A LARGE amount of money has been appropriated to carry on the excavations in Egypt which are being made at several places, and thus far the results have exceeded the most sanguine expectations. The tombs of many of the ancient rulers have been found, and their sarcophagi, funeral canopies, burial and mummy cases, and things found in the tombs, have been moved to the Boolak Museum, and are now on exhibition there. Ranged according to families and dynasties can be seen row after row of these royal personages, and the people of to-day are thus brought face to face with some of the mightiest rulers that the world has ever produced. There is but little difference in their funeral outfits, but there is a vast difference in the appearance and expressions of the mummies themselves, for so perfect were these ancients in the art of preservation by embalming that one's features are as well marked as on the day that he died.

Among the most noted is that of Ramesses I., the great Pharaoh of Biblical fame, who made it so uncomfortable for Moses and his followers over 3,000 years ago. There he is to-day, in a perfect state of preservation, more like one asleep than a body that has been dead for thirty centuries, and one can form an excellent idea of what he was like when alive. He was a man of about five feet ten inches in height, commanding figure, broad shouldered, large, well-shaped head, bald, with a fringe of light-curly hair; large mouth, with white, regular teeth, straight nose, and with an expression of great determination stamped upon his features. On each side of him lay his family, both before and after him, and I could but think of his surprise and wonder could he but awake and see his kingdom as it stands to-day.

It would take months of study to fully appreciate and understand all that is shown to the public in this museum, and even then but a faint idea would be formed of all that must follow in the course of time. It is a science which requires deep study and a great deal of deep thought. Here are mummies, burial cases, vases, carvings in wood and stone, pottery, tools, cooking and household utensils, weapons, toys, jewelry, preserved fruits, fowls, animals, vegetables and hundreds of other things; the list could be carried out indefinitely. To understand more fully what an extensive field Egypt must be for the relic hunter, we should remember that every one who died in the land, rich or poor, alien or stranger, adults or children, no matter, what their condition in life may have been. All were mummified, and with them in their tombs were placed preserved food and something that had been used by them during life. It has been estimated by eminent scholars that, during the period when this process was carried on, not less than 731,000,000 mummies were embalmed, yet only a very small per centage have ever been found. So numerous were the remains, some years ago, in the desert bordering the Nile valley, that the natives actually disinterred them, carried them to their lands and used them as fertilizers! A well-preserved mummy can be bought for $5, one of some person of note for $50, but those of the ancient royalty are worth thousands of dollars and can not be bought for any price.—Selected.

THE NOBILITY OF APOLOGIZING.

THERE are few surer tests of nobility of personal character, few surer proofs of refinement of personal nature and of thoroughness of personal culture, than an unvarying readiness to apologize freely and heartily on any and every occasion where one has failed—through a lack of self-control, or of thoughtfulness, or of skill, or of gracefulness—in coming up to his own highest ideal of attainment in his conduct or bearing toward another. To an ignoble mind, the thought of apologizing suggests the idea of being in some sense humiliated, if not indeed degraded,—through the confession of having failed to do as well as one should have done. To a noble mind, the thought of apologizing suggests the idea of an uplift of personality,—through claiming a superior standard of ordinary performance to that which was indicated in the occurrence apologized for.

The English word "apology" is, by its etymology, the doing away, or the putting away, by a word—by a spoken or a written word. In the German language, there is a corresponding phrase which means the taking one's self away from the act—the "getting out of it"—by a statement. The essence of an apology, as the word is understood in its ordinary English sense, is an expression of regret for some performance, or for some omission, unworthy of the best and truest self of the actor. The word is not commonly employed for a formal request for forgiveness, where an intentional offense has been committed; but rather for an explicit assurance that the real or the seeming slight or failure was an unfortunate slip on the part of the apologizer; and for an expression of one's desire to be excused for not coming up to his own ideal performance. In this sense, the apologizer asks the privilege of putting away the offense by a word, or of taking himself away from the offense, and of being himself recognized as one to whom such an offense does not properly belong. Thus it is that the higher the man's personal standard, the keener is his sense of occasions of apology, and the prompter and the heartier are his apologetic expressions.

A man, stepping into or out of a street car, accidentally treads on the foot of another. If he is a man of coarse grain, and of coarse manners, he is likely to say to himself, if he does not actually speak his thoughts aloud: "That man's foot oughtn't to have been in my way. I was in my place; but he wasn't in his." If, on the contrary, he is a man of refinement of feeling, he will reproach himself for failing to guard against such a misstep; and he will stop and raise his hat and say in all heartiness, and say in a tone of voice that proves his sincerity of regret, "I beg you pardon, sir. That was very clumsy on my part. I am very sorry for it." Just in proportion to his superiority of character and of cultivation will a man be explicit and profuse in his formal apologies in a case like this. Similarly will one man be more prompt and more hearty than another in his words of apology, as disclosing his measure of nobleness and of refinement, when he has jostled against another in a crowded passage-way, or has spilled or dropped something he was handing to another as an act of courtesy, or has failed to recognize another's need of special attention or of helpful service in an emergency. So, also, will it be when he discovers that he has neglected to acknowledge promptly some service rendered to himself, or that he has been infelicitous in his words of acknowledgment, through absence of mind, or through embarrassment of manner. And this is not because the man reproaches himself for any lack of good purpose, or for any unkind thought or intent; nor yet because he fears that he may be suspected of purposing a slight or failure; but because he sees that he could have done better; and for his own sake—even if there were no other cause of regret—he wishes to express his sorrow that he came in any other way short of his best possible attainment.

The word "apology" has undoubtedly suffered, as has the word "honor," with which it is so often associated, through its misuse in connection with the craving of pardon, at the point of a pistol or at the threat of a bludgeon, for a direct or an implied insult. But an "apology" in its best sense is not an enforced call for pardon, but rather is a volunteered expression of regret for one's recognized unintentional short-comings. Just here is the difference between the ignoble man's idea of an apology of servility, and the noble-minded man's idea of the apology of civility. An apology of servility is a slavish apology in recognition of one's inferiority to the person to whom he apologizes. An apology of civility is an independent citizen's recognition of the inferiority of his accidental performance to his own high conception of what is correct and desirable in the premises.

A beautiful illustration of noble-mindedness in an apology was given in an incident in our American civil war. In an hour of intensest excitement in one of the great historic battles of that war, the commanding general—one of the greatest of our generals—took exception to the disposition of the forces of a general officer under his command. Deeming the issue of the contest to be involved in that disposition of forces, the commander gave loud and emphatic expression to his disapproval. The result of the battle proved that the subordinate was correct in his judgment, and that the commander was in error. The commander had, however, done only that which was the prompting of his best judgment, in the light which he had at the moment of his outburst of disapproval; nor had he overstepped the bounds of a commander's absolute right in such an emergency. Yet he regretted that his own judgment had not served him better in his observation of the true state of affairs; and he reproached himself for falling short of his own high standard of absolute accuracy. The battle being over he sent for the subordinate whom he had publicly censured, and, summoning his own staff-officers into his presence, he informed his subordinate, in their hearing, that, as he had been in error in censuring him for his conduct, he now apologized to him thus publicly. Nor was that all. On the following day he rode over to that division commander's headquarters, and asked to have the entire division called out in line. Then, in the presence of the division, he stated that he had done the division a wrong through giving an undeserved censure to its commander, and that he now desired to apologize to the commander and to the division in this public manner. Who will question that such an act as that proved the exceptional nobleness of that great-hearted commander?

If, indeed, the offense or the failure be an obvious one,—as in clumsiness of action, in sharpness of speech, or in seeming rudeness of neglect,—it is comparatively easy for a person of very moderate refinement and cultivation to be prompt and outspoken in apologies. But when the transgression or the short coming is not so obvious, even though its effect may be all the more disastrous,—as when one has imagined a slight that was not intended, or has suspected a wrong that did not exist, or has given way to an unkind thought through an entire misunderstanding, or has failed to perceive a generous spirit that ought to have been honored,—it is not so easy to make confession of personal error, and to apologize for the lack of conformity to one's best ideal of character and of conduct. And here it is that pre-eminence nobleness of nature, and admirableness of self control, are surest of being shown in the fullness and the freeness of explicit apologies.

It requires greater nobleness to have a high standard for one's self than to have it for some one else. It requires greater nobleness to perceive and to emphasize one's own shortcomings than to give prominence to the shortcomings of others. Hence, he who is noblest-minded, and whose nature is most refined, and whose training in well-doing is completest, is ever quickest to see his own mistake, and promptest to apologize for his error, out of regard for the personal ideal he has fallen short of. If, for example, when there were two possible explanations of another's course, he saw only the more unfavorable one of these, and was suspicious accordingly,—on discovering his error he owes it to himself to apologize for his unfairness of judgment, and for his ill-grounded suspicion. It does not satisfy him to know that he was sincere at the time in his erroneous opinion, and that he saw no ground for another judgment; he blames himself for not seeing the true state of the case, and for not being swayed by a more charitable conception. He is sorry for his own failure, and he wants to say so to the one who knows of his failure, for his own sake, if for no other reason, he must evidence his consciousness of failure as widely as he disclosed that failure. So all the way along in the every-day relations of life; he whose personal standard is highest, is promptest and most explicit in apologizing for every known lack of conformity to that standard; and every added instance of such apologizing on his part gives him an increase of power in his effort to conform to that standard.

This is a truth that has its special importance in the home training of children. Every child ought to be taught the nobleness of apologizing, and he ought to be practiced in its spirit and in its methods. And the true standard of home training is, perhaps, as clearly shown in the readiness and the heartiness of a child's apologies on every occasion of his recognized fault or failure, as in any one thing observable in a child's course. If he shrinks from making an apology, when he has either erred or seemed to err, in propriety, in courtesy, or in gracefulness, he not only shows himself at a disadvantage, but he reflects discredit upon those who have instructed him. And if he shows a foremost readiness to apologize on any and every such occasion, he indicates the nobleness of nature which is in him, and which was back of him.

Frequency and fullness in apologizing, in child or in man, is a proof of one's unmistakable possession of a conscious high ideal than his own constant attainment. An unreadiness to apologize is an indication of one's lack of any higher standard than his own immediate performance. And here is a line which distinguishes the noble from the ignoble.

Conference Minutes.

LONDON, ONTARIO.

This district conference convened in Egremont, June, 18th, 19th, and 20th. Elder J. H. Lake, president, Elder W. J. Smith, secretary, pro tem. Had a prayer and testimony meeting. Elder Richard C. Evans preached in the evening. Sunday morning met for prayer and testimony, and also partook of the sacrament. An address in the forenoon by Elder J. H. Lake on tithing; R. C. Evans preached in the afternoon, after which four were baptized. Elder W. J. Smith preached in the evening. It was resolved that the Riverview branch be not disorganized, but remain as it is until the next conference. Resolved, that visiting brethren have the privileges of this conference. The following branches reported:—Proton, 48, Alliston, removed by letter, 8, 1 died, present number, 11, 2 scattered. Masonville, referred back for correction. Elders reports:—J. A. McIntosh, reported by letter, baptized 27, blessed 5 children, ordained 1 elder and 1 deacon, solemnized 3 marriages. Samuel Brown, solemnized 1 marriage, organized 1 branch, baptized 4. R. C. Evans, baptized 20 or 25, held 1 debate. Walter Morrison, ordained 1 deacon, and has acted as president of the Egremont branch. J. H. Lake reported labor in various parts of the mission. W. J. Smith ordained 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 1 deacon, baptized 49, held 1 discussion. Resolved, that we sustain Elder S. Brown, bishop's agent. Resolved, that we release Bro. Brown from the office of president of district. Resolved, that we tender Bro. S. Brown a vote of thanks for his labor of love. Resolved, that Elder R. C. Evans be the president of the London district. Resolved that Elder W. J. Smith be vice president of the district. Resolved that Bro. Samuel Brown be released from the office of secretary of district. Resolved, that elder A. E. Mortimer be secretary of district. Resolved, that we sustain Bro. J. H. Lake president of the Canda Mission. Resolved, that we tender the Egremont branch a vote of thanks for the kindly way in which they have cared for us. Resolved, that we tender to Mrs. J. Adams a vote of thanks for the use of her organ during conference. Resolved, that we tender Miss V. S. King a vote of thanks for her service as organist. Resolved, that we sustain all the authorities of the church in righteousness. Brn. John Wilson and James McLean were ordained elders. Bro. Wm. McMurdo was ordained a priest. Adjourned to meet with the Masonville branch on the 15th and 16th of October.

SOUTHERN INDIANA.

The conference of the above district convened at Union, Jefferson county, September 3d, 4th and 5th. Jas. G. Scott in the chair, M. R. Scott secretary. The forenoon of the 3d was devoted to prayer and testimony, in which the oneness of the Spirit was enjoyed and the Saints encouraged. At 2 p. m., minutes of last conference were read. Bishop's Agent reported: Received from the Eden branch $7 70, offering; New Trenton $8, offering; Union $10, tithing; total $25 70. Paid out $14 50; on hand $11 20. J. M. Scott, Agent. M. R. Scott and J. Ford were appointed to audit Agent's books and report to the next session. Elders reports: James M. Scott labored at French Town, the Akers school house, and at or near the Out Let school house in Washington county, also at my branch. D. Scott had loaned his books to those that would read. James G. Scott had done what he could, visited Hall's Ridge and Union branches, also Crawford county, desires to visit all the branches in the district at as early day as possible. M. R. Scott had spoke at the points referred to by Bro. James M. Scott, also at Salem, Cook's Mills and Union chapel. These are new points, and so is French Town and the Akers school house, have assisted in administering the ordinances of the Lord's house, and can truly say he never enjoyed the Spirit's power to such a degree as I have of late in defense of this latter day work. V. D. Baggerly had preached at Speed's school house, Wright's school house, Bogard's church, Greenbrier, Wisner's school house, held two joint meetings, blessed six children, married three couples, administered to the sick, spoke also at Derby, Perry county, and desired to do what he could to spread the work. Priest Wm. H. Burton had done the best he could according to his surroundings, had visited the Olive branch in company with brethren Ford and Fewell. Had a good time. Priest Wm. Foster and teacher Wm. Winscott reported. Deacon John Fewell had done what he could, and if he had one desire above another it was to see the great work prosper. Resolved that Bro. James Ferguson be ordained an elder and Bro. Wm. Marshall a teacher. At 7:30 p. m. preaching by Bro. V. D. Baggerly assisted by Bro. D. Scott. Sunday, the 4th, at 10:30 a. m., preaching by James G. Scott, assisted by D. Scott; at 1:30 p. m. sacrament meeting in charge of M. R. Scott assisted by Wm. Burton. At 7:30 p. m. preaching by M. R. Scott assisted by James M. Scott. Monday, the 5th, at 8:30 a. m., met for business. Branch reports: Union branch 36, including 1 priest, 1 teacher, 1 deacon; disfellow-shipped 1; Wm. H. Burton president, Mary A. Ford clerk. Eden branch 19, including 4 elders; 3 added by baptism, 3 removed by letter, 6 dropped from record; James M. Scott president, T. F. Wheeler clerk. West Fork branch 24, including 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher; V. D. Baggerly president, Clarinda Lobe clerk. Olive branch 18, 1 deacon; 2 removed by letter; Margaret P. Thompson clerk. Committee on Bishop's Agent's books reported and report received and committee released. Wm. C. Marshall was ordained to the office of teacher by James G. and M. R. Scott and V. D. Baggerly. Two children were blessed by James A. and M. R. Scott. Conference sustained M. R. and James G. Scott as general appointees in this district, and sustained all the authorities of the church in righteousness. James G. Scott was sustained as president of the district and M. R. Scott as secretary. At 7:30 p. m., preaching by James M. Scott, assisted by David Scott. Adjourned to meet near Derby, Perry county, at the call of the president. Thus ended one of the best conferences, as said by many, that ever was held in Southern Indiana. Peace and harmony prevailed. Meetings were largely attended.

FLORIDA.

Conference convened at the Hinote branch, September 2d, at eleven a. m. J. W. Scogin in the chair. Branch reports.—Eureka 20 members, including 1 Elder, 1 Teacher, 1 Deacon. Hinote branch 18, 1 Priest, 1 Teacher. No report from the other branches. Elders reports.—J. W. Scogin had confined his labor mostly to the district, organized a branch of 15. E. Powell had baptised 4 and blessed 2 children. J. J. Cooper had not done much. Branch in bad condition. J. Hawkins had labored most of his time in the district. Sister Williams was restored to membership. A committee—E. Powell, J. Peterson and J. J. Cooper—were appointed to wait on delinquent members and report next conference. Committee on finances reported: J. W. Scogin had received $4 20. During the last three months three children were blessed. Preaching Saturday night by E. Powell, Sunday morning at eleven and at three p. m. by J. W. Scogin, and Sunday night by E. Powell. Adjourned to meet with the Eureka branch, Saturday before the first Sunday in December, 1887.

WEST TENNESSEE AND KENTUCKY.

The above conference convened at the Saint's chapel in the Farmington branch, August 6th, 1887, at 10:30 a. m. Bro. W. H. Griffin was chosen to preside, with Bro. P. B. Seaton assistant, and W. J. Seaton clerk pro tem. Reports of branches: Farmington 18; 1 died. Foundry 15; 1 elder, 1 deacon. Eagle Creek 20; including 1 elder 1 teacher, 1 deacon. Elders report: P. B. Seaton (baptized 2), W. H. Griffin (baptized 2). At 6:30 p. m. the Farmington branch was organized with J. H. Adair ordained elder, W. Clark priest, G. P. Snow deacon. A good spirit prevailed. Preaching Saturday and Sunday by W. H. Griffin and P. B. Seaton. The conference was one of interest and encouragement, the pleasure of the Master being signally manifested during the sessions. Adjourned to meet with the Foundry branch, Saturday before the fourth Sunday in March, 1888, at 10:30 a. m.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Texas Central district is hereby notified that on Friday evening October 28th next, they are requested to convene at Cook's Point, Burleson county. I hope to meet a full delegation from all the branches, also would be glad to meet any of the Saints that can attend, and also as many of the citizens as desire to come.

The semi-annual conference of the Southern California district will convene at Newport church, near Santa Ana, Friday, September 30th, at ten a. m., and continue four days. The district tent will be set adjacent to the chapel, affording ample room for all. Come, Saints, one and all. Let each one bring a portion of the Spirit of God and enjoy a feast long to be remembered. Bring your sick and afflicted, that they may be healed by the power of God, that all may return home rejoicing. Let us truly contend for and exercise the faith once delivered to the Saints, bless mankind and glorify the name of our Father in heaven.

D. S. MILLS, Dist. Pres.

Conference for the Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district will convene the 1st and 2d days of October, at Mission, LaSalle county, Illinois. A full report of branches throughout the district is solicited; also reports from the ministry in the district are expected, either by person or letter. Brethren of the general ministry who can make it convenient to be present are kindly invited to do so.

F. M. COOPER, Dist. Pres.

The conference of Northern Indiana and Michigan district will convene at Galien, Berrien county, Michigan, Saturday, October 22d, 1887, at ten a. m. Clerks of branches will please have their branch reports fully made out and duly signed to present to conference. A large attendance and a good time is anticipated. Saints, please attend in the interest of the work. Visitors from adjoining districts are cordially invited. We will be thankful for the aid of any of the traveling ministry who can meet with us. Elders and other officers in the district will please remember their obligations to be at the conference with their reports, and for the transaction of all necessary business.

C. SCOTT, Dist. Pres.

MARRIED.

WELD—SMITH.—At the residence of Pres. Joseph Smith, the bride's father, Lamoni, Iowa, September 14th, 1887, Bro. Francis M. Weld and Sr. Carrie L. Smith, Elder Asa S. Cochran officiating.

GEORGE—GILL.—At the home of the bride's parents, 830 South Fourth street, St. Joseph, Missouri, June 7th, 1887, Mr. Edward George and Miss Lottie Gill; Elder Senterlow Butler officiating.

DIED.

GARRETT.—At Greenville, Pa., August 23d, 1887, of diphtheria, Anna Mary, second daughter of William H. and Emma Garrett, aged 12 years, 3 months and 13 days. She possessed a sweet, affectionate disposition; was baptized at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, January 31st, 1886, by Elder G. T. Griffiths, and lived true to her covenant. She rests in the paradise of God. Her body was laid away August 24th, surrounded with the flowers she so dearly loved, the offerings of kindred and friends. Services conducted by Elder Griffiths.

COTTON.—At Newton, Iowa, August 2d, 1887, Sr. Charlotte Cotton. Sr. Cotton was born in Ardsley, England, November 12th, 1812, and at her death was nearly seventy-five years old. She was convinced of the truthfulness of the gospel in England, and with other relatives started for America in 1869; joined the Reorganization, July 31st, 1871, and has been a faithful Saint ever since, and died with the hope of coming forth when the first trumpet sounds.

May we be prepared as was she
To take part in the jubilee;
And sing praises to Him above
The perfect, Infinite God of love.

PRITCHET.—Alvah, infant son of J. and S. Pritchett, April 17th, 1887, near Macedonia, Iowa. He was born November 28th, 1886; aged 4 months and 19 days when called home. Also, Alma, a little daughter, July 11th, 1887. She was also born on November 28th, 1886; aged 7 months and 13 days when called home. Funeral sermons by D. Hougas.

Darling babies, we are lonely
Since your forms we see no more;
But we know that you are joyful,
With angel bands on yon bright shore.

HARTELL.—At Pomona, Los Angeles county, California, August 18th, 1887, Sr. Priscilla Hartell, wife of Mr. J. E. Hartell, and daughter of Bro. Ithamar and Sr. Martha Judson, aged 21 years and 27 days. She was sick nine days, and suffered much, but said she was happy, and wanted to go and be with her sister of the same age who had gone before. She gave strong evidence of a bright hope of a glorious resurrection. Thus passed away our dear sister, leaving a father, mother, brother and sister, and many relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. Funeral sermon, August 28th, by Elder S. L. Crain.

HUTCHERSON.—At Green's Landing, Maine, July 22d, 1887, George W., son of Bro. Alonzo and Cynthia Hutcherson, aged 2 years, 5 months and 15 days.

VAN CLEEVE.—At Turkey Creek, Saline county, Nebraska, September 9th, 1887, of whooping cough, William R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. VanCleeve, aged 1 year, 8 months and 27 days. Had song and prayer at the house, and funeral sermon at "Tent" in Wilber, the 11th, by Elder Robt. M. Elvin

JEREMIAH.—At his home in Cleveland, Lucas county, Iowa, John, a son of the late Jeremiah Jeremiah, aged 18 years, 3 months and 7 days. He was born May 10th, 1869, at Canton, Illinois, and was killed in the coal mines by a fall of slate. His father was a member of the quorum of Seventy, and accompanied Jason W. Briggs on a mission to Wales in 1863. His father died in May, 1878, and Johnnie being then only nine years old, came and lived with his uncle John Watkins, Sr., until he was able to work, when his mother moved here. Since that time he has been the main support of the family, consisting of his mother and five children. It is a severe trial on his mother, and we sincerely sympathise with her in her sad bereavement. He was a promising son, just on the verge of manhood, when hope seemed to point him to a prosperous and bright future. He was a kind, dutiful, and loving son, a good companion, loved by all, his loss is sincerely mourned by all who knew him. Funeral services were conducted by E. B. Morgan.

BEEMER.—At Fremont, Nebraska, September 1st, 1887, Bro. Daniel R. Beemer, aged 50 years, 4 months and 21 days. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his death. He was a faithful companion, a kind father, and a worthy citizen. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. M. Sampson.

MCINTOSH.—Near Crescent City, Iowa, July 23d, 1887, Bro. W. C. McIntosh. He was born February 1st, 1816. Joined the church in an early day, and united with the Reorganized Church in May, 1860, being baptized by his brother J. A. McIntosh. The funeral discourse was preached by Elder D. K. Dodson, to a large congregation of relatives and friends.

TWO DAY MEETING.

There will be a two days' meeting held in the Platte Valley branch, of the Northern Nebraska district, October 1st and 2d. All are invited to attend. There will be conveyance to and from the station free of charge. Come one, come all, and let us have a good time. Brethren James Caffall, William Rumel, R. M. Elvin and others are expected to be present. By order of NELSON BROWN, Dist. Pres.

HARVEST EXCURSION.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R. R., will sell, on September 20th and October 11th, Harvest Excursion Tickets at one fare for the round trip to principal points in Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and Dakota. Limit, thirty days. For tickets and further information concerning these excursions, call on the nearest C. B. & Q. Ticket Agent.

B A Z A A R .

The Sisters Aid Society, of the Independence branch, will hold their Bazaar in the latter part of October; the exact day can not now be given. They are now ready to receive contributions of all kinds from those who wish to help build the new church. We are soliciting articles of every description; so if any good brother, sister or friend wishes to send us a sack of potatoes or a barrel of apples in good condition for winter use, we shall be more than pleased with them. We have already received a good deal of encouragement and help, and we are very thankful for it. We think we can make use of all that may be sent us. Address all packages and donations to me, at Independence, Jackson county, Missouri, P. O. box 61. Yours very truly,

MRS. B. C. SMITH.

LITERARY NOTES.

The tendency of New York publishers of books and monthlies to group their offices between Astor Place and Union Square, has its most recent illustration in the removal of The American Magazine from down-town to commodious quarters at 749 Broadway.

An ascent of Popocatepetl gives opportunity for all the usual experiences in high mountain climbing, and will be described in an illustrated article by Arthur Howard Noll in the forthcoming number of The American Magazine.

The famous edict of Judge Hilton against the Jews, proclaimed a few years ago at Saratoga, has had the results so familiar to students of history. The Jews have multiplied at Saratoga at an astonishing rate. Over half of the hotel population this summer at that resort are Jews, an increase certainly of one hundred per cent since the edict. Several of the hotels are now owned by Jews, which is an innovation; and there is a rumor that a Jewish syndicate is waiting to buy in Hilton's own hotel, the Grand Union, when it goes under the hammer next year with other property of the Stewart estate. A battle in the auction-room between Hilton and a son of Israel would be a fructifying spectacle; and if Hilton should receive notice to quit the premises,—but the subject is too painful to contemplate.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Egiwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Reoleiddig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, letter paper, envelopes, and printed recipes valuable in every household, by mail to any part of United States for 55c in stamps or otherwise.

W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M.D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Kiefer Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

The Sisters' Aid Society of Independence branch have for sale for the benefit of the new church, two Cabinet Photographs: one of the THREE WITNESSES, with views of the HILL CUMORAH and the ANGEL delivering the PLATES; the other of the OLD LIBERTY JAIL as it now stands, for 25 cts each. Those desiring to purchase can address Mrs. B. C. Smith, box 61, Independence, Missouri. 23jul3m

Foreign Money Orders.

Bear in mind the fact that the post office at Lamoni is now a Foreign Money Order Office. Therefore, those in foreign countries sending moneys to this office should draw them on Lamoni, Iowa, U. S. A.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

TO HOPE SUBSCRIBERS.

On and after January 1st, 1887, the Hope will be sent to subscribers as follows:

Single copies, per year.....50c.
Over 4 copies and under 10, to one address, each.....40c.
Ten copies and over, to one address, each...35c.
Subscriptions to be paid in advance unless otherwise arranged for by subscribers.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

—) BY THE (—
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,
at their Publishing House in
LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

Holy Scriptures.

Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet.
Sheep or Library binding.....1 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....2 00
Full Morocco, gilt edges.....2 50
New Testament, inspired edition..... 75

Book of Mormon.

Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50
Full Morocco, gilt edges.....1 75

Doctrine and Covenants.

Sprinkled Sheep, or Library.....1 25
Imitation Morocco.....1 50

The Saints' Harp—Hymn Book.

Imitation Morocco, marbled edges.....1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50

Life of Joseph the Prophet, History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith.

In Cloth, full gilt finished, very handsome.....2 25
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complete history of the Church up to 1830.

Joseph Smith the Prophet, and His Progenitors.

Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith..... 75
Leather Binding.....1 00

Hesperis.

Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....1 50

Rules of Order and Debate.

For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth..... 40

Joseph the Seer.

His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers 200 pages..... 35
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

Voice of Warning.

And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the Latter Day work; 128 pages
In Paper Covers, twelve for $1.....each 10
Limp Cloth Covers, each..... 25

Prophetic Truth.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon. an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper covers; five for $1.....each 25
Being the Subject of an Evening's Conversation Respecting its Origin. Its Divinity Proved by the Scriptures and Collateral Evidence. Prefaced with a Brief Sketch of the Life of the Prophet, showing the way and manner of his becoming possessed of the Record.

Branch Records.

Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages.....2 00

District Records.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records.....3 00

Licences, Notices, &amp;c.

Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licences, each per dozen..... 12
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and..... 60
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub, 35 for..... 25

Certificates and Reports.

Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen..... 40
Annual Statistical Reports, two for..... 10
Certificate of Baptism and Membership, per dozen..... 12
Certificate of Removal, per dozen..... 12
Marriage Certificates, per dozen..... 25

"Manuscript Found."

We have for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. Has 144 pages 8 mo.; single copies, in cloth, 25 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 20 cents each; in paper, single copies 15 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 13 cents each.

Lamoni and Vicinity.

Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by

LAMBERT & HANSEN.

decl11f

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni
MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

Money Orders.

Money Orders are much safer than Postal Notes when remitting to this office, and they cost but two cents more. Don't forget this, lest you lose money.
D. DANCER, Manager.

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, &c. etc. etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH!
THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C. B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going
East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"We believe that one man should have one wife, and one woman but one husband: except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 750.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 1, 1887.

No. 40.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.

W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 1, 1887.

AARONIC PRIESTHOOD—D. WHITMER.

IN our letter department for this issue will be found Bro. F. C. Warnky's account of a late call on David Whitmer, from which it appears the latter "denied that the Aaronic priesthood was conferred upon" Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery. Mr. Whitmer may not now know, and may never have known, that it was conferred; but when he denies that it was, he simply asserts what he does not know, and he thereby proves what we have held from the first, namely, that he is and has been itchingly anxious to meddle in matters to which God nor the church ever called him. The pathway of God's church in all ages has been and is marked with the skeletons of ambitious, self-conceited intermeddlers, who have thought themselves more competent, more worthy and reliable than those whom God, by manifest and very great evidences called to perform specified works in carrying out his purposes. The attitude of David Whitmer on this matter adds another painful evidence of the blindness peculiar to self-willed, self-appointed leaders, and confirms anew the fateful promise of God, that "they that seek to destroy him" ["the choice Seer"—Joseph] whom God repeatedly said in the Book of Mormon He would "bless," "shall be confounded!" It is a perilous and very harmful thing for men to seek authority, place, and power to which they have never been rightfully called, and the folly and evil of such will surely be brought to light.

Joseph and Oliver were the first and chief officers of the church. Joseph translated and Oliver wrote the Book of Mormon, they were the first and chief organizers of the church and its priesthood in these latter days, and having been called and qualified of God to do that work, their recorded testimony concerning those things are most reliable and authoritative. Let us now hear what they say touching their ordination to the Aaronic priesthood.

Joseph the Seer, in his history of the church, mentions the fact that the angel Moroni, which appeared to him the evening of September 21st, 1823, quoted to him on that occasion, Malachi 4: 5, as follows: "Behold I will reveal unto you the priesthood by the hand of Elijah the prophet before the great and dreadful day of the Lord." And in May, 1829, six years afterwards, John the Baptist, (whom Christ called the Elias, Matt. 11: 11-15; 17: 3-13. Mark 9: 13. Luke 1: 17; 9: 30), appeared and conferred the Aaronic priesthood, as is stated in the following:

"We still continued the work of translation, when in the ensuing month, (May, eighteen hundred and twenty-nine), we, on a certain day, went into the woods to pray and inquire of the Lord respecting baptism for the remission of sins, as we found mentioned in the translation of the plates. While we were thus employed, praying, and calling upon the Lord, a messenger from heaven descended in a cloud of light, and having laid his hands upon us, he ordained us, saying unto us, 'Upon you my fellow servants, in the name of Messiah, I confer the priesthood of Aaron, which holds the keys of the ministering of angels, and of the gospel of repentance, and of baptism by immersion for the remission of sins, and this shall never be taken again from the earth, until the sons of Levi do offer again an offering unto the Lord in righteousness.' He said this Aaronic priesthood had not the power of laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, but that this should be conferred on us hereafter, and he commanded us to go and be baptized, and gave us directions that I should baptize Oliver Cowdery, and afterwards that he should baptize me.

"Accordingly we went and were baptized, I baptized him first, and afterwards he baptized me, after which I laid my hands upon his head and ordained him to the Aaronic priesthood, and afterwards he laid his hands on me and ordained me to the same priesthood, for so we were commanded.

"The messenger who visited us on this occasion, and conferred this priesthood upon us said that his name was John, the same that is called John the Baptist, in the New Testament, and that he acted under the direction of Peter, James and John, who held the keys of the priesthood of Melchisedeck, which priesthood he said should in due time be conferred on us—and that I should be called the first elder, and he the second. It was on the fifteenth day of May, eighteen hundred and twenty nine, that we were baptized and ordained under the hand of the messenger.

"Immediately upon our coming up out of the water, after we had been baptized, we experienced great and glorious blessings from our heavenly Father. No sooner had I baptized Oliver Cowdery than the Holy Ghost fell upon him and he stood up and prophesied many things which should shortly come to pass. And again, so soon as I had been baptized by him, I also had the spirit of prophecy, when, standing up I prophesied concerning the rise of the church, and many other things connected with the church, and this generation of the children of men. We were filled with the Holy Ghost, and rejoiced in the God of our salvation."—Times and Seasons, vol. 3: 865-6.

Of this transaction Oliver Cowdery said in the Messenger and Advocate, September 7th, 1834, published at Kirtland, Ohio, pages 15, 16:

"To notice, in even few words, the interesting account given by Mormon, and his faithful son Moroni, of a people once beloved and favored of heaven, would supersede my present design: I shall therefore defer this to a future period, and as I said in the introduction, pass more directly to some few incidents immediately connected with the rise of this church, which may be entertaining to some thousands who have stepped forward, amid the frowns of bigots and the calumny of hypocrites, and embraced the gospel of Christ.

"No men in their sober senses could translate and write the directions given to the Nephites from the mouth of the Savior, of the precise manner in which men should build up his church, and especially, when corruption had spread an uncertainty over all forms and systems practiced among men, without desiring a privilege of showing the willingness of the heart by being buried in the liquid grave, to answer a 'good conscience by the resurrection of Jesus Christ.'

"After writing the account given of the Savior's ministry to the remnant of the seed of Jacob, upon this continent, it was easy to be seen, as the prophet said would be, that darkness covered the earth and gross darkness the minds of the people. On reflecting further, it was as easy to be seen, that amid the great strife and noise concerning religion, none had authority from God to administer the ordinances of the gospel. For, the question might be asked, have men authority to administer in the name of Christ, who deny revelation? when his testimony is no less than the spirit of prophecy? and his religion based, built, and sustained by immediate revelation in all ages of the world, when he has had a people on earth? If these facts were buried and carefully concealed by men whose craft would have been in danger, if once permitted to shine in the faces of men, they were no longer to us; and we only waited for the commandment to be given, 'Arise and be baptized.'

"This was not long desired before it was realized. The Lord, who is rich in mercy, and ever willing to answer the consistent prayer of the humble, after we had called upon him in a fervent manner, aside from the abodes of men, condescended to manifest to us his will. On a sudden, as from the midst of eternity, the voice of the Redeemer spake peace to us, while the veil was parted and the angel of God came down clothed with glory, and delivered the anxiously looked for message, and the keys of the gospel of repentance!—What joy! what wonder! what amazement! While the world were racked and distracted—while millions were groping as the blind for the wall, and while all men were resting upon uncertainty, as a general mass, our eyes beheld—our ears heard, as in the 'blaze of day,' yes, more—above the glitter of the May sun beam, which then shed its brilliancy over the face of nature! Then his voice, though mild, pierced to the center, and his words, 'I am thy fellow-servant,' dispelled every fear. We listened—we gazed—we admired! 'Twas the voice of the angel from glory—'twas a message from the Most High! And as we heard we rejoiced, while his love enkindled upon our souls, and we were wrapt in the vision of the Almighty! Where was room for doubt? No where; uncertainty had fled; doubt had sunk, no more to rise, while fiction and deception had fled forever!

"But, dear brother think, further think for a moment, what joy filled our hearts and with what surprise we must have bowed, (for who would not have bowed the knee for such a blessing?) when we received under his hand the holy priesthood, as he said, 'Upon you my fellow servants, in the name of Messiah I confer this priesthood and this authority, which shall remain upon earth, that the sons of Levi may yet offer an offering unto the Lord in righteousness!'"

If the priesthood had not been restored in the opening up of this last dispensation, then there would have been ample grounds for complaint, for the prophecies teach that it would be then established of God, as may be seen from the following texts: Malachi 3: 1-3; 4: 5, 6. Isa. 61: 6; 66: 21. Jer. 31: 14. Exodus 40: 15. Ezek. 42: 13; 44: 10, 11, 15; 45: 4; 48: 10, 13. Joel 2: 17. Rev. 5: 10; 20: 6; etc. The claims of Joseph and Oliver harmonize with these promises, therefore they are entitled to credence. Their claims and their work were scriptural, agreeing with both its history and predictions, and is therefore credible. The Aaronic priesthood was first in preparing the way for the Messiah's first advent, and why should it not be first in preparing the way for the second advent?

Oliver Cowdery, when addressing the first Twelve, February 21st, 1835, said to them:—"You have been ordained to the holy priesthood; you have received it from those who have their power and authority from an angel." And Joseph the Seer addressed a conference April 21st, 1834 and "gave a relation of obtaining and translating the Book of Mormon, the revelation of the priesthood of Aaron, the organization of the church in 1830, the revelation of the high priesthood, and the gift of the holy Spirit poured out upon the church, &c."—Mill. Star. vol. 15: 50.

We now have presented the repeated testimonies of the men whom God chose to found, organize and build up his church in these last days, and we see that their claims and works are in harmony with the provisions of the Scriptures. Who, then, will be moved or troubled by the unscriptural, unhistorical objections and unbelief of men who had no immediate connection with the affairs which they reject? Who are we to believe? Those who knew of, and were chief actors in these matters, or those who were not? "Wisdom is justified of her children."

R. B. YOUNG'S GOSPEL.

ELDER R. B. YOUNG, a polygamous son of the late Brigham Young, preached in the Tabernacle at Salt Lake City, May 1st, 1887, and uttered the following remarks, which are of the essence of Brighamism:

"The speaker had been asked many times, by Gentile friends, regarding these things, and they seemed to consider it marvelous that a man could believe in the Bible and be a 'Mormon.' This term and polygamy seemed to be synonymous in many minds. But if the speaker were converted from this belief in plural marriage, he must be converted from the Bible. The Saints declared, and could prove that those who believed in the Bible must believe in a plurality of wives. When people, or the nation, assail and denounce polygamy, they assail and denounce the Bible. It is impossible for a man to say truthfully that he is a believer in the divinity of the Bible and at the same time say he does not believe in plural marriage. The speaker had been born and reared in that order. He had embraced it, and had suffered imprisonment therefor—for obeying what he knew to be a law of the gospel of Christ."

How did it happen, Mr. Young, if polygamy was ordained and justified of God as you claim, that God commanded Abraham to put his polygamy away, as we find in Gen. 21: 12? And if it was appointed of God, why was it that Jacob was deluded into it by fraud and violence, and that deceit, falsehood, and theft followed it, as is described in Genesis, chapters 29, 30, and 31? And if it was ordained of God, why did not the twelve sons of Jacob practice it? If ordained of God, as you claim, why is it said of David, before he went into polygamy, that he was "a man after his [the Lord's] own heart" (1 Sam. 13: 14); and, that after he became a polygamist, David himself confessed, saying, "Mine iniquities have taken hold upon me, so that I am not able to look up; they are more than the hairs of mine head; therefore my heart faileth me?"—Ps. 40: 12. And why was it that God blessed and honored Solomon before he went into polygamy, and condemned his conduct after he adopted it? (1 Kings, chapter 11; also Book of Mormon, Jacob, chapters 1 and 2.) If ordained of God, why did Jesus say that he who had two wives at the same time (even though one had been put away, but not legally), "committeth adultery?" (Matt. 19: 9.) And why did Paul say, "Let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own [not another woman's] husband?" (1 Cor. 7: 2.) And finally, if polygamy was ordained of God and taught in the Bible as either a duty or a privilege, why did not Adam, and Seth, and Enoch, and Noah and his sons, and Isaac, and Joseph, and Lot, and Job, and Daniel, and Jesus, and John the Baptist, and the Apos-ties, and hosts of others of God's worthies, most of whom were without any reproach or condemnation—why did not these practice or teach polygamy?

And, Mr. Young, when you say that plural marriage is "a law of the gospel," you flatly contradict all history, whether sacred or profane; for the Bible tells us that the apostles preached "the gospel"—"the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (Rom. 1: 16); but they never advocated polygamy, but directly the contrary.

The Inspired Translation of the Scriptures by Joseph Smith the Seer informs us that Adam taught the gospel (Gen. chapter 6), but Adam did not teach nor practice polygamy. The Book of Mormon, which you profess to believe, contains "the fulness of the gospel;" and it not only does not teach polygamy, but, to the contrary, it mentions it only to condemn it or anything like it.

We think none the less of you because of your parentage, but we detest and denounce your false teachings.

WE take the following from the Independence, (Missouri) Sentinel for September 17th. The Progress, of the same city curtly notified the News in a late issue that there was no occasion for its attack upon the Latter Day Saints at Independence. It says:

"The Kansas City Evening News made a raid in its columns this week, on the Latter Day Saints of this city, which was not called for by any of our Gentile citizens. No charges of immoral nature have ever been brought against this sect which numbers between five and six hundred members in Independence and vicinity, and we are of the opinion that the News has been very badly informed."

We are glad to know there is manliness and honor yet with newspaper men to resent and denounce the dishonorable methods to which some of their fraternity occasionally stoop. Here is what the Sentinel says:

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Kansas City News:—In your issue of yesterday you give place in the first column to an article reflecting seriously upon the character of the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Independence. So vile and unjustifiable were the statements therein, that your reporter here hunted up a prominent citizen and sent him to an official of said church to inform him that he had nothing to do with it, and hoped no blame would be attached to him by the church.

We confess to having our share of trouble in keeping an occasional weak and erring member in condition justifying his or her retention in the church, but we unhesitatingly pronounce some of the statements in your article as infamously false and cruel to-wit:

1st. The statement that next Monday, or any other time, has been set for the trial of members of the church, is without foundation in truth or fact.

2d. Your statement that twenty members of the church have been charged with immorality is equally false.

3d. The statement the presiding elder announced a week ago, or at any other time, that two packages of letters had been found, the contents of which implicated a score of members in immoralities, is a contemptible falsehood. No letters were ever named; no immorality was even hinted at; no time was named for trial of anyone.

4th. Your statement, as follows, "The best that can be said of the Mormon girls is that they, individually and as a class, bear no good reputation," is a base slander, flung without cause upon a community of young ladies, whose conduct will compare well with that of the same number in any other community or church.

What motive led to such a malicious statement can only be discerned by those of like mind—whose depravity of soul and heart causes every object upon which they look to mirror their own condition.

Our membership in Independence is about 600, over 500 of whom are enrolled on the branch record. All our general business meetings are open to the world, and it is to be regretted that your special reporter did not take pains to acquaint himself with our standing and character, and thus save himself from the disgrace that must ever attach to him in the minds of all who learn of his glaring misrepresentation of a people whose record for devotion to virtue and rigidity of discipline is unsurpassed.

The presiding elder at our last business meeting did say that about twenty cases required attention, some trivial and some serious. This statement was chiefly based upon the fact that several persons had been guilty of visiting saloons contrary to church rule, and (without naming the offense) insisted that the practice must be stopped or the guilty ones severed from church fellowship. No mention of immorality among the young or old—no hint regarding the discovery of a letter or letters. No reference to another business meeting at which to try sinful members.

It is to be presumed that your reporter in order to henceforth pose as a sensationalist and a caterer to the morbid tastes of the baser class, has been consorting with those who are wonderfully economical with the truth but lavish in lying, and who have, therefore, no religious fellowship for the Latter Day Saints.

The church of Latter Day Saints in Independence has suffered from evils within, and opposition without. It has had to deal with such matters as we have above referred to. But what church has not had similar experiences?

We invite the public to our business meetings where the results of all church trials are openly declared, and where your reporter can learn the truth and furnish only the facts for public information, if a change so radical in his inclination shall ever occur.

F. G. PITT, Presiding Elder.

BISHOP SIMPSON'S ORATORY.

THE late Mathew Simpson, Bishop of the M. E. Church, on being asked by a fellow-minister how he gained his power as an orator, replied:

"It cost me unspeakable effort to bring myself to attempt speaking, and I was invariably mortified at my failures. At length, having felt called to the ministry, I sought to forget myself so far as possible, and, abandoning all thoughts of oratory, to give myself absolutely to the task of saying things so that people could readily understand them. Then followed an increasing effort to impress the truth upon them, and by that means I have gained whatever power I possess as a public speaker."

Every successful public speaker has found, as did Bishop Simpson, that he must forget self and think only of the matter he would present to his hearers; also that his next effort should be to reach, in a plain, clear, easy, attractive manner, the understanding of those he addresses. The public speaker should be the public teacher; and to be the latter in an effective way he must have the matter within him to teach, and then he must communicate it in such a way that his hearers can see and sense it as he does. Brain should speak to brain, heart to heart, soul to soul, and that attractively.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE associate editor spent Sunday the 18th in St. Joseph, Missouri, preached twice, and baptized five, among them his two youngest sons, David H. and Frederick B. The Saints in that branch are gaining steadily in members and otherwise. Prospects are good for further additions there at an early time. Elders H. C. Bronson and J. T. Kinneman, whom we met there, are in excellent spirits, and report well of the interests of the church in that district. Both of them are capable, devoted ministers, who will work as they best can.

Bro. L. C. Donaldson wrote from River-ton, Iowa, of late, that he finds some of his old soldier comrades who wish to investigate the latter day work, and he intends to help them what he can to essential facts. He takes firm grounds against the use or manufacture of intoxicating beverages. He desires some elder to labor with him in Atchison county, Missouri.

We can not say just when the Cowdery letters will be ready for sale, nor what the price for them will be.

As to "Persecution and its Causes," it will be some time yet before that article will be concluded. And as to whether it will be published in book form soon, we are not able yet to decide.

Sister Catherine Salisbury, the only surviving sister of Joseph the Seer, has been visiting kindred and friends at Lamoni the past few days. We called on her the evening of the 21st of September at the residence of Bro. Wm. H. Deam and found she was visiting Sr. Julia Marks, the widow of the late Bro. William Marks, who like herself passed through the mobbing and drivings of the Saints in Missouri and Illinois. Sister Salisbury is now past 74 years of age, yet she is active and vigorous in mind and body, and bids fair to see many happy useful years. She left on the 23d for the Reunion at Harlan, intending to return here before going to her home in Illinois. Her experiences in the latter day work are very interesting, instructive and confirming.

Bro. J. C. Clapp, in a late letter, reports "good meetings and troubling of the waters occasionally."

Bro. William T. Maitland wrote from Canton, Iowa, September 13th, that he had baptized one of late, and that four or more were ready for that ordinance. He also says our elders will be kindly received at Mr. William Cochrane's, Morris, Grundy county, Illinois.

Sr. Mary Struthers, of New Boston, Iowa, says she is seventy-two years old, is joyful in her hope, and she knows this church is blessed and owned of God.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote of late that he "baptized four at Freesoil, the 13th September, two on the 14th, and left several others believing."

Bro. Chatburn wrote of late that arrangements are made for the trains to stop near the camp ground at Harlan, and that teams will be in readiness to take passengers and baggage directly to the camp. Plenty of well and river water are convenient to the grounds.

THE SYNOPSIS.—In this issue Bro. J. J. Cornish advertises his "Synopsis" at reduced rates, in order to close out the edition, pay off indebtedness, and prepare his family affairs so that he can prosecute active campaign work for the Master in the gospel field this fall and winter. We need not tell our readers that Bro. Cornish is a wise, persistent, spiritual worker, for his record in the past speaks for itself in terms easy to be understood. All those needing such a work as the "Synopsis" will do well to help by sending for one.

HAZY "STAR"-LIGHT.

WE notice in the Grant City (Missouri) Star for September 17th that the editor endorses all that "Miss Snow" and "Aunt Zinah" states in the Globe-Democrat as to the origin of polygamy, and in the next breath he rejects and denounces as unreliable their statements against "Ann Eliza" and the purity of their own polygamous lives! If he believes them falsifiers in matters of but comparatively little import when they speak against "Ann Eliza" and in favor of their polygamous character, how can he believe them reliable when they contradict the recorded facts of the authorized books and papers of the church up to 1844? Has he not learned that,

"Tis slander;
Whose edge is sharper than the sword; whose tongue
Out-venoms all the worms of Nile; whose breath
Rides on the posting winds, and doth belie
All corners of the world: kings, queens, and states,
Maids, matrons—nay, the secrets of the grave
This viperous slander enters."

And can he not see that, if they slander "Ann Eliza," and by falsehood seek to exalt their own polygamous doctrine and conduct, which he claims they do, that they thereby prove themselves totally unfit witnesses when seeking to excuse their own follies and crimes! Consistency is a jewel; and those who sit in judgment on the character of others should hold the scales with an equal hand, free from malice or prejudice, and bear in mind the patent fact that,

"There is a lust in man no charm can tame,
Of loudly publishing his neighbor's shame;
On eagle's wings immortal scandals fly,
While virtuous actions are but born and die."

MRS. C. L. SMITH-WELD.

IN our issue for September 24th was printed a very terse notice of the marriage of Sr. Carrie L. Smith, daughter of Pres. Joseph Smith, and Bro. F. M. Weld; and now the employes of the HERALD office deem it a duty and a pleasure to offer words of regret and commendation in parting with one who had so thoroughly endeared herself to them. Sr. Carrie has been associated with the HERALD Office for more than eight years past, and by her uniform gentle demeanor, intelligent deportment and womanly grace has won the highest place in their esteem, and commands their best wishes and sincerest regards for her present and future welfare. May the Spirit of our dear Master Jesus dwell richly in the home of herself and husband, and many his tender, prospering care fill their hearts with gladness, their garners with plenty, until they shall have seen long and joyful lives in the land, and then be gathered with the Church of the First Born and inherit all things in Christ Jesus our Lord.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

The editor of the Holdredge (Nebraska) Progress, Mr. J. J. Phare, wrote us of late as follows:

"In looking over the 'Encyclopedia Britannica' on Mormons, the other day, I found the statement that all of the 'Three Witnesses' [to the Book of Mormon] mentioning them by name, renounced the faith and denied their own testimony. I consider this, from what I have been able to learn of the matter, very inappropriate for a work which should give unbiased facts, and think it but due, in justice and equity, that David Whitmer's late statement should be submitted to the publishers, and at least give them a chance to correct an error, if it is one."

Bro. Robt. Oehring wrote from Newark, Dakota, September 12th, saying:

"We have baptized six into the church, and we have healings, tongues, interpretations and prophecies, for which we thank God."

Bro. E. Day Bennett wrote the 17th of September from Santa Clara, Dakota:

"The Lord is with us. We have a branch now of seventeen members. I have had the pleasure of baptizing six, one of them my father, who had been a Methodist for thirty-three years. He was healed in the waters of baptism."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is a timid spirit a true or false one?

Ans.—This depends entirely on surrounding conditions, and the causes that lead thereto. Timidity arising from the fear of God is proper and right. But timidity arising through fear to do good, and be good, such is not true in the sense of being justifiable and praise worthy.

WE take the following from the Holden (Missouri) Herald of last August 18th, and feel pleased to see such fairness as it exhibits:

"Mr. Atherton's building on the corner of Second and Olive streets has been fitted up for a place of worship by the Latter Day Saints. It has been furnished with chairs and other appointments for a convenient meeting place, and Elder F. C. Warnky of Independence came down last Saturday and dedicated it. He spoke Saturday on 'Christ's Re-appearance' on earth. Said that He would come in person and a church would be prepared to receive him. On Sunday his theme was the 'Gospel and its Power,' that all who believe and obey the gospel would receive evidence by miraculous manifestation that their names were recorded in heaven. Sunday evening in his discourse on the 'Condition after Death' he said that there were more than two places in eternity for men. But that every one would be saved and receive a reward according to his works except those who had sinned against the Holy Ghost. Monday evening his subject was the 'Kingdom of God.' The attendance has so far been good.

"Elder Warnky's manner is such that he is making friends both for himself and his church."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Fair First-Day mornings steeped in summer calm,
Warm, tender, restful, sweet with woodland balm,
Come to him, like some mother-hallowed psalm
To tired grinder at the noisy wheel of labor,"

RESERVE YOUR NERVES.

TOO MANY women work just to finish this or that, long after fatigue has set in. Their bodies may not feel much more tired than they were an hour or two earlier; but instead of cheerful physical fatigue, when it is a real comfort to sit down and rest, and laugh and talk perhaps, or read something pleasant, instead of this good feeling has come nervous fatigue, a very different matter; the least word irritates us, and when we finally cease, it is not to rest with cheerful talk or reading, or a delicious sense of work done and repose earned, but we sink down too tired to rest, feeling worn out, ill, and ready to cry rather than laugh.

We may get over such abuse two or three times, but by degrees this nervous irritability will become, not a rare experience consequent rare fatigue, but will follow even very little exertion, and will be the shattered, pallid woman; faded and the result worn out long before life's prime. And probably the time will then have come for her, when she not only is not able to do very much, but is unable to refrain from trying to do. Therefore, I say, if the work that seems so necessary causes more than a healthy fatigue, let it go. Keep the house "broom clean;" do just what must be done; and reserve you nerves for your husband and children; it is your duty.—Sel.

"TIRED MOTHERS."

"A little elbow leans upon your knee,
Your tired knee that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From underneath a thatch of tangled hair.
Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch
Of warm, moist fingers, folding yours so tight;
You do not prize the blessing overmuch,
You are almost too tired to pray to-night."

Dear young mothers, let Sister Frances tell you she has been right there, "too tired to pray;" but oh, could we turn backward and unravel the threads woven into the tangled skein of our life, we would lay aside any part of the toil which made life so full of worry and care, and give our time to the heaven appointed task of taking our little ones in our arms, answering every question in our power to answer, and striving by every way to imprint upon their tender souls the image of their Creator as it has been revealed to us in the life of his Son.

"But it is blessedness! A year ago
I did not see it as I do to-day;
We are so dull and thankless—and too slow
To catch the sunshine till it slips away.
And now it seems surpassing strange to me,
That while I wore the badge of motherhood,
I did not kiss more oft and tenderly,
The little child that brought me only good."

You who give so much time to the adorning of the little bodies, often to the disadvantage and discomfort of your little one, oh, stop and think for a moment and say to yourself, What am I doing day by day that the spirit may be clothed and fed—the immortal soul which God created and entrusted only to the care of a mother; I know the way of righteousness; God has brought me to a knowledge of his truth, and am I so striving to train my little ones that they shall inherit the place Christ has gone to prepare for those who love him?

"And if, some night, when you sit down to rest,
You miss this elbow from your tired knee,
This restless curly head from your breast,
This lisping tongue that chatters constantly;
If from your own the dimpled hands have slipped,
And ne'er would nestle in your hands again,
If the white feet into their grave had slipped,
I would not blame you for your heartache then.

I wonder so that mothers ever fret
At little children clinging to their gown;
Or, that the footprints when the days are wet
Are ever black enough to make them frown.
If I could find a little muddy boot,
Or cap, or jacket, on my chamber floor;
If I could kiss a rosy, restless foot,
And hear its patter in the house once more;

If I could mend a broken cart to-day,
To-morrow make a kite to reach the sky,
There is no woman in God's world would say
She was more blissfully content than I.
But, oh! the dainty pillow next my own
Is never ruffled by a shining head:
My singing birdling from its nest has flown,
The little boy I used to kiss is dead."

Ah, this is sad—to sit in the twilight with an aching heart, listening for the patter of little feet which will never make music in the home again; but sad and lonely as that mother's heart may be, hers is a blissful lot compared with that wretched being who waits into the small hours of the night, listening for a step which will make her shudder when she hears it, and the sound of a voice which will send the blood curdling around her heart. She takes to her sleepless pillow this gnawing pain,—it never leaves her even in sleep, and from troubled dreams she wakes only to the thought of the long hours of sleepless agony before her. When blighting misery comes like this, God help that mother who to this must add the bitterest of all other thoughts: "But for my own careless neglect, this cup might never have been pressed to my lips."

Duties never conflict. God sends us our children, and with them comes the duty to train them up for him, and whatever conflicts with this is not our duty.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Lottie E. Hamilton, Bozeman, Mont. . . . .	50
Vivan, Audra & Lena Hamilton, Bozeman, . . .	10
Bro. Charles A. Coombs, Plainville, Mass. . .	50
Bro. Arthur B. Pierce, " " " " . . .	50
Bro. Samuel G. Robbins, " " " " . . .	25
Sr. Annie F. Lewis, " " " " . . .	25
Sr. Susie E. Coombs, " " " " . . .	25
Sr. Sarah Coombs, " " " " . . .	50
Sr. Emily Downes, " " " " . . .	25
Sr. Harriett Coombs, " " " " . . .	25
Sr. Hattie Staples, " " " " . . .	50
Sr. Carrie Coombs, " " " " . . .	25
Sr. Idella Staples, " " " " . . .	50
Sr. Isabel Staples, " " " " . . .	50
Sr. Jane Campbell, Proton, Ont. . . . .	2 60
Sr. Maggie Campbell, Proton, Ont. . . . .	1 40
Sr. Laura Church, Lamoni, Iowa . . . . .	24
Bro. R. T. Elvin, Nebraska City, Neb. . . . .	50
Sr. M. E. Benedict, McPaul, Iowa . . . . .	50
Sr. C. M. Ashley, Lower Lake, Cal. . . . .	50
Sr. Margaret Whiteside, Lower Lake, Cal. . .	1 00
Little Ada E. Hopkins, Lamoni, Iowa . . . .	10

LAMONI, Iowa, September 23d.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Ruth A. Turner, Montrose, Iowa, writes:—"While reading the letter of Sister Pinkerton, the Spirit bore witness to me of the truthfulness of her testimony, and I rejoice that God testifies to his acceptance of the labors of such noble men as Bro. H. A. Stebbins." She also relates a dream (too lengthy for insertion) in which she was shown that God was preparing a work for her, and she saw its fulfillment when three motherless children come to her to be cared for. She asks an interest in the prayers of the Saints that she may discharge her duty faithfully.

Sister Mary Dawson, Stuart, Neb., writes:—"I am thankful that I was not too proud to accept the gospel when and as I did, and I have had many evidences of its truth." She relates that upon one occasion, being very anxious to know the tune of a certain hymn, she made it the subject of prayer, and upon her continuing to implore, the air was given her by the Spirit, and at the same time her soul was filled with praise and thanksgiving.

Sister Frances Hall, Lake View, Ohio, writes:—"I am thankful that God ever brought me to a knowledge of his plan of salvation. I struggled a long time against it, every chapter I read of God's word condemning me. I belonged to the Methodist Episcopal church and was a regular attendant at service every Sabbath Day, but although I enjoyed a portion of the Spirit, I was not satisfied. Now I am glad that I followed my blessed Lord and Master into the waters of baptism. I was baptised by Bro. G. T. Griffith a few months ago. Some told me it would cost me my life, as it was in the winter time, but I was willing to trust the Lord. I am the mother of four children and I hope the Lord will help me to bring them up in his fear. There are a few Saints here, and we have some good meetings. May the Lord help me to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made me free."

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., September 13th.

Dear Sister Frances:—My birthday makes me remember my promise, so I enclose a dollar; and how thankful I am that the Lord has spared me, in his goodness and mercy; that my faith is strong in the gospel of these latter days yet. And oh, how I rejoice in those grand testimonies of the dear Saints of God. It does my soul good. A good many things I have gone through myself, so I can understand how and what it is; but it is all for the best. Go on, dear Saints, in the narrow way; with the help of the Lord we will overcome in all our struggles. I can not boast of great faith; but what I have is sound. I have learned this by experience.

About 1872, I think it was, I was taken very sick with that dreadful disease, bowel complaint, and got so bad that I was told by the doctor, (who had given me a good deal of poison): "If you have anything to say, say it, for you can not live twenty-four hours; your inside is gone, and it is impossible to live without bowels." O, how it struck me. I was atremble all over. Then it came to me—"Where is your faith in God?" Is it possible! Then I felt the spirit of prayer come upon me, and oh, how I prayed to the Lord! It was a wonder to myself how I could pray so, because I had lain dormant for six weeks from the pain; but that death warrant aroused me all over.

We had no branch here then, so I could not call on the elders. There were one or two, but I did not know where to find them. And when I prayed, I told the Lord if he would spare me, I would do my best to keep in the narrow way of Christ, and do all I could in my poor way to help along the gospel; and it came to me through the Spirit: "Believe, and you shall live." I said, Lord, once more, and the same word came to me again. I was so sure in my faith, that same morning I got out of the bed; and in the afternoon there came a buggy to the house, with two brethren in it. It was brother A. Bishop and brother Forscutt; and in the evening they held a meeting at one of the brethren's, and there blessed the first oil that was blessed here. They took me to the meeting; I could hardly stand on my feet; and they put me in a big chair between two pillows. There I sat, more dead than alive; but the words: Believe only, and you shall live, were not off my tongue, for fear it would slip, because there was another voice knocking at that same door: "Won't do you any good; your bowels are all gone." But "believe only," got the victory. When all prayed, then I followed in prayer. Bro. Forscutt anointed me. Oh, how solemn it was; I never have felt so in my life. Then brethren Forscutt and Bishop laid hands on me. I can not tell the feeling; but this I can tell, that I was whole, and did my work the next day, and do to this day. And once when my arm was lame; I was healed of that. My eyesight failed, and I was healed of that.

O, dear Saints, I could not write it in a week—all the goodness of God unto me. Is it a wonder we stick to our Redeemer? O, glory to the God we love! Let us all strive to be faithful to the end.

My kind love to Sr. Helen Smith. You are welcome again, Sr. Helen. I want to see a letter from Aunt Patience. Come along Fanny, it will do good. S. BOURGOIN.

WRAY, Colorado, Sept. 10th.

Dear Sister Frances:—The Column is very interesting to me; some of the letters I have re-read several times. They give me new strength, also help me to see some of my own faults. Let us each take heed that we may be the better and wiser for the counsel and warnings given us by those that are certainly worthy the name which they bear. It is my prayer that we will eat of the "bread of life," for Jesus said, "Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day." Therefore, let us "watch and pray always, that we may be accounted worthy to escape all things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man." Sometimes, amid the cares and trials of life I feel weary, and long for the "evergreen shore;" but, when I think of those that leave their homes and go into foreign lands to spread the gospel, and the dear sisters that have to be separated from their companions, it seems that my trials are nothing compared with theirs. We shall reap as we have sown. I often think, "What will my harvest be?" May we ever be willing to "pay the price," and be led by the Spirit into the ways of truth and righteousness.

I do feel to thank God that my life has been spared: that I was entrusted with the responsibility of wife and motherhood, if for a few brief years only. When I think of the form of my angel child, I feel that I was not competent to perform the duty of a mother, and perhaps that was the reason she was called home. May God give me strength and patience for responsibilities still resting upon me, that I may be enabled to discharge every duty, and be prepared to enter into his kingdom, is my prayer.

N. A. BROOKS.

LIBERTY, Kansas, Aug. 18th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—In reading your many interesting letters, I feel it my duty to write a few lines to the Column. I love to read your letters from time to time. I am striving to live as becomes a Saint. We are living eight miles from our branch, and don't get to meet with the Saints often, as we have no team and live in town, and it costs from three to four dollars a day for a team; but I thank God, for he don't forget us if we are alone among worldly people, for he has blessed us at many times. When I read your letters on training children it makes me think of the good advice my mother used to give, and gives me yet. She always said of those that didn't have children, that the Lord did not love them. Some women say they don't know what they would do if they had two little children, like me; I don't know what I would do without them, they are so much comfort.

Your sister in Christ,

ALICE RYAN.

MONTROSE, Iowa, Sep. 9th.

Sister Frances:—By request of my mother I write a few lines. She is ninety-two years old the 5th of September, and has belonged to the church since 1833. She has been in peril by land if not by sea, and among false brethren. Was in Missouri during the troubles; believes in all the books; has never doubted the work since she first believed. She has seen the power of God manifested in many ways. She is now living away from the church, almost helpless and alone, and desires the prayers of the Saints. The Herald is all the preaching she hears. She sends one dollar for the missionary fund. She lives in Peakville, Missouri; her name is Hettie Duty.

I will also send one dollar for the Missionary Fund, only wishing it was one thousand instead of one. I also have a true testimony to bare. I have belonged to the church over fifty years and could as well doubt my own existence as doubt the truth of this work. I have been restored to health by the prayer and faith of the church, when given up by doctors to die; have seen many healed by the power of God; have seen all the gifts and blessings of the gospel manifested in this church; how could I doubt?

Your sister in gospel bonds,

ELIZA NEWBERRY.

It is becoming apparent that absence of liquor selling and drinking will enrich a State.

The Times, Portland, Maine, says Neal Dow's latest utterance on the Maine law is this: "Many years ago the people of Maine consumed more strong drink than any other state in the Union. Blaine writing on the subject said that at one time no people in the country used such enormous quantities of liquor as did the people of this state. To-day we can say that no state in the whole Union uses so little, and Blaine has also said that no state has prospered so remarkably during the past twenty years as Maine. There is cause for all the change. Temptation for strong drink has been put out of the way. When Blaine said Maine is the most prosperous state in the Union, he spoke truth. Dilapidated buildings are being repaired or replaced by new ones, handsome in architecture and substantial in structure, and almost hopeless poverty is giving way to vigorous industry, intelligence and wealth. By careful estimates this state saves directly and indirectly $24,000,000 yearly.

Correspondence.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sep. 15th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Bro. R. J. Anthony will probably be in the city by the 6th of October, when the semi-annual conference of the Utah Saints be held. I received a letter from J. C. Clapp saying that he will give us a call on the first of next month as he goes east to Kentucky. I wrote him to make it convenient to be here during the conference and have evening meetings in the chapel. We anticipate a large attendance, and may expect something will be done by way of reorganizing the Utah Church.

As to the enlarging of the pamphlet "Mormon Portraits," with the letters and interview of Wm. Law, there is nothing said or hinted that it will be very soon. Your idea as to who Investigator is, I think to be correct. Doctor Wyl has not been here since his book was published. I suppose he is in pursuit of more carrion and falsehood, as I told him when he was here. He then acknowledged that the truth about the church and Joseph Smith was already published; but he wanted to make a book of entirely new material, something that has never been compiled in a book before. I suppose that he in his zeal is still hunting material to enlarge it.

Why William Law should cast his animosity now at Joseph and Emma, I have but one conclusion. I have no doubt that he states the truth when he says he with others established the Ensign in Nauvoo and issued one number when it was destroyed, which, he says, resulted in the death of the two Smiths, Joseph and Hyrum; so that by his own confession the blood of the prophets is on his skirts. No wonder that he retired to a place where he was not known and where the word "Mormon" would not be heard. Now with all his animus, he can not, or has not produced any proof that Joseph had anything to do with polygamy; but we find in the interview any amount of insinuation and slander which none would listen to but an enemy.

But here is a key and the turning point. I remember well of hearing President Joseph Smith make the remark publicly, that William Law received a commandment to publish the inspired Translation of the Holy Scriptures, and that he had disregarded that commandment, and had gone into speculation with his money and was under condemnation for it, and that his money would go from him, etc., etc. "The way of the transgressor is hard." Gen. Wilson Law, his brother, was never in the church, so says William Law. But when we read the verses composed by him on the 8th of August, 1843, on Lake Huron, printed in Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 412, we find he professed to have more spirit and interest in the work than you will find in any writing that is on record by William Law in his exalted position in spiritual matters in the church. Who can contemplate the two martyrs in Nauvoo, (as the developments then and recent history shows that they were in the midst of traitors to them and apostates to the principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ), of whom the world was not worthy, and then reflect for a moment on the sorrow, the anguish, the sore affliction, the desolations and deaths that have come upon latter day Israel in consequence!

KENT, Ills., Sept. 12th.

Bro. David Dancer: I have taken the Herald from volume sixteen, and haven't missed but one number; have them all now; have volumes sixteen to twenty-two bound. Have taken the Hope from the start. They are all the preachers I have, as I am the only member of our church nearer than Pecatonica, that I know of. I wish some elder would come and stay long enough to build up a branch here. I have been expecting brethren Joseph and Blakeslee to come and see me, but I have not seen them yet. I would like to sell out now, and hope to, as we have a new railroad nearly done through Kent. I would like to sell and move out west, where my two little girls could go to Saints' Sunday School and church.

Yours in bonds,

LEVI CHENEY.

OUGH, Neb., Sep. 8th.

Dear Herald:—It has been many long years since I attempted to write a word for your sacred pages; but thinking, probably, that some of the Saints who knew me in days ago, would be pleased to hear from me again, to know of my whereabouts, welfare, faith, and intentions, and how the great battle for immortality and eternal life is drifting, I essay the task of penning a few lines.

From my long silence in the work I once professed to esteem so highly, some may have concluded that I am wandering in faith, recreant to my first love, and incontinent to my covenants made at the waters of baptism. Should there be any such persons I am only too happy to inform them differently; and am free to say, that, notwithstanding I may not have given these important matters that attention and interest I should have done, and at times may have outwardly appeared indifferent to them, yet far down in the great deep of my soul there burns a sacred love and reverence for them that Satan's power can never extinguish, and which can only be forgotten—if ever forgotten at all—by a full realization of those ecstatic joys prepared alone for the righteous in the mansions of eternal glory. Like the knowledge the noted Job had of his Redeemer, it is "lead in the rock forever;" and no matter what may be my circumstances and surroundings in life, be they for weal, or be they for woe, like the stary emblem of our country's glory, "It is still there!"

When I seriously ponder over these sacred and blissful thoughts I can not refrain from exclaiming, "What an evidence to the diving calling, the complete mission and final triumph of that individual through whom God set up this great latter day work." There are those who would have us believe that he was false to his sacred trust, that through transgression and the trusting to "an arm of flesh" the great sunlight that God revealed through him to the world, died out in shame and disgrace! But, Oh, how different the testimony of my heart! Over fifty years have elapsed since he has been called "a fallen prophet," and yet, to-day, the individual who will receive and obey the gospel covenant as revealed through him, can testify before men and angels that "they know their Redeemer liveth," and that, too, with the same zeal and assurance that characterized the Saints before that event is said to have taken place. The light still shines! And we know as long as that is the case, the sun is not obscured.

My object in coming out here, and my labors for the last seven years, have been to situate myself and family so that I could devote my entire time to the preaching of the gospel; for this is the one and ruling desire of my heart; and I sincerely hope and pray that the time is near at hand when it can be fully realized. This is a beautiful country, and I am satisfied it is as good as it is beautiful. Government land is all gone, but good quarter sections can be brought for from $300 to $600.

Should any of the Saints desire to find homes in this part of the "Lord's vineyard," I would be very happy to assist them in any way that I could. Should there be any of them living near here I would be pleased to correspond with them; for it is very lonesome out here without the association of those we love. Ever praying for your final triumph, I am, dear Herald, your constant well-wisher.

THOMAS J. SMITH.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 9th.

Dear Herald:—It has been some time since I have written to you, longer than it should have been; and this is not because of the loss of any interest in the great work, but I have been waiting till I became more actively engaged in the work. My hopes were never brighter, my faith never stronger, nor my love greater than at the present time. During the past six months I have labored continually, as circumstances have permitted, having given two months to the active field, baptized one, administered often to the sick, and assisted in the great work whenever I could. I have received some money from our beloved Bishop, which I hold as sacred as though received from the literal hand of the Lord.

Had it not been that I lost my Summer's work by crippling my arm—and other causes—I should probably have been in the active field, where I desire to be by this time. But my debts are now nearly paid, and the way before me is looking brighter. So I believe I can soon have the high privilege and blessing of working in the great harvest field of the Lord.

As ever yours,

J. R. COOK.

LAMONI, September 25th.

Bro. Blair:—By request of Bro. H. A. Stebbins, our district president, I and Bro. T. J. Bell, have taken charge of two two-days meetings, one at Wirt, where some I think will soon obey the gospel, the other at Davis City last Saturday and Sunday. This was the best one I have attended in Iowa. I spoke Saturday at half past two in the Union Church; had good liberty. Bro. Bell preached in the evening at 7:30 to a full church; good attention. Sunday at 9:30, had prayer and testimony meeting in Saints Hall, Brn. O. Bailey and J. P. Dillon in charge. The Spirit of God was with us in the gifts, Saints were refreshed and comforted. By request, Sunday, at eleven o'clock, I preached on the immortality of the soul, to a large congregation; had good liberty. At 2: 30, Bro. Bell preached with good liberty. At 7: 30 I preached to a full house; had good attention. On Monday, at 9, a. m., we met and I baptized three. At our confirmation the Spirit's influence was visibly felt. Three children were blessed. I believe much good was done during our meetings; may the good work roll on, is the prayer of your brother in Christ. The Davis City Branch is now said to be in the best condition it has ever enjoyed. JOHN SHIPPY.

No. 6, Lea Terrace, Glyn Rd.,
Clampton Park, London, Eng.,
August 29th, 1887.

Dear Herald:—Far away in the remote past it was one of Greece's wisest sages who laid down the undying axiom, that "No evil is so unmitigated but it produces some good." Or we might thus paraphrase it, to ensure it a readier reception into the storehouse of memory, (as poetry is almost invariably easier to commit to mind than prose)—

"There is no evil under the sun,
But out of it some good must come."

I never saw this axiom more fully exemplified than in the case of the recent acrimonious and unchristian attack upon the Church and Kingdom of God by Bro. David Whitmer. It is no paradox to say that, whatever may have been that brother's design, so far from doing any damage or injury to our dear Redeemer's name and cause in this country, or in this city of 4,500,000 inhabitants, nothing could have more emphatically and effectually strengthened our faith in the work.

The Lord's little flock in the midst of London, (the Babylon of the Eastern Hemisphere), received a most striking and consoling testimony to the truth of the work in connection with this very attack of alien powers to uproot it. For during the hour of divine worship one Thursday evening a few weeks ago, the Lord was pleased to intimate by the gift of prophecy, through one in our midst, (Bro. Wm. Kendrick), that He (the Lord), had "suffered a trial to come upon this his true Church, and not many days shall pass before thou shall hear of this. And it shall be in print, sent forth by the hand of one who was one of my witnesses to the book, even the Book of Mormon. Moreover, this that thine eyes shall read in print, shall cause a shaking of the faith of many in this my Church and Kingdom; but stand thou firm, my children, neither be moved to the right hand or to the left; for I, the Lord, have suffered this for a wise purpose; for I have already decreed that that which can be shaken shall be shaken; the time whereof is now nigh at hand. I have told you before it cometh to pass, that when it is come to pass ye might believe that I, the Lord, have spoken unto you. Thus saith the Lord."

This was the language of the revelation, so far, at least, as my memory is accurate in the matter; and, as before stated, the warning was delivered at our Thursday evening meeting in the hall during divine service.

On our way towards home, Bro. Kendrick asked me what I thought it would be which, circulated in a printed form, would be a disturbing cause in the church, as the Lord had just said. I replied that from the fact of it having to come from one of the witnesses alluded to by the Spirit, it was probably an emanation from the pen of Bro. D. Whitmer; otherwise I should have concluded it would have been another of those one-sided (or lop-sided) newspaper effusions to which we are occasionally treated in this country, (a little Country with a big C). Greatly was my faith strengthened in the precious gift of prophecy in this the Lord's true Church, when upon opening my beloved Herald, on its arrival the following Saturday, to find among the editorials an announcement to the effect that the editor had received a pamphlet, or Address in printed form, against the Reorganization, published by D. Whitmer; giving the same D. Whitmer's address, and (mirabile dictu), exhorting all the elders and friends of this latter day work to procure the said work, and to read it for themselves. I could not help thinking when I read the editorial exhortation for us to read a bitter and acrimonious attack upon our own faith: "Well, that is impartiality with a vengeance!" I suppose you Americans partake in the largeness and laxity of your ideas from the largeness and liberality of your country, (with a big C); for the Bishop of Exeter or the Arch-bishop of Canterbury would as soon think of having Canterbury Cathedral razed to the ground, and the congregation scattered like sheep, as to exhort them to read a book written by some enemy of his church to ridicule the doctrines and "reform" the church from off the face of the earth.

However, I am truly grateful to the great Director of all destinies, to be able to say that, what with the Revelation before alluded to, and the masterly articles in the Herald which so completely tore the life and soul out of the poor "Address," that it only now awaits a decent funeral to bury it—and I am sure it will be more missed than mourned, I say, what with the brief and ephemeral existence it has had, and the violent and tragic death it has met with, the "Address" has been so mercifully overruled to the good of our beloved cause, that not even the weakest and feeblest of the Saints in London have been shaken by it, let alone stunned. Not being a Seer or a diviner, I can not say that I altogether see the motive of Mr. Whitmer and his co-adjutors, (if any), in the present unintentional and unpremeditated attack upon the Lord's work. Perhaps they are our friends! Very much so! If so, then I beg respectfully to re-echo the prayer of a learned man in this country—"Save us from our friends." A certain gentleman upon being asked how many friends he had, replied that to the best of his belief he had about 150, but he would just as soon have 300 downright enemies; for they could certainly not do him any more harm in five years than his friends had done him in as many days! This is a genus known to human naturalists as the "Amicus candida," (or candid friend), but if your peace and comfort is of value to you, avoid him. The work of our good Lord is, however, rapidly rising in spite of open enemies and injudicious friends; and the weekly numbers of our valued Herald increase in encouragement and interest because the dear Lord is increasing his power and blessing upon the hearts of the elders, and through them, to the Saints and anxious enquirers of every shade and denomination.

The Mother's Home Column is a jewel, (and a brilliant one too), in the Herald's crown; and may its lustre never grow dim. There is much in the letters of the various sisters that an elder can read and re-read with profit and pleasure. As the majority of us in London are young, and as there are doubtless in every branch (as in ours), young and unmarried sisters, also married ones who are not mothers, are they welcome to write to the column? If so, might not the title be extended from "mothers" to "sisters" Home Column, so as to embrace all such also; for while all mothers are sisters, all sisters are not mothers. The Herald is doing great good in this land, but would do infinitely more if only the letters and articles of a purely controversial and contradictory character sent by some of the church "friends," could be excluded. Not that I would willingly see anything good or useful excluded, but as it now is, one can not place the Herald in a stranger's or enquirer's hands in this country; for, being unaccustomed to American ways and ideas, they naturally suppose that, being our official organ, the Herald contains nothing but what we officially believe and accept as a church, which is far from being the case. However, it is far from an easy task to suggest a remedy for this state of things; and I can fully sympathize with the editorial staff in this matter. One comfort is left to us, and that is that the name and editorship of sister Walker is sufficient guarantee that while the new Magazine, "Autumn Leaves," will contain a full and ample exposition of our faith and doctrine, contradictory and polemical articles and letters will doubtless be so uniformly and impartially excluded, that the Magazine can be placed freely and fearlessly in the hands of any stranger or enquirer. Perhaps articles of a scientific character, embracing the latest wonderful discoveries in Astronomy, Chemistry, Electricity, &c., would now and then prove acceptable to its readers?

You will be rejoiced to hear that the Lord has certainly been working powerfully of late in this remote portion of his vineyard. During the past month, nine precious souls have been added to this lonely branch of the church; (lonely though in the midst of a city whose population is reckoned by millions!) Three of the new converts are relatives of one of the most zealous and faithful workers in the branch, viz., elder William Kendrick. It was in reference to these three, (his own sister and two nieces), that the following interesting incident occurred, illustrative of the heavenly Father's loving interest in all that concerns his true church here below.

During the Thursday evening prior to the Sabbath upon which the baptism of these three ladies took place, Bro. William Kendrick arose and said that upon the front of the baptismal font in the hall, he could see, in vision, a beautiful plant, bearing three pure white blossoms with six green leaves upon the one stem. Underneath this beauteous plant appeared the two following lines, placed one beneath the other thus, as in poetry:

"The first shall be last,
And the last shall be first."

The brother then proceeded to say that the green plant bearing three white blossoms represented the three sisters who were so soon to receive the white robe of purity from the Lord, by being baptized for the remission of sins. The six leaves denoted the six distinct and cardinal principles of the gospel of Christ, in which three sisters were about to participate, viz, (1) Repentance from dead works, (2) Faith toward God, (3) The doctrine of baptisms, (4) Laying on of hands, (5) Resurrection of the dead, (6) Eternal judgment;

(Heb. 6: 1, 2); all of which points the Lord said that the elders were to faithfully proclaim. But, in conclusion, Bro. Kendrick said he felt doubtful as to the signification of the two lines which he saw inscribed at the bottom of the baptistry, "The first shall be last, and the last first." The brother having enquired if any present had received the interpretation or meaning of these lines, and finding that no reply was elicited betook himself to silent prayer, being also joined in spirit by many of us present. Soon Bro. Kendrick again arose, saying that in front of him appeared a vision in which he saw himself arrayed in the baptismal garments, while the three candidates also stood in their white robes, ready for the sacred rite of baptism. But what astonished the brother was, that the lady standing nearest him in the vision, and, therefore, first to be baptized was his own sister, who had been the last to give in her name for baptism; while the last of the three was the one whose name was the first given in. Then the angel or Spirit of the Lord said to him, as in prophecy, "This is that which I showed unto thee in the former vision; for, behold, this is how thou shalt baptize them, even "The first shall be last, and the last shall be first." This is precisely how, therefore, the brother immersed them; and I think I am strictly within the bounds of accuracy in declaring that never have I seen so great an outpouring of the Divine afflatus before; for even entire strangers who had come from a distance to witness the ceremony were unable to restrain the tears which would course unbidden down their cheeks. The elder sister of the three, (not far short of seventy years of age), is rapidly losing all trace and pain of the chronic rheumatism, which has been her affliction even from birth.

Many who were once hostile have now (I am thankful to say) become friends to the cause; but you will readily understand that preaching in a vast central town like London is attended with comparatively small success, owing to the absorbing interest in political matters, incidental to the larger towns.

For instance, at the time of present writing, London is shaken to its political centre owing to the recent passage of the great "Coercion Act," for the government of Ireland; and (without entering into the merits of the question at issue), I fully expect it will end in the downfall of the present Conservative Cabinet; which, indeed but for the assistance of the Liberal Unionists under Lord Hartington, would long ago have fallen both from place and power. But not desiring to enter in the least upon political subjects, dear Herald, I simply allude to this matter to illustrate one phase (only), of the difficulties attendant upon the propagation of the Lord's work in this vast city; for so great is the excitement of the public mind upon the above and cognate political questions, that to gain their ear upon subjects of infinitely higher importance, as everlasting life and eternal companionship with God and the heavenly host, is next to a physical impossibility.

I am sorry to add that with barely a single exception, the clergy and ministers of the various churches, finding that we are not Mormons, (as Mormons are believers in polygamy), and finding also, that they are totally unable to grapple with our arguments, which are based exclusively upon God's word, they go from house to house while the husbands are away at work, exhorting the women folks to refrain from coming to our meetings, and to exert their utmost influence with the husbands to ensure their absence also. What a startling commentary upon and fulfillment of 2 Tim. 3: 6. This I should be loth to pen, were it not confirmed by not only the Choir and Sunday School children, but from the parents of many whom I have seen and conversed with, and this without the least animosity on our part toward the ministers, as we are at all times ready and willing to aid them all to the best of our power and ability. Kindly excuse the length of this epistle, as I have not written for so long a time.

Your brother in Christ,
F. TUBB.

JUNIATA, Mich., Sept. 17th

Bro. Joseph:—On the 31st ult. Bro. J. A. Carpenter came here to assist in holding a series of meetings, and last Sunday he baptized three, one of them his companion in life, which will be good news to many of the Saints, as she had many friends among them. The interest here is good, and seems to be increasing. We have a good sized building in which we hold our meetings, and last Sunday evening so many came that all were not able to get in. Bro. Carpenter is an able speaker, is well liked here, and is also a pleasant associate.

This is a good field to labor in, and I wish that I could devote all my time to it; but as I have my family to provide for I am not able to spend much time in this great work. I am doing all I can for its advancement on Sundays.

Yours in Christ,
LEVI PHELPS.

CANTON, Iowa, Sept. 12th.

Dear Herald: With a deep sense of gratitude to the "Father of lights" do I look back to my appointment to this field (Eastern Iowa district), and call to mind the word of promise by the Spirit, that if diligent, humble and faithful, honor, fruit and blessing should be given unto me. By his grace I have been enabled to reap, and share in the joy, love and peace known only to those who "turn" men unto the righteousness revealed in the gospel of Christ.

To Bro. W. T. Bozarth I desire to say by way of testimony, I have never been left alone; my tongue has been loosed, my heart has swelled wide as eternity with unspeakable yearning toward my fellow man, while the Spirit of Jehovah has burned even as a "fire shut up in my bones," pointing the arrows of truth with the virtues of "conviction" hurled with an unsparing hand into the strongholds of sin, superstition and iniquity. Truly, the harvest is great, but laborers scarce. At times I am made to realize in whose employ I am. Oh the magnitude and grandeur of His works, the wisdom of His ways! How all things human pale and fade as mists in comparison with the things that "continue."

Our Master is true to his word and faithful to his promise. 'Tis worth all the sacrifice it costs to minister this precious word, to see the holy, joyous light beam out from hearts and faces of dear ones born into the kingdom through my humble ministrations.

In company with Bro. J. S. Roth I have rejoiced with the little band in the vicinity of Iron Hill, where one dear Saint has long stood alone, stemming the flood with undaunted faith, and consistent, holy life; whose influence has been, though still as the dew, potent as the fragrance of the wood-violet; a continual rebuke to the tale of slander, foiling reproach, and as bread cast upon the waters have been her faithful testimonies, holy life, and trusting prayers. The "appearing" after many weary days brings the grateful tear, unbidden, to the glad eyes of many in Israel. To isolated, almost discouraged Saints, let this be a lesson—go thou and do likewise; preach the gospel by the "beauty of holiness." Let that be the chief beauty of your adornment, not the "apparel" that perisheth.

Sister Eleanor: may God never stay the flow of that spirit which prompted your article on Dress. God has set the seal of his acceptance upon the instituted "helps," the least of which is not the Mothers' Home Column. "Ye shall shine as the morning, his bright crown adorning." Hoping to share the commendatory plaudit, I remain yours in the "sweet servitude."

WM. T. MAITLAND.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Sept. 1st.

Bro. Joseph:—I have just returned from Ray county, Missouri, where I held sixteen meetings, and was ably assisted by Bro. H. C. Bronson. The meetings were arranged for by Bro. Eri Mullin. He had built a nice bowery in his pasture, and seated it well. He had done a good deal of work and incurred expense to fix up, and I was glad that the effort was a success notwithstanding the rainy days we had. The last Sunday the congregations were estimated at 400. Much prejudice was removed, three were baptized, and quite a number stand at the door of the kingdom, also one man that united with the church in 1833, and moved in 1837 to the north east part of Ray county, and has lived there ever since. He made himself known, and now rejoices in the truth.

While at Richmond I called on elder David Whitmer, and had a pleasant talk with him in regard to that which he knows. His testimony of the divinity of the Book of Mormon is unshaken. He related to me how the angel appeared, what he looked like, also the plates and all that he saw. It was edifying to me to talk with him. But there was one thing that was plainly manifest, and that was that his heart seemed to be filled with bitterness towards those with whom he labored in the early days, [of the church], and and who continued firm and labored till they were called home. In his bitterness toward Joseph and Oliver, he denied that the Aaronic priesthood was conferred upon them by the angel. But of this he knows no more than I do, and that is what others have said. I told him I could not endorse his statement, because he was not only denying the testimony of Joseph and Oliver, but also that of John the Revelator, Rev. 14: 6, 7. John said that the gospel (hence authority to preach it) should be restored through or by an angel. Joseph and Oliver testified that the angel came and laid his hands upon them, saying, (calling them by name), "Upon you my fellow servants, I confer the authority to preach the gospel and baptize with water," &c. I was made to realize the sayings of Jesus, "If that light which is in you be darkened, how great is that darkness?"

I have many calls for preaching—more than I can fill. Our branch is getting along well, and we all rejoice in the truth. The street cars between Kansas City and here are running and pass in front of our new church building. We are making every effort we can to have our church complete by next conference; but we need help from the Saints abroad. It will be the best building in the city.

Yours in bonds,
F. C. WARNKEY.

LAMONI, Iowa, Sept. 16th.

Editors Herald:—About August 16th all at once I felt better and stronger than I had felt for sometime, so I sent word to St. Joseph, Missouri, that I would try and spend the following Sunday with the Saints and friends of that place. When the time came for my departure I was feeling much worse again and was sick all the way there. Sunday, August 21st, was rainy in the morning, and the attendance at the Saints' Hall, at eleven a. m., was very small. I spoke with some degree of liberty. At half-past seven p. m. I spoke to a well filled house of attentive listeners. I should not hesitate a moment to place a suitable man in St. Joseph, to spend all his time in the city, if I had such a one at command, and could spare him without neglecting other important demands.

Tuesday, August 23d, I went to Cameron. I remained in the Delana branch till Friday morning, laboring to adjust difficulties which had disturbed and divided the Saints. The dark cloud began to scatter from the first, and we left the Saints feeling much better, and, we believe, with a clearer comprehension of duty and prerogative. From Cameron I went to Bevier, where I attended the district conference on the 27th and 28th. The North East Missouri district is very weak; no missionary laboring there, and but very little local labor done. They need help.

Tuesday, August 30th, found me on hands at Clarksdale, with a view to assist in conducting the reunion services at that place. During the progress of the meetings I spoke eight times. I presume those in charge have made arrangements to report to the Herald. Brn. Bronson, Bozarth and Terry were the other preachers; and, when all things are considered, we had a good time, and friends were made to the cause. The meetings closed on Monday, September 5th.

Wednesday, September 7th, found me in Cameron where I remained till Monday the 12th, preaching four times in the old Christian church, in the city. Two of these meetings were quite well attended, and the Saints in the country manifested such an interest in the meetings that it was a pleasure to labor there. Bro. Bozarth assisted me. He had previously spoken several times in this same house with good success. Arrangements were made for Brn. Bozarth and Terry to keep up appointments in Cameron every two weeks. Monday, September 12th, I started home, spending one day in St. Joseph.

I recognize with gladness the blessing of God enjoyed while on this tour. Grace and strength to remain quiet and submit, when expedient to do so, and the blessing of the Holy Spirit in preaching the word, and in other necessary work, I try to learn as I pass along, and to-day finds me firmer, than ever in the conviction that God's ways are the best; and that it is very unsafe to indulge in one-sided and superficial views, or to allow the "tradition of the elders" alone, jealousy, envy, on any kind of bias, to, in any degree, mould our course.

Flagler's, Iowa, Monday, September 19th. Left home Saturday afternoon. Had to lay over at Albia till Sunday at 11:30. Had my usual luck in getting found out, which caused me the trouble (?) of a long talk with the landlord. Saturday evening I attend the last session of a debate between a Christian minister and a Seventh Day Adventist on the Sabbath question.

Spoke here last evening in the school-house, to a full and attentive house, with more than my usual liberty. I remain here till Thursday, speaking each evening; then, if the Lord will, on to the Reunion via Des Moines.

How shall the present great and increasing demand for preaching and labor be met? How very difficult it is to get away from the Saints and friends who are so earnestly calling for help! The elders should make an earnest effort to improve their time well. I trust that none will show such a poor appreciation of the situation, and such a terrible lack of faith, as to slacken their efforts in the field because the missionary in charge has been compelled to be at home considerable of his time, (on account of sickness), or gauge the amount of labor performed by the size of the allowance made for family support. Any such course as this would be altogether out of harmony with the Spirit and genius of God's work. May the good Lord keep us from evil.

Your brother,
JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 14th.

Bro. Joseph:—All is going nicely in our branch, with few exceptions. We are having splendid meetings, quite well attended, and much interest taken. We enjoy much of the Spirit, and are learning to do the Master's will more perfectly. Strangers are present at all our services, and we strive to sow the good seed to their understanding. Satan tries to uproot it as fast as we plant, but we are getting the better of him, so all he does is to annoy us a little occasionally. I had the pleasure of baptizing one more on the 4th, inst.; a very good appearing young man of thirty, named Judson Jennings, who promises well to become an honor to our cause. He was confirmed at the evening sacrament meeting, and many beautiful promises were made him by the Spirit through the mouth of Bro. John Parson. The meeting was a most excellent one and much enjoyed, nearly all the Saints taking part. Bro. C. A. Parkin and I were called upon one day last week to administer to young sister Ashman, who had been sick for some time; we went and officiated for her, and also partook of the sacrament with her. We, and her mother, and sister T. J. Andrews, were the only ones present; but we all united in our desires and wishes, and God heard our prayers and gave us His Spirit in great measure. I have never attended a meeting, of any kind, where there was more of the good Spirit present. I have not heard from the sister since to know whether she was healed or not, but I know that our prayers in her behalf were heard, and we were all made exceeding happy. How overpowering and melting is the Spirit of God! And how our eyes filled with tears as we felt the sweet, hallowed influence thrilling and burning within us, witnessing unto us that He heard our prayers, and that we were still accepted of Him. Accepted of God! O, how the thought causes us to form new resolutions to serve Him better and avoid all the weakness and errors we so often yield to. And how we do then desire to live as a Saint should and overcome all our evil ways, that this same Spirit may ever abide with us. God grant that we may now continue to walk in a way that is pleasing to Him, that the Spirit may never leave us. And may this be the good fortune of all who are trying to be Saints. Be of good courage, brothers and sisters; for our heavenly Father is very near unto us, and He hears and answers our prayers when we are united, and approach Him in faith. The future for our cause looks cheerful and bright; the dark clouds are passing away. We are preparing for the great work just commencing, and by God's help we intend to assist it along and see it through.

Yours in the faith,
GEO. S. LINCOLN.

LONE ROCK, Mo., Sept. 11th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I seem to be impressed to write to the Herald, and bear my testimony to this great latter day work, for I know it is the only true church on earth. God made this known to me by a dream that this church was true and also the Book of Mormon and Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and told me to trust in the two books. I am trying in my weakness to live faithful unto the Lord that when he comes to make up his jewels I may be counted worthy to enter into his kingdom where there will be no complaints, but all will be at peace. I had a testimony of this latter day work before I ever embraced it. I was told that if I did not embrace it I would be cast out with the wicked. To God be the glory and honor and praise for sparing my life to embrace the everlasting gospel.

We find in the Scriptures these words; "If you will do the will of the Father you shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." Every one may know for himself whether this church is of God, for he says, "If you will do the will of the Father you shall know of the doctrine." This reaches to one and all. I love to read the Herald, for it gives me strength to endure. I would be at a loss to do without it, for it is food to a hungry soul.

EDWARD MARSHALL.

AVENUE CITY, Mo., Sep. 13th.

Bro. Blair:—Bro. A. J. Moore and myself commenced holding meeting August 25th in Maitland, Holt county, Missouri. Infidelity is about to capture the place, but our noble sister Black entered a protest and told the people to wait until they heard our elders preach. Mr. and Sr. Black are well spoken of by all at that place. We held meetings every night for one week; the Infidels attacked our first effort, but we realized the saying of Paul that, "if God be for us who can be against us." We also realized the strength of this great latter day work, that it will stand the very severest test that man can put it to.

Then a Mr. Parish challenged us to debate the difference between us and the Christian Church; but they did not come to time. The Infidels turned to be our friends and wished us all the good possible. One was baptized and more are believing. From there we went to Ross Grove and held meetings over Sunday and baptized four more. Mr. and sister Black, Bro. Joseph Flory and family, Bro. R. K. Ross and family, and Bro. and sister Knowles, not only fed and cared for us while we were there, but gave us money to help us on our way to Forest City where we held meetings last Sunday; and there Bro. and sister Rasmusson, and Bro. and Sr. Dixson gave us some more to help us on to this place where we are holding forth. Yours truly, JAMES THOMAS.

LAKE CITY, Ark., Sept. 16th.

Brother Joseph.—We need an elder here the worst kind; there is a good opening here for the Church of Christ. The people say they will go to hear a Latter Day Saint preach, so I wish and pray for one to come shortly so they can hear the gospel preached in its purity. I know that one will do good and save several souls by coming. There are no Saints here, except myself and wife. We joined the church last Spring in Crawford county, Iowa. Oh, how I desire to hear an elder preach now. Yours in Christ,

HENRY DANIEL.

WEST UNION, W. Va., Sept. 17th.

Bro. Joseph.—I am still on the war path, have not taken any prisoners on this raid, but the courage of the army has been revived, and we feel like prosecuting the war. Have delivered twenty-nine discourses since the 14th of August.

L. R. DEVORE.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

CAMERON, Ont., Sep. 5th.

MR. JOSEPH SMITH, Dear Brother:—I herewith send you a letter taken from a little book entitled "Cobbett's Legacy to Parsons." It is composed of six letters, this being the 1st one, the following five are entitled as follows:

2d. "How came there to be a people called Dissenters?"

3d. "What is the foundation of the denomination of the former over the latter?"

4th. "Does the establishment conduce to religious instruction?"

5th. "What is the state of the establishment? and is it possible to reform it?"

6th. "What is that compound thing called Church and State? and what would be the effects of a separation of them?"

In reading those letters I found them to be interesting, and found historical evidence relative to the established church that will be hardly found elsewhere. I have therefore copied the first letter verbatim and send it to you for inspection; and if in the event of your consideration you find it worthy of a place in the Herald, I would be glad to see it there.

WILLARD J. SMITH.

"HOW CAME THERE TO BE AN ESTABLISHED CHURCH?"

PARSONS, This question ought to be clearly answered; because on it must turn the great practical question now at issue, namely: Has the Parliament the rightful power to assume, to take possession of, and to dispose of, the tithes and all other property commonly called Church-property, in whatever manner it may think proper?

You and your partisans contend that it has not this rightful power; I contend that it has. As to the justice and the expediency we shall have to consider this further on; we have first to settle the question of right; and this question will be settled at once, when we have seen how this church came to be.

The following facts are undeniable; namely, that the Roman Catholic religion was the religion of all Christian countries and governments until about the year 1520, when Henry the Eighth was King of England, that the Roman Catholics contended that the church was established by Christ and the Apostles; that they ordained that there should be one flock, one fold, and one shepherd; that the church was built on a rock, the name of St. Peter being synonymous with that of stone or rock; that St. Peter was appointed by this divine authority to be the first head of the church, after Christ himself; that the Popes have been, and are the true successors of St. Peter by divine appointment; that the Pope is the one shepherd, to whom all Christians owe spiritual obedience. The religion was called the Roman Catholic religion, because the see (that is to say, seat) of St. Peter was at Rome, and because his authority was universal, that being the meaning of the word Catholic.

No matter as to the truth or error of these opinions and assertions, they prevailed—with here and there an exception; all Christians held these opinions, and when the Christian religion was introduced into England, which was effectually done about six hundred years after the death of Christ, these opinions prevailed in England as well as in other Christian countries. The Pope was the head of the church here, as well as elsewhere; his spiritual authority he exercised without any co-partnership with, or dependence upon the state; the tithes and oblations were claimed by him and the clergy as things belonging to God, and held by them solely by divine authority. Whatever was given to the church by anybody, whatever endowment of any description, was held to belong to the church, independent of all temporal or secular power. The church claimed to hold its possessions independent of all written laws, they claimed a prescriptive right to all their possessions; they allowed no time to work injury to their rights; in short, they claimed to hold their possessions immediately from God himself, as a man claims the right to the possession of his life and his limbs; and, of course, they denied that any legislator, or any body of legislators, possessed, or could possibly possess the rightful power to take from them, or to interfere with the management of any part of those possessions. As I said before, no matter as to the soundness or unsoundness of the doctrines on which these pretensions were founded: such were the doctrines, and such the pretensions; and during their prevalence in England arose our churches, our parishes (our priestships), our cathedrals, and bishops' sees; all those monasteries which have since been suppressed and destroyed; and along with the rest, our universities and their colleges,

For a Parliament to meddle with a church like this; to question the rightful power of a Parliament, consisting of laymen, to meddle with the possessions of a Church like this, having its Head totally separate from the temporal sovereignty of the country; to question the rightful power of a body of laymen to meddle with the property of a Church like this, whose Divine origin, and Divine mission and authority have been universally acknowledged for about twelve hundred years; to question the rightful power of a parliament, in such a case, was not a thing so very unreasonable; but, on the contrary, the questioners had reason on their side, especially as these doctrines had prevailed during so long a period; and as the country had been so free, and so happy, during the greater part of that period.

But, Parsons, has your Church any such pretensions? I have a high opinion of that quality in you, which is usually denominated "brass," but, do you pretend that this establishment was founded by Jesus Christ and his Apostles? Do you pretend to hold your possessions immediately by a grant from God; and that they are as much yours as my life and my limbs are mine? Why, yes, you are, at this time (very curious to relate), endeavoring to set up a something savoring of these pretension; and are positively asserting that you hold your possessions, and to the exclusion too of all other Christian sects, by a right of prescription; that is to say, a right which existed before all written laws. This was distinctly stated by Sir Robert Peel, during the discussion of the question relative to the admission of Dissenters, to take degrees in the Universities. Quite enough had been written and published by me, long before, to shew that it was rapine, on the part of those who took the Church property from Catholics and gave it to Protestants; that that was an act of rapine, and not an act of rightful power, on the part of the Parliament of that day, unless the present Parliament had the rightful power to take property from the present possessors and dispose of it at pleasure. Perceiving the irresistible force of this argument, Sir Robert Peel, forgetting all about the lay-impropriations, discovered that the Catholic Church had prescriptive right to its possessions; and that the Parliament had never meddled with that prescriptive right; that the Established Church was still in fact the Catholic Church, and was merely reformed; and that it was in the possession of all the prescriptive rights which had ever belonged to "Holy Church!"

If this were so; if you were merely a reformed Catholic Church, and the regular successors of the bishops and priests of the Roman Catholic religion; then all the lay-estates, in tithes, or in lands, which were formerly possessed by your predecessors, are wholly destitute of a title; and the owners may, any day, be legally ejected by the King's Attorney-General; and the king may order the estates to be returned to you. However, we are now going to look at the reality; we are now going to see, that, to tithes, to oblations, to bishop's lands, to college lands, to anything that you possess, as clergy of the Church, you have no prescriptive right, any more than the Duke of Wellington has to his estate of Strathfieldsaye, which he possesses in virtue of an Act of Parliament. Indeed, what are the names, style, and title of your Church? Why, "The Protestant Church of England as by law established;" not as by Christ established; not as established by the Apostles. The King's coronation oath binds him to support the Protestant Church "as by law established;" and this description was invented, too, for the express purpose of distinguishing the tenure of your church from that of the Roman Catholic Church; the tenure of which was by prescription, independent of all written law. In short, yours is a Church founded solely on Acts of the Parliament, sitting at Westminster; and we are now going to see what those Acts of Parliament were; under what circumstances they were passed; and the sort of men by whom they were passed; together with the manifest motives and objects of those men.

The Roman Catholic Church had begun to have its authority disputed, in some parts of Christendom, about the year 1520. At this time Henry the Eighth, for the purpose of gratifying his own wicked passions, joined those who had begun to deny the authority of the Pope as head of the church, though he had before written a book in defence of that authority, for which he had received the title of "Defender of the Faith," which our kings retain to this day, though by their coronation-oath they solemnly protest against that very faith, of which Henry the Eighth was the defender! This monster of cruelty proclaimed himself to be the supreme head of Christ's Church in England; and he put to death hundreds of the most virtuous and excellent persons, because they would not take an oath recognizing his spiritual supremacy. Finding his most strenuous opponents to be in the monasteries, and, at the same time, eager to get hold of the possessions of those monasteries, as the means of binding over to his side the most powerful men in the country, he suppressed; that is to say, he confiscated, and took possession of all the monasteries and all their immense estates. This was not done without Acts of Parliament. Two Acts were passed; one in the 27th year of his reign, and in the year 1535; the other in the 31st year of his reign, and in the year 1539. These Acts of the Parliament granted to him all this great mass of possessions; and granted to him, also, a very considerable part of the great tithes of the parishes; because the monasteries had, in many cases, become both the patrons and the incumbents of the benefices of the parishes. Thus, more than a third part of the whole of the real property of the kingdom was granted to him by the Parliament, with power to give it away to whom he pleased; to sell it, or to exchange it. Those who passed these Acts knew very well that they should have the chief share of the spoil. He was compelled to divide this spoil amongst the noblemen, gentlemen, and all persons of great power and influence in the country; in order to bind them up in the same girdle with himself. This he did, without loss of time, and we are now going to see the prodigious effect of this division of the spoil; and especially we are going to see its great effect in the producing of this present Church of England, "as by law established."

Amid such assaults as these, it was impossible that the Roman Catholic Church should remain unshaken. When men saw these monstrous acts of what had hitherto been deemed sacrilege, committed, not only with impunity, but under the sanction of law; when they saw a mere layman assume the supremacy of the Church of Christ; when they saw innumerable persons put to death for refusing to swear, that they believed that which they had always taught to disbelieve; when they heard this new head of the church proclaiming one sort of a creed one day, and another sort of creed another day; when they saw him burning Protestants and Catholics at the same stake; and still heard him call himself a Catholic king, and a spiritual head of the church at the same time; amidst all these things, it was impossible that men could retain anything like a unity of faith; it was impossible that the nation should not be split up into a diversity of sects; that each man should not claim a right to think and decide for himself in religious matters; and this actually was the state of England, in this respect, at the time of the death of this merciless tyrant, which took place in the year 1547, when he expired, in the fifty-sixth year of his age, and in the thirty-eighth of his reign, the most unjust, hard-hearted, mean, and most sanguinary tyrant that the world had ever beheld, whether Christian or Heathen. As long as this tyrant existed, the holders of confiscated church-property, which was also the patrimony of the poor at the same time, were safe in their possessions, under his sort of mongrel Catholic Church; but when his son, Edward the Sixth, (a mere boy), succeeded him, and the government was to be carried on by guardians and trustees, there was great danger that the people would resume their rights at any rate; that the Pope would, in a short time, resume his power in England, where the parish-priests were still Catholic; and, if he resumed his power, the shares in the plunder were in a perilous state, as far as related to that plunder. Therefore, in order to obviate this danger, it was necessary to abrogate, to put down by Act of Parliament, to efface forever, if possible, the Catholic religion in England. And, Parsons, look at the thing well; for here you will find the first, the great, the all-powerful motive for making the Protestant Church, "as by law established." If men had been left without any law to compel them to submit to any particular church, they who have never had an idea of tithes, oblations, or church-land rents, payable to mere laymen, never could have long submitted to such payment. Nothing but the axes and the halters, and the fires of Henry the Eighth, could have induced them to submit to this. It was therefore necessary to make another church; and to give to that church all the powers, all the exclusive benefits, all the protection, and all the advantages necessary to make it a valuable thing to those who would necessarily have its patronage exclusively in their hands.

With these motives in their minds, and these objects before them, the powerful gentry, to name them by one word, the aristocracy, having got rid of the old tyrant, and his mongrel Catholic religion, resolved to make a new church, by law, and a Protestant Church, in order that the Pope might never come and instigate the people to make them restore the landed estates and the tithes, which they had got into their possession by grants from the barbarous old tyrant. In their execution of this design, this nation witnessed scenes never before witnessed in the world; such insincerity; such barefaced apostasy; such greediness; such injustice; such defiance of every sentiment of morality, and every sentiment of religion; such prostration of character; as can not be described by tongue, or pen, except in faithfully revealing the facts; and it would be wise in you, Parsons, never to direct our eyes back to the origin of this church, as by law established. The Catholics assert that their church originated with Christ and his apostles; yours originated with the aristocracy of England, whose conduct, in the making of this church, we have now to survey; we have now to look at it in its true colours, be the effect on our minds what they may.

The motives for making the church, I have described; and now we have to see something of the manner of making it. The first step was by Act of Parliament, 1st year of Edward the Sixth, chapter one; and in the year 1547. This is an act to punish people for speaking irreverently against the sacrament, taken in both kinds, which was contrary to the practice of the Catholic Church. The preamble of the Act tells us, that this new practice had been ridiculed by the people, "in dialogues, rhymes, songs, plays, and jests." The sharers of the spoil of the church and the poor were by no means disposed to suffer songs and jests upon the subject. They, therefore, enacted that these rhymsters and singers should suffer "imprisonment" of their bodies, and fines, at the king's will and pleasure. Though this was wholly a new thing; quite contrary to the faith and practice of the people and of their forefathers for nine hundred years; a new invention, overthrowing the main pillar of their faith. This monstrous severity was followed by an enactment, giving a new interpretation to the Holy Scriptures, and containing an assertion, laid down by mere laymen that both the bread and the wine were necessary to be taken. But this was only a foretaste of that which was to come; it was a preparing of the way for the making of this church, the fate of which is now to be decided.

In the second year of this boy-king (who was now only eleven years old), who was, at once supreme spiritual head of the church, and secular sovereign of the state, this Protestant Church and religion were established. The Roman Catholic religion had been abrogated; having been protested against, and declared to be idolatrous and damnable, all men were let loose to choose for themselves, each having the bible in his hands. One sect had as much right to the churches and the tithes as another sect; but this would never have done for the aristocracy. The remaining titles, the oblations, the bishops' lands, the college lands; these were too valuable to be suffered to be scrambled for; and although the aristocracy had protested against that church to which they had belonged, and for the support of which they had been given, still they had no quarrel with the things themselves; they had not protested against the tithes, and the lands, and the oblations; they had only protested against their being in hands other than their own. The Catholic religion was idolatrous and damnable; but they saw nothing either idolatrous or damnable, in the lands, the tithes, and the oblations. These, therefore, they resolved to keep; but, to keep them they must have another church; and to that church all must yield tithes and oblations, however contrary its creeds might be to the faith which the scriptures taught them to adopt, or which they had been taught by their fathers from generation to generation. The preamble of the Act of Parliament (1st and 2d Edward the Sixth) tells us that "the king, in his great goodness, has appointed the archbishop of Canterbury (Cranmer), and others, to draw, and make, one meet order, rite, and fashion, of Common and open prayer, and Administration of sacraments, to be had, and used, in his Majesty's realm of England and Wales; the which at this time, by the aid of the Holy Ghost, with one uniform agreement, is of them concluded, set forth, and delivered to his Highness [eleven years of age] to his great comfort and quietness of mind, entitled, 'The Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church after the use of the Church of England.' Wherefore, the Lords spiritual and temporal in this present Parliament assembled, considering as well the most godly travel of the kings righteousness (eleven years of age), of the Lord Protector, and of other his Highness' council, in gathering and collecting the said Arch-bishop and learned men together, as the godly prayers, rites and ceremonies in the said book mentioned; and the considerations of altering those things he altered, and retaining those things which he retained in the said book, but also the honor of God and great quietness, which, by the grace of God, shall ensue, do give his Highness most hearty and lowly thanks for the same."

Bearing in mind this assertion about the aid of the Holy Ghost in this work, let us now come to the enactments. You, Parsons, found the church's prescriptive rights upon the assertion, that there never was any Act of Parliament for taking the ben-efices away from the Catholics and giving them to Protestants; that the Catholic parish-priests were never ousted from their benefices by Act of Parliament; that they became converted in their several parishes, or continued to exercise their functions as before, till the day of their death; or that they went away from their benefices without force; so that as they had unquestionably a prescriptive right to their benefices, the present parsons stand fairly in their shoes, and have a prescriptive right too. Now, then, let us see how this matter stands. The king had put forth a Book of Homilies and a Catechism. Priests had been permitted to marry; and an act was soon after passed (2d and 3d Edward the Sixth, chap. 21) to allow Priests to marry. Every inducement had been offered to withdraw the parish-priests from their religion; but still, with very few scandalous exceptions, they remained firm in their faith and their practice, at the time of the passing of this act. The act, therefore, provided that if any rector, vicar, perpetual curate, or other priest, with benefice, should in future say mass in the usual manner, and not use the common prayer book, he should forfeit to the king one year's revenue of his benefice, and be imprisoned for six months; that for a second offense he should be deprived of his benefice, and of all his spiritual promotions, and be imprisoned for one whole year; for a third offense, imprisonment during his natural life; that if the priest had no benefice, he should be imprisoned for six months for the first offense; and for the second offense, should be imprisoned for his natural life! Thus did this gentle Christian Church begin; thus did the angel of charity, humility, and humanity, preside at her birth. But the act did not stop here, it went on to the laity; and it enacted, that if any one should by interludes, plays, songs, rhymes, or by other open words, declare or speak anything in derogation, depraving, or despising the said Book of Common Prayer, penalty after penalty were to follow, till at last came forfeiture of goods and chattels to the king, and imprisonment during the natural life of the party!

Here we have a faithful account of the birth of this famous church which simply put it to the priests and the people: "Here is this church, take it; or, take pecuniary ruin and imprisonment for life;" and in the face of these undeniable facts, is there any one base enough to say, that the Catholic priests were not ousted by force, and by Act of Parliament? The act provides for the depriving of the party of his benefice, and of all spiritual promotion whatever, unless he apostatize from the Catholic religion; and it authorizes patrons to appoint Protestant ministers to succeed him, in just the same manner as if he were dead. Will Sir Robert Peel call this "a reformed Catholic church," then? Will he again say, that the Protestant parsons stand in the prescriptive shoes of the Catholic priests?

But the reader will say, did this Common Prayer Book always continue in use, after this Act was passed? Oh no! And now we have to see what sort of men those were who made this new Church, and to see well what their motives were. For very much depends upon this, when we are estimating the character of this Church.

This church-making king died at the end of about seven years, and was succeeded on the throne by his sister Mary, who was a Catholic; and who, proceeding upon the settled constitution and laws of the country, resolved upon restoring the Catholic religion. The Common-Prayer-Book aristocracy, exceedingly alarmed at this prospect; not so much alarmed, however, for the almost certain loss of the Common Prayer Book and the new Church as for the possible, and even probable, loss of that immense mass of property of the church and the poor, which they had got into their possession, by the means before mentioned, entered into a negotiation with the queen, agreeing to give up their Common Prayer Book and their Protestant religion; agreeing to bring back the Catholic religion into the country, and to punish parsons for not being Catholics, as they had punished them for not being Protestants; agreeing to confess themselves to have been schismatic; agreeing to receive absolution from the Pope, for having rebelled against his authority; agreeing to reinstate him in all his power in England, which they before designated as abominable usurpations; agreeing, above all things, to abrogate as schismatical that very Common Prayer Book which they had before declared, in the preamble to an Act of Parliament, to have been composed by the "Aid of the Holy Ghost," and which was, they said, made "to the honor of God;" agreeing to all this, if the Queen would obtain the consent of the Pope, and give her own consent, to suffer them to keep the immense masses of property in land and in tithes, which, during the two preceding reigns, they had grasped from the Church and the poor! This is something so monstrous, that I would venture to state it upon no authority short of that of an Act of Parliament; and yet it is by no means the worst we have to behold on the part of these men who have called themselves noblemen and gentlemen, and whose descendants coolly assume the same appellations!

As a sort of prelude to the monstrous acts which they were about to perform, they passed, almost as soon as Mary was upon the throne, an Act to repeal the whole of the famous act making the Common Prayer Book, and that too upon the ground that it was contrary to the true religion; though they alleged that they had been assisted by the Holy Ghost, in the making of that Book of Common Prayer! They abolished all the penalties for persons acting plays, singing songs, ridiculing the new religion; they repealed the law for preventing images being put up in churches; they repealed the law permitting priests to marry; they swept away, by this Act of Parliament, every vestige of the Protestant Church service, and reinstated the service of the Catholic religion; brought in again the singing of the mass in all the churches and chapels: and this too upon the express ground that they had been for years wandering in error and in schism; though never forget that they asserted that the Holy Ghost had assisted them in making their Common Prayer Book!

This, however, was only a beginning. Having made their bargain to keep the lands and the tithes, which they had taken from the church and the poor, they petitioned the Queen to intercede with the Pope to forgive them for all the sins they had committed against him, and against the Catholic faith; to "assail, discharge, and deliver them from all ecclesiastical excommunications, interdictions, and censures, hanging over their heads, for their faults during the schism: and to take them again into the bosom of Holy Church." The Queen, detesting the monsters in her heart, no doubt consented, and obtained the Pope's consent, to let them keep the lands and tithes; not because it was right, but because it was thought to be an evil less than that of a civil war, which might have been produced by a rejection of the terms of this agreement. Having obtained the security, Cardinal Pole was sent over by the Pope, as his legate, authorized to give them pardon and absolution. To work they went, instantly, to repeal every Act made after Henry the Eighth began his rebellion against the Pope; every Act at all trenching on the papal authority; but taking special care in the same Act to secure to themselves the safe possession of all the property of the church and the poor, which they had grasped during the reigns of Henry and Edward. Though, I say, I am referring to Acts of Parliament, and though the reader will, upon reflection, know that I should not dare to state the substance of those Acts untruly, still I can not give an adequate idea of the character of these Protestant church-makers, without taking their own words, as I find them in the preamble to this Act, 1st and 2d of Mary, chapter 8; and when I read it, I always wonder that some scheme or other has not been invented for the obliterating, for the erasing, from the statute-book words so dishonorable, so indelibly infamous.

Continued.

JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH.

"WHEREFORE being justified by faith we have peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ."—Rom. 5: 1.

This statement of the apostle, with similar texts taken abstractly from the Scriptures without any regard to the context, has been made the foundation of the theory of man's being saved by faith alone.

The word "therefore," signifies that the apostle, from a process of reasoning, had arrived at a conclusion; had demonstrated a position assumed. If we turn to the third chapter we will find that he is reasoning with the Jews, showing the difference between two laws, one the law of works, (which may be applied to the Mosaic law, as the Jews were great sticklers for that), and the other the law of faith. And in the 27th verse he asks the question: "Where is boasting then? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay; but by the law of faith."

The next verse is used with strong emphasis by the supporters of the above theory—"Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith alone, without the deeds of the law." They say that the word of the apostle is positive here, that a man is saved by faith alone, without any works. Suppose we place another saying of the apostle found in chapter 2d in juxtaposition with this, and there appears to the superficial thinker a paradox—a contradiction,—“For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law are justified.” If there was only one law spoken of in his reasoning in the 2d, 3d, and 4th chapters, then here is a pointed contradiction. But if the reader will read the context preceding this assertion in the 2d chapter he will find that “the law” Paul refers to, (that, to be justified, men are to do the deeds of), is that “law of faith,” by which boasting was excluded, which he and the rest of his brethren in the ministry were sent to preach to the world as having superseded the law of Jewish works, by the deeds of which no flesh could be justified, because it was “done away” in Christ. Commencing at the 6th verse, he says: “Who (God) will render to every man according to his deeds. To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory, and honor, and immortality, eternal life. But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil; of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile; but glory, honor, and peace to every man that worketh good. . . . For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law are justified.” This is in keeping with the statement of James 1: “But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deeds.” Here then is the perfect law spoken of, by the deeds of which a man is to be justified, or blessed; and that law is “the law of faith,” as before quoted. Therefore when we read that man is saved, or justified, it is by “the law of faith,” and by this law alone; for, “He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned,” says the “Author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey Him.”

Law, which is defined as a “rule of action,” implies conditions to be observed, the non-observance of which brings punishment, but the obedience to which secures the blessings accruing therefrom. “Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth [the gospel I send you to preach] and is baptized, shall be saved, but he that believeth not [therefore will not attempt to be baptized] shall be damned.” We here perceive that the law of faith by which a man is justified, the perfect law of liberty, by obedience to which a man is to be blessed in his deed, and the gospel by which we secure salvation, are one and the same.

Paul in making the statement—“Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by [the law of] faith alone,” is consistent with himself in Galatians 1: 8, “But though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.”

Why was Paul so emphatic in his anathema upon any man, yea even upon an angel from heaven, for preaching any other gospel? Because that that gospel, and it alone, would save men. He says in another place, “There is one Lord, one faith, and one baptism; one God and Father of all, who is above all, and in you all.” If there had been more than one God, one Lord etc., then we might have had more than one plan of salvation. But there being one, a perfect God, infinite in wisdom, knowledge and power, truth and goodness, He could devise a perfect plan, needing no addition or diminution, even from himself; [let alone from poor frail man whose breath is in his nostrils, whose judgment is very limited and exceedingly faulty]; and any one teaching contrary to it, would secure the disfavor of heaven, and bring upon himself the curse of God, because he would be leading souls astray, causing them to lose their salvation. The apostle might well say that we are saved by this faith (or gospel) alone, and not by the deeds of the law of Moses; for that law being fulfilled in Christ, its deeds would avail nothing, and the gospel alone must be observed.

This faith spoken of in our text has “steps,” as we read in Romans 4: 12, speaking of Abraham, “And the father of circumcision to them who are not of the circumcision only, but who also walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being yet uncircumcised.” This is the same faith the apostle is reasoning about in these chapters of his Roman letter, the faith that he was preaching for life and salvation; and he says Abraham was partaker of this same faith before he was circumcised. Paul says in Gal. 3d that the gospel was preached to Abraham, and this faith, or gospel, had steps. Infinite wisdom knew that human nature was so constituted that it would have to learn things even of a temporal nature by stages or steps. From infancy to old age this is so, first creep, then walk, then run in physical training; first a, b, c, then a-b ab, etc., in mental training. And whatever any man essays to learn, he has to begin at initial principles and follow on through the various steps, and progress until he becomes perfect, so far as human wisdom attains, either in art, science, or any other thing. Man being thus constituted with regard to the things of earth, how can it be expected of him otherwise with regard to heavenly things, the things of that life to come which are of so much greater moment than those of this life? Man must learn the initial work of that faith, or gospel, and proceed by stages, or steps; and the author of that faith knowing this, has adapted it to man's situation, to his powers of thought, and his condition to act. Says the apostle: "He that cometh to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of all who diligently seek him."

This coming to God implies that man is at a distance from Him; estranged from Him; and that in coming to God he has to walk, take steps, and must perforce begin with the first step. It also suggests a preparation to dwell in the presence of that God which suggests progression, advancement to that state of perfection that we can dwell with a perfect Being; and steps are suggested all the way through. When he essays to come to God, it is very reasonable to suppose that man would have to believe in the existence of such a Being. And as all well directed, virtuous, honest labor brings its reward in this natural life, it is also reasonable that man, before moving in this spiritual labor would want to know what he should receive as a reward when that task is accomplished. It is worthy of note that the reward is obtained through diligence in seeking God, and this implies continuous labor. Faith, a belief in God being the first step, is brought about (as well as every other step) by hearing the word of God through the preacher, or one that is sent of God with that word to declare. "How shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent? As it is written: How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! So then faith cometh by hearing, by the word of God."—Rom. 10: 14-16. To the logical mind, Paul is very sound in his reasoning here, for a man that never heard of God would never essay to keep his commandments. And he must hear from a preacher, one sent from God, (who knows that of which he affirms), before belief is begotten in his heart.

Here is a man who believes that there is a God; wants to come to Him to receive the great reward; enquires very naturally the way that he must walk to find Him. This is a very proper inquiry, and places the man in the same condition as those three thousand were on the day of Pentecost who exclaimed, "Men and brethren what shall we do?"

They had been listening to Peter's preaching which convinced them of the truth of what he said, he having demonstrated that God the Father had raised up Jesus, and made him both Lord and Christ; and believing what he said they were pricked in their hearts, and uttered the foregoing exclamation. Peter needed no other proof than the question asked, to convince him that they believed in God and in Jesus whom he preceeded; and hence, seeing they had taken the first step—faith in God—told them the next steps to take, viz: repentance and then baptism for the remission of sins, and gave them the promise of the Holy Ghost: "Repent and be baptized ever one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." We see here that Peter was living up to what his Master had commanded him to do in all the world—"Preach the gospel to every creature." How emphatically he taught that "every one" of them were to obey the conditions; for by "the law of faith," or gospel, alone, should men be justified or saved. There was no other plan given among men.

We perceive by the record that these three steps were taken by those three thousand on that memorable day. They had obeyed the law of adoption, and were eligible to receive the promised Spirit of adoption whereby they could cry Abba, Father. They would then be the children of God, heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ, "If so be that we suffer with Him, that we may be also glorified together."—Rom. 8: 7.

If Peter made mention of the step by which the Holy Ghost was received on that day, the historian overlooked it, but made amends in the 8th and 19th chapters of Acts, by stating these that repentant, baptized believers, by the imposition of hands of those authorized to officiate in that ordinance, received the gift of the Holy Ghost. The law of adoption, to be valid in the sight of God, must be administered by the authority of God, whether in His own person, or when conferred upon His creature, man, to act in His name. In earthly governments none but those who are authorized by those governments can adopt foreigners into citizenship; and men attempting to act in that capacity without being authorized, would expect, if caught, to suffer punishment as offenders against the law. If men expect to be punished for acting without authority in earthly governments, how much more should they expect it for assuming to act for the government of heaven in adopting citizens into that government? For, "No man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God as was Aaron."—Heb. 5: 4. We here perceive that four steps have been taken before a man receives the Spirit of adoption, whereby he knows of his sonship, so that he can call God his Father. Man through the fall had lost his relationship with God, became an alien and a stranger to Him, and it was the mission of Christ to restore man to that sonship, which he proposed to do (after cancelling the original sin through the atonement) by the plan of mercy, the law of faith, which law in every age, whenever preached by the authority of the living God, had steps in it by which a man could be reinstated in favor with God. Having become a son of God by adoption, having entered the narrow gate, his feet are placed in the "narrow way" which leadeth to God, to enjoy a fulness of that life he has now entered upon as an adopted son of God, even eternal life. A narrow way to walk suggests steps to be taken, and they must be taken in that way in order to advance and obtain the prize, for it lies at the end of that way. Paul said he had fought the good fight, he had finished his course, he had kept the faith, and that there was a crown laid up for him, and not for him only, but for all those who longed for His (Christ's) appearing.

He had kept the faith, the same faith that Abraham had, (which had steps in it), and pursuing these steps to the end he finished his course and was ready to depart.

In the opinion of the writer it is called the narrow way because we are not allowed any latitude to walk in only that which God has prescribed. We must walk single file, we can not save any other but ourselves; we can not keep the commandments of God for any but ourselves; we can encourage, assist, and cheer each other on to patient continuance in the narrow way, and by such encouragement the faint may pluck up courage and renew their diligence to keep on unto the end and thus secure the prize, but it is an individual work to secure salvation.

The Book of Mormon represents the tree of life to be at the end of a very narrow path which runs by the side of a fountain of filthy water, and there is an iron rod that leadeth to the tree of life; (it is called the word of God); and those essaying to go to the tree of life must lay hold of this iron rod, and by so doing their feet remain in the narrow path and they are made partakers, at the end of the path of that choice fruit that the tree bears, interpreted the love of God. Those who do not cling to the rod are apt to fall into the filthy stream and lose their souls. When people have entered through the gate, or law of adoption, they then have to make themselves acquainted with the revealed word of God to learn his will made known in his commandments, live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God for our observance, and if we do this we have the promise that the Spirit shall guide us into all truth. "For they that are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." The sons of God are heirs to their Father's estate, or glory, which they receive if faithful to the end. For it is written: "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." That inheritance will not be confined to a thousand years reign on the earth with Christ in the great millennium, when the devil is bound; but it will extend to the new earth whereon there is no sea, as described by the Revelator in chapter 21. Upon this new earth the Father will dwell with his people who have overcome. When the inheritance of the earth by the meek commences, it is at the beginning of Christ's reign, and His dominion is to be "from sea to sea, and from the rivers to the ends of the earth."

We perceive that there is a sea on the earth through the thousand years reign; and through the little season after that reign there is also a sea; for at the end of that season, at the great day of judgment, in which the dead both small and great shall stand to be judged of God, the sea is to give up its dead, as well as death and hell. But immediately after this, the apostle saw a new heaven and a new earth, and declares that the first heaven and the first earth had, with its sea, passed away; and not till this change takes place will God the Father deign to take up his abode with men on earth. And on this new earth where the Father (and the Son) dwells, it is promised, "He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." If he inherits all things, the new earth will be contained in that number, and the writer would like to know how much more he could inherit. His glory will be full; his happiness complete, nothing can be lacking. And he arrives at this state by continued steps from adoption as a child of God, on through this probation, on through the Millennium he progresses under the teachings of his Lord and Savior, until he is prepared to dwell in the presence of the Father, with the Son, on the new earth, to "inherit all things." And thus mote it be, dear reader, with you and I, is the prayer of yours,

E. STAFFORD.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICES.

To all whom it may concern: About four years ago one Nathaniel Dunaho left this, the Santa Rosa county, Florida, and I would warn the Saints against him. He was a member of the Eureka branch, and was ordained a priest. He has been discarded from that branch. The last heard from he was in Vernon, Washington county, Florida.

G. R. SCOGIN, Pres. Florida Dist.

Will the person who has "Cornish's Bible Synopsis," belonging to the Church Library, please return the same. It was taken months ago.

JOHN SCOTT, Librarian.

MARRIED.

MASTERS—ANDREW.—At the residence of the bride, Bro. George Masters of Sharrotsville, Ohio, and Sr. Mary Ann Andrew of Washingtonville, Ohio, September 13th, 1887. The ceremony was performed by Elder John J. Morgan in the presence of a large concourse of Saints and friends. A sumptuous supper was served.

DIED.

STRONG.—In Harrison county, Missouri, September 17th, 1887, of lung fever, Zenos H. Strong, aged 18 years and 9 days. He was born in Mercer county, Illinois, August 29th, 1869; was blessed at Buffalo Prairie conference by father Z. H. Gurley; was baptized at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, June 4th, 1881, by brother Asa S. Cochran, and confirmed under the hands of brother J. M. Harvey. He was the son of Daniel W. Strong and grandson of Harvey Strong, who will be remembered by many of the old-time Saints. This promising youth, cut down in the morning of life leaves a widowed mother, two sisters and two brothers to mourn their loss. Winning and gentle, loyal and kind; he was beloved by all who knew him.

RUBY.—September 13th, 1887, Phebe Ruby, of congestion of the brain. She was 62 years old, leaves 5 children to mourn their loss, all members of the church but one. She was an old member of the church. She was willing to go, and died very easy—like going to sleep.

MILLIGAN.—At Wilmott, Ray county, Missouri, Bro. Sherman Milligan. He was born in Ray county, Missouri, September 8th, 1865; was baptized by elder L. Booker August 1st, 1887, and died August 11th, 1887. He was a good man, leaves a wife, a widowed mother, brothers and sisters, and many friends to mourn his death. Funeral sermon by elder F. C. Warnky. Text, Job. 14: 14.

CLARKE.—In Chambersburg, Pa., on the 11th of September, Alexander, son of William and A. M. Clarke, aged 5 months. Bro. B. O. Herbert conducted the funeral service.

Conference Minutes.

PITTSBURG AND KIRTLAND.

The semi-annual conference of the above district met at the new chapel of the Blakes Mills branch, New Philadelphia, Ohio, Saturday and Sunday, September 10th and 11th, 1887. G. T. Griffiths president, R. S. Salyards secretary. Branch reports: Pittsburg 147; 2 baptized, 5 received, 3 removed, 1 died. Fairview 40; 9 baptized, 2 died. Kirtland 27; 4 baptized, 4 received by letter. Washington 23; 4 baptized. Blakes Mills 24; 7 baptized. Church Hill 25; 6 baptized, 6 received by letter. Lakeview, no change. Conneaut Township (new branch) 17 members. No reports from Wheeling, Lampsville, Belmont and Mansfield branches. Report of F. Criley, Bishop's Agent, was read, and after being audited by Brn. E. L. Kelley, James Brown and John Cramer was adopted: On hand last report $199 91, received (for six months ending June 30th) $371 64, total $571 55; expenditures $491 93, on hand $79 62. The Bishop's Agent in his report made an urgent appeal that the Saints make a greater effort to observe the temporal law in order to carry on the work, stating that he had not been properly sustained in the financial department. Reports of ministry: G. T. Griffiths (baptized 18 or 20), E. L. Kelley (baptized 3), James Brown (baptized 11), R. S. Salyards (baptized 3), W. H. Garrett (baptized 2), organized a new branch called the Conneaut Township branch, composed of 17 members. Reports by letter: W. H. Kelley, David M. Strachan (baptized 6). All the reports of the ministry were encouraging, showing that the harvest is greater than can be possibly supplied by the few laborers. Other baptisms not reported show a gain of 50 or 60 new members since last conference. Attention was called to the necessity of all Saints in the district being prompt in aiding Sr. "Frances" in her efforts to establish "Autumn Leaves" as a publication that will supply the demand of the youth of the church for suitable literature. Brn. Kelley and Garrett were upon motion appointed a committee to consider the matter. They presented the following which was unanimously adopted. Whereas, we look with favor upon the efforts now being made by Sr. M. F. Walker to furnish a periodical suitable for the youth of the church, and recognizing that unity of action on the part of the membership is necessary to ensure success in the undertaking; therefore, be it Resolved, that as a conference we request the traveling ministry of this district and especially the presidents of branches to take up the matter in their respective charges, and solicit names (and moneys when called for) and forward the same to Sr. Walker. President Griffiths called attention to many of the elders in the district who failed to labor, or to report although he and others had repeatedly urged them to be active. Resolved, that all elders in the district, who are not officers in branches, be again notified to report to the district and that in case of failure to do so at the next district conference that the president and secretary be hereby instructed to demand their licenses. Resolved, that all branches be instructed to send delegates to the district conferences as provided for in the law (D. & C. sec. 17) and that it be understood that said delegates shall not prevent any other members who may attend from said branches from participating in the business sessions. Resolved, that we commend the work of Bro. J. H. Peters in furnishing copies of the Voice of Warning for free circulation, and that we recommend to all scattered members in the district, and all those in branches, who can use them that they write to Bro. Peters and obtain them, and thus assist in spreading the truth and in making openings for the elders. Brn. W. H. Kelley, G. T. Griffiths and E. C. Briggs, were sustained as ministers in charge, and R. S. Salyards and James Brown as traveling ministers in the district. Resolved, that we sustain Bro. Frank Criley as Bishop's Agent, and that we appreciate his past energetic efforts to build up the financial system of the district. Resolved, that all collectors of the general church funds who are appointed in the various branches be instructed to send to Bishop G. A. Blakeslee at Galien, Berrien county, Michigan, and obtain subscription books for the raising of and keeping account of such funds. R. S. Salyards was continued as secretary. By his own request Bro. A. M. Teagarden was released as assistant secretary, and W. H. Garrett appointed as such. G. T. Griffiths was continued as district president. John J. Morgans was sustained as a minister in the district. Services: Preaching Saturday evening by James Brown. Social meeting Sunday morning in charge of Brn. Griffiths and Morgan. Preaching in the forenoon by E. L. Kelley; in the afternoon by W. H. Garrett; in the evening by E. L. Kelley. Branches who have not reported will please send in reports of any changes on their records to the secretary at Kirtland, Ohio. Adjourned to meet at Wheeling, West Virginia, first Saturday and Sunday in March, (3d and 4th), 1888.

KEWANEE.

The Kewanee district conference convened at Buffalo Prairie, September 10th, elder James W. Terry presiding, John Chisnall, secretary. In prayer and testimony meeting A. H. Smith led the Saints in fervent prayer, was followed by a good number participating in the exercises of the meeting, with a strong manifest degree of God's Spirit, while the countenances of the Saints beamed with joy at the privilege enjoyed of meeting together again under such favorable circumstances. Branch reports.—Buffalo Prairie 62; Millersburg 43; Henderson Grove 43; Kewanee 70. Bishop's Agent, R. J. Benjamin, reported received for six months ending September 5th, $15.80, disbursed $15; in hand 80 cts. Elder's Reports.—A. H. Smith, James McKiernan, M. T. Short, T. F. Stafford, J. A. Robinson, E. T. Bryant, John Chisnall, J. T. Adams; priest L. Tryon, H. Williams, teacher J. W. Terry; all of which showed much interest in the work, and the good being done. By request, elder A. H. Smith explained points of interest in the Epistle of the Twelve, as he understood it; thought with a proper understanding there could be no clash of interests arising from it. Elders Short and McKiernan supporting the views advanced. Elder J. W. Terry president, and John Chisnall secretary, for the ensuing six months. Elder Robinson called attention of the conference to the small amount of contributions in the district to the Bishop's Agent; thought that some action should be taken to stimulate collections. Elder Short spoke in the same line of thought. Preaching Saturday evening by Elder T. F. Stafford, assisted by Bro. Chisnall. On Sunday morning the Saints met for prayer and testimony meeting. Preaching Sunday morning by elder A. H. Smith, and in the afternoon by elder J. H. Robinson. Six new baptized members were confirmed. Adjourned to Kewanee, Illinois, on the second Saturday in December [10th] 1887.

NAUVOO AND STRING PRAIRIE.

Conference convened at Burlington, Iowa, September 3d, 1887, Bro. James McKeirnan in the chair. Rock Creek, Keokuk, and Farmington branches reported no change; Burlington an addition of three by baptism, and Montrose a loss of four by removal. J. H. Lambert, Bishop's Agent, reported, on hand last report $33 21, received since $12 50, total $45 71; paid out $30, balance $15 71. Report was received. All visiting brethren were invited to take part in the deliberations of the conference. Bro. James McKeirnan, president of the district, had been hindered some by sickness in his family; had baptized three. Bro. A. H. Smith had labored at Keokuk and Montrose. Bro. M. T. Short reported some of his labors. Brn. H. T. Pitt, J. H. Lambert, W. D. Morton and F. Johnson reported. Bro. Thomas Revel reported by proxy; had baptized one. Teacher O. Owen reported. The committee on affairs near Elveston reported that they had tried Alanson Wells and Margaret L. Wier and believed them to be guilty as charged. Moved that they be and are hereby expelled from the church. Carried. The district president was instructed to attend to ordinations recommended by the Keokuk branch. Bro. McKiernan preached Saturday evening, Bro. A. H. Smith Sunday at 11 a. m., Bro. M. T. Short Sunday evening, and Brn. F. Johnson and H. T. Pitt were in charge of the afternoon social and sacrament meeting. The meetings for worship were fairly well attended, and the Saints were edified and strengthened. Conference adjourned to meet at Keokuk, Iowa, December 3d, 1887, at 10:30 a. m.

CENTRAL NEBRASKA.

This conference met with the Deer Creek branch the 3d and 4th of September, 1887, at 11 a. m., with Bro. Gammet in the chair. J. H. Jackson clerk. Elders Rumel, Kester, and Gammet reported in person, also Priest Cain, Teacher J. H. Jackson, and Deacon Holland; and Elders C. D. Stevens and James Caffall by letter. Branch reports: Clear Water 71, Deer Creek 35. Bro. Rumel was invited to take part in the conference. The Bishop's Agent's report was accepted. At three p. m., on the recommendation of the Clear Water branch, Bro. John C. Rogerson was ordained to the office of an elder, under the hands of Brn. Rumel and Gammet. Bro. Gammet was chosen president of the district, and Bro. J. H. Jackson clerk for the next six months. Brother Gammet was sustained as Bishop's Agent. Preaching Sunday morning by Bro. Kester, and in the afternoon by Bro. Rumel. The Saints felt renewed in the work and parted in good feeling. Adjourned to meet with the Clear Water branch the last Saturday in February, 1888.

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSKOLA CO., MICH.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, letter paper, envelopes, and printed recipes for Cement to cure Corns, etc., valuable in every household, by mail to any part of United States or Canada, for 35c in stamps or otherwise.

W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. E. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasnaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist. Ad-Reoleiddig Sant y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

The Sisters' Aid Society of Independence branch have for sale for the benefit of the new church, two Cabinet Photographs: one of the THREE WITNESSES, with views of the HILL CUMORAH and the ANGEL delivering the PLATES; the other of the OLD LIBERTY JAIL as it now stands, for 25 cts each. Those desiring to purchase can address Mrs. B. C. Smith, box 61, Independence, Missouri. 23jul3m

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

Lamoni and Vicinity.
Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for
THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by

LAMBERT & HANSEN.

dec11ft

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14feby

Money Orders.

Money Orders are much safer than Postal Notes when remitting to this office, and they cost but two cents more. Don't forget this, lest you lose money.
D. DANCER, Manager.

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

- NEW YORK,
- BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
- CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
- NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
- LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
- PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
- PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
- VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager,
PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

Tracts.

- No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; 20c. a doz., per 100.....1 50
- No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; 5c. a doz., 100..... 40
- No. 4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temple Suit; 5c. per doz., 25c. per 100, 50c. for 250, $1 for 500, per 1,000.....1 75
- No. 5.—The Gospel.....price the same as No. 4
- No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisites, and Design,—and Who Shall Administer; 16 pages; 25c. per doz., per 100.....1 75
- No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; 5c. a doz., 100..... 40
- No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; 25c. a doz., 100.....1 75
- No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Stand-point; 20 pages; 30c. per dozen, 100.....2 25
- No. 10.—The Narrow Way; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 100 for 1 10
- No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; 30c. a dozen, 100.....2 25
- No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy; 25c. a dozen, 100.....1 65
- No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; 25c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 75
- No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; 5c. a dozen, per 100..... 40
- No. 16.—Polygamy; Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; 20c. a dozen, 100.....1 40
- No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; 25c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 75
- No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; 15c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 10
- No. 20.—The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; 12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 40
- No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; 3c. a doz., 100..... 15
- No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; 15c. a dozen, 100.....1 10
- No. 23.—Baptism; 10 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 25
- No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; 4c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; 4c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; 4 pages; 5c. a dozen, per 100.....1 40
- No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; 20c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 40
- No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 40
- No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon; 15 cents a dozen, per 100.....1 10
- No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, the Kirtland Temple Suit. Per dozen 5c., 100 for 25c. 250 for 60c., 500 for $1, 1,000 for.....1 75
- No. 32.—Which is the Church? 5c. a dozen, 100..... 4c
- No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined; 20c. a dozen, 100 for.....1 25
- A Memorial to Congress; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 100.....1 10
- Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection; 32 pages; 6c. each, per dozen..... 60
- Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100..... 15
- An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.
- COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.
- Bound in Limp Cloth turned in..... 75

Reply to Littlefield.

We have for sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 75 cents per dozen to one address.

Forscutt and Shinn Discussion.

J. Shinn affirms "The Bible Teaches the Coming of Christ to Judge the World is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible Teaches the Literal Resurrection of the Body from the Grave." Paper covers, 19 1/2 pages..... 25

Visions of Joseph Smith, The Seer.

Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew, and of others: paper covers, 43 pages..... 10

Concordance to Book of Covenants.

An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages..... 10

Sunday School Supplies.

Sunday School Engineer and Record Book..... 50
Prompt Attendance Tickets.....100 for 15c., 1,000 for 1 00
Good Behavior Tickets.....Same price.

Miscellaneous.

- The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages, in cloth boards.....1 50
- Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards; 336 pages.....1 60
- Josephus, complete in one vol., library leather.....3 50
- Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols.....4 00
- Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols.....4 00
- Baldwin's Ancient American, (Illustrated), cloth.....1 80
- Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one, leather.....4 00
- The Koran, library leather.....2 00
- Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History, from A. D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.....10 00
- The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Caesarea, to Palestine, cloth boards.....2 00
- Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible.....1 75
- The Bible Text Book.....1 65
- Apocryphal New Testament.....1 65
- Brown's Concordance of the Bible.....85
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size.....90
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Hope size.....50
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Advocate size.....50
- Five Quires of Note Paper, 120 sheets.....50
- Five Quires of Note Paper, better quality.....60

Tracts in German.

Tracts in the German Language may be had of Bro. Ad. Richter, Burlington, Iowa: The Baptism, 6 cents; the Repentance, 5 cents; the Principles of the Gospel, 6 cents; the Epitome of Faith, 2c.; the Sixth Trumpet, a fifty-four page pamphlet, 25c. These prices include postage.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed DAVID DANCER, Box 82, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER; communications and articles to the Editors.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 751.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 8, 1887.

No. 41.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa.

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered Letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 8, 1887.

THE BRIGHAMITE SUCCESSION.

A UTAH exchange, the Provo Enquirer, says:

"The timely calling of the late President Brigham Young to the leadership of the Church of God, at the critical state of affairs in Nauvoo, did most certainly prove disastrous to the factions that were contending for the reins of government, but proved a blessing to the true followers of the martyred prophet."

The facts are, Brigham and some others of his quorum usurped authority in respect to leadership, and entered upon duties which did not pertain to them, and from which they were prohibited by the laws of the church and the published teachings of Joseph the Seer and President of the church.

It is plainly shown in the first revelation in this dispensation which speaks of the Twelve, that they were not to have authority over the local affairs of the church; but that they were to be traveling ministers, for it says: "They are called to go into all the world to preach my gospel unto every creature."—Doc. Cov. 16: 5; revelation June, 1829. To this agrees the revelation on priesthood, Doc. Cov. 104: 11:—"The twelve traveling counselors are called to be the twelve apostles or special witnesses of the name of Christ in all the world; thus differing from other officers in the church in the duties of their calling." Again: "The twelve are a traveling, presiding high council, to officiate in the name of the Lord, under the direction of the presidency of the church, agreeably to the institution of heaven, to build up the church and regulate all the affairs of the same, in all nations; first unto the Gentiles and secondly unto the Jews."—Ibid, par. 12. And, to the president of the twelve the Lord said July 23d, 1837: "Thou art the man whom I have chosen to hold the keys of the kingdom (as pertaining to the twelve) abroad among all nations, that thou mayest be my servant, to unlock the door of the kingdom in all places where my servant Joseph, and my servant Sidney, and my servant Hyrum, can not come." * * * Therefore, see to it that ye [twelve] trouble not yourselves concerning the affairs of my church in this place, [Kirtland], saith the Lord; but purify your hearts before me, and then go ye into all the world and preach my gospel unto every creature who has not received it."—Doc. Cov. 106: 7, 11. Joseph the Seer said of the Twelve when chosen at Kirtland, February 14th, 1835, that they were to be "Apostles, to go to all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people."—Mill. Star 15: 205. And on the 27th of the same month, when instructing them he said: "They are the twelve apostles, who are called to the office of traveling high council, who are to preside over all the churches of the Saints among the Gentiles, where there is a presidency established; and they are to travel and preach among the Gentiles until the Lord shall command them to go to the Jews. They are to hold the keys of this ministry, to unlock the door of the kingdom of heaven unto all nations, and to preach the gospel to every creature. This is the power, authority, and virtue of their apostleships."—Ibid, page 213.

May 2d, 1835, in a "Grand Council," held at Kirtland, Joseph the Seer further defined and directed in respect to the power and authority of the Twelve, saying: "The Twelve will have no right to go into Zion, or any of its stakes, and there undertake to regulate the affairs thereof, where there is a high council; but it is their duty to go abroad and regulate all matters relative to the different branches of the church. When the Twelve are together, or a quorum of them, in any church, [branch], they will have authority to act independently, [as a quorum], and make decisions, and those decisions will be valid. But where there is not a quorum, they will have to do business by the voice of the church. No standing high council has authority to go into the churches abroad, and regulate the affairs thereof, for this belongs to the Twelve."—Ibid, page 261. But, heedless or reckless of these uniform and consistent instructions, Brigham and eight of his fellows seized the reins of government in Nauvoo, a Stake of Zion, usurped the authority of the high council, of which William Marks was president, assumed to dictate, direct, and regulate the affairs of that Stake and of the whole church, at home and abroad, thereby invading the offices and exercising the powers and authorities which pertained alone to the First Presidency over the whole church, and to the high council of the church. This, Mr. "Enquirer," was the manner of the "calling of the late President Brigham Young [and his fellows] to the leadership of the church" at Nauvoo, in 1844, and since. This was the first and chief step in introducing disorder and confusion. This done, and further departures from the order and faith of the church were easy and speedy.

Standing high councils were provided, in the law of the Lord, to regulate and set in order the affairs of Zion and her Stakes; and with their duties and authorities the Twelve should not have interfered, for they had no right to do so. But with Brigham and his fellows the law of the Lord, the teachings of Joseph the Seer, and the former usages of the church, were of no force or virtue. They determined to direct and regulate, in their own way, all the affairs of the church, both local and abroad, and they consequently degraded the high council and stripped it of its powers and prerogatives, vaulted into the seat of the First Presidency and exercised, so far as possible, the rights and authorities belonging to these leading quorums.

"The high council of the church was appointed by revelation," we are informed in Doctrine and Covenants 99:1, revelation February 17th, 1834, and its duties and rights are there defined. In Joseph's History we learn this also concerning its powers, for he says under date of July 7th, 1834: "I gave the council such instructions in relation to their high calling as would enable them to proceed to minister in their office agreeable to the pattern heretofore given; read the revelation on the subject, and told them that if I now should be taken away, I had accomplished the great work the Lord had laid before me, and that which I had desired of the Lord; and that I had done my duty in organizing the high council, through which council the will of the Lord might be known on all important occasions in the building up of Zion and establishing truth in the earth."—Times and Seasons vol. 6, p. 1109, and Mill. Star vol. 15, p. 109.

Now this high council was fully organized, operative and efficient, at and after the death of Joseph the Seer; but, as we have before said, it was ignored and degraded by the Twelve, its rights and authorities were usurped by the latter, darkness and error wrought confusion and evil, and "great tribulation" has followed as a consequence. If the Utah Mormons would study the law and order of the church as it was had from the first under Joseph the Seer up to 1844, and then remember that God is "no respecter of persons," and that he says: "I am God! I change not," they then would see the need of returning to the foundations laid at the first, and from which they have been led since 1844. Inasmuch as the law and order of the church established by Joseph the Seer from 1830 to 1844 is true and right, it follows that the leadership of Brigham and his fellows is wrong, for the latter contravenes and destroys the former.

The Brighamite apostle, Moses Thatcher, preaching of late said: "The mantle of Brigham Young fell upon John Taylor as the mantle of Joseph Smith fell upon Brigham Young." Well, suppose it did. What does that amount to when viewed in the light of God's word? Simply, and only, an assumption of place and power in direct violation of the law and order of God as laid down in the sacred books of the church, and in violation of the rules and usages of the church of God in the days of Joseph the Seer. By the way, the Utah leaders claimed soon after the death of Joseph the Seer, that his "mantle" had fallen upon "the Twelve." Times and Seasons, vol. 5: 637, 675, etc., etc. But in time this ridiculous pretension gave place to the equally false one, that "Joseph's mantle fell upon Brigham."

To make a show of acting within the law of the church, and to justify themselves in assuming the presidency over the whole church at the stakes of Zion and abroad among the branches, Brigham and his fellows quoted Doctrine and Covenants, Section 104, and construed it to mean that the Twelve, in the absence of the quorum of the First Presidency, had authority to "regulate all the affairs of" the church in Zion, her stakes, or abroad, and "to ordain and set in order all the other officers of the church," and they did this regardless of the qualifying clauses which say, "under the direction of the presidency of the church," (par. 12), and "agreeable to the revelation which says," (par. 30), which item of "revelation" ends with the words, "covenants and commandments of the church," on twelfth line of paragraph 31.

Brigham and his fellows said in this connection, August 15th, 1844, in "An epistle to the church . . . in Nauvoo and all the world," . . . "You are now without a prophet present with you in the flesh to guide you; but you are not without apostles, who hold the keys of power to seal on earth that which shall be sealed in heaven, and to preside over all the affairs of the church in all the world."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5, p. 618. In this same epistle they introduced another lawless change when they ruled, that under and by virtue of their presidency, "Bishops will also be appointed in the larger branches;" (Ibid, 619); whereas the law of the church provided that bishops must be "appointed by," "set apart, and ordained unto this power, under the hands of the First Presidency of the Melchisedek priesthood."—Doc. Cov., 68: 2, rev. Nov., 1831; also Sec. 104: 8, 32.

After this manner, step by step, one change after another occurred in and by violation of the law and doctrine and order of the church, until July 1st, 1845, when Brigham proclaimed to the church and the world that Joseph the Seer and founder of the church was ignorant of some things pertaining to "the doctrine of redemption," but that these very things were to be taught by those (the Twelve) who claimed to succeed him. This he said, undoubtedly, to prepare the Saints for further new and very strange doctrines and practices which Joseph neither taught nor knew of, as Brigham admits. Hear him: "Joseph, in his life-time did not receive everything connected with the doctrine of redemption, but he has left the key with those who understand how to obtain and teach to this great people all that is necessary for their salvation and exaltation in the kingdom of God."—Times and Seasons, vol. 6, p. 955. Herein Brigham claimed that Joseph was ignorant of, and therefore never taught "everything connected with the doctrine of redemption," and therefore had not taught the Saints "all that is necessary for their salvation and exaltation in the celestial kingdom of God."

In view of these recorded facts which prove the heretical teachings and doings of Brigham Young and his fellows, (and these are but a few from among many of a similar sort), was not the HERALD thoroughly justified in saying, August 13th, that "the change from Joseph and Hyrum to Brigham was disastrous?"

What right had Brigham and his fellows to assume the presidency of the Church of Christ? What right had they for violating its laws and usages? What authority had they to teach contrary to its recorded doctrines and traditions? And what justifiable grounds had they for claiming that Joseph the Seer was ignorant of the plan of redemption, and that they could and would teach the Saints things "necessary for their salvation and exaltation in the celestial kingdom of God," that Joseph the Seer never knew? Will the Enquirer and its kind rise and explain!

MANY HIGH PRIESTS.

MAHAN, in his archaeological writings of the Sanhedrin and Talmuds, page 10, says: "The Jewish commonwealth was divided into districts, such as Palestine, Galilee, Judea, and so on. Each of these states had its courts and legislatures, presided over by a high priest. This is the reason we have so many high priests spoken of in the New Testament history. These states were subdivided into smaller divisions, each of which was presided over by a magistrate, who was an officiating priest. If any one will read the Mechilta he will see clearly the government of the United States of North America; and as the laws of the Jewish nation were all dictated by the God of heaven, we should appreciate them the more.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE have a large number of important questions on hand from correspondents, many of which we shall answer as we find time and opportunity. Be patient.

A statement sent us from the "Bible and Foreign Bible Society" exhibits the fact that there are now 855,000,000 heathen, 170,000,000 Mahomedans, 190,000,000 Roman Catholics, 115,000,000 Protestants, 85,000,000 Greeks and Armenians, and 7,000,000 Jews. The Scriptures say of the "Son," "Ask of me, and I shall give the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost part of the earth for thy possessions." When?

Bro. E. T. Bryant, in a late letter, says the Saints had an excellent conference at Millersburg, and that six were baptized, four by Bro. J. L. Adams and two by Bro. James McKeirnan.

Bro. V. D. Baggerly wrote from West Fork, Indiana, September 22d, that his strength was renewed when laboring for Christ and his church, and he thinks all should put forth more vigorous efforts to spread the work, and should be ready to use their temporal means for that purpose. He has baptized two of late, blessed six children, and was about to enter on a discussion with a Campbellite preacher.

THE following is from the Council Bluffs, daily Globe for September 19th. The Saints will see that Bro. Forscutt, though he has not been abroad of late in the active ministry, is neither dead nor sleeping.

Probably Bro. Forscutt claimed that the Book of Mormon was translated correctly, but allowed that it might not be perfect and infallible in all its style and subject matter, for such imperfection the book itself allows is possible. (See 1 Nephi 5: 47; Book of Mormon 4: 2, 7, 8), etc.:

"A GRAND EFFORT."

"The discourse of Elder Mark H. Forscutt in the Latter Day Saints' church on Sunday forenoon was one of the most entertaining platform efforts that has ever been made in Council Bluffs. The proofs which he brought forth concerning the Book of Mormon were seemingly irresistible, as well as voluminous. The crude, empirical arguments of Rev. Lamb vanished like cobwebs before the profound proofs and illustrations which Mr. Forscutt poured forth in a torrent which resembled the Missouri river in its mighty power. All of the historical and critical arguments used by Rev. Lamb were undermined and blown into atoms. Mr. Forscutt cited the facts of scientific authors and investigators, to sustain the Mormon views concerning the early history of America, and showed that the Book of Mormon is literally correct concerning the races and the animals that previously occupied this continent. Even the alphabet of characters in which the Book of Mormon was written was shown to have existed (except three of them) in the past ages. He also proved that there were numerous varieties of horses on our western plains thousands of years ago, and likewise different varieties of sheep. He showed that the Book of Mormon did not pretend to be directly inspired by God, nor to be equal to the Bible in all respects—though he declared that it is just as true as the Bible. Mr. Forscutt has been collecting his facts and arguments on the early history of America, and its relation to the Book of Mormon, for many years, and they have a perfection and authenticity that is astounding. His proofs are not few or fanciful, but voluminous and overwhelming.

"Mr. Forscutt deserves the profoundest gratitude of the Saints of this city for his Websterian address yesterday. Why it is that such a man is not in charge of a first-class pulpit somewhere, is a serious conundrum. The Mormon doctrines have done a great deal of good, especially in emancipating the western people out of the mere ruts of orthodoxy, and in teaching every man that he should aim to be a king instead of a mere follower. But probably the Mormons themselves do not recognize their real leaders."

THE COST OF SMOKING.

THE following figures shows the expense of smoking two cigars a day, at five cents each, from the age of twenty to the end of each period of five years up to the age of seventy, six per cent compound interest.

FROM THE AGE OF	Two Cigars a day at five cents each.
	Principal	Prin. and Interest
20 to 25 years....	$ 182 50	$ 209 21
20 to 30 "....	365 00	480 39
20 to 35 "....	574 50	868 25
20 to 40 "....	730 00	1,376 08
20 to 45 "....	912 50	2,058 44
20 to 50 "....	1,090 00	3,094 99
20 to 55 "....	1,277 50	4,367 46
20 to 60 "....	1,460 00	6,078 78
20 to 65 "....	1,642 50	8,378 52
20 to 70 "....	1,825 00	11,469 25

These figures are simply astounding, though correct, as any one may demonstrate. But to this should be added loss of health induced by the tobacco habit, loss of time, loss of physical and mental energy, loss of moral purpose, spiritual purity and power. These items put together make tobacco using a huge and crushing evil, and yet its badness is not all told.

THE clipping below we take from the Prophetic News for September. It is valuable in showing the earnest and persistent efforts of the Jews to return and locate on the lands given to their fathers by covenant oath of the Lord:

THE JEWS IN PALESTINE.

Encouraging reports are sent home by Mr. D. C. Joseph, who is now in the Holy Land. He writes: "Although it is only a little more than a fortnight since the Lord brought me to the Holy Land, I have seen sufficient to enable me to fill a volume. It causes the heart to leap with joy to see the readiness of the Jews to listen to the preaching of the gospel. The bitter aversion against Christ has almost disappeared, and the open doors for the servant of God are an encouragement to expect greater things yet to come. Although it is not quite a year since I visited Jerusalem, the great change which we found is something surprising. Property is rising in price, for about a mile and a half on the Jaffa road very fine buildings are erected, and the spreads itself as far as the Damascus gate near 'Galgato.' Although there is now a great restriction in the emigration of the Jews, nevertheless the more the Turkish Government forbids the entrance of the Jews to Palestine, the more they flock to it. There is an anti-Semitic spirit, not only against the unconverted Jew, but also against the converted Israelite."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—When a member of the church violates the laws of God and man, and then leaves for parts unknown before he or she can be dealt with, what course ought to be pursued by the branch officers so that justice may be done to the church and also to the offender?

Ans.—If the case is one of public notoriety, and is an extreme one, then the party should be notified through the HERALD to appear and answer and the church be warned against them. But if the offense be a private one, then he or she should be notified through the HERALD to appear at a given place and time to answer to the general charge of unchristian conduct. Publicity should not be given to the supposed or real misconduct of any one except when actually necessary.

Q.—Shall we understand Doctrine and Covenants 42:4 to apply now in the strictest sense?

A.—Yes; precisely.

Q.—Has the presiding elder of a branch, or one of the Twelve, the right and authority to go into a testimony or preaching meeting late, after the meeting has been opened, and is being conducted by a priest or teacher in good standing, to take charge of said meeting without the consent of said priest or teacher?

A.—The presiding elder has the supreme right to preside over the meetings of his own branch, as provided for in Doc. Cov. 17:9, 10, when he is present, he being the highest officer provided by the branch. Beyond this, it has been a custom, at times, for presiding elders to permit or solicit other officers to preside, even when thus continued present. But we know of no written law for it.

Q.—Has a district president the right to change the time and place of holding conferences?

A.—Unforeseen circumstances may arise which would justify a district president in making such changes. The authority to do this arises from the presiding duties imposed upon him by the choice of the district. Such has been the usage of the church, in extreme cases, and the needs in the case has been the grounds for its justification. Only when absolutely needful should such changes be made.

Q.—What is meant by the four beasts spoken of in Revelations 4:6?

A.—We answer this and some similar questions by inserting here "A key to the Revelations of St. John," by Joseph Smith the Seer:

Q.—What is the sea of Glass spoken of by John, 4th chapter, and 6th verse of Revelations?

A.—It is the Earth, in its sanctified, immortal, and eternal state.

Q.—What are we to understand by the four Beasts spoken of in the same verse?

A.—They are figurative expressions, used by the Revelator John, in describing heaven, the Paradise of God, the happiness of man, and of beasts, and of creeping things, and of the fowls of the air; that, which is spiritual, being in the likeness of that which is temporal; and that which is temporal, is in the likeness of that which is spiritual; the Spirit of Man in the likeness of his person, as also the spirit of the beast, and every other creature which God has created.

Q.—Are the four beasts limited to individual beasts, or do they represent classes or orders?

A.—They are limited to four individual beasts, which were shown to John, to represent the glory of the classes of beings, in their destined order or sphere of creation, in the enjoyment of their eternal felicity.

Q.—What are we, to understand by the eyes, and wings, which the beasts had?

A.—Their eyes are a representation of light, and knowledge; that is, they are full of knowledge; and their wings are a representation of power to move, to act, &c.

Q.—What are we to understand by the four and twenty Elders, spoken of by John?

A.—We are to understand that these Elders whom John saw, were Elders who had been faithful in the work of the ministry and were dead; who belonged to the seven churches,—and were then in the Paradise of God.

Q.—What are we to understand by the book which John saw, which was sealed on the back with seven seals?

A.—We are to understand that it contains the revealed will, mysteries, and works of God; the hidden things of his economy concerning this earth during the seven thousand years of its continuance, or its temporal existence.

Q.—What are we to understand by the seven seals with which it was sealed?

A.—We are to understand that the first seal contains the things of the first thousand years, and the second also of the second thousand years, and so on until the seventh.

Q.—What are we to understand by the four Angels spoken of in the 7th chap. and 1st verse of Revelations?

A.—We are to understand that they are four Angels sent forth from God, to whom is given power over the four parts of the earth, to save life and to destroy; these are they who have the everlasting Gospel to commit to every Nation, Kindred, tongue and people; having power to to shut up the heavens, to seal up unto life, or to cast down to the regions of darkness.

Q.—What are we to understand by the Angel ascending from the East, Revelations 7th chapter and 2d verse?

A.—We are to understand that the Angel ascending from the East, is he to whom is given the seal of the Living God, over the twelve tribes of Israel; wherefore he crieth unto the four Angels having the Everlasting Gospel, saying, hurt not the earth, neither the Sea, nor the Trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads; and if you will receive it, this is Elias which was to come to gather together the tribes of Israel and restore all things.

Q.—What time are the things spoken of in this chapter to be accomplished?

A.—They are to be accomplished in the sixth thousand year, or the opening of the sixth seal.

Q.—What are we to understand by sealing the one hundred and forty-four thousand, out of all the tribes of Israel; twelve thousand out of every tribe?

A.—We are to understand that those who are sealed are High Priests, ordained unto the Holy Order of God, to administer the Everlasting Gospel; for they are they who are ordained out of every Nation, Kindred, Tongue, and People, by the Angels to whom is given power over the Nations of the earth, to bring as many as will come, to the Church of the First Born.

Q.—What are we to understand by the sounding of the Trumpets, mentioned in the 8th chapter of Revelations?

A.—We are to understand that as God made the world in six days, and on the seventh day he finished his work, and sanctified it, and also formed man out of the dust of the earth; even so in the beginning of the seventh thousand years will the Lord God sanctify the earth, and complete the salvation of man, and judge all things, except that which he hath not put into his power, when he shall have sealed all things, unto the end of all things; and the sounding of the trumpets of the seven Angels, are the preparing, and finishing of his work, in the beginning of the seventh thousand years;—the preparing of the way before the time of his coming.

Q.—When are the things to be accomplished, which are written in the 9th chapter of Revelations?

A.—They are to be accomplished after the opening of the seventh seal, before the coming of Christ.

Q.—What are we to understand by the little book which was eaten by John, as mentioned in the 10th chapter of Revelations?

A.—We are to understand that it was a mission, and an ordinance, for him to gather the tribes of Israel; behold, this is Elias; who, as it is written, must come and restore all things.

Q.—What is to be understood by the two witnesses in the eleventh chapter of Revelations?

A.—They are two Prophets that are to be raised up to the Jewish Nation in the last days, at the time of the restoration, and to prophesy to the Jews, after they are gathered and build the city of Jerusalem in the land of their fathers.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Who gives and hides the giving hand,
Nor counts on favor, fame, or praise,
Shall find his smallest gift outweighs
The burden of the sea and land."

"FROM A MOTHER FOR HER TWO BOYS."

JUST say "From a mother for her two boys," she said to us, as she laid the two silver dollars in our hand and turned to go.

We stood where she left us—this glad-hearted, joyous mother—and memory was busy with the past. "Her two boys!" We had known those boys from the first hours of their infancy, even to the present time. This mother had borne them and brought them into the world while their father was traveling without purse or scrip to preach the gospel of the Son of God. Cheerfully she had bidden him go; early and late she had toiled, willing and ready to do anything in her power to do, that the work of the Lord might roll on and his gospel be preached to the nations of the earth. In her arms they had been carried many times to the house of God, and as the years passed on they had many times listened to her faithful testimonies; but still they were not in the fold of the Good Shepherd, and even when her soul was poured out before the Lord, the burden of her prayer had been, "Give me my children to walk with me in the way which leadeth to everlasting life." Youth and pleasure had its attractions, and her boys joined in the train of the world's light-hearted merry-makers, and the mother's heart was often sad; but still she trusted in the Lord, and ordered her case before him.

There came the time when they must leave the sheltering care of the roof tree and into the midst of the busy whirl of city life plunge in the race for place and wealth. Ah, trusting mother, gather up now thy strength, and let not thy faith in God forsake thee, for they have need of thy faith and prayers!

"Who hath first given unto the Lord and it shall not be recompensed against?" In the midst of folly and vain attractions upon every hand, the voice of God's Spirit whispered them: "Son, give me thy heart;" and memory brought out of her store-house and set in array before them the many testimonies and lessons heard in the house of God, and they said: "We will arise and go unto our Father." Born into the kingdom of God, by the water and the Spirit—cleansed by the blood which maketh whiter than snow—adopted into the family of God, what more could the heart of any true mother desire for her children, save that they remain faithful to the end?

This we said is the recompense of her faith and trust, and when in the hereafter she shall gather around her the children whom God has given her, think you she will regret any good work done, any sacrifice she may have made that the gospel might be preached to others?

In joy as in grief, her heart turning ever to the giver of all good, she brings to the altar of God's love her thank-offering for the sons born again, and while we send the money upon its mission of love and truth, we feel in our souls that it will not be as ordinary dollars are. Far above and vastly outweighing its intrinsic value will be the faith and love which have consecrated it; and thus shall it possess a power for good, because it has become the expression of faith, love, and gratitude combined.

"Her two boys," oh, when in after years, her boys shall read those words, may they remember how true and faithful is a mother's love. There is nothing so pure or holy that her soul may not desire it for her children. It is not enough that she share with them all the joys of earth; but her soul will never know peace until they too are seeking another and a better country—a city which hath foundation, whose builder and maker is God.

Take courage then you weary, longing, praying mothers in Zion. "Trust in the Lord and he shall bring it to pass." "Cast thy bread upon the waters," and do with thy might what is in thy power to do, and the time will surely come when you too shall bring an offering to the Lord and praise his name for his loving kindness to you.

DEAR MOTHERS AND SISTERS:—From week to week, as we have seen, the list of names on the Missionary Fund grow shorter, our heart has been pained and we have waited eagerly for the next mail in hope that it would make up what the last one lacked, but it has not come. Still the Macedonian cry is heard from every quarter, "Come over and help us." Fifty needed in Australia alone, to say nothing of the thousands wanting in our own land! It has been suggested to us that some have not clearly understood us when we spoke of not wanting a free will offering while tithing remained unpaid. If you do not acknowledge the law of tithing we certainly do not want your free will offering; but if you recognize your indebtedness to God, but are not now in a position to meet that indebtedness and yet wish to do something for the cause, send in your offerings. If your husbands do not obey the law of tithing you can not help that and God will accept your offering if it be only a penny. This is but our individual view in the matter and we offer it as such. We believe that the Bishop will accept any offering sent him, whether the individual believes the law of tithing or not. Many have done nobly, and the testimony of all such is, that God has greatly blessed them in so doing. We are among the number who in the years gone by have "robbed God," both in tithes and offerings. Are we richer in this world's goods to-day?

Nay, but to the contrary we know that in more instances than one we can put our finger upon the time and place when and where God took from us the substance stolen from him. May the Lord in mercy deal with us ever in this way, should we in our blindness forget him!

To day we come to you, dear mothers and sisters who love the Lord, and ask you to enter into covenant with him, that from this time you will sustain this part of our "Column," not only with your substance but with your prayers. The arm of the Lord is not shortened, neither is his ear heavy and he will not turn away the prayer of his people. When you read this, will you not covenant with him, that if you have nothing else to give, you will pray the Lord of the harvest to open the hearts of those who have? As surely as you will do this, in faith, nothing doubting, just as surely will the means come in that the gospel may be preached, and it shall not be said of us, "Ye did run well, who did hinder you?"

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

From a mother for her two boys, Lamoni.	2 00
Helen C. Westland, Denver, Col.	25
Sr. Emma Roseberry, Pope's Valley, Cal.	1 00
Sr. Sarah M. Nightengale, Stockton, Cal.	60
Sr. Mercy S. Kelley, Addison Point, Me.	1 00
Sr. Flora Kelley, Addison Point, Me.	13
Sr. M. Mansfield, Houlton, Me.	1 00
Sr. Nellie Neidorp, St. Joseph, Mo.	1 00
LAMONI, IOWA, September 29th.

HASTINGS, Victoria, Aug. 10th.

Sister Frances:—I see by the Herald that the question of dress is being agitated, and no doubt will have been discussed and perhaps settled ere this reaches you: but my communications, like my part in conversation, (because of deafness) usually comes in, some time after the subject has gone out. And I am just now thinking perhaps I had better not write on the subject at all, for my views will differ some from most of those expressed, and may be understood to favor, or encourage pride, while I do not so intend. But we are emotional creatures, and, in seeking to avoid one extreme, often run to the other. It is a true level we wish to find, and perhaps we will be aided in doing so by taking a look at both sides of the question.

There are always some in all societies who are not troubled much with that sin—pride; at least it does not show itself in the form of "dressing up smart;" and when these hear pride and over-dressing condemned, accept it as justification for any kind of a slip-shod attire. This is what should be guarded against as much as sinful pride and extravagance. All may dress plainly and modestly, but I do not see how it is practicable, or why it should be expected, that the rich and the poor should dress alike, until all things are "in common," or equal, and there are no rich nor poor; but so long as there are such, their circumstances and surroundings will be different, and they are compelled, in a measure, to dress accordingly. For instance, a rich person may be dressed in a good serviceable cashmere of best quality, (which would be the cheapest for her) plainly and neatly made, free from all costly trimmings or ornamentation; which would be dressing very plain and humble according to her circumstances; while to a poor person whose surroundings were disadvantageous for preservation, it would be an extravagant dress, because beyond her means, would not compare with her conditions in all things, and therefore unbecoming; not that they must not wear nice things simply because they are poor, but because a certain amount of money generally has to buy a certain number of articles, and to spend eight or ten dollars for a dress, when three or four would get one more suitable, would be extravagance.

I am not going to say what is right or what is not, but only what I think about it, and that is, that each should dress modestly and tastefully, according to their means and necessary associations.

"Costly apparel is sinful." That is true, but there are so many grades to that quotation, it is quite hard to know its exact meaning. For my own part I think it means the costly dresses (including the whole outfit) that are of a flimsy sort, not durable, and easily spoiled; and for the costly unnecessary trimmings, worn for ornament instead of use; and, worst of all, having the heart set on them. But another may understand it differently. I once bought a costly dress (and only once since I have been a Latter Day Saint); that was a little over five years ago. I was going on a long journey, where I should be constantly traveling and could not be encumbered with many changes; and according to the rules of society, I must be dressed presentable when I was among strangers of a well-dressed class. Well, that dress was my best for summer and winter, though I often wore it for a week at a time; the second year the same. The third year it was best and second best; the fourth year second best, and the fifth year third best, or afternoon dress. I have it on this moment, and am likely to wear it a year or two yet. During all this time I have only been to the additional expense of one dollar for fixing it over. Now surely that could not be the costly apparel that is sinful, for it was the cheapest dress, under the circumstances that I could buy; but it would not always be the cheapest to buy expensive dresses.

No doubt there is great need of laying aside much, very much, costly apparel, that is sinful in many ways; first, by the waste of money on articles not serviceable, that perhaps cost the husband hours of care and weariness, or hard labor to accumulate; and second the motive in wearing it, being to excel or outdo some one else; or using the money for unnecessary things, while bills for necessary things have to go unpaid. But, at the same time, I for one would not like to see the Saints in any way careless in regard to their personal appearance, or think it is sinful to take time to make themselves look neat and tidy especially at home. My motto is, keep ourselves and our homes looking as neat, tidy, and (shall I say it?) pretty as we can, in simplicity. I don't know as any one thinks it is sinful to take the time to cultivate flowers; so, would it be wrong to pluck one occasionally and place it somewhere near the neck or throat?

Now, if I was at hand when this was being read, I might hear the exclamation, O, you are proud! to which I plead guilty, but fortunately it is not an expensive pride. I have a pride that I would like to see in saints always, and that is, never to appear in a slatternly or ill-kept garment; to cultivate the habit of not considering one's self dressed in the morning without something clean and neat about the neck—a linen collar, or piece of netting, mul-muslin, or cheap lace ruffled in. None of these things are expensive, and can be worn and washed over and over again for a long time. It makes the young people look more fresh and cheerful, and imparts an air of self-respect and dignity to the older ones that seems wanting without it. Is this a wrong pride? If so, I have been setting a wrong example, and using my influence (where needed) in a wrong direction. It has been said, "We have to dress in some fashion, and might as well select one that is becoming." But does it necessarily follow that one is sinfully proud because they have a few tucks or folds on their dress?

The manner of dress that is approved of in sacred writ was not the costly but the neat and comely, and their beauty the work of their own hands. I turn to the dictionary and find that comely means "handsome, graceful;" then that gracefulness or beauty should not consist of that which is expensive and sinful, but in the work of our own hands; (i. e., the hands of any of the saints,) in making up suitable material tastefully, and neatly, and becomingly, each in her station in life. We as saints do not live to ourselves; therefore, to assume a strictly plain or universal dress would, I think, be disadvantageous to the work and place before many an unnecessary barrier to entering the church. But as Sr. Eleanor has wisely said, in substance at least, get the saints alive to the work, and having the spirit of it in their hearts they will not have time or inclination to give undue attention to their dressing. We understand that Jesus wore a loose flowing garment, as was the custom in the east at that time; and that he also had one garment which he must have valued very highly (though may not have been very proud of it) because made with great care, and presented to him by saints whom he loved, and must have been something better than ordinary cloths, for the soldiers cast lots to see who should have the garment woven without seam. When we glance about, and see the beauty in which God has made everything, blending and harmonizing colors, we can not but think that he likes the beautiful, externally as well as internally. He did not confine the flowers to one sombre color, nor all the roses to a single row of petals.

Let us seek to be modest and unassuming, having our hearts right in the sight of God, and that will regulate our outward appearance.

I hope after this life to have inheritance on the earth. An inheritance is somewhere to live. We read of a beautiful city must consist of a number of beautiful buildings, residences; and if such, they must have occupants. If I should be so blessed as to have even the humblest of these dwelling places allotted to me, it would be beautiful, and I would wish to keep it as beautiful as when it was given me; and since I have begun to learn that death does not change us much, when we arrive in the next world we will be about what we were when we left this. I wish to learn, among all the other things that will fit us for the hereafter, how to keep my dwelling place clean, neat and nice, and myself in harmony with it.

The words of the prophet of God, when he once came among us was, "Beautify your homes." To do that (where he spoke the words) would take time, labor and money—to dig the ground, plant trees and flowers, and all that is necessary to make a home beautiful, and all to please the eye and thereby give happiness. Shall any one say it was sinful and ought not to be, because that time might have been spent in a better way and the money given to the poor, or for the spread of the gospel? Let us think evenly about all these things, what is the sinful pride spoken of in the Scriptures, and what is not.

SISTER EMMA.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Aug. 28th.

Dear Sister Frances:—As I read the welcome letters in the Herald it makes my heart glad to hear so many testify to the goodness of our heavenly Father, in manifesting himself to his children in these last days. I can testify to his goodness, and I know he has heard and answered prayer in my behalf; many times he has raised me up from sickness, eased pain and suffering in answer to prayer, and am still spared to do some good.

I wish to say a few words to the sisters in regard to the government of children. Don't let the children always have their own way. They need training just as a plant does. If you want a vine or a plant to grow gracefully, you must cut off here a little and there a little to make it more beautiful. Above all things, enforce obedience; teach them to mind the first time you speak to them. Be careful what you tell them to do, so it will not be too hard for them, and then see that they do it. It will save you many a heartache and many steps, and is so much better for the child. Commence when they are little things, not more than eight or ten months old, and by the time they are two or three years old their habits are formed, and there will be but little trouble for your children to do as you want them to. They will look to mamma and feel that she knows best, but if you let a child grow up until he is eight or ten years old without teaching him to make some sacrifice for others, and let him have his own way in all things, it will be almost impossible to bend his will to yours. A child who is taught to obey his parents will have more love and reverence for them. I do feel so much for the little ones, and if I can do or say a word that will help a poor mother and make the little ones more happy, I shall feel that I am more than repaid for this short letter.

I was through the troubles at Nauvoo, and have seen God's promises filled to the very letter. My heart is in the work of the latter days. Pray for me, sisters, that I may hold out faithful to the end.

SISTER HANNAH.

FORD, Iowa, Sept. 9th.

Sister Frances:—I think there is a great work for the sisters to perform in training the minds of the youth, and thus preparing them for the work of the great eventful future. I dreamed a short time ago of seeing the sisters, as well as the brothers, being trained and equipped for what appeared to be a great battle in the near future, and as they marched along in battle array, I wondered and asked the question, What can they do on the field of battle?

Dear sisters, we should not for one moment think there is not a work for us to do. We are just as responsible in the sight of God for the way we use our talent and spend our time as our brothers are. We can not stand behind the sacred desk and there proclaim the words of life to a lost and dying world, but we can lend a helping hand in various other ways. Those of us who are blessed with this world's goods can contribute of the same for to loosen the hands of those elders who have to stay at home to work for the support of their families. We who are poor can do something by making a greater sacrifice than we do. We should use more economy in our manner of dress, and not be found following every vain and silly fashion; leave off costly trimmings from our dresses and bonnets, and yet dress in a manner that is graceful and pretty. I do love to see the Saints look neat and clean and dressed in a way that is becoming to those that have taken upon themselves the name of Christ.

Let us not be vain, dear sisters, but let us lift our thoughts higher, and strive to do something toward winning souls to Christ, preparing their minds and hearts that they may be fit subjects for his kingdom. Your sister,

REBECCA J. JAMISON.

Sister Frances:—I can truly say with others, the Mothers' Column is a benefit and comfort to me, but I have been thinking of late it was rather selfish to be continually receiving good from others without imparting good in return. Hoping it may comfort some tried or afflicted one of the Lord's people, I will tell you one of the Lord's good mercies to me, which happened a year ago. I was very poor in health at the time, burdened with the care of a large family, with the anxieties which come with the care of little children; worse than all the rest, my husband was bitterly opposing my belief, till it seemed as though my cup of trouble was full and running over. At the close of a Sabbath day I thought I would take a walk in the grove near the house; so with a sorrowful heart I took my little girl and went. I had had the Father's presence with me that day, but still I felt sad. Coming to a stump in the grove, I sat down on it, and my mind was led to bitter reflections; far from all my people, chastened by the heavenly Father, my husband bitterly opposing my belief, it seemed as though I could say with Jacob of old, "All these things are against me;" and I had left to live for but my little children. After sitting there awhile I feared my little babe in the house would require my care, so with a heavy heart I came towards the house. As I turned the corner of the house, my eye was attracted by a strange brilliancy about the sun. All the beautiful colors of the rainbow were displayed on its surface, curiously variegated and mingled together in lovely forms, while a wonderful radiance of light encircled the sun. My sorrows were turned to joy as I gazed at the sublime spectacle. This verse came to my mind: "There shall be signs in the heavens above and in the earth beneath" (before the coming of the Savior). I came in the house with a light heart, cheered and strengthened to go on in the narrow way, after receiving such a token of the Lord's love and care of me. I have not grown weary of his service yet, though I am afflicted still, and the way sometimes rough and stormy, as the Savior's was before me.

The loss of Bro. Hyde affected me keenly. I mourned his loss, for he seemed near by the ties of faith. Sister Hyde, do not mourn as those without hope; for they that sleep in Jesus, God will bring with him when he comes.

In that beautiful home where bright angels stay,

All our sorrow and pain will be o'er;

Then all tears from our eyes shall the Lord wipe away,
And death shall afflict us no more."

Bro. Roth, we do not see you here yet; my christian virtue of patience has been sadly tried by your non-appearance; please come here as soon as you can. Dear Saints, let us be faithful, and our reward will be as great as our sufferings have been.

Love to all Saints. Your sister,

ELLA M. FUHR.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Sept. 11th.

Dear Sister Frances:—My husband wishes me to write to you and confirm the statement he made to you last spring, that I would be a subscriber for "Autumn Leaves." I feel persuaded that this publication will fill the want so long felt for pleasant, profitable reading for our young folks. I hope that the church, both official and laity, will consider it their duty and privilege to assist in making it a powerful weapon for good, and that its pages will not only instruct but interest the youthful reader. I hope those who have had the benefit of traveling will forward articles describing the countries, the cities and towns through which they have passed. To the American youth, articles from our English, Welsh, Danish and German brothers and sisters would be very instructive.

Your sister in Christ,

EMMA C. D.

TO MOTHERS.

DEAR SISTERS:—It is often said that when we have nothing to say we should be silent. I have long been silent from the opposite cause—silent because I had so much to say; and the few "thought tracks" that I might put on paper could be no more to the great whole which I longed to lay before you, than the fossilized tracks of unknown birds found in rocky beds are to the great whole of the age in which they lived.

How is it with you all? Some have taken upon them new names, and are now written in the book of life as mothers. God bless the dear ones that nestle to your bosoms and draw from them their life? See to it, O my beloved, that there is no poison mingled with the draught, no bitter ingredient of unsubdued passion in your souls that shall infuse death into the life-tide of your offspring. They come to you for wisdom—interrogation points constantly, "wants to know." See to it that you never mislead, never give stones for bread, or serpents for fishes.

I hope that none of your children are sent to school to get them out of the way. The mother is the true teacher, and the child will learn more of her through its affections than a stranger can teach through his wisdom, be he ever so wise. If mothers knew how much of the time of children in school was spent in mere corrections of erroneous impressions derived from them, they would be convinced that the mother could not afford to be ignorant.

Ah, I hear you say, "Bricks without staw! Where is the time for all this fine culture? We pay our teachers; let them do the work." My friends, they can not do what God does not permit. They can not feel the strong maternal love which God gives to woman to stimulate her zeal and lead her on to duty. They can not know the innermost springs of thought and feeling that are so important in the education of the soul and intellect, nor can they impress with such yearning tenderness the lessons of wisdom.

"Lack of time," I hear the apology, and the great Father has heard it, and he has sent the spirit of invention to give you a little respite from your labors, in the sewing machine. Thank God for it! It will give you many an hour for self-improvement and the culture of your children; and when you have used these hours as you ought, the Father's hand will be unclosed, dispensing wider benefits.

Not in vain the distance beckons,

Forward, forward, let us range—

Let the great world spin forever,

Down the ringing grooves of change.—Sel.

LOOK FOR THE GOOD.

CULTIVATE the habit of admiration, says the Christian Union; repress the habit of fault-finding. It is a great deal easier to see defects than excellencies; and a great deal healthier for your self, and happier and better for every one else, to see excellencies rather than defects. A critic is a necessary evil. We do not speak of uttering criticisms, but of thinking them. You can habituate yourself to look for the good or the evil: to exercise admiration or fault-finding. Some persons in a concert appear to hear nothing but the one poor song or infelicitous discord; in a drama to see only the supes and sticks; in a picture gallery to discover only the pictures of garish colors or defective perspective; in a book to find only the blunders in logic, fact, or rhetoric; in a preacher to see nothing but one awkward gesture; in their children to discern only some incidental fault or awkwardness.

If husbands would give their wives one-tenth the admiration after marriage they did before, married life would be sweetened, and wifely devotion not only lightened of its often heavy loads, but enriched with great enthusiasms. We do not urge a lavishing of praise; but there are very few persons who do not more good than evil; and a just criticism—to say nothing of a considerate or loving one—would strike the balance and show both profit and loss. The forcing process of artificial and deliberate praise is not good; but everything grows better in sunlight than frost; and admiration is sunlight, and fault-finding is frost.

The sure way to make yourself morbid is to fall into the habit of seeing faults large, and virtues little, or not at all. To be forever seeing when your boy yields to a temptation and never discovering when he resists one is the surest way to promote the faults and discourage the virtues. A general who should never issue a bulletin to his army except to announce their defeats would soon demoralize his troops.—Sel.

"The Ruins Revisited,"

Is the title of a neat, cloth-bound volume of 240 pages placed in our hands by Mr. S. F. Walker, its author and publisher. The work is the result of large reading and years of study and contemplation; and as a factor in the literature of the age, should receive its share of attention. The author traces the Universe from star-dust to its present situation, attempting to account scientifically for the varied and manifold phenomena of animal and vegetable life, deducting certain theological conclusions from scientific standpoints; seemingly endeavoring to avoid the extremes occupied by either scientific or religious bigots. The latter part of the work is devoted to the exploration of the "Ruins" of "Ancient America," as presented by those who have visited them; the last chapter being a collection of evidences intended to support the proposition that Christ was known and worshipped upon this continent by the ancient inhabitants. The book can be had of Mr. Walker. Price $1.25.—Lamoni Gazette.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Original Poetry.

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER.

Go and teach the gospel message,
To the sons of men you see;
Tell them of the impending judgment,
If they do not turn to me.

Tell them that these "signs" shall follow
All of those who fear my name;
Tell them of the Spirits comfort—
All my matchless love proclaim.

Nations now are waiting yonder,
Zion's light but dimly shines;
Radiance from the gospel mirror,
Scarce reflects upon their minds.

But the fullness of the gospel,
Breaks the stillness of the night;
Zion's sunlight now is shining,
Bid them look with fond delight.

O, ye sons of men come hither;
Marvel, "cry ye out, and cry."
Fear and tremble all ye nations,
Be repentant lest ye die.

For our God hath done His "wonder,"
See Isaiah twenty-nine;
Lebanon in verdure springing,
Shows the hand of God in time.

Fear ye God and give him glory,
Worship Him that made the seas;
"Give to Cesar things of Cesar
And to God those that are his."

G. S. HYDE.

COLTHARP'S, Houston County, Texas, July 23d, 1886.

Correspondence.

BLAKE'S MILLS, Ohio, Sept. 20th.

Bro. Blair:—As so many are reporting such cheering and encouraging news in the Herald columns, I feel constrained to add my portion to the general summary of results that are following the efforts of those who are seeking to "establish the kingdom and its righteousness." Since the April Conference I have enjoyed excellent liberty and power in ministering the word of life, and in all my travels in this district and elsewhere, have been abundantly blessed and encouraged.

By request of Bro. W. H. Kelley, I paid a visit to northern Michigan, and while there was much impressed with the energy and zeal displayed by brethren Cornish, Carpenter, and others; also by the whole band of Saints there. While they are building rapidly, their work, as far as I was able to discover, appeared to be solidly done, and such as will abide. Converts were made fully acquainted with the general features of the faith before being admitted. I am told that our faith is already the leading one among the people of several counties, and that one can walk from the lower end of Lake Huron almost all around Saginaw bay, and take breakfast, dinner, or supper, with Latter Day Saints. Does not that exhibit a "missionary spirit" in the workers? Many local brethren are being raised up, who will become useful if they continue to apply themselves and keep humble. I was pleased to see them after being ordained as priests give out appointments for the following Sundays and try to do their duty—and preach. They are growing in usefulness.

Some say, "Make haste slowly;" but the trouble seems to be that there are so many local officials who make no haste at all—do not move—and I am afraid are so slow that they will never catch up to the onward march of God's great church, but fall far to the rear.

"The priest's duty is to preach;" but while there are many men who do great good in edifying the Saints and caring for them, yet let all who make no effort to preach scrutinize carefully the law as quoted above and be careful to have valid excuses, for "it is written": "Let no man deceive himself that he shall not account for his stewardship." Perhaps I am "counselling" too much; but I desire to stimulate to activity our local men in order that the traveling ministry may reach new openings oftener, and the sheep in branches be fed by the God-appointed "helps" in the kingdom. To such the statement is encouraging, that "my strength is made perfect in weakness;" and "my grace sufficient for thee." Let all believe that, and being not of little faith, try.

Since our district conference I have been greatly blessed in my labors. While I have hitherto enjoyed marked liberty and power in preaching, yet of late I seem to be changing altogether in method from rapid speaking to a clear, deliberate, calm, and forcible style of delivery. And subjects have been presented in such regular divisions, and with such a choice of language, that at times I have been amazed. These experiences of myself and others convince me that greater power has attended the church since the April conference.

The Saints here have built a nice new chapel, and have made a special effort, consequently when we met Sunday afternoon we had a special blessing, a regular Pentecost—the baptism of fire—the Lord remembering them according to their works, or as Sr. Burton described so beautifully in her recent letter, "All things are bought with a price."

I baptized two here, and they are not a tithe of those that will follow if Saints live their religion. Many believe the work and are defending it; and when a year or two ago we were met by frowns, now we receive a cordial and friendly reception. And at New Philadelphia, just across the river, the county seat, we have many friends, four different newspapers favoring us with kindly notices. This speaks for itself—"Comment unnecessary."

From here I expect to go to north-western Pennsylvania, to a town where the brethren have circulated the "Voice of Warning," which has been read by the ministers of the place, and I am informed that a discussion will probably result. As there is also a full fledged "Liberal League" there, things look promising for a warm time; but we feel well as to the result in that section.

It is to be hoped that Saints in the branches of our district will not complain if not often visited. But few are in the field and have more than they can possibly do. Be patient, and we will try to feed the sheep, as well as the world, when we can. Sustain us by your prayers and do not worry.

The time is an excellent one for efforts. I read in the margin of 2d Peter, 3: 12, "Hasten the coming of the day of God." This agrees with the statement of the Seer, as recently given in the "Home Column," the substance of which was that Christ would come when the Saints were prepared for him—when the bride hath made herself ready. May God inspire all the faithful so to do.

Brethren of the Seventy have failed to send me their addresses in many instances. Please, brethren, send promptly for circular letter. Address me at Kirtland, Ohio.

In the faith, hopefully yours,

RICHARD S. SALYARDS.

GLEN ELDER, Kan., Sep. 19th.

Dear Herald:—The long contemplated discussion between Bro. A. H. Parsons and Elder Kendall, Christian—alias Advent minister—began Monday, 12th instant, and closing on Saturday night the 18th. It was arranged for sixteen sessions, three sessions per day. About last April Elder R. S. Knox, state evangelist of the First-day Adventist, and president of the state conference, said he had challenged the world on the kingdom question, Luke 16: 16. Bro. Parsons accepted; but subsequently the champion recanted, promising to furnish a man, which Bro. Parsons found to be H. R. Kendall, pastor of a branch of the Christian Church. But on Sunday preceding the day of discussion, meeting to perfect preliminaries, the said Elder Knox was appointed moderator for Elder Kendall, and the writer for Bro. Parsons; whereupon Elder Knox stated that the discussion would be between a Latter Day Saint and an Adventist. This aroused the suspicions of the unsuspecting Bro. Parsons, who drew from his pocket a letter received from his opponent declaring himself a Christian minister. This made a little breeze. Nor did the decision of Mr. Kendall serve to quell the feelings which appeared to be struggling in the interior of the stalwart Knox. And as the shades night appeared, Mr. Kendall read a license, informing us that he was an Advent minister, so that he who was a Christian minister at 1 p. m., had by 8 p. m., on the same day, grown to be a full First-day Advent; and thus a few hours before the debate began the fact burst upon Bro. Parsons that he had to meet a First-day Advent minister. This kind of double dealing, if Bro. Parsons had wished to have availed himself of the advantage, would have released him from the contract. But as he had done ministerial labor here, and had established a reputation, he did not wish to shun what his friends would think a duty. But doubtless Bro. P. will be more cautious, and not allow himself to be thus inveigled again. It seems that an Advent victory over the "Mormons" was very desirable. O, yes; we heard about the Goliath who had demolished a branch of 150 members of Latter Day Saints, but we could not learn the whereabouts of said branch, more than that Elder Parsons would hang his head and back down about the second or third session! But Elder Parsons is not of those who drawback, though his opponent had deceived him. He stood to the contract. And whatever decision may be reached by those who heard, as to the result, the few Saints that were present agree that, with the sober thinker, our cause has not suffered; and Bro. Parsons still lives in the affections of the Saints; and the noble young brother is still battling for the right. The ordeal was trying, but has proved very beneficial. I do not believe that our elders are bound to meet any but representative men; and they should know who they do meet, and not be too anxious for discussion, never challenging unless honor demands it,

I dislike to think evil of men, but the procedure which culminated in the above debate is evincive of intrigue and deception—or so it seems; for certainly expectation of meeting a Christian minister would not suggest the preparation for a blatant soul-sleeper and an advocate of the non-duality of man. Nor would a desire for an honorable procedure suggest leading an opponent to expect to meet a Christian minister until within a few hours of the debate, and then suddenly evolve into an Advent minister. No; such a procedure is despicable; and the claim that it makes no difference under the pretext of battling for truth, is but another effort to hide the deception. For the Christians and First-day Adventists are in doctrine as wide as the poles. But any thing to beat the Mormons.

I never saw orthodox ministers and a Catholic priest on one platform but once, and that was when considering measures against the Mormons. The question in substance was: Resolved that the doctrine taught by Joseph Smith, Sen., and Joseph Smith, Jun., is in harmony with the Bible. Bro. Parsons affirmed. It was a herculean task, for it was Bro. Parson's first debate. He is but a little past thirty years of age, and has had but about four years of ministerial experience. His opponent was a man on the shady side of life, who claims to have been in twenty-one discussions; very intellectual, a historian, a Greek scholar, a ready talker, has a good memory, with more than ordinary ability to cater to the popular feeling, never failing to exhibit a pertinacity evincing a determination to carry a point at all hazards, nor failing to embrace an opportunity to make his opponent appear little. The three days' session arrangement was very disadvantageous, as he poured forth his objections in a way so as to render it next to an impossibility to notice them. But the objections urged were of the Sheldon order, such as building a temple, baptism of John the Baptist, Joseph's inspiration, Doctrines and Covenants, Inspired Translation, shared the onslaught, and were blown upon by his Christian First-day Advent breath. The building of the temple by the Nephites was read, but he persisted that the inference might be drawn that it was like Solomon's temple in size. And such a yarn as he spun about a few building such a temple as Solomon's would have put Satan to shame. But this Christian alias, First-day Advent did it with the best kind of a grace. He declared that there was to be only three witnesses to the Book of Mormon, and when called upon to prove it, he read from Doctrine and Covenants, 65, and stopped so as to impress the hearers with the thought that he was correct. But when Bro. Parsons read it as it should be read, it proved that the eight additional witnesses made no conflict. But he made a second effort to carry his point, and failing, became more blatant about his opponent proving nothing, etc. His egotism in declaring his victory and his opponent's defeat knew no bounds. His main, and to him most fascinating theory was, man's non-duality. And all the rebutting proof Elder Parsons brought was ridiculed and treated as naught. The rich man and Lazarus were treated by him in a manner to keep the house in almost continuous roars of laughter. A clownish description of how Abraham would appear carrying dead carcasses around in his bosom, which he sought to justify by claiming that it was not historical but figurative, Lazarus representing the Jews and the rich man the Gentiles. He has a most happy faculty in hiding the literality and making it figurative, and vice versa, of any man I ever heard.

The souls under the altar, or scripture description on them, came in for a full share of his ridicule. His closing speech consisted chiefly in telling the audience where he had succeeded and where his opponent had failed. His egotism was sickening. Many times he exultingly said he knew the man who wrote the Book of Mormon. And at the last session Bro. Parsons called his attention to it, and said if he had facts to prove what he said about the Book of Mormon, that our church paper would be open, and Bro. Joseph Smith would be as ready to hear such facts as he or any other member. This forced him to notice this invitation. And he said if the witnesses were living he could produce the facts; if they were not he could not. But, mark you, there was no "if" about it before, but a positive statement that he knew who wrote the Book of Mormon, and sneeringly styling it a romance.

If victory consists in ridicule, twisting, misapplying scripture and catering to the prejudices of the people, we cheerfully accord to Mr. Kendall, Christian, alias First day Advent, a complete victory, and can well afford to leave the result with God and the people. The question gave him a wide range. It was his own framing, as was the arranging and fixing the number of sessions. There is not an objection he urged but may be found and answered in "Joseph the Seer," a reply to Sheldon by Bro. W. W. Blair. We all feel splendid after the discussion, and glad for the privilege of laboring for a cause which, to bring rebutting arguments so taxes the skill of the cultured and cunning, and when brought forth, acts on them in a similar manner as spitting against the wind.

Three were added after the adjournment of the conference, which I reported in my last. Bro. A. H. Parsons has his hands full. I stay a few days to help him.

In bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

AZTEC, New Mexico, Sept. 18th.

Dear Herald:—You have been my counsel for many years, also my fireside companion and only friend that I could rely upon a great portion of the time. And to do without you would be almost like taking food from my mouth or tearing flesh from the bones.

Herewith I send you six names for Autumn Leaves, three of which I must account for myself. After the work is once introduced here I am satisfied that the church publications in general will be in good demand. The tracts sent me were readily accepted and I could find good use for more, for which I enclose some postage. There are several here who are anxiously watching for an encouraging notice from some source of God's choice to send a messenger to our relief. This heart would be gladdened by such news, and I am requested to speak for several others. Bear in mind, we have a new county under the name of San Juan, the center to remain very close here. The first session of District Court will be held next month, the 10th. There are splendid opportunities for Saints to secure homes here in a climate (for invalids) that can not be excelled, also for fruit growing. A great rush is expected next year, as there are large quantities of capital to be expended in public improvements. Would it not be well to notice this?

Soliciting the prayers of all the Saints in behalf of our wants, and the speedy establishment of Zion, ever remaining in gospel bonds.

E. N. BEACH.

DEER LODGE, Mont., Sept. 19th.

Dear Herald:—In your issue for September 17th, in referring to my brief note I am made to say that our "chapel is finished." It should be "finished as far as we will finish at present." We have it so it is comfortable and neat to hold services in, but it is not finished as we intend to finish it. Elder Peter Anderson is here preaching in the Danish language, and I believe is well liked.

Yours,

J. C. CLAPP.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ills., Sept. 23d.

Editors Herald:—We are still doing a little in spreading the truth. We have one elder in Southern Illinois, I. M. Smith, devoting his entire time to the ministry. He is an able preacher and an exemplary man. But the field is too large for one man to get over any considerable part of it. I have not heard from the missionary in charge this conference year. I suppose he is satisfied we will do the best we can. Our district conference is just past. We had a small attendance of elders, but a fair conference. Four were baptized in the Parrish branch, Franklin county, this week, and one more is to be baptized tomorrow. I left Bro. Smith there to continue the work till the last of the week.

The calls for preaching are more than can be responded to with our limited force and poor chances to go. Times are very hard and crops poor here. It continues very dry; water is getting scarce in places, and grass drying up so that stock must be fed soon. Feed will be scarce, and no sale for stock. The Saints here are generally poor, so we can do but little financially, therefore we must necessarily go slow. I am presiding in this district; but, having a large family of small children, my time is demanded at home. I do the best I can under the circumstances, (I being the judge), and I continually pray for the way to open up before me so I may do more.

A man by the name of Johnson who publishes a paper in Toledo, Ohio, called The Stumbling Stone, published in his paper that he was coming here to preach and have a controversy with the Mormons. Some had written for him. It was announced in the Methodist and Baptist meetings that he was coming to debate with me. But when he came he backed down and would not go into a debate at all, but said he would come and debate in November if they would pay his way. I don't think he will come. A Christian preacher is talking of debating with Bro. Smith in Crawford county. We don't know yet whether he will stand fire or not. Whenever one challenges us here, he has to debate or back down; for we are satisfied our foundation is good.

I have heard that Bro. Gillen is coming out to visit us. I hope he may. He is not far from us. We had a promise from Bro. E. L. Kelley last fall that he would come, but he has not put in an appearance yet. We need him to teach the temporal law. We have some faithful Saints, and some of us to all appearance are careless and cold. I don't see how any one in this church can afford to be careless or indifferent. My health has been good, and I have generally been blest with fair liberty in preaching this year. In full hope of the final triumph of the work, I intend to continue to the end. Yours,

G. H. HILLIARD.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

"HOW CAME THERE TO BE AN ESTABLISHED CHURCH?"

(Concluded from last number).

