends"—John 15: 13.

This text, "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy," that I have chosen for reflection and thought, is found in one of Christ's first sermons, preached while he was on earth. We admire the text for the sentiment of humanity expressed in it. It commends to the mind the deeds of charity and love, while the ministers of Christ go forth on their mission of mercy, preaching the gospel to the poor; speaking comforting words to the sick and the afflicted; exemplifying in the character of their acts and deeds of kindness the characteristics of the good Samaritan. Such embellishments as these are found in the christian profession. Saints endowed with these essential graces have in life, or in death a promise of a rich reward. For as Jesus said, they who are merciful shall obtain mercy. It is from the gospel and the teachings of Christ that we learn the great lessons of humanity.

It has been my purpose while writing a few thoughts on the subject of our text, "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy," to say a word or two more concerning elders' courts. It might be asked by the reader, What has elders' courts to do with this text. We say it has much to do with it; as an elders' court should be a gospel court, a court of law, organized upon gospel principles, whose decision should be in accordance with the law of the gospel by which it is organized, replete with the law of justice, mercy and truth. Nothing more or less than this would answer the full requirements of the law of God. If the decision of an elders' court is remiss in any one of these principles, either justice, mercy, or truth, then follows the result of an injury done to the parties affected by it. If mercy and truth are the missing links in a decision of an elders' court, upon whom should the judgment fall. We will let the apostle James answer: "For they shall have judgment without mercy that hath showed no mercy, for mercy rejoiceth against judgment."—James 2: 13.

Ever hoping to be found on the side of the right, and in defense of the principles of justice mercy and truth.

WILLIAM B. SMITH.

A SHORT PRAYER AND SHORT ANSWER.

In 1847 I went into my dark closet where no eye but God's would see me and enquired whether the Book of Mormon was true or not. The answer came in these words,—“Go and prove it.” I felt ashamed, for I knew I could do it, and felt guilty for asking my Maker, God, to do for me the work he had told me to do long before; viz, “Prove all things.”

I had “searched the scriptures” for many years before, and doubted not but I could prove by comparing the writings together. And now I felt determined I would know the contents of that book, if I could understand the language and the story, or ideas therein conveyed. And I found it proved true and one with the Bible. And not only one with the Bible, but a great help in unfolding the prophecies as well as historical knowledge of this continent. The main object of my making mention of this short prayer is to show to the churches and the ministry who believe in praying to Him who knows all things, how much cheaper and better it would be for them to ask the Lord as I did, rather than to believe a popular lie, and help by such means to cover up and dispute as they have done for more than a half century. How can that be a city set on a hill whose light can not be hid? Would the ministry of God cover up the truth under a popular lie? What reasonable person could admit so gross an absurdity. Their light must be darkness; and Oh how great that darkness.

THE DISPENSATION OF THE FULNESS OF TIMES.

BY D. S. CRAWLEY.

BUT just before her final “burning”—after being warned as the ante-diluvians were by the prophet that God would raise up, to make it as the days of Noe, more revelation from heaven was to be given, saying, “Come out of her my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities.”—Rev. 18: 4, 5. This is just as God called his people into the ark in Noe's day, this is confirmed by Dan. 2: 44, when, after being shown all the kingdoms of the world, to show what should be in the latter days, the Chaldean, Medo-Persian, Grecian and Roman, with its division into ten toes, or kingdoms, as shown by the ten horns of the fourth beast in chapter 7, said to be ten kings which were to arise after John was on Patmos, (see Rev. 17: 12), which occurred in the sixth century. After describing the kingdoms of Europe as “mingling themselves with the seed of men”—intermarrying their sons and daughters, trying to again consolidate those kingdoms into one, which was just as impossible as to unite iron and miry clay, the composition of the toes, then he says, “And in the days (latter days, for the vision was to show what should come to pass in the latter days, Dan. 2: 28) of these kings, shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms and it shall stand forever. It is thought by some that this was fulfilled in the first century. But there were no such ten kingdoms then. Rome was one universal empire. The ten toes did not come into existence fully until the sixth century, as history proves. And they were parts of the image. It was yet, in the first century all complete, standing on its feet, “and the form thereof was terrible,” representing the kingdoms that should ever exist before the stone kingdom should be “cut out,” or “set up,” for the feet should be smitten first. And it was not to be left (given) to another people. In Christ's day the kingdom was taken from the Jews and given (or left) to the Gentiles. Then as I have proved it was warred against, and destroyed by the iron legs of the image (Rome) the portion that existed in Christ's day. For only one section of the image existed at the same time, and then became changed so as to represent another portion, occupying the same territory.

Others, rather than admit the truth, claim that it is not to be set up until Christ comes. This would destroy the prophecy; for we learn from the same prophet that after "the thrones of these kings" were cast down, and the beast, of which these kingdoms were component parts (See Rev. chapter 17) were destroyed, "given to the burning flame," that the Son of Man would come in the clouds of heaven, whilst the prophecy says, "in the days of these kings" God should set up his kingdom, and it should consume them.

We have just been teaching that the kingdom of God was set up in the first century as it pleased God, with apostles, prophets, gifts and blessings, and unless it can be proved that he has changed, he certainly would be pleased with only the same kind now. And as the whole religious world deny the existence of any such in this age, hence the necessity that God shall set it up again. And as further proof that such was to be the case we quote Luke 21:31, where Jesus after preaching "The kingdom of God is at hand," also John the Baptist, and the apostles, only two years after this Jesus tells them that men pressed (or entered) into that kingdom. Luke 16:16. He said it was "within" them—within their territory, their midst—and that it should be "taken from" the Jews, and be given to the Gentiles, which is evidence positive that it was then here on earth. Then, while telling of the signs of his second coming, after the fall of Jerusalem, the scattering of the Jews amongst all nations, the signs in the sun, and moon, distress of nations, men's hearts failing them for fear, ending in his appearing in power and great glory, he says, "And when these things begin to come to pass then look up, and lift up your heads (future Saints) for your redemption draweth nigh. And how? Kind reader, let us carefully consider this, as our redemption may also depend upon it. He then spoke a parable of the fig trees, that when they shoot forth, that is, begin to form leaves, then we know that summer is near. So likewise ye, when ye see these things come to pass, (or as in verse 28, "begin to come to pass"), know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand. Luke 24:31. So this promised redemption comes through the setting up of the kingdom, in the age referred to, just before the second coming of Christ. This is further evident from the following verse, "Verily I say unto you, this generation (the generation which should see these things) shall not pass away, till all be fulfilled." Just as sure as God's word is true, the kingdom was to be twice set up after Christ was born, or there is no meaning to all these prophecies. We have shown from Ezekiel, chapter 21, that the kingdom was to be "overturned until he came whose right it is; and I will give it him."

That Christ will not reign until his second advent, is evident from Luke, chapter 19, where he represents himself as "a nobleman," going "into a far country" to receive a kingdom and return, and after returning, having received the kingdom, then he judges his servants. Here is thought to be evidence that he brings the kingdom with him, and sets it up; but in Dan. 7: 13, 14, we learn that it is after he comes to the Ancient of Days. It says,— "And there was given him a kingdom." * * * "And his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed, referring to the one spoken of in chapter 2: 44, which was David's throne or kingdom restored, for that is the one he is to reign over forever. Luke 1: 32.

Amos, after speaking of the scattering of Israel, and after "all the sinners of my people shall die by the sword," says,— "In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof, and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old."—Amos 9: 11. Hence it will remain overturned until the "latter days," and then be set up and restored to Israel. That there was to be a latter day dispensation of the gospel is further taught in the parable of the householder, who sent laborers into his vineyard. "For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a householder."—Matt. 20: 19. He sends early in the morning—in Adam's day—again about the third hour—in Noah's time, to whom was committed a gospel dispensation—again about the sixth hour—in the time of Moses, who also was raised up a great prophet and gospel preacher, (Heb. 4: 1; 2 Cor. 10: 2; Ex. 14: 31—and again about the ninth hour—the time of Christ. This is very significant, as from the morning until evening—from Adam until the present about 6,000 years, was divided into periods of about 500 years each, called hours. So the third hour would be about 1,500 years from Adam. It was 1,535 until Noah was called; from Noah until Moses was not so long; from Moses until Christ it was 1,491. This was called about the ninth hour, and indeed it was just after the eighth hour, and very little over 4,000 years from Adam. "And about the eleventh hour he went out again and sent laborers into the vineyard." The eleventh hour would be at least 1,500 years after Christ; but as it was "about the eleventh hour," it could be either before or after that hour, as Christ came 400 years before the ninth hour. Christ did not claim to give the exact time. But one thing is certain, that at least 1,500 years after Christ the Lord would again "go out," as in Noah's time, in Moses' time, and in Christ's time, and send laborers into his vineyard, proving true all the other prophecies in regard to "the dispensation of the fulness of times," just what was taught by Joseph Smith. The proverb of Jesus used in connection with this parable proves and also describes one of the peculiar features of this eleventh hour dispensation. "So the last shall be first, and the first shall be last." Israel was the last in possession of the oracles of God, when Jesus came he first offered to them the gospel of the kingdom, which they rejected, when it was sent unto the Gentiles who brought forth the fruits thereof for a season, and then fell away; so in the eleventh hour the gospel will first be offered to the Gentiles, and when they as nations reject it, then it will go to the house of Israel, thus fulfilling this prophecy. This is further proved from Isa. 49: 22. When speaking of Israel's restoration he says—"Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles, and set up my standard to the people." Thus we learn that God will first lift his hand, in the day of Israel's gathering, to the Gentiles; "and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders." "And kings shall be thy nursing fathers, and queens thy nursing mothers." God will inspire kings and queens to assist in this great work as he inspired Cyrus of Persia to cause Israel's return from Babylon, (Isa. 45: 1-13). To-day the Israelites are the bankers of kings and queens, and they are assisting them in obtaining the right to the land of their fathers. In 1853 the Turkish government mortgaged the land of Canaan to the Jews for an immense sum of money, by which means she obtained the assistance of England and France in defending herself against Russia, preventing Palestine, no doubt, from falling into the hands of that great enemy of Israel, Russia. Again, about 1871, when the victorious Russians were in a short distance of Turkey's capitol, England's Queen sent a British fleet into that port, preventing its capture and the overthrow of Turkey. And whilst a national council was convening to adjust the matter, she also obtained from Turkey the isle of Cyprus, and fortified it, and assumed a protectorate over Turkey's Asiatic possessions including Palestine, thus preserving it for the payment of the debt to the Jews. And to-day Turkey is about to be divided amongst the nations, an event which will no doubt result favorably for the gathering of the Jews to Palestine. Indeed, thousands of them are already there, and the land has become again fruitful, the early and latter rain again falling there, which land had been barren since the dispersion of the Jews, and Jerusalem is being rebuilt. This is a wonderful fulfillment of the prophecies quoted, and also of the divine calling of Joseph Smith, who boldly committed himself, declaring that they should come to pass in this generation.

The same pouring out of the Spirit as Peter quoted from Joel on Pentecost, is predicted by Isaiah to take place after the long sterility of Israel's land, which never began until after its curse by the Savior, and the dispersion of the Jews. Isaiah says:—"Upon the land of my people shall come up thorns and briers. . . . Until the Spirit be poured upon us from on high and the wilderness be a fruitful field. Then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness, and righteousness remain in the fruitful field. And the work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever. And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places."—Isa 32: 13-18. Compare this with Joel 2: 25, 26, which Peter quoted from:—"And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer-worm, my great army which I sent among you. And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the Lord your God, that hath dealt wonderfully with you; and my people shall never be ashamed." It is evident that both prophets refer to the same events; and who so ignorant as to say it was fulfilled on Pentecost! The rains were plentiful until after that time. The locusts canker-worms etc., had not destroyed their land at that time, and Joel after speaking of all these things that never came on their land until after their dispersion in the year 70 A. D. and of their further gathering, "never more to be ashamed" or scattered, further says:—"And it shall come to pass afterwards that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh." Isaiah says the result of it shall be that peace, plenty, quietness, assurance and righteousness shall dwell in their land forever. Think of the siege of Jerusalem, the dreadful slaughter of the Jews, the crusades and other terrible judgments on Israel's land since, and let none ever again say Joel's prophecy was fulfilled on Pentecost, but that it is to be when God shall raise up one, "and shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord;" when "the wolf also shall dwell with the lamb and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion, and the fating together, and a little child shall lead them."—Isa. 11: 1-10. When the venomous reptiles and the children shall play together and the bear and the lion shall eat straw like the ox; after "the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people." For the prophet said:—"He shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth."—verses 11 and 12. Webster defines an ensign to be "an officer that carries a standard, a flag" also "a sign, a banner." That it refers to an officer in the Lord's service in this instance, is evident from verse ten, "And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse that shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek, and his rest shall be glorious." This agrees with the quotation, "I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles and set up a standard for the people." When God "lifted up his hand to deliver Israel from Egypt, it was by setting up "an ensign," a standard bearer, a prophet, even Moses. When he set his hand the first time to gather them, he raised up a prophet like unto Moses (Acts 3: 22) so when he lifts up his hand to the Gentiles, sets his hand again the second time to gather Israel, it will be raising "an ensign," a standard bearer, a prophet; for "surely the Lord God will do nothing but [until] he first revealeth the secret to his servants the prophets."—Amos 3: 7.

Hosea forever settles the manner of God's dealings with Israel. "And by a prophet the Lord brought Israel out of Egypt, and by a prophet was he preserved."—Hosea 12: 13.

That God will "lift up his hand to the Gentiles" to cause the gathering of Israel through a prophet is further shown by Ezekiel. After speaking of God, lifting up his hand to bring them out of Egypt, and give them the land of Canaan, and of their scattering because of their pollution of his land, and of their final restoration, he says, "As I live saith the Lord God, surely, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out, will I rule over you; and I will bring you out from the people, and I will gather you out of the countries wherein ye are scattered, with a mighty hand, and with a stretched out arm, and with fury poured out. [Think of Egypt, O ye nations]. And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face; like as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, [chastise them] and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant."—(Ezek. 20: 33-37). Read the entire chapter. Here we learn that just the same means will be employed as when they were brought out of Egypt; pleading with them "face to face," as he did at Sinai; chastising them as in the wilderness, bringing them into the bond of the covenant," spoken of by Jer. 31: 31, and by Paul, Rom. 11: 27, by which "they shall all know the Lord," as the 38th verse shows. At the same time he will "pour out his fury upon the nations" from whence he brings them, as he did upon the Egyptians, working mighty miracles as then. Isaiah, when speaking of the same events says,—"And the Lord shall utterly destroy the tongue of the Egyptian sea; and with his mighty wind shall he shake his hand over the river, and smite it in the seven streams, and make men go over dry shod. And there shall be an highway for the remnant of his people, which shall be left from Assyria; like as it was to Israel in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt." Isa. 11: 15, 16. The tongue of the Egyptian sea yet remains, also the adjacent seven streams of the river. And just as literal a smiting of those waters, and drying them up, shall occur, as did the waters of the Red Sea. And yet we are called poor fanatics because we believe in latter day miracles!

Jeremiah, speaking of the same events, says,—"Therefore, behold the days come, saith the Lord, that it shall no more be said, The Lord liveth that brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but the Lord liveth that brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the lands whither he had driven them; and I will bring them again into the land that I gave unto their fathers."—Jer. 16: 14, 15. This is proof positive that events are to yet transpire which will far surpass in grandeur the events connected with Israel's deliverance from Egypt; that they will no more refer to those events to call to mind the greatness of their God; but will refer to then recent events, as far greater proof of his might. And the following verse shows how he will gather them: "Behold, I will send for many fishers, saith the Lord, and they shall fish them; and after will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. For mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes."—Jer. 16: 16, 17. These are the laborers sent into the vineyard at the eleventh hour, and sent by direct revelation from God, for he never had any other way of sending laborers into his vineyard. If missionaries sent of men should do this work without revelation from God, it will prove Jeremiah a false prophet. Jeremiah says further,—"For mine eyes are upon all their ways; they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes. And first I will recompense their sin and their iniquity double" [let no one say Israel is too wicked ever to be restored] because they have defiled my land, * * * with their detestable and abominable things."—Jer. 16: 17. Yet for all this, after their dreadful punishment and restoration he says, "The Gentiles shall come unto thee from the ends of the earth, and shall say, Surely, our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things wherein is no profit."—Verse 19. This is just what thousands are doing to-day, coming from the "orthodox" to the Saints, making that confession; their doctrines deny revelation from God, without which "no man can know the Lord," while millions of them are turning away after infidelity, and soon they will make the confession "from the ends of the earth;" "For lo the days come, saith the Lord, that I will bring again the captivity of my people, Israel and Judah, saith the Lord; and I will cause them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall possess it. Therefore fear not, for I will save thee from afar, and thy seed from the land of their captivity, and Jacob shall return and be at rest, and none shall make him afraid. For I am with thee, saith the Lord, to save thee; though I make a full end of all nations whither I have scattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee; but I will correct thee in measure, and will not leave thee altogether unpunished."—Jer. 30: 10. Christ said they should, after his day, "be scattered in all nations, until the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke 21: 23. And here the Lord says he will gather them from all these nations, and at the same time "make a full end" of these nations.

"For I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord, because they (the Gentiles) call thee an outcast, behold I will bring again the captivity of Israel's tents, and have mercy on his dwelling places; and the city shall be builded upon her own heaps, (just what is being done to-day), and I will multiply them and they shall not be fear, I will also glorify them, and they shall not be small."

* * * "And I will punish all that oppress them; and their nobles shall be of themselves, and their governor shall proceed from the midst of them. And ye shall be my people and I will be your God. * * * The fierce anger of the Lord shall not return, until he have done it, and until he have performed the intent of his heart; in the latter days ye shall consider it."—Jer. 30: 17-24. All to be considered "in the latter days," and accomplished. Chapters 31, 32, and 33 are full of the same general promises to Israel. After speaking of gathering them from all nations in Jer. 32, he in verses 39, 40 says,—“And I will give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me forever, * * * and I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from me.” &c. And in chapter 33:6 he says—“Behold I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth.” Read the entire chapter, it is full of promises to Israel that he would pardon all their sins, build them as at first, make them honorable before all nations forever, who shall fear and tremble because of God's blessings upon Israel. The folly of the nations in saying God had “cast off the two families of Israel,” thus despising them saying they should no more be a nation, &c.

THOUGHT SKETCHES.

ONCE read of a man who was noted for his deep piety, who remarked at one time that he never knew, or heard of a person so far gone in wickedness, no matter how heinous his crime was, but what he considered that he himself might have been just as bad, and have done the same himself should he have had the same nature, training, associations etc.

This appears to have the natural color of charity. Charity it seems, like many other principles is understood differently than it is explained in the scriptures. While it is true that a charitable person is always willing to give alms to the poor, if they possess enough to do so; yet, according to Paul's teaching, one might give all he possessed to the poor and yet not have charity. Genuine charity is the principle of extraordinary patience and benevolence; to “suffer long and be kind;” “not easily provoked.” 'Tis also the substance of meekness and humility, or lowliness of heart; “seeketh not her own.” “Is not puffed up.” 'Tis the bond of perfectness, the last link of the chain, for it enables one to endure to the end, for “it hopeth all things, and beareth all things,” and is sure to keep the faith, for it “believeth all things.”

Now some have, and others yet will leave the church and depart from the faith; because they can not understand, comprehend, nor harmonize some things. Does any mortal comprehend the mystery of Godliness? If not, why believe in God? But we have sufficient evidence to believe in God's scriptures, and to believe this to be the Lord's work; and when we live for it, he gives us a portion of his spirit, and when he gives us a portion of his Spirit we can testify of its truth. So is it not safest, and hence wisest to hold to what has begotten hope in us, and believe in them to the end.

Conference Minutes.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

The above district conference convened at Watsonville, California, October 15th, 1886. J. M. Range was elected secretary pro tem. Elders I. F. Kingsbury, J. M. Range, J. H. Lawn, and Daniel Brown reported. Bro. Heman C. Smith reported the condition of the work in the district. Priests J. B. Carmichael, I. A. Tuck, and Eugene Holt reported. J. M. Range, J. H. Lawn and J. B. Carmichael, were appointed a committee on Re-union meeting, and instructed to confer with similar committees of other districts in the mission, and to report at next conference. Bishop's agent, J. M. Range, reported $35 50 tithing on hand. J. M. Range was elected president for the next six months; D. Brown as associate; I. F. Kingsbury secretary. Resolved that this conference disapprove of the use of tobacco, and of intoxicating liquors as a beverage by all members of the church, and especially those of the priesthood. Resolved that this conference use the “Rules of Order” adopted by the church. Resolved that we sustain all the constituted authorities of the church in righteousness. Resolved that this conference do hereby request the president of the mission to send Bro. H. L. Holt to labor in the district for the next six months. Conference appointed a series of two days' meetings to be held at Hollister, Live Oak and Long Valley. Preaching Friday evening by J. H. Lawn. The other preaching services during conference were by Bro. H. C. Smith, who on October 17th baptized sisters Emma Culp and Elizabeth Clem. Adjourned to meet in the San Benito branch at the call of the president.

KEWANEE.

The above district conference convened in Kewanee, Illinois, December 11th, 1886, at ten a. m.; J. W. Terry presiding; Bro. John Chisnall was appointed secretary pro tem. Branch reports.—Millersburg 43, including 1 seventy, 2 elders, 2 deacons; 1 baptized. Kewanee 71, including 7 elders, 3 priests, 3 teachers, 2 deacons; 1 died. Rock Island 16. Bishop's agent, R. J. Benjamin, reported: balance on hand last report $19 93, received since $26, total $45 93; remitted to the Bishop $25; balance on hand $20 93. The following elders reported: Pres. Joseph Smith, Pres. J. W. Terry, elders M. T. Short, John A. Robinson, T. F. Stafford, E. T. Bryant, J. B. Larew, Jas. Lord, Robert Holt, Samuel Garland, Thomas Whitehouse, and John Chisnall. These reports evinced a marked interest in the work, an abiding testimony of the same, with fervent hopes of its ultimate triumph. President Joseph Smith spoke to the elders with reference to the condition of the work and its needs; advised the brethren that, largely, God helped them who helped themselves; also, that it was best to continue their effort under any and all circumstances, citing from his own experiences where much good had resulted from persistent labor. Afternoon session. On motion it was resolved that Elder T. F. Stafford be associated with Elder M. T. Short to labor in the vicinity of Victoria and Truro. The Rock Island branch having sent a request that their branch be more fully organized, on motion it was resolved that the president visit said branch and take such action in the premises as he may deem best. All the authorities of the church were sustained. President Smith, in speaking to the elders again, advised them that they owed it as a duty to the public, as representatives of the church, that upon all questions of public morals they should take the very highest grounds attainable. Pres. Terry appointed for preaching service in the evening elders T. F. Stafford and M. T. Short. Sunday morning, Pres. Joseph Smith, assisted by J. A. Robinson; also, sacrament meeting at two p. m., Sunday, conducted by elders Robinson and Chisnall; preaching Sunday evening by Pres. Smith, assisted by Bro. Larew. The Saturday evening preaching service was filled by Bro. Stafford in an earnest presentation of the word to an interested congregation. The appointments for Sunday's service were carried out to the gratification of the Saints and to the interest of many others. Peace and good will prevailed throughout the several sessions, and it is confidently hoped the good seed sown will bring forth fruit, though it may be after many days. Pres. Smith spoke again on Monday night, to the evident interest of all present, for even outsiders gave him due meed of praise. Adjourned to meet at Millersburg, Illinois, on call of the president.

CENTRAL NEBRASKA.

This district conference met with the Clear Water Branch, December 25th, 1886. L. Gamet secretary. The president, Bro. Barbee, made a few introductory remarks and also reported his labors for the last three months. L. Gamet also reported. Teachers A. Hollenbeck and Joseph Jackson; also deacon John Holland reported. On separate motions the committee on Glen Alpine Branch was discharged and brother Payne and wife and W. N. Williams and wife and daughter were ordered enrolled in the Clear Water Branch. Bishop's Agent, L. Gamet, reported no receipts or disbursements. Benjamin Kester applied for an appeal from the decision of Clear Water Branch had in his case, October 5th, 1886, also from decision had in the same case December 18th, 1886. Motion prevailed to entertain the appeal at the evening session. Reports were read from C. D. Stevens of Grand Rapids and R. H. Wight of Oakdale. Branch Reports: Grand Rapids, 6; 5 removed, 1 marriage. Deer Creek 33; 1 expelled. Clear Water 69; 1 received by vote. W. S. Barbee was sustained president of the district, and L. Gamet secretary, for the next three months. In the matter of appeal by Bro. Kester the following was adopted. Resolved that this conference considers that the statement of B. Kester to the Clear Water Branch and parties concerned is sufficient to grant him a forgiveness. Therefore be it Resolved, That this conference recommends that B. Kester be reinstated in the Clear Water Branch and forgiven past offences wherein he has offended. ### REMINISCENCES

OF THE LIFE OF THE LATE C. W. SHORT.

Bro. Blair: Believing as I do that there never had been a just history of the life of one so much deserving, I thought to write some things as they occur to my mind. My husband was born in Summerset, Pulaski county, Kentucky, December 3d, 1808, and was brought up and cultured in the Baptist faith. His parents moved into Indiana, in his youth, where he had to encounter many of the hardships of the early settlements amid the dense forest. He received a moderate education, and was converted to the above named religion under the preaching of David Wauford, from the text, "I will work, and who will let it;" and being of a genial nature he soon became entirely absorbed in the great plan of redemption, through the Lord Jesus Christ. After his conversion he had a long spell of sickness, and when all hopes of life were gone, a voice addressed him, saying: "You will not die now. I have a work for you to do. You shall live fifty-six years yet."

He then asked his father and an aged, venerable uncle, what that meant. They said it was a call to the ministry. He then commenced to preach to large and attentive audiences; was called the boy preacher, and the people thought it wonderful indeed. He attended many of the associations within his reach, and was like Daniel of old, to whom the angel spake as follows: "O, Daniel, a man greatly beloved, . . . from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to chasten thyself before God, thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words."

Soon after these happenings we were married. I was the daughter of Charles Polk, and we were united in wedlock in 1833. Being in the same faith, we enjoyed a very harmonious life, not even a hair's breadth of jealousy ever interposed between us. Six children were born to us, and he lived to see them all grown and members of churches. Three are surviving now; the eldest, Charles F., lives in San Francisco, California; M. T., who is in the ministry; and Ellis, who is doing all he well can to forward the cause.

In the latter part of his life, as the sobriety of age, the tokens of dissolution, and the reflections in regard to eternity pressed upon him, he became dissatisfied. He said to me: "Wife, we have never received the fullness of the gospel."

To this I replied: "Yes; but who has that?"

He said, "When we receive the fullness we will have the gifts."

He seemed much troubled in mind. Soon after this, brother D. S. Crawley came into the town of Carthage, Missouri, and preached on the street. He stayed with us over night, and the next day being Sabbath, we undertook a meeting in a grove, but was driven out by an elder of the Campbellite church, who exclaimed "Horse thieves;" "Take care of your horses," &c. A short time after this incident he formed the acquaintance of brethren Charles and Henry Wagner, who took great delight in furnishing him all the works of the church, and instructing the aged scholar. He was pleased with the privilege, power, and disposition to investigate, while the two German brethren, of blessed memory, threw floods of light on his pathway.

Brother Joseph came into the district, preaching in Pleasant View branch; upon the hearing of which we made haste to attend, and after considerable talking, the way became so clear, he gave his name for baptism. The next morning he was immersed, being the 10th November, 1873, by the hand of his first and faithful instructor, Elder D. S. Crawley, and thereby became a member of the Reorganized Church.

Soon after this brother W. W. Blair came to our town, Joplin, Missouri, in company with brother John T. Davies. During their sojourn he was set apart to the eldership; and I also became satisfied, believing with all my heart, and calling on the name of the Lord, I, even I, was baptized in December.

Father Short spent the most of the time after this in the ministry; but as life began to wane, he had some severe sickness, yet he was firm as the rocks of the everlasting hills. He was away from home when the pneumonia seized him. Every care was taken of him by the elders and all concerned; but his time had come. I succeeded in getting him home, and he lived only one week. I would not forget the kind care of brother and sister Maloney. My sons, Ellis and Morris T., were with him to the last. He would almost forget for the time his excruciating pains and give vent to rapturous delight, as brethren Bradley, Sutherland, and others would call on him. He testified that this Church of Christ was the work of the great I Am. He was somewhat absent minded at times; but he died in full faith, rejoicing in the great latter day message.

Thus passed away from earth one of earth's most gifted sons. ELIZABETH SHORT.

NOTICE!

Brethren of the Fifth Quorum of Elders: On January 1st and 3d, there was mailed to each of you "a circular letter," which is "your record of the quorum;" please save them. With the letter was also sent a blank report to be used by you on or about March 1st next, to send report of work done. All elders quorums have accepted them. Be diligent, so that we have a list of good reports. A later notice will appear stating where to send your reports.

R. ETZENHOUSER,
President of Quorum.

Box 223, Independence, Missouri.

The conference for the Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district will convene February 12th and 13th, at Plano, Illinois. It is hoped the president of the mission can be present. A full and complete report of the branches and church officials is solicited.

F. M. COOPER, Dist. Pres.

A conference of the Fremont district will convene at Plum Hollow, Iowa, February 5th and 6th, 1887. One of the First Presidency expects to attend. A large representation is expected.

HENRY KEMP, Dist. Pres.

DIED.

AUSMAN.—At Michigan Valley, Kansas, October 11th, 1886, of typhoid malarial fever, Sr. Augusta Adell, wife of Mr. C. W. Ausman, and daughter of Bro. G. H. Bailey, aged 22 years, 7 months and 19 days. She leaves a husband and two small children, both girls; also a father and two brothers, all of whom mourn her early death.

LLEWELYN.—Mary Anne, wife of late Daniel Llewelyn, died at her home near Columbus, Kansas, October 29th, 1886, from dropsy of the heart, after nine months of terrible suffering. Sister Llewelyn, with her husband, joined the church first in 1848, at Penydaren, Wales, and continued very faithful until they emigrated to this country in 1855-56. From that time they stood aloof like many others during the dark and cloudy days; but joined the Reorganization in 1865, near St. Louis, Missouri, and continued faithful to the day of their departure. Funeral services by Elder John T. Davies.

CAMPBELL.—At Camp Creek, Nebraska, January 2d, 1887, Bro. Samuel Campbell, sen. The immediate cause of death was inflammation of the lungs. He was born in the county of Antrim, Ireland, January 1st, 1822. His pilgrimage on earth was 65 years and one day. He accepted the gospel in Scotland, and immigrated to America in 1849, and settled with his family, on his late home in 1857. He renewed his covenant with God by baptism, August 23d, 1863; under the hands of Elder John Jamieson. No act of his life brought reproach to the cause of Christ, and among his neighbors he was respected as an honest and upright man. His aged and feeble companion feels keenly the separation; he also leaves two sons and three daughters, all married and have families. Funeral sermon at the house by Elder Robert M. Elvin, assisted by Elder Paul C. Peterson. There was a large attendance, both at the house and the grave, notwithstanding it was bitter cold. A good man is laid away to rest, for he fell asleep as peaceful as a child.

WHALLEY.—At Centreville, Rhode Island, January 4th, 1887, of convulsive spasms following an attack of diphtheria, brother Richard Whalley, aged 21 years, 11 months and 4 days. His remains were brought to Fall River, Massachusetts, and interred at Oak Grove cemetery. Funeral services were held in the Saints' Chapel, the sermon being preached by Elder John Gilbert, by request of brother Whalley before his death. He was a promising young man, kind and gentle in his manners. He was baptized in to the church, January 4th, 1884, by elder John Potts. He fully endeavored to live his religion, and died firm in the faith. He leaves a wife, together with a large number of relatives to mourn his loss, most of whom are members of the church. His death was that of the righteous.

BRIGGS.—At Denver, Colorado, January 8th, 1887, of inflammation of the bowels, sister Pamela A., wife of brother Plutarch H. Briggs, aged 35 years and 13 days. She leaves a husband and two children to mourn her loss.

Plano papers please copy.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

To the Bishop's Agents, and the Saints of the Decatur District:—In order to meet the emergencies of the work it is requested that all who have a desire and intention to aid the work before the next session of the district conference, will hand the amount to the Bishop's Agent in the branch where they reside; and if there be no agent in the branch, please forward to me at Lamoni, by March 1st. Agents in the district also, report in full, that the books may be closed for the year and a full report be made to the conference.

LAMONI, Iowa, Jan. 5th, 1887.

THE Christian World says that the missionary work of the world now includes 100 societies—50 American and 50 European—which report an income of $9,723,850, of which $4,420,613 came from America, $6,203,237 from Europe. The American societies report 675 ordained missionaries, 129 lay missionaries, 1,133 female missionaries, 1,102 ordained native preachers, 10,936 other native helpers, and 248,070 communicants in churches. In connection with the European societies there are 1,780 ordained missionaries, 249 lay missionaries, 1,030 women missionaries, 1,241 ordained native preachers, 15,420 other native helpers, and 276,715 communicants in churches. The total Protestant missionary work of the world has, therefore, 2,755 ordained missionaries, 2,162 women, 12,243 ordained native helpers, and 644,784 communicants in churches. These totals show a gain over the preceding year of $656,350 in income, 25 ordained missionaries, 70 lay missionaries, 140 women, 133 ordained natives, 3,637 native helpers, and 24,137 communicants.

RESTORATION OF ISRAEL.

The following from the Prophetic News and Israel's Watchman, for November, 1886, will interest the HERALD readers:

"A SIGNIFICANT JEWISH MOVEMENT.

"If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

"So sang, long centuries ago, the Jewish exile. This intense longing has, however, by no means been so marked in later times. A change, it would seem, is now taking place. Thousands, as is evident from our Jewish contemporaries, are turning with eager eyes to the East.

"To the devout student of prophecy this remarkable awakening is not the least significant amongst the many signs of the times. Not so long ago it appeared, so far as outward tokens were concerned, as if scattered Israel had forgotten Canaan. Recent events have, however, had the effect of quickening their yearnings for their ancient land, and various schemes are in operation for the settlement of Palestine. And in the Jewish World, of a recent date (August 20th), we read, for example:

"There are rifts in the clouds which have hitherto cast so dismal a shadow over the Holy Land. The future of that unhappy country, so long wrapt in impenetrable darkness, is beginning faintly to brighten, and the glimmerings of a happier state of things are almost within measurable distance of our forecasts. . . . Two institutions are destined to play a conspicuous part in the amelioration of the condition of the Jews of Palestine—the Agricultural School at Jaffa, and the Lionel de Rothschild Institution in the neighborhood of Jerusalem. We might add a third in the shape of the Montefiore Testimonial Fund, which, by its promotion of building societies and its erection of cheap dwellings, has done much to foster thrift and reduce the miseries and hardships of domestic life in the Holy City. . . . What we are concerned at this moment in noting is that the prospects of the Jews in Palestine are no longer gloomy. There are, on the one hand, forces at work for the improvement of the condition of our brethren which have been wisely devised and ingeniously organized, and which are now being assiduously applied; on the other hand, the people are getting tired of their misery and Chalukaridden inactivity, and are showing an increasing tendency to take advantage of the efforts made for their rehabilitation. This is a state of things which is fraught with happy consequences, and no Jew will fail to contemplate it with pleasure.'

"In the succeeding number of the same paper a leading article on the "Future of Palestine" closes with these words:

"With the late influx of, the agricultural element in the colonies planted by the Montefiore, Hirsch, and Rothschild funds, willing hands should be found to labor at the transformation scene, when, 'the desert shall blossom as the rose;' willing hands and willing hearts that shall reclaim the Holy Land from its long night of death, and restore to life and light the national home of the Jews.'

"While the longing thus indicated is significant, the obvious reflection is that not by the hand or enterprise of man shall the 'desert blossom as the rose,' but by the coming of Him of whom, in the chapter quoted, it is said, 'He will come and save you.' When they say, 'Lo, this is our God, we have waited for Him,' then shall the rebuke of His people be taken away, and their land become as He Himself has promised, as a well-watered garden."—Page 346.

This taken in connection with what the angel Moroni told Joseph the Seer, September 21st, 1833, is calculated to confirm and cheer the Saints, giving them assurance that God is moving for the fulfilment of the predictions of his servants, the prophets. It establishes their faith in the promises of God for this world and that which is to come. Joseph, in his church history says that the angel who appeared to him September 21st, 1823,

"Commenced quoting the prophecies of the Old Testament. He first quoted part of the third chapter of Malachi; and he quoted also the fourth or last chapter of the same prophecy, though with a little variation from the way it reads in our Bibles. Instead of quoting the first verse as it reads in our books, he quoted it thus: 'For behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea and all that do wickedly shall burn as stubble; for they that cometh shall burn them, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch.' And again, he quoted the fifth verse thus: 'Behold I will reveal unto you the priesthood by the hand of Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord.' He also quoted the next verse differently: 'And he shall plant in the hearts of the children the promises made to the fathers, and the hearts of the children shall turn to their fathers; if it were not so, the whole earth would be utterly wasted at his coming.' In addition to these he quoted the eleventh chapter of Isaiah, saying that it was about to be fulfilled. He quoted also the third chapter of Acts, twenty-second and twenty-third verses precisely as they stand in our New Testament. He said that that prophet was Christ, but the day had not yet come when 'they who would not hear his voice should be cut off from among the people,' but soon would come. He also quoted the second chapter of Joel from the twenty-eighth to the last verse. He also said that this was not yet fulfilled, but was soon to be. And he further stated the fulness of the Gentiles was soon to come in. He quoted many other passages of scripture and offered many explanations which can not be mentioned here."

Times and Seasons, vol. 3, page 753.

Turn now and read the third and fourth chapters of Malachi, the eleventh chapter of Isaiah; Acts 3: 22, 23, also Joel 2: 28-32, and in these texts we will find something of the scope and character of the work introduced to the Seer by this heavenly visitant, a prominent feature of which is the restoration of Israel and Judah, the beginning of which, among the nations, was to immediately follow the angel's visit and continue on until Christ should come in glory and destroy "from among the people" "every soul which will not hear" Him.

In this connection we give the prophecy of Nephi, which predicts the restoration of the land of Judea—"Lebanon"—and of "the house of Jacob," stating that it will begin to transpire immediately after the coming forth of the Book of Mormon.

"But behold, I prophesy unto you concerning the last days; concerning the days when the Lord God shall bring these things forth unto the children of men. After my seed, and the seed of my brethren shall have dwindled in unbelief, and shall have been smitten by the Gentiles; yea, after the Lord God shall have camped against them round about, and shall have laid siege against them with a mount, and raised forts against them; and after they shall have been brought down low in the dust, even that they are not, yet the words of the righteous shall be written, and the prayers of the faithful shall be heard, and all those who have dwindled in unbelief, shall not be forgotten; for those who shall be destroyed shall speak unto them out of the ground, and their speech shall be low out of the dust, and their voice shall be as one that hath a familiar spirit; for the Lord God will give unto him power, that he may whisper concerning them, even as it were out of the ground; and their speech shall whisper out of the dust.

"For thus saith the Lord God: They shall write the things which shall be done among them, and they shall be written and sealed up in a book, and those who have dwindled in unbelief, shall not have them, for they seek to destroy the things of God; wherefore, as those who have been destroyed, have been destroyed speedily: and the multitude of their terrible ones shall be as chaff that passeth away. Yea, thus saith the Lord God: It shall be at an instant, suddenly.

"And again it shall come to pass, that the Lord shall say unto him that shall read the words that shall be delivered him, Forasmuch as these people draw near unto me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precepts of men, therefore, I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people; yea, a marvelous work, and a wonder; for the wisdom of their wise and learned shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent shall be hid. And wo unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord. And their works are in the dark; and they say, Who seeth us; and who knoweth us?

"And they also say, Surely, your turning of things upside down, shall be esteemed as the potter's clay. But behold I will shew unto them, saith the Lord of hosts, that I know all their works. For shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? Or shall the thing framed say of him that framed it, He had no understanding? But behold, saith the Lord of hosts, I will shew unto the children of men, that it is not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field; and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest. And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book; and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and out of darkness; and the meek also shall increase, and their joy shall be in the Lord; and the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy one of Israel.

"For assuredly as the Lord liveth, they shall see that the terrible one is brought to nought, and the scorner is consumed, and all that watch for iniquity are cut off; and they that make a man an offender for a word, and lay a snare for him that reproveth in the gate, and turn aside the just for a thing of nought.

"Therefore thus saith the Lord, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob, Jacob shall not now be ashamed, neither shall his face now wax pale. But when he seeth his children, the work of my hands, in the midst of him, they shall sanctify my name, and sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel. They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine."—2 Nephi, 11: 13, 19.

To this we add the following:

"And now, I would prophecy somewhat more concerning the Jews and Gentiles. For after the book of which I have spoken shall come forth, and be written unto the Gentiles, and sealed up again unto the Lord, there shall be many which shall believe the words which are written; and they shall carry them forth unto the remnant of our seed. And then shall the remnant of our seed know concerning us, how that we came out from Jerusalem, and that they are descendants of the Jews. And the gospel of Jesus Christ shall be declared among them; wherefore, they shall be restored unto the knowledge of their fathers. And then shall they rejoice; for they shall know that it is a blessing unto them from the hand of God; and their scales of darkness shall begin to fall from their eyes; and many generations shall not pass away among them, save they shall be a pure and a delightsome people.

"And it shall come to pass that the Jews which are scattered, also shall begin to believe in Christ; and they shall begin to gather in upon the face of the land; and as many as shall believe in Christ, shall also become a delightsome people.

"And it shall come to pass that the Lord God shall commence his work, among all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people, to bring about the restoration of his people upon the earth. And with righteousness shall the Lord God judge the poor, and reprove with equity, for the meek of the earth. And he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth; and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked; for the time speedily cometh, that the Lord God shall cause a great division among the people; and the wicked will he destroy; and he will spare his people, yea, even if it so be that he must destroy the wicked by fire. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.

"And then shall the wolf dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion, and the fatling, together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice's den. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea.

"Wherefore, the things of all nations shall be made known: yea, all things shall be made known unto the children of men. There is nothing which is secret, save it shall be revealed; there is no work of darkness, save it shall be made manifest in the light; and there is nothing which is sealed upon the earth, save it shall be loosed. Wherefore, all things which have been revealed unto the children of men, shall at that day be revealed; and satan shall have power over the hearts of the children of men no more, for a long time. And now my beloved brethren, I make an end of my sayings."—2 Nephi 12: 12-14.

In these promises and predictions, revealed to the Saints and the world as early as 1830, is clearly shown the work of restoration now going on with Israel and Judah among all nations, including the land of Palestine, also the restoration of the very land itself. The writer in the Prophetic News remarks: "Not so long ago it appeared, so far as outward tokens were concerned, as if scattered Israel had forgotten Canaan. Recent events have, however, had the effect of quickening their yearnings for their ancient land, and various schemes are in operation for the settlement of Palestine."

Yes; there were no "outward tokens" of Israel's speedy restoration till after the time when Joseph the Seer proclaimed that fact by the authority of heaven, in 1827, and after. The very claims on these points, announced as early as 1827, and repeated frequently since, are now being amply sustained by accomplished facts. The nations of Europe are favoring and aiding in the ingathering of the Jews, the fertility of Palestine has for the past thirty-five years become established, and there are many forces and influences at work to gather Israel to their covenant lands.

BRO. JOHN ERTER, writes from Antwerp, Ohio, January 19th, that they had been visited by a Rev. T. W. Lincoln, a minister of the M. E. Church, who formerly lived at Antwerp, and who has been lecturing there for the local Methodists. Of course he must give the Mormons the grand send off, and in doing this he denounced everything connected with the people and their philosophy without distinction. When pressed, however, he admitted that the Josephites did not practice polygamy, and that he had asked the president to preach in his church in Utah, and that from his acquaintance he had found Joseph Smith to be a gentleman.

This Rev. T. W. Lincoln was in charge of the M. E. Church at Provo, Utah, and at the request of Brn. R. J. Anthony and Joseph Luff, he granted us the use of his church, which we occupied. We understood at the time that this granting of permission was by the direction of the minister in charge of the missionary work of the M. E. church in the territories, Rev. T. C. Iliff, from an assurance given us in person by Mr. Iliff in Salt Lake City, before starting south during our visit there. We were pleased to be permitted the use of the churches of these people, because we were denied others.

Bro. Erter further says that Mr. Lincoln stated that we of the Reorganized Church, if left to ourselves, would be just as bad as those in Utah. This is something astonishing, when we think of the almost cordial greeting that same gentleman gave us at Provo, and the kind treatment received from the minister located at Beaver, where we also occupied their chapel, and where their choir sang for us. It must be that Bro. Erter has misunderstood Mr. Lincoln; or that the latter forgot himself.

O. O. BEAN, of Van Horne, Iowa, renews for HERALD, HOPE, and BANNER, and also donates something to the publishing department. He says, "I believe every family belonging to the church should read the HERALD and help to support it."

Bro. J. D. Flanders says: "I am pleased with the HERALD, and can not do without it."

Bro. Charles H. Porter of Wilber, Nebraska, renews for the HERALD for himself and another, and says, "We are well pleased with the HERALD, and wish it all the success its merits entitle it to. We consider it a great auxiliary in the presentation of the word of life."

Bro. D. S. Crawley, of Amity, Missouri, writes January 19th: "I would not do without the HERALD for five times its cost."

These and similar words of commendation we publish as proof of the popular estimate of the HERALD by many of its readers; also to stimulate its friends to support it promptly by timely contributions and selections, and also by procuring paying subscribers and extending its circulation in every proper, practicable way; for success in this department is a mighty help to success in every other one.

Christ commends what is worthy (Luke 16:8, &c.). Paul commended both himself and others, (2 Cor. 3:1; 12:11, &c.). Commendation when justly, wisely given, is good and helpful in many ways.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE publish in this issue a discourse delivered by Bro. Mark H. Forscutt last summer, which we have had lying in store for a favorable opportunity to print. We bespeak the reading of it from all, and none who read will regret the time so occupied. Copied from Wilber Opposition.

By letter just received we learn that people in Knoxvilleboro, near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, are still looking for the return of Elder E. C. Briggs to labor there agreeable to his promise.

Bro. Joseph Chester, of Detroit, Minnesota, thinks it not so much of a mystery how Joseph Smith should know that he was, or is a prophet of God, as that there should be latter day saints, or former day saints without a prophet in their midst. Of this he says: let some one take this question up and give us instruction.

Sr. Isaac Lea, of Florin, California, renews for the HERALD and says: "The Herald is a great comfort to me, and I feel I can not do without it."

If we choose right and practice what is right, we will both please God, and do his will. If we choose wrong and practice what is wrong, we will please the and do the will of the devil, hence, lose much and little if anything.

Bro. William Sparling, of Pembroke, Potter county, Dakota, wrote January 10th: "The truth is gaining slowly in these parts; we are striving to magnify our calling."

Bro. J. B. Prettyman, of Knox, Indiana, writes January 19th, that the word is bearing fruit in that region. He baptized one of late, had interested others in the latter day work, and ordered for one the HERALD and Book of Mormon. Good! Bro. Prettyman; keep the work moving whenever you can, and heaven will bless and prosper you.

The Enterprise, a Republican newspaper, published at Scottsville, Mason county, Michigan, has lately opened its columns to a preacher, whose name is Burton S. Mills, who goes after the Latter Day Saints in the old, old style. By the evidence of Beadle, and similar authors, he proves to his own satisfaction that their is neither God, goodness, nor humanity in anything called Mormonism. Bro. C. Scott writes of him in his late letter. We are sorry that any paper professedly republican in sentiment has its pages soiled with such unfair argumentation.

Sr. Lucy Barrows of Salt Lake City, writes of late that Bro. Anthony is holding a series of meetings in the Saints' Chapel, and that five had been baptized recently.

Bro. John Grimmer of Lander City, Wyoming, is full of hope for the redemption of many of the Utah Saints. He had a large experience in Brighamism, but left it many years ago and united with the Reorganization.

Sister Sabrina McGahan-German, of Pratt Center, Kansas, assures us of her abiding faith in the latter day work. She recalls to our memory the fact of her being healed when a girl by the prayer of faith under the hands of brethren Edmund C. Briggs, A. Patten, and the writer, in 1859, at Union Grove, Iowa. In those days the number in the Reorganized Church were few—perhaps one hundred—but the gifts and graces and power of God's Spirit were with them abundantly. We think of those times with joy and gladness, for the Lord was moving the cause of Zion for good with the humble and lowly ones.

Bro. W. J. Vaughan of Moberly, Mo., wrote January 25th, that there was quite an interest at that point, awakened by the talk of himself and others, the distribution of tracts, and the preaching of W. H. Bybee, who of late has been teaching in a school house there.

Bro. William Brittain writes from Garden City, Kansas: "The city is full of religion. Bro. Deull has preached to them some; but it does not seem to make much impression. The time has not come apparently, everybody is for making money, and that appears to be their only god; they are building fine houses and churches to get to heaven in their own way."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—If a member withdraws from the church of his own free will, and after due consideration of the matter desires to unite with the branch again, can that branch receive him on his first baptism into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints?

Ans.—Yes; if the withdrawal was made from the branch to which the application to be restored is made.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Mrs. Ellen Dancer writes January 18th from Brink, Marion county, West Virginia, saying:

"I am not a member of your church, but I would be if there was a branch here, or if an elder would come this way so that I could be baptized. I know that it is the only true faith. I think the Herald the best paper published, and I can not do without it."

Bro. J. R. Anderson writes from Clitherrall, Minnesota, January 19th,

"The work of the Lord is moving slowly in this region; some have united with us, others are believing and we hope will unite soon. Bro. J. C. Foss is doing what he can; but we need more help as this is a large district. If it were not for the Herald I don't know what we would do."

Bro. S. R. Sorenson, formerly of Lamoni, now of May, Kearney county, Nebraska, wrote January 16th:

"We are greatly in need of a good elder that can talk both Danish and English. My mind is much troubled in regard to spreading the gospel here, as well as other places. Here live thousands of people that don't know the gospel as it is taught by the Latter Day Saints; and still they condemn that gospel and won't even listen to it. My heart is filled with grief and sorrow when I think about it, what is there to do? What can be done for such people, who deny the power of God and all manifestations. I rejoice greatly in this latter day work; I feel it is the power unto salvation to all those that believe and live according to that belief. The more I read in the books divine, the more I realize the divinity thereof, and the responsibility laid upon us. I often think about the gathering and the building up of Zion, and ask myself the question, is the time now, or shall it be revealed of God in his own due time."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Where our duty's task is wrought
In unison with God's great thought,
The near and future blend in one,
And whatsoe'r is willed, is done!"

REST AWHILE.

I will be still to-day and rest,
I will be still and let life drift;
I am so tired that it is best
Neither my hands nor eyes to lift.
I am so tired—it is no use,
My will can not my need obey;
O Care, I ask a few hours' truce,
I pray thee let me rest to-day.

And so, shut up in restful gloom,
I let my hands drop listlessly;
Within my dim and silent room
I would not move, or hear, or see;
Oblivion dropped on me her balm.
I fell on slumber deep and sweet,
And when I woke was strong and calm,
And full of rest from head to feet.

So, toiler in life's weary ways,
Pity thyself, for thou must tire;
Both body, mind and heart have days
They can not answer their desire.
Birds in all seasons do not sing,
Flowers have their time to bloom and fall;
There is not any living thing
Can answer to a ceaseless call.

Sometimes, tired head, seek slumber deep;
Tired hands, no burden try to lift;
Tired heart, thy watch let others keep,
Pity thyself and let life drift
A few hours' rest perchance may bring Relief from weariness and pain;
And thou from listless languors spring,
And gladly lift thy work again—Selected.

THERE is wisdom in the above which we commend to the sisters of the Home Column, believing that to grant rest to weary nature when she demands it of us is a religious duty, and can not be set aside without danger of loss to the one who does it.

To our many friends who in the past months have sent us kindly words of cheer and encouragement, we wish to say, "Such words we have hid away in our heart." To some of you we have written; to many we have not found time to write. Our work has doubled in the past few months, and every department of the church work is increasing in perhaps a more rapid ratio than this. The borders of Zion are enlarging, and her stakes are being strengthened. Be of good courage, for it is the "Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

LAMONI, IOWA, Jan. 26th, 1887.

XENIA, Ill., Jan. 1st.

Dear Sister Frances:—Even at this late hour I wish to enter the "Home Column" and tell you that I truly appreciate the same. May God bless you with all who contribute to it, to make it ever profitable to its readers. I have felt for some time that I would like to write to the Herald; but also feeling my weakness kept still. I have belonged to the church for five years, and find almost every day that I live, there is some new lesson to learn. Reading a letter in the "Column" from sister Christie A. Stuart on the question, "How we should make our garments in order to fulfil the law." I would suggest, dear sisters that we should not go on extremes either way. I believe it has been a weakness with our sex, in all ages, to adorn the person; to dress in costly array—or the putting on of gold or jewels, I believe to be a sin—or too much tucking and ruffling and costly trimming. We should crucify all false pride, and thus come somewhat to a unity of thought. It is my desire to do the Master's will in all things, and use my influence (if I have any) for the good of God's kingdom. Let us sacrifice self, dear sisters, and give what we spend foolishly, for the good of God's cause.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

LIDIA CAUDLE.

We commend the suggestion of sister Caudle, that extremes should be avoided. Different people display pride in different ways, but we see no greater harm (if indeed as much) in taking pride in nice things, than in being odd or even slovenly in appearance. Harmony and beauty exist in all the works of God. The adornment of a meek and quiet spirit, is that which is of great value in the sight of God, and if we have not this we are lacking, no matter how we may adorn the perishing body—or how we may strip it of adornment, clothing it in rags. The very fact that a disposition such as the words "meek and quiet" indicate, would lead us to avoid anything like display, whether of fine clothes or poor ones—would seem to point toward this unostentatious middle course. That it is utterly impossible for us to love fine clothes, costly adorning and equipage, for our thoughts to be occupied by and our minds taken up with such things, and at the same time find room for the spirit of meekness and quiet, we have but to turn our thoughts inward, to be convinced. Good clothing is not necessarily costly, for a garment made from cloth which costs twice as much as other cloth in the beginning, many times wears more than twice as long, and saves the wearer much expense in making and washing. We hope to hear from the sisters more fully upon this subject, and defer for the present further comment except to say, the love of the world and the things of the world is enmity towards God, and no one has made or ever shall make a sacrifice for the cause of God, but what his or her reward is sure.

December 24th.

Sister Frances:—It has been some time since I have written to the Home Column. I am well pleased with the sisters' letters and the interest they take in helping to carry on this latter-day work, for I know that it is a great work. Whenever I read the glad news in the Herald of the gospel being preached, and the Lord working with his servants, it fills my heart with gladness; and Oh! how I wish I had the means to help to send elders out into this great harvest-field, for the harvest is come and the laborers are few, but alas! I am poor and all I can do is to pray for the Lord of the harvest to send more laborers into the harvest-field. We wanted an elder to come here and preach but we have no means to send for one. My nephews, Joseph and his brother, were at Burnside in August, and preached two weeks. Burnside is fifteen miles from here, and Alexander said when he left he thought he would come back, or send some one, but we have not heard from him, and don't know why he does not write; and if this comes to his notice I hope he will remember us.

I see in the Herald where a sister is described as saying that she could not help the sister who was waiting on her for fear she would soil her dress. That caused me to look back to the days when we lived in Kirtland, when my mother and myself spent our whole time in waiting upon the comers and goers in cooking and washing; and the sisters would say, mother Smith, I would help you but I am afraid I will soil my dress; and this too when our tired limbs were about to fail us. To such sisters I would say, take a calico dress along with you, and help such as want help, and be kind.

Another sister writes about making her dresses plain. In the old church we all dressed plain. For my part I think it a shame to follow the fashions of the world. Don't the Lord say, Come out of her my people. I think that a plain basque and skirt without ruffle or tuck, looks very neat and becoming; and the money which all those needless trimmings cost could be saved to help the spread of the gospel.

Dear sisters, please read the third chapter of Isaiah, and see what the prophet says concerning the pride of the daughters of Zion. All these trinkets shall be taken away, and for well set hair there shall be baldness. We all wore our hair plain in the old church, parted in the middle, combed back and done up in a coil and fastened with a comb. The apostle says "The hair is to adorn a woman." It is a shame to cut it off and make bangs to dangle over the forehead and in your eyes. I think how much better the sisters look with their hair parted and combed smooth behind their ears.

KATHERINE SALISBURY.

SHERIDAN, Ills., Jan 11th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I have always had a desire to do something for the cause of our blessed Redeemer, but what I could do was so little I could not think of sending it. If I do not begin with little I shall never do anything, for my means are limited. Hoping every Sister who has a testimony to bear to the truth of this work may cast in their offering, remembering it is the continual dropping that wears away the stone; and let us see if our united efforts will not give such an impetus to the stone cut from the mountain, that we can truly see it moving on over every obstacle that threatens to retard its progress. We have the promise of being heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ, if we can only be faithful to the end. How glorious the promise.

Your sister in the hope of eternal life,

SARAH HAYER.

January 12th, 1887.

Dear Sister Frances:—Since I read the Mothers' Home Column I am constrained by the good Spirit to write and send my mite. I am sixty-seven years old. I wish I could do more than I do for the benefit of the gospel. I have been a member of the Latter Day Saints Church ever since 1838, and have seen many hard trials through life; but never regretted obeying the gospel. I have been greatly blessed all through life. I feel so glad when I read the Hope and Herald; there are such good instructions in them. No thinking mind can doubt the righteousness of them. I am so thankful for the privilege of having them sent by a friend; they are the only preachers I have except when I go to Shenandoah, and that is not very often. It is 9 miles there.

I have often thought I would write, and then I would feel as though I could say nothing edifying to the Saints, but now I have written a few lines. I feel rejoiced to hear the work is onward and upward. I intend to pay my tithing although I am put to all I know to keep up the family and farm.

Your sister in Christ,

JOSEPHINE SCANLON.

We want to call the attention of the Saints to the last clause of Sister Scanlon's letter. We quote it in her own words: "I intend to pay my tithing although I am put to all I know to keep up the family and farm." In the face of what may be said by every opposer of this law of God, we say amen, Sister Josephine. Keep the law of your God and leave the result with him. We can almost see the scornful smile of some who will read this, but that can not influence us in the least. Experience is sometimes a very dear teacher, but there is a class of individuals who will seldom learn in any other school; whether we belong to that class or not, we can tell every one who cares to know that it is our honest conviction to-day that the Lord has taken from us the uttermost farthing of what we ought to have paid him, with tears of gratitude in our eyes for the privilege of so doing. Had we time to enter into details, we are satisfied we could convince any one with unprejudiced mind of the truth of what we say. When Sister Josephine has lived for one year in obedience to the law, we want to hear from her again, and see if God has not been as good as his word. Don't let any one flatter himself or herself, that the great abuse of this law in days of the past, is going to lead God to set it aside, or to excuse them from non-compliance with it. Has not every good gift of God been abused by wicked men? Have not hypocrites worn every garment which has ever been worn by righteous men, as a cloak for their iniquity? If you have not faith in God and in the servants of his appointing, you can not offer an acceptable offering to God whether it be of tithes or a free-will offering, for, "whatsoever is not of faith is sin." Tithes, nor offerings are acceptable, unless they come from the heart, as well as the pocket. —Ed.

Sister Frances:—I have a family of eight children, one of them, a daughter, is married; she is home visiting now. I feel that as mothers in Zion we have many trials to overcome, in trying to raise our families in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. I feel my weakness at all times, and pray God that he may bless you in your good work, for I feel that much good will yet be done by it. I desire the prayers of all God's children, that I may do my duty in all my daily and spiritual labors.

Yours in hope of eternal life,

A SUBSTITUTE FOR MEAT.

Take cold mashed potatoes, I use one quart, one pint and a half of bread crumbs, two well beaten eggs, a little melted butter or dripping, pepper, salt and sage to suit the tast. Mix thoroughly, make into small cakes and fry brown. This is healthier than meat, is light and tasty.

Correspondence.

CAMERON, Ont., Jan. 15th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I thought I would write you a few lines to-day, as your name is being used quite frequently here by the Whitmerites; and despite the statement made here in the debate by W. P. Brown, that you was a gentleman, the matter is being canvassed to a certain extent still, in relation to your gentlemanly qualities. Although Brown did say you was a gentleman, yet he also stated the following, while we were discussing the principle of tithing. "That you and others of the leading ones of the church were they to whom the tithing was paid, and in consequence of the same, you was riding around in your covered carriage, and was worth perhaps $100,000. All this you obtained by grinding the face of the poor,—or taking tithing from them in order to enrich yourself and friends. Said he had been at your place, and that he spoke what he knew." Some of the Whitmerites here also affirm, "that in various places where church buildings have been erected, and deeded to the church, that you and others had sold them, and shoved the money in your pocket." I presume the reason they spin this yarn, is to try to justify their elder here (D. McIntyre) in not paying the $15. he agreed to give towards building the church here at Cameron, but which he now absolutely refuses to do.

When meeting such stuff as this in the debate I did not try to polish in any kid gloved manner, but openly affirmed such things to be lies; and hence, J. C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder say, "We don't endorse the spirit manifested on either side of that debate;" but whether they endorse the spirit or not, I openly confess that when W. P. Brown told a lie, I told him of it, and told it so he could understand it; and if it was wrong for me to tell him of his lies—when he did lie, so it was for Jesus to tell the Jews when they lied. (See St. John 8:44, 55). I can, if necessary, furnish the substance of both sides of the debate here, as I have kept the notes taken down at the time, to which I replied. I should not have mentioned farther than my previous letter, if I had not noticed Whitmer and Snyder's letter in the Herald.

Brown claimed while he was here, that he was sent here by the Holy Ghost; and that his preaching was dictated by the same, as also was his traveling from place to place; all this was by the Holy Ghost. One of his main arguments in support of the idea that the Reorganization was wrong, was, "that there was division in it," yet here we find J. C. Whitmer, and J. J. Snyder, of the "Church of Christ" (?) denouncing the spirit manifested here by Brown. It seems to me, that if Brown was directed by the Holy Ghost, then Messrs. Whitmer and Snyder make a very serious blunder when they denounce that spirit; and as they claim to have the Holy Ghost, and denounce the spirit manifested by Brown, it must be apparent that either Mr. Brown is, or Whitmer and Snyder are deceived; hence, let them decide which. If it is decided that Brown did not have the Holy Ghost, then those of authority in the Church of Christ will need to send some one else here who has the Holy Ghost, to re-baptize and confirm those that Mr. Brown has initiated; and it further seems to me, that if the argument is good, that because "there is division in the Reorganization, therefore it can not be the true church," then the same argument can now be thrown in the teeth of the so-called Church of Christ; hence, if Mr. Brown was guided by the Holy Ghost, while here, he had better take the pruning-knife now and clip off those obnoxious branches that dare to say "We don't endorse the spirit manifested by Brown in that debate;" for there is one of two things that must be apparent to all—seeing Whitmer and Snyder do not endorse the spirit manifested by Brown—either they, or Brown, are deceived, and working under a false spirit; and if it should happen to be Mr. Brown, then in what relation, if any, do those baptized and ordained at Cameron, by W. P. Brown, stand to the "Church of Christ."

I hope those at Cameron who have been baptized by W. P. Brown, will awaken, and see that the so-called "Church of Christ," is a man-made institution, with no higher authority than that spoken of by Paul, when he said, "They will heap to themselves teachers;" for if, as the Whitmerites claim, "the church was rejected prior to 1834" then as D. Whitmer was a member of that church, he was rejected with it, hence, away goes his authority here; but if the church was not rejected, she certainly could confer, or retain authority according to the promise, "that whatsoever ye bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatsoever ye loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven;" hence, as the records show—and I presume Mr. Whitmer will not deny—he was cut of the church in 1838, hence away goes his authority there; therefore, they may take hold of which horn of the dilemma they choose, and it leaves the church claimed by them to be the "Church of Christ," but a man made institution after all.

THE ROCK.

THERE were a great many things twenty years ago, and from that time to a little over a year since that tried me. A good deal of indelicate language was comparatively easy to get over, but not so of doctrines. In fact there seemed to be little counsel except on tithing, donations, etc.

Bitter hatred to congress was expressed at various times. W. Woodruff said in Bear Lake, he wished he had command of thunder and lightning for half an hour. At another time he said he had just as much of the Holy Spirit when he was a deacon as he had now as an apostle! All this and volumes more was easy to get along with, but when L. S., of Brigham City said twenty years ago that revelation was the Rock that Peter meant, then I felt real pain—just come from England to hear a small step in the downward road. It made me wonder if Satan was once more allowed to triumph. At Jerusalem, magistrates were stirred up by him to hinder the apostles from preaching Christ. Now in these last days Spiritualists don't deny there was a Christ, but they seem to honor the humble Nazarene, as they say. Let us see what Peter said: "Thou art the Christ the son of the living God," the expected Messiah. As no man can come unto Christ except the Father draw him, so the eternal Father revealed it. Not flesh and blood, but the Father showed Peter that their Lord and Master was not an impostor, but the Christ. Not merely a prophet, a man, then revelation might be the Rock? No. But the time had come when he who said, "Father, thy will be done," instead of "guilty man shall suffer." I will take a body—"the seed of the woman," thy only begotten, and take upon me all their woe. No finite being can pay that debt; an infinite atonement is required; justice shall inflict on me all that mankind must otherwise receive as just. For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, nor suffer thy holy one to see corruption, and all the glory shall be thine. On me let death strike with his dart. But O, death! where is thy sting? O, grave! where is thy victory? For once the conqueror is conquered, and the mighty king of glory shall destroy death and him that hath the power shall be bound. Yes; the everlasting gates were lifted up, and the king of glory passed through their portals and set free many captives who appeared in Jerusalem when the empty sepulchre proclaimed, by angelic beings, "He is not here. Come and see the place where he was laid. Let us weigh Deuteronomy, chapter 32.

"Ascribe ye greatness unto our God; he is the Rock. . . . Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful and hast forgotten God that formed thee." . . . "Except their Rock had so'd them." Paul says, "they drank of that Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ."—Doc. Cov. Instructions were given June 1829 to "build up my church upon the foundation of my gospel and my Rock."—Doc. Cov. Sec. 43, paragraph 4 says: "Behold, Jesus Christ is the name given of the Father." A fountain giveth a stream of water; you dont call the stream the fountain; the stream proceeds from it. Luther and all the reformers broke the chain of Popery. Joseph Smith said: "We know that justification by faith in the grace of our Lord and Savior is just and true."—Doc. and Cov. Some men say good morals, honesty, etc., are the foundation of religion. They certainly are the fruits. But we dont build a house by putting shingles on foundations and finishing with floor.

THE DISPENSATION OF THE FULNESS OF TIMES.

BY D. S. CRAWLEY.

SPEAKING of this same latter day work, Isaiah 1:25, 26, says: "And I will turn my hand upon thee, and purely purge away thy dross and take away thy tin; and I will restore thy judges as at the first, and thy counselors as at the beginning; afterwards thou shalt be called the city of righteousness, the faithful city." "But," says the objector, "all these events, admitting them, were to be upon the eastern hemisphere, which disproves your claim that Joseph Smith was called to begin this great work in America, of which the Bible says nothing." Well, if the Bible should not mention where this great work should begin, it does say that it shall begin by the Lord "lifting up his hand to the Gentiles [first] and setting up a standard for the people" (Isa. 49:22); causing the Gentile kings and queens to assist in gathering Israel, as mentioned in verse 23. Hence it is just as reasonable to suppose that it might begin in this mighty nation of civil and religious freedom as in any other, and if the Bible positively points to this land and this nation, as the place where God would begin this mighty work, then it should be an overwhelming evidence of the divine authority of the fourteen year old, almost unlettered boy, Joseph Smith, when he declared that an angel of God so declared unto him, when all the combined wisdom of the world opposed him, denying that the Bible taught any such thing. Isaiah 11:12 says, "And he shall lift up an ensign for the nations." Not for Israel, but the Gentile nations first, and it should result in the gathering of Israel and Judah. In Isaiah 5:25, 26, after speaking of Israel's dispersion, and the terrible judgments to follow, he says: "But his hand is stretched out still; and he will lift up an ensign from far, and will hiss [call] unto them [Israel] from the ends of the earth [or farthest part of the earth from where the prophet then was] and they shall come with speed, swiftly." From this we learn that this lifting up his hand, or an ensign, was to be "from far" from Jerusalem, even "from the end [or farthest part] of the earth," which by consulting a map we find can refer to no other place than America. And that, from the place referred to, Israel were to be called, and were to come in answer to the call, "with speed swiftly." But to remove every doubt in regard to its reference to this land, we quote: "Wo to the land shadowing with [in the shadow or resemblance of] wings, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia."—Isaiah 18:1. In chapter 17:1 he speaks of Damascus, and in 19:1 he speaks of Egypt, calling each by name, because he knew their names; but in 18:1 he beholds a land "from far," an unknown land to him, hence he gives only a description of its shape, its direction from Jerusalem, and its great distance away; for when we take the map of the world and follow his direction, and pass beyond the rivers of the Barbary States, ancient Ethiopia, we find ourselves near three thousand miles from the prophet's residence; and then, thousands of miles farther on is the first land that we see; indeed "far off," and to our astonishment we find it "shadowing with wings" or in the likeness of the extended wings of a fowl. No one can give a more accurate outline of the land of America in fewer words. And it can not possibly apply to any other land. This is evidence beyond the power of successful contradiction, that the prophet spoke of this land. In verse 2 we learn that "from" this land ambassadors of God were to be sent across the waters as "swift messengers, to a nation scattered and peeled,"—Israel. No nation has ever been scattered, and peeled of their substance, as Israel. And they are to be brought to this land by these swift traveling ambassadors, the same as taught in chapter 5:26. The 3d verse says, "All ye inhabitants of the world and dwellers on the earth, see ye when he lifteth up an ensign, and when he bloweth a trumpet hear ye." Will they do it? Ah, no. In addition to "lifting up an ensign from far" as in chapter 5:26, we here have the blowing of a trumpet, or proclamation of the gospel, and a special call to hear it. For in verse 4 he says, "For thus hath the Lord said to me." In verse 5 we learn that these great events were to occur just "afore the harvest," or end of probation; "For afore the harvest, when the bud is perfect, and the sour grape is ripening in the flower, he shall both cut off the sprigs with pruning hooks, and take away and cut down the branches." In Revelations, chapter 14 we learn that after the sending of an angel from heaven with the everlasting gospel trumpet, to be blown by God's ambassadors, the same event as just mentioned by Isaiah, only in different language, we read: "The harvest is fully ripe, thrust in thy sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ripe; and they were gathered and trodden in the great wine press outside of the city"—a dreadful carnage. (Rev. 14:15-20). This evidently refers to the gathering of the eastern nations; the sour grapes (or clusters of the vine) means the great mother of harlots, around the city of Jerusalem, fully described in Ezekiel, chapters 38 and 39, Joel, chapter 3, and Zechariah, chapter 14. The "sharp sickle" no doubt refers to the same thing taught in Rev. chapter 16, as gathering them, "The spirits of devils, working miracles." But in Isaiah 18:4 we learn that "afore the harvest," whilst the sour grapes or clusters are ripening, the Lord will "cut off the sprigs" (young branches.—Webster) "and cut down the branches" and "the beasts" and the "fowls" are to feast on them, so terrible will be their destruction. The nations and churches of this land may well be termed "the sprigs" and "branches" of the eastern nations and churches; and we learn that they will be cut off "afore the harvest," unless they "see when he lifteth up an ensign," and "hear when he bloweth a trumpet" amongst them; for their fulness will have then come in just as the Jews when they refused to see the ensign when unfurled and hear the trumpet when blown by the Lord Jesus Christ and his servants. O, my countrymen! remember Judea's dreadful fate, and be wise.

With this agrees the world's history as prefigured in the great image, of Daniel chapter 2d. The head and breast and arms and belly the eastern empire; the legs and the feet and toes the western kingdoms including "the sprigs," and "the branches" of America, which were to be broken and consumed. And how could this be unless the kingdom was first "set up here? As before quoted, Paul said, "As it is written, out of Sion shall come the deliverer, and shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob." It is thought that this deliverer was Christ, and the reference Bibles point to Isa. 59:20. But that is altogether different from Paul's quotation. David in Ps. 14:7, no doubt refers to the same as Paul, "Oh, that the salvation [or deliverance] of Israel were come out of Zion. When the Lord bringeth back the captivity of his people, Jacob shall rejoice, and Israel shall be glad." Isaiah 59:20 says: "And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and to them that turn from transgression in Jacob." This is an event to transpire after "the Deliverer" comes out of Zion and turns away ungodliness from Jacob, predicted by Paul and David. A deliverer is that which delivers; and certainly the "ensign," "standard-bearer," and "ambassadors" sent from this land, are servants of God for the deliverance of Israel.

The obscure prophecy of Obadiah points to the same event and place as Paul and Isaiah. "But upon Mount Zion shall be deliverance, and there shall be holiness; and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions," [or be saved as Paul says; and how?] "And saviors [ambassadors] shall come upon Mount Zion, and judge the Mount of Esau, and the kingdom shall be the Lord's."—(Obid. 17-21). By reading the entire chapter we see that Mount Esau means the people of Esau—the Gentiles, who are to be "cut off with great slaughter. "For thy violence against thy brother Jacob, shame shall cover thee, and thou shalt be cut off forever." 9-10. But before this he says, in connection with the saviors on Mount Zion and the destruction of the Gentiles. "We have heard a rumor from the Lord [the trumpet blast], and an ambassador is sent among the heathen."—verse 1. He certainly describes this nation in verse 4: "Though thou exalt thyself as the eagle [our national emblem], and though thou set thy nest among the stars, thence will I bring thee down, saith the Lord." And verses 13 and 14 may well be applied to the treatment of the Saints from 1832 until 1846. Hence it is evident that he refers to the same events as Paul, Rom. 11: 25-27, and Isaiah chapter 18. Isaiah evidently refers to similar events in chapter 2 as in chapter 18, when speaking of the wonderful events of the last days; when he says the Lord's house, or kingdom, shall be established in the top of the mountains, or be the greatest of the nations, and of all the gathering to it" from all nations," the cause thereof being "for the law shall go forth from Zion, [first] and afterward the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."

Charles Wesley, co-laborer with his brother John, evidently refers to Isaiah chapter 18 when he says,

"Almighty God of love,
Set up th' attracting sign,
And summon whom thou dost approve
For messengers divine.
From favored Abrah'm's seed
The new apostles choose,
In isles and continents to spread
The soul-reviving news."

This agrees with Isaiah, chapter 18, &c.

John Wesley says in his ninety-fourth sermon that the true cause of spiritual gifts not being amongst the Christians, was because they had "turned heathen again." Such men would have rejoiced to have lived in the days when Joseph Smith began to "Lift up the attracting sign," also choosing "the new apostles." It is a remarkable fact that from Isaiah's stand-point, Jerusalem, looking beyond the river Droha, the principal river of northern Africa—Ethiopia, a direct line brought to his vision, first what is now the state of New York, the exact place where Joseph Smith declares the fulfillment of the events predicted in that same chapter in connection with chapter 29. Hence we are justified in making the application of all these prophecies—those of Paul, David, Daniel, Obadiah, Isaiah, the Revelation, and others, culminate in the mission of Joseph Smith for the deliverance of Israel, by sending "ambassadors" of Christ from this land to them everywhere with the law that Jesus and Paul and other of God's servants preached, thus turning them from ungodliness, telling them "an ensign" was lifted up, the gospel "trumpet" blown, and a "standard for the people" set up on this land.

"But," says one, "this can not be, for the deliverer was to come out of Sion, and Isaiah says in 30: 19 that Zion is at Jerusalem." Yes, and the very language proves that he knew of another location that would be named Zion, or why should he use the preposition thus, "Zion at Jerusalem?" Only to distinguish between the two Zions. Thus Zion "at Jerusalem" was part of the city proper, but separated by a wall. And when David took Jerusalem from the Jebusites, he "took also a stronghold of Zion, the same is the city of David."—2 Sam. 5: 7. It is called the same in Luke 2: 11 by an angel; but it is never called the city of God. Of the Zion of the latter days it is said, "Beautiful for situation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion on the sides of the north, the city of the great King. God is known in her palaces for a refuge. * * * As we have heard, so have we seen; in the city of the Lord of Hosts, in the city of our God. God will establish it forever."—Ps. 48: 2-8. "I will not give sleep to my eyes, nor slumber to mine eyelids, until I find out a place for the Lord, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob. Lo, we heard of it at Ephrata; we found it in the fields of the woods." . . . "For the Lord has chosen Zion, he hath desired it for his habitation."—Ps. 132: 4, 7. The Zion at Jerusalem was never unknown to David. But Zion, the city of God, he sought out, and "found it in the fields of the woods." No pen can better describe the immense prairies of Missouri and other parts of our land, as they are surrounded by vast forests, than by calling them "the fields of the woods." No such thing characterized the Zion at Jerusalem. But David learned, after sleepless nights of supplication, that God had chosen the location of the Zion of the latter days, and saw it "on the sides of the north" or north side of our land, consequently it was found by him in North America.

"Zion is a wilderness, Jerusalem a desolation."—Isa. 64: 10. This refers to two localities. There was to be a river of many streams, to make glad the Zion of God, by running through it. Ps. 46: 4. Nothing of the kind can be found in "Zion at Jerusalem." For God will save Zion, and build the cities of Judah. Ps. 69: 35. Zion at Jerusalem was part of a city of Judah; but the above named Zion is distinct from Judah's cities. "Zion heard and was glad, and the daughters of Judah rejoiced." Ps. 97: 8. Zion's daughters were not of Judah, or "at Jerusalem." "The Lord shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem."—Isa. 24: 23. "The Lord shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem."—Joel 3: 16. "For the law shall go forth from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem."—Isa. 2: 3. "For in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, shall be deliverance."—Joel. 2: 32, "To declare the name of the Lord in Zion, and his praise in Jerusalem."—Ps. 102: 21. All these, and many other scriptures prove that the Zion referred to in them is not in Judea, but in an entirely different location. But to remove even the shadow of a doubt, we quote Isa. 18: 7. I have already proven beyond a doubt that the prophet was then speaking of this land, from which "ambassadors" were to be sent to Israel, across the waters, the ensign raised, the trumpet blown, and the judgments to follow. He then says,—"In that time shall the present be brought unto the Lord of Hosts, of a people scattered, and peeled, * * * to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, the Mount Zion." This should forever establish the fact, that God, just "afore the harvest" would locate and name a place on this land "the Mount Zion," and cause the gathering of Israel to that place. This is just what was revealed to, and declared by the illiterate boy, Joseph, in opposition to all the wisdom of the world, all of which is fully sustained by the scriptures.

Now we can understand Joel's obscure prophecies,—"Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble, for the day of the Lord cometh for it is nigh at hand."—Joel 2: 1. When there should be deliverance in Mount Zion, first, and in Jerusalem, after, as the Lord hath said. God had evidently revealed the same things to him as to Isaiah, but he only describes it in different language. Isaiah says the trumpet should blow just "afore the harvest," and judgments follow. Joel says when it shall blow, "let the inhabitants tremble, for the day of the Lord is at hand," and that then there shall be safety in Zion, &c. Isaiah says the people shall be gathered to Mount Zion, &c. Obadiah says, "Saviors shall come up on Mount Zion" and judge the Gentiles, "and the kingdom shall be the Lord's." Daniel says in effect that the kingdom of God should, in the latter-days, be set up in the far west, not far from the toes of the image, break them first, then all other kingdoms, and "stand forever." Paul said "the Deliverer" should "come out of Zion" and save Israel. David says deliverance should come out of Zioe and cause the salvation of Jacob. John saw that an angel would bring the gospel, save the good, and cause the downfall of Babylon. Zephaniah, in chapter 3, says that God would gather Israel, destroy the nations, and then, "From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia [alluding to the same land as in Isaiah 18, America], my suppliants, even the daughter of my dispersed, shall bring mine offering." God will then restore "a pure language" to all people. Some of Judah will gather with the Saints to this land. All these ancient, holy men spake of these events, but in their own way, some mention things that others omitted.

Instead of "ambassadors" of God coming from the east to this land, they, as we have seen, are to go, first, from this land to the Eastern nations, just as taught by Joseph Smith, to gather God's people to this land, whilst Jerusalem, with its Zion, will be rebuilt, unbelieving Israel gather there, all nations gather against them to battle, take half their city, outrage their women, &c., &c. See Zech. 14: 1-5. Then Jesus shall go from Zion in America, which must first be built up, for "When the Lord shall build up Zion, then shall he appear in his glory."—Ps. 102: 16. And then "The Redeemer shall come to Zion, and to them that turn from transgression in Jacob."—Isa. 59: 20. This is before he goes to deliver the unconverted Jews. Read Zech. 14th chapter. He then will deliver them, "open a fountain" in the house of David, for sin and uncleanness, meaning baptism, and so save them through the gospel. Then they will recognize the truth of Pilate's inscription on the cross.—“Jesus, of Nazareth, the King of the Jews.” Read of their great mourning for him when they learn this.

That Jesus will come to this land first, is evident from Gen. 49: 24, where Jacob, after conferring on Joseph a land situated at “the utmost bounds” of the earth, America, (as it is the farthest land from Egypt, where Jacob was), says; “from thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel,” because, no doubt, he would come first to Zion on this land, and go thence to Jerusalem in Asia, and destroy the nations that are gathered there. Read Ezekiel, chapters 38 and 39, Joel’s prophecy, and Zechariah, chapters 12, 13 and 14, as I can only glance at these events.

He will resurrect his people in fulfillment of Ezek. 37: 12. After giving the vision of dry bones the Lord thus explains it; “O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves, and bring you into the land of Israel. “And in verse 22, after telling them of the union of Joseph’s and Judah’s history, (the Bible, Judah’s history, and Book of Mormon, Joseph’s history), telling how God brought him to the land of America, given him through his father Jacob, as a sign to Israel that the time of the resurrection was near at hand, he says that he would gather Israel from every land and bring them into their own land, and “Will make them one nation in the land, upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all.” “But,” says one, “you thus overthrow your argument in regard to part of Israel gathering to this land first, to abide forever.” No, indeed; for this is part of the land of Israel, given to the house of Joseph, as proved heretofore; and Isaiah, speaking of the two lands says; “For Zion’s sake (in America) I will not hold my peace, for Jerusalem’s sake I will not rest. Thou shalt be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. Thou shalt no more be termed forsaken, neither shall thy land any more be termed desolate; but thou shalt be called Hephzibah, and thy land Beulah; for the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married.”—62: 1-4.

In Gen. 1: 9 we learn that the waters were all gathered into one place, consequently the land was all one body. We learn also in Gen. 10: 25, that in the days of Peleg the earth, (not the nations), was “divided;” a very short account of such a mighty revolution, but that such has been the case can be seen by a glance at the map of the world; for with our imperfect outlines of the earth, if the continents and islands were cut out of the map and placed together, it would make almost a solid body of land. And according to the prophecy quoted, in “the times of the restitution of all things,” the land of Zion or city of God, the western hemisphere, and the land of Jerusalem, the eastern, will “be married,” or united in one. This is proof positive that Zion and Jerusalem will be built upon two distinct lands before it is said, “and thy land shall be married.” The Revelator also confirms this, for at the opening of the sixth seal, “The heaven departed as a scroll * * * and every mountain and island were moved out of their places.”—Rev 6: 12-14. And further; “And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; [or made new] and there was no more sea.”—Rev. 21: 1. Thus we learn that the mountains and islands will be moved out of their places; and as it is in the times of restitution of all things, the islands will be joined to the main land. And as there will be “no more sea,” the waters will be gathered elsewhere.

Another obscure prophecy is made plain by the mission of Joseph Smith:—“Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jerusalem, and cry unto her, that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned; for she hath received of the Lord’s hand double for all her sins. The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God.”—Isa. 40: 1-3. This was applied to John the Baptist, Matt. 3: 3, and other places. But you can see at a glance that the most of it is yet in the future. No such comforting message was delivered by him at that time to Jerusalem, that her warfare was accomplished, her iniquity pardoned, having received double for all sins. No, indeed; but instead he called them a generation of vipers; their greatest sins after that time were rejecting the gospel, crucifying the king, etc. Dreadful judgments have followed on Jerusalem ever since until recently. But it refers to the time of restitution when he shall send Jesus Christ, and the earth “be married”—made new as the following verses show: “Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill made low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain. And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together.” John’s mission was not finished when he first came to introduce Jesus Christ, neither was that his first work on earth. The scribes said Elias must first come before Christ, and they were right. But when Elias come in the person of John the Baptist, (See Matt. 17: 12, 13), they knew him not, but killed him. And that he was to be instrumental in restoring all things that were spoken of him by the prophets especially as quoted in Isaiah, chapter 40, we quote:—“And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come and restore all things. But I say that Elias is come already, and they knew him not.”—Matt. 17: 11, 12. They killed him, but he was raised at the resurrection of Christ in the mean time coming with Moses to minister to Christ at the transfiguration. And why think it incredible that he should come in this last dispensation to fulfil the words of Christ and the prophets, as testified by Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, and confer his authority on them, to preach the gospel and baptize for remission of sins? As the Elias he went to God at death. As he was after that sent from God, he came in the person of John the Baptist. John 1: 6. Then why deny that he should be sent again, as his prophetic mission was only began at that time, and will not be finished until “the warfare of Jerusalem is accomplished.”

It is said that the Saints claim to receive too many revelations; that if God revealed the gospel to Joseph Smith by an angel, that should have sufficed without continued revelations. This matter is also made plain in Isaiah, chapter two. The first eight verses refer to the first coming of Christ. The prophet then looks down to the latter days and speaks thus:—Behold the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare; before they spring forth I tell you of them.” That is, the things concerning his first coming were to precede those that he now speaks of:—“Sing unto the Lord a new song, and his praise from the end of the earth. Let them give glory unto the Lord, and declare his praise in the islands.” And why? for “the Lord shall go forth as a mighty man of war; he shall cry, yea, roar; He shall prevail against his enemies,” [latter day events]. “I (the Lord) have long time holden my peace, I have been still and refrained myself; now will I cry like a travailing woman; I will destroy at once. I will make waste mountains and hills, and dry up all their herbs; and I will make the rivers islands, and I will dry up their pools.”

Ever since the rise of great “Mystery Babylon,” the Lord has been silent, has refrained from speaking. But the prophet here teaches that when he should break the long silence in the eleventh hour, to do his mighty work, “gather in one all things in heaven and in earth, even in one in Christ,” that he should “cry, yea, roar,” and never cease from speaking, never keep silence until the complete deliverance of his people Israel.

Want of space forbids me mentioning more of the prophecies made plain by the ushering in of this last dispensation. But if Judah suffered so terribly for rejecting the prophecies of Christ’s first advent in about “the ninth hour,” how shall we escape if we reject the tenfold greater amount of prophecies concerning the “dispensation of the fulness of times,” “the eleventh hour” call? When “the Redeemer will come to Zion,” when he will redeem Israel, overthrow and “make a full end of all the nations whither he had driven them,” raise up all his people, “marry” or unite the eastern and western continents and islands, make Israel “again one nation upon the mountains of Israel,” Christ take the throne of his “father, David, and reign over the house of Jacob for ever,” when the “greatness of the kingdom under the whole heavens shall be given to the Saints of the Most High?”

Men may call us fanatics, point the finger of scorn at us, but yet our hearts will rejoice in the hope that when the redeemed are gathered to Zion, and Jesus shall come in the clouds of heaven to forever dwell with them, we may then be with that glorified throng, and with Zion sing the everlasting songs of the redeemed. May God help us that we may not be among those who have no wedding garments on, and join in that fearful cry, "Too late! the harvest is past, the summer is ended, but my soul is not saved."

When Jesus shall in glory come,
And all his Saints are gathered home
On Zion's mount with him to stand
And ever dwell in Israel's land,
O, with that glorious company,
May I as one forever be;
To join in praise of Jesus' name
With Saints in New Jerusalem.

LETTERS FROM DAVID AND JOHN C. WHITMER.

RICHMOND, Mo., Dec. 9th, 1886.

Dear Brethren—I regret that one of the Editors of the Herald has seen fit to cast a shadow over the honor and integrity of Bro. David Whitmer, the last witness to the divinity of the Book of Mormon—a man whose past record is beyond reproach. I can account for it only in this light: That he began to fear lest some of the Saints should leave the Reorganized Church and come into the Church of Christ; so he has been tempted to do all he could toward destroying the good influence of Bro. David. I desire to show the brethren what brothers Joseph and Alexander Smith think of the honesty and integrity of David Whitmer. When they were here a few years ago, Bro. Joseph told Bro. David Whitmer that he believed in the integrity of his heart, and believed that he loved his father (Joseph). Bro. Alexander said to Bro. David Whitmer's wife as follows: "Before mother died, she told us to visit the Whitmers, that they were good people; and when we saw David Whitmer we would see an honest man." I will also give you here the names of old citizens of Richmond, over half of whom have known David Whitmer since he came here in 1838. The following is taken from a leaflet published by him in 1881, and sent forth reaffirming his testimony to the Book of Mormon because of some false reports being circulated.

We, the undersigned citizens of Richmond, Ray county, Missouri, where David Whitmer has resided since the year A.D. 1838, certify that we have been long and intimately acquainted with him and known him to be a man of the highest integrity, and of undoubted truth and veracity. Given at Richmond, Missouri, this March, 19th, 1881:—A. W. Doniphan (the lawyer who defended the Saints in 1838); George W. Dunn, judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit; T. D. Woodson, president of Ray county bank; J. T. Child, editor of Conservator; H. C. Garner, cashier of Ray county bank; W. A. Holman, county treasurer; J. S. Hughes, banker, Richmond; James Hughes, banker, Richmond; James W. Black, attorney at law; L. C. Cantwell, postmaster, Richmond; George I. Wasson, mayor; James A. Davis, county collector; C. J. Hughes, probate judge; George W. Trigg, county clerk; W. W. Mosby, M.D.; J. P. Amssinberry, merchant; W. R. Holman, merchant; George W. Buchanan, M.D.; A. K. Reyburn, and others.

Your brother in the faith of Christ,
JOHN C. WHITMER.

RICHMOND, Mo., Dec. 9th, 1886.

Bro. Joseph:—I have the Herald of the 4th inst. and I feel thankful to God that you talk as fair and honest-hearted as you do. It occurs to me that you wrote this editorial relating to my letter yourself. It has a good honest spirit in it, and differs widely from the most of the writings in the Herald of late, which have appeared against me. I am praying to God for you, Bro. Joseph, and for all the honest in heart; and my soul rejoices, trusting that God will have mercy on all true believers in his word and enlighten their hearts with his loving, forgiving Spirit, that before long they may all see and understand his word alike and all be "one," even as Christ prayed that his disciples "might be one as he and the Father were one, that they might be one in Him." I had the brethren write to some of the papers correcting the mistakes in them, and in time I will have all misstatements that have gone forth corrected to the public mind, and publish to the world abroad the truth concerning all of these matters. God knows that I, as well as yourself love the truth and desire to have all mistakes corrected, and to have the truth established. I want to ask you this question: If you knew that your father had introduced doctrines of error into the Church of Christ, would you want to uphold him in his errors? Of course you would not! I understand fully that you believe these doctrines (about which we differ) to be of God, while I believe, I know that they were introduced by the wisdom of man. I do not mean to persecute your father nor destroy any of his good works. I loved your father; I upheld him as far as he taught the doctrine of Christ; yea, I loved him so much and had so much confidence in him, that I followed him into many errors before I was aware that I was trusting too much in "an arm of flesh," instead of trusting in God only, and relying upon "that which is written." I knew your father, Joseph, much better than you knew him, and much better than any man now living. I was with him in the work of upbuilding the church before you were born. Your father was once an humble man; but he become ensnared by Sidney Rigdon, David Patton, Brigham Young and others. Now God has made it known to me, that before I go hence, I must send forth my testimony to the world, stating many truths which have never been published, which is necessary in order to show how they have trusted in man and made flesh their arm, and have been led into error by following the teachings of men, instead of trusting in God only and following the teachings of Christ. May God help you, Bro. Joseph, to some day see and understand that your father did become ensnared by wicked men, and through their influence he did introduce doctrines of error into the Church of Christ! Oh, Joseph, you can not understand by this letter how my soul is stirred up with the love of God for you, and for all the Latter Day Saints who are in error. But you may not see and understand me by what spirit I speak, until at the judgment bar of God; then you will see and understand. May you go to God in prayer and fasting, and find out by the power of the Holy Ghost by what spirit I do speak, for by the power of the Holy Ghost you can know all things. May God be with you, is my prayer.

Your brother in the faith of Christ,
DAVID WHITMER.

Please publish the above letter, Bro. Joseph, and right under it the following letter to the brethren.

Dear Brethren: I want you to understand that the following remarks are addressed to the one who has been writing against me unjustly of late in the Herald, showing a different spirit to the editorial relating to my letter in the Herald of the 4th inst., which has a good, honest spirit to it. These remarks are to the writer who has judged me hastily—who has taken for evidence against me some letters that were written to the Millennial Star and other papers of the church, said letters having probably been written by some man who afterwards followed Brigham Young to Salt Lake, and written so long after the occurrence of those things that his dates are wrong, and he had forgotten the first names of three of the elders whom he says spoke against me concerning some charges. This writer in the Herald has judged me after hearing only one side of the evidence, and has accused me of many things. Now who made him a judge in Israel? Christ said, "Judge not"—"condemn not;" and as he has judged me, just so God will judge him at the last day, if he continues to judge as he has heretofore.

Because some man wrote a letter to the Millennial Star a long time after I had left the Latter Day Saints, and charged me with being guilty of certain things, does this necessarily make the charges true? Of course not! Many things are written as knowledge which the writer believes to be true, but he may be writing only hearsay.

Now I will give you an instance of the church paper printing an article against a man, the writer of the article being an apostate from the church at the time. In Lamoni is now living a man named James J. Stafford, who (I have been told by perfectly reliable men) apostatized from the Reorganized Church some years ago, and is such to-day. Last spring Mr. Stafford wrote an article against me, in which he makes some grave insinuations, and the Herald printed his article; and not only did this, but one of the Editors calls attention to the article, thus making it semi-official. Brethren, did this Editor do right in this matter? (I don't think this was Bro. Joseph.) So you see at this present time that an Editor of the church paper will print articles for men who are even apostates from their faith, just so the article attacks some man whom the Editor wants to attack. The Millennial Star used to do the same thing. The articles written against me to the old church papers, this writer in the Herald calls "church history," and are reprinted and commented upon by him, as if every word of it was true, while many of them were written by men who went to Salt Lake in polygamy, and when they wrote these things against me, were writing on hearsay. Now I will speak of these charges against me.

After I had left the Latter Day Saints, I heard that they had given me a trial and cut me off. The only charges that I ever heard they had against me (until I read this Herald) were, for not believing some of Bro. Joseph's revelations, and not teaching them; and for not believing and teaching the "Word of Wisdom." The proceedings of this trial, and all these other charges against me, I never heard of in my life before. Brethren, in the fear of God, and my time being almost at hand to go to meet Him, I do positively deny all of these charges against me, except concerning these revelations, and I still believe now as I did then concerning them. The fact is—I will clear myself from this article in the Millennial Star; I will clear myself from their own evidence. To show you how this writer in the Herald has done, you will notice that he puts the words "using the money" in letters of emphasis to make the brethren believe that the Whitmer here referred to is myself; and tries to make it appear that I had used money belonging to the church, by emphasizing those words: It says "Phelps and Whitmer;" well—the Whitmer referred to is not myself, it was my brother, John Whitmer who is dead. I heard afterward they had such a charge against John, but he was not guilty of it. In the charge about selling land in Zion, it says also "Phelps and Whitmer," and this also refers to John, because I never owned any land in Zion. But the writer in the Herald tries to make it appear that the Whitmer referred to is myself. Please note well the following point, as it clears me from their own evidence. "Elder Lyman Wight stated that he considered all other accusations against them (us three brethren) of minor importance, compared to their selling their lands in Jackson county; that they (Phelps and Whitmer) had set an example which all the Saints were liable to follow." So you see they admit that all other accusations against us were of minor (small) importance. Now as I never owned any land in Jackson county, I guess I am clear of everything! The Whitmer referred to was my brother, John. He had to sell, to get out of debt. You can see from reading those five charges against me, that I had already left the Latter Day Saints, when they were brought up against me. Also that I had already left them when they give me a trial and cut me off. You can see this from the fourth charge which says: "In neglecting the duties of his calling and separating himself from the church while he yet had a name among us." So this fact is established, and I want the brethren to remember this because it is important, as you will see later on why I left the Latter Day Saints.

As to the balance of those charges I have this to say; I positively wrote no letters to Kirtland about Joseph, nor did I write any letter to the High Council at Far West. I want to repeat that the man who wrote this letter to the Millennial Star must have written it a long time after I left the Latter Day Saints, which can be seen from his forgetting those names, and from being wrong as to some dates. I have no doubt but what some one, not very conscientious, wrote these things against me to the Millennial Star, and wrote them a long time after I had left the body, and wrote the most of it on hearsay. So we see that all they had against me was for "not keeping the Word of Wisdom," and disbelieving some of Joseph's revelations, and not teaching them. You will notice the remarks of the writer in the Herald about me not keeping the Word of Wisdom; I have this to say: If he drinks tea or coffee, or violates the Word of Wisdom in the least particular, I want him to read in Matt. 7: 5, what Christ call's the man who says to his brother, "Let me pull out the mote from your eye, when behold a beam is in his own eye." As for me, my conscience does not condemn me for not keeping the Word of Wisdom; but those who believe it to be of God, if they violate it in the least particular, their conscience can not be clear of doubt; and he that partakes with doubt is condemned.

I will now answer the article written by Mr. Stafford to the Herald last spring; I only desire to state briefly the facts in regard to that history. First—I do not believe that Lucy Smith wrote those things about me. Did not some man write that history for her? If she wrote those things about me, it occurred in this way; she had been told these things by some one, and believing them to be true, she wrote them. It is certain she knew none of these things of her own personal knowledge. We all know how easy it is to sometimes believe rumors and hearsay, and it is easy for false reports to be started about one who is innocent. I will state, that the whole of these things from first to last are entirely false, and Satan is at the foundation of them all. I suppose the girl to whom reference is made, was Adaline Fuller. She was a meek, humble girl, who had but little to say to any one. She was a good, honest girl, of strong faith, and if there ever lived on this earth an humble follower of Christ, she was one. In those days several of us had this gift. I would call it the gift of discernment, or prophecy; but none of them pretended to dictate for the church, or for any member of the church. She, nor any of them, never did give a revelation to the church, or to any member of the church. I have no knowledge whatever of her ever receiving a revelation that I would fill Joseph's place when he died. This has been made up like many other things about me, after I left the Latter Day Saints. We never did hold any secret meetings at my house, or any other house; and this girl never did give any revelations at any of our meetings. As to her jumping out of her chair and dancing over the floor and boasting of her power, I say this is false in toto, and Satan has started this base falsehood about an humble follower of Christ. As to the revelations which came through Hiram Page's stone, I will state that Oliver and I never thought much about them. We talked of them, and thought they might be from God, or might be from Satan. About our going to Missouri and contaminating the minds of the brethren against Joseph, in order to destroy his influence. We never tried to contaminate the minds of any one, nor have we ever tried to destroy any of Bro. Joseph's good influence, or good works.

As to the spirit in which I left Kirtland to go to Missouri, I will tell you of a revelation received through Joseph at Kirtland, which was the cause of me leaving Kirtland to come to Missouri. It was received in the presence of Hyrum Smith, Sydney Rigdon, Frederick G. Williams, and others. It was not printed, as many others were never printed; so I give you part of it from memory: "That my servant Sydney must go sooner or later to Pittsburg; that I, Joseph, must remain here in Kirtland, for this is my appointed place; and the brethren must not keep my servant David here any longer, for he is needed in Missouri, for that is his appointed place." I parted with the brethren at Kirtland in the spirit of love. Mr. Stafford has commented on these matters and judged me hastily, and made some grave and serious insinuations against me, which you can see by reading his article. I hope he will not judge me hastily again, and that he may in time find the truth as it is in Christ, is my prayer for him.

My article was sent to the Herald on December 9th, and in the Herald of December 25th are some things I desire to notice briefly. Concerning my encouraging the Missouri mobocrats to push their persecutions against the church in 1838—which finally resulted in the death of Joseph and Hyrum in 1844. The writer says he has heard of a rumor in this sense, but that it may not be true, etc.

This is the first time I ever heard of such a rumor. He says: "We regret the existence of such a rumor." Now I want to ask him this question: If he really does regret that this rumor exists, why did he publish it in the Herald, thus spreading it to thousands of people? Because some brother wrote to him asking that question, is no reason why he should publish it in the Herald. Such a rumor may have existed; if so, it may have originated in this way; when I came to Richmond, General Parks, who was in command of the State Militia, was short of wagons and teams, as they were scarce here then; so he pressed me and my team into service and I was forced to go and drive a wagon load of baggage to Far West. I told them if I had to go I would take no gun. They said "all right;" and I took no gun. This rumor may have originated in this way. God knows that I did not encourage the militia in the least to persecute the Saints. He knows I was praying for them and did not lay a straw in their way, instead of aiding in their persecutions. Our persecutions began five years before I left the body in 1833; now was I in any way the cause of that? Brethren, it is ridiculous; it is wrong; it is an injury to an innocent man; and an injury to the cause and to my testimony to the Book of Mormon! It is an abomination in the sight of God, and he will justly reward all those who have originated such falsehoods about me!! Now brethren—I want to repeat, in the fear of God, that my testimony will stand at the judgment day as the truth, concerning all of these matters. May this writer in the Herald some day see wherein he is in error, and may he find the truth as it is in Christ, is my prayer for him.

I will now begin and give you the first chapter of my epistle, as I have already written it.

Dear Brethren:—The Spirit of God moves upon me to send forth this epistle unto you. It is wisdom in God that these facts which I give you have not been made generally known long ago. But now the Spirit of God has made it manifest to me to make them known. The time is at hand to prepare for the day when the gospel will go to the house of Israel! It has been made known to me that when the gospel goes to the remnant of Jacob, (the Lamanites), it must go to them as Christ has given it to us, the fulness of which is in the Book of Mormon and the New Testament. I know that the Latter Day Saints are teaching some errors in doctrine, and I hope to convince the honest in heart among them of this fact. The commands of God are strict, and his word is yea, yea, and nay, nay. It is a serious thing for man to add doctrines to the doctrine which Christ has taught in his word. Christ has taught that it is necessary to be abiding in his doctrine, and whosoever teaches more or less than the doctrine which he has taught in his word, is not of Him. He has taught but one doctrine. I do not mean to judge or condemn the Latter Day Saints. God is the judge. But I will speak the truth as the Spirit of God moves upon me to speak it, and I hope and pray that many will heed the truth—that they will lay aside all error, and come in upon the doctrine of Christ, as it is taught in the written word. I believe that the Latter Day Saints who are opposed to polygamy have done a great work and great good. I believe they have done a great work in carrying forth the Book of Mormon. We can not always understand God's ways of dealing with his people. God suffers men to be led into error because of their blindness of heart. He works with men only according to their faith and obedience; but now the Spirit of God is moving upon the Elders of the Church of Christ, to go forth unto all believers in the Book of Mormon, and unto all other people, crying repentance, and calling on them to heed to the teachings of Christ. I do not mean to persecute Joseph the translator of the Book of Mormon. I loved him, and I love Joseph his son, and believe him to be a good man. Joseph like many of those of old whom God had chosen, fell into error; and why should we want to follow any man into error? Should we put our trust in an arm of flesh? Nay, verily!

There never lived but one perfect man, and that was Christ; and he is our only law-giver. Therefore, we should take great heed, and compare with the "written word" all doctrines, and laws, and revelations coming through any man; for any man can fall into error and lead every one into error who trusts in man. God chooses the weak things of this world, so that man should not put their trust in man and make flesh their arm, but put their trust in God only. It is just—in God's wisdom, that every one who is not living sufficiently spiritual to discern between truth and error, should be led into error. God called Saul and many others of old who afterwards fell into error and lost the Spirit—knowing that they would fall, so as to let every one be led into error by them who had such little faith in God as to make a man their God, and trust in "an arm of flesh," instead of putting their whole faith and trust in God only, and heeding Him only. God suffered them to be led into error because of their transgressions and lack of faith in him. Christ has spoken, and the voice of God has declared from the heavens: "HEAR YE HIM!" His teachings in the Book of Mormon and the New Testament are the same.

But the Latter Day Saints have another book of doctrine—the "Doctrine and Covenants"—in which are doctrines that Christ never taught to the "twelve" at Jerusalem, nor to the "twelve" upon this continent. The Latter Day Saints believe these new doctrines, which do not agree with the teachings of Christ. Why do they believe them? Because they are putting too much trust in a man! This has been the mistake of God's people in all ages past. Read the scriptures and observe how very soon the great majority of God's people always fell into error by trusting in man. Men who were humble when God chose them, but afterward fell into error. If men do not live near enough to God to discern error when it comes—and it may appear as an angel of light—for instance, polygamy—God suffers them to be led into error, because of their transgressions. See how many of the prophets whom God called, afterward fell into error? Saul, David, Solomon, and many prophets in Israel.

Now, I do not judge, nor say whether Saul, David, Solomon, or Joseph Smith, will be saved or lost. These are all in the hands of a just God. Perhaps the errors of David were more grievous than those of Joseph. Now I hope you understand me. I am not persecuting Bro. Joseph, and never did persecute him. Because he erred is no reason why I should not love him. God called him to translate the sacred record of the Nephites, by the power and gift of God; but he was not called to set up and establish the church any more than any of us Elders were. This I will prove conclusively later on, from evidence which you are bound to accept.

The "choice seer" spoken of in the Book of Mormon is not brother Joseph. I will give you here a brief outline concerning this "Choice Seer" who is yet to come forth. The man who is not learned (in 2 Nephi 11:18), refers to Bro. Joseph. But the "Choice Seer" (in 2 Nephi 2) is another man. He is to come from the American Indians. He is to come from the fruit of the loins of Joseph (of Egypt), that seed being the "branch which was to be broken off" at Jerusalem, to whom this land was consecrated for their inheritance forever—being Lehi and his seed; Lehi's seed being "little Joseph," who received this blessing from his father Lehi, that his seed should not utterly be destroyed; for out of this seed, which should not all be destroyed (the Indians) should come this "Choice Seer." This is the interpretation of this chapter. This "Choice Seer" will be an Indian. His name will be Joseph, and his father's name Joseph. He is to translate sealed records yet to come forth, (spoken of in 2 Nephi 11:18). "And not to the bringing forth my word only, saith the Lord, but to the convincing them of my word." How many Indians did Bro. Joseph convince? He never preached a sermon to them in his life. May God help you, brethren, to understand this chapter, for it can only be understood by the enlightening power of the Holy Ghost. It is very plain to me. I will speak in full on this matter hereafter.

I want to say to the Latter Day Saints, that the elders of the Church of Christ, in coming to them, come to them as their brethren, in love and in meekness. God forbid that we should persecute you, who have likewise taken upon yourselves the "shame of Christ" in this age of the world,—which shame, in the eyes of the world, is believing the Book of Mormon. No! we love you; and by the help of God we will labor, trusting that the day is not far distant when the honest in heart among you, and among all believers in the Book of Mormon, and the world, may all be one with us upon the doctrine of Christ, working by the power and gifts of God to prepare the way for the gospel to go to the House of Israel. God only—knows how I have grieved and suffered and plead with him for you for the past forty-eight years; that you might repent and be enlightened by the Holy Ghost to see the errors into which you have been led. To God belongs the mystery of his dealings with his people: He is allwise, and his ways are not man's ways. Mormon stood alone for many years, when the Nephites and Lamanites had every one gone into error and transgression. He stood alone holding the authority, and prayed to God continually that he might go to them and preach to them; but the Lord forbid him to preach to them. Then let no man judge hastily as to my authority, lest he judge wrongly and continue in error; but go to God in prayer and fasting, and find out the truth, for the Holy Ghost will guide you into all truth. If you believe my testimony to the Book of Mormon: if you believe that God spake to us three witnesses by his own voice; then I tell you that in June, 1838, God spake to me again by his own voice from the heavens, and told me to "separate myself from among the Latter Day Saints, for as they sought to do unto me, so should it be done unto them." In the spring of 1838, the heads of the church and many of the members had gone deep into error and blindness. I had been striving with them for a long time to show them the errors into which they were drifting, and for my labors I received only persecutions. In June, 1838, a secret organization was formed, Doctor Avard being put in as the leader of the band; a certain oath was to be administered to all the brethren to bind them to support the heads of the church in every thing they should teach. All who refused to take this oath were considered dissenters from the church, and certain things were to be done concerning these dissenters, by Dr. Avard's secret band. I make no farther statements now; but suffice it to say that my persecutions, for trying to show them their errors, become of such a nature, that I had to leave the Latter Day Saints, and as I rode on horseback out of Far West, in June 1838, the voice of God from heaven spake to me as I have stated above. I was called out to hold the authority.

I see from a letter written by the heads of the church while they were in Liberty Jail, that they repented while in jail of having anything to do with this secret organization, and came out against Dr. Avard, declaring it all wickedness; and resolved to henceforth disapprove everything that was not according to the gospel, and which was not of a bold, frank, and upright nature. I quote from this letter, printed in the "Times and Seasons," July, 1840:

"We farther caution our brethren against the impropriety of the organizations of bands or companies, by covenants, oaths, penalties, or secrecies; but let the time past of our experience and suffering by the wickedness of Dr. Avard suffice: And let our covenants be that of the everlasting covenant, as it is contained in the Holy Writ, and the things which God has revealed unto us. Pure friendship always becomes weakened the very moment you undertake to make it stronger by penal oaths and secrecy. Your humble servants intend from henceforth to disapprove every thing that is not in accordance with the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and which is not of a bold, frank, and upright nature."

They were put in jail in November, after I had left them. Now you see why I left the Latter Day Saints. After I left them they say they gave me a trial and cut me off. About the same time that I came out, the Spirit of God moved upon quite a number of the brethren who came out, with their families. All of the eight witnesses who were then living, (except the three Smiths), came out, Peter and Christian Whitmer were dead. Oliver Cowdery came out also. Martin Harris was then in Ohio. The church went deeper and deeper into wickedness. They were driven out of Missouri, and went to Nauvoo; and were driven out of Nauvoo, and went to Salt Lake, where they are to-day living in polygamy. Now you must remember that nearly all the members went to Salt Lake. Only a very few rejected the revelation on polygamy. The Reorganization is built up principally of members—not of the old church—but new converts. Now remember that the church which the Herald is striving to defend and prove innocent, *that church—those people—*went to Salt Lake. Remember this! These are the people who persecuted me in 1838. These are the people who had gone deep into errors and abominations. The majority of those who did not go to Salt Lake are in the Reorganized Church to-day.

Many of the Reorganized Church have wondered why I have stood apart from them. Brethren, I will here tell you why. God commanded me by his own voice to stand apart from you. Many of you think that I have a desire to lead—to lead a church that believe as I do. I have no such desire. A one man leader to the church is not the teachings of Christ. After Joseph was killed, many came to me and importuned me to come out and be their leader; but I refused. With these statements, so you will understand me, I will show you hereafter how the heads of the church went into one error after another. I followed them into many errors in doctrine, which the Lord has since shown me, and which errors I have confessed and repented of, and will speak of in these writings. I am not preaching self-justification from being in errors in doctrine in the past. It is since 1847, that I have been shown all the errors into which I had followed the heads of the church, and that when God's time comes for building up the waste places of Zion, the Church of Christ must be established on the teachings of Christ, which teachings in their purity are in the New Covenant of the Book of Mormon, and come forth to us to settle all disputations, because many plain and precious things have been taken from the record of the Jews, and on all doctrinal points—order of church offices, etc., we must rely upon it.

