VISIT TO LIBERTY JAIL, MISSOURI.

"There's a chieftain among ye takin' notes,
And faith he'll print 'em."

THE editor has been in Zion; and this is what he saw and heard, as the word goes. He reached the city of Independence from Armstrong, over the "L" (Elevated) railroad, taking it at Riverview; which means that one can see the Kaw (Kansas) and the Missouri (Big Muddy) rivers from the spot where the station is located. He arrived at three o'clock p.m. on Monday, March 14th, and began at once a leisurely survey of the city and its environments.

The wisdom of the charge to purchase all the land that could be bought for money, between the Court-house and the western border of the state, is having a strange, and to some a very trying demonstration, in the astonishing advance in the prices asked and the demand for those very lands; in some instances reaching the enormous sum of thousands of dollars per acre. An eighty acre tract of land lying within a mile of the Court-house selling for one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars. But this, interesting as it may be, is not so important to the Saints as the fact that there is in Independence a branch of the church now numbering about five hundred; a zealous, active, law-loving people; emulative of good works, and alive to the best interests of our common work. Bro. Joseph Luff is at present in the presiding charge, and is supported ably and well by the local ministry. There is a very enviable harmony among the brethren regarding the essential work to be done; and the most commendable efforts are being put forth to accomplish what has been determined upon, when once that is decided. The one absorbing topic among the Saints is the building of their contemplated house of worship. There are many reasons why this house should be built, and that as soon as practicable. The wishes of a host of Saints are centering in and about the city; a great interest is dependent upon having a place sufficiently large to accommodate a much larger congregation than can possibly get into the building that they now meet in; and the utmost anxiety exists that the Latter Day Saints who are settling in and around Independence, shall prove themselves to be citizens, good not only in intent and purpose, but in accomplishment; this will require that they keep pace with their necessities as a congregation. They now have the largest regular attendance at worship of any denomination in the city, and this would be very much increased from those without were it not known that there was almost always on fair days a crowded house, thus making it to appear to them who would come that they were imposing upon the regular habitues by crowding them out and occupying their places—the world being not unmindful of courtesy and kindly thought in such cases.

A committee composed of energetic and pushing men who are in the habit of putting all their forces into their work has been appointed, and so far the best of harmony exists between them. The plan which has been adopted is a good one, and if the house is finished according to it none will need to be ashamed of the work; either in design, or finish. It will be large, splendidly located and beautiful, just as in our opinion it should be. We were told that some obtained an idea from what we wrote in a former HERALD that we were not friendly to the effort to build. This was a great mistake; for we are decidedly in favor of it and shall lend what aid we can.

We attended one service of the Saints, on Monday evening the 14th, and spent the rest of the week following in visiting, from house to house, administering to the sick, and viewing the city and surrounding country. The measles as an epidemic was having a run in the city, in some instances whole families being down from its attacks. At Kansas City it had taken on a virulent form, and the Health Officers had ordered the places where it was to be placarded to prevent its spread. At Independence it had not been so fatal, the most of those taking it getting along well with home care and the administration of the Elders.

On Friday the 18th, we availed ourself of an opportunity to visit the historic town of Liberty, in Clay county, and see the Jail in which the men who escaped the order to be shot were confined, about which so much of interest among the Saints must ever center. A little party consisting of brethren Alexander H. Smith, Stephen Maloney, Frederick C. Warnkey, John W. Brackenbury and the editor, drove across the country in an open buggy, crossing the Missouri river at the Blue Mill's Ferry, on a primitive flat boat propelled by horses treading an endless chain-power. The day was pleasant, the company was congenial, all being fully in accord in gospel bonds; the occasion was an auspicious one, and the ride and its incidents will always live in the memory of those who participated in them. We reached the town at a little after eleven o'clock, and at once enquired for the Jail. A gentleman, whom we met at a turn of the Square, kindly showed us to it. We found that the original block house, made of large squared logs, had been enclosed with an outer wall of hewn stone, almost obliterating the identity of it, as it was when the brethren were confined there. The western wall had succumbed to the pelting of the storms and had tumbled outward leaving the logs exposed to view; the roof had rotted away at its supports, and had fallen inward leaving the eastern gable standing without support, and liable to fall at any time; indeed, so precarious seemed the standing of the whole stone structure that one or two of the brethren thought that we ought to be very wary lest we were caught in the fall of it. After we had examined it at some length we went to the Arthur House, the leading hotel of the place, and had a most excellent dinner, for which our ride in the raw eastern wind had given us a good appetite. We then visited the College Hill where there is a Seminary and a College for the purpose of educating men for the ministry, we think of the Baptist order, over which we were shown by two of the students, very kindly and pleasantly. From the cupola of the College there is a view surpassed for beauty by none that we ever saw; south, east and west, the undulating landscape gave rise to the thought that it was one of the fairest portions of God's heritage to man. From this imposing view we returned to the Jail, and Bro. F. C. Warnky, having enlisting the services of the resident photographer, took views of the Jail and the lot in which it is located, we five brethren making the animated part of the picture. Having secured these negatives, we returned to the city whence we started well pleased with the day's venture.

The gentleman, Mr. Riley, whom we so fortunately met, and who so kindly piloted us to the Jail, was born in the county of Clay, some eight miles from Liberty in 1838. He remembered hearing the troublous times talked over by his father and others, and when we informed him who we were, he showed an interest in giving us all the information concerning the locality that he could. He evidently told others who we were, for we soon found ourselves the objects of a good deal of observation and curiosity.

Bro. Warnky in hunting for the Photographer, met a Mr. Miller, who said that his father, as a deputy sheriff, we think, was at one time in charge of the prisoners at the time that the brethren were confined in the Jail, and he denied with some heat the statement made in the history, that they were fed on "mule meat." He pronounced this statement as being false. We did not meet him, but we are pleased that the son has such a conception of the enormity of the treatment alleged to have been accorded to those confined for the sake of their religion in his father's care, as to deny bitterly the allegation of mistreatment; we have not a wish to repeat the sad stories of the times—let them pass.

The town of Liberty, like Kansas City and Independence, is enjoying a "boom" in real estate, and its inhabitants are dreaming golden dreams, some of which will be realized without doubt. There is a leading railway company grading a roadway through the town to Kansas City, and a syndicate of moneyed men have projected a boulevard a hundred feet wide from Liberty to the city, via Randolph, a new suburban town located on the north side of the big river opposite. It is thus intended to meet the operations of the Missouri Pacific whose interests are being extended from Kansas City eastward, through Independence. If one half the anticipations are realized there will be an influx of a quarter of a million of people into that region within the next two years.

We visited the Saints of Kansas City on Sunday the 20th, in company with Bro. Warnkey, and spoke to them in their chapel 1,914, Troost Avenue. The attendance was not large, but the interest was good and we were refreshed to meet with them. We dined with brother and sister Smeutze, and returned to Independence in time to witness a baptism and attend the evening service at which we spoke to the people, a large and very attentive audience. One of the most pleasant things that we saw or heard was the singing of the choir at Independence, under the lead of brother F. W. Barbee. We do not remember to have ever heard and enjoyed a better service of song, than that had at this evening meeting. We can not commend them too heartily, for it is evident that they must have spent time and effort to become efficient—trying to sing with the understanding as well as in the spirit. May the sweet singers in Israel take courage and prosecute their study of music to a grand success. We parted with the brethren on the morning of the 21st, with a renewed determination to continue to labor for the redemption of Zion, and the gathering in of the "Elect of God."

Bro. Warnky proposes to put the photographs of the jail at Liberty into the hands of the Sisters' Aid Society, of Independence, to be sold to those desiring them, for the benefit of their new church at that place. As soon as they are ready, notice will be given, when all who desire them will be supplied from some one whose address will be published with the statement of price.

DEDICATION AT ARMSTRONG.

IT is with pleasure we state that the dedication of the church at Armstrong, Kansas, was a success. We reached the town, a straggling hamlet lying along the tops and sides of the bluffs on the north side of the Kaw (Kansas) river, adjacent to the shops of the Union Pacific Railway, on Saturday, the 12th of March, at three in the afternoon, finding a temporary resting place at the home of Bro. Joseph Emmett, the presiding elder of the Armstrong branch, a genial, pleasant man, young in spiritual experience, but careful and earnest, and desirous to advance the great cause of the last days. On Sunday, the 13th, at eleven in the forenoon, there was quite a large congregation gathered in the church; there being a number of the Saints from Independence, Missouri, including a portion of the choir, who had been invited to attend and sing, and who rendered good song service. We were permitted to begin the service on time, and were assisted by brethren F. C. Warnky and Alexander H. Smith of Independence, the former offering the opening prayer and the latter the dedicatory prayer. We had a good degree of liberty in the sermon, and are pleased to say that an excellent spirit prevailed during the entire session. A small sum was left due to the building committee, which was raised by a contribution, thus enabling the committee to turn the building over to the branch free from debt, or obligation. The report from committee, which we append, will show the financial condition of the work.

One peculiarity attaching to this church is, on March 10th, 1883, the branch was organized with sixteen members, and at a subsequent meeting held on the 13th of the same month appointed a building committee, who proceeded to secure contributions and erect the building. At the dedication the branch numbered ninety members, showing a very healthy increase indeed. A second meeting was held in the evening, at which there was a good attendance and excellent spirit.

We were much pleased with the reception accorded to us, and with the spirit manifested among the Saints so far as we were permitted to see and converse with them.

REPORT OF TRUSTEES.

We the trustees and building committee give in our report as follows: Our branch was organized March 10th, 1883, with sixteen members; and on the 13th of the same month we determined to build a church here. Bro. Andrew Berg and wife started the project by giving a lot and $50 towards the erection of the building. The brethren here went to work and graded the lot; and in the early part of the succeeding summer we started building the church, which was completed in the latter part of September, at a cost of $1,220,69. The amount collected at that time was $631, making it necessary for us to borrow. We then borrowed the amount of $500, also $69 20 from Bro. William Clow, with which and other donations we were able to pay off the debt for the time being; with the exception of the $500 which was obtained for three years, with interest at ten per cent, which was paid when due, the 27th day of December last, leaving the church free from debt.

In addition to the above we desire to state that we borrowed $100 for three months, drawing $3 interest for that time, assuming the responsibility ourselves, which amount comes due March 27th; also, we have the church insured at a cost of $25 for three years, making in all $128 yet to be paid. We have on hand to pay this amount $88,50, leaving us to make up $39 50, for which we desire a collection to be taken up.

And we herein desire to express our thanks to all who have contributed either in means or labor for the completion of our church.

Signed, G. E. HARRINGTON,
J. J. HARVEY,
ANDREW BERG,
G. F. HEPWORTH.

It was stated by Bro. G. E. Harrington that Bro. William Clow was also one of the committee, but he did not sign the report.—Ed.

THE Salt Lake Tribune of March 17th, in the following pungent statements, lays bare the bad counsels of the Utah leaders in the matter of encouraging believers in polygamy to take the test oath provided in the Edmunds-Tucker anti-polygamy bill and vote:

TO STOP ILLEGAL VOTING.

On Monday night the News returned to the question of "The Oath and Voters' Right," beginning with a taunt to loyal men, the substance of which was that the Mormons were taking the oath, would take it, and what did the loyal men propose to do about it? Some years ago we heard something of the same Tweedism, to the effect that polygamy was a tenet of the Mormon religion, that the brethren proposed to enjoy their right to practice it, and their "enemies" couldn't stop them. Their leaders were blatant and defiant, walked the streets like conquerors, and polygamists were in local rule everywhere; George Q. Cannon was in Congress, and of thirty-six members of the Legislature of 1882, twenty-seven, or three fourths, were polygamists. Yet in five short years these same leaders have become skulking fugitives, afraid of their shadows, dreading a sight of the officers, and the utmost diligence in flight and secret hiding is feverishly availed of by them to keep out of a penitentiary in which they are long past due. Now no polygamist can sit in a Utah Legislature, and no polygamist can even vote. More than this, the organ of the church cries out from time to time in distress at the rigor of the law, and the hardship of punishing men for this crime is mournfully dwelt upon. So tremendous is the change that a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that the criminals can be punished but once for a long series of crime is hailed with hysterical tears of gratitude as a very boon from heaven. It is useful, therefore, to recall the past, when the sneaking taunt comes to the same effect as the bold defiance of but five short years ago. As the change came swift, sweeping away the confidence of that time, and making outcasts and trembling, timorous fugitives of the former rampant knaves, so now there will ensue a reckoning that will yet further humble the base hypocrites who proclaim their settled purpose to carry their points by perjury and evasion, regardless of decency and of the opinion of mankind. We say to them that the will of this Nation will assuredly be carried out, and their refuge of lies and subterfuges of false swearing will be swept away. American institutions will be made to prevail in Utah as elsewhere; and those who resist will be ground to powder. Let the Mormons make no mistake; the lesson of the past four years is but elementary; the higher branches are to come, and the American people will supply them as they are needed.

The News proceeds in its article to quote the opinion of Senator Ingalls and a paragraph from a Supreme Court decision, to show that mere religious opinion may not be interfered with. No authorities were necessary to establish this proposition. No one wants to interfere with mere religious opinion. But the trouble begins just here: The Mormons claim that mere belief is an abstraction, and of no value unless it can be put into practice; that it is a mockery to say their faith is free if they are not allowed to do the works required by that faith; and they thereupon proceed to the practice of polygamy, claiming it is their religion when the laws of the country denounce it as a crime. That is where the clash comes, and the crime is bound to go down.

But, say they, that does not apply to monogamous Mormons; these profess polygamy simply as a faith; they do not practice it at all. But because of the rebelliousness of the Mormon leaders and people, Congress has gone by that point, and requires of electors an oath in which the affiant confesses polygamy, unlawful cohabitation, and other related vileness to be crimes; he is required to abjure them not only for himself, and to swear that he will faithfully obey the act containing the oath, and the law of 1882, but that "he will not, directly or indirectly, aid or abet, counsel or advise any other person to commit said crimes." And yet the News says that persons who take this oath may still advocate and defend polygamy! But whoever advocates and defends polygamy, after taking the oath laid down in the law, advocates and defends what he has abjured as a crime. He is therefore foresworn, and is false and recreant, if words are allowed to have their plain and obvious meaning. What can we say of a man who will under oath renounce polygamy, swear allegiance to laws denouncing it as a crime, and bind himself not to "directly or indirectly aid or abet, counsel or advise any other person to commit any of said crimes," and then turn around and "advocate and defend polygamy," save that he is a perjured wretch? His very advocacy and defense of it could be nothing else than counseling, aiding and abetting others to commit that crime; that could be the only object he would have in "advocating and defending polygamy," it is the very thing aimed against in the law, the very Mormon outlawry sought to be broken up. The News' position in contending that a man may rightfully take that oath and thereafter keep right on advocating polygamy is simply a notice to the brethren that that is what they will be expected to do, and to the world that the Mormons propose to brazen it out on that line. We are sure that the proper answer to that sort of reckless and impudent mendacity will not be long in coming.

As to the right of the registration officers to satisfy themselves by any means in their power that applicants to register are not disqualified, we regard the matter as too plain for any cavil, made so by the Supreme Court decision. It is well enough to add, however, that under the depraved rule set by the church organ as to their oath-taking, the Mormons need not be at all concerned about what is asked of them in the way of oaths or questions; their duty would be to swear to anything and everything necessary to get in their votes. The only way to defeat the proposed campaign of perjury would be in the peremptory rejection of the application to register and of the ballots, of persons known to be trifling with their oaths and with the law. How far such rejections might go would be for every registrar, or judge of election, as the case may be, to decide for himself. As to the judges of election, and their right to challenge, the News holds, as might be expected, that they would be obliged to sit still and see elections carried by obviously false ballots, if no one were by to challenge the illegal voter; its position requires it to say that judges would be obliged to receive the votes of women or of aliens, were no challenger at hand to question their right of suffrage. We disagree to all this, holding that primarily and always it is the duty of the judges of election to secure a pure election, and to that end they may use all their official and personal rights and privileges. To deny this is to argue for their imbecility, and for the suppression of restrictions on unlawful voting. And that is, we suppose, just what the church organ wants. It is also precisely what it will not be allowed to have. Illegal voting must be suppressed, and no pleading for it by a false church will be of any avail.

THIS is what the Clinton (Missouri) Democrat of March 15th has to say of Bro. I. N. White's efforts in Clinton:

"People listened with great interest to Elder White's effort at the Saints' Chapel last night. He spoke from Acts 2: 37-39. Elder White is thoroughly posted in biblical lore. He is a rapid speaker, and holds his congregation in wrapt interest to the last. He fortifies his position with numerous quotations, both from the Bible and church history. His doctrinal points are somewhat radical and aggressive for this age of christianity. His numerous debates with men that have differed from him on doctrine, have caused him to thoroughly post himself on the points of difference, and he sometimes expresses them in a radical form—though in a spirit of kindness. He believes much of the religion of this day is excitement. Thinks men should exercise their own brain in matters of religion. Religion is peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. In a word—'good common sense.' Thinks the ministry is much to blame as they are becoming afraid to preach 'doctrine,' and a majority of converts could not answer the question, 'What shall I do to be saved?'"

"It takes something more to save a man than mere belief. It takes an obedience to the word of God as found in my text. Paul saw Christ in a glorious vision and believed with all his heart that he was the Christ, yet he was told to arise and be baptized and wash away his sins. We ministers are getting too much like our lawyers. They are hired to defend their client, and they work with their might "bending the law" to suit the client's case for the almighty dollar, without much regard to what the real worth of a proper understanding of the law is. Thus ministers hire themselves to their client (church) and try to defend their cause as being in perfect harmony with the law of God. We should be careful as our decision might be set aside when it goes up before the great judge who gave the law. Christ was not very favorably impressed with men who preach wholly for the money that was in it. He said: 'He that is a hireling, [one that preaches for money], and not the shepherd, [one that is not called by the Holy Ghost], whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth, [for a larger salary—another call], and the wolf catcheth them.'—St. John 10: 12. It is a command that we should 'watch as well as pray.' Truth alone is able to save man. "Services every night this week."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote from Decker-ville, Michigan, March 18th, that he baptized six on the 12th at Sigel, and five in Deckerville the 16th. On the 19th he wrote from Bad Axe, saying:

"From the pulpit and the press we hear much about the Bay Port debate, much of which is not true. We try to reply and get the truth before the people. It will all work out for our good bye and bye. We have taken the fort, and by God's help we will hold it."

Bro. Cornish sends in five orders for Heralds and books.

Elder J. Gerrard, of London, England, writes March 3d:

"The brethren of Zion's Hope branch have taken the Immanuel Hall, Old Ford Road, London, and made a very nice hall of it. We have seated it to hold two hundred, and we have a very nice stand; and at the back of it we have built a font for baptisms, nine feet long, three feet wide, and two feet deep. My son, a young man aged seventeen, was the second one that was baptized in it. It cost us £17 for the seats, stand and font, and we have £10 to pay of it, so if you know any kind brother that has a few dollars to spare you might mention it to him. We are in good spirits, and in hopes of doing a good work this summer. May God bless you and all the brethren in the gospel of Christ."

Bro. E. K. Evans writes from St. Thomas, Ontario, March 19th.

"The work is steadily moving onward in this city. We have since last mid-summer added eleven to our number, nine of whom were baptized by Bro. R. C. Evans, two by Bro. George Henley, and confirmed by Elders Phillips and Evans. Bro. John Lake spent a few weeks here recently and did good work in confirming the faith of the new members. Bro. R. C. Evans passed through here to-day on his way to Corinth and Vanessa, from whence he intends going to Kirtland conference. He reports great success in Chatham and Blenheim.

THE Iowa State Register for March 20th copies the entire article on Lamoni and the Latter Day Saints, published in a late issue of the Leon (Iowa) Journal, and called the attention of its readers to it in the following words:

THE MORMONS IN IOWA.

We have in to-day's Register a very interesting article in a hasty review of the origin and rise of the Mormon church, and a detailed account of the division after the death of President Joseph Smith, one wing going to Utah under Brigham Young and adopting polygamy, and the other remaining in the old scenes, and coming finally under the charge of the prophet Smith's son, Joseph, as President. The facts have peculiar Iowa interest, since President Joseph Smith is now a resident of this state, and has a large membership of his church in Decatur county. This article is worthy of general perusal, both because of its historical and current interest, and because it will help to remove an unfounded prejudice so generally prevailing against all Mormons. The Reorganized Mormon church under President Smith not only refrains from endorsing polygamy, but is perhaps the most alert and active enemy that the abomination has. As a church under this President, it is as much entitled to recognition and public favor as any of the many churches of the day, so far as honesty of purpose and action are concerned. President Smith, who is pretty well known in Southern Iowa, is universally esteemed by all who know him, of whatever church, as an honorable man, of pure purpose and good works. It is a pleasure for The Register to be able to give to its readers so much of authentic history and timely information as to the Mormons of this state.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

AS ONE of the straws that shows which way the wind blows, the late sale of the controlling interest in the Salt Lake Theatre, may be taken as a large one. This controlling interest in said theatre has been heretofore held by John Taylor, President of the church in Utah, as Trustee-in-Trust, and probably was before held by President Brigham Young, or G. A. Smith, as similar trustee. It is now merged in a private interest in certain other stockholders. It is well. Under the Tucker-Edmunds law, it is not likely that a theatrical building and plant would be considered as property necessary to the legitimate work of a propagandizing religion; though Utah Mormonism under presidents Young and Taylor may have needed them. The owners who succeed the church in the possession of the Theatre are John Sharp, Feramor Little, H. B. Clawson, James Jack, John T. Caine, LeGrande Young and the estates of Wm. Jennings and Captain Wm. Hooper.

Sr. Mary L. Grover, writing from Albion, Nebraska, is anxious that a faithful, competent elder should visit that place and vicinity, and labor in word and doctrine.

Bro. W. W. Whiting, of Deloit, Iowa, writes March 17th, that he had been laboring in Palo Alto county, with fair success.

Bro. Wm. Oaks, of Battle Lake, Minnesota, writes that Elder T. J. Martin had blessed their region with his labors of late, and that the Saints enjoy the gifts of the Spirit.

Bro. A. E. Mortimer was laboring with fair prospects, at Osborne, Ontario, March 16th. He is a young minister, but feels encouraged in the Master's work of redeeming souls.

Bro. D. S. Crawley wrote us from Stewartsville, March 14th, that he intended to move at once to Weir City, Kansas. We congratulate the people of that region on having a tried and worthy man and minister locate with them in the person of Bro. Crawley.

Sr. M. A. Christy wrote a very cheering letter from Akron, Iowa, under date of March 6th:

Bro. J. W. Whitley wrote from Julietta, Nex Perces county, Idaho, February 4th, a very feeling letter, expressing faith in the work, and anxious prayers for its onward march.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The haughty eye shall seek in vain
What innocence beholds;
No cunning finds the key of heaven,
No strength its gate unfolds.
Alone to guilelessness and love
That gate shall open fall
The mind of pride is nothingness
The childlike heart is all."

WE give place this week to an article from sister Knipschild, in which she relates some very wonderful experiences which she had before coming into the church. Sister Knipschild is a German by birth, and has never studied the English language. She could not read English at all when she was baptized; but by the help of the Spirit, given in answer to prayer, she was enabled to read the Book of Mormon, together with other church works, after she obeyed the gospel. The church which was shown her in her first vision, was afterwards built—just such a building as she had seen, and is standing to-day. She was at that time a member of the German Methodist Church. When the voice spoke to her the second time, telling her that "She was highly esteemed of God," and she began to think it must be so, and finally believed it, the enemy of all righteousness, who was tempting her, had gained his point; and consequently darkness followed, for she felt that if she needed anything in the future, God would give it to her, for her asking, because she was highly esteemed in his sight, and she adds, "I had to learn by sad experience the power and cunning craftiness of Satan." The reader of this article must bear in mind as they pass along, the faith in which sister Knipschild had been raised, and then they will not wonder that when she talked about the Godhead as she had seen it in her vision, people thought her crazy—God, the Father, Creator, and ruler of all things, the first personage, with his face turned from her; on the right hand of the Father, the Son of Man; on his left hand the Holy Spirit,—not a personage, but an indescribable glory of light; not merely the will of the Father and the Son, but the acting power of this will going out from the Father and the Son. Sister Knipschild thinks it may have appeared to her then, as it did to the apostles upon the day of Pentecost: "cloven tongues as of fire." With these brief explanations we leave her article with you, believing its unstudied simplicity will carry with it far greater weight than any added words of our own can give it. In regard to the presence of the Son of Man remaining with her, she says she can give no explanation except that she was utterly weak and needed him. He was by Paul when shipwrecked, and when king Nebuchadnezzar looked into the fiery furnace, he exclaimed, "Lo I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt, and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God."

Beloved Saints, God is not leaving himself without witnesses in the nineteenth century. Let us strive to be faithful, humble, and prayerful, that we may realize the truth of the glorious promises he has left us, "Lo I am with you always even unto the end."

NARBORNE, Mo., Feb., 1887.

Dear Sisters:—Your letters in the Home Column have aroused me to yield to the impression which has followed me for some time, "Praise ye the Lord and declare his doings among the people." I feel my inability, yea nothingness; but trust in God for grace to be obedient, for great are the reasons for me to praise the Lord, and I feel to wish my pen were as that of a ready writer that I might declare what he has done for me. As it is I have to tell my story in an humble way.

The Lord God according to his great goodness has been caring for me ever since my earliest recollection, which is since three years of age. When eight years of age I viewed myself a condemned sinner in the sight of God. When fifteen years old Jesus spake peace to my troubled soul and I was happy for about one year. Through the influence of a cousin I sinned and lost that peace, left the Lord and got entangled in the things of this world; but God in his mercy soon visited me again. After a long sickness I was given up by two doctors to die,—friends gathered round my dying bed. Then my heart yearned for God again, and Jesus appeared unto me and spake peace to my troubled soul, healing me from my sickness also. I begged him to take me to himself and not send me out into the world for fear I might leave him again; but he would not, and said: "Fear not, I am with you, I will lead you." After that I tried to be faithful; but alas, the best I could do till I was thirty-one years old can but be compared with the ocean's wave, up and down,—filled with doubts and fears. The scripture passage, "Without holiness no one shall see the Lord," would beat with fierceness on my heart and follow me wherever I would go. By close examination I never found myself any better, and came to the conclusion I was the most terribly corrupted being that lived.

In the winter of 1865 or 1866 some of us agreed every morning to go in secret prayer at the same hour, having a certain object in view for which to pray. After a few days I felt the effects of it on my own soul. While praying at one time it seemed as though heaven opened to me saying, "Ask for whatsoever you will and it shall be given unto you." I stopped a moment to think what I should pray for. O Lord thou knowest we want thee to revive thy work and we must have a new church! "I will do it and this is your church" was the answer, and a building appeared up in the air. My prayer was turned into thanksgiving, just as though it was all done already. I arose from my knees perfectly satisfied, wondering at what had happened. Presently I heard something say, "You are highly esteemed of God." I answered, "That is not so, I am nothing," and turned quickly around to see who it was that spoke, but saw nobody. Again the voice said, "It is so, you are esteemed highly in the sight of God, or else he would not have showed you these things." I gave this a thought and believed it, and that quick I felt a change take place in my heart. Next morning, at the secret place, I could not even lift my heart to God, and all my words fell from my lips to the ground and I was left in darkness. Astonished at this I arose from my knees saying, "O Lord prepare my heart before thee!" and left the place. I made different attempts during the day, but with the same result, the darkness being thicker every time. After a few days I felt my spirit had fetters on, and every effort I made to approach the throne of grace, the darkness would grow thicker and the fetters draw tighter, so that my spirit could not move at all. After spending three weeks in using every means I could think of, in vain, I wondered what more could I do? I will read the scriptures on my knees, perhaps then the Lord will be merciful to me; but there was no change; and when trying to call upon God, the tempter began to mock me and tell me I had committed the sin against the Holy Ghost; and by that I knew that it was the devil that had me bound, and only God could deliver me. Thinking it would be a long and a hard battle I made up my mind to wait until the morning, for now it was late in the night and every one asleep in the house. Next morning I wrapped up well and went as far again from the house as my usual secret place of prayer, determined to make a last and a mighty effort. I fell down in snow two feet deep, before God. As quickly as I knelt, there came over me the same gross darkness, and the fetters were drawn tighter than ever; but I said: "O Lord, thou art everywhere. Thou even fillest this very place where I am. Thou knowest all things. Thou knowest what I came here for. I want to pray, but I can not. Lord if it pleases thee, help me, for thou alone can do it; and if it does please thee to help me, show me what condition I am in and the causes thereof, and give me what I am lacking. But O, Lord! if thou wilt not do this and I am cast away from thine holy eyes, I can not live without thee any longer; then let me perish here at thy feet."