"WHEREAS, since the twentieth year of King Henry the Eighth of famous memory, Father unto your Majesty our most natural Sovereign, and gracious lady and Queen, much false and erroneous doctrine hath been taught, preached and written, partly by divers the natural-born subjects of this Realm, and partly being brought in hither from sundry other foreign countries, hath been sown and spread abroad within the same; by reason whereof, as well the spirituality as the temporality of your Highness' Realms and Dominions have swerved from the obedience of the See Apostolick, and declined from the unity of Christ's Church, and so have continued, until such time as your Majesty being first raised up by God, and set in the seat Royal over us, and then by his divine and gracious Providence knit in marriage with the most noble and virtuous Prince the King, our sovereign Lord your husband, the Pope's holiness and the See Apostolick sent hither unto your Majesties (as unto persons undefiled, and by God's goodness preserved from common infection aforesaid) and to the whole Realm, the most Reverend Father in God the Lord Cardinal Pope, Legate de laere, to call us home again into the right way from whence we have all this long while wandered and strayed abroad; and we, after sundry long and grievous plagues and calamities, seeing by the goodness of God our own errors, have acknowledged the same unto the said most Reverend Father, and by him have been and are the rather at the contemplation of our Majesties, received and embraced unto the Unity and Bosom of Christ's Church, and upon our humble submission and promise made for a declaration of our repentance, to repeal and abrogate such Acts and Statutes as had been made in Parliament since the said twentieth year of the said King Henry the Eighth, against the supremacy of the See Apostolick, as in our submission exhibited to the said most Reverend Father in God by your Majesty appeareth; the tenor whereof ensueth.

"We the Lords, Spiritual and Temporal and the Commons, assembled in the present Parliament, representing the whole Body of the Realm of England, and the Dominions of the same, in the name of ourselves particularly, also of the said Body universally, in this our Supplication directed to your Majesties, with most humble suit, that it may be your Graces' Intercession and mean be exhibited to the Reverend Father in God, the Lord Cardinal Pole Legate, sent especially hither from our most Holy Father Pope Julian the Third and the See Apostolick of Rome, do declare ourselves very sorry and repentant of the Schism and disobedience committed in this realm and Dominion aforesaid against the See Apostolick, either by making, agreeing, or executing any Laws, ordinances or commandments, against the Supremacy of the said See, or otherwise doing or speaking, that might impugn the same. Offering ourselves and promising by this our Supplication, that for a token and knowledge of our said repentance, we be, and shall be always ready, under and with the Authorities of your Majesties, to the uttermost of our powers, to do that shall lie in us for the Abrogation and Repealing of the said Laws and ordinances, in the present Parliament, as well for ourselves as for the whole Body whom we represent. Whereupon we most humbly desire your Majesties, as Personages undefiled in the Offence of this Body towards the said See, which nevertheless God by his Providence hath made subject to you, so to set forth this our humble suit, that we may obtain from the See Apostolick, by the said most Reverend Father, as well particularly and generally, Absolution, Release, and Discharge from all Danger of such Censures and Sentences, as by the Laws of the church we be fallen into; and that we may as Children repentant be received into the Bosom and unity of Christ's Church, so as this noble Realm, with all the members thereof, may in this unity and perfect obedience to the See Apostolick, and Popes for the time being, serve God and your Majesties, to the furtherance and advancement of his honor and glory. We are, at the intercession of your Majesties, by the authority of our Holy Father, Pope Julian the Third, and of the See Apostolick assoiled, discharged and delivered from the Excommunications, Interdictions, and other Censures Ecclesiastical, which hath hanged over our heads, for our said defaults, since the time of the said Schism mentioned in our supplication. It may now like your Majesties, that for the accomplishment of our Promise made in the said Supplication, that is, to repeal all the Laws and Statutes made contrary to the said Supremacy and See Apostolick, during the said Schism, the which is to be understood since the twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, and so the said Lord Legate doth accept and recognize the same."

After this most solemn recantation; after this appeal to God for the sincerity of their repentance, they proceeded to enact the repeal of every Act that had ever been passed to infringe upon the supremacy or authority of the Pope; they in the most express and solemn manner, enacted that no king or queen of England was ever, or could be the head of the Church, or had, or ever could have, any pretension to a right of supremacy in regard to the Church. But, in the same Act of Parliament, every sentence of which makes one shudder as one reads it, they took special care, while they acknowledged the act of plunder, to secure to themselves, by clause upon clause, the uninterrupted possession of that third part of the property of the kingdom, which they had grasped from the Church and the poor!

But, at any rate, they were now Catholics again; they were once Roman Catholics. They had been born and bred Roman Catholics; they had apostatized, and protested against the faith of their fathers, for the purpose of getting possession of a large part of the property of the kingdom; but having now made safe the possession of this enormous mass of plunder; and having, nevertheless, been absolved of their sins, and taken back into the bosom of the Church, they, surely, now remained Roman Catholics to the end of their days? Not they, indeed; for the moment the death of Mary took place, which was in 1558, that is to say, at the end of five years, they undid all that they had done in the time of Mary; apostatized again, and declared their abhorrence of that Church, into the bosom of which they had so recently thanked the queen for having interceded with the Pope to receive them!

This would not, and could not, be believed, if it were not upon record in the Statute-Book, which can not lie, in this case; and which contains in this case, too, the law as we have now to obey it.

Elizabeth, the immediate successor of Mary, was a Catholic herself, by profession and public worship; she was crowned by a Catholic bishop; her manifest intention, at first, was to maintain the Catholic religion; but she was a bastard, according to the law, she having been born of another woman, while her father's first wife was still alive; besides which, an act had been passed in her father's life-time, declaring her to be a bastard. All this would not have signified much; but the Pope would not recognize her legitimacy; and of course would not acknowledge her right to reign as Queen of England. Finding this, she resolved to be a Protestant; and resolved that her people should be Protestant, too. The very first Act of Parliament of her reign, therefore, swept away the whole that had been done during the reign of Mary; and the Act (1st of Elizabeth, chapter 1) repealed the whole of the Act of which I have just quoted the memorable preamble, except only those parts of it which secured the plunder of the Church and the poor to those who had got possession of it; and those same men, who had so recently received absolution from the Pope, for having acknowledged the ecclesiastical supremacy to be in the king, now enacted that supremacy had always belonged to the king; that it never had belonged to the Pope; and that the Pope had usurped it; and they even went so far now as to exact an oath from every Englishman, if the Queen chose to require it, declaring a firm belief in this supremacy of the Queen! The oath (in use to this day) begins thus: "I, A. B., do utterly declare and testify in my conscience, that the Queen's highness is the only supreme governor of this realm, as well in all spiritual and ecclesiastical things, or causes, as temporal!" An oath was now to come to reassert, which these very men had supplicated pardon and absolution from the Pope, and prayed for forgiveness to God, for having asserted before!

But the second Act (1st Elizabeth, chapter 2) brought back the Prayer Book again. The horrible men, whose conduct we have been reviewing, had condemned their Prayer Book as schismatical; had abolished it by their Acts; and had reinstated Catholic Priests in the churches. They now, in the Act of which I am speaking, ousted them again; re-enacted the Common Prayer Book; and inflicted penalties upon the priests who should refuse to apostatize by becoming Protestants and using this book in their churches. For the first offence, such priest was to forfeit a year's revenue of his benefice, and be imprisoned for six months. For a second offence he was to lose all his ecclesiastical preferments and possessions, and was, besides to be imprisoned during the remainder of his life. If he were a priest without a benefice, he was to be imprisoned, for the first offence, during a whole year; for the second offence imprisoned during his whole life. For speaking in derogation of the Prayer Book; or to ridicule the new religion, by songs, plays, jests, of any sort, the offender was to forfeit a hundred marks for the first offence; four hundred marks for the second offence (equal to two thousand pounds of the money of this day); and, for the third offence, to forfeit to the Queen all his goods and chattels, and be imprisoned for life. Every person was compelled, on Sundays and holydays, to attend at the Church, to hear this common prayer, under various pecuniary penalties, and, in failure of paying the penalties, to be imprisoned. Bishops, Archdeacons, and other ordinaries, were to have power for inflicting these punishments. This Act of confiscation, of ruin, of stripes, of death, was enforced with all the rigor that imagination can conceive. The Queen reigned for forty-five years, and these forty-five years were spent in deeds of such cruelty, as the world had never heard of or read of before; and all for the purpose of compelling her people to submit to this established Church. With regard to the cruelties of this monster in woman's shape; her butcherings; her rippings-up; her tearing-out of the bowels of her subjects; her racks; her torments of every description, in which she was always cordially supported by the law-giving makers of the Prayer Book, I must refer the reader to my "History of the Protestant Reformation:" suffice it to say, that, in these forty-five years which were employed in the establishment of this Church, there were more cruelty, more bloodshed, more suffering, than ever were witnessed in the world, in any other country, in a like period of time.

The main thing, however, to be kept in view here, is the fact, which all these Acts of Parliament so fully confirm, that this Church was created by Acts of Parliament; that it has no existence as a church; that it has no rite, no ceremony, no creed, no article of faith, which has not sprung out of an Act of the Parliament; and that there is nothing of prescription belonging to it, from its first being named amongst men, until the present hour.

It is not, by any means, when we are examining into the origin, and the pretended unalienable rights of this Church; it is not, by any means, unnecessary to look well at the conduct and character of those Parliaments, who passed the several Acts, by which the Church was made. It was manifestly not made by Christ and his Apostles. It is certain that it was made by Acts of Parliament; but, if those who composed those Parliaments had been men resembling the fathers of the Church; if they had been men of acknowledged piety and disinterestedness, their character would have thrown a sort of lustre over the thing that they had made; but when we find them begin by an act of plunder, so great as to be almost incredible; when we see them remain Catholics till this plunder became in danger, by the existence of that religion; when we see them turn Protestants, and make the Church and its Prayer Book, and ascribe the success of the undertaking to the aid given them by the Holy Ghost; when we afterwards see them abolishing this Prayer Book, declaring it to have been schismatical, supplicating a Catholic Queen to intercede with the Pope for pardon for having made it; when we see them actually receiving absolution from the Pope's legate, for having made this book, the making of which they had ascribed to the aid of the Holy Ghost; when we see them afterwards re-recant and re-apostatize; when we see them re-enact the Common Prayer Book, re-enforce it upon the people; and, especially, when we see this remarkable circumstance; that, when they had to suffer the Catholic religion to take its course; when the object of their enactments was to restore that religion, they had no penalties to inflict; no compulsion to exercise; no fines to impose, in order to drag the people to the Church; but that, when they had their Prayer Book Church to establish; then they had fines, forfeitures, imprisonment for life, to inflict; and every thing short of immediate death, in order to secure anything like compliance on the part of the people.

Thus was this Church established, not, as her defenders pretend, by the reasonableness of the institution itself; not by its own "inherent beauty and simplicity," as the fat and impudent pluralist tells us; not by the pretended "reform of abuses" which its institution effected; but solely by Acts of Parliament of the most severe and cruel character; and executed with the most savage barbarity. The authors of these Acts were triple apostates; by far the most shameless apostates, the most barefaced, the most unblushing, that the world has ever seen. The origin of this Church, then, is not only to be found in mere Acts of Parliament, but in Acts of Parliament causing sheer force, bodily coercion, pains and penalties, at every step, to be used; this is the main thing to keep in view, when the end of our enquiry is to be, whether it be not now proper to take from this Church the protection of the State.

These are the Acts of Parliament to be attended to in a particular manner; 1st, 2nd and 3rd Edward the Sixth, chapter 1; second, 1st of Elizabeth, chapter 12. The first relates to the making of the Common Prayer Book, by Cranmer and his associates; and here we must stop for a moment to inquire a little what this Cranmer was. We know that he was Archbishop of Canterbury at the time when he made this Prayer Book. The whole of the history of this man; of all his horrid deeds, and those of his associates, is to be found in my "History of the Protestant Reformation;" but as we are now speaking of that famous Church, of which he was the principal author, I must give, respecting him, an extract from that book; for, without knowing who and what he was, we shall not have all the merits of this Church fairly before us. "Black as many others are, they bleach the moment that Cranmer appears in his true colors. But, alas! where is the pen or tongue to give us those colors? Of the 65 years that he lived, and of the 35 years of his manhood, 29 years were spent in the commission of a series of acts, which, for wickedness in their nature, and for mischief in their consequences, are absolutely without anything approaching to a parallel in the annals of human infamy. Being a fellow of a college at Cambridge, and having, of course, made an engagement (as the fellows do to this day), not to marry while he was a fellow, he married secretly, and still enjoyed his fellowship. While a married man he became a priest, and took the oath of celibacy; and, going to Germany, he married another wife, the daughter of a Protestant; so that he had now two wives at one time, though his oath bound him to have no wife at all. He, as Archbishop, enforced the law of celibacy, while he himself secretly kept his German frow in the palace at Canterbury, having, as we have seen in paragraph 104, imported her in a chest. He, as ecclesiastical judge, divorced Henry VIII from three wives, the grounds of his decision in two of the cases being directly the contrary of those which he himself had laid down when he declared the marriage to be valid; and, in the case of Anne Boleyn, he, as ecclesiastical judge, pronounced, that Anne had never been the king's wife; while, as a member of the House of Peers, he voted for her death, as having been an adulteress, and, thereby guilty of treason to her husband. As Archbishop under Henry (which office he entered upon with a premeditated false oath on his lips), he sent men and women to the stake because they were not Catholics, and he sent Catholics to the stake, because they would not acknowledge the king's supremacy, and thereby perjure themselves as he had so often done. Become openly a Protestant, in Edward's reign, and openly professing those very principles for the professing of which he had burnt others, he now burnt his fellow Protestants because their Grounds for protesting were different from his. As executor of the will of his old master, Henry, which gave the crown (after Edward) to his daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, he conspired with others to rob those two daughters of their right, and to give the crown to Lady Jane Grey, that Queen of nine days, whom he with others ordered to be proclaimed. Confined, notwithstanding his many monstrous crimes, merely to the palace of Lambeth, he, in requital of the Queen's lenity, plotted with traitors in the pay of France to overset the government. Brought, at last, to trial and to condemnation as a heretic, he professed himself ready to recant. He was respited for six weeks, during which time he signed six different forms of recantation, each more ample than the former. He declared that the Protestant religion was false; that the Catholic religion was the only true one; that he now believed in all the doctrines of the Catholic Church; that he had been a horrid blasphemer against the sacrament; that he was unworthy of forgiveness; that he prayed the people, the Queen, and the Pope, to have pity on, and to pray for, his wretched soul; and that he had made and signed this declaration without fear, and without hope of favor, and for the discharge of his conscience, and as a warning to others. It was a question in the Queen's council, whether he should be pardoned, as other recanters had been; but it was resolved, that his crimes were so enormous that it would be unjust to let him escape; to which might have been added, that it could have done the Catholic Church no honor to see reconciled to it a wretch covered with robberies, perjuries, treasons, and bloodshed. Brought, therefore, to the public reading of his recantation, on his way to the stake; seeing the pile ready; now finding that he must die, and carrying in his breast all his malignity undiminished, he recanted his recantation, thrust into the fire the hand that had signed it, and thus expired, protesting against that very religion in which, only nine hours before, he had called God to witness that he firmly believed!"

Now not one of these facts can be denied, but, at the very least, we know that he was an apostate, a perjurer, and a murderer; and we know that the Act, which enacted the Prayer Book, tells us that he was at the head of those persons who, "with the aid of the Holy Ghost, composed that Prayer Book.

The second of these Acts of Parliament is 1st Elizabeth, chapter 2, which re-enacts the former Act, and adds to the severity of its provisions. The third is 13th Elizabeth, chapter 12, relating to the articles of religion; and excluding from all share in the tithes, or any other Church-property, all persons who will not swear to, and subscribe, those articles.

These Acts of Parliament, having been read with due care, you see clearly, "how there came to be an Established Church;" and you are able to answer, at once, the question, whether this church have any rights, or can have any rights, other than those which is derived from Acts of the Parliament. This is now a matter of the greatest possible importance; for now, at the distance of two hundred and eighty-seven years from the time of passing the Act of Edward the Sixth, which first made the Church and the Prayer Book, the Parliament (still sitting at Westminster) has to discuss the question; and is now actually, indeed, engaged in the discussion of the question; whether this church stands on prescription, or on Acts of Parliament. I have laid before you the Acts by which it was made; by which it was created; from which it entirely sprang, and had its being; and I defy any man to discover any circumstance which can give it a pretence for claiming any right not founded on these Acts of Parliament.

What a Parliament can do, a Parliament can undo. If there be property of any sort, that a Parliament can take from one description of persons, and give it to another description of persons, a parliament can take that same property again, and dispose of it in a similar, or in any other manner. This, Parsons, is what you are so much afraid of now! I, for instance, would take away the whole of the property from you, and dispose of it in another manner; others would not go so far; but you have cunning enough to perceive, that, if once a beginning be made, no one can tell where we are to end. Therefore, it is, that you and your partisans contend, that you have a right of prescription, such as a man has to an estate, purely private; that your right of possession is beyond all the inquiries of law, and that a Parliament must be tyrannical, and guilty of rapine, if, by its acts, it alienate any part of your property.

Those who hold this doctrine forget its inevitable effects on the titles of all the holders of abbey-lands, and all the lay-holders of tithes. There are, very frequently, lay-holders of oblations, too; but, for clearness and simplicity's sake, I will confine myself for the present, to the lay-holders. These tithes, which are now deemed private property, were taken from the Church, were taken from the parochial clergy; and granted to the king; and by him granted to private persons; and thus were totally alienated from the Church. Do you say, that this was an act of rapine? Do you say, that the Parliament had no rightful power to do this? Do you say, that this law was contrary to the rights of prescription, and the laws of God; and that, therefore, according to the maxims of our law, it was no law at all, but an act of rapine? So said the people of England, at the time; and the people actually refused to yield their tithes to laymen, pleading the law of God; denying that any Parliament had a right to pass a law authorizing laymen to receive tithes.

But those who had passed the laws which took the tithes from the Church and the poor, and put them into their own hands, soon found the means of compelling the people to submit to them, whether they were rapine or not. The Act 27th Henry the Eighth, chapter 20, after stating that "divers numbers of evil disposed persons 'inhabited in sundry counties, having no respect to their duties to Almighty God,' &c., had 'subtracted, or withheld parts or the whole, of their tithes, under pretence of their tithes being demanded by lay-persons,'" proceeds to enact various punishments for such subtracting, or withholding.

Five years afterwards, when the second great act of plundering the monasteries had taken place, another Act was passed, still more strictly enforcing the yielding of tithes to lay-persons. The accusation against the people was stated thus, in the preamble to this Act: "That the people, not regarding their duties to Almighty God, subtracted and withdrew the lawful and accustomed tithes of corn, hay, pasturage, and other sorts of tithes and oblations, due to the owners, proprietors, and possessors of parsonages, vicarages, and other ecclesiastical places; being the more encouraged thereto, for that divers of the owners of the said parsonages, vicarages, tithes, and oblations are lay-persons." Then the act goes on to give to these lay-persons all the rights of the clergy as to suing in the ecclesiastical courts, which they could not do without an Act for the purpose.

After the minor plunder of the chantries, of the guilds and fraternities and hospitals, it was necessary to pass another Act (2d and 3d Edward the Sixth, chapter 13) to enforce the Acts of Henry the Eighth, and to compel payment of tithes to laymen upon the footing of the clergy, as to the manner of suing for the same.

Here, then, are all these Acts of Parliament proving that in spite of the opposition of the people; that in spite of their deep sense of injustice; that in the face of all the former laws of the country, the Parliament had the rightful power to take away both the predial and personal tithes, and to give them to laymen, and to vest them, as an estate, in laymen.

Now then if this were not an act of rapine, if it were a thing that Parliament could rightfully do, what pretense have you for saying that this present Parliament can not rightfully deal with the remainder of the tithes in any manner that they think proper? And if it were an act of rapine, then all the laws relative to the abbey-lands; all the laws relative to the tithes; all the laws relative to this Church Establishment, are to be considered as no laws at all. If you plead that the Parliament has no right to take away, or alienate, that which is called Church-property, you must insist that no layman has a good title to tithes; but you can not do this without, at the same time, denying the validity of those Acts of Parliament, to which, and to which alone, you owe your own right of possession to tithes, to oblations, to any part, or particle, of that which you possess. So that it comes to this, at last; that, either all was rapine; all was directly contrary to the laws of God; and, therefore, null; or all your possessions and privileges have their foundation in Acts of Parliament alone, and may, therefore, be all taken away, by the rightful power of Parliament.

There are some persons who contend that the Parliament has the rightful power to make regulations with regard to the property of the Church; to make a new distribution of it amongst the bishops, deans, parsons, and so forth; but that though there may be too much property found lodged in certain hands, and though the rightful power of the Parliament to make desirable distribution is undoubted; still that power does not extend so far as to the taking of it away from the Church altogether; and that, if it be taken from parsons, bishops, and so forth, it must be applied to some purpose or other, tending to the upholding and to the efficiency of the Established Church; and the purposes of education are generally named; which is about as curious a whim as ever entered into the head of mortal man. Why, what is the Established Church FOR? For what do its clergy swallow up from five to eight millions a year? If for anything of public benefit, it must be for the purpose of instructing the people in religion; that is to say, for educating the people in the principles of true-religion. Why, then, take the money away from the parsons and give it to somebody else, that they may teach the people? Besides, if the tithes be taken from the parsons, and their amount given to school masters, there is, in fact an alienation from the Church. It is, then, a mere matter of expediency; and the only question is: Would it be good for the people; good for the people in general, of this kingdom, to take the whole of the property from the clergy, or would it not? This is the only question to be entertained on the subject by rational men. I am of opinion that it would be good to do it; and, before I have done, I shall clearly and frankly state all my reasons for being of that opinion.

The first question: "How came there to be an Established Church?" I have now answered: I have stated, and clearly shown, the motives for the making of this Church; I have shown the manner in which it was made; I have given a true picture of the character and conduct of the makers of it; I have exhibited to the view of the reader the severities, the cruelties, the ferocious, the more than savage punishments, by which its introduction was enforced; I have, above all things, shown that it originated in Acts of Parliament; that it rests solely on Acts of Parliament for every fragment of possession that it has; and that it, and all that belongs to it, may now be disposed of by the rightful power of the Parliament, in any manner, and for any purpose that the Parliament may deem to be proper, and now I shall in the next letter, proceed to show "How there came to be a people called Dissenters."

BE in time at church, friends, if only for department's sake. It is not well bred to sweep up a church aisle in rustling silk, nor to tiptoe nervously through the same in creaking boots, distracting the attention of the worshipers, attracting the attention of the vain and foolish to the glory of your attire. Better late than never, undoubtedly, but in the majority of instances you never need be late. The same care taken to reach church in time as to reach the railway train by which you travel, or to keep a business engagement will enable you to make a reputation for promptness.

ADDRESSES.

George A. Blakeslee, Presiding Bishop, Gallen, Berrien county, Michigan.

Selections.

THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE JOSEPHITE MORMON CHURCH.

LAMONI is a beautiful and thriving village of about five hundred inhabitants, situated in the south-western part of Decatur county, Iowa. It is about two and a half miles west of Bethany Junction, on the Grant City branch of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. It has through rail connection by way of Chariton with the north and east, and by way of Bethany Junction with Kansas City and the south-west. Its western outlet terminates at present at Grant City, Missouri, forty-two miles south-westerly; but there is strong talk, based on recent surveys and the probability of seeming necessity on the part of the railroad people, that at an early day an extension will be made westward from Lamoni or some point on this branch, by filling in several gaps between lines tending in this direction, forming a new line to connect with the Burlington and Missouri southern line to Denver by a crossing of the Missouri river at Rulo, Nebraska, or some river point near there.

The contiguous portions of Decatur and Ringgold counties are very rolling. Immediately surrounding Lamoni, and to the southward, the surface is smoother than it is to the northward. It is chiefly a prairie country; but there are considerable belts of timber along all the streams, which are numerous and large. The Grand River and its tributaries form the drainage of this section. The country is well watered. It is one of the finest natural stock countries in the west. The live stock interest has been well developed. The stock is nearly all high-bred and well kept. Many of the farmers of this section who were shrewd enough to see its natural advantages for stock raising at an early day, have grown rich in this industry. There are many enterprising and intelligent farmers hereabouts, who, by the introduction of superior methods of cultivation, have built up model farms, which are a delight to look upon, and which, with anything like favorable seasons, always produce of all the staple products bountiful crops of this country. But the best and most profitable crop of all is grass, and the favorite harvesters are the cow and the horse.

The town of Lamoni was laid out in 1879 under the auspices of the C. B. & Q. railroad company at the time their line was extended to this point. It is beautifully situated on gently rolling prairie land. Most points in the business and residence portions of the town command good views of the whole town and surrounding country. The history of the town has been marked by thrift, harmony of movement and solidity of growth, and its prospects for continued prosperity, growth and rise in importance are excellent. The ordinary mercantile lines are represented in the business of the town in about their just proportion, and in proper balance with the development with the country.

As a consequence, nearly all have prospered steadily, and the business of the town is in a very healthy condition. A cheese factory, lately established, and a good flouring mill, both prosperous institutions, are strong support.

ITS PECULIAR PEOPLE.

The largely predominating element of the population of Lamoni and vicinity is of the religious order commonly known as Josephite Mormons. Their organization is denominated by themselves "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." In common conversation among themselves, the members of their order are spoken of simply as the "Saints." A brief sketch of the history of this people and of their establishment at Lamoni, will doubtless form the most interesting feature of this article.

RISE OF THE CHURCH.

The origin of this church, according to its own records, was in the discovery and translation by Joseph Smith of certain writings, engraved in ancient workmanship upon some plates of metal which he found hidden in a stone box in a hill in Ontario county, New York. Joseph Smith and his witnesses testified, and his followers believe, that in this work he was guided by divine inspiration. These writings comprise a group of fifteen books—by name, Jacob, Enos, Jarom, Omni, Mosiah, Zeniff, Alma Helaman, Ether, Moroni, the two books of Mormon and the three books of Nephi—which are all printed in one volume, and are commonly called by the Saints "The Book of Mormon." It is often spoken of by outsiders as "The Mormon Bible." It is accepted by the Saints as a direct revelation from God; not displacing the orthodox Bible, but supplementing it. It contains the records of the wanderings and history of Israelites who are said to have left Palestine about six hundred years before Christ, together with the prophecies of a line of prophets among them.

These people believe that there can be only one true Church of Christ, as an organized body, with no divisions. They believe that His church, as a divinely authorized organization, had ceased to exist on earth before this new revelation, though they hold that God has had in the past, and that he still has, a people among all nations, those who fear Him and work righteousness according to the best light they have, who are still out of the visible church and fold on earth, and that He will judge and reward all the race according to their good works and righteous desires and intentions. They claim that their church is a revival and reorganization of His church—hence the name they have adopted for their organization. They believe that it, and it only, as a divinely organized body, is the true Church of Jesus Christ. Yet they proclaim tolerance of all sincere worship of God.

JOSEPH SMITH

was the founder of the church and its head until his death. He was and still is accepted by his people as a great prophet. The first permanent organization was at Manchester, New York, and a more complete organization was effected in Kirtland, Ohio, from 1831 to 1836. There a temple was erected between 1833 and 1836. The church grew rapidly in numbers. The religious and political views of its members were obnoxious to the people around them, and their life here was made uncomfortable.

PERSECUTIONS AND WANDERINGS.

They decided in 1831 to locate in western Missouri. The removal was carried into effect in the years from 1831 to 1838. Their settlement in Missouri was principally in Jackson and adjoining counties, both south and north of the Missouri river. In the latter part of 1833 they were driven with violence by a mob from Jackson county; in 1836 they were expelled from Clay, Ray, Carroll and other counties, and in the year 1838 they were forcibly removed from the State by a body of Missouri militia, under the command of Generals Clark and Lucas, by order of Governor Boggs. According to the statements of the Mormons the reasons for their removal were their well-known opposition to slavery and their aggressiveness in religious propagandizing. The action of the Missouri authorities was justified by charging various misdemeanors upon the Mormons. The number of persons expelled was about twelve thousand.

The next settlement was at Commerce, Hancock county, Illinois. This town was absorbed by Nauvoo, which became a flourishing city, the largest in Illinois, with a fine temple and other extensive works, both of a religious and an industrial character, whose remains are still objects of curiosity to the sightseer. The population of Nauvoo rose to the number of eighteen thousand. The church had an additional membership of about seven thousand in the immediate vicinity, and a total membership in the world of one hundred and fifty thousand. The presence of so large a body of people professing a peculiar faith was a constant and increasing source of irritation to the people about them. Frequent conflicts occurred. In the summer of 1844 Joseph Smith and his brother, Hyrum Smith, were arrested and thrown into jail at Carthage, Illinois. On the 27th of June the jail was surrounded by a mob of 150 or 200 armed men, by whom the two Smiths were assassinated. The building where this tragedy took place is still standing.

DISORGANIZATION.

Joseph Smith died at the age of thirty-nine. After his death the church was in a great measure disorganized. Sidney Rigdon, a man about fifty years of age, and one of the earliest converts, was for a short time recognized as the leader. Brigham Young had risen to prominence and popularity, by his being president of the quorum of twelve apostles, and by his activity and boldness and his success as a missionary, at home and abroad. He now assumed the leadership, and was readily followed by the bulk of the membership at Nauvoo. Strange doctrines and practices crept in. The Mormons had been accused of teaching, and perhaps practicing polygamy, even before the death of Joseph Smith; but the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, the church discipline expressly condemns it, and the evidence seems clear that all the teachings of Smith were against it. But both the doctrine and the practice were inseparably associated with the Mormon Church under Brigham Young from the beginning of his leadership. Doubtless nearly every settler who was brought in contact with the straggling Mormons in their temporary sojourn in Iowa and Missouri after the great hegira from Nauvoo can testify to this. Contentions with the neighboring people continued. Young's policy aggravated the difficulty. On the 1st of October, 1845, a convention of citizens of several adjacent counties was held at Carthage to take action in regard to the removal of the Mormons. Young entered into an agreement with this convention to remove from Illinois. The removal began in February, 1846. In 1847 the Mormons, under the leadership of Young, effected a settlement in Utah, which was then under the jurisdiction of Mexico, but was ceded to the United States the following year.

THE REORGANIZED CHURCH.

Joseph Smith's widow, his brother, William Smith, John E. Page, Lyman Wight, William Marks, and a very large majority of others had refused to subscribe to some of the new dogmas promulgated by Young, or to give allegiance to his authority. At the time of the removal from Nauvoo, this large majority did not go to Utah, but remained in various parts of the United States, the Canadas and in foreign lands, but principally in Illinois, Iowa and northern Missouri. A movement for the reorganization on the old line began in 1851. Jason W. Briggs, Zenas H. Gurley, David Powell, Cyrus and Reuben Newkirk, H. H. Deam and others were the active movers. A conference was held at Newark, Wisconsin, June 12th, 1852. It denounced the dogma of polygamy, then known to be secretly held by Young. At a special conference called at Salt Lake for this purpose, August 29th, 1852, Young first publicly promulgated this doctrine. The Newark conference made a general declaration of its principles in the following resolution:

Resolved, That this conference believe it the duty of the elders of the church (who have been legally ordained) to cry repentance and remission of sins to this generation through obedience to the gospel as revealed in the record of the Jews, the Book of Mormon and Book of Doctrine and Covenants; and not faint in the discharge of duty.

At another conference held October 6th, 1852, according to the church historian, "the gifts were abundantly enjoyed, and the Saints were greatly strengthened and assured of the triumph of the work of restoration to the old paths. Also, during these meetings, we were forewarned of the war between the south and the north, its sanguinary character and its extent; also, the success of the north was portrayed in all the vivid exactness of the subsequent history of the civil war." A more complete organization was perfected at Yellowston, Wisconsin, April 6th, 1853.

THE SON OF THE PROPHET.

At an annual conference held at Amboy, Lee county, Illinois, April 6th, 1860, Joseph Smith, Jr., son of the prophet, was received into fellowship on a baptism performed by his father, and was unanimously chosen to preside. The historian of that occasion writes: "His coming and presence at the conference had been certified by the spirit and confidently predicted; and when he, with his mother, was presented to the assembly, great enthusiasm was manifest." The membership of the Reorganized Church was now about two hundred. A direct issue was raised between this and the Utah church; the one flourishing in almost open defiance of the law of the United States, the other teaching obedience; the one teaching and practicing polygamy, the other teaching monogamy and upholding the sacredness of the family relations. Both claimed the legal succession of the church organized April 6th, 1830. This matter was brought to a legal test in a suit brought before the district court of common pleas of Lake county, Ohio, in February, 1880, to perfect the title to the temple at Kirtland in the Reorganized Church. The suit was decided in favor of the Josephites. Recently a revival movement in behalf of the church has been set on foot in the neighborhood of Kirtland, its birthplace. Early in April a conference convened at the Kirtland temple, and held a lengthy and enthusiastic session. It was attended by leading members of the church from all parts of the country, and was presided over by President Joseph Smith.

PROSELYTING IN UTAH.

From the time of Joseph Smith's accession to the presidency of the Reorganized Church in 1860, the movement gained ground rapidly. Since 1863 an active missionary force has been kept in Utah, working to win the Mormons of that territory back from what the Josephites consider the dangerous heresy of polygamy and consequent disloyalty to the path of the original church. Joseph Smith and his associate in the presidency, W. W. Blair, have both made missionary visits to Utah. In this field of work the Josephites have met with considerable success, especially in late years. Teaching, as they do, the scriptural doctrine of obedience to the laws of the land, and working, as they are, to detach the polygamous Mormons from their illegal practices and association, they are becoming effective allies of the United States government in its efforts to suppress, not a religious faith, but an immoral association and a law-defying power. Their missionaries have sometimes been obliged to appeal to the representatives of the government's authority in the territory for protection in their work of preaching their gospel among the Brighamites of Utah. They now have congregations established at Salt Lake, Pleasant Grove, Provo, Plain City, Springville, Salem, Richfield, Beaver and other points in Utah; at Malad, Oxford and Soda Springs, Idaho; at Willow Creek, Reese Creek and Deer Lodge, Montana; and at other places in districts where the polygamous Mormons are numerous.

GROWTH OF THE CHURCH.

They have also carried on active and successful missionary work abroad. There are over four hundred branches of the church in the United States and territories, over one thousand members in the Society Islands, and a considerable membership constantly increasing in England, Wales, Australia, Switzerland and Denmark. The total number of baptized communicants, as shown by the church records at Lamoni and exhibited in a report made to the recent conference at Kirtland, is nearly twenty thousand. The church is more flourishing in Iowa than in any other part of the world. The membership in this state is about 4,500. Churches, or branches as they are called, are located at the following points in Iowa: Lamoni, Pleasanton, Davis City, Greenville, Lucas, Wirt, Des Moines, Rhodes, Newton, Boonsboro, Sonora, Davenport, New Buffalo, Clinton, Shenandoah, Tabor, Glenwood, Plum Hollow, Hamburg, Henderson, Council Bluffs, Crescent City, Wheeler's Grove, Weston, Logan, Magnolia, Little Sioux, Sioux City, Moorhead, Panama, Persia, Unionburg, Galland's Grove, Deloit, Harlan, Centerville, What Cheer, Burlington, Keokuk, Montrose, Vincennes and Farmington. The membership is large in Missouri, Minnesota, California, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Massachusetts, Canada, Nebraska and Kansas and nearly every state and territory is represented.

[Here follows the Epitome of faith].

A few facts illustrating these articles of faith and doctrine: The Saints use an edition of the Bible translated by Joseph Smith, senior, as they believe, under the influence of inspiration. They solemnize marriages in the same way as other churches. They recognize the validity of civil marriages. They allow divorce for only the one scriptural cause. They recognize the validity of legal divorces, on the assumption that the civil authorities have kept themselves in accord with the divine law as to the cause for which divorce may be granted.

THE REORGANIZATION

Of the church is as follows: Joseph Smith, president, born at Kirtland, Ohio, November 6th, 1832; chosen president April 6th, 1860. W. W. Blair, councillor. Their polity provides for two councillors, who are associates with the president, and are called members of the presidency. The presidency is elective [sustained] in annual terms. A. S. Cochran, secretary of board of publication; H. A. Stebbins, recorder and secretary of church. These officers all reside at Lamoni. There are twelve apostles, whose office is to preside over the general missionary work. According to their belief, these apostles can only enter upon their work as they are called; consequently the number may not always be full. The quorum of seventy, who act on the call of the church, as missionaries, wherever their work is needed. The quorum of high priests have charge of home [local] work, like the conferences, synods, &c., of other churches. The elders, priests, teachers and deacons, have charge of the "branch" or local church work. The elders are the body of the church workers; they are local preachers.

THE ESTABLISHMENT AT LAMONI.

The first of the Saints who settled in the vicinity of Lamoni was a man named Walker. In the year 1870 a local business organization known as the "Order of Enoch" was formed. Under the direction of this organization a quantity of land was bought in the vicinity, and a settlement of the Saints begun here.

A branch of the church was organized here in 1871. The present membership is 584. Its place of worship is a two-story brick building, 50 x 90 feet, with a seating capacity of one thousand. Some very fine work has been expended upon its interior. The publication of a church organ called The Saints' Herald, was commenced at Cincinnati in 1860. It was removed to Plano, Illinois, in 1863. In 1881, it was removed to Lamoni. The printing and publication office occupy a brick building of two stories, of 30 x 70 feet. Occupying a commanding position, this building is the most conspicuous object in the town. The publication office is a very complete one, except for the lack of bindery, which will doubtless soon be added. The plant of the printing office is worth about $20,000. It includes two cylinder book and job presses, a Gordon jobber, an eight-horse-power Ames engine, a stereotyping apparatus, a complete outfit of book, news and job type, and a full set of plates of all the permanent publications issued from the office. These plates and the books and other valuables of the establishment are kept in a fire-proof vault. John Scott, the superintendent of the printing office, has occupied that position since 1868. The Herald circulates in every state and territory in the union except South Carolina, and considerably abroad. Its weekly circulation is about four thousand. There is also issued from this office a Sunday School paper, Zion's Hope, with a weekly circulation of over four thousand; also a Danish paper, Sandhedens Banner. All the church papers (except the Expositor and Vindicator) books and tracts, are issued from this office. Lamoni is the headquarters of the church. The principal offices and the church records are in the Herald building. The counting room, on the first floor, is a kind of bank, through which not only the business connected with the publication office, but all business of a financial character connected with the church is transacted. The annual clearances amount to two hundred thousand dollars. The president's office, the editorial room and a fine general library, are all connected on the second floor.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

As a matter of course, in a community where all have equal rights, privileges and advantages, the population is not wholly made up of one class. The Methodists have a good church building here. It was built in the country two or three miles away, and was removed to Lamoni in 1881, after the town had grown up.

The public school building is a good, two-story frame, built in 1882.

A local secular newspaper, the Lamoni Gazette, is published by Dr. J. H. Hansen and D. F. Lambert, both Saints.

One of the cardinal doctrines of the Latter Day Saints is obedience to law, and Lamoni is one of the most orderly communities of Iowa.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Southern Nebraska conference will convene at Wilber, Saline county, October 23d, at eleven o'clock. Let all the branches have their reports and delegates on the ground.

J. B. GOULDSMITH, Dist. Sec'y.

The Kent and Elgin district conference will be held in Bright's Opera House, Chatham. The Chatham branch has selected a committee to care for and billet the Saints to the different places provided by the branch. We therefore hope the Saints will try and be subject to said committee, and thus prevent all confusion as far as possible.

THOMAS MILLER, Pres. of Branch.
ARTHUR LEVERTON, Pres. of Dist.

Conference of the North Michigan district will convene in Bay Port, October 29th and 30th. As it is expected that there will be a large number who will gather on the 28th, there will be preaching that evening. We hope to see Bro. W. H. Kelley there, with as many of the traveling ministry as can possibly attend. Let the branches make out full reports.

J. J. CORNISH, Dist. Pres.

TWO DAY MEETING.

There will be a two days' meeting held at Blue Rapids, Kansas, commencing Friday evening, October 7th. Every scattered member of the Blue Rapids branch are requested to be present. The following elders are specially invited, namely, Alma Kent, H. R. Harder, J. D. Bennett, and G. W. Bebee. Bro. James Caffall will be in attendance on Friday and Saturday.

By order of Blue Rapids Branch.

MAHLON SMITH, Pastor.

DIED.

BRYANT.—Near Buffalo Prairie, Mercer county, Illinois, September 13th, 1887, of membranous croup, Cyrus Victor, youngest son of Ezra T. and Sarah J. Bryant, aged 4 years, 1 month and 8 days. Funeral sermon by J. F. Adams.

"Parents, weep not for your little boy,
That lit your home and heart with joy;
Remember, God, who reigns above,
Deals only with a hand of love.
God called him home, he knew 'twas best;
You'll meet your treasure with the blest;
Then onward press till the race is run,
Saying ever, 'Lord, thy will be done.'"

GILLESPIE.—At her home in Allegheny, Pennsylvania, Margaret Alice, daughter of Bro. Alexander and Sr. Mary Ann Gillespie; born March 5th, 1885; died July 27th, 1887. Funeral service conducted by Elder Ephraim Thomas.

Bereft of our child by the Master's will;
No one on earth its place can fill.
Our home seems void, our hearts still burn,
And wait in hope for thy return.

To earth again, with blooming joy,
Where sin and sorrow will not annoy.
May God prepare our hearts through grace,
That we our child may yet embrace.

HUTCHINSON.—At Independence, Missouri, August 18th, 1887, Susan R. Hutchinson, aged 16 years. Funeral service by Elder John C. Foss assisted by F. C. Warnky.

HILLIARD.—September 10th, 1887, of old age and paralysis of the cyst, Bro. George B. Hilliard. He was baptized October, 1862, by Elder

T. P. Green, and ordained a deacon in August, 1867, by Elder M. H. Forscutt. He continued firm in the faith until the Master called him home, and died in the hope of a glorious resurrection, at the age of 93 years, 5 months, and 23 days. We hope to meet him "in the sweet by and by."

GIBBS.—Sister Mary, the beloved wife of Bro. John R. Gibbs, of Morrision, Wales, August 21st, 1887. Born January 20th, 1840; baptized by Elder John Harry, in 1865. She leaves a loving husband and five daughters (all in the church) to mourn her loss. Funeral sermon by Elder Thos. E. Jenkins. She may well be termed (as she is by all that knew her) one of the "noble" women of all Wales. Hence we with affection say:—

Fond nature weep the silent tear,
Alas! to lose our sister dear,
Say, echo, do you term us wise,
To say she's entered Paradise.
Echo—Entered Paradise.

Fearless of all the scoffs of man,
She loved, obeyed Christ's gospel plan,
And in each trying scene on earth,
She lived and proved a Saint till death.
Echo—Till death.

Like Mary true of ancient date,
Low at the Master's feet did wait;
Upright and honest, pure in heart;
So wisely chose the better part.
Echo—The better part.

When Christ the Lord again appear,
With his dear Saints immortal here;
Say—will she with that number rise,
And joyful meet Him in the skies.
Echo—Him in the skies.

These happy thoughts then we desire,
With wisdom zeal our soul's inspire;
Here live for Christ each day with care,
Our sister meet—Lord answer prayer.
Echo—Lord answer prayer.

Fond nature, then, O cease thy weep,
Sow to the spirit, so you'll reap;
Like Mary, while behind you dwell,
Still trust in God, and all is well.
Echo—And all is well.

Conference Minutes.

WESTERN WALES.

The above conference was held Sunday September 4th, 1887; D. Lewis, president; J. D. Jones, secretary pro tem. The morning assembly was convened as a prayer meeting—desiring God's blessings to rest upon us in the whole of the day's proceeding. In the afternoon good advice was given by the president and others, touching the importance of the work assigned us, as well as the right manner in the prosecution of the same. The following branches reported:—Llanely, 43; James Collins, deacon; 1 removed to Aberaman branch; David Williams, president, Thomas Williams, secretary. Lansamlet, 23, one, Mary Gibbs having died August 21st; David Lewis, president and secretary. Elders present reported. Resolved, that a permit be granted the Llanely branch to ordain Adolphus Edwards to the office of deacon. Resolved, that we uphold in righteousness, through our faith, prayers and means, all the spiritual and temporal authorities of the church, throughout the entire world. Resolved, that when this conference adjourns, it do so to meet at Llanely the first Sunday in December next. Testimonies were given in Welsh and English, while the Holy Spirit spoke, warning all to faithfulness, that some would desert the faith if they were not careful. Preaching in the evening, short and pithy discourses, by J. R. Gibbs, John D. Jones, and D. Williams.

EASTERN WALES.

This conference was held in the Cobden Coffee Tavern Room, Merthyr Tydvil, Wales, September 11th, 1887. William Morris president, John D. Jones secretary pro tem. At the morning session John D. Jones addressed the assemblage, teaching the importance of having the Holy Spirit, especially in the teaching of spiritual things; that some claimed to go to conference to get the Holy Spirit. This was good, but better far was it for each to bring his portion with him to conference. The following brethren reported labors: D. Meredith, E. Morgan, Thomas Gould; a letter was read from Bro. Cope, showing his activity and condition of the Cardiff branch, including the labors of John D. Jones there, seemingly very satisfactory. Thomas E. Jenkins read a letter from a young man by the name of Rees Jenkins, reporting his labors and expecting success; after which he exhorted the officers to be sure and call oft to mind the resolution passed in our last conference, never to ordain to office without the consent of this district when in conference session. Reports continued: John Jenkins, David Thomas, John Lewis, John Prosser; priests James Griffiths, jr., James Griffiths, sen., and John D. Jones. Branches reported: Merthyr 14; John Morgan president, Thomas E. Jenkins secretary. Ogmore 20; baptized 3; E. Morgan president, John Jones clerk. Cardiff 12; George Cope president and secretary. Bro. E. Morgan desired to know what had best be done with one, a very delinquent priest in the branch. Resolved that John D. Jones and John Jones labor with him and report next conference. The committee appointed last conference reported success in restoring those mentioned. Resolved that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet in Aberaman, the second Sunday in March, 1888. The afternoon and evening meetings were very successful and cheering in testimonies, prophecy, exhorting and preaching. God be praised; peace having reigned throughout.

DES MOINES.

This conference convened September 4th, in the Valley branch. W. C. Nirk president, H. A. McCoy secretary. Branch reports: Des Moines Valley, no change. Edenville, 2 baptized. Sheridan, 2 baptized, 2 received by letter, 1 ordination. Boonesborough, 1 baptized, 1 received by letter, 5 removed by letter, 2 expelled, 1 died. Newton, 4 baptized, 1 received by letter, 1 expelled, 1 died, 1 marriage. Des Moines, 1 received by certificate of baptism, 9 by letter, 12 removed by letter, 1 expelled. What Cheer, organized March 17th, 1887, 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 1 deacon, 5 received by letter, 1 ordination; Nathaniel Miller president, Maggie Thomas clerk. Reports: Elder J. S. Roth had been in the field most of the time; had organized one branch, baptized 14, confirmed 17. John X. Davis had baptized 4, confirmed 4, blessed 3 children, preached two funeral sermons and ministered to the sick 8 times, married one couple. N. A. Baker had preached 45 times, baptized 3, confirmed 3. E. C. Brand had traveled and labored with the president of the district. Had preached 59 times, attended 3 two-days' meetings, confirmed 1, blessed 1 child, and administered to some afflicted ones; thinks the work in some places has been retarded and injured by lack of proper labor by branch officers and by neglect of the duties set forth in sec. 118, par. 3, of Doctrine and Covenants. G. Shimmel reported by letter; had done all he could for the cause. W. N. Ray had tried to do what he could. S. Longbottom had labored in his branch. James Allen had preached a few times in the Des Moines district, in the town of Vanmeter, with good results. W. Thompson had labored in Boone, Dallas and Green counties, preached 48 times, held 1 debate, baptized 8, confirmed 6, blessed 3 children, sat on 1 elders' court, married 1 couple, and expects to continue in the field. N. Stamm had preached 42 times, confirmed two, and administered to the sick. W. McBurney had been busy in his branch labors. W. C. Nirk had devoted all his time in the district, visiting the different branches and attending to his official duty; found it unpleasant at times, but tried to do the best he could for the cause. Priest G. M. Jamison reported, and also teachers Freed and Craycroft. Bishop's Agent's report: On hand last report, $55.53; collected since, $130.70; paid out, $92; balance on hand, $94.23. An auditing committee found report correct. The appeal of Samuel McBirnie against the action of Boonesborough branch was submitted to a court of elders who reversed the decision of the branch, on the grounds of hasty action. The appeal of G. E. Merrill against the action of the Des Moines branch was left to a court of elders, who sustained the decision of the former court, and the action of the branch. Resolution No. 2, passed at the December conference, was rescinded. W. C. Nirk was sustained president for the next term; E. C. Brand vice president; J. S. Roth Bishop's and book agent, H. A. McCoy secretary. N. A. Baker and Geo. Shimmel were elected district missionaries for next term. Preaching Saturday evening by J. S. Roth. Preaching on Sunday forenoon by E. C. Brand assisted by S. McBirnie. Sacramental meeting in the afternoon, led by J. X. Davis. Preaching in the evening by J. S. Roth. A collection was taken up to defray district expenses of $4.67. Adjourned to meet with the Edenville branch at the call of the district president.

WESTERN MAINE.

This conference convened with the Green's Landing branch, September 17th and 18th, 1887; W. G. Pert presiding, U. W. Greene, clerk, pro tem. Reports:—Elders G. W. Eaton (baptized 1), W. G. Pert, S. S. Eaton; priest's J. B. Knowlton, U. W. Greene (baptized 2); teachers, V. G. Cunningham, P. Eaton, H. Robbins; deacons J. Eaton, and J. Harvey. Branch reports:—Bray's Mountain, no change; Brooksville, 4 added by baptism, 1 teacher ordained; Green's Landing, 1 added by baptism. On hand by Bishop's agent last report $19.87, received since $8.25, expended $12.24; balance on hand $15.88. The following preamble and resolution was adopted: Whereas the growing demands of the church call for a more united effort on our part to spread the saving truths of the gospel; therefore, be it resolved, That we, the Western Maine district of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, believe that an annual or semi-annual New England conference, to be held alternately in each district, would conduce to the spread of the work; therefore, be it resolved, That we urge the consideration of these resolutions to the Massachusetts and Eastern Maine districts at their next conference, and the advisability of appointing committees in each to confer and make arrangements; Brn. F. M. Sheehy, W. G. Pert and U. W. Greene to represent this district. Two days meetings were arranged for on the arrival of Brn. E. C. Briggs and John Smith in the district. All the authorities of the church were sustained. W. G. Pert as district president, Edwin Pert as secretary. The following preamble and resolution was adopted: Whereas, the church teaches that branches and districts duly consider all persons recommended to office in the priesthood; therefore be it resolved, That to avoid all mistakes in ordination, we recognize the ordination of no man to the office of elder or priest without the branch in a regular business meeting recommend him to conference for their acceptance, they to act with the advice and consent of the missionaries in charge of district. U. W. Greene preached Sunday morning, afternoon and evening to large audiences; in the evening many could not gain admittance to the chapel. During the conference, the chapel was presented with a beautiful Bible, costing $14, by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Knowlton. One was baptized and three confirmed through the day. Nearly $20 were raised towards seating the chapel with settees. Adjourned to meet at call of president.

The Atlantic Monthly has this to say of the liquor traffic:

It is a business which is opposed by every clergyman in the country.

It is a business which every merchant and business man hates and detests.

It is a business which is the standing dread of every mother.

It is a business which makes ninety per cent. of the pauperism for which the tax-payer has to pay.

It is a business which makes ninety per cent. of the business of the criminal courts.

It is a business which keeps employed an army of policemen in the cities.

It is a business which puts out the fire on the hearth and condemns wives and children to hunger, cold and rags.

It is a business which fosters vice for profit and educates in wickedness for gain.

Drunkennes comprises all other vices. It is the dictionary for vice, for it includes every vice.

Drunkness means peculation, theft, robbery, arson, forgery, murder, for it leads to all these crimes.

The great reform of the century in this country has to do with the drink evil.

To think of political reform with the influence of the saloon in politics what it is seems almost fatuous. To discuss the subject of political reform without taking this weighty factor into consideration seems puerile. To belittle the importance of the saloon is most dangerous. To essay compromise with it is a fatal mistake. In the nature of the case it must be eliminated, or it must dominate everything. Full freedom having been accorded it thus far, it has made a long stride toward dominion. Even among those who clearly recognize the perils of the situation, it has become an axiomatic statement that it is useless to oppose the saloon in the cities. If that were true, the prospect would be dark. It is, in fact, an undemonstrated assertion and really signifies no more than a conviction that such an undertaking must be attended with great difficulties. But we can afford to make so disastrous an admission, for the future of the country depends largely upon the possibility of abolishing this gigantic evil.

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCEOLA CO., MICH.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, letter paper, envelopes, and printed recipes for Cement to cure Corns, etc., valuable in every household, by mail to any part of United States or Canada, for 35c in stamps or otherwise.

W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Rustles, Corsette Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. Gang

Foreign Money Orders.

Bear in mind the fact that the post office at Lamoni is now a Foreign Money Order Office. Therefore, those in foreign countries sending moneys to this office should draw them on Lamoni, Iowa, U. S. A.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Reoleiddedig Saunt y Dydd Diweddf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

The Sisters' Aid Society of Independence branch have for sale for the benefit of the new church, two Cabinet Photographs: one of the THREE WITNESSES, with views of the HILL CUMORAH and the ANGEL delivering the PLATES; the other of the OLD LIBERTY JAIL as it now stands, for 25 cts each. Those desiring to purchase can address Mrs. B. C. Smith, box 61, Independence, Missouri. 23jul3m

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa,

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

—) BY THE (—

Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,
at their Publishing House in

LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,

And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

Holy Scriptures.

Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet.

Sheep or Library binding.....	1 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	2 00
Full Morocco, gilt edges.....	2 50
New Testament, inspired edition.....	75

Book of Mormon.

Roan, sprinkled edges.....	1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 50
Full Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 75

Doctrine and Covenants.

Sprinkled Sheep, or Library.....	1 25
Imitation Morocco.....	1 50

The Saints' Harp—Hymn Book.

Imitation Morocco, marbled edges.....	1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....	1 50

Life of Joseph the Prophet, History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith.

In Cloth, full gilt finished, very handsome..... 2 25
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complete history of the Church up to 1880.

Joseph Smith the Prophet, and His Progenitors.

Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith.....	75
Leather Binding.....	1 00

Hesperis.

Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....	1 50
--	------

Rules of Order and Debate.

For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 123 pages, limp cloth..... 40

Joseph the Seer.

His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers 200 pages..... 35
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

Voice of Warning.

And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the Latter Day work; 128 pages
In Paper Covers, twelve for $1..... each 10
Limp Cloth Covers, each..... 25

Prophetic Truth.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon, an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper covers; five for $1..... each 25
Being the Subject of an Evening's Conversation Respecting its Origin. Its Divinity Proved by the Scriptures and Collateral Evidence. Prefaced with a Brief Sketch of the Life of the Prophet, showing the way and manner of his becoming possessed of the Record.

Branch Records.

Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages..... 2 00

District Records.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records..... 3 00

Licences, Notices, &c.

Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licences, each per dozen..... 12
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and..... 50
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub, 35 for..... 25

Certificates and Reports.

Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen..... 40
Annual Statistical Reports, two for..... 10
Certificate of Baptism and Membership, per dozen..... 12
Certificate of Removal, per dozen..... 12
Marriage Certificates, per dozen..... 25

"Manuscript Found."

We have for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. Has 144 pages 8 mo.; single copies, in cloth, 25 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 20 cents each; in paper, single copies 15 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 13 cents each.

Lamoni and Vicinity.

Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by

LAMBERT & HANSEN.

decl11f

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

Money Orders.

Money Orders are much safer than Postal Notes when remitting to this office, and they cost but two cents more. Don't forget this, lest you lose money.

D. DANCER, Manager.

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going
East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 752.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 15, 1887.

No. 42.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 15, 1887.

"PRESS FORWARD!"

SUCH was the voice of God's Spirit given by prophecy to the ministry and membership of the saints at our late reunion. Will they heed it and rally to the work with willing, trusting, cheerful hearts, making the will of God their good pleasure and chief duty! The privileges and duties of God's people were never greater than now. In our late reunion meetings his spirit manifested in power and much assurance that he was blessing his priesthood and people, and that he would continue to bless and sustain the humble, faithful ones with increasing grace and gifts. By his Spirit he told us that the experiences and trials of the past and present he suffered to come upon the saints to develop, educate and purify them for present work and future glory, and that he held the reins in his own hands to lead and govern his people according to his own will and purposes and designs in view of the salvation of souls and the glorious triumph of the redeemed, and that the saints should trust him and fear not, but "Press forward! Press forward!" assuring them that the angels were anxiously watching over them and working with them in their humble and faithful labors.

The ministry are bound by every consideration of love, of duty, of salvation, and of present and future honor and glory, to spare no effort, waste no time, let slip no opportunity to seek, and work, and strive with mind and soul and spirit and worldly wealth to build up and beautify "the ways of the Lord" committed to their trust. God condemns the idler, Nature abhors idleness. The church must not tolerate such evils in either its ministry or membership. Work! work! work! wisely and well, in the love of Christ and in the love of souls, in the hope of God's present help and coming glory; and this, too, in the manner God has ordained in his written word, and as he leads and teaches by his unerring Spirit. For be it remembered, that "he that learns not his duty and shows himself not approved, shall not be accounted worthy to stand;" and that "God is no respecter of persons." Then, let all Israel "press forward!" And especially let all the priesthood "press forward" to assured support and power and honor and victory!

Satan may rage; but keep off his grounds and all is safe. He will move ambitious, aspiring souls both in and out of the church to annoy, vex and mislead the Saints of God; but heed them not, lest by dallying with them you lose "first love," "grieve the Spirit of God," lose faith in God's "marvellous work and a wonder," "wander off from the rod of iron," become "darkened in mind," "call evil good and good evil," rail at and reject those whom God has called, chosen and approved by prophecy and by his Spirit, and thus "lose your own soul." Earnestly, actively "press forward."

HARLAN REUNION.

WE have seldom seen such unity, spirituality and joyful communion as we witnessed at our Annual Reunion at Harlan, Iowa, which held from September 24th to October 2d, inclusive. The weather was good, the arrangements and management first-class, the order and interest unsurpassed, the sermons timely, wise and edifying, while the prayer and social meetings were "heavenly places" in Christ Jesus. The gifts of the Spirit were enjoyed in a large degree, and the grace and power of God attended the sermons, exhortations, and administrations of the ordinances in a large and confirming measure. The manifest increase in divine wisdom, spiritual harmony and power, in all the exercises of the occasion, were matters freely and pleasingly commented on and compared to the best days the church has ever seen. There were heavy rains in many places all around and not far away; but in the kind providence of God the tented "City of Zion" had only rain enough to fairly lay the dust and clear the atmosphere, though a storm seemed at hand the last Sunday morning. There were twenty-three received by baptism, one on her membership in the days of the Seer, and some others gave their names for baptism in the near future, at or near their homes.

The attendance was full, but not so large as last year, for the grounds were not so central to the large bodies of the Saints in Iowa and Nebraska; yet on the two Sundays there were perhaps quite three times as many persons on the grounds as could be seated in the large tent. The most of those outside the tent, by their patient, orderly demeanor, could hear and enjoy the exercises fairly well.

It seemed to be the universal sentiment that a much larger tent should be secured at once to fill the growing demands of these reunions.

The committee of arrangements are worthy of all praise for their care and toil and unremitting attention in preparing for and carrying forward to a successful issue this excellent meeting.

A committee of five were selected to arrange for and locate the annual reunion at some suitable place for the next five years, an account of which will appear in due time in the Herald. Thus the kingdom is surmounting difficulties, subduing fears and prejudices, and rolling on in majesty and power.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. STEBBINS has been at Fontanelle, Iowa, had preached in the Christian Chapel, and left the people having a good interest in the latter day work. After that he preached in the Park and in the Opera Hall at Osceola, Clark county, having good attendance and most respectful hearing. He expects to return there soon. He writes that their late conference at Lucas, Iowa, was a most profitable one.

Brethren A. S. Cochran and Thomas J. Bell also report cheerfully of the Lucas conference, and state that spirituality, unity and gladness prevailed gloriously.

Sr. Nancy Brown, of Sublette, Illinois, requests the prayers of the Saints in behalf of her aged and afflicted husband.

Bro. J. C. Clapp writing from Deer Lodge, Montana, September 27th, said he "baptized one more last Saturday."

Bro. A. B. Pierce of Plainville, Massachusetts, writes September 27th, that the late conference at Providence, Rhode Island, was a most excellent one, and that "all were abundantly blessed by God's Holy Spirit."

Sr. Margaret Quaintance, Kent Bridge, Ontario, wishes Sr. Susan Pinkerton to write her and give her address. She says they now have a thriving branch at Kent Bridge, that some able, spiritual ministers have labored there of late with excellent success, and she testifies that God has healed her of a heart affliction.

Sr. Cynthia Cato writes from Eureka, Kansas, that they are much pleased with the HERALD, and that they expecting Autumn Leaves soon. She relates that God gave her a beautiful vision two years ago in which she saw a personage come into and pass from her room, whose head and shoulders were encircled with the colors of the rainbow, and whose words were uttered "in a low soft tone."

Those who attended the late conference at Lucas, Iowa, report a very united and spiritual session.

Bishop George A. Blakeslee, returning from the Harlan Reunion, called at Lamoni the 5th of October, to remain for a few days on business.

Bro. and Sr. A. H. Smith attended the Harlan Reunion and returned home October 4th, and on the evening of the 5th instant their daughter Emma B. was united in marriage at their residence, five miles south east of Lamoni, with a promising young gentleman, William F. Kennedy, of Independence, Missouri, where they will make their home. Bro. Alexander intends to proceed at once to Minnesota and prosecute his mission work as best he can.

President Joseph Smith folded his tent on Monday the 3d of October, to start home from Harlan with his family by carriage, and is expected in Lamoni the 8th instant. His correspondents will please make a note of this fact, as it will account for any delays occurring.

The plentiful rains and fair weather for the past eight weeks has clothed the landscape about Lamoni in variegated robes of most excellent promise and beauty, and she summer of "our discontent" has been transformed into a pleasant, prosperous autumn. God is our trust.

THE following items furnished by the Utah Commission are of interest to the Saints, and they are probably quite reliable, for they are reported officially.

If "the names of sixty-seven men have been reported to the Commission as having entered into polygamy" during the past year, we may conclude that many times that number have entered into that "crime" and "abomination," (so termed by the Book of Mormon) in that time, for the Utah polygamists and their friends do all they can to cover and keep secret such deeds.

POLYGAMIC FACTS.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3d.—G. L. Godfrey, A. B. Williams, and Arthur L. Thomas, constituting a majority of the Utah Commission have filed with the Secretary of the Interior the annual report of the commission on the affairs of that territory. A memorandum at the close of the document states that Commissioners Carlton and McClermand, dissenting from many of the views expressed therein, do not sign the report. The population of the territory is estimated at 200,000, a gain of nearly 60,000 since 1880. The valuation of the property assessed in the several counties of the territory is given as $35,665,802. The prosperity of the past seven years, says the report, has been equal to that of any former period in the history of the territory.

On April 1st of the present year the total Mormon population in the territory of Utah, Idaho, Arizona, Wyoming, and New Mexico, and the states of Nevada and Colorado was 162,383, officially classed as follows: Three first presidents; 11 apostles; 65 patriarchs; 6,445 seventies; 3,723 high priests; 12,411 elders; 2,423 priests; 2,497 teachers; 6,854 deacons; 81,283 members, and 46,639 children under 8 years of age. The total church population of Utah was 132,297.

The tithings for 1880 were $540,000. The strength of the non-Mormon element is estimated at 55,000. This element now owns of the assessed property of the territory nearly one-third, exclusive of railroad property. The different religious denominations have now in Utah sixty-two churches. These churches have established and control eighty-seven schools, with an aggregate of 6,668 pupils and 230 teachers.

Since the passage of the Edmunds Law in 1882, 541 persons have been indicted for unlawful cohabitation, and 239 of these were convicted. The number convicted of polygamy was 14. Many of the persons indicted have fled to escape arrest. In the enforcement of the law, the report says, the officers of the federal Courts in Utah are entitled to special commendation. The national laws relating to bigamy and polygamy have been in effective operation for about three years. The Mormon leaders and their obedient followers have made no concession to its supremacy, and the issue is squarely maintained between assumed revelation and the laws of the land.

The report then cites the already published results of the election under the registry law on the 1st of August last, and of the convention in June and the subsequent election participated in by Mormons only, in which a constitution was adopted with a view to application to Congress for admission as a state.

The Commission regards this statement as an effort to free the Mormon church from the toils which the firm attitude of the government and the energetic course of the federal officers have thrown around it, and opposes its consummation.

During the past year the names of sixty-seven men have been reported to the Commission as having entered into polygamy. The Commission renews its recommendations of last year except such as were enacted into laws at the last session of Congress. The Commission also recommends that authority be conferred upon the Governor of the territory to appoint the following county officers: Selectmen, clerks, assessors, recorders, and superintendents of district schools.

In conclusion, the Commission submits that, in its opinion, the results which have followed from the passage of the Edmunds act have been very beneficial to the Territory. It has provided a fair, honest, and orderly system of elections, and it is universally conceded by Mormons and non-Mormons that there has been no charge nor even rumor of fraud in connection with the registration of votes and the conduct of elections since the Commission first commenced its work.

THE clipping below we take from the San Francisco, (California,) Chronicle or August 22d.

"An interesting discourse was delivered by Elder John Parsons of Oakland last evening before the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, he having chosen for his theme, 'The Coming Kingdom of God.'

"Mr. Parsons is what might properly be termed a missionary of the Mormon Church, branches of which are being planted in all parts of the world, and argued his subject from the standpoint of the Mormon faith. The faith of this branch of the Church of the Latter Day Saints is not in any way associated with the polygamous Church of Utah. Polygamy is no part of their religion and they have so strongly disproved of it as to cause a division in the original Mormon Church.

"The position taken by Mr. Parsons in support of his theme was that the signs of the times all tend to verify what the Mormon faith and its apostles have prophesied for years—that the kingdom of God, as prayed for in the Lord's prayer, "Thy kingdom come," is rapidly nearing, and that the coming of Christ is not a great way in the future. Man has been told by revelation what a great many of these signs are. The Lord promised to appear unto his own people again in the same spot—Jerusalem—and it is now flaming on the bulletins of the world that its coffers are in the possession of Jews, and they are gradually drifting toward Palestine. Time was when the sword was the arbiter of all differences; now a great power moves only by the consent of other powers. There will be great convulsions in the coming era, but instead of a warlike crusade of any one power, it will be the crash and final dissolution of all the great powers, the survivors of which will be the people of Christ.

"The world is now, the speaker claimed, just taking the initiatory steps toward the coming kingdom; the world is approaching a new birth in great travail, as it were, and about to be delivered of a son, the Son of the living God.

"This doctrine is advanced by the Church of the Latter Day Saints, and is believed by them to be true, because their faith, more nearly than all others, patterns after the Apostolic Church, which prophesied these things."

THE Sidney, Iowa, Union, for January 13th, 1887, has the following confession of faith of one branch of the Holiness Church, which we presume is closely allied to the faith of the whole body. We give it that the elders may examine it and know what the faith is. Some parts of it are very commendable.

STATEMENT OF FAITH

By the Church at West Grove, Fremont county, Iowa, December 29th, 1886.

The following articles state in brief the views of bible teaching on the subjects mentioned, and were adopted by the Holiness Church organized at West Grove, in Sidney township, December 29th, 1886. It will be seen that many of the articles are those written by J. Newton Brown, and are only modified on the subjects of communion, holiness by faith, the laying on of hands according to former usage, and the omission of those on regeneration and election, which are amply included in those retained.

DECLARATION OF FAITH

Adopted by the Church at West Grove, Fremont county, Iowa, December 29th, 1886.

I.—OF THE SCRIPTURES.

We believe that the Holy Bible was written by men divinely inspired, and is a perfect treasure of heavenly instruction; that it has God for its author, salvation for its end, and truth without any mixture of error for its matter; that it reveals the principles by which God will judge us; and therefore is, and shall remain to the end of the world, the true centre of Christian union, and the supreme standard by which all human conduct, creeds, and opinions should be tried.

II.—OF THE TRUE GOD.

We believe that there is one, and only one living and true God, an infinite, intelligent Spirit, whose name is JEHOVAH, the Maker and Supreme Ruler of Heaven and Earth; inexpressibly glorious in holiness, and worthy of all possible honor, confidence and love; that in the unity of the Godhead there are three persons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; equal in every divine perfection, and executing distinct offices in the great work of redemption.

III.—OF THE FALL OF MAN.

We believe that Man was created in holiness, under the law of his Maker; but by voluntary transgression fell from that holy and happy state; in consequence of which mankind are now sinners, not by constraint, but choice; being by nature utterly void of that holiness required by the law of God, positively inclined to evil; and therefore under just condemnation to eternal ruin, without defence or excuse.

IV.—OF THE WAY OF SALVATION.

We believe that the salvation of sinners is wholly of grace; through the Mediatorial offices of the Son of God; who by the appointment of the Father, freely took upon him our nature, yet without sin, honored the divine law by his personal obedience, and by his death made a full atonement for our sins; that having risen from the dead, he is now enthroned in heaven; and uniting in his wonderful person the tenderest sympathies with divine perfections, he is every way qualified to be a suitable, a compassionate, and an all-sufficient Savior.

V.—OF JUSTIFICATION.

We believe that the great Gospel blessing which Christ secures to such as believe in him is Justification; that Justification includes the pardon of sin, and the promise of eternal life on principles of righteousness; that it is bestowed, not in consideration of any works of righteousness which we have done, but solely through faith in the Redeemer's blood; by virtue of which faith his perfect righteousness is freely imputed to us of God; that it brings us into a state of most blessed peace and favor with God, and secures every other blessing needful for time and eternity.

VI.—OF THE FREENESS OF SALVATION.

We believe that the blessings of salvation are made free to all by the Gospel; that it is the immediate duty of all to accept them by a cordial, penitent, and obedient faith; and that nothing prevents the salvation of the greatest sinner on earth, but his own inherent depravity and voluntary rejection of the Gospel; which rejection involves him in an aggravated condemnation.

VII.—OF REPENTANCE AND FAITH.

We believe that Repentance and Faith are sacred duties, and also inseparable graces, wrought in our souls by the regenerating Spirit of God; whereby being deeply convinced of our guilt, danger and helplessness, and of the way of salvation by Christ, we turn to God with unfeigned contrition, confession, and supplication for mercy; at the same time heartily receiving the Lord Jesus Christ as our Prophet, Priest and King, and relying on him alone as the only and all-sufficient Savior.

VIII.—OF SANCTIFICATION.

We believe that Sanctification is the process by which, according to the will of God, we are made partakers of holiness; that it is a progressive work; that it is begun in regeneration; and that it is carried on in the heart of believers by the presence and power of the Holy Spirit; the Sealer and Comforter, in the continual use of the appointed means—especially, the word of God, self-examination, self-denial, watchfulness, and prayer; that it is wrought by the Holy Spirit, according to our faith, and is complete at his will.

IX.—OF THE PERSEVERANCE OF SAINTS.

We believe that such only are real believers as endure unto the end; that their persevering attachment to Christ is the grand mark which distinguishes them from superficial professors; that a special providence watches over their welfare; and they are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation.

X.—OF THE HARMONY OF THE LAW AND THE GOSPEL.

We believe that the Law of God is the eternal and unchangeable rule of his moral government; that it is holy, just, and good; and that the inability which the Scriptures ascribe to fallen men to fulfill its precepts, arises entirely from their love of sin; to deliver them from which, and to restore them through a Mediator to unfeigned obedience to the holy Law, is one great end of the Gospel, and of the Means of Grace connected with the establishment of the visible church.

XI.—OF A GOSPEL CHURCH.

We believe that a visible church of Christ is a congregation of baptized believers, associated by covenant in the faith and fellowship of the Gospel; observing the ordinances of Christ; governed by his laws; and exercising the gifts, rights, and privileges invested in them by his word; that its only scriptural officers are Bishops or Pastors and Deacons, whose qualifications, claims and duties, are defined in the Epistles to Timothy and Titus.

XII.—OF BAPTISM AND THE LORD'S SUPPER.

We believe that Christian Baptism is the immersion in water of a believer, into the name of the Father, the Son, and Holy Ghost; to show forth in a solemn and beautiful emblem, our faith in the crucified, buried, and risen Savior, with the effect in our death to sin and resurrection to a new life; that it is pre-requisite to the privileges of a church relation; and that all true lovers of Christ abiding with the church should be invited to partake the emblems of the Lord's Supper with them; in which the members of the church by the sacred use of bread and wine, are to commemorate together the dying love of Christ; preceded always by solemn self-examination.

XIII.—OF THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH.

We believe that the first day of the week is the Lord's Day, or Christian Sabbath; and is to be kept sacred to religious purposes, by abstaining from all secular labor and sinful recreations; by the devout observance of all the means of grace, both private and public; and by preparation for that rest that remaineth for the people of God.

XIV.—OF CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

We believe that Civil Government is of Divine appointment, for the interests and good order of human society; and that magistrates are to be prayed for, conscientiously honored, and obeyed; except only in things opposed to the will of our Lord Jesus Christ, who is the only Lord of the conscience, and the Prince of the kings of earth.

XV.—OF THE RIGHTEOUS AND THE WICKED.

We believe that there is a radical and essential difference between the righteous and the wicked; that such only as through faith are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and sanctified by the Spirit of our God, are truly righteous in his esteem; while all such as continue in impenitence and unbelief are in his sight wicked, and under the curse, and this distinction holds among men both in and after death.

XVI.—OF THE WORLD TO COME.

We believe that the end of the world is approaching; that at the Last Day, Christ will descend from heaven, and raise the dead from the grave to final retribution; that a solemn separation will take place; that the wicked will be adjudged to endless punishment, and the righteous to endless joy; and that this judgment will fix forever the final state of men in heaven or hell, on principles of righteousness.

XVII.

That believers should be baptized, as was Jesus our Savior, and walk in newness of life; that prayer and laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Spirit should follow water baptism; that it is expedient and scriptural that the local and organized church should conform to the one outward baptism in water, and by faith receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit, as taught in the word.

That all saved persons should when present and having enjoyed the blessing of the Holy Spirit baptism, entire sanctification or earnestly pressing to perfect love to God and man, should partake of the Lord's Supper served by the church of our Lord Jesus Christ.

XVIII.

That parents should consecrate their young children to God from birth, and that it is wise to ask the prayers of faithful men and women to be united at suitable times with the prayers of the parents, and by the reverent laying on of hands, to make an open dedication at home or in the church to God, and claim all of God's promises, and do all of his will for their early and eternal salvation.

That as we are Christ's, being bought by the precious blood of Christ, not less than one-tenth of our earnings should be applied to the relief of those suffering or in want, and to the spread of the gospel in the whole world.

XIX.

That temperance should be practiced in indulgence of bodily appetites, even in proper directions, while the indulgence of harmful things, as of tobacco, ardent spirits, adornment for vanity or pride, should be totally put away.

That stated daily prayer in our respective families should always be maintained, with the regular reading of the Holy Scripture, at which all should be present.

That we should lay aside jesting and all evil words which are not convenient; but making our conversation to be for the good of all, and their building up in the most holy faith.

That we should not be yoked together with unbelievers in marriage, business or society, so that our liberty of conscience should be in any wise restrained.

TO HOPE SUBSCRIBERS.

On and after January 1st, 1887, the Hope will be sent to subscribers as follows:

Single copies, per year . . . . . 50c.
Over 4 copies and under 10, to one address, each . . . . . 40c.
Ten copies and over, to one address, each . . . 35c.

Subscriptions to be paid in advance unless otherwise arranged for by subscribers.

ZION'S HOPE

Is published every Saturday by the Church of Christ, at Lamoni, Iowa. Single copies, per year, 50c; packages of four to ten 40c; packages of over ten 35c.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Not vainly did old poets tell,
Nor vainly did old genius paint
God's great and crowning miracle,—
The hero and the saint!
For even in a faithless day,
Can we our sainted ones discern;
And feel, while with them on the way,
Our hearts within us burn."

"STONES OF MEMORIAL."

FAIR and bright, just across the river of Jordan, lay the land of promise; but Moses was dead. Dead in the prime of life, while his eye was not dim, neither his physical strength abated; but he had laid his hands upon Joshua, and Joshua was full of the spirit of wisdom, and to him God said: "Moses my servant is dead; now therefore arise, go over this Jordan, thou and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel."

Then Joshua commanded his officers to pass through all the encampment of the children of Israel, and say to them, "Prepare for crossing the Jordan and entering into the promised land within three days." History records that this crossing occurred during the "annual swelling of the Jordan," which occurs in the spring, when not only do the waters rise high within the banks, but often overflow the banks themselves, spreading out into the country. Again, upon the third day the officers went through the host and commanded the people: "When you see the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, and the priests the Levites bearing it, then ye shall remove from your place and go after it."

Then Joshua commanded them saying: "Take twelve men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man; and it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon a heap." Then the priests took up the ark of the covenant, and as soon as their feet touched the waters at the brink of the smooth river, the waters of the river parted, and those which were above them stood up like a high wall, and those below them flowed on to the sea, leaving the dry ground upon which all the people of Israel passed over, while the priests with the ark remained in the middle of the bed of the river, with their feet on dry ground.

And now the people are all over, and from the green borders of the river they turn back to watch the ark and the priests which bear it. But they are still standing in the midst of Jordan, and the ark with them. Then while they watch and wait, the command of the Lord comes to Joshua, saying: "Take you twelve men out of the people, out of every tribe a man, and command ye them, saying: Take you hence out of the midst of Jordan, out of the place where the priests' feet stood firm, twelve stones; and ye shall carry them over with you, and leave them in the lodging place where ye shall lodge this night."

Then Joshua called the twelve men whom he had prepared, out of every tribe a man, and told them to pass over before the ark of the Lord, and take up every man a stone upon his shoulder, according to the number of the tribes of Israel, and they took them to the place where they lodged the first night, and these stones were for a memorial unto the children of Israel forever. Joshua also set up twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, where the feet of the priests who bore the ark of the covenant had stood. Then when all this had been done, and the priests had passed over, as soon as their feet touched the dry land upon the other side of Jordan, "the waters of Jordan returned unto their place, and flowed over all the banks, as they did before: and they pitched the stones in Gilgal, and encamped there that night." And Joshua said to the children of Israel: "When your children shall ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean these stones? Then you shall let your children know, saying, Israel came over this Jordan on dry land. For the Lord your God dried up the waters of Jordan from before you until you were passed over, as the Lord your God did to the Red Sea, which he dried up from before us until we were gone over, that all the people of the earth might know the hand of the Lord, that it is mighty, that you might fear the Lord your God forever."

Before how many swelling Jordans have thousands of Latter Day Israel stood, when the waves have divided, and the waters below have been cut off from the waters staid above until their feet have passed over in safety? But where are the stones of memorial for our little ones, and that all the people of the earth might know the hand of the Lord that it is mighty? Was it a light matter which should cause God to issue the command to Joshua, not only to keep all the people standing there in waiting, but also to detain the sacred ark of the covenant and the priests of the Lord who bore it, until from the midst of the bed of Jordan twelve stones of memorial should be taken? And, we not only ask this question, but also call your attention to the fact that the men who bore them had been selected for the purpose (out of every tribe a man) before they essayed to cross the river.

Beloved Saints, we know that in the past fifty years God has wrought many mighty works in our midst; but we ask again, where are our stones of memorial? Can it be pleasing to God that we should never declare that which he has done for us? We know he has commanded his people that they should not "boast of mighty works;" but boasting is the outgrowth of a vain pride, while declaring the power and goodness of God is but rendering to his name the praise due him. The psalmist says: "Sing unto the Lord, bless his name; show forth his salvation from day to day. Declare his glory among the heathen; his wonders among all people."

Stones of memorial we must have, and from whence shall come the men who shall bear them upon their shoulders? Our church publishing house does not contain a single volume for the young. How long shall this state of things continue? Only the willing hearts are wanting, for there are dozens, yes, hundreds and thousands of people now living, who, if they would, could testify to these wonders among all people; and there are others who could honor God by furnishing the means to publish these testimonies that they might go into book form and be to our little ones, "Stones of Memorial," and testimonies to the entire world. Would God that he might raise up as good a friend to our sons and daughters as he has raised up to the world in Bro. Peters. One, aye more than one, who like this generous brother, would not be afraid to use the substance God has loaned them, for the advancement of the Master's work! There is power in prayer. Who will pray the Lord that such ones may be forthcoming? Will not the petition go up from the heart of every mother in Zion until the Lord answers?

Sister John Scott, of Lamoni, Iowa, will forward Herald to the party recently mentioned in the "Column." Will all who have kindly offered so to do, please note this and also accept our thanks.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Mary H. Raymond, Wickes, Mont.....	2 00
Sr. Maggie Kennedy, Hutchinson, Col.....	50
John, Earl & Ira Kennedy, Hutchinson, Col.....	50
Sr. Annie Anderson, Lamoni, Ia.....	23
Sr. Melissa S. Merrick, Dow City, Ia.....	25
Srs. Mary, Maggie and Emily Thomas, What Cheer, Ia.....	56
Srs. I. and E. Hotchkiss, What Cheer, Ia.....	50
Sr. Maria J. Hoadley, What Cheer, Ia.....	23
Bro. John S. Lawton, Boston, Mass.....	1 50
Sr. Esther Taylor, Valley, Neb.....	1 50
Sr. A. Ray, Henderson, Idaho.....	35
Sr. Annie Nelson, Montpitter, Idaho.....	1 00
Sr. Elizabeth Ford, Earling, Ia.....	1 00
Sr. Mary E. Hunt, Manteno, Ia.....	1 00
Sr. Mary A. Jenkins, Manteno, Ia.....	60
Sr. R. P. Peterson, Manteno, Ia.....	1 00
Sr. Cynthia Perry, Manteno, Ia.....	1 00
Sr. Celestine Rush, Hepner, Oregon.....	7 00
Sr. Mary Hiatt, Iowa City, Ia.....	1 00
A Friend, Iowa City, Ia.....	1 00

LAMONI, IOWA, October 5th.

MAKE ROOM FOR THE BOYS.

WE hear a great deal in these days about the increase of home opportunities and the development of home talent; but as we glance over the magazines and newspaper articles devoted to this subject, we almost invariably find that the hints for domestic culture are for the express benefit of the girls.

Where are the boys of the household to come in? Are they of no account in the plans for home education? Or are the boys so well developed as to morals and manners, so perfectly able to find congenial employment and suitable amusements for themselves, that nobody gives them a thought? We are obliged to confess that the most of the boys whom we know do not come under this class. They are bright, honest, manly boys; but we find that they need a little advice and help once in a while, a little encouragement, a little praise and the manifestation of a little appreciative and sympathetic interest in their tasks and recreations, just as the girls, whom we know, need the same.

There is the Speedwell's family, for example. Everybody in town knows the Speedwells. They are a genial and cultivated people whom it is a pleasure to know. The privileged guest at the Speedwell mansion will be likely, almost any evening, to find the family in the cozy, well-lighted library. The Hon. Mr. Speedwell reclines luxuriously in his easy chair as he reads his Daily Tribune. The Speedwell mamma occupies the place of honor at the table, as is her cheerfully accorded right and privilege. Hellen, the eldest daughter, is also comfortably ensconced, absorbed in her library book; while Marion sits conveniently near the light, with her silks and flosses spread out around her, while she works upon a strip of plush some marvel in Kensington embroidery.

Presently Tom, the nine-year-old, approaches the table with mucilage bottle and postage-stamp album in his hands. "Oh, Tom," ejaculates Mamma Speedwell, "don't bring your mucilage to the table again; you have just about ruined the cloth already."

It was a new table cover of maroon felt; and, sure enough, there were two or three little soiled rings upon it, just the size of the mucilage bottle. "It is impossible to get them out," sighs mamma.

"Oh, I'll spread out a newspaper," replies Tom encouragingly. But at this moment an unlucky accident occurs. Over goes the mucilage; the sticky fluid runs into the knots of gay embroidery silk; there is a scream, a scramble; and when peace is restored, the embroidery is going on as successfully as before; but the postage-enthusiast has laid aside his collection and there are no more stamps to be pasted in this evening. Half an hour later, brother Tom sits with a disgusted expression upon his usually serene and hopeful face. "What's the trouble, my son?" asks papa Speedwell, good-naturedly.

"Oh, nothing! Only I can't finish my desk, and its of no use to try."

"But a boy shouldn't get discouraged when he has undertaken anything of that kind. Persevere is the word. Don't give up at trifles."

"Persevere! Well, I would if I had some tools that were worth a pin. This jack-knife that uncle John gave me is the only decent tool I own."

"Why, my dear," interrupted the mother, "where are all those nice tools which came in the set you had last Christmas?"

"Pshaw! those baby things! They were nothing but toys anyway. Planes that won't plane anything, and saws that won't saw anything, don't suit me! I want a regular set of carpenter's tools, that are made to use and are good for something." Mrs. Speedwell looks enquiringly at her husband.

"Why, Tom," replies the father, looking up a moment from his newspaper, such a set of tools would cost any where from ten to twenty-five dollars. It would be a great extravagance."

Tom glances at the pretty work in his sister's hands, the material for which particular piece of embroidery, we happen to know, cost exactly six dollars and seventy-five cents. Tom knows this too; but then, the case is "different." The work which Marion is doing not only serves to keep her entertained and happy, but it cultivates her taste and will teach her to do more artistic and valuable work by and by. But Tom says he never heard any of these arguments advanced when a boy wanted a good set of tools to work with.

"It is very much like Jack white's photographic camera," Tom said to his mother in an outburst of boyish grief, the next day. "The Whites spend any amount of money on Jack's sister Molly's drawing lessons and the materials for what she calls paintings; but when Jack wanted a camera to make pictures that are pictures—why that is the hight of extravagance and not to be thought of!" And Tom's sincere friend, the author of this paper, sympathizes with him in his complaint; and also fails to see why a part of the money spent so freely in many families, in the cultivation of artistic, musical, or any other worthy taste or aspirations on the part of the girls, might not just as advantageously be spent for the gratification and culture of the boys of the family.

Again, one day, Miss Hellen Speedwell was heard to remark, "Mother, I wish you would see that the boys are out of the way to-night, for the Dickinson girls are coming in to look over some engravings and select costumes for the charity fair next week."

"But, my dear," replied Mrs. Speedwell, "what possible harm can the boys do?"

"Oh, no harm; but they are right in the way. They are all elbows and feet—and so rough and rude——"

"Not rude, Hellen."

"Well, rough, any way. Tom is; you know what a commotion he always stirs up; and I think Tim's manners might be improved."

"That's so," said Tim, who chanced to enter at this opportune or inopportune moment. "And it does improve a fellow's manners to send him out into the kitchen or up into the attic. The society one meets there is very elevating. Then a fellow has such a good chance to practice his accomplishments. You just ought to see Tom and me shake hands with the pump, and bow and scrape in front of that little cracked looking-glass up in the garret; and when we can walk across a beam three times without knocking down a cobweb, why, then we think we are expert enough to get into the parlor without knocking over or stepping on Lou Dickinson's finery. We walked across three times yesterday without hitting anything. We did, honest, though!" added Tim, affecting to accept the scornful glance on his sister's face for a look of incredulity.

"I believe you, Tim," said Mrs. Speedwell; and to-night you and Tom may go out and make some calls with your father and me."

"Thank you," replied Tim, seeming at once through this weak attempt at a compromise, "we don't care to make grown-up calls. We prefer the pump handle and the cracked looking-glass."

These fragments of conversation in a family—where the parents are striving to do their duty by their sons and daughters, and where the children have the name of being "well brought up," show that the friends of the boys are entitled to a hearing; and the inquiry suggested by honest-hearted Tim is worthy of consideration. How can we expect a boy to become agreeable and polished in his manners if he is not permitted to enjoy the social privileges accorded to his sisters.

How shall a boy know what to do with his hands and feet in company, if he is allowed no opportunity to practice the rules laid down by his mamma and his pretty, graceful sisters. He may be able to walk a beam with the greatest precision and yet not cross a floor without stumbling, in the presence of two or three critical young ladies.

A gentleman at heart is a gentleman always, whether cultivated by social intercourse or not. Still we all prefer the polished diamond to the diamond in the rough. Courtesy and good breeding must be learned at home. Let us, then, not banish the boys from the parlor because callers are expected; but rather let them feel that they have a share in the social, as well as in the other privileges of the house.

It is a fatal mistake to give a boy the idea that he must find his amusement and entertainment off somewhere by himself. Boys do not stay by themselves. They are unmistakably gregarious in their habits. They will surely find company; and, if left to themselves, perhaps not such as their parents would choose for them. Let them therefore bring the things which most interest them into the family living-room. Let them feel that they are entitled to a place at the table; that their parents and their sisters also, are interested in their books, their experiments and their games. Above all things never let a boy believe that he is "in the way." If a boy has such a suspicion, he will naturally be ready to take himself out of the way.

The simplest and most effectual means for keeping boys out of bad company is to make them understand that they are truly welcome at home.

Selected by I. F. Kingsbury.

CABOOL, Mo., Jan. 9th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I write a few selections on pride. We read in the Book of Alma, "Behold, are ye stripped of pride? I say unto you, if ye are not, ye are not prepared to meet God."—3d chap., 4th par. The great inequality that we often perceive in the production of the mind of the same person, is not in the least to be wondered at; for as our body is composed of the elements, so it varies with the weather, and changes oftener than the moon; so the soul, though in itself immutable, yet is connected with, and compelled to act in and through these corporeal organs, which are always changing, must of necessity have its power of acting more or less impeded; must rise and fall, like the mercury in the glass, according to their degree of clearness. Hence the mind is one hour pure as ethereal air, the next, foul as the thickest fog. Since the powers of the mind do thus depend upon the organs of the body, which vary like the wind, where is the certainty of human wit? Where the boaster of human reason? This fickleness of the mortal frame, this instability of human wisdom, should teach us humility, and abase our pride. There is surely no passion whatsoever so universal in the human species as pride, yet none so unreasonable; it is indeed the very foundation of folly, "I wisdom dwell with prudence, and find out knowledge of witty inventions. The fear of the Lord is to hate evil: pride, and arrogancy"—Prov.—8: 12, 13.

If we look through the whole human race, we shall see them all complaining of some want or other, but where shall we find one who complains of the want of reason? We are too apt to complain of something which we do not really need. The pride of reason is indeed so great, that it is more ambitious of being esteemed wise than good; yet what can more plainly prove our folly? for who was ever at once both wicked and wise? Wisdom and wickedness can be no more united than truth and falsehood; when one enters the other must retire.

Of all human excellencies reason is undoubtedly the greatest; but there are some whom nature has indeed favored with superior powers, who are too apt to look down with a sort of contempt on their fellow-creatures of inferior parts; yet if they would but impartially look into, and consider themselves, they would surely confess they can have nothing in nature to boast of as really their own. They that have most wisdom shall ever be most humble; they will acknowledge, that whatever qualifications they may be blessed with, the honor of them is only due to their Creator. If my watch goes well, shall it boast itself, or is the maker to be praised? How much more the Creator, who not only put this human machinery together, but made all the materials also! He that arrogates to himself honor, on account of any excellence whatever is a thief, and robs his Creator. The royal Psalmist, when he blessed and praised the Lord for his people's offering so willingly towards erecting the temple, most truly says, "But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer so willingly after this sort? for all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee." We should look upon reason as an intrinsic jewel, not liable to be lost, like wealth; yet how often, like the shrivelled branches of a tree, whose vessels being obstructed, wither for want of their nutritive sap, is this vaunted jewel lost by a paralytic blow? Now, indeed, how often has the vain pride of reason, and the self-assumed honor of it, degraded human nature to a brute, and procured the just punishment of Nebuchadnezzar? Pride is the parent of evil; and, of all the passions, is the most odious to our Creator, and most hurtful to ourselves; it makes us rob him of his due praise, and ourselves of all content; for we will ever meet with some poor Mordecia. Pride makes us look at our own merits through a magnifying optic, at others through a contracting glass; and though it blinds us to our own follies, yet it makes us pry into the frailties of others with eagles' eyes; and according to the word of perfect wisdom, it makes us "see the mote in another's eye, but not the beam in our own." Pride and reason can never accord; they are in nature opposite, and as contrary as love and hatred, and as incompatible as light and darkness. There is, however, a just, necessary, and well founded ambition which we should ever carefully distinguish from pride. To delight in, and take every opportunity of exerting all the powers we are possessed of, towards honoring our Creator, and serving our fellow-creatures, is not only reasonable, but the highest and noblest use to which human reason can be applied; it is indeed the very end for which it was given. When we see a man or woman exerting his or her powers to these purposes, nothing would be more unjust to them, or more detrimental to society, than to attribute them to their pride. We are too apt to judge of others by ourselves; when we see another possess such qualifications as would make us proud, we, without further evidence, conclude them to be so. Superior excellence always attracts envious eyes, and what virtue will not envy construe into vice? That ambition can never be justly blamed that produces, or endeavors to produce, public good; but some are so envious that they can not see any shining talent in another without snarling at it like dogs barking at the moon. To curb our pride, and check our unjust censures, we should all look into, and study that living and most instructive book, our own heart; for nothing will so effectually suppress our pride, or correct our censures, as to know ourselves. He that most clearly perceives his own imperfections will be the last to seek out and condemn those of others; he will be, like those who brought the woman taken in adultery, self-convicted, and steal away in silence. Man's only true way to wisdom is to know himself. He that would be esteemed truly wise, must first find out and amend his own fault; for what regard will be paid to the lips of him who contradicts them by his life? who will mind the praises of freedom from the mouth of one who chooses to be himself a slave? or who would be directed in his way by one that can not see his own? It is certain, that besides the various external impulsions of the element, which man can no ways avoid, he has within himself so many false friends, so many flattering courtiers, called passions, who paint in his mind such pleasing, delusive images, and draw such an artful shade over his reason, that renders it very difficult for him to see himself in an impartial light; yet however difficult it is, it may be done; this mist of the mind may be cleared up; these false friends may be unmasked, and these mental flatterers detected and condemned by resolutely exerting our reason, and trying them at her unbiased bar. The best of mankind will, by a thorough and impartial inspection into themselves, by carefully viewing the mirror of their minds, find failings sufficient to abate their pride.

Self-knowledge is, of all attainments whatsoever, the most useful to ourselves, and most beneficial to others; it not only teaches us to think humbly of ourselves, and to amend our faults, but, like heaven, to pity and forgive the frailties of others; it teaches us, whatsoever degree of reason we may be blessed with, not to be puffed up with pride, but to consider it as a talent entrusted to us, of which we must render a just account; not to assume the least honor of it to ourselves, but to act as becomes reasonable creatures, and to give all the glory to him from whom we received the power.

As ever a true believer in the one faith,
MARY A. ATWELL.

BENNETT, Iowa, Sept. 26th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I have often seen a request in the Home Column for the young Saints to write, but as yet only a few have complied with it. Perhaps a good many of them are like myself. We feel timid in attempting to write; but perhaps I can interest you for a short time by giving you an account of a conference I was privileged to attend. On the morning of the 8th of this month, my father, mother and myself started for Illinois, as the conference was held near Millersburg. We traveled in our own conveyance; the distance was forty miles and we enjoyed the ride very much. We reached the end of our journey about five o'clock; and such a good time as we had during conference! The only thing preventing us from having a perfect season of enjoyment was, there was considerable sickness among the Saints and one death—a child of Bro. Ezra Bryant's. This, of course, would cast a shadow over us, but notwithstanding we had a most enjoyable time, and one long to be remembered by the writer. We listened to some excellent sermons; and also to some very good advice to the young, which I wish more could have heard. While there I formed a good many new acquaintances among the Saints and visited, and met some already formed.

I do sincerely hope that we may soon be gladdened by receiving the Autumn Leaves into our homes. How nice and beneficial it will be for us young people. The older members have their paper, the Herald, and the smaller ones theirs, the Hope. Not but what I think we young folks should read both of these, for there is much good to be learned from each, but the Autumn Leaves will be more adapted to us. We have had a taste of what we may have if we all do our best. It was something all of us should read, for I fear too many of us are indulging in that useless and bad habit—novel reading. It is a habit one cultivates, and the more novels you read the more you want to read. I think they are very injurious to young people, and another thing, they are apt to draw person's minds and thoughts from the church papers and books. They may think, Well, while I have a few spare moments I will finish reading this novel. I will read the bible, Herald, Hope, Book of Mormon, etc., on Sundays, when I must not read novels. I am sorry to say that I know this by past experience, but I hope I may, with our Father's aid, overcome this one evil, and when we have completely mastered one wrong we will find it much easier to overcome another.

I will close for this time and resign my place to abler ones than I. I desire the prayers of all the Saints that I may live faithful to the end.

Ever your sister in the true faith,

VINNIE RUSSELL.

CAMERON, Ont., Sept. 25th.

Dear Sisters: We have had a visit from brethren J. H. Lake and W. J. Smith who preached some able sermons which were food to our hungry souls. They are now in Haliburton county, sixty miles from here, amongst the poor, and, I hope, the honest in heart. We have a place in that part of the country. My husband and one daughter and one son are there, so the elders are not quite alone, May God bless them. We expect them back in a short time, but I am afraid they will not stay long with us. I am forty-six years of age; have six sons and two daughters. I have quite a responsibility resting me, as my husband is away I have a double part to perform. My family are all members of the church, but as they are on the slippery paths of youth, they need a great deal of wise counsel, and I feel my weakness in performing my duty; but God is with me, and an ever present help in trouble. I do feel to thank God for the great desire I have to live a Christian life. I feel to repent every day, and put my dependence upon God.

We take the Heald and it is a welcome visitor every week. I love to read the Mothers' Column; it helps me along. I have read sister Emma Burton's letters in the Herald till I almost think I know her. I feel to thank God for such noble hearted people. May God bless brother and sister Burton in their labor of love.

I beg an interest in the prayers of all Saints, that I may prove faithful; that when our Redeemer comes to number up his jewels we may know each other in the sweet bye and bye.

J. H. BRADEN.

A NEW ORLEANS millionaire had for one of the rules of his life, "never to consider anything so trifling as not to deserve notice." He was quick to see that such a principle was at the root of both character and success. He could not accumulate wealth without rigid care of the fractions and pennies, nor be symmetrical, strong and helpful, and disregard the smaller courtesies and motives in the daily life. The work that wins notice and endures is that which has in it patient, pains-taking and conscientious regard for the slightest details.

Selected Poetry.

BE CAREFUL HOW YOU SPEAK OF OTHERS.

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember, those in homes of glass
Should never throw a stone.

If we have nothing else to do
Than talk of those who sin;
'Tis better to commence at home,
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.

Some may have faults, (and who has not?)
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan,
I find it works full well;
To try my own defects to cure,
Ere others' faults I tell.

And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Then let us all, when we begin
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
To those who better know.

Remember, blunders sometimes, like
Our chickens, "roost at home;"
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.—Sel.

Correspondence.

SANTA MARIA, Cal., Sept. 20th.

Dear Herald:—Soon after writing from Santa Ana the tent meetings were started, and I assisted Bro. Mills in prosecuting them. We had excellent encouragement; large attendance all the time; and sometimes the tent was full and the walk in front of the tent packed with attentive listeners. Excellent order prevailed, while liberty, full and free, was granted the speakers. We distributed hundreds of tracts, which were eagerly sought after. I remained until nineteen sermons had been delivered, and reluctantly left wishing I could spend all my time with the tent. If properly conducted and supported, the tent will prove a grand success. Special effort ought to be made in that direction.

It is unfortunate that Bro. Mills is unwell in this emergency. The cause must feel his loss if his labors are suspended only temporarily. After a few days spent at home I set out for the purpose of working my way northward to be present at the San Benito and Oakland conferences. Sunday the 11th preached in Los Angeles at 11 o'clock, then in company with Bro. E. J. French rode twelve miles to Downey, where the tent was located. I spoke in the tent at three p. m., and also at night. Returned to Los Angeles in time to address the Saints at the residence of Bro. Badham the night of the 13th. The 14th, while at the depot waiting for the train to bear me on to Santa Barbara, I met our genial brother John Eames of Wyoming. He is sorely afflicted with asthma, but is zealous as ever in the cause. May God bless him greatly. At Santa Barbara I was met by Bro. John Houk of this place, who came to bring me here.

We called on sister A. M. Cahoon and her daughter, sister Mellie, and found them though entirely alone, so far as Saints are concerned, but strong in the faith and not ashamed to defend the cause. They are the kind who assist to move the cause wherever they are. Invoking the blessings of God upon them we journeyed to this place, which we reached on the 16th. The night of the 16th we stopped at Santa Yuez where we met Bro. E. Lander who informed us that we were expected to preach at the school house. Soon we heard whispers of division among the people, some declaring we should not preach, and some declaring we should. The time came and we spoke to an attentive and fair sized audience without molestation. Since arriving here I have spoken twice in Cat Canyon and once in the Martin School house. Will speak to-night in the last named place. To-morrow night and the next in the Presbyterian church in Santa Maria. Bro. Houk and Lander have been working up the interest here, showing a zeal worthy of imitation. There is a good field here which will produce fruit if cultivated wisely. I am enjoying all the liberty and spiritual comfort that I could reasonably ask for or expect, and my soul is led to praise and glorify God for his goodness and mercy.

Of the missionary force, Bro. D. S. Mills is doing all he can, but is prevented much by lack of physical strength. Bro. Thomas Daley is laboring in his mines, but uses the Sabbath day in presenting the word, and is accomplishing good. Bro. H. L. Holt is again in the field and I suppose aiding in tent meetings. Bro. D. L. Harris is also with the tent, and thinks of remaining permanently in the field. Bro. Wm. Gibson is laboring in San Bernardino and vicinity. Bro. Albert Haws is still contending earnestly for the faith in Oregon. Bro. J. R. Cook is detained at home for a season. Bro. J. R. Badham is engaged in business in Los Angeles, but his unremitting energy keeps the interests of the church moving there also.

Bro. E. J. French, though not under general appointment, has been nobly helping in tent work. In fact we are indebted principally to his efforts for the existence of the tent. I read with interest the news of the progress of the work everywhere, and feel encouraged. I thank God for this great work. My whole soul is engaged in it.

Hopefully,

HEMAN C. SMITH.

BOSTON, Mass., September 28th.

Bro. Joseph:—Our conference at Providence, Rhode Island, was a great success—looking toward the future. Brethren Briggs and Sheehy were with us, having just returned from Nova Scotia. Brother Briggs is filled with the spirit of his office and calling, and is doing solid, safe and permanent work for the Church of Jesus Christ. Exclusive local rule, state sovereignty, state rights, are no more safe doctrines in the kingdom of God than in a republic of men's device. Unfortunately there be some who, while always talking about "kingdoms," are the first to despise dominion. I feel well in spirit and hopeful for the future of the church, but am admonished that faith (not credulity) and firmness, as well as gentleness will be needful on the part of church officers to repel the insidious approach of the enemy.

In the faith,

MYRON H. BOND.

SANTA ANA, California, Sep. 25th.

Bro. Dancer:—Our town of Santa Ana is filling up very fast and real estate is booming. There are Saints enough in town to organize into quite a branch, and more coming every few days. I believe that this fall and winter will be a good time for the Saints to sell out here, and if you do not have too much of a "boom" in "the regions round about," for us to come east and buy. I understand that property is very high all around Independence, so it does not look much like now returning "with songs of joy to build up the waste places of Zion." I have a small farm here (43 acres) that is bringing me in $750 per year, rent. I would like to sell or exchange for Independence property—town property preferred.

Yours in bonds,

R. M. DUNGAN.

LOCKHARTVILLE, N. S., Sept. 25th.

Dear Herald:—It will be gratifying to some to hear that the gospel work in Nova Scotia has made another move in the progressive line and the outlook quite cheering, and for Nova Scotia encouraging in the extreme. No wonderful manifestations of good will on the part of the opposition, as a whole, but simply the crumbling away of bigotry and prejudice in places where the word has been preached, evidence that it will eventually become victorious. Brethren Briggs and Sheehy whom the Saints have been anxiously waiting for put in an appearance about the last of August, and was joyfully received, but very reluctantly parted with some few days ago. There is no question but their visit was productive of very much good. The difference between the treatment they received and that which celebrated the visit of Bro. Joseph Burton and even Bro. Sheehy about three years ago, was quite remarkable. Buildings that had been closed against them were now freely opened and filled with good, attentive audiences notably at the Hillisdale School house. It was cheering indeed during conference held in the Saints Chapel in Rawdon, to see the people flocking in, filling the house to its utmost capacity, listening with profound attention to the words which fell with power from the lips of the elders. Six were added to the Newport branch by baptism, and many friends were made to the cause, even members of other churches predicting that the day would not be long coming when the Latter Day Saints would be the leading church in the township. At Lakelands near Parsboro, the scene of Bro. Sheehy's contest with Rev. McLain of unpleasant memory, they were also greeted with open doors and full houses, men going six miles to attend the meetings. So good was the feeling there that some who were quite hard at first came to the front with tangible marks of courtesy, even the passing of the veritable "orthodox" contribution box. These are places where work has been done.

At Port Gravelle, the home of Bro. Layton, the same old spirit was at work. Bro. Briggs, speaking of it, remarked that the treatment he received there "was identical with that received at the hands of the Mormons of Utah." "By their fruits ye shall know them." I wonder which people would feel the most complimented by the remark! However, I presume it is only a matter of time when they too will fall into line with the other hard places, fight a while, then try to freeze it out, and finally accept it.

One incident I ought to mention.—At the last meeting of the conference, when the resolution concerning the sending of an elder to Nova Scotia for a year was being put to vote, invitation was extended to the whole audience to vote. Although the house was crowded with people of all the different denominations, not one hand was raised against the proposition. Bro. Evans was mentioned as the one likely to be sent. Let him come! Now is the time, apparently, when the most can be accomplished with the least effort. This applies to the places that are opened up only. No doubt every town and village will be stoutly contested. I want to say one thing to the brethren of Massachusetts. It is to your interest that an abundance of labor should be bestowed upon Nova Scotia, from a diplomatic standpoint. Think of the thousands of Nova Scotians that go to that country every year! If they were all Saints, what then! Do you see the point!

Praying for the welfare of Zion. Yours in the faith, HOLMES J. DAVISON.

No. 11, Cundy St., Walkley,
SHEFFIELD, England, Sep. 19th.

Dear Herald:—With joy in my heart I endeavor to pen a few simple words. I thank God that I have been privileged to embrace such a soul comforting faith as the one which Jesus established amongst his disciples. My only regret is that I did not hear it sooner, for I can see where I might have had the burden which has oppressed me, removed. I have passed through sore affliction; but since I obeyed Christ's commandments my burden has been lighter. "Bear ye one another's burdens," and so fulfill the perfect law. Oh how I rejoice that I have a claim on the prayers of the children of Zion. The Spirit of the Lord says that if I remain faithful it shall be well with my soul. Pray to this end, dear brethren and sisters, and he who knoweth the hearts of all men will reward. "If ye have done it unto one of the least of my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

We are laboring for the Master, and the prospects are good for an ingathering of his sheep. He sends such a bountiful supply of food for our souls that we have enough and to spare for our fellow man. I have learned to know who is my neighbor. The Lord is extending the Saints understanding and bringing about his purposes in a marvelous way. Press on, dear brethren and sisters; for the victory is ours.

I remain yours in the bonds of peace,
W. SHARPE.

SANTA ANA, California, Sept. 22d.

Bro. Joseph: I have seen mentioned in the Herald that the Saints who are scattered among the gentiles are anxious for the gospel to be preached, and that the calls come continually for preaching, but that there are certain ones that they wish to come and preach. Now we have plenty of elders, good able men, that can preach the first principles of the gospel by the Spirit and can point men to the Lamb of God, who are hindered on account of the saints putting their trust in some system of men, instead of in the power of God that has been promised to those whom God calls and sends forth to declare the word. It is not very agreeable for one young in the work who is trying to call souls to see what they must do to be saved in God's kingdom, to have the saints tell him how some can preach and that the church should send such, always pointing to a few they know to be able men in and of themselves. No, saints, if you could realize the sacrifice some elders make, I know it would be different. You are as anxious for the work to be accomplished as we are, and if you would stop and think for a moment you must know the work is in the Lord's hand, and that when he calls one to preach the gospel he has no need to ask whether that one is able or not. He knows man and what he is before he calls him. It would be better, saints, when one comes preaching the word, if we do not think him as elegant as some others, to hold him up by our faith and prayers that God may bless him. I for one don't know of any of our elders who are trying to fill their calling who can not preach the principles of the gospel plain enough and good enough to save any who honestly obeys. God always has called those that by some have been considered weak, but were strong in the faith of our Lord and Savior. I know of places where none of our local elders would go just because some of the saints live there, and they want some one that can preach something different from the first principles of the gospel. I haven't written this on account of myself, but what I have seen lately.

A. W. THOMPSON.

OXFORD, Idaho, Sept. 28th.

Bro. Joseph Smith: It has been so long since I have written anything for the Herald that I hardly know what to say, and more especially after reading reports of the success of others in their different fields of labor. While I read them with gladness, I have nothing from my field to offer in return that is calculated to give much cheer and encouragement to others. I rejoice in the great restoration, and thank the Lord that my lot has been cast with such a noble band of honest, true, and faithful workers as are enrolled in the Reorganized Church, willing to sacrifice all for the cross of Christ. I esteem it an honor to be numbered with them and be counted worthy to share the burdens and toils that fall upon those who proclaim "Peace on earth: good will to man," that they may turn the erring and wandering ones to the standard of truth and to the knowledge of the Just One.

There are many sunny skies and pleasant experiences enjoyed by the missionary; but yet so many dark and lowering clouds, that he is made to realize there are trials for him to overcome. And only a trust in him who called him can give the desired aid to still press on amidst discouragements seemingly on every hand.

Since the spring conference I have traveled much and labored as best I could. I can not say all is well in this field, for there is a great lack of spirituality and of that deep and hallowed love that should adorn the child of God. Of late I have felt to exclaim, "O for a closer walk with God."

In this branch the enemy has sowed tares. Saints, although admonished, forget to bridle the tongue and fail to remember the admonition that, "Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue, keepeth his soul from troubles." From present appearances I think we will be able to set matters right.

Bro. J. C. Clapp has done a good work in Deer Lodge valley, Montana; and so has Bro. Anderson in Utah. Both have baptized a number.

I find in some settlements a more liberal feeling on the part of the people than before. I was in Heber City July 24th, a day celebrated by the Utah people as "pioneer day." President Hatch invited us to join with them in the pleasures of the hour and feel at home. Bro. William Aird had arranged for me to speak in the school house on the 26th; and when I asked Pres. Hatch to announce my appointment he said, "Not in the school house, but in the hall." (Their regular meeting place). So I occupied there. The president with several of the leading men of the place were present. At the close he told me that any time I came the hall was or would be free for me to use. I felt to love the man. He dealt kindly with me. Others have allowed us school houses, but none have been so free, kind, and generous as President Hatch. I pray the Lord to bless him forever. He would make a number one "Josephite."

The good Saints have furnished me with team. Bro. George W. Hickman gave me one animal, and Bro. U. Coleman and Christian Larson gave me the other one. I have thus been able to reach places I could not otherwise have reached.

I called at Bloomington and made a short visit with Bro. and Sr. Hart and Sr. Alice their daughter. I felt in my heart to ask the Lord to remember them in loving kindness. Their sands of life are almost run out. Not many more years may be allotted them, but their rest is prepared. May it be with the just.

I visited Thomas Fork, fifteen miles from Montpelier, with Bro. A. J. Layland, and while I preached the gospel of peace to the people there on the Sunday night some ungodly person or persons stripped my harness of straps and rings, and for "a joke" changed the hind wheel of the buggy to the front. When I complained a little on our way home, Bro. Layland proposed I should pray for them. I told him I did not propose to pray for thieves. I may have been wrong, but I feel quite confident any prayer I could then have offered would not have availed much. I fear it would have been after the order of David's in Psalm 109. But I felt better after a little while.

I ordained Bro. Layland to the office of an elder while at Montpelier, and after leaving there I visited the Saints at Soda Springs. Bro. Bowman was poorly, but around. I drove from there over to Blackfoot, twenty miles, held two meetings and baptized two. Had a pleasant time with the people there. On my way from Soda Springs here I fell in with Mr. Hoops in Gentile valley and stopped all night with him. They were good to me. He took W. H. Kelley in when he was in the Bear Lake country. Both him and wife remember Joseph the Secr and his family. We had a pleasant talk about the past and present.

I shall try and be in the city by October 6th and see how the Spirit moves. I shall return to Malad City by October 15th to attend the conference there. Bro. John Lewis has done some labor at Blackfoot and other places in his district. I have good words from Bro. John Condit of Malta, Cassia county, Idaho. Bro. J. C. Clapp is preparing to start to Kentucky soon. I very much regret to lose his service this winter, but trust it will be all well.

With the Utah people on record now against polygamy, we look for early developments when Congress shall convene and the Utah Legislature is in session. If we make no converts, with God's help and blessing we shall stand in defense of the right and Zion's weal.

R. J. ANTHONY.

CREOLA, Ohio, Sept. 15th.

Dear Herald:—Our district conference is over, and we feel strengthened to continue to fight the good fight. Conference met at Vale's Mills in Vinton county. There is a branch of sixty-eight members, most of them earnest, zealous Saints. A few short years ago not a Latter Day Saint lived in Vinton county; but now right where persecution was highest, we have this large branch, and many more interested. We were strengthened by the presence of brethren W. H. Kelley and G. A. Blakeslee. On Sunday, August 28th, there was the largest crowd that had ever met at Vale's Mills; all interested in the sermon preached to them by Bro. Kelley. Over a thousand people met in the little grove to hear our faith explained. Bro. Kelley had good liberty in his sermon, and I think much prejudice was removed.

On Saturday night Bro. Blakeslee preached on the temporal law of the church. The Saints as a rule had never heard it in the light in which it was presented by him. Some of them received the law gladly and set about making preparations to obey it. Outsiders, some intelligent ones, thought it the best system for the raising of temporal means that they had ever heard of. God is its author, why not? Many are interested in the doctrine, and I hope to see an ingathering of souls in this district ere long.

Bro. Kelley stopped off at Creola with us, and staid a day or so on his way home. He preached here to a small but attentive audience. Bro. James Moler and a soul-sleeper by the name of Davis will measure swords the latter part of October, on the soul question, also the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon. I think this will do us good, as the soul sleepers are our worst enemies here.

Ever praying for Zion's weal, I am yours in the one faith,
A. B. KIRKENDALL.

THE CONFESSION OF A DEIST.

In 1848, I became acquainted with an intelligent Deist by visiting him in affliction. From several conversations I learned somewhat of his history. His father lived and died a Deist; and the son, from his youth up, had read all he could to fortify his mind in Deism. He was conversant with the greatest infidel authors; he had been a diligent attendant on lectures by celebrated advocates of Deism, and thus had become a proficient in deistical views and arguments. In addition to this, he was a clear-headed man with a metaphysical cast of mind. He knew well how to argue on the subject of infidelity. No man could converse with him without being convinced of this. He could easily detect and point out the weak side of an argument brought against his views. He was cool in reasoning, and considerate in his replies.

One day I found him at his work, but in a thoughtful mood of mind. After the usual salutations, he commenced the conversation thus, and I give it as nearly as possible in his own words:

"Mr. F.—, I have been thinking of you, and of myself. I consider you must be a happy man; your religion must make you happy. I have buried two dear children—I have buried them as worms. I believe I shall never see them again, for they will rot and perish as worms; there is something very gloomy in this. But you believe in a resurrection—that you will see your children in another world. This must make you happy. I wish I could believe the Bible as you do."

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

WHICH IS THE PROMISE.

Can Spring be coming? No sign have we
Of the beautiful guest whom we long to see;
Very hard is the frost-locked ground,
Few are the green things yet to be found.
Primroses, violets, where are they?
What is the sign of the sunny day,
When the flowers shall blossom, the birds shall sing,
And life be glad in the reign of Spring?

Can Peace be coming to rule over all?
The terror of war holds men in thrall,
Sounds of battle are in the air,
Unrest and disquiet are everywhere;
Deadly weapons are being wrought,
And some minds cherish a deadly thought,
Few are the signs of the lasting peace
When war and tumult for aye shall cease.

Can Love be coming to be our King?
The love of self is the strongest thing;
A million hands outstretch to take
The best of the world for self's own sake;
The people are eager to work or wait,
To wrest the most that they can from fate,
And there's little leisure for loving deed
Where each is so busy for his own need.

Can Christ be coming to reign on earth?
Where are the signs of the holy mirth,
The glad upspringing of joy and praise
That the thought of His coming well might raise?
Alas! for the sorrow and wickedness
That dwell in the countries which He would bless;
There is no more room for Him now, than when
He came at first in His love for men.

And yet there are signs of the coming Spring.
Here and there is a bold green thing
Pushing its way in some sheltered place,
And lifting up to the sun its face.
Down in the darkness under ground,
Longing, alert, and with hope profound,
The life is waiting; and soon will be
The word received that shall set it free!

And men pray on, though in fear and pain,
That wars may not desolate earth again.
The people are coming from far and wide
To range themselves on the peaceful side.
Slowly but surely we draw to the light,
And they shall be scattered who wish to fight.
Cruelty, hatred, and wrong shall cease,
And some day brothers shall live in peace.

More men are leaving the selfish way,
For love is growing in power to-day.
Oh, not a few, but a mighty host
Are those who do not love self most;
Kind hearts are many, and gentleness
Is seeking and finding the way to bless.
Let us wait awhile we shall have our Spring,
Goodness shall conquer and love be king.

Earth shall grow fair in that sweet Love light,
And then shall vanish the gloom of night.
Christ shall come in His power and grace,
And those who love Him shall see his face.
No storms shall break on that tranquil day,
"Sorrow and sighing shall flee away."
And the heart be at rest in its peaceful home,
Oh, "Come, Lord Jesus, quickly come!"

Sent by WILLIAM GERRARD.

HOW AND WHY I BECAME A SAINT.

I HEAR the choir in the M. E. Church, singing that good old tune "Birmingham," which carries me back to Indiana, to the Concord Lutheran Church. That tune was a favorite with my Lutheran friends. I often feel sorry for them, for many of them are good people and true, and are earnestly striving for that which is just, so far as they are enlightened.

If the patient editors will bear with me, I shall endeavor to explain why I am a member of the Latter Day Saints' Church. My parents were Baptists, (hard shell), and early impressed upon the minds of their children the importance of baptism by immersion; and it seems to me now that if my good mother could have seen all of us baptized, her cup of joy would have been full, although many other things which I now see to be essential, were by her overlooked. I did not unite with the Baptists nor any other denomination in her lifetime, and put it off until I came to Indiana. While teaching a term of school in a small village, the Baptists commenced a "protracted effort" in the same place, and in order to bring it to bear upon me, the family with whom I boarded had the minister stay with them all the time. It was nothing but religion from the time we ate breakfast in the morning, till bedtime at night. A Mr. Sage from Kansas was sent for, and he would roar and stamp his feet and picture the damned in hell in the most horrid and ridiculous manner. But, dear Saints, there was a "something lacking," I hardly knew what, to convince me; and finally they closed their effort without me.

The pastor in charge, Rev. Wright, told my uncle, also a Baptist minister, that if they could get the school teacher they would be satisfied and close the meetings. The good people with whom I boarded told me if I was determined to go to hell I would have to wade there through their prayers; but I didn't go to hell. I then went to Adams county, and had not been there long when the United Brethren started a "protracted effort," and the friends told me unless I got right down before a bench and mourned my sins away, that I would surely go to hell; that I was sinning against light and knowledge for neglecting those glorious privileges which were free and open to the most hardened wretch, &c. I began to think that, perhaps, I was a pretty hard customer; and after I was appointed Principal of the High Schools at Monmouth, I was told that if I united with some church my influence for good would be greatly increased. My best and firmest friends were Lutherans, and the most numerous also. But what kept prodding my conscience was, the best manner in which I could take their mode of baptism. For a long time, even after I became reconciled to their church discipline, I thought I could never be sprinkled, for I firmly believed in baptism by immersion. They told me it was a minor matter at most, and that it was immaterial how I was baptized, only so I belonged to the Lutheran Church. I asked the minister why, if it were such a trivial affair, he could not immerse me. He said he would take me into the water up to my neck, but the discipline would not allow him to do any thing but pour or sprinkle. Finally I consented, and one evening after meeting I was poured by candle-light. But, I tell you, I was not satisfied. I felt a lack of something even before I came out of the water. I told some of my friends as much, but they said if I lived right it did not matter very much about the baptism, as it was merely a form.

Though, they told me that baptism was not essential to salvation, I had a mind of my own, and did not believe them. They appointed me superintendent of their Sabbath school, and did all in their power to reconcile me, still their mode of worship was, to me, too formal. I finally came to the conclusion that, if I could get to heaven by belonging to the Lutherans, I could get there too by not belonging to any denomination. I became careless and neglected the duties of a church member.

I then came to Iowa, and attended my first meeting with the "Mormons." I could not reconcile myself to the belief of the Brighamites, as I thought them I met with to be. In the east we were told that when a Mormon wanted to get married, a special meeting was appointed and after all were assembled the candidates for marriage would get down on all fours, i. e. the men, and the one who could run fastest would have first choice of the females. I thought I could never bring myself down to that. And besides, other strange, wild, impure practices were charged to them that I thought it would take more religion to stand by the system than could possibly be wrapped up in my frail body. But the more I saw of the Saints, as I learned to call them, the more I became convinced that they were misrepresented, and at last I did not believe any such trash. I thought I was getting along in the Saints' belief pretty well, until after I married, and my wife took sick. I always believed in administering suitable medicines to meet the demands of certain diseases, but my wife did not think as I did. She, however, at the persistent request of her mother (Mrs. J. W. Dumbald) continued taking what was prescribed, but got no better. She said if she was administered to she knew she would get well. I told her I had no objections to it, and Bro. J. F. McDowell, who was in town, was sent for; and when he came and administered to her in the name of Jesus Christ, she got well. That, dear Saints, had more effect upon me than a dozen sermons would have had, and that was one of the greatest reasons why I became a Saint. Previous to this occurrence, and before I was married, I was talking with her who is now my wife, about their belief; and when she told me she knew their church was right, and other denominations were wrong, I considered it bigotry, and thought she should be more generous, and say that some other denominations were right. But she would not do it.

I remember one time of going home to where I was practicing, and I wanted the Lord to show me a sign; or show me in a dream, so that I would know for myself. But no dream had I relating to the good work. I finally began to compare their belief with others, and the evidence was so overwhelming in the Saints' favor, that I concluded I could not be saved without uniting with them. And ever since Bro. I. N. White baptized me, I have felt a peace of conscience I never did while belonging to any other sect. These, dear Saints, are my reasons for being a Saint; and in my limited judgment I think they are sufficient.

Hoping for the success and advancement of our cause, I remain yours, &c.

S. R. BERG.

HAVEN, Tama Co., Iowa.

A VISION.

I KNEELED down to pray about nine o'clock p. m., March the 20th, 1885, before retiring as usual, and the Spirit of the Lord came upon me so powerfully that I continued my prayer till ten, when I arose and laid down upon my bed, but still continued my supplications. Soon all of my near relatives, who are very numerous, came up before me, and all passed before me swiftly by a wall eight feet high, appearing very cheerful and each made obeisance to me as they passed, and also many of my friends and acquaintances passed by me in the same manner. The branch with which I was connected in 1838, met, and we had a very happy greeting, and they also passed along by the wall towards the west; and all the Saints that I had ever met, also passed by in the same direction. I was taken up and placed upon the south side of Nauvoo, upon high ground, and the whole city as it was in 1846 came up before me. And there I saw the scattering of the Saints; and I also saw there many teams which were going, some to the east, some to the west, some to the north, and some to the south, and after that to every direction. I was then taken and placed in a very beautiful country near Washington, the most beautiful I had ever seen; and there was not a house nor a living soul to be seen. I then commenced to think why I was there, when a loud voice spoke to me and said: "God is at the helm. God is working through the Gentiles in getting laws passed in Washington. God is at the helm. God is working through the Gentiles, and laws have been passed here in Washington to prosecute the people of Utah, to put down their sins and abominations. God is at the helm, and God will do the work."

Immediately after this I was taken to Utah, placed upon a stand four feet high, where I looked towards the south, then west, and beheld the whole face of the land covered with men as far as I could see. They were all dressed alike in blue—Gray suits. They were also in a state of great confusion, and were running to and fro as though enemies were after them. I again looked towards the south and saw a new fence-wall twelve feet high, a hundred yards distant from where I was standing. At the west end of the wall the people began to run by the hundreds, as fast as they could towards the east, and they continued running until a great many hundreds had passed. I again cast my eyes towards the west, and still the whole face of the land was covered with men, and there did not seem to be any less than before they commenced running. Immediately after this I was taken to a very wild and lonely place, which was all covered with low shrubbery and long wild grass; and while there I was meditating upon what I was there for. I looked around but could not see any houses or living thing. And then a very loud voice said to me: "There is a temple built here, and this will be called one of the stakes of Zion. I want you to go and tell the people to take their riches, their gold and silver, and go to Zion, Jackson county, and there to buy up the lands in Jackson county and round about. And tell them to go to work, and speedily build a temple to receive the Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

SARAH ROHRER.

Aged seventy-six years and has been in the church forty-eight years.

SACRAMENTO, California, Dec. 3d, 1885.

Selections.

[THIS writing from the pen of Sir Isaac Newton, one of the most learned, liberal-minded, and profound thinkers of England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, or since, will be read with interest by the Saints, for the reason that his views on scriptural facts agree so thoroughly with theirs on the apostasy, restoration of the gospel, second coming of Christ, the millennium, the great increase of divine knowledge in the last days, etc. His views relative to when John wrote his "Revelation," do not agree with facts which have come to light since his times.—Ed.]

OBSERVATIONS ON THE APOCALYPSE OF ST. JOHN.

A TRADITION of the churches of Syria is preserved to this day in the title of the Syriac version of the Apocalypse, which title is, "The Revelation which was made to John the Evangelist by God, in the island of Patmos, into which he was banished by Nero, the Cæsar." The same is confirmed by a story told by Eusebius out of Clemens Alexandrinus,—and other ancient authors, concerning a youth, whom John, some time after his return from Patmos, committed to the bishop of a certain city. The bishop educated, instructed, and, at length baptized him; but then, remitting his care, the young man thereupon got into ill company, and began by degrees first to revel and grow vicious, then to abuse and spoil those he met in the night; and at length he grew so desperate that his companions, on becoming a band of robbers, made him their captain; and, saith Chrysostom, he continued their captain a long time. At length, John returning to the city, and hearing what was done, rode to the thief; and when he fled, out of reverence to his old master, John rode after him, recalled him, and restored him to the church. This is a story of many years, and requires that John should have returned from Patmos rather at the death of Nero than at that of Domitian; because between the death of Domitian and that of John, there were but two years and a half; and John in his old age was so infirm as to be carried to church (being above ninety years old), and could not be then supposed able to ride after the thief.

The opinion is further supported by the allusions in the Apocalypse to the temple and altar and holy city, as then standing; and to the Gentiles, who were soon after to tread under foot the holy city and outward court. It is confirmed also by the style of the Apocalypse itself, which is fuller of Hebraisms than John's gospel; for hence it may be gathered that it was written when John was newly come out of Judea, where he had been used to the Syriac tongue, and that he did not write his gospel till, by long converse with the Asiatic Greeks, he had left off most of the Hebraisms. It is confirmed also by the many Apocalypses (as those of Peter, Paul, Thomas, Stephen, Elias, and Cerinthus, written in imitation of the true one), for as the many false gospels, acts, and epistles were occasioned by true ones; and the writing of many false Apocalypses, and ascribing them to apostles and prophets, argues that there was a true apostolic one, in great request with the first Christians; so this true one may well be supposed to have been written early, that there may be room in the apostolic age for the writing of so many false ones afterwards, and fathoming them upon Peter, Paul, Thomas and others, who were dead before John. Caius, who was contemporary with Tertullian, tells us that Cerinthus wrote his revelations as a great apostle, and pretended the visions were shown him by the angels; asserting a millennium of carnal pleasures at Jerusalem after the resurrection; so that his Apocalypse was plainly written in imitation of John's; and yet he lived so early that he resisted the apostles at Jerusalem in or before the first year of Claudius, (that is twenty-six years before the death of Nero), and died before John.

These reasons may suffice to determine the date of the Apocalypse; and yet there is no more, which to considering men may seem a good reason. I will propound it, and leave it to every man's judgment. The Apocalypse seems to be alluded to in the Epistles of Peter, and that to the Hebrews, and therefore to have been written before them. Such allusions to the epistle to the Hebrews, I take to be the discourses concerning the High Priest in the heavenly tabernacle, who is both priest and king, as was Melchisedec (chap. v. 7); and those concerning the Word of God, with the sharp two-edged sword; the Sabbatismos, or millennial rest; the eight, whose end is to be burned (perhaps by the lake of fire); the judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries; the heavenly city, which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God; the cloud of witnesses, mount Zion, heavenly Jerusalem, general assembly; spirits of just men made perfect, (viz., by the resurrection) and the shaking of heaven and earth, and removing of them, that the new heaven, new earth, new kingdom, which can not be shaken, may remain. (Heb. v. 9, 12; vi. 8; x. 27; xi. 10, 16; xii. 1, 22, 26, 27).

In the first Epistle of Peter occur these: "The Revelation of Jesus Christ," twice or thrice repeated (1 Peter i. 7, 13; iv. 13; and v. 1); "The blood of Christ, as of a lamb, foreordained, before the foundation of the world;" "The spiritual building in heaven;" "An inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us, who are kept unto the salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time;" "The royal priesthood;" "The holy priesthood;" "The judgment beginning at the house of God;" and "The church of Babylon;" (1 Peter. i. 4, 5; 18, 19; ii. 5, 9; iv. 17; v. 13; and compare Rev. i. 6; v. 10; xiii. 8; xvii. 6, 2; xxi).

These are indeed obscure allusions; but the second Epistle of Peter, from the nineteenth verse of the first chapter to the end, seems to be a continued commentary upon the Apocalypse. There, in writing to the churches in Asia, to whom John was commanded to send this prophecy, he tells them "that they have a more sure word of prophecy, to be heeded by them, as a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in the hearts."—that is, until they begin to understand it; "for no prophecy (saith he) of the Scriptures is of any private interpretation; the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost." Daniel himself professes, (Dan. viii. 15, 16, 27; and xii. 8, 9), that he understood not his own prophecies; and therefore the churches were not to expect the interpretation from their prophet John, but to study the prophecies themselves. This is the substance of what Peter says in the first chapter; and then in the second he proceeds to describe out of this "sure word of prophecy," how there should arise in the church false prophets, or false teachers, (expressed collectively in the Apocalypse by the name of the false prophet), who should "bring in damnable heresies, denying even the Lord that bought them (which is the character of Antichrist) and many (saith he) shall follow their lusts; . . . they that dwell on the earth shall be deceived by the false prophet (Rev. xiii. 7, 12) and be made drunk with the wine of the scarlet woman, "by reason of whom the way of truth shall be blasphemed:" for the beast is full of blasphemy (Rev. xiii. 1, 5, 6). "And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you;" for these are the merchants of the earth, who trade with the great whore, and their merchandise is all things of price, with the bodies and souls of men (Rev. xviii. 12, 13), whose judgment lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not (xix. 20), but shall surely come upon them at the last day suddenly, as the flood upon the old world, and fire and brimstone upon Sodom and Gomorrah, when the just shall be delivered like Lot (xxi. 3, 4) "for the Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished;" (in the lake of fire); but chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, being made drunk with the wine of the scarlet woman (Rev. ix. 21, and xvii. 2) who despise dominion, and are not afraid to blaspheme glories; for the beast opened his mouth against God to blaspheme His name and His tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven. (xiii. 6). "These, as natural brute beasts

(the ten horned beast and two horned beast, or false prophet) made to be taken and destroyed, (in the lake of fire), blaspheme the things they understand not—they count it pleasure to riot in the day-time—sporting themselves with their own deceiving, while they feast with you (xviii. 3, 7, 9), having eyes full of adulteries. They are going astray, following the way Balaam, the son of Beor, the false prophet, who loved the wages of unrighteousness (Rev. ii. 14), and who taught Balak to cast a stumbling-block before the children of Israel. These are not fountains of living water, but "wells without water;" not such clouds of Saints as the two witnesses ascended in, but "clouds that are carried with a tempest," &c. Thus does the author of this epistle spend all the second chapter in describing the qualities of the Apocalyptic beasts and false prophet; and then in the third he goes on to describe their destruction more fully, and the future kingdom. He saith that because the coming of Christ should be long deferred, they should scoff, saying, Where is the promise of His coming? Then he describes the sudden coming of the day of the Lord upon them, "as a thief in the night," which is the Apocalyptic phrase, and the millennium, or thousand years, which are with God as but a day; the passing away of the old heavens and earth, by a conflagration in the lake of fire, and our looking for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

Seeing, therefore, Peter and John were apostles of the circumcision, it seems to me, that they staid with their churches in Judea and Syria, till the Romans made war upon their nation,—that is, till the twelfth year of Nero; that they then followed the main body of their flying churches into Asia, and that Peter went thence by Corinth to Rome; that the Roman empire looked upon those churches as enemies, because they were composed of those who were Jews by birth, and, therefore, to prevent insurrection, secured their leaders, and banished John into Patmos. It seems also probable to me that the Apocalypse was composed there, and that soon afterwards the epistle to the Hebrews and those of Peter were written to the churches, with reference to this prophecy, as being what they were particularly concerned in. For it appears by these epistles that they were written in times of general affliction and tribulation under the heathen, and by consequence, when the empire made war upon the Jews; for, till then, the heathen were at peace with the Christian Jews, as well as with the rest. The epistle to the Hebrews, since it mentions Timothy as related to those Hebrews, must be written to them after their flight into Asia, where Timothy was bishop, and by consequence after the war began, the Hebrews in Judea being strangers to Timothy. Peter seems also to call Rome Babylon, as well with respect to the war made upon Judea, and the approaching captivity like that under old Babylon, as with respect to that name in the Apocalypse; and in writing to the strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappa-docia, Asia, and Bythnia, he seems to intimate that they were the strangers newly scattered by the Roman wars, for those were the only strangers there belonging to his care.

This account agrees best with history when duly rectified. For Justin and Irænus say that Simon Magus came to Rome in the reign of Claudius, and exercised juggling tricks there. Pseudo-Clemens adds that he endeavored there to fly, but broke his neck through the prayers of Peter; whence Eusebius, or rather his interpolator, Jerome, has recorded, that Peter came to Rome, in the second year of Claudius but Cyril, bishop of Jerusalem, Philastrius, Sulpitius, Prosper, Maximus, Taurinensis, Heggesippus, junior, place this victory of Peter in the time of Nero. Indeed the more ancient tradition was that Peter came to Rome in the days of this emperor, as may be seen in Lactantius. Chrysostom tells us that the apostles lived in Judea, and that then, being driven out by the Jews, they went to the Gentiles (Hom. xx. in Matthew xxii). This dispersion was in the first year of the Jewish war, when the Jews, as Josephus tells us, began to be tumultuous and violent in all places. For all agree that the Apostles were dispersed into several regions at once, and Origen has set down the time, telling us that, in the beginning of the Judaic war, the apostles and disciples of our Lord were scattered into all nations—Thomas into Parthia, Andrew into Scythia, John into Asia, and Peter first into Asia, where he preached to the dispersion, and thence into Italy. Dionysius Corinthius saith that Peter went from Asia by Corinth to Rome; and all antiquity agrees that Peter and Paul were martyred there in the end of Nero's reign. Mark went with Timothy to Rome, (2 Tim. iv. 11; Col. iv. 10), and Sylvanus was Paul's assistant; and by the companions of Peter, mentioned in his first epistle, we know that he wrote from Rome, and the ancients generally agree that, in this epistle, by Babylon he meant Rome. His second epistle was written to the same dispersed strangers with the first; and therein he saith that Paul had written of the same things to them, and also in his other epistles (2 Pet. iii. 1, 15 16). Now, as there is no other epistle of Paul to these strangers, besides that to the Hebrews, so in this epistle we find at large all those things which Peter had been speaking of, and here refers to; particularly the passing away of the old heavens and earth, and establishing an inheritance immovable; with an exhortation to grace, because God to the wicked is a consuming fire (Heb. x. 11, 12; xii. 25, 29).

I do not apprehend that Christ was called the Word of God in any book of the New Testament written before the Apocalypse; and therefore am of opinion that the language was taken from this prophecy; as also many other phrases in John's gospel—such as Christ's being "the light which enlightens the world"—"the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world,"—"The Bridegroom,"—"He that testifieth,"—"He that came down from heaven,"—"The Son of God," &c.

Justin Martyr, who within thirty years after John's death became a Christian, writes expressly that a certain man among the Christians, whose name was John, one of the twelve apostles of Christ, in the revelation which was showed him, prophesied that those who believed in Christ, should live 1,000 years at Jerusalem. And a few lines before he saith, "But I, and as many as are Christians, in all things right in their opinions, believe, both that there shall be a resurrection of the flesh and 1,000 years life at Jerusalem, built, adorned, and enlarged." Which is as much as to say that all true Christians in that early age received this prophecy, since in all ages, as many as believed the 1,000 years, received the Apocalypse as the foundation of their opinion; nor do I know one instance to the contrary.

Papias, bishop of Hierapolis, a man of the apostolic age, and one of John's own disciples, did not only teach the doctrine of the 1,000 years, but also asserted that the Apocalypse was written by divine inspiration. Melito, who flourished next to Justin, wrote a commentary upon this prophecy, and he, being bishop of Sardis, one of the seven churches, could neither be ignorant of their tradition about it, nor impose upon them. Irenæus, who was contemporary with Melito, wrote much upon it; and said that the number 666 was in all the ancient and approved copies, and that he had it also confirmed to him by those who had seen John face to face—meaning no doubt his master, Polycarp, for one. At the same time Theophilus, bishop of Antioch asserted it; and so did Tertullian, Clemens Alexandrinus, and Origen soon after; and their contemporary, Hippolytus the martyr, metropolitan of the Arabians, wrote a commentary upon it. All these were ancient men, flourishing within a hundred and twenty years after John's death, and of greatest note in the churches of those times. Soon after Victorinus Pictaviensis wrote another commentary upon it; and he lived in the time of Dioclesian. This may surely suffice to show how the Apocalypse was received and studied in the first ages; and I do not indeed find any book of the New Testament so strongly attested, or commented upon so early, as this. The prophecy said, "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep the things that are written therein." This animated the first Christians to study it so much; till the difficulty made them remit, and comment more upon the books of the Old Testament.

This prophecy is called the revelation, with respect to the Scripture of truth, which Daniel was commanded to shut up and seal, till the time of the end (Dan. x. 21; xii. 4, 9). Daniel sealed it until the time of the end, all which is as much as to say these prophecies of Daniel and of John should not be understood till the time of the end. But towards the very end, the prophecy should be so far interpreted as to convince many; for "then (saith Daniel) many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased;" for the gospel must be preached in all nations before the great tribulation and end of the world. The palm-bearing multitude which come out of this great tribulation, can not be innumerable out of all nations, unless they be made so by the preaching of the gospel before it comes. An angel must fly through the midst of heaven with the everlasting gospel to preach to all nations, before Babylon falls, and the Son of Man reaps His harvest. The two prophets must ascend up to heaven in a cloud, before the kingdoms of Christ. It is therefore a part of this prophecy that it should not be understood before the last age of the world; and therefore it makes for the credit of the prophecy, that it is not yet understood. But if the last age, the age of opening of these things, be now approaching (as by the great success of late interpreters it seems to be) we have more encouragement than ever to look into these things. If the general preaching of the gospel be approaching, it is to us and our posterity that those words mainly belong: "In the time of the end the wise shall understand, but none of the wicked shall understand." "Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep those things which are written therein." (Dan. xii. 4, 10; Rev. i. 3).

God gave this and the prophecies of the Old Testament, that, after they were fulfilled, they might be interpreted by the event; and the providence of God be manifested thereby to the world. For the occurrence of things predicted many ages before, will then be a convincing argument that the world is governed by providence. For as the few and obscure prophecies concerning Christ's first coming were for setting up the Christian religion, which all nations have since corrupted; so the many and clear prophecies concerning the things to be done at Christ's second coming are not only for predicting, but also for effecting a recovery and re-establishment of the long-lost truth, and setting up a kingdom wherein dwells righteousness. The event will prove the Apocalypse; and this prophecy, thus proved and understood, will open the old prophets, and altogether will make known the true religion, and establish it. For he that will understand the old prophets, must begin with this; but the time is not yet come for understanding them perfectly, because the main revolution predicted in them is not yet come to pass. In the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets; and then the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ, and He shall reign for ever. (Rev. x. 7; xi. 15).

There is already so much of the prophecy fulfilled, that as many as will take pains in this study may see sufficient instances of God's providence; but then the signal revolutions predicted by all the holy prophets will at once both turn men's eyes upon considering the predictions, and will plainly interpret them.

Amongst the interpreters of the last age, there is scarce one who hath not made some discovery worth knowing; and thence I seem to gather that God is about opening these mysteries. The success of others put me upon considering it; and if I have done anything which may be useful to subsequent writers, I have my design.

SIR ISAAC NEWTON.

CONFUCIANISM ON REVENGE.

CHRISTIAN morality is aggressive; Confucianism is defensive, negative. "What ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," says Christ. "What ye would not that men should do to you, do not to them," says Confucius. Not, in this case, though a small word, covers a long line of negation. It takes another route and leads to a very different terminus from the words of Jesus. There is no active charity, no mission for the salvation of others in it. It rests content in avoiding injury, because it does not desire to suffer harm.

But unaided nature is unequal to the forbearance taught in the words of Jesus and the apostles, "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you;" and "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive them that trespass against us," I should say have their contrasts rather than parallels in the Confucian Analects. These latter sound more like the hammer of the Mosaic law, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," blood calling for blood, while it lacks that wondrous salvation of a "City of Refuge" till a fair investigation could be had to test the merits of the deed. Confucius does not seem to have attained to the magnanimity of even other Chinese worthies in this particular. In the "Odes" is a division called Heias Min chih Shih. The "small autumnal records" in this part is a subdivision called "Who is this man?" which contains an account of two high officials in the court of one of the Emperors of the Chon dynasty. The one by name of Pu slandered the other to the Emperor, with the result, that Su, the other, was degraded and dismissed from the Emperor's service. Su is therefore made to say, "Who are you that have arrived at my door? I hear the voice, but can not see thy person. Have you no shame in the presence of men, and no fear before heaven, that you have thus maligned me?"

In another part of the Odes known as Hsiang Po, and the fifth chapter, is an account of Hsiang Po, an official of merit, whom the courtiers hated and slandered to the Emperor. He also was degraded and cast into prison, and while there wrote the following: "Thou slanderer, who devised thus for you? I would seize and cast you to the wolves and tigers, but they would revolt to eat you. I would fain cast you upon the barren North, but, because of your vileness, it would not receive you. Ah! I must as my last resort cast you into the hands of heaven."

In the first of these cases there is an appeal to the justice of heaven as the occasion for fear to the slanderer, and reminds us a little of "Vengeance is mine, I will repay," saith the Lord; but in the second we see a man who feels that while he would delight to inflict every conceivable injury upon his enemies, he can imagine nothing adequate to their sin, and is by sheer necessity compelled to consign their vile natures to the final Arbiter of all the wrongs of men.

But when we turn to the Book of Rites, the ninth book, and the thirty-seventh page, we find more definiteness on the subject of dealing with others who insult or injure us. One asked Confucius, "How about repaying injury with kindness?" Confucius answered, "If we repay injury with kindness, how then shall we repay kindness? Repay injury with justice, repay kindness with kindness." The Chinese commentator in explanation of this passage, says, "If we repay injury with kindness, with what can we repay kindness? But let your justice be not for private but public reasons, then use it to repay injury—and kindness in like manner." In another place Confucius, according to a translation of Dr. Legge, says, "The man who rewards injury with kindness is benevolent to his own person," an expression capable of more than one side surely, yet interpreted to mean that one who hesitates to repay injury by injury does so because he is a coward, fearful of a return harm to himself, thus ennobling revenge and debarring forgiveness. How utterly at variance with that sublime expression, "If thine enemy hunger feed him." Yet so deep seated is this classic teaching in the Chinese mind, that one proverb declares that, "He who owes a grudge and does not pay it, is not a superior man." While another with equal emphasis asserts, "The princely man will revenge though it require ten years to accomplish it." This is strong language, yet not more positive than the sage himself inculcated. In the Book of Rites, in the part known as Tankung, part first, the twenty-fourth verse, Tzu Hsia, one of the sage's pupils asked, How should we deal with the murder of one's parents? Confucius responded, "Sleep on a matting of straw, your weapons a pillow. Do not accept office, do not live under the same heaven with him. If you meet him on the street or in the court, do not return for a weapon to fight him." The last clause, the commentator says, means that the avenger of blood should always carry upon his person weapons needed to strike down his enemy on sight. How should we deal with the murder of a brother? asked the disciple. The sage replied, "One may accept office, but not in the same country where the murderer lives. If the Emperor appoint you to a foreign State and you should chance to meet him, you should not fight him. Then said Tzu Hsia, Suppose the murder committed was that of an uncle or cousin, how should one act in such a case? "In that case," said Confucius, "you are only the second, let the man whose duty it is avenge. You need merely stand with weapon ready to assist in case of need." In explanation of a part of this passage the commentator says, A man is not allowed to fight an enemy when in official life because he must not sacrifice official duties for private reasons, not that it is wrong of itself, but duty to his country is paramount.

In another place we have the same doctrine in very similar words from the lips of the sage, in the Book of Rites, Chu Li Shang, thirty-seventh verse, he says: "The murderer of your father and mother must not be permitted to live under the same heaven; for the murderer of a brother, do not go home for a weapon, nor should you live in the same State with the murderer of a friend."

A commentator of a later age says: "The ancients and moderns have one punishment for the murderer. To kill him is a virtue, not a sin. Do not regard him as an enemy; to take his life is righteous, he ought to die. If he has killed a friend, accuse him before his magistrate, for this is duty. But if in the above cases you should take life, it would not be revenge, but justice. The father is as heaven itself to the son, and the son could not, therefore, look up to heaven but with shame, if he has failed to mete out justice to his father's murderer."

In all these records Confucius and his disciples voice the sentiment of unregenerate nature in presence of insult or injury, "an eye for an eye." The unwritten code even in Christian lands shields the one who, to avenge an injury, has taken life. But it is not law. The right to punish does not rest with the private citizen. The power of life and death belongs to the State. Nor is the right to take life acknowledged or allowed for any cause except perhaps that of self-defense. But here we have the foundation of the laws of a great empire inlaid with one of the worst features of our nature as one of its constituent parts. The right to decide upon the nature of an injury, and the method of punishment is turned thus into the hands of the individual, who is incapable in almost every instance of rendering a correct decision. Men have not hesitated to avail themselves of so notable an authority to justify crime and hand down feud from generation to generation. Village feuds as well as family ones, are still known to exist in different parts of the empire, resulting in many deaths, and much suffering in the communities where they occur. Justice without mercy stands out with glaring boldness, based on the judgment of the individual. Confucius failed signally to apprehend the true basis on which society must rest, who then could hope to apprehend it. He did not even attain the outlook of Moses, who, while the avenger is allowed to strike his man on sight, provided for the fugitive a refuge where justice could be dealt by impartial hands, and the unintentionally guilty should be safe forever from the avenger.

Jesus must ever rise higher in the estimates of men by contrast with the sages of all ages and lands. Unaided reason fails to apprehend and teach the law of social intercourse, fails to appreciate the true law of reciprocity, leads man into hurtful, sinful ways, ennobles and crowns base passions as princely, bemeanes lofty sentiments of forbearance as groveling, cowardly, unbecoming, sinful. Confucius surely was too erringly human in this, one of the clearly enunciated tenets of his great system. Erring, because too narrow in his view, and narrow in that he relegated to the individual a right which belonged only to the State, the right to take life; narrow, in that he calls "light darkness, and darkness light;" revenge a virtue and forgiveness, cowardly. Narrow above all in that revenge is sanctioned with or without justice and no mercy. The evil influence of this pernicious doctrine has been far reaching. It must answer for its share in the general perversion of the moral sentiments of a great people for centuries; for the continuance of hate, strife and disorder through generations, and for the blood of human victims offered on its relentless altars. Before the God who taught us by the lips of his only begotten Son, that to be forgiven we must first forgive, this error must stand condemned and yield its long usurped place to Him whose right it is to reign. His banner over us will be love, His sceptre is a righteous one. He alone has been able to show the Divine worth of forgiveness and the race can only hope to attain their purchased possession by taking on this spirit as revealed in His life and exhibited in His death.—Sel.

SUCCESSFUL PREACHING.

THE business of the preacher is to preach. He is, therefore, first of all, a speaker. As of old, he who was the best of all teachers "spoke" to the people. So, still, his disciples, obeying His commands and fulfilling their missions, are required to speak the lessons they wish to convey. The judgment of the public can not be disregarded in this matter, and when we find all classes, according to their different tastes, rating the ministry according to its capacity in the line of public speech, we know how important it is that it shall be well done. It is the commonest remark of a preacher that he is a "fine speaker," or a "poor" one, or a "good talker," an "orator," or "eloquent" man; and nearly every man who has had pulpit practice has learned what the people have thought of his "delivery." If this "delivery" is bad, it is set over against many other virtues.

The Interior makes a good suggestion for the youthful preacher when it says that "by faithfully developing and cultivating his own naturalness, whatever it may be, he can make himself about all that God requires him to be without the aid of any other teacher." "Naturalness"—that is the first and great essential; but it is what, under a regime now about passing away, was carefully destroyed. The elocutionary instructor of twenty-five and fifty years ago set himself, as if by a determined purpose, to kill out of a man whatever naturally belonged to him—to change and make him over in voice, tone, gesture and movement, and compel him to speak either like some ancient model, or according to a set of rules supposed to be suitable to every one, and to embody all the principles of which the art is capable.

He talked to his pupils of "oratory." He was full of the notion of the "ore rotundo." [Round, full voice.—Ed.] Whether in his scholars there was any faculty for that kind of speaking or not, or whether he had some other faculty ten times better, he was taught in every lesson that the "ore rotundo" was the only hope for him.

We are now learning that the effective men are they who are natural. People wish to be talked to. An orator they like to hear now and then, on some great occasion, but they tire of him if he be thrust on them too frequently. A burst of eloquence, called oratory, they relish if thrown in here and there, because it is a variegation amidst that which precedes and follows; but they wish it to be that, and then sink away as naturally as it arose. It is the good talker the pulpit needs; that is to say, one who has his message, and gives it out as his native temper and disposition and manner direct—these being educated, but not perverted—and it is he the churches are learning to ask for. Mr. Beecher was pre-eminently a talker, speaking in every-day language, naturally, and without artistic effort. His oratory was never more than a spurt. Mr. Spurgeon is one of the simplest of talkers. Dr. Parker lacks the simplicity, yet still he talks. Mr. Talmage is natural in the same way, though his naturalness is so queer that people mistake it for something else. But queer naturalness may be better than precise artificiality, and it is better by all odds than the affectations that often grow up under the management of pedantry.

The sum of the matter is: Let every public speaker be himself, with the best culture and best use possible of the powers of speech with which God has endowed him.—United Presbyterian.

PERNICIOUS LITERATURE.

WE are pre-eminently a nation of readers. From our childhood we are constantly reading books, newspapers and magazines. Our lives are influenced largely by what we read. If our minds are nourished on pure, wholesome and instructive literature, we are made wiser and better. But if we are fed chiefly upon the vile issues of a corrupt and licentious press, it can not but result in mental and moral deterioration.

The good and the true are always beneficial. The evil and the false are ever injurious. Nowhere is this more perceptible than in the realm of literature. On every hand we behold proof of the fact that good literature refines, elevates, and ennobles, while evil reading debases, degrades, and perverts. In the moral and intellectual manipulation of the masses, the press greatly enhances the power of those who employ it. But it depends upon the use to which it is applied, whether it be power for good or evil. In this respect, it would seem that "the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." At least, the publishers and venders of vicious literature sometimes appear more active and persistent in promoting its circulation than do the friends of truth and righteousness in disseminating moral and religious reading matter.

To-day there are many vile and pernicious books and periodicals in circulation throughout the land. We find them in the homes of the people. We see them when traveling on steamboats. They are thrust in our faces on railroad trains. They are everywhere exposed for sale at news stands. And they are sometimes put up in a form that is quite attractive. Many of our young people of both sexes are rendered mentally dyspeptic by reading the high-wrought novels and demoralizing trash that are constantly being issued from the secular press of this country. They lose all taste for solid and useful reading. They become incapable of properly digesting and assimilating such mental aliment. Their minds are filled with fictitious and distorted views of the great problem of human existence. In a word, they are rendered unfit for the practical duties of life.—Sel.

Conference Minutes.

SOUTH-EAST ILLINOIS.

Conference convened in Saints' chapel, in Tunnel Hill branch, September 17th, 1887, at ten o'clock. G. H. Hilliard in the chair, I. M. Smith clerk. Branch reports: Brush Creek 134; 7 received by baptism. Dry Fork 31; 2 died. Alma 10; 1 suspended. Parish 27; 2 received by letter. Tunnel Hill 76. Springerton 59; 1 died, 2 removed. Reports: Elders R. Ouldcott, J. F. Thomas, E. Webb, I. M. Smith (baptized 4), and G. H. Hilliard; I. A. Morris (baptized 4), and H. Beaumont, reported by letter. Priests J. M. Pucket and D. Webb reported. I. A. Morris and J. F. Henson were appointed to labor in Crawford and Marion counties; J. F. Thomas and M. R. Brown to labor in Scrub Hill and Slab school houses; H. Walker to labor in Brush Creek and Hazel Dell; T. P. Green to labor in the district as its suits him; J. W. Stone to labor at Mill Shoals and in the vicinity of his home. T. C. Kelley and E. Webb to labor in Johnson and Williamson counties. All others holding the priesthood are requested to labor as circumstances permit. The authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness, and A. H. Smith as missionary in charge. Preaching on Saturday evening by I. M. Smith and J. F. Thomas. Sunday morning by G. H. Hilliard and T. C. Kelley. Had prayer meeting Sunday afternoon in charge of J. F. Thomas and R. Ouldcott and preaching in the evening by G. H. Hilliard and I. M. Smith. Adjourned to meet at Springerton, White county, Illinois, December 17th, 1887.

INDEPENDENCE.

The above conference convened at Independence, Missouri, on September 3d, 1887; E. Curtis, vice-president, in the chair; T. W. Chatburn clerk. Branch Reports: Independence 523; 16 baptized, 7 received by letter, 1 removed, 1 expelled, 3 marriages; F. G. Pitt president, M. S. Frick clerk. First Kansas City 29; 1 baptized, 1 received by letter, 1 by certificate of baptism, 2 died; D. F. Win president, Arthur Allen clerk. Clinton 48; 12 baptized; I. N. White president and clerk. Holden 22; 3 baptized; Emma W. Simpson clerk. Armstrong 110; 1 baptized, 1 received by letter, 1 removed; J. J. Emmett, president, T. Newton clerk. Elders W. S. Lore, A. White, C. St. Clair, S. Crum (baptized 7), S. G. Mayo, J. Curtis, H. Lee, D. E. Norton, F. G. Pitt (baptized 6), V. White, E. Curtis (baptized 2), I. N. White (baptized 5), C. E. Reynolds, J. W. Brackenbury (baptized 2), J. Beard, B. Myers, H. H. Robinson, F. C. Warnky (baptized 8), H. Mills, M. Shaw, J. C. Foss, E. W. Lloyd, T. W. Chatburn; Priests D. Winn (baptized 1), A. Cox;

Teachers J. N. Kennedy, R. R. Gotham, J. Inman, H. C. Johnson reported. Report of committee on chairs at Clinton received, and they continued. Committee to whom the case of J. T. Clark was referred, reported that according to the evidence we find Bro. Clark was allowed to withdraw from the branch upon his own motion, giving among other reasons "he could not indorse some of the principles believed in by the Reorganization;" we also find that according to the action had by General Conference (see Herald May 10th, 1884) the branch is not in harmony with said action; we therefore recommend that the branch deal with Bro. Clark according to law. Bishop's Agent, A. White, reported: Amount due agent at last report $13.43, received $1,134.05; paid out 245.93; on hand $888.12. By request of Kansas City branch a committee was appointed to take into consideration the ordination of an elder to preside over said branch. Who on deliberation reported unfavorable. By request of Kansas City branch, and on motion of conference, Bro. Henry Sparring was ordained to the office of teacher. The ministry of the district to labor under the direction of the president, and report to him for such labor. Preaching on Saturday evening by F. C. Warnky, Sunday morning by J. C. Foss, sacrament meeting in the afternoon, in charge of brethren Pitt and Chaburn. Preaching in the evening by E. Curtis. Adjourned to meet at Independence, on the 31st day of December, 1887, at ten o'clock.

SOUTH-EASTERN OHIO AND WEST VIRGINIA.

A conference of the above district met August 27th and 28th, 1887, at Vales Mills, Vinton county, Ohio. Bro. W. H. Kelley was chosen chairman and Bro. T. J. Beatty associate. Branch reports:—All the branches were received and read. Syracuse, 48, 1 dropped. Wayne, 30. Liberty, 77; 2 expelled, 2 removed by letter, 1 baptized. Milton, 13; 2 baptized. Morgan, 5, Union Grove, 28; 2 removed, 1 death. Highland, 34; 2 baptized, 1 by letter, 2 expelled. Cabin Run, 17, Clarksburgh, 28. New Hope, 7. Vinton 68. Elders reported in person:—J. Moler (baptized 1), L. W. Torrence, A. B. Ervin, S. J. Jeffers, J. L. Goodrich, A. W. Kriebel, D. Thomas, T. Matthews, T. J. Beatty. By letter: J. L. Williams, L. R. Devore. Priests, C. A. Hunter, H. E. Moler and G. Rouse, in person. The missionaries in charge, W. H. Kelley, E. C. Briggs and G. T. Griffith were sustained. T. J. Beatty was re-elected president, J. Moler vice-president, and A. B. Kirkendall, clerk. T. J. Beatty was sustained as Bishop's Agent. A. B. Kirkendall was ordained an elder. On Saturday evening, preaching by Bishop Blakeslee on the temporal law of the church. Sunday at ten a. m. and two p. m., preaching by W. H. Kelley, and evening by T. Matthews. Adjourned to call of president.

NOVA SCOTIA.

The above conference convened at South Rawdon, September 17th, 1887, in Saints Chapel, Elder E. C. Briggs invited to the chair, Elder F. M. Sheehy to assist, and H. J. Davison, secretary. No report was presented from either Cornwallis or Newport branches; but the presiding elders of each stated that there had been no change since last report. Officers reported:—Elders John Burjess, and H. J. Davison; Priests John Dimock and Robert Newcomb; Teacher Alfred Wood. Bishop's Agent reported sending to the Bishop shortly after General Conference, including expense of sending, $35.40; cash on hand $36.10. On motion both Bro. Sheehy and Briggs was empowered to act as representatives at General Conference. A resolution requesting the appointment of an elder to labor in Nova Scotia was unanimously passed. Preaching by brethren Briggs and Sheehy. Six were baptized during conference. Full houses and good interest.

Will the person who has "Cornish's Bible Synopsis," belonging to the Church Library, please return the same. It was taken months ago.

JOHN SCOTT, Librarian.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Southern Indiana district conference will convene November 26th, 1887, at the Cummon's School-house, near Derby, Perry county Indiana. We further request the attendance of the officers and that the officers see that their branches are reported promptly.

JAMES G. SCOTT, Dist. Pres.

A conference of the Pottawattamie district will be held at Council Bluffs, commencing October 22d, 1887, at eleven o'clock. Bro. Joseph H. Lambert will be with us, and possibly Bro. J. C. Foss. A full representation of the district is desired, and branches should not fail to send in reports. If any sending by mail may if sent in time address the undersigned at Weston, Pottawattamie county, Iowa.

H. N. HANSEN, Pres. of Dist.

NOTIFIES TO REPORT.

Notice is hereby given to the following named, to report either in person or by letter to the undersigned, on or before the 1st of November, 1887, as to their whereabouts and desires in the church, or their names will be placed on the record as scattered members, namely: Jane Keller, Rose-la Woolverton, Eliza Forshey, and William Babcock, all of whose names appear in the record of the Centralia branch as members in good standing.

F. WEISE, Branch Clerk.

CENTRALIA, KANSAS.

MARRIED.

RANNIE—RUMEL.—At the house of the bride's father, Omaha, Nebraska, Bro. Edward Rannie, jun., to Sr. Mary H. Rumel, April 26th, 1887; Elder James Caffall officiating.

Thus two that were have one become,
To share the joys and pains of life,
Which in their matrimonial race
May them beset.

Their love, fidelity, and patience to test,
Which may they o'ercome, and so find rest.

KENNEDY—SMITH.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Bro. and Sr. A. H. Smith, near Andover, Missouri, on the evening of October 5th, 1887, Mr. William F. Kennedy and Miss Emma B. Smith were united in marriage in the presence of the family and other relatives and friends; Elder W. W. Blair officiating.

"Two minds linked in love, one can not be Delighted but the other rejoiceth."

COOK—BOOTH.—At Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa, October 4th, 1887, by Elder Asa S. Cochran, Mr. George Cook and Miss Beva Booth, of Lamoni, Iowa.

DIED.

ALLEN.—John Allen died July 26th, 1887, at his home in Birch Run, Saginaw county, Michigan, after ten weeks suffering with heart disease, aged 79 years. He was born the 11th of May 1808 near Plattsburg, New York, and with his wife was baptized in Pennsylvania, April 1836 by Almon W. Babbitt. He shortly afterward moved to Kirtland where he lived for two years. In the fall of 1838 he left with a company of brethren for Missouri, but on reaching Quincy he found the saints were fleeing from their enemies, and he sought winter quarters among strangers. He leaves a wife and two daughters, an only son having died in the service of his country.

DUNHAM.—Oliver P. Dunham was born October 7th, 1808, in Mansfield, Holland county, Connecticut, was baptized by Elder Wm. Rust in 1840, and was received into the Reorganization in 1859. He spent a large portion of his life at Burlington, Iowa, where his death occurred September 23th, 1887, and he was buried at Iowa Station, Henderson county, Illinois, September 27th, 1887. There were no funeral services except a few words spoken at the grave by Levi Lightfoot who officiated. He was admired by all who had occasion to meet with him. Perhaps the church may have a more definite account of date of baptism. It was his wish to go, we would not call him back.

BAILEY.—At Brockton, Massachusetts, September 18th, 1887, sister Isabelle Bailey, aged 38 years, after a long illness. She was baptized July 3d, 1887. Her faith was firm in the Latter Day Work and she died in peace. She is now at rest. Funeral services by Elder I. L. Chase.

COOMBS.—In Plainville, Massachusetts, September, 17th, 1887, Sr Harriet S. Coombs, aged 64 years and 7 months. She was the wife of Mr. Charles C. Coombs, and the mother of three children, Sr. Hattie Staples, Mr. H. E. Coombs and Elder Charles A. Coombs, all of which survive her. Sr. Coombs has been an active and consistent member of the Reorganized church for over 12 years and was baptized by the late Elder Charles N. Brown, at Providence, R. I., July 4th, 1875. It may be said of her that she was a faithful and affectionate wife, a loving mother, and a kind, self-sacrificing friend and neighbor; and that above all her life was well regulated by the gospel of Christ. She will be greatly missed and kindly remembered by the church and all who knew her. The last sad rites over her remains were held in the Plainville Chapel, Elder Myron H. Bond officiating, assisted by Rev. H. H. Osgood of this place. The remarks by Elder Bond were very appropriate to the occasion.

COLE.—In Boston, Massachusetts, March 26th, 1887, of diphtheria, Julia F., daughter of brother Henry G. and sister Gertrude Cole, aged 17 months and 3 days; also, at same place, September 25th, 1887, Gracie F., infant daughter of Bro. and Sr. Cole, aged 3 months and 10 days. Funeral services were conducted by Teacher Geo. F. Robely and Elder M. H. Bond.

The angels have taken our darlings
To rest in the bosom of God;
The casket that covers the spirit
Rests alone 'neath the valley's dark clod.

There, pure as the angels who always
The face of our Father behold,
They await the morn of redemption,
By prophets and seers foretold.

When Jesus shall come with his jewels,
To reign upon earth with his own,
With the offspring and seed of the blessed,
Will no more separation be known.

A CENTURY'S GROWTH.

It is a century since the famed "Ordinance of 1787" was passed by congress, and the first territory organized—the North-west Territory, whose official name was "The Territory Northwest of the Ohio River." The ordinance was passed July 13th, 1787.

At that time, the United States embraced only 820,680 square miles: Florida belonged to Spain, and the Mississippi river was our west boundary. Our first acquisition of territory was the purchase of Louisiana from France in 1803. This province embraced not only the present state of Louisiana, but all the vast area from the Mississippi on the east to Oregon and Washington (which then were claimed by Great Britain) and the vast region known as Upper California, belonging to Mexico on the west; and from the Gulf on the south to British America on the north. To be more precise, it embraced what are now known as Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Dakota, the larger part of Montana, the larger part of Wyoming, part of Colorado, Nebraska and the Indian Territory, and was 930,928 square miles in extent, or more than 100,000 square miles larger than the original domain of the country. For this we paid $15,000,000 to France.

Our next acquisition was Florida, in 1820, for which $5,000,000 was paid, adding 59,720 square miles to the nation. In 1846 the dispute with Great Britain about the ownership of Oregon—embracing what is now the state of Oregon and Washington territory—was settled by treaty in our favor, and 22,425 square miles more became ours.

In 1845 Texas became a member of the union by annexation. The independence of Texas, had, however, never been acknowledged by Mexico, and by this annexation we also annexed the Mexican war. By the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which ended the war, Mexico relinquished her claim to Texas, and we paid her $15,000,000 for Upper California—embracing California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and the western portion of Colorado. In 1858, the "Gadsen purchase,"—a strip of land south of the Gila river, now part of Arizona and New Mexico—was bought of Mexico for $10,000,000. By the annexation of Texas and these two purchases, 734,260 square miles of territory were brought under the stars and stripes.

Alaska, with its 577,390 square miles, were purchased of Russia in 1867, for $7,200,000. This is our latest territorial acquisition. Thus, in eighty-four years, we have obtained by purchase, treaty and annexation, 2,752,723 square miles of territory, costing $52,200,000 in cash direct, not considering the cost of war.

It is manifest destiny that the extension of the Union shall go on until all North America is under one flag. Canada, Mexico, and Central America will eventually be added to the Republic, and our boundaries be limited only by the encompassing oceans and the Isthmus of Panama.—Toledo Blade.

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopses" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCEOLA CO., MICH.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, letter paper, envelopes, and printed recipes for Cement to cure Corns, etc., valuable in every household, by mail to any part of United States or Canada, for 35c in stamps or otherwise.

W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

The Sisters' Aid Society of Independence branch have for sale for the benefit of the new church, two Cabinet Photographs: one of the THREE WITNESSES, with views of the HILL CUMORAH and the ANGEL delivering the PLATES; the other of the OLD LIBERTY JAIL as it now stands, for 25 cts each. Those desiring to purchase can address Mrs. B. C. Smith, box 61, Independence, Missouri. 23jul3m

Foreign Money Orders.

Bear in mind the fact that the post office at Lamoni is now a Foreign Money Order Office. Therefore, those in foreign countries sending moneys to this office should draw them on Lamoni, Iowa, U. S. A.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist. Ad-Redoleiddig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 398 hymns in Welsh and 83 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

Lamoni and Vicinity.

Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by

LAMBERT & HANSEN.

dec11tt

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14feb1y

Money Orders.

Money Orders are much safer than Postal Notes when remitting to this office, and they cost but two cents more. Don't forget this, lest you lose money.
D. DANCER, Manager.

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

- NEW YORK,
- BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
- CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
- NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
- LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
- PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
- PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
- VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
- POINTS.

Good Equipment, Good Service, Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going
East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

Tracts.

- No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; 20c. a doz., per 100.....1 50
- No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; 5c. a doz., 100..... 40
- No. 4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temple Suit; 5c. per doz., 25c. per 100, 50c. for 250, $1 for 500, per 1,000..... 1 75
- No. 5.—The Gospel.....price the same as No. 4
- No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisite, and Design,—and Who Shall Administer; 16 pages; 25c. per doz., per 100 ..... 75
- No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; 5c. a doz., 100..... 40
- No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; 25c. a doz., 100..... 75
- No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; 20 pages; 30c. per dozen, 100..... 2 25
- No. 10.—The Narrow Way; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 100 for 1 10
- No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; 30c. a dozen, 100..... 2 25
- No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy; 25c. a dozen, 100..... 1 75
- No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; 25c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 75
- No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; 5c. a dozen, per 100..... 40
- No. 16.—Polygamy; Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; 20c. a dozen, 100..... 40
- No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; 25c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 75
- No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; 15c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 10
- No. 20.—The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; 12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 40
- No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; 3c. a doz., 100..... 15
- No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; 15c. a dozen, 100..... 1 10
- No. 23.—Baptism; 10 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 25
- No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; 5c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; 5c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; 4 pages; 5c. a dozen, per 100..... 40
- No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 40
- No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon; 15 cents a dozen, per 100..... 1 10
- No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, the Kirtland Temple Suit. Per dozen 5c., 100 for 25c., 250 for 50c., 500 for $1, 1,000 for..... 1 75
- No. 32.—Which is the Church? 5c. a dozen, 100..... 44
- No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 25
- A Memorial to Congress; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 100..... 1 10
- Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection; 32 pages; 6c. each, per dozen..... 60
- Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100..... 15
- A set of Tracts, 35 cents.
- COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS. Bound in Limp Cloth turned in..... 75

Reply to Littlefield.

We have for sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 15 cents per dozen to one address.

Forscutt and Shinn Discussion.

J. Shinn affirms "The Bible Teaches the Coming of Christ to Judge the World is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible Teaches the Literal Resurrection of the Body from the Grave." Paper covers, 19 1/2 pages..... 25

Visions of Joseph Smith, The Seer.

Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew, and of others; paper covers, 43 pages..... 10

Concordance to Book of Covenants.

An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages..... 10

Sunday School Supplies.

Sunday School Engineer and Record Book..... 50
Prompt Attendance Tickets.....100 for 15c., 1,000 for 1 00
Good Behavior Tickets.....Same price.

Miscellaneous.

- The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages, in cloth boards.....1 50
- Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards; 336 pages..... 1 00
- Josephus, complete in one vol., library leather.....3 50
- Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols.....4 00
- Mosheim's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols.....4 00
- Baldwin's Ancient American, (illustrated), cloth.....1 80
- Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one, leather.....4 00
- The Koran, library leather..... 2 00
- Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History, from A. D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols.....10 00
- The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Caesarea, to Palestine, cloth boards..... 2 00
- Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible.....1 75
- The Bible Text Book..... 1 00
- Apocryphal New Testament..... 1 65
- Brown's Concordance of the Bible..... 85
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size..... 90
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Hope size..... 50
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Advocate size..... 50
- Five Quires of Note Paper, 120 sheets..... 50
- Five Quires of Note Paper, better quality..... 60

Tracts in German.

Tracts in the German Language may be had of Bro. Ad. Richter, Burlington, Iowa: The Baptism, 6 cents; the Repentance, 5 cents; the Principles of the Gospel, 6 cents; the Epitome of Faith, 2c.; the Sixth Trumpet, a fifty-four page pamphlet, 25c. These prices include postage.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday, at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed DAVID DANOR, Box 88, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANOR; communications and articles to the Editor.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAve IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONcUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 753.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 22, 1887.

No. 43.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 22, 1887.

HARLAN REUNION.

ONE might ask, What are the impressions left by the late Reunion at Harlan, Iowa. To this we can only reply, that the effect upon us was spiritually most salutary. The changing of the policy of holding two business conferences per year by abandoning the Fall session, left a great want in the lives of the Saints in Western Iowa, and Eastern Nebraska, which it was thought a general reunion at some suitable locality would in a measure supply. It has as an experiment proved amply successful. The last one was in many things a better and more successful meeting than any preceding it. The grounds were laid out in a much more orderly and compact way. What had been mere experiment in order had become something like a rule, comprehended and enjoyed. The big tent allayed the fears of interruption from rain, and tenting was made easy by experience.

One remarkably noticeable thing was that the elders who took part in the preaching of the word, were prompt; and though possibly nervous and doubtful of their ability to occupy acceptably and profitably, did not embarrass themselves and their hearers with apologies, or excuses, but at once took up the lines of their thought and argument with an earnestness of endeavor that commended them to all. The younger men did nobly in facing the veteran host, and the Spirit's answer was unto them all. From the opening effort by young brother J. W. Wight, to the closing sermon of brother Joseph R. Lambert, it was one glorious chain of glittering gospel links skillfully welded in a continuous whole. We were pleased to see such unanimity of effort, such freedom from desire to parade, such willing trust in the promise of the Lord to help in time of need, such cheering compliance with appointment, and such unusual absence of deprecating excuses when called upon to speak. It is the beauty of trustfulness to attempt the effort when the opportunity is favorable, and let the result be with the Master. The elder who gets up in the pulpit and proceeds at once to the discussion of his selected topic is much more likely to interest his audience than the one who wastes his time in a fruitless excuse, which is tiring at the outset. Such an one is much more likely to receive the Spirit's aid to his help, because more worthy. He feels that it is his duty to put his best endeavor into his speech; and this the Lord knows and the people understand; hence excuses are unnecessary.

The hearing accorded by those from without was all that could be asked for. In fact, it was the best we have ever witnessed at any of our out of door meetings. The use of the grounds was given by Mr. John Davis, a gentleman residing at Harlan, whose friendship to us as a people had been won by the manly conduct of Bro. J. W. Chatburn, and the unflinching and persistent kindness of Sr. Chatburn when Mr. Davis' family was sorely smitten by disease, and they needed friends—these they found in Bro. and Sr. Chatburn, and it is not forgotten. Bro. Chatburn's premises were also open to the use of the Saints.

One especially pleasant feature about the conduct of the grounds was, that there were no booths nor business stands sufficiently near for their traffic and confusion to interfere with the worshipping assembly. The freedom from this sort of annoyance was marked and very pleasant indeed. No "merry-go-rounds," nor games of toss and pitch for amusement were tolerated by the committee in any shape.

In a spiritual sense, we feel assured that no better meeting has been held by us; and the Saints must feel comforted and strengthened.

"RIDICULOUS."

WE have just read in The West Side, for September 30th, published at Independence, Polk county, Oregon, the "official paper" of that county, a long, flimsy and partly false dissertation on "Mormonism—its history and religion." In it we find for the first time the statement that "William Smith, a brother of the prophet, accompanied him in his search" to obtain the plates, and that William said he "found them so heavy that he was unable to raise them," etc.; also that he "states that the prophet had a hard struggle with the Evil One and his agents before securing the sacred plates," and that "the Mormons religiously believe this ridiculous legend."

This editor, like hosts of others, makes a string of untrue statements as to the faith and history of the Saints, alleges that they are facts, and then pities and condemns the Saints for believing such "ridiculous" things. He forgets, seemingly, that it is far more "ridiculous," and criminal, for persons to make "ridiculous" falsehoods than for others to believe even in a "ridiculous legend."

This class of opponents formulate what they choose, affirm it to be Mormon doctrine or history, and then brand it as "ridiculous." If they honestly and nobly sought to learn and state facts, these anti-Mormon writers would study and quote genuine, authorized Mormon books and records. But instead of that, the most of them quote—if anything at all—from the partial, prejudiced, vicious, and often malicious productions of the average anti-Mormon scribblers, and so play into each others hands.

A decent Infidel would despise himself if found treating Christianity after that manner, and he in turn would be despised by all right minded people. These anti-Mormon writers are walking in the hateful footsteps of the defamers and persecutors of the early Christians, the reformers in Europe and America, and the men and women of progress and advanced thought of all times. They are "hail fellows" with those who slandered, whipped and burned the Quakers, basely persecuted the Waldenses, Huguenots, Covenanters, early Methodists, Independents, Baptists, and are of those who stoned and slew abolitionists and leading temperance workers in America. They will find their own level by and by, and will be assigned their proper place when impartially judged in the light of their own works, and will be found to have been blind, bigoted partisans.

Honorable, sensible people will not accept as true the partial, perverted portrayals of the infidel when he denounces the Christian religion; neither will they accept as sound Republican doctrine and history that which is artfully displayed by blatant Democrats, nor will they accept as true Democratic doctrine and history that which is held out to be such by crafty partisan politicians of the Republican school. They simply ask that Republicans be permitted to teach their own theories, and that Democrats have the same privilege, so that when this is done fairly they may judge of the merits of each. Common sense and common honesty demands this; and nothing less than this is fair for Mormon, Catholic, Protestant, Jew or Pagan.

If the editor of The West Side will give his readers "Mormon" doctrine and history, he should take it from authorized Mormon records, and not from the unreliable and contradictory writings of their enemies.

If we would learn of the Christianity of Christ, we must find and search his personal teachings and doings and those of his immediate ministers. If we would learn of the religion of the Brighamite Mormons, we must learn it from their authentic records and doings. And if men will learn of the doctrine and history of original Mormonism, and of the doctrine and history of the Reorganized Church, they should honestly and fairly examine their authorized and acknowledged records and then judge.

The West Side, in harmony with the preceding errors, reiterates the hoary old humbug that the Book of Mormon was "written by a Rev. Solomon Spaulding; and entitled 'Manuscript Found.'"

This editor and his kind should make a pilgrimage to Oberlin College, Ohio, see that genuine "Manuscript," as verified by the signatures of D. P. Hurlbut and many of the so-called witnesses in Howe's slanderous "History of Mormonism," learn the fact that the said Howe, Hurlbut, and a low lot of priestly abettors have humbugged the world with their unblushing falsehoods, and then learn the further fact that there is no more likeness between Spaulding's infidel, polygamous, nonsensical "Manuscript" and the Book of Mormon than there is between a lazy, lecherous, ignorant anarchist and a plain, pure, intelligent, loyal Christian citizen. In plan, method, morals, purpose, genius, religion, location, dates, size and general make-up, these two productions are as wide as the poles and as different as hades and heaven. We pity the stupidity of any who believe the theory that the Book of Mormon originated in any way with "Rev. Spaulding" and his "Manuscript," or those who still publish that evident fraud to the world.

We thank The West Side when in conclusion it says:

"Joseph Smith, Jr., has organized a new congregation, whose purpose and aim, as they say, is to restore Mormonism to its primitive purity. They denounce polygamy as being no part of the original faith, and assert that the Salt Lake branch of the church is an apostasy. The organization of which young Smith is the chosen leader, now numbers more than 30,000 adherents in the United States, Canada, and Europe. Their faith, in many particulars, is similar to that of Evangelical Christendom. They accept the Hebrew and Christian sacred Scriptures as being of divine origin, and believe in Jesus Christ as the Savior of the world from sin. Their great heresy consists in accepting the Book of Mormon as supplementary to the Christian scriptures, and Joseph Smith as being equally gifted with prophecy as the ancient Hebrew prophets. That the Mormon people, in the aggregate, are earnest, sincere, devout; that they make fairly good citizens, and are honorable in their dealings with their fellow men, we most cheerfully concede; but it is also true that they have failed to keep step with the onward march of Christian civilization."

In reference to the above we may add, that the faith of the Reorganization "is similar to that of Evangelical Christendom" just so far as the latter is in harmony with the Christianity of Christ; also that, if we "have failed to keep step with the onward march of Christianity," it is because we find it better to follow Christ than march with that kind of Christianity which turns from Christ and follows man-made creeds.

In this issue will be found an account of the massacre of a company of Saints at Haun's Mill, Missouri in 1838, taken from the Globe Democrat for October 6th. Human language is totally inadequate to portray the atrocity of this horrid transaction, perpetrated upon a religious, unoffending, defenceless people, the most of whom were women and children, and some of whom were recent immigrants and therefore strangers in a strange land. The history of religious persecutions furnishes few parallels to this shocking butchery, and what makes it most vile is the fact that it was done in "Free America;" the nation that proclaims political and religious freedom for all, and that in her charter of rights guarantees to all, "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Jesus promised, saying: "There is nothing covered that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known." And when this is fulfilled in bringing to light the facts touching the terrible persecutions of the Saints in Ohio, Missouri and Illinois, which have long been kept a secret to the world, public sentiment will undergo a radical change in favor of the Saints and will place the blame and condemnation for these foul deeds where they properly belong. God will "overturn, overturn, overturn," until the abominations that have run riot in our land are fitly exposed, denounced and destroyed. To effect this He will make the wrath of man to praise him, and use whom he will as his agents in bringing to pass his "strange act." It is well that newspaper men are making inquisition into the history of the Saints and publishing the facts they find, and also that there are many non-Mormons still living who are able and willing to furnish facts as they knew them in regard to their "Mormon" neighbors. "God governs among the nations," it is said; and it is also said that "God is just; and his justice will not slumber forever."

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

(Continued from page 620).

HAVING shown in previous numbers that the leading elders in Missouri, chief among whom was David Whitmer, never intended to use violence in obtaining lands in Missouri, nor in obtaining redress for wrongs suffered at the hands of Missouri mobocrats, nor use in any illegal ways any arms they then possessed or might possess, also that none of the ruling elders anywhere had such intentions, it is well that we now learn directly from Joseph the Seer as set forth in his statement made in September, 1835, and endorsed by John Whitmer the then editor of the Messenger and Advocate. Here it is:

To the Elders of the Church of Latter Day Saints:—After so long a time, and after so many things having been said, I feel it my duty to drop a few hints, that perhaps the elders traveling through the world to warn the inhabitants of the earth to flee the wrath to come and save themselves from this untoward generation, may be aided in a measure in doctrine, and in the way of their duty. I have been laboring in this cause for eight years, during which time I have traveled much, and have had much experience. I removed from Seneca county, New York, to Geauga county, Ohio, in February, 1831.

Having received, by an heavenly vision, a commandment, in June following, to take my journey to the western boundaries of the State of Missouri and there designate the very spot which was to be the central spot for the commencement of the gathering together of those who embrace the fulness of the everlasting gospel—I accordingly undertook the journey with certain ones of my brethren, and, after a long and tedious journey, suffering many privations and hardships, I arrived in Jackson county, Missouri; and after viewing the country, seeking diligently at the hand of God, he manifested himself unto me and designated to me and others the very spot upon which he designed to commence the work of the gathering and the upbuilding of an holy city which should be called Zion—Zion because it is to be a place of righteousness, and all who build thereon are to worship the true and living God—and all believe in one doctrine even the doctrine of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

"Thy watchmen shall lift up the voice; with the voice together shall they sing; for they shall see eye to eye, when the Lord shall bring again Zion."—Isiah, 52: 8.

Here we pause for a moment to make a few remarks upon the idea of gathering to this place. It is well known that there were lands belonging to the government, to be sold to individuals; and it was understood by all, at least we believe so, that we lived in a free country, a land of liberty and of laws, guaranteeing to any man or any company of men, the right of purchasing lands and settling and living upon them; therefore we thought no harm in advising the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons, as they are reproachfully called, to gather to this place, inasmuch as it was their duty (and it was well understood so to be) to purchase with money, lands, and live upon them—not infringing upon the civil rights of any individual or community of people; always keeping in view the saying, "Do unto others as you would wish to have others do unto you." Following also the good injunction, "Deal justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God."

These were our motives in teaching the people, or Latter Day Saints, to gather together, beginning at this place. And inasmuch as there are those who have had different views from this, we feel that it is a cause of deep regret; for be it known unto all men, that our principles concerning this thing have not been such as have been represented by those who, we have every reason to believe, are designing and wicked men, that have said that this was our doctrine:—to infringe upon the rights of a people who inhabit our civil and free country such as to drive the inhabitants of Jackson county from their lands, and take possession thereof unlawfully. Far, yea, far be such a principle from our hearts; it never entered into our mind, and we only say that God shall reward such in that day when he shall come to make up his jewels.

But to return to my subject; after having ascertained the very spot, and having the happiness of seeing quite a number of the families of my brethren comfortably situated upon the land, I took leave of them and journeyed back to Ohio, and used every influence and argument that lay in my power to get those who believe in the everlasting covenant, whose circumstances would admit, and whose families were willing, to remove to the place which I now designated to be the land of Zion. And thus the sound of the gathering, and of the doctrine, went abroad into the world; and many, we have reasons to fear, having a zeal not according to knowledge, not understanding the pure principles of the doctrine of the church, have no doubt, in the heat of enthusiasm, taught and said many things which are derogatory to the genuine character and principles of the church, and for these things we are heartily sorry, and would apologize if an apology would do any good.

But we pause here and offer a remark upon the saying which we learn has gone abroad, and has been handled in a manner detrimental to the cause of truth, by saying, "that in preaching the doctrine of gathering, we break up families, and give license for men to leave their families; women their husbands; children their parents, and slaves their masters, thereby deranging the order and breaking up the harmony and peace of society." We shall here show our faith, and thereby, as we humbly trust, put an end to these faults and wicked misrepresentations which have caused, we have every reason to believe, thousands to think they were doing God's service when they were persecuting the children of God; whereas, if they could have enjoyed the true light and had a just understanding of our principles, they would have embraced them with all their hearts and been rejoicing in the love of the truth.

[Here follows an exposition of the first principles of the gospel.—Ed.]

In bonds of the new and everlasting covenant,
JOSEPH SMITH, JR.

To JOHN WHITMER, Esq.
—Messenger and Advocate, pages 179—182.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

By card from Bro. H. A. Stebbins dated at Osceola, Iowa, October 7th, we learn he and Bro. J. R. Evans began meetings in that city the evening of the 6th and intended to continue them as long as found advisable. He further says that ten were baptized October 4th and since, at Lucas. Bro. Henry has been faithfully engaged preaching the word at different points the past three months with most excellent results, both cheering and confirming the Saints and gathering many into the fold.

Bro. Wm. Kinghorn of Birkner, Illinois, writes: "I love my HERALD and will never be without it so long as I live."

Bro. J. A. Currie, Jr., wrote from Bandera, Texas, October 3d, that fourteen were baptized there of late "and more near the kingdom."

Bro. J. W. Johnson of McFall, Missouri, wrote us under date of the 7th inst., that he attended an excellent conference at Sweet Home, Missouri, October 1st and 2d, and that he baptized two persons while there. On his return to McFall he preached at Stanberry and hopes a good work may be done there. Some Saints are located there, and others coming.

Bro. David Brand wrote September 22d that he thought if a faithful elder would visit them at Coral, Illinois, he could baptize some.

We publish an excellent letter from Bro. Henry G. Cole of Boston, Massachusetts, in which the conclusions to which he has come from the harsh teaching of bitter experience are the same as those to which observation caused us to reach years ago. We commend the thoughts and related experience to the consideration of the readers of the HERALD.

Bro. A. Haws has a column article descriptive of the faith in the Benton, Oregon, Leader, for September 30th. Bro. Haws believes in taking things by storm.

Bro. J. J. Cornish is out in the Union Advertiser, Downingtown, Michigan, for September 27th, giving Rev. Walter Sims a scoring for misstatement concerning the Saints and the faith.

Bro. George Cope, has succeeded in securing a correction of a statement in the South Wales daily News, published at Cardiff, Wales, to the effect that the Reorganized Church and the Polygamist Utah Church was one and the same. Bro. Cope and Webberly both wrote to the News and both letters were printed in the News of September 15th. Good.

Bro. and Sr. R. M. Elvin visited Lamoni from October 6th to 12th, with a view to locate here if all goes well; and the Saints made the best possible use of Bro. Elvin practicable, keeping him active in his gospel armour for four services. They were pleased with his ministrations, and hope he may soon come again.

A note from Bro. J. C. Clapp, Deer Lodge, Montana, announces that on October 2d, he baptized three more. He will start about the 14th for Kentucky and Tennessee, on missionary work. Bro. Peter Anderson was at Deer Lodge, and would occupy there for a time.

Letters from brethren C. L. Munro, Boston, Massachusetts, October 6th; R. J. Anthony, Salt Lake City, Utah; N. A. Baker, Des Moines, Iowa; Theodore Cluff, Sinking Fund, Ohio; E. Barrows, Salt Lake City, Utah; Robert Oehring, Newark, Dakota are received.

Bro. Henry J. Hudson, of Columbus, Nebraska, has been nominated by the Republicans of the county in which he lives, for the office of County Judge. Bro. Hudson is most suitable and well qualified for the office to which he has been nominated, and we sincerely hope that he will be elected.

Bro. Hiram H. Robinson obtained the use of the Knights of Labor hall in Rich Hill, Missouri, in which he was to speak the evening of October 6th; but some of the Knights of Labor, hearing that Bro. Robinson was a Mormon, protested, and the hall was denied Bro. Robinson. The Daily Review, of the town, for October 7th, noticed the proposed meeting, and after stating the fact of the denial of the hall, gives Bro. Robinson a good word, and publishes the Epitome, the whole occupying a half column of the paper—Bro. Robinson furnished them the tract.

Pres. Joseph Smith and family, and Bro. and Sr. Martin Madison, returned from the Reunion on Tuesday, the 11th, feeling well repaid for their time and trouble in making the trip.

Bishop George A. Blakeslee spent a few days at Lamoni of late, leaving for home, Galien, Michigan, on the 10th instant, in excellent health and full of faith and godly zeal.

Elder John Shippy and wife started on the 10th instant for Hersey, Michigan, he to engage in preaching the gospel, and Sr. Shippy to remain with their children.

"The American."—This valued weekly comes regularly to our table, and none of our exchanges receive a heartier greeting. It says it "aims to be right, irrespective of parties or sects," and we think it seeks to maintain that high purpose. No paper that we have met deals heavier blows against all manner of secret organizations, intemperance, and all forms of corruption in every department of society. It has lately put on a new form, and comes to us enlarged, giving promise of greater usefulness than hitherto. It is published by E. D. Bailey, 415, 4½ street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

In its new volume, beginning with the November number, The American Magazine will add some very important features to its monthly departments; these will include book reviews by Julian Hawthorne; a "Calendar of Health," by Dr. Hutchinson; and "Household Art," with illustrations, by Jennie June.

NUMBER OF BRIGHAMITES.

THE entire membership of the Brighamite Church in all the world, is estimated now at about 162,000, of which near 46,000 are children under eight years of age, thus making the number of its baptized members not far from 116,000. In January, 1853, that church claimed 33,257 in the British Isles alone. (See Mill. Star, vol. 15, page 74). Add to this number those they then claimed in Utah, Nevada, California, and throughout the United States and Canada, also in other parts of the world, and we see that their numbers have increased very slowly. It is quite probable the nine tenths of their entire membership or more, are located in the central mountain regions of the United States, and they are there surrounded on all sides by monogamous, liberty loving Gentiles. While it is probable that in January, 1853, the Brighamites numbered in all the world 75,000 to 100,000; in January, 1860, seven years after, the "Josephites," so-called, numbered probably less than 100 persons. The latter now number between 20,000 and 30,000 baptized members, while the former, it is estimated, numbers about 116,000. The Brighamite Church began to organize in 1844, out of the remains of a "rejected" church, (rejected as an organization), and in December, 1847, they further organized having many thousand distracted Saints, and their wealth, with which to build up and carry forward their work; while in 1860 the Reorganized Church ("Josephites") had only the 100 souls to help forward that church. The latter have largely surmounted the prejudices of the people, and have compelled by upright living the good opinion of their neighbors in respect to their citizenship, and all this notwithstanding they in many cases have had to bear the reproaches due alone to the Brighamite Church because of polygamy and its other evils. But the mists are clearing, and Brighamism is being held responsible for its own sins, and the Reorganization is left to answer for itself.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Joseph Dewsnup writing from Manchester, England, September 23d, says:

"The work here is onward; prospects become brighter each week. I baptized three here in Manchester last evening, and expect to baptize again on Saturday next, at Sheffield."

Bro. J. F. Burton, in a letter dated at Hastings, Victoria, Australia, August 30th, says:

"I have been up to Gelung again, baptized three more, and ordained Bro. Trembath a priest. He was the Methodist local preacher. I also baptized a young man from there last week."

Bro. A. H. Parsons, in a letter dated at Elmira, Kansas, the 10th inst., says:

"The work is onward here. Quite an interest is manifested. I had the pleasure of baptizing a young man and his wife yesterday, and more are near the door. I have been here two weeks, and never saw a better opening than in this county for preaching."

Mr. W. C. White wrote from Cordell, Alabama, October 8th, for some of our publications, and says:

"We would like for some of your elders to visit this part of the country. I think this would be a very good field to work in. This is a healthy country, many from the north are coming here and settling. Some land may be bought at $1.50 to $2 per acre."

Bro. W. J. Smith, writing from Goodenham, Ontario, October 10th, says:

"I am feeling well in the work; have baptized eleven here of late."

Bro. Albert Haws wrote October 3d, from Lebanon, Linn county, Oregon:

"I am on my way to Alsea Bay, where Bro. J. Upton lives. I succeeded in getting an article in three papers, all to come out on the same day. I send you two of them, will send the other as soon as I get it; they are in three different counties. I am going to try to reach the people through the papers as much as possible; there is no other way where there is such prejudice."

WE are permitted the following:

JONESPORT, Me., Sept. 24th.

Mrs. Abigail Alley of Palestine, writes: "We are patiently waiting for an elder to come to this land. There are four of us who desire to be baptized. Please write to cousin Andrew Tabbut about it, as he is an elder of that church. I suppose you understand that G. J. Adams once belonged to the church, but was cut off for transgression; therefore, I need to be baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, that I may become a member of the body of Christ, and in fellowship with the Saints of God. Cousin Tabbut sends me the Herald, for which I am very thankful. Its pages are perused with interest."

Sister SUSAN M. NORTON.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Should members of a branch sustain a teacher when he is certain of lay members entering saloons, drinking strong drink, and playing pool? And what course should be pursued regarding such negligence of a teacher?

Ans.—This question is difficult to answer; for the reason that knowledge upon the part of the teacher of such conduct is presumed. Persons aggrieved by such conduct and who think the teacher negligent, have the remedy of making information and complaint themselves, without waiting for the action of the teacher.

Q.—Should it be allowed, or is it permissible, for a presiding elder, or president of a district, to call upon a teacher to lead a Saints' meeting, when he (the president) is present?

A.—Yes: if he be so led.

Q.—Is it lawful during business meetings for women to make motions, second the same, and make remarks, and in fine to assume all the duties of male members, when there are a number of the latter present?

A.—Yes: if they are members of the church and branch.

Q.—If a district conference passes a resolution declaring that if an elder persistently refuses or neglects to report to the conference, is it in harmony with the law and practice of the church to enforce the above resolution?

A.—It is a question of local regulation only. There is no rule and no practice of the general church regarding it. It seems to us to be unnecessarily harsh; especially in such cases where no intentional disrespect to the church was shown.

THE following clipping we take from the Chicago Times of the 10th inst.:

THE MORMON CONFERENCE.

SALT LAKE, Utah, October 9th.—The Mormon conference closed this evening. The attendance to-day was larger than on any previous day, being estimated at ten thousand people at the afternoon meeting. This morning John T. Caine, delegate to Congress, preached a political discourse in which he expressed the hope that the government would deal more leniently with the Mormons than it had in the past. In the afternoon President Woodruff suddenly appeared in the pulpit, delivered a fifteen minutes' address, and mysteriously disappeared. He has been in hiding more than a year, and his appearance to-day greatly pleased the Saints, while it probably chagrined the federal marshals. His sermon was mild and temperate in tone, as have been all the discourses of this conference. Polygamy has not been mentioned, except incidentally on one or two occasions. The exhortations have all been to peacefulness and lives of purity, and to bear the burdens put upon them here in order to obtain the great reward hereafter. The conference has left a better feeling in the community, even the gentiles being pleased that nothing occurred to arouse the old spirit of bitterness. There is to be no church presidency as formerly, the authority being held by the apostles. George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, who were John Taylor's councilors, with him forming the first presidency, have been remanded to the council of apostles, of which council Wilford Woodruff is the head. This arrangement will be more satisfactory to the Saints, who have not taken kindly to a supreme head in the person of one man."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Where now with pain thou treadest, trod
The whitest of the Saints of God!
To show thee where their feet were set,
The light which led them leadeth yet.
The footprints of the life divine,
Which marked their path, remain in thine;
And that great life transfused in theirs,
Awaits thy faith, thy love, thy prayers!"

VIEWS FROM PISGAH.—No. I.

WE only wish it were in our power to-night to portray to the Saints, especially to the scattered ones, if it were only a small portion of the views, which from the mountain top the Saints are gaining, not of the promised land which Moses saw from there, but of the gloriously rapid spread of the work of God in these latter days. There is not a breeze from beyond the ocean, from the north, south, east or west, but comes laden with the glad tidings of gospel victory, and with calls unceasing for reinforcements to lift aloft the gospel banner. It is not in the large gatherings of the Saints only that God is manifesting himself in great mercy and power, but it is everywhere, wherever his people meet to call upon his name, that the promise "I will be in your midst and that to bless," is being most wonderfully verified. Nor is this all; there are wonderful movements in the entire world, all pointing to that yet more wonderful time which shall herald and usher in the return of Christ to the earth and to his waiting disciples. Never yet in the history of the Reorganized Church was the outlook so cheering, so glorious as it is to-day.

We will relate one little incident which occurred during the recent camp-meeting at Plum Hollow. The Methodist minister of Plum Hollow, Mr. Harris, was present at one of the prayer and testimony meetings, when among other manifestations of the Holy Spirit Bro. Calkins received the gift of tongues and also the interpretation. It was an earnest exhortation to the Saints, but especially to the elders, to watchfulness and faithfulness in their labors and the discharge of every duty, and a promise of the great things in store for the Saints in the very near future. After the meeting closed Mr. Harris went to Bro. Leeka, who had charge of the meeting, and enquired if the man who had spoken in tongues understood Greek. Upon being told he did not, Mr. Harris said to Bro. Elvin, "I have studied the Greek language for eight years, and that is the best Greek I have ever heard spoken. How a man who has never studied Greek can speak it, is more than I know. The gift of tongues is what I have been kicking against." Paul found in his day that it was "Hard to kick against the pricks," and many since his time have been compelled to learn the same lesson, and many are asking, "Lord, what would'st thou have me to do?"

The Saints in Lamoni were favored on Sunday, October the 8th, in listening to a most earnest and impressive sermon delivered by Bro. R. M. Elvin upon the absolute necessity of every one unto whom the Spirit had revealed the fact that his or her name was written in the Book of Life, so living from day to day that they might have the knowledge of its being retained there, that the assurance might be perfect unto them that Christ would acknowledge them before his Father and the angels. Near the conclusion of his discourse he related a dream, or night vision, which he recently had, and which we give below just as he wrote it down for us.

A DREAM.

On the morning of August 14th, between the hours of two and five, I dreamed that I was at a meeting some place in Nebraska, which had been called by Apostle James Caffall. The meeting came together in great haste, and Bro. Caffall, who appeared to be some twenty or thirty years older than at present, stated to the meeting as he leaned upon the desk, "It is absolutely necessary that every name should be upon record at Independence, Missouri, and we must choose some one to take the names up." I was chosen as the delegate to carry up the roll. At once I went upon my mission. The recorder's office at Independence was about 20x40 feet, the desk of the recorder was about 4½ feet wide and about 12 feet long, and every thing looked substantial, without show. A man clothed as a judge sat upon an elevated seat, the records were large. The one the recorder opened was about 4 ft. long by 2½ ft. wide, and about 8 inches thick, and the pages were brighter than any burnished metal that I ever saw. The Judge stated that each name must be testified to by two witnesses, that they had kept the whole law of God, including the law of tithing; this record was not a statistical record, but was of the character of the individual. While I was presenting the names of my report Bro. Wm. H. Kelley came in with a large roll under his left arm, and said, "I want the Kirtland report recorded, 36,000 names." He was old and stooped, his hair was long and white, as also his beard.

Bro. Elvin gave it as a dream, but we are fully persuaded in our own mind that the Spirit will bear witness to more than one Saint that it was a dream given by the Spirit of God. If there is light, if there is knowledge of the things of God in this world, the Saints are the people who possess that knowledge; and Christ has forever settled the question of responsibility where there is a knowledge of the law and yet a failure to act in accordance with that knowledge.

"And that servant which knew his Lord's will, and prepared not for his Lord's coming, neither did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes. But he who knew not his Lord's will and did commit things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few. For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required."

Is it not time that we as Saints of the Most High God realized this fact and bent every energy of our souls to the accomplishment of the work before us—the work of making our calling and election sure? "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels. He that hath an ear to hear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Lucy A. Green, Lamoni, Iowa.....	70
Sr. Lydia Dixon, Missouri,.....	00
Sr. Martha Salisbury, Glidden, Iowa.....	50
Sr. W., Lamoni, Iowa.....	25
Sr. Emma A. Elvin, Nebraska City.....	42
Srs. Mamie & Vida Elvin, Nebraska City...	24
A sister, Sandwich, Ills.,.....	00

A Sister, Lamoni, Iowa.....	20
S. K. Sorrensen and wife, May, Neb.....	45
Willis W. Kearney, Lamoni, Iowa.....	18
Sr. E. Hovenga, Stewartsville, Mo.....	00
Sr. L. M. Richards, North Platte, Neb.....	50
Sr. C. G. Monroe, Boston, Mass.....	00

LAMONI, IOWA, October 12th.

QUARRY, Ohio.