Christ commanded the Nepites to write his teachings, for they were to come down to us as the fulness of his gospel to us. And why is it—Oh, why is it that you will not take the words of Christ himself, and lay down your contentions and disputations, taking his plain, simple teachings which he has given us in that book? As you know, the teachings of Christ are the same at Jerusalem and upon this land; but on account of the plain and precious things being taken from the Bible, there is room therein for disputations on some points; but the teachings of Christ in the Book of Mormon are pure, plain, simple, and full. Christ chose "twelve" and called them disciples, or Elders,—not apostles, and the "twelve" ordained elders, priests, and teachers. These are all the spiritual offices in the Church of Christ, and their duties are plainly given. The manner of baptism, and the manner of administering the flesh and blood of Christ, and everything pertaining to the Church of Christ is plainly set forth in the fullness of the gospel.

In order to set some important facts clearly before your minds, concerning some changes in some of the revelations, I will give you in this article a brief outline of them, and speak in full on this subject hereafter. Some of the revelations as they now appear in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants have been changed and added to. Some of the changes being of the greatest importance as the meaning is entirely changed on some very important matters; as if the Lord had changed his mind a few years after he give the revelations, and after having commanded his servants (as they claim) to print them in the "Book of Commandments;" and after giving his servants a revelation, being a preface unto His Book of Commandments, which says: "Behold this is mine authority, and the authority of my servants, and my preface unto the Book of my Commandments, which I have given them to publish unto you, oh inhabitants of the earth." Also in this preface, "Behold I am God, and have spoken it;

These commandments are of me." "Search these commandments, for they are true and faithful" The revelations were printed in the Book of Commandments correctly! This I know, and will prove it to you.

These revelations were arranged for publication by Bro. Joseph Smith, Sydney Rigdon, Orson Hyde and others, in Hiram, Ohio, while I was there; and were sent to Independence to be published, and were printed just exactly as they were arranged by Bro Joseph and the others. And when the Book of Commandments was printed, Joseph and the church received it as being printed correctly. This I know. But in the winter of 1834 they saw that some of the revelations in the Book of Commandments had to be changed, because the heads of the church had gone too far, and had done things in which they had already gone ahead of some of the former revelations. So the book of "Doctrine and Covenants" was printed in 1835, and some of the revelations changed and added to. By the providence of God I have preserved one of the old "Book of Commandments" published in 1833. I will prove by a revelation in it—which is changed in the Doctrine and Covenants—a revelation that was given through the "stone" and is true. I will prove that God called Bro. Joseph to translate the Book of Mormon only, and that he was not called to organize and establish the church any more than the rest of us Elders. That God commanded him that he should pretend to no other gift but to translate the Book of Mormon, that God would grant him no other gift. A few months after Joseph had finished translating, he gave the "stone" to Oliver, and told me and all of us that he was through except to preach the gospel; and he did not use the stone any more. After this, all the revelations came through Joseph as "mouth-piece," including the one of April 6th, 1830. (I speak in full on this hereafter).

I will also show by a revelation in the Book of Commandments—afterwards changed in the Doctrine and Covenants—that we were commanded to rely upon the Book of Mormon in building up the church; for "in it is all things written concerning my church, my gospel, and my rock. Wherefore, if you shall build up my church, my gospel, and my rock, the gates of hell shall not prevail against you." But they did not rely upon the Book of Mormon in building up the church; but Joseph "went on in the persuasions of men,"—(Sec. 2, D. and C.) as he did while translating, and heeded Rigdon who expounded the old scriptures to him and showed him that high priests and other offices should be added to "elders, priests and teachers;" and so we did not establish His (Christ's) church, His gospel, and His rock, so the gates of hell did prevail against the church, and it finally landed in Salt Lake in polygamy. I will also show you by a revelation in the Book of Commandments (afterwards changed in the Doctrine and Covenants) that we had no high priests, etc. in the beginning, as if God had organized his church at first with "elders, priests, and teachers," and after we had preached, baptized and confirmed many souls into the church, then God concluded he had not organized it right, and decided to put in high priests and other offices above an elder. No brethren—God does not change and work in any such manner. This is man's work. I will tell you many facts hereafter, things that I know and which will prove beyond a doubt that every spiritual office added to the church which is not according to the teachings of Christ to the "twelve" on this land, is the work of man, and not the work of God.

I want to say a few words here concerning this last revelation spoken of. I know the claims of some of the Latter Day Saints concerning it. It is section 17, in the Doctrine and Covenants. It is a revelation, you admit this fact. The Book of Commandments shows it is a revelation! This revelation was published in the "Evening and Morning Star" in 1832, before the Book of Commandments was published; and published in that paper as, "The Articles and Covenants of the Church of Christ, with a few items from other revelations." (Paragraphs 16 and 17 is the added part.) This revelation was received in June, 1830, and these two paragraphs were added in June, 1832, in that paper. The added part gives the duties of high priests and other officers that Bro. Joseph nor any of us ever thought of being in the church until Rigdon came in. The first high priests were ordained in June, 1831. Now I will explain why they did not print this revelation in the Book of Commandments in 1833, with these added parts in it. It is this: The heads of the church had not yet become sufficiently blinded to change a revelation that God had given in 1830, and print it changed in God's Book of Commandments in 1833. W. W. Phelps is the one who printed this revelation in that paper with the "items" added to it; but when the heads of the church changed the name of the church to "The Church of Latter Day Saints," (leaving out the name of "Christ" entirely as the first edition of Doctrine and Covenants shows), when they did this, and compiled the "Doctrine and Covenants" in 1835, God had then given them over to blindness of mind, and they could print this revelation and others changed and added to, with a clear conscience, as they did many other grievous things with a clear conscience after this, thinking they were all right. I have no doubt that Bro. Joseph thought his works up to the time of his repentance just before his death, were acceptable unto God. Poor Joseph! He was blinded and became ensnared by proud, ambitious men. I labored hard with him to get him to see it—from 1835—and God alone knows the grief and sorrow I have had over it. I have been told that Joseph repented just before he died. He is in the hands of a just God. If David did obtain salvation by repentance, so did Bro. Joseph.

I see that one of the brethren claims that the same power that gave these revelations, had authority to change them, and refers to Jer. 36: 32. By reading this passage you will see that the words which were added were "like words," words which conveyed the same meaning—were added to that book by Jeremiah when he was writing it over again, because it had been burned in the fire by the king. But the words added to the two former revelations are not "like words", as they change and reverse the original meaning: As if God had commanded Joseph to pretend to no other gift but to translate the Book of Mormon, that he would grant him no other gift, and then afterwards God had changed his mind and concluded to grant him another gift. I will quote that part of this revelation as it is in the Book of Commandments. (It is in sec. 4, D. & C., chapter 4, B. of C.) "And he (Joseph) has a gift to translate the Book, and I have commanded him that he shall pretend to no other gift, for I will grant him no other gift." But in the Doctrine and Covenants it has been changed and reads thus. "And you have a gift to translate the plates, and this is the first gift that I bestowed upon you, and I have commanded you that you should pretend to no other gift until my purpose is fulfilled in this; for I will garnt unto you no other gift until it is finished." May God have mercy on the heads of the church for their transgressions is my prayer.

This was the end of this part as I sent it to the Herald on December 9th. In the Herald of December 25th, they answer concerning these changes in some revelations, and I desire to say a few words. So you admit that these revelations were changed. You say, "In this public authoritative way, the church changed—corrected—some of the revelations found in the Book of Commandments, and put them in the Doctrine and Covenants as the correct ones;" and "God has the same right to authorize his appointed Seer to add to any of the revelations certain words and facts, that he has to give him any revelations at all." Brethren—don't you know that God does not change his mind and work in any such manner as this? Bro. Joseph did not receive any authority to change these revelations. It was man's work. This I know! Is it possible that the minds of men can be so blinded as to believe that God would give these revelations—command them to print them in His Book of Commandments—and then afterwards command them to change and add to them some words which change the meaning entirely? As if God had changed his mind entirely after giving his word? Is it possible that a man who pretends to any spirituality would believe that God would work in any such manner? God would not give Bro. Joseph a revelation commanding him, "that he shall pretend to no other gift, for I (the Lord) will grant him no other gift," (which means never), and then in a few years change his mind and conclude to grant him another gift? and authorize him to add those words to that revelation? Don't you know that God would not do this? Don't you know that it is man's work? God would not give his servants a revelation commanding them to rely upon the Book of Mormon alone in building up the church, "for in it is all things written concerning my church, my gospel, and my rock;" and then in 1834 inform that committee (who changed these revelations for the Doctrine and Covenants) that in the Book of Mormon is not all things written concerning my church, that in it is only written all things concerning "the foundation of" my church; that you must build up the church according as I give you new revelations, and new doctrines, and new offices, to be put in the church. God would not do this!

Brethren—is it possible that you can believe that God would do this? Do you suppose that God authorized them to add those words "the foundation of" to that revelation? Man added them—and all other changes and additions to the revelations as they are in the Book of Commandments is the work of men. Depend upon this! The heads of the church had gone away ahead of Christ's teachings to the "twelve" in the Book of Mormon, and had established high spiritual offices which are not even mentioned in the teachings of Christ to the "twelve;" so these revelations had to be changed. Many of the members objected seriously to these changes, and some left the church on account of it. Many of them did not want to say much at the time because it was Bro.

Joseph and the leaders who did it. The majority of the members—poor weak souls—thought that any thing Bro Joseph would do must be all right: And so in their blindness of heart, trusting in an arm of flesh, they looked over it and were led into error, and finally all talk about it ceased. Now my brethren, the Latter Day Saints, take heed to yourselves and go to God in prayer and in fasting, and be sure that you are not trusting in an arm of flesh. May God help you to look to him, and not to any man for the truth as it is in Christ. Rely upon the teachings of Christ in the New Testament, and New Covenant of the Book of Mormon, which come forth to us to settle all disputations about doctrine, then you can not be led into error by any man.

In the spirit of humility I want to add a few more words in reply to the Herald of January 1st. You say, "If that assembly of the leaders of the church made errors, what can one man or a few expect to receive?" Does a majority of men signify that they are right before God? Look at Mormon who stood alone against the whole church of Nephites and Lamanites, who had gone into errors and blindness. Look at Abinidi who stood alone against the whole church who had gone into error—and many other like instances. A majority signifies nothing.

I want to tell the brethren, that when the Doctrine and Covenants was published and presented to that assembly on that occasion, a very few of the brethren knew at that time about those "changes" in revelations concerning "Joseph's gift" and "to rely upon the Book of Mormon in building up the church," etc. In time it was generally found out, and the result was as I have stated. I want to state also that Oliver Cowdery told me that Rigdon was the cause of those changes being made: by smooth talk he convinced Joseph, Oliver, and F. G. Williams that it was all right. Oliver told me that he had sorely repented of that thing; and he repented of the other errors he had been led into by Rigdon and others. Bro. John Whitmer likewise. Thank God I can say that Bro. John and Bro. Oliver come out of their errors, repented of them, and died believing as I do to-day. I stand to-day just where I and the others stood in the early days of the church when the Bible and the Book of Mormon were the rule and guide to our faith.

In closing I desire to state that this is only a part of what I have to write to all believers in the Book of Mormon and the world. I will publish the whole of my epistle in a pamphlet for free distribution to all who write here for it. May God be with you, brethren, to guide you into the truth, is my prayer through the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Your brother in the faith of Christ,

DAVID WHITMER.

DECORATION DAY ADDRESS

BY COMRADE MARK H. FORSCUTT, OF THE THIRD CALIFORNIA INFANTRY.

THE snare-drum's resonant roll of the Reveille no longer summons our citizen-soldiers to rise at dawn of day, and defend our flag against an armed foe, no longer bids them hasten to repel a foreign invader, or perchance in the unnatural progress of "civil war," imbrue their hands in a brother's blood. The fifes shrill notes and the bugle's clarion tones no longer complement the snare-drum's rattle to order our citizen-soldiers to "the advance," or "retreat." That day is past. This day the nation mourns its dead—their slain. And yet, to-day, throughout a large portion of our national domain, at least, we hear those old familiar sounds again, and our tingling blood courses hurriedly through our veins, as in the olden time. To-day, we see the veterans of the once "Grand Army of the Republic" out on dress parade. In numbers they are decimated it is true; but not in courage, not in patriotism, not in the sterling qualities of manhood, only as age, in some, has abated natural force.

Still they are brave who wore the blue,
Still to their flag and country true,
A nation's grateful thanks their due.

Their "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching," is the rhythm of their motion as in the olden time. We witness it to-day as they march with measured tread to martial strains. In their soldierly deportment, in their unforgotten evolutions, in the manœuvre of their drill exercises, in their mutual exchanges of a comrade's grasp, in the fervor of their devotion to "the dear old flag," in their voluntary obedience to officers, commissioned and non-commissioned, who ride or march with them according to rank or arm of service, there is that that denotes mental discipline, and the intellectual submission of freemen, that the hireling soldiers of the despot, or the conscript soldiers of a Republic's necessity, never attain unto. Well too may it be so. Their officers are appointed without reference to their wishes or demands, appointed by some unknown and irresponsible power behind some inapproachable throne; but from volunteers like themselves, men too like themselves, men whom to know is to honor; men whom to serve is to love. Discipline, devotion, patriotism such as their's in rank and file, inspire us with the prophecy of Hope.

If ever hope an anchor was, hope is our anchor now,
Before such principle as their's we reverently bow;
The ships of state are anchored safe while such their anchors be,

God bless our brave defenders, whether on land or sea.

While patriots rule the land, and power retain

To "wield a pen," or rifle there

Shall not zeal be wanting, nor lure, nor gain

Inspire their courage; neither need despair

The Nation's heart assail;

Such patriots will avail,

In every hour of need,

With noble life and deed,

To bear aloft our banner, and wherever our children be,
Their song shall be "Hosanna, Columbia is free."

Even "Young America" is inspired with hope of valorous deeds to-day. What means their imitation of their seniors but this? Their attempt to march with stately step to music's measured bars, although their blunders bring smiles to older countenances, gives proof of this. Even the smaller boys bear in chubby hands their offerings for the soldier's and the sailor's graves. They catch the enthusiasm now, and by and by it shall be taught them that the flowers they carried symbolized love and reverence for the dead they knew not. And by home fireside, when the long winter evenings come, or in their rambles on summer's cheerful days, they yet shall learn from trembling lips of those that loved the patriot dead, the tales of heroism that, in the nation's future hour of need, they shall prove they heard not in vain. Keep alive the memory of heroism then, but teach the future heroes that animosity is not heroism.

There is another class the nation watches with tenderest feeling. And these are they who make this day the sweetest of the nation's holy days. They are mothers, and wives, and daughters, and sisters, and—gently be it spoken, for there are many such—the loving maidens whose troth was plighted to the victims of the war, their heroes in their sight before they gave them to their country, doubly heroes now, since their blood was spilled in that country's cause; maidens these for whose loyal, though wounded hearts, no Gilead's balm hath yet been found.

The dead. We meet to-day to discharge a duty towards them, a duty which a beautiful custom imposes on the living, and although this duty infringes somewhat of sorrow upon our joy, we will perform it in the spirit born of a grateful memory of the dead. The subject of favors is also the subject of gratitude or of those favors he is unworthy. Gratitude is not the heritage of dependency only, it is the concomitant, a mark of true nobility. Those by whose efforts and sacrifices the Nation has been preserved, are legitimately the subjects of the Nation's gratitude. Many of these are dead. Our annual ceremony of grave decoration will keep alive their memory among the living—let their memory perish not.

To the dead, this gratitude brings no cheer. Of its effect, if any, on the spirits that once animated the clay on whose grave covering we plant the flowers, we have learned nothing, and can affirm nothing. Their living comrades, the remnant of our once "Grand Army of the Republic," are leaders in this symbolic ceremony; to them the nation can not too early, too strongly, nor too often give substantial proofs of its gratitude, if done in justice, and done constitutionally.

And in the presence of the fact that nearly one-half of those who survive, who were the active agents by which our liberties were enlarged, and our nation purified, are sufferers still in consequence, what an encouragement is furnished by it, and by the further fact, although they are properly and justly the first objects of the Nation's gratitude, they are to-day, as the G. A. R., the leaders in this ceremony, and have been year by year since May 30th, 1868. Not quietly sit they down and say to the people, "Decorate ye our comrades' graves, and pension ye all of us from what they and we made possible to you;" but in the first vanguard in memory of the fallen, and last in the rear-guard, if danger be behind, worthy are they of the Washingtonian legacy—"first in war, first in peace."

About 300,000 of their comrades were slain in battle, and about 200,000 died from wounds received, and disease contracted, while in service. From the bosom of mother earth the memory of their sacrifices appeals to us, not for vengeance, but for a grand and harmonious union founded in unselfish patriotism. It is as the voice of a half million who emphasize the truth and philosophy of the Anointed One's utterance,—"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend."

True manliness forbids ungenerousness. They are incompatible. The true man, the humane man, the "whole man," is therefore always generous. And we have a fine opportunity now to display the generosity we commend. Probably as many or nearly so, have

Take their flight to the spheres unknown,
And their bodies are crumbling to dust, from the Confederate ranks as from the Union armies. However great the error, they who die in defence of what they conscientiously endorse, deserve the brave man's sympathy. We will drop the silent tear over the wrongs of the past, theirs and ours. They embarked with all they had on the new ship of state they had built; their vessel foundered, and sank to raise no more.

But man the life-boats, and gather them in,
Our noble vessel has weathered the gale,
Heaven had decreed that freemen should win;
For freedom is holy; but slavery sin;
Let your effort to save them avail.

In such a contest, their failure was inevitable. Let us prove to them and to the world that the graceful and delicate treatment of the truly great soldier, Gen. Lee, by our departed and glorious commander, the imperturbable and victorious Grant, when he received the former's surrender, was such as the Grand Army of the Republic is anxious to emulate whenever and wherever the blue and gray shall meet. His magnanimity is conceded; let us be worthy such a commander. Let the heraldic salutation of the angel hosts, at the early birth of the Prince of Peace, be ours, for them, and for all peoples, "peace on earth, good will to men."

Whatever the wrongs of the past or of the present, —and there are wrongs yet to be rectified, before our Nation rises to the exalted pinnacle of honor the finger of the world's Great Arbitrator points out to her,—her existence as a nation, is now an assured fact. She has come up through the fires, purified from one great evil and many minor ones, but not yet cleansed of all her dross. Nor can she be until her people shall have all been cleansed. Yet what she is, and as she is, she is ours. The fair portion of her vast domain that has the stars and stripes floating over it, and on which colleges, schools, churches, manufactories, and vast emporiums of a vaster trade, are rising, to challenge the learning, education, piety, skill, and commerce of the world, is ours to occupy. And to-day, as we look at these evidences of present and future growth and prosperity on the one hand, and on the other, as we look at the graves where we scatter the flowers, we should think of what one class suffered, while we contemplate, with deepest gratitude, what their suffering makes it possible for us to enjoy.

We should be humbled too. For while the blessings are ours that have not before been paralleled, while the wonderful growth that has exalted our land above the nations is unequalled, they are ours and our children's in perpetuity, only as we are faithful to the trust their possession involves. If we be recreant to God who gave them, they will depart as has departed all earthly glory before.

We meet to-day in the glowing beauty of May's last sunlight, under the pellucid sky of heaven. These are God's banner of love spread over us. Vast concourses meet elsewhere, in city, in town, in hamlet, and in grove. The same banner is over them. Let us obey its lesson, and cultivate Love's spirit. And is this not the spirit of this celebration? Is not the G. A. R. a national brotherhood of tried men?

Thanks be to God, a nation's sympathy is ours. Its thousands, and tens of thousands, meet with us at our encampments to-day. They follow us as we go forth from those encampments to the cities of the dead; they carry humble flowers themselves have reared, and those they have gathered from God's garden, to plant them or scatter them on the graves of the fallen warriors in whose blood is sealed the compact that perpetuates a nation's life, and in doing so they exemplify the sympathy which loving hearts have with loving deeds.

By the ceremony of Decoration Day, we cement more closely the present with the past. We become, to a certain extent, witnesses before men that America has learned three great lessons of humanity; 1st, That for our own heroic warriors who were swept off by war's carnage, and for those who suffered death by slower tortures, we have sweet remembrances, and national gratitude; 2d, That for the foe that fought us we have no longer hate; but kindly regard that springs from the reconciliation and brotherhood which have made us one; 3d, The lesson of to-day teaches us that patriotism is a virtue for which even the dead are honored by the living. And for such a nation as ours, how could it be otherwise?

The nation that preserved its own integrity, and yet kept its government from despotism and despotic measures, even amid war's austerities, and the necessary vigor of a stern military discipline:

The nation that recognizes and conserves the rights of its humblest citizens:

The nation that stands with open arms to welcome and shelter the oppressed of every other nation, and asks only rightful obedience to statutory law in return:

The nation that at the close of its great civil war again clothed with all the rights of participation in its legislature and in its government, the very men who involved them in that war, that pardoned all the leaders, even to the President of the Confederacy, although he in his dotage seems unworthy the clemency shown, if we judge him by his recent utterances. Magnanimity is the character of this nation.

The nation that proved itself great in war, greater in peace, especially in inventions and creative resources, but greater in the wisdom and humanity of its councils, where it has solved differences and oppositions through which older nations expected to see it ruptured and destroyed.

The nation that, composed of heterogeneous peoples, gathered out from every clime, admits them into its structure as integral parts, and there so completely absorbs them, so effectually remoulds them, that the land of their adoption completely displaces the land of their birth.

Such is our nation. A very giant is she, and yet continually increasing in all that makes a nation great. Combining differentials in unity, and yet preserving her own individuality; as a nation, she surpasses the historic great of other days. The heroes who died for her died not in vain; for before the struggle that cost their lives, great as she was, she was manacled, but she is now free. Find an American to-day wherever you will, in the orient or the occident, the arctic or the antarctic, if he be worthy his country, he is proud of America, proud of the "government by the people, for the people, and of the people," which he justly regards as the highest type of government by mortals, for mortals.

Wonder not then that we feel so tenderly for our slain; for they were Americans in fact or in intention. Many of these had friends abroad. Would that we could freight the winds, and make them our message bearers. We would then bid them go the friends of our slain, beneath whatever sky they dwell, and tell those friends how to-day a nation's sympathy is theirs, that this great nation weeps to-day with them for the manly forms they loved that lie beneath our sod, were ours as well as theirs, and tell them too that to-day America decorates the graves of their and its fallen with sweetest flowers, thus to honor the memory of our dead, and to symbolize our love, and trust, and hope.

Let us bear in memory that this day's exercises are no meaningless show. Its lessons are for us, for our children, for the millions who will yet leave the overcrowded cities and lands of the old world to assist us and our children, and our children's children, with their skill; to strengthen us by the augmentation of numbers, and of force; to contribute their part to make our nation the greatest and strongest, as it already is the most free, and therefore the best.

Comrades, patriots; our work is incomplete as yet. We have laid by the weapons of physical warfare; but we must buckle on the weapons of moral warfare, if not already panoplied therewith, and fight still, though another class of battles than those that were fought between the contending armies of our now united people. The surviving portion of the men who then so bravely fought with physical courage, should now be foremost to exemplify a higher courage still, moral courage, the courage of the soul. Though good in its place, physical courage alone is but animalism; man shares it with the brutes. And thanks be to God, in the display of this higher courage, those who fought against us then can fight with us now. Brave men who dared death at the cannon's mouth on both sides, must, or at least ought to unite now to free our country from the immoral and leprous army of vices that infest it, and make it pure as it is free.

In this battle we must unite, and fight shoulder to shoulder, man of the north and man of the south side by side, in the exalted ranks of the republic of right, and against the despotism of vice in every form. Nor must we take a furlough for a day. Let it not be said of us, that they whose valor secured the nation's manumission from slavery's chains themselves volunteered to become serfs to vice, or the tools of unholy purposes. Let the flowers with which we strew our comrades' graves, year by year, as truly represent the purity of our heart's intentions as they symbolize the undying love, higher than patriotism itself, that we bear to our comrades on the other side of Death's cold river.

But while we who served our country in the field, or wherever the fortunes of war or the orders of our superiors in rank placed us, congratulate each other and therefore ourselves on each recurring anniversary of this beautifully symbolic and suggestive ceremony, we should remember, and to-day will call attention to the millions of the "stay-at-homes," and to their part of the great conflict. In our congratulations, let us not forget the debt of gratitude we owe to their devotions.

The war has its philanthropic side. And in spite of the old adage that "statistics are dry stuff" there are some statistics of the war no old veteran should omit to learn, or, having learned, forget. Affection's dew and sympathy's tears made sacred the offerings of those who kept our firesides warm, who taught our children the value of the absent father's love, the father who had gone to the wars; who kept alive the altars when we were away; who provided the ten thousand comforts that brought memory's tear to the eyes and wiped it from the sunburned cheek of the wounded warrior; who supplied on the field what government could not furnish, and to the hospitals sent angel ministrants, in woman's garb, with such means of comfort and of cheer, such delicacies, and such helps in her gentle hands, as robbed suffering of half its pain, and brought grateful smiles to even the lips of the dying. These faithful guardians of our homes, and their noble and helpful acts of devotion, must not be forgotten.

By only the meagre statistics your speaker could gather from the records of a few of the northern states, he is yet able to present a too-oft forgotten historic fact, as an apology for his entreaty to the once citizen-soldier to remember him who was then the home-citizen. That fact is that $212,274,259.45 were subscribed and paid by States, by communities, and in individual donations, in aid of the cause for which the warrior fought. And as follows:

Contributions from States .....	$1,872,009,608.62
From Relief and Sanitary Commissions.....	24,044,865.96
From Foreign contributions.....	380,140.74
Especially for freedmen and white refugees .....	639,649.13

Total.....$212,274,259.45

Such magnanimity should neither be unrecognized, nor slighted. Neither do these figures cover all that private enterprise and affection supplied. I only could gather what was published and available to me.

And I feel assured that my brave comrades will approve a comrade's acknowledgement of such devotion as this they showed who took no active part in the prosecution of the war. I trust too that those who contributed so freely will, with equal freedom, acknowledge that however great their sacrifices were, they form no just comparison with the soldier's sacrifice. Human life and limbs are beyond all price. But as the soldier led and excelled in sacrifice, so let him lead and excel in the acknowledgment of the civilian's devotion.

It may be interesting to some to learn how the immense sum was divided. I will therefore summarize it.

Expended by States for equipment of troops .....	$ 10,987,323.59
Expended by State for bounties and extra pay .....	47,585,500.84
Contributed by corporations for recruiting purposes .....	34,230,000.00
Contributed for aid to wounded soldiers and sick .....	816,041.00
Contributed for aid to soldiers' families.....	79,595,743.19
Contributed by State and individuals for national defense .....	14,045,000.00
Contributed by State for soldiers and their families .....	24,044,865.96
Contributed by State for sufferers from abroad .....	380,140.74
Contributed by State for freedmen and white .....	639,644.13

When we recall the fact that the government expenses at one period were daily $3,500,000, and that the expenses of the last year of the war alone greater than the entire expenses of the government from Washington to Buchanan, we are prepared to learn that the above amounts, added to government expenditures, reached the aggregate of $6,402,204,168.03.

But we are both startled and encouraged when on learning that the total debt of the United States was on January 1st, 1886, only $2,750,000,000.00, we make thereby the discovery that there was paid during the time of fiery trial $3,652,204,168.13, or the aggregate of $902,204,168.03 more than the public debt remaining unpaid.

Was there ever such a manifestation of patriotism given by any nation? It is however in such public virtues as marked alike those that took the sword, and those who guarded the firesides of American homes during the war, that our national character appears to best advantage. Yet the vast sum aggregated by taxation and voluntary donations speaks well and loudly for the honor of our people, and the integrity of our nation. And yet vast as this sum this, it was raised by the North alone.

Now we have the South, the great South, rich in its varied resources, added to the section whence such proofs of devotion came. Great even in her humiliation, her future is a part of our own. In her acceptance of the issues of the war, considering the fact that the results of the war reversed the entire order of her people, and their very methods of life, she showed herself great. But when we witness the marvelous strides she has made since in agriculture, in increase of manufactures, and in commerce, we hail her fraternization with the North with gladness, and remember the incisive demand of our grand old comrade, "Let us have peace." That there are some there who are still rebels at heart, is a grief to her great majorities as to us. Loyalty will win the reward that is her due.

When to the North so great in her hour of trial, and so magnanimous in her triumphs, is added their rich and fertile South, and in such a spirit of growing union with us as is to-day manifest, notwithstanding the rapid utterances of the inane old man whose recent speech marks his dotage, and his soreness at defeat, who shall measure the future of our land, the glory of our commonwealth, the grandeur of a united people. If God be our friend, and if we be true to ourselves and to our high destiny, He will be, there can be no doubt that our developments will be such that it shall be the greatest boast of our sons and our daughters to say in future time, even more forcefully than now, and in every land, "I am an American."

Well did Daniel Webster, in a speech delivered in the Senate on the necessity of preserving the Union, say: "While the union lasts, we have high, exciting, gratifying prospects spread out before us, for us and our children. Beyond that I seek not to penetrate the veil."

"While the union lasts." What words of weighty import! Is our danger of disunion passed? That is as the nation wills. The past is the future's index. The light of one reflects or throws its shadow on the other. The Immortal Mind has so ordained. We sow first, or others sow, and then we reap. We have oft times extolled our fathers for virtues the possession of which was at least doubtful. Our spread-eagle orators have played upon the one string of "Our Union, one and indivisible," until we have grown weary of listening. There must first be right, then liberty, then union. There can be no true unity without freedom; there can be no true freedom unless it be founded in the right.

False schools of political economy have produced errors in public opinion. The false in politics must be supplanted by the true. Our people, with the franchise in their hands will determine our future. Let our voters be ignorant, and their freedom is the nation's curse, unless our politicians all be pure; for an ignorant people can be and are readily made the tools of the crafty. The only way to make our nation one that shall live on amid all the storms of statecraft, is to weigh its every act in the scales of justice. The only way to protect ourselves from becoming the prey of political adventurers, and cause our nation to rise unto and into its highest capabilities and powers, is to oust each Judas from office and teach each man and woman to recognize Truth as the basis, Reason as the guide, and Industry as the measure of their individual usefulness, as the groundwork of individual and national liberty.

Coleridge, the poet, possessed considerable philosophic acuteness, it has been argued, when, in referring to what in his time constituted the American States, he regarded them "as splendid masses to be used by and by in the composition of two or three great governments," and but for the blessing of the great Ruler above, who "raiseth up one nation and pulleth down another," the patriotism that sustained them, and the noble "army of the brave and the free" whose fallen ones we to-day commemorate, his philosophy might have crystallized into fact.

There was an irrepressible conflict between freedom and slavery. A brave people advocated the one; a "chivalric" people the other. One of these peoples thought that the confederation of "American States" had then fulfilled its destiny; the other claimed their continuity and unbroken integrity. One advocated nullification; the other unity only, finally, unification.

That conflict which made this day—our Decoration Day—possible, was the harvest of seed-times many. Before the Mayflower set sail, principles had been imbibed by those who were destined to occupy it, that found their culmination in the stern and unyielding love of liberty which nerved the arm to battle, and down through each decade since the organization of the American government, have been men who foresaw the inevitable conflict between these incongruent elements. That woe is past; but there are others to come, in which the North and South, we trust, will act together, now and hereafter, a united band of freemen who will not rest till in every quarter of our broad land there shall be found prosperity, fraternity, progress. Till there shall neither be vice in gilded palaces, nor licenses issued for sin and shame to appear with brazen effrontery; but when righteousness and peace shall be the heritage of our entire people.

Then will all men perceive that the Grand Army of the Republic are not keeping this day for the purpose of vainglorious display, as some selfish cynics have charged; then will all agree with your speaker's declaration of their purpose, that it is to commemorate and preserve alike the memory of the Nation's dead, and to impress on the rising generation the importance, the necessity of a virtuous, an undying, a valorous patriotism. And does not this day, so solemnly set apart,—and do not the exercises of this day, so figuratively and sweetly significant of all that is sacred in patriotism, holy in memory, and hopeful in prospect, recall that past and stimulate to highest effort for the future? Let us examine.

Here are children, maidens, youths, the newly married, matrons and fathers, and grandparents, assembled together. Do not these innocent children, though their noise may disturb, remind our warriors, as they listen to their prattle, and their young mothers who look so lovingly upon them, do not they remind them too of the babes and mothers of their households, whom they left behind with sobs that choked their manly utterances at the bidding of their country, and—speak it softly—do they not bring to memory the comrades who went with them, but returned not; whom they left in their gore buried under the southern sod? Do they not recall the memory of broken hearts of those comrades' widows, who sleep beneath our cemetery's sod? To-day these veterans answer this as they silently drop the tear-stained flowers on their comrades and those widows' graves.

Do not these matrons remind them of aged mothers they left behind, and saw no more? Of mothers whom brothers left, two or three from one household, but to whom but one returned to tell those mothers with their quaking lips, of perhaps unknown to them but not dishonored graves, where her other sons sleep? Perhaps they saw not even a brother's burial; but comrades told them they were buried in the trenches in the hurry of the night, and between the sad, dark hours of the two-days' fight; and as they heard, the thought pressed home, "it may be I will join them on the morrow." Of them as of the burial of Sir John Moore, it may have been said:

"Few and short were the prayers we said,
And we spoke not a word of sorrow;
But we steadfastly gazed on the face of the dead,
And we bitterly thought of the morrow."

Yes, these memories are sacred to the past indeed. That loving mother before me now, whose hand rests on her little son's head as it lies upon her mother lap, and who now so caressingly toys with his curling locks, is the type of many these veterans saw in the years gone by. Some of them too see the type of their own therein, and they remember, but without bitterness now, thank God, how then the tears first glistened in their eyes as they arose to depart from them, how next those tears fell like rain, and lastly, how as they blinded sight from view of wife and babe, their bosoms surged and swelled, till they were compelled to rush from home, then indeed more sacredly "Home, sweet home," than it had ever been before. They remember too how they hurriedly joined the many like affected, and under orders at once they marched for the war. A Nation's thanks, comrades. Your valor saved for us the glorious patrimony of our country's fathers, a nation one and undivided, great in its strength, grand in its principles, but glorious only in its union of freedom and equality in the right.

Blame not these warriors of the past, if even now the tear unbidden starts as memory recalls the past, for these warriors are men; and as men they are not merely animals, but men humanly so. The mere animal may know nothing of emotion. But it was the glorious union of head and heart, conviction and sentiment, that made possible the success of our army and navy in the great struggle; hence the rich humanity of our forces, to whom the nation owes so much.

But as I have said that this Memorial Day teaches our children a lesson, I must try and tell them why amid this holiday brightness, they have witnessed the falling tears. And I can not do so better than by relating the circumstances I witnessed on a previous Memorial Day, and narrating the conversation between an aged grandmother and a little boy. Her story will explain the cause of her tears, and as she is but one of thousands, and her case similar to theirs, without in the least overdrawing the picture, I can make these bright-eyed children of our schools understand.

In the front part of the audience that listened to an eloquent orator whose pathos touched many, there sat an aged matron. Her tears fell upon the flowers that lay in her lap, and her sigh came up from her heart. Her little grandson sat by her, and looked the picture of sadness to see the tears suffuse the face he loved. He looked at her and pleadingly said, "Don't weep grandma!" I listened, and my eyes gathered moisture too as I heard her response. It was, in substance, this:

"Ah! my grandson. I was thinking of the time when your father was a child, and of others then with him, who are now asleep in Death's embrace. I remember how your father looked forward to the future. He was the youngest of three, my darling, my pride. Before he was yet fully a man, his brother married, and the cruel war came. Then came my sorrow. Grandpa and your unmarried uncle enlisted. Shortly afterwards, your father enlisted too. Your father returned, but he alone of the three. His father and one of my sons lie buried beneath the southern sod. I never saw them again. Do you wonder that your grandma weeps? To-day I must plant these flowers. I have carefully grown them for this purpose; and I must also strew those that you and I have gathered upon the graves of soldiers buried here—perhaps on the graves of some we never knew. But the soldier's grave is sanctified to me by the precious blood of my husband and my son, our dead. Perhaps some soldier who wore the blue or the gray—for we are one people now—perhaps some one of them will plant some flowers on the graves of those I loved so well, and to whom, if God will, I hope soon to go. They await me where wars and death shall come no more to separate us. There 'Grandma' will weep no more. They died true to their country; true to me, and their memory makes me weep."

The thought and experience of this aged matron is well expressed by a stanza written by one present to-day, and it was with the spirit therein expressed we performed our pilgrimage to the cemetery this afternoon.

"In honor of our patriots, of the warrior-dead, away,
Improve the present hours, softly and gently tread,
Gather symbolic flowers, plant them over the dead.
Let the Cypress and the Ivy, the Violet Phlox, and Yew, Adorn the graves of heroes that wore the Northern blue.
Let th' Star of Bethlehem, Locust, and Asphodel, to-day,
Be planted o'er the foemen brave that wore the Southern gray,
Omit, not one, death levels all; to the sacred task, Away.

Miscellaneous.

GENERAL CONFERENCE AT KIRTLAND.

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned committee of arrangements, that the following details have been arranged for the accommodation of delegates and visitors to the coming April Conference at Kirtland, Ohio:

1st. After a canvass of the neighborhood, we are able to announce that boarding and lodging will be furnished at a uniform rate of $4. per week to all in attendance.

2d. To answer the inquiries of some, the committee desire to state that they have not been able to make any other arrangements than the foregoing, and therefore can not furnish room accommodations for those who intended to board themselves by bringing their own provisions.

3d. The town of Kirtland being situated three miles distant from Willoughby, Ohio, (the nearest Railroad station), conveyances will be in readiness to take passengers to Kirtland at twenty-five cents each.

4th. Some of the committee will be at Willoughby Station at the arrival of trains, and will wear red badges to distinguish them.

Those coming from the west should take the accommodation trains on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroad at Cleveland, for Willoughby, Ohio.

Those coming from the east by that route, should take the accommodation trains at Painesville, Ohio, for the same place, as all trains do not stop at Willoughby. Trains leave Cleveland for Willoughby at 10:45 a. m. and 4:25 p. m. central standard time; passengers should purchase round trip tickets between those points.

Ample provision will be made to entertain as many as may be disposed to attend the conference; but in order that the committee may be aided in their preparations, it is desired that those who expect to be present will so notify them by card, at once, in order that an estimate may be made of the number to be accommodated. Please favor us by a prompt attention to this request.

Respectfully, W. H. Kelley, G. T. Griffiths, John Gillespie, Leonard Holdman, R. S. Salyards, Committee.

Address R. S. Salyards, secretary of committee, Kirtland, Ohio.

FOURTH QUORUM OF ELDERS.

Brethren of the Fourth Quorum of Elders. I am very anxious to hear from each one of you by the first of March so I can be ready for conference. I am looking for a good report this year from all. Do not delay in reporting; tell us how you feel in the good work. In connection with my fellow-laborers I have been trying to do some good, in the true way of eternal life. The more I go, the more I see and feel our duty to do all we can for those in darkness. My soul is moved for them. I feel deeply concerned in the welfare of my neighbors.

Your brother in Christ,
J. D. FLANDERS,
Pres. of Quo.

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo., Jan. 21st, 1887.

FIRST QUORUM OF PRIESTS.

As our Annual Conference is near and it is our duty to report what we have done, I hereby request all members of the First Quorum of Priests to write me, giving their full postoffice address. Those who want license, give items of birth, ordination, and enclose a stamp, and I will send them a blank report which they can fill out and send to Bro. Chas. P. Faul, secretary, Stewartsville, Missouri, not later than the 15th of March.

J. B. GOULDSMITH,
Pres. First Quorum of Priests.

TENT QUESTION.

Shall the North-West Kansas District have one, or shall we drop the matter, and conclude we don't need it? I am of the same opinion I was when the matter started, that a tent would be a great auxiliary in opening new places in towns and villages, especially; but I have said my piece, have canvassed the district, as faithfully as I could and obtained a subscription list of $55, or near that amount. The treasurer of the committee (G. W. Shute) informed me that there had been only $30, or $35 paid in. A tent 30x60 twelve ounce duck will cost $108. We could get one for $90 large enough for this district. But the question is, will we get it? The east part of the district thinks we don't need it, (as a majority). Let us hear from each branch what they want to do; whether they want to continue a committee and let them solicit aid until they get sufficient, or turn the moneys collected over to the Bishop's Agent. Let each branch act and so report to next district conference, which convenes at Goshen, March 5th, at ten a. m. We hope to hear, also, from all who do not belong to branches. Send in your reports to H. R. HARDER, Clay Center, Kansas. A. H. PARSONS, Dist. Pres.

WEIGHED IN THE BALANCE.

It will be seen that Elder David Whitmer, the surviving witness to the visitation of the angel that bore witness to the Book of Mormon, has at last put himself upon record, so far as the letters and epistle published by us last week can do. It will be further seen that he and his nephew, J. C. Whitmer, misconstrue the articles published in the HERALD, in which the name of the aged elder appears, to be dictated by a fear that members of the Reorganized Church may fall in with the Elders Whitmer and their brethren and leave the Reorganized Church. So far as the HERALD is concerned there is no such fear, and the insertion of the articles, and the statements of the editorials referred to by both David and John C. Whitmer, were not dictated nor inserted because of any such fear. Every member of the Reorganized Church came into such church upon his own volition and desire; the privilege to go out of such church remains with every member still, to do so either by reason of change of opinion and sentiment, or because the prescribed rules of conduct do not please. There is no disposition upon the part of the Editors to enforce the retention of a member against his desire; much as they would dislike to see any one go out. We believe the Reorganized Church to be the Church of Christ, known and acknowledged of God; hence, dislike to see any one change opinion in this respect; but the teaching, "let every man be persuaded in his own mind," has been too fairly and fully tested by us for us to wish to restrain any one who may have become persuaded adversely to the church.

Elder Whitmer starts out with expressing the desire that he be not judged hastily, and deprecates the attacks which he says have been made upon him, as attacks upon an innocent man; yet he himself judges and imputes an improper motive to those who have written respecting him in two particulars; one, ascribing to the Editors of the HERALD the fear that some may leave the Reorganization if he be allowed a hearing; the other, that it is an attempt to destroy the influence of the remaining witness to the Book of Mormon.

So far is this from being correct that the Editor of the HERALD has given Elders David and John C. Whitmer both to understand that it was desirable that if David, the venerable witness to the Book of Mormon, chose to go before the believers in the Book of Mormon, and the world, in a written epistle, the greatest care should be observed in what that epistle should contain; because that it was the belief of the Editor that if a certain line of policy, teaching and argumentation was pursued, it would tend to throw discredit upon the testimony already borne to the divinity of that book. The Editor, also, has stated that he would dislike to see the character of that testimony injured in any degree. In this view both editors of the HERALD are agreed. The reason for this is obvious; all classes of believers in Mormonism, or the doctrines of what is familiarly known as the latter day work, are interested alike in maintaining the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon, and the stated manner of its coming to light; hence, all these would be very loth to know that the last surviving witness to whom the angel-messsage of the divinity of the book came should do, or say what might be construed to weaken or destroy confidence in the integrity of that witness, or vitiate the evidence given.

But, Elder David Whitmer having chosen his method of presenting his claims and views, he must be content with the methods of examination men may adopt to satisfy themselves of the nature of those views and claims; especially, Latter Day Saints.

We have given Elder Whitmer's answers to certain editorial remarks and the articles of J. J. S. to the readers of the HERALD, purposely without comment or remark in the same HERALD, in order that what he may have written should appear upon its merit, to meet the individual trial to which it will be subjected. It is proposed to examine that article in a general way at once, and subsequently to give it notice in its several and various parts.

Elder Whitmer states that he "was called out to hold the authority."

The force of this statement is that all others who may have held authority during the establishing of the church at its organization and prior to his being so-called out, had forfeited the authority which had been conferred upon them, and he alone retained it.

This occurred, as Elder Whitmer states, at "Far West, in June 1838." From this, if true in effect, there was thence forward no authority, except what Elder Whitmer held; and all the work done by his former co-workers subsequent to that date is void.

To account for his long period of inactivity, Elder David Whitmer states:

"God only—knows how I have grieved and suffered and plead with him for you for the past forty-eight years; that you might repent and be enlightened by the Holy Ghost to see the errors into which you have been led. To God belongs the mystery of his dealings with his people: He is allwise, and his ways are not man's ways. Mormon stood alone for many years, when the Nephites and Lamanites had every one gone into error and transgression. He stood alone holding the authority."

The inference to be drawn from this, can be nothing less than that as Mormon so "stood alone," so has Elder Whitmer stood alone "holding the authority" for "forty-eight years." If it be conceded that Elder David Whitmer withdrew from the Church, organized April, 1830, it must be held that whatever authority he may have held conjointly with others, ordained in that church from 1830 to June, 1838, he then and there laid down and voluntarily surrendered by so withdrawing.

In this connection Elder Whitmer states that "all the eight witnesses who were then living, (except the three Smiths) withdrew." Of the eight there were living at the time, as we understand, John Whitmer, Jacob Whitmer, Hiram Page, Joseph Smith, Sen., Hyrum Smith and Samuel H. Smith; Christian and Peter Whitmer Jr. being dead. Therefore the "all of the eight" referred to can only mean Jacob and John Whitmer and Hiram Page, just half of the survivors, the other half remaining with the church, and forming with Christian and Peter Whitmer, deceased, the majority of all. Of one of these, John Whitmer, the following statement concerning the Book of Covenants, taken from an editorial in the Messenger and Advocate, for March, 1836, published by F. G. Williams & Co., and of which John Whitmer was himself the editor at the time, will explain where he stood at that date. * * "I know that the Bible, Book of Mormon and Book of Doctrine and Covenants of the Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints, contain the revealed will of heaven."

The Book of Covenants had been printed at that date and was on sale at the office of the Messenger and Advocate, of which paper John Whitmer assumed the editorship June, 1835, and relinquished it March, 1836, his valedictory of that date being the article from which the foregoing extract is taken. Oliver Cowdery, one of the three witnesses succeeded him.

In the June number of the same paper, published under the control of Elder O. Cowdery, then proprietor as well as editor, there appears a list of the names of "Ministers of the gospel, belonging to the Church of Latter Day Saints, whose licences were recorded, the preceding quarter, in the License Records, in Kirtland, Ohio." This list is dated June 3d, 1836, and is signed by "Thomas Burdick, recording clerk." Among the names are the following: Peter Whitmer, John Whitmer and David Whitmer. At this time the Book of Doctrine and Covenants had been printed under the direct supervision of the publishers of the Messenger and Advocate, John Whitmer, Editor. On August 17th, 1835, W. W. Phelps, the man who printed the Book of Commandments in 1833, first bore record that the Book of Doctrine and Covenants was true, and then presented it to an assembly of the church for their action. "President John Whitmer, also arose and testified that it was true." The committee, to whom the book had been entrusted for compilation, and whose work the assembly had been called to consider, were Joseph Smith, Jr., Oliver Cowdery, Sidney Rigdon and Frederick G. Williams; and the minutes as published in Messenger and Advocate, for August, 1835, are signed by Oliver Cowdery and Sidney Rigdon, Presidents, and Thomas Burdick, Warren Parrish and Sylvester Smith clerks. This Assembly was organized and presided over by Oliver Cowdery and Sidney Rigdon; and the committee whose work was then presented for examination, acceptance, or rejection, had been appointed by a similar assembly held September 24th, 1834. Their work was not done in haste, nor in the dark; and whatever may be said in reference to the credence to be given to the statement of Elder David Whitmer, when he states "I know" certain things in regard to the revelations in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; the testimony of Oliver Cowdery, made at the time of the acceptance of the book, is as clear, and emphatic as Elder Whitmer's, who had nothing to do with either this or the Book of Commandments; and if David Whitmer comes now at this late date to ask the Latter Day Saints to accept what he now states, because they value his testimony concerning the Book of Mormon; we have but to enquire, why should we not value the testimony of Oliver Cowdery, a man equally endowed with character and good reputation as David Whitmer, when by moral countenance and public act he sets too his seal that the Book of Covenants, published and accepted by that Assembly, "is true and contains the revealed will of heaven." The testimony of John Whitmer given at the same time, publicly, confirms the testimony of Oliver Cowdery, and agrees with that borne by John Whitmer in March, 1836. John Smith, Levi Jackman, N. K. Whitney, John Corroll, John Gould, Ira Ames, Erastus Babbitt, Wm. Burgess, Thomas Gates, severally testified that the book was true; the Twelve also as a body testified in writing that the "commandments were given by inspiration of God; and are profitable for all men, and are verily true." These men, all officers in the church from Presidents, and Twelve, to Deacons, with the entire Assembly, accepted, the book as the "doctrine and covenants" of their faith, by an "unanimous vote. After this was accomplished, the two articles, one on Marriage, the other on Governments, as the same appear in the Doctrine and Covenants, were separately presented, read, "accepted and adopted," and ordered printed in the book.

We have been thus particular on this point, because Elder David Whitmer now asks us, and all the believers in the Book of Mormon, who accept his testimony in regard to that book, to set aside the Book of Doctrine and Covenants with the things therein contained, and do this for the reason that he says, "I know" that they were "of men" and not "of God;" and because he says, "I know" that some of the revelations were changed. He asks us to now throw away as unworthy of credence the testimony of Oliver Cowdery, John Whitmer, and others whom we have named, publicly and solemnly given at the very time when the articles which they assert to be true were fresh and placed before them for their deliberate and solemn asseveration, for or against, and listen to him whose name was enrolled and recorded in association with these men then and for months afterwards, under the rules and church polity provided for in that book of Doctrine and Covenants. He asks us to accept his theory and testimony in regard to these things after forty-eight years have passed, during which time he has been standing aloof from the active work of bearing the Book of Mormon forth among men, leaving that work to others who have not shrunk from the duty, but have nobly taken up the gage of battle, and have declared their faith, and borne the contumely and scorn that have followed the avowal of belief in and advocacy of the book. He asks us, virtually, to accept his opinion, judgment and testimony to the discredit and impeachment of Joseph Smith, Sen., Hyrum and Samuel Smith, Oliver Cowdery, Sidney Rigdon, F. G. Williams, W. W. Phelps and others, respecting the Doctrine and Covenants. This must certainly affect the testimony of Oliver Cowdery as a fellow witness to the Book of Mormon, if we believe Elder Whitmer. For Oliver Cowdery was one of four who compiled the Doctrine and Covenants; he was one of the organizers of the assembly of August 17th, 1835, and with Sidney Rigdon, presided over that body, and is thus twice compromised in testimony concerning that work. Now if David Whitmer's statements are to be taken then Oliver Cowdery's testimony must be set aside; and if it was false in one regard, does it not throw suspicion upon what he may have stated in others, the Book of Mormon included. Not only this, but it will throw such a burden of distrust on all those men that were engaged in the work at that time, and who remained with the church, and whose testimony is upon record, that it must react upon David Whitmer himself. Again, in order to make an argument to support the charge of corrupt dealing in regard to the revelations, Elder Whitmer assumes what is not claimed for section 17 in Doctrine and Covenants by the book itself, that it is a revelation in its entirety, and that those who accepted that portion which Elder Whitmer now charges was an interpolation by man, did so through the deceptive persuasion of designing men who were craftily seeking to introduce errors to suit their human notions of religion and church organization; that if it was a revelation, that it was first published by W. W. Phelps in the Book of Commandments in 1833; that it was then published as it was given originally, and that paragraphs 16 and 17 were the interpolated parts, etc. It ought to be known to Elder Whitmer that the work of printing the Book of Commandments was not completed, and that the book was not finished and presented to the church; that the printing office at Independence was destroyed, the forms "pied," type, paper and material scattered, including the sheets of the Book of Commandments so far as printed, and the further printing of it prevented; that during this period the discovery referred to by Oliver Cowdery, and presented by us was made by Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, F. G. Williams and W. W. Phelps and others, and the errors corrected from the originals, and that correction endorsed by the entire church. The men who had the original manuscripts of the revelations in charge, and those who had access to them were better prepared to state what the facts in regard to the transaction were, than Elder David Whitmer could then have been or is now. We have in our possession a copy of the Book of Commandments, on the fly leaf of which appears an entry that it was presented to Zeruah N. Roby by her friend Nancy Carroll, February 4th, 1839, at Far West; and on a leaf at the back an entry of "S. H. Goddard and Z. N. Roby were married September 11th, 1839," in ink almost faded out. The last lines at the bottom of page 160, the last page in the book, are, "For verily I say that the rebellious are not of the blood of Ephraim." We have also a few forms of the same Book of Commandments, secured by Elder Wm. Perry, an old Kirtland Saint, lately living at Stewartsville, Missouri, and bound in a pasteboard cover to secure them, which sheets were picked up from the debris thrown from the printing office when destroyed July 20th, 1833. We think we run no risk in requesting the production of a completed copy of the Book of Commandments, of which so much has been said. The date of the last revelation in the book we have is September, 1831. The heading of the chapter representing the 17th section, states that it is the "articles and covenants of the Church of Christ."

Elder Whitmer, in defence of his statement that he is the remaining savor of life unto latter day Israel, refers to the ease with which a whole people may go astray, and in doing so almost, if not quite carries the inference that the very fact of a majority being in favor of the policy pursued by the Church of Christ, is tantamount to their being in transgression. "A majority signifies nothing," says he. He should read the Book of Mormon, to which he calls our attention as being the sole standard in the doctrine and organization of the church more closely before he goes too far: "Now it is not common that the voice of the people desireth anything contrary to that which is right; but it is common for the lesser part of the people to desire that which is not right."—Mosiah 13: 3. (See also Alma 1: 7, and 2: 5.)

The 17th section of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, as it appears in the edition of 1835, and subsequent editions, was published in the first number of the Evening and Morning Star, published at Independence, Jackson county, Missouri, June 1832, as reprinted at Kirtland, Ohio, by F. G. Williams & Co.; O. Cowdery, editor. There are twenty-six paragraphs in it, corresponding with those numbered in Doctrine and Covenants. It was the second section in the issue of 1835.

In the reprint of the Evening and Morning Star, at Kirtland, Ohio, Vol. 1, No. 1, p. 16, the publisher gives the statement that: "On the revelations we merely say, that we were not a little surprised to find the previous print so different from the original. We have given them a careful comparison, assisted by individuals whose known integrity and ability are uncensurable. Thus saying, we cast no reflections upon those who were entrusted with the responsibility of publishing them in Missouri, as our own labors were included in that important service to the church, and it was our unceasing endeavor to have them correspond with the copy furnished. We believe they are now correct. If not in every word, at least in principle. For the special good of the church we have also added a few items from other revelations."—[Editor of the Messenger and Advocate]. This Editor was Oliver Cowdery. At the close of Vol. 2, No. 24, p. 384, Oliver Cowdery again states: "It is also proper for us to say, that in the first fourteen numbers in the revelations are many errors, typographical, and others, occasioned by transcribing manuscript, but as we shall have access to originals, we shall endeavor to make proper corrections."

The first fourteen numbers of the Evening and Morning Star, were printed at Independence, Missouri, and edited by W. W. Phelps; the rest of the second volume was printed at Kirtland, and merged into the Messenger and Advocate. Here a question is suggested; Is it not more reasonable to believe that Oliver Cowdery and F. G. Williams, one the publisher, the other the Editor of the Messenger and Advocate, and both members of the committee to whom the work of compiling and arranging the revelations and church articles and covenants for publication was assigned, knew more about the matters entrusted to them than David Whitmer, who was neither publisher, editor, nor committee man? We think so, decidedly. It is also just to the men so freely impeached by Elder Whitmer, to believe that at the time they were engaged in that work which he asks us to set aside, they were sincerely religious, honest and conscientious, and careful to preserve the word of God coming to them free from change and distortion. To believe what Elder David Whitmer now asks us to, is to throw the cruellest suspicion upon those men, to discredit their characters for probity, integrity and moral honesty; to disregard their statements made at the time, and to accept the honor, virtue, integrity and truthfulness of Elder David Whitmer as transcendentally above and beyond his compeers. This we can not do without doing grave violence to the work which we believe to be of God; and we write this with the fullest confidence that the testimony of Martin Harris, Oliver Cowdery and David Whitmer to the Book of Mormon was and is true. It is almost beyond credence that any man can be so forgetful of the past, so unmindful of the commonest rules that govern evidence and its acceptance by men of ordinary prudence as to ask such a thing. Especially, when the same man asserts that the leading men of the church, "the heads of the church," had "gone into transgression" and become so corrupt that he alone was worthy to remain to "hold the authority."

In reference to what Elder J. C. Whitmer states respecting the opinion held by Joseph and Alexander Smith, regarding Elder David Whitmer, these men will speak for themselves; nor is it competent for John C. Whitmer to create favor for what his uncle David might have in store to state, by producing a prejudice in its favor through the expressed good opinion of the sons of Joseph Smith, whose life work was to be marred in a measure by those statements. The opinions expressed by Joseph Smith respecting Elder David Whitmer's honesty and integrity, have all been made with reference and in connection with his testimony to the Book of Mormon, the faithfulness with which he has maintained it, and the care he has taken of the manuscript copy of that book during the time he has been the custodian of it. But this good opinion is not of such a character that it will be made to endorse statements and testimony offered by Elder Whitmer which throw discredit upon, and contradict the testimony and statements of other men considered by Joseph Smith to be equally reliable and honest, and who were in condition to be more conversant with the subject of which they testify than was he. David Whitmer states:

"I knew your father, Joseph, much better than you knew him, and much better than any man living."

This will be news to many; and of it we only say, that what we knew of Joseph Smith, our father, does not warrant the statement of Elder Whitmer that he was dominated and led into error by Sidney Rigdon. Those who were with him from 1830 to 1844, of equal intelligence with Elder Whitmer would be better judges of the character and work of Joseph Smith than one with him only until 1838.

It is proper to state that while very grateful to Elder David Whitmer for so kindly expressing the desire that we would "go to God in prayer and fasting, and find out by the power of the Holy Ghost by what spirit" he speaks, we have gone to God for direction, from 1853 to the present; and the evidence received by us does not support the conclusions drawn by Elder Whitmer.

Elder Whitmer impeaches the statements of some from whose writings certain things have been taken upon the ground that the persons wrote from hearsay; the rule may with justice be applied to his own statements concerning some important items.

Elder David Whitmer seems to think that Lucy Smith did not write from knowledge, but from hearsay. Lucy Smith was the mother of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and with her husband, was with her sons and the church from the finding of the plates to the end of their respective lives. She dictated the matter in her history of Joseph Smith and his Progenitors, in her own person; her amanuensis was Mrs. Howard Corey, and the history was written while Mother Smith was yet in the possession of her faculties. Whether she was wrong in statement we do not know, as the matters of which the history treats were not known to us at the time of their occurring. She was with the church all the time, however, and must have had some opportunity to know something of what took place. Elder Whitmer disposes of the whole matter by stating "the whole of these things from first to last are entirely false, and Satan is at the foundation of them all." This is an easy way to dispose of what another may say; and yet Elder Whitmer asks us to believe and accept a revelation given by him from memory which was never printed. If it should so happen that Elder Whitmer's memory of other things is shown not to be accurate, what effect will it have on this.

Elder Whitmer says: "I do not mean to judge or condemn the Latter Day Saints," in the opening of his epistle; and that he "will speak the truth as the Spirit of God moves upon me [him] to speak it." Also, that he does not "mean to persecute Joseph the translator of the Book of Mormon."

Immediately after making this statement Elder Whitmer proceeds to state that the Latter Day Saints believe in certain doctrines which he calls new, and asserts that the reason why they believe these doctrines is, "Because they are putting too much trust in man." It is very striking that Elder Whitmer should state that he proposes not to judge the Latter Day Saints, and almost before the ink is dry upon the words thus written, should charge them with believing false doctrines because they were putting their trust in man. It is also peculiar that he should charge this same people with putting too much trust in man, (evidently meaning Joseph Smith the Seer, whom Elder Whitmer says he loves), and then turns to the same men whom he thus charges with the error of putting their trust in man and asks them to shift the trust hitherto reposed in Joseph Smith to David Whitmer; making his appeal thus:

"Then let no man judge hastily as to my authority, lest he judge wrongly and continue in error; but go to God in prayer and fasting, and find out the truth, for the Holy Ghost will guide you into all truth. If you believe my testimony to the Book of Mormon: if you believe that God spake to us three witnesses by his own voice; THEN I TELL YOU THAT IN JUNE, 1838, God spake to me again by his own voice from the heavens, and told me to separate myself from among the Latter Day Saints, for as they sought to do unto me, so should it be done unto them"

All of the foregoing quotation is italicised in Elder Whitmer's epistle, except the words "then I tell you that in June, 1838," which we put in small caps to mark it. Here the appeal is: If you believe that I, David Whitmer, testified truly when I bore witness to the angel's visit and his message, then believe me now when I ask you to believe what I now state that the "heads of the church and many members had gone deep into error and blindness." This is tantamount to saying that all these men, Joseph Smith in particular, are the ones you have put your trust in, and these were so overcome with error and blindness that they were no longer acknowledged of God. Now, therefore, I ask you to no longer trust in those men, but put your trust in me, for "I was called out to hold the authority." This may seem harsh, but what other meaning can be drawn from the statements made.

Elder Whitmer proceeds to state in the same paragraph in which he thus appeals to the Latter Day Saints to accept what he says in preference to what Joseph and others have told them, that there was a secret organization formed in June, 1838. He does not state where this organization was formed, whether in Ohio or Missouri, but takes care to state by implication that it was done at the instigation and knowledge of the heads of the church. He also alleges that the persecutions which he says that he endured were "for trying to show them their errors," and that because of these persecutions he "had to leave the Latter Day Saints." He artfully leaves the matter in such shape that the reader is left to infer that Joseph, Hyrum Smith, and others were the responsible parties for the existence of "Dr. Avard's secret band." To do this he states that he sees "from a letter written by the heads of the church while they were in Liberty jail, that they repented of having anything to do with this secret organization, and came out against Dr. Avard, declaring it all wickedness."

If Elder Whitmer was not a member of that secret band, and we give him credit for not being one, he is not competent to state what the band was for, who were in it, or who originated it. Elder Whitmer has persistently asked that nothing shall be taken against him obtained from hearsay; and yet he, by implication, here charges the heads of the church, (and this must mean Joseph and Hyrum Smith, O. Cowdery, Sidney Rigdon, and possibly the Twelve), with originating and being culpably guilty of organizing a secret band, who were bound by oath "to support the heads of the church in every thing they should teach." Further than this, he leaves the inference that all who were not members, or "refused to take this oath were considered dissenters from the church, and certain things [what he does not state. Ed.] were to be done concerning these dissenters, by Dr. Avard's secret band." Elder Whitmer did not take this oath, it would appear, and he leaves the inference again that he fell under this censure; and of course was in danger of these "certain things." It must be apparent from the letter taken from the Times and Seasons, which Elder Whitmer generously quotes, that Joseph Smith, Jr., Hyrum Smith, Lyman Wight, Caleb Baldwin and Alexander McRae, who must be "the heads of the church" to whom reference is made as being in jail, that they were not parties to this Secret Band; and were by their action in thus publicly denouncing it as "the wickedness of Dr. Avard," "dissenters," and running the same risk supposed to be run by Elder Whitmer. This letter was written to Bishop Edward Partridge, one of the noblest men the church ever had in its folds; one who was above suspicion; and it is passing strange that Joseph Smith should be so full of turpitude and unfaithful disregard to his own acts and record that he should publicly denounce a man for doing what he had counseled him to do. If he had authorized the organization and acts of Dr. Avard, as Elder Whitmer's statements imply that he had done, it could have been shown at the time, and the censure due to a truce breaker would have visited Joseph Smith for so denouncing. Elder Whitmer states at the beginning that the Spirit of God "moved upon him to send forth this epistle unto you," the Latter Day Saints. Elder Whitmer italicised the words "intend from henceforth," in the extract from the letter quoted. The effect of this is, whether it was so intended or not, to leave the implication upon the men in jail at the time the letter was written, that they had before that time approbated things not "in accordance with the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ," and not "of a bold, frank, and upright nature."

Are Latter Day Saints to believe that the "Spirit of God," the Spirit of Truth supervised the careful formation of the sentences in Elder Whitmer's epistle which convey these damaging implications? Elder Whitmer writes: "I do not mean to persecute your father nor destroy any of his good works." He here again italicises the words "good works." This leaves the inference again that there were evil works of Joseph Smith which Elder Whitmer proposes to destroy. In doing this he makes himself the judge of the works of Joseph Smith, and assumes the right and the prerogative to himself decide what works are good and what evil.

If we accept what Elder Whitmer now seeks to have us do, it destroys the character of Joseph Smith for good works from the days of Sidney Rigdon, and David Patten. It leaves it almost out of the question for any one of us to determine for ourselves what is good and what evil, of all that Joseph Smith did from 1830 to the day of his death; and installs Elder Whitmer as the sole human being who has the qualification and authority to decide as to the good, or evil character of the works of Joseph Smith and others of "the heads of the church;" whatever in his opinion is bad, is bad; whatever he decides to be good, is good. To us when Elder Whitmer destroys the probity of Joseph Smith, in so early a date as 1832-5, as his statements tend to do, he vitiates all the work done by that man. If Elder Whitmer had been desirous of giving Joseph Smith the benefit of a doubt in regard to Dr. Avard and his work, instead of so artfully leaving the implication of wrong doing as his statements do, why did he not quote from the letter written from Liberty Jail, December 16th, 1838, published in the Times and Seasons for April, 1840, and found in the same volume of that work with the July number, from which he did quote. The portion of that letter to which we refer is as follows:

"We have learned also since we have been in prison that many false and pernicious things, which were calculated to lead the Saints astray and do great injury, have been taught by Dr. Avard, who has represented them as coming from the presidency; and we have reason to fear that many other designing and corrupt characters, like unto himself, have taught many things, which the presidency never knew of, until after they were made prisoners; which if they had known, they would have spurned them and their authors as they would a serpent.

"Thus we find, that there has been frauds, secret abominations, and evil works of darkness going on leading the minds of the weak and unwary into confusion and distraction, and all of which has been endeavored to be palmed upon the presidency, who were ignorant of these things which were practised upon the church in our name. And now brethren what can we enumerate more, is not all manner of evil of every description spoken against us falsely, yea we say unto you falsely. We have been misrepresented, misunderstood and belied, and the purity of our hearts has not been known."

In this extract the presidency, "the heads of the church," so often and so damagingly written of by Elder Whitmer, explicitly disavow responsibility, even in knowledge of the evil teaching and doings of Dr. Avard.

Elder Whitmer states:

"The church went deeper and deeper into wickedness. They were driven out of Missouri, and went to Nauvoo; and were driven out of Nauvoo, and went to Salt Lake, where they are to-day living in polygamy. Now you must remember that nearly all the members went to Salt Lake. Only a very few rejected the revelation on polygamy. The Reorganization is built up principally of members—not of the old church—but new converts. Now remember that the church which the Herald is striving to defend and prove innocent, that church—those people—went to Salt Lake. Remember this! These are the people who persecuted me in 1838. These are the people who had gone deep into errors and abominations. The majority of those who did not go to Salt Lake are in the Reorganized Church to-day."

In this extract are several statements that we think need qualifying. The Reorganization was effected from members of the old church. It had its organization among those who had refused to accept the dogma of polygamy. The immediate family of Joseph Smith refused to accede to this dogma. Hundreds refused to accept it, and in the statements made in this connection Elder Whitmer states that nearly all the members; which could only refer to the membership existing at the time the exodus from Illinois was made, went to Salt Lake. So far from being correct is this statement, that even now the number of Mormons in Utah, does not reach the estimated number of the membership at the death of Joseph and Hyrum. The census of 1860 gives a little less than 50,000, sixteen years after 1844.

Elder Whitmer indulges in a grave charge against the HERALD, that it is "striving to defend and prove innocent" the church and people that "went to Salt Lake." This will be news to the Utah people, and is a charge so far from correct that it carries its own refutation with it. After twenty-seven years of public ministrations and private warfare, in the pulpit, in the forum, in the street, by the fireside, against the dogma of polygamy, to be told by a man professing to write by the direction of the Spirit of God, the Spirit of Truth, that we are defending the people and the church that preach and practice polygamy and trying to prove them innocent, is a travesty of so grave a nature that it throws great distrust upon the asseveration of the one so writing respecting his love for the truth and design to deal only in the truth. To show that we do not misunderstand the statements written and quoted above, the reader will discover that the words "the church" "that church," "those people" are all italicised; evidently to mark the meaning to be conveyed.

It now only remains for us to call attention to the facts that Oliver Cowdery, weary of his condition of departure and ostracism from the society of those he once knew as members of the Church of God, went to Council Bluffs, Iowa, and was re-baptized by those whom he believed held the authority. This is stated to have been in 1847. Martin Harris went to Salt Lake City, Utah, united with them there and died there. Elder Whitmer convicts Sidney Rigdon upon what he says Oliver Cowdery told him. He makes the same statement concerning his brother John; this is hearsay to us, and comes after John and Oliver are long in their graves. But if Elder Whitmer can confidently predicate rest and peace and salvation for Oliver and John, because they repented, why should he not accord the same to Joseph Smith, for the same reason.

Both John Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery lived long enough after they were separated from the church to have left themselves on record in writing, and in such way, time and place, that the Latter Day Saints, believers in the Book of Mormon, should have been apprized in fact, manner, and form of their sin or error, in regard to the Book of Commandments and Doctrine and Covenants; and as we have no such record, we do not believe that David Whitmer is authorized at this late date to confess that sin for them, and by that confession make Saints believe that their statements made years ago certifying to the truth of that book and things therein are false. Elder Whitmer objects to hearsay evidence, but to our thinking confession of sin by proxy after the man for whom confession is made is dead is infinitely worse.

Whatever Elder Whitmer may have to present we shall examine and shall exercise the privilege to discard what is not to us in accord with what is known to us, and on record. We advise the Saints to read carefully and beware lest any man, (not excepting the editors of the HERALD), deceive them.

LUSE IN LIMBO.

"Erie, Pa., Jan. 27th.—This evening the sheriff of Saline county, Nebraska, took from the Erie jail under a requisition Rev. L. L. Luse, known in the west as the "saintly creditor." Luse is wanted in Nebraska on a charge of perjury, and is prosecuted by Rev. Mr. Braden, a Campbellite preacher. The couple had been in partnership in a crusade against the Mormons, but quarreled over the business partnership, and the charge against Luse grows out of their disruption. Luse was a popular Methodist Episcopal preacher in Pennsylvania and northern New York, went into the newspaper business in Wilber, Nebraska, and figured in a scandal in which one of his congregations, a lady of prominence, was compromised by him. Bankruptcy followed his escapade, and he fled and has been a fugitive for a year.—Chicago Times.

We have known of many besides Luse and Braden who have maliciously sought to destroy the work of the Saints, who like them, have been brought to shame, confusion and punishment, and we look to see others fall into the similar condemnation ere long.

THE following from a late Globe Democrat, of St. Louis, Missouri, indicates the feeling as well as the ignorance of the general public in regard to Utah. It is from an editorial with the caption, "The Doom of the 'Twin Relic.'"

"There are abundant evidences that the power of Mormonism is on the wane. The old fanatical element of the Church is dying off, and the newer converts lack the zeal and enthusiasm which marked the earlier followers of Joseph Smith and Brigham Young. The Federal courts are proceeding vigorously against polygamists, over two hundred of them having already been sentenced under the Edmunds law, while nearly four hundred are awaiting trial, and most of the remainder of the chiefs of the church are fugitives from justice. And while these things are taking place the number of proselytes is falling off and the number of non-Mormons in Utah is increasing. What bayonets and persecution a generation ago failed to do, law, supplemented by the aroused public sentiment of the country, is doing most effectually. The enactment of the measure just passed by the House, which is mortally certain to take place, will seal the doom of polygamy."

The trouble is that the Globe-Democrat sees just what Congress sees; and neither takes into account the good that there may be in Mormonism. Both conclude that it is altogether and wholly bad; whereas, there is an element of good, dangerously as it may be mixed with evil, and this good should be recognized. The striking down of Mormonism, including the good with the bad must inevitably result injuriously to the measures adopted to do it, and to the power enacting them. The plea made by George Tickenor Curtiss, however, that the whole question should be left as it was under the laws of 1882, and the slowly grinding processes of the enforcement of the measures of that law is most faulty. But Mr. Curtiss does not know (and is paid for not knowing) that the men who have been tried and convicted under the law referred to, account themselves as having been in "prison and in bonds" for "the sake of their religion;" and are so regarded by their fellow sufferers and sympathizers. The enforcement of the Edmunds law of 1882, was but to fill Utah with a race of cheap martyrs, at the expense of the Government. If the United States had at the first enforced the laws for the protection of its citizens in Missouri and Illinois, when the polygamic offence was unthought of and the Saints really persecuted, and then enforced the laws against them, there would likely have been no unsolved "Utah problem" to "vex the nation." It is not the severity of punishment that deters men from crime, but the certainty of it.

THE GATHERING.

A BROTHER asks how we reconcile the idea of gathering Israel to Jackson County, Missouri, with Matthew 24: 34.

To this we reply that the gathering of Israel as provided for in the following texts is a different thing and to be accomplished in a different way, and at different times than that mentioned in Matt. 24: 31. Read Isaiah, 11: 10-16; 60: 1-22; Jer. 16: 14-19; 30: 18-24; 31: 6-14; Ezek. 36: 24-38; 38: 11-14; Isa. 2: 1-5; Micah 4: 1-7; Zech. chapter 14; Matt. 23: 37-39, etc. These texts with many similar ones which might be cited, relate to the gathering of God's people in the latter days, to the manner in which it will be done and the means by which it will be effected. Matt. 24: 31, relates to the gathering of "the remainder," such as is mentioned in verses 40 and 41. These are to be gathered by "his angels" when "the sign of the Son of Man in heaven" shall appear as promised in verse 30. The Inspired Translation is very clear on this chapter and is harmonious with the other scriptures on this point. Turn and read it.

SR. DELARIA BATES writes from Caseville, Michigan, January 12th, of the following beautiful manifestation made to her on the night of the 3d, inst.: "There appeared in the far western sky a stream of light and one of smoke; which lay across the horizon all day, the smoke rolling up in great clouds. I said to my husband, I wonder if this is the end of the world? He replied, I do not know. Towards evening, I told my oldest, a boy of fourteen, to go and get a pail of water; but he was afraid to go on account of the strange appearance in the sky; so I went with him. It seemed that we had to get the water out of a spring, which required me to stoop down upon the ground in order to reach the water; and as I so got down to reach the water, I felt the earth to shake and tremble under me. However, I obtained the water, clear, bright and sparkling; and we both started to the house; when, suddenly the whole western sky grew bright, O, so bright; and while I stood looking at this rare and striking brightness, wondering if it was indeed the end of the world, I heard a voice say, 'The dead in Christ, both great and small shall rise first. This is the First Resurrection. Blessed are they that have part in the First Resurrection.' As I heard, a face appeared, the most beautiful face that I ever saw. There was a mist, or cloud-like halo before the face, yet it was so bright that I could scarcely look upon it. I then heard the voice again, and it said: 'The end is not yet! This is a warning to the people.' The voice was the sweetest that I ever heard."

Our sister then awoke from her sleep to rejoice that her hope in the resurrection had been confirmed. Since her letter was written her husband and oldest son had been baptized by Bro. S. Cease, and they were waiting for an elder to come and confirm them into the full hope of the gospel covenant.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By card from Bro. N. Stamm, Pleasantville, Iowa, Jan 27th, we learn he is meeting with good treatment in his effort to preach the word in that place, feels excellent, and has fair prospects. He says he never had greater light and liberty in gospel work than now.

Bro Jacob Warnock writes from Farmington, Iowa, January 28th:—"Send me one dozen latest edition Voice of Warning. I want to get my neighbors to read them."

Bro. J. M. Stubbart informs us in his letter of January 29th that he intends to engage in missionary work whenever and wherever he finds opportunity. He resides at David City, Nebraska.

Bro. J. W. Wight of Moorhead, Iowa, writes of late that the Saints' meetings "are reviving," and that there are "some of God's noble ones" there.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. Esther Rohrer of Colton, California, writes that she lately attended services at San Bernardino, where brethren D. S. Mills and H. C. Smith were holding a series of meetings, and heard each of them preach interesting sermons.

"Bro. Smith's subject was the ten virgins, five wise and five foolish, clearly showing we must keep in possession the good life-giving oil of the Spirit and gospel element, that we may have the wherewith to replenish, that should the beautiful gate be opened to us we may be ready to enter the portals of eternal rest. How cheering to the weary traveler, after the trials, vexations, and bereavements here, to hope for a happy reunion! But we are led to question ourselves, Are our lights out or under a bushel. Bro. Mills followed with his ever flowing words of wisdom and comfort, and the good Spirit of the Master was felt. These and many more are the results of the gospel revealed in our day. I am weak and cast down, Saints, will you hold me up?"

Bro. W. M. Rumel, writing from Fremont, Nebraska, January 26th, says:

"Have been preaching here for a week past, and think some good was done. Expect to take a trip through the western district soon. I feel well; the Lord is blessing me greatly in presenting the word."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"No selfish griefs or hatred gave
The strength wherewith thy bolts were hurled.
From lips that Sinai's trumpet blew
We heard a tender undersong;
Thy very wrath from pity grew,
From love of man, thy hate of wrong."

"STEADILY FORWARD!"

ALL day we had been sailing before a brisk wind directly towards the port for which we were bound. The weather was fine—the broad Atlantic, calm and unruffled. Sitting upon the upper deck we watched with idle curiosity the motions of the man at the wheel. First a slow turn to the right, then one to the left, and now a rapid giving back of the wheel, followed by an interval of steady retention in its place.

We turned our eyes from the wheel, and suffered our gaze to rest upon the man who stood there with with a serenely calm countenance, looking forth upon the broad expanse of water. Ever and anon his eyes were turned from the pathless waste before him and fixed upon a compass placed just beneath a skylight in the cabin, where its slightest variation could plainly be seen. "Steadily" he stood there, and though the day was fine and the wind was fair, his whole attention was absorbed by his duty, and he gave no heed whatever to the coming and going of the passengers whom the beauty of the day tempted to a promenade upon the deck.

Towards night, however, the wind veered, and now came almost directly from the point toward which we were sailing. Not only this, but its violence increased to quite a gale, and we were glad to take refuge from its chilling blasts, in the cabin. Here through the skylight we could see the man at the wheel "steadily" at his post, his eye fixed upon the compass and his hand firm upon the wheel; and we lay down in our berth that night feeling sure that though the winds were adverse to us, our course would be as "steadily forward" as faithfulness and human skill could compass. Nor were we deceived in this. All night the wind was contrary, or as the sailors term it, we had "head wind;" but steadily the man stood to his post, and by means of "tacking ship," as the morning revealed, we had gained upon our course.

"Steadily!" It has been asserted by a modern author, that no simile, used by a poet, was ever finer than the various shades of meaning conveyed by different words; and we are forcibly reminded of this remark in contemplating this one, "Steadily forward!" How much is conveyed in these two words, and how difficult we often find it to just keep "steadily on."

To all those of like precious faith we earnestly desire to say a few words this morning, for while our soul is stirred to its depths, and our heart goes out with intense yearning over each one who has named the name of Christ and with him been buried in the waters of baptism, we know of what we speak and that it is the love of God which constrains us to say to you, in the words of Nephi: "Endure to the end—which is eternal life,"

The Christian life is compared to a warfare and Paul said, as his glorious career was drawing to a close, "I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith." O, that the Spirit of the living God might stamp and impress it upon each one of your hearts that your faith is not built upon man, if so be you belong to the body of Christ, for "There is none other name under heaven, given among men, whereby we must be saved." "Jesus Christ of Nazareth" is that name. "Neither is there salvation in any other." In the beginning of Christ's ministry we hear him making to the Jews this declaration: "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." What scripture was this? "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised." Can you realize while you read this scripture that these are the words of the Anointed One," and that he had been anointed for this special purpose? We need not repeat to any one who has learned of Christ that he told them if they wished to know for themselves whether he was sent of God or spake of himself, they had but to do the will of the Father and they should know of the doctrine. Now while we freely admit that it was within the power of the Father and the Son to have had a mutual understanding between themselves in regard to this witness, the way in which the testimony should be given and those unto whom it should be given, we most emphatically assert, and think no one possessed of a sane mind can deny, that it would be impossible for man to form for himself a scheme of religion and then obtain the endorsement of God to that scheme! If this would be possible, then God is God no longer, and the anointing from Him is no more sacred than the anointing from an earthly king. But such, thanks be to God, is not his government. The Spirit of God is the Spirit of Truth and is to bear witness to truth.

When Joseph Smith presented his claims to the world, one of the most remarkable of them was, that he also claimed this same anointing, this power of the gospel, (without which the gospel is a dead letter). He challenged the people to prove the truth or falsehood of his claims, by applying the test, and said fearlessly in the words of Jesus, "If any man will do his (the Father's) will, he shall know of the doctrine." In answer to this not only thousands, but tens and hundreds of thousands obeyed that will and having received from God the testimony according to and in the way promised, have stood before the world as faithful witnesses for Him; and not only this, but the "Lord has worked with them, confirming the word with signs following." We have no knowledge of any words more fitting in which to sum up the conclusion of this matter than the words of the man born blind, whose eyes Jesus had opened. When reviled by the Pharisees, who told him scornfully, "We know that God spake unto Moses; as for this fellow, we know not whence he is," he answers quietly, but firmly, "Why, herein is a marvelous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes. Now ye know that God heareth not sinners; but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth. . . . If this man were not of God he could do nothing." Are any of us prepared to resist God?

Bro. Whitmer says in the last Herald, when speaking of the fact of his never having united with the Reorganized Church, "God commanded me by his own voice, to stand apart from you." We are not disposed to question this assertion for one moment, for how can we say that we know what God has revealed to any soul; neither upon the other hand are we disposed to question the testimony of Bro. J. T. Davies, who last spring told us that when he asked the Lord in regard to the Reorganized Church, the answer of the Spirit to him was, "It is my church; go and unite yourself with it." But there is yet one witness which to us is over and above all, and of more value to us than all others combined, and that is the witness God himself was pleased to give us, when having obeyed the will of the Father, we claimed the fulfilment of the promise Jesus had made; and bear testimony, beloved Saints, to you to-day, that the Spirit of God came upon us while the hands of the elders of the Reorganized Church were on our head, and they were praying God that his Spirit might set its seal to their ministry, and we were baptized by that Spirit from the crown of our head to the soles of our feet, and from that hour we knew God had on earth a ministry whom he had anointed, and whose works were wrought in righteousness before him. And more than this, we want to testify to the church to-day (making it in the form of an humble confession if you please) that the first darkness which ever came over us after uniting with the Reorganized Church, was when going back to old habits, we arraigned Joseph Smith before the bar of our judgment and there condemned him for things he had done. Did we do this publicly? Not at first; but only in the secret sanctuary of our own soul; but in that sanctuary there was a guest. The Spirit of Truth was dwelling there, and the admonition of the still small voice was heard asking, "Who art thou, O man, that judgeth another man's servant? To his own Master he standeth or falleth for himself." But after a time when the Spirit was grieved because its admonitions were not heeded, this spirit of accusation grew bolder, and the warning voice was heard with less distinctness, and while we flattered ourselves that we were but judging principles, not men, we found in time that we had been judging men. Would we have done this if we had listened to the Spirit of Truth? We answer, Never! This Spirit of truth would have led us gently away from all such pitfalls of the devil; but we are free agents and have the power given unto us to choose for ourselves. Was it because it was Joseph Smith we were judging that we committed sin? We answer, no; and will try to make our meaning plain. When the children of Israel murmured against Moses from time to time, he repeatedly told them that they were not murmuring against him, but against God. When, however, God commanded him to smite the solid rock in the wilderness of Zin, Moses said to the people, "Hear now ye rebels; must we fetch you water out of this rock?" Do you notice how Moses associates Aaron and himself in this transaction? We fetch you water? Here Moses failed to give God the glory—to sanctify him in the eyes of the people; and for this sin he was not permitted to enter into the promised land, but died when his "eye was not dimmed, neither his physical strength abated."

We read that God hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness; by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance to all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead." Did it enter into our hearts to suppose that Jesus needed an assistant in this matter? Still further did we think we had been appointed to fill that assistant's place? Whether it did or did not, we acted upon that principle and came under condemnation.

God chose Joseph Smith, knowing all about him, far better than he knew about himself, to be the instrument in his hands to bring forth the work of God in the latter-days. He commissioned him with authority, and gave to him and those associated with him power to adopt men and women into the kingdom of God. Were they to be heirs of God just so long as Joseph or others associated with him should remain faithful? If Joseph Smith failed to keep the commandments of God, would they failed to be saved? Do you smile at these questions as absurd? We only wish every one might see their utter absurdity, and never act as though they believed them true?

Through suffering was the Captain of our salvation made perfect, and He became the author of eternal life unto all who obey Him and endure in faithfulness to the end. At the time when the angels shall gather out of God's kingdom all which offends, the wheat will flourish without the tares and not until then. If wheat grow upon each side of us it will not make us wheat, if we are so unfortunate as to be tares; neither will the converse of this be true; but be assured that the reapers will find every grain of wheat in the field and gather it into the garner of the Lord, and also be assured that for the tares there is a time of burning. Oh, that we could leave these things in the hands of the Lord and realize how solemn the responsibility resting upon us, how great the work in which we are engaged. God is at the helm and if not a sparrow falls to the ground without his notice, will he forget to vindicate the good name of his servants or cause the wickedness of the wicked to fall upon their own heads? Never, while the foundations of his throne are established in justice and truth.

Steadily forward! The prize is at the end of the race and God is the one who shall award it. Have you joined the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and therein received that testimony which comes from God, witnessing to you that Jesus is the Christ? does not wisdom whisper to you, Remain there and let your chief watch care be bestowed upon your own footsteps, that they do not lead you out of the narrow way, and leave the rest to God? He is at the helm and we must never fear but what his work will be perfectly done; even while we sleep, with ceaseless vigilance his hand will guide the ship and the port will be gained at last.

If we are willing to trust to his keeping the destinies of our immortal souls, can we not go forward, leaving not only our own good name, but the good name of those nearest and dearest to us in his keeping? To us it seems the Master endured as much of this as any of his followers, and yet passing it all by he moved steadily on to the agony in the garden, the mocking crown of thorns and the cruel death of the cross. Is it not enough for us, enough for loved ones, that they be treated as well as he was? "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor, he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind; to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." Elders of Christ what a work!!

LAMONI, January 23d.

Sisters in the Gospel:—Have been looking for a response from some of you to Sister Stewart's request in the Home Column of December the 11th, but seeing none, will respectfully offer my views on the subject for consideration, and if proved to be wrong will readily cast them aside for something better. In the book of Covenants lying before me, page 125 [144] reads thus: "And again, thou shalt not be proud in thy heart; let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands; and let all things be done in cleanliness before me. Thou shalt not be idle; for he that is idle shall not eat the bread nor wear the garments of the laborer." I shall take for granted you believe it was given by the Spirit of God, because it is in accordance with the spirit of the gospel—also Book of Mormon. Would it be consistent to say, Thou shalt not be proud in thy heart; let all thy garments be plain, their beauty tucks, ruffles, folds, pleats, puffs, &c., only the beauty of the work of thine own hands? Oh, no! And again, "Thou shalt not be proud in thy heart; let all thy garments be plain; their beauty the beauty of having been the work of thine own hands." This is the way it looks out of my glasses; they may be dim, but at present can see it in no other light. We might also take into consideration when this was given (which might possibly have some bearing on the matter). There were many of the Saints who not only made their own garments, but nearly all their own cloth. If I have been correctly informed some of the first elders who went on a mission to England wore homespun clothing, and Brigham a quilt for an overcoat—which was certainly not the fashion of the day. As time moves on things change in this busy world of ours, and it would now seem almost a waste of time to undertake individually to make our own cloth, so the nearest we can obey its teachings is making them plain after the cloth is manufactured. I presume plain means plain, although it might be said a common dress with a ruffle, a row of pleats, or a fold, looks plain by the side of one made to the height of fashion. It would seem almost an impossibility to make every garment without a gather or pleat; neither do I believe it to be required. There is a vast difference in making a dress somewhat to fit, not tight, and the wearing useless styles and trimming which sometimes costs more than the cloth for the article itself. Then the garment becomes a constant wear on the system, particularly of one who is delicately constituted, making her appear an object of misery instead of comfort and freedom—which her nature so much requires.

Our sister says there is a saying, "A thing of beauty is a joy for ever." This can not allude to the body. "Dust thou art and unto dust thou shalt return," neither to the beauty of its apparel, for that too will quickly fade away, but the beauty of the soul will bring joy for ever and ever. If we earnestly desire to obtain that joy we must not set our heart upon dress and the glittering things of earth, which dazzle to lead us astray. We are not of the world, but are called out from the world; the more we seek its pleasures the more of its spirit we will partake of, which is enmity to the Spirit of the Master. May wisdom be justified of her children.

Yours for light,

C. ACKERLY.

DELOIT, Iowa, Jan. 31st.

Sister Frances:—I send my birth-day offering. My husband, my last loved one on earth, seems to be going fast—a grasp of your hand, sisters, a place in your prayers! Good by.

Your sister in Christ,

FRANCES A ERNST.

Correspondence.

NORTH FORSTER, N. S. W., Dec. 23d.

Bro. Joseph:—We got back here about the first of the month, leaving the branch at Nambucca in excellent condition spiritually, and with an addition of ten to their membership, added during our stay among them. The ire of the clergy of orthodoxy was raised to so great a pitch, that one of them met me and challenged for debate upon the divinity of the Book of Mormon. I accepted; all the arrangements were made; we then talked an hour or two upon our faith, and before he left he backed down and out from the proposed debate, though the Bush Missionary who came with him urged him to go on with it. I then proposed to meet him upon any one, or all of the principles of our faith, doctrines, or organization, as he might choose; but he did not want any at all,

Some of the neighbors then sent away for another Reverend who came and lectured on baptism, sprinkling vs immersion. He used Dr. Rush's arguments; no water in Greenland, or Kamtschatka to immerse; no water in African deserts, etc., and a small five footer baptizing a brawny, six foot two man, might cause a case of homicide, and a mess of other ridiculous stuff as argument against the clear statements of the word; "went down into the water," and came up out of the water," as to the proper mode of baptism. I took notes and replied in the same place, next evening; no harm was done to the correct mode of baptism by the lectures.

The brethren of Nambucca were very patient and kind to us, during our protracted stay in that part of the mission. Our home was with Bro. Argent, who with Sr. Argent and family did all they could to make us comfortable, as did also brethren Ballard, Scrivener, McKay's, Gore and Buckman; all striving to make us happy and comfortable while among them. Shortly after we arrived here we baptized eight more, and the following week we went out to the Manning to see what we could do. We were all the week there before we could get a meeting—Saturday evening being the first. About twelve or fourteen present, three of them ministers. After I had preached, they fired questions at me for a time trying to cover the main issues; Inspired Translation, Book of Mormon, polygamy, church not organized because only seven in the "twelve," etc. I invited the leading one to meet me on the stand to a comparison of church faith and doctrines. No, he would not. I found no difficulty whatever in answering their catch questions, and next evening I had a good house full and excellent liberty on the "restoration." More questions, with not the least difficulty in answering them. Next day in talking with some of the leading men of the town "Taree," they stated that I answered fairly, all the questions they would give me time to, and that they were satisfied I was not a polygamist, and knew what I did believe; which was more than they could say for the others. Holidays with races, foot-ball, excursions, etc., are underweigh, so I have to quit till after New Years. Yesterday I was offered the use of two halls, in villages a few miles apart, fifteen miles from here, owned by a gentleman who entertained brother Glaud Rodger a week. He spoke very highly of Bro. Rodger, and thinks I will get a good hearing there. I will try. I received a letter and clipping, (clipping enclosed) from Bro. Jones, of Hastings, Vic.; from which I see the Saints are doing well and "finding favor in the eyes of the people." A grand land this for fifty or more Elders; it would then be to the Reorganization what England was to the former church.

We expect to move to Victoria after February, so that all our correspondents may please send letters to us to Hastings, Victoria, Australia, by February boat and afterwards. I will also enclose clipping from Macleay Chronicle, the last of the newspaper controversy with Mr. Macklin, the "Reporter." The editor of the Chronicle told me, as I called upon him on our way here, that the "Reporter" said that I always "got him," whenever he gave himself to a definite statement. The letters did much good in that district. I see no reason to change my former view, i. e., the work here will move on in proportion to the work done—the Saints living correctly. Slowly, but surely the truth is winning its way, slowly, but steadfastly the work gains ground, converts, and friends in this land. It to me is an evident token, of the soon rapidity of progress in this work, and that the reproach of the apostacy is being removed from us. Peace be to Israel.

Your brother in Christ,

JOSEPH F. BURTON.

Editors Herald:—Will you grant me space to say, to friends who have approached me, because of my immoderate procedure (as they view it) in the use of your columns; that though reprov- ingly evidence of kindness in the approach is seen, which I duly appreciate; and may heaven guard well the footsteps of noble souls, who have godly courage, to gently, but firmly whisper in the ears of those they love, You are wrong, when they so think, and as such love must be God's love burning upon the altar of the heart because of a thirst for righteousness, may it become more and more intensified, until all dross shall be consumed, and they hear the soul inspiring plaudit, "Well done." Pure friendship does not consist in hiding faults; and often two penny worth of scold is worth all the human praise that can be told; while an unexpected outburst of kindness is as refreshing as a cool breeze after a hot, suffocating spell. And however just to me my procedure may have been, if it brought sadness to any heart I shall regret it.

Evidence of consistency and high moral rectitude is indeed encouraging; but if in this disappointment is shared, the solemn fact of individual responsibility should not be overlooked. All that is shaky is to be shaken, thoroughly shaken, that whatever can not be shaken may abide; and all that offends be gathered out of the kingdom, before the righteous shall shine. May you, kind friends, abide and shine. Heaven save me from pharisaical righteousness; but I think you will bear me witness that I never taught you to make flesh your arm. In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

LOS ANGELES, University, Cal,
January 21st.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—All of our people are well here. The work of the Lord is prospering in some degree. We are getting a hearing by the few, and are slowly gaining ground. I baptized one two weeks ago—a gentleman about forty-five years of age, fair ability, born in Hindostan, India, speaks the Hindu language quite well. He was associated with one, Dr. Trusdale of this city, who advertises, "Christian Science Healing." When this brother called upon one of our brethren to heal him, he was invited to attend our prayer-meeting, and he took part with us. He expressed himself freely, and manifested a good spirit and considerable light. I took occasion to instruct him "more perfectly," and the result was, in a few days he was one of us. He seems to be an earnest worker, and if faithful I think he will be useful. I baptized another yesterday from the same association, a very earnest man. Others are investigating. I feel the need of having the spirit of wisdom to prosecute the work here; but the Lord blesses me, and has dealt kindly with me both spiritually and temporally. I speak twice each Sunday; have one prayer-meeting each week, and also have Sabbath School. I only hope the Lord will greatly sustain us. If I had more time to devote to the work I think the results would be greater. We have some warm friends, as I have before written. Bro. Frank Marsh, (as we call him), nephew of T. B. Marsh of early times, throws his extensive influence in our favor. He has been a great friend to me, and is a strong believer in the latter day work and the position of the Reorganized Church. The only reason he offers that he is not with us as a member, is that he is not a Christian, and don't feel in his heart the personal importance of taking hold. He could surely do a good work for God, and a greater work for himself in securing the "great salvation."

I am still in close investigation with Dr. Arbeeby of this city, and through him am able to teach some truths that are taken to the ministry in this place. He is quite liberal in his views, but of course, Jew-like, he is slow to accept of things outside of his former traditions. It seems hard for him to accept of prophets and inspiration.

Sister Rebbeck is quite sick, and has been for some time. Property is "booming" here. Our city is spreading out extensively. Hope the conference will not forget Southern California when they meet, and hope that proper efforts will be put forth to redeem the honest in Utah, for it seems they must soon let go their pet theories.

Yours in truth,
J. R. BADHAM.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Jan. 24th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—An acquaintance of mine loaned me The American Catholic—January 5th, 1887—being the date of the issue in which is contained an article entitled, "Their Sacred Tombs." Thinking a copy of the same published in the Herald would be appreciated by its readers, as the account given of St. John the Revelator, goes much toward the confirmation of the revelation given to the Seer, concerning the mission of John. The following is the copy:

"THE SACRED TOMBS—WHERE THE REMAINS OF THE TWELVE APOSTLES REST.

"Of the body of St. John the Evangelist, there are no tidings. Not a bone of the body of this holy apostle and beloved disciple of our Lord can be found.

"St. James the greater is at St. Jago de Compostella, in Spain. That is the far-famed pilgrimage that takes its name from this apostle. The ten remaining apostles are in Italy, without counting St. Paul who was not one of the original twelve.

"As most of the apostles are in Rome, we shall speak of the others first. Three are in the kingdom of Naples. St. Matthew, apostle and evangelist, is at Salerno. St. Andrew at Amalh, near Naples; and St. Thomas at Ortona. Rome has seven of the apostles, namely, S. S. Peter, Phillip, James the lesser, Simon, Jude, Bartholomew, and Matthias who filled up the place left vacant by the apostasy of Judas.

"St. Peter is of course in the church that is called after him, precisely on account of his tomb being there. In St. Peter's also are S. S. Simon and Jude. St. Jude is sometimes called St. Thaddeus, for instance, in the Church of St. John or Lateran, where you see the statues of all the apostles, with the name of each carved beneath. In the Church of Holy Apostles are James the Lesser and St. Phillip.

"In the Island of Bartholomew in the Tiber, is the Saint of that name, in the church dedicated to the same holy apostle, "St. Matthias is in St. Mary Major. The body of this apostle is under the great altar of the Basilica. So one apostle is in Spain, and all the rest in Italy, except St. John the Evangelist, whose mysterious disappearance I have alluded to.

"Rome possesses less than seven apostles. Besides these, the two evangelists, no apostles, are also in Italy; St. Mark and St. Luke at Padua."

This last paragraph, and the fourth seems to conflict—but nevertheless it is written as published.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. L. MATTHEWS.

VICTORIA, Ill., Jan. 18th.

In my traveling hither and thither, in the capacity of a missionary pilgrim, seeking the goodly land and the gold paved streets of the New Jerusalem, I have been often urged to write direct or through the church organ. Cares and carelessness have perhaps combined to thwart the good design, by times, but now I wish to make amends, repair the breach, and soothe the afflicted spirit.

In my journeyings far and wide, I am safe in saying that kindnesses not a few, and providences of a substantial character, and co-operation pleasing to behold, have blessed my efforts, and thrilled my heart with gratitude, and nerved my arm for life's fierce conflicts. I feel like saying in the language of another,—"Lord thou hast blest me, I ask thee no more." If you have got any word to say about the holy band of gospel toilers, speak while they can hear. Do not neglect the living to pay homage to the dead. Do not venerate the departed hero, to the detriment and expense of the care worn servant, the straitened widow, or the orphan's pitiful moan. Let me have the flowers while I can smell of them. Let us place our shoulders to the wheels of progress, and unite our hearts, and strike hands in all good works, ere they crumble back to dust. Unity and concord, fidelity and trust, intellectual service and persistent labor, will cement the body, diffuse light, and shatter the power of the adversary. The crutch of old orthodoxy is rotting away, and the edifice is crumbling to irreparable ruin. Some are casting about and seeking safe quarters, while others are not aware of the peril. Millions are being wrecked on the Scylla of Spiritualism; or torn on the Charybdis of skepticism, or swallowed up in the maelstrom of Atheism. Creeds will lie along the avenues of progress as thick as honey bees in the fields of blooming clover. The enemy is seeking to deluge the world, and strangle the race in perdition, but far above the track of the cloven foot, and the serpentine trail, the blood stained banner of Prince Immanuel is unfurled to the breeze. Remember that as the enemy would attempt to flood the earth, the Spirit would rear aloft the standard of peace, good will, and unquestionable safety. Satan and his emissaries have ever wrought when the children of God have convened in worship. He has blunted the fine feelings, and lulled into carnal security, when an aggressive onslaught would have proved ineffectual. The invisible forces are at work for either weal or woe. The vital powers in nature's laboratory fills the garner, clothes mankind, carpets the earth in emerald down, and replenishes the groaning larders. Chemical decay, with unseen touch, prostrates the sturdy monarch of the woods, lays pride, beauty, and ambition in the mould, and partially recuperates the fallow field of the whole world.

Vitality is an organizer, while its absence harbingers speedy dissolution. These stupendous powers are manifest through all the realms of visible creation. Magnetic attraction, affinity, repulsion, electricity, heat, cold, life, joy, and the various conditions of the mind are alike unseen; but who is so blind to reason, sense, observation and logic, as to deny the existence and agency of any, or all the above.

A rationalistic philosopher, within my acquaintance, claimed that he could not love the Supreme Being, because he had never seen him; but he tuned his lyre to the eulogy of the amiable disposition of a deceased Saint, as said sweet temper was only seen in the walk and journey of life. I love the hidden man of the heart, God, the author of life, and conclude that things not seen are eternal. I never beheld the British brotherhood, but their prosperity, development, and growth, are marked with no ordinary interest I assure you. There was a fruitful field; but the chilling blasts of the latter day apostasy spread over the realm like a polar wave. Licentious heretics, in the name and covering of religion, wrought sad havoc. The name and fame of the church became tarnished, and sullied; the lanes of investigation were all obstructed, and the vehicle of life was transposed, for the time being, to the cruel juggernaut of death. Thank the gracious Lord the light is rekindled, the heat is going forth, and the chaff is being both winnowed and consumed.

I fondly wish to see her Majesty's dominion, at home and abroad, permeated with gospel leaven, and honey-combed with faithful, devout, consistent worshippers. Let the ships of Tarshish unfurl their broad canvas, to the tireless winged winds, in order to bear the swift messengers to lands afar, and isles remote. In voyaging over the trackless ocean, and calling at the havens, ports, or harbors, may the precious freight be the sons of God, and the daughters of Zion, en route for the house of the Lord, and the sanctuary of our God.

The insufficiency, weakness and worthlessness of human creeds are proclaimed daily, in the forum; through the popular press; amid the busy marts; all over the toiling land, and throughout the civilized world. The human expediency gentry of the clerical cloth are reconstructing old time honored rituals, by revamping, enlarging, abridging, dovetailing, changing, originating and supplanting; which led Ingersoll, Beecher & Co. to conclude that religion was measured and controlled by scientific discoveries, the march of reason, the refinement of the people, and intellectual development. These disciplines are being patched so often, with new cloth, that ere long, it will be difficult for any one to find the original warp, to say naught of the filling. It reminds me of the nobleman's silken stocking, that was mended so freely and often, that he disclaimed the unworn mate on finding the same. I suppose John Wesley would scarcely recognize or fellowship the proud, fashion-loving, haughty Methodist of our day; while Henry the VIII, with scaffold and harem, looked at the results attainable within this inconstant, brief life; at least it appears that way to your humble servant. Calvinism is St. Augustin's views, almost verbatim, but the synod of Dort gave ecclesiastical dignity and authority to the detestable "five points," which, briefly stated, are as follows. 1st. Predestination. 2d. Particular redemption. 3d. Total depravity. 4th. Effectual calling. 5th.

Final perseverance. Their interpretation of the above would be substantially, 1st, God chose certain to glory, by free grace and love, while others are ordained to dishonor, and wrath, to the praise of his vindictive justice. 2d, Christ's blood to redeem those eternally elected. 3d, All are sinners in birth and vessels of wrath; unless, 4th, Called by word and spirit, the elect from death to life; and 5th, Once in grace always in grace, and all such will persevere to the end and be saved irrespective of either good or bad works, for great is the mystery of Godliness.

If I had that kind of belief, I would want to go to either the north or south pole, and throw it into the mouth of the bottomless pit, before it should land me in that, or some other foreign country. Free moral agency to choose or refuse, and meritorious works, are at war with the Geneva divine, as also the system restated and upheld by scholastic clergy of that stamp.

I have often wondered why some of the leading minds, and most gifted speakers and writers detract, and mar their productions, by the frequent use of the name of the Deity, especially in the stereotyped form of God, or some other word, phrase, or sentence. Many of our fervent, and otherwise eloquent prayers are weakened by too frequent repetition of Father, our Father, heavenly Father, &c., while others testify "in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ" too freely, too often, and untimely. I never read of the doctrines of Christ, in any of the three inspired standards, and when "the faith" is stated in the plural it grates on my sense of right, similar to hearing a Brighamite praying to be sealed up to eternal lives.

While I am in a somewhat fault-finding strain let me query why the presidency, twelve and many of other quorums of the church preach tithing, for others; but fail to practice themselves. Many receive tithes to aid them; feel quite grateful, and duly acknowledge; but never think about forking over, like father Abraham, and thereby becoming ensamples to the flock. I believe when the ministry honor the law personally, and trust the Lord unreservedly, and serve the body faithfully, the laity will cheerfully second them in every good work.

I had rather our people would abstain from teas and coffee, for their use appears inconsistent, to say nothing about the expense, and the deleterious effects thereof. The use of tobacco, in our humble opinion, is degrading, debasing and demoralizing. It is a worse than useless expense to obtain it; while its unhallowed practice shatters the nerves, prostrates the memory; breaks down the will power, pollutes the body, poisons life; grieves the Spirit, amuses the devil, and brings up in purgatory. Some fastidious soul may claim that I am too harsh, that I wound their feelings, but let us reverse the telescope, and inquire after those whose hearts are stayed on God and his law of purity. I tell you plainly, if you wish to walk charitably, you would abandon it wholly, once and forever. If you will abstain therefrom, while the world stands, my word and honor for it is, that you will never feel hurt at the likes of me, for denouncing that sin. If the Lord is God let us live by his every word, or cease to plead for new and continued revelation. Sectarians that claim no later word from headquarters than the Bible, are prohibiting their ministers from "the weed," and enjoining their membership to entirely abstain, while even Spiritualists think their mediums give better tests without it. Some organisms can lash their neighbor's faults like fury, but can not well endure a reverse treatment, and still others grow petulant should a worthy colaborer obtain applause, eulogy or even a friendly notice; but methinks their morose souls would grow warm and expand if they could but get a corner on all kind words and monopolize the business. Generally those who make the most noise about duty and law, are derelict in the observance of either.

It is easier, and more common to praise virtue and righteousness than to adhere strictly to right rule. Cash and cloth, beauty and wit, learning and position exact the meed of praise; but true worth grows radiant in its own generated light, as constancy regulates the entire movement, perseverance recuperates, humility tempers, and charity anoints the axletree of all genuine progress.

In my cheerful way, I am battling for the cause, while large attentive audiences encourage me on. Many appear remarkably friendly, but what the outgrowth will be time alone will tell. I feel to love the great work, hope to merit a proper esteem, and desire to dedicate my life's labor to the interest of our dear Redeemer's kingdom. Without malice, with pity for the weak, with unbounded love for the great brotherhood and charity to all, I am,

M. T. SHORT.

THE GURLEY MOVEMENT.

In the Herald for January 22d, 1887, appears a letter from the pen of Elder E. H. Gurley. In an "Editorial item" found in the same number of the Herald, the inconsistency of the writer, and the groundless character of his attack are made manifest. But seeing the matter has gone as far as it has, I propose to give it a more extended notice.

Elder Gurley makes a number of bare assertions, in order, I suppose, to show to the readers of the Herald, that "Elder Lambert's childish cry" should not be received! But what has he accomplished? He has simply shown that his judgment differs from mine. That is all! Those who know Elder Gurley and myself, and those who do not know us, can not set aside my expressed views of the character of his attack, until they have the evidence to show that Elder Lambert is less intelligent, not so "versant with the facts," or more dishonest than he.

That which is so objectionable to Elder Gurley, is the statement that "in my judgment" his attack was "very unfair." And yet, in his published letter, he makes the following unproved assertions: (1) "I know that what I said in my five sermons succeeding the first four of Elder Lambert's, was spoken in strong feelings of love for the church, though in pity for them." (2) "With reference to the unfair part, I have this to say, that whoever says I used unfairness, * * * either is not conversant with the facts, or tells falsehood." (3) "In nothing did I represent Elder Lambert otherwise than he declared," &c. (4) "But the facts are against Elder Lambert's position, if the Bible be the standard of evidence." (5) "There is not power enough in the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, or any other, to successfully defend the revelations of Joseph Smith as worthy of all acceptance as a rule of faith and practice for the church of Christ, by accepting the Bible as a standard of evidence, or both it and the Book of Mormon." (6) "The facts are Elder Lambert was gloriously answered."

If the reader will take the pains to subtract the above display of dogmatism from Elder Gurley's short letter, he can easily see how much of it will be left! He can also see with what degree of consistency Elder Gurley raises his "hue and cry" against less than twenty words, found in my letter, the strongest part of which is modified by the phrase, "in my judgment;" and denounces all who say he was unfair as being ignorant of the facts, or dishonest. Would Elder Gurley have us believe that he is infallible? "In nothing" does he state his opinion. Oh! no. The oracle is given, and now all who dare to say that he was unfair are "ignorant of the facts," or guilty of lying!

Here are the facts, as I understand them. Elder Gurley had been filling appointments at the Bonnet School-house through the summer months. On November 9th, 1886, at the same place, I began a defense of our faith, at the same time replying to the "vigorous, bitter, and, in my judgment, very unfair attack of Elder E. H. Gurley." On the previous evening I had listened to Elder Gurley, at Lamoni; and in my diary for that date, I find the following: "At seven p. m., I attended Elder E. H. Gurley's meeting, in the Saints' Church, and listened to his attack on the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. He tried to prove that the book teaches the doctrine of personal revenge. He was unfair and bitter."

Of the first four discourses I delivered at the Bonnet, Elder Gurley attended three—the first, third and fourth. At my first meeting, I stated the purposes for which I had come, and the general course I expected to pursue. All seemed to understand it. At the close of the first discourse, Elder Gurley rose up and offered a few remarks, commendatory of Elder Lambert, inviting the people to come out and hear him. At the close of one of my meetings, (the third, I believe), while in conversation with Elder Gurley, I told him that his effort at Lamoni "was the most contemptible thing" I had "ever heard from the Gurley family." He replied that it was not half so contemptible as my defense. The above statements can all be proved, except, possibly, the one with reference to his effort at Lamoni, and this he will certainly remember, and I trust, will not deny. Now he comes out in print, and graciously informs us that the first intimation he had of Elder Lambert's replying to him was the appearance of his letter in the Herald! Was it because Elder Lambert did not descend to the same plane of controversy on which Elder Gurley moves, and therefore did not "gloriously answer" him, that he did not know what was going on?

Whether Elder Gurley knew that I was replying to him, or not, one thing is certain: this, my first, effort to meet Gurleyism, in its entirety, was quickly followed by five discourses from him. It was in these discourses that he spoke with such strong "feelings of love for the church, though in pity for them." This profession of "love" and "pity," will strike the ears of those who are "conversant with the facts," and who heard Elder Gurley, rather strangely; and the probability is that it will have an opposite effect upon them from what was designed by the writer.

Just at this juncture, it is quite pertinent to raise the following question: Who are those who are most "conversant with the facts," and, therefore, best prepared to judge in this matter? Those who have accepted the prophetic claims of Joseph Smith, (but who could have no possible object in doing so, aside from their truth), and have read and investigated the Doctrine and Covenants; or those who know little or nothing about the book—nothing about the Gurley movement, except what they have learned from public discourses, (and what the Gurley brothers may have told them in private) and who have no interest in the affair, only so far as their position and teachings seem to reflect on the prophetic claims of Joseph Smith, and the faith of the Latter Day Saints? I claim that the first named class of people are the ones who are far more conversant with the facts than the other. The strength of Joseph Smith's prophetic claims, a part of which is the divine character of the revelations contained in the Doctrine and Covenants; the Bible support which they have, together with the manifestation of God's Spirit to the hearts of those composing this class, are what causes them to stand where they do to-day. They are, at least, as honest as other people. It is safe to say that most of this class, if not every one of them, will testify in harmony with "Elder Lambert's childish cry." Elder Gurley should remember that it was not my character, nor any private views of mine, which I was defending; but the church and her faith, as set forth in the books. I did not claim that he was unfair with me as an individual, but I did and do claim, that his representation of the teachings of the Doctrine and Covenants, the faith and practice of the church, together with the Gurley movement, was "very unfair." Nor do I doubt that I was more or less misrepresented. The elder who informed Elder Gurley that he was misrepresenting me, is for aught I know, as competent of telling the truth as Elder Gurley is; and we do not propose to ignore his testimony, just because Elder Gurley says he is not "conversant with the facts, or tells falsehood."