Waiting, to see what the Lord would do with me; I felt I was touched by an all powerful hand, tearing my inward being, part after part, out of me, and throwing it away. In my agony I cried out:—"The Lord is destroying me; I have deserved nothing better; I will be still; He may do with me as he pleases, for I can't live this way any longer." At once the all-powerful hand held me firmer, and a feeling went through me carrying this impression: "This is the guilt of your sins; but see the Redeemer yonder. On him rests the sins of the whole world." I looked, and in the distance of a stone's throw I saw Jesus kneeling on the ground, in a bent over position, as if in unspeakable agony. Bloody drops of sweat dropping to the ground. Again I was held firmer than before, with this impression in my soul: "This is the feeling of the condemned after the time of grace is over." Now I was made nothing; I felt an inward death take place, and was like an empty shell. Presently there came from on high like as it were a mighty stream, the love of God, which had been lacking, filled and made me alive. Imagination, selftrust and being silent, are the causes of your condition. As quick as lightning a black, seemingly man-shaped form flew to my left in the air: "Power, prince of darkness." At the same time I felt a hand moving on my head, and heard a voice saying: "Sealed unto eternal life." Still the stream of God's love kept flowing until it swelled to a mighty ocean. I wondered and looked to see the bounds thereof, but there were no bounds. Then I was told to look before me, and when I looked, there before me was revealed the Father, and to his right the Son, and to his left, the Holy Ghost. These three being one, and the only God.

Will not undertake to write the explanation to me about this God-head, nor any other part of the succeeding vision, for I might make some mistake. Different times I was told to look, and different things appeared. When my natural eyes opened I was standing close by the side of the house. I must have got there during the vision. I looked around in the different directions where things had been shown to me, but all had disappeared, except the God-head was before me, and I was in the ocean of the love of God, and I realized a great change. There I stood, for I could do nothing but stand. Then my understanding was opened in regard to things which used to bother me very much.

The first two days and nights all sleep had fled; seemingly I never was as wide awake in my life. I really did not notice the night; it was as light to me as the day. After ten days the presence of the Lord moved as departing from me. I made a step as if to follow; (not wanting to be without it), but was stopped with the impression upon me: "Flesh and blood can not exist in the presence of God;" and then I felt my body, which seemed so heavy to me that I could not move it; and I had to hold myself, or I would have sunk to the ground. Then it was clear to me that I had been in the spirit, for the ten days but I still kept begging it not to withdraw; but it got dimmer and dimmer, and after a few days disappeared except the presence of the Son of Man remained with me for two years. He was my continual consolation in my troubles and many tribulations. After that his presence began to grow dim and disappear. Quite scared at this, I fell to the ground exclaiming. Lord, how have I grieved thee? Immediately the answer came, "The just shall live by faith." This happened three different times. The last time it came in a commanding tone, "The righteous live by faith, harken to the word." Thus my understanding was opened. He wanted me to read and search the scripture, and heed the written word. In doing so I received a testimony that it contains the revealed will of God to man, and we will be judged by it in the last day; but to my astonishment I found so many things not taught nor practiced that I longed and wished for things like they used to be. At two different times I wept bitterly before the Lord because there could no elders be found to send for when I was sick.

In the fall of 1878 I got acquainted with the Latter Day Saints in quite a peculiar way—too lengthy to relate. However I prepared myself with fasting and prayer to attend one of their conferences; and being in the protection of Almighty God, I was not afraid to go among the mighty deceiving spirits of the last days, which had been made clear to me we were living in. I was determined, if they were looking to Mormon for salvation, that I would tell them there was no salvation, only in Christ. But O surprise! the first meeting (a testimony meeting) put me in mind of an apostolic meeting. The power of God was made manifest, and the word of the Lord came unto me through one of the elders; I had a testimony of the same and obeyed at once and was baptized. When I went into the waters of baptism I had been sorely afflicted in my head for twenty years; had been laid up with it every winter more or less; had had weak eyes for eighteen years, occasionally very sore; consumption in the second stage, also asthma; the right shoulder crippled for nearly three years, (got it hurt under the wagon in a runaway); the chronic diarrhea seven years. Always had to be very careful about my diet, light and little of it, or else had to suffer for several weeks. I had not eaten enough for years to satisfy my hunger, and often wished I could live without eating. My left limb was afflicted from the time of sixteen years old, caused by the sickness I had at that age, mentioned in the beginning. Add to these afflictions a general weakness, so that I just had to drag along—it was even hard work for me to talk. When I came out of the water of baptism I was healed from all the above named afflictions, but that was not all; I received a testimony that God accepted my baptism; that I was baptized by proper authority, and in the right way, so that I can bear testimony that I know the authority to baptize is in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. A burden fell off my back into the water, which was what I always felt remained to be done; but I never understood it till then. I obtained light which I never had before; in short, I really was made "new" by the marvelous power of God!

After two weeks there was a two days' meeting in which I received a testimony from God that this latter day work is the work of God, and I gave my name for the church book. I have received many more testimonies and evidences, therefore know that the Lord recognizes and acknowledges his church. I used to think it was the will of the Lord that I should suffer afflictions, therefore never asked him to make me whole; but only to help me bear them, which he always did. I had counted up my time. At the longest I expected to live perhaps two more years, (till 1880); but lo! here I am yet, kept by the marvelous power of God; still enjoying his wonderful blessing, bearing testimony of the same to everybody that will listen to me. Yea, since, when I had transgressed the law of nature by exposure, got the pneumonia and called for the elders of his church, through their administration I was healed by the power of God, time and again; therefore it is nothing more than reasonable that I present my body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto the service of God, for he has kept his promise: "Fear not, I am with you, I will lead thee." Yea, I will praise the Lord that he has not kept the gospel hid from mine eyes. Yea, and I will make known his wonderful doing, among the people, by His grace, as long as I live. Glory be to God! praise and honor to his high and holy name, that he is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him. Yea, all ye Saints, praise the Lord for ever and ever.

In gospel bonds your sister,

MARY KNIPSCHILD.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister B. Gilbert writes from Riverside, Cal.:—"I am alone in the cause, but God is with me, hears me, and has said, 'I will not leave thee nor forsake thee,' and I have proved his words true, oh, so many times. I have been in the work ever since I was a child, and well remember a prophecy given in tongues at the La Harpe branch, in regard to the church. The Spirit told us that 'sin and iniquity was leading many away, and if they did not repent this church would be scattered to the four winds of heaven.' We have seen its fulfillment to the sorrow of all, and may it be a warning by which we shall profit for time to come. I love this work, and I pray God to bless all the faithful ones trying to carry it on."

Sister Mary Piddington writes from Crescent, Iowa: "I embraced the gospel in Wales and started for Utah, traveling from Iowa City to Council Bluffs in the hand cart company, but finding out that that was not the place for Saints, we remained at the Bluffs. I joined the Reorganized church in 1884, was baptized by my son, John Evans."

Sister Mary E. Pooler writes from Merced, Cal. "I have had many testimonies of the truth of this work, one of which I will relate. We were living in Independence, Missouri, at the time. I had been sick for some days, but on Sunday was feeling well enough for the family to go to church. Suddenly I grew much worse and suffered so intensely that I thought I would die before any one could come to go for the elders. In my extremity I lifted up my heart to God in earnest prayer, asking him to send an elder, or in some way send me relief or I must die. Suddenly I seemed to see the roof of the house opening and two of the brethren came down through the open space; and the same time I heard the voice of Bro. Joseph Smith say to them, 'Lay hands upon her in the name of the Lord.' They did so and I was healed instantly. This is only one of many testimonies I have had, and my desire is to press forward and strive to show by my daily walk that I am indeed a child of God." (This should be the earnest determination of each one, for while the testimonies God is pleased to give us from time to time are strengthening and precious, they can never convince the world unless they take knowledge of us by our works—our daily walk and conversation, that we "have been with Jesus." Ed).

Sister Ettie Gulembo writes from Sugar Grove, Mich.—"I am one of the sisters of the Sherman Branch, that the Rev. B. S. Mills in his lecture on Mormonism called, 'deceived women who wanted to be deceived.' He also said, 'Our branch was the recruiting office for Salt Lake.'" It prejudiced the minds of the people for a time, but they soon saw their mistake and we have more friends than before. We think if Elder Scott or Cornish would come here this Spring, quite a number would unite with the church. Elder Scott was here this winter and we all like him, even our opposers could not help liking him."

Sister Mary Prettyman writes from Knox, Ind. "I can not remember the time when my mother was not a Methodist, and when I was old enough I too sought religion at the mourners' bench, but never experienced the change of which I heard others speak. In time we united with the New Light faith, as that seemed a step in advance of Methodism. We did not know there was such a church upon the earth as the Latter Day Saints, until one day there came along a plainly dressed man in search of work. As my husband wanted help he hired him. That man was father Adams, and after working all day he would preach at night as often as circumstances favored, and he embraced every opportunity of talking with us on the plan of salvation. He had no trouble in knocking our foundation from under us. He baptized and confirmed us both, and then I knew that change which I never felt before. I have heard prophecies and seen them fulfilled. I have heard father Adams speak in tongues, and my sick have been healed by the power of God. Brother Leonard Scott has been with us lately and labored acceptably."

Sister Jemima Calif writes from Sheridan, Ills. "I am growing old and feeble, but my faith in the work is as strong as ever. I am alone in the faith, and seldom hear a Saint preach, but God has heard and answered prayer in my behalf many times, and therefore I feel encouraged to ask God to bless his people everywhere."

Since this letter was received Sr. Calif has passed over the river into the great beyond.—Editor of HERALD.

A Sister writes from Independence, Mo.—"Would that all the sisters would profit by Sister Eleanor's letter. It is painful to see so much worldly pride in the church. Let us awake, dear sisters, and strive to keep the whole law! Let us strive to be worthy the name of Saint, and of the glorious gospel of the Son of God."

Correspondence.

CRAWFORD, Neb., Jan. 17th.

Herald Readers:—An accusation was laid against me this morning, and the language was laid this, (spoken in anger), "Since you left the brethren, (German Baptists, or Dunkards), you are no more the same man that you was, and every body said so."

The insinuation was that I was worse, or not so good or holy as I had been. How sad if this be true; that, instead of advancing I shall have retrograded in the divine life. My desire in leaving said church was to progress in the divine life and meet the approval of that God who created me, and to try and make my "peace, calling, and election sure." If such is not my lot tonight, then it seems to me that God the Father does not regard the sincere and contrite soul who is willing to forsake "father, mother, sister, brother, house or lands, and even his own life," reputation, &c., and instead of leading me on to nobler and grander and holier attributes, he has suffered an honest soul to decline; and when he cried for bread, he received "a stone;" and when he asked for a "fish he received a scorpion."

Or is it so that I tempted God and hoped and longed and prayed to God for the Holy Ghost with all its ancient lustre and beauty and marvels and wonder-working powers, when He was no more willing to bestow it upon mankind? Or did my former church possess all these blessings and gifts, and all the commands of God, and I willfully forsook her? No, never! Or did I forsake her in ignorance? If so, God will extend his mercy, "for where no law is, there is no transgression." But if the vengeance of God is to come upon me for honest intentions, let the will of God be done. And in the language of Job I would say, "Though he slay me, yet will trust Him."

Have I been deceived by the willful and crafty? If so, will not God punish them instead of me? Was I truly, or am I truly deceived? Is that gift of tongues and interpretation and prophecy, &c., which thrills our entire souls, all a delusion? If so, I in honesty ask all mankind, and God too, Where is the church of God to whom he promised these and many other blessings? Where, Oh! where shall she be found? It seems to me I would go to the ends of the earth to find her! When will God once more smile upon his creation and bless them with the foretaste of heaven? When will he send his message once more to man by the voice of an angel through the midst of heaven, as Rev. 14:6?

Shall I again turn back to my former church? If so, will I be better off? Shall I return and sustain and support her in her doctrine and administrations, and wilfully cover up my conviction of the supernatural gifts of the Holy Ghost? Have I really forsaken the commands of God? If so, I do not rest under the promise of God. But if my former church does keep all the commands of God, why is it that she does not obtain the "signs" that God promised to his believers? See Mark 16: 17, 18; 1 Cor. chapters 12, 13, and 14; also Ephesians chapter 4, and Acts chapter 2, &c. And if I should return, what branch of the church should I unite with? the "Progressives," "Old Order," or "Conservatives." What mode of feet washing will I adopt? the single mode, or the double? The single is, one man wash and wipe; the double, one wash and the other wipe. Would I accept the progressive view, that women may preach, etc? Or would I be conservative and have the women keep silent in the church? Would I accept the "Progressive" and "Conservative" views, that protracted meetings, Sunday Schools, high schools, &c., are right; or would I be "Old order," and condemn all such things? Would I accept musical instruments? or would I not? Is there any possibility of settling this confusion by an appeal to the Bible! I fear not. Then there is nothing left but to obtain a revelation from God, or an inspiration, as to what is right. According to history, into this perplexity the boy of seventeen summers (Joseph Smith) was thrown, and he went directly to God to find out; when to his astonishment he was informed by the heavenly messenger that the sectarian creeds were all wrong, and that their professors "taught for doctrine the commandments of men."

But am I really worse because I do not now mourn all the day long and wish to leave this world? or because I do not now wear the peculiar and odd garments? Do I swear? do I kill? do I steal? do I commit adultery? do I lie? do I cheat? do I deceive? No. Do I talk too much, or jest some times? Yes; and I regret this weakness. Do I dance? have I quit praying to God in Christ's name? No. Where then is the great wrong? Because I will not be turned by every wind of doctrine!

But what of the expression, "every body said so?" Is popular opinion always correct? No, no. If I am not mistaken, popular opinion nailed Christ to the cross, and, in short, was as a rule opposed to all of God's ways. So for the present I presume I shall be contented in serving God as best I know, and await his kindness to bestow upon me more and more light. I am still ready and willing to correspond and converse with any one upon the subject of the Christian religion or church of God.

Hoping and trusting that my few scattered remarks shall be the means of doing good and honoring God and his cause, and that finally, when we shall have done with the trials and difficulties of this life we shall be so happy as to hear the "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

DANIEL W. SHIRK.

BOSTON, Mass., March 12th.

Editors Herald:—My last was written, I think, at Plymouth. Since then have preached in all the branches of the district and outside as well. Have held series of meetings in Brockton and Dennisport, I believe with good results. Held a five night's discussion at the former place, commencing February 22d, with a Mr. Packard of the Christadelphian faith. We feel entirely satisfied that no weapon formed against this great latter day work will prosper, because it is of the Almighty God and not the work of feeble man. We never felt more glad that we were a Latter Day Saint than during this discussion. We were a little nervous at first, as it was our first appearance before the public in that role; but I feel thankful even yet, for the goodness of God toward me upon that occasion. The Saints were blessed, strangers surprised at the amount of "Mormonism" there is in the Bible. Several are convinced and will obey, and our enemies were certainly confounded. That the Saints were confirmed in the revelations of God through Joseph Smith, was one of the certain results of the discussion. When toward the close an effort was made to ridicule "Joe Smith's attempts to establish the kingdom of God on this continent" and the revelations concerning it, and our opponent led off in his argument with Micah 4:8, we thanked God and our opponent publicly for so strong a text in favor of the revelations of the last days. We showed from the text (1), that the first dominion, even the kingdom of God should come, not to Jerusalem as my opponent affirmed, but to "the daughter of Jerusalem," outside of that city, "in the field"—even in Babylon was Zion to be delivered. "But they know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they his counsel, for he shall gather them as the sheaves into the floor."—10th and 12th verses. Paul, however, evidently understood the thoughts and counsel of the Lord in this matter through the abundance of the revelations of Jesus Christ that was given him, and desired that the Ephesian Saints might know that God, in the dispensation of the fulness of times would gather in one all things in Christ, and that the place of this gathering was not confined by Bible testimony to a garden patch of earth's territory 140 miles long by 40 miles wide in the eastern part of the world; but as "the kingdom, and the dominion under—(not above it or in it)—but under "the whole heavens" were "to be given to the people of the Saints of the most high," God had provided a better country than Egypt, or even Palestine, even "a heavenly country" the glorious land of America. The greater blessings and possessions of Israel's favored son secured by the promises of God through Jacob, Moses, the prophets, David, Jesus, and Paul, and of Zion, "the perfection of beauty," "the city of the great king," the city (to Paul) out of sight, which hath foundations, "whose builder and whose maker is God." And while the Twelve apostles may judge the twelve tribes upon the land promised to them, I have often thought that this great apostle to the Gentiles I should see, if faithful, taking an important position in the administration of the law which will "go forth of Zion" in the last days, and in the promulgation of which, nations shall be led to "beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks." Verses 2 and 3. I am quite certain concerning the Spirit's teaching to me in regard to the truth of the revelations of Joseph Smith as regards the question of gathering, tithing, &c., and I should not have referred to what was brought out in this discussion,—only that doubt has been engendered in the minds of many concerning some of these revelations.

Zion shall not be moved out of her appointed place though her children be scattered, no more than shall Jerusalem. "And of Joseph he said, blessed of the Lord be his land."—Deut. 33: 13. How narrow has been the view and how obscured the vision of even restorationists, who to-day are looking for Israel's return to their promised possession, while the statement of Paul, "that the blessing of Abraham might come upon the Gentiles through Jesus Christ" seems to have been overlooked. (Gal. 3). All are not Israel that are of Israel; neither because they are the seed of Abraham are they all children; "but in Isaac shall thy seed be called." And as Isaac was a child of supernatural promise, and the son of a bond-woman, and of the flesh, was not an inheritor, so we, among the Gentiles who are "afar off" from Peter's day, being called by the restored gospel, might receive this glorious promise of the eternal inheritance, as Abraham did, through faith; "for we are all the children of God through faith in Christ Jesus." "And if children, then heirs." And in this covenant, thank God, there is neither Jew, Greek, nor Gentile—neither male nor female. The woman's chance hereafter will be as good as any suffrage, or no suffrage. In the gospel, obedience to law, character, not nationality nor sex, will be the test. And "joint heirs with Jesus Christ;" "and if ye be Christs," what then? Will we escape the hell, and go to the heaven of the creeds! Ah, no! "Then are we Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise." And the scripture foreseeing that God would justify the heathen (Gentiles) through this same faith, preached before this same gospel of the promised inheritance to Abraham, saying, "In thee shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed." And it is entirely meet that the same instrumentality through which was restored by angel ministry, this glorious gospel in our day, should also be the instrument through whom God should speak and give clear and explicit revelation as to how and when and where these gospel promises are to be secured to the Gentile in Zion as well as to the Jew in Jerusalem.

We are not fighting Joseph Smith, but God, when we reject these revelations. I do most earnestly and devoutly thank God for the light I have received within the last year concerning these things, in answer to earnest and persistent supplication; it is not the teachings of men, but the revelations of God's holy Spirit.

How foolish it is for Saints to engage in heated debate and strife for mastery, unless we be very certain that God's Spirit is leading us? I pray that God may heal dissensions, and give us all the spirit of grace and humility to acknowledge our errors and become as a little child, howbeit, in understanding we should be men. But malice, anger, and wrath, and the works of the flesh, must be eliminated before we shall obtain the crown over the kingdom of our God.

Alas! what an awful undertaking, to subdue one's self, to subjugate the law of our flesh to the law of the Spirit of life. "He that overcometh shall inherit all things." "He that spared not his own Son, how shall he not with him freely give us all things." Oh, how great is our calling, and how magnificently large and grand is the bounty of God towards us as a people! The struggle and discipline, the "fiery trial," are hard, but manifestly wise and necessary in order to be called the sons of God and receive of his eternal fulness, glory and riches. Language fails to depict the greatness of our calling and the glory to be revealed to the faithful, in the eternity spread out before us. Oh, how deep and heart-felt is my gratitude toward my God, who hath called me from the low estate of sin and ignorance of skepticism and doubt, without God and without hope in the world, to an estate of certainty, of knowledge concerning the things that are to be, and have been made a testator of Jesus Christ the Son of the living God. Truly, God has been good to me; and it is my desire now in life to be able to persuade men to be reconciled to God's methods of salvation from the awful deceitfulness of sin, and the anguish of soul that awaits the hardened, impenitent, and faithless heart.

The Saints of the Massachusetts district are awakening to their duty in regard to the law of tithing, as the Bishop's Agent's report will show. The chief reasons that I recommend its observance, is because of the blessing, spiritual and temporal, that comes to those who comply with "the counsel of God" in this matter; the results universally following, often in so marked and wonderful manner that makes it impossible to believe that it originated with man. I believe also that those who preach it should practice as well. The time of its presentation to this church was opportune also. Coming together from all factions and beliefs—and unbeliefs, we were hardly ready for it until God raised up men and moved the church to commence to declare the counsel of God, by which the church was to take a step forward and systematically provide for the families of a church endorsed ministry.

Those Saints who are honestly subject to this law and refuse, for any reason, to comply, will lose much of blessing here, and more hereafter. They refuse to "become workers together with God" in the work of Christ and human redemption, in the only way that many can work. All can not and will not, neither are they called, to leave home and family and preach the gospel. I remember of seeing a complaint made in the Herald to the Bishop some time ago concerning unwise expenditure of moneys by the elders, etc. I have no doubt but that grounds have existed for such complaint in some cases. It would be well for the elder who leaves home and family, and its comforts and joys, for what the church gives and don't give to his family—for them and him to do and to practice all the self-denial that is to be done, and leave the extravagant expenditures," the extras in dress, food, and little comforts of indulgence, to be attended to by those who stay at home and toast their feet around the home fire and talk about the nicksles they gave to the support of the missionary fund last year. "Show me thy faith without thy works" and I'll show you a Latter Day Saint that hardly ever begrudges their own extravagance or indulgence. "Whatsoever ye do, do heartily as unto the Lord, and [not of man] ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance." If I give to the work of God as he has prospered me, and those who are called to be servants of God misuse it, that shall never hinder my reward.

Yours in the faith,

M. H. BOND.

RAY, Indiana, March 15th.

Dear Herald:—As a writer I am not a success, not being burdened with a desire to obtain notoriety by oft appearing in cold type. But commensurate with my understanding of this latter day work, I am striving to work consistently and in harmony with my individual relation to it, which involves the idea of first learning my duty, and next, to faithfully perform it. If it shall appear that I am in the line of duty, the peculiar characteristics of that position will be apparent; first, that I am standing in my proper place, minding my "own business," battling manfully for truth, doing my own work and not striving to do that of others. And the very best evidence I can offer in favor of my desire for the perpetuity and prosperity of the work will be to keep my part intact; and though I be but a very small pinion in the great machinery, yet it is indispensibly necessary to keep it in place, for if the little pinion should undertake to swell itself into the proportions of the master wheel, there would be a jar that would affect the whole. Hence, to my mind, my faithfulness will not, can not be made apparent in fault-finding, nor in unjust and cruel criticism, nor yet in manifesting a dictatorial spirit, or demanding a sneeze from every one else when, from my assumed lofty perch, I take a pinch of snuff of my own manufacture.

I am in receipt of letters from time to time from Saints from various localities who seem to be uneasy in consequence of the Whitmer and Gurley movement, asking my opinion about it. If it will not injure the work, nor weaken the faith of some, in answer I only need to say this: Did you, when you obeyed the gospel, receive a testimony of its truth? If you did, how can you consistently now ignore the instrumentalities that God employed? If the claim made by us is true, that the gospel was restored to the inhabitants of the earth in our day, the very testimony we bear to each other and the world, that we know this is God's work, and that we have obtained this knowledge from God, that testimony includes the divine calling of Joseph Smith and the divinity of the books. And every effort made by those who profess to be Latter Day Saints (or any others) to pervert the truth of God, or try to improve his work, will result in a failure,—as in the past, so in the present and future.

I am aware that God will have a tried people; that everything available will be brought to bear to overthrow the faith of the Saints, the powers of evil (call him devil if you wish) will array his forces against them; efforts will be made to tempt them to taste that old papal wine, etc., and "of your own selves shall men arise, teaching perverse things," etc.

For myself, I will not boast of great wisdom or strength; and although I have been engaged in this work now a quarter of a century, sacrificing time, means, and using the little talent given me in advocacy of its truth, I desire, while I think I stand, to take heed lest I fall. I may apostatize, I may become a cast-away, but it will require something more than the prescriptive ravings of those self-stultified arksteadiers, whose only consistency is apparent in being inconsistent.

What about the testimonies borne for years by those self-constituted rectifiers? What about their claims to administrative authority—then and now—as being divine? If then divine, from whence, and by what means did it come, and when? Was their testimony true in the past? If so, what is it now? O consistency, what a jewel thou art! But thy name is not stultification.

Dear brethren and sisters, stand firm; rely on the arm of Jehovah, for the time is at hand that all that can be shaken will be shaken. May we be of the five wise virgins with oil in our vessels, and our lamps all aglow with the light of the Spirit of God.

And may He guide each humble Saint,
That by the way we shall not faint,
Till from all care and sorrow free,
We'll chant the song of jubilee.

I have been busy in striving to magnify my calling, having opened some new places. The interest is increasing, the field widening. The missionary has no time to be idle here. On the 5th inst, the brethren and friends having secured a hall, I commenced operations in Ray, a town on the State line. It was the battle ground of Bro. C. Scott and the Rev. Wiley, some years ago. Rev. Wiley is the pastor of the Covenanter Church, a switch-off from the old Calvinistic bodiless-God-made-everything-out-of-nothing-foreordination-election-reprobation-infant-damnationists. They are full of prejudice, and hatred of us. One of their number attacked me not long since at our church with the old story, "Joe Smith a bad man," "you worship Joe Smith," &c. Well, poor fellow, I felt for him, for that was all the argument he had to offer. I always manage to get along with such arguments. I have now "Carried the war into Africa," and will "beard the lion in his den." I spoke once there, as I stated on the fifth. The hall was packed; the faithful shepherd was there with his flock. I gave liberty, but not a word was offered. But we shall see. It is likely that there is "music in the air." On the 7th I was hastily summoned to Michigan to officiate at the funeral of Sr. Ball. Bro. Columbus Scott had been wired for, and I arrived at midnight. I found him there, and also learned that brother James Lockerby had expired about the time of my arrival. Bro. Scott was in poor health. He officiated at mother Ball's funeral, and left for home. I remained there till the 14th. On Sunday, 13th, I baptized and confirmed three persons. We had a splendid confirmation meeting. I felt, while standing in the clear pure water of the river, that there was joy in the presence of the angels, and that our beneficent Father smiled upon us in approbation of our work on that day. To him be all the glory. I resume my work at Ray to-morrow night, deo volante. In bonds,

B. V. SPRINGER.

WHAT CHEER, Iowa, March 21st.