Dear Sisters:—I see some call for more of the young sisters to write for the Home Column, while others call for the aged "mothers in Zion." I can say I like to hear from all, and I have found good in every one's contributions yet published in the Column; and oh, the comfort and joy it has afforded me in my sad afflictions! Often while reading the articles of other sisters which they wrote in obedience to the Spirit's impression, my mind would be lit up by the same Spirit and grand truths shown me which I felt would be cheering to others, and I would gladly have written had I been able. I have been anxiously watching the question on what or how shall we dress? I was much in sentiment with some of the views as expressed, and while in meditation a few hours ago on this and other subjects which I felt were of importance, the Spirit came upon me as it were in a visionary form, and seemed to speak and illustrate as it spoke, and I felt to write what was given; so, being very weak and nervous, I asked the Lord to strengthen my nerveless hand till I could write it, that perchance it may do others good. The Spirit said to me, "I gave a commandment to be temperate in all things. All means all. Sleeping, working, eating, drinking, and dressing, and even all things. They who have judgment should use it to be wise." Then was presented to my mind the apostle Paul rebuking the Saints for not using their judgment; and saying to them, "Why, know ye not the Saints shall judge the world?" Again it passed before my mind's vision, that some think it hard that temporal wealth is unequally divided, and talents also. Some ten, five, and on down to one. Puny mortals! what right have we to question the motives of the allwise Creator and giver of all good? We read in his word that he giveth to all as seemeth him good, and he knows best. Has he not said, "Improve your talent, and more will be added unto you. If you improve not, what you have will be taken and given to him who improves."

Let us earnestly and lawfully strive daily to be more like him. Every tree is known by its own fruit. So, dear Saints, let us hold our banner aloft, and perish if need be, in its defense; and if we lose our mortal life in its defense, we have the sure word of God: life everlasting is our reward. So let our distinguishing features be pure, undefiled religion; and let all improve their talents, and not think their little acts unworthy.

As I don't come often to chat, and wish to encourage all I can when present, I will tell you a pretty story that gives a grand lesson. One of our dear sisters in Christ, who has done much to comfort me in my affliction, wrote it to me a short time ago. It contains a moral worthy of note and encouragement to those unable to do all they would like to do. The legend: "A certain king, that was very rich and pretended to be very good in the sight of the world, thought he would build a grand church to show how good he was, and no one else was to give a cent or do a thing toward this church. He had it so understood throughout all the country. He was to have all the praise and honor of it himself. There was a poor widow who lived near the building. She wished in her heart she could do something, yet knew she dare not. At last one day she looked and saw the horses that drew the material for the church, standing tired and fagged. Many times she thought, 'I can do something. I will get those tired horses some hay to eat.' She did so, and thought, 'as I dare do no more, that will strengthen those horses to do their work.' When the church was completed, the king's name was to be placed over the door in magnificent letters, and stating who had built this grand church and given it to God. When it was finished and the king's name seen by many, on the day set for the king to come and inspect it, he came; and many hundreds besides him to see. The king looked up to see his name. Behold it was not there, but a woman's name was there in letters of gold. The king was angry. How dare they put any one's name there but his? Who was this woman? No one knew. At last some one said a poor widow of that name lived near. The king sent for her. The poor widow was frightened. What had she done that the king had sent for her? She came, and fell trembling at his feet. He told her to arise, and asked her name. She told him, and that she was a poor widow woman. He asked her if that name inscribed over the door was hers? She looked and saw her name in letters of gold over the door. Again she fell on her knees in terrible fright. She could not account for it. What, asked the king, had she done, that her name was there? She said nothing. At last she thought of the horses; she then told him all she had done was to give a wisp of hay to the tired horses. Then he told her to arise and praise God, for he saw all he had done was nothing. His work was all for praise of man: the widow's was with an eye to the glory of God; and God caused the king's name to be obliterated, and the poor widow's placed in gold; and the king ordered that her name remain there."

Let us all do our duty with a pure heart, and an eye single to the glory of God, and the Comforter will guide us aright. Thanks to all those loved ones who have comforted me in my afflictions: not one is forgotten by

Your sister in Christ,

S. A. ROSE.

JACKSON Co., Ohio, Oct. 3d.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—Feeling somewhat depressed in spirit this evening, I was impressed to write to you. I read so many grand testimonies to the truth of this work we are engaged in, that I can not refrain from adding mine to the list. I have had the testimony time and again that this work is of God; and if we are faithful to keep the commandments we shall in the end reap life everlasting. I am still striving to do my Father's will; striving through manifold temptations and trials to let my light shine before my family and my neighbors. I have but one child, who is mine by adoption. I have pilloved his little head upon my bosom many times when he was sweetly sleeping, while the tears flowed down my cheeks at the thought of his lonely and friendless condition if the Father should call me from him; and I have prayed as fervently for the Father to spare my life to raise him as any of you could for your own, and so far the Father has heard my prayers. He is now fifteen years old, a bright manly boy, beloved by all; and if the Lord will grant my one desire, to see him one of the household of faith before he calls me hence I shall be more than repaid for the care and for the sleepless nights that I have spent with him.

Dear sisters, you that have no little ones of your own to care for, and have plenty of this world's goods, gather some lone one to your bosom, care for the homeless little ones; they are the lambs of the Father. Oh, speak a kind word to the homeless little ones. Tell them of Jesus; turn them not hungry from your door. Did any of you ever hunger for a kind word or a friendly look? If so, may God help you to bestow upon others what you once so much desired for yourselves! Scatter the seeds of kindness wherever you may be. One word kindly spoken, when the heart is sad and earthly hope has almost fled, will linger with the sad one for years to come. I can bear testimony to the truthfulness of this, for I was one of the lone ones myself. I know the power of a kind word. Let us speak kindly to the erring ones, laying aside all malice, evil-speaking one of another, all evil surmises and every thing that is calculated to hinder our communion with the Father and with the Saints.

Your sister,

MARY S. ELLIOTT.

DOW CITY, Iowa, Oct. 3d.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—I love to read the letters in the Home Column; they give me more strength, and help me to see my own faults. Impatience is my worst enemy, but I ask your faith and prayers that I may overcome that, with all other faults. I have the care of five little children, the oldest being only seven years, and I hope the Lord will give me strength that I may raise them up in the fear and admonition of his name. We live four miles from church, but we go almost every Sunday. We have excellent testimony meetings. Ever praying for Zion's cause,

I am your sister in Christ,

MELISSA S. MERRICK.

Correspondence.

TEXAS, Michigan, Oct. 6th.

Editors Herald:—We are glad to be able to report that the work of the Lord is onward in the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana district. Most of the branches have been favored with additions to their membership, and also have been encouraged through the reception of the spiritual blessings that are promised to the believers in the gospel.

Our series of two-days' meetings were a success throughout, being well attended. Many came to hear, who had not heard before. Prejudice was removed, and the saints encouraged and edified in the faith and hope of the gospel.

Only a few saints reside at Knox, Indiana, but but in the social meetings there during their two-days' meeting, (Sept. 24th), a gracious bestowal of the Holy Spirit was granted to the few present, the only visitors being Bro. R. Alcott, J. Shook, L. Scott and myself, and were greatly blessed, more than we were expecting. And on Saturday and Sunday evenings, the Court room was filled with attentive listeners to hear the preaching of the word.

The Grove meeting near Antwerp, Paulding county, Ohio, September 17th and 18th, as arranged by Bro. Springer, Bro. J. Erter, W. Lybarger, Gaston and others there, was largely attended, especially on Sunday, and was favorably noticed by the Hicksville, (Ohio) Independent, I think. Bro. Springer baptized two while we were there. Bro. W. H. Kelley gave us a flying visit in September, and helped us greatly at the meetings at Coldwater the 3d and 4th. One was baptized while he was there. Bro. J. Shook baptized two at Galien last Sunday, the 2d inst., and so the work moves on. Brethren H. Rathbun, B. V. Springer, and Leonard Scott are the ministerial force of the district, and so far as I know are doing what they can for the cause. Our ministerial corps is too few, however, and we are unable to respond to many of the calls for the preaching of the word. Bro. J. Shook, while canvassing for the sale of a very choice selection of extracts which he manufactures, does not forget the gospel, to which he calls the attention of the people on every opportunity presented. He also introduces the tracts. I came to this place the 4th inst., and am doing what I can for the good cause. I have been in the field almost without any intermission since July last. I find numbers in different places that are investigating, and favorable to the faith, and we expect them to be with us ere long. We look for a large attendance, and anticipate a blessed time at our district conference at Galien the 22d, inst., and hope one of "ye Editors" can be with us. Come, please.

We ask an interest in the prayers of all saints that we be enabled to endure to the end. Your brother and co-laborer in Christ,

C. SCOTT.

LAMONI, Iowa, Oct. 10th.

Editors Herald:—On the 10th of July I commenced a series of meetings at Kingston, Caldwell county, Missouri, continued one week, and on the following Sunday night Elder Bedall, of the M. E. Church, saw fit to make a public attack on a part of our faith, Book of Mormon, mission of Joseph Smith, &c. On the following Monday night I replied to him and stated that the matter had come to an issue, and I presented and read four propositions embracing the claims of our church and the claims of the church he represented. But Elder Bedall dare not accept them. Subsequently I have preached the word in that place with a good degree of liberty, and a deep interest manifest on the part of the congregations. I heard nothing from my propositions until about September 18th, when I received a letter from Elder Bedall, who is now very anxious for a discussion by him or his representative, containing some very cunningly arranged propositions bearing the ear marks of one Clark Braden. In my answer I so informed Mr. Bedall and refused to accept them, as they involved side issues only, and gave the desired opportunity for our opponents to throw personal dirt and filthy scandal. In a few days afterward I was called to Kingston by telegram, and when I arrived at Hamilton, on my way, I learned that Clark Braden was at Kingston making war on a part of our faith, and laboring to tear down what I had previously done. I attended his lecture on Thursday night, and before he commenced his lecture he read the same propositions that Elder Bedall had sent me some two weeks before, and he then challenged the champion of Mormonism to meet him. At the close of his lecture I arose and obtained permission to make a statement, and then read to him the propositions that I presented on the 17th of July to Mr. Bedall, stating that that was where I stood then and where I stand now. And as Elder Bedall had secured the services of Elder Braden to do work for him and annihilate the Mormons, I wanted to know if Elder Braden would accept them, and to my surprise, he told that congregation he would not. I then walked into his stand and modified the propositions, giving them as Bro. J. R. Lambert presented them to him in 1884 and asked him if he would accept them now. And he said, No. I, as well as the people, now discovered that Clark Braden would not accept anything that is fair.

I am to return there and reply to his lectures, which I shall do in plainness. The church can not afford to haul down the flag now raised at that place, and by the help of God it shall not come down. The conflict may rage, but we confidently look for victory for the truth.

H. C. BRONSON.

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Oct. 6th.

Brother Joseph:—The communications in the Herald from the different portions of the world are both cheering and instructive. I therefore contribute my mite. I have just returned from our district conference at New Port, near Santa Anna. We had a very enjoyable and instructive time besides the preaching of the word and the regular routine of business. The manifestations of God's Spirit with power were there, and were more universally bestowed upon the Saint's present than I have seen since I came to this coast. The Saints were led to rejoice in these manifestations of the gifts of the gospel, and while thus rejoicing they were made to understand that not only God has power on earth and among his people in this age, but Satan also; for the power of his satanic majesty was visibly displayed in our presence. But we were made to rejoice much when he was controlled and cast out and made to keep his place and disturb the Saints no more.

The work in and around Los Angeles is slowly but steadily gaining, both in numbers and influence. The people are beginning to learn that the "true Latter Day Saints" are a God-fearing, honest and conscientious people. Our congregations are good, and our Sabbath School also is in a good condition. And, with a few exceptions, the Saints are at peace. We all pray for Zion's prosperity and redemption.

Yours in the gospel of peace,

J. R. BADHAM.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. Oct. 10th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—After leaving Minnesota and arriving home in Independence, Missouri, I was very busy for a few days getting my family once more settled in good quarters. Since then I have preached in Independence, Kansas City, Armstrong, and am now by the wish of some here holding a series of meetings. I have spoken seven times, and expect to hold forth over next Sunday and then go home. We had a full house last night. The Saints here would like to see you and Bro. Blair here. I think now would be a good time to come. Bro. Lambert wants me to labor in the Pottowattamie district this winter, and I will do so, but I have more calls to preach in Missouri than I am able to fill.

Yours truly, JOHN C. FOSS.

PROTON, Ontario, Sept. 30th.

Bro. Joseph: We of the Proton branch have been cheered and encouraged by a short visit from Bro. R. C. Evans, who came here on the 9th of September. A Mr. Ferguson of the Campbellite profession had been and still was instructing the public concerning the so-called Mormon delusion from Braden, Stenhouse, &c.

On Sunday, 11th, Bro. Evans went to hear him, having heard that opportunity to reply would be given. He said many hard things about Joseph the Seer, the Saints, and the doctrine. Said that Joseph was killed for crime, and we held him as a martyr.

Reply was not allowed; but Bro. Evans spoke awhile on the road, and replied the next two nights at Bro. Bird's, one night at Bro. Rodger's, and one at Mr. Campbell's.

On the 22d he made a new opening in a place called Ventry, where the inhabitants seemed to think it their duty to defend their several creeds and professions with the best material on hand. The great "reformation" seemed for a time to be forgotten, and Catholics and Protestants went shoulder to shoulder to persecute the Latter Day Saints. Hence, when the Saints came out after meeting, they found one wagon plastered over with eggs, while the other, belonging to Bro. James McLean, having been driven into the yard, was left untouched. But their time was yet to come. As they passed a thicket of trees, the "Faith-defenders" showered out eggs at them. Some of the Saints got a good share, but as Bro. Evans seemed to be the principal target he got the most. Shots were also fired: one bullet striking the wheel close beside Bro. Evans; another shot grazed Sr. Maggie Bryce's head, wounding it slightly; and Sr. Bryce was struck with a stone. But God protected his people, and no one was seriously injured. Some of the Saints ran after the mob and caught four of them, who, when asked what the Saints had done to deserve such treatment, said: "He was running down our church." Next night they returned to the scene of action, feeling to "Do their duty, that was best,

Leaving to the Lord the rest."

The enemy had his forces gathered again, and it was said that they had a coat of tar for them that night. Bro. James Bryce stayed and watched them during the meeting, and as there were a lot of Saints and friends there they did not raise any disturbance, but have threatened to shoot Bro. J. Bryce.

The effects will yet be seen, and the Saints are none the weaker from coming into contact with Mr. Ferguson's arguments and Ventry's opposition, and we believe good will result to the cause of Christ because of these things. Honest people will not endorse such action.

Bro. Evans left for Masonville on the 26th. We hope he will receive better usage until we see him again. Please, Bro. Evans, make that time as short as possible. Three more have been baptized, which makes our branch now number fifty-one. We are made to rejoice while reading Bro. W. J. Smith's letter in the Herald, to know that there are souls that do so hunger and thirst after righteousness, and will not be satisfied with less than God has promised, and that God did hear the longing of his soul and verified his promise to such by sending the gospel in its fullness to him; also that he is enabled by the Spirit of the Master to "turn many to righteousness," so that even they who, by dishonest means, oppose the work only serve as instruments to drive the honest in and to show the people that the same spirit that caused Jesus and the apostles to be put to death is in the world to-day arrayed against the servants of the Lord.

Your sister,
MAGGIE CAMPBELL.

MOUND VALLEY, Kan., Oct. 3d.

Bro. Joseph:—I arrived in the Columbus branch, Kansas, the 3d of last month and attended the conference which was then in session. The preaching of the word was attended with divine help. All is peace and harmony at present, so far as I know. I entered upon my mission of preaching the word, and have visited four churches in South-Eastern Kansas. The conference sustained Stephen Maloney and myself in the mission appointed us, and I have felt very well so far, and have spoken to the Saints and those not of our faith twenty-two times with the aid of that Spirit that gives life, when I fulfilled my duty. But when I came short of this I have had to depend upon John Hawley. And when I depended on him, I had a hard struggle. On the whole I have no reason to complain. Stephen has been with me some of the time, and I have been glad of his help. But as his time has been occupied in locating his family, he has not been so actively engaged in preaching the word as he will be after this is done. We don't intend to be idle on our mission.

I go to-day to the Columbus branch, and as I left word with them passing through to this effect, I expect to preach to the people to-night, and then I shall go to-morrow to where Stephen is located. We expect to then start for the capitol of the Indian Nation, and after consulting with the leading men of the Nation we shall enter in upon our mission to that people. And when I tell you I feel well about our contemplated mission to the Lamanites, I tell you the truth. The words you wrote me concerning them before leaving home which say, "You are among the few that are qualified for that mission," impressed itself very strongly on my mind, and I believe we shall do good. In the bonds of the new covenant.

JOHN HAWLEY.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 30th.

Dear Herald:—My heart is made glad by your weekly advent, and as I peruse your columns I find much to interest and instruct and edify me. But that I can say anything worth saying, or intelligently give expression to the thoughts and ideas that often surge to my mind like a flood, has often been a question of doubt. But at this time I have been persistently urged to write, and to all my excuses and entreaties to be left to myself, this restless and determined spirit will give me no peace. I make apologies that I have no desire, no ability, and many other real and fanciful objections to committing my thoughts to paper, but to all these I only receive the command of this gentle spirit, to write.

It was the self-same spirit that more than four years ago urged me onward and upward to the Father of peace and righteousness, and yet dear reader, this spirit dwells in clay and is in the likeness and image of her creator. I beg to say to this gentle spirit that I feel no promptings of God's holy spirit and without the help and assistance and the convincing and convict-ing power of the same the words would sink helpless and be fruitless, but to all my pleadings I can gain but the one answer, I must write.

What shall the subject be? What the theme to engage the mind and interest the reader, in such a busy world and so full of excitement and pleasure on the one hand, and sorrow and misery on the other? The popular question of the moment in this modern Athens of the universe seem to be base ball, the great yacht race, and politics. The unpopular ones, the great and momentous questions of government, of temperance and labor, and the many individual and associated efforts at reform. But to me there is but one engrossing subject; for within it is comprised the gem, the loved, that shall eventually level and subjugate all things, and bring from this lightness and gayety on the one hand, and fear and trembling on the other, "the desire of all nations"—and that is "this gospel of the kingdom." It has to me, settled one and every question with which mankind are to-day struggling. It settles these questions from the fact that God himself and not man devised the law; and further, that that law reaches from heaven to hell itself, and is perfect, and will bring all its subjects to that state of perfectness as regards to law, and enable them as individuals and citizens of its bounteous provisions to live in righteousness and peace, purity and love, from the fact of the knowledge that is begotten under its divine command.

This may seem to many a sweeping statement, borne in ignorance, and not arrived at by a preponderance of evidence; that it is all bosh and not worth a thoughtful man's consideration. So I, but a few short years ago, would have said, and the author of such foolish babblings would be only only fit for the charity and pity of his fellows, but a subject of disappointment and ridicule.

I was born in the banner state of this union on the temperance question—Maine. The first intoxicating liquor I ever drank and the first time drunkenness ever disgraced my existence, was as free as under the most liberal form of free men. In my visits in after years the question of liquor-getting and drinking was never a difficult one, and yet I want no man to understand me as speaking in defense of the liquor traffic or in denunciation of prohibition, but to me, with more than a dozen years a drinker and a drunkard, my appetite was appeased under one form of law as under another. To me, then, prohibition does not prohibit. Under the law of almost every state in this union there exists most stringent laws in regard to the sale of opium or morphine, and yet more than nine years I purchased and used it as free as water, and in all that long and fearful experience, no man, with but one exception, ever questioned my right to purchase it as free as if no statute made a penalty against its sale, and this experience covers some of the most law-abiding and intelligent communities in the union. Statutes, with severe penalties, do not prohibit the sale of this ten-fold curse of mankind. Statutory law will never give us the desire of all nations.

I have been cursed—surely not blessed,—although I have loved the "weed" and have thought it one of the greatest blessings, and it no doubt was in my then condition—for more than the majority of my years—I know what it is to spend years at the most passionate of all life's passions —the gaming table; to live in luxury, and also the most abject poverty—homeless, penniless, and alone in a great city; I know the worthlessness and un-brotherhood of so-called institutions when man really needs that friendship, and I go so far as to say no matter the cause which brought him low, that is not for man to consider. I have found such institutions and such associations a mockery and a delusion, and while others may find joy and happiness in oath-bound alliances I simply say from the stand-point of experience, I proved them and found them wanting.

I raise my voice (if ever I should) not against what is good and pure and tends to elevate fallen humanity, but what is better, that law which has within it the germs of eternal life, a law whereby man willingly becomes obedient to the forceful enactments of man. My testimony, then, is this—I have come to the knowledge that God exists; that by his power he set me free—with knowledge it enables me to overcome tobacco, rum, opium, passion, hate, envy, jealousy—teaches laws of cleanliness and good behavior, to prove all things, the claims of a gospel messenger, and the principles of a life in Christ—faith, repentance, and baptism, etc., and more than all a still greater desire—now that I have, through God's mercy, been so favored, keep this faith by a right living to the end.

I can not say, that in all this multiplicity of words there has been that assistance of the Holy Spirit, but that the material facts in this testimony are true, the very pavements—could they give utterance—beside a mighty multitude, inside the church, and more especially out, would bear witness, In the truth,

HENRY G. COLE.

19 Cortes street.

MULBERRY, Cal., Sep. 27th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I have just finished copying the "Experience and testimony of Bro. Jeremiah Root," which I herewith send you for publication. He wishes me to say that he had me write it for him, as he is quite feeble. We both sat in his room at his son's, Bro. John F. Root, who is keeping a hotel one mile from here, (my home). He told me this same story of his heavenly flight only three or four days after it happened. He told it then the same as now. I will say for "Grandpa Root," (for such we all call him), that he is not what is called a visionary man, but one who wants to see everything established upon facts. I am satisfied that he experienced all he testifies to. He is now anxious to have it published, for he feels that it may be but a short time till the Lord may take him. He feels sorry to ask so much space in the Herald, but says he feels it to be his duty. He also says that since it was written he has felt that a load was removed from his shoulders. He sends his best wishes and love to yourself and family and to Bro. Blair, and all in the office. I feel encouraged when I hear such strong and substantial testimonies from the tried and true. Paul was not sure whether, when in vision, he was in or out of the body. But "Grandpa Root" is positive that he was "out of the body."

Yours in bonds,

J. H. LAWN.

EXPERIENCE AND TESTIMONY OF BRO.
JEREMIAH ROOT.

Dear Herald:—I desire to bear my testimony to all who may be interested, and I know of no better way than to ask you to bear it upon your fair pages to your many readers. I have refrained from making public this testimony until the present for the following reasons: I felt that some who would see it in print might think that I felt somewhat disposed to boast of my blessings; then again, that others would not only disbelieve—but slur and speak disrespectfully of that which, to me, is most sacred. But for the last few days it has been so strongly impressed upon my mind, both night and day, that I should make it public, that I now do so gladly, and I do it for the good of all who may believe.

I was born in the town of Strafford, Orange county, Vermont, January 18th, 1802, and therefore am now nearing the end of my eighty-sixth year. I was well and intimately acquainted with the martyred prophet, Joseph Smith, and all his father's family. I first saw him and heard him preach, in the fall of 1832, in Kirtland, Ohio, in his father's frame barn. And while he stood upon a large dry goods box and expounded the Scriptures, I became so much interested that I took my station on the haymow, so that I might get a good look at him, as well as to hear all he said. He spoke to the Saints teaching them to live faithful, and exhorted them to be diligent. Near the close of his discourse, while he was thus exhorting them to diligence and faithfulness, Lo! I beheld a bright light encircle his head! It was a brilliant, transparent, mellow light. This is as near as I can explain or describe it. And I knew at the time that it was a heavenly light, and heaven's endorsement of that man. And, to speak the honest sentiments of my heart, it seemed to me then that he was more than a common man, and I felt that I must speak to him. Therefore, as soon as the meeting was dismissed I hurried out to the big gate, for I knew it would be impossible for me to speak to him in the throng of people who were then present. And he being some taller than any other man present, I could see him coming before he got to the gate where I was. He was walking arm in arm with another man, and as he was about to pass me I put my hand upon his shoulder, and he turned and asked me what I wanted. The crowd passed on, and I said to him, "I want to ask you a question, and I want you to tell me the truth." Then he said, "Brother, inasmuch as I am able, I will answer it." I then said to him, "Is this the true Church of Jesus Christ which you are representing and have just been talking about? or is it not?" "Brother," said he, "I will pledge my soul for yours in eternity that it is." He then turned and passed on.

This circumstance made a strong impression on me, and it has ever remained with me till the present moment, and it always has been an abiding testimony to me that Joseph Smith was called of God to do a great work in this dispensation, yet I did not join the church till December, 1835. But since then I have suffered persecution with the Saints in all places in early days except in Missouri.

After brother Joseph's martyrdom it fell to my lot to be deceived, and together with others I followed Brigham Young to Salt Lake. When there I soon found from what I heard and saw transpiring all around me, that what I had heard brother Joseph say concerning Brigham Young was sadly but surely coming true, and that was that "if he (Brigham Young) should ever get the chance to lead the church, he would lead it to hell!" Well, I soon left there, and I rested my faith on the testimonies which I had received, with the hope and firm belief that at sometime in the near future from then that "young Joseph" would come forward and take his father's place at the head of the church proper. And now I thank God that I have been spared to see my hopes fulfilled, and that my name is enrolled among those who have tried to live according to the teachings of Holy Writ.

I will now relate a vision which I had, if it be proper to call it by that name. But to me it was and is a reality. Five years ago this fall I was sick at the house of my son-in-law, Elder J. M. Range, near Hollister, in this State. I was so low that my relatives and friends who watched at my bedside despaired of my recovery. I overheard them, at one time, in the adjoining room, talking about it, and among other things heard them say, "he is nearly gone." I had told my wife, before this, that I was not alone in my sufferings, that I had a partner with me who was taking part of my aches and pains. For it seemed to me that there was a heavenly messenger with me all the time when I was at the worst, and he seemed to share with me in my sufferings. Finally the time came that my spirit left my body; and I, with my guide, (for such I call the heavenly personage who was with me), was both wafted into a mansion above. And after arriving at the gate by which we entered the mansion, as I stood there, I looked back to earth and saw my own body lying on the bed, on the left side, just as I had left it. I then looked to the left of where I stood, and apparently downward, and saw many people coming toward the large mansion which stood just at my right. I then asked my guide what this meant, and he said: "These are they which have been cast into prison, and have there had the gospel preached to them, and have received it, and are now coming to enter this mansion and another probation." And I beheld that as soon as they came to the gate where I stood, which was the entrance to the mansion, that they would there cast off their old garments and put on white robes and enter through the gate into the mansion. For there was also standing at the gate a porter who allowed them to pass through as soon as they were clad with the white robe. Then I and my guide also entered through the gate into the mansion.

The first thing I noticed, when inside, was just at the left of the entrance a large scroll or parchment, which was steadily revolving around, and somewhat resembled a large header reel, only that it was completely covered with paper or parchment to write upon, and a scribe stood by it recording the names of those who entered. It appeared to me that this scroll was completely checkered with names. I then took a view of the mansion, as far as my eyesight could extend. But I could not see the full extent of it. It was beautiful to behold; for it was filled with a brilliant, transparent light.

It was then made known to me that I must return to earth, and that I should get well. I then returned and entered my body, and then told my friends that I would get well, and soon after told them where I had been, and of my glorious experiences.

In conclusion I want to exhort you all to be faithful to your holy religion, to your God, and to each other; for the time is near that we shall reap if we faint not. I am able to do but little, but that I feel to do willingly; and while I live I intend to try, by the help of God, to bear my testimony to his noble work established in this dispensation. And when the time comes for me to pass within the veil, I hope and trust that I shall be permitted to enter the mansion where the faithful and true are entering day by day. My faith is firm and unshaken in this glorious latter day work. And my prayer is that it may speed steadily onward, increasing in power and might, as I firmly believe it will, until all shall be compelled to surrender to King Emmanuel.

Your brother in Christ,

JEREMIAH ROOT.

DEE, Arkansas, Sept. 30th.

Dear Herald: I applied to Bro. Peters for the Voice of Warning, received fourteen copies, have sold four, and the remaining ten are out in the hands of the people. They seem to be well pleased with them. One man says it was a good thing for him that he got in possession of it as soon as he did, for he was just ready to deny all Divine authority, &c. Another it is said of him that "he is as firm as the rocks, yet this low down Mormon doctrine has proselyted him." I know for myself that this latter day work is of God, and am sorry that I can't do more for it than I do. I long to see the time that I shall be able to do more for the Master's cause. My experience in this work is very limited. I have not heard a sermon since Bro. Caffall preached to the Saints in Manassa, Colorado, in 1884. The Herald is all that has been my guide since then, and I could not live without it. I am here alone, and wolves howl around me.

A Campbellite parson said Joseph Smith was an impostor. I asked him to affirm it and I would deny in a discussion. He backed down. I may stand to-day as one excluded or dropped from the church; but I am sure of one thing, it is not for any crime more than being absent from any branch that I have not been reported. My situation is rather peculiar, and would like if there was some way to remedy it, I would be glad to do it. I feel well in this latter day dispensation, and hope I will not be lost altogether from the commonwealth of Israel.

Brethren and sisters, pray for me that I may be able to perform my duties and attain to a good degree of glory in the end.

Yours for the truth,

W. P. IVIE.

BEELER, Kansas, Sep. 24th.

Dear Herald:—The Homestead branch was organized here July the 17th, with Elder Wm. M. Goreham president. We hold our meetings in a sod house, two and a half miles north of Beeler station, and the Spirit of God meets with us in our humble meetings as well as though in a fifty thousand dollar church. I never enjoyed the Spirit more than during the past summer. Bro. A. H. Parsons and G. W. Shute, in the beginning of August held a two weeks meeting in an unfinished store house in Beeler, had good attendance and had the Spirit of the Master with them. The only regret with the outsiders was that the brethren had to go so soon to attend conference. Bro. Parsons has gone to the south-east, but Bro. Shute is back again with us and we hope for a good stay. There is plenty of work here for five times the force we have.

We raised no crops here to speak of this year—dry weather the cause—yet we live and hope and watch and pray and try to set an example every day. We are, thank God, gaining ground. Prejudice is vanishing until a "Mormon" (as we are called) is as much respected as any, and in point of religion are above par. One said to me, "You folks have Bible for everything; and it is true, too." But now the fevers are raging here, and everybody's hearts are failing them for fear, while famine and God's judgments are abroad in the land, not only here, but everywhere.

Yours in hope,

W. F. CLARK.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

"LOST ISRAEL FOUND," REVISED.

THE VAIL OF DARKNESS LIFTED FROM THE FAVORED NATIONS AND ISRAEL IDENTIFIED.

IN the North Atlantic Ocean, lying directly across the path of that mighty oceanic river, the Gulf Stream, are two islands complacently prospering in its warm embrace. These islands contain exactly the same number of thousand square miles as the territory of New Mexico and a population of forty million human beings. By some wonderful agency, however, these small islands have so asserted their moral and physical superiority over the nations as to hold in subjection continents, territories, islands and possessions almost boundless in area, and whose population number like the "stars of heaven," or the "sands of the sea." Believing that, if the vital and essential principles of the faith so well understood and appreciated by the readers of the Herald were universally known in those islands, that from thence they would flow to all nations and prepare them for the future collapse of nations, to this end I submit to the intelligent and inspired reader the important and startling proposition that these islands are the home of the posterity of the Patriarch Jacob's ten favored sons. It is supposed by the writer that the reader is acquainted with the glories and immortal destiny of said posterity sufficiently that, if this proposition is proved true, it will so quicken his understanding that the church collectively and individually may feel encouraged and increased in faith, hope and charity, as well as in the light and knowledge of the means of accomplishment of God's work in these days.

I wish to introduce to the Kingdom of God its natural friend which before the apostasy gave such grand and blessed evidence of its recognition and appreciation, leaving to God the great future and the developments which these things may bring about. Of the twelve tribes of Israel, on account of a previous estrangement, ten had withdrawn, appointed a king of their own and set up a separate government known as the Nation of Israel, the other two tribes being known as Judah.

Samaria was the capitol of the former and Jerusalem of the latter. These nations had been engaged in building a costly temple at Jerusalem, but by the exactions laid on them to build it the ten revolted and became a separate nation. By this they were cut off from worshipping at Jerusalem and soon so far departed from the law of Moses as to erect idols on the hills of Samaria and worship them. While in this condition prosperous Judah acquired a strip of territory from Jerusalem to the Mediterranean sea, completely cutting off the tribe of Simeon and a portion of the tribe of Dan from the rest of Israel. While thus divided, the king of Assyria came against Israel, B. C. 725, seized Samaria and made captive all the tribes which were to the north of Judah and carried them to Assyria and gave them a home along the river Gozan in eastern Assyria. The deportation was complete. Not an Israelite remained in Samaria is proved by the fact that the colony who re-inhabited Samaria sent for one of these captives to return and explain to them the use of the temples and places of sacrifice which the Israelites had erected.

We will now leave these captives in Assyria and return to Dan and Simeon, who dwell along the sea coast south of Judah, on account of which they escaped the Assyrian calamity which overtook their unfortunate brethren. The Bible informs us that Dan was a mariner, and that he "abode in his ships," (Judges 5:17), and that some two hundred and fifty years before this he had been employed in company with the Phœnicians in importing tin from Brittany, now Cornwall, England. Accordingly, to escape both the Assyrians as well as Judah, with both of whom they were at enmity, they embarked from the coast of Judea and sailing westward by way of Tarshish through the strait of Gibraltar entered the Atlantic ocean, and, though they undoubtedly desired to make the coast of Brittany, they were driven by a severe storm past those islands and effected a landing on the coast of Scandinavia. Here the mariners soon found their mistake, and re-embarking sailed south to the north coast of Ireland. Here Dan made a permanent settlement, placing Simeon, meanwhile, on the opposite coast or Scotland. By the close relationship between them a friendly intercourse was kept up by which we have the Scotch and Scotch-Irish races of to-day; and if you wish proof of their mental superiority, examine the list of names in the English and American legislative bodies for representatives of this race, or go to the ranks of Journalism or any other high walk in life. These Tuatha Danian (words meaning "tribe of Dan") left such significant Hebrew words as "Dan Sobairse" near Carrick Fergus and shown on Ptolemy's map of Ireland, and which is literally Hebrew for Dan's resting place; and also "Dan Sovar" in Hebrew, meaning Dan in exile.

We wish further on to furnish indisputable proof from scripture and other sources of the truth of this entire theory, placing it beyond any reasonable cavil whatever, which is the object of revising it and reproducing it in the Herald. It has been mentioned that the tribe of Dan divided, a portion going northward to the city of Laish to secure more territory for their increasing numbers. This city they destroyed as had been commanded in the time of Joshua, and built for themselves a city and called it Dan. This Dan which went into Assyria becoming restless, was the first to separate from his captive brethren, and, going to the north of the Black Sea to escape the Assyrians, he travels on in the direction of his separated brethren, either knowing their whereabouts or being directed by an unseen power that way. The first river he crossed he named Dan,—now Don. The next Daniester,—now Dniester—and another Danieper,—now Dnieper—to the Danube, which name philologists tell us means, literally, the settlements of Dan. Here he made a temporary settlement; but still some influence was leading him onward and he follows up this great river nearly to its source and soon reaches the coast and its contiguous islands of the Baltic sea, of all which he takes possession and names Danemarsch,—now Denmark. Here he flourished for centuries, filling the surrounding nations with awe at his almost miraculous military valor and making the very name of northmen a terror to all southern Europe. We have now tracked Simeon to Scotland and Wales; and Dan, one part of Ireland where we will soon find him with an organized government and by similar proof as before mentioned in their case we have traced the other Dan to Denmark and its possessions in and along the Baltic Sea.

We wish to introduce now to the readers' attention the Prophet Jeremiah. He was of the tribe of Judah, and consequently his work was at Jerusalem with the Jews. The Lord said to him, "See, I have set thee this day over all the nations, and over the kingdoms, to pluck up and break down, to destroy and overthrow, to build up and to plant." (Jer. 1: 10). The Bible informs us of the awful warnings Jeremiah gave the Jews of their speedy downfall if they did not repent of their sins which he charged home to them with great power, but to no avail. Accordingly the king of Babylon came, the Jews were defeated, their king, Zedekiah, taken, his eyes put out, his sons slain and his daughters placed in the care of Jeremiah. The king of Babylon also charged his chief captain, Nebuzaradan, to provide for all the wants of Jeremiah, to give him liberty to dwell and go wherever he wished, and withhold from him nothing which he desired. That great and magnificent temple was also sacked by Nebuchadnezzar and the sacred vessels taken out and carried to Babylon. The vessels were all specified and numbered at this time, as also when they were returned by Cyrus some seventy years after this; but in neither case is any mention made of the Ark of the Covenants. Now why this silence concerning this most sacred object of God's magnificent house? It is stated positively in 2nd Maccabees that Jeremiah, knowing the temple would soon be destroyed by fire, removed from thence the Ark of the Covenant to a place of safety in the mountains, and it is presumed that he also took at this time the stone upon which Jacob rested his head at Bethel, and anointing said, "This is Bethel," as a witness of the promise God there made to him and his posterity of that land as an earthly and immortal heirship. These, Jeremiah and Baruch who was with him at Jerusalem, took and carried away safely out of the land of Israel's promise soon to fall into the hands of the heathen power. But Jeremiah had a commission of planting and building. His sad cry at Jerusalem was of warning the Jews of their speedy destruction, and then the still sadder spectacle of seeing it fulfilled before his eyes and ended there in lamentation and woe. But still he had a commission of planting and building which he must yet fulfill.

It is true that Jeremiah left Jerusalem and went to Egypt with those who had gathered around him, but this was contrary to his wishes. He seems to have gone there in order to save a few (Baruch being one of them), whose life should be spared from the destruction which he prophesied awaited them if they persisted in going there. And as Baruch was permitted to return, it is of course probable that Jeremiah also returned to the mountains of Judea where he buried the Ark of the Covenants, which even the Oxford edition of the Bible in its notes assert that he did do.

Now in the reign of Eochiad II, according to the Irish record, a wise, holy man came to that country from the east, bringing with him his scribe Brugsch, (probably Baruch), also a beautiful princess named Teph. In the course of time Eochiad sought to marry Teph, to which this holy man (inferred to be Jeremiah, and the princess daughter of Zedekiah, last king of Judah) assented on condition that the government should be purged of all Baalism and based upon the divine law which he had brought with him. This was assented to and the marriage solemnized singularly on a peculiar stone brought by these two men with them from the east. This stone was given the name of Lia Phail, the prefix only being Irish (though it now forms a compound word) and the root Hebrew. The whole signifying the stone wonderful, or the stone of destiny. I offer a distich translated by Sir Walter Scott from the Irish-Celtic dialect:

"Unless the fates are faithless grown,
And Prophets voice be vain;
Where'er is found this sacred stone,
The wanderers race shall reign."

This verse is very indicative, as it shows this ancient memento was consecrated to the sacred keeping of the line of sovereignty just perfected and set up by this marriage, now intended to perpetuate it with prophecy, showing that these two men were prophets. This stone was handed down by the instructions of these holy men to Fergus 1st, of Ireland, who took it over to Scotland B.C. 320, and thence down through each succeeding reign in Scotland to the joint reign of James 6th of Scotland and James 1st of England, and thus down to Victoria, the present sovereign of Great Britain. Dean Stanley, in his memorials of Westminster Abbey, says: "The chief object of attraction to this day, to the innumerable visitors of the abbey, is probably that ancient Irish monument of the Empire known as the coronation stone."

There, just beneath the coronation chair, supported by four miniature lions, may be seen this wonderful relic to-day. That a similar stone supported the head of the Patriarch Jacob when he had his vision at Bethel; that it was anointed by him for a witness for some sacred purpose; that such a stone was in the temple at Jerusalem, and known as the Eben Schethia; that such a one was brought to Ireland and used in this manner; that it has two rings cemented in it to make it portable in its long journey,—all seem to indicate that it will yet be used to prove the descent from and heirship of the British people to Jacob, and God's blessings to him and his posterity. For the great importance of the marriage of Teph and Eochid, thus setting up the throne of David over this people, even while the last King of Judah was yet alive, we refer to the identifications further on. When this princess died, however, in Ireland, her husband constructed a great mausoleum for her, in the center sixty feet square, into which her body was placed, and over this tomb was constructed a great mound called Tard, a pure Hebrew word, signifying two tables. So strong is the supposition that the Ark of the Covenants was brought to Ireland and placed in this mound that a company was recently formed in England to excavate for its recovery. It is asserted that Jeremiah established in Ireland the "school of the prophets," the supreme judgeship, and several other Hebrew institutions; and as his commission was to "overthrow and destroy" at Jerusalem, which was so sadly fulfilled, how completely he fulfilled also his commission "to plant and to build," even in the establishment of "David's throne" in the "Isles of the Sea."

We will now return to the main body of Israelites, the eight tribes yet remaining in Assyria. Before their captivity they had so completely departed from the true God as to worship idols, and now in the "land of their destruction," looking for some way of escape and means to accomplish it, the reader will discover their motives in discarding every trace possible of their identity of religion, manners, customs, tribal relations, and even of their name. The Bible says that "Israel shall be called by another name," (Isa. 65: 15.) So when engaged in successful conquests eastward, penetrating into the nations of southern Asia, and those nations, greatly alarmed at Israel's increased numbers and military prowess, began to enquire who these were, and whence they came, and the evasive answer was, "Saca Suni;" meaning lost, or unknown.

Now while extending their conquests far eastward into southern Asia, a child was born there said to be of this same race, named Saca Muni. This child from youth manifested an almost miraculous knowledge and religious character. He soon gained complete ascendancy over the dense population of those countries and established a religion founded on the principles of the Decalogue, which to-day has 200,000,000 followers. God promised to Abraham and to Jacob, "in thee and thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Probably Israel did not realize that these nations could be in any way related to them. They had probably forgotten that a dusky race had sprung from their faithful progenitor through the issue of Keturah, to whom their mission was an unknown blessing, and which race would lay untold riches, wealth, gold, and willing subjects and allies, numbering like the stars of heaven, at their feet in the last days. Reader, do you entertain narrow or selfish opinions of God's great work, for the accomplishment of which he has ordained a period of "preparation?" If so, what does the following declaration of one of the apostles mean,—“And the sixth angel poured out his vial on the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.” Rev. 15:12.

In returning to the favored race and their departure from this region, we will mention that the great English historian, Macauley, on the authority of Strabo, Herodotus, Diodorus, Pliny and Ptolemy, traces back the origin of his nation to this very region and time of Israel's exile there.

1st.—We now offer evidence of Israel's place or places of sojourn down to the time of Christ and the apostles. By Josephus, Ant. Book II chapter 5: “But then the entire body of the people of Israel remained in that country; wherefore there are but two tribes in Asia and Europe subject to the Romans, while the ten tribes are beyond Euphrates till now, and are an immense multitude not to be counted by numbers.”

2d.—From Esdras 13:39, 48: “And whereas thou sawest that he gathered another peaceable multitude unto him, those are the ten tribes which were carried away prisoners out of their own land in the time of Osea the king whom Shalmanezer the king of Assyria led away captive, and he carried them over the waters and so they came into another land. But they took this counsel among themselves that they would leave the multitude of the heathen and go forth into a further country where never man dwelt that they might keep their statutes which they never kept in their own land. And they entered into Euphrates by the narrow passages of the river. For the Most High then showed signs for them and held still the flood till they passed over. For through the country was a long way to go, namely, of a year and a half. And the same region is called Arsareth. Then dwelt they there until the latter time,”—that is, to the age of the Messiah. Herodotus, said to be an Israelite, also confirms the above account of Israel's emigration to, and residence in Arsareth for a period of 500 years.

3d.—Christ commanded his apostles to “go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of Samaritans enter ye not, but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.”—Matt. 10: 5. Accordingly the apostles made their way into Cappadocia, Galatia, Macedonia and Illyricum. Now these are mostly, if not altogether situated in the very region to which by the above authorities, sacred and profane, we have traced the entire remaining race of Israel, (Judah excepted), and where they remained until the time of Christ and the apostles. Now if these evidences are satisfactory that Israel remained in these regions until the time of Christ, it completely cuts off and disproves all other baseless notions, theories, conjectures and surmises of unenlightened and uninspired men which have traced this people, nationally, to different parts of the earth, to Japan, to China, to any particular island or coast or to the polar zones for a period of eight hundred years after their captivity. This, I think, leaves them all without any foundation whatever, for the history of these Saca Suni Scythian hordes from this time forward we think is full and reliable, startling and providential and plainly indicates their gradual course northward until they reach their destination in the “north countries” and “Isles of the Sea.” Considerate reader, this is the seemingly obscure period of Israel's history, and we will now call your attention to this great fact, that the Anglo Saxon race was soon to be developed from these singular wanderers, which race at the present time fulfill all and every condition of ancient or modern prophecy concerning the ten lost tribes of Israel, at the same time asking you to refer to any nation or race known or unknown in the north, south, east or west who can possibly fulfill one fourth of these conditions. Venerable Latter Day Saint and brother, permit me also, carefully and with the greatest honor and circumspection to call your attention to the fact, proved from scripture further on, that all Judah and all the tribes of Israel, nationally, are to be gathered yef in the flesh to Judea not America, by the great work of God's omnipotent power. I think these evidences ought to disprove all other theories, however flimsy, and place the history of God's chosen people beyond the reach of any further speculation. We will now pass hastily over the history of these Saca Suni or Scythian tribes whose territory north of the Black Sea was now called Scythia. This name was evidently derived from the Hebrew word Succoth, indicating the temporary nature of their habitations. These people were a mystery to great, imperious, arbitrary Rome. They seemed to have a natural enmity for the great beast, and as often as the latter sent her well equipped cohorts against them, they were nearly always cut to pieces, defeated, slain. I will mention one of these battles. The scene of it was the headwaters of the Ems and Weser rivers, and called the Tentobergiensis. Sir Edward Creusy calls it one of the decisive battles of the world. It lasted two days. Quintilius Varus commanded the Roman Legions, and Arminius the Scythian forces. The result of this battle was so fatal to the Romans that it filled all Rome with an agony of terror.

Caesar Augustus was so alarmed and mortified at this defeat that he afterward exclaimed bitterly, “Quintilius Varus, give me back my Legions!” Now of this battle we will give the following indicative comment of England's great historian: “Had Arminius been supine or unsuccessful, our Germanic ancestors would have been enslaved or exterminated, this island never borne the name of England, and we, this great English nation, whose rule and language are now overrunning the earth from one end of it to the other, would have been utterly cut off from existence.”

In the second century of the Christian era these Scythians also yet called Saca Suni and Cimmerians, are found to have emigrated to a fertile province of Germany, viz., Saxony. This name is evidently derived from Saca Suni, it being almost identical. The promise to Israel was, “In Isaac shall thy seed be called.” They had been called either Saca Suni, Scythians, or Cimmerians, the last name being only a slight variation from Samaritans. But we now find them called Anglo Saxon. This prefix seems to have been derived from the Hebrew word Engel, a contraction of Ephraim, and the repeated use of the word “Isaac's sons,” to have given rise to the word Saxones now Saxon, hence Anglo Saxon would mean the Ephraim Isaac people. The ingress of the Anglo Saxons into England occurred in A. D. 446, to 459. Here they established themselves into eight little kingdoms called the ochtarchy, corresponding to the eight tribes of Israel. In A. D. 800 these small kingdoms were consolidated and the crown put on Egbert's head. This was the beginning of the present government of Great Britain. The Danish invasion followed, keeping England in a restless condition until A. D. 1066, when William the Conqueror came over from Normandy and at the Battle of Hastings subdued the whole and put the crown on his own head. And who were these Norman invaders under Cromwell? It is asserted by the best authority that they were none other than the tribe of Benjamin who left Judah previous to the Babylonish invasion and went north to Tarsus where they remained until after the taking of Jerusalem by Titus. Here St. Paul was born at Tarsus who claimed he was an “Israelite of the tribe of Benjamin.” From Tarsus the Benjaminites went north through Asia Minor into Europe where they find Dan in Denmark. While in northern Europe they showed great military valor in their dealings with the nations and finally made their way south through Belgium and Holland to France where one of the feeble heirs of Charlemagne ceded to them a fertile province which they named Normandy—(Northern). In one of the three stupendous crusades against, or rather for, Jerusalem in the middle centuries these Normans readily engaged, and whose valor was doubtless the means of making one of them successful in recovering the Holy City for a short time from the grasp of Mohammedanism. After Willaim the Conqueror's accession to the throne of England, he at once encouraged these Norman to make England their home, which they accordingly did. Indeed, it is asserted that William was literally descended from this branch of supposed Israel who so many times emerged from the "north country" of scripture (northern Europe) to the terror of southern Europe. The Pope of Rome was no friend of William the Conqueror, and the Roman Catholics regarded him as the cruellest foe of that people the age has ever produced, and yet his letters to his family and friends were as full of tender religious sentiments as were those of the good kings of Israel of old in her palmiest days. By this you see that all the successful invasions of England has tended to gather together and consolidate all the outcast tribes of Israel, except the one portion of Dan, into the one government of Great Britain. O, what an ominous future await these nations. As if to cement them all into one union the Prince of Wales has selected his consort from the Royal Family of Denmark, the pride of Copenhagen, the worshipped Jewel of the realm. Think you, O reader, that the following prophecy of Ezekiel, uttered 138 years after the Assyrian captivity, will yet be fulfilled?—"And say unto them, thus saith the Lord God: Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land. And I will make them one nation in the land on the mountains of Israel, and one king shall be king to them all, and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all."—Ezek. 37: 21, 22.

MAHLON SMITH.

[Concluded next week.]

Selections.

WHY AM I A HEATHEN.

WONG CHIN FOO, who will be remembered as the interpreter in the Chinese murder case in this city, [St. Louis] contributes a remarkable article to the current number of the North American, of which the following is an abstract:

Born and raised a heathen, I learned and practised its moral and religious code; and acting thereunder I was useful to myself and many others. My conscience was clear and my hopes as to future life were undimmed by distracting doubt. But when about 17 I was transferred to the midst of our showy Christian civilization, and at this impressible period of life Christianity presented itself to me at first under its most alluring aspects; kind Christian friends became particularly anxious for my material and religious welfare, and I was only too willing to know the truth.

I had to take a good deal for granted as to the inspiration of the Bible—as is necessary to do—to Christianize a non-Christian mind; and I even advanced so far under the spell of my would-be soul-savers that I seriously contemplated becoming the bearer of heavenly tidings to my benighted heathen people.

But before qualifying for this high mission the Christian doctrine I would teach had to be learned, and here on the threshold I was bewildered by the multiplicity of Christian sects, each one claiming a monopoly of the only narrow road to heaven.

I looked into Presbyterianism only to retreat shudderingly from a belief of a merciless God who had long forfeited most of the helpless human race to an eternal hell. To preach such a doctrine to intelligent heathen would only raise in their minds doubts of my sanity, if they did not believe I was lying.

Then I dipped into Baptist doctrines, but found so many sects therein, of different "shells," warring over the merits of cold-water imitation and the method and time of using it, that I became disgusted with such trivialities; and the question of close communion or not, only impressed me that some were very stingy and exclusive with their bit of bread and wine, and others a little less so.

Methodism struck me as a thunder-and-lightning religion—all profession and noise. You struck it, or it struck you, like a spasm—and so you "experienced" religion.

The Congregationalists deterred me with their starchiness and self-conscious true-goodness, and their desire only for high-toned affiliates.

Unitarianism seemed all doubt, doubting even itself.

A number of other Protestant sects based on some novelty or eccentricity—like Quakerism—I found not worth a serious study by the non-Christian. But on one point this mass of Protestant dissension cordially agreed, and that was in a united hatred of Catholicism, the older form of Christianity. And Catholicism returned with interest this animosity. It haughtily declared itself the only true church, outside of which there was no salvation—for Protestants especially; that its chief prelate was the personal representative of God on earth, and that he was infallible. Here was religious unity, power, and authority with a vengeance. But, in chorus, my solicitous Protestant friends beseeched me not to touch Catholicism, declaring it was worse than my heathenism—in which I agreed; but the same line of argument also convinced me that Protestantism stood in the same category.

In fact, the more I studied Christianity in its various phases, and listened to the animadversions of one sect upon another, the more it all seemed to me "sounding brass and tinkling cymbals."

Disgusted with sectarianism, I turned to a simple study of the "inspired Bible" for enlightenment.

The creation fable did not disturb me, nor the Eden incident; but some vague doubts did arise with the deluge and Noah's ark; it seemed a reflection on a just and merciful Divinity. And I was not at all satisfied of the honesty and goodness of Jacob, or his family, or their descendants, or that there was any particular merit or reason for their being the "chosen" of God, to the detriment of the rest of mankind; for they so appreciated God's special patronage that on every occasion they ran after other gods, and had special idolatry for the "Golden Calf," to which some Christians allege they are still devoted. That God, failing to make something out of this stiff-necked race, concluded to send his Son to redeem a few of them, and a few of the long-neglected Gentiles, is not strikingly impressive to the heathen.

It may be flattering to the Christian to know it required the crucifixion of God to save him, and that nothing else would do; but it opens up a series of inferences that makes the idea more and more incomprehensible, and more and more inconsistent with a will, purpose, wisdom, and justice thoroughly divine. * * *

It is not only because I want to be honest, and to be sure of a heavenly home, that I sign myself "Your Heathen," but because I want to be as happy as I can, in order to live longer; and I believe I can live longer here by being sincere and practical in my faith.

In the first place, my faith does not teach me predestination, or that my life is what the gods hath long foreordained, but is what I make it myself; and naturally much of this depends on the way I live.

Unlike Christianity, "our" church is not eager for converts; but, like Freemasonry, we think our religious doctrine strong enough to attract the seekers after light and truth to offer themselves without urging, or proselytizing efforts. It pre-eminently teaches me to mind my own business, to be content with what I have, to possess a mind that is tranquil, and body at ease at all times—in a word it says: "Whatsoever ye would not that others should do unto you, do you not even so unto them." We believe that if we are not able to do anybody any good, we should do nothing at all to harm them. This is better than the restless Christian doctrine of ceaseless action. Idleness is no wrong when actions fail to bring forth fruits of merit. It is these fruitless trials of one thing after another that produce so much trouble and misery in Christian society.

If my shoe factory employs five hundred men and gives me an annual profit of $10,000, why should I substitute machinery therein by the use of which I need only one hundred men, thus not only throwing four hundred contented, industrious men into misery, but making myself more miserable by heavier responsibilities, with possibly less profit?

We heathen believe in the happiness of a common humanity, while the Christian's only practical belief appears to be money making (golden calf worshiping); and there is more money to be made by being "in the swim" as a Christian than by being a heathen. Even a Christian preacher makes more money in one year than a heathen banker in two. I do not blame them for their money-making, but for their way of making it.

How would the hundreds of thousands of the Christian ministers in the United States make their living if they did not bulldoze it out of the pockets of the credulous by making the pews believe what the "pulpit" does not?

If we do anything charitable we do not advertise it like the Christian, nor do we suppress knowledge of meritorious acts of others to humor our vanity or gratify our spleen. An instance of this was conspicuous during the Memphis yellow fever epidemic a few years ago, and when the Chinese were virulently persecuted all over the United States, Chinese merchants in China donated $40,000 at that time to the relief of plague-stricken Memphis, but the Christian swallowed the sweet morsel without even a "thank you." But they did advertize it strongly, all over the world, when they paid $137,000 to the Chinese government as petty compensation for the massacre of twenty-three Chinamen by civilized American Christians, and for robbing these and other poor heathen of their earthly possessions.

China has a national history of at least four thousand years, and had a printed history three thousand five hundred years before a European discovered the art of type-printing. In the course of national existence our race has passed, like others, through mythology, superstition, witchcraft, established religion, to philosophical religion. We have been "blest" with at least half a dozen religions more than any other nation. None of them were rational enough to become the abiding faith of an intelligent people; but when we began to reason we succeeded in making society better, and its government more protective, and our great Reasoner, Confucius, reduced our various social and religious ideas into book form, and so perpetuated them.

China, with its teeming population of 400,000,000, is demonstration enough of the satisfactory results of this religious evolution. Where else can it be paralleled?

Call us heathen, if you will, the Chinese are still superior in social administration and social order. Among 400,000,000 of Chinese there are fewer murders and robberies in a year than there are in New York state.

The difference between the heathen and the Christian is that the heathen does good for the sake of doing good. With the Christian, what little good he does he does it for immediate honor and for future reward; he lends to the Lord and wants compound interest. In fact, the Christian is the worthy heir of his religious ancestors.

The heathen does much and says little about it; the Christian does little good, but when he does he wants it in the papers and on his tombstone.

When the English wanted the Chinamen's gold and trade, they said they wanted "to open China for their missionaries." And opium was the chief, in fact, only missionary they looked after when they forced the ports open. And this infamous Christian introduction among Chinamen has done more injury, social and moral in China, than all the humanitarian agencies of Christianity could remedy in two hundred years. And on you, Christians, and on your greed of gold, we lay the burden of crime resulting; of tens of millions of honest, useful men and women sent thereby to premature death after a short miserable life, besides the physical and moral prostration it entails even where it does not entirely kill! And this great national curse was thrust on us at the point of Christian bayonets. And you wonder why we are heathen?

We heathen are a God-fearing race. Aye, we believe the whole universe-creation—whatever exists and has existed—is of God and in God; that, figuratively, the thunder is His voice, and the lightning His mighty hands; that everything we do and contemplate doing is seen and known by Him; that He has created this and other worlds to effect beneficent, not merciless designs; and that all that He has done is for the steady, progressive benefit of the creatures whom He endowed with life and sensibility, and to whom, as a consequence, He owes and gives paternal care, and will give paternal compensation and justice; yet His voice will threaten and His hand will chastise those who deliberately disobey His sacred laws and their duty to their fellow-man.

"Do unto others as you wish they would do unto you," or "Love your neighbor as yourself," is the great divine law which Christians and heathen alike hold, but which the Christians ignore.

This is what keeps me the heathen I am; and I earnestly invite the Christians of America to come to Confucius.

WONG CHIN FOO.

THE HAUN'S MILL MASSACRE.

AN INCIDENT OF THE "MORMON WAR" IN MISSOURI.

Special Correspondence of the Globe-Democrat.

BRECKINRIDGE, Mo., September 27th, 1887.—In the afternoon of Tuesday, October 30th, 1838, during the Mormon war in Missouri, there occurred in Caldwell county a dreadful incident, generally termed "The Haun's Mill Massacre." From official documents and other records, from affidavits of witnesses, and from statements made by actual participants, I have prepared the following account. If any newspaper publication of the affair has ever before been made, I am not aware of the fact.

The Mormons made their first settlement in Missouri, in Jackson county, in the year 1832, under the leadership of their "Prophet," Joseph Smith. I have not the space here to describe their experiences in that county, their expulsion therefrom, their sojourn in Clay and Ray, the "treaty" by which they were given Caldwell county as a sort of reservation, the founding of the city of Far West, nor can I narrate the circumstances leading to the Mormon war (so called), and finally the banishment of these unhappy people from the State. All these incidents may form the subject of a future paper. I may state, however, that the massacre was perpetrated on the very day that the militia, under Gens. Lucas and Doniphan, arrived at Far West, with orders from Gov. Boggs to "expel the Mormons from the State or exterminate them."

At Jacob Haun's mill, on Shoal Creek, in the eastern part of Caldwell county, about eight miles south of Breckinridge, there had collected about twenty Mormon families. Haun himself was a Mormon and had come to the site from Wisconsin a few years before. He had a very good mill, and clustered around it were a blacksmith shop and half a dozen small houses. The alarm that the troops were moving against them had driven nearly all the Mormon families in the county to Far West for safety. A dozen or more living in the vicinity repaired to Haun's mill, which was twenty miles to the eastward of Far West. As there were not enough houses to accommodate all of the fugitives, a number were living in tents and temporary shelters. A few families, perhaps four, had come in on the evening of the 29th, for Ohio, and were occupying their emigrant wagons. Not one member of the little community had ever been in arms against the "Gentiles," or taken any part whatever in the preceding disturbances.

Word that the militia of the State had been ordered to expel them from the country had reached the Mormons of the Haun's mill settlement, and following this intelligence came a report that a considerable number of men in Livingston county, together with some from Daviess, had organized in the Forks of Grand River, near Spring Hill, in Livingston, and were preparing to attack them. Whereupon a company of about twenty-five men and boys, indifferently armed with shot-guns and squirrel rifles, was organized at the mill, and David Evans was chosen captain. It was resolved to defend the place against the threatened assault. Some of the older men urged that no resistance should be made, but that all should retreat to Far West. The day after the skirmish on Crooked River (October 25th), Haun himself went to Far West to take counsel of Joe Smith. "Move here, by all means, if you wish to save your lives," said the prophet. Haun replied that if the settlers should abandon their homes, the Gentiles would burn their houses and other buildings and destroy all of the property left behind. "Better lose your property than your lives," rejoined Smith. Haun represented that he and his neighbors were willing to defend themselves against what he called "the mob," and Smith finally gave them permission to remain. Others at the mill opposed a retreat, and when an old man named Myers reminded them how few they were, and how many the "Gentiles" numbered, they declared that the Almighty would send his angels to their help when the day of battle should come. Some of the women, too, urged the men to stand firm, and offered to mold bullets and prepare patching for the rifles if necessary.

North of the mill was a body of timber half a mile in width, skirting Shoal Creek; beyond was a stretch of prairie. For a day or two Capt. Evans kept a picket post in the northern border of the timber, but on the 28th he entered into a sort of truce with Capt. Nehemiah Comstock, commanding a company of Livingston "Gentiles" from the settlements near Moorsville and Utica, and the post was withdrawn. By the terms of this truce, which was effected by a messenger who rode between Evans and Comstock, the Gentiles were to let the Mormons alone as long as the latter were peaceable, and vice versa. Each party, too, was to disband its military organization. But on the morning of the 29th the Mormons learned that a company of Livingston militia, a few miles to the eastward, were menacing them, and so they maintained their organization and that night set watches. The latter company was commanded by Capt. Wm. Mann, and for some days had been operating at and in the vicinity of Whitney's mill, on Lower Shoal Creek (where the village of Dawn now stands), stopping Mormon emigrants on their way from the East to Caldwell county, turning them back in some instances, taking their arms from them in others, etc.

On the 29th, at Woolsey's, northeast of Breckenridge, an agreement was reached by the Gentiles for an attack upon Haun's mill. There companies, numbering in the aggregate about two hundred men, were organized. They were commanded by Capt. Nehemiah Comstock, Wm. O. Jennings, and Wm. Gee. The command of the battalion was given to Col. Thomas Jennings, an old militia officer, then living in the Forks. Nearly all of the men were citizens of Livingston county. Perhaps twenty were from Daviess, from whence they had been driven by the Mormons during the troubles in that county a few weeks previously. The Daviess county men were very bitter against the Mormons, and vowed the direst vengeance on the entire sect. It did not matter whether or not the Mormons at the mill had taken any part in the disturbances which had occurred; it was enough that they were Mormons. The Livingston men became thoroughly imbued with the same spirit, and all were eager for the raid. The Livingston men had no wrongs to complain of themselves, for the Mormons had never invaded their county, or injured them in any way; but they seemed to feel an extraordinary sympathy for the outrages suffered by their neighbors.

Setting out from Woolsey's after noon on the 30th, Col. Jennings marched swiftly out of the timber northwest of the present village of Mooresville, and out on the prairie stretching down southwards towards the doomed hamlet at Haun's Mill. The word was passed along the column, "Shoot at everything wearing breeches, and shoot to kill."

All of the Gentiles were mounted, and they had with them a wagon and two Mormon prisoners. Within two miles of the mill the wagon and prisoners were left, in charge of a squad, and the remainder of the force pressed rapidly on. Entering the timber north of the mill, Col. Jennings passed through it, unobserved, right up to the borders of the settlement, and speedily formed his line for the attack. Capt. W. O. Jennings' company had the center, Capt. Comstock's the left, and Capt. Gee's the right.

The Mormon leader had somehow become apprehensive of trouble. He communicated his fears to some of the men, and was about sending out scouts and pickets. It had been previously agreed that in case of attack the men should repair to the blacksmith shop and occupy it as a fort or block-house. This structure was built of logs, with wide cracks between them, was about eighteen feet square, and had a large wide door. The greater portion of the Mormons were, however, unsuspecting of any imminent peril. Children were playing on the banks of the creek, women were engaged in their ordinary domestic duties, the newly arrived immigrants were resting under the trees, which were clad in the scarlet, crimson and golden leaves of autumn. The scene was peaceful and Acadian. It was now about four o'clock in the afternoon, and the sun hung low and red in a beautiful Indian summer sky.

Suddenly, from out of the timber north and west of the mill the Gentiles burst upon the hamlet. The air was filled with shouts and shots, and the fight was on. It can not fairly be called a fight. Taken wholly by surprise, the Mormons were thrown into extreme confusion. The women and children cried and screamed in excitement and terror, and the greater number, directed by some of the men, ran across the mill-dam to the south bank of the creek and sought shelter in the woods. Perhaps twenty men, Capt. Evans among them, ran with their guns to the blacksmith shop and began to return the fire. Some were shot down in their attempts to reach the shop.

The fire of the Mormons was wild and ineffective; that of the militia was accurate and deadly. The cracks between the logs of the shop were so large that it was easy to shoot through them, and so thickly were the Mormons huddled together on the inside that nearly every bullet which entered the shop killed or wounded a man. Firing was kept up all the while on the fleeing fugitives, and many were shot down as they ran.

Realizing very soon that he was placed at a decided disadvantage, Capt. Evans gave orders to retreat, directing every man to take care of himself. The door of the shop was thrown open, and all of the able-bodied survivors ran out, endeavoring to reach the woods. Some were shot before reaching shelter. Capt. Evans was much excited, and ran all the way to Mud Creek, seven miles south, with his gun loaded, not having discharged it during the fight. The Gentiles advanced, and began to use their rough, home-made swords, or corn-knives, with which some of them were armed. The fugitives were fired on until they were out of range, but not pursued, as the few who escaped scattered in almost every direction.

Coming upon the field after it had been abandoned, the Gentiles perpetrated some terrible deeds. At least three of the wounded were hacked to death with the "corn-knives" or finished with a rifle bullet. Wm. Reynolds, a Livingston county man, entered the blacksmith shop, and found a little boy, only ten years of age, named Sardius Smith, hiding under the bellows. Without even demanding his surrender, the cruel wretch drew up his rifle and shot the little fellow as he lay cowering and trembling. Reynolds afterward boasted of his exploit to persons yet living. He described, with fiendish glee, how the poor child "kicked and squealed" in his dying agonies, and justified his inhuman act by the old Indian aphorism, "Nits will make lice." Charley Merrick, another little boy only nine years old, had hid under the bellows. He ran out, but did not get far until he received a load of buck-shot and a rifle ball, in all three wounds. He did not die, however, for nearly five weeks. Esquire Thos. McBride was seventy-eight years of age, and had been a soldier under Gates and Washington in the Revolution. He had started for the blacksmith shop, but was shot down on the way, and lay wounded and helpless, but still alive. A Daviess county man named Rogers, who kept a ferry across Grand River, near Gallatin, came upon him and demanded his gun. "Take it," said McBride. Rogers picked up the weapon and finding that it was loaded deliberately discharged it into the old veteran's breast. He then cut and hacked the body with his "corn-knife" until it was frightfully gashed and mangled.

After the Mormons had all been either killed, wounded or driven away, the Gentiles began to loot the place. Considerable property was taken, much of the spoil consisting of household articles and personal effects. At least three wagons and perhaps ten horses were taken. Two emigrant wagons were driven off with all their contents. The Mormons claim that there was a general pillage, and that even the bodies of the slain were robbed. The Gentiles deny this, and say that the wagons were needed to haul off their three wounded men, and the bedding was taken to make them comfortable, while the other articles taken did not amount to much. Two of the survivors have stated to me that the place was "pretty well cleaned out."

Col. Jennings did not remain at the mill more than two hours. Twilight approaching, he set out on his return to his former encampment. He feared a rally and return of the Mormons with a large re-enforcement, and doubtless he desired to reflect leisurely on his course of future operations. Reaching Woolsey's, he halted his battalion, and prepared to pass the night. But a few hours later he imagined he heard cannon and a great tumult in the direction of Haun's mill, betokening, as he thought, the advance of a large Mormon force upon him. Rousing his men from their sweet dreams of the victory, he broke camp, moved rapidly eastward, and never halted until he had put the West Fork of Grand River between him and his imaginary pursuers. He and his men had won glory enough for one day, anyhow! They had not lost a man killed and only three wounded. John Renfrow had his thumb shot off, Allen England was shot in the thigh, and — Hart in the arm.

The Mormon killed and mortally wounded numbered seventeen. Here are the names:

Thomas McBride,	Augustine Harmer,
Levi N. Merrick,	Simon Cox,
Elias Benner,	Hiram Abbott,
Josiah Fuller,	John York,
Benj. Lewis,	John Lee,
Alex. Campbell,	John Byers,
Geo. S. Richards,	Warren Smith,
Wm. Napier,	Chas. Merrick, aged 9,
Sardius Smith,	aged 10.

The severely wounded numbered eleven men, one boy (Alma Smith, aged 7), and one woman, a Miss Mary Stedwell. The latter was shot through the hand and arm as she was running to the woods.

Dies iræ! Bloody work and woeful. What a scene did Col. Jennings and his men turn their backs upon as they rode away in the gloaming from the little valley once all green and peaceful! The wounded men had been given no attention, and the bodies of the slain had been left to fester and putrify in the Indian summer temperature, warm and mellowing. A large red moon rose, and a fog came up from the stream and lay like a face-cloth upon the pallid countenances of the dead. Timidly and warily came forth the widows and orphans from their hiding places, and as they recognized one a husband, one a father, another a son, and another a brother among the slain, the wailings of grief and terror were most pitiful. All that night were they alone with their dead and wounded. There were no physicians, but if there had been many of the wounded were past all surgery. Dreadful sights in the moonlight, and dreadful sounds on the night winds. In the hamlet the groans of the wounded, the moans and sobs of the grief-stricken, the bellowing of cattle, and the howling of dogs, and from the black woods the dismal hooting of owls.

By and by, when the wounded had been made as comfortable as possible, the few men who had returned gathered the women and children together, and all sought consolation in prayer. Then they sang from the Mormon hymn book a selection entitled "Moroni's Lamentation," a dirge-like composition, lacking in poesy and deficient in rhythm, but giving something of comfort, let us hope, to the choristers. And so in prayer and song and ministration the remainder of the night was passed.

The next morning the corpses had changed, and were changing fast. They must be buried. There were not enough men left to make coffins or even dig graves. It could not be determined when relief would come or when the Gentiles would return. There was a large unfinished well near the mill, which it was decided should be used as a common sepulcher. Four men, one of whom was Joseph W. Young, a brother of Brigham Young, gathered up the bodies, the women assisting, and bore them, one at a time, on a large plank to the well, and slid them in. Some hay was strewn upon the ghastly pile and then a thin layer of dirt thrown upon the hay.

The next day Capt. Comstock's company returned to the mill, as they said, to bury the dead. Finding that duty had been attended to, they expressed considerable satisfaction at having been relieved of the job, and, after notifying the people that they must leave the state, or they would all be killed, they rode away. The pit was subsequently filled by Mr. C. R. Ross, now a resident of Black Oak, Caldwell county.

A day or two after the massacre, Col. Jennings started with his battalion to join the State forces at Far West. He had not proceeded far when he met a messenger who informed him that the Mormons at Far West had surrendered, and gave him an order to move to Daviess county and join the forces under Gen. Robert Wilson, then operating against the Mormons at Adam-ondi-Ahmon. The battalion was present at the surrender at "Diamon," as it is generally called, and a day or two thereafter, Capt. Comstock's company was ordered to Haun's mill, where it remained in camp for some weeks. Herewith I give an extract from an affidavit made by Mrs. Amanda Smith, whose husband and little son were killed in the massacre, and who resided at the mill during the stay of Comstock's company:

* * * The next day the mob came back. They told us we must leave the State forthwith or be killed. It was bad weather, and they had taken our teams and clothes; our men were all dead or wounded. I told them they might kill me and my children, and welcome. They said to us, from time to time, if we did not leave the State they would come and kill us. We could not leave then. We had little prayer meetings; they said if we did not stop them they would kill every man, woman and child. We had spelling schools for our little children; they pretended they were "Mormon meetings," and said if we did not stop them they would kill every man, woman and child. * * * I started the 1st of February, very cold weather, for Illinois, with five small children and no money. It was mob all the way. I drove the team, and we slept out of doors. We suffered greatly from hunger, cold, and fatigue; and for what? For our religion. In this boasted land of liberty, "Deny your faith or die," was the cry.

While in camp at the mill, according to the statements to me of two of its members, Comstock's company lived off the country, as did the State troops at Far West. The Mormon cattle and hogs had been turned into the fields and were fine and fat. The mill furnished flour and meal, and other articles of provision were to be had for the taking. The Mormon men were either prisoners or had been driven from the country. By the 1st of April following all had left the State. Many of them had been killed, their houses burned, their property taken, their fields laid waste, and the result was called peace.

BURR JOYCE.

Globe-Democrat, Oct. 6th.

Conference Minutes.

ST. LOUIS.

This district conference convened in the Saints' Hall, No. 1447, North Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., on Saturday afternoon, October 1st, 1887, Wm. Jaques, Pres., apostle J. W. Gillen assisting, J. G. Smith and J. S. Parrish clerks. Branch reports. St. Louis 182, 3 received by letter. Belleville 65, 2 removed by letter. Cheltenham 34, 1 died. Birkner, Chester, Boon Creek, Whearso and Alma branches reported no changes. Moselle reported disorganized. Bishop's Agent report, Sept. 30th 1887, balance on hand July 2d, 1887, $24.05; received since $39.75, total $63.80. Paid out $36.50; balance, Sept. 30th, 1887, $27.30. Noah N. Cooke, Agent. Report was audited and found correct. Elders James W. Gillen, James Whitehead, Henry Roberts, Noah N. Cooke, Wm. O. Thomas, John G. Smith, Wm. H. Jemmett, Wm. Jaques; priest John S. Parrish, and teacher George Elliott reported. Priest A. M. Todd of Moselle, Mo., by letter tendered his resignation as an officer and member of the church. Deferred till next conference. Officers present, 1 apostle, 1 high priest, 8 elders, 2 priests, and 1 teacher. The spiritual and temporal authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Sunday October 2d, morning session, elder James W. Gillen preached. Sacrament and testimony meeting afternoon. Elder James Whitehead preached in the evening. Adjourned to meet in St. Louis, Mo., at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon, January 7th, 1888, for the transaction of business, and on Sunday following for worship.

POTTOWATTAMIE.

This district conference convened with the Crescent branch, May 28th, 1887, elder H. N. Hansen in the chair, C. F. Pratt, clerk. Statistical reports of North Star, Council Bluffs and Crescent branches, also the financial report of the Bishop's Agent were presented, and referred to a committee of two, C. A. Beebe and Robt. Kirkwood Sen. Reports of elders and priests were made as follows: Bro. Andrew Hall reported as Bishop's Agent. Bro. C. A. Beebe had not performed any labor outside Council Bluffs branch. Bro. B. Harding had performed but little labor. Bro. Hans Hansen Sen., and Bro. John Carlisle had labored some in North Star branch. Bro. A. Bybee had not done any preaching on account of his infirmities, but had assisted in one baptism. Bro. Joshua Carlisle had done no preaching. Bro. H. N. Hansen had preached every Sunday since last conference in Hazel Dell, Crescent, North Star, Wheeler's Grove, Fontanelle, and Griswold. He found no trouble in obtaining places to preach in. Bro. John Evans, priest, had labored in company with Bro. H. N. Hansen. At 2 p. m. Bro. John Carlisle reported the North Star branch in peace and harmony. Bro. B.

Harding said Crescent branch was in good condition. Bro. Beebe reported Council Bluffs branch in good condition. Bro. H. N. Hansen said Hazel Dell branch was in fair condition. Committee on statistical and financial reports find the same correct and recommend their adoption. North Star branch has 64 members including 5 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 1 baptized, 1 received by certificate, 3 received by vote, 1 died. Council Bluffs 155, including 1 apostle, 2 Seventies, 7 elders, 5 priests, 4 teachers, 1 deacon, 2 received by vote, 1 expelled. Crescent 62, including 3 elders, 3 priests, 3 teachers, 2 deacons, 1 removed by letter, 1 expelled. Bishop's Agent's report for six months: on hand last report, $16.60. Received since, $215.37; total $231.97. Paid out $205.60; on hand $26.37. Moved and seconded that when this conference adjourn it does so to meet the last Saturday in September, 1887, in Council Bluffs. Bro. H. N. Hansen was sustained president, Bro. C. F. Pratt resigned as clerk, and Bro. Thomas Scott was chosen to that office. Bro. Carlisle was appointed to preach at Underwood and vicinity. Bro. Hans Hansen was appointed to labor at Council Bluffs and Hazel Dell. Bro. B. Harding and A. Bybee were appointed to labor in Boomer and Rockford townships. All elders and priests were requested to labor under the direction of the district president. A collection to be taken to-morrow for the completion of the Kirtland Temple. Carried. Moved and seconded we adjourn until to-morrow at 10:30 o'clock a. m.

ALABAMA.

This district conference convened at Pleasant Hill branch, Butler county, September 30th, 1887, at 11 a. m., and devoted an hour to prayer. G. T. Chute president, L. J. Parker secretary. Branch reports: Pleasant Hill 67; including 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher; 1 died. Butler 34; including 2 elders, 1 priest, 2 baptized. Elders J. G. Vickery, G. T. Chute (baptized 2); Priest J. T. Miniard; Teacher W. S. McPherson reported. Bishop's Agent received $2.85. General authorities of the church were sustained. G. T. Chute was sustained president of the district, L. G. Parker secretary, and J. G. Vickery Bishop's Agent. Preaching at night by J. G. Vickery. Preaching Sunday morning by G. T. Chute to a crowded congregation, after which a basket dinner was served on the grounds. Preaching again in the afternoon and evening by G. T. Chute. Adjourned to meet with the Lone Star branch, Monroe county, Saturday, January 28th, 1888.

Miscellaneous.

DIED.

BERRIER.—September, 1887, at her home in Nebraska City, Nebraska, sister Martha Berrier, aged 68 years.

MARRIED.

ANGELL—ARCHIBALD.—At Centerville, Iowa, September 11th, 1887, brother George T. Angell and sister Margaret Archibald; ceremony performed by Bro. H. A. Stebbins. Bro. and Sr. Angell went to Frontenac, Crawford county, Kansas, to make their home.

ADDRESSES.

H. C. Bronson, 603 North Third street, St. Joseph, Mo.
George A. Blakeslee, Presiding Bishop, Galien, Berrien county, Michigan.
Alexander H. Smith, Andover, Harrison Co., Missouri.
Arthur B. Pierce, Box 500, North Attleboro, Mass.

"TEMPTED in all points like as we are," is the word of our Christ, as he looks into our faces and sees our wearisome conflict with the enemies that beset us. This makes him our surpassingly tender and helpful sympathizer. He knows where to put his hand to stay the weakness, and when and how to soothe and hush the tired heart into his ineffable rest. We may lean hard upon him; and so pillow the perplexed head on his arm as to feel the load lift and the burden remove, because of the Infinite strength that has laid hold of them.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN PUT HIS HAND UNTO HIS PLOUGH, NOR HIS OX BE YOKED, UNTIL HE HAVE SAID: 'I BELONG TO THE LORD.'—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 754.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 29, 1887.

No. 44.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, October 29, 1887.

HARLAN REUNION.

ORGANIZED at 2 p. m., September 24th, 1887, near Bro. J. W. Chatburn's Mill, President Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair were chosen to preside, Wm. Stewart Marshall, J. McDonald Chief of Police, and S. B. Kibler secretary. Printed rules to govern the camp were adopted and posted on the grounds. In this meeting the elders made short speeches. The aged John A. McIntosh spoke in an impressive and feeling manner; John Conyers bore a faithful testimony to the truth of the work; M. T. Short spoke on the good prospects of the church and the need of unity; John Thomas expressed gratitude in being present, his faith was firm, and he believed the church is now in better condition than ever before. Elder C. Derry asserted his faith and hope in this work; E. Banta declared his faith unshaken and increased; J. W. Wight testified that the blessings he had received exceeded his expectations; A. H. Smith said his faith had been tried; he had proved that God's work could and would if necessary go on without him; that the Spirit was working greatly with the ministry, and that his faith was strengthened and increased; Joseph Luff spoke of the doubts that once intruded upon his mind, said he had learned a lesson that had expelled them and confirmed him in the work and in his faith in the three standard books. Sister Vernon bore testimony to the truth of the gospel, and was not ashamed of Christ and his work. Pres. Smith referred to a great storm during which the neighbors of Bro. nad Sr. Vernon took refuge under their faith, although they did not afterwards adopt it as their own.

At 7:30 p. m. P. Cadwell was chosen Chorister, and J. W. Wight preached the sermon. Bro. J. W. Chatburn on motion was released from contract to furnish hay at $4 per ton, owing to the unforeseen drouth.

Sunday, 25th, 8:30 a. m., a social service was had in which the gifts of tongues and interpretation were enjoyed. At 11 a. m. Pres. J. Smith preached from Luke 24: 46, 47, the central thought being the remission of sins. At 2:30 p. m. A. H. Smith addressed the congregation from Matt. 9: 37, on the birth, development, and divine mission of Christ. Elder Joseph Luff preached in the evening from Isaiah 55: 10, 11, and John, chapter 14, showing the necessity for believing that Jesus was sent of God and also in the law he came to establish.

Monday, 26th, a social service was had in which twenty-six testimonies were borne, three prayers offered, and thirteen songs sung. At 11 a. m. Elder W. T. Bozarth delivered a sermon based on 2 Cor. 2: 18, 19, showing the need, and the manner of becoming reconciled to God's will and ways. At 2:30, p. m. Elder M. T. Short read Ezekiel, chapter 28th, and argued the necessity to and how man should live by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God. At 7:30, p. m. Elder C. Derry addressed the audience from Matt. 4: 4, showing the need of a full and perfect belief of God's word.

Tuesday, 27th.—At the social meeting this morning a most enjoyable time was had, four prayers were offered, forty-two testimonies were declared, and the gifts of the Spirit were present in power. At 11 a. m. Elder Warren Peak spoke from Isa. 41: 21, and treated on the coming forth of the Book of Mormon. At 2:30 p. m. Elder John A. McIntosh, now aged near eighty-two years, spoke interestingly on the goodness of God, and he was followed by Elder A. H. Smith, on the need of present inspiration. At 7:30 Elder J. S. Roth chose a text from Mark 1: 15 and preached on "the principles of of the doctrine of Christ."

Wednesday, 28th, 11 a. m., Elder J. F. McDowell delivered a discourse from John 14: 3, on the second coming of Christ which was full of light and cheer. Elder J. W. Wight baptized four under the supervision of Elder A. H. Smith. At 2 p. m. Elders A. H. Smith, J. W. Wight, J. R. Lambert and M. T. Short confirmed those previously baptized, after which Elder E. C. Brand spoke on the times of restitution of all things and in support of the Book of Mormon and prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, closing by bearing his testimony to the truth of the latter day work. After service two were baptized. At 7:30 p. m. those previously baptized were confirmed by Elders J. R. Lambert and A. H. Smith. President Joseph Smith then delivered a discourse on Acts 2: 47, which was highly instructive and entertaining.

Thursday, 29th.—During this morning's social meeting many prayers were offered and fifty-five testimonies borne, after which Elder W. C. Nirk preached from the text, "Ye are my witnesses," setting forth the fact that God's people always are a peculiar people, and that it is by their righteous daily conduct that they are and are to be blessed and prospered. He was followed by Elders H. N. Hansen, C. Derry, and Pres. Joseph Smith, with cheering and instructive remarks touching the proverbial good character of Latter Day Saints, to which Elder J. W. Chatburn added that Mr. J. B. Stutsman, an old merchant of Harlan, had stated that he never lost a cent by a Latter Day Saint—showing the importance and reward of the Saints living faithfully their religion.

Elder Henry Kemp preached at 2 p. m., text, Psalm 39: 8, and Acts 8: 26. He treated of angelic ministrations, said when people were as needy and as righteous in this age as were some anciently, similar ministrations would be had now as then, adding his own personal testimony. Pres. J. Smith followed and claimed that the Spirit of God, in given degrees, entered into all the works of God, connecting, combining, animating, governing, developing, and exalting the same.

Elder W. W. Blair addressed the evening meeting on the separateness and denominational distinctiveness of the Church of Christ, alleging that God ordained it to be a peculiar and exclusive body, giving it law suited to its organization, progress and perfection, and he appealed to Moses and the prophets, Christ and the apostles, for evidence to substantiate his position. He claimed that God had, in these last days, organized his church and kingdom in the midst of the Gentile nations, calling out a ministry from the seed of Joseph scattered among them, and all this he held to be in exact fulfillment of the Scriptures; saying further, that the work committed to God's church would spread abroad to all nations, and that the heresies, divisions, oppositions and tribulations occurring, would but serve to purify, educate, and properly develop its faithful ones and fit them to carry forward the marvellous and wonderful work given them of God to do.

Elders John Pett and B. Salisbury were in charge of the prayer and testimony meeting on the morning of the 30th, which proved to be most spiritual and interesting; the gifts of prophecy, tongues, and interpretation abounding through which the Saints were exhorted, instructed, warned and encouraged. At 11 a. m. elder Charles E. Butterworth preached a profitable sermon from the text, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul," setting forth the transforming, ennobling and saving power of "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus"—the gospel law.

Elder Charles Derry, at 2:30 p. m., addressed the audience from Acts 5:38, 39, arguing that men should be careful lest they be found fighting against God, also that his designs and purposes can not be frustrated nor be brought to nought; spoke of the mission of Joseph the Seer, its importance, its harmony with and furtherance of all known truth, adding his personal testimony to the divinity of the great latter day work, asserting that it is of God and will stand forever. He was followed by Pres. Joseph Smith in a brief exhortation to earnest faithfulness. At the evening service elder J. R. Lambert read Matthew 19:16-30, and based his remarks on verse 20—"Who then can be saved?" From this and similar texts he demonstrated the need of strict conformity to all of God's word as given through his servants the prophets: referred to 2 Peter, chapter 1, as giving needed assurance to those who faithfully observe the word of God, that they shall inherit eternal life and all that is embraced therein; urged an increase of ministerial labor and its proper, timely, maintenance.

October 1st, Elder E. C. Brand led the social meeting. During this service forty-two testimonies were borne, nine prayers offered, two prophecies delivered, and two tongues and interpretation given—a most glorious season, indeed, on account of the out-pouring of the Spirit of God.

Elder A. H. Smith preached at 11 a. m. from Luke 13:27, 28, and argued that the "laying on of hands" was equally necessary under the gospel order in this age as in any other, producing abundant proof of the fact from both Testaments, and also demonstrating that it can be done lawfully and effectively only by those holding divine authority to administer it. After this service Elder J. W. Wight baptized fourteen persons in the presence of a very large assemblage.

At 2:30 p. m. the question of continuing our fall Reunion meetings was taken up and discussed; a report of the committee was given by Elder Phineas Cadwell; the report was received and adopted. On motion it was resolved to continue our fall Reunion meetings, and a committee of five was provided for, to locate them for five years in one place. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Davis, the owner of the grounds on which the Reunion is being held, for his generosity in giving the use of them cheerfully and free. A vote of thanks was likewise tendered the committee of arrangements, the police, and all others both in and out of the church, for aid and encouragement rendered. The chairman of the committee on arrangements, P. Cadwell, thanked the assembly for faithfully submitting to the rules governing the grounds. Pres. J. Smith suggested that the Saints are a law-abiding people, and that they can hardly hope to enter the abode of the blessed, where all is law and order, unless they cheerfully submit to the same in this world.

On motion Sr. Charity Bates was received on evidence of her original baptism.

Then followed a short, pithy, and interesting address by Elder M. T. Short on Dan. 2:44.

Elder J. F. McDowell, at 7:30 p. m., addressed the large and attentive audience from Zech. 9:14, on the final prevalence of the kingdom of God on earth, reminding all that the only means by which man can enjoy the blessings of God here and hereafter is that of personal righteousness required under the gospel, and that in it alone is there happiness and safety.

Sunday, October 2d.—At the morning prayer and testimony service the fourteen previously baptized were confirmed, after which twenty-nine testimonies were borne and the Spirit and power of God were manifested in a most instructive and joyful manner. Pres. Joseph Smith preached at 11 a. m., and explained in what sense he had changed his views and manner of teaching since 1860—he had changed only in the sense of progressing, devoting less time to first principles and more to what necessarily grow out of them. Referring to the promise of Jesus to his apostles in Matt. 28:20, he said that whenever Christ's servants were legitimately engaged in the work of the Lord, he would be with them to aid and sustain. Christ came into the world to save sinners—"to call sinners unrepentance"—and that in his mercy he extended down his loving hands to the ignorant, degraded and depraved, to lift them up and save them. He sought the lowly and the sinful ones, and he sent his ministry to seek and save such. It is especially this class who most need the compassion and tenderness and power of the Savior's love and forbearance. The church should seek and save the lost and the erring. He had heard of a church who were so holy in their own esteem as to thrust from them a young woman betrayed and forsaken by the man who misled and ruined her. It is the sick who need the physician. Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. Christ's Church will receive all who come willing and repentant, who seek him with broken hearts and contrite spirits. In this was largely manifest the divinity of the Savior's mission, and his ministry should observe his precepts and emulate his example. The vast congregation both within and outside the tent paid undiminished attention to the sermon to its close.

At 2:30 p. m. Elder Joseph Luff read portions of the Bible and preached from Malachi 3:6,—“For I am the Lord; I change not,”—with Acts 10:34,—“God is no respecter of persons,”—and Acts 17:26, 27,—“And hath made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord if haply they might feel after him, and find him.” From these and similar texts he argued that it should not be surprising that the unchangeable God, who respected “all persons” alike, and who had predetermined the times and bounds of all nations, had made known his will to those nations which first settled the great continents of America as testified of in the Book of Mormon, both in the records of the Jaremites who, the records claim, were led to this land after the confusion of languages at the tower of Babel, (Gen. 11:1-9), and testified of in the record of the Nephites, who were led out by the hand of the Lord from the land of Judea about 600 years before Christ. He claimed that the Book of Mormon, and it alone, furnishes the key and an easy and rational solution to the Scriptures quoted, which otherwise would remain unfulfilled. To this he added his personal testimony in favor of the divinity of the latter day work, having first prefaced his sermon with the statement that when he left the Methodist Church and its ministry he took with him the idea and habit of getting money for proper purposes; and he therefore took this occasion to remind the people again that he was and would be soliciting funds to finish and furnish their commodious church at Independence, Missouri, he being one of the building committee. At the close it was announced that the presiding officers, Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair, appointed P. Cadwell, S. B. Kibler, Andrew Hall, J. W. Chatburn, and W. C. Cadwell, to be the committee on location and arrangement for Reunion meetings during the next five years. A collection was now taken up toward defraying expenses of this Reunion meeting. After this three persons were baptized by Elder J. W. Wight. A number of children were blessed and some sick administered to.

The evening meeting was devoted to preaching, elder J. R. Lambert officiating. He read John 14:15-18, and took as his text 2 John 9, “Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son,” and then proceeded to treat at length, in an able, plain and spirited manner, of the distinct and essential principles of that doctrine, and of the fact that it must ever be the same in all its parts and powers and blessings, both for this world and that which is to come; argued the need of the spiritual gifts in the gospel work, also “the fruits of the Spirit” such as love, joy, peace, temperance, patience, long-suffering, etc. He portrayed the church organization as set forth in the Scriptures, claimed that therein we find the divine pattern by which all institutions claiming to be the Church of Christ should be measured and the question of their genuineness decided. In concluding he urged all to “seek the old paths” and carefully abide in them; abide by the gospel truths contained in holy writ; hold out faithfully to the end in serving the Lord in his appointed way, and thus win the crown of life eternal.

A vote of thanks was tendered to all who had ministered to the needs and well-being of this Reunion meeting. On motion, the committee on present Reunion was discharged, and the new committee authorized to settle up the business pertaining thereto, and on motion were made also the committee on arrangements. The congregation now arose and all joined in singing hymn 623—“When shall we all meet again;” President Blair pronounced the benediction, and the Reunion adjourned subject to the call of its Committee of Arrangements.

Thus closed one of the most joyful, spiritual meetings ever held by the church in this dispensation. Our aged sister Catherine Salisbury, the only surviving sister of Joseph the Seer, was present during the entire meeting, took an active part in it, and remarked to many that it was one of the best, if not the very best meeting she ever attended. Many others of the old members were of a similar opinion.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Four were baptized at the conference of the Northern district of California, at its late session in Oakland. So Bro. E. L. Kelley incidentally remarks in a letter dated October 13th.

One was baptized at Lamoni, on Sunday 16th, and two near Blythdale, the last named by Bro. Thomas Wellington, and the first named by Bro. Asa S. Cochran, presiding elder of Lamoni branch. Five more were baptized at Lamoni the 20th of October, by Bro. H. A. Stebbins. The Lord is adding "to the church daily such as shall be saved." And such is the record of the days as they succeed each other in their time. All over the land, where the elders are faithfully presenting the word there the Spirit is at work aiding and abetting their work and making their ministry effective. We pray that the Lord of the harvest will send more laborers into the field; and continue his Spirit's ministration to the labors of those already in the field.

Bro. I. N. Roberts said, October 8th: "All is well here, but very dry. We have baptized twenty-seven since last writing." He wrote from Cook's Point, Texas.

Bro. C. C. Holcombe writes from Oenaville, Texas, that he has a sister and her husband who went from western Texas last year to Pensacola, Florida, to whom he has sent the HERALD, and that they inform him they have received more light on the word of God since they have been investigating the latter day work than they ever knew before. He also sent them the Book of Mormon and Voice of Warning. They write that they desire to see some of the elders. His name is H. C. White, he lives three miles from Pensacola, and an elder will be welcomed to his home. Bro. Holcombe speaks in high terms of Bro. Heman C. Smith.

Bro. H. H. Jasperson has replied to the editorial in the West Side, published at Independence, Polk county, Oregon, lately noticed in the HERALD, and has done it well. The editor notices Bro. Jasperson's effort and commends it, though he persists that he is not convinced of the truth of Bro. Jasperson's statement in regard to the Spaulding Romance; is backed by Prof. J. H. Fairchild's assertion as it is.

Bro. E. W. Nunley writes cheerily from Wheelock, Texas, October 6th; says he has fair congregations, fair liberty in preaching, and hopes for good results. Their district conference will convene at Cooke's Point, October 28th. Opposition is abundant and active, but most prominent with the preachers of the different sects. And notwithstanding the prejudices of the people, they treat him kindly as a citizen. He says they can't endure to have their creeds tried by the word of God.

Bro. John Hawley wrote from Webb City, Missouri, October 14th, saying he had been delayed from continuing on his mission to the Indian nation by reason of an attack of erysipelas. He was much better and intended to soon start on.

Bro. Jonah Dinehart of Luce, Minnesota, in a letter dated October 9th states that he had a vision, or dream, on or about the 23d of September last, in which he saw a large building near his own on fire and burned down, and during which his own house was in great danger and was badly smoked and scorched. Three days after this, when out at work after supper, an alarm was rang on his house bell and he then saw a Mr. Hamblin's store, thirty feet from his house, on fire. He and others strove for three hours, and, as he believes, in answer to prayer God enabled him and others to preserve his house from burning, save that it was badly smoked and scorched. Thus he saw his vision literally fulfilled, and is most thankful that by the mercy of God he found deliverance.

Bro. G. W. Parks, of Carthage, New York, is printing upon a hand press the "Epitome," and distributing it broadcast. And he offers to print preaching notices for the elders who may want them free of charge, if they will send him their address.

Bro. J. W. Wight was to start for Dakota, Monday, October 17th, to labor for a season.

Elder L. D. Hickey, once a leading officer under Mr. J. J. Strang, on Beaver Island, Michigan, occupied the pulpit in the Brick Chapel, Sunday, October 16th, at Lamoni. He professes hearty sympathy with the Reorganized Church, and now seems to be much more in accord with it than heretofore. This, probably, is because he now has a better understanding of its origin, doctrine and purposes.

Sr. M. A. Christy, of Akron, Iowa, wrote October 16th, expressing her delight in witnessing the rapid and steady progress of the Lord's work of late sending aid to help sustain it. She is one of many who show their faith by their works.

Bro. Frank Hackett, of North Freedom, Wisconsin, shows his interest in and love for the HERALD by sending in liberal subscription. He says: "I could not get along without the HERALD."

Bro. Frank Hackett, of North Freedom, Wisconsin, authorizes us to state, that they at North Freedom will furnish a room and sustenance to an elder who will come and spend the winter laboring in the ministry with them; and will also furnish a conveyance to visit other parts in the district. Here is a chance for some one to make a good record and do a good work.

Bro. James Wood of Stewartville, Missouri, writes October 18th that some had been baptized there of late. Bro. Wood has been chosen to preside over the DeKalb branch, and states that the branch is doing fairly well. Brn. Peterson and Mc-Kee, make faithful visiting officers, and the prospects are fair for the advancement of the cause.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Joseph C. Clapp writes from Ogden City, Utah, October 4th:

I landed here from Deer Lodge, Montana, on the 12th, self and wife tired from the five hundred mile ride. Last Sunday, with the assistance of Elder Peter Anderson, I organized the Deer Lodge branch, which will number something over fifty members when they all get properly recorded. We ordained Bro. Andrew Christofferson to the office of an elder, and he was unanimously chosen to preside over the branch; and I believe that the Master fully endorsed the act, for Bro. Andrew stands blameless before the Saints and the world, and has the full confidence of all that know him. We felt sad indeed to leave the dear Saints so soon after the reaping time set in; but we shall rejoice to hear of others reaping if we can feel that we have "sown well." Elder Peter Anderson will remain with them for a time and we trust will be able to more than fill our place. I have every confidence that the branch will prosper, notwithstanding a self-appointed teacher has appeared in our chapel and told us what we should not preach. The branch, however, will choose to be governed by the law of God, and for that reason we venture the prediction that they will prosper.

From this place my wife and family will go to California, and I will go east to Kentucky. We hope to meet here again in the Spring and return to Montana to renew our efforts in gospel work. May the Lord enable us to do good wherever our lot is cast, is my daily prayer.

Bro. J. S. Roth wrote us from Canton, Iowa, under date of October 11th, that he had recently baptized a man and his wife near Iron Hill, and says:

"Several more are ready and will be baptized next week. Opposition runs high. A young lady who is favorable to us was upholding our cause against the false assertions made by a preacher's wife, and the young lady's arguments offended the Mrs. Rev. so much that she slapped the lady on the mouth."

Bro. E. Day Bennett, of Santa Clara, Brown county, Dakota, in letter of October 5th, says the gospel work is moving forward in that region, and adds:

"The Lord is with us, and we rejoice in being able to say we know this work is true."

Bro. Francis Earl wrote from Hegevisch, Illinois, October 17th:

"We are still alive and doing what we can in this part of the harvest field. One was baptized some Sundays ago at Chicago, and yesterday I had the pleasure of disturbing the waters of Lake Michigan, at Cheltenham, where one more, a resident of this place, was added to the household of faith. Opportunities for the work have looked very dark, but what it will be in the near future I can not say. Hope, however, for the best."

By card from Bro. B. V. Springer, dated at Antwerp, Ohio, October 14th, we learn he expected to open some new places soon. He says:

"The field is widening, and the work is progressing encouragingly; baptized two more here on the 19th of September."

Sr. B. C. Smith wrote us under date of October 17th, saying:

"The Sisters' Aid Society of Independence, Missouri, will open their Bazaar on Wednesday, October 26th, to continue two or three days as may be necessary."

Bro. E. M. Carr of Allendale, Missouri, wrote October 17th:

"We are having good meetings. The Saints are feeling well. We are blessed with the Spirit of God quite often in our meetings."

Sr. Ann Davis, of Lyons, Wisconsin, renews for the HERALD and says:

"The Herald is an excellent paper. I value it very much."

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote from Reed City, Michigan, October 18th, ordering a goodly amount of Church publications, and saying:

"Some have been baptized in Free Soil lately. We organized a branch there on the 17th instant, and another at Chase on the 18th. Everything is going on good here."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Is there any conflict between Book of Covenants, sec. 59, par. 3, and sec. 119 (the last revelation), par. 7, on the subject of keeping the Sabbath?

Ans.—We can see none; the one is but an addition in qualification of the other. The one provides that none other work be done only the necessary preparation of food; the other that nothing should be suffered to go to waste.

Q.—Is it wrong for church members, butchers, to butcher upon the Sabbath day, when they could avoid it by a reasonable sacrifice?

A.—This question may apply to all others whose business belongs to the supplying of food for public and general consumption. If the circumstances are favorable to the work of getting and preparing supplies on the Saturday before, then it would be manifestly improper to do such work on the Lord's day. And this will apply to all trades and avocations in which Sunday work may be involved. It is difficult, if not entirely impracticable, to specify what is and what is not necessary work in any general rule; as each case must be determined upon its own merits, including all the circumstances connected with it. We are of the opinion, however, that any one strongly set to do right may determine in his own case and if he desires to avoid the "unnecessary work" referred to in the Lord's word, he will find a way to do it and still keep his business, his own self-respect and the respect of his right-minded neighbors. The man who in any business of life permits his better judgment to be dominated by the sneers of another, can not retain his own self-respect, nor the good will of the Spirit of God. We can not answer the question, Yes, or no, for the reasons given above.

Q.—If wrong, what course should be pursued?

A.—The same as in any other alleged wrong against rule, or the law of right.

Q.—If they claim it is "necessary work," should that end the matter?

A.—Not unless the circumstances connected with such business will warrant such answer.

Q.—Who are the proper ones to judge whether work of that kind is necessary or unnecessary?

A.—The same authorities that are competent to decide in other questions of alleged wrong doing; the brethren and the person who is called in question together.

Q.—If a brother persists in butchering upon the Sabbath, claiming it is necessary, and the cause suffers reproach by his thus doing—what should be done?

A.—He should be given to understand the position in which his action places his brethren; and if he then has not a sufficient regard to them and his church relationship to arrange his work differently, the church may adopt resolutions condemnatory of such course, and let him alone, the matter being the same sort as mentioned by Paul: "Let no man judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of a holyday, or the new moon, or of the Sabbath days."—Col. 2: 16. We doubt the propriety of making such a thing a test of fellowship; and fancy that unwise zeal could, by way of persecution of an offending member, do more hurt to the cause in such a case than a man's persistence would do.

RETURN TO PRIMITIVE CHRISTIANITY.

A WRITER in the Bibliotheca Sacra for October, under the title, "The American Board and Speculative Theology," says:

"That persons not named, but among them 'men in eminent positions' are trying to persuade the general public and the rising generation of ministers that—

"The world is on the eve of great and startling discoveries in theology, and that theology is now all in flux, and ready to be recast in molds which would make it scarcely recognized to the early fathers who founded the American board, and to the early missionaries whom they sent out, and, indeed well-nigh unrecognizable to the middle-aged men of the present generation."

On this the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, October 7th, makes these timely and significant remarks:

"We have diligently read the current religious discussion of the day without meeting statements of this nature from any one with whom the American board is concerned,—for we do not count Gail Hamilton, the only authority quoted by this writer. On the contrary, we have read much that foreshadows a return to the simple and saving theology of Jesus Christ. This might revolutionize the churches, and spoil the creeds, and perhaps be "unrecognizable" by the theologians. But the common people, who heard Him gladly, would welcome his doctrine and his practice, nor do we believe it would be less efficient in Hindustan or Zululand than in so called Christian lands. 'Christianity,' says the article in review, 'is not the product of the 19th century but of the first.' 'We are to preach the gospel of Christ and not of Dornier'—nor, it should be added, of Jonathan Edwards, of Samuel Hopkins, or E. K. Alden."

INCREASE IN SPIRITUAL BLESSINGS.

By permission we have the following items from a letter date at Santa Ana, California, October 8th, and sent by Bro. D. Garner:

"We have just closed our conference,—one of the best, if not the best ever held in California. The Spirit was present to that extent that the congregation was melted to tears. The gifts were enjoyed—tongues, interpretations, visions, prophecy, healings; and the power of the Evil One was also in our midst. But, thank God, the power was given to rebuke the evil power and cause it to stand rebuked. I will always remember it as one of the best, most united and peaceful meetings I have ever seen. The house was packed full, and many could not gain admittance. The Sunday School cause is receiving more attention than ever before in Southern California. The Saints seem to be more united and determined to go forward than ever."

BRO. E. W. DEPUE writes from Tiff City, McDonald county, Missouri, September 9th, and for the benefit of those Saints who may wish to settle in that region, we insert the following sent by him:

"McDonald county, Missouri, is the extreme Southwest one in the State. It is bounded on the East by Barry county, on the North by Newton county, on the South by Benton county, Ark., and on the West by the Indian Territory. The surface of the county is diversified, being in places rolling and hilly, with much rich bottom lands on the creeks and fertile valleys. The county is well watered; there being many beautiful streams traversing the county, furnishing an abundance of stock water, and supply fine fish. The water power is good, and to a limited extent has been utilized in the erection of Saw and Grist Mills. The climate is unsurpassed, the winters being mild and short. Fruits of all kind grow luxuriantly and mature in richest flavor. Good school-houses are built, and schools maintained in almost every sub-district in the county. The county is being opened up by new enterprises and affords an opportunity unequalled for those desiring investments which are bound to pay good returns. The land is already speedily rising in value, and the taxes light. Now is the time to buy while it can be had at Bed Rock Prices."

THE following will interest the readers of the HERALD, as being a key note to the philosophy of the Advent christian believers. It is sent by Bro. Willard J. Smith, preaching in Canada, who sends it in a Montreal Witness of September 28th, 1887.

FIXING THE END OF THE WORLD.

We like a man who has the courage of his convictions. The Rev. W. Baxter of the Christian Herald is a man of that kind. He has views on the subject of prophecy and he does not hesitate to tell what these views are, and to insist upon them with all the energy he possesses. Mr. Baxter has been lecturing at Liverpool, and the Daily Post of that city gives us an abstract. The time fixed is three o'clock, April the eleventh, nineteen hundred and one. Before then England would become separated legislatively, if not entirely, from Ireland, India, and its colonies. England would shortly be in the waters of deep trouble, and would become part of the ten-kingdomed confederacy. Anti-Christ would be a Napoleon, and would rise not later than 1892 or 1893, about eight or nine years before the end of the age. Napoleon, as anti-Christ, would first be King of Syria for two or three years before reviving the Napoleon dynasty over France and Europe. It was probable that Lucien Bonaparte, who was now a cardinal, would be the anti-Christ. Next year or the year after would witness a tremendous war between France and Germany. Germany would be conquered by France and driven altogether across the Rhine. Luxemburg, Belgium, and the Prussian-Rhine provinces would be annexed to France. France would be the great leader in the ten-kingdomed confederacy and England would be more or less subjugated to her. In the war between France and Germany tens of thousands of the finest men in those countries would be slain in battle. Many a young man in England who had never handled anything more formidable than a steel pen, or a cricket bat, would in the next few years have to handle a musket and a sword and smell powder. (Laughter).

The young men and young women before him in their young's time would be cut off, and so would the more elderly people. It would not make much difference to people who were fifty or sixty years of age, for in the natural order of things they could not expect to live more than ten years longer. To young people, however, the difference was enormous, for in place of having forty or fifty years to live on this earth they had only got at the outside ten years. Many of them would be killed amid the scenes of carnage and bloodshed shortly about to take place. He predicted that a universal war would rage from October 1896 to August 1897, and that then would come the three and a half years of great tribulation, or the period of the last Antichrist's persecution. He stated that millions of Christians would everywhere be beheaded for refusing during that period to worship Antichrist or his image. The lecturer gave the date March to October, 1899, when 144,000 watchful Christians will ascend from earth to Heaven. The descent of Christ at the Battle of Armageddon to destroy Antichrist and to begin the Millennium he fixed upon as April 11th, 1901. The lectures were illustrated by a number of diagrams depicting horns, beasts, and symbolical figures mentioned in Daniel and Revelation. The lecturer challenged any minister or individual to show that he had made any mistake in the facts he had mentioned, and added that to comprehend these things his hearers must take the eye-glasses of Daniel, the spectacles of Revelations and the telescopes of Isaiah and Ezekiel.—The Commonwealth.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"He lived the truth which reconciled
The strong man Reason, Faith the child:
In him belief and act were one,
The homilies of duty done!"

"I MUST BE ABOUT MY FATHER'S BUSINESS."

THE editor of the Herald tells us that the exhortation of the Spirit in the late Reunion was, "PRESS FORWARD!" In the term itself there is embraced an intensity of purpose, a fixedness of resolve, which will not be turned aside from its object and which will surely, if followed out, lead on to victory. Came this voice of the Spirit to the elders only? Nay, to the membership as well. In this call there is no uncertain sound, neither is there in the many grand testimonies which God is bestowing upon his people in all parts of the world, and which are rolling in to us, wave upon wave, until our soul takes up the glad refrain, and the voice of praise and thanksgiving sends back the answer, "By thy help we will."

Surely the one solitary utterance preserved to us from the Savior's first thirty years of earthly life, may well be taken as the standing motto of our lives. Mark its imperative tone, "I must." There is no doubt, no wavering, no choice. It is not even the conscious "I ought," with which we too often tamper, but an uncompromising, "I must." Sonship of necessity includes service; every true child of God must be about his Father's business. With perishing bodies and perishing souls around us, with the emissaries of evil ever busy, night and day, how can a child of God be self-engrossed or idle?

To the ministry, says one, the exhortation "Press Forward" was chiefly given. "How shall they press forward without they are supported by the home guard in reserve? Whose is the work? "My Father's." Yes, grandly consoling thought, it is his work, but we can not separate it from that other thought of binding obligation, "I must be about it." "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ!" This is what the apostle calls all true Saints, and assures them that if they suffer, labor and endure with Him, they shall reign with Him. Is there anything which that joint or equal heir may withhold if they expect an equal share of that which the Master shall receive? Nothing, we answer, not life itself if the Father wills it thus. The best example of self-denying liberality in the Bible is recorded of woman. The best example of loving service in the Bible is recorded of woman. The best example of conquering prayer in the Bible is recorded of woman. It was no great gift, no great service, no great prayer. The gift was a widow's mite, the service was the anointing of Jesus with ointment, the prayer was a mother's prayer for a daughter possessed of a devil. Jesus never let fall such royal words of commendation as concerning these three women. Of the poor widow he said, "She hath cast in more than they all." Of Mary, with her alabaster box of ointment, he said, "She hath done what she could." And to the praying mother, he said, "Woman, great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt." The human suppliant had power with God. Surely such giving, such service and such prayer is possible to every woman. It is not the greatness of it, but the spirit of it which tells.

The call of the Spirit is to those who have been adopted into the household of faith and expect to inherit a kingdom with the Son. Do we, dear mothers and sisters, expect this? If we do, then upon us is the obligation imperative, and we can not escape from it; we must be about our Father's work. We are weak, but God is strong; and when we otherwise would faint by the way, let us lean upon him. Our faith wavers, and the waves rise high about us; let us but call upon him and he will lift us up, and will say unto us again, "Freely ye have received, freely give." If every faithful mother and sister who reads the Column would grant the request we made of them a few weeks ago, it would not be long before the fruits of the united prayer of faith would be seen and our funds would increase, as also the blessing of God would come upon our own souls. We repeat the request and ask you again, "Will you ask God to open the hearts of those who have, that they may give for the spread of his work?" Surely prayer must be a part of the work of the Father, for Jesus was often found engaged in prayer. God is not only blessing the church with the outpouring of his Holy Spirit, but he is adding to his numbers, daily, such as shall be saved; and to such as have recently been adopted into the kingdom we feel strongly impressed to say a few words: "Begin your Christian life with the firm determination to be an active member of the body of Christ. The Father's business is now your business, and you must be about it. Never was there greater need of valiant, self-sacrificing soldiers in the army of the Lord than exists today. There is work for every brain, work for every hand and heart to do; and let us warn you that to sleep at the post of duty while in an enemies land, is death. The arch enemy of King Emanuel was never more alert, more active, than he is to-day; for he knows that the end is near. His time is short and therefore has come down in great wrath. Listen to the parting admonition of the Captain of our salvation: "What I say unto you I say unto all, Watch!" Be exemplary members of Christ's body. Looking back do you remember the time when others who professed to love God were as stumbling blocks to you, and but for their inconsistencies you would have obeyed the truth sooner? Let this memory be to you the lamp, shedding its rays of light from the tower by the ocean, warning you to steer clear from the dangerous rocks of inconsistency, for they are stained with the blood of lost souls, and the commandment to us is, "Make straight paths for your feet." How far we are, or are not, our brother's keeper, only eternity will reveal. Jesus said offences must come, but he also said, "Woe unto that man by whom the offence cometh." Be prayerful members of Christ's body. Prayer is the daily food of the child of God. Without prayer you can never be his child; and without daily, yes, hourly prayer, you can not grow in grace, neither in the knowledge of God. Be brave members of his body. Be not ashamed to confess before the whole world that you feel the need of a Savior and are striving to be his disciples indeed and in truth. If you had been adopted into the family of Queen Victoria, would you be ashamed to own it? If you would glory in such a relationship, how much more then should you glory in being a son or daughter of the King of kings, and Lord of lords. Think for one moment how you would dishonor your high calling should you ever be ashamed of your King, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and in whose sight the kings and queens of this earth are no more, no better, than the beggar who asks alms at your gate, unless they too are subjects of your King. Before the Saints of God shall kings, queens, and nobles stand in judgment, for the "Saints shall judge the world." May we all so strive to walk before the Lord, that we may be able to abide the day of his coming, and stand in the day of his judgment.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. May Booth, Lamoni, Iowa.....	26
A Sister, Iowa.....	10 00
Sr. Lizzie A. Marchington, Attleboro, Mass.1	00
Sr. Lee, Harlan, Iowa, (By Sister Smith)...	65
Sr. Rachel M. Ballantyne, Willow, Iowa...	10
Sr. A. Wood & children, Wheeler's Grove, Ia.	60
Sr. Eliza Wight, Ridgway, Mo.....	55
Sr. Estelle Wight, Ridgeway, Mo.....	13
Sr. Lanning's baby, Busby, Kan.....	05
A Mother for her boy, Lamoni, Iowa.....	1 00
Sr. Elizabeth Hopkins, Lamoni, Iowa.....	60
Sr. Mary, Kewanee, Ills.....	3 00
Sr. Mattie Parsons, Springfield, Kan.....	28
Sr. Emma J. Hayer, Eagle Grove, Iowa....	29

LAMONI, IOWA, October 19th.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Abigail Alley, Jaffa, Palestine, writes under date of September 4th, 1887: "I thought I would write a few words at this time, thinking they would not come amiss from this Holy Land. There is a Brighamite elder laboring here, and, strange to say, has found some simple enough to become his disciples (for Christ's disciples they are not). I had two or three good talks with the elder (Tanner is his name) like a mother with a son. At the first talk he hung his head, but the last time I talked to him about plurality of wives, he said, 'It is not your business to speak about it.' I told him it was my business, and not only mine, but the business of every law-abiding citizen of the United States, not only to talk about it, but to pray against it also, and to do against it all in their power; and that the law was not made half strict enough against their pernicious habits, and it was abominable in the sight of God to even think of such a thing."

THE MISSION OF FLOWERS.

DEAR SISTER EMMA:—Is it only to please the eye? I had an idea that nothing in creation was meant to just please the senses; but it may be with me as with the poet, "I see with deeper, sadder eyes than those around me thrown." Is music meant just to please the ear? if so you and I, sister Emma, do not get much benefit; but I believe you understand how to make melody in the heart, and that music reaches deeper, and affects much more than the external ear; and so with flowers and other things addressed to the eye. The most enthusiastic lover of flowers that I ever knew, was a blind lady. She delighted to have a vase of them near her, or a bunch of them on her bosom; and no house plants were ever cared for like hers. If their mission, in her case at least, was to please the eye, it certainly was a waste of time; but they spoke to the spirit within, and she gained many of her ideas from them. Showing some violets which a friend had given her she said: "I always have a notion that my friend and these flowers look just alike, modest and sweet." Our Lord often used flowers to illustrate truths which he wished to impress on his hearers. When he called their attention to the lily of the valley, and the rose of Sharon, had he merely wished to please the eye he might just as well have pointed to Solomon's raiment; but that monarch with all his glory was destitute of those inherent qualities and the spirit of the gospel which those flowers illustrated. So I understand; and don't you agree, sister Emma?

LAMONI, Ia.

ELEANOR.

HASTINGS, Victoria, Aug. 3d.

To the scattered Saints:—While reading your letters from time to time, in the Column, I have been led to see the force of the apostle's words when speaking of the different members of the body, the human body, representing the members of the body of Christ, wherein he says: "God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honor to that part which lacked;" for many who are deprived of the privilege of hearing the gospel preached unto them in word, have received the Spirit in greater abundance, and really enjoy more and live nearer to God than very many who have golden opportunities, but who neither appreciate nor enjoy them; who are cloyed with good things and have no appetite, while the hungry soul will go out to God and he will fill. It matters not how far or how wide the Saints of God are scattered; if they have the three books and the church periodicals, and can read, they will ever have rich food for thought; and through the channel of intercourse that is now opened up between the mothers and sisters, spirit will commune with kindred spirit, and one scarcely realizes they are alone, or in a remote part. Although some of the members of the body may be more distant from the head than others, yet they are just as much of the body, and must advance with it; as was clearly illustrated by elder Burton in his sermon last Sunday, "How one part of the body could not go into a city or house and leave any of its members outside, unless those members were severed from the body." And though the feet are the most distant from the head, they can not be left behind; so with the body of Christ, hence the promise that "God himself will make up what is otherwise lacking." So with this precious promise; each might be content, knowing if they lacked in some things, they have the more joy in others. And, if those to whom this promise is made lay hold of it and make it theirs, they will perhaps have reason to thank God that they were situated as they were, apart from much that would worry and perplex, as well as build up and strengthen.

I believe everything is bought with a price. So when you are inclined to be cast down, or feel that your lot is hard, being separated from the Saints, while others are enjoying greater privileges than you are, remember with those privileges comes greater responsibilities, greater trials, and often greater temptations. The price must be paid in one way or another, else our Father would be partial. My heart is often cheered and strengthened by the letters of those lonely sisters, and especially the "shut in" ones, the most lonely of all, who can see the enjoyment of others, but can not partake of it. May we each be willing, be "tempered," to fill well the position allotted us in this life; to be active members, and thereby assist the body, for all have a duty to perform.

SISTER EMMA.

P. S.—Will she that was sister Sarah Jones, please put her full name the first time she writes to the Column? I have lost you, sister; heard you were married shortly after our acquaintance at conference, but never learned your new name.

E. B.

BURLINGTON, Iowa.

Sister Frances:—I hail with pleasure the coming of the Herald each week; I have been a reader of its pages for over twenty-six years, and it becomes more and more interesting almost each number; and when I think of the store of knowledge that I have gained by reading it, I am not at a loss to know why it has been so interesting. It is a little over twenty-five years since I made a covenant with God by going into the waters of baptism, and I have never regretted the covenant I made then; but, on the contrary, I have been made to rejoice many times, and have had many bright evidence of the truth of the work and of my acceptance with God as his child.

SISTER MARY.

CAMERON, Mo, October 2d.

Sister Frances:—Since receiving the answer to my question through the Hope, I have improved every opportunity to talk to my class in favor of the pledge. Some have promised to sign, and I believe others will soon. I feel a deep interest in the young, and nothing that I can do is too great to help them on in this work. Is there any thing that will cause the heart of a true Saint to ache, and their earnest prayers to ascend to the Master, so quickly as to see those that have taken upon them the name of Latter Day Saint, and have testified time after time of the truthfulness of the work, growing cold and indifferent, staying away from meeting, and, when they do come, keeping their seats, not seeming to think that there is anything they can do? Oh! if they could only know how much good they might do by trying to bear their cross, they would never again hesitate to try, and never, if they could possibly avoid it, fail to meet with the Saints, especially in sacrament and social meetings; for if the ninety and nine are all there, the one absent is missed and mourned by every true hearted sympathizing Saint.

Bro. Joseph Lambert has been with us, as you will see by the last Herald. We were truly thankful to have him come, but when the time came for his departure it caused feelings of regret and sadness. He is, indeed, one the true, faithful and wise soldiers of the cross, and his labors here are appreciated by the Saints in our branch. I am satisfied that much good was done by him, and the Spirit bore witness that the work he did here was accepted of the Master.

Yours in gospel bonds,

GUILITA F. SIMMONS.

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 8th.

Dear Sisters:—In reading your many interesting letters I feel it my duty to write to you. I would have written long before this time, but I can not write English nor read it. One of my neighbors, a brother, comes often and reads for me out of the Herald, and translates it into German, so that I can understand it. I have often received testimony by the Spirit of God when the letters of the Home Column" were read to me, that the work is of God. For the last three months I have felt it my duty to write to you and give my testimony of this glorious work. I am one of those who through the grace of God was permitted to hear the gospel; and I think I must do something for it to the honor of my God.

If you desire to know why the Spirit moves me to write, it is this, to strengthen you and the sisters that write from time to time, that you may not be wearied, and faint not in your minds. I know and have experienced that the gospel is not in words only, but in power. I know that God will bring about his marvelous work in these ast days; not through angels but through his servants.

I some times think it strange that I should write, but the Spirit leaves me no rest by day or night. I was baptized in Burlington, Iowa, by Bro. J. G. Bauer, and came on account of the gathering of the Saints to this place. When I came here, in the English meeting I could not understand one word, but the Lord made known unto me his power; I heard in my mother tongue, like as on the day of Pentecost, the wonderful works of God revealed. I desire now to bring forth fruit, and not to be cut down.

This week I was taken very sick, so that I thought I had to go to my God. I felt as all my work was done, but I had not written to you, which the Spirit said to me I should do. This morning, when a brother read to me out of the Herald, I was reminded again of my duty. I live now in the German Stewartsville branch, near by the church and can attend all meetings. This is the only German branch, I believe, in America. May God bless you and all the workers for the Home Column, is my prayer.

Your sister in Christ,

E. HOVENGA.

Correspondence.

HERSEY, Mich., Oct. 6th.

Bro. Joseph and William: I believe we are trying as a branch to do the Master's will, although we all have our failings, and by times have our dark hours. God has promised that he will not forsake us in the hour of trouble, and I thank him that he has fulfilled his promise with me.

The work is onward here, and, as Bro. Cummings of Independence says, it seems as though the work is making faster progress now than ever before, and I would add, in the Reorganization. For while reading the old Times and Seasons and Millennial Star I find the work progressed faster than. But there are good reason for it, for the elders while going abroad to preach the gospel then did not have Brighamism and other isms to fight against as do the elders now. But persecution then ran high, as will be seen by reading "Persecution and its Causes." Yet notwithstanding all this the work rolled on, and still continues to roll on amid persecution. My heart is in this latter day work, and I love to do all I can to help roll it on. While trying, in my weakness, to present the word to my fellow men, in unison with Bro. J. J. Carnish, God has blessed me and has blessed our labors in the vicinity of Orono, where we have been holding forth. Five of the people there have been baptized of late, and more are believing. May God bless the work.

S. D. SHIPPY.

PERSIA, Iowa, Oct. 20th.

Bro. Dancer:—Elder Mark H. Forscutt was with us on the 9th inst., and has promised to speak here again on the 20th of November. When he was here he did much good. He was truly blest with the Spirit; and he rejoiced greatly for the aid he received from God. Oh, that such talent as he has, with the assistance of God's promised Spirit, could be in the vineyard of the Lord continually. We are still gaining ground here; two more were baptized here last Sabbath. I hope that there may be more soon.

Yours in hope,

D. CHAMBERS.

Dear Herald:—I have attended but very few of the regular church services in the Des Moines branch since I wrote the Herald before; having been absent in the regions round about, talking some to the people about our faith. Found warm friends even among the Gentiles, whose friendship was shown to be true under trials severe and protracted. Our personal weaknesses and faults being the only thing we feel to fear, and still cherishing the whispering hope that all may yet be well; believing that "as the dross is so shall the heat be and the continuation thereof." But "who shall stand when he appeareth, and who shall abide the day of his coming?" Shall I, who am so weak, so far from that which my soul panteth for, shall I, Oh shall I, ever be satisfied with that draught from salvation's well, (salvation from sin) that I so much desire and believe necessary unto the enjoyment of eternal, celestial bliss. No, my brother, it is not your faults that worry me most, but my own. Yours may give me a sense of sorrow for the errors of beloved ones, but mine gives all that and the additional terrible responsibility resting upon each individual who knows his own weakness (even all his secret faults) so much better than he can know those of others, he feels like Paul, the "chief of sinners;" and is made to cry unto God, "cleanse thou me from secret faults." "Happy is the man that condemneth not himself by that thing which he alloweth." The chidings of the Spirit, that still small voice, arraigns before the bar of immediate, eternal right, with its never fading throne, emblazoned with "floods of everlasting light;" decorated with charity "which never faileth;" that love that knows no hate, that "thinketh no evil;" made staunch and immovable by the granite pillars of "eternal justice; and yet mellowed and hallowed by the smiles of him that so loved us." It is before this to come in spirit, this palace of light, of love, justice and glory, that compels me to ask, aye, to question my soul, and say, Oh wretched man, that I might stand in holy places that when he appeareth I might see him as he is, even the King in his glory, and not be ashamed; "and that will be glory for me."

I have been to but few services, but from all I see and learn we can not boast of anything like harvest home work. The outside world would treat us, aye, do treat us well so far as I know, all over the Des Moines district; but internally we need something in the nature of adhesiveness that we seem to have allowed our stock to have been robbed of. I suppose however that in most cases of house cleaning the beauteous order of the arrangement ordinarily seen is necessarily greatly disturbed, and all the more so if, instead of cleaning up, the forces at work (hands employed) should become discordant and stop to discuss measures (that should have been learned before) as to modes of determining what was proper furniture to remain and what had become unfit for use, and finally drop the discussion of modes, &c., and go to discussing the motives of each other in urging individual views and opinions on modes of procedure. I think, however, that sooner, or later (we hope sooner) the proprietor of the house, seeing that the proper object of his employes had been abandoned to personal quarreling, and his house to disorder, instead of being cleaned would demand a "stop" in programme; "call a halt" ere the good name of his house, safety of his furniture, &c., were too greatly endangered, and demand peace and peaceable procedure, at once dismissing all from his services who would not cheerfully and unitedly proceed to prepare his house properly and in exact accordance with his orders; which he would then and there by his own voice clearly point out as already and previously given, or as suitable in such confused state of affairs as the exigencies might demand. So might it be, and so are we situated here to-day, as a district. But I must say that no one person, nor two or three are responsible for it alone, by any means. We have years of undisturbed accumulating rubbish and dirt to dislodge, work off, purge out, and to do all this now, which should have been done as it accumulated, is no small matter. Nor do I feel like hearing any one's motives in their proposed modes of adjustment censured. We may not agree with them, but certainly ought to respect their right to act as they feel is proper and just, whether in a plaintiff or defensive mode.

While this church is a theocracy it is also Democratic in principle, and he who would attempt to rob the humblest member of his right of agency or voice is not acting consistently with the spirit and genius of the gospel; or of free government. "Common consent" as a principle in the church must sooner or later come to a clear and better and more satisfactory understanding with the right and powers of the official authorities of the church. Just where the right of a supposed inspired ministry begins, and the right of voice and consent of members stops in perplexed and intricate cases, is a very fine question to decide on, and is one which I predict will be among the hardest for the members of the Reorganization to settle when serious question arise for adjudication and adjustment. May we all have patience to investigate and act wisely, thoughtfully and unselfishly when vexatious questions arise.

I think we have wise and true men who are able to give us good and proper counsel—could our entire district have heard the able, penetrating and edifying effort of Bro. Joseph Lambert, of the Twelve, at chapel here, the evening of the 24th September, it seems to me, the entire force of workmen could have seen and felt what the needed remedy is. May he live to preach a thousand more such glorious sermons is our prayer. He fed us, exhorted us, and whipped me. Thank God it was a real whipping, and yet joyous, because so much of truth, of fact, of counsel, of everything that we needed that rounds up a sermon and sanctifies it for good. Thank God it raised me up. I shall never forget it I hope.

Well, finally, brethren, pray for us that out of all we may be gloriously delivered by faith and works through the mercy and grace of God.

Yours in bonds,

N. A. BAKER.

MONDAMIN, Iowa, Oct. 8th.

I have been reading, since returning from the Reunion, "The Golden Bible" by Rev. Lamb. It is a strange production of human wisdom, such as I would expect from one who denies the power of God and his Holy Spirit. It is a puerile production, and will never do Latter Day Saints any harm, or any one who wants to know the truth. I expected to find some "strong reasons" for rejecting the Book of Mormon, but have looked in vain. He has something that is possibly new to some—it was to me—namely, that the faith of the Saints was built on the Book of Mormon, and that when that is proven a fraud, the foundation of Mormonism is gone, and the whole superstructure will fall. When I embraced this work I was taught to have faith in Jesus Christ, and not that salvation depended upon a belief in the divinity of any book, or that Joseph Smith was a prophet of God. Might I not reject any of the ancient prophets and not affect my salvation in the least!

His objections, so far as I can read, are its ungrammatical construction and its miracles. It is too bad that the Lord did not foresee that there would be grammarians in this age, and teach those Nephites in a language that is grammatical now, just for the benefit of Bro. Lamb and his like. On the same ground that he rejects the Book of Mormon we might reject some of the books of the Bible, namely, its phraseology. The book of Daniel is not like the book of Isaiah in its phraseology, and hence when on this plan we ascertain which is genuine, we can reject the others.

In treating on miracles he forgets the plagues of Egypt, the passage of the Red Sea, Jonah and the fish, the feeding of the five thousand, and many others that might be mentioned. He shows his ignorance when he says there never was any such civilization on this continent as the Book of Mormon represents. I would recommend the reading of Baldwin's Ancient America, or some other works on archæology.

Bro. J. W. Wight has been here, spoke eight times in town, and baptized one, Dr. Miller's wife; also spoke seven times four miles from town. There was good interest and good attention. Good might be done here if the work was followed up. Who will do it? In bonds,
J. L. GUNSOLLEY.

SOME time ago we received a Des Moines newspaper, giving a report of an effort of Bro. N. A. Baker in the Court-house in that city, in which the reporter stated that the house was fairly well filled. This statement, it appears, has been called in question by some, and stories improperly reflecting upon Bro. Baker's connection with such reports, have been circulated. Bro. Baker has written a refutation of these adverse stories for the HERALD; but as the matter is purely local, and is largely personal, we do not feel that it is wisdom to prolong the controversy, and therefore give the statement of the reporter himself, which ought to set the matter at rest, and must so far as the HERALD is concerned.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

"With reference to a series of articles published in the Daily News some time ago, comprising description of the Church of Latter Day Saints in Des Moines, and reports of its revival meetings, I desire to make the statement that they were written by the order of our managing editor, Mr. J. J. Hamilton, in the interests of our subscribers who were of that faith. I wrote them, secured the facts, reported the meetings, and was present in person, and requested them to send me concise report. Several of these (points) were furnished by Elder Baker, at my personal request, and without any suggestions on the part of any one save my superiors. I received them, reported, wrote the introductions and the head lines without assistance or advice. It was considered purely a matter of news, and treated fairly and dispassionately as such. The News knows no favorites in its local columns, and gives every thing as a matter of news.

Subscribed,
FRANKLIN W. LEE, City Editor.

ECHO, Cherokee Nation,
Indian Territory, Oct. 17th.

Presidents Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair;
Dear Brethren: I arrived here last Friday noon, met the few Saints who live here, from whom we received a kind welcome such as Saints can give. We gave out an appointment for the Sabbath, and it surprised me to see so many people turn out. The house was full, and many more outside. And the liberty given me was a surprise to me also. But let my heavenly Father have the honor.

I feel well, and have a great desire to be worthy to do the work that is to be done here, for there is to be a work done among this people such as has never been done, and only the power of God can do the work. I was sorry to leave Bro. Hawley in Kansas until he got well, which I hope will not be long.

Send me six Books of Mormon, twelve Voice of Warning, and all the tracts you please; send also all my back Heralds and Hopes. We are on the banks of Grand river, two hundred and forty yards wide and two and a half feet deep. I wish you were here to kill squirrels, eat fish and sweet potatoes. Pray for us that we may do the will of the Lord, and be entitled to the blessings.

STEPHEN MALONEY.

BUFFALO PRAIRIE, Ills., Oct. 2d.

Dear Herald:—I come rejoicing in the Lord to tell your dear readers, especially those that are deeply interested in the welfare of the Buffalo Praire Saints, and those throughout the Kewanee district, of the hours of consolation and rejoicing the Saints experienced here to-day, and that the "blessings of old are returning" unto us again, in two services, causing rejoicing in the gifts and blessings as promised by our Savior, to them that believe. We are rejoicing as we did in former days, experiencing the teachings and more clearly discerning the language of the Apostle Paul, that Christ divideth gifts among his children "for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, till we in the unity of the faith all come to the knowledge of the Son of God." Also that "they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover;" and again, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted. Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." And, "Blessed are they that do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled with the Holy Ghost." In our branch we have "talents" and those that are gifted. Oh! the rich blessings that come from the Father! "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Many rich blessing we realized to-day; for they that mourned were comforted, and the voice of the Spirit of God said through his servant D. S. Holmes to Elder E. F. Bryant and companion who deeply mourned and were tried because of a vacant seat at the hearth-stone, that they should meet the departed one in the kingdom of God. And many other precious promises they received. The thought of meeting little Cyrus in that beautiful city; a place prepared for God's tried people where there will be no more sorrow, where we shall know as we are known; where there shall be no need of the sun, neither of the moon, for the glory of God shall lighten it. I for one can testify, "I know there is a God." I have had many testimonies. Well may we sing:

"The pure testimony poured forth in the Spirit, Cuts like a keen two edged sword."

I know that the Latter Day Saints are owned and accepted of God when they live in accordance with his laws and commandments. Perhaps unbelievers and scoffers of our faith will scan these lines and I will write such facts for their consideration. I have seen prophecy fulfilled within sixteen days, and it was spoken, and worded, as only the Father in heaven could know. It was even by the Spirit of the Lord.

Dear Saints, it stands us in hand to watch and pray while the day lasts, and have on "the breast-plate of faith." By our own works we stand or fall. When the children of God have that determination that they should have, obstacles that seem towering mountains will be removed in mysterious ways almost before one is aware of the fact. Infidelity! The word makes me sad. It brings a sensation of sorrow and pity that some men of intellect and great influence should stoop to so narrow reasonings as they do. I was made to feel very sad, to that extent that I felt weak and faint, not eight months since, when partaking of the noon-day meal in the far west. An Infidel, a man held in high esteem by the citizens of Wagon Mound, New Mexico, set forth his narrow minded theories of Infidelity. Before me appears the cross; I hear the Son of God in his hour of grief cry, "Father, forgive them, they know not what they do."

Men to-day are clinging to all kinds of theories. Of such is the earth peopled. How thankful we should be to know what we believe. I am so situated that my testimonies have appeared to me with so much force that I am compelled, yes, compelled to believe all the teachings of our Savior and be a Latter Day Saint or an Infidel—and I would not be an Infidel; no, no. I am a Latter Day Saint and by the help of God always will be. But the question arises, Are we as children of God living up to the teachings of Christ and the church?

There are two tiny words—but oh, the power that is in them—tithes and tenth! Turn with me to 1 John, 2: 16. It says something about "the lusts of the flesh and the pride of life." These words are quite a bother to some of us Saints. I have heard it remarked, "If the shoe fits, let them wear it." Come, dear Saints, let us all try the shoe on. "Though we speak with tongues of angels and have not charity, we become "as sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal."

I am willing to take this home to myself, and I for one feel quite ashamed of the golden opportunities wherein I might have done deeds of charity and fulfilled God's laws, more especially when I think of those dear Saints in the far off Isles of the Sea, how they are toiling for the cause of the Master and Father of all. Let us pray, though tried as it were by fire, that we finally be numbered among those that do His commandments; that we may "have right to the tree of life," and enter in through the gates into the city of God.

Your humble sister,

MINA EPPERLY.

BOTANY, Ontario, Oct. 8th.

Bro Joseph:—We have Bro. J. A. McIntosh with us at present, and he has been the means in God's hands of doing much good in this place, as in all other places where called to labor. There are a few Saints here, but we have no branch now; our nearest meeting place is the Lindsay branch, nine miles from here. But we have the Hope and Herald, which come to us as angels of light to cheer and comfort our souls, telling how the gospel is spreading its glorious light. I fail to find words to express my thankfulness to God for showing me my duty to render obedience to the gospel. When quite young I had a desire to serve the Lord and lead a Christian life. I was then living with a good Methodist family, and as I had never heard anything better I united with them, and tried to live up to the best light that I had. But after I was married, my husband's people being Baptist's, they insisted upon my being baptized and uniting with them. I soon saw by reading the Bible that it was right to be immersed, so I left the Methodists and united with the Baptists. I remained a member of that church until the death of my husband. After this my brother, who was a Saint, told me that I had not yet complied fully with God's law, and that the Saints were the church of God, and that I would have to be one or never inherit celestial glory. I thought it was pretty hard, so I just told him that I would rather be lost than be called by that horrid name Mormon. After that I married a Saint holding the office of priest, and he took the Bible and showed me where I was wrong, and what was right. The Spirit of the Lord led me, so I went to the Lord in prayer, and on the first day of last September I went up to Bro. Arthur Leverton's and was baptized, and then I knew that I had done the will of the Lord, for he was with me in mighty power.

Your sister in Christ,

JANE MCBRAYNE.

STEWARTSVILLE, MO., Oct. 14th.

Dear Herald:—The gladsome news you bring from week to week of the onwardness of the "marvelous work" is cheering to our souls. Time is fleeting; the consumation nears; the Savior will come and find us—in what condition! While I can not boast of great strides the cause is making here, yet I am safe in saying it is losing no ground, there being an element among the Saints here calculated to hold the work up and not permit its banner to trail in the dust. It should keep pace with it elsewhere, were it not for local causes, not the least of which is indifference. We have full confidence in the final triumph of the gospel. Affliction's hand is upon us. Bro. Jacob Dice, who has been a great sufferer for years, still lingers this side the river. Others are suffering from ailments, among whom is Sr. J. H. Meriam, whose affliction caused him to return from his mission in Canada. He is doing local work as circumstances permit.

There has been quite an exodus from here by the Saints, mostly to "the center." We lose a good worker in Dr. A. McCallum, who moved to Independence. To kill the good work done at Kingston by Elder H. C. Bronson—the "divines" and some members of their churches clubbed together and obtained the services of Clark Braden to deliver a course of lectures on Mormonism, which he did in his usual style, using his usual arguments—contumelious statements without foundation in fact. Bro. Bronson being apprised of his lectures made haste to be there, too. He went and "bearded the lion in his den," making him to refuse before his audience to accept propositions for debate which were fair and impartial. The end is not yet.

J. M. TERRY.

SAN JACINTO, Cal., Sep. 4th.

Bro. Joseph:—We have just returned from the funeral of our dear sister, Priscilla Hartell, but we did not arrive in time to see her. Of course we mourn, but not as one without hope, for we have an assurance that she is at rest in the paradise of God. If Bro. J. F. Burton's eyes should fall on these lines it will bring to his mind the time that he confirmed her, and it will be another link in the strong chain of testimonies in favor of this great latter day work.

May God abundantly bless Bro. and Sr. Burton in their far off field of labor is our daily prayer. I have been trying to get an opening for preaching in my neighborhood, and have succeeded in getting one hearing explaining our position on polygamy, &c. I think the old enemy got a severe blow, for his tongue wagged pretty lively, and he dropped a local item in our local paper of such a character as to disgust all fair minded people who heard me. I replied to it and so did one of my friends in such a way that I am sure the cause of truth did not suffer harm. Since then the man whom I suspect of the item in the paper, and the man who was foremost in trying to prevent me speaking, and who is a leading Universalist minister, has been and is having trouble with one of his brethren; and the people, including the school trustees have forbidden him to preach or pray in our school house, and the trouble is likely to culminate in a libel suit against him. Thus you see God is caring for his work, and it is bound to triumph. I think there are some sheep in this place, and I believe some will obey when the gospel is properly presented to them. I am doing all I can in talking and loaning books and tracts, and I think the door is now open for some elder to come and occupy. Ever praying for the triumph of truth, I remain your brother,

W. W. PICKERING.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

WOULD WE BE BOUND?

IN a review of a writer signing himself Investigator, the reviewer or critic assumes the ground that if the government of the United States should pass a law compelling the observance of Sunday as a day of rest from labor, that the Saints would be required to observe the law on the ground that they were not to break the laws of the land, the command of God being, "Let no man break the laws of the land." It is not to argue the Sabbath day, or seventh day side of the question that I write, but to enquire whether there could be an exception to the rule. The point may be seen in assuming that the Saints believe conscientiously that they are bound to recognize the Book of Mormon as a divinely inspired record, translated by command of God, and by the power of his Spirit, and that they are commanded of God to "Remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon," to "Teach the principles of my gospel, that are contained in the Bible and Book of Mormon," &c. Again, that they are required by command of God to "observe the covenants and church articles to do them," and to consider themselves under condemnation before God if they "treat lightly" these books—ie the Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants. Now suppose that under the influence of the popular churches, Congress should pass a law declaring that the Bible alone should be received as the word of God, and that no other book should be received or taught (at least openly) as the word of God, but the Bible only; what would we do? Would we be bound by that law? It does not answer the question by asserting that is an altogether improbable event. It may be improbable, but not impossible. But suppose there would be such a law passed, what then? Suppose the alternative should come. To obey God or the government? I entertain the same fear that Investigator does, that something of this kind may grow out of the attempt by the National Reform Association to have the Constitution of the United States so changed as to recognize God as the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, and Jesus Christ, the Head of the Church, to be recognized as the Ruler of Nations and the principles of the Christian religion to be placed "on a legal basis." Mrs. Mary A. Woodbridge, Recording Secretary of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and one of the Vice-presidents of the National Reform Association, in a speech made not long ago, said, "Shall we not amend our National Constitution, that the world shall know that we acknowledge Christ as Ruler? as the head of our Nation? and in his name, and for his glory shall not 'we, the people,' in order to form a more perfect Union, thus 'ordain?' While we render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, shall we not render unto God the things that are God's?" Said Rev. R. M. Sommerville, in the Christian Nation, a National Reform journal; "It is the duty of civil rulers, in subordination to Christ, to recognize the church, its ordinances, and its laws. It is not merely that the existence of such an organization is owned, and tolerated, but a statutory arrangement, confessing the divine origin of the church, and the divine obligation, resting on the Nation, to accept its doctrine and order, and engaging to regulate their administration in conformity with its constitution and object." Again he says, "Civil rulers owe it to their Supreme Lord, and to society, to encourage and to stimulate the church in its work of faith, and labor of love, and when it may be necessary, to give pecuniary aid to its ministers, that the gospel may be preached in every part of their dominions, and to all classes without respect to persons." And he adds "But shall we take—is it right to take—public money to teach principles, enforce laws, and introduce customs to which many members of the community are conscientiously opposed? Most certainly. The gospel from its very nature is aggressive, contemplates the rectification of corrupt, disorderly, and degraded human nature, casts down every high thing that would exalt itself against the knowledge of God, and brings every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ." The following is from the Christian Statesman, the chief organ of the Nation Reform Association. "The churches and the pulpits have much to do in shaping and forming opinions on all moral questions, and with interpretations of Scripture on moral, and civil, as well as on theological and ecclesiastical points. And it is probable that in the almost universal gathering of our citizens about these, the chief discussions, and the final decision on most points will be developed." Again: "But the changes will come gradually, and probably only after the whole frame work of Bible legislation has been thoroughly canvassed by Congress and State Legislature, by the Supreme Courts of the United States, and of the several States, and by lawyers and citizens generally."

Now what does all this mean? It means this; that after the lawyers and citizens generally, in their beer-shops, and gambling hells, and club-rooms, and in the dens of vice generally, as well as in the halls of Congress and State Legislatures, and in the churches, and family circles, have canvassed thoroughly "the interpretations of Scripture on moral and civil, as well as on theological and ecclesiastical points," that "final decisions" shall be reached, and then by enactment of Congress and State Legislatures, it will be determined what is to be received as Christian doctrine, and what is not to be tolerated as a matter of faith and practice.

At the head and front of this so-called National Reform Movement stands the Reformed Presbyterian Church, backed up by other Presbyterian bodies, and endorsed by other churches. Among the many vice-presidents of the Association I recognize some of the most bitter enemies that Mormonism has, not merely Utahism, but the whole system of religion called Mormonism by our enemies. It was this same Reformed Presbyterian body, under the head or name of Covenanters, who succeeded in June, 1640, in securing the passage of an act by the Scotch Parliament at Edinburgh, adopting the confession of Faith and Covenant of that church, and that act was to "ordain and command the said confession and covenant to be subscribed by all His Majesty's (Charles I) subjects of what rank and quality soever under all civil pains." They succeeded also in having the English Parliament, composed almost entirely of Presbyterians at the time, to pass an "ordinance for the suppression of blasphemies and heresies." In this ordinance were expressions like these, that any man denying the doctrine of the Trinity, or the divinity of Christ, or that the books of Scripture are the word of God, or the resurrection of the body, or a future day of judgment, and refusing on trial to abjure his heresy "shall suffer the pain of death." Any man declaring (among a long list of other errors) "that man by nature hath a free will to turn to God," that there is a purgatory, that images are lawful; that infant baptism is unlawful; any one denying the obligation of observing the Lord's day, or asserting that the church government by presbytery is anti-Christian, or unlawful, shall on refusal to renounce his errors "be commanded to prison." Now it so happens that this Reformed Presbyterian, or the old Covenanted church claims that "National Reform is simply the practical application of the principles of the Reformed Presbyterian Church for the reformation of the Nation." Of course at present, to catch the sympathy of the Methodist Episcopal, and the Protestant Episcopal churches, and secure their co-operation, they say nothing about their peculiar church rules, but claim what appears very innocent—to acknowledge the Supremacy of God, the right to rule the nation, and the approval of the Christian religion, and to have a national acknowledgement of Sunday as a day of rest. But it is really an effort to bring about a union of Church and State, an image of the beast. It looks lamb like now, but when it has its two horns fully developed—Church and State, or religion and politics united,—it will speak as the Dragon has always spoken.

In the hands of this Reformed Church, and Reformed Nation governed by the church, we as a church will have no show. Presbyterians have been our bitterest foes from the beginning, as any one conversant with our church history must have noticed. Our troubles began with the supposed novel of one of their clergymen. They were among the first to accuse Joseph Smith with stealing their brother's romance. Clergymen of that order were leaders of mobs; they formed a large portion of the court martial that sentenced Joseph Smith to death; they are the most bitter enemies to the church everywhere, opposing everything called Mormonism, under pretense of attacking Utahism, both in and out of Utah.

If Investigator is aware of one-tenth the evidence that can be accumulated to prove that the National Reform movement is really aimed at the overthrow of such minor bodies of Christians as the Latter Day Saints, Adventists, Campbellites, &c. So he was justified in assuming the ground that we have reason to fear, should their unhallowed designs succeed.

I do not know that the Sunday question is the mark of the beast, yet I believe that the "mark" will develop out of this National Reform movement. May God save us from the hands of this National Reform Association if it ever realizes its aim and ambition. If there are seventeen million Liberalists in this nation as Bro. Crawley once stated, I hope for one that they will get their eyes opened to the real animus of this movement. The government having taken the polygamy question in hand, these reformers can no longer use that as an argument against us. And the Spaulding romance theory of the origin of the Book of Mormon is no longer available. Their utter inability to put us down by scripture argument, and the fact staring them in the face that if we are right, they are emphatically in the wrong, their only course is to craftily work, to get the government committee to a defense of the "Christian doctrine," as they call it, and then seeing that "none but those in whom is the Holy Spirit should be at the helm," or in other words religious teachers to be the makers and executors of the law,—in Congress, in the Supreme Court, in the presidential chair, and in the State Legislature, &c.,—we shall probably see or realize what is meant by Babylon being guilty of the blood of apostles and prophets and saints, more than we have dreamed possible in free America. Lamb-like Protestantism may yet speak like Dragonic Rome, even in the United States. And how has Rome spoken. Hear a few only of its utterances:—"If the Catholics ever gain—which they surely will do, though at a distant day—an immense numerical superiority, religious freedom is at an end."—Archbishop of St. Louis. "Protestantism of every form has not, and never can have right where Catholicism is triumphant."—Catholic Review. "We hate Protestantism; we detest it with our whole heart and soul."—Catholic Visitor. "There is ere long to be a State religion in this country, and that State religion is to be Roman Catholic."—Priest Hecker. "Accursed be those very crafty and deceitful societies called Bible Societies, which thrust the Bible into the hands of inexperienced youth."—Pope Pius IX.

Substitute Mormonism for Protestantism and the Book of Mormon for the Bible, and you can comprehend how the "image of the beast" will speak. It will say: "We hate Mormonism, we detest it with our whole heart and soul." "Mormonism of every form, has not and never can have any right where Protestantism, or rather Presbyterianism is triumphant." If the National Reform movement gain—which it surely will—an immense numerical superiority, religious freedom is at an end.

The question is, should this effort to unite Church and State succeed, and the church as it always has, and always will do—control the State, and we be forbidden to teach, print, or sell, or give away the Book of Mormon, will we be bound in this case to obey God, or to break the laws of the land? It does not say that he that keeps the laws of God never will have need to break the laws of the land, but that he hath no need to break the laws, there being nothing at the time between the laws of the land and those of God, and can not be under the present Constitution. But the Constitution is to be amended, and while it forbids now the establishment of a national religion, that article is to be so amended, that at least an acknowledgment of the Christian religion is to be made by the Constitution. Catholicism, Protestantism and Mormonism have shown that wherever any religious body can, it will assume control of civil affairs; and always, as might be expected, has it made a hell for everybody under its influence. God's curse seems to rest upon the effort always. "My kingdom is not of this world," said Jesus, and it has no business with politics, only so far as to exercise its right to vote for the best men for office, who are nominated by the political parties.

From 1828 to 1841, God gave the church one hundred and seven revelations. But from 1841 to 1844 nothing was heard as the word of the Lord, for during that period the church was assuming political powers, running a municipal government, and its Chief was aspiring to the presidency of the United States. Many things serve to show that God's Spirit was fast being withdrawn from the church, until it was finally rejected of him. Who can say that this meddling with civil affairs had not much to do with the declension of spiritual power, and that it may not have indirectly at least, led to the prophet's death? Going to Washington even, as a delegate of the church, had considerable to do (so I think) with the loss to the church, of an able Apostle. The more separate and distinct the church keeps herself from worldly affairs, the more she will enjoy of the favor of God and the presence of his Spirit. While the more she meddles with civil matters, the more sorrow and trouble she will see. There is no natural nor acquired affinity between the church and the world; but rather a natural antagonism. "Ye are not of the world," said Jesus, and because of that fact, he said the world would hate his people. "The friendship of the world is enmity with God; he that is the friend of the world is the enemy of God." "Be ye not conformed to this world." To the question: Would we be bound? that is—if the Government should command us to disobey God—would we be bound to obey man? What do you think, brethren?

Your brother in Christ,

THOMAS W. SMITH.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, August 19th.

SHALL WE COUNTENANCE THE USE OF TOBACCO?

I HAVE never before attempted to say anything in particular on the above subject through the press, but feel unwilling to refrain longer from giving expression, in my awkward way, upon the impropriety of giving sanction to the use of tobacco in any form—except "for bruises and sick cattle."

My reasons for taking up this subject are various, more so perhaps than I shall refer to in this article.

First, we read in Doc. and Cov. 86:1: "Thus saith the Lord unto you." "You" here means the church, each individual member; and no amount of argument can prove otherwise. Again in the same paragraph, the Lord says "tobacco is not for the body, neither for the belly, and is not good for man."

In Sec. 119:3: "Avoid the use of tobacco, and be not addicted to strong drink in any form, that your counsel to be temperate may be made effectual by your example." Never was the mind and will of God revealed on any subject in a plainer way; and to us it is a command to "avoid the use of tobacco." In substance, the Lord says that those who use it will suffer, for "it is not good for man." This does not apply alone to the elders of His church; all are required to "let your light so shine before men," by precept and example, that the world may see the light. When the Spirit gives commandments to the church through the proper channel by which it is to be law to the body, it is the first dictate of duty, and of safety, to obey.

From any point we view the above revelation on tobacco, we are assured they are commandments from the Lord to his people. In paragraph 9, we are further commanded to "be clean; be frugal." Can any one be clean who refuses to "avoid the use of tobacco?" Can any one be frugal in the true spirit of the term who spends any of his means for that which "is not good for man?" I answer for one, with emphasis, "No!"

One peculiarity attached to those continuing to use of tobacco since the Lord has forbidden its use is, that the majority are ready to file objections to the Doctrine and Covenants. Some say: "It is man's work." Others, "It is of man, and I want nothing to do with it." Hence they "reject the counsel of God against themselves," and condemnation is the result. Yet some of them seem bold to affirm the work to be true, but the commandments on using tobacco they claim are false—I am speaking of the majority of such objectors. To such we apply Paul's letter to Titus, 1:13: "Wherefore rebuke them sharply that they be sound in the faith;" also verses 15, 16; "Unto the pure all things are pure; (that are not filthy); but unto them that are defiled [with tobacco and unbelief] and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. . . . They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, bring abominable [filthy] and disobedient, and to every good work reprobate," [void of judgement and proper faith].

I am aware of some members having received aid from the bishop and others in good faith, using the charity bestowed in faith, for tobacco and snuff, some of whom are elders and their wives. These are facts forced upon our very presence. Is it not high time that a universal protest be raised against such a use being made of the means furnished to those persons for proper food and clothing? I would rather see my money consumed in flames than to know that it purchased tobacco and snuff for church members. I would suggest that when an appeal is made to the church officers for aid for the poor, that the first question asked be: "Do they smoke, chew or snuff?" If the answer is in the affirmative, withhold the hand of charity until they "avoid the use of tobacco." We are aware that much of the means furnished to carry on the work has been raised by sacrifice, and surely it is a very reasonable demand to require total abstinence from the use of the weed from those who are addicted to using it, who are dependent on us for aid.

No plea or excuse should be received from the aged or infirm, justifying its use; for God has said: "It is not good for man." Let His word be the end of controversy. And more, it is required of His servants to preach (teach) His commandments, and practice what they preach. By the lovers of tobacco I may be considered entirely radical; but I feel that I am responsible for the way I handle the word of God, therefore dare not use it deceitfully. "He that knoweth his Master's will and doeth it not, shall be beaten with many stripes." — Jesus.

God's word is pure and good for man;
Tobacco is not so;
And he who would the former keep,
Must let the latter go.

L. R. DEVORE.

THE old family Bible that belonged to "Mary the mother of Washington," is still in existence and is kept in a branch of the Washington family in Virginia. It contains the family register, recording the birth of George Washington, February 22, 1732. The binding has a cover of cloth woven by the hand of his mother.

SOUTHEY says in one of his letters, "I have told you of the Spaniard who always put on his spectacles when about to eat cherries, that they might look bigger and more tempting. In like manner I make the most of my enjoyments, and pack away my troubles in as small a place as I can."

"LOST ISRAEL FOUND," REVISED.

[Concluded.]

IDENTIFICATIONS OF THE BRITISH NATION WITH LOST ISRAEL.

I.—BY JOSEPH SMITH THE MARTYR.

DO NOT suppose that this theory confutes or is contrary to a single word or sentiment in the writings of Joseph Smith. On the contrary, before the martyr's death, he in some way became acquainted with this theory and adopted it as the truth. Hasty and narrow interpretations or misinterpretations of the following paragraph in the book of Doctrine and Covenants has led many to suppose Israel to be hid away in the Polar Zone:—"And they who are in the North countries shall come in remembrance before the Lord, and their prophets shall hear his voice and shall no longer stay themselves, and they shall smite the rocks, and the ice shall flow down at their presence and a highway shall be cast up in the midst of the great deep." Sec. 108:6.

Now before the Israelites left their own land a large army came against them from the very region (Northern Europe) to which I have traced them, which the Scriptures then called "the North countries." This paragraph however may refer to some offshoot of Israel in the Polar Zone, but how could it refer to them nationally when they were to become "a great nation," the head and not the tail, "numerous as the sand of the sea," so rich and powerful as to concentrate the jealousy and wrath of all other nations on them, and were to return alike from the "North," "East," "West," "all countries," "coasts of the earth," "isles of the sea," and there with all Israel to remain "one nation" perpetually. I have traced the warlike tribe of Dan to the coasts and islands of the Baltic Sea, the coldest sea on earth, whose frost and cold and snow and ice are frightful to behold, between which and Samaria are mountains whose gorges are fathoms deep with ice and snow, which by some mighty miracle may "flow down" before them at their return, and the others to the British Isles lying between 51 and 63 degrees north latitude, 1200 miles north of Lamoni, Iowa, and 1500 miles north of Samaria, (isn't that a "north country?"), whence to continental Europe that "highway" may be thrown up. The first part of this paragraph seems to indicate that the "they" referred to would return to America, and if so it may possibly refer in part to the Athabascans of British America. We should, however, grant to the prophecies of Joseph Smith the same wide latitude for fulfillment that we would give those of Christ in the 24th of Matthew, or Ezekiel's prophecy concerning the destruction of Tyre, (Ezek. 26), which was not entirely fulfilled for 250 years, and then not by Nebuchadnezzar who only entered a suburb of Tyre, but by Alexander the Great. As for the Book of Mormon, I am satisfied it does not contain a syllable contrary to this theory. On the contrary, how evidently Christ may have appeared to these wanderers in those "signs and wonders" wrought for their deliverance on the banks of the devious course of the Euphrates, the floods of which were "held still" by the "Most High" before them for their passage. How truly, also, they have received Christ's words in person, then or since that time by receiving and honoring above any other nation the New Testament Scriptures, which would fulfill any passage in that book having any relevancy to this subject whatever. I hope sincerely that no one of us may detract from the fame or purpose of that prophet, however, who so gladly announced to the world the speedy restoration of Israel to their own land reclaimed.

II.—BY THE BRITISH PEOPLE THEMSELVES.

A few years ago a banker in England by the name of Edward Hine published a book containing seventy-seven identifications of his nation with Lost Israel. Without any advertising whatever, this small work reached a sale of 310,000 copies. Among others who have read Mr. Hine's work with intense interest, Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales who spoke favorably of it, also the Princess royal of Britain and Germany and the Princess Louise has had several copies of the same. It is true that Oxford University attempted to disprove the theory, no doubt on account of political expediency, as that institution is supported by the government and is under its direction, which effort signally failed and seemed to increase rather than diminish the interest in the subject there.

III.—ISRAEL'S LOCATION MUST BE IN THE ISLES, AND THEY NORTH-WEST FROM JUDEA.

"Hear the word of the Lord, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off. He that scattereth Israel will gather him and keep him."—Jer. 31: 10. "Let them give glory unto the Lord and declare his praise in the Islands."—Isa. 59: 18. "The isles shall wait for his law."—Isa. 42: 4. "Glorify the name of the God of Israel in the isles of the western seas."—Isa. 24: 15. "To the islands will he repay recompense, so shall they fear the name of the Lord from the west."—Isa. 59: 19. "Go and proclaim these words towards the north, and say, Return thou backsliding Israel."—Jer. 3: 12. "I will gather thee from the west."—Isa. 43: 5. Are not the islands north west from Palestine plainly pointed out in these scriptures?

IV.—ISRAEL MUST BE A NATION AND HAVING THE LINE OF KING DAVID RULING OVER THEM.

"Thus saith the Lord which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waters thereof war; the Lord of Hosts is his name; if those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me forever."—Jer. 31: 35, 36. "The Lord has sworn in truth unto David, He will not turn from it, of the fruit of thy body will I set upon thy throne."—Ps. 132: 11. "I will establish the throne of of his kingdom forever. Thine house and thy kingdom shall be established forever."—2 Sam. 7: 12, 16. "I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel forever."—1 Kings, 9: 5. 1 Chron., 17: 11, 12. We offer a reasonable account of the fulfillment of these passages in the marriage of Tephi with the king of Ireland. Now we ask any skeptical reader, if the Israelites were in Assyria, Media, Arsareth down to the times of Christ and the Apostles as has been shown on the authority of Josephus, Herodotus, Esdras, and even of Christ himself, where was the kingdom and throne of David thus promised during 590 years B. C., but for its re-establishment thus in the Isles of Great Britain under which to gather, unknowingly, all these outcasts, even to the probable dusky descendants of Abraham in India whose return across Euphrates will be prepared by the sixth vial of God's power.

V.—ISRAEL'S COLONIES TO BELT THE EARTH.

"When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when He separated the sons of Adam, He set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel. For the Lord's portion is his people. Jacob is the lot of his inheritance."—Deut. 32: 7, 9. "The portion of Jacob is not like them, (Gentiles), for Jacob is the former of all things; Israel is the rod of his inheritance."—Jer. 10: 16. "Remember thy congregation which thou hast purchased of old, the rod of thine inheritance which thou hast redeemed."—Ps. 74: 2. We believe the word lot in one of the above passages means girdle, belt, measuring line, outside circle; and the word rod to have a similar measuring signification, hence we find possessions under the British sceptre encompassing both hemispheres as follows: In the eastern hemisphere with British Islands, Heligoland, Gibraltar, Malta, Gambia, Sierra Leone, Gold Coast, Lagos, New African Protectorate, St. Helena, Cape of Good Hope, Natal, Mauritius, Aden, Straits settlement, India, Ceylon, Labuau, Australia, Tasmania, Hong Kong and other Chinese ports, thus almost completing the circle. The same thing is done in the Western Hemisphere by Hudson's Bay Territory, Canada, British Columbia, United States, (of the English race), Islands in the Pacific, Fiji Islands, New Zealand, Falkland Islands, British Guiana, Trinidad, Windward Islands, Grenada, Barbadoes, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Tobago, Leeward Islands, Antigua, Montserrat, St. Christopher, Nevis, Virgin Islands, Dominica, Jamaica, British Honduras, Turk's Island, Bahamas, Bermudas, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, New Foundland, where these possessions complete the second circle. Do not all these fulfill the prophecy concerning the "utmost parts of the earth," and the lot and former of his inheritance.

VI.—THE CANAANITES MUST BE WITH ISRAEL.

The Lord commanded Israel in the time of Joshua to drive out or exterminate all the inhabitants of Canaan, which they failed to do. This displeased the Lord who decreed that "henceforth" as a punishment for their disobedience they should continue with them and "be pricks in your eyes, thorns in your sides, and shall vex you in the land wherein ye dwell."—Num. 33: 35. "They shall be snares and traps unto you, scourges in your sides."—Josh. 23: 13. Now these Canaanites spoke the Phoenician language, containing only sixteen letters. The Irish language is identical with the Phoenician, containing the same sixteen letters, and they themselves, in the south of Ireland, claim this descent. Any intelligent person knows what a source of trouble Southern Ireland has been to Great Britain, and is to this day, on account of which it has to be kept in a condition of almost slavery. This forms another plain identification.

VII.—MANNERS AND CUSTOMS.

The manners and customs of this people to this day is another strong proof of their identification. We offer a few of them. In the similarity of their national churches after the pattern of the temple; their Israelitish days, weeks and festivals; in their division of time in their three grand convocations, viz., in Easter or the Passover; Whitsuntide or the Hebrew Pentecost, and the Witenentrote or Feast of the Tabernacles. In their church the communion rail, the Holy of Holies, the eastern window, the ten commandments written on the posts of the churches, their frequent rehearsal, the litany, responses, dedication hymns, service of song, choral singing, part singing, University tests, colleges, priesthood, and their different orders, their canons and their living near the high places, church rates, tithes, the hundreds. Also their king or queen and perpetual monarchy, their princes, Jacob's stone, coronation oil, coronation ceremonies and rejoicings, throne robes, national and official seals, royal proclamation, proclamations of feasts and thanksgiving, the Chancellor, Exchequer, Prime Minister, their fallow-lands, gleanings and landmarks. In this way we could cite very many other marks of similarity in their army, navy, poetry, weights and measures, etc.; and even their adoption of the old Judah-Ephraim symbols of the lion and unicorn in vogue by those tribes thousands of years ago. But this will suffice for manners and customs.

VIII.—LANGUAGE.

The Lord expressly declares that Israel in exile shall speak another language—not Hebrew,—"With stammering lips and another tongue will he speak to this people."—Isa. 28: 11. As proof that the English language has been gradually changed from the Hebrew to its present form, eminent scholars claim that it possesses no less than eight hundred roots from the Hebrew with their multitude of variations. It is indicative that the kingdom of God has sprang forth in the last days and is being established by this English language which is in use so universally in every quarter from which Israel was to return, and in so many "Isles of the sea." The Lord said: "For then will I turn to the people a pure language that they may all call upon the name of the Lord to serve him with one consent."—Zeph. 3: 9. See the contrast in the following common expressions that must be frequently used in the promulgation of the gospel of that kingdom to the nations of the earth with French and German for the same:

ENGLISH.	FRENCH.	GERMAN.
God.	Dieu.	Gott.
Christ.	Christ.	Christi.
Church.	Eglise.	Gemeine.
Holy Ghost.	Saint-Esprit.	Heiligen Geiste.
Apostles.	Apotres.	Apostel.
Elder.	Viellard.	Aelteste.
Priest.	Sacrificateur.	Briester.
Gospel.	Evangile.	Evangelium.

The poet has said summing up the minor merits of other different languages:

"But Britain's sons may well rejoice
For English is the human voice."

Those well versed in languages, call the English the interpreter or mediator of of other languages and yet destined to restore them to unity.

IX.—THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL MUST ALL RETURN TO JUDEA—NOT AMERICA—NATIONALLY.

"In those days the house of Judah shall walk with the house of Israel, and they shall come together out of the land of the north to the land that I have given for an inheritance unto your fathers."—Jer., 3: 18. "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which can not be measured nor numbered, and it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, Ye are not my people, there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living God. Then shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together and appoint themselves one head."—Hosea, 1: 10, 11. "And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, (Israel), and I will bring them again to place them, . . . and I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon."—Zech. 10: 6, 10. "Thou shalt yet plant vines upon the mountains of Samaria; the planters shall plant and shall eat them as common things."—Jer., 31: 5. "And I will make them one nation in the land on the mountains of Israel, and one king shall be king to them all."—Ezek 37: 22. We deem the above passages proof sufficient to disabuse the minds of all in the church of the idea that America will ever be the gathering place of the natural posterity of Abraham—tribally or nationally. I desire to insist upon all interested to lay hold of this truth for a wise and good and practical purpose from henceforth. Four tribes of Israel could easily be distinguished, if this theory is correct, and their inheritances apportioned to them in Judea according to the decree of the Almighty; and the recognition and apportionment of the balance can easily be brought about whenever God chooses so to do.

X.—APPLICATION AND CONCLUSION.

We might make out a hundred singular indentifications similar to the above, supported by one thousand evidences, mostly scriptural, showing how completely Great Britain and her possessions fulfill all the conditions, which are many, relating to Israel in the last days. We will close however, not wishing to take up more than one issue of the Herald with this subject again. I can not declare this whole theory to be true and beyond power of man to disprove it. I offer its historical parts entirely on the authority of the Bible and other works, the authors of which I deem perfectly sincere and too honorable to palm off unreliable history on an unsuspecting public. To those who have stamped this whole theory as being supported by unreliable history, I would, if space permitted, give them an account of how the author of this was plainly directed to the great merit and service a certain volume of history would be to him, which in the way of lighting up the history of the dismal centuries since Christ, is the "noblest Roman" of all the histories; and how accordingly the writer sent $4.00 to Harpers', N. Y., and received this history and has used it largely to substantiate "Lost Israel Found." To those who might think the nations of whom we write are only in common with all the Gentile nations concerning receiving the gospel, I would like to tell them how I received, years since, the strongest possible convictions that this kingdom of God would yet agitate all England, and how our brethren there will yet be astonished at the growth and result of the fountain of truth (now indeed small) which they have opened up, and also how it will indeed yet spread from one end to the other of Australia, their chief possession. To the church I would say, Do not throw this theory away for one useless in encouraging the promulgation of the gospel to the nations of the earth, unless that theory is supported by better evidence than the one hereby advanced. The writer has flinched for sometime from the responsibility of presenting a story so contrary to the tradition of so many in the church, and would never have offered it for your consideration but from a deep conviction that it might become an encouragement to the proper evangelization of those nations in which the largest percentage will appreciate and adopt the principles of the gospel of peace. Is there not reason for hope that by establishing the work of God in England we would thereby establish the same most permanently and effectually in America? Do you not think that $50,000 expended by our English brethren for the English people would result in 50,000 baptisms? If America keeps busy one publication house in disseminating the gospel, should not the mother country keep busy a still larger one in enlightening and brightening up those chains of glorious possessions which encircle both great divisions of this earth, the two great "lots" of God's inheritance? Is it not time the veil of darkness which has covered these nations be so far lifted that they may have equally as good a chance as America to embrace the gospel and then use their present scattered condition and unlimited resources to bless the world with the same? The intelligence you possess, O praiseworthy church, of how that, sixty years ago, a young man providentially prepared and sobered for the solemn purpose by physical suffering, plainly set forth all the principles of the gospel, including the laying on of hands, and then thereby the first, second, third, fourth—all the constituent parts and elements of the church of our Savior springing up, and the whole confirming the same, and then the result, the gospel and its kingdom, the plan of salvation and the Church of Christ, mutually dependent, harmonious, coexistent! These simple tidings, O reader, are fraught with what mighty importance to the nation! Has not God raised up this standard when laid low? And is not the hand of providence plainly seen in the restoration and commencement of such a work just where it was so suddenly cut off in 1844? Therefore, kind and intelligent reader, weigh and consider well the claims of the nations this theory concerns, for unless the writer is much mistaken the same has been suggested and presented to him by the providence of God, and the importance and duty and the success which would result from presenting these gospel tidings to these very nations by the Holy Ghost.

MAHLON SMITH.

Selections.

BOYS BEWARE.

WE heard a father make a most pathetic appeal recently for the removal of temptation from the pathway of his boys. He stated that a few years ago his son despised tobacco and was ready to fight rather than touch it. But placed under long-continued special temptation he had finally learned to use it. "He has weakened on tobacco," said the father, "and I don't know how soon he may use beer and then stronger drinks."

What must be the anxiety of parents for their children, when they know their dear ones can not step out of the front door without falling into temptation. Sleepless nights and anxious days are spent as the dread of these dangers haunts them. When we heard the father's story we resolved to do more to help parents in guarding their children. Boys, beware of yielding to a temptation, however small. There is no safety except in absolute firmness and determination. Tobacco, beer, wine, cider, by-words, slang—these are the devil's bait which he puts on his hook when he goes fishing for good boys. The better the boy the smaller the bait he uses. A good boy could never be plunged suddenly, all at once, into great sins. He must be led into them by easy steps, by such a gradual method that he will never suspect where he is going.

It is easy to play with a bad habit, but it is hard to break it when once it fastens upon a boy. Thousands and tens of thousands of smokers and chewers wish with all their hearts they had never touched tobacco. They are slaves, and they hate their bondage. They "swear off," and the old appetite returns to tease them.

Why will a boy ever learn to smoke when he knows what a filthy, expensive, mean habit it is? If we could save a single boy from the habit, how thankful we should be.

A gentleman gave a friend a copy of this paper with an article against tobacco. He was an old man, and the habit had been upon him many years, but the article convinced him it was wrong, and he quit it. Will not some boy who sees this article quit using tobacco? If he will and will write to us about it, we will publish his letter to encourage others. Who will be the first to quit it forever?—The American.

SPEAK TO THE POINT.

AN anonymous writer in The Herald, of Salt Lake, fails utterly to discern the point of the objection raised by "eastern journals" against the Mormon "statehood" project.

It is not what "a couple of dozen," or a thousand, or ten thousand individuals may do or believe concerning polygamy, against the votes of thirteen thousand for a proposition of civil law to abolish the practice of that crime, which the civil law now regnant in Utah forbids under severe penalties, yet has not abolished, that makes the ground of objection. No rational person of the eastern, western, or any other part of the republic regards a whole community as accountable for the misconduct of a few individuals. The point of objection to the Mormon statehood program is elsewhere.

The Mormon writer says:

"As to the position of the Mormon church, what reason had anyvody for expecting or believing there would be any change? What change could there be consistent with past professions and practices? How could the church, as a religious society, occupy any other position than that which it has held, and still retain its self-respect and the respect of others? There is no occasion for a change of position on the part of the church."

This is a very good statement of the real and substantial ground on which the valid objection to the statehood project rests. The Mormon church is an ecclesiastical organization that embraces within the claimed scope of its ecclesiastical authority not only a few dozen individuals, but the bulk of the population of Utah. That ecclesiastical corporation has assumed not merely to sanction but to command the practice of polygamy, by the pretended authority of a revelation or writ of mandamus from the court of Jehovah. The subject members of that ecclesiastical corporation, being the bulk of the population of Utah, have never denied that ridiculous pretense, nor protested against that mandate; on the contrary, they have accepted the pretense as true and have obeyed the mandate. The relation of those subjects and of the ecclesiastical establishment to each other has undergone no change whatever by reason of any political vote or declaration that the subjects have given. The ecclesiastical corporation has disregarded the civil law; its functionaries have treated the civil law with contempt; they have denied their obligation to obey it; they have deliberately violated it since as well as before the vote of their thirteen thousand subjects for another civil law to forbid their violation of the existing law; and so far from objecting to that course, or repudiating their subjection to that corporation, it is distinctly stated by Mormon oracles (and by the foregoing writer) that neither will that organization change its position nor its subject members, being the popular majority of Utah, after their relation of subjects to that law-defying corporation. This being the case, what guarantee do the subjects of that law-defying corporation offer that it would not violate and condemn the proposed new law, even as it continues to violate and condemn the existing law, and that its subjects, the bulk of the Utah people, would not continue their relation of supporters and countenancers of its lawless and treasonable conduct, as they do now? They offer no guarantee whatever.

Whether there can or can not be a change of the attitude of that corporation toward the civil authority "consistent with past professions and practices," is not the question. How "the church, as a religious society, could occupy any other position" than that of denying its subjection, as respects religious or any other practices, to the civil authorities, is not the question. The civil authority has nothing to do with its reasons, motives, or beliefs; but with its actions, the act of its ecclesiastics and of all who acknowledge its ecclesiastical pretensions, the civil authority has all to do. It is in the function of the civil power of this republic to exterminate as well the religious as the civil corporation, and as well either as the natural person, that puts itself to violate, nullify, and condemn the law of the land.

So long as the corporation called the Mormon church stands in this attitude of opposition to the civil law, and the bulk of the Utah population acknowledge themselves subjects to its pretended religious authority in that attitude, the Mormon statehood program will be utterly inadmissible.—Chicago Times.

Conference Minutes.

PHILADELPHIA.

This district conference convened at Philadelphia, August 28th and 29th, 1887. Bro. Joseph Squires president, H. H. Bacon secretary. The credentials of representatives were then received; James Potts of Brooklyn, H. H. Bacon of Philadelphia, and Joseph A. Stewart representing New Park. Reports of branches: Brooklyn 44, including 6 elders, 5 priests, 5 received by letter. George Potts pres., George Baty clerk. Philadelphia 48, including 4 elders, 4 priests, 2 teachers, 2 deacons. H. H. Bacon pres., Arch. Cameron clerk. New Park 22, including 1 priest, 1 teacher; 3 baptized, 1 received by vote. M. O. Matthews, pres., J. L. Matthews clerk. Bishop's Agent, Archibald Cameron, reported: Balance due church at last report $37.53; received since $26.60; paid out $30; balance due church $34.13. Referred to Brn. Stewart and Peters who reported favorably. Report received. The following officers reported: Elders Wm. Clark, Joseph A. Stewart, George Potts, Joseph Squires; Priests James Potts, Wm. Harrison and H. H. Bacon; Teachers Jacob Peters, Archibald Cameron. Elder J. H. Newsted reported by letter. Sunday morning, at 10 a. m., Elder Asa Copeland reported. Treasurer H. H. Bacon reported received from Philadelphia branch $3, from Brooklyn branch $2.80; paid president of district $4; balance $1.80. A request from New Park branch was referred to Bro. Briggs. The representative of the Philadelphia branch requested that action be taken toward officers not attending to their duties, and it was moved that the resolution of the district conference of August 28th, 1886, to recall the licenses of officers that do not report be enforced. A question arose as to the right of the district conference to recall licenses of officers without charges against them other than neglect of duty, and the question was referred to the First Presidency for their decision. The afternoon session was occupied by ten minute speeches by Elders Joseph Squires, Joseph Stewart, Asa Copeland, Wm. Clark, B. O. Herbert and George Potts, also by Priests James Potts and H. H. Bacon. Preaching in the evening by Elders Joseph Squires and George Potts. All the spiritual authorities were sustained in righteousness. Adjourned to meet on the fourth Saturday evening in February, the place to be appointed by the president.

NORTH-WEST KANSAS.

The thirty-seventh quarterly conference of the above district convened with the Deer Creek branch, September 3d, 1887, A. H. Parsons in the chair, G. W. Shute secretary. Report of branches. Homestead just organized with a membership of 8. Deer Creek—Elmira 33; Goshen—Blue Rapids 64. Official report.—Reported by letter, elders G. W. Beebe, Mahlon Smith, and priest Z. Decker. Elders reported in person, Walter Brownlee, Wm. Moor, G. W. Shute, A. H. Parsons, and priest Dallas Brownlee. Officers sustained, A. H. Parsons president, G. W. Shute Bishop's Agent, and W. D. Jemison clerk. The committee's report in the case of the St. Mary's branch was accepted and the names of the same dropped. Resolved; that we question the propriety of the motion in Herald July 23d. We defer a further consideration thereof until the minutes of the last conference as they appear on the record can be examined. Boundary of district.—Inasmuch as it is thought a division of the district would be beneficial, and as the boundaries of the North West Kansas district have never been defined, therefore be it Resolved, that a general attendance be requested at the next conference, and the boundaries be declared and the propriety of division considered. Signed A. H. Parsons, G. W. Shute. Moved that Horatio A. Richerdson be ordained an elder. Carried. Adjourned to meet in six months, the day and place to be appointed by the district president.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Conference of the above district convened at 275 High street, Providence, R. I., September 24th, 1887; E. C. Briggs and John Smith presiding, and F. M. Sheehy and Thomas Whiting clerks. Elders present and reporting: E. C. Briggs, John Smith, M. H. Bond, F. M. Sheehy, Thomas Whiting, J. B. Pearse, C. E. Brown, E. N. Webster, G. S. Yerrington, N. C. Eldridge, J. Holt, F. A. Potter, E. O. Toombs, C. A. Combs. By letter, Joseph Woodward; and by proxy J. Chester and R. Farnsworth. Priests present and reporting: A. O. Tripp, F. Steffe and Thos. H. Moore. Teachers: J. H. McKenna, R. Bullard, R. Searl, G. Ames, W. H. Moore, H. Arnold, G. Robly and S. Wilcox. Deacons: M. Gondolph, W. Walley, A. B. Peirce, W. Pucel and G. Rummert. Bro. G. Yerrington was appointed organist, and G. Gates and R. Bullard choristers. N. C. Eldridge, A. O. Tripp, J. N. Ames committee on branch reports. G. Gates, R. Bullard, and G. Ames auditing committee. Evening session. Minutes of last conference were read and approved. Bro. E. C. Briggs reported progress in the matters referred to him at the last conference. John Smith reported as Bishop's Agent, and district treasurer. Report referred to auditing committee. A communication from the Saints at Attleboro asking to be organized into a branch was referred to Brn. E. C. Briggs and John Smith. A communication from the Western Maine district asking for a committee to confer with them in regard to arranging for a New England conference was read, and Brn. John Smith and F. M. Sheehy were appointed said committee. Priest A. J. Perry was released from his mission to Georgiaville. Sunday morning social meeting was in charge of Brn. E. C. Briggs, John Smith and J. F. McKenna. Many noble testimonies were borne to the truth of the great latter day work, and was marked by the presence of the Holy Spirit. The young people took a promiment part in it. Beautiful flowers were placed on the stand by kind and thoughtful hands. One brother testified to fifty years experience in the church; never had cause for regret. Afternoon service. Scripture lesson, Haggai chapter 2. Elder F. M. Sheehy addressed the large congregation eloquently. Evening session. Elder M. H. Bond preached a very able and powerful discourse to a large congregation from Matt. 4:4. Monday morning. The following branches reported: North Plymouth 33 members, Cranston 22, New Bedford 28, Plainville 62, Douglas 17, Providence 166, Brockton 32, Fall River 118, Little Compton 32, Boston 101. Total 611. The following report of the auditing committee was adopted: We the auditing committee have to report that we have examined the accounts referred to us and found them correct in every particular, and we are of the opinion that a compliment is due our Bishop's Agent for his system, neatness, and accuracy of manner in keeping his accounts. Bishop's Agent's report: Balance due church at last report $622.99. Income with balance $1087.17. Paid out $472.87. Balance $614.30. A vote of thanks was tendered the Providence branch for their hospitality during conference. Remarks were made by the Bishop's Agent on the law of tithing. John Smith was sustained as district president and Thomas Whiting clerk. Bro. E. C. Briggs was sustained as president in charge of Eastern Mission. On motion adjourned to convene at Dennisport the last Saturday in January, 1888.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA.

The above district conference convened with the Jefferson branch, at San Benito, September 30th, 1887. Pres. J. M. Range in the chair. Bro. Heman C. Smith, president of the mission was chosen to preside. J. F. Kingsbury, secretary. Elders H. C. Smith, J. M. Range, J. F. Kingsbury, D. Brown, J. H. Lawn, J. Holmes; Priests J. B. Carmichael, J. E. Holt and — Duncan; Teachers P. Davis, L. Alexander, and Deacon A. Page, reported. Long Valley branch report referred to branch for correction. Jefferson, 20; two gained by baptism. Bishop's Agent reported received as tithings since last report $254.50; paid out since last report $127.55; balance on hand at last report $40; on hand at present $167.55. A. Carmichael, A. Page, and J. E. Holt committee to audit Bishop's Agent's book, reported, finding a discrepancy of eighty-three cents in agent's favor. Bro. J. B. Carmichael was recommended by Jefferson branch for ordination to the office of an elder and was so ordained under the hands of H. C. Smith and D. Brown. Bro. H. C. Smith was elected delegate to General Conference of April 6th, 1888. Bro. J. B. Carmichael was chosen president of district for the next six months; D. Brown as assistant president; J. F. Kingsbury was sustained as secretary of district. J. M. Range was sustained as Bishop's Agent. The general church authorities were sustained in righteousness, by our prayers, faith and means. Preaching Friday evening by J. M. Range and J. F. Kingsbury. Saturday evening, Sunday and Sunday evening by H. C. Smith. Sacramento meeting Sunday at 2:30. Adjourned to meet with the Long Valley branch, April 6th, 1888.

Miscellaneous.

BISHOP'S AGENT.

In accordance with a resolution passed by the conference held at Ziona, Papeete, Tahiti, July 6th, 1887, recommending Bro. Nameo Metuore as Bishop's Agent for the Tahiti Mission, I hereby appoint him as such for the said mission, and recommend him to the Saints of that mission as my agent for the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Presiding Bishop.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The Far West district conference will convene November 26th, 1887, at ten o'clock, with the St. Joseph branch.

J. T. KINNEMAN, Dist. Pres.

NOTICES.

Notice is hereby given that the dedication of the new Latter Day Saints' church at East Delavan, Wisconsin, will take place on November 5th and 6th. Bro. Joseph Smith and other brethren are expected, and a good time is anticipated. All are cordially invited to attend.

By order of committee.

H. SOUTHWICK, Chairman.

DIED.

TYLER.—At St. Louis, Missouri, September 21st, 1887, of typhoid fever, Charles Frances, son of brother and sister Charles and Maria Tyler, of Birmingham, England, aged 23 years, 5 months and 14 days. Funeral sermon by J. W. Gillen.

SHARP.—At Cleveland, Iowa, September 26th, 1887, sister Barbara, wife of Bro. Luke Sharp, aged 51 years. She was born near Edinburgh, Scotland; came to America in 1867, locating at Ackron, Ohio, where they remained until 1878 when they went to Salt Lake, thinking they were going to Zion. But discovering the true condition of things there they became disgusted and returned to Ohio in 1879, united with the Reorganized Church at Byesville, Gurnsey county, Ohio, being baptized by Elder G. T. Griffiths, after which they moved to Cleveland, Iowa, where she resided until her death. She was a consistent member of the church, a good neighbor, a loving mother, and an affectionate wife. She leaves a husband and eight children, also a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. Funeral service conducted by Elder John R. Evans.

HAWLEY.—Sister Ann Hawley, wife of Bro. George Hawley, died at Galland's Grove, Iowa, September 26th, 1887, after a painful illness of five months. Prayer and remarks were made at the time of her burial by Elder Hansen; but on account of the absence of friends at the Reunion, the preaching of the funeral discourse was deferred till Sunday, October 9th, when it was presented by Elder Joseph R. Lambert, to a large, appreciative and sympathizing congregation. Sr. Hawley was born in Manchester, England, April 12th, 1830; embraced the faith of the Latter Day Saints about 1840; emigrated to America in 1842; was married to Bro. George Hawley, July 4th, 1846, and became the mother of eleven children, eight of whom are yet living. She died in hope, and rests in peace.

BRINDLEY.—At Fall River, Massachusetts, October 11th, 1887, Sr. Margaret Brindley, aged 59 years, 5 months, and 3 days. She was in the old organization, and when the gospel was again presented to her she received it with gladness. It was her hope and stay during her sickness, and she passed away with the hope of a glorious resurrection. Funeral services at the Saints' chapel, October 14th, by Elder John Smith. Many of her friends gathered there to take a last, sad look of one whom they respected.

FOR SALE.

A NEAT three roomed house, with a lot 144 feet front by 132 back. A good well and out-buildings. Located in adjoining block to the Saints' Church in Lamoni. Property in good repair. Call on or address

WM. CRICK, Lamoni, Iowa.

PROSPERITY WON.—The man who sits down in the corner of a field and waits for a cow to back up to be milked, will go without milk all his days. The man who prays, "Give us our daily bread," and sits down to the table waiting for the Lord to come and put bread on his plate, will starve to death. And the people who close their doors, as it were, and expect prosperity to force an entrance into their houses, will croak hard times until, the devil claims his due. You must go after the cows if you want any milk. You must work for your bread if you wish to eat. And you must open your doors and invite prosperity if you ever expect she will even come near you. After you have once got prosperity, it is comparatively easy to keep her.—Sel.

AVOID DANGER.

A THOUGHTFUL gentleman, once speaking to an old tutor of ours of an impure poem written by one of England's geniuses, said: "I would freely give $500 to day if I could erase from my mind the recollection of that poem."

A young gentleman was one day riding in a steamer down one of the world's broad rivers, when he fell into a conversation with the pilot. "How long," he asked, "have you been a pilot on these waters?" The old man replied, "Twenty-five years; and I came up and down many times before I became a pilot." "Then," the young gentleman said, "I think you should know every rock and every sand bank in the river." The old man smiled at his friend's simplicity, and replied, "Oh, no, I don't; but I know where the deep water is."

It is not necessary for young men to have intimate and experimental knowledge of every sand bank of moral danger, and every rock where character and hopes may be shattered. It is enough to know where the deep waters are—the waters of purity, health, noble-mindedness, and righteousness; and, with the Pilot of Galilee on board, the vessel will be kept in the deep waters.

THE United Presbyterian, of Pittsburg, says that the first thing for a reformer to do is to reform himself. That is true. A man should practice what he preaches. Not only should he endeavor to do right himself, but he should carefully see to it that the motive within that leads him to his reformatory work is born of love to God and his fellow-men. It is natural for men of independent and fearless modes of thinking to form opinions. Those opinions may be correct, yet in advocating them he may show forth such a spirit of dogged contrariness and harshness and bitterness that others look upon his work as emanating from spite or malice or lack of common sense. This is very applicable to those who oppose secret societies. We have met men who in opposing the lodges have shown such a spirit of bitterness and harshness that men are led to attribute their opposition to some private reason. After hearing such men talk, a man with no conviction on the subject feels almost unconsciously springing up within him sympathy for the thing thus opposed. What we want in opposing the lodges is the Spirit of Christ. Go forth with a heart filled with love, and let the people know that you are opposed to the lodge because you are for Christ and the lodge is against Him; that you warn men of the lodge because you love their souls and would not have them entrapped by Satan; that you love your country and must withstand such un-republican influences. The groundwork of all reform is the salvation of Jesus Christ.

If God is wonderful in the matchless glory and beauty of Creation, its variety, extent, perfection and magnificence, he is none the less so in his work in Redemption. The Word that went out over chaos and was followed by light and life and beauty is no less magical and miraculous in the chaos and need of a human soul. Accepting the greatness of His power in the natural world, we are bound to recognize it equally in the spiritual. Let his Word go unhindered through these hearts and lives of ours, and the change and renewing will be no less marvellous than in the morning of creation.

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCEOLA CO., MICH.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20#ug3m

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, letter paper, envelopes, and printed recipes for Cement to cure Corns, etc., valuable in every household, by mail to any part of United States or Canada, for 35c in stamps or otherwise.

W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

Foreign Money Orders.

Bear in mind the fact that the post office at Lamoni is now a Foreign Money Order Office. Therefore, those in foreign countries sending moneys to this office should draw them on Lamoni, Iowa, U. S. A.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.

WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

A SUPERB PRESENT!

INVALUABLE TO Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians, Editors, Bankers, Merchants, Students, and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

- No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, $10.00
- " 2x, " " " 2 tiers " " 12.00
- " 2, " Floor, " 2 " " " 12.00
- " 3, " " " 3 " " " 15.00
- " 4, " " " 4 " " " 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

—) BY THE (—)

Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,
at their Publishing House in
LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

Holy Scriptures.

- Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet.
- Sheep or Library binding.....1 50
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....2 00
- Full Morocco, gilt edges.....2 50
- New Testament, inspired edition.....75

Book of Mormon.

- Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50
- Full Morocco, gilt edges.....1 75

Doctrine and Covenants.

- Sprinkled Sheep, or Library.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco.....1 50

The Saints' Harp—Hymn Book.

- Imitation Morocco, marbled edges.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50

Life of Joseph the Prophet, History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith.

In Cloth, full gilt finished, very handsome.....2 25
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyum Smith. A complete history of the Church up to 1880.

Joseph Smith the Prophet, and His Progenitors.

- Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith.....75
- Leather Binding.....1 00

Hesperis.

- Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....1 50

Rules of Order and Debate.

For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth.....40

Joseph the Seer.

His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers 200 pages.....35
*This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Shelton of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

Voice of Warning.

And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the Latter Day work; 128 pages
In Paper Covers, twelve for $1.....each 10
Limp Cloth Covers, each.....25

Prophetic Truth.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper covers; five for $1.....each 25
*Being the Subject of an Evening's Conversation Respecting its Origin. Its Divinity Proved by the Scriptures and Collateral Evidence. Prefaced with a Brief Sketch of the Life of the Prophet, showing the way and manner of his becoming possessed of the Record.

Branch Records.

Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages.....2 00

District Records.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records.....3 00

Licences, Notices, &c.

- Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licenses, each per dozen.....12
- Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and.....50
- Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub, 35 for.....25

Certificates and Reports.

- Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen.....40
- Annual Statistical Reports, two for.....10
- Certificate of Baptism and Membership, per dozen.....12
- Certificate of Removal, per dozen.....12
- Marriage Certificates, per dozen.....25

"Manuscript Found."

We have for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. Has 144 pages 8 mo.; single copies, in cloth, 25 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 20 cents each; in paper, single copies 15 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 13 cents each.

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni
MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

Lamoni and Vicinity.

Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by
LAMBERT & HANSEN.

dec11tf

Money Orders.

Money Orders are much safer than Postal Notes when remitting to this office, and they cost but two cents more. Don't forget this, lest you lose money.
D. DANCER, Manager.

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. *A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- GRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINGOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

- TO AND FROM
- NEW YORK,
  - BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
  - CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
  - NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
  - LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
  - PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA, VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment, Good Service, Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEARKEN TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 755.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 5, 1887.

No. 45.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success. Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 5, 1887.

BRIGHAMITE SUCCESSION.

WILFORD WOODRUFF, supposed acting president of the Utah Church, in a little address made to the conference of that church held in Salt Lake City, October 6th and 9th makes use of the following peculiar language:

"I bear record—before God, angels and men, that the fulness of the everlasting gospel has been revealed in these last days through the prophets of God; and that Joseph Smith was raised up by the power of God as a prophet, seer and revelator. He laid the foundation of this church and kingdom in its perfection, as it is at the present time. He brought forth the record as contained in the Book of Mormon, in fulfillment of the predictions of the prophets of God; also the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, which contains those grand and solemn revelations, and those principles of eternal truth, so precious to the Latter Day saints. These things are true. We should study them; lay them up in our hearts, and practice them in our lives."

The Book of Doctrine and Covenants, as that book was given and left by Joseph Smith, June 27th, 1844, is directly opposed to the chief tenet of present Utah Mormonism, plural marriage. For instance, how entirely clear and unmistakable is the following from section 42:7, (22):

"Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and cleave unto her and none else."

And this from section 49 (65) given in March, 1831:

"And again, I say unto you, that whoso for-biddeth to marry, is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God, unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh, and all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation; and that it might be filled with the measure of man, according to his creation before the world was made."

So far as God may have chosen to express himself to the church in regard to the marriage relation, the foregoing is the foundation principle, and also the reason why it was given to the people of the last days to whom the preaching of the gospel was committed. This is a principle of eternal truth. The endorsement of the principles given by Joseph Smith in the Doctrine and Covenants, thus enunciated by Wilford Woodruff should be a scathing rebuke to himself and those with him who have so signally overrode the teaching of that plain declaration: "It is lawful that he (man) should have one wife."

COMMENTS ON PRES. WOODRUFF'S EPISTLE.

THE Deseret News of Tuesday, October 11th, contains an epistle from Wilford Woodruff "on behalf of the council of the Twelve Apostles," from which we reproduce what we think to be its salient points, together with the comment that we deem to be necessary.

For some time before his death the Prophet Joseph was inspired of the Lord to anticipate his own departure from earthly scenes. This was shown in various ways; but especially in the great anxiety which he displayed to bestow upon the Twelve Apostles all the keys and authority of the Holy Priesthood which he had received. He declared in private and in public that they were equipped and fully qualified, and that he had rolled the kingdom of God on to the shoulders of the Twelve Apostles.

PRESIDENT WOODRUFF'S PERSONAL TESTIMONY.

I, Wilford Woodruff, being the last man living in the flesh who was present upon that occasion feel it a duty I owe to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to the House of Israel, and to the whole world to bear this my last testimony to all nations, that in the winter of 1843-4, Joseph Smith, the Prophet of God, called the Twelve Apostles together in the City of Nauvoo, and spent many days with us in giving us our endowments, and teaching us those glorious principles which God had revealed to him. And upon one occasion he stood upon his feet in our midst for nearly three hours declaring unto us the great and last dispensation which God had set His hand to perform upon the earth in these last days. The room was filled as if with consuming fire; the Prophet was clothed upon with much of the power of God, and his face shone and was transparently clear, and he closed that speech, never-to-be-forgotten in time or in eternity, with the following language:

"Brethren, I have had great sorrow of heart for fear that I might be taken from the earth with the keys of the Kingdom of God upon me, without sealing them upon the heads of other men. God has sealed upon my head all the keys of the Kingdom of God necessary for organizing and building up of the church, Zion, and Kingdom of God upon the earth, and to prepare the Saints for the coming of the Son of Man. Now, brethren, I thank God I have lived to see the day that I have been enabled to give you your endowments, and I have now sealed upon your heads all the powers of the Aaronic and Melchisedek Priesthoods and Apostleship, with all the keys and powers thereof, which God has sealed upon me; and I now roll off all the labor, burden and care of this church and Kingdom of God upon your shoulders, and I now command you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ to round up your shoulders, and bear off this church and Kingdom of God before heaven and earth, and before God, angels and men, and if you don't do it you will be damned."

And the same spirit that filled the room at that time burns in my bosom while I record this testimony, and the Prophet of God appointed no one else but the Twelve Apostles to stand at the head of the church and direct its affairs. * * *

The Twelve Apostles, with President Brigham Young as their head, became the presiding council of the Church.

The lessons which the Church then learned in regard to the Priesthood, and the rights of the Priesthood, have never been forgotten. When President Young was taken from us, there was no jar nor division of sentiment among the Apostles; and among the people there was scarcely a question as to where the right of Presidency rested. President John Taylor took the position which belonged to him, and the work of God moved forward without interruption, and with a union and harmony on the part of all connected with it, most delightful to witness. He has stood at our head for nearly ten years, and during that period he has possessed the gifts and qualifications which belonged to his high office and calling. His entire career is one that can be contemplated with the utmost satisfaction and pleasure by all who love the truth and admire integrity in those who are called to be servants of God. From the time that he was baptized a member of the church until his spirit took its flight from earth, he never wavered in his advocacy and defense of the principles of righteousness. Under all the varied circumstances through which he and the people of God were called to pass, in the midst of the deepest trials and afflictions, his voice was always raised in tones of encouragement and hope; and when the storms were the fiercest, he rose to the occasion and always displayed undaunted courage and unflinching devotion to the Zion of God. In the providence of God it fell to his lot to be with the Prophet Joseph and Patriarch Hyrum when they were martyred for the truth, and he mingled his own blood with theirs. Though severely wounded on that occasion, he miraculously escaped death. He was a man whom the Lord loved. The evidence of this is to be found in the fact that He chose him to preside over His church at the departure of His servant Brigham. We feel thankful to God our Eternal Father that we have been permitted to live with and enjoy the society of President John Taylor and be his fellow-laborers. Our association with him and the Presidents and Apostles who have gone before him into the great spirit world, we esteem as a great honor. We take delight in anticipating the rejoicing that we shall have when we shall be permitted to mingle in their society.

Once more, the responsibility of presiding over the church has fallen upon the Council of the Twelve Apostles. The Counselors of President Taylor, brothers George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith, being members of the Council of the Twelve Apostles at the time they were chosen to be members of the First Presidency, have, since his death, taken their places again as members of that Council.

Fifty-seven years and a half have elapsed since the church was organized. In looking around among those with whom we associate to day, how few there are left of those who, under the Lord, helped to lay the foundation of this work and were the companions of the Prophet in the early labors connected therewith! To-day there is but one Apostle left of those who belonged to the Council of the Apostles during the lifetime of the Prophet Joseph, or, indeed, at the time these valleys were first settled. The other faithful

Apostles who were ordained under the direction of the Prophet Joseph have all passed behind the veil. * * *

Those of us who have been at liberty to travel, have devoted our time to visiting the various States, and in meeting with them at their quarterly Conferences. * * *

The Lord has informed us that marriage is ordained of God unto man. The institution of marriage, in some communities of which we read, is falling almost into disrepute. It is alleged that there is a growing tendency in this direction among us. The cause is doubtless, traceable to the increase of wealth and the disinclination of young men to take upon them the burdens of a wife and family. As we depart from the simplicity of early days, we may naturally expect that this tendency will increase as young men may be restrained from offering marriage to young ladies unless they can give them something like as comfortable a home as they enjoy under their parents' roof. Extravagant or luxuriant habits or training on the part of the girls will also have the effect to deter young men from marrying. Care should be taken by every person of influence to counteract this tendency, and to set before the rising generation the advantages which follow well-arranged marriages. No community can prosper and maintain a high standard of morality where there is a large percentage of unmarried young men and young women. We should deplore the increase of such a class among us, and all honorable means should be used to prevent its existence. The young of both sexes should be taught that it is not necessary to happiness in marriage to be in the possession of wealth. In this country an industrious, economical married couple can soon surround themselves with all the conveniences and comforts essential to life and happiness. The satisfaction each will have in after years in the enjoyment of the fruits of their joint industry and thrift will amply repay them for any inconveniences or privations they may have been subjected to in the early days of their married life. The comforts thus accumulated will be doubly sweetened unto them by the recollection of their exertions in common to procure them. No rightly constituted and educated young woman will refuse an offer of marriage from a worthy, industrious young man for no other reason than that he is not able to surround her at first with the comforts which she may think she ought to have. Young men, who have a due share of the qualities which women esteem in a husband, need not be afraid that girls of that kind will refuse them, because they may not be well endowed with this world's goods. They will cheerfully bear their part of the burdens of life without repining when confident of the love and supporting and guiding hand of their husbands.

AGAINST INCURRING DEBT.

We feel led to caution the Latter Day Saints against forming the bad habit of incurring debt and taking upon themselves obligations which frequently burden them heavier than they can bear, and lead to the loss of their homes and other possessions. We know it is the fashion of the age to use credit to the utmost limit, and it is customary for nations, states, counties and cities to borrow money, issue bonds, and thus load themselves with taxes to such an extent that large numbers of the people are prevented from owning land or even the houses which they occupy. Thus the masses become tenants and have to pay rent for land and shelter. This is a great evil and one that we, as a people and as individuals, should carefully shun. Our business should be done, as much as possible, on the principle of paying for that which we purchase, and our needs should be brought within the limit of our resources. The disposition to speculate and to take chances upon ventures of one kind and another should be repressed. There are many people who have been rendered homeless in our Territory by the neglect of this precaution. To raise funds to invest in some scheme which has appeared promising they have mortgaged their homes, only too often, to be disappointed and to find themselves without a place of shelter for themselves and their families. All this is wrong.

If the penalty for such unwisdom fell upon the one through whose acts and influence it is brought about, the consequences would not be so deplorable; but very frequently families suffer and the bad results are widely felt. We, therefore, repeat our counsel to the Latter Day Saints, to shun debt. Be content with moderate gains, and be not misled by illusory hopes of acquiring wealth. Remember the saying of the wise man: "He that hasteth to get rich shall not be innocent." Let our children also be taught habits of economy, and not to indulge in tastes which they can not gratify without running in debt.

ZION SHALL NOT BE REMOVED.

We have been favored, as no other people have, with wise counsels. Their extent and variety are immeasurable. They cover every department of human life. So far as we have observed them, prosperity and happiness have been the results. Whatever difficulties we may have to contend with to-day are due, if not wholly, at least in great part, to our disregard of them. Is not this the experience and testimony of all the faithful Saints who have watched the progress of events among us? Had we observed these counsels, how many of the evils from which we now suffer would never have been known among us! Our neglect of them has brought its punishment, and the faithful can see it. But shall we not profit by the experience of the past and act more wisely in the future? As the Lord has said (Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 90, ver. 36-37).