In the defense referred to, the Bible was used as the leading standard of evidence. The Book of Mormon was also used. Neither of these books was found to be in our way, but stood by us "gloriously," (especially the Bible), till, one by one, Elder Gurley's "childish" objections disappeared like dew drops before a summer's sun. If R. G. Ingersoll, Kersey Graves, and Thomas Paine, have properly and fairly represented the God of the Bible and Christianity, then Elder Gurley has properly and fairly represented the Doctrine and Covenants, and the faith of the Latter Day Saints. I challenged him to produce one single example, where a person of intelligence and integrity had been made less moral by accepting the Doctrine and Covenants, as a guide to "faith and practice." He accepted the challenge, selected one person (!) from all the believers in the book known to him, and when I came to examine his proofs, his folly and utter failure were made manifest before the people.

As the Gurley brothers gave the same reasons for withdrawing from the church, it is fair to presume that they are identical in faith. If they do not believe alike, but each one has a distinct faith of his own, let them come out and say so, that we may know just where to find them. When they are fighting so hard to tear down what they once sought to build up; when charging others with ignorance of the facts, or dishonesty, when making a desperate effort to push us to the wall, they should pause and consider their past record. If, however, they will not do this, they must not complain if we read a portion of that record, in order to help the people to become more "conversant with the facts." This is no personal matter. In the past I have had marked respect for the Gurley brothers, and have no ill feeling towards them now; but we can not do for them that which they will not do for themselves. Such is the peculiar character of our faith, that no one, especially if he be a minister, can long be a worker in the cause, without making a plain and strong record. Hence, when he renounces the faith in part, or as a whole, he goes back on the record which he has made, and becomes an object of pity indeed. If the Gurley brothers have something to tell us, distinct from and superior to the faith and doctrine of the Latter Day Saints, why do they not tell it? Why try to batter down our own house, till they have furnished us a better one in which to live? I have heard three discourses preached by them, since their withdrawal from the church, and in my judgment, not one item has been taught that will stand a Bible test, but what they learned, or should have learned, in the Latter Day Saints' School! The often repeated assertions, "I have discovered, I have learned," &c., &c., may deceive those who are not "conversant with the facts," but with others they must fail. It is a plain matter of history, that the church accepted the revelations contained in Book of Doctrine and Covenants, (or all that were given up to that date, which comprises nearly all the book) at Kirtland, Ohio, August 17th, 1835. The Reorganized church has claimed from the beginning to be the proper and legal successor of the original church, organized in 1830. She declared in favor of the Doctrine and Covenants at Beloit, Wisconsin, in 1852, and a number of times since that date. But it is not necessary for me to reproduce this part of the record at present. The work of "reformation" commenced and carried on by the "Fathers of the Reorganization," was done by calling the attention of all who bore the name of Latter Day Saint, to the books, (all three of them), and I submit that no one is in line with these reformers who seeks to abrogate either Bible, Book of Mormon, or the Doctrine and Covenants.

The Gurley brothers voluntarily united with the Reorganization, and in the offices of priest and elder, held by E. H., and elder, and apostle by Z. H., represented the church for years. How does it come that so long a time was required to find out the indefensible character of the Doctrine and Covenants? It will hardly do to account for this by claiming that their father, who was an "over ardent admirer of the 'Choice Seer,'" traditionized them to believe in the heresy as well as the truth, taught by him; for we are informed by Z. H. Gurley, in his circular, called "History of the Reorganization," that his mother was regarded as a "weak hearted," or "half-hearted" Mormon, and even called an "apostate;" and although his father readily accepted the heresy taught by Joseph Smith, at least for a time, his mother "did not believe in such things for one solitary moment." The mother usually has more influence with her boys than the father; and especially is this the case where the father is rather weak-minded, unstable, and fanatical. Elder Gurley says, in the same tract: "The memory of my father is very dear to me," etc.; "but be it known to all who read these lines that I love my mother with an eternal and abiding affection." Surely the influence of this mother would more than counteract the heretical teachings of the father.

By authority of the revelation given in 1873, through the present Joseph Smith, president of the Reorganized Church, Elder Z. H. Gurley submitted to ordination into the quorum of the Twelve. This same revelation teaches the doctrine of "gathering," and by implication, "tithing." Is that part which relates to the calling of Elder Gurley divine, while the remainder, in part, or altogether, is of human, or satanic origin?

Elder Z. H. Gurley was twice entrusted with important missionary work in Utah, for the Reorganized Church. He preached and wrote against the heresies and corrupt practices of that people, using the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the book of Doctrine and Covenants, as standards of evidence. If there is any place under the shining sun where it is needful for professed believers in the Doctrine and Covenants to show that they are authorized, by that book, to practice what others (aside from the Brighamite Mormons) regard as crime, that place is Utah! Nor are they now, or in the past, without men possessing the ability and disposition to do so, provided it can be done. In defending their heretical practices, the Bible is their favorite book! Viewing it from the false and infidelic standpoint, I ask, why not begin at the bottom of this evil by abrogating the Bible?

In December, 1874, Jason W. Briggs and Zenas H. Gurley sent a written challenge to Messrs. Orson Pratt and Daniel H. Wells, of Utah, to meet them in public discussion on the following points of doctrine:—1st. That Adam is God, and the only God with whom we have to do." 2d. That polygamy, together with that document called a revelation, dated July 12th, 1843, is of God." 3d. Blood atonement; that is the killing of men by the chief elders of the church in order to save them." 4th. That Brigham Young is the rightful successor of Joseph Smith, in the presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." 5th. That Utah is the place of safety, or place of Zion, and that the organization there, over which Brigham Young presides, is the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."

Wells and Pratt were called upon to affirm the above propositions; and in denying them, Elder Briggs and Gurley offered to affirm the following:—1st. That "Adam worship is idolatry," etc. 2d. "That polygamy is abominable in the sight of the Lord, forbidden in the books that all the Latter Day Saints profess to believe; and that the so-called revelation of July 12th, 1843, is an invention, false in principle and pernicious in its influence, a fraud in its origin, neither genuine nor authentic." 3d. "In denying the third proposition, we will prove that it" (Blood Atonement, the killing of ones enemies, etc.) "is one of the doctrines of devils, and to obey it is a capital crime against the laws of God and man. 4th. "In denying the fourth proposition, we will show that Joseph Smith, eldest son of Joseph Smith, is the rightful successor of his father, in the presidency of the church." etc. 5th. "In denying the fifth proposition we will prove that the Reorganization, over which Joseph Smith, son of Joseph Smith presides, is the true and only church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Authorities to be used in the discussion: the Bible, Book of Mormon, Book of Doctrine and Covenants; also church publications from A. D., 1830, to A. D., 1844.

Signed } JASON W. BRIGGS,
ZENAS H. GURLEY.

The above sweeping and fearless challenge shows what estimate was placed on the books (including the Doctrine and Covenants) by these men, as late as December, 1874. And the failure of Pratt and Wells to come out and affirm the distinctive and (to us) objectionable features of their faith, from the standpoint of the books, is, at least, good presumptive evidence that they had no hope of success in that direction. What a splendid opportunity was here afforded the Brighamites to prove to us and the world that the Book of Doctrine and Covenants authorizes and sanctions the practice of personal revenge, killing one's enemies, &c. Did they do it? No! Were Elders Briggs and Gurley afraid they could do it? No! Have they found out, since that time, that the Doctrine and Covenants teaches this dangerous doctrine? I suppose they have (?) They were in great danger (?) when they made the challenge, but they did not know it! Pratt and Wells had them just where they could annihilate them, on this point, at least; but they did not know it! And so the matter passed, and nothing was done!! And now some of these same men, whom the Brighamites did not dare to meet on the above propositions, turn right about, and undertake to prove that the Doctrine and Covenants does sanction some of the heresy referred to, after all!

Referring to the above challenge, in a letter dated at Salt Lake City, December 10th, 1874, Elder Gurley says: "Brother Briggs and I submitted five propositions for debate to Orson Pratt and Daniel H. Wells, on December 2d. Not having heard from them, we have permitted the publication of the 'propositions,' and will send paper in due time to you. We have left the challenge open for acceptance during our stay in the territory."

In the following year, 1875, Elder Z. H. Gurley sent an article to the office of the Chicago Times, under the caption of "Golden Tablets' Reviewed." This article was signed and dated by Elder Gurley, at Pleasanton, Iowa, June 1st, 1875. In reviewing the "false statements made by J. M. S.," Elder Gurley says: "We assert, without fear of successful controversy, that the doctrines of Polygamy, Blood Atonement, Adam-God, and other 'doctrines of devils,' as taught by Brigham Young and his associates in crime, are no part of 'Mormonism,' never have been, never can be, no more than the Inquisition and Jusutical order are a part of the order and economy of Christ." Then follows a quotation from the Book of Mormon, condemnatory of polygamy, after which the Book of Doctrine and Covenants is introduced with the following strong and significant words:

"In connection with this I quote also from the Doctrine and Covenants, a book containing revelations to the church, and accepted by them with the Bible and Book of Mormon, as a rule and guide to faith; these three books have been, and must still continue to be, the foundation of Mormonism; and though abrogated by the introduction of heresy, they are still intact, as indicative of the church policy." This plain endorsement of the three books, for the past, present and future, is followed by about eight distinct quotations from the Doctrine and Covenants, in favor of monogamy and against polygamy, and showing that those who accept that book are under obligations to live in complete obedience to the laws of the land. We quote again from Elder Gurley's defense: "Let it be borne in mind that these revelations had been accepted and published in 1835, and republished in 1845, as being of divine authenticity; the word of God to them; the constitution of their faith, and just so long as that constitution (Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants) shall be accepted as of full force and effect, we challenge any man on earth to show that polygamy was, or is admissible under its letter and spirit." The article closes with the following words: "In conclusion, we advise J. M. S. and all others when convenient, to visit Plano, Illinois, on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, and inform themselves of the only true 'Mormon organization' extant, by calling upon Joseph Smith, son of Joseph Smith, (who was killed at Carthage), who, in company with his brethren in Christ, are endeavoring to rescue the truth from the reproach and shame brought upon it by those professing to be Saints, and reclaim the honest from the deadfalls of Brigham Youngism, the practice of which is a stench in the nostrils of all good people; a blotch upon the fair escutcheon of our liberties; a fraud and imposition, and a shame to our government."

From the above, plain and noble defense of our faith, we glean some very important points: (1st), the authority and importance of the books. They have been, are, "and must still continue to be, the foundation of Mormonism." (2d), Whoever undertakes to set aside any one or more of these books, is guilty of teaching heresy. (3d), That the false and dangerous doctrines, taught by Brigham Young and his fellows, (including the doctrine of "Blood atonement, or the killing of ones enemies," &c.), never was, are not, and never can be, any part of Mormonism. (4th), The only true Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints extant, is the Reorganization; unless some other true Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints has been organized since 1875; and, in that case, it would have to be identical with that one, at that time, in faith and practice, else it could not be true.

In the light of the above statements and concessions, made by Elder Gurley, we take the liberty to propound a few questions: (1st), If the Gurley brothers should ever organize a church, what will that church be? (2d), Are they teaching heresy by abrogating the Doctrine and Covenants? Or was Elder Gurley mistaken in 1875? (3d), If he made such huge mistakes, and so many of them, in 1875, what evidence have we that he is right now? (4th), Will the Gurley brothers claim that they are now representing the faith of the Latter Day Saints, proper, or have they renounced that faith? If they claim to represent the faith of the church, then why do they reject the Book of Doctrine and Covenants? (5th), What faith and doctrine did they teach while, for years, they represented the church? Did God accept of that work? (6th), What about their calling and ordination in the church? was it of God? (7th), Do they claim to be ministers for Christ now, by virtue of that calling and ordination? If not, when and where, and through whom, did they receive authority, by which they may now properly act, and administer the ordinances of the gospel in the name of Jesus Christ?

An attempt has been made, by the Gurley brothers, to find support for their present position, in the work of that committee, consisting of Joseph Smith and Z. H. Gurley, at Washington, in February, 1883. The paper presented to Secretary Frelinghuysen, by this committee, was, I believe, read before the conference, held at Kirtland, Ohio, April, 1883, received, and ordered spread upon the minutes. Section first reads as follows: "The Reorganized Church is the proper representative successor of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized by Joseph Smith and others, April 6th, 1830, then numbering about thirty souls, and now numbering in the United States and Territories, Great Britain, the Canadas, Australia and the Society Islands, about 20,000 members."

The Book of Doctrine and Covenants was freely used from which to present the "faith and practice" of the church. References are made, and quotations given from pages 161, 177, 330. If we do not accept the Doctrine and Covenants for what it purports to be, when presenting its statements to others as authority for our "faith and practice," then the whole thing is a farce, and we are found guilty of using deceit and hypocrisy!

Of the teaching and practice of the Reorganized Church, we find the following in section second: "The members of the Reorganized Church are loyal to the governments of which they are citizens; and neither teach nor practice (the italics are mine) any religious tenet that is subversive of those governments, or destructive to good citizenship," &c.

Thus we find Elder Z. H. Gurley upon record as late as 1883. Surely, he would not have us believe that he then regarded the Epitome and Doctrine and Covenants in conflict with each other, when both of them are quoted, as properly representing our faith.

Why should we follow the Gurley brothers, in preference to others who have gone out from us? Occasionally we find one who can not accept the Book of Mormon. He regards it as an addendum to the last will and testament. Some of those who have never been prepared to accept the Book of Mormon, wonder that any should stumble at the Doctrine and Covenants. Some years ago, a young elder in the state of Minnesota, (well educated and very intellectual), renounced the faith and joined the Spiritualists. He told his friends in the church, that he had found a superior light; that "the truth" had made him free! Some years after this change in his faith, I saw and read a letter, written to these same friends, in which he illustrates his faith, or want of faith, in about the following manner: "Christianity may be compared to the flood; but Spiritualism is the filth and scum of the flood." Was he right when he claimed that "the truth" [Spiritualism] had made him free? There are men who are quite brilliant, and good talkers, but who have shown themselves to be unreliable as guides, or leaders.

We can not tell what our future will be. God only knows. I feel the force of the apostle's injunctions: "For I say through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly according as God has dealt to every man the measure of faith." (Rom. 12: 3). "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall."—(1 Cor. 10: 12).

I will now place myself on record, as I see and feel; and should I ever go back on that record, I can not justly complain if it is used against me. I am a Latter Day Saint, or I am an infidel of the Atheistic type. I can see no middle ground for me to occupy. My best reason, and all my spiritual experiences, have been in favor of the faith and doctrine of the church, as set forth in the Books. Were I to accept the evidences adduced against the Doctrine and Covenants, as valid, upon the same ground, I must reject the Bible and Book of Mormon.

I close my article without ill feeling to any, and with the prayer in my heart, that God's blessings may be over all, and His mercy be extended to the erring ones.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

THE EXPOSITOR.

Dear Herald:—We desire, by your permission, to have a short talk through your columns, with the Saints, our brethren and sisters, who are your readers, and the friends of the cause and kingdom of God.

Long and well you have battled for the right, and nobly you have sustained your mission for over twenty-six years; and we feel like returning thanks to God for the noble work you have done and the good you have accomplished. But while you have and are doing bravely and well, it seemed to the Saints on this far distant coast,—this mission,—that we required another medium of communication, another paper, not only among ourselves, but one we could scatter broadcast as it were, among our neighbors and the citizens of the Pacific Slope, where prejudices had been sharpened and intensified by the teaching and practices of the Utah Church, which the world in its ignorance of our true character, work and mission, love to associate us with them, and to accuse us of being the same in doctrine and practices.

After consultation with some of the wisest of the Saints, and having the endorsement of Bro. A. H. Smith who presided over the Pacific Slope Mission, we started the publication of the Expositor. We had fondly hoped that the Saints in the east and the Canadas would see the necessity of sustaining an advocate and defender of our faith and an expositor of error, on this coast, and would liberally subscribe and donate for its support, not so much for their own personal benefit, or as a means of their own education in the divine life, but as a means of putting in the hands of the Saints on this coast the means of self defense, and a paper in which they could fairly, squarely and truthfully draw the line of demarkation between us, our doctrines, and the corrupt doctrines and practices of the leaders of the Utah Church; and to show the christian world what our true position, work and aim are, and to teach them the true doctrines of Christ as taught in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, the three books we hold to be sacred, and the law for our government.

For two or three months we issued an edition of ten thousand copies; then to the end of volume one, five thousand copies. We sent many to the Saints throughout the United States, Ontario, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, some to England, Scotland, Denmark, Tahiti, and Australia. So much of our time was occupied for three months that we about abandoned all other things, and were engaged in wrapping and mailing and distributing the paper, greatly aided by the volunteer work of our brethren, Andrews, Lincoln, and Haws. But we found that we could not go on indefinitely without pay as we had office rent to pay, and a family to support, as well as attending calls to attend funerals and other ministerial labor.

The first year the paper run behind its income, which was made up by brethren Andrews and Lincoln; and the brethren engaged with us, concluded it would have to stop, unless we took it on ourselves to carry it on. It had accomplished so much in correcting the public mind, and as some of the Saints had paid for it, some six months, and others a year in advance, which either they or the publishers would have to lose if the paper suspended, we concluded we would, under the circumstances, take the paper and do our best to make it self-supporting.

At the end of the second year we found that the subscriptions and advertisements had nearly paid for the second volume; and if all who were in arrears would pay up it would leave us about even as regards the expense of the paper and mailing, but leaving us no margin towards paying office rent and for our time and labor spent on the work. During the past year we cut down the number of our issue to 2,500 copies. Not having so many to distribute in Oakland and San Francisco, we could not get so many local advertisements as formerly, and were obliged to accept those from the east at a nominal price, and which aided us but very little. Another thing we found at the end of the second year, that many of our best friends and patrons had paid for one or two years ahead, which money we were obliged to use to carry on the current expenses of last year; and if we suspended publication, we would be indebted to our friends in a sum we were not able to repay, and therefore we were forced to proceed with the paper or wrong our best friends. After supplicating our heavenly Father for light on the subject, we concluded to go on, and trust to the blessings of God and the kind consideration of our beloved brethren and sisters, to sustain us in the good and noble work. Aside from the anxiety we have experienced in regard to our financial situation, and our lack of ability to properly edit and manage the Expositor, we have had a pleasant time in corresponding with the Saints in all parts of the world nearly; and receiving nothing but the kindest expressions from them in regard to our work and labor of love, some of whose letters we were vain enough to publish (if vanity it can be called) for the good of the work and encouragement of others. To publish simply enough to supply those who paid for the paper, would defeat the object for which it was started, and up to the present time has been sustained. No doubt the present publications of the church are adequate to supply all the membership, but for free distribution we wish something cheaper, and yet different from ordinary tracts. Hence the Expositor.

We wish to return our sincere thanks to the noble hearted Saints in all the world who have assisted us so liberally, for their kindness and liberality, and crave in the future their continued regards, and hope and pray we may furnish them a paper worthy of their patronage and that they may see the necessity with all Saints of liberally contributing the labor of the mind and pen and money, towards making the Expositor a grand success and power for good in building up the kingdom of Jesus, and pulling down the kingdom of darkness.

The reason we write at this time to the HERALD is, that the thousands of its readers may know our situation, who do not see the Expositor and to inform them that the next number will not be issued until about the third or fourth of February next, owing to the press of business in the Enquirer office where our work is being done. They are issuing a large edition of a fifty page illustrated paper, which requires all the force in the office for some time. So do not think the Expositor suspended because you do not receive it as early in the month as usual. But send your subscriptions, donations and arrearages right along. Your donations are all credited and published every six months, and if any are omitted, the corrections will be made if called to our notice. We would remind the Saints in all the world that for the last six months we have had no active missionary laboring in this Northern California District, and many of the Saints are dependent on the Expositor and HERALD for their preaching. You who are at ease in Zion where you have the best talent in the church to break the bread of life to you each recurring Sunday, please think of these scattered ones to whom we have always endeavored to send the Expositor, to comfort, to bless and strengthen. Wishing you a happy New Year and many of them and that the Lord will bless you in basket and store, and that your hearts may be enlarged towards our great work, we subscribe ourself your fellow servant,

H. P. BROWN, Editor of Expositor.

RANDOM THOUGHTS.

It seems to me that it would be unwise, unreasonable, and unsafe for any one to leave the church and oppose what they once testified was true, mainly because they did not comprehend all that was written, or revealed in relation to it. It seems to me that any such might just as well depart entirely from the faith, or disbelieve entirely in the existence of God, and in the idea of a former existence, and a future life for man; because the strongest testimonies that God is, and that man was before birth and shall live again are in the scriptures. And in these very scriptures is declared by one of the chief witnesses of Christ and his gospel, that the mystery of godliness is great. Then if it is a mystery concerning God, or godliness, no mortal does, nor can comprehend it, however inspired or enlightened he may be. For if the apostle Paul, whom we have reasons to believe was caught up, or showed by vision the third heaven, and told things unlawful for man to utter, if he could not comprehend God or godliness while in a mortal state, and sin cursed world; how could we. Then to leave the church and oppose its revealed law, or any clause of it because of not being able to comprehend and harmonize some parts, would be just as sensible as to disbelieve entirely in God because of the great mystery now of godliness. But as regards the goodness of God, there is no mystery concerning it; and the more we can think and learn of His goodness the better for us. We learn that the Savior remarked once that there is none good but God. The unbeliever might say that that knocks the whole thing on the head, because that Christ is declared in another place to be pure and good, or that "guile was not found in his mouth;" if without guile—without sin. But stop and consider, is it not declared that the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, is God; then when the Son said, "none is good but God," he included himself as a part of God.

On motion it was adopted, that the action of the Mason's Grove branch in the case of John Rounds (expelled) be considered final, unless he desires to appeal from the action of said branch. Ministerial Reports:—Elders M. Lynch, J. Rudd, J. Hawley (baptized 3), J. Turner, B. Salisbury, E. C. Brand (baptized 3), P. Cadwell, J. A. McIntosh, J. Pett, C. E. Butterworth (baptized 1), R. Ford and W. W. Whiting. Priests H. Rudd, J. Pearsall and C. Dobson. Teachers J. Cross, J. Spence, and W. Galland. Nearly all had labored, and those who had, testified to the good liberty enjoyed in presenting the word. Bishop's Agent, John Pett, reported:—Cash on hand last report $43.26, received $197.70, total $240.96. Paid out $129.60, on hand $111.30. By request of the teacher of the Galland's Grove branch, and by action of the conference, the president was requested to appoint a committee to investigate a difficulty existing in said branch. Preaching in the evening by Bro. E. C. Brand. Saturday morning.—The committee appointed to labor with members of the Shelby branch reported. Report was accepted and committee discharged. The president stated that he had selected P. Cadwell, J. Turner and B. Salisbury, a committee to investigate a difficulty existing in the Galland's Grove branch; they to report at their earliest convenience. E. C. Brand and J. Turner were appointed to labor at, and set in order, the Pilot Rock branch, and to act as a court of elders if necessity required. It was resolved, That this district reaffirm the decision of the body, that the name of any member can not be taken from the record without action and trial by a court of elders. Bro. W. W. Whiting was sustained as president of the district, and C. E. Butterworth assistant. The secretaries of the district were on motion sustained, and also the Bishop's agent. The general authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Preaching in the evening by J. A. McIntosh. Sunday morning.—A good, spiritual meeting was held, afterwards preaching by Bro. Whiting. In the afternoon and evening preaching by J. Turner and C. E. Butterworth. Adjourned to meet at Galland's Grove on Friday, February 25th, 1887, at half-past two o'clock.

Miscellaneous.

Always write the Business portion of your Letter on a separate piece of paper, and let it be brief and explicit. If you have anything to say to the Editor, or something you wish published, do not write it on the back of a business letter. Business is Business, and MUST BE done in a business-like manner.

TO THE SEVENTY.

Dear Brethren:—Allow me to express my pleasure in reading in the columns of the Herald of the active and successful labors of so many members of the quorum. I now write to notify all members of the quorum who are in, or intend to take the field at the next Annual Conference, that the secretary of the quorum was requested, at last Annual Conference, by the quorum of twelve to supply them with the names of all who intend to take missions, their preference of fields, if any, the length of time they could remain in the field, and the probable amount their families would need. He was not at that time in possession of the necessary information to do so. That this may be done in proper order at the next conference you will please send these particulars to the secretary of the quorum, Heman C. Smith, San Bernardino, California, by the first day of March, 1887, that he may have sufficient time to make out the list and forward to the Twelve before the convening of the conference at Kirtland, Ohio.

I also request that all the brethren of the quorum will send in a report to the quorum without any exception. We want to hear from every member.

Your brother in bonds,

E. C. BRAND, President of Quorum.
Box 39, Tabor, Fremont Co., Iowa.

DECATUR DISTRICT.

To the Bishop's Agents, and the Saints of the Decatur District:—In order to meet the emergencies of the work it is requested that all who have a desire and intention to aid the work before the next session of the district conference, will send the amount to the Bishop's Agent in the branch where they reside; and if there be no agent in the branch, please forward to me at Lamoni, by March 1st. Agents in the district also, report in full, that the books may be closed for the year and a full report be made to the conference.

E. BANTA, Bishop's Agent.

LAMONI, IOWA, Jan. 5th, 1887.

TO ELDERS, PRIESTS, TEACHERS, AND DEACONS WHO ARE NOT IN QUORUMS.

I call your attention to the fact that the General Conference of April, 1886, ordered that all applications from Elders to be enrolled in quorums should be sent to the Church Secretary, the various quorums to call from said Secretary's hands names to fill their vacancies, from time to time. Therefore all Elders who wish to be enrolled will please take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Also, by resolution of the General Conference of September, 1882, the Church Secretary was instructed to take the necessary steps towards arranging the different quorums mentioned in the revelation of September 28th, 1882. By this I understand that it is his duty to take applications and record them, preparatory to the organization of quorums of priests, teachers and deacons, (as well as elders), by the proper church authorities, when there shall be sufficient numbers of them enrolled, (and enough of them present at a General Conference) to effect an organization of one or more quorums of these orders of Priesthood in the Church.

Therefore, brethren holding these offices can apply at any time, and their applications will be filed awaiting action in the matter. As sent to Bishop Blakeslee or to me there are now on file thirteen names of priests, eleven of teachers, and five of deacons, besides several of the Elders. Elders desiring enrollment at the coming April sessions of the various quorums should apply soon.

H. A. STEBBINS,
Church Secretary.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The conference of the Independence district will convene at Independence, Missouri, March 5th, at ten o'clock a m. Let there be full and complete reports from all the elders and branches.

I. N. WHITE, Pres. of Dist.

The Philadelphia district conference will convene at Philadelphia, Saturday evening, February 26th, at the house of Bro. Jacob Peters, 1739 North Ninth street, and on Sunday 27th in the Hall, south west corner of Eleventh and Girard avenue. All the officers in the district will please send their licences with their reports for indorsement by the conference, as required by resolution of last conference.

HOSEA H. BACON, Sec.

The Central Missouri District will meet in conference on March 5th, 1887, at the Waconda Branch, Ray county, Missouri. It is important that the district be well represented as there should be a delegate to the April General Conference chosen. All are invited.

W. L. BOOKER, Pres. of Dist.

TO DELINQUENTS.

The money borrowed by the Herald Office, to replace that embezzled by L. Conover in February, 1883, will be due at an early day, and we need to be in condition to pay it. We therefore ask all who owe the office to remit what they owe within the next thirty or sixty days, so that we can pay said borrowed money when due and wanted. All subscribers, so far as they can, should pay for their papers in advance. If the aid we ask for is given us promptly, we can soon pay off all this indebtedness and then begin to reduce the price of Church papers and other publications. We are anxious to serve the church the best we can in these matters, and hope to do better in the future than in the past. But in order to succeed, we must have the hearty and prompt co-operation of our patrons. Please do not neglect or delay.

Very truly,
DAVID DANCER,
Business Manager.

BORN.

SCOTT.—To Mr. William F. and Sr. Jennie Scott, of Ponca, Nebraska, July 21st, 1886, a son named Homer.

MARRIED.

CATO—BIERLY.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Seligman, Missouri, December 23d, 1886. Bro. A. J. Cato and Miss Maggie Bierly; J. D. Vickery, J. P., officiating.

DIED.

PARKS.—Mabel Jane, youngest child of brother and sister G. W. and P. J. Parks, formerly of Picton, Ontario, but now of Carthage, New York. She was born November 1st, 1882, and was named and blessed by Elder J. A. McIntosh of Alliston, Ontario. She died January 13th, 1887, of congestion of the lungs. Funeral at the M. E. Church by Rev. W. F. Took. His sermon was full of feeling and sympathy.

SHIPPY.—In Hershey, Michigan, Norman Nephi Shippy, son of brother and sister Saleda Shippy, born January 23d, 1886; died December 28th, 1886. Funeral sermon by J. J. Cornish.

BURT.—Near Fremont, Nebraska, January 22d 1887, after a year's sickness, Bro. Oscar S. Burt, aged 46 years and 10 months. Bro. Burt was born in Cilerville, New York; was baptized by E. Boulson, July 17th, 1882, in Saunders county, Nebraska, where he died. He was patient, and conscientious to the last; gave directions concerning his burial, and bade his family not to weep for him. Funeral was conducted by W. M. Rumel, assisted by elder G. M. L. Whitmen.

ELLSWORTH.—At Liberty, Nebraska, Mrs. Martha J. Ellsworth, of lung fever. She was born February 4th, 1829, and died January 27th, 1887; was a member of the Christian Church. Funeral sermon at the house of Bro. John Ervin, by Elder Robt. M. Elvin.

KENDALL.—Our darling, Emma Kendall, departed this life December 19th, 1886, aged 5 years, 9 months and 10 days. She was blessed by Bro. George Mantle, at Alma, Illinois. Bro. William Hazeldine presided at the funeral.

IVERSON.—At Nebraska City, Nebraska, January 14th, 1887, of cancer, sister Masine J. Iverson. She suffered for about a year, and was confined to her bed for several months. Her eldest son did nothing but care for his mother during her long illness. She was born September 24th, 1823, at Hormsted, Denmark; was baptized by Elder Mark H. Forscutt, October 23d, 1875. Funeral from the Saints' Church, which was largely attended; sermon by Elder Robert M. Elvin. Another faithful Saint has gone to rest, to return on the morn of the first resurrection.

PARKER.—In Independence, Missouri, January 13th, 1887, Hiram Alvin, son of John and Emma Parker, aged 9 months and 2 days; thus the buds of promise are transplanted from this world of sorrow into the Paradise of God. The funeral was conducted by Elder F. C. Warnky.

JOSEPH SMITH . . . . . EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR . . . . . ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, February 19, 1887.

D. WHITMER.

WITH sorrow and profound regret for the course of David Whitmer, we take this opportunity to point out his numerous defects of memory, errors, mistakes, misstatements, perverted interpretations and false applications of prophecy and history in his past career; and while we do this unpleasant but necessary service, we sincerely hope to be guided in spirit, in judgment, in method and manner, by that ever blessed Spirit which leads into all truth.

We honor David Whitmer for the calling he once received of God—to be a witness that Joseph Smith was called and chosen of God a prophet, seer, revelator and translator, and also that the Book of Mormon is of divine origin and authority. And we also honor him because the Lord called him to assist in building up "the church of the Lamb of God." But now that he arrays himself, as he has done in the past in efforts which tend to pervert, hinder, misrepresent and destroy the plain teachings of the Book of Mormon, (which he testifies he knows is divine), efforts which tend likewise to bring doubt, confusion and division among the Saints and others, we are bound by every consideration of love and duty to God, his Saints and all mankind everywhere, to repel his attacks, point out his errors, and set before him and all others the facts in the matters under consideration. And when replying to the articles appearing over his signature, we are painfully confident that the arguments, language, inuendoes, cant phrases, and some of their statements, are not David Whitmer's, but are from persons at Richmond and elsewhere, who are leading and prompting him. But if he submits to be led and badly influenced by others, he should not complain of us, but of his unprofitable advisers, who persuade him harmfully.

From a careful survey of David Whitmer's history since 1828, we find that his besetting sins were unbelief, unsanctified ambition, aspiring to place, privileges, and authority, to which may be added self-will and downright obstinacy in resisting the counsel and authority of his superiors. These defects were probably inherent in his mental make-up, and from their first development were not corrected and subdued, but increased, and were indulged till they became his mania and ruling elements in his character, leading him finally to the extent of confusing his mind, perverting his judgment, and blinding him in respect to spiritual things, a condition of which Jesus forewarned his disciples, saying; "If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness."—Matt. 6: 23. Peter forewarns the Saints of the same evil in these words:

"And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and can not see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins."—2 Peter 1: 5-9.

David Whitmer has clearly lacked these active graces, hence his blindness.

That David Whitmer was sorely troubled with unbelief may be seen in the following revelation given through Joseph the Seer to O. Cowdery, David Whitmer and Martin Harris, prior to their having "a view of the plates, and also of the breast-plates, the sword of Laban, the Urim and Thummim which were given to the brother of Jared upon the mount when he talked with the Lord face to face, and the miraculous directors which were given to Lehi while in the wilderness on the borders of the Red Sea." Now the seeing of these things by D. Whitmer and the others, was dependent upon their faith in, and reliance upon, the revelations of God given through Joseph the Seer, for the Lord says:

"Behold I say unto you that you must rely upon my word, which if you do, with full purpose of heart, you shall have a view of the plates," etc. * * * "And after you have obtained faith, and have seen them with your eyes, you shall testify of them by the power of God; and this you shall do that my servant Joseph Smith Jr., may not be destroyed, that I may bring about my righteous purposes [Preaching the gospel, establishing the church, and building it up. Ed.] unto the children of men, in this work."—Doc. Cov. 15: 1, 2.

D. Whitmer was not only indebted to the revelations through Joseph the Seer in respect to becoming a witness to the divinity of the Book of Mormon and the divinely prophetic, translating, revelating and seeric gifts and powers of Joseph Smith, but he was likewise indebted to them for all his ministerial gifts and callings in the Church of God. If Mr. Whitmer had not then relied on the revelations given through Joseph, he would not have been one of the privileged "three witnesses." If so much was then dependent on his reliance upon the revelations of God through Joseph, how does it happen that since that time he rejects them? If God then made reliance and belief in His revelations through Joseph the condition upon which D. Whitmer was to receive divine blessings, by what authority did the latter afterwards reject that condition, and proclaim that faith in the revelations given through Joseph is delusive and ruinous!

But we have further evidence that Mr. Whitmer was given to unbelief from the first; for when the angel of God shewed the plates, etc., to Joseph, Oliver, and David, "He then addressed himself to David Whitmer, and said; 'David, blessed is the Lord, and he that keeps his commandments.'"—Times and Seasons, vol. 3: p. 898.

This early warning, like that given Peter, (Luke 22: 31-34) was no idle thing, but it was intended, manifestly, to notify David of his coming danger through his failure of keeping the "commandments" of Christ. Now, the revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants are professedly from the Lord Jesus Christ. David Whitmer rejects them, and therefore does not even profess to keep some of them, but claims he knows more about their character and origin than the divinely accredited seer and revelator Joseph Smith, through whom they came.

David Whitmer has often testified that Joseph Smith was a prophet, seer, revelator and translator, and that God by His voice, by His Spirit, and by His angel, bore this testimony to him. Did David Whitmer ever receive such gifts and callings from God? When and where has his life and conduct given proof that God ever called him to such offices and duties? Has David Whitmer ever had the authority from God, the spiritual light, the large experience in spiritual concerns, the superior mental capacity, and spiritual culture, fitting him to sit in judgment on the revelations, ministrations, opinions and official teachings of Joseph the Seer. Are his opinions, interpretations and applications of the "written word" to be accepted and those of Joseph Smith set aside! Let us see what the Book of Mormon says in respect to these two men.

Of David Whitmer it say not a word, except indirectly when it speaks of "three witnesses who were to behold the plates, etc., one of whom by calling of God through Joseph Smith, was David Whitmer. Nothing is said of these witnesses except that they were to "testify" to seeing the plates, etc., by the power of God.—2 Nephi, 11: 17, 18; Ether 2; 11, etc.

But of Joseph Smith, to whom was given the plates, and accompaniments, and who by the power of God translated them it is said:

"And behold, ye may be privileged that ye may show the plates unto those who shall assist to bring forth this work; and unto three shall they be shown by the power of God; wherefore they shall know of a surety that these things are true. And in the mouth of three witnesses shall these things be established; and the testimony of three, and this work, in the which shall be shown forth the power of God, and also his word, of which the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost beareth record; and all this shall stand as a testimony against the world, at the last day. And if it so be that they repent and come unto the Father in the name of Jesus, they shall be received into the kingdom of God. And now, if I have no authority for these things, judge ye, for ye shall know that I have authority when ye shall see me, and we shall stand before God at the last day. Amen."—Ether, 2: 1.

By this quotation, Joseph Smith the translator was chief in these matters, and the "three witnesses" were to be simply assistants. In Book of Mormon 4: 2, Moroni, says further of Joseph the Seer,—

"The record thereof [Book of Mormon.—Ed.] is of great worth; and whoso shall bring it to light, him will the Lord bless. For none can have power to bring it to light save it be given him of God; for God will that it shall be done with an eye single to his glory, or the welfare of the ancient, and long dispersed covenant people of the Lord. And blessed be him [Joseph the Seer.—Ed.] that shall bring this thing to light. * * * Yea, behold I say unto you, that those Saints who have gone before me, who have possessed this land, shall cry; yea, even from the dust will they cry unto the Lord; and as the Lord liveth he will remember the covenant which he had made with them. * * * And behold their prayers were also in behalf of him [Joseph the Seer.—Ed.] that the Lord should suffer to bring these things [Book of Mormon.—Ed.] forth. And no one need say they shall not come, for they surely shall, for the Lord hath spoken it; for out of the earth shall they come, by the hand of the Lord, and none can stay it."

In this we see the pre-eminence of Joseph the Seer, the extraordinary privileges extended to him, and the very high and important duties laid upon him by the Lord.

We now quote the testimony of Nephi concerning Joseph.

"And it shall come to pass, that the Lord God shall bring forth unto you, the words of a book, and they shall be the words of them which have slumbered. And behold the book shall be sealed; and in the book shall be a revelation from God, from the beginning of the world, to the ending thereof. Wherefore, because of the things which are sealed up, the things which are sealed, shall not be delivered in the day of the wickedness and abominations of the people. Wherefore the book shall be kept from them.

"But the book shall be delivered unto a man, [Joseph the Seer.—Ed.] and he shall deliver the words of the book, which are the words of those who have slumbered in the dust; and he shall deliver these words unto another; but the words which are sealed, he shall not deliver, neither shall he deliver the book.

"For the book shall be sealed by the power of God, and the revelation which was sealed, shall be kept in the book until the own due time of the Lord, that they may come forth; for, behold, they reveal all things from the foundation of the world unto the end thereof. And the day cometh that the words of the book which were sealed, shall be read upon the housetops; and they shall be read by the power of Christ; and all things shall be revealed unto the children of men which ever have been among the children of men, and which ever will be, even unto the end of the earth.

"Wherefore, at that day when the book shall be delivered unto the man of whom I have spoken, the book shall be hid from the eyes of the world, that the eyes of none shall behold it, save it be that three witnesses shall behold it, by the power of God, besides him to whom the book shall be delivered; and they shall testify to the truth of the book and the things therein.

"And there is none other which shall view it, save it be a few, according to the will of God, to bear testimony of his word unto the children of men; for the Lord God hath said, that the words of the faithful should speak as if it were from the dead.

"Wherefore, the Lord God will proceed to bring forth the words of the book; and in the mouth of as many witnesses as seemeth him good, will he establish his word; and wo be unto him that rejecteth the word of God.

"But behold, it shall come to pass that the Lord God shall say unto him to whom he shall deliver the book, Take these words which are not sealed, and deliver them to another, that he may shew them unto the learned, saying, Read this, I pray thee. And the learned shall say, Bring hither the book, and I will read them; and now, because of the glory of the world, and to get gain, will they say this, and not for the glory of God. And the man shall say, I can not bring the book, for it is sealed. Then shall the learned say, I can not read it.

Wherefore it shall come to pass, that the Lord God will deliver again the book and the words thereof, to him that is not learned; and the man that is not learned, shall say, I am not learned. Then shall the Lord God say unto him, The learned shall not read them, for they have rejected them, and I am able to do mine own work; wherefore, thou shalt read the words which I shall give unto thee.

"Touch not the things which are sealed, for I will bring them forth in mine own due time; for I will show the children of men, that I am able to do mine own work. Wherefore, when thou hast read the words which I have commanded thee, and obtained the witnesses which I have promised unto thee, then shalt thou seal up the book again, and hide it up unto me, that I may preserve the words which thou hast not read, until I shall see fit in mine own wisdom, to reveal all things unto the children of men. For behold, I am God; and I am a God of miracles; and I will shew unto the world that I am the same yesterday, to-day, and forever; and I work not among the children of men, save it be according to their faith.

"And again it shall come to pass, that the Lord shall say unto him that shall read the words that shall be delivered him, Forasmuch as this people draw near unto me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precepts of men, therefore I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people; yea, a marvelous work, and a wonder; for the wisdom of their wise and learned shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent shall be hid."

From this text we learn that Joseph the Seer would not only "read the words" of the book, but also that the Lord would reveal to him much beside, for "the Lord God shall say unto him to whom he shall deliver the book;" . . . "then shall the Lord say unto him;" . . . "And again it shall come to pass that the Lord shall say unto him that shall read the words that shall be delivered him;" all of which affords ample evidence that Joseph was ordained of God to be his revelator as well as translator, and that God would reveal through him in regard to the Lord's "marvelous work" connected with and to follow the coming forth of the Book of Mormon. From this text we also learn that the Lord would authorize Joseph the Seer to obtain

"the witnesses," proving as before shown that their position was subordinate, secondary, and merely auxiliary to the work committed to Joseph the Seer. As a further proof of the superior authority given the Seer, and of his precedence and pre-eminence in the Lord's "marvelous work," we quote the prophetic promise of Jesus.

"And verily, I say unto you, I give unto you a sign, that ye may know the time when these things shall be about to take place, that I shall gather in from their long dispersion, my people, O house of Israel, and shall establish again among them my Zion. And behold, this is the thing which I will give unto you for a sign, for verily I say unto you, that when these things which I declare unto you, and which I shall declare unto you hereafter of myself, and by the power of the Holy Ghost, which shall be given unto you of the Father, shall be made known unto the Gentiles, that they may know concerning this people who are a remnant of the house of Jacob, and concerning this my people who shall be scattered by them; verily, verily, I say unto you, When these things shall be made known unto them of the Father, and shall come forth of the Father, from them unto you, for it is wisdom in the Father that they should be established in this land, and be set up as a free people by the power of the Father, that these things might come forth from them unto a remnant of your seed, that the covenant of the Father may be fulfilled which he hath covenanted with his people; O house of Israel; therefore, when these works, and the works which shall be wrought among you hereafter, shall come forth from the Gentiles unto your seed, which shall dwindle in unbelief because of iniquity; for thus it behooveth the Father that it should come forth from the Gentiles, that he may shew forth his power unto the Gentiles, for this cause, that the Gentiles, if they will not harden their hearts, that they may repent and come unto me, and be baptized in my name, and know of the true points of my doctrine, that they may be numbered among my people, O house of Israel: and when these things come to pass, that thy seed shall begin to know these things, it shall be a sign unto them, that they may know that the work of the Father hath already commenced unto the fulfilling of the covenant which he hath made unto the people who are of the house of Israel.

"And when that day shall come, it shall come to pass that kings shall shut their mouths; for that which had not been told them shall they see; and that which they had not heard shall they consider. For in that day, for my sake shall the Father work a work, which shall be a great and a marvelous work among them; and there shall be among them those who will not believe it, although a man shall declare it unto them. But behold, the life of my servant shall be in my hand; therefore they shall not hurt him, although he shall be marred because of them. Yet I will heal him, for I will show unto them that my wisdom is greater than the cunning of the devil.

"Therefore it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not believe in my words, who am Jesus Christ, whom the Father shall cause him to bring forth unto the Gentiles, and shall give unto him power that he shall bring them forth unto the Gentiles, (it shall be done even as Moses said), they shall be cut off from among my people who are of the covenant."—Nephi 9: 11, 12.

From the foregoing text we learn of the prominent and world-wide work to be done of God in connection with the calling and empowering of this "servant" of Christ when "these things [the Book of Mormon] shall be made known unto the Gentiles;" and we also learn of the importance and binding authority of the "words" of Jesus Christ, which "the Father shall cause him [Joseph] to bring forth unto the Gentiles." The magnitude, extent, and exalted character of the work entrusted of God to Joseph the Seer, and, therefore, the greatness and trustworthiness of the Seer in the estimation of the Lord as his servant to introduce, establish, and carry forward his "great and marvelous work," are plainly set forth in the texts we have already given. But we will now give the most conclusive evidence that God chose, called, and ordained Joseph Smith to bring forth the work of the Lord to this generation, to preach and send forth that word to Gentile and Jew, to be "great like unto Moses" as a prophet, seer, and spiritual leader, and to be "like unto" Joseph in Egypt, a savior under God's providence to the house of Israel. This done, the difference and incomparable distance in spiritual calling, authority, office, and work, between Joseph the Seer and David Whitmer will be so apparent that "the way-faring man though a fool need not err therein." This evidence is found in 2 Nephi 2:2, 3. And notwithstanding D. Whitmer says the "choice seer" mentioned here was not Joseph Smith, but an Indian, yet to be raised up to Israel, we shall proceed to prove, nevertheless, that Joseph Smith was that "seer," and that, too, by the Book of Mormon and current history; and in doing this we shall further prove that David Whitmer probably never knew nor comprehended the scope and character of the divine calling and authority of Joseph in their fulness, to this day; but that he, like the relatives of Jesus concerning him, (John 7:1, 3-5; Mark 3:21), has not understood nor believed in his mission work as ordained of God and outlined in the Book of Mormon, and therefore, perverting the word of God, aspiring to persuade and influence the seer to yield to and adopt his views, Mr. Whitmer resisted the word of God, rejected some of the words of Christ, and became a "blind leader of the blind."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SOME little time since we received a letter from Bro. W. A. Bennett, of Graham, Texas, stating that he with others, were suffering in the drouth stricken portion of the state. We have consulted with Bishop Blakeslee, and by his advice we present in this issue an appeal to the people for aid. Since the receipt of the circular, the papers state that the rain had fallen copiously in nearly all of the suffering counties; but this does not relieve the present necessity, nor provide for the seed, corn, wheat, oats, potatoes, and garden seeds that will be needed in the early spring. The suggestion of Bishop Blakeslee is, that all who can, and are disposed to help these sufferers, should send their donations to him and he will see that they are sent to Bro. Bennett and others of our folks in that country.

The Omaha (Nebraska) Daily Bee for January 30th, and the Boston (Massachusetts) Daily Record, for the same date, each has a most excellent article upon the faith and organization of the Reorganization, the fairest and in some respects the best we have ever seen. The one from the Omaha Bee is especially good, because it deals with the hegira from Illinois, and the steps taken by the retreating hosts of the Saints as they went west, and relates facts in regard to that movement which will be very interesting as well as useful information to the readers of the HERALD; and as soon as the space will permit we shall give it an insertion. It is quite pleasing just now to see part of the influential press of the United States to give the church a fair hearing; the best of results may be looked for in time from this disposition. We have fought long for a recognition, and now that we are gaining it, duty as well as policy demands that we do not abuse or undervalue it.

There is a rumor being circulated through the various news journals of the country that president Brigham Young of the Utah Mormon church is either not dead, or is about to be resurrected. The rumor seems to be given some credit, by some writers; but it should be borne in mind by the Saints that similar stories were told on the streets of Nauvoo in regard to Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and believed by many of those who mourned their sad death. The same tale has been told in regard to nearly all the men who have led any faction of the church who have died, and sensible men ought not to be fooled by any such silly statements. If Pres. B. Young be not dead, then the church at Salt Lake were parties to one of the hugest farces ever played west of the Rocky Mountains, and the United States Courts of Utah were the scene of one of the most curious family wrangles over the estate of a live man by his heirs, in the suit planted by the heirs of B. Young vs. the executors of the estate of B. Young, deceased, for their respective portions of the spoils. If Pres. Young really died, as the public were made to believe, it may be depended upon that he will not be the first fruits of the first resurrection that is to come.

Bro. W. W. Blair left the office on the 3d, for a short trip to Plum Hollow, Iowa, to attend the local conference and do some gospel labor by the way. He expected to be absent about ten days.

The week ending the fourth was a very cold, unpleasant one. The cold was intense and continuous; wind almost constantly from the north, "cutting like a razor," as the saying is.

Bro. Francis Earl, a very good talker and fair representative speaker, has moved with his family, to a place in Cooke county, Illinois, called Hegewisch, where he proposes to open a gospel work if he possibly can. He can get a hall for twelve dollars per month, about three per Sunday, but being unable to meet this expence alone and sustain his family, he offers to pay five dollars out of twenty-four, hire the hall for two months, and give a series of meetings during that time; provided, some one or more of those who might be interested in the spread of the work will provide the rest. He asks that if there are any who choose to aid him in his effort, they will forward their offerings for the purpose to Bro. G. A. Glakeslee, at Galien, Berrien county, Michigan. Those who send should state to Bro. Blakeslee what they intend to have done with the amount they so send, that there be no mistake about it.

Bro. J. S. Roth, wrote from Olivet, Iowa, January 27th. He has succeeded in stirring things up in quite a fashion in the town. He attended service in one of the churches on the Sunday of his stay, and had the satisfaction of hearing his faith presented as seen by the reverend Bolten, (whom the Edenville Saints will recollect), and Bro. Roth says that he was reminded of a sollier loading his gun with boiled peas and attempting to batter down the rocks of Gibraltar. Mr. Bolten made his attack from the stand that water baptism was not essential to salvation. Of course Bro. Roth began his effort to prove the provisions of the gospel, and continued till he has stirred up quite an inquiry. Of it he says: "I have not seen so great excitement since that raised at Viola, Linn county, a few years ago." Bro. Roth goes to Jasper county, then to Harden to open a new place near Bro. Hammer's, after that to Cedar Rapids, and Linn county; and so on. "May God's work go on is my prayer."

Bro. P. W. Premo wrote from Rushville, Nebraska, where he is doing business. When he first went there, the people—some of them—threatened to hang him if he dared to preach "Mormonism;" but after awhile there was a more liberal feeling and he began to lend his Book of Mormon, and other of the church papers, and the prejudice waned. There are seven of the Saints at Rushville, and five twelve miles north, and Bro. Premo desires that they be preached to.

Bro. J. R. Lambert reached his appointment at Reger Springs, Mercer county, Missouri, the 28th January, but was prevented from filling the series he had contemplated, on account of a severe attack of neuralgia in his face and head, resulting from exposure to the cold wind on the ride over. He reports a great desire for preaching in the neighborhood of his labors. He has openings in several school houses, some of them from invitations tendered by those interested in the houses. Of these he says: "I am truly glad that though we shun not 'to declare all the counsel of God,' so many are willing to and anxious to hear."

Bro. D. S. Mills of Santa Ana, California, writes very cheerfully, that the labors of Bro. Heman C. Smith were being productive of great good in the Southern district; that he was being quite generally liked, and was well supported in his spiritual ministrations. His rule as a presiding officer was mild and quiet, though it was found that he could be firm without harshness, if the occasion required it.

Bro. Joseph F. Burton desires that those who write him or any of his family with him in Australia, to address them from February first, and afterwards, at Hastings, Victoria, Australia. Joseph F. Burton, Mrs. Emma, and Addie Burton. Bro. E. S. Burton will send him his address.

We published a good letter from Bro. J. F. Burton last week, the reading of which we commend to all lovers of the work and its spirit. The clippings from the papers referred to will appear in good time. They are very suggestive of an increased inquiry and interest in Bro. Burton's field.

In the HERALD for November 13th, past, in an article reviewing one by Bro. William Anderson, on Seventies presiding, we used the expression: "Bro. Anderson may be sincere and honest in so doing, and we are not willing to think he is not; but his argument is based upon improper premises." This has been taken to the disparagement of the honesty of Bro. Anderson, and he feels that we did him an injustice; we therefore state that the language was unnecessary and wrong, as we had no occasion to call the honesty of Bro. Anderson into question, in our controversy. We trust this will be taken as sufficient apology, and relieve any feeling that our careless writing may have engendered. We have known Bro. Anderson a long time and have always regarded him honest, though he differs widely from us in opinion.

Bro. F. L. Norton writes from Jonesport, Maine, January 24th, and states that he is of the opinion that the gospel is the mighty standard of the Lord, and that whoever builds a spiritual structure in accordance therewith, will be able to abide, while those who disregard the foundation will suffer the loss which must always follow faulty building. He says that Bro. Frank M. Sheehy has by sensible conduct gained a good report from all just persons.

Bro. Andrew Tabbutt of Detroit, Minnesota, has sent us some papers containing good articles concerning the land of Palestine, for which we thank him; we shall use them if we can find the space.

Sr. E. A. Shelley, wrote to brethren C. and L. Scott, Galien, Michigan, that it was the impression that they would have a time of peace from the attacks of Rev. Mills for a while now. He had made two appointments, filled the one but failed to keep the other. Inquiries were being made as to when Bro. Scott would return to preach in Sugar Grove, the place where the debate with Mills took place; there were those who desired to hear again. Bro. Scott wrote a reply to Rev. Mills but the Enterprise refused to print, except for pay, as he stated that he could not do so without losing subscribers to his paper, and that he could not afford to do; he stated however that he would not print one side, unless he could print the other, which is quite fair.

Papers reach us from various quarters, sent by brethren, with detailed accounts of the arrest of L. L. Luse, which we have once noticed in the HERALD. We are thankful for the kindness of the brethren.

By card from Bro. A. Haws we learn that he will return to California, his home, in the near future. His address will be East 14th street and 20th Avenue, Oakland, California. Bro. Haws will answer all correspondents asking him about Oregon with promptness.

Letters received from the following named brethren, which are crowded out: Samuel S. Mortimer, Roxbury, Massachusetts; D. S. Mills, San Bernardino, California; Francis Earl, Hegewisch, Illinois; Albert Haws, East Portland, Oregon; W. E. Cherry, Cortland, Illinois; E. Curtis, Independence, Missouri.

By letters from Bro. John A. Robinson to his wife, kindly sent us, we learn that he had been invited to speak in the hall of the Grand Army of the Republic, at Argenta, Illinois, upon a text from which the Bishop of the M. E. Church had spoken the night before; "Upon this rock I will build my church." Bro. Robinson states that the house was full and that he never enjoyed better liberty. Bro. Robinson received some compliments, but had to stand a running fire of questions, such as: "How about Joe Smith stealing horses?" "How about the Mountain Meadow massacre?" "How about polygamy?" All of these questions our mercurial salesman contrived to answer, in a good humored and effectual style.

In the Cortland Branch, Illinois, there are eight men members, only one of whom uses tobacco in any form; five of the eight voted the prohibition ticket at the last election, one third of the entire prohibition vote of the township; the aggregate age of four of the members is three hundred and four years; they have three meetings each Sunday, preaching at eleven; prayer and testimony, then reading and examination of the Book of Mormon; and this is pretty well for a branch of only seventeen members. W. E. Cherry presides over the branch.

Bro. Morris T. Short, of Millersburg, Illinois, sends us a clipping from the Aledo, Mercer county, Democrat, which is an excellent article on the history and faith of the church, the main argument being that the contemporary believers of Joseph Smith and their legitimate successors, should be allowed the undeniable right to define their own faith, in preference to any body else; which is both good law and sound common sense.

Bro. William Street has an article "Grand Army of the Republic vs. Mormonism," in the Delaware (Pennsylvania) County Advocate, for January 22d; a good and sensible presentation of the situation; and the distinctive differences between a Latter Day Saint, proper, and a polygamist.

Bro. W. Vickery of Plano, Illinois, says: "We had one of the best two days' meetings it has been my lot to attend; the Lord was indeed with us, to the consolation of all present."

It has been suggested to us that some think that we should not have allowed any answer to what Elder David Whitmer has presented, nor made any reply ourselves, because of the age and veneration that all Saints feel towards him; but it strikes us that when any one, no matter who, attacks the life of the work in which we are engaged, as we believe that Elder Whitmer has done, whether he intended to do so or not, it is our duty to ourself, to God, and His people to defend that work. It is a question easily stated, Elder Whitmer claims for himself and those with him, that they are the Church of Christ; and as a consequence that the Reorganization is not the Church, nor any part of it; if these claims be correct, it devolves upon them to show it. If, however, the Reorganization is the Church of Christ, or an integral part of it, there should be no hesitancy upon our part to stand in its defence; and, believing, as we do, that the evidences bear out our convictions in the matter, we are willing to help, so far as we reasonably can, to set the matter before the parties most interested; so that they may be able to say understandingly whom they may elect to serve with. We have been too long facing what has seemed to threaten the standing and progress of the church, and too often found the mountains to be mole-hills to be afraid now.

We went to Utah maintaining the validity of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, as we have it and as it was given to the church by those whose duty it was, and in maintaining it defended the character of Joseph Smith and his co-workers, as honest and worthy of belief; and we are not now prepared to sit idly by and see that character destroyed by an impeachment of his work and that of his fellows, without strong remonstrance. And whoever is of the opinion that we will not so far as we have the ability, defend the work of the Reorganization, against whatever we feel is intended to its hurt may at once revise that opinion for we expect to disappoint it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. James Caffall wrote from Hay Springs, Nebraska, January 31st:

"The production of the "History of the Persecution" is good, excellent; the "Mothers' Home Column" is doing a vast amount of good; and the sprightly article on the "Dispensation of the Fulness of Times" is a rest from." . . . "I arrived here after touching Fremont, Wisner and Clearwater, on the 22d; started preaching on the 23d. Can not report overflowing houses, or prospects of baptizing a nation in a day; but find an extensive field of labor in Sheridan county, needing steady, persistent labor to reach the ones of the cities, and the twos of families. This is a splendid opening for two unencumbered elders for a year's busy, responsible gospel labor. . . . This is a new country, and of necessity the gospel has to be preached under disadvantageous circumstances."

Bro. A. W. Thompson wrote from Santa Ana, California, January 26th:

"There seems to be a greater interest in the work here than there has been since I have been a member of the church. This is both in the church and out. Bro. H. C. Smith is getting some of the elders to work. Brethren French and Harris are in San Diego county, Bro. Holt is on his way to a field of labor, brethren D. S. Mills and H. C. Smith are out all the time. Three have been added to our branch lately."

Bro. John J. Cornish, Bay Port, Michigan, says:

"The interest in the gospel is still good through Huron and Sanilac counties. We are gaining ground on every hand; only in places where the calls can not be filled. The brethren in Uby are doing good labor locally. They have baptized five more lately."

Bro. Emsley Curtis wrote from Independence, Missouri, January 31st, of a late trip to Eldorado Springs. He baptized one December 26th. He attended the debate at Schell City and represents Elder Blalock as a keen, witty fellow. Bro. Curtis further says:

"I met an aged man by the name of John Rhoades who acted as moderator during a part of the debate, and found that he was acquainted with Joseph Smith, your father, and heard him preach many a time. I asked him what sort of man he was, and he stated that he was a gentleman; that he did not preach polygamy, and walked in the very best of society. Mr. Rhodes lived at one time near Nauvoo; and was satisfied that a many of the crimes committed in the region about that city, were not done by the Saints but by their enemies and for a purpose."

On his return to Eldorado Springs, Bro. Curtis baptized another, and soon after left that part of the field to Bro. H. Robinson and labored in St. Clair county, where he expects a good work in the near future. He was much blessed in his labors and gives the Lord the glory that is his due.

Bro. J. R. Wedlock of Cherokee, Iowa, says:

"We have had no preaching in this place for some time, and my soul hungers for some gospel preaching. I would to God that the world could see the gospel as I see it."

Bro. G. H. Hilliard writes from McVey, Illinois, February 5th:

"Bro. A. H. Smith and I have been here preaching for a week to attentive congregations; don't know what the result may be. Considerable prejudice and skepticism here. I think we have succeeded in removing some of the former. We will leave here the first of next week."

Bro. Peter Peterson, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, sends the following extracts from letters received by him from the brothers named, in Aalborg, Denmark:

"Bro. Leman Karsner, writes from Aalborg, Denmark, December 30th: 'The Saints here are alive to the work, and coming together every Sunday to prayer and testimony meeting. We have a very elegant hall to worship in. We wish that an elder could be sent to preach the gospel and administer the sacrament to us.'

"Bro. Mads Andersen writes from Aalborg, Danmark, January 4th. The death of Bro. Brix is a great loss and sorrow to us. We are praying God for an elder to come soon; there are some here ready for baptism. We pay the rent for the hall and are coming together every Sunday."

Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths wrote from Krumroy, Ohio, January 26th:

"Bro. E. L. Kelley baptized a lady, and I a man at Kirtland, a short time ago, and I am to baptize two here to-night, and organize a branch. We are having excellent times; and the prospects before the work in this district are grand. We opened the work in Chester, the week before I left home. Bro. J. Gillespie and self are on the way to conference, at Pittsburgh, to be held the 29th instant."

THE following is Bro. Burton's advertisement in the Forster, New South Wales, papers:

"BIBLE DISCOURSES.—A series of discourses will be delivered in Protestant Hall, Taree, by Elder J. F. Burton, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, commencing Thursday evening, December 16th, at half-past seven, and continuing Friday and Saturday evenings and on, as notice may be given. The theme of the discourses will be 'Christ's gospel, as it is revealed in the Bible.' Everybody invited; seats free. Elder Burton is not a Mormon, as some incorrectly affirm. The church which he represents being distinctively opposed to Utahism with the polygamic and other unlawful and unholy doctrines which are taught by the church of Utah, commonly known as Mormon."

The Forster correspondent gives the following notice of Bro. Burton's effort there:

"FORSTER.—Mr. J. F. Burton, the elder of the Church of Latter Day Saints, baptized seven more persons, of both sexes, at Forster, on Sunday last, and one female on the previous Friday.

To-morrow evening he will begin a series of discourses in the Protestant Hall, Taree; the subject being 'Christ's gospel, as revealed in the Bible.' It will be seen that Mr. Burton repudiates all connection with the Mormon church of Utah."

OF the work of Bro. H. A. Stebbins, at Allendale, Missouri, the Worth county Times, has this to say:

"The Latter Day Saints are holding big meetings in their new church here. The meeting has been going on for ten days or more with a good attendance that has been well pleased with the able sermons they have heard delivered by Elder Stebbins of Lamoni, Iowa, and Elder Jones, of Harrison county. They have received several new additions to their church during the meeting."

The Grant City Star, makes mention of the same work thus:

"The Latter Day Saints have been holding a protracted meeting here for the past week. Several ministers are here from a distance, among whom we recognize Rev. C. H. Jones, of Harrison county, also Rev. H. A. Stebbins, of Lamoni, Iowa, one of their most talented elders."

BRO. M. H. BOND succeeded in getting a half column of defence of the Reorganization into the Boston Daily Globe, of the 20th of January, in reply to the attack of the Rev. William Burnet Wright, of the Berkely street church, who had made a senseless and vituperative onslaught upon Mormonism, as a whole. We give the closing portion of Bro. Bond's article, not having room for the whole of it.

"If 'Mormonism,' as left by Joseph Smith, is the result of fanaticism and wickedness, why not expose its teachings instead of calling names, and taking up the stories set afloat by its enemies, and throwing dust in the eyes of the people?"

"Truth has never suffered in fair encounter, nor will it to-day; but popular rumor, or even the statement of reverends and doctors of the law in the light of history, may permissibly sometimes be questioned. Jesus and his cause suffered at their hands."

"There is just as much truth and reason in these statements as there is to say that 'the vices and stupidities of the commonplace scoundrel,' Joseph Smith, form the basis of the faith of Latter Day Saints. It would be just as true and just to say that the religion of Jezebel and the doctrine of the Nicolaitans (polygamy) were the legitimate outgrowth and result of the teachings of Jesus and his apostles as to say that the crimes of the Utah hierarchy are the result of the religion of Joseph Smith and the teachings of the Book of Mormon, or the revelations given to the church to 1844. Some years ago Rev. Newman Hall held a discussion with Orson Pratt in Salt Lake City, and the spectacle was there presented of Dr. Hall, an orthodox minister and chaplain of the United States Senate, I think, with the Book of Mormon and the Revelations of Joseph Smith in his hand, condemning polygamy out of these books, and apostle Pratt, the 'Mormon,' with Dr. Newman's orthodox, King James' translation, defending polygamy out of this Bible, from the practices of David, Solomon and other Bible worthies. The Book of Mormon says: 'David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was an abomination before me, saith the Lord.'"

THE following from the local paper where Bro. White has been laboring tells its own story; in connection with his letter found elsewhere, it indicates that the work is indeed moving, and it is the same wherever the elders are dutifully engaged in their work.

"Rev. I. N. White left this morning for El Dorado where he will conduct a series of revival meetings which will be held for two weeks. He returned last night from a very successful revival at Lowry City, where many were converted and on Sunday several persons were baptized."

FROM AUSTRALIA.

THE following clipping is from the Hastings correspondent of the South Bourke and Mornington Journal of New South Wales:

"The denomination known as the Latter Day Saints continue to hold their services in the Athenæum on Sunday afternoons, and hold Sunday School in the forenoon. Mr. Evan Jones, an elder of the church, assisted by Mr. Ashton Woolley, a priest of that order, conduct service, which judging from a deliverance on a late occasion is merely a simple and calm statement of the old story. There may be peculiar interpretations of passages of Scripture, and which are considered perhaps essential to salvation. The interpretations are harmless in themselves; but the infallibility of any sect in the present day is hardly consistent with charity; however, there is in their service a quiet, solemn mode of proceeding calculated to inspire confidence in the hearers, that the truths which are delivered with implicit faith are genuine, and that they require no evolution or ranting to enforce them. What a contrast is here with another church, who apparently think that a truth without noise or gesticulations must be fruitless. A worldly truth in its simplicity is valued most, and would indeed be spoilt by any embellishment, and why a Divine truth can not be delivered in a manner appropriate to the solemnity of the subject is not apparent. The Saints form a very respectable church of their own, and occasionally hold services at Somerville, which are well attended. An elder is shortly expected from the United States to fortify the members of that faith, and by an exposition of the tenets of the church, to perhaps make more converts."

The following letter from Bro. J. F. Burton was published in the Macleay Chronicle of a late date:

Dear Sir:—Will you please allow me again to reply to "Reporter's" article in your issue of November 18th. He does not wish to drive me into a corner but "positively refuses" me the use of Scripture, and when I reason upon the principles in question he is pleased to call it sermonizing, and now refuses that, and does not like me to impeach his leading witness; so I guess I must stop; for if I can not quote Scripture, present reasons, nor impeach witnesses who bear false witness against us, I may as well end my effusions. However there is one corner left. I may point out a few of the mistakes of his last article. He thinks me rash to deny the evidence of the Encyclopedias. When a book however authoritative it may be deemed states that a man is dead, whom I know beyond controversy is still living, I am forced to disbelieve the book, however much I may dislike to do so. The Encyclopedias say that the "three witnesses," are dead. David Whitmer is one of these witnesses; he is still alive in Richmond, Missouri. Where did the writers for the Encyclopedias get their information concerning his death, did not they also get the false statement "of his denying his testimony" from the same source that they received the other erroneous statement, and if they are so careless in collating material for their work, especially when publishing against a society, what confidence can any one have in their statements. I can afford to be rash, for I have the truth, and there is a wire from here to the Richmond and Oberlin, Ohio. No type has ever formed words of sufficient weight to gain credence with me against the evidence of my senses. I have seen and examined the "Spaulding Manuscript" which the "Encyclopedias" say was the origin of the Book of Mormon, and as there is no semblance at all between them, their testimony can not be accepted; but the statement of President James Fairchild of Oberlin College is "That some other origin for the Book of Mormon must be looked for if another is needed—for this manuscript certainly is not." But if I am thrown out of the pale of argument because of this how about yourself "Reporter." You state "that Joseph Smith taught that the lost tribes were at the North Pole." The Encyclopedias, histories of Religion, and reporter in Macleay Chronicle lately, have stated that he taught that the Anglo Saxons were the lost tribes, and that he was gathering them to America. Do you in thus denying their testimonies "put yourself out of the pale of argument." There was a historian who wrote several centuries ago named Esdras who said that the ten tribes had gone into a north county where man had not yet been, probably Joseph Smith believed him. "Peschal" a German writer in his "Races of Man" in one line of argument says, that America was the birthplace of the race of man. If so perhaps the Hebrews are the descendants of the forefathers of the American Indians; he must have concluded at least that there was some connection between them, by the size of brain, hair, language, and features.

Reporter has his own testimonies respecting what he heard in Dublin and Liverpool in 1857. There was no Elder of the Church in Europe between 1844 and 1863, he probably heard some Brighamite elders whose statements we do not accept, nor answer for. In your remarks concerning the original plan of Christianity you should have reversed your arguments if you wished to stand by the facts. The original plan of Christianity provided for apostles, prophets, and superhuman gifts, received because of compliance with certain rules of action, as the conditions upon which they should, or could be received. If the conditions are not complied with the promise is not obtained, but it does not follow that the plan has failed. You may as well say that the plan has failed which says "that seed time and harvest shall remain as long as the world lasts," because no harvest followed where no seed was planted. The strength of the unpopularity of this "sect everywhere spoken against," lies in the oft repeated statement by the Saints, that the original plan of Christianity is the right and true one, and therefore there is no need for any fresh scheme, or organization, or rule of faith or practice. So we consider that the Great Architect of the universe has a plan, the original plan, for man's redemption from Adam on, and that He still adheres to it, therefore is unchangeable and no respecter of persons, and will hear and answer anyone who asks Him to-day precisely as he did 1,800, 3,000 or 6,000 years ago. And as we have heard from Him and witnessed His power in superhuman gifts, we are prepared to certify that He is not asleep nor on a journey and that the original plan has not failed. But I must stop or "Reporter" will think I am sermonizing.

He says I must be careful of the converts, or they may look out for a second wife—well sir, so far as the Church is concerned, they are at liberty to do so. We have no dungeons, no chains, no stakes, if a man is a Saint it is because his judgment, reason and intellect are satisfied that the system of belief and practice is the best and the original one. But if one changes and thinks some other way best he moves on as he chooses, but if any member should choose to "look for a second wife" he by that act would sever his connection with the church which I represent.

It has ever been the boast of the Saints that they are willing to prove all things and to hold fast to that which is true. Therefore their boasting is different often times to others. I have gone into neighborhoods where the people have afterwards boasted that not a single person would go out to hear the stranger, who asked nothing of them but to give him a hearing. Such a boast would be accounted a shame to a Latter Day Saints community.

I have met with the Romanists, Episcopalians, and all other Protestant sects, and with the more erratic societies, "Quakers, Holiness band," Army etc., and leaving my prejudices outside, and in measure drinking into the spirit of devotion of the occasion, as I have witnessed the earnestness of the worshipers, have gone forth therefrom realizing that I had been aided on in my desires to live better each day, by thus meeting with them. I have sat in the synagogues listening to the Rabbi's intoning their service of the "Law," and looking into their mild, sad, longing-looking countenances, could not help thinking of the plaintive wail of that people, through all these many generations: "How long, O Lord, how long," and the answer wafted down the stream of time from Calvary: "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in, then all Israel will be gathered in"—I have left their synagogues with a mellowed feeling towards all men, and the prejudice against that race melted away. I have met with the Latter Day Saints from the Pacific to the Atlantic in America, in the British Provinces and now in Australia, and I think if any one wishes to get evil from their meetings, they must carry their prejudices with them. The counsel of the elders to the members is to accept truth wherever they find it, to hear all men as they have opportunity, and try their statements by the unerring counsel of God's word, what is in accord with it accept what is contrary to it reject. I think it will be a grand thing for the race of man when the day dawns in which no man will abuse nor disrespect another because of his religious belief. May God hasten that day.

Respectfully,
JOS. F. BURTON.

"Easier to smite with Peter's sword
Than watch one hour" in humbling prayer,
Life's "great things," like the Syrian Lord,
Our hearts can do and dare."

WE are pleased to be able to announce that sister Rose is slowly but steadily improving, and now entertains strong hopes that she will yet be able to walk again. She wishes us to express her thanks and gratitude to the many who have sent her words of cheer and encouragement during the days of her loneliness and suffering. She would be glad to write to each one and tell them how she has been helped and supported by their sympathy and prayers, for she says that many times her pain has been instantly relieved and she knew that the Saints were praying for her. Many also in the fulness of their Christmas tide remembered her. May the Lord bless them, we say.

LAMONI, IOWA, Feb. 6th, 1887.

WE believe the sisters will agree with us that this is one of the best letters ever sent to the "Column." They are coming, our army of young Saints, and no fear as to how the battles will go, for Jesus will lead them. "There stands one with a drawn sword who has come as Captain of the Lord's Host."

LAMONI, Iowa, January 23d.

Dear Sister Frances:—I was thirteen years old the twelfth of this month, but thirteen cents seemed so little to send (when I would like to do so much) that mother said I could find the sum of my birthday's and send that amount. The remaining nine cents I send for my sister Cora who was three years old the third of this month. I earned my money sewing carpet rags and helping mother. Your little Sister, CLARA COCHRAN.

Sister Frances:—I am a child in the work, as I have not been a member of the church quite three years, and never knew anything about the Latter Day Saints until I was married, which was about one year before I was baptized. My husband and myself were baptized the same day, and I have never at any time doubted this work. We are now living in the mountains where there are no Saints except ourselves and one of my sisters. We have always lived near the Sacramento branch until we moved here last fall. We have one little girl three years old, and we desire to bring her up to embrace the gospel; and I have great hopes of her being very sincere in the work of the Lord. I feel that it is a great undertaking to bring her up in the right way, but have resolved to do the best I can by her.

I take great delight in reading the "Mothers' Column, and to be instructed as much as possible in regard to raising my little one, as she is the pride and comfort of my home.

Your sister,
M. A. H.

SCOTTSVILLE, Ind., January 23d.

Sister Frances:—It is our sincere desire to see the kingdom of God roll onward, even to the subduing and crushing of all others, and stand forth grand, prominent and superior to all other kingdoms; and as we are subjects of that kingdom, and wish to shine as gems among the sanctified, we ever seek to do the will of our King, and promote His glory; and we believe it is His will to cast in our offerings, mites, etc., (as Jesus approved of the widow's mite). Should we be permitted to enter the gates of the beautiful city, and be among those who have done so much for the cause of Christ, and ourselves done nothing, save lead peaceful lives; methinks we would feel we had slighted our Monarch, and neglected our duty in some respects, and were not worthy that "exceeding weight of glory" that would accrue to toilers for the Master. We trust sisters of the Southern Indiana district will come to the front and help aid the good work. We find the "Home Column" really entertaining, and wish it a long and prosperous life. Trusting to become heirs of the divine inheritance, we remain,

CYNTHA O. SCOTT,
SARAH A. GOSS.

Dear Sisters:—We all love this latter day work, at least we say we do; and if it is good for us it is good for every son and daughter of Adam. Let us each and every one do a little to further on the cause. How can we help? some may ask. Some would answer in various ways, such as free-will offerings, and after that if we get a surplus we will tithe ourselves, but we must have a surplus before we can be tithed. Now to my mind we must tithe ourselves first; after that we may offer free-will offerings; for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver; from this time forward let us begin to pay our tithes and offerings to the Most High for the spread of the gospel.

What would you think of any one that were owing you a sum of money, and he seemed indifferent about paying you, or even would go as far as to say that he was not owing you anything, but once in awhile this same one would make you a present? What would you think of such a one? Would you not think better of such a one if first he paid his debts, if indeed he never offered to make you a present? And would you not respect the party owing you if he were prompt in paying, and from such a one you could not help to appreciate a gift, if he were disposed to make a gift. By this comparison I hope to make an impression upon your minds, and that is this: Let us not make our free-will offerings until we have paid our tithes; and after we pay our tithes, if we wish to make free-will offerings we can do so. To the best of our understanding tithing is our honest debt; free-will offerings are gifts; therefore let us pay our debts first; after that we may offer our free-will offering; and the Lord has assured us he will accept our offering if it is given cheerfully—as he loves a cheerful giver. Now, dear sisters, let us not withhold our little tithes. Let us help to push the gospel to earth's remotest bounds. Would it not be glorious news to hear of the spread of the gospel in every nation under the sun? and thus would be gathered into the church all the honest in heart; for this gospel of the kingdom must be preached in all the world for a witness, and then shall the end come. We read that the Lord will cut his work short in righteousness; would we not like to see how fast that work might be done, if we truly desire to see the gospel promulgated in all the nations of the world, and the fulfillment of the scriptures—for then heaven can no longer contain Jesus. Now let us try the Lord at his own word; let us prove him; let us pay in our tithes, and thus help loosen the hands of the reapers; and let us, dear sisters, do all we can, by first beginning to pay our little tithes, little though they be. The Lord will have respect unto little things. If indeed, little we have, little will be required of us; but we must not hold back even the little that is required of us. So let us try and be faithful, and we will be blessed. Let us from this time on send in our tithes to the Bishop, for if we do our entire duty, we are not doing too much for so glorious a cause.

SISTER BERTHA.

DELOIT, Iowa, Jan. 24th.

Sister Francis:—I thank God for the cheering words in the Home Column. It has long seemed to me I was doing so little for the work so dear to me; so much to be done; all so busy; many accomplishing so much, and must I, can I only look on?

"Do thy duty, that is best;
Leave unto the Lord the rest."

The clock just struck two. I am alone watching over and caring for my paralyzed companion. He can not lie down, and suffers much. Mothers, sisters, weary watchers, read these words of comfort, look up, God will own and bless us if we do all we can. I have tried many times to have courage enough to write.

The Mothers' Home Column!
Haste, see it arise!
Already its banners
Are sweeping the skies,
And showering down blessings
So long kept in store
For purified vessels
To fill, running o'er.
Each stone in the column—
Nay, it seems there's but one;
The preparing and joining
Is so fitly done,
Each stone is so lively,
It sparkles with light;
'Tis the much tribulation
That makes them so bright.

Your sister in Christ,

SISTER FANNIE.

MOOREHEAD, Iowa, Jan. 17th.

Sister Frances:—The Spirit prompts me to write, and by the help of the same I will endeavor to do so. God knows I desire to do his will, but I am weak, I fear lest I shall fall by the wayside. I am trying very hard to conquer self, and find this is the hardest battle I have to fight. I daily see the need of more patience and a firmer determination on my part, and hope by the help of my Heavenly Father to overcome. The gospel is very dear to me—dearer than anything else, and I desire to live by the same. Let us strive on in our weak way, putting our trust in God, performing our daily tasks with all the patience we can command, leaving the rest with God, and all will be well.

We are so scattered and have been unable to meet together to worship for some time. I desire to help the missionary cause but not having paid all my tithes I think it my duty to first free myself of this debt, which I hope to be able to do before my next birthday.

Your sister in Christ,

SARAH J. ROSS.

We say amen to this, sister Sarah, because we do not believe in withholding from God with our right hand, what we owe him, and offering with our left hand a gift. This is an insult to our Maker.

MOUND CITY, Mo., Jan. 9th.

Dear Sisters: I believe that there are twenty-one members that belong to this branch, but they are scattered. We have prayer and testimony meeting every two weeks. Bro. F. C. Warnky was here three weeks ago and preached several discourses; he gave good satisfaction. I am in hopes that there will be some good done. I am glad to see this glorious work go on, for I know that it is true. I know that the Lord has blessed his Saints in many ways, and they will receive many blessings if they are only faithful in keeping his commandments. My desire is to live a Christian life. I have many trials and temptations, but hope to overcome them all.

Your sister in Christ,

M. C. LOOMIS.

KEY WEST, Kan., Jan. 10th.

Sister Frances:—My health is very poor and my days may be but few. I feel like saying a word of encouragement to the scattered ones. I can truly say that whether I stand or fall the work of God is true. I joined this church in 1844. When I heard the sound of the gospel my heart leaped with joy, and never doubted from that day to this, I have not been exempt from trials and afflictions, from sorrow and grief. God is mindful of his children. I know in whom I trust.

"Through all the changing scenes of life,
In troubles and in joy,
The praises of my God shall still
My heart and tongue employ."

Your sister in the one faith,

MARY EARNSHAW.

OREGON CITY, Cal., Jan. 5th.

Sister Frances:—It will be forty years the sixteenth of next May since I obeyed the gospel, and twenty years since I joined the Reorganized Church of Christ. I have never been sorry for doing so, nor have ever let an opportunity pass in expounding God's holy word. I am witness to so much of his wonderful power. I have seen the sick healed and have heard the Saints speak in tongues, and interpret. I saw two sisters possessed of devils and the devils were cast out by the power of God. I have heard angels sing, and have sung with angels in the spirit, when my spirit was absent from my body; all was sweet and in order. I have had great promises given me time after time. I am the mother of thirteen children, and have raised twelve; ten are living; seven have obeyed the gospel. Two others will also as soon as an opportunity is given.

Some of our sisters have given some very good instructions in the Mothers' Column; long may they continue to do so. All I can say, I have done the best I could. My children are kind and loving, and respect their father and me very much; and have never brought us any disgrace.

I will say a few words to our young mothers, in raising their little ones. Never give a baby food that is hard to digest, and it will save you a great deal of trouble, and save the dear ones much pain and sickness. For summer complaint take a handfull of rice, wheat or oats; parch very brown like coffee; grind it; boil it in sweet milk; sweeten with white sugar. A few spoonfuls will stop this disease, or dysentery.

For croup: When it is first observed, take a little flour; mix in a little cold water; stir to the thickness of cream. Give a teaspoonful every ten or fifteen minutes, it will allay the inflammation in almost every case, if taken in time. For a bad case put a piece of flannel in turpentine and lay it on the throat until it gets red, then put salt pork on it. Keep the bowels open with rhubarb; do not take the pork off until the little one is better, but put it on anew every morning and night. Diphtheria can be cured with the same treatment with a little sulphur blown in the throat and Perry Davis Vegetable Pain Killer for a gargle.

Your sister in bonds of the gospel,
JANET STRANG.

AKRON, Iowa, Dec. 4th.

Sr. Frances:—The Home Missionary Fund just suits me. I fell in with it, but as my birthday is not until the first day of March, will send what I have on hand, and trust him who never fails us for more to aid so noble a cause. The Herald, Hope and Expositor are my only preachers. I can not do without them. I am a great sufferer; have been very sick since Christmas day. I had not been well before, but Christmas morning sat reading of Almira Snow, and thought I would lay by my paper and write a few encouraging words to her, but on making the attempt found I was too sick, so could only pray for her. I trust she is better than this leaves me, and ask her prayers as well as all Saints, in my behalf. I ask your prayers too, that I may be able to perform my part nobly as a wife and mother. That I may be one of God's chosen instruments in leading souls to him. I have ten of Bro. Peters' Voice of Warning, that I have kept in the hands of those that promise to read them; have sold one to an Advent minister. Am asked for the Book of Mormon, too. Am trying to get people to see the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Let us keep our lamps trimmed with plenty of oil in them. Your sister in Christ,

M. A. CHRISTY.

McFALL, Mo., December 24th.

Sister Frances:—We do not have the privilege of going to Saints' meetings as some do; yet my husband has preaching at our house sometimes, and our neighbors come out well to hear him; but we are anxious for more to come in to the work, heart and hand, so we might have meetings once in this place. I wish some of the sisters that are strong in the faith were here to help us. We would be so glad if a few families of the Saints would move into our town. Pray for me and our family, sisters, that we may yet see a branch of the church raised up here in McFall.

Your sister in bonds,

Correspondence.

McVEY, Illinois, Feb. 5th.

Editors Herald:—Bro. A. H. Smith is about to conclude his labors in our district. He came in December, just in time for our district conference, and all felt blessed by his labors and counsel there. He went from there to the Tunnel Hill Branch, in Johnson county, and labored for a time; came back and labored in Dry Fork Branch, cheering and strengthening the Saints. Then he was at my house a few days sick; as soon as he was able he went on to the Brush Creek Branch, where he preached about two weeks, to the great satisfaction of the branch; we then came to this place where we have been laboring for the past week. There is no branch here. Bro. B. A. Morris lives here on the Jacksonville and South-Eastern Railroad. The traveling elders might call in passing. Bro. Alexander's visit here has done us good, and was a great satisfaction to the Saints, and seemed to satisfy the curiosity of a great many outsiders. We leave here the first of next week for home. Praying that God may bless him and all his servants in their labor of love; I am your colaborer in the covenant of peace.

G. H. HILLIARD.

CLINTON, Mo., January 31st.

Brother Dancer:—The work is moving all along the line. Bro. A. White and Loar are in Cedar county, brethren E. Curtis and H. H. Robinson have been holding the fort in St. Clair. Recently in a series of meetings held by brethren A. and C. in cedar they baptized two, and in St. Clair one more. Bro. Robinson and I resumed the work, and yesterday baptized four more. This makes sixteen here within a radius of a few miles, and yet many more are investigating. We had a crowded house last night, and great interest was shown when we spoke on the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, Elder Blalock is dissatisfied with the result of our debate and now wants to renew it. We do not wish to publish ourselves as a "fighter." What are we to do when the work demands our attention and a few fire-eaters are assailing us on every side? I see no other way but to stand in the front ranks and "let the battle go on."

We go to Clinton to-day, and to-morrow to Cedar county where we will hold a long-asked-for series of meetings where we held our debate with Elder Price last August. We can see the silver lining around the margin of the dark clouds as they are rolling by, and our faith is not yet shaken though we are called to fight for every inch of ground.

My sympathy is for and with Bro. C. Scott and the brethren in Michigan.

I. N. WHITE.

LAMONI, Iowa, February 3d.

Dear Herald:—Notwithstanding the fall and winter are the most busy times on church records, yet they are also the best times to preach the word, therefore it seems very necessary that all should be done that can be done when people are ready to hear, consequently I have endeavored to answer as many of the calls as I possibly could, taking some of my writing along to work on by day and preaching evenings through the week.

Since my return from Hudson, Wisconsin, where I preached during September, I have labored at Centerville, Iowa, and baptized three. From October 28th, the date of my return home. I have been busy most of the time on Seretary and Recorder's work, but was out several times for Saturday evening and Sunday sermons at places near by, and on January 15th I went to Allendale, Missouri, where is a branch of our district. The Saints and friends of the cause have there erected a meeting house recently, size 24 by 40 feet. This is a great advantage to the cause in that region, as shown by our late meetings. Began preaching and continued over till the 25th, Bro. C. H. Jones joined me on the 20th and giving timely and excellent aid, after his peculiar and effective style, so well known to all who know Bro. Charles. Meetings were well attended and largely so at the last, but I took a severe cold and throat and lungs became quite sore and the body weakened by the effect of the cold, hence came to a stop; Bro. Jones' business affairs also taking him home. But on the 24th we baptized four persons, two men and their wives, a grave being cut in the ice, to bury them with Christ in baptism. We left a promise to return February 4th and so expect to go down again tomorrow to continue the work where we left off, Bro. Jones to meet me there.

After returning home the 25th I went the 26th to Lucas, and on the 27th performed the marriage ceremony whereby Bro. William Shakespeare and Miss Jennie Willets became husband and wife. Bro. William is one of the noble and pureminded young brethren of that branch. There are numbers more of them, some married and some single, who are noble examples of what all the young men of our faith should be, and I rejoice at the work they are doing as branch officers and Sunday School teachers, and the Spirit whispers that the Lord will want them in the field of labor by and by.

At the urgent request of the good Saints of Lucas and Cleveland, I staid over Sunday the 30th and aided them three meetings of the day the best I could. I rejoiced with them in the manifest goodness of God to the faithful doers in his work.

While writing I will mention that since April conference of 1886, I have placed on the Records upwards of one thousand names added to the church by baptism that were never on record here before; over five hundred received by letter; over five hundred removed by letter, besides deaths, ordinations, marriages, besides doing a large correspondence concerning the same. Of deaths there have been 247 reported and recorded, 128 marriages and 102 expulsions. Have written 280 letters about record matters alone. Much matter continues to come in daily as it has all through the year and the above figures will be considerably raised before April comes again. I have been trying to hunt out the lost and scattered sheep, and the members of broken branches, so as to record them all in a separate record by states as they are found.

INDEPENDENCE, Missouri, Jan. 30th.

The church of Latter Day Saints at Independence are happy to receive visitors, but hope none will again misrepresent us by saying our little church is down under the hill. It is as large as the noble few were then able to build. I appeal to the good sense of those who have read the assertion and ask if they believe any branch of the Reorganization would build a church under the hill. If so, their credulity is greater than mine. Our church is conspicuously located on top of a hill. It is as the Savior said, our light should be like a city set upon a hill which can not be hid. This is as we intend all our works shall be, not under the hill, or the cover of any secret order, or combination; but boldly let our light shine. We are of those who Miss Kate Field wisely says live in harmony with the union and in the pure light of the laws of God, who inspired our fathers to frame the laws to govern this glorious republic; which when sustained, gives peace and prosperity to all good citizens, but are a terror to those that love dark combinations, because their deeds are evil.

Yours for truth,
MARY EATON.

GALENA, Ind., Jan. 14th.

Bro. Joseph:—I met with the Saints in Gallien, Michigan, at their place of worship on Sunday, December 19th, had a social meeting in the forenoon and at 7 p. m. I tried to speak in the interest of this great latter day work. I met Bro. Blakeslee for the first time and found him kind and sociable. May his light never grow dim. The entertainment given by the Sunday School was grand. I stopped with the Saints at Gallien until the 29th, and formed an acquaintance with many. From there I went to Clear Lake Branch, Steuben county, Indiana, where I continued until the 10th of January and spoke ten or twelve times with good liberty. Had the pleasure of meeting our aged veteran, Bro. B. V. Springer. I could have stayed longer and not been idle. I had thought that Michigan and Northern Indiana had more than their share of ministerial labor, but when I become more acquainted with the needs I see they could use more to advantage. At Clear Lake I was favorably impressed with the firmness and stability of the Saints, which is commendable and praiseworthy. It is a source of comfort to me to find so many noble Saints all over this country of ours, standing for the right. I have had some experience in sectarianism and can truly say there is nothing in it for me. If sectarianism is true, the Bible to me is false. If the Bible is true, then sectarianism is false. And if it were possible to prove this latter day work to be not of God, then this world would be to me as the universe without the sun. But thanks be to God our Father for the glorious light of the gospel, that is in such strict keeping with his laws. Why not be courageous brethren. I thank the Saints with whom I have been of late, and appreciate their kindness.

Your brother in the gospel,
M. R. SCOTT.

Editors Herald:—I have read of a theory by which persons can read the characters of those who write by seeing their hand writing; and they state that if the writing is not even the character is also the same.

It is the truth that I am searching for and not contention; although I have not seen much in the Herald lately between members of the Reorganized Church. I hope that we all may soon come to the unity of the faith in the gospel and the plan of salvation. I would like to see the heads of all families of the church take an interest in the work, and subscribe for the Herald and make it a success. I would like if a few more of the members of our branch would take this interest in hand, and help to move the cause onward. How I save up money to get the Herald. When I get ten, fifteen, or twenty-five cents, and can spare it, though I could use it very well for other purposes I put it away and say: That is for my Herald. When I get enough to pay for six months I send it.

The work of salvation is not progressing as well, or as fast as I would like to see it in this part. I think, we the officials of the branch might go into some of the settlements and preach the good word to this dark and benighted people, but for some cause the attempt has not been made. The spirit of inquiry does not make itself manifest at present. The Brighamites think their religion is true, and that the Lord will before long raise up some one of themselves who will deliver them from the persecutions that now afflict them by the United States Government. I for one think its hard to determine what kind of a stand they, the Brighamites, will take, but I hope that they will act wisely.

I also wish that this Rocky Mountain district could sustain more good faithful men in this field of labor, like our worthy brother, R. J. Anthony. And I believe the time is not far distant, when the demand will be great for good honest laborers. Brethren of this glorious cause, do you ever think of it? We may pray for them, but it will not clothe them. We may pray again, but it will not feed them. We as Saints should try by our little mites to supply their temporal wants, and our heavenly Father will supply their spiritual wants, and should try to consider this our duty. There are many honest in heart to be gathered out and brought into the fold before our work is done. My wife, two children and myself, are the only ones of my family that are in the church. The Brighamites are at this present time working at the Temple with vigor; for the last week some of the brethren was around to each family to give if they could, for they said the counselors, that five hundred dollars must be raised in a very few days to carry on the work of the Temple.

ALBION, Idaho, January 19th.

Dear Herald:—As so many good contributions fill your columns with food for both Saint and sinner, it would seem that the fountains of knowledge might be exhausted, were it possible. However, your pages are graced with the truest, and purest scintillations of heaven's truth. No finite mind can estimate the good you carry every year to hungry sons and daughters scattered over the world. It is an easy matter for us to all say we love you, but to prove our love by works seems not so easy, if our works be subjected to the scrutiny of the Spirit which prompted the law and testimony given in the books. How solemn is that covenant made with God by weak, erring, sinful man! O, how long shall we be learning to walk fully in the wisdom of heaven. How many of us will be of the wise, and how many of the foolish virgins when the Master appears to make up his jewels! This question should nerve every soul who has or who shall embrace the truth to make their calling and election sure, and gain the enduring substance of "the earnest of our inheritance," even "the purchased possession."

Proper love for the truth will necessarily induce us to covet earnestly the love of our heavenly Father. As it is written, "he that hath the hope of eternal life abiding in him, purifieth himself even as God is pure." Is not this the very soul of this whole matter? Can we say we love this holy work of God, while at the same time we are excusing ourselves in setting at nought his words of life and wisdom? We are all looking for the sign of the Master's appearance; but have we the wedding garment on?

The department occupied by the sisters is well worthy of them. There is no higher calling than theirs. They can make the preaching of the gospel of Christ a glorious success, or they can render it an almost hopeless task. Almighty, almost, is the influence woman exerts for good or evil. No greater responsibility rests upon any one, than on woman in her sphere. God bless the noble, spiritual minded women, planting the seeds of life eternal in the minds of young and old. One sister says she loves the sisters of the fold of Christ far more than those of the flesh. How very like the Savior looking upon his disciples,—“Behold my mother and my brethren; for whosoever shall do the will of my Father in heaven, the same is my mother and my brethren.” Those who have not reached thus far in the Master's love, know but little of the felicity of life in Christ. It is written, If any man live in Christ, he is a new creature; old things have passed away; all things have become new,” that we may move about among the beautiful works of God with the sweet consciousness that we are indeed his children, and be in league with the beasts of the field,” while all nature is sparkling forth his love—just what this unhappy, troubled, restless world needs.

To realize truly that God is pure, and that purity in man is the magic force which restores us to the felicity in Christ, is the only balm for a sin-sick world. This is the only way we may intelligently abide in Christ, or may understand the peace of God in a measure here. The world needs the gospel of Christ far more than they can conceive. Jesus could then come to his own and they would receive him. All who are His “will be satisfied” when they awake in his likeness. The knowledge of God is needed to enable us to see the sinfulness of sin. I suppose we have not much of the spirit of Christ if we do not see sin in and for ourselves. Charity suggests to us pity for the ignorance of mankind, even though it be largely willful; but an understanding of the truth in Christ, constantly incites to greater purity, to loftier aspirations. The wooing voice of the Master bids us “come up higher,” from plane to plane.

If we can hold all the ground we gain, God alone knows to what felicity man can attain in this life. But we know the elixir of heaven's love is more abundantly given as we advance towards perfection, towards the full “measure of the stature of Christ.” Sometimes when I feel like adding a mite for the readers of your pages it seems as though my words would be shaded and obscured by the light of other minds. It is plain to me that some of our old sun-browned, storm-beaten soldiers of the cross are so far ahead on the skirmish line that they might rest till the main lines advance to their support. But as this is individual victory or defeat and failure, they understand full well they could not hold their position, for advance or retreat is inevitable.

Very truly indeed, did God reveal to his “choice Seer” the basic principles upon which rests his church, and the terms of full salvation to the human race. The highth, the breadth, the depth of the wisdom of God! Who that ever properly looked into the perfect law of Christ, but would lift his eyes towards heaven and thank the Great King for such a plan of life, for this mortal existence; and feel ashamed that they ever worried a moment over the trials or temptations of life, seeing they may be made stepping-stones to celestial Glory! "Blessed is he that overcometh." Who would change it if they could? Satan wanted to, and perhaps those who prefer him and his wages might take the same view. I like the principles of rewards, and so do all when they see straight. The work seems slow about here in Idaho; though grounds which produce well of briars, and weeds, will generally produce well of good fruit when subdued.

I am fond of the Herald, Hope and Expositor, and constantly in prayer remember those who bear the burden of supplying this food. Very precious it should be to all Saints.

Yours with love in gospel bonds,
C. L. ALBERTSON.

CLINTON, Iowa, Jan. 26th.

Brother Blair:—We are doing very well here. The Saints are alive to the work, and I hope for good results. On the twentieth we cut through the ice and baptized a young man, aged twenty-four years. Others are making diligent inquiry and searching the Scriptures. Others have said they were convinced and should obey. There has never been such inquiring to know the truth in Clinton, since I have been here. I have appointments out for the evenings of the 26th, 27th and 28th, and Sunday the 30th, morning and evening. Our prayer and testimony meetings are well attended, both by the Saints and others, and the Saints are made to rejoice by the presence of the holy Spirit.

BOX 16 KENT BRIDGE, Ont., Jan. 29th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I have been a seeker after truth for some time; was brought up a Methodist. When I arrived at the age of nineteen the Spirit of God showed me my true condition; also pointed out what would be required of me in after life. I sought advice from ministers; read every thing I could get upon those subjects. The ministers said I was getting "off," and that it would soon blow over; some told me if I lived forty years I would never enjoy any more, that I had been converted or saved, and must battle with hopes and fears the remainder of my life. I was counted crazy by some; I suppose for saying in an earnest, honest way, that God was leading me; that he had showed me there was a work for me to do. I used to attend Methodist class meeting, would tell my honest convictions; when the class leader would rise and say that he had been forty years in the way and never had such light and knowledge given him, as I believed was in store for the truly humble and faithful soul. Those are a few of the discouragements that surrounded me; but, praise God, I was kept from casting away my hope. At the age of forty-one I left home, visited some of the western states, and then went to the old country; went to hear all the great preachers, so-called, as I had read of; namely, Spurgeon, Talmage, Beecher, Moody. Attended service at Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, and every other denomination, sect or creed that I could reach. I therefore came to the conclusion, that truth was not to be found in them; returned home still believing there was truth somewhere, and that God would reveal it to me in some way. Two weeks ago I was led to go and hear Elder Richard C. Evans, who was then preaching in Chatham. I found that he had indeed the words of eternal life, and the Latter Day Saints are the children of the kingdom; the very ones that I have been taught to despise and never a book either for or against them, allowed to come in the house. This day is the Scripture as fulfilled in our ears. Pray for me that the clouds of tradition and sectarianism may be removed; that I may see the truth in all its simplicity and grandeur.

Faithfully yours,
C. U. TIFTON.

PLEASANTVILLE, Iowa, Jan. 14th.

Dear Herald:—I first united with William Bickerton in the state of Pennsylvania. I there received a knowledge of the latter day work, and a testimony that Joseph Smith was the instrument in the hands of God of bringing about the restoration of the gospel. I there had many seasons of rejoicing with that people, but it was before Bro. Joseph took his place in the church. I was baptized November 9th, 1859. Bro. W. W. Blair made us a visit in 1863, but the officers in charge would not suffer him even to speak in our meeting. This to me was evidence that there was a want somewhere, and it soon proved to be so, for it was but a very short time before a division crept in, and first one then another took to them a leadership until there was four of five presidents over some three or four hundred members. Thus confusion crept in, fellowship and the sweet communion we once enjoyed were destroyed.

Not knowing anything about any other church, and having been confirmed by testimony that there could be but one true church at the same time on the earth acknowledged of God, I wept tears of bitter anguish for the beautiful church, and to me the only church on the earth. But having been confirmed in the faith that God would hear and answer prayer, in the year 1877 I commenced to call on the Lord in mighty prayer and fasting. I continued to do so for about three months. That fall my son, living in Iowa (I had been in Iowa previous to this but went back to Pennsylvania that spring), was taken sick and was not expected to live. I came to see him, but before I came I had evidence that he would not die at that time, and it proved to be so. I remained in Iowa over the winter.

I had been apprised of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, but I could not consent to be re-baptized. The following summer Bro. I. N. White came to where we were living, and we entertained him. He preached several times and reasoned with me until I was convinced, and was baptized in July 1878. Thus, as I believe, the Lord ruled all things for my good. And I am thankful to my Heavenly Father, and feel the work to be dearer to me now than ever before, and I feel to praise the Master and give glory and honor to him for the knowledge he has given me, and a desire in my weak way to thrust in my sickle and reap, and gather in the golden grain.

I desire wisdom and understanding, purity and holiness of heart and the love of God, so I may wisely dispense the bread of life to the sons of men. To this end I have commenced the year 1887. I ask the prayers of all Saints.

I was somewhat acquainted with W. P. Brown when I was in the Bickerton faction. I well remember the fruits of the flesh were very prominent, and seldom those of the Spirit. He had many revelations, and he generally brought discord; but he soon left the church. These things I know. I should never have named them had I not read how he has been doing in the east, where he gave very good proof that he has not mended; yet I hope he may become wiser, and learn better. To this end I can pray for W. P. Brown. I am now in Warren county, in company with Bro. W. C. Nirk. I had held five meetings, when my worthy brother came to my assistance. We are having good attendance and attention, with fair liberty. We want to do our duty and leave the rest with the people and the Lord. If the Saints of the Des Moines district know of any new openings, be pleased to address W. C. Nirk, Rhodes, Marshall county, Iowa.

Beloved Saints; I read in the Herald many of your testimonies that the time of the coming of the Son of Man is near at hand. This I also believe, for the budding fig-tree is putting forth its leaves. About this time there will be five wise and five foolish virgins. Every one should be diligent to be of the first class, let the foolish come from where they may. Yours,

JOSEPH P. KNOX.

WHAT AND HOW SHALL WE PREACH?

THE above question covers so much ground that I will not attempt to answer, only as to a few leading features.

In the law given to the church as found in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants the Lord says, "that every man, both elder, priest, teacher, and also member, go to with his might, with the labor of his hands, to prepare and accomplish the things which I have commanded. And let your preaching be the warning voice, every man to his neighbor, in mildness and in meekness. And go ye out from among the wicked. Save yourselves. Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord." The latter clause calls our attention to the first thing necessary, that is, to prepare ourselves by being "clean"—as is said elsewhere—"through the blood of Christ." The first clause reminds us of the energy necessary, and another shows the manner in which preaching should be done—"in mildness and in meekness," so that our manner might be attractive. For Christ has said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." And as the preaching of the gospel is the means by which men will be drawn to Christ, how necessary it is that we should show by our "faith, virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, and brotherly kindness," that we are the representatives of Him—"in deed and of a truth."

Again the Lord says that the "elders, priests and teachers of this church shall teach the principles of my gospel which are in the Bible and Book of Mormon, in the which is the fulness of the gospel; and they shall observe the covenants and church articles to do them; and these shall be their teachings as they shall be directed by the Spirit; and the Spirit shall be given unto you by the prayer of faith, and if ye receive not the Spirit ye shall not teach."

We find the Bible here to take the pre-eminence; first, because of its age; second, because it is the "standard" of God's word, so that all the word of God given after must not contradict that which we find therein; and as the tenor of the Scriptures teaches that the foreknowledge of God enabled him to see that after man was created and given dominion over the rest of the things created, that he, man, would fall to such a state of misery and death that it would be impossible for him to redeem himself, and that God prepared a sacrifice in the person of Jesus Christ, to redeem not only Adam, but as many as should be born after, who should believe in Jesus Christ, and by belief I mean that kind of belief that will prompt us to do that which is necessary to be done in order to be saved. This brings us to the consideration of the fact that Jesus Christ is the central figure in the great plan of redemption comprehended in the gospel. And to this truth, taking the Inspired Translation of the Holy Scriptures, is the witness borne from beginning of Genesis to the very end of Revelations. And especially do we find this to be the central thought in the New Testament Scriptures, both as to the evidences contained in the Old Testament, being brought forward, as well as the evidence of "eye witnesses." So likewise in this respect we find the Book of Mormon to teach, from beginning to end, that Jesus Christ is made the central figure. So much so, that in the synopsis of every discourse preached to the Nephites and Lamanites upon this continent as recorded in the book, the name of Christ is mentioned as the only name through which salvation can be hoped for. Then in the presentation of the "principles" of the gospel Christ should be the central thought.

In discoursing on the divinity of the Scriptures, the Book of Mormon, the mission of the "choice seer," and especially the two latter, Jesus Christ should be kept in plain view, both to the speaker and hearer, so that no one could say in truth that we are not trying, at least, to present Christ and him crucified. We see no provision made in the above quotation for preaching, only that which we "verily believe and know to be true," as we are commanded elsewhere, and I certainly think if we would adopt the system of affirming whatever proposition we are led by the Spirit to speak upon, and make but little if any negative argument, especially by way of telling what "others believe," our preaching would have better effect. I remember that soon after I began trying to preach, I got in the way of telling what somebody else believed, and how erroneous it was. And I run to such an extent that half my hour would be spent in this way. But after giving the matter some thought I concluded it would not do, for at least three reasons. One was, that it would take a great deal of research on my part to find out what others believed that I did not believe, so that I might not misrepresent them. Another was, that even if I did not misrepresent them I would be preaching their faith without their paying me for it. Another was, that I was occupying precious time in preaching the faith of others, when my calling was to preach what I verily believed and knew to be true. And last, but not least, I discovered that I was apt to present the faith of others in such form that it tended very much toward insulting those present who held to such belief so that they would pay but little if any heed to what I said. It is quite essential that we should be "established in the present truth," and in order to be thus established it is necessary to preach that "truth" which pertains to us now—at the present time—and not waste our energies in trying to tell what will happen a thousand years hence, and thus neglect telling that which belongs to us now.

In presenting that which God has promised to perform in time to come, it should be with a view to stimulate to present duty. In "talking of judgments" in the time of God's mercy, would serve to leave the people in an unprepared condition when the judgments shall come; and would likely, to some extent, be laid to our charge, beside subjecting us to unnecessary ridicule, because we find the world to still be jogging along. And while the judgments of God, promised to be poured out in this generation, (and we are now in the beginning of the last half, so that it is well understood by us that the judgments to some extent, are already being poured out), it is still better to preach mercy, while mercy may be had.

It is no doubt advisable to use the King James translation of the Bible, as that is evidently the one referred to in the above quotation, yet it now seems an opportune time, especially in preaching in the branches, to show the difference betwixt that and the Inspired Translation, and by degrees teach it to all nations, according to the commandment. Especially would it be well to read up and compare the two, and present that, which seems to us the most reasonable. For instance, read, "For unto such hath God promised his Spirit," instead of "God is a Spirit." John 4: 24. When we discover that this is the only place, in any of the three books where such a statement is made, the correction becomes of vast importance.

That clause in the above—"the fullness of the gospel"—was timely; thus prohibiting any of the factions of the church from adding any principle, as "gospel," that is not couched within the two books, and it is also a complete bar to the purported revelation on "celestial marriage."

The command, "Let no man among you, from this hour, take purse or scrip that goeth forth to proclaim this gospel of the kingdom," does not entitle the preacher to set forth the matter in such form to the believing and unbelieving public, as would impress them with the belief that the preacher is not entitled to receive aid, because the same revelation provides that "they shall feed you, and clothe you, and give you money;" the money to be made use of for the preacher's family, or be sent to the Bishop. The word "take" in this text does not mean that the preacher shall not receive; but that he shall not take with him "either purse or scrip," that the preacher, as well as those to whom he may go, may be proved thereby.

This article is not written for those who have large experience in the ministry, but for those who are young in experience. With good wishes and fellowship for all, I subscribe myself.

J. C. CRABB.

THE GOSPEL.

THE gospel is God's proposition of eternal life to man; a declaration of righteous principles, the hearing of which and obedience thereto is destined in the economy of the Divine Creator to usher in the period when will be fulfilled that which was sung of by the angels to the shepherds as they watched their flocks by night on the plains of Bethlehem, at the birth of Jesus, the advent of the babe of Bethlehem being heralded to these humble shepherds by a concourse of angels singing, making harmony with heavenly music. "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, and good will towards men."

This babe lying in the rude manger was the one who should come, spoken of by the prophets and sages of the past, of whose coming the Psalmist sang. He was said to be the desire of all nations and was duly recognized by the Spirit; for when the child was brought into the temple, Simeon beheld him and lifting up his eyes, said:

"Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace according to thy word, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel."

Of the purpose of the mission of Christ to the world, Paul, when writing to the Hebrews, first chapter, says:

"God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by His Son, whom He hath appointed heir of all things, by whom He made the worlds; who being the brightness of His glory, and the express image of His person, and upholding all things by the word of His power, when He had by himself purged our sins, sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high."

Moses prophesied of him saying:—"A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people."—Acts, 3: 22, 23.

Moses stood as a lawgiver to that people. The prophet who was to come should in this sense be like him (except to a greater degree) a law giver. "There is one lawgiver who is able to save and to destroy." "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, to-day and forever."

Jesus then stands as a lawgiver, a teacher great in a pre-eminent sense—and what he says is authoritative. "Him shall ye hear?"

for by him "God hath in these last days spoken to us."

How essential it is, then, for all who profess to believe in Christ as the one sent of God, the Savior of the world, to seek out for themselves what the words of Christ are. With what care should we study his life, character, and teachings, lest we be deceived, ensnared or allured away from Christ by the sophistry and creeds of men, and thereby fail to comprehend the importance and scope of his mission.

It is said that God will "judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath appointed." Jesus informs in what way this judgment will be brought about: "If any man hear my words and believe not, I judge him not, for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words hath one that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day. For I have not spoken of myself but the Father which sent me; He gave me a commandment, what I should speak. And I know that His commandment is life everlasting; whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak."—John, 12: 47-50. "My doctrine is not mine, but His that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 7: 16, 17.

At the commencement of the ministry of Jesus he called men to be his associates, and these he termed "apostles" and "seventy." These he chose from the various associations of life. In all probability among the number were fishermen, farmers, mechanics, lawyers and doctors—in fact could we get at the full history of those men I judge we should find about every pursuit of life represented. To these men Jesus committed his message, making them like unto himself so far as being in the capacity of a teacher is concerned; instructing them to be faithful in declaring the message he delivered unto them; not permitting any modification or enlargement, [deviation.—Ed.] making them responsible for the faithful declaration of the things he instructed them to teach to men as being the truth of God revealed in himself. Hear what Jesus says of this matter: "Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word."—John 17: 20. In verse 14 he tells plainly what their word is by which men may believe in Christ: "I have given them thy word." "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me! and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me."—John 13: 20.

Subsequent to these sayings Jesus was betrayed, brought before Pontius Pilate and judged, condemned to die the ignominious death of the cross, was eventually crucified between two thieves on Mount Calvary. His body was placed in the tomb, and "on the third day the angel of the Lord descended and rolled away the stone from the door of the sepulchre," and Jesus burst the bands of death, bringing his body forth from the grave. A time was appointed to meet his disciples; they met him and again received a renewing of their commission to preach or teach the gospel, the word of God, God's proposition of eternal life to the world. Again from the lips of the Savior they heard the command: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen."—Matt. 28: 19, 20.