Editors Herald:—After the conference of the Eastern Iowa District, March 11th, 12th and 13th, Bro. W. T. Maitland, came with me to Cedar Rapids, when I left him to hold the fort, and I came here on the 17th, where the brethren had an appointment out for me. We met the evening of the 17th and organized a branch which is called the What Cheer Branch, Bro. Nathaniel Miller presiding elder, Bro. Thomas Shephard as teacher, and Sr. Maggie Thomas secretary. We have had some good meetings since. God's Spirit was with us in prophecy, tongues and interpretations. We organized with thirteen members, and on Saturday evening I baptized four more, two of whom are promising young men (one married), who if faithful will be of use in the Lord's work. The brethren hired the opera house for me to speak in. It cost them five dollars a day. The first sermon there was only one outsider out to hear. But at my last effort last night, there were over six hundred, and quite an interest manifested. This evening I will baptize several more. This is a town of 9,000 or 10,000, and is only six or seven years old. So you see it is a fast town. The ruling element is Catholic. May Ged speed the day when priestcraft may give way to the true gospel of Christ. I am still encouraged to go on in this great work.

Yours in bonds,

GALENA, Ind., March 9th.

Bro. Joseph: I have an experimental knowledge of the truthfulness of the statement in the revelation of September 23d, 1832, Doctrine and Covenants 83:13. The Lord says: "I will go before your face, I will be on your right hand and on your left; and my Spirit shall be in your hearts." Some time ago I was told there was a school-house in Franklin township that we could hold meetings in. Some few days ago my mind was impressed to hunt up that house. The impression grew strong, until I could not sleep. The next morning after traveling five miles I was told it was seven miles farther. I went on, arriving at the house just before school was dismissed in the evening. On inquiry I was informed the M. E. minister was holding a protracted meeting, and there was meeting appointed for that night. I concluded to attend, stopping with a Mr. Hancock, who accompanied me to it, and introducing me to the minister, who inquired if I wished to speak. I stated I did not wish to interfere with his meeting, but that after he got through his exercises, if it would not be an intrusion, I would be pleased to speak a few minutes; so he occupied but a short time and then gave me remainder. If I had been one day later, I could not have had that privilege, for their meeting closed that night. Through the kindness of Rev. Beharald and the citizens, I was tendered their house, and I left an appointment for Sunday, March 6th. Starting on the 5th met the friends on Sunday, holding four meetings at that point with good liberty and increasing audiences. I was compelled to stop the meetings, owing to the near approach of our quarterly conference. I was tendered the use of two meeting houses, all in a radius of seven miles. Think of it! and all the result of God leading the mind by his Spirit. There has never been any of our elders nearer than ten or twelve miles of that place. I thank God that the truthfulness of this latter day work does not depend on the actions of men for its truthfulness. Men may act as they will; it does not affect the principles on which the great latter day work is founded. I am sorry to hear of men professing to be Saints, calling in question the mission of Joseph, and the divinity of the Book of Mormon and Book of Covenants. When I look over my experience in this work, I can truly say, thank God for the restoration through Joseph the Seer. Then onward, ye soldiers of Jesus. Stand by the old ship Zion, and she will land us safely in the harbor.

Yours in bonds,
M. R. SCOTT.

WINTERPORT, Me., March 6th.

Dear Herald:—I am still striving to keep the commands of the Lord, though I have to be the most of my time at sea to earn a living for my large family. The people here are all asleep as to spiritual things. They have a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof. They want me to come in and take part in the prayer meetings, and they give me perfect freedom to talk my faith, and they say they like it all but Joseph Smith and the Book of Mormon. There are some almost persuaded, but they do not like to be called a Mormon. The deacon of the Congregational Church is almost persuaded that our claims are right. He has read the Voice of Warning and several tracts on the first principles of the gospel. There are none of the faith here except my family, yet the Lord has been with us and blessed us.

Yours truly,
OTIS C. EATON.

THE WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT.

I WISH to establish first, the proposition, that the spirit of man is the mind of man, the intelligent power in man. 1st. The word pneuma commonly translated spirit, is frequently translated mind. 2d. The following scriptures evidently refer to the intelligent, thinking, reasoning faculty or power in man: "But there is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding;" "Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile;" "Create in me a clean heart, renew a right spirit within me;" "Watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of;" "His spirit was stirred within him when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry;" "Glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's;" "For though I be absent in the flesh, yet I am with you in the spirit;" "The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy spirit;" "For what man knoweth the things of a man save the spirit of man which is in him;" "The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord, searching all the inward parts of the belly." Job. 32:8; Psalms 32:2; 51:10; Matt. 26:41; Luke 9:55; Acts 17:16; 1 Cor. 6:20; Col. 2:5; 2 Tim. 4:22; 1 Cor. 2:11; Prov. 20:27. These are but few of many which serve to show that the spirit of man is his mind; his intelligent, reasoning part, his intellect.

Now how does Paul say the Spirit of God bears witness? Does he say that it bears witness to our spirits? Nay, but with our spirits; hear him, "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."—Rom. 8:16. Is there any difference? Yes a great deal. It is just the difference between the act of a person, who comes and tells me a piece of news, and his act, in corroborating what I tell another. Between the testimony of a man who tells me of what he knows; and that of another who confirms my testimony concerning what I know. The fact is, I must know of myself that I am a child of God; and the Spirit of God in some way testifies to the fact: or in other words my spirit testifies that I am a child of God; and the Holy Ghost also; or in addition to the testimony of my own spirit, it testifies to the same fact; or bears witness with my spirit; and there are two witnesses in the case instead of one. How stands the religious world to-day on this question? Thus: One party claiming there is no Holy Spirit, except what is found in the written word; and this word bears witness with our spirit, &c. The other says, the Holy Spirit bears witness to our spirit, that we are children of God, and we can not, and do not know that to be a fact until the Holy Spirit makes it known to us. These parties are both in error. The first do not seem to know that the word can not witness that we are the children of God, but it reveals the way by which we may become the children of God; and our spirit bears witness that we have obeyed the word, and we know, that is, our spirits know that we are children of God, because we have complied with the law of adoption, which the word makes known. A certain lord said to certain persons who were desirous of serving him, and receiving a reward: Go to yonder field and dig in the center thereof fifteen feet and ye shall find a treasure, which treasure can be found no where else or obtained in no other way. These men went their way, and some began to dig in one corner of the field, and some in another corner; and some went to the center of the field, and scraped away a few inches of the ground with their hands; while others began to climb into the trees, and to look for the treasure on the branches thereof, but none of these found the treasure; but a few took implements prepared and designed for digging or making holes in the ground; and dug according as their Lord directed, and they found the treasure; and they returned to the house of their lord, and testified that they had done according to his word; that they had shown their faith in his word, by doing as he had directed and had not varied therefrom in the least degree. And when they showed the treasure, this same treasure was a witness that they had believed, and obeyed the word of the lord, and they testified to all their friends and neighbors, that the word of their lord was good and true, and they showed the treasure which there was nothing like in all the world, for the lord of the land had made proclamation that the treasure could be found in a certain place, and in a certain way, by the aid of tools provided freely by himself. And whosoever saw the treasure were convinced that what these men had said was true; for the treasure was a witness itself, or in other words bore witness with their testimony. Howbeit some were deceived by a cunning enemy of the lord of the land, who made a close imitation of the treasure but it was made of base material, and as it was not obtained in the certain field, and in the certain way marked out, or described in the proclamation, the wise men of the world were not deceived; and they said, why did not this cunning craftsman make this treasure before, if he had the power, and give the world the benefit of it, but behold he maketh or createth nothing save it be to imitate that which hath been already made; and which he takes for a pattern. But it never hath been that this treasure (which were pearls of great price) has been found save in the certain field of the lord of the land; and all else is worthless, although they may appear very much like the pearls, but they are not the pearls, nor can they be. And lo, in due time the enemy who sought to deceive the people by his imitations, was cast into a great fire, where he was destroyed.

In somewhat like manner has God revealed in his written word that by believing what his Son has revealed as the will of the Father, in a proclamation called the gospel of the kingdom of God, wherein it is said that those who will do the will of the Father shall receive a knowledge that the doctrine is true; or in other words if they believe the gospel,—which concerns the life, death, burial resurrection, ascension on high, second coming, and reign of the Son of God as pledge of the living and dead, and the redeemer of Israel, and the throne of David, and as the redeemer of the world, and of the earth itself,—and believing this shall repent of their sins, and be baptized in water for remission of sins, by those having been commissioned by the Son, that they should receive remission of their sins; and beside that the gift of the Holy Spirit, a treasure of untold value.

Having believed all the facts and truths that composes the gospel, and that with all the heart; and having repented truly and thoroughly and having been baptized in the right way, for the right purposes, by those having a divine right to baptize, they having been prayed for, and the hands of the Presbytery laid on them, they have received the promised gift, the Holy Spirit, and by its presence and operation and manifestation, various gifts or superhuman powers are enjoyed. The spirit of the man testifies that the gospel has been believed and obeyed fully; he knows that he has repented and obeyed, and that he has received remission of sins; and the Comforter the Holy Ghost, which has come upon him and dwells in him, and is living in peace and harmony with the spirit of man within him, bears witness that he is a child of God, and how?

By two ways, (1st.), the fruits of the Spirit, or the characteristics of a child of God, are seen in the life and conduct of the man, such as "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance." These are some of the attributes of God; and the man or woman who exhibit these good—yea divine qualities in their daily walk and conversation; testify thereby that they have been born of God; of water and of the Spirit. "By their fruits ye shall know them." So when men or women testify to the world that they are children of God; although they may say to the world that the Spirit testifies to them that such is the case, the Spirit does not bear witness with their spirit or its testimony, unless the fruits of the Spirit are seen. Suppose I testify that I have a fine peach, and apple, and plum, and pear, and cheery orchard, and a fine vineyard of grapes; and when parties who come to see for themselves, or perchance to taste some of the advertized good fruit, discover that instead of these desirable fruits, I have only a lot of hazel brush, rag weed, cockle-burrs, and poisonous vines growing, my testimony is not corroborated by my peaches, apples, pears, &c., and so I may say before ten thousand people, that the Spirit of God bears witness to my spirit that I am a child of God, yet if I am guilty of adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulation, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murder, drunkenness, revellings and such like," the Spirit does not bear witness with my spirit's testimony, and I either wilfully lie or am grossly deceived if I claim that God's Spirit testifies to me, that I am a child of God. My works testify that I am a child of the devil, and the Spirit has nothing to do with me, except to reprove me of sin, of righteousness, and of the judgment.

But there is still another way that the Spirit bears witness with our spirits that we are the children of God, or have been born of God, we must necessarily partake of the divine nature, or of the Spirit of God, by which we are born again. A child almost invariably partakes of the mind, or disposition and traits of character, and always of the nature—physical nature of one or both parents, it will be either male or female, and resemble in feature one, or have some of the features of both of the parents,—and possess like physical powers of one or both; we will in like manner partake of the mind and disposition of our heavenly Father, and receive some of the spiritual powers of God. Jesus assured his disciples that they should do similar miraculous work to that performed by him, and even greater, because he was going to the Father. Why because of that? He said he would send the Holy Ghost in his place, which would not only comfort him, but would be a teacher to them, an inspirer and revealer of past and future things, and that certain "signs" should follow them and all who believe. If he did not go away, he assured them the Spirit would not be given, and because he went away the Holy Ghost came, and by it they wrought miracles, or enjoyed the "gifts" of the Holy Spirit.

Now we read how the Spirit bore witness in those days, "And they went forth and preached everywhere; the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following."—Mark 16: 20. Here are two witnesses working together; the apostles bear witness to the truth; or proclaim the gospel, and of course make the promise of the Holy Ghost, which can not be separated from the gospel, or in other words, no man ever did or ever can preach the gospel without making the offer to the believer of the gift of the Holy Ghost; any one who does not make the offer, never was sent of God; and not being sent has no right to promise anything in the name of the Son or the Father.

These apostles promised the Holy Ghost, and in making the promise they necessarily explained what the powers, gifts, operations, and manifestations of the Spirit would be, and now when the people believed what they preached and obeyed the gospel, the Lord worked with them. How? By confirming the word preached, by giving the "signs" or gifts of the Spirit. Who did these signs confirm? The world, or unbelievers? Nay, but the obedient believer! What was assured them if they believed and obeyed the gospel from the heart? This, that they should become children of God; should be born of God; by the water and the Spirit. For Paul declares, "For ye are all the children of God, by faith in Christ Jesus, for as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Now the Spirit given them confirmed the testimony of their own mind, that they were children of God. Their spirit declared that they had obeyed the gospel, and the Spirit through the "signs" which followed their faith and obedience, bore witness with their spirit. It did not bear witness to their spirit of something that they did not know before. It did not tell them that they had believed and obeyed the gospel, and thus had become children of God thereby. This they already knew, but it confirmed them in what they already knew. A person who comes to me and tells me a new fact, or truth, that I never knew or heard of before does not confirm the truth to me, but reveals the truth; another person, or my own experience may confirm what the one revealed to me first. Now the Holy Ghost is given in confirmation of truth or existing facts. Of course it can and does reveal new truths; but in the case we are writing of the Lord confirmed the word preached by "signs following," the belief of the word,

I believe the true idea was expressed by Father Gurley in his history of the Reorganization, that they laid on hands, that those baptized might be confirmed by the gift of the Holy Ghost. But many elders say in laying on of hands, "We confirm you a member of the church," etc., whereas, the person is not confirmed till they receive the Holy Ghost for which gift, the elders lay their hands upon the head and pray for; and the gift follows the laying on of hands. It is better to say, we lay on our hands, that God may confirm you by his Holy Spirit, a member of the church, etc.

Another case of the Spirit bearing witness with other witnesses. "Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, We ought to obey God rather than men. The God of our fathers, raised up Jesus whom ye slew and hanged on a tree. Him has God exalted with his right hand, to be a Prince and a Savior, for to give repentance to Israel, and remission of sins. And we are witnesses of these things; and so also is the Holy Ghost whom God has given to them that obey him."—Acts 5: 29-32. That is, the Lord confirmed the word of the human witness.

The Lord works with those who work, and bears witness with those who have a witness to bear of the truth. This is in harmony with the doctrine taught by Jesus, that "In the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established." But this rule was laid down long before that, even in the days of Moses. Paul taught the same rule. So the Spirit bears witness with our Spirit that we are the children of God. But can we bear witness to what we do not know? Nay, therefore we must be able to know whether we are children of God or not. It will not do to say I think, or I hope, or I trust, or I believe that I am a child of God, I must know that I am. Can I know? Yes. I can know whether I am begotten by the word of truth. James 1: 18. I can not tell that, if I have believed a spurious gospel, for the gospel is the word of truth, nor if I have believed a little truth and a good deal of error, or a little of God's word and a great deal of the doctrines of men. I can tell whether I have been born of water and of the Spirit; I can tell whether my birth of water could be truly considered anything like a birth, if I was merely sprinkled upon with a few drops of water: or whether the Spirit produced or gives evidence of its work upon my soul and body, by its various fruits and gifts. Yes I can know, indeed I must know, that I am born again. Can not I know whether I have had the gospel faith in my heart? Can not I tell whether I have been baptized into Christ, and received the knowledge of the fact that I am in him, as a branch is in the vine, by the life, the light, and knowledge received from him; because the life or Spirit, which I received from him will help me, nay, lead me to think and feel, and act like him; to do the works that he did. How can it be otherwise? If I do not think, and feel, and speak, and act like Jesus, I am not in him and am not his; and am not a child of God, and the Spirit can not bear witness with me, because I can not honestly bear the witness myself.

Now I have noticed that these people who claim that they believe that they are the children of God, because the Spirit (or what they think is the Spirit) bears witness to their spirit; as a rule or as a general thing, have this witness when they "feel happy" as they express it; but when they feel gloomy or sad, or somewhat darkened in mind, then they are doubtful whether they are children of God. Multitudes have confessed to me, and I knew how it was myself, that the evidence of sonship in Christ was entirely dependent on feeling. And as the evidence of being a child of God is a happy feeling, an exalted and satisfied state of mind, so the contrary state was a contrary evidence. And with me for years, and hundreds said it was so with them, that it was "one day, (as they expressed it) on the mountain tops of joy and confidence and the next day down low in the valley of despondency." They were children of God they said, because they were happy and they were happy because they were children of God.

The Catholic confessant goes by the same rule of evidence, (his feelings), he is happy because the Priest has pardoned his sins, and he knows they are forgiven because he feels happy. These people who deny the Spirit's presence distinct from, and independent of (if we may so say) the written word, are in as bad a state if not worse, for even if begotten by the word of truth, (which is hardly true), and even if born of the water, they have not received the breath of life, or in other words, the Spirit which imparts spiritual life; and they are of course "still-born," or in other words not born into life at all, as the child who while in the womb lived by its mother's life, or blood; but not receiving the vital element—the atmosphere into its lungs for some cause, it never breathes, and being severed from the mother has no life, and is of course dead; just so with those who after being born of water, (or at least immersed), do not receive the Spirit which gives life, they do not enter upon a "new life in Christ Jesus" or "newness of life," they are in fact dead, having been still-born.

It is only those who being begotten by "the word of truth," which is "the gospel of the kingdom of God," and being born of the water and of the Spirit, are truly children of God, and the Spirit of man, knowing the things of the man, or the work and experiences of the man, knows that the man is a child of God, and the Spirit of God bears witness of the same fact, for the fruits of the Spirit are shown in the life of the man, and the gifts of the Spirit, in his experience, bear witness with the witness that his spirit bears, that he is a child of God, and when the Spirit can not bear witness of the fact, it is not a fact; and when the Spirit bears witness of the fact—it is indisputably the fact. The natural man can not bear witness of the work of the Spirit, for it can not comprehend its operations. The child of God can, because he is the child of the Spirit, being begotten by the words of the Spirit, and led by the influences of the Spirit to obey the law of the Spirit in baptism, and then renewed or made new, or a "new creature" by the Spirit—and yet all being the work of God, for the power was of God, that is the Spirit of God, and he knows he is a child of God, and the Spirit knows it, and proves it by causing him to bear its fruit in his life, and shows its power through him in divers gifts, operations, and manifestations. It is all a matter of positive certainty; of knowledge, and practical and demonstrable experience. It is not a supposition or a think so, or a hope so, or a trust so, but a 'tis so.

John did not have any doubts in the case, hear him, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." How like him? Immortal, celestialized, glorified, and heavenly in our bodies, as we are spiritual and divine in the inner man. But does our spirit bear witness that we are now the children of God? Not that we were born again, last week, or last month, or last year; but are we the children of God to-day? Have we the mind or disposition that was in Christ? Do we manifest the fruits of the Spirit? Do we have the spiritual power that comes from our connection or union with Christ, as a branch of the true vine? Do we do the works that he did, to say nothing of any greater ones?

Alas, how many of us, that can not answer these questions in the affirmative, except in a limited degree. If we are worthy of being called children of God at all; are not we puny, stunted, undeveloped creatures, that are just alive and that is all; whereas we ought to be strong, hearty, robust, well formed, and fully developed men and women in Christ Jesus? Will this do for us? Can the Spirit bear witness to what we are ashamed to state, for we feel that it is almost an insult to God, to claim that such weak, and puny, and dwarfed creatures as we, are the offspring of the Mighty God of heaven and earth. It will not do, we must get out of this state, and get well and strong, and possess all the powers of body and mind, spiritually speaking, that is our right and privilege to enjoy, or it may be ill, very ill for us, in the day of judgment. Do people grow old, and childish and feeble and helpless spiritually as they do physically? Who can tell by experience?

TYPE OF HOLY BAPTISM.—No. 2.

THE WATER FLOOD, BAPTIZING THE EARTH.

"When once the longsuffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water. The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us, (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God), by the resurrection of Jesus Christ."—1 Peter-3: 20, 21.

family in the ark from perishing by means of the water which buoyed it up, forms a type of holy baptism, is expressly stated by the Apostle Peter; and therefore in reading the narrative, we ought not only to endeavor to draw forth the instruction it affords as an historical record, but also to examine the mysteries regarding the sacrament of Christ which lies hidden beneath it. The words, "the like figure whereunto even baptism doth now also save us," the salvation of the few, even eight souls in the ark by means of water, was the type. The salvation of Christians in the Church of Christ by means of the baptismal waters, is the antitype—the fulfilment of that which the ark and the flood prefigured. The deluge, the ark, the dove, were the shadows; the baptism of water, and the Spirit, and the Church of Christ, are the realities and the substance.

The Christians' sacraments are not mere outward forms and representative ordinances. They are full of Spirit and of truth. Now in this type there are two portions to be considered. First, the water; and, secondly, the ark. The ark would have been useless without the waters on which it might ride in safety. It was constructed with special reference to them. Thus we must not suffer any apparent difficulty, (as to water being here a destructive rather than a saving element), to cause us to lay less stress upon this part of the type than St. Peter does in the text. The old world at the time of Noah had fallen into a grievous state of sin and wickedness. "The earth was corrupt before God; . . . for all flesh had corrupted his way on the earth."—Gen 6: 11, 12. After a long period of patience and forbearance, the Lord determined that His Spirit should "no longer strive with man;" and at length, in the fullness of time His wrath was manifested against the carnality and violence which prevailed. The windows of heaven were opened. The fountains of the great deep were broken up, and "the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished."—2 Peter 3: 6. But that which was a cause of destruction to the many, was a means of safety to the few. Noah and his family (in all eight souls), were exempted from the universal ruin. Having entered into the ark, built by Noah at God's command, they rode safely on the surface of the waters, and were carried out of the old world into the new. All the taints of sin and corruption which defiled the former world were washed away, and it emerged from the baptism of waters, expiated, cleansed and restored. It was baptized; and thus not only iniquity and its authors were abolished, but it sprang forth into new being. The overflowing waters thoroughly purified it from the corruption it had contracted since God pronounced it "very good." It was cleansed with such a cleansing as it will not again have, until it is finally cleansed with fire. And thus was it made a new earth. (2 Pet. 3: 10-13). Buried beneath the baptismal waters of the flood, its defilement 'perished,' and if we may so say, it was "born again," to fresh life. It was baptized, and thus regenerated. Here we observe, that water is a source both of destruction and of preservation. It destroyed all that was evil in the world; it preserved all that was good. Those few who were saved came forth to a world no longer steeped in corruption and "filled with violence," but to a world entirely clad in a renovated garment, on which its inhabitants had, as it were, "a new beginning," and were enabled in a purer and holier atmosphere to live a purer and holier life.

Now let us turn to the antitype. By nature men were "corrupt before God," subject to condemnation for their iniquity, the wrath of God abiding on them. To redeem us from this sad condition, "the Word" took our flesh, and instituted the sacrament of water baptism as a means of communicating to us the benefits, which by his life of obedience and his precious blood-shedding, he "purchased for us." In this sacrament there is both "a death unto sin," and a new-birth "unto righteousness;" while that which is sinful and carnal is destroyed and washed out in the baptized person by his being, buried with Christ in baptism—renewed, restored, regenerated. Thus is baptism not only the means of destruction; but also the means of new life and salvation. "We are buried" in the element of water, that renewed through the Spirit, we may rise again. For in the water is the image of death; in the Spirit is the pledge of life; that through water, which incloses the body in a tomb, the body of sin may die; and by the power of the Spirit we may be renewed from the death of sin, "born again" of God; and on this account these three witnesses, the Spirit, the water, and the blood are one, as St. John says, (1 John 5: 8). One in mystery—not in nature. The water, therefore, is the witness of "burial;" the blood the witness of death; the Spirit the witness of life. Whatever grace there is in the water is not from the nature of the water, but from the presence of the Holy Ghost wherein the righteous is preserved for a stock of righteousness, and sin dies. Therefore the Lord, when he saw the offences of man multiply, preserved only the righteous man with his offspring, and bade the waters go forth above the mountains; and therefore in that deluge all the corruption of flesh perished. The stock and pattern of the righteous man alone remained. Is not the deluge the same as baptism whereby all sins are washed away, (see Acts 22: 16) and the righteous mind and grace alone are brought back to life? "The Lord sitteth upon the flood," says the Psalmist. Ps. 29: 3. Now a flood is an overflow of water, covering all beneath it, and purging all former uncleanness. Hence the prophet calls baptism a flood, whereby the soul, "washed from its sins" and purged from the old man, is henceforth made meet "for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

Again, the ark built by Noah, that just man, who was "perfect in his generations," and who alone "found grace in the eyes of the Lord," to "the saving of his house," (Heb. 11: 7), is a type of the Church built by our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ for the saving of the elect. Those who listen to "the preacher of righteousness" and believe and obey the law of Christ, heartily repenting to their sins, are led to the ark of salvation, even the church, the door of entrance into which is holy baptism "for the remission of sins." (Acts 2: 38). Again Mark, 16: 20,—“And they went forth, and “preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following;” and “added to the church daily such as should be saved.”

When Philip is said to have "preached Jesus" unto the Ethiopian, it is plain that he preached the sacrament of water baptism whereby he was to be brought into communion with Jesus, for he immediately afterwards remarked,—“See, here is water, what doth hinder me to be baptized.” (Acts, 8: 36, 37). And thus if we would “preach Jesus,” we must preach baptism. And when we set forth the danger of despising or neglecting this baptism, or of undervaluing the blessings of the church, we do so because to despise and undervalue these things is in reality to despise and undervalue Christ, and “make the cross of Christ of none effect.”—1 Cor. 1: 17.

In the ark were to be found all kinds of animals, both clean and unclean; so in the church are men of all nations and characters. As in the ark there were leopards and kids, wolves and lambs; so also in the church there are righteous and sinners; that is, vessels of gold and silver abide together with those of wood and clay. Thus, too, were there gathered together in the net, in the parable, every kind of fish, both good and bad. (Matt. 13: 47-50). The barn floor contained both wheat and chaff. Of the ten virgins, five were foolish. In the field tares were mingled with the wheat. In the sheepfold were both sheep and goats. And while the church is still in the midst of this wicked world, we must not expect all in it to be holy and righteous. “It must needs be that offences come, but woe to that man by whom the offence cometh.” (Matt. 18: 7). However much we may mourn over the wicked lives of so many baptized believers, we must not stagger through unbelief. We are forewarned that it would be so. We must wait patiently, and in due time “the church” will be “presented unto God, holy and without blemish.” (Eph. 5: 27). And “there shall in no wise enter into it anything that defileth.” (Rev. 21: 27). So all who enter into the church by baptism are saved, (see Mark 16: 16), placed, that is, in a state of salvation; but they do not all make use of the gifts given them. Some make greater progress, continually “growing in grace,” and daily proceeding in all virtue and godliness of living. Others make progress, indeed, but more tardily, and less steadily. Others scarcely advance at all, nay, rather fall back, and are in danger of being thrust out altogether. So long as they are in the church they have all “one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.” (Eph. 4: 5, 6). To those who “abound in the work of the Lord,” an entrance shall be ministered into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.” (2 Peter 1: 11). God hath given Christ to be “the head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.”—Eph. 1: 22, 23.