"But verily I say unto you, that I, the Lord, will contend with Zion, and plead with her strong ones, and chasten her until she overcomes and is clean before me; for she shall not be removed out of her place, I, the Lord, have spoken it." * * *

Our country abounds in useful elements. We have a fertile soil, when properly cultivated, and an admirable climate. Grains, fruits, and vegetables, as well as all kinds of stock, can be raised here, and as superior in quality as can be found anywhere on the earth. Care should be taken to raise the very best varieties. Our horses, cattle, sheep, and poultry, as well as our grains, and fruits, and vegetables, should be of the very best kinds, and no pains should be spared to keep them pure. Our system of irrigation does not admit of the cultivation of large areas of land. Our farms are moderate in extent. This being the case, they should be cultivated in the most approved style, and the whole business connected with a farm should be conducted in a manner to bring the best results. As facilities for education increase, there undoubtedly will be a marked improvement in the management of all these branches of business.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

It is gratifying to notice the interest that is being taken among us in education; yet there is great room for improvement. As the taste for what may be called book-learning increases, manual labor should not be neglected. The education of the mind and the education of the body should go hand in hand. A skillful brain should be joined with a skillful hand. Manual labor should be dignified among us and always be made honorable. The tendency, which is too common in these days, for young men to get a smattering of education and then think themselves unsuited for mechanical or other laborious pursuits is one that should not be allowed to grow among us. Of course it is necessary as society is now organized, that the professions, as they are termed, should receive attention. But every one should be taught to sustain themselves by their own industry and skill, and not only to do this, but to help sustain others, and that to do this by honest toil is one of the most honorable means which God has furnished to his children here on the earth. The subject of the proper education of the youth of Zion is one of the greatest importance.

We can have no wish to take from any man his meed of worth, or labor; but a serious question has risen with reference to the nature of the responsibility imposed by Joseph Smith upon the quorum of Twelve as organized and existent during the later years of his life and at his death. That Joseph Smith carried much of the burden properly belonging to the Twelve as a spiritual body appears certain as is seen in a revelation in Doctrine and Covenants, July 23d, 1837, and in the church history; but that he at any time put upon them, or from himself, any responsibility attaching to himself and to the office of president of the church, which he held, and which his successor should hold after him, if he should be succeeded by any one, is by no means presumable. If Joseph Smith was informed in regard to the law and organization of the church, he knew that the Twelve must stand in its own place, and not in the place, or station filled by him as presiding over the whole church. And the records of the times when the events occurred clearly show that an understanding obtained at the time, by the Twelve, Brigham Young being the exponent of the views held by them, which was widely different from that which was acted upon in 1847 when Brigham Young was elevated to the presidency, as also when John Taylor succeeded him.

At the death of Joseph and Hyrum, William Smith, John E. Page and Lyman Wight were members of the quorum, and did not cease to be members for some time after the assassination. These men must have been with the quorum at the time such alleged instruction preparatory to the anticipated departure of Joseph Smith was going on; and they did not then, nor ever afterward, understand the teaching of Joseph, so secretly given, as Wilford Woodruff now states it, and as Brigham Young construed it in 1847. Further than this, Brigham Young, August 15th, 1844, stated that no one need to think that Joseph's place would "be filled by another;" "for," said he, "he stands in his own place, and always will; and the Twelve Apostles of this dispensation stand in their own place and always will."—Times and Seasons, 5: 618.

And the reorganization which Brigham Young effected, beginning at Winter Quarters in 1847, effectually disproved the assumption that Joseph's instructions contemplated what was done in that direction. Lyman Wight, John E. Page and William Smith, who must have been partakers of the same counsel and teaching had quite a different conception of what Joseph's teaching was; and one of these, William Smith, is still living, with full faith in the mission of his brothers and in Mormonism as declared by them. Wilford Woodruff and William Smith as survivors of that Twelve stand opposed in testimony respecting those last days and the instructions to the quorum then existing.

That the Twelve at the death of Joseph became a presiding council in the church may be conceded. But the quorum was that during the life time of Joseph, and it was no more so after his death. So also was the Quorum of Seventy; and, in their place, the High Council in Zion also. Had the apostles, acting in their own sphere, as a body, and keeping their number intact, took up the work in form, feature and object as laid down by Joseph and Hyrum, keeping up the missionary labor in the several districts of the United States as appointed by the Presidency, and preaching the faith and doctrines of the church as then taught and publicly avowed, there was not then, there could not be now, any one who could justly say them nay. But Brigham Young became a spiritual and temporal director. Refusing to be subject to the rule of responsibility, even in Joseph's time declining to report to the church moneys collected by him for church uses, as the published records show, he assumed such dictatorship while yet he was but the presiding officer of the quorum as precluded the idea of responsibility to the body by him, which assumption and position he maintained to his death. No man can estimate the growth and spiritual spread of the truth known as Mormonism which would have resulted had that Quorum of Twelve Apostles "minded its own business" as representatives of the church to which they belonged according to the intent and purposes of the law of their calling and creation as apostles, and in purview of the command to preach the gospel in all the world. Instead of doing that, however, a marital policy was secretly fulminated which in its very nature forbade them going into all the world, and confined them to the bonded precincts of husbandmen in a temporal and not a spiritual sense. This, Elder Woodruff unwittingly confesses, when in his epistle, under the head of "The labors of the apostles," he says: "Those of us who have been at liberty to travel, have devoted our time to visiting the various stakes, and in meeting with them at their quarterly conferences." Here nothing larger than the care of a few organized branches, or stakes, has engrossed the care of men whose ostensible calling has been unto "all the world," to "travel and preach," baptizing them, who should be obedient to the call, unto holiness of life in this world, and the hope of eternal life in the world to come. Instead of forsaking houses and lands, home, wife and children for the gospel's sake, these apostles accumulated to themselves wives, children, lands and houses and sat down to the enjoyment of these things of this world, forsaking the work they were especially called to do. Of such as these Joseph Smith said in an early day: "If there are any among you, who aspire after their own aggrandizement and opulence while their brethren are groaning in poverty, and laboring under sore trials and temptations, they can not be benefitted by the intercessions of the Holy Spirit: * * * There are many called, but few chosen; and why are they not chosen? Because their hearts are set upon the things of the world and are aspiring to the honors of men; they do not learn the lesson that the rights of the priesthood are inseparably connected with the powers of heaven; and that the powers of heaven can not be controlled nor handled only upon the principles of righteousness. That they may be conferred upon us, it is true; but when we undertake to cover our sins, to gratify our pride, vain ambition, or to exercise dominion or compulsion over the souls of the children of men, in any degree of unrighteousness; behold the heavens withdraw themselves, the Spirit of the Lord is grieved, then amen to the priesthood, or to the authority of that man; behold ere he is aware, he is left to kick against the pricks; to persecute the Saints and to fight against God."

That sacred record, the Book of Mormon, declares the practice of plural marriage to be an abomination and a crime. For those who have been called unto the priesthood to practice it, is to be guilty of attempting spiritual domination in "unrighteousness;" and those who do it are in the condition above described, when there comes an end to their right to act as the servants of Christ; their authority has ceased. This is precisely the condition into which Brigham Young precipitated the Twelve who followed his beck and became his fellows in fastening polygamy like a millstone about the necks of the Saints. John Taylor was more modest in the assumption of power than was Brigham Young. He was not so unscrupulous and grasping as was Brigham Young. He was not so unscrupulous and grasping as was Brigham, and we fancy was a more honest man. Wilford Woodruff may well hesitate about stepping into the shoes of predecessors who exercised their functions of presidency upon an improper precedent and in advocacy of a tenet foreign to the original principles and doctrines of the church, and unto the propagation of which they as apostles were not called in the days of Joseph Smith.

As a matter of fact, it is well known by hundreds of those who were with the church at Joseph's death, that no attempt was made to organize a First Presidency until December, 1847, three years and a half after June 27th 1844, and then but a moiety of those still holding allegiance to the body under the Twelve were notified of such movement, and less than a thousand were present at the time Brigham Young was chosen to the office of president.

The responsibilities of the Twelve do not involve those of the First Presidency. There are in the church, in its full organization, three quorums of coequal authority of decision, the Presidency, the Twelve, and the Seventy. No one of these can discharge the functions of either two of the others. Each must occupy in its place, and can go no further. The assumption that the office of president accrued to Brigham Young by right because he was the president of the Twelve, finds no warrant in the law. It was the result of grasping ambition upon the part of Brigham Young, and the precedent originated with him. The deposition of Orson Hyde from his place in the quorum made John Taylor eligible within the precedent; and now, within the same precedent, Wilford Woodruff is the eligible one. Why should there be any hesitancy in at once proclaiming this one the president? If the responsibility of presidency inured to the Twelve at the death of Joseph and Hyrum, it was as a quorum, and not as to individuals in that quorum; and there is not a line of revelation that sustains the procedure in the case of either Brigham Young's succession of Joseph Smith, or John Taylor's succeeding to Brigham Young.

If Joseph Smith appointed no one else to "stand at the head of the church" but the "twelve apostles," as stated by Wilford Woodruff, then the choosing of Brigham Young first, and John Taylor subsequent to that, "to stand at the head of the church," was not in harmony with Joseph's teaching, understanding, or appointment; and the claim, hitherto made, that the Twelve were "carrying out the measures of Joseph," was an erroneous claim and unsupported by fact and law.

The relegation of George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith to the Council of Twelve Apostles, of which they were members before being chosen as Counselors to John Taylor, makes a council of fourteen; and thus, instead of being the council of the Twelve Apostles it is the council of the Fourteen; and if Albert Carrington had not been deposed it would be fifteen. Who made them? and upon what principles were these made apostles? Elder Woodruff mistakes when he says that there is but one of the council of apostles during the lifetime of Joseph now living. William Smith, one of that council, and brother to Joseph is still left alive, and is able to state what took place between the quorum and Joseph during those days.

Those portions of the Epistle which deal with the questions of marriage, industry, education and debt, we commend. The first is referred to, because that union between the young and marriageable, one companion only in wedlock being contemplated in its teaching, the purer, better conditions of society under the monogamic law given to the church in 1831 and which Orson Pratt designated in 1869 as being "God's holy law," being directly recognized and inculcated. We think this in keeping with section 112 of Doctrine and Covenants, known as the section on Marriage, as that book was given to the church by Joseph Smith; and which Pres. Brigham Young improperly, and without warrant from God, or the church, had taken out in 1876.

From the tenor of this Epistle and the tone of the speakers who addressed the four days' conference lately held in Utah, we are led to conclude that it is possible that better counsels may prevail and the people be permitted a better degree of light.

THE "HEAD OF THE CHURCH."

"AND again, the duty of the president of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses. Behold, here is wisdom, yea, to be a seer, a revelator, a translator and a prophet; having all the gifts of God which he bestows upon the head of the church."—D. C., 104: 42.

Wilford Woodruff, in his "testimony" which we publish in this issue, asserts that "the Prophet of God [Joseph Smith] appointed no one else but the Twelve Apostles to stand at the head of the church and direct its affairs," and says, "the same Spirit that filled the room at that time burns in my bosom while I record this testimony." If this testimony is true, then Joseph Smith did not appoint Brigham Young to be his successor. This is a most important point, and the admission of Wilford Woodruff is fatal to the pretension that either Brigham Young, John Taylor, or Wilford Woodruff, ever were or ever could be his successor. For the unchangeable law and promises of God provide that Joseph's successor in the prophetic office and presidency of the church must attain to that office in the following manner:

1.—It must be in accordance with the previous promises of God as found in the accredited revelations of God.

2.—The successor must be appointed directly of God, and that, too, "through" Joseph, the Seer.

3.—He must be called by direct revelation of God to himself, making known to him his duties as to time, place, work, etc.

4.—He must be "chosen and upheld" by the Saints—those who are worthy to be called the "disciples" of Christ by reason of keeping faithfully his commandments.

5.—He must be set apart and ordained to that office by competent authority as provided for by the law of the church, and this must be done "by the direction of a high council or General Conference."

6.—The evidences confirming the divine appointment and calling of the successor will be found, (a) in his teaching and ministering in accordance with the genuine and properly accredited revelations given to the church; (b) in receiving and giving revelations in strict harmony with the authorized and accredited word of God and all known truth; and, (c) in the approving and confirming testimonies of the Spirit and power of God to his work when officiating professedly in that office and calling.

Does the successorship of Brigham Young and John Taylor fulfill any of these conditions? Where is there a promise, or an item of revelation, pointing out that either Brigham Young or John Taylor ever was or ever would be called of God to succeed Joseph Smith in the prophetic office and presidency of the church? When and where did God appoint them or either of them, through Joseph the Seer, to be the First Presidents of the church?

When and where did the Lord call either of them by direct revelation to themselves to be the successor of Joseph the Seer?

When and where were either of them "chosen and upheld" by those Saints who keep the commandments of God as set forth in the standard books of the church endorsed and taught by Joseph the Seer and the church in his lifetime?

When and where were either of them regularly set apart and ordained to the office of First President of the church by competent authority?

When and where have they received and given revelations in furtherance of, and in harmony with, the standard books of the church endorsed and authorized by Joseph the Seer and the church in his lifetime?

When and where did the Spirit and power of God approve and confirm their ministrations when they professed to minister in the office of Prophet, Seer, Revelator, Translator, and president of the church and High Priesthood?

These are questions the people of God are entitled to have answered by those claiming that Brigham Young and John Taylor were the proper, lawful successors of Joseph the Seer. They who make such claims will have to meet these questions, for they are pertinent and vital.

The Lord, by his unerring, unfailing word to the church, has plainly pointed out, through revelation to Joseph the Seer, the source from whence the successor would come, the manner in which he should come, and the work he would find to do and would be called to do, as we see by the following:

"Therefore, thus saith the Lord unto you, with whom the priesthood hath continued through the lineage of your fathers, for ye are lawful heirs, according to the flesh, and have been hid from the world with Christ in God:—therefore your life and the priesthood hath remained, and must needs remain, through you and your lineage, until the restoration of all things spoken by the mouths of all the holy prophets since the world began.

"Therefore, blessed are ye if ye continue in my goodness, a light unto the Gentiles, and through this priesthood, a savor unto my people Israel. The Lord hath said it. Amen."—Doc. Cov. 84: 3, 4.

"The order of this priesthood was confirmed to be handed down from father to son, and rightly belongs to the literal descendants of the chosen seed, to whom the promises were made. This order was instituted in the days of Adam, and came down by lineage in the following manner:"—Doc. and Cov. sec. 104: 18.

"And now, I say unto you, as pertaining to my boarding-house, which I have commanded you to build, for the boarding of strangers, let it be built unto my name, and let my name be named upon it, and let my servant Joseph and his house have place therein, from generation to generation; for this anointing have I put upon his head, that his blessing shall also be put upon the head of his posterity after him; and as I said unto Abraham, concerning the kindreds of the earth, even so I say unto my servant Joseph, in thee, and in thy seed, shall the kindred of the earth be blessed. Therefore, let my servant Joseph, and his seed after him, have place in that house, from generation to generation, forever and ever, saith the Lord, and let the name of that house be called the Nauvoo House; and let it be a delightful habitation for man, and a resting place for the weary traveler, that he may contemplate the glory of Zion, and the glory of this the cornerstone thereof; that he may receive, also, the counsel from those whom I have set to be as plants of renown, and as watchmen, upon her walls."—D. and C. sec. 107: 18.

To this we may add the prophetic words of Joseph to John C. Calhoun, January 2d, 1844, only about five months before his martyrdom: "While I have powers of body and mind; while water runs and grass grows; while virtue is lovely vice hateful; and while a stone points out a sacred spot where a fragment of American liberty once was; I or my posterity will plead the cause of injured innocence, until Missouri makes atonement for all her sins—or sinks disgraced, degraded and damned to hell, where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched."—Times and Seasons, vol. 5: 395.

Of Joseph the Seer, and his successor, and their revelations to and labor in the church, the Lord further said in February, 1831:

"O hearken, ye elders of my church, and give an ear to the words which I shall speak unto you: for behold, verily, verily I say unto you, that ye have received a commandment for a law unto my church, through him whom I have appointed unto you, to receive commandments and revelations from my hand. And this ye shall know assuredly, that there is none other appointed unto you to receive commandments and revelations until he be taken, if he abide in me.

"But verily, verily I say unto you, that none else shall be appointed unto this gift except it be through him, for if it be taken from him he shall not have power, except to appoint another in his stead; and this shall be a law unto you, that ye receive not the teachings of any that shall come before you as revelations, or commandments; and this I give unto you, that you may not be deceived, that you may know they are not of me. For verily I say unto you, that he that is ordained of me, shall come in at the gate and be ordained as I have told you before, to teach those revelations which you have received, and shall receive through him whom I have appointed."—Doc. Cov. 43: 1, 2.

In this revelation the Lord informs the Saints that no one would be appointed to receive revelations for the church in Joseph's place and stead, "except it be through him." And, that the Saints might "not be deceived" by pretenders, he further commands them, saying, "receive not the teachings of any that shall come before you as revelations, or commandments."—except from a successor "appointed" of God "through" Joseph the Seer.

In view of these plain provisions of the word of God, how can Wilford Woodruff ask intelligent Saints to accept the "Twelve Apostles," Brigham Young, or John Taylor, as the rightful successors to Joseph the Seer!

Joseph did not appoint the Twelve, Brigham Young, nor John Taylor, to be his successor, judging them even by their own words. Neither did he authorize the "Twelve" to appoint his successor, nor organize a First Presidency. And wherein the "Twelve" assumed to do these things, they had no authority under the law of God, but violated it, and failed, as Apostles, to officiate wisely and faithfully in their own office and calling as the law of the Lord commanded them to do, and (as Wilford Woodruff testifies) Joseph the Seer solemnly enjoined them to do. Why did not each of the Twelve "learn his duty," and "act in the office in which he is [was] appointed." The Lord says such apostles as do not, "shall not be counted worthy to stand."—Doc. and Cov. 104: 4.

When the "Twelve" assumed the authority and powers and duties of the First Presidency, they went widely and harmfully out of the way, misled as many as would follow them, threw the church as a people into a state of disorder, and today they are accounted as salt that has "lost its savor," and they have been and are being "trodden under the feet of men," (Doc. Cov. 98: 5), and "the kingdoms of the world shall prevail against them."—Doc. and Cov. 100: 2.

In conclusion we inquire, who made the "Twelve" the successor of Joseph the Seer? What authority had five of the said "Twelve" to make B. Young, H. C. Kimball and W. Richards the First Presidency of the church, Dec. 27th, 1847? And who authorized the Twelve to make Brigham the successor of Joseph the Seer!

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE invite attention to a notice in this issue in respect to "Autumn Leaves," by sister Walker. It needs no explanation. We are pleased to know the church and its friends will soon be furnished with this valuable and much needed addition to our church literature, and we bespeak for it a warm welcome and hearty support.

There was a "Saints' Harp" with the name of James Johnson on the fly leaf, left in sister Julia A. Swain's Organ in the big tent at the late Reunion, at Harlan, Iowa, and taken with organ to her home. The owner will please write her, sending ten cents for postage and it will be forwarded by mail. Address her at Harlan, Shelby county, Iowa.

Bro. John A. Robinson, formerly of Peoria, Illinois, in the employ of Kingman and company, as traveling salesman, has removed to Kansas City, Missouri, where he will be found in charge of the business of the firm of R. H. & C. M. Avery. So says the Peoria Transcript of October 20th. We congratulate the brethren of Kansas City upon the accession of Bro. Robinson to their number. He is a live man in whatever line he is in; including his faith.

Bro. R. W. Hugill, of Five Lakes, Michigan, in a recent letter says that the late sister E. Thompson, previous to her death, desired to depart and be with Christ, and that just before she passed away, she said: "I can see the bright light on the other shore," and cried out, "Come blessed Jesus; take me home!"

Bro. W. W. Hodge wrote us of late that he and others at Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania, had procured a room that will seat two hundred and twenty-five persons, and had furnished it, and they now wish any elder passing through there should stop and labor among them. His residence is 1,022, 3d avenue. The elders in charge of that field are expected to look after this in due time.

Bro. B. D. Alldredge, of Sloan, Iowa, wrote us October 18th saying he had worked up something of an interest in his neighborhood, and thinks some are anxious to investigate the faith and doctrines of the Saints. He says: "We never so much as get to see an elder here."

Bro. Henry Daniel, of Lake City, Arkansas, wrote us October 21st, that himself and others are very anxious for the coming of either Elder George Hilliard or J. W. Gillen to preach in that region.

Pres. Joseph Smith, on repeated requests, goes to-day (October 27th) to lecture on temperance in the city of Des Moines, Ia.

Bro. W. W. McLeod called on us on his return from Independence, Missouri, to his home at Becker, Minnesota.

By letter from Bro. R. J. Anthony, Malad, Idaho, October 20th, we learn he baptized five at that place on the 18th inst. He was to preach at Samaria and Elkhorn, and then return to Malad for further services; after which, accompanied by Bro. John Vanderwood, he intended to go eighty miles west to Malta and vicinity, to be gone twenty days or more, and then go to Southern Utah.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. George A. Blakeslee, of Galien, Michigan, wrote from there October 25th, saying:

"Our conference has just closed. It was a most excellent one. The attendance was large. Two were baptized."

Bro. R. M. Elvin says in his letter from Nebraska City, Nebraska:

"Have just returned from Wilber quarterly conference. It was cold in the Tent. Attendance and order good. Two children were baptized. I will reply to Bro. Blair soon."

Bro. G. T. Griffiths, in a letter dated at Pleasant Hill, Ohio, says:

"Bro. T. Matthews of Syracuse, Ohio, is with me, and we are greatly blessed of God. The people of the M. E. Church of this place closed their church building against us, but we have the use of the town school house, and we have it crowded every night. At present the prospects are very bright. I am of the opinion that a number will unite with us soon. Bro. Joseph, I have been greatly blessed since the April Conference, and have received more power than I ever enjoyed before, notwithstanding Mr. Brown has said that the four men called to be apostles, last spring, have not received as much power from God as they had before their ordination. I trust that I shall ever be humble and very prayerful. Sometimes I feel very weak and often wonder why the Lord has placed such a burden upon so weak a person as I."

Our aged Bro. Jesse Seelye, of Savannah, New York, renews his subscription and says:

"I can not do without the Herald. It gives such good instruction on the gospel, and such encouraging reports of the elders in the field that I do not see how any of the Saints can do without it."

Sr. Catherine Salisbury, of Fountain Green, Illinois, referring to her late visit among the Saints at Lamoni and at Harlan Reunion, writes:

"I could not help feeling sorry to leave you. I had such a good visit with you all. I never spent so pleasant a time in all my life. I feel well repaid for all my time and money."

Bro. A. H. Parsons wrote from Guide Rock, Nebraska, October 20th, and said:

"The work is onward; two more added to the church by baptism, and others near."

Bro. George S. Lincoln wrote from San Francisco, California, October 18th in a letter on private affairs, from which we quote:

"Our district conference passed pleasantly by with few exceptions: Much good preaching was done, four were baptized during the session. Two by H. P. Brown and two by your correspondent. We were much pleased to have Brn. Smith and Kelley with us. The latter spoke for us here in our hall Sunday night, to a good fair congregation. His visit here will result in good.

"WHAT has Pomona done any way, that she should be afflicted with such an abundance of fanatism. We though we had reached the climax of absurdity when the Salvation Army stormed our works and took forcible possession; but we are now to have an epidemic of Mormonism. The "Latter Day Saints" are upon us. If Pomona has any crusty old maids, or yellow-haired, freckled maidens who would like to double teams with some other unfortunate female and secure a second-hand husband, now is their chance."

Did anybody ever see such sublime and complacent ignorance of the affairs of ones neighbors, so clearly and openly notorious as is the position of the Latter Day Saints of the Reorganization, the ones who are referred to in the foregoing squibs. The stroke is aimed at Utah Mormonism, though the men who have invested Pomona are of the Reorganization, and as far from polygamists as are the members of any church in Pomona, Salvation Army included.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Would it be in order for an elder to call on a priest to assist in ordaining a priest, or a teacher?

Ans.—Yes.

SIGNIFICANT, IF TRUE.

"James O. Broadhead of St. Louis, and Senator McDonald of Indiana, have been retained by the Mormon Church to oppose the motion of the United States district attorneys for the appointment of a receiver for the Mormon Church property. Much of the vast real estate owned by this rich corporation has been conveyed to private parties; but it will be a question whether these conveyances will be recognized by the courts."

WE insert the creed of the Universalist Church as proclaimed at their Annual Conference, held in New York.

A NEW UNIVERSALIST CREED.

The 21st annual convention of the Universalist Church began at New York, Wednesday, in the church of the Divine Paternity. Rev. Dr. C. W. Tomlinson reported on behalf of the committee on profession of faith, the following substitute for the old form of profession:

1.—I believe that the holy scriptures of the Old and New Testaments contain a revelation from God to mankind.

2. I believe in one God, the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth; in Jesus Christ, his Son, who is the revealer of God and the Savior of the world; and in his Holy Spirit, the comforter, through which all disciples of Christ are united in one spiritual body.

3. I believe in the necessity of personal regeneration; in the forgiveness of sins; in the certainty of retribution; in the final holiness and happiness of all mankind.

4. I believe that the opportunities, obligations and rewards of religion are in their nature eternal, and of such immediate urgency that I ought to strive earnestly for present salvation by repenting of my sins and diligently using the means of grace which, in his mercy, God has provided for me.

SUPERINTENDENTS AND TEACHERS

Don't fail to read notice of change in last Hope and prepare to supply your schools.

BOARD OF PUBLICATION.

Mother's Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"By his life alone,
Gracious and sweet, the better way was shown."

THERE comes to us for the "Column" this week, from a sister a request to know our opinion in regard to the subject of dress. Before answering it we wish to present to the Sisters an extract from a private letter, and when we tell them that it is from one who has long borne the heat and burden of the day, one who has suffered much for the cause we all love, and unto whom it has pleased God to reveal many things concerning this latter day work, we believe that it will have, as surely it ought to have, great weight with them. When the subject of "dress" was first introduced into the "Column," we had not the least idea that it would have occupied the space which it since has, but we could not in justice admit the letters of one and exclude those of another, and this is our apology. But we will give you the quotation:

"Sister, I read the Mother's Column in the Herald with great interest. I sometimes think that beautiful 'Column' might be put to better use than to have so much of it taken up about fine dresses, ruffles, ribbons, etc. Dear sister, would it not be better to occupy that portion of the 'Column' in teaching the principles of faith, patience, meekness, gentleness, charity and all the adorning, virtuous principles of the gospel of Christ? If they are possessed, everything else will adjust itself and all will be well."

To this latter sentiment our soul responds most fully, and emphatically. The heart and mind which is fully imbued with the love of God will never be able to entertain any guest, no matter who or what that guest may be, which shall separate their soul from "The love of God as it is in Christ Jesus." Where the treasure is, there will the heart be also, and as it is utterly impossible for us to serve two masters; so is it impossible for us to have our treasure in heaven, and our thoughts all upon earth. If we love Jesus Christ the Savior of the world, we will, we must, there is no avoiding it, no escaping the obligation, "Be about our Father's business." We all know that in order to acquire skill in any art or science we must not only bestow time and labor upon it, but thought; and the more we love it, the more thought and labor we will bestow upon it.

The commandment unto us is: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might;" but we can not separate this from another which enjoins upon us, "to do all things to the honor and glory of God." Does it devolve upon us to provide for the wants of our household? any employment which we are fitted for, whereby we can honestly, in the sight of God and men, earn for those dependent upon us food, clothing and the comforts of life, becomes service rendered to God, if we do it cheerfully and willingly as unto Him; and think you it will not be well pleasing in His sight that we should strive to do, to the very best of our ability, or with our might, that which our hands find to do? But change the circumstances and we find ourselves placed where we have few cares and less responsibility. All our wants are provided for by father, husband or some near relative. Has God made it obligatory upon them to provide for us in order that we might have time to adorn this frail and perishing body? Can we go upon our bended knees before our Father who seeth in secret and ask his blessing upon our labor, when that labor has been bestowed entirely upon ourselves and with no higher aim in view than the adornment of the body? We must be clothed, and it is our duty to be neat and to make the clothing of our bodies, as the nourishing of them with food, a matter into which we take God and our conscience; and as his children we are bound to do all things to his honor and glory; and when we love Him we will do it; and right here is the test, the touchstone to try our love, for the commandment is: "Let your garments be plain," and "whose adorning, let it be that of a meek and quiet spirit, which in the sight of God is of great price."

The service of God is love's service, and the moment that any influence is brought to bear upon leading us to actions which are not prompted by the love of God, that moment our service loses its chief value in his sight. "Look abroad upon the fields; they are white already to the harvest." The world is full of our Father's work and we must be about our Father's business.

Dear sister D., in answer to your request for my opinion I will simply say that I think your view of the matter correct. I believe that our garments should be plain but neat, and our appearance such as will give evidence of the refining influence of the meek and gentle spirit we are required to cultivate. I believe it is our duty at all times to pay sufficient attention to our personal appearance to make the tenement of clay correspond with the spirit dwelling therein, and then we will find it an easy matter to forget all about self, and give our thoughts to the Master's work. All have not the same duties to perform. I believe that if it becomes my duty to bake a loaf of bread or wash the breakfast dishes, I am serving the Lord just as truly, if I do it with full purpose of heart, as I would be if I went upon my knees before him praying for the advancement of his cause and kingdom. The bread is for the sustaining of our lives, and our bodies must be properly sustained in order that they may be fitly prepared to glorify him; and the bread should be the very best that I can make, and if my dishes were poorly washed I should surely be disturbed in spirit. I know a sister who never fails to have excellent bread. Her husband is an elder and in delicate health. When I asked her how she always succeeded in having such good bread, she told me that she had prayed about it, and prayer with earnest endeavor had helped her to conquer; "for," said she, "I used so often to fail and have poor bread, and felt so badly about it because my husband needs the best of food, that I just went to God for help, and I have never had poor bread since." This was told us aside, with the tears of gratitude moistening the eye, and we believe that that particular prayer was just as acceptable to God as any prayer for the advancement of his kingdom. Napoleon is said to have attributed the loss of an important battle to a poorly cooked dinner, and our husbands need their food properly prepared that they may have health of body to sustain the spirit. But can not you or I devote our time to the preparation of dainty food and luxuries until it becomes a sin in the sight of God? So with our clothing Neat, plain and attractive, the eyes of our loved ones will rest upon us with pleasure, and our own thoughts drawn entirely from self are free to be given to more important things, even the adorning of mind and soul, the seeking to know and do his will, and the preparation for his coming.

As to the command's applying to men's clothing, I do not see why it should not, but I can not regard it as meaning that we must (each one) make our own clothing. We can all see the absolute necessity which exists for division of labor, and God provided for this in all the arrangements he commanded Moses to make in regard to the tabernacle and the service thereof. Many times, for the most valid reasons, it becomes absolutely necessary for the mother of a family to hire her sewing done, and to me it seems perfectly right and proper she should do so. I can but regard the command as applying to the church, as a church, and to such as have no other duties to interfere with this. It may be that the Lord had reference to this very day and time when the wholesale manufacturing of clothing has become a flint mill in which the poor are ground to such an extent as hardly to be able to keep soul and body together. The manufacturer must have his large profits if the poor operatives starve. God may have intended to warn us from upholding or taking part in this wicked work. I will give you an illustration showing you what I mean. The sisters of the Mite Society in this place, having great difficulty in obtaining any work for their willing hands to do, which would be at all remunerative, thought they would buy material at wholesale and make comfortables, asking only an advance of fifty cents upon each one for their labor; but upon sending a committee to the store they found that they could be bought for less, ready made, than the society would have to pay for the material to making them. The matter seems trivial upon the surface of it; but to those who pause to examine into it, the appearance will change and they will see that it is one of the sins which is crying to heaven to-day, and the time may come when God will command his people to wash their hands of it and give employment to the poor in such a way that these wicked combinations shall be shut off from obtaining the lion's share, while our own honest poor become paupers because they can not obtain employment. We may be mistaken, but so it appears unto us, and we believe the time is near when the children of Zion will be compelled to shake their garments from these sins, and do good unto all men, but especially to the household of faith. In the meantime let us strive to keep our garments unspotted from the vices of the world, and work while it is called to-day.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. A. M. Joice, South Boardman, Mich. . . . .	33
Sr. M. A. Fry, Woodbine, Iowa. . . . .	1 00
Sr. Sarah Dunway, Hatfield, Mo. . . . .	50
Sr. A. W. Borbridge, Corinth, Ont. . . . .	25
Sr. Margaret Winsor, New Salem, Ill. . . . .	1 00
Sr. Naomi —, Ohio. . . . .	1 00

ERRATA.—In the Home Column Missionary Fund, September 19th, for Matilda Harschem, Lamoni, Iowa, read Matilda Harschem, Hatfield, Missouri.

LAMONI, IOWA, October 26th.

October 10th.

Dear Sisters:—When the Herald came last week, I found it contained letters from several of the sisters on the same subject that I had been thinking of, and regarding which I intended to write. This subject is the training of the young—the children of to-day, the men and women of the future. One sister recently remarked in her letter, that “she hoped no mother would send her little ones to school to get them out of the way.” How often we hear it, and how many mothers we know, who are content to feed and clothe their children, leaving to others the almost entire care of their education.

Mothers, or let me say rather, parents, surely you have a work that no other can do. If you fail in caring for your children in the beginning, who shall afterwards give to them the loveliness of character that might have been theirs? Education, the public schools and the Sabbath schools do much, and yet all these agree that, “As the family, so is the school.” Ah, what an up-hill task for teachers to straighten out and make beautiful the branches which the natural, the God given teachers have suffered to become deformed and ungainly! But some parents indulge their children because “they will never be children again.” Now this is the troublesome fact of the case, that we pass over our “life’s succeeding pages” just once and we can not afford to blot or mar even those of childhood. If our children are, in the future, to go forth and live those beautiful lives that shall bless, there is something to be done to-day. There is much to be done to-day. What part of it is the mother’s duty? To teach the little ones, first of all, obedience to law; to teach them, also, to love goodness and purity; to implant in their innocent, trusting minds, faith in God, that they may receive his word, nothing doubting, as young plants wrap their tendrils firmly about the support that will rear them in the sunlight. Let the children hear the voice of prayer in the home; let them see the principles of religion applied to every day affairs; let them see that religion is not a garment to be donned on Sunday and laid aside through the week.

Sisters, my own failures remind me often that “he that conquereth his own spirit, is greater than he that taketh a city.” And yet this task we must take upon us, if we would be true teachers of the little ones, who will imitate us in their actions. Let us cast the beams from our own eyes, that we may see clearly; and let us correct our own habits, if necessary, that we lead not our children astray. The child’s mind is active, hungry and thirsting for knowledge. This want demands attention. If you do not supply a hungry child with suitable food, he will, if necessary and possible, help himself. The mind has need of food as well as the body. With their superior wisdom and the benefit of experience, parents are fitted to select and place before the child that which will nourish the young mind, and cause it to become strong in the knowledge of good and pure things; but leave him to himself and not having the wisdom to choose well, the chances are strong that he will go astray, being attracted by things whose tendency is to injure him and lead him in the broad way.

Sister Frances is making noble efforts in behalf of the little ones. Do we help her all we can? I read much on the subject of dress. What mother would not be willing to clothe herself a little more plainly, that the immortal minds of her sons and daughters may receive greater care, may be more richly clothed. We need pure literature in our homes; we need Autumn Leaves. Let us have it, and let us support it by every means in our power.

“Let us go in the strength of the Master
And his presence our steps shall attend;
He will guide, he will guard from disaster,
And support till our journey shall end.”

CONSTANCE.

October 14th.

Dear Sister Frances:—In the various articles in the “Home Column” given lately upon matters of dress, I notice a slight error in quoting from our Doctrine and Covenants; and I desire to ask the Saints to carefully study the words written there, in connection with the aforesaid articles, feeling that some new thoughts may be suggested on one or two points. In two articles the command in D. and C. has been rendered thus: “Let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the work of your own hands,” while the words really written are, “Let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands.” The question might be asked, does the latter statement mean precisely the same as the former, and if so, why were the extra words used? To me it seems there must be a difference in their meaning, and while I will not take the space to dilate upon it, I will briefly explain it thus: The former statement makes the adornment the only part necessarily to be done by our own hands (“and their beauty the work of your own hands”), and this adornment is suggested, rather than limited, except by the foregoing word “plain.” The latter statement makes the beauty to consist in the “beauty of the work of thine hands, and nothing whatever is said about adornment farther than in the making; and this is commanded to be done by our own hands. I would again ask the Saints to carefully and prayerfully examine this matter; and will you, dear Sister Frances, give us your opinion upon it? Also as to whether the command applies to men’s as well as to women’s and children’s clothing? A SISTER.

HUBBARD, Ohio, Oct. 8th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Will you kindly allow me to enter into the quiet of your sanctum a few minutes? I have never seen you, still you are no stranger to me, for I feel as though you come to me when I read the precious pages of the “Mothers’ Column.” There is so much to strengthen and encourage every tired mother, that it is with joy we look forward to each weekly visit of the dear Herald.

I am young in my experience of this grand latter day work. Last May I, with my three oldest children, also two daughters of Elder D. M. Strachan, were baptized by the above named elder, and it pleased my heavenly Father to bless me with a good testimony. I had followed after the Baptist Church for thirteen years, but I never had any knowledge that I was right. How thankful I am that my life has been spared to hear this glorious gospel, and what a blessing to have a knowledge that it is the gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. My heart swells with gratitude to God for his goodness to me. He has blessed me many times, when pressed down with the cares of life; and oh, sisters and mothers of Zion, I ask an interest in your faith and prayers, that I may remain faithful, and endure to the end. I also remember you in my prayers, and as this is my first attempt at writing, I must not intrude too long. I feel like writing more, but I will try soon again. I pray God to bless the editors of the Herald and all the noble sisters and mothers who so nobly strive to roll on this great work.

Your sister in Christ,

FANNIE E. RICHARDSON.

[Dear Sister Fannie:—You are very welcome, and we trust this will not be your last visit. We know the power and consolation of that sure testimony of which you write; but do not know that we ever felt more thankful for it than when reading the article in the last Herald, “Why Am I a Heathen.”—Ed.]

Correspondence.

CLAY CENTER, Kansas, Oct. 21st.

Dear Herald:—We are still battling for Zion’s cause. Our hearts have been made to rejoice of late. Three precious souls going down into the waters of baptism, one the daughter of sister and Mr. Curtis, long a favorite with the Saints, another a promising young man, also William the son of Bro. and Sr. Cochran. We feel that the Lord is remembering his Saints again in this place, for it has been over two years since any baptisms in this place. I am loaning the Voice of Warning for Bro. Peters. Loaned out nine and sold one the first quarter, but have not done so well this the second quarter, as I find it difficult to get them in again as fast as I think I could loan them out. Two persons have said they would read the Book of Mormon. The Saints are striving to live that they may be able to stand when our Redeemer shall appear.

Yours in gospel bonds,

V. F. ROGERS.

No. 42 York St., Cheetham,

MANCHESTER, October 10th.

Our conference that closed last evening has been the most successful of any ever before held in this district. The business meetings on Friday and Saturday passed off both pleasantly and profitably, from a spiritual standpoint. The Sunday services were all that could be desired. The president of the mission, (elder Thomas Taylor), sister Taylor, and sister Emma Taylor, were present at the services which were held in the Vestry Hall of the Hulme Town Hall. The prayer meeting at 10:30 was in charge of elder Henry Greenwood. President Taylor conducted the afternoon and evening services, elder Joseph Ramsey of Bolton being the speaker. The work moves forward.

Yours in bonds,

JOSEPH DEWSNUP, Sen.

LIMERICK, Ohio, Oct. 18th.

Bro. Joseph:—The outlook is better in this district at present than for some time past. Bro. Griffiths visited us last week and labored a few days, giving instruction which, if heeded, will bring blessings to us, telling us, as directed by the Spirit, that if the Saints did not do better than they had in the past, instead of blessing it would be woe! woe! His preaching was well received. I think his visit was for good.

I recently visited the Saints in Highland county, preached eleven times, baptized 8, and left many others near. There are many calls for preaching in that locality. Bro. Devore has returned from West Virginia. I learned he had considerable success. On the 27th of this month I go to Vales Mills to engage in a three days' discussion; then I go on to Meigs county, then on to West Virginia to labor most of the winter. I have had most excellent liberty in preaching the word. To the good Father be the praise. May God bless his people and hasten his work in every land.

Hopefully yours in Christ,

JAMES MOLER.

HUTCHINSON, Col., Oct. 19th.

Brother Joseph:—I am glad to say that Zion is finding favor in the mountains. We expect to build a new church here shortly. Men outside of the church have promised to give us the lumber and lath and some shingles. I believe we can do the work and so have a new church. I have been preaching at a school house about eight miles from here. The people turned out good to hear me, and have also taken up collections for me some three or four times. This was much better than having brick bats and stones thrown at me, as the people use to do years ago in England. I believe that the word of the Lord is fulfilling in that the Saints should find favor if they would live right.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

JAMES KEMP.

LUCAS, Iowa, October 24th.

Editors Herald:—Having a few leisure moments I will pen you a line in regards the dedication of our church the 23d inst. The Saints were privileged as well as pleased to have the presence of Bro. Joseph Smith, accompanied by Bro. Henry A. Stebbins. The dedicatory services were held at 10:30 a. m. Sunday morning, the sermon being by Bro. Joseph, who was listened to with profound interest for one hour by a well packed house; after which Bro. Stebbins offered a prayer of thanks, and dedicated the church to the worship of God. The expenses of the building of the church were estimated to be about $1500.

In the afternoon, the Saints assembled for sacrament and testimony services, and the power of God's Spirit was vividly felt, confirming the able testimonies borne by many, among which Bro. Joseph related an instance when he received the gift of interpretation of tongues, while attending a Welsh meeting where none could speak English, when during the meeting a sister prayed in the English language as he supposed. But to his astonishment upon inquiry and investigation, he found the sister had really spoken Welsh, but that God had permitted him to understand her in English. There were several outsiders in the meeting, who derided the idea and said it was all delusion and superstition and they were surprised, that such an intelligent man as Joseph Smith seemed to be, would believe such nonsense and attempt to teach it to others. Pres. Smith's visit has created quite an interest upon the subject of Mormonism, and the general topic of conversation is "Joe Smith and his ceed." Your humble servant, although a young and weak being, is kept busy from morning until night defending the "cause" we all so dearly love. To listen to them discussing Mormonism in all its phases, they have it all together, in one conglomerated mixture. The work, however, is onward in this locality and the people of the world recognize and acknowledge "That the Saints are an honest and trustworthy people." And I am fully convinced, if the Saints of Lucas and Cleveland will muster courage and resolve to put their shoulders to the wheel, and do what they can towards the furtherance of the cause, living a godly Christian and upright life, that much good can be accomplished here, and will be the means of disburbing darkness, superstition, and doubt, and the world will see exactly the foundation upon which the church stands. It will also be a stimulant to the elders when they go out to preach to know that the character of the Saints is unimpeachable. The Saints here are as a whole feeling better, and we realize that God's Spirit is working with us. Ever praying for the establishment of Zion, I am,

Your brother in Christ,

T. W. WILLIAMS.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 20th.

Bro. Joseph:—We had a most enjoyable time here at our last district conference. It was one of the most soul-cheering times that it has been my lot to witness. The Saints seem to be strengthened thereby, and pure love and union are manifested. When I read the reports of the different conferences—Providence, Rhode Island; Lucas, Iowa; and the Reunion at Harlan, Iowa, I am made to feel that the Spirit of God is working a unity of effort.

Since our conference we have added six precious souls, to our branch by baptism, five of them Sunday School scholars, and they are truly worthy of the name of Saints. We expect more soon and will bid them welcome to our Father's house. Would to God that the world would come and "partake of the waters of life freely, without money and without price." It seems when one has tasted of the fruit of the Spirit that they would like to offer it to all men, that their spiritual eyes might be opened and they made to see the salvation of God and glorify his great and holy name. I have never felt more determination to "press forward" than now, and to "work" and wait for the prize—or "coming glory."

The "Epistle" of David Whitmer has caused some, we hear, to tremble and fall. And if today is a day of separation and the Lord's own appointed time, I will not grumble, neither find fault, but try and make myself approved in learning my duty and doing it, so that I may be able to stand, "working wisely and well in the love of Christ, in the love of souls, in the hope of God's present help and coming glory; and this to in the manner God has ordained in his written word, and as he leads and teaches by his unerring Spirit." I have proved this to be true, and it shall be my rule of action. In this way we will keep off Satan's ground.

I have been blessed in my labors here in doing what I am able, and many times I have thought of the words, "and you will receive a blessing." And I know of a surety that our prayers are heard and answered, although they may not be in a manner that we would wish, but to our own needs as God see best.

I have distributed tracts, and the "Voice of Warning" to some considerable extent, and believe they will do a great deal of good. I see that the Spirit of gathering is among the Saints. I hope that we can be able to act wisely and well.

Bro. H. C. Smith is cheering up the Saints by giving them good advice which will be a lasting benefit if heeded. Thank God for the light we have received. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I am yours in the gospel bonds of love,

DANIEL GARNER.

UBLY, Mich., Oct. 23d.

Dear Herald:—I am glad that I am a Saint. I find that the gospel is true and the signs do follow the believers by being obedient to God's will, for I have been healed. One night I was siezed with a severe pain in my arm and shoulder and had to walk the floor in suffering. A sister went with me into a room and we prayed to God to remove the pain; and in about fifteen minutes the pain left me and I never had it since. I have been in the church only about three years, and since then I have been trying to do the will of my heavenly Master who has done so much for me. Your sister in Christ,

HENRIETTA MCKAY.

SINNET'S MILLS, W. Va., Oct. 18th.

Editors Saints' Herald:—Elder L. R. Devore just closed a series of meetings at this place. The Christian Church, of which I was a member, opened their house of worship for him to preach in, but he preached there only a few discourses till they turned him out. Then we procured a school-house, in which he continued to dispense the truth, though under not very favorable circumstances, there being a good deal of disturbance in the way of noise and threats of egging him. But fortunately, eggs are worth fifteen cents per dozen—rather too expensive to throw at preachers. As a result of the meetings, four joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints—all from the Christian Church. Quite a number, of other churches, and others belonging to no church, are believing the doctrine and some of them declared they were uncompromising advocates of the same. Brother Devore has made to himself many warm friends in this place. May God bless him in basket and in store, and give him many souls for his hire. I pray for the success of the cause everywhere.

THOMAS SMITH.

BARTLETT, Iowa, Oct. 25th.

Bro. Joseph:—The work is moving slowly, but I trust surely. Every body who attended our camp meeting speak in highest terms of it, and many are looking forward with pleasing anticipations for next fall, when, they say (that is, those who are not members) they are coming again to camp with us. I am holding meetings at Bartlett this week; shall move on from here to Hamburg and thence to Mill Creek and Riverton. In all these places some are anxious for preaching, and we shall try as best we can to hold up the banner of truth, that it may float untarnished and thus draw the admiration of all lovers of truth. Last week I baptized two promising boys, sons of our much esteemed and worthy sister, Jennie Stephenson, of Red Oak.

"GEORGE ELIOT" was a very plain-featured woman, but her name is imperishably linked with English literature. So was Charlotte Bronte, but the pale little Yorkshire girl was a genius whose claims were admitted by those who were the foremost litterateurs of the time.

The date accompanying your name on the small colored label on each paper shows the time to which your subscription has been paid. When payments are made the date is changed, which answers for a receipt.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

TO ELDER D. S. CRAWLEY,
FROM INVESTIGATOR.

DEAR BROTHER:—In attempting to answer your questions, I do not as before stated, claim more than mere opinion on these subjects of "times and seasons," as far as pertaining to dates for the beginning and ending of the 1260, 1290, 1335 days; and I should not spend time to reply if you had not said that you wrote for information. 1. The reason why I claim "one week" or seven years cut off from the "seventy weeks," is because Daniel cuts it off by making 69 weeks to reach from the commandment to build Jerusalem, and the building of the "street and wall" in troublous times to the Messiah the Prince shall be "seven weeks and sixty and two weeks," or 69 weeks, or 483 years. This period began accord to our common Bible chronology B. C. 445, which would bring it to the year 38 A. D. and as Christ was born 4 years before the beginning of our present reckoning he was cut off or died in fact, in what should be A. D. 37. It is said that the people of the prince that shall come, shall destroy the city and the sanctuary &c., and that he (the prince I suppose) shall confirm the covenant with many for one week, and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and oblation to cease, &c. Jesus refers so I think to a false Messiah arising, whom the Jews shall hear. Some one who may come in his own name, offering to deliver the Jews—or to protect them &c. John 5: 43. The Inspired Translation shows that that shall be another fulfilment of the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet. For these reasons I have placed the one week cut off from the 70 at the end of the present age or latter day work of the Messiah. But I shall not contend on this question. If Bro. Crawley has a better application of the one week covenant, all right, let us hear what it is. 2. I do not understand Rev. 13:4-7 to teach that the beast who received the "deadly wound" was to continue forty-two months, or 1260 days or years after he was healed, but to embrace the time of the assumption of temporal power about 538 A. D. till the judgment sat, (1798) and they began to take away his dominion and consume it until the end—or until it was all consumed—which took place in 1870 when Victor Emanuel took the last of the Pope's dominion—"The States of the Church." I understood the "judgment" of 1798 was the time that the deadly wound was given. The Pope has now met the offer of reconciliation of the Italian Government, with the Vatican, by this ultimatum—the restoration of these "States of the Church." That, or no reconciliation, and under the pressure (strange as it may seem) of Protestant Germany—Italy may grant the demand. The present Pope has fully restored the power of the Jesuits, and is almost daily assuming a dictatorial spirit, and under pretense of seeking peace—is really intermeddling with the affairs of various nations. In my opinion a restoration of the temporal power of the Pope would be the healing of the deadly wound.

3. I understand the seven heads of the beast to have a two-fold meaning—first, the seven mountains or seven hills on which the city of Rome, the headquarters of the Papacy is built; second, the various forms of government under which Rome had been governed; there were seven of them so writers on prophecy state, five had been, the one is—that is existing at the time John saw the vision, and was yet to arise. Then there is an eighth, but being yet of the seven, it must be one of the seven forms revived. An empire for instance. Napoleon the 1st was crowned King of Rome, and under him France was an Empire; therefore considered by me to be one of the heads. The horns are ten kings, that have no kingdom of their own, but reign a short time by permission of the beast, and could not apply to France, as one of the ten horns. But this is but theory or opinion, and Bro. Crawley may have a more correct view for aught I know.

4. The moral law was truly written on tables of stone at Sinai, but I do not understand that they originated there. The Doctrine and Covenants informs me, that after God had created Adam and Eve, he "gave them commandments, that they should love and serve him, the only living and true God, and he should be the only being whom they should worship." Here is the first and second commandments of the Ten, in principle if not in letter. The command to Adam to not eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, was really a command against covetousness. If there was no law against murder, Cain did not sin. The Lord made the Sabbath at creation, "and God blessed the Seventh day and sanctified it; because that in it, he had rested from all his work, which God created and made." Not because he had delivered Israel out of Egypt, although that was given as an additional reason for the observance of the Sabbath. The reason, or the wherefore is given on Sinai thus, "For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day; wherefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it." And "The works, and the designs, and the purposes of God, can not be frustrated, neither can they come to nought, for God does not walk in crooked paths, neither doth he turn to the right hand, nor to the left, neither doth he vary from that which he hath said; therefore his paths are straight, and his course is one eternal round;" and for that reason He did not, and could not have called the first day of the week "the Sabbath day" in the late revelation. Why can not our wise brethren take the hint, and stop calling the first day of the week "the Sabbath day." If God was a changeable God, and wanted to make a change, how readily he could have done it recently. For one I do not believe that God has ever called the first day of the week the Sabbath in Bible, Book of Mormon, or Doctrine and Covenants; and he certainly has not in the last revelation. He calls it the Lord's day; well and good. So let it be, and let us all call it that and no more, for I shall for one protest against calling it the Sabbath. If objection is made to these remarks—please remember that the published remarks of Bro. Crawley demand at least this much of a reply, and I cover his later remarks by it. For one I accept the revelation in good faith, and would merely suggest that all take the hint that the Holy Spirit has given, and avoid giving offence, by misnaming the day. If the Herald will publish a defence of the Lord's day as The Sabbath, they must expect to have that position criticised. But why not do as the Lord says, Let the subject rest.

Now in regard to the moral law—it must be admitted that the principles existed from creation, and if so God would certainly have given expression to them, or clothed them in language, or who would have known them? But where is the difference between the principle Thou shalt not kill, and the commandment Thou shalt not kill? One is a law or principle, and the other is a commandment. If Paul does call it the "ministration of death," yet he says it "was glorious," and he does not say that the law was done away, but the "glory" of it, and then tells how it was done away; simply "by reason of the glory that excelleth." I can illustrate the point nicely by the sun and the moon. We often see the moon in day time, when the sun shines, but so much superior is the glory of the sun that the moon is done away, "by reason of the glory (of the sun) that excelleth." But is the moon done away? If there was no "ministration of death," what need of the "ministration of life," or in other words, if we are not "dead in trespasses and in sins" by reason of the law, why are we to be made alive, by baptism, representing our burial and resurrection? Do you see the point?

As to the proposed effort of the National Reform Association to push "the Sunday law," I did not mean to convey the idea that the enforcement of that law would affect us, but the spirit that animates that body would lead them to enact laws against us. Now what is their avowed purpose? This, to have the constitution amended so as to do three things. 1st, To have God acknowledged as the Supreme ruler of the universe. 2d, To have Jesus Christ acknowledged as the head of this government, and its lawgiver. 3d, To place the principles of the Christian religion on a legal basis.

Bro. Crawley is too close a reasoner, and has too logical a mind not to reason out harm to this church if the third proposition is carried out. Suppose one specification alone—this: "The Bible, the only rule of faith and practice." Or another: "Everlasting suffering, the punishment of the wicked."

Who shall decide what the principles of the Christian religion are? Congress would have to call in a council of the D. D's and L. L. D's and Right Revd's, etc., and would they decide in favor of Mormonism, pray you?

It is well that you call the first day of the week "a Sabbath," as taught in Doctrine and Covenants, and not "the Sabbath." But as I understand by the revelation that the Lord does not sanction any further discussion of that question, I think we had better let it alone. I do not believe that God has abrogated the Seventh day Sabbath, or that he will this side the end of time. And I expect to see the time when the church will be commanded to keep the seventh and the first day both, as the early Christians did; and the Americans and Abyssinians for over a thousand years, till forced to give up the seventh day by Mystery Babylon. As to the 17,000,000 Liberals in the United States, I never heard that they were a church before, or any organized body.

"As to the "mark of the beast," I am not sure what it is. If any one does know for a certainty, I would like to know what it is.

In conclusion I wish to say that the object I had in writing on the subject in that paper was to stimulate thought. Nothing dogmatical was asserted. The editors of the Herald, have asked for articles on diversified subjects, and the writer attempted one. But would it not be a good idea for some who are disposed so much to criticise others, to try to give us a few original thoughts? But I suppose it is easier work to tear down another man's house, than it is to build one ourselves.

MAN.

BY ROBERT M. ELVIN.

"AND moreover, I saw under the sun the place of judgment, that wickedness was there; and the place of righteousness, that iniquity was there. I said in my heart, God shall judge the righteous and the wicked; for there is a time there for every purpose and for every work. I said in mine heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts. For that which befall-eth the sons of men befall-eth beasts; even one thing befall-eth them; as the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no pre-eminence above a beast; for all is vanity. All go unto one place; all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again. Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth? Wherefore I perceive that there is nothing better, than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion; for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?"—Eccl. 3: 16-22.

Those who are sceptical or in anywise inoculated with infidelity, never tire or omit an opportunity to fling the above scripture in the face of the professed Christian. It will be no manifestaion of either faith, wisdom or knowledge, that the lover of truth puts this issue aside with a "pugh! There is no 'mare's nest in that.'" But to the reverse, we should be willing to investigate that which may appear to be damaging to revelations of truth affecting man, either in his former relation with God and earth, his present estate or future condition.

The three essential elements necessary to the existence of animal life, are air, food and water. When we contemplate man as an animal, we can not escape the conclusion that he has no pre-eminence over the beast; the constitutional elements composing the corporal body of both man and beast coming from the same great reservoirs. Thus we discover that food of both man and beast in its primitive condition are alike, so also the water drank by both, and likewise the air they breathe.

But there comes a time when man and beast no longer walk as equals; the beast continues on the monotonous plane where first found, while man makes steady and positive advancement. A beast knows no shame, neither does it invent any additional clothing than that which nature furnishes it. But man does not seem to have long remained in nudity. The leaves may have been his first garment, but they were soon displaced by the adoption of the best wearing apparel of the beast, its skin, and this mode of clothing was soon followed by spinning and weaving, until at present we find man clothed in an almost endless variety of goods manufactured from the cotton plant, which has become one of the leading industries of the world. Bradstreet's estimate of the cotton production for 1885 in the United States was 6,474,000 bales, (the average net weight of a bale is 440 pounds) or an annual output of 2,848,560,000 pounds. All the beasts since the morn of creation till the present, did not and could not increase the cotton crop. But man was not satisfied with cotton wares alone, so he went to the field and brought in the flax and hemp, and produced "fine linen;" the sheep gave up its coat of wool, and this was transformed into a multitude of articles for the comfort of man. Even the silk-worm contributes its labor to furnish man a more costly garment.

The carnivorous beast is the same it ever has been; it pounces upon its prey, and while the victim is yet in the agonies of death, its quivering flesh is ravenously devoured. Food is never cooked by the beast; but man at a very early period would take two pieces of wood and rub them together till the friction produced fire, by which he could cook his food, and in this direction the development and achievements have been as wonderful as the advancement in clothing. The herbivorous beast is as dependent upon the source of its food as it ever was, with no prospect of a change. The sweet singer of Israel seems to have obtained the reason of the wide difference between man and beast: "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visit-est him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet. All sheep and oxen, yea, and the beasts of the field; the fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea, and whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas."—Ps. 8: 4-8.

We now scrutinize with increased care the claims set up for this creature; and that our investigation may be full and impartial, the decision arrived at by different schools of philosophy will be offered. Mr. Darwin teaches what is called the "science of evolution," and some of the supposed best minds of our times accept and teach the theory, but the exact stages in the evolution of life from the lowest to the highest condition, are not, however, always clearly stated, and there are links that are somewhat clouded. Mr. Darwin maintains that "not only the various domestic races, but the most distinct genera and orders within the same great class, are all descendants of one common progenitor." Here is taught the development of the higher out of the lower, and it assumes a gradation of orders, and the displacement of the lower in producing the higher. Prof. Huxley, in his statement of Mr. Darwin's opinion, says: "Given the origin of organic matter, supposing its creation to have already taken place, my object is to show in consequence of what laws, or what demonstrable properties of organic matter, and of its environments, such states of organic nature as those with which we are acquainted must have come about."

One of the lame things in all of Mr. Darwin's philosophy is, he fails to account, or to attempt to account for or show how organic matter began to exist. On this point Prof. Dana teaches that "species have not been made out of species by any process of growth or development, for the transition forms do not occur; that the evolution or plan of progress was by successive creations of species, in their full perfection. After every evolution, no imperfect or half-made forms occur; no back step in creation; but a step forward, through new forms, more elevated in general than those of earlier times; that the creation was not in a lineal series form the very lowest upward. The types are wholly independent, and are not connected lineally, either historically or zoologically. The earliest species of a class were often far from the very lowest, although among the inferior. In many cases the original or earliest group was but little inferior to those of later date, and the progress was toward a purer expression of the type. But geology declares, unequivocally, that the new forms were new expressions, under the type idea, by created material forms, and not by forms educed or developed from one another." Bibliotheca Sacra, January and July, 1856.

I here introduce another authority of equal worth with the foregoing. Prof. Agassiz says: "Some have mistaken the action and re-action which exist everywhere between organized beings, and the physical influence under which they live, for a causal or genetic connection, and carried their mistakes so far as to assert that these manifold influences could really extend to the production of these beings; not considering how inadequate such a cause would be, and that even the action of physical agents upon organized beings presupposes the very existence of those beings. The simple fact that there has been a period in the history of our earth, now well known to geologists, when none of these organized beings as yet existed, and when, nevertheless, the material constitution of our globe and the physical forces acting upon it were essentially the same as they are now, shows that these influences are insufficient to call into existence any living being. Nothing is more striking throughout the animal and vegetable kingdoms, than the unity of plan in the structure of the most diversified types. From pole to pole, in every longitude, mammalia, birds, reptiles, and fishes exhibit one and the same plan of structure, involving abstract conceptions of the highest order, far transcending the broadest generalizations of man,—for it is only after the most laborious investigations that man has arrived at an imperfect understanding of this plan; and yet this logical connection, these beautiful harmonies, this infinite diversity in unity, are represented by some as the result of forces exhibiting no trace of intelligence, no power of thinking, no faculty of combination, no knowledge of time and space. If there is anything which places man above all other beings in nature, it is precisely the circumstance that he possesses those noble attributes without which, in their most exalted excellence and perfection, not one of these general traits of relationship so characteristic of the great type of the animal and vegetable kingdoms can be understood or even perceived. How, then, could these relations have been devised without similar powers? If all these relations are almost beyond the reach of the mental powers of man, and if man himself is part and parcel of the whole system, how could this system have been called into existence if there does not exist One Supreme Intelligence as the Author of all things.”—Essay on Classification, Sec. 2 and 4.

The extended and profound erudition of this Christian philosopher commends his deductions to the lovers of truth for one important reason, they are in harmony with and supportive of the Bible teachings concerning man and his sphere among God's handiwork. Moses in the limited account of the introduction of man to this earth, sets forth the creative work and likewise the possibilities that were provided for man. “And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them.”—Gen. 1: 26, 27. Prof. Carl Vogt, in his “Lectures on Man,” most vehemently assails the doctrine of the independent creation of man from all other created things, and he impugns the account written by Moses, and, by citing a few cases of born idiots, attempts to illustrate the evolution theory, that a perfect man through development can come from the ape; and on the reverse, by arresting development a perfect man will approximate the ape, and would have us believe that we are the offspring of the Chimpanzee family, and this by mere accident and not the result of design. Could I believe this theory, I might have more charity for some people than I now possess.

Prof. M. Rochet, in a series of papers, gives Prof. Vogt's articles a caustic handling, and I offer the following discriminating characteristics of man.

1. MAN EXAMINED AS REGARDS FORM.

There is not a single feature in the human face which, examined from an artistic standpoint, does not constitute a character of beauty and nobility foreign to the animal. Man alone has an expressive and intelligent physiognomy. This applies also to the body. The erect stature, the perfection of the hand and of the foot, are characters of the same value. The hand is especially characteristic. Man alone has a true hand; he alone uses this admirable instrument for creating the thousands of industrial and artistic masterpieces.

2. THE INTERNAL, SENSITIVE, OR MORAL MAN.

Man is endowed with a moral sensibility altogether unknown to the rest of organized beings. He loves or believes in things animals have no notion of. He possesses the feeling of the beautiful, the ugly, of wrong and right. He alone is conscious of the morality or immorality of his acts. Man alone has an idea of God, and is attached to him by feeling and intelligence. Man alone of all animated beings forms a complete family. The animal takes life as it finds it, without any way modifying it. Man, on the contrary, takes life according to his will; for all the regions of the globe form part of his domain; and he can in a thousand ways vary the mode of his existence.

3. MAN CONSIDERED AS AN ACTIVE BEING.

Even in satisfying the lowest appetites, man differs from animals. He alone prepares his food by cooking it. Man alone provides himself with clothes to protect himself from the elements. When we treat of industry, instruments, and arms, the difference is enormous. Man possesses another important character, intelligence and speech.

4. MAN CONSIDERED AS AN INTELLIGENT BEING—OR THE FACULTIES OF THE HUMAN MIND.

Animals possess a memory; but in them it is a faculty founded only on wants, personal, utility, without any true notion of the objects; while in man, who by means of language conveys ideas, the facts of memory acquire great value. The animal possesses nothing analogous to the free-will of man. The animal entirely wants imagination, which for man is the charm of life, the consolation and the remedy for his evils.

5. MAN CONSIDERED AS A COLLECTIVE BEING.

The animal constantly loses territory which man gains. The day will arrive when there will be on the surface of the earth only such animals as are useful to man. Animality has no principle of cohesion in its members. Every animal lives only for itself. But men group together and combine their forces, and although individually weak, they acquire an immense power. Man transmits his works and his conquests to his descendants. The animal perishes, and leaves only his skeleton behind.”—Published in the London Anthropological Review, April 1879.

These manly words by Prof. M. Rochet will receive the hearty endorsement of all those who have confidence in the statement God gives of the creation and prerogatives of man. For the benefit of those who take interest in this subject. I give an extract of deep significance:

THE HUMAN BRAIN.

“This is out of all proportion, in point of size, compared with the brains of the highest of the lower animals. The aborigines of Australia have very little more intellect than the gorilla, consequently, if they had the same origin, the brains ought to be about equal. But what is the fact? Dr. J. B. Davis and Dr. Morton give the following very important table, showing the size of the brain in cubic inches: Teutonic race 94 inches, Esquimaux 91 inches, Negro 85 inches, Australian 82 inches, Gorilla 30 inches, Orang-outang 28 inches. The proportions are as follows: civilized man of the highest type, 32; savages, 26; anthropoid apes, 10. So that whilst the difference between the highest civilized man and the lowest savage is only 12 cubic inches, the difference between the lowest race of men and the highest animal next in the scale is 52 cubic inches. This can in no way be accounted for by natural selection. How did this large brain arise in the savage? It shows that he is not in his original condition, but in a state of degeneration. And place him under favorable conditions and he may become intellectual and civilized. But you may send your gorilla to all the Universities in Christendom, and he will be a monkey still. Therein lies the difference between man and any lower animal.

THE FACIAL ANGLE.

Much was formerly said and written about the facial angle, or Camper's lines, as they are usually termed. These consist of a horizontal line drawn through the skull on a level with the external ear, and a vertical one carried over the most prominent part of the forehead. The angle formed is supposed to indicate the degree of cranial development; the larger the angle, the higher the animal, or man, in the scale of being. According to Cuvier and Lawrence, in the horse it measures 23 degrees, in the ram 30 degrees, in the dog 35 degrees, in the orang-outang 56 degrees, in the adult European 85 degrees. In reptiles and fish it is reduced to its minimum.”—Lecture by the Rev. Geo. Sexton, M. A. M. D., L. L. D., Aug. 4th, 1885, before the Chautauquan Society, at Chautauqua, New York. It is hardly necessary to make an argument upon the superior brain of man over that of the highest of the animal creation, and I wish to make only one or two remarks upon the superior cranial development. One horse, as a rule, is considered equal in strength to eight men; and in the cranial degrees, it will be noticed that one man is almost equal to four horses. There may be some exceptions to this rule, and if any horse feels hurt at my illustration, I will take off my hat and beg his pardon.

Now, as it is clear that man's excellence does not consist in his physical strength, we must seek in some other direction for it; and for one I incline to the opinion that it is the part that we call spirit, the mind. The question of the independence of the spirit from the body I will duly consider later on in this article. On the mind I present the subjoined:

"And what shall we say of this mind of man?—its power of reasoning, which grasps the facts of the external world, and the truth of their inner world of consciousness, and weaves them into consecutive chains of ideas, and builds up fabrics of thought that will stand though the physical universe shall fall?—the mind which hides itself within its net-work of nerve and sinew and muscle, like an invisible spider, alive to the least touch or approach from without, quick to seize upon and appropriate as its food whatever comes within its range, throwing out new filaments to bind each floating atom of the real world, and then spinning from its mysterious depths a new world of thought and imagination, ethereal texture and prismatic beauty, itself the living center of the whole? What shall we say of this mind that, from a few arbitrary characters and a few articulate sounds, constructs a language that expresses thought, that stirs emotion, that kindles passions or allays them—language that makes the printed page glow with the fire and beauty of poetry, that makes the air pulsate with the throbs of eloquence?—this mind that from a few arbitrary figures, that you may count upon your fingers, constructs the abstract science of mathematics, by which it weighs the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance; by which it measures the velocity of light and the distance and magnitudes of the stars?—this mind of man that, with unfaltering confidence, determines by mathematical law that the equilibrium of our solar system demands the existence of another planet yet unseen, then points the telescope and finds it where it ought to be?—this mind that takes the wings of the morning and out-travels light; that flies backward to the beginning and forward to the unknown; that counts all time and space its home, and dares look forth upon the infinite? From a few letters of the alphabet Homer made a poem whose rhythm still beats upon the shores of time, while the sea washes a desolate beach where Troy once stood; Plato gave shape to thoughts that live, while Athens is falling to decay; the creations of mind survive, though temples and pyramids perish; and though the heavens should pass away, and the stars be seen no more, the system of mathematical order and beauty that Newton formed from a few abstract lines and numbers, would remain for the admiring contemplation of the mind, over-arching it with a firmament of its own. This mind of man, with its powers of reason, imagination, memory, will,—with its hopes and fears, its joys and loves,—this mind that knows itself, and that dominates all matter and all life without itself,—can it be less than the immediate offspring of God? If man be over nature as a power, is not God more than fate? Is not man himself a proof of the supernatural?"—Man, in Genesis and Geology, pp. 69, 70, by Prof. Joseph P. Thompson, D. D., L. L. D.

Perhaps I have collected sufficient from the scientific writers upon the nature and relationship of man to all else in the amphitheatre mundane.

(To be continued.)

Selections.

THE EARTH AFTER THE MILLENNIUM.

THE predicted Millennial renovation of the earth (see ante p. 5) suggests another and important question, namely: Will this blissful state last forever? or will the Millennial age—after the general judgment—close with the annihilation or collapse of this planet?

Almost every latter-day astronomer, more especially the Darwinian or evolutionist section, regards its future destruction, it may be after long centuries, as inevitable. Thus, for example, an Evolutionist author says that "the philosophy of nature tells us that the aspiring curve of evolution sprang from a material base, and after rising to a certain height, drops to the earth again: that its differential changes will cease after a certain period, and the curve becomes one of devolution: thus the difference between life and death, heat and cold: earth, falls into the dead cold sun, and all energy—including mental and spiritual energy—ceases to be." In this speculation—which may be regarded as the Gospel of despair—the eminent astronomers, Messrs. Lockyer and Proctor, concur: and they even indicate that the sun will itself, after the lapse of ages, become an extinct world so far as respects its light and heat; and as a result our planet will become a dead world.

One of the facts revealed by photographic astronomy respecting the moon, namely, that it apparently consists of extinct volcanoes, is used by these Pessimists as a proof that the earth will ultimately—though it may not be until after millions of years—also becomes either altogether extinct, or so icy as to render animal life an impossibility. But who can possibly tell whether the moon shall forever remain in its present desolation? or whether, with unquenchable internal fires, it is not in the initial stage of preparation as a habitation of some kind of animal life? We know this at least from Revelation, both old and new, that the moon has a notable prophetic future, and such as our Lord said that it would be one of the physical signs of the approaching Second Advent. Thus we learn (Matt. xxiv. 29) "That the sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light." So dense, in fact, will be this darkness of the moon, when the fourth angel sounds his war trumpet, that (Rev. viii. 12), "a third part of the sun will be smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars—so as the third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it and the night likewise."

The prophet Joel also, in addition to the foregoing physical phenomena, indicates that (Joel ii. 31), "the moon shall be turned into blood before the great and terrible day of Jehovah come." The recent discovery of the red prominences in at least the outer ridge or photosphere of the sun—some being forty thousand miles in height—gives a probable clue to the blood hue of the moon in the latter days of this dispensation. The moon will, in fact, become at intervals either a mass of darkness, or in such a state of gaseous combustion from internal fires, that its hue will be that of blood, and so strike terror into an apostate world. For in spite of their defiance of God, when they see (Revelations vi. 12–17) "the sun become black as a sackcloth of hair, and the moon become as blood," they will call upon the mountains and rocks, "Fall on us, and hide us from the face of Him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb, for the great day of His wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?" And if these premonitory physical signs will cause such terror to those who have replaced God by science, and who have chosen Antichrist as their god, we can well understand how much more terrific will be the descent from heaven of our Lord, and His personal presence on the Mount of Olives. Well then might the prophet Malachi ask (iii. 2), "Who may abide the day of His coming? and who shall stand when He appeareth? For He is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap!"

As antagonistic to the theory of the future annihilation of this world, it may be intimated that there is every reason to believe that not one ounce of its matter has ever been, or will be, destroyed. A portion may indeed be changed into gaseous vapor, or assume other forms, but the exact quantity of matter wherewith it was framed has remained untouched. In fact, if there be any difference in its substance, it consists in the increase of its matter, through the meteoric dust which is constantly falling on its surface, and which acts as so much fuel to supply any waste of its substance.

That the earth will not be annihilated, but remain forever the abode of at least human life, was the doctrine of the eminent Hebrew scholar Mendelssohn, as it is of other Jewish Rabbis. He based his conclusion on the statement of Eccles. i. 4: "One generation passes away, and another generation cometh, but the earth abideth forever." But in this he was careful to add, that he did not, like Lucretius and his disciples, believe in the eternity of matter, but only that when once created by the Divine fiat it would never become extinct.

When the earth was first launched into space, not only did the angelic hosts (Job xxxviii. 7) "shout for joy" at its marvellous beauty, but the Creator, as He surveyed his handiwork, "saw that it was good." And though it was after the fall "cursed for man's sake," it was not thereby implied that it would ever become extinct. In fact, it is not too much to infer that, if it were at any period to be destroyed because of man's sin, Satan would have gained a practical victory, for he would have succeeded in annihilating a world which its Author had pronounced to be "very good."

But, happily, we are not left to mere inference or speculation respecting the perpetuity of this earth, for Holy Writ includes many predictions, or rather supplies five reasons for believing that the history of the earth will never terminate by its collapse, however much its present form may change during or after the Millennium. Now, however distinct these five predictions may be, yet there is a Divine unity manifest throughout, for they only present five aspects or relations of the same truth. At the same time, the proofs are so cumulative as to be conclusive as to the indestructibility of the earth at any period of its future history, either before or after the Millennium.

I. There is a distinct statement in Eccl. i. 4, that "The earth abideth forever." This is given as a contrast to the lot of mankind as respects this life, seeing that "one generation passes away, and another generation cometh." To this agrees the prediction of Isaiah relative to the condition of Babylon after its future and final fall prior to the Millennium (Isa. xxxiv. 9-17). "The streams thereof shall be turned into pitch (or asphalt), and the dust thereof into brimstone; and the land thereof shall become burning pitch—it shall not be quenched night nor day; the smoke thereof shall go up for ever."

Three specimen texts will show that the earth has not been made for annihilation even after the Millennium, but the Rev. T. R. Birks, in his 'Outlines of Unfulfilled Prophecy,' has cited above sixty passages from the Old Testament which indicate that the history of this earth will not terminate with that session of the Great White Throne, when the eternal sentence of the impenitent will be publicly declared. Hence we read (Psa. lxxviii. 69), "He built his sanctuary like high palaces, like the earth which he hath established for ever." Again, when speaking of this world, another Psalmist says (Psa. civ. 5), that God so "laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever." Thus, also we read in Psa. xcvi. 10, "The world also shall be established, that it shall not be moved." Now, we cannot conceive of any words which could more clearly and definitely indicate that—whatever may be its pre or post-millennial reconstruction—the earth when once formed was not destined either to be annihilated, or to become unfit for the residence of some kind of animated beings. But of what kind must be gathered from other and analogous passages of Holy Writ.

II. Nor are we left in any doubt as to who will tenant it after the Millennium.

For another reason for believing in the indestructibility of the earth is supplied by God's promise to the saved in all ages. Thus we read in Psa. xxxvii. 9-22, "Those that wait upon Jehovah shall inherit the earth: the meek shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace; for such as shall be blessed of Him shall inherit the earth." This promise was conferred by our Lord, for, in His sermon on the mount, He said (Matt. v. 5): "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." Now, we know from history that this promise has never been as yet realized—nay, that at present all true Christians, in proportion to their faithfulness, are now like the patriarchs (Heb. xi. 13), only "foreigners and pilgrims on the earth." We are, therefore, led to look forward to some future and brighter period, when the promise that they shall "inherit the earth" shall, like all God's promises to his children, be literally fulfilled. For, however deferred these promises may be in execution, we may be sure of this, that (Psa. ix. 18) "the expectation of the poor shall not perish for ever."

That there was no limitation as to time is indicated by Daniel, to whom an angelic messenger said (Dan. vii. 18): "The saints of the high places (margin) shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever."

It is noticeable how this promise is emphasised by the repetition of the words "for ever" no less than thrice. Nor can we doubt that it was in this sense, namely, the perpetuity of his future earthly inheritance, that the exiled Daniel understood the gracious promise (Dan. xii. 13): "Thou shalt rest and stand in thy lot at the end of the days;" or, in other words, at the period when the evil reign of Gentilism shall cease for ever. It is, in fact, in this way only that the Divine promise to Jacob can be literally fulfilled, namely (Gen. xxviii. 13): "The land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed." Now, as he, like the other patriarchs, never entered into his God-given inheritance, it necessarily follows that he will personally inherit it at some future period. The Rev. R. W. Churton, in his 'Comments on the Book of Genesis,' says that "From this promise the Jews inferred the truth of the resurrection. They observed that it is not said 'to give you,' or 'to give your sons,' but to give them the land of Canaan. If, then, the patriarchs while they lived possessed not the land, they must live again to possess it." And thus, they would have (Ps. xxvii. 13) "fainted unless they had believed to see the goodness of Jehovah in the land of the living."

III. Another reason for inferring that the earth will neither collapse nor be annihilated is the regal position promised to the saints of the first resurrection. In that book, which more than any other in the sacred canon, gives an insight into their future viceroyalty over this earth, in the anthem of the four-and-twenty elders—or representatives of the redeemed—we hear them singing (Rev. v. 9-10): "Thou hast redeemed us to God by Thy blood of every kindred and tongue and people and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on—or over—(epi) the earth." But, it may be asked, for how long? or will the reign of the tenants of the new Jerusalem yield up their regal power over this world at some future period through the collapse or annihilation of the earth? Nay; for we learn that (Rev. xiv. 4) "They shall reign for ever and ever."

From the anthem of the (Rev. xiv. 4) "redeemed from among men, the first-fruits of God and the Lamb," we may conclude that this earth will be one of the "many mansions" outside the New Jerusalem, which the Church of the First-born will inherit, and so that it will be at least one of the provinces placed under their regal sway. This position, however, will never be occupied by the multitudes who are saved during the Millennium; for we have every reason to believe that, as the Bride of the Lamb will be complete at the Marriage Supper, they will occupy a unique position, not only during the Millennium, but for ever afterwards. And thus whatever other worlds, if any, may be placed under their government, they will reign over this earth "for ever and ever," and so govern that world whose inhabitants scorned both their lives and their doctrines during the pre-millennial dispensation.

IV. But, if there were still any doubt as to the perpetuity of the earth after the Millennial age, the definite promise to restored and converted Israel would settle the question in the affirmative. The promises given to the Jews that they should live in their God-given inheritance are so numerous that they need not all be cited. But as specimens these three may suffice: Thus, Jeremiah emphatically says (xxxii. 36-40), "The seed of Israel shall not cease from being a nation before me for ever." Even of a portion of the environs of Jerusalem it is intimated that "all the fields unto the brook of Kedron shall be holy unto Jehovah—it shall not be plucked up nor thrown down any more for ever." The prophet Zechariah was instructed to confirm this promise, though more indirectly, for he predicted that (Zech. xiv. 11) "Men shall dwell in it, and there shall be no more utter destruction; but Jerusalem shall be safely inhabited," or, in other words, "be inherited for ever." Again, Isaiah gives a clue to the reason for this prospective glory of Israel, for he says (Isa. lx. 21) "Thy people shall be righteous—they shall inherit the land for ever." And why? Simply in order that God "may be glorified" throughout this part of His dominion for evermore.

V. These predictions will prepare us for another important statement, namely, that when the (Ezek. xliii. 1-7) "Glory of the God of Israel [or Messiah the King] comes from the way of the east," or on Mount Olivet, the Son of Man intimates through Ezekiel that He will "place the soles of His feet" in the rebuilt temple, and there "will dwell in the midst of Israel forever." This pre-report is but a repetition of another and prior intimation (Ezek. xxxvii. 25-

28) "I will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore: My tabernacle shall also be with them; yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people; and the Gentiles shall know that I, Jehovah, do sanctify Israel when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore." Thus will the very place of His shame become resplendent with the glory of Christ for ever! For having, in the days of His flesh (Ps. cx. 7) "drank of the brook in the way," He will, as the predicted recompense, "lift up the head" as King of kings and Lord of lords.

The general opinion that the earth will be annihilated after the Second Advent and general judgment, is erroneously based upon the words of an apostle, namely (2 Pet. iii. 7-13), "The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in which the heavens (or atmospheric regions) shall pass away with a great noise and the elements shall melt with fervent heat; the earth also and the works therein shall be burnt up." But a right interpretation of this will not ignore the analogy employed by Peter to show the extent of this destruction of the earth; for in referring to the Noahic deluge he says that "The world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished." It is thus obvious from this parallel that the earth, either before or after the Millennium, will only "perish" in the same sense that it "perished" at the deluge.

That the earth experienced some alteration at this cataclysm, so great as to warrant the word "perish," there can be no doubt—the very strata of the earth being ruptured, and the beds of seas and rivers being upheaved by the tremendous inundation. Yet the earth, however much altered, and the destruction of the animal or vegetable creation however great, still left its substance intact, and so fitted it for the future habitation of mankind.

Probably a statement of Jeremiah will supply a clue to the extent of this destruction of the earth as it now is. For what he saw in pre-vision, he thus reports (Jer. iv. 23-27): "I beheld the earth, and, lo, it was without form and void; and the heavens, and they had no light. I beheld the mountains, and, lo, they trembled, and all the hills moved lightly. I beheld, and, lo, the fruitful field was a wilderness, and all the cities were broken down at the presence of Jehovah and by His fierce anger—yet hath Jehovah said I will not make a full end." We may, therefore, infer that the destruction of the earth will be only partial, and thus, as in the analogical case of the Noahic deluge, we may conclude that, after its baptism of fire, so much of the earth will remain that the connected prediction of the apostle will be literally fulfilled (v. 13.), "Nevertheless [or in spite of this catastrophe] we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness."

This reference to God's "promise" clearly points to some prediction in the Old Testament, and, as such, well-known, to the scattered Hebrew Christians. There are two such passages in Isaiah. Thus in chapter lxv. 17, 18, God says: "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth: and the former shall not be remembered nor come into mind," so superior will it be in every respect to the earth as it is now, or as it was before it perished. Hence, it is added, "Be ye glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create." So again by Isaiah lxvi. 22, we further learn the perpetuity of the re-constructed earth, for it is written: "the new heavens and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me saith Jehovah." It is doubtless to this radical alteration and improvement of the present world that the beloved exile of Patmos referred, when he said (Rev. xxi. 1), "I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away"—although out of its relics the new earth and its atmosphere will be constructed.

That this earth will undergo a further and still more remarkable change after its baptism by fire, and that after the close of the Millennial age, is further indicated by the Apostle John. For we read that, as one novel feature of the "new earth" (Rev. xxi. 1): "There was no more sea." Now, about two-thirds of its surface is covered by the sea. At present the wide ocean is almost needful to preserve health; but when it is newly constructed and tenanted by the Saints, there will not be any longer any physical need for its existence. Moreover, that harvest of the sea, which now sustains countless millions, will not be needed in the re-constructed earth. For, with their "spiritual bodies," neither the Bride of Christ, nor (Ps. xlv. 14) "the virgins her companions that follow her," will require the physical nourishment which the ocean now affords.

Whether the meteoric dust which constantly falls on the earth will descend in greater volume, or whether those accretions to its soil, which are the work of the coral insect, and by whom islands of the far-off Southern Seas are built and made habitable, will aid in filling up the cavities now filled by the sea, or whether some seismic shock shall aid in this alteration, is not revealed, and it is wisest in this case not to speculate. Suffice it to say that the statement that in the re-constructed earth there will be "no more sea" cometh forth from Jehovah of hosts, who is wonderful in counsel and excellent in working, and who, in spite of scientists, can suspend or change any physical law as he pleases, and when he thinks it fitting.

Mr. P. H. Gosse, in his "mysteries of God," suggests not only that the world will never be annihilated, but that its population will so increase after the Millennium that as it will be unequal to support its inhabitants, they will colonize other planets. I need scarcely say that though this theory is the ingenious speculation of an eminent naturalist, it is without any Scriptural authority. In fact, from what the telescope has revealed of the structure and atmosphere of the planets generally, it is obvious that unless some material alteration occurs in their character, it would be impossible for mankind even to breathe in them.

But two revealed facts seem to negative this theory. Thus the Holy Spirit says

(Ps. cxv. 16): "The heaven, even the heavens, are Jehovah's, but the earth hath He given to the children of men"—thereby implying that this planet, at least, is their only permanent earthly inheritance outside the New Jerusalem.

Again, I should rather infer from the words of the Apostle Paul that the close of the Millennial age will see the end of any increase in the population of this earth. For we read (1 Cor. xv. 28): "When all things shall be subdued under Him (Christ) then shall also the Son himself be subject unto Him that put all things under Him—that God may be all and in all." Then the mediatorial rule of the Son of Man will come to an end, for with the non-creation of any more of the fallen children of Adam there will be no further call for Christ's vicarious redemptive work, or for His intercession on behalf of His blood-bought Church.

There is a marvellous and beautiful fitness in the redemption of this earth, not only from the curse caused by Adamic disobedience, but from its annihilation by "the Son of Man"—the name which our Lord appropriated from Daniel vii. 13 as indicating His future reign over the world as man. For, as the earth was cursed through the sin of one man, so will it be redeemed, regenerated, and preserved in purity and joy for ever by the Divine Man, that second Adam, whose mission was (1 John iii. 8) to "destroy the works of the devil" both in animate and inanimate creation.

With this bright future of this earth we may well be filled with adoration of the Most High, who has thus graciously told us, not only of its ultimate re-creation, but of its perpetuity; and so echo the glorious anthem (Rom. xi. 33:36): "O, the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are His judgments, and His ways past finding out. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been His counselor? For of Him, and through Him, and to Him, are all things—to whom be glory forever. Amen."

REV. E. J. HYTCHE.

IT WILL COME.

REFORM will come. It may be slow; nevertheless, sooner or later, it will be sure to do its perfect work. More still, it will come in a voice that there will be no mistaking in the aroused conscience of an awakened people; in the unequivocal manifestation of the public will; in the alarmed sense of public security; in the stern conviction of the outraged moral sentiment of the nation; in the spirit of that sense of justice and patriotism which always inspires the American mind, and dominates in the genius and spirit of our free institutions. We may have to wait a little, but order will come out of confusion. The ideas for which we contend will take form, and shape public opinion into coherent, intelligent, demonstrative, successful action. Bear in mind that the age is rife with originality, curiosity, and investigation. The range of ideas and plans of amelioration o'erleaps all ordinary barriers, and men strike out in every direction to fathom the intricate and the obtruse. The press furnishes immense facilities for their easy communication with the great public, and through it the world is marching on to freedom and the general illumination of the human mind. Let it come. We are for it, and shall act our humble part in this direction.—Sel.

Conference Minutes.

KENT AND ELGIN.

A conference of the above district was held in the Chatham branch October 8th and 9th, 1887. Arthur Leverton president and R. Coburn clerk. The forenoon was spent in prayer and testimony meeting. Branch reports: Tilbury 23; 1 priest, 6 baptized, 1 died. Lindsley 37; 16 baptized. Zone, no change. Chatham 60; 1 elder, 2 priests, 1 deacon, 21 baptized, 1 ordination. Petrolia no change. Blenheim 36; 3 baptized. Bishop's Agent, R. Coburn, reported: Balance on hand last report $141.92. Received since $47.10. Paid out $156.25. Balance on hand October 7th, 1887, $32.77. The report was examined by J. H. Tyrrell and Charles Badder and found correct. Elders Reports: J. H. Merriam by letter from Stewartville, Mo., had baptized 10; J. A. McIntosh (baptized 22), R. C. Evans, A. Vickery, R. Coburn, N. L. Blakely, A. Leverton (baptized 19), reported. J. H. Lake, president of the mission, reported by letter from Irontdale, Ontario, giving instructions to the officers and members. Priests J. H. Tyrrell (baptized 3), Peter McBrayne, M. Eaton, T. Miller, J. Taylor, and C. W. Sifton reported; also teachers Wm. Lively and S. W. Tomlinson. The committee appointed at last conference to investigate whether Bro. B. Blackemore was a proper representative of the church as an elder, reported that they find he was ordained an elder contrary to the law governing such ordinations, and therefore is not a proper representative of the church as an elder. J. A. McIntosh, J. H. Merriam and A. Leverton committee. The above report was received, adopted, and the committee discharged. R. Coburn, N. L. Blakely and P. McBrayne were appointed a committee to ascertain whether Bro. B. Blackemore's ordination to the office of a priest was according to the law governing such ordinations. Brn. A. Leverton, J. A. McIntosh and J. H. Merriam as a committee appointed at last conference to get the Pomeroy and Leverton correspondence printed in pamphlet form, reported that they had 3000 printed for $28. Resolved that the report be received, adopted, and the committee discharged. Resolved that the president of the district visit the Wellington and Howard branches and see if it would be wise to disorganize them. A. Leverton was sustained as president of the district, and R. Coburn as secretary and Bishop's Agent. A collection was taken up amounting to $6.05, $1.25 for the district clerk, and the balance was given toward paying for the hall in which we held conference. Sunday, October 9th, 9 a. m., prayer and testimony meeting. At 10:15 the sacrament was administered. At 10:30 preaching by J. A. McIntosh, in the afternoon by R. C. Evans, and in the evening by A. Leverton. A vote of thanks was tendered the Chatham Saints for their kindness also to Sr. M. Lively as organizer. Adjourned to meet in the Lindsley branch the second Saturday in June, 1888.

EASTERN MAINE.

Conference was held with the Olive branch, Jonesport, July 23d and 24th, 1887, Elder F. M. Sheehy president, J. S. Walker clerk. Official reports: Elders F. M. Sheehy, S. O. Foss, Josiah D. Steele and J. Benner; Priests U. W. Greene and J. S. Walker; Deacon Clermont H. Hinkley. Branch reports: Mason's Bay 43, 4 baptized. Pleasant View 19. Olive branch, verbally, no change. By vote Elder S. O. Foss was sustained president of the district and J. S. Walker clerk. Resolved that next conference be appointed by the president. Saturday evening preaching by Elder F. M. Sheehy; Sunday forenoon, prayer and testimony meeting; Sunday afternoon, preaching by U. W. Greene; Sunday evening, preaching by F. M. Sheehy.

Miscellaneous.

BORN.

PORTER—At Wilber, Nebraska, September 3d, 1887, to Elder Charles H. and Sr. Nancy E. Porter, a daughter; blessed at the Tent, in Wilber, October 23d, by Elder Robt. M. Elvin, and named Carrie Irene.

BARKDOLL—At Wilber, Nebraska, May 4th, 1887, to Mr. John O. and Sr. Orpha J. Barkdoll, a son, blessed at the house of Levi Anthony, October 25th, 1887, by Elder Robt. M. Elvin, and named George Howard.

MARRIED.

McNAMARA—BRIGGS—At the home of elder E. R. Briggs, at Nebraska City, Nebraska, October 25th, 1887, elder R. M. Elvin officiating, Mr. Charles McNamara, one of the prosperous young business men of the city, to sister E. Gertrude Briggs, the accomplished daughter of Bro. E. R. Briggs. There were about fifty relatives and friends present, who did ample justice to the elegant supper. The gifts were both beautiful and useful. May the peace and blessings of the Father attend this happy couple during their life journey.

DIED.

AHLGREN—At Streator, Illinois, September 24th, 1887, David Oscar, infant son of Bro. James Peter and Christina Ahlgren, aged 1 year, 5 months, and 11 days. Was blessed by Bro. F. M. Cooper, July 31st, 1887; funeral sermon conducted by Bro. A. Tarling.

"This lovely bud, so young and fair,
Called hence by early doom;
Just came to show how sweet a flower,
In paradise would bloom."

WILLIAMS—At Glen Elder, Kansas, August 7th, 1887, Sr. Mary E. Williams, aged 37 years, 11 months, and 7 days. She was baptized and confirmed January 29th, 1884, by A. H. Parsons. She leaves a husband and eight children. She had requested that I should preach the sermon at her funeral. October 16th at eleven a. m. was appointed, when I was greeted with a full house of relatives and friends of the deceased. I spoke from 1 Thess. 4:13, and we was made to feel that God was near. The song service was good; Bro. Andes chorister. The sister was taken with a cough, and passed away in about twenty minutes without a struggle, having always desired that such might be her lot when called to die. In remembrance of the past, present and future,

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
In the grave for thee prepared;
While thy spirit takes its flight
To the paradise of God.
Well we remember the kind greeting
Received when coming to thy door;
And we wait in hope of meeting
Where the Saints will part no more.

CANTRELL—At Noel, McDonald county, Missouri, August 2d, 1887, sister Alvira I. Cantrell, aged 48 years, 11 months, and 19 days. Funeral services were conducted on the 3d by Brn. E. W. Depue and C. M. Fulks, from Ezekiel 37th chapter. Sr. Cantrell was born in Georgia, where she and Bro. Cantrell became members of a Baptist Church with which they remained connected till they heard the gospel as restored preached by some Brighamite elders, and was baptized by them. Soon after this, at much of a sacrifice, they emigrated to near Alamosa, Colorado, and was there required to be re-immersed. In January of 1844 they heard elder W. W. Blair preach, and after that elder J. Caffall, and by the latter both were baptized into the Reorganized Church. She was a devoted wife, a loving mother, and an excellent member of society. She had clear evidences of approaching death, and so informed her family. An affectionate husband, nine children, and many relatives and friends mourn her death.

HOLMES—Near Mission San Jose, California, October 16th, 1887, Sr. Eliza Holmes. She was born at Northampton, Massachusetts, October 6th, 1808; was baptized into the Reorganization January 26th, 1865, by Elder H. G. Whitlock, was ever a consistent member of the church and died firm in the faith. She was buried from the Saints' church in Washington Corners, October 17th. Sermon by Elder Heman C. Smith.

SAVAGE—At her home in Gage county, Nebraska, October 17th, 1887, of pneumonia, sister Susannah Savage, who was 50 years, 8 months, and 28 days of age at the time of death. She was baptized June 4th, 1877, by elder R. C. Elvin; she leaves a husband, three sons and one daughter. Services at the house, and funeral sermon October 23d, at Wilber, in the "Tent" by Elder Robt. M. Elvin, from Acts 23:6; the "Tent" was crowded. A faithful Saint, mother, wife, and member of society has gone to rest.

DUNSDON—At Bartlett, Iowa, September 26th, 1887, of diphtheria, Hester Maria Dunsdon, aged 2 years and 9 months. Funeral services conducted by elder George Kemp; sermon by Henry Kemp.

Short was her stay on earth
With those who loved her dear;
Precious will her memory be
While we are struggling here,
To fit ourselves in God's dear way,
With her to spent eternal day.

JONES—At the residence of his cousin, Mr. B. W. Jones, at Greenfield, Iowa, July 19th, 1887, of consumption, Elias Jones, at one time a member of the Reorganized Church, but of late years estrayed through political and other influences from the faith of his earlier years. He was born in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, April 19th, 1824; came to Illinois in 1842, to Iowa in 1867, settling first at Eldora, and still later at Chariton, where he resided at the time of his death. He was a man of strong impulses and prejudices, impatient of wrong and things he deemed evil, extremely skeptical, but confident of the final triumph of the right. He was a firm friend of the members of the church whom he knew, and always received and entertained them at his table and fire-side. He departed this life at the age of 63 years, 2 months and 20 days. Many of the Saints will remember him while he lived at Paw Paw, Illinois.

EVANS—Edgar, son of Edward R. and Janet Evans, at the home of his parents, Cleveland, Iowa, October 20th, 1887, and was buried October 21st, Elder John Watkins, Sr., officiating. He was born November 23d, 1880, and was aged 9 years, 10 months and 27 days. He was a bright, intelligent child. Shortly after the death of his sister, in August, he was prostrated with fever and lingered until his death. His mind was constantly upon his sister, who by her gentle and loving disposition had won his tender affection. This is the second child lost to them within two months. The parents in their double sorrow have the sympathy of the entire community and the prayers of the Saints.

NOTICES.

Notice is hereby given to one Bro. John Sellers, formerly of Castle Rock, Colorado, and a member of the Rocky Mountain branch, to report himself either in person or by letter to James Kemp, Hutchinson, Colorado, president of the said branch. If he does not report himself, his name will be dropped from the branch record, after due time has been given.

Whereas the Southern California district conference at its session failed to elect a district president, I therefore hereby appoint Elder D. S. Mills to take charge of the district in connection with his missionary work until other arrangements can be made.

HEMAN C. SMITH,
President Pacific Slope Mission.

NOTICE.

Editors of Herald:—In the epistle published in the Herald, reflecting the views of the Twelve and the Bishopric, a statement is made, and put in parenthesis, concerning Bishop's Agents, that "such agents be elders". Now, in order to remove an embarrassment from some agents who are not elders, it is proper to state that neither of the above named quorums holds it to be essential that Bishop's Agents be ordained to the eldership; and there was an understanding had between these two quorums at the Stewartville Conference, to erase that part from the epistle, but by some oversight or neglect it has not been done.

During the Conference of 1887, as per motion

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"We believe that one man should have one wife, and one woman but one husband: except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 756.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 12, 1887.

No. 46.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $3.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Nov. 12, 1887.

We clip from the Des Moines (Iowa) Daily News of October 29th, the following, which explains itself. Of course it is but a mere synopsis of President Smith's address:

"ELDER JOSEPH SMITH EXPLAINS HIS VIEWS ON TEMPERANCE TO A LARGE AUDIENCE.

A large audience assembled at the court house last evening to listen to the temperance doctrines of Joseph Smith of Lamoni, the head of the Mormon church in Iowa and son of the founder of the Church of Latter Day Saints, who was known as Prophet Joseph Smith. W. A. Spurrier was called to the chair and after a prayer by Elder N. M. Baker and a solo by Prof. M. P. Givens, the speaker of the evening was introduced. Mr. Smith is portly and about the average height. His face is long, but strong and partially concealed by a snow white full beard. The nose is very prominent, the brown eyes full and kindly; his head is high and narrow, the forehead sloping gently down to a pair of heavy eyebrows. His voice is sharp and penetrating, but its tones are distinct and the delivery slow, easy and full of pauses. He said he came to discuss the question of temperance, not as a partisan or a politician, but as a humble private citizen of Iowa. The question was being agitated when he was a boy and he could remember when it was unsafe for a temperance lecturer to pass through the country. Liquor was used everywhere—on the minister's sideboard, in the field and at the fireside, and those who disliked it and did not think it right were regarded as fanatics. But he had lived to see successive stages of reform, and under the present system the time would come when there would be no demand for liquor and the dram shop would drift out of existence. The evils arising from the liquor traffic were intellectual, moral and financial, and people should take a common sense view of it. Even as a mere member of society a husband owed duty, honor and support to his wife, and he was called upon to see that she did not suffer and was not exposed to the sneers or placed in need of the charities of the world; that she was properly clothed and protected; that their children were not visited with scorn because of the actions or sins of the father. There was something in glorious American citizenship that filled a man with pride, and it was the duty of every citizen to uphold and honor citizenship and protect it from any evil influence. Alcohol had made inroads everywhere, and the man who drank was totally unfit to represent his fellow citizens. They talked of moral suasion at first, and it had been used until public sentiment had been created. The result had been the adoption of laws relating to the question. Law was crystalized public sentiment. When the sentiment was created the law was sure to follow. And now they advocated the reformation of the drunkard. It could not be done, as he had sunk to a platform from which he could not rise of his own volition, and the curse he cherished had spread to his children, thus increasing the evil. Men exclaimed against the law as an infraction of personal liberty. They asked: "Has not a man the right to do as he pleases." Yes, as long as he pleases to do right, (applause), but when he did that which injured or infringed upon the rights of another he overstepped the bounds and came within the range of the law of protection. The liquor traffic had created the reform school, the house of correction, the penitentiary, the asylum and the police service. And who paid for them? Not the saloonkeepers, but the taxpayers, the men with sober brain. John Bright, one of England's best men, said that 70 per cent of the poverty of England was caused by drunkenness. Sir Garnet Woolesey said that 90 per cent of the crime in the English army was due to the same cause. Two-thirds of the crime in St. Louis was traced to the same source; and Senator Morrell in his speech on the tariff question said that 75 per cent of the crime and two-thirds of the poverty of the country were caused by alcohol. If there were no saloons and no drunkenness there would be no crime.

Closing, the speaker made an eloquent plea for the temperance cause, calling upon those who had the interest of their fellow men at heart to aid in the cause.

At the morning session of the Unitarian Conference, held at Hinsdale, Illinois, October 27th as reported in the Chicago Tribune, of that date, it is stated that the Rev. Dr. Thomas said:

The Rev. Dr. Thomas spoke on the "Possible American Church." His address attracted much attention, the auditorium being crowded. Springing from the same source, he said, it was peculiar that there existed so much difference between the Catholic and Episcopal Churches on the one side and the Congregational, both liberal and orthodox, on the other. He asked why it was that a certain few had drawn themselves apart from all others as they had in England, distinguished from all others because they buttoned their collars at the back of the neck. Among this curious shirt-collar class is a sanctified few who claimed to have full control of the holy spirit and who would mete it out in meagre quantities, as a banker pays out his gold. All through our broad Northwest was a liberality of thought and sentiment that made sure of a grand progression. All that they now needed was a creed.

This may or may not be Rev. H. W. Thomas, who was deposed from the ministry of the Methodist Church, and finally expelled therefrom a few years ago; but the theme discussed is like him, although the conclusion seems to be out of joint with the supposed reasons for his being disbarred from the Methodist pulpit, if we rightly comprehend those reasons. Dr. Thomas, while in charge of congregations both at Chicago and Aurora, seemed to have grown restless under the narrowing influence of the creed of the church for which he was acting as a minister, the Methodist Episcopal, and had taught what was taken by his co-religionists to be much too liberal a gospel for that body of ecclesiastics to endorse. They tried him by the creed, by due course of church law, and the verdict interdicted him from preaching for the church of his choice.

A class of men who had been attracted to him because of his liberality of thought, took counsel together, and the "People's church," held service in McVicker's Theatre until a church edifice was erected for their use. Of him a member of the church which expelled him said: "It is a pity that there is not room in our church for so Christlike a man as Dr. Thomas." If this Dr. Thomas is the one who now, as a Unitarian seeks the establishment of a creed, it presents a curious apparent relapse from his former ways of thought. If it is not H. W. Thomas, of Chicago, who is it that in a church of such long standing as the Unitarians, and with a supposed creed, is desirous of remodeling the religion of the fathers of that faith, by formation of a creed. And what sort of a creed will it be, round which might rally those looking for the New Evangel, whose privilege it shall be to re-convert the world. We shall be pleased to see the new departure when it is agreed upon.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Joseph A. Stewart of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, wrote us October 24th:

"Since April Conference I have been laboring in Cecil county, Maryland; and in Chester county, Pennsylvania. Nine have united with the church. In June last, Bro. M. O. Matthews, of York county, Pennsylvania, wrote me to meet him in Nottingham, Pennsylvania, to confirm one he baptized about a year ago, and to preach for them. While I was there three were baptized, an old lady who was baptized by Elisha H. Davis in 1842, was received on her original baptism. I am the first elder she has seen in twenty-eight years. On October 2d four men were baptized, making nine in all."

Bro. Robert Fuller, writing from Brooklyn, Ohio, says:

"I find it impossible to be anything else but a Latter Day Saint in belief, whatever I may be in practice. Yet I find there is a revival in my mind, and a hungering and thirsting after righteousness."

Bro. Fuller sends for the Herald, and we trust it may help him onward in the Christian conflict to perfect victory.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

READ carefully "Persecution and its causes" in this issue. In it will be found the sum of all the charges ever made against the saints in Missouri from 1831 to 1838, even by their persecutors, up to that time. It reminds one of the times of the persecuted Waldenses, Huguenots, Covenanters, Baptists, Quakers, etc.

Bro. E. F. Westervelt of Columbus, Kansas, writes feelingly of his faith and hope, October 25th.

A sister who dares not give her name, writes us that she wishes the prayers of the saints that the Spirit of the Lord will influence her husband to permit her to attend the meetings of the saints and be baptized into Christ, a privilege which she does not now enjoy.

Another sister writes from Moody, Texas, that she is a Saint in faith, although a member of another body. Her husband is a member of the Latter Day Church, and she desires the prayers of the saints.

By letter from Bro. J. W. Gillen dated at St. Louis, Missouri, October 24th, we learn that church interests are improving some in that field, and that three had been added at Cheltenham by baptism. Bro. Gillen is in excellent health and high spirits.

A writer inquires of late: "How is the barley drink made that is spoken of in the Word of Wisdom?" To this we reply, We don't know.

Letter from Bro. M. R. Scott, dated at Wirt, Indiana, states that he and J. G. and J. M. Scott and V. D. Baggerly have been engaged in settling difficulties, and preaching the word in localities adjoining Wirt and Antioch. Brethren Ford and Fewell also assisted them. They met much opposition but feel that the work is in some degree progressing in those regions.

Some one writes us from Texas, probably, but fail to date their letter at any place, and also fail to sign their name to it.

Bro. Gomer T. Griffith is expecting to visit portions of Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, the coming winter, and will preach in the places he will visit, if such shall be in accordance with the feelings of those in charge of the work as missionaries and as local officers. We have written to Bro. Griffiths that we believed his preaching and his visits would be welcome to all, as all feel anxious for the general good of the cause.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

(Continued from page 688).

FOR a few months the spirit of extreme opposition against the Saints seemed to be pretty generally allayed; but in May, 1836, that old mobocratic spirit in Jackson county, Missouri, which drove out in a most cruel way about twelve hundred Latter Day Saints from Independence and vicinity, began to manifest itself in its peculiar way, first by sending forth falsehoods to arouse the fears of the ignorant and unwary and to fire the heart of the masses with sentiments of inhumanity and violence, to be followed by a series of acts born of religious bigotry, political hate, and social intolerance, which to-day are a standing disgrace to the human family, a foul blot upon American history, and a crying reproach upon the Christian pretensions of the nineteenth century. Outrages of the kind we shall hereafter narrate, combined with previous ones we have noted, were the principal means of aggravating and inciting some of the Saints afterwards, when under extreme pressure, to stand in defense of the personal rights of themselves and fellow Saints, to resist evil, and to even retaliate when forced beyond human endurance. But when saying this, we must not be understood as justifying them when they lay aside the excellency of their goodly and exalted profession of Christ and his gospel; for Christ should reign supreme in the hearts and deeds of the Saints irrespective of what persecutors or apostates may do. Christ is "the Captain of our salvation," and his disciples should under all circumstances follow his divine precepts and example, for they subdue and ennoble the human soul, bless and benefit society, and make the patient, enduring follower of Christ superior to all the temptations and persecutions he may have to suffer. Retaliation and revenge are evils condemned by God and right reason, yet they should be measured by the peculiar causes which lead up to them; for sometimes, though not justifiable from the higher planes of life, they are nevertheless greatly palliated by the incitements producing them. All animate nature, from man at its head to the veriest worm that crawls, instinctively defends its personal rights. Hence it is not strange—though unwise, and to be condemned as unchristian—that Latter Day Saints, when goaded by oft repeated insults and injuries of a most grievous character, should, Peter-like, give way to human nature, resist, retaliate, and seek revenge. Wherein the Saints, or any of them, have erred in this direction in the past, let it be noted and shunned and prove an admonition to vigilant carefulness, unyielding self-denial, and a closer walk with Christ.

Here is an extract taken from a Liberty (Missouri) paper, which serves to show what base methods were used in arousing and embittering the citizens of Clay and adjoining counties against the Saints, and leading to their second expulsion from their homes in Missouri:

"INDEPENDENCE, MO., May 3d, 1836.

"Letters from Kirtland, Ohio, have been received here by the last mail from persons of undoubted veracity giving information that the Mormons in that place and its vicinity, to the number of 1500, or 2000 are arming and coming on to the upper Missouri. This information is confirmed by our merchants returning, and other travelers coming from the East, who say that every boat ascending the river contains more or less of them; some twenty, and one as high as two hundred and five. Those who did not show guns openly, had boxes of the size usually made to contain guns. At the last advices from Kirtland all the county offices were filled with Latter Day Saints.—H. C."

Of this a writer in the Messenger and Advocate, the church organ, published at Kirtland, Ohio, has the following to say:

"The whole of the above extract, I pronounce to be a base and wicked fabrication; one that is known to be so by every man that has had any opportunity of viewing for himself the conduct and character of the church of Latter Day Saints in this town. Instead of boats being crowded with passengers to the number of two hundred and five, or even twenty, from this place, within the last year, there has not over twenty persons, in all, gone from Kirtland to Missouri by water, within a twelve month, to my own certain knowledge. The writer's statement in regard to all the offices in this county being filled with Latter Day Saints, is too barefaced to need any comment. Nor should the extract have been noticed at all, but for the purpose of exhibiting to a candid public the means resorted to by the enemies of religious freedom, to injure a people whose only crime, if so they choose to call it, is a desire to enjoy the privileges guaranteed to them by the constitution of the United States, and a willingness that all others should have the same, to the utmost, of whatever persuasion or name, religious or political.

No responsible man has ever yet, to my knowledge, pretended to say that the Latter Day Saints, as a society, have been guilty of any infringement of the laws of their country; or that they have refused to comply with any of the requisitions of the government under which they live. On the contrary, they are admitted, by all men of candor, to be peaceable, upright and honest in their dealings with the world; kind, benevolent and charitable to the poor and distressed in every situation, whether of their own belief or not; molesting none others in their mode of worship; and in fact, in all things doing to others as they would wish to be done by.

Then why all this hue and cry against them? Not only are their characters vilified and slandered by every little two-penny filthy sheet from Maine to Georgia opposed to the rights of conscience, and especially by those (and with sorrow and mortification do I say it) who profess to be followers of the Savior of the world, though their actions bespeak them to be perfect antipodes to every characteristic that should mark the conduct of Christians—but time and again are they perplexed and harassed with suits at law, brought by their enemies on trivial pretences, and often for no cause at all; dragged or driven from their homes at the point of the bayonet; their wives and children cast headlong into the pitiless storm to endure all the privations of hunger and cold, without a shelter, or yet scarcely clothing sufficient to cover them from the insults of an infuriated mob; while their goods are destroyed at sight, or thrown to the four-winds, to be left to the mercy of men as regardless of honor or humane feelings as the mobbers themselves. At other times, members of the society against whose characters not a shadow of suspicion has ever yet been brought, are dragged from their slumbers at the hour of midnight by beings who wear the forms, yet deserving of any other than the appellation of men, and treated in a manner, to think of which would cause the most ruthless savage of the forest to blush.

And all this, too, in our boasted land of liberty; under a government where freedom of conscience, of speech, and of the press, are considered to be among the most exalted privileges enjoyed—and for which our fathers left the shores of Europe, and afterwards freely shed their blood in its maintenance on proud Columbia's soil.

Have the Latter Day Saints infringed any of the provisions of the constitution in the exercise of their religious belief? I say they have not. For the constitution itself says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." From which it must be inferred that the framers of that instrument did not consider themselves clothed with the right to make any regulations in regard to this matter; nor yet of granting such power of the Congress of the nation.

What does the constitution of Ohio say on the subject, (to which, if I recollect right, that of Missouri is nearly similar in regard to religion). It says, "That all men have a natural and inalienable right to worship Almighty God, according to the dictates of conscience; that no human authority can in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience; that no man shall be compelled to attend, erect or support any place of worship, or to maintain any ministry against his consent; and that no preference shall ever be given, by law, to any religious society or mode of worship, and no religious test shall be required as a qualification to any office of trust or profit."—Messenger and Advocate, vol. 2: page 332

These efforts to incite persecution, the manifest offspring of both sectarian and political fears and hates, bore their baleful fruit, and that speedily; for within the next sixty days the following transaction took place and was published in the Far West, a paper printed in Liberty, Clay county, Missouri:

"PUBLIC MEETING.

A respectable number of our fellow citizens met, being previously notified of the same, at the court house, in the town of Liberty, June 27th, 1836.

On motion of Dr. Woodson J. Moss, John Bird was called to the chair.

And, on motion of Col. Wm. T. Wood, John Doherty, appointed Secretary.

The object of the meeting was, by request of the chair, explained in a few appropriate remarks by Col. Wood; when

On motion Col. Wm. T. Wood, a committee of nine was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of this meeting.

Whereupon the following gentlemen were chosen, viz:

John Thornton, Esq., Peter Rogers, Esq., Andrew Robertson, Esq., James T. V. Thompson, Esq., Col. Wm. T. Wood, Dr. Woodson J. Moss, James M. Hughes, Esq., David R. Atchison, Esq., and A. W. Doniphan, Esq., who retired, and in a short time returned and made through their chairman, (Col. John Thornton), the following unanimous report which was read:

It is apparent to every reflecting mind, that a crisis has arrived in this county that requires the deep, cool, dispassionate consideration, and immediate action of every lover of peace, harmony and good order. We can not conceal from ourselves the fact that, at this moment, the clouds of civil war are rolling up their fearful masses and hanging over our devoted county, solemn, dark and terrible. This painful state of things has been produced mainly, by the rapid and increasing emigration of that people commonly called Mormons, during the last few months. It is known to all, that in November, 1833, these people were expelled from their homes in Jackson county, without money, without property, without the means of subsistence for themselves, their wives and their children; and, like Noah's dove, without even a resting place for their feet. They came to our county, thus friendless and penniless, seeking (as they said) but a temporary asylum from the storms of persecution by which they were then buffeted. Their destitute and miserable condition, at that inclement season of the year, excited the deep sympathies of the philanthropic and hospitable citizens of this county; and notwithstanding the thousand reports that were borne on the wings of the wind, charging them with almost every crime known to the laws of our country; yet our feelings of kindness and sympathy for human suffering prevailed over every obstacle, and they were received with friendship and treated with toleration, and often with marks of peculiar kindness. They always declared that they looked not upon this county as their home, but as a temporary asylum, and that whenever a respectable portion of the citizens of this county should request it, they would promptly leave us in peace as they found us. That period has now arrived. Duty to ourselves, to our families, and to the best interests of our county, require at our hands to demand the fulfillment of that pledge. They are charged by those who are opposed to them, with an unfriendly determination to violate that pledge. Their rapid emigration, their large purchases and offers to purchase lands, the remarks of the ignorant and imprudent portion of them, that this country is destined by heaven to be theirs, are received and looked upon by a large portion of this community, as strong and convincing proofs that they intend to make this county their permanent home, the centre and general rendezvous of their people. These are some of the reasons why these people have become objects of the deepest hatred and detestation to many of our citizens. They are Eastern men, whose manners, habits, customs and even dialect, are essentially different from our own; they are non-slave holders, and opposed to slavery; which, in this peculiar period, when abolition has reared its deformed and haggard visage in our land, is well calculated to excite deep and abiding prejudices in any community where slavery is tolerated and practiced. In addition to all this, they are charged, as they have heretofore been, with keeping up a constant communication with the Indian tribes on our frontier, with declaring, even from the pulpit, that the Indians are a part of God's chosen people, and are destined by heaven to inherit this land, in common with themselves. We do not vouch for the correctness of these statements; but whether they are true or false, their effect has been the same in exciting our community. In times of greater tranquility, such ridiculous remarks might well be regarded as the offspring of phrenzied fanaticism. But at this time our defenceless situation on the frontier, the bloody disasters of our fellow citizens in Florida and other parts of the South, all tend to make a portion of our citizens regard such sentiments with horror, if not alarm. These and many other causes have combined to raise a prejudice against them, and a feeling of hostility, that the first spark may, and we deeply fear will ignite into all the horrors and desolations of a civil war; the worst evil that can befall any country. We, therefore, feel it our duty to come forward as mediators, and use every means in our power to prevent the occurrence of so great an evil. As the most efficient means to arrest the evil, we urge on the Mormons to use every means to put an immediate stop to the emigration of their people to this county. We earnestly urge them to seek some other abiding place, where the manners, the habits and customs of the people will be more consonant with their own. For this purpose we would advise them to explore the territory of Wisconsin. This country is peculiarly suited to their condition and their wants. It is almost entirely unsettled; they can there procure large bodies of land together where there are no settlements, and none to interfere with them. It is a territory in which slavery is prohibited, and it is settled entirely with emigrants from the North and East.

The religious tenets of this people are so different from the present churches of the age, that they always have and always will excite deep prejudices against them, in any populous country where they may locate. We therefore, in a spirit of frank and friendly kindness, do advise them to seek a home where they may obtain large and separate bodies of land, and have a community of their own. We further say to them, if they regard their own safety and welfare, if they regard the welfare of their families, their wives and children, they will ponder with deep and solemn reflection on this friendly admonition. If they have one spark of gratitude, they will not willingly plunge a people into civil war who held out to them the friendly hand of assistance in that hour of dark distress when there was few to say, God save them. We can only say to them that, if they still persist in the blind course they have heretofore followed in flooding the county with their people, that we fear and firmly believe that an immediate civil war is the inevitable consequence. We know that there is not one among us who thirsts for the blood of that people. We do not contend that we have the least right, under the constitution and laws of the country, to expel them by force. But we would indeed be blind if we did not foresee that the first blow that is struck at this moment of deep excitement, must and will speedily involve every individual in a war bearing ruin, woe, and desolation in its course. It matters but little how, where, or by whom the war may begin, when the work of destruction commences we must all be borne onward by the storm or crushed beneath its fury. In a civil war when our homes is the theatre on which it is fought, there can be no neutrals; let our opinions be what they may, we must fight in self-defence. We want nothing, we ask nothing, we would have nothing from this people. We only ask them, for their own safety, and for ours, to take the least of the two evils. Most of them are destitute of land, have but little property, are late emigrants to this country, without relations, friends, or endearing ties, to bind them to this land at the risk of such imminent peril to them and to us. We request them to leave us when their crops are gathered, their business settled, and they have made every suitable preparation to remove. Those who have forty acres of land, we are willing shall remain until they can dispose of it without loss if it should require years. But we urge, most strongly urge, that emigration cease, and cease immediately, as nothing else can or will allay for a moment the deep excitement that is now unhappily agitating this community. If the Mormons will comply with these friendly requisitions, we will use every exertion among our own citizens, to arrest this evil before it is forever too late; but if they are disregarded, we can promise neither them or ourselves a long continuation of the blessings of peace and harmony.

1st. Therefore, be it resolved by this meeting, that they view, with feelings of the deepest regret, the present unhappy situation of our country.

2d. That it is the fixed and settled conviction of this meeting, that unless the people commonly called Mormons will agree to stop immediately the emigration of their people to this county, and take measures to remove themselves from it, a civil war is inevitable.

3d. That a committee of ten be appointed, to make known to the leaders of that people the views of this meeting, and to urge upon them the propriety of acceding to these propositions.

4th. That said committee consist of Andrew Robertson, Michael Arthur, Littleberry Sublet, John Baxter, Jas. M. Hughes, W. J. Moss, John Bird, Peter Rogers, W. T. Wood and J. T. V. Thompson, who shall meet on to-morrow at the house of Mr. Cowen and confer with the Mormons and report to this meeting as soon thereafter as convenient the reply of the Mormons to these requisitions.

5th. That if the Mormons agree to these propositions we will use every means in our power to allay the excitement among our own citizens and to get them to await the result of these things.

6th. That it is the opinion of this meeting that the recent emigrants among the Mormons should take measures to leave this county immediately, as they have no crops on hand and nothing to lose by continuing their journey to some more friendly land.

On motion of Col. Wm. T. Wood, the Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Be it resolved that this meeting adjourn until Saturday next.

JOHN BIRD, Chair.

JOHN F. DOHERTY, Sec."

Messenger and Advocate, vol. 2, p. 353.

To those who are actuated by the refining influences of the religion of Christ; to those who recognize and respect the equal, inalienable rights of man; and especially to those who are inspired with love for the just and humane institutions of our great Nation, the reasons set forth in the foregoing document for expelling the Saints from their lands and homes will be read with astonishment; with sadness; and with unmeasured condemnation. The "committee" could offer but one plea in extenuation for their course, and that was, that "the clouds of civil war are rolling up their fearful masses and hanging over our devoted country; solemn, dark and terrible." But who, and what, were the causes of this state of affairs? Were the Saints guilty of crimes against the laws of the land? Had they sought to interfere with or deprive others of their natural or acquired rights? Did they seek to force their religious, social, or political, notions upon the people of Missouri? Were they not American citizens? Had they not equal rights, both inherent and guaranteed, in respect to religion, social customs and political preferences, in common with all other citizens, whether in Missouri or in the other States? Were not the rights of the Saints to be held as sacred under the banner of our Nation as those of other citizens? Who were these Latter Day Saints, and what had they done, that they should be expelled from their homes and the country of their choice? Let the document we have just read answer; for all, and the most, and the worst, that could be said is set forth in it. Not a crime is alleged; not an immorality is cited; not one disorderly act is shown. But the sum of their offending lies in these charges:—(1), "That in November, 1833, these people were expelled from their homes in Jackson county, without property, without the means of subsistence for themselves, their wives and their children;" (2), "they are charged by those who are opposed to them, with an unfriendly determination to violate that pledge"—to leave the county "whenever a respectable portion of the citizens of this county should request it;" (3), "their rapid emigration, their large purchases of and offers to purchase lands;" (4), the remarks of the ignorant and imprudent portion of them, that this country is destined by heaven to be theirs;" (5), the probability "that they intend to make this country their permanent home, the center and general rendezvous of their people;" (6), "they are Eastern men;" (7), their "manners, habits, customs and even dialect, are essentially different from our own;" (8), "they are non-slave holders;" (9), "and opposed to slavery;" (10), "they are charged, as they have heretofore been, with keeping up a constant communication with the Indian tribes of our frontier;" (11), with declaring, even from the pulpit, that the Indians are a part of God's chosen people, and are destined, by heaven, to inherit this land, in common with themselves." But, say they, we do not vouch for the correctness of these statements." And, to this must be added their crowning sin, that "The religious tenets of this people are so different from the present churches of the age, that they always have and always will, excite deep prejudices against them." Shades of the martyrs! In this admission is the key to all the cruel sufferings of the Saints and patriots of all ages! In this admission lies the secret of the reproach, the slander, the ridicule and the violent persecutions heaped upon the Latter Day Saints from the very first, with but very few, if any, exceptions. "The religious tenets of this people are so different from the present churches!"

These things read like the horrid suggestions of a bewildering nightmare, or a section from the history of the blind, mad persecutions of the early Christians and the Reformers. Let it be borne in mind, that in the foregoing document there was set forth the grounds, and all the grounds, upon which many thousand American citizens were driven from their homes and country. This transaction stands without a parallel in the history of our Nation, except when many of these same parties and others from adjoining counties in Missouri undertook by statecraft, by priestcraft, by falsehood, by threats, and by armed violence, to drive out the free-state people from Kansas and fasten upon that fair land the withering curse of human slavery. The motives and the spirit that governed in both of these cases were largely alike; and in the Kansas war, and the Rebellion, the United States reaped what was sown in the persecutions of the Saints from 1833 to 1838 and later—sown, too, to a large degree, by the men, and their children, who persecuted the Saints, as history proves.

As we proceed further with our subject we shall find that Generals Atchison and Doniphan proved themselves the friends of the Saints, utterly repudiated the course of the mobbers, and testified to the good deportment of the Saints in Missouri up to 1838-9, at least. And it is also known that many others of the mobbers and their friends and abettors afterward bitterly regretted, and do now regret, any connection with, or endorsement and aid they gave toward the persecutions of the Saints. Of these matters, more hereafter.

WALPOLE ON MODERN CHRISTIANITY.

THE Rev. E. Walpole Warren, the celebrated preacher, and the new pastor of Holy Trinity Church, New York, said to "a big crowd" in a late Sunday sermon; "Does any one here dare to tell me that the Christianity of the nineteenth century is the Christianity that Christ taught? Does any one dare to say that this religion of New York is what Christ wants?"

Well, No;—that is, if they understand and believe the Bible. For the Christianity of Christ as set forth in that book, in respect to moral conduct, spiritual light and power, promises, ordinances and organization, finds nothing like it among the churches of to-day, either in or out of New York, except with the lowly Latter Day Saints. These have been striving for the past fifty-seven years to get the people to see both the lack, and the need, of original Christianity in these times. But when they have taught the original gospel restored by the angel, and also taught that the so-called Christianity of the past fifteen hundred years came far short of that taught by Christ and his apostles, they have been met with denial and persecution, and the cry has gone up from pulpit, press and platform, "False prophets!" "Wolves in sheep's clothing!" "Beware of deceivers!" And so a fair and proper hearing has been denied them by the very persons who most need enlightenment on the subject of Christianity, till now the truth is being forced from the lips of influential men in the pulpit, the pen of the journalist is blazoning it abroad, and the very walls and towers of "mystery Babylon" and her "daughters" are trembling to their certain downfall. "God governs among the nations."

WE clip the following from The American, published in Washington, D. C., and suggest that no one can appreciate the great truth that God governed those engaged in founding and defending our glorious nation, to a greater degree than intelligent Latter Day Saints; for they are informed both in the Book of Mormon and Book of Covenants that God inspired the discoverer of America, and also the founders and defenders of our nation. We are glad to see attention called to this important matter.

OUT OF DARKNESS.

IN his principal speech at the Philadelphia Centennial, President Cleveland touched upon a chapter of the history of our Constitution, which should never be forgotten. To illustrate the difficulties under which the framers of the Constitution labored, he quoted Benjamin Franklin's remarks, as follows:

"The small progress we have made after four or five weeks of close attendance and continued reasonings with each other, our different sentiments on almost every question—several of the last producing as many noes as yeas—is, methinks, a melancholy proof of the imperfection of the human understanding. We indeed seem to feel our want of political wisdom, since we have been running about in search of it. We have gone back to ancient history for models of government, and examined the different forms of those republics which, having been formed with the seeds of their own dissolution, now no longer exist. In this situation of this Assembly, groping, as it were, in the dark to find political truth, and scarce able to distinguish it when presented to us, how has it happened, sir, that we have not heretofore once thought of humbly applying to the Father of Light to illuminate our understandings."

The President then quotes approvingly the following further testimony of Dr. Franklin:

"I have lived for many years, and the longer I live the more convincing proofs I see that God governs in the affairs of men, and if a sparrow can not fall without his notice, is it possible that an empire can raise without his aid? We are told in the sacred writings that except the Lord build a house, they labor in vain that build it. This I firmly believe, and I believe that without his concurring aid, we shall succeed no better in this political building of ours than did the builders of Babel. We shall be divided by our little, partial, local interests, our projects will be concluded, and we ourselves shall become a reproach and by-word down to future ages; and what is worse, mankind may hereafter, from this unfortunate instance, despair of establishing governments by human wisdom, and leave it to chance, war, and conquest."

We are glad Franklin gave utterance to such language, and glad that, after one hundred years of experiment, our Chief Magistrate makes these words a text of approving comment. French infidelity suppressed these noble sentiments in the original constitutional convention, but truth, crushed to earth, has risen again, and our nation is rapidly swinging back to God.

The Pythagorean theory of astronomy slept thirteen hundred years before Copernicus revived it and demonstrated its truth. A hundred years have passed and the Christian doctrine of government under God as the divine ruler has asserted itself, and bids fair to prevail over all secular theories. God speed the day!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—When a person believes, repents and is baptized by proper authority, is he not adopted into the Church or Kingdom of God?

Ans.—Yes.

Q.—Has any presiding officer of a branch any right by law or custom to ask the vote of his branch as to whether an applicant shall be baptized into the church?

A.—It is customary in some branches, but there is no revelation commanding it that we know of.

Q.—In what sense is the mind and will of one man the common consent of a branch?

A.—In none, except the branch has by vote authorized him to act in his stead—and this is likely to be of doubtful propriety in expressing "common consent."

Q.—In what sense is the voice of the majority of a branch the common consent of the whole church?

A.—In none, except that branch constituted the whole church.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"O, friends whose hearts still keep their prime,
Whose bright example warms and cheers,
Ye teach us how to smile at Time,
And set to music all his years!"

ONSLow, Iowa.

Dear Sister Frances:—Although I have not long been in the fold, and therefore feel inexperienced, and am perhaps taking up space that would be filled by some more worthy sister, still I feel impressed to write. I have lately felt very thankful to the Father that we were permitted to hear the word of God explained to us in its clearness and purity, so that to obey his commands seemed the only way for us to do. The light we now enjoy shows us plainly many parts in the bible that before were vague and almost meaningless; I believe the eyes of our understanding have been opened in a measure, and I know that by a faithful and devoted life, and cultivating a submissive spirit to do His will we will be blessed, and blessed abundantly. We are not so situated so as to hear preaching regularly, but we (my husband and myself) meet with brother Johnson's family every two weeks for prayer and testimony meeting; and with the comforting promise that He will be with us, we are made to feel an interest in that day never before experienced.

I for one would be deprived of a great blessing and help if this privilege of meeting together were denied us. Some of our friends are quite interested in this doctrine, and I hope and pray they will see clearly and accept joyfully this gospel of Jesus Christ. Some feel sorry and pity us for being "entrapped," when if they only realized their own situation, they would know where their pity belongs. Our home-life—ah, there is where comes the little tugs and pulls, to try us and tempt us to wander from the path in which the meek and lowly should walk; and our children! how great is the task of governing them properly and keep from that awful habit—scolding; which is like a ditch, the bottom of which is mire, which if we once get in we do not get out without help, and this we must obtain through prayer and steadfastness of purpose from our loving Father. It is my desire to so train my little ones that they will love the truth and shun even the appearance of evil. Realizing that by overcoming our trials we are being purified as gold in a fire, we should not be easily discouraged and let our burdens weigh us down.

Asking remembrance in the prayers of the Saints that we may ever follow our Guide, who will lead us safely home; I will close.

Your sister,

ELLA J. GREEN.

CROSS BEARING.

"Then nestle your hand in your Father's,
And sing if you can, as you go;
Your song may cheer some one behind you,
Whose courage is sinking low."

Dear Sisters:—The following was written as a comforting letter to an afflicted saint, but the thought occurred to offer it to the "Column," in the hope that more than one may be comforted:—

We revere and love the cross of Christ, the lifting up of which still has the magnetic influence to draw all men unto him; it is and ever shall be precious to all his saints; but have we learned that our own cross may become just as precious to us? Jesus said, "Whosoever doth not bear his cross and come after me can not be my disciple." Luke 14:27. It is not the possession of the cross, for all the world have it, but bearing it, after Christ, (i. e., after his example). Now there is a great truth in this test of discipleship which we want to examine. God has power to heal all our infirmities, and we rejoice at the many grand testimonies of those who have faith to be healed; but many poor sufferers seem to think because they can not bear such testimonies that they have not faith. Well, faith is not all that we need. If that is all we have to boast of, and it were great enough to remove mountains, we still might not be his disciple, simply because we are unlike him in anything else. Webster defines the word disciple as "a learner or follower." Jesus said, "Learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart," and adds a promise that when we have so learned we shall find rest to our souls. We want to show how this is fulfilled. Thus; to be his disciple we must bear our cross after his example, learning not only his doctrines, but his characteristics, and follow him in their practice. We find that those characteristics are meekness, humility, love, patience, charity, virtue, knowledge and wisdom. The more we acquire of his character, the more will our faith in him be strengthened not alone in his power to heal, but we shall be able to say, "I can do all things through him that strengthens me." Why? I answer, Because we shall then have become one with Christ, as he was one (in mind) with the Father, we in him, and he in God, the unity for which he prayed just before his arrest and crucifixion. But the poor weak humanity in us, as well as in Christ, finds it harder to bear the cross than to exercise faith for its removal; like him we take it up with tears, groans and supplications; but it was needful to be taken up by him as our example, by us it is needful that we may enter into his rest. He learned obedience by the things which he suffered. So must we, though we know that our Father is able to send more than twelve legions of angels to our relief in answer to prayer. But should he bid the cup pass from us, the more glorious results of bearing the cross would not be attained. You will say then that we ought not to seek relief in any case. Bear in mind that Christ was without sin, and he was not compelled to bear his cross for his own sake but for our sake; but ours we must bear for our own sake, and each for himself. It is because of our weak humanity that our Father's pitying love lifts it from us at times, lest we be swallowed up with overmuch sorrow; and forgives the fault. We find this mentioned as a rule for our own proceeding towards one another in the case of a weak brother; see 2 Cor. 2:7. Give thanks and glorify God when in his mercy he exercises his power in our healing; and ask in faith, for we do not know when it shall please him to have compassion on our infirmities; but when to all our beseeching, his answer to us, as to Paul, is, "My grace is sufficient for thee," then let us cheerfully bear it; and, if we would be his disciple, search ourselves to see which of the other graces need strengthening more than faith. Paul's faith was all right, but he tells us that he was in danger from pride; he must learn humility. Is there any of us to whom the Lord can not say, "One thing thou lackest?" But there came a time when Paul could say, "I take pleasure in infirmities." The thorn in the flesh could no more afflict him. There can be no suffering in that which gives us pleasure. He had learned the secret of bearing the cross, and in learning it he had gained a victory over his infirmity greater than any faith cure. His soul had found the rest of the Lord; it had yielded the peacable fruits of righteousness. How precious our cross if it lift us to Christ.

Ye suffering saints your witness bear,
That all the world may know,
The cross we pilgrims joy to wear
Doth lighten all our woe.

Yours in faith and the peace of the Lord.

LAMONI, IOWA.

ELEANOR.

ELMIRA, Kansas, Oct. 4th.

Sister Frances, and Sisters of the Home Column: While reading your many excellent letters from time to time, my heart has been made to rejoice and I have felt it my duty to help on the good work by bearing my testimony to it. I have been a member of the church for seven years. I have had many testimonies of its truth and I desire to live as becometh a Saint of God. I have had many trials since my husband has been preaching this gospel, in being deprived of his society at home. Being alone, without any little ones around me for company, yet knowing the company they would be for me now, having lost two little girls before I came into the church. I now miss them so much. I have been travelling since July, with my husband, in western Kansas, where we met with some noble Saints, and in some places great interest manifested. On leaving our district conference grounds we had to ride almost all day in the rain to get to the station in order to take the train early next morning. When seated at the supper table, in stepped Bro. Payne, who had followed us, bringing his brother-in-law and wife, who wanted to be baptized that night. It was then growing dark and still raining, but we were soon gathered at the river-side, where my husband buried them in the waters of baptism, and Bro. Caffall assisted in the confirmation, on the river-bank, and they went their way rejoicing. There were two who give in their names for baptism here last night, and others are near the kingdom. Your sister in Christ,

MATTIE PARSONS.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Oct. 15th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—I have often thought that I would like to add one word to the "Home Column." I will be seventy-two years old next April, and I have been in the church about thirty years. I have never regretted the day that I made the start to serve my God. He has been good and kind to me in many ways, for which I thank him.

We have just had a visit from Bro. Foss, and he gave us such good advice; I will never forget it. May the Lord bless him is my prayer. We have a very good Sabbath School here, and it makes my heart rejoice to hear the children sing the songs of praise to him who is ever watching over them, if they are true and faithful—which I hope, dear children, you will be, and all come into the fold of Christ soon.

One word to the mothers. You should be very careful and set good examples before your children, for we will have to give an account for the examples that we set before the young, and my prayer is for all of the Saints, and I ask an interest in the prayers of all Saints, that I may prove faithful, that when Christ comes to make up his jewels, he may find me among the faithful; and that we may all meet in the sweet by and by, is the prayer of your sister,

ELIZA SLOCUM.

WHEELER'S GROVE, IOWA, Oct. 12th.

Sister Frances:—Another birthday, for which I send an offering for myself and my little daughters; they saved their mites to this end. How little it seems, but when I realize if all would thus send their mites, how far the gospel could be sent to those who have not the blessed privilege of hearing God's word as we do! Oh, that the saints would awake to their duty of paying tithing! When I look upon our barren fields I can but feel that God will claim his own, whether we are willing or not. What else can it mean? When he says plainly in his word that if we bring in our tithes and offerings he will pour out such a blessing that we will not be able to receive it? I realize that the fault is on our part. We have not kept his law and can not expect a blessing. Of those who bore their testimony at the late Reunion, of keeping the law of tithing, not one but said they had been greatly blessed in so doing; and if it is true of one, why not of another? Surely God verifies his word in every instance.

If I can raise my children to be saints in very deed, I shall think my life well spent. There are many vices in the world to keep them from, and we can not do it without the help of our Father, for we are frail creatures, and so apt to go astray ourselves when we ought to set a good example before our little ones. How thankful must the sister have felt when her boys obeyed the gospel and sought the better way that leads to life eternal! I know there are many mothers in the church whose hearts are aching because their husbands or children are out of the ark of safety. I would say to such, Be prayerful and faithful; surely God will hear the cries of his faithful saints, and in his own good time will grant them the desire of their hearts. When foes speak evil of us, may we be able to stand firm, is the prayer of your sister,

AMANDA WOOD.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Sisters Beloved:—I have read many letters in the Home Column with delight, and I take this opportunity of addressing you for a few moments, as our interest is in the welfare of the people of God; for I can truly say with the poet: "The friends who most cheer me on life's rugged road, Are the friends of my Master, the children of God."

Could we look abroad upon the earth and view the vast population of its extensive cities, with all their grandeur and magnificence, and behold the thousands that, through wickedness have been brought to degradation and shame, how our hearts would swell in gratitude to Him who rules on high, that our lot has been cast among the few who have heard and obeyed the first principles of salvation, and mourn as it were in sackcloth for those who have not sought for a remission of their sins through the atoning blood of the Lamb. Our eyes have been opened to behold the beauty and excellency of the kingdom, set up never more to be thrown down. The world, with all its enchantments, has no charms for the true Saints of God. They care not for the sinful pleasures which canker the soul, nor for the pomp and splendor sometimes displayed in behalf of those who sway the sceptre over nations, but strive in humility to emulate the character of the meek and lowly Savior, who never received such profound reverence and admiration, but received reproaches of a most cruel nature, was despised and rejected, mocked and spit upon, tempted and tried, but with that unsullied love which filled his bosom cried, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do." Such was the spirit that marked His footsteps all through his ministry; but from purity of purpose and nobleness of character he was obligated to rebuke wickedness through sincere love and abhorrence of sin. He said to his disciples: "This is the commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another even as I have loved you." Love is the fulfilling of the law; think of a mother's love and anxious care for the child; how she sorrows when seeing him take wrong and forbidden steps, walking in byways and crooked paths. Then remember him whose love never faileth, who is moved with tender compassion for his children, but feel a righteous indignation for their disobedience. This is the commandment: "Love one another even as I have loved you." Jealously, thou art a viper that creeps in decoys the heart, stealing that love and peace which flows from the fountain of light; planting in its stead distrust, hatred, malice and all manner of bitter surmisings and evil forebodings! Would that each one who has felt thy sting, would cast thee out into utter oblivion, never again permitting thy head to be raised to poison the soul or diminish that high and holy principle called charity, the pure love of God. Charity should be our constant companion—she is one of whom we need never be ashamed, for in beauty she is unparalleled and, like the brilliancy of the sun, imparts warmth to our cold, selfish nature. Angels will then rejoice and watch over us; the enemy will fear and tremble, knowing her power. Praying that our love may increase and that we may be one in spirit, even the Spirit of light.”

I am yours,
C. ACKERLY.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. R. May and children, Independence, . . . . .	1 75
Missouri.
Sr. Minnie Lemburg, Cedar Rapids, Ia. . . . .	1 00
Sr. Sarah Hudson, Columbus, Neb. . . . .	1 00
Burton Lewis, Garfield, Ark. . . . .	2 00
Miss May Lewis, Garfield, Ark. . . . .	2 00
Little Elbert Wicks, Garfield, Ark. . . . .	1 00
Bro. C. F. H. Eagle Grove, Iowa. . . . .	1 00
Sr. Mattie M., Beaver Meadows, Ala. . . . .	35
Sr. G. Walmsby, Dayton, Nev. . . . .	1 07
Sr. Julia Maitland, Tipton, Iowa. . . . .	50
A Friend, Onslow, Iowa. . . . .	25
Sr. Ella Green, Onslow, Iowa. . . . .	50
Sr. E. M. Fifer, Canton, Mo. . . . .	32
Sr. S. Givens, West Union, W. Va. . . . .	25
Sr. E. J. Griffith, Vincennes, Iowa. . . . .	1 00
Sr. Phebe Bigelow, Linden, Col. . . . .	2 00
Sr. Nancy Swan, Xenia, Ill. . . . .	1 00
Sr. S. Weldon, Walnut Creek, Cal. . . . .	50
Sr. Lucy Reams, Sheridan, Iowa. . . . .	50

LAMONT, Iowa, October 28th.

Correspondence.

BROWN CITY, Mich., Oct. 26th.

Dear Herald:—On September the first I left home, in Brown City for a place called Juniata, fifty-five miles on Port Huron and Northwestern railroad. I remained there some twenty-four days, preaching almost every night, and during the time I baptized nine, organized a branch of eighteen members; brother Levi Phelps presiding elder, brother Richard Hartnell priest. Bro. Phelps is a worker in the cause, and I am sorry such men can not be in the field. October 1st I went to Five Lakes, stayed there a few days, baptized one, and preached the funeral sermon of an old sister I baptized last May. She died strong in the faith. By her request I stayed by her bedside the last few days of her life, until she fell asleep in Jesus. On the 18th I returned home to prepare for conference which convened on the 29th. The work is moving along in this part of the vineyard fast; in fact almost every school-house and church door is open for us to preach in. Truly the harvest is great, but the laborers are few. Hope to be able to do more.

Yours in bonds,
J. A. CARPENTER.

REED CITY, Mich., Nov. 3d.

Bro. Joseph:—Our conference is over. We had a good time. There was a large turnout. We had Bro. W. H. Kelley with us, who assisted us very much. Ten more were baptized, and a joyful time was had. Yours very truly,

J. J. CORNISH.

CLINTON, Mo., Oct. 28th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Your two letters to hand in time and the instructions carefully noted. The boys arrested near Osceola for disturbing meetings held by Bro. H. H. Robinson were acquitted. It cost them five dollars apiece for lawyer's fees. The case was a plain one and the evidence against them overwhelming; yet the jury did not convict them. Their attorney told them after their acquittal that they escaped only by the skin of their teeth, and should they be caught in such a scrape again it would cost them not less than seventy dollars apiece. Their attorney intended to make a plea that our church was not recognized by our Government as a body of worshippers. I had the state's attorney well posted and furnished with such papers to offset any such plea. The state's attorney understood his business well and made a telling speech, showing that we have the same rights before the law as did the Methodist or any other body of people. He read the epitome of our faith to the court and said he "would like to see the man that could say anything against that." He also read the Lake county, Ohio, court decision, giving favorable comment, all of which took the wind out of the sails of the other attorney—he weakened. I believe the decision was for the best. Had the boys been convicted, it would have brought retaliation. All have calmed down, and Bro. Curtis and I held a series of meetings at the same place, and two (man and wife) were baptized. Many more interested. The trial being held at the county seat opened a call there and we went to the court house and held two special meetings, removing a world of prejudice.

Oct. 7th, we went to Cedar county, where we held a two days' meeting. It rained considerable during the time, yet the meetings were well attended. I counted forty Saints present at one time, the majority of whom have accepted the work since I have been in this field. Such a glorious meeting for spiritual food I have not attended since I came to Missouri. Saints and sinners wept under the power of God. Tongues, interpretations, and prophecies were wisely used to the edification of the believer. There was such a unity of action that not an evil influence could be felt. Liberty in preaching was grand! On the 11th I went to Cedar Springs, and Bro. Curtis to Union school house. My appointment was of short notice, yet I had a house full. Cedar Springs is in the vicinity of my debate with Elder Price, and people flocked out to hear me. Many have accepted the work that heard the debate. I had the pleasure of baptizing the president of the moderators at that debate, and lately Bro. Curtis baptized his wife. Elder Price is on the tramp and threatens vengeance to Mormonism. We have paved the way in a number of places, and his lectures fail to interest the people. He now has struck a new idea—having had painted for his special purpose and taste, three large canvas, viz., "Jo Smith and his wives," "Jo Smith stealing the 'Manuscript Found' out of an old trunk," "The Endowment house and its scenery." His first lecture with his hobgoblin miniatures is announced for November 1st at the place we held the debate. Can he capture the port there, he thinks other points are an easy prey. We have no fears as long as we can hear the voice of our captain—Christ.

On the 13th I joined Bro. Curtis, and that very night Elder Smith, of some note as a debater, whom the Baptists and Methodists greatly fear, put in an appearance. We had been warned in a dream to look out for breakers. Smith soon learned by the flash of our steel that it took more than a basswood sword to meet our position. He now enters a complaint against the people, and said to me, "They have told enough lies to damn the neighborhood; said that our elders have challenged them from a cat's back up to the skies." And he hung his head and sneaked out! "He used to believe in debates, but of late had come to the conclusion they were wrong!" Well, we didn't challenge anybody for a discussion, but simply held our doctrine to the front, as we felt moved by God's Holy Spirit. We closed at the Union on the 16th, and commenced at Virgil, in the Christian Church, on 17th. We were awarded the house, "provided we let them alone." This we agreed to do, provided the doctrine of the Bible didn't crowd them. We were not long finding out that we had "struck a hornet's nest." This was at the home of Elder Smith, and the camping ground of the Baptist; only five miles from where Crum and Curtis got un-boiled eggs! Crowds grew large, and the interest grand! "I thought I knew the Bible, but I don't know anything about it! It can't be met!" Such was the talk of some. Elder Smith had business (?) outside of town, and couldn't come. Some one sent him a note that he must defend his cause. He came to the front and announced a "protracted meeting" a month ahead, and promised to have J. W. Randall, or Blalock there. We held the fort for four evenings, when we had to go back to Cedar Springs, and on to Taberville for Saturday and Sunday. We could feel the air impregnated with an evil power, bent on mischief the last night. We had been going to meeting in a wagon which had been "spotted" by the enemy. The last night we changed off, Bro. Curtis going in a spring wagon and I in covered buggy. On the way from church—probably a mile—the old ministerial wagon got pelted with rocks while Curtis and I went "scot free." The wagon was well filled with men, women and children. One little boy was the only one hit, and he was not hurt. There were considerable fears of the team running, but all passed off without any material damage. The last night, just as I was to go in to the pulpit, Smith sent me word to make a challenge from the stand and he and Elder J. J. Glover of Montevall would arrange to meet it. I announced the fact to the congregation and told them to inform the gentlemen if they were anxious for a debate, let them come like men and see us; that I was not there to make public challenges to men that did not possess brass enough in their face nor had the necessary backbone to come up like men to meet the music; that we did not court discussion, but held ourselves ready to defend our cause when we thought it became necessary.

Bro. Curtis went to the Blue Ridge school-house, and I commence at the Center the 29th inst., in St. Clair county. I visited Shobe, in Bates county, August 6th, and held a few meetings. Found about fifteen who belonged to the church, but considered themselves as "scattered Saints." I left appointments and Brn. Robinson and Curtis filled them. They baptized six and report that to be a good field. It will be visited by Bro. Curtis and myself early in November.

Bro. Lambert has sent Bro. Robinson to the St. Louis district where he will labor during the winter. I hope our loss will be their gain. Missouri is now a special field, but there is not an inch of ground to be gained without great opposition.

When I was arranging to move to Clinton I saw an arsenal, in Clinton, containing a scythe, large hoe, sword, and a few other articles for war and work. I was told these were for my use and not to be touched until I was ready to use them. I looked and a large field opened before me, but the grain was green. After I moved here I had the same vision repeated, only much of the grain was ripening. I am now realizing the need of being equipped for such a field. While I was in Cedar county I run across W. P. Brown's pamphlets, sent to Bro. Reynolds. I thought for fairness sake I would carefully read them. The Lord blessed me with light, and that evening while addressing the people at Cedar Springs upon the fulness of the gospel as presented to the world by the Reorganized Church, the Spirit of God came in like a flood and witnessed to the calling of the Elders, and to the final triumph of their work in the Reorganization. Many Saints could bear witness that God blessed us for the occasion above measure. I went to my place of stopping and dreamed the following: I was with a large concourse of Saints on an immense platform which was the property of the Reorganized Church. I saw W. P. Brown there, and presently he got off hurriedly, going to the south. My attention was drawn to his work and went to see what he was doing. I found him hard at work, in a side building (one of our branches), and when I entered it he seemed flustered and flew into a passion. He had some kind of a vat built up in the corner of the building which was full and running over with filth which created such a stench that it was almost impossible to stay in the building. He was dressed in rags, was bare headed, his hair stuck up on end like a wild man's and he had a spade in his hand which was besmeared with the filth. I told him to get out of there; and he came at me trying to throw some of the filth on to my clothing, which he had succeeded in doing to some others that stood around. I had some kind of vehicle at hand which I used in my labor, and it had standards in it which were to be used for my protection. I told him if he came near me I would use one of them on him. I noticed he had attempted to besmear one of the standards with his filth. I was forced to jerk one of the standards from its socket to defend myself from his attack. He saw that he could do nothing with me and at once ran from the building, and in a moment I looked and saw him far in the west with a four-tined fork, the tines twisted and bent, the handle about one-half broke off. He was throwing in to winrows some old dried up crab grass which he had previously cut. He was working with all his might, bare headed, and looked dirty and haggard. I said to those around me, "Look! that man acts like a crazy man; and I would not be surprised if he would be sent to the asylum before a year." I really pitied the man, and felt sorry that he had thrown himself away. "Touch not the unclean thing!" is the voice of the Spirit.

O, how thankful I am that I have been called to represent such a noble work as we are in! I did want to give some of the testimonies of the young saints in Cedar and Vernon counties in reference to the work now presided over by the present Joseph Smith. Visions, dreams and prophecies all bear witness that God is with the Reorganization.

Brother Curtis and I both can say that we never enjoyed such power and liberty of God's Spirit in presenting our claims as we have had in the last two months. God be praised!

The work done by Brn. Crum, Curtis and Robinson speaks in praise of these brethren. Other brethren of the district labor when and where they can, and mostly under their own directions. Bro. Crum has been at home for some time, but we hope to see him out soon again. Bro. Curtis has come to the front as one of our best and wisest laborers—spiritual and of good report among the brethren. We have a vast field before us, and almost in every neighborhood we find one of the old abettors against the saints of bygone days. The work is prospering, and nearly every one that embraces it receives a testimony at once. Thus we are confirmed in the work and feel encouraged to try to overcome all the bad, saving ourselves and others from influences of sin. Thus may we labor and work.

Yours,

I. N. WHITE.

OLIVET, Dakota, Oct. 22d.

Dear Herald:—After our last letter we continued all the week at Mondamin, baptizing one—Mrs. Dr. Miller. The next week we held forth at Beaman school-house in Bro. J. Gunsolley's neighborhood, where a splendid interest was manifested. This place should be thoroughly worked. From here we went to Persia, stopping at Council Bluffs to hear Bro. Forscutt's grand effort in answer to the Rev. Lamb. At Persia we found the interest fair and expect to see some take hold the work there.

On Saturday we left for the Reunion, and to say that we enjoyed it would be putting it mildly. Staying till the close, we came directly home, where we enjoyed the society of relatives and friends for a day and a half and then away to attend some business at the county seat; thence to view the wonderful "Corn Palace," the marvel of the season; thence to Little Sioux where, at the request of Bro. J. F. McDowell, their worthy president, we spoke three times; now to our home again making flying visits to relatives and friends, preaching in the branch on Sunday, and next morning on our way to this territory, stopping the first night with Bro. Townsend of Sioux City. Next morning we were on our way, and after some four hours' ride behind the "Iron horse," having traversed the counties of Union, Clay, Yankton and Bon Homme, we arrived at Scotland, and leaving our grips with the station agent, we go on foot in search of Bro. John Patten. Having a misunderstanding, we were delayed at Scotland till so late that we were only enabled to get some five miles out when night came on, and we were compelled to stop with a family of Russians.

We could not help wondering while here, if some who think the elders have such an easy time of it, would have been willing to exchange places with us. Next day after six miles' travel we found Br. Patten, where we are at present writing, and have an appointment out for to-morrow. Yesterday we were out visiting and handing out tracts, and found one old man who knew all about "Joe Smith and the Mormons!" Knew about his walking on the water at Westfield, N. Y., where some wicked boys sawed the plank and Joseph came near drowning. Having our note book handy we interrogated him as follows: "Where were you living at the time?" "In Pennsylvania." "Did you see it?" "No; my cousin told me." "What year did it occur in?" "Can't tell." "Was it before the Saints came to Kirtland?" "Yes." "Did you ever know other than what you heard?" "No." "Did you ever live near them?" "Six or seven miles." He now began to think it time to go to work, but after we had put away pencil and book, he forgot about his work and entertained us at quite a length about his religion.

We have been reading the "Golden Bible," and felt sorry to see the ignorance of the author in the thought that an unlearned mind could more readily except an idea clothed in rhetoric, than if it were dressed in simple language, though there be many more words used.

We find it is yet some seventy miles to the destination of Bro. Smith's request, and whether we shall be able to push on, only time can reveal. To any that may desire to drop a line of encouragement to "the boy" in these far off lands, our permanent address is Moorhead, Iowa. Praying for Zion's weal and progress I am,

In bonds,

J. W. WIGHT.

VIOLA, Iowa, Oct. 31st.

Bro. Joseph:—Since my last to you I have been made glad by the obedience of two more of earth's nobility unto the celestial law, under my hands, a Mrs. Sutton, and her son. He is a promising young man aged about twenty. The mother was for eighteen years an Adventist. At my first discourse in her hearing she came to me eagerly saying: "Oh, how good it is to hear such words." My subject was "The Kingdom of God;" text, "Seek ye first," &c. When her friends and relatives found she was interested in our faith, they commenced the usual course of "heroics," draping a lay figure with the "filthy rags" chosen from the clothes-press of their own vile imaginations, essaying to make it pass muster as Joseph the Seer. But they failed. She said to them, "You leave your bibles at home and come to me with stories. Those are poor arguments with which to rebut a 'Thus saith the Lord.'" The son was equally as firm and reasonable, and the enemy passed on discomfited, probably to renew the attack when we are far away to suggest doubts and trouble them. Bro. Roth officiated in confirmation, the Spirit being manifest in prophetic utterances of promise and warning. There is still a bright prospect for further additions in that vicinity. We will strive for the sheaves as they may be given strength. John and I pull well in the harness together.

I look back with a grateful heart to the time when I was "down the hill" and you wrote so kindly and encouragingly to unworthy me that I renewed my covenant, saw myself as I was, the work as it was and is, and in God's fear I humbly girt myself for battle. May "my shield be my bier," my wounds in front, nor faint nor shrink, nor flee the battle's brunt. God bless you, and those who love you, and stand by you for love of the truth.

Yours,

WILL MAITLAND.

KINGSTON, Mo., Oct. 31st.

Bro. Blair:—I am here, and rejoice to find that all that were our friends before Mr. Braden came here are our friends still, not moved one whit, and that the work is in as good shape as before. Clark Braden's efforts prove futile here. Yesterday and last night I preached in the Hall, and it was packed from end to end. Our congregations are larger than ever, and people more friendly, if possible. Come again, Mr. Braden. To-night and to-morrow night, I am to reply to his lectures. I don't think all who desire will be able to get into the Hall. Our flag still floats proudly, thank God.

Yours for truth,
H. C. BRONSON.

DOWLAIS, Wales, Oct. 16th.

Dear Herald:—Please inform the friends of the Welsh Mission that Elder John D. Jones, according to appointment, is now laboring in Wales, visiting the branches, cheering and strengthening the Saints. He also preaches when and wherever he can, in or out doors, no difference with him, and sometimes to large and attentive audiences. We appreciate his labors. He has baptized four. We pray earnestly to God to bless his efforts and make him very prosperous.

THOMAS E. JENKINS.

OXFORD, Idaho, Oct. 29th.

Dear Herald:—It fills my heart with gladness to read the testimonies from the saints in your columns; and with permission I will add one in which the power of God was made manifest in my behalf. During the spring of 1869, in the State of Wisconsin, I was attacked with a severe pain in the head, which started with the rising of the sun, increasing until mid-day, and then ceasing as the sun went down; and by the time the sun had set the pain ceased until the next morning when it would commence before sunrise, getting more intense each day and finally ceasing about two hours at midnight; this increasing seven or eight days, at which time the pain grew lighter each day until it had entirely ceased, making the duration of each attack fourteen or sixteen days. At times it seemed as though death would have been a happy release. And from 1869 until 1886 I was certain to have from one to three attacks of this kind during each year. I tried different kinds of medicine, but to no avail. The physicians told me that it could never be cured; so I had given up all hopes of getting rid of it in this life. And when it once started, there seemed no way of checking it until it had continued the length of time mentioned. Bro. R. J. Anthony held services at Oxford, November 10th, 1886, and I went to hear him, as I had never had a sermon by an elder of the Reorganized Church, and on the 22d received baptism at his hands, and I do say that his example is worthy of imitation, and I ask God to bless his labors in connection with all others who are trying to build up the Master's kingdom.

February 10th, 1886, some others presented themselves for baptism, Bro. Joseph Luff administering the same. The pain in my head had began its work again two or three days previous; so I concluded to not attend the baptism. I told Bro. Luff that I could not go by reason of the distress in my head. But he insisted on my going, so I went. And while at the confirmation it was decided that I should be ordained, and during the ordination Bro. Luff asked God in the name of Jesus Christ to remove the pain. And from that day to this I have been entirely free from the distress which had troubled me so long. I feel to thank Bro. Luff, and give God the glory.

Yours in Bonds,
W. H. HARRIS.

COLDWATER, Mich., Nov. 2d.

Bro. Joseph:—I have been stopping here a few days on my way east from Galien conference, which was a decided success. I leave to-morrow for Jonesville, Hillsdale county, Michigan, to open up the work in a new field. This "breaking the ice" business seems to be my forte. I am holding myself in readiness to go to Sandusky county, Ohio, on call, to be slaughtered by a Campbellite preacher who threatens to eat the elder who puts in an appearance. Well, it is consoling to think that after I am eaten it will be trying to his digestion. All goes well.

B. V. SPRINGER.

WALLSEND, N. S. W., Sep. 30th.

Bro. Joseph, Dear Sir:—We have no word of Bro. T. W. Smith yet, though by letter last mail—six weeks ago—we were expecting him, all the Saints are anxiously expecting him and longingly waiting for him. The misunderstanding in branch government, and tenets of faith, are satisfactorily settled in the Hamilton branch, and with the knowledge learned by suffering it is hoped they will move on harmoniously as Saints should. The Wallsend branch is doing better now than at any time since my arrival in these colonies. Bro. Gregory of Wallsend was seriously hurt in the mine, a lot of coal falling on him, he is getting well. The neighbors think it strange that he should get well so quickly, when another miner not so dangerously injured died soon after, "To some is given faith to be healed," and I suppose this means also to some faith is not given to be healed, at least there are some who do not receive the blessing of health, so readily received by others. Mrs. Burton writes me that Bro. Stewart is suffering much with cancer in the face, two have been taken from his face, one with the lance, the other with poultices. The Saints all sympathize with him, and sorrowing with him would gladly relieve his suffering—some "come up out of great tribulations."

I expect to leave to-morrow for Forster in the ketch Ability, to visit for a few days with the Saints there, then return to this place again. The Saints will miss Bro. Hyde's articles in the Herald, he was one of Emma's favorite writers. He had the pleasing faculty of presenting dogma and tenet in so clear and charitable a manner that none need be offended, and yet never compromised truth or the faith for sentimental liberalism—a great gift surely.

It was a great treat to us to read Bro. Mills' letters of conference, Lamoni and travels. If his body and powers were as strong as his spirit he would wake up the world, and make mountain, valley and plain ring with the glad tidings of the new covenant in Jesus,—one of Israel's mighty men, boiling over with charity and love for the latter day work and its presidents. May he long continue to lift up his voice in proclamation of those principles so dear to him and all Saints.

The Saints here are generally in favor of the Autumn Leaves, and quite a number will take it.

I do not suppose there is any doubt about the need of it, nor of its support, unless the indifference of the Saints increases. I hope it will be well sustained; and believe it will be amply maintained in good wholesome instructive reading matter. Emma writes that she and Addie are well and that the Saints in Victoria are enjoying themselves in the work.

Your brother in Christ,
JOSEPH F. BURTON.

KENSINGTON, Leopold, P. O.,
(near Geelong), Sept. 12th, 1887.

Dear Brother Burton:—I received your kind letter of the 30th ult. with priest's license enclosed. I was very glad to get it. We are still meeting at brother Craig's house, or at Mr. Richardson's every Wednesday evening. We are not many in number, for the Saints only attend. Our meetings, however, are very pleasant, and I believe we are all being strengthened in the inner man.

There is a marked difference in Bro Johnston. The spirit seems to have blessed him considerably. Recently he gave an address in the Wesleyan Sunday School (of which he is superintendent) on "Baptism." He came out clearly and distinctly on the subject, upholding the Saint view of the matter. If he goes on that way I expect they will soon turn him out of the Sunday School. Mrs. and Miss Craig have resigned their positions as organists in the Wesleyan Church. I have resigned my position as a local preacher and member of the Wesleyan Church. I rejoice at all these things, for I trust that they will soon lead to our having services of our own on the Lord's day. I wish we had, for none of the Saints really feel comfortable or at home among the Wesleyans now. Doubtless this is the Lord's way of forcing us to come out from amongst them and be a separate people.

One great difficulty with us is the want of a church or suitable meeting house. Mr. Richardson has been very kind; but there are inconveniences to him and his wife, I am afraid, in our meeting there, and besides, the outside public will not come to a private house, on ordinary occasions, as they would go to a church or other public meeting place. I have been praying, and I have urged upon some of the others to pray that the Master would open up the way so that we could get a church or meeting house of our own. We all beg an interest in your prayers that we may grow spiritually, and that the Lord would answer our prayers for a church.

I have not seen brother and sister Woods since you left. It is too far to walk over to their house, and I have no trap by means of which I could drive. I hear that they still attend the Salvation Army meetings at Geelong. Mr. Richardson and his wife have not yet been immersed. Probably they will be when you come back. I hope so, for I am sure they are missing a blessing. I suppose you have already met your worthy colleague in the work—Bro. Smith. We always remember you in our prayers. I am sure the Saints will be glad to see Bro. Smith and yourself when you can make it convenient to come.

I can not help but think that the Geelong district would make a better headquarters than Hastings. The fields are white unto the harvest round and about Geelong, I firmly believe. Preachers skilled in the word, and full of the Holy Ghost are what are needed. We pray that the Lord in his own good time will open a wide door here. I feel a growing desire for more of the indwelling of the Spirit. My wife and brother are like-minded.

With kindest Christian love to yourself and Bro. Smith, if he be with you, and to all the Saints where you now are,

I remain your brother in Christ,
W. J. TREMBATH.

SIGEL, Michigan, Oct. 25th.

Dear Herald:—I am young in the cause, but the wonderful work for me; he has brought me out of darkness into light, and has placed my feet upon that rock, Christ Jesus. I was a baptist over seven years, and thought I had obeyed all the commands of God until I heard this gospel preached in its fulness. I then knew it was the true gospel, that which Christ and his apostles taught. When I spoke to my folks about joining the church, they told me not to be carried away with every wind of doctrine. I thank God that I have ever heard the true doctrine and obeyed it. It has never carried me away, or led me astray; but it has shown me the way in which I was to go. I was baptized last New Year's day, and about two weeks after I was taken with very severe sickness. Friends sat up with me night after night; some of them asked me if they should send for an elder. I said, no. I did not then have faith to be healed. I became worse, and the thought came to my mind that the Lord could remove all pain and disease from me if I put my trust in him. An elder was sent for; he came and administered to me, and I was raised up from my bed of affliction. I had been doctoring some for three years before that for dyspepsia and other ailments, and it did not cure me. But I have never suffered with dyspepsia since I was administered to, though my health is poorly yet.

Your sister in Christ,
SARAH MORGAN.

ALLISTON, Ont., 1st Nov.

Bro. Joseph:—I thought a few words from Canada might be interesting to many of the Herald readers, and as I am home for a few days getting things fixed for winter to leave my wife as comfortable as I can while out in the field for the next few months, therefore having a little relaxation I avail myself of the opportunity.

I left home the twenty-sixth of last May (after returning from Kirtland Conference), and have been laboring incessantly till October twenty-fifth, in the Kent and Elgin district with good results,—having baptized twenty-two while there. I count the number baptized but a very small showing for the amount of labor, as I preached every night in the week except Saturdays, with the exception of two or three broken weeks. I was assisted by brother Peter McBrayne, a priest, and Bro. Archy McKenzie also helped some, preaching a few times. Bro. Asa Vickery aided me all he could, opening meetings, assisting to confirm, &c. He is afflicted with rheumatism very much, which prevents him going into the field; but he has desired the prayers of the Saints and has been administered to. The Lindsley branch, over which he presides, has been in a very low condition for several years; but the Lord has revived the work there, and when I left all were in unity and good will; and I am told the branch is in better spiritual condition that it has ever been; fourteen were added to the number, and others are halting between opinions.

I preached in Blenheim, Chatham, Lindsley, Pardosville, Baddertown, Tilbury Center, Botney, Camden, and near Charing Cross; during all my labors I was kindly cared for, each one seeming to vie with the other to do all they could in making openings, and caring for me in a hospitable way. I received good aid from Bro. Coburn of Blenheim and Bro. Bacon while preaching at Pardosville. Bro. Richard Coburn is a good man and a faithful minister. Bro. Samuel Bacon would be a useful man in the work if he could only get out, but is prevented by reason of having to care for his little family. Bro. Coburn is also aided by E. Coburn, and peace reigns among the ministers and members of the Blenheim branch.

At Baddertown there are a goodly number of Saints scattered over a few miles, not so far but what they could attend meeting most of the time if proper means were employed to induce them to gather. Elder A. McKenzie lives here. He is one of the most genial and hospitable men in the district, and has a very fine family, where one feels quite at home; but Bro. Archy does not exert himself to keep the branch alive though he and family are all alive to the work. At Tilbury Centre Bro. Walter Corless is the presiding officer, a good man and a credit to society as well as the church; he is assisted by Bro. Henry Atkinson, and their branch is in good working order and has one of the best conducted and best attended Sabbath schools in the Latter Day Saints cause in Canada. At Botany (now called Howard), there are a dozen or more Saints, one of whom is a priest, Bro. McBrayne, but does not hold meeting with the branch. But he is out on every opportunity preaching in other places and is liked as a man, and has been blessed in his ministry. Bro. Peter is rather radical in some concerns of life. He has the advice and influence of an excellent wife, and as she has lately come into the work, will be of good help to strengthen his hands.

At Chatham there has been a good work done during the summer. The branch numbers over sixty, where a little over a year ago there was no branch. Bro. A. Leverton was the principal genius in raising and moving the work here. He is president of the district, and the right man for it, an able man in doctrine, and prudent in all things. I believe he has baptized eighteen between June and September. The district is large; calls for preaching many; laborers few; Saints as a general rule at peace and in harmony. They are beginning to observe the law of tithing, and the agent has no trouble.

The conference held at Chatham was in all points a good one. All were blessed. Bro. Coburn will furnish the minutes in due time giving details. After conference I left for the London Conference as I am to labor in the London district for the next session. This was also a good and profitable conference, held at the Masonville branch, a new branch of sixty members. The work in the London district is onward. Many new converts have been added by the joint labors of Elders J. H. Lake, W. J. Smith and R. C. Evans. There are now three branches waiting time and other considerations to be organized. The demand for preaching is very urgent and widespread in this district, so much so that most of the demands, or calls, will have to be neglected for a long time. I can not now give the exact number baptized in the London district since the June conference, but think about eighty or ninety during the four months, and fifty in the other district during the same time.

Bro. J. H. Merriam was compelled to leave the mission on account of his wife's ill health, for which we feel very sorry, as she was quite a sufferer. Bro. Merriam made a record of ten baptisms, I think, with all the hindrance he had to meet. Although I was poorly most of the summer, I am now feeling very well, and never felt better in the work. I enjoy good liberty, and all else to help. Desire to be remembered by all as I remember all. Yours in bonds,

J. A. MCINTOSH.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Oct. 27th.

Editors Herald:—Please notify the traveling ministry through your columns that I am here, alone so far as I know, and would be pleased to have any passing this way to call on me. I would also be pleased to see, or communicate with any of the faith living in San Luis Obispo county. I can be found at the depot, where I am employed as operator and clerk.

Yours for truth,
D. E. LANDER.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE OTHER SIDE.

WILL you allow me a little space in your columns to reply to some articles appearing in the Kingston Times, of October 14th regarding the Bronson and Braden controversy at Kingston. The articles referred to in their entirety are both misleading and deceptive, and many statements contained in them are entirely false, while the real facts have been knowingly and wilfully withheld from the public. The facts are as follows, as scores of the best people of Kingston can testify: On the 10th of July last, in company with Elder J. T. Kinneman, of Stewartsville, I commenced a series of meetings at Kingston, lasting one week. After I had closed my meeting, Rev. Bedall, of the M. E. Church, on Sunday night July 17th, made an uncalled for and an ungentlemanly attack on a part of our faith. At the close of his remarks I announced that I would remain longer and reply to him the following evening. At the close of my reply, I stated that, as the matter had virtually come to a joint issue between us I would present the following propositions:

1st. Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in harmony with the New Testament Scriptures in doctrine and Church Organization. I would affirm this, if any representative man of good moral standing would deny, providing the one so accepting would affirm that the church he represented was in harmony with New Testament Scriptures in doctrine and church organization.

3d. Is the Book of Mormon of human origin? We to deny.

4th. Is the Book of Mormon an inspired production? We to affirm.

Rev. Bedall refused to accept these propositions except the two last and they to be changed to suit his notion, and then to be discussed in the Kingston papers. I heard nothing more of this until September 18th, when I received a letter from Rev. Bedall, submitting some very cunningly devised propositions something like those in the article referred to. I wrote Rev. Bedall that I would not accept propositions that embraced only side issues and give opportunity to my opponent to throw dirt and filth, for I discovered that such would be the case seeing that the propositions plainly bore the earmarks of Clark Braden. I called Rev. Bedall's attention to the proposition I submitted in public on the 18th of July, and told him that on those propositions we were willing to enter the contest at once, and that I still regarded them as embracing the whole issue fairly and squarely. But subsequent developments showed that all this time Clark Braden was the power behind the throne, and was the tool to do the dirty work for Rev. Bedall and the framer of those very cunning propositions. On the sixth of October I visited Kingston and there found Clark Braden, the would-be Mormon slayer, and the cats paw for Rev. Bedall to pull the chestnuts out of the fire, lecturing on Mormonism as he called it. I attended his lecture on the night of the 6th, notwithstanding Clark Braden had said the night before that I dare not come to Kingston while he was there, and listened to his false statements and bare assertions, and his sweeping challenge to any champion of the Latter Day Saints. At the close of his lecture I asked permission to make a statement. I called the people's attention to the proposition that I had submitted on the 18th of July on which all this talk of discussion is predicated, and read them again and asked Elder Braden if he would accept, and the great Mormon annihilator said he would not. Braden then said the question at issue was, was Joseph Smith a prophet of God? I then to accommodate him offered to substitute for my third proposition the following: Was Joseph Smith a true prophet of God? We to affirm.

I then asked Elder Braden if he would accept them so presented, and to my great surprise after all his gush and bluster and challenging he said he would not. Now I ask every thinking man and woman of Kingston where is the back down, and who has done it? Clark Braden with all his blowing and dirt throwing, and suffering himself to become the dirty tool of Rev. Bedall to blacken the character of the Latter Day Saints if possible, is too cowardly to accept propositions for discussion that are fair and involve the issue squarely, but will only agree to discuss some parts of our faith where he thinks he sees a good opportunity to tear us down by working upon the prejudices of the people. He is too cowardly to defend the claims of his own church, for he well knows it does not harmonize with the Bible either in doctrine or church organization, and yet he has the brazen effrontery to tell the people that his is the Church of Christ.

In conclusion let me say that we are now willing and have been to meet Clark Braden or any one else at Kingston or elsewhere in a joint discussion on the propositions submitted by us on the 18th of July, which involves the vital issues. Now let him come up to the work like a man, or else let him and his howling supporters forever hereafter hold their peace, and let Rev. Bedall make another effort to secure some one who has a little more grit and a little less wind to do the work for him which he dare not undertake to do himself.

H. C. BRONSON.

Kingston (Mo.) Times, Oct. 21, 1887.

M A N .

BY ROBERT M. ELVIN.

[Concluded.]

Now there is one branch of this question hinted at by our last authority, namely, that man is close akin to God, that I wish to investigate, for there is a certain class, and I know not but what they may be found in every church, that profess to believe, that whereas our corporeal bodies are all drawn from one common fund, and at that change we call death the particles constituting our corporeal bodies are, in their disintegration, carried back to the common fund, and likewise contend that the spirit of man is a subtle, unperceivable something that is also held in a common fund, and that when a child is born into the world that, by some process not explained, an unknown quantity of this subtle something is placed within this newcomer, and continues therein until it is freed at the time of death when this subtle something goes back to the common fund from whence it came. This unique doctrine may be quite consoling and comforting to some, but to me the annihilation of our personal identity is tantamount to the complete cancellation of our individual responsibilities. And further, it is a negation of the scriptural instruction on future rewards and punishments. This would rob us of incentives to live a life of sacrifice and righteousness, and likewise remove the fear of punishment for a life of sinfulness and crime. All civilized nations recognize, and provide for, the individual responsibility of their citizens. For the upright, honorable, and trustworthy, there are places of trust and emolument; while for the refractory, incorrigible law-breakers, punishments are provided.

I now submit some scriptural evidence on this important subject: "But there is a spirit in man; and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." Job 32:8. In this the statement is both positive and clear, that in man is "a spirit," and the "a" makes it plain that spirits are separate and distinct one from the other, possessing and individuality as truly as men in mortality. The body in this verse in denominated "man;" and the spirit and the body united is called "them." As this plurality is susceptible of receiving "inspiration" or instruction, we are next concerned to learn more; for "the body without the spirit is dead." James 2:26. Therefore in the absence of the spirit, the inane body would not be in a condition to receive instruction. This conclusion forces upon us the solution of the question, Is the spirit, outside and independent of the body, an intelligent entity and in a condition to receive instruction with its freedom from the body? Or, expressed in other words, is it able to exercise volition before entering the corporeal body, and also subsequent to leaving it? The testimony of Elihu, the prophet, is not in any way weakened by these words of Job: "Thou has clothed me with skin and flesh, and hast fenced (hedged) me with bones and sinews. Thou hast granted me life and favor, and thy visitation hath preserved my spirit." Job 10:11, 12. Here Job asserts his individuality before the creation of his body, and calls that which constitutes the body clothing. The same thought is expressed thus in a transposed mood.—"For we know that if our earthly house (body) of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. If so be that, being clothed, we shall not be found naked. For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life."—2 Cor. 5:1-4. Here is a party in possession of his body and talks of leaving the body as we would talk of leaving a house, and in considering his personality and individuality the corporeal body is not taken into account.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, in his first sermon in 1886, uses this language:—"The theory of a pre-existence—that we each one existed in some other world before coming to this—has been advocated by a few able minds, but it is only a theory, and as consciousness can recall no memories of such an existence it is in the nature of the case an unverifiable hypothesis."

I was a little surprised when I read this weak reason from this able and learned minister. Why should he hesitate to believe and accept the doctrine of our pre-existence, and with no stronger or clearer evidence at his command, promise, in the most positive manner, eternal life to all who accept his teachings. All those who are conversant with the Bible can easily perceive that the hope of life after death, and a crown of glory in the world to come, rests on the same evidence that proves our existence that antedates birth. True that we are unable to call up from memories' hall any of the scenes and acts of our prior life. But who can remember his birth, or the immediate scenes of infantile days? And because of an inability to so remember, is that any proof of our non-existence? Verily no. We look forward to the hour and article of death, and all beyond is blank. Does it, however, indicate our non-existence in the life hereafter? Verily, no. We turn to the revelations of God as the man of our counsel—"In the beginning was the word."—John 1:1. This word was the child born of the virgin Mary. For proof of this we read,—“And the word was made flesh and dwelt among us,” (John 1: 14), thus establishing the fact that the “word” is Christ. What did he do in the beginning? “All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made.”—John 1: 3. Words are inadequate to express the matchless wisdom and almost incomprehensible work of creation, and all was done by Christ our Lord and Savior, while in his pre-existent state. If the Master possessed life, intelligence and creative powers thousands of years before his birth in this world, would it be extravagant to believe that others as well as Christ had a pre-existence? Hear the prayer of Christ, and with meek and holy trust banish every doubt and fear:—“And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.”—John 17: 5. This so directly teaches, and by the Lord personally, his existence and power prior to the creation of the world, that it seems almost a waste of time to attempt further to prove it. Patient reader, please go with me again and we will find one additional pre-existent man.—“Then the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, Before I formed thee in the belly I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out from the womb I sanctified thee, and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations.”—Jer. 1: 4-5. Was ever language more plain? A direct revelation from the Eternal God unto His servant, explaining that before any earthly provisions had been made for a body, God “knew” Jeremiah—not the body that he was to inhabit when he should arrive upon earth. And, more than this, Jeremiah was set apart to be a prophet to the nations, and this by ordination. All this transpired before the birth of the fleshly body.

While Christ the personification of all truth, wisdom and knowledge, was here among men as a teacher, this question was asked him: “Master, who did sin? this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?”—John 9: 2. What a golden opportunity was now presented to the Master Mind of the universe to forever settle the issue of pre-existence which then was placed under immediate consideration by the question presented by the disciples, and which, by the answer made, the free agency, conscious and responsible pre-existence of the blind man before his birth is conceded by Christ! Would he have kept silence had pre-existence been untrue? He could not and been honest with his disciples. The mission of Christ to earth was to make salvation possible unto all men; therefore the following is applicable: “Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil.”—Heb. 3: 14. That those referred to are identical with Christ, the word “likewise” so indicates,—that as he was endowed with understanding, wisdom, knowledge, glory and creative power while in his pre-existent state, so also were these “children” before they were clothed upon with “flesh and blood.” But why multiply evidence and argument upon such a plain and almost self-evident proposition!

Close neighbor to the foregoing is the question of consciousness while the body lies in the grave. There is a school of worshippers that professes to believe that, with the cessation of life the body and spirit are equally in a condition of dormancy. By a careful reading of Ezek. 32: 17-30, it will be seen that all the “uncircumcised”—which is but another name for the wicked—after their destruction by death, are consigned to the “pit,” “hell,” “nether parts of the earth;” and in each statement the place of the body is called “the grave,” while the spirit, or intelligent person, goes either to the “pit,” “hell,” or the “nether parts of the earth.” This last view of the place where the spirits of the departed are, is neither new nor novel. Flavius Josephus so taught in his discourse to the Greeks. I care nothing as to the location of hell, the place of the wicked; but do they realize their situation? Have they a consciousness while in the prison-house? Speaking of that vast throng of the wicked, who “are gone down to hell,” the word tells us that “Pharaoh shall see them, and shall be comforted over all his multitude, even Pharaoh and all his army, slain by the sword, saith the Lord God.”—Ezek. 32: 31. How could “comfort” be given or administered, if these were in an unconscious state? The language of the scripture would be without meaning if they could. But if we consider that these were all wicked and turned into prison, then the following has both light comfort and common sense: “As for thee also, by the blood of the covenant I have sent forth thy prisoners out of the pit wherein is no water. Turn you to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope; even to-day do I declare that I will render double unto thee.”—Zech. 9: 11, 12. Here is the redemptive work of Christ clearly outlined, wherein prisoners in a “pit wherein is no water,” (that is a picture of our orthodox hell), are hopeful of emancipation, and that the covenant of Christ is that by which they shall obtain their liberty. Also: “I, the Lord, have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that sit in darkness out of the prison house.”—Isa. 42: 6. This plan promises “to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound,” and is reaffirmed in Isa. 61: 1.

That God has here given his pledge that, through Christ, those in “prison” shall be freed, there is but little room for dispute. But as to the conscious state of prisoners, and the means of their deliverance, all may not be agreed. But as it was his work, perhaps he understood it full as well as any of the prophets who wrote about it, and better than the many of the present time who are wise above that which is written. Therefore let us hear the irrefragable word of the Lord:—“Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live.”—John 5: 25. This startling announcement blanched the faces and filled the hearts of his audience with awe. The idea of the gospel being preached to the dead, and that through the preaching these dead were to be made alive! And he, perceiving their confusion, overwhelmed them with, “Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice.”—John 5: 28. What would you think of a man so lost to a proper interpretation of this scripture as to tell the people that Christ meant those who were “dead in sin”? or that Jesus went out to some graveyard and preached to the mouldering clay of the departed spirits! No, no; he but reiterated that which had been foretold by Isaiah and Zechariah, and now for the fulfillment of those prophetic promises:—“For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that he might bring us to God; being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the Spirit; by which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison; which sometime were disobedient, when once the long suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing.”—1 Pet. 3: 18-20. No gift of prescience is necessary to discover the meaning of the foregoing scripture. Suppose we reduce Peter’s account to a succinct, tabulated statement, so its full value may be the easier understood and appreciated.

1.—By the “determinate counsel” of God, Christ, the acceptable offering for sin, should make perfect atonement, suffer the ignominious death of the cross, and this was the covenant “by the blood” of and in which the “prisoners” had implicit “hope” that the time of their deliverance had fully arrived.

2.—Not only was this “sin-offering” without “spot,” or “blemish,” but it was sinless and just, pure and holy, and as Christ gave his own body as the sacrifice, he was also the priest who made the offering; and,

3.—This “just one” died for the “unjust;” and to the wicked was granted the means of reconciliation with God; that under the condition of these articles of reconciliation they might obtain the full fruition of salvation, and this not limited as to any particular period or age of the world, for “God is no respecter of persons,” and his love for the race was so great that he “sent his Son into the world, not to condemn the world.” Christ was completely in unison with the purpose and will of his Father: “But God commendeth his love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.”—Rom. 5: 8. Yea, the Lord perished on the tree for wayward, sinful, wicked man!

4.—The object of this atonement was, that Christ by his mission work through the principles of the gospel, “might bring us to God;” and ere he made the offering, he promised thus; “and I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.”—John 12: 32.

5.—It was the body born of the virgin Mary that died upon the cross, and this was most appropriate. This pure and sinless body was offered to purchase the redemption of the sinful body of man.

6.—After this most severe ordeal, the separation of the body and spirit, Christ was "quickened by the Spirit." There be some who are quite sure it was immediately after the death of the body that the Spirit of Christ was quickened by the Holy Spirit; while there are others who hold the opinion that the quickening did not take place until the third day, and that it was the flesh that was revived; but neither of these ideas will make nugatory the statement that Christ was "quickened by the Spirit" as an essential qualification for the work that he was about to accomplish.

7.—The pre-requisite to qualify any one to be a true representative of the government of God, in speaking authoritatively to those who are to be administered unto, either in word or ordinance, is the unction of the Holy Spirit, which has the double office work to perform of bearing "record in heaven," and to "witness in earth," and "by which" Christ was to do his preaching, even as he had from the beginning of his ministry in telling the gladsome news.

8.—The manifest purpose in preaching is to warn of evil, of sin and wrong doing, and to point out to those preached unto the means of grace whereby they can free themselves from that which is inimical to their best interests and happiness and comply with whatever the law imposes as necessary, that they may make their "peace, calling and election sure." And all of this presupposes that those who are preached to, are conscious, intelligent, responsible, and so situated that their condition can be changed and improved; otherwise the preaching to them would only be a jest, a taunt, a farce and an insult.

9.—Peter was particular to use the word "spirits," as meaning the subjects that had a dispensation of the gospel committed unto them by the immediate, direct and personal work of Him who said "the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God." There is no account of Christ ever preaching to living persons a sermon after he went to the cross. It is therefore not strange that in this new work the apostle should be so clear in mentioning the parties to be benefitted. And it was providential that he did so, as there is so much of unbelief, such want of faith with those who profess Christ.

10.—Why should it be thought a thing incredible that the "Son of God" should go to the "prison" to preach deliverance to those held as captives therein? Is not God supreme in the entire arcana of his universe? And did he not give unto his Son "all power," "in heaven and in earth?" (Matt. 28:18). And to make this sure, doubly sure, he says: "All things are delivered unto me of my Father."—Matt. 11:27. And David, in the fulness of his ecstatic delight, makes his "harp of a thousand strings" to sing; "for thou wilt not leave my soul [spirit] in hell."—Ps. 16:10. Some will say this was prophesied of Christ. All right; we will not dispute it; and further, I believe that it was fulfilled to the very letter. But here is one more, and it is a daisy in the wilderness of sin of narrow mindedness and unwillingness to believe all that the prophets and apostles have said: "Whither shall I go from thy Spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, thou art there. If I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there."—Ps. 139:7, 8. "Hell from beneath is moved for thee, to meet thee at thy coming."—Isa. 14:9. These all unite to prove that God's power is not limited, and that his chief minister is Christ.

11.—It is but legitimate that there should be a "prison," into which the spirit of man be put, for the reason that, while here in the free exercise of his probation and agency, he disregarded the means of salvation, and transgressed more or less the divine law. Every violation of law must be punished, and we can not be ignorant of the fact that, under the present state of affairs, not a hundredth part of the sin enacted is atoned during life; therefore, in the very nature of the eternal provisions, a prison—a hell—is made, that mercy shall not rob justice.

The reason given why these "spirits" were in "prison," was, that they were "disobedient;" and that on account of their disobedience they were kept in the "prison house." This clearly establishes a second probation, or a chance of reform after death, a belief in which is now rapidly on the increase.

We now turn and see the consequence to those to whom Christ preached the gospel while they were "prisoners of hope:" "For, for this cause was the gospel preached also [i. e. likewise; in like manner; further. Ed.] to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the spirit."—1 Pet. 4:6. Here seems to be a key furnished by inspiration that reveals the possibility that the spirit out of the body possesses will-power, and may desire to live in harmony with the law of God; and that for their acts while in the spirit life they shall be held accountable and also be judged, even as "men in the flesh" are judged.

The spirit is sensible of its surroundings, having likes and dislikes, the power to decide between pain and pleasure, to reason from cause to effect, and is not only conscious of its immediate surroundings, but also the things of earth-life are remembered:

"There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day: and there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores, and desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover the dogs came and licked his sores. And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried; and in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame. But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in the lifetime receiv-est thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented. And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed; so that they which would pass from hence to you can not; neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence. Then he said, I pray thee therefore, father, that thou wouldest send him to my father's house: for I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them. And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent. And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead."—Luke 16:19-31.

Some people think and teach that the forgoing account is parabolic; but that is not only a grievous blunder, but an unwarrantable assertion, and it also causes many to stumble and make shipwreck of their faith in gospel truth. Christ never taught, or used an illustration, with a view to perplex or mystify, but always to reflect light and make the subject in hand more plain. As there is not a single particle of evidence to prove that the account of the rich man and the sore-covered beggar was an imagery; and as it is not contrary to any known truth of the Bible, nor yet of science, we should accept the recital made by Christ as a real truth from the actual events of life, and that that which befell these two men may also become the experience of others; that in this present life and in the world of spirits we shall never be deprived of the power to act and think. This is the crowning glory of man; that it is, his inalienable right to do as he shall elect; that in the choice of that which is good, pure and noble, he will be approbated by God, the Savior, and all the holy angels and all just men; whereas, if he shall choose evil and the haunts of crime and sin, he must personally bear the results.

When John the Divine was a prisoner on the Island of Patmos, working in the mines, God blessed him with many grand visions; and as the veil was drawn aside, Christ, who loved him much, visited him in his lonely abode and gave these consoling words; "And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not, I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive forever more, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death."—Rev. 1:17, 18. Glory! glory!! glory be to our God and his Christ! The power of both "hell" and "death" are in the keeping of him that took a body of the nature of Abraham, was acquainted with grief, who knows our every weakness, and has pity for the poor of earth.

There seems to be not only a necessity for a second probation, but also a justifiable reason to hope for it in figures furnished us by the best statisticians, for the average mortality of the race is about one each second of time; and as there are sixty minutes in each hour, with twenty-four hours in each day, we should stop and think that the deathrate every day is eighty-six thousand four hundred.

One of the ablest preachers of our time informs us, in a sermon lately preached in St. Louis, Missouri, that the aggregate of conversions made, by all the churches, are equal to twice the number converted on the memorable day of pentecost, or, six thousand every day. Supposing this to be true, we have the fearful, astounding loss to God and his kingdom of eighty thousand four hundred every day! Now if the antique idea that "death ends all" be true, what a commentary upon the idea that God has all power, is filled with love divine and yet the Devil, the eternal enemy of man, receives into his dominions about ninety per cent of all that leave this earth!

Let us put this work in figures for one year's time, and see what they look like. Total deaths for one year, 31,536,000; while the total conversions, or those who enter heaven are only 219,000. The difference in these two sums would be 31,317,000, the few (?) the Devil gets to increase the hot regions! Say, Mr. Antisecond-probation-man; are you not a little ashamed to deny Christ's mission to the spirit world and the possibility of a change for good on the other shore of "Jordan's stormy bank"? Man was created for the glory of his Maker; but through the perversity of false or uninspired teachers the truth is made a thing of naught, a laughing-stock to thinking men. The absurd idea that the Allwise should only obtain the infinitesimal few—about ten per cent—and the evil power obtain the overwhelming majority over the mighty phalanx who sing in symphony "the song of Moses and the Lamb" until heaven and earth shall tremble, while the blood-washed hosts acclaim the triumphs of Him that "treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God"—Rev. 19: 15. What are the victories that Christ shall be honored with?—"I will ransom them from the power of the grave; I will redeem them from death; O death, I will be thy plagues; O grave, I will be thy destruction."—Hosea, 13: 14. "He will swallow up death in victory."—Isa. 25: 8. "O death where is thy sting? O grave (marginal reading, "hell") where is thy victory?"—1 Cor. 15: 55. "and death and hell were cast into the lake of fire."—Rev. 20: 14. "And he laid hold on the dragon, that old serpent, which is the devil, and Satan, and bound him a thousand years."—Rev. 20: 2. These are but a few select passages that exhibit the prowess of "the Captain of our salvation"—and all for the express purpose to better man's condition, that every hour he may not stand in mortal dread of those enemies of the soul—death, the grave, hell and the devil. For all these shall become subject to the matchless power of Christ our Lord.

There is one more very important consideration; it is suggested by this question: "If a man die shall he live again?"—Job. 14: 14. It would appear almost a waste of time to attempt to demonstrate, that the change we call death does most emphatically take place; and, as strange as it may sound, there are a class of so-called scientists that pretend to believe and teach that there is neither sickness or death; but that these conditions are only a hallucination of the mind; the sad experience and trials of life. The absent ones whom we still love and have a longing, anxious and confident desire for, we shall yet greet in peace. The silent city of the dead, "God's half acre," with its marble slabs, is but a witness testifying that man who is born of woman, is of few days, amidst the vacillating, transitory scenes of earth life. But shall he live again? One who asked this question, answers it; "For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God; whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another; though my reins be consumed within me."—Job. 19: 25-27.

Here is one man that had sustaining hope; and notwithstanding that he expected to sleep the sleep of death and his body crumble back to dust, yet in his flesh, in the immortal state, he would stand upon the earth and see God. What grand and implicit confidence did this old man possess! That the Bible teaches the resurrection of the dead, few will deny. But how extensive will it be? is a question that receives manifold answers. I shall not seek in this to multiply evidences, but only introduce direct testimony.

In the vision that God gave to Ezekiel of the resurrection, the latter is told it was the whole house of Israel."—Ezek. 37: 11. This is amplified in the following: "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."—1 Cor. 15: 21, 22. Under the death sentence, none can claim exemption. If God sees fit to commute the sentence unto any, that is his business. We have no plea upon which to demur to the execution of the general demands of the law. But it will be observed in the above scripture that in the death sentence is the word "all." That is the important factor in the decision; and that the word "all" in the promise of the resurrection proves beyond a peradventure or a doubt, that the resurrection will be co-extensive with the ruin that death shall work. Thus it will be perceived that the bands of death shall be removed from the whole human family, through the meritorious work of Jesus Christ. Let not the reader, however, form a wrong opinion and think that a resurrection is equivalent to eternal salvation at the right hand of God; for be it understood that in the resurrection the law of judging "every man according to their works," (Rev. 20: 13), will be observed, and that consequently there must be a wide difference in rewards and crowns of glory. Paul, the great theologian of the New Testament, illustrates the glory obtained in the resurrection, using the sun, moon, and stars, as types: "There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead."—1 Cor. 41, 42.

From our standpoint of observation, the sun is chief in grandeur as an illuminator of this mundane sphere, and eclipses the other luminous ordinances of the heavens.

There is, to us, but one sun; therefore all those who shall attain unto this glory will be a unit in glory, one in condition; so also those who shall gain the glory represented by the moon, they, too, will be one; but as inferior in glory, as the moon is inferior to the sun. But the third class will have no unity or oneness in their glory, for the difference in that glory will be as wide as the luster of the brightest star from the twinkling of the dimmest little star. The degree of glory will depend upon the individual life of the person. Christ hath made it possible for all men to attain unto the highest glory, in the resurrection: "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection."—Rev. 20: 6. This clearly indicates that there will be more than one resurrection. And how shall we attain unto this first resurrection, that with David we can say: "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied when I awake with thy likeness."—Ps. 17: 15.

To give a full and complete delineation of the several successive steps necessary to take, for the man without any knowledge of God and his divine laws, would be more than is proper to include in this essay. But I will state that the leading features are these: Faith in the unchangeable God, and in his revelations. Faith in, and an acceptance of, Jesus Christ as the Son of God, the only redeemer of mankind; a willing and cheerful submission to the gospel provisions, after which, living a pure and holy life, above reproach, before all men; seeking and doing good—this will secure to all a part in the glory with the "Sun of righteousness."

And all those who shall be so unspeakably happy as to obtain credentials to the first resurrection can truthfully proclaim,— "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ, if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together."—Rom. 8: 16, 17.

Under this promise, what shall be the inheritance of man? We are told that our inheritance is to be a home in glory with Christ. We are led now to ask, Where will that happy home be? Hear the promise that God made to Israel, the people of His choice:

"And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they and their children, and their children's children forever: and my servant David shall be their prince forever. Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them, it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them forevermore. My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And the heathen shall know that I the Lord do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore."—Ezek. 37: 25-28.

If the foregoing is a title in "fee simple," Israel is assured as to where their inheritance will be.

In the beatitudes which Jesus taught in the sermon on the mount, he said: "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth."—Matt. 5: 5. This promise can not be fulfilled under the present existing state of affairs of the nations and governments of earth, and will not be in force till the Autocrat of heaven shall rule in equity and righteousness for all mankind. That time will come; and all the promises will be fulfilled unto man; for some will be permitted to say: "And has made us unto our God kings and priests; and we shall reign on the earth."—Rev. 5:10. More than this, those who shall escape the second death, "they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years."—Rev. 20:6. "And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying; "Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."—Rev. 20:3,4.

As the future kingdom of Christ on earth and the reign of the Saints with Christ for a thousand years, are conceded by such a respectable number in all churches, I will not cite more evidence thereon.

I have examined man as an animal and have given reasons why he may aspire to a higher sphere than now occupied by the most advanced of the race. I also gave reasons for his life, or pre-existence ere he came into this mortal state of being. I have also examined the conscious state of the dead, the doctrine of the resurrection, and of the inheritance of the righteous on earth. Man, surely, is "the noblest work of God." The subject is not exhausted, and never can be. I therefore submit these lines to your careful consideration, that perhaps they may aid in reflecting to some degree your great responsibilities to God, to yourself and fellow pilgrims of earth, that the hope of eternal life and immortal glory shall prove indeed a light to your path as you climb the hill of Zion and gain the peace and heavenly union at the end of the race.

Conference Minutes.

NODAWAY.

This district conference convened with the Platte branch, near Sweet Home, Nodaway county, Missouri, October 1st, 1887, James Thomas, president, R. K. Ross jr., clerk, pro tem. Branch Reports:—Eureka 20 members; 1 baptized and 2 died. Platte 81; 3 baptized, 1 died. Ross Grove 26; 5 baptized. Elders A. J. Moore, Charles Williams, C. Christensen, Ole Madison, Wm. Powell, R. K. Ross jr., and Jas. Thomas, reported their labors. Priest A. Jensen, and Teachers C. C. Nelson and J. Ford reported. R. K. Ross, jr., Bishop's Agent reported on hand last report $1; received since $32, and paid out $12, leaving on hand $21. On motion it was decided that this conference request of the General Conference to continue Elders James Thomas and A. J. Moore in this district. On motion, the appointing of the time and place for the next conference is to be made by Brn. Thomas and Moore; also that they appoint a two-days' meeting in each branch. James Thomas was chosen president of the district, Joseph Flory, secretary, and R. K. Ross jr., was sustained as Bishop's Agent. Preaching in the evening by Elders J.

W. Johnson, Charles Williams and A. B. Moore. Sunday, 11 a. m., preaching by Elder Woodhead, from Daniel, chapter 2, the subject being ably presented by him. Saint's meeting at 2 p. m., at which time 2 were confirmed who had been baptized. The Spirit was present to the confirming of the Saints and causing them to rejoice. Preaching at night by Elder A. B. Moore.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN.

Conference met at Bay Port, Friday evening, October 28th, 1887. Preaching by Elder John Shippy. Saturday, 29th, met at nine a. m. for prayer and testimony. Preaching at 11:30 by Elder W. H. Kelley. At 2:30 p. m. conference business began, W. H. Kelley president, J. J. Cornish assistant, E. Delong clerk, and J. A. Grant assistant. Branch Reports.—Iosco 38, Sherman 33, Gravel Creek 43, Reese 18, Forester 27, St. Thomas 28, Gideon, 36, Chase 12; Hersey 104, Juniata 15; Maple Valley 57, Free Soil 18, Bay Port 75. Elders Reports.—E. A. Shelly (baptized 2), George Cleveland, Robert Davis (baptized 4), Levi Phelps (baptized 3), J. A. Carpenter (baptized 26), A. Barr (baptized 4), J. Shippy, E. Delong (baptized 2), J. J. Cornish (baptized 50). W. H. Kelley reported favorably of the work done in his mission. Priests W. Davis (baptized 2), E. Martindale, Wm. Dowker (baptized 1), C. Green (baptized 1), J. Burch, E. Pearson, L. Rustin, P. Sirbrooks, J. A. Grant, S. Shippy, C. E. Grant, — O'Brien, A. Buntnell, — Leds-worth, Hughill. Deacons C. Gillingham, John Blackenbery. On motion J. J. Bailey was released as Bishop's Agent, and A. Barr was recommended in his stead. J. J. Cornish was chosen district president, and J. A. Grant secretary. A vote of thanks was given J. J. Bailey for his service as Bishop's Agent, and to J. A. Carpenter as district secretary. The following were appointed delegates to General Conference, Elders J. J. Cornish, George Cleveland, Andrew Barr, J. A. Carpenter, Robert Davis. Moved and carried that this district defray Elder John J. Cornish's expenses to General Conference. On motion William Davis was ordained an elder and E. Flinn a priest. All the officers were sustained in righteousness including the president of this mission. Moved and carried that when we adjourn we do so to meet at Hersey, on the call of the president. Preaching Saturday evening by E. Delong. Sunday morning, October 30th, met at nine a. m. for prayer and testimony. Preaching in the forenoon by W. H. Kelley. Subject: "Strive to enter in at the straight gate." Preaching at 2 p. m. by Elder Cornish, after which ten were baptized by Elder Cornish. At 7 p. m. eleven were confirmed by Elders W. H. Kelley, John Shippy, and J. J. Cornish, after which W. H. Kelley preached.

EASTERN IOWA.

Conference met at Canton, Iowa, October 8th and 9th, 1887, Jerome Ruby presiding, W. T. Maitland secretary. Branches reported: Davenport, Apostolic, Jackson and Butternut Grove; Buffalo no report. Elders reported: Jerome Ruby (baptized 1), J. S. Roth, seventy, (baptized 4). Priests reported: James R. Johnson, D. W. Clow, W. T. Maitland (baptized 4). Committee of three appointed to investigate, and, if possible, adjust affairs in Buffalo branch. J. S. Roth was sustained as missionary, as per appointment. Moved that the Elders Court decision in the case of the Church versus Adah Briggs, viz., that she be disfellowshipped, is in force in default of a First Presidency decision (to which court an appeal was taken), and that the secretary be instructed to embody the sense of this resolution in the minutes of this conference, to be published in the Herald. J. Ruby was sustained as president till next conference, W. T. Maitland secretary; and the church authorities were sustained. Preaching Sunday at 11 a. m. by W. Turner, followed by J. S. Roth. Two candidates were baptized by J. S. Roth. Preaching by Jerome Ruby at 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting followed after preaching, in charge of J. S. Roth. Adjourned subject to call of the president. Marked unity and peace prevailed throughout the entire session. Net gain since last conference by baptism 20. J. S. Roth and W. T. Maitland continued the meetings ten days after conference, and Bro. Roth baptized one and others ready.

Miscellaneous.

MARRIED.

BRIGGS—MOORE.—At the residence of brother T. H. Moore, September 15th, 1887, by Elder William Bradbury, Azziel E. Briggs and sister Florence Rosina Moore, both of Providence, Rhode Island.

May the union thus effected,
Ever firm and happy prove,
By each word and act cemented,
Consummate in that above.

GRIFFIN—TABBUT.—At Lake View, Becker county, Minnesota, at the home of the bride's parents, elder and Sr. Andrew Tabbut, September 21st, 1887, Bro. William C. Griffin and sister Harriet Tabbut. Elder T. J. Martin officiating.

DIED.