Prior to his death Jesus had told them of the coming of "the Comforter, the Holy Ghost," which he would pray the Father to bestow upon his people. Now he tells them before going to "all the world" to deliver their message, to "tarry at the city of Jerusalem until they are endued with power from on high."—Luke 24: 49. In Acts chapter 2 is a graphic account of the disciples being assembled together "with one accord" in "an upper room" at Jerusalem, waiting for this endowment of power from on high: and as they prayed, the Holy Ghost came as the sound of a mighty rushing wind from heaven, and filled the house, sitting upon them as cloven tongues of fire, and they were filled with the Spirit and began to speak with tongues and to magnify the name of the Lord. This became noised about the city, and the Jews, devout men who were then dwelling at Jerusalem, who had come from every nation "under heaven" to keep the feast of Pentecost, these hearing of this strange matter came running together, and when they themselves heard, they marvelled; others mocked and said, "these men are drunk or mad." But Peter, one of the foremost of the apostles, stood up and said, "These men are not drunken as ye suppose." But this is that spoken of by the prophet Joel, &c.

He then preached of the mission and character of Christ, he charged them with the rejection and crucifixion of "the Lord of life and glory." He certified to his resurrection and ascension to heaven. He spoke of the Savior's promise and testified that according to his promise "he has shed forth this which ye now see and hear." These men heard and believed, for "they were pricked in their hearts, and cried out, Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

Oh what an important question for unsaved men to ask? and with what intense interest they must have listened for the answer! What a responsibility do men assume to stand before dying men to answer for God! It must not be the views of Peter; neither the theories of John; nor the opinions of James. No, Peter; if you are an "ambassador for Christ" you are sent of God and "will speak the words of God." You will have a clear conception of the way of life yourself and like your Master will say, "He that sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say and what I should speak, and I know that his commandment is life everlasting." What a world of contention would cease if people would just read Peter's answer and judge for themselves? And what a oneness would characterize the people of God in sentiment, and in doctrine, with regard to the way of life? But, alas! this is not the case. Instead we have the teachings of this and that church, the opinions of this and that man, as to what Peter meant or what Jesus meant, bringing confusion, doubt, derision and distrust in the minds of honest enquirers.

Peter's answer was clear, comprehensive, and free from ambiguity. He spake as one having but recently heard the message from the lips of his Master, as one endued "with power from on high." He is in possession of the Spirit of truth: hear him as he delivers his message to that enquiring multitude,—"Repent every one of you, and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even to as many as the Lord our God shall call."

It will be perceived here that faith is begotten in the souls of men by the preaching of the word of God when accompanied by the divine Spirit. Faith in God and the Lord Jesus Christ; faith in the sonship, in the atonement of Christ, in the delivery of, "first of all, Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures." This leads men unto repentance, a forsaking of evil, as their evil deeds are made manifest "by the word of God, which is quick and powerful, sharper than a two-edged sword, to the dividing asunder of both joints and marrow," the Spirit enlightening the mind in that it "reproves the world of sin, of unrighteousness and of judgment." It leads men to see in Christ the door that opens into the sheepfold in being baptized for the remission of their sins, as was taught by John the Baptist on the banks of the Jordan and throughout Judea, and commanded by Jesus to be taught in Matthew 28th chapter; Mark 16th chapter, and which Peter so faithfully preached on the day of Pentecost. It promises and gives that assurance which is needed to confirm the earnest seeker and enquirer after the way of life. It is "the Spirit of God," "the earnest of our inheritance," "the seal of our adoption." This, says Peter, "which ye now see and hear," we have received is a divine manifestation; and according to your obedience to the divine plan, "ye also shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

Pentecost is over. The endowment has been received. The brethren begin to push out into new fields as directed by wisdom and the instructions of the Spirit, and one Philip is found at Samaria preaching the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. The Samaritans hear and many believe the preaching of Philip. I would emphasize this particular account, and if there was any difference between the preaching of Philip and that of Peter on Pentecost, let the record answer for itself. The record says, "As many as believe the preaching of Philip, they were baptized, both men and women."

How now of "the promise" of the Holy Spirit?

"Now when the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John, who, when they were come down, prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost: (For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus). Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost. And when Simon saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whosoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost."—Acts, 8: 14-19.

Here, then, is no difference; and here also is briefly the "first principles of the oracles of God" as taught and practiced by the early disciples. Here was the truth unsullied, uncontaminated by the hand of man. Standing as they did upon the very threshold of the Christian era, their teachings shine out as a beacon light to the weary, tempest-tossed mariner as a guide to lighten him to the haven of eternal rest. Well may the Apostle Paul afterward say, "For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but in power, and in the Holy Ghost, and in much assurance."

JOHN GILBERT, M. D.

WHO SHALL BE CHURCH GROWLER?

A NEW PHILOSOPHY!

HOLDING legalised authority (and not assumed, as at present) to growl at everything and every body? As this very important office has not been provided for in our church polity, and present conditions implying such a want, it becomes the duty of the church to supply this want, either by revelation, or by common consent, that all things may be done legally, and in order; that injustice, hard feelings, and confusion may be avoided, with their concomitant evils; and to this end the church, or churches, should by vote elect competent men and women in the church at large, and also in the branches, to hold this office; with a license showing their authority, and defining their duties to be fault-finders, growlers and critics. The qualifications of aspirants to this office should be carefully looked to by the body, as there is no office (if this be an office in the church, which is of doubtful repute) neither legitimate nor assumed, that is more complicated in its varied duties than this office.

And here let me present some of the qualifications necessary to eligibility to this office. First, the aspirants should be able to say I am serving God with all my might, mind and strength, with an eye single to his glory; second, I love my neighbor as myself; third, they should be thoroughly informed upon all subjects, capable of looking into the thoughts, intents and purposes of all those to be growled at; fourth, they should be filled with that charity that covereth a multitude of weaknesses in others, thinketh no evil, suffereth long and is kind, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, seeketh not her own; fifth, they should be very wise (not in their own conceit).

Now, if these qualifications be in them and abound, they will make them fruitful in the knowledge that they should commence their work of criticisms, growling and fault-finding, with self and continue with self, until in the judgment of the body the aspirant was fully qualified for the office. In this way all illigitimate assumers of this office would be cut off, with all their unlawful work and terrible effects; and all things would be done decently and in order; without confusion, hard feelings, and jealousies. And further, if growling, fault-finding, and criticisms are lawful, they should be subject to law; for that which is not subject to law is of the devil; so have a care, all you that have, or may in the future assume this office, and remember that in the Church of Christ all things must be done in order and by common consent,—lawfully.

"Yet show I unto you a more excellent way," by which the whole church, every thing, and every body connected with it can be by common consent decently, lawfully, and orderly found fault with, growled at and criticised to the full satisfaction of this abnormal desire that seems quite prevalent in the church at present. This more excellent way is for every brother and sister to realize that there is but one person, either in or out of the church that can be lawfully found fault with, growled at, or criticised; (and don't you forget it) that that person is self, SELF, SELF, and continue to growl, find fault with and criticise self until your character is conformed to the character of Jesus Christ; for we should be like him in character when he comes, if we expect to enjoy his company and be associated with holy men and angels in the kingdom of our God and his Christ. Stand yourselves up, brethren and sisters, draw the line, plummet, and square upon your characters; see whether they will bear these proofs, before you growl, find fault, or criticise the character of others, or what they may do. And in this more excellent way we will find out who shall be church growler, and how all may satisfy their growling propensities; and the whole church, with every thing and every body be growled at to their benefit; and, so mote it be, is the prayer of your brother in Christ.

THE JEW IN HISTORY.

If there is a man for whom we have a profound respect it is the orthodox Jew; if there is a man for whom we have a sympathetic admiration, it is the progressive Jew. The one has all the virtues of constancy, fidelity and devotion; the other has the inspiration of intelligent progress. The Jew is the unique figure of history—the best representative of the indestructible in the annals of our race. There can be but one result if you admit his premise—that his claim to be the peculiar and chosen people is valid. The Brahmin, the Buddhist, the Mohammedan and the older oriental religions may legitimately dispute this claim, but the Christian can not. Without the God of the Jews, without his religion, and without his scriptures, Christianity has no sanction, no credence, no authority whatever. At best, in the express words of Jesus, it is but the fulfillment of the law, and by the admission of its devotees its roots of authentic mission are in the prediction of a Jewish prophet. Jesus himself, was a Jew, pure and simple; all his followers were Jews, and he never taught others or even associated with them. All we can claim in him is what was brought us by Paul, the missionary of a Jewish reformation.

In view of this the story of the Jew for 1,500 years, as related to the Christian world, is the strangest episode in the annals of the race, and as partly told by this book—the Jews and Moors in Spain—is almost incredible. In atrocity, cruelty and heartlessness is inconceivable—yet all done in the name of a Jew as distinctive as Josephus. But it is not with this story, so eloquently, so lovingly, and so dramatically told by the author of the book, that we have to do. With him it was a labor of love and pride of race, while to follow him would be the reverse for us—humiliation and reprobation, that it was all done in the name of the religion held sacred by the race to which we belong. But it is rather with the Jew as a character in history that we prefer to deal, and to consider the effect upon him of his religion and its development—for disguise it as we may we are all Jews in religion. The old testament is the foundation of all the religion and civilization we have, and if we had treated the Bible as we did the Jews, there would never have been a Christian civilization.

The one peculiarity of the Jew over all other men that we have to deal with in history is that we have never known him other than as a civilized man. He appears on the stage of action as the most advanced man of his day—a progressive force in the then age of the world—and wherever he has had a foothold in all the succeeding centuries he has been found in the front rank of human advancement. Without exception this has been the truth in all the centuries, and it is the most remarkable fact in the human family to-day. Let us recite two facts in illustration of the marvellous inherent power of this race. In 1508 the Jews were crushed out as a people, and it was only here and there that the remnant escaped from murder were allowed to live at all. They were debarred from the traditional employment of their fathers, agriculture, were prohibited from having money, yet in 1880 a conference of Jews was held in London to discuss the proposal to stop war, by withholding from the governments of Europe credit for war loans. Does the wildest dreams of the marvellous furnish anything like a parallel to these two facts, only 370 years apart?

Did the Jew make his religion, or did his religion make the Jew? This question don't seem to be answered in the first book of lectures under consideration, but it does seem to be explained in the second—"Evolution and Judaism." And here again it is best to stop and ask: Is evolution, then, the answer of the sphynx? The reply from the scientific world outside creeds, will be, yes. From both Jew and Gentile, inside the tradition of religion, no. And may not there be a truth in both? In the doctrine of evolution as applied to the development of physical man, or of man as we see him, we can not accept it—for to us it has no warrant in any department of physical life. But evolution as applied to the development of worlds, of life upon worlds, and to material, mental and spiritual growth, we do accept, for it has in it all the conditions of progressive unfoldment in every department of nature. And we are more than glad to see the Jewish intellect awaking to these truths and ready to take a step forward in the new evangelization of humanity—for that intellect is always masterful, luminous and creative.

We do not care whether the Jewish people are the chosen, or priest people or not. If they are not we are sure no other race can lay claim to be so. But any people who make sacrifices for truth are a priest people, and no race amounts to anything that doesn't rise to the egotism of the patriot. The idea that God is the especial God of Israel, was born in an age when gods were to be had for the asking; when every little tribe had its god, and when robber chiefs or warrior kings invented gods to suit the occasion. A people who in that day could rise to the monotheistic ideas and teachings of the Hebrew scriptures, was far advanced not only in material civilization, but in intellectual and spiritual culture. And to have preserved its advanced ideas so as to make of the Jew in all lands and in all after time the leader in civilization, is the wonder if not the miracle of history. No liberal mind can find occasion to quarrel with the traditions that they were a chosen and peculiar people—for granted that their god idea is true, there can be no other conclusion.

To the modern thinker the history of the Jewish people is the triumphant illustration of the power of the spiritual in the development of humanity. While the God of the Jews was in their estimation as peculiarly theirs as was Palestine, yet he was a spirit and the author of all life and of all nations—only he liked the Jews the best. This idea has been at once the cause of all their excellence and all their woes—for it made them unyielding and aggressive. They were always the superior race and ever the weaker people. Their wealth provoked cupidity, their numbers invited attack, and their intensely clannish religion, their very claims as to the favor of God provoked jealousy and hatred. They were thus always beyond their neighbors in wealth and culture and always too weak to stay the tide of barbarism.

But what of the Jew to-day? Is the dream of ancient Israel to be realized, or is his mission higher than he thought? To the orthodox Jew the dream is a dream, and his devotion to the faith a thing of affection and reverence—but to the practical side of his nature, even with Palestine restored, he would cut but a sorry figure in the modern world. Had he, when banished from Spain, been reinstated in Jerusalem and possessed unvexed the promised land until to-day, that meeting of Jews in London would never have been. While his exclusiveness has resulted in his exclusion from the organic forms of society for so many centuries, it has been the cause of the diffusion of his ideals and culture as would have been impossible a segregated people in one locality. He has been most emphatically the priest of progress, for there is hardly a thing we value to-day in art, science, philosophy, commerce or industry, that was not preserved by them for us through the night of the middle ages, or was the direct contribution of the Jews themselves. We can then only welcome them to the field of modern thought and progress. There is no difficulty in the easy adaptation of the Hebrew faith to the standards of modern knowledge and thought, and the world can never get too big or too broad for his conception of the first cause. Largely as was the God of Israel on the material plane, it was more from the necessities of the conditions to be considered and controlled than from the lofty ideal that Moses entertained of the nameless being whose servant he declared himself to be. To a man like Moses, versed in all the learning of his day—the secrets of which in its wondrous majesty and scope we are but beginning to get glimpses of—and the people who for centuries had been bondsmen under Egyptian civilization, there was a vast gap in the conception of spiritual truth. With this fact in mind, and the claim of infallibility of his scriptures, with which the Christian and not the Jew has invested them, we can at once rationally understand the why of this form of teaching. It was the way to lodge the ideas of government, subordination, inducement and progress in the minds of his people, and to stamp upon them those indelible characteristics which have for four thousand years made them exceptional in history.

In one sense it may be said, that we are in this nineteenth century for the first time on the plane of the thought of the Jew. We don't mean in the sense of his religious creed—if he have one—but on the plane of his thought as to civilization. The Jew has always been opposed to war. As a soldier in the sense of conquest he does not figure in history at all. His triumphs are all in the domain of peace—the arts, industry, science and philosophy—and he has the only religion that is elastic and capable of fitting all conditions of life. The God idea, when you come to the last analysis, is all that there is in the religion of the Jew. All the rest is the product of his civilization, from time to time, of his literature and his prophets.

A Jewish prophet is just as possible to-day as in the time of Isaiah or Daniel, and God can, so far as doctrinal limitations go, talk to a Jew on the top of Pike's peak as to Moses on Sinai. This is an essential fact that in the minds of most men is forgotten—but nevertheless it is a fact. What an immeasurable advantage to the Jew in the intellectual unfoldment of the coming century—for there is nothing clearer to the eye of enlightened intellect to-day, than that we are on the eve of a radical and revolutionary change in the creeds of christendom, and in the spiritual conceptions and religious ideals of mankind. As this in large part must come from a re-reading of the Jewish Scriptures, there is no calculating the importance and influence of the progressive Jew in this work. Man proposes, but God disposes, and we can see all along the course of humanity and can find it in our individual lives, that the decisive changes and controlling incidents of life, either in the individual, the nation or the race, never came as man expects, predicts or seeks, but always with evidences of foresight that runs back for years, for generations, epochs or ages. All along the course of history since the destruction of Jerusalem, the Jew has been looking, expecting, hoping and believing for the turn in the purposes of Providence toward his people—but the future is still a blank before him.

May it not be that in this modern age, at the dawn of the twentieth century of the obscuration of his faith, that with the light of the new dispensation dawning upon mankind—the rebirth of knowledge, of science, of art, of culture and philosophy, the congenial atmosphere of the Hebrew race,—that his mission as a leader in the newer aspirations and culture of all peoples has at last come. That his God idea finds at last its fullest expression as the spiritual potency of the race, and that teaching by the methods of his fathers has returned once more to the understanding of mortal men, and that the priesthood of Melchisedec finds its explanation in the universal spiritual brotherhood of humanity. This is to be the coming religion, and there is no one better equipped for its work than the descendants of the priest people.—Kansas City Journal.

Miscellaneous.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Please give notice through the Herald, that rates have been procured over the following lines of roads: To all those desirous of attending the Annual Conference to be held April 6th, 1887, in Kirtland, Ohio: The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad from Kansas City, St. Louis and St. Joseph, Missouri; Council Bluffs, Iowa; St. Paul, Minnesota, including all other local points on these lines, also the Chicago and North-Western, will furnish rates at one and one-third fare. All persons are required at points where they purchase tickets to take certificate from the local Ticket Agent, stating that they have paid full fare to Chicago. On presentation of such certificate to me, to be countersigned, it will entitle them to return at one-third fare on presentation of said certificate to the Ticket Agent at Chicago. Unless the above be strictly complied with, they will not be entitled to these rates. We also are promised rates over the Michigan Southern and Lake Shore, from Chicago to Willoughby, Ohio. All ministers having clergyman's rates are not entitled to this reduction. All persons desiring to come on the Chicago and North-Western will notify me at once at what points they desire to take the train on that road, that certificates may be furnished to the agents for them.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,
Presiding Bishop.

NEWSPAPER NOTICE.

To all whom it may concern: I have made arrangements with the managers of the Cleveland "Plain Dealer" (democrat), and "Leader" and "Herald" (republican), to have papers sent to all of the United States and Canada for the sum of thirty-five cents per week, during conference at Kirtland. The managers of the above named papers have promised to have reporters present at every session. All who desire to have papers sent to them will please send moneys and their address to the writer, at Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio, box 42. I will also sell papers on the conference ground. Your brother in Christ,

G. T. GRIFFITHS.

FIFTH QUORUM ELDERS.

Owing to the uncertainty of any of the officers being at Kirtland, you will please send reports to my address as published below. Do not forget the yearly due of "fifteen cents or more;" the treasury is exhausted at present, owing to issue of circular letter, blank reports, etc. Report on March 1st. Let no one delay further than the 15th in any case; as we desire to summarize reports and get them to Kirtland conference. Send your dues by postal note; if any can not, send stamps. Bro. J. A. Robinson hopes to be at Kirtland, and will attend to the quorum work if there. Let all go who can. In bonds,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

Box 223, INDEPENDENCE, Mo.

VOICE OF WARNING REPORT.

Summary of Reports of those loaning the Voice of Warning for the Quarter ending December 31st, 1886:—As I expect to be from home for a while, I thought I would make a report of those on hand, and if others came in later I will put them in the next report.

There are 3,400 books in circulation, 1,915 persons have read them, 106 persons handling the books, 111 have reported. 85 have not reported up to date.

The above shows a much better work for those who have reported than the previous Quarter. Those who have not reported this time can report for six months, next time.

I wish those who have more books than they wish to keep, would find some other person who would like to take them to loan; and when you turn them over to another, please write and tell me how many you turn over; also give the name and address of the person to whom you deliver them, taking receipt. If you fail to find one to take the books, I will send you stamps to mail them elsewhere.

I feel encouraged by the reports that have been received, and hope that all will try and keep the books busy; as they most always allay prejudice, and often make warm friends of those before our enemies.

Your Brother in Christ,
J. H. PETERS.

EAST LAKE, Michigan, February 4th.

The North-east Missouri district conference will convene at Bevier, Missouri, March 5th and 6th, 1887. We hope all will make it convenient to attend.

HIGH PRIESTS.

The attention of the members of the above quorum is called to the rule of the quorum that they should report in writing on or about the first of March each year, so that the quorum may know when it meets in April just what has been done by its members, and how they feel in the Lord's work.

H. A. STEBBINS, Sec'y.

THE Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. Co. has published a Pronouncing Dictionary containing 320 pages, 32,000 words, and 670 engravings. It teaches everybody how to pronounce correctly. Send sixteen cents in stamps to PAUL MORTON, G. P. and T. A., C. B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, Ills., and get a copy of the Dictionary—the cheapest book issued.

BORN.

LANYON.—At Lamoni, Iowa, February 2d, 1887, to Bro. W. C. and Sr. Emma Lanyon, a daughter.

MARRIED.

SHAKESPEARE—WILLETTS.—At Lucas, Iowa, on the evening of January 27th, 1887, Bro. William T. Shakespeare and Miss Jennie Willetts were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

DIED.

HENDRICKSON.—Sister Johannah Hendrickson of Pleasant Grove, Utah, passed peacefully away on January 28th, 1887. For ten weeks she was confined to her bed, and from the first she told her family and friends she would not recover, and preferred to go. She assured all her rest would be glorious. She was 59 years, 9 months and 17 days old at the time of her death. She was baptized by brother M. T. Short in Utah Lake, and lived and died in the faith. Funeral services at her home by R. J. Anthony and Bro. Jensen.

ACKLEY.—At Allendale, Worth county, Missouri, on the night of January 31st, 1887, of croup, Minnie Ione, daughter of Bro. Martin A. and Sr. Helen A. Ackley, aged 3 years, 10 months and 21 days. A short illness, a sudden pang to the hearts of the loving father and mother, and death claimed their darling and only girl. But a week before and I baptized them into the church. Next came this trial of their faith, but thank God they have borne it, because light and blessing have been given them as never before. Bro. Andrew Himes conducted services at the time of burial, and on February 6th the funeral sermon was preached by H. A. Stebbins in the Saints' Chapel in Allendale.

PITT.—At her home near Powellton, Hancock county, Illinois, January 28th, 1887, of congestion of the lungs, mother Charlotte Pitt, relict of Bro. Thomas Pitt. She was born in Muchmarcle, Herefordshire, England, August 10th, 1799. She became a member of the first organization at an early day and emigrated to this country in the year 1841; in care of a large family, her husband being detained. When he arrived they removed about six miles east of Nauvoo, into a then wilderness of prairie, where they made a home and where she still lived at the time of her death. She remained faithful to the end, uniting with the Reorganization in 1863. She was not only ready, but perfectly willing to go, and so she she passed away as the weary traveler goes to sleep. Funeral services were held at the Latter Day Saints' church at Rock Creek, by W. T. Lambert.

HULME.—At the home of her son-in-law, Bro. W. H. Garrett, Greenville, Mercer county, Pennsylvania, January 27th, 1887, of hemorrhage of lungs, Sr. Mary Hulme, widow of Uriah Hulme, in the 70th year of her age. She was born at Unsworth, near Manchester, England; united with the Primitive Methodists in 1834, and was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ in 1841, her husband having united a short time before. During the dispersion she stood still, remaining steadfast in her integrity; and when our lamented brother, Josiah Ells, commenced presenting the claims of the Reorganization at Pittsburgh, she was among the first to unite with the Saints; her children, five in number, subsequently following, of whom two sons and two daughters remain. Preliminary services were held in Greenville, Saturday morning, Rev. J. W. Blaisdell, of the M. E. Church conducting services, after which remains were taken to Pittsburgh where regular services were held Sunday, January 30th, Elder G. T. Griffiths, assisted by Bishop G. A. Blakeslee, officiating. Interment at Allegheny Cemetery, Pittsburgh. She has fought the fight, and has kept the faith.

START.—In Arenack county, Ontario, January 26th, 1887, killed by accident while working in the lumber woods, Bro. George Start. He was born at Charlotteville, Ontario, May 11th, 1860; baptized at Alabaster, Iosco county, Michigan, January 31st, 1884, by Bro. Willard J. Smith. He leaves a loving wife and a little girl to mourn their loss.

CHENEY.—At Gunnison, Colorado, January 17th, 1887, Lyman Cheney, aged 60 years, 2 months and 6 days.

CHENEY.—At Kent, Illinois, January 20th, 1887, Harriet Cheney, aged 80 years, 5 months and 10 days. She joined the church in an early day, and united with the Reorganized Church at Vincennes, Iowa, in June, 1872, and lived a Christian life. Just before death, when she knew her time of departure had come, she bore a bright testimony, saying, with other things: "I know the work is true." She praised God to the last, and fell asleep like going into a peaceful slumber. When our time comes, may it be as peaceful as was hers.

"THE CHOICE SEER."

ON page ninety-one of HERALD for February 5th, David Whitmer is made to say that "the 'choice seer' spoken of in the Book of Mormon is not brother Joseph. * * * The man who is not learned [in 2 Nephi 11:18] refers to Bro. Joseph. But the 'choice seer' [in 2 Nephi 2] is another man. He is to come from the American Indians."

The careful, unbiased reader of the Book of Mormon needs no further evidence than this deliberate statement to prove the profound and bewildering blindness of Mr. Whitmer. Every intelligent, unprejudiced reader of those two chapters of Nephi, and their contexts, will readily see that the "choice seer" and the "unlearned" man are one and the same person, their work the same, and that only the language used in the two chapters differs slightly, yet in some respects that is identical.

We have points of identification to now present, which so clearly refute the delusive and hurtful position of David Whitmer, that when seen, will tend to lessen the confidence and respect reposed in him as a "witness" to the divinity of the Book of Mormon and the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith. This should be guarded against, and we trust it will be when the reader considers the blindness and slowness of heart manifested by the disciples of Jesus in respect to his mission and work, and also their blindness as to the extent and character of their own duties and callings.

Turn and read the last chapter of Luke and the first chapter of Acts, where it will be readily seen that the special "witnesses" of Christ and his resurrection were blind in regard to many points touching the divine character and mission of our Lord, notwithstanding their close connection with him from the very first. Turn now and read Mark 16:14-16; Matt. 28:16-19; with Acts chapters 10 and 11, from which we learn, (1), that Jesus sent his "witnesses" to "preach the gospel to every creature," to "teach all nations, baptizing them" etc.; and, (2), that they were so blind to these duties of their mission, their understandings so perverted, confused and beclouded by old Jewish traditions and prejudices, and their judgments and interpretation so narrow and cramped, that it required most wonderful visions on the part of both Peter and Cornelius, also the bestowal of the miraculous gifts of the Spirit upon Cornelius and his household, to lift the veil of unbelief and rectify errors in understanding of Peter and his fellows and convert them to what before had been plainly taught them by the Lord.

In view of these and similar scriptural facts, it is easy to see that the ministers of Christ, through personal ambitions, prejudices, jealousies, and false traditions have failed and may fail to "perceive" their duties, the mission work of themselves and others, and that they may put forced and false, and hurtful interpretations on the word of God. This, we claim, has been and is still the pitiful, harmful condition of David Whitmer. His testimony to the marvelous facts of seeing the plates, etc., by the ministering of an angel in the presence of Joseph and Oliver at noonday, confirmed at the time by the voice of God "out of the bright light," is not to be impeached nor impaired among the honest and thoughtful by his strange statements and contradictory interpretations of scripture in these days of his dotage and nervous and mental debility, especially when he is being prompted, and urged, and led, and molded in his arguments and statements by unwise associates at his home, and by similar dis-senters and partisans abroad.

We will now present some, though not all, the proofs that Joseph Smith was the "choice seer" of 2 Nephi 2:2, 3. In these texts Lehi is reciting to his son Joseph certain promises and predictions made by Joseph the son of Jacob when in Egypt, about seventeen hundred years before the birth of Christ, in relation to the seed—tribe—of Joseph. One item relates to the restoration of Israel, and especially the tribe of Joseph, to the knowledge of God and his covenants. Another refers to the calling in these last days, of one of the seed of Joseph, (of Egypt), specifies his name, his father's name, his seeric powers, his service in the work of God, his great worth in the estimation of God, his final estimation by Israel as God's servant, his being "like unto Moses," and "like unto" this same Joseph who predicts his calling and work. Another refers to his bringing forth the word of the Lord for the tribe of Joseph and Israel, also to his ministry in "convincing" the people of God's word (the Bible) which had already gone forth among them, also to the fact that the word he should bring forth would "grow together" with the Bible, (harmonize with and sustain each other), "unto the confounding of false doctrines, and laying down of contentions, and establishing peace among the fruit of thy loins," (the tribe of Joseph), and bringing them to the knowledge of their fathers in the latter days, and to the knowledge of the covenants of the Lord. And in the closing sentence of the second paragraph the very time when this "choice seer" should enter upon his marvelous work is so clearly and definitely fixed that there need be no mistake about it, for it says, "And out of weakness he shall be made strong, in that day when my work shall commence among all my people unto the restoring thee, O house of Israel." The work of God for the restoration of Israel began with the calling of the prophet, seer, revelator and translator, Joseph Smith, who brought forth the Book of Mormon; and therefore Joseph Smith must be the "choice seer." That book God gave, and now gives, as "a sign" to both the Gentiles and Israel that God's work for Israel's restoration has already begun. Indeed, the Book of Mormon has been and is to be, one of the chief instruments in "convincing" Israel and the Gentiles that Jesus Christ was and is the promised Messiah, the Savior of mankind, also to teach to all "the covenants of the Lord." In proof of this position we give the following texts from the Book of Mormon.

"And now behold, I say unto you, that when the Lord shall see fit, in his wisdom, that these sayings [Book of Mormon.—Ed.] shall come unto the Gentiles, according to his word, then ye may know that the covenant which the Father hath made with the children of Israel, concerning their restoration to the lands of their inheritance, is already beginning to be fulfilled; and ye may know that the words of the Lord, which have been spoken by the holy prophets, shall be fulfilled; and ye need not say that the Lord delays his coming unto the children of Israel; and ye need not imagine in your hearts that the words which have been spoken are vain, for behold, the Lord will remember his covenant which he hath made unto his people of the house of Israel. And when ye shall see these sayings coming forth among you, then ye need not any longer spurn at the doings of the Lord, for the sword of his justice is in his right hand, and behold at that day, if ye shall spurn at his doings, he will cause that it shall soon overtake you."—Book of Nephi 13:6.

This text should end all controversy, with those who intelligently believe the Book of Mormon, as to when the work for the restoration of Israel was to commence; for such are bound to believe that it commenced with the announcement and coming forth to the Gentiles of "these sayings" in the Book of Mormon. They came forth in the Book of Mormon by the ministration of the Seer, Joseph Smith; therefore, he was and is the "choice Seer." To this we may add the following testimony which serves to make surety doubly sure.

"Come unto me, O ye Gentiles, and I will shew unto you the greater things, the knowledge which is hid up because of unbelief. Come unto me, O ye house of Israel, and it shall be made manifest unto you how great things the Father hath laid up for you, from the foundation of the world; and it hath not come unto you, because of unbelief. Behold, when ye shall read that veil of unbelief which doth cause you to remain in your awful state of wickedness and hardness of heart, and blindness of mind, then shall the great and marvelous things which have been hid up from the foundation of the world from you; yea, when ye shall call upon the Father in my name, with a broken heart and a contrite spirit, then shall ye know that the Father hath remembered the covenant which he made unto your fathers, O house of Israel; and then shall my revelations which I have caused to be written by my servant John, be unfolded in the eyes of all the people. Remember, when ye see these things, ye shall know that the time is at hand that they shall be made manifest in very deed; therefore, when ye shall receive this record, ye may know that the work of the Father has commenced upon all the face of the land. Therefore, repent all ye ends of the earth, and come unto me, and believe in my gospel, and be baptized in my name; for he that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not, shall be damned; and signs shall follow them that believe in my name. And blessed is he that is found faithful unto my name, at the last day, for he shall be lifted up to dwell in the kingdom prepared for him from the foundation of the world. And behold, it is I that hath spoken it. Amen."—Ether 1: 12.

In this text Mormon says that when we see "this record" of his, we should "know that the work of the Father has commenced upon all the face of the land." The Book of Mormon has come; it is God's witness to all people that "the work of the Father has commenced upon all the face of the land," and that the said work did "commence" in connection with its coming forth.

The "choice Seer," whose name, and whose father's name was Joseph, was the one who, "out of weakness" should "be made strong" at that time; and Joseph Smith, the son of Joseph Smith, was the very seer who lived and ministered at that very time, and in the very manner indicated; therefore, he must have been the "choice seer."

In further proof that the coming forth of the Book of Mormon was designed of God as a sign that "the work of the Father" had then already commenced for the restoration of Israel, we give the following words of Nephi, found in 2 Nephi 12: 12-14.

"And now, I would prophesy somewhat more concerning the Jews and the Gentiles. For after the book of which I have spoken shall come forth, and be written unto the Gentiles, and sealed up again unto the Lord, there shall be many which shall believe the words which are written; and they shall carry them forth unto the remnant of our seed. And then shall the remnant of our seed know concerning us, how that we came out from Jerusalem, and that they are descendants of the Jews. And the Gospel of Jesus Christ shall be declared among them; wherefore, they shall be restored unto the knowledge of their fathers, and also to the knowledge of Jesus Christ, which was had among their fathers. And then shall they rejoice; for they shall know that it is a blessing unto them from the hand of God; and their scales of darkness shall begin to fall from their eyes; and many generations shall not pass away among them, save they shall be a pure and a delightful people. And it shall come to pass that the Jew's which are scattered, also shall begin to believe in Christ; and they shall begin to gather in upon the face of the land; and as many as shall believe in Christ, shall also become a delightful people. And it shall come to pass that the Lord God shall commence his work, among all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people, to bring about the restoration of his people upon the earth."—2 Nephi 12: 12-14.

To this we add this, another prediction of Nephi:

"And it came to pass that I beheld the church of the Lamb of God, and its numbers were few, because of the wickedness and abominations of the whore who sat upon many waters; nevertheless, I beheld that the church of the Lamb, who were the saints of God, were also upon all the face of the earth; and their dominions upon the face of the earth were small, because of the wickedness of the great whore whom I saw.

"And it came to pass that I beheld that the great mother of abominations did gather together multitudes upon the face of all the earth, among all the nations of the Gentiles, to fight against the Lamb of God.

"And it came to pass that I, Nephi, beheld the power of the Lamb of God, that it descended upon the saints of the church of the Lamb, and upon the covenant people of the Lord, who were scattered upon all the face of the earth; and they were armed with righteousness and with the power of God in great glory.

"And it came to pass that I beheld that the wrath of God was poured out upon the great and abominable church, insomuch that there were wars and rumors of wars among all the nations and kindreds of the earth, and as there began to be wars and rumors of wars among all the nations which belonged to the mother of abominations, the angel spake to me, saying, Behold, the wrath of God is upon the mother of harlots; and behold, thou seest all these things; and when the day cometh that the wrath of God is poured out upon the mother of harlots, which is the great and abominable church of all the earth, whose foundation is the devil, then at that day, the work of the Father shall commence, in preparing the way for the fulfilling of his covenants, which he hath made his people, who are of the house of Israel."—1 Nephi 3: 48-51.

This text also locates the commencement of "the work of the Father" for the restoration of Israel, and it fixes it at the time when "the wrath of God is beginning to be poured out upon the mother of harlots," the Romish Church. All conversant with the history of that church know that its power has been rapidly failing since the assaults upon her from 1812 to the present, and especially since her "dominion" was taken away by Emmanuel, king of Italy, September 20th, 1870. An eloquent writer said of her in 1870: "Popery is in its dotage! It is not, and never again can be, what it once was; and compared with the Popery of the middle ages, notwithstanding its boasted and frequently exaggerated numbers, it is a Pigmy compared with a GIANT. * * * The signs of the times indicate that the day can not be very far distant, when the shout of joy and exultation shall be heard, 'Babylon the Great is fallen, is fallen.'"—Romanism, page 645.

From all these texts, severally and collectively, the proofs are definite, full, and complete, that the work of the Father for the restoration of Israel began as soon as the Book of Mormon came forth, also that the said book was to be one instrument in effecting that restoration. The "choice seer" was to be identified as first and chief among the human actors in that work. Joseph Smith did that work in that time, and therefore he was and is the "choice seer" from the loins of Joseph the son of Jacob.

For further evidence that the coming forth of the Book of Mormon was ordained of God to mark the time when the work of the Father would commence for the restoration of Israel, please read Book of Mormon 1:9; Book of Nephi 9:11; 10:1. Book of Jacob, chapter 4; Book of Nephi, chapter 14, etc.

Another point which proves Joseph Smith to have been the "choice seer" is found in this item of prophecy: "And out of weakness he shall be made strong in that day when my work shall commence," etc. It is a singular fact, and one of which D. Whitmer, O. Cowdery, M. Harris, and others not members of the church, have often testified, that Joseph at the time he translated the Book of Mormon was but "weakness" so far as human wisdom and worldly learning were concerned. But from that time forward he increased in wisdom and knowledge, in influence and spiritual power, and thus was he "made strong" rapidly by the hand of the mighty God of Jacob, till in 1844, seventeen years after he began the translation of the Book of Mormon, he was, in respect to human knowledge, one of the foremost men of the world; while in divine knowledge he towered far above the combined wisdom of the past eighteen centuries. When he received the plates in 1827, he was "unlearned;" he then knew and acknowledged he was "not learned." But God, for His own glory, and for the salvation of man, made "strong" the "choice seer" whom he called in "weakness." The writer has been told by John E. Page, Wm. E. McLellan, and others, who knew Joseph Smith in early times, that he stood incomparably higher than his fellows in the rapid and easy acquisition of education, and that such men as the Pratts, Rigdon, the Youngs, and all that class, were far inferior to him in matters pertaining to the gospel and church of Christ. "Out of weakness" Joseph Smith was "made strong," and that, too, in the day when God "commenced" his work for the restoration of Israel, therefore he was the "choice seer."

Another point of identification is found in the fact that "the words" to be brought forth by the "choice seer" should call Israel to "repentance;" also that these "words" would be noted for their "simplicity" and "weakness." (See par. 3). This is exactly and strikingly true of the Book of Mormon. This is an incontestible proof that Joseph Smith was that "choice seer." In further proof that the Book of Mormon was to be distinguished by the "simplicity" and "weakness" of its words, we have the following evidence:

"And now I, Nephi, can not write all the things which were taught among my people; neither am I mighty in writing, like unto speaking: for when a man speaketh by the power of the Holy Ghost, the power of the Holy Ghost carrieth it unto the hearts of the children of men. But behold, there are many that harden their hearts against the Holy Spirit, that it hath no place in them: Wherefore, they cast many things away which are written, and esteem them as things of nought. But I, Nephi, have written what I have written; and I esteem it as of great worth, and especially unto my people. For I pray continually for them by day, and mine eyes water my pillow by night, because of them; and I cry unto my God in faith, and I know that he will hear my cry; and I know that the Lord God will consecrate my prayers, for the gain of my people. And the words which I have written in weakness, will be made strong unto them; for it persuadeth them to do good; it maketh known unto them of their fathers; and it speaketh of Jesus, and persuadeth them to believe in him, and to endure to the end, which is life eternal. And it speaketh harsh against sin, according to the plainness of the truth; wherefore, no man will be angry at the words which I have written, save he shall be of the spirit of the devil. I glory in plainness; I glory in truth; I glory in my Jesus, for he hath redeemed my soul from hell. I have charity for my people, and great faith in Christ that I shall meet many souls spotless at his judgment seat. I have charity for the Jew: I say Jew, because I mean them from whence I came: I also have charity for the Gentiles. But behold, for none of these can I hope, except they shall be reconciled unto Christ, and enter into the narrow gate, and walk in the straight path, which leads to life, and continue in the path until the end of the day of probation.

"And now, my beloved brethren, and also Jew, and all ye ends of the earth, hearken unto these words, and believe in Christ; and if ye believe not in these words, believe in Christ. And if ye shall believe in Christ, ye will believe in these words; for they are the words of Christ, and he hath given them unto me; and they teach all men that they should do good. And if they are not the words of Christ, judge ye: for Christ will show unto you, with power and great glory, that they are his words, at the last day; and you and I shall stand face to face before his bar; and ye shall know that I have been commanded of him to write these things, notwithstanding my weakness: and I pray the Father in the name of Christ, that many of us, if not all, may be saved in his kingdom, at that great and last day.

"And now, my beloved brethren, all those who are of the house of Israel, and all ye ends of the earth, I speak unto you, as the voice of one crying from the dust: Farewell until that great day shall come; and you that will not partake of the goodness of God, and respect the words of the Jews, and also my words, and the words which shall proceed forth out of the mouth of the Lamb of God, behold, I bid you an everlasting farewell, for these words shall condemn you at the last day; for what I seal on earth, shall be brought against you at the judgment bar; for thus hath the Lord commanded me, and I must obey. Amen."—2 Nephi 15: 1, 2, 3.

"And it is by faith that my fathers have obtained the promise that these things should come unto their brethren through the Gentiles, therefore the Lord hath commanded me, yea, even Jesus Christ. And I said unto him, Lord, the Gentiles will mock at these things, because of our weakness in writing; for Lord thou hast made us mighty in word by faith, but thou hast not made us mighty in writing; for thou hast made all this people that they could speak much, because of the Holy Ghost which thou hast given them; and thou hast made us that we could write but little, because of the awkwardness of our hands. Behold, thou hast not made us mighty in writing like unto the brother of Jared, for thou madest him that the things which he wrote, were mighty even as thou art, unto the overpowering of man to read them. Thou hast also made our words powerful and great, even that we can not write them; wherefore, when we write, we behold our weakness, and stumble because of the placing of our words; and I fear lest the Gentiles shall mock at our words. And when I had said this, the Lord spake unto me, saying, Fools mock, but they shall mourn; and my grace is sufficient for the meek, that they shall take no advantage of your weakness; and if men come unto me, I will shew unto them their weakness. I give unto men weakness, that they may be humble; and my grace is sufficient for all men that humble themselves before me; for if they humble themselves before me, and have faith in me, then will I make weak things become strong unto them. Behold, I will shew unto the Gentiles their weakness, and I will shew unto them that faith, hope, and charity, bringeth unto me the fountain of all righteousness."—Ether 5: 2.

These texts force us to conclude that the Book of Mormon is the very work that was to be brought forth by the "choice seer, and that, therefore, Joseph Smith was that servant of God. This position is further strengthened by the fact that the words of the balance of the plates, which are yet to come forth, are to be distinguished by their mightiness, their power, and their greatness, in contradistinction to the "simplicity" and "weakness" of the words brought forth previously by the "choice seer." See Ether 1: 11, 12; Book of Nephi 12: 1; 2 Nephi 11: 17.

Joseph Smith is also proved to be the "choice seer" from the fact that he, through the organization of the priesthood and the church, fulfilled and is fulfilling this notable promise in paragraph 2; "And unto him will I give power to bring forth my word unto the seed of thy loins, [the house and tribe of Joseph the son of Jacob. Ed.]; and not to the bringing forth my word only, saith the Lord, but to the convincing them of my word, [Bible, Ed], which shall have already gone forth among them." Of the tribe of Ephraim, of the "seed" of Joseph, the Lord said; "Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people." Hosea 7: 8. Hosea further says of this seed 760 years before Christ; "My God will cast them away, because they did not hearken unto him; and they shall be wanderers among the nations."—9: 17. Of the seed of Joseph, the patriarch Jacob prophesied, saying; "And let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth."—Gen. 48: 16. This is further confirmed in Gen. 49: 22-26; also in Deut. 32: 13-17; and in verse 17 it is predicted that the "seed of Joseph," of the lineage of Ephraim, "shall push the people together [gather them. Ed.] to the ends of the earth." [Zion at one end, and Jerusalem at the other. Ed]. And contemplating the final restoration of the Psalmist with this prophetic prayer; "Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, thou that leadest Joseph like a flock; thou that dwellest between the cherubim, shine forth. Before Ephraim, and Benjamin, and Manasseh stir up thy strength and come and save us."—Ps. 80: 12. Of this great salvation the Lord says by the prophet Jeremiah 31: 6-14:

"For there shall be a day, that the watchmen upon the mount Ephraim shall cry, Arise ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the Lord our God. For thus saith the Lord; Sing with gladness for Jacob, and shout among the chief of the nations; publish ye, praise ye, and say, O Lord, save thy people, the remnant of Israel. Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth, and with them the blind, and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together; a great company shall return thither. They shall come with weeping, and with supplications will I lead them; I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble; for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn. Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock. For the Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the land of him that was stronger than he. Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion, and shall flow together to the goodness of the Lord, for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flock and of the herd; and their soul shall be as a watered garden; and they shall not sorrow any more at all. Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together; for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow. And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the Lord."—Jer. 31: 6-14.

These texts inform us as to where the seed of Joseph will be found in the day of Israel's restoration, also that the work will be "commenced" among, and by "the seed" of Joseph and the lineage of Ephraim; and that it will eventually result in gathering Israel "to the ends of the earth." Joseph Smith, of the "seed" of Joseph, began the work for Israel's restoration, revealed the fact that the first Elders and members of the Latter Day Saints were literal Israelites, chiefly of the "seed" of Joseph and lineage of Ephraim; and he did mightily in "convincing" many of both them and the Gentiles among whom they were "mixed" and "wanderers," that the testimonies and doctrines of the Bible were true. This he did personally, and by means of the church and priesthood which he organized, so that the gospel under their joint ministration has gone to many of "the chief of the nations," millions have heard of the "marvelous work and a wonder," hundreds of thousands have obeyed that gospel and received the Holy Ghost "with signs following" the faithful believer, and in these things Joseph Smith is proved to be the "choice seer."

The "choice seer" was not to be "an Indian." And David Whitmer could give no greater evidence of his own blindness, the badness of his judgment, and the false methods of his interpretation, than by the claim that he was to be and is to be. The "choice seer" was to be called of God to "bring forth" the word of the Lord to the seed of Joseph the son of Jacob; to "be great like unto Moses" as a servant of God, and to do a "work" which would result in "convincing" the seed of Joseph, scattered "among the nations," of the teachings of the Bible, and also in sending the writings (Book of Mormon.—Ed.) of the seed of Joseph, and those of the seed of Judah (the Bible) to the Lamanites for their conversion. And after this is done, the Lamanites "shall hearken unto the words of the book." (See 2 Nephi 2: 4; with 11: 18, 19, and 12: 1). And after they "hearken unto the words of the book"—the very book brought forth for them by the "choice seer"—then, and not till then, shall there "rise up one mighty among them, [the Lamanites.—Ed.], who shall do much good, both in word and in deed, being an instrument in the hands of God, with exceeding faith, to work mighty wonders," etc. We repeat it, the "one mighty" from among the Lamanites was not to "rise up" "among them" until after the coming forth and ministrations of the "choice seer." This "one mighty" and his fellow Lamanites, and the entire seed of Joseph "mixed" among the people and dwelling "in the midst of the earth," with the Gentiles, were all to receive the Lord's "work" at the hands of the "choice seer," who was to be "great like unto Moses;" and of whom the Lord says, "I will make him great in mine eyes, for he shall do my work; and of whom he further says: "Behold, that seer will the Lord bless; and they that seek to destroy him shall be confounded."

God is no respecter of persons; and when David Whitmer, or his fellows, "seek to destroy" Joseph Smith's authority, ministerial influence, and the revelations he gave to the church as the seer and revelator of Christ, both he and they will be "confounded."

Our readers will have seen already, that David Whitmer, from very early times, failed to comprehend, endorse, and uphold Joseph Smith in the authority, offices and callings to which God ordained and appointed him; but that on the other hand he disbelieved in this authority and these callings, and also rejected some of the things which the "choice seer" delivered to the church in the name of the Lord, and which the church and its officers in General Assembly examined, accepted and approved.

In these things we find some of the causes for the blindness David Whitmer exhibits in respect to the plain teachings of the Book of Mormon, his consequent idleness in, and obstinate opposition to, the living, growing, and heaven-approved work of God among the nations. Joseph Smith was the "choice seer;" he was "great like unto Moses;" "great" in the eyes of God; was "like unto" Joseph in Egypt; he did the Lord's "work," and brought forth that which brings "salvation" to Israel. And all the envy, jealousy, unbelief and opposition of David Whitmer and others, with all the cruel misstatements, misleading assertions, evil surmisings, hearsays and slanders of those outside or inside the church, can not destroy that fact. And had David Whitmer received Joseph in his work and mission as pointed out so plainly in the Book of Mormon, he would not have been found misinterpreting the Book of Mormon nor seeking to destroy the ministerial reputation and authority of God's "choice seer."

In conclusion, we should all bear in mind the exalted authority and honor, the special privileges and superior powers of a divinely appointed Seer, as was Joseph Smith. Let us hear what the Book of Mormon says of the power and ministry of a Seer.

"And Ammon said, that a seer is a revelator, and a prophet also; and a gift which is greater, can no man have, except he should possess the power of God, which no man can; yet a man may have great power given him from God. But a seer can know of things which have past, and also of things which are to come; and by them shall all things be revealed, or rather, shall secret things be made manifest, and hidden things shall come to light, and things which are not known shall be made known by them; and also, things shall be made known by them, which otherwise could not be known. Thus God has provided a means that man, through faith, might work mighty miracles; therefore, he becometh a great benefit to his fellow beings."—Mosiah 5: 10.

Had David Whitmer and his fellows given due credence and consideration to the office and authority of God's "choice seer," Joseph Smith, they would be careful how they reject or assume to correct his testimony, revelations and official ministrations, lest they be found fighting against God. We repeat it,—David Whitmer from the first did not comprehend the mission work of Joseph the Seer, except in a very limited way; and this may have led him to misinterpret and misapply the teachings of the Book of Mormon and the revelations of God given through Joseph. The blind man whom Jesus healed first "saw men as trees walking." Further ministrations perfected his sight. Had Mr. Whitmer received further ministrations by him who first ministered to him the light of God's great latter day work, it would have been well for him and his fellows. But assuming to know more, and to be better qualified to judge of and conduct the Lord's latter day work than the man whom God called and empowered for that special work, he, like others, drifted away little by little, fell far in the rear of God's advancing church, had distorted and delusive views of the Lord's progressive and progressing work, saw only the dark side of the "pillar and cloud," left his own duties as a minister unattended to, attempted to counsel, persuade and dictate the Seer, (a work to which God never called him), and in this way his mind became darkened, his judgment confused, his false aspirations fostered, till at length he falsely claims to be appointed of God "to hold the authority" as the successor of Joseph the Seer in the Lord's work.

Mr. Whitmer warns the Saints that they are liable to be deceived. That is good. "Physician, heal thyself." When this is done it will be high time to prescribe remedies for others. A man with a beam in his own eye should never seek a mote in the eye of his brother, lest his own blindness is made apparent.

BRO. J. C. HARDMAN moved into St. John county, Kansas, a year ago, and instead of sitting down and feeling sad and forlorn because there was no Saints living close to him, he set about trying to make Saints, at least in instruction of the people with whom he came into business relation. He laid a few copies of the HERALD on a road running by his house and watched for results. These were picked up by two young men from Hancock county, Illinois, near Nauvoo, who were hunting a land location. They settled on the lands lying adjoining to Bro. Hardman's on the north, brought in a herd of cattle, took boarding with him and stayed through the summer. The result was that they had much conversation on gospel themes, sang the songs of Zion together, and passed a pleasant summer thus; their number being added to by three others who came from the same place, none belonging to the church. In addition to this, the Baptist minister took a notion to have a chat with Bro. Hardman and invited him to his house for the purpose of talking upon the gospel. Bro. Hardman accepted and visited him, when a number of the neighbors came in, and they had a good, earnest conversation on the principles, privileges and powers of the good news of the kingdom. Besides this, there came two elders from Salt Lake, and these Bro. Hardman invited to come and occupy, either his house, or the town hall, but they declined. It is likely that they learned what our brother was, and knowing that the Reorganization was fond of discussion, they did not care to engage with him, as they might feel was a necessity, if they began to preach there.

We are pleased to think that there is a way to serve the good work, even if a man does live away off somewhere where he is not near a large branch to keep his courage up. We think that in every place where a saint finds himself, there he should find at least one worker for the Master and the cause.

BRETHREN seeking the extreme west to make homes should be careful that they look the ground over well before making their settlement. New countries are nearly always productive, and during the rush of emigration markets are good and prices for all sorts of farm products are high; but sooner or later there is a reaction; things settle back to the condition of older settled lands, and if the location is not then found to be good with relation to the distant and larger markets, to which all commodities gravitate by reason of the law of demand and supply, there is more or less of loss and disappointment, and there is an apparent necessity for a new removal. Horace Greely's advice, "Go west, young man, go west, and grow up with the country," was good, very good in the time that it was given. But the great west, then apparently boundless, has been the field of adventure, fortune seeking and money getting, till the chances for either are very greatly reduced; and it is becoming more and more obvious, that only the closest economy and most careful labor will give success; and these are as good agents of success in old lands as in new. The days are almost gone when it was true of any country, that you only had to "tickle the earth with a hoe and it would laugh with a harvest."

Bro. R. J. Anthony was on February 9th, at Salem, Utah, where he spoke on the evening of the 8th, in a private house, but would occupy the school-house on the evening of the 9th, and the Friday following. He intended to be at Nephi on the 12th, and back to Salt Lake City for the 18th, if all was well.

Bro. Albert Bishop wrote that the Saints of Independence had broken ground for the new church building which they contemplated to erect; and that there was a good unanimity of feeling among the brethren, in regard to the work in hand. This we are pleased to hear, and that it shall continue, is our earnest wish. Of course it will be bruited abroad that the Mormons are building a temple at Independence, and all sorts of absurd rumors will be set afloat about the affair; but the brethren should possess their souls in patience; while they do their work, carefully and surely.

Bro. W. W. McLeod of Cormorant, Minnesota, reports Bro. John C. Foss temporarily confined to his bed by sickness of a few day's duration. We hope that Bro. John will soon be up and about his Master's business in the gospel field.

Bro. James Whitehead, of Alton, Illinois, sent us by mail, February 16th, a copy of the Book of Commandments, which upon comparison with the one already in our possession, is found to be of the same edition—closing on the 160th page in the same way.

Bro. Jos. A. Stewart writes from Philadelphia that he has quite an interest aroused in Cecil county, Maryland, where he has been bestowing labor for the last two years, and where he expects to give regular attendance as soon as the spring opens, to make it practicable. He reports open doors and desires to hear upon the part of many.

Bro. Blair returned to the Sanctum, February the 14th, coming in like a valentine, with the mail. We were pleased to see him. He reports having had a most pleasant, and he trusts profitable visit in the Fremont district, and with the Saints of that part of the country. He found a soldier's welcome among the workers, and at the firesides of those who make up the home guards of the Army of Israel. He preached at the Gaylord School-house, the Ross School-house, and at the Saints' hall in St. Joseph, and in all of these places he found the kindest of attention and the best of feeling. He had a pleasant meeting with Bro. Edmund C. Briggs, of whom he reports that he is awake to the great work to be done, and the necessity of all doing their diligent duty. He says that he never saw Bro. Edmund manifest a more lively interest in the work than now. While he is regretful of some things as they exist and would that they were different, he faces the facts as they are and proposes to stand steadfastly to the cause. Bro. Edmund went east last summer and made a very favorable impression in some of the places where he labored, and they have been expecting him to return to them, which he stated to Bro. Blair that he wished to do. He will meet with warm friends to the cause when he does go.

Bro. A. J. Kenison, of Eagle Rapids, Kansas, thinks that while so many branches have such an array of elders, and they in Gaylord county have none, some one ought to be spared to them. To this we say "Amen," providing the man that is qualified to meet the demand is forthcoming. But there are so many places of a similar kind that we know not where to find elders to fill the calls. Bro. Kenison desires us to pay them a visit, but that is at present out of the question. We should be glad to visit all the places where it might be thought that we could do good, but life is short and time is on the wing. Our time is pretty well filled up, and we see no opportunity to respond to Bro. Kenison's call, in person.

President Joseph Smith started to-day, the 18th, for the city of Logan, county seat of Harrison county, on invitation to deliver a temperance lecture before the Temperance League at that place. He is in hearty, active sympathy with the genuine reform movements of the age, and has rendered valuable aid to the temperance cause in Illinois, Iowa, and in various other places. He may attend the district conference at Galland's Grove the 25th to 27th insts., and it is barely possible he may go to Armstrong, Kansas, and assist in dedicating the Saints' new chapel in that city.

Bro. John Nightingale, wrote from Stockton, California, February 8th, that Bro. Daley had visited them and preached a number of times, and that good had resulted. He and Bro. Daley had been to Oakdale together, had the house closed against them at first, but succeeded in securing it when Bro. Daley made the first effort known to have been made there. They put a notice in the local paper, which was noticed in an editorial rather roughly. Bro. Nightingale represents Bro. Daley to be a zealous, good worker.

Sr. Sabrina German sent us a request to publish the death of John and Harriet German; but, except the date of birth and death, she did not send any items; and as Sr. German did not put her post-office address at the top of her letter, nor tell where her relatives lived at the time of their death, we can not comply with her request, nor write to her. The notice should state the place where they died, the time, and either the date of birth, or the age at death, together with any other items to be given. We are not acquainted with the sister, and did not find her name on the HERALD list.

Bro. W. W. Whiting, has written us condemning the course pursued by us for inserting the letter of Elder E. H. Gurley, and the epistle of Elder David Whitmer in the HERALD; we also have two or three letters from others, written in the same vein of censure; we are ready for the next—Who is it?

A brother sends us a Manchester, England, Examiner, of January 28th, with the intent, doubtless, to let us see a written controversy between Canon Basil Wilberforce and E. H. Winton, the subject of discussion being the preaching of the former in a Nonconformist (Congregationalist) pulpit. The latter takes the Canon to task, and he defends himself, both having the right of the question, as each thinks. We thank the sender.

Bro. Arthur Leverton, of Bothwell, Ontario, sends a copy of the Petrolia Topic, published at Petrolia, Ontario, for February 1st, in which Bro. Leverton scores a Rev. D. Pomeroy, who has been attacking the Saints without giving them a chance for defence: Bro. Leverton, also, challenges the reverend gentleman to a fair examination of the points of difference, which to him are obnoxious. What the result will be we are not advised.

The following letters are crowded out: W. H. Bybee, Huntsville, Mo., January 31st; Sr. Caroline Wayt, Glen Easton, W.

Va., February 6th; W. H. Harnly, Adell, Iowa; Sr. E. A. Evans, Taylorville, Pa., February 8th; J. H. Scott, Lexington, Tenn, January 31st; Sr. J. Braden, Cameron, Ontario, February 7th.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. George Millikin, of Colchester, Illinois, writing from his home, February 13th, says:

"What in the world is the matter with David Whitmer? What does the man mean? Does he wish to destroy all the good he has ever done, now in the sunset of his life? He says he was forced to go with his team to help the mob, or the militia. It seems to me, had I been in his place, I would have suffered death before I would have gone, or assisted them in any way. And now his last escapade is worse than all the rest; it has put a weapon into the hands of the enemies of the truth which they never before had. Truly I think that if David Whitmer could see the mischief he has done by this, it would cause him the most bitter regrets."

This statement must be of additional force, when it is known that Bro. Millikin's father, Arthur Millikin, was wounded at the Crooked River fight, shot through both legs and escaping death, as by a miracle. He was, with his brethren, trying to stay the hands of rapine and plunder, where lawless men were essaying to drive hitherto peaceful citizens from their homes, for their religion's sake. His son feels keenly the devotion of his father and the life-long sacrifice made by him, and it is not astonishing that he is moved with surprise to see that work so ruthlessly assailed, as he thinks.

Bro. F. Needham, of Wheeler's Grove, Iowa, wrote February 13th, that Bro. H. N. Hansen had been with them and had done them good, by timely consolation and good advice. He says:

"It occurs to me that the Reorganized Church of Christ has more to contend with than any church that has been upon the earth since the beginning of time; polygamy, Spaulding Romance, Strangism, Rigdonism, Spiritualism, Whitmerism,—and the God of heaven knows how many other isms; besides our own weakness and dissenters, not of the filth of the church, (if there be any filth), but the best minds and heretofore best defenders of our faith. May God help us to stand steadfast in the faith of the gospel!"

It is according to prophecy that in the last days "perilous times should come;" that "everything under heaven that can be shaken shall be shaken." Let the shaking go on, those who remain, purified as by fire, shall be saved with an everlasting salvation.

Bro. Arthur Leverton says:

"The work is onward. Bro. R. C. Evans has had good success in Chatham of late; quite a number have been baptized there. I have been laboring in Inwood and Petrolia. There was a great deal of prejudice with some, especially in Petrolia; but when the truth was presented it gave way like ice before a summer sun. By request I expect to go in a few days to Longwood and Strathroy, where I had a combat with the Rev. D. Pomeroy about a year ago. Some of the people have been anxious for me to go ever since; I think good will be done."

Bro. L. C. Donaldson writes from River-ton, Iowa, February 6th:

"One J. T. Johnson, a Christian preacher, made the assertion that the Mormon Bible was the production of Solomon Spaulding. I defended the book; presented the Book of Mormon in one hand and Spaulding's Manuscript in the other, and preached quite a sermon on the subject; the result was that it divided their congregation; they dismissed the preacher and did not invite him to come back. I have loaned twenty of Bro. J. H. Peter's Voice of Warning."

Bro. Edward L. Page, of Hannibal, Missouri, writing on the 10th of February, says:

"David Whitmer states that Joseph never preached a sermon to the Indians in his life. Pray how does he know? I heard Joseph Smith, the prophet and Seer, deliver a discourse to a delegation of Pottawattamie Indians, in Nauvoo, under the 'big tree' near the Temple, after having finished his discourse to the usual audience."

Sr. C. M. Jarvis, of Xenia, Illinois, states that the visit of Bro. A. H. Smith to that country has done them good. She says:

"It seems strange to see how the Saints' feelings accord, for although they have never met before, they seem like they had always known each other."

Bro. J. J. Cornish says of his work at Bay Port, Michigan:

"I baptized one yesterday; great excitement here; I look for a great ingathering here soon. I am feeling well in the work."

Bro. W. W. Blair writes from St. Joseph, Missouri, February 9th.

"I attended service here with the Saints last Thursday night, and on Friday went to Bartlett, Iowa, and thence eight miles to Elm Creek and preached in the Saints' new chapel at 7:30 p. m. to a large congregation, staying over night with Bro. John Goode and family. Saturday morning rode to the Gaylor School-house, eight miles distant, where conference convened at 10 a. m. The day was devoted to business, and all passed off profitably. Bro. E. C. Briggs, Henry Kemp, Wm. Leeka, D. Hougas, Simon Dike and many others were in attendance. We preached Saturday night, Sunday morning, and Monday night, to large and very attentive congregations; and Bro. E. C. Briggs preached to a packed audience Sunday night. Our sacrament and testimony meeting Sunday afternoon was very good, but too short to accommodate all. Tuesday night I preached in the Ross School-house to a large and very attentive congregation. The weather during all these meetings was unfavorable, yet the attendance and interest were very good. Bro. Briggs has located his family at Shenandoah and intends to soon take the gospel field actively and permanently. Bro. Henry Kemp is doing a good work in his district, so are some others, and the prospects are good and cheering. I was greatly pleased to meet many old-time Saints and their children, also some old-time friends; and I am under promise to aid them in their meetings next June conference. The field in southwestern Iowa was never more inviting for gospel work than now. I expect to remain here over next Sunday to assist in a series of meetings, under Elder H. C. Bronson."

Bro. M. H. Bond wrote from Providence, Rhode Island, and states:

"The Lord is blessing me with great spiritual blessings, and knowledge of his truth."

Correspondence.

STOCKTON, Cal., Jan. 30th.

Brother Blair.—I have been actively engaged in the ministry since December 2d 1886. I left the field July 20th to work on my mine, holding meetings almost every Sunday at Grizzly Flat, working on my mine through the week. My partner, brother G. C. Milgate not having a comfortable house built on the claim for the winter, we concluded to stop work on it until Spring, and he moved down home, and I started out to labor for the Master. I have been preaching here since I came back from Fresno with Bro. Harlow, January 25th. Bro. G. W. Harlow spoke January 25th, and our worthy old veteran brother John Nightingale, president of the Stockton branch, has assisted me in preaching every evening since. We will preach twice tomorrow and then I will leave for Burwood, San Joaquin Co., to open up another week's labor in that place. I delivered five discourses two weeks ago, and am invited back, so I have an appointment out for next Monday evening. Our worthy president, H. C. Smith preached eleven discourses there last summer in the Union Church, and everybody was well pleased except the preacher, Mr. Mc Bride, and the trustees. They would not let me have the church, and the citizens felt very indignant over it. But I got the school-house and had a good turnout, and all seemed to be much interested. The last evening I spoke there the house was crowded. Some said they did not know where the people came from. After I dismissed the meeting I was told not to go out, and I then was handed $7.50 for my expenses. I will go tomorrow to Burwood. Our aged Bro. John Nightingale who is seventy-two years old has a horse and buggy. He calls him "the gospel horse." We all know him. Whoever comes to Stockton to preach will find him ready to carry him out in the country from fifty to one hundred miles. May God bless Bro. N. and his dear wife whose heart is in the work and is ready to administer to the wants of the Elders. I never found a more generous body of Saints than the Stockton branch. Sister Copeland, at Burwood, is active, lending her books and papers, preaching to the people and opening up the way for the Elders. She has been over to Oakdale and found a place for me to stay while I labor in that town. I can get the Union Church to preach in. There has been no preaching there by our people. I go there from Burwood. Her husband, although not a member of any church, is one of the noble men of the earth, and verily will get his reward.

As president of the Northern District of California I request all the priesthood of said district to report by person or by letter at our next conference to be held in the Saints chapel, March 11th, at Sacramento, corner of 24th and K. street, at ten a. m. Brethren let us hear from you. If you have been asleep, wake up and go to work and God will bless you.

THOMAS DALEY.

DELOIT, Iowa, February 7th.

Editors of Herald:—The work is moving slowly, so far as members being added to the church, but the Saints are blessed in the enjoyment of the gifts of God's Holy Spirit; and the young members are taking hold of the work, which makes the older ones rejoice. This has been a cold and stormy winter so far, and I have done less preaching in the district than for a long time but hope for better opportunities in the future.

I attended this winter a reunion of my father's family at Bay City, Michigan. While there met brother Cornish and the Saints, and spoke twice to fair sized congregations and enjoyed the good Spirit in presenting the truth. Bro. Cornish is doing a good work in that city and the little branch there is striving hard for the right and to advance the truths of the gospel. While there I had the pleasure of seeing the Herald for the first time in three weeks, which was a long time for me, and it made me feel at home once more. It has been my companion since 1873, and I would be lost without it. I have them all filed away since the above date, and think no Saint can well do without our church paper, for it is truly the Saints' Herald, heralding good tidings to them from all over the world; but of late I have been pained to see that it has not been the Saints' Herald entirely; its columns have not been used to promote the Saints' interests, but to injure the work they are trying to establish and thereby unsettle their faith. First, Mr. E. H. Gurley made the bold assertion, "There is not power enough in the reorganization to defend the revelations of Joseph Smith." It made some of the Saints feel a little bad, but they thought the assertion would be answered in the next Herald. The next Herald came but instead of the assertion being answered, there was nearly five pages devoted to the interest of David Whitmer and the work he is trying to establish. Brethren, I am sorry to see it; for it affords gossip for street corner and store talk, and the work is being ridiculed thereby; I am not in favor of giving a portion of our paper to our enemies. If they want to destroy the cause maintained by the Herald, let them publish a paper in opposition; then those Saints wishing to read their articles can subscribe for it, otherwise their articles and doctrines are forced on the readers of the Herald.

The Herald is not cheap nor can it be until its subscription has been increased. There are several parties who have told me they would like to subscribe for it to be sent to their friends; but dare not, on account of the articles published detrimental to the work, thereby lessening the circulation of the Herald. I am in favor of free investigation and our churches are open to all representatives of other societies; and that gives our Elders a chance to defend the work as well as to show the defects in theirs. As to those articles there is not room in the Herald to answer them, and if our ministry should be brought into discussion, our opponents would use those articles as weapons against us. I hope to see the time when it will be The Saints' Herald indeed, devoted exclusively to the cause it started to build up; its subscription list doubled; its price one half. For the accomplishment of this I am willing to labor and pray.

In gospel bonds,

W. W. WHITING.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., February 10th.

Brother Joseph:—I returned home on the 8th inst. after nearly three months labor in southern Illinois. After my effort at Springfield as reported to you, I went down into Johnson county, near Tunnel Hill, where E. L. Kelley met the enemy and so signally defeated him; I there met many brethren and friends to the cause, and enjoyed a season of meetings of some ten days duration. Notwithstanding the weather was quite unfavorable many turned out to hear. The Spirit was with me to aid in the good work. At the close of my meetings in Johnson county, I turned my face northward; met Father T. P. Green at Jeffersonville, Wayne county, went with him to Dry Fork settlement; and here the very elements seemed to conspire against our meetings. It rained, turned cold, and froze the rain on the ground, and every thing else until the whole surface of the earth seemed more fitted for a skating rink than sober, church going people to get round on, but the people came boldly to the front in spite of the weather, seeming to have adopted the old adage, "never mind the weather when the wind don't blow."

As I was expected to dedicate the new church building at Brush Creek settlement soon, we returned to Jeffersonville, after about a week's service at Dry Creek. I stopped at Bro. G. H. Hilliards, was taken sick and could not attend dedication service. Bro. Hilliard went in my place and gave general satisfaction. The following week, having recovered sufficiently, I went in company with Bro. Hilliard, and began another series of meetings at the new chapel on Brush Creek; continued my meetings twelve days with good liberty. The people turned out nobly, the weather was at times very severe; at times the roads were so muddy as to be almost impassable. I left this field for McVey, in Macoupin county, a flag station on the Jacksonville Southern Railway. While at Brush Creek I ordained brother Geo. H. Hilliard to the office of Seventy, January 17th, 1887. The Spirit of God was present in power at the ordination.

At McVey we found a liberal element, called by "Christians" (?) "Skeptic and Infidel," who gave us a warm welcome, and treated us like brethren indeed; coming to hear us in all kinds of weather, furnishing us with halls at McVey and Atwater, giving out our appointments, and bearing our expenses. I scarce have found warmer hearted, stauncher defenders of fair play in all my travels than those friends at McVey; "long may they wave." While brother George and I were pouring hot shot into sectarianism, and never sparing skepticism and infidelity, they stood squarely up to the rack, our friends all the time. May God bless them and give them the true light.

Weather getting bad, a break-up threatening coming Spring and a change in residence expected, I concluded to come home. In my report to conference I shall be more explicit in detail. Altogether I have been much blessed in my mission.

I remain your brother,

ALEX. H. SMITH.

KENT, Illinois, January 31st.

Dear Herald:—I have been a reader of your pages for many long years, and you have become very near to me. Your weekly visits are a comfort, and I don't know how I could do without you, as you are all the preacher I have. I wish some Elder would come and stay long enough to raise up a branch. If brother McDowell had stayed longer I think he could of done a good work here. The people were going to put a purse of twenty-five dollars on the Christmas tree for him, but he went away too soon. I have been loaning the Voice of Warning furnished by brother Peters. They seem to take well.

LAMP EXPLOSION.

The majority of lamp explosions occur from the use of low grade oils, which contain a considerable quantity of naphtha or gasoline, and under the heat generated by the flame in the wick tube, a highly explosive gas is evolved, which, filling the space not occupied by the oil in the font, is liable to find its way to the flame, and upon ignition, cause an explosion. In case no means of exit presents itself, this gas, being subjected to continuous heating, may expand sufficiently to rupture the font itself, and on coming in contact with the flame, ignite with explosive rapidity.

This tendency to generate gas is greatly facilitated through the usual practice of turning low the flame of a lamp, resulting in an unusual heating of the metal dome over the wick, as well as its metallic connections, thus creating an excess of heat and more rapid volatilization of the oil, which engenders a tendency to explosion, even with the use of high grade oils. It should be borne in mind that, while the oil is low in a lamp, the process of capillary attraction through the wick is retarded, and as a result, the heated wick tube acts more rapidly in developing the gas—hence it is always unsafe to use a lamp when the oil is low in it.

Filling and trimming lamps by the aid of artificial light, or filling them while lighted, is extremely dangerous, not to say foolhardy, as is also the usual practice of extinguishing the flame by blowing down the chimney.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Know well, my soul, God's hand controls
Whate'er thou fearest;
Round him in calmest music rolls
Whate'er thou hearest.
What to thee is shadow, to Him is day,
And the end he knoweth;
And not on a blind and aimless way
Thy spirit goeth."

ENCOURAGEMENT!

FOR the encouragement of the mothers and sisters in Zion, we copy a brief extract from a private letter. It comes from one actively engaged in the work of the ministry,—a man of God, whose wisdom we venerate and whose name the Saints honor. He says: "Permit me to drop a word of commendation of the work in the Mothers' Column and Zion's Hope. I think the sisters are directing their good efforts in the right way. Mothers and their children; that is the path that all nations travel. Give the children good mothers and you have good hopes of a 'nation bringing forth the fruits of the kingdom.' For the sisters to take active part with talent and means, is a splendid thing, for they have all rights that are common to all men. Nothing will kill so fast and completely, as inactivity."

For one we feel to say, we are enlisted for the war. We feel to ask no furlough, but beseech God from day to day to give us just the portion we need. Can we encourage, you will be encouraged; can we cheer, you will be cheered; are there sacrifices to be made, we will not call upon any one until we have done our share! Will you believe us, sisters, when we tell you that we know who is our Leader? As Captain of the Lord's host has he come, and thousands who are now following him will yet be joined by thousands more, striving to reach the main army. They have crossed the Jordan into the promised land, and from over the river they beckon to us. Let courage be our watchword, and eternal vigilance our countersign; and if defeated by the enemy to-day, let us renew the battle to-morrow, and follow our Captain on to final triumph and victory!

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Janet Strang wishes to tell the sisters that if they will put a teaspoonful of salt into the churn when putting in their cream, the butter will come in a few minutes.

Sister Anna Leckney writes from Johnston,

R. I., that she enjoys her Herald very much, and wants to say a word to encourage the scattered, lonely ones. "I know that our God is no respecter of persons, but looks upon the hearts of his children and not upon the words of their lips or their writings only, and I do pray that all those weary, heavy laden ones might be blessed by his Holy Spirit, and have grace to bear all the hardships of their lot. None who love this work are too poor to let their light shine before the world." She bears a faithful testimony to having tried the Lord and proven him true in regard to tithing. She says that she told the Lord if she could earn a dollar she would give it to him, and that very week she did earn a dollar, something she had never been able to do before on account of her own family cares. Then the enemy tempted her, telling her not to believe in such a law. But she prayed for deliverance from the tempter and obtained it. Then she promised the Lord the tenth of what she could earn each month, and she wants to tell the sisters how wonderfully she has been blest, and wants any of them who doubt this law being of God, to do as she has done, "Trust in the word of God and prove him."

Sister Georgie Walmsley writes from Dayton, Nevada. One of the greatest enemies with which she has to contend is impatience, but she is striving to overcome and has faith to believe God will give her the victory. She is thankful to God for the restoration of his gospel and prays for his blessing upon all his Saints.

Sister Mary F. Patterson writes from National City, California. Though sorrowing for the loss of a beloved son, her heart is stayed upon God, and she feels and knows that "He doeth all things well." She enjoys and is comforted by the Herald, and feels determined to live nearer to God in the future than she has in the past.

Sister David H. Smith, writes from Marathon, Iowa:—"When I read of the pleasant times you are having in Lamoni, I often feel homesick to be with you all again. Elbert has not missed a day at school this winter, and he is studying the lessons in the Hope. (Persevere Elbert. The Lord will be needing you some day, and when he calls you, may you say as did Samuel, "Speak Lord, thy servant heareth!")" Sister Mattie Adair, writes from Temple, Texas, That by the help of God, she is determined to break loose from all chains which bind her to habits which she knows are not pleasing in the sight of God. She is reading the "Book of Mormon, and expresses her unbounded astonishment at its plain and faithful directions to the Saints of God. She says that she can hardly wait for the evening to come, when her work being finished she has leisure to sit down and read. To sister Mattie we say, "Trust in God, and let your light shine for he will give you the desires of your heart in righteousness, if you are faithful to him."

Sister Elizabeth White, writes from Independence, Mo:—"The fulness of the gospel! All the principles taught by Jesus and the apostles. Oh, how grand and clear to our understanding is the gospel taught in the word of God! Sisters, just think for one moment, that this gospel of the kingdom must be preached to all nations, kindred, tongues and people, by those having authority. Surely the cause needs all our miles to assist those ministering servants in their labor. I hope and trust the sisters will consider the matter, and send in their aid before the General Conference,

I wish to say for the 'Aid Society,' which numbers twenty-nine, we are busily engaged in earning all we can, that we may be able to help furnish our new church when it is finished. We have over fifty dollars in the treasury, and have expended liberally to the poor and all charitable works."

Sister Phebe Ruby writes from Bird City, Kan., that she feels to bear her testimony to the truth of the latter day work. She united with the church at an early age, in the state of Iowa, and from that day to this has never had a doubt of its truth. She relates a very singular circumstance which occurred on the evening of the day that Joseph and Hyrum Smith were killed. She was standing with her mother upon the front door-step of the house, when two drops of blood fell upon the step. Her mother said, "Look, that came out of heaven;" when just as she spoke three large drops fell near them, when her mother exclaimed, "Oh, I believe they have killed Joseph Smith!" That same evening the news of his murder reached them. Sister Ruby was through all the troubles at Nauvoo, and joined the Reorganization about twenty years ago.

Sister Sarah E. Tuller writes from Webb City, Missouri. It has been three years since she and her husband enlisted in the cause, and she wants to bear a faithful testimony that she knows the work is of God and not of man. Her desire is to see the work roll on until there shall not be left one to advocate the cause of the wicked one.

Sister S. S. Clapp writes from Deer Lodge City, Montana.—"Just now my special work seems to be among the young of this neighborhood, and I very earnestly desire God's Spirit that I may help them to find the way of life. I feel quite encouraged, believing there will good come of the effort. My own dear little boys have their 'love box' and they are quite pleased at the idea and will send their mite soon."

Sister Mamie Zenar writes from Clear Lake, Kansas, that she is trying every day to do something for the Master, although she feels like a very weak child. She was very sick, when God took from her an only and beloved brother, and she then resolved if the Lord would spare her life she would serve him. She many times finds it lonely without one who was so kind and good to her, but she wants to be entirely resigned to the will of the Lord.

Sister E. A. Burnam writes from Edgerton, Missouri.—"Tell Sister A. M. Snow through the 'Column,' to dissolve beef's gall in rain water and bathe her eyes with it. She will receive strength and cure, if she continues it long enough. Use her own judgment as to its strength. "I heartily endorse Sister Scanlon's resolution. I have been seventeen years situated as she is, but since complying with the law of tithing have been wonderfully blest, and my faith grows stronger every day."

Sister Sarah Evans, writes from Crescent, Iowa, that she found alum, dissolved in soft water, with a little white sugar added, very healing in a case of sore eyes.

Sister M. Harper writes from Durham, Alabama.—"My husband and myself are among the isolated ones, there being no branch nearer than twelve miles. We met in conference with the Saints at Pleasant Hill, last October, which is the last preaching we have heard. Oh, how thankful the Saints ought to be who have the privilege of prayer and testimony meeting every week. I wonder if any one lets trifles keep them at home? I hope not, for their privilege is very great."

Sister Katharine Salisbury writes from Fountain Green, Illinois, sending a receipt for eye water which was given to her mother (Lucy Smith) in vision. "One teaspoonful of verdigris powdered very fine and dissolved in one quart of rain water. Add a little peppermint essence and strain through a fine cloth." Mother Smith had been confined to a dark room for three months. When this receipt was prepared she had it blessed and used it. It completely cured her eyes, and she received her second sight. Sister Salisbury says she never knew it fail to cure.

Sister Jennie Murphy writes from Independence, Mo.:—"I have thoroughly enjoyed our portion of the Herald, and feel it to be a great help in our toilsome journey through life. It appeals so fully to our hearts, and pleads for our homes. Independence is in a good state of prosperity. God is blessing all who have made their homes here, both spiritually and temporally. The Saints are enforcing respect and recognition from the people, which is a great consolation to us. Our meetings are all well attended, and a good interest manifested. And thus Zion begins to flourish, and it causes our hearts to rejoice and be glad that we are permitted to live in a day so glorious, so fraught with blessings to the sons of men."

Sister G. W. Hobart writes from Leon, Kan.:—"If we would all save our pennies and teach the little ones to do the same, how much could be done to spread the gospel—to send it in its purity to those who are hungering and thirsting for it. I am young in the faith, was baptized into the Methodist church when an infant, and brought up in that faith. The 9th of last May I was buried with Christ in baptism, and thank God that I was led to obey the gospel in its fulness. I am one of the afflicted ones, having been in poor health for years, although I have been blessed with better health for the past six months. Pray for me, sisters, that I may be healed, if it is the Lord's will, and that I may be worthy the name of Saint."

It has been requested that we state exactly the amount of money meant by a penny? One cent is what we mean, and should never have thought of an explanation had it not been asked of us. No matter about the amount, sisters; let us give just what we can afford to give, after our tithing is paid. A brother told us this morning that he dreamed last night he saw the names in the Home Column Missionary Fund, when they had become too many to print each one, and were sent in by branches. It would not be long before this would be the case if every one would respond, and if we live very long, we have no doubt we shall live to see the day.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Beloved Sisters:—Having been comforted by the testimonies in the "Home Column," I have resolved to add mine, praying that the Spirit will bear record of its truth to every honest heart in whose hands these lines may fall. I wish to say what I have received is not through my own goodness, for I am frail and full of imperfections; but through the goodness and mercy of God, and in fulfilment of his promise, "he that doeth the will of the Father shall know of the doctrine." To him be all the praise!

After a long and careful investigation of this work I became a firm believer in its claims, feeling I must obey, let the consequence be what it would; and though not fourteen years of age, I was baptized April, 1847, at Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, England, by Elder Sharrow who united with the church in an early day, soon after the arrival of the first elders who were endowed with power in Kirtland to preach the gospel. After the lapse of a week or more I began to be very much troubled in mind, fearing I might be wrong; so much so that I could not eat nor sleep but very little. It seemed that the enemy was determined to overthrow the good resolutions I had formed; being so tormented day and night that at length I thought I must give it up unless the Lord made manifest the truth of the same. For this I fervently sought, in humility and prayer, saying if I was blessed with a testimony I would bear it to those around me. Immediately after retiring to rest, while praying in my heart for a testimony, the room became very light, so that I could see very plainly; and before my eyes, at the foot of the bed stood a personage of large stature, noble features and ancient appearance, dressed in a loose white robe, and nothing on the head but long white hair falling on the shoulders. He moved a few steps and disappeared. Not one word was uttered, but his presence conveyed all the knowledge I desired, and oh! the peace and joy I felt is beyond the power of my feeble pen to portray; and from that moment to this, to my knowledge, I have never doubted the truth of the restoration of the gospel, but say with Joseph the Seer, "Where was there room for doubt? Nowhere; uncertainty had fled; doubt had sunk no more to rise."

I desire also to speak of the healing power; having been healed by the power of God, almost times without number, space will not permit of telling all, but I will mention two instances,

While camping with a company of Saints on the prairies of America, that much dreaded disease, cholera, made its appearance and many were bereft of their loved ones. Daily, for a time, some were laid in the silent grave, until many began to be afraid of waiting upon those who were sick; myself watching a dear old sister until she closed her eyes in death to await a glorious resurrection. I was seized by its iron hand. I partook of nothing as medicine, but sent for an elder. It was customary then to give a spoonful of oil before pouring on the head. The thought came to my mind the moment I swallowed the oil, "I shall be healed." It was even so. Every particle of cramp and pain fled with the blessing of God. To Him be all the glory.

Some years afterwards I was taken very sick and confined to the bed about six weeks, until my strength seemed perfectly exhausted. The nature of the sickness I can not here describe; suffice it to say no one thought it possible I could ever recover. I had no earthly physician but was administered to several times, receiving only slight relief for a time, until at length it seemed I must say good bye to all things earthly. As I thought of the dear children and what would become of them, my desire to live increased, and I silently breathed a prayer to him who sitteth on high, that he would spare my life, and that I might be made whole. I well knew my prayer was heard, and would be answered also. The knowledge was given me that angels were by the bed watching over me. I could spiritually discern them. What a happy day! What precious moments! Can I ever forget the comforting influence I felt? No, never! It was truly a day of thanksgiving and praise. Our Father knoweth the secret thoughts of the heart, and ever willing to hear and answer prayer, the disease was rebuked in an unknown tongue; the interpretation was given and I was healed instantaneously, and walked, and in one or two days after did the work for my family.

"We have the gift of unknown tongues,
The gift of healing too;
And this is testimony
That what we teach is true."

A few days after, the persons who were in attendance, speaking of the day said, "There was such a different feeling in the house." Another said, "I went out to the stacks to pray, I did not feel good enough to come near you;" but ah! it was not me, it was the influence of those beings who bring so much comfort and consolation to the soul.

In the light of revelation, past and present, who can say there is no God? Who can doubt the divinity of his Son or the plan of salvation—which is as true as that the sun shineth in yonder firmament. The day speedily cometh when every knee shall bow and every tongue must confess that Jesus is the Lord. Let us who have taken steps to serve him, seek more diligently after the things pertaining to his kingdom. Knowledge will increase; darkness will vanish away. That our garments may be found pure and spotless, we having on the robe of righteousness, is the prayer of

JONESPORT, Me., Feb. 2d.

Dear Sister Frances:—Perhaps a few lines from this eastern portion of the country will not be uninteresting to many of the readers of the Home Column. Away down east on the rock bound coast of Maine, surrounded by forests of evergreen and partially girdled by the broad blue waters of the Atlantic, is located a band of Latter Day Saints known as the Jonesport Branch. At present we number forty-six, the majority of whom are firmly grounded and established in the faith: and though inhabitants of this icy region, yet are as ardent lovers of the truth as those of a more genial clime. Since the organization of our branch, about fifteen years ago, it has been called to pass through severe trials. The opposition has been strong, and the current against us. The prospects are brightening at present, and our branch is coming forth from the fiery furnace stronger and purer, and will eventually occupy a higher moral and spiritual platform than before. The work is progressing, and those who do not keep pace with it will be left in the rear. Our branch meetings are improving, and the Lord is meeting with us by his Spirit in much power, and those of the Saints who think that our social meetings are not of much account, and avail themselves of the privilege of remaining at home till an Elder comes, are losing ground; and we who allow trifling things to keep us at home, and then justify ourselves in so doing are being deceived; and at that last day when the book of remembrance is opened, we whose names are not found at all or very rarely, will be the losers. Present duty unperformed is as a thread broken in the loom, and its effects will only be perceived when the weaving of a life-time has been unraveled. It will be too late to rectify mistakes then. Our Sunday school, which was organized last August, is a grand success. The children are deeply interested, as well as adults. Our juvenile choir is a great help to the school. It makes the walls of the old building resound with the songs and hymns of praise. The interest of the Bible class is so great that if any of the teachers of the different classes be absent, not one can be persuaded to leave that and take charge of a class for even one session.

Another important factor in the work here is that noble band of workers known as the Sister's Aid Society. This organization has been in working order for fourteen years, and never a jar, discord, or harsh word has marred the peace of its members. They come together and work with a will and zeal worthy of the cause in which they are engaged. Through rain, snow, slush or mud, you will find them at their post. The fruits of their labors have been spread broadcast over the land. They have always been willing to respond to the call for aid. The fatherless and widows have been remembered, the naked clothed, and the hungry fed; and the elders helped to carry the glad tidings to many a place. Last year they gave fifty dollars to the church at one time. No account has been kept, no record made, only God and the angels know what good they have done. Yes, a record has been kept by angels' fingers, which is far better than as though it had been penned by mortal hands. The 21st of last month they were selected to furnish supper for the Free Masons at their public installation of officers. The net proceeds were fifty-one dollars, which is to serve as a nucleus for a church fund, either for repairing the old church or erecting a new one.

Our Congregational friends are now occupying their new ten thousand dollar church and are working for a revival. Their ministers work with a zeal and enthusiasm that is worthy the emulation of even a Latter Day Saint elder.

Many people here are seeking after truth, but our elders only stay long enough to get the people interested, then leave, perhaps to return six months or a year later. What is needed is a continued and persistent effort for a while to accomplish much.

I have more I would like to say, but for fear of an introduction to the waste basket I refrain. We are going to organize a reading club to-morrow night. We had twenty at our sewing circle to-day; voted to tithe what money there is in the treasury.

Your sister,

LIZZIE WOODWARD.

LEAVES FROM THE TREE OF LIFE, NUMBER SIX.

THE AGENCY OF MAN.

"If it was the purpose of the Almighty to give to man eternal life, why did He not create him in such perfection that it would have been impossible for him to sin and thus forfeit his right to the proffered gift? Surely, if the Creator was infinite in love, knowledge, wisdom and power, His foreknowledge would have seen the absolute necessity of such perfection, or infallibility, His love would have suggested the propriety of such condition, His wisdom would have been equal to the necessary arrangement, and His Omnipotence ample to the completion of His eternal purpose, without the intervention and sacrifice of a crucified Redeemer. The fact that He did not so endow man, is evidence, either that He did not possess all knowledge, wisdom, and power, or that He was deficient in the boasted fulness of that love which is claimed for Him in the Bible, and that the gift of eternal life was the result of an after thought that occurred to the Creator, after man was created, or else that man is not the result of the work of a personal Creator. If the gift of eternal life was not the result of an after thought, then the Creator was evidently subject to the necessity of experience and observation as a means of gaining knowledge, and hence on the same level with the creature in that sense. This would destroy His claim to the God-head, and at the same time render the hope of man, in his dependence upon such a being entirely abortive."

The above is the reasoning of the skeptical mind, of "the fool who hath said in his heart, There is no God." Let us examine it carefully, for to push it aside as blasphemous will not help us nor convince him. What was it that the Scriptures declare as the masterpiece of God's workmanship? "God said, Let us make man." What is man as we find him? An intelligent being. Even the sceptic would scorn to be called anything less. What do the scriptures represent man to be? "Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels and hast crowned him with glory and honor. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thine hands."

—Ps. 8: 5, 6. We are told in holy writ that "intelligence is the glory of God." Is it not the glory of man also? One great difference betwixt God and man is, that while the intelligence of the former is infinite, comprehending all things, that of the latter is measured, or limited, yet capable of expansion. Let it be remembered that God said, "Let us make man, not angels, not seraphims, not gods, but man, and that the crowning attribute of man is intelligence, in other words, power to think, reason, learn, observe, understand, receive knowledge and convey it, to will and to do all things within the limits of that intelligence, for "knowledge is power."

Now let us see the "perfect creature," that the skeptic would have had the Creator to make—"one that could not sin." Since "sin is the transgression of law," and as "where there is no law there is no transgression," there can be no responsibility to law until such law has been proclaimed. And if it requires intelligence to frame and declare law, it also requires sufficient intelligence to receive and obey the law declared. Does not intelligence capable of receiving imply capability to reject? In other words, Does not the power to avoid sinning, imply the power to sin? And if the being is deprived of the power to do the one, is he not necessarily deprived of the power to do the other? If so, it follows that the being the skeptic would have had created, would have been simply a machine, a thing incapable of acting only as it was acted upon by some exterior and superior power. But such a being would be utterly incapable of enjoyment, for there can be no enjoyment without intelligence. Even the meanest species of animal existence manifests intelligence, and also will-power. Thwart a worm in its progress in any direction, and it will start in another; but the skeptic's ideal man, such as he would have had God to create, would not possess even this power. It would be indeed a senseless thing, incapable of will. Eternal life would be of no value to such a being. It could not receive it, nor enjoy it if forced upon it; because it could not comprehend it, hence could not have any appreciation of its worth. The enjoyment of all beings must be in exact proportion to their powers of appreciation; hence if the ideal being of the sceptic had been created instead of man, the wisdom, power, and love of God would have been exercised in vain, so far as the purpose to give eternal life was concerned; nor could the whole creation have answered any end but the manifestation of creative power without any adequate purpose calling forth the exercise of that power. If eternal life was indeed to be given, it must be given to intelligences capable of understanding and appreciating it, able to drink in the eternal fullness of its joys, the infinite blessedness of its pleasures, and enjoy the infinite greatness of its powers, otherwise, it would be as "casting pearls before swine." Such intelligences would be nothing less than man as God created him, endowed with the power to think, to understand, to will, and to do; and by his powers of observation and reason to expand and increase his powers of knowledge, wisdom and appreciation, and aided by divine light, be prepared at length to enter into and enjoy "the greatest of all gifts," eternal life. But the question is asked "Why was the evil presented to man? Omnipotence could surely have prevented its introduction into the garden Eden, if such a Being existed." One thing is evident to all observing minds, independent of revelation, that there are two forces in existence, one tending to the good and felicity of mankind by seeking to elevate them to higher planes of enjoyment and blessedness; the other tending to the corruption, degradation, misery, and destruction of the race. Some even of the sceptical portion of the race have discerned the latter and have nobly sought to stop the tide of evil in the best way known to them; but as they rejected the light of revelation, they understood not the cause, nor the source of evil, and only worked against its effects, and that in blindness and ignorance, and consequently labored greatly in vain. And, unfortunately, while they with one hand sought to impede the progress of evil, they tore down the barriers of truth with the other, and thus have rather aided the monster in its onward march than retarded its progress.

But revelation has thrown light upon this monster, and to that we turn for information. It makes known the fact that good has its personification in the character of God, and evil its personification in the character of Satan. The introduction of evil into this world was brought about on this wise. The being called Satan, once "an angel in authority in the presence of God, rebelled against God, sought to destroy the agency of man," and to defeat the purpose of the Almighty. Gen. 3: 1-4. "And was thrust down from the presence of God and the Son, and was called Perdition." Doc. Cov. 76: 3. "And also a third part of the hosts of heaven turned he away from God because of their agency, and they were thrust down, and thus became the devil and his angels."—Doc. Cov. 28: 10. See also John 8: 44; Luke 10: 18; Jude 6; Rev. 12: 7, 9. No sooner had man been placed upon the earth than Satan, intent upon frustrating the Eternal purpose, assumed an animal shape that was pleasing to our first parents, called in the Scripture the serpent. And knowing that God had given them a law, he came with a lie in his mouth and tempted Eve to break that law. She yielded, and he used her as an instrument to tempt Adam, who also partook of the forbidden fruit, thereby transgressing the law, "wherein he became spiritually dead." Now it is evident that, although God had given to man his agency, there could be no opportunity for its exercise until the good and the evil were presented before him. And as not only the individual man, but the race, must make good their claim to eternal life, or prove unworthy, therefore this agency must extend to all as the gift must be offered to all. Therefore the yielding to temptation, by our first parents involved the whole race in its consequences, and opened up the way that all might accept or reject the will and rule of Jehovah. And as God has given to all intelligences their agencies, He will not deny Himself by destroying that agency; hence all beings in the heavens or on the earth, are held responsible for the powers and privileges given them, and consequently must answer to Him for their actions.

And as Satan had rebelled against God and was thrust down from the presence of God, he chose to lead man from his Creator that he might thereby thwart the Eternal purpose. But with all his cunning he was blind; for by this act of hatred against man and high handed rebellion against God, he opened up the very means by which every man and woman could be thrown upon their own responsibility and choose for themselves good or evil—God or Satan—life or death. For Jehovah would scorn to reign over a kingdom of slaves, or beings who were His subjects by force of circumstances over which they had no control. His kingdom is the kingdom of liberty in the broadest, grandest sense of that term. His power must be exercised, not for the mere exhibition of it, but for the eternal wellbeing of His creatures; so that they who have learned the bitterness of sin and death, may have the unspeakable privilege of enjoying the fruits of righteousness, even eternal life. And now comes the opportunity for the exercise of that agency given to man to choose between good and evil, and also for the operation of that boundless love that swelled the bosom of the Creator and illumines and renders glorious all His works and ways.

But we will let revelation tell the grand old story, which is at once the glory of God, the joy of angels, and the sure and steadfast hope of believing humanity, "the power of God unto [their] salvation." I quote from the Inspired Translation: "And I, the Lord God, said unto mine Only Begotten, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil. And now lest he put forth his hand and partake also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever; therefore I, the Lord God, will send him forth from the garden of Eden to till the ground from whence he was taken. For, as I, the Lord God liveth, even so my words can not return void, for as they go forth they must be fulfilled. So I drove out the man, and I placed at the east of the garden cherubim, and a flaming sword which turned every way to keep the tree of life."—Gen. 3: 28, 31. Let us pause to consider this act in which love, justice and mercy are so sweetly blended, however stern it may appear to the unenlightened reader. Man, through disobedience, had become the servant of Satan and the slave of sin; for Christ says, "Who-soever committeth sin is the servant of sin."—John 8: 34. And Paul says, "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?"—Rom. 6: 16. The soundness of the above philosophy can not be called in question; hence as our first parents had become the servants of sin, and must, as a natural consequence, be alienated from God and could no longer dwell in his presence, that condition of things must have remained; and while he could have existed forever, in that condition, had he been permitted to eat of the tree of life, he must have forever remained the slave of the evil one subjected to his sinful and hateful sway, the sport of fiends, the victim of infernal hatred, and subject to eternal banishment from the presence of the only being who could comfort and bless. Therefore, while his banishment from the garden of Eden and the placing of the flaming sword to guard the tree of life was just, it was also an act of love and mercy; for now death, who comes as the avenger of justice, puts a period to the union of the body and spirit, "the dust returning to the earth as it was," and by the further interposition of God's love as seen in the plan of redemption, "the spirit to God who gave it." It will be hereafter shown that Adam and Eve did not suffer the temporal death until the plan of redemption was made operative in their behalf. Not only were Adam and Eve benefitted by being driven from the tree of life, and thereby prevented from becoming immortal in their sinful state, but the entire race were partakers of that benefit. For had the first pair borne children in a sinful and immortal state all mankind must have partaken of their nature, for "who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Not one."—Job 14:4. And as the parents were aliens from God, and slaves to sin, their offspring of necessity partake of their nature and condition; and that, too, without any choice on their part. Hence, however just the punishment of the parents might appear, it would have been manifestly unjust to permit the children to eternally suffer for the crimes of parents, without any hope of redemption, for they had no part in their parents' sins. Thus is the wisdom and love of God manifested toward his creatures, and Satan's purpose frustrated, while the plan and purpose of the Almighty is being accomplished in the fact that eternal life is offered through the redemption wrought out by Jesus Christ. The agency of men is preserved, the justice of God is vindicated, his mercy is manifested, and love divine triumphs over all the machinations of the powers of darkness, while mankind is free to choose life or death, and can be justly rewarded according to the deeds done in the body, whether they be good or evil.

The skeptic might still ask the question, Why did the Eternal give a law and make man responsible to that law? Why not leave him at liberty to follow out his desires, without having to realize the consequences of any particular course? Such questions exhibit a shallow mind, and yet such is the folly of infidelity, or atheism. Every reasoning mind knows that every thing is governed by law, and that without law there could be no order, but confusion would reign, and confusion must bring destruction. A very limited experience in the common affairs of life convinces one of this fact. The skeptic is bound to acknowledge order throughout the universe, so far as his observation reaches, and must freely acknowledge that such order is the result of law governing all things, and that without such law producing such perfect and universal order, we should quickly perish "amid the wreck of matter, and the crash of worlds." Why then is he so foolish as to carp at the Almighty because he has given man a law to keep? The Book of Mormon plainly answers such questions, and to it we turn.

"Wherefore the ends of the law which the Holy One hath given unto the inflicting of the punishment which is affixed, which punishment that is affixed is in opposition to that of the happiness which is affixed, to answer the ends of the atonement; for it must needs be, that there is an opposition in all things. If not so, my first born in the wilderness, righteousness could not be brought to pass; neither wickedness; neither holiness nor misery; neither good nor bad. Wherefore, all things must needs be a compound in one; wherefore, if it should be one body, it must needs remain as dead, having no life, neither death nor corruption, nor incorruption, happiness nor misery, neither sense nor insensibility. Wherefore, it must needs have been created for a thing of nought; wherefore, there would have been no purpose in the end of its creation. Wherefore, this thing must needs destroy the wisdom of God, and his eternal purposes; and also, the power, and the mercy, and the justice of God. And if ye shall say there is no law, ye shall also say there is no sin. And if ye shall say there is no sin, ye shall also say there is no righteousness. And if there be no righteousness, there be no happiness. And if there be no righteousness nor happiness, there be no punishment nor misery. And if all these things are not, there is no God. And if there is no God, we are not, neither the earth, for there could have been no creation of things, neither to act nor to be acted upon; wherefore, all things must have vanished away.

"And now, my sons, I speak unto you these things, for your profit and learning: for there is a God, and he hath created all things, both the heavens and the earth, and all things that in them is: both things to act, and things to be acted upon; and to bring about his eternal purposes in the end of man, after he had created our first parents, and the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air, and in fine, all things which are created, it must needs be that there was an opposition: even the forbidden fruit in opposition to the tree of life; the one being sweet and the other bitter; wherefore, the Lord God gave unto man, that he should act for himself. Wherefore, man could not act for himself, save it should be that he was enticed by the one or the other.

"And I, Lehi, according to the things which I have read, must needs suppose, that an angel of God, according to that which is written, had fallen from heaven; wherefore he became a devil, having sought that which was evil before God. And because he had fallen from heaven, and had become miserable forever, he sought also the misery of all mankind.

Wherefore, he said unto Eve, yea, even that old serpent, who is the devil, who is the father of all lies; wherefore he said, Partake of the forbidden fruit, and ye shall not die, but ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil. And after Adam and Eve had partaken of the forbidden fruit, they were driven out of the garden of Eden to till the earth. And they have brought forth children, yea, even all the family of all the earth. And the days of the children of men were prolonged, according to the will of God, that they might repent while in the flesh; wherefore, their state became a state of probation, and their time was lengthened, according to the commandments which the Lord God gave unto the children of men. For he gave commandment that all men must repent; for he showed unto all men that they were lost, because of the transgression of their parents. And now, behold, if Adam had not transgressed, he would not have fallen; but he would have remained in the garden of Eden. And all things which were created must have remained in the same state in which they were after they were created; and they must have remained forever, and have no end. And they would have had no children; wherefore, they would have remained in a state of innocence, having no joy, for they knew no misery; doing no good, for they knew no sin. But behold, all things have been done in the wisdom of him who knoweth all things. Adam fell, that men might be; and men are, that they might have joy. And the Messiah cometh in the fulness of time, that he may redeem the children of men from the fall. And because that they are redeemed from the fall, they have become free forever, knowing good from evil; to act for themselves, and not to be acted upon, save it be by the punishment of the law, at the great and last day, according to the commandments which God hath given. Wherefore, men are free according to the flesh; and all things are given them which are expedient unto man. And they are free to choose liberty and eternal life, through the great mediation of all men, or to choose captivity and death, according to the captivity and power of the devil: for he seeketh that all men might be miserable like unto himself."

In the foregoing quotation is the great mystery of the purpose of God in the creation of man revealed. Book of Mormon, pages 56, 57, 58, Lamoni edition. It plainly declares the cause, and the means, by which the fall was brought about; and it reveals the means of redemption through Jesus Christ,—“Wherefore, redemption cometh in and through the holy Messiah; for he is full of grace and truth. Behold, he offereth himself a sacrifice for sin, to answer the ends of the law, unto all those who have a broken heart and a contrite spirit; and unto none else can the ends of the law be answered.”—Page 56. In another revelation the Lord declares, “Behold, I say unto you, that I, the Lord God, gave unto Adam and unto his seed, that they should not die as to the temporal death, until I, the Lord God, should send forth angels to declare unto them repentance and redemption through faith on the name of mine only begotten Son; and thus did I, the Lord God, appoint unto man the days of his probation; that by his natural death he might be raised in immortality unto eternal life, even as many as would believe, and they that believe not unto eternal damnation; for they can not be redeemed from their spiritual fall, because they repent not; for they will love darkness rather than light, and their deeds are evil, and they receive their wages of whom they list to obey. But, behold, I say unto you that little children are redeemed from the foundation of the world, through mine Only Begotten."—Doc. and Cov. 28:12, 13. Herein is revealed the infinite wisdom, love and justice of God, preserving unto man his agency that he might secure unto himself eternal life through the means ordained of God in the gospel through Jesus Christ, our Redeemer.

CHARLES DERRY.

LOST ISRAEL FOUND.

HAVING carefully read the article in Herald of December 18th on the above subject, I will give some reasons for differing with the brother. Some Arctic explorers have believed that there was a warmer clime beyond where they have been able to reach, insomuch that explorations are yet continued. "And they who are in the north countries shall come in remembrance before the Lord, and their prophets shall hear his voice, and they shall smite the rocks, and the ice shall flow down at their presence. And an highway shall be cast up in the midst of the great deep."—Doc. and Cov., page 317. Great barriers of ice seem to intervene between them and us. Again, they are to come to "the children of Ephraim, my servants, and be crowned with glory, even in Zion, * * * by the children of Ephraim." This is not in Jerusalem, by the Jews; they are not to assist in redeeming Judea. Again, when Israel are gathered to Jerusalem, Gog and Magog, Persia, Ethiopia, Libya, Gomer and all his bands; the house of Togarmah of the north quarters, and all his bands, including the European nations, are to be gathered against the Jews. (Ezek. 38:2-13), called "all nations," in Zech. 14:2. The unreliability of the histories the brother quotes is shown from the statement that, after Israel was taken out of Samaria they pushed their conquests in Media and Persia unto farther India, which no doubt would take much time, and there the child was born, B. C. 623, who it is said taught the Decalogue, and is thought to have thus proved his Israelitish origin. But Israel was not taken out of Samaria until B. C. 721; (2 Kings 17:23. It was at the time of Ezekiel's prophecy about gathering Israel, thirty-four years after their removal from Samaria, that the brother says they were "pushing their conquests eastward into Media," &c. He then quotes from Esdras, (which I believe true), which utterly disproves the above histories. Esdras says that after they were taken into Assyria they took counsel that they would go into a country where never man dwelt—not into Media, &c. "And they entered into Euphrates by the narrow passages of the river. For the Most High then showed signs for them, and held still the flood until they had passed over. For through that country was a great way to go, namely of a year and a half." I think it was more than fifteen hundred miles, as the brother states, for that would be but about three miles a day. Fifteen miles is a short day's journey, which would make seven thousand miles in a year and a half. It was "a great way to go," at least. "Then dwelt they there until the latter time." Not only until "The age of the Messiah" who came in the meridian of time, as the brother says, but until his second advent, as we learn from the same chapter of Esdras, reading from the 29th verse, "When the Most High shall begin to deliver them that are upon the earth," then "he shall stand upon the top of the Mount Zion," when "Sion shall come and shall be shown to all men," and when the wicked all unite to fight against the Lamb, then the ten tribes are seen coming from the north country. "And now when they shall begin to come the Highest shall stay the springs of the stream again that they may go through." "Now when he destroys the multitudes of the nations [European as well as others] that are gathered together [at Jerusalem] he shall defend his people that remain. And then he shall show them great wonders."—Verses 49 and 50; see also Isaiah chapter 11. Again, it is not reasonable to suppose that those Israelites could have peopled all the nations referred to and not retain the Hebrew language and customs to some extent at least; for it was the avowed purpose of keeping their statutes including circumcision, that they left Assyria. In Book of Mormon, page 452, we learn that the Nephites were the "other sheep" Jesus had spoken of in Judea. And he tells them of the lost tribes that were not in any of the lands round about Jerusalem, that he would minister also to them as to the Nephites and Jews. And on page 105 he says they should write his words, "And when the two nations run together, the testimony of the two nations shall run together also;" and that the Jews, Nephites, and lost tribes should have each other's writings when they run together. Now the stick of Judah and of Joseph we have, and we should have the writings of "lost Israel" if they are in Europe, for those nations have certainly run together with Judah and Joseph. On page 452, Book of Mormon, we learn that "the seed" of those Jews who were with Jesus in his ministry at Jerusalem, the apostles and Jewish saints who ceased to be identified with Judah as a nation, were to be converted by the Nephite writings. That "seed" are more numerous amongst the European nations and this American nation, no doubt, than those who are known as Jews. Then there are also the Ephraimites who were to become "wanderers amongst the nations." And no doubt north Ireland, England, Scotland and Wales, are composed largely of Israelites, but are not "the lost tribes." But, as the brother, I do not claim to know, but only present some of my reasons for believing the lost tribes, as tribes, are still in an unknown "land of the north." Compare the scriptures presented with Isaiah chapter 11, Jeremiah chapters 16 and 31.

D. S. CRAWLEY.

"COMMENDING THE HERALD."

IN Herald for January 8th, 1887, appears a leading editorial under the above caption. It was designed, I presume, to counteract the evils (?) which might result from the reading of my letter, published in the same issue, and together with "others received and published," referred to by the Herald. Aside from a desire that the Saints should be properly educated; God's work conducted in his own way; and matters made to appear as they are, I have no interest in, or anxiety concerning the matter. I expressed my opinion, in said letter, upon a matter which I have been watching for some time. This I regarded as my privilege and duty. I did so wholly upon my own responsibility, without a suggestion or word of advice from any other one of these "friendly critics." My letter was addressed to the "Editors," not "Editor" of the Herald. I call attention to this little error, lest others, as well as the Editors of the Herald misunderstand, and therefore misconstrue my motives.

So far as I am concerned, this is no personal matter; and when the Herald says, by implication, that impugning the motives of those who write commendations; undue suspicion, want of charity, &c., are the fruitful causes which led to the expression of those opinions which the Editors "regret to notice," I frankly state, (and this is not putting it in its strongest form) I do not believe it. I am somewhat like the Elder who, upon visiting a certain locality, heard the report that the "Mormon preacher" (meaning himself) had been "mobbed and killed." "I knew," said he, (when relating it) "that it was a lie, as soon as I heard it." *

I believe that we should labor together in love, encourage one another in all that is wise and right; that we should be thankful, (especially to God) and strive to appreciate the labors of others as we wish others to appreciate our own work. Nor am I opposed to the publication of words of appreciation from subscribers for, and contributions to the Herald. All this is conceded to be proper, and is not in conflict with the objectionable paragraph of my letter. Please read the following statement found in my published letter: "There are some things, or (not "on") some lines of policy, which require special care lest they be carried too far." When considerable of valuable space is occupied in nearly every number of the Herald, with these commendations, some of which are very extravagant, in my judgment, it is carrying the matter too far. The final effect is bad. It is one of the follies of Babylon, which we are required to renounce. "Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues." (Rev. 18: 4). I suppose my illustration is what seemed to be so uncalled for, and therefore out of place to the Herald. In it you will find these words: "Now suppose he should make it a general practice to repeat to the Saints and friends." &c. There is a vast difference between a "general practice" and an occasional one.

With reference to the quotation made use of by the Herald, we advise the Saints to re-read that portion of my letter complained of, also the editorial criticism, and decide for themselves which one is the more wanting in charity. Did I deny that it is the right of the Editors to publish as many of these commendations (or anything else for that matter) as they please? No. Did I deny the right of correspondents, or contributors to the Herald, to write as many commendations, or puffs as they pleased? No. Did I not plainly state that I believed in "sustaining the church papers?" Yes. Did I not say, by implication, that the Herald should be taken and read? Yes. Have I impugned the motives of the Herald Editors, or of those who have contributed to its pages? No. Why then does the Herald regret the appearance of a few lines of friendly criticism? If one needs to become blind to errors, follies and wrongs of others, before he can have charity; or if this blindness is the legitimate result of exercising charity, then I confess that I am, at least, partially destitute of that which is the "greatest" of all. But I do not, and can not, so understand it. When one calls evil good, folly wisdom, and error truth, it is no evidence that the love of God dwells in his heart. On the other hand, if he sees and recognizes folly and error, where they exist, it is no indication that he is destitute of charity. Charity "rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth." Peter's injunction is, "And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves; for charity preventeth (not covereth) a multitude of sins." (1 Peter 4: 8. Inspired Translation).

In the first paragraph of the above article, is a statement of the objects sought, or reasons for the present policy of the Herald in the matter complained of; and at the close of the paragraph we find these words: "we did not think either of these objects was reprehensible." No; nor do I. An object may be good and desirable, while the means used in securing it may be "reprehensible." If this is not true, then the old Papal doctrine that "the end justifies the means," is a correct principle. Again; if these constitute the sole reasons for the present policy, the practice of the Herald, in this respect, should have been the same from the beginning; and especially should this policy have been practiced immediately after the loss occurred to the office, some three years ago.