The whole church, wheresoever spread through the world, is one in him, however one branch be separated from another, so that the stream of life no longer flows without impediment from one to another, however to the grievous injury of all there is a severance of one portion from another, so that no longer to the onward eye is there that “fervent charity,” signifying the ardor of love, and through its strong force “endureth all things” to hold together the spiritual community; yet is the church anointed with the Holy Spirit, one by its conjunction with Christ. In Genesis 8: 6-11, we read that at the end of forty days Noah “sent forth a raven, which went forth to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.” But the dove he sent forth found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark,” and when sent forth the second time, the dove came in to him in the evening “and lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf plucked off.” Doubtless there is here some mystical signification. The “raven” is a type of those who, while there is no rest in the whole world outside the Church of Christ, yet fitting “to and fro,” hither and thither amid the vanities and emptiness of the world, will not return unto the only place where they could find sure “rest for their souls.” The “raven” returned not, either intercepted by the waters or allured by some floating carcass, signifying that men polluted by the uncleanness of lust, and so intent on the things of this world, are either rebaptized or are seduced and held by those whom without the ark, (that is, the Church of Christ), baptism slays. How different was it with the “dove!” She could nowhere rest out of her home, and this is an apt emblem of all those who would leave behind the enticements and distractions of the world, and “fly as doves to the windows” of the church. “O, that I had wings like a dove,” says the Psalmist, “for then would I flee away and be at rest. . . . I would hasten my escape from the stormy winds and tempest.”

“Many,” in these last days, “run to and fro” like the raven, and are ever disturbed and unquiet, seeking first one excitement and then another; never happy, never peaceful, and yet they will not return to Christ the true “ark” of God’s covenant to us, “the true rest,” though he is ever inviting them with earnest accents,—“Come unto me, and I will give you rest.” How few in comparison are they who learn this wise lesson.

“Thou hast made us, Lord, for thee;
And our heart is restless until it rests in thee.”

That there is no resting place amid “the waves of this troublesome world.” But in the church “there is quiet” and safety until we come at last to “the haven” where we would be. We can not serve two masters. If we would have the Holy Spirit of God abiding within us we must utterly cast out Satan. These are irreconcilable foes, and no concord can there be between them. The fruits of Satan and the fruits of the Holy Spirit can not co-exist in one body. Can the fig tree, my brethren, bear olive berries? either a vine figs? Bitter envyings and strife, and all impurity, are not from above, but are earthly, sensual, devilish. Purity, peaceableness, gentleness, mercy, love, and such like, are from the Holy Spirit. If we live, then, "in the Spirit," let us walk also in the Spirit while it pleases God to keep us in this world, that by his holy aid we may overcome in all things, perfecting ourselves day by day until the coming of his Son Jesus Christ, that when he comes we may be found worthy to dwell with him until the perfection of eternal salvation, when the kingdom shall be "delivered up to God, even the Father," (1 Cor. 15:24), and we shall, in the open "contemplation of immutable truth, need no corporeal mysteries." Then all types, and figures, and shadows, and outward signs, for the conveyance of inward spiritual grace, will no longer be required. There "shall be no more sea," no more need of sacramental cleansing and washing; for then will be the final "regeneration" of all things, in the last great baptism of fire; and there will emerge from that perfection; "a new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness" for ever and ever, worlds without end.

IT IS CHEAP.

FOUR dollars per week for board fixed upon for the coming conference at Kirtland is cheap. Allowing that a night's lodging is equal to a meal in point of expense, and the cost for each will be 14.27 cents. Who can consistently expect it to be less? That rigid economy that may be practiced in home circles can not be strictly enforced always where there are large gatherings. But some one must bear the expense.

We had an opportunity to know what it cost to arrange for the conference at this place three years ago. Four dollars per week was then charged, but the proceeds did not meet the expense. The church made up the deficiency.

It is not altogether a question as to whether each attendant may be able to eat the full value at each meal of the money invested 14.27 cents. There is a large expense in the way of preparation to be made. There are but few Saints at Kirtland, and they mostly of the ministry—dependents. It will cost nearly as much to fit up the hotel as it did three years ago. It is a little expensive to arrange lodgings for a large number, and that only for a week or ten days.

When the conference adjourned a year ago to meet at this place, the delegates from here thought it could be but just that the district make the necessary preparation to entertain and relieve the general church from that burden. They hesitated on account of the finances, but concluded to try it. The preparation has to be made whether few or many attend, and expense borne. To equalize it somewhat will be better than for a heavy burden to be thrown upon two or three here, or the branch or district. Farmers who are prepared to entertain without going to extra expense could board for less than $4.00. Some may be willing too; others not. Outsiders are not so much interested as are the Saints.

Come to conference. The Temple will be substantially completed by the time of conference, having been plastered nearly throughout, and all the rooms restored ready for use by quorums and the assembly. The "School of the Apostles" is completed. Here sat the "School of the Prophets." It will be a propitious opportunity to reorganize the school, if the time is opportune. Could the ministry meet a few days or weeks in consultation with a view to a better unity on some things, it might prove of great benefit to the church. There has never been a better opportunity offered to the Reorganization for a grand union of Saints, a spiritual and intellectual feast, as well as business, than now. Come to conference.

"NEWNESS OF LIFE."

OUR present inheritance is that of fallen beings, subject to various good and evil tendencies. We are born in ignorance of the goodness and greatness of God, but of his loving kindness we may learn. The soul is possessed of a divinity which, when touched by the saving grace of God, is susceptible of a development by which it gains ascendancy over the carnality that weighs upon it perverting its judgment and destroying its vital interests.

Clear and pure as the limpid waters of the flowing stream, has come to us the light and power of a restored gospel. "By the foolishness of preaching" the pure in heart are led to believe, so that by this process saving faith is generated in their hearts. When the ear is saluted by the gospel's joyful sound, and the quickening influences of the Spirit awaken to consciousness the vital energies of the soul, with what rapidity are engraven upon the tablets of the mind conceptions of the goodness and greatness of God! Thus is chrystalized into a living experience the promise, "And they shall be all taught of God." Life now presents a new and far brighter aspect. Through the morbid mists are seen the glimmering rays of a better, happier sphere.

We are possessed of an undying entity, and are amply assured of the ceaseless joys of a limitless future. Vain ambition dies, being no longer a congenial companion to the soul which, born of God, now comprehends life in its higher, grander sense, viewing all things in the true light of their finality. Made alive in the vivid realities of christian conversion and christian experience, the soul is visited with joys that can not be told. These facts, patent to the life and history of many good and faithful men and women, evidence the truth of the gospel and place it beyond the sophistry of unbelief.

TRAVELS OF OUR INSPIRED TRANSLATION.

IT was sent us at Capron, Boone county, Illinois, and was one of the first printed. The binding was not the best, but listen as to where it has been read. We read and re-read it ourselves, then lent it to others; then took it to Kansas where we used it again two years, then returned to our former home where we tarried with the Boone county Saints two years more, then came to Iowa where it was read by many, and was the only one of the kind in that part, at Keystone, for six years. It is now going the rounds in Rice county, Kansas.

Brother Parsons came here and did some good preaching, and the heaven has commenced to work; some have commenced and read the New Testament through, while others have read the Voice of Warning, another has the Braden and Kelley Debate, others are reading the Herald and asking for the Book of Mormon. O, if we had the wherewith—money—to get books, we could do more. Our book of tracts, Book of Mormon, hymn book, and History of Joseph by Lucy Smith, and six copies of the Voice of Warning are all loaned. We can do no more till we get a new supply; but we hope that the Saints will join us in praying that the honest may heed the warning and listen to that voice that calls all to repentance. We are often asked, "When is that man coming? We like to hear him preach,"—They mean Bro. Parsons. Your sister,

H. I. LUSH.

THE HOLLOW OF HIS HAND.

When tossed upon the billows,
Afar from friendly land,
I will look to him who holds me
"In the hollow of his hand."

Though rayless be my pathway,
By night the heavens spanned,
I will trust in him who holds me
"In the hollow of his hand."

Though raging winds may drive me
A wreck upon the strand,
I will cling to him who holds me
"In the hollow of his hand."

Though deadened sails hang o'er me,
By hast'ning winds unfanned,
I will wait on him who holds me
"In the hollow of his hand."

When strength is spent in toiling,
And wearily I stand,
I will rest in him who holds me
"In the hollow of his hand."

When by the swelling Jordan,
My feet in sinking sand,
I will cry to him who holds me
"In the hollow of his hand."

Ah, there is bliss in walking,
E'en through a desert land,
In knowing that he holds me

Adjourned to meet in the hall, south-west corner of 11th and Girard avenue, on Sunday morning at 9:30. Sunday morning conference assembled, Joseph Squires in the chair. A motion prevailed to reconsider the report of Bro. Herbert, his report being that he began meetings in Trenton a year and a half ago and was drawing large congregations, but had withheld the name of the church,—had told some when asked by them that he belonged to the church of Christ. After considerable discussion it was moved and seconded that the report be accepted, but that it is the sense of this conference that the brother acted in a reprehensible manner in not giving the name of the church of which he is a representative, when asked to do so. On motion Resolved; That the district pay the expenses of the district president and secretary to conferences; and that the secretary of the district be appointed treasurer, and that the presidents of branches be instructed to take collections from time to time and send the same to the secretary for that purpose. On motion, a recommendation for the ordination of Hosea H. Bacon to the office of an elder was taken up and laid on the table for further consideration. A MEMORIAL OF LOVE

Presented to Elder Phineas Cadwell, late president of the Magnolia branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints; also, to Priest J. C. Johnson and Teacher William Davison, on the seventeenth anniversary of Elder Cadwell's presidency over said branch, and on the day of his retirement from the duties of the office, this 13th day of March, 1887.

Beloved Brother: Inasmuch as you have deemed it to be necessary and wisdom for the establishment of the cause of truth in the town of Logan, to resign your office as president of the Magnolia branch, which office you have ably and faithfully filled for the past seventeen years, we the officers and members of said branch feel it our duty to express to God the unbounded gratitude of our hearts for giving us so wise, loving, and faithful a shepherd; and our thanks to yourself who have so vigilantly watched over and guarded the flock, feeding the sheep, nourishing the lambs, and giving to each meat in due season.

For seventeen years you have presided over us with true dignity, and without ostentation or arrogance. You have encouraged the disheartened, and gently led the weak to the true source of strength. You have in meekness reproved the erring, and wisely approved and encouraged every proper effort for good in all. Without demanding, you have secured the love and esteem of all, and your counsels and rulings have been respected. It is no flattery to say that your success in presiding has, under God, been due to the fact that you have been enabled to govern yourself. Under your presidency the number of members that have united with this branch since its organization, seventeen years ago this day, has increased from the original fifteen to about three hundred and fifty souls. And while many have gone to other branches, very few have so far wandered from the truth as to cause their expulsion from the church to be necessary.

And now, as it seems to be necessary in the order of providence for the planting of the glorious standard of truth that you assume duties elsewhere, we feel that words are too feeble to express our love and gratitude to you, or to give utterance to our deep regret at your departure from us. But as the weight of years presses upon your whitening head, we feel that it would be ungrateful, selfish, and unjust, to ask that you continue to travel twelve miles every Sabbath day, as you have done during all the years of your presidency (when sickness or other emergencies have not hindered), almost regardless of the storms of winter or heats of summer, to break to us the bread of life, and to minister to our children in the Sabbath School, where you have so successfully presided in addition to your duties in the branch; and we lovingly tender you this evidence of our united love and esteem; and earnestly pray that He who has made you a blessing to us, as individuals and as a branch, may make you a still greater blessing to others in your subsequent labors, and then crown your life of usefulness with a glory that shall never fade in the celestial kingdom of God and his Christ.

In this connection, we also desire to express our appreciation of the labors of our beloved brethren, J. C. Johnson, acting priest, and Wm. R. Davison, acting Teacher. Their diligence in, and love for the cause, and the wisdom manifested by them as officers of the branch, will always be appreciated by us, and while we regret their departure from us, we will hold them in kind remembrance before our common Father's throne; and also all the dear brethren and sisters who now go out from us, with you, to plant the work elsewhere. We pray God to bless you all in every good word and work; and grant that we may all be found united with the church of the First-born, when He whose right it is to reign, shall come as King of kings and Lord of lords.

Signed in behalf of the Magnolia Branch of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,

THE OATH: POSSIBLE RESULTS.

BELOW we give the text of the oath prescribed by the Tucker-Edmunds law:

OFFICE OF THE UTAH COMMISSION, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH,
MARCH 4, 1887.

The oath required by the 24th Section of the Act of Congress of March 3, 1887, as a condition precedent to registration and voting, may be formulated as follows:

TERRITORY OF UTAH, } County of..... }

I, ..... being duly sworn (or affirmed), depose and say that I am over twenty-one years of age, that I have resided in the Territory of Utah for six months last passed, and in this precinct for one month immediately preceding the date hereof; and that I am a native born (or naturalized, as the case may be) citizen of the United States; that my full name is .....; that I am ..... years of age; that my place of business is .....; that I am a (single or) married man, that the name of my lawful wife is ..... and that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and will faithfully obey the laws thereof, and especially will obey the Act of Congress approved March 22, 1882, entitled "An Act to amend Section 5352 of the Revised Statutes of the United States in reference to bigamy and for other purposes," and that I will also obey the Act of Congress of March 3, 1887, entitled "An Act to amend an Act entitled an Act to amend Section 5352 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in reference to bigamy and for other purposes," approved March 22, 1882, in respect of the crimes in said Act defined and forbidden, and that I will not, directly or indirectly, aid or abet, counsel or advise any other person to commit any of said crimes defined by Acts of Congress as polygamy, bigamy, unlawful cohabitation, incest, adultery, fornication; *and I further swear (or affirm) that I am not a bigamist or polygamist, and that I have not been convicted of any crime under the Act of Congress, entitled "An Act to amend Section 5352 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in reference to bigamy and for other purposes," approved March 22, 1882; nor under the Act amendatory thereof, of March 3, 1887, and that I do not associate or cohabit polygamously with persons of the other sex].

Subscribed and sworn to before me this ..... day of.....
A. D. 188 .....

NOTE.—That part of the foregoing oath included in [brackets] from the asterisk * to the end, is not included in the Acts of Congress; but the classes of persons therein named are expressly disqualified as voters by the United States laws; and the Supreme Court has decided that the Registration Officers may, in their discretion, require an oath, as one of the means of ascertaining the qualifications of voters.

By order of the
UTAH COMMISSION,
A. B. CARLTON, Chairman.

Royal B. Young, a son of President B. Young, was lately present in Kansas City, Missouri, at a lecture on Mormonism, delivered by Miss Kate Field, and in answer to the inquiries of a reporter, after the lecture, among other things, said:

"Not ten per cent of the Mormon men of marriageable age are in polygamy, but all who belong to the church must believe it whether they practice it or not. A Mormon may be a bachelor and yet a good Mormon. Those in polygamy will not average more than two wives, while the very highest number seven, which is rare indeed."

This is from the Kansas City Journal, as reproduced in the Salt Lake Herald of March 12th.

Mr. Royal B. Young accuses Miss Kate Field of misstating things, but what shall be said of a man who states that "those in polygamy will not average more than two wives." No man can be in polygamy and have less than two wives, and if any number have more than two the average must be higher than what he states. His own father named nineteen wives in his will; then how can Mr. Young say that the "very highest" only number seven.

But the object of our mentioning the oath is to suggest in reference to it, one or two points upon which there will be radical difference of opinion as to what a believer in polygamy may do under the oath. Of it the Deseret News of March 18th states:

"Everybody who can read, can see for himself that the oath or affirmation does not trench upon belief and does not prevent the defense and advocacy of that belief, whatever it may be. Neither does it relate to membership in any association, civil or religious."

"It is not true that any 'Mormon' who has taken the new test oath has 'sworn he will not advocate and defend polygamy.' There is no such promise made or required in the oath. No such pledge may be demanded of a citizen. Opinion is free and speech is free."

"It is true the promise does not come from the plural-wived 'Mormons,' and does not have the effect desired by the plotting and promise-demanding anti-'Mormons.' The 'Mormon,' with more wives than one could not honorably make the promise demanded by the courts. But the 'Mormon' with but one wife or no wife at all, providing he has no present intention of entering into plural marriage or advising or helping others to do so, can make the promise required by the law as a condition to voting, both honorably and consistently. Why, then, the denunciation of the former for not making a promise which they could not give, and still worse denunciation of the latter for promising something which they can agree to?"

It will be seen that the oath requires those who take it to promise obedience to the laws of the United States made with direct reference to the practice of plural marriage and includes the promise not to directly or indirectly aid or abet, counsel or advise any other persons to commit the crimes named in the Tucker-Edmunds law. The advocacy of plural marriage as that theory has been heretofore advocated and defended by Utah elders in Utah, has been of such a character as to debar members not in polygamy from the full benefits of their connection with the church. Royal B. Young says that a man who belongs to the church, must believe in the theory whether he practices it or not. In addition to this the Salt Lake Herald for March 9th, says:

"Every man knows if his intention is to support the Constitution of the United States and obey the laws thereof, including the Edmunds act of 1882, and the Edmunds-Tucker act of 1887, in respect of the crimes in said acts defined and forbidden. Every man who understands himself is aware if it is his intention to commit the offenses of adultery, fornication, bigamy, polygamy, incest, or unlawful cohabitation, and whether he professes to aid, abet, counsel, or advise others to commit said crimes.

"The question which will be presented in the oath is one which each individual must decide for himself; no man can tell another whether or not the latter's conscience will stand in the way of taking the oath. The Herald would not have any man subscribe to that oath whose conscience revolted against it, or who would feel that he was doing violence to any sentiment of his head or heart. We would not have any man take the oath who intended at the time to disregard it or who believed that he would violate it. We would not have any man take the oath who could not do it honestly and conscientiously. But we hope that all male citizens of Utah who are interested in preserving the peace and good order of the Territory, who desire the maintenance of honest, economical government, who believe in the people controlling their local affairs and managing their public treasuries, and who can, without violence to their consciences, will take the oath and thus put themselves in the way of exercising their political power for self preservation and for the general welfare.

In the earnest wish herein expressed by the Salt Lake Herald, one of the moulders of the public opinion of Utah's Mormon inhabitants, there is an ostensible endeavor to carry the impression that the Salt Lake Herald advises an obedience to the law, a conformity to the oath. But who are they whom the advice reaches. Those who "can without violence to their consciences." And to this conforms the language of a part of the editorial of the News of March 18th, before quoted from:

"And now that men who have not broken any law, and who are free from the relationships which forbid making the promise, come forward when required and agree to observe the law and refrain from helping others to break it, the very creatures who made the country ring with their anathemas against men who could not honorably make the promise, are white with excitement and fiendish in their curses against those who are able to do what the law requires."

In the last quoted sentence the class who can safely take the oath is made to be those who had not broken any law, implying that there were those who had broken some law, or laws, an admission significant in itself. Besides this, there is a converse statement of who can not take the oath; this class are those who have broken the law and whose environments by reason of thus breaking the law are of such a nature that they can not without violence to those environments take the oath prescribed.

We may not say that men should take the oath regardless of conscience; as conscientious adherence to conviction is held to be the grand test of human endurance; but, to those who advocate that conscience is not the only safe guide to human conduct, as many of those same Salt Lake elders have been in days past, we may suggest that if they have surrounded themselves by evil environments no matter how sacred those environments are to them, the conscience begotten by them is not a "good conscience," "void of offence;" and should be re-educated by the word of God. Abraham possibly violated his conscience (the conscience of his environments) when he put Hagar away; but the voice of God told him to hearken to the voice of the Free woman; the law of the bond-woman gendered to bondage, that of the free woman to life. The Free woman, the Reorganization, has presented the law which gendered to liberty, to these same men for years, and has predicted the very straits into which men whose "environments" created bondage would be brought by reason of the bonds thus put upon their consciences; and we think it time that they now hearkened.

If the "Mormon with more wives than one could not honorably" promise the courts of the land that he would observe the law, and would not break the law himself, nor counsel others to do so, can the same man now take the oath prescribed? If men who believed it to be right to marry more than one wife would have committed an error against conscience by promising the Courts that he would not break the law of 1882, nor teach others to do so, can the same man now take this oath? The Anarchists arrested and tried at Chicago, relied upon the idea that unless they were personally implicated with the actual murder of the Chicago policemen they could not be justly condemned for the riot of that memorable May 4th. But the law stated that "an accessory is he who stands by and aids, abets, or assists, or who, not being present, hath advised, ENCOURAGED aided, or abetted the perpetration of the crime."

Of this the Chicago Times, one of the ablest journals of America, in a late editorial said: "Incitement is encouragement. When the evangelists of killing and destroying proclaimed to their disciples that they could not be blamed for destroying life and property, they incited and encouraged them to commit the crime which they subsequently committed."

The principle enunciated here we believe to be a sound one. Under its operation how can a Mormon who believes that the having more than one wife is necessary to celestial life, take the oath, and afterward "advocate and defend polygamy;" as the Deseret News by implication teaches that he can? How can such a man take the oath and after he has done so, teach, advocate and defend plural marriage without indirectly inciting men to so marry and thus commit one of the crimes named in the law referred to. It might almost be safely concluded that the man who can do that has no conscience to violate.

It has long been contended by Mormons as advanced thinkers that conscience is not an infallible standard; that in a sense conscience was a matter of education; and Henry Ward Beecher, now dead, is credited with saying that his conscience was a secondary affair; that whatever his judgment decided upon his conscience approved. Men's judgments are frequently conventional, and more or less warped by their surroundings; and we believe this to be the case with our contemporary Mormon religionists; and the News confirms this when it says that some men's environments will prevent their taking the oath honorably. The moral miasma of spiritual wifery, ("the splendor of Spiritual wifery," as the Old Man in Israel had it), has warped the judgment, a decision of judgment based upon a false premises has been reached; and this has resulted in a conscience averse to the keeping the law of the land. Such a conscience needs to be changed, as was the Apostle Paul's when the commandment came, so that Utah's citizens may be not only dwellers in the United States, but "doers of the law," according to the command of God to the church in 1831.

Members of the Reorganized Church (the Free Woman) can take the oath prescribed, if dwelling in Utah or elsewhere, if required to do so, without violating their consciences, for their environments are in accord with the things permissible in the laws of God and the land; and if a Mormon who is not in polygamy and has "no present intention" to violate the law by marrying more than one wife, nor to counsel others to do so, can take the oath "honorably and conscientiously," though he may "believe in the theory;" how much more "honorably and conscientiously" a man who is neither a polygamist in opinion, belief, sentiment or practice can take the same oath. The last can do so without reserve, the first has to swallow a moral quibble to do it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Charles Sheen, wrote from Highmore, Dakota, March 21st, that he had spoken once in the new Court House in Highmore, by invitation, and as soon as the weather was more comfortable, he should follow the effort up with others. The brethren there have had a hard season, as well as in other places; all countries seeming to be alike in this, that there will be seasons that are trying to the patience and labors of the dwellers therein. We were pleased to hear from Bro. Sheen, as we had wondered how it was going with them out there. Bro. Sheen says:

"I attended an appointment at the Court-house January 16th; it was a stormy day, but I found the room warm, a good crowd present, the Recorder reading to some from the Book of Covenants; I tried to presents the gospel in plainness; and when I had done, the Sheriff, Treasurer and others, thanked me and invited me to come again, which I promised to do."

Bro. Dancer received the following on the 24th:

"St. Paul, Nebraska, March 22d; I see in the Herald, that you send elders out to preach whenever they are called of the people; and we want to know if you think there would be any chance of our getting a minister out here to preach for us. I know of ten or twelve who would be baptized, if there was a preacher here of your faith. Hoping that your answer will be in our favor, I remain, yours with respect, H. W. STARKEY."

Who will respond to this urgent call.

Bro. D. S. Mills, of Santa Ana, California, wrote March 24th, from Los Angeles:

"To-morrow night I go to Laguna to hold meeting; and next Sunday morning speak at the Swamp, and then here in the evening, which keeps me busy. We had a good meeting here last evening, (March 23d); more to join this branch soon. The cause is onward in this district. The Herald articles, "Persecution and its Causes," with the items of church history, are doing untold good; and far more than counteracts the ripple caused by elder Whitmer, which annoyed many; but the able and clear-cut reply has smoothed the stream. 'No hand formed against [this work can prosper,' is written on the walls of modern Babylon, as it has been heralded from the ramparts of heaven."

The following is from the Iowa State Register, published at Des Moines, in its issue for March 27th, 1887, a copy of which is furnished us by the kindness of Mr. Francis Varga, Esquire, of Leon, the county seat of Decatur county, and for which we thank him.

THERE'S ALWAYS ROOM FOR HONESTY.

The Guthrie Center Guthrian, usually one of the broadest and most tolerant of newspapers, has the following paragraph in its last issue:

"The Register of Sunday was a big sheet of sixteen pages, big in matter, big in advertisements, and big in one mistake, that of advertising in three columns the big infamy of the Mormon swindle with its proxy immersions of the living for the forgiveness of the sins of the dead, its pretensions to miraculous gifts and the gift of inspiration, its pretensions to the office of an oracle of deity. The present head of monogamous Mormonism may be a great man, but only the dupes of his system believe it."

We do not engage in a controversy with so respected a contemporary, but we quote its paragraph simply to say that there is no doubt of the honesty, sincerity, and good life of that branch of the Mormon church under President Joseph Smith, Jr., nor any doubt that it is the most alert and aggressive foe that polygamy has, and therefore that it should be said that it is a church which among fair people should be accorded the fullest right to its opinions. Its doctrines may not be right, its belief may be erroneous and its pretensions by way of doing uncommon things may be unfounded and unwise, but the fair play world has nothing to do with these things. This is a very wide world, and one which is constantly growing in tolerance of opinion, and especially in respect of religion. The Mormon church proper, or improper, or that wing of it which bases itself largely on the abomination of polygamy infringes on the rights and offends the honor of society. Therefore, it is justly an object of public antagonism, social protest, and governmental interference. But this other Mormon church which does not infringe upon society or morality, which is a church of quiet, inoffensive membership, fair-spirited people, and law-abiding citizens, is one which has just as much right to maintain itself and just as much right to ask public permission to live as any other existing church of moral practices and law-abiding teachings.

The Register is not a religious paper, has no bigotry in such matters, but as a paper of the people it is in favor of fair play for all churches alike which observe the proprieties and moralities of life, whether they be Catholic, Protestant, Mormon, Mahomedan or otherwise. It is a long way to Heaven, and a long way to reach it. Nobody yet knows the infallible way. Everybody can afford to have great charity, for whatever his religious opinion or doctrine may be, there are hundreds of millions of intelligent people on the earth, who honestly do not believe he is right. No one has a certainty in this most important and yet most mysterious of all questions. Any one who is hunting the right way honestly, and at the same time respecting the opinions of others and the rights of society, or any church following the same good paths, is entitled to the tolerance of all good citizens, and has an unquestionable right to be. So brother Guthrie, whatever road our neighbor may be taking to Heaven, if it is an honest and moral road and one of sincere purpose and good heart, we had better let him travel it, trusting that it may lead him to the right end at last, or that in good time he may get in the right road. Many of us may be wonderfully surprised in finding those whom we have pitied for being on the wrong road, welcoming us finally into the right road. We know very little about it in fact and so may our neighbor know very little, but yet after all he may possibly know more than we do. This may not suit all of the good and blessed people among the orthodox, but it can not offend those among them who are fair minded, while it will suit many thousands of people who differ with them, and are yet just as anxious as they to find the right way to the good world.

We thank the Register for this manly defense of the privilege to think and believe with reference to heaven and the way to get there as we may elect. And though the Register disclaims being a religious paper, in the sense of being a propagandizer or defender of any specific faith, it does speak fairly in behalf of honest endeavor to live as good citizens of a good republic with a view to being fitted for citizenship in the good world to come, whether that world be a kingly or a republican government.