MORGAN.—At Merthyr Tydvil, Wales, October 1st, 1887, Elder John Morgan, aged 60 years. Funeral service at the house, by T. E. Jenkins, and in the chapel by Mr. Jones, Congregational minister.

SUMMERFIELD.—At his home near Stewartsville, Missouri, October 16th, 1887, Edwin, son of Bro. Wm. and Sr. Ann Summerfield, aged 18 years, 6 months, 16 days, after an illness of about two weeks. Edwin was a kind and dutiful son, and has passed on at an early day in life into the hands of a just Father. Bro. J. M. Terry preached the sermon, assisted by Bro. J. H. Meriam. He was interred at the DeKalb branch cemetery. A large concourse of friends and sympathizers were present.

FERGUSON.—Sister Martha Jane Ferguson died October 27th, 1887. She was born in Oswego county, New York, November 29th, 1849, and was baptized at Nauvoo, Illinois, in November 1870. She has been a faithful wife and is the mother of six children, five of whom are left to mourn her death. She departed in peace. At the last moment she testified that little Clara and Uncle Milo were waiting to welcome her home; and turning to the family she took each one by the hand and bade them good-by, giving each a word of good cheer, telling them not to fear, for she was going home to rest. She then passed away without a struggle. She has been a most faithful testator for the truth during all the time of her membership of seventeen years in the church, and leaves a large number of friends and acquaintances to mourn her departure.

CORRECTION.—On page 648, read John E., instead of "John C. Rogerson."

THE POWER OF REPRODUCTION.

THE mines of Laurium were worked by the ancient Greeks 1,500 years ago, but their processes were very crude. The immense beds of refuse which they left behind them contained considerable silver, which has been extracted by improved methods of mining. After the refuse had been carried to the furnaces, yellow poppies sprang up and blossomed on the level which had been cleared. A German scientist affirms that this peculiar species—glauclium—was described by Pliny and Dioscorides, but had disappeared from the earth and was unknown to modern science until the refuse at Laurium, under which the seed had been concealed for 1,500 or 2,000 years, was cleared away.

PRESIDENT Taylor, of the National Temperance League of Great Britain, says that thirty years ago the advocates of temperance there could have been counted on one's fingers, whereas to-day the movement excites intense interest, and is constantly gaining ground.

MAKING OTHERS HAPPY.

MAKE a rule, and pray to God to help you to keep it, never if possible, to lie; down at night without being able to say, "I have made one human being at least a little wiser, or a little happier, or a little better this day." You will find it easier than you think, and pleasanter; easier, because you do God's work, God will surely find you work to do; and pleasanter, because in return for the trouble it may cost you or the choking of foolish, vulgar pride it may cost you, you will have a peace of mind, a quiet of temper, cheerfulness and hopefulness about yourself and all around you, such as you never felt before; and over and above that, if you look for a reward in the life to come, recollect this: What we have to hope for in the life to come is to enter into the joy of our Lord. And how did he fulfil that joy but by humbling Himself and taking the form of a slave, and coming not to be ministered to but to minister, and to give His whole life, even to the death upon the cross a ransom for many. If you wish to enter into the joy of our Lord, be sure that His joy is now, as it was in the Judea of old, over every sinner that repenteth, every mourner that is comforted, and every hungry mouth that is fed, every poor soul, sick or in prison, who is visited.—Sel.

FIGURES THAT WILL COUNT.—Three states have voted on the constitutional prohibitory amendment, and although they have failed to carry it yet the votes for it have been very strong. Michigan cast 178,000 votes for prohibition, Texas 129,000, and Tennessee 120,000, an aggregate of 427,000. Here is a vote which politicians can not ignore. Though it does not yet represent a majority in those states, yet it does represent a powerful minority—a minority which is every day gaining in strength and numbers. When this minority solidifies into one compact mass, and presents a bold front at the ballot box there will be no power on earth which can resist it. Right is with the minority, and it will win.—Sel.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

FOR SALE.

A NEAT three roomed house, with a lot 144 feet front by 132 back. A good well and out-buildings. Located in adjoining block to the Saints' Church in Lamoni. Property in good repair. Call on or address

W. M. CRICK, Lamoni, Iowa.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

BY THE (—) Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church, at their Publishing House in LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA, And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

Holy Scriptures.

Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet.
Sheep or Library binding.....1 50
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....2 00
Full Morocco, gilt edges.....2 50
New Testament, inspired edition.....75

Book of Mormon.

Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50
Full Morocco, gilt edges.....1 75

Doctrine and Covenants.

Sprinkled Sheep, or Library.....1 25
Imitation Morocco.....1 50

The Saints' Harp—Hymn Book.

Imitation Morocco, marbled edges.....1 25
Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50

Life of Joseph the Prophet, History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith.

In Cloth, full gilt finished, very handsome.....2 25
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complete history of the Church up to 1880.

Joseph Smith the Prophet, and His Progenitors.

Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith.....75
Leather Binding.....1 00

Hesperis.

Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....1 50

Rules of Order and Debate.

For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth.....40

Joseph the Seer.

His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers 200 pages.....35
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

Voice of Warning.

And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the Latter Day work; 128 pages
In Paper Covers, twelve for $1.....each 10
Limp Cloth Covers, each.....25

Prophetic Truth.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon, an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper covers; five for $1.....each 25
Being the Subject of an Evening's Conversation Respecting its Origin. Its Divinity Proved by the Scriptures and Collateral Evidence. Prefaced with a Brief Sketch of the Life of the Prophet, showing the way and manner of his becoming possessed of the Record.

Branch Records.

Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages.....2 00

District Records.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records.....3 00

Licences, Notices, &amp;c.

Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licenses, each per dozen.....12
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and.....50
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub, 35 for.....25

Certificates and Reports.

Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen.....40
Annual Statistical Reports, two for.....10
Certificate of Baptism and Membership, per dozen.....12
Certificate of Removal, per dozen.....12
Marriage Certificates, per dozen.....25

"Manuscript Found."

We have for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. Has 144 pages 8 mo.; single copies, in cloth, 25 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 20 cents each; in paper, single copies 15 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 13 cents each.

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni
MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14Febly

Lamoni and Vicinity.

Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by

LAMBERT & HANSEN.

dec11f

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbner, 200 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
GRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager,
PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAVE IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 757.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 19, 1887.

No. 47.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa, Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH

EDITOR.

W. W. BLAIR

ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Nov. 19, 1887.

POPULAR OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.

WE received a communication some time since from a Mr. Wood McIntire, (perhaps a minister) in which he urges numerous popular objections to the faith and claims of the Saints, which we now answer seriatim, and at some length:

"It has been my lot for some time to be among your people, and I have heard the restoration of the gospel gifts preached by them."

If our ministry did not preach the restoration of "the gospel gifts," that fact would be good evidence that they were not Christ's ministers; for his ministers, from John the Baptist to the last one mentioned in the Bible, preached them.

"This I fully believe will be done in the fulness of time, but I doubt it being done already as your people claim."

The very fact that our ministers have promised "the gospel gifts" to those who faithfully accept the gospel and serve Christ humbly in this age should be strong presumptive evidence to the honest investigator that these gifts are enjoyed by the faithful Saints; for they would not promise them if they were not enjoyed, lest a failure to receive them, when faithfully, earnestly sought after, would expose them to censure and condemnation.

"For these are my reasons: No one outside of your church has ever been able to see any of the manifestations of the Spirit."

Many persons, when not in the church, have witnessed the signs following the believer, for they have seen the sick healed, heard tongues and prophecies and witnessed their fulfilment.

"When I ask the members about this they say the signs are to follow the believer, and not precede them."

It is true that the signs are to follow the believer. To deny this is to deny the testimony of Jesus Christ, for he says, "And these signs shall follow them that believe."—Matt. 16: 17.

In harmony with this Paul says, "for whatsoever is not of faith is sin;" (Rom. 14: 23); and, "without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Heb. 11: 6. Jesus taught that the signs were only for those who had faith; for when his disciples failed to cast out an evil spirit, though they had "authority" to do so, he said to them that the failure was, "Because of your unbelief." Matt. 17: 20. Again, "according to your faith be it unto you." Matt. 9: 29. "Thy faith hath made thee whole." Matt. 9: 21, etc., etc.

"Certainly, if the gifts are restored, it should be as of old."

Yes, sir, precisely; and the gifts are restored "as of old;" and they can not be enjoyed nor manifested except in a similar manner as anciently—just as God wills.

"We find many instances of public healing by the disciples as well as by Christ."

Yes; there were "many instances of public healing by the disciples as well as by Christ;" but these were the result of faith, and confirmatory of faith: "And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know; yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all."—Acts 3: 16. "The same heard Paul speak: who steadfastly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed."—Acts 14: 9. "And the apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith. And the Lord said, If ye had faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye might say unto this sycamine tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the sea; and it should obey you."—St. Luke 17: 5, 6.

"And instances are not wanting where articles taken from the person of Paul healed the sick."

"Yes; this is testified of by the ancient Saints; and we have heard of cases somewhat like these testified of by the Saints in this age.

"After Christ's time the dead were raised. Now do you or your people claim this power?"

The Saints do not claim the power to raise the dead. And anciently they did not claim this power. But they did believe that God could raise the dead, and we read that this was done. The Saints of this age believe He can do the same wherever and whenever there is similar faith and righteousness. When the conditions favor it, then, as anciently, the same works may be done of God; for he says, "I am God; I change not."

"Jesus says 'These works shall you do, and greater than these, because I go to my Father.'"

But Jesus does not say that his disciples were to do those "greater works" in this world. The language implies that they were to do them in the future from this life, for he said: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."—John 14: 12.

"Your people claim that no sign or miracle was ever wrought to make believers."

We deny that miracles, as a rule, were wrought to make believers of those who were wilful of heedless unbelievers. Jesus did not work a miracle to convert Satan, nor to convert the Jews and Romans at the cross, nor did he exhibit his resurrected body to the unbelieving Jews and convert them. Paul tells us that believers are made by hearing the word of God as preached by those sent of God: "But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart; that is, the word of faith, which we preach; That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the Scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed. For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher, and how shall they preach except they be sent?"—Rom. 10: 8-15.

"Read what word Christ sent to John the Baptist."

John the Baptist was not an unbeliever. He was a child of God, and a member of and minister in God's kingdom. But thrown into prison, he was under great temptation and trial, and he needed his faith revived, increased, and confirmed—that is all.

"I would like you or some of your elders to read and explain Exodus 4: 5."

This chapter, with the subsequent history of the Egyptians, proves that faith is not originated by miracles. We reiterate the fact, that faith comes by hearing the truths of God declared by competent authority—this is an eternal principle.

"All the signs given by Moses seemed to be for the express purpose of making believers."

If they were designed to make believers out of the Egyptians, then that "express purpose" failed totally. But if designed to increase and confirm the faith of Israel, then that was largely accomplished, both in the days of Moses and in all subsequent generations. The signs wrought by Moses and under that dispensation confirmed the faith of Moses and the trusting Israelites; but they hardened the unbelieving Egyptians.

"The Apostle Paul certainly understood that signs were given to make believers, for he says, 1 Cor. 14: 22, "Wherefore, tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not."

Yes; in the same sense that they were to those on the day of Pentecost, (Acts 2: 1-13), namely, to those who believed in God and therefore believed in a coming Messiah and were so faithful as to come up from the surrounding nations to serve God. These faithful worshipers believed in the God of their fathers and in his wonderful works, and hence were not unbelievers in the proper sense of that word. These evidently had not heard Christ—their hoped for Messiah—nor his ministers till Peter preached to them on that memorable occasion, and for that reason they were not believers previously in a crucified and risen Redeemer. But it seems that among them there were some faithless, formal worshipers—therefore genuine unbelievers—and neither the gifts of tongues nor the preaching of Peter served to convert them to faith in Christ; for these "mocking said, These men are full of new wine." Of this class of unbelievers Paul has well said,—"If therefore the whole church be come together into one place, and all speak with tongues, and there come in those that are unlearned, [in the tongues spoken. Ed.] or unbelievers, [that is, unbelievers in God and his miraculous gifts and powers bestowed upon men. Ed.] will they not say that ye are mad?"—1 Cor. 14: 23. So we see this latter class of unbelievers are not converted by the gift of tongues.

"And as Acts 2: 43, 'And fear came upon every soul, and many wonders and signs were done by the apostles.'"

This is true; but it is nowhere said, or intimated, that these things were done among unbelievers, nor for the purpose of converting them; but the contexts show that they were done among the "all that believed," mentioned in verse 44, same chapter.

"And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people."—Acts. 5: 12.

This text with its contexts prove beyond question that these "signs and wonders" were wrought, not among unbelievers, nor to beget faith in and convert unbelievers, but among and for those who believed, for it reads:—"And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard these things. And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people; (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch. And of the rest durst no man join himself to them; but the people magnified them. And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women); insomuch that they brought forth the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the least the shadow of Peter passing by night overshadow some of them. There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed every one."—Acts, 5: 11-16.

"Now, if the gifts are restored, how is it you will keep unbelievers from finding out that it is so?"

We do not keep people from finding out that the gifts are restored to believers. But we seek to have them learn of that fact in God's good way, and have no authority to do otherwise. Jesus says:—"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 7: 17. And though he was the Messiah and held divine power greater than any or all the servants of God, yet he, too, was obedient to the will and the law of heaven and worked in strict accordance therewith; hence it is said of his ministrations in his own country; "And he did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief."—Matt. 13: 58. It is the eternal, unchangeable law of God that, "If ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established."—Isa. 7: 9. And, "According to your faith be it unto you."—Matt. 9: 29.

"There is here an elder's wife that is nearly blind."

God has never promised that all the blind—or partially blind—among his people should be healed. History confirms this view, and Jesus endorses it; for he said to miracle seekers:—"And he said unto them, Ye will surely say unto me this proverb, Physician, heal thyself; whatsoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do also here in thy country. And he said, Verily I say unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country. But I tell you of a truth, many widows were in Israel in the day of Elias, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when great famine was throughout all the land; but unto none of them was Elias sent, save unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow. And many lepers were in Israel in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, saving Naaman the Syrian. And all they in the synagogues, when they heard these things, were filled with wrath."—Luke, 4: 23-28.

"If she was healed it could not be hid. And there was an elder preached here some time ago that was deaf as a post."

Yes; and Timothy, Paul's son according to the gospel, and a very excellent and important minister, was afflicted with his "often infirmities," even though Paul and many others had the gift of healing, and at times wrought wonderful miracles when God gave the needed faith and power to do so. And Paul said to Timothy: "But Trophimus have I left at Miletum sick," (2 Tim. 4: 20), which he no doubt would not have done if he held power to heal whom he would and when he would. Paul knew that the gifts could be exercised and enjoyed only as God willed and when he willed; for he taught that gifts and miracles were wrought by "the self-same Spirit;" and, what is very important to observe, "dividing to every man severally as he [the Spirit] will."—1 Cor. 12: 11. Paul tells us that he had bodily "infirmities" and "afflictions," (2 Cor. 11: 30; 12: 5-10; 2: 2, 4; Phil, 4: 14; 1 Thess. 3: 7), and it is therefore no wonder that Christ's servants in this age should suffer similar conditions.

"Signs don't seem to follow the believer quite enough, it seems to me."

We presume the promised signs follow the believer now, just in proportion to the correctness and the strength of their faith in God and his word; also when, and where, and upon whom God sees fit to bestow them. He does not change, and when persons in this age obey faithfully his word, live near to him by humbly and prayerfully keeping his commandments, he will bestow upon them spiritual gifts and blessings such as are promised faithful believers. But they must serve God in "his ways," and "walk in his paths," otherwise they have no promise. Many thousand Saints now testify that by obeying the restored gospel, they have by holy lives and by faithful fervent prayer, received the Holy Spirit and some of its promised manifestations. Wherein there is any lack, it is because of unfaithfulness and unbelief.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

(Continued from page 732).

Two days later on, the following occurred:

"PUBLIC MEETING.

The citizens of Clay County met, pursuant to adjournment. The chairman and secretary, resumed their stations, when the committee appointed by a public meeting held at the Court House in the town of Liberty on Wednesday, June 29th, to confer with the Mormon Leaders and to present to them the Preamble and Resolutions passed by said meeting. Met according to the appointment at the house of Mr. Cowan and through the chairman of the committee, Woodson J. Moss, reported to the meeting the response of the Mormons to the preamble and resolutions passed at the aforesaid meeting on Wednesday, the 29th, which is as follows:

At a respectable meeting of the elders of the church of Latter Day Saints, held in Clay county, Missouri, on Friday, the 1st day of July, 1836; W. W. Phelps was called to the chair, and John Corrill appointed secretary. The preamble and resolutions from a meeting of citizens was read and a committee of twelve, viz.: E. Partridge, I. Morley, L. Wight, T. B. Marsh, E. Higbee, C. Beebe, J. Hitchcock, I. Higbee, S. Bent, T. Billings, J. Emett, and R. Evans were appointed, who retired, and after a short time reported the following preamble and resolutions:

That we, (the Mormons so-called), are grateful for the kindness which has been shown to us by the citizens of Clay, since we have resided with them, and being desirous for peace and wishing the good, rather than the ill-will of mankind, will use all honorable means to allay the excitement, and so far as we can, remove any foundation for jealousies against us as a people. We are aware that many rumors prejudicial to us as a society are afloat, and time only can prove their falsity to the world at large. We deny having claim to this, or any other county or country further than we purchase with money, or more than the constitution and laws allow us as free American citizens. We have taken no part for or against slavery, but are opposed to the abolitionists, and consider that men have a right to hold slaves or not according to law. We believe it just to preach the gospel to the nations of the earth, and warn the righteous to save themselves from the corruptions of the world, but we do not believe it right to interfere with bond servants nor preach the gospel to, nor meddle with, or influence them in the least to cause them to be dissatisfied with their situation in this life, thereby jeopardizing the lives of men. Such interference we believe to be unlawful and unjust, and dangerous to the peace of every government allowing human beings to be held in servitude. We deny holding any communications with the Indians, and mean to hold ourselves as ready to defend our country against their barbarous ravages as any other people. We believe that all men are bound to sustain and uphold the respective governments in which they reside, while protected in their inherent and unalienable rights by the laws of such governments; and that sedition and rebellion are unbecoming every citizen thus protected, and should be punished accordingly. It is needless to enter into a further detail of our faith or mention our sufferings:—Therefore,

1st. Resolved, For the sake of friendship, and to be in a covenant of peace with the citizens of Clay county, and the citizens of Clay county to be in a covenant of peace with us, notwithstanding the necessary loss of property and expense we incur in moving, we comply with the requisitions of their resolutions in leaving the county of Clay, as explained by the preamble accompanying the same; and that we will use our exertions to have the church do the same; and that we will also exert ourselves to stop the tide of emigration of our people to this county.

2d. Resolved, That we accept of the friendly offer verbally tendered to us, by the committee yesterday, to assist us in selecting a location and removing to it.

3d. Resolved, unanimously, that this meeting accept and adopt the above preamble and resolutions which are here presented by the committee.

4th. Resolved, That T. B. Marsh, L. Wight, and S. Bent be a committee to carry these proceedings to the meeting of the citizens of Clay, to be held to-morrow at Liberty.

The above was unanimously adopted by the meeting.

W. W. PHELPS, Chairman,

JOHN CORRILL, Secretary.

Resolved, That this meeting do accept and receive the reply of the Mormons to the resolution passed on Wednesday the 29th June as perfectly satisfactory.

Be it further resolved by this meeting that we will use our utmost endeavors to carry into effect the object contained in the preamble and resolution passed on Wednesday the 29th and as agreed to by the Mormons.

Be it further resolved, that we urge it on our fellow citizens to keep the peace towards the Mormons as good faith, justice, morality, and religion require us.

Be it further resolved, that a committee of ten persons, two in each township be appointed to raise money by subscription to aid those of the Mormons who may from necessity require it to leave this county.

Resolved, that Samuel Tillery, Jeremiah Migner, and Abraham Shafer, be appointed a committee to receive the pecuniary aid by subscription for the purpose of aiding the poor persons that may belong to the Mormons in removing from this county to their place of abode and that the Elders of the church be requested to report the above named persons to the aforesaid committee who will judge of the proofs and facts entitling the Mormons to pecuniary aid and appropriate the funds accordingly.

Resolved, That said committee be authorized to employ some suitable person to accompany those that may wish to examine a new country, it is also understood that if the money which may be received by the committee is not appropriated for the purpose above named it shall be refunded back in proportion to the amount subscribed.

Resolved, That the chair appoint five persons in each township to carry the object of the above resolutions into effect.

The following gentlemen were then appointed in the different townships. For Liberty township, John Thornton, Joel Turnham, Peter Rogers, John Bird, David Atchison. For Fishing River township, Elisha Cameron, E. Price, G. Withers, M. Welton, James Kazey. For Platte township, T. C. Gordon, S. Harris, W. Owens, L. Rollins, J. Marsh. For Washington township, B. Riley, S. Crawford, T. Findley, G. McIlvaine, P. Y. G. Barte. For Gallatin township, D. Dale, W. Nash, Wm. Todd, B. Ricketts, J. Forbion.

Be it further Resolved, That this meeting recommend the Mormons to the good treatment of the citizens of the adjoining counties. We also recommend the inhabitants of the neighboring counties to assist the Mormons, in selecting some abiding place for their people where they will be in a measure the only occupants and when none will be anxious to molest them.

Resolved, that the proceedings of this meeting be handed over to the publishers of the Far West with a request that it be printed.

Which was severally read and unanimously adopted. On motion the meeting adjourned.

JOHN BIRD, Chair.

JOHN F. DOHERTY, Sec.

LIBERTY, July 2d, 1836.

—Messenger and Advocate, vol. 2, pps. 359, 360, 361.

And in order to further show the forbearing, long-suffering, self-denying Christian spirit, also the wise, patient counsel and conduct of the Saints and their leading men, we add this:

KIRTLAND, Geauga County, Ohio,
July 25th, 1836.

To John Thornton, Esq., Peter Rogers, Esq., Andrew Robertson, Esq., James T. V. Thompson, Esq., Col. William T. Wood, Dr. Woodson F. Moss, James Hughes, Esq., David R. Atchison, Esq., and A. W. Doniphan, Esq.

GENTLEMEN,—

We have just, perused, with feelings of deep interest, an article in the "Far West," printed at Liberty, Clay County, Mo., containing the proceedings of a public meeting of the citizens of said county upon the subject of an excitement now prevailing among you occasioned, either from false reports against the Church of Latter

Day Saints, or from the fact that said church is dangerous to the welfare of your country, and will, if suffered among you, cause the ties of peace and friendship, so desirable among all men, to be burst asunder and bring war and desolation upon your now pleasant homes.

Under existing circumstances, while rumor is afloat with her accustomed cunning, and while public opinion is fast settling like a flood-tide against the members of said church, we can not but admire the candor with which your preamble and resolutions were clothed, as presented to the meeting of the citizens of Clay county on the 29th of June last. Though, as you expressed in your report to said meeting—"We do not contend that we have the least right, under the constitution and laws of the country, to expel them by force,"—yet communities may be, at times, unexpectedly thrown into a situation, when wisdom, prudence, and that first item in nature's law, SELF-DEFENCE would dictate that the responsible and influential part should step forward and guide the public mind in a course to save difficulty, preserve rights, and spare the innocent blood from staining the soil so dearly purchased with the fortunes and lives of our fathers. And as you have come forward as "mediators," to prevent the effusion of blood and save disasters consequent upon civil war, we take this opportunity to present to you, though strangers, and through you, if you wish, to the people of Clay county, our heart-felt gratitude for every kindness rendered our friends in affliction, when driven from their peaceful homes; and to yourselves also for the prudent course in the present excited state of your community. But, in doing this, justice to ourselves as communicants of that church to which our friends belong, and duty towards them as acquaintances and former fellow citizens, require us to say something to exonerate them from the foul charges brought against them to deprive them of their constitutional privileges and drive them from the face of society.

They have been charged, in consequence of the whims and vain notions of some few uninformed, with claiming that upper country, and that ere long they were to possess it, at all hazards, and in defiance of all consequences. This is unjust, and far from a foundation in truth; a thing not expected, not looked for, not desired by this society, as a people, and where the idea could have originated is unknown to us. We do not, neither did we ever insinuate a thing of this kind or hear it from the leading men of the society now in your country. There is nothing in all our religious faith to warrant it, but on the contrary, the most strict injunctions to live in obedience to the laws, and follow peace with all men. And we doubt not but a recurrence to the Jackson county difficulties with our friends, will fully satisfy you that at least, heretofore, such has been the course followed by them. That instead of fighting for their own rights, they have sacrificed them for a season, to wait the redress guaranteed in the law, and so anxiously looked for at a time distant from this. We have been, and are still clearly under the conviction that had our friends been disposed, they might have maintained their possessions in Jackson county. They might have resorted to the same barbarous means with their neighbors, throwing down dwellings, threatening lives, driving innocent women and children from their homes, and thereby have annoyed their enemies equally, at least. But this, to their credit, and which must ever remain upon the pages of time to their honor, they did not. They had possessions; they had homes; they had sacred rights; and more still, they had helpless, harmless innocence, with an approving conscience that they had violated no law of their country or their God, to urge them forward. But to show to all that they were willing to forego these for the peace of their country, they tamely submitted, and have since been wanderers among strangers, (though hospitable,) without homes. We think these sufficient reasons to show to your patriotic minds, that our friends, instead of having a wish to expel a community by force of arms, would suffer their rights to be taken from them before shedding blood.

Another charge brought against our friends is that of being dangerous in societies "where slavery is tolerated and practiced." Without occupying time here, we refer you to the April (1836) No. of the "Latter Day Saints' Messenger and Advocate," printed at this place, a copy of which we forward to each of you. From the length of time which has transpired since its publication, you can easily see that it was put forth for no other reason than to correct the public mind generally, without a reference or expectation of an excitement of the nature of the one now in your country. Why we refer you to this publication, particularly, is because many of our friends who are now at the west were in this place when this paper made its appearance, and from personal observation gave it their decided approbation, and expressed those sentiments to be their own in the fullest particular.

Another charge of great magnitude is brought against our friends in the west—of "keeping up a constant communication with the Indian tribes on our frontier, with declaring, even from the pulpit, that the Indians are a part of God's chosen people, and are destined, by heaven, to inherit this land, in common with themselves." We know of nothing, under the present aspect of our Indian relations, calculated to rouse the fears of the people of the Upper Missouri, more than a combination or influence of this nature; and we can not look upon it other than one of the most subtle purposes of those whose feelings are embittered against our friends, to turn the eye of suspicion upon them from every man who is acquainted with the barbarous cruelty of rude savages. Since a rumor was afloat that the Western Indians were showing signs of war, we have received frequent private letters from our friends, who have not only expressed fears for their own safety, in case the Indians should break out, but a decided determination to be among the first to repel any invasion and defend the frontier from all hostilities. We mention the last fact, because it was wholly uncalculated for on our part, and came previous to any excitement on the part of the people of Clay county against our friends, and must definitively show that this charge is also untrue.

Another charge against our friends, and one that is urged as a reason why they must immediately leave the county of Clay, is, that they are making, or are like to, the same "their permanent home, the center and general rendezvous of their people." We have never understood such to be the purpose, wish or design of this society; but on the contrary, have ever supposed that those who resided in Clay county, only designed it as a temporary residence, until the law and authority of our country should put them in the quiet possession of their homes in Jackson county, and such as had not possessions there, could purchase to the entire satisfaction and interest of the people of Jackson county.

Having partially mentioned the leading objections urged against our friends, we would here add, that it has not been done with a view on our part to dissuade you from acting in strict conformity with your preamble and resolutions, offered to the people of Clay county on the 29th ult., but from a sense of duty to a people embarrassed, persecuted and afflicted. For you are aware, gentlemen, that in times of excitement virtues are transformed into vices; acts, which in other cases, and under other circumstances, would be considered upright and honorable, interpreted contrary from their real intent and made objectionable and criminal; and from whom could we look for forbearance and compassion with confidence and assurance more than from those whose bosoms are warmed with those pure principles of patriotism with which you have been guided in the present instance to secure the peace of your county, and save a persecuted people from further violence, and destruction?

It is said that our friends are poor; that they have but little or nothing to bind their feelings or wishes to Clay county, and that in consequence, have a less claim upon that county. We do not deny the fact that our friends are poor; but their persecutions have helped to render them so. While other men were peacefully following their avocations, and extending their interest they have been deprived of the right of citizenship, prevented from enjoying their own, charged with violating the sacred principles of our constitution and laws; made to feel the keenest aspersions of the tongue of slander, waded through all but death, and are now suffering under calumnies calculated to excite the indignation and hatred of every people among whom they may dwell, thereby exposing them to destruction and inevitable ruin!

If a people, a community, or a society, can accumulate wealth, increase in worldly fortune, improve in science and arts, rise to eminence in the eyes of the public, surmount these difficulties so much as to bid defiance to poverty and wretchedness, it must be a new creation, a race of beings superhuman. But in all their poverty and want, we have yet to learn, for the first time, that our friends are not industrious and temperate, and wherein they have not always been the last to retaliate or resent an injury, and the first to overlook and forgive. We do not urge that there are not exceptions to be found; all communities, all societies and associations, are cumbered with disorderly and less virtuous members—members who violate in a greater or less degree the principles of the same. But this can be no just criterion by which to judge a whole society. And further still, where a people are laboring under constant fear of being dispossessed, very little inducement is held out to excite them to be industrious.

We think, gentlemen, that we have pursued this subject far enough, and we here express to you, as we have in a letter accompanying this, to our friends, our decided disapprobation to the idea of shedding blood, if any other course can be followed to avoid it; in which case, and which alone, we have urged upon our friends to desist, only in extreme cases of self-defense; and in this case not to give the offense or provoke their fellow men to acts of violence,—which we have no doubt they will observe, as they ever have. For you may rest assured, gentlemen, that we would be the last to advise our friends to shed the blood of men, or commit one act to endanger the public peace.

We have no doubt but our friends will leave your country, sooner or later,—they have not only signified the same to us, but we have advised them so to do, as fast as they can without incurring too much loss. It may be said that they have but little to lose if they lose the whole. But if they have but little, that little is their all, and the imperious demands of the helpless urge them to make a prudent disposal of the same. And we are highly pleased with a proposition in your preamble, suffering them to remain peaceably till a disposition can be made of their land, &c., which if suffered, our fears are at once hushed, and we have every reason to believe, that during the remaining part of the residence of our friends in your county, the same feelings of friendship and kindness will continue to exist, that have heretofore, and that when they leave you, you will have no reflection of sorrow to cast, that they have been sojourners among you.

To what distance or place they will remove, we are unable to say; in this they must be dictated with judgment and prudence. They may explore the Territory of Wisconsin—they may remove there, or they may stop on the other side—of this we are unable to say; but be they where they will, we have this gratifying reflection, that they have never been the first, in an unjust manner, to violate the laws, injure their fellow men, or disturb the tranquility and peace under which any part of our country has heretofore reposed. And we can not but believe, that ere long the public mind must undergo a change, when it will appear to the satisfaction of all that this people have been illy treated and abused without cause, and when, as justice would demand, those who have been the instigators of their sufferings will be regarded as their true characters demand.

Though our religious principles are before the world, ready for the investigation of all men, yet we are aware that the sole foundation of all the persecution against our friends, has arisen in consequence of the calumnies and misconstructions without foundation in truth or righteousness, in common with all other religious societies, at their first commencement; and should Providence order that we rise not as others before us, to respectability and esteem, but be trodden down by the ruthless hand of extermination, posterity will do us the justice, when our persecutors are equally low in the dust, with ourselves, to hand down to succeeding generations, the virtuous acts and forbearance of a people, who sacrificed their reputation for their religion, and their earthly fortunes and happiness, to preserve peace, and save this land from being further drenched in blood.

We have no doubt but your very reasonable mediation, in the time of so great an excitement, will accomplish your most sanguine desire, in preventing further disorder; and we hope, gentlemen, that while you reflect upon the fact, that the citizens of Clay county are urgent for our friends to leave you, that you will also bear in mind, that by their complying with your request to leave, is surrendering some of the dearest rights; and first among those inherent principles guaranteed in the constitution of our country; and that human nature can be driven to a certain extent, when it will yield no farther. Therefore, while our friends suffer so much, and forego so many sacred rights, we sincerely hope, and we have every reason to expect it, that a suitable forbearance may be shown by the people of Clay, which if done, the cloud that has been obscuring your horizon, will disperse, and you be left to enjoy peace, harmony and prosperity.

With sentiments of esteem and profound respect, we are, gentlemen, your obedient servants,

SIDNEY RIGDON,
JOSEPH SMITH, JR.,
OLIVER COWDERY,
F. G. WILLIAMS,
HYRUM SMITH."

Messenger and Advocate, vol. 2, p. 355.

We add the following letter also, as it is the advice given by the Presidency of the church to the imperiled Saints in Clay county, Missouri, and vicinity:

KIRTLAND, Ohio, July 25th, 1836.

Dear Brethren.—Yours of the 1st inst., accompanying the proceedings of a public meeting, held by the people of Clay was duly received. We are sorry that this disturbance has broken out—we do not consider it our fault. You are better acquainted with circumstances than we are, and of course have been directed in wisdom in your moves relative to leaving the county. We forward you our letter to Mr. Thornton and others, that you may know all we have said. We advise that you be not the first aggressors—give no occasion—and if the people will let you dispose of your property, settle your affairs and go in peace, go. You have thus far had an asylum, and now seek another as God may direct. Relative to your going to Wisconsin, we can not say; we should think if you could stop short in peace, you had better. You know our feelings relative to not giving the first offense, and also of protecting your wives and little ones in case a mob should seek their lives. We shall publish the proceedings of the public meeting, with your answer, as well as our letter. We mean that the world shall know all things as they transpire. If we are persecuted and driven men shall know it!

Be wise; let prudence dictate all your counsels; preserve peace with all men, if possible; stand by the constitution of your country; observe its principles; and, above all, show yourselves men of God, worthy citizens; and, we doubt not, community ere long will do you justice and rise in indignation against those who are the instigators of your suffering and affliction.

In the bonds of brotherly love we subscribe ourselves, as ever,

SIDNEY RIGDON,
JOSEPH SMITH, JR.,
OLIVER COWDERY,
F. G. WILLIAMS,
HYRUM SMITH."

To W. W. Phelps and others."

—Messenger and Advocate, vol. 2, p. 359.

The careful reader of the foregoing will perceive the unchristian, unlawful, un-American grounds on which the Saints were required to move from Clay county; and they will likewise perceive that non-resistance to enemies, and fidelity to civil authority, were manifest in a very notable degree by them. When they were smitten upon "one cheek" in 1833, they now in 1836 turn the other also; and their enemies having taken their "coat" in 1833, they now in 1836, give them their "cloak" also.

The annals of the past fail to furnish a more perfect manifestation of Christian forbearance, self-denial and moral fortitude than was exhibited by the Saints (and their leaders) in their wholesale banishment from Clay county, in which occurred the trampling down of one of the dearest rights of American freemen—the right of migration and settlement when and where they will upon the public domain.

That it was Christian wisdom to remove and not stubbornly stand for their legal and moral rights, all rightminded people must concede. And that the request and advice of the citizens "committee" for them to remove were prudent and timely, all thoughtful and intelligent Saints will admit. But the causes which produced this state of things will forever be condemned by all lovers of equal rights, fair dealing and the humanities of life; while the originators and abettors of these persecutions can but inherit disgrace and infamy wherever the facts become known.

The following letter from Governor Dunklin shows the desperate condition of affairs in Clay, Jackson, and adjoining counties at that time, and how powerless he was in administering the laws and redressing the wrongs of a sorely persecuted and afflicted people:

"CITY OF JEFFERSON, July 18th, 1836.

MESSRS. W. W. PHELPS AND OTHERS, Gentlemen.—The treatment your people have received, and are now receiving, is of an extraordinary character, such as is seldom experienced in any country by any people. As an individual I sympathize with you; and as the Executive of the State, deeply deplore such a state of things. Your appeal to the Executive is a natural one; but a proper understanding of our institutions will show you, that yours is a case not for the special cognizance of the Executive. It is a case, or, I may say, they are cases of individual wrong. These, as I have before told you, are subjects for judicial interference; and there are cases, sometimes, of individual outrage which may be so popular as to render the action of courts of justice nugatory, in endeavoring to afford a remedy. I would refer you to the charge of Judge Lawless, made to the Grand Jury of St. Louis. Public sentiment may become paramount law; and when one man, or society of men, become so obnoxious to that sentiment, as to determine the people to be rid of him or them, it is useless to run counter to it.

The time was when the people (except those in Jackson county) were divided, and the major part in your favor; that does not now seem to be the case. Why is this so? Does your conduct merit such censures as exist against you? It is not necessary for me to give my opinion. Your neighbors accuse your people of holding illicit communications with the Indians, and of being opposed to slavery. You deny. Whether the charge, or the denial, is true, I can not tell. The fact exists, and your neighbors seem to believe it true; and whether true or false, the consequences will be the same (if your opponents are not merely gasconading), unless you can, by your conduct and arguments, convince them of your innocence. If you can not do this, all I can say to you is, that in this Republic the vox populi is the vox dei.

Yours respectfully,

DANIEL DUNKLIN."

—Millennial Star, vol. 15, p. 830.

In this letter of the Governor is seen the popular charges then urged against the Saints, namely, "holding illicit communication with the Indians, and of being opposed to slavery." But he should not have forgotten the fact, that the vox populi of a mobocratic section of Missouri was not that of our "Republic." It was this kind of a vox populi that a portion of Missouri afterward sought to make all-potent in Kansas in 1854 and later, and what Rhode-Island and South Carolina, and the Southern States, deceived and harmed themselves with in their time, and is but the lawless clamoring of the few of the Republic who violate its sacred guarantees, trample upon the laws of the State and nation, and outrage the dearest rights and privileges of the citizen.

It will be proper to bear in mind that, while the Saints were decidedly opposed to human slavery, and necessarily so from the teaching of the Book of Mormon, (See 2 Nephi 11: 16; Alma 15: 10, 12, etc), also the teaching of the Doctrine and Covenants, (sections 95: 2; 98: 10; 1: 3, 4, etc). They nevertheless disapproved that class of "abolitionists" who directly interfered with it where it was established and guaranteed by the laws of the land; for there were abolitionists then and after who sought to stir up slaves against their masters, and who ran off slaves over what was called "The underground railroad." Therefore while they esteemed slavery an evil against God and against the rights and best interests of society and the State, they deemed it proper and Christian to leave its adjustment with the nation and the States where it originated and by whom it was sustained. This was the position of the Saints both in the eastern States and in Missouri. But the fact that the Saints were "eastern men," and that they held human slavery to be wrong in principle, afforded a ready pretext for their enemies to surmise evil and circulate inflammatory falsehoods against them.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE are pleased to see in the Yaquina Post, of Yaquina, Oregon, dated October 22d, that Bro. A. Haws was permitted to explain through it the leading features of the faith of the church and to show its position in respect to marriage. This he did in a concise and very plain and comprehensive manner, using no useless words or arguments, and by this encouraging the average reader to peruse it and learn its facts. This rule should be strictly observed by the Saints if they will have their articles in newspapers, or in their own papers, noticed and thoroughly read. Wordiness wearies. Directness attracts.

You will be interested in reading Elder I. N. White's letter in the last issue.

President Joseph Smith returned October 31st from his trip to Des Moines, where he lectured on temperance the evening of the 28th, as was seen in our last issue, and tarried over Sunday, preaching in the morning and evening. He reported fair attendance, especially in the evening. On the third instant he started for Plano, Illinois, and East Delavan, Wisconsin, at which place he was to assist in the dedication of the Saints' new chapel.

In a recent letter to the Herald Office, Bro. John Hollar, of Healdsburg, California, expresses his satisfaction with the church and a determination to press forward in the good work.

From a letter written November 2d, by Bro. E. C. Brown, of Spadra, California, to Bro. Dancer, we learn he is preaching among a very intelligent people there, has the use of a fine hall, lighted free, and by unanimous vote of his large congregations was to continue in services.

Sr. Zella Barkdoll wrote from Oelrichs, Dakotah, November 6th, asking that an elder visit them and labor in that place and vicinity. Bro Warren, formerly of Little Sioux, Iowa, keeps a hotel, and will furnish a home for a faithful minister while laboring there.

Bro. W. R. Armstrong sends us, from England, the Manchester News; and some one sends from there the London News. Thanks.

Bro. W. J. Smith wrote from Irondale, Ontario, November 4th, saying: "The good work is still rolling on in spite of opposing powers. I baptized eight yesterday and two more to-day."

THE "NEWS" AT FAULT.

IN the following statement, clipped from a recent issue of the Deseret News, a huge error is seen when it says that Independence, Missouri, "with its environs once belonged to the Saints;" and also when it states that "a parcel of land in the central part of the town was . . . designated and dedicated as a site for a temple." The temple lot was located on a piece of land then to the west of the town plat; and besides this the Saints owned but a small part of the town, and but a small part of the county outside. Give us facts.

HISTORIC GROUND.

"Elsewhere in this issue appears a communication which is in part descriptive of a region in which the Latter Day Saints feel a peculiar interest. We refer to the letter written from Independence, Missouri, a town which, with its environs, once belonged to them. Under the directions of revelation they bought and paid for the land, and a parcel of ground in the central part of the town was, by the same authority, designated and dedicated as a site for a Temple, concerning which glorious things are foretold. However improbable the fruition of their hopes may at the present time appear the Saints have faith that they will regain possession of the land embracing the town of Independence, and that they will build thereon a city of great beauty.

Many hallowed memories center in this former home of the Saints. Recollections of the commandments and promises which led them thither, of a brief period of prosperity upon the fertile soil of the locality, followed by terrible scenes of suffering, blood and banishment, are recalled when reference is made to it. Hence news from "Jackson County" is read with deep interest by many people in Utah."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. R. M. Elvin wrote us November 7th:

"For what I conceive to be good and sufficient reasons, I have concluded to change my home; and my address from this date will be, Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa."

Bro. J. A. Currie, jr., wrote from Senior, Texas, November 4th:

"I am now to start for Stockdale; have just closed meetings here; preached seven times; never had such excellent liberty; and have baptized four."

"Do not stop my paper. I have read the Herald since I have been here, and then gave it to others to read. By so doing quite a number have now a correct understanding of our faith."

Thus writes Bro. J. S. Harding, of Dalton, Summer county, Kansas.

A letter from Bro. A. H. Parsons, dated at Springfield, Kansas, November 4th, says:

"The work is onward. Baptized one a few days ago, and will baptize two to-morrow."

Elder Stephen Maloney wrote Bro. H. A. Stebbins from Prairie City, Indian Territory, November 4th, that he had begun preaching among the Cherokee Indians, and says:

"They carry a good influence with them. My mind and feelings go out toward the full bloods more than toward the whites. They are a moral people and anxious to hear of their history, which I am anxious they should; and with my heavenly Father's assistance they shall. . . . I have met nine members of the church since I came—all scattered. One brother, a Cherokee, is priest."

Bro. T. J. Martin wrote from Detroit, Minnesota, October 31st:

"We are anxious to see Bro. Alexander. My work will be in such shape that I can be with him for some time, commencing the last of November; and I hope others also will spend some of their time. We are having some good meetings. God gives us of his Spirit and we are trying to 'press on.'"

Bro. James Bannister of Vanessa, Ontario, wrote us October 30th, saying:

"We are feeling stronger in the faith of this latter day work. It seems a long time since an Elder was here, and we are getting very hungry. We hope Bro. R. C. Evans will soon return here."

LAZARUS AND THE RICH MAN.

SOME one asks us to "explain the parable of Lazarus and the rich man;" and we reply first, that Jesus did not say it was a parable; and, second, that it explains itself, for Jesus undoubtedly said what he meant, and meant just what he said. It was and is no parable that both rich and poor die and are buried. Neither was it nor is it a parable that the wicked are "turned into hell" at death, and that the righteous at death go to paradise—or (what was known to the faithful Jews as the same) to "Abraham's bosom."

ZION'S HOPE

Is published every Saturday by the Church of Christ, at Lamoni, Iowa. Single copies, per year, 50c; packages of four to ten 40c; packages of over ten 35c.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

DUNCAN'S MILLS, Cal., Oct. 23d.

Dear Sister Frances:—I have long felt it my duty to tell of some of God's mercies to me, for He has shown his love for me many times. I relate my first vision—in fact the only vision I ever had when I was awake—I have had many dreams). I was thirteen years of age when I became afflicted with the white swelling which has made a cripple of me. I worried a great deal about dying and leaving my mother. One day about noon there appeared a small, pale blue door above me. The bottom of the door was only about a foot above me, and it looked like water had dashed against it until it was nearly white. The door opened about half way, and there appeared the form of a man with a loose, white garment on. He had black hair and dark eyes, and seemed like a divine personage. He called me by name and said, "I will not take you from your mother now;" then all disappeared. I told my mother in the presence of a young lady and gentleman. The lady thought I must be wandering; but, dear readers, I was not. It was a reality which I will never forget. That was nineteen years ago, before I ever heard the gospel preached. I never recovered from the sickness entirely. I was healed in a great measure; when I was sixteen years of age brethren Clapp and Gillen administered to me. I was not able to turn over or sit up in bed; but it was not an hour after they had administered to me when I sat up in bed. The next morning I turned myself over in bed, and that evening I sat on the side of my bed, and continued to improve. Four days before I was administered to the doctor had given me up to die. He told me if I had my limb amputated there was one chance out of a hundred for me, but if I did not it would be sure death for me. I still live. I have prayed for help many times when I was in pain, when the pain would cease in a few minutes. Last May I was suffering terribly. They telegraphed to Bro. Brown, of Oakland, but he could not come. He administered to me where he was, and at another time my baby was sick, when Bro. Brown administered to her and she was healed. So, God will heal us if we trust him, although the Elder is not present. God does not require impossibilities of us. I have been warned of troubles many times by dreams. I have buried four darling little babies, and before each of them died I dreamed of their death. I have been a member of the Latter Day Saints' church for sixteen years, and with God's help, will die a member.

Your sister in the covenant,

TRYPHENA CASE.

LITTLE SIOUX, Iowa, Oct. 20th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—While reading sister S. A. Rose's letter in this week's Herald, I felt the fire of the Holy Spirit testifying to God's love for all who seek to obey his holy commands. Yes indeed, "all" means "all," as presented to sister Sarah. How could God be merciful and cast off some faithful devoted lover of his truth, if they should fail to always dress just as some or many might presume to say they ought. Truly the secrets of every heart are known to God, and he alone is able to judge us.

How reasonable it seems to think of God requiring "all who have judgment to use it, to be wise." If he has given us but just one talent, we are going to be asked how we have used it; and the question will be of as much importance as if asked in regard to how we had used ten talents. I am glad that the work of the Lord is an individual one as well as collective one, for this gives every one something to do; and if done with an eye single to the glory of God, whether it be much or little, we will have our reward. I always feel that I am one of the least in the Kingdom; but this is no excuse for me not to try to do all I can in my weakness to honor my heavenly Father. I love the gospel more and more, and I hope to so live (with God's help) as to receive that perfect love which casteth out all fear. I find the religion of our Savior to bring the only comfort which we are sure will stay with us; we may have much of the comforts of this world to-day, and to-morrow be penniless. I think the admonition in scripture a good one that says: "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust doth not corrupt or thieves break through and steal." When I see men and women laboring hard, suffering many discomforts, toiling day after day, and seeming to have no object in life only to gain this world's goods, the saying of scripture comes forcibly to my mind of the man who had so much wealth he had not room for it until he tore down his barns and built larger. He says to himself when he gets this done he is going to say, "Soul take thy rest;" and the Master says, "Thou fool, this night shall thy soul be required of thee." I feel to pity people who have nothing to live for except the wealth of this world. Riches are desirable to have, but I think all who forget God in the pursuit of them ought to learn the verse in the good book which says, "What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" And with the truth of this scripture in mind, think of the uncertainty of life. I have to stop many times, in the performance of temporal duties, and meditate upon the saying of scripture: "Be not overcome with the cares of life or the deceitfulness of riches;" and the meditation has helped me to check an undue desire for the comforts of this life. I would loose my ambition to the extent of trying not to let it overcome me and think how good and wise God is. How perfectly he understands human nature, and in what plainness he has taught us the way of life!

In conclusion I send a little clipping in which my sentiment of home influence is expressed better than I can express it.

MRS. GEO. S. HYDE.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Oct. 20th.

Dear Sisters in the Faith:— I am the mother of five children, the oldest, a daughter, if living would be nine years old the 29th of October, but she was taken to join the happy band in the paradise of God, where she is with joy waiting to welcome me, and oh! my soul yearns the more earnestly to be prepared to meet her. Three sons and one daughter are still entrusted to my care, and like many of the sisters whose letters I read with sympathy, I feel the responsibility, knowing how much depends upon the mother and the efforts she makes to lead them in the straight and narrow path.

Dear sisters; I for one feel to praise God that the light of this gospel ever dawned upon my soul. For several years previous to my uniting with the saints I had been anxiously pleading with God for a remission of my sins. I had been attending the Methodist church and had been impressed with a sense of my unsaved condition, and my friends, seeing my anxiety, prayed God that I might be saved; and at times I felt a peace within, feeling conscientiously that I had repented and done all in my power. Still, when darkness came over me, doubts would creep in. I felt that I had only been imagining my sins were forgiven; and having no testimony, I would again be almost without hope; for I never could say that my sins were remitted; but while visiting my brother William Lively, at London, Canada, he told me he had joined the Latter Day Saints, and invited me to go with him to hear them preach; and I do thank God that I had no prejudice in my heart against the saints. When I went to the little church and preaching hour came on, seeing our young brother John Cornish step up and take the stand, he being but a boy, I certainly did not expect to hear much of a sermon, but he opened the meeting and began to preach. None but those who knew him can imagine my astonishment. The way he unfolded the plan of eternal life, and made the truth shine forth, while a look of joy and gladness beamed from his countenance, I can hardly describe. I became interested at once, and taking the tracts that were handed me, I took my bible, when I reached home, and compared them; and seeing the harmony I felt satisfied this must be the true church and kingdom of God. So, after attending a few meetings, I decided to be baptized. I felt somewhat troubled, for I was such a distance from my parents that I could not ask their consent; but feeling that I could not wait, I prayed and fasted, asking God that he might so manifest himself to me that I should never doubt the work. After prayer-meeting on Wednesday night, I think, about the 27th of December we started for the river, which was some distance from the church; and as there had been a thaw the roads were very muddy and slippery, and the night was very dark, and the saints were continually stumbling and falling in the mud. We reached the river about eleven o'clock.

It was a night long to be remembered by all the Saints present, especially myself and the other sister who was baptized at the same time. There were some thirty persons present, nine of whom were unbelievers who came along laughing and making fun of us. After singing a hymn and the usual ceremony, Bro. John Cornish took my hand to lead me into the water; and as soon as our feet had entered the water it seemed as though the heavens opened; and such a glorious light descended upon us! Just large enough to encircle those in the water and the group of Saints on shore, while outside this light the darkness was intense. It continued to shine upon us until I was immersed, and then wavered upwards and disappeared in the clouds above. All the Saints on shore bowed to the earth praising God; so did the rest except one or two, one of them being our now worthy Bro. Clow, who was persecuting the Saints at that time, he being a teacher of the Methodist faith, and said he felt determined to look and see from whence the light came. All those who witnessed that glorious manifestation from God united with the church shortly after, and from that time to the present my soul has been satisfied that this was God's work; also the faith of the others was strengthened and I know when they read this they will remember with joy that happy hour. After baptism we went to Bro. Williams' house and there we were confirmed, the gift of prophecy resting upon Bro. Cornish, promising me if faithful, many glorious blessings. I feel my unworthiness before my Lord; how the enemy of all souls has sought to destroy my peace and rob me of my crown! But I do trust in the loving kindness of God, who has brought me so far on this journey, that he may pardon my short comings, and for the dear Savior's sake lead me safely to the end.

Dear sisters, we must arise and let our light shine, for the light has come and the glory of God will shine upon us. We may have trials and discouragements, but what are they in comparison to the glory which is to be revealed? And why should we seek to fare so much better than he who came down from the presence of his Father, and was our example in all things. I do feel that if we are humble and faithful in all things, and do not allow pride or the things of this perishing world to engage our time and mind, but put forth a united effort to build up the kingdom, we will receive the smiles of our heavenly Father, and we can look for greater manifestations of his glory and power.

Our new church at Independence is at a standstill at present. The foundation is completed, but the walls are not begun yet. I believe the saints have decided to build the walls of stone. It will be a fine, substantial building when finished. We hope the Saints may be interested and give us a helping hand, for we are in need of a larger building, and it will be for the benefit of all the Saints that come to Zion. Our branch numbers about six hundred, and our church now does not seat over four hundred comfortably. We hope our sisters, far and near, may have a claim on our new church by sending a little aid, for many of our branch are poor and can do but little. We are in hopes of having it ready for the spring conference, and trust by faith and works combined we may accomplish it. I hope to hear from some of the sisters in Canada, through the Home Column. There are many bright testimonies to come from the sisters there, and also our sisters here in Independence; testimonies too glorious to be withheld. I remain your sister in the everlasting covenant,

MRS. R. MAY.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Mary J. Page, San Benito, Cal. ....	$1 00
Sr. Emily W. Davis, San Benito, Cal. ....	50
Sr. Zena C. Page, San Benito, Cal. ....	25
Sr. Lucinda Creamer, San Benito, Cal. ....	1 00
Sr. Jennette Harris, Bozeman, Mont. ....	1 00
Sr. Myrtle Anderson, Clitherall, Minn. ....	42
Sr. Lillie Ackerly, Lamoni, Iowa. ....	12
Sr. S. E. Church, Lamoni, Iowa. ....	67
Sr. Emma Payne, Prairie View, Kan. ....	25
Sr. Caroline Hall, Anderson Point, Me. ....	50
Sr. Christina Hansen, Council Bluffs, Iowa. ....	1 00
Sr. Ida A. Layton, Ontario. ....	30
Sr. Ellen Archibald, Centerville, Iowa. ....	1 00
Sr. Mary Burnett, Centerville, Iowa. ....	1 00
Sr. Lillian Sawyer, Jonesport, Maine. ....	20
Sr. S. Agentine, Omaha, Neb. ....	2 00
A sister, Cormorant, Minn. ....	50
Sr. C. McIntyre, San Bernardino, Cal. ....	1 00
Sr. S. A. Nilsson, San Bernardino, Cal. ....	1 00
Bro. G. W. Hobart, Leon, Kan. ....	50
Sr. Melissa Hobart, Leon, Kan. ....	50
Sr. H. M. Richardson and daughter, Union, Dakotah. ....	1 00
Sr. Mary E. Adams, Eliza, Ill. ....	52
LAMONI, IOWA, November 9th.

No Credit for moneys received on subscription will appear on the Colored Address Label of the Herald for this issue, as no changes have been made, except in case of persons desiring a change in P. O. address.

Correspondence.

CAMBAY, IOWA, Nov. 3d.

Bro. Cochran:—Probably you would like to hear from me. They still let me live. They had the appointments made for the Saturday nights and Sundays during the two weeks I am to be here. People came from five or six miles around, and we had a good crowd. After my meeting Sunday morning I gave liberty for remarks. The Baptist minister went for me a little rough-shod, and I replied to him a little sharp. At that time he had no more to add. In the afternoon I went to hear the M. E. minister, and after he got through I asked to know whether there were to be services there the next Sunday afternoon; if not, I would have meeting there as the Baptist minister would not give way for me in the forenoon. I intended to telegraph for Bro. Joseph to come up Saturday, as many wanted to hear him. So the M. E. minister bounced up and in his remarks held me in distrust. He said as far as he and the Baptist minister were concerned they were of evangelical churches. But as for me, he would have to make some investigation; for as to my faith he knew nothing about me; and he did not know what about it, as he and the Baptist minister had to be very careful who they allowed to occupy their pulpits. I tell you I felt like rebuking them, but thought it best to be wise. I returned on Sunday evening and had a house full; and had good liberty. I realize more and more that it is God's work. In the latter end of my remarks I said some changed the commission—cut it in two—and that the latter part was of no use to some in this age. When I closed I gave liberty, and the Baptist minister went for me very rough. I did not disturb him; and when he set down I must say I never carried a man so in my life. He had said things he could not prove. He misrepresented me and accused me of twisting the scriptures to delude the people, and he wanted me to work a miracle and then he would believe. I went for him lively, and the congregation cheered me. He has nothing to add since, although he attends my meetings every night.

I intended to have meetings only every other night; but when I commenced to make my appointments for the week after the confab Sunday night, up jumped a man near the pulpit and stepped upon the stand and said: "As one of the trustees of this church, I forbid your having this church any longer." Another one arose and said, "I object, too." Another arose, and he was for me; and such a time, I never had. After a great deal of sharp discussion, I had the offer of three school houses to hold meetings in, and six or seven teams to take me to them. So I am holding meetings every night; houses overflowing, and the result is, some of the members of the Methodist Church have requested their names taken off its church book, and they declare they wont stay in such a church. You ought to hear the talk it makes, the uproar beats Allendale. The mass of the people follow me up; my Voice of Warning's are gone; tracts are almost gone; the Lord is at work; the devil is at work also, and by the help of the good Lord, I will keep at work while I stay. Have held five meetings and have six appointments ahead. My folks at this place tell me the people want me to come and hold some meetings, but I can't get time now, for I must stay by my appointments.

Yours in bonds,

T. J. BELL.

FULTON, IOWA, Nov. 1st.

Bro. Smith and Blair:—I am in the faith of the Saints since the 9th of last month, when Elder J. S. Roth baptized my wife and I. We rejoice and are glad that the Lord sent brethren Maitland and Roth into our neighborhood to preach the Bible truth as Christ and his apostles taught, that the signs would follow the believer. The 8th of October, in an evening meeting, there was prophecy given, which I never thought I was worthy to see in this life. We were Baptists for eight years, and served the Lord with all our hearts. I was superintendent of the Sunday School, secretary and treasurer of the church, was in good standing, but was not satisfied. When I prayed I said: Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? Show me the way, and I will follow! The Lord did show me the everlasting gospel, and gave me a willing heart to follow. There were nine of us baptized near here this summer; this makes ten Saints here in all. Bro. Maitland baptized two the 23d of last month, and the Lord was with us. There are others near being Saints—all they need is baptizing—but they say they could not live at home if they were Saints. Others say they never heard the Bible explained so plain in all their life. Some of the Baptists are with us with all their heart, only they can not see through being baptized again. May the Lord lead them soon to his light.

I had a talk with a Reverend, lately, and he said, "Just think; you a farmer, with a scant school education, and want to know more than me, a minister of over twenty years' preaching!"

We love the Herald very well; it is so full of sound reading, and spicy news from all over.

Brethren Roth and Maitland are laboring at other points in the district. May the Lord keep them meek and lowly in his service, that they may be a blessing to many souls yet.

Yours in the Lord,

JOHN HEIDE.

RUNNING WATER, Dak., Nov. 3d.

Dear Editors:—I came into this territory two weeks yesterday, going first to the home of Bro. John Patten. There I preached but twice; once at the school house and once at Bro. Patten's home. The interest seemed poor. From there brother and sister Patten brought me down to Springfield, some thirty-five miles, where I preached five times and baptized one—Sarah J. Allen—who had been baptized into the old church after the martyrdom, and into the Reorganized by John S. Burton. Not feeling satisfied with this last baptism, and as she was only eight years old at the first, she desired that I should baptize her.

The first four of my services at the above place were poorly attended; but on Sunday the word was brought to this place, and out of curiosity to hear a "Mormon," the lumberman, one of the merchants, et al, in all two loads, were up to hear. At the close of services a gentleman by the name of Cooper, and wife, came to me extending a warm invitation to "come over and help us." The lady belongs to the Congregational church, and I am stopping with them. He is a non-professor. At dinner yesterday she said she could see no reason why ministers should not have the same authority, as in apostolic times. We went yesterday and secured the waiting room of the depot, which is furnished with an organ. On my arrival for service, the room was full and seemingly expectant. A young lady—the daughter of the merchant, Hopkins by name, who attended at Springfield, was willing to preside at the organ. "Is there a God?" was the subject of our remarks, and the Spirit's presence was manifest in power. In fact, it seems that I never witnessed such a full realization of God's power to bless as on last evening and Sunday evening. That God had a special work for me in this territory now seems to manifest itself. I am yet some seventy-five miles from Bro. Hogaboom; but I trust you will not criticize harshly my slow movements and the opening up of these new fields. To put a boy to the breaking plow alone seems hard; but God can sustain. O, pray for me, that I may be sustained! How earnestly, day by day, do I pray to God to keep me humble; for long ago did I learn the folly of thinking that I could accomplish anything alone. I am in need of your special intercession and advice. Bloomington, in Charles Mix county, is my next objective point; but shall try to be "led."

In bonds,

J. W. WIGHT.

St. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 4th.

Bro. Blair:—I preached in Kingston, Missouri, the late field of battle, on Sunday, October 30th, at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. to a crowded house, and replied to Braden's lectures on Monday and Tuesday nights following. The hall was literally packed, notwithstanding Clark Braden and Co. had got a paper signed by a small number of the citizens of Kingston stating that if I did not accept Braden's propositions they did not want to hear any more of my preaching there. I told the people I was afraid if Braden and Co. got another paper signed like the first, we would have to secure a larger hall to hold the people.

By the help of God I was able to answer Mr. Braden's objections, and to maintain our position to the satisfaction of all except the few that compose the Braden clique. Our friends before Mr. Braden visited Kingston to destroy the work with slang and slander, are, I am happy to say, our friends still, with additional ones. The work never stood better there. And I am sure I speak the truth when I say that Clark Braden has done the cause no harm in Kingston. I feel quite satisfied that we have made so favorable an impression there for our cause that he, with all the slang and calumny, will not move it. The best minds of Kingston unhesitatingly declare that Clark Braden is the man who backed down concerning the talked of discussion.

A few minutes before time for meeting on Tuesday night, while I was in conversation with Bro. Ware, an old gentleman passed along, and Bro. Ware called my attention to him, saying: "That is Mr. Murphy, of Polo, who says David Whitmer denied to him the testimony he had borne concerning the Book of Mormon." Like a shock of electricity it came to me that he had come there to attend the meeting, and tell it to the people after I was through. Acting upon this, I procured David Whitmer's "Address," containing his proclamation, found on page 8, "in answer to one John Murphy, of Polo, Caldwell county, Missouri," and laid it on the table before me. During my lecture I read the testimony of the witnesses to the Book of Mormon; and sure enough, Mr. Murphy, who had been sitting directly in front of me, and was heavily "loaded with his paper wad;" after I was through, without asking permission, rose up and told the people that David Whitmer denied to him, of seeing the angel, &c. After he was through, I asked him to please tell the congregation his name. He said it was John Murphy. I then read David Whitmer's proclamation, stating that one John Murphy, of Polo, Caldwell county, Missouri, had said that he (Whitmer) had denied his testimony to him concerning the Book of Mormon; and I also read the certificate signed by a number of the best citizens of Richmond touching David Whitmer's character for truth and veracity. The old man dropped, and I am sure it was the hardest fall he ever got. He had come eight miles to tell that lie. But it proved a terrible expose of his iniquity, and a "boomerang" indeed. In conclusion, I rejoice to say that the flag floats high, God's eternal truth stands unsullied and continues victorious in Kingston.

Yours in bonds,

H. C. BRONSON.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 31st.

Bro. Joseph.—I have been laboring in the Independence district; have been greatly blessed in the work; the calls for preaching are increasing; the people seem to be dissatisfied with man-made theories and are looking for something better. Last June I went into Hickory county to baptize Bro. and Sr. Brown. They had moved there from Cedar county, where they had previously heard the gospel. While there I obtained the use of the Concord school house, near Elkton, where the Holiness and Methodist people had been holding forth and were to continue. But the last time I was there I learned that both parties had given up and the people were looking to us for preaching. On one occasion the congregation was estimated at six hundred. On the 9th of this month I spoke there to a house full of interested listeners. Some good people there are almost persuaded. At Rich Hill, and in the mining camp, I labored for three weeks with good interest; baptized six at that place and left many others near the kingdom. After being refused the Knights of Labor hall, with the assistance of Sr. Lerry I obtained the Opera House for three nights, and, notwithstanding the rain, we had a very good hearing. Some of the Saints have moved there from Lucas and are doing well. Their honest and upright dealing with the world gives prestige to the work. Many of the other Saints in other parts of the district are doing much good. Bro. I. N. White and E. Curtis are doing a good work. Others are laboring some. The building committee and Sisters' Aid Society of Independence are doing all they can to have the church ready for spring conference. It will be greatly needed as there is no place in town now suitable for them to meet in.

I came here last Saturday by request of Bro. Lambert, to assist Bro. Gillen in his field until spring. I find there is plenty of work here, and

I hope my coming may be profitable to the church. My faith in the accomplishment of the work in the near future grows stronger day by day. I feel that we have no time to waste, for the day of preparation is here. It seems to me but few comprehend the signs of the times and the coming great events.

Yours in the faith,

H. H. ROBINSON.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE WOMAN AND HER CHILD.

REVELATIONS XII.

IN the attempt of the writer of the following thoughts, to explain the revelation of John concerning the "woman and child" of chapter 12, nothing dogmatic is assumed. If any one has anything better to offer; the writer would be glad to see it; for light and truth is what he desires. The position generally assumed, by the elders of the church, that the woman represents the Church of Christ, as established eighteen centuries ago, and that the man-child represents the priesthood, or authority of the church is open to the following objections. 1st. The woman brings forth, or is the mother of the child; and if the child is the priesthood, then the Church of Christ—i. e. the mother—existed before there was any priesthood or child, and gave birth to the priesthood, whereas the reverse was the case, for the priesthood existed first, and brought forth the church, or the child was the father of his own mother!

Now the fact is that the priesthood formed the body of the woman, or the chief part of her body. Paul represents the church by the figure of a human body, and declared that as the body had many members, so the church being the body of Christ has members, and he asserts that the members are the various officers and gifts of the Holy Spirit. He says "Now ye are the body of Christ and members in particular. And God hath set some in the church, firstly apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that gifts of miracles, gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues." Now if he does not mean that the various officers and gifts named are members of the woman's body, what in the name of common sense does he mean, providing the woman means the church?

2. If it be granted that the various officers and gifts of the Spirit are the members of the body of Christ, or the church, and that church is the bride of Christ, and therefore a woman, can the woman exist without her members? Would she be a body without eyes, ears, tongue, arms, legs, and other members of the body? Now suppose the priesthood, or in other words, the principal and most important members of the woman's body are taken away; ascend to heaven for instance, what is left? The woman? Well, hardly. If the priesthood is taken away is the church left? If so, the priesthood is not essential to the formation or organization of the church, nor necessary to her existence, and we might as well admit what is claimed by many, that the Church of Christ is not an organization, but is an invisible church composed of individual Christians among all churches.

3. The woman is a perfect woman, a proper representative of a perfect organization. The man-child is also a perfect form, or type of an organization complete. The figure represents an organization of which a woman, a glorious woman, is the type, and the man-child as the type of a strong government—growing out of, or springing from, the other organization.

If this is so, then the priesthood must grow out of the church, and be as distinct from the church, as a child is when born and separated from its mother. And both mother and child exist separately as the revelation shows. The woman remains a woman still, after her child is born, all her members remain, or the priesthood (her chief members) are still playing their part in her organism.

The loss of the priesthood, or in other words, the loss of the members of the woman's body, could mean no more or less than the death or destruction of the woman. And the separation of the child (or priesthood) from the mother (or church) would be equivalent to the death of the mother and child in this case, for one can not exist without the other.

4. The woman was driven into the wilderness by persecution; her child was caught away to God and his throne because of persecution, but in the history of the church, the priesthood led the church into apostacy, and that after persecution had pretty generally ceased. In other words the woman and her child (the priesthood) remained together, while persecution lasted. If going into a state of apostacy means going into the wilderness, then the woman and her child went together, the child taking the lead, supposing the child to be the priesthood. The persecution of the woman takes place after her deliverance of the man-child; now if that deliverance means the taking of the authority of the priesthood to heaven because of apostacy, it so happens that at the very time the priesthood or authority is supposed to have been taken away because of apostacy, persecution entirely ceased. It was a marriage of the woman (fallen of course) with the devil's prime minister, instead of being persecuted by his Satanic Majesty.

5. There can be no satisfactory date fixed for the going of the woman into the wilderness of apostacy, (if that was the wilderness), that would fit an exit from the wilderness. Counting 1260 years back from 1823—or 1830 the date of her supposed return from the wilderness, it will land us at the year 563 A. D., or 570 A. D.; and who will say that the priesthood left the church, and went to heaven at that date; if John Wesley was correct, in that about 200 years before or in the Emperor Constantine's day, the church had turned back into heathenism, and was but a dead form, and had lost the Spirit of God. And to commence the date of going into the wilderness at Constantine's day, would require the 1260 years to end about the beginning of the sixteenth century, fitting the beginning of the reformation of Luther and Co., instead of the work of Joseph Smith.

6. It will not do to say the man-child was Christ, and at the same time call the woman the Church of Christ; for the simple reason that Christ is the husband of that church, instead of her son. And in fact, he is the founder and organizer, and the builder of the church. The church sprang from him, rather than he from the church. He is more the father of the church, than she is his mother. If the man-child be Christ, (and it looks that way) the theory must be abandoned at once that the woman is the Church of Christ. The man-child was to "rule all nations with a rod of iron," and that Rev. 19: 15 declares Christ shall do. If Rev. 2: 27 does apply to those "who overcome," or "he that overcometh," it can not apply to the ministry alone, but to all faithful Saints. It means the same thing as Rev. 3: 21. But suppose the man-child means Christ and his ministry; the woman or the church of Christ can not be the mother of either Christ, or the priesthood or ministry for reasons already given. Whether we can give any better theory, exegetical of the subject can be judged after we make the attempt. If the translation made by Joseph Smith be accepted as authority, the statement is made in it, that the woman was the church of God.

THE CHURCH OF GOD—THE WOMAN.

It says that the woman was the Church of God does it? says one. Yes, so it reads. "Well that is just what we believe; the woman is the Church of Jesus Christ." But we have not said "the Church of Jesus Christ." "Well it means that any how." But if so, then the child is not Christ, nor his priesthood, and what then is it? We must either find the Church of God to be something else that the Church that Christ established eighteen centuries ago, or discover the man-child to be something else than Christ or the priesthood.

It will be well to keep the seventeenth verse of this chapter in mind all the time while attempting to unravel this subject; and the troublesome point affecting the whole subject will there be seen in the phrase "the remnant of her seed;" for if the woman is the Church of Christ, and her child is the priesthood of that Church, who or what is the "remnant of her seed," or her other children? If the priesthood left the earth, and what was left was the rest of the Church, or the woman, then the woman and the remnant of her seed are made to be the one, and the same thing! But if there is another organization that was known as the Church of God, we may be helped out of the difficulty.

There was a "Church in the wilderness," Acts vii: 38. God was its author, and its lawgiver. Was she clothed with the sun? Yes, if God's Spirit was given that Church. If God revealed his will through prophets. If they had the power of God with them. Had she the moon under her feet? Yes, she stood upon the moral law; the light lesser than the gospel it is true, but a light nevertheless. It was under her feet, not as something to be trampled in the dust, but as a foundation for her feet, a support. As stars upon her head, were the twelve patriarchs, or twelve tribes of Israel. It was an organization—an organized Church. What or who was her child?

THE MAN CHILD, THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

A kingdom can not exist without a king at its head. It is called a kingdom because governed by a king. The church that Jesus established is called "The Kingdom of God." It is not called the kingdom of Christ, because Christ is not yet a king; the church is his wife or bride; he is the head of it in the same sense that the husband is the head of the wife. As the church is called "The Kingdom of God," a man-child would be a very proper representative of it. When the church is spoken of as a church a woman is a proper figure, as it is the bride of Christ. But when called a kingdom, a man-child is a proper figure or representative of it. The Papacy is represented when as a church, by a great harlot; but as a kingdom or a government exercising temporal power, or ruling over the world, it is represented by a lion, and is placed in the masculine gender. See Dan. 7: 24-26 where it is also called a king, or kingdom. It was first a church and then a kingdom.

The church is not a kingdom in fact yet; neither is Christ, her head, a king in fact as yet. But as he is heir of a kingdom, and the church are fellow heirs with him, it together, Christ and the church may be called a kingdom.

Right here the Utah church has made a great blunder; instead of understanding that the "kingdom" will be developed out of the church; forgetting that the order of heaven is, first spiritual, then temporal; that man, and all created things, were created first spiritually, before they were created naturally or temporally on the earth; they have vainly imagined that the church is now a kingdom and have been mixing up church and state, or religion and politics, whereas Jesus emphatically declares that "My kingdom is not of this world." He does not say not of this "age," i. e. the age in which he spoke, for he uses not the word "aion" but "kosmos," the world, this world; because it will be established in the world to come, and by the destruction of the kingdoms of this world.

The church is the kingdom of God by election, it is a kingdom prospectively. Christ is the appointed king. At present he is a Prince, i. e., an heir expectant to the kingdom. Grover Cleveland was elected President of the United States, in November, 1884, but he did not become President in fact, or at least did not assume his office until March 4th, 1885, nor could he act in that office until inaugurated.

Now when shall the kingdom of God and his Christ be established as a kingdom in the proper or fullest sense of the term? Not until the day of judgment, or the coming of Christ, "And the seventh angel sounded, and there were great voices in heaven saying, The kingdoms of this world, are become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ."—Rev. 11: 15. Another point will help us to settle this question. This man-child is to rule all nations with a rod of iron, now this same power is to be given to Christ, Rev. 19: 15, but it also is promised the faithful of the church, Rev. 11: 26, 27, also Psalm 149: 7-9, and Rev. 3: 21. Christ represents himself as a nobleman going into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and to return. He does not go to the kingdom to take possession of it, in the "far country," but to obtain the authority to reign from the Emperor, (the Father). It was the custom at the time Jesus used this parable, for such men as had been chosen by the Emperor at Rome—to go to that city, and receive authority or power from the hands of the Emperor, and then clothed with this authority, they returned and took possession of the provinces over which they were appointed to reign as kings. This man-child is to rule all nation, not has ruled, that is his appointment; while waiting for the time to come, to return and take possession of his kingdom; he sits with the Father in his throne i. e. the Father's throne, but when he comes in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he set up the throne of his (own) glory.—Matt. 15: 31. Seated now on his Father's throne—because he has overcome, he promises to those of his Church who overcome, that they shall sit with him in his throne. The original Twelve were selected to reign in his kingdom over the twelve tribes of Israel.

That kingdom that his Father had appointed him, he had not then taken possession of. It was in a disorganized condition, it was not ready for him. He could not give the kingdom to his apostles until it came into his possession. He appointed the kingdom to the Twelve (or their portion of it), as the Father had appointed him, and that appointment was made many centuries before, and is not fulfilled as yet. He is its king by appointment and right, and he calls it "my kingdom." The apostles were made kings by appointment, and all others who are heirs of the kingdom are kings and priests by appointment; therefore John could say, "Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood; and hath made us kings and priests unto God, and his Father, to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen."—Rev. 1: 56. But when the seventh angel sounds, at the time of the end, when the nations are angry, and the time of the dead to be judged, and the time to reward the Saints, then will it be that it will be said, "We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty which art, and wast, and art to come; because thou hast taken to thee thy great power, and hast reigned." Then the kingdoms of this world, become the kingdoms of the Lord and his Christ.

I understand that Christ and the faithful and worthy ones of his church are the kingdom of God. Out of the Jewish Church—or church of God—Christ was born, and also his apostles, and others who are to reign as kings and priests of God. “Salvation is of the Jews.” “For if the first fruit be holy, the lump is also holy; and if the root be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild olive tree, are grafted in among them, and with them partakers of the root and fatness of the olive tree; boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee.” But if the olive tree was cut down (the Abrahamic covenant and promises destroyed), what would have become of the wild olive? Paul says some of the branches were broken off, to make place for the wild olive branches, or at least they were grafted into their place. But how about the branches that were not broken off? or in other words, the other tribes of Israel than Judah and Benjamin and a portion of Levi? Jesus taught that he had other sheep, which should hear his voice. I use the word hear in the sense of hearken to, which I believe is the true sense of it. The Jews did not hear, hence failed to become his true sheep; that is, the rulers of the people did not hear. Some did hear. “He came to his own, but his own received him not [i e not all] but as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God [fellow heirs with him; therefore the kingdom of God] even to them that believe on his name. In the western hemisphere he found sheep who heard his voice. He established his church among them. He informed them that he still had other sheep, i e, the ten tribes in the north country. He was to teach them and establish his church among them. The apostles in the land of Palestine were Jews and part of Christ’s kingdom, and are appointed to be kings. The first church established was a church made up of Jews and converts to the Jewish faith. Christ was a Jew, and was baptized by a Jew. If Moses and Elias conferred any authority on Peter, James and John, that authority came from Israelites in the flesh. Can we question then, that as all the authority and power of the Church of Christ came from the church of God, (or as we may call it by way of distinction from the others, the “Jewish church), was the mother of the church of Christ, or of Christ and his church or the kingdom of God.” Christ was caught up to God and his throne, but we have the fact recorded that the martyrs of Jesus are also in heaven, for John saw them there; he saw that “a great multitude which no man can number, of all nations, kindred, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands;” and “these are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore they are before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple; and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them.”—Rev. 7: 9, 14, 15. This same class are referred to in Rev. 20: 4: “I saw thrones and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them. And I saw also the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and the word of God, which had not worshipped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years.” This proves them to be kings and priests who shall compose the kingdom of God.

This beast, the fourth kingdom of Daniel, and little horn; and the seven-headed and ten-horned beast of John, is seen to have made war on the Saints, and to have prevailed against them. These martyrs for Jesus are not dead, or unconscious as some suppose. They are dead as to the flesh, it is true; but their spirits, or “souls” as John calls them, are in heaven. It can not be doubted that all the martyrs of Jesus, including, of course, the early apostles, have been “caught up to God and his throne;” for the Revelator John saw the “souls of them that were slain for the word of God, and for the testimony which they held.” These souls were under the altar of incense, which was before the throne of God. (See Rev. 8: 3, 4; 9: 13). The woman brought forth Christ and these early martyrs. They were all born of “the woman;” and together they composed the child—the kingdom of God.

After the child was born, and caught up to God and his throne, even the children of the kingdom, the woman fled into the wilderness—not of apostacy, but into a place of refuge—where God had prepared a place for her, and where she is nourished from the face of the serpent, or where the devil does not find her. But she is kept by the power of God.

In different parts of the earth, notably in the center of China, a vast body of Jews have been discovered who still keep up the ancient feasts, and holy days, and the service of their father’s religion; or, in other words, maintain a church organization, and as they do not know any thing of Christ, but do have a knowledge of God, the Father, they can be called the “Church of God,” which the Inspired Translation calls the “woman.”

It would seem that the woman is persecuted again after a battle is fought in heaven between Michael and his angels, and the devil and his angels. For it reads, that when the devil saw he was cast into the church [“unto the earth.” Ed.] he persecuted the woman, who flies upon eagle’s wings into the place prepared for her, where she is nourished for a time, and times and half time, or 1260 years. The language is very similar to that used in the 6th verse. Now I wish to call attention to the fact that, if this battle is yet to be fought, the woman must flee the second time into the wilderness—for 1260 years, which would make 2520 years, which, if we commence at the year 70 even, will make the first series reach to 1330, A D; and the other would reach from that time till A. D. 2590, or until 703 years hence, and if the battle is fought at Christ’s coming, as is generally believed, it will reach 260 years beyond the millenium.

There is only one way out of the difficulty, and that is to find the battle fought, before the woman flees into the wilderness, or soon after the birth of her child; and then by considering the 6th and 14th verses as descriptive of the same event and covering the same period, there will be no difficulty; for the 13th verse clearly shows that the devil persecutes the woman after he is cast out of heaven, as a result of the battle. Read carefully the 7th to 14th verses of chapter 12. How there must be an application or a meaning for the words of Christ in Luke 10: 18: “And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.” Now let us see the connection: “And the Seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, [does this mean devils?] and over all the power of the enemy, [the devil] and nothing shall by any means hurt you.” Please read to the 24th verse. Now note these words: “All things are delivered to me of my Father.”—verse 22. “All power is given me in heaven and on earth.”—Matt. 28: 18. “And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to usward who believe according to the working of his mighty power; which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places; far above all principality and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world but that which is to come; and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things to the church.”—Eph. 1: 19, 22. And what do these words mean? “Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out.” Who is the prince of this world? Christ himself? Nay. “Hereafter I will not talk much with you; for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.”—John 14: 30. “But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ who is the image of God should shine unto them.”—2 Cor. 4: 4. “Wherein in times past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience.”—Eph. 2: 2. “For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world; against spiritual wickedness in high places.”—6: 12. The prince, or God of this world, therefore, is the Devil or Satan. Jesus saw him fall from heaven as lightning. He said he would now be cast out. Now when did the kingdom of God begin to be preached? After John was put in prison. Mark 1: 14. When was it established? “The law and the prophets were until John, since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man who seeketh truth presseth into it."—Luke 16: 18, I. T. "But if I, with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God has come upon you." Paul says that Christ, "Having spoiled principalities and powers, he made show of them openly, triumphing over them, in it."

Now I gather from these various Scriptures that the battle was fought some time between Christ's birth and his ascension to heaven. Christ is "declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection of the dead."—Rom. 1: 4. "I am he that liveth and was dead; and behold I am alive forever more. Amen. And I have the keys of hell and of death."—Rev. 1: 18. Now the Devil had the power or keys of death. So Christ must have wrested the keys from the Devil. And had not "Salvation and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ," come when Christ secured salvation for the world by his death, burial and resurrection; and when he gave commandment to the apostles to preach the gospel to every creature; commanding them, saying, "Go and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost;" "All power," and authority, "in heaven and in earth," had been given him—or the Father? Had not the kingdom of God come? Had not the power of Christ come? If so, the battle had been fought, and Satan as lightning fell from heaven. The prince of this world was cast out. Michael about this time disputed with Satan about the body of Moses. The devil was not cast out of earth, but out of heaven, for he was cast down to the earth. He was placed in subjection to the kingdom of heaven; I mean to the authority of the apostles and seventies, or the Ministers of Christ, to whom Christ gave the keys or powers of the kingdom. Well; What then? Suppose that at that time the battle was fought, and that salvation and strength, and the kingdom of God and the power of his Christ had come? What then? Why, the woman "brought forth the man child," Christ, and his church; and Christ went to heaven, and the devil persecuted the woman, and the "remnant of her seed," which was the Church of Christ, who kept the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus. That they kept the commandments of God, or the moral law, and had the testimony of Jesus, or the gospel, and the spirit of prophecy, can not be denied. [The "commandments of God" to the church, are the commandments Christ gave to it, directly or through his chosen revelators. Deut. 18: 15-19; with Acts 3: 22, 23; 7: 37; Heb. 1: 2; 1 Cor. 14: 37; 1 John 2: 1-5; Isa. 55: 4; Matt. 5: 21, 22, 27, 28, 31-34, etc. etc. And "the testimony of Jesus is the Spirit of prophecy"—the Holy Spirit.—Rev. 19: 10.—ED].

The woman did not go into the wilderness of apostasy, but fled from persecution. God prepared a hiding place for her, and provided for her, or nourished her there, away from the face of the serpent for a time, times and a half. She is not the Church of Christ, or, as that is called, "The kingdom of God," but she is the Church of God, the Church of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and of Moses, and Joshua, and Samuel, and David, and Isaiah, and Jeremiah, and Daniel and all the prophets. The child is Christ and his church, or the kingdom of God. This church will become the kingdom of Christ, or the government of that kingdom, when the kingdoms of this world become the kingdom of Christ.

The elements of the kingdom are found in the church, but there must be a coronation of the king, the organization of the elements, the accession of territory, before the kingdom can be fully established. Christ is not crowned king yet; his kingly government on earth has not yet been organized; the territory is at present under dominion of the kings of the earth who have given their kingdoms unto the scarlet colored beast. The dragon who persecuted the woman and made war on her seed and the beast with seven heads and ten horns, which made war with the Saints, are evidently types of the same power, namely, the Roman Empire, and these "saints" and remnant of the woman's seed are evidently the same people. There were saints on earth for a long time; some who kept the faith in a great measure, who were persecuted from century to century, first by the dragon-beast, then afterward by the "little horn" of Daniel 7th, and the "mother of harlots." Now as this same "little horn" was not developed till about the year 533 A. D. to 538 A. D., and as the Saints were given into his hand, and he made war on them, and prevailed against them; and as the woman who was "mystery Babylon," took her seat on the beast about the same time, and who was "drunk with the blood of the saints," it follows that there must have been saints on the earth at least for over 500 years after Christ. But the church or kingdom of God, as an organization, did not continue after that time, nor fully up to that time. But after that, everywhere the "little horn" and "the mother of harlots" crushed out all opposition; and changed times and laws; * * * changed the calendar; changed the Scriptures; changed the gospel; changed the church organization; changed nearly everything connected with the doctrine of Christ, and now shuts off all hope for her reformation by declaring that she, as a church, never has and never can change. Therefore there remains only her complete destruction as foretold in the 14th and 18th chapters of Revelations.

In this exposition of the woman and her child, I have no doubt disturbed a darling theory of some, viz, the Church of Christ going into a wilderness of forgetfulness, and nonentity, and emerging into life and activity again. But I can see no hope of sustaining the restoration of the gospel from that chapter at all. There is abundant other proof without forcing testimony out of where it can not be lawfully found. If any are very sensitive concerning the church established eighteen centuries [ago] receiving her authority from the Jews or Israelites, they must feel still worse when they understand that Jewish Peter, James and John had considerable to do with the establishment of this latter day work, also an Israelite named Moroni; and, worse than all, that that same Jew who baptized Jesus Christ ordained Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery to the Aaronic priesthood. Joseph Smith (the present) and a good many more, are tainted with Israelitish blood; and some like the writer may have the hated blood of Judah in their veins. I have not attempted to give any date for the woman's disappearance into the wilderness, not possessing and Church History, except Eusebius nor any ancient history, I can not judge of that matter. But of one thing I feel assured, and that is, that the woman was not the Church of Christ, and that the wilderness was not an apostate condition of the Church of Christ.

T. W. SMITH.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Aug. 15th, 1887.

Selections.

RUSSIA'S STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS.

THE uneasiness which is growing in Europe in reference to the thinly veiled designs and inordinate ambition of Russia, especially in the direction of the Balkan States, Constantinople, Afghanistan, and India, justifies us in presenting an article upon the subject to our readers. As we have taken special means to ascertain the actual facts of the case, and in every instance have personally corroborated the testimony of others, we submit that we have written in the fullest confidence of its unassailable accuracy. It will be seen that what with the increasing tension between Germany and France, and the uncertain and critical relationships between the other Great Continental Powers, that a crisis is fast approaching which will inaugurate the closing scenes of the present age, and verify the prediction of Ezekiel (xxi. 27): "Thus saith the Lord God, I will overturn, overturn, overturn, until He comes whose right it is; and I will give it Him."

A correspondent of a London newspaper at Odessa, who evidently speaks with something like authority, says that it requires at the present moment very little penetration to discover beneath the surface of only partially suppressed popular feeling the existence of widespread political discontent in all the great centres of life in Russia. Nor can there be the slightest doubt, he thinks, that the vacillating policy of the Imperial Government during the last twelve months, both at home and abroad, has largely contributed to the unsettled and anxious state of things. To the Nihilist Propagandists the course adopted by the Government has imparted new life. This is not the worst, however. The masses who formerly rejected the doctrines of the Nihilist party of violence, now give ear to the more moderate revolutionary sections, who have many specious arguments on their side with which to assail the simple reasoning of a discontented class which has become somehow out of touch with the firm but guiding hand of "the little father," as the Czar is called.

The Universities are in the van of the present movement. It is a fact beyond dispute that four-fifths of the students of ten out of the eleven Russian Universities are to a certain extent overtly Republicans or constitutional revolutionists. The Government is perfectly cognizant of this, but does not yet fully realize the danger which a despotic autocracy will one day have to cope with from within the lines of its own despotism. Every repressive measure thus far adopted has proved utterly abortive in suppressing the revolutionary and constitutional propaganda of the Young Russia party. In a certain degree, of course, these measures have sufficed temporarily to keep the agitation beneath the surface, but at the same time they have fostered the growth of the party. If it may be accepted that Young Russia is in any wide sense represented by the students of her Universities, then it must be admitted that there is a secret and widely-ramified power at work which bodes ill for the future internal peace of the Empire. The revolutionary character attaching to the Russian Universities as a body is now so notorious that a University man who does not adopt one of the learned professions, either from want of means or other causes, and is compelled to seek employment in a secretarial capacity or in a commercial house, invariably discovers that his University training, instead of an assistance is an absolute barrier to his success. He is looked upon with suspicion by the merchant who employs him, and his name is kept on the police roll of political suspects. His abilities may leave nothing to be desired; but rightly or wrongly he is shunned as carrying about with him the infection of sedition. A gentleman who recently had opportunities of some conversation on this subject with Russian police officials, was particularly struck by the lack of the zeal and energy with which they formerly carried on their espionage of students and other political suspects. They shake their heads, and confess that things appear to be going wrong. They fear that the revolutionary party may suddenly find a host of friends and supporters in high places. In fact they look with the gloomiest forebodings on the immediate future. These officials are men of experience and foresight, and to put the gist of their opinion in brief, they think that everything pointing to a catastrophe is possible in Russia just now.

The military strength of Russia, however, at the present time is assuming gigantic proportions. No wonder Prince Bismark hesitates to provoke such a Power. Counting all his forces—active army, Reserve, Militia, and levy in mass—the Czar could put more than five and a half million of men in the field. At any rate, he can put as many as that upon paper, and perhaps no other potentate on earth could, with approximate accuracy, do the same. No wonder either that occasional reports of his Majesty's infirmity of mind go the rounds of the European Press. One man burdened with the duty of holding all these warhounds in leash would give the best proof of his sanity by losing it at the thought of his awful responsibilities. To bear such a burden with a light heart would be to be more than mortal, or very much less. There are, however, some considerations of a saving nature, such, for example, as the Odessa correspondent referred to above, who clearly testifies that the autocratic Northern Colossus may, after all, have his feet of clay. The Russian people are dissatisfied with the management of affairs at home and abroad, and are ready to turn an active ear to the preachers of sedition who are always in their midst. At the same time they pick and choose among their revolutionary prophets, listening by preference to the more moderate men whose doctrines really bode most harm to the bureaucratic system. The party of violence is apparently as much discredited as ever, but the men who advocate a complete economic change now find followers among the masses. This is a new thing in the experience of revolutionary Russia.

The discontent of the educated classes, is of old standing. The Russian University student is probably not much more disaffected to-day than he has been at any time these fifteen or twenty years. There would be a great difference in results if this chronic unrest were no longer confined to his own section of society. The enemies of Russia, however, need find no cause for exultation in such a change. A discontented is, if not a warlike people, at any rate a people likely to go to war. A prosperous Russia would be a good guarantee of European peace. The policy of diverting the discontent of nations from their own Governments to the foreigner is as old as statecraft. It is particularly well understood in Russia, and those who know that Empire best maintain that its habitual aggressiveness is mainly due to the misery of the population. Russia under her present government is, according to Stepniak, almost inevitably a conquering State. The total ruin of the moral prestige of rulers, and the growing disaffection among all classes of society, have converted into a sort of moral necessity what was formerly a mere luxury. The Czar and his Ministers, we are assured on the same authority, live from hand to mouth in policy, thinking only how they may get through the day, and not knowing in the evening what they are going to do on the morrow. Such a state of things is a permanent danger to peace, and it must be understood to give full significance to the assurance that "everything is possible in Russia just now."

The difficulty of Russia, the difficulty of Europe, is the intense and deepening misery of the masses. There is enough of this elsewhere, and the beam is large in our own eye; but in no European State is the suffering so appalling in its extent as in the Empire of the Czar. Rural Russia is, in some respects, one vast Ireland, with this additional misfortune, that it is growing into agrarian misery instead of hoping sooner or later to grow out of it. The emancipated serfs are being rapidly re-enslaved to the soil by the surer bonds of the money-lender. In a few years, it is said, they will form an agricultural proletariat of sixty to seventy millions, with a few thousand usurious landlords on the other side, in possession of the land. Even now, most of them are slowly working out with life-long labor earlier advances which they can never hope to repay.

The money-lender and the Landlord are one, and the new fashioned serf is now purchased with a loan. He works badly; but as his work is virtually to be had for nothing beyond his keep, it can be made to pay. Splendid profits are realized on the bondage work, and they will continue to be made while Russia has unlimited land to waste in careless cultivation. The system is ruinous to the nation. Provincial famines are of common occurrence, and some of them are said to be in their proportions truly mediæval. The rural folk are underfed as well as underpaid, or not paid at all. The general mortality of Russia is alarmingly high, and this can not be due to climate, or Norway and Sweden would hardly be the very healthiest countries in Europe. While the death-rate in our rural districts stands at 18 per 1,000, it ranges in Russia from 35 to 37, and in the more densely-populated central provinces it reaches 62. As Lady Verney has recently shown, eight in ten children in rural Russia die before the age of ten. All this we are told, is the work of art, not of nature; in fact, it is due to bad government, corrupt administration, and the hopeless ignorance in which the people are allowed to live. The necessities of an almost bankrupt State aggravate the general misery. The tax-gatherer is almost more exacting than the usurer, and he is still allowed to enforce his demands by a liberal use of the stick. This only shows that Russia is still mainly a barbarian Power.

It would be interesting to extend the inquiry which these considerations suggest, and to ascertain how far the present uneasy state of Europe is a direct effect of the misery of its populations.

The permanently aggressive nations are the nations without hope, and militarism can not long co-exist with a wide national prosperity. The Russian peasant may as well fight as not; soldiering offers a decided improvement of his prospects. To him, the soldier's fraction of a farthing a day must seem the beginning of affluence. The prosperity of the common people is notoriously the great fact that makes for peace in the France of to-day. Germany is not permanently aggressive, for Prince Bismarck knows that the blood of his Pomeranians must not be shed in vain. There the only temptation to a warlike policy, apart from what might be found in the dread of foreign aggression, lies in the profound discontent, half intellectual in its nature, of the Socialistic workmen of the towns. But, as this is too deep-seated to yield to superficial remedies, it is probable they will not be hastily applied. The war with France, which roused the enthusiasm of the whole German people, did not perceptibly affect the moment the growth of Socialism.

The Socialistic Propaganda was suspended, but suspended only, during the struggle, with every other national activity, but arms; but it was resumed, as a matter of course, when the struggle was over. Even before the peace was signed some of the German workmen took care to let the world know that they did not approve the conditions imposed upon France. The German Social-Democrats alone, of all the parties owning the generic name in Europe, have a true party representation in the Legislature. The danger of their more reasoned discontent is not of a kind to be conjured away by the coarse expedient of war.

The fighting strength of Russia is now, as already stated, appallingly enormous. The principle of general liability to military service, it may be remembered, was introduced into Russia by an Imperial ukase as recently as November 4th, 1870. In virtue of this every Russian subject is liable to twenty years' military service, the period of liability beginning in some parts of the Empire at the age of eighteen, and in others at twenty. The active or standing army is recruited by lot from the general body of the available males. The men whose names are not thus drawn are at once embodied in the militia, in which they pass their whole time of service; but those whose names are drawn spend six years in the active army, nine in the various classes of the reserve, and the remaining five only in the militia; and they form, during the first half of their service, the chief portion of what may be called the permanent army of the Empire. For the purposes of military organizations European Russia, with the Caucasus, is divided into nineteen army corps districts, each of which is under a commandant-general. Each district furnishes one army corps, composed as follows: Two or three infantry divisions, one battalion of rifles, one cavalry division, two brigades of mounted artillery, two batteries of horse artillery, two divisions of artillery train, one section of park artillery train for the cavalry, one quarter section of park for the rifles, two divisional ambulances, and 2,208 sappers, pontoniers, engineers, telegraphists, and torpedoists. The strength of an army corps, containing two infantry divisions, and including the non-combatants, is 45,094 men, with 10,755 horses and 108 guns; but a mere multiplication of these figures by nineteen does not give the total strength of the Russian active army, for the reason that the Asiatic troops, Cossacks, frontier battalions, and other forces are extraneous organizations. The army corps form only the first line—using the words in their most restricted sense—of the national defenses.

The infantry comprises altogether twelve regiments of Guards, sixteen regiments of Grenadiers, 164 regiments of the Line, forty-six battalions of Rifles, and thirty-six battalions of Frontier Guards, with reserves, depot battalions, and militia. Every regiment comprises 4,063 men, and consists of four battalions, each of four companies. Four regiments form a division. The battalions of Rifles and Frontier Guards also consist of four companies each. Seven of these battalions form a brigade. The total strength of the infantry of the active army is 783,392 men, with 35,620 horses and 8,896 carriages; and of the Rifles and Frontier Guards 80,958 men, with 4,758 horses. The first infantry reserve, which comprises twenty-four further divisions, has a strength of 527,175 men. In addition there are six "local battalions," numbering in all 5,494 men, and six "Special Reserve Battalions" in Asia, numbering 6,024 men, together with eighty-two cadre reserve battalions, which would form the nucleus of the levee en masse, and which at present have a total strength of 63,304 men. The gross total of the Russian infantry, active and first reserve, is, therefore, 1,466,347 men.

The cavalry comprises twelve regiments of the Cavalry of the Guard, forty-six regiments of Dragoons, twenty-seven regiments of Cossacks, and one regiment of Irregulars. Every regiment has 1,132 men and 905 horses, and consists of six squadrons, each of four sections. Four regiments form a division. Including the first reserve the cavalry of the Empire has a strength of 129,384 men, with 101,686 horses. The Artillery comprises sixty-two mounted brigades of six batteries, each of eight guns; forty-three horse batteries, each of six guns; and fifty battalions of fortress artillery, together with eleven independent companies—in all 140,315 men, with 108,842 horses, and 3,984 guns. The Engineers form six brigades, each brigade containing three battalions, and three companies of sappers, one battalion of pontoniers, three telegraph parks, one field engineer park, and four companies of torpedoists. The total strength is 34,500 men. The Train does not form a special corps, but is included in the various tactical units, each of which has a train of its own. The above figures show that the total strength of the active army and first reserve, including non-combatants, consists of 1,770,846 men, with 250,906 horses, and 3,984 guns. The second reserves would supply an additional 1,064,013 men, with 232 guns; making in all 2,834,859 men, with 4,216 guns. The territorial reserves would, in case of invasion, provide a further 1,800,000 men; and, finally, the levee en masse would produce not less than 1,100,000 more; so that, if pushed to extremities, Russia could defend her existence with over 5,700,000 men, all of whom have received some military training. Most of the active army is now provided with the Berdan rifle or carbine; but the greater part of the first reserve still use the Carle, and much of the militia has only the Kruka rifle. In addition to the bayonet, the infantryman carries the tessak, a handy two-edged sword. The bayonet is never unfix-

The Russian Navy consists of three divisions—viz., the Baltic Fleet, and Black Sea Fleet, and the Siberian Fleet, and comprises seventeen sea-going ironclads, most of which are not of very recent construction. Seven other ironclads are being now built or completed for sea. The chief naval strength of the Empire is at present in the Baltic; but great efforts are being made rapidly to reconstruct a Black Sea Fleet, and, by the close of the year, the force in southern waters will include three very powerful ironclads, each of about 10-800 tons displacement, and each equal to any ironclad, save perhaps one or two, that carries the British flag. Russia's torpedo flotilla is also large and formidable. The Siberian flotilla is possibly, however, the division which, in the event of war between Russia and Great Britain, would give us the greatest amount of trouble. In the Caspian Sea Russia has sixteen vessels, carrying in all twenty-six guns; and in the Sea of Aral she has six with thirteen guns. All these are steamers, and, although they are not large, they would be of immense utility in supplying stores and troops for service on the Afghan frontier. There is also a considerable mercantile marine in the Caspian.

The significance of these facts will be well understood if the map be glanced at. From the great centres of European Russia two main railway lines run eastward. One (the northern) connects St. Petersburg and Moscow and Orenburg on the Ural, and has been prolonged beyond the town of Orsk. The other line runs from southern Russia to the town of Baku, on the western shore of the Caspian. Troops destined for Central Asia may thus reach the Caspian either by train to Baku direct, or by train to Orenburg, and thence by boat down the Ural. By whichever route they may be sent, they would find ample means of transport across the Caspian to Fort Michaeloffski. At that post there are now enormous accumulations of war material of all kinds, and of rolling-stock, and the place possesses great strategical importance as the western terminus of the new railway which, during the last two years, has been pushed through the Turcoman country with such rapidity. This line, after leaving Fort Michaeloffski, proceeds in a south-easterly direction, and passing by Kizil Arvat and Geoktepe, skirts the northern frontier of Persia along the greater portion of its length. It then turns across the desert to Merve, and leaving that city, follows the old caravan route north-eastwards to the river Oxus, which it strikes at or near the town of Charjui in Bokhara territory. Thus far the railway is finished. It is now being extended, still north-eastwards, to Bokhara, and it will shortly be again extended thence eastward to Samarkand.

Russia has, during the last six months largely reinforced every military post along the line of this railway and its projected extensions. Between forty and fifty thousand men are now distributed between Fort Michaeloffski and Samarkand, the greater number being at the latter place and at Merv. Fifty thousand more are at Tiflis, whence they can be moved to Baku in ten hours, and to Fort Michaeloffski in little more than twenty-four; and in the other garrisons of the Caucasus there are yet another fifty thousand men of the active army. There is, indeed, no room for doubt that, if she so willed, Russia could, without any difficulty, concentrate one hundred thousand men at any point along the new railway within a week or, at most, ten days from now. The line runs very close to the Afgan frontier, and if war were declared one day, a large body of picked Russian troops would certainly be in Afghanistan,—nay, almost at the gates of Herat—by a fortnight later. This condition of things would assure to the Russians that advantage which in Asiatic warfare has always been of immense value—the prestige of winning the opening battle of the campaign. The Afghans may be as loyal as possible to their treaty obligations; but the British Government could not expect them to fight very heartily for its interests in India when a Russian Army corps was at Herat and when the British columns had barely begun to think of leaving Quetta and Peshawur. We could not afford any material support to our allies for at least a month after the outbreak of hostilities, and by that time Herat would probably have fallen.

Conference Minutes.

CENTRAL KANSAS.

If, as has been lately asserted by the Polish paper, Czas, Russia is really bent upon a war in Central Asia in the Spring, it looks as though, thanks to her long and steady preparations, she would be able to have very much her own way in Afghanistan. She has provided herself with facilities of the most complete kind; and it would take us at least a couple of years to create for ourselves a correspondingly advantageous position on the northern slopes of the Hindu Kush. It is fortunate, perhaps, that that range is not the natural boundary of our Indian Empire; for we are never likely to be able to defend it. But, on the other hand, optimist philosophers and they who discard to the limbo of effete agencies the lamp of prophetic truth will affirm that it is not necessary to put much confidence in the alarmist utterances of the Czas—that we need not believe, because Russia is fortifying her newly-acquired territory in Turcomania, that therefore she is preparing for further conquests.—Prophetic News.

A DUTY is imperative; it can not be put aside for any possible good or brilliant imagination. The Adversary understands this, and where he can not tempt a consecrated soul into open sin and disobedience, he will try to fix his mind on some plausible suggestion, which shall blind his eyes to the duty in hand. The only safe course is to make it an inflexible rule, that no fancied plan shall turn us in the least from the plain, simple duty of the hour. Amid the many suggestions that come to the mind, there are always some things about the doing of which there can be no question. These are the things to be done.

ONE of the Kansas senators who opposed woman suffrage, and gave his vote against it, because he thought only bad women would vote, says since the election: "I am all out of my calculations. Four hundred women voted in my town, and not a single one that did not rank as a thoroughly respectable woman. I think the best thing we can do now is to strike out the word 'male' and put in the whole matter right where it ought to be. I am convinced, from what I know of our farming population, that it will be a good thing and no distinction should be made."

Conference met at Scranton, October 29th and 30th, Elder Daniel Munns presiding, and Elder James B. Jarvis sec. pro tem. Branch reports: Scranton 30 members, including 7 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 1 deacon. Good Intent 26, including 1 elder, 1 teacher; Daniel Munns pres. and clerk. Fanning 34, including 2 elders, 2 priests. Elder William Gurwell (baptized 3) reported. George Gaitner was received into the branch by vote. Wm. Gurwell president. Netawaka 34, including 5 elders, 1 priest, 1 deacon. Elders reported in person: William Menzies, J. B. Jarvis, P. Adamson, James Buckley, W. Williams, D. Munns and W. Hopkins. Priest Wm. Cairns and deacon John Patterson reported. Henry Green, William Gurwell, and Hiram Parker reported by letter. All the authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Elder Henry Green was released from being district clerk at his own request, and Elder J. B. Jarvis was chosen in his stead. Elder D. Munns was chosen district president. Elder J. B. Jarvis was authorized to write to officers who neglect to report. The elders and priests are requested to labor in their callings as opportunities occur. On the first day of conference Elder William Menzies occupied the stand in preaching the word, assisted by Elder Munns. Sunday morning preaching by Elder Munns, assisted by Elder P. Adamson. In the evening, preaching by Elder J. B. Jarvis. Elder Wm. Menzies had charge of the Saints' meeting. We had the Spirit with us in great power to encourage to faithfulness, by the gifts of tongues and interpretations. It was an enjoyable time. Bishop's Agent reported to conference that he had received ten dollars since last report; sum total twelve dollars. Adjourned to meet at Nettawaka, March 17th and 18th, 1888.

NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

This district conference convened at 7:30 p. m., in Fremont, Nebraska, June 24th, 1887, Nelson Brown presiding, I. Sylvester, secretary. Prayer and testimony was the order of the first meeting, at close of which Brn. N. Rumel and M. W. Sampson were appointed a committee on credentials. Saturday, 25th, morning session—Branch Reports: Union, 49, 6 received by letter, 3 removed. Wm. M. Rumel, Bishop's Agent, reported: On hand last report $72.10; received since $39.00; total $111.10; expended $101.00; balance on hand $80.10. James Caffall, Nicholas Rumel, and Nelson Brown reported. Afternoon session:—Platte Valley branch reported 34 members, 3 received by letter, 1 died. Omaha, 104. Resolved, that all branches in this district be requested to make a true copy of each member of their respective branches, with all items to be obtained, and forward the same to the district secretary. The district president and secretary were sustained. Resolved that when this conference adjourn it does so to meet in Omaha, the last Friday in December, 1887. Bro. Nicholas Rumel requested more scope to labor in. Granted. Moved that Bro. Ballanger labor at Florence, Nebraska, and other places, as he may be able, and that he be authorized to request some of the brethren at Omaha to assist him. Moved that no Priests be ordained in the branches, but that they be recommended to district conference for ordination. Action upon this resolution was deferred. Evening session: Resolution on Priests ordination was called up. Bro. Caffall offered the following substitute which was carried: Whereas, six or more members of the body may be organized and form a branch and such a branch becomes a body with power to regulate its own affairs, and that any measure or measures by any other department of the church to curtail or deprive a branch of rights guaranteed under the general laws, would be assumptive and calculated to produce disunion. Therefore be it resolved, that while we can not look with favor upon any measure to prohibit the ordination of requisite branch officers in any branch organization, we believe, notwithstanding, that hasty ordination, or measures culminating in a superabundance of officers in any branch of this district, should be looked upon with disfavor; therefore be it resolved, that where there already exists sufficient officials to perform the needed branch labor, and because of a refusal of such officials a necessity exists to create new officials by ordination, such seeming needed ordination be deferred until a proper inquiry be made with a view to know why such officers refuse to act; and if upon such inquiry it be found that a refusal to act arises from the force of uncontrollable circumstances, let such be honorably released from branch labor. But if evidence be had of a refusal to act because of a failure on the part of the members to properly sustain, let labor be done to remove the cause of complaint; or if neither of these causes exist, but a manifest indifference, then after needed labor and forbearance, let the law found in Doctrine and Covenants, section 104: 44, govern. And be it further resolved, that in the event of such exigencies arising in any branch whereby trouble may come, that contemplated ordination be deferred until it be practicable to confer with the president of the district or missionary in charge, or both. Bro. James Caffall spoke from the text, "All flesh is as grass." Sunday, 26th: Preaching by Brn. Caffall and N. Rumel at 10:30 a. m.; collection $5.45. Prayer and testimony meeting at 2:30 p. m. Two were baptized by Bro. Caffall. Collection $6.00. Preaching at 7:30 p. m., by Bro. Caffall. Adjourned to time and place before stated.

Miscellaneous.

DIED.

CHASE.—At Reese Creek, Montana, September 27th, 1887, sister Phebe Chase, wife of Bro. Mahlon Chase, aged 35 years. Funeral services by Elder Gomer Reese.

BILLINGSBY.—At his residence, Manchester, Texas, after a short illness, October 31st, 1887, Bro. B. L. Billingsby, aged 49 years, 10 months and 24 days. He was ordained an elder under the hands of Bro. W. T. Bozarth, and has been presiding elder over the Manchester branch for some time. He was with the Saints through the severe persecutions, was tried in many ways, but his faith was sufficient to bear it patiently, and he conquered his enemies with kindness. His character was spotless in the world and church. He left a wife and four children to mourn his death. His labors for Christ were precious with the Saints, and his efforts for the cause continued until God called him home to reap his reward.

MORSE.—Near Pleasanton, Decatur county, Iowa, October 30th, 1887, of disease of the kidneys, Bro. Justus Morse, aged 78 years, 7 months and 3 days. Bro. Morse was born in Chester, Hampshire county, Massachusetts; united with the church in February, 1833, in western Pennsylvania; was with the church in their troubles in Missouri from 1834; went to Texas in 1846, and to Utah in 1850, where he staid but a short time, then went to California; united with the Reorganization at San Bernardino, California, under the ministrations of Bro. W. W. Blair about 1868. Funeral services were conducted in the Saints' Chapel, Lamoni, by Bro. Duncan Campbell, assisted by Bro. H. A. Stebbins.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

The North-east Missouri conference will convene at Bevier, Missouri, December 17th, 1887, at 3 p. m., Saturday. Come all who can. We expect Bro. Joseph R. Lambert.

JOHN TAYLOR, Dist. Pres.

BISHOP'S AGENT.

At the late Northern Michigan district conference, held in Bayport, on October 29th and 30th, Bro. Andrew Barr was recommended by said conference to act as my agent in said district; I therefore appoint him as such.

G. A. BLAKESLEE, Presiding Bishop.

"I AM called a crank upon the temperance question. I may be a crank upon this question, but I am not ashamed to say that I would far rather see a man a sober man than a drunkard. It is far better to educate our children to be temperate than to be drunkards. There is not a man living who will say that it's right to bring into the home that which damns the head of the family. I'll trust the fate of this nation with sober men and women. I'll never take back one word of what I have said on the temperance question, so help me God. The time will come when the workers of all kinds and classes will be banded together for a common purpose."—T. V. Powderly.

Women are voters at school elections in Colorado, Dakota, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oregon, Vermont and Wisconsin.

WANTED

Several copies of No. 1, vol. 1, of "Herald."
Address Geo. Schweich, Richmond, Missouri, stating price. 19nov1m

FOR SALE.

A NEAT three roomed house, with a lot 144 feet front by 132 back. A good well and out-buildings. Located in adjoining block to the Saints' Church in Lamoni. Property in good repair. Call on or address
WM. CRICK, Lamoni, Iowa.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address
J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.
20aug3m

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

No. 2.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.

WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

A SUPERB PRESENT.

INVALUABLE TO

Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians, Editors, Bankers, Teachers, Merchants, Students, and all who read books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

- No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, ... $10.00
- " 2, " " 2 tiers " " ... 12.00
- " 3, " " Floor, " 3 " " ... 12.00
- " 4, " " " 4 " " ... 15.00
- " 5, " " " 4 " " ... 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

Lamoni and Vicinity.

Those wishing to become acquainted with Lamoni and vicinity, will do well to subscribe for

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

A weekly paper, now published by

LAMBERT & HANSEN.

dec11ft

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RESULT! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

- NEW YORK,
- BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
- CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
- NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
- LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
- PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
- VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment, Good Service, Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

Tracts.

- No. 2.—Truth Made Manifest; 20c. a doz., per 100.....1 50
- No. 3.—Voice of the Good Shepherd; 5c. a doz., 100..... 40
- No. 4.—Epitome of Faith and Doctrine of the Church and the Kirtland Temple Suit; 5c. per doz., 25c. per 100, 50c. for 250, $1 for 500, per 1,000..... 1 75
- No. 5.—The Gospel.....price the same as No. 4
- No. 6.—The "One Baptism;" its Mode, Subjects, Prerequisite, and Design,—and Who Shall Administer; 16 pages; 25c. per doz., per 100..... 1 75
- No. 7.—Who Then Can be Saved; 5c. a doz., 100..... 40
- No. 8.—Fulness of the Atonement; 25c. a doz., 100..... 1 75
- No. 9.—Spiritualism Viewed from a Scriptural Standpoint; 20 pages; 30c. per dozen, 100..... 2 25
- No. 10.—The Narrow Way; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 100 for 1 10
- No. 11.—The Plan of Salvation; 30c. a dozen, 100..... 2 25
- No. 12.—The Bible versus Polygamy; 25c. a dozen, 100..... 1 65
- No. 14.—Reply to Orson Pratt; 25c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 75
- No. 15.—Brighamite Idolatry; 5c. a dozen, per 100..... 40
- No. 16.—Polygamy: Was it an Original Tenet of the Church; 20c. a dozen, 100..... 1 40
- No. 17.—The Successor in the Prophetic Office and Presidency of the Church; 25c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 75
- No. 18.—Rejection of the Church; 15c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 10
- No. 20.—The "One Body;" or the Church of Christ under the Apostleship and under the Apostasy; 12 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 40
- No. 21.—Truth by Three Witnesses; 3c. a doz., 100..... 15
- No. 22.—Faith and Repentance; 15c. a dozen, 100..... 1 10
- No. 23.—Baptism; 10 pages; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 25
- No. 24.—The Kingdom of God; 5c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 25.—Laying on of Hands; 5c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 26.—Mountain of the Lord's House; 4 pages; 5c. a dozen, per 100..... 40
- No. 27.—The Sabbath Question; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 40
- No. 29.—A Vision of the Resurrection, from the Doctrine and Covenants; 5c. a dozen, 100 for..... 40
- No. 30.—Origin of the Book of Mormon; 15 cents a dozen, per 100..... 1 10
- No. 31.—What is Truth? and True Orthodoxy? and an Evangelical Church? Also, the Kirtland Temple Suit. Per dozen 5c., 100 for 25c. 250 for 50c., 500 for $1, 1,000 for..... 1 75
- No. 32.—Which is the Church? 5c. a dozen, 100..... 4c
- No. 36.—The Spaulding Story Re-Examined; 20c. a dozen, 100 for..... 1 25
- A Memorial to Congress; 8 pages; 15c. a dozen, 100..... 1 10
- Trial of the Witnesses to the Resurrection; 32 pages; 6c. each, per dozen..... 60
- Prophecy on the Rebellion; per 100..... 15
- An assortment of Tracts, 35 cents.
- COMPLETE SET OF TRACTS.
- Bound in Limp Cloth turned in..... 75

Reply to Littlefield.

We have for sale at this office, in pamphlet form, containing 48 pages, the "Reply of President Joseph Smith to L. O. Littlefield in refutation of the doctrine of plural marriage." Price, post paid, single copies 10 cents; 5 cents per dozen to one address.

Forscutt and Shinn Discussion.

J. Shinn affirms "The Bible Teaches the Coming of Christ to Judge the World is now past." M. H. Forscutt affirms "The Bible Teaches the Literal Resurrection of the Body from the Grave." Paper covers, 191 pages..... 25

Visions of Joseph Smith, The Seer.

Discoveries of Ancient American Records and Relics, with the statement of a Converted Jew, and of others: paper covers, 43 pages..... 10

Concordance to Book of Covenants.

An enlarged new edition; paper covers, 32 pages..... 10

Sunday School Supplies.

Sunday School Engineer and Record Book..... 50
Prompt Attendance Tickets.....100 for 15c., 1,000 for 1 00
Good Behavior Tickets.....Same price.

Miscellaneous.

- The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter, by A. Wilford Hall; 544 pages, in cloth boards.....1 50
- Universalism Against Itself, by A. Wilford Hall; in cloth boards; 336 pages..... 1 00
- Josephus, complete in one vol. library leather..... 3 50
- Gibson's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, cloth boards, 5 vols..... 4 00
- Moshelm's Church History, cloth boards, 2 vols..... 4 00
- Baldwin's Ancient American, (Illustrated), cloth..... 1 80
- Rollin's Ancient History, 2 vols. in one, leather..... 4 00
- The Koran, library leather..... 2 00
- Gieseler's Ecclesiastical History, from A. D. 1 till 1854, cloth boards, 5 vols..... 10 00
- The Ecclesiastical History of Eusebius Pamphilus, Bishop of Caesarea, to Palestine, cloth boards..... 2 00
- Cruden's Complete Concordance of the Bible..... 1 75
- The Bible Text Book..... 1 00
- Apocryphal New Testament..... 1 65
- Brown's Concordance of the Bible..... 60
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Herald size..... 85
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Hope size..... 90
- Emerson's Ready Binder, Advocate size..... 50
- Five Quires of Note Paper, 120 sheets..... 50
- Five Quires of Note Paper, better quality..... 60

Tracts in German.

Tracts in the German Language may be had of Bro. Ad. Richter, Burlington, Iowa: The Baptism, 6 cents; the Repentance, 5 cents; the Principles of the Gospel, 6 cents; the Epitome of Faith, 2c.; the Sixth Trumpet, a fifty-four page pamphlet, 25c. These prices include postage.

THE SAINTS' HERALD is published every Saturday at Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa, by the Board or Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; Price $2.50 per year. Money may be sent by Post Office Order, Registered Letter, or by Express on Lamoni, addressed DAVID DANCER, Box 892, Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa. All matters of business connected with the office should be addressed to DAVID DANCER; communications and articles to the Editors.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAve IT BE ONE WIFE, AND CONCUBINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 758.

Lamoni, Iowa, November 26, 1887.

No. 48.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH
W. W. BLAIR

EDITOR.
ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Nov. 26, 1887.

THE CONSENT OF THE PEOPLE.

THE Deseret News, of October 28th under the caption of "The World as an Echo," reviews an editorial of that journal upon the subject of Utah Statehood in which we discover the following strong language:

"Mormonism" is of American origin, so far as this world is concerned, and is essentially identified with American ideas, interests and destinies. It is also democratic in theory and practice. The vote of the people is made paramount in all its proceedings. No matter if the voice of revelation speaks, until it is endorsed by the will of the people it does not become part of the church polity.

"It may be asked, can the body of the church repudiate a divine command or counsel? The answer is, certainly. Just as much as Adam and Eve acted on their agency, so can all their posterity. And in this church it is provided that common consent is necessary to establish its doctrine and policy. The consequences of persisting in a human instead of a divine course must be with those who follow it, and only very wicked and rebellious people would reject that which they believed to be divine. But the freedom of choice and action is not denied or abridged by anything in "Mormon" teaching or discipline.

"State rule does not mean the 'rule of a hierarchy.' In the Constitution of the State of Utah there is ample provisions for the non-union of the Church and State elements. It provides for the rule of the people as completely as any organic law on the face of the earth. Why should the World adopt this apparent falsehood in the face of the most conclusive proof to the contrary?

"The temporal authority of the church" is not placed above the National authority, and the World can not establish its assertion with a scintilla of evidence. And the calumny that the church authorizes its members to commit perjury is simply contemptible. It is one of those unsupported charges that anti-Mormons make without care as to its recklessness and its refutation by a thousand well known facts. The rest of the paragraph is in the same vein. It is all in the style of an advocate who has nothing to offer but abuse in opposition to the solid grounds of an adversary."

"Mormonism is of American origin" indeed; and herein lies the strongest reason why the Utah Church, and all other churches holding their base and rise in primitive Mormonism should have constitutions, creeds, rules of faith and practice not in antagonism to American institutions.

"The vote of the people is made paramount in all its proceedings." This was written with a view to make the people in a democratic sense responsible for the dogma against which the World was protesting. But is the statement of the News a true one? Did the "people vote" upon the question whether the tenet of plural marriage should become a part of Mormonism? If so; when and where, and under what circumstances was that vote of the people taken? Was there an opportunity for examination and discussion under conditions of freedom of speech and safety of person to those who discussed it? Was the revelation, so called, presented to the people under conditions favorable to its claim to their consideration for adoption, or rejection? If so, when was it? Was the question as to whether section 112, the section on marriage, adopted formally in 1835 and constantly affirmed by subsequent publication without church repeal or change up to the fall of 1876, should be stricken out of the book presented to the people for an examination and vote? Were the reasons for and against the striking of this affirmation of the church from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants presented to the people for sanction or disapproval? If so, when, where and under what conditions was it done? The News will confer a favor upon very many if it will state clearly and specifically when the expression of the "will of the people" upon these questions was had.

It is because that no such opportunity was afforded the people to examine and by vote determine the question of church polity in the matter of plural marriage, that we have made so vigorous protest against the dogma. It is because the voice of the people was not allowed to be heard in consideration of expunging from the Book of Covenants and Commandments the section declarative of the position of the church on the marital relation, that we have so persistently opposed the dogma. So far as the voice of the people of the church is concerned, plural marriage has never been legally made a tenet of the faith. This should have been known to the News and should have prevented that journal from writing so carelessly as has been done.

The document claimed as a revelation from God upon which it is stated plural marriage is based, was not presented to the church until August 29th, 1852, eight years and two months after Joseph Smith was killed. Brigham Young and others had been practicing plural marriage for several years before that, the elders of the church, including the late venerable president, John Taylor, constantly denying its existence among them; and when at last its existence could be no longer concealed, but must be disavowed, or accounted for, then and not till then does the prime mover in the fastening it upon the people present it to the people;—and then it is presented under conditions in which no discussion of its claims to divinity or its merits could be had, and in which no vote of the people was asked for, or had. It did not reach the people through legitimate channels by legal methods; and has been from that day to this a standing denial of the statement now made by the News that "no matter if the voice of revelation speaks, until it is endorsed by the will of the people it does not become part of the church polity."

The Reorganization for itself, and for the thousands of those whose faith in Mormonism, primitive and pure, has been hurt by the introduction of polygamy, now affirm, 1. That the document claimed to be a revelation from God authorizing plural or celestial marriage, is not of divine origin. 2. That it was not legally presented to the people for consideration and approval. 3. That in the absence of such legal presentation and acceptance plural marriage as provided for in it did not properly become a part of church polity. 4. That not having been legally presented and the voice of the people properly had at its inception, it is void. 5. That those who were the active instruments in illegally fastening it upon the people were violators of the law of God as previously given to the church, and are subject to just condemnation therefor. 6. That the expunging from the Doctrine and Covenants of section 112, (the section on marriage), in which monogamy is affirmed as the faith of the church, has been done without the voice of the people being first had upon a proper presentation under conditions favorable to examination and discussion of the principles involved therein. 7. That such expunging is contrary to the laws of God already binding upon the church. 8. That "Mormonism" being of "American origin," must in its rules and regulations affecting the marital relation be conformable to the institutions and laws of America, as presented in the legislative enactments of the various states composing the United States, which are monogamic. 9. And that in such conformity to the laws of the United States regulating the relation of marriage, there is both safety and right, as well as conformity to the law of God as given to the Church of Jesus Christ, and of which there has been neither abrogation, nor repeal.

THE senior editor celebrated his fifty-fifth birth-day by assisting the brethren at East Delavan, Wisconsin, to dedicate the house which they have built, to the Lord. It happened on this wise.

When about ready to dedicate, Bro. Henry Southwick, for the branch, sent an invitation to the editor, to come and assist them on November 5th and 6th. In compliance with the request, he visited Plano, Illinois, where he spoke on Thursday evening, November 3d, and the next day, in company with Bro. F. M. Cooper, he reached East Delavan. Bro. Cooper being the guest of Bro. Anthony Delap, the editor that of Bro. Southwick. They found Bro. Morris T. Short already there in response to invitation to be present at the dedication; and who had spoken to the people the evening of the 4th. On the morning of the 5th the Saints assembled at the little chapel which is located on the north-east corner of Bro. Henry Southwick's farm, a quarter of a mile south of the wagon-road running from Delavan to Lake Geneva, the latter being one of the fashionable summer resorts of the people of North Illinois and South Wisconsin.

The editor addressed them at eleven o'clock; and in the evening Bro. Short gave an excellent discourse on a theme connected with the gospel economy. On Sunday, November 6th at eleven o'clock the house was quite well filled; Saints from Janesville, Beloit, Lyons and Burlington being in attendance, as well as many of the neighbors, some of the different churches and some not members of any. The services were in charge of Bro. Cooper, presiding elder of the district, who made the opening prayer, the editor delivered the sermon and Bro. Short, in a feeling and appropriate prayer dedicated, the house to the worship of God. In the afternoon a profitable and pleasant testimony and sacrament meeting was held, brethren Cooper and Southwick presiding; and in the evening the editor spoke to a house full of listeners. Good order prevailed throughout the entire sessions, the good Spirit was present and the speakers had good liberty.

The house is 24 by 36 feet in size; is pleasantly situated, and is complete, being well seated and lighted; a belfry and a bell of good tone hung in it. The cost as reported by the building committee, was $829. The bills were all paid, with one or two exceptions which were provided for and the money in the hands of the committee; and hence it was without reservation or hindrance that the building was set apart for the purpose of the worship of God.

The editor left the Saints on Monday morning, November 7th, brethren Cooper and Short remaining to carry the work on,

Bro. Cooper for Monday night, Bro. Short for an indefinite time as wisdom and the interest should demand.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. John H. Lake wrote from London East, November 5th, in which he states how the brethren are striving to make progress. He says:

"The conference of this district (London) was a success. Peace prevailed, and the district was well represented. A goodly number from the world's people were out to hear the word preached. Four were baptized the week after the close of the conference. We expect to remain here until the 9th inst., then to St. Thomas and remain there until the 14th, then to Corinth and Vanessa. Bro. R. C. Evans goes with me."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

UNDER the caption "Justice to whom Justice is due," Bro. Albert Haws gets a chance of defence in the Yaquina, Oregon, Post in its issue of October 22d. It appears that Bro. Haws had obtained the consent of the trustees to occupy one of the churches in the town, and in giving notice of his services went to the Sunday School to spread the news. Here the Superintendent of the Sunday School and a teacher refused the use of the house and succeeded in closing its doors against him, on the ground that he was a "Mormon." Nor would they listen to his statement in explanation, so he published them. It was a good article.

Bro. J. C. Clapp proceeds on from here to-day, (Nov. 17th) to Farmington, Kentucky, which will be his address until further notice. He has been visiting and laboring here and at Pleasanton, ten miles east of this, for the past two weeks. Elder Clapp will spend the winter and early spring in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Bro. C. C. Holcomb, of Oenaville, Texas, requests some of the Saints who live near Carrolton, Missouri, or those well acquainted there, to send him their address, as he wishes to write them on business matters.

Bro. S. O. Foss writes from Jonesport, Maine, that the Eastern Maine district conference met October 29th, and that there was a large delegation, nearly all its branches being represented by minor officers and members; but as there were no elders present they did no conference business, and therefore changed it into a two-days' meeting, held preaching, prayer and testimony meetings, and had most spiritual and profitable seasons, and all were satisfied with their experiences, and the goodness of the Lord in the outpouring of his Spirit. On Sunday afternoon the president, in answer to questions, spoke to a packed congregation upon the rise of the church in the times of the Savior and the apostles, the manner of its organization, its falling away and the setting up of the "man of sin," together with the necessity and certainty of the rise of the church in these last days. Altogether a most enjoyable season was had.

Bro. J. G. Scott wrote from New Providence, Indiana, November 5th, that himself and Munroe Scott had returned from a trip to Jefferson and Ripley counties, baptized one, administered to the sick. In southeast of Clark county had meetings ranging from 100 to 150 hearers, the Spirit was poured out mightily in preaching the word, the people were astonished at the doctrine and said if that was the faith of the Saints they would be Saints. A conference of their district would be held in Perry county, November 26th.

Bro. John Grimmett of Lander City, Wyoming, says: "I would not be without the church papers for many times their cost."

By late Knob Noster (Mo.) Gem we learn that Elder F. C. Warnky preached a series of discourses in the Christian chapel in that town to fair sized and interested congregations.

Sr. B. O. Seares, of Dennis, Massachusetts; Sr. J. Peck, of Glenwood, Iowa, with scores of others, send us good words for the HERALD. We appreciate their endorsement and good wishes, and assure them and all other patrons of our church works that we shall spare no effort to make them the best we can by the help of heaven.

Bro. H. J. Hudson of Columbus, Nebraska, was chosen Probate Judge of Patte county, at the late election in that state. We are pleased with this, because we are assured of Bro. Hudson's ability, honesty and devotion to the institutions of the country. We trust that his term of office may continue the esteem in which he is now deservedly held by his fellow citizens.

The "Ladies Mite Society," of Lamoni, will serve a Thanksgiving dinner in the Saints' Chapel on the 24th of November, to be preceded by a short address. Proceeds to be used to assist in finishing the chapel.

A letter from elder L. D. Hickey, dated November 4th, states that he was laboring in Jackson county, Kansas, near the Indians, on the Soldier River, with some show for success. Elder Hickey would remain until cold weather, and then make Topeka his headquarters for the winter. He wrote in an excellent spirit.

Those wishing to write Bro. J. W. Wight, laboring in Dakota, will address him care of Isaac Hogaboom, Bloomington, Charles Mix county, Dakota. Bro. Wight was preaching at Springfield, Dakota, October 29th, making his way to Bloomington.

A number of letters from various parts of the field are received by us daily, which from their nature and the press upon our columns, we are obliged to leave out. Of these, received of late, is one from Bro. George Houghton, who with his wife, joined the church some ten months since in Utah, and who writes from Salt Lake City. Not long after their baptism Sr. Houghton was blessed with a dream or vision in which she saw the Son of Man, and heard him conversing with a prominent elder in the church. The conversation was of such a character that she was confirmed in the course she had taken, and received testimony that assured her in her hope of life eternal.

Elder Elias Land, of Temple, Bell county, Texas, has returned his license issued by the Fourth Quorum of Elders, and announces his withdrawal from the church; for reasons which doubtless seem good to him. He is therefore not entitled to labor, or officiate as an elder in the church from date until restored.

THE Medical Liberator, a paper published at Des Moines, Iowa, devoted to "Reform and Improved Systems of Cure, Human Rights and Emancipation from Medical Despotism," is laid on our table for an exchange.

There is undoubtedly a need for strong protest against class legislation in Iowa; as in other states; for too much of this sort of law making has been had; and the direction taken by this class legislation in regard to who shall and who shall not practice the art of healing, has caused the systemized remonstrance undertaken by the Liberator. We sympathize with the Liberator in the ostensible object for which it is laboring, but do not endorse some of the methods that we discover to be employed by it. To remonstrate against scientific medical treatment of the sick and fill the country with money-making nostrums invented by inexperienced men, may possibly subject life to as much danger as does the system remonstrated against, and seems to us to be inconsistent. As those who believe that the Great Healer gave the best advice concerning the treatment of the sick, we see grave reasons to object to legislation that will prevent the use of the means provided by him.

PROF. GRIMMER IN ERROR.

BELOW will be found Prof. Grimmer's prophecy, in part, relative to that period between and inclusive of the years 1880 and 1887; and now that we are nearing its close we are prepared to "hear and then judge." Jesus predicted that in the last days many false prophets and false Christs would arise, and would deceive many. But he assures us that such shall not be able to deceive those who are "the elect according to the covenant." Such prophets are neither to be honored nor feared—but shunned.

Prof. Grimmer in a pamphlet published in 1879 predicted seven years of disaster and famine, beginning with 1880 and ending with 1887, during which the world will be a hell of strife and carnage. He said:

"From 1880 to 1887 will be one universal carnival of death. Asia will be depopulated, Europe nearly so. America will lose 15,000,000 of her people. Besides a plague we are to have storms and tidal waves, mountains are to toss their heads through the choicest valleys, navigators will be lost by the thousands owing to the capricious deflexures of the magnetic needle, and islands will appear and disappear in the ocean. All the beasts, birds, and fishes will be diseased, famine and civil strife will destroy most of the human beings left alive by plague, and finally 'two years of fire'—1885 to 1887—will rage with fury in every part of the globe. In 1887 the 'Star of Bethlehem' will 'reappear in Cassiopea's Chair,' the immediately results being universal war and portentous floods and shipwrecks. North America is to be again involved in civil war unless a "Napoleon" arises to quell it; but during these terrible days the Pacific States will be a veritable paradise of peace compared to the hellish strife that will be waged throughout the world. The people that may manage to survive till 1887 will have reason to be thankful.

SENATOR McDONALD.

THE Salt Lake Herald copies the following from the Rocky Mountain News, of Denver, Colorado, and seems to think Mr. McDonald a very competent judge of "the law and the Mormons." His views on law are no doubt entitled to respect; but how well qualified he is to judge of the past history and present intentions of the Utah Mormons, can be better told later on. We hope the Mormons will get what they are entitled to in all respects, and have it measured to them in wisdom and mercy; for we now have, and ever have had, the best wishes for their welfare. But they can never hope for permanent good till they fully accept and faithfully observe the letter and the Spirit of the sacred books endorsed by the church up to 1844.

"Yes, I have been in Salt Lake," said he, dropping into a settee at the Windsor, and looking at the News reporter with an air to determine his interviewer's intelligence. "I have been with Mr. Broadhead, of St. Louis, engaged in representing the Mormon corporation in the suit of the government to dissolve that body, and the emigration department of it. The hearing lasted some time, and I am now on my way home. No, the case isn't settled yet, but the arguments are all in. The suit was brought under the law enacted by the last Congress, and the Mormon corporation contested its legality as being diametrically opposed to the principles of the Constitution, as it is."

"What are your impressions concerning the law and the Mormons, senator?"

"Well, the law is clearly a violation of the Constitutional rights, and I believe will not hold. The corporation of the Church of Latter Day Saints, is in no way that I can conjecture a violation of the laws of the country, and has as much right to stand as any other corporation in the country. We are basing our defense of the suits upon the construction placed by the Supreme Court upon analogous questions involving the Constitution. The Mormons regard the passage of the law and its enforcement as a persecution, and it seems to me that it is such. The exaggerated stories of the monstrous acts of the Mormon people have no foundation in fact, as far as I have observed. They are a progressive, go-ahead people, and as a rule are of superior intelligence. Their practice of polygamy is recognized by them to be detrimental to a Republican form of government, and while they can not be said to be convicted, they manifest a disposition to conform with the spirit of the law, and to desist from violating it. It is of course a part of their creed, and as such holds a sacred place in their religious views. But at the same time they appreciate the fact that the political system of America is based upon a social foundation which must be universal. I am under the impression that the stories about the Mormon church are greatly exaggerated, and are the cause of the great prejudice that exists in the country.

"I am inclined to regard the opposition to the Mormons as due to a lot of adventurers who have gone out there to make money and who are at the bottom of the agitation and dissemination of prejudice in order to drive the Mormons out and reap the benefit of their labor and property. The line between the Mormons and Gentiles is not so broad and bitterly maintained as has been supposed. In fact, very little feeling appears on the surface, and even from casual investigation. People will tell you stories of the most atrocious practices, but they make no effort to substantiate their assertions, and could not do it if they tried. The leading men of the Mormon corporation are striking examples of their intelligence, and as the practice of polygamy has been abolished in deference to the laws of the country, I fail to appreciate the necessity for such laws as the one we have been contesting."

WE find the following in the Burlington (Iowa) Post for November 5th, and gladly give it place in our columns, for we are pleased that our members by their worthiness command the esteem of those who know them well. Bro. Sellon is only one among very many of this kind.

Col. W. R. Sellon, who has been for many years an honored and influential citizen of this community, departed on Tuesday morning last for Kansas City, Missouri, where his services as stenographic reporter will command a greater income than he ever derived from that profession in Burlington. Col. Sellon has had some very eventful experiences during his life time, not the least pleasant of which has been his fifteen years of careful and methodical work done while official court reporter in this judicial district of Iowa. Many of our citizens will hear of his removal with sincere regret. The writer passed a pleasant half hour in Col. Sellon's company one day recently and was greatly interested in glancing over some personal papers which he was arranging at the time. Among them were highly complimentary personal letters from General Morgan, of Quincy, the late President Garfield, Hon. George W. McCrary while secretary of war, Chief Justice Samuel F. Miller of the Supreme Court of the United States and many other celebrities, showing the standing which he had occupied among the first men of the nation when he was serving as an officer in the Union army during the late civil war.

THE Expositor for November has this to say of Brn. H. C. Smith and E. L. Kelley:

"The Northern district of California was made glad by the presence of brother H. C. Smith, President of the Pacific Slope Mission, and elder E. L. Kelley, the Bishop's Counselor, in time to take part in the October conference, which is just past. Bro. Smith explains that his long absence from this district was on account of sickness in his family, work in the tent, and various hindrances consequent from the vastness of the field over which he presides. We were so pleased with the presence and spirit of the brethren that we forgot all our old grievances, and felt like saying, God bless you, brethren; let us work together in the noble cause of our Master and advance it by every lawful means. Let us strive for the unity of the Spirit and to be in the bonds of peace. Since conference, elders Smith and Kelley are visiting Stockton and Sacramento; after which brother Kelley will attend the two-days meeting at Watsonville, while brother Smith will labor where he can do the most good."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"What unseen altar crowns the hills
That reach up stair on stair;
What eyes look through, what white wings fan
These purple veils of air?
What presence from the heavenly heights
To those of earth stoops down?"

INDIVIDUAL WORK.

THE few thoughts we wish to present at this time have long been impressed upon our heart, and we ask for them the careful consideration of those who read the Column. "I love this latter day work with all my heart, and I am willing to do all I can to advance it because I know it is the work of God," is the testimony that we hear from time to time and which comes to us in almost every letter we receive. We believe this testimony is honest and sincere; and we thank God that he has not left himself without witnesses in this day and age of the world, but that in the nineteenth century, hundreds, yes thousands and tens of thousands of faithful witnesses have testified of Jesus, that he has revealed himself to them, that he liveth and is the Son of God. Grander testimonies have never been borne than have been borne to this generation, and many who have borne them will be among those of whom Jesus will say, "Father, I am not ashamed to own them as my brethren before thy face and before the face of these holy angels, because they were not ashamed of me and my words while they were in the world. They are mine and all mine are thine, and their names are written in my Book of Life."

Yes, we repeat, we are thankful for these testimonies; but connected with them there is sometimes coupled this expression, "I regret that it is not in my power to do more for the cause, but my time is so fully occupied that I can not do what I have in my heart to do." In this assertion there is a grave mistake made, which while we shall endeavor to point out we pray the Holy Spirit to help each of us to realize. God is just, and he sent his Son into the world that through him we might understand the Father. Jesus, who came to save his people from their sins made this assertion, "If any man will come after me, let him take up his cross daily and follow me." There is a cross then to be taken up, and not at rare intervals, but daily; and that we might not walk in darkness we are informed that if we would be his disciples we must follow him. The justice of God forbids at the very outset our ever imagining that he would or could require of us to do anything which it was not possible for us to do. Are we called in poverty; it is possible for us in poverty to take up our cross and every day of our lives follow him, honor him, love him supremely, be faithful to the end, and from the midst of hard and bitter trials, when he shall say "it is enough," to be removed from this state of probation, and so be ever with the Lord. Upon the other hand it is possible amid those cares to try and walk in our own strength and thus be overcome. We may lift our eyes to those who have an abundance of the good things (?) of this world, we may murmur, and think our lot hard, and because we have not money to give to help on the work, we may forget that we are not our own, but bought with a price, and that he who paid for us with his life blood upon the cross, knew best just where to place us, just how hot the furnace must be that should burn up the dross of our selfish nature and refine the gold lying hid under it. We also forget that we are to follow him; and, dear sisters, if we do this, if we follow his steps, it will be very seldom that we shall enter into any vale of ease, any palace of wealth, but by the carpenter's bench we shall find him during the first thirty years of his life, and when his duty to his earthly parents is discharged in full and the time has come for him to enter upon his Father's work, we shall find him among the poor, the sick and the afflicted of earth, faint often and hungry, persecuted and despitefully used, spending whole days in fasting and prayer; and why? Do we ask why? Can we forget that "He took not upon him the nature of angels?" God forbid that we should ever forget this, forget that he was made like unto his brethren, and that of his brethren many had endured and overcome before he came to try the thorns of life's pathway and drink the many cups of bitterness it has to offer, even to the very dregs. But of all those, not one had been perfect, and he who would redeem them must be a "Lamb without spot or blemish."

Therefore, dear sisters, we say, don't forget the humanity of our Redeemer; don't forget the humanity of Redeemer; for leaning upon the heavenly arm, we must remember that he knows our every weakness, he knows our every temptation, and pointed out the only way of escape when he answered the tempter from the word of God, and the only source of strength when he sought long and frequent communion alone with his God. To us this same source of strength this sure refuge in every time of trouble and temptation, is just as accessible as it was to him; and if we never lose sight of his human nature, small room will ever be left for any of us to murmur at our lot; but if Satan can blind us into the dangerous habit of thinking we can not overcome because we are human, then is he sure to follow up his advantage with other arguments equally false. We can overcome, we must overcome or we shall never enter into his rest, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it and we have no promise if we do not. "To him that overcometh" is the promise given, and only to him. This we can not do in our own strength, but if we take up our cross daily and follow Jesus, all along the path which he trod, we will find the stones of Bethel marking the places where he went to God and obtained what we may every day obtain, "Our daily bread."

(To be continued.)

WE trust the friends of "Autumn Leaves," will not fail to read the notice on the last page of the Herald and realize that in order to help us those who have sent in their names must now send in their money; and those who have been getting subscribers for us will confer a great favor if they will collect and send in the subscription price. We, of course, do not mean this to apply to elders who have taken names when travelling, but to parties who have taken them where they reside.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Emma Smith, Lamoni, Iowa.....	$ 18
Sr. Margaret Gimpson, Montrose, Iowa.....	1 00
Sr. C. C. Blakesley, Creston, Iowa.....	50
Bro. A. J. Blakesley, Creston, Iowa.....	50
Bessie, Ira, Asa and Mark Blakesley, Creston, Iowa.....	1 00
Sr. M. D. Kuykendall, Rossville, Texas....	32
A. Earnest and Daisey Dell Kuykendall, Rossville, Texas.....	18
Sr. Anna Wilson, Nebraska City, Neb.....	1 00
Sr. Sophia Smith, Centerville, W. Va.....	25
Sr. Katie Dawson, Centerville W. Va.....	50
A sister, Centerville, W. Va.....	25
Sr. Caroline L. M. Campbell, Quick, Iowa..	1 00
Sr. Almeda L. Campbell, Quick, Iowa.....	25
Sr. Susan Green Onslow, Iowa.....	50
Sr. J. A. Herbert, Ionora, Ill.....	25
Sr. Henrietta A. Gallup, Hancock, Iowa....	1 00

LAMONI, IOWA, November 16th.

THANKSGIVING HYMN.

We thank Thee, O Father, for all that is bright—
The gleam of the day and the stars of the night;
The flowers of our youth and the fruits of our prime,
And blessings that march down the pathway of time.

We thank Thee, O Father, for all that is drear—
The sob of the tempest, the flow of the tear;
For never in blindness, and never in vain,
Thy mercy permitted a sorrow or pain.

We thank Thee, O Father, for song and for feast—
The harvest that glowed and the wealth that increased;
For never a blessing encompassed earth's child
But Thou in Thy mercy looked downward and smiled.

We thank Thee, O Father of all, for the power
Of aiding each other in life's darkest hour;
The generous heart, and the bountiful hand,
And all the soul-help that sad souls understand.

We thank Thee, O Father, for days yet to be—
For hopes that our future will call us to Thee;
That all our eternity form, through Thy love,
One Thanksgiving Day in the mansions above.—Sel.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., 25th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—Feeling lonely in heart, yet with a desire to give expression in words, I write how for these many days past I have desired to seek for a better way, according to the word written in the scriptures of divine truth, light and life, which is the fullness of the promise offered to those seeking the way of eternal life. It is just three years, the 2d of this month (October) since I united with the Reorganized Church, and truly I find it is the greatest school I ever entered into; for I have had many persecutions, and been almost ready to faint by the way. Still when I look and see how Jesus has suffered for me, it seems to draw me closer to him.

I am the mother of five children—almost young women—and one son. Two of the youngest have united with me in membership; and my prayer is that I may be spared to see all of them take the same step, through the same door, which will lead all into the kingdom, on conditions that we keep humble at the foot of the cross, and keep the commandments of the Lord till he comes to number up his jewels. My heart's desire is to live nearer to my God, even though it be a cross that raiseth me; and I pray that every brother and sister who has covenanted with the Lord at the water's brink may remember the words of the Psalmist David: "Gather my saints together unto me, those that have made a covenant with me by sacrifice;" for "except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain."

Your sister seeking light,

S. A. GRAVES.

CANTON, Missouri, Oct. 27th.

Dear Sisters:—I think it is a duty we owe to our Lord to tell of our interest in his work, and testify to his goodness and mercy to us; and we know that the praise of the humblest, if honest and from the heart, is acceptable to him.

For sixteen years I have borne the name of Latter Day Saint, a name which though odious to some, is dear to me. Never for one moment in all that time have I regretted that I cast in my lot with God's people. Rather may I say that I have rejoiced that I was brought to a knowledge of the truth; and as year after passes by, though they be fraught with trouble, care and adversity, my faith grows stronger, my hopes brighter, and my longing to live as becometh a Saint more intense. Oh, when we think of the blessed promises that are ours if we endure and are faithful, should we falter and faint? There are trials for all who bear the Savior's name, but we have also his strong arm to uphold and the Holy Spirit to strengthen and comfort us.

Dear mothers of the Column, I too have little ones, who look to "mamma," as the guiding star of their lives; four dear little souls who need the tenderest care and most careful training. How shall I discharge the weighty responsibility aright? is a question that agitates my mind daily and hourly. I love my little ones deeply, tenderly, and I wish and hope for them the best that life holds; but how best to fit them for whatever the future may have in store for them, is a problem that is difficult to solve; and right here I find so much help and such profitable instruction in the "Column!" Oh, what a benefit it is! Although I love to read every thing in the Herald, I always turn eagerly to the Home Column first. "Sister Frances" is a name that is known and loved in many a home. We can not estimate the good that may be done, and has already been done, by the Mother's Column. It helps me in caring for my children, it assists me to bear my daily burdens more cheerfully, and it stands instead of the society of the Saints to me; for I alone in this town bear the name of Latter Day Saint. I do not have the happy privilege of attending the Saints' worship; neither can I enjoy the society as even one of our number, nor am I blessed in having a believing husband. All these are severe trials for me, and sometimes my heart is very sad; but I will strive with the Father's help to press on unflinchingly.

I think that the garb of the Saints should be clean, neat and tasteful, not marked for its ostentation, nor made prominent by its eccentricity; that each should dress within their means, and avoid outrageous "prevailing styles."

I will close: asking to be remembered when you bow before the throne in prayer.

Your sister in the gospel,

EDITH M. FIFER.

JUNIATA, Michigan, Oct. 31st.

Dear Sisters:—We came to this place two years ago. There were seven of us then and ten have been baptized since. One family of Saints moved into the place, and now we have a nice little branch, and I want to see it grow till it becomes a large branch, and I think it will be much larger if we each continue faithful. We each have our responsibility, and may we each so live and so act that there may be no unfinished work left by us. I often think of writing, but the cares of life seem to occupy my time and mind. I have three children entrusted to my care, and it is my desire to so do by them that I may be accounted worthy to be spared to bring them up in such a way that they may be a blessing to those around them.

Sister Hartnell is very sick, and we wish the prayers of the Saints for her and all of us as a branch.

Your sister,

ANNA PHELPS.

A DREAM.

I sank into the arms of sleep,
One gentle summer's night;
All care fled from my weary mind,
My heart aglow with light.

A vision rose before my view,
While slumber closed my eyes;
Nature seemed wrapped in silvery mist
Which reached unto the skies.

Me'thought I neared a river wide
Which flowed so darkly blue,
And solemn in its shady depths
Of sky-reflected hue.

Steps seemed to wind along the shore
Unto the water's edge;
I trembled as I downward walked
Then rested on a ledge.

Two forms appeared along the brink,
And as they neared my side,
My heart beat with a calm despair,
Lest called into the tide.

But one with hand extended near,
Then drew me gently back,
Upon a firmer footing there,
Which safety did not lack.

I raised my eyes to heaven's dome.
In splendor shining there,
A pearly cross of perfect form
And beauty in mid air.

Just up above the river dark;
With radiance purely white,
It spread a glory all around
And gave to earth its light.

No poet's pen, or artist's brush
Could paint that scene aright,
No tongue describe the grandeur,
Which bursts upon my sight.

My heart was rent with love divine,
So heavenly did it seem;
I thought to dwell there evermore—
I woke—it was a dream.

GALLEN, Mich.

CYNTHA O. SCOTT.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 21st.

Dear Mother's of Zion:—While reading your Column I was led to write, and as I have not written for a good while, I thought I would tell you a little of my experience in life. Your letters do cheer me. I have thought no one else had such a hard lot as I have; but when I read your letters, I see there are others that have great trials to bear; so it gives me courage to go on. I could not bear them if it was not for the blessed Master encouraging me by his Spirit every day, and the hope I have of being liberated from this bondage of suffering some day, and being free from the trials of this world. The request I have to make of the brethren and sisters in Zion is, that they will make a special prayer to God in my behalf, though I am an unworthy child. I have been administered to several times, and have had special prayers, and yet seem no better, but worse. I can not believe that the gift of God is not efficacious as ever; but I know that God's ways are not our ways; and if it is his will, I want to submit to him all things, for I know he will do all things well. This is the prayer of your unworthy sister. I often feel grieved to think we, as Saints, do not study ourselves enough. We all seem to see the faults and failings of others, instead of our own. I often think how God knew humanity when he said we should first cast the beam out of our own eye, then should we see the mote in our brother's eye.

SR. E. CORNISH.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Oct. 24th.

Dear Sister Frances:—As the Lord has spared me another year I am happy in the privilege of sending my birthday offering. Sisters, we should all help to sustain this fund, even if it is by sacrifice. God is the author of this Latter Day Work, therefore let us all work while it is called to-day. I must say that I have a great deal to be thankful for, to the Giver of all good. Last summer I was very sick with the measles, and, my husband not being at home, the first night and one day I was all alone. I could not send for an elder, for we have no branch here, but are some of the lone ones. Some of the neighbors were very kind to me. As soon as they knew that I was sick they sent for a doctor, but the Lord was with me through all. I was so very sick and yet so happy—past all description. A Presbyterian minister called to see me, and we had a good talk. He said that we had attended to the Bible as well as the Book of Mormon. I gave him a Voice of Warning and some tracts to read, and I must say the Lord was with me while talking with him.

Dear saints, we are only five members here now, and live a good ways apart, and don't have much of the good word preached to us except through the Herald. We are so very lonely at times, and oh, so hungry for the word of God. But we have been greatly blessed so far, more than we are worthy of. I have been a great sufferer for a good many years, but the Lord has healed me. This summer when it was so dry, one day I prayed for it to rain, and in less than one hour it did rain. God hears and answers our prayers if we trust in him. From sister

MINNIE LEMBURG.

ONSLow, Iowa, Oct. 31st.

Dear Sr. Frances:—Our conference was held here the 8th and 9th of the present month, and I believe the benefit derived therefrom is not all manifest; for people are talking, and the more they talk the more they will think, and reflection is just what is needed. Your sister,

ELLA J. GREEN.

PROPOSED DESTRUCTION OF THE SABBATH.—In New York seventy thousand Germans pledged themselves to vote for any candidate who will not promise to favor the opening of the saloons from two o'clock Sunday afternoon till midnight. Senator Platt attempted to placate them by promising that there should be no temperance legislation at Albany this winter. But this would not satisfy them. Open saloons on Sunday is their ultimatum. We hardly know which fact to be most startled at—the proposition of the saloon-keepers or the proposed bargain of Platt. This movement of the saloons outrages all decency. It is a monstrous proposition which ought to make thousands of prohibition votes. It is a proposition not only to demoralize men but to defy the law of God. Even the sanctity of the Sabbath must be violated to satisfy the greed of the saloon leeches.—See

Correspondence.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., Nov. 8th.

Bro. Joseph:—It is a great comfort and satisfaction to read the Herald and see the excellent progress we are making; and we have great reason to rejoice because of God's goodness towards us, in seeing the fulfillment of God's promise made many years ago, when he declared that Zion should not be moved out of her place; but that those who remained (in the faith) and were pure in heart should return to build up and do his work, and that he would give them favor in the eyes of the people so that the pure in heart would be able to accomplish his great work. We are witnessing a wonderful change in the people here, the children of those who once persecuted the Saints and drove them from this goodly land are now aiding us with their dollars to help us build a house of worship, and express themselves upon the streets and in public places that the Latter Day Saints have as good a right to this county as any body else and that their religion is about as good as any other.

The Saints here are setting a good example by their every day walk, and with few exceptions are striving to stand approved before God. Peace and good will abound among us. I just returned from Knobnoster where I had a profitable time. Bro. Luff had been there twice, opened up the field, and had made many friends both for the church and himself. He was spoken of in the highest terms by the people, both as a gentleman and as a preacher. I preached five times to large congregations and held one question meeting, which seemed to be the most interesting of all. Many written questions were handed in with the name of the questioner, and I feel confident that much good was accomplished. The following are some of the questions: "If the Latter Day Saints' Church is the only true church on earth, and organized in 1830, what has become of all the good people who lived and died before that time?" "If Christ died for the sins of the world, why then should we be baptized for the remission of sin?" "Was Joseph Smith the author of the marriage system as now practiced in Utah?" "Can a man be an apostle unless he has seen Jesus Christ in the flesh?"

The people are like the Bereans; they inquire "if these things be so." The Bible was to be seen on the merchant's counter, on the lawyer's table, shoe-maker's bench, banker's desk, tailor's table, and in the laborer's pocket. This was all brought about by the able presentation of the truth by Bro. Luff. Bro. H. Wells and family are the only Saints there. He is quite able to hold the fort.

Elder Hyde, (son of Orson Hyde), and his wife, (daughter of John Taylor), and his two sisters-in-law, from Utah, called on us and made us a very pleasant visit. I spent nearly one whole day in conversing with them on things pertaining to the church. The ladies were not informed in regard to the position we occupy. We read the Book of Mormon, also Doctrine and Covenants and Times and Seasons, of which John Taylor was editor at one time, and compared it with the testimony of some witnesses now in Utah. I told them that I preferred the statement of Jesus to Satan,—"Thus it is written;" and as Joseph Smith said in Nauvoo, "If any man teach (or testify) contrary to the Book of Mormon, Bible and Doctrine and Covenants, put him down as an impostor."

Mrs. Hyde is above the average in intellect and spirituality, and my wife remarked after they were gone "I would like to have her for a neighbor and associate." In bonds,

F. C. WARNKY.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 17th to 22d.

Dear Bro. Stebbins:—September 30th to October 4d inclusive was marked by one of the best conference sessions ever held here. Both powers were manifest in a very marked degree. Sunday from two o'clock till dark was a time of events never to be forgotten. I only wish that David Whitmer or any other dissenter had witnessed it. Outsiders were as deeply moved as the Saints. Timely warning and exhortation were given in tongues and in prophecy in a most affecting manner; and, as the adversary came also and seized hold of two he was speedily cast out in the all prevailing name of Jesus. One brother he almost choked to death. The brother arose, called for help, choked and fell. But the rebuke was instantaneous, as the word was spoken with hands on his head. This brother is an excellent man, a good worker in Los Angeles branch. He then attacked another brother, who had hard work to keep from going through the window; but Christ again prevailed. On Monday evening during preaching, an aged brother felt strangely and went out doors. He was quickly seized, thrown violently to the ground and nearly killed. Bro. Barr found him more dead than alive, brought him in cold and speechless. Four of us quickly laid hands upon his head and rebuked the evil spirit in Christ's name. Instantly it was done, and the aged brother praised God for deliverance, and has been free ever since. But we four turned cold, and it was some time ere we were rid of the cold, snakey feeling; but it bound none of us. For nearly an hour after reaching home I was deathly sick, then it suddenly left me, and I have not since felt it. The healing power is on the increase with us as sickness has also increased. God is good, and he blesses us greatly by day and by night.

Yesterday was a busy Sunday with me. Here is a synopsis of it. But first I will say that I worked four days last week making portable seats for the tent. On Friday took four horse team with Bro. Ammon Goff and the tent and fixtures and drove forty-five miles to Pomona. In the evening had a chatty meeting at the home of Elder Samuel L. Crain (old timer) He spoke in tongues and his wife interpreted. It was mostly to Bro. Hiram Holt, encouraging him to remain in the field and not to think of leaving it, as he had thought of doing. As neither brother nor sister Crain had heard of his private intentions, it surprised Bro. Holt, and did him great good, evidently satisfied him about his duty. He now says he is ready to go anywhere he may be sent.

On Saturday morning we set up the tent. At noon Ammon and myself started for home, leaving Bro. H. L. Holt and Q. S. Sparks to preach in the tent, and both in fine spirits. We reached home in the night and tired. On Sunday at eleven o'clock I spoke one hour on the Word of Wisdom. Then, with Bro. Ammon, I rode one mile to administer to sister Van Whistler, who was in agony with her head. She was immediately relieved. Then rode two miles to Bro. Ammon's and administered to a lady from Missouri, a member of the Baptist Church. I then baptized, and we confirmed her and all were blessed of the Spirit. Afterwards, in response to an urgent call, Bro. Goff and myself rode six miles to Tustin, to Mr. David Thompson's (brother of A. W.), and found his wife given up by the doctors to die. The disease was typhoid fever, and her child and her aged father and mother were all very sick with the same fever. We were much blessed in prayer and administration. The Spirit said that if they were willing to obey the gospel they would be speedily raised up. All the family came near obeying two years ago, but put it off till the Spirit withdrew from them. The old gentleman, Mr. Spaulding, a Quaker, said to me last March that God had accepted him twenty years ago, and he had always felt more or less of the Spirit, so he was all right with God without obeying this gospel. I spoke of Paul and Cornelius, etc., and then told him that he had lived to the light given him and had been blessed, but now a greater light had come and unless he obeyed it his light would go out, and that he would yet feel that he had done wrong in putting off obedience, but all in vain. Now, after I had prayed and administered to him, he said, "For four months past I have been in the dark, and no spirit with me; what shall I do?" "Amen," said I, "remember the warning and obey the gospel and the Spirit will be given you." He answered, "I will if I live." He lives; and all are fast recovering, and we expect the family to obey the gospel. That night late we reached home again weary in body but rejoicing greatly in Spirit over the days work. Every day since I visit them, and administer to them. God is blessing us mightily with healing power; and as the Spirit told us in our Conference, it is the day of power, even the hour of His judgment, and we should no longer halt between two opinions, but should raise high the standard and proclaim the gospel. God is with us, and his angels round about us, desiring to bless. And if we labor with our might, the elements will obey, and evil spirits also at the word of his servants spoken in the name of Jesus, as the Spirit of God shall direct. Press on, press on to the end and to victory. Also who among the Saints can pray. "Thy will be done on earth as in heaven," unless they are willing to do a tenth part of it now, to keep the temporal law, to prepare for the redemption of Zion, to get ready to live with angels? All of this is in harmony with the true spirit of the work.

Ever yours,

D. S. MILLS.

CENTERVILLE, IOWA, Nov. 8th.

Dear Herald:—With pleasure I now write to your columns for the first time. We came here five years ago, and were the first Latter Day Saints in Centerville. There are now fifteen members, and we hope there will soon be more. Bro. H. A. Stebbins was here last week and organized us into a branch, and we hope it will prosper and become mighty in this place. We have Sunday School and church every Sabbath and enjoy them very much. Bro. Knowles gives us the use of his house. If any elder should pass through here we would be very glad to have him give us a call, and will give him the best kind of treatment. It is with great pleasure I read in the Herald how the cause is prospering in every locality, and we hope ere long there will be a stir in this place. Bro. Stebbins has preached here several times, but the people are so prejudiced they will not come out to hear. Centerville is a nice little town of about 5,000 inhabitants; its people are very temperate and industrious. There are five mines here in operation, and miners are making good wages. Hoping there will be more Saints here soon,

I remain yours for the truth,
RUSSELL ARCHIBALD.

LAMONI, Iowa, Nov. 11th.

Dear Herald:—Your space is valuable, the work is growing, and we elders must learn to abbreviate.

I remained at Flagler's till September 22d, preaching each evening till I left for Des Moines. The few Saints there were anxious to be organized into a branch, but it did not seem to be wise at that time. Is it not possible that we are some times more anxious to be organized and spread upon the record as a branch, than to faithfully discharge our duties as members and officers in the Church of God? If those holding the priesthood do not manifest needed wisdom and zeal in the work when living where there is no branch, is it not risky business to organize and place them in charge? It is a little too much like that (to me) very wrong and dangerous practice of bestowing authority in order to encourage! I believe the Lord's work is able to take care of itself, and does not, therefore need any support from that which is contrary to its spirit and genius. These remarks are general, and not intended to reflect on the Saints at Flagler's.

I remained at Des Moines from Thursday till Monday night on the sick list; but I was in good hands, and, through the blessings of God I was able to speak in the chapel on Sunday night with good liberty.

Arrived on the Camp Grounds at Harlan on the 4th day of the meetings. The Reunion was a success. The meetings, as a rule, were excellent; and while the spiritual manifestations were abundant, there was much less "wild-fire" than is usually displayed in the large gatherings of the Saints. I do not wish to be understood as saying, or believing, that all was perfect, and that there is no more room for improvement,—far from it—but, rather, that the degree of perfection already reached is encouraging, and demonstrates that great good results from these Reunion meetings when rightly conducted.

Since the breaking up of the Camp, I have preached three times at Dow City; five times at Galland's Grove; twice at Woodbine; five times at Magnolia; four times at Crescent City, and five times at Council Bluffs.

These meetings were generally well attended, and the interest was from fair to excellent. With one or two exceptions, I had good liberty in speaking—sometimes unusually good. God's power was manifested, at times, in such a degree, and in such a manner, as to leave some without excuse for continuing in error, and so as to constitute in very deed, a "Savor of life unto life, or of death unto death." To God be all the glory. I attended the Galland's Grove and Pottawattamie District conferences. While at Galland's Grove six were baptized. Sunday morning at the Council Bluffs conference, I spoke on the law of temporalities, and on Monday evening, just before going into the stand to preach, Bro. Andrew Hall, the Bishop's Agent for the district informed me that a brother had come in from the country that day, invoiced his property, and paid him $400.00. To others we say, go thou and do likewise. I arrived home last Saturday. Will be off again as soon able. Yours in hope,

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

ALBION, Idaho, Nov. 8th.

Dear Herald:—But little appears in your pages from our corner of the world. I hope we are not spiritually dead, nor yet very sleepy. We are certain of slow growth at least. With the burdens and turmoils of life we are tossed upon the waves of time. We all need very much the assurance of that "hope which enters to that within the veil." The seasons of refreshing which come from the presence of the Lord are none too frequent. We might increase their frequency and duration, could we more fully abide in the "love of the Father." We have had a nice shower here lately, for Bro. Anthony gave us a call and spoke for us the 6th instant in our Court House, once in the morning upon "legal adoption," and in the evening from the verse, "Beware of false prophets who come to you in sheep's clothing," etc. One old lady remarked to me upon going from the morning service, "That was a sermon!" There is some substance to such talk, and it seems silly to suppose thinking people do not see it. I do not say this to flatter. All who know me are aware I seldom offer such. Still truth is truth. Brother Anthony labors in a peculiarly difficult field. He scarcely gets a crumb of comfort and cheer as compared with the encouragements offered in the more inviting fields. He ought to get stacks of sheaves where he only gets one, or none.

After I returned from evening service I laid down and slept as sweet a sleep as ever was my lot, and woke two or three hours before day-light with the spiritual presence of his words with me. I wished with all my heart I could always feel so easy and so peaceful. Men may heap lies mountain high concerning Joseph Smith. They may search from pole to pole for scandal with which to besmirch his name and to veil the light from view. Still this truth remains: The gospel restored by him gives the sweetest peace to all who obey and love the truth.

Conviction steals across the mind—

It must come forth from God;
The elixir of his love.

If anything else will ever fill the void in the mind of man, I would like to know of it. How very blind is man to his own good. How all soul cheering is the thought of a covenant with God which he ratifies with his love, and seals the contract with his peace. Whoever knew that peace but said it passeth all understanding. And yet how unknowingly, at times, we grieve that love and drive it from our breast. What soul can ever know peace and quiet again till that wounded love returns? We can only answer, none.

How very often have I thought if ever I should entirely break off this covenant with the Holy One, that I hope I would have the good sense to withhold my tongue from speaking against God's latter day work. Weak and inefficient as I am, I hope in God that he will take me hence before such an event. The darling wish of my heart is that I only be permitted to die while resting in his love. I shall rest easy, that I shall awake in His likeness, and be content. As Latter Day Saints, I do believe we do more stumbling over each others faults, real, or supposed, than any other one cause.

I am satisfied that the soul which has once been the abode of the Spirit of truth, if it leaves never to return, that soul had better "never been born." God Almighty preserve me, and all mankind from that fate, is my prayer.

When brother E. C. Brand's hands rested upon my head at the waters' side, after baptism, while he told me that God had preserved my life in the day of battle for a purpose known in him; little did I ever dream of the blessedness of the gospel of Christ, and what would be my condition if I should finally lose the great reward! Like Paul, I exceedingly fear and tremble and some times am weak enough to wish the battle of life over and won. This I think is sinful, as it evinces a weakness akin to cowardice. If the Lord was kind enough to preserve my life in the day of battle (which I certainly thought at the time he did) that I might embrace his truth, how kind; what a sweet assurance is this thought to me.

When I read in the Herald, and other church papers, the many proofs that God lives to-day as of old, to bless and confirm in "the one faith" his children, even his weak and erring ones, I feel like weeping with pleasure. What a most precious time in the age of the world is this in which we live, when the time of the great "famine of hearing the words of the Lord." is past. This may seem to many a very selfish glee.

Well, friends, R. J. Anthony has been unselfish enough to come and present the way of the Lord in plainness and simplicity. May the Lord bless his unselfishness to the salvation of souls who need the balm of Gilead. I don't see anything selfish about it; the truth is being heralded o'er land, sea, like milk and honey without price. Accept it we all may, or reject it if we wish. A life unto life or death unto death, is this message from the skies.

Go on, dear Herald; Carry everywhere the sweet, soft cadence of the waving voice of love! God is sending you abroad with his messages of love. Hoping all your readers will grow to love and prize you more, may the Father's love be with you, is my humble wish.

C. L. ALBERTSON.

CORTLAND, Ill., Nov. 14th.

Bro. David Dancer:—I wish I could tell you how well I love our dear old "Saints' Herald." I think that many of its articles, letters and sentences are dictated by the Spirit of God, for many times I feel the Spirit of the Master bearing witness with my spirit that the testimonies, teachings, doctrines and sentences were dictated by the aid of the Holy Spirit. I bear the same testimony for the "Mothers' Home Column." May God continue to bless our sister who has charge of it with his Holy Spirit in the future as he has in the past; and give to the Church of Christ ten thousand like sister Frances. O, how my soul blesses God for this great latter day work. May he enable us all to keep our spirits pure, and to add to our faith those Christian graces enumerated in second Peter. God bless you, Bro. Dancer, and all under your care in the Publishing House, is the prayer of yours in the Lord.

W. R. CALHOON.

No. 22 Aber House, Ogmere Vale,
GLAMORGANSHIRE, Wales, Oct. 27th.

Bro. Joseph.—Since last writing from Llanelly July 9th, 1887, I have been as active in Zion's cause as my limited wisdom taught me. Time only will tell the tale as to the work done in sowing the gospel seed, as well as the nature of the soil into which it has been sown. It is a task in most places to pluck out the entwined and deep rooted ivy, brush, weeds, and poisonous evils of Brighamism which have found lodgment in the hearts of the masses through both true and exaggerated reports in the popular periodicals of this land, printed in the two languages, also by discourses and lectures of the most talented men here. Hence it may be seen at a glance that our row is extremely hard, for the people generally will have it that we are precisely the same class of messengers, only we are a little more reserved in presenting the Brighamite evil. O what a pity, to think how those boasting priesthood aspirants have polluted and corrupted the fair fame of the church of the loving Redeemer! By so doing they have poisoned the hearts of good, honest souls against Christ's "eleventh-hour" call. What will be their punishment! But thanks be to His holy name for again sending His inspired servants to not only warn Israel of her sad apostacy, but to tell the world at large that Israel's God never did, and never will countenance sin in any people, much less in those he so favored with Christ's divine gospel. There is great need of patience as well as true courage, coupled with heavenly wisdom, in accomplishing the task assigned Zion's toiler's in the Reorganization.

In my rambles in the branches, and over and among these rugged mountains of Wales, I came across, at different periods, four Utah elders, but for reasons best known to themselves they failed to assault publicly our ranks, but snakelike, privately, they tried to stain our names with sin and apostacy,—and especially yours, Bro. Joseph. In this, as in many other things, history repeats itself. The thief is the first to cry "thief." I pressed home upon two of them that, inasmuch as they considered polygamy a part and parcel of the gospel, why did they not preach it in these lands in place of preaching a fractured gospel when the church had been commanded to preach the gospel in its fulness. The reply was, that the first principles had to be taught in Babylon, while polygamy, etc., belonged to the higher schools, in the pure courts of Zion. I replied, "Yes; where puny man's counsel, 'Do as you are told, asking no questions,' ruled and reigned in preference to the Christ given law of the gospel made plain in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, which they in Zion (wrongly named) term as the ashes of a rye straw." They became angry and declined debate, especially with "Josephite apostates." In return we treat them as kind as we know how—our mission being "love to all, malice to none."

I spent several weeks with the Saints in Cardiff. They number twelve, such that has never bowed to the shrine of Brighamism. Brother G. Cope is their presiding elder. True witnesses of the word as Thomas Gould and William Webberly, with whom your humble brother proclaimed the "pure testimony poured forth in the Spirit" to hundreds in that place, especially in the most conspicuous places, such as the Bachelor and the Bute Monuments, where several of the business, thinking people came forward with a friendly grip of the hand at the close, asserting, in a loving tone of voice, that if such really were our views as a people they felt to bid us Godspeed. Yet with all this and a deal more I might say the people are afraid to obey, thinking there is to follow, some corrupting doctrine. Hence, in the face of such, it is needful to continue to present the word "wisely," the saints living up to their profession day by day.

Some of the elders in Wales act very unwise indeed, which I have tried to put a stop to by mild persuasion; for they think it is poor preaching upon their part if they fail to hear the people say that "He that turneth the world upside down is come hither also." This is done chiefly by browbeating the religious sects, telling them of the foolishness of their creeds, exciting their combativeness, in place of speaking to their reason. I have long concluded that it is not so much what is said that wounds the people, but it is the way it is said. For instance: Some years ago a brother was called on to preach in English. He commenced, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not, shall be damned." A pause ensued; then lifting his hand he said with emphasis, "And sarve him right, too!" This brought a laugh at his expense. What were the conclusions of thinking minds, judge ye. I do not write this of our good meaning brethren to wound or in any way hurt them. No, verily, but with a desire for all to learn wisdom from the past.

From Cardiff I went to Aberaman, Aberdare Merthyr, Nantyglo, Blaina, Ogmere where I am at this writing, preaching in every place when an opening presented, and teaching the law to the Saints, encouraging them onward, still onward, giving them to understand that the secret of prosperity in the church consists in prayer and a daily improvement in living before the Lord, our chief enemy in the cause being "self." For if self is made right, and kept right, the battle is turning on our side; and when our minds in prayer are so occupied, we will have no time to look at the faults of others, and especially through magnifying glasses.

I am truly sorry for this people, for many of them have not one half the chance that the English have, there being several who can not even read their own language, much less the Herald. Others hearing the Herald read do not understand it. I conclude that in order to produce prosperity among this people in the true spirit and nature of the work, there should be a "press" among them, so that the chief articles in the Herald might be translated and published in their own language more full. Oh, may the Lord hasten the expected time is the prayer of every thinking mind among the Welsh people in the Reorganization, to which I respond, Amen and amen. There are several tracts about to be translated, if thought advisable by the church when in session the coming semi-annual conference in Aberaman, next Sabbath—such as the "Successor," showing the chief and important differences between us and the Utah Mormons, for there are many an honest Welshman that has torn loose from Brighamism who desire to learn in their own tongue the difference. I do hope it will be done.

I am sorry to inform my brethren that I have had two letters from my wife informing me of her severe illness, and urges me to come home.

I wrote to Bro. J. Chisnall to visit my family, and inform me further by return post. Let it be understood by all that my soul's desire is to continue to toil for Zion in these lands, coming as I am now more fully into the ways of the Welsh people again, after being in America for thirty years. Will the dear Saints remember my companion before the throne of grace, imploiring the Lord to heal her. Amen.

Yours in Christ,

JOHN D. JONES.

LUCTOR, Kansas, Nov. 3d.

To Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair.—I am a constant reader of the Saints' Herald for the last fifteen months—ever since I embraced the religion of the Latter Day Saints. I have enlisted for life, and am engaged in the work with a determination to hold out faithfully to the end that I may obtain the crown. My heart pained within me when I read how the Saints were persecuted in 1835 to 1838, and I am led to ask, Would I be willing to endure so much for the Master's sake as they did for the work in those days of fear and trouble. Your brother in Christ,

JOHN BUTLER.

DAYTON, Dakota.

Editors Herald.—Myself and Bro. Flanders were baptized July 24th, 1887, by Bro. E. Day Bennett, of Marshall branch. Bro. Christopher Ode has a small lake in which seven of us were baptized this summer. I am but a new beginner in this great latter day work, and it seems like a great wonder to me that God has ever permitted me to live through all my wickedness to see the blessed day when I was baptized. I have thanked and do thank my heavenly Father that he has guided me safely through these many years, and at last sent his servant Robert Oehring to tell me what to do to be saved. It is indeed wonderful how God accomplishes his work, and it is indeed a great wonder to me that he has ever taken any mercy upon me, for I have taken his holy name in vain thousands upon thousands of times. Not only that, but I have been the loudest against the Mormons, and the Saints here had no worse enemy than myself. I had as much to say against them as any one. When Bro. Bennet thought of joining the Saints I did my very best to show him he was foolish. I told him that I could endure most anything but a Mormon, and that Mormonism like Spiritualism was a curse to any country, and that the world was full of God's gospel, that man could become a Christian, and said: "But for heaven's sake, Day, do not become a Mormon." This may sound strange, but it is the truth; and it may seem strange to an outsider how one like me would ever become a Saint. I will tell you: Throw aside prejudice; and if you have read any in the Bible, take it down from the dusty shelf and read it carefully and study out all its important matters, and you will discover things you never knew, or perhaps have stumbled over a great many times. Bro. Oehring little thought that the seed which he sowed would ever take root in this wicked heart of mine. I rather took the Saints by surprise when I was baptized, for I had said nothing about it previously to any one. I have never done anything that I was prouder of than this baptism; and I hope and pray that I may ever be faithful to my God and this great work. I have never enjoyed such peace, such happiness, in all my life as I have since I became a Saint, and I take notice I am not the only one, for all the Saints here that are strong in faith are the happiest people I ever saw. God bless Bro. Oehring; he is a faithful servant of the Lord. He gets so interested in his preaching that his one hour sometimes lasts three and four hours. He has such a way of explaining the Bible that we could listen to him all day. I do hope and pray that many more sinners like myself will find the same happiness that I found.

I am, dear editors, yours truly in Christ,
PHILIP C. FISHER.

SKETTY, Swansea, October 30th.

Bro. Joseph:—I have oftentimes sat me down with the intention of writing to the Herald, but from same cause or other I have always deferred doing so until "some other time." As I have unfortunately been unable to attend Conference at Aberdare to day, I have been looking up some of my old Heralds, for when I can not attend meetings I find strength and comfort in perusing their pages. I was glad to see Bro. Tubb's letter in your issue of October 1st. His remarks about Bro. Whitmer's Address are particularly interesting, and I quite agree with him when he states that the replies were both masterly and edifying to the saints. I have been in the church for several years, but it is only of late that I have been able to value its priceless worth. I have had many testimonies and I am thankful for them. Last September my little boy lay dangerously ill; the doctor said that unless we kept him from all draughts he would surely die. I was with the little child one day and night, and often humbled myself before His throne in prayer, asking God to spare me my beloved one. The child was getting worse each day and I, having no faith in the doctor, wrote to one of my brethren asking him to intercede for my boy. In his reply he bade me be comforted as he had been assured through a dream that the little one would be spared. My faith in the brother's assurance was so great that I did not feel any anxiety for my child afterwards, and thank God, in a few days he was playing with the others as though nothing had happened.

The question "Shall we doctor when we are sick," which has appeared in the Herald lately, interests me very much. I for one believe that it is not right (except perhaps in a case of a broken bone) to call in the services of a professional man, for if the great I AM does not think it well to relieve us in answer to our prayers, we may rest assured that no earthly power can. I would like to write more on this subject, but I must leave the matter over for more able pens than mine.

In the Herald of August 6th on page 519 there are several advices how "to prevent divorces." The first is, "Marry in your own religion." This is advice which every young brother should cherish. I was married very young to a lady professing to be a Wesleyan. Before my marriage she knew that I was a Mormon, and often tried to get me to "turn away from such wicked, hateful, detestable people." I explained the doctrines to her with the result that she agreed never to say a word against the "wicked folks" again and after our marriage would have no objection to my attending their meetings. But no sooner had we been married than the persecution began, and I grieve to say, it is now worse than ever. Every Sunday morning when I purpose to leave home there are frowns, &c., which makes me feel too miserable to go to the people of God. If my wife knew as much as I know, O how happy we could be together. I would warn young brethren to be careful, for their happiness and their children's depend on their discretion.

We have a nice little branch at Morryston and are blessed with the Spirit to strengthen us on with the work. The services are always conducted in Welsh, and unfortunately I am not sufficiently well versed in the language to feel any freedom in speaking—and English seems to be so very foreign. When reading the account of Lamoni recently I inwardly prayed, "Would that my heavenly Father would grant a living there, for I could then be trained in the works of God in the language natural to me."

If any brother in America should require the services of a young man about twenty-three, I should be most pleased to hear from him. I am a short-hand writer here.

I have searched the correspondence columns of the Herald for some time for a letter from Bro. Alma Nephi Bishop and can not understand why he does not write. Surely he can not have forgotten his brethren and sisters at Morryston, and Llanelly. Will he kindly write me to address given, and I will reply by first mail. Asking an interest in your prayers that I may yet be a shining light in the kingdom of God.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

JOSEPH J. HOWELL.

LAMONI, Iowa, Nov. 16th, 1887.

On account of sickness in the family of Bro. David Archibald of Centerville, Iowa, I was called there November 3d. Remained over Sunday the 6th and preached in the Christian Church. Also organized a branch of the Saints, consisting of fifteen members, Bro. Russell Archibald being chosen as presiding priest and ordained. The brethren there would like other members of the church, coal-miners and their families, to come there and dwell. They state that work is to be had and wages are good. Any who wish can write Bro. Archibald for further information.

Yours, H. A. STEBBINS.

MALTA, Idaho, Nov. 11th.

Brother Blair:—I have been here for the last two weeks. Have held meetings here and in Albion; interest good. I will baptize some next Sunday. Will leave for Malad on the 14th inst., and will return to Salt Lake City as soon after as possible. The branches outside of the city demanded my attention as well as that in the city. Every possible effort is made by the sectarians to destroy our efforts and entice our members away. I want to visit Lehi, Pleasant Grove, Provo, Springville, Spanish Fork, Piontown, Nephi, Richfield, Elsinore, and Beaver, preaching at all those points. If Bro. Elvin comes he can take in all points to Provo and to Ogden week nights while I look after other places. The branches must be visited, and if I can be out all the time I could put the branches in better condition, and add to their numbers in many places.

R. J. ANTHONY.

I LEARNED that it is better a thousand times for a proud man to be humble, than to hold up his head in his pride and fancied innocence. I learned that he who will be a hero will barely be a man, and he that will be nothing but a doer of his work is sure of his manhood.—McDonald.

The printed name on the colored label on your paper gives the date to which your subscription has been paid. If it shows you are in arrears, please renew.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

CIVILIZATION.

IN my last article I called the attention of those who might read it to the fact that, so far as we can ascertain from history, civilization has alternately waxed and waned. Can we reasonably expect anything different or better in our age of the world without charging God, who is said to be no respecter of persons, with partiality? What are the causes of the rise and decline of civilization? This is a weighty question, one upon which volumes might be written. I shall, however, confine my reasonings for the present to a few of which I consider the leading causes.

Some might think I cater to some religious bias, hence before entering upon my subject I wish to state that religiously and otherwise if possible, I believe everything, but nothing in particular. To my mind, man is an imaginary identity, or in other words, I am just what any other man might have been, and any other man is exactly what I might have been.

Owing to a peculiar organization and certain physical affections I have been enabled to thoroughly comprehend the teachings of the Grecian sages, but later I have come to the conclusion that those of Confucius, and more particularly those of Solomon are much better suited to the desire for activity, so prevalent among American people at the present time. Solomon used to appear very mysterious, but it now seems quite plain to me that his mind grasped the whole condition of many, much more thoroughly than did those of either Grecian or Chinese sages.

"The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom." "Who knoweth the spirit of man that goeth upward, or the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth."

A wicked may be said to be truly converted when his fear of God overcomes his wicked desires, and if this condition continue, his conduct and character will improve. As it is with the individual, so it is with the people collectively. When public sentiment pronounces heaven, hell, God, the devil, and the free agency of man to be stern realities, I think we may safely conclude that that people are about ready to commence climbing the hill of civilization.

On the other hand, when a people have become so wonderfully wise that they regard the supernatural as doubtful, civilization must of necessity decline because such a people live chiefly for natural pleasures. The spirit of all true manliness aspires to supernatural enjoyment; hence he "goeth upwards."

Where are we to-day as a people? Quite a number of people do not believe in any future state, hence live only for carnal ends. A vast portion of people believe in a heaven, but no hell; and think God is such an easy-going master that he holds them accountable for little or nothing, so that they may indulge all they please here, and have a good time hereafter also. There are a few people who fully believe in the responsibility of man to God, and accept the gospel of Christ in its fullness. And if our little planet continues to roll on for centuries to come, and man still lives upon it, I have no doubt that this small number will constitute the nucleus from which the next civilization shall grow out of coming darkness.

Some might ask, To what do you ascribe the present high state of civilization? In answer, I would say that in addition to causes already stated, I do think that faith in the teachings and beautiful character of Christ has had a great deal more to do with it than anything else. I don't consider Christ to have been anything more than a man, but let him be knave, fool, lunatic or whatever you would make of him, he has done a greater work and is more praised in most parts of the earth than any other man that ever lived.

Skepticism claims a large need of praise for our present high condition; they have and have had many good minds among them, yet those minds were to Christianity what steam is to the locomotive. The steam would not accomplish anything without the restraint that is put upon it. The sceptic would have wrought no good without the restraining influence of Christianity.

PHILOS.

[Christ claimed to be the Messiah; the resurrection and the life; to be equal with God; the Savior of the world; and to hold "all power in heaven and in earth." By all these and many other considerations he is "more than a man."—ED.]

WHITMERISM, BROWNIISM— WHICH?

EDITORS HERALD:—The Saints and friends of Magnolia, Iowa, have had the privilege of hearing Mr. W. P. Brown, of Newton, Kansas, once of Independence, Missouri.

I wish to warn all Saints against his invidious presence. I deem it but right that I should do this. I hold no ill feelings against Mr. Brown as a man,—but I have a perfect hatred against the method he has so strangely adopted "to present the truth"—as he calls it. He gave expression to the most vindictive vituperation I ever listened to. He is out "as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour." His mission seems to be to undermine, tear down, and sow the seeds of dissension, distrust, and to disrupt the faith of the Saints. There is no spirit of peace, or of godliness in his peculiar work. His charges upon the Book of Doctrine and Covenants were most vile and perverting. His sentences were filled with blasphemous sentiment. His reflections upon Joseph Smith were unsavory. His accusations relative to the revelations through the "choice Seer" from 1829 to 1841, were terrible—"swelling words of vanity," and "allured through much wantonness." His arguments (?) were "like sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." I thought I had heard "fearful things" against Joseph Smith and his revelations, but never such as Mr. Brown gave vent to. He wanted the Doctrine and Covenants "torn to shreds, and trampled under foot!" He said "every evil existing in Utah could find its foundation in the Doctrine and Covenants." "It is the most damnable book that ever came before a people." "All it says has a 'thus saith the Lord' to it. If it was of man, it might not seem so bad, and even then I don't know whether we could scarcely tolerate it." These were some of his pleasing (?) expressions! Seven evenings did we controvert his harangue; and it was a deplorable time! Coming as he does to a people, desiring them to accept of Christ, "enter Christ's church," and claiming to believe in J. Smith as a prophet; one to whom angels came; one who, through God's power, translated the Book of Mormon, and at the same time will endeavor, after the most vehement manner to make people believe that Joseph Smith was a "fallen prophet;" a man who played upon the credulity of the people; who led a life of deception, fraud, imposition, lying, misguiding; unscrupulous in his conduct; violating commandments; receiving false revelations; conniving at wickedness; consenting to theft, falsehood, adultery, profanity; offering high ecclesiastical office to men of means to induce them to unite with the church,—in fine, playing the devil for fifteen years after a grand sort in high style!! Could or would any man with common sense accept of J. Smith as a prophet, a translator under God, who, according to Whitmer, and Brown, which?—held so high a head in a work of treachery and dastardly meanness as charged upon him in Magnolia! A man who, after Brown's defining, held a high hand stained with blood; unhallowed in touch; hypocritical in gesture; damning in its hold upon the people! Great God! Can it be? Never!!!

I speak the truth, and lie not, God bearing me witness—that these are not exaggerated statements of the case. He said "there were worse things in the Reorganization than polygamy." His misrepresentations of fact and truth knew no limitation. Wild in high sounding speech; reckless with words; careless in statement, he drove his "nightmare hideous with visions of blue devils" at a high rate of speed, dashing its foul brains against the rocks of eternal truth after a wonderful manner! Mr. Brown, it is with you as with Saul—"hard to kick against the pricks." But I have no such hope for you as that which came to him.

I asked the man ere we began discussion: "What is your position?" "Well," said he, "I—I—don't know a-s I have any." Said I, "Any man going about the country as you are must have some position, else what do you talk about? What do you claim?" "I claim, said he, "that errors in doctrine and government have been introduced into the Latter Day Saints Church." "You claim then to represent the Church of Christ?" "Yes." "I presume then," I continued, "that a proposition like the following would express your case: 'Resolved, that the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is not in harmony in doctrine or government with the Church of Christ. Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants to be standards of reference for evidence?'" "Yes sir; that's it," said Mr. Brown. I got the man limited in time to forty and forty-five minutes, one speech each evening, he leading. He didn't stick to the proposition. He never told the people how his church was organized, nor what its faith. Took it for granted, I judge, that the folks already knew.

To those who may not know of his style of reading and comment I refer you to sec. 107, par. 38, Doctrine and Covenants. "Now," said he, "do you see that? they may lie, and steal, and commit adultery, or do any thing they please—they'll be saved; because they are sealed unto the day of redemption. Where is there any gospel in this? Where is there any New Testament in this?" I referred the people to Eph. 4:30: "Grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." Also to 1 Corinthians. Paul did not teach that this guaranteed salvation unconditionally; no more does the revelation cited, and Mr. Brown knew it! I read in the book's holy "Preface these words: "Search these commandments; for they are true and faithful, and the prophecies and promises which are in them shall all be fulfilled." "What I the Lord have spoken I have spoken, and I excuse not myself." This is either true or false! Mr. Brown is either true or false in his statements regarding these things in that book! For one, I am willing to abide by an acceptance of all this nothing wavering!

I read in Sec. 63:16: "Remember that that which cometh from above is sacred, and must be spoken with care, and by constraint of the Spirit," etc. This language, in my estimation, brands the whence—the source—of Mr. Brown's cunning—not wisdom, for there is not the semblance of wisdom in it. He made the statement that, "the church existed six years without the Book of Doctrine and Covenants," forgetful of the fact that while the church had not the book in form, it was had in substance; and that the revelations comprised therein had already been given excepting possibly three—1837, 1838, and 1841, which were equally important with the former ones.

There is too much "straining at gnats and swallowing camels" in his business to suit my ideas of ministerial work. I asked, and now repeat, "What would Christian folk think of a man claiming to be a minister for Christ, going about inviting people to obedience to God, and yet he would pick up Lamech, Barak, Jephthah, Gideon, Samson, David, Solomon, Jonah, Peter and other ancients, portraying their acknowledged misdemeanors; citing people to those drunken, fornicating Corinthians; erring Galatians; debauched Romans; apostate Thessalonians; backsliding Asiatics Ephesian wolves, and expect people to receive "the word of life" upon his pictures of these things, rather than declaring the gospel of the Son of God!

Mr. Brown endeavored to prove Daniteism as existing by the martyr's consent—and I proved by the record that the Presidency branded Avar's work as "rascality."

I wish right here to relate a dream I had the night of October 21st, the discussion commencing on evening of 22d. Before retiring I presented the matter unto God in earnest prayer; and that night I dreamed I was walking along a street with a Bible under my left arm, and presently I saw a man of Mr. Brown's age and appearance squatting by a mud-puddle. He had an old, over half-worn broom with half a handle. I dipped it in the muddy water and flung it at me. I endeavored to avoid being spattered with it, and the farther I walked from him the harder he flung it. I looked to see if my clothing was being soiled, when I discovered I had over them all a garment I had not noticed having had on me, thus protecting me. After this I found myself sitting on a beautiful seat against a large, graceful tree, beside me an aged gentleman I did not know, but recognized as a friend, with one of his arms across my shoulders. This seat was in a grove. The ground was covered with grass well mown; the trees bowed from their tops gracefully; beautiful vines grew over them, and drooped between, with ends hanging here and there, forming artistic drapery. To my left was a stream of water and small lake; the waters were remarkably clear; across them was a continuation of this grove, the vines draping over the waters. Over them all shone a light such as I have never seen, rendering an effect that can not be described; I was in a condition of perfect, perfect peace and rest!

After this I was satisfied as to the character of Mr. Brown's mission. And during the controversy he, not knowing of my dream, stated: "I have a nest, and in it are rotten eggs, and I'm going to break them and besmear this man all over with them." I found he was, indeed, in dirty business! He is not original—he is a parrot, an echo; the broom he used had been used before—was worn out—his would-be arguments were sheerest echo's.

He read the divine test in Doctrine and Covenants, but failed to read the cause why it was given, viz: "because there is no unrighteousness in them." He found no unrighteousness in any one of the revelations contained therein; for it does not exist.

He charged President Smith with having denied the Doctrine and Covenants. Mr. Smith was telegraphed, and we received the following reply: "I accept the standard books of the church; Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants; and deny none." This seemed to somewhat surprise him.

In conclusion, and for the benefit of any who may want the facts, I offer a summary of leading points of debate on the harmony of the Doctrine and Covenants with New Testament, as follows:

1.—He failed to prove any inharmony between Doc. Cov. 16:4; 17:7, 21; 52:4; 68:4; 76:5; 83:10-12; and Mark 1:4, 5; Luke 3:3; John 3:5; Acts 2:38, 39; Jno. 20:21; Acts 8:17; 19:1-6; 1 Tim. 4:14; Acts 9:17.

2.—No inharmony on church organization between Doc. Cov. sections 17 and 104; and 1 Cor. 12:28; Matt. 10:1; Luke 9:1-6; Acts 6:1-4; 13:1, 2; Eph. 4:11; 2:20; Titus 1:5.

3.—He failed to prove any inharmony on spiritual gifts: Doc. Cov. sec. 10:6; 46:4-8, and 1 Cor. 12:1-11; 14:26.

4.—No proof of inharmony on doctrine of morality. See Doc. Cov. sec. 42:6, 7, 20-22; 58:5; 59:2; 63:5, 6; 66:5; and Matt. 19:18; 5:28; Phil. 4:8; Eph. 4:31-2; 5:3, 4; 4:22-29; Gal. 5:16-26.

5.—He failed to prove that J. Smith received polygamous revelation, or ever taught it.

6.—He failed to prove that J. Smith was led by any man or men to the perversion of God's way, or to the corruption of church government, or the gospel. Proof: Times and Seasons, vol. 5, pp. 474, 715; vol. 6, pp. 899, 900; Mill. Star, vol. 14, 584-5; Doc. Cov. sec. 58:11; Times and Seasons vol. 6, p. 423; Mother Smith's history, pages 204-5.

7.—He failed to prove that the church made or makes Doctrine and Covenants superior to New Testament. Proof: Doc. Cov. sec. 17:6; 42:5.

8.—He failed to prove that any faction of the church ever existed in righteousness that rejected the Doctrine and Covenants, in part or in whole, or did not abide by its sacred laws. Proof: Their history of degeneracy.

9.—He failed to prove that the Doctrine and Covenants contained any unholy, immoral or incorrect principle or doctrine. Proof: Previous citations.

10.—He failed to prove that the church received any doctrinal or governmental revelations from J. Smith "as from the mouth of God," without previous quorum action—because we have the right of test. See 1 John 4:1; Doc. Cov. 41:1; Mill. Star 15:183, 299; Times and Seasons 5:649, 665.

11.—He utterly failed to prove his position against prophetic presidency—claiming we had to go to the Old Testament for proof of our claim; and said that there was where "the polyg's got their proof for their wife business;" forgetful of the fact that he was compelled to go to the Old Testament for prophetic proof of Book of Mormon—to Genesis, Deuteronomy, Psalms, Isaiah, Ezekiel, etc., and that Christ quoted and referred to the prophets and Psalms for evidence of His advent and mission!

12.—He failed to prove that God might not talk of houses, lands, etc., when the Scriptures show that God had given directions to men for making coats, boats, poles, curtains, priestly hoods, rings, bells, candlesticks, snuffers, cures for boils, baking bread, (Ezekiel), paying taxes, taking colts, catching fish, &c., &c., in the Patriarchal, Christian and Mosaic dispensations.—"I am the Lord I change not."

13.—He miserably failed to prove that the Doctrine and Covenants taught or countenanced theft. See pages 142, 180.

I wish to say that, as a minister of and for the church, I stand pledged to the three standard books of the church. Their harmony is unparalleled in the history of books of revelation. Their divinity is thoroughly impressed upon their holy pages. They are a trinity, marvelous indeed. All members and ministers who desire to do the right thing, live humble, prayerful lives, and be in holy communion with God, can find the needed lessons well given in those three books. No one need stumble.

All who have persistently allowed themselves to find fault with any part of the Doctrine and Covenants, or remained in doubt of the Book of Mormon, have passed into spiritual blindness, which will in the end bring ruin. It is the inevitable fate; and ends in terrible results. Let all beware, "standing fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made you free!"

Yours in the true way of God.

J. F. McDowell.

Selections.

SPIRITISM—ITS MODERN DEVELOPMENT.

BY THE REV. JOHN STORIE.

THE extent, character, and danger of this new form of apostacy are not in any true measure realized in this country. It has spread from America through Europe and into the great colonial cities with a wild fascination. "Spiritualism has spread until it has become world-wide in its influence, numbering among its most ardent supporters many of the first men and women of both continents. Ministers, doctors, lawyers, judges, congressmen, governors, presidents, queens, kings, emperors, of all regions, are bowing to its influence, and showing their sympathy with its teachings. No other system ever made so great progress in so short a time" (its modern outburst dates only from the 31st of March, 1848), "or ever had a better prospect of bringing the whole world into its embrace. Its doors are open to Catholics, Protestants, Infidels, Atheists, the lewd and the virtuous, Mohammedans, Jews, and Pagans, all are invited; all are welcome to the bosom of this broad church. Scores of ministers have left their churches to preach this 'New Gospel of Spiritualism,' as it is termed. Large numbers of church members have broken off their former religious associations to mingle with those who teach the new religion, and very rarely do they return to the Christian Church again." So says their organ, Signs of the Times.

It is affirmed that every fourth person in the United States is a Spiritualist. It is said that in England every tenth person—adults these must be—is in secret or avowed sympathy with their communion.* It is the religion and the only religion of thousands in Paris, and Venice, in London, in Sydney, and in Melbourne. The late William Howitt estimates the number of its adherents in 1864 at 20,000,000. Since then they have immensely increased. A multitude of books, and many of them by men of social standing and intellectual name, have been issued in its elucidation and support.

Its organs of periodical literature are stating its peculiar facts and revelations, and pressing its claims all over the civilized world. In the United States they have, or had, weeklies, fortnightlies, and quarlies. In England they have, or had, three monthlies; The Spiritualist every two weeks, and two or three cheap weeklies. France, again, has three periodicals; Belgium, three; Holland, two; Denmark, one; Russia, one; Germany, one (or more); Austria, three; Bohemia, one; Spain, fifteen; Italy, six; Greece, one; Egypt, one; Turkey, one; Brazil, two; Uruguay, one; La Plata, twelve; Peru, one; Chili, one; Mexico, one. In Melbourne there is the Harbinger of Light; and even in New Zealand the Echo of Dunedin is its advocate.

At the Church Congress held at Newcastle-on-Tyne, in 1881, we find men of note and position speaking in these terms: Rev. Dr. Thornton: "At the name of Spiritualism, some will cry out, 'F frivolous!' others, 'Imposture!' and others, 'Sorcery and devilry!' Let me protest at the outset, against all hasty, sweeping condemnation. For ought we know these puzzling phenomena may be a new problem set by Almighty God to be solved by the rules and with the aids which He has already given to His faithful children. . . . We must not rush to the conclusion that all Spiritualism is pure deception."

Mr. John Fowler: "There is nothing inconsistent in the claims of Modern Spiritualism and Christianity. One is the expression of the other. The Church should not stand aloof and denounce Spiritualism as a fraud. It will prove the church's best friend. . . . Modern Spiritualism has appeared as a divine necessity of the times."

Rev. Canon Wilberforce: "We have to deal with no mere common-place infatuation, which can be brushed aside with indifference or contempt, but rather with a movement which is firmly established, and the influence of which is every day extending."

Mr. W. R. Browne; "They must not pooh-pooh Spiritualism. They must not say that it was an imposture, all nonsense, and that no sensible man could spend his time in attending seances. The church might fairly hold herself in suspense in the matter."

What then is the Spiritism; what its teaching; and what its promise? It consists in a personal intercourse and communion usually through a medium, with beings visible or unseen who profess to be the spirits of men and women; and, in many cases, of dear departed friends. In these meetings, or seances, the alleged mistakes of the Bible in respect to sin and judgment, to Christ and the Godhead, are exposed and corrected; and the principles of that new faith announced of which this is the "morning dawn;" of a faith which is to terminate the prevailing superstition of the Christian world; to lay the foundation of a universal brotherhood, and introduce a millennium of justice, and love, and liberty!

"I can not help laughing to myself at times," says Gerald Massey, "as I think of what this much maligned Spiritualism is about to accomplish. Here are our clergy asserting Sunday after Sunday, in the name of God, any number of things which any number of listeners do not believe, only they have heard them repeated till past all power of impugning—things which they themselves do not believe if they ever come to question their own souls. And here is this new thing in our midst that is destined to put a new Soul into belief and usher in a new resurrection day.

"This revelation," says Judge Edmonds, "has been with a power and a might that, if divested of its almost universal benevolence, had been a terror to the very soul; the hair of the bravest had stood on end, and his chilled blood had crept back upon his heart, at the sights and sounds of its inexplicable phenomena. It comes without foretelling and warning. It has been from the first its own best prophet; and step by step it has foretold the progress it would make. It comes, too, most triumphant. No faith before it ever took such a victorious stand in its very infancy. It has swept like a hurricane of fire through the land, compelling faith from the baffled scoffer and the most determined doubter."

"As a religion and as a system of morals it has carried captive severally the three departments of man's nature. The bodily senses, the intellect, the spirit."—Spiritual Notes. "True Spiritualism is the Elias, raised from the dead past, saying:—'I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness of this materialistic age: Prepare ye! prepare ye the way of the Lord; and make straight in the desert of your hearts a highway for your God! For mark! the kingdom of the new heavens, the new age is at hand.'"—Medium and Daybreak.

The spirits themselves have spoken: "That spiritualism is a divine, heaven-sent revelation is maintained by leading Spiritualists; and that the supernatural intercourse now going on is not only permitted, but intended by the Almighty himself for the purpose of renovating the world, and, in fact, for introducing what may be termed a spiritual millennium." Another spirit, calling himself Buserius, the Ancient of Days, has lately spoken in these words: "I have witnessed in spirit life the advent of this your Empire, and I have been serving the angel of this dispensation—this age that shall overrule all contradictory creeds, and shall join in the universal bond of brotherhood, Christians, Mohammedans, Buddhists, Hindoos, and in fact all the races on the earth. This change which is without any prescriptive spirit, all are welcome to believe; all are invited; all are pressed into the service that are believers to day. This change is to restore unity."

The spirit of John Wesley is made to say in the "Unfoldings:" "Never was more joy in the spirit world than when it was made known that a mode of communication was opened up to mankind. Such a gathering to hear the news. Such rejoicing was never known in the spheres."

Consider its methods and visible and tangible manifestations. "The spirit circle is performed by six or eight persons sitting around a table and placing the palms of the hands or the tips of the fingers lightly on the top of it. If a person having the natural qualifications of a medium is present, and if the temperaments of the other sitters are congenial, the magnetic power of the whole company will gather in a cloud over the table and the sitters, enabling the spirits to move the table up and down, or from side to side, and even to floats in the air, while no human hand it is touching it. . . . The usual movement of objects and other physical phenomena convince the most obtuse that there is something in it. But the manifestations do not remain there. The 'force' develops into an intelligence which in due course appears in proper person and gives an account of himself. . . . The spirits materialise themselves by drawing from the medium and others the elements of an organism in a prepared and gaseous state. Our food is transformed before it becomes flesh and bone, and, during the process, assumes a gaseous form. At this stage it is extracted by the spirits and made to adhere by vital attraction to their spiritual organism, . . . a successful spirit circle is one in which all the sitters give off a force to the purposes of the operating spirits."