In the second paragraph, there is a manifest misapprehension of the statements of my letter, and the motives which prompted the writing of them, the closing words of the paragraph are as follows: "If our friendly critics keep on, and we be heedful of all criticism offered, we shall in time be free from all the faults complained of, or shall have no opinions that it is worth while to name, or be safe to state." We understand the phrase "our friendly critics," to be an ironical one. The language of the whole sentence is guarded, but it was evidently meant for a hard hit. Does the language "our friendly critics," apply to those who have written against the practice of occupying so much space in the Herald with the publication of commendations? Does it apply to those referred to in the first part of paragraph second, in the following language? "We regret to notice in a letter published in this issue, as well as in others received and published," &c. If it refers to these, then I can see no just grounds for its grave insinuations. If, on the other hand, it refers to critics who have written on this, or some other subject, and whose strictures have not been published, it is still unjust. Unjust to them, because they have not been heard; unjust to us, because we are classed with them, and it is made to appear that we are responsible, at least in part, for their supposed bad work! Or does the Herald mean to tell us to let them alone, and attend to our own business. I believe, with the Herald, in the principle of authority, and that it finds its best expression in the Church of Jesus Christ. I believe too, that every man ought to learn his own duty, and "act in the office in which he is appointed, in all diligence." There is a time when men, holding office in the Church of Christ, may and should speak with authority, and all are required to submit, unless the matter is reversed by a higher tribunal; but it is not the privilege of any, no matter what office they may hold, to "Lord it over God's heritage." The Saints should be taught to see the right, and to obey as their duty becomes apparent. And while every man should be respected in his office and calling, it should be borne in mind that the gospel law insures liberty to all its votaries, and every member in the Church of Christ has rights and privileges.

"I would not rule, nor yet would I be ruled; I scorn the tyrant as I scorn his slave." Open criticism, I do not fear. It may be unjust, but it gives me an opportunity to defend myself. If the criticism be just, it helps me to see the wrong, and gives me an opportunity to repent. But when the devil rages, and the Saints "imagine a vain thing," it gives me more trouble—in fact is much more to be dreaded. We all need encouragement, but if God's servants will not perform their reasonable duty without being petted and praised, it is better for them, and for the cause, that they should not perform it at all. If these things are never agitated, there can be no development—no improvement in this direction; and the golden mean, which is so desirable, in all things, will never be reached.

Whatever the Herald may think, I do not regard the policy and practice of other religious journals as a proper guide for us; no more than the policy and practice of other ministers is a proper guide for the elders in the Church of Jesus Christ.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT,

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnan at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist. Ad-Reoleiddedig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

Conference Minutes.

PITTSBURG AND KIRTLAND.

The semi-annual conference of the above named district was held at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, Saturday and Sunday, January 29th and 30th, 1887. President G. T. Griffiths in the chair. The session was opened with prayer by Bishop G. A. Blakeslee, R. S. Salyards was appointed secretary pro tem. Minutes of last session read, slightly corrected, and approved. Unanimous invitation to participate was extended to visiting brethren. Reports from the following named branches were read and approved:—Pittsburg 144; 2 baptized, 1 died. Kirtland 19; 2 baptized, 1 received by letter, 1 died. Wheeling 44; 9 baptized, 1 received by letter. Fairview 33; no change since last report. Washingtonville 25; 5 baptized. Lampsville 23; same as last report. Mansfield 19; 2 baptized, 1 died. Lake View (new branch) 10 members. New Philadelphia 15, no change. Church Hill, no change. The following elders reported in person: Joseph Parsons, James Brown (baptized 3), E. L. Kelley, G. T. Griffiths (baptized 12), G. A. Blakeslee, R. S. Salyards (baptized 7); Priest L. D. Ullom reported. The following elders by letter: Ephraim Thomas, David M. Strachan, Jacob Reese (baptized 3). No reports from elders James Craig, John McCormick and M. S. Sutton. Report of Frank Criley, Bishop's agent, was read and referred to an auditing committee, E. L. Kelley and James Brown. It is as follows: balance last report $63 53, received since $382.11, total receipt $445.64, expenditures $245.73, balance remaining on hand $199.91. The following resolutions were adopted: (1), That this conference declare the Byesville, Ohio, branch disorganized, on account of the members removing from there; and that the two remaining members be instructed to join the nearest branch [at Wheeling, West Virginia]. (2), That this conference request each branch in the district to appoint a day and take a collection and send to Kirtland branch to assist in defraying the incidental expenses of General Conference. Amounts so collected to be sent to E. L. Kelley, at Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio. That a report be made of the same, and any balance remaining be turned over to the church treasury. (3), That this conference appoint ten delegates to represent the district at the Annual Conference of April 6th, 1887. The following were appointed said delegates: G. T. Griffiths, G. H. Hulmes, L. D. Ullom, Ephraim Thomas, F. Criley, W. H. Kelley, E. L. Kelley, R. S. Salyards, James Brown, Joseph Parsons. It was resolved that the delegates present at the conference be instructed to cast the full vote of the district except a division occurs, in which case the vote shall be cast proportionately. It was ordered placed upon the minutes that the reason why Elder James Brown was not sent to the field after the last conference was that the Bishop stated that the condition of the treasury did not justify it. It was resolved that all elders in the district who can devote their entire time to the preaching of the gospel be instructed to so report direct to the president of the mission for appointment. It was resolved that all officers in the district who can labor locally, as circumstances permit, be directed to labor under instructions of the president of the district. Elder G. T. Griffiths was elected district president for the ensuing term. The resignation of F. J. Reese as district secretary was received and accepted. A vote of thanks was tendered him for his faithful services. R. S. Salyards was elected secretary for the ensuing term. A. M. Teagarden was sustained as assistant secretary. F. Criley was sustained as Bishop's agent for the next term. It was resolved that the place of holding the next district conference be left to the appointment of the district president. Auditing committee on Bishop's agent's report received and report adopted. It was resolved that the secretary be instructed in making out the credentials of the delegates to General Conference, to give the total number of members in the district in branches, and also scattered members. Sunday services: preaching at eleven a.m. by Bishop Blakeslee; Saints' meeting at half-past two, in charge of brethren Blakeslee and Salyards; preaching at half-past seven by Elder E. L. Kelley. A harmonious and peaceful session, in which perceptible gains to the district were shown. All elders' reports indicate glorious prospects for the district, and more calls for preaching than can be possibly answered. Officials present: of the bishopric 2, seventies 2, high priest 1, elders 4, priest 1, deacons 2. Adjourned to no regular date.

Branches will hereafter please address R. S. Salyards, district secretary, Kirtland, Ohio.

LONDON.

Conference of the above district held at the Saints' Chapel, St. Mary's, Perth county, Ontario, October 2d and 3d, 1886. At 10:30 a.m. Saints met for business. Bro. J. H. Lake was chosen president, S. Brown secretary. Remarks were made by the president concerning the order of business, &c. By resolution the balance of the forenoon was devoted to prayer and testimony, during which the gifts of the gospel were manifested. At two o'clock p.m., Saints met for business. Minutes of last conference were read, received and adopted. Branch reports:—St. Mary's 33 members, 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher and 4 deacons; 1 marriage. Alliston 19, 1 elder, 2 priests, 2 teachers, 1 deacon; 1 died. Corinth 34, 1 elder, 1 priest; 5 deaths, 1 marriage. St. Thomas 17, 1 elder, 1 teacher, 1 deacon; 3 baptized, 2 removed by letter, 3 removed, 1 expelled, 1 marriage. Egremont reports one added. London, Usborne, Cameron, McKillop, Walsingham and Longwood, no report. Visiting brethren were accorded the liberties of the conference. Elders' reports:—Bro. T. A. Phillips confirmed 3, blessed 1 child, assisted to bless 1, administered to sick, conducted 1 funeral. Bro. J. A. McIntosh baptized and confirmed 26, administered to sick with good results. Bro. William Jenkins reports local labor. Bro. R. C. Evans baptized 11; also reports a miraculous case of healing during baptism. Bro. John McKenzie has tried always to present the truth when opportunity afforded. Bro. Willard J. Smith baptized 4 or 5. Bro. George Motashed, present, no report. Samuel Brown baptized 1, ordained 2 deacons, administered to several sick with marked results. Priests' reports:—Bro. C. Pearson reports having made one new opening in Houghton, preached to full houses; has the promise of a school-house when he goes back; blessed in preaching the word. Bro. A. E. Mortimore reports having preached some few times in Usborne; baptized 1. Brethren Robert Brown and John Cornish, teachers, report work in connection with their office. The following resolution prevailed: Resolved that if arrangements can be made with the Kent and Lambton district conference, the meetings of this conference be as follows: one annual conference, and one annual two days' meeting, to be held alternately with the Kent and Lambton district conference. In event of this not meeting the approval of said conference, the president of this mission, or district, appoint time and place of two days' meeting. Resolved that Bro. Christopher Pearson be ordained to the office of an elder. Bro. Howlett of London having been also called to the office of elder, it was resolved that he be ordained to that office at this conference if he present himself. By resolution the district secretary was instructed to notify the different branches of the district through the Herald that no more branch statistical reports will be received unless on blank forms as provided by Board of Publication. Resolved that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet subject to call of president of mission or district. Resolved that brethren McIntosh, W. J. Smith and William Jenkins, be a court of enquiry to examine documents and minutes in connection with Bro. Birch's case, and report same. Reported as follows: "That his apology be not accepted, and that the finding of the committee is that Bro. Birch stands cut off from the church." Resolved that we declare the River-view branch disorganized, and that letters of removal be granted the members by the secretary of the district upon application. Delegates to General Conference: W. J. Smith, R. C. Evans, Robert Brown, J. A. McIntosh. Resolved that the president of the mission or district be empowered to organize the Saints of Ellin into a branch. The speakers for each service were as follows: Willard J. Smith 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Bro. J. H. Lake 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Bro. R. C. Evans 2:30 p.m., Bro. J. A. McIntosh 6:30 p.m. Prayer and testimony meeting on Sunday morning from 9 to 10:20, at the close of which sacrament was administered; also, brethren C. Pearson of Corinth and R. Howlett of London were ordained to the office of elders. Brethren R. C. Evans and J. H. Tyrell were appointed as a committee to examine district record to see if the ordination of priests is forbidden except with the consent of the president of mission, district, or conference. Committee report nothing to that effect on record. Bro. J. H. Lake was sustained as president of the mission, also Bro. S. Brown sustained as president of district and Bishop's agent. Bro. R. C. Evans sustained as vice-president of district, S. Brown sustained as district secretary. Saints met at 9 a.m. Monday for the purpose of returning thanks to God for the gracious outpouring of his Holy Spirit during the session of conference. Adjourned to meet as per previous resolution. The two days' meeting of the London district will be held in the Egremont branch, Grey county, Ontario, June 19th and 20th, 1887.

ALABAMA.

The above conference was held at the Lone Star Church, Monroe City, Alabama, February 5th and 6th, 1887. G. T. Chute, President; L. G. Parker, Secretary. Met at ten a. m., conference was duly organized after which an hour was devoted to prayer and song. Met at two, p. m. Butler Branch has a membership of 33; including 2 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher; no change since last report. Lone Star; last report 30, present 34; 4 of the scattered members of the first organization had been added by vote, 2 priests, 1 teacher. St. Joseph, colored, has a membership of 25, including 1 priest, 2 deacons. Official reports:—Elders J. G. Vickery; G. T. Chute; Priest M. K. Harp, Thomas Vickery, and Perry Booker. Bishop's Agent J. G. Vickery reported: On hand last report $1.50; received $37.00. Paid to Elder G. T. Chute $38.50. Resolved that we request the General Conference to continue G. T. Chute as missionary in this mission. G. T. Chute, president of district, L. G. Parker, secretary. J. G. Vickery, Bishop's agent, was sustained. Preaching at night by G. T. Chute; also at eleven a. m., Sunday morning, and at night by Elder G. T. Chute. The weather was favorable and the congregations large throughout. We hope good was done. Adjourned to meet at the Butler Branch, Butler county, Alabama, on the Saturday before the first Sunday in May, at ten a. m.

Miscellaneous.

ATTENTION.

To the Saints of the Salt Lake District, of the Reorganized Church; Greeting:—There will be a special conference held in Salt Lake City, in the Mission Chapel, to convene March 12th at eleven o'clock, a. m. We desire a full and complete report from all the branches, with names of members and items of birth and baptism; scattered members, so marked that we may enter all names on the District Record. I call special attention of branch presidents to this matter. Let the clerks of each branch make out a full report and send it to my address, box 1123, Salt Lake City. There can be no conference rates obtained over the U. P. and Utah Northern. We may get rates over the Denver and Rio Grande and Utah Central; and if we succeed we will publish in time. The question of a delegate to the General Conference will be one of the matters to be considered. We shall expect to hear a voice from Montana and Idaho; also, in regard to whether the Rocky Mountain Mission shall be represented at the coming General Conference. Let all attend that possibly can, and let each come with a prayerful heart that God's blessing may attend our assembly and his Spirit direct the services.

R. J. ANTHONY,

Pres. of Mission.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Des Moines district conference will convene at Richland, Tama county, Iowa, March 4th, at 7:30 p.m. Delegates coming on the Rock Island road will be met at Malcom from Friday noon train until the six o'clock train in the evening. Those coming on the North-western will be met at Long Point; all trains will be met here on Friday. H. A. McCoy, secretary, Haven, Iowa.

The conference of the Western Maine district will convene with the Green's Landing branch, at Saints' Chapel, March 5th and 6th, 1887; business session to commence at two p.m., the 5th. It is hoped that all will attend.

WM. G. PERT, Dist. Pres.

The Eastern Iowa district conference will be held at Canton, Jackson county, Iowa, on the 11th, 12th and 13th of March. Delegates to Kirtland Conference will be very welcome, as they may find abundant need for what help they can give us. Teams will be in waiting at Monmouth for those coming from east and in Onslow for those from west on Thursday. Come, bringing the spirit of peace.

By order of the district authorities,

W. T. MAITLAND, Dist. Secy.

As the last conference of the Southern Indiana district was a failure owing to the heavy sleet prevailing, we hereby appoint that our next conference will be held at Eden branch, Floyd county, Indiana, March 12th, 1887, at ten o'clock a.m. We further request the officers of branches to see that their branches are reported; and we further request the officers to attend, as there will be special business to attend to.

JAMES G. SCOTT, Dist. Pres.

GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Please give notice through the Herald, that rates have been procured over the following lines of roads: To all those desirous of attending the Annual Conference to be held April 6th, 1887, in Kirtland, Ohio: The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad from Kansas City, St. Louis and St. Joseph, Missouri; Council Bluffs, Iowa; St. Paul, Minnesota, including all other local points on these lines, also the Chicago and North-Western; also, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad; and the Chicago and Alton Railroad will furnish rates at one and one-third fare. All persons are required at points where they purchase tickets to take certificate from the local Ticket Agent, stating that they have paid full fare to Chicago. On presentation of such certificate to me, to be countersigned, it will entitle them to return at one-third fare on presentation of said certificate to the Ticket Agent at Chicago. Unless the above be strictly complied with, they will not be entitled to these rates. We also are promised rates over the Michigan Southern and Lake Shore, from Chicago to Willoughby, Ohio. All ministers having clergyman's rates are not entitled to this reduction. All persons desiring to come on the Chicago and North-Western will notify me at once at what points they desire to take the train on that road, that certificates may be furnished to the agents for them.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,

Presiding Bishop.

NOTICE.

Wanted to know the whereabouts of George Carr, last heard of four years ago was at Atchison, Kansas. Please address his brother Joseph, at 1121 North Nineteenth-st., Omaha, Neb.

ADDRESSES.

George A. Blakeslee, Presiding Bishop, Galien, Berrien county, Michigan.

DIED.

SHIELDS.—Mr. Francis Marion Shields was born August 1st, 1856, at Indianola, Iowa, and died at Council Bluffs, Iowa, January 29th, 1887. He was the husband of sister Nancy Ward Shields, to whom he was married last spring. He was a man of noble and generous impulses, ever ready to do a kind act. Funeral discourse by Elder D. K. Dodson, January 30th.

Farewell, young husband, so kind and dear,
A lovely bride weeps over thy bier;
May God in his mercy bestow
A balm to comfort thy stay below.

PRICE.—At her home near Crescent City, Pottawattamie county, Iowa, sister Margaret Jane, wife of Bro. Samuel Price, and daughter of Bro. Brittan Boren. Sr. Price was born in Davis county, Iowa, July 27th, 1846; she has been a member of the church since her girlhood, and was a faithful and exemplary woman, "looking well to the ways of her household." She leaves a husband and seven children and many relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Funeral discourse by Elder D. K. Dodson.

SMALL.—At Camden, New Jersey, January 25th, 1887, Elder William Small, aged 72 years. Funeral service conducted by Joseph A. Stewart. Bro. Small was born in Lebanon county, Pennsylvania, in March, 1815; was baptized by Benjamin Winchester, in Philadelphia in 1839. In 1840 he left Philadelphia for the west, in company with Hyrum Smith and others. When he reached Pittsburgh, his family was taken sick with small pox, and he was obliged to take a house there and remain until they recovered. He then (with the assistance of John E. Page) began to preach the word in that city, and was instrumental in building up and establishing a large branch at that place. In 1843 he moved his family to Nauvoo, and settled them there, and went himself to St. Louis, and was preaching the gospel and working at his trade at the time of the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum at Carthage. He then returned to his family. He opposed Brigham Young and cast his lot with Sydney Rigdon, returned to Pittsburgh and remained with him as long as he continued faithful. When Rigdon went astray he left him, and would not accept anything that was not in harmony with the law of God. From that time he remained silent and went back to his trade. In 1874 he was baptized into the Reorganized Church, and reordained an elder by T. W. Smith. He always remained faithful, and was an able and willing defender of the truth. He is now in the hands of God, where we will leave him, knowing that he will receive his reward.

GATROST.—Near Council Bluffs, Iowa, December 1st, 1886, sister Catherine Graybill Gatrost. She was in her 73d year; had been a member of the church for near fifty years, endured many hardships during the persecution of the Saints in Missouri; she was baptized and confirmed a member of the Reorganized Church, July 14th, 1860, by Elder E. C. Briggs. Her funeral discourse was preached by Elder D. K. Dodson, December 4th.

COOK.—Near Council Bluffs, Iowa, Joseph Ephraim Cook; born April 17th, 1886; died December 6th, 1886; son of Mr. Joseph and Sr. Salena Cook. Funeral by Elder D. K. Dodson.

KIDKWOOD.—Near Crescent City, Iowa, December 20th, 1886, Bessie Jane, daughter of Bro. James and Sr. Meggie Kirkwood. Bessie was born November 12th, 1886. Funeral discourse by Elder D. K. Dodson.

CARPENTER.—At his home in the town of Marcellou, Columbia county, Wisconsin, March 11th, 1875, William Carpenter, in the 72d year of his age. Bro. Carpenter joined the church at an early day under the presidency of Joseph the Seer, and was called to the ministry and ordained an elder, and preached the gospel of Christ as restored in these latter days.

CARPENTER.—At the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Zedoc Waite, in the town of Marcellou, Columbia county, Wisconsin, December 19th, 1886, Mrs. Nancy, widow of the late William Carpenter, in the 80th year of her age. Mrs. Carpenter was also a member of the old organization with her husband; sharing with him the trials and afflictions which fall to the lot of all that embrace the gospel of Jesus Christ and keep his commandments. Hers was a faith that was built upon the sure foundation; that could not be turned from her purpose by the blasts of adversity, even in the darkest days of the history of the church. And when in the own due time of the Lord the church was reorganized and the Saints' Herald was sent forth with the glad tidings that God had not cast off his people, but his arm was stretched out still, with what gladness she welcomed the messenger of truth, and with delight read the glad news of the onward march of truth. Rest, weary ones, for a little season, and the Redeemer in whom you trusted will come and gather his children into his kingdom. "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, write, Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."—Rev. 14: 13. Funeral services by Rev. W. Russell, Baptist minister.

CARTER.—In Cecil county, Maryland, on Sunday, February 6th, 1887, Clara Lovinia, infant daughter of Bro. Joseph H. and Sr. Sophia Carter, aged 2 years, 2 months and 17 days. Funeral sermon by Elder Joseph A. Stewart.

YOUNG.—At Allendale, Worth county, Missouri, on February 6th, 1887, of inflammation of the bowels, Mr. Hezekiah M. Young, aged 62 years, 2 months and 5 days. Funeral sermon on the 10th by Elder H. A. Stebbins. Mr. Young was not a member of any religious society but he was a just and upright man, an honest citizen of town and county, a faithful husband and a kind father. His wife and three grown sons and three daughters survive him. He held several town offices and filled them to his credit and to the good of the people. He had not attended any religious meeting for over two years till Bro. Jones and I were holding meetings there in January, at which time he heard my sermon on the "Divine Authenticity of the Bible," to which he listened with great interest. On my return he was preparing to attend the first meeting, saying as he heard the bell, that he must go, but ere he could make ready was taken with severe pain and died in thirty hours. Had he lived possibly he would have entered the Church of Christ, but, for reasons unknown to man, the power of disease thus took him away. I hope, however, that some of the family will continue to investigate the Lord's work and yet obey the truth. At their wish I officiated both at the burial service and later in preaching a sermon upon man, his present duties and his future, as to the spirit and the resurrection states.

ELLEGE.—Near Buena Vista, Colorado, on the 25th of January, 1887, of pleuro pneumonia, George W. Elledge, son-in-law of Bro. F. B. Moyers of Conejos, Colorado. He was a man of many noble qualities, had a large circle of relatives and friends who mourn his death and deeply sympathize with his bereaved family. He was a believer in the doctrines taught by the Reorganized Church, but having been deceived by the Brighamite Church, both in Georgia and Colorado, he was slow to follow his religious convictions, and death came ere he united with the church of his choice.

WEBSTER.—In the hospital at Boston, Massachusetts, January 25th, 1887, Mrs. Lucina L., wife of Elder Elias N. Webster, aged 64 years, 6 months and 21 days. Our companion had been a great sufferer for many years—for the last four or five, almost beyond endurance. Among her many virtues was this one, she ministered to the Saints with a kind hand, oft times in weariness and pain. Our home is desolate; we are sad; but she is at rest. Funeral in our home in Wakefield, Massachusetts, attended by her pastor, Rev. F. L. Hayes, of the Free Baptist Church, in Boston. E. N. WEBSTER.

PETERSON.—At her home near Stewartville, Missouri, on February 11th, 1887, at ten o'clock p.m., of heart disease, Sr. Phebe A., wife of Bro. Peter Peterson, aged 42 years, 2 months, 22 days. Sr. Peterson was born in Fountain county, Indiana, whence she emigrated with her mother to Shelby county, Iowa, in 1854, being among its first settlers. She went to Utah in 1862, whence she returned in 1868. On February 25th, 1879, she was baptised into the Reorganized Church by Elder T. W. Chaburn and confirmed by Elder J.

H. Lake. In 1883 she came to this county, where she has lived since, a dutiful wife, a loving mother, a faithful, upright Saint, and a highly respected neighbor, which was duly attested by the large number in attendance at her funeral. She leaves a husband, and eight children (aged from three to twenty-one years) to mourn this their saddest loss. She lived in Christ, she died in Christ, and sleeps to be awakened by the voice of her Redeemer. She was interred in the DeKalb branch burying ground. The writer (J. M. Terry) preached the funeral, assisted by Elder J. H. Merriam. The singing in charge of Elder J. T. Kinnaman, which was consoling—text, Prov. 31: 31. "The rest remaining for the people of God" was presented as the reward for such faithfulness.

JOSEPH SMITH . . . . . EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR . . . . . ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, March 5, 1887.

HAVING hitherto proved David Whitmer to be very unreliable and misleading in his interpretation of the Book of Mormon texts relating to the "Choice Seer," and to the "one mighty" yet to "rise up" among the Lamanites, we now proceed to show him equally faulty when he asserts on page 91 in HERALD, that Joseph Smith did not carry the gospel to, and convince any of the Lamanites. Mr. Whitmer is extremely ignorant on the point, his memory very bad, or he is wilful. The gospel, including the Book of Mormon, was sent to the Lamanites by revelation and the voice of conference as early as September and October, 1830, about six months after the church was organized, as will be seen by the following:

"During the conference which convened three days, the utmost harmony prevailed, and all things were settled satisfactory to all present, and a desire was manifested by all the Saints to go forward and labor with all their powers to spread the great and glorious principles of truth, which had been revealed by our Heavenly Father. A number were baptized during the conference and the work of the Lord spread and prevailed. At this time a great desire was manifested by several of the elders respecting the remnants of the house of Joseph, the Lamanites, residing in the west; knowing that the purposes of God were great to that people, and hoping that the time had come when the promises of the Almighty, in regard to that people were about to be accomplished, and that they would receive the gospel and enjoy its blessings. The desire being so great, it was agreed upon that we should enquire of the Lord respecting the propriety of sending some of the elders among them, which we accordingly did, and received the following revelation:

"Revelation to Parley P. Pratt and Ziba Peterson, given October, 1830.

"And now concerning my servant Parley P. Pratt, behold I say unto him, that as I live I will that he shall declare my gospel and learn of me, and be meek and lowly of heart; and that which I have appointed unto him, is, that he shall go with my servants Oliver Cowdery, and Peter Whitmer, Jr., into the wilderness, among the Lamanites; and Ziba Peterson, also, shall go with them, and I myself will go with them and be in their midst; and I am their Advocate with the Father, and nothing shall prevail. And they shall give heed to that which is written and pretend to no other revelation, and they shall pray always that I may unfold unto them to their understanding; and they shall give heed unto these words and trifle not, and I will bless them. Amen.

"Immediately on receiving this revelation, preparations were made for the journey of the brethren therein designated, to the borders of the Lamanites, and a copy of the revelation was given them. Having got ready for their journey, they bade adieu to their brethren and friends, and commenced their journey, preaching by the way, and leaving a sealing testimony behind them, lifting up their voice like a trumpet in the different villages through which they passed. They continued their journey until they came to Kirtland, Ohio, where they tarried some time, there being quite a number in that place who believed their testimony, and came forward and obeyed the gospel. Among the number was Elder Sidney Rigdon, and a large portion of the church over which he presided."

Not long after this Oliver Cowdery and others continued on to western Missouri, and on the 19th of the next June Joseph the Seer, S. Rigdon, M. Harris, E. Partridge, W. W. Phelps, Jos. Coe, and A. S. Gilbert and wife, "started from Kirtland for the land of Missouri," and about the middle of July, 1831, they reached Independence. Of what followed Joseph the Seer writes:

"The first Sabbath after our arrival in Jackson county, brother W. W. Phelps preached to a western audience, over the boundary of the United States, wherein were present specimens of all the families of the earth, for there were several of the Indians, quite a respectable number of negroes, and the balance was made up of citizens of the surrounding counties."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, page 448.

From these times forward the gospel was preached to all races, some Indians were converted, some of part Indian blood, and some of full and mixed blood were ordained to the ministry, both in the east and west, as some persons who read this can testify. One of these Indian ministers was with the Cutlerites for years; some were ordained in Canada, some learned of the Book of Mormon and the latter day work from the Strangites, some from the elders of the Reorganization, and some from the elders of the Brighamite Church. In 1844 Joseph the Seer preached to a company of Indians at Nauvoo.

The celebrated chief, Blackhawk, visited and conversed intimately with Joseph and family; and Elders Johnathan Dunham and William Redfield, and others, when fleeing from the inhuman persecutions at Far West, Missouri, and vicinity, in the winter of 1838-9, found rest and refreshment in the cabin of Young Blackhawk, then west of where Farmington, Iowa, is, and to whom they preached the gospel and the latter day work in a miraculous manner, of which Bro. Wm. Redfield told the writer and others in 1863. The facts are that Joseph the Seer, and others under his direction, did preach to the Lamanites from 1830 forward, "convincing" and baptizing some, and of these, ministers were ordained, one of whom, an Elder James of Canada, preached at Plano, Illinois, in his own tongue, and Joseph Smith, president of the Reorganization, interpreted his sermon in English. And when Mr. Whitmer, asserts that Joseph, or the ministry under him, have not preached to the Lamanites, he exhibits a sad want of information, also the falsity of his deceptive pretensions. What is especially bad in this for Mr. Whitmer, is, that he claims relative to 2 Nephi 2: 2, 3, 4, touch the "choice Seer," the Lamanite prophet, and their work, that he understands and explains the passages "by the enlightening power of the Holy Ghost;" and says further, "It is very plain to me." That kind of enlightenment which contradicts known facts does not come from the Holy Ghost, for it will "lead into all truth."

On page 92 Mr. Whitmer asserts that "everything pertaining to the Church of Christ is plainly set forth in the fulness of the gospel;" and he further asserts that "Christ commanded the Nephites to write his teachings, for they were to come down to us as the fulness of his gospel to us;" and further, that "the teachings of Christ in the Book of Mormon are pure, plain, simple, and full." While it is exactly true that the Book of Mormon contains the fulness of the gospel, it is not true that all of Christ's teachings to the Nephites, nor all of those which the Nephites wrote have come to us in the Book of Mormon. And had Mr. Whitmer, or his advisers, been called of God to correct assumed errors among the Saints and in the teachings of Joseph the Seer, or had he the guidance of the Holy Ghost, or even a passable understanding of what the Book of Mormon teaches, he would never have made such false and preposterous claims. Mormon, who abridged the records, and who ought to know and did know of what he wrote, has this to say concerning what is in the Book of Mormon of that which Jesus taught the Nephites, which flatly contradicts Mr. Whitmer:

"And now there can not be written in this book, even a hundredth part of the things which Jesus did truly teach unto the people; but behold the plates of Nephi do contain the more part of the things which he taught the people; and these things have I written, which are a lesser part of the things which he taught the people; and I have written them to the intent that they may be brought again unto this people, from the Gentiles, according to the words which Jesus hath spoken. And when they shall have received this, which is expedient that they should have first, to try their faith, and if it shall so be that they shall believe these things, then shall the greater things be made manifest unto them. And if it so be that they will not believe these things, then shall the greater things be withheld from them, unto their condemnation. Behold I were about to write them all which were engraven upon the plates of Nephi, but the Lord forbid it, saying, I will try the faith of my people; therefore I, Mormon, do write the things which have been commanded me of the Lord."—Book of Nephi 12:1.

From this we learn, (1) that only "the more part" of the things which Jesus taught the Nephites were written by them, and (2) that what Mormon wrote of them was "the lesser part of the things which he taught," and (3) that the Book of Nephi, as Mormon abridged it, does not contain "even a hundredth part of the things which Jesus did truly teach unto the people." So then, we do not have in the Book of Mormon "even a hundredth part of the things which Jesus did truly teach unto the people!" If we had the other ninety-nine parts, we then possibly might not need so much of the revelations given through the choice seer in the Doctrine and Covenants. If the Nephite church needed ninety-nine times more of the teachings of Jesus concerning the salvation of man and his church than what we have in the Book of Mormon, what shall we think of the wisdom and pretended inspiration of D. Whitmer and company when they seek to limit us to less than "a hundredth part" as found in the Book of Mormon? If the saints in that age needed so much instruction of Jesus as ninety-nine times more than that found in the Book of Nephi, they having also an inspired ministry given them, what kind of wisdom and inspiration is it that asks us to be satisfied with and accept nothing further for our guidance than what is contained in what claims to be less than "even a hundredth part" of the teachings of Jesus to the Nephite saints! No, Mr. Whitmer, when we weigh you and measure you by the Book of Mormon, and other authentic testimony, we find you sadly wanting.

To further prove that the Book of Mormon does not contain "even a hundredth part" of the teachings of Jesus to his church among the Nephites, we cite the reader to the words of Mormon, 1: 1-4; Book of Nephi 2: 11, 12; Book of Mormon 3: 1, 2; 4: 1, 2. All these texts prove the Book of Mormon to be a mere abridgement of the records of Jaredites and Israelites, and that they do not contain "everything pertaining to the Church of Christ," as blindly claimed by David Whitmer and his fellows.

Oliver Cowdery in writing of the Book of Mormon, July 1835, has this to say of Mormon, who furnished his abridgment of the plates and delivered his work into the hands of his son Moroni 384 years after Christ, (Book of Mormon 3: 1-3; 4: 1); and certainly Oliver had a clear understanding of the matter, for he by a divine call, assisted in writing the Book of Mormon as Joseph translated it;—"He however, by divine appointment, abridged from those records, in his own style and language, a short account of the more important and prominent items, from the days of Lehi to his own time, after which he deposited, as he says on the 529th page, all the records in this same hill Cumorah, and after gave his small record to his son, Moroni, who, as appears from the same finished [it] after witnessing the extinction of his people as a nation."—Messenger and Advocate, page 158.

If Mr. Whitmer and his fellows will learn the essential elements of "the fulness of the gospel," they should read 2 Nephi, chapters 13 and 14; Book of Nephi, chapter 12: 3, 4, and 14: 1, with Book of Mormon 3: 4, etc. In these texts the gospel plan of redemption for all men is plainly taught; but there is little or nothing said in them in respect to church government nor many other things legitimately related to, and growing out of the gospel plan of salvation.

Mr. Whitmer further says on page 92, that "Christ chose 'twelve' and called them disciples, or elders, not apostles, and the 'twelve' ordained elders, priests, and teachers. These are all the spiritual offices of the Church of Christ, and their duties are plainly given. The manner of baptism, and the manner of administering the flesh and blood of Christ, and everything pertaining to the Church of Christ is plainly set forth in the fulness of the gospel."

To refute this wild and delusive statement, we need only say, that the Book of Mormon claims to teach the same things as the Bible, when treating on the same points; and that the latter says emphatically that God placed "in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues."—1 Cor. 12: 28. To these may be added "seventy," (Luke 10: 1, 17) "bishops and deacons," (Phil. 1: 1), "evangelists" and "pastors," (Eph. 4: 11), and in verses 12, 13, and 14, Paul says the officers were "For the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ," and were to continue till the Saints "all come in the unity of the faith, and the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," and that they were given for the very important purpose, "that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and the cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive." Paul and Joseph the seer agree; but Mr. Whitmer and his fellows contradict both of them. Spiritual people will have no trouble in choosing who to believe. The Book of Mormon don't claim to teach the full organization, nor the full methods of government for the church. Mr. Whitmer says the "twelve" whom Jesus chose among the Nephites he called "disciples, or elders—not apostles." Here he goes wide of the truth again; for Jesus called his "twelve" at Jerusalem "disciples," usually. (See Matt. 26: 18-20; John 21: 1-14, etc., etc.) They were also called "elders." (See 1 Peter 5: 1; 3 John 1). And these he called apostles; (Luke 6: 13); and this he did, undoubtedly, for the reason that their mission would be among the Gentiles, chiefly, and there that title would more perfectly explain their office and mission than would any other, for that title signifies "special witnesses." In the Book of Mormon, 1 Nephi 3: 18, 19, 25, 26; Book of Nephi 5: 9; 6: 1; 8: 7-10; The Book of Nephi son of Nephi 1: 4, 5; Book of Mormon 1: 9; 4: 7; it will be readily seen that the "twelve" among the Nephites sustained the same relation to Jesus and his church as did the "twelve" at Jerusalem, and that it is a shallow quibble to teach that they were not in reality "apostles." But we now clinch this argument with a statement from the Book of Moroni, chapter 2, as follows:

"The words of Christ, which he spake unto his disciples, the twelve whom he had chosen, as he laid his hands upon them. And he called them by name, saying, Ye shall call on the Father in my name, in mighty prayer; and after ye have done this, ye shall have power that on him whom ye shall lay your hands, ye shall give the Holy Ghost; and in my name shall ye give it, for thus do mine apostles. Now Christ spake these words unto them at the time of his first appearing; and the multitude heard it not, but the disciples heard it, and on as many as they laid their hands, fell the Holy Ghost."

Thus they were called apostles by the Lord. In these matters we have found Mr. Whitmer and his advisers miserable perverters of the word of God, and of the order of his church and its government. On the other hand, when we examine the work of Joseph the Seer, it harmonizes with both the Bible and Book of Mormon, for he taught that God's apostles were called "disciples" and "elders," and that God set in his church "first, apostles." (See Doc. and Cov. 17: 1, 8; 19: 1; 26: 3, &c.) So notably true is this, that the first cited passage says:

"The rise of the church of Christ in these last days, being one thousand eight hundred and thirty years since the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in the flesh, it being regularly organized and established agreeably to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God in the fourth month, and on the sixth day of the month which is called April; which commandments were given to Joseph Smith, Jr., who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of this church; and to Oliver Cowdery, who was also called of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the second elder of this church, and ordained under his hand: and this according to the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to whom be all glory both now and forever. Amen."

The other passages cited agree with the above, and all exactly agree with the Bible, and with the Book of Mormon, in Book of Nephi 5: 8, 9, with Moroni chapter 2. Herein we see that the young Seer laid the foundations of the church wisely, and in accord with God's written word; and this affords good proof that he was guided and taught of God in those matters. The very fact that many of the officers mentioned in the Bible as belonging to the church are not mentioned in the Book of Mormon, is indisputable evidence that the Lord did not intend that book to be the rule, and pattern, and only authority for the organization and government of his church, neither anciently, nor in these days. And when Mr. Whitmer and others claim to the contrary, they give clear proof of their ignorance and incompetency in teaching the word of God. "For he whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God." John 3:34. As we have already seen, more than ninety-nine parts of what Jesus taught the church among the Nephites was omitted by Mormon when recording what is in the Book of Mormon, hence the falsity and evil of the claim that that book is the full and complete teachings of Jesus to the church in respect to principle, church organization and government, either for this day or any other.

While it is true that we must reject whatever in doctrine or principle contradicts the Book of Mormon, it is equally true that we are to expect and live by a vast amount more of the word of God than is found in either that book or the Bible. These books teach that God will reveal "the abundance of peace and truth" to his people in the last days, and the Book of Mormon, 1 Nephi 3:42, speaks of "other books" than the Bible which were to come "forth by the power of the Lamb, from the Gentiles" unto "the remnant" of the Nephites, "unto the convincing of the Gentiles and the remnant of the seed" of his brethren. All Latter Day Saints accept the Book of Mormon as one of those books. But where is there another, except it be the Doctrine and Covenants? It claims that the revelations therein were given of Jesus Christ, "by the power of God." That book has gone with the Book of Mormon and Bible to Gentile, Lamanite and Jew. But the Book of Commandments did not; for it was never completed, and what had been printed was found by its compilers to be faulty, having been imperfectly copied from the originals, and also having typographical errors. Yes; the "other books" than the Bible have come "forth by the power of the Lamb, * * * unto the convincing of the Gentiles," and some Lamanites and Jews, "that the records of the prophets and of the twelve apostles of the Lamb [Bible] are true;" and these "books" are the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants.

LET EVERY ONE LEARN HIS OWN DUTY.

THIS the editors of the HERALD are striving to do, and yet it would seem that a few think they understand the editors' duties better than do the editors, judging from some letters we see and some rumors we hear.

Is it not probable that the men at the wheel are better prepared to pilot the vessel than either a passenger, a subordinate officer, or a man fifty or five hundred miles away? Is it not presumable that the commanding officers of an army will know better how to plan and conduct a campaign than a private, corporal, or any subordinate officer?

Is it not wisdom to let the judge conduct his own court rather than turn it over to lawyers, jury, constable or jailer? Is it not wisdom to let every person learn and perform their own duties, in their own office, rather than to attempt to influence them, and control them, when we have no authority nor right to do so? Of what use or propriety is there in placing a person in charge of an office or trust, and then interfere with his authority and duties so that he shall not be free to follow his own judgment, according to the rights and obligations pertaining to said office? Think of these things; and then remember the divine injunction to "Let every man stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling," and let him do this without unnecessary and unauthorized interference from others. If we intermeddle with the work of others in respect to duties or privileges, harm may result, for this tends to confusion. As to the propriety of permitting the Whitmer document, and some other matters, a place in the HERALD, our readers will be better able to judge by and by. These parties are forcing an issue with the church. This is unpleasant; but we trust it will prove very profitable in the end to those who love truth and right. The editors, looking out from their position, forecast the future and perceived the need of taking the course they have. They are neither dead nor sleeping in respect to the interests of the church and the duties of their calling.

We wish to see every one "stand in his own office, and labor in his own calling;" and we shall cheerfully aid every one in their own proper sphere, and shall kindly warn all to not interfere with the workers so long as they are found faithful to duty, laboring in their "own calling."

We are grieved that Mr. Whitmer, and others, have thrust their unscriptural and unjust theories and statements to the front and made controversy necessary. But as they have, we shall "contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the Saints," and leave results with God and his people, confident that truth will triumph gloriously. Support your servants, the officers of the church, in their proper work and "don't joggle the boat," nor meddle with the wheel or the wheelmen.

LOYALTY OF THE SAINTS.

IN this issue we publish a list of names of those members of the church who served in the army and navy of the Union. We know personally of many others whose names do not appear in this list, among them Brn. W. H. Kelley, E. Banta, and James Jenkins. It is probable that these and many other names may yet be added to the list. This list is a pleasing proof of the loyalty of the members of the Reorganized Church.

ON February 20th, 1887, there was a branch of the church organized at Logan, Harrison county, Iowa, of fifty-two members, by mutual consent taken from the Magnolia branch. The preliminary meeting was held in the Advent church at Logan, Bro. Charles Derry being called to act as chairman. Bro. Phineas Cadwell was chosen president, J. C. Johnson priest, Wm. R. Davison teacher, Charles W. Kennedy deacon, and Sr. Adele Card secretary of the branch; which is to be known as the Logan branch.

This is the second branch organized from the Magnolia branch within a month, taking ninety members from it and still leaving one hundred and seventy-five members with the branch. There was a most excellent spirit prevailing at the organization, the utmost unanimity existing. The other branch is called the Willow, over which Bro. John Hunt is called to preside.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By request of the Presiding Bishop, we reprint in this issue an Epistle of the Twelve and the Bishopric, also a Basis of Adjustment by the First Presidency, in respect to the administration of the financial law of the church. A careful perusal of these documents will enable the reader to see just what are the rules of the church upon the points involved, and also aid the ministry toward greater unity in teaching and administering the law.

By letter from Pres. Joseph Smith, dated Logan, Iowa, February 23d, we learn he spoke to a full house in that city the night previous when lecturing on temperance. He was to deliver a temperance lecture in Council Bluffs on the night of the 24th following.

On the 21st of February we received letters from Bro. T. W. Smith, Papeete, Tahiti, ranging in date from last November to the following January. He and Sr. Helen had been visiting the Saints on other Islands. Their health was fair, but they longed to go on to Australia, and were anxiously waiting for elders to be sent to labor in their stead.

Bro. William M. Goreham of Beelerville, Kansas, sends for Epitomes to distribute; says he is preaching every Sunday, prejudice is giving way, and that some seem anxious to learn of the faith. Several brethren had moved there of late.

Some one sends us The Enterprise, published in Scottsville, Michigan, containing a scurrilous article against the Latter Day Saints. We judge the writer to be one of that class whose "craft is in danger," for the reason that he rings the changes usual to that class to whom a moneyed call will them inspire to leave their flocks if their salaries are not well fixed. Verily, they will get their reward.

Bro. R. W. W. Preece writes from Bridgeport, Connecticut, that he has been ill for over two years, but is now recovering rapidly. We hope he may soon be well and active.

Bro. William P. Pettersson of Trenton, New Jersey, says in a late letter that Bro. Herbert and himself are doing what they can to push the work in their city, and are holding meetings every Sunday.

Bro. A. J. Hinkle wrote from Twin Springs, Missouri, the 13th inst. He is pleased to learn that Bro. Walton of Green Ridge, Manitoba, is investigating and favorable to the church. He says his brother Samuel has recently baptized two near Tiff City, where he found a few of the Saints. Bro. Hinkle expresses surprise and deep regret at the course of D. Whitmer and the claims he makes, and he thinks the result will be good to the church, but bad for its opposers.

By letter from Bro. E. C. Brand dated February 20th, we learn that our very aged and well esteemed brother, Stephen Perry, of Galland's Grove, Iowa, died December 29th, 1886, but we have no further particulars.

Sr. Goodale, wife of Bro. Jackson Goodale, requests the prayers of the Saints for her recovery. Please remember her at the throne of grace.

Bro. P. B. Seaton writes from Paris, Tennessee, February 18th. He says their district conference of the 12th and 13th instant passed off well, and that the Saints are determined to press forward. He intends to labor some soon in Obyon county with Bro. W. H. Griffin, where many places are open for them.

Bro. J. A. Stewart, of Philadelphia, writes that Elder William Small died in Camden, New Jersey, February 5th, aged about seventy-two years. We await further particulars. Bro. Stewart says also that he intends to soon go to Cecil county, Maryland, laboring for the Master.

WE clip the following from the Chicago Times, of February 22d:

"The Mormon press at Salt Lake is reported to be quite 'hilarious' over the passage of the Edmunds-Tucker polygamy bill. Its hilarity is probably of the same sort as the boodle commissioners in Chicago are now affecting. To keep your courage up there is nothing like whistling a lively tune as you pass the graveyard."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. A. H. Parsons wrote from Glen Elder, Kansas, the 17th, and says:

"The work is onward in this part. The people seem awakened to a deep interest. They have assembled together two different days, and I spent the time explaining Joseph Smith's divine calling, Book of Mormon, and the general features of the latter day work."

Bro. A. L. Whiteaker, president of the Western Wisconsin district, writes to Bro. H. A. Stebbins as follows:

"We had a good time at our last conference. Also there seems to be a change for the better here. We ask for the prayers of the Saints in our behalf."

Bro. E. C. Brown writes that he and his wife left Fonda, Iowa, the 12th of January, last, and have located at Pomona, California, and so far they are pleased with the change. He also so:

"I am as uneasy as a fish out of water, without the Herald. I can not imagine how any live Saint can do without it."

Sr. Mary J. Williams, of Plano, Illinois, says in a late letter:

"It has been twenty years since I embraced the gospel of Christ, and my heart's desire is to contend earnestly for it. I would not exchange the light and knowledge I have of this work for all else in this world."

Bro. R. C. Evans of London, Ontario, in a letter to Bro. H. A. Stebbins relates another instance of the power of God to heal and save. Speaking of one whom he baptized he says:

"She was an invalid for many years, but has now been healed by the power of God. She had been taking laudanum for years, to stop pain. She could take two hundred drops in a day. The doctors said that if she stopped taking it she would die in twenty-four hours. We administered to her and the Lord spoke by his Spirit and told her to stop taking it; he would heal her.

She stopped at once, and not a drop has passed her lips since. She is now well and strong, and become quite fleshy. Her father says that many years ago an angel told him that he would some time hear and obey the fulness of the gospel. I preached twenty-three times in Chathan, and baptized thirteen, all married people but one young lad."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Revealed in love and sacrifice,
The Holiest passed before thine eyes,
One and the same, in three fold guise
The equal Father in rain and sun,
His Christ in the good to evil done,
His voice in thy soul;—and the Three are One!"

IT IS I, BE NOT AFRAID!

IN sending to us the letter appended below, sister Eleanor says, "The enclosed testimony you are at liberty to use or not as you see fit. To me it is, 'A thing of beauty and a joy forever.' Bro. H. A. Stebbins and some others will remember the incident as I related it to them some six years ago. I have never doubted the Book of Mormon nor the Inspired Translation of the Bible since then, although I had not then seen the latter. Oh, if people could only grasp the great and far-reaching work of redemption and could comprehend how worthy of God is the plan, there would be no need of urging them to accept the gospel. But the veil, which centuries of unbelief has woven is not yet taken from before their eyes, but it will be rent from top to bottom and the 'Holy of Holies' he revealed. The end is hastening onward! The sifting time is now, and I am willing God should use for seives whom he will use, for the wheat must be cleansed preparatory to being gathered into the Lord's garner. The lo here, and lo there, is being heard on every hand. He has told us before hand that we should not be troubled when we see it come to pass. From all these things the work of God will only gather fresh impetus; nothing can stop its onward march, and nothing shall perish but the chaff. I daily have impressed on my mind more and more the importance of whole hearted earnestness in the faith, life, and work of every Saint. The Spirit seems ever calling me to the work of the Master and oftimes I feel in a sore strait, between the needs of the flesh and the urgency of the Spirit. I have availed myself of the time of illness to sketch down various articles for the "Column," which I have felt directed to write, and will prepare them as fast as I am able. The sisters have a glorious part to perform in the things about to transpire. I have seen this.

SISTER ELEANOR."

LAMONI, IOWA.

Dear Sister Frances:—While reading the letter from sister Janet Strang, in the Hope for February 26th, I was reminded that I have often intended writing of a similar experience of my own. It was before I came into the church and before I was acquainted with its history or doctrines. There were no Saints where I then lived, but I had read the Book of Mormon, and earnestly desired a testimony of its truth; there seemed so much that I could not understand, particularly about the priesthood. Also, I read that the people of this continent baptized in the name of Christ, long before his advent into the world. As a Baptist I had been taught that the institution of baptism dated from John. However, I earnestly prayed and sought for light, I pleaded the promises "They that seek me shall find me," and "To him that knocks it shall be opened." One Sabbath I spent in prayer and fasting the whole day, and on lying down in the evening my thoughts were still on the subject, so that I did not sleep at once. I left the lamp burning brightly a few feet from where I lay, and all things were distinctly visible about the room. Presently a large new Bible was placed open before me; it was much larger than the largest family Bible that I had ever seen; it did not touch me nor the bed. It was open at the first chapter of Genesis, and the hand as of a man turned the pages, I saw no person; only a hand and arm half way to the elbow was visible. There was a sleeve, thin and white and transparent, but unlike any fabric of which I know, and the hand so beautiful and perfect, and almost as transparent as the sleeve.

Beginning at the account of creation it turned slowly through to the end of Revelations, showing me all the principle doctrines of the church (as I have since found them in the Reorganization). They were all set before me in order; there was the priesthood, and baptism for remission of sins, showing that in all dispensations the church and its ordinances were among men; and redemption through Christ had been preached from the days of Adam's transgression. Each page or passage of scripture bearing on any of those subjects seemed illuminated, and the light therefrom seemed reflected on my brain, so that I saw in great clearness how the Bible harmonized not only with its self, but with the Book of Mormon. At times there would be a longer pause than usual over some passage, and questions would seem to be asked me concerning it, and answers would be impressed on my mental faculties, so they might never be forgotten; and in some instances the pages were turned backwards and the same places compared with others further on, as if yet more deeply to impress the meaning and truth. The book closed at the last chapter of Revelations, and with the hand disappeared, while at the same instant the air above me seemed full of voices singing, "Alleluia, worthy is the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." I arose from my bed ere yet the strain had died away and thanked God for all his goodness which he had made to pass before me. (See Exodus 33:19). I have never lost the light that I then received, and whenever I see dissensions on the church doctrines I cast my mind's eye on that illuminated page, and go steadily on my way. I have thus been able to answer the objections of unbelievers, and at one time wrote three sheets of legal cap paper of scripture proof on the priesthood and church organization for one who thought them unscriptural. In David Whitmer's late articles I could plainly see his weakness. There is indeed to us "a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place."

ELEANOR.

Sisters:—We have given you above the testimony of one of God's pure minded children. Slight, frail in health, sorely afflicted, bearing with patient meekness the toils and privations of poverty, yet she has availed herself of the time of sickness to labor with the pen for the cause of truth. This is a time when most of us think we require extra care and comfort, a time when others must labor for us, but listen to the voice of the Spirit and know, you that slumber, you who are indifferent, that God is at work in his church, and the time is near when there will come a division between those who slumber and those who are awake. The words God spoke through Amos to Israel, come before us and they are as the voice of inspiration even to us. Shall we heed them?

"Woe to them that are at ease in Zion, that trust in the mountain of Samaria, which are named chief of the nations. * * * Ye that put far away the evil day, and cause the seat of violence to come near; that lie upon beds of ivory, and stretch themselves upon their couches and eat the lambs out of the flock, and the calves out of the midst of the stall. That chant to the sound of the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of music like David; that drink wine in bowls, and anoint themselves with the chief ointments and are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph. * * * Thus he showed me and behold the Lord stood upon a wall made by a plumb line, with a plumb line in his hand. And the Lord said unto me, Amos, what seest thou? And I said a plumb line. Then said the Lord, Behold I will set a plumb line in the midst of my people Israel; I will not again pass by them any more."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Amanda Oehring writes from Newark, Dakota, that she feels deeply the responsibility resting upon her as a mother, and feels impressed to caution all parents to beware how they suffer their children to associate with those whose habits are not good, because they will imitate their example. She thinks papa's influence is just as needful as mamma's. Plant the seeds of truth in their hearts while young and sooner or later they will germinate.

Sister Mahitable Hall writes from the "Old Ladies Home," Valencia and 27th St., San Francisco, Cal.: "I have enjoyed reading the sisters letters very much, because I know many of them so well, and I believe many of them will be pleased to hear from me. Despite all the trials and hardships of my life I am thankful to bear my testimony to you once more, that God has never forsaken me and that I know this work is of God and that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God. My faith grows stronger and stronger in the doctrine taught by the Reorganized Church every day of my life. I know that perfection has not come yet, and when we realize our own imperfections, why should we expect perfection from others subject to like trials and temptations. I am striving to overcome, and expect God will at last give me the victory, and my body be a fit temple for the Holy Spirit to dwell in. I am in the "Old Ladies Home," and am very comfortable so far as the body is concerned, but I long for the company of the Saints. If any of my old friends should be in San Francisco, I should be very glad to have them call. Our meetings are so far away that I am not able to get to them often, but dear sister Andrews and her daughters do not forget to come and see me occasionally, for which I feel truly thankful. We have preaching in the Home twice a week, but to me it is like "an hungry man dreameth, and, behold, he eateth; but he awaketh and his soul is empty; or as when a thirsty man dreameth, and, behold, he drinketh; but he awaketh, and behold he is faint and his soul hath appetite." So, too, with the reading matter; there are many books and papers, but none to compare with the Herald and Expositor I look anxiously for them, and should be very lonely without them. The friends who knew me in Council Bluffs and Nauvoo will remember me as the wife of Lemah H. Calkins."

We trust the sisters who have known sister Hall will not fail to send her some token of their remembrance, in her old age and lonely condition. How letters from former friends would cheer and brighten her old age. She is 83 years old.

Sister Mary Fulks writes from Harper, McDonald county, Missouri: "We have no branch at this place, but are going to organize a Sunday School. Brother Hinkle from Leon, Kansas, has been preaching for us. We have taken a homestead in these flint hills covered with cedar and pine, and watered by pure flowing streams, and still there are plenty left for others, and we say Come! My husband is an elder, and he, together with brethren Depue and Cantrell, is determined by the help of God to sound the glad news of gospel salvation over and among these hills of Judea."

May the Lord be with his standard bearers!

Sister Maggie Waddel writes from Louisiana, Missouri: "We seldom hear any preaching, as elders never come this way, yet we are strong in the faith and rejoice to hear of Zion's welfare. Myself and two daughters are all that belong to the church in this place. We cheerfully send our mite for the spread of the gospel."

Sister S. E. Fisher writes from Shenandoah, Iowa: "My desire is to be faithful and set a good example before my family. I rejoice to see the onward march of the latter day work, for I prize it above everything else. I am living in hopes to see all of my family in the fold."

"The Lord will withhold no good thing from them that walk uprightly."

Sr. Cornelia Cutler writes from Logan, Iowa: "There is no place I enjoy myself so well as meeting with the Saints of God; but on account of poor health I have not been able to attend church much this winter. It has been but a short time since I joined the church; but so far from ever regretting it, it has been the happiest portion of my life. I am sad when I think I am the only one of my family belonging to the church; but my prayer and trust is that it will not always be so. I feel there is a work for each one to do, and hope I shall be able to understand what mine is."

Dear Sister:—Can we do more than to be the cause of others glorifying God? Christ said that we would do this if we let our light shine. Day by day the manna fell, and if each day we do faithfully the humblest task appointed us by duty, God will not only approve, but he will lead us, and to the faithful ones it will sooner or later be said, "Come up higher."

Sister Margaret Peacock writes from Soda Springs: "I take much pleasure in reading the letters in the Home Column, and think could I have read them in my younger days it would have been much to my advantage, both temporally and spiritually." I would advise the young to appreciate their privileges.

Sister Elizabeth Allen writes us from Pleasanton, Iowa: "Ask and ye shall receive." "This text came to my mind and I determined to ask some of the sisters to join me in a donation to the Home Column Missionary Fund. I for one feel that the thought which originated this was impressed by the Spirit, for while we do not feel like sending a small amount to our Bishop, we can through this fund send in our dimes, and they will make the dollars, and we can influence others to send. It is not for us to say where this small beginning will end, but I am sure we will all be repaid for every effort we put forth to spread this glorious gospel. I feel like saying, God bless every one that has helped this fund, and may they be rewarded four fold."

Sister E. J. Edwards, writes from Edmore, Michigan: "I am young and have three little children, and appreciate fully the good advice to young mothers, and ask an interest in your prayers that the way may be opened up that we may be with the Saints, for the world is no company for me. If the sisters will use vinegar instead of water for mixing their stove polish, it will not burn off, and will polish better!"

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 2d.

Dear Sisters Frances:—The letters from the sisters in the Home Column afford me great pleasure and comfort. They speak of devoted hearts and earnest endeavors in the glorious cause of the master. When weak and weary in the every day struggle, few are exempt from, they come, seemingly, borne upon the wings of love, breathing peace to my troubled soul and encouragement to my fainting heart. My experience adown life's pathway has been a very rugged one. Trials and privations have disappeared in one form only to reappear in another, since early childhood. But I was blessed with a knowledge of the truth when young, and like a beacon it has ever been before me, lighting, in my darkest hours, the gloom that would have otherwise become unbearable. What a blessed gift to us is this guiding, comforting Spirit! How adapted to every want and fitted to every purpose for the advancement of our spiritual welfare and comfort here and salvation hereafter. Blessed be our Redeemer's name! "He doeth all things well." "His mercy endureth forever." To his love there are no bounds. May each one of our noble band of sisters ever be found in meekness at his feet.

I think the Home Column Fund a glorious idea. Who can measure the good it will be productive of if adhered to and continued in an humble, prayerful, sacrificing spirit? Humility, prayer, and sacrifice! What a world of power—divine power—there is contained in those words! Humble lives, prayerful hearts, and sacrificing spirits, make the world brighter and bring heaven nearer than perhaps we think. Speaking of sacrifice. The thought occurs to my mind, why can not we each and every sister, pledge ourselves to contribute the sum of one dollar, at least, per year. Birthdays come but once a year, and who is there so poor in this world's goods that can not spare the small sum of a dollar a year. Would there be sacrifice connected with it? then so much the better, for God who seeth in secret, rewardeth openly, and so giveth the increase. One dollar obtained through denial and sent to the Lord, we may say? Yes, and if sent in the spirit of love and followed by prayer, will avail much more in the good work than greater sums taken from plenty where they are not missed. We claim to love the Master. Love knows no sacrifice.

I would like if I am not trespassing upon your time too much, to say a word to the sisters here in Utah. Why can we not each and every one, subscribe a dollar a year to the Home Column Fund, and have more help in this field? We are few, and fewer of us possess worldly good to any amount, and doubtless all do all they think they can now; but would not this extra effort supported by continued, united prayer, be a great aid in loosening the hands of the workers here now, and perhaps bring more? When has the need been more pressing? Are we to sit idly back and wait for the captain to bring re-enforcements, in this hour of need? No, no; let us take heed lest we leave undone those things we ought to have done. When you see daily the honest hearts that have been led into captivity, hearts that once tasted the same Spirit and shared the same light we now enjoy, but which are now bleeding beneath chains far heavier and harder to cast off than those resting upon any other people, does not your whole soul go up to God in a mighty cry for their deliverance? O! that divine love and watchful care that left the flock that were safely housed, to find and bring back the lost one! What tears of sorrow when lost! what rejoicing when found! Can we doubt the utility of a sacrifice that causes angels to shout for joy? O Lord, in thy mercy send forth more laborers, that the hungry be fed the bread of life, and the naked clothed in the garments of righteousness. Ever praying for Zion's speedy redemption, I am,

A SISTER.

RIVER SIOUX, Iowa, Feb. 2d.

Dear Sister Frances:—I am the mother of a large family of children of my own, and have raised eleven to be grown, besides I have had the care of several others that had no homes, and I know the responsibility that rests on mother's. I have striven to the best of my knowledge to show them the plan of salvation in accordance with the gospel, and I thank God I have had the pleasure of seeing all in my care come into the kingdom by baptism. Mothers, be faithful in training your children, for it is quite a trial, but we must look to God for help. He will help in time of need. This is the greatest work on earth and I know it is true, for I have had testimony after testimony. I want to bear my testimony to this latter day work, and tell how good it is for us to serve God and trust him. I rejoice in this glorious work daily and would not give what little I know for all the world. What would the world be to me without the knowledge of God? I have had broken limbs healed instantaneously by the power of God, through his elders. I have been sick nigh unto death, and have been restored instantly. I have been restored from pain through prayer, and have had my children restored from burning fevers through prayer. So let us, sisters, be faithful. Let us serve Him with all our might and strength to the end; and all strive to meet where parting is no more, is my prayer. Perhaps this is my last to the "Home Column."

I remain your sister in the gospel,

SARAH W. CONYERS.

SLACK'S CANON, Cal., Jan. 16th.

Dear Sister Frances:—This calm, quiet, Sabbath evening I long to be assembled with you at Lamoni, listening to words of comfort and cheer from some faithful elder. I do miss so much the spiritual feasts enjoyed there. Oftentimes I can almost feel the dear, comforting influence of the Holy Spirit as some of the testimonies given in prayer meeting recur to my mind. Though so far away from God's people I do not feel alone, for I still have that blessed privilege of taking my burdens to the Lord, who always gives comfort and strength to press on.

As I think of your good work, together with Sr. Emma's and Sr. Helen Smith's, I long to be instrumental in doing something for this glorious cause. Looking back over the past year and many preceding ones, I see no sacrifice, no worthy action done; but with the New Year, and realizing how near the end may be when we must account for precious moments spent so idly, I awaken to my duty—I will serve my God more faithfully in the future. The great preparation for war, together with events transpiring daily tell us the time is short for good works and preparations. Oh, may we be ready when the glad day comes. As the fifth was my birthday I send along my mite, wishing it were larger; hope next time I can do better. Hoping all Saints will respond readily to so worthy a cause. I will close, hoping that you will sometimes remember me at the throne of grace.

SR. EDITH POPE.

Correspondence.

SANDWICH, Illinois, Feb. 15th.

The late conference at Plano was one of the best if not the very best, it has been my good fortune to attend. Unity and concord pleasing to behold, characterized every session; light and power accompanied the proclaimed word, and grace and unction, spiritual gifts and thrilling blessings came near running our cup of joy over in extatic delight, as the stream of divine inspiration was flowing profusely in tongues and the interpretation thereof, with exhortation and prophecy. We felt, oh, so very humble; vowed unceasing homage; renewed our covenants; consecrated afresh our strength and lives; thanked the ever mindful Lord; wept for joy, praised him aloud for mercy, and repaired to our walks of life and fields of labor with trust and confidence, with hope and assurance. The ice and slush, the cold and the rain, kept many away, but the Spirit was not restrained by mundane contingencies.

Editors Herald:—I admire your strong and logical defense of the cause against the David Whitmer attack, also the well written defense of Bro. J. R. Lambert on "the Gurley movement." Such articles tend to strengthen the faith of the Saints. One good brother remarked to me: "These investigations are doing me good." I was glad to hear the remark, not that I thought the brother shaky, but I rejoice to see the strong made stronger. The church is being investigated and tried from every quarter, the Bradenites, the Whitmerites, the Gurleyites, and a great many other ites, are all storming the citadel of truth; but if God be for us, who can prevail against us. God will be for us so long as we are for him and his truth.

We have looked long and anxiously for a brighter day for the work here, and still look, confident of being gratified at no distant day. I am confident the work here is losing no ground. We may grow nervous because of great anxiety to see the work speed on, but it is God's work and will move, for he has commanded. Bro. J. T. Kinnaman is holding the fort at Clarksdale and McCartney's Cross Roads, once a month. We do what we can to keep the work at home alive, and visit the DeKalb Branch once a month. Captain Dan. K. Shields is holding a temperance revival here, in which our people are taking a good part, a thing I love to see. Next in importance to the gospel work (which includes all virtue) is this temperance cause, which should be heartily supported by the church, and which may be done without the sacrifice of a single noble or righteous principle; while upon the other hand a failure to thus support, is, in my opinion, a dereliction of duty. "Wait not to be commanded, but of your own selves seek to bring to pass much righteousness," is the divine injunction covering this temperance reform work, and should be heeded. 'Tis true the gospel net gathers of all kinds. Even some find their way into the covenant who are so far from favoring the temperance move as to sign a petition for grog-shop license. We shall meet the record of our lives.

The sudden death of Sr. Peterson was a sad blow on the church, and the family,—so sudden. Truly we have no lease on our lives. Let us live each day as if it were our last, yet as diligent in business as though we expected to live away.

Yours for truth, J. M. TERRY.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 19th.

Dear Herald:—I feel somewhat impressed to express through your valuable columns my appreciation of the great work being done through your weekly visits. I can say with thankfulness I have gained much that is precious to me from your teachings; also been much encouraged time after time, when passing through the crucible by the testimonies and experiences of God's Saints in these latter days. It is two years and three months since I was born into the kingdom of God; the kingdom Daniel saw set up in the latter days by the God of heaven; and although the time is short and my experience limited, I can say this is the Church and kingdom of God, and this knowledge I have not received from man, or men, but from the same source Daniel obtained the dream and interpretation from, and which King Nebuchadnezzar desired made plain to him, even the God of heaven. And with this knowledge given to me through obedience to the gospel of Jesus Christ, I feel in my heart to thank my heavenly Father that I am counted worthy to be called a Saint in these last days. This is not a reformed gospel, but the real genuine, primitive gospel as taught by Enoch, Abraham, and all the prophets before Christ Jesus and his apostles, and with them I am looking forward to the glorious day when we shall all meet to partake of that feast Christ himself shall preside at, in his and our Father's kingdom. With such a glorious hope as this, I don't think we should walk with our head bowed down like the bulrush, but we should look up with joy, knowing that if faithful to the end we shall indeed be there as a guest.

We are trying to hold our own in this "the Hub," but we have powerful elements against us. We are not fighting or wrestling with flesh and blood, but against spiritual wickedness in high places, principalities and powers. We see the enemy at work all around us, inside the church and outside. Yes, "The foe becomes more daring, knowing well the latter day." And he is trying with all his forces to overthrow the work in this great city, but I don't think he will gain his point. We have great need of a good wise servant continually in this place, and I pray in the near future we shall have one. We have valuable assistance from Bro. M. H. Bond at times, and we thank God for such a fearless, wise, and noble servant of Jesus Christ, and wish there was a thousand just such men going into the field today, for we need them. He casts a shell into the enemy's camp every now and again which causes the devil to rage, for the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing. When we sometimes stand up in their public meetings and bear our testimony to the truth of a restored gospel, these "Come to Jesus" gentlemen, these modern pharisees, foam and rage and warn their followers against our doctrine; thus, not satisfied with refusing to enter the kingdom themselves, but shut the door and prevent those who would perchance enter from doing so. And yet they stand up and say they believe every word between the lids of the Bible, and say, "If we had lived in the days of the Savior and the apostles, how we would fall at their feet." But how do they receive his message now when presented to them? and how do they treat his servants? The Savior calls them by the right name. I pray the honest in heart may be brought out from among them and "be separate and touch not the unclean thing." Saints, let us take a decided stand against such and not pander to their sophistry, for I am sure it is abominable in the sight of Israel's God. May we be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, then we shall reign with him.

Yours in the faith,
R. BULLARD.

Bro. Joseph and Blair:—The weather has been moderately fair and dry this winter, but very cold at times. The work of preaching has been languishing more than usually, from several causes, principally from lack of means, owing to scanty crops last year. The elders are not able to give their usual portion of time to the work, and others are not able, for the same reason, to help them on their way. But after all, there has been a great deal of preaching done, and some additions to the church. I think that most have done their part as far as they are able, like myself, but not very far from home for reasons already stated.

Some time ago the doctrine of Christ as found in the Bible, and especially Moses and his doctrine, was attacked by a Mr. Whitney, an infidel, by appointment, at the Able School-house, and was very ably answered too, in two speeches by elders J. M. Richards and E. Wheeler. The same gentlemen agreed to engage in joint discussion with brother Richards on this proposition: That the principles of the "Liberal League" are better adapted to promote civilization than the doctrine of Jesus Christ as found in the New Testament, etc. But he failed to appear at the appointed time and place. He has been heard from since, and promises to come again. My son, J. A. Davis, held a discussion with a Baptist minister commencing January 25th and closing the 28th, on the identity of their claimed churches, with the apostolic church of the New Testament. J. A. Davis affirmed first. His arguments were pointed, clear and cutting, where there was any cutting needed, leaving no room to build another kind or to preach another gospel, which had a telling effect on the negative, and he could not, and did not make a single point of negative argument, but puffed, stamped, sweat, and emphatically denied, and that was all. The last two nights the Baptist affirmed, and as usual, went to the the kingdom that Daniel saw, and tried to identify that with the one Christ established; and also to the Novatian split in 251; from thence to Waldenses and the Mennonites, etc. But the negative took a flank move on him, and said, "It is not the question where your church came from, but what kind of a church you have after you have come." He kept him there, just where he did not want to be, by analyzing the Baptist Church, and affirming the negative, and proving right ahead of him that the Baptist Church could not be identified with the true apostolic church. I think the Baptist minister wished he was on the other side of the question, for those two last nights at least. O my! what a sweating he had—"Plum tired!" And thus was gained another glorious victory for the truth.

The Herald and the Hope are highly appreciated everywhere I go. All pray for us.

J. T. DAVIS.

LEXINGTON, Tenn., January 31st.

Editors Herald:—It is with great comfort to myself that I am permitted to read so valuable a paper as the Herald, whilst surrounded with so much that conflicts with the doctrine of Christ. I herewith give my testimony in part, learned by an experience of eight years search. I was, prior to eight years ago, a member of the Missionary Baptist Church and was earnestly in search of truth. The Baptists claimed to be the true Church of Christ, and to take the New Testament as their basis of doctrine. I prayed to know the cause of such a change in the organization, practice, and doctrine of the church now from what it was in Paul's day; and to the astonishment of several of us who were truth-seekers, the Lord sent a messenger into our midst, who publicly, in the name of Christ, denounced all the churches as being any part of the Church of Christ; and proved it by the Old and New Testaments. He said the time had come that God was going to gather all the honest in heart, the enquirers for truth, out of all these different sects. I, with others, sought unto him for instructions; he told us we would have to forsake our traditional doctrines, have nothing to do with them, as they were only following the principles of the ancient pharisees, who praised the law and the prophets, but would not receive Christ and his doctrine; and now these so-called churches were praising Christ and the apostles, and yet they would not have his doctrine in their system.

This man taught publicly that theirs were man-made systems to get gain, and that the people were deceived; and though they thought they were right, that did not make it so. I commenced advocating this doctrine in my church. No sooner had I done that, then they said I was believing the doctrine of the devil; that God did not send prophets nowadays; that there were to be no miracles, that they were done away with; and said, "If you are going to follow such doctrines, we will withdraw our fellowship from you." I told them I should advocate that doctrine whether anybody else did or not. So, out I went. Thus persecution commenced. All these conflicting sects combined together to overthrow us, and our leader was compelled to leave us. We were in number about twenty, who would not deny what we received of our messenger; as we were satisfied he was sent of God. He told us to remain faithful and pray to the Lord, that his Spirit would lead us right. He would not tell where the church was, but said it was the same to-day that it was eighteen hundred years ago.

The people called us all kinds of names and said we were Mormons. So I concluded to find out what Mormonism was. I had always believed them to be the worst deluded people on earth. As I was formerly deceived in what I thought was right, and found I was wrong, I thought Mormonism might be right. I therefore wrote to Salt Lake City, to get some of the Mormon Church works. I received a supply of tracts. We learned that those people surely had the truth, and that polygamy was not what every body said it was. Mind you, our teacher believed in baptism by immersion, but said he was not sent to baptize, that the Lord would direct us right and that these things would come up all right. We heard of some Mormon elders sixty miles from us. We went to see them, and heard the whole doctrine of Christ preached, as to the first principles. We learned they had apostles, prophets, and advocated all the doctrines of the former church. We received baptism at their hands. They told us we had better emigrate right away to Colorado; that God required us to gather out of Babylon. I made sacrifice of home and property, for the gospel's sake and went. When I got there I found out that I had been too hasty. All things seemed to change. I was required to be re-baptized, and re-confirmed, as if what I had done was not good. I said, No. The Spirit said, "Stop, don't be too hasty; but examine where you are going." I said, "Lord, is it possible these people are wrong?" I was reading the Deseret News, and was much troubled about my travels for truth's sake; and all at once, to my surprise, one Joseph Smith, son of the first prophet, commenced quite a discussion with one Littlefield of the Utah Church, on church principles, which was to me very interesting, because my hopes began to be revived, and I wrote to the address of Joseph, which I found in the Deseret News; and to my surprise I received a lot of tracts, which I gave to all the poor, broken hearted Brighamites that I knew of in my neighborhood. This began to open our eyes, by the working of God's purposes, that we might know the false church from the true church.

Soon after this Bro. W. W. Blair made his appearance in that locality, at my house first. I never was so helped up in my life. He commenced preaching, Brighamism commenced trembling, and truth began to find its way into many honest hearts. This was in Manassa, Conejos county, Colorado. I lived in Antonito, same county. I sold my possessions, put my family in my wagon, and started to Independence, Missouri, with a determination to see for myself, and know for a certainty of the doctrine of the Reorganized Church. I was at the General Conference at Independence in 1885. I saw Bro. W. W. Blair, but did not get to speak to him. That fall I came to Tennessee, where I am now, and where I left in 1880. Now, I say to all the Saints, that I am satisfied that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ is the true church, and all that I regret is that I have not lived up to my duty as I should have done. I have spent all to search out the way of life and salvation. We have no church here. The Herald is all the preacher I have, and as I have been slow in responding, I find that the Lord has given his servants open hearts of indulgence, and the Herald has been a weekly visitor since May 29th, 1886. I have had many revelations, from time to time, in regard to this latter day work, which if all were written, would fill a large volume. Suffice it to say to all Saints, You need not doubt this work; it is of the Lord; and shortly, a greater manifestation of the power of God is to be realized among the Saints, in the strengthening of our faith, than ever has been. But many, I fear, are going to do as they did in days of old, go back and walk with Jesus no more. I have the promise of seeing some of God's servants here in this lonesome wilderness, where people have "a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof." The Spirit says "from such turn away." I ask the prayers of the Saints everywhere that I may hold out faithful and finally be numbered with them, by being fully clothed with the church armor.

Written by a brother only in Spirit, from the midst of confusion—or Babylon,

J. H. SCOTT.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 17th.

Dear Herald:—I feel grateful to God that I through his wonderful love and the manifestations of his Holy Spirit, have been brought into this glorious light; as it is said, a light that shineth in the darkness, and the darkness comprehendeth it not. But that light is growing and spreading, being carried by God's anointed torches, now moving to the right and to the left, now leaping ahead over some barren spot where there is not substance enough for the seed to take root and subsist, then entering some village or hamlet where it is rekindled, and its reflections and its waves penetrate far around until it disturbs or awakens the whole country around about. And thus it is to spread and roll on until it fills the whole earth. When I first heard this glorious truth I was living with my father near the village of New Troy, Michigan, and was seventeen years old. I had been attending meetings some at the M. E. Church, which I only did for pastime. It was about this time that Bro. Wm. H. Kelley made his appearance in our village and gave us something that would bear investigation,—something our minds could feast upon; and the Spirit bore witness with the words that it was the true and everlasting gospel of Jesus Christ. I had never before experienced a desire for religion, but now I began to think and ponder it in my heart, and I thought in order to better my condition, and that I might serve God according to the desire of my heart I must leave home, knowing that I was not needed there. So I departed. After that I made my home at Van Buren's. Sr. VanBuren took a kind interest in me and tried to help me to understand this glorious work, (as she has many others), and to store my mind with useful knowledge, hoping that in time I might be of some use to myself and mankind. After attending several meetings and hearing the doctrine explained, I had a strong desire to unite with the church, (that was in the year 1881), so accordingly I was baptized by Bro. Blakeslee, near Gallien, Michigan, and confirmed by the same under the hands of Brn. Wm. H. Kelley and Daniel Spinnings. Directly after, we, Sr. VanBuren, her sons Alie and Bro. Charles, moved to Elgin, Illinois. Having been judged unfairly by some of the Saints on account of affairs over which we had no control, and having a desire to know of our standing before God, we sought the Lord in prayer and fasting to know if we were doing his will, and if we were accepted as his children to manifest it by showing me a light. After fasting and praying for some time I received the desire of my heart. As I was ascending the stairs to the barn loft (for that was where I retired to pray) a light flashed before me that was so bright and wonderful it nearly overcame me. I went back to the house and told Sr. VanBuren about it. She was afraid I would be deceived by a false light and told me to go back and make sure it was from the right source. On returning I saw a glorious light that filled the whole room; I will not attempt to describe it. From that time all doubts and fears vanished, and we have received many wonderful blessings. That light has very often appeared to me since, to warn me of approaching dangers and evil.

We were only in Elgin one year; our home has since been in Milwaukee, with the exception of one year which we spent in Wittenberg, Shawano county. At the latter place we met with two families of Saints,—Elder J. M. Wait and family, and Bro. Heman Rew and family. Bro. Wait preached several sermons at our house; during one of the meetings the Spirit of the Lord rested upon him in prophecy, and stepping towards me he laid his hand upon my head saying, "Thus saith the Lord, ere many days this young man will be called to preach my gospel, and will be instrumental in bringing many souls unto the church. He is weak, but I the Lord will make him strong."

Hoping to ever live to meet God's approval, I am yours in the faith,

CLINTON D. SANFORD.

RIDGE STATION, Ark., Feb. 12th.

Brother Joseph:—I am living down here in the lowlands of the St. Francis River, where the hunters and fishers of different countries resort to catch game and fish for temporal blessings, and get reasonable rewards. Now if I was a hunter or fisherman, I think I could make it pay, clumsy and lubberly as I am. I wish the master, if it is his will, would send some officers this way. I think it could be made profitable. The Herald is all the preacher we have, and the people are very scared of reading it, though some have borrowed it, and returned it satisfied. If any elder will come down he shall have a home while preaching the word of life; that I may get a part of the reward, or a reward. I am the only Mormon in all the bounds, and I have a wife, two sons and a daughter that would be members if they had an administrator to do the work; so send or come. I live in Craghead county, Arkansas, five miles south of Jonesboro, on the Bay dirt road.

I am yours in bonds,

W. P. IVIE.

BELOIT, Kansas, Feb. 10th.

Brn. Joseph and Blair:—January 19th I left home, went to Randolph, in Riley county, and preached five discourses in the town; very good attention and some interest manifested, while prejudice was strong against us. The 27th I came to this place, ten miles south-west of Beloit, in company with Bro. Case; have preached sixteen times with a good, fair congregation; for two or three nights more than could be seated. All kinds of accusation are made against us and the doctrine. One religious man said: "A man that would preach such doctrine ought to be hung." We have preached right ahead with a growing interest. We hold the majority in the belief that we preach the truth, whether any of them obey or not. I discover a mistake between my last letter and the report of district clerk concerning the time for our next conference. I stated the 5th of March, and he said the 12th; therefore, so that there may not be any mistake in our coming together let the minutes and the time reported by the clerk be the time for our conference, March 12th, 1887.

To the Saints and friends a word of warning concerning a man calling himself Prof. A. J. Openo, lecturing on temperance, claiming to be a Methodist preacher, and presenting recommendations from some fifty men of different avocations or professions; among them he introduces my name as recommending him as an able disseminator of the temperance cause. I met him and asked for the paper; he gave it to me, but would not acknowledge that he wrote and signed my name. I never signed, nor saw it till I came here where he was using it. It is an imposition; let the Saints take warning.

As ever your co-laborer in the bond of truth,

Editors Herald:—The work seems on the advance in the Canada mission, and prejudice seems to be dying out, and there is a desire to hear of the truth gaining ground.

In looking over the Herald for December 18th, I see an article headed "Lost Israel found." In it the writer takes the position that the ten tribes did not go farther north than England or Ireland. I can not agree with him, and I will cite a few passages of scripture which I think prove to the contrary.

In Jeremiah 16: 14, 15, we read:—"The days will come that it shall no more be said that the Lord liveth that brought the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but the Lord liveth that brought the children of Israel from the land of the north, and from all the lands whither he had driven them." This shows that the Lord was to perform some great miracle for their deliverance. Also Jeremiah 31: 8, "Behold I will bring them from the north country." In Zechariah chapter two, the prophet, after speaking of things that were to happen in the latter days, says, "Ho! ho! flee from the land of the north." In Book of Nephi, chapter seven, Jesus says: "Verily I say unto you, I have other sheep which are not of this land; neither of the land of Jerusalem; neither in any parts of that land round about whither I have been to minister." Now by these words we learn that the ten tribes were not in any land near Jerusalem."

In Nephi 8: 1, Jesus says: "But now I go unto the Father, and also to show myself unto the lost tribes of Israel, for they are not lost unto the Father, for he knoweth whither he hath taken them." In Nephi 10: 1, Jesus, when speaking of the latter days, says: "Verily I say unto you, at that day shall the work of the Father commence among all the dispersed of my people; yea, even the tribes which have been lost, which the Father hath led away out of Jerusalem." In 2 Nephi, chapter 12, Nephi instructs his brethren concerning the last days, and says: "And it shall come to pass that the Jews shall have the words of the Nephites, and the Nephites shall have the words of the Jews; and the Nephites and the Jews shall have the words of the lost tribes of Israel; and the lost tribes of Israel shall have the words of the Nephites and the Jews."

If the people of the British Isles are the lost tribes of Israel, where is the record of God's dealings with them, and also the account of our Savior appearing to them. We have the record of the Nephites, and of the Jews, but none of the lost tribes. Book of Doctrine and Covenants, section 108, par. 6: "And they who are in the north countries shall come in remembrance before the Lord, and their prophets shall hear his voice, and shall no longer stay themselves, and they shall smite the rocks, and the ice shall flow down at their presence. And an highway shall be cast up in the midst of the great deep. Their enemies shall become a prey unto them, and in the barren deserts there shall come forth pools of living water; and the parched ground shall no longer be a thirsty land. And they shall bring forth their rich treasures unto the children of Ephraim, my servants. And the boundaries of the everlasting hills shall tremble at their presence. And they shall fall down and be crowned with glory, even in Zion, by the hands of the servants of the Lord, even the children of Ephraim; and they shall be filled with songs of everlasting joy."

I think the passages cited prove clearly that the ten tribes are farther north than England, also that when they come from the land that they were led to, the Lord will perform such a great miracle for their deliverance that the dividing of the Red Sea for the Israelites to cross shall no more be spoken of. "But the Lord liveth that brought the children of Israel from the north country." They will also have a record of God's dealing with them, and will come to Zion, to Ephraim's land—America.

The writer of that article seems to think that the lost tribes are not hemmed in with ice and snow. If not, what do the words of the Lord mean through Joseph the Seer, in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants just cited,—“and their prophets shall no longer stay themselves, and they shall smite the rocks and the ice shall flow down at their presence.” It is my opinion that the lost tribes have no communication with any outside nation or people.

Yours in the bonds of the gospel,
RICHARD COBURN.

RED STONE, Kansas, Feb. 15th.

Brother Blair:—I promised the president of the Kewanee Ill. district last March, that I would labor in the district some this winter, and to fulfill that promise I met him in Rock Island, and assisted in instructing the church in the law. Returned to my home in Mercer county, January 3d, from which I had been absent for six months, (except four days), and after spending ten days arranging my affairs I went to Henderson Grove, in company with J. W. Terry, and commenced preaching Saturday evening, January 15th, and closed our labors January 24th, speaking nine times at the Latter Day Saints' Chapel and once at Forest Flower School-house, five miles west of the chapel. We found the branch very much discouraged, but left them much improved, and all seemed willing to do their part to help on the good work; and several not of the faith told us that they were almost persuaded to unite with the church.

I went from Galesburg to Clinton, Iowa, and assisted Bro. W. Turner for a few days, as he was making a protracted effort in that place. Returned home the last day of January. I left home in company with my wife for this place, to visit relatives, look for a home, and try to sow the good seed. I made an opening here in January, 1876, and I find that eleven years have not obliterated the impression made at that time. Commenced labor Saturday evening, February 12th, intending to preach eight discourses at the least, but I found that Rev. Isaac Frisby had an appointment for Sabbath morning, so I went to hear him. And by the way, he claims that he belonged to the Braidwood, Illinois, branch, and that you baptized him, and that he left the church, but he did not tell me why. He seems to be very pleasant, but thinks all the churches are a part of the grand army of the Lord. Why did he leave the church? I will close my labors here the 23d; am having good congregations, and very good liberty, and hope to reap if all goes well.

Your brother in Christ,

D. S. HOLMES.

EAST DELAVAN, Wis., Feb. 14th.

Bro. Joseph and Blair:—I herewith give you an account of the proceedings of our business meeting, held at the residence of Bro. Charles Davis, at Lyons, Wisconsin, February 5th, 1887. Organized by choosing Henry Southwick, chairman of meeting. C. H. Burr, chosen secretary. Object of the meeting was the election of a building committee for the purpose of building a house of worship for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; said house to be 24 by 36 feet on the ground, and sixteen feet high; and to be located on the farm now owned and occupied by Henry Southwick. A committee of three was elected, Henry Southwick, chairman, Anthony Delap, treasurer, and A. J. Hare third member. Church trustees were chosen as follows: Charles Davis, of Lyons, Wisconsin; Albert Delap, of Geneva; Henry Southwick, of Delavan; C. H. Burr elected secretary of committee. We further report that the lumber is paid for and part of it on the ground; and, God willing, we will break ground as soon as the frost is out. So you see we are still alive here.

Yours in bonds,

HENRY SOUTHWICK.

PEMBROKE, Dak., Jan. 14th.

Dear Herald:—I have often felt that it was my duty to let your readers know that away out in this section of country there are a few Saints who are endeavoring to hold up the banner of truth and calling on men and women "to repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." The efforts in this direction are not without results; and although very few have been gathered into the kingdom, yet we have cause to rejoice when we see prejudice melting, and the Spirit of God working on the hearts of the people, compelling many to admit the truths of the gospel as transmitted to us through Joseph the Seer, leaving them in a similar position of that of Agrippa when he said to Paul, "Almost, thou persuadest me to be a Christian" (Acts 26: 28); or as was the case with Felix, when he trembled and answered Paul, and said, "Go thy way for this time, when I have a more convenient season I will call for thee."—Acts 24: 25. Oh that people were willing to open their hearts to the truth, and come into the kingdom of God's dear Son! But popularity and the praise of men, haughty spirits and proud hearts, seem to be hindrances in the way. They fear the reproach of their fellow men, and they are not willing to come down into the valley of humility and confess their errors and sins. What a fearful looking for of judgment by those who are convinced of the truth, and who are unwilling to obey! May God in his infinite mercy, by his Holy Spirit, impress upon the minds of this people the terrible condemnation under which they rest for ignoring the truth. The Saints have great cause to be thankful for the superior light which has made manifest to our minds the precious truths of the everlasting gospel, and makes such plain paths for our feet.

Elder William Sparling, president of the branch at this place, dispenses some wholesome truths every Sabbath, thereby cheering and encouraging the few who have started on the way to the celestial city. In conclusion let me say that the Herald is a welcome visitor, and the precious truths which it teaches is indeed food for the hungry soul.

Yours in the faith,

SAMUEL LOVETT.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Feb. 4th.

Brother Blair:—I am striving to hold up the banner of the Lord in this far west city, and I seek the Spirit of my office to guide me, that I may have the wisdom of the gospel. When the Spirit of my Redeemer is with me, I feel all the liberty that is needful to preach, or teach the gospel of Christ; and when I content myself with doing this, I feel happy in the light given me, and my heart is full of love so that I delight to preach the gospel. By this rule it is not needful for me to go all over the dictionary for words that we failed to comprehend the endless meaning of, but I think of that time when the blessed Lord will give us a pure language; then we will all speak the same words, and the same impressions will be in our minds.

I am sorely tried, at present. When I came here the weather was very fine; I opened up meetings, and it became so cold that the people could not come out, and the nights that people would come out to hear, the next day they would be visited by their elders and ministers, and under their teachings would have to promise never to go again to the Mormon meeting. So we are keeping them at work to keep their flock's together.

To night I preach in a private house; and, if it is needful, I will go from house to house and preach the word of the Lord to them. Dear Saints pray for the few Saints that live away out here; that the day may come when others will take hold of salvation, and serve the Lord in this place. It is on the highway from the west to the land of Zion; and for the poor Saints that may come with their own teams, this would be a resting place, where they could recruit and go forward to homes in eastern Nebraska, Iowa, or Missouri, and if the brethren going to conference would remember that here are Saints that would be glad to hear them speak, and if those brothers, R. J. Anthony and others, would seek to help us as they go east, it would do good. I will continue for a few days, then go east to Lincoln, and if Bro. R. M. Elvin has not commenced there, I will open up there. But I will be guided by my first impressions after I pray to the Lord. We received the tracts and desire to send them to every minister in the city, as we come to know names.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

R. C. ELVIN.

EPISTLE OF THE TWELVE AND THE BISHOPRIC.

ALSO A DEFINITION OF THE LAW BY THE FIRST PRESIDENCY.

[Saints' Herald, May 1st, 1878].

To the Church of Christ, called to be Saints, in all the world, Greeting:—It has been apparent to the Saints, everywhere, that there has been a misunderstanding for some time between the Bishopric and the Twelve on financial matters, and that considerable injury to the cause has arisen thereby. Therefore, it was deemed wise and expedient that these two quorums should meet and confer together, and, if possible, agree upon the proper construction to be put upon the commandment of the Lord, given in 1861, whereby it appears that they should unitedly "take measures" to execute the "law of tithing;" and to adopt such rules as would place the financial affairs of the Church on clearer and more effectual bases than have hitherto obtained.

To this end, on Wednesday, April 17th, [1878], these two bodies met in Plano, Kendall county, Illinois, at the house of Bro. Joseph Smith; the First Presidency being present by invitation.

The following paper, designed mainly as an explanation of the scope and meaning of the commandment referred to, was submitted by the First Presidency to the Council:

BASIS OF ADJUSTMENT.

1. The word "execute," as used in the revelation of 1861, is, in our view, to be construed to mean to "carry into effect," to set in motion legitimate forces to put existing laws into active operation. To "execute" any given law may, and in this instance, does involve different offices, or the administration of different officers.

2. The charge to the Twelve is intended to define their duty as an advisory and judicial body; with whom lies the "regulating" of "the affairs of the Church," according to law.

3. The part to be performed by the Twelve in carrying into effect the "Law of Tithing," is precedent and subsequent, and involves both teaching the law and administering it; administration and teaching to be upon principles agreed to by the Twelve and the Bishopric.

4. The Bishopric are the legal custodians of all the temporalities of the Church, upon whom devolves the duty of gathering, safely keeping and disbursing the moneys and properties of the Church, in keeping with the law, and agreeably to the rules mutually agreed to by the Twelve and the Bishopric.

5. In the receiving and disbursing of church funds, all persons who may be entrusted therewith are in fact, or ex-officio, agents for the Bishopric, and should account to the Bishopric; and in disbursing general church funds should do so by the direction of the Bishop, or in accordance with an agreement and understanding with the Bishopric previously had; specific, in regard to objects before determined upon; general, in regard to objects incidental to the prosecution of missionary labor, for which, in the nature of things, no specific directions can be given.

6. The Bishopric being created by and responsible to the Church for the proper administration of their duty, should not, in justice, be made finally responsible to the Twelve, in any other sense than all other church officers are responsible to the same quorum; that is, by proper charge and adjudication before the general church officers, or by decision of General Conference.

7. Discretionary power to receive and disburse church funds, and dispose of church property for the uses of the church, according to the laws of the Church, and subject to inquiry by the Twelve and the church, must rest in the Bishopric only, as, by law, the Bishopric only are legal custodians of such properties; but the Twelve may and should exercise such supervisory jurisdiction, according to previous arrangement and agreement with the Bishopric, as will prevent unnecessary delay and injury to the work of the ministry, and will facilitate the proper expenditure of funds in the Church Treasury, for the purpose of carrying on the preaching of the word, in which is included the support of the families of traveling ministers in the field; the publication and distribution of such books and tracts as may be deemed expedient, for which no other provision is made; the erection of houses of worship; purchase of lands, together with the care and uses of them in missions assigned by conferences.

8. The Twelve being by law a traveling, spiritual, ministerial body, supposed to be in the missionary field, can not in justice be expected to act as a council exercising local and decisive direction in the disbursement of church moneys, in the sense that no expenditure could be had, except upon their consent, or order, first obtained; it is necessary that there be a full understanding between that Quorum and the Bishopric, as to the scope of the law demanding their attention to the temporal affairs of the church; also as to the rules which may govern both parties; which rules once agreed upon shall obtain until modified by mutual agreement and understanding; no power being given to either party to dictate those rules.

These principles were adopted singly, and afterward as a whole, by the Council of the several quorums assembled,

On the day following, the Twelve and the Bishopric, being assembled in council, adopted the following principles and rules, after each quorum had separately considered and acted upon them.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES OF ACTION.

1. We believe the duty of the Twelve to be to teach the law of tithing, viz: Explaining to the Church the necessity, and the mode of complying therewith, in order that the financial interests of the Church shall be properly supported, and that they may receive tithing and forward the same to the Bishop, who is the acknowledged Treasurer of the Church, or to his appointed Agents.

2. That it is devolvent upon the Bishopric and their authorized Agents, (such Agents to be Elders), to travel among the churches from time to time, to teach the law of, and collect tithing, and free-will offerings, and see that the financial interests of the Church are duly cared for, and the wants of the poor duly administered to, and use their best and earnest endeavors to keep the ministry in the field, as appointed by General Conference, especially the members of the Quorum of the Twelve and of the Seventy, and to see to it that the families of such receive proper support.

3. That officers in charge of Missions appointed by General Conference, receive necessary support in the prosecution thereof, from the Agents of the Bishop in said missions, and that said Agents in the disbursing of moneys be not subject to the direction of District Conferences, or Branches, (yet said Conferences may advise or recommend), but should make itemized reports to said Conferences, who may audit and approve the same, and said reports as certified to, be forwarded to the Bishop.

4. And that in all Missions where there is no Agent to represent the Bishop, the officer in charge of said mission may receive tithing and free-will offerings and use such sums as shall be considered necessary for said mission, keeping an account thereof, together with the names of persons from whom received, and forward a quarterly account thereof, together with whatever moneys may remain in his hands as a residue, and not needed by him, to the Bishop; and upon receipt thereof, the Bishop should enter the same upon his books, crediting and debiting the Church with said amounts, received and paid out, together with the names of those from whom received and to whom paid; and that all such itemized reports be published by the Bishop from time to time with his regular reports.

5. In all Missions where the officer in charge can not consult with the Agent, (though one may have been appointed thereto), he may receive tithings and free-will offerings and use the same, (as hereinbefore provided for in Article 5, of Basis of Adjustment), or only part thereof for said mission, accounting therefor to the Agent and to the Bishop in his quarterly reports.

6. We advise the utmost care and economy in the expenditure of money; that the first of all objects to be attained by the Church is the promulgation of the gospel, and all other interests are but secondary compared with it, which object must ever demand our first attention; next to which is the support of the poor. And believing that moneys have been extravagantly expended in the publication of books, and unnecessarily so, we advise the utmost care in that direction, and the strictest economy; and we recommend that the Bishopric encourage so far as seems wise and is practicable, the building of church-houses, and that they take the advisory oversight thereof; and also the erection of store-houses in such localities where the interests of the Church do now or may hereafter demand it; believing that through this channel the families of traveling Elders would receive more ready support, and which means does not now come into the Church Treasury.

7. Members should be taught the moral obligation that rests upon them, to put forth an effort to do something of some moment, during the year, either in tithings, free-will offerings, or donations, according to their financial abilities.

8. Where branches, districts or individuals wish special labor in any locality, the needed funds to sustain such effort should not be taken from the means designed for or belonging to the General Treasury.

9. When means are given to ministers of the Church for their benefit, by persons in and out of the Church, such "means" should be reported to the Bishop, that he may be cognizant of the help that each receives, and that said report be made semi-annually.

We present the foregoing principles of action to all the Saints as being the rules and regulations adopted by us for the government of and administration in the financial affairs of the Church, and we respectfully commend them to the consideration of and observance by the Church in all circumstances and cases included in and covered by the above specification of principles.

A REBELLIOUS CHURCH.

TRAITOROUS BOTH TO THE LAWS AND THEIR OWN DOCTRINES.

THAT IS WHAT UTAH MORMONISM IS.

[Salt Lake Tribune, Feb. 13th].

THE Edmunds-Tucker bill has caused much speculation as to whether it can be enforced without infringing upon rights guaranteed by the Constitution to religious bodies, if it should become a law. It is to all appearance harsh and sweeping in its provisions. But of that we shall not speak in this article, but will compare the law of the church with that of the land, and let the people decide whether the "crusade" is "persecution," as the Utah Church claims, or a prosecution for willful and wicked violation of both the laws of God and the land. It is now generally known that there are two organizations or churches of Latter Day Saints, one presided over by Joseph Smith, and the other by John Taylor. The former denounces polygamy as false and contrary to the law of the church, and the latter positively affirms it to be God's law to the church. In this article we propose to show that the representatives of the Reorganized Church are the conservators of the faith and doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and that the church in Utah has apostatised from the original faith and is rejected of God.

The church was organized April 6th, 1830, by direct commandment from God as, we believe, "agreeably to the law of our country," and from this and the revelations given to the church, it is plain to be seen that polygamy never could obtain as a doctrine of the church. No religious body of people or organization have defined their position more clearly than we have done in relation to the laws of the land. It is also known that we believe in a gathering dispensation, and that Independence, Missouri, was to be the "center place," and known as the "land of Zion" to the church.

"And behold, there is none other place appointed than that which I have appointed; neither shall there be any other place appointed than that which I have appointed for the work of the gathering of my Saints, until the day cometh when there is found no more room for them."—See Book of Covenants, Rev. Dec., 1833.

The above is a sure promise to the church, and the Saints were to occupy on conditions, as we show by citing the following in the Doctrine and Covenants:

"Behold, the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind; and the willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days; and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land. * * * For it shall come to pass that the inhabitants of Zion shall judge all things pertaining to Zion; and liars and hypocrites shall be proved by them, and they who are not apostles and prophets shall be known."

There are three points in the above quotation to which we call special attention; first, the "willing and obedient" were to possess the land; second, the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land;" third, the "inhabitants of Zion" were to judge all things pertaining to Zion; liars and hypocrites and they that were not apostles and prophets were to be known. The right to decide in regard to doctrine and as to officers and character is clearly vested in the "inhabitants of Zion."

At the death of Joseph Smith the church was rejected and rent asunder, Brigham Young, with a majority of the twelve assumed the right to govern, and by sophistry held a large number of the people until by their abominable practices they were driven from Nauvoo, while the family of Joseph Smith remained in the land appointed with many of the church, and from that time until now have lived, and by precept and example preached the gospel and built up large branches of the church all through the land, finding "grace and favor" with the people as the Lord promised. Brigham Young and his fellows proved to be the "rebellious." The revelation of 1841 clearly shows that they (the church) were given sufficient time to build the temple in Nauvoo, and if they failed at the end of the appointment, "Ye shall be rejected as a church with your dead, saith the Lord your God," was the decree to the church; but the promise to them was if they kept his word "They shall not be moved out of their place. But if they will not hearken to my voice, they shall not be blessed, for instead of blessings, ye, by your own works, bring cursing, wrath, indignation and judgments upon your own heads, by your follies and by all your abominations which you practice before me, saith the Lord."

With that curse and judgment over them Brigham Young and his fellows were driven out, "cut off and sent away out of the land," and from that day until now that terrible decree has followed this people; by their "follies and abominations, which they practice" (polygamy), the wrath and indignation of the Nation is resting upon them. And this is not all; they located here, and in a very marked degree fulfill the prophecy of Jeremiah as found in the 17th chapter, 5th and 6th verses:

"Thus saith the Lord: Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and the man whose heart departeth from the Lord. For he shall be like the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited."

Brigham with his fellows, whether by fate or otherwise, located in this salt and then uninhabited land, and here they made flesh their arm or strength. It was here Brigham declared, "Adam is our father and our God, and the only God with whom we have to do."—See Journal Discourses, Vol. 1, p. 50.

It was here in August, 1852, the same people adopted polygamy as a law of their rejected church, and undertook to perfect themselves by the flesh, proclaiming abroad to the world what they so stoutly denied before, decidedly proving themselves to be the "rebellious" ones and liars and hypocrites; besides turning entirely from the Lord and worshipping man. And to show they are false apostles, turn to 2 Corinthians, 11th chapter, and there read what

Paul says about some one: "For if he that cometh preacheth another Jesus, whom we have not preached, ye might well bear with me." He preached Christ the risen Lord, as did Joseph Smith. But Brigham preached Adam God. "For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light. Therefore it is no great thing if his ministers also be transformed as the ministers of righteousness, whose end shall be according to their works."

False apostles sure enough. Whatever may be said as to the quotations we have given, the case is a clear one. By the revelations believed in by the church, we have located both churches; one in the "Land of Zion," the other in Utah, or the "Salt Land." The latter we have proved to be the "rebellious," for no other people could fill the bill.

Let us now notice the teaching of the Reorganized Church briefly, and then call attention to the crisis that seems to be at hand.

THE REORGANIZED CHURCH.

In June, 1852, a small body, composing those that remained, and the beginning of the reorganization of the church, passed a resolution against polygamy, declaring it to be a false and corrupt doctrine. In August, 1852, Brigham and his fellows proclaimed it as the best doctrine the world had ever known. In 1863 the Reorganized Church established a mission here, and from that time until now we have waged a constant warfare against polygamy and all its kindred evils, as well as the union of Church and State, and have faithfully warned this people of the judgments to come. In 1870 the church at a general conference memorialized Congress by sending the following to the Senate and House of Representatives:

"We, your memorialists, would therefore submit for the consideration of Congress in its action on the Utah question, and in its legislation on the right of Congress to interfere with polygamy as being a part of the faith of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints: First, that the law of the church, found in the Bible, the Book of Mormon and the Book of Covenants, books accepted by the polygamists themselves, expressly forbid to one man more than one wife; Second, that the law contained in these books is the constitution of the church; that no law can obtain in contravention thereof, and therefore polygamy is illegal and of no force."

The above clearly shows the position taken by the Josephites. And here let me quote again from the Book of Covenants the expressed faith of the church on "Governments and the laws in general." The following will be found in the Appendix:

"We believe that every man should be honored in his station; rulers and magistrates as such, being placed for the protection of the innocent and the punishment of the guilty: and that to the laws all men owe respect and deference, as without them peace and harmony would be supplanted by anarchy and terror; human laws being instituted for the express purpose of regulating our interests as individuals and nations between man and man, and divine laws, given of heaven, prescribing rules on spiritual concerns, for faith and worship; both to be answered by man to his Maker."

That expression of faith shows the ruling power, so far as our citizenship is concerned, to be the law of the land, and her Executives to be over apostles and prophets.

I quote again from page 177, Plano edition of the Book of Covenants:

"Let no man think he is ruler, but let God rule him that judgeth, according to the counsel of His own will; or in other words, him that counseleth or sitteth upon the judgment seat. Let no man break the laws of the land; for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land. Wherefore be subject to the powers that be, until he reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet. Behold, the laws which ye have received from my hand are the laws of the church, and in this light ye shall hold them forth. Behold, here is wisdom."

Here is a positive commandment given to the church to let none break the law of the land, and to be subject to the powers that be until Christ should come. The law of the church is, let no man think he is ruler, but let God alone rule the man that sits upon the judgment seat; let the courts be free to decide all cases according to the law and evidence, and let all churchmen, popes, cardinals, bishops, deacons and arch-deacons, together with apostles and prophets, and all laymen, abide the law and the rulings of the courts, and honor and respect the powers that be until God shall by Jesus Christ judge the quick and the dead. In this light the Reorganized Church holds forth the laws of the land by precept and example.

But the church in Utah says the Edmunds law, and the execution thereof, is "persecution," and the courts and jurors are "inquisitors." Let me quote a solemn warning given to the church: "And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole church under condemnation. And this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion, even all; and they shall remain under this condemnation until they repent and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say, but to do according to that which I have written, that they may bring forth fruit meet for their Father's kingdom; otherwise, there remaineth a scourge and a judgment to be poured out upon the children of Zion."

It is written in the Book of Mormon, "No man among you shall have, save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none." Are John Taylor and his fellows prepared to abandon polygamy and concubinage and do as it is written? If not, that scourge and judgment hangs over them like a nightmare. The former commandments to them were: "Thou shall love thy wife with all thy heart, and cleave unto her and none else." Are they prepared to do that and escape the terrible judgment of trampling the law of their country and that of God beneath their feet? God says to them, "By the abominable you practice [evidently meaning polygamy] ye, by your own works, bring cursings, wrath, indignation and judgment upon your own heads." Only think of that! Who is to blame for the passage of these "cruel and unjust laws" that John Taylor and his people complain so much about? Has not God warned them, and has not the church warned them, and all good men have pleaded with them, while the Government has dealt mercifully with them, and has borne long. Even the Edmunds law and the officers that have been sent to execute it have been angels of mercy to this people if they could only see it. But the prophet said they would not see when "good cometh." God has called on them to repent and do according to that which is written. If they did not then they should become as "salt that has lost its savor, fit for nothing but to be trodden under foot of men."

When men have been brought before the courts for practicing polygamy, and proven guilty, the court has invariably given them opportunity to abandon the practice, keep the law and be free. But few have accepted the mercy extended; and when Governor West visited the Pen in the goodness of his heart and offered to use his influence to secure to them a full and free pardon if they would submit to the law as the courts had interpreted it, they refused his kind offer. A god could not have done more. The Edmunds law, when enforced, fines and imprisons them; but the law of God to them says they shall be "trodden under foot of men." Should the Edmunds-Tucker bill pass, may we not look to see the literal fulfillment of God's decrees to them? Which is the severer in their provisions, the laws enacted against polygamy or the decrees of Jehovah to them? If cursings, wrath and judgments, and to be trodden under foot of men, is to be visited upon them by the righteous indignation of a just God, who is going to stay His hand or change His decrees? It ought to be apparent to all people that the Nation is aroused and all the laws passed so far are in nowise contrary to the law of the church. But the mercy that has been and is being extended by her Executives will eventually cease, and justice will not be robbed.

Can it be possible that this people can not read the handwriting on the wall, with their past experience and the pending crisis almost upon them? They ought to fully comprehend the signs of the times. Surely it needs no Daniel to give the interpretation to the writing, and the interpretation thereof is, polygamy with all its evils will be speedily and forever blotted out as a church measure, and people of all sects, kinds and conditions will be compelled to obey the laws of the land; and those that have become a law unto themselves by oaths and covenants to foster polygamy and a cowardly and corrupt priesthood, will learn when it may be possibly too late that God will not come out of His "hiding place," as they claim, to their deliverance; but He will be found on the side of the Nation.

We write this with the kindest feelings, with the hope that the honest, but erring ones, may yet make peace with God and their Government before it is too late, trusting that all who believe in the latter day work who have been caught in the snare, may pause and repent, and do according to that which is "written," while God's mercy and that of the Nation is extended to them. Let Latter Day Saints especially consider the situation as it is, and then let them decide. We present the two bodies for the consideration of all—John Taylor, with George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, with almost all their leading men fugitives from justice and a price set upon the heads of Taylor and Cannon, with the judgments of God and the wrath and indignation of a powerful nation hanging over them, seems to be the position of the Saints in the valleys of the mountains.

A BETTER PICTURE.

Turn we now to the east; there we find the Reorganized Church, with Joseph Smith its president, living in peace and building up the places from whence the Utah leaders were driven, and according to the decree of God to the church are finding "grace and favor," while re-inhabiting the "waste places of Zion." Nearly five hundred members live in Independence, Missouri. Far West and other places are occupied, while Kirtland has become a place of pleasantness and peace. Its temple has been repaired and occupied by the church, and next April, the 6th, the General Conference will be held there. Presidents Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair will preside, with none to molest or make afraid, while Taylor and Cannon, if not arrested, will not dare to be seen. What a contrast. Will the people choose while there is opportunity, or will they risk the terrible consequences?

By throwing off the polygamist yoke and accepting the faith and teachings of the Reorganized Church, they will find peace and rest for their weary feet, while torn and bleeding hearts may be filled with joy and gladness and great rejoicing in the Holy One of Israel.

May kind Providence direct the wandering and wayward ones to the light of truth and the paths of peace, and where they may rest secure in the triumph of right.

R. J. ANTHONY.

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 12th, 1887.

THE PERILOUS TIMES OF "THE LAST DAYS."

In 1 Timothy 4: 1-3 we have a prophecy of Paul's of "the latter times," an expression which may refer to any part of the second half of the times of the Gentiles, though it is never used with regard to the first half. Paul in this passage describes the characteristic features of the Papal apostasy, which deluged Europe with superstition during the middle ages.

"Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy; having their conscience seared with a hot iron; forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats."

In 2 Timothy Paul predicts later events still, the perilous times of "the last days," an expression markedly distinct from the previous "latter times."

"This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God; having a form of Godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away."

Now while certain of the features here enumerated are evidently not peculiar nor distinctive of any one special period of history, yet a high state of civilization has a tendency to produce, not exaggerated individual cases, but a general prevalence of selfishness, pride, luxury and corruption. The old Roman civilization, with which Paul was acquainted in the city of the Cæsars, was not certainly lacking in individual instances of these things, though it had also features of a very different character. But there were to intervene between those early days and "the last times" long ages of semi-barbarism, during which all that old civilization would cease to be—ages which would be distinguished by other crimes, and especially superstition and a Christianized idolatry. But "the last days" were to witness the revival of the crimes incident to high civilization, with certain special classes of sins super-added. Boasters, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, despisers of those that are good, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, and especially "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof," "ever learning, and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." That these features are all singularly none can question. Its latest and most popular philosophy is agnosticism—a confession that after all its vast and far reaching discoveries, after all its profound researches, it is unable to reach any knowledge of the truth on the highest of all subjects. Agnosticism is simply know-nothingism. It is more; it is not only an assertion that nothing is known, but that nothing can be known; it puts an extinguisher on even the attempt to know Him, whom to know is life eternal. Our age has a form of godliness, a Christian Church is established in most states and is sustained by the different powers of Europe; but where is the power to maintain purity in the churches, or righteousness in the laws of Christendom? Where is the power to arrest war and bloodshed, rapine and slaughter? Where is the power to subject the counsels of nations to the law and will of God, to produce in society any sort of resemblance to the kingdom of God? The religion of these last days has well been called a baptized heathenism;

CHRISTIAN IN CREED, HEATHEN IN PRACTICE.

Another feature of the philosophy of these last days is given by Peter, and is singularly characteristic of our times. "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of His coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." Or as Darwin, the apostle of the nineteenth century, puts it: "All things continue as they were since the beginning of the creation; there is no need for miraculous intervention, no room for supernatural action. We live under a reign of law; as it was in the beginning, so it is now, and so it ever shall be as regards the succession of physical phenomena. One form of life is evolved out of another in endless succession; in physical, mental, moral, and religious spheres, all things continue as they were," or rather, change so slowly and gradually that no sudden catastrophe need ever be apprehended; on the contrary, "we may count on an assured future of great length." Such is the fashionable creed, such the universal doctrine. But its teachers are, as the apostle Paul states, "willingly ignorant" that all things have not continued in one long, uninterrupted succession. They are willingly ignorant of the all-important fact that a flood once broke in on ungodly men, and took them all away." They are willingly ignorant that the invariable law of death has been conquered by the glorious fact of resurrection. If the combined voices of the most universal and ancient traditions and of the most authentic and well attested history demand credence for any fact, they demand credence for these two; and these two facts once admitted, Divine intervention—the control of the law by the Lawgiver—is demonstrated, and the occurrence of such a crisis as is predicted in Scripture is, not only possible, but likely. If what is called the course of nature has been interfered with in the past, it may be interfered with in the future, and in the near future.