We assure the Register that we believe if the views so plainly expressed by it in reference to the right to choose the religion to which a man may elect to give credence had been prevalent many years ago, there might not have been the necessity for so wide a condemnation of Mormonism as a whole; and it is greatly to the credit of the age that so broad and generous views are obtaining. We hope that the estimate of the Guthrie expressed by the Register respecting the hitherto broad and tolerant character of that journal is a correct one; for it is somewhat humiliating to us after over a quarter of a century's hard fighting all round the region where the Guthrie circulates, to think that there should be a respectable newspaper ignorant of the facts so fairly stated by the Register. Besides this, the Register's "advertisement" for which it is so sharply condemned by the Guthrie was from a secular journal located in the county where the Mormons so advertised have a large settlement of people forming an integral part of the population of the county, and conducted by gentlemen acquainted with the reputation of those of whom they wrote; and it would have been only fair that these gentlemen should have been credited by their Guthrie Center contemporary with ordinary ability and common honesty as citizens; instead of calling these into question at the same time that the good sense of the Register was denounced. We like fair dealing whether in Church or State, in religion or politics, and if these are accorded us, we will take the risk of getting to heaven in the way we have chosen.

Senators Edmunds, of the "land of steady habits," and Ingalls, of progressive Kansas, representing the different types of public opinion east and west, were careful in their respective places in the Senate of the United States to declare that no attack upon religious opinion was intended by the legislation sought for upon the situation of affairs in Utah; and the Register in its editorial adheres to this principle only; and if the Guthrie will take a little pains to get out of the hills of Guthrie county, it will learn that Calvin burned Servetus in Switzerland, witches were burned in Massachusetts, Lovejoy and Joseph Smith were killed in Illinois, and John Brown in Virginia, not because the victims were malefactors defacto, but because intolerant conservatism would not endure the advanced views held and advocated by those whom it killed. Arrogant bigotry claimed immunity from attack, not because it was entrenched in the right, but because it was panoplied in might. The men and the witches died; but the smoke of their cremation and the smell of their blood has been offensive to freemen seeking to establish free thought and free speech; and intolerance has become of so hateful a mien that wherever in this wide land its ugly head is raised, there is some freeman, like the Register, to remonstrate against its will being carried into effect.

To us it is significant when so important a journal of so wide a circulation and prestige as the Iowa State Register takes up the gage of battle when citizens of the state are denounced because of their religious convictions, and we shall draw our theological breath hereafter with less of fear that there is knife, or fagot held by an intolerant hand to do us injury which shall go unrebuked.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

A NOTE from Bro. John J. Cornish, of March 23d, states that he has been laboring for the last eight weeks, at Bay Port, Michigan, and had baptized seventy-eight, and helped to confirm eighty-seven; that he was worn with labor and excitement, and would be at home for a few days to prepare for the April Conference, which he proposes to attend. What a confirmation to his ministry has brother Cornish won during the year that is past. What a rejoicing with his, not one, but many sheaves; and what a pleasure to his brethren in the Lord, that he has been so blessed. Is there a Saint that can envy brother John his success? Is there one that can not feel glad that the good Spirit has been with him all these days of his labor and toil in the gospel field. If there is such an one, what a singular state of mind he must be in. There may be some, and we would not object if there were many, who would be pleased to emulate his work of love; and these, wherever they may be, can appreciate what Bro. Cornish has done; and feel a thrill of satisfaction that so much has been wrought for the Master.

Bro. Alexander H. Smith, of Independence, Missouri, was at Lamoni, on Sunday, March 27th, and spoke at the evening service, in the Saint's church here. His discourse was much liked by those who were present on the occasion. His subject was "Saints—lively stones in the Spiritual Building."

Bro. W. W. Blair started for Kirtland, by the way of Sandwich and Galien, on Friday, March 25th, expecting to reach Kirtland by the 5th of April.

The Sunday School at Lamoni gave an Easter season entertainment, on the evening of the 25th of March; which for the purity, harmony and appropriateness of the selections on the programme, we have never seen surpassed. There were two original selections, which were exceptionally excellent. There was not a single coarse, or laughter provoking piece on the list; all were commemorative, or descriptive of the life and mission-work of the Emanuel, the Son of God. Some of the renditions of the scholars indicated an appreciation of the thoughts and feelings of the writers of the pieces, which was hardly to be looked for in people so young.

There are three of the Saints at Beaver Falls, Beaver county, Pennsylvania; but these must have the promise of the Savior that where two or three are gathered in the name of the Lord, that there would he be and that to bless; for they meet, sing, pray, and hold the communion of Saints just the same as if there were many more, and Bro. W. W. Hodge says that they are blessed indeed. It requires courage to stand in the pulpit sometimes and declare the truth, but it seems to us that it requires more courage to meet with two or three, in the midst of a gainsaying world, and there turn the face toward Zion and worship in an unpopular way. Bro. Hodge thinks that it is their duty to so meet and certify their devotion, until the Lord may permit one of the elders to come to them and add to their number those who may be obedient. May God bless the watchers and workers together in the days that are now, and with the life that is eternal by and by.

Sr. Morgan Davis and her husband, of Flagler, Marion county, Iowa, would like that an elder would visit them at their home, that the gospel might be preached there. They think that good would result.

Bro. E. W. Numley wrote from Wheelock, Robertson county, Texas, that he had been chosen as the president of the district, and thought that he could reach all the branches of the same during the next quarter. This relieved Bro. I. N. Roberts of the responsibility of the district and left him free to prosecute the general work in the state, as he might be directed. Bro. Numley states that the people still think that we are of the Utah Church, and for this reason do not encourage a hearing from the elders. He says that the conference at Elmwood was a good one and that he there met many of the good Saints, and that they "had a glorious time." Bro. I. N. Roberts was feeling well and "speeding the plow."

THE Bozeman, Montana, Weekly Chronicle, of February 23d has a very complimentary notice of the Reese Creek Saints, fifteen miles from Bozeman, over which Bro. J. E. Reese presides.

A VISIT TO REESE CREEK.

Editor of the Chronicle:—A visit to the little church on Reese Creek, the sanctuary and center of attraction for the "Saints of the Latter Days," made the following impression on our mind: It is almost useless to state that these sincere and earnest followers of the "Lord's gospel" according to the Jewish and Christian scriptures, also of the late Joseph Smith, are somewhat unpopular with some of their near neighbors. We ask the question, what is the cause of this? No one says that they are dishonest, and all agree that they are true to their principles and convictions of justice and right. They are found to be prompt paymasters of all their just and honest debts, and above all things, they are the most punctual and persistent worshippers almost ever known. They meet every Sunday at two o'clock p. m., the year around, and every Thursday night throughout the fall and winter months, and in every respect they are at all times found attending to their own business, and not meddling with that of any one else, and yet, with all these splendid qualities, they are said by some to be unpopular. This is a stumbling-block to us, since we have always understood that such excellent qualities as these people possess are to be commended. Is it possible that a new, old fashion is springing up, that vice is coming to be a virtue and virtue a vice? If this be true, they will not follow the fashion. It is true that many things have taken place in the few years in East Gallatin and Spring Hill, that are indeed very bad and wrong, but notwithstanding these facts, none of those dirty scrapes have ever been traced to the door of any "Latter Day Saint." They go to church quietly and peaceably, for the sole purpose of worshipping their God, do not go where they are not wanted, and never go to a public gathering of any kind to disturb and annoy any one. They are strictly temperate. When they have visitors, worthy members of society, they spare no time or attention in endeavoring to entertain and make them happy. They are always given the best pews and cordially invited to participate in the service, and no one is ever allowed to go "hungry and naked and they feed and clothe them not."

They have a president, Mr. J. E. Reese, who has presided over their little branch for nearly a quarter of a century, with great favor and success. Their little branch is composed of about fifty members, and in good weather they are nearly all in attendance at all meetings.

I join the great march onward,
And take, by faith, while living,
My freehold of thanksgiving."

EDITORIAL CHAT.

WE are happy to be able to announce to the sisters who have been contributing to the "Missionary Fund," that we last week sent to the Bishop $411, being the amount in full of contributions and profits on the sale of pictures; and while we feel very happy in contemplating a result so gratifying, we are still conscious that if all had interested themselves in sending in their offerings, it might have been double. It has been curious to remark, as they have been coming in one by one, how many have come from the isolated, scattered ones, while in places where there are large branches, but a name or two, or three at the most, has been sent up. We have one request in particular to make of each one who has contributed to this fund. Support in an especial manner by your faith and prayers, those whom the conference shall in their wisdom appoint as your color bearers; and further, if one of you shall ever discover that you miss or are poorer for what you have done, won't you write and let us know it.

Small as the sum is, it will perhaps be sufficient to support two elders in the field for a year, and it has only been accumulating one week over four months. At that rate the "Home Column Fund" would sustain six elders in the field from year to year. We know of one elder doing constant and effective work for the Master, whose wife only receives $10 per month; and while this is not enough for a comfortable support, $200 per annum would be ample. Don't let it be said of us, "Ye did run well, what did hinder you?" But let those who have not yet sent in their names, send them; and let each one who has tasted the sweets of the sacrifice which they have laid upon the altar, bring that sacrifice yearly, or as often as the heart prompts. The Spirit is moving upon many hearts to ask, "Shall I be ready to receive the outpouring of the Spirit which the Lord has in store for the faithful?" And from many an awakened heart the cry is going up, "Lord what would'st thou have me to do?" Some have laid their all upon the altar; have sold their homes; left kindred, home and friends—everything which we prize in this life, and to-day are laboring in our own and in foreign lands, declaring the tidings of life and salvation to a dying world. These are sending in their offerings to help yet others to go, and God is abundantly blessing their labors. Shall these be the only ones to sacrifice? Are we expecting to share the same glory, to sit down at the same marriage feast of the Lamb? "Let no man deceive you, * * * God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that also shall he reap."

Daughters of Zion our king is coming. The very air is tremulous with the vibrations of the march of that mighty army of events which indicate his near approach. Have we on the royal robe of preparation? In this day when the inhabitants of the earth are moved with doubts and fears, and with looking for what they know not; are we making a sure preparation for that which we know is coming? Cheer up, weary toilers; take courage, faint hearts, the stars are fading one by one, for the east grows roseate with the coming light of dawn. A few more days or years of faithful work is all the Master will suffer your hands to perform for him here. O, then faint hearts, awake to the glory of what is permitted you, to the part of this glorious work God has wonderfully honored you in suffering you to do for him.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Sallie Weiles writes from St. Peters:—"There are no Saints near here; we belong to a branch twenty miles away; I am the only one of my father's family that belongs to any church. My husband and two children, a son and a daughter, are with me in the Reorganization. The Herald is all the preacher we have, and we could not do without it. Pray for me that I may be instrumental in bringing my friends to a knowledge of the truth."

Sister B. Bardsley writes from Neola, Iowa:—"I do not hear a sermon oftner than once in six months, and apart from this the Herald is our only preacher. I have been in the church since 1847, and in the Reorganization since the spring of 1861. I have never doubted the work, because I received a testimony for myself of its truth, and have always been faithful to it. It matters not who stands or who falls, the gospel is truth."

Sister Mary Farley, writes from Wisner, Nebraska:—"We are numbered among the scattered ones, and do not have the privilege of meeting with the Saints. I united with the church in England, in 1857, I can say truthfully that I never had a doubt as to the mission of Joseph the Seer, or this gospel of the kingdom."

Sister Barbara Davis writes from Weir City, Kansas:—"I enjoy reading the letters from the sisters and can not see how any Saint can do without the Herald and Hope, I could not for any price."

Sister Etta Seely writes from Wano, Kansas:—"There are none of my people belonging to the church. I was baptized by Bro. Robert Elvin at Wheeler's Grove, Iowa, and have never been sorry for it. I was pleased to hear from Sister Amanda Wood."

SENIOR, Texas, Jan'y 18th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—A few nights ago I had a dream; in the dream I thought it was Sunday morning, and there was a crowd gathered at our house. It was made known to me that one side of my face was spotted, which troubled me very much. I stepped to the front door and was looking up towards the sky, when all at once a star fell, and then another quickly followed it. Then a beautiful white hand appeared, pointing upward. I turned and asked the crowd if they saw what I did? Some said they did; others paid no attention. It seemed that before this I had gotten the spots off my face; and about three o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, I was with my mother under a green tree near the church, we live only a few steps away from the church. I thought Paul and Peter came to us and told us that the end of time was near at hand. While Paul was talking (he did the principal part of the talking) we looked toward the east, and a short distance off we saw the Savior coming, with a host of angels all around him. It seemed that they were in a mist. I was dreaming nearly all night, but it is not all plain enough for me to relate. I only know that I was very happy during the time. I was so happy after I awoke I couldn't realize that it was but a dream. I had been neglecting my prayers the past week, and I knew that was what the spots on my face meant. Pray for me that I may ever be faithful and may never bring reproach upon the church.

Your sister in Christ,

LAURA E. NEAL.

RHODES, Iowa, March 13th.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column:—"Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." This language of Paul comes to me as I sit and write. I believe it is applicable to all Christians of to-day. Did you ever think how it applies to you? Or how you can bear the burdens of others? "But," says one, "we read in the fifth verse of the same chapter, that every man shall bear his own burden." Very true; we all have burdens to bear, that no one can bear for us. In other words, we all have individual duties to perform, which sometimes become very heavy burdens. I remember once reading a letter in the Herald, written by a sister, in which she said she knew the work to be true, but it was a great cross for her to rise in social service and bear testimony to its truth in presence of the Saints. To her this was a burden, and one which could not be borne by any one else. We do not all have the same burdens, but every one his own to bear. But is there no way in which we may bear the burdens of others, and so fulfill the law of Christ? What is the law of Christ? Is it not a law of love? Jesus said: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them;" and again: "Thou shalt love the Lord with all thy might, mind and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself." I think if we love like this, we will find many ways by which we can lighten the burdens of those around us. Is there a weak brother or sister among you who is staggering beneath the heavy burden, whose steps are faltering, or who perhaps have already stepped from the narrow way through manifold temptations? Paul says: "Restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." Go to them with words of comfort, and seek by gentle words and acts of love to win them back again. You know not under what circumstances they may have fallen. You know not how hard they may have struggled against the tempter's power. O, let us not be hasty in our judgment; for there is one that judgeth, even God. It has been said that, "It is human to err but divine to forgive." Then let us cultivate a forgiving spirit, and seek to build each other up.

"If we only tried to lighten
All the burdens others bear;
If we only strove to brighten
Every pathway dark with care;
We should hear the angels singing
All around us night and day:
We should feel that they are winging
At our side their upward way."

Your sister,

MATTIE HUGHES.

LLANELLY, Wales, Feb. 21st.

Dear Sister Frances:—I am a stranger to you in person, but not in spirit. I have been connected with the Latter Day Saints some forty years, lacking a few months; and now in my declining years I desire to bear my testimony to its truthfulness; and it may be my last, especially in your Home Column. I do know that God is the originator of it, through his now martyred prophet, Joseph; and will indeed and of a truth be the Omega of it, when all his creatures shall bow to his majesty and power. I am still praying for all the true mothers in Zion, with all the rest of God's children, even as I am satisfied that you all are ever pleading to the divine Master for me. Please accept the widow's mite which I enclose to you at this time; ever anxious for the prosperity of the good cause we all love.

Your sister,

RACHEL WILLIAMS.

LOWER LAKE, Feb. 27th.

Dear Sisters:—I have been a member of the church for about twenty years. I have never felt like turning from it. I have my seasons of rejoicing, also of sorrow, but God has sustained me when the waves of affliction have well nigh overwhelmed me. I buried three darling children in one short year. Sometimes I felt like murmuring at my heavenly Father, during my severe trials, but I can now say thank God that they are free from this world of sin and care. Two of them died in hope of a glorious resurrection; they both being Latter Day Saints.

The letters in the "Home Column" are a great comfort to me. It is my ever great desire to live so that every act of my life may be in accordance with his holy law, that when I fall asleep I may sleep in Jesus. Blessed thought! I desire an interest in all your prayers.

From your sister in the covenant,

E. E. COBB.

FORSTER, Australia, Jan. 16th.

Sister Frances:—I would like so much to write a few words for the Mothers' Home Column, although I am weak and feel my inability to write much; still I can say that I feel helped by reading the Home Column, and I hope God will bless you and prosper the work. As yet we are as babes in the church, though we have learned a great deal since it pleased God to send us Bro. Burton. May He bless him with the richest blessings, is my prayer. We hope that our sisters in the Lord will pray for us in Australia, that we may grow strong in the faith.

EMILY TAYLOR.

MILLERSBURG, Ill., Jan'y 23d.

Sr. Frances:—The Herald is an ever welcome visitor at our home. Its purity of tone is truly refreshing in comparison to much of the literature of the day; and may the light it sheds abroad grow brighter and brighter until the perfect day. While God is marshalling his armies, Satan's hosts are being mightily reinforced, for

"A battle is coming between the two kingdoms,
The armies are gathering round."

And as we view the opposing phalanxes our hearts would be appalled were it not for the soul enlivening thought that the God of battle is on our side, and he has said: "Let not your hearts be troubled." Why let not our hearts be troubled? Because we believe. If we believe in Him we will love him. "If ye love me ye will keep my commandments;" for his commandments are not grievous, as all who honor them can attest; and "Oh, how purely; oh, how surely, walk the innocent in heart!" The pure in heart: these are they who shall endure and abide, and join in the song of victory, in the sweet bye and bye. To obtain and retain this purity requires a careful, prayerful walk, day by day; but the promised grace and strength are never lacking to the endeavoring one, and the reward—eternal life—far outbalances all the effort we can make to obtain it.

This is not a time, nor was there ever a time, for sleeping soldiers. Let us be awake, and be on the alert, for the enemy of all righteousness knows our every weakness, and he, too, is ever on the alert.

While striving to press on to the mark of eternal perfection I am oftentimes painfully reminded that I have not as yet reached the goal.

Sr. G. S. Hyde in a recent letter to the Home Column classes herself among "those unfortunate creatures who might do much if their patience were only sufficient." Sister H., I am positively sure I belong in the same category, and should like to make your better acquaintance. Notwithstanding my imperfections, my experience has taught me that God is good; he has redeemed my life from destruction, and blessed me in many ways; and I still desire to press forward in the hope of ultimate triumph. I love this latter day work, and it grows dearer to me day by day; add to this the fact that my dear companion in life is one of its representatives, and you will understand me when I say I watch with deep interest the "working of contending powers." An article in Herald, not long since, relative to spiritualism, suggested to my mind the query: With the light and knowledge given us, and the injunction to "shun the appearance of evil," what business have we, as Saints, to in any wise tamper with it? May God help us all to be wise, and shun evil wherever and whenever found; and may all who have named the name of Christ, walk worthy of the high vocation wherewith we are called, is the earnest wish and prayer of your sister in the bonds of the covenant of peace and good will,

V. V. SHORT.

Correspondence.

BAY PORT, Mich, March 23d.

Saints' Herald:—Elder J. J. Cornish commenced laboring here in December and has now baptized fifty-six members, and there are more coming. This was considered a case-hardened people; the Methodist and Baptist could not reach the heart of the people; but Elder Cornish has aroused them to a sense of their duty. He preaches with power, but does not try to force people into the church. He preaches the word, and when people are convinced of sin and thoroughly understand the principles of the doctrine he is ready to receive them into the church, and not before.

In regard to the debate between Elder Davis and Elder Cornish, the facts are as follows: After Elder Cornish had preached several sermons, the enemy sent to Boston, Massachusetts, for Davis to upset Cornish's doctrine. He got here on the 25th of February, preached that evening, stated that he had been requested to give a discourse on Mormonism; on the 27th inst. he preached forenoon and evening; Elder Cornish was present at the evening service, at which time Davis again stated he had been requested to give a discourse on Mormonism, and that he supposed Cornish had somebody there to speak for him; this was on Sunday afternoon or evening. Elder Cornish was there, and when Davis spoke of somebody to represent him, he told Davis that his name was Cornish; whereupon Davis challenged him to debate, and Cornish accepted. Davis wanted to commence that night, but Cornish objected to commencing on Sunday night; so it was arranged for Tuesday night. They met as arranged, Tuesday night; house was filled at an early hour; chairman was appointed and all necessary arrangements for the debate, (the chairman is not a professor). Cornish opened the debate. They had two half hour speeches each. Wednesday night people gathered early and the house was well filled with people anxious to hear the discussion. Seven o'clock was the hour for commencing; a few minutes before, Cornish appeared, and about seven Davis came in, with quite a following. He walked up one of the aisles, about half way to the stand, when he stopped and demanded that the two center aisles be cleared, Cornish told the people to sit still, they were all right; that the two outside aisles were clear and that was chance enough to get back and forth; whereupon Davis charged Cornish of being there with his mob, and refused to debate unless the two center aisles were cleared. He said there was danger of fire, or there might be a panic; the people remonstrated with him that there was no danger, and that the people were anxious to hear the debate; and that they could not turn the people out doors. Davis said if the people would elect him moderator, he would clear the two aisles; so the people elected him moderator; whereupon he refused to act. Then the people offered to clear the center aisle from the door to the stand; but he refused to debate on those grounds; and started out with his following. Now the most disorderly conduct was on the part of Davis' friends. One of his backers dared a young man out doors, and another one of Davis' backers, a female, was near the door yelling for the men to fight, when a gentleman stepped up to her and said, "We will have order." She said, "We will fight if we want to." He said, "You will have to go out doors if you want to fight." Whereupon she shoved him against another female, and knocked her against the stove, and said she could lick him, and that she would use something else on him.

It was all quiet after Davis and his following left. Elder Cornish preached a good sermon. There were only five of the Saints there that night of the debate. The reports circulated over the country in regard to that debate are false. The people of Bay Port are generally law-abiding. The writer was quite prejudiced against the Saints, but after hearing the doctrine preached it changed my mind, I now am a professor.

From your well wisher,

CHARLES E. GRANT.

WILBER, Neb, May 24th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I left Salt Lake City on the 15th, and arrived at home on the 17th inst. Found my family well, for which we thank the good Lord for his tender mercy to us. I left Bro. J. C. Clapp in charge, and he will be at the service of the Saints, where his services may be required. If the brethren will write him, Box 1123 Salt Lake City, he will visit them as the work demands. They will find him a genial soul, and an able defender of the faith.

I wish to thank the Saints in the Rocky Mountain Mission for their kindness to me and mine; they stood by me in all my labors, ever willing to labor and sacrifice for the cause we love so dear; none could have done better. May heaven bless them with all Saints, I pray,

In bonds, yours,

R. J. ANTHONY.

BLENHHEIM, Ont., March 22d.

Editors Herald:—Since last writing to you we have been having quite lively times here. On the 2d and 4th of this month Bro. R. C. Evans delivered two lectures here; the subject of the first, "Was Joseph Smith a prophet of God, or an impostor," the second, "Brigham Young and Salt Lake Mormonism." Our church was full both nights; the Methodist preacher was there the first night, and the result was that he had considerable to say about Joseph Smith and Bro. Evans (the boy preacher) on Sunday night. I sent him a challenge to meet Bro. Evans and debate the subjects, which challenge he declined, and in his letter he used considerable slang. He also took the challenge and his reply and got them printed. I then put a small piece in the paper telling the people why I had challenged him, which was because he did not come up when he had a chance and contradict what the lecturer had said. We never had anything here that raised such an excitement. Bro. J. A. Mc-Intosh came here on the 13th and commenced a series of lectures on the 14th which have been well attended; quite a number seem interested. What the result will be time will tell. Bro. Evans baptized three while here. Bro. McIntosh is still with us; he is an able defender of the faith. Pray for us here.

Your brother in the gospel,

RICHARD COBURN.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, March 27th.

Bro. Joseph:—I arrived home the 11th, found all well. I enjoyed my visit at Lamoni very much. I felt that I was among those whose hearts beat in unison with mine in this great latter day work. "O, how sweet is communion with Saints." I met some whose experience in this work was similar to mine, having passed through the dark and cloudy days of the church, when but children; I found them now standing up for the truth, willing to meet the flood of lies that has accumulated ever since the angel restored the gospel in its purity. This is evidence to my mind that Mormonism (as the world calls it) will not die in this generation at least.

I found my mother failing slowly, but suffering little pain; her mind clear and active, and her faith strong in God's work. She will be eighty years old next June. Bro. William's health is poor, but his faith is firm in the latter day work. I preached once in the New Zion School-house; had a fair turn-out and good liberty in speaking. I believe Bro. Lambert has spoken there a few times. I think an effort should be made for preaching in that neighborhood. When I arrived home Bro. E. C. Briggs was preaching here; he staid one night with me. I understand his preaching gave good satisfaction. Your temperance lecture was well received by the Good Templars, Blue Ribbon Club, and everybody, with the exception of a few whiskey Democrats who think that a minister of the gospel should confine himself to the gospel. (You know that I am not that kind of a Democrat). Give my love to brethren Blair, Stebbins and Hansen, and all inquiring friends.

Your brother,

D. K. DODSON.

ANTWERP, Ohio, Mar. 28th.

Bro. Dancer:—I met upon the streets this morning old father Keesler, of the old organization; he is very feeble, being almost eighty years old. He was baptized by Edson Fuller or Harvey Whitlock in 1831, in Lorain county, Ohio. I have been sending him my papers occasionally, and he now thinks he can not get along any longer without the Herald. Bro. Springer baptized six while here last November, but four of them have moved away. At last account Bro. Springer was at Clear Lake; we expected him back here before this, but we do not know now when he will be here, as he wrote he was going home to Lamoni before he could come, and expected to move to Coldwater, Michigan, or the Lake. Some are still investigating our claims here yet, and I look to see others obey when opportunity admits. I am still strong in the faith, and pleased with the prospects. The Herald and Hope are my dearest friends, and I don't think I could get along without them at all. Ever praying for the welfare of all the Saints, that we may all be led by his guiding Spirit into all truth, I am your brother in gospel faith,

JOHN ESTU.

BARILETT, Iowa, Mar. 22d.

Bro. Blair:—Last night I closed my labors in the district until after General Conference. To-day I start for home to spend a short time with loved ones, after being absent for nearly one year. The work in the district is in good condition, and the prospect for the future was never better than now. In the various places that I have labored since you were here, I have had full houses with good attentive listeners, and many express full belief in the work, and we expect ere long to reap a rich harvest of souls. Last night, at Egypt, two miles north of this place, we had a good audience and good attention, although they had but one day's notice of the meeting.

During the winter we have been abundantly blessed with liberty, and the Spirit of God has been copiously poured out upon the people, so that both speaker and hearer have felt that God was very near to bless in time of need. The Saints have contributed liberally toward sending me to the conference, so that I have nearly sufficient already on hand, and have full faith that the balance will be forthcoming by the time I need it.

My prayer is that God will bless my brethren and sisters of this district, with all the household of faith throughout the entire world; and that the work of our God may move on to the accomplishment of all that has been predicted by the prophets, for the work is a prodigious one in the estimation of all the honest and true of earth's sons and daughters.

Bro. W. W. Blair:—Our conference at Sacramento passed off very pleasantly; a good feeling prevailed throughout, and all was peace and love. It was one of the best times ever had on this coast. The Holy Spirit was present in much power, melting many to tears and making all feel humble and meek. Our prayer meetings were grand, and much enjoyed. The preaching was an honor to our cause. The indication of the Spirit is, "Great times just ahead."