In a book named "An Angel's Message," the angel teaches that "a spirit can take of the effluvia from the person of the medium, and from the various members of the circle present, and, by condensing it, can form a temporary covering for the spirit hand, which shall be quite solid and tangible, so that it can be grasped by you, and can convey external objects from one part of the room to another." This can be seen and felt. Nay, the spirits are said to have on many occasions assumed entire or nearly complete bodies. Mr. Wallace says, in his notice of the seances of Miss Fox with Mr. Livermore, a well known New York banker, and a sceptic before commencing these experiments: "These sittings were more than 300 in number, extending over five years. They took place in four different houses . . . under tests of the most rigid description. The chief phenomenon was the appearance of a tangible, visible, and audible figure of Mr. Livermore's deceased wife, sometimes accompanied by a male figure purporting to be Dr. Franklin. The former figure was often most distinct, and absolutely life-like. It moved various objects in the room. It wrote messages on cards. It was sometimes formed out of a luminous cloud, and again vanished before the eyes of the witnesses. It allowed a portion of its dress to be cut off, which, though at first of strong and apparently material gauzy nature, yet in a short time melted away and became invisible. Flowers which melted away, were also given." One instance more may be transcribed from the Spiritual Magazine. It is vouched by Mr. Charles Blackburn, of Parkfield, Manchester. "Very shortly after the medium"—Miss Showers—"was entranced, a spirit named Lenore, came forth amongst us. We all felt her ears . . . she had only one large toe to each foot; the other four toes were ossifications, and not toes at all. We all examined her very small feet with our hands and eyes; nor are we in the slightest degree mistaken. She told us her feet would have been perfected had there been more power."

* This may be and probably is an exaggerated number; or it may include all those who have been from curiosity attracted to their seances without decided adhesion to the system. A friend, who was lately in the United States, is inclined after inquiry, to make them 2,000,000. This itself is immense giving 40,000 meetings of fifty members each.

In another seance, held in New-castle-on-Tyne in 1875, four materialised figures were said to be produced' one after another. The first—tall, white, and unveiled—stepped across the room and shook hands with one of those present. The second wrote on a piece of marked paper, and then moved gracefully about the room. The third—tall and slender, with a deep brown skin, approached some of the company and patted and stroked their faces, exposing itself meanwhile to the full blaze of the lamp. The fourth was a small psychic form, three feet nine inches high, known as "Sarah"—probably the familiar of the medium. She walked about and conversed most freely with all who were present.

Its teachings in respect to Christ.—Mrs. Cora Tappan, a very noted trance speaker, on being asked, "Do you regard Christ as really God, or merely as a human teacher?" replied, after some evasion, "For ourselves, we believe that all truth is in God, and that Christ embodied in His form as much of deity as the truth he expressed; that He was the Son of God, and that he represented the possible of man, inasmuch as he promised the same gifts to others that He himself possessed. But we certainly decline entering into any discussion on the creed of the Trinitarian, or Unitarian or any form of theological controversy. Christ's words, when He says, 'I and My Father are one,' did not mean that he was God; if he and his Father were one, it merely signified that they were one in Spirit; and the promise given to earth's children, the same as to Christ, is a proof that Christ could not have been a greater embodiment of deity than the divine and perfect humanity He represented."

Again, Gerald Massey teaches: "The special characteristic of Christ, above that of all other delegates of God, was the infinite largeness of soul with which He represented that which is universal—the common fatherhood of God, . . . I do not find that Christ claimed for Himself more than He held out as possible for others. When He identified Himself with the Father, it was in the oneness of mediumship. He was the great Medium or Mediator."

Dr. Weisse, before the investigating class of Spiritualists in New York, lays down the Spiritualistic teaching thus:—"All the testimony derived from advanced spirits only show that Christ was a Medium reformer in Judea; that he now is an advanced spirit in the sixth sphere; but that he never claimed to be God, and does not at present. I have had two communications to that effect. I have also read some that Dr. Hare had. If I am wrong in my views of the Bible, I should like to know it, for the spirits do not contradict me."

In fact the Spiritistic teaching at this day is that divinity is inherent in every man. "Although, as a believer in true spiritual philosophy, we can not receive the orthodox view of salvation, yet we recognize the birth of a Savior and Redeemer into the hearts of humanity, wherein truly the Deity is incarnate, dwelling in the interior of man's spirit. We believe that each soul of man is born with his or her Savior within them. He contains in his central nature an incarnation of Deity."

Its teachings in respect to the atonement.—"It is the very climax of a deranged imagination, and one that is of the most unrighteous and immoral tendency."—A. L. Davis. "Since my spirit sister's translation to the spheres, it has been alleged by her that her ascent was retarded by her belief in the atonement. This dogma of the dark ages, with its bloody hand, writing the fancied doom of millions, casts its dark and fearful shadow upon the brighter revelations of her life."—Banner of Light.

. . . Nothing can be more inconsistent with the religion inculcated by my spirit friends than the idea of atonement for sin by faith in any religion whatsoever, true or false."—Dr. Starr.

These from American Spiritualists; the following from English ones: "We who are Spiritualists acknowledge no sacrifice for sin. We require no mediator between God and man. . . . We are told in the Old Testament that God delighted in the sacrifice of blood, and other doctrines, which are not only too absurd, but too blasphemous for my reason to accept. . . . It is erroneous to suppose that Jesus was the only begotten Son of God, and that His death upon the Cross on Calvary constitutes the plan of salvation which the official Church has subsequently, not very happily, invented. Jesus was no doubt an adept of the Divine Kabbala, and He had great spiritual power; but Gotama was as much a Christ as Jesus and Jesus was as much a Buddha as Gotama; and every divine adept is a manifestation, an avatar of the Deity. . . . It is not one particular Son of God that bears the sins of the world, but it is the Son of God in every man bearing his share; and he who bears most, and redeems most, and, in doing so, suffers most, is the most God-like. . . . How beautiful this plan of salvation is! and we are all custodiers of it!"

Its teaching in respect to the Godhead.—"We no longer believe in three Gods, nor in the ridiculous paradox of three persons in one God. We believe in One Father and One Family, and in one grand ruling law, Love, uniting all in the bonds of eternal fellowship."—Medium and Daybreak.

Who this Father is, the following question and the answer given by the "Controlling Spirit," through Mrs. Conant, will reveal: "Q. Do you know of any such spirit as a person we call the Devil?" "A. We certainly do. And yet this same Devil is our God the Father."—Banner of Light, Nov. 4th, 1865.

"One scruples to write, 'Holy Breath' instead of 'Holy Ghost' (from gast, Anglo-Saxon for breath or spirit); yet the terms are strictly synonymous. . . . Christ Himself when He spoke of the Holy Ghost as the 'Spirit of Truth, which shall not speak of Himself, but whatsoever He shall hear that shall He speak,' as certainly did not intend thereby to designate one of the Persons of the Godhead."—Owen.

"We talk of believing in the communion of the Holy Spirit, in a vague, general way; but what communion could be holier than that betwixt the child on earth and the spirit of the parent gone before? What form more natural than that could be assumed by the Holy Spirit of God Himself? 'I will send you the Comforter,' said Jesus Christ; and why should not the promise be realized by the bereaved mother through the spirit of that child, which she thinks lost to her, because she lost sight of the beloved face as it entered the cloud?"—Gerald Massey.

Communion with the dead.—"Our dear friend, Count B——, an Italian, lost his mother nearly forty years ago. He has assured us that he has been in communication with her every day since, without intermission. He adds that he owes the wise ordering of his life, his labors, his career, and the good fortune which has always accompanied his enterprises, to the constant influence and secret counsels of his mother." Again—"M. L., a barrister, maintains constant relations with a sister who, when living, possessed, according to him, every human perfection, and who never fails to guide her brother in every difficulty of his life, great or small."—The Day after Death.

As to the other world, Spiritism affirms: "The mediums have almost all been brought up in some of the usual orthodox beliefs. How is it, then, that the usual orthodox notions of heaven are never confirmed through them? The Roman Catholic spirit, for instance, does not describe himself as being in either the orthodox purgatory, heaven or hell: the Evangelical Dissenter, who died in the firm conviction that he should 'go to Jesus,' never describes himself as being with Christ, or as ever having seen Him; and so on throughout. Nothing is more common than for religious people at seances to ask questions about God and Christ. In reply, they never get more than opinions, or more frequently the statement that they, the spirits, have no more actual knowledge of these subjects than they had while on earth."—Wallace.

Its teaching as to marriage.—Spiritualists teach that the marriage of male and female is the great institution of the next life; that every person has an affinity, who will be his or her spouse for eternity; but that frequent mistakes are being made in this present time; and consequently that those that are not true spiritual affinities, being joined in mere ceremonial marriage, are unable to live in union and, finding this, should not or need not. "Of all the mischievous inventions," says Herbert Noyes, "Blasphemously ascribed to the Almighty and published as His Word, I doubt if there be one more mischievous and mistaken than the text which asserts that there is no marriage in heaven. I maintain that the Churches are entirely right in affirming true marriage to be indissoluble; entirely in the wrong in asserting that their own rites are sufficient to constitute a true marriage. It is my firm conviction that affection and affinity are indispensable to an indissoluble marriage. The adventitious sanctity of marriage derived from ecclesiastical ceremonies is doomed to be ignored by coming generations."

The natural inference is, that the true spouses of some are already in the spirit land; and to such an extent is this inference followed out, that many are reported to be receiving visits and communications from those spiritual beings, with whom they are to be united for ever. Here is a communication professing to be received by a medium from her own spirit mother. The spiritual bridegroom said to be waiting for her in this case is a man of deep religious feeling she had known before his decease: "I have seen how happy I have made you by all that has been written. Love and bless him who has shown you dear J. that you have some one that loves you. Dear W. sees that you love his memory. He sees that, before I told you of his love for you, my dear child had always thought him a very high spirit; but, now that I have been permitted to tell her, she will be sure to believe it is indeed true. . . . He is your own W.; he is your conjugal partner; the one heaven has intended for you from all eternity. . . . I will now tell you what will give you great confidence. W. himself will write through me in his own hand." From an inspirational poem by T. L. Harris, entirely devoted to this subject of spirit marriage, may be quoted these few lines:

"Day passes on. The purple twilight ends,
Each forest tree grows radiant to behold;
A skyey Paradise above extends.
Angels descend their love below to fold
In sweet embrace. With amethyst and gold
Their deathless forms are clad. 'At last ascends
That heavenly landscape; but 'tis Eden still,
And the heart takes of love divine its sacred fill."

It needs excite no surprise, then, that the ceremonial marriage of a woman to a demon is a thing not unknown in the United States, and developments even more dark and impious may be anticipated.

Its present impieties.—At a meeting in Lyceum Hall, Boston, on a Sunday, Miss Lizzie Dotan—honorary and corresponding member of the Spiritistic body—commenced proceedings with this prayer: "O Lucifer, thou Son of the Morning, who fell from thy high estate, whom mortals are prone to call the embodiment of evil, we lift up our voice unto thee. We know thou can not harm us unless by the will of the Almighty, of whom thou art a part and portion, and in whose economy thou playest thy part; and we can not presume to sit in judgment over deity. From the depths of thine infamy stream forth divine truths. Why should we turn from thee? Does not the same inspiration rule us all? We know thou art yet to come up in His expanded creation purified by the influence of God's love, for His love is not perfected while one of His chil-writhes in misery. So, O Lucifer, do we come up and stand before the throne of the Ancient of Days, hand in hand with thee! As thou hast been the Star of the Morning, thou wilt again become an Angel of Light. O Satan, we will subdue thee with our love; and thou wilt yet kneel humbly with us at the throne of God."—Cincinnati Gazette.

And, again, before commencing a debate with a Christian gentleman, a portion of the prayer offered by Professor W. Chaney, in San Jose, California, was in these terms: "O Lucifer, Bearer of Light! O Beelzebub, Lord of Scorpions! O Belial, Lord of the Opposite! O Baal Peor, Lord of the Opening! O Hades, God of Wars! O Devil, Prince of Demons in the Christians' hell! O thou Monarch of the bottomless pit! . . . Bless thy servant in his labors before thee. Fill his mouth with words of wisdom, . . . that his audience may realize that thou art a prayer-hearing and a prayer-answering Devil."—World's Crisis.

Some of its immoralities.—Dr. Hatch, once a medium, but who renounced the system at last with horror and indignation—this is his testimony:—"For a long time I was swallowed up in this whirlpool of excitement, and comparatively paid but little attention to its evils, believing that much good might result from the opening of the avenues of spiritual intercourse. But during the past eight months I have devoted my attention to a critical investigation of its awful and damning realities, and would flee from its influence as I would from the miasma which would destroy both soul and body. Spiritualism and prostitution, with a rejection of Christianity, are twin sisters which everywhere go hand in hand. With but little enquiry, I have been able to count up over seventy mediums, most of whom have wholly abandoned their conjugal relations, others living with their paramours called 'affinities,' others in promiscuous adultery, and still others exchanged partners. Many of the mediums lose all sense of moral obligations.

"A less degree of severity in this remark will apply to a large class of both mediums and believers. There are thousands of high-minded and intelligent spiritualists who will agree with me, that it is no slander in saying that the inculcation of no doctrine in this country has ever shown such disastrous moral and social results as the spiritual theories. Like all destructive pestilential miasma, which almost imperceptibly poison the soul, it has made victims tens of thousands of its votaries, and secretly crept into many other avenues of society, until it is almost popularizing those social conditions which every good citizen must most deeply deplore. Iniquities, which have justly received the condemnation of centuries, are openly upheld; vices, which would destroy every wholesome regulation of society, are crowned as virtues; prostitution is believed to be fidelity to self; marriage an outrage on freedom. Bastards are claimed to be spiritually begotten! . . . Look at the iniquities which have been committed within the last two weeks in this city, and that too by spiritual mediums who claim to be controlled by angels. It is worse than useless to talk to the spiritualist against this condition of things, for those who occupy the highest position among them are aiding and abetting in all classes of iniquities which prevail amongst them. The abrogation of marriage, bigamy, accompanied by robbery, theft, rapes—all are chargeable on spiritualism. I most solemnly affirm that I do not believe that there has, during the past five hundred years, arisen any class of people who were guilty of so great a variety of crimes and indecencies as the spiritualists of America."

A definition of Spiritism given by an American in these terms: "It is the doctrine of direct intercourse with the devil, through seducing spirits, by persons called mediums; yet claims to be direct intercourse with the dead, the same as necromancy."

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

This conference convened at Newport, California, September 30th, at ten o'clock. A change having been made from the time of adjournment from March conference, from the 6th of October to the 31st September, Resolved that the change be ratified by the conference. Bro. D. S. Mills was chosen to preside over the conference, and N. W. Best clerk. Official reports of the district were as follows: High Priest, D. S. Mills; Seventy, Heman C. Smith; Elders P. M. Betts, J. R. Badham, Q. S. Sparks, A. A. Goff, D. L. Harris, E. J. French, A. W. Thompson, Daniel Garner, and Wm. M. Gibson. Priests D. E. Lander and W. P. Pickering. Teacher Stephen Penfold. Reports of branches: Santa Maria 10 members; 2 baptized, 7 removed, 1 died, 1 marriage; John Houk president, D. E. Lander clerk. San Bernardino 207; 4 received by letter, 4 expelled, 2 died, 2 marriages; G. W. Sparks president, A. B. Wise clerk. Los Angeles 76; 12 baptized, 5 received by letter, 2 removed by letter, 1 died; J. R. Badham president, R. N. McNair clerk. Newport 141; 1 baptized, 1 restored to membership by vote, 1 died; Daniel Garner president, R. M. Dungan clerk. Laguna 37; 1 received by letter, 1 died; A. W. Thompson president, E. J. French clerk. Bishop's agent's report to September 30th:—Balance on hand March 1st $129.05, amounts collected to date $1,035.60, total $1,164.65; amount expended $485.55; balance on hand $679.10; J. R. Badham agent. Report on tent:—Total expenditures $87.38, receipts to date $60.05; balance due $27.33. Would recommend that portable seats be made for tent, the probable cost $22.50; also, that the tent be placed in charge of three members of the district, and that a fund be established for running expenses of from twelve to fifteen dollars per month; also, that two elders be selected to use the tent anywhere in the district; E. J. French committee. Resolved that the tent be given in charge of elders D. S. Mills, H. L. Holt and A. W. Thompson, to be under their direction. Resolved that the report with reference to the tent be accepted and committee discharged; and that we commend E. J. French for the able manner in which he has prosecuted the work of procuring the tent, and that funds be raised to make up the balance of the expenditures. Resolved that the president appoint a committee, consisting of one in each of the several branches, to collect funds to defray the running expenses of the tent, and that such committee shall use their efforts here at the conference to raise money now due, and the necessary funds for the seating of the tent. The following committee was appointed:—Bro. Earl for Los Angeles, A. A. Goff for Newport, W. M. Gibson for San Bernardino, and E. J. French for Laguna. Resolved that the above committee report monthly to the committee in charge of tent, and remit promptly what they have collected. Bro. D. S. Mills tendered his resignation as district president, which on motion was accepted. Resolved That we recognize in Bro. Heman C. Smith one well fitted to have the oversight of this mission, and that we honor him as such. Resolved, that whereas the Twelve in their epistle of April 21st, 1887, have decided that the office of district president is outside of the law, and that a district president has no jurisdiction over branches; and, while we do not endorse said rulings as being in harmony with the law of the church, we submit to the powers that be. Therefore, be it resolved, that we hereby abolish the office of district president in this district, and that we consider ourselves under the personal direction of the missionary in charge, or one that he may select for that purpose; and, resolved, that a copy hereof be sent to the Herald for publication, and also to the missionary in charge of this mission. Resolved that we as a conference commend the proposed work of Sr. Walker known as "Autumn Leaves," and will extend it our aid as much as we can; also that we as a district take hold of the Sabbath School work and make it a part of our church work; and that a committee be appointed from this conference to confer with the different schools of the district, and then draft a uniform system of school work. Bro. Mills, introduced the subject of subscribing for "Autumn Leaves," and Sr. Vina Goff was chosen to solicit subscriptions for the same. On Friday evening preaching by H. L. Holt; Saturday evening by A. W. Thompson. Sunday morning, nine o'clock, prayer meeting for the sick; and at eleven o'clock Bro. D. S. Mills preached the funeral sermon of Sr. Sarah Ladd; at half-past two had sacrament, and administering to the sick, then prayer and testimony till dark—had a glorious outpouring of the Holy Spirit; the gifts were displayed in a remarkable manner. At half past seven, preaching by J. R. Badham. Monday evening preaching by D. L. Harris. Adjourned to meet the first Friday in March, 1888, at two p. m., at such place as the missionary in charge shall decide.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

Conference was held at Wilber, October 23d. At eleven a. m., preaching by R. M. Elvin from Acts 6:26. At two p. m. held Saints' meeting; several strong testimonies were borne to the saving power of the gospel restored in the latter times. The child of Bro. and Sr. Porter was blessed. In the evening, preaching by R. M. Elvin, from Isaiah 24, on the Book of Mormon. Monday morning, October 24th, at nine a. m., assembled for business. Present: Elders R. M. Elvin, L. Anthony, J. W. Waldsmith, Joseph Morrill J. E. Malcom, J. Armstrong and C. H. Porter. J. E. Malcom, J. Armstrong and C. H. Porter were appointed a committee on credentials. Bishop's agent reported having received during quarter: tithing $256 13, paid out $205 75; freewill offering received $53 10, paid out $7 55; now due the church $199 76; J. W. Waldsmith agent. The report was examined by brethren Wilbur Savage and F. L. Tucker, and found correct. Elders Malcom, Carter and Waldsmith, reported by letter. Elders R. M. Elvin, Joseph Morrill and J. Armstrong, in person. Priests present and reported: Robert White, F. L. Tucker, J. B. Gouldsmith; Teachers John Young and Dan Brolihar; also Deacon T. L. Richie. Branch reports.—Blue River 126; 1 baptized, 1 removed, 1 died; L. Anthony president, Robert White clerk. Nebraska City 139; 4 received, 1 died; J. W. Waldsmith president, E. D. Briggs clerk. Palmyra, no change; J. E. Malcom president, Sarah Young clerk. A motion to take up the resolution passed six months ago and laid on the table was lost by vote of 31½ nays to 18½ yeas. Bro. Charles H. Porter was requested to labor during the next three months in the vicinity of the Platte river, Plattsmouth, and Moroni branches; but to leave the difficulty in the Moroni branch for Bro. Calfall to settle at his earliest convenience. The secretary was allowed $5 40 railroad fare and $3 for a district record. Met at the house of Bro. Dan Brolihar. Bro. R. M. Elvin baptized sisters Coats and Preston. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. by Bro. J. W. Waldsmith, from John 3:16. On motion a committee of three was appointed to investigate the articles on representation adopted by General Conference, and especially items of instructions to districts, and if by them found practicable, that said committee submit in their report such articles as will cover and heal the present distraction. R. M. Elvin, C. H. Porter and J. E. Malcom were appointed said committee. The present district officers were sustained. Adjourned to meet at Nebraska City, January 22d, 1888, at eleven a. m. L. Anthony president, J. B. Gouldsmith secretary.

NORTHERN INDIANA AND SOUTHERN MICHIGAN.

Conference of the above district convened at the Saints' hall, Galien, Michigan, October 22d, 1887, 10:30 a. m. Bro. W. H. Kelley was chosen to preside, with C. Scott associate; D. B. Teeters secretary with D. Proper assistant, and Leonard Scott chorister, and sister Flora Scott organist. The balance of the forenoon was spent in testimony meeting, in which many good testimonies were borne, strengthening and edifying the Saints. Branch reports: Galien 81, including 1 high priest, 1 seventy, 2 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher; 3 baptized; R. Alcott president, Flora Scott secretary. Hartford 20, including 1 priest, 1 teacher; 1 baptized, 1 received on certificate of baptism; Henry Manee president, J. N. Rokley clerk. Coldwater 67, including 2 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher; 3 baptized; B. Corless president, Francis Granger clerk. Clear Lake 80, including 2 priests, 1 teacher; 7 baptized; Jonathan Emrich president, Lewis M. Smith clerk. Marcellus 11, including 1 priest; 1 baptized, 3 removed by letter; J. W. Keifer president, C. E. Goodenough clerk. No reports from Dimondale, Webberville, or Hopkins branches. Bishop's agent's report was read and a committee appointed to audit same. Due bishop last report $1.51; received since $99.18, paid out $91.16; balance due church $8.02. Elders reports: W. H. Kelley (baptized 2), B. V. Springer (baptized 11), C. Scott (baptized 2); Leonard Scott, had opened up two new places in Berrien and two in Stark counties. R. Alcott, G. A. Blakeslee, B. Corless, F. Earl (baptized 1), Bro. Richardson (baptized 1). Priests reports: J. Kiefer, J. Shook (baptized 2), F. E. Robertson. At seven p. m. preaching by Francis Earl to an attentive congregation. Sunday morning one was baptized by G. A. Blakeslee. At 10:30 a. m. preaching by W. H. Kelley. At 2:30 p. m. preaching by W. H. Kelley. At 7:30 p. m. four children were blessed and two persons confirmed by W. H. Kelley, C. Scott, and G. A. Blakeslee, after which W. H. Kelley preached to a full house. Monday 9:30 a. m., one was baptized by C. Scott. At 10:30 report of committee on Bishop's Agent's account accepted. C. Thurston, L. Scott, B. V. Springer, G. A. Blakeslee, and D. Lock were chosen delegates to the General Conference, April 6th, 1888. C. Scott was sustained district president, D. B. Teeters secretary, and Wm. Lockerby bishop's agent. W. H. Kelley was sustained as president of mission, with G. T. Griffiths and E. C. Briggs associate presidents. B. V. Springer, L. Scott, and Hiram Rathbun were sustained as laborers in the district. The bishop of the church and his counselors were sustained. A vote of thanks was extended to the Galien Saints for their hospitality. Resolved that we look with favor on the efforts of sister "Frances" in her endeavors to publish the "Autumn Leaves." Moved and carried that Bro. Leonard Scott be ordained to the office of an elder, after which one was confirmed and one child blessed. The afternoon meeting was spent in prayer and testimony, and strong testimonies were borne to the truthfulness and divinity of the work. At 7:30 p. m. Bro. L. Scott was ordained to the office of an elder, after which Bro. B. V. Springer preached to a large and attentive audience. The entire conference was marked with good order and unity in all the sessions, and all present seemed to work together for the good of the work and the spread of gospel truth. Adjourned to meet with the Coldwater branch subject to the call of the president.

FREMONT.

This district conference convened at Keystone branch, Iowa, October 8th. Bro. J. M. Calkins was chosen chairman. Shenandoah and Union branches reported, they being the only ones present, owing to the inclemency of the weather. The secretaries report was read and approved. Elders James W. Calkins and W. C. Matthews; priests James Comstock and L. C. Donaldson; and deacon Shick reported in person. Bro. Henry Kemp was sustained president for the ensuing quarter. Bro. M. C. Matthews was sustained secretary; all the spiritual authorities of the church were sustained. Moved and carried that Bro. Henry Kemp appoint time and place, after consulting the different branches, for holding the next conference and advertise the same in the Herald. Adjourned subject to the call of the president.

Miscellaneous.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given to the following named brother and sister to report either in person, or by letter, to the undersigned, as clerk of the Oak Wood branch, (formerly Oak Island branch), on or before the first day of January, 1888, as to their whereabouts; or their names will be placed upon the roll of scattered members, namely; Elder William Waterman and Emma Waterman whose names appear on the record of Oak Island branch. NANNIE A. GIFFORD, Branch Clerk. Oak Island, Bexar Co., Texas, Senior P. O.

DIED.

ARCHIBALD.—At Centerville, Iowa, November 3d, 1887, of congestion of the lungs, David, youngest child of Bro. David and Sr. Alice Archibald, aged four weeks. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins in the Christian church.

COWLISHAW.—At St. Louis, Missouri, September 30th, 1887, of diphtheria, Clara, only daughter of brother and sister Cowlishaw, aged 10 years and 17 days. Funeral sermon by Elder J. W. Gillen.

"Oh, call it not death. It is life begun;
For the waters are past, and the home is won;
The ransomed spirit hath reached the shore
Where they weep and suffer and sin no more;
And is safe in our Father's house above—
In the place prepared by our Savior's love.
To depart from a world of sin and strife,
And to be with Jesus! Yes; this is life."

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

Twelve Sermons for 25 cents.

In January, 1888,

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

will be enlarged to an eight column paper, devoted to general and local news, and will begin the publication of monthly supplements, containing full reports of Sermons selected from those delivered at Lamoni and at the GENERAL CONFERENCES, which will be reported especially for us.

Gazette, without supplement, per year....$1 25
Gazette, with supplement, per year .....$1 50

Send for sample copy.

LAMBERT & HANSEN,

nov26tf Lamoni, Iowa.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

No. 2.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.
WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

A SUPERB PRESENT.
INVALUABLE TO

Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians,
Editors, Bankers, Teachers,
Merchants, Students,
and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

- No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, ... $10.00
- " 2, " " " 2 tiers " " " 12.00
- " 3, " Floor, " 2 " " " 12.00
- " 4, " " " 3 " " " 15.00
- " 5, " " " 4 " " " 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

30aug3m

WANTED

Several copies of No. 1, vol. 1, of "Herald."

Address Geo. Schweich, Richmond, Missouri, stating price. 19nov1m

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14feb1y

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, recipes, etc., by mail for 35c in stamps. W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England.

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. "A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS!" APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH! THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- GRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

- NEW YORK,
- BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
- CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
- NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
- LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
- PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
- PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
- VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going
East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,
at their Publishing House in

LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

Holy Scriptures.

- Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet.
- Sheep or Library binding.....1 50
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....2 00
- Full Morocco, gilt edges.....2 50
- New Testament, inspired edition..... 75

Book of Mormon.

- Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50
- Full Morocco, gilt edges.....1 75

Doctrine and Covenants.

- Sprinkled Sheep, or Library.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco.....1 50

The Saints' Harp—Hymn Book.

- Imitation Morocco, marbled edges.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50

Life of Joseph the Prophet, History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith.

In Cloth, full gilt finished, very handsome.....2 25
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complete history of the Church up to 1880.

Joseph Smith the Prophet, and His Progenitors.

- Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith..... 75
- Leather Binding.....1 00

Hesperis.

- Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....1 50

Rules of Order and Debate.

For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth..... 40

Joseph the Seer.

His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers 200 pages..... 35
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

Voice of Warning.

And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the Latter Day work; 128 pages
In Paper Covers, twelve for $1.....each 10
Limp Cloth Covers, each..... 25

Prophetic Truth.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper covers; five for $1.....each 25
Being the Subject of an Evening's Conversation Respecting its Origin. Its Divinity Proved by the Scriptures and Collateral Evidence. Prefaced with a Brief Sketch of the Life of the Prophet, showing the way and manner of his becoming possessed of the Record.

Branch Records.

Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages..... 2 00

District Records.

Printed and bound similar to Branch Records.....3 00

Licences, Notices, &c.

Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licences, each per dozen..... 12
Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and..... 50
Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub, 35 for..... 25

Certificates and Reports.

Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen..... 40
Annual Statistical Reports, two for..... 10
Certificate of Baptism and Membership, per dozen..... 12
Certificate of Removal, per dozen..... 12
Marriage Certificates, per dozen..... 25

"Manuscript Found."

We have for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. Has 144 pages 8 mo.; single copies, in cloth, 25 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 20 cents each; in paper, single copies 15 cents; 10 copies or more, to one address, 13 cents each.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.
"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 759.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 3, 1887.

No. 49.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success. Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Dec. 3, 1887.

SEE TO THIS.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Oct. 30th.—The correspondent of the Times encountered an apostle to-day. He is one of the twelve who claim the apostleship, and who are the law and the gospel to the Mormon masses. There are but three or four of the apostles who dare exhibit themselves to other eyes than those of the faithful and trusted Latter Day Saints. The others are occupying retreats away from the haunts of federal marshals and their deputies, and removed from the numerous wives on whose account they are in hiding. This apostle, however, is one who is not under the necessity of keeping out of sight. He may have half a dozen families, and be as numerous married as the others, but if so, his households are so well ordered that the law is unable to lay its clutches on him. The occasion of the visit was a desire to learn something of the true inwardness of the movement looking toward statehood for Utah. It is one of the most difficult things to ascertain—the real meaning of Mormon actions. These people are always doing things as other people would not do them, and they as persistently try to hide the motive. They are mysterious and secretive, and rarely trust other with their secrets. The frankness and openness which are seen in the united movements of other communities are never witnessed here. Suspicion is excited by all their actions, and there is a want of popular confidence in their sincerity. This is due quite as much to the mystery with which they shroud everything as to any faithlessness that has been shown or deceit practiced. Lack of trust in mankind has made men mistrustful of them.

It was explained to the apostle referred to that the press and people of the country were not disposed to accept in good faith the promise of the Mormons, as recently given through the ballot box, to forbid or abandon polygamy and conform their social and marital customs and practices to the popular idea of morality; that the prevalent impression was that the proposed state constitution was simply a crafty humbug with which to dupe the nation; that the general belief was that if a state government were granted, and Utah taken in the union, polygamy would be practiced openly and defiantly, no effort being put forth to suppress it or to punish the guilty; in fact, that there was a widespread absence of confidence in the sincerity of the Saints in the recent promises and present professions.

The apostle was not in the least degree nonplussed. He said he had never for a moment even hoped that the country would accept without question the Saints' promise to abstain from and punish polygamy. It would be asking too much of human credulity to ask the world to believe at once that the proffered abandonment of the plural-wife system was put forth in good faith. For forty years the elders and priests had been preaching and practicing "celestial marriage;" they had made it one of the cardinal doctrines of the church; it was permitted if not actually commanded by direct revelation from the Almighty; men had suffered martyrdom because of it, and hundreds had endured imprisonment in the penitentiary, when the simple repudiation of the principle, or even less—the mere promise to cease polygamous association—would have relieved them from pains, penalties, and disgrace. He said others might have expected the people of the nation would accept without doubt and as a matter of course the promise to abandon the institution, but he never had, and could not now look for popular acquiescence in the Saints' professions until the latter had proven their sincerity by something more substantial than words.

"We must quit," said he, "and then the world will believe we are honest, and not before." In the course of an hour's conversation the churchmen assured me that the practice of polygamy would be discontinued, though belief in the rightfulness and divinity of the celestial system would always be asserted, and that the time would come, "not, perhaps, in my day, but before the world is many years older, when the Lord will open the way for His people to practice this principle with all others of His gospel, and the American nation, if it does not accept the doctrine and confess belief in it, will protect its citizens in this as in other religious matters." He continued, that polygamy would be abandoned, perhaps by an edict from the authorities, though he doubted this, and the discontinuances would be in good faith. For the first time was heard a high churchman declare the necessity for a law against plural marriage as a protection for society in general and the Mormons in particular. His reasoning or illustration was not without force. He said if there were no law against it, any adventurer or lecherous man could come here, and marry as many women as he could induce to accept him, that he might live with them until he tired of their beauty, and then abandon them, without fear of prosecution. Polygamy could only be tolerated when it was controlled by religion.

It was evident that he uttered the sentiments of the controlling faction of his associates. The Saints have been so pressed and distressed during the past few years that they are about ready to surrender on any terms that will bring them relief and peace. They have been punished in their minds, bodies, and pockets, until in some cases life is a burden, as it must be to the leaders who are skulking about to avoid arrest, afraid to go to any of their numerous homes, which are liable to be raided by marshals at any hour of the day or night, and necessarily deprived of the comforts and luxuries to which they have been accustomed. If they could openly forbid polygamy without endangering the entire church structure, it is believed the apostles would proclaim against the system, and seek thereby the respite which they now fully understand can come only with the abandonment, complete and final, of the practice which has brought to the Mormons so much notoriety and suffering. There are many things to induce the belief that the state movement, with a polygamy-forbidding and anti-church and state constitution is more sincere than the people of the nation are willing to accept. But this sincerity can be established by the Mormons alone, and by them only through their deportment.

The foregoing is from the Chicago Times of October 31st and may explain itself. Of it we have to say that the Utah Mormons are themselves largely to blame for the lack of confidence in them and their protestations of sincerity, so clearly manifested by the Gentile portion of the United States. Ever since 1862, there has been a constant affirmation that the Mormons were a law abiding people who loved the institutions of the country and were loyal to the constitution; and there has been just as constant an effort upon the part of the same people to render the law inoperative and to evade its provisions. It is not to be avoided as a just conclusion that such contradictory profession and practice has produced legitimate results—distrust and suspicion.

If it be conceded that the apostle who makes the concessions noted in the foregoing article is sincere, and has stated the sentiments of himself and his thinking compeers, it is a healthy sign, and all encouragement that can be properly given to the increase of such a condition of opinion that it might become the public opinion of the ruling element should be afforded. We of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, have shown, beyond the possibility of disproof, that primitive Mormonism is in no wise responsible for the innovation of polygamy; and the facts concerning the introduction of that dogma are such that there are the best possible reasons to believe that the church could have survived all the persecutions it was subjected to by reason of the preaching of the gospel as it was confided to Joseph Smith by the angel; and that polygamy was no part of that gospel, but contrary to its best provisions, and strictly forbidden in the text of the commands of Christ as found in the Bible, King James and Inspired Translations alike, the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants, as we have repeatedly shown. The introduction of polygamy was a very grave mistake, no matter by whom it was made, and if leading men among the polygamists are now recognizing that fact, and are becoming willing to admit the practicability of the church existing without it notwithstanding the claims made for its origin, we can see possible redemption from its thralldom of those innocently enmeshed by Pres. Young in 1852 and thereafter.

We know that the position taken by the Reorganization, that no matter who the human instrument through or by whom polygamy was made a part of the faith of the church in the Valleys of Utah may have been, it was a fatal heresy and brought corruption religious and social in its train, seems to the people of the Utah church harsh and inconsiderate; but if they would but think that so far as the gospel promises of life and salvation are concerned they are as dear to the members of the Reorganized Church as they can possibly be to the dwellers in the valleys, and if there is a radical divergence of belief and opinion touching the origin, divinity and practicability of plural marriage, we are entitled to the opinion and belief we hold, and have given and are ever ready to give valid reasons for them. As an individual the son of Joseph Smith has an indisputed right to protest against whatever in his judgment is calculated to bring the nature and work of his father into disrepute and prevent, or retard the progress of that work. And if the father went wrong, the son is under no sort of obligation to go wrong also; nor is he under necessity to defend the wrong done, or the error committed.

The confession made by this apostle that a law against polygamy is necessary "as a protection for society in general and the Mormons in particular," is a concession of the position just taken; and we point to the past efforts of the elders of the Reorganization to bring this fact to the attention of polygamic defenders in Utah, with some satisfaction; because it has been persistently denied against our statements and arguments. But the fact that divorce was made to depend upon the likes of a husband or the dislikes of a polygamous wife, a whim or a caprice, and the breaking of marriage bonds, (though solemnized for eternity), was made decidedly easy, has filled Utah from north to south with forsaken and cast off wives, very many of whose husbands have not been of the class referred to as "lecherous," or "adventurers," in the sense in which this apostle intended these words to be understood. The revelation, so called, upon which the divine sanction and order of celestial marriage has been claimed in Utah, has no provision in it for divorce, and the fact that divorce has been made easy and practicable among polygamists, can not be other than an outgrowth of an improper system of marriage not founded in divine law. The law of God as stated by Christ provides for but one cause for divorce. If the claim made by the Utah Church that married infidelity is almost unknown in Utah, upon what ground can divorces be obtained in Utah. We cite a single instance, of which proof can be made, (and we believe it is but one among many), in which a woman was married to a man as his second wife the first still living, who after bearing this husband two children was brutally treated by him and told to get a divorce from him as he cared nothing further for her, nor her "brats." She went to Pres. Young's office, stated her desire to be freed from the bond and went out of that office with a release, or Utah divorce, in her possession, signed by the President, by his clerk, Brigham Young junior, by virtue of which divorce, so obtained, she was not only freed from her polygamic husband, who gave her not one cent of money or property for her support or that of her children, but was permitted to marry another man as his only wife and has since lived an honored wife in honorable wedlock as such only wife. This was the result of the vicious working of the system, one that was inevitable from the very nature of man and woman implanted in them by the Creator at the beginning when he set his royal sign manual to the law of their being, "they twain shall be one flesh."

It is of little use to declaim about persecution, and the hatred of bigoted congressmen influenced by the sectarian churches; the nature of the commission to preach the gospel requires that Zion shall become lovely in the eyes of them who are without; she is to be "clear as the sun, fair as the moon, terrible as an army with banners."

That of which the Reorganized Church complains in the Utah churchmen is that which has rendered the church there unlovely. It is secret and hides under cover; is far from the clear light of the sun. It is of impure aspect and not fair as the moon. It makes men to be contemptible, not terrible. The very impotency of its rage brings all connected with it into evil repute. During the evil days that ruled when the people of the church were being driven from Missouri the Lord told them what they should do, and promised them that if they did it they should "find grace and favor in the eyes of the people." Polygamists have not found grace, nor favor; but have been met with opposition and contempt; and it seems as if ignorance, or willfulness must be great if the force of this fact does not finally penetrate the minds of these men and they be compelled to see how they have erred, if they have not sinned.

"If they could openly forbid polygamy without endangering the entire church structure, it is believed the apostles would proclaim against the system." What danger can there be to the structure of Christ's Church organized in 1830, if proclamation be made against a system not provided for in its organic laws, its foundation principles. Surely the great progress made by that church was made in the first fourteen years of its existence in which time plural marriage under any of its aliases was not known. Nor was it until that dogma was proclaimed that the elders met defeat and disaster as propagandists.

The Reorganized Church has proved in its own history that the surest and the best way to accomplish God's work of building up the church is to do it as commanded at the inception, to preach the gospel as it is found in the New Testament, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants. Let this celestial marriage, this polygamous marriage system be abandoned in good faith, the people turning to a righteous conformity to the law in the place thereof, and the observant man will hardly begin to count the months as they pass before he will discover that the Utah church can not only exist, but will wax stronger in every way without that direful attachment which now weighs like a mill stone about the neck of Utah.

THE ANARCHISTS.

THE sure, swift punishment that overtook some of the leading anarchists in Chicago of late proclaims the important fact that abominations like anarchism can neither thrive nor live in free America. And further, it establishes the fact, that whoever by word or deed incites, abets or encourages the violation of law, the commission of crime, is equally criminal with him who personally and directly performs the criminal act. This is precisely as it should be, for it oftentimes is the case that he who prevails on another to commit crime is far the most intelligent and influential of the two, and therefore, if any difference, the more condemnable. Those who knowingly and intentionally cause the violation of law are responsible for such violation; and he whose speech or act procures it, whether done recklessly or negligently, (not ignorantly), he, too, should be held responsible, for God has ordained that man shall be his "brother's keeper," to protect and bless him. He that "bid-deth him God speed" who is an evil doer, "is partaker of his evil deeds." (2 John 1:11). God condemns those who "strengthen the hands of evil doers;" (Jer. 23:14); those who "strengthen the hands of the wicked." (Ezek. 13:22). Cain, the murderer, repudiated the idea that he was his "brother's keeper;" but God held him responsible for that trust. (Gen. 4:9). This important principle was also taught in the days of Noah and made binding on all generations in these beautiful words: "For a commandment I give, that every man's brother shall preserve the life of man, for in mine own image have I made man." (Gen. 9:13, Inspired Translation). Jesus taught the same when he said that man should love his neighbor as himself; (Luke 10:27); and also that he should love his enemies. (Matt. 5:44). The same sentiments we find in the teachings of St. Paul: "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." (Gal. 6: 10). This is what God requires of man; and whatever nation in its government maintains these principles, it thereby conforms to the divine will, and is thereby fulfilling the purpose of God and promoting the welfare of man.

When man loves his fellowman and protects him in person, property, family, and every proper interest, neither anarchy nor oppression can exist. But until this state of affairs obtains, civil governments must see to it that no one is permitted to violate the personal and guaranteed rights of the citizen, nor trample down the safeguards provided in the law. And he who by craft and cunning, or under pretense of his or their personal rights, civil or religious, causes another to perpetrate crime, he should be held responsible and be punished as of equal guilt with him who is the immediate transgressor. Let this be done and let it be generally known, then there will be far less preaching, lecturing, haranguing and publishing, to fire the hearts of the ignorant and unlearned, inciting them to deeds wherein they violate both the laws of God and the laws of man. We repeat it, that those who instigate evil are criminal and should be held personally responsible therefor. This fact has become emphasized in all the civilized world through what has transpired in the late anarchistic movements in Chicago and their terrible results.

TESTIMONY AND PRAYER MEETINGS.

EVERY one attending the meetings of the Saints held for the purposes of prayer and the exchange of testimonies and comparison of experiences, is impressed with the wish that at each and every such meeting there should be the highest and best condition of spiritual enjoyment, and all be benefitted and blessed by such association. It should be then the desire of every one that whatever may in any way prevent the object of the meeting from being attained should be put away, or overcome. And if there should be anything which a person can do to enhance the value of such meetings to those participating in them he should do it.

Among those things which a Saint can do to aid the good feeling, and hence the spirituality of prayer meetings are the following:—He can go to the meeting in time to hear the opening hymn and prayer.

If he arrives at the doors while prayer is being offered he can wait outside, until the prayer is ended.

He can enter the house reverently, and when he is in he can take off his hat, as if he were in the presence of the Spirit of truth, which he of course, expects will be there in attendance.

He can leave all his erratic notions and pet hobbies at home, or for airing among those as strong as himself and under other and more favorable circumstances.

He can go with the spirit of prayer and supplication in his heart.

He can leave on the outside of the building all prejudice against any brother or sister, if he has been cherishing any, and not let the memory of it occur to spoil his own or their enjoyment.

He can avoid telling long and uninteresting stories of which he has been the hero.

He can listen with attention while others are speaking or praying, and can assent in spirit to what his brother has said; and if perchance a brother should do, or say what he may not altogether approve, he can let it alone and not refer to it to the stirring up of bad feelings by contradicting it, or throwing distrust upon the brother by inuendo or disparagement. He can say what he may have to say of disapproval to the brother when they are by themselves.

He can avoid preaching a sermon during the time of the prayer meeting.

He can put his tobacco quid and pipe away from him while in the meeting, if he is unfortunate, or foolish enough to be addicted to such a habit, and avoid spitting on the floor, or chewing during service.

He can take with him a sincere desire to see and hear something of benefit to himself, with the intention to profit thereby. He can listen to prayer and testimony with a desire to take the good home to his heart and spirit, and utilize them after the meeting shall have adjourned.

He can avoid the making of long prayers; and in praying he can avoid making repetition of the name of the deity, and those pet phrases to which some are addicted through carelessness and want of thought. For instance, a brother will kneel down and in the course of a prayer of three to five minutes duration, will use the name of God, in some of its forms, from fifteen to twenty times; which causes sensitive minds to be hurt; sometimes a prayer otherwise excellent is rendered dull and spiritless because of such a repetition.

He who will do the things herein pointed out as being helps and will leave undone the things named as detrimental, will find that wherever he may go in attending the prayer meetings of the Saints he at least will have a good meeting.

"AUTUMN LEAVES."

WE have upon our table some of the advance sheets of this magazine, soon to be placed in the hands of its patrons and friends, and we feel assured in guaranteeing our readers that it will be fully up to the high expectations entertained of it. Its table of contents promises a rich variety of matter on well chosen and timely subjects which, we are confident, will be presented in a highly instructive and entertaining way. The "Salutatory" explains in a clear, terse manner the purpose and scope of the publication, and this is followed by a poem of merit—"The Saint of Latter Days"—from the pen of Joseph Dewsnup, Sen. Then comes "Where are the Heroes," by Pres. Joseph Smith; "Prophecy," by Frances; "Christmas Eve," (a poem), by John Atkinson; "A Christmas Story," by the editor; "Faithful Housewives," "A visit to Stratford-on-Avon," "The Story of the Book of Mormon," by H. A. Stebbins; "The Children's Joke;" "Christmas Times;" "Farewell, Old Year;" (poetry); "The New Year;" (poetry); "Christmas Cheer;" (poetry); with other goodly matter to fill up its forty-eight neatly printed pages.

All who desire to subscribe for this paper should send at once as directed on another page and thus be sure to obtain the first numbers.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. James McKiernan, of Farmington, Iowa, writes from Montrose, Iowa, November 19th:

"I closed a week's labor at this place last night, and go to Burlington to-day to begin labors there. I have found good, earnest, faithful Saints at all points where I have labored in the last three months, and believe they and I have been blessed by the labor performed. I have preached at Blandinsville, Rock Creek, and Camp Creek, Illinois; Keokuk, Farmington, and Montrose, Iowa; have baptized two with prospects for others soon."

COMPENSATION COMING.

IN this issue we publish a somewhat lengthy article clipped from the Burlington (Iowa) Post, of November 5th, in which is seen another proof that truth, though tardy in her movements,—and justice, sometimes perverted and delayed, finally come to the front and obtain their equal demands with interest added. The writer intends, no doubt, to be fair and honest in his statements, estimates and conclusions; but when a man who ranks Jesus of Nazareth with the poets only, attempts to estimate, explain and delineate the life and character and work of Joseph Smith, who was called to be a prophet of God and a servant of Jesus Christ, on the supposition that he was a poet and only a poet, we should not be surprised at inharmonies between his premises, historical facts and final conclusions. This writer finds himself surrounded with a cordon of facts favorable to the moral worth, intellectual ability, and wise administration of Joseph Smith and his fellows which are irrefutable and beyond gainsaying. He sees the claim this man makes to inspiration in the discovery and translation of the Book of Mormon, founding and governing the church by commandments professedly from God, and, as he can not concede these claims to be altogether true, and yet is compelled to allow that Joseph and his followers were earnest, honest and capable, he seeks to explain the supposed difficulty by saying Joseph was highly imaginative, full of poetic fancies, "a fairy-land poet with all the waywardness and vagaries of a poet's disposition." We are glad the writer perceives some of the real causes of the persecutions of Joseph and his fellow-Saints and has the manhood to state them squarely. Many other writers—not of the Saints—are doing the same things, and in this way truth is emerging into the light, justice with even scales is weighing facts before the eyes of the people, and compensation for past errors and evils suffered by the maligned and outraged Saints is steadily and surely coming to them. The reader can sift much valuable matter from the article, and it will well repay perusal. The spirit and purpose in which it was written are very commendable; and while we may not fully endorse all its data, suggestions and conclusions, in it nevertheless there is much to approve and for which to be thankful.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

(Continued from page 749).

NOW THAT the Saints promised to leave Clay county and advise their brethren to make no further settlements there, the mobocrats in Jackson county entered into arrangements to prevent their return there, of which Oliver Cowdery, then editor of the Messenger and Advocate, August, 1836, had this to say in a leading editorial:

We have recently perused with intense interest and deep feeling, the report of a committee of vigilance appointed on the seventh of May last at a meeting of the citizens of Jackson county, Missouri, relative to the course they recommend to their constituents to be pursued towards our brethren, in case they attempt to come into that county to form a settlement, or to possess their own property.

It will be recollected that our brethren went into that county, purchased land, formed a settlement, established a printing press and a store of merchant goods, and were proceeding peaceably and quietly in the lawful enjoyment of their rights as citizens of these United States. It will also be recollected that they were forcibly driven from their purchased possessions by a ruthless mob in the inclement season of the year, November, 1833, and left without any covering but the open canopy of heaven. It will also be borne in mind, that many of their dwellings were thrown down—much, and in some instances all their property destroyed; and they driven from the county to perish with cold or famine, or to seek relief as mendicants among the hospitable of the county of Clay. These acts, though thrilling to the heart of the philanthropist, and black as the character of their projectors, are light in comparison with the sable shade that yet remains to fill up the interstices of the great outline, and complete the picture! Yes, reader, they proceeded further. They not only destroyed property, and drove off peaceable citizens from their own dwellings, but they threatened life! Aye, would to heaven they had done no more! They unmercifully beat some, and deliberately killed others! (a few only).

We say our bretheren were guilty of no breach of the peace, had violated no law, and resisted no legal authority; we say so without the fear of contradiction; for if they had been guilty, the law, the officers to administer it, and all the force necessary to back them, were in the hands, and at the full and entire control of their enemies. We say they had no law either human or divine to afford the least pretext, no nor the shadow of a pretext for such conduct. If they had would they not have executed that law, rather than have the opprobrious epithets of perjury and murder affixed to their names recorded on the page of history and handed down to posterity. Certainly we think they would. You will ask, kind reader, how they were guilty of perjury. The answer is a plain one. The officers both civil and military are bound by oath or affirmation to support the constitution of the United States and the laws and constitution of the State of Missouri. This act, this direful deed, this diabolical crime was committed in open and palpable violation of all these. Is it not perjury then? Is it not wilful and corrupt perjury? A clear case beyond the power of contradiction.

We have read a copy of their manifesto, and it is not even there asserted, though teeming with falsehoods as black as the hearts of their fabricators or the father of lies himself, that they had either law or constitution to warrant them in their hellish procedure. What then, you will ask, was the cause? We say simply because our brethren took the liberty guaranteed to all citizens of these United States to think differently from the professed Christian world in matters of religion. This was not avowed as the cause in their manifesto, because it was matter of fact, and with this they had but little to do. But that it was the real cause you will believe when we say that when six of our brethren were in the hands of this lawless banditti, as a condition of peace and friendship offered them, they must renounce their religious belief, and all would be well. This they peremptorily refused. The only alternatives they had then left, were death, immediate death, or leave the county.

No legal process could be had to bring offending citizens to justice, their crimes pass with impunity, and innocent blood yet cries from the ground for vengeance. All this in an enlightened land, a free government, where every free man at least has a natural, not only a natural but a constitutional right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This is not all; he has the same right to embrace one religious belief as another; the same right to be an Infidel as he has to be a Baptist, a Presbyterian or a Methodist. He may be a Mohamedan, a Jew or a Pagan, and he is equally safe; the constitution covers the whole ground; it promises him protection, however heretical or ridiculous his religious belief may be, provided he submit to the laws that procure him this protection.

If our brethren had been guilty of some offence or misdemeanor, prejudicial to the feelings or the best interests of their supercilious neighbors, what should be done? The case is a plain one; if it were a breach of the law, the law was open, and said one anciently, there were deputies let them implead on another; and as we have before said, the law, the officers and the power were in the hands of our enemies.

Has the liberty of speech, the liberty of the press, the liberty of conscience, become odious to this religious generation? Is the foundation of all liberty, civil and religious, to be sapped and the beautiful superstructure erected thereon by our fathers to be razed to the ground to gratify whom? The whole community beside our brethren? No, a lawless, ruthless, perjured banditti and their accomplices in bigotry, guilt and crime. These same monsters in human shape, not content with the blood of a part of our brethren and with inflicting one vital stab to the constitution and laws of our country, seem eager to reek their hands in the heart's blood of the remainder, and end their satanic career only with their final extermination. They have said they would not stop while a single Mormon's foot pressed their soil. Have our brethren attempted to drive them from their houses or their lands? have they attempted to urge their claim to any except that which they had been seized by honest right of fair purchase? We fearlessly say no. Their manifesto is but a bundle of falsehoods perfectly in accordance with their subsequent conduct—and the same gang stand unrebuked, unpunished, breathing out threatenings and slaughter and death! Their proceedings to which we now allude are spread upon paper over their signatures, and will pass down to succeeding generations as matter of history, to the everlasting disgrace of all republics or all governments that promise protection to their citizens and then suffer them to be disfranchised; their property destroyed, confiscated or taken without the consent of its rightful owners, and even their lives threatened and taken, with impunity. Has it come to this! Are we irresistibly compelled to sing a funeral dirge over the grave of departed liberty, and bid a long and lasting farewell to what our hearts once held dear. Is this the way to cure people of folly or delusion? Did the mother of abominations with her implements of cruelty and death ever succeed in curing people of heresy and delusion with all their refinement in bloodshed and murder? Let the book of martyrs tell! Let the history of the bloody inquisition speak! Let the records of all past ages testify! And will not like causes produce like effects? Certainly then let reason and common sense sit in judgment and we join issue and abide the award.

We look at the case negatively also; what have we not done? We have not claimed any man's silver, gold, houses or lands, man-servants or maid-servants, camels or asses, without his consent and a fair equivalent. We have not violated any known law of our country. We have not molested any man in the peaceable enjoyment of any of his vested rights, and we say affirmatively that we neither claim nor ask any rights or privileges other than the constitution and laws guarantee to all its peaceable citizens. What then is the cause? We have taken the liberty to think differently from the professing Christian world and have preached and proclaimed our sentiments; and not only so, we have spread them on paper and invited investigation; and when we have been met in the field with scripture, reason and fair argument, our opposers retire with shame from the unequal contest. Here then, is one cause and perhaps the head and front of our offending. Did men anciently suffer because they testified that they had seen angels and held intercourse with the upper world?

Did men anciently who received the lively oracles of truth and recorded them for our instruction, live in peace and die regretted by their cotemporaries? Let history, sacred and profane, answer these queries.

Is Satan's empire divided and he contending against his own subjects, his own loyal subjects? Are our brethren persecuted, oppressed, smitten and afflicted by the Saints of the most high God? We say they are not; if so, we have yet to learn for the first time, that the spirit which actuates our persecutors at the West and elsewhere is the spirit of our blessed Redeemer. We must blush and hang our head for our ignorance now that the frost of so many winters has gone over our head, and left us uninstructed in the fundamental principles of our holy religion. We had thought that the religion of Jesus filled the soul with love to God and man, and that love worked no ill to his neighbor. We had thought the true disciple of our Lord and Savior, would not knowingly and wantonly divest any man of his constituted rights, that he would not destroy his goods, and above all that he had not a heart black enough to drive females and innocent children from their own abode in the cold of November, and to cap the climax of iniquity and crime, shed the blood of some which yet cries from the ground unavenged. That the Saints do wrong acts, and sometimes bring down the judgments of God upon themselves we are sorry, yet free to admit. But will they for a series of days, months, yea, and years too, persist in breathing out threatenings and slaughter, against a people whose only crime for which they are now suffering consists in believing the scriptures of divine origin and all that is there recorded by the prophets and not fulfilled, will be fulfilled in these last days. We say not, we unequivocally say not—May the Lord deliver us from the power of such men and the malevolent influence of their religion.

We say further, that all such as are the aiders, abettors or apologists for such conduct or such characters as have signed the first or last manifesto of the Jackson county mob, are participants in their guilt and crime.

The Saints proceeded promptly and quietly to move from Clay county, beginning in the month of September, selecting a location on Shoal Creek, in territory attached to Ray county; and they continued gathering to that region, when about the middle of December the county of Caldwell was incorporated, embracing their settlements. The new county grew rapidly by the steady influx of the Saints, who made large entries of government lands, building houses and preparing during the winter to put in crops in the spring. April 7th, 1837, the High Council of the church in Missouri held a session in Far West and appointed David Whitmer, John Whitmer and W. W. Phelps to "Superintend the building of the Lord's house in that city."

May 29th, 1837, at Kirtland, Ohio, the High Council heard charges against F. G. Williams, David Whitmer, P. P. Pratt, Lyman Johnson and Warren Parrish, preferred by Abel Lamb, Nathan Haskins, Harlow Redfield, Artemus Millett, and Isaac Rogers, alleging that "their course for some time past has been injurious to the church of God."—Mill. Star, 16: 10.

Of these times we find this in the "History of Joseph Smith," Millennial Star, 16: 11:

At this time the spirit of speculation in lands and property of all kinds, which was so prevalent throughout the whole nation, was taking deep root in the Church. As the fruits of this spirit, evil surmisings, fault-finding, disunion, dissension, and apostasy followed, in quick succession, and it seemed as though all the powers of earth and hell were combining their influence in an especial manner to overthrow the Church at once, and make a final end. Other Banking Institutions refused the "Kirtland Safety Society's" Notes. The enemy abroad, and apostates in our midst, united in their schemes, flour and provisions were turned toward other markets, and many became disaffected towards me as though I were the sole cause of those very evils I was most strenuously striving against, and which were actually brought upon us by the brethren not giving heed to my counsel.

No Quorum in the Church was entirely exempt from the influence of those false spirits who were striving against me for the mastery; even some of the Twelve were so far lost to their high and responsible calling, as to begin to take sides, secretly, with the enemy.

In this state of things, and but a few weeks before the Twelve were expecting to meet in full Quorum, (some of them having been absent for some time,) God revealed to me that something new must be done for the salvation of His Church. And on or about the first of June, 1837, Heber C. Kimball, one of the Twelve was set apart by the spirit of prophecy and revelation, prayer and the laying on of hands of the First Presidency, to preside over a mission to England, to be the first foreign mission of the Church of Christ in the last days. While we were about ordaining him, Orson Hyde, another of the Twelve came in, and upon listening to what was passing, his heart melted within him, (for he had begun to drink of the cup filled with the overflowings of speculation,) he acknowledged all his faults, asked forgiveness, and offered to accompany President Kimball on his mission to England. His offer was accepted, and he was set apart for that purpose.

The following is an extract of a letter written from Far West, Missouri, to the brethren in Kirtland, which serves to show the rise of the mob spirit in Davis county, adjoining Caldwell on the north:

FAR WEST, Missouri, July 7th, 1837.

Monday, the 3d of July, was a great and glorious day in Far West, more than fifteen hundred Saints assembled at this place, and at half-past eight in the morning, after prayer, singing, and an address, proceeded to break the ground for the Lord's house. The day was beautiful; the Spirit of the Lord was with us. A cellar for this great edifice, one hundred and ten feet long by eighty feet broad, was nearly finished. On Tuesday the 4th, we had a large meeting, and several Missourians were baptized; our meetings held in the open prairie, were larger than they were in Kirtland, when I was there. We had more or less to bless, confirm, and baptize, every Sabbath. This same day, our School Section was sold at auction, and although entirely a prairie, it brought on a year's credit, from three and a half to ten dollars and twenty cents per acre, making our first school fund five thousand and seventy dollars! Land can not be had round town, now, much less than ten dollars per acre.

Our numbers increase daily, and notwithstanding the season has been cold and backward, no one has lacked a meal, or went hungry. Provisions have risen, but not as high as accounts say they are abroad. Public notice has been given by the mob in Davis county, north of us, for the Mormons to leave that county by the first of August, and go into Caldwell: our enemies will not slumber till Satan knows the bigness of his lot. Our town gains some, we have about one hundred buildings, eight of which are stores. If the brethren abroad are wise, and will come on with means, and help enter the land, and populate the county, and build the Lord's House, we shall soon have one of the most precious spots on the globe. God grant that it may be so. Of late, we receive little news from you, and we think much of that is exaggerated. As ever,

W. W. PHELPS.

Millennial Star 16: 13.

PROGRESS AT LAMONI.

PROBABLY at no time since the settlement of the Saints at Lamoni has there been such unity, zeal, restfulness and spirituality manifest among them, as during the past year, and notably the past three months. The gifts of the holy Spirit among both old and young members have been largely exhibited and greatly enjoyed, and in proportion as the Saints have been faithful in keeping the commandments, God had come near to them in bestowing the graces and gifts of His holy Spirit. Christian love, according to the divine pattern contained in the scriptures prevails largely, and the Saints are growing in grace and the knowledge of the truth.

The word is preached with added degrees of wisdom, skill, and spiritual power, the ministry proving themselves "workmen that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." A goodly number have been added to the branch by baptism, and not a few by letters of removal.

The Saints are dwelling in peace and unity with their neighbors, and in respect to citizenship and neighborly associations they have "grace and favor" agreeable to the Lord's promise. Some parties have sought to bring division, reproach and scandal upon the church—especially upon the reputation of the dead who are not here to explain and defend their conduct—but this so far has wrought no harm to the faithful Saints.

THANKSGIVING.

THIS national festival has come and gone, and we doubt whether in any part of the land a pleasanter season was enjoyed than by the Saints and friends in Lamoni on that occasion. The weather was good, the gathering large, the singing excellent, the prayer by Elder R. M. Elvin and the short address by Pres. Joseph Smith were timely, appropriate and practical. The net proceeds (to be used for the benefit of the Saints' Chapel) were about forty-five dollars. Nothing occurred during the exercises to mar the gladness of the hour, and, judging from appearances, all were well satisfied with the manner in which it was spent.

President Smith reviewed the various reasons the Saints have for thankfulness in the blessings of the past and present, also the encouraging prospects for the future; and by the time he concluded his remarks his hearers must have perceived that they had abundant reasons to be grateful for heaven's generous care, and ample grounds for faith in God's kind providences for the future.

How restful is the soul that faithfully serves the Lord and implicitly trusts all His promises! Joy and gladness are its heritage; contentment and unfaltering hope are its stay and inspiring support. Thanksgiving occasions, properly conducted, build up the soul in those happy graces and virtues, which richly repay the efforts necessary to make them a success.

One of the most noticeable features of the occasion was the tender care given to the aged and infirm. No effort was spared to make their hearts young again, and cause them to forget their feebleness and afflictions; and this was done with such generous, hearty good-will as springs alone from loving, great-souled men and women who find much of their own happiness in making joyful the hearts of others. God created man to be happy—"Men are that they may have joy"—and heaven is therefore joyful when righteous gladness fills the souls of earth's pilgrim children. The Lord says he is displeased when "the heart of the righteous" is "sad, whom I have not made sad," (Ezek. 13:22); but when the young and strong open their hands to the needy, there is joy in heaven among the angels, and the Father sends down the holy ones and the watchers from paradise, as he did to kind and faithful Cornelius, to testify the divine approbation. "For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that ye should love one another."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

AUNT Katherine Salisbury, of Fountain Green, Illinois, is anxious that Bro. G. T. Griffiths would call and see them at her place and preach to them some on his way through Illinois and Missouri. The Saints of Kewanee would also like that Bro. Griffiths should call on them on his way; and indeed all along from the Ohio to the boundary line the good ones of the faith will give the worker a welcome.

Bro. F. C. Warnky writes us that the Saints at Independence, Missouri, have let the contract of the building of the main walls of their church building to Bro. John Earnshaw, formerly of Sandwich, Illinois, to be built of cut sandstone.

Bro. R. J. Anthony baptized five at Malta, Idaho, November 12th.

Bro. Morris T. Short has been laboring at East Delavan, and Burlington, Wisconsin, with good prospects; he has also had access to the press at Delavan, to correct some mistakes made by a local reporter, and put a good defence in two issues, in his usual vigorous style. He wrote from Lyons, Wisconsin, respecting his effort at East Delavan, "I preached a solid week there, and lo, the people say 'more.'"

Bro. D. L. Harris, of Santa Maria, California, wrote November 13th, that at the request of Bro. H. C. Smith, he was there preaching and had been since the first of October. He reports that it is hard to get an opening in the town, not having money to pay for the hire of a hall, he had nevertheless spoken twenty-four times, and was to speak again that evening. Some were interested and were pleased with the doctrine as set forth by Bro. Harris.

Bro. W. S. Montgomery, writes from Aniwa, Wisconsin, November 20th, that he had baptized two at that place, both men of family. He with Bro. J. M. Wait were trying to do something for the cause in their respective regions; a hard job, as there seems to be little disposition to hear anything but orthodox philosophies of religion there. Our counsel to these, as to all the laborers, is to keep sowing the good seed and leave the increase to the good will of him, whom we serve.

Letters from brethren G. H. Hilliard, of Jeffersonville, Illinois; J. H. Lawn, San Benito, California; and Sydney York, Lily Dale, Indiana, are received, and for want of room are crowded out. From that of Bro. Hilliard we learn that Bro. I. M. Smith, was to hold a debate at Bellair, Crawford county, with a Christian preacher, on the claims of the respective churches, the Latter Day Saints and the (so called) Christian. We wish Bro. Smith the sustenance of the Spirit of Truth in his defence of the work. Bro. Hilliard was expecting to visit Lake City, Arkansas on invitation.

THE following is from Prohibition Kansas, as one of the straws in the wind:

DEAD TOWNS IN KANSAS.

"Three years ago at least fifty newspapers in Kansas were abusing the prohibitory law and pleading the cause of the rum-sellers. But the law is enforced and not one paper in Kansas now advocates the re-establishment of the grogshop. Here in this beautiful city of Topeka, the law conquered its way step by step, until it now finds us with a bonafide population of nearly fifty thousand people—twice as many as we had three years ago—business is brisk, streets are being paved, building is in progress, railroad construction extending, the people all busy, happy and hopeful, with a prospect ahead most encouraging, and not a man, nor a woman, nor a paper advocating the dram-vender's business. We get along well without licensing dram selling. We have a clean, sober, prosperous city that we are proud of, and nothing has helped us more than the banishment of the saloon. The Atchison Globe, democratic, confesses that although it has steadily adhered to the belief that without saloons Atchison would be the deadest town in the state, it is now called upon to chronicle the fact that the town without an open saloon in its midst, has the only genuine boom it has had in nine years past. In future the Globe is a prohibition organ with a boom attachment.—Topeka (Kas) Capital.

NINE MURDERS IN NINE WEEKS.—For nine consecutive Sabbaths, so we are told by a policeman, there has been a murder or an attempt at murder, in Washington. This is shocking. These events are so common that the community pays little attention to the frequent announcement of these events in the daily papers, but when we stop to consider the aggregate of these crimes we are filled with a sense of horror. Where are those officials who so recently complained that the fair name of our city was being disgraced by the publication of facts? If they wish to save the reputation of the city let them take steps to stop this flow of crime. Will they again license 1,300 saloons to inflame the populace? Will our so-called "good citizens" once more sign petitions to license these schools of vice, these dens of arson, theft and murder? We protest. The time has come to stop the havoc of the saloons, and we call on all friends of good order, safety and decency to use their influence to overthrow the powers of evil.—Sci.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"What were bars and bolts and prison walls to him, whose eyes were anointed to see, and whose ears opened to hear, the glory and rejoicing of the City of God, when the pilgrims were conducted to its golden gates from the black and bitter river."

INDIVIDUAL WORK.

Continued.

IN our last we noticed that it would not be compatible with the justice of God to require of us that which we could not do, and therefore it follows that what he does require of us we can do, and, if we ever dwell with him, we must do. Sisters, let us once and forever banish from our hearts that dangerous thought, for it is dangerous to us in every way. When the lord in the parable was reckoning with his servants unto whom he had entrusted the various talents; to the one who told him that he knew he was a hard master, and therefore had not tried to improve upon what had been entrusted to his keeping, he said: "Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee." We can do all that God requires of us to do, and if we do it with a willing heart and an eye single to his glory, we may be well assured that it will be complete, wanting nothing, and will stand the test which is to try the work of every individual. If we really have nothing to give for the support of the poor or the spread of the gospel, we can speak words of comfort to the one, and the other we must preach by our daily example. We can not follow Christ without letting our light shine; and the promise is that when the light of good works is shining, men will glorify our heavenly Father; but if we have means to give, and withhold our hand, we may well take home to our own soul the question of the apostle James, "How dwelleth the love of God in such an one?" If we say that we have nothing to give for the spread of the gospel and yet from day to day are spending money upon ourselves for that which if not absolutely hurtful, we would be just as happy and comfortable without, then are we saying to Jesus, "I know thee that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown and gathering where thou hast not strewed;" for he does require of us to help sustain the ministers of his gospel. His balances are just, and never yet has he required of one more than he will require of another, and "whatsoever a man sows that also shall he reap." The little boy who sent his last and only dime to the Home Column Fund gave to the Lord all that he had. In the day of reckoning will it be counted to him as a dime, while the rich man's dollar taken from where hundreds of others just like it were nestled together, will be counted as ten dimes? Savior, we are thankful to-day for the blessed light of thy pure word upon this point! "She hath cast in more than all, for all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living." For this reason many a poor widow, wife, or child of Zion, who has thought they could do but little will discover that they have done more than they ever dreamed possible, while upon the other hand there are some who think they have done much who will never discover their mistake here, but the pure light of eternity will surely reveal it.

To you weary, tired mothers, wives and daughters, we say: It is possible for you to do all which God intended you should do, and he never intended you should have it in your heart to do more. Think of it for just a moment. Suppose you that God intends that at the close of fifteen or sixteen hours of labor—labor given with loving heart and willing hands, you should sit down and write an article intended to cheer and encourage others, many of whom would need neither cheer or encouragement if they had been faithfully exercising their faculties as you have? We answer plainly that we do not believe anything of the kind, and moreover we do believe that if that labor was in the line of duty, you might safely go out from the presence of angels to discharge it and expect to find them waiting your return. Home is woman's sphere; and whenever she neglects what should be done there, thinking that she has a higher vocation, a more important work, to our mind she is like one of old, running without tidings, and will eventually find her mission an empty one. But while we believe this, we also believe that it is the duty of every one who has named the name of Christ, to employ their time wisely and well; to be about the Master's business at all times, but to realize that if it is their duty to cook, sweep, wash clothes, make or mend them, they are about his business just as much as the elder in the pulpit or the angels who do his bidding. One thought, however, it will be well for us to bear ever in mind, that we guard against the mistake of wearing our bodies out in work which is not for the health or comfort of any one, but intended to gratify vanity and the love of display. The diligent shall stand in the presence of kings, but it should ever be the higher ambition of the Saint of God to be able to abide the day of His coming and stand when he appears. The price which Jesus paid for us binds us to glorify him in our bodies and spirits which are his, and if this shall help any weary toiler to see how they may and must do this, we ask no more. It is an individual work, and every member of Christ's body is bound to let his light shine, that others may see his good works and glorify God.

Are we called in poverty, then let us glorify him in poverty by casting in our mites. Are we called in wealth, let us be careful that we are not high-minded, and do not trust in our riches rather than in the living God. Are we called having many cares, let us strive for the mastery by patience and faith, serving as unto the Lord. Are we called having leisure, let us be careful to seek to employ it to his honor and glory. Are we called having one talent or ten, let us remember that he who has appointed our lot, who has entrusted these talents to our keeping, is just and merciful and will reckon with each one according to that which he has entrusted him with. Hardest of all, are we called (as many are) to suffer through long years, the will of God, never being able to serve him actively, but to endure long tedious days of pain and sleepless nights of agony, dependent upon others for the supplying of every physical need; oh, then let us trust in him, let us remember his human nature when it shrunk back appalled in the garden of Gethsemane and the torture which wrung from him as it were great drops of blood; and remembering this, let us seek to the Father for grace which shall enable us to say: "Not my will, but thine, O, Lord, be done." To such afflicted ones, the Saints owe a special duty of prayer and kindly remembrance; and let us not forget to discharge it, lest he say unto us, I was sick and ye visited me not.

The glad Christmas time is near, and there are those of the household of faith who have spent the entire year upon beds of pain and languishing. Forget them not we entreat you when peace, health and plenty smile around your own firesides. If you know of such seek them out, and if the blessing of him whose ear is ever open to the cries of the poor shall rest upon your store, your souls shall rejoice in the Lord.

Oh, that we might each awake to the faithful discharge of our duty—each in our own sphere, and each realize that without reference to our positions, talent or surroundings, we are called upon to glorify God and do perfectly the work he has entrusted us to do; and first upon the list of the duty of every Saint is to let your light shine before men.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Jennie Allen, Alton, Ill. ....	$1 00
Sr. Mamie Allen, Alton, Ill. ....	1 00
Sr. Annie Allen, Alton, Ill. ....	1 00
Sr. Helen Shackelton, Columbus, Neb. ....	75
Sr. Mary Hooper, Decatur, Mich. ....	1 00
Sr. Mary Ann McCallister, Decatur, Mich. .	75
Sr. Christina Ryan, Council Bluffs, Iowa. .	1 00
Bro. and Sr. Judkins, Walton, Ont. ....	1 00
Sr. Mary Clements, Johnsonville, Ill. ....	75
Adeline Montgomery, Indian Valley, Cal. .	2 50
Sr. Charlotte Ackerly, Lamoni, Iowa . . . .	2 00
Sr. Mary Dutton, Columbus, Kan. ....	60
Sr. Rebecca Houseman, Fremont, Ind. ....	50
Sr. S. B. Robinson, Pacheco, Cal. ....	50
Sr. Eliza Poland, New Harbor, Me. ....	75
Sr. Ames, San Bernardino, for her dear grand and great grandchildren. ....	25
Martha Spanswick, Persia, Iowa. ....	1 00
LAMONI, IOWA, November 23d.

Dear Sister Frances, and Sisters of the Home Column:—I want to tell you some of the good your letters have been doing. I, for one, have perused them with interest, and found many an hour's comfort when studying their lessons. It made my heart so glad to learn that so many of the young mothers are trying to teach their children and bring them up to be worthy citizens in the kingdom of our God. I have only heard six sermons for over fifteen years. Had it not been for the Herald (which is a welcome visitor and a splendid instructor) I would know hardly anything about how the work was getting along; but thanks to the Father of all good for his gifts, (and I consider the books of the church as part of his gifts), the lonely and scattered can appreciate them most. My son and myself are all that are here. My daughter is also a member, but she is away from the family, being married. When the Herald comes we feel like we had a meeting, being acquainted with the brothers and sisters who write for the Herald. Of late I have been missing so many of you away from the home, that it makes me a little sad and disappointed. If we don't see the vacant seats we feel them, and we urge you, good sisters, not to hide your light under a bushel, let it be ever so little. We have an account of a little spark kindling a large fire, so the simplest effort we make, if it is done by the Spirit of truth, is acceptable to him who sees and knows our intent and purpose. We may think that our letter is not so eloquent as some, nor appreciated as much as some (I myself have been laboring under that same feeling); and a good many years I would not do anything because some one else could do better; but, sisters, I found this to be a false position,—pride and lack of humility. I firmly believe I have been in exile partly for that same error; but now I want you to rejoice with me, for the goodness and mercy and blessings of our heavenly Father, who has made plain the plan of salvation, and has condescended to show us, poor weak mortals, that we have to become humble and obedient to the law of the gospel of Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior before we can obtain the blessings promised to the faithful.

Can we not help sister Frances, and strengthen her hands, so that she will be able to give us Autumn Leaves? I feel that it would do much good, and help the young generation, and save many of them from the pollution of novel reading. We have subscribed for three of them, as I know the evil of the literature of the day, and I wish to let the people know what kind of papers the Latter Day Saints peruse. I would like to see the sisters side of the house kept up. The Home Column Mission Fund I am sorry to see is getting lower of late. Do we appreciate our privileges as the children of the covenant, and as the children of light? have we learned that God is our Father, and has said that he would open the windows of heaven and pour out a blessing upon those who would keep his laws. Now I don't wish any one to think that I have been doing much in regard to this thing. My means are very limited, but let us remember the "widow's mite," and we all can do a little if willing; and my experience is that you will never miss any thing you do if you do it with the understanding that all belongs to God, and even the ravens are heard when they cry.

As this is only an introductory letter I will tell you that I am one with you in all things that pertain to the kingdom; for I verily know that God has set his hand for the last time to gather Israel. I also know that Joseph, our beloved prophet and martyr, was the chosen of God for that purpose; and organized the Church of Jesus Christ on the earth, never more to be thrown down. I have had ample testimony to this effect. I am now in the fold; have renewed my covenant with God and rejoice to have the privilege of going back and starting where I left off so many years ago, although I never saw the day that my faith in the latter day work was shaken. I might as well try to deny my own existence. It seems to me that the inspiration of the work was with me all the time, since I remember anything. When I was only twelve years old I remember asking my father (who was Baptist minister) if he got his commission from Jesus Christ. He told us that he did. The next question was why did they not lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost? I could never feel satisfied (and no one else will be that will search the Scriptures with an honest desire for salvation). When I heard the Saints preach, you may believe that I found what I was so much in need of. I then found satisfaction and light on every subject that used to trouble my soul so much. O how I rejoiced; but still I wanted to have a testimony that God organized his church and ordained prophets and apostles. The first night after I was baptized I dreamed of Joseph coming and shaking hands with me and telling me that God was pleased with what I had done. He also showed me twelve pillars towering to the heavens and said, "That is the representation of the twelve apostles." These pillars were full of little wheels, moving continually, and an angel with a can was pouring oil on them, which represented the Spirit of God, and that if the angel should stop pouring they would be of no use. He told us many things which I did not know. I went to the house of one of the Saints next morning, one who had the picture of the prophet and of some of the apostles also; and telling him of my dream he showed me these pictures at a distance, so that I could point out the one who I dreamed about, and who gave me so much counsel, which I did. I picked out the one, and that was our prophet and seer.

If I should tell you all of the manifestations of the power of God that has come under my notice, since that time, you might think it boasting; but it is not so; I have nothing to boast of except that the grace of God has spared me and given the more sure witness, and showed by his Spirit that we must live lives of purity, that we must strive and not leave one duty undone that comes within our reach. If we do this, our troubles will seem small. If we have faith and works our bark will always be in trim, so that she can ride over the waves and no danger of sinking. This reminds me of a dream I had last week. I thought I was sailing in a long ship on the clearest, smoothest sea; and near our vessel was another, far enough away from us to be only seen at a distance. Our captain was walking the quarter deck with a large trumpet in his hand, and he called to the passengers, "That ship is going to destruction." When we looked over we saw her heaving in troubled waters while we had the smoothest kind of a sea, which surprised us very much, being on the same sea. I thought our captain felt sorry that he could not save them. A last he called the crew and said, "We must save them; she is damaged and wrecked; there are but twenty inches above water; now she is sinking. Then after he said this he blew in the trumpet and called them to heave too, and he would try and save their lives, but the ship must sink. They would not heed the warning nor heave too, but our captain ordered the boats out and said, "We will save those that can swim and the rest must perish." That is my dream, and I got the interpretation, but I would like to hear the verdict of some one else.

I would like to tell you something about Sand Run. There are three hundred inhabitants here at present. There has been twice that number at one time, before the machines came. It is a mining town, and no preacher except once in awhile a stray one comes. There are a few of the "Christain Brothers," as they call themselves. My son and I obtained tracts, and some "Voices of Warning" from Bro. Peters that gave us a chance to let the people know a part of the religion of the Latter Day Saints; so when the elders, Ern. Beatty and Mathews, came they got a pretty kind reception. They preached four times in the school-house to good audiences who gave good order and attention; and some of them testified that they never heard the gospel before, nor the Scriptures explained in the same true light. I tell you the brethren did well, and I was proud to hear the gospel preached once more in its simplicity and purity. The people are asking when these men are coming back. I think if there was an elder here that could stop awhile he could do some good. Elders can have their home with us as long as they wish to stay, and we would feel honored by having the privilege of entertaining them. I can bear a living testimony to the blessings that we as a family have enjoyed since the brethren were here last. The night they came my husband felt so wicked at them he would not enter the same room with them, and I was much afraid that we were going to have trouble with him, for he has been under the power of some evil spirit for five years. He would not listen to nor hear anything of a religious nature when under this influence. However we prayed for power to bind this spirit, and sure enough when they met at table and talked to him and persuaded him to go with them to meeting, I was both surprised, and thanked God, that he showed us that his hand was not shortened that he could not save to the uttermost according to his promise. My husband came home that night a changed man and has continued so ever since. Here is an instance of the power of the Father through his servants, more than I ever dared to hope for. Oh, the happiness and peace that we now enjoy, to meet together and in a family to ask our Father's blessing, where before this we would have to seek some quiet corner for fear of annoying some one! I desire all of you that reads this to pray for us here in Sand Run, that God in his bountiful mercy may continue the good work begun and that the seed that has been sown may bear good fruit, so that the honest in heart may obey the sound, and that the standard of truth may be raised even here in Sand Run, Ohio.

NAOMI.

Correspondence.

DAVID CITY, Neb., Nov. 11th.

Dear Herald:—I thought I'd stop a few moments in the midst of the busy cares of life and talk with you. Your weekly visits have been a great source of pleasure to me, they have been so well freighted with the good things of life, and have been always ready to lend a helping hand in time of need. Often when my weary body has been suffering with the cares of life, my mind depressed with anxious thoughts, my spirit weighed down with sorrow, your dear face has appeared in my domicile, dispersing care and weariness, as I perused your pages filled with light, truth, and consolation, my drooping spirit would take an upward bound and soar above the turmoil and strife and perplexities of this world, filling my being with rapture and delight as I scanned the progress of the church and its faithful workers. God bless them.

I have become quite interested in the subject of dress. As many of the writers of the "Home Column" have given their opinion, I have thought I would like to see something decided in regard to it. I was a plain M. E. before I came into the church, wore only a sun bonnet; no jewelry decked my person, ruffles, tucks, laces, puffs and all artificial adornments were strangers to my wardrobe. Such is not the case now, and many of my old friends have remarked, "she has lost her religion"—and so I had, that kind. Now what is right? is the question. I am satisfied I'm in the Church of Christ, and I desire to be led by his spirit in all things. We should not be proud and haughty; but does the outward appearance tell of the inward state? It is true that places of business have their signs on the outside—but I leave it with you to decide.

I'm about to have a new home, and your visits will soon be there. I found it this fall—a beautiful location on the Wabash and St. Louis Railroad in Missouri. McFall is the name, and if any of your readers have a desire to change their home, I invite them there; for the prospects are splendid for those that want a home with good surroundings.

I must not forget to tell you that the Lord blessed me through the administration of Elder Johnson. I had been troubled with a weakness for years, and while at McFall I suffered very much from it, insomuch that it seemed impossible for me to return home. After the administration I commenced growing better, and before I reached home I felt nothing of the trouble, and was healed. To God be all the praise.

Your sister in Christ,

JENNIE KRAHL.

CAMERON, Ontario, Nov. 20th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I came here the 25th of August, found the Saints all well and enjoying that peace and harmony that have always been the characteristic of God's people. Elder John H. Lake had preceded me about a week or ten days, and was laboring among the Saints. We continued here until the 5th of September, when we took train for Haliburton county, where Brother Lake had previously been, and baptized a few. I had also visited there a few days last winter. We began work as soon as we came near a place called Irondale. There seemed to be quite an interest there, hence brother Lake remained, while I went on to Monmouth township on the 10th. After arriving there, I began work at once; the people flocked out to hear "what new doctrine" this was. We felt blessed while trying to disseminate the principles of truth, and were encouraged to stay. Brother Lake baptized a number at Irondale, then came to Monmouth for a few days, where I was.

During his absence from Irondale, a Mr. A. Q. St. George, of the Whitmerites, came there and announced a lecture on Mormonism. Brother Lake happened back in time to hear the lecture, which consisted in reading copiously from D. Whitmer's tract. Elder Lake announced a review the next night, but instead of St. George staying to hear his theory annihilated, he "skipped" next morning. The result of the lecture was, the Saints were strengthened, and the truths of the gospel were made plain. We parted with Bro. Lake on the 24th of September, he to go to Dufferin county to attend the district conference; I to remain and carry on the work in Haliburton. We were sorry to see him go, and have since missed his wise and timely counsel. May God ever bless him. While I was in Haliburton county I baptized twenty-eight, all grown persons, except five. We had much to contend with; opposition ran high; but as the Master stood at the helm, the good ship sailed steadily along. I returned here to Cameron on the 11th inst., and on the 14th baptized one more. Others here, we think, will embrace the work soon. I have been blessed much this summer in presenting the word, and have baptized eighty-seven since reporting to last general conference.

There is one thing, Bro. Blair, I wish to see in the Herald, if consistent, touching W. P. Brown's first tract. On page 5, he says: "There is a family of Smith's followers that live at the lake where they baptize. I went to that place to baptize some persons, two of them were their daughter and son-in-law. I thought, two, being of their own family, that they would let their daughter and the two other sisters change their clothing in their house and the men would go to the barn and change their clothing; but when we had our clothing partly off, these sisters, together with ourselves, were ordered off the place, so that we went to a neighbor's house some distance from the water who did not profess religion and he gave us the privilege of his house and barn, and was very kind to us," &c.

Now as this is totally false, we think the matter should be placed before the Saints in its proper light, that none may think the "Latter Day Saints" so unkind as Mr. Brown would make them appear; also that he (Brown) who was the inventor of the falsehood may appear in his true colors to those who fain would believe him to be a truthful man. In the first place, then, the family referred to that "lives at the lake," is J. W. O'Brien, while the son-in-law and daughter is A. Q. St. George and wife; and while it is true that Mr. Brown took seven to the lake to baptize them, yet it is false in regard to brother O'Brien refusing the house, or ordering them from his premises, as neither brother nor sister O'Brien was home at the time, both of them being three miles away to the church and knew nothing of the baptism of the parties referred to, until after they had been baptized and had returned from changing their clothes from a Mr. Cummings' house; and instead of him ordering them away, he tried to prevail on a part of them to remain with him until after dinner. It is true they first went to Bro. O'Brien's, but there was no one there, save a little girl about fourteen years of age, and she positively denied refusing them the house to change their clothing in; and she was not at that time a member of the church. And again, when Mr. Brown states that Mr. Cummings "did not profess religion," he states what is untrue; and Mr. Cummings feels nettled over the matter, as he is, and has been a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a strict adherent to that faith for a number of years.

Again, Mr. Brown says: "Think of three women being immersed in icy water, then traveling a long distance through the snow to a house to change their clothing, while one of them had a father and mother's house at the water's side, and these parents professing to be 'Latter Day Saints.'"

Now while we have shown that brother and sister O'Brien were away, we also wish to tell you that Bro. O'Brien and Mr. Cummings both live on the shore of the lake, at about an equal distance from the water. I am sure there is not a rod's difference in the distance of their houses from the lake. And now, even were we to allow of Mr. Brown's version of the matter, does he not show how void of good manners, and how totally ignorant he was of common respect, by assuming the right to use the buildings and premises of Mr. O'Brien, or any one else, without first obtaining consent for the privilege to do so?

I have already written more than I thought to, and will therefore close. I expect to leave here for Holstein the 28th inst. I am feeling strong in the work, and enjoying good health.

In bonds,

WILLARD J. SMITH.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

TEMPORAL THINGS.

QUESTIONS TOUCHING THE LAW RELATING TO TEMPORAL THINGS, AND ANSWERED BY THE BISHOP.

Ques. 1.—Does the law of tithing require a farmer to pay on his farm implements—such as plows, wagons and harness?

Ans.—Yes; providing that the money with which he bought them was not tithed as required by the law.

Q. 2.—Is it proper for a man to pay tithing on what he sells, and own a farm and not pay on the farm?

A.—Each case depends upon the surrounding circumstances. If a member has a farm and has not paid upon this or the money that purchased it, he may raise a crop, sell it, and pay upon the net proceeds and thus far comply with the law. Again, he may have in the beginning, paid upon all he was worth, as he should if possible for him to do so, and then raise a crop and sell it and have nothing to pay; for upon settling his account he may find that he only has as much as he had at the beginning of the year or season after paying the tithe. The tithe under the gospel is not a tenth of what a man has, but a "tenth of the increase;" and the rule is an unvarying one. The Lord has never called upon his people to give him a tenth of what was their own, absolutely; he is not a robber; and does not require others goods. But when He blesses us with an increase of goods, He has asked us to render an account upon the same to Him, as is set forth by the Savior in the gospel of Luke, 16: 11, 12. By this law He blesses His church and proves the individual, upon the basis of having the right to ask us to account, we being His stewards.

Q. 3.—If the tithe is a "tenth of the increase," how do we account what is increase?

A.—First; to begin with, if a member has paid no tithe upon any part of what he has, all that he has is increase, and will so continue to be increase until he renders the account as a wise steward should. If he has paid upon a part, the balance upon which he has not paid is the increase. Second; if a member pays upon what he has, then the increase is that which accrues to him over and above the amount he started out with after paying or rendering the account to the Lord.

Q. 4.—If a person can not comply with the law without a sacrifice on his part, should he comply?

A.—Yes. The law itself in one sense is one of sacrifice; as are all others of our heavenly Father to us. We sacrifice for the love of the law, or truth, when we obey the gospel; and often lose the love of our neighbors, friends and relatives by this. We sacrifice the comforts of home and association of friends, parents, wives and children when we labor in the gospel.

We ought not to wait till we have something that ceases to be of rich value to ourselves before we offer it to the Lord. When we ask the Lord to remember us, it is with his best gifts—His holy Spirit, health of body and mind, His care and protection day by day, and finally to be made heir with His Son, and to attain to the choicest things He can provide—absolutely "heir of all things." Then, when he asks of us to render an account as stewards of Him here, will we put him off with a mutilated bill; a creaky wagon; a blind horse; or a dilapidated house and an unproductive farm; when we can do better? Don't think of such a thing, brethren. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap."

Q. 5.—Is it proper for me to say what shall be done with the money, or where it shall be expended, when I pay my tithe?

A.—No; only so far as you act as a member with your brethren in "the body of Christ, the church." Why should a man render his tithe to the Lord and then desire to tell the Lord what he shall do with it; or, if possible, make the provision before hand that it shall be expended in his own neighborhood; for then the selfish motive at once crops out, which it is the intention of the law to cure. God trusts us to act upon our own judgment in the use of the nine-tenths; can we not trust Him to say where the one-tenth shall go? "But," one may say, "I don't see that the Lord makes the distribution when done by the church." If it is His church, He, Christ being at the head of it as He is, directing its affairs through its officers and general business meetings, is it not His work of distribution? It is for this reason that he could say in the Revelation, "In the manner ye do this, so shall ye be judged at the last day." The officers placed in the body and given oversight or direction in this special work have a right to ask for direction in the same from him as any other duty in the church, and responsibility ensues at once to act right; and just as truly does responsibility fall upon every member of the body at the same moment to render their account to these officers that they may act within their charge, as that the officers are to account to Christ. This is a work in which the faith must be mutual—officers in members and members in officers—all having great faith in Christ and His work. Not a blind, ignorant faith; but one born of a lively hope in wisdom, and sustained by good works.

Q. 6.—Can not a member set apart a portion of his property for the use of some special work he may wish done, either foreign or at home?

A.—Yes; and it is eminently proper for him to do so. But he must not set apart that which, under the law, is the Lord's; but let it come from his own—the nine-tenths—and let it be after he has himself, giving the tenth to the church as directed; for he has no nine-tenths till after that. Every man is under responsibility to judge for himself what he is worth. Just be fair—that is all. Don't get overly nice and begin to count the eggs, and dresses and spoons and knives and forks, unless you have more than you need for actual proper daily use; but make a fair and reasonable estimate of what you are worth, such as you can conscientiously answer upon, after becoming rightly informed in the law, when called upon in the judgment. Upon this render the account directly to the Bishop or through one of his authorized agents; and do it at once. There is a great work to be done, and the Master, the Head of the church, wants you to act.

Q. 7.—What will be the consequence if one does not comply with the law?

A.—He will not escape the "burning" in the consummation. If he ever gets to heaven it will be only by doing as Jesus "taught the rich man." Having been too covetous to render an account of his means, he must then rise to the sublime occasion of giving "all that he has." Truly, "who can bear it?" And how hardly shall the rich man enter the kingdom of heaven.

Selections.

MORMON RESEARCHES.

A NEW AND UNIQUE VIEW OF THE GENIUS AND CHARACTER OF THE FIRST MORMON LEADER.

FROM time immemorial, it has been the destiny of poets, prophets, social and religious reformers—ethical philosophers generally, to be a despised, persecuted class of persons. Especially is this truth apparent when the material of which this kind of being is made, is impelled by its genius to assume the character of the prophet. The biographies of nearly all religious reformers are nothing more than a record of suffering, which their subjects have experienced by the world's neglect and contumely—their lives often ending by violent or ignominious deaths. Yet in nearly all cases when the reformer has been perhaps many years in the grave, society will be brought to comprehend his motives and teachings, and will make an effort at retribution. It will erect monuments and statues to his memory, and instances have been known of his descendants being made the recipients of large charitable contributions—when they were needy and they usually are so—a poet's considerations generally being of such extended nature as to leave his natural heirs only an impartial portion of a universal inheritance. To consider Joseph Smith, the founder of Mormonism, as a philosopher, poet, prophet and reformer does not require any great stretch of the imagination. An unprejudiced study of his character by means of his religious teachings, public writings and private letters will serve to fully establish the truth of this assertion. He was an ethical genius; perhaps tully as great a one as many whose followers are now counted by the thousands and, though a period of forty years has elapsed since his martyrdom—a sufficient time for prejudice to loosen it hold on the public mind—and reason to make its usually late inquiry—yet he has not, so far, received that posthumous atonement his relative social importance entitles him to, and which the world generally gives to poets who have suffered while living. Society did Joseph Smith a great injustice during his life, and the injustice was sanctioned by the government of the United States. When the Mormon delegates appealed to President VanBuren for protection from the persecution of their enemies in Jackson county, Missouri, he replied: "Gentlemen, I know your cause is just, but I can do nothing for you." Which meant he would lose the vote of Missouri should he interfere in that state's domestic affairs. Since the prophet's death, Mormonism has been so perverted and changed from the original conception of the scheme, and rendered so unattractive by polygamy, that the biographers have made no attempt at a just disquisition of Smith's character through the study of his pet fancy. Smith was neither the projector nor the advocate of polygamy; on the contrary he was strongly opposed to it. When the measure was first discussed in the temple at Nauvoo, Illinois, where a proposition was made to ingraft it in the the Mormon articles of faith, Smith said: "Sooner than this infamous thing come among my people, with the help of God Almighty, I will destroy the church!" The Salt Lake Mormons strongly assert their right to practice polygamy as proceeding from divine authority. They claim that their prophet Joseph obtained the revelation on patriarchal or celestial marriage in 1843, (nine months before the prophet's assassination) but it was not made public until 1853—nine years after Smith's death. This statement is at least proofless, and certainly a contradiction to the general impression that Smith had a dozen or more wives. The prophet's reputation was too much at stake at that time for him to have acted independent of a published revelation in such an important matter. He ever warned his followers against agitating the question of polygamy; prophesying, if continued it would cause a division in the church. His prophesy has since been verified. There are a great many more Mormons scattered over the several states of the Union than there are in Utah Territory—the division having been caused by the majority refusing to sanction polygamy. This non-conforming portion of the Mormons, or Latter Day Saints, as they term themselves, are called Josephites to distinguish them from the Brighamites, the believers in polygamy. The Josephite, however, is distinguished from the Brighamite in more ways than one. He is usually an honest, serious, modest, industrious person, with that appearance of ever-present humility which is acquired by individuals who have been, causelessly, long out of favor with the world. The only difference between the religion established by Joseph Smith and the teachings of orthodoxy, is in the former's acceptance of the Book of Mormon, which is considered by the Saints to be a revealed history of the advent of man into America. The Mormon articles of faith, form of worship, conception of the Deity, understanding of the Bible, are the same as that of other protestants. And, so our poet lies covered with the mud and filth heaped on him by his political and religious enemies, whose malignity and unceasing persecution ended only in that most dastardly murder at the Carthage jail. What was this Mormon prophet's crimes? He founded a religion, he discovered a method of worship—a system of faith in accordance with the peculiar fancy and disposition of several hundred thousand persons who, perhaps, without this discovery would never have had their religious natures developed. Whether there is any truth or good in the teachings and precepts of Joseph Smith may be for man's discussion, and the exercise of his judgment in regard to himself only, but it certainly is not for him to condemn the belief in and practice thereof for others. That religious instinct so strongly inherent in animals of the higher organization requires the application of human reason to develop and systemize that it may be distinguished from emotional superstition. To this work Smith devoted his life, and no matter what departure from the dignity of his labor his small vanities, conceits and extravagancies may have led him, in this respect he was an earnest, hard working, truthful man.

Of the early life and boyhood of the prophet, very little is known. His parents are said to have been quite poor and very ignorant. Joseph's educational advantages consequently were rather limited, as "at the age of fourteen he could barely make out to read; the art of writing he had not as yet acquired." The several Mormon historians agree that he was a very "cunning child, with the faculty of ready invention," his tales being so visionary and marvelous as to cause him to be regarded by the ignorant people among whom he lived as an authority on all questions of superstition, which involved the interpretation of signs and the probable existence and destiny of spirits, ghosts, fairies and hobgoblins. "Indeed," says one of his biographers, "he was so great a liar and told his stories in such an earnest, consistent manner as to frequently deceive even those who knew him best." The same writer also adds: "This faculty he afterwards used successfully in his great scheme of self-aggrandizement." The former statement is probably true. It is quite consistent with Joseph's character as a poet. Persons who possess the power of vision to any great extent when young and before their mental powers are well developed, are apt to be carried away by their imaginations, and to become so impressed by the creatures of their fancies as "to give to airy nothing a local habitation and a name." This was probably Smith's condition when quite young. He was controlled by poetic inspiration. So sensitive was his nature that he received and assimilated every current impression within the confines of the almost sterile mental atmosphere which fed his young intellect. Everything so affected him that in the untaught, undisciplined condition of his mind, any great emotional excitement sometimes endangered his reason. As a boy his passions were so great, his indescribable poetic longings so intense, and so keen his yearnings for social environment and home surroundings in keeping with the beautiful creatures and scenes of his fancy, that he would indulge in periods of gloominess and morbidity that would sometimes last for weeks. Thus we find him wandering through the country with his witch-hazel, repeating self-composed, rhyming words of enchantment in search of veins of water or buried treasure. And so thoroughly did he believe in himself that he would undertake to dig the wells for water or unearth the treasure to verify his pretensions. It is singular to relate, but he was often successful in this pursuit.

Finally the Christian religion in the form of a revivalistic or protracted camp-meeting came to his relief. This he absorbed with all the intensity of his nature. This he absorbed with all the intensity of his nature. The story of Jesus, the singing of the sacred songs and the solemn impressiveness of the proceeding furnished him with such enchanting food for his wild fancy that for days and weeks he neither ate nor slept. So thoroughly imbued was his whole being with this new love that it seemed to occupy his mind and thoughts to the exclusion of all other matters. He lived in a kind of ecstatic dream. His strong, young imagination was fired into double activity and used to give new lustre to the Christian religion; greater embellishment was added to the tale of Christ by his efforts, and more beauty was given to the whole system of orthodoxy than the average divine would think it possible for it to contain. But when the revival came to an end, there was a "great rush" among the ministers of the various denominations as to which should secure the greater number of converts in this harvest of souls. This gave Joseph some idea of the division of the church into sects, which caused him considerable uneasiness. Which sect was the nearest right in its doctrinal teachings was quite difficult to determine. In Smith's broad charity they presented equal attractions, but their several "plans of salvation" were so differently constructed that he could not decide which was the most safe to adopt.

Through the kind offices of one of the itinerant preachers who made periodical visits to Manchester, New York, the home of the Smith family, Joseph obtained a copy of the Bible, and having had some slight instruction in reading, he dived into it with all the avidity of his soul-starved nature. With steady application he read and studied the Bible until he became so familiar with its contents as to readily turn to any passage that another person might quote or suggest. He found a great many things in the Bible beyond his comprehension—a discovery not uncommon to many much better drilled minds than the one possessed by this half savage backwoodsman—so to facilitate his studies, he procured a Bible dictionary, which proved a valuable assistance to him. In those days the spirit of toleration was new, and nothing more strongly excited the emotional natures of one of that class of persons to which Smith belonged than a religious controversy; and especially so if the disagreement involved a fundamental question of one of their peculiar doctrines. The future prophet often engaged in these arguments and soon acquired considerable controversial skill, often forcing many of the "older heads" and even many of the preachers to acknowledge his superiority in this respect. This gave him an overweening confidence in himself. From his continual success as a controversialist, and the frequent experience of being delighted by the psychological discoveries of his adventurous thoughts, the impression that he was under the guidance and guardianship of some divinity gradually grew on him. He did not discover this belief, however, until long afterward. Joseph had a good appreciation of the Bible; to him as to other close students of its teachings it seemed a compendium of all things spiritual and temporal. But its apparent failure to account for the western half of the earth and the primitive inhabitants of America, greatly perplexed him. He could not believe the inspired writers had omitted such an important matter, but was inclined to think that the understanding of the reader was at fault. To satisfy himself on this point, he resumed his studies of the Bible with greater energy than ever. Day and night he read and reread the sacred records; reflecting and pondering on the more obscure and ambiguous passages; putting every possible construction on those clauses which offered any encouragement to a contingency, but all without avail. On several occasions he imagined he had found the hard sought trail, but on consulting his religious contemporaries, whose assistance he solicited in deciding the validity of his supposed discoveries, in every instance he was convinced of being at fault. So determined was Smith in his heroic efforts to accomplish his object, that he figuratively lived in Bible lands. His daily companions were prophets, high priests, and persons especially favored of God. In fancy and dreams he walked the Garden of Eden with Adam and Eve or floated on a shoreless sea in the Ark with Noah; he was a wanderer with Moses in his flight from Egypt, and engaged in the fierce struggles with Joshua in the conquest of Canaan; he was one of the princes of the house of David and worshiped in the temple of Solomon at Jerusalem. The characters and scenes of the Old Testament of the Bible so influenced his mind when young, as to become the foundation of his whole future life. He imitated successively, so far as his limited circumstances and capabilities permitted, each of the great leaders of Bible fame from Moses to Solomon. But the immediate result of the highly wrought condition of his nerves, the hallucination of an over-excited imagination, that condition of mind described of persons as half-inspired half-insane, was the Book of Mormon. This production contains an account of the origin of the American Indians, which are represented as a retrograded tribe of the Hebrew race, who by some means came to America about six hundred years before Christ, bringing with them the same advanced state of civilization as that of the Old World Jews. This condition is supposed to be of forced growth, and existed only by the special appointment of the Almighty—who as the Bible teaches is quite partial to the Jewish people. But, as in quite a number of Old World instances, this transplanted portion of God's elect soon began their customary violation of law. A general revolution broke out among them. The sacred records of the race were destroyed, the temples demolished, the prophets, priests and anointed kings massacred, and anarchy reigned supreme. To punish them for this rebellion the Almighty condemned them to experience a change of color, from white to copper-hued. He also withdrew his divine favor, which caused them to retrograde into a normal state of barbarism. Just before the extermination of the chosen leaders God commanded a prophet, called Mormon, to write an abridgement of the histories, prophecies, and sacred records of the tribe and have it engraved on plates of gold in a language called by Smith, the "Reformed Egyptian." This is said to have been found by Smith buried in the hill Cumorah in western New York; also an instrument by which, through a process of revelation, it could be translated into English. That there were no such plates in existence is a statement scarcely needing the affirmation; but whether or not Smith believed he obtained such plates and had them in his possession, is a question rather difficult to answer. In his lecture on Mahomet Thomas Carlyle says: "It is no more possible for a false man to found a religion than for a false man to build a brick house." That Smith was a firm believer in himself and his divine mission is almost beyond a doubt. An impostor could never have withstood the storm of popular hate and persecution which this new doctrine excited, and to which Smith was subjected. This self-delusion of the plates was the result of a diseased mind aggravated by baffled determination, disappointment and the continued brooding over one subject. Hallucinations of this kind are not uncommon to person of close habits of study, and are brought about by allowing the nerves to become excited to a condition of morbidity. We have several historical instances of the self delusions of persons not dissimilar in character to the Mormon prophet. If the question was asked, did Luther actually see and converse with the devil in the cell at Wartburg, nine cases in ten the modern protestant would not volunteer a reply. But to the question, did Luther think he saw and conversed with the evil one? an intelligent person, believer or skeptic, would give an affirmative response.

In speaking of these Mormon plates, Mrs. Emma Smith Bidamon, the widow of the prophet said: I never saw the plates but I have often handled a package apparently of metal plates covered with a cloth, which my husband forbade my removing. I did not disobey him although

I had ample opportunity to do so, the plates being often left in my care weeks at a time. Mrs. Emma Smith Bidamon was married three years after Joseph's death to Major Lewis Bidamon, with whom she lived in the old Smith mansion house at Nauvoo, Illinois, until her death six [eight] years ago. She was the prophet's only wife, having married him in 1827 and lived with him until his death in 1844. Before her marriage she was a school teacher of South Bainbridge, New York. She was a lady of little more than common education, pretty well read, of good practical sense and a broad view of life generally. Several writers have affirmed that when Smith was killed she felt no particular regret, but refusing to go to Utah with the Mormorns, she apostatized and married a Gentile. This statement is quite untrue. She loved Smith with the greatest intensity. She had married him an irresponsible boy of twenty years; she had taught him the rudiments of a common education; she had been his amanuensis in all his literary work, inspired and self produced, and had recorded his brightest fancies and prettiest thoughts. She knew him as a fairy-land poet, with all the waywardness and vagaries of a poet's disposition. She had strengthened him in these weaknesses and often shielded him from the consequences of them. And, whatever irregularities Joseph Smith was guilty of to the world at large, he was always gentle, kind and true to her. For months after the prophet's murder she lived in a condition of morbid bitterness, watching beside the remains of her loved one, which were walled up in a room adjoining her own in the old Mansion House. Smith left his wife and three small children in poverty. With all the great lust of wealth and power, which his enemies delight in accusing him of possessing, we find him when at the height of Mormon prosperity, one of the poorest of his three hundred thousand followers.

Mrs. Bidamon is remembered by her neighbors at Nauvoo as a lady of strong integrity. When asked if she was a believer in the Mormon doctrine she replied: "I could not be orthodox and believe anything different. The Mormon religion is the same as all other kinds." When questioned as to her belief in the genuineness of the Book of Mormon, she said: "I know no more about it than other folks. I have no better way of forming an opinion concerning it than the rest of mankind. Though there always existed a feeling of perfect confidence between Joseph and me, he was often strange and incomprehensible to me; I have always considered him just and honorable, and if he deceived the world, he did me, too."

That the Book of Mormon was written or dictated by Joseph Smith, is an incontrovertible truth. If there was a particle of foundation for the Spaulding Manuscript-Found the prophet's opposers would have traced it up and used it in the refutation of the Mormon doctrine. But the truth of the matter is that the Mormon persecutors invented the story and failed to substantiate it by creditable evidence. The language, style and diction of the Book of Mormon, which seem to have been borrowed from the Old Testament of the Bible, corresponds well with the other of Smith's writings. His enemies claim that the prophet did not possess the requisite education, imagination or genius to produce such a work, but the following verses prove that he was not entirely deficient in these qualifications.

SONG OF ENDLESS LIFE.

Hark! I hear the deep, mysterious voices
Of the waters in their restless flow;
With their solemn chant my soul rejoices,
What they mean my spirit seems to know.
And a heavy curtain fades before me,
All the minor thoughts of life remove;
While a deathless thought comes sweeping o'er me,
A weird presence speaks in love:

"Never
Shall thy spirit see decay!
Ever
Thou shalt tread an endless way!"

O'er my head the giant trees are bending,
Neath the passing of the rushing blast;
While in ecstasy my soul is bending
All her powers to hear the song go past.
We have lived in countless forms and changes
In the mystic years that were of old,
In dark silence or in vocal ranges,
Darkness, light or heat or cold,

Never
Ceasing though we change our mold,
Ever
Shall the tide of being hold.

So before thee endless paths extending,
Crossed with light and barred with passing shade
Ever changing, yet never ending;
Courage take and be thou not afraid!
Tho the waves of death flow dark above thee;
'Tis the rest that gathers strength again;
And with kindred entities who love thee
Thou shalt rising walk a higher plane.

Never
Shall thou in the grave remain.
Ever
Thou shalt rise to live and reign.

Several days ago the writer of this article had occasion to visit Nauvoo, Illinois, in the capacity of a newspaper reporter, and while there he made a tour of inspection through the Smith Mansion House. The Mansion House is a large frame building, a hundred feet long by forty feet wide, two stories high, and containing sixty large rooms. It is the joint property of Alexander H. and David H. Smith, the two youngest sons of the prophet. The six rooms fronting the street are occupied by Mr. Charles Bidamon, a step-son of Mrs. Emma Smith Bidamon, but, with the exception of numerous insects, the back part of the house is vacant. Mr. Bidamon gave the writer permission to inspect the house from garret to cellar except one room—the haunted chamber—the room where Joseph's remains were hidden so long after his death. This room, Mr. Bidamon said, had not been opened for twenty-five years, and the key was in the possession of David Smith. A haunted chamber, locked and unopened for a quarter of a century, with such a sensational character as the Mormon association gave it, was too much for a modern newspaper man's flesh and blood. So on being left alone to wander at will through the house, the writer made an immediate assault on the door of the prohibited room. The casement and frame-work of the door being rotten, it required only a slight effort to effect an entrance. The room contained several articles of common household furniture of rather old-fashioned design; such as a bedstead, washstand, bureau, writing desk, and also several large paintings—the work of David Smith, who is both an artist and a poet. The writing desk, which was once the property of the prophet, is filled with manuscripts of all kinds, books, letters, documents, etc., written and received by the several members of the Smith family. A thorough search revealed a quite large quantity of the prophet's writing. Some very interesting letters, several rolls of manuscript poetry, and a few chapters of a novel intended to illustrate some doctrinal point in theology. After considerable persuasion Mr. Bidamon consented to allow the writer to copy the letters and poetry for the purpose of editing them. To do this work it was necessary to take the papers to the writer's boarding house, which was in the building used by the Mormons as a printing office and club room of the Danite band but now occupied by a respectable German tinsmith. It was so late in the evening when he reached his hotel, that he decided to defer copying the manuscript until the next day. So, as he supposed, securing the safety of the papers by putting them in his valise and distributing them among its other contents, he then went to bed, little suspecting the disappointment awaiting him the following morning. On examination the next morning he discovered that many of the papers, including the novel, all of the letters and some of the poetry, had disappeared during the night in a very mysterious manner. There was no evidence of the room having been entered or the contents of the valise tampered with, but that they were gone was plainly manifest. Whether the shade of the whilom prophet had looked upon the action of the writer in respect to the papers as a not-to-be-endured sacrilege and had made a brief visit from the beyond-the-ken-of-man to interfere with further proceedings, or the paper had been removed by natural agency, is a matter for the reader's conjecture; the writer has long since given up trying to solve the problem. At all events the writer learned, after a few weeks, that the papers had in some way found their way back to the haunted chamber. The verses herein contained, and ascribed to Joseph Smith, were copied from the manuscript reserved in the foregoing adventure.

At the age of twenty-five years we find Joseph a prophet, priest and king, ordained of God. He was a large, strong, handsome, fearless man, of wonderful personality, and a finely expressive face. So eloquent was he, that many people who attended his meetings for the purpose of ridicule became converted—giving up all others to follow him. His success as a propagandist excited the most bitter envy and opposition of the ministers of other denominations. On one occasion the ministers of several opposing denominations challenged him to a religious controversy. They met according to agreement at Hiram, Ohio, the 25th of March, 1832, and the debate was prosecuted to a virulent extremity. "Joseph," said Sidney Rigdon, who accompanied the prophet on this expedition, "never appeared to better advantage." His fine personality, his mobile features lighted by the fire of genius, reflecting each thought ere it was spoken; his well chosen words and burning eloquence, combined to make a scene of grandest impressiveness. Many of his hearers who came to hoot and jeer were silent and not a few became convinced of his mission and were converted to the Mormon belief. This was a bitter defeat to Smith's opponents, and in revenge they incited a mob to drag him from his bed at night and convince him of the error of his ways by bodily punishment, having foiled of that purpose by argument. The night of the 25th of March, 1832, Smith and Rigdon were dragged from their bed, taken to a secluded place, their flesh pounded to a pulp, tarred and feathered, and aqua-fortis poured into their mouths. Rigdon was rendered temporarily insane by this treatment; but Smith, with flesh torn and bleeding, the tar still sticking to his person, his face and mouth blistered and scarified, preached to the same people the next day, and baptized several newly made converts.

At this period the Mormons, who had become several thousand strong, were banded together and "gathered" at Kirtland, Ohio. Here by their zeal, honesty, industry and temperate habits—qualities so apparent that even their worst enemies do not deny their existence among them—they soon became quite prosperous. Still Joseph was not satisfied. One of his dreams had mapped out a paradise near the geographical center of the United States, where he was to raise his standard and found a principality with himself as the reigning sovereign. Moses like, he took several hundred of his followers and crossed the country to Jackson county, Missouri, which seemed to bear resemblance to the promised land his vision had revealed. A "stake" was set up at this place and a new Zion laid out. At this place, as in Kirtland, the Mormons were prosperous in all industrial pursuits and quite successful in the work of propagandism. But, being far more advanced in civilization than their neighbors, the Missourians, the envy and hatred of the latter were excited and the Saints found themselves surrounded by a far more dangerous class of enemies than they had heretofore known.

The account of the Mormon persecutions in Jackson county, Missouri, is too well known to require repeating here. That the Saints were mobbed and stoned, hunted, ambushed and shot, driven from place to place, their women and children abused and insulted, and their houses and barns burned, are facts of historical record. The crowning outrage was the Missourians denying the Mormons the exercise of the elective franchise. At an election in Galatin, Davis county, the Missourians attempted to prevent the Mormons voting, but the Saints, though numerically the weaker, defeated the old settlers in a fierce fight. There were several killed and many wounded on each side in the engagement. The primary cause of the trouble between the Missourians and Mormons was of both political and moral character. The Mormons believed in the abolition of slavery and the practice of total abstinence in regard to the use of intoxicating drinks—the prophet prohibited the use of spirituous liquors and tobacco by his followers. Such unheard of principles as these so astonished and disgusted the old settlers of Missouri as to arouse their extreme opposition. They looked on the Mormon innovation as a conspiracy to unsettle the social principles and character of their state; and acting from these convictions they brought a charge of treason against the Mormons before the state government. There was no attempt made to investigate this charge. That the Saints were self declared abolitionists was sufficient cause to proceed against them in those days of excitement. The question of slavery, even at that early day, was past all reasonable consideration. The governor of Missouri raised an army of thirteen thousand men and sent it against the Mormons, with orders to expel them from the state, except the leaders, who were to be arrested and held to answer the charge of treason and murder. Joseph and Hyrum Smith and about seventy of the other leading Mormons were secured and confined in a jail at Liberty, Clay county. The remaining fifteen hundred were corraled and driven in a body across the state of Missouri to the nearest point on the Mississippi river, where they crossed into Adams county, Illinois. The majority of the people of Illinois were advocates of abolition and regarded the Saints as political martyrs. So they gave them a warm welcome to the state and offered them the protection of citizenship. A fund was raised by popular subscription to relieve their immediate wants, and a large tract of land in Hancock county, the present site of Nauvoo, was presented them by charitable individuals.

In the meantime the prophet and the seventy leaders who had been detained in Missouri as prisoners fared much worse. They were crowded into the most dismal, dirty, foul place of confinement that human cruelty could possibly plan for an enemy's torture. Here they were kept on a starvation allowance of bread and water for several months. They were then given a trial by court-martial, which resulted in Joseph and Hyrum Smith being condemned to death; the others were sentenced to various degrees of punishment according to their rank and prominence as Mormons. However, the state reviewing authority hesitated about executing the sentence against Joseph and Hyrum, because, as Governor Boggs, the chief executive of the state at that time, said, it would be stretching a point too far. There could be found no evidence of their having committed a crime or of their having intended to commit one; so the brothers were offered their liberty if they would renounce their oracular pretensions and confess themselves impostors. To this somewhat irregular proposal they had but one reply—an indignant refusal. It was at this period that Joseph wrote many of the letters to his wife, which still exist as the property of L. C. Bidamon of Nauvoo, and which the writer has had a short time in his possession. Though they contain little more than detailed accounts of his suffering while in the hands of the barbarous Missourians, still they offer valuable assistance in making a just analysis of the prophet's character. In this time of adversity he displayed the same heroic fortitude as in all other of his life's tribulations. The same patient dignity, gentle forbearance (the letters contain no harsh words against his persecutors) and the total absence of fear, which characterized him at all times. How the prophet and his followers made their final escape from the Missouri prison is a matter of conjecture. By several writers they are said to have forced the guard. Others affirm that the Missouri authorities feared to execute the sentence pending against them, and that the governor would not grant them an unconditional pardon they were simply permitted to escape—the guards pretending to be intoxicated.

The settlement of the Mormons at Nauvoo, Illinois, the building of the beautiful city, and the Solomon-like performance of erecting the great temple, are facts familiar to all readers of American history. Also the establishment of the many orders of Mormon ministry including the Danites is well known. These were halcyon days for Joseph Smith. He now rested from his labors as a propagandist and entered in upon his duties as a prophet, priest and king; and indeed he was such—being invested with absolute power over nearly two hundred thousand people. At Nauvoo, by a special charter from the state, the judicial, legislative and executive control of the city was in his hands. But this was not to last long. Political complications and sectarian animosities were weaving a web to envelop this proud prince and drag him with the whole fabric of his government to the earth.

The Saints as a community had no political prejudices, and only exercised the elective franchise for their own private advantage. To which ever party would show them the most favor would be given their vote, and so nearly equal in numbers where the whigs and democrats in Illinois at that time that the Mormon vote was quite an important consideration. This caused a great deal of dissatisfaction to the leaders of both parties. To secure and hold the political offices at the option of what they considered a religious charlatan was too great a compromise to the self-respect of even a politician. So a secret society was organized regardless of party distinction called the Anti-Mormon Association, its object being to make the Mormons so unpopular by every possible means as to bring about their extermination or cause them to be driven from the state. This organization extended all over the state, even to places where the principles of Mormonism were unknown. The villainous work was well planned and well executed. Spies were sent to expose any discrepancy that might exist in the municipal government of Nauvoo; mammoth stories without a particle of foundation were circulated of Mormon enormities; preachers of opposing denominations were excited by newspaper incendiarism to denounce the Smiths from the pulpit. Every crime, excess or outrage committed within a radius of a hundred miles of Hancock county, was laid at the door of these comparatively few inoffensive Saints "gathered" at Nauvoo. These reports had the effect of attracting swarms of disreputable characters from all parts of the Union. The impression that the Mormons were perfectly lawless was shared by all who did not know them; and from their being so well organized and in such strong force, Nauvoo was looked upon by the criminal element of the country as a good place of refuge. In this latter respect they were quite correct. All that was necessary to insure immunity from the consequence of past crimes and secure present protection was to become a Mormon and profess to believe in the divine mission of Joseph Smith. These same outlaws and criminals were the embryo of the Utah polygamists of to-day.

The Anti Mormons had no difficulty through agitators in creating internal dissensions among the Mormons. The lawless element, enjoying the protection of the prophet (who had become so accustomed to calumnious reports against his followers that he was wholly deceived in the character of his late converts) yet they did not meet with the degree of reciprocity they expected, and were easily bribed into participation of any plot for the overthrow of their leaders. It was through these means that the final eruption was brought about.

One of the malcontents preferred a charge of petty grievance against Smith (who was the mayor of Nauvoo) and the Common Council. A warrant was issued at Carthage, the county seat of Hancock county, for the arrest of that body and placed in the hands of the sheriff. On being confronted with the warrant, Smith resisted the process, declaring it to be illegal; and indeed it was. The special charter of Nauvoo, which had been granted as a political favor to Smith, secured immunity to the Mormons from prosecution by any legal source except through their own municipality and the United States courts. The mayor and council accordingly paid no attention to the summons to appear at Carthage and answer to the charge against them. Whereupon the county authorities demanded the assistance of the state militia to enforce the warrant; also requested the governor of Illinois to make a personal investigation of the affair. The governor responded by placing himself at the head of the state troops and proceeded to Nauvoo. In his report of the investigation of the many charges against the Mormons, Governor Ford says:

"Justice requires me to say that, upon such investigation as I could then make, the charge of promiscuous stealing appeared to be greatly exaggerated, but the great cause of the popular fury was that the Mormons at several preceding elections had cast their vote as a unit. Thereby making it apparent that no one could aspire to the honors or offices of the county without the approbation and votes of the Mormons." On arriving at Nauvoo, the governor proceeded to serve the warrant on the mayor and council, commanding them to surrender themselves at Carthage. This they agreed to do the following day. But Smith was well aware that the whole performance was a plot to get him away from Nauvoo, and in the hands of his enemies, so he resolved to secure his personal safety by flight. Accordingly, he, with his brother, Hyrum and several others, crossed the Mississippi river and began their flight westward. Before going far they were overtaken by a messenger with a letter of protest signed by Mrs. Emma Smith and several of the Mormon leaders addressed to Joseph. In this they denounced the prophet as a cowardly shepherd, accusing him of deserting his flock in the hour of danger. Joseph was greatly moved on reading the note, and declared, if that was all his friends cared for his life, he had nothing more to live for. He immediately returned and gave himself up to the authorities at Carthage. A few hours later he was taken by a mob from the jail where he was confined and shot dead.

A summary of the character of Joseph Smith deduced from the recollections and reminiscences of many of his friends and acquaintances, who still live at Nauvoo, Illinois, offers the following conclusion:

He was a religious monomaniac. The whole of his life was the realization of a poetic vision, and he was a poet of the same dream-material. So sensitive was his nature that he was influenced by all transient impressions and the influence had such an all-absorbing effect on him as to subordinate his whole disposition until relieved by some new sensation. His susceptibilities were so strong as to deprive him of that decision which distinguishes individual character. In speaking of this weakness his wife said except in regard to his mania, in which he was always consistent, his nature seemed to be made up of contradictions. He was an extremist in every sense of the word. Love and hatred was the sum of his regard for mankind. There was no compromise to his affections—no such thing as a feeling of indifference. He is accused by some historians of being grossly lecherous and dissolute. There is no existing proof that he was so; nothing but the affirmation of the writers. At all events the author of the following verses must have had a nobler consideration for the gentler sex than that which is supposed to inspire a mean sensualist:

"REGRET

"Written over the grave of a friend."

Oh! eyes so brown and bright,
Would that had never shone
Your trembling, tender light
Deep in mine own.
Oh! kind and pleasant hand,
Would I had never known,
Thy magic touch, so bland,
Now gone.

Ah! fair translucent cheek,
Would I had never seen
Thy rosy language speak
The soul within.
Oh! white and radiant brow,
Soft curls enfold;
Darkness seems darker—
More cold.

Ah! full smooth, velvet lip
Why did I press
Thy speaking curves to sip
Their loveliness?
Oh! subtle spirit why
Did we thus blend

Our kindred souls in joy,
So soon to end?

Oh! would—not so, not so.
Thankful we met,
Onward in peace I go;
We may meet yet,
Where spirits pure without Hindrance or let,
Love—free from care, toil
Or regret.

He is said to have been so vain, conceited and selfish, that he prostituted everything in his power for his own personal gratification. That nothing in either nature or art had beauty for him unless it could be made in some way to reflect lustre on himself. "The Crystal Lake" contradicts this statement.

THE CRYSTAL LAKE.

Eye of the woodland; by thy fringed lid,
How could I linger thoughtless of the time
Watching thy clear depths, tranquil in the light
Of the midsummer.

Far from my early home
I seem no stranger on thy sunlit sands,
That gleam around my feet, a fair contrast
To the fresh green upon thy sloping banks;
And the pure hue of thy melodious waves,
Waked by the winds along thy peaceful marge,
A moment blowing, then is still again.

Around the goodly tree in company,
Meeting in silent converse sagely stand;
While in their aisles the glades lie slumbering.
The plume crane starts from thy reedy brink,
Unfurls his uncouth wings and floats away,
Loosely and shuffling to the blasted top
Of yon tall maple, where he idly stands
Silent and motionless; as if he were
The spirit of the place presiding there.

Above thy children thou dost brood. I see
In thy transparent depths the spreading moss,
And feathery water plants and grasses fine,
Expand their feathery fronds. The lily leaves
Float on thy surface, anchored to their roots
By the long rope-like stem. While there are beds
Of fresh, white gravel, where the fishes sport
And turn their scaly sides of burning hues
Toward the sun to catch his sheeny gold,
All their prismatic colors to send.

Along thy shore the pale blue lilies stand.
Waving their blades of freshest emerald;
While blushing flos beneath the hazel boughs,
Peep out upon the sylvan scene around;
The tanager around thy bosom flies,
Shining in scarlet splendor as a flame.

Thou art most fair at midnight, when the moon
Floats high in heaven and the sky above
Is duplicated by a sky beneath.
The trees and rocks that overhang thy bank
View their reflection in thy shining face.
When the far whippoorwill sings faint and low,
And fire-flies twinkle all among the boughs,
A fair new world seems opened to the height;
The heart grows tender, and a mellow voice
Seems whispering of peace from shore to shore.
The spirit free goes to the blue heights
Of the still air and floats among the clouds
And to the silence bends a listening ear.

Smith was a person of very strong passions. His perceptive faculties were very acute and seemed to have been developed at the expense of his reflection. His intellect was an unusually fine one, but disproportionately weak. He had a poet's consideration for all mankind generally, but perhaps tempered by reciprocity in respect to individuals. The murder of Joseph Smith was not merely the act of an excited mob, but the crime of a nation. Public intelligence demanded his death because of being startled by a new system of belief, which made comparatively only a ripple on the sea of human thought. But so eager is the mind of man to preserve a conservative quietness on the infinite soul depth of the universe, that only the slightest disturbance—the introduction of a new idea—serves to arouse the most barbarous passions of the emotions. In the life and death of Joseph Smith we have seen that our boast of political liberty and religious toleration, by which we claim superiority over all other nations of the world, was nothing more than idle gasconade. Though forty years have elapsed since this great national crime, and free America has made wonderful progress in her experiments with liberty, yet it will be many more years before religious toleration and political integrity will exist in anything more than name. And when that millennium shall have arrived, we may be in such an advanced state of civilization that human benevolence will prefer to study the character of the individual, and give him that position in the world's industry that his peculiar aptitude or degree of usefulness fits him to fill, rather than kill him because he is born hard to understand. We all have an individual life to live and we can not live our neighbor's life. We all have missions on earth, whether of divine source or any other. The persecution and death of Joseph Smith may have been of great moral benefit to the world; the persecution and death of another and greater poet some eighteen hundred years ago was; without it, perhaps that epitome of divine charity, "Father forgive them, they know not what they do," might never have been expressed.—Burlington, Iowa, Post.

Conference Minutes.

LITTLE SIOUX.

This district met pursuant to adjournment at the Saints' Chapel in Magnolia, Iowa, at eleven o'clock, Saturday, September 3d, with president of district, J. C. Crabb, in charge, Phineas Cadwell associate, and William C. Cadwell and J. W. Wight secretaries. Branch reports.—Unionburg was organized by Charles Derry, June 18th, 1887, with a membership of 32, including 6 elders; T. Thomas president, P. C. Kemmish clerk. Sioux City 12, including 1 elder, 1 priest, 1 teacher, 4 removed by letter, 1 received by letter, 1 baptized. Little Sioux 207, including one high priest, 3 seventies, 3 elders, 1 priest, 3 teachers, 2 deacons, 2 died. Union Center 95, including 1 seventy, 12 elders, 1 priest, 1 baptized. Logan 57, including 1 high priest, 3 elders, 1 priest, 2 teachers, 1 deacon, 1 received by certificate of baptism, 1 received by letter, 1 marriage. Magnolia 167, including 1 high priest, 1 seventy, 10 elders, 8 priests, 2 teachers, 3 deacons, 1 died. Willow Valley 48, including 1 elder, 2 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon, 1 baptized, 2 received by letter. Spring Creek 87, including 7 elders, 2 priests, 2 teachers, 1 deacon, 24 baptized, 3 received by certificate of baptism, 5 received by letter, 1 received by vote, 5 removed by letter. Magnolia Sunday School reported:—Total attendance 269, average 20, meetings 13, money collected $1083, paid out 60 cents, on hand $10.23. Average collected each Sunday 27 cents, average given by each pupil 17 cents. 202 verses have been learned, and 30 copies of the Hope are taken. A committee has been appointed to solicit means for obtaining a library. J. F. Mintun superintendent, Alice Asquith secretary. On motion the president appointed Elders J. W. Wight, D. Maule, and R. Farmer a committee to try the case of J. S. Knauss. The Bishop's Agent's report was presented and referred to a committee consisting of brethren J. L. Gunsolly, Wm. Stuart, and Colby Downs. Officers, reports:—High priests, C. Derry by letter, baptized 3), J. C. Crabb, and P. Cadwell, J. F. McDowell (by letter) and J. F. Mintun, of the seventy; Elders, Martin P. Berg (by letter, baptized 1), N. O. Smith (by letter), J. W. Wight (baptized 11), D. Chambers (baptized 23), R. Farmer, John H. Hunt, E. R. Lanphere, Andrew Johnson, Colby Downs, J. M. Putney, Donald Maule, Isaac Shupe, Wm. Chambers, S. Mahoney, and Wm. C. Cadwell (baptized 1). Priests, J. L. Gunsolly, James Emerson, Wm. T. Fallon, John Harper, Alma Ellison, and J. C. Johnson. Teacher R. Chatburn, and deacon Chas. Rose reported. The committee in charge of the Missouri Valley Mission was discharged and the mission placed in charge of the president of the district. Bro. C. Derry was sustained as missionary in this district under his general conference appointment. Bro. J. W. Wight was sustained as missionary in northern part of this district. Bro. D. Chambers, having made honorable mention in his report of the labors of our young sisters, Nancy Seddon and Nettie Pelton in visiting from house to house and distributing tracts, etc., it was on motion resolved that such labors receive our hearty commendation, and that we recommend others to the performance of like labors. The court of elders appointed to try the case of Bro. J. S. Knauss reported in favor of sustaining the charges. On motion the report was received, the court of elders discharged, and further action in the matter was deferred till next conference. The committee appointed to audit the books and report of the Bishop's Agent reported the same correct with one or two exceptions, and the corrections being made the report was on their recommendation approved. Bro. J. W. Wight was authorized to organize a branch at or near Kingsley if deemed wisdom so to do. The president of the district was authorized to appoint such two-days meetings, or series of meetings, as he may think the need of the work requires. Preaching was had Saturday evening by J. W. Wight, and Sunday morning by David Chambers. The ordinances of the Lord's supper was administered Sunday afternoon by Donald Maule and Wm. C. Cadwell, after which a prayer and testimony meeting was held, Bro. J. M. Putney in charge. Adjourned to meet at Persia, Saturday, December 3d, 1887, 11 o'clock a. m. A cordial invitation was extended to all the Saints by Bro. D. Chambers to be present at the next conference.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS.

This conference met with the Mission branch October 1st and 2d, Bro. F. M. Cooper president, and W. Vickery secretary. Branches reported. Plano 203, including 1 high priest, 8 elders, 6 priests, 3 teachers, 2 deacons; 1 removed, 1 dead, 1 marriage. Braidwood 31, including 1 elder, 2 priests, 1 teacher; 5 baptized in the branch, 9 received by vote. Mission, no change. Streator, no change. Courtland 19, including 2 elders; 2 baptized. Reorganized First Chicago 19, including 2 elders, 1 deacon; 1 baptized, 1 received by vote. Leland, reported by Bro. Odin Jacobs, members moved away all but two or three. Elders reported.—Thomas Hougas, Odin Jacobs, W. Vickery, F. M. Cooper. The latter had visited Streator, Piper City, DeKalb and Mayfield in Illinois; and East Dealvan, Lyons, also the home of the late Bro. Samuel Powers, in Wisconsin. Returned to Braidwood, Wilmington, Sandwich, Plano, and Newark, Illinois; preached 1 funeral sermon, and solemnized 1 marriage. Teachers Hans Hayer, priest Joseph Kahler. Bishop's Agent T. Hougas, reported having on hand last report $38 80; received since $48.50; paid out $30 00, balance on hand $57.30. On motion Bro. F. M. Cooper was sustained president of the district, and W. Vickery clerk. Two-days' meeting was appointed at Plano for October 15th and 16th. Brn. Hougas, Kier, and Cooper were by conference requested to attend said two-days' meeting. On motion the spiritual authorities were sustained in righteousness; auditing committee reported having found Bishop's Agent's book showing a small difference in favor of the church. Saturday evening preaching by W. Vickery, Sunday morning at 10:30 by Bro. F. M. Cooper. At 2:30 p. m. fellowship and sacrament meeting in charge of Brn. W. Vickery and Thomas Hougas. At 7:30 Bro. Thomas Hougas preached; all passed off peacefully, and all seemed to enjoy the conference and the fellowship of the Saints. Adjourned to meet at Plano, Kendall Co., Illinois, Saturday and Sunday preceeding the full moon in February 1888, the 25th and 26th.

Foreign Money Orders.

Bear in mind the fact that the post office at Lamoni is now a Foreign Money Order Office. Therefore, those in foreign countries sending moneys to this office should draw them on Lamoni, Iowa, U. S. A.

Miscellaneous.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

String Prairie and Nauvoo district conference will convene at the Saints' Chapel, corner of 13th and Bank streets, Keokuk, Iowa, December 3d, at half-past ten o'clock. A full representation is requested, as an election of district officers for the ensuing term will take place at this conference. JAMES MCKIERNAN, Dist. Pres.

Conference will convene in the Kewanee district, December 10th, at Kewanee, Illinois, at ten o'clock. All come, as there may be business before the conference that all are interested in. J. W. TERRY, Dist. Pres.

MARRIED.

BARNES—ANDREWS.—At the residence of the bride's mother, Sr. T. J. Andrews, 436 Brannan street, San Francisco, California, November 2d, 1887, by Elder Heman C. Smith, Mr. William Barnes and sister Mary F. Andrews. This was an enjoyable occasion: about fifty guests were present, and many costly, elegant and useful presents were made the couple. May peace attend the fortunes thus united.

DIED.

PURCELL.—Andie J. Purcell, born May 19th, 1879, at Magnolia, Harrison county, Iowa, died September 13th, 1887. He was the youngest son of Bro. Samuel and Sr. Susan Purcell of Willow Valley branch, Magnolia township, Harrison county. Funeral sermon by C. Derry, October 23d, 1887.

BOWEN.—Bro. Thomas Bowen, of Vale's Mills, Ohio, died November 5th, 1887; aged 65 years, 8 months and 5 days; was born in Lawrence county, Ohio, February 10th, 1822; was baptized at Vale's Mills, by G. T. Griffiths, March 17th, 1886. His sufferings were great, but he bore them with patience. Friends spoke to him at three different times in regard to the future, and the answer each time was that he was ready to go. He departed this life in peace, and died very easy, leaving his aged companion in life with four sons and daughters, all of them married. Funeral sermon preached in the Saints' Church at Vale's Mills, to a crowded congregation, from Acts 23:6, by Elder Thomas Matthews, assisted by Elder S. J. Jeffers.

HOY.—In Salt Lake City, Utah, November 4th, 1887, John Hoy, who was born December 27th, 1823, in Sprouston, Norfolk, England; was baptized in the Reorganized Church in 1880. Funeral services conducted by the authorities of the Twenty-first Ward, Salt Lake City, on the 11th.

STEELE.—At Plainsburg, Merced county, California, October 7th, 1887, of an abscess in the bowels, George, son of brother and sister I. C. and Martha Steele, of Merced Falls, California, aged 19 years, 6 months and 8 days. George was a bright, amiable young man, and much esteemed by his friends and associates. He was not a member of the church but was blessed when a child, in the Davisville branch, under the hands of Elders James Parks and Hervey Green, and has grown up in the faith; but owing to the isolated situation of the family for several years past, had failed to become identified with the church by baptism. Some months ago he received an internal injury, terminating in an abscess in the bowels. By the advice of his physician he underwent a surgical operation for its removal (without the knowledge of his parents) and died in ten minutes afterward. "Strangers closed his eyes." A fond mother, father, a sister and three brothers mourn him. May God comfort them. Funeral sermon conducted by Rev. Mr. Bond, at the M. E. Church, Plainsburg.

FOR SALE.

A NEAT three roomed house, with a lot 144 feet front by 132 back. A good well and out-buildings. Located in adjoining block to the Saints' Church in Lamoni. Property in good repair. Call on or address

WM. CRICK, Lamoni, Iowa.

Twelve Sermons for 25 cents.

In January, 1888,

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

will be enlarged to an eight column paper, devoted to general and local news, and will begin the publication of monthly supplements, containing full reports of Sermons selected from those delivered at Lamoni and at the

GENERAL CONFERENCES, which will be reported especially for us. Gazette, without supplement, per year....$1 25
Gazette, with supplement, per year.....$1 50

Send for sample copy.

LAMBERT & HANSEN,

nov26if

Lamoni, Iowa.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

No. 2.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.

WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

(A SUPERB PRESENT.)

INVALUABLE TO

Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians, Editors, Bankers, Teachers, Merchants, Students, and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

- No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, $10.00
- " 2, " " " 2 tiers " " 12.00
- " 3, " Floor, " 2 " " " 12.00
- " 4, " " " 3 " " " 15.00
- " 5, " " " 4 " " " 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

WANTED

Several copies of No. 1, vol. 1, of "Herald."
Address Geo. Schweich, Richmond, Missouri, stating price. 19nov1m

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni
MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14feb1y

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, recipes, etc., by mail for $5c in stamps.
W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

"A BOOK FOR THE PEOPLE."

CAPTIVATING! USEFUL! Eloquent Discussions, and Diplomatic Papers on the Great Public Questions of the Past and Present, by JAMES G. BLAINE.

Embracing his masterly arguments on the vital issues in the Anti-Slavery Struggle, the All Important Labor Question, Prohibition, Irish Home-Rule, etc., etc. A FORTUNE FOR BOOK CANVASSERS! APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORY COMING IN WITH A RUSH!
THE HENRY BILL PUBLISHING CO., NORWICH, CT.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

- NEW YORK,
- BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
- CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
- NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
- LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
- PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA, VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., E. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

PUBLICATIONS ISSUED AND FOR SALE

—) BY THE (—
Board of Publication of the Reorganized Church,
at their Publishing House in
LAMONI, DECATUR CO., IOWA,
And sent Free of Postage at prices named.

Holy Scriptures.

- Inspired Translation by Joseph Smith the Prophet.
- Sheep or Library binding.....1 50
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....2 00
- Full Morocco, gilt edges.....2 50
- New Testament, inspired edition.....75

Book of Mormon.

- Roan, sprinkled edges.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50
- Full Morocco, gilt edges.....1 75

Doctrine and Covenants.

- Sprinkled Sheep, or Library.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco.....1 50

The Saints' Harp—Hymn Book.

- Imitation Morocco, marbled edges.....1 25
- Imitation Morocco, gilt edges.....1 50

Life of Joseph the Prophet, History of the Reorganized Church, and Autobiography of Joseph Smith.

In Cloth, full gilt finished, very handsome.....2 25
This book contains 827 pages of large, clear reading matter; also, three very fine Steel Engravings, and a fac simile of the Autograph of Joseph the Prophet and Emma, and of Joseph Smith; also, Steel Engraving of Hyrum Smith. A complete history of the Church up to 1830.

Joseph Smith the Prophet, and His Progenitors.

- Muslin Boards, 312 pages, by Lucy Smith.....75
- Leather Binding.....1 00

Hesperis.

- Poems by David H. Smith, 202 pages, fancy cloth, gilt edges.....1 50

Rules of Order and Debate.

- For all Deliberative Assemblies of the Church; also, a Chapter on Branch Rules, and one on Reports of Branches and Districts; 128 pages, limp cloth.....40

Joseph the Seer.

His Prophetic Mission Vindicated, and the Divine Origin of the Book of Mormon Defended and Maintained. Paper covers 200 pages.....35
This is a reply by Elder W. W. Blair to Elder William Sheldon of the Second Advent Society, and is an important work to be in the hands of the ministry of the Church, especially; and it is a most excellent one to be circulated both in the Church and among those without, abounding in proofs never before presented in defense of Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon.

Voice of Warning.

- And Instruction to all People, on the Doctrine and History of the Latter Day work; 128 pages
- In Paper Covers, twelve for $1.....each 10
- Limp Cloth Covers, each.....25

Prophetic Truth.

Confirmed in the appearing of the Book of Mormon an Israelitish Record of a Fallen People; paper covers; five for $1.....each 25
Being the Subject of an Evening's Conversation Respecting its Origin. Its Divinity Proved by the Scriptures and Collateral Evidence. Prefaced with a Brief Sketch of the Life of the Prophet, showing the way and manner of his becoming possessed of the Record.

Branch Records.

- Leather backs and corners, muslin sides; printed headings, and ruled for Record of Names, Blessing of Children, and for Marriages.....2 00

District Records.

- Printed and bound similar to Branch Records.....3 00

Licences, Notices, &c.

- Elders, Priests, Teachers, and Deacons Licenses, each per dozen.....12
- Blank Preaching Notices, per hundred, 40c. and.....50
- Baptism and Confirmation Certificate books, with blank stub, 35 for.....25

Certificates and Reports.

- Branch Statistical Reports, per dozen.....40
- Annual Statistical Reports, two for.....10
- Certificate of Baptism and Membership, per dozen.....12
- Certificate of Removal, per dozen.....25
- Marriage Certificates, per dozen.....25

"Manuscript Found."

We have for sale at this office the notorious "Manuscript Found," written by Rev. Solomon Spaulding, about which so much has been said in connection with the theory that it furnished Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon the chief ground work and material from which to write the Book of Mormon. Has 144 pages 8 mo.; single copies, in cloth, 25 cents; 10 copies or more to one address, 20 cents each; in paper, single copies 15 cents; 20 copies or more, to one address, 13 cents each.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"We believe that one man should have one wife, and one woman but one husband: except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 760.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 10, 1887.

No. 50.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH . . . . . EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR . . . . . ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Dec. 10, 1887.

WHAT WAS SUPPRESSED?

It sometimes occurs in the prosecution of certain projects, upon given lines, that those engaged in such work are under necessity to do things which may be unpleasant, or otherwise, because principles of sound policy, or a love for truth, or fair play demand that they be done. It is for this reason that we publish, from HERALD No. 1, Vol. 1, pages 25 and 27 of the original issue, published in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1860, and pages 22 and 23 of the reissue of 1864, published at Plano, Illinois.

[For the Herald.]

OPPOSITION TO POLYGAMY BY THE PROPHET JOSEPH.

Brother Sheen.—I feel desirous to communicate through your periodical, a few suggestions made manifest to me by the Spirit of God, in relation to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. About the first of June, 1844, (situated as I was at that time, being the Presiding Elder of the Stake at Nauvoo, and by appointment the Presiding Officer of the High Council), I had a very good opportunity to know the affairs of the Church; and my convictions at that time were, that the Church in a great measure had departed from the pure principles and doctrines of Jesus Christ. I felt much troubled in mind about the condition of the Church. I prayed earnestly to my Heavenly Father to show me something in regard to it, when I was wrapt in vision, and it was shown me by the Spirit, that the top or branches had overcome the root, in sin and wickedness, and the only way to cleanse and purify it was, to disorganize it, and, in due time, the Lord would reorganize it again. There were many other things suggested to my mind, but the lapse of time has erased them from my memory. A few days after this occurrence, I met with Brother Joseph. He said that he wanted to converse with me on the affairs of the Church, and we retired to ourselves. I will give his words verbatim, for they are indelibly stamped upon my mind. He said he had desired for a long time to have a talk with me on the subject of polygamy. He said it would eventually be the overthrow of the Church, and we should soon be obliged to leave the United States, unless it was speedily put down. He was satisfied it was a cursed doctrine, and that there must be every exertion made to put it down. He said that he would go before the congregation and proclaim against it, and I must go into the High Council, and he would prefer charges against those in transgression, and I must sever them from the Church, unless they made ample satisfaction. There was much more said, but this was the substance. The mob commenced to gather around Carthage in a few days after, therefore there was nothing done concerning it. After the Prophet's death, I made mention of this conversation, hoping and believing that it would have a good effect, but, to my great disappointment, it was soon rumored about that Brother Marks was about to apostatize, and that all that he said about the conversation with the Prophet was a tissue of lies. From that time I was satisfied that the Church would be disorganized, and the death of the Prophet and Patriarch tended to confirm me in that opinion. From that time I was looking for a re-organization of the Church and Kingdom of God. I feel thankful that I have lived to again behold the day, when the basis of the Church is the revelations of Jesus Christ, which is the only true foundation to build upon. I feel to invite all my brethren to become identified with us, for the Lord is truly in our midst.

WILLIAM MARKS.

Shabbona, De Kalb Co., Ill., Oct. 23rd, 1859.

From the Saturday Evening Post Oct. 9th, 1852.

THE MORMONS AGAIN.

A Cincinnati correspondent, who gives the Mormons a regular going-over in his letter, for their doctrine and practice of polygamy, and whom we judge to be something of a Mormon himself, says, very much to the purpose:—

They announce that polygamy is a doctrine "sent forth as a Standard of Universal Restoration for the Tribes of Israel, and for all nations." "They seek to excuse themselves" in their abominations, because of the things which were written concerning some of the ancients. A specimen of this kind of sophistry is presented by Mr. Pratt in his communication, and yet this great Apostle professes to be a Mormon, and I have no doubt that many of your readers imagine that Brigham Young and all these Salt Lake apostles believe in the Book of Mormon and original Mormonism, whereas they have "departed from the faith," and "have turned the grace of God into lasciviousness." The Book of Mormon informs us of just such apostates as they are, who lived on this land in ancient times. It says; "Thus saith the Lord, this people begin to wax in iniquity: they understand not the Scriptures: for they seek to excuse themselves in committing whoredoms, because of the things which were written concerning David, and Solomon his son. Behold, David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord. * * * * There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife: and concubines he shall have none: For I, the Lord God, delighteth in the chastity of women. * * * * I will not suffer, saith the Lord of hosts, that the cries of the fair daughters of this people, which I have led out of the land of Jerusalem, shall come up unto me against the men of my people, saith the Lord of hosts: for they shall not lead away captive the daughters of my people, because of their tenderness, save I shall visit them with a sore curse, even unto destruction; for they shall not commit whoredoms, like unto them of old, saith the Lord of hosts." Mr. Pratt accuses "Christendom" of having "petty prejudices, local superstitions, and narrow views" on this subject, but these quotations, and more that might be made, show that the Book of Mormon is more opposed to the Salt Lake "Standard of Universal Restoration" than Christendom is," for the Book of Mormon condemns ancient as well as modern polygamy. The Salt Lake apostles also excuse themselves by saying that Joseph Smith taught the spiritual wife doctrine, but this excuse is as weak as their excuse concerning the ancient kings and patriarchs. Joseph Smith repented of his connection with this doctrine, and said that it was of the devil. He caused the revelations on that subject to be burned, and when he voluntarily came to Nauvoo and resigned himself into the arms of his enemies, he said that he was going to Carthage to die. At that time he also said that, if it had not been for that accursed spiritual wife doctrine, he would not have come to that. By his conduct at that time he proved the sincerity of his repentance, and of his profession as a prophet. If Abraham and Jacob, by repentance, can obtain salvation and exaltation, so can Joseph Smith.

Respectfully,

ISAAC SHEEN.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20th, 1852.

P. S.—Brigham Young publicly declared his hostility to the United States Government in the temple in Nauvoo, and on various occasions he has done so. They are waiting for a favorable opportunity to manifest their hostility:

I. S.

It therefore seems that the Salt Lake Mormons, if Mr. Sheen be correct, and he quotes the words of the "Book of Mormon," are acting not only in opposition to common decency and morality, but to the explicit commands of their "own holy Book," and to the dying testimony of Joseph Smith, their founder. We shall be pleased to hear from any of our Mormon readers, how the doctrine of their Bible upon this subject, and the present Salt Lake practices, can be reconciled. If there are a majority of honest, pure-minded men and women among the people of Deseret—and we think it very likely that such is the case—we advise them to hold a grand council of the Church, depose Brigham Young, resolve that all this spiritual wife and polygamy business is a devise of Satan to ruin the “saints,” and a departure from their primitive doctrine and the original order of their original institutions—and thus turn over a new leaf, and preserve themselves from the destruction which is hovering over their community.

The HERALD was first published at Cincinnati, Ohio, Elder Isaac Sheen being its Editor. There were but few subscribers, and of the first number issued there were only about three hundred copies. In 1863 the HERALD was removed to Plano, Illinois, Elder Isaac Sheen coming west with it, he being still in charge. In 1864 Elder Sheen had a number of the earlier issues, including number one, reprinted; some six hundred or a thousand copies of this number being issued to new subscribers as long as the issue lasted. It has been stated that the Reorganization had “suppressed” this first number, but this is not true as must be seen from the fact that it was reprinted in 1864; and we now publish those facts of the issue for which it is said it was suppressed.

In the two issues, the pages differ, caused by difference of size of type and the measure in which the reprint was set. What was on pages 25 and 27 of the original issue is on pages 22 and 23 of the reprint.

The article “The Mormons Again,” is from the Saturday Evening Post for October 9th, 1852, and was written by Isaac Sheen, not at that time a member of the Reorganization. That part of the article of which advantage is sought to be taken is found in these few lines:

“Joseph Smith repented of his connection with this doctrine, and said that it was of the devil. He caused the revelation on that subject to be burned, and when he voluntarily came to Nauvoo and resigned himself into the arms of his enemies, he said that he was going to Carthage to die. At that time he also said, that if it had not been for that accursed spiritual wife doctrine, he would not have come to that.”

We do not repeat what Elder Sheen said about the repentance of Joseph Smith, Abraham and Jacob, for it is simply the statement of a truth as old as Ezekiel's time, if not older. Elder Sheen does not state what Joseph Smith's connection with the doctrine was, nor did he know; nor was he personally acquainted with Joseph Smith, having united with the church in the early part of the year 1844, at Philadelphia. But with the statement he does make, he also connects two things which those who seek comfort from the article would do well to remember; he “repented” and said that the doctrine “was of the devil.” If the one is of any value, so are the others. It is a well known axiom in law that no one position of a document shall be so construed as to do violence to any other part. He who quotes the statement of Elder Sheen that “Joseph repented of his connection” with the doctrine of “spiritual wifery,” is in justice bound by the other part of the statement and give Joseph

Smith the credit for saying that the same doctrine “was of the devil.”

But the document must also be taken in the sense in which the writer himself construed it, and no forced construction must be put upon it. Before the statement of Isaac Sheen made in 1852, to a Cincinnati paper can be used against any position assumed by the Reorganized Church it must be shown that he was cotemporary with Joseph Smith, acquainted with him, and in position to know whereof he makes statement. Only the man who is predisposed to believe evil of Joseph Smith will construe the words of a writer like Elder Sheen written long after the death of Joseph Smith, as a confession of the latter to alleged guilt in any way. No one ever commissioned Elder Sheen to confess for Joseph Smith.

The statement by Elder Marks is still more vague, if possible. What is it that Elder Marks states that can, by any fair construction, be made to inculpate Joseph Smith, as is done by some more willing to believe evil than good. Elder Marks simply relates the substance of a conversation had with Joseph Smith some few days before the death of the latter, in which Joseph told him that polygamy would “overthrow the church if it was not put down. That he, Joseph, was “satisfied that it was a cursed doctrine;” and that “every exertion must be used to put it down.”

There is in this not a hint, direct or remote, that he himself was involved in the doctrine, good or bad, but only that it was “cursed” and “must be put down.”

To this Joseph adds, evidently stating what he considered the most direct and surest means to put it down, that Elder Marks then President of the Stake of Nauvoo and of the High Council, must take his place in the Council for the purpose of hearing charges against those who were practicing this evil, “cursed” doctrine, which charges he, Joseph, would make against these men, so far as known to him; and that he, Joseph, would go before the congregation of the people and “proclaim against it.” This is all there is of this terrible statement, used by backsliding Saints to blacken the character of the first president of the church; and which some of them are now industriously accusing the Reorganization with having suppressed. It is incredible that Joseph Smith could have been so great a fool as to go before a congregation, promiscuously and publicly assembled, and there proclaim against a doctrine, or practice, declaring it to be evil and cursed, he being at the same time guilty of such practice, and knowing that some, (few or many), of that same congregation knew of his guilty connection with such tenet or practice; when he had already pledged himself to prefer charges against those guilty before the highest tribunal known to the church.

We herewith give them the two statements just as they were published right at the rise of the Reorganization, as they were reprinted in 1864, and as we now print them; but when they essay to use them we want them to be honest enough to print the caption as it is in the first HERALD in 1860, “Opposition to Polygamy by the Prophet Joseph.” We also want them to print the whole article, whenever they use any part of it. To do otherwise is neither fair, nor honest.

The Reorganization has no desire to suppress the truth. But there is not an elder in it from the presiding elder clear down to the humblest itinerant in the remotest field, but what will refuse to be silenced by garbled and misrepresented statements, false arguments from false premises, the spleen of disappointed minds, or the devilish inventions and assertions of those who prefer to believe and publish evil of a man rather than good; who make and love a lie.

We do not write thus because we do not believe as these men do, that Joseph Smith was the author of polygamy as the same is believed, taught and practiced in Utah; but because the Reorganization has in its formulas of faith, belief and doctrine, neither affirmed nor denied that polygamy originated with Joseph Smith; for no declaration has ever been made by the church in reference to it. But the position taken from first to last has been, that “spiritual wifery,” “celestial marriage,” “plural marriage,” or polygamy was not, never had been and never could be legitimately a tenet of the faith and practice of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, the Church of Christ, organized in 1830. That no matter who, or by whom it was introduced, it was not of God, and was just what Elder Marks states Joseph Smith told him in 1844 that it was, a “cursed doctrine;” evil from first to last.

We have affirmed this position from 1860, the date of our connection with the work until now; always and in every place; and further, that neither admitting, nor denying that Joseph Smith, the martyr, had any thing to do, either in teaching, or practicing it, but holding if he did he transgressed the law of God, and broke the law of the land.

What we personally may believe in regard to the innocence, or guilt of the man whom we call father, has nothing to do with the position of the church; the elders think and act upon their own convictions; and are under no sort of obligation to think, believe, or say as we may say, believe, or think; nor are they under any sort of ban, or disability if they discredit, or disbelieve what we do. Some of these men who are now seeking to make capital out of the statements of Elders Isaac Sheen and Wm. Marks, have known what we have now written for years; and because we would not admit what was alleged, upon evidence that we deemed unsatisfactory and insufficient; and would not confess to knowledge that we never had, they have been chagrined, annoyed and vexed, and when they have failed to compel us to believe as they did and do, they have turned in spleen upon us and are now trying to blacken and defame the character of Joseph Smith, our father, and charge us with obstinacy, and hypocrisy.

The statement made by Elder Sheen that Joseph caused the “revelations upon the subject to be burned," rests upon the statement of Brigham Young, made August 29th, 1852, in Salt Lake City, and that alone. Joseph Smith's only wife, Emma, repeatedly stated that she never saw, and never burned any such document; no one else has ever been named as connected with such burning, if any was done; therefore Elder Sheen made the statement he did concerning such alleged burning without knowledge, and upon insufficient evidence.

We are aware that some, perhaps many, of the readers of the HERALD dislike to see any part of that journal taken up with Utah, its people or its affairs; and much more dislike to see any discussion, or reference to polygamy in its columns; but, we believe that as a church, occupying the position which the Reorganization does towards the Utah Mormon Church, it is the duty of the HERALD, not only to keep its readers informed in regard to what is taking place in Utah, but to expose to careful examination whatever may be said, or done by the church there, which we assert has fostered an error grave in its results temporal, social, spiritual and religious, that in any way may tend to recall the honest hearted among them to the truth of God. As an individual we can make no apology for the course we have taken; either in writing, or speaking; except that we deemed it to be our duty so to do.

COWDERY LETTERS.

WE now have on sale the Cowdery letters, nine in number, printed in pamphlet form and neatly bound in colored paper, price, 8 cents each, and 75 cents per dozen; or, unbound, 5 cents each and 50 cents per dozen, all postpaid within the United States and Canada.

These letters were published in the Messenger and Advocate at Kirtland, Ohio, in 1834-5, and contain most valuable matter in relation to the calling of Joseph the Seer, the discovery and translation of the Book of Mormon, the angelic bestowal of the priesthood, the organization of the church, matters of doctrine, historical facts, prophecy, etc., etc. Oliver Cowdery was eminently qualified for the service he did in writing these letters, for he was intimately associated with the Seer from April 15th, 1829, being his scribe when translating the larger part of the Book of Mormon, received the angelic ordination to the priesthood at the same time with the Seer, was the first person to receive baptism and ordination at the hands of the Seer, became "the second elder" and "apostle" in the church, and, in due time, one of its first presidents, was immediately connected with the organization of the church and setting in order its priesthood, and was therefore competent to perform the duties of an "apostle" in respect to the matters of which he treats in these letters.

It is important that the ministry everywhere have these letters in the portable and convenient form in which they are now presented, so that they may always have at hand the valuable information contained in them to aid in their labors. It is also important that the membership have them for the information and instruction they contain relative to the Lord's "marvellous work," and likewise that they be placed at any early time in the hands of the honest investigator, for his learning and profit.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE twenty-second annual session of the Iowa State Horticultural Society will meet in Des Moines, January 17th-20th, 1888. The best arrangement possible will be made for hotel and railroad rates for those attending it.

For want of room we have to abbreviate letters or throw them in the waste basket. Besides this, we do not print some articles for the same reason. We intend to use wisdom in these matters and do for the best as we see it; and we hope all will feel reconciled, for we strive to know what is for the best.

Bro. Levi Cheney, of Kent, Illinois, has sent to Bro. Metuaore, Tahiti, a lot of cards to be distributed among the children of the native Saints in that far off land. We anticipate that Bro. and Sr. T. W. Smith are by this writing in the Australian Mission, with Bro. Joseph Burton, doing service for the Master; and if so, it will be the part of Bro. Metuaore to look after the presents sent by Bro. Cheney. Quite a lot of sea shells of different sorts, have been received at Lamoni, sent by Bro. and Sr. Smith, to various persons here. The shells reached their destination and have been given out as directed by Bro. Smith in his letter concerning them.

Bro. Wm. Johnson, of Dawson, Texas, recently baptized, says: "I am living where there are but few Saints—myself, wife, and another sister and brother—but I am perfectly satisfied that I have united with a cause that will save us if we prove faithful." The ministry in that region should aid Bro. Johnson and others in their isolated condition when they can.

Bro. F. Needham writing from Macedonia, Iowa, under date of November 18th expresses astonishment at the "false statements" he finds in Rev. Lamb's book against the Book of Mormon." He says Brn. Hansen and Foss are holding meetings there.

Bro. Morris T. Short wrote from Lyons, Walworth county, Wisconsin, November 24th, that he was still holding forth at that place and East Delavan, notwithstanding a strong effort had been made to keep him out of the meeting house at Lyons. Bro. Short finds it to be very difficult to gain much of a hearing in that region, because of the fact that here was the strong hold of Strangism, during the palmy days of that institution. That phase of Mormonism had left a deep, and dark stain, which it will take years of patient and persistent labor of God-fearing men to efface. We regret that an overflow of letters compels us to leave Bro. Short's letter out, together with one from Bro. M. R. Scott, one from Bro. C. F. Pratt, and one from Bro. I. N. Roberts. From Bro. Scott's letter we learn that at the time that Bro. Harbert Scott left us and attempted to expose Mormonism, it was stated that the Rorganized Church would not dare to meet the Christians any more; but after the affair had had time to quiet down some, Bro. Moses Scott offered battle, presenting the following proposals to both the Rev. F. M. Brock and the Rev. Hutsell. Both propositions remain unnoticed up to date of writing. "Is the church of which F. M. Brock is a member the only true Christian Church, and is it identical with the New Testament church, in point of doctrine and organization? F. M. Brock affirmative. Are the gifts of the Spirit as mentioned in first Corinthians, 12th chapter, attainable? M. R. Scott affirmative."

Bro. A. J. Cato was at Silver Hill, Arkansas, November 23d, doing what he could, trying to get the branch righted up. He reports many calls from all quarters, a few only of which he could fill.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote us November 25th from Brown City, Michigan: "I baptized one more at Farwell, yesterday. Everything goes well here."

Bro. John Eames writes from Santa Monica, California, November 21st, stating that owing to failing health in Wyoming, he has located at Monica, and is keeping a hotel there. It is called the Cliff House. He holds services each Sunday in his dining room, and is blessed in them. He bears strong testimony to the latter day work.

Bro. A. H. Parsons wrote from North Branch, Kansas, November 16th, saying, "We added two more to our numbers by baptism the 15th inst."

"We would be lost without the HERALD. It is always welcome,"—writes Bro. D. W. Clow of Davenport, Iowa, of late.

By letter from A. H. Smith to Bro. H. A. Stebbins, dated at Crystal Lake, Minnesota, November 29th, we learn he held a series of meetings in Poland township, Buena Vista county, Iowa, and baptized five—Manly W. Hartshorn and wife, F. G. Hartshorn, Elbert A. Smith, and Effie A. Cook.

THE DYING "STAR."

THE clipping below which we take from the Desert News for November 22d, tells of the extended decline of the once powerful British Mission and its organ the Millennial Star. P. P. Pratt founded that paper in May, 1840, and it continued to increase in its influence and circulation till about 1852-3 when polygamy Adam-God, the human generation of Christ, and kindred abominations, began to be promulgated through it. Since then it has gradually declined in worth, numbers and influence, till now its death-wail sweeps across ocean, plain and mountain to Utah.

At one time its circulation reached about 50,000 copies, weekly. Now it is insignificant. Apostacy from God's ways has caused this. "How are the mighty fallen!"

THE "STAR."

THE current volume of the Millennial Star, published at the Latter Day Saints' publishing and emigration office, 42 Islington, Liverpool, will conclude with the year. We are reminded by a paragraph in the latest number to hand that the list of subscribers has been largely reduced on account of the ranks of the Church in the British Isles having been gradually thinned by emigration to this land. It is an exceedingly useful and capably conducted periodical, and it is important that it should be self-sustaining. This will be out of the question if an adequate number of subscribers are not maintained. There are thousands of people in this Territory who should take a lively interest in the British Mission, from personal association as well as from a desire to see the work of the Lord prosper everywhere. The price is low (six shillings and sixpence for the year or five shillings and fivepence if mailed every alternate week instead of weekly) and we take pleasure in supporting the idea embodied in the following from the latest number received:

"We trust that our many friends in Utah and elsewhere, together with the Improvement Association and others who are interested in the Gospel work in these lands, will aid us to continue publishing by subscribing for the Star."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. James Whitehead wrote from Alton, Illinois, November 20th:

"We had an excellent conference in St. Louis, the first Saturday and Sunday in October. We enjoyed much of the Spirit of God, and felt exceedingly happy. Three weeks later I went to Belleville; had a good time, had great liberty of speech; spoke Sunday and Monday evenings. On the thirteenth of this month I visited Cheltenham branch; had an excellent time; spoke twice on Sunday; felt much of the Spirit of God. The children of the Lord felt well."

Bro. W. R. Armstrong writes from 47 Greenhill street, Manchester, England.

"We are pleased to hear that the heaven is working in your locality and we can say the same here. Two Sabbaths ago while other brethren and myself were being set apart for the purpose of carrying the work into other parts of our city; the Spirit was present with marvelous power and melted all to tears both young and old, promising blessings that filled us with joy. The divine presence was certainly among us. On Sabbath last a Methodist local preacher who came to our services told us that he felt we were the people of God, and signified his intention of accepting the gospel. There are two or three more to be baptized in a few days. I feel that it is a great privilege and honor to be a minister of Jesus Christ, and requires a high standard of living made possible by walking as the Spirit directs. The ecclesiastical structures of this country are crumbling, and Romanism is in many places gaining ground. No doubt she will in time become our chief opponent. They shut their doors rather sharply now when we call with tracts. Our prayers ascend daily for brethren Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair; indeed all who are laboring for "Zion's weal" that our heavenly Father may sustain them.

Bro. Henry Green in a late letter says:

"Bro. Caffall was with us in October, and we had the Christian church for him. In Netawaka he had the Congregational church. He preached four times in each, the people seemed friendly, and some manifested a desire to get tracts to read."

Bro. Andrew Weeks, of Grimes, Iowa, renewing his subscription for the Herald, says:

"The Herald is a great help to me. I sometimes think I could as well get along without the gospel as I could without the church publications. This latter day work is most dear to me, and my hearts desire is to live faithful to the end. I have received many testimonies to the truthfulness ness of the work, and I know the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"When snow-flakes o'er the frozen earth,
Instead of birds are flitting;
When children throng the glowing hearth,
And quiet wives are knitting;
While in the fire-light strong and clear
Young eyes with pleasure glisten,
To tales of all we see and hear
The ears of home will listen."

63 Pigot St., Greenheys,
MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 31st.

Dear Sister Frances:—My husband and I joined the church about three years ago, and I feel thankful to God we were brought to the truth, for I know it is truth. I am a young mother and the Home Column teaches me many very good lessons. I have a little girl five years old and a son nearly twelve months old. I do feel to ask all my brethren and sisters to pray for me that I may bring them up in the straight and narrow way. I have a great deal to thank God for, chiefly because He has often restored me and my little ones to health and strength. The last time my little girl was very ill she asked for the oil, saying that God would make her better, and thoroughly believes He did so. With regard to the little boy I pray that he may be spared and that he may grow up a true servant and minister for Jesus Christ. I have a nephew who has just gone out to Melbourne, (Australia), who I hear is engaged in surveying a railway there. I never had an opportunity to present this glorious and true gospel to him, but I constantly pray and hope that some of our missionaries over there, may through God's goodness find him, and bring him into the fold. His name is John Wm. Wright, and he is from Macclesfield, where his father is at present, Borough Surveyor. I pray that God may take care of him and bless him. It would give me the greatest joy I know of to hear he was assisting in this good work. Again beseeching all of you to pray for me and mine, that we with you may be kept steadfast on the rock,

I am your sister in the gospel,
MARY ALICE MATHER.

Dear Sisters:—Sr. Eleanor's letter, of August 27th on the subject of dress, was to my mind exactly; next comes Sr. Emma, with her rays of light, and my heart responds "Amen." So thoroughly does she express my ideas and opinions she couldn't have done it any better if she had known me and what my opinions are. Now I wouldn't be afraid to say that when Sr. Emma gets through with that "dear cheap" dress of her's there will be enough good stuff left in it to make some poor little girl one; and I know she will make it and give it to her, for I think I can read just that much of her heart. Some seem to think we should not use our column for such stuff, but put it to a better use. I believe, if I remember right, that is just the purpose to which our Home Column was intended, that we might exchange our views and opinions upon matters and things, and come to a better understanding in regard to that which we have to grovel with here upon the earth.

There is a point that has long since been reached, and should be laid aside by us as a people, and that is imitation. Do not misunderstand me; there are many good things that are worthy of imitation, but the point I mean is, where every woman wants something in order to be like somebody else. We should aspire to that which will lead to originality, something noble and truthful; and this desire would work its own fulfillment; and towards this point every woman should labor, who thinks her own thought and strives to put it into her belonging. In dress, as in other things, it is only best to do what is within the compass of our own means and resources; and as long as equality has not been reached let us begin to use our own good sense and power of discrimination in regards to our dress. The ancients dressed just as fashionably in their day, according to their customs, as we do to-day and I presume, had their extremes; and I have not the least doubt that the children of God, those who were walking in nearness to him, and living up to their privileges and duties, knew just where to draw the line of distinction; and so will we, sisters, if our hearts are right before God and we are keeping his commandments, there will be no room in our hearts then for the seeds of wicked pride laying in embryo, awaiting their chance for development; but there will be a spontaneous outgrowth of grace and beauty in our every word and act. We shall not be looking upon this sister with envy because she is a little better dressed, and be ready to call her vain; nor will we look with contempt upon another because her poor body can display nothing but a five cent calico dress. It is the heart which is at fault, my sisters, and not the dress. When we cease contrasting ourselves with some poor publican, and be more ready and willing to contrast our own unprofitable lives with our blessed Lord and Master's, we shall show the world that we are striving, at least, to walk in the light that we profess to have received. As light stands for knowledge so darkness stands for ignorance. "Let the beauty of our garments be that of our own hands,"—we need not go to the dictionary to define the word beauty; we can see the meaning before our eyes. Is not God the great artist of this beautiful world of ours? He builds and beautifies the flowers that bloom; he shapes and chisels the golden chaliced lily that floats upon the lake; he fills the waving grain-field by building up each individual stalk; he gives the sky its peerless blue, the meadow its emerald, the lake its silver, the cloud its tint, and the human cheek its blush. This earth of ours is full of beauty and life because it is full of light. Things around, upon which the light is poured, can not help but live, and assume the forms of beauty. Then let us transfer our thoughts from the physical to the realms of the spiritual. If we as Saints are filled with that spiritual light (and it is our privilege to be) and have the love of God in our hearts, this spiritual light will, and must, act as the physical light acts; it must produce spiritual life and beauty, and it does; it assumes a form, and works itself out in moral and spiritual graces, and in noble traits of character, each one of which is a separate beauty. There will be seen blossoming out of a Godly Saint, such beautiful thoughts, noble acts, heavenly virtues, deeds of sacrifice and of love, holy principles, lofty aims and Christ-like characters. When the light of heaven falls upon the soul and when the soul lives in this light, then all these things are produced; and those who continue to walk therein will walk in safety, for it will show us the stumbling blocks, and warn us of the snares laid by the wicked one, that we be not overcome.

There is one clause in this letter that some of my sisters may find fault with, and that is, I claim our clothing demands thought. I am well aware it is said, "Take no thought for your raiment;" but I can't get it into my head that that passage was ever meant for me, for I fail to see wherein I could get along without thinking, under my circumstances; for let me tell you, sisters, I know what poverty is, and have been blessed with more old garments, than new; (thank God for them); and how often has my mind been taxed to know, if I could, after all my trouble, get the required garment, or no. In the first place I must pick the old one to pieces, cleanse and renovate it and darn up the imperfections before I can cut out the garment and make it up; now if this doesn't require some forethought and management I fail to see it.

Oh "Aunt Patience," don't tell every body how poor you are; it lowers you down you know; make them think you are better off, whether you are or not. Is that so? Now doesn't that savor a little of one kind of pride? I think it does. Well, I have an elder brother that tells me he once had not even a place to lay his head; surely none were so poor as he. Was he ashamed to tell it? I think not. Then why should I be. I tell you, sisters, there is one kind of pride we need, and another we don't need; and when we can find out the difference between the two, I think this dress question will be settled. Well I suppose it is time for me to close, or some of my sisters will be saying "Its a good thing "Aunt Patience" doesn't come but once or twice a year. God bless you all; and help us to see eye to eye.

AUNT PATIENCE.

PORT GREVILLE, N. S., Oct. 30th.

Dear Sisters: I read your letters with a great deal of pleasure, and am profited by them. I often think when reading them that I should like to be able to write something to help and encourage others; but feeling that I have not the ability, I keep back, yet probability there is not a sister that writes but feels the same; still in every letter there is something good, something that we need knowing; thus we weak ones feel encouraged to write our thoughts. I have been much interested in the different opinions of my sisters in the matter of dress and personal adornment. Sr. Emma's views are much the same as my own, but perhaps that is nothing more than natural, she being my sister in the flesh; but there are others who have written, whose opinions are about the same. We all should encourage neatness and cleanliness, and discourage useless display; and as our minds affect our faces, let us try to be cheerful and happy, so that our faces may reflect the same. I know that it is not always easy to appear cheerful. We all have our daily trials, some greater than others, and at times get almost discouraged; but we all have the same kind Father to go to for assistance, and some of the sisters seem to receive such help and manifestation of his regard for them that I should think they would never doubt again. Such has never been my experience, yet I am trying to live faithful, and hope to be able to reign with the Saints upon the purified earth.

Living so far from Saints, we were much helped by the visit of our brothers, Elders Briggs and Sheehy. May God bless them; and may he send us an elder soon that can stay longer.

Your sister in the gospel,

IDA LAYTON.

LONDON, Ont., Nov 8th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—Seeing the request of the young sisters, in the Herald, I thought I would devote my spare time in writing to you. Although a stranger to all but a few of the saints, (and one out of a large family bitterly opposed to this Latter Day work), I am not to the God of Israel. Like Ruth of old, I have said, "Your God shall be my God and your people my people." It is a little over three years since I obeyed the gospel in its fullness, and I have proved wherein God has said, if we obeyed His gospel we should know of the doctrine; and I know by divine revelation that it is his work, and that eventually it will subdue all things, and prove to be the plan God has laid down for the salvation of all the honest in heart who will obey it.

I have many trials yet the blessings too are great; and if we could only see that all things are working together for our good, we would count them as light afflictions, and rejoice and be glad in the Lord. We are apt to forget that it is an individual salvation, and by our own works we will stand, and by them also we shall be judged. Since I obeyed the gospel I have wondered how it was I could not understand the Scriptures and believe as I do now; every word has a new meaning to me when read with the light I now have; and I thank God with my whole heart for this Latter Day work, and for the hope I have of one day entering into the rest prepared for the children of God, where we shall be as one family together, not scattered and unknown to one another as we now are, but where we shall know as we are known, and where trials and temptations will not assail us, where all shall be joy and peace, and we shall be forever with the Lord.

God has said we shall not be tried more than we are able to bear; and we should not think it strange when fiery trials come upon us and we are in heaviness if needs be for a season through manifold temptations, for they are to test us; and if we could see and judge God's ways in the light of our own reason, where would be the trial of our faith, so precious in His sight? We very often forget the great and precious promises that are given to us if we are faithful and bear all things with patience. It seems hard at all times to be humble and to keep our will in subjection to God's will; but He has promised to give us strength as our day, and the Lord is not slack in his promises, and will help us to overcome all that lays in our path. My heart swells with love and gratitude to God for the privilege of obeying His Gospel. I love it. It is dear to my heart. There is naught in this world can compare with it; and as I strive to live right before God. I have His Holy Spirit with me to strengthen and comfort me, and also the peace that passeth all understanding.

I long for the coming of my Lord and Master. May we all be ready and watching when the day of redemption comes, that not one who has rendered obedience to the command of God shall be missing. God grant, that if we should never meet in this life, we shall in the life to come. At times I feel discouraged and alone; for since I became a saint I am a stranger to my brothers and sisters, and an alien to my mother's house. "When thy father and thy mother forsake thee, then the Lord shall take the up." Of a truth He has done so, and helped me and made me willing and glad to leave everyone for His sake and the Gospel's. I can say with others, "With joy I remember the dawn of that day, when led by His Spirit the truth to obey." All that I have to regret is that I have not lived as faithful as I should have done. I had grown careless and indifferent, by neglecting prayer, which is, as many can testify, the greatest help and blessing to us in our daily life; and instead of being strong in the Lord when I had need of strength, I was weak and therefore easily overcome; but, thank God, I have been roused to a double diligence; and I want to live and be a saint in deed, as well as name, and show by my daily life that there is a reality in this religion.

The time is short, and though our elders and Saints have to pass through many dark and gloomy days while defending the truth they represent yet:

"Sow thy seed; be never weary.

Let no fears thy soul annoy;

Be the prospect ne'er so weary,

Thou shalt reap the fruits of joy."

SISTER GERTIE.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Kate M. Davison, Lockhartsville, N. S.	31
Sr. Mary C. Ode, Newark, Dak.	1 00
Sr. A. C. Witter, Argenta, Mont.	1 00
Sr. A. R. Shirley, Utica, Neb.	25
Sr. Josephine Poling, Aurora, Ill.	1 00
Sr. Annie Harlow and family, Perkins, Cal.	3 75
Sr. Sarah C. Ayers, Xenia, Ills.	28
Sr. Mary Robinson, Ferndale, Cal.	62
Sr. Ella Dudley, Ferndale, Cal.	38
Sr. Mary Chatburn, Harlan, Iowa	75
Sr. Annie Hill, Omaha, Neb.	1 00
Sr. Minerva Hammer, Allendale, Mo.	50
Sr. R. Crompton, Lowell, Mass.	1 00
Sr. Alice P. Dancer, Wilton, Ill.	3 30

ERRATA.—In the Herald of November 26th Sr. Anna Wilson, Nebraska City, should have been Anna Nielsen.

LAMONT, IOWA, November 30th.

Correspondence.

BELLAIR, Ill., Nov. 26th,

Brn. Editors:—The debate that I wrote about before between Bro. I. M. Smith and Elder W. H. Bird of the Christian Church, (so called) is over. It went off satisfactory to our friend, and made more friends for us and the cause we represent. The issue was upon the claims of the two churches. The arguments of Mr. Bird were a rehash of Clark Braden against E. L. Kelley, to the disgust of most of the audience. They then backed down on second issue, which was the calling of Joseph Smith and the coming forth of the Book of Mormon. The discussion was held three miles south-east of Bellair, where we never had preached. They were afraid to have any further discussion before their people, as we were informed; some of their members acknowledged that they believed in the baptism of the Spirit; and another, there certainly was power in the Holy Spirit yet; hence their fright. There were fourteen of their preachers present, and not one in the whole number would negative Joseph Smith being a prophet of God, when offered to them; although some of them were champion debaters. One of the best said he would come down and debate the same propositions debated here, before our church; and we agreed to discuss it with him at Brush Creek, Wayne county. It is to be about February or March. There seems to be a good feeling at Bellair, several "almost persuaded."

I will remain here till Tuesday of next week, Bro. Smith going to Greenup, Cumberland county, to preach a few days. O, that the Lord would send more laborers into the field. Hoping to continue faithful in my calling and steadfast in the faith, I am as ever, yours in the covenant,
G. H. HILLIARD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 10th.

Bro. Joseph:—Some time ago Bro. Geo. S. Lincoln wrote you of our going to administer to a young lady member who was suffering from loss of memory, as her mind became bewildered, she had fits. The brother stated that we went, but added that he had not heard what was the result. To tell you of the result is the object of this letter. The night before and in the morning I made special mention of her in my prayers. We met at the appointed time. We then laid our hands upon her head. I was asked to make the prayer. I did so, and thank God, He heard and answered, for she is well and has been ever since. Our branch is doing well.

May God bless you and give you strength to honorably fill your high and noble calling, is my humble prayer.
C. A. PARKIN.

MAGNOLIA, Iowa, Nov. 24th.

Dear Herald:—It is always a pleasure to hear of the prosperous voyage which the ship Zion is having on the stormy ocean of life. It does not detract from that pleasure even when we hear of her safety and success among the breakers, when the storm is wreaking its force upon her sturdy timbers, for we only watch with "bated breath" and anxious hearts the out-come, filled with ever increasing confidence that the great pilot—"the Captain of our salvation" is still at the helm, and we therefore should have no fears for the issue. The crew may revolt, or jump overboard and take to their own little shaky crabs, but their places are promptly filled, and the grand old craft sails on more proudly than ever, increasing her speed in spite of their opposing efforts. For fifty-seven years, aye, ever since the stripping Joseph was first commanded to sound the gospel trumpet for volunteers to "man the ship," the breaking waves of persecution have dashed with all their force upon her; and sullen, secret opposition has doggedly sought to impede her progress and blast her every hope by base misrepresentation and brazen falsehood.

Often have numbers of her crew deserted her because she would not answer to their demands when they have sought to turn her from her true course. Once, at least, in her storm-tossed career, nearly all her crew united in tearing down her glorious standards, trod them beneath their feet, and raised in their stead a filthy, blotched, corruption-stained polygamous rag, and sought to cover their black designs by inscribing on its lust-blackened borders the name of the first mate of the vessel who had fallen a victim to the deadly hate of the avowed enemies of truth. It seemed at this crisis as though the gallant ship had for once stood still, as though shocked at their perfidy and horrified at the base violation of her sacred decks. But under the hands of her great Pilot and Commander she quickly asserted her right, and another crew was quickly provided, with a first mate who, like his predecessor, was determined to honor his Commander, come life or death, come weal or woe. From that time she has gallantly pressed on, though her pathway in the mighty waters has been filled with obstructions high, and deep, in the shape of false doctrine, foul practices, and murderous efforts, under the misnomer "Mormonism." Indeed, almost every form of delusion, and every species of fanaticism has sought to fasten themselves like barnacles upon her hull in order to render her destruction complete. But they have been beaten off, and as they fell her speed has increased; and every struggle against the wrecking storms only develops her power and proves her ability to stem the angry tide, giving renewed assurance that she will ever outride the storm. Thanks to the wisdom, love, and goodness of our great and never-failing Pilot and Commander, Jesus Christ.

We were treated the other week to an angry gust from the Whitmerite squall, through W. P. Brown, David's "man Friday." I only heard him one night. I have heard numbers of Anti-Mormon lecturers who seemed to have raked all the filth that lay between Billingsgate and the gates of hell, and piled it in one hideous heap, and then called it Mormonism; but the filthy palm belongs to Brown. He seemed to be choked with the filth he was peddling around and laying at the door of the Martyr and the Reorganized Church. He finally left in disgust, finding no one to swallow his filth, except the one or two who had invited him to come. Bro. McDowell ably exposed his weakness, and in a gentlemanly manner refuted his charges by the light of history and God's word. There was one thing in this "great gun" of "Whitmerism" that was rather amusing. He come claiming to know whereof he affirmed, and perfectly satisfied that he was right and the Reorganization wrong. Yet in his opening prayer he told the Lord how he and McDowell were opposing each other, both claiming to have the truth and yet so widely apart; and then, strongly emphasizing his words, he begged the Lord to manifest which was wrong. If he, Brown, was in the wrong, the Lord was to strike him right then with a heavy bodily affliction; and if his opponent was wrong he was to receive the affliction. I noticed McDowell was always abundantly able to come to time, and continued in splendid trim. But I noticed Brown had to drink very often, either to keep his courage up, clear the cobwebs out of his throat, or, what appeared more probable, to fill up his time; and it was said he had a restless night. I thought Brown was a hard drinker, but as our deacon furnished the beverage, I think it was only water. But imagine a man who claims to be sent of God with a message, and then when he is telling the message, wanting a sign in the shape of some terrible affliction to prove to him that he is wrong, if he is wrong, or that the affliction may rest upon his opponent if that opponent should be wrong! If he was sincere in his claim that he knew he was right, then he was hypocritical in his prayer. But if he was sincere in his prayer, his claim to being right had no foundation in fact. In either case his trumpet gives an uncertain sound. Poor Brown!

Since the Reunion I have continued to labor in the Little Sioux district among the rural population who seldom hear the gospel because elders seldom visit out of the way places, and the people are not sufficiently interested to travel several miles to towns where preaching might be heard. My audiences have been small, but very attentive and some have manifested good interest. I have been blessed in my labors with divine assistance, and I receive it as an evidence that the Lord accepts my efforts, whether the people accept the truth or not. One thing is evident, prejudice among the masses is being broken down, and possibly some "Apollos" may water the seed I have sown. Last Sunday, after preaching in Woodbine in the morning, a prominent lady came forward and desired baptism. In compliance with the law of God I administered to her the sacred rite, and after preaching in the evening she was confirmed. At the close a gentleman enquired of brother Kibler if there was any set formula by which members were confirmed. Brother Kibler informed him there was none, but that each officer sought to be directed by the Spirit of God. The gentleman declared the ordinance of confirmation to be a beautiful one. Brother W. C. Cadwell and the writer administered.

When I arrived home on Tuesday, I found a summons awaiting me, to go the next day and preach the funeral sermon of a young man who had committed suicide the evening before. I have preached several funerals of late, of persons both in the church and out, but this was the saddest of all. Here was a young man in the flower of life, not yet twenty-one years of age, who rushed his uncalled spirit into the presence of God! Of course the family were in deep distress; his aged father bowed down with unutterable grief; for this young man was the pride of his old age. When I enquired what could have been the cause of the terrible act, the old man, through his blinding tears, and in a voice choked with anguish said: "It can all be summed up in one word—bad company." He had been baptized about one year ago, I was told; was always exemplary until of late; he had yielded to evil associates, and this was the terrible end. Will the young men and women of our church take warning? Do they need any stronger evidence that "evil communications corrupt good manners?" "Hear then, my son, and be wise, and guide thine heart in the way. Be not among winebibbers; among riotous, eaters of flesh; for the drunkard shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags. Harken unto thy father that begat thee, and despise not thy mother when she is old. Enter not into the path of the wicked, and go not in the way of evil men. Avoid it; pass not by it; turn from it; and pass away."—Proverbs.

"Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night. And he shall be like a tree by the rivers of water that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper. The ungodly are not so; but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away. Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous. For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish."—Psalms.

May these inspired precepts sink deep into the hearts of the young everywhere, and may their feet ever be found in the path of wisdom. Prospects in some parts of this field bid fair for additions to the church, and I trust they will be such as shall be saved. I am satisfied we should be more prosperous as a district if we were more faithful to our covenants.

CHARLES DERRY.

LITTLE PRAIRIE RONDE, Mich.,
November 18th.

Editor Saints Herald:—We have been endeavoring to stand by the beautiful banner of Christ, at this point for eight evenings, and have been made glad to watch its streamers float majestically in the breeze, and still gladder, to see some enlist under its all encouraging fold.

On Wednesday, 16th inst., we led into the waters of regeneration four noble souls, all heads of families. More are believing and will evidently unite soon. Have held some bright services here.

Bro. Kelley, since conference, I feel strong.

LEONARD SCOTT.

SAND BEACH, Mich., Nov. 20th.

Dear Herald:—I am young in the cause, but have a great desire to serve God and to see the work go on. I was baptized two years ago last August by Elder J. J. Cornish. I can say with a great many more that I know this work is true. I belong to the St. Thomas branch. We are striving to live a godly life, and to stand for the truth and do our Master's will, and are blessed many times by the good Spirit of God when assembling ourselves together in our little prayer and testimony meetings.

Your sister,

MARY E. BARRS.

CLINTON, Iowa, Nov. 18th.

Brother W. W. Blair:—As I ordered some more of those noble little messengers, the Voice of Warning, I will say that, in my estimation, the Voice of Warning is as good a work as we have in the church. I know some who were convinced of the truth of our claims without ever hearing a sermon, just by reading that book.

Since I last wrote I baptized one more in Jackson county, and two more in Cedar Rapids, all of the best society, and still more investigating there. Brother and sister Hills have moved from Cedar Rapids to Missouri. I have not heard from them since their departure. I miss them from there. Brother and sister Batchelor have also gone to Independence, Missouri. Their letters will soon follow. I had some opposition while at the Rapids, but that is good to waken one up. I want to return there as soon as I can. The brethren will try and get the United Brethren Church for me. Brother Maitland and I are holding a series of meetings here, and quite an interest is manifest. I rejoice to know that the Clinton branch is on the rise. If all the Saints of the branch had heeded the advice and counsel given them years ago, which they now see the necessity of complying with, and do comply with, much, yes, all the troubles and trial they have passed through, would have been avoided. May the good work of reconciliation go on.

After we close here we want to step just over the line into Illinois, where old Bro. Dumbauld lives, who was baptized at the late Reunion, and preach some there. I hope it will not be looked upon by the Illinois brethren as an infringement. I don't know under whose jurisdiction the field is, so I beg pardon for any intrusion. I feel like going on in the work.

Your co-laborer,

J. S. ROTH.

EAST DENNIS, Mass., Nov. 17th.

Editors Herald:—We are glad to hear of the success of the Lord's work through the Herald columns, and of the good and profitable reunions in the west. It has been my hope that we might be possessed of a portable tabernacle, or tent, in this New England district, for I am satisfied that benefit to us could be had, and people that cannot otherwise be reached would hear the gospel of salvation.

Bro. Briggs' presence has been most profitable, his advent among us timely, and his counsel and instruction an absolute necessity to the removal of stumbling blocks and to the preparing of the way for safe and permanent building. I feel encouraged in the prospect before us—not altogether because of numerous additions by baptism—but because we are getting ready for the great work assigned to us by the God of heaven. There is great need of able ministers of the Spirit—as well as of the letter; and to minister in spiritual things is, or should be, a careful, prayerful, wise, discerning service. Self-poised, high above not only men with their blandishments, should the servant of the most High stand, but with wisdom born and nurtured perhaps only by hard and bitter experience. He should be able to resist the infinitely more subtle approaches of those deceptive spiritual forces against which we, as no other people in the world, are called to stand. To handle wisely and safely a revelation from Almighty God, or to be always able to discern some of the skillful counterfeits that the devil is trying to circulate in the church and succeeds in palming it off upon the saints, sometimes, I fear, is to progress from our present stand of attainment.

"Remember that that which cometh from above is sacred, and must be spoken with care and by constraint of the Spirit and in this there is no condemnation". D. C. 63:16. "The spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets." I Cor. 14:32. But oh, when spirits are submitted to without discretion and begin to handle the prophets, what terrible work has been made! How hard a task for presiding officers "to conduct the meetings as they are led by the Holy Spirit," when there are men, women, and spirits especially, that don't want to be conducted that way? And instead of a desire to acquire knowledge—and faith which comes by hearing—the better gifts of wisdom and spiritual understanding—there is nourished a morbid craving for a sensational and hair-raising revelation that jars the earth, confuses the senses, but really elevates no one. "Thus saith the Spirit," was the quiet manner in which the Lord addressed his people in his last counsel to his church through the appointed source. Shall this lesson of modesty go unheeded? While it is true that God hath bestowed more abundant honor upon the uncomely parts of the body (church) of Christ, it must be remembered that it is because they needed it, and God is best honored by his own appointments, whether men are or not. Self-acquired possession is sometimes better, more appreciable, and longer retained than "gifts." "Have salt in yourselves," said Jesus. "I give unto you to be the salt of the earth," I T. Wise instructions from those upon whom God and the church in its experience and wisdom has placed responsibility and commission, and "first" in the church as counselors to regulate and to counsel, and "for the perfection of saints," will prove as salutary and bring about that unity of purpose necessary to permanency and stability and to our growth as a body, as a super-abundance of "gifts" before we have been taught how to properly and safely use them. "And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that gifts," etc. Are all apostles? Well, no; but there are a good many exercising the functions of an apostle. And in the absence of a head the feet have been carrying the balance of the body into unlawful and unprofitable places in the past; nothing is more clear to my mind than this; and the revelation of God last April was given because of its need. Oh, that God may endow those men with wisdom from on high and fill them with a perception of the needs of Christ's church which he has purchased with his own blood, and a zeal that will answer to the demands of Zion's great cause, is my prayer.

The Holy Ghost and its gifts should be made to honor, and not to dishonor the name of God and the highest conceptions of him. If it is the only representative which Jesus Christ could allow to take his personal place and presence, any influence that lowers this standard of wisdom, patience, prudence, and exaltation of character, should not be allowed as guests in our hearts and lives, to preside at our sacramental feasts, our social service, or the preaching of the word. May God bless the Saints of the Massachusetts district, that jealousy, strife, or unlawful emulation may have no place in our midst; and that what we have suffered and are suffering for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ may not have been suffered in vain in the day of the Lord Jesus.

I am writing at the home of our faithful brother and sister Sears, who with their daughter and nephew were baptized last spring when I was here. God in his goodness, and as a seal to our ministry, has kept his covenant made through his servants. I have been anxious about the work which has been planted here. I find the seed sown has not all fallen upon stony ground; many are satisfied with our testimony. Pride, the world, and other causes hinder. But sheaves are coming; one good soul earnestly desires to unite with us, but I hear this morning that her husband has forbidden her food if she attends our meetings any more. He belongs to the "Reformed" Methodists, I understand. More reform is needed! Her son is in the church, and they naturally feel sad over the excessive zeal and piety that furnishes "sanctification" by other methods than "through the truth," and prevents the exercise of constitutional liberty in the household.

We are to open to-night in West Brewster—a new field—and have applied for the church and been refused by the "Holiness" church directors, or "New Lights" as they sometimes call themselves. A dissatisfied but liberal-minded church member has opened his house, however, and says he will have the preacher there sure. I hope so, but don't believe it; for he isn't acquainted with the "liberty" of that class of men as I am.

I am at present in charge of the Providence branch, and shall have to look after it, I suppose, as it is the largest branch in the district, especially if I am to be made responsible for failures. Am glad to be able to say, however, that so far the Lord has stood by us in fulfillment of clear predictions made to us for our encouragement, I suppose. Five worthy souls have been added by baptism since our Providence conference; increased attendance; strangers interested; spiritual blessings multiplying—these are the evident signs of God's approval.

November 18th.—Our meeting last night at West Brewster was a success; found the house full. The minister was not there, but the good Lord by his Spirit was, and we felt just splendid in the illumination, and quiet, but sure and holy confidence guaranteed to the servants of God. Many friends were made for the cause, and there was a cordial welcome and hearing promised for our return. Brother Briggs is now in Maine with brother Sheehy; we expect his return by Christmas. In the faith,

MYRON H. BOND.

SYRACUSE, Ind., Nov. 18th.

Brother Joseph:—We have been reading the Herald, Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, and by prayer and investigation have been brought to the light, and feel an interest in the latter day work. We know of no branch of our faith either far or near, and therefore are entirely excluded from hearing or obeying the gospel as the Bible teaches and we believe. We so much desire that an elder of your faith visit our place soon. We long to hear the gospel in its purity. Any elder or Saint coming this way will find a welcome reception at our home.

Yours in faith,
MR. and MRS. CANNON.

CLINTON, Mo., Nov. 16th.

Brother W. W. Blair:—Just returned from Rich Hill where Bro. Curtis and I have been conducting a series of meetings. Also held meetings at Shobe, close by. Bro. Curtis baptized four—two young men and one man and wife. The interest was grand to the last. There are now twenty-five belonging to the church at these two places. An organization may now be effected.

I baptized Mr. Walker and his wife, near Lowry City, on the 30th, ult., who are of note in the neighborhood, and think they will make noble Saints. Also baptized one at Clinton on the third instant. The Clinton branch was organized a year ago last July with seventeen members, and it now numbers fifty-three—thirty-eight having been baptized since its organization, and two moved by letter. Brother Curtis has gone home for a few days to attend to home affairs. He had been out on a preaching tour for more than two months. I am home for three days, then will commence meetings at Lowry City, holding a few days, then on to Taberville for the 26th and over two Sundays. Brother Curtis will join me there.

Bro. Wells, of Knobnoster, joined us a few days at Shobe and Rich Hill. He enjoyed himself beyond measure. He got to "smell the powder" and didn't know whether he wanted to be a preacher or not! Brother Wells is in harness and takes no back seat when the work needs a defender. We enjoyed his company highly. Come again, Bro. Wells. I have near a dozen letters to answer to-day, some asking, "Can't you come at once?" and "When can you come?"

"The golden grain is waving,
Inviting us to reap.
'No work to do!' Look up and see
The fields already white;
No longer sit with folded hands,
And waste God's precious light."

There seems to be no time to idle away while we hear the "Call for reapers." "Many called; but few chosen," was the burden to primitive Christianity. It is easy to bear testimony that, "I have my shoulder to the wheel;" but I am reminded that "faith without works is dead." The wants of my family may enlist me in their service early in the year; but I hope not to forget my call.

Yours hurriedly,
I. N. WHITE.

MAY, Neb., Nov. 21st.

Dear Herald:—With the passing away of September days, and the dawn of October, all things being duly considered, it seemed necessary and so I reluctantly took leave of Bro. A. H. Parsons and his amiable wife; leaving them to continue meetings at the Elmira branch, to visit Twin Creek and Blue Rapids branches, Kansas. My stay at each being more limited than desirable, both by myself and the members; on my part attributable to the numerous calls, with a desire to respond to all if possible. My travel and labor with brother A. H. Parsons were pleasant, and to me profitable. There need be no collision with representatives of the one faith. Nor will there be, save ignorance or wilfulness, creates it; there may be allowance for the former, but none for the latter. With the imperativeness, apparent to all, to subjugate the carnality and be governed by the divinity; with a recognition of God's holy order and decrees. God has reserved the right to himself to formulate a religion adapted to man's spiritual aspirations, and necessitates delegating authority to man only, to teach, or enforce the same; which involves a necessity for man to discriminate between man's rights and God's decrees; and duty's path, and pursuit—a pleasant yet difficult task, in which, revolting as the thought may be, some will fail. Well may each enquire, Is it I? One distinguishing feature between the Latter Day Saints and the self-styled orthodox is, one is laboring to know the worth of and to teach the old way, the apostolic, the primitive, the Christ-authorized gospel; and the other, by the use of costly edifices, fascinating and bewitching socials, a cultured and salaried ministry to discard it, or substitute something in lieu thereof. The difference being discerned by a few in the theory; but some are waiting to have it more effectually demonstrated practically, through an improvement of conduct, or aspiring to a higher moral rectitude by us, as a religious body.

Some timid, yet well intended mortals, are startled at the idea of an expression of adverse thoughts by representatives of the same faith, and while such should know that such a procedure is often beneficial (when properly done) tending to mental and spiritual development. There is no necessity or excuse for useless delving or soaring to unnecessarily increase their timidity by extraordinary effort, to define in detail what revelation has but made plain in a general way. For that which is revealed, belongs to us, but the secret things belong to the Lord. God has his own method and time to reveal the hidden. Practicing of what we know, affords us ample work; and if efficiently done, will beget us a lasting name, and reputation. Let us be content to practice what we know, with a legitimate use of every available locality to advance, and one of the most essential and admirable advances we can make, is to know ourselves.

Short visits and labor in the districts in Kansas afford evidence of the necessity for more persistent labors by branch and district officials. Individual responsibility ought to be fully realized, leading to a determination to labor in the position whereunto appointed, and with the understanding that duties, callings and responsibilities differ. It seems in some cases branch officials have been so much assisted by General Conference appointees as to almost have settled down under the conviction that they are mere ciphers, and so spend much precious time, in calling for help instead of rising in their dignity to help themselves and the branch. No provisions are made for ornamental officers—all are intended for continuous, legitimate work, and an ambition leading to a conception that every official is mighty in his sphere to discharge the duties thereof, is a laudable ambition; while more or less of this cometh of evil. While it may appear improbable, it is barely possible that the conception is so high, and the desire so great to be a General Conference appointee that a desire or the importance of doing local labor or elders traveling and preaching, as their circumstances admit, may be lost sight of. This would be wrong, since the general law directs in the matter. Since it is not the position but magnifying it, brings justification from God, is it not best to stand solid and contented in the positions appointed, doing service therein until called higher?

I am disposed to believe that more systematic labor by general conference appointees ultimately in extending into new fields is necessary. A small circuit of country with regular appointments at several points, until evidence of interest is seen, or a satisfaction had that no good can be done, might be more effective than traveling over a large tract of country—with little or no effective work done at any one point. It may not be so gratifying, but faithful work done by preaching the gospel which only serves as a witness brings justification from God as inducting others into the field. For we can only do our duty, as those being done, God will see to the rest.

It ought to be remembered, that the convening of District conference quarterly, or four times a year, is traditional and not mandatory. The law rendering their convening legitimate when necessary. The exercise of judgments to be brought into requisition to determine whether a necessity exists to convene—six times, twice, or only once a year; with a consideration, whether, if once or twice a year would suffice for the interest of the work, justification would follow the consumption of time or money involved in convening oftener? The declaration not to wait to be commanded in all things is good, excellent; but not to be so construed, or understood, as to move without thought, counting the cost, or a non-realization of responsibility, for no work brings so grave responsibility as dealing with the souls of men, as nothing is more compatible, with reason than that all that is done should be by system and order. It is very possible the Latter Day Saints might be at fault in the selection of a king, were they make an attempt. But they ought to try and know what is for the most good of the work, committed to their charge, and all that without running to extremes, and correspondingly by striving to find, and keep the medium by being governed by principle rather than impulse.

The sudden disappearance of Bro. R. M. Elvin from the Southern Nebraska District, has caused to myself and others a very disagreeable surprise; such a one as might be expected through the deprivation of so efficient a laborer, for we had expected good results for a winter's labors by him, at points where he created an interest which it is questionable if any person could keep up. We all thought we had the greatest claim on him, in view of general conference appointment and the great need of his labors. I think the Nebraska City Branch the first and only branch he held membership in in the Reorganized Church. There he has grown from boyhood to manhood, and has waged a good and steady warfare, and established a good reputation; and to Nebraska City saints the loss of Bro. R. M. Elvin, as one of their members, will be another evidence of change in this mortal life. For him and family, so far as I know, naught but kindly feelings are entertained with a desire for their prosperity and final salvation. I much regret the loss of his labor, especially at this juncture.

As a willingness to sacrifice home comforts, for the gospel's sake does not render one's heart callous or squelch out the love for the sacred spot called home, I enjoyed two week's visit at home which ended five days ago, and again find myself a wanderer. During my stay, I was fortunate enough to hear two gospel discourses from Bro. J. R. Lambert in the Council Bluffs house of worship, on his way to Lamoni, from the Galland's Grove District. They were indeed inspiring and instructive; God and His great work being brought vividly to the attention, and self left out, save to be submissive to God's ways. A fair audience greeted him each night, and none failed to appreciate or feel the force of his teaching. Bro. J. C. Foss assisted, who I believe will labor in the Pottawattamie District, Iowa—where by persistent efforts a good work, I think can be done. I have returned to this locality designing to proceed further west, but recent developments necessitate some changes in my contemplated procedure.

In gospel bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

RICHLAND, Dak., Nov. 24th.