Daniel's prophecies also, though dealing principally with the course of nations and the lapse of ages, give us two or three general social signs of the state of things at the close of this age, and it can not be denied that these apply to the nineteenth century as to no previous one. He does not say the power of steam will be applied to locomotion, and the art of travel will be revolutionized; but, looking at the result rather than the cause, he mentions in half a dozen simple words the most characteristic feature of the nineteenth century—"many shall run to and fro." Now to an eye that could embrace in one glance the civilized world, all its seas, and all its shores, all its roads and all its rivers, all its towns and its cities, what would be the first and strongest impression produced on considering the scene? Surely that of  ceaseless motion; many running to and fro, like ants around an anthill. Innumerable travellers cross and recross each other's paths, not creeping or crawling, but rapidly running in every direction; trains flying with amazing speed by day and by night all over the land; steamers, crowded with hundreds and even thousands of passengers traversing every sea and every ocean; huge floating hotels thronged with guests, plying in multitudes on the great rivers of the great continents; railroads, level, elevated, and underground, passing over and under each other in the million-peopled cities of different countries; the whole scene swarming with men and women in motion;

MANY RUNNING TO AND FRO!

No previous age of the world's history could have presented this spectacle; it is unique, it is becoming ever more marked, as year by year hundreds of miles of fresh railroads open up new districts, and as population and emigration increase, and as commerce spreads. Ten thousand persons travel now where one travelled formerly; even ladies and children think little of circumnavigating the globe for pleasure. There is no mistaking this sign of the time of the end; it is distinctive, and so conspicuous and unprecedented as to be a subject of constant comment. How few, as they point to it with pride and pleasure, remember it is a divine mark of the time of the end, and associated with the predicted second coming of Christ and the resurrection of the dead!

Nor is the second prediction less remarkable and distinctive, "Knowledge shall be increased." Education in most of the countries of Christendom is now compulsory, and the result is that every child can read, on the one hand, while literature floods every home, on the other. All that is going on all the world over is known by the masses of the people as well as by their rulers day by day. The news of events transpiring in India and Australia is published in London before the the hour of the events arrives, for telegraphic messages travel faster than the sun!

Every discovery is immediately published throughout the earth, popularized and turned to universal account. The higher education, unattainable to saint or sage, king or conqueror in the earlier ages, is now and an intelligent English schoolboy in these days knows more of the elements of true science, of the system of the universe, of the laws of matter, of the past and present condition of the globe on which he lives, than did the wisest philosophers of the olden time. As "knowledge is power," the result is, that nature with her mighty forces is every year becoming increasingly the helper and the friend of man, to the rapid increase of the physical well-being of the race. The knowledge of these days is real knowledge, an acquaintance with the facts and forces of nature, a rediscovery of the records of the past, and, above all, an immensely widespread acquaintance on the part of mankind with "the volume of the book," containing that divine revelation which imparts the highest of all knowledge, the knowledge of God and of His Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

Brief was the Bible of Daniel's day, and few were the copies of it! Yet only where it had enlightened the minds of men did any true moral or spiritual knowledge exist. Age after age elapsed, and the New Testament was added to the old. But how few comparatively were still the copies! And owing to the uneducated condition of the masses, how few could study the copies that did exist! In the dark ages the Bible might almost as well not have existed, so little were its glorious revelations understood. And there followed ages when to read and study it brought torture and death, and when, alas! editions were printed to be burned.

ONLY SINCE THE REFORMATION

has the world really possessed the book, and only within the last century have Bible societies existed to multiply versions and editions and to distribute by millions all over the world, this king of books. The increase of knowledge which has resulted is almost inconceivable. It has rendered it difficult for us to realise the ignorance of other ages. The increase of knowledge is not to be measured by the amount of light possessed by individuals only, but still more by the number of individuals enlightened. The universality of education, and the marvellous results of the combination of steam power with the mechanical ingenuity that has perfected the printing press, has filled with the light of knowledge the whole civilized world, in a way and to a degree that is absolutely peculiar to the nineteenth century, and especially to its second half.

If this expression, "knowledge shall be increased," be taken as referring especially to a knowledge of the meaning of the prophetic Scriptures, a signification which its context quite justifies, then also is it characteristic of these days, and of these alone. The early fathers understood the predictions about the second coming of Christ, but they were inevitably in the dark, as indeed they were intended to be, as to the meaning of the prophecies about Antichrist, and the events of the second half of the times of the Gentiles. Light dawned gradually after history began to fulfil the predictions; each stage of accomplishment has made the meaning of the prophecies clearer, and since the Reformation progress in a true knowledge of their meaning has been solid and rapid. Now in the close of this time of the end, the clouds of obscurity have completely rolled away; the whole plan and order of events, the succession of empires, the limits of chronology, the scales of measurement, the nature of fulfillments, all have become, in the combined light of facts and of analogies, so clear, that he who runs may read; and the fulfilment of ancient Messianic predictions in the first advent of Christ is scarcely more clear than the fulfilment of the predictions of Antichrist and those of the incipient restoration of Israel in current events.—Prophetic News.

Brethren Vickery and Blakeley were on motion appointed committee to audit Bishop's agent's report, and reported: "We your committee having examined Bishop's agent's report find a discrepancy in his favor of $10, and recommend that the report be returned for correction." Report received, committee discharged, and recommendation adopted. Resolved that this conference sustain the action of the district president in disorganizing the Braidwood branch and reorganizing the same. A number of members living in the vicinity of the Braidwood branch having requested letters of removal if the conference sustained the action of the district president in regard to said branch, it was moved that this conference grant those parties letters. It was moved to defer until next conference. Motion prevailed. F. M. Cooper was chosen president, and W. Vickery secretary of district, for the next four months. F. M. Cooper was chosen delegate to next General Conference; the district to pay his expenses. Saturday evening, Bro. M. T. Short preached to a very attentive congregation. Sunday morning, preaching by Bro. T. Hougas. In the afternoon there was a fellowship and sacrament meeting, in charge of brethren J. S. Keir and G. Schadecker; a good time was enjoyed in the manifestation of the gifts of the Spirit; one child was blessed, one administered to that was sick. Sunday evening, Bro. M. T. Short preached to a large and attentive audience; after which the following preamble and resolution was presented and adopted:—Whereas certain parties have implicated Bro. J. S. Keir; and whereas, Bro. Keir has asked forgiveness of this conference for his attitude against the district; therefore, resolved that this conference freely forgive him. Bro. Cooper reported what financial aid he had received. Adjourned to meet with the Plano branch, June 4th and 5th, 1887.

Miscellaneous.

ATTENTION COMRADES.

At a meeting of comrades called and held in Independence, Missouri, on the 16th day of July, 1886, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted, to-wit:

Whereas, The opinion has obtained in consequence of the actions and attitude of the "Brighamite Church" toward the United States Government, that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is, and [its members.—Ed.] always were traitors to the Government; and

Whereas, We wish to be properly represented before the world, and desire to establish our loyalty before men. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, who were mustered into or aided the armies of the United States of America during the late rebellion to fight for the supremacy and perpetuation of the Union and its laws, enroll ourselves upon a Church Muster Roll, and to be published in the Saints' Herald, that it may go down to future generations as a matter of church history;

Resolved, That we call on every man who served in or aided the armies of the Union to forward his name, company and regiment, to comrade T. W. Chatburn, Independence, Missouri, to be so enrolled and published.

Committee, { T. W. CHATBURN, SAMUEL CRUM,
J. F. CLEMENSON.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 8th, 1886.

Comrades.—Your earnest attention is invited to the following communications from the Department of Utah:

"At a regular meeting of James B. McKean Post G. A. R. Department of Utah, the following was read and adopted:

"Whereas, The preservation of the unity of the Government is the highest duty of all; and whereas, it is the duty of citizens everywhere to try and enforce the laws; and whereas any interference by a so-called ecclesiastical authority with temporal affairs is a menace to the institutions of the country; and whereas, the Mormon leaders have for years taught, and continue to teach, their people to look upon the Government as an enemy, and continue an organization by and through which the laws are nullified and the flag insulted; now, therefore, we, the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, in encampment assembled, recognizing the facts, demand that the flag be everywhere respected, and do resolve that it is the duty of the American people to require their Representatives in Congress to pass such laws as will effectually release the Territories of the United States from the control of said organization, and will insure to everyone the protection of the laws."

"And Whereas, the object and intent of the above was to give relief to the loyal citizens of Utah, who are laboring for the enforcement of the laws, and to bring Utah in line with American ideas; and

"Whereas, we believe that the said object can be at once accomplished and immediate relief given by the passage of the "Edmunds-Tucker" bill now pending before Congress; Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That James B. McKean Post, G. A. R., Department of Utah, being situate in the capital of the Mormon Kingdom, and from opportunity and necessity more familiar than others of our comrades with the innate treason and disloyalty of the organization, respectfully requests Gen. Lucius Fairchild, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., to take such action as will place the above preambles and resolution passed at the last National Encampment relative to Utah before every G. A. R. Post in the United States, accompanied with a request that each Post use all proper means in urging the member of Congress from its district to vote for and insist upon the passage of the "Edmunds-Tucker bill" relative to Utah now pending before Congress.

"WM. H. SELLS, Commander."

INDEPENDENCE, MO.

At a regular meeting of Capt. Wagner Post, No. 31, G. A. R., held at headquarters, 25th November, 1886, the above communication was read and recommendations adopted:—

On motion, a request of comrade T. W. Chatburn was granted, giving him the privilege of using the above communication, and incorporating it in a Church Roll of comrades belonging to the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, ostensibly to show to the world the difference between the said church and the Brighamite faction or Salt Lake Mormons. And when the said roll is published, a copy to be furnished this Post, and a copy to be forwarded to Hon. William Warner, Congressman from this district, at Washington, D. C.; also a copy to be sent to James B. McKean Post, Department of Utah.

Brethren and Comrades:—The following are the names of brethren and comrades who have favored us by responding to the several calls made through the Herald. We regret very much that all have not responded. Many with whom we are acquainted have neglected to "fall in," for reasons best known to them. We have incorporated three names of brethren with whom we are well acquainted, without their consent; if any offense is given in consequence, we hope to be forgiven.

Our only object in this "Roll" is to show to the world the difference and marked contrast between the Reorganized Church and that of Utah; and in view of the stringent measures now being inaugurated by Congress, we think this is timely, and will result in good to us as a church. And when our labors are o'er, and Zion redeemed and her triumphant banners unfurled to the breeze, we hope to see written thereon this motto "And her sons were loyal."

DIED.

LAMBERT.—At Keokuk, Iowa, January 25th, 1887, sister Catherine Lambert. She was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, May 18th, 1812; was married in 1835; was baptized by elder Amos Fielding, in Newcastle; came to America in company with her husband in 1844; and amidst all the trials of those years she remained firm in the faith, and by her exemplary life won the love and esteem of all that knew her. Her remains were taken to Pittsfield, Pike county, Illinois, for interment, by the side of the husband who died some years ago. She was attended by some of her children and dear friends, and a good congregation of former friends and neighbors assembled at the Saints' Chapel, where the funeral services were conducted by elder Jackson Goodale.

BROOMELL.—At Allentown, New Jersey, January 8th, 1887, Bro. James Broomell. He was born in Philadelphia, July 18th, 1815; baptized and confirmed in Philadelphia, August, 1838, by elder Benjamin Winchester. Was received on his original membership into the Reorganization by vote of the Hornerstown branch, December 2d, 1877; ordained a priest January 1st, 1878, by William Small. He died as he had lived, strong in the faith. Funeral sermon by Rev. Mr. Pratt, of the Baptist society.

BERG.—At Armstrong, Kansas, February 16th, 1887, of scarlet fever, Joseph Elvin, son of Bro. Andrew and Sr. Augusta Berg, aged 2 years, 7 months and 20 days.

"Close the door lightly,
Bridle thy breath,
Our little earth angel,
Is talking with death.
Music comes floating
Down from the dome:
Angels are chanting
The sweet welcome home."

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

A conference of the Nodaway district will be held at Ross Grove, Holt county, Missouri, on the 19th and 20th of March, beginning at ten o'clock on Saturday. It is hoped that each branch will send delegates.

JAMES THOMAS, Dist. Pres.

The Kewanee district conference will convene at Rock Island, Illinois, on March 12th, instead of Millersburg, as was intended when the last conference adjourned. This change is by request of the Rock Island branch, and by counsel with the elders of the district. Those visiting the conference will enquire for F. G. Dungee, 222 Eighteenth street, Rock Island.

J. W. TERRY, Dist. Pres.

ELDERS FIRST QUORUM.

Inasmuch as the annual convocation of the church will soon be upon us, and whereas some time since the officers sent to each of you a circular letter and a blank upon which to make report of your stewardship of the closing year, therefore I request that each of you will please not neglect it, but carefully prepare your report and forward the same to me, so that it will arrive on or about April 1st, and direct to Robert M. Elvin, Kirtland, Ohio.

Since our last gathering three of our number have died, and one or two, who were elected for the Seventies quorum, may have left us by ordination. There is one appeal case, and one under silence, on all of which action will be necessary, and on such other business that may arise.

Of those who may feel able and willing, we solicit a small donation to meet the current expense of our organization.

So far as your humble servant has been able to see and understand, this great latter day work is gaining friends and increasing in membership, and still the ministry is inadequate to the demand for active, faithful messengers of peace. I am firm in the conviction that it will be advantageous to each and all, and to the church, that we observe every rule, regulation and law of the church, and that in all things we teach by example, invoking the richest blessing of the Father upon all. Yours in gospel bonds,

R. M. ELVIN, President.

ELDERS THIRD QUORUM.

We want the address of every member of the Third Quorum of Elders. We want to arrange and have printed the name and address of each one in circular form, and furnish each member with a copy. In sending your own address, just send the address of others of this quorum which you may know. We will furnish blanks for reports to each who will favor us with his address. We received five or six responses to our previous notice. What's the matter, brethren? Stir up! Conference is nearly here, and we want reports from you all. Please address either of us at Stewartsville, Missouri.

J. T. KINNAMAN, Pres.
J. M. TERRY, Sec'y.

ELDERS FOURTH QUORUM.

All who do not receive a blank to make out their report to the quorum by the 15th of February, will please send in their name and post office address, and one will be forwarded. Get your reports in by the 25th of March, so as to avoid having them come in during conference, and all so that the secretary may have time to look them over. Send to S. Crum, Independence, Missouri.

S. CRUM, Secretary.

Brethren: I am anxious for you all to report; please do as above requested, with a good report.

J. D. FLANDERS, President.

BOOK OF COMMANDMENTS.

DAVID WHITMER says, Herald page 92,—“And when the Book of Commandments was printed, Joseph and the church received it as being printed correctly. This I know.” In this statement Mr. Whitmer arrays his partial and imperfect knowledge, also his weakened and confused memory of events that transpired over fifty years ago, (events with which he was not officially nor intimately connected, for the reason that he was neither writer, compiler, printer, nor committeeman in publishing either the Book of Commandments or Doctrine and Covenants)—arrays himself against the recorded testimony of the church and its authorized servants, which testimony was written by competent parties at the very time the events recorded transpired. The mildest term we can find for this is blind presumption! Think of it!—A man attempting by his memory when enfeebled by the decrepitude of age and confused by the ravages of bodily ailments and blinding prejudices—attempting to correct written evidence recorded publicly fifty-two and more years ago! and this, too, in regard to matters with which he personally had nothing to do, while those who recorded the evidence he assumes to correct were intimately connected with the facts they record, and were fully authorized to make the record! Such pretensions are simply outrageous.

Joseph and the church did not receive the Book of Commandments as being printed correctly; and this we have before proved by the written testimony of Joseph the Seer, Oliver Cowdery, John Whitmer, W. W. Phelps, F. G. Williams, and the two Assembly's of 1834 and 1835 who had to do directly with this question—all of which we proved hitherto from the Messenger and Advocate, edited by Oliver Cowdery and John Whitmer, aided by W. W. Phelps, and published by F. G. Williams & Co. To this we may add, that in about 1859, when this same question was being agitated by Z. Brooks and William Savage, Elder John Gaylord the poet, and author of The Future of Russia, &c., said to the writer and others that he was at Kirtland, Ohio, critically investigating the church and its doctrines at the time the Book of Commandments first came to the Saints there, and that he saw and heard Joseph the Seer when he took a copy of that book, and from the public stand declared it was faulty, and that they must have the revelations reprinted.

But a comparison of the two books in the light of Bible and Book of Mormon facts will teach any intelligent, unprejudiced mind, that the Doctrine and Covenants is in harmony with them, and that the Book of Commandments is not. For instance, Mr. Whitmer says, and repeats it, that the Book of Commandments teaches “that God called Bro. Joseph to translate the Book of Mormon only, and that he was not called to organize and establish the church any more than the rest of us Elders. That God commanded him to pretend to no other gift but to translate the Book of Mormon, that God would grant him no other gift.”

Yes; the Book of Commandments says on page 10, “I will grant unto him no other gift.” Now, if this be correct, how did it happen that Joseph, by another “gift,” the gift of revelation, called O. Cowdery, M. Harris, and D. Whitmer, to be the three special witnesses to the seeric mission of Joseph, and also to the divinity of the Book of Mormon? In this call of these witnesses by revelation, another “gift” besides that to “translate,” is exercised by the Seer; and D. Whitmer and the other two witnesses have testified that when they obeyed that revelation to Joseph the Seer, they obtained the promised wonderful blessings of God, and were honored with being made witnesses of the inspired mission of Joseph, etc. Ah! Mr. Whitmer, your own testimony, and the testimonies of O. Cowdery and M. Harris convicts you, and condemns the revelations as found in the Book of Commandments, proving them to be faulty, just what Joseph, Oliver, your brother John, and the afore mentioned General Assemblies said of them. But the corrected text is in accordance with the facts, for it reads:

“And you have a gift to translate the plates, and this is the first gift that I bestowed upon you, and I have commanded that you should pretend to no other gift until my purpose is fulfilled in this; for I will grant unto you no other gift until it is finished.”—Doc and Cov. 4:1.

This is good sense. It is in harmony with the facts of history as given in times past by the three witnesses themselves; and it is also in harmony with the predictions of the Book of Mormon concerning Joseph Smith the “unlearned” man who translated it. For it says that God would give him revelations besides the Book of Mormon, as we see in the following,—“The Lord shall say unto him to whom he shall deliver the book,” etc.—2 Nephi 11:18. Again, “The Lord shall say unto him that shall read [translate] the words that shall be delivered him,” etc., etc. Yes, Joseph Smith had not only the gift to translate, but he had also the “gift” of revelation, the gift of prophecy, and the exalted gift of a seer. These facts prove the Book of Commandments faulty; and they also prove that David Whitmer and his fellows are in gross error when they claim that book to be verbally correct. The rendering of the text in the Doctrine and Covenants is proved to be correct from the fact that it agrees with the facts of history, with the former testimony of D. Whitmer, O. Cowdery, M. Harris, and others, including those two General Assemblies; and it also agrees with what is predicted in the Book of Mormon concerning Joseph the Seer and his wonderful mission.

Following out his self-made, contradictory theory, Mr. Whitmer goes further and says: “I will also show by a revelation in the Book of Commandments—afterward changed in the Doctrine and Covenants—that we were commanded to rely upon the Book or Mormon in building up the church; for in it is all things written concerning my church, my gospel, and my rock.” It don't read that way, Mr. Whitmer. You have inserted the word “it,” in the place of “them;” and in doing so you have demonstrated how easy it is for persons to blunder in transcribing even printed copy. And had you been transcribing written copy, as did the compilers of the revelations of the Seer, it is probable you would have made far worse blunders than you have here. But the Book of Commandments is faulty in this text, because it contradicts the testimony of both the Bible and the Book of Mormon. The Book of Mormon, as we have seen in a former article, asserts that it does not contain “even a hundredth part of the things which Jesus did truly teach” the Nephite Saints. (Book of Nephi 12:1, etc.) And we have also seen that the Bible teaches very much more concerning the church, its officers and “governments” and “helps” than is found in the Book of Mormon. For, mark you, it not only mentions apostles, the seventy, bishops, pastors, teachers, evangelists, and deacons, as officers which God had placed in the church, but in this connection, as we have seen, it also mentions “helps and governments,” given of God to his church. This is very much more than is found in the Book of Mormon. If these officers and "helps and governments" belonged to the Church of Christ in Paul's time, why is Joseph the Seer accounted a sinner when he organized the church similarly in these days? And how can D. Whitmer claim authority to build up the Church of Christ, when he rejects this pattern contained in the Bible, falsely claiming, at the same time, that the Book of Mormon contains "everything pertaining to the Church of Christ," and that "elders, priests, and teachers, . . . are all the spiritual officers in the Church of Christ?" Will he reject Jesus and Paul? Such blindness, such perversity, is simply prodigious—though not "past finding out."

Any one can see at a glance that the Book of Commandments is defective when it says that, in the Book of Mormon "is all things written concerning my [Christ's] Church, my gospel, and my rock;" for when compared with the Bible, or when we see what Mormon says of it, we know it contains only a small part. But when we take the same passage as corrected and printed in the Doctrine and Covenants, it harmonizes with the statements of Mormon and with the testimony of the Bible, for it says:

"Behold, I give unto you a commandment that you rely upon the things which are written; [in the Book of Mormon]; for in them are all things written concerning the foundation of my church, my gospel, and my rock," etc.—Doc. Cov. 16: 1.

The words in italics—"the foundation of," are not in the text in the Book of Commandments; they were left out by blundering transcribers, we are told, as before seen. But they are readily seen to be needed, in order that the text shall harmonize with the claims and facts of church history, of the Book of Mormon, and the teachings of the Bible. The Book of Mormon does contain "all things concerning the foundation of" the church of God and his Christ; but the "foundation" of the church does not comprise the church in its entirety. Paul said:

"As a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon."—1 Cor. 3: 10.

There must be harmony between the superstructure and the "foundation," in order that unity and symmetry be preserved, and perfection attained. But "the foundation" is not the superstructure, nor is the superstructure "the foundation." Both are indispensable, and they must harmonize. In the Book of Mormon are "all things written concerning the foundation of" Christ's Church, for in that, though less than "even a hundredth part of the things which Jesus did truly teach" his church among the Nephites, still we have "the foundation" principles of the church, given in plainness; but much of church superstructure is not found there.

Going back to Paul's time, we have in the New Testament much more that relates to the church than we have in the Book of Mormon, as hereinbefore seen. In this view of the matter the Doctrine and Covenants is proved to be correct, and the Book of Commandments and D. Whitmer and company are proved to be in error. The Doctrine and Covenants reveals the manner of organizing the church, provides its officers states their respective position, authority, duties, and privileges; provides and defines a system of "helps and governments" in its conferences assemblies, councils, quorums, and other organizations, which are of vast importance, and quite indispensable in the organization and government of the church as a whole, and in its various lesser departments. This the Book of Mormon does not do except in a very limited degree. And while the Bible does more than the Book of Mormon, yet its provisions are quite imperfect as a pattern in some respects; first, for the reason that it is but a part of the sacred writings had by the church in the times of the apostles; and second, because the exigencies of the latter day dispensation require divine provisions and guidance not needed by the church in the times of the apostles, nor of the Nephites.

The church in the times of Adam, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Moses, the Apostles, and the Nephites, had "the foundation" principles of the church alike undoubtedly; but there were exigencies and conditions peculiar to the Saints in these different times which made it necessary that some of them should receive instructions and provisions that the others did not need, as all will see who read the history of those times. And now that God has introduced the dispensation of the fullness of times, His Saints will not only have "the foundation" principles had by the Saints in other dispensations, but its conditions and exigencies have demanded, and will still demand, revelations and divine provisions not enjoyed by the Saints of previous times—yet all must harmonize in the one divine whole. For these potent reasons we have the Doctrine and Covenants, which relates mainly to church organization, church government, including forms, and ceremonies, with divine covenants, promises, and prophecies, suited to the church and its peculiar work in this dispensation. No; the Book of Mormon does not contain "all things written concerning" Christ's Church, therefore the Book of Commandments is faulty in some of its texts, and D. Whitmer and his fellows are teaching delusively and falsely, when they say that it does.

David Whitmer makes the bold assertion that the revelations in the Book of Commandments "were arranged for publication by Brn. Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, Orson Hyde and others, and were sent to Independence to be published, and were printed just exactly as they were arranged by Bro. Joseph and the others." Mr. Whitmer makes a number of mistakes here; for the history of the church for May, 1832, printed as early as September, 1844, says:

"It was ordered that three thousand copies of the Book of Commandments be printed the first edition; that W. W. Phelps, O. Cowdery and John Whitmer be appointed to review and prepare such revelations as shall be deemed proper for publication, for the press, and print them as soon as possible at Independence Missouri."—

Times and Seasons, vol. 5: page 625, and Mill. Star, vol. 14: 163.

From this we learn that neither Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, nor Orson Hyde had the reviewing or preparing of those revelations—neither did David Whitmer. And when Mr. Whitmer asserts to the contrary, he contradicts church history, is evidently grossly mistaken, and his memory proves to be bad.

S. RIGDON.

Mr. Whitmer says Joseph, in 1831, "heeded Rigdon who expounded the old scriptures to him, and showed him that high priests, and other officers should be added to 'elders, priests and teachers,' and so we did not establish His (Christ's) Church, His gospel, and His rock, so the gates of hell did prevail against the church, and it finally landed in Salt Lake in polygamy."

To this bare and groundless assertion we have to say, (1), the church organized by Joseph the Seer never, as an organization, went to Salt Lake; for it was rejected, and was disorganized upon the death of Joseph and Hyrum; and, that out of a fragment thereof Brigham Young and his fellows organized a church of their own at Council Bluffs, Iowa, December 27th, 1847, just three years and a half after the murder of Joseph and Hyrum; and, (2), that the church which went to Salt Lake with Brigham Young, was not organized under the laws, provisions and doctrines given through Joseph the Seer as contained in the Doctrine and Covenants, but contrary to them; and, (3), Joseph the Seer, instead of being persuaded by Rigdon to go contrary to the order of God, was the spiritual teacher of Elder Rigdon in doctrinal matters, as may be seen in the history of the church and in the Doctrine and Covenants. In the latter it is said of Elder Rigdon, at the time he first met Joseph the Seer, in Waterloo, New York:

"Behold, thou was sent forth even as John, to prepare the way before me, [Christ], and before Elijah, which should come, and thou knew it not. Thou didst baptize by water unto repentance, but they received not the Holy Ghost; but now I give unto thee a commandment, that thou shalt baptize by water, and they shall receive the Holy Ghost by the laying on of hands, even as the apostles of old. * * * And a commandment I give unto thee, that thou shalt write for him. [Joseph]. * * * And inasmuch as ye do not write, behold it shall be given unto him [Joseph] to prophesy, and thou shalt preach my gospel and call on the holy prophets to prove his words as they shall be given him."—Doc. Cov. 34: 2, 5.

By this we see that Joseph the Seer was Sidney Rigdon's spiritual teacher and leader. And he continued to maintain that position as is seen all through the history of the church. In August of the next year Joseph reproved him by the word of the Lord in the following:

"And now, behold, verily I say unto you, I, the Lord, am not pleased with my servant Sidney Rigdon, he exalted himself in his heart, and received not counsel, but grieved the Spirit; wherefore his writing is not acceptable unto the Lord, and he shall make another, and if the Lord receiveth it not, behold he standeth no longer in the office which I have appointed him."—Doc. Cov., 63: 14.

This was said in regard to Elder Rigdon's written description of the land of Zion, commanded in August prior. (See Doc. and Cov. 58: 11). Joseph the Seer did not follow the persuasions of Sidney Rigdon in doctrinal matters, as may be further seen by the following, also that Joseph maintained the dignity and superiority of his calling as God's seer and "the first elder of the church" in respect to rank and authority:

"Bro. Sidney is a man whom I love, but is not capable of that pure and steadfast love for those who are his benefactors, as should possess the breast of a president of the Church of Christ. This with some other little things such as a selfishness and independence of mind, which, too often manifested, destroys the confidence of those who would lay down their lives for him—but, notwithstanding these things he is a very great and good man; a man of great power of words, and can gain the friendship of his hearers very quick. He is a man whom God will uphold, if he will continue faithful to his calling. O God, grant that he may for the Lord's sake. Amen."

"And again, blessed be brother Sidney, also, notwithstanding he shall be high and lifted up, yet he shall bow down under the yoke like unto an ass that croucheth beneath his burthen; that learneth his master's will by the stroke of the rod; thus saith the Lord: yet, the Lord will have mercy on him, and he shall bring forth much fruit; even as the vine of the choice grape, when her clusters are ripe, before the time of the gleanings of the vintage; and the Lord shall make his heart merry as with sweet wine, because of him who putteth forth his hand, and lifted him up out of deep mire, and pointed him out the way, and guideth his feet when he stumbles, and humbleth him in his pride. Blessed are his generations: nevertheless one shall hunt after them as a man hunteth after an ass that has strayed in the wilderness, and straitway findeth him and brigheth him into the fold. Thus shall the Lord watch over his generation, that they may be saved; even so: Amen."—Times and Seasons, vol. 6, pages 899, 900; Mill. Star, 14; 584-5.

To this we may add that in March, 1832, Elder Rigdon assumed authority to be chief teacher to the church, and said to the Saints at Kirtland, in the name of the Lord, "the keys of the kingdom are rent from the church." Joseph, who was then at father Johnson's was sent for; and on his coming, learning the facts in the case, he told Sidney he must suffer for what he had done, and instructed him to give up his license. Sidney complied with this, and suffered severely for his assumption. See Times and Seasons, vol. 5: 660, and Mother Smith's History, pages 204-6. These facts sufficiently refute the statements of David Whitmer and his fellows when they say Sidney Rigdon persuaded Joseph the Seer to go contrary to the teachings of the Book of Mormon and the will of God. Joseph the Seer was not so unstable and unfaithful as to permit either Sidney Rigdon, David Whitmer, W. E. McLellan, or anybody else, to easily persuade him contrary to his convictions of duty. He had learned by bitter experience in the case of Martin Harris, to not yield to the persuasions of those whom God had not called to be his advisers, and especially to not go contrary to the word of the Lord. He reproveth, and at times rebuketh, sharply, by the word of the Lord or by right of his presiding authority those who were out of the way; and some of these men resented it, became saddened and soured over it, and ever after were biased and prejudiced and malicious. In this connection we may mention his reproof of M.

Harris; (Doc. Cov. 4: 5, 6; 9: 1); Wm. E. McLellan; (Doc. Cov. 66: 1, 2, 5); David Whitmer; (Doc. Cov. 29: 2); and others, including himself; (Doc. Cov. 2: 1-5; 87: 1, 6; 105: 2, 5, etc.); all of whom were reproveth with sharpness, and in plainness, for weaknesses and sins. And when Brigham Young and some of the Twelve, and others, exceeded their authority and violated their trust in respect to financial matters, Joseph reproveth them publicly, for theirs was in some sense a public offence; and thereupon the conference "Voted unanimously that the Twelve be appointed a committee to collect funds to build the Nauvoo House, and receive moneys for the Temple, with this proviso: That the Twelve give bonds for the safe delivery of all funds coming into their hands [which Joseph had just advised. Ed.] belonging to the Nauvoo House and Temple, to the Trustee in Trust; and that the payor, also, make immediate report to the Trustee in Trust, of all moneys paid by him to the Twelve; and that the instructions of President Joseph Smith to the conference he carried into execution."

Elder Brigham Young objected to giving receipts for such moneys, "and said he should never give receipts for cash, except such as he put into his own pocket for his own use, for it was calculated to make trouble hereafter. . . . He also referred to muzzling the ox that treadeth out the corn," &c.

President Joseph then said:

"I will answer brother Brigham. The Twelve need not spend all their time abroad; they can spend the time belonging to the temple to collect funds; and the remainder of the time they may labor for their support, and they may call on the public to supply their wants. It is no more for the Twelve to go abroad and earn their living in this way than it is for others. The idea of not muzzling the ox is a good old Quaker song; but we will make the ox tread out the corn first, and then we will feed him. I am bold to declare that I have never taken the first farthing of church funds for my own use, till I have first consulted the proper authorities."—Times and Seasons, vol. 4: pages 182-3.

Joseph told this same Brigham, more than once, in council and conference, that if he had the lead of the church he would lead it to ruin, as scores have testified.

Now we group these recorded facts together, and from these and many similar ones we conclude that Joseph Smith was not "a man of putty," to be persuaded into sin and error in doctrine and church government, either by elders Rigdon, Young, or even David Whitmer. He was a man of pronounced individuality, decision, and plainness in counsel. And when Mr. Whitmer and his fellows assert that he was molded and fashioned at the will and by the craft of Elder Rigdon, we decline to believe it, for his entire history refutes the idea. David Whitmer admits that he tried to persuade Joseph to his theories, notions and interpretations, but did not succeed. And this is not to be wondered at, for as we have already seen, Mr. Whitmer's theories concerning the office and authority of Joseph, and concerning the plain teachings of the Book of Mormon, are such as are contrary to, and destructive of that Book. It is well for the church and the latter day work that Mr. Whitmer did not and could not persuade Joseph to his false theories and interpretations. When Mr. Whitmer failed, after strenuous efforts to persuade Joseph to his notions, he should know that his own experience, as an unauthorized persuader, condemns his theory that Joseph was easily persuaded to error by elders S. Rigdon, D. Patten, Brigham Young, etc. God said of Joseph, "He shall do my work;" (2 Nephi 2: 2); and in doing it he was hindered and withstood by men, some of them prominent in the church, who became saddened and soured and blinded, and who turned to be faultfinders, and opposers, and idlers while the Seer and others toiled and struggled on to spread the gospel abroad to all nations and build up the Kingdom of God preparatory to the coming of Christ in power and in glory. God chose the right man for His work when he called and empowered Joseph the "Choice Seer," for of him He said, "he shall be great like unto Moses;" and, "he shall be esteemed highly among the fruit" of the loins of Joseph—the multitudes of Ephraim and Manasseh, in the midst of the earth, (Gen. 48: 8-22), who were and are foreordained of God to be his first and chief ministry in this latter day dispensation. (see Deut. 33: 17; Ps. 80: 1-3; Jer. 31: 6-14, 18-21; Rom. 11: 24-26; 2 Nephi 2: 2, 3; Doc. and Cov. 64: 7; 108: 6; etc). Elder J. C. Whitmer was right when he said here last June that "the Lord chose Joseph because he was the best man He could find for the place," to which we say, Amen!

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH SMITH returned here the 3d inst., from a two weeks' tour to Council Bluffs, Logan and Galland's Grove, preaching and lecturing on temperance. He met with a hearty reception in all places, had large audiences and the best of attention. He reports finding the Saints in excellent spirits and full of zeal for the work of God. He goes to Armstrong, Kansas, the 11th inst., to dedicate the Saints' new chapel in that city.

The associate editor, by request of elder H. C. Bronson who is now holding a series of meetings at Montrose, goes to St. Joseph, Missouri, to occupy brother Bronson's pulpit for Sunday services the 6th inst. Neither of the editors finds any leisure, for between the duties of church presidency and that of editors, they are constantly pressed for time and can not fill but a small part of the numerous calls, far and near, to preach and minister among the Saints and others. Either one or the other of the editors is away, preaching and lecturing wherever and whenever he can find it at all practicable. And all those who have requested their labors and been disappointed in their not responding, are cited to the foregoing facts and requested to be patient and await the future. We shall do all and the best we can for the common interests of the church.

Bro. J. S. Roth wrote from Marshalltown, Iowa, February 28th, that he was in a railway wreck three miles east of that place on the Saturday before, and got badly bruised. He writes that he had made a good opening in Hardin county of late, and after explaining the difference between Utah Mormonism and the Reorganization, many became friendly and favorable.

Bro. John Goode sends us from Tabor, Iowa, two copies of the Beacon, of that town, containing notices of the lectures of Clark Braden, in which was a challenge to any one, by Braden, to refute his statements. But nothing definite as to his statements. In one of his lectures he maligned Joseph the Seer, and the Latter Day Saints. This is to his hand—he is an expert at that. All who wish to know of Mr. Braden's style and logic, and proof-texts against Joseph and the Saints, should read the "Braden-Kelley Debate," for sale at this office, in which Braden was foiled, flattened, exposed, and beaten—badly, in the estimation of those who once favored and trusted him. Ask the citizens of Kirtland, Ohio; Wilber, Nebraska, and Stewartville, Missouri. Those who witnessed his performances in those places are better judges of his abilities, fairness and piety than are those who only hear Braden's side of the matter. We have no quarrel with him. If the people can endure him, and he can endure himself, we ought not to complain yet.

Bro. J. Y. Graumlich writes from Lower Lake, California, of late that prospects are now good for crops in that region, and that the Saints are usually prosperous.

Pres. Joseph Smith wrote from Council Bluffs, February 25th, that the Alliance has secured a permanent injunction against the big distillery at Des Moines.

Bro. H. C. Bronson was at Montrose, Iowa, the 1st inst., and was preaching to large audiences every night. A deep interest was manifested in the word preached, some had given their names for baptism, and prospects were very encouraging.

Sr. Polly Noble, of Dresden, New York, requests the prayers of the Saints in behalf of her sister-in-law, Sarah Noble, who is very low with inward cancer but now desires "the faithful fervent prayers of the righteous." Saints, please remember this request.

Bro. T. C. Smith of Grand Prairie, Texas, wishes us to say through the HERALD that the Voice of Warnings sent him by Bro. J. H. Peters, are doing good, being read constantly. Bro. Smith is doing what he can to sell and circulate church publications.

From many quarters we are receiving assurances that the late assaults on the church and the character of Joseph the Seer, are resulting well, causing a deeper research, and producing greater unity and firmer conviction in the truth of the Doctrine and Covenants.

By card from Bro. J. J. Cornish, February 28th, we learn he is still preaching with success at Bay Port, Michigan, had just baptized two more, and was to enter upon another debate, March 1st.

Sr. Dimmis Dutcher, of Greenwood, N. Y., at whose house Bro. E. Banta and the writer were made welcome guests in 1866 when on a mission to the east, writes us that she is now in her eighty-second year, and full of hope and zeal.

Bro. W. T. Maitland gives notice in another place that a conference of the Eastern Iowa District will be held March 11th to 13th at Nashville, instead of Canton. He had held a series of meetings in Davenport of late, had good attendance, four were added to the branch, the Saints were cheered, and Bro. Maitland was "re-joicing in the grand work."

Bro. John H. Gough, of Rock Springs, Washington county, Missouri, would be glad to have the elders call and labor there.

We are pleased to get a letter from Sr. Carrie Dickinson, residing at Everest, Kansas. She was the daughter of the late Bro. James Twist, who was one among the very first to receive the Reorganized Church at Kirtland, Ohio, in 1860, when the writer and the late Bro. James Blakeslee labored there. Her mother lives with her. Sr. Dickinson asks the Saints to pray that her husband may be led of the Lord to unite with His church.

Bro. James Allen, Sr., has moved from Coalville to Van Meter, Iowa.

THE question whether the Negro Race, or that portion of it represented by the American colored men, were capable of an amount of intellectual development sufficient to become self-sustaining, seems to be in a fair way of demonstration, judging from the following, taken from the Boston Sunday Record, for January 30th:

"A WORD FOR THE COLORED RACE."

"The Savannah News, which, like the generality of Southern papers, seems to be disposed to deal more fairly with the colored race than used to be the case, except at election time, says a good word for the Savannah black men.

"Perhaps the best way to get at the real estimate made by the News is to give a sample paragraph as follows, about the colored people's manner of securing homes, within the past few years, in the suburbs of Savannah:

"For years they have been quiet but persistent purchasers of real estate. Their settlements, just without the municipal limits, almost encircle the city. Some of their houses are quite pretentious, and are surrounded by well kept gardens. These homes were not paid for in a year or two, but represent the proceeds of years of patient toil and the most rigid economy. On some of them there are still mortgages, which there is not much doubt will be paid in time. It is a fact worth noticing that very few colored men fail to meet the payments on their homes, and when they do there is always a good cause for the failure. And there is another fact worth noticing. It is that they pay their taxes willingly, and return their property above, rather than below, the market value. They are not yet sufficiently civilized to be tax dodgers.

"We submit that this is a remarkably good showing, from a prejudiced source, too, for the men who are struggling to give their race a better reputation for thrift.

"The News further speaks of the advance in the value of the investments above mentioned. The lots are now worth all the way from three to ten times as much as the first cost to the negroes.

"It is apparent that the financial color line is faint in Savannah. A colored man's taxes or payment of mortgage interest are just as good as a white man's, as the South is glad to concede."

It is not flattering to the superior race that the claim should have been made by it that the Negro was not capable of self-sustenance, if deprived of the guardianship of the white man as a master, the Negro to be a slave. Any race, whether white or black, placed in the condition that the American slaves were in would degenerate into similar, or worse phases of development found among them; and it should have been expected that when the pressure to which the race had been so long subjected was removed that there should be an advancement; for the very qualities that gave value to them as slaves would, under favorable circumstances, make them good citizens, capable of being self-sustaining and of adding to the improvement and prosperity of society, in its material forms. The peculiar elasticity of the Negro nature, his affability and desire to please, which enhanced his worth as a working animal must aid him to a place in the ranks of the world's workers, whenever he should be given the chance for development, by the removal of the fetters which bound his mind, at the same time that it held his body subject to the lash of a taskmaster. "One hour of virtuous liberty is worth more than a whole lifetime of bondage." We recognize these tokens of advancement of the American Freedmen with pleasure, and hope to see the time to come when everywhere, "Worth shall make the man, want of it the fellow."

THE ASSASSINATION OF JOSEPH.

THE following clipping is from the New York World of February 23d. The question in it exhibits the ignorance somewhat common among the masses, but the answer is very fair spirited, and is mainly correct. Joseph was not "assassinated in the jail by his jailers" unless it be that they connived at it, which is hardly probable; neither did Joseph claim to discover "the records left by the ten tribes," but, rather, left by a "remnant of the tribe of Joseph." Besides these mistakes, we note a further one, i. e. that "Brigham Young succeeded to the leadership" of the church—whereas it was only to the leadership of a large faction.

M. A. T.—"Will you please explain what became of the Mormon leader Joseph Smith? Did he die in jail when under conviction for murder or was he hanged?"

He was assassinated in the jail by his jailors before his trial. His announcement of the discovery of the records left by the ten tribes and his translation of the tablets led to the formation of a new Christian sect—the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. In matters of dogma there was little or nothing in its creed to distinguish it from any other orthodox Christian sect. But its possession of an alleged addition to the Bible and the austerity and severity of the code of morals inculcated drew to it immediately a large following. The same spirit of intolerance which in Massachusetts slit the ears of Quakers and banished Baptists under pain of death blazed forth as fiercely as in the days of Athanasius and Arius. The pulpits rang with denunciations of the new sect, every calumny that could be invented was invented and believed, and the Mormons were driven from place to place, robbed, beaten, imprisoned and murdered exactly as the founders of every other Christian sect were persecuted. This persecution increased their numbers rapidly. In 1838, driven from Missouri, they founded and built the city of Nauvoo, Illinois, and in a short time had a community of 16,000. Their opponents, finding that persecution was of no avail, brought charges of disloyalty, treason and other crimes, and endeavored to bring about a collision between them and the State authorities. Joseph Smith, Hyrum Smith, John Taylor and Willard Richards, the Mormon leaders, offered to surrender themselves for a trial by their enemies upon the charges if Gov. Ford would insure their protection from mob violence. This he did, and the four gave themselves up and were lodged in the jail at Carthage, Illinois. But the pledge was kept to the ear and broken to the hope. The Governor placed a guard of State militia in and around the jail. What their instructions were is not known. One day before the trial, while the prisoners sat conversing, they were suddenly surrounded by the guards who, without a word of warning, levelled their muskets and riddled them with bullets. Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum fell dead. Taylor was left for dead, but recovered. The assassins were made the heroes of the hour. Brigham Young succeeded to the leadership, and the Mormons in despair sought a refuge in what was then called the Great American Desert, on the shores of the Great Salt Lake, to escape further persecution. Then Young, their leader, committed the blunder of promulgating the doctrine of polygamy, which has since furnished the only weapon in the hands of their opponents and shut out all sympathy for their sufferings by mankind at large."

FEBRUARY 28th we received from Bishop G. A. Blakeslee the following letter which explains itself:

GALIEN, Michigan, Feb. 26th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I have just received notice from the General Railway Passenger departments in Chicago that no special rates will be given east of Chicago to those desiring to attend the General Conference, April 6th, in Kirtland, Ohio, on account of the Inter-State Commerce Bill which has been lately passed by Congress. Therefore you will please give notice through the Herald to this effect. I have not received notice from the railroads that it affects rates west of Chicago, as yet.

In bonds,

G. A. BLAKESLEE.

BELOW will be found a clipping from the Danville, (Illinois) News. Bro. F. M. Cooper thinks a number may soon unite with the church, in the vicinity of Catlin.

EDITOR DANVILLE NEWS:—The Latter Day Saints have been holding a few largely attended meetings in this section, and in their expositions it is evident that they have no affiliation with "Utah Mormonism." In church organization and church polity they are distinct from that phase of Mormonism represented in Utah, opposing upon the accredited authority of their text books the dogma of plurality of wives and other heretical ideas incompatible with the original text of Latter Day Saintism. Salt Lake Mormonism is treated by them as an apostasy, or secession from the great corporate body of the Latter Day Saints in 1844, whose corporate existence was extended throughout the civilized world. Polygamy is condemned by the Book of Mormon as also by the laws adopted by the church, relative to marriage, in 1830, and Latter Day Saintism is no more responsible for the evils enacted in its name than is orthodoxy responsible for all of the evils enacted in the name of Christianity. The Latter Day Saints Church, which Elders Keir and Cooper represent, is a corporate body under the protection of the laws of the country, with organized churches in the States and Territories of the United States and Europe. As to the orthodoxy of their religion and the morality of their creed, the most crucial investigation is solicited.

CHARLES THOMAS.

CATLIN, Ill., Jan. 31st, 1887.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is it right to uphold members in dancing, playing cards, and using profane language, or is it right to keep them in a branch?

Ans.—Gambling, profanity, and dancing, are all contrary to the order of the church, and the first two are ruinous sins. It may be best to keep such offenders in the church to reform and convert them; but if they will not repent, they should be dealt with by the officers.

Q.—Is "that day," mentioned in Zech. 14: 20, the millenium, or reign of Christ on the earth; and if so, what are we to understand by "sacrifice," mentioned in verse 21?

A.—We think "that day" relates to the millenium; and that the "sacrifice" mentioned in verse 21 relates to a monumental service to be had by some in that day, pointing back to "the passover," etc., (Ex. 12: 11, 27, with Luke 22: 15; and 1 Cor. 5: 7), as the Lord's Supper now points back to the last supper, and to Christ's sufferings.

Q.—What are we to understand by "the daily sacrifice" mentioned in Daniel 12: 11?

A.—That described in Exodus 29: 38-42; Ezekiel 46: 13-15,—"Thou shalt daily prepare a burnt offering unto the Lord of a lamb of the first year without blemish; thou shalt prepare it every morning."

Q.—When was "the daily sacrifice" taken away and the abomination that maketh desolate set up?

A.—First by Antiochus Epiphanes, (see Josephus and Maccabees), second, by the Romans under Titus, (See Josephus, etc.). There has been a host of delusive theories held by Adventists and others in respect to Dan. 12: 11 who trample beneath their feet the plain, simple facts of history, bringing mystification and discredit upon the scripture. Those who will examine this subject in the light of authentic history, and keep clear of the misleading creeds and the spiritualizing methods of "mystery Babylon," will find but little difficulty in getting an easy and clear understanding of it.

Q.—Is it right for a voting majority of a branch to say when its branch business meetings should be held? or is that usurping the authority of the branch president?

A.—The majority of a branch has the right to say when its meetings shall be held, unless by some special rule they have delegated the right to appoint to their presiding officer or officers.

Q.—When a difficulty exists in two or more branches, can the district president call an elders' court without the vote of district conference?

A.—Yes. "Sec. 153. The First Presidency; the Twelve, High Priests, Seventies, and Elders, where traveling in missions, or in localities where no organization, branch or district has been perfected; Presidents of Districts, and Presidents of Branches, Branches and Conferences have power to appoint elders' courts, according to the nature of the complaint, the time, and the emergency of the case. Where a branch or conference appoints a court of elders, it should be done either by vote authorizing the presiding officer to name the elders who shall compose the court, or by nomination from the members confirmed by vote. In no case, whatever, should a Branch or District president appoint a court to try a case in which he is to be a party, either as complainant or defendant; or in the issue of which he is directly a party in interest. Sec. 154. Elders' courts are courts of inquiry; and when appointed, have the right to appoint the time when, and the place where, they will sit to hear the case; (provided that such time and place do not purposely injure either party to the case); due notice of which time and place shall be given to all persons who are expected to be present at the hearing of such case."—Rules of Order, page 97, Sec. 153 and 154.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Elder M. H. Bond was holding a discussion in Brockton, Massachusetts, commencing February 22d, with a Rev. G. P. Packard, on the faith and organization of the Reorganized Church as compared with the Bible pattern, and Bro. Bond says:

"The discussion is doing great good however; confirming our friends, rejoicing the Saints, and spreading the great light of our glorious gospel. Though my first discussion, I feel splendid spiritually, and desire to keep humble, that the Lord may use me for his glory and the salvation of souls."

Sr. Martha J. Lee, of Independence, Missouri, wrote January 19th:

One night, during the last days of October, 1885, I had the following dream, the interpretation of which, if it can be had, might be of some benefit to some of the Saints. My dream was concerning the coming of the Savior. I dreamed that five days only were to intervene between that night and the day of his coming. I saw an arch of half a circle; upon this half circle were five lamps, three of them red, the other two clear, or white. During the intervening five days, the work of clearing away the rubbish, preparatory to the Savior's coming was to be accomplished; for the Savior was liable to come at any hour after this period of five days, and no further time for preparation would be allowed. My first thought was that I could not clear the rubbish away; then I reflected, and resolved to try. The place where the rubbish was lying in a scattered and confused condition, was on a high hill, or plat of ground, of such a formation that when I succeeded in getting any portion of the rubbish started it would go with great force to the lower ground below.

Sr. Lee is anxious that she with all who will love the appearing of the Savior, be studiously engaged in preparation for his coming, during the short time still allotted to us all.

THE following will serve to show the ease with which even astute and able men can mistake in the things which they attempt to write and speak in regard to some much mooted subject. We would be pleased to see the answer that Mr. Ingersoll would make to Mr. Burdette's sharp criticism as to what Civilization, so called, has done in the way of Temperance for the American Indian.

"HOW IT COMES.

"Col. Ingersoll says that 'Temperance comes with civilization.' Ah, yes; so it does. And yet that does not explain why the American Indians never learned to get drunk until civilization invaded their shores and introduced fire-water into the aboriginal system. Nor does it explain why the chances are that the Indians will all die of delirium tremens before they get thoroughly civilized. Nor why Egypt, Greece, Rome grew drunken and more luxuriously dissipated as they reached a higher degree of civilization. Nor why the distilleries and saloons of civilization outnumber the school houses and libraries. Temperance may come with civilization, but it does not keep up with her very long. It comes as thanksgiving day comes with the autumn—so near the end of it that it comes dangerously near to being 'froze out.'—Burdette.

THE following is from the "Christian Herald and Signs of Our Times," for September 1st, 1886, and furnished by a brother at Omaha, Nebraska, and will be interesting to the readers of the HERALD.

"The Rev. H. Grattan Guinness and Mrs. Guinness in their latest book entitled, 'Light for the Last Days,' enumerate several of the 'signs of the times' which were predicted to occur just prior to the consummation of the current dispensation. Having spoken of signs, political and ecclesiastical, the authors proceed to refer to Jewish Signs, and calling up a Jewish witness to bear testimony, he is made to speak thus: 'Long ago, six hundred years before the Christian era, my nation lost its independence; it fell under Gentile rulers. But its fall was illumined by hope, for our restoration had been predicted a thousand years previously by the same God who had also foretold our fall. Many particulars were associated with our fall in sacred prophecy, and they all came true. Many more were associated with our restoration, and one by one they have been coming true for the last one hundred and fifty years. Not a single jot or tittle has failed of the threats of judgment; all came on our people and lasted through ages. And now the promises are coming upon us; one by one they have been fulfilled, and there remain unfulfilled but one or two, and even of these we are already receiving the first instalments—the conversion of our people and their restoration to the land of promise. We can not from our experience doubt that the day is near at hand when the throne of Judah will again be established on earth, and when Messiah, Son of David, will be King over the whole world. You need not take my word for it; judge for yourself! 'Compare the condition of the Jews in Europe and the wide world to-day, with what it was only two centuries ago! Then our portion was, and for ages had been, homeless exile, perpetually renewed banishment, cruel and constant massacre, ruthless spoliation, social contempt and degradation, destruction by torture and fire and sword; we were despised until we became despicable, oppressed until we became wicked, crushed down until we lost the power to rise, deprived of all chance of culture till we sank into almost brutal ignorance; we were enslaved and ill-treated till we hardly remembered we were men; and this for long, long centuries. Now all is changed, and our portion in most lands is as good a one as that of the Gentiles themselves. Everywhere we are now emancipated, possessed of civil, social, and religious liberty, and of citizenship in all lands; we take our places in every class, even among the legislators and judges of the Gentiles; we teach their youth, we conduct their press; we enjoy honor and power, rank and wealth, and perfect equality with our Gentile neighbors. Further, we have once more an international bond of union, and are one of the most rapidly rising, fast multiplying, vigorous, and advancing nations on earth. We can compete with Gentiles in the mart, in the study, in the senate, wherever we get fair play; and we are getting it everywhere now. Our restoration to our own land is but a question of time, and probably of a short time. If our revival, uplifting, and restoration mark the terminus of your Gentile age, then you may be very sure its years are few!'

So speaks the Jewish witness, and every fact he indicates is a true sign of the times.

"And there is further confirmation still in connection with the land of the Jews, as well as with their people. For eighteen centuries it has lain desolate and forsaken of its sons, occupied and oppressed by strangers, and its condition was indicated by our Lord himself as especially a sign of the times. 'Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.' The condition of Palestine, be it observed, is a wholly independent question to that of the state of the Jews. Since the close of the Jewish war eighteen hundred years ago, the Jews have had no more to do with it practically than the Chinese. It has passed under the power of one Gentile nation after another, and no improvement in the condition of the Jews has as yet had any direct influence on the fate of Palestine. For the last twelve centuries it has lain desolate under Mahomedan despotism, and for nearly four hundred years it has been wasted by Turkish tyranny. But the cruel grasp that has held it so long is fast relaxing; paralysis has smitten away its strength; the slightest effort would remove the weak and unwelcome constraint; yea, it would have failed long since had not outsiders upheld the arm and steadied the hand. It must, as all admit, resign its hold ere long.

But perchance some other Gentile power may succeed the Turk? It does not follow that Jerusalem must cease to be trodden down by Gentiles, because it ceases to be trodden down by the Turk.

"True; but this decay of Turkish power is represented elsewhere under the figure of the drying up of the Euphrates, and that figure points back to Cyrus' capture of Babylon, when the river Euphrates was actually dried up, that Israel's liberator might enter Babylon and set the captive people free. Of this Cyrus it was said, 'He shall build My city; he shall let go My captives.' He is a type of Christ, who is now by His providence drying up the anti-typical Euphrates, that He may effect a greater deliverance. In any case, the condition of Jerusalem, and of the eastern question generally, seems to agree with all the rest in indicating that we have nearly reached the close of the 'Times of the Gentiles.'"

"Mahomedan Signs. This set of signs, though closely connected with the previous one, is yet to a certain extent independent, and may be regarded apart. When we remember what the Mahomedan power is and has done in the world; when we remember that the Apocalypse—which reveals, not only, like Daniel, the outward and visible action of the potentates and powers that influenced the destiny of myriads of mankind for many generations, but goes further and shows their origin, whether from above or beneath—distinctly declares that this system, like the Papal system, originated with Satan, and issued from the bottomless pit; when we remember that its sway at one time extended from the wall of China to the Atlantic, and from the Danube to the Nile; when we remember that it well-nigh extinguished Christianity throughout the whole of Northern Africa, and cruelly persecuting it in all the rest of its dominions; when we remember that one hundred and fifty millions of men are still believers in its Christ-rejecting creed, and that millions more of nominal Christians are still the victims of its oppressions and cruelties; its present and rapidly progressing decay, and the consequent gradual liberation of its Jewish and Christian victims, and the near prospect of its total extinction in Europe, become "a sign of the times," gigantic in its importance, and carrying a weight which a thousand brief and passing signs could never do. Every fresh stage in its fall is a confirmatory sign, as is every fresh manifestation of the decay of the Papal nations, and of the increasing spread and ascendancy of the Protestant powers.

HERE is another attempt to carry the communistic idea into execution gone wrong. We take the statement given below from the Inter-Ocean, of Chicago, for the 5th; it is curious how unfortunately they turn out.

"The communistic colony at Topolotampo, on the shores of the Gulf of California, where all the socialists, communists, and anarchists were to find a perfect Utopia, has been a big thing on paper: but Mr. J. W. Nichols and others from New York, who took stock in the scheme and have visited the site of the colony, report that it is an absolute failure. The colony is the scheme of a man by the name of Owens, a socialist, and he has succeeded in selling about $600,000 worth of stock to people who are to go to Topolotampo and find an ideal home. Mr. Nichols arrived in San Francisco from the colony the other day, and says that the 'city' in which so many lots have been sold consists of a single rough-board shanty and about thirty tents. The site, he reports, is unhealthy in the extreme—a malarious marsh surrounded by nothing but sand, rocks, and cactus. Water has to be carried seven miles, and the colonists are sick, dispirited, and anxious to get away, but have no means to pay their passage."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The path of life we walk to-day
Is strange as that the Hebrews trod:
We need the shadowing rock as they,—
We need, like them, the guides of God."

A MAN IS KNOWN BY THE COMPANY HE KEEPS.

WE have no doubt, dear young Saints, that many of you like ourselves, have heard this proverb from a child, and more than this, if you have ever stopped to think you have seen it verified within your own knowledge more than once, if indeed you have not a score of times. The idler will seek the company of the idle that they may help him pass away the time; the industrious (when seeking company at all) will be found among the industrious, the wicked will seek the company of the wicked, and the virtuous the company of the virtuous. Like cleaves unto like, and the law is so universal in its application as not to need further comment. In what we have to write at this time, we address ourselves entirely to those of you who have entered into solemn covenant with God to serve him to the end of your days. You have renounced the world, because the Savior has told you that its friendship is enmity to God. You have enlisted in the army and are now marching through an enemy's country. With others you have confessed yourselves pilgrims and strangers, declaring that you seek a better country—a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God, and yet some of you think not only that dancing is a harmless amusement, but even justify yourselves in it by quoting these words from the Bible, "There is a time to dance." What would you think of the heart religion of that man or woman who should justify themselves in hating their fellow beings, because the Bible says, "There is a time to hate, or in murder, because the Bible says, "There is a time to kill?" The quotation of passages like this are parallel with those quoted to our Savior by the devil, and if your minds are stored with the words of God you will never fail to be able to answer them wisely and conclusively. Paul gave this instruction to the Saints in his day: "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." That God has been praised in the dance we admit—that the time is coming when his people will rejoice before him again in the same way we fully believe, for the prophet assures us of this, but in order that we may understand this dancing and separate it from another kind of dancing, let us see what company it was found in and what was the occasion of it.

The Hebrew word signified "to leap for joy," and commentators say, "the action of the lame man healed at the beautiful gate of the temple more nearly resembled the Hebrew dancing than the measured, artificial steps of modern times do. The Jewish dances were expressive of religious joy and gratitude. Sometimes they were in honor of a conqueror, as in the case of David when he had slain the Philistine giant. The women came out of all the cities of Israel singing and dancing. When God had overthrown Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea, Miriam led the women of Israel and with a song of devotion they praised God for his mercy."

Dear boys and girls do you think this was bad company to be found in, or do you suppose there could be found in the church to-day a man or woman who would ask any one of you to refrain from praising God in the same way for a work so wonderful, a deliverance so mighty. As Latter Day Saints we are waiting and looking for the restoration of Israel to the land of their inheritance, and when this shall take place the prophet Jeremiah declares, "Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together; for I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them and will make them rejoice from their sorrow."—31:13. This kind of dancing, this kind of company, we have not the slightest objection to. But come with us to the palace of King Herod, where the monarch has made a feast and Herodias, the wife of Philip, but who was, contrary to the law of God, living with Herod, sends her daughter to dance for the drunken king and his guests. O, what depth of wickedness in this spectacle of a mother thus debasing her child. Revenge was at the bottom of this, and its reward was the goary head of that fearless servant of God, John the Baptist. Do you like the company?

Among the Greeks and Romans dancing was a common pastime resorted to in order to enliven feasts, still Cicero says: "No one dances unless he is either drunk or mad;" and these words express the prevailing sense as to the impropriety of respectable individuals taking part in the amusement. Hence the gay circles of Rome, as is the case in the East at the present time, derived their entertainment from the performance of professional dancers.

Below we append the testimony of Dr. Adam Clark on dancing, and we believe that thousands could testify to the same to-day. "I learned to dance and grew passionately fond of it. Would scarcely walk but in measured time, and was constantly tripping, moving and shuffling in all times and places. I grew impatient of control, was fond of company, and wished to mingle more than I had ever done with young people. I also got a passion for better clothing than that which fell to my lot in life, and was discontented when I found a neighbor's son dressed better than myself. I lost the spirit of subordination, did not love work, imbibed the spirit of idleness, and in short drank in all the brain-sickening effluvia of pleasure. The authority of my parents was feared, but not respected, and few serious impressions could find place in a mind so imbued with frivolity. Dancing was to me a perverting influence, an unmixt moral evil. It drowned the voice of a well-instructed conscience, and was the first cause of impelling me to seek my happiness in this life. And I can testify to having known it to produce in others the same evils it produced in me. I consider it, therefore, as a branch of that worldly education which leads from heaven to earth, from things spiritual to things sensual, and from God to Satan. Let them plead for it who will, I know it to be evil, and that only. They who bring up their children in this way, or send them to those schools where dancing is taught, are consecrating them to the service of Moloch. Shame on those Christians who advocate a cause by which many sons have become profligate and many daughters have been ruined."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

A letter has been returned to us from Sister Helene Dyke. Will she please tell us where to send it that it may reach her.

Sister M. H. Hoagland, who has been afflicted for many years, desires the prayers of the Saints in her behalf.

Sister H. E. Birchell writes from Cleveland, Iowa:—"When I look back at my first years in this work and see how weak I was at times, and how stimulating were the cheering words I received from those who were older in the work, I feel that I can not love them enough. Let us strive to cheer and encourage each other. If only by a kind word, it will bear its fruit. We have organized our mite society and think much good will result therefrom. Our Sunday School is in splendid working order and our branch in good condition, with the best of feeling prevailing."

Sister Mary Gillespie writes from Kirtland, Ohio:—"I can say for one with sister Bradley, 'There is power in prayer;' and when we are brought down to the depth of humility, God hastens to show himself. We moved to this place a year ago. I can see the temple from my door. They are busy getting ready for conference. I look forward to the time with joy, hoping to meet Saints that I have not seen for years."

Sister S. H. Johnson, writes from Indian River, Maine:—"I send my mite to the Missionary Fund, and am hoping that good elder, of whom my brothers and sisters so often speak, will be the one sent out. However that may be, I am sure we can depend upon the story he shall carry, as being good and true. When our Father builds, the building is 'fitly framed and joined together.' I rejoice that in some little niche or corner there is a place for the weakest or humblest to work. May we all find our places and do good as we have opportunity, that when Zion is fully redeemed, we may rejoice with her children."

"Sister Hattie S. Wyman writes from Greensburg, Kansas:—"I received the copy sent me of the 'Three Witnesses,' and was much pleased with it. I feel that it is well to keep them by us, that as our children grow up, the history of the Book of Mormon may seem more of a reality to them when they can look at the pictured faces of the men to whom the angel of God brought and showed the plates from which it was translated. My little ones are not yet old enough to read the Hope, but I am going to send for it and have it bound, that I may have good reading matter for them when they are old enough to use it. The Saints are indeed being tried as by fire, and how needful that we mothers train up our children in the way both by example and precept, that in following us they may be led to the Redeemer and be fitted to take the places left vacant by those who are now laboring for Him. I have received many blessings from the Lord, and have proved many a time that our light afflictions are not worthy to be compared with the reward that awaits the faithful. May we live so that we may be able to stand boldly up for our faith, even though every friend we have may be against us, for it is only, at most, for a little while and then comes eternity."

Sister Nellie J. Williams writes from Henderson:—"As you have sympathized with us in our trouble we also wish you to share in our joy. Our little branch has long been in darkness and many of us had almost lost hope. Brethren David S. Holmes and P. W. Perry have been with us over a week, and through the blessing of God their labors have resulted in much good. Our branch was again organized and we ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints, that our wisdom may increase, and we so live that others seeing our good works may be led to glorify our Father in heaven."

Sister Artilla Hailey writes from Avenue City, Missouri:—"I think more ought to be written on the subject of pride and following the fashions of a wicked world. If we expect to gain the love of the world and retain the love of God, we make a fatal mistake, for the 'friendship of the world is enmity towards God.' Read the Book of Mormon and see what is said in regard to dressing fine. Let us as mothers be clothed with the garments of humility and wrestle with God for faith that we may teach it to our children, as did the mothers of those stripling boys who were under the command of Helaman. By the power of God they were miraculously preserved, while thousands fell around them, to the astonishment of the whole army. Let us be firm in righteousness."

LAMONI, Iowa, March 2d, 1887.

LAMONI, Iowa.

Dear Sisters:—Some time ago Sister Frances gave us a fragment which she had rescued from the flames, in which the writer expressed a wish that some mode of dress could be adopted by the sisters, so that the rich and poor could dress more alike. It has long lain on my mind to write a few thoughts upon it. First let me say that it is cheering to see that the daughters of Zion are no longer at ease on that subject; may it prove the first stir of their awakening. We have slept long, and many of us have kept our eyes closed, when we were not asleep, to the matter.

Let us read an extract from the Book of Mormon, and then ask ourselves whether we come under a like condemnation. "Behold, O God, they cry unto thee with their mouths, while they are puffed up, even to greatness, with the vain things of the world. Behold, O my God, their costly apparel, and their ringlets, and their bracelets, and their ornaments of gold, and all their precious things which they are ornamented with; and behold, their hearts are set upon them, and yet they cry unto thee and say, We thank thee, O God, for we are a chosen people unto thee, while others shall perish."—Alma 16:16. Let us sit in solemn judgment upon our own hearts lest we be condemned if we judge them, inasmuch as our light is greater than theirs. He whom we profess to follow has plainly told us, "Seek not the things of the world; but seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God, and to establish his righteousness."—Matt. 6:33. (Inspired Translation). Now in view of all this, what is our duty? Is it to lop off a few of our superfluities, adopt a plainer mode of dress, a sort of uniform by which those called Saints shall be known from the world? Pride is not always laid aside with our ornaments, and plain apparel does not always cover inward humility. We must dig deeper than that to reach the underlying principle of right and truth. Zion's children shall be known in the street, (but not by their dress), until "the armies of heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen clean and white."—Rev. 19:14. In Book of Mormon, same chapter quoted above, verses seventeen and eighteen we find that when those people became filled with the Holy Spirit, they took no more thought of what they should eat, or drink or put on. "And it came to pass that they did go forth, and began to preach the word of God unto the people, entering into their synagogues, and into their houses, yea and even they did preach the word in their streets." Sisters, I firmly believe that the Holy Spirit is now at work in the hearts of the daughters of Zion, and soon shall the whole word of God be taught in every house, beginning at our own firesides, to establish his kingdom and righteousness, and carry the word into the highways and byways. What? You say, women preach in the street? Certainly; why not? She need not make a noise about it. Scatter the church publications; carry them with us when we go out, and when we meet our friends not of the faith, let us draw their attention to them in a kindly and friendly way. If it is God's word it shall not return to him void, though he who scatters the seed never sees the fruit. The writer placed the Voice of Warning in the hands of a gentleman, and long afterwards, when she had nearly forgotten the circumstance, she received a letter from him; he said he had let it lie unread for many months, and at last took it up for want of something better to do, as he then thought, but became so interested that he had read it five times. He sent the price of it, which was invested in tracts and returned to him; these he read and is still investigating. This is only one of several incidents. The mail is also a good and cheap way to scatter the word. O, yes, let the women, and children too, preach. The great trouble with us is idleness. Had we gone about our Father's business we would not have become ensnared by the fashions and follies of the world. Satan finds plenty for idle hands to do. In Doctrine and Covenants it is said, "Ye shall not be idle, for he that is idle shall not eat the bread nor wear the garments of the laborer." O, says one, that refers to physical labor. Of course it does, but Jesus said, "my words are spirit, and they are life." As the plan of salvation embraces both our mortal and immortal nature, we can not separate his word without destroying the life. So the command above embraces spiritual idlers as well as physical.

When we set our hearts to the performance of our first duty, the legitimate work of Saints, then our ruffles, tucks, plaits and puffs will be laid aside for want of time, just as now the reverse is the case. In that way, this dress question will regulate itself, like other side issues; or rather there will then be no side issues; for the substances of all commandments are fulfilled in these two, to love God supremely and our neighbor as ourself. Do we believe these things? Let every one answer as to God. "For he that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." God is separating his people now, and to every heart it shall be said, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servant ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or obedience unto righteousness." God speed the time spoken of Zion's daughters, when "they shall call them the holy people." (Isa. 62:12).

ELEANOR.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan.

Dear Sister Walker:—Your postal card, in regard to the "Free-will offering" was received, and at our Christmas-tree and entertainment had a box set apart for it, and received $1.50. We had a very enjoyable time on the eve of our Savior's birthday; every one went home feeling well pleased. We had recitations and music, after which the presents were distributed, and then had refreshments. The church was nicely decorated with evergreens, and the seats were well filled; quite a number of out-siders were there and seemed to enjoy it as much as we did. The church was presented with a nice clock, and a bell for the Sunday-school. Our Sunday-school has been newly organized, and we have very nice times. Brother Harlow is our superintendent, and by the help of God I think it will prosper. Fearing to take up too much room I will close, wishing you all a "Happy New Year."

Your sister in Christ,

SADIE.

It will be seen by our weekly report in the Herald, that quite a number of our schools responded to the call for "Free-will offering" on the Savior's birthday, and in the Sunday-school at Wheeling, W. Va., they not only responded at that time, but now have placed a box in the school into which are dropped these offerings from time to time, and quarterly they will forward them for the Missionary Fund. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Teach them to remember the Lord, to show gratitude to him. Help them to realize that he created them—that they are his by creation, and by the price he paid for them on Calvary, and our faith is strong as the everlasting hills, that if in the midst of the temptations of youth they seem for a time to forget, they will come back, for they will never forget the taste of the sweet bread they ate in their Father's house. But how shall they know the taste of good bread, who have never had it given to them? How shall they know the blessedness of doing good, who have never been taught to do good? How shall the little ones know the way, whose parents never say to them, "This is the way, walk ye in it," or who while they may say this, walk before them in another way?—Ed.

PORT GREVILLE, N. S., Jan. 16th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I enjoy reading the letters from the sisters very much, and they can not fail to do good. If we would but pay good heed to the advice and counsel given by them, we would be better and happier here and better prepared for the life hereafter. The "Home Column" seems to me something like a mirror, it shows us our imperfections very plainly; and although not always pleasant to see, yet if we never see them we will never try to rid ourselves of them. I should like to see something more written on the subject of dress, from some of the older and wiser sisters. One sister wrote not long since and asked to have the opinion of others, but I have seen nothing since. We are numbered among the scattered ones, but we love the work and are always glad to hear of its triumphs through the Herald, and through other sources. We see that the gospel truths are dawning slowly but surely on the minds of the people. May God help us all to live up to the light he has given us, and to make ourselves ready to receive more and more.

Your sister in the gospel,

IDA LAYTON.

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo., Jan. 25th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—I wish to be found trying to do my duty, to help all in my power in so good, so essential a work as that of saving souls; and when we are putting forth efforts that will have a tendency to keep the young free from sinful thoughts and deeds, or reclaim those who are not free, are we not helping in this work? During the existence of the Home Column I have read with pleasure the many letters speaking a firm determination to remain faithful, doing all the good to others possible, and yet at times I have felt disappointment that so little is being said by the mothers and sisters in regard to the use of tobacco. Is it not our duty to try to lead the minds of the young to the fact that the use of this weed destroys the health mentally and physically; that it is both body and soul destroying in its effects. One author calls it "the twin sister of drunkenness," and says "tobacco using and drunkenness go hand in hand; that nearly if not quite every drunkard, either chews or smokes; that the great majority of drunkards become addicted to the use of tobacco first, thus they learned to demand a stimulus of some kind." He says also, that "rum and tobacco together are blasting the human race." Were it in my power I would herald the warning to the notice of every user of the vile stuff among Latter Day Saints.

We preach purity, cleanliness, and yet take to ourselves that which defiles both mind and body. I once heard Bishop Blakeslee say before a large audience, that "the tobacco user was defiled in the sight of the Lord." Happy the parents whose sons are free from the dirty habit; they may well be glad for so great a consolation. How can Latter Day Saints sor far forget, or ignore the blessings bestowed, as to defile the being God has given us with which to praise Him. We should keep both mind and body clean and pure, that we may at all times feel to speak praises to Him who so greatly blesses us. We are promised favor in the eyes of the people. Let us be worthy.

Recently I heard two gentlemen conversing,—one a citizen, the other a stranger,—in our little town. The citizen was telling the stranger about the Latter Day Saints, and made the assertion that none of our people could be found in the poor-house, the lunatic asylum, or State's prison; and asserted that this could not be said of any other denomination. This tells how closely we are watched by all people. Can we not live in such a way that good only may be seen among us; making ourselves truly as a light set upon a hill? Oh, the good we might do by a clean, pure life.

Ever praying for Zion's, I hope to remain in the faith. L. E. F.

P.S.—Any one wishing to inform themselves of the hurtful effects of tobacco using, by sending five or ten cents to Nebraska Tract Society, Fremont, Nebraska, can obtain tracts on that subject.

Correspondence.

MAGNOLIA, IOWA.

Dear Herald:—After reading the last two numbers of the present volume, I feel impressed to write, and hope that I shall not be misjudged in my motive whether my letter shall express praise or censure. If I know my own heart and motives, and retain a proper sense of manhood, I shall never be found giving praise to any whom I deem unworthy; nor shall I wantonly heap blame upon any, nor vindictively charge them with impure motives; but I hope ever to be able to "give honor to whom honor is due."

Reading the Epistle of David Whitmer gave me pain, not because I feared any truth expressed in it; but I feared that it might impair the force of the testimony that he had so long and faithfully borne to the coming forth and divinity of the Book of Mormon, and thereby encourage the enemies of truth in their determined opposition thereto. I also partly feared for its effect upon such as are not established in the truth, who are identified with us. But do not understand me as fearing that the timbers of the gospel ship are in danger of being wrenched asunder, and that certain ruin is impending over the church if my particular policy is not carried out. My faith in this work is not laid in the wisdom and power of man, but in God, and his Christ, the Holy Spirit, and his Rock; and I have no doubt of the outcome. But if David Whitmer's Epistle gave me pain, I must be permitted to say that the Defense, in which his claims are "Weighed in the Balance," made me rejoice; and I am satisfied it was a just balance in which they are weighed.

Then the masterly manner in which "The Gurdy Movement" has been shown up by Bro. Lambert; and the wise and loving sentiments under the watchword, "Steadily Forward," have done much to give me joy, and praising God for such noble defenses of his truth, I love to honor the instruments of such defense.

I want to say a few words in favor of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. On the 3d day of October, 1847, nine years after David Whitmer left the church because of what he supposed to be apostacy on the part of him whom God had raised up to usher in the dispensation of the ful-ness of times, I obeyed the gospel as brought forth by that man. I had desired to consecrate my being to the service of God; I had visited different churches, and at length had settled down with the Baptist denomination; but I heard of a people that claimed to have communication with heaven in these days. I found their place of meeting; I listened to their teachings; I read their books, what I could obtain; I was compelled to acknowledge that their doctrine was in perfect accord with the Scriptures. But I was informed by other professors that the Latter Day Saints were a bad people; every conceivable crime was laid at their doors. This caused me to pause and consider. I was informed that a learned minister of the Methodist Church was about to expose these people in a course of lectures to be delivered in the Latter Day Saints' large tent, and that the Latter Day Saints were to reply. I attended, and weighed both sides as well as my powers of mind would permit; but I soon saw there was danger of my being deceived if I relied upon my own unaided powers; hence, I went to Him who has said: "Ask and it shall be given;" "Knock and it shall be opened unto you." I searched, I pondered, I prayed, I weighed both sides by the light of God's written truth for week's night and day; and this was my constant prayer:—"O, Lord, if the Latter Day Saints are thy people, lead me to them; if they are not thy people, lead me from them; I want to do thy will."

The more I prayed, and the deeper I searched, the more my heart was led to that people, feeling that they were God's people, until I could content myself no longer outside of what appeared to me to be the ark of safety—the church and kingdom of God. I demanded admission at the door. The elder wished to delay my baptism till another evening. I said, "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation." That day, ere the sun had sunk to rest, I was buried with Christ in baptism. I rose from the watery tomb with songs of praise and glory to God for his redeeming love in leading my pleading, helpless soul to the portals of his kingdom, and then receiving me as his child, and witnessing my adoption by the fulness of his love poured out into my heart.

The next evening I was confirmed by the authority which had been laid upon Joseph the Seer. In that confirmation I experienced the baptism of the Holy Ghost, which was as fire in my bones, and light, peace, love and joy to my soul, to such an extent that I knew God had accepted of my humble offering, and had received me as his child. "If a son ask bread of his father will he give him a stone?" I asked for light: would my father give me darkness? I asked for the Bread of Life: would he give me a chaff pile? My heart's desire was to be enrolled among God's people: would he lead me to those who despised him? God called me to the ministry. He was with me in my labors. I was unlearned: he taught me knowledge. I was inexperienced: he gave me wisdom. I was weak: his Spirit strengthened me. And I praise his holy name that he never permitted me to be confounded.

But the hour of darkness came. In 1852 a wave of corruption spread over the church. It had been gathering for years, but then reached the British shores. Many were thrown into confusion. They had received truth, gospel truth; it had made them free. Some who had brought us that truth, had now brought us the opposite. We could not afford to throw away the truth; but could we detect the error? The names of Abraham, Jacob, Gideon, David, Solomon, and a host of others were appended to illuminate the dark cloud; and the men who proclaimed the abomination realizing the emptiness of their own names, and their lack of prestige, and knowing that a heavier name was needed to give effect to their lie, appended the name of Joseph Smith, the honored instrument in God's hand in restoring the gospel again to the earth. This added to the confusion, and gave some coloring to the base and libidinous falsehood, and many were deceived.

Joseph was dead and could not contradict the foul slander upon his name; but thank God, the writings he had brought forth exposed the cheat, and to all who took the pains to prayerfully search, tore off the mask of the abominable mass of corruption; but all could not see. Many turned sadly away, yet knew not where to go. The writer was one of these; but not until he had visited the sink-hole of that corruption and seen its hideousness did he cast away every vestige of truth with the errors. Then with a disappointment bitter as a draught of Lethe's waves, he plunged headlong into the depths of infidelity, and sought comfort in its dark, dank caverns. But truth had once shone upon his mind. Its lingering rays of light robbed him of rest, but the problem was too deep. He could not tell how so much corruption came to be mingled with heaven-born truth. He could not forget his experiences, but how could they be associated with corruption? In this condition he remained,—his life no longer a pleasure, his eternal prospects forever blighted, and life was a blank without a single ray of hope; excepting that death would some day end all. That which men term religion had no charms for me. Nor could I relish the corruption of the world. But He who knows all hearts, and whose tender mercies are over all his works, felt after me by his Spirit, and had it not been for that divine influence drawing me by the cords of love, I am satisfied that I should not now be with the people of God.

My mind was directed to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. I investigated it with caution. I was led once again to the fountain of light. I renewed in essence my youthful prayer, feeling a thousand times more need of Father's guiding hand. Why did not the Lord guide me in both these instances to David Whitmer, if He had "called him out to hold the authority?" The name was no stranger to me. His testimony was familiar, and if he was the one called to lead Zion's wanderers home, why did not my Father direct me there? My Father and my God directed me to the Reorganization. There I found the same glorious truth untarnished; the same spirit of peace, love, and joy; the same glorious Redeemer speaking peace to my heart, and bidding my troubled soul "be still." I can bear testimony to the truth of J. J. Stafford's article, "The Modern Pentecost;" both with respect to the work of God in my native land as established there under the direction of the first Joseph, and also to the work of the Reorganization under the present Joseph in this land. When I united with the church in England, they were enjoying that modern Pentecost, and its resemblance to that ancient Pentecost was one of the evidences that led me to accept the truth. In the Reorganization I found a restoration of that Pentecost; hence, I could not refrain from coming to the feast that God had so bountifully provided, and I am content to live and die with the people of God. And I recognize the Reorganized Church as the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, owned and blessed of God.

CHARLES DERRY.

GRAND MANAN, Feb'y 18th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—It is possible you may have asked the question, "Why is it we do not hear from Grand Manan?" I am carefully noting what is transpiring, especially in connection with the church and Herald. Having for so long a time refrained from writing, some may attribute it to disinterestedness or lukewarmness. Let me say right here, that I have never been more interested; and have never been stronger in the faith, or more encouraged to press on, and contend the for right. I feel that the following quotation is justly applicable to the church at the present time: "The path of the just is as a shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." When I read Herald's, numbers six and seven, I felt that I could not in justice to myself and the brethren keep silence any longer. I have fully satisfied myself from years of research and experience, that the doctrine as taught by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, (the bible being true), "is the power of God unto Salvation."

Brother Joseph, my sympathy is with you, and my prayers are for you, that, "As your day, so may your strength be." When I read of the success attending the labors of the elders, and compare with what is being done here, I feel like entering other fields; but my duty seems to assign me to this, "Island of the sea." I heartily endorse the position taken by the church in these controversies, and do not see how you could have honestly avoided them.

Sister Ruby Warnock departed this life on the 29th ult., aged 73 years.

Ever contending for the right, I am your brother in gospel bonds,
JOSEPH LAKEMAN.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 12th.

Bro Joseph:—I feel it a duty as well as a pleasure to write a few lines to you to inform you how we are moving along in this part of the vineyard. Not that I suppose for a moment that Bro. Warren E. Peak has not sent you all particulars. But I guess he has not said much about himself; and that is just what I want to say—how he was received and how his labors were appreciated. We all felt thankful for the influence that sent him, and his kindness in coming. I can assure you he did not come before he was needed; and every elder passing through this city ought to give us a call. The work of the Lord will prosper in these last days in spite of those who would try to hinder. The brother preaches in an easy manner, and when he commences we scarcely want him to leave off. It was meat and drink to all who heard him; and I hope and trust the fruits of his labors will be seen here before long. He has suffered a little from sickness through the changeable climate of Pennsylvania this winter; but he was in good hands and well cared for. The work has suffered in Philadelphia, but I hope and trust it will rise and triumph. A few Saints are still holding the fort, keeping watch on the citadel, and trying to hold the banner of King Emmanuel floating in the breeze. We have a nice Sabbath School, and the scholars learn to sing beautifully under the tuition of Sr. Katie Bacon. Bro. Bacon is superintendent and presides over the branch also. Bro. Joseph Stewart will preach the word for the present. For several Sabbaths I have been interested in the Saints Herald for the years 1869 and 1868. In it I find a few lessons to children from "Frances," and about the 144,000? and several other good excellent articles. But what a change since then? The volume I believe formerly belonged to Sister Ditterline but is owned now by Bro. Peters. Two aged saints of the cross have gone to their long home of late here; and as the poet expresses it:

"Friend after friend departs;
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That finds not here an end:
Were this frail world our only rest,
Living or dying, none were blest."

Respectfully yours in the covenant,

WILLIAM STREET.

WIRT, Ind., Feb. 23d.

Elder Joseph Smith:—I began meetings at Union Chapel, the 6th inst., but the continued cloudy, rainy weather here for the past four or five weeks has hindered very much. Most of the Saints here are alive to the work, and are trying to move along. I baptized three the 15th inst., all heads of families, and others are deeply moved in favor of the gospel. There is a desire in many places to learn the faith of the Saints, and I wish I was able to respond to the demand. Saints, pray the Lord of the vineyard to send forth more laborers to gather in the golden harvest. Pray for us.

Your brother in bonds,
C. SCOTT.

MILTON, Oregon, Feb. 12th.

Bro. Dancer:—I want to circulate as many tracts as my means will afford. We are alone here, myself and wife, save one aged sister about fifteen miles away. There have been none of our elders here, and all the preacher we have is the Herald and Hope, so that they are twice welcome visitors. I would not do without them any more. I would be glad if an elder would come this way. I was baptized in 1876, into the Nebraska City Branch by Bro. Henry Kemp. I have not heard an elder since the spring of 1877. I did not then understand the doctrine as well as I do now; but I am stronger in the faith, and pray the Lord to lift me up lest I fall or faint by the way.

Yours in the one faith,

GEORGE CLARK.

SENIOR, Tex., Feb'y 24th.

Dear Herald: My thoughts revert to a dream I had one Sabbath night about three weeks ago. I seemed to be at home, and it was the most beautiful, starlit night I had even seen. I looked toward the southern sky and saw the "seven stars" pointing down to where the name, Joseph Smith appeared in letters composed of many stars. Each letter was about one foot long. This remained for a while, then vanished away, leaving only a faint light behind. After a period of time, the name returned in great splendor, and the light emanating from it was so great that it eclipsed all the luminaries of the night. Then the elements seemed to be in great commotion, and a great many stars moved out of their places, many fell, and the heavens becoming a grand panorama too great for any pen to portray. I was made to understand that the coming of our Savior was very near. My mind was taken up with the thought that now our time of redemption was near; no more should the heel of oppression be upon the humble followers of Christ. I awoke praising God. I think I know what it means. There are a few here trying to hold on to the rod of iron.

Yours in hope,

KATE CURREY.

RIVERTON, Iowa, Feb. 26th, 1887.

Bro. Blair:—After you left Plum Hollow I went to the Richard's settlement, as requested, in company with Bro. Moses Gaylord, who stayed with and aided me from Saturday until the next Monday. I preached ten consecutive discourses to intelligent and very attentive audiences, some of whom were deeply interested and rejoiced greatly in the truth. I was never better treated, or more kindly received by any people, and was strongly urged to return, which I shall do as soon as circumstances permit. I am now on Mill Creek. Opened up meetings last Monday night. It seems to be an opportune time. We have a full house every night, and some very earnest hearers. The few Saints that are here, with Bro. James Calkins at the head, are doing all they can to make things interesting. Bro. James is a good, spiritual minded man, full of the Holy Ghost. I never had better liberty nor enjoyed more of the Spirit of the work than now. There certainly must be some very near the kingdom. Some express faith in the gospel. Last Sabbath I took dinner with a Catholic family who had attended my meetings through the week, and had a very interesting time with them conversing on the topic of salvation. We are still willing to fight for the Master's cause, and hope to be able through grace divine to endure to the end and like Paul "press toward the mark," which we understand to be perfection in Christ. Your labors at Plum Hollow and vicinity will long be remembered by the Saints and others. Yours in bonds,

HENRY KEMP.

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Feb. 24th.

Editors Herald:—This branch is not in working order at present on account of the scattered condition of its members. Good feelings prevail, and all are living a devoted life, and are firm in the work. I think this branch has been slighted by the traveling elders. At three different times when sickness in our family made it necessary to send for elders who reside near, none were willing to come on account of press of business, except Bro. C. Hawkins, president of branch, who really could not well leave home as he is Superintendent of county farm. It not only disappoints, but it destroys confidence with those who request administration with a promise to obey the gospel. In regard to the Herald, there are many good articles, yet there seems to be a great deal of contention and difference of belief. One thing is certain, they are not all led by the same spirit. David Whitmer says in his last letter, that Joseph Smith should pretend to no other gift than to translate the Book of Mormon. This statement has not been answered yet, although he has been attacked on every side. It is my belief that the church has been corrupted through disobedience; but those who have continued in the straight and narrow way can have more light and greater blessings than those who step aside into darkness. God would not tell one particular member to leave the church, (as D. Whitmer claims), and bless the remaining portion with gifts. May we all strive to come to a unity of the faith is the desire of my heart.

NEWTON ADAMSON.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 22d.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Bro. J. W. Gillen is with us in this district, and is doing much good. He is the right man in this district, and if he is permitted to continue, I believe this district will thrive. We are now in our own home. When you were at our house with Bro. Blakeslee we commenced to pay our tithing, and the Lord has greatly blessed us. I say this to let you see the Lord has been as good as his promise.

NOAH N. COOKE.

POINT PLEASANT, IOWA, Feb. 29th.

Bro. Joseph and Blair:—After hearing a few gospel sermons preached in our neighborhood, I am impressed to write you. Bro. J. S. Roth from Tama county, and Bro. W. C. Nirk from Marshall county, Iowa, called on us Thursday, February 17th. Bro. Nirk remained until Monday the 21st, and preached Saturday evening to quite a fair audience. Bro. Roth remained over until Friday 25th. On Sunday he preached in the same house where Bro. Nirk preached, at eleven in the morning, and had a fair hearing considering the bad roads. Bro. Roth and myself drove out to Bro. and Sr. Houck's, a distance of nine miles, and found them firm in the faith and glad to welcome us. On Wednesday and Thursday nights Bro. Roth preached two miles north of my place; the first night on the first principles of the gospel, and the second night, on Utah Mormonism, to quite a full house. I am sure the visit of these brethren will terminate in good for this part of the Lord's vineyard. Quite a number are investigating our faith. I am only sorry the brethren did not make a longer visit. May they be blessed by seeing some fruits of their labor in the near future.

Your brother in the gospel,

C. W. HAMMER.

BUCHANAN, Mich., Feb. 21st.

Bro. Blair:—The Herald still makes its regular visits to our beautiful little place, Buchanan, every Thursday noon, and our first work after dinner is to read it. Our hearts are made glad that we are numbered with the people of God. We love to read the Mother's Home Column. We take the Hope and Herald and would not know how to get along without them. When we read them, we send them out amongst our friends in the country. Several of the Lamoni Saints visited us this year. Come again. We sent to Bro. J. H. Peters and got twenty Voice of Warnings some time before our district conference, and we put them to work amongst our neighbors and friends, and in nine cases they brought us the fifteen cents. We sold one while we were in Niles, to a colored man. One man had been a Baptist, a Reformed Methodist, and the Lord only knows what else he would have been had he not got hold of that "little book," as he calls it. To-day he is coming eight miles to our prayer meeting, at our house in Buchanan. Bro. Thurston from Galien paid us a visit last week, and in our conversation he asked me what I thought of David Whitmer's teaching. I told him I thought as Bro. Paul did of Alexander the Coppersmith who did much evil. And as for that servant of his, Mr. Brown, Bro. Willard J. Smith will take care of him by the help of God's Spirit. We expect to attend the Kirtland Conference in April, and hope to meet many of the Saints there whom we met four years ago.

Yours in the one gospel.

JOHN SHOOK.

BAY PORT, Mich., Feb. 21st.

The work is onward here. Old settlers say they never have seen such crowds to meetings as we have, for over twenty years. Four more have been baptized, and several others have told me they are ready for baptism. I try to get all to understand the main points first. I think the work is moving on nicely here. A one night's debate did good. Another minister is to be here in four days. I am feeling well.

Yours,

J. J. CORNISH.

RIVERTON, IOWA, Feb. 23d.

Bro. Dancer:—Bro. Henry Kemp is with us. He has a good attendance at meetings, and good order. The people are anxious to hear the word of truth. I am doing what I can by loaning the Voice of Warning and other books.

L. C. DONALDSON.

KNOX, Indiana, Feb. 9th.

Bro. Joseph:—We are enjoying some splendid services now. Dark clouds have rolled away, and spring-like zephyrs come dancing on the gale. Through the urbanity of the few Saints here the court room has been procured, and two services held, overwhelming audiences in attendance. The sheriff, Mr. Jones, kindly rendered assistance in lighting and heating the large auditorium. Have enjoyed considerable freedom in the public administration of the word at this point, as also four miles north of town. Bills of announcement were strewn like hailstones, the nature of which lifted the town to tip-toe of curiosity and excitement. Last evening we entertained near two hundred persons for one and a half-hours, on the "Perfect law of liberty" and its adaptability to the race; its necessity to mould character in this state of trial and discipline, fitting us for the society of the redeemed over on the shining strand. The interest was such that the rustle of a leaf could be heard. Expressions of "that's my doctrine," could be heard all over the court room. Verily, the Lord's people are "finding grace in the eyes of the world." We expect the interest to augment here, as doctors, preachers, members of the bar, M. E. Wesleyans, and Free Methodists manifest considerable anxiety. The Saints here, Bro. and Sr. Prettyman, Srs. Collins and Loudon, are deeply interested in the spread of the work; and are true Saints whose lives in the cause reflect the humble character of Christ. Long may they live to honor the cause. Let me state here that the commissioners passed an ordinance prohibiting the use of the court house for religious services, and the sheriff took the responsibility to open to us. This will give you an idea of the respect shown the cause here. This is like the city of Mental Independence just now, yet the charm may be dissolved, and like those on the plains of Shinar when one called for a brick his attendant handed him a stone, or blow, and utter dispersion and confusion on their banners waited. The wedge will sever with undeviating exactitude, truth from error. Are billed for the remainder of the week. Have distributed tracts, scattered them like autumn leaves; they do a noble work. We are hopeful of good results here. Desiring to be remembered before a throne of grace and favor, I am yours looking onward,

LEONARD SCOTT.

A FEW THOUGHTS ON PROPHETIC TIME.

THE periods known as "times, times, and dividing of time," time, times and a half," are generally understood by students of prophecy to refer to 1260 years; a "time" being 360 days or a year in prophetic time, or 360 years. Times, or twice 360=720 years; dividing of time or half time=180 years, or 360+720+180=1260 years.

In Ezekiel 4:3-6 the Lord gives the rule concerning days signifying years. In Daniel 9:24-27, the term weeks refers to weeks of years; 70 weeks mean 490 years, 69 weeks 483 years, one week seven years. The 69 weeks were fulfilled in years from the rebuilding of Jerusalem in the days of Nehemiah unto the Messiah. The one week cut off from the seventy, remain to be fulfilled in the latter day work of the Messiah concerning the Jews and Jerusalem, just before his second coming. But I have more particularly in mind the prophetic dates of 1260, 1290, and 1335 days of Daniel. The "time, times and dividing of time" of Daniel 7th chapter span a period of 1260 years, in which the Saints are to be given into the hands of a power called the "little horn," which I understand refers to the Papacy. The same power is represented by the unchaste woman, established on the beast (Rev. 17). The woman representing the apostate church, and the beast the political power of Rome, or Church and State united; the secular or political power sustaining the religious power. In 533 A. D. the Emperor of Rome issued an edict proclaiming the Bishop of Rome Universal Bishop, or head over all other bishops. For many years there had been a contest between the Bishop at Rome and the Bishop at Constantinople for supremacy. Finally Justinian settled the case by proclaiming the Bishop at Rome Universal Bishop; and made him the "Papa" or Pope.

In 538 the Pope assumed temporal power, by consent and co-operation of the Emperor. Three temporalities were made his kingdom, viz: the province of Ravenna, the exarchate of Lombardy and the city of Rome and adjacent territory, called the States of the Church; about the size of Rhode Island. These three kingdoms represent the work of the "little horn" in subduing "three kings," (Dan. 7:8, 24). The Pope wears a tiara or triple crown to-day, commemorative of the assumption of temporal power. In or by the year 535 universal consent to the supremacy of the Bishop at Rome was given by the Bishops of various Sees in different parts of the world.

Let us briefly try the application of the periods of 1260, 1290, 1335 days or years. Daniel says that from the taking away of the daily sacrifice, and the setting up of the desolating abomination (a phrase befitting the work of the Papacy for many centuries), there should be 1290 days. And the coming to the period of 1335 days would be the occasion of rejoicing, and a time of blessedness. (Dan. 12:11, 12). From 533 A. D. we are brought in 1260 years to the year 1793, the beginning of the French Revolution, in which the Pope was ignored and his clergy insulted and abused, and the religion of the land—mainly Catholicism—was trampled under foot, and Reason, personified by a lewd woman, styled the Goddess of Reason, was adored in the place of God and Christ. From 538 A. D. 1260 years bring us to 1798, at which time Rome was invested by French troops, under General Berthier, and the Pope carried captive to Paris, where he soon died (in about fifteen days I believe). At this time the “judgment” did sit, and “they [the nations] took away his [the little horn’s] dominion, to consume and destroy it unto the end” i. e. until it was all consumed. Austria, France and Italy have each taken piece by piece of the Pope’s dominions, until in 1870 by an understanding between France and Italy, the French troops left Rome, which Victor Immanuel took possession of and made it his capital. Another event of great significance occurred in this year (1870). A council of Cardinals, Archbishops, and other dignitaries of the Church of Rome, proclaimed the dogma of the Pope’s infallibility; wherein the Pope is made equal to the Almighty, for he can not err, or change, and so this council said of the Pope. Claiming infallibility, he speaks “great words against the Most High.” (Dan. 7:25). The judgment of the nations concerning the “little horn” is the same thing spoken of by the Revelator John concerning the harlot of Revelation 17; for the ten horns of the beast, which carried the woman, or supported the corrupt church for centuries, and who gave their kingdom to the beast, until the word of God is fulfilled, finally hate the woman, and “make her desolate, and naked, and eat her flesh, and burn her with fire.”—Rev. 17:15, 16. The loss of temporal power by the Papacy, by which all power to use military or naval force to punish its enemies, or to persecute the saints, in 1870 was a matter of rejoicing. And those who lived to see this period will see the “time of the end.” Add 535 A. D. to 1335 and it will bring us to 1870. Add 1335 to 538 A. D. and it will bring us to 1873. In this year the redemption of Zion began, by the establishment of a branch of the church in Independence, Missouri. And other important events occurred in 1873, of interest and importance to the church, chief of which was the revelation of March 3d, which brought about decidedly important measures in the church, and improved its organization, and added greatly to its effectiveness.

Add 1290 to 533 A. D. and it will bring us to 1823,—the beginning of the restoration of the gospel. On the night of September 21st, 1823, the angel appeared to Joseph for the first time and unfolded to him the purpose of God in the latter day work. Add 1290 years to 538 A. D. and it brings us to 1828, at which time the translation of the Book of Mormon began, in which is the fulness of the gospel, as well as in the Bible; and nothing has caused such a commotion in the religious world for the past eighteen centuries, or has had such an influence upon religious matters as this work; which has excited the combined opposition of men and devils. From 533 to 538 or for a period of five years, the work of setting up the abomination that maketh desolate (read the history of the Papacy for about 1290 years) was consummated. Twelve hundred and ninety years after we see the work of restoration of the gospel, and the work of the angels of God (Rev. 14:6, 7) or from 1823 to 1828. “Worship God” was now the command of inspiration. “Fear God and give glory to him.” Why, had not men been fearing God and giving him glory? Nay, but fearing the Pope, and giving glory to him. “Worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea and the fountain of waters.” Why? Because they had been worshipping the Virgin Mary, and Peter and Paul, and various saints, or at least in making images of them, and bowing down to them. In 1823 the work of setting up of the kingdom of heaven (Dan. 11:44) was begun. The church as an organization began in 1830, but it was but a small, a very small part of the church as an organization; it was several years before the church was fully organized. I consider the work of setting up of the kingdom of heaven began in 1823.

The 1290 years counting back, sees the setting up of the Papacy, the abomination that maketh desolate, in 533. If 1290 years were to date from the setting up of the desolating abomination, what more significant ending of the period could there be than the restoration of the gospel by angelic hands. The announcement of the calling of Joseph, and the hidden record, and his work in translating, and many things concerning the restoration of the kingdom of heaven, as related to Joseph by the angel in his three visits in the one night, September 21st, 1823. The beast with seven heads and ten horns, exalted or set up by the woman called Babylon, and placed her upon himself, as a governing power, as a director in 533, and soon after the setting up of the kingdom of God in 1823, the downfall of Babylon is to be declared. The temporal power of Babylon ended in 1870, the end of its spiritual power is yet to come but is sure. But there is a work yet to be done, and present indications are that it will soon be done. The beast was, is not, and yet is. It had a deadly wound, or was wounded unto death, yet lived. If the temporal power of the Papacy was the beast, it may mean a restoration for a short time of the temporal power of the Pope. France was the last head or supporter of the Papacy, but France will not restore the temporal power, for she is too much in sympathy with Italy, and will do nothing inimical to her interests. But Germany will become more friendly to the Pope, as France becomes more estranged. Germany cares nothing for Italy. Lately Bismarck has received the badge of the order of Jesus, which no Protestant ever before received. He addresses the Pope as “Sire” a term applicable only to a Sovereign—a King or Emperor. Every where Protestants are becoming more and more friendly to Romanism; speaking in praise of the institution, and considering as a Methodist Bishop did lately, that it is but “a great camp of Christians.” Lately, a Catholic Priest in Cleveland, Ohio, preached a discourse to prove that Protestantism is dead, taking the ground that it ceased to protest, and was therefore no longer Protestant. Why does Bismarck now seek to conciliate the Pope? Simply to humble Republican France. Restore temporal power to the Pope and he will do his utmost to aid Germany in crushing the life out of Republican France and restoring a Monarchical form of Government. Bismarck will probably do his best to have Austria to keep her eye on Italy, and keep her from interfering with his intentions in regard to the temporal power of the Pope. Ten kingdoms may be found which will consent to the re-assumption of temporal power of the Papacy, even though when they have fulfilled God’s word concerning the “woman” they consume her flesh, and burn her with fire, for they will have abundant reason to lament their folly, when they see how the woman will cause trouble and contention and revolution in their borders. An image of the beast, or a Church—State Government must arise. Germany has Lutheranism, the eldest daughter of the mother as a state religion. A relentless, persecuting power, his image will be like the first beast, and both beasts must be alive when the judgment of God comes. The first beast—is alive again and the image too, when Jesus comes. A sample of the power of this image is seen, in the order not long ago to exile the Poles. It will be well for students of prophecy at least, to watch the game now begun between Bismarck and the Pope. The patience of the Saints (Rev. 14:12) will be exhibited—or tried about this time. They are those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. The commandments as God gave them; the law of the unchangeable God, and the gospel of Jesus are to be kept, they are the marks of the true Church of Christ. The gospel has been restored, and is being preached in its fullness. The law of God, the moral law is binding upon us. By it we have a knowledge of sin, and hence comes the need of the gospel—which teaches us repentance and baptism for remission of sins, by faith in Christ Jesus. If there was no law there would be no sin; if no sin, no need of the gospel, of faith, repentance and obedience.

They can not be separated, hence the Saints of the last days are to keep the commandments of God, and have the faith or gospel of Jesus, the Son of God. Truly we are living in the "time of the end." These are the last days. We are now living in "the hour of God's judgment." We have no time to waste. Let us be up and doing while the day lasts, for soon the night cometh when no man can work, for the Beast with his image will not allow us to work. Don't deceive yourselves, brethren, about peace and safety in the United States. Romanism is making desperate struggles to obtain control over the Government of the United States. Protestantism is not only winking at it, but in many ways helping it on. Why should the President and his Cabinet attend High Mass, on the occasion of the death of King Alfonso of Spain, unless it was meant as a bid for Catholic votes after while, to offset the work of defection in their ranks as seen by the "Irish Republican Movement."

Let us see now the united efforts of Protestants and Catholics to have the Government declare Sunday as the true and only lawful Sabbath, and to enforce the observance of that day; will that be constitutional? Nay, therefore the Constitution must be amended; and if amended so that the Government may prescribe a form of religion in that apparently innocent manner; apparently honoring God, but dishonoring in fact, as will be seen by any who examine the subject carefully. What liberty will the Jews have, or the Seventh Day Baptists, or Seventh Day Adventists? Can they consistently honor a day, which they do not believe is the Sabbath, and which they believe the Papacy ordained, and which Constantine and also the Council Laodicea did do in fact. Now I am not defending their ground on this question, but I call attention to the proposition to amend the Constitution and to force the Government to make Sunday the Sabbath of the Lord, and to enforce its observance; if this is done, it is but the beginning of uniting Church and State. It would be but re-enacting the work of Papacy of 1500 years ago. Of course Rome wants this done, and Protestants, and many Reform Associations, are striving together with Rome, to have the Constitution changed. This is but an entering wedge. The breach will be made wider, faster and faster as the wedge enters to sever the Constitution.

Rome hates that section of the Constitution which forbids the framing of a form of religion. There are three distinct bodies in the United States. The Romanists, the Protestants, and the Church of Jesus Christ, of Saints in the last days. The two former have no use for the latter. They would be glad to see Mormonism blotted out. It is to destroy this church that this movement is inaugurated. The Sabbath question is but a pretext. It would not do to come out openly and say that their object is to destroy the latter day work; but we will have to suffer, and the Seventh-day Sabbath keepers also. The beast and his image—Romanism and Protestantism. The Mother and daughters, will combine, and be most excellent friends, for the time being, to crush us and all who will not receive the mark of the beast, in the forehead or right hand. There has been nothing ever said for or against the Seventh-day Sabbath, that has caused me the trouble of mind as this proposition of the National Reform Movement to make Sunday the only allowable Sabbath, or at least to declare that day to be the Christian Sabbath, and to punish all who do not observe it as such. There must be a screw loose some where. For who ever heard of such classes enforcing a command of God? Who knows but this may be the "mark of the beast?" But be that as it may. The gospel is restored, the angel has come as predicted. The church is established again on earth, and the Lamb's wife is making herself ready. Babylon must fall, but the dragon power, through the beast and his image must make war with the woman and the remnant of her seed which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus. What is the "testimony of Jesus?" The spirit of prophecy, and where will that be found? Where there are prophets of course. Babylon is to be found guilty of the blood of prophets and Saints. Rev. 18: 20, 24. Not of the former prophets, and apostles, or apostles and prophets; for Babylon did not exist then. It was not "set up" till after they had passed away. In 533 A.D. there were no apostles and prophets. The church had "turned heathens again" said Wesley, long before that time, or about the days of Constantine. But in the resurrected church, or the church reorganized in the last days, or the kingdom of heaven set up in 1823, there has been prophets and saints, slain by Babylon, both in June, 1844, and before; and the end is not yet. Those who receive not the mark of the beast, or his name, or number of his name, will not be allowed to buy or sell, and may be killed. But suppose they do, what then. "If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation, and shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb." Rev. 14: 9, 10. It may be that that "mark" and "name" and "number" is not yet revealed. But it will be, and all who do not receive it must suffer when it is revealed. This is one of the last day events, keep in mind, and among the very last.

INVESTIGATOR.

CHARITY.

DEAR HERALD.—Every week your pleasant visage greets the hundreds who love the cause of Zion, and your contents when read are stamped upon the mind and written upon "the fleshly tablets of the heart." Methinks that joy and peace are carried in your folds swiftly, to many cities, towns and hamlets in "Joseph's land;" and steamships, like floating islands upon the bosom of the great deep, transport amid their cargo the "wonderful words of life," to gladden the faithful toiler upon foreign shores.

As the press constitutes the chiefest means for the universal diffusion of light in these days when "many run to and fro and knowledge is increased," is it not probable that the Lord presides over the destiny of the Herald and the other organs of the church? So it seems to me, nevertheless it does not necessarily follow that the utterances to which they give expression are all infallible. Men of God may err in judgment sometimes, and place themselves upon record in an unfavorable light, but should not the mantle of charity be extended to all the brotherhood? The zealous but impetuous Peter fell in the terrible hour of temptation, but rose as a mighty column in the great temple of the christian church. I think we all should enter into the spirit of the song so often sung, and which is dear to the Saints:

"Let us pray for one another,
For the day is fading fast,
And the night is growing darker,
While the scourge goes flaming past;
We can see it in the darkness,
Closing round our narrow way,
And the snares are growing thicker;
For each other let us pray."

We are one body, truly. If a portion of the human body becomes injured, or is threatened with disease, should the hand harshly strike it a blow, or the tongue administer a taunting rebuke, or the ear be deaf to its cries of distress?

However poorly I may exemplify the virtue of "brotherly love," like the Gentile apostle I think under all circumstances it ought to "continue" and "abound more and more." No greater evidence can be given of the divinity of "our gospel" than is found in the actual exercise of this saintly quality. Charity opens the eye of thought and spiritual discernment, while prejudice, generated by a knowledge of another's faults, darkens the mental vision, dulls the finer sensibilities, and disqualifies its owner for service in the high sphere of christian culture. Robert Burns, the Scottish bard, mused thus:

"O wad some powerd the giftie gi'e us,
To see ourselves as ithers see us,
It wad frae mony a blunder free us,

I believe if we write in the Spirit of Christ, our effusion will be read in the Spirit, generally speaking. The teaching that edifies the Saints, whether by tongue or pen, is that in which they are cited to a better humanity and a purer love. The Pharisee thanked the Lord that he "was not as other men," yet the poor publican went down to his house justified rather than he.

Among the rare jewels of spiritual thought adorning that laureate of apostolic excellence, the apostle Paul, the following shines as well as any: "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." Recently, as I heard spoken the word "brethren," or "brother," like a magnetic flash the thought dawned upon my mind filling my soul with tenderness; O what a depth of meaning! what a sense of fellowship; what pathos, what tenderness, are conveyed in this word!

Dear Herald, I favor free thought and a free press, upon the ground that all things pertaining to Zion and her weal are to be done by "common consent,"—that is willingly, not by compulsion—which necessitates that every child of God shall be taught, and unity be effected, by a mutual exchange of thought upon all matters pertaining to the good of the whole. I wish your columns might remain unsullied from the stain of inuendoes and direct charges of sinister motives.

The Lord prosper you on your mission of love.
G. S. HYDE.

TESTIMONY OF BRO. E. C. BRIGGS.

WITH solicitude for the welfare of the Saints, I desire to answer the inquiry made by many, "How does E. C. [Briggs] stand?" Others say, "He is with them yet, of course."

In the year 1842, I heard the gospel, and was converted by the power of the Holy Spirit; and the evidence I received then will never be erased while the earth stands. Nay, better could I forget every friend on earth than forget the thrilling joy and goodness of the Spirit to me the moment of my conversion to Christ. The evidence was salutary to my young heart that I would embrace it and be ordained an elder and preach to my fellow men. I soon learned to love God supremely, and his special servants, (for our sakes), preferring them to self. I had not learned to mistrust any of them. I read in the Times and Seasons, the paper published by the church, of the apostasy of some of them, but it did not make much impression on my mind; I recognized it as a matter of history, like the apostasy in the days of our Savior; yet I wondered that it was so. Afterwards my mind was led to the apostasy in earlier days, of Korah, Dathan and Abiram, Esau, Cain, and of the utter overthrow of the antediluvians.

"And he [Jacob] came near, and kissed him: . . . and Isaac trembled very exceedingly and said, . . . and he shall be blessed. And when Esau heard the words of his father, he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, . . . Bless me, even me also, O my father." But "he found no place of repentance, though he sought it carefully with tears."

I have not time now, nor space in this article to give my reflections upon the above passages, but will add that they were the subject of much thought, and to my satisfaction I fathomed them with this key. We have only a meager account of those transactions, and only those who are spiritual in deed shall ever understand them. Thousands of like passages may be understood by the Spirit in those who are taught the deep things of God. And "the stick of Joseph which is in the hands of Ephraim" is a great help to the prayerful soul who lives with an eye single to the glory of God. (Mark one thing; it does not say Ephraim wrote it; but it was written for Joseph, and would be "in the hands of Ephraim.") in all generations when he truly was planting his work among men by an authorized ministry. I became convinced, however, that such was the case. I believed Joseph Smith was sent of God in fulfillment of prophecies, to establish the the Church of Christ in this age of the world. I could, in some degree at least, see that he was the target for all sects of religions and apostates to despise, hate and villify. False reports of his massacre and death were often circulated, but of course I did not believe them. The thought that he could be killed until his work was done never for a moment entered my mind, and that his work embraced much more I fully believed. But when his cruel death came, by violent, wicked hands, abetted or otherwise indorsed by the hireling clergy of the land, I was shocked and grieved at heart. But thank God, O my soul! by the blessing of the Holy Ghost in open vision (near noon-day), I was instructed, and heard the voice of God declare, "Joseph, the son of Joseph, is the prophet of the church;" and a sure conviction by the Spirit was left upon my mind that the "choice Seer" was dead, and that his son Joseph would be his successor. I then waited in sadness for the next number of the church paper, expecting it to confirm the evidence I had received. When it came, dressed in mourning, the dreadful account of the slaying of the beloved Joseph and Hyrum was in it; but the most astonishing of all to me was that the church seemed to be in confusion as to who would be the Prophet and President of the church.