Bro. Blair:—"Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined." I saw in the night vision, and lo, the heavens were opened, and I saw the Eternal Father seated upon his throne, high and lifted up. Near him was a cloud-bow that shined forth the magnificent grandeur and glory of the everlasting light. Upon his head were numerous crowns that sparkled forth the glorified brightness of the eternal light. The tongues of men and angels would fail to portray the superlative glory of that beauty of perfection. I turned and saw one standing at my right side, and lo, it was the Son of God, clothed with heavenly beauty, having around his loins a golden girdle, in that girdle a gold watch that gave all the times, from the beginning to the end. While in this condition I thought my robe was like his. I then thought that we were walking side by side together. This gives me everlasting hope, not only confirming this work, but that they live eternally high above all earthly powers. Creators of all worlds, the life and the light of all these worlds, and that the Saints are joint heirs of these, and will soon be realized by all the faithful and tried ones.

Yours in the one faith,

JAMES G. SCOTT.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Mar. 29th.

Editors Herald:—I love this work, and it is the greatest pleasure for me to speak of the goodness of God, and to do his will. At times it may seem hard for us always to be striving to keep the commandments of our Lord, but when we look back and think how much he has done for us, to offer his only begotten Son, should we not strive to do that which would be a pleasure for our Master; and to those who are faithful it is promised they shall reap the reward of eternal life. Oh, how thankful ought we not to be for the privilege of understanding the truth, and what riches it is to us if only we appreciate it. What cheer and comfort it is to our souls in the hour of pain and distress. Could I only at all times be thankful enough for the many blessings which is bestowed upon me, and feel worthy thereof. With the greatest determination I will try to live nearer to his commands, that I may not live for my own good only, but also be a light before others.

Often when I look upon the things of the world, I see many souls who only look forward to find pleasure in those things which are nothing but dead things, and are just striving to gain more and more every day. How often I breathe the prayer, Oh, could only these behind the cloud of darkness see and taste of that which is sweet and lasting forever. O Lord, hasten thy work, and lift the veil of darkness from their eyes, that they may see thy glory, and their life be saved from that burning of fire. Many an hour has seemed dark for me, but if I never had tasted that which was bitter, how could I realize the pure and sweet. Glory be to God, for the light again descends from heaven unto man. I feel more strengthened in this work than ever. I have enjoyed more of the Spirit than I have in the past. My prayer is for all God's people, that we may live worthy of his Spirit and peace to dwell in each home and heart. As I long for the time when Zion shall be redeemed, I hope to have my name among yours. To-day I am faithful, but how I will be to-morrow I can not say, but whatsoever may be placed in my path I have the earnest desire to stand firm in the great latter day work.

Your sister, K. M. JENSON.

SEVASTOPOL, Iowa, March 26th.

Editors Herald:—The Savior says:—"As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." How often we feel hurt when we see our church misrepresented from pulpit and press, and have not the privilege to vindicate ourselves where the attack is made. I think you did right to insert the articles from Elders Gurley and Whitmer when these gentlemen considered they had been misrepresented, and I feel satisfied that good will result from it for the replies have brought out historical facts which many young in the work like myself have hitherto been ignorant of, and which will be of great usefulness to us in defending the work.

I am made to rejoice when I read of the success our ambassadors are meeting with and souls being converted. I think the work is advancing more rapidly than ever; new places are being opened up; branches organized, and friends outside are rendering the church and its representatives timely assistance; the leading papers of the nation are drawing the line between us and the Utah faction. In the Des Moines Register of the 20th inst, was an article of three columns in our favor; also an editorial calling attention to the article. Surely the Lord is confirming the words of his servant Joseph, in that we are finding favor in the eyes of the people.

There is a band of noble Saints in Des Moines, and the Lord gives them his Spirit to comfort and cheer, as they meet from time to time. The local ministry are doing all in their power to roll the work onward. Bro. J. P. Knox has spent his whole time in the field since last December. Brn. Wm. Ray, C. F. Merrill and others, sally into the regions round about as circumstances permit; but we need more laborers who can give their time to the work. Often we have felt when we have been holding meetings away from home, and the Spirit has been given to enlighten the speaker and convince the sinner, and have been petitioned by the congregation to stay longer, that we would like to have complied with their request, but we remembered that we had a family who are to be fed, sheltered and clothed by our labor, and we hasten home to return again to our appointments, again to get them interested and again to leave them. I love this work dearer than anything else on earth, and it is the height of my ambition to be able to win souls to Christ. This work is worthy of every effort we can put forth to help roll it on; it is God's work, and as there is a portion of this work allotted to each, may we all be able to perform our own portion faithfully, is my prayer.

SANTA MARIA, Cal., March 20th.

Editor Herald:—Bro. Hiram L. Holt, of San Bernardino, was here from February 9th to 20th, and preached three sermons; one at Washington School-house, and two at Pine Grove; baptized my two oldest children. The members of the M. E. Church, South, were very kind; and the minister, Rev. Avior, opened the meetings; Bro. Holt had splendid liberty, speaking on Infidelity and Spiritualism, occupying one hour and a half. Captain Whitford, a leading Spiritualist, said to me afterward: "Surely the man must have spoken by inspiration, and seemed to be sent to me." Bro. Holt is the right one in the right place.

Bro. Dancer:—Will you kindly let me know through the Herald if there is any branch or any Saints near me, as I would like to go to the meetings if it was possible on Sundays. I think this will be a good place for an opening; I have spoken to quite a few, and they say there is nothing wrong in it that they can see.

FIFTEEN years ago, standing beside the coffin of Horace Greeley, Henry Ward Beecher said: "Death is always sudden, no matter how long it may have been expected. Death is always impressive, no matter where it strikes. But when it comes when no man looks for it; when it strikes down men whose words have been treasured in every household, and whose teachings have inspired the nation, then indeed it becomes impressive and momentous."

SEVENTEENTH SECTION.

So much has been said and written about the discrepancies, changes and alterations in the substance of the seventeenth section of the Doctrine and Covenants, that we print the various editions of that section as they were printed in "The Evening and the Morning Star," printed in 1832 and 1833; and as it is in the "Book of Commandments" of 1833; and as it is in the "Evening and Morning Star" of 1835; side by side, that comparisons may be easily made.

Revelations.*THE ARTICLES AND COVENANTS OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST.

THE rise of the Church of Christ in these last days, being one thousand eight hundred and thirty years since the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, in the flesh; it being regularly organized and established agreeable to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God in the fourth month and on the sixth day of the month, which is called April: Which commandments were given to Joseph, who was called of God and ordained an Apostle of Jesus Christ, an Elder of this Church; and also to Oliver, who was called of God an Apostle of Jesus Christ, an Elder of this Church, and ordained under his hand; and this according to the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ to whom be all glory both now and forever. Amen.

For, after that it truly was manifested unto this first Elder, that he had received a remission of his sins, he was entangled again in the vanities of the world, but after truly repenting God ministered unto him by an holy angel, whose countenance was as lightning, and whose garments were pure and white above all whiteness, and gave unto him commandments which inspired him from on high, and gave unto him power, by the means which were prepared, that he should translate a Book, which Book contained a record of a fallen people, and also the fulness of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles; and also to the Jews, proving unto them, that the holy Scriptures are true; and also, that God doth inspire men and call them to his holy work, in these last days as well as in days of old, that he might be the same God forever. Amen.

Wherefore, by these things we know, that there is a God in Heaven, who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting, the same unchangeable God, the maker of Heaven and earth and all things that in them is, and that he created man male and female, and after his own image, and in his own likeness created he them; and that he gave unto the children of men commandments, that they should love and serve him the only being whom they should worship, but by the transgression of these holy laws, man became sensual and devilish, and became fallen man: Wherefore the Almighty God gave his only begotten Son, as it is written in those Scriptures, which have been given of him, that he suffered temptations, but gave no heed to them; that he was crucified, died, and rose again the third day, and that he ascended into Heaven to sit down on the right hand of the Father, to reign with Almighty power, according to the will of the Father. Therefore, as many as would believe and were baptized in his holy name, and endured in faith to the end, should be saved; yea, even as many as were before he came in the flesh, from the beginning, who believed in the words of the holy Prophets, who were inspired by the gift of the Holy Ghost, which truly testifies of him in all things, as well as those who should come after, who should believe in the gifts and callings of God, by the Holy Ghost, which beareth record of the Father and of the Son, which Father and Son and Holy Ghost, is one God, infinite and eternal, without end. Amen.

And we know, that all men must repent and believe on the name of Jesus Christ, and worship the Father in his name, and endure in faith on his name to the end, or they can not be saved in the Kingdom of God: And we know, that Justification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true; and we know, also, that Sanctification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true, to all those who love and serve God with all their mights, minds, and strength, but there is a possibility that men may fall from grace and depart from the living God. Therefore let the Church take heed and pray always, lest they fall into temptation; yea, and even he that is sanctified also: and we know, that these things are true and agreeable to the Revelation of John, neither adding to, nor diminishing from the prophecy of his Book; neither to the holy Scriptures; neither to the Revelations of God which shall come hereafter, by the gift and power of the Holy Ghost; neither by the voice of God; neither by the ministering of angels, and the Lord God hath spoken it; and honor, power, and glory be rendered to his holy name both now and ever. Amen.

And again, by way of commandment to the Church, concerning the manner of baptism: Behold whosoever humbleth himself before God and desireth to be baptized, and comes forth with a broken heart and a contrite spirit, and witnesseth unto the Church, that they have truly repented of all their sins and are willing to take upon them the name of Christ, having a determination to serve him unto the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received the spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, then shall they be received unto baptism into the Church of Christ.

The duty of the Elders, Priests, Teachers, Deacons and members of the Church of Christ. An Apostle is an Elder, and it is his calling to baptize and to ordain other Elders, Priests, Teachers and Deacons, and to administer the flesh and blood of Christ according to the Scriptures, and to teach, expound, exhort, baptize, and watch over the Church, and to confirm the Church by the laying on of the hands, and the giving of the Holy Ghost, and to take the lead of all meetings. The Elders are to conduct the meetings as they are led by the Holy Ghost. The Priests' duty is to preach, teach, expound, exhort and baptize, and administer the Sacrament, and visit the house of each member, and exhort them to pray vocally and in secret, and also to attend to all family duties; and ordain other Priests, Teachers and Deacons, and take the lead in meetings; but none of these offices is he to do when there is an Elder present, but in all cases is to assist the Elder. The Teachers' duty is to watch over the Church always, and be with them, and strengthen them, and see that there is no iniquity in the Church, neither hardness with each other, neither lying nor back-biting nor evil speaking; and see that the Church meet together often, and also see that all the members do their duty; and he is to take the lead of meetings in the absence of the Elder or Priest, and is to be assisted always, and in all his duties in the Church by the Deacons; but neither the Teacher nor Deacons, have authority to baptize nor administer the Sacrament, but are to warn, expound, exhort and teach, and invite all to come unto Christ.

Every Elder, Priest, Teacher, or Deacon, is to be ordained according to the gifts and callings of God unto him, by the power of the Holy Ghost which is in the one who ordains him.

The several Elders composing this Church of Christ, are to meet in Conference once in three months, to do Church business whatsoever is necessary. And each Priest or Teacher, who is ordained by a Priest, is to take a certificate from him at the time, which when presented to an Elder, he is to give him a license, which shall authorize him to perform the duty of his calling.

The duty of the members after they are received by baptism. The Elders or Priests are to have a sufficient time to expound all things concerning this Church of Christ to their understanding, previous to their partaking of the Sacrament, and being confirmed by the laying on of the hands of the Elders; so that all things may be done in order. And the members shall manifest before the Church, and also before the Elders, by a godly walk and conversation, that they are worthy of it, that there may be works and faith agreeable to the holy Scriptures, walking in holiness before the Lord. Every member of this Church of Christ having children, is to bring them unto the Elders before the Church, who are to lay their hands on them in the name of the Lord, and bless them in the name of Christ. There cannot any one be received into this Church of Christ, who has not arrived to the years of accountability before God, and is not capable of repentance.

And baptism is to be administered in the following manner unto all those who repent: Whosoever being called of God and having authority given them of Jesus Christ, shall go down into the water with them, and shall say, calling them by name: Having authority given me of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. Then shall he immerse them in the water, and come forth again out of the water. And it is expedient that the Church meet together oft to partake of Bread and Wine, in remembrance of the Lord Jesus; and the Elder or Priest shall administer it, and after this manner shall he do, he shall kneel with the Church, and call upon the Father in mighty prayer saying: O God the Eternal Father, we ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ, to bless and sanctify this bread to the souls of all those who partake of it, that they may eat in remembrance of the body of thy Son, and witness unto thee, O God the Eternal Father, that they are willing to take upon them the name of thy Son, and always remember him, and keep his commandments which he hath given them, that they may always have his spirit to be with them. Amen. The manner of administering the Wine: Behold they shall take the Cup and say, O God, the Eternal Father, we ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ, to bless and sanctify this Wine to the souls of all those who drink of it, that they may do it in remembrance of the blood of thy Son, which was shed for them, that they may witness unto thee, O God the Eternal Father, that they do always remember him, that they may have his spirit to be with them. Amen.

Any member of this Church of Christ, transgressing or being overtaken in a fault, shall be dealt with according as the Scriptures direct. It shall be the duty of the several churches, composing this Church of Christ, to send one or more of their Teachers to attend the several Conferences, held by the Elders of this Church, with a list of the names of the several members, uniting themselves to the Church since the last Conference, or send by the hand of some Priest, so that there can be kept a regular list of all the names of the members of the whole Church, in a Book kept by one of the Elders; whosoever the other Elders shall appoint from time to time: and also, if any have been expelled from the Church, so that their names may be blotted out of the general Church Record of names. Any member removing from the Church where he resides, if going to a Church where he is not known, may take a letter certifying that he is a regular member and in good standing; which certificate may be signed by any Elder or Priest, if the member receiving the letter is personally acquainted with the Elder or Priest, or it may be signed by the Teachers or Deacons of the Church.

Behold, I say unto you, that all old Covenants have I caused to be done away in this thing, and this is a new and an everlasting Covenant: even that which was from the beginning. Wherefore, although a man should be baptized an hundred times, it availeth him nothing, for ye cannot enter in at the straight gate by the law of Moses; neither by your dead works; for it is because of your dead works, that I have caused this last Covenant, and this Church to be built up unto me; even as in days of old. Wherefore, enter ye in at the gate as I have commanded, and seek not to counsel your God. Amen.

OF THE
CHURCH OF CHRIST.

THE rise of the church of Christ in these last days, being one thousand eight hundred and thirty years since the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, in the flesh;

It being regularly organized and established agreeable to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God in the fourth month and on the sixth day of the month, which is called April:

Which commandments were given to Joseph, who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ an elder of this church:

Which book contained a record of a fallen people, and also the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles;

And also to the Jews, proving unto them, that the holy scriptures are true;

Any member removing from the church where he resides, if going to a church where he is not known, may take a letter certifying that he is a regular member and in good standing; which certificate may be signed by any elder or priest, if the member receiving the letter is personally acquainted with the elder or priest, or it may be signed by the teachers or deacons of the church.

THE ARTICLES AND COVENANTS OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST.

[With a few items from other revelations.]

The rise of the church of Christ in these last days, being one thousand eight hundred and thirty years since the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in the flesh, it being regularly organized and established agreeably to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God in the fourth month, and on the sixth day of the month, which is called April: which commandments were given to Joseph Smith Jr. who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of this church: and to Oliver Cowdery, who was also called of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the second elder of this church, and ordained under his hand: and this according to the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to whom be all glory both now and forever. Amen.

After it was truly manifested unto this first elder that he had received a remission of his sins he was entangled again in the vanities of the world; but after repenting, and humbling himself, sincerely, through faith God ministered unto him by a holy angel whose countenance was as lightning, and whose garments were pure and white above all other whiteness, and gave unto him commandments which inspired him, and gave him power from on high, by the means which were before prepared, to translate the book of Mormon. Which contains a record of a fallen people, and the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles, and to the Jews also, which was given by inspiration, and is confirmed to others by the ministering of angels, and is declared unto the world by them, proving to the world that the holy scriptures are true, and that God does inspire men and call them to his holy work in this age and generation, as well as in generations of old, thereby showing that he is the same God yesterday, to day, and forever. Amen.

Therefore, having so great witnesses, by them shall the world be judged, even as many as shall hereafter come to a knowledge of this work; and those who receive it in faith and work righteousness, shall receive a crown of eternal life; but those who harden their hearts in unbelief and reject it, it shall turn to their own condemnation; for the Lord God has spoken it; and we the elders of the church have heard, and bear witness to the words of the glorious Majesty on high, to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

By these things we know that there is a God in heaven who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting the same unchangeable God, the framer of heaven and earth and all things which are in them, and that he created man male and female: after his own image and in his own likeness created he them, and gave unto them commandments that they should love and serve him the only living and true God, and that he should be the only Being whom they should worship. But by the transgression of these holy laws, man became sensual and devilish, and became fallen man.

Wherefore, the Almighty God gave his only begotten Son, as it is written in those scriptures which have been given of him; he suffered temptations but gave no heed unto them; he was crucified, died, and rose again the third day: and ascended into heaven to sit down on the right hand of the Father, to reign with almighty power according to the will of the Father, that as many as would believe and be baptized, in his holy name, and endure in faith to the end should be saved: not only those who believed after he came in the meridian of time in the flesh, but all those from the beginning, even as many as were before he came, who believed in the words of the holy prophets, who spake as they were inspired by the gift of the Holy Ghost, who truly testified of him in all things, should have eternal life, as well as those who should come after, who should believe in the gifts and callings of God by the Holy Ghost, which beareth record of Father, and of the Son, which Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are one God, infinite and eternal, without end. Amen.

And we know that all men must repent and believe on the name of Jesus Christ and worship the Father in his name, and endure in faith on his name to the end; or they can not be saved in the kingdom of God. And we know that justification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true: and we know, also, that sanctification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true, to all those who love and serve God with all their mights, minds, and strength; but there is a possibility that man may fall from grace and depart from the living God. Therefore let the church take heed and pray always, lest they fall into temptations; yea, and even let those who are sanctified, take heed also. And we know that these things are true and according to the revelations of John, neither adding to, nor diminishing from the prophecy of his book, the holy scriptures, or the revelations of God which shall come hereafter by the gift and power of the Holy Ghost, the voice of God, or the ministering of angels: and the Lord God has spoken it; and honor, power, and glory, be rendered to his holy name, both now and ever. Amen.

All those who humble themselves before God and desire to be baptized, and come forth with broken hearts and contrite spirits, and witness before the church that they have truly repented of all their sins and are willing to take upon them the name of Jesus Christ, having a determination to serve him to the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received of the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, shall be received by baptism into his church.

The duty of the elders, priests, teachers, deacons, and members of the church of Christ.

An apostle is an elder, and it is his calling to baptize, and to ordain other elders, priests, teachers, and deacons, and to administer bread and wine—the emblems of the flesh and blood of Christ—and to confirm those who are baptized into the church, by the laying on of hands for the baptism of fire and the Holy Ghost, according to the scriptures; and to teach, expound, exhort, baptize, and watch over the church; and to confirm the church by the laying on of the hands, and the giving of the Holy Ghost—and to take the lead of all meetings.

The elders are to conduct the meetings as they are led by the Holy Ghost, according to the commandments and revelations of God.

The priest's duty is to preach, teach, expound, exhort, and baptize, and administer the sacrament, and visit the house of each member, and exhort them to pray vocally and in secret, and attend to all family duties: and he may also ordain other priests, teachers, and deacons—and he is to take the lead of meetings when there is no elder present, but when there is an elder present he is only to preach, teach, expound, exhort, and baptize, and visit the house of each member, exhorting them to pray vocally and in secret, and attend to all family duties. In all these duties the priest is to assist the elder if occasion requires.

The teacher's duty is to watch over the church always, and be with, and strengthen them, and see that there is no iniquity in the church, neither hardness with each other; neither lying, backbiting, nor evil speaking; and see that the church meet together often, and also see that all the members do their duty—and he is to take the lead of meetings in the absence of the elder or priest—and is to be assisted always, in all his duties in the church, by the deacons, if occasion requires: but neither teachers nor deacons have authority to baptize, administer the sacrament, or lay on hands; they are however to warn, expound, exhort, and teach, and invite all to come unto Christ.

Every elder, priest, teacher, or deacon, is to be ordained according to the gifts and callings of God unto them: and he is to be ordained by the power of the Holy Ghost which is in the one who ordains him.

The several elders composing this church of Christ are to meet in conference once in three months, or from time to time, as said conferences shall direct or appoint: and said conferences are to do whatever church business is necessary to be done at the time.

The elders are to receive their licenses from other elders by vote of the church to which they belong, or from the conferences.

Each priest, teacher, or deacon, who is ordained by a priest, may take a certificate from him at the time, which certificate when presented to an elder, shall entitle him to a license, which shall authorize him to perform the duties of his calling—or he may receive it from a conference.

No person is to be ordained to any office in this church, when there is a regularly organized branch of the same, without the vote of that church; but the presiding elders, traveling bishops, high counsellors, high priests, and elders, may have the privilege of ordaining, where there is no branch of the church, that a vote may be called.

Every president of the high priesthood, (or presiding elder,) bishop, high counsellor, and high priest, is to be ordained by the direction of a high counsel, or general conference.

The duty of the members after they are received by baptism:

The elders or priests are to have a sufficient time to expound all things concerning the church of Christ to their understanding, previous to their partaking of the sacrament, and being confirmed by the laying on of the hands of the elders; so that all things may be done in order. And the members shall manifest before the church and also before the elders, by a godly walk and conversation, that they are worthy of it, that there may be works and faith agreeable to the holy scriptures—walking in holiness before the Lord.

Every member of the church of Christ having children, is to bring them unto the elders before the church, who are to lay their hands upon them in the name of Jesus Christ, and bless them in his name.

No one can be received into the church of Christ unless he has arrived unto the years of accountability before God, and is capable of repentance.

Baptism is to be administered in the following manner unto all those who repent: The person who is called of God and has authority from Jesus Christ; to baptize, shall go down into the water with the person who has presented him, or herself for baptism, and shall say, calling him or her by name: Having been commissioned of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. Then shall he immerse him or her in the water, and come forth again out of the water.

It is expedient that the church meet together often to partake of bread and wine in remembrance of the Lord Jesus: and the elder or priest shall administer it: and after this manner shall he administer it: he shall kneel with the church and call upon the Father in solemn prayer, saying, O God, the eternal Father, we ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ to bless and sanctify this bread to the souls of all those who partake of it, that they may eat in remembrance of the body of thy Son, and witness unto thee O God, the eternal Father, that they are willing to take upon them the name of thy Son, and always remember him and keep his commandments which he has given them, that they may always have his Spirit to be with them. Amen.

The manner of administering the wine: He shall take the cup also, and say, O God, the eternal Father, we ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ, to bless and sanctify this wine to the souls of all those who drink of it, that they may do it in remembrance of the blood of thy Son which was shed for them, that they may witness unto thee, O God, the eternal Father, that they do always remember him, that they may have his Spirit to be with them. Amen.

Any member of the church of Christ transgressing, or being overtaken in a fault, shall be dealt with as the scriptures direct.

It shall be the duty of the several churches composing the church of Christ, to send one or more of their teachers to attend the several conferences, held by the elders of the church, with a list of the names of the several members uniting themselves with the church since the last conference, or send by the hand of some priest, so that a regular list of all the names of the whole church may be kept in a book, by one of the elders, whoever the other elders shall appoint from time to time: and also, if any have been expelled from the church; so that their names may be blotted out of the general church record of names.

All members removing from the church where they reside, if going to a church where they are not known, may take a letter certifying that they are regular members and in good standing; which certificate may be signed by any elder or priest, if the member receiving the letter is personally acquainted with the elder or priest, or it may be signed by the teachers, or deacons of the church.

CHAPTER XXIV.

1 The Articles and Covenants of the church of Christ, given in Fayette, New-York, June 1830:

THE rise of the church of Christ in these last days, being one thousand eight hundred and thirty years since the coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, in the flesh;

2 It being regularly organized and established agreeable to the laws of our country, by the will and commandments of God in the fourth month and on the sixth day of the month, which is called April:

3 Which commandments were given to Joseph, who was called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, an elder of this church;

4 And also to Oliver, who was also called of God an apostle of Jesus Christ, an elder of this church, and ordained under his hand:

5 And this according to the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to whom be all glory both now and forever. Amen.

6 For, after that it truly was manifested unto this first elder, that he had received a remission of his sins, he was entangled again in the vanities of the world;

7 But after truly repenting, God ministered unto him by an holy angel, whose countenance was as lightning, and whose garments were pure and white above all whiteness, and gave unto him commandments which inspired him from on high, and gave unto him power, by the means which were before prepared, that he should translate a book;

8 Which book contained a record of a fallen people, and also the fulness of the gospel of Jesus Christ to the Gentiles;

9 And also to the Jews, proving unto them, that the holy scriptures are true;

10 And also, that God doth inspire men and call them to his holy work, in these last days as well as in days of old, that he might be the same God forever. Amen.

12 Wherefore having so great witnesses, by them shall the world be judged, even as many as shall hereafter receive this work, either to faith and righteousness, or to the hardness of heart in unbelief, to their own condemnation, for the Lord God hath spoken it, for we, the elders of the church, have heard and bear witness to the words of the glorious Majesty on high; to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

13 Wherefore, by these things we know that there is a God in heaven, who is infinite and eternal, from everlasting to everlasting, the same unchangeable God, the maker of heaven and earth and all things that in them is, and that he created man male and female, and after his own image, and in his own likeness created he them;

14 And that he gave unto the children of men commandments, that they should love and serve him the only being whom they should worship, but by the transgression of these holy laws, man became sensual and devilish, and became fallen man.

15 Wherefore, the Almighty God gave his only begotten Son, as it is written in those scriptures, which have been given of him, that he suffered temptations, but gave no heed unto them;

16 That he was crucified, died, and rose again the third day, and that he ascended into heaven to sit down on the right hand of the Father, to reign with Almighty power according to the will of the Father.

17 Therefore, as many as would believe and were baptized in his holy name, and endured in faith to the end, should be saved;

18 Yea, even as many as were before he came in the flesh, from the beginning, who believed in the words of the holy prophets, who were inspired by the gift of the Holy Ghost, which truly testified of him in all things, as well as those who should come after, who should believe in the gifts and callings of God, by the Holy Ghost, which beareth record of the Father and of the Son, which Father and Son and Holy Ghost, is one God, infinite and eternal, without end. Amen.

19 And we know, that all men must repent and believe on the name of Jesus Christ, and worship the Father in his name, and endure in faith on his name to the end, or they can not be saved in the kingdom of God.

20 And we know, that justification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true;

21 And we know, also, that sanctification through the grace of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, is just and true, to all those who love and serve God with all their mights, minds, and strength, but there is a possibility that men may fall from grace and depart from the living God.

22 Therefore, let the church take heed and pray always, lest they fall into temptation;

23 Yea, and even he that is sanctified also.

24 And we know, that these things are true and agreeable to the revelation of John, neither adding to, nor diminishing from the prophecy of his book;

25 Neither to the holy scriptures;

26 Neither to the revelations of God which shall come hereafter, by the gift and power of the Holy Ghost;

27 Neither by the voice of God;

28 Neither by the ministering of angels, and the Lord God hath spoken it; and honor, power, and glory, be rendered to his holy name both now and ever. Amen.

29 And again, by way of commandment to the church, concerning the manner of baptism;

30 Behold whosoever humbleth himself before God and desireth to be baptized, and comes forth with a broken heart and a contrite spirit, and witnesseth unto the church, that they have truly repented of all their sins and are willing to take upon them the name of Christ, having a determination to serve him unto the end, and truly manifest by their works that they have received the Spirit of Christ unto the remission of their sins, then shall they be received unto baptism into the church of Christ.