Brother Blair:—After my last at Running Water I preached twice, leaving a manifest interest there. I then returned to Springfield, preaching once in a private house, and once in waitingroom of depot where cowboys disturbed some by talking loud. I told them to keep still. I visited sister St. Pierre, a daughter of old Bro. Kuykendall now in Texas. She lives in Charles Mix County. While here I explained the gospel to a young Lamanite who seemed much interested. He received an education in Virginia, and is very intelligent. I presented him with a Book of Mormon. My next move was for Bloomington, but finding that Bro. Hogaboom was in Nebraska and not likely to come back till spring, I only stopped for dinner as I expected then to have to return to my home on business.

Returning to Bro. Patten's and finding it not necessary for me to return home, I preached in his house till Sunday, when at three p. m., I held forth in the Christian chapel at Olivet. Next day I started for this place and on my arrival, Tuesday evening, found that Mr. and Sr. Smith had secured the school house and had the announcement out. The house was well filled, and during the ten discourses, closing last night, I have been permitted to stand before audiences which for intelligence, deportment, interest, and size, have scarce, if ever, had a parallel in my ministerial career.

I preached Saturday, 7: 30, p. m., and Sunday, 11 a. m., and 3 p. m., on baptism. That evening the M. E. minister challenged me for a discussion on the subject, which is to commence to-morrow night. We trust that you will specially intercede for us, as it is to be our first theological discussion. The people are much interested and seem expectant. An M. E. last Sunday said it was not in his Bible about John baptizing in Enon!

In bonds,

J. W. WIGHT.

WILLIAMSTON, Mich., Nov. 16th.

Editor Herald:—Our district conference held at Galien, October 22d to 24th was good, being largely attended by officers and Saints. All present seemed to take a lively interest in work transacted, and entire unity of sentiment and action characterized the session throughout.

Brn W. H. Kelley and Francis Earl did the preaching, which seemed entirely satisfactory to all. The Galien Saints deserve credit for the lively manner in which they took hold to make their visiting brethren comfortable and feel at home with them; and I believe they merit the praise of having entertained a larger number of visitors than I have seen at any previous conference in our district. Now, Messrs. Editors, don't leave out these brief remarks favorable to the Galien Saints for fear of flattery. They are too old for that; and, besides, when we read Paul's praises of the ancient saints, it sounds like gospel to us down here in latter days. And should we not profit by the examples of so eminent an apostle?

Two persons were baptized, three confirmed and five children blessed.

Bro. L. Scott was ordained an elder during the conference. All were encouraged in the work and faith, and substantial progress made.

On the 4th of November, I joined Bro. Kelley at Dimondale, to aid in and look after the interests of the work in that place and vicinities. One Dr. Meade had, by evil works, been disturbing the peace of the saints there, and reproaching the cause. The case was aggravating, and was therefore looked after.

November 10th found me at Webberville, twenty miles east of Lansing, in the presence of an Adventist minister who was fully ripe for debate then,—would not take no for an answer; nor could he be induced by the golden rule to wait till the next week to begin! So, rather than decline to meet him, I said, "already;" and we "clinched" that evening, and for six sessions of two hours each discussed the relation of the covenant made with Israel at Sinai to the gospel economy, concluding our discussion Sunday evening, the 12th.

At present writing am at the home of Bro. Thos. Horton. Began meetings here in his hall last evening with a moderate attendance.

More anon. Yours for the work,

C. SCOTT.

VANESSA, Ontario, Nov. 21st.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Elder J. H. Lake and I came to this place the 18th of this month, and found the little band of Saints just putting the finishing touches on their little church. It is a comfortable one and will seat about one hundred.

I cannot help shedding tears of thankfulness, when I look upon this building, for I well remember when I first came to this place (not two years ago), and delivered the first sermon preached here by our people. It truly looked as though "the people that turn the world upside down had come hither." For weeks our meeting house was crowded; some said we were right; more said "No; but he is a setter-forth of strange doctrine;" while another acted as though he thought his "craft was in danger." We tried to keep on the line marked out. The Master was with us, and we, as a result, succeeded. To Him be the glory. There is a good feeling here now, and we hope by careful working to see more follow in "the path of life and peace."

I feel more and more that it requires perfect obedience to the perfect law that emanated from the perfect God to entitle us to dwell in the presence of him who is perfect. I am trying to make an application of the perfect law to my own heart, so that at the close of the "day of mortality," I may join the choir and sing with the redeemed of earth. May we all act well, our part on the stage of mortality.

The prospects in this mission were never so bright as at the present. Some local elders who have been quiet for years, are now taking hold, and the Lord is with them of a truth. Elder Richard Howlett met the Rev. Dr. Rickman, (President of London Methodist conference), a few days ago, at the house of a friend, and among other harsh words he said to Bro. Howlett, "Sir you are so ignorant that, if you were to preach in my church, my flock would spit in your face!" Methinks they would be acting like their brethren of old, the Pharisees. Bro. Howlett had the pleasure to baptize the man and his wife where the talk took place, the next night, who, by the way, were Methodists afore time.

R. C. EVANS.

ECHO, Ind. Ter., Nov. 14th.

Brethren:—Bro. Stephen Maloney has been here four weeks, and I two weeks. Because of lameness I was detained in Webb City, Missouri; but I was well cared for by the Saints of that place. Since coming to the Cherokee Territory I have felt well spiritually and physically. I found Bro. Maloney hard at work battling for truth. We separated two weeks ago, he going to Prairie City, fourteen miles, and I to Cow Skin Prairie, eight miles. At this point, with Bro. Wm. Stewart's help, I soon got out an appointment for preaching and had a full house. I think good was done. I held three meetings on the old stamping ground of Brn. Heman C. Smith, G. Montague, J. Luff, and J. Stewart. I visited some families very much prejudiced against the name of Mormon, but I always left them feeling better than when I found them.

I had the pleasure of visiting Sr. Cowdery and her daughter. They live in South West City, Missouri. Our visit was very pleasant indeed; our conversation mostly upon the history of the rise and departure of the church. I had seen Sr. Cowdery when I was a boy; but I oftener saw her husband, and heard him preach. She was feeling very well. She told me she was married to O. Cowdery in Independence, passed through the trials of persecution of that day. She did not object to the position the Reorganization has taken in supporting the original faith and doctrine of the church. Our visit was short, as I had an appointment on Cow Skin Prairie; but she and her daughter both gave me a strong invitation to come and stay longer. They thought the people of that city needed preaching to as well as the Indians, and I shall likely pay them a longer visit yet. After visiting a week in this way, I went with Bro. Stewart to Prairie City, and there I found Bro. Maloney knocking the knots off prejudice. He had an appointment for me at eleven o'clock; and in this place I remained a week preaching six times, and left the people with less prejudice than when we found them. Bro. Maloney left for Echo Sunday afternoon, while I remained here through the week. Last Saturday Bro. S. Briggs brought me here and Sunday we gave the church members some instruction. There are twelve or fourteen members in this part of the territory.

We shall visit the headquarters of this nation soon. The Council of the Cherokees is now in session, and we would be glad to get our faith and doctrine before the people in print and let them know the difference between the original faith and doctrine of the church and the doctrine of those that have departed from the faith; but this will all take time and means, and we hope the church will stand by us in all our good works.

JOHN HAWLEY.

INDIANS IN SCHOOL.

INTEREST in the education of Indian children has been steadily growing ever since the founding of the schools at Carlisle and Hampton. From the report of John B. Riley, Superintendent of Indian Schools for the United States, it appears that the aggregate expenditure during the year by the government for the education of Indian children was $1,095,379, of which $718,833 was on account of the government boarding schools, and $308,299 for the support of pupils at other boarding schools, most of which institutions are under the control and management of religious denominations. The statistics as to school attendance are important and significant. It appears that the whole number of Indian children between the (school) ages of six and sixteen years is 39,821, and of these 14,932, or about 37½ per cent, attended school during some portion of the year.

The schools already founded and now maintained have been so productive of good work and results that a strong recommendation is made for the establishment of normal institutions, where native teachers may be fitted for service among their own people. This is undoubtedly a wise project, and is worthy of the hearty endorsement of educators and indeed of all philanthropists, and should receive the early and earnest attention of Congress. This principle has been recognized in all the great missionary movements and societies in their efforts to reach strange tribes, and its adoption has been productive of the most satisfactory results. Every successful mission enterprise of ancient or modern times has adopted it. The good judgment of all who have given thought to the subject approves such a method. The Princess Sarah Winne-mucca is laboring among her people along this line. The devoted Riggs family in Dakotah have shown what can be done among the Sioux, while the venerable Bishop Whipple has in his own field among the Chippewa and other North-western tribes his native teachers and pastors, to lead by precept and example the Indians into the larger life and liberty of civilization.—Sel.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

IS BAPTISM ESSENTIAL TO SALVATION?

THE following is a reply written by Bristol G. Evans, of Toronto, Ontario, to a letter written by Egerton K. Evans, of St. Thomas, Ontario, on the subject, "Is Baptism Essential to Salvation."

TORONTO, July 22d, 1887.

Dear Egie:—Yours of the 17th to hand, and must say that I found your arguments, most of them at least, founded on good scriptural proof. But, then, I think the question of baptism has two sides as well as any other. And I can find just as strong scriptural evidences that baptism is not essential as you can that it is, and can be more liberal in my belief. For I believe that Christ foresaw that it would need all the different doctrines and teachings to do His work and further His kingdom on earth. And, therefore, we have all the doctrines and religions which now exist—all based on the Holy Bible and all with one great aim in view—the furthering of Christ's kingdom on earth and the salvation of lost humanity. And as I heard Dr. Jeffray saying a few Sundays ago, that any church that has not Christ as their foundation and chief corner stone is sure to come to naught. Even the Roman Church has its baby Christ, although they do worship Mary more than the baby. Still take the baby out of it and it would be sure to fall. Now for scripture.

First, why don't Peter tell the multitude who assembled in Solomon's porch to be baptized for remission of sins. He simply said: (Acts 3; 19): "Repent ye, therefore and be converted that your sins may be blotted out, when the time of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." (Note) Peter takes the keys of the kingdom (repentance and faith) and on the day of Pentecost says to the multitude: "Repent and be baptized every one of you for remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost," and we are told three thousand accepted. The very next sermon we have any account of Peter preaching was to the multitude in Solomon's Porch. Taking the same keys says,

"Repent and be converted (change your ways) that your sins may be blotted out," and we are told (Acts 4: 4) that five thousand believed (two thousand more than first sermon). Were they not saved simply by believing? Certainly they were.

Second, Ah, Eg, well said those Gentiles at Cesarea (Acts 10 chap) did receive remission of their sins and the Holy Ghost before they were baptized, and were they not saved just as much as those Jews on day of Pentecost. And it seems strange indeed if Christ taught Peter that baptism was essential for remission of sins, the first sermon to the Gentile world should be "Who-soever believeth in Him" shall receive remission of sins, and the Holy Ghost fell on all who heard (which believed); and if we poor Methodists have got so far behind, surely that is one place where we erred. But, God be praised, we are Gentiles, and that was the first sermon preached to us poor sinners. That's rather hollow, Eg, that they received the Holy Ghost before baptism, simply to convince the Jews that there was salvation for the Gentiles. It would have doubly convinced them had they received remission of sins the same as the Jews. I don't mean to insinuate that the Jews can not receive remission of sins excepting by baptism—for Christ is no respecter of persons, and those five thousand Jews in the Porch were saved simply by believing. Then note Peter's explanation to the apostles and brethren (Acts 11: 16). "Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how He said John baptized indeed with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost." Acts 11: 21.—"And the hand of the Lord was with them; and a great number believed and turned unto the Lord."

First Corinthians, first chapter we find Paul thanked God he had baptized so few of them because he saw they were placing too much trust in baptism, and says decidedly in the 17th verse that Christ sent him not to baptize, but to preach the gospel.

How do you make out from John 1: 33, that baptism is essential? I admit that John the Baptist was sent to baptize with water, but surely it says in latter clause of verse, that Christ was sent to baptize with Holy Ghost. And is it not strange the first sentence Christ should utter when he started to preach was, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," (not repent and be baptized)—Matt. 4: 17. And note, John the Baptist, after explaining to those Jews who came to him, saying, "how is it Christ is receiving more disciples than you." He ends up his most satisfactory explanation by saying: "He that believeth on the Son (not believeth and is baptized) hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not shall not see life"—Jno. 3: 36.

Well, Eg, I think I have said enough, having been reading up carefully the subject since I received your letter, and there are many parts of the Bible my eye has not traversed, where, no doubt, I could find many more strong scriptural proofs. But must say that I am most satisfactorily convinced that salvation and eternal glory can be obtained by simply believing in our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and it makes very little material difference whether you are baptized with water when an infant, after receiving remission of sins, or to obtain remission of sins.

God bless you, Eggie; good night.

B. G. EVANS.

The following is the answer to the foregoing:—

ST. THOMAS, July 31st, 1887.

Dear Bristol:—Received yours on 25th all right. You say you can show just as strong scriptural evidence that baptism is not essential, as I can that it is. That, however, is the question which we have set about to decide, and you must not jump to conclusions till more proof has been brought forth. What would you think of a judge that would decide a case on which the life or death of a human soul hung after hearing only a part of the evidence of one witness? You say you allow me to be liberal, if to be so I have to sacrifice the principles of Christ's doctrine.

You say that all the different doctrines and teachings are necessary, and that without Christ in them they would fall. This is foreign to our subject, therefore I will say very little about it, but will deal with it at some future time if you wish. You think the different doctrines and teachings are necessary. You therefore acknowledge that there are different doctrines and teachings, but Paul says in Gal. 1:8, 9:—“But though we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed.” Also in Cor. 12:25, he says, “There should be no schism in the body.” Who is right, you or Paul? Dr. Jeffray says that a church without a Christ would fall, does he? And Dr. Talmage says that for every Christian there are twenty-five people who worship something else than Christ. Their religions seem to flourish without a Christ. Can you mention an age of the world when the Christian church flourished as well as those that did not believe in Christ? The Methodist church is comparatively young yet, and what proof have we that it will not fall? In St. Thomas, in the last year, it has dropped about ten per cent., both in attendance and in finances. Take the grand music out of the Methodist church and how long will it stand? Do not nine-tenths, yes ninety-nine-hundredths of those who attend church attend it to hear the music and show their fine clothes? I also believe that Christ and his apostles foresaw that there would be many different denominations, and they spoke very harsh about it too; I will not repeat their words for fear of offending you.

You admit that on the day of Pentecost Peter commanded them to be baptized for remission of sins; but you say that when preaching in Solomon's Porch he said nothing about baptism, but commanded them to repent and be converted that their sins might be blotted out; therefore, obedience to the commandment given by Peter on the day of Pentecost is not essential to salvation. Now that you started that style of argument, I feel at perfect liberty to continue on in that same strain as follows: The 20th chapter of Exodus says: “Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal,” &c., &c., but Peter said nothing about that in Solomon's Porch, therefore obedience to those commandments are not essential to salvation. Again, Drs. Sutherland, Wild, Jeffray, Talmage, and every other preacher, from the little $400 a year man in the country to the big $10,000 man in the city, will tell us that faith is essential to salvation, but they only show their ignorance, for Peter said nothing about it in Solomon's Porch. You keep on with that style of argument and see where it will lead you. Peter says, “Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out.” What does “converted” mean? You say it means “change your ways.” The definition of the word is simply “changed”—it may be from either good to bad or bad to good, black to white or white to black. In this case it evidently means to be converted, to be changed from bad to good, and the only way to be changed from bad to good is to begin to be obedient to the laws of God. Having arrived at that conclusion we must next find out what the laws of God are; and among other things, if baptism is a law of God. Jesus said that God had given him a commandment what he should say and what he should speak; and he said to the apostles, “Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father,” &c. Therefore baptism is a law of God, and those people, to be converted, would have to be baptized.

You say that five thousand believed. Does the Bible say so! I think if you read the fourth verse of the chapter you will find that there was five thousand of an audience and that many of them believed. Wouldn't fifty be a good many out of five thousand to believe after hearing one sermon. Then again, believing was not necessary at all, for Peter said nothing about it in Solomon's Porch. Peter told them to repent and be converted, and we have no evidence that one of them did so. It simply says many of them believed. Believed what? Believed what Peter said; but does it ever intimate in the most remote way that they were saved? I say, not at that time; neither were those on the day of Pentecost, for Paul says, “He that endureth to the end the same shall be saved.” And have you any evidence that they were not baptized? You will say, It doesn't say so. Well, does it say they repented? No; it is simply a very much abridged account of what was done, and it is not surprising that the writer omitted to mention that they repented and were baptized.

You think it kind of hollow, do you, that the Gentiles were given the Holy Ghost simply to convince the Jews that they could receive salvation? Really, Bristol, if you would read the chapter you would see that for yourself. But lest you make a mistake I will explain. Peter evidently thought the Gentiles were not as good as the Jews, and God gave him a vision of a vessel descending full of all manner of beasts. Peter could not understand what this meant. About the same time an angel was telling the Gentiles to go to Peter, and God, knowing Peter's prejudice against them, gave him this vision to prepare him to meet them. And in the 28th verse of the 10th chapter, Peter said, God had shown him that he should not call any man common or unclean. And when Cornelius made his explanations Peter became fully convinced; and in the 34th and 35th verse says, “Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons; but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.” Notice those words “worketh righteousness.” You see both Gentiles and Jews had to work righteousness to be accepted. Something more than believing. To work righteousness would they need to be baptized? When about to be baptized, Jesus said to John, “Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness.” Jesus needed to be baptized to fulfill all righteousness. You say those Gentiles did not need to; if so, is not God a respecter of persons? We have seen that Peter needed a vision to convince him. Then Peter went on to preach to them. In the 37th verse he intimates to them that it is not necessary for him to go into all the details of the gospel. They knew it already. It was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached. It was not necessary for Peter to explain about baptism. He just told them it was the same as John preached, and they knew what John preached. They had always called Jesus a fraud, and of course Peter knew the main thing he had to contend with was their unbelief in Jesus. He knew if he could convince them that Jesus was the Son of God he could easily get them to be baptized. They all knew that Jesus was baptized, and that he baptized others, and that he told his disciples to baptize. Therefore Peter knew that if they believed in Jesus they would certainly believe in baptism. Naturally enough Peter began to bring to their remembrance the wonderful things they had seen Christ do. How he cast out devils—how he was raised from the dead, &c., &c. And now we come to the 43d verse where you get your best argument, “Whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins.” But, Bristol, didn't you notice you left out the first of that verse? The verse reads, “To him give all the prophets witness that through his name, whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins.” Through his name. That's what you left out. What does “through his name” mean? Turn to Matt. 28:19; it reads, “Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations (that includes Gentiles) baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.” Don't you think that is how they would receive remission of sins, in or through his name, by being baptized in his name? As I before expressed, Peter was given a vision to convince him that the Gentiles could be saved; but what about the rest of the Jews that were with Peter? Did not they need to be convinced that it was right before they would baptize them? Certainly they did. God knew this, and to convince them he gave the Gentiles the Holy Ghost, and the 45th verse says, "They of the circumcision (the Jews) were astonished that on the Gentiles was also poured out the gift of the Holy Ghost." Then Peter, in the 47th verse says, "Can any man forbid water that these should be baptized?" It is evident that they would have refused water to baptize them had not God done this to convince them. You say it would doubly have convinced them had they received remission of sins the same as the Jews—by baptism. How else did they receive it? They received the Holy Ghost before they were baptized, but it does not say that they received remission of sins before they were baptized. Then you say the Jews could receive remission of sins by simply believing, because God is no respecter of persons. You did not deny that Paul had to be baptized to be saved, that the three thousand had to be baptized on the day of Pentecost, for remission of sins, or that Christ had to be baptized to fulfill all righteousness, and yet all the Methodists are going to be saved, get a remission of their sins and fulfill all righteousness without being baptized! If so, don't you think God is a little easy on the Methodists and a little hard on Paul, the three thousand, and on Jesus, and therefore a respecter of persons? Tell me in your next, do you still think it hollow that they were given the Holy Ghost to convince the Jews that they (the Gentiles) could be saved?

You repeat the words, "John baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost," and seem to think that does away with baptism. I fail to see that. If you made a man a pair of pants and then I made him a coat would you say the pants were no longer necessary? You could just as reasonably as to say that although John baptized with water it is no longer necessary because Jesus baptized with the Holy Ghost, especially when Jesus himself says, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he can not enter the kingdom of heaven."

Next you quote, "And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and turned unto the Lord." You think this means that they only believed. Why, Bristol, it says they turned unto the Lord after they believed. That is, they began to obey his commands—and to do so they must be baptized.

You say Paul thanked God he had baptized so few, because he saw they were placing too much trust in baptism. The Bible does not say so; but it says he thanked God he had baptized so few, least any should say he baptized in his own name. Each one had been boasting that so and so had baptized him, thinking he was better on that account. They were worshiping the man that baptized them instead of worshiping God, and Paul did not like to be worshiped that way. He knew it was wrong, and he thanked God he had baptized so few. He did not wish they had not been baptized. He was simply thankful he had baptized so few.

Next you tell me that Christ sent Paul not to baptize, but to preach the gospel. John the Baptist had a special commission to baptize, but he also had authority to preach. Paul had a special commission to preach the gospel and he also had authority to baptize. Paul had been given the gifts of wisdom and of knowledge, and he could employ his time more profitably in the service of Christ by preaching the gospel and allowing some of those who were not such good preachers to do the baptizing. But Paul was to preach the gospel. Let us see what he thought the gospel was. He enumerates its first principles in Hebrews 6:2, as follows: "Doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment." Notice an "s" on the end of the word "baptisms." There is more than one baptism, then, in these principles. Paul says he was sent to preach the gospel, and he says baptism is one of its principles, therefore Paul was sent to preach baptism, and somebody else could administer the ordinance.

You say that when Christ started to preach the first words he said were "Repent for the kingdom of heaven is at hand;" (not repent and be baptized); therefore, baptism is not essential. Did he say anything about believing? No. Therefore is believing not essential? But what does "repent" mean? Does it not mean "cease to do wrong and strive to do right?" Is it right to be baptized? The Bible says so oftener than it says it is wrong to murder.

Next you speak of them coming to John and telling him that Jesus baptized more than he, and John said, "He that believeth on the Son (not believeth and is baptized) hath everlasting life." Was it necessary that John should say "He that believeth and is baptized?" I think not. They had not seen Jesus and John baptizing and they knew it was part of the doctrine, therefore John only said, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life," knowing full well that if a man believeth in Christ he would certainly believe what he said and what he did was right. Jesus said he came not to do his own will, but the will of him who sent him. Was he doing the will of God, then, when he was baptizing in Enon? and if he failed to baptize those that believed would he be doing the will of him who sent him? and would they be doing the will of God if they refused to be baptized when God sent John to baptize them?

Now, Bristol, I have taken up every passage you have quoted and shown you the proper meaning of each. Read it carefully and pray over it. Ask God to show you the truth. I do not ask taith; but simply ask him to show you the truth. Before doing so be sure you are willing to obey it. If you fully determine that you will obey the truth no matter what it is, and then ask God in faith to show it you,

I am satisfied you will be answered to your entire satisfaction.

Probably in reading this letter you will think I am harsh in some places; but there is not one sentence in the letter written with the least intention of hurting your feelings; and if it does hurt you, I ask you to remember that every word is written with a desire from my heart to do you good, and I think you will forgive me. If I break your golden calf of Methodism it is only to show you that the gold is only skin deep and the rest is lead, and if you will accept of it I will replace it with a diamond one. Hoping to hear from you soon I still remain,

Yours as ever,

EGERTON K. EVANS.

P. S.—If you are tired of these letters I will write no more, as I do not wish, and I think it is not God's will, that I should force it on you against your will; but I will consider it a favor if you will allow me to write you, and, if you will, answer the letters. If Methodism is right, searching your Bible for proof in answering my letters will make your letters able to defend it.

I do not take my arguments from a book, and I think I have not yet used one that I ever read or heard before. Do you think I do it alone? No. You know I am not smart enough. But while writing I believe I have the great Prompter close by my side putting words into my mouth to utter.—E. K. E.

Selections.

MORMONS IN MISSOURI.

THEIR EARLY EXPERIENCE IN JACKSON COUNTY.—SOME OF THE EVENTS AND INCIDENTS WHICH LED UP TO THE MISSOURI MORMON WAR.

THE period of the Mormon occupation of Missouri, from 1832 to 1839, has never, we believe, been fully described in any newspaper. It is often alluded to in all the books having Mormonism for a subject, but in most instances receives but little other consideration or notice than a passing reference. It is proposed in the following paper to give some account of the occupation of a considerable portion of the western part of the state by the Mormons, with a narrative of the leading events of the so-called Mormon War, an episode vaguely mentioned occasionally, very imperfectly understood by those who read of it, and gradually fading out of the memory of those who once understood it.

The first Mormon settlement in Missouri was made in Jackson County. In 1831 the Mormon "Prophet," Joseph Smith, accompanied by two of his elders, came to the State in search of a location for a new "Zion" for his followers, the greater number of whom were then at Kirtland, O., surrounded by a population hostile to them and their new religion, and greatly desiring the riddance of both,

Smith first visited Saline County, and spent some days in looking over the fine country in the Grand Pass, with which he was greatly pleased. He then passed on through Lafayette County and thence into Jackson. At Independence he claimed to receive a "revelation" that this was to be the seat of the new Mormon "kingdom." He made arrangements for the entry of several thousand acres of land, west of Independence, called the locality the "New Jerusalem," and then returned to Kirtland.

SMITH'S RETURN TO JACKSON COUNTY.

In 1832 Smith returned with many of his followers to Jackson county. The settlements were made chiefly west of Independence. The land and all other property professedly belonged to the Mormons in common, but really the bishops and leaders owned everything, the land titles specially vesting in them. A storehouse called "the Lord's," but controlled by the leaders, was established at Independence. A newspaper called the Morning and Evening Star, the official organ of the church, was established, and every week divers "revelations," promising all good to the faithful and direful woes to the wicked Gentiles, were published. The Mormons received no welcome from the older settlers in Missouri. Their presence was extremely distasteful to the citizens of Jackson county, "the Gentiles," who could tolerate no nonsense of "new revelations," the "second kingdom," etc.

The Mormon paper of June, 1833, published an article entitled, "Free People of Color," which roused against the sect the bitter hostility of the pro-slavery people of the county then, as for years afterward, especially sensitive on the subject of abolitionism. The anti-Mormon paper of Independence about the same time came out with an article entitled, "Beware of False Prophets," leveled especially at the Mormon leaders, charging them with all sorts of wickedness, and alleging among other things that the "goods" which the church claimed to own "in common" comprised the wives! It is but the truth to say that no evidence worth attention was adduced in support of this allegation. The article was bitter and very hostile in its tone, and produced the effect its author (who, it is said, was Hon. Lilburn W. Boggs, then a citizen of Independence, and Lieutenant Governor, afterward Governor) intended. The people were aroused, and insulted and maltreated the Mormons on all occasions. Numbers of the "Saints" were brutally beaten, and some were tied up and whipped unmercifully.

THE GENTILE ADDRESS.

A general meeting of the citizens of Jackson county, "for the purpose of adopting measures to rid ourselves of the sect of fanatics called Mormons," was held at Independence July 20th, 1833. About five hundred Gentile people from all parts of the county attended, and an "address to the public" was agreed upon. This address stated that only a little more than two years previously "some two or three of these people appeared in Missouri; now they number upwards of twelve hundred;" that each successive spring and autumn poured forth a new swarm; that the mass of them were ignorant and poverty stricken, "a little above the condition of the blacks;" that they exercised "a corrupting influence" over the slaves, and they believed and boasted that the whole country of Missouri was their destined inheritance and that all unbelievers in Mormonism were to be "cut off" in the Lord's good time. The address concluded:

Of their pretended revelations from heaven—their personal intercourse with God and his angels—the maladies they pretended to heal by laying on of hands—and the contentible gibberish with which they habitually profane the Sabbath, and which they dignify with the appellation of unknown tongues, we have nothing to say; vengeance belongs to God alone. But as to the other matters set forth in this paper, we feel called on, by every consideration of self-preservation, good society, public morals and the fair prospects that, if they are not blasted in the germ, await this young and beautiful country—at once to declare, and we do hereby most solemnly declare:

That no Mormon shall in future move and settle in this country.

That those now here, who shall give a definite pledge of their intention within a reasonable time to remove out of the country shall be allowed to remain unmolested until they have sufficient time to sell their property and close their business without any material sacrifice.

That the editor of the Star be required forthwith to close his office and discontinue the business of printing in this county; and as to all other stores and shops belonging to the sect, their owners must in every case comply with the terms of the second article of this declaration, and upon failure, prompt and efficient measures will be taken to close the same.

That the Mormon leaders are required to use their influence in preventing further emigration of their distant brethren to the country, and to counsel and advise their brethren here to comply with the above requisitions.

That those who refuse to comply with these requisitions be referred to those of their brethren who have gifts of divination and of unknown tongues to inform them of the lot that awaits them.

DELIVERING THE RESOLUTIONS.

The address being unanimously adopted, the meeting adjourned for two hours, and a deputation waited upon W. W. Phelps, the editor of the Star and of the Advertiser, and Edward Partridge, the Bishop, and on the keeper of the Mormon store, and warned them to comply with the resolutions at once. This deputation soon reported to the meeting that no direct answer had been obtained; that the Mormons wished an unreasonable length of time in which to confer with Joseph Smith, their "Prophet," who was then at Kirtland, O. It was therefore, resolved that the Star printing office should be immediately razed to the ground, and the types and presses destroyed. This was done. The printing material was thrown into the Missouri River, after which several Mormons were severely beaten, and Bishop Partridge and Storekeeper Allen were seized, stripped naked, tarred and feathered liberally and turned loose. One paddle of tar was thrust into Partridge's mouth, and he was nearly suffocated. Lieut. Gov. Boggs was in the vicinity, and had full knowledge of the lawless proceedings, but refused to interfere.

July 23d, several hundred of the Jackson County citizens, well armed, and bearing a red flag, again assembled. They declared their intention of driving the "Saints" forcibly out of Missouri if they would not go peaceably. Thoroughly overawed, the Mormons agreed, if time was given them, that they would leave the country. An agreement was signed that one-half the Mormons, with their wives and families, should depart on the 1st of January, and the other half by the 1st of April following; that the paper should be suspended, and that no more Mormons should come into the country. No violence was to be done to the Mormons, provided these conditions were complied with. In their unhappy situation the Mormons petitioned Gov. Daniel Dunklin for aid, protection and reparation. The Governor replied in a very sensible and conciliatory letter, in which he stated that the attack on them was illegal and unjustifiable, and recommended them to remain where they were, and to apply for redress to the courts of the country. The Mormons thereupon resolved to remain in Missouri, and to proceed in the "building up of the Zion," trusting to the protection of the Governor and the other state authorities. They also commenced legal action against the ringleaders of the mob, and paid an able legal firm $1000 to prosecute them.

THE GENTILES RAIDING THE SAINTS.

But October 30th the Jackson County Gentiles were again in arms and raiding the "saints." Ten houses of the Mormons, on the Big Blue, were demolished, and the inmates driven away. The following day a number of houses at Independence and in other parts of the county were plundered, and much Mormon property was forcibly taken and appropriated. Some of the scenes enacted are said to have been altogether disgraceful, rivaling, if not surpassing, the worst excesses of the Kansas jayhawkers and Missouri bushwhackers during the civil war.

In some instances the Mormons resisted. November 2d in a skirmish at Linwood, two miles southeast of Kansas City, in what was known as the Whitmer settlement, two Gentiles were killed and several wounded. At last, the State militia, under Lieut. Gov. Boggs, was called out to "preserve the peace." The militia, however, were anti-Mormon to a man, and the unhappy saints, knowing this, realized that they were at the mercy of their enemies, and saw that they had no alternative but to flee. It was absolutely perilous for a solitary Mormon to show himself in a town or village.

INTO CLAY COUNTY.

Affrighted and terror-stricken, the Mormons crossed the river and sought safety in Clay County. November 7th the crossing began. The weather was cold and rainy, and there was great discomfort and misery among the fugitives; the plundered, half-clad women and children, especially, suffered severely. But the people of Clay received the newcomers kindly. They allowed them to remain, rented them houses, furnished them provisions and gave them employment. For this the Clay County people were long intensely hated by their neighbors in Jackson. Some of the Mormons fled to Cass County, (then Van Buren), but were again compelled to flee. In after years, during the civil war, when the Counties of Cass and Jackson were among those depopulated and devastated by Gen. Ewing's "order No. 11," the Mormons declared it a divine judgment on those counties for their persecution of the "Saints" thirty years before.

The public authorities of the State, or some of them at least, were indignant at these lawless proceedings and sympathized with the efforts of the Mormons to obtain redress. The Attorney General, Hon. Robert W. Wells, wrote to them that if they desired to be re-established in their possessions in Jackson County an adequate public force would be sent for their protection. He also advised them to remain in the State and organize themselves into a regular company of militia, promising them a supply of the public arms if they should do so.

AVERSE TO FIGHTING.

But the Mormons were averse to fighting or to taking any steps that should lead to further trouble with the citizens of Missouri, whose good will they seemed anxious to secure in order that they might be allowed to remain in the State in peace. The Territory of Kansas then belonged to the Indians and was not open to white settlement; so they began to seek for new homes on the north side of the Missouri. In June, 1834, Joe Smith visited them in Clay County and counseled them to make no violent attempt to recover the "New Jerusalem," to which, he assured them, his Church should be restored "in God's own time."

As the Jackson County people had seized upon and occupied the houses and lands of the Mormons, and expected to retain them, it was but natural that they should desire some legal title to them. They sent a proposition to the Mormons in Clay to buy their lands, offering them per acre the Government price, $1.25, allowing nothing for improvements. The Mormons refused the proposition, and it was finally agreed that the matter should be submitted to certain prominent citizens of Clay for arbitration. The arbiters met at Liberty, and Jackson sent over thirteen commissioners. The Mormons were properly represented. The Jackson men, seeing that their case was a poor one, and that the decision would in all probability be against them, withdrew after a few hours session of the council, and, accusing the Clay County men of sympathy with the Mormons, left Liberty in great indignation, after a fight had been prevented only by persistent effort.

A PECULIAR INCIDENT.

One of the most prominent of the delegation, James Campbell, swore that the war against the Mormons should now be renewed and that he himself intended to kill Joe Smith and "give his carcass to the buzzards." That night, in recrossing the Missouri, the ferryboat sunk, and six or seven of the delegation—Campbell among the number—were drowned. Campbell's body floated down stream some distance and lodged on a sand bar. When found the buzzards had devoured and mutilated it horribly. Joe Smith announced the fact to his followers and claimed that he had brought his fate upon himself by his threats against "the Prophet of the Lord." Many, if not all, of the Mormons believed him, and that the retributive justice of heaven had fallen upon the others who were drowned because of their persecution of the "saints."

A few days later Smith returned to Ohio, and did not return to Missouri for more than three years afterward. The Mormons gradually extended their settlements, occupying portions of Clay, Ray, Carroll, Daviess, Livingstone and Caldwell Counties, the last three named counties not being organized till 1836.

BURR JOYCE.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Nov. 24th, 1857.

Original Poetry.

THE BLESSINGS OF JESUS.

"MAY GOD BE GLORIFIED IN US."

To the Twelve Tribes of Israel scattered abroad, greeting:—

The blessings of Jesus,
Are treasures forever;
So pure, bright and lovely,
So deep, broad and high;
So true, and so holy,
So just, meek and lowly,
They compass all creation,
They bound every sky.

They bring us a Savior,
Whose love is unbounded;
His right arm is bared
For his children's defence;
His ear is perceiving,
His eye is beholding,
The days of his children,
He'll be their defence;

Their Rock and their shelter,
Their high tower and fortress,
Their horn of salvation
To throw down the walls
Of cities and castles,
And every obstruction
That Satan has planted
To hinder their cause.

He is their protector,
Their father, their brother,
Their shepherd, their keeper,
Their captain and guide;
Their watchword on land,
And their pilot on water,
To save them in danger
Whatever betide.

His name is Emanuel;
Mighty Jehovah;
Creator of heaven,
And earth land and sea;

Of animal, vegetable,
Mineral, and chaos;
Whatever composes
The things that we see,

Or hear, feel, or smell;
For he is King of princes.
His hand hath done all things
Pertaining to right;
His word when obeyed
Every sinner convinces;
But the wicked fear not him—
They love not the light.

But just are his ways
In his throne, truth and judgment,
Equity and knowledge,
And power all divine;
With mercy and justice,
And faith, hope and kindness;
Ever bearing him praises,
From time unto time.

But time is not with him
As it is unto mortals;
He metes it to them
From Eternity's verge;
That they may prepare
When they pass through death's portals;
To enter life with him
Like surge upon surge.

Oh, come to the banquet,
Ye who are invited;
To take of the feast
All prepared by the Lamb;
The Lion of Judah,
Says, Be not benighted
For he bids all to come
Who's "I am, that I am."

Then come to the banquet,
All ye who will serve him;
'Tis prepared for the Saints
Who hold fast to the end.
The halt, and the blind,
And the maimed, deaf and dumb;
All those who love God
Will find Jesus their friend.

The pure in their hearts,
With the tried and the tempted,
And those persecuted
For righteousness' sake;
His innocent children
By all men rejected,
Though their burdens be heavy,
Their bands he will break.

They will dwell on the earth!
He will reign all victorious!
From the north to the south,
And from deep unto deep,
He's sent fishers and hunters,
And pastors and teachers,
Apostles and prophets,
To gather his sheep.

MIL O A. GAVETT.

PLANO, Ill., Jan. 4th, 1857.

PROHIBITION AND PRAYER.

THE following, from one of Hon. Ansley Gray's lectures, brings the question home to professing Christians who are withholding their support from prohibitory amendments:

"I respect the opinions of all men, but I can not understand how a man can pray, 'Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name'—and then go to the ballot-box and vote to desecrate that name. I can not understand how one can pray, 'Thy Kingdom come,' and then go to the ballot-box and vote for Satan's kingdom to come. I can not understand how one can pray, 'Give us this day our daily bread,' and cast a vote to take bread from the mouth of the white-faced woman and the thin-lipped child. I can not understand how one can pray, 'Lead us not into temptation,' and then cast a vote that thrusts temptation in a brother's way. Nor how, at the altar, one can pray for the drunkard, and at the ballot-box vote to make drunkards; around is insulted humanity, above an insulted God!"

Conference Minutes.

LONDON, ONTARIO.

This conference was held, October 16th, 1887, at the Masonville branch, in Dufferin county, John H. Lake president pro tem, J. A. McIntosh clerk pro tem. The Saints spent an hour in prayer, testimony and song. Branch Reports: Riverview 15, Egremont 56, Cameron 53, Masonville 56, Proton 51, Alliston 11, St. Marys 39, Ellice, McKellop, Osborne, St. Thomas, London, Augerman and Waleingham no reports. Elders reports by letter: S. Brown (baptized 5), W. J. Smith (baptized 46), T. A. Phillips, G. Mottashed (baptized 3), W. Morrison, R. C. Evans (baptized 13), John H. Lake (baptized 6). In person: J. A. McIntosh had labored in Kent and Elgin district where report appears; J. Wilson, J. McLean. Priests reports: J. Shield had labored at Masonville and Amaranth. W. McMurdo no report. Secretary E. E. Mortimer tendered resignation and was released. Elder Amos H. Lake and Teacher James O'Brien (of the Cameron branch) were granted licences according to their office, Elder Lake having lost his. Charles King was chosen secretary of district. Resolved that Riverton branch be continued as an organization. That R. C. Evans be president till next conference. That W. J. Smith be vice-president till next conference. That S. Brown be Bishop's agent. That J. H. Lake be delegate to General Conference of April, 1888. A vote of thanks was tendered Sr. V. L. King as organist, also to the Saints of Masonville branch for hospitalities. Bro. R. C. Evans preached in the evening from Acts 13:41. Prayer meeting Sunday at 9 a. m., in charge of J. A. McIntosh, during which 10 testimonies, 1 prayer, and 4 hymns were sung. Two children were blessed by R. C. Evans and W. Morrison. At 10:30 preaching by J. A. McIntosh. At 2:30 p. m. preaching by J. H. Lake from 1 Cor. 6:19, 20. At the close of this service the little "Bethel" erected as a house of worship was dedicated to God,—dedicatory prayer by R. C. Evans. At 6:30 p. m. preaching by R. C. Evans, from Psalms 85:10-12. Unity, peace, love and good will to all prevailed throughout. Adjourned to meet at St. Mary's the first Saturday and Sunday in June, 1888.

TEXAS CENTRAL.

The above conference convened with the Saints at Cook's Point, October 28th, 1887, at 7:30 p. m.; Bro. E. W. Nunley in the chair, I. N. Roberts secretary, pro tem. Bro. H. L. Thompson preached. Good instructions were given. Elders reports.—E. W. Nunley, I. N. Roberts, (baptized 27), S. R. Hay, H. L. Thompson, S. W. Simmons (baptized 3), J. W. Bryan, S. P. Sherrill. Priests C. C. Holcomb, F. C. Gough. Bishop's Agent's report.—On hand last report $16.05, received since $65. Total $81.05, paid out 67.35. Due church $13.70. Branch reports: Texas Central 42, including 1 Seventy, 4 elders, 1 priest, 1 teacher; 1 baptized, 1 received by certificate of baptism, 5 received by letter, 3 ordinations. Elmwood 65, including 5 elders, 2 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon; 3 baptized. Elkhart referred back for correction. Committee on tent had done nothing, times being hard. The committee was discharged. Resolved, That in the opinion of this body dancing is unchristian-like, and members of the church engaging in it should be dealt with for transgression of law. Elias Land tendered his resignation as clerk of the district which was accepted, and a vote of thanks was given him. E. W. Nunley was sustained president of district, and F. C. Gough was chosen clerk, and W. M. Sherrill Bishop's Agent. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. by Bro. Nunley, assisted by Bro. S. R. Hay. Prayer meeting Sunday morning at 9:30, S. W. Simmons in charge. Preaching at 11 a. m. by I. N. Roberts assisted by S. P. Sherrill. Sacrament and prayer meeting at 3 p. m., S. P. Sherrill and C. C. Holcombe in charge. Preaching at 7:30 p. m. by H. L. Thompson, assisted by I. N. Roberts. Adjourned to meet with the Elmwood branch, on Friday before the full moon in March, 1888.

DECATUR.

This district conference met at Lucas, Iowa, October 1st, 1887; H. A. Stebbins president, L. W. Powell clerk, pro tem. Branch reports:—Lucas 219, 2 died, 1 expelled. Lamoni 584, 2 baptized, 2 received, 1 expelled. Davis City 60, 4 baptized, 3 received. Greenville, 37, 1 received. Pleasanton 108, 2 expelled. Lone Rock 60, 2 baptized. Allendale 51, 9 baptized. The president reported having labored in all parts of the district since last conference; also that the two-day meetings ordered had been held, various brethren kindly assisting. Most of the branches are growing in numbers and in spirituality. The elders have enjoyed good liberty in preaching, good results have followed their labors. Elders O. B. Thomas, John Watkins and A. S. Cochran reported their branches. John Landers, T. J. Bell, J. T. Phillips, Henry Jones, J. R. Evans, J. J. Watkins, T. A. John, T. R. Allen, and Priests Green Cloyd, Nephi Lovell, L. W. Powell John Davis, Parley Batten, and Teacher R. Archibald reported. Henry A. Stebbins was chosen as president and F. M. Weld as clerk for the coming year. Resolved, that this conference calls the attention of all the Saints in the district to the fact that there are many openings for preaching in the district, and we therefore exhort them to improve every opportunity for the spread of the work, either with their means or by their individual labors. Resolved that there be established a Contingent Fund in the district, for the purpose of hiring halls in those places where preaching is demanded and yet no means at hand for that purpose. Preaching in the evening by T. J. Bell; on Sunday morning by Green Cloyd; afternoon by John Landers, followed by testimony meeting. Evening sermon by O. B. Thomas. Speakers were assisted by J. T. Phillips, J. R. Evans and H. A. Stebbins. Adjourned to Pleasanton, to meet February 25th, 1888.

Miscellaneous.

BORN.

KING.—At Clinton, Iowa, December 25th, 1881, to Bro. H. and Sr. Sarah King, a daughter; blessed November 27th, 1887, by Elder J. S. Roth, and named Zada. Also on November 29th, 1886, a son; blessed November 27th, 1887, by Elder J. S. Roth and named Ernest Howard.

DIED.

REISS.—At Tipton, California, November 13th, 1887, of fever, Sr. Frances Reiss, aged 31 years, 4 months and 4 days. She was baptized into the Reorganized Church by Bro. Burton, in Los Angeles, California. She was a kind and faithful mother, and leaves a husband and two children to mourn her death. She bore a faithful testimony till the last.

Sleep, sweet mother, sister, friend,
Thy race was nobly ran,
In faith and patience to the end,
Thy life-work was "well done."

ADAMS.—Sr. Mattie Adams was born September 17th, 1857, and passed quietly away in the early morn of October 30th, 1887, being 30 years, 1 month and 13 days old. She united with the church when about fourteen years of age, and adorned the profession all through life. She became the consort of Stephen N. Adams, December 31st, 1874; was a true and loving companion, a fond and devoted mother, an ardent and generous Saint, and a happy and kind neighbor. The writer was called upon to pray with and for her a few brief hours before her pilgrimage was done. She then asked him to anoint her, and her sufferings were alleviated forthwith. It was evident to all that this, the last sad rite of the church, was more for her death and burial than for her recovery and health. As the midnight chime fell dolefully that patient and resigned, that loved and lamented one was breathing her life peacefully forth in death. Just as the first moments of the new day were ushered in, a soul was freed from a tenement of clay. Out of death is evolved life, and from the cross she has gone to receive an unfading crown of glory, honor, immortality, and eternal life. The sweetest, happiest, and best memories cluster around her sojourn here, and the triumph and eternal power of the resurrection give strength to the soul and food for the journey. She is now in Paradise, soon to return with Christ all radiant and in ineffable glory. She leaves an almost heart-broken husband; a sad, sweet, fair, delicate, intellectual daughter of nine, and two promising, rugged boys, ages seven and five respectively. Neighbors and friends vied in kindnesses through the ordeal, and a large concourse accompanied the remains to the cemetery.

M. T. SHORT.

CLIFT.—In Salt Lake City, Utah, November 11th, 1887, Mary A. Clift, of old age. She was born December 7th, 1805; joined the Reorganized Church in September, 1869; was confirmed by Elder A. H. Smith. She lived a consistent life, and died firm in the faith. Her husband, Thomas Clift, died in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1852, while on their way to Utah. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Eithan Barrows, in the Saints' Chapel on the 13th. A large attendance at the funeral.

EDGINGTON.—In Salt Lake City, Utah, July 2d, 1883, William Edgington, from abscess of the right lung, after an illness of two weeks. Funeral services conducted by Elder W. W. Blair, at residence, 11th ward, on the 3d.

EATON.—Peter H. Eaton, of Deer Isle, Maine, was born March 9th, 1793; was baptized into the Reorganized Church, March 9th, 1866, by G. W. Eaton; died October 28th, 1887. His life was consistent with his profession of faith, and he died with a testimony of God's presence and power with him, and with faith in the promise of a glorious resurrection. We believe Bro. Eaton said truly, "It is well with my soul." Sermon by U. W. Greene, from 1. Thess. 4:13-18.

POWELL.—In Ray county Missouri, September 12th, 1887, Elder David Powell, formerly of Plano, Illinois, aged 70 years and 5 days. He was born in Tennessee and was baptized in Grant county, Wisconsin, April 3d, 1842, by Samuel Smith. He was also one of the earliest members of the Reorganized Church, having been present at the first conference preparatory to organization, held June 12th and 13th, 1852, at Newark, Rock County, Wisconsin. He remained faithful to the work and his last words were, "My faith is strong." His wife, nine children, two step-sons, and many friends mourn his loss.

NOTICE.

To the Saints and friends of the South-Western mission: You are hereby warned against one Elias Land; he is no longer a representative of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

I. N. ROBERTS,

Pres. of Mission.

Eastern Iowa district conference will convene at Clinton, the first Friday in February, 1888. Let us have a full attendance, especially of the ministry.

WM. T. MAITLAND, Dist. Sec.

It is due Bro. C. C. Reynold's, bishop's agent, to say that through oversight of mine his reporting to the last October session of Eastern Iowa conference was not noticed in the published minutes of that conference. Bishop Blakeslee please notice, he reported.

WM. T. MAITLAND, Dist. Sec.

Notice is hereby given to the scattered members of the Platte branch of the Nodaway district, to report to the clerk of the branch, or they will be reported as scattered members.

JACOB NELSON, Clerk.

GULFORD, Missouri.

ADDRESSES.

E. C. Brand, over 623 West Walnut street, Des Moines, Iowa.
Robt M. Elvin, box 148, Lamoni, Iowa.
H. C. Bronson, 603 North Third street, St. Joseph, Mo.
George A. Blakeslee, Presiding Bishop, Galien, Berrien county, Michigan.
Alexander H. Smith, Andover, Harrison Co., Missouri.
Arthur B. Pierce, Box 500, North Attleboro, Mass.

FOR SALE.

Any one wishing to purchase a good home of 4½ acres with orchard and barn, (no house), in Kirtland, Ohio, will please write me. Address, JOHN GILLESPIE, P. O. Box 71. KIRTLAND, Lake Co., Ohio, 10dec2t

NORTHERN NEBRASKA.

To the Officers of the North Nebraska District, Greeting:—Forasmuch as the last Friday in December is set for the convening of conference at Omaha; and in view of the great necessity for an increased proficiency in sacred and important duties imposed on all holding positions of trust, I respectfully suggest to all that can, to so arrange as to attend a general priesthood meeting, on Monday, December 26th, 1887, to convene at 9:30 a. m. Let no expectation be cherished that this will afford an opportunity for the consumption of precious time, to discuss ambiguous or abstruse topics, or by a pettifogging method to ring in argument, by way of retaliation or complaint, of imaginary or real grievances. For the suggested gathering is intended for mutual instruction and edification in our recognized church discipline, laws, rules and order. And if there are those whose conceptions are so lofty, wisdom so profound, intellect so gigantic, leading them to soar far above, or delve far beneath the above referred to discipline, etc., that they would find no pleasure save to criticize, with a view to show supposed defects, to extricate those already inveigled, and prevent others; they are respectfully informed that they are not invited, nor will any be ejected, unless for good and sufficient cause. None will be exempt from the Rules of Order recognized by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Further, it would be very undesirable to see any one so fascinated with the conception of liberty as to mistake it for license; and prate about priestly domination if legitimate efforts are made to regulate liberty, or prevent infringement on known rule and order. The church does not sustain men to consume time to preach and cavil over their opinions; but by dint of study and Godly persistency represent, defend and live the doctrine of the church; and correspondingly strive to evidence such an equilibrium that all signs of policy may be obliterated, and reasonable proof of decision of character be seen for the sober thinker to admire.

The necessity for an increase of gospel unity and strength is apparent. Let all come and make an effort in that direction, and be better prepared to wage a vigorous gospel warfare in 1888.

In gospel bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

Twelve Sermons for 25 cents.

In January, 1888,

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

will be enlarged to an eight column paper, devoted to general and local news, and will begin the publication of monthly supplements, containing full reports of sermons selected from those delivered at Lamoni and at the

GENERAL CONFERENCES,

which will be reported especially for us.

Gazette, without supplement, per year....$1 25
Gazette, with supplement, per year.....$1 50

Send for sample copy.

LAMBERT & HANSEN,

nov26tf

Lamoni, Iowa.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, recipes, etc., by mail for 35c in stamps.

W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in

LAMONI,

at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

WANTED

Several copies of No. 1, vol. 1, of "Herald."

Address Geo. Schweich, Richmond, Missouri, stating price. 19nov1m

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

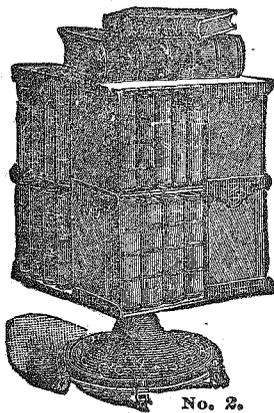

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

"The Ruins Revisited,"

Is the title of a neat, cloth-bound volume of 240 pages, placed in our hands by Mr. S. F. Walker, its author and publisher. The work is the result of large reading and years of study and contemplation; and as a factor in the literature of the age, should receive its share of attention. The author traces the Universe from star-dust to its present situation, attempting to account scientifically for the varied and manifold phenomena of animal and vegetable life, deducting certain theological conclusions from scientific standpoints; seemingly endeavoring to avoid the extremes occupied by either scientific or religious bigots. The latter part of the work is devoted to the exploration of the "Ruins" of "Ancient America," as presented by those who have visited them; the last chapter being a collection of evidences intended to support the preposition that Christ was known and worshiped upon this continent by the ancient inhabitants. The book can be had of Mr. Walker. Price $1.25.—Lamoni Gazette.

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

No. 2.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.

WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

(A SUPERB PRESENT.)

INVALUABLE TO

Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians,
Editors, Bankers, Teachers,
Merchants, Students,
and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, ... $10.00
" 2, " " " 2 tiers " " ... 12.00
" 3, " " " 3 " " " ... 15.00
" 4, " " " 4 " " " ... 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCOLA CO., MICH.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist, Ad-Reoleiddig Saint y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

ZION'S HOPE

Is published every Saturday by the Church of Christ at Lamoni, Iowa. Single copies, per year, 50c; packages of four to ten 40c; packages of over ten 35c.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, CALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going
East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 761.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 17, 1887.

No. 51.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P. O. Order, Registered letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Dec. 17, 1887.

REPENTANCE.

WHAT IS IT, AND HOW IS IT TO BE MADE MANIFEST?

NOTWITHSTANDING all that has been written on the subject there is misunderstanding in regard to these things. Whether we shall be able to write plainly enough to help to a better comprehension or not remains to be seen.

Repentance is a forsaking of sin and learning to do well. So far all agree. It is essential that the repenting one shall be sorry, grieved and mortified, because of those things of which he is conscious he has been doing wrong. If among those things there are those for which he can make an adequate reparation, or a restoration, he will hardly feel at ease until he has made such restitution, reparation or restoration. These are wrongs done to his fellowmen. These wrongs may be personal, or they may be those done against men as a society, or government.

But when he who repents has so far as he can made those things right for which his awakened conscience has reproved him, how else than in restitution shall he make his repentance manifest. He can do this by confession. Confession can be made to God, in the still recesses of the closet, during the still hours of meditation and soul questioning that all aroused souls pass through, and to the band of followers of the Savior whom the repenting one proposes to associate with in church relationship.

Absolute restitution, in the sense of complete restoration, can not be made; except in a few particulars of human conduct only. Nor will sensible men either insist upon it in regard to others, or yield to it if urged upon themselves. In by far the larger number of cases the wrongs that men do to their fellows, restitution and reparation can only be partial, comparative, and constructive. A man who wrongs another out of money, or other of this world's goods, may repay the sum and add thereto legal, or usurious interest; but the circumstances surrounding the persons at the time when the wrong was done, by which the act was made humiliating, bitter, hurtful, or injurious can never be recalled. No matter how much the repenting one may desire that all thought, all remembrances and all reminders of the wrong he did should be erased from the mind of the one wronged, there is no means by which this can be done. It is true that the noblest forgiveness may be extended to him by the one wronged, and the latter may never by word or look refer to it, either to him or to others, yet the memory of it, the cruel sting, the broken faith must remain. In such a case then there can be nothing more than a formal restoration of the money, or an equivalent for other goods wrongfully taken, on the part of the wrong-doer. But this should be sufficient. In many cases the wrong can not be estimated in dollars and cents; it was a harsh word, a false statement, an inuendo, a whispered surmise of evil, or a repetition of a vicious tale of wrong, any one of the many thousand ways in which mischief and injury may be done to the human heart and mind. For these there can be no assessment of money as damages, by which restoration can possibly be made. In all of such, confession with desire for pardon are all that can be done, so far as the parties injured are concerned. Nothing more than this ought to be demanded.

Any person having done wrong in the ways just recited who makes the confession above stated should not be held to make absolute satisfaction to the party so injured, in the sense of satisfying the party wronged, for as it is beyond his power to recall the circumstances, replace the conditions, or restore the mind of the injured to the state in which it was before the injury was inflicted, so will it be beyond his power to force the person to be satisfied. All that should be required is that he set himself right in an attitude of a repenting wrong doer, and this is all that he can do.

When one has thus repented, and so far as he can has made the confession and restoration required, he may then present himself to the church for acceptance into fellowship. Or he may, if manifesting to the elders of the church that he has received of the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of his sins, (unto repentance), present himself for reception by baptism, when he may perfect his repentance by confession and restoration, so far as he can. After all this has been done, the repenting one is entitled to the care and consideration of the elders who should receive him by the ordinances of the church, into the fellowship of the Saints, and unto all the privileges of one who has received the remission of his sins.

The atonement of Jesus Christ was evidently intended to affect all that class of offences for which a man could not make any adequate reparation. And it is manifestly wrong to ask a man to first make all wrongs right, before he can be received into the church by baptism, when it is clear that so far as can be done he has complied with the command, "Repent, and believe the gospel!"

For all offences for which a man can not make any, or but an insufficient reparation, the Lord has provided, in that a complete remission of those sins await him in the waters of baptism. It is a wonderful provision, and were it not for this, much as we are inclined to worship and extol the name of Jesus as the sinner's friend, we could not come with that almost child-like trust which is required of them that seek Jesus. But when we consider how wise and beneficent this provision, that against the wrongs that we have done, the sins that we have committed, and for which it is not possible that we can make reparation, the foresight of God and the far-reaching love of Christ has furnished a remedy complete and full, our hearts burn within us and we hasten in our gratitude to give him all the praise, asking only that we live and are permitted to love and serve in return.

We recite the following instance as a fair sample of what we mean. There were two men, living in the same town, neighbors from boyhood, one of whom was a quiet, rather sedate fellow, both as a boy and as a man; the other was a restless, energetic, rash, outspoken man, of hasty and sometimes unreasonable temper. Between these two as boys and as men there had grown up the strongest friendship; for, notwithstanding the one was silent and quiet he had a noble spirit and cherished the warmest love for his friends, serving them when he could and always being loyal to them, not suffering anything to be said in his presence derogatory to their good. These two lived thus, until somewhere in their early manhood this quiet man heard another berating his friend in terms very uncomplimentary to him; when he promptly took the traducer to task. This resulted in the discovery that his friend had been guilty of a grave wrong, one of such a character that this noble minded, quiet man could not believe of his friend, and for which he could find no excuse. He parted with the one who had been traducing his friend in anger; for they almost came to blows; and but for the better counsel of others would have done so. Blazing with indignation he sought out his friend, and related the circumstances; when to his astonishment and mortification, his friend turned upon him in anger, and told him to mind his own business, and that when he wanted his defence, or interference, he would let him know. This quiet man then asked, "Do you wish me to think you are guilty of this great wrong?" "I don't care what you think," was the petulant reply; "You are always bothering about what is none of your business. I will do what I please, and it is none of your affair." And turning on his heel he left his life-long friend, hurt and humiliated. His was a quiet nature but a strong and a just one. His friend had not only done a wrong, from the accusation of which he had sought to defend him but he had met his advances harshly, buffeting him cruelly and unjustly. Neither was a Christian, and had no settled convictions of religion. Each had trusted the other in many ways, and under varied circumstances; and the quiet one had always held his friend above the common level of men, and the thought that he was a wrong-doer was itself a torture; and when the cruel sting of the rebuff he had received was added he was wounded indeed. He thought the matter over for a day, and then went to the man with whom he had quarreled on his friend's behalf, and apologized for his anger. It seemed to him that justice demanded this; for he could not bear to think that he should unjustly defend his friend, at the expence of the ill will of another. He was met with a kind reception, and pardoned. He went his way, carrying with him a heavy heart; feeling the truth of the statement of the wise man, "A wounded spirit who can bear."

Some years passed away. This quiet man never sought the presence of the friend of his youth; and the latter never attempted to undo the wrong done by him; nor to renew the broken friendship. An itinerant minister, a sort of rude evangelist, passed through the village where these two estranged men lived, and holding revival services there created quite an excitement. Among those affected by these services were these two friends, parted so long. Both made a profession of conversion and both sought the bosom of the church. The man who had done the wrong for which his friend had offered defence and thus incurred his displeasure, could not by any possibility undo the wrong he had done; and he never attempted to do it; nor did he come near his estranged friend to offer an apology, or attempt to recover the place he had lost in that quiet man's regard. The other man, as soon as he had determined to make the church his spiritual home sought his impulsive brother, and made an offer of reconciliation. It was ineffectual; for while his one time friend would say that he knew that he had not done right, he would not say, "Brother, forgive me." Both these men were baptized, and fellowshiped each other, in a way, at the Lord's table.

Here were two repentant men, both seeking for life, both earnest, and each cognizant of what he had at one time been to the other. The quiet man carried the sense of humiliation and the sting of broken friendship always with him. He never said a word by which any one could know how he was hurt; but the wound would not heal. The other had done wrongs for which he could not make a reparation; as he could not again replace those whom he had wronged in the condition they were before the wrong was done; nor could he remove the bitterness from the soul of his friend. Is it not proper to believe that in such conditions as these the ample provisions of the law of redemption and atonement would take effect to the remitting the sins of both; and should not both be received, and that not unto doubtful disputation? We think so. And if any think that either had not sufficiently repented, we can only say that God is to be the final Judge, and we can well afford to wait the sure decision of his wisdom and his goodness.

SHALL THE SAINTS VOTE?

THE largely increased number of Saints in various localities is giving rise to some anxiety in certain quarters in regard to their exercise of the right to vote and take part in local, state, and national politics. In some few places the Saints, if disposed to vote as a unit, could greatly influence the result of an election. In Decatur county, Iowa, for instance, where the Republican party is only about equal to the Democratic and Greenback, or Labor Union parties united, were the Saints to centralize their vote in favor of either one of the two, the other parts of the county voting the respective tickets as usual, the chances of success would be on the side of that party. Are the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at liberty to exercise the right of choice between the political parties now, or at any other time asking for the suffrages of American citizens? Are they doing anything contrary to the moral and political institutions of the country if they canvass the field of politics and elect which of the varied policies and principles of political government they will give their support to? Is there anything avowed, or latent, in the principles and forms of American governmental institutions that forbids any number of people from agreeing to support at the polls any candidate, and of any party of whom that people may make choice? If so, then there are other bodies beside Latter Day Saints that have disregarded such provision, and there has never been a whisper of condemnation for it in public journals. Nearly all the so-called Evangelical churches of the Northern States passed resolutions condemnatory of Slavery; and one of the leading Eastern churches, with their pastor at their head, took active and positive grounds in political issues of the day. Henry Ward Beecher, for nearly a quarter of a century one of the recognized leaders of theological thought in the United States, was an ardent politician, and Plymouth Church, almost from the day that he was accepted as its pastor, was abolitionist, outspoken and uncompromisingly. Did any portion of the political element of New York, city or state, ever hint or say that the pastor of Plymouth Church and his congregation could not and should not so exercise voice and ballot so as to make the issue of the "Irrepressible Conflict" between Freedom and Slavery certain instead of doubtful? We never learned of it if they did.

This may be foreign to the question, but there seems to be a sort of thought that it is dangerous to the American governmental experiment for men believing in the religion of Jesus Christ, as the elders of the Church of Jesus Christ teach it, to indulge in political speech, or to exercise the freedom of the ballot.

The Saints dwelling at Lamoni, and elsewhere in Decatur county, have given to the state all the pledges and assurances of good citizenship that any people could give. They have minded their own business, settled unimproved lands, built houses, planted orchards and vineyards, improved roads, added to the material wealth of the county in moveable property, paid their quota of the tax without complaint, and filled whatever office of trust or emolument to which the people of the county have called any of their number. Several of them bore arms in the late war of the rebellion in the Union armies, and some carry the physical tokens of hard service in camp and field with them, evidences of loyalty no carping political trickster, were he never so dishonest dares to discredit. This they have done as citizens of the American Republic, and of the sovereign state of Iowa; and have they by choice of religious belief forfeited any claim to the rights and privileges enjoyed by them before they joined their fortunes to the faith that men characterize as the Church of Jesus Christ? Are we to conclude that while an American citizen is a Methodist, a Presbyterian, a Congregationalist, a Baptist, a United Brother, a Universalist, Swedenborgian Adventist, or a Catholic he is at liberty to choose his political principles, advocate them and the claims of the party with whom he allies himself, and vote as he pleases, alone or with others, few or many as he may elect, but when he becomes a member of the Latter Day Saints, the Church of Jesus Christ, he is a political pariah, unfit to be trusted to follow the political bent of his mind, and ought not to be permitted to make stump speeches, advocate, nor defend local, state and national politics, or exercise the freeman's right to vote?

"But Mormons are clannish" says some one. Suppose they are. Are they more so than other denominations? Are they more clannish, using the word to convey the sense of moving together as a body, than Masons, Odd Fellows, or any other beneficiary societies; or than any of the other churches? And is there anything morally, or politically wrong in a body of men holding similar views, moving together in any, or all questions of importance upon which they may be called to act? If men think alike on religious topics, holding many views and opinions in common because of their religious connections, is it anything very strange if they should think similarly on the policies and powers of government; and if they chance thus to think alike are they reprobate to republican institutions if they should act alike?

The average American citizen is not competent to give in detail, clear and decided reasons, not open to objection, for being one of either of the several parties in American politics. Notwithstanding this he is free to give what reasons he has, to exercise his right to choose dogmatically without giving a reason for his choice. This right inures to all. And while we confess that the freedom of the American citizen does not include license to destroy and tear down the fabrics of American institutions; we hold that every man has the right in a proper way and place to express his views upon the policies of the ruling powers; and to vote upon the questions submitted to the arbitration of the ballot box, without risk to his person, or his life, without intimidation and without a bribe. Until it shall be shown that the Saints of any given locality have by misdemeanors, or crimes the direct result of their banded religious teaching done violence to the laws, endangering the peace, dignity and safety of society, they are the peers of all other citizens and entitled to all that appertains to citizenship.

Whoever is of the opinion that there is anything in the religion of the Saints that is in either theory or practice not consistent with good citizenship, is ignorant of what that religion is. And any one who states that members of the Church are bad citizens, because of their religion, is inexcusably ignorant of the requirements of that religion, or is wilfully and viciously misrepresenting both the people and their faith.

The Reorganized Church believes that all human governments, good, bad and indifferent, will finally merge in the dominion of the Savior, the Son of David. In this they do not differ with any who believe the Bible. They believe that God has revealed and does reveal his will touching the moral nature and conduct of man, whenever and in whatever manner he may choose. That in accordance with this belief, God has revealed his will to the Saints in respect to their action in regard to the governments under which they may chance or choose to live. Among other rules of conduct affecting the citizenship of the Saints are the following:

"Thou shalt not kill. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not lie. Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else. Thou shalt not commit adultery. Thou shalt not speak evil of thy neighbor, nor do him any harm."

In connection with this it is provided in the church articles and covenants that whoever kills, commits adultery, robs, steals, lies, or does any manner of iniquity by which man is wronged and society injured, he shall be "delivered up to the law of the land."

Concerning the laws of the land themselves, there is in the church articles the following:

"Concerning the laws of the land, it is my will that my people should observe to do all these things whatsoever I command them, and that law of the land, which is constitutional, supporting that principle of freedom in maintaining rights and privileges which belongs to all mankind and is justifiable before me; therefore I, the Lord, justifieth you and your brethren of my church, in befriending that law which is the constitutional law of the land; and as pertaining to law of man, whatsoever is more or less than these, cometh of evil. I, the Lord God, maketh you free; therefore ye are free indeed; and the law also maketh you free; nevertheless when the wicked rule, the people mourn; wherefore honest men and wise men should be sought for diligently, and good men and wise men, ye should observe to uphold; otherwise whatsoever is less than these, cometh of evil."

In teaching duty under the fires of persecution the law of the church refers to the Constitution thus:

"And for this purpose have I established the Constitution of this land, by the hand of wise men whom I raised up unto this very purpose, and redeemed the land by the shedding of blood."

This is made more binding, if possible, by the following:

"Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; wherefore be subject to the powers that be until He reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet." "Behold here is wisdom."

There is no people professing a system of religion who are under greater and more lasting obligations to keep within the safe observance of the laws of the state and nation than the members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ.

If they have any hope or interest in the final triumph of right and perpetuation of what is good in human affairs, government included, that hope and interest are based in the principles of republican America. And as believers in the revelations of God to man they are assured that He designed, instituted, founded, and by fostering care has preserved the Constitution and institutions of the land unto the perpetuation of principles of freedom, for the benefit of all men themselves included. Is it not then creditable that men so solemnly enjoined to keep the law, to observe its requirements, and to "seek" "diligently" for good men to fill the necessary offices in the county, state and national affairs may be trusted with the exercise of political freedom, including party principles and party fealty? Is it reasonable to suppose that men holding themselves under so sacred obligations to carefully consider and conserve the public good, would ruin and destroy either by folly, or willfulness that which they believed to have been instituted of God for their own benefit, as well as for the good of all?

The Decatur County Journal, published at Leon, the county seat, and one of the leading papers of the county, in its issue for December 1st, has the following generous word for the Saints of Decatur county, and protesting against the bringing into the politics of the county, the discussion of any people's religion.

"The Weldon Hornet still keeps up its fight on the Latter Day Saints. It says that they are clannish; that they are no better than the Utah Mormons, etc. The Saints have newspapers of their own which are able to defend them against such frivolous charges as these, if indeed they need any, and hence we do not consider it incumbent on us to defend them, but we want to protest against the introduction of any such methods into the politics of Decatur county. They have always shown themselves to be good, quiet, industrious, law-abiding citizens. Many of them have left good positions and comfortable homes in Utah in order to escape the curse of polygamy, and to make such charges against them and drag their religion into politics is something that the better class of people do not approve of, even if they do not like their religious opinions."

What the Hornet may have published does not matter; it was but the echo of what is lying perdu beneath the specious outside of bare complacency. Intolerant religion, and intolerant politics have never borne in others what they demanded for themselves. If men were content to be used by dominant men and parties, they were tolerated; if they thought for themselves outside of the ruts made for them by self-appointed task-masters, they must either bow or be destroyed. This is our question: Are we, as a people, at liberty to be Republican, Democrat, Greenbacker, Labor-Union, Prohibitionist or Anti-Prohibitionist, as we may elect, notwithstanding our religion? Is our religion to exclude us from participation in the political issues, campaigns, parties and elections of our period? The time has come to ask ourselves this question, and if possible make a just answer to it. Four years ago Hon. E. Banta was nominated for the office of Representative to the General Assembly of the State from Decatur county, one of the things urged against him in various parts of the county as a disqualification was that he was a "Mormon;" meaning that he belonged to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ at Lamoni. This fall again, Mr. Alden, of Hamilton township, was nominated for County Superintendent, and it was urged against him that he was a "Mormon," that is, he belongs to the same body of people that Mr. Banta does. We were not present at the nomination of Mr. Alden, nor yet at the polls on election day; being in Stephenson county, Illinois, on that day, and can not state anything in regard to the why and wherefore of his nomination. But suppose that these men are believers in Mormonism, as taught by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, is that a disqualification? Suppose that all of a similar faith had chosen to vote for them; what law of the land, or rule of political ethics would they have violated had they done so?

It is argued that it would be dangerous to lodge power in the hands of a church. This is conceded by us. But is it less dangerous to the interests of man as a community and as a race, to lodge power in the hands of men whose religion teaches them that there is a tribunal hereafter to which all men are amenable for their acts here, than it is to lodge the same power in the hands of men of no religious belief and who have no faith and no care for a hereafter? We think not. Of the two classes, those who have an abiding faith in the certainty of the hereafter, and are assured that they must account for all they do, are better calculated to discharge the sacred obligations of duty which a government like that of America imposes than are those for whom the future has neither fear of punishment, nor hope of reward. The patriotism and love for their fellow men of the Puritan Fathers, has never been questioned and never excelled; yet the mysticism and gloom of their theology makes men of modern times shudder.

The Herald has never taken any part in political contests. No matter what may have been the political bias of its editors, from first to last, the Herald has always kept silent regarding political issues. The present Editor and Associate Editor hold to opposite schools of politics; the one is Democratic in political faith; the other is Republican. In no sense has either ever attempted to use the Herald to bias or control the political faith of its readers. Nor has either on the stump or at the polls ever attempted to influence their co-religionists to vote, or to refuse to vote, for or against any policy, or party. The only exception to this rule of neutrality, or non-interference that can possibly be named, is the fact that from the first the Herald has always been for the temperance cause; and its editors all of them outspoken at home and abroad against intemperance and the sale of intoxicating drinks. This has not been done in the interest of any political party; both editors holding that the parties could take care of themselves, and that their work as religionists and teachers lay in a different and better field than that of politics. Neither has any liking for political partizan methods, strifes, hates, dissimulations, triumphs nor spoils. Both have repeatedly refused to lend countenance or aid in partizan campaigns, contenting themselves with voting as each desired. The church in its work and membership comprises all shades of political belief, varying from the radical on the one side to the radical on the other; and marked largely by locality, in some places the majority being Republican, in some Democratic. There are many dissatisfied with both dominant parties, and there are Greenback, Labor-Union, Prohibition, or Independent as they may have determined; while some take no interest in political questions and never vote, thinking it better to wait the arbitration of time, or eternity to dissolve what is corrupt and sublimate the good of all ages and peoples.

In Decatur county the membership of the church is divided very much in similar proportion to other parts, the majority being possibly Republican. Every man is at perfect liberty to make his own choice both of politics and men. There is no church whip to dragoon them into either form of political belief, the leading elders using no influence to lead, guide, or deter any in making choice. It may be that as party adherents they are difficult for party managers to control, for the reason that they try to secure the best man for the office needed that is offered to them, voting for whom they please, much as the rest of the citizens do. If there is safety in division, in this regard those who may fear that Latter Day Saints will "vote as a unit" and thus secure political power if a chance be offered them, should feel no alarm, for there is surely sufficient division of sentiment among them to prevent so dangerous a result.

The Reorganized Church does not hold to a unity of church and state, any more than does the M. E. Church, their immediate religious neighbors in Lamoni. But while this is true, they do hold that their religion has and must have such claim upon them that it will help them in time to be good citizens of the republic, and in eternity good citizens of the "better land."

With the Decatur County Journal, we protest, both for ourselves and for our religious compeers, against dragging the question of the religious faith of any people into the politics of Decatur county, or any other county. The people of Chicago were equal to the task of punishing by legal methods those who preached anarchy, when overt acts against the peace, dignity and safety of society were committed. The people of Decatur county, the state of Iowa, and all other states where the members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ may be dwellers and citizens, are quite competent to punish speech and act of treason or rebellion; or crimes and misdemeanors when they shall be committed by such members by legal processes according to the genius of American institutions, without a resort to the unmanly, unpolitical methods of petty persecution and proscription because of religious belief.

We therefore conclude that Saints may vote, and when they do, should vote intelligently for what to them are the best measures and policies of government, and the men best fitted by qualifications of excellent brain and honesty and goodness of heart to fill the places of duty, emolument and trust within the gift of the people, to carry on local, county, state and national affairs.

PAUL found it hard for him to fight the work of the Lord as Saul of Tarsus, to kick against the pricks; that it was to his continued injury to do so. And from that day to this the development of the Christian idea has proved the prophetic saying of Isaiah to be true, "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord." Since the work of the Lord in this generation was commenced there have been numbers of efforts to retard and destroy it, both by those who were of them without, whose opposition may have originated in a genuine regard for what they believed to be true and of God, and those who wilfully fought it, and those who have been once of the church, but turned aside therefrom; bitterest and worst unrelenting opposition being that offered by this last named class. Of these none have prospered in doing what they set out to do; and it is fair to presume none ever will.

We know that when we quote the saying of Isaiah, some of those who once testified of the truth as we do now, say: "O, yes, that is the spirit; if you oppose us you will be destroyed." As if the making of the quotation was a threat made by us, rather than the quoting of a prophetic promise cheering to all within the pale of the church. At the risk of being misconstrued we call attention to this saying of the prophet, and exhort the Saints to be patient under the fire of contradiction from all sides of the field of religious warfare.

SPIRIT COUNTERFEITS.

A BROTHER writes of late that "a spiritual medium," in his vicinity, "claims to be of the Jesus Christ kind and says her controls acknowledge Christ as the Savior and say we must obey the gospel as taught by the Saints in order to get to the highest department for spirits; but that if we live a pretty fair life and obey none or a part, of the gospel here, we can go to the second and accept the gospel there and then go on up to the first. They claim that murderers and thieves go to the third department, and for such there is no salvation. The authority to baptize, she says, is in all churches. It is held by all who live righteously, and is conferred by Christ's Spirit. If one is not baptized here, he can be in the spirit land, as there is plenty of water there. All churches are right; but the Latter Day Saints 'is rightest'—to use her language. The spirits of the departed come and talk with their relatives in whispers, so as to be heard by those around, and tell of thoughts that none know but they and the dead. These spirits are seen by the mediums and described accurately, and to all appearance they are in reality the dead returned," etc, etc.

The brother asks our opinion in respect to these claims, and we therefore are free to say we think them anti-Christian and their claims and pretensions such as are to be expected from the false and delusive spirits which God has foreshown, anciently and modernly, would deceive and mislead those who yield to them either body or brain. In another department in this issue will be found a lengthy article from the pen of Joseph the Seer in 1842, descriptive of some of the deceptions practiced by Satan and his fellow spirits, pointing to their transforming, counterfeiting power, their hypocritical endorsement of Christ and his servants and their teachings in some respects, also of their power to cause some persons to see visions, speak in tongues and reveal hidden and future things, and we therefore only add a few valuable and pertinent citations touching the subject of demon spirit manifestations: Revelation 16:13, 14; 18:2; Eph. 2:2; 2 Thess. 2:2-12; 2 Cor. 11:14, 15; 1 Sam. 28:13, 14; 1 Kings 22:21-23; Acts 16:16

-19; Matt. 8:28-31; Zech. 3:1; Isa. 8:19, 20; 19:2; 3 Kings 21:6; 23:24; 1 Chron. 10:13; Deut. 18:10-14; Doc. Cov. 50:1-7; 52:4, 5; 9:1, 3; 22:3, 4; 76:2; 27:4; 110:20, etc., etc. Whoever will carefully read these passages will readily perceive what Spiritualism is, so far as its spirit power and workings are concerned, and also what estimate heaven and God's intelligent, faithful servants place upon it.

The pretense of the witch of Endor to raise the prophet Samuel from his grave in his life-form and apparel (mentioned in the article), is in keeping with the claims of "materializing" mediums who in this age profess to call up, in material form, the persons of the dead. God emphasized his condemnation of this deception by slaying King Saul and turning the Kingdom of Israel over to David, because he "asked counsel of one that had a familiar spirit, to inquire of it." 1 Chron. 10:13.

A BROTHER writes: "I have been as anxious, and have tried as hard as I knew how to become perfect; but I have always failed, so far; however, I do not intend to give up. I am trying and experimenting on the word, by study and meditation; and in this way have discovered one way to obtain spiritual strength; this is to refrain my tongue from evil and my lips from speaking guile. I am finding that there is a vein of value in this. A man may be unable to govern appetite, or control passion, but if he can practice a principle so pleasing to the Lord, such as are meekness, quietness, lowliness, condemning none, forgiving all, speaking ill of none, overlooking faults and follies in others—in short, having genuine charity, he will get the aid that he desires and prays for to govern himself."

"I met a brother recently, who asked me if I had any good sticking stuff that would mend a broken reputation. I told him that I had; and when he asked me what it was I told him that it was Royal Glue, and that it would stick anything. On reflection I discovered a mistake, that a broken reputation is not a thing, but a principle, and can not be mended only by application of another principle, namely reformation; or by giving all diligence, according to the order of progression revealed in the gospel of Christ, to add to faith virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge temperance, to temperance patience, to patience godliness, to godliness brotherly kindness and to brotherly kindness charity—for as St. Peter said, 'They who do so shall not fail,' or fall."

In this short dissertation it is to be found the essence of success in the Christian's warfare. Whoever, in the sense of deep humiliation at the constant failure to reach up to the height of spiritual excellence to which the mind aspires, weighs the reasons for that failure and the chances for success, will find that there is no struggle so hard, no burden so irksome to carry as that of self-condemnation for weakness, or sin against which he strives in vain. To such a man the conviction, forced in upon him that he fights in vain while he fights alone, and that if he would succeed he must gain the help of divine power, is a revelation from heaven, and should be regarded as such and honored by the best sort of obedience. It is also a confirmation of the promise that help shall be given when man asks aright, and is full of encouragement to the weakest as well as the strongest. Saints, look well to yourselves that no spirit of self-exaltation shall blind your minds to the truth that in Christ is your safety and the secret power of your fighting and your triumph. There are those who while they were humble and had no spirit of self-exaltation were strong pillars, but when there crept into their hearts that which lauded themselves, were the weakest to resist that which led them to their hurt and final ruin.

MARRIAGES,—WHO MAY PERFORM THE RITE.

WE deem it proper for us to call the attention of the Saints, and all others who may be affected thereby, to the marriage laws of Iowa, Missouri and Illinois.

The Statutes of Iowa, chap. 1, Title xv. sec. 2193; provide that "Marriages must be solemnized either;

1. By a justice of the peace or mayor of the city wherein the marriage takes place;
2. By some judge of the supreme, district, or circuit court of this state;
3. By some officiating minister of the gospel, ordained or licensed according to the usages of his denomination."

The Statute of Illinois, chap. 69, par. 4, provides that: "Any persons wishing to marry, or be joined in marriage, may go before any regular minister of the gospel authorized to marry by the custom of the church or society to which he belongs, any judge of the supreme court, judge of any inferior court or justice of the peace, and celebrate or declare their marriage in such manner and form as shall be most agreeable."

The marriage law of Missouri, we are told, though we have not the statutes at hand, is similar to that of Illinois.

Our reason for calling attention to these statutes is, that the penalty for marrying or being married by other parties than those named in the statutes is severe; for while the law will hold the marriage to be valid, as between the parties thereto, it provides for a fine of fifty dollars, against them and all persons aiding or abetting them, in Iowa, and we are told that the fine in Missouri is even heavier than that.

Persons who have been members of the Reorganized Church, and by the office which they held were authorized to celebrate marriages, are not so authorized by their ordination and license, after they have gone out of their own motion, or have been expelled for cause; in both cases they have forfeited all the rights which they held by reason of their membership, ordination and license. We warn all members of the church to be careful that they celebrate their marriages in accordance with these statutory provisions, that they may not only be free from blame but that they do not put themselves into jeopardy as being law breakers.

We admit the right of any and all who wish to preach, to offer their philosophy to any who care to hear them; but do not concede that a man who has been an officer in the church carries with him when he goes out all the honors and privileges to which he was entitled, while he remained a member and in good standing. We believe that such men are not legally competent, under the statute, to celebrate marriages, until they have perfected a membership with some other worshiping body recognized as a religious denomination.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE have received a ringing letter from Bro. W. T. Maitland, of Nashville, Iowa, but dated at Clinton, where he has been at work for a time. Sunday, the 27th November, two were baptized at Clinton; estimable people. Bro. Maitland relates a remarkable vision seen by a young lady of Clinton, by which testimony was borne to the latter day work, and by which she is inclined to profit. Surely the prophecy was correct, "Your old men shall dream dreams, and your young men shall see visions; and upon your sons and your daughters will I pour out of my Spirit, and your servants and your handmaidens shall prophesy." The vision as told was: "I was lying awake, and distinctly heard the clock click, as it does before striking, and thought that I would listen for the hour when the clock would strike, when as it struck "two," a closet door across the room from my bed slowly opened and three well dressed men walked out into the room, talking of the Latter Day Saints' Church, saying that it was the only church on earth that was right; and a good deal more that I can not recall exactly. As they came into the middle of the room, one stepped before the others and said? 'Mrs. Wilson has now the best chance that she will ever have.' I looked away, and when I turned to see them again, they were gone." This Mrs. Wilson had about determined to be baptized, but this young sight seer had persuaded her not to do so. And so it is that the Spirit of Him who watches over the work of the last days, can and does care for that work, and bring to bear in its development all the strange accessories of which we read in the Bible, and which we are wont to regard as so mysterious—mysterious only because seen through the mist of long passed years instead of the shining light of to-day. We do not wonder that the workers in the Lord's harvest field should feel such a spirit of elation as leads them to exclaim, "The Lord is working with His servants mightily."

Bro. A. J. Smith, formerly of Clear Lake branch, Indiana, has removed to Estill Spring, on the N. C. Railroad, half way from Nashville to Chattanooga, Tennessee, where he will gladly welcome any one bearing the title of Saint, worthily; and if he be an elder will help him to a place to preach, and will feed and care for him while he stays. He wishes that Bro. J. C. Clapp will call and see them and labor some there. Bro. Smith was for a long time the presiding officer of the Clear Lake branch, and was both faithful and efficient, and will give good assistance to any one who will go there to labor.

The Lamoni Gazette is now cosily established in its pleasant, neat new home over the store of Yarrington and Bailey, and with its lately added appliances greets its patrons with a clean, cheery face, giving assurance of vigor, pluck and perseverance. We wish it success, and have no doubt it will win it by its upright, honorable, intelligent bearing, and become an important factor in the newspaper world.

Elder W. W. Blair preached to interested congregations in St. Joseph, Missouri, November 14th, and at Lucas, Iowa, December 4th. The attendance at these services was large, a spirit of deep inquiry was manifest on the part of some of the hearers, and prospects were good for additions to the church and for the continued and growing unity, peace and spirituality of the Saints.

Pres. Joseph Smith preached twice on Sunday, November 27th, at Zion School-house, about twenty miles south-east of Lamoni, in Missouri; and though the day was dreary and forbidding, he had full and interested congregations, and returned home feeling well repaid in the refreshing he had received by the aid of the Holy Ghost. Elder S. V. Bailey went the next Sunday to hold services in a School-house not far from the Zion School-house and found it shut. On inquiry it was learned that prejudice had been fanned to a high degree there through an assertion made by a preacher once prominent in the Reorganization, who, it is said, declared in that place or vicinity, that the Mountain Meadow massacre, in Utah, grew out of the teachings of the Doctrine and Covenants! But sensible people there want to know why that preacher did not discover this alleged evil in the Doctrine and Covenants when he was actively engaged in the Reorganization for years. No book under heaven contains purer morals than the Doctrine and Covenants, as all may see who will examine it without prejudice. And in this connection we may add, that the revision, correction, correction, and translation of the Bible by Joseph the Seer, has vastly improved the morals of that book, as all must allow who will, without bias, compare it with all other versions. It is but fair to judge of the morals of Joseph by the authentic records of his work, and when he is thus judged, he calumniators are easily confounded. The Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants, Holy Scriptures, and the public papers of the church up to 1844, are standing witness in favor of his moral purpose and upright conduct.

Bro. John G. Dickenson, of Hamilton, Australia, writes October 11th, and Bro. Thomas Gregory, of Wallsend on the 28th of the same month, that they were expecting Bro. T. W. Smith, almost any day, and were anxiously awaiting his advent, because of the great opportunity and wide spread field for labor in that far off land. These brethren write in excellent terms of Bro. Joseph Burton, and his labors in that field; and express regret that they will likely lose him on his return to the states. They also write that there is great need of more laborers there.

Bro. T. P. Johnson, who lives three miles south of Nebo, Pike county, Illinois, renews for HERALD of late and requests the ministry to call and preach there.

Bro. P. B. Seaton wrote from Paris, Tennessee, November 28th, and says he has been laboring of late so far as practicable, had baptized six persons, and he thinks prospects for future progress good. He also says that Bro. J. C. Clapp is at work in that region preaching the gospel.

Some one sends us the Seaforth (Ontario) Sun for December 2d, in which we find a friendly notice of Elder Samuel Brown's series of meetings in the town hall, and in which is printed the "Epitome" of the Saints' faith and doctrine. We feel highly gratified to see such acts of courtesy extended to the ministry, and clearly recognize the hand of the Lord in such deeds. God has promised to open the way before his work and give "grace and favor" to his wise and faithful people.

Bro. E. T. Atwell, of St. Paul, Nebraska, writes under date of November 30th that he thinks an elder would be well received in that place and find a good and profitable field of labor. He is authorized to invite an elder to call on Mr. A. C. Tigner, six miles west of St. Paul.

Dr. Richard Coburn, of Blenheim, Ontario, wrote November 26th, that they had not been visited lately by any of the elders in the field, (traveling elders), and that they were thinking that the London district was more highly favored by the ministry than were they at Blenheim. He reports, however, that there had been something like fifty baptized in their district, between the conference in June and October. We argue from this that the local ministry are at work, and that the Saints of that part are trying hard to second the preaching of the word by upright and honest lives. "No news is said to be good news," and if the traveling ministry are apparently neglecting Blenheim, it may well be attributed to the fact that the work there is in a stable and depressed condition, and not requiring so great an effort as some other parts of their field.

Bro. E. M. Carr, of Allendale, Mo., writes that Bro. H. A. Stebbins made their branch a pleasant visit the last of November, preached twice and baptized one—a head of a family, and formerly a member of the Christian Church—and administered to several with good results.

Bro. John H. Lake, after a seven months' mission to Canada, is now spending a few days at his home at Mt. Washington, near Pittsburg, Pennsylvania. He says "The Canada mission is onward."

Bro. George T. Ballard wrote us from Argent's Hill, New South Wales, October 5th, and says: "The work in Australia is onward, and there are many calls for laborers." He further says, "We have had a very hard year with floods."

Bro. John C. Foss wrote from Underwood, Iowa, November 29th. He had preached in the Pottawattamie district for the past six weeks, holding services at Council Bluffs, Crescent City, Hazel Dell, Wheeler's Grove, Dowsville and Underwood. He reports fair audiences and good liberty in speaking, in some instances being "wonderfully blessed in the Spirit of God."

We are pleased to note Bro. Foss' labors, and feel encouraged when he reports as do others, "the Lord is blessing my ministry."

Sister Anna Neilson, of Nebraska City, wrote in December that she had been much comforted and cheered during the year, both by the Mothers' Home Column and by the manifestations from different directions that God was favoring his work at home with the membership and abroad with the elders. She bears a testimony strong as holy writ that the gospel is of God and was revealed to men in these days through Joseph the Seer.

It is stated that there are seven hundred indictments against Mormons for polygamy and unlawful cohabitation, in the office of United States Marshal Dyer, waiting service. The persons against whom these writs are pending are, with nearly a thousand of their brethren, fugitives dodging the officers authorized to make the arrests.

Bro. J. Y. Graumlich, in a letter dated at Lower Lake, California, of late expresses a hearty desire for some worthy, capable elder to visit them and labor there.

Bro. John Hawley wrote from Chelsea, Indian Territory, December 5th, and then intended going to Columbus, Kansas, to attend the Spring River district conference.

Bro. Carl W. Lang wrote us of late from Kickapoo, Richland county, Wisconsin, and seems full of faith and hope in the latter day work.

BRO. W. T. MAITLAND sends us the following taken from the Free Methodist, Chicago, Illinois, for September 28th, 1887; which he thinks it well that the elders see and "make a note of." It is an editorial account of the Free Methodist Conference.

"The fourteenth session of this conference has just closed. This body has been greatly diminished by the division that took place a few years ago in the formation of the West Iowa conference. A number of preachers have gone west, and five more at this session took certificates of their good standing with a view of transfer to other conferences. Notwithstanding this depletion in numbers the ranks are filling up and it is hoped that the conference will continue to serve the important purpose of recruiting office for the general field. We have no more men to spare just now, as some are young and inexperienced and are not quite ready to be transferred.

"All the sittings of the conference were harmonious. The members did not all agree in every thing, but the power of grace was evidenced by a unity of spirit and brotherly love. The religious services were very spiritual, and the preaching was not the frothy evaporations of the intellect, but the out-breathings of hearts on fire with the Holy Ghost. One afternoon service was a real Pentecost. The Holy Ghost fell upon the saints. We never saw shouting done so "decently and in order" as on this occasion. They danced, they cried, they laughed, they walked the aisle, and all was as harmonious as music from a harp of numerous strings, touched by a skillful hand. Truly the times have changed, but the Holy Ghost religion remains the same as when 'our fathers had this power'—and we may have it too."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—What is meant by this passage of Scripture?—"But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases."—1 Cor. 7: 15.

Ans.—This item of church rule relates to those only who are Saints, and when they are Saints, and it has no reference to what may have occurred with them before they became Saints. The above scripture should be read in connection with what is connected with it, as follows:

"And unto the married I command, yet not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband; but and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband; and let not the husband put away his wife. But to the rest speak I, not the Lord, if any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and if he be pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave him. For the unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband; else were your children unclean; but now are they holy. But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart, a brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases; but God hath called us to peace. For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thy husband? or how knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?"—1 Cor. 7: 10-16.

The Inspired Translation, by Joseph the Seer, makes this chapter much plainer than any of the various versions we have examined. Paul wrote this epistle about A. D. 60, a time when the Saints were sorely persecuted by Jew and Gentile, and about four or five years before Nero, emperor of Rome, persecuted the Saints with great fury under the base charge that they, in A. D. 64, set fire to the city of Rome by which two-thirds of it was destroyed. When these perilous and very distressing conditions of the Saints are kept in view, we can the more readily perceive the meaning of this chapter, both as it relates to the ministry and the membership. Paul commands, in the name of the Lord, that the Saints—male or female—shall not depart from their companions; and then he forbids that "any brother" should put away "a wife that believeth not," if "she be pleased to dwell with him." And he likewise forbids the believing wife leaving her unbelieving husband, "if he pleased to dwell with her." "But," he adds, "if the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not under bondage in such cases." From this we understand, that when unbelieving companions "depart" from and thus permanently abandon "a brother or a sister," they by this act break the marriage contract, and, in effect, "put away" their companions for no justifiable cause; and that the brother or sister is no longer under "bondage" to those who thus "depart," and wilfully abandon them. Those so departing, be it remembered, are the ones who, in effect and in fact, "put away" their companions for an unjustifiable cause; and it then remains for those thus abandoned to apply, if they desire it, and have the form of the marriage contract dissolved and disannulled by the laws of the land where they reside. Let it be remembered that Jesus and the Apostle Paul both teach that persons in the church (for it is to this class that the law of the church applies) are not justified in putting away their companions except for adultery. Matt. 19: 9; Mark 10: 9, 10; Luke 16: 18; Rom. 7: 2, 3. To those seeking membership in the church the following applies:

"Behold, verily I say unto you, that whatsoever persons among you having put away their companions for the cause of fornication, or in other words, if they shall testify before you in all lowliness of heart that this is the case, ye shall not cast them out from among you; but if ye shall find that any persons have left their companions for the sake of adultery, and they themselves are the offenders, and their companions are living, they shall be cast out from among you. And again I say unto you, that ye shall be watchful and careful, with all inquiry, that ye receive none such among you if they are married, and if they are not married, they shall repent of all their sins, or ye shall not receive them."—D. C. 42: 20.

The laws of the church are very strict in regard to marriage and divorce, and the membership should observe them perfectly. But they should not apply to those out of the church that which relates only to church members.

SIMPLE ENGLISH.

"In commenting upon the character of the late Mrs. Craik, the London Athenaeum says: 'She wrote simple English. She never used a long word if a short one would do as well, and she never used a foreign word that had an equivalent in her own language.'"

Sensible Mrs. Craik! What a blessing if all writers and public speakers did the same thing. How often we hunt through a pile of chaff and obtain but little wheat! Language is the vehicle of ideas, and the simpler, plainer, cleaner and clearer are its words, the better it fulfills its appointed mission. All should seek to put the right word in the right place to express what is intended. Avoid the use of high-sounding words, and long, "learned," tangled sentences, lest your hearers or readers get ensnared and bewildered and turn away disappointed and disgusted. "Unknown tongues" are good when uttered by the Spirit; but if the hearer does not get the "interpretation," the speaker is to him a "barbarian." This is equally true of those using words and sentences not understood by their hearers or readers. The writer or speaker should perceive clearly what he wishes to say, and then go straight forward in the most direct, plainest way, and express it clearly and attractively.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. E. Day Bennett wrote from Santa Clara, Dakota, November 30th, saying:

"One more was added by baptism and one more by letter to our branch lately. Our branch now numbers nineteen."

Bro. J. C. Foss in a letter from Underwood, Iowa, December 5th, says:

"I baptized four last Saturday."

Bro. G. A. Davy, of Bullion, Idaho, renews for the HERALD and subscribes for Autumn Leaves, in his letter of November 25th, and says:

"The Herald's a good paper for every one, and especially for all those desiring to be Saints. I have been a member of the Reorganized Church upwards of four years and am thoroughly convinced it is the true church of Christ, and that its ministry is led and guided by the Holy Ghost."

Bro. J. C. Clapp writes from Farmington, Kentucky, December 6th:

"I have had a good hearing here, but have not been feeling well. Hope to fully recover soon and to vigorously prosecute the work. Have been kindly received by a multitude of kinsfolk."

THE SIOUX RAPIDS, IOWA, Press, of Thursday, November 17th, has the following notice of Bro. Alexander H. Smith:

"Mr. Hartshorn's have been enjoying a visit from Mr. Smith, the second son of Joseph Smith, the founder of the Mormon church. The presence of so noted a person in the community excited no little interest. On Saturday evening he preached at the Gilmore school house to a large gathering. If his doctrine had been as sound as his oratory, he could not well be excelled as a preacher."

We may add that his doctrine was sound enough to be obeyed by five, one of whom was Bro D. H. Smith's only son Elbert, who resided with his mother near Marathon.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Still her holy living meant
No duty left undone;
The heavenly and the human blent
Their kindred loves in one."

LAMONI, IOWA.

Dear Sisters: When I wrote, as I think by direction of the Spirit, that request for the young unmarried sisters to write for the Column, I hardly understood, myself, for what purpose; but it seems clear now as I read sister Gertie's letter. Our Father has said: "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people," and himself is always busy looking to the comfort of each one; none are forgotten by him. Had that request not been made, sister Gertie might have thought the Home Column is for mothers, and she would not be wanted there; but now she feels encouraged to tell her trials to the mothers in Zion, since she finds no sympathy from her mother in the flesh; and so the Lord's tender care is shown to his young children whom father and mother forsake.

And we, dear mothers in Zion, are learning that not alone to the tender birdlings of our home nests are we to extend our care and solicitude. We are learning that the love of God includes more than just us and our households. O, mothers! we have been so diligent in keeping watch and guard of our own, that we have been heedless of the young of the Lord's flock.

"Who feel a mother-want about the world,
And still go seeking, like a bleating lamb
Left out at night, in shutting up the fold,
As restless as a nest deserted bird,
Grown chill through something being away,
Though what, it knows not."

Had we gone as swift and pitying to their relief as we would had we recognized the voice of our own, that young sister might not be burdened with the regret that she had not always lived as faithful as she should. My tears flow fast to think that had some of the faithful fathers and mothers gone to that young man of whom Bro. Derry writes, had led him to their homes, throwing about him the same watchcare as to their own, he had been alive to-day and walking in the ways of righteousness and peace instead of with bad company. When parental influence is weak or disregarded, the stronger ones should aid them by sustaining and upholding it. Who shall say that had that good advice in Bro.

Derry's letter been whispered in the ears of that boy, it need have been spoken over his coffin? If we do not exercise more watchful care I fear their blood will be found on the garments of the church.

When the Mothers' Home Column was called into use, we believed it to be the work of the Spirit that we might be aided more perfectly in the work of purifying our homes and training our children; and while this is true, we are being taught that God's thoughts are higher than ours, and broader too; that the particular home to which the Spirit had reference was not above any one of the separate roofs under which the Herald comes, but the greater and grander building of his church, as the home of his people; where his children as one family have no separate interests, but that every one who does the will of our Father is our mother, brother, sister, son and daughter.

In conclusion let me say to sister Gertie that, as she feels that like Ruth she has adopted the God and people of Christian Naomi for her own, we want her to feel that she has a personal interest in the loving heart of every mother in Zion; that they sympathize in her trials, and their prayers are in her behalf that she be faithful unto death, and victorious in Christ Jesus. We would remind her, also, that none are called to be mere spectators; that each one is expected to do some gleaning on the gospel field, if it is no more than leading your companions into higher and better paths than the world can make for their feet. There are little children to be gathered and taught. Abide faithfully by the handmaidens of our Lord, "Let thine eyes be upon the field that they do reap, and go thou after them."

Let all of the dear children of our Father's house be encouraged that he is mindful of them, and that he is stirring the hearts of his people to a realization of their neglected duty; and we hope they will now come forward and earnestly help in every effort to enrich and save the lambs of the flock. And God bless those who are working for this so unselfishly.

ELEANOR.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Oct. 25th.

Dear Sisters in the Gospel:—We are still alone, —one family of Saints in a town of five thousand people—but yet we are not discouraged. Often have the words of father Ells come to my mind —when he had been here with us for awhile—and was about to leave us. I was complaining to him that we were so far away from the Saints, and were missing so much comfort and so many blessings. When I was through with my complaint he looked at me with that fatherly smile of his, and said: "Sister Emma, you are just as near to the throne as we are." Those few words were better than a sermon to me. To be near to our brothers and sisters is good; but of how much more importance that we walk near to our God, and ever take the blessed Saviour as the man of our counsel.

Does our faith in the gospel of Christ fail us? Ah, no; on the contrary, it grows brighter and brighter, as the years pass.

Now I must tell you what helps to keep me alive spiritually, namely, our weekly visitors the Herald and Hope. Here is such a feast of good things spread out upon their fair pages that we hardly know what to read first. I felt much of the influence of the Holy Spirit as I read Bro.

Elvin's dream. My mind was carried back to three years ago last April, when I first beheld the Kirtland Temple. Husband, our five children and I were going to General Conference. We had left the train, and were riding in a hack from Willoughby to Kirtland, a distance of three miles. I was not thinking of the Temple at the time, when one of the brethren, who was in the hack with us exclaimed, There is the temple! I looked in the direction pointed out and the moment my eyes rested upon the building, away upon a distant hill-top, the Holy Spirit rested upon me in power, testifying that the hand of the Lord was in the erection of it, and also in the preservation of it. Now I know for myself that it is even the house of the Lord. Ever since that time the temple has seemed to me to be a sacred place. As soon as I enter its doors I feel the sweet holy influences that seems to me to pervade its interior; and when filled to the utmost with Saints, from the East, West, North and South, as it was at the last April, conference, it is truly a sight that would cause the heart of any good Saint to thrill with joy and praise to God, in that he in his great mercy, is remembering the waste places of Zion, and will ere long make her like the garden of the Lord.

We long for the time to come when we can dwell among the Saints, either near Independence or near Kirtland, so that our children could have the society of the children of the Saints. They are no longer little children. Papa's and mamma's society does not satisfy them like it did when they were small. Their growing minds are reaching out beyond the little circle of home, seeking something they can not find.

EMMA GARRETT

NORBORNE, Mo., Nov. 10th.

Dear Sisters:—Do not regret the time and space it took in the Home Column to write on dress. If it was a matter of sufficient importance to mention in the three standard books of the church, I think it was not amiss for us to take it into consideration for our learning. However, my mind was settled on that question since 1866, and it is the same to-day as it was then. I had been impressed to write on it before it was ever touched in the "Column;" feeling my inability I hesitated. Others were not so slothful, but handled the subject to my entire satisfaction; and all I wish to say is, Let us practice what we may have learned.

Now it is another subject that bears on my mind, and it is the testimony which all, (who have it), without any hesitancy affirm of this latter day work being the work of God. Now the question is, What is this latter day work? When I received the testimony from God that this work was of him, I knew nothing at all about it, nor what it contained, nor what it included; therefore it was a matter of the greatest importance to me to find it out; and I labored hard with my own hands to obtain money to get the standard books of the church, also other books, tracts, and periodicals, and with all diligence read them, and prayed to God for light, wisdom and understanding. It is nine years since; and notwithstanding I do not understand all things, yet I know that this work is a complete and perfect system by which the Lord wants to set up his kingdom and prepare for himself a people to meet him at his coming; therefore, what manner of people ought we to be! Is it possible that any of the principles in this system can be questioned or set aside? Is there any excuse, when in such wonderful plainness every thing is recorded, what we shall do, and what we shall not do, and what is pleasing unto God if we heed it not? He not only wants us to be a delightful and intelligent, but also a healthy and a wealthy people. How loving, merciful and kind, in giving us the word of wisdom; not only remembering man therein, instructing him how to obtain health, strength, wisdom and knowledge, but also the beasts, if kept accordingly would prosper better to our good. How can any one with a clear testimony to the truthfulness of this work still use wine, strong drinks, tobacco, or hot drinks; or how can any one spend money for such articles and say, I have nothing to pay into the Lord's treasury? It is impossible to please God unless we observe to do all things that are written. If we do not observe all things in keeping the commandments of God, what then about our testimony? Will it do us any good? Let us press forward, and, with all the diligence of our souls, be about our Father's business.

MARY KNIPSCHILD.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Susan E. Cook, Victoria, Ill.....	$2 00
Sr. Edith Kinney, Cameron, Mo.....	36
Sr. Emily Kinney, Cameron, Mo.....	15
Sr. Guleta Simmons, Cameron, Mo.....	40
Hattie, Samuel and Lettie Simmons.....	40
Sr. Ellen Olsen, Angoria, Kan.....	1 00
Little Edith Olsen, Angoria, Kan.....	10
Oscar and Lydia Simpson.....	30
Alice, Eda and Sarah Davis.....	1 00
Sr. Laura Morrison, Buttville, Mo.....	25
Sr. E. A. Burnam, Edgerton, Mo.....	1 00
Sr. Nola Adair, Nathan, Kan.....	10
Sr. Fannie E. Richardson, Hubbard, O.....	75
Sr. E. Hendrickson, Council Bluffs, Iowa..	10
Sr. Abbie Truman, Gilmore City, Iowa....	50
Master Duane H. Redfield, Shenandoah, Ia.	75
Sr. Ella Brannan, Denver, Colo.....	1 00
Sr. Ellen Platt, Denver, Colo.....	1 00
Sr. Eileen D. Flemming, Stockton, Cal.....	25
Sr. Ravie Stephens, Paris, Tenn.....	25
Sr. Hattie E. Gray, Indian River, Me.....	51
Sr. W——, Lamoni, Iowa.....	60
Sr. Eleanor, Lamoni, Iowa.....	50
Sr. Maria E. Eye, Covina, Cal.....	51
Sr. Jannie Pratt, Crescent, Iowa.....	50
Sr. Eleanor Brown, Dunlap, Iowa.....	1 00
Sr. Sarah J. Ross, Moorhead, Iowa.....	50
Sr. Mary E. Pooler and daughter, Central Point, Cal.....	40
Sr. S. Tyler, Erie City, Pa.....	1 00
Sr. Stella Newberry, Panama, Iowa.....	75
Sr. N. Thompson, Nebraska City, Neb.....	1 00
Sr. Lou Berry, Marshalltown, Iowa.....	1 00
Hyrum Lewis, Deer Creek, Neb.....	25
LAMONI, Iowa, December 7th.

THE following we clip from the Leominster (England) News, for November 4th:

"MORMONS AND MAHOMETANS.

"Several Mormon brethren have arrived at Constantinople and submitted to the Porte a proposal for their admission in Turkey as a recognized community, one of the pleas upon which the demand is based being the legality by Moslem law of plurality of wives, which the Mormon sect also admits. The Minister of Justice has received this request with great reserve, being apprehensive as to the consequences which might accrue upon the introduction of a new religious sect and the moral effect which such a step would produce in the civilized world. It is considered improbable that the Mormon demand will be granted."

Selected Poetry.

THE POOR MAN'S SHEAF.

He saw the wheat fields waiting,
All golden in the sun;
And strong and stalwart reapers
Went by him one by one.
"Oh! could I reap in harvest,"
His heart made bitter cry,
"I can do nothing, nothing,
So weak, alas, am I."

At eve a fainting traveler
Sank down beside his door;
A cup of cool sweet water
To quench his thirst he bore,
And when refreshed and strengthened,
The traveler went his way,
Upon the poor man's threshold
A golden wheat sheaf lay.

When came the Lord of harvest,
He cried: "Oh Master kind,
One sheaf I have to offer,
But this I did not bind.
I gave a cup of water
To one athirst, and he Left at my door in going,
This sheaf I offer thee."

Then said the Master softly,
"Well pleased with this am I.
One of my angels left it
With thee, as he passed by.
Thou mayest not join the reapers
Upon the harvest plain,
But he who helps a brother,
Binds sheaves of richest grain.—Sel.

Correspondence.

HASTINGS, Victoria,
Australia, Oct. 27th.

Bro. Joseph:—I returned from New South Wales last Thursday, and on Saturday came on to Queensferry, to visit Brother A. Stewart who is suffering from cancer in the face. He has been administered to several times, but without the blessing of healing being granted to him, though he always receives relief from pain thereby. Bro. Stewart's affliction casts a gloom over the neighborhood; for he is much respected and loved in all this district.

The branches in New South Wales are again in working order, and will probably now move on in harmony with each other and the church. Quite a number of their neighbors are investigating, and if they continue faithful to their covenants they will doubtless soon have numbers added to the folds; especially is this the case in Forster. Bro. Wright is unremitting in his labors, and the Saints are helping him much by their upright lives. An excellent field for an elder is that district; five were baptized while I was there, them was Sr. Wright's mother.

Brethren Haworth, Lewis and Gregory, (who was so badly hurt in the mine, but is now nearly well), are doing what they can in out door preaching in the vicinity of their branches, and brethren Broadway and Dixon are also preaching in the towns and villages near the Hamilton branch; while brethren Dickenson and Purves take care of the branch on the "Reserve" near there, assisted by Elder W. Clarke. The officers are all at work, so far as is possible in the New South Wales branches. Sr. Emmerson, of Bass, has taught her mother the faith of the Saints so efficiently that she will be baptized Sunday; as will also Georgie Stewart, of Queensferry; so the aged and the young find the gospel beneficial, a joy and peace for every stage of life. I hope to get over to the Geelong district again soon. I made all enquiries possible for Bro. Foss' uncle, A. Morse; but could not find him in Geelong or vicinity, not having his address; nor could I find him at the Post Office. No word yet of Bro. T. W. Smith, only what we get in the Herald; but we still look and hope for his coming. Peace to the Israel of God.

Yours in hope,
JOS. F. BURTON.

MEDINA CITY, Texas, Nov. 29th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have just returned from Wilson and Bexar counties where I have been holding meetings; started from here October 27th; have preached twenty-eight times, administered to three, baptized five, blessed several children; never had such liberty, and never felt better. Found father doing what he could in Wilson county; had made one new opening, and I preached six times there, and think ere long, several will join. Father will stay and keep up the interest as best he can until the Lord directs otherwise. Our aged brother, A. Kuykendall is progressing very well with the Oakwood branch, and Bro. Murray expresses a desire to work for the Master all he can. Oh! how I hope and pray that the Lord will "send more laborers into the harvest field." Bro. I. N. Roberts is in the north eastern part of the state somewhere. I have reached the place in this work where I have to be dependent on the Lord for help all the time; have learned that I know nothing to what I should. I am glad to see the young take the part they do. One of those I baptized had been baptized before, but, after wandering off into the ball-room, and for several years trying to pass life off with the gay, she returns with humility to her "Father's house," and is now rejoicing in the truth. This young sister has had heart disease some time, and some were afraid to have her baptized; but she was determined to do the Master's will, and since baptism she has not taken medicine and is improving rapidly. If the Lord keeps adding the young to the church, we will have a noble band here yet. I administered to one sister, and within an hour she got up, dressed, and said she felt well. Thank God.

On arriving at Bandera, I was made to feel sad. For God had called from our midst "mother Hay." While writing I feel that sweet influence that I so often felt when I heard "grandma" say, "I know this work is of God." Yes, for the past thirty years she has been living here, and gave all enquirers to understand that the work was not of man. Oh, how we'll miss her! But as the old finish their work, and go to rest and happiness, the young will have more responsibility resting upon them. With the past I want to have as little to do as I can, for it only tends to increase trouble to "look back," at some things that have been. Our loved ones who have fought the battle and gained the victory, would be surprised, I think, to see us weeping over them. Onward! forward! upward! and when the enemy attacks us, depend upon our Captain for orders and fight manfully till we hear the glad refrain, "Well done." I have no desire to give up the fight. Life is not made up of sunshine, and our happiest time is sometimes marked with sadness. The late Revelation just fit me, wherein too much mirth, (or loud and boisterous talking) is forbidden. "Be cheerful" is a sweet command.

"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom," and thank God it is shining forth in these days till we have only to "come and partake," according to law and order.

I find more success attends our labors when the Book of Mormon is presented and its claims defended. I lectured five times of late on that book, and several wish to read it. If God intends the "two sticks" to be one in His "hand," I think His representatives will be required to put it along side the Bible. I had several Mexicans to hear me when in Wilson county, and they seemed to be interested when we invited them to come in and be seated. Some could not understand, yet seemed to enjoy it. I find that more preaching and less territory is best for doing substantial work. My brother has been teaching vocal music this year, and now he is with me, and intends teaching among the Saints all he can. Has done a great deal in removing prejudice and opening up the way for preaching. There has been such drouth the last two years; the Saints are hard run and times are very pressing, but we hope for the better. We are glad to see the way become brighter, and hope to see ere long a good work done here.

J. A. CURRIE, JR.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 21st.

Bro. Joseph:—I am about to leave this city, and I wish to bear my testimony to the goodness of God to me in these parts. Since I came here the Spirit of the Lord has comforted and sustained me in my endeavor to enlighten a few in the gospel as revealed by Jesus our Savior in these last days. A good many here manifested willingness to obey the ordinance of baptism. I still believe there is and will be a good chance to open up the work here in both North and South Minneapolis. After I am settled, if any elder will send me word and desires to open up this place, I will give them letters of introduction to several families in North Minneapolis and one in South Minneapolis, where they can stay and do for them as circumstances permit.

I spoke a few words of comfort to a small congregation of friends and neighbors on the occasion of the death of a six year old boy. The mother said that if she only could believe that her son was at rest and would come forth in the first resurrection she would feel happy. I left them rejoicing.

I went up to Oak Lake branch on Saturday 12th inst., on Sunday 13th we had one of the best meetings ever held in that branch that I ever was in for the past three years. Nineteen bore testimony of the blessings of God to them and no word of complaint. Oh what a comfort. Bro. Dinehart bore testimony of the protecting power of God and how he fought the fire and saved his house from destruction by the protection the Spirit gave. This has been borne witness to by the neighbors.

I was at Sr. Shaw's while away. She is spoken of both by the outsiders and Saints as a noble, open-hearted lady. She has a good family of five boys, who seem to think all in all of their mother and provide well for her wants. They need a word of praise.

The elders seemed to be on the lookout to do all the good that comes in the way; they were looking for Elder A. H. Smith; thought he might have stopped in this city, but as he had not, they were somewhat surprised as to what had become of him. Don't get lost, Bro. Smith,

I am the only member in this city, and I will leave this week if possible. If possible an elder should come and stay here about three months; and one year would not be too long. I need a worker; one who is not afraid to work with his hands as well as brain labor. A gentle, easy-going one such as could love labor so well that he could lie down and sleep by his work, is no good here. Your brother in Christ,

THOS. M. PARR.

DECKERVILLE, Mich., Nov. 30th.

Bro. Joseph:—The latter day work is moving on nicely all through this district; many are obeying the gospel and are trying to act accordingly.

Bay Port is like a different place—a new place; the people seem to be different; whereas it used to be fiddling and dancing, cursing and swearing, drinking and gambling, &c.; it is now songs of gladness, prayer and praise. Methodists and Baptists, Catholics and Lutherans, whose hearts were honest, and who were trying to do the Master's will to the best light they had, and yet erred in judgment, have come to an understanding of the right way, and have obeyed the gospel, their hearts are made glad and they are now rejoicing in the great work of God. Spiritualists and infidels who had thrown the Bible aside, and who opposed me when I first made my appearance among them, now stand up in our large congregations and under the power of the Spirit of our God, testify that while the Elder laid his hands upon them and confirmed them and prayed God to give them his Spirit, the seal of their adoption, that very moment it came upon them and thrilled through their bodies to their entire satisfaction; those listening who had never experienced religion would burst into tears and say that God was in them of a truth.

Once while in that part, in going to an appointment, as I was walking along the road alone, a gentleman came walking out of his house and said, "Hello there, elder, why don't you stop and visit me as well as the rest of the people?" I told him that I would, that I was visiting around in every house and would get to his place as soon as I could. Well, said he, "Come back and stop with us to-night." "All right," said I, "You come with me to the meeting and I will come back with you." He did so; we had four miles to go and return. We came home, ate supper, chatted a little, when feeling tired I said, "Well, will we read a chapter and have prayer and prepare for bed?" He looked at me, then at his wife, and family, and said, "I do not care, you can if you want to." I thought it rather cool, but took my book and read, we knelt down, I prayed, and we went to bed, got up in the morning and ate breakfast; after which I said, "Well, shall we read and have prayer again this morning?" "Yes," said he, "I wish you would." O, I thought that was so much better than his answer on the evening before. I read, knelt down with them and prayed, and as I was getting off my knees he said, "Wait, a little, elder, I want to pray, too." And so he did. I think it was his first prayer; it came from his heart although it might not be so straight as some people sometimes pray; but the meaning was good—the desire pure. We then arose, he talked with me and said he had been a sailor and a wicked sinner, and wanted to know would God save him by obedience. They both obeyed the gospel; and how they do rejoice!

O, how good it is to be blessed. The angels of God must surely have gone before me in my work there as well as elsewhere. It is not a year yet since the first sermon was preached there by the Saints, and now they number over eighty members and have a church house on the way; and what work is done on it is well done.

My heart was made to rejoice in reading in the Herald the letter of sister May, of Independence, Mo., who testifies to the light and glorious manifestations of God's power and love to the London Saints, at the time of her baptism.

Yes, dear sisters, that time will never be forgotten by those who witnessed that baptism, and the halo of light that appeared. I have baptized hundreds, and witnessed many glorious manifestations of God's goodness since that time. God's work is rolling on faster now than ever I saw it before; the eyes of the people are being opened, and they are seeing the light and obeying the truth. Bro. J. A. Carpenter and I must have baptized over one hundred and forty-five since the last April conference; besides what others have done. This glorious work is onward.

I am about to enter into a debate with the Seventh Day Adventists, upon the Sabbath and Soul-sleeping questions; and perhaps what is called "Mormonism," in general. Our hands are full; please send forty more elders.

Your co-worker and well wisher for Zion's cause,
J. J. CORNISH.

DETROIT, Minn., Dec. 2d.

Dear Herald:—We are just home from one of the best conferences the Northern Minnesota District has held. It met at Girard the 26th and 27th of November. The business done was satisfactory and in unity. The meetings Sunday were well attended and the Spirit was one of love and a desire in honor to prefer one another. How that gentle loving Spirit calls our thoughts from earth away and we begin to realize the meaning of those words of our Savior that we may be one even as he and his Father are one. I long for the time when we can arrive at a perfect unity, for then the heavens could no longer retain the blessed Savior, and we should enjoy his presence forever.

Preaching, Sunday, by Bro. Way and myself was, we hope, satisfactory. The subject chosen was the restoration. If close attention and good order were anything, we should say the subject was well chosen. Saturday set in with a snow storm, wind north-west, and cold. At the opening of the afternoon meeting, prayer was offered that, if right, the Lord would cause the storm to cease, that we might have a pleasant day on the morrow and return to our homes in comfort. The Lord answered our prayer. Sunday, though cold, was bright, with but little wind, and Bro. and sister Way and self reached our homes on Wednesday without any inconvenience. The conference re-elected its old officers. The prospect is good for considerable labor being done by the local ministry this winter. We were disappointed in not seeing Bro. Alexander, for we had been led to expect to see him in this district some time in October; and as several have written and we get no answer, we almost feel like advertising; but whether to head it "Lost," "Strayed" or "Stolen," is the puzzle; but we can assure him a hearty welcome when he does come.

We all think the Herald is growing better every issue, if such a thing can be possible. I don't see how a Saint could get along without it. News comes through it of the good work, from all parts of the world, and we are drawn together in a closer bond of unity.

Yours in the love of Christ,

T. J. MARTIN.

ANDALUSIA, Ill., Nov. 29th.

Bro. D. Dancer:—I regard the Saints' Herald as the best religious paper published. Its teachings are in harmony with Christ and his apostles. Through its teachings my faith has been greatly strengthened. While reading the different testimonies therein, my heart warms with love, and my whole nature seems to thank my heavenly Father that he has permitted me to live in a day when the restored gospel is preached in its fullness. I fully believe in the great latter day work, and regret my circumstances will not permit me to do more financially to sustain it. The Saints ought to sustain the Herald. I have thought to take it as long as I remain in the flesh. Some think it too high in price; but I frequently see some things published in it that I think worth the subscription price for the year.

J. W. McDONALD.

SYRACUSE, Ohio, Nov. 14th.

Brother Joseph:—Since my appointment by the General Conference to labor in this district I have been preaching most all the time. For a short time I labored in connection with Bro. T. J. Beatty in Meigs, Athens, and Hocking counties, preaching at various places, among them is Tupper's Plains, in Meigs county. There are three churches in that place, but we could not get one of them to preach in. Is it not indeed very strange that the people should be afraid of the truth, (especially the priests)? Bro. Jeffries and Beatty, having been soldiers, applied for the Grand Army Post, and we there held forth dispensing the word of truth with good attention. Prejudice removed from this place. Bro. Beatty and I went to Dewitt's Run where there are some Saints living. We preached twice in the Ball Knob School house, returned to Tupper's Plains; preached the same evening, and left next morning, Bro. Jeffries going with us, to Pleasantville, Athens county, and preached in the Methodist church to a large congregation, making many friends to the cause, the people voting for us to come again and preach for them. Bro. Jeffries leaving us for home from this place, and Bro. Beatty and the writer proceeded on to Millfield, and thence to Buchtell and Sand Run, Hocking county; preaching from September 23d to 28th in a school house. Had liberty and good attention in dispensing the word, and were invited to come again. All of the above are new openings. (Bro. Beatty is a good companion in the ministry). 28th returned home to Syracuse and found Bro. G. T. Griffiths preaching in the Saints' church to a fair congregation. October 8th in company with Bro. and Sister Griffiths started for Vales Mills, Vinton county, where we preached on Saturday and Sunday, 9th and 10th. The 12th went to Limerick, Jackson county, the home of Bro. Beatty, Wales and Devore, stayed over Sunday. Bro. Jeffries made an appointment for us at Pleasant Hill, but the M. E. Church was closed against us. Friends opened the school house, and the cause has many friends in this place. After preaching the last evening by Bro. Griffiths, the writer heard some saying, "It is the truth; and it can not be overcome."

Let me say to Mr. Brown and all else, that I have been laboring of late with Bro. G. T. Griffiths, and know whereof I speak, that since his ordination as one of the Twelve, I have seen him speaking almost entirely by the power of the Spirit. Most all of the Saints have moved away from Syracuse.

Yours in the faith,

THOMAS MATTHEWS.

ROAN COUNTY, W. Va., Nov. 24th.

Bro. Joseph: After I closed the discussion at Vale's Mills I came to Jackson county, West Virginia, where I preached to the Saints and others several times; baptized two. From there I went to Sand Hill, a new place, where I preached seven times to large congregations; baptized four, and left many others very near. I came here to hold a series of meetings, and will stay so long as I am needed; then, if the Lord will, return to Sand Hill; then on to Mason county to look after the interest of the work; expect then to go to Cabel and Wayne counties. The people are not so prejudiced as they formerly were. I have had good liberty in presenting the word.

Your brother in Christ, and in the field,

JAMES MOLER.

REESE CREEK, Montana.

Editors Herald:—The church papers I can not do without; they are looked for as eagerly as the greatest prize, for they bring with them a joy that causes me to praise God for the promise given that Zion should be favored. Correspondence from far and near bear testimony that this latter day work is of God. Dear brethren and sisters, let us keep in mind the words uttered at the Reunion, "Press forward!" Keep off the devil's ground, then it's well with us. Not forgetting the Home Column, may the blessings of heaven be with our worthy sister Frances and all that are putting forth their efforts in this glorious work.

Yours in the covenant of peace,

THOMAS HARRIS.

THE combining of the liquor men throughout the country into "protective associations" and "unions" indicates that they are sniffing the battle from afar, and getting ready for the fray. It is true, they are being worried considerably now by State amendments and local option contests, but the omen of approaching woe to their eyes is the rapidly growing Prohibition party. When they meet in counsel they do not shake their heads dubiously as they talk about high license, low license, non-partisan-independent-anti saloon Republican combinations, or even about local option, it is that out and out prohibition advocated by the Prohibition party that gives them the cold sweats. Yes, the Prohibition party is small, but it is rapidly growing and the rummies see it, and they know it means business, so they are meeting and forming leagues and pooling their wealth to withstand present spasmodic efforts for state and county prohibition, and more especially to be getting themselves organized and equipped for the great battle that must be soon fought with the Prohibition party. They have wealth on their side, but God is on the side of the Prohibition party.—American.

Selections.

"TRY THE SPIRITS."

BY JOSEPH THE SEER.

RECENT occurrences that have transpired amongst us render it an imperative duty devolving upon me to say something in relation to the spirits by which men are actuated. It is evident from the Apostles' writings that many false spirits existed in their day, and had "gone forth into the world," and that it needed intelligence which God alone could impart to detect these spirits, and to prove what spirits are of God. The world in general have been very ignorant in regard to this one thing, and why should they be otherwise, "For no man knows the things of God, but by the Spirit of God." The Egyptians were not able to discover the difference between the miracles of Moses and those of the magicians until they came to be tested together; and if Moses had not appeared in their midst, they would unquestionably have thought that the miracles of the magicians were performed through the mighty power of God; for they were great miracles that were performed by them; a super-natural agency was developed; and a great power manifested.

The witch of Endor is a no less singular personage; clothed with a powerful agency she raised the prophet Samuel from his grave, and he appeared before the astonished king and revealed unto him his future destiny. Who is to tell whether this woman is of God, and a righteous woman? or whether the power she possessed was of the devil, and she a witch as represented by the Bible? It is easy for us to say now; but if we had lived in her day, which of us could have unraveled the mystery?

It would have been equally as difficult for us to tell by what spirit the prophets prophesied, or by what power the apostles spoke, and worked miracles. Who could have told whether the power of Simon the sorcerer was of God, or of the devil? There always did in every age seem to be a lack of intelligence pertaining to this subject. Spirits of all kinds have been manifested in every age and almost among all people. If we go among the Pagans, they have their spirits; the Mahomedans, the Jews, the Christians, the Indians; all have their spirits; all have a supernatural agency; and all contend that their spirits are of God. Who shall solve the mystery? "Try the spirits," says John; but who is to do it? The learned, the eloquent, the philosopher, the sage, the divine, all are ignorant. The Heathens will boast of their gods, and of the great things that have been unfolded by their oracles. The Mussulman will boast of his Koran and of the divine communications that his progenitors have received, and are receiving. The Jews have had numerous instances both ancient and modern among them of men who have professed to be inspired and sent to bring about great events, and the Christian world has not been slow in making up the number,

"Try the spirits;" but what by? Are we to try them by the creeds of men? What preposterous folly; what sheer ignorance; what madness. Try the motions and actions of an eternal being, (for I contend that all spirits are such,) by a thing that was conceived in ignorance, and brought forth in folly,—a cobweb of yesterday. Angels would hide their faces, and devils would be ashamed and insulted and would say, "Paul we know, and Jesus we know, but who are ye?" Let each man or society make a creed and try evil spirits by it, and the devil would shake his sides, it is all that he would ask; all that he would desire. Yet many of them do this, and hence "many spirits are abroad in the world." One great evil is, that men are ignorant of the nature of spirits; their power, laws, government, intelligence, etc., and imagine that when there is any thing like power, revelation, or vision manifested, that it must be of God; hence the Methodists, Presbyterians, and others frequently possess a spirit that will cause them to lie down, and during its operation animation is frequently entirely suspended. They consider it to be the power of God, and a glorious manifestation from God,—a manifestation of what? Is there any intelligence communicated? Are the curtains of heaven withdrawn, or the purposes of God developed? Have they seen and conversed with an angel; or have the glories of futurity burst upon their view? No! but their body has been inanimate; the operation of their spirit suspended; and all the intelligence that can be obtained from them when they arise is a shout of glory, or hallelujah, or some incoherent expression; but they have had "the power." The Shaker will whirl around on his heel impelled by a supernatural agency, or spirit, and think that he is governed by the Spirit of God; and the Jumper will jump and enter into all kinds of extravagances; a primitive Methodist will shout under the influence of that spirit until he will rend the heavens with his cries; while the Quakers, (or Friends) moved as they think by the Spirit of God, will sit still and say nothing. Is God the author of all this? If not all of it, which does he recognize? Surely such a heterogeneous mass of confusion never can enter into the kingdom of Heaven. Every one of these professes to be competent to try his neighbor's spirit, but no one can try his own; and what is the reason? Because they have not a key to unlock, no rule wherewith to measure, and no criterion whereby to test it. Could any one tell the length, breadth, or height of a building without a rule? test the quality of metal without a criterion? or point out movements of the planetary system without any knowledge of astronomy? Certainly not; and if such ignorance as this is manifested about a spirit of this kind, who can describe an angel of light if Satan should appear as one in glory? Who can tell his color, his signs, his appearance, his glory; or what is the manner of his manifestation? Who can detect the spirit of the French Prophets, with their revelations, and visions, and power, and manifestations? Or who can point out the spirit of the Irvingites with their apostles and prophets, and visions, and tongues, and interpretations, &c., &c.; or who can drag into day-light and develop the hidden mysteries of the false spirits that so frequently are made manifest among the Latter Day Saints. We answer that no man can do this without the Priesthood, and having a knowledge of the laws by which spirits are governed. For as "no man knows the things of God but by the Spirit of God," so no man knows the spirit of the devil and his power and influence but by possessing intelligence which is more than human, and having unfolded through the medium of the Priesthood the mysterious operations of his devices; without knowing the angelic form, the sanctified look, and gesture, and the zeal that are frequently manifested by him for the glory of God;—together with the prophetic spirit, the gracious influence, the godly appearance, and the holy garb which is so characteristic of his proceedings, and his mysterious windings. A man must have the discerning of spirits before he can drag into daylight this hellish influence and unfold it unto the world in all its soul destroying, diabolical, and horrid colors; for nothing is a greater injury to the children of men than to be under the influence of a false spirit when they think they have the Spirit of God. Thousands have felt the influence of its terrible power, and baneful effects; long pilgrimages have been undertaken, penances endured, and pain, misery, and ruin have followed in their train; nations have been convulsed, kingdoms overthrown, provinces laid waste, and blood, carnage, and desolation are the habiliments in which it has been clothed. The Turks, the Hindoos, the Jews, the Christians, the Indians, in fact all nations have been deceived, imposed upon and injured through the mischievous effects of false spirits.

As we have noticed before, the great difficulty lies in the ignorance of the nature of spirits, of the laws by which they are governed, and the signs by which they may be known. If it requires the Spirit of God to know the things of God, and the spirit of the devil can only be unmasked through that medium, then it follows as a natural consequence that unless some person, or persons, have a communication or revelation from God, unfolding to them the operation of spirit, they must eternally remain ignorant of these principles; for I contend that if one man can not understand these things but by the Spirit of God, ten thousand men can not; it is alike out of the reach of the wisdom of the learned, the tongue of the eloquent, and the power of the mighty. And we shall at last have to come to this conclusion, whatever we may think of revelation, that without it we can neither know nor understand any thing of God, or of the devil; and however unwilling the world may be to acknowledge this principle, it is evident from the multifarious creeds and notions concerning this matter that they understand nothing of this principle, and it is equally as plain that without a divine communication they must remain in ignorance. The world has always mistook false prophets for true ones, and those that were sent of God they considered to be false prophets; and hence they killed, stoned, punished and imprisoned the true prophets, and they had to hide themselves "in deserts, and dens, and caves of the earth;" and although the most honorable men of the earth, they banished them from their society as vagabonds, whilst they cherished, honored, and supported knaves, vagabonds, hypocrites, impostors, and the basest of men.

A man must have the discerning of spirits as we before stated to understand these things; and how is he to obtain this gift if there are no gifts of the spirit? And how can these gifts be obtained without revelation?—"Christ ascended into heaven and gave gifts to men. . . . and he gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers." And how were apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers and evangelists chosen? By "prophecy (revelation) and by laying on of hands:" by a divine communication, and a divinely appointed ordinance: through the medium of the priesthood organized according to the order of God by divine appointment. The apostles in ancient time held the keys of this priesthood—of the mysteries of the kingdom of God,—and consequently were enabled to unlock, and unravel all things pertaining to the government of the church, the welfare of society, the future destiny of men, and the agency, power, and influence of spirits, for they could control them at pleasure; bid them depart in the name of Jesus, and detect their mischievous and mysterious operations when trying to palm themselves upon the church in a religious garb and militate against the interest of the church and the spread of truth. We read that they "cast out devils in the name of Jesus;" and when a woman possessing the spirit of divination cried before Paul and Silas, "These are the servants of the most high God that shew unto us the way of salvation;" they detected the spirit; and although she spake favorably of them Paul commanded the spirit to come out of her, and saved themselves from the opprobrium that might have been heaped upon their heads through an affiance with her in the development of her wicked principles, which they certainly would have been charged with if they had not rebuked the evil spirit. A power similar to this existed through the medium of the priesthood, in different ages. Moses could detect the magicians' power and show that he was God's servant; he knew when he was upon the mountain (through revelation) that Israel was engaged in idolatry; he could develop the sin of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, detect witches and wizards in their proceedings, and point out the true prophets of the Lord. Joshua knew how to detect the man who had stolen the wedge of gold and Babylonish garment; Micaiah could point out the false spirit by which the four hundred prophets were governed; and if his advice had been taken many lives would have been spared. 2. Chron. xviii, 18.

Elijah, Elisha, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and many other prophets possessed this power. Our Savior, the apostles, and even the members of the church were endowed with this gift, for says Paul, 1 Cor. xii, "to one is given the gift of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues, to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another the discerning of spirits," all these proceeded from the same Spirit of God, and were the gifts of God. The Ephesian Church were enabled by this principle "to try those that said they were apostles, and were not, and found them liars." Rev. 2:2.

In tracing the thing to the foundation, and looking at it philosophically, we shall find a very material difference between the body and the spirit. The body is supposed to be organized matter, and the spirit by many is thought to be immaterial—without substance. With this latter statement we should beg leave to differ, and state that spirit is a substance; that it is material, but that it is more pure, elastic, and refined matter than the body; that it existed before the body, can exist in the body, and will exist separate from the body when the body will be mouldering in the dust; and will in the resurrection be again united with it. Without attempting to describe this mysterious connection and the laws that govern the body and spirit of man, their relationship to each other, and the design of God in relation to the human body and spirit, I would just remark that the spirits of men are eternal; that they are governed by the same priesthood that Abraham, Melchizedec, and the apostles were; that they are organized according to that priesthood which is everlasting, "without beginning of days or end of years;" that they all move in their respective spheres and are governed by the law of God; but when they appear upon earth they are in a probationary state, and are preparing, if righteous, for a future and a greater glory; that the spirits of good men can not interfere with the wicked beyond their prescribed bounds; for "Michael the archangel dared not bring a railing accusation against the devil, but said, the Lord rebuke thee, Satan.

It would seem also that wicked spirits have their bounds, limits, and laws by which they are governed or controlled, and know their future destiny; hence those who were in the maniac said to our Savior, "Art thou come to torment us before the time?" And when Satan presented himself before the Lord, among the sons of God, he said that he came "from going to and fro in the earth, and from wandering up and down in it;" and he is emphatically called "the prince of the power of the air;" and it is very evident that they possess a power that none but those who have the priesthood can control, as we have before adverted to in the case of the sons of Sceva.

Having said so much upon general principles without referring to the peculiar situation, power and influence of the magicians of Egypt, the wizards, and witches of the Jews, the oracles of the Heathen; their necromancers, soothsayers, and astrologers; the maniacs or those possessed of devils in the apostles' days, we will notice and try to detect (so far as we have the scriptures for our aid) some few instances of the development of false spirits in more modern times, and in this our day.

The "French Prophets" were possessed of a spirit that deceived; they existed in Vivaris and Dauphiny in great numbers in the year 1688; there were many boys and girls, from seven to twenty-five, they had strange fits as in tremblings, and faintings, which made them stretch out their legs and arms as in a swoon; they remained awhile in trances and coming out of them uttered all that came into their mouths. [See Buck's Theological Dictionary]. Now God never had any prophets that acted in this way; there was nothing indecorous in the proceedings of the Lord's prophets in any age; neither had the apostles, nor prophets in the apostles' day anything of this kind. Paul says, "Ye may all prophecy one by one; and if anything be revealed to another let the first hold his peace, for the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets," but here we find the prophets are subject to the spirits, and falling down have twitchings, tumblings, and faintings, through the influence of that spirit; being only under its control. Paul says, "Let everything be done decently and in order;" but here we find the greatest disorder and indecency in the conduct of both men and women, as above described. The same rule would apply to the falling, twitchings, swooning, shaking, and trances of many of our modern revivalists.

Joannah Southcote professed to be a prophetess and wrote a book of prophecies in 1804; she became the founder of a people that are now extant; she was to bring forth in a place appointed, a son that was to be the Messiah, which thing has failed. Independent of this, however, where do we read of a woman that was the founder of a church in the word of God? Paul told the women in his day "to keep silence in the church, and that if they wished to know anything to ask their husbands at home;" he would not suffer a woman "to rule, or to usurp authority in the church;" but here we find a woman the founder of a church, the revelator and guide, the Alpha and Omega, contrary to all acknowledged rule, principle and order.

Jemima Wilkinson was another prophetess that figured largely in America in the last century. She stated that she was taken sick and died, and that her soul went to heaven where it still continues. Soon after her body was re-animated with the Spirit and power of Christ, upon which she set up as a public teacher and declared she had an immediate revelation. Now the scriptures positively assert that "Christ is the first fruit, afterwards those that are Christ's at his coming; then cometh the end." But Jemima, according to her testimony, died, and rose again before the time mentioned in the scriptures. The idea of her soul being in heaven while her body was on earth is also preposterous; when God breathed into man's nostrils he became a living soul; before that he did not live; and when that was taken away his body died; and so did our Savior when the spirit left the body; nor did his body live until his spirit returned in the power of his resurrection; but Mrs. Wilkinson's soul [life] was in heaven, and her body without the soul [or life] on earth, living [without the soul, or] without life.

The Irvingites are a people that have counterfeited the truth perhaps the nearest of any of our modern sectarians; they commenced about ten years ago in the city of London in England. They have churches formed in various parts of England and Scotland, and some few in Upper Canada. Mr. Irving, their founder, was a learned and talented minister of the church of Scotland; he was a great logician, and a powerful orator; but withal wild and enthusiastic in his views. Moving in the higher circles—and possessing talent and zeal—placed him in a situation to become a conspicuous character, and to raise up a society similar to that which is called after his name.

The Irvingites have apostles, prophets, pastors, teachers, evangelists, and angels. They profess to have the gift of tongues and the interpretation of tongues; and in some few instances to the gift of healing.

The first prophetic spirit that was manifested was in some Misses Campbell that Mr. Irving met with while on a journey in Scotland; they had [what is termed among their sect] "utterances;" which were evidently of a supernatural agency. Mr. Irving, falling into the common error of considering all supernatural manifestations to be of God; took them to London with him and introduced them into his church.

They there were honored as the prophetesses of God; and when they spoke Mr. Irving, or any of his ministers, had to keep silence; they were peculiarly wrought upon before the congregation, and had strange utterances, uttered with an unnatural, shrill voice, and with thrilling intonations; they frequently made use of a few broken unconnected sentences that were ambiguous, incoherent, and incomprehensible; at other times they were more clearly understood. They would frequently cry out, "There is iniquity! There is iniquity!" And Mr. Irving has been led under the influence of this charge to fall down upon his knees before the public congregation and to confess his sin, not knowing whether he had sinned, nor wherein; nor whether the thing referred to him or somebody else. During these operations the bodies of the persons speaking were powerfully wrought upon; their countenances were distorted; they had frequent twitchings in their hands, and the whole system was powerfully convulsed at intervals; they sometimes, however, (it is supposed), spoke in correct tongues and had true interpretations.

Under the influence of this spirit the church was organized by these women; apostles, prophets, &c., were soon called, and a systematic order of things introduced, as above mentioned. A Mr. Baxter (afterwards one of the principal prophets) upon going into one of their meetings, says, "I saw a power manifested and thought that it was the power of God, and asked that it might fall upon me; it did so and I began to prophesy." Eight or nine years ago they had about sixty preachers going through the streets of London testifying that London was to be the place where the "two witnesses," spoken of by John were to prophesy; that (they) "the church and the spirit" were the witnesses; and that at the end of three years and a half there were to be an earthquake and great destruction, and our Savior was to come. Their apostles were collected together at the appointed time watching the event; but Jesus did not come, and the prophecy was then ambiguously explained away. They frequently had signs given them by the spirit to prove to them that what was manifest to them should take place. Mr. Baxter related an impression that he had concerning a child. It was manifested to him that he should visit the child and lay hands upon it, and that it should be healed; and to prove to him that this was of God, he should meet his brother in a certain place who should speak unto him certain words; his brother addressed him precisely in the way and manner that the manifestation designated; the sign took place, but when he laid his hands on the child it did not recover. I can not vouch for the authority of the last statement, as Mr. Baxter at that time had left the Irvingites; but it is in accordance with many of their proceedings, and the thing has never been attempted to be denied. It may be asked, where is there anything in all this that is wrong?

1st. The church was organized by women, and "God placed in the church first apostles, secondarily prophets;" and not first women; but Mr. Irving placed in his church first women; secondarily apostles; and the church was founded and organized by them. A woman has no right to found or organize a church; God never sent them to do it.

2d. Those women would speak in the midst of a meeting and rebuke Mr. Irving, or any of the church. Now the scripture positively says, "Thou shalt not rebuke an elder, but entreat him as a father;" not only this, but they frequently accused the brethren, thus placing themselves in the seat of Satan, who is emphatically called "the accuser of the brethren."

3d. Mr. Baxter received the spirit on asking for it without attending to the ordinances, and began to prophesy; whereas the scriptural way of attaining the gift of the Holy Ghost is by baptism, and by laying on of hands.

4th. As we have stated in regard to others, the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets; but those prophets were subject to the spirits; the spirits controlling their bodies at pleasure.

But it may be asked how Mr. Baxter could get a sign from a second person! To this we would answer, that Mr. Baxter's brother was under the influence of the same spirit as himself; and being subject to that spirit, he could be easily made to speak to Mr. Baxter whatever the spirit should dictate; but there was not power in the spirit to heal the child.

Again it may be asked how it was that they could speak in tongues if they were of the devil? We would answer that they could be made to speak in another tongue as well as in their own, as they were under the control of that spirit; and the devil can tempt the Hottentot, the Turk, the Jew, or any other nation; and if these men were under the influence of his spirit they of course could speak Hebrew, Latin, Greek, Italian, Dutch, or any other language that the devil knew.

Some will say "try the spirits" by the word. "Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God; and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God."—John 4: 2, 3. One of the Irvingites once quoted this passage whilst under the influence of a spirit, and then said, "I confess that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh." And yet these prophecies failed; their Messiah did not come; and the great things spoken of by them have fallen to the ground. What is the matter here? Did not the apostle speak the truth? Certainly he did, but he spoke to a people who were under the penalty of death the moment they embraced Christianity; and no one without a knowledge of the fact would confess it and expose themselves to death; and this was consequently given as a criterion to the church or churches to which John wrote. But the devil on a certain occasion cried out, "I know thee, who thou art, the 'Holy one of God.'" Here was a frank acknowledgement under other circumstances, that "Jesus had come in the flesh." On another occasion the devil said, "Paul we know, and Jesus we know;" of course, come in the flesh. No man nor set of men without the regular constituted authorities, the priesthood and discerning of spirits, can tell true from false spirits. This power they possessed in the apostles' day, but it has departed from the world for ages.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints have also had their false spirits; and as it is made up of all those different sects professing every variety of opinion, and having been under the influence of so many kinds of spirits, it is not to be wondered at if there should be found amongst us false spirits.

Soon after the gospel was established in Kirtland, and during the absence of the authorities of the church, many false spirits were introduced, many strange visions were seen, and wild enthusiastic notions were entertained; men run out of doors under the influence of this spirit, and some of them got upon the stumps of trees and shouted, and all kinds of extravagances were entered into by them; one man pursued a ball that he said he saw flying in the air, until he came to a precipice when he jumped into the top of a tree which saved his life; and many ridiculous things were entered into calculated to bring disgrace upon the church of God; to cause the Spirit of God to be withdrawn; and to uproot and destroy those glorious principles which had been developed for the salvation of the human family. But when the authorities returned the spirit was made manifest, those members that were exercised with it were tried for their fellowship, and those who would not repent and forsake it, were cut off. At a subsequent period a Shaker spirit was on the point of being introduced; and at another time the Methodist and Presbyterian falling-down power; but the spirit was rebuked, and put down, and those who would not submit to rule and good order were disfellowshipped. We have also had brethren and sisters who have had the gift of tongues falsely; they would speak in a muttering, unnatural voice, and their bodies be distorted like the Irvingites before alluded to; whereas there is nothing unnatural in the Spirit of God. A circumstance of this kind took place in Upper Canada, but was rebuked by the presiding elder; another, a woman near the same place professed to have the discerning of spirits, and begun to accuse another sister of things that she was not guilty of, which she said she knew was so by the spirit, but was afterwards proven to be false—she placed herself in the capacity of the "accuser of the brethren." And no person through the discerning of spirits can bring a charge against another; they must be proven guilty by positive evidence, or they stand clear.

There have also been ministering angels in the church which were of Satan appearing as an angel of light. A sister in the State of New York had a vision, who said it was told her that if she would go to a certain place in the woods an angel would appear to her. She went at the appointed time and saw a glorious personage descending arrayed in white, with sandy colored hair; he commenced and told her to fear God, and said that her husband was called to do great things, but that he must not go more than one hundred miles from home or he would not return; whereas God had called him to go to the ends of the earth, and he has since been more than one thousand miles from home, and is yet alive. Many true things were spoken by this personage and many things that were false. How, it may be asked, was this known to be a bad angel? By the color of his hair; that is one of the signs that he can be known by, and by his contradicting a former revelation.

We have also had brethren and sisters that have had written revelations, and have started forward to lead this church. Such was a young boy in Kirtland, Isaac Russell of Missouri, and Gladden Bishop, and Oliver Olney of Nauvoo. The boy is now living with his parents who have submitted to the laws of the church. Mr. Russell stayed in Far West, from whence he was to go to the Rocky Mountains led by three Nephites; but the Nephites never came and his friends forsook him, all but some of his blood relations, who have since been nearly destroyed by the mob. Mr. Bishop was tried by the high council, his papers examined, condemned and burned, and he cut off from the church; he acknowledged the justice of the decision and said "that he now saw his error; for if he had been governed by the revelations given before, he might have known that no one was to write revelations for the church but Joseph Smith," and begged to be prayed for and forgiven by the brethren. Mr. Olney has also been tried by the high council and disfellowshipped because he would not have his writings tested by the word of God; evidently proving that he loves darkness rather than light because his deeds are evil."—Times and Seasons, vol. 3, pages 743-748.

Miscellaneous.

IN MEMORY OF BROTHER O. P. DUNHAM.

Whereas it has pleased the giver of all good to remove from our councils, by the hand of death, our veteran brother, O. P. Dunham; be it Resolved, that we deeply sympathize with his family in their bereavement and hereby tender them our condolence; and that the church by his death has lost a faithful member and an earnest laborer who did to the last his utmost for the interest of truth as he believed it. He was not able for a long while to meet often with the church in consequence of ill health and the infirmities of age; but he always expressed himself firm in the faith and hope of the gospel. Bro. Dunham was born October 29th, 1807, at Mansfield, Connecticut; was baptized there, in December, 1840, by Joseph F. Ball, and confirmed by J. F. Ball and Samuel Parker. He was ordained to the office of high priest, April 6th, 1860, at Amboy, Illinois, by W. W. Blair and S. Powers. His death occurred September 25th, 1887, at Burlington, Iowa; and the funeral services were conducted by Elder Levi Lightfoot.

Done by order of String Prairie and Nauvoo district conference.

JAMES MCKIERNAN, }
JOHN H. LAMBERT, } Com.
B. F. DURFEE. }

FROM ELDER E. C. BRIGGS.

Dear Saints of the New England States and of the Eastern Mission:—The summer's work for the Lord is ended; its gains and losses are all recorded, in heaven if not on earth, so far as we are concerned. The complications connected with our individual associations in the church are varied; hence patience is the prerequisite to every effort for a solution to a successful settlement of any and all differences that have or may arise in the great work to which we are called.

I congratulate you in the fact that sincerity and love have been a marked characteristic of all your warfare. That mistakes have been made none will deny. "It is human to err, but divine to forgive." There was never a truer sentence uttered. And let me ask you, one and all, would you dare say once, "Our Father in heaven," and in your hearts not forgive those who have trespassed against you. Most of the dissensions in the church have come through a lack of understanding the law of Christ; rather than through wilfulness and a desire to injure, or do violence to each other, or the church. Hence the voice of God to us was: "Nor is it expedient that the elders of the first quorums be sent out of the land of America until the work of the Reorganization of my church be more fully established and a greater unity of understanding between them be obtained." "The first quorums" here referred to are those especially called to the traveling ministry. Others may travel as circumstances or provisions may permit. And when they do so travel, it is always under direction of those who have the watch-care of all the churches as presiding officers, agreeable to the revelation of 1873, which says: "Encouraging and directing their brethren in their labors."

As presiding elders of branches should have an especial watch-care over those who are under their charge, so are all as ministers under the charge of those whose duty it is to regulate all the affairs of the same "church in all nations;" and any presiding traveling high councilor should be eminently able at least to know the wants of the church in his mission as soon as any one else. And as he is the highest authority present, all authorities are subject to his direction, at any moment or stage of any meeting when ever he thinks it proper to put in an appearance, and should be recognized at once as such presiding office. "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure," is another truth. And all those difficult and complicated matters should be left in the hands of those presiding officers. All other officers are released from such burdens that they may not be hindered from their legitimate work, which is to preach the gospel to the perishing world. I therefore ask all the elders, priests and high priests of this part of the mission who are not charged with the care of churches, to buckle on the armor of the Lord, and preach the word in every locality where you can open up the work and can find a place to sow the good seed; let none of the burdens and cares of the branches hinder you in your work of love. The branch officers shall have my especial attention, aid and counsel.

The Seventies sent to our help are efficient men, who love the work better than their own lives, and where they are found laboring are under my direction and counsel, and should be honored as men of experience; and are first in the battle to lead, take charge, "and regulate;" and with their assistance I have no doubt but ere long, complications that have disturbed our peace will disappear. Let us now join hearts and hands for the winter campaign. Every one in his or her calling seek to build up the cause.

Presiding elders of districts, marshal your hosts of all the officers not burdened with branch duties into new fields which lie anywhere outside of branches. Do your best to win souls to Christ. Lend aid to the presidents of churches when you can; but the burden of your calling is to preach, not to regulate and set in order the churches. Presidents of branches be fervent in spirit abounding in the work of the Lord. Gentleness not austerity is required. Studying with sobriety the wants of all under your watch-care, avoid lightness which leads to be trifling and offends the tender and the good. Pray for wisdom, and remember that the gifts of the Spirit are for the edifying of those who love God and keep his commandments, and not to convince the ungodly; and that great care should be exercised lest our good be evil spoken of. "Cast not your pearls before swine, lest they turn and rend you," is in point here. We, with the apostle of old, say: "Forbid not to speak in tongues;" but there are other gifts not so easily counterfeited by the enemy that is ever seeking who he may devour. Faith cometh by hearing the gospel preached; not by seeing miracles. And the scriptures teach, "If any are sick, send for the elders, and they shall anoint them with oil and lay hands on them and the Lord shall raise them up." Do not go to the elders in a public meeting to be ministered to before the sacrilegious, and the vain, who only know how to trample the precious pearls under their feet. Again the blessed apostle says, "If any are afflicted, let him pray," "Confess your faults, one to another, and pray for one another and so fulfill the law of Christ." I appreciate the great gifts of the Holy Spirit, perhaps as much as any of the Saints; but they are too sacred to be trifled with; and I believe they are withheld from us often because we are not wise in the use of them. "Remember that which cometh from above is sacred and must be spoken with care, and by constraint of the Spirit."—B. of C. 63: 16. Again; third paragraph says: "With whom God is angry he is not well pleased, wherefore unto such he showeth no signs, only in wrath unto their condemnation." Also see section 46: 5, 6: "I would that ye should always remember in your minds what those gifts are and all these gifts cometh from God for the benefit of the children of God."

The above shows evidently that there should be no endeavor to display on our part the gifts of the Spirit to be seen of men. "And unto the Bishop of the church, and unto such as God shall appoint and ordain to watch over the church, are to have it given unto them to discern all those gifts, lest there should be any among you professing and yet be not of God."—46: 7. The necessity of being exceeding careful lest we are deceived by false spirits, I impress upon the minds of the Saints; because it is written by the great Apostle: "Woe to the inhabitants of the earth and of the sea, for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath."—Rev. 12: 12. And when men come with vindictiveness in their hearts against their brethren, to destroy them in their character, they are easily detected; but a cunning, false spirit is not always so easily detected. The least selfishness, pride, ambition on our part, or covering our own sins disarms us; so that we are not in a good state of mind to judge spiritual things. The Reorganization stands on high ground; its walls are invulnerable; God is its builder; the Christ our Master; shouting grace, grace, to all Saints; and we have no fears as to the results; victory is assured by our Commander, Jesus, our Lord.

Your co-laborer in the "marvelous work."
E. C. BRIGGS.

296 Ruggles St., BOSTON, MASS.

NOTICE.

To the Saints in the Northern Michigan District:—Having been appointed by Bishop G. A. Blakeslee as his agent in this district to receive your tithes and offerings, I sincerely hope you will conform to the law, and address me at For-ester, Sanilac county, Michigan. Send moneys by registered letter.
ANDREW BARR.

MARRIED.

RUMEL.—HOLLAND.—At the residence of the bride's parents, near Clear Water, Nebraska, on December 1st, 1887, Bro. William M. Rumel, of Omaha, Nebraska, and sister Sarah Holland, of Clear Water, Elder Levi Gamet officiating. The ceremony took place about 9:30 a. m., and after taking refreshments, the happy pair bid adieu to the friends assembled, and with the best wishes of all took their departure for Omaha, to spend a few days there with friends, and then to settle at Fremont, Nebraska.

BOWMAN.—COLLINS.—On the 1st day of December, 1887, at the residence of Mr. John Moncymaker, Augusta county, Virginia, by Elder O. E. Cleveland, Bro. Noah Bowman and Miss Mary F. Collins, both of Rockingham county.

MORGANS.—YATES.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. James Yates, Washingtonville, Ohio, November 3d, 1887, by Elder G. T. Griffiths, John J. Morgans, of Scranton, Pennsylvania, and Margaret M. Yates. It was an enjoyable season, there being a great many guests present, who partook of the rich repast prepared for the occasion. May the love and respect that they now have for each other continue to grow as the coming years roll by.

DIED.

HAY.—On Monday there passed away from our midst, after a short illness, Sr. Jessie, wife of Bro. Alexander Hay; in her 74th year. She was born in Selkirkshire, Scotland, and in her early married life came to America with her husband, and has lived in Bandera for the past 33 years. She and her husband were the first two converts who joined the Latter Day Saint Church in Scotland, and were life long opponents to the Brigham Young section of the Mormon Church, being unequivocally opposed to polygamy. Of the deceased much could be written of her lovable disposition. Few indeed are the old people remaining in our midst that have a record so large of charitable and good deeds done by her in her lifetime; and no one has ever heard her utter an uncharitable or unchristianlike word against members of other religious denominations, thereby leaving behind her an example which many would do well to follow. She was to all her relations—young and old—"Mother Hay," and not only they, but many others will mourn the departure of this good and aged Christian woman. It was a noticeable feature, remarked by several of those present, that the funeral and last solemn rites were attended by citizens, their wives and children, who were not, and never had been connected with the denomination of which the dead lady had always been a devout, conscientious, and unpretending disciple. As the attending mourners stood round the casket, in which she was lowered to her last mortal resting place, old and young, reverently joined in the simple obsequies; and the subdued expressions of regret on all sides, spoke volumes for the sincere esteem in which she had been held by all religious sects, during her unobtrusive, but Christian, and benevolent life.

There are doubtless many among our readers, who can personally recall to mind many acts of kindness which they and their friends have received at her hands, and debts of gratitude which can never be paid on earth, may still be paid in the memory and hearts of those who have been recipients of her assistance and encouragement. It was only a short time before her sudden sickness that the Revs. I. N. Roberts and J. A. Currie, ministers of the denomination to which she was for so many years attached, were called away to other missions, and consequently at the time of her death no officiating minister was in the neighborhood—the service, however, was feelingly performed by Priest Oscar Johnson.

WHITING.—Near Deloit, Iowa, November 18th, 1887, of croup, Bertha, daughter of Elder W. W. and Hannah Whiting, aged 3 years, 8 months, and 13 days. Funeral sermon was preached by Elder C. E. Butterworth, Sunday, November 27th, at the Saints' Chapel in Deloit, Iowa, to a sympathizing audience of relatives and friends, from the text: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."—Rev. 14: 13

"There is a life beyond the tomb
That death can not invade;
Where pain, nor woes, nor sin's dark gloom,
Can ever cast a shade."

HARTNELL.—Bro. Samuel Hartnell, of Juniata, Michigan, died November 15th, 1887. Bro. Hartnell was born in 1852, in Devonshire, England; baptized by Bro. Robert Davis, in Ontario, in 1876. He passed through much of the troubles the Saints had to endure in USborne, Ontario, at the time they were mobbed, etc. Bro. Hartnell was ordained to the office of a priest, and although he did but little in that office, he has ever stood for the faith and died firm in gospel. He leaves a wife and two children, father, mother, brothers and sisters with many friends who deeply mourn their loss. Funeral sermon by J. J. Cornish; text, Ps. 116: 15.

SCOTT.—At Diamond, Ohio, November 25th, 1887, Mr. Alexander Scott. He was born August 16th, 1825, at Mifflin, Pennsylvania. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder G. T. Griffiths in the M. E. Church, Palmyra, Ohio, to a large and interested audience. He leaves a wife, five sons and one daughter to mourn his death. Mr. Scott was respected and loved by all his acquaintances.

A PORTION of the Grand Army refused to march underneath a banner on which was displayed a picture of the President of the United States, recently, at Wheeling, W. Va.; yet in that same parade, marching in procession with them, were four-horse wagons filled with beer barrels, and displaying bacchanalian inscriptions, yet they murmured not a word. They would not think of offending the rum traffic, but made haste to insult the President of this nation because, forsooth, he is a Democrat. So, also, is Gov. Foraker sputtering around about those "rebel flags," but not so much as noticing the fact that at a great anti-Prohibition barbecue, in Texas, the Union flag was trampled on. The Germans vote the Republican ticket.—American.

AS SIMPLE AS 88 TO 51.—Hartford Courant: And now when an American missionary goes to China and a Chinaman asks him, "Are my ancestors under condemnation?" he must say "Yes." And if he still asks "Do they have another probation?" he must say "No." And if he is asked, "How do you know?" he can say, "The American Board has voted so, 88 to 51." The Chinaman can not ask any more questions after that.

ADVICES received indicate that the Mormon Colony that settled at Lee's Creek, near Lethbridge, N. W. T., is in a prosperous state. A recent visitor there states that the followers of Joe Smith have made more progress in a few months than the other settlers in as many years,

THE gold which is now being dug out of the ancient cemeteries (huacas) at Hilandia, Central America, and other places near Pereira, has led more than one thousand workmen to flock to that spot, and a town has sprung up there within the last four years which now contains more than fifty thousand inhabitants. Public attention is being turned to those regions, as the ancient burial places and deposits of the wealthy Cacique Caracal have not yet been discovered, and it is believed that his treasures were immensely more valuable than any which have yet been unearthed.—Sel.

Women are said to be frightened at the sight of a mouse, and yet two young ladies carried out each a keg of powder from a burning store at a recent fire at New Martinsville, West Virginia, when the kegs were so hot they could only be handled when enveloped with wet cloths.

THE SALOON'S DISTINCTION.—Let a woman go to India with the avowed purpose to better the condition of the natives and she is called a missionary. Let her show an interest in the laws that effect our boys and our homes in this country, and she is called a crank and a fool.—Sel.

The Columbia Bicycle Calendar and Stand for 1888, convenient and valuable of its kind, has been sent us by the Pope Manufacturing Company, Boston, Massachusetts.

Mr. Bancroft, the historian, who has been at work for half a century writing the standard history of his country, has just passed his 87th birthday.

Twelve Sermons for 25 cents.

In January, 1888,

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

will be enlarged to an eight column paper, devoted to general and local news, and will begin the publication of monthly supplements, containing full reports of sermons selected from those delivered at Lamoni and at the

GENERAL CONFERENCES,

which will be reported especially for us.

Gazette, without supplement, per year....$1 25
Gazette, with supplement, per year.....$1 50

Send for sample copy.

LAMBERT & HANSEN,

nov26tf Lamoni, Iowa.

Price - - - - $1.25 per year.

AUTUMN LEAVES

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, recipes, etc., by mail for 35c in stamps. W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

FOR SALE.

Any one wishing to purchase a good home of 4½ acres with orchard and barn, (no house), in Kirtland, Ohio, will please write me. Address, JOHN GILLESPIE, P. O. Box 71. KIRTLAND, Lake Co., Ohio. 10dec2t

Foreign Money Orders.

Bear in mind the fact that the post office at Lamoni is now a Foreign Money Order Office. Therefore, those in foreign countries sending moneys to this office should draw them on Lamoni, Iowa, U. S. A.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

WANTED

Several copies of No. 1, vol. 1, of "Herald."

Address Geo. Schweich, Richmond, Missouri, stating price. 19nov1m

J. H. HANSEN, M. D. PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni
MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14feb1y

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

"The Ruins Revisited,"

Is the title of a neat, cloth-bound volume of 240 pages, placed in our hands by Mr. S. F. Walker, its author and publisher. The work is the result of large reading and years of study and contemplation; and as a factor in the literature of the age, should receive its share of attention. The author traces the Universe from star-dust to its present situation, attempting to account scientifically for the varied and manifold phenomena of animal and vegetable life, deducting certain theological conclusions from scientific standpoints; seemingly endeavoring to avoid the extremes occupied by either scientific or religious bigots. The latter part of the work is devoted to the exploration of the "Ruins" of "Ancient America," as presented by those who have visited them; the last chapter being a collection of evidences intended to support the proposition that Christ was known and worshiped upon this continent by the ancient inhabitants. The book can be had of Mr. Walker. Price $1.25.—Lamoni Gazette.

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

No. 2.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.
WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

A SUPERB PRESENT.
INVALUABLE TO
Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians,
Editors, Bankers, Teachers,
Merchants, Students,
and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

- No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, ... $10.00
- " 2, " " " 2 tiers " " ... 12.00
- " 3, " " " 3 " " " ... 12.00
- " 4, " " " 4 " " " ... 15.00
- " 4, " " " 4 " " " ... 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.
Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free.
Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.
ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCEOLA CO., MICH.

Welsh Hymn Book.

We have on hand about 100 copies of a book, entitled "Llyfr Hymnau at Wasanaeth Eglwys Iesu Grist. Ad-Reddieddig Samt y Dydd Diweddaf." There are 393 hymns in Welsh and 33 in English. It is published by the church in Wales, and sent here for sale. Sixty cents each, free of postage; bound in full leather, marbled edges.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.

Remit by Post Office Order, or by Express Order, on Lamoni, Iowa. Or by Bank Drafts on Chicago or New York only; personal checks on banks in any other cities can not be used at par. Money Orders from Foreign countries should be made payable at Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

ZION'S HOPE

Is published every Saturday by the Church of Christ, at Lamoni, Iowa. Single copies, per year, 50c; packages of four to ten 40c; packages of over ten 35c.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- GRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

- TO AND FROM
- NEW YORK,
  - BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
  - CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
  - NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
  - LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
  - PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
  - VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C. B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "
At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"We believe that one man should have one wife, and one woman but one husband: except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 762.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 24, 1887.

No. 52.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,

Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express. Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Dec. 24, 1887.

WE believe the following seizure of the church books, at Salt Lake City to be severe and harsh, but it is the legal outgrowth of the measures enacted by the Government to compel people living in United States territory to conform to the spirit of American institutions.

MORMON CHURCH PROPERTY SEIZED.

Salt Lake, Utah, Dec. 7th.—To-day United States Marshal Dyer, as receiver, seized the Mormon church president's office, ledgers, books, etc., leaving some minor books which he required James Jack the church custodian, to receipt for as the receiver's agent. The church organ to-night makes a loud protest against this "outrage."

WE make the following extract from a private letter, by permission:

"SAND RUN, Ohio, Dec. 5th.

"Bro. Beattie has been with us the past two weeks. When he first came the Christian minister had the school-house engaged and had just commenced a protracted meeting. We did the best we could under the circumstances and opened our house for meetings. It would have done you good to have seen the crowds who came out. The Christian minister's own congregation left him, and while earnest seekers after truth gathered with us, the rowdies went to the school-house. Bro. Beattie has baptized four of their best members and four others have handed in their names. Words can not express my joy. O, what a consolation it is to know that we are worshipping the one living and true God—the God who hears and answers prayers, when we turn to him with full purpose of heart, to keep his commandments. The Christian minister has fled and Bro. Beattie now has the field to himself. Appointment is given out for the school-house to-night. Dear Saints, let me entreat you to pray earnestly for us that God's name may be honored and glorified here.

Your happy sister,

FLORA HANNAH."

EXTRACT from a late letter of Bro. R. C. Elvin to his son Robert M.

"I thank you for the 'Cowdery Letters.' As I peruse them, thoughts of other days come back to me and refresh my memory of those days when I sat on the rocky cliffs of my native land, reading and trying to understand the things that were revealed to Joseph, as this brother relates them. And the evidence I received then has never left me, no matter where I was. And the sweet influence I did enjoy in those early days has at times been the only light I had to guide me. However, I have not come thus far on the journey of life without temptation. It was almost impossible for a young man to escape. But I do say I never was a bad man, not even when a boy, I did not do what I see boys do now, for there was always with me the thought that there was another life, more suited to those pure thoughts that came to me.

"I always did believe that my mother was alive; but how I got that idea I can not say. I think it was in my dreams, for often in dreams did a woman come to me, and take me by the hand, and more especially when I was in trouble. During these visits all was peace, but oh, when I would awake and find it was only a dream, it was then that I longed for death. And then there would come the thought that it was wrong.

"When I first heard the gospel my mind was partly prepared, and yet I did not think much of religion. I thought it was a humbug. But how strange! for I seemed to know everything as soon as presented to my mind. But the beautiful arrangement puzzled me, hearing such things as I never had heard before. So when I first received the 'Cowdery Letters' the mists gradually cleared away, and I obtained food and drink to my soul. I took them to the seashore, and amidst the sand-hills would read a portion, then kneel and pray, and again read and pray, and my soul was full of light; and it was then I heard a voice speak to me, and I was told that I would be favored of the Lord, and that if I was faithful, when I was old the Lord would remember me; and that my testimony would be required in my old age; and that I and my seed would praise the Lord; I was told to be humble and the Lord would help me, for I had much to endure. The same night I was visited by power, and the influence was of that holy, calm character that filled me with a joy that I can not describe. But I seemed to wait for something more, when all of a sudden the room was filled with light, which seemed to center in one body about five feet from my bed. There was neither fire nor light in the room; and as I gazed upon that light for about two minutes, I could see all things in the room and the adjoining one. While the light was still there, I said; 'Lord, this is thy glory, and it is enough. I am satisfied that the work is of the Lord.'

"And from that time my mother came no more to me. This, my son, is a part of the evidence I received from the Lord. And now I am wasting away, and I do thank God that my son, whom I was promised of the Lord before I ever thought of marriage, testifies of the gospel restored. Yet I had faith in the promise of God that my seed should testify of God's work, and that in my old age I would hear it. 'Cowdery's Letters' awake within me all the fond hopes of my youth."

[Bro. R. C. Elvin united with the church in June, 1841, in Scotland.—Ed.]

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

IN this issue will be found another important article from the pen of Burr Joyce, taken from a late Globe-Democrat, in regard to the Mormons in Missouri from 1832 to 1838. The writer seeks to learn and give facts, we are confident, and right glad are we that he interviewed Gen. A. W. Doniphan and obtained valuable information from him touching those matters, for none of the Missouri authorities knew them better than he, and none were more just and upright in giving the exact facts in the case, as he knew them and believed them, than this same General Doniphan, for he was a leading attorney in Clay, Ray, Jackson, and adjoining counties during these times.

Bro. S. L. Branton, of Omaha, Nebraska, commends the HERALD in strong terms, and so do many others whose kindly endorsement we do not publish for want of space and to avoid repetition. We presume these parties desire to say through the HERALD that they are pleased with it, in the main, and wish to encourage its editors, managers, contributors, patrons, and readers.

Bro. F. C. Warnky writing from Independence, Missouri, December 13th, says: "We are all well and everything lovely. On the 26th of November I baptized three, on the 30th two; on the 3d of December Bro. St. Clair baptized three and on the 11th I baptized one, and others are fully persuaded and will unite soon."

Bro. A. J. Moore wrote from Guilford, Missouri, December 12th: "I have been very busy since I left Lamoni, have been holding meetings most every night, with good liberty, and I think good has been done. Have more calls than I can respond to. Hope for additions to the church here in time."

Bro. G. H. Graves wrote from Alpena, Michigan, he had been doing some little fireside and local preaching, and been blessed therein. He had been at Detroit, St. Thomas, Bradford and Alpena, in all of which places he had been much encouraged; in one having had an opportunity to speak to the flock of a minister who invited him to occupy his pulpit, and a long and interesting conversation afterwards; all of which he thought would result in good.

Bro. Albert Haws wrote from East Portland, Oregon, December 3d, that he had arrived, and would do the best he could to push the work there. He reports "plenty of rain and mud."

Bro. J. W. Johnson of McFall, Missouri, informs us that some of the membership are locating there of late, and he thinks others there will at no distant day unite with the church.

The Supreme Court of Indiana decided that unruly passengers may be ejected from railroad trains at any place on their lines. Herein is protection from insult and injury.

Bro. William Aird, of Heber, Utah, orders Heralds, Banner and Autumn Leaves, for himself and others, and says: "I am exceedingly well pleased with the HERALD."

Elder John R. Evans has opened a new field for preaching south of Chariton, Iowa, and has preached there twice of late. He was going to Oakley, in response to request by letter, and hopes to open another new field there.

Bro. N. W. Best of Beaumont, California, writes of late: "I don't want you to stop the HERALD. I feel as though I can not do without it. I have taken it for twelve years and expect to take it as long as I live."

Orders are already coming in rapidly for the "Cowdery Letters." They will be highly prized by the Saints and by all earnest investigators.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Who is the prophet spoken of in Acts 3:22?

Ans.—Jesus Christ.

A.—Was it a good spirit by which Jesus was led into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil?

A.—We understand that Jesus was led up into the wilderness by the Spirit of God, and that after he had fasted forty days and nights then Satan sought to tempt him.

Q.—Are the feelings resulting from an active spirituality, or veneration, necessarily the work of the Holy Spirit?

A.—Yes; we think so.

Q.—Were the purposes of God advanced, or our condition bettered in any way, through the disobedience of our first parents, Adam and Eve.

A.—Yes; we believe the designs and purposes of God were not frustrated, but advanced in a general way, by the primal disobedience of man; for by it man was placed in a condition favorable to his development, progress, and perfection, by hearing and heeding the counsels of God ordained for his present and eternal salvation from sin, error, and evil of every kind, and by procuring his exaltation in everlasting glory and happiness, worlds without end. The scheme of both life and immortal glory in Christ were purposed and ordained of God "before the foundation of the world;" (Ps. 102:25, 26; Job. 38:4; Isa. 48:13; Zech. 12:1; Heb. 1:10; with Matt. 25:34; John 17:24; Eph. 1:4; 1 Pet. 1:20; Rev. 13:8; Heb. 4:3); hence God by his foreknowledge saw, and in his love and wisdom he foreordained "plenteous redemption" for fallen man if he would seek and serve him in his appointed way. It may be difficult for undeveloped and unspiritual minds to grasp the thought that God can and does bring good out of apparent or real evil and make the errors and follies and even the wrath of man to praise him, but such are the facts nevertheless, and in nothing perhaps will it be more clearly seen than in the history of man when finally and fully read up and "every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and such as are in the sea" shall be heard "saying, Blessing, and honor, and glory, and power, be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever." Rev. 5:13. Please read 2 Nephi 1:5-9; Alma 9:2-6; 19:8-13; also the Inspired Translation Gen. 6:45-71; 7:35-73; 9:22-24; 1 Cor. 2:7-10; Rev. 5:9, 10; 7:9-17; 20:6; 21:1-27, &c., &c., all of which shows the glory of men when redeemed from the fall.

Q.—Do you think it right for a sister in the church to join the Rebecca Lodge, her husband being a member of the I. O. O. F., but not of the church?

A.—Having never been a member nor visitor in either of these institutions, we are not prepared to give an intelligent opinion.

Q.—What do you think about Saints joining secret organizations?

A.—We have joined none of them, and have no intention of doing so. Our views in this may be readily gathered from our deeds. We find nothing in the Bible which either enjoins or favors secret orders, but very much to the contrary. Jesus said, "No man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a secret place, but on a candlestick, that they which come in may see the light."—Luke 11:33. Again: "I spake openly to the world; . . . And in secret have I said nothing."—John 18:20. The prophet said, "The Lord God worketh not in darkness. He doeth not anything, save it be for the benefit of the world."—2 Nephi, 11:15. Of some secret organizations which the prophet Moroni foresaw would abound in these latter days, he had this to say:

"And whatsoever nation shall uphold such secret combinations, to get power and gain, until they shall spread over the nation, behold, they shall be destroyed, for the Lord will not suffer that the blood of the Saints, which shall be shed by them, shall always cry unto him from the ground for vengeance upon them, and yet he avenge them not; wherefore, O ye Gentiles, it is wisdom in God that these things should be shewn unto you, that thereby ye may repent of your sins, and suffer not that these murderous combinations shall get above you, which are built up to get power and gain, and the work, yea, even the work of destruction come upon you; yea, even the sword of the justice of the eternal God, shall fall upon you, to your overthrow and destruction, if ye shall suffer these things to be; wherefore the Lord commandeth you, when ye shall see these things come among you, that ye shall awake to a sense of your awful situation, because of this secret combination which shall be among you, or woe be unto it, because of the blood of them who have been slain; for they cry from the dust for vengeance upon it, and also upon those who build it up. For it cometh to pass that whoso buildeth it up, seeketh to overthrow the freedom of all lands, nations and countries; and it bringeth to pass the destruction of all people, for it is built up by the devil, who is the father of all lies; even that same liar who beguiled our first parents; yea, even that same liar who hath caused man to commit murder from the beginning; who hath hardened the hearts of men, that they have murdered the prophets, and stoned them, and cast them out from the beginning. Wherefore I, Moroni, am commanded to write these things, that evil may be done away, and that the time may come that Satan may have no power upon the hearts of the children of men, but that they may be persuaded to do good continually, that they may come unto the fountain of all righteousness and be saved."—B. M., Ether 3:13.

And the Saints were warned in 1831 of evils "had in secret chambers" designed to destroy them "in process of time" if not shunned by keeping the law of the Lord contained in the sacred books of the church. Doc. Cov. 38:4, 6, 7. Secret societies, of all kinds are costly, both in respect to time and money. While it is evident that many good things are taught and practiced by persons belonging to some secret orders, doubtless, these same good things could be accomplished, at less cost of time and money without those orders. On general principles we prefer to have nothing to do with any kind of secret organization; but we have no quarrel with those who think differently, and we actively oppose none except those who have for their objects and ends the getting of "power and gain" as against their fellow men.

We clip from the Bulletin of San Francisco, California, November 21st, the following:

"Judge H. P. Brown, who belonged to the Mormon Church in the time of Joseph Smith, last evening at Lincoln Hall, the place of meeting of the Reorganized Mormon Church, made a long and interesting address on the church history. He claimed that Brigham Young, on whom he was very severe, was the cause of all the Mormon troubles; that he, not Joseph Smith, was the founder among them of the doctrine of polygamy and had incited his followers to treasonable acts and infraction of the laws of the United States; that he had made himself rich at the expense of others, and in every way had departed from the true faith; nor was he rightly the President of the church, which position he obtained by fraud; neither was John Taylor, his successor, or the present temporary acting President, Wilford Woodruff. The true head of the Mormon Church is young Joseph Smith, the son of the Prophet and the President of the Reorganized Mormons. When he is acknowledged as such all trouble will end. Utah will be brought into harmony with the whole country. They will live their religion in a proper manner and will become good and law-abiding citizens. There is neither polygamy nor hatred to the Government among the reorganized Mormons. When the war of the Rebellion broke out, many of their young men proved their patriotism by entering the volunteer service. Steps were being taken to prepare a roll of honor of these young heroes, a number of whom lost their lives in battle. At the conclusion of the services a Brighamite elder from Salt Lake City who was among the audience arose and asked the privilege of replying to Judge Brown, which, by a vote of the meeting and at the special request of the Judge, was accorded to him for next Sunday evening. The discussion is expected to attract a large audience."

And in the Chronicle December 5th, of the same city, we find this:

"Elder E. L. Kelley, who is a counselor to Bishop Blakeslee, of Galien, Michigan, the chief officer of the temporalities of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, has been in this State for some weeks, looking after the interests of the churches of that faith. Last evening he delivered a discourse to the church already organized here, which worships in Drew's Hall under the leadership of Elder George F. Lincoln. Elder Lincoln presided at the meeting last evening and introduced the speaker.

Elder Kelley is a swarthy man of middle age, unassuming and mild in his manner, but an earnest and impressive speaker. He took for his text the twenty-first verse of the eighth chapter of Luke's Gospel—"My mother and my brethren are these that hear the Word of God and do it." 'Our faith,' said the preacher, 'is based on the Word of God as found in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. This is our rule of faith and practice in common with Evangelical Christians generally. One point where we differ from them is in holding that the Word of God was not only revealed in the eastern part of the world by Christ and his Apostles, but also in these latter days to the people of these Western shores through Joseph Smith and his apostles. We claim that there is no conflict between these two revelations and that the Book of Mormon is in exact accordance with the New Testament doctrine. We have a translation of our own, made by Joseph Smith and published after his death in 1867, which we believe to be superior in some respects to the ordinary version, just as the Baptists have a version which brings out the truth with regard to immersion, as they believe, more fully than the common version, but ordinarily we use the latter, and in almost every important point we agree with that. Our doctrine is that all who accept the gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and do it, or practice its precepts, are by that sign and token adopted into the family of God, and become joint heirs with Jesus Christ. The message we present meets with opposition from this fact, that we claim it as a restoration of the original gospel, a reinstatement of primitive Christianity and not a reformation. The way to meet this opposition was not by abusing opponents, but by argument, by appeals to reason and Scripture. Calling a man bad did not make him so. Many of the best men whose names have come down to us on the pages of history were reviled and abused beyond measure. The true rule for testing men was found in the ninth verse of the Second Epistle of John, 'He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ he hath both the Father and the Son.'

The congregation, though not large, was very attentive, and the services closed in the usual Christian form, with congregational singing and prayer, which was offered by Elder Lincoln.

Joseph Smith Jr., a son of Prophet Joseph Smith, the President of this denomination, is expected to arrive in San Francisco in a few weeks. He intends to spend the winter in California.

Don't write on both sides of a sheet what you intend for publication.

Don't write business items and matters for publication on the same sheet.

Don't write private affairs of any kind and matters of business, or for publication, on the same sheet.

Don't fail to date and sign your papers of all kinds.

Don't write to David Dancer what belongs to the Editors.

Don't write to the Editors that which pertains to David Dancer, the Business Manager.

Don't fret if neither your articles nor letters are published at once—or never—for time and chance happeneth to all things.

Don't send to the HERALD editors articles which pertain to Autumn Leaves, the Hope, or Sandhedens Banner. Send to their editors.

Don't send Postal notes when you can as well send Post-office money order, express order, or draft on Chicago or New York. Postal notes are no safer than money, for if lost or stolen they can not be re-issued; but Post-office orders, express orders, or drafts can be.

Finally, don't be weary in well-doing, and don't get vexed when we remind you of what is convenient, business-like, economical and safe. Church work is increasing in every department. The outlook for future progress was never so good as now. It remains therefore for all to seek and apply best methods to carry forward wisely and effectively the work they have in hand.

The New York Sun for Sunday, November 13th, 1887, has the following editorial:

MOHAMMEDANISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

The assertion that Mohammedanism is advancing far more rapidly than Christianity in Asia and Africa has often been made of late years, but when it was repeated a short time ago in the English Church Congress, by a dignitary of the Church, it was received with surprise and anger.

The speaker was the Rev. Isaac Taylor, Canon, of York, and his exact declaration was that "in Asia and Africa Islam, as a missionary religion is more successful than Christianity, and our efforts to convert the Mohammedans have failed." Having since the Congress been challenged to prove these statements and produce the facts to sustain its generalizations, Canon Taylor now answers his critics and questioners through the London Times.

He points out that, according to the census returns, the Mohammedan population in India increased 9,239,062 between 1871 and 1881, or about 25 per cent. After making ample allowance for the natural increase of births over deaths, this shows that the conversion of heathens and Christians to Mohammedanism had been going on at the rate of 600,000 a year. During the same period the conversions to Christianity barely amounted to one-tenth of that number.

Yet the Mohammedans have no paid missionaries and no organized missionary agencies. Their conversions must, therefore, be due to the voluntary efforts of individuals and the intrinsic attractions of their faith. Meanwhile the Christians, on the other hand, have all the prestige of a Christian governing power, and are expending vast sums on proselytism, for which they have a long established and carefully methodized system of missionary effort. Of the total number of conversions to Christianity, too, all, except a comparatively small part, are in the extreme south of Madras Presidency, where Christianity obtained a firm footing at a very remote period and the Christians are more numerous than anywhere else in India. Canon Taylor also finds as a "startling result" that four-fifths of the Christian converts are Roman Catholics.

In the northern and central provinces, where Islam is strong, and the conversions to Mohammedanism are at the rate of half a million a year, the conversions to Christianity, to use his words, "are practically nil." The most active and powerful of the English missionary societies at work in India is the Church Missionary Society, according to whose report 841 missionaries and native agents, employed at a cost of towards $250,000, made last year only 297 converts out of a population of 220,000,000 in those provinces, if the number of genuine converts be measured by the number of adult baptisms. Of these converts, only seventeen seem to have been Mohammedans, out of a Mohammedan population of 55,000,000, and some of them were very suspicious, as, in fact, conversions from Islam almost invariably are.

Then he turns to countries distinctly Mohammedan, and in the four missionary fields of Persia, Palestine, Arabia, and Egypt finds that 109 missionaries and native agents, employed by the Church Missionary Society at a cost of $60,000, converted and baptized last year only one adult convert. This solitary convert, according to the report, was "a certain Moslem girl in the orphanage at Jerusalem, whose conversion," Canon Taylor suggests, "is perhaps accounted for by the statement that 'she is easily influenced and requires constant guidance.'" In all Egypt and Arabia the whole number of "native Christian adherents" is put at 19 only, and they, perhaps, as he surmises, are largely made up of the wives and children of the four "native lay teachers."

The practical results of Eastern missionary labors, in the way of actual conversions, are not more encouraging elsewhere. In Ceylon last year 374 agents made only 207 converts at a cost of more than $50,000; in mid China 71 agents made 63 converts at a cost of $45,000, and in south China 148 agents made 297 converts at a cost of about $40,000.

These are the facts and statistics with which Canon Taylor meets the challenge of his critics, and they are quite interesting. As to Africa, he will speak in another letter, but the spread of Islam there has been so remarkable within recent years that he will have no difficulty in proving his point.

A BROTHER sends us a copy of the Cincinnati Gazette, of October 22d, containing a description of Fort Hill, which we here insert for the sake of those who are inclined to look up the Mound Builders of America:

WONDERFUL WORK OF THE MOUND BUILDERS.

Fort Hill, one of the most noted earthworks of the Mound Builders found in southern Ohio, is about to pass into the hands of the Trustees of Peabody Institute, the owners of the great Serpent Mound, and it, too, will be restored and preserved from the ravages of time and the destroying hand of man. This wonderful work is two miles north of Sinking Spring, in this county, and about seventeen miles southeast of this city. It overlooks the old path through the wilderness known as Zane's trace, and although very little has ever been said about it in the public press, Fort Hill, under the restoring hand of scientists, will doubtless soon become a Mecca for those who take an interest in the works of a prehistoric race.

Fort Hill was undoubtedly intended for a defensive work, and is therefore different from the majority of mounds or ancient earthworks. The hill is entirely isolated, and rises precipitously to a height of five hundred feet, grand, imposing and almost inaccessible. The summit of this hill is an almost level plateau, with an area of forty-eight acres, about the same as the Great Serpent Mound. It is covered with huge trees, and other monarchs of the forest equally as large lie upon the ground decayed and decaying. Running along the crest of the hill, and making a complete border, is an embankment of earth and stone, inside of which is a ditch, not far from fifty feet in width.

The soil of the hill rests upon Waverly Sandstone, and in many places the ditch has been cut through this sandstone to give it the required depth. The embankment is over one mile and a half long. In height, measuring from the bottom of the ditch, it is from six to ten feet, and has a base of from thirty-five to forty feet. It is thrown up a little below the brow of the hill, making the outward slope more abrupt than that of the hill. There are thirty-three openings in the embankment, at eleven of which there are fills in the ditch, something on the plan of moats, that sometimes surround modern fortresses.

It is supposed that these eleven openings were intended for egress and ingress, but the use for which the other openings were intended is a subject of conjecture. When the scientists of Peabody and Harvard get the fort in hand all these mysteries will doubtless be unraveled. The work is divided into three parts by the shape of the summit of the hill. The northern extremity is a bold, steep ledge, the most prominent part of the hill overlooking the entire work and commanding a view for miles upon miles of the country below it. This point was no doubt the citadel where the sentinels watched, looking out for a coming foe. Wherever the rock here has been laid bare it bears traces of igneous action, giving rise to the supposition that signal fires were burned upon this prominent point.

The central division is much narrower, and is connected with the northern by a neck of land not more than one hundred feet wide. The southern division is the broadest and largest, and probably used for garrison purposes. As has been stated, the embankment is composed of earth and stones, but there are no indications that the latter were ever laid together with any regularity, but rather that they were thrown up in an irregular mass with the earth. That the embankment is of artificial origin is indisputable, and that it was intended solely for self defense against some powerful enemy is beyond doubt. The situation is so well chosen, the topography of the hill so admirably adapted to the purpose that the artificial works make it almost impregnable to any mode of attack that could have been known in the age when the fortification was constructed. What a wonderful people must have been those who selected, constructed and occupied this remarkable work. The skill displayed and the amount of labor expended on this single fortification causes wonder and surprise and excites our admiration. Even at this day, with all our skill in engineering, modern machinery and mechanical appliances, the work at Fort Hill would be a big undertaking. How patient, resolute and skillful, then, must have been those who with the rudest implements made of this hill a great fort, an impregnable fortress."

VOICE OF WARNING.

To those who circulate the Voice of Warning:—I see that quite a large number of you report on the old blanks instead of using the new ones in the memorandum books. This makes me think perhaps you have not received them. If any of you have not received a memorandum book from me, to keep track of the Voice of Warning in, I will send you one if you will give me your name and address. Every one that circulates the books ought to have one. Please read the instructions in the little book, when you report.

Your brother in Christ,
J. H. PETERS.

HOLIDAY EXCURSION.

C. B. & Q. Railroad.—Rates of one fare for round trip between stations in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri has been agreed upon on account of the Holidays. Excursion tickets to be sold December 24th, 25th, 26th and 31st, 1887, and January 1st and 2d, 1888. All good to return until January 3d.
C. E. ELARTON, Agent, Lamoni, Ia.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"I hold it truth, with him who sings
To one clear harp in diverse tones,
That men may rise on stepping stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

"GO NOT TO GLEAN IN ANOTHER FIELD,
NEITHER GO FROM HENCE, BUT ABIDE HERE FAST."

WHEN the eyes of our readers rest upon these words they will intuitively recall that most beautifully domestic story of the Moabitess Ruth. Memory will lead them farther back than their introductions into that most touching eastern romance. They will see in imagination the parched and sun-dried fields of Canaan, where blooming flowers nor babbling brook, make glad the eye or cheer the heart. They will see upon the face of man, and read in the pitiful appealing look of God's dumb creatures, the one great, crying need which is pressing them so sorely. Involuntarily they will lift appealing eyes to the heavens above, only to find them brass, and the earth beneath only iron, for the famine is sore in the land, and because the people have sinned the face of the Almighty is hid from them, and when they cry he does not answer.

See, yonder is a group of travelers, and by their dress and trappings you distinguish them as Israelites. They are resting from the noon-day heat, sheltered by the tall trees growing near the banks of the Jordan, close by a thicket of tamarisk and oleander. Draw near and you will discover that they are from Bethlehem, and are seeking refuge from the famine prevailing there. There are no swelling waves to be divided now, for save a rippling stream the Jordan is dry, and they will pass over soon to its eastern shore with nothing to bar their progress. Then pass Mount Pisgah and Abarim, they will take their way to the land of Moab, for there they will find grain, and their horses be sustained until the sore famine in their own land is past. Look more closely and you will discover that this group consists of one woman, her husband and two youths, apparently their sons. These are in the first flush of manhood, but threads of silver mingled with the raven locks of father and mother; and when they resume their journey, you will notice that their limbs are weary, and have none of the elasticity of tread which belongs to a happy heart and the days of youth; but they make their way slowly and faithfully along. They reach the end of their journey, and for a time hope revives; and nourished by the grain of the land, they await tidings from their own country, which shall recall them to the land they love, and towards which,—morning, noon and night,—their faces are turned and their windows open.

But while awaiting tidings from the land of Canaan, the messenger of death comes with his resistless summons, and the husband of Naomi bids a last farewell to wife and children. The eyes which turned so longingly towards the land of his inheritance are closed forever, and they lay him to rest among strangers in a strange land.

The daughters of Moab are fair to behold, and the sons of Naomi obtain their consent to take them each a wife from the daughters of those who have received them in their distress and ministered to them in their time of need. But not for long would these Moabitish women bask in their husband's love, for the angel of death breathed upon them and they withered as grain before an untimely frost while the purple grapes are yet tender and the flowers of summer hide his last loving kiss in their bosoms; and now, but for these daughters-in-law Naomi is left alone, and her sorely stricken heart turns to the home of her youth, the land of her fathers and the people who worship her father's God. And now come the long looked for tidings. The Lord had again visited her land, and there was bread in Canaan. Then Naomi arose to depart, and the daughter-in-laws with her. We need not tell you the rest of this story, for while our earth shall stand, while gentle maidens shall be wooed and won by brave and manly youths, while heart of loyal truth shall answer heart where tender love and virtue dwell, will the sweet words and loving constancy of Ruth the Moabitess embody the unspoken language of loving hearts and be the highest type of all which man demands of woman, or honor and truth of virtue.

Naomi is poor and in returning to Israel she feels her affliction and poverty most keenly. "I went up full and the Lord has brought me home again empty," was her sad wail. Could she but have drawn aside the veil and have seen in Ruth—the faithful daughter-in-law whom she had brought back with her—the one from whom should be descended the Babe of Bethlehem, the Prince of Peace, the Son of David, whose birth we this day celebrate and unto whom every knee shall yet bow and every tongue confess, would she have taken up the sad wail, "The Lord hath testified against me and the Almighty hath afflicted me?"

How often is it thus! God's choicest blessings descend upon us in mists distilled by clouds obscuring the sunlight. In blindness we grieve and cry for the light of day that we may walk and not stumble, when lo! we find that His hand hath had us and he hath before appointed the path for our feet.

Were the eyes of Boaz opened to see with clearer vision than others saw, when they rested upon the gentle maiden gleaning in his field? We are persuaded fully that they were; and to day we come to you with the language which fell from his lips as he stood before Ruth in all her modesty and beauty, and charmed with the love and gratitude which it had been shown him she cherished for his kinswoman, Naomi, he said to her, "Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but abide here fast by my maidens."

Gleaners in the harvest field of Zion, to day our soul is drawn out towards each one of you, and at its prompting we repeat to you the words of the father of Jesse, "Go not to glean in another field." Soon the year of 1887 will be numbered with the past. Let it not depart until we shall have entered into the sanctuary of our own soul—have shut to the door and then enter into an examination of the past year.

We are gleaners in the harvest field of the world—Zion's gleaners, and in that field are laboring many faithful servants of the Master. What have we in our hands to-day? Have we indeed been pressing forward close by the side of the reapers? Are the sheaves which we bear heavy with bending heads of grain, or have we had our hands filled with faded leaves and withering flowers?

The Lord of the harvest is coming anon, and what have we to offer him? What triumph does the year just past contain? Have we stood up as valiant soldiers for the Master? Have we formed resolutions for good which the year has seen us carry out? Let us then renew them, and by the help of God carry them on into another year. "Go not to glean in another field," but right by the spot of our victory receive our grateful Ebenezer, and holding fast to the rod of iron, march on to victory.

For the young especially is our heart drawn out. When your resolution was made that you would be an humble follower of the meek and lowly Jesus from that time henceforth, you made it because you felt that too much of your time had already gone to waste, and because you not only desired to save your own soul, but to help others to overcome—to set a godly christian example in the midst of a wicked world. To-day we beseech you, "Go not to glean in another field." Stand by your colors and never lower the battle flag of King Emanuel. There were spies from the camp of his arch enemy standing just by your side when your resolution was formed. They have not left your tent, neither the encampment of Israel, and when they have found out your defenseless point be sure they will signal their general to make his attack right there. But depart not. With humility and prayer your resolutions were formed, and by these you were enabled to come up to a higher plane of self-renunciation and sacrifice; oh, then, let us entreat you, come not down! "Go not to glean in another field, neither go from hence, but abide here fast;" resign not to the adversary one single inch of ground lest you be like the man who began his building without counting the cost and when he found he was not able to finish he became the jest of others who mocked him. But not chiefly because of this, but because angels and departed Saints are watching the conflict; and he also who wrestles with his great agony alone, is also beholding, and is pierced anon by your every failure. Oh, go not hence but abide and glean, for he will stand by you and strengthen you for every conflict, and will finally award to you the palm of victory, and clothe you with the spotless robes of righteousness. Yonder are the reapers! See you the gleam of their sharpened sickles, and hear you the rustling music of the falling grain? Press closer, for many ears of ripened grain the Master of the harvest has commanded them to leave purposely for His maidens to glean. Press closer; there is a reaper weary with the heat and burden of the day. Offer him to drink a cup of cold water and speak to him a word of cheer. Press closer; for there is one of thy fellow gleaners stopping by the way side and looking back with longing eyes. Whisper her gently the solemn message from the Master, "No man putting his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of heaven." Press closer, for there is a careless one whose hands are drooping idly by her side and she is watching you unmindful of the ripened heads of grain lying along where her careless feet are treading. Come to her aid and remind her of the Master's words, "Where much is given much will be required." Help her to turn again and gather up the neglected grain, that her arms may be full.

Have you failed to do all which you had resolved by the assistance of his strength you would do, "Go not to glean in another field, but abide here fast." The Master is waiting patiently for your lagging feet. All heaven is engaged upon your side, and if you abide and awake to your duty the victory is certain. Listen! Do you not hear the rumbling of his chariot wheels and the distant strains of music borne on the air? If we do not, it is because our ears are dull of hearing, for both are drawing near.

For yet this second time, as the Christmas tide draws near to our noble, faithful elders, reaping with bared heads and arms of sinewy strength in the Master's harvest field, the "Home Column" sends its joyful greeting and bids them as watchmen upon the walls of Zion to fear not, but be joyful for the day of redemption is drawing near. Feed the sheep in his pasture, and gather the lambs in your arms. Fail not we entreat you in patience, brotherly kindness and charity; neither be weary in well doing, for the Master hath appointed you as overseers in his house, and will require the flock at your hands. Oh, be careful lest any through want of watch-care and folding, should be found torn and bleeding, wounded perhaps unto death. Watch yet one little hour, for at the cock-crowing he may come, and his reward is in his hand.

Dear mothers of Zion, let us persevere; and though many times our hearts may faint, and we feel like Naomi to say, "The Lord hath testified against me," let us gather up our courage, for God who has promised is faithful, and if we strive faithfully we shall be crowned, for he will strengthen those whose feet are in the way, to endure to the end. Lean hard upon his arm of love; and when the burden is too heavy take it to him in prayer, and he will carry it for you.

"Cast all your cares on God: that anchor holds,
Is he not yonder in those uttermost
Parts of morning? If I flee to these Can I go from him? And the sea is his,
The sea is his: he made it."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Mattie Adair, Meridan, Texas, writes:—"We are just starting for our new home in Arkansas. I regret very much to leave the Elmwood branch, especially as there are no Saints where we are going. Our house has long been a home for the elders, and we hope if any of them come near us at Nathan, Pike county, Arkansas, they will not fail to give us a call, and we will give them a hearty welcome. My husband has lately united with the church; and while I thank God for this, my soul rejoices in all his goodness to me, and I love the work better than ever before. I ask the Saints to pray for my mother, that she may see the truth and be converted to it. She is in very poor health, but I firmly believe if she would obey the gospel she would be healed."

Sister Mary Ann Judkins, Walton, Ontario, writes:—"We feel to rejoice in the Lord and to pray that God will speed on this good work until it reaches the farthest corners of the earth. We thank God for the light he has given us, enabling us to choose the good and forsake the evil. My husband has been enabled to quit the use of tobacco, after having used it for fifty years; and he has no longing for it. Since embracing the gospel we have both quit the use of tea, and thus we are enabled to send our thank offering to help roll on the work. Praise the Lord, oh, my soul, for all his tender mercy and loving kindness unto us!"

Sister Mollie Prettyman of Knox, Indiana, writes:—"I had the privilege of attending the conference held at Galien on the 22d of October last, and while I had a time of rejoicing and was much strengthened, I am again hungering for the word and wish some elder could come here. One lady expresses herself as ready for baptism and I believe others would follow, for many are investigating."

Sister Maggie Kelso of Braidwood, Illinois, writes:—"I am thankful to God for his giving me line upon line in regard to the truth of this latter day work, which he himself has revealed to me. My desire is to live so that God will be unto me as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land, and that I may ever wait upon him to have my strength renewed, and that I may be accounted worthy to look upon the Son of Man when he comes in his glory."

MONTRÖSE, Iowa, Nov. 8th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I have been much comforted, and made to rejoice while listening to the reading of the Herald, especially the "Mothers' Home Column;" and have often felt as though I, too, would like to bear my testimony to the truth of the gospel as restored in these latter days. I am weak in body but strong in spirit, knowing that if I live faithful a few more days, I shall rest in the paradise of God.

I joined the church in Tennessee in 1841. Came to Nauvoo in 1843, and have lived there and in Montrose since that time. I have passed through many trying scenes, yet my faith never wavered, I had such evidences of the truth that I could not doubt. I have seen the power of God manifest so many times that it was impossible for me to doubt. In the times that tried men's souls, when it was not safe to be known as a Saint, there were a faithful few that would meet in the darkness of night, at the house of some brother or sister, for prayer meeting, and the Lord would meet with us by his Spirit, and we would be made to rejoice, and be strengthened for further trials. In 1861 Brn. Archibald Patten and John Shipley came into the neighborhood where I was living, and for the first time I heard of the reorganization of the church, with young Joseph at the head. I had always believed that he would, in the Lord's own due time take the place of his martyred father, therefore I found no difficulty in accepting it at once. After the first sermon preached I was one of the first to give them my name for baptism; it seemed to me as if light from heaven had again dawned and I was filled with joy unspeakable. I have received many blessings since that time, and also had many trials to pass through. I am to-day seventy-six years old; have been afflicted many years, and for the last year been confined to my bed nearly all the time; still my trust is in my God. He has promised never to leave or forsake those that put their trust in him. I also have an afflicted son, who has been a constant sufferer for over eight years. I ask the prayers of all God's children in his behalf, that the Lord will once more grant him health and peace of mind. I also crave an interest in the prayers of the Saints, that the Lord will strengthen me to endure all things for his sake.

Your sister in the gospel,

MARGARET SIMPSON.

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. M. J. Murphy, Kit Carson, Colo.....	$ 50
Sr. May Hawley, Greenwich, Cal.....	75
Sr. K. Williams, Savanna, Ill.....	50
Sr. Philena Manning, Mo.....	65
Sr. Amelia Morgan, Sigel, Mich.....	15
Sr. Annie Fosdick, Ableman, Wis.....	74
Sr. B. C. Gifford, Max, Neb.....	00
Sr. Emma Dodson, Council Bluffs, Ia.....	50
Warren C. and Lucy H. Sears, East Dennis, Mass., each 25 cents.....	50
Y. Y. Sears, .25, Callie C. Sears .10, East Dennis, Mass.....	35
Sr. Jane A. Way, Audubon, Minn.....	75
Fannie B. and A. Way, 25 cents each.....	50
Sr. Kate Currie, Senior, Texas.....	50
Sr. Nora White, Panama, Iowa.....	20
Sr. Mary A. Livsey, Coalville, Utah.....	00
Sr. Esther Trimuel, St. Louis, Mo.....	50
Sr. Mary Wright, Merlin, Ont.....	50
Sr. Hannah Wright, Merlin, Ont.....	25
Sr. Anna Lukney, Johnston, R. I.....	25
Elishaba Goode, Tabor, Iowa.....	75
Sr. Marilla Elmick, Carson, Iowa.....	30
Sr. Eliza Wightman, Lamoni, Iowa.....	30
Sr. G. W. Irwin, Emerson, Iowa.....	50
Sr. Minnie Irwin, Emerson, Iowa.....	15
Sr. Mary S. Rogers, Goshen, Kan.....	35
Sr. By. Bennett, Buttsville, Mo.....	50
Sr. A. A. Vredenburg, Little Sioux, Iowa... I LAMONI, IOWA, December 14th.	00

Correspondence.