It seems strange that there should be such bitter opposition to the work of God

Some days after, while I was pondering over it in my heart, I had a vision. (I can not now remember how it was, whether in a dream or open vision. The instruction was all the same to me, and is ever vivid to my mind as though it was but yesterday). I saw a black crape, like a pall, veil the prairie and forest east and north of the city of Nauvoo. As I looked it moved on and lowered down on the trees, and covered the entire city; and while I, in wonder, saw it rest on the houses, I exclaimed, What does it mean! A person standing at my right, whom I had not noticed before, said, "It is the spirit of whoredom, and it will be poured out upon the church, and from the church it will be poured out upon the entire world." In great astonishment I afterwards stood in a large room. The workmanship was plain, but very nice; casings of doors and windows had the appearance of heavy walnut; the mantlepiece and side casings of the fire-place in the west end of the room, also were also beautiful heavy polished walnut. While I was thus observing the surroundings, the door in the east end opened, and two ladies, attired in plain black, came in. They wore on their heads the old fashioned sun bonnet, fastened closely round their faces, and as they walked in, side by side, weeping and wringing their hands in bitter agony, one of them cried out, "Is that so!" and as they neared the fire-place, again one of them, in anguish of heart, exclaimed, "If it was not for eternity I would not care." I thought they were being taught something that was causing them this great distress of mind. I was greatly moved in compassion for them, as I could realize their grief, and I again exclaimed aloud, "What does this mean?" And the heavenly messenger once more answered: "They are being taught whoredom under a new name, to take away the reproach, and whoredom sits a queen over all manner of corruption." And again the door opened, and two Mormon elders entered and followed close behind the ladies. They also wore black raiment, in glowing luster, in contrast to the plain black attire of the women. They seemed to be in earnest conversation, with smiling faces all aglow, with hands in motion, indicating a happy mood. I looked upon the scene before me—the neat and truly beautiful room, the gleeful looking elders so neatly dressed, and the sad, sorrowful, plainly dressed women, wringing their hands, and sobbing aloud. And as I gazed, in distress of mind, one of the broken-hearted women said again, "My God, is it so!" As I was much distressed for the poor creatures, I again cried out, "My God, what does this mean?" And I saw a pail of blood splash out on the floor behind those elders. At first I was frightened, but immediately the person who spoke to me before, stepped up to them, took hold of their coat collars and showed me the seams in them, on the fronts, on the backs, around the sleeves, an all around the skirts, every seam of their coats was lined with blood; and as he pointed to them he said, "This is murder; and murder is the sister of whoredom. And the queen and her sister sit and preside over all manner of corruption that flesh is heir to."

This vision was impressed upon my mind for days. I could not understand it, did not even know fully the meaning of the words. But while pondering over it one day, the Spirit rested upon me, and I received the following: "Whoredom was the besetting sin of the ancient prophets and kings of Israel." I was struck with horror at the thought, though I did not know what it meant. I thought it was some dreadful crime, but knew not what it was. I sometimes thought I would ask my mother what it was, but I was afraid to do so, though I could not tell why I was so afraid.

I watched with great anxiety for the news from Nauvoo. The paper did not come regularly. I was very anxious to see an elder from there, but they seemed to linger. One beautiful day, one of our neighbors came to our home with the intelligence that three elders from Nauvoo were at their place, and they had come in a covered carriage, and would soon be at our place. It was good tidings to me, for I was anxious to hear directly from the scene of disaster to the church, and of the death of the martyrs. I expected they would tell us something that would be encouraging in relation to the church, I knew it was distracted in a measure, but Oh! its depths of darkness I had never thought of then. Soon the carriage came over the hill, and I watched it until it drove up to the gate. I started to meet them, my brother Jason also. I got about one third of the way to the gate, and the Spirit of God rested on me and a vision opened up before me, and those elders appeared to me to be black. I stopped. My brother passed me to meet them, and the first words spoken were, "I have not come with a guess so, but with a know so." It seemed as though these words were thrust into my mouth unbidden, (for the Spirit was yet upon me), "You lie, and you know you lie." I was horrified, and looked upon them as the worst men I had ever seen. I thought at first I would run from them, but again with a feeling of indignation I said to myself, "No, I will not be a coward;" and I followed them into the house. They talked with Jason, and seemed to be in a light mood of mind, but my brother was quiet and sad. I do not now remember much of the conversation until the next morning Jason said, "That would be bigamy." "No," replied Elder Lyman Stoddard, "it is polygamy." (That was the first time I ever heard the accursed word). At that word I was startled and surprised, and the Holy Spirit rested upon me and said, "That is whoredom under a new name, to take away the reproach," as I had seen in the vision. I was then satisfied that I knew the worst, but yet I was very desirous to hear all he said. And one more thing I will mention in this connection. While he was in earnest conversation he suddenly stopped and said, "Well; we can't tell you all. If you come down and get your endowment, then we can tell you all the mysteries." And the Spirit of God once more said to me, "That is the doctrine of devils."

I noticed my brother opposed them, yet he did not know what to say in relation to the church. The arrogance of the twelve, the strange muddle of Rigdon, the preposterous claims of Strang, and the familiar spiritism of Brewster and others, soon served to distract and bewilder many of the church, and I was much distressed in mind, and spent many sleepless nights over the condition of things in the church. Those I had loved as men of God, I realized had, like David and Solomon fallen and were accused of God.

Some years after this I was taken very sick, and when in my lowest state the doctor and friends had given me up to die, I urged my sister at intervals for three days to tell me what the doctor said. She told me that he said I must die, that there was not enough of my constitution left to build upon; that I might linger a short time, but would never be able to feed myself again. As she left my room my mind was clear and bright, and while I meditated, the time and manifestation of my conversion to Christ was all impressed on my mind, and I again received the Holy Spirit, and it said, "You shall recover and be baptized; and that you may know he who baptizes you has authority from God, he shall have the gift of prophecy, indicate your calling, and ordain you an elder the day you are baptized, and as an elder you will travel and preach for a time and then be ordained into the high council." I soon recovered, and the next fall was baptized by Elder David Powell, and ordained under his hands. Since that I have received many evidences of the gospel, that Jesus is the Christ, and that he lives to come again in fulfilment of the prophecies in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Book of Covenants, and that there will be a falling away from the faith of many, and great distress come to many. But one thing is very clear to me that the gospel is the message that is always applicable to all people alike, and consists of principles denominated the doctrine of Christ,—the power of God unto salvation unto every one who obeys it; and that faith comes through hearing the word of God, by those sent of God and ordained. Also, that while the message is being preached there may be especial commands obligatory upon those to whom the commands are given, and not to others, being local in their nature, are true to them as a command from God, but not necessary for others to observe, and a disbelief in them, or a belief in them, is not a necessity to salvation. As for instance,—Noah was commanded to build an ark; Abraham to offer his son Isaac; some were commanded to lap like a dog; the priests were commanded to compass the city of Jericho; Jonah to prophesy to Nineveh, and Peter to "go down with them, nothing doubting," etc.

The building of the Kirtland Temple, the Nauvoo and Independence Temples are matters of the past, special and local in their nature, and ought not to disturb the faith of the Saints now. The glory for obedience, and loss for disobedience, belonged to those to whom the commands were given. But now it behoves us as Saints to live and enjoy the blessings of the gospel, and be united in love one for another, that when special commands come to us, we shall discern them as the mandates of God to us, and like Enoch and his band, together prepare to be taken, a united church below, to meet all the Zion's from above.

I do not feel like writing more now. The distress of mind on account of others stumbling over things they can not understand, or because others do not do all I think they ought to do, is taken from me; and to back down and out at this stage of things is to do one of two things,—acknowledge that I have been deceived all the way through, or that I have been a deceiver—and that I can not conscientiously do. I know better. Or further, that I have become "weary in well doing," and am now willing to let the ship take its own course in the hands of those I hold in utter indifference, and care not whether they succeed or founder on the shoals and reefs of the troubled sea of humanity.

With the highest regard and love for the Saints, I am yours in the faith,

E. C. BRIGGS.

Miscellaneous.

BORN.

SMITH.—At Egremont, Ontario, November 26th, 1886, to Bro. W. J. and Sr. Jennie B. Smith, a son; blessed by Elders J. A. McIntosh and Walter Morrison, and named Hiram Wilson Washington.

DIED.

PUTNEY.—On Monday, February 14th, 1887, about five a. m., of inflammation of the bowels, after three days of suffering, Sr. Elsie M., wife of Elder Jarius M. Putney, at their residence, Preparation, Monona county, Iowa. Born September 15th, 1835, at Catatouk, Tioga county, New York; and was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints by Elder E. C. Briggs, in Pottawattamie county, Iowa, on the 16th day of July, 1860. Our beloved sister was one of God's noblest handmaids, a worthy pattern of faith, patience, meekness, humility, love and diligence, and in consequence was a true and faithful wife, a wise and tender mother, a gentle and loving sister, and a consistent believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. She was not given to many words; but her work of love will ever remain as an undying testimony of her living faith. The sad news of her death sent a bitter pang to many hearts outside of her family, who had loved her for her sterling worth; but to her husband and children the painful reality can only be imagined by those who have passed through the terrible ordeal of seeing a loving wife and tender mother snatched suddenly away from their fond embrace and loving gaze. But even this bitter cup is sweetened by the knowledge that she died as she had lived, with a firm, unwavering faith in the world's Redeemer, the gospel restored to earth, and with a bright and beaming hope of a glorious resurrection, when "He shall come to be glorified in his Saints, and admired in all them that believe." She leaves, besides her husband, five daughters, all members of the Church of Jesus Christ, the oldest of whom is Sister Augusta Steele, wife of Bro. William Steele. The funeral discourse was preached by the writer, assisted by Elders P. Cadwell and George Montague; P. Cadwell conducting the funeral. Text, "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."—John 11:25. After the funeral, Brother Putney handed to the Bishop's Agent ten dollars, which this God-loving woman had laid by for tithing, saying as he handed it over, "This is sacred. She was a better woman than I am a man." The writer can testify that the sterling worth of Jarius M. Putney is well known to the Saints in western Iowa, and his record is untarnished. May the Comforter pour in the healing balm to that wounded heart, and those bereaved children, and help them to keep that wife and mother's example before their eyes, and by following it secure the blessed privilege of sharing with her the resurrection to eternal life.

C. DERRY.

BARNHARD.—At her home in the town of Maine, Ottertail county, Minnesota, February 15th, 1887, peacefully passed away Laura Ann, wife of Elder William Barnhard. She was stricken with paralysis, and though recovering in a measure by the power of God from the first two shocks, the third took her from us. So passed away a loving wife, a dear mother, a good friend, and a true Saint. She was born in Wysena, Columbia county, Wisconsin, and was 35 years, 11 months, and 10 days old. She was baptized by Elder H. L. Holt, August 23d, 1885. A sorrowing husband and seven children mourn her departure. Funeral services by Elder T. J. Martin to a large congregation of sympathizing friends. She has the "harp, the robe, the crown."

HAZELRIGG.—At Santa Maria, Santa Barbara county, California, Sarah Elizabeth Hazelrigg, born August 3d, 1851, in Johnson county, Illinois, baptized February 11th, 1877, by J. R. Jefferson, at La Graciosa, Santa Barbara county, California. Funeral sermon by Hiram L. Holt. Sister Hazelrigg leaves an infant child and a sorrowing husband. May they meet her in "the sweet by and by."

EGHOLM.—February 12th, 1887, Edward, son of Sr. Mary S. and Christ Egholm; aged 4 months and 10 days. Funeral sermon by E. Rannie, jr.

RICHARDSON.—John Richardson was shot on the night of February 19, 1887, while on his way home. It was a sad event for the family, because he was greatly beloved by all for his kindness, unselfishness, and care for his mother, who is quite feeble. He was highly esteemed by his fellow workmen. Several hundred of them attended the service in a body. Funeral service by E. Rannie, jr.

HAMMER.—At Allendale, Missouri, November 26th, 1886, of croup, Pearl Fidelphia, child of Bro. Joseph and Sr. Minerva Hammer, aged 4 years, 8 months and 14 days. She was blessed July 29th, 1883. Funeral sermon by Bro. C. H. Jones.

COFFIN.—At Wacoma, Fayette county, Iowa, February 20th, 1887, Bro. Barney B. Coffin, aged 70 years, 3 months and 4 days. He was baptized October 24th, 1874, by Bro. H. A. Stebbins at Pecatonica, Illinois, and so far as known, lived faithful.

JOHNSON.—At Galien, Michigan, February 2d, 1887, Mabel Luella, daughter of Mr. and sister Luella Klasner Johnson, aged one year and three months.

"She died in beauty, like a rose
Blown from a parent stem.
She died in beauty, like a pearl
Dropped from some diadem.
She lives in glory like night's gems,
Set 'round the silver moon.
She lives in glory like the sun,
Amid the blue of June."

Funeral in charge of Bishop Blakeslee. Sermon by Elder C. Scott, February 3d.

HALL.—At the residence of her son, Bro. David Hall, Leland's Grove, Shelby county, Iowa, February 20th, 1887, Sister Emaline Hall, aged 79 years 9 months and 3 days. "Mother Hall" was born in the State of Pennsylvania, the 13th day of May, 1807. She united with the church at an early day and enjoyed many of its blessings under the administration of Joseph Smith the Seer. After the death of Joseph, herself and husband passed through many trials during the dark and cloudy days that followed. They left St. Louis in 1852 and came to western Iowa, near Council Bluffs. In 1859 she united with the Reorganized Church. When Brn. Blair and Briggs came west, they found her ready to receive them. Sister Hall was truly a mother in Israel, and was ever ready and willing to administer to the wants of the elders and Saints and the poor. She died in full faith of a glorious resurrection. One son and one daughter survive her, also many friends, who will ever hold her name in sacred remembrance. Funeral services by Elder George Sweet and Bro. Jonathan Bullard.

VANVLEET.—At Beaver, Utah, February 5th, 1887, Charles Lester, infant son of Nelson and Eunice Vanvleet, aged 3 months. Again the hand of death has come and made an inroad in our home.

CAN WE TAKE THE OATH.

THERE is a marked increase of the power of convincing proof being vouchsafed to the elders, who in faithfulness are preaching the word. Late letters from Bro. John J. Cornish, laboring at Bay Port, Michigan, indicate this; as well as those received from other parts of the spiritual field. And why should this not be? All the forces of the Adversary of souls, it would appear, are at work striving to prevent our onward march, the march of the truth, and why should not the Good Spirit of the Master be with His servants. We have never seen so many and so various efforts put forth on every hand to hedge up the way, create false impressions regarding the faith of the church, the motives of those engaged in the work, and to bring the forces of other and different beliefs to bear against the elders as are at present manifested. No matter in what quarter an elder is laboring, no matter, apparently, how well he may be known, or how near he may be to his own home, there is a persistent effort to make it appear that he is an emissary of the Utah philosophy; and for that reason deserving the united efforts of the rest of believers in the Bible to crush and destroy.

There seems to be an almost absolute unwillingness on the part of many to accept the oft repeated statement of the position of the Reorganized Church, to the effect that it is not a vital question whether the dogma of Polygamy was, or was not secretly taught, or practiced in Nauvoo, or before the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith; but the question is, and has been from the start, whether such dogma was instituted, or authorized by the author of the restored gospel. This question has been from the start decided negatively; that the Lord did not either authorize, or sanction the teaching or practice of the dogma, tenet, or belief. Why will not those who claim for themselves that they are conscientious and honest in their convictions on the religious topics of the times, give to the Reorganized Church the benefit of the same claim to honesty that they make for themselves. It is passing strange that any one who asks to be thought honest can so bemean himself by denying that men who choose to differ from him are as honest as he wishes others to think that he is.

We have been attacked, and may be again on this ground, that the Church has made affirmation that Joseph Smith, neither taught nor practiced plural marriage; whereas the church as a body has made no affirmation, either admitting, or denying. Many of the elders in their ministerial work have denied, and challenged the men who stated that he did so teach and practice to produce the evidences, free from just suspicion, by which such an affirmation of guilt could be sustained; and this is all that has been done. The position of the Reorganized Church has been, and now is that the dogma of polygamy is not and never has been a tenet of the Church of Christ, is and has been constantly contrary to the laws given of God to govern and build up the church, and contrary to the law of the land in which the restored gospel was to be declared and the Church of Christ established in righteousness.

This is the position of the church to-day; and so far as we are informed, this will continue to be the position, whatever others may say or do. We can see no good to follow any attempt to charge a change of policy in regard to this question upon the Reorganized Church; for nothing can be plainer than the fact that from the first conference held in June, 1852, until the last conference held by the church, the language of the resolutions formulated on the subject have been in uniformity. Besides this the frequent statement by the church that the Bible, Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants contain the word of the Lord to the church, and are to be taken as standards of evidence in cases of controversy on doctrine and church polity, is itself an affirmation against the dogma of polygamy, because of the unqualified denunciation of that precept found in both the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants, to say nothing of the statements of the Savior found in the Bible.

This question assumes some importance at the present time because of the passage of the Edmunds-Tucker Bill, now become a law of the United States, by which the practice of polygamy, or plural marriage is not only made a crime, but is made a bar to the exercise of some of the privileges of American citizenship; and we are so far interested in the law as to enquire whether we are to be in anywise affected by its severe provisions. I becomes interesting then, for us to examine the law, in all of its provisions together with the position occupied by the church to which we belong, touching this subject, both at the establishing of the church and at each period of development from that time to the present.

If circumstances should bring any of the eldership within the jurisdiction where the oath prescribed by the Edmunds-Tucker law is being administered and required to be taken, is there anything in the rules of faith and practice to which we have subscribed, to prevent any member of the church taking such oath with freedom and without violating his obligation to the body. From our acquaintance with the doctrines and theories of the church we can safely answer, there is not. If not, and there is any one believing in so-called Mormonism, who can not take this oath, whence comes the reason for that inability? It was to prevent the members of the Reorganized Church from being included in any legislation that in any wise would be hurtful to the free exercise of the religion re-established in these last days, by revelation from God, as we fully believe, that we made the effort to place before the law makers pending legislation on Utah affairs, just what that religion was, as found in the published works of the church from 1830 to 1844; and we shall strenuously insist as we always have done that we are not to be concluded by what any man may have said or done in secret, or in public contrary to that.

It has been asserted that our object was to secure legislation against the church in Utah, because of our dislike to that people, and with a desire to assist in persecuting them; this is not the case; our efforts have been directed toward the protection of those innocent of crime against both the law of the land and the Lord, in the exercise of their God-given, God-implanted faith; and we are willing that the issue may at any time be made whether we have in this been at fault, or within the legitimate lines of self defense. We have done what we did, also, to defend and preserve the original faith of the church against that which corrupted and destroyed it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. George H. Graves, writing from Oscoda, Michigan, says:

"I am very sorry to read of the Gurley brothers leaving the church; especially, brother Z. H. Gurley, one of the Twelve. Let us be faithful and not be carried about with every wind of doctrine. I pray always to God to keep us in his grace; for I 'am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers; nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God; which is in Jesus Christ our Lord."

Bro. George M. Wyman, writing from Greensburg, Kiowa county, Kansas says: "O, how we long to have one of the servants of the Lord out here to preach the gospel to the honest in heart. I have given some tracts to the neighbors; one or two are quite interested in the work, which is a great comfort to us."

Bro. Jasper M. Tousley wrote from Chester, Illinois, March 5th.

"We are still holding our meetings regularly, with some little hope of gathering a few more 'heads of wheat.'"

D. WHITMER.

HISTORY—NOT LETTERS.

ON page 89 of HERALD, current volume, David Whitmer is made to assert that the extracts we used in evidence in our review of his article in HERALD for last November 13th and 20th, were from "some letters that were written to the Millennial Star and other papers of the church, said letters having probably been written by some man who afterwards followed Brigham Young to Salt Lake." He repeats this assertion time and again. This is crafty, but neither wise or true. And, moreover, we do not believe David Whitmer ever originated or invented this bald and flimsy theory. But whoever was the author of it, it was evidently conceived in fear and hatched in desperation to pervert and pollute the clean cut, damaging facts of recorded history against the conduct of David Whitmer, John Whitmer and W. W. Phelps from 1837 to 1839. When Mr. Whitmer and his fellows seek to break the force of written testimony embodied in church history, written, too, at or near the times when the recorded events transpired, they must do something better than merely assert that such testimony was made up of letters written to church papers. We state now, what we did then, that we took those extracts from church history. We would scorn to introduce any thing as history which was not. Such false methods are needed only to bolster up false theories. The history we quoted states, that in a "Committee of the whole church in Zion, in General Assembly, * * * at Far West, Missouri, February 5th, 1838," the moderator, Thomas B. Marsh, "read a certain revelation given in Kirtland, September 3d, 1837, which made known that John Whitmer and W. W. Phelps were in transgression, and if they repented not, they should be removed out of their places." "Elder G. M. Hinkle then set forth the way in which the Presidency of Far West [David Whitmer, John Whitmer, and W. W. Phelps.—Ed.] had been labored with, that a committee of three, of whom he was one, had labored with them. He then read a document containing a number of accusations against the three Presidents. * * * Elder George Morey, who was one of the committee sent to labor with the Presidency, spoke setting forth in a very energetic manner, the proceedings of the Presidency as being iniquitous." This was followed in like manner by Elders Grover, Patten, Wight, Higbee, Murdock, and others, as we have shown in our review last November 13th and 20th.

To settle the matter as to where the church history came from, and to show that it did not consist of letters written by unauthorized persons to the Millennial Star, years afterwards, we insert the following:

"Far West, April 6th, 1838. Agreeable to a resolution passed by the High Council of Zion, March 3d, 1838, the Saints in Missouri assembled in this place to celebrate the anniversary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. * * * John Corrill and Elias Higbee, [were appointed] Historians; George W. Robinson, General Church Recorder and Clerk to the First Presidency; Ebenezer Robinson, Church Clerk, and Recorder for Far West, and Clerk of the High Council."

This shows that the church had its historians, clerks, recorders, etc., all duly appointed. These facts may be found in Millennial Star, vol. 16: 132, 133. Here then is the source from which our historical extracts come, and not "out of letters written to the Millennial Star."

WROTE NO LETTERS.

Mr. Whitmer, in Herald, page 90, says:

"I positively wrote no letters to Kirtland about Joseph, nor did I write any letter to the High Council at Far West. I want to repeat that the man who wrote this letter to the Millennial Star must have written it a long time after I left the Latter Day Saints."

In the above we again have the misleading, deceptive statement, that the historical extracts we gave were taken from a "letter to the Millennial Star * * * written a long time after" Mr. Whitmer says he "left the Latter Day Saints." Why is Mr. Whitmer, and why are his fellows, so fearful of the plain, unvarnished facts of history as to persistently assert that they are extracts from letters written to the Millennial Star long after 1838? In this matter they exhibit, plainly, either downright ignorance or cunning craftiness. And while we know that David Whitmer, personally, never penned these and similar statements, (for he is so enfeebled in nerve-force that he can scarcely sign his name legibly), yet we are pained to find him in anyway compromised with others in such unchristian, wretched work. Again, he is made to assert repeatedly that he "left the Latter Day Saints," whereas the history of the case shows that he was dis-fellowshipped for unchristian conduct, and that, too, on specific charges. We do not pretend to sit in judgment as to whether he was dealt with righteously or not. But one thing is clear, written history shows that the Saints at Far West, in the Carter Settlement, at Hawn's Mills, etc., "unanimously rejected the three above named Presidents." [D. Whitmer, J. Whitmer, and W. W. Phelps.—Ed.] See Millennial Star 16: 116. And bear in mind, this was done before Joseph the Seer reached Missouri, for it occurred February 5th to 8th, 1838, and he did not reach Far West till the 14th of the same month.

Mr. Whitmer also says—"nor did I write any letter to the High Council at Far West." Let us see what written history says on this matter:

"The High Council of Zion met in Far West, on Saturday, March 10th, 1838, agreeable to adjournment. . . . The following letter was read by brother Marcellus Cowdery, bearer of the same, belonging to Thomas B. Marsh, previous to giving it to its rightful owner:—

"FAR WEST, March 10th, 1838.

"Sir:—It is contrary to the principles of the Revelations of Jesus Christ, and his gospel, and the laws of the land, to try a person for an offence by an illegal tribunal, or by men prejudiced against him, or by authority that has given an opinion or decision beforehand, or in his absence.

"Very respectfully we have the honor to be

"DAVID WHITMER, } Presidents of the "W. W. PHELPS, } Church of Christ
"JOHN WHITMER, } in Missouri.

"To T. B. Marsh, one of the travelling Counsellors.

"Attested: Oliver Cowdery, clerk of the High Council of the Church of Christ in Missouri.

"I hereby certify the foregoing to be a true copy from the original.

OLIVER COWDERY,

"Clerk of the High Council.

"All the effect the above letter had upon the Council, was, to convince them more of the wickedness of those men by endeavoring to palm themselves upon the Church as her Presidents after the Church had by a united voice removed them from their Presidential office, for their ungodly conduct; and the letter was considered no more nor less than a direct insult or contempt cast upon the authorities of God and the Church of Jesus Christ."—Millennial Star, 16: 116.

Here is written historical testimony, as to the said letter, attested by O. Cowdery, Clerk of the High Council. We leave the reader to judge as to which is reliable, the self-justifying statements of a debilitated old man as to what took place against him and others fifty years ago, or the authorized recorded historical testimony of church officials.

David Whitmer asserts that he "wrote no letters to Kirtland about Joseph." The written history of those times states as some of the charges preferred against David Whitmer, in the High Council at Far West, Missouri, April 13th, 1838, the following:—

"3d.—In writing letters to the dissenters in Kirtland, unfavorable to the cause, and to the character of Joseph Smith, Jr.

"4th.—In neglecting the duties of his calling, and separating himself from the Church while he had a name among us.

"5th.—For signing himself President of the Church of Christ, (after he had been cut off from the Presidency), in an insulting letter to the High Council."

The history further says:

"After reading the above charges, together with a letter sent to the President of said Council, (a copy of which may be found in the Far West Record, book A), the Council considered the charges sustained, and consequently considered him (David Whitmer) no longer a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."—Millennial Star 16: 133-4.

Such is the written testimony found in the history of the church; and in order to disprove or impair it, something better must be given than the naked assertion of the condemned party after nearly fifty years have passed away since the occurrence—fifty years in which a wounded spirit may have perverted the imagination, warped the judgment, and obscured the memory.

And after all the foregoing testimony concerning the charges, trial, and dis-fellowshipping of David Whitmer, on page 91 of HERALD he is made to say,

"And now you see why I left the Latter Day Saints. After I left them they say they gave me a trial and cut me off."

Again:

"I had to leave the Latter Day Saints, and as I rode on horse back out of Far West, in June, 1838," etc.

This attempt at ignoring the citations and trials before the High Council in March and April of 1838, as herein before seen in the history of the church, is most unpleasant to reflect upon, and leads one to think Mr. Whitmer's memory of the dates and events of those times is next to worthless, or that he has fallen into the hands of foolish and corrupt advisers.

Mr. Whitmer says on page 90, Herald, "My conscience does not condemn me for not keeping the Word of Wisdom." Mr. Whitmer's "conscience" is not, nor has it been, the divine standard of truth and right. Some can, without any twinges of conscience, violate the laws of life and health by using tea, coffee, tobacco, beer, and all kinds of strong drink, and even go into saloons—the ante rooms of hell—and "gamble for the drinks."

Anything that in any way weakens and impairs either body or mind is evil—and they are evil just in proportion as they accomplish this, whether the conscience of the transgressor condemns or not. A blind and perverse conscience allows, partakes of, and justifies error and evil, while an enlightened, spiritual, and well disciplined conscience perceives, confesses, and protests against them. A conscience that can violate the Word of Wisdom without feeling condemned, is certainly not a safe guide either in health or morals—to say nothing of religion.

DANITES.

Mr. Whitmer and his fellows charge that "the heads of the church, formed "a secret organization" in June, 1838, and it is hinted that they put Dr. Avarid at the head of it, and that all that Avarid did was in accordance with instructions from "the heads of the church."

We again appeal to facts as they were written in 1838-9, immediately after the time when it is alleged Joseph the Seer counselled or connived at the teachings and doings of Dr. Avarid. It was show in the Herald for February 12th, page 100, that Joseph, when in Liberty Jail, in the winter of 1838-9 not only denied favoring or justifying Dr. Avarid's secret works, but he also denounced them as "pernicious, frauds, works of darkness," and "secret abominations."

This was but a few months after Avarid did his evil work; and Joseph's denial and denunciation of his course was made in the most public manner, for it was written December 16th, 1838, and published in the first number of the Times and Seasons, November, 1839. This, bear in mind, was very near the time when the affair occurred, when those who were connected with that work were still alive and near at hand.

Of this Avarid affair Joseph said further:

"October, 1838.

"Lilburn W. Boggs had become so hardened by mobbing the Saints in Jackson county, and his conscience so "seared with a hot iron," that he was considered a fit subject for the gubernatorial chair; and it was probably his hatred to truth and the "Mormons," and his blood-thirsty, murderous disposition, that raised him to the station he occupied. His exterminating order of the twenty-seventh aroused every spirit in the State, of the like stamp of his own; and the Missouri mobocrats were flocking to the standard of General Clark from almost every quarter.

"Clark, although not the ranking officer, was selected by Governor Boggs as the most fit instrument to carry out his murderous designs; for bad as they were in Missouri, very few commanding officers were sufficiently hardened to go all lengths with Boggs in this contemplated inhuman butchery, and expulsion from one of the should-be free and independent States of the Republic of North America, where the constitution declares that "every man shall have the privilege of worshipping God according to the dictates of his own conscience;" and this was all the offence the Saints had been guilty of.

"And here I would state, that while the evil spirits were raging up and down in the State to raise mobs against the "Mormons," Satan himself was no less busy in striving to stir up mischief in the camp of the Saints; and among the most conspicuous of his willing devotees was one Doctor Sampson Avarid, who had been in the church but a short time, and who, although he had generally behaved with a tolerable degree of external decorum, was secretly aspiring to be the greatest of the great, and become the leader of the people. This was his pride and his folly, but as he had no hopes of accomplishing it by gaining the hearts of the people in open strife, he watched his opportunity with the brethren, at a time when mobs oppressed, robbed, whipped, burned, plundered and slew, till forbearance seemed no longer a virtue, and nothing but the grace of God without measure could support men under such trials, to form a secret combination, by which he might rise a mighty conqueror, at the expense of the overthrow of the Church; and this he tried to accomplish by his smooth, flattering, and winning speeches, which he frequently made to his associates, while his room was well guarded by some of his pupils ready to give the wink on the approach of any one who would not approve of his measures.

"In this situation he stated that he had the sanction of the heads of the Church for what he was about to do; and by his smiles and flattery persuaded them to believe it, and proceeded to administer to the few under his control, an oath, binding them to everlasting secrecy to everything which should be communicated to them by himself. Thus Avarid initiated members into his band, firmly binding them by all that was sacred, in the protecting of each other in all things that were lawful; and was careful to picture out a great glory that was then hovering over the church, and would soon burst upon the Saints as a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night, and would soon unveil the slumbering mysteries of heaven, which would gladden the hearts and arouse the stupid spirits of the Saints of the latterday, and fill their hearts with that love which is unspeakable and full of glory, and arm them with power, that the gates of hell could not prevail against them; and would often affirm to his company, that the principal men of the church had put him forward as a spokesman, and a leader, of this band which he named Danites.

"Thus he duped many, which gave him the opportunity of figuring largely. He held his meetings daily, and carried on his work of craft in great haste, to prevent a mature reflection upon the matter, and had them bound under the penalties of death to keep the secrets and certain signs—which they had to know each other by day and night.

"After those performances, he held meetings to organize his men into companies of tens and fifties, appointing a captain over each company.

After this organization, he went on to teach them their duty in compliance with the orders of their captains; he then called his captains together and taught them in a secluded place, as follows:—

"My brethren, as you have been chosen to be our leading men, our captains to rule over this last kingdom of Jesus Christ, who have been organized after the ancient order, I have called upon you here to-day to teach you and instruct you in the things that pertain to your duty, and to show you what your privileges are, and what they soon will be. Know ye not, brethren, that it soon will be your privileges to take your respective companies and go out on a scout on the borders of the settlements, and take to yourselves spoils of the goods of the ungodly Gentiles? for it is written, the riches of the Gentiles shall be consecrated to my people, the house of Israel; and thus waste away the Gentiles by robbing and plundering them of their property; and in this way we will build up the kingdom of God, and roll forth the little stone that Daniel saw cut out of the mountain without hands, until it shall fill the whole earth. For this is the very way that God destines to build up His kingdom in the last days. If any of us should be recognized, who can harm us? for we will stand by each other and defend one another in all things. If our enemies swear against us, we can swear also. [The captains were confounded at this, but Avarid continued]. Why do you startle at this brethren? As the Lord liveth, I would swear a lie to clear any of you; and if this would not do, I would put them or him under the sand as Moses did the Egyptian; and in this way we will consecrate much unto the Lord, and build up His kingdom; and who can stand against us? And if any of us transgress, we will deal with him amongst ourselves. And if any one of this Danite society reveals any of these things, I will put him where the dogs can not bite him."

"At this lecture all of the officers revolted and said it would not do, they should not go into any such measures, and it would not do to name any such things; such proceedings would be in open violation to the laws of our country, and would be robbing our fellow citizens of their rights, and are not according to the language and doctrine of Christ or the Church of Latter-Day Saints."

"This modern Sampson replied, and said there were no laws that were executed in justice, and he cared not for them, this being a different dispensation, a dispensation of the fullness of time; 'in this dispensation I learn from the scriptures that the kingdom of God was to put down all other kingdoms, and He himself was to reign, and His laws alone were the only laws that would exist.'

"Avarid's teachings were still manfully rejected by all. Avarid then said that they had better drop the subject; although he had received his authority from Sidney Rigdon the evening before. The meeting then broke up; the eyes of those present were then opened, his craft was no longer in the dark, and but very little confidence was placed in him, even by the warmest of the members of his Danite scheme.

"When a knowledge of Avarid's rascality came to the Presidency of the Church, he was cut off from the church, and every means proper used to destroy his influence, at which he was highly incensed, and went about whispering his evil insinuations, but finding every effort unavailing, he again turned conspirator, and sought to make friends with the mob.

"And here let it be distinctly understood, that these companies of tens and fifties got up by Avarid, were altogether separate and distinct from those companies of tens and fifties organized by the brethren for self defence, in case of an attack from the mob, and more particularly that in this time of alarm no family or person might be neglected, therefore one company would be engaged in drawing wood, another in cutting it, another in gathering corn, another in grinding, another in butchering, another in distributing meat, etc., etc., so that all should be employed in turn, and no one lack the necessities of life. Therefore, let no one hereafter, by mistake or design, confound this organization of the church for good and righteous purposes, with the organization of the Danites of the apostate Avarid, which died almost before it had existence."—Mill. Star, vol. 16, page 458-460.

CRUEL PERSECUTION.

In 1838, the Saints at Far West, and in that region, were being persecuted, harassed, plundered, whipped and slain, and this chiefly because they were free State people, were opposed to human slavery, professed Christianity after the New Testament pattern, were progressive and enterprising, sternly opposed the use of strong drink and tobacco, taught and observed the Word of Wisdom, and claimed the right to purchase lands and make homes wherever their tastes and interests led them. In the midst of these perilous and distressing times they organized "tens and fifties" for "self defense" and mutual aid. And who that possesses Christian manhood would not have done the same! The writer has conversed freely with many noble brethren who were identified with those "tens and fifties," and their statements agree with the foregoing history. Avar, it appears, took advantage of the then exciting condition of affairs and organized marauding bands or sought to do so—but he was soon foiled in his attempts, and then going over to the mobocrats he sought to exculpate himself from blame by charging his villainy on "the heads of the church."

And had "the heads of the church" in those days of bitter persecution encouraged retaliation on those robbing, plundering, whipping and slaying the Saints and burning their property, they would have done no more than was done by the "Free State" people of Kansas when these very same Missouri mobbers afterwards went over and sought to drive the free state people from their homes in Kansas and fasten the curse of slavery upon that fair land, for somewhat similar offences. The "free state" people of Kansas retaliated and routed the proslavery mobocrats, drove them to their own state, carried the war to their very homes, and preserved to Kansas all the blessings of human liberty.

We do not justify retaliation, except in very extreme cases. But it is very natural for the best of people, at times; and it is far preferable to going over to mobocrats, affiliating with them, consenting to the desecration of religion and the degradation of the eternal principles of truth and right in church or state.

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again;
The eternal years of God are here.
But error, wounded, writhes in pain,
And dies amid her worshippers."

Joseph the Seer and the Saints had been reviled, slandered, and persecuted in various ways from the first, in New York, Ohio, Missouri, and in many other places. Some had been stoned, whipped, tarred and feathered, their property stolen or burned; many had been driven from their lands and homes, some had been shot, others were hacked to death with a corn cutter, and all this because of the religious and social views of the Saints, their anti-slavery and temperance sentiments; for not one crime had been proved against Joseph or the Saints up to 1838, notwithstanding the whole machinery of the country's laws was in the hands of their enemies! Surely, men and women possessed of one spark of humanity will excuse Joseph and his people if they did, in 1838, organize in self defense. They will go farther, and look with forbearance and mercy upon those who, irritated and exasperated beyond endurance turned upon their heartless and brutal persecutors in defense of their homes, their wives and children, their fellow Saints, and of their natural and guaranteed rights! Callous the heart, and blind the soul of those who denounce the lofty manhood of noble men who banded together for mutual defense and mutual protection in those dark and perilous times. If those noble Spirits, in their heat and excitement and desperation committed faults, let no one display nor magnify them. Who that is human, would have done better! And who that is manly and honorable could have done more nobly than they! When the purifying breath of heaven's truth shall have swept away the blinding mists of sectarian prejudice and apostate falsehood, the name and fame of Joseph the Seer and his faithful fellow laborers will have honorable mention and be highly extolled among the true Israel of God, and all lovers of the right. For the Lord says of him to Israel, "he shall be esteemed highly among the fruit of thy loins." And further the Lord says: "I will make him great in mine eyes; for he shall do my work."—2 Neph 2: 2. This fact was beautifully portrayed in the vision of Sr. Kate Curry in her letter in HERALD, page 170:—"I looked toward the southern sky and saw the 'seven stars' pointing down to where the name, Joseph Smith, appeared in letters composed of many stars. Each letter was about one foot long. This remained for awhile then vanished away, leaving only a faint light behind. After a period of time, the name [Joseph Smith] returned in great splendor, and the light emanating from it was so great that it eclipsed all the luminaries of the night." The Lord says:—"And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever."—Dan. 12: 3.

The name of Joseph Smith and the work entrusted to him, have been under a cloud—"Vanished away, leaving only a faint light"—and this because some have departed from the faith, causing "the way of truth to be evil spoken of," and because of the lying, scandalous reports sent forth by pulpit and press "like a flood," obscuring the light and blinding the eyes of many. But the time is now at hand when "the refuge of lies" will be swept away and the name and work of Joseph the Seer will be projected upon their true and proper plane, and then will they appear "in great splendor, and the light emanating therefrom will eclipse "all the luminaries of the night." Adequate influences within and outside the church are at work to this end. The Saints have their part to do in effecting this, and happy are they who shall have "the Lord working with them" building up the "work" of God founded by the "Choice Seer;" and woe betide those who are found tearing it down, or hindering it; and woe to them who "stand all the day idle," or bring division, reproach or scandal upon it.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A METHODIST preacher by the name of Amsberry, of North Platte, Nebraska, has excited the indignation of Bro. J. C. Richards, who has written a sharp letter to the reverend gentleman, defending the faith. The occasion was a sermon in which the position taken by one of the brethren concerning the gifts of the gospel was berated by the preacher, and ridiculed as follows: "A Mormon went to a town out west, preached that he could heal the sick; eleven of the citizens waited upon him and told him that there was a woman in the neighborhood sick; that he was to go and heal her, which if he did, then the eleven would be baptized, and if he did not, the consequences would be very unpleasant to him." The preacher who told this story wanted the people to take the tale home with them and to profit by it in the treatment of one of our folks preaching in the vicinity. Bro. Richards has forwarded to us his letter to this minister, and we think it to be a good and kind remonstrance against the misrepresentation made by him.

Bro. E. F. Wright, of Breckenridge, Missouri, would like that some one of the elders of the church would call on them at that place and preach the gospel to them. He has written to Bro. William Bozarth to this effect.

Bro. J. W. Calkins speaks in high terms of the eight discourses delivered at Riverton, Iowa, by Elder Henry Kemp, and thinks great good will result. The citizens of Riverton offered to furnish him a church if he would preach for them.

Bro. C. D. Stevens wrote from Grand Rapids, Nebraska, that there were a few of the Saints at that point, and a small branch twenty miles east of there, who would be pleased to have a laborer in the gospel to visit them. Bro. Caffall was there a year ago, since which time they have been comparatively alone; and Bro. Stevens thinks it is very lonesome, to be without the preaching of the word.

We have received from Bro. E. L. Page of Hannibal, Missouri, a letter of general import concerning the attitude of Elder David Whitmer towards the work of the Reorganization, but which we do not think it advisable to reproduce for the reason that we think it wrong to allow a too personal controversy from too many sources at once. Bro. Page is an old times Saint, and feels deeply for the interests of the work.

Brother Isaac W. Wolsey, of Middle Branch, Nebraska, writes from his home, and expresses the hope that they may have the labors of a faithful elder among them again; Bro. R. H. Wight being the last one to visit them, as he was moving by them on his way to Chelsea.

Mr. A. J. Delile wrote from Fort Worth, Texas, March 5th, saying he is pleased with the HERALD, sends for Voice of Warning, and desires to have the ministry visit him.

President Joseph Smith to-day left for Independence, Missonri, and Armstrong, Kansas. He is to assist in the dedication of the Saints new chapel at the latter place on the 13th instant, and we shall look for him home not later than the 15th or 20th. These are busy times, and the outlook promises very exciting and very prosperous times for the church in all quarters. Every "watchman" should be on active duty, every "soldier" of Christ should see that he is thoroughly equipped for spiritual warfare against error and evil. The First Presidency intend to be on hand in their work.

The Leon (Iowa) Journal of the 10th inst., has a lengthy illustrated article on Lamoni, its business interests, its schools and churches, and gives special attention to the Latter Day Saints, their religious views and history, their standing as citizens in respect to morals, thrift and enterprise, all of which is treated in a fair, just and generous way. The Journal has the means of knowing in respect to most of the matters of which it treats, for Leon is our county seat, and only fifteen miles distant. We thank the Journal for its courtesy and honorable treatment.

Bro. J. A. Stewart, of Philadelphia, Pa., expects to visit Maryland at an early time to labor for the Master.

Sr. C. C. Dorey, of South Englewood, near Chicago, writes us of late that her mother Sr. A. E. Morris, passed peacefully away January 1st, 1887, true to her faith. Her life was said to be a most exemplary one, doing good to all as she found opportunity.

Bro. A. J. Ames writes from Cataract, Owen county, Indiana, March 5th, sending for church publications, and would be glad to have an elder call on him.

Bro. S. J. Hinkle wrote from Leon, Kansas, March 4th. He had preached in McDonald county, Missouri, and in the Indian Territory; had plenty of anxious listeners, and many invitations to return. He says the Saints rendered him all the assistance possible. At the Webb City conference, February 4th, he met brethren Warnky and Cato, with others. His town paper promises to publish the Epitome, and in a late issue gives him the following send-off:

"Last Sunday afternoon we attended church at the Holt school house, and listened to a sermon by S. J. Hinkle, a Latter Day Saint preacher. According to Mr. Hinkle, his church is altogether different from what we thought. He says they do not believe in having more than one wife, and in regard to the rumor that he went to Missouri last fall for the purpose of getting seventeen wives, he said: "As soon as I got back and heard it, I knew it was a lie." Mr. Hinkle is a pleasant speaker, and we believe every word comes from the heart."

THE following clipping we take from the Des Moines (Iowa) Leader of the 9th instant. Pretty much all the truth there is in it, is in the fact that Elder J. J. Cornish held a discussion with a Methodist preacher, defeated him, and soon after baptized many. Bro. Cornish is a mild mannered, gentle spirited man, and is as far from dealing in "personal abuse of his opponent," as forbearance is from evil. Read the sensational, blattering telegram, and then read the modest cards of Bro. Cornish which we append.

"Elder J. J. Cornish, a Mormon, of Salt Lake, has been laboring in this vicinity for several weeks, seeking to proselyte, and his efforts have been attended with success. Rev. John B. Davis, of the Methodist church, noted with alarm the inroads making upon his flock, and challenged the elder to a joint debate. The first of the contests took place Sunday evening, and was attended by a large crowd. Sunday night the crowd became boisterous and Rev. Davis was driven from the church, escaping by a window. The Mormon chairman of the meeting slashed around wildly with a chair and knocked down a half dozen Saints and Gentiles in his effort to preserve peace. The third contest took place yesterday afternoon and the church was crowded at an early hour. Davis was promptly on hand, and evinced a desire to carry the debate according to parliamentary rules, but Cornish opened with a volume of personal abuse of his opponent amid the remonstrances of the men and women present. His language became so brutal and threatening that fearing a fight, a panic seized the people and there was a rush for the door. Several ladies were knocked down and trampled upon. Davis rallied his forces outside the building and they sang:

"We'll stand the storm,
It can't be very long."

but the cohorts of righteousness were frightened and quickly dispersed. The same day Elder Cornish baptized twenty-three converts. The village is in a state of constant dread, fearing that bloodshed will yet result."

Bro. Cornish says:

"BAY PORT, Mich., March 4th.

"I am having a big time here; another debate is over; victory is ours; ten were baptized the next day, and we expect eight or ten more next Sunday."

On the 7th he wrote:

"I baptized fourteen yesterday, and twelve today. Others are believing. Great excitement prevails among the sects."

PROBATION AFTER DEATH.

IN another place in this issue will be found an article entitled, "The fate of untaught souls," from the Deseret News of February 15th, which we present to our readers for a number of reasons. First, it is a more than average, though brief, presentation of both sides of a question which "has come to stay"—that of probation after death for the unchristianized heathen, (and we use these terms in their best and truest sense); second, to show the HERALD readers that the News in this matter moves in the path-way marked out by the sacred books of the church, notably the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, thus giving evidence of their return to these teachings when they need light on an important subject; and third, that all may see how far superior in spirit, in statement and in argument, are the Utah Mormon writings of the present than they were in the times when were delivered the sermons of B. Young and others, published in the Journal of Discourses and Millennial Star.

Verily, a great and good change has come with the Utah Mormon ministry in these respects, and we most heartily bid them God-speed in searching their way back to the original and eternal principles laid in the very foundations of the great latter day work; and we hope this may continue till they shall help build on the "one foundation," just as the Infinite God has ordained in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Nauvoo edition of the Doctrine and Covenants. Yes; "progress is the law of the universe;" but that can only be accomplished in the line of God's appointed word, and by divinely authorized means and methods.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Hope not the cure of sin till self is dead;
Forget it in love's service, and the debt
Thou canst not pay the angels shall forget."

IS IT LAWFUL?

WE are pleased to be able to present our readers with a letter from Bishop Blakeslee, in reply to one written by us some time ago, asking him if in the judgment of the Bishopric there was any conflict between the Home Column Missionary Fund and the law of tithing. Such a thought never would have originated in our own mind, but we came to know that it was the candid opinion of some of our best friends that there was such a conflict, and for this reason we applied to the Bishop, that if such was the case we might retrace our steps before the evil should spread, and a false precedent be given to the church.

We embrace this opportunity to reiterate what we have before said, that so far from soliciting offerings from those who have not paid their tithing, we solicit that none such may be sent. It is not God who is needing our money, and shame be to that man or woman who can for one moment entertain such a thought. It is we who are every moment of our lives dependent upon God for every blessing "which he has given us so richly to enjoy." Let us ask ourselves and question with our neighbors and endeavor to find out if there is one sin among the catalogue of those committed by fallen humanity which is looked upon with greater abhorrence than the sin of ingratitude. If there is, we confess our ignorance of it. If the heart is consecrated to God, the will held in perfect subjection to his will; if we understand that the greatest favor God can bestow upon us is in suffering us to serve him, then will our tithes and our offerings be acceptable to him; but if they are not consecrated—if by them we expect to purchase favor with God, let us learn from the Master that having done all, we are unprofitable servants still, for salvation is not to be purchased by us. It cost the life-blood of the only begotten Son of God, and as Peter said, "Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money."

Can the love of God dwell in our hearts and we be in no measure moved by the same Spirit which led God to give his son to redeem us? We answer it can not, and still further, the word assures us that if we have not the Spirit of Christ we are none of his. If we love God, if we love his work, we will love our fellow beings, and this love will constrain us to seek their salvation. "How can they believe in him of whom they have not heard, and how can they hear without a preacher, and how can he preach except he be sent?"

Now this question of sending presents itself to us in two lights. He must not only have authority to preach, but if he have a family and no way of supporting them while he is away, he is not responsible for not going unless they are supported. "He that provides not for his own household has denied the faith and is worse than an infidel." But it occurs to us, if God has called such an one to preach, and it is in our power to do the providing, and we fail to do so, then are we the responsible party, and will at last discover "It is in vain that ye say unto me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I command you."

We are happy to state that we already have over $300, and hope during March to add yet a hundred more. The day for those who love the work of the Lord, to be at ease in Zion has passed. The leaven of the gospel restored by the angel is working, and to-day it is as a mighty lever uplifting and overthrowing the creeds and doctrines of men to such an extent as seems almost impossible to believe. Let us then neither turn back nor falter; but let each week, at the report goes out, show an increase over the one which went before it, and let our prayers of faith go hand in hand with our works. It has been very gratifying to us that so many of the sisters of Lamoni have responded; but still there are many whose birth-day we are waiting for, and hope they have not forgotten it.

A letter has come back to us from Mrs. S. A. Ward, 57 East 2d South St., Salt Lake, Utah. Will sister Ward please tell us where to address her.—Ed.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister E. A. Roberts writes from Deer Creek, Nebraska: "I wish to ask the prayers of the sisters, that I may have patience, and the influence of God's Spirit to enable me to so guide and teach my three little boys that they will grow up obedient to the truth. I know that this gospel is the power of God unto salvation unto all who obey with honest hearts and continue faithful to the end. I am often cast down, but not forsaken, for I never fail to find a friend, when I go to my heavenly Father. My husband has not yet obeyed, and I ask your prayers that God would enlighten his mind. We have good meetings in our branch."

[Dear sister, honor your heavenly Father by yielding obedience to all of his requirements, and be sure he will honor you in return. The law requires you to so instruct your children that they shall be fit subjects for baptism at eight years of age, at which time it becomes your duty (if your husband does not object) to have them baptized. Gather them into the fold and watch over and feed them when there.—Ed.]

Sister E. Cornish writes from St. Thomas, Ontario: "I am rejoiced to see so many sisters responding to the call for rolling on the work of God. It is the desire of my heart to see the work roll forth, and I am striving to overcome self. This is the battle that I have to renew day by day. To be patient with my children and show them the way by walking in it and going before them."

Sister Ann Sherman writes from Silver Lake, Minnesota: "I feel it a duty as well as a pleasure to tell the sisters how much comfort and good the Column has brought to me. I am left alone with the entire care of six children, and I know that without the help of God I shall never be able to bring them up as I wish to. I want them to be a help to the cause of God. My husband was taken from me very suddenly. He went to his work after dinner and before night was brought home a corpse. In my first hours of grief and agony the only sustaining power seemed to come through my sense of duty to my helpless family. To live for them and set a worthy example before them from day to day is the desire I present to God daily. Remember me in your prayers.

LAMONI, Iowa, March 9th, 1887.

GALIEN, Mich., Feb. 24th.

Sr. M. Walker:—Your favor touching an opinion as to the propriety and lawfulness of the "Home Column Missionary Fund" came duly to hand, but circumstances of pressing business and advising with my counsel have been such that the reply was necessarily delayed.

For this I trust you will pardon. I judged from the beginning you were not likely to do any harm by your efforts, and therefore could move slowly. The law of Christ fairly contemplates that much good towards sustaining the gospel and building up of his work may be done by extra and voluntary work and gifts by his people other than that of the tithe-offerings spoken of in the law. This we tried to show in the article of the Bishopric, published March 1st, 1884. Your efforts to instigate to active duty the Saints in trying to make superior efforts to aid the missionary force are certainly, to my mind, praiseworthy.

Just why we should think that because he has paid a free-will offering of a tithe, that nothing more can be done of merit in the way of giving, is singular indeed. The tithe after all is but a feeble acknowledgment to the Lord on our part of all his mercies toward us when we think of it correctly. It is, however, a part of his law (and all of his laws are declared to be spiritual) and should first be complied with by every one of the Saints as they would the law of faith, repentance, baptism, &c.

After that, "let us go on to perfection"—doing all the good and putting on all the graces of the Christian life that is possible for us to do; and be assured if we do these things, or comply with the law relating to spiritual or temporal things gradually, God will not reward us for such work. True it is a little hard if one has never paid tithes to begin and take the step; but this is a foot-print evidencing the divinity of the law rather than otherwise. For one, sprinkled in infancy and tutored in the Pede-baptist belief, it is a terrible big step for him to realize the fact that the law of immersion should be complied with, nevertheless it should; and so with the law relating to tithing and offering. It is absolutely necessary that it be fulfilled. Hence, God could so wisely say in the revelation "as a means of fulfilling the law." Neither can one think that he will do so much in aiding here and there, either to the ministry, in charitable objects, or the poor, that he is exempt from the law. If it is God's law we can not get around it by doing something else that may occur to us as preferable. All are bound by it one way or the other, and our Heavenly Father will be pleased when we shall have complied in letter and Spirit. But let the Home Missionary Fund roll up. It has a fitting reflex in the extra voluntary labor that was done by many of Israel in the rebuilding of Jerusalem and the temple—they did their portion and aided in others; for this they were specially blessed of the Lord. But first, remember, they performed the part allotted them. Why is not this part of the work done by Israel a type, as well as others, since we hear so much about types and shadows?

"Let us bring our tithes into the [Lord's] store house."—Bible. Let us remember that the law of tithing was to be executed—administered—carried out—fulfilled.—Doc. Cov.

And all who can, let them aid the "Home Missionary Fund" for the harvest is great and the laborers are few—and the Lord bless all the faithful of his people in all good works especially, in his hope and prayer.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Bishop.

Sister Frances:—I read a testimony in the Herald a few months ago concerning the spirit being absent from the body. The following is my testimony on the same subject. It was something over twenty-three years ago, but I well remember how very lonely I was. It was nothing new though, I was almost always lonely in those days when my husband followed the sea, (except when I was with him), but this day, and especially when night came on, I felt unusually depressed. The woman who lived in the other part of the house, a captain's wife, also, and companion in loneliness—had gone away for a few days and taken her two little girls with her. There was a death-like stillness in the house after I had put my little boy to bed in his crib, and sat rocking my babe while my thoughts were far over the sea. The evening hours hung heavily upon me; no one with whom to exchange a word. How I longed for my husband's society. His ship was then in Glasgow, but it would be long ere he would be home again. Becoming more dimly lonesome every hour, I took my little babe and went to bed to seek forgetfulness in sleep. But sleep seemed to have left me also, for I lay hour after hour, thinking, thinking. The clock that kept up its unwearied tick, tick, had struck eleven a long time ago; it must soon strike twelve now. Would I ever get asleep? Did I sleep? I don't know, but what followed was as real to me as any reality ever was. I was within a few steps of the end of the dock in Glasgow, at which my husband's vessel lay, going towards her. The night was thick and dark; but the lights that gleamed forth from the tall lamp-posts were sufficient to discern every object about the dock. Every thing was quiet. The policeman was on his beat, back and forth along the dock, where he could over-look the decks of the ships; and as I crossed it I passed immediately in front of him, and wondered, as I did so, that he did not take any notice of me. I stepped from the dock down on the ship's rail and down on deck, as easily as if they had been steps of a foot high, instead of four or five feet, and passed across the deck to the cabin. While thus passing, more quickly than an ordinary walk, and as noiseless as a shadow, I saw every thing about the deck as plain as I ever did. Every thing was snuggled away, and the ship's watchman was standing on the fore-castle-deck. I passed down the companion-way and through the cabin. How home-like it all looked. I had been with my husband the two voyages before, and that room had been my home for over a year. The cabin lamp that burns all night, whether at sea or in port, lighted up the cabin. The sharp click, clack of the patent lever, and the peculiar smell of a ship cabin, were all familiar to me, and I smiled as I passed along, noting how every thing was just as when I left. The door of the captain's room was open and fastened back with a hook to the wall, a small lamp was burning in his room; he was asleep with his face towards me, as I stood in front of the bed. What a feast for my eyes, to look upon that face, even if it was unconscious of my presence! I stood looking at him for a few seconds, and was about to stoop and kiss him, when I heard a rap, and knew it was on my bedroom window in Hantsport, on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean; and knew too that I had to go back and answer it, and thought to myself, That is too bad, just as I have got here; but I had no choice in the matter, go I must. Still I lingered a few seconds, looking at him; the rap was repeated. I turned and passed swiftly through the cabin, across the deck, stepped up on the rail and on the dock, and through the door into my bedroom.

Just as I merged through the door or doorway, I know not which, I stood for a moment. Immediately in front of me was the window, and I saw the dark, bushy face of a man almost pressed against the window glass. I saw too, my little boy asleep in his crib, and the little three months' babe—how pure and innocent it looked—sleeping on the arm of that clumsy, logy-looking mass that I knew was me, or that I had to put on and make it answer the call, and I dreaded taking up the cumbersome weight again.

All this took but a moment, when the rap, rap, rap, came again on the window, accompanied with the words, Is there anybody living here? I saw the man's hand when he gave the first rap, and was conscious of making a hasty motion towards the bed, and as soon as the words were out of his mouth I sat up in bed bodily and answered very impatiently: "Who are you, and what do you want?" At any other time I might have been frightened, for both the voice and the heavily bearded face were strange to me; but as it was, I was simply annoyed. There was no need however to have been afraid, for the man only wanted to get into the other part of the house, to land some flour which he had brought from a distance. While rolling the barrel of flour in, he asked what time in the night it was. I looked: it was a few minutes after twelve. "Is it possible it is so late?" he said, while I was thinking, Can it be possible it is no later. I was in hopes it was near daylight.

SISTER EMMA.

FORSTER, Jan. 18th, 1887.

PERSIA, Iowa, March 4th,

Sister Frances.—Please find enclosed eighty cents for Emeline Hall. Her birthday would be the first of May, but she has gone to rest in the Paradise of God before she lived to see her eighteenth birthday. I found the money in her purse, and will send it for her. We miss our mother very much, but feel our loss is her gain. We pray God you may have strength and wisdom as your day.

EMMA HALL.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." There is no place left us for tears or grief, when the righteous sink to rest, but a world of meaning in the words "Let me die the death of the righteous." Death is reserved for each one of us, and I for one feel to thank God that it is so. I could not desire immortality except it was beyond the power of sin. Sisters, let us each one strive to live the life of the righteous that our death may be like theirs.—ED.

Correspondence.

LAMONI, Ia., March 6th.

Dear Saints.—During the session of General Conference at this place last spring, it was suggested to us that the church needed a publication for our young people, which should be intermediate between the Herald and Hope. This suggestion came from more than one elder actively engaged in the work, and men whose judgment the church respects. Again the plea was often presented when we were trying to enlarge the Hope, and letters to this effect were published in the "Home Column," until we are constrained to believe the want is a wide-felt and almost an imperative one.

Under a pressure of feelings such as these, when the "Board of Publication" met at this place on the 10th of January, 1887, we laid the matter before them in the form of a proposition, that we ourselves would edit such a periodical, assuming all financial responsibility, provided it met their approval. The answer was favorable, and having taken time to consider the matter, we now present it to you. If indeed this want is felt, the church is abundantly able to supply it to themselves, and we are willing to devote our time to it. That we can not do this without obtaining a support from it, will be evident to all when we tell them that at least one half of our time is now given to church work, (which we do not propose to relinquish), and the other half is given to just such cares as Martha complained of, and which for the sake of the church we are willing to lay down.

Fifteen hundred subscribers at $1.25 a year would (we think) enable us to send into your homes a monthly magazine devoted entirely to home interest, and filled with the best matter money could obtain, or the wisdom of our own people furnish for the mothers and children of Zion. We have now hundreds of choice selections of reading matter on file, which we can never hope to find room for in our church papers, and yet they are upon subjects which deeply interest every one striving to be a Saint.

There is not to our knowledge a single magazine published for the young which has not its objectionable features, and all will admit there is not one published for the upbuilding of Zion's cause. These objectionable features it would be our constant aim to exclude and to devote the work to the moral, mental, and physical good of the youth. To mothers and children it would be devoted, for to no higher aim than this do we ever wish to aspire, and while it would embrace much which the space in Herald and Hope excludes, we would trust to keep its pages free from everything which our children having learned in the world, must unlearn before they are fit subjects for the kingdom of God.

Having said thus much, we rest the matter with you. That such a publication is needed, we believe; but if the church is not prepared to support it, we have no claim to urge, and unless the due time of the Lord has come for it we would rather have nothing to do with it. One thing is morally certain, the church is in duty bound to support the Herald and Hope, so that if they can not do both the question is settled at once. There is yet another light in which this presents itself, however. Can they conscientiously support the expensive publications of our enemies, while they withhold support from our own? We do not use the term "enemy" unadvisedly, for we want to tell you that out of the many applications made to publishers for an exchange on Herald and Hope, we have met with but one favorable response, although our husband upon the Lamoni Gazette was able to get from ten to twenty exchanges each week. Indeed nothing seemed necessary to bring them in but to make the request. Neither do we say this to prejudice the mind of any one, for it is prejudice of which we ourselves are complaining, and we would not wish to "condemn ourselves in that which we allow." The religion of Christ is above all prejudice; but while it does good unto all men, there is an especial provision for the "household of faith."

If the elders—if the sisters of the church—want this publication, they have but to work for it. We believe that in every branch of the church the Home Column has more than one friend sufficiently interested to see how many will subscribe for one year. We do not want any money now, only names. Neither do we propose to start it immediately, but if sufficient encouragement is given to be ready to issue the first number by next October or November. There are two poor pay-masters, they say. One pays beforehand, the other never pays. We do not propose to give you the worth of your money in promises which we might never redeem. If you subscribe one year and do not get the worth of your money, do not subscribe again, and surely no one can say the test would be an expensive one. Upon one point we wish to be very distinctly understood. Our enlistment upon the Home Column is for life, subject to the approval of the call under which we enlisted; upon the Hope it is as long as the Board of Publication approves of and desires our services and our strength holds out, and we would not accept a dollar (if we knew it) in aid of any other publication which should be withdrawn from either of these, or from the Home Column Missionary Fund; but if we had the power to persuade every father and mother who subscribes to publications outside of the church, to give them up in favor of one published in the church, we would persuade them.

Bro. Blair:—I attended our conference last week at Galland's Grove, and it was one of the very best I ever attended. I returned home refreshed, and encouraged in the work. As regards the Herald and its management, I think it could not be bettered, for when the epistle of David Whitmer appeared, I was afraid the Herald would make no reply, thinking as many do, that we had better pay no attention to it owing to the respect we have for the aged brother. But if you had adopted that course it would have been a tacit acknowledgment that what he set forth was unanswerable. The Reorganization could not afford to submit to that. And now as the replies have come and are coming, they are splendid, going to the very bottom for the plain facts. This thing had to be met some time, and if this is the time, I am glad that we have men conducting the editorial department of the Herald who are not afraid to publish the truths as they appear in the history of the church. If the Reorganization has any weak places in its make-up, or in its doctrine, we want to know it. And my prayer to God is that the sifting time may come, and that we may meet it like men of God, standing upon the platform of God's truth received through his servants for our guidance and observance. I think it would have been very poor policy for those having charge of this matter, through any feelings of delicacy or respect, to have laid off their armor while error and dissension were being sown in our midst. In a late Herald appears an article, "Let every one learn their own duty." This meets my views to a fraction. The time has come that we must respect every man in his office and calling—"respect the office at least"—and if we happen to think the Lord has made a mistake in the calling of some one, if we will only do our duty, in our places, we may change our mind by and by, and think the Lord was right and we wrong.

Praying for the spread of truth, I am yours,
J. W. CHATBURN.

DEER LODGE, Mont., Feb 19th.

Bro. Joseph & Blair:—I have had great cause of late to rejoice in the latter day work. I used to almost fear and tremble when I heard of men leaving the church, lest they should turn to fighting against the work; not but what I knew God was able to take care of his own and would bring them off victorious eventually; but I felt that every assault by the enemy retarded a little, and every deserter from the ranks had a tendency to weaken. But, thank God, the old ship Zion has been sailing proudly on, gathering strength by the way, until she has become proof against the fiery darts of the enemy.

It is said in history that the Mamelukes in Egypt had such an antipathy against the great Sphinx that its face was a continual target for their spears and arrows for centuries, but the remains of the Paraohs still survive. So may the enemies of Christ's church oppose; and with accumulating strength she will march forward until she fills the whole earth; and the attacks made upon her will eventuate in just about as much injury to her as the Mamelukes' spear did to the Sphinx.

There is no true Saint but regrets the controversy between the Herald and father Whitmer; but the church's dignity must be sustained; and while the car of salvation is moving forward, let every one look out for his toes. In Herald for February 12th, current volume, article "Weighed in the Balance," and "The Gurley Movement," should convince any one that it is vain to oppose the work now—it has become too strong. The watchmen are too wise, and whenever an enemy rises up he will "meet a foeman worthy of his steel."

It is an easy thing to preach the gospel when aided by the Spirit of truth; but when men are actuated by selfish motives, and trying to build themselves up over some others' downfall, the cloven foot will out. "No weapon that is formed against you shall prosper," has been verified in every instance from the beginning of the Reorganization to the present time, and I feel assured as long as the Saints are true to their trust it will continue. My faith is being confirmed day by day. I have not seen a Herald for over a year but the single copy was worth more than a year's subscription costs. I baptized another young man to-day, and more are coming.

Yours for truth,

J. C. CLAPP.

MORRISTON, Wales, Feb. 18th.

Bro. Joseph:—I am busy in the cause of our Redeemer, in and around the branches in Wales, having good liberty in declaring the word. This part of the vineyard is suffering pitifully for laborers. When will the want be supplied?

In Christ,

JOHN D JONES.

OSCCDA, Mich., March 2d.

Bro. Joseph:—I know that the Latter Day Saints must be right in belief; and if they are not right how came they by such power; for I am sure that there is no power in the earth like this. It was caught up to God and to his throne, and remained there until God the Eternal Father sent it back, by his angel to Joseph Smith. When the angel came with this gospel it was to be preached to them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, kindred, tongue and people: saying with a loud voice, fear God and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come, and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea and the fountains of waters." By this we know that the right gospel was not among the children of men. O may we be guided by this great power. May God help the young Saints, and lead them into all truth, and grant unto us his Holy Spirit to guide us aright. With all my heart I endorse Bro. M. T. Short's letter in Herald for the 12th in regard to the deeds of the body, such as using tobacco, tea and coffee. For my part I handle tea and coffee every day in my cook kitchen and don't use any of it. Cold water is good enough for me.

I am sorry for those who have left the church. A long time has elapsed since this gospel light has been preached in the world, and it seems strange to me that there have been no elders of this race raised up as yet. Of those who have been ordained to offices, the highest is a priest. My desire is to do the will of God and to do the work that he designed for me to do. We appear to be alone in this work; outside of my wife and self I do not know of but one colored Saint in Michigan, and that is sister Luons, at Detroit. I know four or five in Canada, what you might call half-way Saints. I think this gospel of the kingdom should be preached to our race. Peter says that God has no respect of persons. I pray that you will have a good time at General Conference, at Kirtland. Pray for me and wife for we are alone here. We may leave here the first of April. I hope in the very near future that I will be able to go out again in the field, and do all I can to build up the Lord's work.

Yours in bonds,

Priest, GEO. H. GRAVES.

CLINTON, February 14th.

Bro. Joseph:—I have been reading the eighteenth chapter of Isaiah, and I find that the description of the land there given agrees with the land which I have been traveling over; and I feel impressed to write to you on the subject. I have been exploring the mounds in Arkansas. I find the discoveries agree with Isaiah's writings. That land is a forest from Poplar Bluff, and sunk lands through to the Gulf of Mexico, and is covered with many mounds. I was on St. Francis river and on the Langee river. There are a few farms along the Langee river, and many mounds which I shall speak of. They look for an overflow every spring, but it does not come always, but when they do have an overflow they raise a crop of cotton after the flow. Those mounds are about eleven or twelve feet in height; the water rose about four feet above the mounds in the year 1884. The everflow extends back forty or fifty miles from the Mississippi, from Poplar Bluff to the lower part of Arkansas. This overflow comes from the Ohio and the Upper Mississippi. Those mounds have sycamore trees on them; one tree which had been dead a long time was cut down, and it measured five feet at the butt, and the grains counted fifteen hundred years. In the mound under this tree I found a pitcher, with flowers painted on it, a jug, and a square stone box, sealed up, filled with parched corn. There are many human bones, which show that they were a large race of people; the bones in the mound that I opened measured eight feet from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot, and the bones were as white as milk.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

I. N. WILSON.

To this letter we append the following:

A DISCOVERY IN DAKOTA.

St. Paul (Minnesota) dispatch: Parties from the Dakota bad lands arrived in St. Paul yesterday with the bodies of five mummies which were discovered in a cave in that section. Wm. Allen, of Buffalo Gap, D. T., started out on a prospecting tour last fall. He began to sink a shaft and had gotten down about twenty-five feet when he discovered a cave or cavern about twenty feet square, which had once opened on the side of the mountain. When his eyes became accustomed to the darkness he was horrified to see, huddled together in one corner of the cave, the bodies of five persons, supposed to have been Anglo-Saxons. The bodies were those of a man, woman and three children. They were shriveled up to less than half the size of ordinary human beings. The flesh on the bones was as hard as that of mummies. The hair was still on the heads and the finger nails were perfect and very long. When the bodies were brought to the surface, the hair fell off, but in every other respect the bodies had not been affected by the atmosphere.

The theory of Allen and his companion is that these persons took refuge in the cave years ago and that a land slide or flow of lava from the mountain hermetically sealed its mouth, leaving the prisoners to die horribly of starvation.

Col. J. H. Wood of this city, has received the bodies of the five persons taken from a cave in the bad lands of Dakota, by a miner who was searching for gold. The bodies are dried up, not petrified, and are in a remarkable state of preservation. Scientific men who have seen them say they belong to a race that existed 2,000 years ago. The withered collection will be sent to the Smithsonian Institute at Washington.

HIGHMORE, Dak., March 4th.

Editors Herald:—We are just emerging out of one of the severest winters I have ever experienced. We hail the approach of spring with joy. The weather has been so bad that we have not been able to meet much this winter; but as spring is approaching and people can get around, I mean to do what I can in showing the people the way of life and peace. This field needs some one that can devote all his time to preaching the word; every one seems to be so poor that it takes all their time to get the necessaries of life; and there is nothing strange about it when we come to consider that the country has never raised a crop.

I am a little surprised at the course David Whitmer and others are pursuing; it will certainly have a tendency to weaken his testimony concerning the Book of Mormon with those who are weak in the faith, and the world, and will cause them to look upon it with doubt and suspicion. As far as I am individually concerned, it would make no difference if David Whitmer even denied the Book of Mormon; this work is of God just the same, and when I say this I know what I am talking about. The work that Joseph the Martyr introduced was God's work, and it makes no difference what mistakes he may have made; he will account to God for them, it will not, can not affect his work one particle. The course that David Whitmer and others are pursuing only proves to us how little dependence there is to be put in man, and the truth of the words, "Cursed is he that putteth his trust in man and maketh flesh his arm;" still I feel confident everything is working for the good of those who love God and keep his commandments. He who rules the destinies of nations will guide the ship so that she will not be wrecked upon the rocks. Yes, there is a good time ahead. I look for the church ere long to enter upon the brightest and most prosperous period it has seen since its establishment. With a fervent prayer for the weak and wayfaring, and all the faithful in Christ, I am

Yours for truth,

Brn. Joseph and Blair:—It has been well said that "Words fitly spoken are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." I do not wish to be precipitous in reporting progress to the Herald, nor would I withhold any good thing. Our quiet village is quite astir at present, and we are admonished, advised, comforted and strengthened by the timely and effectual labors of brother J. F. McDowell. I have not witnessed so good an interest in this town hitherto. The services began February 27th, and have continued with increasing interest until now. Yesterday two were baptized, one a young man, the other a married lady, and we have reasons to believe they will honor the church and the Christian profession. May the Lord help them so to do. Special prayer service was held each afternoon of last week, and the Lord met with us truly.

Thoughts of love I ne'er can tell—
Holy fires within me dwell,
As in prayerful reverie,
Lord I cast my cares on thee.

Purge my soul, consume the dross;
Bring me nearer to the cross;
Let my hungering soul be fed—
Grant thy Spirit, this is bread.

Lord I love thee with my heart,
Mind, and strength. Do thou impart
Righteousness my soul to save,
Rescue me from sin's dark grave.

Other refuge have I none,
Thee I trust for grace alone;
Let this throbbing heart of mine
Beat in anthems praise divine.

Let my lips the story tell
Of thy wondrous power to heal,
Freedom bought, the victory won,
Jesus died for every one.

Sinner turn, Oh turn to-day,
Cease to while the hours away
Carelessly, nor think of God,
Wilt thou die in such a mood?

Plenteous "Balm in Gilead" now;
Incline thine ear, in reverence bow
To God and Christ; in these thou'lt find
The blessing of a peaceful mind.

Yes, we are encouraged in the work. When in the South last summer, I often felt moved upon to plead for the people of this place and vicinity. God is in the work, and may it continue until many hearts are awakened to a lively conception of their eternal interests. Brother McDowell will stay during the present week at least.

In bonds of peace,

GEO. S. HYDE.

42 York St., Cheetham, MANCHESTER,
February 17th.

Dear Herald:—You are a very welcome visitor and I look forward to your appearance with feelings akin to those with which I would receive an honored and esteemed guest. I have a lively remembrance of the spiritual advantage received from your words of counsel and advice in the past, and look forward to your coming with expectation of further blessing derivable from the careful perusal of your pages. I am often blessed and comforted by the inspiration with which you seem to understand my needs, providing me—as you always do—with that seasonable spiritual food necessary for my requirements. True, I sometimes regret to see those fault finding epistles that occasionally find their way into your columns, because I feel assured that whatever may be written by your able and esteemed Editor, and assistant Editor, or by others of much less note, it is written with a desire to contribute to the commonweal and advancement of the church.

I do not object to honest difference of opinion that arises through inability to see eye to eye, but to the spirit of strong personality in which those differences are sometimes expressed; for I do not think that difference of opinion will justify any one in casting doubt upon the sincerity and honesty of others. Mistakes may be made, but to charge with wilful perversion of facts is quite another matter altogether. We have quite enough to contend with from without the church, without being misinterpreted and traduced by those from within.

Our attention may very properly be directed to the minimizing rather than the accentuating of our differences, if there be any. We want to have confidence in each other, and in the ultimate triumph of our God-given work. Our progress is dependent upon our unity; and unity, if it is to be continuous, must be built upon a basis of mutual confidence in the cause and in those who represent it, and the framework of such confidence must be charity, the charity that "suffereth long, and is kind, envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, is not easily provoked." If the whole membership of the church would direct their energies to this end, each man and woman laboring faithfully in his calling, there would be neither time, nor disposition, to charge unworthy motive upon our fellow-laborers. But dear Herald, we are only human after all, and it may be beneficial to ourselves to see ourselves as others see us, and peradventure some of our faults being thus disclosed to us, may be repented of and remedied and our future fruits be more meet for our Father's kingdom. Yet I must confess that I have very little, if any sympathy with those who are frequently at issue with the rulings of the church, or of those whom the church has authorized to speak in her name; because such a course if persisted in, will inevitably lead to faction and disunion, and consequent loss of spiritual prestige. The church must be held supreme in spiritual matters, so long as her decrees are in harmony with the law by which she is authorized to govern. To theoretically acknowledge her authority, and in practice resist her decrees, is hardly consistent with the law given. For we are "not only to say but to do according to the things which are written." Free lances may be servicable in Guerilla warfare, but not when hostile forces are face to face with each other. Then it must be shoulder to shoulder; standing to attention awaiting the word of command from the properly authorized officers.

Dear Herald, with the exception of a few who are (spiritually) sick, and in hospital, our contingent of the Lord's army are indeed shoulder to shoulder in the warfare against sin, and we have confidence in our commanders, whether general, mission, district, or local. Much has already been accomplished, and with the blessing of God, we are looking forward to still greater conquests before the final victory.

I had the pleasure of meeting with the Saints of the Sheffield branch on the 4th and 5th of December last, and assisting the president of the mission, Elder Thomas Taylor, in the opening services in connection with the new meeting house. We had a most excellent time, and were pleased, blest, and encouraged by the evidences of progress that we met with upon every hand.

"Blessed people, pure religion;
God-like, priceless, simple, free,
Loved, or held up in derision,
'Twill be truth, eternally."

Saints and friends seemed to labor in behalf of the work with a self-abnegation and zeal that are worthy of the highest commendation. Elder John Austin, the worthy president of the branch, and his faithful coadjutors, one and all, are entitled to the highest praise for the efficient and unselfish manner in which they have labored for the advancement of the work in Sheffield. The new meeting house is large and commodious, well furnished, and most advantageously situated in one of the main thoroughfares of the town, in the center of a densely populated district of working people, many of whom I believe are already in sympathy with our divine work, and I look forward for much increase in the due time of the Master.

On the 29th and 30th of last month I visited the Leeds branch, and took part in the confirming of three members who had been baptized. I felt much pleased with the spirit manifested, and commend the work done in this part of the district. Owing to sickness the president of the branch—Elder Joseph Naylor—was unable to be present, but his place was efficiently filled by the priest of the branch, Bro. Thomas Roberts, and Elder Seekins. The brethren and sisters here, though young in the church and inexperienced in the law, are both energetic and assiduous in their labors in behalf of the church, and are sincere and self-sacrificing, bearing a faithful testimony of the truth of the latter day work; speaking generally they are men and women of pure and simple faith, leading upright lives, and thus bring others into sympathy with the gospel. The power of God confirms the work done amongst them, the signs following the believers. One lady (Mrs. Roberts), who is not yet a member of the church, desires me to make known to the readers of the Herald how God has blessed the ministrations of his servants in her behalf, and in the behalf of a dear daughter who had been grievously afflicted, and who through God's blessing, has been along with herself, restored to health and strength. She wishes this to be stated publicly, and also her joyful recognition of the restored gospel of Jesus Christ, now taught by our church.

Wigan and Farnworth branches are on the whole improving. The Saints in both places have had much to contend with, but through it all they have endured faithfully. Farnworth in particular has had much to discourage. But I believe that Elder Joseph Ramsey, the president of that branch, has faithfully and fearlessly discharged his duty, comforting and strengthening those over whom he has had the oversight. May the grace of God attend him in his ministrations and give him joy in his labors.

The Wigan brethren are much scattered. The president, Elder James Spargo, has been in the county of Durham for some time past; but the Saints are looking forward to the time when he may return, and resume his much appreciated labor among them. The branch is in the temporary charge of Priest Thomas Spargo, who is assisted by Priest Joseph Laycock, and Elder William Spargo; the latter however, resides some five or six miles away, but when opportunity serves he is found with the Saints consoling and comforting them in their somewhat isolated position.

The Manchester branch, in charge of Elder James Baty, is making fair progress, both numerically and spiritually. Many of the district officers reside within the limits of this branch, and are laboring faithfully under the superintendence of the presidency, with a marked degree of success. Many friends appear to be in sympathy with the work, and we hope that ere long we shall have them fully identified with us.

The district may be reported as in good spiritual condition. The fellowship meetings in the different branches are approaching nearer to that spiritual condition so faithfully portrayed by "J. J. S." in No. 4 of your current volume, and the true Saints are becoming more alive to the possibilities of what may be accomplished through those who like Elder Cope of "Cardiff" can say, "I believe in the Holy Ghost." Yes, it is above all price, and we are looking forward to the time when in every town and village, throughout this fair land of ours, the purity of our faith will be acknowledged, and the honest and true among men and women become identified therewith, having recognized the fact that God is not discernible to worldly learning and wisdom; but in obedience to his gracious commands only can his personality be recognized, and then alike to rich or poor, bond or free.

In joyful recognition of this blessing, I remain yours for the truth as taught by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, SEN.,

President of the Manchester District.

SOUTH GARDNER, MAINE.

Dear Herald:—I am lending Heralds and the Voice of Warning, trying to sow the good seed, that the name of Jesus may be preached, his name be glorified, and sinners converted to Christ in its entirety and beauty, as it is in the gospel plan. For other foundation can no man lay. Truth is eternal, like the sun in its splendor. You are a welcome visitor, with the sweet sound of the gospel. It is like fire in our bones. I am the only Latter Day Saint in this place. Had the privilege of preaching the 27th of February, Sunday afternoon and evening, to a large and intelligent audience of about a hundred listeners, on the gospel of the kingdom. Had good liberty. Shall try and get some of the elders here in spring. Would like to have Bro. F. M. Sheehy make us a visit; come along Bro. Frank, and help me. I ask the prayers of all, that I may earnestly contend for the faith once delivered to the Saints.

Yours in bonds,

J. BENNER.

LIMERICK, OHIO, March 1st.

Dear Herald:—Since last April conference I have not been in the field all the time, but have gone about as much as I could under the circumstances. Visited and labored in Clarksburg, W. Va., baptized one there; calling for a time with the Cabin Run branch, as I returned to Ohio, where I baptized two. Came on to our district conference in Vinton county, Ohio, September and 12th, at which place I was permitted to baptize three more. There the obligations of a Seventy was laid upon me by Bro. W. H. Kelley. Since then have done some preaching in Jackson, Pike and Highland counties. At the last named place Bro. T. J. Beatty accompanied me; we began labor there January 16th, held some thirty meetings, and though "the gospel" had never been preached there before, there were thirty-three baptized, and six others gave their names for baptism when we return. We organized them into a branch, to be known as the "Highland" branch. Bro. Jas. C. West, presiding teacher, Bro. Jacob Irons, presiding deacon, Bro. Daniel E. Skeen, clerk.

Many others are almost persuaded to unite with us. While presenting the word to them I felt that surely the time had come when the Lord would hasten his work. We were favored with excellent liberty (for boys in the work), which was very encouraging to us. Many more calls were made upon us than we could fill, and there is work in this district for a dozen diligent elders. We need a visit from the Bishops to impart the necessary instruction, that our district may become self-sustaining. We will continue to petition the Bishops to visit us. May the Lord speed the day of Zion's redemption. Let us all work to this end. Yours in hope of eternal life,

L. R. DEVORE.

CLINTON, MO., Feb. 27th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Our town is teeming with wonderful excitement. A number of the churches have united in holding a protracted effort of about eight or nine weeks; in which so much brain excitement has occurred that doctors, lawyers, merchants and mechanics have succumbed. One peculiar feature of the matter is to hear lawyers whistling, "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand," while on the streets, and at the same time looking for a job to prosecute some poor fellow. Well; if any reform can be made on some of the "hard cases" in this place, may God speed the work. We have made two or three well advertised efforts here, but not with as much success as we hoped for. We have loaned from fifteen to twenty-five Voice of Warning, and a hundred tracts or more. We think much prejudice has been overcome. We have a number of our neighbors now reading the Book of Mormon, Herald and Voice of Warning, and they seem to be very favorable to the work. We feel so lonely here almost by ourselves, not enough to hold regular meetings. I would starve to death on sectarianism, if that was all I had to feast on. Some parts of it are good, but the greater part "pomp and show," and I would not miss it far if I said "dishonesty." Let a man deal with it face to face as I have for the last ten years, and he will think the same.

We think Henry county, and Clinton (our county seat) presents some fine openings for the Saints in the way of farming lands, and homes. We have had a fine winter, roads dusty most all winter. Probably about three to four inches of snow has fallen. Quite a number have been plowing for the last two weeks; some have sown oats and planted potatoes and made garden. I got a letter from Independence the last week, stating that the snow and mud were about three inches deep; and not a drop of snow at this place. I think we have one of the best openings for a foundry in the State, a town of six thousand, and not a place to mold iron in forty miles; plenty of coal, wood, stone and water. If any of the Saints or friends wants any information, let them write me. Wishing success to the gospel work and those engaged therein, I remain your brother in Christ,

D. C. WHITE.

A gentleman was one day relating to a Quaker a tale of deep distress, and concluded by saying: "I could but feel for him." "Verily, friends," replied the Quaker, "thou didst right in that didst feel for thy neighbor; but didst thou feel in the right place—didst thou feel in thy pocket?"

THE KIRTLAND TEMPLE.

EDITORS HERALD—As the times nears for the meeting of the Annual Conference of the Saints I find that duty and business proportionately increases here at the place of gathering. We are moving along however with the hope that all things may be ready, and in the past few months have had little or no time for anything else. The progress of the work on the Temple is such that by an effort on the part of the Saints the repairs may be completed and the building fully ready for re-dedication at the convening of conference. Now there are many reasons for finishing this work, but I will offer but a few.

1. It is right that it should be done and the Lord has certainly blessed the efforts in this direction from the first. From the beginning, this building was not simply a church or a meeting house erected at the desire and wish of a local body of the Saints; but "the House of the Lord," built at and by his direction; and if so, it is none the less true now that it is the House of the Lord. And while others are hesitating, contending and refusing to move forward because of this or that supposed or real mistake of the past, the Reorganized Church should go directly forward to the accomplishment of the work outlined in the prophecies. There is no way in which the church can prove itself so fully and truly the church of God as for it to do the work of God.

In the re-statement of the children of Israel in the land of their inheritance it was just as essential that the Lord's House be rebuilt and furnished as those of the people. Men may not always see the spiritual and moral force in this, and yet it be true. We ought to be counseld by the lessons of the past, for it is for this very purpose that the lessons of olden time and holy writ are handed down to us. The prophet was directed to say to the people of the House of the Lord at Jerusalem as follows:

"Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your ceiled houses, and this house lie waste? Now therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts: Consider your ways. Ye have sown much, and bring in little; ye eat, but ye have not enough; ye drink but ye are not filled with drink; ye clothe you but there is none warm; and he that earneth wages earneth wages to put it into a bag with holes. Consider your ways. Go up to the mountain, and bring wood, and build the house; and I will take pleasure in it, and I will be glorified, saith the Lord."—Haggai 1: 4-9.

For one among the Saints I am fully satisfied that the Lord directed in the work of this house from the beginning; and while there is a question with some as to the realization at the time of the completion originally of the "promised blessings" there ought certainly to be unanimity of sentiment on the part of those who believe in and accept the revelations as of Divine origin, formerly given to the church in the fact, that if God at the first accepted this work at the hands of the Saints and did then specially favor and bless them as the history declares he will as fully do so again upon a like discharge of duty on our part. Such a realization and acceptance will outweigh in favor of the truth all the arguments it is possible to bring pro or con on the matter.

2. As a question of expediency the completion of the work is demanded. Hundreds and thousands from year to year visit this place to see the temple because of its historic prominence. Of these the great majority are those who know nothing of the faith but the misrepresentations made by our enemies. Coming here in this way they are in a frame of mind to listen to a statement of our faith and positions, and they are soon disarmed of their bitter prejudices, and are in a condition to properly criticise and examine the faith. This is as much as we can ask. A careful and candid examination of the faith will convince the judgment and then the result must depend upon the moral worth of the investigator; and upon this plane alone is true religion to be propagated. Take away this building and you can reach the minds of these people in no practical manner.

The past summer I proved by actual experience in comparing my opportunities in traveling in Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Iowa, with that afforded at the temple to meet with and talk the faith to strangers that I could do more by remaining in the place where the people would come to me, than by trying to go to them. Doubt as one may, speculate as some will as to supposed and fancied mistakes of the founder of the church, one thing is true, there was certainly none made in the erection of the temple, as the blaze of facts bursting upon us from week to week fully attest. The opportunities afforded by reason of this, for teaching the faith, placing the church fairly before the world and disarming the prejudice and perverted minds of the people toward us is not to be equalled by those of any twelve men we have in the ministerial field. To properly refit is to widen and extend this advantage; to reap under the advantages offered through the wisdom of our heavenly Father in furnishing the means to in a great part counteract the reproach brought on by those who have been evilly disposed.

3. The church has already been long enough at this work of repairs. Who does not know that there are other undertakings of great importance awaiting the Saints' action as soon as they shall have shown their power and disposition to perform? For one I am opposed to the idea of ever dragging along a work like this, as though performed reluctantly and doubtfully. Neither does it seem that God favored such a course. He speaks of being pleased when his people "go to work with all their might" to do a work,

How much this sounds unlike the policy of certain "factions" of the church which have managed to continually harrass the people for means without actually accomplishing anything.

The Temple was originally built by the Society when it had but five years' growth. The Reorganization is now more than five times five years old, and shall it be said we can not repair? It occurs forcibly to me that such a thought is but the result of the whisperings of the one who has ever opposed progress on the part of God's people in past ages—Satan is at the bottom of it.

4. Some three years ago the committee on repairs made and published to the Saints an estimate of the probable amount necessary to repair the Temple. Less than one-third of this amount has to this time come into the hands of the committee; and yet, by the special favor of our heavenly Father, the work has gone on despite the besetments of new and unthought of difficulties which the cunningness of Satan has dragged in the way from day to day, until now by one united, determined effort on the part of the Saints the work may be completed and the rededication made sure at the coming conference. The influence and importance of this to the work in every part of the land can hardly be over-estimated; shall we not be able to take this step forward?

I have outlined thus briefly a view of the situation, because in the absence of the Bishop I have been necessarily kept here, and being upon the scene am like the "man at the wheel," we have heard about of late—entitled to speak and let the Saints judge. If there are still "seven thousand reserved who have not bowed the knee to Baal," it seems the committee ought to hear without delay from one thousand of the number. In such an event the church will be far ahead as a society of any position it has before ever held.

The committee are Bishop Blakeslee, Galien, Michigan, and W. H. Kelley, Kirtland, Ohio. For the success of Christ's cause, I am in the faith, very hastily,

Yours,

E. L. KELLEY.

THE SABBATH, AS I SEE IT.

IN Herald of January 15th, Bro. T. W. V. of West Oakland, a stronghold of the Seventh-day friends, says: "Dear Herald; sometimes your articles tells me there was no Sabbath until Moses' time; others tell me the Sabbath has been ever since the creation independent of the by-laws through Moses. But you can't help it, being the willing servant of all." As this is in connection with his reference to Bro. T. W. Smith's article on tithing, wherein we read, "The sanctity of the Sabbath was not established by the law of Moses, but was established from the beginning of creation," he must refer to that article as one teaching the Sabbath from creation. See Herald for December 4th, and also my article in Herald of October 30th, where I endeavored to prove that there was no Sabbath sanctified until "Moses' time."

Now feeling assured that brother T. W. Smith will be as charitable as Paul where-in he says, "The head can not say to the feet, I have no need of you;" and as either my scriptural evidences were wrong, or at least insufficient to maintain my position, or the "situation" as he simply says he sees it, is erroneous, as an humble "foot" I must say, "as I see it" the head is somewhat in error this time. In public discussions of doctrine I have learned that mere assertion is poor logic; but that "the law and the testimony" should at least, in all cases, decide the issue; and to it I again appeal.

In Doctrine and Covenants 85:8; we read; "That which is governed by law, is also preserved by law, and perfected and sanctified by the same." Hence the Sabbath could not have been sanctified without law, and we have never met one person yet with sufficient erudition to have discovered that Sabbath law until Moses' time.

Again I appeal to the scriptures I presented in article of October 30th. I call brother "T. W. V's." attention to it particularly, for nothing but a sense of duty, and the fear that some might be troubled by the perhaps unthoughted assertion of Bro. Smith's, has induced me to refer to it. If any one can show from the scriptures that the position taken therein is wrong I will thank them, but I can take no man's simple opinion for it. For I can never forget how I received instruction in regard to it. In the fourth debate in southern Kansas upon this matter, (it was with one of Battle Creek's champions, Elder J. H. Cook), his strongest argument was that the Lord saying to Israel, "How long refuse ye to keep my commandments and my laws," (Ex. 16:28), was evidence positive that they had long before that time had the Sabbath law, but had refused to keep it. I could not shake him from it, I knew not how. The third evening, after retiring I could not sleep for studying, and praying God for wisdom and help, for his friends were exultant, and mine were troubled. After one o'clock I thought my bedfellow, a United Brethren minister, had spoken to me. I asked him what he had said, and discovered that he was asleep; but the answer came, which seemed to me then to be from a great distance, yet plain, low, and very distinct, penetrating to the very depths of my soul, giving me the history of the choosing of the paschal lamb, keeping it until the evening of the fourteenth, and all the events connected with and causing Israel to go out of Egypt on the seventh day of the week, (Ex. 12th chap.) Also telling me to read Ex. 15th and 16th chapters, where they had left their pleasant camping place by command of God on the seventh day, &c. When I presented these things the next evening they fell like a thunderbolt upon the friends of the Sabbath. Some time elapsed before anything else could be heard for the joyous outcries of the large crowd of first day friends, and my opponent seemed utterly dejected, and seemed to have given up the fight.

Indeed I think Bro. Smith wrote that entire article on tithing without giving it due consideration, but I would not refer to any thing else, only to show that we must not put our trust in man, Bro. Thomas, Bro. Joseph, or any one else; and that he, not seeing other things right, his vision might be somewhat defective also in regard to the sanctity of the Sabbath from creation. He says in regard to the law of tithing, that, "Being a law of the Lord it must be perfect, as saith the Psalmist, 'The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul, &c.'" Thank you, brother, say the Seventh-day friends, that's just what I say; "And God spake all these words," (the ten commandments), "And he wrote them upon two tables of stone," and they are the only laws that he ever honored so highly; and being God's laws they must be perfect, as "saith the Psalmist," &c. If Bro. Thomas is right, the Sabbath advocate is from the same parity of reasoning. But my perception is so obtuse that I can see nothing in either or all of them that can convert the soul. If the decalogue was perfect (finished, complete.—Webster) why should Jesus, sent to do the will of the Father, improve upon them so much? (see Matt. 5th), utterly disregard one of them? (John 5: 17-18), one being changed long before his time. (Ezekiel 18: 19, 20). And I want to be understood that I am not opposing the law of tithing, but would rejoice if it could be executed in both letter and spirit, when I ask, if it is perfect why was it not given co-eval with other perfect laws, or with the gospel? We have no account of it until Abraham's time, but we read of a superior order of things in Enoch's time that made all God's people rich; even so perfect that God took them to himself. And in this last dispensation the gospel was preached for years, the church organized the first of the year 1830, and yet eight years after this we find them injuring how much the Lord wants of his "people for a tithing." Why was this? A perfect law and yet not given until 1838? I think if the law given to Enoch, taught in the apostles' doctrine at Jerusalem, (Acts 2:42-47), given upon this land to the Nephites; by command of Jesus, (Book of Mormon, page 471), that made them all "exceeding rich," (page 476), taught diligently for many years to the church in this dispensation as a "permanent and everlasting establishment and order unto my church," which was essential to their salvation, "For if you will that I give you a place in the celestial world you must prepare yourselves by doing the things which I have commanded you and required of you."—Covenants 87:1. After showing the origin of this law or order as given to Enoch we read, "This order I have appointed to be an everlasting order unto you and unto your successors, &c."—Section 81:5 And in 101:1 the Lord says he had commanded its establishment, "To be an united order and an everlasting order for the benefit of my church, and for the salvation of men until I come." All that can possibly be claimed for the law of tithing. This order is so plainly taught all through the Covenants, that all can understand it, and "a grievous curse" came upon men for breaking it, and I believe if this celestial, perfect, order of God, had been observed, the law of 1838 would never have been given, never required. Again, if this law is perfect why should it be so changed? Read the contrast in old Voice of Warning, between doctrine of Christ and doctrine of men. Then read law of tithing in section 106, and contrast with the change as set forth in the brother's article, and see if it is not about as great a contrast.

Yet I believe the Bishopric and the Twelve are trying to do the best they can to advance the cause, and to prepare the Saints to abide that perfect law that I have referred to, that would make men perfect, (Matt. 19:21), without which we can not abide in Zion, or become perfect. And there are very many good things in the brother's article which I approve.

The brother knows, however, that he can not logically maintain the sanctity of the Sabbath from the beginning of creation by law, and yet as he says have no "rules and regulations governing the observance of the day," or "penalties for non observance attached until Moses time." Nothing can be established by such a law for it would be null and void. The brother should be more careful in writing, for instance where he says, that "Paul shows in first Corinthians, chapter eleven, that some had houses and some had not." I find no such teaching there. In fine I ask a careful examination of the brother's article in December 4th number, and mine in October 30th number, and feel quite sure that "the law and the testimony" will sustain me in regard to the matter of the Sabbath, at least. Hoping that the brother will accept of this friendly criticism in the same spirit it is given, I will, as I have offered to meet everything against the Sabbath theory "as I see it," notice some things in January 15th number. One writer says of the Sabbath; "The day is ages older than the Jewish people, or the book of Genesis." This is mere assumption, and the fact presented as evidence, that it is found among people now whose ancestors lived a long time before the Jews in a certain place, is mere child's talk, which I have met heretofore. Proof that their ancestors kept it sacred before the Israelites is what is required, and without this it is at least unwarranted to say, "The day did not then originate with the Bible, and there is no proof that the infinite God of this universe ever commanded the keeping of any such day," &c. I have never found the most profound Sabbath advocate that could bring proof of its sacred observance until Moses' time, and if there was any such proof I believe they would have discovered it.

Another writer says that the attempt to square the opinion that Christ was crucified on Friday and rose on Sunday, with the truth that he should rise the third day, has proved a failure, and then in undertaking to square the matter makes him to rise on the fourth day. He says that "No evidence worthy of notice" places the crucifixion as late as 33 A. D. Then most all Bible chronology is unworthy of notice, and especially the Book of Mormon, (See page 437). Now I will undertake to square the above matter with truth, as when we depart from that, then our Seventh-day friends have some reasons for their claim so strongly urged in debate here last April, that Christ was crucified Wednesday and rose Saturday. What is meant by the third day in the scriptures? We are told after three days and three nights, as stated in Matt. 12:40, that Jesus should be in the tomb that long. As his body was not in the heart of the earth, but four thousand miles from it upon its surface, and his spirit was to be in paradise on the day of his death, (Luke, 23:43), it is evident that he had no reference to that matter in Matt., 12:40; but to a very different event, one mentioned in 1st Peter 3:19, his visit to the antediluvian prison, preaching to the spirits; and as he preached the gospel unto them, (1st Peter, 4:6), and as the gospel includes the good tidings of Christ's resurrection, it must have been after that event when he went and preached in the prison; as for him to go while his body was yet dead, as the bodies of those prisoners, it would be no good news to them, and he could then remain three days and three nights. But when he said, "Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up," (John 2:19), it was not to be after three days; and in all his teachings it was "the third day he shall rise again." (Matt., 20:19), etc. Now where does the count begin? Hear Jesus: "Behold I cast out devils, and I do cures to-day, and to-morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected."—Luke 13:32. This he spake concerning his death. Crucified on Friday, to-day. Saturday, to-morrow. Sunday, the third day. This agrees with Christ's manner of speaking. Connect this with the fact that he was crucified on the fourteenth of the month, the day of the passover, and "It was the preparation, that is the day before the Sabbath."—Mark 15:42. "And that day was the preparation, and the Sabbath drew on."—Luke, 23:54. Preparation for what? Let us see. "The Jews therefore, because it was the preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath day, (for that Sabbath day was an high day),"—John 19:31. So the preparation was for the high Sabbath. I emphasize the definite article "the," to show that it was no other than the Seventh-day Sabbath, as some claim. What made it then an high Sabbath? "In the fourteenth day of the first month is the Lord's passover. And on the fifteenth day of the same month, is the feast of unleavened bread unto the Lord."—Lev. 23:5, 6. So it was the Sabbath of the feast of unleavened bread which made it an high Sabbath, and it was the seventh day, and the preparation was of the unleavened bread. This was in the heat of harvest, for the first fruits of the harvest were offered on the morrow after this Sabbath, the type of Christ's resurrection, the first fruits from the dead; fifty days before the feast of pentecost. (See Lev. 23). Christ was laid in the tomb the "even" of this preparation day; and the next day was that "high Sabbath," which was followed by the waving of "the sheaf [of the first fruits of the harvest] before the Lord, to be accepted of you; on the morrow after the Sabbath the priest shall wave it."—Lev. 23:11. And fifty days after was the feast of pentecost. To be the great ante-type of the passover, of the sheaf of the first fruits, etc., Jesus must have been crucified on the fourteenth of the month, on Friday the preparation day for the feast of the unleavened bread, on that high Sabbath, the fifteenth day of the month, the seventh day of the week, and have risen on the "morrow" after that Sabbath as the first fruits from the great harvest of death. Josephus also says the first fruits were offered on the sixteenth day.

The manner of counting the days from the waving the sheaf offering until pentecost proves my position to be correct in beginning the count of the days from the crucifixion Friday the first, Saturday—the second, Sunday the third. "And you shall count unto you from the morrow after the Sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave offering; seven Sabbaths shall be complete; even unto the morrow after the seventh Sabbath, shall ye number fifty days, and ye shall offer a new meat offering unto the Lord."—Lev. 23:15, 16. The morrow after the seventh Sabbath would make but 49 days if you do not include the day of the wave offering in the count. Sunday they were to count from, and they must count it to make the "morrow after the seventh Sabbath fifty days," as it was, so counting from Thursday, as the writer does, makes Sunday the fourth day, but from Friday it is the third. To evade the force of this, some Seventh-day elders (not all) claim that pentecost came on Monday. This is positively disproven in Numbers, 28:26, where we are told that it shall be upon the same day of the week as the sheaf offering. When we connect these strong proofs with the fact that the women who saw where Jesus was laid, it being late in the evening when he was taken from the cross, they probably were barely able to prepare the spices with which they intended to anoint his body, that evening; and the next day being the Sabbath (not that evening), they rested "according to the commandment."—Luke, 23:56). And so great was their anxiety, no doubt because of the great heat, (which reaches one hundred and ten degrees there in that season, which would very soon decompose a body), that "in the end of the Sabbath," "very early in the morning," they came to the sepulchre "while it was yet dark," John says, the first day of the week, to anoint his body. Why did none of the writers say that they rested two or three days, or from Thursday even until Sunday? It is unreasonable, and contrary to the evidence. Again, if the Sabbath did not end until the women came to the tomb about sunrise Sunday morning, and the evening of the fourteenth of the month followed the morning, and it was yet Friday or the fourteenth at midnight when the angel passed over the Hebrew dwellings, (Ex. 12th chapter), and it was dark Friday evening before the Sabbath, (Neh. 13:19), and Jesus was not buried until "even" before the Sabbath, (Matt., 27:57; Mark, 15:42), and it was still the first day in the evening when Jesus met with his disciples, (John 20:19), where do our Sabbath friends get their scriptural or unscriptural reasons for beginning the day at sundown and ending at sundown; or saying that Paul preached at Troas Saturday night, when he preached the first day and departed on "the morrow," which means the day following, or Monday, when he departed at break of day, the same night he preached? From evidences produced we think it a great error as set forth in "Furgeson's astronomical table," referred to, that Christ being crucified on the "fourteenth of Nisan" that he must not rise until the seventeenth, in order to "square" with the truth," as that would be the fourth day counting from the fourteenth, but Sunday, the sixteenth would be the third.

D. S. CRAWLEY.

THE FATE OF UNTAUGHT SOULS.

THE cruelty and inconsistency, not to say diabolism, of the old theology which dooms all the millions of the earth's inhabitants to endless torment who have not, while in the flesh, accepted Christ as their Savior, continue to stir up strife among the various sects and to perplex the preachers of the great religious denominations. The strictly orthodox doctrine is that the final condition of souls is fixed at death; that salvation can only come through faith in Christ as the Redeemer; that those alone who die having this faith enter into the kingdom of heaven; that there are only two places or conditions in the great hereafter—heaven and hell; that, therefore, the vast multitudes of heathen peoples and others who have never had the opportunity of hearing about Jesus of Nazareth, have been consigned to ceaseless torment in an everlasting and burning hell.

Against this the rational mind revolts and the natural sense of justice rebels. It is only through the pressure of cast iron creeds that any thinking persons can subscribe to such a horrible doctrine. Warrant for it is supposed to be found in the Holy Scriptures. But these have to be read with the bias formed by the creeds of men, or they would not give any authority or support to the outrageous belief. It has been a fruitful source of infidelity for hundreds of years and has caused multitudes to reject the Bible and all religious professing to be founded upon it. The idea is so preposterous and so monstrous that it becomes incredible as soon as the soul is emancipated from the thralldom of orthodoxy. And if men and women reared in the atmosphere of so-called Christendom, trained from their childhood to accept this as an indisputable dogma and impressed with its divine origin in catechism and discourse, are led to discard it upon independent reflection, what can the millions of the heathen think of it when the missionaries of the sects proclaim it as their doom, and as the fate which overtook their ancestors in countless millions?

This is one of the great obstacles in the way of sectarian foreign missionaries. It has occasioned research into the origin and soundness of the doctrine. And the consequence is that many of the most active laborers in the field abroad, have come to the conclusion that there may be hope for people who have died without faith in Christ if they never had the opportunity of hearing the gospel in this life. But they have no positive ground to stand upon. They must not teach this for doctrine, as it is contrary to the creeds to which they have subscribed. And the idea of a "probation after death," which has been advocated as a probability, is so disturbing to the ruling and dictating powers ecclesiastical, that the very mention of the "new theology" as they call it, sets them in a phrenzy.

A case now pending before the Prudential Committee of the American Missionary Board, illustrates the position. A missionary to India named Hume has been prevented from returning to his post by the Prudential Committee, because of his utterances, while visiting this country, on the future of untaught souls. Mr. Hume was regarded in India as one of the most useful, active and successful laborers in the field. His coadjutors have earnestly pressed for his return. Wide and animated discussion has ensued, but the committee do not seem inclined to take action, for they can not endorse any views except those of the orthodox character, and the simple fact that Mr. Hume entertains, without preaching, the future probation idea, seems in their minds to disqualify him as a missionary to the heathen. He must believe that all who have died without Christ are eternally damned, or he is unfit in their view to be a preacher of the gospel of salvation.

It is noticeable that in the dispute that has arisen on this question, no one seems to take a solid and substantial stand for the grand truth which is forcing itself upon the souls of the progressive. The missionaries who appeal for the return of Mr. Hume, and others who urge the Committee to favorable action, do not affirm that his position is right and openly dissent from the horrible dogma which he regards as doubtful. They ask for his return on condition that he does not go for the purpose of teaching the disturbing doctrine. Their position is defined in a communication from Dr. Blodget, a missionary in Peking, China, to Dr. Vose, of Rhode Island. He says:

"If a young man were an earnest Christian worker—humble, docile, peaceable, deeply pious—and yet judged this to be a possible solution of the difficulty which presses upon so many minds in regard to the destiny of the millions of our fellow men who have died without the gospel; if he held this, not as a dogma, not as an article of faith, not as something to be taught to others and argued for, but as a relief to his own mind, and possibly to others also, I could not reject him on this account. If, on the other hand, he did hold it as a dogma, made it an article of his faith, was active and loud in its defense, I should fear he would not be a useful missionary, and would create divisions in the mission field. I should not send such a man."

This is the condition of mind in which almost the entire portion of the "Christian" world that entertain the "new theology" is placed. No certainty exists in regard to the doctrine. There is no unmistakable standard to which they can appeal as the end of controversy. The book upon which they depend as their sole guide to salvation can not speak and explain itself, therefore it means one thing to one mind and another thing to a different mind. Books alone can not determine a religious controversy. Authority is absolutely necessary to a settled decision. There is something higher than all books and all instruments. The Spirit by which the Scriptures were written is greater than the letter. The document may be destroyed, but the Spirit still lives and can produce the indestructible truth revealed again. It can also manifest to man the meaning of the written word. But it is just as possible for different minds to disagree upon the intimations of the Spirit as to jangle over the meaning of the letter. Therefore authority must be vested in some one to determine the significance of scripture, or endless quibbles and squabbles are bound to continue. But only divine authority can rightly interpret that which is divine. The word of the Lord, given as of old, is worth more than all the opinions of all the doctors and priests and canons and clergy of whole "Christendom." And yet that is the very thing that modern orthodoxy emphatically rejects. It pores over old scriptures and quarrels over roots of dead languages, and refuses to seek for or listen to the voice of living inspiration, which is the source of all true scripture and the fountain of all light and knowledge.

The Latter Day Saints, on this question have "a more sure word of prophecy" than all the learned opinions of the defenders of the old theology or the doubtful speculations on the new. By direct revelation through the appointed servants of the Most High, they have come to a certain understanding of the doctrine of probation present and future. They know that all people of every age and nation must and will hear the gospel before they can be judged by the gospel. That there is no law of heaven or of hell which forbids or will hinder the preaching of the gospel to dead as freely as to the living. That a disembodied spirit is capable of hearing and believing, and also of obeying so far as the nature of spirit life permits, and that there is nothing to hinder its repentance and reform except the effects of earthly acts which last on the laws of justice and mercy. That as Jesus preached the gospel to the spirits in prison after his decease, so all who are endowed with His authority continue their ministry in the future life. That the time will come when "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus is the Lord to the glory of God the Father," and that this means voluntary obedience to the gospel of salvation, to which all will submit but the sons of perdition, who deny the Holy Ghost after having received it, sin wilfully against light and knowledge and commit the sin that is unpardonable.

But eternal justice will regulate the future condition of the obedient as well as of those who once were disobedient. In the Father's house there are "many mansions," and though all will be saved through the blood of Christ, every one will be judged according to his works, and will receive according to his deserts. The one heaven for believers and the one hell for unbelievers is a modern fiction, as are most of the dogmas that bind men's souls and tie them down to unreason and sectarian puerilities. Such notions are not to be found in the sacred Scriptures, rightly read in the light of the Spirit by which they were written. They are the vagaries of men and the doctrines of devils, and are an insult to an all-wise and merciful God.

It is true that no one can be redeemed except through Christ Jesus. "There is no other name given under heaven whereby mankind can be saved." Also that "except a man be born of the water and of the spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of God." These are conditions that can not be set aside. They are as fixed in spiritual economy as are the laws of reproduction and of cause and effect in all things natural. But one grand error of perverted Christianity is the dogma that death fixes the eternal situations of souls. This is undoubtedly the state of probation. Here mankind prove themselves and fit themselves for the everlasting future. But to limit the operations of the plan of salvation to this mortal sphere, and bind the eternal to this little globe as the only speck in illimitable space where he can extend offers of repentance and reformation, and exercise the means whereby His children may be lifted to higher conditions, is unreasonable, unscriptural and entirely wrong.

Progress is the law of the universe. It prevails in all worlds and in all periods. Punishment, which some-times appears to be retrogression, is but a necessary step towards the redemption and exaltation of the froward. "Man is the image and glory of God," and the Eternal Father is glorified in the multiplicity of His obedient children. He will find a place for all, where they can rise in the scale of being and grow out of error and sin and evil and according to their capacities and deserts, advance to pleasure and utility, to honor and reward, when they have paid the penalty of their transgressions.

The work of redemption is eternal, and the light and truth will forever oppose and conquer the darkness and the error of crude conditions and immature creations. Salvation is the watchword of the soldiers of Christ, and when the victory is won it shall be said concerning this earth and its people, there is no more sorrow or sighing, or tears, or pain, or death, for the former things have passed away, and death itself and hell with its horrors, will be "cast into the lake of fire," and be known no more forever. And everything in heaven and on earth and in the sea will sing praise and honor to Him that sitteth upon the throne, and to the Lamb, for He was the infinite sacrifice and is the universal and triumphant Redeemer.—Deseret News.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTH EASTERN OHIO AND WEST VIRGINIA.