31 The duty of the elders, priests, teachers, deacons and members of the church of Christ.

32 An apostle is an elder, and it is his calling to baptize and to ordain other elders, priests, teachers and deacons, and to administer the flesh and blood of Christ according to the scriptures;

33 And to teach, expound, exhort, baptize, and watch over the church;

34 And to confirm the church by the laying on of the hands, and the giving of the Holy Ghost, and to take the lead of all meetings.

35 The elders are to conduct the meetings as they are led by the Holy Ghost.

36 The priest's duty is to preach, teach, expound, exhort and baptize, and administer the sacrament, and visit the house of each member, and exhort them to pray vocally and in secret, and also to attend to all family duties;

37 And ordain other priests, teachers and deacons, and take the lead of meetings; but none of these offices is he to do when there is an elder present, but in all cases is to assist the elder.

38 The teacher's duty is to watch over the church always, and be with them, and strengthen them, and see that there is no iniquity in the church, neither hardness with each other, neither lying nor back-biting, nor evil speaking;

39 And see that the church meet together often, and also see that all the members do their duty;

40 And he is to take the lead of meetings in the absence of the elder or priest, and is to be assisted always, and in all his duties in the church by the deacons;

41 But neither the teachers nor deacons have authority to baptize nor administer the sacrament, but are to warn, expound, exhort and teach, and invite all to come unto Christ.

42 Every elder, priest, teacher or deacon, is to be ordained according to the gifts and callings of God unto him, by the power of the Holy Ghost which is in the one who ordains him.

43 The several elders composing this church of Christ, are to meet in conference once in three months, or from time to time as they shall direct or appoint, to do church business whatsoever is necessary.

44 And each priest or teacher, who is ordained by a priest, is to take a certificate from him at the time, which when presented to an elder, he is to give him a license, which shall authorize him to perform the duty of his calling.

45 The duty of the members after they are received by baptism.

46 The elders or priests are to have a sufficient time to expound all things concerning this church of Christ to their understanding, previous to their partaking of the sacrament, and being confirmed by the laying on of the hands of the elders:

47 So that all things may be done in order.

48 And the members shall manifest before the church, and also before the elders, by a godly walk and conversation, that they are worthy of it, that there may be works and faith agreeable to the holy scriptures, walking in holiness before the Lord.

49 Every member of this church of Christ having children, is to bring them unto the elders before the church, who are to lay their hands upon them in the name of the Lord, and bless them in the name of Christ.

50 There can not any one be received into this church of Christ, who has not arrived to the years of accountability before God, and is not capable of repentance.

51 And baptism is to be administered in the following manner unto all those who repent:

52 Whosoever being called of God and having authority given them of Jesus Christ, shall go down into the water with them, and shall say, calling them by name:

53 Having authority given me of Jesus Christ, I baptize you in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

54 Then shall he immerse them in the water, and come forth again out of the water.

55 And it is expedient that the church meet together oft to partake of bread and wine, in remembrance of the Lord Jesus;

56 And the elder or priest shall administer it, and after this manner shall he do, he shall kneel with the church, and call upon the Father in mighty prayer, saying:

57 O God the Eternal Father, we ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ, to bless and sanctify this bread to the souls of all those who partake of it, that they may eat in remembrance of the body of thy Son, and witness unto thee O God the Eternal Father, that they are willing to take upon them the name of thy Son, and always remember him, and keep his commandments which he hath given them, that they may always have his Spirit to be with them. Amen.

58 The manner of administering the wine:

59 Behold they shall take the cup and say, O God, the Eternal Father, we ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ, to bless and sanctify this wine to the souls of all those who drink of it, that they may do it in remembrance of the blood of thy Son, which was shed for them, that they may witness unto thee, O God the Eternal Father, that they do always remember him, that they may have his Spirit to be with them. Amen.

61 It shall be the duty of the several churches, composing this church of Christ, to send one or more of their teachers to attend the several conferences, held by the elders of this church, with a list of the names of the several members, uniting themselves to the church since the last conference, or send by the hand of some priest, so that there can be kept a regular list of all the names of the members of the whole church, in a book kept by one of the elders;

62 Whomsoever the other elders shall appoint from time to time:

63 And also, if any have been expelled from the church, so that their names may be blotted out of the general church record of names.

64 Any member removing from the church where he resides, if going to a church where he is not known, may take a letter certifying that he is a regular member and in good standing:

65 Which certificate may be signed by any elder or priest, if the member receiving the letter is personally acquainted with the elder or priest, or it may be signed by the teachers or deacons of the church.

TYPE OF HOLY BAPTISM.—No. 3.

THE RED SEA A TYPE OF BAPTISM.

"MOREOVER, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea: and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea."—1 Cor. 10: 1, 2.

The Apostle Paul is our witness that the passage of the Israelites through the Red sea was a type of the passage of the faithful through the waters of baptism. Thus, as in the former type of the deluge, we may proceed to examine it with greater confidence, assured that we start with the warrant of holy scripture.

The children of Israel having gone down from the land of Canaan, where they first dwelt, fell into the hands of Pharaoh, a most cruel tyrant and taskmaster. Being utterly unable to deliver themselves from this wretched state, they "groaned by reason of their bondage; God, of his tender mercy and goodness, taking compassion on them, sent Moses to deliver them out of their sad condition. He led them out of Egypt towards the promised land; but Pharaoh and the Egyptians followed close upon them till they reached the Red sea. By the power of the Almighty the waters opened for them, of their own accord, and the Israelites passed through in perfect safety to the other side whereas the Egyptians, essaying to do the same, were overwhelmed, and "sank as lead in the mighty waters."—Ex. 15: 10. Thus runs the history and it is easy to trace the fulfillment of its typical import. Men were not originally in the state they now are by nature. They, as it were, "went down into the house of bondage" and sin, after the fall, and were unable to restore themselves to their former condition. The devil and his angels, like Pharaoh and his hosts, exercised tyrannical dominion over them, and their "punishment was greater than they could bear." Of his unutterable mercy and compassion, God sent his beloved Son, the "Prophet like unto Moses," (Deut. 18: 15), to rescue them and place them again in safety. This He did by the sacrament of baptism. Up to this point the sins press hard on them and threaten them with hourly destruction; but they are saved through obedience to the law of God, and the commandments of our Lord Jesus Christ. (Mark 16: 15-17). And the Apostle Paul, in Rom. 6: 3, 4, says to the Saints, (those who had obeyed), "Know ye not" (as though all should know) "that so many of us that were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore (because we are baptized) we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." Thus the sins are destroyed and perish. The baptized are freed from the tyranny of Satan, and placed in a state of salvation. Who is wise shall understand this, how the sea, typically baptism, severed from Pharaoh, as the laver does from the tyranny of the devil. The sea slew in himself the enemy; and here also our enmity to God dies. The people went forth from it unharmed; and we ascend from the water as alive from the dead, saved by the grace of him who called us to obedience by the gospel.

But the cloud shadows forth the gift of the Spirit, which cools the flame of our passions by the mortification of our members. We see here, then, as we saw in the last type, that water is a means of salvation, and also a means of destruction. The Israelites were completely saved—"He saved them for His name's sake."—Psalms 106: 8. "He rebuked the Red sea, and it was dried up. . . . And He saved them from the hand of him that hated them, and redeemed them from the hand of the enemy." But the destruction of the Egyptians was effected by the same element, and was simultaneous with the salvation of the Israelites. The waters covered their enemies; there was not one of them left. "And the waters returned, and covered the chariots, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them: there remained not so much as one of them. But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left. Thus the Lord saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians: and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea-shore."—Ex. 14: 28-30.

The like thing occurs in baptism. The destruction of our sins is as real as the destruction of Pharaoh and his hosts. Let him who says that sins are not entirely washed away in baptism, say that the Egyptians did not truly die in the Red sea. "Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins," was the command addressed to the converted Saul. (Acts 22: 16. "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins," were the words of the Apostle Peter. (Acts 2: 38). The passage through the sea signified nothing but the sacrament of the baptized; the Egyptians pursuing, nothing but the abundance of past sins. Mark here most evident mysteries. The Egyptians press on urgently; so the sins follow close—but only to the water. Why then dost thou, who hast not already done so, fear to come to the baptism of Christ? Why fearest thou to come? The consciousness, perhaps, of some enormous offences goad and torment the mind, and says to thee that thine iniquity is so great, that thou mayest despair of its being forgiven. The Prophet Micah, also, makes a striking allusion to the destruction of sin in baptism; for after he had spoken of "the days of the coming out of the land of Egypt," (Mich. 7: 15), it is said in verse 19, "Thou wilt cast all their iniquities into the depths of the sea," that is, "thou wilt bury all their sins in the waters of baptism, as thou didst bury Pharaoh and his hosts in the depths of the sea."

The mention of the Exodus from Egypt is the right key to the true meaning; and comparing it with Paul's teaching that the passage through the Red sea was a type of holy baptism, we need not hesitate to believe that "Micah prophesied of the grace of baptism. But as the full, entire, and real destruction of sin, both original and actual, is typified in the entire and real destruction of Pharaoh and his hosts, so also, as was said, is the real state of safety, in which the Israelites were placed after their deliverance from their enemies, a type of the real state of safety in which the baptized are placed so soon as they come forth from the water. The Israelites were saved by means of the water. They were rescued from the bondage in Egypt, from the working in the brick-kiln, and from the galling tyranny of a despot's yoke, by means of water at a special time they were really saved. No less real, therefore, is the salvation accomplished in holy baptism. The type, certainly, can not have more reality than the antitype. If the safety of the Israelites, who "All passed through the sea," and "were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea," was real, so also must be the safety of those who are baptized "by water and the Spirit," (John 3: 5), of which the sea and the cloud were emblematical. And this is true of all. St. Paul specially insists, that "all our fathers were under the cloud, and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat and did all drink the same spiritual drink." All the Israelites, men, women, and children, were "redeemed out of the hand of the enemy;" and so, also, all the Corinthian Saints to whom St. Paul wrote, were delivered from the state of bondage and sin, in which they had previously been, "through obedience to the gospel. The comparison is between the whole of the Corinthian Saints and the whole of the Israelites. If the whole body of the latter were saved by the passage through the Red sea, so the whole body of the former, by being baptized into Christ. Faith and repentance bring a change of heart—of desire and purpose—and baptism a change of state. When the individual is "buried with Christ in baptism," he becomes "a new creature;" he becomes dead to sin, and freed from sin. And when he is raised up, it is to "newness of life." Therefore he is "a new creature;" translated "into the kingdom of God," the church of his dear Son his Only Begotten. He has "entered into the sheep-fold by the door," and become a citizen of the kingdom of God, and is entitled to all the privileges thereof. And the word of God says by no other way can ye enter into the kingdom of God. To suppose that some are saved in baptism, and others not, is to destroy all analogy between the two cases. "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ."—Gal. 3: 26, 27. And as all were formed into one body under Moses, called "The church in the wilderness," (Acts 7:38), so all baptized into Christ are formed into one body of Christ, the church, of which he is the head. (Acts 2:47). Old things have passed away; "all things are become new." 2 Cor. 5:17. Old sins are washed out and forgiven; the tyrannical dominion of old foes destroyed, and a new life, new hopes, new motives of action, new promises, are ours, since there are two ends proposed in baptism, namely, to destroy the body of sin so that we should no longer bring forth fruit unto death; and to live in the Spirit, and have fruit unto holiness.

The water contains the image of death, receiving the body as it were in a tomb. But the Spirit sends forth a life-giving power renewing our souls from the death of sin, unto the life which was in the beginning. This, then, is to be "born of water and of the Spirit." The death is accomplished in the water; but life in us is wrought by the Spirit. Moreover, as, after the passage of the Red Sea the Israelites were fed by manna from heaven; so after baptism has the spiritual food of the Lord's body and blood been prepared for all those who obey Him and keep His commandments. If the passage of the Red Sea was a type of baptism; no less was the manna a type of the mysteries, as this was a symbol of the holy table. For as thou eatest the Lord's body, so they the manna. As thou drinkest the blood, so they "water from the rock." Before they passed the Red Sea, the Israelites, could not partake of the manna. The water conducted to the manna. So before baptism none can "receive bread from heaven." But afterwards a table is prepared for them in the wilderness of the world.—Ps. 23:5. And as in baptism our enemies that pursued us behind, namely, our past sins, were destroyed; so after baptism, in the journey of this life, when we eat spiritual food and drink spiritual drink, we overcome all things that are against us, and receive power to "go on from strength to strength" till the God of Gods appeareth in Zion. But here comes in the necessity for a voice of solemn warning. All of the Israelites were once saved—all placed, that is, in a state of salvation; but "with many of them God was not well pleased, for they were overthrown in the wilderness." (1 Cor., 10:5). And Paul, in the sixth verse says:—"Now these things were our examples, to the intent that we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted. And they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world (the last dispensation), are come. Wherefore, let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall." In the preceding chapter St. Paul has been enforcing the duty of temperance, straightforwardness, earnestness, discipline in our Christian struggle after "an incorruptible crown," and showing how he himself "kept under his body, and brought it into subjection, lest that by any means, when he had preached to others, he himself should become a castaway." (1 Cor. 9:27). And next, lest any should rest in imagined security on the strength of their privileges, he solemnly warns them, how all the Israelites had received the typical gifts of which these were the fulfillment, but that the greater number of them had ultimately perished. His argument is the same as St. Jude's: "I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterwards destroyed them that believed not." (Jude, 5). If the Israelites, after their typical baptism, and their participation in that spiritual food, lost after all, the land of promise through their sins, and out of six hundred thousand, Joshua and Caleb alone entered in; take heed, lest after your baptism, nay, after your participation in the body and blood of Christ, you should by means of a life opposed to your baptism, and the faith, be like them, shut out from that heavenly kingdom of which Canaan was the type.

Of the numbers who pass through the baptismal waters, so sadly few live a life at all corresponding to their baptismal covenant; so few use and cherish the grace bestowed on them that many "stagger through unbelief," and are led to deny that, in these cases, grace can ever have been given—that these people were ever saved, seeing that the most are "overthrown in the wilderness" of this world. But we may apply to this subject the words of our Lord:—"These things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them." (John 16:4). All were saved at the Red Sea; but the most finally "perished." And if these things were our "figures" we may not wonder, though we may deeply sorrow, that though all were saved in Holy baptism, yet the most finally perish and never reach the promised land.

After the passage of the Red Sea the Israelites were not at once in the land of Canaan. A wide desert track lay between, "wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions." Deut. 8:15. Though they had escaped from the might of the king of Egypt, yet the Lord led them forty years in the wilderness, "to humble them and to prove them; to know what was in their heart, whether they would keep his commandments or no." (Deut. 8:2). Before they could reach the promised land there was to be a time of trial and probation. And to this the majority of them succumbed, some in one way, some by another; some had reached almost the borders of the promised land, and then at the last hour had fallen from Him. All had been saved, yet at last in despite of every past and present mercy, the deliverance from Egypt, the sea, the cloud, the manna, the spiritual meat, the spiritual rock, and God's long forbearance, the most (one after the other) "perished." And the antitype exactly corresponds with this. When we come forth from the waters of baptism, we are placed in safety; but between us and our heavenly inheritance lies a wilderness of temptation. Then, (that is, after our baptism), we, like our adorable Head, are "led up of the Spirit" into the wilderness to be "tempted of the devil." Trials of manifold kinds assail us. And alas! too many fall under them. Some succumb under the weight of heavy affliction, and the pressure of adversity, and murmur at it as the Israelites also murmured. They come to Marah, and they can not drink of the waters of Marah, for they are bitter. (Ex. 15:23-25). Others yield to those fleshly lusts that war against the soul." (Peter 2:11). These are the fleshpots of Egypt, and in this way many strong men are wounded and die eternally. Some perhaps hold out almost to the last, and then the devil makes a final, vigorous, open assault upon them, and though they have long resisted, they yield in the end and perish, even at the borders of their eternal inheritance. "Many are called, but few are chosen." (Matt 20:16). As the "gifts" were types, so also were the punishments types; and as baptism and "the table" were foreshadowed; so also, by what subsequently happened, was it for our sakes proclaimed, so that they who are unworthy of this gift shall be punished, that we may, by those examples, be brought to a better mind. For as in the benefits the types preceded, and "the truth followed;" so also shall it follow in the vengeance. See how he shows that not only shall they be punished, but even more than the former. For if one be the type, the other the reality, it must needs be that the vengeance shall greatly exceed the gifts. There are, then, two great lessons taught us in this type; first, that the remembrance of our baptism should call out our praise and thanksgivings to God for having freed us from the devil and his angels, who, like Pharaoh and the Egyptians, bore us down, bound to the mire of the flesh, as to the works in brick, and brought us out of the land of the enemy by the invisible exercise of his power: Sing we, therefore, unto the Lord; for "he hath triumphed gloriously." The devil and his hosts "hath he cast into the sea. His chosen captains also are drowned in the Red sea."—Ex. 15:1. "Thou didst divide the sea by thy strength: thou brakest the heads of the dragons in the waters."—Ps. 74:13. "Sing praises to God. Sing praises; sing praises unto our God; sing praises."

And the next lesson we are taught is that of the need of continual watchfulness in the receiving, and after we have received those inestimable gifts of his goodness, which God mercifully bestows upon us in his church. To touch, and to handle holy things, unless it be done with devout reverence, is to place ourselves in extreme danger of becoming hardened. Great is the peril of tempting God by sin, after receiving baptism and the holy communion. "To-day, if ye will hear my voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, and as in the day of temptation in the wilderness, when your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works."—Ps. 95:7, 8, 9.

The higher conceptions we have of our Christian privileges, the more shall we see how awful it will be to fall away; fall, not because they have not received mercy; but because they wilfully rejected it. Fall, it may be, in the very sight of the promised land, with heaven almost within their grasp; fall, and so enter into eternal misery at the moment when they might be entering into eternal rest. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. Therefore hold fast to the "iron rod," God's word, having full faith and confidence in and through our Lord Jesus Christ, that we may attain unto the tree of life, and live forever with him when he cometh to gather his own unto himself. Even so, come Lord Jesus!

HISTORICAL.

HAVING become reasonably well acquainted with the rise and progress of the church in Southern Nebraska, I have thought that a collection of data would be of considerable interest to many.

The first baptism on record is that of Sister Hannah Faunce, bears date December 23d, 1861, and was performed by Elder Charles Derry. The next baptism was that of Andrew J. Pethoud, August 27th, 1862, by the hand of Elder James Gillen. The first branch organized was the "Weeping Water," December 25th, 1863. There were twenty-four members enrolled, twenty-one of whom were baptized in the vicinity of the branch, 1 was expelled and two died, the others were all removed, and the branch was disorganized by vote of conference, May 17th, 1869. "Camp Creek" was the next branch, the date of its organization is not upon record, so far as I have been able to obtain; seventy-five were enrolled during the life-time of the branch, sixty-seven of whom were baptized in the immediate vicinity; there were three deaths and four expulsions; a number were removed, and there is still a fragment of the branch in a scattered condition. This branch was disorganized by vote of conference, May 10th, 1873.

Nebraska City branch comes next in order, and was organized April 8th, 1866. At the time of the organization there were twenty-one members. Elder R. C. Elvin was chosen to preside, while the undersigned was the first to receive the seal of adoption in the water of baptism. To date there have been two hundred and eighty-five members enrolled, one hundred and ninety-seven of which were baptized directly into the branch. There have been thirty-four deaths and eighteen expulsions, while the removals have been sufficient to leave the present numerical strength at one hundred and thirty-nine. For a number of years this branch had to hire a house in which to worship. Several efforts were made to obtain a house, and finally success and God's blessing attended in the purchase of a comfortable brick church house from the Lutherans; the cost was something about one thousand dollars, and the value has increased about three fold.

The "Nemaha" comes next on the roll of branches. This branch was located in the south-west part of Otoe county, and was organized September 27th, 1871. There were twelve enrolled, four of whom were baptized there, and they have been lost sight of, the undertaking to establish the work there proving a failure. The branch was disorganized by a vote of conference, February 7th, 1875.

"Union" branch was the next launched upon the tempestuous sea of conflict and time. This was to be ostensibly a Scandinavian branch, located at Nebraska City, and was organized March 17th, 1872. Only two received baptism in this branch. There were twenty-two enrolled; one was expelled, and the rest removed and cast their lot with the Nebraska City branch. Disorganized February 7th, 1875. That which a man planteth shall he also reap, love and union born of the Holy Spirit will crown with success those who work for righteousness.

"Liberty" branch was next in line, organized July 28th, 1872. There were seventeen baptized and enrolled. Trouble and a neglect of duty were the grounds upon which the conference declared it disorganized, August 15th, 1875.

"Palmyra" comes seventh and by reason of the discontinuance of other branches it now stands second on the roll, it was organized, May 18th, 1874. Its ups and downs are as attractive as a romance; out of all its trials it is coming in fulfillment, of "he that abideth shall overcome." Fifty-six have been enrolled, forty-three of whom were baptized in that vicinity; four deaths, five expulsions, and seven dropped by vote of the branch, and twelve marriages.

"Platte River" branch was organized November 13th, 1874, and was located in the north-west part of Cass county. There has been an enrollment of sixty-two members, forty-seven of whom were baptized within the precincts of the branch; five deaths, four expulsions and twenty removals. If the life of this branch be continued, work will have to be done.

"Moroni" branch was organized January 8th, 1876, from the remnants of the Liberty branch; twenty-eight have been enrolled, and fourteen were baptized directly into the branch. Neither death, expulsion nor removal has been reported to the district secretary. The organization is somewhat weak, on account of a number changing their residence, and an attack of the same complaint that killed their predecessors. Too much talk, and fault-finding and a lax consideration of duty, is sure to bring a diminishing of the Holy Spirit, and trouble is sure to follow, so that mole-hills will look like mountains.

"Blue River" branch, this organization was first effected February 25th, 1876, in Gage county, and received a partial reorganization about two years later, with the headquarters of the branch at Wilber, Saline county. There have been one hundred and thirty-seven enrolled, of which there have been ninety-three baptized, in the vicinity of the several places that meetings are held. There has been three deaths, two expulsions and five removals. For some two or three years, this branch was the battle ground of the gospel in this district. Here was where the Rev (?) L. L. Luse, made his ignoble attempt to wipe out the truth, and as he found it quite a task, he shipped from Austin, Texas, one Clark Braden as an iconoclast, and he proved to be only a scandal monger.

"Rock Bluffs" branch. This organization was accomplished July 2d, 1876, and notwithstanding they had a good solid name, the material composing the organization was of a more fragile nature than rock. Fourteen were baptized, only to all leave the locality, and were disorganized by vote of conference, July 15th, 1878. This was hasty work, and should be productive of experience unto a better knowledge in divine things.

"Plattsmouth" branch was organized December 2d, 1877. Nearly all those who were in the Rock Bluffs branch united here. Fifty-three have been enrolled, and twenty-two baptized there. Up to date there have been two deaths, six expulsions and nine removals. This branch has passed through some very peculiar experiences, and are now under the charge of deacon D. W. Murphy. There is a golden opportunity to make honorable the good name of the church.

Last and least in the list comes the "Clear Creek" branch, which was organized February 15th, 1880. Only eleven enrolled, and ten of these were baptized in the immediate locality. The branch was by vote of conference disorganized May 5th, 1884, but no disposition of the members has been made, scattering was the occasion of losing their organization, a slackness in duty and a neglect to hold meetings or make reports. This was the scene of the Dungan-Elvin discussion.

Thus I have sought to give a faithful outline of some of the leading facts, in the attempt to establish the gospel in this prairie state. Several causes unite in breaking up branches after their establishment, and more prominent than others, is the migratory habit among western people, and it is barely possible that in organizing these thirteen branches, more zeal than discretion was exercised by those having the work in hand, for some of those intrusted with the grave responsibility of the ministration of the word and organizing the Saints into branches were inexperienced in the work. The three following classes are found in this part of the vineyard, and may be suggestive of why misunderstandings arise: First, those who received the gospel in the early days of the church and followed its fortunes till the church arrived at the Missouri River in its flight into the wilderness, and becoming fearful and doubtful that all was not as it should be, they settled down into a state of apathy, waiting to see the salvation of God, and in some cases lapsed into a course of life hardly up to the standard of "a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." Second, those who went west and saw the "white elephant" in a "salt land," and the doctrinal teachings of that people and their rules of government, seem to make deep and lasting impressions, and not always in the direction to promote the greatest good to the largest number. And third, those who know nothing of the experience of the other two parties, but have been begotten through the preaching of the gospel, and they have been under the necessity of accepting the "three books," and the Spirit as it would agree with the "books" to be their guide. Some ordinations have been made that would have proved a blessing both to the individual and the cause, had they never taken place. May the blunders of the past be abiding monitions against a repetition; and I pray that he who shall be allowed the privilege of writing up the next two decades, shall have an hundred fold more of good to chronicle, and a less amount of failure and mistakes. There is a bright outlook for the cause in South Platte country, if there were only laborers equal to the demand. Hope this short sketch will be acceptable. To that end I subscribe myself your servant and brother in gospel bonds,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Feb. 14th, 1887.

ENCOURAGE THE HOME MINISTRY.

WHILE it is right that all ministers who are lawfully and earnestly laboring to spread the great truths of the gospel of Christ should be encouraged by the Saints wherever an opportunity presents itself to them, yet in the opinion of the writer the Saints too often, without thinking of doing wrong, injure the cause they so much love by discouraging the home ministry.

In many branches there are a few members who are always seen at meeting when it is possible, while the remainder only attend church when there is some elder expected from a distance who is believed to be a speaker of more than ordinary ability. That elder comes and finds large audiences awaiting the words of life which he breaks to them being aided by the good Spirit. He feels encouraged and strengthened and goes on his way rejoicing, which is just as it should be. But how is it the next Sunday, when the standing minister of the branch is expected to speak? Is it not a fact that there are too many vacant seats and too little interest manifested by those who may be in attendance, either in the speaker or his subject?

It may be said in reply that, if there is not much interest taken by the members of the church in what the home minister may have to say, whether he be an elder, priest, or teacher, he must be largely to blame for it; that he is not as familiar with the word as he should be, and does not therefore make his discourses as interesting as they ought to be.

Yes, dear Saints; every minister should use due diligence to become familiar with the word of God, and so should every child of God. But do you not excuse yourselves on the account of the press of business, or because you have so much work to do in order to provide for your families that you can not get time to study? Yet the home minister is expected to do the same work, provide for his family just as well, and that too, by hard manual labor, and still he is expected to be fully prepared for gospel work.

How frequently he hears it said, "I don't care to go to meeting unless I can hear a good discourse;" or; "If I had known that brother so and so would have preached today, I would have heard him." Would it not be much better to leave such words unspoken; and lift, so far as we can some of the burdens our home ministers have to bear, and encourage them by making an energetic effort to attend meeting, giving them our faith and prayers? If we do this, will they not be encouraged and make greater efforts to become efficient ministers? I think so; and I am quite sure the interest of the work demands it at our hands. If we do not take interest in the work and make our meetings interesting, we can hardly expect the world's people to attend services and be interested.

God has designed that the Saints should make an earnest effort to meet in his name and encourage and strengthen each other, and also be blessed of him with those spiritual blessings so much needed by his weak, erring children. Please read in connection with this Mal. 3:16-18; Acts 2:42; Heb. 10:25, and section 59, paragraphs 2, 3 and 4 of Doctrine and Covenants.

The foregoing is not written to find fault, but for the purpose of calling the attention of Saints to an evil that should be guarded against by all.

DIED.

DODSON.—James M. Dodson was born July 12th, 1808, in Shelby county, Kentucky, and died July 10th, 1886, in Mercer county, Missouri. He joined the church in 1846; and leaves an aged wife, five sons, three daughters, about forty grandchildren, and several great grandchildren. Funeral sermon by Elder Prettyman.