ANNEX, Va., Dec. 4th.

Editors Herald:—We are but few here, and much scattered. But I have determined, the Lord helping, to try and get the gospel ball rolling in this region. I have not done any public preaching for over four years, but am making an effort to get our little branch in working order by trying to renew the Lord's work in all of our hearts so that we may fully realize His promise of friendly favor with the people; have lately visited the few members of our branch, except one who lives about one hundred and twenty-five miles away, and we wish our little branch to unite with the nearest conference district. Two of our members have been considerably afflicted in the past, and we have had a great drawback in not accepting the help we might have obtained, in consequence of not being in possession of a house of worship of our own. We are too poor to build, do not look for much help in this region at present from outsiders, and do not think it at all prudent to beg of the Saints through the Herald, therefore we have determined to try and raise money and buy a tent by the time the weather is warm in the spring, and thereby have one permanent place, at any rate, until cold weather, where we can hold meetings. And then, we feel, that with a suitable elder sent us, and by the help of our heavenly Father, there will be an ingathering.

A short time ago I visited the Judge of our County Court and informed him that I wished to be empowered with authority to celebrate marriages according to the laws of the land. I presented him with the Herald, Hope, Expositor, and quite a number of tracts, and told him that the laws and regulations of the Reorganized Church had no connection whatever with the Utah community, and that it required its members to strictly keep the laws of the land. After looking over some of the evidences I offered him, he remarked that, so far as he could see, our church was as orthodox as any denomination he knew of. He stated that every minister of the gospel, of all denominations, according to the laws of the state of Virginia, must produce in open court, by motion of an attorney, (which he said any lawyer would make for me without charge), evidence of ordination, of which he said my license was sufficient, and personal testimony of being a member in full fellowship and good standing in the church, and also execute to the court a bond for five hundred dollars, with personal security worth double that amount. All of which I complied with, to the entire satisfaction of the court.

Yours in hope,

O. E. CLEVELAND.

[Bro. Cleveland, you did well.—ED.]

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 3d.

Editors Herald:—Have been actively engaged in ministering the word and attending to such duties as appertain to the calling of a minister of the gospel; and have been amply blessed of the Lord. The work throughout the mission is making rapid progress, and present omens indicate that there will be greater progress in the near future. What is needed to carry the great work to victory is a host of wise and efficient laborers. The Pittsburg branch ought to have a minister sent there by the General Conference. The interest manifested there at present demands it. The Saints there have sacrificed much to sustain the work both in the city and district, and I think their continual pleadings for help ought to be recognized by the church. The man who may be sent there ought to devote his entire time to preaching the word, and not interfere with branch affairs, but leave that kind of work to those whose duty it is to regulate it. Again; the minister should be one who has much stability and who has a faculty of economizing, for there are many attractions in a city like Pittsburg, and consequently it requires a man of solid character to resist the temptation to spend money.

On August 27th I arrived in Diamond, Ohio, where I preached a number of sermons in Mr. Mason's Rink, with some good results, for I had the pleasure of baptizing six in that place since, —Sister Stewart's aged father and mother, her daughter, Clara, and grandson; also Messrs. Alex. and Jacob Scott's wives. There are others standing on the verge of baptismal waters. On the 25th ultimo I was summoned to Diamond to preach the funeral sermon of Mr. Alexander Scott. The services were held in the M. E. Church at Palmyra; its choir supplied the singing, which was excellent, and the Lord graciously blessed the speaker. Mr. Scott was a true friend to the cause, and was very anxious to be raised up in order to unite with the church. The funeral was one of the largest that the writer has witnessed in many years; there being about one hundred carriages in the procession.

I labored for some time in the South-eastern Ohio and West Virginia district. Bro. Thomas Matthews accompanied me. I found him an agreeable companion and an able expounder of the truth, as well as being spiritually minded. Brothers Beatty, Devore, Moler, Matthews, Jeffers and Goodrich are doing a noble work in that part of the vineyard. On the 27th, 28th and 29th of September, I attended the discussion between Elder Moler and Mr. Davis, a notice of which appeared in the Herald. Bro. Moler made an able defender. His opponent did not throw so much dirt as the ecclesiastics generally do. He never once spoke disparagingly of Joseph Smith, which indeed was a miracle, and which was, by the way, to his credit. Mr. Davis is a fluent talker, but a poor reasoner. While in Syracuse I baptized three.

I have discovered one great weakness and evil among some of the brethren,—they still cling to that disagreeable and filthy habit, the use of tobacco. Sometimes we are compelled, through circumstances, to hold services in private houses, and some of the brethren will get there just before meeting begins, and the very first thing is to take out their pipes and smoke until the room is full of that terrible and sickening odor. It reminds a person more of a bar-room than a place of religious worship. I have heard many who are addicted to this habit implore God for more wisdom, and they will also exhort the Saints to strive and live by every word that comes from the mouth of God. Has it not appeared to such that it is the height of folly to ask God for more wisdom when they ignore the wisdom already given? Again; the words that have come from the mouth of the Lord to us through the Seer is to the effect that tobacco is not fit for man. It seems to me that if these brethren would abstain from the said evil that their prayers would have more effect with God; and I am confident that their teachings would have a better influence with the Saints. Brethren, remember the injunction "Be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the Lord."

The work in this place and throughout the entire district is in a dormant condition by reason of the negligence of the officers in performing their duties. I am sure that it is useless for me or any other minister to preach the gospel to the outside people until there is a radical change brought about in the deportment of the Saints.

I do not know how long I shall remain here. Expect to call and spend a few days in Philadelphia on my way westward. I anticipate starting for Missouri some time in January, and shall call at Plano, Sandwich, and perhaps Kewanee; and shall try and call on Aunt Catharine Salisbury. I am enjoying excellent health, and are feeling good spiritually. Yours in haste,

G. T. GRIFFITH.

ONAWA, Iowa, Dec. 11th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I would like to take the Herald. I live far from any branch of the Latter Day Saints and have not the blessed privilege of meeting with them. I do not know of any Saints near me, and have no chance of conversing with any of them except my daughter, who is fourteen years old. I have two other girls, one ten and the other three years old. They have been blessed, but not baptized, but I try to lead them in the right way. My husband does not belong to the church, but I live in hopes the Lord will spare his life until he is convinced of the truth and obeys it.

I have belonged to the church several years and I feel thankful to God for light and understanding of the pure gospel, and that he opened my heart to receive and obey it. I try to live to please him for his great mercy and kindness shown to me and my family. I feel lonely here with none of the Saints near me, but I know that God is near, and in times of affliction and trouble I lean upon his powerful and willing arm. I was baptized at Sonora, Hancock county, Illinois, I think in 1870, at the same time with Walter Head, Henry Eller, A. Tousley and my first husband, Mr. J. C. Wiltsey. Since then I have tried to serve God, and have rejoiced in the gospel. My heart is with the Saints, wherever they may be. Though I am deprived of the great pleasure of meeting with them now, by the help of God I am determined to meet them all where we may never be parted more. Pray for me.

Your sister in Christ,

MARY L. CAMERON.

[The ministry at Little Sioux should visit this sister and family.—Ed.]

ORTHODOX PERFDY.

At the instance of Bro. W. A. Moore, Sunday, December 4th, found me at Naponee, ready to fill appointments at eleven a. m., and half-past seven p. m., that Bro. Moore had by promise of the trustee of the Congregational Church made for me. But lo, and behold! On reaching the church, taking a seat to glance over the assembled congregation, and making an effort to collect our thoughts in the death-like silence which had obtained; but was soon broken by a Rev. Harris rising to his feet and delivering a speech to the effect that on his arrival he found a gentleman from Council Bluffs. He regretted the conflict; which he attributed to some untoward circumstance—delay of the mail, perhaps.

However righteously indignant we may have felt, this little episode was not unexpected; for Bro. Moore was apprised of the inauguration of measures that would be likely thus to ultimate; but not until the 3d instant, and the appointment had then been published ten days. The Christian gentleman regretted the conflict, and graciously offered to wave his right. Being satisfied that this was the result of a preconceived measure, after a promise to Bro. Moore that the church should be at his service when an elder should chance this way, to prevent us using the church, I peremptorily refused to occupy the (to the Congregationalist) sacred desk, and announced a meeting for the evening in the school house, where we were greeted with a good sized and respectful audience.

Let all boast about orthodox liberality and fairness who wish to, I have my opinion. This is twice in the past year that we have been crowded out where brethren have been promised, who have contributed to help erect orthodox churches, and have had two public school houses closed against us through orthodox influence, in the State of Nebraska. Brethren should be careful how they invest money or time, to aid in the erection of churches under promise to occupy, for many think it a small matter to deceive a Latter Day Saint, or Mormon; and respect is often feigned for decency sake. The fact is, there is no affinity between Latter Day Saintism and orthodoxy.

There is a wide field for labor in Franklin and Kearney counties, Nebraska; real hard gospel labor is needed. There are many places where a gospel sermon has never been heard with no prospects of baptizing a nation in a day, but a godly persistence needed that won't die out, though months of labor should be performed with no prospects of success other than preaching for a witness. Yes, laborers are needed, but a halt should be had before a decision is reached and anticipations to altogether escape the inconvenience met by our predecessors in the introduction of the gospel is cherished. Headquarters can be made at Bro. W. A. Moore's peaceful home. And from thence an elder could branch forth right and left, and a year's faithful and persistent labor under God's blessing might work wonders; counting the cost before entering into an enterprise is always essential, especially in the ministerial race. Criticising and fault-finding won't cease yet, but it is well to consider the object in appointing and sending forth elders into the field at a cost.

If irregularity should occur or seeming negligence in responding to correspondents, please remember that constant travel often makes the reception of mail difficult.

In bonds,
JAMES CAFFALL.

INDEPENDENCE, MO., Dec. 1st.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I desire to bear my testimony to this glorious latter day work. Eighteen months ago I received baptism and was confirmed under the hands of S. W. Hogue. I have not as yet looked back to the worldly lusts of the flesh, or ever regretted the day I made covenant with my Lord and Savior; but I feel a desire to press forward to the works and high calling in Christ Jesus. I am the only one of my family or relatives in the work. They are all bitter opposers. I thank the Lord that I have been permitted to live in this day when God has caused his gospel to be preached in its purity. I live nine miles north-east of Independence. I am not alone, for God is with me, though the neighborhood is composed of Methodists, Primitive Baptists, Missionary Baptists, Christians, Dunkards and non-professors, and I a Latter Day Saint. And if Satan had a headquarters, they must be here in Blue bottom, for our elders have been locked out of houses and once none would come to hear.

Yours in Christ,

B. R. BITTLE.

ROSSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 9th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—Reading carefully, (as I always do) the letter columns of the Herald, it gives me much comfort to reflect on the vast amount of good that I feel assured is being accomplished by the letters therein contained, and if there be found one sentence in this that will cause a single brother or sister to critically examine themselves as to their duty and encourage them to its performance, I shall have accomplished my object.

By turning to Doc. Cov. 6:4, Lecture on faith we find the following language:

"Such was, and always will be the situation of the Saints of God; that unless they have an actual knowledge that the cause they are pursuing is according to the will of God, they will grow weary in their minds and faint." This seems to me self-evident; and the instances that could be cited in proof of the soundness of this is so numerous that I think no one will question it. We then as Saints who accept this should be exceedingly careful and see to it that our course in life is absolutely in accord with the will of God. Possessed of this knowledge, faith becomes firm and steadfast and by it we are enabled to meet with patience and fortitude all the trials and vicissitudes through which we shall have to pass, that finally, when we shall have finished our course here, it will enable us to lay hold on eternal life.

This grand crowning act then, should ever be uppermost in our minds and before our eyes, and should shape every word we utter and every act we perform. The blessed Savior has given us a pattern and requires us to follow it. Let us, then, dear brothers and sisters, resolve that, come what may, we will walk in the narrow way, working the work of righteousness while yet it is called to-day.

Let us for a moment contemplate the magnitude of the work that might be accomplished if every Saint was in the full and faithful discharge of duty to the Master, visiting the sick, contributing to the necessities of the needy, binding up the wounds of the broken hearts, instructing and encouraging the work, holding up before the throne of grace the elders, praying fervently for unity of the spirit, and finally, living as Saints should live. With such united action, who is it that can not see what grand results would follow. Let us remember the gracious promise which we have of blessings to aid and comfort us, and to make smooth the rugged path of temporal life.

Oh, how grand and irresistible would be the onward march of the great work! Thus the light, radiating from any member of the body, would pierce the surrounding darkness, and great rejoicing would be ours. Let us, individually, be alive to the grave responsibilities resting on us, and so govern ourselves that at the coming of our king we may hear the welcome plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

A. J. MURRAY.

BELL, Iowa, Dec. 7th.

Bro. Blair:—Be kind enough to send me one of those leaflets containing reference to both the "Inspired" and "King James'" translations of the Bible, showing the superiority of the former.

Our branch is prospering nicely, the Lord granting us a goodly portion of his Spirit when we meet for worship, manifesting itself not only in the gifts of the gospel, but in that Christian love which binds His children's hearts together, making them one in the truest sense of the word. The Lord has blessed me with greater liberty in presenting the word the present year than ever before. We have more calls for preaching in our district than our laborers are able to supply.

Your brother in Christ,

CHAS. E. BUTTERWORTH.

BAY CITY, Mich., Dec. 12th.

Bro. Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair:—I am holding meetings here every night, with very good interest. I left home November 9th for Oscoda where I found sixteen Saints, all doing well. I commenced holding services at once. I remained there about four weeks, preached twenty-five times, baptized three and ordained one priest. That place has about eight thousand inhabitants. The work in this northern Michigan is onward. I think the time for spreading the gospel was never better, and the people are convinced that the Latter Day Saints love God and preach the truth. The Saints everywhere are encouraged and people are learning the difference between us and the Utah Mormons. Having entered the field, I am going to strive to do some good in the world by the help of God, be it little or much. I want to help roll on this glorious latter day work.

While up north the Saints strove to make me comfortable. Whenever we met for service

God's Holy Spirit ran from heart to heart and all were greatly blessed. There can be no division where the Saints are spiritual. I felt sorry to leave the Saints there, but promised to meet them again in the spring.

E. DELONG.

ELKHART, Texas, Dec. 12th.

Dear Herald:—We are getting along very well for the force we have at work. I received a letter from Bro. J. Currie, Jr., the other day. He is doing a good work in the south-western part of the state. Brother Currie is a faithful worker. May God bless him and raise up more like him in this large field. Brother A. J. Cato reports favorably from Arkansas. God bless him, I pray. On Monday, the 21st of November, my wife and I left home for eastern Texas; stopped with the Saints at Hearne, preached twice and baptized one. Left there on the 23d and arrived here the 24th; preached twice, and went thence to Houston county, some fourteen miles south-east of here, where I preached thirteen discourses and baptized six. Returned here the 6th inst., and have preached four times. Two more will be baptized to-day. I have had the best of liberty in preaching the word. Yes, the Lord is blessing me more and more every day, and may it so continue is my humble prayer.

My wife and I will leave here on the 13th inst. to visit, and preach the gospel to our friends and relatives in the states of old and new Virginia, whom we have not seen for twenty years. Those wishing to correspond with me will please direct to Cedar Point, Page county, Virginia. Ever praying for the progress of Zion's cause, I am as ever, yours in bonds of love.

I. N. ROBERTS.

CUBA, Kan., Nov. 13th.

Dear Brethren and readers of the Herald:—The pages and letters from the friends of the Master's household have been precious sources of comfort and consolation to me for the past twenty-five years. During this quarter of a century I have never found a scrap of its pages exposed to the weather, tossed by the winds, or in other-out-of-the-way-places, without a feeling closely allied to pity. This feeling may have had its origin in my early knowledge of its struggle for existence—the sacrifices and privations made and suffered by those who laid their offerings of means and toil on the altar for its support. There was a time when my impecuniosity deprived me of its companionship for months, and while tempted and tried by the tempests of temporal and spiritual adversity—in a barren inhospitable out-of-the-way region of the country—tossed by the winds and storms of the tempestuous elements of a prairie country, a leaflet of the dear old Herald—two pages—six columns—a messenger of peace, fraught with gospel truth and bearing names of those whose memory was dear to me, inspired me with new hope and arouse a renewal of energy with aspiration to do the Master's bidding. I said, "Who knows whether a leaflet may be borne on the breeze, as by angel hands, to be the means of bearing of great joy to some sorrowing soul? or be the means of awakening some careless one to the realization of their duty towards God, their fellowmen, or their own eternal welfare?" Hence, then, I conclude that while recklessness or vandalism toward our publications are reprehensible, yet a tract, the HERALD, or a page of it judiciously dropped may be "like bread cast upon the water;" or "seed sown by the way side," may spring up in vigorous, fruitful growth, "all dripping with precious wine." Brother, sister, friend, what say you? Is it amen?

For the past three years I have been engaged in newspaper enterprises, but recently have sold out and freed myself from all the mortgages, notes, and obligations that hamper men in the pursuit of wealth and newspaper fame. I have also sold my farm on which one year ago I put a mortgage encumbrance to run five years, but one year's experience was all I desired. After the riddance of mortgages of every class and kind was disposed of, I still have property in a home, garden tools, stock, &c., worth seven hundred dollars, and if the Lord prospers me as he has done for the past month I shall soon be free from all personal obligations to my fellow men and be more at the Master's service. I am now approaching my fifty-third year, but have just learned that "where there is a will, there is a way." It is now, and always has been "God's will" that his people should not incur debts to the world's people; but on my own judgment I concluded that it would be to my interest to borrow money and thus embarrass myself to worldly minded people—in violation of the Master's will; and as I had not the will to obey, I lost sight of the way—the Master's way. By a review of the past three years it now occurs to me that I was offered just six hundred dollars for my place. Since then I have spent three years in toil, eight hundred dollars in cash, with sweat and fret, under debt and mortgage, and now if I have no mishap in the final adjustment of the remaining obligations, I shall be worth just about six hundred dollars—in correspondence with the way provided, by which I might have avoided going into debt—thus lacking the will I missed the way. The prophet asks, "Will a man rob God?" Israel of old was convicted of that crime and suffered the most humiliating penalties for so doing. The method was very simple—not in the least difficult. God willed that a storehouse should be supplied with the necessaries that there should be no suffering, not only among his people, but that the nations should fully appreciate the blessing, which should be unbounded in magnitude. The way was equally plain and convenient—only a per cent of returns of toil from the productiveness of a teeming soil. Dear reader; study well Deut. chapter 26, and become more conversant with God's will and way. We are favored with a land blessed above all others—Joseph's land. Twenty-five years ago our prophet rested under a leaky roof in an humble dwelling in Nauvoo; the church numbered but a handful and was accounted unworthy of the confidence and respect of the world, with the wolf of poverty guarding nearly every door, and the dark shadows of the war cloud chilled every hearthstone in the nation. All this is changed now; the voice of our prophet has been heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and across the waters the war cloud has disappeared, the church has prospered and is winning its way to confidence and respect wherever established, and wealth and comfort dwells where poverty once reigned. But, have we robbed God? He says "When ye do what I command, then am I bound; but when ye do it not ye have no promise." I have not willed to bring my per cent and offerings to the Bishop—the keeper of God's store house—but have substituted a way of my own. Instead of obeying the commandment I said, "Nay, Lord, but I will labor in the ministry as I deem prudent, and disburse my means as seemeth me proper." This—my will and my way, if productive of blessings, I find no lack of room to center them—God is not bound—I have no promise. I shall now will to pay my indebtedness and pray God to place the means within my reach and help me profit by past experience and observe more closely his rule for future guidance.

A few weeks ago by request of Bro. Mahlon Smith, I, accompanied by my wife, visited Blue Rapids to aid in the services of a Reunion, where I met Bro. Caffall, who spoke some three times; and then, by approval of the branch, he left me in charge of the services. I remained several days, doing what I could to cheer and strengthen the Saints, speaking seven times with freedom and acceptance. On my return home I felt cheered and benefitted, which paid me for my visit. Peace be with the brethren.

J. D. BENNETT.

SHERIDAN, Nevada, Dec. 10th.

Bro. D. Dancer:—We send in our subscription for the Herald for 1888. We would not be without it for more than twice its cost, but would rather go without some needful things. It brings us such glad tidings from the brethren in the vineyard as makes us weep for joy. We love the good instructions and principles taught by our brethren and sisters. They are food for our hungry souls.

MRS. M. COOK.

MUTTON SUET AS A HOUSEHOLD REMEDY.

IT is very vexing and annoying, indeed, to have one's lips all break out with cold sores, but, like the measles, it is far better to have the cold strike out than to strike in. A drop of warm mutton suet applied to the sores at night, just before retiring, will soon cause them to disappear. This is also an excellent remedy for parched lips and chapped hands. It should be applied at night in the liquid state, and be well rubbed and heated in before a brisk fire, which often causes a smarting sensation, but the roughest of hands, by this treatment, will often be restored to their natural condition by one application. If every one could but know the healing properties of so simple a thing as a little mutton suet, no housekeeper would ever be without it. Get a little from your butcher, fry it out yourself, run into small cakes, and put away ready for use. For cuts and bruises it is almost indispensable, and where there are children there are always plenty of cuts and bruises. Many a deep gash that would have frightened most women into sending for a physician at once, I have healed with no other remedies than a little mutton suet and plenty of good castile soap. A wound should always be kept clean, and the bandages changed every day, or every other day. A drenching of warm soap suds from the purest soap that can be obtained is not only cleansing but healing; then cover the surface of the wound with a bit of old white muslin dipped into melted mutton suet. Renew the drenching and the suet every time the bandages are changed, and you will be astonished to see how rapidly the ugliest wound will heal.

Cowdery Letters.

Containing valuable matter in relation to the calling of Joseph the Seer, the Discovery and Translation of the Book of Mormon, the Angelic bestowal of the Priesthood
In paper covers 8 cts. each, per dozen 75 cts.
Without covers 5 cts. each, per dozen 50 cts.
Postage paid.

CONFERENCE NOTICES.

A conference of Spring River district will convene at Pleasant View branch, January 27th, 1888, to commence at seven p. m.

J. ALFRED DAVIS, Dist. Pres.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE WOMAN AND HER CHILD.

AFTER careful consideration of Bro. T. W. Smith's theory in regard to the above subject, in Herald of November 19th, and as he invites criticism, the following thoughts are respectfully presented.

As there is but "one body," (Eph. 4:4), and that is called in the Bible, "the church of God," (see Acts 20:28; 1 Cor. 1:2; 10:32; 11:16, 22; 15:9; 2 Cor. 1:1; 1 Thess. 2:14; 1 Tim. 3:5, 15, and elsewhere), also called "The bride, the Lamb's wife," all rules of language would justify us in saying that this same church was symbolized in Rev. 12 by the "woman," especially when it is said to be "The Church of God," in verse 7; and, moreover, as this woman went "into the wilderness," and John in chapter 17 is carried into the future, even until the "seven heads," or forms of government, had arisen in Rome, the "seven hilled city," which must have been after A. D. 568, when the last emperor died. Further, the "ten horns" or kingdoms were complete when the woman went into the wilderness, and this did not occur until the sixth century. There, in what he calls "the wilderness," John again beholds "a woman"—or apostate "Church of God"—"drunken with blood of the Saints." The once beautiful "bride of Christ," now apostate, having left her husband—Christ—united with an earthly husband and taken his name—"the Church of Rome."

Is he not wrong when he says that church did not apostatize, did not go into the wilderness, but was "caught away to God," and that another "Church of God" co-existent with the "one body" at Jerusalem, or "Church of the living God," (1 Tim. 3:15), went into the wilderness, did not apostatize, did not occupy Rome when in the wilderness as the woman seen by John in Revelations chapter 17, but went, perhaps, somewhere in Christ "where she is nourished from the face of the serpent," or where "Satan does not find her," being "a vast body of Jews who still maintain the holy days, and the services of their fathers' religion; or, in other words maintain a church organization; and as they do not know any thing of Christ, but do have a knowledge of God the Father, they can be called the Church of God, which the Inspired Translation calls the woman." A strange kind of church of God indeed! Without "the testimony of Jesus," "the Spirit of prophecy," how could they be the church of God? For "No man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father save the Son, and they to whom the Son revealeth himself."—Matt. 11:12. Insp. Trans.

"He that saith I know him, [God], and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him."—John 2:4. "And this is his commandment, that we shall believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ."—1 John 3:23. This being true,

I ask, in the brother's language, "How in the name of common sense" they can "have a knowledge of God" and yet "know nothing of Christ?" The brother says, "The church in Moses' time is what is called the woman." This can not be, for they knew Christ, drank of the Spirit; he followed them. 1 Cor. 10:4. They esteemed his reproach above riches. Heb. 11:26.

The claim that the twelve patriarchs were the stars about her head, is similar to Orthodoxy claiming the first twelve apostles to be still at the head of their churches, although dead. The patriarchs were dead. And if the twelve tribes were as stars in that church, at that time, it could not have had them at Jerusalem in Christ's day, for the tribes were not there. The "moon," or moral law, could not have been under their feet, for it was not given until they had transgressed the "law of faith" preached to them, (Heb. 4:1-4), and was then "added" because of that transgression. Gal. 3:19. And the "holy priesthood [without which the brother says the church could not exist] was taken from them with Moses."—Doc. Cov. 83:4. Jesus called them hypocrites, of their father the devil, &c. John called them a "generation of vipers." There was "No fear of God before their eyes," &c. Rom. 3:10-18. O, what a description of a "church of God," "clothed with the sun."

The brother says, "The man child could not be the priesthood, for they led the church into apostasy," &c. Do those holding priesthood retain their authority when leading into apostasy? If so, Brigham Young with others were still apostles of Christ until death; and what need of having others in the Reorganization? And again, he says that the man child was "Christ and his church, or kingdom of God, and that they were caught away to God;" did not go into apostasy; also that "the persecution of the woman takes place after her deliverance of her child," and that therefore Christ and his church were "caught up" before the persecution; for it was the "woman" that "knew nothing of Christ" that was persecuted, driven into the wilderness, and not the Church of Christ. If this was so, who were those "slain for the word of God" mentioned in Rev. 6:9, who "came out of great tribulation," making "their robes white in the blood of the Lamb?" Did mystery Babylon become drunken with the blood of the Saints without persecuting them? If Christ and his church, "or kingdom of God," was the "man child" and were "caught away," who departed "from the faith, [apostatized], giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils, forbidding to marry, commanding to abstain from meats," as apostate Christendom has done? Are all the terrible scriptural prediction of "a falling away," revealing "the man of sin," "turning their ears away from the truth—unto fables," etc., a myth only? What is meant by "their" ears if not those who had once had the truth, and had turned to fables?

Jesus was not caught away to God to prevent the dragon from devouring him, but he went of his own almighty power and freewill, having finished his work, obtaining all power in heaven and earth, having the keys of hell and of death. Why talk of him being caught away from the devil. The brother says the war in heaven must have been "some time between Christ's birth and his ascension to heaven." We are told in Doctrine and Covenants 104:28, that Michael, who led the victorious hosts in expelling the dragon from heaven, was Adam; and in section 18:10, that the devil was before Adam; that he had turned away one third of the hosts of heaven from God, "and they were thrust down and thus became the devil and his angels." John describes it thus: "And his tail drew one third of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth."—Rev. 12:4. This all took place before Adam, for Lucifer became the devil after being "thrust down." The fact that then he was "the devil," very wroth, when Adam was in Eden, proves this. The cause of the war in heaven is given in Genesis 3:1-4, Inspired Translation. And the Lord said, "I caused that he should be cast down, and he became [was not before] Satan." When? After he was cast out of heaven. I can not think there ever was, or will be a devil in heaven. Lucifer became rebellious there, and others may do so again because of their agency; but they will as he be "cast down" ere they become devils. There is not a shadow of evidence that Satan ever returned to heaven after deceiving Eve. O, justice; where wast thou with thy flaming sword which turned every way to keep poor, weak, helpless, deceived woman from the tree of life, whilst heaven's gates were left unguarded and the arch deceiver with all his unrepented evil, after his work entailing eternal ruin and death (as he supposed) upon all mankind, re-entering there, continuing his hellish work for over four thousand years in the immediate presence of God, until even "one third of the hosts of heaven" were drawn by his tail, or lying deception, until they with him were "thrust down." Who can believe this after mature reflection? Let us now carefully analyze the scriptures quoted by the brother to sustain this theory.

"And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven."—Luke 10:18. The brother reasons from this that Satan had been in heaven until that time, the first advent of Christ, and was just then cast down. No doubt Jesus saw him cast out of heaven "before Adam;" and he never was known to be absent from earth a moment since that time, neither to sleep day or night, and had apparently had his headquarters at Jerusalem for a thousand years before he met Jesus there offering him all the kingdoms of the world when he never did own, nor ever will own one foot of the earth. He was "walking to and fro in the earth, and walking up and down in it," over 1,500 years before that.—Job. 1:6. The Inspired Translation gives the quotation thus:—"As lightning falleth from heaven I saw Satan also falling." Very different. No more inference here that Satan fell at that time from God's dwelling place than that the lightning did which came only from the clouds. But his power was then declining, Christ's ministers having just been empowered to cast him out of those he had been tormenting, etc.

The brother inquires: "What do these words mean?" "Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out;" and asks, "Who is the prince of this world? Christ himself? Nay. The prince of this world is Satan. Jesus saw him fall from heaven as lightning. He said he would now be cast out." This decision is based also upon wrong translation of scripture, and as the brother quoted the Inspired Translation in Revelations 12: 7, he should have done so all the time. I have shown that Satan was "thrust down from heaven" before Adam; and no scripture intimates that he ever returned there. The judgment that caused him to be cast out of heaven, was not "of this world," but of heaven; of God. From Jude 6, we learn that Satan is reserved to the great day and will then be judged of God, and be cast out of the earth. See also Rev. 20. But when we consider that it was on the eve of his betrayal and judgment by "this world" before Pilate, that Jesus used this language, and that he was then "despised and rejected [cast out] of men" (Isa. 53: 3)—cast out and crucified—it is reasonable to suppose that he was speaking of himself. The next verse indicates the same,—“And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men after me.”

The Holy Spirit was to reprove the world "of judgment, because the prince of this earth is judged."—John 16: 11. Not because they had judged Satan, for they had never judged him, but they had judged Jesus unjustly; and the Spirit did at once, when it came, begin to reprove the world for their unjust judgment and casting out of Christ. Hear Peter, Stephen, and others reprove them. The brother's strong text, John 14: 30, is reversed in the Inspired Translation: "For the prince of darkness, who is of this world, cometh, but hath no power over me;" not "prince of this world." Satan can not be prince of this world, according to the brother's own definition of the term. For speaking of Jesus he says: "At present he is a prince, i. e., an heir expectant of the Kingdom." What Kingdom? "His dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth."—Zech. 9: 10. "And the kingdom and dominion, and greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven" shall be given him. "And all dominions shall serve and obey him." Dan. 7: 27. "And there was given him a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages shall serve him." (verse 14). "The kingdom of this world have [shall] become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ."—Rev. 11: 15. This is evidence positive that Jesus is prince of this world; "Heir of the world;" Rom. 4: 13; "Prince of the Kings or [Kingdoms] of the earth," (Rev. 1, 5), or of this world, hence we are forced to the conclusion that all those scriptures apply to Christ, instead of Satan, as prince of this world, as Satan had no expectation of a future Kingdom here, but "having great wrath, because he knoweth that he hath but a short time" here. Rev. 12: 12. I object not to the term Jewish Church, but claim that Christ, the apostles and other Jewish Saints, composed that church. If Christ and his church were the man child and were caught up to God, even the children of the Kingdom as he says, then he makes a mistake about "the children of the Kingdom" being the "remnant of the woman's seed," for the remnant was here after she had fled away. The brother well says, "whether we can give any better theory exegetical of the subject can be judged after we make the attempt." I think his attempt has failed to be better than what he calls "A darling theory of some, viz, the Church of Christ going into a wilderness—and emerging into life and activity again." My faith is not "disturbed" in the least in regard to the church that began "to rise up and come out of the wilderness, clear as the sun, and fair as the moon, and terrible as an army with banners," (Doc. Cov. 4: 3), as early as 1828 being the same as the beautiful woman of Rev. 12; and that she did bring forth, or perpetuate the Priesthood, or God did through the church, as in the case of Saul and Barnabas. Acts 13: 2, Matthias, Acts 1: 21–26. That instead of Satan "devouring" that authority—priesthood—it was taken to God, with those who last held it, as from the Israelites with Moses. That those members living after the authority to induct others into the church was taken away were called "the remnant of her seed;" that the term "Kingdom of God and his Christ," was used in Rev. 12: 7, as the brother used in his article when speaking of Satan he says, "He was placed in subjection to the Kingdom of heaven; I mean to the authority of the apostles and seventies, or ministers of Christ, to whom Christ gave the keys or power of the Kingdom;" is just what John meant by the "Kingdom of God and his Christ," i. e. The authority of God and his Christ.

There is no evidence that John Wesley was right about all the church losing the Spirit in Constantine's day. The brother admits there were saints later, for he says, "There must have been saints on earth for at least over 500 years after Christ." And as Babylon was not fully developed until A. D. 538; and as the saints were given into his hands—and he prevailed against them,"—is it unreasonable to suppose that the priesthood remained for thirty years—or until A. D. 568, as the time the church fled into the wilderness—the year when the sixth head, the emperors, disappeared? Or, is it as inconsistent to believe that the Church of Christ should be called "a woman" for a few years after apostles and others holding authority to "minister the Spirit" or, as the brother says the "most important members are taken away"—as to believe his theory of the church in Moses' time continuing the church of God, or "woman," until Christ's day, and even until now, in some unknown portion of the earth called a "wilderness?" especially "as the holy priesthood was tak-ed from them with Moses," and even rejected by them when restored to earth through Christ? Or that that church could be "a perfect woman," or church of God, a proper representative of a perfect organization, as the brother says, after Christ's ascension, without the holy priesthood, Holy Spirit, authority from, knowledge of, or even faith in Christ? specially when these members of Christ's Church had "the testimony of Jesus," or "Spirit of prophecy," (Rev. 19: 10) they being God's people or church, in part, as yet? Although they might not have the "Royal Priesthood," yet they might still have the lesser, for a season, and not have a perfect organization, for there are in Christ's Church two Priesthoods, (Doc. Cov. 104: 1), and hence may be called "the remnant of her seed." If, as the brother says, speaking of the church and priesthood, "one can not exist without the other," how did the church he calls the "woman" exist from Moses until Christ? It may be said they had the lesser priesthood. So did "the remnant of the woman's seed" perhaps; yet the church could not be added to without the "royal priesthood," and must cease to exist when its members die after that is taken away, which I believe is symbolized by the "man child." I can not believe as the brother says, that the "church of Christ received her authority from the Jews or Israelites." It came from God, through Jesus Christ. Heb. 5: 5, 6. And he built "his church," (Matt. 16: 19), by calling and authorizing his apostles and seventies. "As my father sent me, so send I you," (John 15: 16), also proves this. The Jews had nothing to do with authorizing them. Although Jesus was a Jew, his Father who gave all authority was not. God authorized Christ, I believe through Moses and Elias, and with whom no doubt the "royal priesthood" had continued, but not through any Israelite "church of God," as there was none on earth until Jesus "built it." Peter, James, John, and Moroni, in this dispensation conferred only that authority they had received from God through Jesus Christ, and not through the Jews. And he who "baptized Jesus Christ, ordained Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery to the Aaronic priesthood," never obtained a vestige of authority from the Jews, but was sent from God—"There was a man sent from God whose name was John." John 1: 6. How? Through the Jewish Church? Nay! but "he was ordained by the angel of God unto this power: To overthrow the Kingdom of the Jews," (Doc. Cov. 83: 6), or what is called sometimes the Jewish Church.

As the brother, I don't wish to be dogmatic about this 12th chapter, as I know very little about it, and hope this may be received in the same kind spirit that it is written in. But as the brother I can say, "of one thing I feel assured," that there was to be a "falling away" of the Church of Christ. The woman, or church, went into "the wilderness." John saw a woman, or church, in "the wilderness." Rome was its seat of government. A church came "out of the wilderness" in this dispensation. Therefore is it not now in the wilderness. It came out by a restoration of the gospel and of the "man child," or priesthood, to earth, calling God's people out of Babylon and translating them into the Kingdom of Christ.

D. S. CRAWLEY.

CHRISTMAS BOX, PLEASE!

(Prelude.—"I give my life for thee,
What has thou given for me?")

THE festive season approaches fast. All good people think of the great event commemorated by it, and to be in Spirit with the giving of happiness to the world through Christ, they are questioning themselves as to what gift from them will convey with it the most happiness to its receiver. While such thoughts are revolving in the minds of Saints, we wish to drop a few words by way of information, suggestion and exhortation, hoping that all readers will accept the advice of one of our favorite hymns and "Be not weary of exhorting," but "Heed the lesson of each day."

There are a few Saints at the center stake, who are in need of your consideration and assistance, not for themselves, but for the noble work unto which they have pledged their time, labor and means.

After some delay the Building Committee has decided to build the new church at Independence, of Warrensburg cut sandstone, and the contract for the mason work has been let to Mr. John Earnshaw, who intends to crowd the work as fast as weather and time permit. The Committee is pledged to keep the work going as fast as incoming funds will justify, and being extremely anxious to have the building closed in for use at the April conference makes this appeal to the Saints everywhere for help. Our former appeal has been responded to by quite a number, but scarcely a tithe of the Saints have yet regarded our plea, and many of the most able have yet to be heard from in the matter, and why, we know not. Australia heard our cry, and Bro. Burton has sent us help, with promise of more. Strange they should hear our appeal away off there when thousands of Saints within five hundred miles of us have not caught the sound.

Independence is rapidly growing. Over three hundred houses have been erected since our last appeal. The new Presbyterian Church is climbing up fast, and all around our church location pleasant and commodious residences are springing up. The Dummy Line Railroad now passes in front of the lot and several beautiful additions westward have been platted and are being sold in lots. In fact everywhere the prospect is gladdening to the eye and heart.

While from north, south, east and west the world's energies are converging here, and this city is fast rising in beauty and importance, attracting the gaze of thousands from abroad, shall there not be something done to fasten upon the minds of observers a thought of the proportionate growth and importance of our loved latter day work?

Why shall not the real inhabitants of Zion keep pace in their efforts to make the place of their Master's feet glorious? Why shall not "Zion, the pure in heart," give tone and emphasis before the world to the claims so long made and the hopes so long cherished regarding the building up of this beautiful place?

The Gentile element around us has long since conceded our right to live and flourish here, if we be found in practical accord with the principles of our published faith, and this acknowledgment on their part, together with its development into a desire for us as settlers, residents and neighbors, has assigned us a larger space—a wider sphere—to occupy than ever before, and we ought to be in the front rank, occupying for all that the word and privilege means. The world without knows that the Latter Day Saints oft linger in holy thought and joyous hope around the sacred associations connected with this place, and they naturally expect to find us in the front line in the work of building it up. Had the Saints at first done as commanded, and bought up all this country, and then observed the further command to "hold claim" on their property what a power they might have been here to-day. Had they, even later, acted upon the President's advice in the Reorganization, and bought and settled in all this region, what a picture we might have had to look upon now; but even now, when the Gentiles crowd in and ignorantly bow to the judgment of Him who set this place apart as a desirable habitation, "beautiful for situation" and wonder why it has lain so long comparatively unnoticed, shall we not place before their wondering eyes a structure, close by the temple lot, which will proclaim to them instantly they gaze upon it, that Zion grows, and flourishes notwithstanding, and SHALL NOT BE MOVED OUT OF HER PLACE; that she is planted here deep and firm, and the prayers and gifts of twice ten thousand of her sons and daughters speak through the stones and timbers of the house they have erected to his name, and she will be had in honor where once she was put to shame.

Our hearts warm for Zion when we think of the tribulation, and glow with a holy fervor when we behold her crowd to the front in dignity and elegance, as we sometimes picture her. When we hear of boom after boom throughout this country we pray and fervently look for a boom for Zion indeed, that her towers soon may rise and shine, and nations view her glory.

Saints, while the Gentiles are building their elegant palaces and stately residences, shall the Lord not have a creditable house to be worshiped in? Shall there not be found enough interested ones among you to boom this enterprise? We want God's house in this town to stand as a monument to the credit of all who love this land and are endeared to it by the ties begotten of this latter day work. We want it to voice our interest in His work here, so far as such a structure can. We want $8,000 more than we have available, and who will leave it to be said that Latter Day Saints abroad have not sufficient interest here to stimulate the donating of such an amount?

Both contractor and committee, as also the sisters aid and majority of local contributors have taxed themselves to the utmost, and are determined that on their part nothing necessary shall be left undone to complete the well-begun work, and as a consequence it must be finished.

Brethren, sisters, young or old, think of our work and sacrifice, and when you are pondering over it, think also how much a dime or quarter, or dollar, or five, ten, fifty, or even more dollars from you would help us in carrying on this commendable work. Think how badly it is needed here, and how far it would go towards easing our burdens and how much of a treasure would be laid up in heaven thereby.

We are not building for Independence branch merely, nor for this or next year alone, but for the church, and for the future. Do not allow the Gentiles to show a deeper interest in this place than we do. Do not leave the Master to be worshiped in Zion by his Saints in a house inferior to every other church structure in the town.

Shall we not have something better than such a condition of affairs in the very center stake of Zion? Let England say yes! Let Wales say certainly!! Let Scandinavia say we will!!! Let Australia emphasize her past affirmative. Let Canada say decidedly!!!! And let all America rise and boom it with an AMEN that will send the building up, walls, roof, tower, bell and frontal inscription. Remember this is the center and from all Zion's radiations of territory, and far beyond, we want the sound of your voices to come home. We can hear you if you speak distinctly. The mails can carry the value of a penny, a dime, or a thousand dollars, and all are welcome alike, as they represent the ability, interest and love of Zion's children.

Take our advice and help, and then when you or your children come to this place, you will feel a holy pride in seeing the house of your God comparing favorably with other fine structures of the place, and in knowing that your contribution helped to make it so.

O, for a general response through the mails, that will voice the interest of all Saints in this effort. O, that all the Saints would send a Christmas Box for the Lord, or a New Year's gift for the Master, and let us place it in the walls of His house, to stand as an evidence of our love for him and our devotion to his gospel. Help! Help!! Help!!!

In making this appeal for aid, the Committee wish to announce that all credits will be made through the Herald at the completion of the work, and that the utmost care will be observed.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy new year, we will yield the floor.

In labor and love on behalf of your brethren of the Building Committee,

JOSEPH LUFF, President.

P. S.—Address all Drafts, Money Orders, Express Orders, or Registered Letters to Joseph Luff, Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

A DREAM.

ON the night of November the first after reading Bro. T. W. Smith's article found in Herald for October 29th last, "Would we be bound," I felt grieved and troubled in spirit, asking myself the question, Is it possible that any party, whether religious or political, can have sufficient power and influence to cause such laws to be enacted as would place me in such a position as to be true to the church would be to disregard the laws of my country?

Again, Bro. Smith says, "We shall probably see or realize what is meant by Babylon being guilty of the blood of apostles and prophets and saints more than we have dreamed of in free America." This sunk deep into my heart, and I asked myself the question: If necessary could I die as a martyr for my religion? At first I felt I could not; but ere I fell asleep, I mustered sufficient faith so that I felt I could die for the cause of Christ. Sometime during the night I had the following dream:—

I found myself upon a large suspension bridge. It was made of iron. It was a railroad bridge, and near the center of it stood a huge eagle, forty or fifty times the size of an ordinary one. He looked mild and unconcerned. I took him in my arms and carried him along the road. He was no burden to me. I met a man who told me that should the eagle strike me I would surely die. So I looked to it to see if he could strike me with his foot feeling satisfied that death would be the result should he do so; but he was perfectly mild and harmless. After walking some distance with the noble bird in my arms, I came to a large and spacious building which I thought was a depot. I asked a man who stood by to take care of the eagle, which he did, while I went into this building and asked the headman or foreman would he come and take charge of the eagle.

He said "Yes, right away." I realized that he wished to do something before he would come out of there. So in a little while he came and in his hand a piece of scarlet velvet. By this time I saw two birds, very beautiful in appearance, by the eagle. They had been brought there by some men. With this piece of scarlet velvet he tied the feet of these two birds, one on either side, to the feet of the eagle. The eagle seemed to have power to stand after it was tied. A man that stood by its side to help do the tying still stood by it. While the two birds were lying upon their sides both of them were nearly of a size; but, what was strange to me, the eagle had diminished in size, or become less. That is to say, the two birds weighed twenty pounds, he was twenty, or more pounds lighter than when I took him into my arms from the center of the bridge.

If the above dream has any meaning or significance, what is the omen; good or bad? Will some one give the interpretation?

E. B. MORGAN.

LUCAS, IOWA, NOV. 5th.

[The eagle is the symbol of our national authority. The dream signifies that however near it may come to the faithful

Saints, they have nothing to fear from it. It will be "no burden" to them. This should be known from the promises in the Book of Mormon, Doctrine and Covenants and miscellaneous writings of Joseph the Seer in regard to the divine origin, purpose, and destiny of our nation. It is probable that a people on the north and another on the south will be bound to our nation with a band of "scarlet velvet."]

Selections.

MORMONS IN MISSOURI.

HOW THE PROPHET'S FOLLOWERS LEFT JACKSON COUNTY AND SETTLED IN CALDWELL—THE BEGINNING OF TROUBLE.

IN a consideration of that important episode in the history of Missouri known as the Mormon war, it is proper to review the events leading thereto and connected directly therewith. As narrated in a previous number of the Globe-Democrat, the Mormons made their first settlement in Missouri in Jackson county, under the direction and leadership of Joseph Smith, in 1832. In the fall of 1833 they were driven out of Jackson by the "Gentiles," and took refuge on the north side of the river, in the counties of Clay and Ray.

The sojourn of the Mormons in Clay county was entirely peaceful. They had no trouble with their Gentile neighbors. The latter received them kindly, rented them lands, gave them employment, and even lent them influence and assistance in the feeble and futile effort made to recover their lands, of which they had been dispossessed and which had been seized upon by the Gentiles of Jackson. It is an actual fact that thousands of acres of the best lands in Jackson county were regularly entered and paid for by the Mormons, who were subsequently driven away from their possessions, and made to abandon them permanently, without a single cent of compensation or reimbursement of any sort, in conformity with the simple rule of Robin Hood:

That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can!

The only original titles that many Jackson county land owners can show are "quieting" decrees of courts, based upon affidavits of undisputed possession, tax certificates and other so-called "evidences of color."

SPREADING OUT.

From time to time, after crossing the river, the Mormons received accessions to their numbers. They began to spread themselves and their settlements among other counties. Some families pushed up into Clinton and Caldwell, then considered the frontier. Every month recruits came in. The "prophet" visited them and counseled them frequently. Still they came. All sorts of people made up the new sect. Rich people and poor; the intelligent and the ignorant; Kentuckians, Tennesseans and Down-East Yankees; college professors and shoemakers; men, women and children. At last it became a serious question with the Missourians, What is to be the result of all this? The Mormon problem came to the fore, as it has come many times since. The injection of so large an element, new in so many respects, into the body politic, was viewed with perplexity and apprehension.

At last a seeming solution presented itself. The northern portion of Ray county was very largely virgin prairie, unbroken, somewhat uninviting, and still belonging to the Government. It was suggested that a sort of reservation be made of this vast tract of country exclusively for Mormon benefit. At a consultation of some of the leading public men of Clay county, held at Liberty, in the summer of 1836, wherein A. W. Doniphan, Peter H. Burnett, Shubael Allen and others took part, the suggestion took the form of a proposition:

"Let us create the Shoal Creek country into a new county expressly for the benefit of the Mormons," said these gentlemen. "Let us send all the Mormons in the State to that county, and induce the few Gentile settlers now therein to sell out and leave."

The proposition was circulated throughout the country and met with universal assent. David R. Atchison and James H. Birch indorsed it in public speeches. The Gentile citizens generally said:

"If the Mormons will go into that prairie country and settle, let them have it and welcome."

A PROPOSITION ACCEPTED.

The Mormons readily agreed to this disposition of their case. They said:

"If we may be allowed to remain peaceably and enjoy our religion, we will go into any country that may be set apart for us, no matter how wild and unbroken it may be, and, God helping us, in time we will make it to blossom as the rose." (The words quoted are from a letter written by Bishop Edward Partridge, Orson Hyde, and other leading Mormons to General Doniphan and the Gentile committee). Already they had located in considerable numbers in certain parts of the proposed reservation, and a few families had pushed farther north, on Upper Grand River, in what is now Daviess county.

Alex. W. Doniphan, then of Liberty, was perhaps the real author of the reservation plan for the disposition of the Mormons. At the time of the adoption of the plan he was a candidate for Representative in the Legislature from Clay county, with an almost absolute certainty of election, and to him was assigned the work of preparing and introducing into the Legislature the act organizing the new county, and of pressing the bill to a passage. In August, Doniphan was elected; but before the Legislature convened he learned of opposition to the project of organizing the "Mormon county" as a distinct proposition. Thereupon he determined, upon consultation, to incorporate into the original bill provisions for the organization of another county, to be created out of the territory north of the "Mormon" county. Accordingly, upon the assembling of the Legislature, in December, a bill for the organization of the counties of Caldwell and Daviess was introduced in the House by Gen. Doniphan, and, after being amended to suit the wishes of the members from Ray, was passed, practically without opposition, and received the signature of Gov. Boggs, December 26th, 1836. The Mormon county was named in honor of Col. John Caldwell, of Kentucky, and Daviess for Col. Joseph H. Daviess, who fell under Gen. Harrison at the battle of Tippecanoe.

Of course it was not provided in the organizing act that the new county of Caldwell was for the exclusive occupation of the Mormons, but it was generally understood, tacitly and openly, that this was to be the effect. It was further understood that the Mormons were to settle in no other county without the consent, "in writing," previously obtained, of the inhabitants already therein, and it is claimed that the Mormon authorities pledged themselves that no general settlement or occupation of the country in Missouri should be attempted outside of Caldwell county. I have given these particulars as I received them from Gen. Doniphan himself, at Richmond, Ray county, in the summer of 1885.

SETTLING IN CALDWELL.

Meanwhile the Mormons had occupied the new county in considerable numbers. They had purchased the claims of nearly all of the few Gentiles residing therein, and had entered thousands of acres besides. Nothing could have been fairer, more legal or more equitable than the Mormon acquisition of the territory. Months before it had been visited and reported upon by W. W. Phelps and John Whitmer, the former the Mormon Joshua sent up from the Paran of Clay to the Canaan of Caldwell, with instruction to "see the land what it is, and the people that dwelleth therein, whether they be strong or weak, few or many, and what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad; . . . whether it be fat or lean; whether there be wood therein or not." In a country so largely composed of prairie, it was as important that there be "wood therein" as that it be "fat."

Shoal Creek is the principal stream of Caldwell county, flowing through it from west to east. Along this stream, and along Goose Creek and Log Creek and Long Creek, the Mormons settled by hundreds of families. Soon they dispersed themselves generally throughout the county. Cabins and cottages rose everywhere. Mills were built, shops were opened, stores established, schools started, and the foundations for a thrifty and successful community were securely laid. The majority of the settlers were poor. Many of them were able to enter and improve but forty acres of land. Like other pioneers, the most of them had come to the new country to better their earthly condition. To worship as they pleased and to dwell with brethren of their own faith were, of course considerations. But every head of a family had a home; if he was unable to buy one, it was given him from the lands held by the trustees of the church. Among so many, however, there could but be those of some wealth, and these owned considerable farms. There were also craftsmen of all kinds, skilled mechanics and artisans. The wilderness began to bloom.

THE TOWN OF FAR WEST.

The town of Far West was established. The site was selected by Phelps and Whitmer, and the land was entered by them August 8th, 1836, in trust for "the church." It was regularly surveyed and platted during the same month. Its location is five miles directly north-west of Kingston, the present county seat of Caldwell, and eight miles south-west of Hamilton. The town plat was exactly one mile square. The blocks were 396 feet square, and the streets were on a proportionately grand scale. The four principal avenues were each 132 feet wide, and the common streets were 82½ feet in width. The streets and avenues diverged at right angles from a public square in the center, designed as the site of a grand temple. Far West was to be the second "New Jerusalem" of the Mormons. Here was to begin the upbuilding of a new "Zion." The Mormons poured in, and soon a town of respectable proportions stood where the wild prairie grass had waved tall and luxuriant.

The county was regularly organized, and public business conducted in regular and due form. Nearly all of the county officers were Mormons; they were, too, men of intelligence and capacity. The county seat was located at Far West. Courts were held in a large frame school building, built in the fall of 1836. Hon. Austin A. King, of Ray county, afterward Governor of the State, Congressman, etc., was the judge of the circuit. Under the law of the State the militia of the county were duly organized into a regiment, of which Lyman Wight was the first Colonel. The political machinery of the county was controlled entirely by Mormons.

OTHER SETTLEMENTS.

By the beginning of the year 1838 the population of Caldwell county was about 4,000 souls, of whom it is reasonably certain that 3,900 were Mormons. The most desirable locations in Caldwell having been occupied, the Mormon settlement extended into other counties. In the spring of 1837 a detachment went up into Daviess, and, by written permission, of the few Gentile settlers there, made a permanent settlement in that county. Three miles above Gallatin, on the east bluffs of West Grand River, they laid out a town which they called Adam-on-di-Ahmon, (often written "Adam-on-Diamon," and sometimes contracted to "Diamon"), a phrase in the Mormon "unknown tongue," signifying, it is said, "the grave of Adam." Down in Carroll county, and DeWitt, on the Missouri, in the spring of 1838, Gen. George M. Hinkle and John Murdock, as trustees for the church purchased the town site, laid it off into lots, and soon a thriving village of one hundred houses was built. De Witt was designed to be a steamboat landing and the point from which goods and immigrants were to be forwarded to Caldwell county.

It is claimed that all the Mormon settlements outside of Caldwell were made with the prior consent of the inhabitants of the country where the settlements were made. This consent was obtained, in nearly every instance, by the payment of money, either for the lands of the pioneer Gentiles or for some articles of personal property they owned. Money was scarce at that day, and although the pioneers did not approve of Mormon doctrines and articles of faith, they did approve of Mormon gold, and were willing to tolerate the one if they could obtain the other! But it is also claimed that the Mormon occupation was accomplished by stealth and fraud, and perhaps, in some instances, notably in the acquisition of DeWitt, there were misrepresentation and duplicity.

THE "PROPHET" ON THE GROUND.

In the summer of 1838 dissensions broke out among the Mormons in Caldwell and other parts of Missouri. The "prophet," as Joseph Smith was called, had come out from Ohio the previous spring to Far West, and undertook the government and conduct of his people in person. The house he occupied in Far West was a modest hewed-log cabin, and was torn down only a few years since. In 1885 I saw the logs, still well preserved and forming the walls of a common farm stable. There were then living at Far West, Brigham Young, John Taylor, Orson Hyde, Sidney Rigdon, Orson Pratt, Parley P. Pratt, Hyrum Smith (brother of the Prophet), and many others among what may be termed the fathers of the Mormon Church. Another resident of the place was the widow of Morgan, the so-called exposé of the mysteries of Freemasonry, who, it has been claimed, was murdered for his treachery in 1826. In order to successfully administer affairs, Smith invariably announced that his commands were the results of divine revelations—were, in fact, the orders of the Deity, delivered to the people through him. He had a "revelation" regarding this matter or that, as it seemed to please him. Of course, the people could not refuse to obey the orders of the Almighty. "Thus saith the Lord," was sufficient for them, and for a time Smith kept them in discipline and subjection.

At last, however, certain of the Mormons declared that the Prophet had been seduced and corrupted by evil counselors; that his pretended "revelations" regarding certain matters were fraudulent, and that his conduct was at variance with his former teachings, as well as in violation of the Bible and the "Book of Mormon." Bitter controversies arose. David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery, two of the three "original witnesses" to the finding of the sacred golden plates in the "hill of Cumorah," withdrew from Far West, taking with them the original manuscript of the "Mormon Bible" and two of the plates. They settled in Richmond, Ray county, where Cowdery died and was buried in 1850, and where David Whitmer yet lives. I had a lengthy interview with him there in the summer of 1885. The manuscript and one of the plates were then in his possession. Others withdrew when Whitmer and Cowdery left, the gifted and eloquent Sidney Rigdon, Thos. B. Marsh and Orson Hyde among them. Cowdery, Whitmer and Martin Harris were expelled from the church, as were Rigdon and many others. None of them, however, ever recanted their belief in the original Mormon faith. Rigdon and Cowdery were subsequently "restored."

THE PREDICTION OF TROUBLE.

Smith now announced that as a punishment for the dissensions of the church, the divine wrath was about to fall upon the people; that the church would be "scattered; that a Babylonian captivity would ensue; that woes and torments should come, but that in the end the faithful should be rewarded, and the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," redeemed and purified, should be established on the earth on a sure and indestructible foundation. All then thanked God and took courage. "Thus saith the Lord!"

On the 4th day of July, 1838, the corner stones for the "second temple" were laid at Far West. The building was designed to be colossal in its proportions—120 by 80 feet in area and 100 feet in height, to be built of stone. The excavation for the foundation five feet in depth, was made in half a day, more than five hundred men being employed in the work, with no other implements for excavating the earth but mattocks and spades, and with no other means of removing it than in hand-barrows. The corner-stones were placed with solemn ceremonies by the Prophet himself. The prospective structure was never completed. But little else was done than to dig the foundation and lay the corner stones. A few loads of stone were hauled to the site, and some of them yet lie scattered about it; the excavation is plain to be seen. A few years ago I sent to the Mormon authorities at Salt Lake, two pieces of the corner-stones, not yet obliterated by time and relic-hunters, and received in reply a letter of grateful thanks and acknowledgement. I learn that these relics have been skillfully dressed and fashioned into miniature monuments, with bases of silver, and are carefully preserved among the "sacred" mementoes of the church.

THE STORM-CLOUD.

Soon after the work of the temple had been begun storm-clouds arose on the Mormon horizon, and the leaders of the church, by the advice of the Prophet, forebore the expenditure of further labor upon it until the signs should appear more promising. On the morning of the 6th of July, Smith summoned a council of the elders.

"Brethren," said he, "it has been revealed to me that the temple can not now be completed. We must stop the work until the Lord's own time. By and by we may resume it again. If so, well; if not, it is well."

Soon after events occurred which brought about the Mormon "war" in Missouri.

BURR JOYCE.

Globe-Democrat, Dec. 3d, 1887.

CONDITIONAL IMMORTALITY.

AMONG the many causes which have contributed to the prodigious revolution which has shaken popular religion to its foundations, it is probable that none has been so powerfully efficient as the moral revulsion from mediæval doctrines of the future life and retribution after death. To the average mind of educated people in these days it seems almost inconceivable that such doctrines should ever have been invented, or that, having been invented, they should ever have been believed. They were the outcome of a still savage condition of life into which the mildness of Jesus Christ had not entered even among the nations which professed and called themselves Christians. We have but to visit the Tower of London or any other ancient fortress of the Middle Ages and there to look upon the instruments of human agony which were customarily employed in the ministry of justice, in order to feel how far we are removed from the standpoint of men who could devise and use such engines of hell in the service, as they honestly believed, of God and man. And when we remember the horribly protracted torments which were often inflicted upon wretches who had forfeited their lives by crimes real or imaginary, we can believe that the perpetrators were capable of the reasoning which Burnet (a questionable authority) puts into the mouth of Mary of England: "As the souls of heretics are hereafter to be eternally burning in hell, there can be nothing more proper than for me to imitate the divine vengeance by burning them on earth!" If Mary said this, and beyond all question there were thousands who did say it, Mary was wrong. She was not cruel merely in imitation of a cruel God. She was able to believe in a cruel God and a cruel doctrine of future punishment because she herself and her contemporaries were cruel. She was not making herself after the image of God; she and others had made of God a Moloch in their own bloodthirsty image. Nor may we flatter ourselves that the cruelty of that age was confined to any particular church, sect or nation. It was universal.

At the outbreak of the Reformation, Protestants were as cruel as their Roman Catholic opponents. In all the story of the Inquisition there is nothing more appalling than the persecution of the Scotch Covenanters by Scotch adherents of the Anglican church; and there is nothing wickeder or crueller in history than Calvin's burning of Servetus. It was all alike, the work of a still savage age, which had not yet understood the first principles of the teachings of Christ. Hence amidst all the fierce denunciations of the Church of Rome, with which the era of the Reformation rung, there was no protest against mediæval doctrines of the future life. Nay, it is singular to note the fact that while the Church of Rome had not synodically declared her doctrine concerning the nature of future punishment, so that the doctrines actually preached by the friars were not in fact dogmas of the church, the Protestant sects, with the sole exception of the English church, were swift to define the utmost horrors of which the preaching friars ever dreamed as part of the faith of Christ "without which there is no salvation." Nor did they stop there. They were not content to declare the horrors of hell as a fearful doom to be believed in with amazement. They were able to affirm their own intelligent approval of it. And some there were who found it possible to equal or surmise the wildest ravings of Tertullian in their joyous expectation of the pleasure of beholding the eternal torture of their own kinsmen hereafter. Hopkins, for example, writes that he would feel himself aggrieved and wronged if he were to be deprived of that pleasure. "Should the eternal torment of the unsaved cease," he says, "and this fire be extinguished, it would in a great measure obscure the light of heaven, and put an end to a great part of the happiness and glory of the blessed." When men were capable of thinking in such fashion their religion and doctrines must have been like themselves, and they imagined God to be no better than themselves.

But men have changed at last. Some of their mediæval savagery has been worked out of them. They recoil with horror from the doctrines of their fathers, and they rush with horror from a religion which teaches such abominations. They do not pause to think that, perhaps, these doctrines are no part of the religion which the Savior taught. The very name of religion is repulsive to them, and the sacred name of Christ has been connected with the horrors they have now learned to reject that they turn away from Him with scorn, whom they have been taught to misconceive. And so it comes to pass that thousands turn away from Christ for the strange reason that they have in fact been breathing His own mild and gentle spirit, and that they are classed as heretics by others who maintain abominable slanders of the moral character of God.

Others there are who can not find it in their hearts to turn from Jesus Christ, and who, therefore, try to see whether they can not find in Holy Writ some ground on which to frame a better theory of the future life than that which popular religion has adopted. These men do their work "each after his own order." If they are capable of making any critical examination of the Scriptures themselves, a mass of difficulties is dispersed, though at the cost, perhaps, of raising new difficulties of another sort. But to those who hold the literal inspiration and authority of every word and letter of Scripture, no such way is open, and then, as is natural, they see in Scripture itself the reflection of their own thought.

The doctrine of "Conditional Immortality" is professedly and plausibly founded upon the express words of Scripture. There is nothing in Scripture which declares that man, as man, is immortal. The Hebrew Scriptures notoriously teach no such thing; and in the New Testament it appears that immortality is declared to be the gift of God, through Christ, to them, and to them only who believe in Christ,

The rest of men, though, by the will of God, they may be raised up at the last day to receive the meet reward of their deeds done in the body, will live again no longer than their just punishment endures; "their end is destruction," that is to say, complete annihilation, while the just who "live by faith," and to whom "life and immortality are brought to light," through Christ, shall live forever in the new life which Christ brought down from the divine life of heaven.

Such is the scheme of "Conditional Immortality" set forth, not without plausibility and ingenuity by quite a number of recent writers, and notably by J. H. Pettingell, A. M., in his recent work entitled "The Unspeakable Gift." We may say without flattery that the book is readable, and that the reader to whom the subject happens to be new will find the author's argument much stronger than he would expect. It is possible, too, that he will be surprised to learn how many persons of note have agreed or now agree with Mr. Pettingell. For ourselves the book is chiefly interesting as an illustration of the ease with which an earnest and ingenious mind will find the confirmation, and, indeed, the express statement, of its own convictions in the letter of the Scriptures. At any rate, it is a better sign that a man should find conditional immortality and reasonable retribution in the letter of the Scriptures than that he should slander God Almighty by discovering there a hell of literal fire and brimstone in which the great majority of men shall writhe forever, agonized, but unconsumed.—St. Louis Republican.

Conference Minutes.

FAR WEST.

Conference convened at St. Joseph, Missouri, on Saturday, November 26th, 1887, Bro. J. T. Kinneman in the chair. Upon invitation of the president, and by vote of conference, Bro. J. R. Lambert took the chair and presided over the conference. Brn. J. Burlington, Jr., Wm. Summerfield and James Drown were appointed a committee on credentials. Statistical reports were read from Stewartsville, St. Joseph, Far West, Pleasant Grove, Delano, DeKalb, and German Stewartsville branches. Elders reports: J. T. Kinneman, H. C. Bronson (baptized 2), J. R. Lambert, James Drown, Wm. Summerfield, L. L. Babbitt (baptized 2), A. J. Seely, (baptized and confirmed 1), Wm. Lewis, J. M. Terry (baptized 1, solemnized 1 marriage); Teachers W. Wells and Kaspar Hinderks; Deacons Charles Householder and John Burlington Jr. Committee on Reunion in the vicinity of Clarksdale, Missouri, reported. Bro. A. W. Head was added to the committee and the committee continued. Resolved, that this conference request the Center Prairie and Far West branches to disorganize and join with the Saints of Kingston in forming a new branch organization at the latter place, providing such action should be deemed wise on the part of the proper authorities. Bishop's agent's report: On hand last report $95.05; received since, including the above, $266.05; expenditures $283.30; balance due agent $17.25. Bro. Wm. Lewis, the agent, requested a committee to audit his books, and the conference appointed Brn. R. Winning, J. M. Terry, and Kaspar Hinderks such committee. Resolved, that the bishop's agent be requested to report at the sitting of all conferences. The report of a court of elders to hear the case of Henry Islieb vs. St. Joseph branch, was read; the report was adopted and the court was discharged. Resolved that all appeals must be made within one year from time of trials; and that parties so appealing shall state as to the grounds upon which they wish an appeal. Committee on credentials reported and was discharged. The present officers were sustained separately by the yeas and nays for the coming quarter. The auditing committee reported; the report was received, adopted, and committee discharged. Bro. J. M. Terry preached on Saturday 7:30 p. m., assisted by Bro. Wm. Summerfield. Bro. J. R. Lambert preached Sunday morning and evening. Social meeting in the afternoon. A vote of thanks was tendered the Saints of St. Joseph for kindness in caring for the Saints at conference. Adjourned to meet in Stewartsville, the time to be fixed by the district officers.

MALAD.

Conference convened October 15th, 1887, at Malad City, Oneida county, Idaho, at 2 p. m. Elder R. J. Anthony was chosen to preside; John Vanderwood, clerk. The minutes of last conference were read and accepted. Branch reports.—Oxford 28, including 2 elders, 1 priest, 2 teachers, 1 deacon. Benjamin Croshaw, pres. Malad 28, including 4 elders, 2 removed without letters. John Lewis pres. Samaria, as last reported. Owen Thomas, pres. Malta 7, including 2 elders, 1 teacher. No change since organized. J. H. Condit, pres. Elders John Lewis, Wm Richards, Thomas Jenkins, Owen Thomas, James Thomas, Morgan Jones, Henry John and R. J. Anthony reported in person; J. H. Condit by letter, and priest Wm. H. Harris in person. Resolved, That we receive the report of the Malad Chapel Building committee for investigation, also, that the president appoint a committee to examine said report, and make report to this conference. John Vanderwood district treasurer had paid out $14. Report accepted, John Vanderwood was nominated for Bishop's Agent, to be recommended to Bishop Geo. A. Blakeslee. The spiritual and temporal authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Preaching by R. J. Anthony at 7½ p. m. Sunday 16th, 11 a. m., sacrament was administered, and meeting opened for testimony. At 2 and 7½ p. m. preaching by R. J. Anthony. Monday 17th, 11 a. m., examining committee on chapel matters reported, and were discharged. The report of the building committee was received, and the committee was released. The trustees holding the lot in trust were requested to take immediate steps to liquidate all indebtedness. Adjourned to meet at Malad, the 3d Saturday and Sunday in January, 1888.

Miscellaneous.

BORN.

PARKER.—At Independence, Missouri, October 23d, 1887, to Bro. Robert and Sr. Nelly Parker, a son; blessed December 11th by Elder F. C. Warnky, and named John Edgar.

DIED.

WISMER.—At Forestville, Michigan, November 8th, 1887, of consumption, Bro. Joseph Wismer, only son of Zechariah and Catherine A. Wismer, aged 28 years, 6 months and 22 days. Funeral services at the Saints' Chapel, by Elder Levi Phelps; text, Job 14:14. He leaves a wife and many friends to mourn their loss; but they are consoled by the promise of Jesus: "I am the resurrection and the life."

SMITH.—At Union Grove, Harrison county, Iowa, November 27th, 1887, Elder Howard S. Smith, aged 77 years, 6 months and 17 days. He was born in Bradford county, Pennsylvania, 1810; united with the church in the days of Joseph the Seer, and took an active part in preaching the gospel. He also took an active part in presenting the claims of the Reorganization in western Iowa, and was well and favorably known to many of the old Saints. He died full in the faith, true to the testimony he had borne. He leaves an aged companion and many friends to remember him for his many kind words and deeds. Funeral services by elders D. and W. Chambers.

FREEMAN.—Bro. Walter Burton Freeman was born at McGregor, Clayton county, Iowa, May 19th, 1838; united with the Church of Jesus Christ, November 10th, 1883; his spirit took its flight from this world of trouble at Independence, Missouri, November 19th, 1887. He leaves a sorrowful wife and two small children, also many relatives and friends, to mourn his death. He died firm in the faith; and Jesus has said: "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord." Bro. F. C. Warnky preached the funeral sermon, assisted by Bro. H. R. Mills.

And now, alas, my all is gone,
And I am left in grief alone;
No dear husband wipes my tears,
Or gently quells my rising fears;
But he has gone to rest above,
In his dear Savior's arms of love.
He, with the blest around the throne,
Will anxious wait to greet me home.
His WIFE.

BOWKER.—At Girard, Minnesota, September 29th, 1887, Dora A., infant daughter of Bro. Arthur G. and Sr. Nellie J. Bowker, aged one week. A sweet little darling, she but budded on earth that we might know what a sweet flower would blossom and await us in eternity. None but a mother's heart can tell our loss.

Earth, thou canst not hide her from me;
Thou dost cover her in vain;
For sweet memories o'ercome me,
And she is alive again.
Her spirit has returned to God;
The casket only is 'neath the sod;
And if we but his law obey,
We'll meet our babe in eternal day.

LADD.—At Santa Ana, California, September 6th, 1887, of dropsy; Sr. Sarah Ann Ladd, in the 66th year of her age. She was baptized at Nauvoo, Illinois, by Joseph the Martyr, in 1839. Married Orlando Carter in 1842; was through all the trouble of the exodus from Nauvoo to Salt Lake; only remained at the lake a short time and then moved to California. Her husband dying, leaving her with four children, she married Bro. H. C. Ladd in 1859; was rebaptized in 1865. She leaves a husband and four sons. She was indeed a "mother in Israel."

OBITUARY.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 5th.

Bro. W. W. Blair.—I write to inform you of the very sudden death of Elder John Eames, November 30th, 1887. He had been afflicted for about one year with asthma and heart trouble and came to this coast a few months since and invested at Santa Monica in a hotel. He thought for awhile that he was on the gain. At his request I visited him November 29th. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and concluded to have a medical examination so that he would be entitled to benefits from his lodge at Cheyenne. Wednesday, November 30th, he came to Los Angeles. I went with him to the doctor's office, a distance of four or five blocks, then to the bank where he transacted some business, he giving me $10 for tithing. He then went to Bro. Schnell's, 119 N. Bunkerhill street, and there waited for the prayer-meeting to be held at that place at seven o'clock. During that meeting he bore a strong testimony to the work, kneeled down and prayed, and during his prayer he spoke in tongues and interpreted the same, exhorting the Saints to diligence and faithfulness, saying the Lord would bless them. He spoke several times, once again in prophecy, to Sr. Schnell, and as there were several to be administered to, he being one of the number, I administered to him. Then he assisted in ministering the same ordinance to others. Soon his breathing became very hard, and he went to the kitchen to smoke some herbs which he had with him, and Bro. McNair accompanied him. When I was speaking Bro. McNair called me to the room, and, stepping to Bro. Eames side, I saw he was dead.

How few there are that pass away as did Bro. Eames—without a groan or a struggle! He closed his eyes like one going to sleep, stopped breathing, and his spirit returned to God who gave it. Meeting was then dismissed, a physician called, who pronounced Bro. Eames dead; the undertakers dressed the body and laid it out. I then telegraphed his wife at Santa Monica and she came on the morning train; the body was embalmed and placed in a metallic coffin. On Sunday morning at half-past ten it was conveyed to the Knights of Pythias Cassel Hall. At eleven o'clock, in the presence of a full congregation of Saints and Knights I preached the funeral sermon from the text, "If a man die shall he live again." This morning (Monday) his wife, in care of the remains, started for their home at Cheyenne, Wyoming.

Thus has passed away one of the best of Saints—one whose memory will be handed down because of his integrity and humble devotion. Bro. Eames was born in Herefordshire, England, December, 1831; and died at Los Angeles, November 30th, 1887; was baptized in September, 1871, by Joseph Smith; ordained same month and year.

The day before he died I took his application for membership to present to the Los Angeles branch; but he passed away before the Saints met. I hand you the following statement which is requested to be published—I send it as he wrote it. The provisions in the request have all been carried out except that relating to the place where he desired the funeral sermon to be preached, but as he died in Los Angeles it was almost impossible to comply.

Yours in truth, J. R. BADHAM.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 20th, 1887.

I, John Eames, an elder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, wish to bear my testimony, that while I lay upon my bed the Spirit of the Lord impressed my mind. I have been sick more or less for one year, and the powers of darkness for the past few days seemed to try to overcome me. I prayed much, to overcome; and in the night blessed feelings were impressed upon my mind, and these words I heard a voice from heaven saying: "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord; so saith the Spirit; for they rest from their labors."—Rev. 14:13. "I am the resurrection and the life." "He that believeth upon me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."—John 11:25. "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection."—Rev. 20:6. I then seemed to pass away.

I do wish Bro. Badham to preach my funeral sermon in the front room of the Cliff House; it is my wish if I am called away, and I wish Bro. Schuell to be in company with Bro. Badham.

I was shown a little while before this that "young Joseph" Smith was the true leader of the Church of Jesus Christ, and that Bro. Blair is placed by his side by our Heavenly Father. I then wondered in my mind how it was that the Temple of the Lord should be built in Independence, Missouri. It was shown me that that place was near the center of the land of America, and that some of all nations will gather to this glorious country of America, as the fulness of the glorious gospel is to be preached to all nations; also that some of all nations have gathered to this country, and may embrace the gospel, and then be sent back to their different countries to proclaim it to their own people. I now saw on the other side of the river, and I saw all glorified beings. I saw my first wife, who died in Denver City in 1866, my father mother, my two sisters, and large numbers of holy beings, all in white, beckoning me to come. It seemed a glorious place, and the clouds of glory appeared to envelop them. I saw there was a small boat, with small canvass, to pass over the river in; and I saw that those that passed over could not return back. All seemed so happy! I could see nothing but glory. I then saw my coffin taken to the depot and landed in Cheyenne, when it was taken to the Knights of Pythias Hall, Cheyenne Lodge, No. 2; (I wish my brother Knights to bury me); and I wondered in my mind why I should be buried in Cheyenne. Then I was impressed to see that as I had lived with the people there so many years, I must sleep with that people, and be with them at the last great day. Then my oldest daughter, Mrs. Dobbins, and her son Asa, came before me; also my daughter Geneva and her son Earl; and my daughter Luella Lepper and her children, and I felt that they were greatly beloved by the Lord, and that the blessings of heaven will rest upon them forever.

J. H. HANSEN, M. D. PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni

MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty

Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14feby

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

Price - - - - $1.25 per year.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the

Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

CHICAGO,
AURORA, OTTAWA,
STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

NEW YORK,
BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND
PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND
POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, General Manager, CHICAGO, ILL.
PAUL MORTON, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt., CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going
East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

Twelve Sermons for 25 cents.

In January, 1888,

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

will be enlarged to an eight column paper, devoted to general and local news, and will begin the publication of monthly supplements, containing full reports of Sermons selected from those delivered at Lamoni and at the

GENERAL CONFERENCES,

which will be reported especially for us.

Gazette, without supplement, per year....$1 25
Gazette, with supplement, per year.....$1 50

Send for sample copy.

LAMBERT & HANSEN,

nov26if

Lamoni, Iowa.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in

LAMONI,

at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M. D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCEOLA CO., MICH.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, recipes, etc., by mail for 35c in stamps. W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

ZION'S HOPE

Is published every Saturday by the Church of Christ, at Lamoni, Iowa. Single copies, per year, 50c; packages of four to ten 40c; packages of over ten 35c.

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.

WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

A SUPERB PRESENT.

INVALUABLE TO

Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians,
Editors, Bankers, Physicians,
Merchants, Students,
and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books, ...$10.00
" 2x, " " 2 tiers " " ... 12.00
" 2, " Floor, " 2 " " " ... 12.00
" 3, " " " 3 " " " ... 15.00
" 4, " " " 4 " " " ... 18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SAISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

THE SAINTS' HERALD.

"HEarken TO THE WORD OF THE LORD: FOR THERE SHALL NOT ANY MAN AMONG YOU HAVE SAve IT BE ONE WIFE AND CONCURINES HE SHALL HAVE NONE."—Page 116, Book of Mormon, chap. 2, par. 6.

"WE BELIEVE THAT ONE MAN SHOULD HAVE ONE WIFE, AND ONE WOMAN BUT ONE HUSBAND: EXCEPT IN CASE OF DEATH, WHEN EITHER IS AT LIBERTY TO MARRY AGAIN."—Page 330, Book of Covenants and Commandments, sec. 109, par. 4.

Vol. 34.—Whole No. 763.

Lamoni, Iowa, December 31, 1887.

No. 53.

THE SAINTS' HERALD:

Official Paper of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Published at Lamoni, Decatur Co., Iowa,
Every Saturday; price $2.50 per year.

The Traveling Ministry, District and Branch Presidents, and the Bishop's Agents, are requested to solicit new subscribers, and help make the weekly a success.

Business letters and subscriptions must be sent to David Dancer, by P.O. Order, Registered letter or express Entered as second class matter at Lamoni Post Office.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, Dec. 31, 1887.

The following clipping is from the Boston Daily Globe, and is sent us by Bro. A. N. Hoxie, who thinks he would like to see an answer in the Herald.

PERILS OF MOB LAW.

REV. M. R. DEMING'S DISCOURSE AT THE BAPTIST TABERNACLE.

"The Perils of Mob Law" was Rev. M. R. Deming's topic yesterday afternoon at the Bowdoin Square Baptist Tabernacle. His text was: "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come." The preacher said:

The Apostle Paul enumerates among other characteristics of the evil times of which he prophesied that men shall be truce or covenant breakers. Laws are covenants. Men who seek to destroy laws are covenant-breakers, and make the times in which they live perilous. The railroad riots in Pittsburg a few years since, the court house riots in Cincinnati, the horse car riots in New York, the bomb throwing in Chicago, the blowing up of residences, factories, stores and public buildings which are frequently chronicled in the papers, are signs of a lawless spirit lurking beneath our modern civilization which bodes no good.

Anarchism is lawlessness reduced to a science openly avowed. It seeks unblushingly to organize a party for robbery, arson and murder in the name of philanthropy and equal rights. Its only remedy for the evils of society is mob law. We must judge a tree by its fruits. Mob law is a scheme of the devil to destroy the innocent and let the guilty escape. Both sacred and secular history unite in proving this. Many a mob has done just the opposite thing which they started out to accomplish.

Anarchism has a principle. It is that the State can be benefitted by the oppression or destruction of the individual. Christianity teaches that if one member of the body suffers, be it ecclesiastic or politic, all other members suffer with it. He who strikes down the rights of the one strikes down the rights of all. Christ and His apostles showed respect to the powers that be by their invincible example. Mob law introduces the principle of vendetta.

Joseph Smith was assassinated after he had surrendered for trial by law, with the official pledge of the governor of Illinois that he should be protected by the military. That foul treachery filled the Mormons with deadly hatred to State and National laws, and set them to murdering innocent people for revenge.

The raid of John Brown was the logical sequence of the murder of Abijah Lovejoy, in the defence of his anti-slavery press at Alton, Ill. How strange that the first blood shed by Anarchists should wet the soil of that State where both Smith and Lovejoy were murdered with the connivance of officers of the law.

The best protection against mob law is:

1. To elect patriotic and clean men to office.
2. To respect the office, even when we cannot the incumbent.
3. By meeting out through the law prompt and full justice to corruptionists in office.
4. By stamping out lawlessness as soon as it commits overt acts of violence.

M. R. Deming, Sen., the father of this reverend, as it appears, was a Brigadier General in the Illinois State Militia, and we think was a sheriff, or an acting deputy sheriff of Hancock county Illinois, at the time of the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, in Carthage jail. Bro. Hoxie states that this Rev. M. R. Dering told him on one occasion that his father once had Joseph Smith imprisoned. If this was so it must have been at the time he was arrested and placed in jail prior to the murder. It is not anything to boast of, but we are not aware that Mr. Deming, senior, took any other part in that affair than might have been taken by any honorable officer striving to do his duty as a citizen, impartially towards all classes. The times were troublous, the county was full of excited and excitable men. It required steadiness of nerve and a strong sense of right to pursue the strict path of duty as a public officer in the county, and to do it impartially; and we certainly think that Mr. Deming tried to do his duty in fairness to the Saints and in regard to the people of the state whose officer he was. We wonder if this Rev. M. R. Deming, who discoursed as above, is the same Deming who aided and assisted Rev. Clark Braden in his Kirtland debate with Bro. Kelley? At all events, he pays Joseph and Hyrum Smith a tribute while ranking them with Abijah Lovejoy, and calls their betrayal and death "foul treachery;" and hits the officers of the state a hard blow when he says that "both Smith and Lovejoy were murdered with he connivance of the officers of the law." It seems meet that the sons of some of the men outside of the church who were the contemporaries of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, should at last speak out in condemnation of the deed and tell the truth concerning them who did it. It is possible that not one of the one hundred and fifty or two hundred men who made up the mob that murdered Joseph and Hyrum Smith, on that memorable 27th of June forty-three and a half years ago, is now living. If there should be, and he should be permitted to see this scathing denunciation of mob violence, and comprehend what Rev. Deming means when he says that what followed was a logical result of the failure on the part of the state officers to enforce the law and protect citizens in enjoyment of their rights to safety, peace and happiness, it must be very bitter. We have never defended, nor condoned the Mountain Meadow massacre. It was a most dastardly and heinous crime. Those who were guilty of it, either as participants, or aiders or abettors of it deserve not only the supreme penalty at the hands of their fellow men, but condign punishment as well. We can see, however, that one of the results almost sure to follow the inhuman killing of those two men while trusting the promise of the chief executive of the state for protection and a fair trial on charges made against them and which were then pending, would be the loss of confidence in human promises and executive methods; and in many beget a desire for vengeance. It is human to think that measures of wrong meted to men must, sooner or later, be measured to the wrong doers, in harmony with the saying, "Whatsoever measure ye mete unto others shall be meted to you again." This sentiment would make it easy for many of those who were with Joseph and Hyrum Smith, and who regarded them as good men, to cherish resentment against their persecutors, which is but a slight remove from revenge. It is said that some of those who were slain in that cruel Mountain Meadow massacre, boasted while in the Mormon settlements in Utah, of being among those who helped to drive "the Mormons out of Missouri." Whether the boast was true, or the result of bravado, it was a foolish boast, and could only serve to revive what spirit of resentment had been cherished, and made the bloodshed possible.

We lived in Hancock county long after the church was driven out from there, and we know something of the methods employed by those who, if not active participants in the driving, approved of it because they disliked the Saints, by which they tantalized those who were helplessly in their power; and while we can now look back without feeling of ill, or resentment, we cannot forget the irksome and sometimes cruel discipline by which all desire to see punishment visited upon the wrong doers was taken from us. We did learn that it was ignoble to cherish resentment, and that revenge could have no place in the heart of a man who desired to be at peace with God and man; and that no matter what may have been the hard circumstances attendant upon the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, they were, like all other men, in the hands of a just God, who would neither forget them, nor those who murdered them. Forty-three years of thought upon that time and scene have helped us to a better feeling toward those who made us fatherless, and we can now feel only pity for those who must invariably pay the penalty of their crime, at the bar of a tribunal whose judge makes no mistakes, and whose decrees do not require the admixture of human weakness and folly in those who execute them, and in whose executors there is no feeling of revenge. "Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord; I will repay."

God has commanded the Latter-Day-Saints to forgive all men, and has reserved to himself the right to administer in the final arbitrament of wrong doing, where human tribunals neglect, or fail to redress the innocent of injuries inflicted upon them by intolerance and malice. As an individual we have long since forgiven any wrong done to us in the murder of Joseph Smith, and are content to abide whatever may be the result of the adjudication in the courts on high.

It is meet that Illinois, whose soil is wet with the blood of Joseph and Hyrum Smith and Abijah Lovejoy who were murdered because of their devotion to principle, should be the first to punish with strong hand the men who would make mob violence and anarchy the rule of government instead of the principles under which good men might be put in office who would enforce the law protecting the weak against the strong, the good against the wicked in society.

Mr. Deming has made a mistake when he states that the occurrence which he deplores "filled the Mormons with hatred to State and National laws and set them to murdering innocent people for revenge." Mormons learned to distrust men in charge of State and National laws as executors; for in all the contests made against them by mobs, they were not protected, nor even permitted to defend themselves, with State and National sanction. They learned that they could place no confidence in public probity; and this distrust has been construed into hate. Had the Government defended them against lawless violence, the mass would have been submissive and law abiding; but laws that were not enforced either for them or against them, but were made convenient excuses for those who chose to proceed against them unlawfully, could neither create respect nor inspire fear.

The true followers of Joseph Smith were true followers of Jesus Christ, and were submissive to law in the light of the command to "render to Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's; and to God the things which are his." There was no room in the ethics of the philosophy taught by Joseph Smith for the sin of rebellion; and loyalty to God was necessarily loyalty to the laws of the land, under which the pre-millennial work of the gospel was to be done. Morally there could be no revenge for wrongs done the 'disciple against which the law would not protect him, or furnish a remedy when injury was inflicted. They were commanded to be wise, and malice is the vice of fools and revenge the crime of the vicious. Not one of those who felt the loss of a beloved leader in the death of Joseph Smith who cherished the hope of heaven and the reward of the righteous could afford to suffer himself to be blinded morally and spiritually by the folly and madness of revenge. The souls under the altar may cry "How long, oh Lord;" but those left on earth who might be of them who would be slain could only "wait and watch and pray," lifting always a standard of peace unto those who harmed and despitely used them.

Patience, brethren, let no feeling of ill will, or desire for revenge mar the spiritual peace you may as disciples of the Master fully enjoy.

FROM the letter of Mr. J. K. Sheen, we are reminded that we made a mistake in regard to the time Elder Isaac Sheen united with the old church. The mistake was an unnecessary one, as we had the record in the Secretary's office, but gave the date from memory, as we thought we remembered Bro. Sheen's statement. He united with the old church in August, 1840, as appears on our records.

Mr. J. K. Sheen is the son of Elder Isaac Sheen, and may be correct in regard to the Post having been a Philadelphia paper instead of a Cincinnati one; our mistake arose from the fact that Elder Sheen lived at Cincinnati, and we supposed he wrote for local papers.

We have not to our knowledge ever seen the statement of any other person than Pres. Brigham Young, concerning the burning of the so-called revelation on polygamy, dating prior to August 29th, 1852, and hence wrote as we did; and we are now of the same opinion still, that Elder Isaac Sheen knew personally nothing about it.

In the conference of the Reorganized Church, held at Amboy, Illinois, June 10th and 12th, 1859, a letter from Isaac Sheen, dated May 29th, 1859, was read; and on motion, W. W. Blair was appointed to correspond with Elder Sheen. At the October conference of the same year held at I. L. Rogers' and lasting from the 6th to the 10th of the month, Elder Isaac Sheen was present and addressed the conference in the afternoon of the 8th. This was his first connection and association with the Reorganization. On October 9th Elder Sheen, then residing at Cincinnati, was chosen by the committee on publication, Elders Z. H. Gurley, Wm. Marks Sen, and Wm. W. Blair, to edit a monthly paper, to be published in the interest of church. In the minutes noting this appointment is the following: "the contents to be sent to the address of W. W. Blair, Amboy, Illinois, in order that the committee may examine and approve or disapprove the same." These conference minutes are in the handwriting of Elder I. Sheen, and are certified to by him as being copied from the original by Isaac Sheen, Recorder.

Elder Blair requests us to state that he is prepared to answer any proper question that may be asked of him.

We are not cognizant of any private interests to guard, or personal iniquity to cover up in the history of the Reorganization, and we are certainly impressed that any attempt to suppress the truth, or to purposely mislead the people must meet with detection and disaster, sooner or later; and hence are willing to correct an error when conscious that one is made. The Reorganization is not responsible for the actions or sayings of those connected with it during the interval between the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith and the reorganization effected in 1851-2 and the uniting of such persons with the Reorganized Church, whenever that may have occurred; and only then when such persons act within the limits of the powers and responsibilities conferred by the church in an official capacity. If an elder transcends the limits of the authority conferred by the church, he can not bind the church by his act. Many men say that they "love the truth;" but not too many can say that they love (ardently moved with affection toward) that truth, or those truths which may be opposed to them, their theories, or their acts. The elders of the Reorganized Church, however, ought not to be foolish enough to think that however much they may evade the truth for the time being, they shall not be under necessity to meet it sooner, or later.

BRO. THOMAS SMITH, of Sinnett's Mills, West Virginia, wrote us December 14th that Bro. L. R. Devore and himself had been to Oak Grove holding services, where Bro. Devore preached nine discourses to very attentive listeners and was treated well. But when they had held services at Sinnett's Mills twice on Sunday, December 11th, the school-house was closed against them by the authority of the trustees. On the 13th Bro. Devore started for Big Springs.

Jesus said to his disciples in olden times, "When they persecute you in one city, flee to another." And happy is that minister who, being rejected and persecuted, can say with St Paul, "Being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it; being defamed, we entreat; we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day." 1 Cor. 4: 12, 13. The Master has said, "The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also."—John 15: 20. Persecution "for righteousness sake," is, as John Wesley said, "the badge of Christianity."

Times of persecution afford excellent opportunities to exemplify the power of Christian doctrine and the beauty of holiness in Christ Jesus. Then it is that the disciple should let his light shine in the midst of the spiritual and moral darkness with which he is surrounded. The contrast between the two will be so strong and well defined that all may see, except, possibly, those whom "the god of this world hath blinded."—2 Cor. 4:4. When the faithful soldier is beset by a cunning foe, or placed under the deadly fire of an enemy, then it is that his patriotism, fidelity, and valor win for him renown and make him beloved of his king and countrymen. Paul said, "I rejoice in tribulation." So may his fellow-servants now.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. W. M. Rumel has lately met two of the elders of the Utah Church, and of them he wrote from Fremont, Nebraska:

"Two of them called on me last Sunday; I had five hours' talk with them. They said they had nothing to do with polygamy; that they were instructed to not teach it, and to have nothing to say about it, whatever; that they were to teach the gospel of the New Testament only, that that was enough to save people. That is their instructions, so they informed me. How is that for reform?"

Bro. R. C. Evans, writing from Vanessa, Ontario, December 12th, speaks highly of the treatment he received at that place and says:

"I am preaching nearly every night, and have full congregations as a rule. The call comes from all quarters 'Come over and preach for us.' I have opened up in a place called Lindville, and the Baptists have kindly given us the use of their church. It is full every night we preach there. There is much excitement, and many are in favor of hearing us. Some of the 'pharisees,' who think they have nothing more to learn, are trying to close the church against us, but thus far we hold the fort. * * * Our little church here, (Vanessa), was full at both services yesterday. We look for a good time here soon. We have the chief people of the place on our side, both for character, intellect and wealth. We sometimes feel very tired when bedtimes comes—sometimes too tired to rest when we get to bed. Oh, how glad I would be if we could labor two and two!"

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Bro. R. M. Elvin left Lamoni for a ministerial tour in the Rocky Mountain Mission December 13th, and will make his headquarters in Salt Lake City for the present and probably till next April. We bespeak for him the kindly consideration and timely aid of the Saints and the friends in Utah. We commend him as a reliable, spiritual, competent minister of the gospel and feel confident his labors in that field will tell largely for good.

Bro. J. W. Wight has been having a discussion at Richland, Dakota, with a minister of the M. E. Church, the debate lasting some two or three weeks; infant baptism being the central point of the issue.

Bro. G. R. Scogin wrote from Beridale, Florida, December 10th, 1887. He was just starting upon his winter's campaign. He baptized one the third Sunday in October, and three November 23d. He reports the district as in fair condition; branches doing fairly and many calls from without. He was to preach in Pleasant View on the 11th, and then would be off on his route. He felt well in the work.

Bro. W. H. Griffin writes from Fulton, Kentucky, and requests the prayers of the Saints for his restoration to health. He says he has been suffering for the past twelve weeks so that he has done no preaching in that time, which he regrets.

Bro. J. C. Clapp writes from Farmington, Graves county, Kentucky, of late, that "the gospel ship is sailing along nicely" where he is laboring, although his health is not first rate.

Bro. P. C. Fischer, of Dayton, Dakota, under date of December 10th, wrote that he had received a pamphlet written by W. P. Brown, and curtly remarks that the tendency of Mr. Brown's work is to destroy the latter day work root and branch, by his effort to elevate himself. Bro. Fischer thinks Mr. Brown will fail, miserably, in both of his purposes.

THE San Francisco (California) Chronicle for November 21st has the following:

"An unusually large congregation listened to Judge H. P. Brown's lecture on the difference between the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints and the Church of Utah, delivered at the hall of the Reorganized Church, 71 New Montgomery street, last night. Among those present was Miss Kate Field, whose own lecture upon Mormonism entitles her to be considered a specialist upon that subject. After a prayer by the elder, and the singing of several hymns, Mr. Brown was introduced and said that he would not enter into the controversy as to whether or not Joseph Smith was really a prophet—that did not enter in the range of his subject, and he would take it for granted. The Christian religion and that of the Latter Day Saints were virtually the same—in the latter God being one point in an equilateral triangle, and in the former one in the Trinity. This sacred number of three was also found in many things in both religions.

Mr. Brown attacked Brigham Young's position as President of the Church, as well as his character as a man. In reference to the Presidency of the Church of Latter Day Saints, he said that Brigham Young had been elected by the twelve apostles President, seer and prophet—an office which they had no shadow of authority to take upon themselves to fill. The revelations through Joseph Smith said that the Presidency should descend to his posterity—that is to say, to young Joseph Smith, the present President of the Reorganized Church. As the President appoints the apostles and the council of seventy, too, inasmuch as Brigham Young, according to the revelations of Joseph Smith, could not have legally been President, the whole fabric of the Church of Utah falls to the ground, being illegal from the first step. The Presidency never vested in any other hands than those of the posterity of Joseph Smith—that is, in the hands of Joseph Smith Jr., who is the only real head of the Mormon Church. The true Church has been decided by a court of law (the Court of Appeals, State of Ohio, February 23d, 1880.) to be the Reorganized Church.

Brigham Young was denounced as an adventurer, and his career touched upon at length. It has been said that Brigham Young made large sacrifices in joining the Mormons. That is untrue. Brigham Young was a Giffordite, that is, a follower of an old farmer named Gifford, who had imagined that by living as the prophets lived would restore man to the godly condition of those times. Gifford had accordingly invited Young and a lot of idlers to his farm, with the result that he was eaten out of house and home in two years. Then Brigham, looking for something new, joined the Mormon Church at Kirtland. Then, step by step, he forced himself forward until finally he became, illegally, however, the head of the Church after the death of Joseph Smith. Some people suppose that when the Mormons left Nauvoo they went directly to Utah. They had no such intention. Brigham had intended to come to California, and there is a Mormon hymn extant showing that. They had intended to overthrow the Mexican Government in California and establish an hierarchy, which scheme, however, was frustrated by the Mexican war.

The hostility of the Church of Utah to the Government of the United States was another point of difference between the Reorganized Church and that of Utah. There is nothing in the Book of Mormon nor in the Book of Doctrines and Covenants to warrant such a position on the part of the hierarchy of Utah. On the contrary, the revelations say that the founders of the Constitution of the United States were just as much inspired of God as the Latter Day Saints. It is the law of God that the law of the land is to be obeyed, and were any man to violate the United States law he is no longer a Mormon—he has lost the spirit and abandoned the faith. When Congress passes a law against polygamy, it does not pass a law against Mormonism, but against the wicked men and lecherous devils who have corrupted the faith. In his revelation God says to Joseph Smith, 'Let no man break the law of the land.' Polygamy is against the law of the land. The law of the land is God's law, and therefore polygamists break the law of God.

The speaker gave a long and eloquent denunciation of polygamy, proclaiming the alleged revelation in regard to celestial marriages as a forgery, a lie and a fraud. John Taylor had first denounced it, but had changed his course later. Joseph Smith, to whom it had been claimed the revelation was made, had always opposed polygamy. In condemning polygamy, shortly after Joseph Smith's death, John Taylor had said: 'The laws of the Church and the laws of God allow but one wife to one man.' Brigham Young's story of how the so-called revelation had come into his possession was itself suspicious, having been, he said, originally given into the hands of William Clayton, an avowed polygamist against the rulings of Joseph Smith during the great prophet's lifetime, a 'copy' having then been made by Bishop Whitney and the original given to Sister Emma. Bishop Whitney had been denounced by a revelation of God, and Sister Emma says she never saw the original and does not believe it ever existed. The speaker gave many dates and authorities, proving his statements conclusively.

In concluding his address Mr. Brown told of what a struggle it had been to secure recognition from the world for the Reorganized Church as one loyal to the Government of the United States. Now, however, the work has begun to spread and the good effect of the Reorganized Church is felt. Why? Because they have lived up to the laws of the land and condemned the infamous practice of polygamy. There are good people in Utah, but they are kept down by the polygamists. He hoped that the Church would soon succeed in getting sufficient support to help the Government of the United States in Utah."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Did Jesus eat a supper with his disciples before partaking of bread and wine?

Ans.—Yes. See Luke 22:20. The supper here alluded to was no doubt the passover; and yet some of the apostles speak of the partaking of bread and wine as a supper also. See John 13:2, 4. Paul in 1 Cor. 10:16-21, and 11:20-34 as found in the Inspired Translation, treats of the partaking of bread and wine as "the Lord's Supper," which was to be observed by all worthy Christians after Christ's death and "till he come." The last passover feast, or supper, was followed by partaking of bread and wine, and occurring at the same time, both are reckoned by some to be one supper, or, two suppers in one, the latter commanded to be perpetuated among and by the Christians. See Matt. 26:17-30, in which it is shown that the giving of the bread and wine occurred at the end of the passover "feast"—supper. This is confirmed by Mark 14:12-26; Luke 22:7-20; and John 21:20, with John 13:4-25. The passover feast, or "supper," ceased at the cross; but the "Lord's Supper," which commemorates the offering of Christ's perfect sacrifice upon the cross, and likewise points forward to the triumphant coming of Christ with "many crowns," is "the communion," "the Lord's table," that all worthy Christians are enjoined to observe "till he come." 1 Cor. 10:16, 21; with 11:20-29.

Q.—Why are not italicised—supplied—words found in the Inspired Translation?

A.—Only certain parts of the Common Version—King James'—were translated entire, among them the first twenty-six chapters of Genesis, the last chapter of Genesis, the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the books of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and the first five chapters of John. Besides this, other parts of the Bible were revised and corrected by taking out and adding words, clauses, sentences or verses, where found essential in respect to history, doctrine, or prophecy, the purpose seeming to be to make those Scriptures plain, and place them within easy comprehension of the English speaking peoples of these times. And the supplied words in the Common Version being the best its translators could furnish, were by the publishers of the Inspired Translation run into the text of the version in the same kind of type as that of the body of the text.

Q.—How many dispensations has the world passed through, and at what points do we locate their beginning and ending?

A.—We understand that the world has passed through four general dispensations, is now passing through the fifth, it being the last dispensation prior to the ushering in of the Millennial age and the personal reign of Christ, which is to begin with the beginning of the seventh thousand years. The present one is "the eleventh hour," and last gospel dispensation, (Matt. 20:6, with Doc. Cov. 27:3; 32:1; Book Mormon—Jacob 4:1; and Doc. Cov. 106:12), and is to be followed by a dispensation of judgment and glory under the personal reign and administration of Christ and the Church of the first born, during which also the gospel in its fulness will continue to be administered. This matter should be studied in the light of Revelation, chapters 5 to 11, Doc. Cov. 85:24 to 35; also the "Key to the Revelations of St. John" in concordance of Book of Covenants and in HERALD for October 8th, 1887. The first dispensation began with Adam, to whom was given the dominion of the created world and the administration of the gospel. The second dispensation began with Noah, to whom was given a dispensation for the saving of a remnant of all living creatures, seeds, etc., also the administration of the gospel, the replenishing the earth as at first, and with the human family after the pre-ordained order of God. The third dispensation was committed to Moses, which embraced the deliverance of God's chosen nation, Israel, from Egypt, also the administration of the gospel, to which was added the law given at Sinai, and an inheritance in the land of Canaan. The fourth dispensation was committed to John the Baptist and Jesus—the former preparing the way of the latter by preaching the gospel and administering in some of its ordinances—this dispensation to terminate the law, demonstrate the resurrection of the dead, and to extend the gospel privileges to all nations, kindred, tongues and people. The fifth dispensation was committed to Joseph the Seer and his fellows, and embraces the restoration of the gospel and its priesthood by angelic ministration, the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, the proclamation of the restoration of Israel and Judah, the overthrow of mystery Babylon and the hour of God's judgment. The sixth dispensation embraces the second and glorious advent of Christ, also his personal and universal reign over all the earth, the speedy resurrection of the just and the translation of living Saints, the redemption of the heathen nations and those who have died without law, the renovation, beautifying and progression of our earth, the overthrow of Gentilism and all manner of abomination, the triumph and perpetual prevalence of the kingdom of God—and all this as set forth by the Savior and by ancient and modern prophets. In the fifth dispensation there is and is to be blended all the keys and powers and priesthood, and spiritual and temporal excellences found in all the preceding dispensations, and much more. The seventh dispensation is to embrace the finishing of Christ's redemptive work, the closing of the Millennial age, the introduction of the general judgment, the creation of a new heavens and a new earth and bringing them up into Celestial glory—the full and final glory and perfection of the church of the first born—where God and Christ are, the Saints to reign and rule and glorify God and his Christ and enjoy them and their works forever and forever.

The five dispensations in which a ministry are to be specially called to introduce and carry forward the work of the Lord in building up his kingdom, are set forth in the teachings of Jesus as follows:

"For the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, which went out early in the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard. And when he had agreed with the laborers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard. And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market place, and said unto them: go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you. And they went their way. Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise. And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle? They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive."—Matt. 20:1-7.

Bear in mind that the present is "the eleventh hour" dispensation as set forth by revelation given in October, 1830:

"For verily, verily I say unto you, that ye are called to lift up your voices as with the sound of a trumpet, to declare my gospel unto a crooked and a perverse generation: for behold the field is white already to harvest; and it is the eleventh hour, and for the last time that I shall call laborers into my vineyard. And my vineyard has become corrupted every whit; and there is none which doeth good save it be a few; and they err in many instances, because of priestcrafts, all having corrupt minds."—D. C. 32:1.

Ezekiel in vision saw "as it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel," and so we may see within the seven general dispensations under consideration other, but lesser, cognate and allied dispensations such as those committed to Enoch, to Melchisedec, to Abraham, to Joseph, to David and Solomon, to Ezra and Nehemiah, to Jeremiah, to Jesus and John the Baptist, to Paul and Barnabas, to John the Revelator, to Lehi and Nephi, to Mormon and Moroni, to Joseph the Seer, &c., &c.

Such are our views in brief, relative to the dispensations committed and to be committed of God to man in the different ages of the world, past, present, and future. We want the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, touching these matters.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The world sits at the feet of Christ,
Unknowing, blind and unconsoled;
It yet shall touch his garment's fold,
And feel the heavenly Alchemist
Transform its very dust to gold."

THE PASSING YEAR.

FOR the second time since the "Home Column" was called into existence we are about to extend the parting hand to the old, and the smile of welcome to the new year. It is always a convenient time for retrospection, for the summing up of the various events contained in the record of the three hundred and sixty-five days, which are as the leaves of time added to the volume of eternity. To-night, however, our thoughts are led further back than this brief cycle, and the soul in its expansion reaches out beyond the thought of self and embraces in its far reaching stretch the world at large—our Father's great family; and in the light of the past and present glans from the harvest field stray sheaves left here and there by the reaper time, and binding them together, presents them for the consideration of all who are engaged in the glorious gospel work of the latter day.

In the editorial columns of a western paper there recently appeared what the editor intended should be considered a very fair criticism upon Mormonism, and the results growing out of its teachings upon its disciples, and he concludes this criticism in the following words: "Whatever else may be said of it, it certainly is not keeping pace with the steps of Christianity." Let us, as Saints, tonight pause and search diligently to see if indeed this is true. Firmer than the everlasting hills of granite is the foundation laid for the Saints of the most high God in the volume of his word. Straight is the gate and narrow is the way just at the entrance of the arena upon which the Christian conflicts begins. Patient continuance in well doing marks every milestone upon the road; and the grand landmarks, like lamps of blazing light to guide our feet in the one way, are two, and these two must agree—the law and the testimony. "The race is not always to the swift, neither the battle to the strong," and none will be crowned victors who have not striven lawfully.

Eighteen hundred years ago, Christ left upon the earth material for fully organizing his church, and after his departure (according to his promise), the Comforter was sent and the church organized. Time passed on, and in a few brief centuries there was left but a dead form of worship in the hands of a corrupt ministry, who denied the power of the gospel and held only to this dead form of godliness. Century after century rolled away, but the darkness only became more impenetrable, and Christianity (falsely so-called) became a monster more terrible than a wild beast of the forest. In her name was perpetrated crimes to make heaven and angels weep.

In the midst of this terrible darkness there broke upon the world the first faint rays of the coming morning, and with shouts of gladness men hailed the reformation of Martin Luther and those who followed him in this grand preparatory work. The reformation began about the year 1519, and from that time forward men of the most gigantic intellect, of education the most liberal and zeal unbounded, threw all their energies into the work of finding this straight gate opening into the narrow way of life and salvation, with what results we propose to briefly notice.

In the year 1830 the church of Jesus Christ was organized, and men having authority from God, were sent out to preach the gospel. To this gospel of the Son of God the world gave the name of Mormonism, and now claim that it is not keeping pace with the steps of Christianity. When the elders of the church first went forth bearing with them the seal of their authority, they found themselves arrayed against every creed, every form of doctrine held or practiced by the churches of the day calling themselves followers of Christ. Upon one hand were ministers telling their congregations, that "hell was paved with infants not a span long," condemned to the fires of endless torment that a just God might be gloried in the works of his creation; and while another minister would endeavor to refute this as not being compatible with the love and justice of God, they would both join hands most cordially in sending to everlasting punishment the heathen because they had not obeyed a gospel which they had never heard, or accepted a Savior whose existence was to them unknown. Mark it, this is the Christianity with the steps of which Mormonism is not keeping pace!

Again, God long ago made choice of a family who afterwards became a nation. To Abraham was the promise given that through this family all the nations of the earth should be blessed, and it was for this purpose that they were chosen. It had suited Christianity however to cast out the heirs of promise. The Jews were welcome to all the curses pronounced upon them, while the "wild olive" grafts would appropriate all the blessings; and Jerusalem, which was to be builded upon her own heap, they had transferred to realms beyond the bounds of time and space, saying virtually that God had failed to perform what he had sworn to do. This is another phase of the Christianity with the steps of which Mormonism is not keeping pace!

Again; honorable men of the earth, men who have been true in every sense to their social and domestic relations, loyal to their government, and ever mindful of the claims of humanity upon them as fellow beings, are by this same Christianity condemned to the endless torments of the same place prepared for the punishment of the vilest of the vile—men stained and steeped in guilt and crime, very fiends of wickedness, who by their acts have disgraced their kind. Here is the Christianity with which the steps of Mormonism are not keeping pace!

Again, with the recorded testimony of men, angels, and Christ himself to the contrary, they did not believe in his second coming; but above all, with infidelity challenging them upon every hand, they did not dare say, "He that doeth the Father's will shall know of the doctrine." Over three hundred years from the beginning of the reformation, and yet not one who dare declare to the scoffing world the parting promise of Christ, "These signs shall follow them that believe," though the scorner pressed them never so sore; and thus we find the Christianity with the steps of which Mormonism is not keeping pace.

(To be continued.)

HOME COLUMN MISSIONARY FUND.

Sr. Clara Craig, Columbus, Kan. ....	75
Sr. Mary Gillespie, Kirtland, O. ....	00
Sr. Christina Edwards, Deckerville, Mich. .	35
Sr. Anna Kemp, Tabor Iowa. ....	50
Sr. Less Lanning, Busby, Kan. ....	45
Sr. S. E. Outhwait and daughter, Cedar Rapids, Nebraska. ....	60
Sr. Belle Pickle and children, Antigo, Wis. .	00
Sr. Amy Dempster, Plano, Ills. ....	25
Sr. R. C. Wilcox, Milo, Kan. ....	50
Sr. Ida Putnam, Oakland, Cal. ....	00
Sr. Susan C. Lance, Harper, Mo. ....	50
Bro. Robert O. Booth, Lamoni, Iowa. ....	45
Sr. Lizzie Bergersen, Campus, Ill. ....	00
A sister, Boston, Mass. ....	25
Sr. E. W., Lamoni, Iowa. ....	50
Sr. Sarah A. Goss, Scottsville Ind. ....	25
A sister, Lorain, Ohio. ....	25
Sr. Isabelle Skinner, Grizzly Flats, Cal. . .	00
Annie Pankonin, Louisville, Neb. ....	50
Annie C. Anderson, Wirt, Iowa. ....	50
Joan Moses, Dawson, Iowa. ....	50

LAMONI, Iowa, December 14th.

MONTROSE, Iowa, Nov. 8th.

Dear Sister Frances:—My heart is in this work, and I try to do with my might whatever my hands find to do. I don't see that it is necessary that all should be teachers, for we can all teach by example in the little home circle, if no farther. I am one who thinks that "As the twig is bent the tree is inclined." If we teach our little ones the pure principles of the gospel while they are young and their hearts are tender, as their minds expand and they are capable of understanding more of the doctrine of Christ, they will learn to love the gospel for the gospel's sake, and not simply because father and mother believed it. It is time that all who love the appearing of our Lord should be about our Father's business, and be willing to sacrifice the vain things of this world, that we may the better be able to help roll on this glorious work that we profess to love. When I see and hear my brothers, and especially my sisters, saying, "Oh, I wish I could do something to help roll on this work; but the Lord does not require more of us than we can do, and I have nothing to give," and at the same time see them using that which the Lord says is not good for man (and I believe he meant woman as well as man), and indulging in all the luxuries, and in rare instances the follies and vanities of this world, I often wonder if the Lord intended that the elders and their families were to do all the sacrificing and then receive the same glory as those that never gave up a wish if they have the wherewith to gratify it? I think not; for the word teaches me we shall all be rewarded according to the deeds done in the body, and not alone for the desires we may have.

Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I am, in gospel bonds,

Your sister

RUTH A. TURNER.

MASS, VICTORIA, Australia,

September 20th.

Dear Home Column:—I feel it my duty, as well as a pleasure, to testify how greatly I have been benefitted since obeying the gospel as taught by the elders of Jesus Christ's church. My husband and I were baptized a short time ago by Bro. Burton; and although our lives have been happy together, the peace and joy we now experience is "unspeakable." Like a great many others, we were told all sorts of tales regarding Joseph Smith, some good and some bad; but we could not condemn Joseph Smith, for we knew not whether we heard truth or falsehood. One thing we did know, that the gospel was preached more fully by Elder Burton than we ever heard before; so we obeyed. Soon after the laying on of hands, the Spirit revealed to us that Joseph Smith was a prophet; also that the Book of Mormon was true, (we had not then read it). We have not now the slightest doubt in our minds regarding either. I wish I could tell to all the world the happy, peaceful feeling I have had these three months. Peace, I have all my life longed for; and have, so often! prayed God would "lead me in his way of truth, and show me his salvation." After baptism and the laying on of hands, for a week I could scarcely eat or sleep. My only want seemed to be for more righteousness. With wishes that we ever be faithful.

In gospel bonds,

Sister ISABELLA EMMERSON.

QUEENSFERRY, Australia, Oct. 28th.

Dear Sisters:—I assure you it is a joyful day for us when the American mail arrives. It is hard to tell whether we are most anxious to hear from our dear children and friends, or our beloved Zion. You each know how eagerly you look forward for your Heralds and Hopes even when you get them every week; now imagine four weeks of entire silence, and then think what a feast they would be to you. I have no words to express my appreciation of them, or the benefit derived from them, imparting as they do such spiritual food that strengthens and cheers us in our onward march over the rugged paths that leads to the eternal city.

We rejoice in the rapid progress of the work in the far off home land; that darkness and error are fast giving way before the light of gospel truth, and that many sheaves are being gathered in. With each new number comes new thoughts also, showing a continual increase of wisdom and knowledge.

It has been truly said by more than one, that the Herald contains the best reading matter of any periodical in the world. While we rejoice that it is so, I also realize that it is just as it should be; for is there another organized body on earth whose head is Christ? and to whom the channel of communication between heaven and earth is open in the same manner? Not only that each individual may draw from the source of all wisdom according to his need, but more than that, Christ being the head, supervises the whole body and will prompt those who hold positions of trust and responsibility to give the timely admonition, instruction or warning.

Though all may not have been called by immediate revelation to fill those positions, their being chosen by those who were, constitutes them Christ's acknowledged channels; and from the very fact that the "Home Column" has been as sister Ida Layton wrote me, "like a mirror in which we saw our faults reflected, as well as the instruction we most needed," is testimony that it is recognized of the Lord; and he seeing the work for which it was assigned, and knowing the needs of all, is it any thing strange that those for whom this department was calculated should find therein just what is most needed? No; that should not be strange to us, but ought rather to be strange if we lost sight of that fact and thereby failed to receive the benefit which the Supreme Director placed in our way to receive.

If this is true of the lesser channels through which Christ operates, how much more so of the greater?

How gloriously this work might roll on if we always kept the thought before us, that, Christ is the living head of the church. We all profess to believe this; yea, even to know that this is the work of God; then let us look well at the above sentence, "Christ the living head." If he is, is he not acting in that capacity? and if so, will he ever fail to direct the affairs of his kingdom rightly? If we all acted upon this knowledge, what unbounded confidence we would have in all the acts of the officers that Christ has set in his church! What a tower of strength it would be to many in the trying reasons through which the church has to pass! And yet this would not be putting our trust in man, but in Christ, as efficiently filling the office he holds. "God works in a mysterious way" to bring about his purposes, and these mysterious ways often cause alarm because not understood by all; and the friendly voice saying, "It is I, be not afraid," is not recognized till after the storm has passed. Still we as a body confess ourselves to be yet imperfect—not altogether come to a knowledge of the truth, as it is in Christ Jesus—therefore we not only need all the helps that God has set in the church for the purpose of bringing about this knowledge, but are liable to be brought in contact with much that we do not understand, or with thoughts and opinions that differ from our own, or even some things that we might feel that we could have got along better without. But because such was not beneficial to me, am I to say it ought not to be? If I did would it not be equivalent to saying Christ has given up the oversight of his church? Should I not rather remember that there are many members in the body, and that each one differs from the other, and that every other member must receive their portion as well as I; and when I find that which I may not appreciate, or what might grieve me, know of a surety that it is for the benefit of some one, or for a wise purpose, so long as Christ is the head of the church.

Who does not have perfect confidence that a general will direct and control all who are under him on the field of battle? and should we repose more confidence in man than in the great captain of our salvation? Would he be less vigilant than man? Let us cast our doubts and fears to the wind, and move forward with a faith consistent with our profession; then, though darkness and tempest be round about us, above all we will hear the cheering words, "It is I, be not afraid."

SISTER EMMA.

BASS, Western Port,

Victoria, Australia, Oct. 16th.

Dear Home Column.—What an amount of good we derive from the sisters' letters. Those of us who are scattered and have not the privilege of hearing the elders preach can get quite a "feast" from the "Home Column." As I have not the advantage of going to meeting, sometimes I feel that I should like very much to go, then I take a Herald instead; and it makes no difference how often I have read it before, it always seems new and refreshing. The more I read them the more I love them. What a glorious work this latter day work is! How thankful we feel and how privileged we feel for ever hearing and obeying the gospel in this far away part of the Lord's vineyard, (the fullness of the gospel). We may have crosses and trials, they are as nothing compared to the hope which is within us. Every day I try and be more faithful. And I pray I may never bring reproach upon this church of Jesus Christ for I know it is true. Dear sisters, let us keep our lamps trimmed and burning. Let our light shine so others seeing our good works may glorify our Father in heaven. We in Australia are just over a very wet winter, and to me never has a spring seemed so bright, nor have Sabbath days ever had such a charm. We are expecting to see brother and sister Burton here very soon, and need I say how welcome they are? Saints can understand the union of spirits. Bro. Burton is kept so busy we do not see him as often as we would like to. And sister Burton finds time to write us good encouraging letters. It seems too much to expect of her; but the letters are so good we cannot help feeling selfish. We are looking forward with gladness to Bro. and Sr. T. W. Smith's arrival. May God help us all to keep faithful and do all that he has commanded us.

SISTER ISABELL.

Happiness depends far less upon the external circumstances that surround us than it does upon the condition of our own minds. The main sources thereof are within us, and not without. Many a man is happier in his poverty than a king on his throne, or a millionaire in all his luxury. It is a great mistake to judge of the comparative happiness of men by the difference in their outward condition.

Epicurus says "gratitude is a virtue that has commonly profit annexed to it." And where is the virtue, say I, that has not? But still the virtue is to be valued for itself, and not for the profit that attends it.

Correspondence.

HORNING'S MILLS, Ont., Dec. 12th.

Brother Joseph.—I herewith send you a clipping from the "Canadian Live-Stock and Farm Journal" for November, 1887, entitled "Who did Sin." It is only one of the many hundreds of similar cases where the fair sons and daughters of earth are doomed to suffer, in consequence of the direful bane of intemperance. When reading this piece, my heart was led out in tender sympathy towards the care-worn, grief-stricken wives and children of those inhumane wretches who daily spend their scanty earnings for this "fire-water" of his Satanic Majesty, leaving home—wife and children—bowed down with earth's care and gloom, dragging out a miserable existence, with little clothing to warm their body or bread to satisfy their hunger. O! my heart yearns for such; and for their deliverance methinks every elder of "latter day Israel" should lift their voice, and work with their might until the accursed hydra-headed monster, Intemperance, is banished from the homes of America's sons of toil. But some will say, "Prohibition! prohibition! No, no; a compulsory reformation is of no merit to those who daily crave the stimulus of Alcoholic beverages." While this, possibly may be true in regard to the drunken sot, yet would it not benefit his family, as well as society at large? Would those heart-pangs in American homes, caused by the inhuman acts of the inebriate, still exist? Would the disgrace of a drunken father still cluster around the soul, blasting the hopes and withering the minds of the young? Let each one answer, and then ask themselves the question, How can I pray "Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven," and then go to the "polls" and vote to uphold and sustain the liquor traffic!

WILLARD J. SMITH.

O, THE SHAME OF IT!

At a meeting of the Womans' Christian Temperance Union, in Plano a few evenings ago, the gentleman who addressed the large and appreciative audience took for his subject: "Thy slain men are not slain with the sword nor dead in battle" and "O the shame of it!" He eloquently portrayed the noble sacrifices made by our brave boys in blue who left all the endearments of home and friends to fight for the honor of the stars and stripes to whose memory we rightly pay tribute and with grateful hearts scatter fragrant flowers o'er their honored graves; and then in contrast he presented the dark and woeful spectacle of the wretched home, the stricken hearts, the drunkard's miserable life, it beginning and its end; and "O, the Shame of it!"

The speaker, evidently believes in trying to lift up his fellowmen degraded by the intoxicating cup to a sober life. Among the many important themes that ought to interest everyone is the relation of the liquor and tobacco traffic to women and home; and we remember that Bro. Joseph stated at a temperance meeting a few years ago that the tobacco evil is as much to be avoided as the liquor; and we are glad that he dares to be among the number to strike with the broadaxe of truth strong, vigorous blows into the roots of the tree Intemperance, "that has been nursed and protected till its poisonous and vile branches, alcohol and tobacco, now spread all over our beautiful land of America." To those who believe in keeping the word of wisdom it is a sad sight to see young Saints defiling themselves with these evils; and a sadder one to witness them among the older ones who profess to know better. It has been discovered that cigarette smoking is very dangerous. A boy of eleven years died lately in Chicago after using the weed about ten months. He had been forbidden the use of tobacco but he managed to smoke a half dozen cigarettes almost daily and one day while playing with his companions he became dizzy, fell to the pavement and shortly afterward expired.

A day or two ago a Mr. Lyman was found insane by a jury and his insanity declared by physicians to have been superinduced by excessive smoking. Even ministers as well as lay members are victims to this much dreaded habit. But we have reasons to be thankful that Temperance has its strong advocates and the names of such men as Dr Haddock and Col. Blackford who with their armor on lately lost their lives while they were engaged in this reform, will be remembered with honor and respect; but their enemies who now declare that when Christ turned water into wine at the marriage feast, he set the seal of approval on its use (?) by so doing, and avow that the time has come when their personal liberty is invaded and the sacrament can not be observed without a permit from the board of supervisors!—the names of these men will be forgotten, or mentioned only with shame and contempt.

We are pleased to read in the Herald that the conclusion of the writer of "Shall the Saints Vote?" is that they may and should vote intelligently for the best measures and the best men. A worn-out sophism is "You can not legislate men into sound morality."

A sister asks, "How can any one spend money for wine or strong drink or tobacco and say, 'I have nothing to pay into the Lord's treasury?'" Were there no urgent calls for material aid in church work, or charitable work at home, the money spent so freely by some for liquor and tobacco might be better applied by sending corn to the starving Lamanites in Arizona who are now suffering in hunger and destitution and driven to despair and crime, or to the millions of Chinese who are at this present time homeless and starving in consequence of the awful floods and destruction of their cities. "Bread! bread!" is their cry, while in the bitter cold weather they hover together stunned, hungry, and dejected, "without a rag to wear, or a morsel of food."

Some of our statesmen would encourage the general use of tobacco so heartily as to urge that the tax upon it be repealed at once, even before the Christmas holidays, as it would materially lessen the price of the article to consumers, and they say tobacco to millions of men is both a luxury and necessity!

It was published lately that of the $10,000 Congress appropriated to entertain the late international Medical Congress in Washington $6,000, is said to have been spent for liquor. But Dr. Talmage says that "the meanest thing for a man to do is to discourse about an evil without pointing a way to have it remedied;" and as Saints is not this a good remedy for these evils if they exist among us,—to encourage by our influence and example a life in accordance with the principles of the gospel as contained in the Bible, the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants. Another good remedy is to vote as we pray.

When hearing not long since concerning one of our sisters whose desire was to lift up her voice in behalf of fallen humanity and to aid in the temperance work, but was prevented from so doing, we felt that her efforts were unappreciated; but we ought not to be discouraged, but humbly to toil on and contend earnestly, and we shall surely win at the end of the race. Some were quite indignant in this instance but their indignation did not reach that of the Barnstable Mayor and Corporation who on "Mayor's Sunday," being denied the honor of the Vicar's company on going to church, and of being saluted with the national anthem by the organist, passed a vote of censure on the Vicar and called him by "bad names."

Truly, the gospel is all powerful to save; but so long as in our churches throughout the land we find many of our fellow travellers so unfortunate as to be the pitiable objects of the temperance workers' help and solicitude, how can we look with indifference upon their worthy labors and close our doors against them.

"The hosts of war are come,
Ye temperance soldiers arm.
To meet and conquer old King Rum;
Ring out the loud alarm!

King Rum is on the watch,
His legions pushing on;
And active in the onward march
Is Colonel Demi-John.

To meet them on the way
And beat the advancing foe,
We'll keep in front of our array
Our gallant Captain, No!

We'll draw the sword of faith,
Our General's Truth and Right,
We'll stoutly guard our every path
And win the glorious fight.

And when the fight is won
Our armor we'll lay by;
And give the praise of victory
To Him who reigns on high."

Impromptu lines by Joseph Smith and sung by the Saints' Choir at a Womens' Christian Temperance Union meeting in Plano. Tune, "Haras."
ABBIE A. HORTON.

HORNING'S MILLS, Ont. Dec. 13th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I have been and am as active as usual, which is all the time. Have made a new opening of late and had a young priest with me to whom I left the baptizing of five on the 5th inst., and while in that region we preached in a radius of twelve miles, in different places, using school and private houses with good and increasing interest. I expect to learn of more being baptized in due time. Bro. W. J. Smith will go there in a few days. I go to make other new openings and let them follow up and keep the work moving along. I have often been under numerous and urgent invitations since I have been in the field during the past ten years, but I never saw or heard such demands as at the present time. Of course we have the usual amount of opposition, but we take that as a matter of course. The greatest opposition comes from the misunderstanding of the people in regard to the difference between Brighamism and the Church of Jesus Christ. The Book of Mormon is well received wherever I have yet presented it. I always feel exceeding liberty when presenting it, and the gladness of heart and light with the liberty, is to me an evidence of its divinity. I am feeling exceedingly well in spirit and in bodily health, and hope that you and Bro. Joseph, with all of God's servants, may be granted strength for the work of the Lord.

Yours in the bonds of the gospel,
J. A. MCINTOSH.

CLEVELAND, IOWA, Dec. 17th.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—I pen a few lines to let you know how the church is getting along here. Your preaching and that of Joseph has had good effect upon the people. The Saints are strengthened in the work of God. If time will permit Bro. Joseph to call here on his way west, we would like to have him stay with us a day or two, and the world's people want to hear him preach. Isaac Phillips and Thos. W. Williams will be ordained priests to-morrow. They are promising men, and I think both will make good workers in the church.

Yours,
JNO. WATKINS.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 12th.

Bro. Joseph: It fills my heart with gladness to read the testimonies from my brethren in the Herald, and with permission I will add one in which the power of God was made manifest in my behalf. During the winter of 1884 I attended some lectures delivered by brothers J. A. McIntosh and R. C. Evans. It was my first visit to the L. D. S. Church, and the result was that on the 24th of April, 1884, my daughter and I were led into the waters of baptism by Bro. R. C. Evans, and the following July I had the pleasure of seeing Bro. Evans lead my wife into the same. We were confirmed by Bro. George Mottashed. I have never regretted the day I made the start to serve my God, for he has proved a kind, loving father to me, ever ready to help and comfort and keep in times of sorrow and affliction, which I have proved to my own satisfaction. He has fed me with that heavenly food that has filled my hungry soul, and has made me rejoice by the enkindling influence of his holy spirit. Unworthy as I have been, I can say as did Bro. Paul, of sinners I have been a chief. Thanks be to my Lord, he "came to save sinners." What I regret most is, that I have not lived up to my privileges at all times; nevertheless God has blessed me with health and strength and steady employment, so much so that I have not lost one day's pay in five years.

Can I say I know this work is of God? Yes; if I know I live, I know it to be the power of God to my soul's salvation. I know the signs follow the believer. I have seen the sick healed and the power of God made manifest in divers ways, and the power of the devil also. As for myself, let me say, and give God the honor and glory, in November 1886 I sprained my back, lifting some iron. I went home and sent for Elders Mottashed and Howlett, and during their administration I was told that I should bear this as a testimony before the world; and when the elders took their hands off my head, I stood up, healed. One week after, while unloading a rail road wagon, a barrel of varnish weighing 400 pounds fell on one of my feet and left it in a bad condition. I was sent home, and the same elders were sent for and administered to me. The pain ceased, I used the oil, and in two weeks I was back to work. My shop mates were astonished at me for not having a doctor. Prior to that I made a covenant with God that for the remainder of my life I would call on him for my heavenly physician, and true to his promise he has been that unto me, for which I thank him.

I hope to stay on the gospel ship, serve God and have part in the first resurrection, dwell with the redeemed out of every nation and meet with some of my loved ones that have been called home and are waiting and watching at that beautiful gate which I hope by the help of God to enter and meet my brethren and sisters there to part no more. In the past I have longed to be there; but I must wait till my Lord shall call. I love to read the different letters in the Herald from my brethren who are out in the field and learn of God's blessings attending their labors. May he crown their labors with success, comfort, strengthen and cheer them, and enable them to stand the many trying scenes and difficulties of this unfriendly world. They are mostly strangers to me by sight, but not by the gospel.

Yours,

WILLIAM CORBETT.

UNDERWOOD, Iowa, Dec. 14th.

Brothers Joseph and William:—I have been holding a series of meetings at this place, have had good liberty and freedom of the Spirit. The people are very interested; have baptized five and hope for others soon. The Saints are feeling well, and they have good testimony of God's love and favor for them. At our confirmation meeting the good Spirit was present in power—a very few dry eyes in the house.

Yours truly,

J. C. FOSS.

SAND RUN, Ohio, Dec. 16th.

Bro. Joseph:—I have been a reader of the Herald for eight years, and could not think of being a Latter Day Saint and not take it. The many good letters from the elders in the field, and those in the sisters "Home Column," are very good. I am greatly encouraged by reading the testimonies of the noble band of workers in this great latter day work. Since the April conference I have been laboring to the best of my ability; have been at Sand Run for four weeks. The United Brethren were using the school-house, and continued their effort for two weeks after I came. But I was not idling my time away. I managed to get the use of the house three times, while their meetings were going on, and also preached at the house of Bro. and Sr. Hannah a few times, and went from house to house, sowing the good seed of the kingdom. Some of their best members united with us before they closed their meetings. The conduct of the preacher in charge made friends for the truth. I have baptized twelve, and others are near the kingdom. Nine of the twelve are heads of families. The friends at Barber Hill, a town of 400 or 500 inhabitants, desired to hear "this new doctrine" so-called. There are two churches there; one is Methodist, the other Christian. The Christian church was open for us. They said they were not sectarian, and had no fears, for they believed the gospel. But after hearing they weakened, and said if I continued my meetings they feared their class would be divided; so I had to step down and out, leaving many good listeners. I therefore continued at Sand Run, and will stay a few days longer. I do not think it wise to spend time and money traveling from place to place when there is any prospect of doing good by a continued effort where one is already at work. There are fourteen Saints here. Others I think will obey. Those who have obeyed are rejoicing in the restored gospel. The Saints are very anxious to see the good work go on. There is a good people here. May the good Father bless them all. I am feeling well in the work; have good health and good liberty to declare the word.

Dec. 19th.—Have baptized two more, both heads of families. The United Brethren preacher tried to give the Saints "a send off" on new revelation. After his effort at three p. m., I invited the congregation to come out at 7 p. m., told them I had something to say that I desired them to hear. The house was well filled with good listeners. Text, "other sheep I have, which are not of this fold." Spoke of the sealed book, and had splendid liberty. To God be all the glory

T. J. BEATTY.

SAGUACHE, Colo., Dec. 14th.

Joseph Smith, Dear Sir:—I have recently been baptized in the Advent faith and have consequently been reading the Scriptures a good deal, and I find there is one thing they do not have much to say about, and that is, "laying on of hands" and receiving the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire. I find they do not speak in tongues, and I believe the have not the gifts that I have heard your people have. I have never known but one of your people, a lady living at this place. I have talked a great deal with her on the subject, and from what I can learn from the Bible, I believe it is necessary for the laying on of hands to receive the Holy Ghost before the gifts will be given. The Adventists think by strictly living up to God's commandments the gifts will be restored to us. They also believe the seventh day is the Sabbath.

Mrs. Shoults, one of the Saints, is quite anxious that I should investigate your faith before I join any church, and indeed I am going to do the best I can. I have never read any of your works, and have never heard any of your sermons. I think it would be advisable if you had any elders desiring new fields, to send some here, as this would be a good place, for quite a good many have become interested in your faith through Mrs. Shoults. We would do the best we can to make it pleasant for one of your elders—or two I suppose would be best. I suppose you are a people that are trying to do all you can to save sinners. If so, I could advise no better place than this to work in. I myself am very anxious to hear some of your elders talk on what has become the most interesting subject to me.

Hoping that my questions will be satisfactorily answered, I am very respectfully,

MRS. F. J. HARTMAN.

LONG REACH, W. Va., Dec. 17th.

Dear Herald: I am a constant reader of your columns, from which I derive much benefit and encouragement. I am alone here in regard to the church. I am intending to go west in the spring, but have not decided where. I will be glad to have any of the Herald readers correspond with me in regard to the country; either in Iowa, Nebraska, or Missouri. I am teaching school here, am twenty-five years old, have no family except my wife; will have saved about three or four hundred dollars; and I desire to locate in the west where I can make a living and ultimately secure a home, I am willing to follow any honorable vocation: either teaching, clerking or farming; having had experience in several different kinds of employment. I expect to leave here in March next. With love to all the Saints, I remain yours in the hope that the gospel affords to the obedient.

O. J. TARY.

YORK, Neb., Dec. 11th.

Editor Joseph Smith:—Some cute philosopher has said that it is unwise to quarrel with an editor through his own columns or a barber while he is shaving you, as both alike have you at a disadvantage. Realizing the truth of this I approach very cautiously with the following paragraphs:

In the leading editorial of the Saints' Herald dated December 10th, 1887, you say that "in 1864 Isaac Sheen had a number of the earlier issues, including number one, reprinted." That statement I know to be true, and that they were printed with the consent of Bishop Rogers, who was recognized as the financial head of the Herald Office. At that time there was a demand for the early numbers and this effort was made to supply the current and future demand expected without regard to any particular article contained therein.

You made the statement that Isaac Sheen did not "unite with the church until the early part of the year 1844, at Philadelphia." The truth is he was baptized by Erastus Snow in Philadelphia three years earlier—early in 1841, and very shortly thereafter he went to Kirtland, where in May of that year he married a sister of Almon Babbitt. Early in 1843 he removed to Macedonia, Hancock county, Illinois, and bore arms with other valiant Mormons during the excitement previous to Joseph's death. (In proof of some of these statements see obituary notice in Herald, April, 1874.)

I am thoroughly conversant with the public writings of Elder Sheen, and in none of them did he ever pretend to be "commissioned to confess for Joseph;" on the other hand he used his means, time and whatever ability he possessed in upbuilding the name and glory of him he called "The Martyr" and also proclaimed loud and long "the Lineal Heir."

Elder Sheen was not much given to relying upon "the statements made by Brigham Young." You say the statement of Brigham Young in regard to the burning of the celestial revelation "was made in Salt Lake City, August 29th, 1852." Elder Sheen could not have been cognizant of that statement on September 20th, 1852, the date of his letter to the Saturday Evening Post, a literary paper published in Philadelphia. That letter was written in Cincinnati. There were no telephone connections with Salt Lake City at that time, no railroad to St. Louis or St. Joseph, and if such a thing as a telegraphic connection existed between Cincinnati and the frontier towns newspapers of about that time fail to show it. It required from five to six weeks' time to communicate between the two points in consideration. Twenty-two days after Brigham made his statement Isaac Sheen wrote his letter for a Philadelphia paper and not "a Cincinnati paper," as you wrote "without knowledge, and upon insufficient evidence."

As Bro. Joseph said, I have "been waiting for a long time" to reply to the assertion made by you in the Herald of June 11th, 1887, that "the matter for the first issue of the Herald should have passed through their (the publishing committee's) inspection, but did not—but upon further reflection I will await the answer of W. W. Blair to a question put to him pointedly by Isaac Sheen in a meeting or council held by "the heads of the church" at Bishop Rogers' in the spring of 1866, if I mistake not the year. That question demanded an answer, yea or nay, will Elder Blair answer?

"The spirit" would have me add further in regard to William Marks, but as I am not assured that I have not already trespassed too far in thus approaching the editorial throne of the Herald, I refrain.

JOHN K. SHEEN.

SHULLSBURG, Wis., Nov. 16th.

Bro. David Dancer:—I mean to take the Herald as long as I live. I have taken it a great many years. It is all the preacher I have, and it is a good one, too. I don't know how I would live without it, for there are no Saints here but me. I have lent the Herald to my neighbors, and they say they like it well, and if an elder comes they will go to hear him. I am seventy-two years old on Christmas.

Your sister in Christ,

SUSAN MATTHEWS.

Communications.

ARTICLES under this head do not necessarily receive the endorsement of the Editor: writers are responsible for their own views. Contributions solicited.

THE GOSPEL FAITH.

"FOR I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith; as it is written, the just shall live by faith."—Rom. 1:16, 17. This statement of the apostle conveys the idea that all the benefits derived from the gospel, are dependent upon the exercise of faith in it; and it at once presents the thought of its infinite importance, hence the gospel becomes "the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth."

Faith is defined as "the substance"—or, as we prefer, it being a better translation—"assurance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."—Heb. 11:1. If, then, the relationship of faith and testimony is so close, it seems reasonable to conclude that faith is dependent on "evidence" for its existence and exercise; and further, that the nature and power of faith partake of the nature and character of the testimony which begets it. Faith in man, or any human enterprise would be produced by human testimony; while faith in the divine purpose, is the outgrowth of divine testimony. In harmony herewith we read: "And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." So wrote Paul when bearing to the Corinthians the testimony of God."—1 Cor. 2:1-5.

The scriptures teach that "he that comes to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." But the question is asked; "How shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard?" (Heb. 11:6, Rom. 10:14), as if inspiration would seek to enforce on us the great truth that faith is the result of credible evidence.

It would seem from the texts cited that God is the object of gospel faith in the first instance. He proposes to deliver the perishing race of man from sin—the cause of all evil—and from its dominion and results, including death. Is he able to do this infinite wonder? He solemnly declares by his eternal power and Godhead, as exhibited in the vast universe of created worlds that he is able. He avers, by his immeasurable ability to diffuse the eternal principle of life into a dark, chaotic, lifeless world, producing order, law, light, intelligence, harmony, volation, joy, love, gratitude, peace and glory, that he is able to perform all that he has promised.

The testimony to the proposition,—“the gospel is the power of God unto salvation”—is therefore credible, and all worthy of faith in us. God has given an unexampled pledge of his love for poor, helpless humanity, and an unanswerable evidence of his willingness to save all to the uttermost, in the “free gift” of his only begotten son, who on his own part was wholly willing to “give himself a ransom for all,” to “taste death for every one,” and, in death’s own domain, waging war thereon, and coming from this the greatest and most renowned of all conflicts, most gloriously triumphant. Proof: “For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.”—Jno. 3:16, 17. “By grace are ye saved through faith.”

Christ, God’s son, by the perfection of his character, the divinity of his teachings, his unblemished example, unexcelled rules of moral life given to man, the most perfect revelator of God’s will, the chief medium of heavenly truth and light—the light of the gospel—He, too, is the object of the faith of the gospel. He came to “destroy him that had the power of death; that is the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage;” and having “led captive a multitude of captives,” he sits at the Father’s right hand, a prince of life, a royal Savior enrobed in divine glory.—Heb. chapters 1, 2. That God designed gospel faith to be produced in the human mind and heart, through the power of testimony, as heard with ears, and weighed by the mind—mental sense—is evident from the following: “The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes.”—Ps. 19:7, 8. “To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.”—Isa 8:20. “And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the—word of the—gospel and believe.”—Acts 15:7. “How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things! But they have not all obeyed the gospel. For Esaias saith, Lord, who hath believed our report? So then faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God.—Rom. 10:14-17.

It is well to bear in mind that Peter and Paul, in the foregoing, are addressing those who had a goodly degree of gospel experience, at Jerusalem and at Rome, and, therefore, it is with the utmost propriety that to such Paul could say: “The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart, even the word of faith which we preach,” (Rom. 10:8), and not to barbarians who had never heard the gospel preached. Therefore, the modern theory taught by some that saving faith—gospel faith—comes to us in some mysterious way, other than the way divinely appointed—through hearing, receiving the gospel when it is authoritatively preached and testified—gets no support from this text.

Gospel faith being the foundation of personal righteousness, it is essential that we “have faith in God” by having full faith in his word. For it is written, “The just shall live by faith;” or, in other words, we live by the divine things believed. In a temporal view, we live by that which we eat and drink. But we can eat things that would destroy life; and is it not possible for us to believe, religiously, theories that, instead of saving, will destroy us? Is it not all essential, then, that our faith be founded on that which God has revealed in the gospel as being necessary to salvation? It is wise, then to believe, so far as the gospel is concerned, just what God says, and not men’s constructions on, or interpretations of what he says; for Jesus says. “He that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock * * * and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock.”—Matt. 7:24, 25.

God’s word, as a basis of faith, seems to sustain the same relation, or a similar one at least, to our salvation, or to the spiritual economy, as the grain of wheat to the crop produced by it in the natural economy. For as the germ of life exists in the grain, so God also embodieth in his word—of the gospel—the germinal principles of eternal life. Thus the Savior, when discoursing on the philosophy of conversion, and the relation of the word of the gospel thereto, represents the word as such; “Behold, a sower went forth to sow; and when he sowed, some seeds fell by the way side, and the fowls came and devoured them up; some fell upon stony places, where they had not much earth; and forthwith they sprung up, because they had no deepness of earth; and when the sun was up, they were scorched; and because they had no root, they were withered away. And some fell among thorns; and the thorns sprung up and choked them; but others fell into good ground, and brought forth fruit, some an hundred-fold, some sixty-fold and some thirty-fold." Matt. 13: 3-8. Dear reader; these variously conditioned soils are here used by our Savior to represent the different classes of human hearts, dispositions and minds. You can easily tell to which class you belong, and whether the gospel fruit can be developed in you. Consider well your own disposition. You desire to be saved. Are you easily discouraged because, when you hear the gospel preached you do not understand it at once? Do you allow such considerations as "It is not popular!" "Will it interfere with my worldly prospects?" "Will I have a host of popular friends if I go on to learn my gospel duties and do them?" Do these thoughts discourage you? Remember, Satan works through these considerations, "and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart." Or, are you of those who hear, and receive the gospel gladly at first, but when opposition comes, or persecution, because of the word, do you get fearful, become offended and back out, and so fail to receive everlasting life? Or, are you of that class who hear, but because you are so busy looking after the things of this life, you have no time to attend to those things relating to the life to come? Or, are you willing to waive all these earthly considerations, making them secondary in order to hear, carefully study, seek to understand, and gladly obey with an honest heart the gospel of your salvation? If so, happy are you! Is it any wonder that Jesus, the Savior, who knew the hearts of all, when considering how few the hearts were, and are, represented by the "good ground," exclaimed, "Who hath ears to hear, let him hear,"—hear "the word of the kingdom." "Hear and your soul shall live."—Matt. 13: 3-19, 20, 22, 23.

It is evidently in the light of our proposition last stated that the following words of Jesus are to be understood: "It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing; the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." "For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, He gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak, and I know that his commandment is life everlasting; whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak."—John 6: 63; 12: 49, 50. God's word, God's commandments, then, as revealed in the gospel, contain the germs of eternal life. Did you ever seriously consider that your "life everlasting," and mine, are embraced in God's commandments—His words? Do you really think—I say think, for you can not really believe without evidence—that God has commanded anything non-essential? Can man make void the word of God by his traditions? Substitute therefor human precepts, and obtain eternal life by accepting such substituted precepts or human traditions? "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."—Gal. 6: 7.

Our Father has so carefully guarded his holy word, and qualified his witnesses sent to bear testimony to "the word of the truth of the gospel," to that extent that it is plainly manifest he designed that faith of a like nature, should be produced in all who are willing to accept the testimony he gave, and that all his children should possess the same faith; that so far as the gospel of our salvation is concerned, all should see, understand, and believe it alike. God never sent his witnesses with a message of doubtful import; for a matter pertaining to our eternal welfare is of too great importance to be left in obscurity. Jesus said to the apostles: "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth. And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight."—Acts 1: 8, 9.

After these witnesses, who had about three years instruction from the divinely inspired lips of the Savior, and the "many infallible proofs" of His resurrection, and the qualifying, guiding, and knowledge-giving power of the Holy Spirit, should go forth into the world to deliver their testimony touching "the incorruptible" seed "of the word of God, which by the gospel is preached," "and that endures forever," (1 Peter, 1: 23-25), our Savior solemnly entreats his Father, saying: "Neither pray I for these [the apostles] alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."—John 17: 20, 21.

Among the seven great, grand fundamental unities forming the basis of the gospel of Christ, taught by the Holy Ghost and named by the Apostle Paul in Ephesians, chapter fourth, it is emphatically declared that there is "one faith," as well as one spirit, one Lord, and one God. And it is just as consistent with gospel teaching to argue that there is more than one God taught therein, or more than one Christ the Savior, as that the gospel word teaches more than one faith. As well may we contend that a grain of wheat, while producing a head of wheat, would at the same time produce an ear of corn and a pepper pod. And furthermore, this same Paul to whom Christ personally appeared after his ascension to heaven, to constitute him a minister and a witness, and who learned the gospel from Christ by direct revelation, (Acts 26: 15, 16; Gal. 1: 11, 12), teaches us in that same Ephesian letter, that God, besides revealing the gospel in plainness, placed in the "one body,"—the church—official teachers of his word, for the express purpose of enabling all who desire to be saved on his proposed terms, to attain to the unity of the faith. (Eph.

4: 13). Now, from these considerations we feel to vindicate God, the Savior, and all inspired men—servants of God—also the Bible, from the charge of being the author of, or laying the basis for more than one system of gospel faith, or teaching more than one way of life. In fact, the scriptures forewarn us that when the idea should gain credence in the world that there is more than one gospel faith—more than the strait and narrow way that leads to life—it would be because such an idea would be advocated by false teachers, those teaching contrary to the truth: "But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of."—2 Peter, 2: 1, 2. By this we are plainly informed that it is both "pernicious" and "damnable" to teach that God approves of more than the one gospel faith, or way of life. Also that such is man's—and not God's ways; and hence the old heresy so often offered as an apology for the numerous varieties of religious faiths, that "it matters not which of the many roads you take that leads to the mill, so you get there with good wheat." This is only a covering for the "damnable" character of the idea sought to be illustrated, forgetting the fact that "the wheat" is not raised on the road to the mill, but was all raised in the identical same way before it was ever started to mill on any road!

The foregoing considerations lead to a brief consideration of another prevalent and quite popular error in respect to faith, and that is, "It makes but little difference what we believe, religiously, just so we are sincere in it." If this be true in view of the religious condition of the world, then there is no need of any such thing as an infallible standard of religious faith and morals, for then any idea, or ideas that may occur to a man's mind, purporting to be religious, is acceptable to God. This is an indirect denial of the all-sufficiency of the Bible, unless the Bible is made to bend to the one thousand contradictory religious whims of men, and it is therefore a species of infidelity, and no wonder it is so popular. If this idea be true, everything religious is orthodox, and we are all evangelical! providing we are sincere!

If this popular error be true, then the thirty-nine articles, the longer or shorter catechism, and all or any of the Disciplines can be substituted for the Bible, and can, with sincerity be adopted in its stead, and yet demand the approbation and salvation of God. We can not be saved without sincerity; but sincerity alone will save no one. "The word of the truth of the gospel" is the only right basis of faith un to salvation, the only true foundation of a saving faith in Christ. (Eph. 1: 13). The "truth" only, will make us free from doubt, free from the bondage of sin, and free from religious darkness. To abide in it alone, will make us disciples of Christ indeed. For, "As he spoke these words, many believed on him. Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my words, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 30-32. Again: "Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures."—Jas. 1: 18. "Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever. . . . But the word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you."—1 Peter 1: 23-25. "Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he can not see the kingdom of God."—John 3: 3. These scriptures, then, would lead us to reject the error, however popular, that "It matters but little what we believe; we will come out all right if we are only sincere." This popular theory is not true. It misleads, is deceptive, and is therefore "pernicious."

Gospel faith is of a nature to be increased, with the increase of testimony; and it is therefore progressive as our perceptions of gospel truth enlarge. Hence, the disciples, on one occasion, prayed: "Lord, increase our faith."—Luke, 17: 5. "We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all toward each other aboundeth."—2 Thes. 1: 3.

Gospel faith "works by love" and inspires those desirous of salvation with a sacred reverence for God. It creates in us a pure and undeviating love of his truth, and a righteous desire to keep and do all his holy commandments. "For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision; but faith that worketh by love."—Gal 5: 6. "Only let your conversation [conduct] be as it becometh the gospel of Christ; that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving for the faith of the gospel."—Phil. 1: 27. John says: "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But who-so keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected; hereby know we that we are in him."—1 John 2: 4, 5. Jesus says: "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him."—John 14: 21.

St. James writes: "But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar? Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was made perfect? And the scripture was fulfilled which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was imputed to him for righteousness; and he was called the friend of God. Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only."—Jas. 2: 20-24.

Unless, then, we can be saved without being "justified," the doctrine of salvation by faith alone—without doing the "good works that God had before ordained that we should walk in them"—is false, and there is no salvation in it.

The evidence that God and men have, that a person has faith in God and believes the gospel of Christ, is that he willingly and gladly yields obedience to all the gospel requirements and strives to live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The first work of faith, then, is to turn the mind and heart to God and his holy law—his statutes and commandments. "And the hand of the Lord was with them; and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord." "For they themselves show of us what manner of entering in we had among you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God."—1 Thess. 1: 9.

And the second work of faith is to seek to understand, and then faithfully do all that God requires at our hands; for, the New Testament opens with the declaration: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."—Matt. 7: 21. And it continues to enjoin on the race the duty of doing the divine commands, and finally concludes with this benediction: "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city."—Rev. 22: 14.

The results of the exercise of this active, living, working faith in God and his word, have been the reception and enjoyment of the promised blessings of God by his children. A host of faithful worthies, friends of God, have enlightened the ages of the past and blessed their fellow men, by their unswerving confidence in God, and their unflinching faith in and obedience to his laws. Their lives were exalted examples of the law and its illustrious achievements and blessings, consequent upon their faith, and they exemplify what it is to enjoy the forgiveness of sins, and to stand justified and accepted with him, having the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven revealed to them, also to walk with God, and to realize in this life, by a foretaste, "the powers of the world to come," and to bask in the knowledge of God through the revelations of the Holy Ghost. The faith begotten in us, by the gospel, leads us to look and hope for just what God has promised, whether of blessings in this life, or of rewards and glory in the life to come; and as a logical consequence this would produce in all the same hope—the "one hope." Hence, if the gospel promises to the sinner the remission of sins, on the conditions of the exercise of faith and sincerely repenting of all sin, and being "baptized," "every one," "in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," (Acts 2: 37, 28; Mark 1: 1-4; Luke 3: 2, 3), he will not hope for justification from sins before God, outside of this law laid down in the gospel for that all important end. Of the Holy Ghost, Jesus said to his ministry: "He will guide you into all truth."—Jno.

16: 13. And on the day of Pentecost, this Spirit, in the apostle Peter, announced this "truth" to the three thousand inquiring sinners after salvation.

Again; if the gospel reveals the fact that the believing, penitent, baptized person may receive "the gift of the Holy Ghost" through yielding obedience to the ordinance of "the laying on of hands," he will not hope to receive and enjoy the knowledge, power, graces and inestimable blessings of the Holy Spirit unless he does so accept this gospel ordinance. See Acts 8: 14-19; 9: 17; 19: 1-6; Heb. 6: 2; Acts 20: 27, with 2 John 9. Remember; "Without faith it is impossible to please God." And Paul said further, "But if any man draw back, [by refusing to believe the divine testimony], my soul shall have no pleasure in him."—Heb. 11: 6, and 10: 38.

A careful consideration of the subject of gospel faith, then, will enable us to see how it was that "Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous; God testifying of his gifts;" also how Enoch "pleased God," and was translated; how "by faith," Noah being warned of God of things to come, was moved with fear to prepare an ark; how faithful Abraham by revelation saw Christ and salvation through him; and understood and preached the gospel and expected salvation through Christ, the promised seed, just as we do; (Gal. 3: 8, 9; Ps. 105: 13, 14; Gal. 3: 26-29); also why the innumerable host of holy worthies, all along the ages, were willing to "endure," when tried by "cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover, of bonds and imprisonments; they were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword; they wandered about in sheepskins and goat-skins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented; [of whom the world was not worthy]; they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth. These all having obtained a good report through faith."—Heb. 11: 36-38. They wandered as pilgrims, suffered, endured and enjoyed, because of their faith and hope. They suffered while holding in esteem "the reproach of Christ." So do we. Their hope "reached to that within the veil," for they sought to obtain the better resurrection." And so do we, by the faith of the gospel. They looked for a "heavenly country;" and we, "according to his promise, look for a new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." They hoped for a city whose maker and builder is God;" and so do we. Our faith and hope, then, are identical with those of God's children in all past ages. They looked for life and immortality; and so do enlightened Christians now. But "life and immortality are brought to light through the gospel;" (2 Tim. 1: 10); and since gospel faith and hope are based on gospel revelation and promise, we are led to conclude that gospel faith is as old as man. And this is one good reason why the apostle Paul should array the results of the wonderful "faith" of all those ancient worthies, as examples for us, and to illustrate the power of genuine gospel faith. They all, surely, did yield obedience to the principles of regeneration; for unless they were "born again," "of water and of the Spirit" how can they enter the Kingdom of God? "Born again," of "incorruptible" "seed," the word which by the gospel is preached. John 3:5; 1 Pet. 1:23, 24.

It was "through faith," that God's children subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, ["fought the good fight of faith,"] turned to flight the armies of the aliens." Heb. 11:33. They laid hands on the sick and the sick recovered; spoke in unknown tongues and received the gift of interpretation of tongues; they prophesied and had knowledge of things to come. By faith demons were cast out, and the Saints were shielded from their destructive influences. They saw in beautiful visions and heavenly inspired dreams, the glories and powers of the world to come, "according to the proportion of faith." Mark 16:16-18; 1 Cor. chapter 12; Rom. 12:6, 8. What a mighty agent, or principle, gospel faith is, judging it by its results and effects. And in contrasting this with the ages now gone, and noting the dearth of that living faith, one is led to exclaim, Where is faith in God being exercised to-day? Where is the everlasting gospel being believed now?

In view of the tendencies of the popular teachings of these—the last—days, well may the Savior prophetically exclaim, "Nevertheless when the Son of Man cometh, will he find faith on the earth?"

"And now abide faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."—Luke 18:8; 1 Cor. 13:13. Reader, if faith, the cause of all the mighty achievements, and blessings, which by the Holy Ghost is ascribed to it, still abides and operates, will none of its legitimate results or effects be made apparent now? Answer, who will.

C. SCOTT.

WOMAN, THE WEAKER VESSEL.

HAVING been impressed to write on the above caption, and as we believe by the Spirit of God, we now make the attempt. Woman, having been kept in a station beneath that of man for many generations, and in many nations one not much better than that of a slave, and as we read that one extreme follows another, we wish if we can, to find woman's true sphere; the position and station in life that God designed her to occupy. We believe that it was Sir Matthew Hale who wrote that "Woman was not taken out of man's head to rule over him, nor yet out of his feet for him to tread on her, but out of his side, to be near him; from a rib near his heart to be loved by him, under his arms to be protected by him."

This is what the writer believes, and he intends to give his reasons and Bible proofs for so believing. As said above, one extreme follows another, and woman having been long kept beneath her proper sphere, we think that we can see in this day of gospel reform and civil liberty, a growing tendency to run to the other extreme; decidedly so. The first sentence pronounced by our heavenly Father against the children of disobedience was, "Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception, in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, (not over him) and he shall rule over thee."—Gen. 3:16.

Here is the first sentence pronounced against the creatures of our creator; and tell me kind reader when, or where it was ever disannulled. Please bear in mind that sentence. "Thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee;" as we may want to refer to it again. How in perfect harmony that sentence is with the following: "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church; and he is the Savior of the body."—Eph. 5:22, 23.

That woman "is the weaker vessel," hence, her proper sphere is second to the man, is seen in the following: "Likewise, ye husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honor unto the wife, as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered."—1 Pet. 3:7.

And why? Because God's first law is order; which we can see by the handiworks of Omnipotence, by His ordering all the planets to move in their order; hence, they will not vary a particle either in time, or course from the design of their creator. The astronomer can make his almanac for the coming year with perfect confidence that the machinery of the Lord will move correctly; so that he can tell exactly when an eclipse will take place and where it will be visible. Now when we, imperfect human beings compare ourselves with the Creator of the universe, can we comprehend the great difference which separates us from him? But thanks be to our Creator He has sent us an ambassador from the throne of perfection, that we may, if we desire, become perfect as they are, by being obedient to the teachings of our Master as well as those of his servants, for is not the Master greater than his servants. Now when one of the most important of servants of the Master, Peter, speaks to us that "woman is the weaker vessel;" we should take heed to it. And why? That our prayers may not be hindered. Then as Satan knew that woman was the weaker vessel he chose her instead of the man, knowing that if he could deceive her she would use her influence over her companion; whom if he (Adam) could not save her, he would rather perish with his wife than to be separated forever from her he loved. For we read, "Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression."—1 Tim. 2:14.

This shows plainly to our mind that man here showed his strength and nobility in not deserting his weaker companion in transgression, knowing that there would be no salvation for her without him. As quoted above, "Adam was not deceived," therefore whatever he did was with an understanding of his position; and without a doubt he considered all the question before him at that most critical crisis of the world's history. The peopling of a planet lay, as it were in his own power. For in the Book of Mormon we read: "Adam fell that men might be." Place yourself, dear reader, where, and as Adam was at that time, but bear in mind that he was not deceived, or Paul did not tell it truly. According to the above he acted with a perfect knowledge and that for the salvation of his wife; for we read that "man is head of the woman even as Christ is the head of the church."

Without a doubt Adam at the time of the fall, was well educated. Why not? Many Bible scholars place that event at or about the time of Cain's conception which we believe occurred when Adam was about one hundred years old. If Adam and his Creator walked and talked together in the garden up to this time, as we read was the case; surely, if Adam was an apt scholar, with his Creator for his instructor, he could in one hundred years become better educated in the science of theology than any man now living can, with the aid of all the colleges and universities in existence, especially, as he was capable in the very morn of creation to name all the animals and fowls of the earth. Now, none of us believe that the world was created in seven days of our own time; for men of science have proved that to be erroneous. The days that Moses speak of, (in the creation) are without a doubt the following: "But beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day."—2 Peter 3:8. Hence, we can easily place Adam as a student of the Almighty for one hundred years, or nearly so. We deem this explanation necessary, that the reader may understand the position that Adam was found in at this period of his existence. When she whom he loved fell in transgression, then as yet they had no offspring; and as we have once said that the peopling of a planet lay in his power. But his wife had broken God's command, and as he well knew she must be separated from him forever, save he came under the same condemnation; therefore, "Adam fell that men might be." He fell with his eyes open, (being not deceived), rather than to live on in eternal loneliness. He doubtless knew that God could not and would not associate with sin. But there was the wife of his bosom, she whom he loved; he chose to fall and go with her, that he might be the means of saving her, trusting to the Son of God to make an atonement for them.

Here is our reason for claiming a supremacy for man over woman especially in the things of religion. She fell to please the adversary of her Creator; hence, her enemy, as well as the enemy of all mankind. Adam fell not to take sides with Satan, but that he might go with his wife, that he might please and bless her; and that they together might be the means of peopling the earth, trusting that the Almighty through the aid of his Son would open up a plan of salvation for them. We have once quoted Paul where he says, that "The husband is the head of the woman, even as Christ is the head of the church." In another place he says, "But, I would have you know that the head of every man is Christ; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Christ is God."—1 Cor. 11:3. Here we have woman as fourth in the scale of importance; God standing first, Christ second, and man third. As regards Adam's purposely transgressing God's command, while Eve suffered herself to be deceived through the wiles of the serpent, we wish to know what else a true gentleman and a true husband could do under the circumstances in which he was then placed? But "Adam fell that men might be, and men are that they might have joy."—B. of M. page 58.

Yours for the truth,

LOUIS STRACK,
W. R. CALHOON.

A DREAM.

I was sitting at the feet of our President, Joseph Smith, and looking a little way off I saw a cluster of men, and saw the Savior come from them to where Joseph and I were. It seemed that the men were the Twelve that he traveled with in his life mission. As he came, his arms were bare to his elbows and seemed transparent and beautiful. But he did not seem to be a very handsome man. He reached out both hands together and shook hands with Joseph and I.

R. ALLEN.

Selections.

"WHO DID SIN?"

THE whistle blew; the brakeman shouted "Hamilton, all change at Hamilton," and in a minute after this announcement the car drew up opposite the station-house on the third track. A number of children of different ages were on board, and no sooner had the car ceased to move, than each one, with hand grasped securely by that of parent, or walking closely behind, tripped out of the car with hearts a good deal lighter than those of the sparrows that were busy picking up their living from amid the frozen filth of the streets.

There was one exception. A little girl of some ten or twelve winters (for there is no summer in her year), remained till all had left the car, trying in vain to rouse her sleeping father. Bloating, sunken, the wreck of a once promising boyhood, with but few indications of manhood left, he lay fast asleep on a seat by himself, and it was the sleep of the stupefied drunkard. In vain did she try to rouse him, in vain did she shake his arm; in vain did she say, "Father, wake up, we must leave the car." A half opening of the eyes, and a guttural response were the only results of her solicitude. At length the brakeman came along, and catching the unconscious man by the coat collar, with a strong jerk, he shouted "Wake up," and by the aid of this help, he was enabled to stagger off the car.

Some laughed at the drunkard as his little daughter led him to the station house to await the outgoing train. Some showed signs of irritation that such an object should interrupt their onward locomotion, and others angrily told the repulsive creature to "get out of the way." Meantime, the little creature remained faithful to her charge, and left him, no, not for a moment. Her features were very finely formed, but there was a worn look about her sweet young face which spoke of sorrow having already made its settled abode in a youthful bosom, where at so tender an age there should be room for only joy. No music moved in her pensive countenance as she beheld the gaping of the crowd, nor were the lips once opened as the angry mutterings of those who suffered temporary interruption fell on her ear. Her settled expression, inexpressibly sad, spoke of a long succession of woes that quite crushed out of her young bosom all that spontaneity of life that fills youth so brimfull of sunshine. And, as, reversing the order of an omnipotent Providence, she took charge of him who should have taken charge of her, God in heaven only knew the sadness that overflowed in her young heart.

We could stay but a moment, and, leaving this child of sorrow with a drunkard father, and an unsympathetic crowd, we hastened on to pressing duty, but no amount of crowding labors can prevent the vision of that cherub face and wretched father from coming ever and anon to view.

Who is responsible, we ask, for this sad scene we have but faintly depicted? Surely not the child. She is suffering, bitterly suffering, but for sins not her own. Her young life is already one long sorrow, for no crime of hers. The brand of a drunkard's daughter will stick to her like the curse of Cain, and her whole life will be one continued upgrade for no fault of hers.

Who did it, then, if the girl did it not? We are all agreed that the man she dignifies with the name of father has sinned, although in the depth of his sin he has forfeited all right to the name. Whether the mother who bore him sinned in giving him a bias by nature to indulge his appetites, heaven only knows; and if his father sinned because he restrained him not, we can not tell. Who the companions were who so greatly sinned in enticing him to ruin, the great day alone will reveal.

But are these all who have sinned in the manufacture of this material and moral wreck? Would to God we could think so! We can not disbelieve that philosophy which says to us that man is in a degree responsible for everything which he might have prevented. Tried by this rule, who shall stand? And who dare say of himself that he is in no way responsible for the suffering of his child? We know the man has sinned, the man who made the liquor has sinned, and so of the man who sold it, and the man who countenances the drink traffic and drinking usages, but what of him who permits all this, without raising his voice and arm in an uncompromising opposition? Has he not sinned too, and will any washing of hands that he may do relieve him of all responsibility? We answer, No. "Curse ye, Meroz," said the angel of the Lord. "Curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof, because they came not to the help of the Lord against the mighty." And this bitter curse has been hanging over the heads of the children of Meroz in every land, and in every age, because they came not to the help of the Lord against the mighty monster traffic intemperance, which has given so many millions of sisters to the pale, pensive little girl that we saw in the railroad train at Hamilton on the 10th of February, 1887.

Let there be searchings of heart amongst the readers of this paper when we ask once more, "Who did sin?" As we have said already, the girl has not, and the God who gave her being has not, but can we say that of ourselves? Whether we like it or not, a charge has been committed to every one of us. We are constituted the keepers of many more it may be, than we are aware of, and one day we shall have to answer as to how we have kept the charge. As we behold the effects of intemperance on the right hand and the left as we journey through life, it will profit us to pause a little and ask of ourselves in this matter, "Who did sin?" Nor should we hesitate to ask of the Master, "Lord, is it I?"—Sel.

Conference Minutes.

KEWANEE.

The above conference convened in Kewanee, Illinois, December 10th, at 10 a. m., elder James W. Terry presiding, and John Chisnall secretary. Branch reports.—Kewanee 72, including 7 elders, 4 priests, 2 teachers, 2 deacons, 2 received by letter; John Chisnall president and clerk. Buffalo Prairie no change. Report referred back to the branch, as it appeared in evidence that four had been baptized there, and the district secretary had recorded them as members of that branch. Millersburgh no change: Joseph L. Terry pres. and clerk. Henderson Grove, 2 received by letter, 1 baptized, 1 died, present 45; Lewis Tryon pres. Nellie J. Williams clerk. Bishop's Agent, R. J. Benjamin reported balance, last report, 80, collected since, $29.20, total $30. Paid out during the quarter $30. The rest of the morning session was taken up by a general interchange of views by elders Lord, Garland, Whitehouse, Hopkins, and brethren Williams and Brown of Henderson Grove. At 2 p. m. elders Lord, Garland, Whitehouse, Chisnall, Benjamin, priest B. Sumption, teacher Hyrum Williams, and brethren Manuel of Canton, and J. Brown of Henderson Grove reported. Elder R. J. Benjamin tendered his resignation as Bishop's Agent for the district, which was accepted subject to approval by the Bishop. Resolved, That John Chisnall be recommended to the Bishop as his Agent for the Kewanee district. Brn. Lord, Terry and Chisnall were appointed auditors of the Bishop's Agent's books, and they reported them correct. Evening session 7½ p. m. the Saints spent a very pleasant and profitable time in prayer and testimony meeting in charge of elder J. W. Terry. The Spirit was present to the satisfaction of all. Sunday morning, 10:30, preaching by Bro. Chisnall, assisted by Bro. Lord, to an attentive and interested congregation. Sacrament at 2 p. m. in charge of elders Holt and Chisnall. Another very profitable time was had in fellowship together, the Spirit's presence was visibly felt, and a prophetic warning given was of a serious character and full of admonition to the Saints. At 7½ p. m., preaching on the first principles of the gospel by elder John D. Jones, who had just returned from his mission in Wales. He was assisted by Bro. Terry. Adjourned to meet the second Saturday in March, at 10 a. m. in Kewanee.

CENTRAL MISSOURI.

Conference met with the Wakenda branch, on the 29th October, 1887, Bro. W. T. Bozarth, of Cameron, Missouri, was chosen to preside over the conference and the services during the same. Visiting brethren were invited to seats with us. The following elders present and reported:—E. W. Cato, sen., baptized 1, confirmed 3. D. Framp-ton, solemnized 1 marriage. P. P. Powell, J. D. Craven, of Far West, Geo. W. Carter, M. A. Trotter, W. L. Booker, baptized 3, confirmed 3. Priest Alvin, of Far West district; teachers A. C. Stone of Wakenda branch, Goff of Mississipi. Bishop's Agent made the following report: Amount on hand last report $1.35, received since $5.85, paid out $2.00; amount on hand at present $5.20. Wakenda branch reported last report 18, present 27. A motion was made and prevailed as follows: "The Central Missouri district relinquishes all claim to the Platte county territory, and in favor of the Far West district. Motion was made that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet with the Wakenda branch, the first Saturday, being the third day of March, 1888. Bro. W. L. Booker was appointed president of the district for the next quarter, and M. A. Trotter, clerk. The spiritual authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. The Bishop's Agent was sustained for the next quarter. Conference adjourned to meet at time and place above stated.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Conference convened in the Saints' Chapel, Oakland, October 6th, 1887. On motion Heman C. Smith was chosen president of conference, and H. P. Brown associate; Geo. S. Lincoln secretary, Leslie Darrow assistant. Bishop's agent's report showed balance last report $786 77; received since $110 95; paid out $567.50; balance on hand $330 32. Branch reports: San Francisco 57, including 4 elders, 1 priest, 3 deacons; 1 baptized, 1 removed. Stockton 66, including 1 seventy, 1 elder, 2 priests, 1 teacher, 1 deacon; 3 baptized, 1 removed. Oakland 87, including 1 high priest, 12 elders, 2 priests, 2 teachers 3 deacons; 8 baptized, 5 ordained. Sacramento 128, including 5 elders, 3 priests, 1 deacon, 2 teachers, 6 baptized, 9 received by certificate, 4 by letter, 1 ordained. Elders reported: T. Daley (by letter, baptized 11), C. A. Parkin, (by letter), Heman C. Smith, president of the mission, High Priest H. P. Brown, (baptized 3), Geo. S. Lincoln, (baptized 1), John Parson, E. L. Kelley—bishop's counselor—John Nightingale, J. H. Parr, (baptized 3 and solemnized 3 marriages), Wm. Anderson, D. J. Phillips, Wm. Hart, J. W. Vernon, J. Steele, Owen Dinsdale, J. B. Price, Walter Bohall, — McLane, John Roberts, (by letter). Priests W. O. Skinner, (by letter), J. A. Stromberg, and teacher L. E. Hutchings, reported. Resolved, that this district use every lawful means to purchase a tent for gospel work. A committee of three reported that Bro. John Parsons was baptized May, 1845, by Elder Elisha H. Davis; was ordained by Elder John Banks about two years after. This, compared with letters from Pres. Joseph Smith, the committee accepted as evidence of the validity of his official acts. J. B. Carmichael, Henry Burgess, Walter Bohall committee. District treasurer Wm. Hart, reported: Cash on hand last report $7.85; received since $2.50; paid out $2. Balance on hand $8.35. D. J. Phillips was elected president of the district for next ensuing six months, and Geo. S. Lincoln secretary. Wm. Hart was continued as treasurer. Sr. T. J. Andrews was sustained as bishop's agent. Heman C. Smith, president of the mission, was sustained. Elder D. J. Phillips was recommended for a general appointment as a missionary to labor in the field. Elder J. H. Parr can go into the field, providing his family can receive about $30 per month. He was on motion recommended. Elder Wm. Hart and priest J. A. Stromberg were directed to labor under the president of the district. On motion all the authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Preaching during the session was done by Elders Heman C. Smith, E. L. Kelley, and H. P. Brown. Four were baptized and confirmed during the session, two children blessed, many were administered to, and many testified of the truth. Conference adjourned to meet at Stockton, in March, 1888.

FLORIDA.

Conference was held December 5th, 1887, at the Eureka branch, G. R. Scogin in the chair, J. F. Powell, Secretary, pro tem. The minutes of last conference were read and accepted with the amendment to the resolution of last conference, that dancing will not be allowed in the church in this district. Branch reports:—Hinote and Eureka, no change since last report. Bro. Jones was restored to the church. By a legal vote it was resolved that if the deeds of the Bagdad Church be not found, Bro. E. Power be and is authorized to give one. Bro. Beebe was sustained secretary of the district. The case of Bro. Barney Donohoo was laid on the table till next conference. G. R. Scogin was sustained president of the district. Prayer meeting was held at 9 o'clock in charge of Bro. G. R. Scogin. Bro. Scogin had received but $9; 4 baptized. Preaching at 11 a. m., and 7 p. m., by G. R. Scogin. Adjourned to meet at Pleasant View branch, Saturday before the first Sunday in next March.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

A conference was held at the Saints chapel in the town of Girard, Ottertail county, Minnesota, November 26th and 27th, 1887, T. J. Martin president, William Barnhard secretary. Financial report of the district: balance on hand last report $66.10, received since $3 10, total $69 20; paid out $100. Due Agent $30 80. J. R. Anderson, Agent. Branch reports.—Oak Lake 50; Silver Lake 24; Monitor Falls 13; Hope of Zion 53. Bro. T. J. Martin was chosen president of the district, and was authorized to appoint the time when and the place where the next conference will meet. Conference voted to petition General Conference to send Bro. Hiram Holt to labor in Minnesota. The president was authorized to appoint a committee of brethren and sisters to solicit contributions to buy a tent for the use of the district. Sunday morning at half past 10, preaching by T. J. Martin. Sacrament meeting at half-past 2 p. m., an enjoyable time was had; God's Spirit was present. Preaching in the evening by Bro. Way. His discourse was ably handled.

NAUVOO AND STRING PRAIRIE.

This district conference met in the Saints' Church at Keokuk, Iowa, December 3d, 1887, James McKiernan president, and George P. Lambert clerk. Branch reports:—Keokuk 42, 2 baptized. Rock Creek 43, no change. Burlington 73, 2 baptized, 3 received by letter, 4 removed by letter, 1 died. Montrose 90, 1 baptized, 2 died. Farmington 54, 1 baptized. Elders reports:—James McKiernan, president of the district, had preached at Millersburg, Blandensville, Rock Creek, Camp Creek, Keokuk, Montrose, Burlington and Farmington; had baptized 5. J. H. Lambert, H. T. Pitt, B. F. Durfee and Samuel Ferris reported labor, mostly of a local character. Priest A. A. Hall reported. H. D. Ennis, J. H. Jacobs, and H. T. Pitt audited the Bishop's Agent's accounts and reported as follows:—Balance on hand six months ago $33.21. Received since $124.70. Total $157.91. Paid out $108; balance on hand December 3d, 1887, $49.91. J. McKiernan, B. F. Durfee and J. H. Lambert were appointed a committee to draft an article concerning the late O. P. Dunham, deceased. Alanson Wells gave notice of an appeal from the decision of the last conference in his case. J. H. Lambert was requested to visit the branches of the district during the next three months as bishop's agent. Elder J. McKiernan was elected president of the district for the next six months, and G. P. Lambert secretary. Preaching Saturday evening by J. Salisbury, Sunday at 10:30 by J. H. Lambert, and in the evening by J. McKiernan. At 9 a. m. Sunday, held prayer meeting, and at 2 p. m. sacrament. The weather was very unfavorable, yet the conference was a success. Adjourned to meet at Farmington, Saturday, March 3d, 1888, at 10:30 a. m.

Miscellaneous.

PASTORAL NOTICE.

To all Whom it May Concern; The Saints in my Ministerial Charge Special, Greeting:—I am neither "lost," "strayed," nor "stolen," and by these presents do hereby notify of location and "whereabouts." At this writing am engaged in defending the cause of Prince Emanuel in the Northern Minnesota district, a part of the charge assigned me as a field of labor, and am so far safe, and in the enjoyment of good health and the good Spirit.

As I have been credibly informed, one J. L. Pride, once of North Freedom, Wisconsin, is unlawfully engaged in representing the work in Dakota and elsewhere, I hereby notify the Saints and all Herald readers, That said J. L. Pride is not now a member of the church, and has no right to represent the church at all, and all baptisms done by him are null and void; and that if he preaches or baptizes, he does so upon his own responsibility and not by authority from the church, he having been excommunicated for cause, at North Freedom, Wisconsin. Hence let all Saints take warning and be not deceived. I trust all lovers of truth and fair dealing will aid in this matter, and see to it that no further harm is done to the work.

So far as heard from, or reported to me, the cause of our glorious Captain is in a flourishing condition, and grand and noble results are pending all along the line. My field is so large I could only post sentinels along at intervals. Did I meditate an universal attack, my forces would only amount to a Vidette Picket line; so I must be content with such service. I ask the hearty co-operation of all within my jurisdiction, and as I see by letter in the Herald some labor is contemplated in the borders of Illinois by one of the banner bearers who does not know whose territory he intends laboring in, please announce or tell it to all Zion's defenders, that Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota, and Manitoba as a field is in charge of the undersigned, and he cordially invites soldiers of Zion to lift high our holy banner and let the welkin ring with shouts of victory all along the line.

Come over brethren. Come in the name of Israel's Lord, strike whenever and wherever opportunity presents. Strike for freedom from sin and the servitude of sin. Strike till the strongholds of the adversary are broken down, and the towers of Zion are reared and shine most gloriously in the light of our coming Redeemer. 'Tis a royal conflict, and must needs be fought by stalwart men, who merit a place in the front ranks of the glorious kingdom of our God. On, brethren! On to victory, and then we'll reign with Jesus triumphantly! Hallelujah; amen.

ALEX. HALE SMITH.

Clitherall, Ottertail Co., Minn.
Dec. 19th, 1887.

NOTICES.

Complaint has been made against Elder Caleb Blodgett, Hiram Blodgett, Alexander Blodgett and Mary Blodgett, and they are hereby notified to report to the undersigned president of the Central Missouri district on or before the third day of March, 1888, or action will be taken against them by the district.

W. L. BOOKER, Pres. of Dist.
M. A. TROTTER, Secy.

Notice is hereby given to the scattered members of the Farmington branch of the String Prairie and Nauvoo district to report to the clerk of the branch by letter or in person within sixty days after publication of this notice, or they will be reported as scattered members. Their names are: George W. Brooks high priest, John W. C. Spillman, Emma Spillman, John Fisher, William Short, Martha Short, Emmerson Brown, Mary Brown, John Wilson, Sarah R. Wilson, Isaac McKiernan, Margaret McKiernan, Charles H. Lake, Mary J. McEwen, Carrie Pearl Lake, Henry Harris, Emma F. Dahlman, Viola Bell Smith, Amanda Hienburg.

HARRIET MCKIERNAN clerk,
Farmington, VanBuren county, Iowa.

Whereas at the conference held in Kewanee district, Illinois, November 26th, 1887, Bro. R. J. Benjamin tendered his resignation as Bishop's agent; said conference accepted the same subject to the Bishop's approval, and recommended Bro. John Chisnall as Bishop's agent.

I therefore appoint Bro. John Chisnall as agent for said District, and commend him to the Saints as such and that they may sustain him by their means and prayers, is the prayer of your brother in Christ.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,
Presiding Bishop.

BORN.

SHEEHY.—At Lisbon Falls, Maine, November 30th, 1887, to Bro. Moses and Sr. Susie Sheehy, a daughter.

MARRIED.

BURTON—BETTS.—At the house of the bride's parents, Newport, California, by Elder J. R. Badham, February 22d, 1887, Bro. Frank W. Burton to Sr. Annie E. Betts.

DIED.

WOOLSCROFT.—At Cleveland, Iowa, October 7th, 1887, of spinal disease, May, infant daughter of James and Sr. Mary Woolscroft, granddaughter of Bro. James and Sr. Elizabeth Tanner, aged 6 months and 4 days. Blessed by elder W. W. Blair. Funeral services were conducted by elder John Watkins.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT?

The liquor power is in politics. What are you going to do about it? It holds the balance of power in the two old parties, and insolently dictates the course of both. What are you going to do about it? It consumes wealth, and produces none. It lives on the appetites and cravings of its victims, and slowly murders thousands every year. It robs the poor man of his earnings, the wife of her husband, the children of their father. It is the curse of curses and the gigantic crime of crimes. What are you going to do about it?

The voice of a Christian nation has said that the saloon must die, and die it will. The question must be settled, and it can be settled only at the ballot-box. The saloons exist by law, and by law they must be destroyed.

Will you hasten the day of emancipation from the thralldom of rum? You can make your vote count in history by voting against the saloon next Tuesday. Thousands of upright Christian men will stand up on election day and say "the saloon must go." On the day after the election, the people of this nation will know that so many thousands in Pennsylvania are against the saloons because they had the courage of their convictions by going to the polls. Vote for Prohibition.

Too much can not well be said just now by the press and from the pulpit against admitting Utah. There is a rumor afloat that one political party has already bargained with the Mormon priesthood for this end. A stirring up of popular indignation may prevent it, but unless the moral force of the nation is brought to bear upon Congress soon it is forever too late. Once admitted, popular indignation might punish the guilty legislators, but could not undo the work of turning loose polygamy in Utah.

Petitions are being circulated asking the Senate and House of Representatives of Congress "Not to allow Utah to become a State as long as the local civil power of the territory remains in the hands of the Mormon priesthood"—Sol.

Twelve Sermons for 25 cents.

In January, 1888,

THE LAMONI GAZETTE

will be enlarged to an eight column paper, devoted to general and local news, and will begin the publication of monthly supplements, containing full reports of Sermons selected from those delivered at Lamoni and at the

GENERAL CONFERENCES,

which will be reported especially for us.

Gazette, without supplement, per year....$1 25
Gazette, with supplement, per year.....$1 50

Send for sample copy.

LAMBERT & HANSEN,

nov26tf Lamoni, Iowa.

150 TOWN LOTS.

I am prepared to furnish any one wanting a lot, either Business or Residence, in LAMONI, at low prices and very easy terms. Some fine acre pieces also. Call on or address

J. W. DENOON, M.D., Lamoni.

20aug3m

BIBLE SYNOPSIS.

The remainder of my "Bible Synopsis" will be sold at $1.25 each, and 25 cents less to all ministers of the gospel, free of postage. Every family should have one. The Synopsis is an arrangement of Scriptures under different headings. The principal passages treating on each subject are arranged to read in connection, with book, chapter and verse. Over sixty subjects are thus arranged, with portrait of the author. I want agents in every branch. Send money by Post Office Money Order, or for single book a $1 bill and 25 cents in stamps. Good profits to agents. Address,

J. J. CORNISH,
REED CITY, OSCEOLA CO., MICH.

THE GOSPEL PACKAGE,

Containing one copy of the Voice of Warning, an assortment of Tracts, recipes, etc., by mail for 35c in stamps. W. C. LANYON, LAMONI, IOWA.

ZION'S HOPE

Is published every Saturday by the Church of Christ, at Lamoni, Iowa. Single copies, per year, 50c; packages of four to ten 40c; packages of over ten 35c.

ELEGANT AND USEFUL

FOR THE OFFICE,

STUDY OR LIBRARY.

No. 2.

THE JOHNSON REVOLVING BOOK CASE.

WITH INDEPENDENT SHELVES ADJUSTABLE TO BOOKS OF ANY HEIGHT.

(A SUPERB PRESENT.)

INVALUABLE TO

Lawyers, Clergymen, Physicians,
Editors, Bankers, Teachers,
Merchants, Students,
and all who read Books.

CHEAPEST! STRONGEST! BEST!

Made of Iron, finished in black, with beautiful gilt ornamentation, it cannot warp, check, split, get out of order, or wear out. Each shelf, 16 in. square, will hold 16 vols. size of Appleton's Cyclopaedia. Holds more books in less space than any other device.

No. 1, For Table, to hold 1 tier of books,...	$10.00
" 2, " " " 2 tiers " " "	12.00
" 3, " " " 3 " " "	12.00
" 4, " " " 4 " " "	15.00
" 4, " " " 4 " " "	18.00

The best size for general use is No. 3.

Shipped, carefully packed, on receipt of price.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED.

Descriptive price list containing testimonials Free. Illustrated Catalogue of Stationery and Novelties, nearly 200 pages, sent on receipt of 25 cts.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO.,
7 Bond Street, New York, N. Y.

J. H. HANSEN, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Will practice in Lamoni and vicinity; calls made at all hours. Office in Drug Store of Hansen & Walker, Lamoni
MIDWIFERY and DISEASES of WOMEN a Specialty
Residence one block East Teal's Store. 14febly

LADIES or Gents, Girls or Boys, wanted in Europe and America, to sell our Folding Bustles, Portable Bed-springs, Tidy Holders, Sewing Machine Relief Springs, &c. For terms, address Bro. B. F. Ordway, Peoria, U.S.A.; or Bro. Henry Tabbiner, 2 Grafton-st., Hanley, England. 6aug

Price - - - - $1.25 per year.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

We wish to notify our friends who have sent in their names for Autumn Leaves that we expect to get out the first or January number about December 15th, and trust that none who have sent us their names will fail to forward the money as soon as convenient. Send by bank check on Chicago, Illinois, P. O. money order on Lamoni, Iowa, Express Check, or registered letter, at our risk. We can not be responsible for money sent in unregistered letters or by Postal Note. Let our friends bear in mind that we are depending entirely upon their promise of money when called for, and trust they will be prompt in sending the same. Address all letters to

M. WALKER,
Lamoni, Decatur County, Iowa.

WHEN YOU TRAVEL

Take the
Line selected by the United States Government to carry the Fast Mail,—the

As it is the Line running Through Trains to and from the following cities and towns on its own Lines:

- CHICAGO,
- AURORA, OTTAWA,
- STREATOR, ROCKFORD, DUBUQUE,
- LA CROSSE, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS,
- MENDOTA, PEORIA, GALESBURG, ST. LOUIS,
- QUINCY, KEOKUK, BURLINGTON, WASHINGTON,
- OSKALOOSA, DES MOINES, CHARITON,
- CRESTON, ST. JOSEPH, ATCHISON,
- KANSAS CITY, NEBRASKA CITY,
- OMAHA, COUNCIL BLUFFS,
- LINCOLN & DENVER,

Making Direct Connections

TO AND FROM

- NEW YORK,
- BALTIMORE, WASHINGTON,
- CINCINNATI, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
- NEW ORLEANS, LOUISVILLE, SAN FRANCISCO,
- LOS ANGELES, SALT LAKE CITY, COLORADO AND PACIFIC COAST RESORTS, CITY OF MEXICO,
- PORTLAND, OREGON, MANITOBA,
- VICTORIA AND PUGET SOUND POINTS.

Good Equipment,
Good Service,
Good Connection.

For information concerning the Burlington Route, apply to the nearest Ticket Agent of the C., B. & Q. or connecting railroads.

HENRY B. STONE, PAUL MORTON,
General Manager, Gen'l Pass. & Ticket Agt.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Train Leaves Lamoni, Going East at 1:45 p.m.
Do. do. West 2:53 "

At Bethany Junction, 3 miles east of Lamoni
Trains pass going South at 3:07 a.m. Going East and West, pass at 12:10 a.m.

INDEX TO VOL. XXXIV.

EDITORIALS.

Aaronic Priesthood, D. Whitmer 633

Anarchist, The 778

And Found Wanting 353, 369, 385, 401.

Book of D. & C. Approved. 1

Brown, W. P. 2

Brigham and the Battalion. 442

Brigham vs. Joseph 257

Brighamism in a Tight Place 288

Brighamite Succession 649, 712

Canright, D. M. 242

Can We take the Oath 177

Cent. Per Centum 489

Coming of Christ 426

Coming of the Lord 66

Commanding Herald 17

Comments, Woodruff's Epistle 713

Compensation Coming 779

Controversy Necessary 489

Consent of the People 760

Cunning Craft 405

Date of Crucifixion 35

Death of Gen. A. W. Doniphan 554

Death of John Taylor 506

Dedication at Armstrong 210

Every one His Own Duty. 147

Forbidding Polygamy 473

Forscut on Lamb 650

Gathering 101

Globe-Democrat 101

Harsh Reunion 697

Harsh Measures 65

Hazy Starlight 634

Head of Church 715

Holy Spirit 441

How Readest Thou 457

In the Ark 328

Jefferson's Religion 444

Josephite Hate to Mormons 572

Justice to the Indian 273

Kirtland Conference 101

Luse in Limbo 522

Lamoni, Why Made, &c. 522

Many Micks make a Muckle Marriages, Who may Perform 813

Mixing the Smiths 553

Mormons For Canada 571

Must Stay Out 473

Notable Mormon Dead, A. 537

Number of Brighamites 683

Persecution and Causes 18, 33, 49, 274, 305, 417, 569, 585, 601, 619, 682, 730, 746, 780.

Personal Cleanliness 257

Popular Objection Answered 745

Press Forward 664

Priest's Duty 49

Professing Believers 390

Progress of Protestantism. 604

Public Debts, National 19

Quibbling Mormons 194

Reformed Egyptian 195

Reorganization 65

Repentance 808

Restoration of Israel 81

Ridiculous 681

Room for Honesty 227

See to This 777

Seventeenth Section D. of C. 241

Shall the Saints Vote 810

Spirit Counterfeits 812

Sprinkling 17

Star of Bethlehem 426

Sunday, The Rest Day 192

Sustain Church Press 587

Sydney Rigdon in the Faith 506

Testimony and Prayer Meeting 779

The Law Abolished 241

The Negro Race 164

The Oath, Possible Results 224

Toleration in Turkey 426

Tribune on Codman 571

Truth vs. Cannon 616

Unjust Steward 441

Utah Statehood 464

Visit to Liberty Jail 209

Weighted in the Balance. 97

What Has the Reorganization Done 337

What was suppressed 793

Whitmer D. 113, 129, 145, 161, 178, 195.

Whitmer-Snyder 17

Who Succeeds J. Taylor. 521

COMMUNICATIONS.

About the Devil 30

Active Duties 347

A Rebellious Church 155

Are There not Two Sides. 365

Attention Comrades 158

Baptism of Ancient Origin. 365

Bay Port Row, The 249

Benefits of Religion 502

Brown's, W. P., Tract 500

Charity 173

Choice Seer, The 609

Christmas Box Please 835

Church and Her Leaders, The 594

Church and Prohibition, The 582

Civilization 769

Commending the Herald. 140

Co-operation 510

Creation 530

Cyclones 433

Datguddiad 487

Death, G. S. Hyde 11

Decoration Day Address. 93

Definite Praying 204

Dispensation of Fulness of Times 56, 75, 86

Drive Them Out 267

Efficacy of God's Word 499

Encourage Home Ministry. 239

Epistle of Twelve 154, 302

Epistolary, A. H. Parsons. 455

Epistolary, G. W. Shute. 454

Erudition 533

Expositor, The 109

Fall of Man, The 578

Fate of Untaught Souls. 189

Fault Finding—What is it. 204

Generation, A 450

God's Children 499

Gospel Faith, The 849

Gurley Movement, The 106

Healing 15

Heed the Warning 501

Historical 238

How Came there to be an Established Church 642, 657

How I Became a Saint 673

Humility 44

Ill Health 344

Is Baptism Essential 807

Israel in Japan 411

Joseph's Land 142

Justification by Faith 65

Kirtland Temple 187, 344

Least and Greatest 451

Leaves from Tree of Life 10, 28, 137

Letter from T. W. Smith. 483

Lost Israel Found 140, 201, 689, 707

Man, By Elvin 722, 739

Melchisedec Priesthood. 378

Mercy in Elders' Courts. 74

Modern Pentecost, The 59

Mystery of Life 482

News from Palestine 268

Notes by the Way 497

O, the Shams of it 846

Pastoral, E. C. Briggs 823

Pastoral, H. C. Smith 367

Pastoral, James Caffall 382, 808

Pastoral, J. R. Lambert. 334

Pastoral, R. J. Anthony. 439

Pastoral, A. H. Smith 854

Perfect Law 548

Plea for Justice 12

Present Truth, The 280

Presidency, Endowments, &c 327

Power of Love 452

Pride 364, 411, 514, 547

Problems of Labor 451

Prophetic Gleams 544, 563

Reply to Criticism 43

Revolution—Official 259

Review, Thoughts on Prophet-ic Times 346

Reasonings 451

Reflections and Labor 596

Reorganization vs. K. of L. 549

Righteousness 549

Secret Orders 596

Shall we Doctor 438, 481, 547, 609

Shall we Use Tobacco 707

Simony, Or Christian Science 287

Spickardville Debate 394

Spiritual Communications. 281

Tahitians and Panmotuans 363

Temporal Things 785

Testimony of E. C. Briggs 174

The Church of Christ 26

The Gospel 123

The Other Side 738

The Rock 85

The Sabbath as I see it 187

Thoughts on Prophetic Time 171

To Elder D. S. Crawley 721

Type of Holy Baptism 202, 219, 236, 250, 265

Vision, A 674

Voice from Center Stake. 327

Was it Necessary for Christ to die 627

What Shall we Preach 122

What Think Ye of Christ. 434

Wheat and Tares Parable. 580

Whitmer, D. & J. C., Letters from 89

Whitmerism, Brownism Which 770

Who are his Seed 437

Who Did Sin 853

Who Shall be Church Growler 125

Witness of the Spirit 217

Woman and Her Child 753, 833

Woman, the Weaker Vessel 852

Woolley's, Sr., Letter 512

Would we be Bound 705

MARRIAGES.

Angell—Archibald 695

Bacus—Smith 455

Barnes—Andrews 791

Batcheler—Bryce 15

Beam—Kemish 207

Bishop—Holmes 63

Blakeley—Arnold 31

Bowker—Way 63

Bowman—Collins 823

Briggs—Armstrong 471

Briggs—Moore 743

Brunso—Strickland 31

Burton—Betts 855

Campbell—Kemp 335

Cato—Bierly 111

Cheney—Donaldson 583

Cook—Booth 679

Cope—Light 455

Davis—Powell 270

Etzenhouser—Warnky 335

Garner—Gamet 319

George—Gill 681

Gray—Rogerson 319

Griffin—Tabbutt 743

Harknell—Baxter 535

Hendra—Williams 335

Hidy—Bear 567

Joy—Smith 319

Kelley—Swarthout 678

Kennedy—Smith 519

Lawrence—Kendall 487

Masters—Andrew 647

McLane—Love 15

McNamara—Briggs 727

Morgans—Yates 823

Needham—Hills 615

Newkirk—Lytle 319

Olson—Rodger 255

Rannie—Rumel 679

Ray—Clark 46

Rehwald—Obine 63

Rodger—Jackson 15

Rumel—Holland 823

Shakespeare—Willets 127

Shaw—Bentley 63

Shaw—Whitmore 49

Stratton—Billinsky 399

Thomas—Johnson 367

Thompson—Bruster 63

Weld—Smith 631

POETRY.

A Curious Agreement 561

A Dream 765

An Invocation 574

Be Careful 671

Blessings of Jesus 507

Church, The 507

Crystal Lake, The 790

Days are not Always Clouded 263

Days of Night, The 472

Golden Side, The 467

Gospel Echo, The 534

Hollow of His Hand 221

Is it Worth While 574

Legend, The Beautiful 36

Loved and Lost, The 268

Oh, If I Could 636

Only One, There's 429

Poem for All Hearts 70

Poor Man's Sheaf, The 817

Regret 790

Rest Awhile 83

Self Examination 36

Song of Endless Life 788

Song of Zion 76

Thanksgiving 764

The Two Paths 201

Wanted 447

We Get Along 467

Which is the Promise 673

CONFERENCES.

Albama 142, 367, 518, 695

Birmingham 535

Central California 78, 383, 711

Central Kansas 158, 383, 583, 759

Central Missouri 352, 486, 614, 853

Central Nebraska 78, 286, 648

Decatur 126, 222, 439, 807

Des Moines 14, 223, 663

Eastern Iowa 270, 743

Eastern Maine 176, 727

Eastern Wales 663

Far West 14, 249, 518, 615, 839

Florida 270, 454, 631, 854

Frontem 222, 454, 775

Galland's Grove 110, 222, 550

General 291, 311, 331, 347

Independence 47, 252, 678

Kent and Elgin 471, 727

Kewanee 78, 255, 518, 647, 854

London 142, 630, 807

Little Sioux 14, 207, 584, 791

Malad 839

Massachusetts 206, 502, 710

Mobile 366

Nauvoo and String Prairie 240, 647

Nevada 47

Nodaway 269, 743

Northern California 254

Northern Illinois 158, 486, 791

Northern Michigan 743

Northern Minnesota 110, 470

Northern Nebraska 255, 759

N. E. Missouri 47, 206, 615

N. Ind. & S. Mich 502, 775

N. W. Kansas 78, 351, 486, 710

Nova Scotia 679

Philadelphia 230, 710

Pittsburg and Kirtland 141, 647

Pottawattamie 253, 695

S. E. Illinois 47, 351, 440, 678

S. E. Ohio and W. Va. 191, 679

Southern California 239, 774

Southern Indiana 255, 630

South Sea Islands 253

Spring River 176, 486

St. Louis 110, 318, 550, 695

S. Nebraska 110, 351, 583, 775

Tennessee and Kentucky 191, 631

Texas Central 366, 614, 807

Utah 270

West Florida 14

Western Maine 270, 503, 663

Welsh Mission 191, 486, 518

Western Wales 663

Western Wisconsin 158

Wisconsin 31

Wyoming 191, 471

NOTICES.

Appointment A. W. Thompson 15

Appointment D. L. Harris, W. Gibson 63

Appointment H. L. Holt and others 595

Bishop's Agents Appointed 302

Bishop's Agt. J. T. Williams 38

Bishop's Agent Appointment 855

Bishop's Annual Report 413

Bishop to Elders 63

Bishop's Aut. Decatur Dis. 79

Central California 176, 583

Central Kansas 100

Central Missouri 111, 471

Correction, Epistle Twelve 127

Decatur Conference 127

Decatur District, E. Banta 64, 111, 334, 615

Des Moines 142, 519

Elders and Others, To 111

Elders, 2d Quorum 192

Eastern Maine & Nova Scotia 503

Expelled, Anderson 191

Far West 711

Fifth Quorum Elders 79, 127

First Quorum Elders 140

First Quorum Priests 96

Fourth Quorum Elders 96, 160

Fremont District 63, 79, 334, 615

General Conference 96, 127, 142, 192

High Priests 127

Independence District 111, 568

Kent and Elgin 318, 599, 662

Kewanee District 160, 412, 791

Lamoni Chapel Report 111

Little Sioux 351

Manchester England 192, 503

Massachusetts District 15, 615

Missionary Appointments for 1857 277

Mobile Dis. Conf. 271

Nauvoo & String Prairie 791

Nodaway District 160, 568

North-East Missouri 127, 487, 759

Northern Illinois Dist 79, 351, 631

Northern Indiana 631

Northern Michigan 313, 662

Northern Minnesota 583

North-West Kansas 351

Nova Scotia 383

Philadelphia District 111

Pittsburg Conference 32, 568

Pottawattamie District 127, 519, 679

Recorder To Ministry 63

Recorder To Scattered Members 567

Report of Committee Independence 62

Reunion 615

Salt Lake District 142

Seventeenth Section D. of C. 232

Seventy, To 111, 519

Southern Ohio 46, 455

Southern California 631

Southern Eastern Illinois 568

Southern Indiana 366, 568, 679

Southern Michigan 334

Southern Nebraska 471, 662

Tent Question 96

Texas Central District 383, 631

Third Quorum Elders 160

To Appear 775

To Appear, Clark, Moler 455

To Appear, Kanauss 251

To Report 679

To Report, B. J. Varner, &c 383

To Report, Caleb Brodgett, &c 854

To Report, G. W. Brooks, &c 854

To Report, Sellers 727

To Saints Northern Mich. 823

Western Maine 142, 318, 583

West Tennessee & Kentucky 471

West Wisconsin 46, 335

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN.

A Man Known by Company 166

Anadabia Joshee 323

Are there Two Ways 427

Bear ye Others Burdens 556, 573

By others Faults Correct Your Own 407

Children in the Home 309

Come Ye Out 475

Contentment 278

Dress 718

Encouragement 135

Face Your Trouble 198

Faithful over Few 446

Future of our Girls, The 244

Go not to Glean in Another Field 828

Home 507

I Must be About my Father's Business 701

I must Work while 392

Incidents of Travel 325

Individual Work 764, 782

Is it Lawful 181

It is I, Be not Afraid 148

Make Room for the Boys 668

Mothers 51

Mother of Moses 359, 373

Mother's Place 588

Mother to Her Boys 652

Passing Year, The 844

Reading for the Young 539

Reserve Your Nerves 636

Retrospect 20

Retrospective Glance 256

Right Place, The 446

Shall we Pay it 507

Something to Say to Simon 290

Steadily Forward 102

Stones of Memorial 668

The New Year 5

Views from Pisgah 684

Watchman What of the Night 277

Where hast Thou Gleaned 621

SELECTIONS.

A Century's Growth 679

Assassination of Joseph 164

Book of Mormon, Plain Dealer 491

Boom in Holy Land 13

Boys Beware 709

Burton, Macleay Chronicle. 117

Confucius on Revenge 677

Convicts Appeal 508

Correction K. C. News 594

Christian Faith among Hindoos 268

Conditional Immortality 838

Conference Items, Plain Dealer 243

Date of Crucifixion 206

Earth after Millennium 724

End of this Age 612

Find in Syria 582

Fixing End of World 700

Fresh Air, Ventilation 48

Hann's Mill Massacre 693

Headquarters of Josephites 660

Holiness Faith, Statement of 666

Improvements in Palestine 3

Ingersollism and Young men 598

Kate Field in Utah 69

Light for the Times 166

Modern Style Persecution 515

Mormonism in East 275

Mormons in Missouri 804, 836

Mormon Researches 786

Mound Builders or Who 445

Nobility of Apologizing 629

Observations on the Apocalypse by Sir Isaac Newton 674

One Wife taken Three left 13

Perilous Times Last Days 157

Polygamia 666

Premature Old Age 598

Pre-millennialists 516

Prohibition, Some Results 445

Reminiscences, C. W. Short 79

Return to Primitive Christianity 700

Russia and Eastern Question 283

Russia's Strength and Weakness 756

Pernicious Literature 678

Preach-ers' Vacations 471

Speak to the Point 710

Spiritism 771

Spiritualism 433

Star of Bethlehem 205

Successful Preaching 678

The Humble Exalted 13

The Jew in History 175

The Old Sabbath 44

Tobacco and Effects 516

To Prevent Divorces 519

To Stop Illegal Voting 210

Try The Spirits 819

Two Grand Mysteries 485

Utah Evils and Remedy 45

War Impending 475

Where Pensions Come in 475

Why am I a Heathen? 692