Conference convened at Limerick, Ohio, February 26th and 27th, 1887. T. J. Beatty, pres., L. R. Devore clerk pro tem. Minutes of last conference read and approved. A petition was read from the Highland Branch, Highland county, Ohio, asking to be admitted into this district. Admitted by vote. New Hope Branch, West Virginia, Summers county, was also received on their petition. Branch reports: Highland (new), number of members 33; organized February 13th, 1887, by T. J. Beatty and L. R. Devore. James C. West, presiding teacher; James Irons, deacon; Daniel E. Skeen, clerk. Vinton, last report 62; present number 68; 6 baptisms. New Hope 7 members. Ballard P. Lilly president. Organized December 12th, 1886, by James Moler. Cabin Run, incorrect; clerk of district requested to write to branch clerk for necessary items. Morgan, no change since last report. Wayne, the clerk will notify president of branch of the errors in report and ask for proper corrections. Union Grove, last report 30; present number 31; 2 baptisms; 1 death. Syracuse, no change since last report. Official reports: L. R. Devore, Seventy (baptized 14). T. J. Beatty (baptized 25). J. L. Goodrich, A. B. Ervin, S. J. Jeffers, James Moler (baptized 6), Thomas Matthews, L. W. Torrence, in person. By letter C. G. Ruley, J. W. Trout, J. L. Williams and David Hopkins. Priests Charles A. Hunter and H. E. Moler in person. Teachers Joseph Kriebel, J. Spann, R. H. Kirkendall, J. F. Williams, G. W. King and O. Wildman in person. Deacon David Dull in person. A letter from Bro. S. D. Hannah was read, wrongfully censuring Bro. L. R. Devore for authorizing Bro. P. Ray to issue letters of recommendation to all the worthy members of the Buchtel Branch. (See minutes of August 22d and 23d, 1885, that district conference authorized district clerk to do that). Bishop's Agents report: amount due church last report, 55 cents; money received since, $11; total, $11 55; paid Bro. W. H. Kelley $2.50, Bro. G. T. Griffiths $8; Agent's expenses 50 cents; balance on hand due church 50 cents. Moved and seconded that we as a district be represented in General Conference, April 6th, 1887, by delegate. Licenses were granted to Elder Ballard P. Lilly and Samuel J. Jeffers. Priests' licenses to Chas. A. Hunter and G. T. McCoy. Teacher James C. West. Deacons George W. Bowen, Jacob Irons and David Dull. Bro. T. J. Beatty was elected delegate to General Conference. A committee was appointed to ascertain how much money could be raised toward defraying the delegate's expenses to General Conference. Bro. A. B. Ervin was chosen. Moved and seconded that A. W. Kriebel be ordained to the office of elder by this conference, and receive a license at present session. Moved and seconded that Bro. A. B. Kirkendall be recommended to the General Conference, April 6th, 1887, to be ordained by that body to the office of elder. On motion Bro. T. J. Beatty was continued district president for next term. James Moler, vice president; and A. B. Kirkendall, clerk. Bro. A. W. Kriebel was ordained to the office of elder by L. R. Devore and Thos. Matthews. Moved and seconded that L. R. Devore be chosen as a delegate to General Conference. Amended by motion that all the elders going to General Conference serve as delegates. Moved and seconded that Bro. P. Ray be interrogated by the clerk of district as to his knowledge of the existence of a resolution requiring elders to report to each district conference either in person or by letter, and if conversant with the fact that he be suspended as an elder until restitution be made. Moved and seconded that the delegates to General Conference from this district request of that body that they appoint L. R. Devore, T. J. Beatty, James Moler, and Thomas Matthews to labor in this district the coming season. The following resolution was sustained: inasmuch as Bro. Thomas Matthews, Bishop's Agent, tendered his resignation to the last district conference, September 11th and 12th, 1886, and was accepted and Bro. T. J. Beatty was recommended by the same conference to be appointed by the Bishop, why has the Bishop not acted in the case? The delegates to present this to the Bishop. During the conference instructive sermons were preached by J. L. Goodrich, Thomas Matthews and L. R. Devore. Adjourned to meet at Vale's Mills, Vinton county, Ohio, subject to call of president.

SUNDAY THE REST DAY FOR THE CHRISTIAN.

REPLYING to a late letter inquiring as to whether the Sabbath of the Jews was abolished by the will of God, and also as to the evidences that the first day of the week, Sunday, was appointed of God and observed by the early Christians as their day for rest and religious services, we offer the following, which we deem clear and conclusive, and we ask that all the texts quoted and cited be read and pondered patiently and prayerfully.

1. The 7th day Sabbath was a part of the Jewish law which was given at Sinai to Israel. In proof see Exodus 16: 22-30; 20: 10; with Neh. 9: 13, 14; Ezek. 20: 12.

2. This law, including the Sabbath, was superceded, and it gave place to the better law, (or covenant), in Christ. In proof see Jer. 31: 31-34; Matt. 5: 1-48, and note verses 21, 22, 27, 28, 31-39, 43, 44; also chapters 6 and 7.

These texts teach that Jesus gave commandments which were superior to and superceded the old Mosaic law. This view is confirmed by Acts 15: 5, 24; Rom. 3: 20, 21, 28; chap. 8: 2, 3; 13: 9, 10; Gal. 2: 16; 3: 5, 10, 11, 13, 17-26; 4: 24-31; 2 Cor. 3: 11-13; Heb. 8: 6-13; Col. 2: 14-17; etc., etc.

The early Christian ministry preached to the Jews on their Sabbath days it is true, but when they met specifically to hold church service with the Saints, they met on the first day of the week, Sunday. In proof see Acts 20: 7. The contexts show that Paul and his fellow ministers "abode seven days" in Troas, the last one being Sunday, (departing Monday), and that upon that day—not the seventh—"the disciples came together to break bread." It is not intimated that they held any service on Saturday, but that they waited over Saturday, and then met with the Saints for church services on Sunday. The contributions and collections for charitable purposes were made on "the first day of the week," (1 Cor. 16: 1, 2), that being the most suitable time, for the reason that, when they were gathered for their weekly, stated meetings, the officers and members of the church were expected to be present together with each other. See also John 20: 19; and Acts 2: 1. These last texts prove the assembling of the Saints for service on the first day of the week—Sunday. To this we add the definite testimony of the most profound and competent church historians.

Mosheim says:

"All Christians were unanimous in setting apart the first day of the week, on which the triumphant Savior rose from the dead, for the solemn celebration of public worship. This pious custom, which was derived from the example of the Church at Jerusalem, was founded upon the express appointment of the Apostles, who consecrated that day to the same sacred purpose, and was observed universally throughout all the christian churches, as appears from the united testimony of the most credible writers."—Mosheim, part 2, ch. 4, sec. 4.

It is a fact that in the second century, the day on which Christ arose from the dead was so recognized by decree:

"And all [the Bishops] unanimously drew up an ecclesiastical decree which they communicated to all the churches in all places, that the mystery of our Lord's resurrection should be celebrated on no other day than the Lord's day."—Eusebius page 7.

This is the same day that Pinytus in his epistle to Dyonysius, Bishop of Corinth, about A. D. 175, calls the Lord's holy day; he says,

"To-day we have passed the Lord's holy day, in which we have read your epistle," &c.—Eusebius, p. 160.

The practice of reading communications in the assemblies of the Saints was derived from Apostolic injunction.

The historian, referring to the Ebionite heresy, says:

"They also observe the Sabbath and other discipline of the Jews just like them, but on the other hand they also celebrate the Lord's day very much like us in commemoration of his resurrection."—Eusebius, p. 113.

This sect had its origin early in the second century, and this statement concerning them is significant.

The exact light in which the Sabbath of the fourth commandment was regarded in the second and third centuries is further set forth by Eusebius, as follows; speaking of the righteous before Abraham, he says:

"They did not therefore regard circumcision, nor regard the Sabbath; neither do we: neither do we abstain from certain foods, nor regard other injunctions which Moses subsequently delivered to be observed as types and symbols, because such things as these do not belong to Christians."—Eusebius, page 27.

One more quotation shall suffice under this head to show that Sunday, instead of the Sabbath, was the day of public worship in those early times; it is from Justin Martyr's first apology, about A. D. 150:

"On the day called Sunday, there is an assembling together of all who dwell in the cities and country, and the memoirs of the apostles and the writings of the prophets are read, as circumstances permit. Then when the reader has ceased, the president delivers a discourse, in which he admonishes and exhorts to these good things; then we all rise together and pray, and, as we before said, after prayer being ended, bread and wine are brought, and the president offers prayer in like manner and thanksgiving, and the distribution of that over which the thanksgiving has been pronounced, takes place to each, and each partakes; and a portion is sent to the absentees by the deacons."—Sewell, Church History, p. 169.

We have thus, both in the New Testament and early church history, shown that the first day of the week, or Sunday, was observed by the saints for religious services, but nowhere is it called a Sabbath; but so far as it was devoted to religious duties, (and it was unanimously so observed), it really was a rest from common pursuits, and in this light it was a Sabbath or rest day. But it is clear that the church for three hundred years or more did not understand that the Jewish Sabbath was transferred to the christians, only that the day was changed. This view was of later origin, and due, no doubt, to the idea of the Jewish Sabbath originating in Eden, which became a tenet subsequently, when creeds were formed.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

PRESIDENT Joseph Smith wrote from Independence, Mo., the 14th and 16th inst. He reports a profitable time at the dedication of the Saints new Chapel in Armstrong, Kansas, and mentions that the Independence branch is getting on finely.

Bro. John Pett of Dow City, Iowa, writes the 14th inst. saying: "We are having good meetings with fair interest and attendance."

Sr. Maggie Collins, writing from Knox, Indiana, March 13th says: Bro. J. B. Pretymann is telling the people there the gospel story with good results, had baptized one, also that Bro. Leonard Scott had labored there and in that vicinity with good effect. They were looking for his return to continue his work. Bro. J. H. Peters had furnished her with ten copies of Voice of Warning to loan among the people, and they were out on their mission work, causing much inquiry for further information as to our church work.

Bro. W. F. Clark writes from Ness City, Kansas, that he and Bro. William Goreham have many calls for preaching in that vicinity, and that they are pleased with that country and its prospects.

Bro. James Moler writes from Limerick, Ohio, that having read the epistle of David Whitmer and the reply thereto thus far, he is greatly confirmed and strengthened in the calling and authority of Joseph the Seer.

Bro. A. Himes is holding meetings near Allendale, Mo., and his efforts meet with fair success. He has a call to a point south west of Grant City, and hopes to respond to it soon, for his heart is in the Lord's work.

O. O. Newberry writes from Vincennes, Iowa, March 10th and says,—"Inclosed please find ten dollars for the Herald. I have two other religious papers in the house to compare with the Herald. For sound sense give me the latter."

Sr. M. M. Brooks wrote the 9th of March that she now lives at Essex Center, Ontario, and would be glad to have one or more of the elders call, for she has been much afflicted of late. She desires the prayers of the Saints.

QUIBBLING MORMONS.

THE ORGAN OF THE CHURCH SOUNDS A NOTE OF WARNING TO ITS MEMBERS.

INTERVIEWS WITH MEN WHO UNDERSTAND THE QUESTION.

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 9.—The Edmunds-Tucker bill has been practically tested and found wanting. Mormons hold up their heads defiantly and laugh over the result of the Brigham City election Monday, where the test oath was taken almost without exception, and the church ticket elected by a large majority. It is a settled fact that the Saints are willing to swear anything to retain their political grip on the Territory.

Yesterday Judge Zane administered the prescribed oath within the District Court for the first time. All but two of the Mormons on the panel adopted it. In substance the oath reads: "I will not aid, abet, counsel or advise any person to commit any of the crimes defined by acts of Congress, as polygamy, bigamy, unlawful cohabitation, incest, adultery or fornication, and I further swear (or affirm) that I am not a polygamist or a bigamist and that I do not associate or cohabit polygamously with persons of the other sex."

When the morning session of the court opened to-day with the jury in the box, Justice Zane requested the foreman to rise and asked him if, in consideration of the oath previously taken, he believed it right, according to the law of God, for men to have more than one living and undivorced wife at the same time. Without hesitation the man replied that he thought it was. In his sincere belief polygamy was the true religion of Christ. Richard Howe, Charles Sansome, William M. Atwood, Hiram Grosebeck, John McLay, Orson H. Pettit, Mark Spencer and Osmond Lechiminant voiced the same opinion in even stronger terms. They were immediately removed from the box. This direct and staggering announcement caused a stir in Gentile circles even greater than the news of the bill's passage.

To a certain extent the attitude of the church has been defined. In an editorial which appeared last evening in its official organ, the Deseret News, many technicalities were advanced which are received as the spirit that prompted the action of the jurors yesterday morning. "The voting citizens of Utah should become thoroughly familiar with the language of the new law designed to abridge their liberties; they should understand that it does not infringe upon their abstract belief. They may believe that it is right and proper under certain circumstances for a man to have more wives than one and to live with them as such. Or they may believe it is wrong for any one to marry more than one wife; or they may believe it wrong to marry at all. The test oath does not assume to affect any belief, neither does it affect the expression of belief. The right to defend and advocate anything that one believes to be right is an inalienable right under constitutional protection.

"Liberty of speech and of the press is one of the rights that can not be infringed by law. The test oath was carefully worded so as not to trench on faith or its defence or advocacy. It only affects actions. Those who take it promise to obey the laws of the United States, and to refrain from aiding, abetting, counseling or advising any other person to commit the crimes defined and forbidden in the Edmunds act and the new law. Those who feel that they can take the oath may do so without any fear from sources that will be pretended as fraught with danger. Every qualified citizen may take the oath who is willing at the time of doing so to obey the laws of the United States and to refrain from helping or advising others to break the law.

"There is another consideration. Some people have a natural or educated antipathy to taking an oath in any form. The law provides that they may make an affirmation. They may either swear or affirm, the affirmation is as legal as the oath. Those who don't want to take the latter may claim to subscribe to the former. Instead of saying, 'I, being duly sworn,' they each may say, 'I, being duly affirmed.' Let every voter who objects to swear insist upon making an affirmation instead; this is as the law provides, and when technicalities are insisted upon by others, we do no wrong in also insisting upon technicalities when it suits us to do so."

Colonel G. L. Godfrey of the commission, who is one of the best informed men in the city on Mormon affairs, said to me: "The Saints recognize the test oath as entirely of a promissory nature. They don't consider it of other significance than a promise. Perhaps they are right. It is a question, in my own mind, if they can be convicted of prejury for breaking it. If they can not, the bill will fail in its purpose."

Judge Zane was called upon after the dismissal of the jury. "I am surprised," he said, "at the outcome of the affair. Yesterday the test oath was given, as they say it does not infringe upon their abstract belief; but I was not prepared when my question of faith was put to them this morning, for so absolute a reply. This clearly defines their position. They are ready to promise, but not ready to deny, their individual faith."

Governor West sat in the office of the Walker House apparently engrossed in thought, when I inquired his opinion regarding the unexpected developments. "I have always held," he remarked, "that the Mormons were sincere in their belief, and argued among my friends that on that ground they could not consistently take the test oath. If they did so it would settle in my mind that they were unscrupulous and ready to sacrifice their religion to politics. Such apparently is the fact."

A well-known journalist, whose interests are closely identified with the opposition, tells me in confidence that the church officials are highly pleased with the results of the Brigham City election. They are posting their subjects that Gentiles judges have no power to administer sacred oaths, and that any statement they may see fit to make before them will not be considered as contrary to their religious principles.

HENRY G. TRICKEY.

Boston Globe, March 10th.

How strangely the above reads when compared with the following teachings which the Utah people claim to revere and teach: "And now for a man to take up his cross, is to deny himself all ungodliness, and every worldly lust, and keep my commandments. Break not my commandments for to save your lives; for whosoever will save his life in this world, shall lose it in the world to come."—Jesus, Matt. 16:26, 27, in Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith. And yet it is charged that that Utah leaders break them, and counsel their people to break them, in order to save paltry political offices. The Lord approves him only "who speaketh the truth in his heart, . . . and sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not."—Ps. 15:2, 4. The Lord through Joseph the Seer utterly forbids lying, even in self-defense, and says: "Wo be unto him that lieth to deceive because he supposes that another lieth to deceive."—Doc. Cov. 9:4.

We would admonish those Utah leaders that Joseph Smith, whom they profess to revere, makes Jesus to say: "Whosoever, therefore, shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so to do, he shall in no wise be saved in the kingdom of God."—Matt. 5:21. And this same Joseph Smith makes Paul to teach that a real or supposed good end can not justify the use of evil means to attain it: "And some affirm that we say, (whose damnation is just), Let us do evil that good may come."—1 Cor. 3:8.

If these leaders honestly believe polygamy to be a command of God to them and their people, and that "all those who have this law revealed unto them must obey the same" or be "damned," as their polygamic revelation teaches, why do they, or how can they, teach their people to swear faithful obedience to, and compliance with, the anti-polygamy laws of the nation! We feel ashamed, and sorrowful, and outraged when any who claim to be Latter Day Saints violate the doctrine of Christ, the laws of the church, the laws of the land, and especially when their teachers advise and encourage it. The fruit of this doing will be only evil to those who are guilty of it. The folly of these leaders is being "made manifest to all men," as Paul predicted (2 Tim. 3:9). They have woven a net which now ensnares them; and their only escape lies in a speedy return to the plain teachings of the sacred books endorsed by the church up to 1844. God has brought them "under the rod," the "rebels" he will "purge out," and those Saints who do not return to an honest, faithful adherence to the original faith as taught up to 1844, will go to spiritualism, sectarianism, or infidelity.

SOME one sends us the Philadelphia, (Pa.) Daily News of March 5th, containing what purports to be a correct account of Joseph the Seer, the Book of Mormon, Sidney Rigdon, the travels of the church, etc., etc.; and about the only really correct thing in it, is, that "The Book of Mormon contains the severest denunciation of polygamy imaginable."

If all the foolish, slanderous yarns about Joseph Smith and his work, including the Book of Mormon and his revelations, were gathered and published, it would present such a confused, contradictory, senseless mass as would put the blush of shame on the very dirtiest of Satan's imps. Let these scavengers and peddlers of falsehood and calumny go on with their vile work; for unwittingly they scatter some seeds of truth which will eventually grow and flourish when their evil reports shall wither rot in the midst of their own stench to the eternal condemnation of their willing, witless authors. The angel of God told Joseph, at the first, when a boy, that his "name should be had for good and evil among all nations;" that among the upright and wise it would be had in honor and esteem, while with others it would be had in derision and contempt. Newspaper scribblers, book-makers, and pulpiteers are ignorantly and some of them viciously, fulfilling this prediction to the young seer.

"REFORMED EGYPTIAN."

In a well written article on the Book of Mormon in the Juvenile Instructor of Salt Lake City, edited by George Q. Cannon, of March 15th, the writer has this to say of the language in which that book was found by Joseph the Seer, and from which he translated it into English:

"The first portion of the Book of Mormon, as we now receive it, Joseph Smith translated from Hieratic Egyptian, the language in which Nephi wrote. The remaining portion, as we have it, he translated from Reformed Egyptian, the language in which Mormon wrote."

This is a mistake. Oliver Cowdery, who was entitled to know from the fact that he was the Seer's scribe and spokesman, says of Mormon and his record:

"But a long time previous to this national disaster, [the destruction of the Nephites. Ed.], it appears from his own account, he foresaw approaching destruction. In fact, if he perused the records of his fathers which were in his possession he could have learned that such would be the case. Alma, who lived before the coming of the Messiah, prophecies this. He [Mormon] however, by divine appointment, abridged from those records, in his own style and language, a short account of the more important and prominent items, from the days of Lehi to his own time, after which he deposited, as he says on 529th page, all the records in this same hill Cumorah, and after gave his small record to his son Moroni."—Messenger and Advocate, page 158.

From this we learn that the entire Book of Mormon is but an "abridged," and "short account" of all the records of the Nephites from Lehi to Mormon, including what Mormon and Moroni added, and that this "abridged" account was written by Mormon "in his own style and language," which was "reformed Egyptian," for he says, in Book of Mormon 4:8:

"We have written this record according to our knowledge, in the characters which are called among us the reformed Egyptian, being handed down and altered by us according to our manner of speech. And if our plates had been sufficiently large we should have written in Hebrew; but the Hebrew hath been altered by us also; and if we could have written in the Hebrew, behold, ye would have had no imperfection in our record."

This is further proved and explained in "The words of Mormon," just preceding the "Book of Mosiah."

"An interesting group of people live in Decatur county, Iowa. The central point of this settlement or colony is Lamoni, a town of eight hundred inhabitants, nearly all of whom are Mormons or members of the Reorganized Church of which Joseph Smith, jr., the son of the Prophet, is President. The Saints have a newspaper, called the Herald, which is ably conducted, a large church edifice, and are preparing to build a college. These interesting people have no sympathy with the polygamous doctrines of the Utah Mormons, yet believe implicitly in the sacred mission of Joseph Smith and his revelations. The Saints of Lamoni are sober, temperate and honest, and live on the best of terms with their Gentile neighbors."—Ottumwa (Ia.) Democrat, March 16th.

We are pleased to see favorable mention of the Saints' efforts as honorable citizens, and especially when it comes from intelligent, influential sources near them. God is giving his people "grace and favor," "honor and fame," just as he promised to do if they prove themselves worthy.

D. WHITMER.

ONLY a sense of duty toward God and his people could induce us to point out and refute the errors set forth in the teachings of David Whitmer and his advisers in the HERALD for last February 5th. But the demands of love to God and the Saints require that we shall be thorough, plain, and exact, so that all who will may learn the essential facts touching these matters in question.

A DESIRE TO LEAD.

On page 92 of HERALD, Mr. Whitmer says of the Reorganized Church:

"Many of you think I have a desire to lead—to lead a church that believe as I do. I have no such desire. A one-man leader to the church is not the teachings of Christ."

How can this be made consistent, when on page 91 he states that he was commanded of God in June, 1838, to separate himself from among the apostate Latter Day Saints, and when in this same connection he claims "authority," comparing himself with Mormon? Mormon, mark it, was the leader appointed of God. When he claims this peculiar "authority," and then asks the Saints to endorse his dogmas and interpretations, and then claims to stand related to the Saints as was Mormon to the apostate Nephites, this rings with desires for some kind of leadership, however much he may disclaim it. And when he denies to Joseph the Seer the leadership of the church, asserting that "he was not called to set up and establish the church any more than any of us elders were," this, too, smacks of a desire for leadership, for it says, in effect, that David Whitmer had equal authority to lead, teach, and preside over Christ's church that Joseph ever had. This is the English of the matter, put in plain words. This view is further strengthened, when on page 92 he asserts that Joseph, in respect of doctrine and church government, "was blinded and became ensnared by proud, ambitious men," and that he (D. Whitmer) "labored hard with him to get him to see it." In this he admits, in effect, that he strove hard to have Joseph yield to the judgment of David Whitmer and adopt his theories on these church questions! He thus sought to lead even the choice Seer! to say nothing of the church then under the presidency of the Seer. In these admissions we readily discover what has ailed David Whitmer from early times, and what it was that led him to that course of conduct for which he was cut off from the church in April, 1838, two months before he claims he was commanded of God to leave it!

Korah, Dathan, Abiram, and their confederates, held similar views in respect to Moses' leadership, as does Mr. Whitmer and others of Joseph's. They said of Moses, "ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them; wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord."—Num. 16:3.

Moses was authorized of God in his leadership, while Korah and his company were blind in their judgment, ambitious in their desires, and their claims in respect to authority were rejected of God and exposed for the admonition of the Lord's people. Joseph was called of God to be his seer (2 Nephi 2:2); he did the work of a seer; (Mosiah 5:10; 12:3; 2 Nephi 11:18; 2:2, 3; Book of Mormon 4:2, 3).

Oliver Cowdery, in 1834, said of Joseph's seeric ministrations;

"These were days never to be forgotten—to sit under the sound of a voice dictated by the inspiration of heaven, awakened the utmost gratitude of this bosom. Day after day I continued, uninterrupted, to write from his mouth as he [Joseph. Ed.] translated with the Urim and Thummim, or, as the Nephites would have said, 'Interpreters,' the history, or record called 'The Book of Mormon.'"—Messenger and Advocate, page 14.

As we have hitherto said, Joseph was a prophet, seer, translator, and revelator. To these gifts and callings he was chosen and ordained of God, and was upheld in that authority by the voice and faith of the church. David Whitmer was simply a "witness" of Joseph's calling to be God's seer, translator, revelator and prophet. He was also called to be an elder, and a high priest. This was the extent of his authority. He was never called of God to be Joseph's counsellor, guide, nor adviser. He had no authority to demand that Joseph, or the church, should submit to his views on doctrine and church government. He had no right to expect that the "choice seer" should yield his own judgment in respect to doctrine and church building and follow that of David Whitmer. To make such a claim is the very climax of presumption, and yet this is substantially what David Whitmer did, taking his own admissions as evidence.

In further proof that Mr. Whitmer is blind and badly out of the way when he says of Joseph,—“He was not called of God to set up and establish the church any more than any of us Elders were,” we cite the fact that in Joseph's divine call lies the very source and beginning of the Lord's great and marvellous latter day work. Oliver Cowdery understood this to be the case, as may be seen in what he relates of the angel's visitation and instruction to Joseph:—

"The stature of this personage was a little above the common size of men in this age; his garment was perfectly white, and had the appearance of being without seam.

"Though fear was banished from his heart, yet his surprise was no less when he heard him declare himself to be a messenger sent by commandment of the Lord, to deliver a special message, and to witness to him that his sins were forgiven, and that his prayers were heard; and that the scriptures might be fulfilled, which say—'God has chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, has God chosen; yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things which are, that no flesh should glory in his presence. Therefore, says the Lord, I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people, even a marvelous work and a wonder; the wisdom of their wise shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent shall be hid; for according to his covenant which he made with his ancient saints, his people, the house of Israel, must come to a knowledge of the gospel, and own that Messiah whom their fathers rejected, and with them the fullness of the Gentiles be gathered in, to rejoice in one fold under one Shepherd.'

"This can not be brought about until first certain preparatory things are accomplished, for so has the Lord purposed in his own mind. He has therefore chosen you as an instrument in his hand to bring to light that which shall perform his act, his strange act, and bring to pass a marvelous work and a wonder. Wherever the sound shall go it shall cause the ears of men to tingle, and wherever it shall be proclaimed, the pure in heart shall rejoice, while those who draw near to God with their mouths, and honor him with their lips, while their hearts are far from him, will seek its overthrow, and the destruction of those by whose hands it is carried. Therefore, marvel not if your name is made a derision, and had as a by-word among such, if you are the instrument in bringing it, by the gift of God, to the knowledge of the people."—Messenger and Advocate, 79, 80.

Oliver says the angel further said to Joseph:

"Your name shall be known among the nations, for the work which the Lord will perform by your hands shall cause the righteous to rejoice and the wicked to rage; with the one it shall be had in honor, and with the other in reproach; yet with these it shall be a terror because of the great and marvelous work which shall follow the coming forth of this fullness of the gospel. Now go thy way, remembering what the Lord has done for thee, and be diligent in keeping his commandments and he will deliver thee from temptations and all the arts and devices of the wicked one. Forget not to pray, that thy mind may become strong, that when he shall manifest unto thee thou mayest have power to escape the evil, and obtain these precious things."—Messenger and Advocate, p. 199.

The fact that the Lord called Joseph to be his seer is conclusive evidence that he held far greater authority "to set up and establish the church" than any other of the elders, for "a seer is a revelator and a prophet also; and a gift which is greater can no man have, except he should possess the power of God, which no man can."—Mosiah 5: 10. There is not the slightest evidence in the Book of Mormon that David Whitmer, or any of his fellow elders, would ever be called to be seers, or anything like it.

The "interpreters" and sacred records were handed down from one prophet and seer to another, and these servants of God held the chiefest authority. See Mosiah 13: 1, with 4: 1; 1: 3; Alma 17: 5; 1 Nephi 2: 28; 2 Nephi 4: 5, 6, etc., etc. These were given to Joseph, thus proving his superior calling and authority.

ONE MAN LEADER.

Mr. Whitmer's insinuation that the church under Joseph's administration had "a one man leader," is not true in the sense in which he applies it.

No proper organization can exist without a head. A head is a necessity, in the very nature of things. This is as true of the church and kingdom of God as it is of every department of nature or of civilized governments. Melchizedek was the presiding head in Salem; so was Moses in Israel; so was James in the times of the apostles. (See Acts 15: 13-29, with Gal. 2: 11-14; also Antiquities of the Christian Church p. 58, and Eusebius Ecclesiastical History, chap. 20, par. 1, etc.)

In the church and kingdom of God the presiding head is appointed directly of God as in the case of Moses (Ex. 3: 2-10, etc.); Aaron, (Ex. 28: 1-43, etc.); Joshua, (Joshua 1: 1-9); Samuel, (1 Sam. 3: 4); Nephi, (1 Nephi 1: 19); Alma, (Alma 9: 6); Nephi the apostle, (Book of Nephi 5: 8); and true to this divine principle, the Lord by revelation appoints the presiding head of his church in these latter days, and selects the "choice seer" as we have before seen, and as may be further seen in Doctrine and Covenants 1: 4, 5; 17: 1; 19: 1-3; 23: 2-4; 27: 2, 4; 43: 1, 2; 87: 1-5; 105: 6, 7, 12; 107: 39, etc. Herein is divine wisdom, divine order, resulting in unity and harmony when faithfully observed. This kind of a "one man leader" the true church has from the first endorsed. This leader has his rights, privileges, authorities, duties and powers; but he thereby has no authority to infringe upon, nor interfere with, the reserved rights, privileges, authorities or duties of others. The rights of the individual members and individual ministers are each held sacred and inviolable in that divine system instituted and built up under Joseph the Seer. Before the church was organized the rights of the members were guaranteed, and when it was organized that fact was embedded in its very foundation, as will be seen in the following which provides that the consent of the people must be had and held sacred in organizing, building, and governing the church of God, for Joseph says:

"We now became anxious to have that promise realized to us, which the angel that conferred upon us the Aaronic Priesthood had given us, viz: that provided we continued faithful, we should also have the Melchisedec Priesthood, which holds the authority of the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. We had for some time made this matter a subject of humble prayer, and at length we got together in the chamber of Mr. P. Whitmer's house in order more particularly to seek of the Lord what we now so earnestly desired: and here to our unspeakable satisfaction did we realize the truth of the Savior's promise; 'Ask, and you shall receive, seek, and you shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you;' for we had not long been engaged in solemn and fervent prayer, when the word of the Lord came unto us in the chamber, commanding us that I should ordain Oliver Cowdery to be an elder in the Church of Jesus Christ, and that he also should ordain me to the same office, and then to ordain others as it should be made known unto us, from time to time: we were however commanded to defer this our ordination until such times as it should be practicable to have our brethren, who had been and who should be baptized, assembled together, when we must have their sanction to our thus proceeding to ordain each other, and have them decide by vote whether they were willing to accept us as spiritual teachers, or not, when also we were commanded to bless bread and break it with them, and to take wine, bless it, and drink it with them, afterward proceed to ordain each other according to commandment, then call out such men as the Spirit should dictate, and ordain them, and then attend to the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, upon all those whom we had previously baptized, doing all things in the name of the Lord."—Times and Seasons, vol. 3, p. 915.

The principles here commanded were strictly observed as will be seen in this historical passage:

"Whilst the Book of Mormon was in the hands of the printer, we still continued to bear testimony, and give information, as far as we had opportunity; and also made known to our brethren that we had received commandment to organize the church, and accordingly we met together for that purpose, at the house of the above mentioned Mr. P. Whitmer (being six in number) on Tuesday the sixth day of April, A. D. one thousand, eight hundred and thirty.

Having opened the meeting by solemn prayer to our heavenly Father, we proceeded (according to previous commandment) to call on our brethren to know whether they accepted us as their teachers in the things of the kingdom of God, and whether they were satisfied that we should proceed and be organized as a church according to said commandment which we had received. To these they consented by an unanimous vote. I then laid my hands upon Oliver Cowdery and ordained him an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. After which he ordained me also to the office of an elder of said church. We then took bread, blessed it, and brake it with them, also wine, blessed it, and drank it with them. We then laid our hands on each individual member of the church present that they might receive the gift of the Holy Ghost, and be confirmed members of the church of Christ. The Holy Ghost was poured out upon us to a very great degree. Some prophesied, whilst we all praised the Lord and rejoiced exceedingly. Whilst yet together I received the following commandment.

Revelation to Joseph Smith, jr., given April 6th, 1830." (See Doc. Cov. sec. 19.) Times and Seasons, p. 944-5.

From the foregoing we learn that, notwithstanding Joseph was called of God to be a prophet, seer, revelator, translator, and the presiding elder over his church, thus holding the very highest authority a mortal being can hold, yet the rights of the membership must be preserved sacred so that the ministry should not "lord it over God's heritage." Here is divine "one man" leadership; but it is defined, and limited. In keeping with this is the revelation through Joseph the Seer, September 1830, Doc. Cov. 27: 4, as follows:

"And my servant Joseph shall be appointed to preside over the conference by the voice of it. * * * Neither shall anything be appointed unto any of this church contrary to the church covenants, for all things must be done in order and by common consent in the church, by the prayer of faith."

The same principle is taught in sections 25: 1; 101: 2, 3; 107: 46, etc. By these things we see that, the "one man leader" appointed of God for the church is not an autocrat, a despot, a tyrant, nor a lordly, lawless priest as insinuated by D. Whitmer and others; but that he is God's servant to the church for Christ's sake, and that the rights of the subordinate ministers and the members are protected against priestly encroachment.

To further show that Joseph neither sought to be a "one man leader" in an arrogant, autocratic sense, but simply in the sense of being a chief servant of and for Christ; and to show that his teachings were always opposed to priestly dogmatism, despotism and domination; and to show also that he was a "one man leader" in the highest, best sense of that term, we give the following from his recorded teachings:

"At the sitting of the council of the 26 of March, 1833, according to the plan taught at the solemn assembly, which was, that the seven high priests who were sent from Kirtland to build up Zion, viz: Oliver Cowdery, W. W. Phelps, John Whitmer, Sidney Gilbert, Bishop Partridge, and his two counselors, should stand at the head of affairs, relating to the church, in that section of the Lord's vineyard; and these seven men, with the common consent of the branches comprising the church, were to appoint presiding elders, to take the watch care of the several branches, as they were appointed. Now, therefore, as many of the high priests, and elders, went up to Zion and commenced regulating and setting the branches in order, allowing themselves as much power by the authority of their priesthood, and gift of the Holy Ghost, as those set apart and appointed to preside over the branches; it became necessary to call the council now spoken of, to set in order the elders of Israel; when, after a long discussion, it was decided from the revelations, that the order taught in the solemn assembly, was correct; and that the elders, when they arrived at Zion, were bound by the authorities set in the church, to be submissive to the powers that be: their labors and callings being more particularly to push the people together from the ends of the earth to the places the Lord appointed. This decision in council gave general satisfaction, and the elders soon saw the beauty of every man in his place."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5: 738-9.

In 1835, May 2d, he taught the same principle as this quotation abundantly proves:

"President Joseph Smith then stated that the Twelve will have no right to go into Zion, or any of its stakes and there undertake to regulate the affairs thereof, where there is a standing High Council; but it is their duty to go abroad and regulate all matters relative to the different branches of the Church. When the Twelve are together, or a quorum of them, in any church, they will have authority to act independently, and make decisions, and those decisions will be valid. But where there is not a quorum, they will have to do business by the voice of the church. No standing High Council has authority to go into the churches abroad, and regulate the matters thereof, for this belongs to the Twelve. No standing High Council will ever be established only in Zion or one of its stakes. When the Twelve pass a decision, it is in the name of the church, therefore it is valid.

"No official member of the Church has authority to go into any Branch thereof, and ordain any minister for that church, unless it is by the voice of that branch. No elder has authority to go into any Branch of the church, and appoint meetings, or attempt to regulate the affairs of the church, without the advice and consent of the presiding elder of that branch."—Mill. Star, 15: 261.

In May, 1840, he still taught the same principles, as the following quotation proves:

"I say that the duties of the Seventies are more particularly to preach the gospel, and build up churches, rather than regulate them, that a High Priest may take charge of them. If a High Priest should be remiss in his duty, and should lead, or suffer the church to be led astray, depart from the ordinances of the Lord, then it is the duty of one of the Seventies, acting under the special direction of the Twelve, being duly commissioned by them with their delegated authority, to go to that church, and if agreeable to a majority of the members of said church, to proceed to regulate and put in order the same; otherwise, he can have no authority to act.

JOSEPH SMITH, junior."

Millennial Star, vol. 17: 775.

The Twelve instructed the church in harmony with this in 1839, for they said:

"We would also warn the elders, according to previous counsel not to go on to another's ground without invitation to interfere with another's privilege, for your mission is to the world and not to the churches.

We would also remark, that no man has a right to usurp authority or power over any church, nor has any man power to preside over any church, unless he is solicited and received by the voice of that church to preside. Preach the first principles of the doctrine of Christ, faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, repentance toward God, baptism in the name of Jesus for the remission of sins, laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment."—Times and Seasons, vol. 1, p. 14.

From all these facts we learn that Joseph was not an arrogant, over-reaching, despotic "one man leader;" neither would he suffer the ministry to be anything like it. While he was active, vigilant, and decisive in the exercise of his official authority, he studiously avoided interference with, or usurpation of, the rights and privileges of others, whether ministers or members; hence it is both false and cruel to even insinuate that he was a "one man leader" in a bad and unlawful sense.

One more quotation shall suffice to show that Joseph was a "one man leader" only in a rational, republican, scriptural way. In the winter of 1838-9, he and Hyrum and others of the ministry were in Liberty jail, Missouri, from whence he wrote to Bishop Partridge and the church as follows:

"Now concerning the places for the location of the Saints, we would say that we can not council you in this thing as well as if we were with you; and as to the things written to you before, we did not consider them binding. We would advise that while we remain in prison and in bondage, the affairs of the church be conducted by a general conference of the most faithful and respectable of the authorities of the church, and that the proceedings of the same be forwarded to your humble servants, and if there be any corrections by the word of the Lord they shall be freely transmitted, and we will cheerfully approve of all things which are acceptable to God. If anything should have been suggested by us or any names mentioned except by commandment or 'thus saith the Lord,' we do not consider it binding; therefore, we shall not feel grieved if you should deem it wisdom to make different arrangements."—Times and Seasons, vol. 1, p. 102.

In the foregoing quotations we have an overwhelming amount of written testimony to show (1), that David Whitmer had a desire to lead both Joseph and the church; (2), that Joseph, by virtue of his superior authority and gifts had primary and leading authority to "set up and establish the church;" and (3), that while he was a "one man leader" to the church, it was in a sensible, lawful, scriptural way; and (4), that he was neither a priestly autocrat, despot, or anything of that kind; and (5), that he carefully and plainly prohibited anything of the kind to the ministry. In these things we disprove the statements of David Whitmer and his fellows, and show them to be without foundation in fact.

SOME one has kindly sent us the following clipping, without saying whence it came.

A NOTABLE FACT.

"MR. EDWARD W. TULLIDGE has directed our attention to a matter of some interest. It is that the late Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was the third cousin to the Prophet Joseph Smith, George A. Smith, and Amasa M. Lyman. The proof of the fact is given in the book of the Lymans, published some years ago, in which the genealogy of that family line is given.

Those who were familiar with the mental peculiarities of the late President George A. Smith and the former Apostle A. M. Lyman, will observe that they appeared to be combined in the lately deceased great preacher. The first named was noted for perspicuity and clearness, and for being intensely practical. On the other hand, in his palmy days, Amasa M. Lyman was possessed of great fertility of imagination and fluency of speech, while he was also capable of the most intense and impassioned utterance. He became, in the very widest sense, a universalist, over-leaping at last the utmost bounds of Christianity, with special reference to the atonement. He had the same mental repugnance toward the recognition of any boundaries prescribed by creed manifested by Mr. Beecher.

"These peculiarities are not cited for the purpose of showing that hereditary proclivities had anything to do with the similarities, but simply because they existed, and on that account appear to be of some present interest. In connection with the fact of the relationship to Joseph Smith, it may not be overlooked that, in some of his grander flights, Mr. Beecher gave evidence of inspiration, but the marvelous organizing power, given to the Prophet directly from God, had no existence in him."

BRIGHAMITE COUNSEL.

"It is an old saying that there is no loss without some gain, and it is a true saying. This will undoubtedly be demonstrated in the operation of that clause in the Edmunds-Tucker bill disfranchising women. The purpose of that clause was to weaken the Mormon church and strike a blow at polygamy, but unless we are mistaken it will have a contrary effect. It is true, the Mormons will be deprived of the votes of their wives and daughters, but under the circumstances won't this be an advantage to the church? The oath which the men are required to take binds them to a promise not to aid or abet, counsel or advise, people to practice polygamy, which will naturally close the mouths of a good many men as to that offense; if the women had retained the franchise they would have been required to take the same oath, but with the loss of the right to vote, they retain the right to teach, preach and advise. Wouldn't the Loyal Leaguers howl if the Home Missionary list should be filled up with women, while the men took care of the polls."—Salt Lake Herald, March 12th.

Will the Herald encourage the Mormon "wives and daughters" to "aid, abet, counsel or advise people to practice polygamy"? Is this the way they would promote the religion of Christ and teach good citizenship! If this vicious course were adopted, the Brighamites would forfeit every claim upon the respect, consideration and sympathy of the civilized world, and would make sure and swift their utter overthrow.

JOSEPHITE CONFERENCE.

Elder J. C. Clapp, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints delivered a number of very fine lectures this week, in the Josephite chapel, beginning last Monday evening and ending Wednesday evening. His lectures were delivered in defense of the Book of Mormon, in reply to the Rev. Mr. Lamb, Baptist minister of Salt Lake City, who has written a pamphlet exposing the Book of Mormon from his standpoint, viz: grammatical errors and contradictions. These meetings were very interesting and well attended. Mr. Clapp left for Salt Lake City on Thursday morning, where he will endeavor to vindicate the truth of the Book of Mormon. It is thought he will remain in that city for several weeks.—Idaho Enterprise, March 12th.

FACE YOUR TROUBLE.

"I HAD plowed around a rock in one of my fields for over five years," said a farmer," and I had broken a mowing machine knife against it, besides losing the use of the ground in which it lay, all because I supposed it was a large rock, that it would take too much time and labor to remove it. But to-day, when I began to plow for corn, I thought that by and by I might break my cultivator against that rock; so I took a crow-bar, intending to poke around and find out its size once for all. And it was one of the surprises of my life to find that it was little more than two feet long. It was standing on its edge, and so light that I could lift it into the wagon without help."

"The first time you really faced your trouble you conquered it," I replied aloud, but continued to enlarge upon the subject all to myself, for I do believe that before we pray, or better, while we pray, we should look our troubles square in the face.

Imagine the farmer plowing around that rock for five years, praying all the while, "O Lord, remove that rock!" when he didn't know whether it was a big rock or a little flat stone!

We shiver and shake and shrink, and sometimes do not dare to pray about a trouble because it makes it seem so real, not even knowing what we wish the Lord to do about it, when if we would face the trouble and call it by its right name, one-half of its terror would be gone.

The trouble that lies down with us at night and confronts us on first waking in the morning, is not trouble that we have faced, but the trouble whose proportions we do not know.—Selected.

MAST, Iowa, March 16th, 1887.

NEW TRENTON, Ind., Feb. 20th.

Sister Frances:—I look every week to see if there are any letters from Southern Indiana. I have belonged to the church since I was twelve years old; was baptized by Bro. B. V. Springer. We have had no preaching in our branch for almost four years. We would like very much to have an elder come here. All the preaching we get is through the Herald and Hope.

I am glad the subject of dress has been mentioned, as that is something I am always interested in. It seems as if each one has a different opinion as to how we should dress. I don't like to see clothes made altogether plain, nor do I like to see goods all cut up into ruffles. I think there are two things to be considered when we talk of dressing, viz, age and circumstances; what would look well for me to wear, would not be at all becoming for my Grandmother. I once asked an elder (one of the twelve) how he thought the sisters should dress? He told me he thought a ruffle on the bottom of a skirt looked very well, and he always liked to see an overskirt. Perhaps the Saints who read this will think I am proud, and may be I am, but as long as I have to associate with the people of the world I want to look something like they do. I always feel more comfortable, when I am out in company, if I know that my clothes look well. One thing which we ought always to think of when buying a new garment is, can we afford it? While some are able to get cloth or silk dresses, others can wear nothing better than calico. I call it the wrong kind of pride to get what our conscience tells us we can not afford, simply because someone else has it.

Sister Frances, I would like to know just what you think it means in the Book of Covenants where it says:—"Let thy garments be plain and their beauty the work of thine own hands." Do you think we should never take a dress to a dressmaker to have it made? It may be that the dressmaker is a poor woman who has to make her own living in that way. I can not see that there is any more harm in having some of our sewing done, than for the farmer to go to the blacksmith to have his horse shod. He could learn to do it himself. But whether our outward appearance is stylish or otherwise, let us have on the robe of righteousness, that we may be worthy of a crown of eternal life.

I see so many are sending their birthday offerings, I will send mine, although my birthday is past.

Your sister,

EMMA CARMICHAEL.

MONDAMIN, Iowa, Jan. 31st.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—Allow me to enter, with a few thoughts that observation has furnished me. I wish to chat a few moments with the young sisters who are old enough to contemplate matrimony, (which, by the way should be at least twenty years). I would have you give the matter a thorough consideration, and be sure you understand the importance of such a step. It is a holy ordinance, ordered by our heavenly Father. In the first place, make "mother" your confidential friend and adviser; for who else upon earth has as much interest in your welfare, or would be as apt to give good counsel? Too many young girls go to other young girls no wiser than themselves for advice. It seems like the American people have never been careful enough on this subject, and young people treat it too lightly. Remember it is for life, or should be, although the courts are full of divorce cases every session.

I read not long ago of a young lady in Iowa who answered an advertisement for correspondence, and continued the correspondence, exchanging pictures, etc. The fellow (I will not call him gentleman) sent her a side view picture, and wrote her of land and property in Nebraska, causing her to believe that he was quite well to do. When they met she saw that he had but one eye, and altogether his appearance did not please her very much, but she married him and went with him to his Nebraska home, which alas! was a fraud also. She soon left him and returned to her parents a sadder and wiser girl. Now I hope there are none of our young sisters who would be found off their guard, or so ignorant of worldly vices as to be deceived in any such a way. And mothers, please pardon me for presuming to give advice to older people, but I see so much need of instruction from mothers to their daughters that I can not refrain from offering just a word or two. I believe it would save much sorrow and suffering if mothers were not afraid to talk plainly to their daughters. I say "afraid" because that seems to be the case. The young people of today have no thought or idea of the deeper things of life.

And young mothers, let us encourage our little ones to come to us with their little troubles, and sympathize with them in their trials, and they will not forget their source of comfort when they are grown, I am sure. Let us not look with disfavor upon their childish undertakings, if they are of an innocent nature. Continued discouragement will cause them to lose confidence in themselves, and probably retard their success in life. Or when they are older will grow indifferent to the wishes of their parents and go on in their own way, which is quite sure to be unprofitable to them. I think when old enough they should be taught sufficient independence, so they will learn to have good judgment and to think for themselves.

Now, dear sisters, I offer these disconnected thoughts in a bungling manner, hoping to hear from others more capable. May God help us all to be wise, that at least a few errors in life may be corrected in the rising generation.

Yours in the one faith,

CHRISTIE A. STUART.

MEDINA CITY, Tex., Feb. 11th.

Dear Home Column:—While reading Sr. Roberts letter of January 1st, I felt impressed to write to you, as her dear husband and our much beloved brother I. N. Roberts was with us at the time of the writing of her letter. He with Bro. Currie took New Year's dinner with us, we preparing the bread that perisheth, while they in return gave us the bread of life, for which we were made to rejoice and feel strengthened and encouraged to go on in the fight, for we know the deserter will not wear the victor's crown.

Now, dear sister Roberts: while we were trying to make our brethren's stay pleasant, our thoughts went out to you and your dear children, and we prayed to our heavenly Father to bless you in your loneliness, and I feel to rejoice that you have the promise of the Lord to sustain you. Now, dear sisters, let each of us strive for this same promise, for we know that he will sustain all who fully put their trust in him. I am striving in my weakness to help carry on the work, not by many dollars or cents, for we are poor. We save (by strictest economy) our few pennies to give to the Elders when they come to see us, so we have nothing to give to the Home Missionary Fund. I gather my children around me Sunday morning, and with the Hope lessons, a song, a prayer, a chapter read in the Bible and then verses recited by the children. Sr. Shepard's children unite with us, which makes an average of ten. We have no organized Sunday School. My heart is in the work and I am striving to put in my "mite," and pray that I may be faithful to the end. Pray for me that I fail not. Your sister in the one faith,

SOPHIA WIGHT.

Dear Sisters:—I believe it is a duty we owe to ourselves, our friends, and to society in general, to dress as becomingly as possible, both at home and abroad. It requires taste and judgment to choose such material and style of making as are best adapted to our age and condition in life, and is, I think, an art well worth studying; and almost, if not quite, as important as to know how to prepare wholesome food. And while we need not follow the fashions too closely, nor at all into extremes, we should have some regard for prevailing styles, to avoid being conspicuous. We should dress in such a manner as to be able to banish self from our thoughts, which we can not do if we are conscious of being over-dressed, or otherwise unsuitably clothed. And why should we try to crush all love for the beautiful out of our hearts, when the Creator has so plainly shown his approval of it? With what exquisite care he has notched the leaves of plants and trees, and with what artistic skill he has painted the flowers of the field!

SR. MARY.

THE following letter was not written for publication but we are pleased to have it, and thank the sister for sending it. Let us be encouraged, for the work is everywhere upward and onward. God is its author, and don't be troubled, for the time is coming when he will burn up everything connected with it which is not the truth of God, and he will cause sorrow and shame to come upon every one who ever may have thought to make lies their refuge. Let us be meek and humble, prayerful and faithful, that we may be able to abide the day of his coming.—Ed.

JONESPORT, Me., Feb. 18th.

Dear Sister Sarah:—I wish you could come down to our Sunday School and meetings, for they are growing better all the time. Our Sunday School has set people to work searching the scriptures. Questions are given out every school for the scholars to find in the scriptures and quite a number outside of the school are trying to find them, and some who never read their Bible before are reading it now. I was in one house Sunday after the school closed and found five searching the Scriptures. Our social meeting a week ago last Sunday was the best we ever had, the Spirit of the Lord was there in such power that every one in the house was affected. All of the dead Saints came to life and bore testimony of the truth, and some of the children in our choir felt the Spirit. One boy that never sings loud sang with all his might, and when asked why he sang so loud, said he could not help singing, and said that something shook him so that he could not keep still; and another said he felt just like talking that afternoon.

We have organized a reading club, and meet twice a week to read the Book of Mormon. We met at Eliza's last evening, and while I was reading the Spirit came upon me so forcibly that I could scarcely read at times; I never had such a testimony of the book before. I think the signs in Zion are encouraging. David Whitmer can't stay the progress of the work now. He is too late; for the Lord has commenced to work in power. Come down, for we want to see you very much.

LIZZIE WOODWARD.

Dear Column:—Please pardon me for writing so often, but we feel the need of help, help which comes from the Father of light and truth. The only preacher we have are the church papers, and our earnest desire is that they may be filled with such instructions or shall be plain, simple and easy to understand, for our papers are read by many that are seeking after truth, and as it has been our lot to be placed in the front, and most in danger of the enemy, we would like to ask those that write to the Herald to read and look at all their writings before sending them to the Herald and see if there is any thing to give light and to help those that are in darkness. How much valuable paper and ink has been wasted in this land of ours and how much time is spent in converse that had better not have been. I often sit and ponder on these things when I am alone I do hope and trust that the day is not far distant when the Saints will realize that they should stand shoulder to shoulder, and as one Spirit should guide us all, we must all wear the same adornments, that of a meek and quiet spirit.

I remain your sister,

H. I. LUSH.

BIRD CITY, Kansas, Mar. 1st.

Dear Sister Frances:—My mother has been very sick. I desire the Saints to pray for her. The Home Column is getting very interesting to me. I did not give it much thought at first, but lately I believe the Home Column is better than the rest of the Herald—if I am any judge of reading—of course it's all good, and it would be very hard indeed for me to give it up, but lately it sounds so strange it makes me wonder if the editors have a waste basket—confessing my own ignorance of course in the matter.

In bonds,

MARY CARTER.

WEBB CITY, Mo., March 6th.

Sister Frances:—I have been both strengthened and encouraged in this great latter day work while reading the letters in the Home Column; and I felt from the first letter that the birth-day pennies would accomplish a great work, and prove a great blessing to both the church and the sisters. We as mothers have many trials and temptations to overcome, but our Lord will help us, if we only ask him in faith, believing; and while we have our trials, also do our husbands have as great trials, and many times come home tired with the care of this life; and if they find peace and love at home, it makes their trials lighter. Dear sisters, our actions at home many times speak louder for, or against, this latter day work than our elders can preach; therefore, let us be watchful and prayerful that we may live worthy of the name we bear, and of God's mercies and blessings. My greatest desire is to see this work prosper. May God give us all strength to press on to the end, is my prayer.

Your sister in the one faith,

ARMENIA SUTHERLAND.

LITTLE SIOUX, Iowa, Mar. 11th.

Bro. Blair:—I came here per request on February 26th, and have been preaching constantly since then. Am having full and crowded houses every evening, and best of attention. Many tell me the interest is unprecedented. I have enjoyed excellent liberty all the time, and we have had several special prayer services at three in the afternoon, that have been well attended for day services, and an excellent spirit has pervaded them. In some few instances the Lord has wisely and peculiarly blessed me. On last Sunday two persons were baptized. The interest seems to increase. On the evening of the 8th inst I delivered an especial lecture to boys and young men, ranging from fourteen years to thirty-five years of age, on "Elements of Character;" the house was well filled, and they gave me very respectful attention. Had all parties been permitted to attend, the edifice would not have held one fourth the people. I enjoyed excellent liberty of speech. I feel well in my labors here, and good is being done through the blessing of the Lord. To him be the glory. To-day marks the sixteenth anniversary of my ministry, and through it all the Lord has been with me, however sore many trials to me have been.

Yours,

J. F. McDOWELL.

Dear Herald:—I am still one in the ranks of Zion, trying to magnify my office and calling. I left home, Kewanee, Henry county, Illinois, October 25th, 1886, anticipating meeting loving ones, dear to me by the ties of nature, and opening their "priest locked" hearts, to receive the pure testimony of Jesus. But alas! as yet how small the opening. Circumstances in the coal trade caused me to procure a pass over the sea on the "Red Star Line" of steam ships, consequently I landed in Antwerp, Belgium, instead of London, which I first desired. After a very pleasant voyage of eleven days I found myself favored with a view of France and Belgium, I soon left Antwerp upon an English schooner, went some two hundred and thirty miles back, passed through the English channel to Harwich, then by rail sixty miles to London. Upon my arrival I expected to find my brother William at his residence, Trafalgar Inn, 28, West India Dock Road, London E. But upon reaching the door, the first news that greeted my ear was, "Your brother William is dead and buried since September 6th 1886. This, so unexpected, was very hard to bear, for I had flattered myself with the fond hope of not only enjoying his company, talking of home, its childhood endearments, but of how to prepare for the life to come. My fond anticipations were blasted. And God only knows the feelings of my poor heart. But calling to mind the uncertainty of life, as well as the most important of all duties in this probation, to prepare ourselves to meet the Creator of the universe, I said in my heart, "O my God, help me to be true; yes, true to my covenant with thee when I in humility passed through the waters of regeneration, and keep me true through all trying scenes, that meet us by the way."

After a short stay with my deceased brother's family, who treated me with all the kindness possible, I bent my way to my parents, where I am now writing. They seemed overjoyed in seeing me, and I have had to stay with them longer than I anticipated and this by reason of my poor mother's illness. She is now in her eighty-second year, and father is in his eighty-first year, but very smart. I will tell you what I have witnessed among the Saints. Twenty years had passed since I last saw many of them. I felt desirous of visiting the branches in Wales. I took train to Bro. Thomas E. Jenkins', Dowlais, staying with him awhile, renewing old acquaintance, finding him still firm in his mission, strong in the faith as ever, but (more the pity) unable in body to carry out the desire of his heart in the good work. I know him to be a true, honest, upright man of God, having seen him in severe adversity as well as prosperity, when I was so favored with his company some twenty years ago. Soon I found myself with the Saints in Cardiff—an English Branch. They greeted me with delight during my week's stay. I encouraged them still onward, onward to victory. While there I buried one dear soul in baptism and confirmed her.

From there I went to Ogmores branch and labored with them awhile with apparent success; then went to Morrington branch and stayed at the home of Bro. John R. Gibbs. Prosperity seemed to attend the work while there. Bro. Gibbs and I visited a Brighamite branch at Swansea, and upon entering the meeting I was met by Mr. David Williams, late of Canton, Illinois, who appeared very sociable to us, requesting us to stay, which we did during the meeting; but to my surprise I found in his company a young, fine appearing woman, said to be his wife, (Miss, I call her), with a little babe nine or ten months old. He told me he had been here since April, 1886. We listened attentively, and noted their testimonies. They all seemed to be building their hopes upon evidence given of the work a great many years ago, before their church had embraced its now damning evils; but no testimony did I hear of their present enjoyment of God's Holy Spirit. The poor dupes prayed to God to bless and sustain their prophet, seer and revelator, John Taylor. O how I wished to tell them of their sad mistakes, giving them evidence from the law of the Lord. But no; they are not sent to be taught, but to teach the great mysteries of their priesthood. Bosh!

We left them, expecting in the near future to meet them one at a time, and by words of kindness, seasoned with the truth, set the prisoners free.

Returning to Swansea, Bro. Gibbs went with me to Llanelly branch, held three meetings with the Saints in their neat little chapel, Sunday, February 20th. Bro. Gibbs returned home that evening, but I remained with the Saints until Wednesday morning. I returned back to Bro. Jenkins', and afterwards went to Nantyglo branch. During my stay at Llanelly I baptized two, and not boasting, I have endeavored while upon my tour among the branches chiefly, yea, above all, to impress firmly upon the minds of all, not to build their salvation upon the noted influence of our approval by the good Spirit yesterday, but seek God daily for his approval,—then we can never be deceived,—for our work consists in subduing the natural man (self) as well as bringing others into the work, and not to be ransacking the invisible worlds with our puny minds, hunting for mysterious theories. We must not "despise the day of small things," if we expect to become successful in the conflict for life eternal.

It is a pity that some active, energetic man could not be kept and sustained in Wales, traveling and preaching in both languages. What might the harvest be! Great, great! I am satisfied there are thousands of honest souls that would receive the truth, if only presented to them in the Savior's way.

Yours in the gospel,
JOHN D. JONES.

GREENVILLE, Pa., March 9th.

Editors Herald:—Having organized the few Saints at Krumroy, Ohio, into a branch, and placing Bro. George Rosser at the head thereof, also adding two more to their number by baptism, we started for Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, to attend the district conference, which convened on the 29th of January. The spirit of peace and brotherly love prevailed throughout the entire session, the reports from the many branches showed that the work in the district had made rapid progress, and that the aspects for a greater work to be done in the near future were never brighter than now. Bro. R. S. Salyards, James Brown, W. Peak, and others of the ministry are laboring in the district at present, so we are looking forward to the time when we shall reap a grand harvest. Brethren Bishop Blakeslee and E. L. Kelley were in attendance, and they truly did the Saints much good. The Bishop gave us one of his able sermons on finance. Bro. E. L. Kelley delivered an excellent discourse, taking for his subject the doctrine of Christ. Both Saints and sinners were highly pleased with his efforts. On the 31st brother Blakeslee and I left for Wheeling, W. Va. From here the bishop went home, and I went by steamer down as far as Syracuse, Ohio, where I preached for nearly a week in the Saints' chapel, which by the way is a fine building, a credit to the Saints, and an honor to God. Had large audiences and enjoyed good liberty. Bro. Thomas Matthews, David Hopkins, John Harris, David Thomas and others of the brethren are doing all in their power to keep the standard of the gospel before the people. It seems to me that Bro. Thomas Mathews ought to be sustained in the missionary field by all means. He is a wise builder, and a very able expounder of the truth. Also highly respected by all who know him in the church. Such men ought to be placed where they can do the most good for the church.

Bro. Blair while here my mind went back to the time you first visited Syracuse, in 1865 or 6. I was then a very small boy, but I remember the day when you got off the boat, also the time you baptized my father and mother. If I am not mistaken you blessed me at this time. The thought did not enter my mind then, that I should be sent there to preach the gospel in some future day. The old people whom you knew have all gone to their home of rest, prepared by the Father above, with the exception of brother William Davis and wife.

I went next to Vales Mills, Vinton county,

The Saints in that place number about seventy-five, and the branch is presided over by Bro. Jeffers who has a number of able young men to aid him in his work. Bro. L. R. Devore, T. J. Beatty and Jas. Moler organized this branch. During my stay preached some seven or eight times to crowded houses, and baptized two persons. My next stop was at Buchtel, Athens county, where I preached the gospel and baptized four. Bro. D. S. Hannah, wife and his aged mother, sister Flora Hannah live here. The latter sister desires the prayers of all the Saints in behalf of her afflicted daughter.

I reached home on the 22d ult., but soon left again for Conneautville, Pa., but the roads being so bad I came here. Am preaching every night in Packard's Hall of this city, to large audiences; do not know what the result will be. Bro. Wm. H. Garrett and family reside here, and they are indeed an honor to the church. They hold meetings and Sabbath School every Sunday, and they are only six in number—just one family. I wish the Saints everywhere would bring up their little children in the same manner. How long would it then be, dear Saints, until we would have an army of young people ready to carry on the great work of God to final victory! I sincerely pray that I shall have power given me by my heavenly Father to enable me to do the work well that he has for me to do, so that I shall be worthy to dwell in his presence when he comes to make his abode with his Saints on this earth. I feel well in body and strong in spirit, and am determined by the help of the Spirit of God to continue the warfare, as I am confident that there is no salvation outside of the Church of Jesus Christ. Those who attended the Conference at Kirtland four years ago will hardly know the temple when they come this spring. The outlook when I left home was that the building would be completed from top to bottom by April 6th. Will all who desire newspapers during the conference please send word in time. Remember price, thirty-five cents per week. Address Kirtland, Lake county, Ohio.

Yours hopefully,
GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

OENAVILLE, Texas, March 10th.

Editors Herald:—We have just closed one of the best conferences ever held in the South-western Mission. Everybody seemed to enjoy the Spirit of our Master as never before. The Saints here are rejoicing in the good work; have built them a nice little church where they can worship God without fear of having doors closed against them. Since writing to you from Bandera, I have been greatly blessed in the Master's cause; have reorganized the Bandera Branch, and when heard from last, they were enjoying themselves nicely. The Medina City Branch, and the Oakwood branch are doing well.

As far as I have been over the Mission the work is in a good spiritual condition. We are all hoping and praying for help from General Conference this year that will stay with us. The calls are coming to me from all parts of the Mission. Brethren, who will come to the rescue? Souls are precious in the sight of our God. The most of my work this year has been in the branches, setting them in order. I have three more to visit yet. From this you can see that we need help. Brethren, will you come? May God help you and bless you with his Spirit that you may not only testify of your calling to the priesthood, but that you realize the necessity of magnifying and honoring the call to the honor of God and the salvation of the people.

I leave here the 11th inst in company with Bro. T. W. Sherrill for Peoria, in Hill county. The Adventists have agreed to let us use their church. From there I will try and make my way to the rest of the churches I have not visited as yet. I would love to be at conference, but the scarcity of means and the demands of the work forbids. The local brethren are doing good here now; every one is at his post. I am pleased with the Herald's defense of truth against the Whitmerites, also Bro. J. R. Lambert on the Gurley movement.

Yours,

I. N. ROBERTS.

BANDERA, Texas, March 11th.

Bro. Joseph:—The Bandera Branch was dead for some time, but Bro. I. N. Roberts has been among us stirring us up to a sense of our duty. He reorganized the branch on the 14th of January, 1886, with seven members, some of the original members having been previously united in a branch at Medina City, this county; and there are also others that have not come in as yet. We have since received two sisters into the branch, one by petition and one upon certificate of baptism. We are now trying to "shake off the coals from our garments," and by the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ we intend to try henceforward to do our duty as far as we learn it. As far as I am concerned, the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak. I have a license as an elder, but I have not sent a report in so long that I don't know but my name has been dropped from the roll of the quorum of the Seventies, I have forgotten which one I belonged to. My license is of the old style, and if I were to go out to preach, the people may think I am a Brighamite. Is the old style of license sufficient?

Yours for the truth,

W. H. DAVENPORT.

MILLERSBURG, Ills., March 11th.

Bro. Blair:—We are still trying to hold on to "the rod of iron." We still hold meetings every Sabbath at the Saints' Church. February 19th I had the pleasure of baptizing Alexander Agy. I believe he will assist the onward rolling of the cause. There are a great many inquiring after the truth, yet but few seem ready to obey. Perhaps the work will ere long revive as before time, when God's Spirit burned with a steady glow. Old scenes are ever fresh in the mind when we all could say, "Truly, the Lord is present." Those glorious meetings of the past will ever stand as a testimony to the truth of God in this place.

As ever for the truth,

E. T. BRYANT.

ONE-HALF million temperance tracts in the German and Scandinavian languages have just been published by the National Foreign Department of W. C. T. U. They have also Tracts in the Polish, Holland, Italian, Bohemian and Spanish languages, and it is hoped that every church and Temperance Society will send for some at once for distribution. A sample package will be sent for 10 cents and 1000 pages for one dollar. Address all orders to Nat'l Dept. of Foreign Work. Lock box 837, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

LOST ISRAEL.

THIS is a day when men are finding a great many reasons and form a great many conjectures from the pages of history about the lost tribes of Israel, all giving their views and opinions, some of which do first rate for a story, but fall short of the truth for the simple reason they do not seek to understand the words of God as he has revealed them to us his children. There is no doubt that the seed of the children of Israel have been scattered abroad among all the nations of the earth, and that the Lord had a design and purpose in so doing. But to say that such scattering ones are the ten lost tribes, lacks the proof needed to sustain it. The children of the world have many conjectures and many theories as to who the American Indians are, and who built and peopled the many ruined cities found on the continent of America. And after all has been said and done, the mystery remains unsolved, simply because they will not accept of the testimony of the Book of Mormon. And so the mystery of the lost tribes will remain an unsolved problem to all those who will not accept of the revelations of God through Joseph the seer. True, men do not believe in the revelations of God, in this so-called age of wisdom and much learning; and the idea that there should be a people living in the north country, behind those ice mountains, don't seem reasonable to the reasonings of men; and yet there is good evidence to believe that there may be a people living there; for geographers tell us that there is over one million square miles in the north that is a blank on the map of the world. Men who live in the north tell us that the wild geese fly north as well as south on the coming of winter, and when returning in spring some of them have been killed and there have been found in them grains of a different kind than is known among men of this part of the earth. Polar explorers have traveled over the ice till they have come to open waters; trunks and branches of trees have been found embedded in the ice; and as the flow of ice is always from the north, where have they come from? There is also the testimony of the captains of the whaling ships who have seen land and people thereon, and of the ship's crew who were all sworn and all did testify that they saw a strange land beyond the ice, and people thereon who spoke in Hebrew, wishing to trade with them. The Symmes Hole theory (that there is there a hollow in the earth) may not be true, yet it has not been proved to the contrary. And since astronomers ask us to believe that there are planets that seem hollow, why may it not be so with our earth? Men have climbed to the top of the highest snow-capped mountains,

THE TWO PATHS.

BY FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

My Master, they have wronged thee and thy love,
They only told me I should find the path
A Via Dolorosa all the way.
Even thy sweetest singers only sang
Of pressing onward through the same sharp thorns
With bleeding footsteps; through the chill, dark mist,
Following and struggling till they reach the light,
The rest, the sunshine of the Far Beyond.
The anthems of the pilgrimage were set
In most pathetic minors, exquisite,
Yet breathing sadness more than praise.
Thy minstrels let the fitful breezes make Eolian moans on their entrusted harps,
Until the listeners thought that this was all
The music thou hadst given. And so the steps
That halted where the two ways met and crossed,
The broad and narrow, turned aside in fear,
Thinking the radiance of their youth must pass
In somber shadows if they followed thee;
Hearing afar such echoes of one strain—
The cross, the tribulation, and the toil,
The conflict, and the clinging in the dark!
What wonder that the dancing feet were stayed
From entering the only path of peace!

Master, forgive them! Tune their harps anew
And put a new song in their mouths for thee!
Lord Jesus, thou hast trodden once for all
The Via Dolorosa, and for us!
No artist-power or minstrel-gift may tell
The cost to thee of each unflinching step.
When love that passeth knowledge led thee on,
Faithful and true to God, and true to us,
And now, beloved Lord, thou callest us
To follow thee, and we will take thy word
About the path thou hast marked for us.
Narrow indeed it is; who does not choose
The narrow track upon the mountain side,
With ever widening view, and freshening air,
And honeyed heather, rather than the road,
With smoothest breadth of dust, and loss of view,
Soiled blossoms not worth gathering, and the noise
Of wheels instead of silence of the hills,
Or music of the waterfalls? Oh why Should they misrepresent thy words, and make "Narrow" synonymous with "very hard?"
For thou, Divinest Wisdom thou hast said
Thy ways are ways of pleasantness, and all
Thy paths are peace; and that the path of him
Who wears thy perfect robe of righteousness
Is as the light that shineth more and more Unto the perfect day! And thou hast given
An olden promise, rarely quoted now,
Because it is too bright for our weak faith;
"If they obey and serve him, they shall spend
Days in prosperity, and they shall pass
Their years in pleasure," all because thy days
Were full of sorrow, and thy lonely years
Were passed in grief's acquaintance—all for us!
Master, I set my seal that thou art true!
Of thy good promise not one word hath failed.
And I would send a ringing challenge forth
To all who know thy name to come and tell
Thy faithfulness to every written word,
Thy loving-kindness crowning all the days;
To say and sing with me, "The Lord is good;
His mercy is forever, and his truth
Is written on each page of all my life!"
Yes! There is tribulation; but thy power
Can blend it with rejoicing. There are thorns,
But they have kept us in the blessed way,
The King's highway of holiness and peace.
And there is chastening, but the Father's love
Flows through it; and would any trusting heart
Forego the chastening, and forego the love?
And every step leads on to "more and more."
From strength to strength thy pilgrims pass, and sing
The praise of Him who leads them on and on,
From glory unto glory even now."

dived deep into the ocean, sailed away above the clouds, and accomplished many wonderful feats of human power, but they never yet have crossed those ice mountains. In spite of all the extra precautions against the ills and troubles that caused others to fail who had before made the attempt, yet all has ended in disaster, and why? Because God the Father will not grant permission. Men may say that this is nonsense, but this is not written for the wise in the wisdom of the world, but for the simple, those who still believe that God is the same to-day and forever, and that he ever reveals the truth to those who trust in him.

Let us learn from the Book of Nephi, 7:3:

"And verily, verily I say unto you, that I have other sheep which are not of this land, neither of the land of Jerusalem, neither in any parts of the land round about whither I have been to minister; for they of whom I speak are they who have not as yet heard my voice. But I have received a command of the Father that I shall go unto them, and they shall hear my voice." &c.

This completely upsets the theory that the people of the British Isles are the lost tribes; for there is not such a thing on record as that Jesus ever visited them in person. And we learn from chapter eight, Book of Nephi, that the tribes of Israel are not lost unto the Father, for he knoweth whether he hath taken them; showing to us that they are as yet lost to the world of mankind. We also learn from Doc. Cov. 108:6:

"And they who are in the north countries shall come in remembrance before the Lord, and their prophets shall hear his voice, and shall no longer stay themselves; and they shall smite the rocks, and the ice shall flow down at their presence. And a highway shall be cast up in the midst of the great deep," &c.

This is only a small part of the evidence that can be produced from the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, to prove that the lost tribes of Israel are indeed in the north countries, and that there they will remain till it pleases the Lord to bring them forth, and this is why we as a people do believe that they are there. For no matter how strange or unreasonable it may be to the minds of men, to the Lord of Hosts there is nothing impossible. And although we may not understand all his doings, it is much better to believe in what has been revealed through his word to us, than to trust to the theories and imaginations of men.

TYPE OF HOLY BAPTISM.—No. 1. □

"The earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep, and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."—Gen. 1:2.

A mighty deep is holy scripture, and may we hope to fathom it to the bottom? The self-conceited student will never see beyond its surface, and will miss its hidden mysteries. With extreme reverence and humility should we ever open the holy volume and approach it with the sole desire to know and do the truth. Mere cleverness can not judge of the deep things of God's holy law.

"The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto Him, neither can he know them because they are spiritually discerned."—1 Cor. 2:14-16.

Faith and humility recognised Jesus in the flesh as the Son of God. Pride and self-righteousness knew him not. So in God's word; faith and humility see Christ there and everywhere; but the proud and learned see him not. Mere cleverness criticises and distorts the word of God to its own will: faith is always urged to exclaim with lowly adoration and awe, "Surely, the Lord is in this place and I knew it not."—Gen. 28:16. When we read Holy Scripture we should never be contented with looking at the letter only, but try to probe into the hidden meaning. When the alabaster box of ointment is broken, then do we perceive the preciousness of its contents. So when God's words are broken by meditation, do we find what precious truths they contain. Many a mystery is lying enshrined in type and figure; and through these we may often gain the truest knowledge of the realities of the kingdom of God. Again we should remember that, as God is one, so is His word. One part can not contradict the other, but must, rightly understood, explain and agree with it. The New Testament is the development of the old. The gospel is the law fulfilled. The law veiled the gospel. The Bible, from beginning to end is full of Christ and his kingdom. (Gen. 28:12-15). And as the kingdom of nature has the same author as the kingdom of grace, so doubtless the natural world is full of analogies to the spiritual. The seed that lies in the ground and rots, and in due time springs up again, is, we know, as St. Paul says, the emblem of our death and resurrection. (1 Cor. 15:34-40). And we are bold to say that this is no chance resemblance, but that the seed was so organized in order that it might be a visible figure of these things. "The works of the Lord are great; sought out of all them that have pleasure therein." But never does their sublime greatness, never does the pleasure derived from them so affect us as when we can discern in them the typical representations of the mysteries of our higher being. As, then, the Lord of the old creation is one with the Lord of the new, we should at the very outset expect to find some intimate connection between them, and so it is. The commencement of the gospel by St. John, for instance, can not fail to turn our thoughts to the commencement of the book of Genesis, for John says:

"In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him."—John 1:1, 2.

And Genesis 1:1 reads:

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

And thus, too, our blessed Lord is called "the true light," evidently referring to that light in the natural creation which was the "figure of the true." (John 1:9). The Apostle Paul remarkably connects the two creations,

"Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: For by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him: And he is before all things, and by him all things consist: And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence."—Col. 1:15-18.

And again, he says,

"For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us."—Heb. 9:24.

Since, then, it is plain that we are justified in tracing a resemblance between the two creations, let us reverently attempt to do this with reference to the text, and see whether it be not true in each case that God "layeth the beams of His chambers in the waters;" that as in the spiritual, no less in the natural creation, "the Spirit moves upon the face of the waters;" and so "the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life."

Before the mysterious incubation of the Holy Spirit we read that the earth was "without form and void," and "darkness was upon the face of the deep. How true an image of man in his fallen state! By his fall the whole of his being was perverted; darkness settled down upon his whole nature; the grace he had received was forfeited. Alienated from God, he was alienated from the light, and his foolish heart was darkened. The wonderful harmony which before existed in his will and understanding was destroyed, and his lower appetites were full of disorder and confusion, yea, "dead in trespasses and sins." When, therefore, the first creation had thus fallen, in the first Adam, by his transgressing against the commandments of God, he lost the presence of God, and was cast out of Eden. But God did not forsake him utterly, but gave him commandments to obey by which he might come again into His presence, by the sacrifice of his only begotten Son; (Gen. 3:9-15, Insp. Trans.); and by obedience he realized the promise and looked forward to the coming of the Savior of all mankind in the meridian of time. The Eternal Father out of the love He bore the world, sent his only begotten Son to take upon himself our nature in the womb of the blessed virgin, the Holy Ghost coming upon her and the power of the Highest overshadowing her, so that two whole natures,—that is to say, the Godhead and manhood,—were joined together in one person never to be divided. The Son of God incarnate became the new head of the human race, the second Adam; and, "forasmuch as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also, himself likewise took part of the same, that through death," He might redeem us from death, purge us from our sins by his precious blood, and open up a channel to the whole human family through regeneration and grace for communion with God.

"According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partaker of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience, godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and can not see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins."—

2 Peter 1:3-9.

Here let it be noticed, that at our natural birth we are in the first Adam, as says the Psalmist David, "shapen in iniquity, and conceived in sin." And as we all have "sinned and come short of the glory of God," and have "the wrath of God abiding upon us," it is necessary therefore, that we should in some way be united to the second Adam, so that as we were dead in the first Adam, we might in Christ, the second Adam, be made alive. To effect this marvelous incorporation, the sacrament of holy baptism has specially been ordained by Christ himself. By obedience to it we are made partakers of the Divine nature. In him we again live and move and have our being, "in him is life," and his life is the light of men. "He that hath the Son hath life;" and he that hath not the Son, hath not life. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature. Old things are passed away; and behold, all things are become new." The body of Christ into which we are thus baptized, is called his church. Says the apostle, "And gave him to be the head over all things to the church, which is his body." And sometimes it is called his kingdom. Our Lord says: "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of God." These latter words at once connect our regeneration, or new birth, with the text. We now begin to see the true meaning of this portion of the work of creation. Very mysterious is the way in which water is first mentioned. So integrally is it connected with the handiwork of God, that it is nowhere said to be made. It is even antecedent to the light. "The Spirit of God moved over the face of the waters." But the eye of faith can catch a glimpse into the intent of the mystery, and it beholds the same Spirit brooding over the baptismal waters, as really and truly as then. In the beginning of the natural creation "the Spirit moved upon the face of the waters, at the baptism of him who is "the beginning of the creations of God," the Holy Ghost descended in the form of a dove, and alighted upon Christ coming up from the baptismal waters. So in the case of every obedient one to God's plan, the Spirit still moves "upon the face of the waters," and consecrates them to be a lever of regeneration, or new birth. And thus we are led on to notice the result of the operation of the Holy Ghost in each case. At the first, as we have seen, there was a rude and unarranged heap, shapeless and empty. But when the Spirit of God had brooded over the waters and vivified their nature so as to prepare them for generation, then light appeared, and order and harmony took the place of confusion and discord. The waste world, visited neither by the brightness of the sun, the pale light of the moon, nor the gleaming of the stars, was formless and viewless matter, vast abysses covered with fearful darkness. The Spirit of God alone was seated upon and borne over the waters, guiding and controlling them, and with a likeness to baptism, in its birth gave life to the world. Since as the seat of the Spirit of God water was more favored than any other element, (for as yet all was darkness, shapeless, undecked with stars, a gloomy abyss, an unprepared earth, an unformed sky), water alone as an ever perfect matter, cheerful, simple, pure of its own nature, yielded itself as an appropriate chariot to God.

Herein is also recognized that first notice of baptism. For by this very position was it foreshown as a figure of baptism, that the Spirit of God, which in the beginning was borne above the waters, should abide upon them as the baptizer. And through these means the baptized emerge from the waters enlightened; and whereas, all before was disturbed and chaotic, now a principle of order and concord prevails. No longer is the will enslaved, the understanding obscured, and the whole moral being confused and disorganized. For though the infection of nature doth still remain, so that evil passions, impure desires, and carnal appetites continue to tempt, yet we may overcome them if we will.

Again take notice how we are specially told that the waters "brought forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life." The Spirit is, as we confess the Lord, the Giver of life, spiritual as well as natural. The child of Adam descends into the water dead in sin. He comes forth from it dead to sin, freed from its guilt and its power. As the apostle Peter told the Jews on the day of Pentecost, he is "baptized for the remission of his sins." The apostle Paul says:

"Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection."—Rom. 6:1-5.

He is "buried with Christ in baptism," wherein also he is risen with him, quickened together with him, and endued with new spiritual life. Before we can move a step, God must give us life, power, and motion. And yet, as we have free-will, we must yield our will to his will, and our spirit to be led by his Spirit. Or else, though "born again," we shall die. We are his workmanship, "created in Christ Jesus unto good works." After our natural birth, we require to be sustained by food and our limbs made strong by exercise. And thus after our spiritual birth, if the life within us be not sustained, and our whole being exercised by the performance of those "good works" for which we were purified and made a peculiar people, doubtless it will gradually be benumbed and paralyzed. It will droop, dwindle away, and die. And the life that each regenerate man is to live, is not according to the flesh, but a high, a holy and heavenly life.

Turn we, by way of illustration, to one of our Lords' parables: "The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a grain of mustard seed, which when sown it groweth up and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches, so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it." And so again we read, in the prophet Ezekiel, regarding the cedar, typical of Christ's Church, or the kingdom of heaven; "In the mountain of the house of Israel will I plant it, and it shall bring forth boughs and bear fruit, and be a goodly cedar, and under it shall dwell all fowl of every wing." The fowls of the air, flying above the earth in the open firmament of heaven, are surely the just in the kingdom of heaven, God's kingdom of grace, those who mind not earthly things, but "set their affections on things above, not on things on the earth," who "mount up with wings as eagles." In this kingdom of heaven, all fowl of every wing, may find shelter and safety. "Born again"—of water and of the Spirit.—John 3:5. Here may all christians find "a covert from the storm, and a refuge from the tempest." Here may the young and immature disciple, as well as the strong and more perfect find all that they can desire. Here may he "go on from strength to strength," till he "comes to the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." The regenerate man can not be satisfied with the pleasures and delights of the earth. He must, as a winged fowl, soar above it. His citizenship is in heaven. There is his treasure, his hope, his joy, his God; there must his heart be also. And this should be the life of those who have been "born again, . . . of water and of the spirit. For verily, this is the oath that he swore to our forefather Abraham, that he would "bless him, and multiply his seed as the stars of heaven."

All in the unregenerate child
Is void and formless, dark and wild,
Till the life giving, holy dove,
Upon the waters gently move
And power imparts, soft, brooding there,
Celestial fruit to bear.

How strange that Christ's doctrine regarding holy baptism should now be to any an "offense" and "stumbling block!" Strange that any should ask, "what good can a little water do?" when, from the beginning, "water" was the first element from which by the power of God all things sprung. On the brooding of the Spirit, "water" became, in a manner, a plastic instrument to order the world God-ward. Water first yielded what had life, lest it should be a strange thing that in baptism water should impart life. Surely, in reading the text we can not but agree that it sounds as if it had a prophetic signification, and prefigures the mystery of the baptism of the people. To be "born of water and of the Spirit," then, we who have been obedient to the commands of God in these the latter days, and have "witnessed before many" that we have received of the Spirit of the living God, see we to it that we make not light of our new birth, lest we be taken unawares, making light of the Holy Spirit of God. See we to it, also, that our baptism witnesses for us, and not against us, at the great day! As water is the prime channel of life, so we shall see in other types, it is of destruction. Baptism approves the soldier; it convicts the deserter. Let none of us, then, be found a deserter. Let baptism remain as arms; faith as an helmet; charity as a spear; patience as your "whole armor."

We know that "whosoever is born of God, continueth not in sin. But he who is begotten of God, and keepeth himself, that wicked one overcometh him not. And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedness."—1 John 5: 18, 19, Insp. Trans. "This, then, is the message which we have heard of Him; and we declare it unto you, that God is light, and in Him is no darkness at all." "If we say that we have fellowship with Him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light as He is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanseth us from all sin."

In conclusion, we pray God our heavenly Father to guide and keep the true church, his children, in his pure and holy light from henceforth, that we may be guided by his Holy Spirit to do his will upon the earth according to his most righteous will, that when he comes we may hear him say "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

FAULT FINDING—WHAT IS IT?

"SEE that ye love one another; cease to be covetous; learn to impart one to another as the gospel requires; cease to be unclean, cease to find fault one with another."—Doc. Cov. 85: 38.

"And I myself also am persuaded of you my brethren, that ye also are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also to admonish one another."—Rom. 15: 14.

"For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord; walk as children of light. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them."—Eph. 5: 8, 11.

"Now we exhort you brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble minded, support the weak, be patient towards all men."—1 Thess. 5: 14.

Observed. If the announcement by one party to another of his faults is faultfinding under all circumstances, then is Paul seemingly out of harmony with Joseph the Seer: or else the seer is out of joint with the apostle. If one Saint shall admonish, reprove, or warn his fellow-saint in regard to his faults, is he necessarily finding fault with him? If my brother sees me do that which he knows is unbecoming in me as a member of the household of faith, must he refrain to mention it lest he be numbered with the fault finders. Which of the prophets, apostles, and martyrs were not accounted as fault finders by those opposed to them? When Nephi reproveth his brethren for their conduct on the ship, was not he to them a great fault finder, and did he not suffer accordingly?

Abinadi told King Noah and his priests of their iniquities, and he prophesied to them of their woes to follow. But they sought an accusation against him, and according to their liking found one with the death penalty in case he should not retract. He did not retract however, and therefore died at the stake—to them a just reward for his audacity and fault finding. Alma and Amulek testified to the people of Ammonihah of their hypocrisy, perversions and infidelity, for which boldness an accusation was sought against them, and of course found, the penalty attendant being many days of bonds, imprisonment, and cruel mockings—being in the estimation no doubt of their tormentors a recompense hardly sufficient for such growlers.

Taking the three cases now cited, Who were the real fault-finders? Was it Nephi, or his brethren? Was it Abinadi, or those who slew him? Was it Alma and Amulek or their tormentors? The fact is, the telling of any one of his faults with an eye to his reformation, is not fault finding, but is justifiable according to Paul.

A SUPPOSED CASE.

I choose to indulge in certain things which, though not criminal, are nevertheless unbecoming in one professing holiness before the Lord. I also have a brother, who with kindness warns me in reference to my ways, and I not being as wise as I might be, seek an accusation against him for his attention to my affairs. Who is the fault finder in this case? Who is a fault finder but a fault hunter? And who are more apt to be his game than those who are in habit of reproving sin wherever they find it, both in act and in word?

A. J. MAPES.

KANSAS CITY, June 25th, 1886.

DEFINITE PRAYING.

THE fault with believers is that they pray indefinitely, expect indefinitely, and God answers them as indefinitely; either delaying, or entirely withholding the thing sought for.

Now God is our Father in Christ Jesus. He desires us to ask from him as children: If my boy wishes a knife he comes directly to me and says in language which I can not misunderstand, "Mother, my knife is lost; I should like the money to buy another." He gets the knife, and not something else. But if he had come to me saying, "Mother, I want a favor from you;" I should be at loss to know what he wished, and should give him nothing until he asked definitely for something.

Sometimes I see it proper to refuse my child his requests, and he distinctly comprehends the meaning of "No." In like manner the child of God, who is much accustomed to petition the Lord, will realize immediately when his requests are disappointed. He will feel that restriction of the Spirit, that inability to importune, which is as truly God's negation, as the earthly parent's spoken "No."

And then, my child, from familiarity with my principles, my preferences, and my habits, early learns what things I disapprove of; and for these he will ask with great doubt and timidity, if indeed he dares at all to sue for them. So, likewise, will the believer, walking in the fellowship of the Spirit, have a witness in himself, an assurance in advance, as to whether God will grant his pleadings. And why should it not be so? The Spirit is he who instigates all true prayer. If one be abiding in conscious communion with the Lord, and a desire be laid upon his heart to pray for, he may know of a certainty that he shall have it, for that very desire is the Spirit's earnest of the future fulfillment.

So then it is not of faith, and is wrong, for Christians to respond in the impulsive, flippant way that many do, when one comes along and says, "I want you to pray for this or that;" answering, "Yes, I will." With cautious reverence, recognizing the Spirit's high prerogative, we ought the rather say, "If the Lord lay it on my heart I will."

And yet this consciousness of the divine origin of all "prayer that is prayer," need deter none from bringing their smallest, aye, their most secular needs to the court of heaven, for the Lord's attention. Such praying most honors him whose loving sympathy notes the feeble sparrow, and numbers our fragile hairs. The command is, "In everything by prayer and supplication . . . let your requests be made known unto God." And let me assure you, dear believer, you know not what a luxury you miss if you are foregoing the daily, yea, hourly habit of talking with the Lord about all your little needs. I would rather be the poorest beggar on the globe, and know the simple secret of asking everything from God, than to be the world's grandest millionaire, having the wherewith to gratify every want, and without experience in the delights of helpless dependence upon the Lord's gracious bounty.

Well do I remember one day, a few months ago, as I walked along the bright streets of Boston, I saw displayed in a shop window a rare bargain in children's hosiery. Now stockings, of all things, are great essentials in a family of children, whose restless feet are continually scaling the steeps, and tramping through the roughs, never once thinking of the patient eyes and weary fingers that must slowly repair the rents their thoughtless steps have made. It was coming summer, my winter stock of hose was well nigh gone, and these were just what was needed. I paused, admired their strong finish, and thought how advantageously I could invest five dollars in those goods. But as usual, the Lord's pilgrim, I had not the means to spend, and so I walked away, content that the Lord knew.

The next morning, as I awoke, the thought came, Ask the Lord to give you five dollars to buy some of those stockings. The sweet experience of years has taught me never to disregard such intimations of the Spirit to prove my heavenly Father's bounty; and accordingly I prayed, asking the definite sum for the definite purpose.

At dinner time a visitor was announced in my room. I left the dinner table with the hope that no one was to intrude on my quiet; for I was shortly to depart for a weekly meeting I was then holding among the sailors, and of all things my soul recoils from that formal interchange of visits which leaves the heart dry as if swept by a sirocco, and ministers nothing to the honor of the Lord Jesus.

Entering my room, I found a lady of recent acquaintance, but whom I had already learned to love in the truth. She must have been absolutely ignorant of my daily life by faith, and came to me only as sent by the Lord. Looking cautiously around, she inquired if any one else was present; and being assured we were quite alone, she handed me a very small parcel of white paper, remarking that it was for the children, and she was much ashamed that it was so little. What the gift was I could not surmise, and I confess I was too timid to open it in the lady's presence. So thanking her, I slipped it into my pocket. And being obliged almost immediately to excuse myself for the meeting, I did not unwrap the tiny parcel till out of her presence. Then I found it contained a five-dollar gold piece, and for my children: the exact sum I had asked from the Lord that morning to buy a dozen pairs of stockings. With what a broken and overflowing heart I went on my way and delivered my testimony to the sailors that afternoon, the Lord knew better than any one else. Truly I could write concerning that service, JEHOVAH-SHAMMAH. For days after, that bit of gold was too precious to part with in haste, even for the stockings. Its brightness seemed to bear the touch of the Lord's glory. Dear reader, would you know the exquisite joy of such close dealing with God, and know it frequently? pray definitely, strive to have sanctified wants, and tell them out in simplicity. In everything, go and "tell Jesus."—The Christian.

Selections.

BRO. JOHN D. BENNETT, of Cuba, Kansas, sends us a Topeka Daily Capital, for October 22d, from the confusion of which we extricate the following, from a "Daniel come to judgment." It is well for the Saints, especially the elders, to have all the strange and fearful prophecies, where they can examine them.

"A very respectable audience greeted Mrs. D. Ellis, the astrologist, last evening at Lincoln post hall, to listen to her lecture on 'The Star of Bethlehem.'

"Mrs. Ellis is a lady sixty-four years of age, and has been engaged in the study of astrology for about forty-four years. She contemplates establishing in Topeka a society to be called the 'Astro-metrological Genelithical Medical Society of Topeka.' It has already a charter. The meetings of the society will be held at 128 Quincy street.

"Mrs. Ellis' lecture was largely of an astrological nature. From the fact that the so-called star of Bethlehem has appeared at regular intervals of 315 years, ever since the birth of Christ, she believes that the star will appear for the seventh time in 1887.

"She prophesies all manner of catastrophes which will result from the position of the planets the coming year. Portions of the lecture are as follows:

"The star of Bethlehem; the subject of our lecture to-night, its return that this star should again appear, may seem very strange to all from the fact we have been taught from a Christian standpoint, that the star of Bethlehem, was sacred only to one period, and had a special mission to perform, and when that mission was ended it would disappear never to be seen again.

"I must say from the aspect the planets cast to this new star, as well as the aspects they cast to each other, the outlook for a religious war and the promulgation of a new religion is very strong, the appearance of this strange star signifies that.

While Jupiter and Herschel stand in opposition to it, Saturn and Mars in a quadrature to it, this shows the four superior planets all in hostile attitude. Jupiter in the science signifies the church; Herschel signifies the strange and mysterious, the sudden and unexpected; Saturn signifies death and destruction; Mars, war and moving of armies. Saturn being in conjunction of Mars, the god of war, this new religion, be it what it may, will be baptized in blood. Saturn and Mars in quadrature to Jupiter and Herschel, this war will rage against the old and established churches foremost in that will be the Catholic church, but they will all join in opposing this new religion; at the same time the sun meets with a total eclipse by the moon (new moon), the sun is strong being in his own house, but the light of both the sun and moon are blotted out by this eclipse.

"We find this stranger takes a seat in the chair of Cassiopea in the sign of Aries, the ruling sign of England, Denmark, Germany, Poland and Palestine, those countries will be affected by this new comer.

"At the same time Saturn and Mars are in the sign of cancer, this sign rules Scotland. Africa, Holland and the cities of Constantinople, Amsterdam, Genoa and Cadiz, in the old world; New York City in the United States; this places Saturn and Mars in array against England, those unfortunate planets being in the ruling signs of New York will bring sad work there from disease, fire and riots, in the near future following that eclipse.

"England will lay claim to territory that Uncle Samuel will say "hands off old lady," that is mine, trouble will follow; this claim will be put in on our northern border; Mars, the ruling planet of England, is weak and debilitated away from home, being in the sign Cancer in which he has little or no power. England will not gain anything and lose much in the destruction of her war vessels and soldiers, some of which will be by disaster at sea, cyclones. So much for Saturn and Mars.

"Jupiter and Herschel are in the sign Libra, almost in exact opposition to this strange star. Libra is said to be the ruling sign of China, Japan, India, Austria, Egypt, and the Caspian sea, the cities of Vienna and Frankfort in the old world; Charleston in the United States. As you will see, all parts of the globe are up in arms against this new religion. England herself don't like it, as her ruling planet Mars stands in a quadrature to it. I venture the prediction that this new religion will originate in England, China, Palestine or Turkey, and more, that that religion will be the outgrowth of the "Salvation Army," and it will shake the established churches and creeds to their foundation.

"The sun is eclipsed August 19th, 1887, a total eclipse in about the 26th degree of Leo. This sign rules France, Italy, Bohemia, Sicily, Chaldea, the coast of Sidon and Tyre, the cities of Rome, Damascus and Prague, Philadelphia in United States. This strikes Rome, brings trouble to the pope and his church. England will have serious trouble with her Indian possessions, and the queen may lose, or have to fight her battles over to save her empresship of that country.

"Following this eclipse will be fire, cyclones, hurricanes, earthquakes, thunder, lightning, rain and hail to a fearful degree. Do not expect to see those disasters all come in one day, week or month; but they will be along faster than you may like following the eclipse.

"The transit of Mars over the place of this eclipse in October following will stir up the fires, earthquakes and cyclones, forest and prairie fires will be numerous, cities and towns will be laid in ashes; Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston will feel the weight of the hand of the fire king, while Mexico and New Mexico will tremble with the earthquake and volcanic eruptions. South America, Cuba also, many places will feel but slight shocks and many others meet ruin.

"Now, if the coming of this star cast its influence before it, the effects are already being felt.

"My private opinion of this star of Bethlehem is, it is a sun from far-off space, making its perihelion, and its periods are 315 years. What will follow its appearance now we can only judge by what has followed its previous appearances—which were always change and trouble in the church and established religions. Make a note of the dates I give you, beginning with the birth of Christ, its first appearance when it heralds Christ and his teachings to the world, promulgating a new religion at that time and upsetting the old. Then come on to 315, 630, 942, 1257, 1572, counting its appearance at the birth of Christ, it has shown itself six times, and if it comes in 1887, it will have made the seventh, the biblical, mystic No. 7. Take those dates and investigate church history of those times. See What you will find?"

LATTER DAY SAINTS.

REV. G. T. GRIFFITHS, of Kirtland, Ohio, delivered the first of a series of discourses in Packard Hall, Greenville, Pennsylvania, on Sabbath evening last, explanatory of the faith and doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, erroneously called Mormons. The subject was defining the abode of departed spirits, which, briefly stated, is that the spirits of the righteous at death are taken to the Paradise of God, to await the resurrection of their bodies, while the spirits of the wicked are taken to the Prison House, to await the judgment after the first resurrection; for all men must stand before God to be judged for the deeds done in the body.

Monday evening's discourse was upon the necessity of faith and works, to enable mankind to attain unto the salvation promised of the Lord. The main argument was that neither faith or works, separately, would obtain the reward promised, but that by faith and works, according to the commands of the Lord Jesus Christ, we realize the promises.

Tuesday night's effort was to show the necessity of baptism in water for remission of sins. Referring to the thief crucified with the Savior, to whom the promise was made, "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise," the Reverend gentleman called for the proof that he was not a baptized believer, and then proceeded to show from the words of the Savior that the evidence is all in favor of his having been at one time a follower of Christ, hence a baptized believer. The argument was very strong on this point. The subject announced for Wednesday evening, at which time our report closes, was the mode of baptism.

Mr. Griffiths is a young man of pleasing address, and shows himself well versed in the Scriptures, and uses the King James' translation of the Bible. His sermons are argumentative and logical, and to those who acknowledge the truth of the Bible as the word of life and salvation, the position taken by the Reverend gentleman can not be successfully controverted. He stated in closing his discourse on Monday evening that he did not wish his audience to go away with the idea that they had been to hear a "Mormon" preacher; for it would not be true. He is a citizen of the United States, born in Pennsylvania, raised in Ohio, and has never been farther west than Kansas City, Missouri, and did not expect to be, unless it might be to make war on [the errors of] the people of Utah.

Services will be continued throughout the week, commencing at 7:30 p.m. It is but justice that an impartial, candid hearing be given the gentleman, so go and hear for yourselves.—Shenango Valley News.

DATE OF CRUCIFIXION.

HER FLAB, the German Savant, in a work recently published, shows that there was a total eclipse of the moon concomitantly with the earthquake that occurred when Julius Caesar was assassinated, on the 15th of March, B. C. 44. He has calculated back the Jewish calendar to A. D. 31, and the result of his researches fully confirms the facts recorded by the Evangelists of the wonderful physical events that accompanied the crucifixion. Astronomical calculations prove without a shadow of a doubt that on the 14th day of the Jewish month Nisan, (April 6th), there was a total eclipse of the sun, which was accompanied in all probability, by the earthquake when the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, and the earth did quake and rocks rent.—Matt. 27: 51. St. Luke describes the eclipse in these words: "And it was about the sixth hour, (12 noon), and there was darkness over all the land till about the ninth hour," (3 o'clock).—Luke 23: 14. This mode of reckoning corresponds perfectly with the results of another calculation our author made by reckoning backwards from the great total eclipse of April 20th, 1818. Allowing for the difference between the old style which also gives April 6th as the date of the new moon in the year A. D. 31, as the vernal equinox of that year fell on March 25th, and the Jews ate their Easter lamb, and celebrated their Erib Pasah, or Feast of the Passover, on the following new moon, it is clear April 6th was identical with Nisan 14th of the Jewish calendar, which, moreover, was on a Friday, the Paraskeve, or day of preparation for the Sabbath, and this agrees with the Hebrew Talmud: Thus by the united testimony of astronomy, tradition, and Biblical history, there can be but little doubt that the date of the Crucifixion was on April 6th in the year 31.—Selected by John Sayer.

Conference Minutes.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The committee appointed to labor with Bro. John Potts reported that the brother had decided to return to the church and do the best he could in the line of his duty; asked the prayers of the Saints. The report of the committee was accepted. Resolved that Bro. John Potts be allowed to withdraw the letter and his license which he tendered to this district conference in the past. A communication from Fall River Branch recommending Bro. John E. Rogerson for ordination to the office of elder, was declared out of order on the ground that the business meeting at which the resolution was passed was not qualified to pass such a resolution. The ruling was appealed from. The conference by vote sustained the chair; this vote was appealed from by Bro. Samuel W. Ashton. A communication was read from the Cranston Branch recommending Orrin E. Vickers for ordination to the office of elder, was referred to a committee of all the elders of the conference which reported as follows, That the ordination at present was not advisable. Report adopted. Whereas, we the Saints of the Massachusetts District believing that a cheap edition of hymns and tunes combined would be for the general good of the church. Therefore be it, Resolved, that our delegates to General Conference be instructed to urge upon that body to make some provisions for the purpose of issuing such a book. The Elders Court appointed in the case of Potter and Chase read their report which was received and adopted, which was as follows, "We your committee appointed to hear the evidence in the case of F. A. Potter and A. A. Chase beg leave to report as follows: That having notified all parties to the case of the time and place appointed by the committee to hear such evidence, met at the house of Bro. Wm. Blood, Waverly street, Providence, R. I. And after hearing all the evidence submitted, report the following to your honorable body, first, That the charge of slander as preferred by the prosecution was fully sustained by the evidence submitted. 2d. That the defendant is guilty of contempt of authority, having failed to appear after being duly notified, and also having denied the jurisdiction of the committee in the above mentioned case, also that of the power appointing the same. 3d. We your committee therefore recommend that the charge be sustained, and the defendant be required to make restitution according to the law of the church governing the above case. All of which is respectfully submitted. Thomas Whiting, A. N. Hoxie, Joseph B. Pearse, committee. Bro. Samuel W. Ashton, council for the defence, notified the body that he appealed from the decision of the conference. Brn. John Smith, A. W. Glover, M. H. Bond, F. A. Potter and Thomas Whiting were appointed delegates to the General Conference. The chairman was authorized to fill any vacancy that should occur. Prayer and testimony meeting in the Saints' Chapel at 8 a. m. Sunday. Preaching at 10:30 by Elder Thos. Whiting in Ocean Hall; at 2:30 p. m. by Elder F. A. Potter; and at 7:30 p. m. by Elder John Smith. The preaching was good, the attendance large, and the attention all that could be desired. Monday, January 31st. Auditing committee read their report which was accepted. The committee on branch reports reported as follows: Fall River 121; 4 elders, 6 priests, 3 teachers, 2 deacons. Boston 88; 5 elders, 3 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. Brockton 30; 2 elders, 3 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. Little Compton 31; 1 elder, 2 priests, 2 deacons. Cranston 20; 2 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. North Plymouth 24; 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. New Bedford 30; 1 seventy, 1 elder, 2 priests, 2 teachers 2 deacons. Douglas 17; 2 Priests, 1 teacher. Providence 165; 1 seventy, 8 elders, 4 priests, 4 teachers, 6 deacons. Plainville 62; 1 elder, 3 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. Dennisport 49; 4 elders, 2 priests, 3 teachers 2 deacons.—Total membership 637. Resolved that a committee of two be appointed to wait upon Bro. Samuel W. Ashton in regard to his conduct to this body, and report at the next conference. Adopted. John Smith was sustained as district president and Thomas Whiting clerk. The general church authorities were sustained in righteousness. Moved that branches desiring two days' meetings, notify the district president, and that he furnish speakers for the same. Resolved that this conference return thanks to the Old Colony Railroad company for the liberal rates allowed those visiting the conference. Bro. H. H. Thompson was continued in his mission. Bro. A. J. Perry was granted a mission to Georgiaville. Adjourned as per resolution.

NORTH-EAST MISSOURI.

This conference convened at Bevier, March 5th and 6th, 1887. John Taylor president, J. T. Williams clerk. Renick 24, including 4 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher, and 1 deacon. Salt River no report. Bishop's Agent reported on hand $18.06. An auditing committee consisting of J. T. Richards and Mark Surridge found the report correct. Elders' Reports:—J. T. Williams, E. Rowland, C. Perry, J. Taylor, and by letter Wm. Vincent. Priest Mark Surridge and Teacher J. T. Richards reported. J. T. Williams resigned as district clerk and Bishop's Agent, giving sufficient reasons for so doing. Bro. J. T. Richards was recommended to Bishop Blakeslee to act as his agent for the district. An hour for prayer was spent Sabbath morning at 10 o'clock. Preaching at 11 a. m. by brother J. Taylor; good counsel was given for the special benefit of the Saints. Bro. Taylor was authorized to consult with Bro. J. R. Lambert in respect to uniting this with an adjoining district and report when favorable. A good time was spent at 2 p. m. in sacrament and social meeting in prophecy to the Saints. At 6: 30, p. m., brother J. Taylor spoke to a good attentive audience, on the organization of the Kingdom of God, and the necessity of complying with all its principles and laws. The church authorities were sustained in righteousness. Adjourned till August, 1887 when notice will appear in the Herald by the president.

Approved by the branch February 27th, 1887; J. M. Putney president, J. W. Steel clerk. Reports were made from all the branches with reference to their spiritual condition, showing that all were in good condition except Sioux City, which at present was not flourishing owing to so many members moving away. The following officials reported: High Priests Charles Derry, J. C. Crabb and Phineas Cadwell; G. S. Hyde (by letter) and J. F. Mintun of the seventy; Elders Frederick Hansen (by letter), M. P. Berg (by letter), David Chambers (baptized one), Colby Downs, Henry Garner, L. Merchant, Wm. Chambers, Donald Maule, E. R. Lanphear, John H. Hunt, William C. Cadwell, Isaac Shupe, Stephen Mahony, John Hawley (visitor), Richard Farmer, Andrew Johnson, J. W. Wight; Priests Wm. T. Fallon, James Emerson, John K. Harper, B. M. Green, and M. Daugherty; Teacher R. Chatburn and Deacon Charles H. Rose reported. David Chambers was released from his former mission by his own request, and requested to labor in the district at large as his circumstances would permit. J. W. Wight was appointed to labor in the northern part of the district. The district secretary was instructed to certify to Annual Conference recommendations for the appointment of Brn. Charles Derry and J. W. Wight to missionary labor in the Little Sioux District. P. Cadwell, Bishop's Agent, submitted his report, of which the following is a summary. On hand at last report $53 53. Total received from October 1st to December 31st $377.07. Total paid out for same time $315.70. Balance on hand December 31st, 1886, $114.90. Total collected in the year 1886, $661.99. Total paid out in the year 1886, $694.94. The report was referred to a committee consisting of Brn. David Chambers, Henry Garner and J. W. Wight, who subsequently reported it correct except as to one or two dates, when it was approved and the committee discharged. Delegates to Annual Conference at Kirtland were elected as follows: J. W. Wight, D. Chambers, P. Cadwell, C. Derry and S. B. Kibler. The delegates to Annual Conference were authorized to cast the full vote of this district so far as permitted so to do by the Rules of Representation. The Tent Committee as appointed at last conference having reported as having conferred and arrived at an agreement with such a committee from the Galland's Grove district, it was moved and motion prevailed to continue said committee and empower them to make such arrangements as they might think best. A running discussion took place with reference to building churches and applying subscriptions to such an object on tithing account. A letter was read by the Bishop's Agent from Bishop Blakeslee, rather deciding against the right to give credit for such subscriptions. Licenses were ordered issued by this conference to the persons ordained in the Willow Valley branch by Bro. Derry at its organization. The district secretary submitted his annual report as follows: This district contains 7 branches with a total membership of 647, including 3 high priests, 6 of the seventy, 36 elders, 15 priests, 12 teachers, 11 deacons. During the year 12 have been received by baptism, 11 by errors in previous reports, and 138 by letter or vote, making a total increase of 161. During the same time 104 have been removed by letter, 1 has been expelled, 1 lost by error in previous reports and 6 have died, making a total decrease of 112, leaving a net gain of 49 for the year. Estimated scattered membership 125. Total membership 772. The report was approved. A prayer and testimony meeting was held Saturday evening in charge of John Hawley, and Sunday afternoon when also the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by Brn. John Hawley and Wm. Chambers. Preaching Sunday forenoon and evening by J. C. Crabb. Adjourned to meet at Persia, Iowa, at 10: 30 a. m., Saturday, June 4th, 1887.

Miscellaneous.

BORN.

HAMMER.—At Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, June 17th, 1882, to Bro. C. W. and Sr. Emma Hammer, a son; blessed February 20th, 1887, by Elder W. C. Nirk, and named Léo Otis.

SHEEHY.—At Lisbon Falls, Maine, to Bro. F. M. and Sr. Orilla Sheehy, a son, March 3d, 1887.

MARRIED.

BEAM—KEMMISH.—At the residence of Bro. and Sr. P. C. Kemmish, Union township, Harrison county, Iowa, March 6th, 1887, Mr. Samuel S. Beam and Miss Anna Kemmish; Elder David Chambers officiating.

So over the bars the lovers lean,
In the joy of their sweet communion;
And their looks declare that poverty ne'er
Shall be a bar to their union.
Oh! sweetest music, go thread your rhymes,
Now under the bars and over.
Where pretty Anna, in the fragrant lane,
Bewitched the heart of the farmer.

DIED.

FALKENBURG.—At Lapeer, Michigan, December 18th, 1886, Leony, youngest son of Bro. Clinton and Sr. Rosalia Falkenburg, aged 2 years, 1 month and 4 days. Funeral sermon by Bro. James A. Carpenter.

AGY.—At Brownsville, Rock Island county, Illinois, February 7th, 1887, Mathias Agy, of heart disease. He was born May 9th, 1838, in Guernsey county, Ohio; was baptized October 21st, 1883, at Brownsville, by Elder D. S. Holmes. Funeral services were held at his house and at Andylusia, in the Presbyterian church, by Elders E. T. Bryant and J. W. Terry. Bro. Agy leaves a wife, son and daughter, to mourn his sudden demise.

COOK.—At Lamoni, Iowa, February 7th, 1887, of consumption, sister Alice, beloved wife of Bro. Charles Cook, aged 30 years, 4 months and 23 days. She was born in the State of New York, lived for a time in Michigan, and with her husband and family removed to Lamoni, where she resided until she fell asleep in Jesus. A woman of ardent faith, and endowed with rare natural gifts and graces; she was beloved by all, and is deeply mourned by her husband, three sons, and a large circle of friends. Funeral services were conducted by Pres. Joseph Smith, and the burial took place in Rose Hill cemetery.

WEITLICH.—Barbara, daughter of John L. Bear, was born at South Weber, Utah Territory, April 18th, 1862; was baptized by her father, near Agency Ford, Buchanan county, Missouri, April 9th, 1871. On the 28th of February, 1886, she was married to Frank Weitlich, in the Saints' Chapel in St. Joseph, by Bro. Eli Dobson; went out on a farm the same day near Clarksdale, DeKalb county, Missouri, where they lived in peace and harmony till death separated them, February 24th, 1887, after becoming the mother of twin babes. She was buried at the German Branch cemetery, Bro. Temme Hinderks preaching the funeral sermon the same day. Her faith was strong in the latter day work. She was a beloved daughter, and beloved of all who knew her; a dutiful wife of a kind-hearted husband. May our sorrow be turned to joy in meeting her on the morning of the resurrection.

PERRY.—Stephen Perry was born 12th August, 1794, in Windsor county, Vermont; joined the church in 1834; was afflicted for thirty-three years with fits, and prayed to the Lord that he might be healed as a testimony, and he never had another fit. He was baptized into the Reorganized Church in May, 1870, by E. C. Brand; in his confirmation the blessing was sealed on his head that he should live till satisfied with life. It was verified. He fell asleep in Jesus at Galland's Grove, Iowa, on the 29th December, 1886, aged 92 years, 4 months and 17 days, without a struggle or a pang. Funeral services by Elder E. C. Brand.