CATON.—In loving memory of Mary Eleanor (Sissey), second daughter of Bro. C. H. and Sr. M. G. Caton, who departed this life August 25th, 1886, aged 16 years and 8 months. She was baptized July 27th, 1874, by elder Thomas Taylor of Birmingham, England, who also pronounced the funeral discourse September 19th, 1886. "My sheep hear my voice and follow me, and I give unto them Eternal Life." "Peace, blessed peace."

Eternal Life! how sweet the sound;
How dear to dying man:
It tells of treasures only found
In the great gospel plan.
By faith we see our sister dear,
On her dear Savior lean
In sweet repose, nor pain, nor fear,
Nor woe can intervene.

DURFEY.—At the residence of her daughter, on String Prairie, Lee county, Iowa, March 3d, 1887, Sr. E. Durfey, who was born in Lincolnshire, England, April 17th, 1813; was baptized by Elder James Blakeslee in Canada, November 6th, 1836, and lived a faithful member until the apostasy of the church; was united with the Reorganized Church in December, 1860. She leaves a husband and five children, three sons and two daughters, four of whom are in Iowa, and one in Nebraska; and one brother, E. H. Roberts, who is seventy-eight years of age. He is a resident of Farmington, Iowa, and the only survivor of the family. Many friends will mourn her loss. Another faithful Saint, and loving mother has gone to rest, to return on the morn of the first resurrection. Funeral services were conducted by Elder H. C. Bronson March 5th, 1887.

CARLSON.—At his home near Gilmore City, Pocahontas county, Iowa, March 18th, 1887, Wilford Bertie, infant son of Bro. Carl and Sr. Mary Carlson, aged 1 year, 4 months and 4 days. Funeral services by elder James Wedlock.

"Dear Bertie, thou art gone to rest;
Thine is an early tomb;
But Jesus summoned thee away;
Thy Savior called thee home."

SURBROOK.—At Lexington, Sanilac county, Michigan, March 3d, 1887, Frederick U., son of P. W. and J. M. Surbrook, aged 20 years, 11 months and 4 days. "So rest the people of God."

CALIFF.—Mrs. Jemima Califf, daughter of William and Elizabeth Jackson, was born in Miami county, Ohio, in 1803, was married to W. A. Lindsey in 1821, removed to Randolph county, Indiana, where she lived a few years, then removed to Clay county, Missouri, in 1833, and on account of the Saints' trouble in Missouri, herself and family came to Hancock county, Illinois. She was left a widow in 1846, married Stephen Califf in 1855, and removed with her husband to Knox county, Missouri, in 1866, and was again left a widow in 1884. She returned to Illinois in 1885, living with her only son, until May, 1886, when she came to her youngest daughter's, Mrs. W. H. Robertson, in Sheridan, Illinois, where she died March 16th, 1887, aged 84 years lacking 6 days. Thus has ended a long and useful life. The burden of her heart was to do good to others. Her charity was only bounded by her means. If she had possessed more of this world's goods, she would have given more. Charity faileth not, and truly it never failed her. The last act of her life was to send money to the church of her choice, that others might be benefitted. She was the mother of seven children—three sons and four daughters,—four are still living. There were twenty-seven grandchildren, and seventeen great grandchildren.

The Saints' Herald.

JOSEPH SMITH . . . . . EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR . . . . . ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, April 16, 1887.

WE printed in last issue the several prints and reprints of the much disputed about 17th section of the Doctrine and Covenants. Our object in doing this is that we may be found to be consistent, and when we state that we are not fearful of the truth, to verify what we say by putting the people in possession of what is in dispute, if we can. The first publication of this section that we can discover, was in the Evening and the Morning Star, printed at Independence, Missouri, by W. W. Phelps, and in the first issue of that paper. We were fortunate enough lately to have access to an original copy of that journal from its first issue to the last number printed in July, 1833. The first number was issued in June, 1832. In July, 1833, the Star Office was raided by a mob, the press destroyed, the type and other material were scattered in the streets, including the sheets of the Book of Commandments then being printed but unfinished, and the Star was not again issued until it was reprinted at Kirtland and finally merged in the Messenger and Advocate in 1835-6. The Articles and Covenants, section 17, were reprinted in the June, 1833, number of the Star, at Independence; and in January, 1835, the section was again reproduced, this time in a corrected form; which, from a statement made by Oliver Cowdery on the 16th page of that reprint of the Star, we are warranted in believing was for the purpose of putting the Saints in possession of the original articles as they were to be held by the church. This publication was seven months before the Book of Covenants was presented to the Conference at Kirtland, to be by the Saints either ratified or rejected. Any one who asserts that there were but few of the Saints who ever saw this 17th section before it appeared in the Doctrine and Covenants, is either not informed upon the matter, or has charged the Saints with being ignorant of what was to them at the time of very vital importance; for the open publication of it in the church paper for so long a time before the action of the Conference was to be had, was evidently that they might be informed as to the real facts, in order that they could vote intelligently when the time came for action. We are now satisfied that there was no intention on the part of Joseph Smith to mystify the people, or to change the revelations that he had received for the guidance of the church. That the articles were properly compiled from the revelations that had been previously given, we are more than ever satisfied; and the publication of the section in January, 1835, in a reprint of the Star, for June, 1832, as it is in the Doctrine and Covenants on the date of its acceptance by the church in August of the same year, with the statement of Oliver Cowdery that the Articles in the first prints of 1832-3, was different from the originals, but were now corrected, show clearly that what was done was not done secretly, nor kept from the church; but was done as Oliver Cowdery himself stated in the same issue of the Star, "for the special good of the church."

It may be seen from all this, that the mountain of difficulty thrown across our way, looked at fairly and approached fearlessly, diminishes to a mole-hill in proportions, having been but the creation of a prejudiced, or distorted vision.

THE LAW ABOLISHED.

IN our article, "Sunday the rest day for the Christians," Herald, page 193, we stated that the Seventh-day Sabbath was a part of the Jewish law, given at Sinai, and that that law was superceded by the new covenant in Christ. In proof of this we cited numerous Bible texts, and quoted a few extracts from standard historians confirming those texts. We now propose analyzing some of the texts cited in support of the position taken, and will first introduce the testimony of St. Paul, who must be allowed to be a well qualified and thoroughly competent witness. He taught the early Christians twenty-six years after Christ's ascension, and about twenty-five years after his own conversion, (when most of the Saints were converted Jews), that "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, . . . the ministration of condemnation," given to Moses at Sinai, was exceeded "in glory" by "the ministration of the Spirit" which had been committed to himself and fellow ministers in Christ; and he authoritatively declares that the former, though it once had "glory," and once "was glorious," yet "the ministration of the Spirit excelleth;" and by reason thereof, "that which was made glorious [the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones.—Ed.] had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory which excelleth."

To illustrate the position taken by the Apostle, we may say; the moon, queen of the night, is glorious in the light it reflects, but when the day dawns and the sun arises with its vastly superior glory, then the moon in no longer glorious "by reason of the glory which excelleth," for then its glory is absorbed in, and is thus "done away" by "the glory which excelleth," so that not a vestige, not a trace, not one distinct ray of moonlight is perceptible. All the light and glory of the moon is in effect abolished—"done away," and gives place to the overwhelming and all pervading light and glory of the radiant monarch of the day. So with "the law" given at Sinai, (that which was "written and engraven in stones), it was glorious in its sphere, as the moon is in its sphere; but when the "new covenant" in Christ, "the ministration of righteousness" revealed in the gospel was given to man, then that law was no longer of use nor effect, for it was superceded by a law, even that of the gospel of Christ, which embraced all that was good in the former and then gave what was as much superior to it as the glory of the sun is superior to that of the moon. And it would be equally unwise for those dwelling in the generous life-giving sunlight to go back to the cold beggarly elements of mere moonlight, as for those having and walking in the light of the gospel covenant to go back and walk in the dim and shadow light of Moses' law. When we have the all-glorious light of the god of day, we have no use for the dim and useless light of the moon. We who are "children of the day" should walk in the light of our wonderful "Sun of righteousness," and let the bats and owls occupy the darkness and the cheerless moonlight, flitting and wandering as they may.

Let us now hear words from St. Paul to his fellow Jewish converts in Christ, and note carefully the fact that he is demonstrating the idea that now, when they are become the children of Christ through his covenant, they are freed from the covenant given at Sinai, which covenant was centered in, based upon, and circumscribed by "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones" and delivered to Moses:

"Forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart. And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward: not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God: who hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. But if the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not steadfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away: How shall not the ministration of the spirit be rather glorious? For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory. For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth. For if that which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious. Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech: and not as Moses, which put a vail over his face, that the children of Israel could not steadfastly look to the end of that which is abolished: But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the old testament; which vail is done away in Christ."—2 Cor. 3: 3-14.

In the foregoing a clear distinction is given to "the epistle of Christ," written "with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, (as was the law of Sinai), but in the fleshly tables of the heart," thus distinguishing it from the law written on the tables of stone given to Moses. This "epistle," Paul asserts, was "ministered by" the Christian ministry. In verse six he calls this "epistle of Christ" "the new testament"—covenant—and says, God "hath made us able ministers" of it.

In sharp contrast he then introduces "the ministration of death," defining it as that which was "written and engraven in stones," and then declares it to be "the ministration of condemnation," and asserts that it was "done away," while "the new testament," "the ministration of righteousness," "excelleth" in glory and "remaineth."

In verse eleven Paul assumes that "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones" was "abolished," and therefore the glory which once appertained to it was "done away." This latter followed, from the fact that the "glory" arising from "the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones," was inseparably connected with the said "ministration," and stood related as effect to cause. Consequently, when the cause was "abolished," so was the effect. And, per contra, when the effect—the "glory"—ceased, it was because the cause had ceased also. Both the "ministration" and its attendant "glory" were "done away"—"abolished"—and all this without any exception, reservation, or limitation.

This, then, declares the termination of what was "written and engraven in stones" and delivered to Moses at Sinai—the law—both in part and in whole, and also that that "ministration" gave place to and was superseded by the far more glorious "ministration of righteousness"—the "new testament"—in Christ; for the latter "excelleth" and therefore "remaineth." This position being true, where then is the law for Christians to observe the seventh-day Sabbath? The law requiring this of Israel we find first in Exodus 16: 23, after which we find it "written and engraven in stones" (Ex. 20: 8-10) and delivered to Moses as a part of the fundamental law for the commonwealth of Israel. And now that that "ministration" with its attendant "glory" was "done away" and "abolished" and was superseded by "the ministration of righteousness," even "the new testament" in Christ, when and where in the new testament was it revived and re-enacted? At no time, and in no place, after the crucifixion of Christ, (at which time the new covenant was sealed by the blood of its Mediator), can it be found that seventh-day keeping was either taught or practiced by the followers of Christ—and this for the reason that it, with the law, was "done away"—"abolished."

The testimony of the Book of Mormon as to the termination of "the law" given to Moses, is in exact harmony with that of St. Paul, for of the teachings of Jesus on that point it says:

"He perceived that there were some among them who marveled and wondered what he would concerning the law of Moses; for they understood not the saying that old things had passed away, and that all things had become new. And he said unto them, Marvel not that I said unto you that old things had passed, and that all things had become new. Behold I say unto you, that the law is fulfilled that was given unto Moses. Behold, I am he that gave the law, and I am he who covenanted with my people Israel; therefore the law in me is fulfilled, for I have come to fulfill the law; therefore it hath an end. Behold, I do not destroy the prophets, for as many as have not been fulfilled in me, verily I say unto you, shall all be fulfilled. And because I said unto you that old things hath passed away, I do not destroy that which hath been spoken concerning things which are to come. For behold, the covenant which I have made with my people is not all fulfilled; but the law which was given unto Moses hath an end in me. Behold, I am the law and the light; look unto me and endure unto the end and ye shall live, for unto him that endureth to the end will I give eternal life."—Book of Nephi 7: 1.

The above quotation, like that from 2 Cor. 3: 3-14, teaches in plainness that the law of Moses, every part of it, was "done away," "passed away," and "hath an end" in Christ. Of course, seventh-day keeping shared the fate of every other part of that imperfect law, giving place to that which was vastly superior.

To the foregoing agrees the word of the Lord through the "choice seer," as follows: "You can not enter in at the straight gate by the law of Moses."—Doc. Cov. 20: 1. And as to the day appointed of God for the rest-day (Sabbath) for the Saints, the Lord said through the seer, on a Sunday, August 7th, 1831:

"And that thou mayest more fully keep thyself unspotted from the world, thou shalt go to house of prayer and offer up thy sacraments upon my holy day; for verily this is a day appointed unto you to rest from your labors, and to pay thy devotions unto the Most High; nevertheless thy vows shall be offered up in righteousness on all days, and at all times; but remember that on this, the Lord's day, thou shalt offer thine oblations, [free will offerings, presents, contributions. Ed.] and thy sacraments, unto the Most High, confessing thy sins unto thy brethren and before the Lord. And on this day thou shalt do none other thing, only let thy food be prepared with singleness of heart, that thy fasting may be perfect; or, in other words that thy joy may be full."—Doc. Cov. 59: 2, 3.

Wise, faithful Saints will heed these texts and govern their conversation and conduct according to them, and thereby avoid and exclude schism, division, and contention.

D. M. CANRIGHT.

THE Advent Review of March 1st, 1887, contains a statement of Elder D. M. Canright, one of the most efficient and popular ministers of the Seventh-day Adventists, in which he sets forth some of his reasons for renouncing his faith in the distinguishing doctrines of that church and withdrawing from its fellowship. He speaks in high terms of the treatment he received among the Adventists, but claims that his sense of propriety will not permit him to preach doctrines he can not endorse, nor remain identified with a church, the leading dogmas of which his cool and prayerful judgment repudiates. Among other things, "he no longer believed that the ten commandments were binding upon Christians, and had given up the law, the Sabbath, the messages, the sanctuary," etc., etc.

We think he did wisely. For, how any true and thoroughly posted "Christian," (and we use the term in the highest scriptural sense), can accept "the law," embracing "the ten commandments," as binding upon Christians," after having read the purer and vastly higher moral law taught by Christ in his sermon on the mount and elsewhere, and afterwards taught by his apostles, is strange and almost beyond explanation.

If keeping the law of the ten commandments protects and promotes morality, which we do not deny, then the keeping of the law of righteousness taught by Christ and his faithful ministry protects and promotes morality to a far greater degree; for the latter regulates the thoughts, desires and intents of the heart, while the ten commandments relates chiefly to the prevention and suppression of immoral, outward acts. One relates almost solely to the outward conduct of the individual, while the other goes to the very fountain and mainspring and motive and inner source and cause of men's actions, and there regulates and cleanses and directs right at the very foundation head. One says, "Thou shalt not kill," while the other forbids the very thought or desire to do such an evil. The ten commandments says, "Thou shalt not commit adultery;" but gospel righteousness in Christ forbids the very thought or desire. So with every other moral feature of the law of ten commandments; when it forbids the outward act, the "law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus" forbids the inward intention and desire to do that act. While "the law" forbids outward defilement. Christ forbids inward impurity in every aspect. Hence the law which ap-pertains to true Christians is vastly superior to that "written and engraven in stones."

The gospel, wherein is revealed the righteousness of God from faith to faith, (Rom. 1:17), was had from Adam to Noah, from Noah to Abraham, and from Abraham to Moses. That "righteousness" was manifestly "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus;" and it was by that law, instead of the ten commandments, that the fact of sin was then defined. Of this St. Paul seemed assured, for he says:

"For until the law sin was in the world; but sin is not imputed where there is no law. Nevertheless death reigned from Adam to Moes."—Rom. 5:13, 14.

Here the apostle first refers to "the law" given to Moses, and then asserts that "until," or before "the law" was given to Moses, "sin was in the world." Paul says further: "Where no law is, there is no transgression."—Rom. 4:15. From these facts then we are informed, that prior to the giving of the law of the ten commandments, and the statutes and judgments thereunder, "sin was in the world," even from Adam; and consequently there must have been law during that period. And we repeat it, they had a far higher and purer law, than that given to Moses, even that of the gospel. And when men would not observe that higher law, but ignored and transgressed it, then God gave the inferior law of the ten commandments, including statutes and judgments to agree therewith and carry it into effect, with the purpose of schooling a people and preparing them to receive in due time the gospel law in Christ, and thus be set free from the inferior law—the "school master."

The contrast drawn by the Lord Jesus against the law when he began "preaching the gospel of the kingdom," (Matt. 4:23), and saying what we find in Matthew, chapters five, six, seven, and forward, placing his doctrine above and beyond the requirements of the ten commandments, this should forever decide that the righteousness of the gospel is binding upon Christians, and not the righteousness of the ten commandments. For when Christ says, "Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her in his heart," he sets aside as inferior that law of the ten commandments which says, relating to the overt act, "Thou shalt not commit adultery." And this principle holds good of all the ten, as well.

THE brethren at Kirtland, Ohio, have been having a visitation from two Salt Lake elders, who seemed to think that they could prove that their favorite philosophy could be maintained from the Bible, as against the Reorganization; and Bro. E. L. Kelley, to put the matter to a test, then and there, arranged for a debate of the questions: "Does the Bible teach or maintain the doctrine of polygamy?" and "That Joseph Smith taught and practiced it." The elders referred to, discussed the first proposition with Bro. Kelley, but would not attempt to meet our brother on the second. They asserted, however, that they could prove their assertion, if they were in Salt Lake City, and Bro. Kelley stated to them that he would meet them, or any others on that point, in that famous city of the mountains. It was a right good thing for these venturesome elders to attack us in Kirtland on the eve of our assembling there; but like many an other catching at straws, failed in the hoped for results. Bro. Kelley says of their efforts; "I am more and more surprised at the weakness of their arguments and proofs, the more I see of them." We are not surprised at all as we have been facing them a long time; and what could not be done by them in 1863, when Bro. Edmund C. Briggs, and others of the Reorganized Church asked them to do it; and what they could not, or would not do in 1875, when Elders J. W. Briggs and Z. H. Gurley, also asked them to do it, in Salt Lake City, to maintain polygamy by the Bible, could not be done by them in Kirtland, in 1887.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. Ellen Todd writes from Moselle, Missouri, enquiring for the address of Bro. B. V. Springer, and says:

"He left a good field here; some are very anxious to have him come back. We have not had any preaching here in two years. He could accomplish a good work here; he left a good impression with the people. My body is very sick, please remember me in prayer."

Sister S. M. Nightengale of Stockton, California, in a business letter to the office, says at the close of her letter:

"There are a few strangers who are investigating the work of God, and this is the second one that has sent for the Book of Mormon. May they believe unto salvation is my prayer."

Elder John A. Robinson, writing to his wife from Decatur, Illinois, March 31st, says:

"I have just returned from Argenta, where I preached to a crowded house with very fair liberty. Subject,—"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." Ever since I preached there before, they have had my discourse under fire; four preachers have preached from the same text since. They have been holding protracted meetings for six weeks, and had just adjourned, so I had to examine for some there, the manner of ancient conversions. The discussions are running high as I left. I felt good."

CONFERENCE ITEMS.

THE Cleveland Plain Dealer of April 7th contains a seven column account of the opening of General Conference from which we make the following extracts:

PRESIDENT SMITH'S DISCOURSE.

Tuesday evening services were conducted in the Temple, inaugurating the conference. President Joseph Smith delivered the following discourse in substance:

"I propose to speak to you to-night about an event which has been indefinitely postponed, but the accomplishment of which will bring to us great joy, and that is the rebuilding of the waste places of Zion. The work of rebuilding this Temple was intrusted to this people after the re-generation of the gospel. I began my career in this town fifty years ago; I went through all that a mere lad could go through of the troubles in Missouri; I have since been twitted with the failure of the accomplishment of this work, and the fulfillment of this prophecy. If the work begun in 1830, of which this building is a memorial, be true, certain it is that all interested in that work ought to have promoted it. I shall not say who is in fault, but as long as the work is to be accomplished, that does not matter.

"If I thought for a moment this work would never amount to anything—would bring no joy to those who have patiently worked and watched so long—I would lay down my spiritual weapons at once; but believing it true and having all my hopes centered in it, I think I have a right to ask how these waste places are to be rebuilt, what this work was at its inception and what remains for us to do? In 1860 this building was almost in ruins and abandoned, and it was not until it fell into the hands of the Reorganized Church that it was rebuilt. The Gentiles helped us in that matter, thus fulfilling a prophecy. In 1830 Joseph Smith was engaged in translating the Bible, but it was not until 1864 that the translation was published, and then it was done by the Reorganized Church. Thus have we been rebuilding the waste places.

"This gospel is not intended to make men slaves; the truth should make men free. The Mormons were ordered not to preach or practice their religion in the Bear Creek country, but I went there and preached, because I taught the simple doctrines of the Book of Mormon, and did not attempt to foist upon the people any doctrine added by myself. I thought I was fulfilling this prophecy and building up the waste places of Zion.

"I have seen men from all sections of the country engaged in this work, and as I looked in their eager faces and grasped their hands, I have asked myself if this work is to be finished in our day. I answer that I think it is. By my lifelong and unreserved labors I think I have demonstrated that I thoroughly believe so. If a man serve an error he will lose his greatest reward. As I once told a Baptist preacher, 'there is no tribunal but that above that has a right to say a man is a heretic.' And yet I can point to cases where members of our church have been condemned because of their belief. A woman in our church was refused admittance to the W. C. T. U. on that ground.

"There are people who call me an apostate. It is not because I fail to preach the second coming of Christ; it is not because I fail to preach repentance and baptism; it is because I refuse to teach a doctrine that has been incorporated into the true gospel by certain men. I did not refuse to preach it out of fear, but because I wished to preach simply the Book of Mormon.

"We did not go to Missouri and aggravate an already enraged people; we took a reasonable course, and we have gone back there to the waste places and made converts, just as the Lord said we should. In this way we accomplish good, and I expect this work will continue to thrive as long as we preach simply the Book of Mormon, and add no doctrines for our own ends.

"Turn in the light, and let our creed be scrutinized. I pity those men who lie and misrepresent the truth; they shall not dwell with the righteous who have rebuilt the waste places of Zion. Therefore, brethren, I charge you never to use an untrue argument, but to stick to the pure truth. It is a grand thing to live in the gospel of the Son of God, and I want to live in that gospel. I know there has not been a treasonable utterance in the council of this Reorganized Church, nor anything that could bring the blush of shame to a mother's or a daughter's cheek. That knowledge is balm to my soul to-night, and I feel thankful I am engaged in such a cause. When I see representatives here from so many different States, from Maine to California, I feel that the waste places of Zion are being rebuilt. Pardon me if my talking has been somewhat disconnected, for I only intended to have a quiet talk to you. And now, God bless you all."

President Smith then announced that during the conference he intended to speak on the subject of polygamy or spiritual marriage, and said he wished the Mormon elders who are in this vicinity from Utah to be informed of it, so they could attend if they wished.

The congregation sang the doxology and were dismissed with a benediction.

MORNING SESSION.

A good-sized congregation met in the Temple Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, and the organization of the Latter Day Saints' conference was effected. President Smith presided, and after a few words opened the meeting with singing "Guide us, Oh, thou great Jehovah," after which Mr. Joseph Lambert offered prayer and asked that the Lord bless the persons who shall conduct the conference, and that all who participate might receive strength to carry on the good work.

SHORT SPEECHES.

President Smith said as they could do no business until the committee on credentials reported, and as they had an hour to spare, they would occupy the time in short speeches, and called upon Elder W. W. Blair to lead.

Elder Blair said that to some it might seem arrogant to assert that it is for the Reorganized Church to go forth and preach to all nations the true gospel, but such was their mission. "God confirms the truth of our work by signs. It has always been God's plan to select, in every dispensation of which we have any knowledge, humble people for the instruments of carrying out of his commands. The shepherd, Abraham, Saul of Tarsus, that awkward, ungainly man, who filled so glorious a place in the history of his time, David, the rosy-cheeked shepherd lad, selected for the Lord's prophet, these were the humble people selected by the Lord to do his work. So God has done for the hundredth or perhaps thousandth time, with the Latter Day Saints. If I know anything I know this gospel is true. It brought me from the life of a rank infidel. There are millions of hearts waiting for this gospel; I think the outlook is propitious. The great apostasy engulfing so many has cast a great stain on us; but to-day we may thank God for the remnant preserved. That was the darkest milestone we ever passed. Now I trust the darkness of the past will give way to sunshine. I congratulate you on the number of us present and hope there are more coming.

Elder John Lake said: "According to the president's suggestion to speak on the subject uppermost in our minds I will speak about the gospel of the Son of God. There are many departments in our work, but I touch on but three of them. The first is that of proselyting. Some one has to carry the glad tidings of the gospel and it is a very important department. None but those who try this work know the sacrifices it calls for. A man has to give up for a time the joys of home and renounce all personal ambition. These are sacrifices required of us. The second department is that of governing. It is very important that shepherds should care for the sheep when they are found. From the president of a branch to the president of a district, all have great responsibility, which they can not support without God's aid, and it is the same with presidents of quorums up to the president of the church. May God bless all our presidents. The third department is that of finance. I can talk to men about the most absurd doctrines and they do not seem to be surprised; but the moment I allude to their pockets I have touched the apple of their eye. When a person gets a receipt for money given, he feels satisfied. Now, I will give you the grandest receipt known. The Lord repays back a thousand fold those who give to his cause."

Bishop Blakeslee said: "The speakers before me have admirably expressed my views. I agree with the remarks on governing, and I can say that I strive to do my best in that department. In regard to financial matters I think we are improving. We find our people are putting forth a helping hand so that the ministry may go forth and carry the gospel to all peoples. I have been somewhat successful in business matters, because I have pushed through anything I have started with determination, and I feel in the same way about this work. My department in this respect is in an encouraging condition, and I think we have every reason to feel confident. We shall ask all the brethren and sisters to assist us and we know the reward is great."

A NOTED SAINT.

Elder John J. Cornish (of whom a telegram went the rounds of the press some time since to the effect that he was a Utah Mormon and raised considerable disturbance at a public discussion in Michigan, and all of which was without any foundation) spoke last. Mr. Cornish related his experience in missionary work and told of an instance where the Lord made a special manifestation of his power. "It seemed as if the heavens opened to my sight," said Mr. Cornish, "and the whole concourse, Saints and Gentiles alike, felt the influence. A prophecy on my head that I should be a shining light in this church may have been partly fulfilled, for I have been the humble instrument in the Lord's hands of baptizing over seven hundred converts to our faith."

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

At 1:30 p. m. the Latter Day Saints again met in the Temple for the purpose of transacting the regular conference business. The committee on credentials reported.

CHURCH STATISTICS.

The church secretary and recorder submitted an exhaustive report of the conditions of church affairs, the most interesting figures from which we have selected: One year ago there were 17,928 members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, to-day there are 19,236 registered members. During the last year 1,710 members were baptized for the first time, 990 were admitted by letter and vote; 918 were lost by letter, 157 by expulsion and 317 by death, leaving a net gain of 1,306 members in the past year. There were 205 marriages recorded and 255 new ordinations. Iowa has the greatest number of Saints—4,227—and Missouri comes next with 2,085. Twenty-one new branches, or missions, have been started during the past year.

Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair, the first presidency, gave a letter to the church congratulating their brethren on the decided advancement of their cause. About $30,000 in cash has been received during the last year. Concerning affairs in Utah the letter says: "The work of the Reorganized Church in Utah never needed more careful and wise effort than now. The attitude of the Government toward Utah calls for the most careful consideration and wise action on our part, that we may avoid undue prejudice against the people of the territory on the one hand, and undue zeal as citizens of the United States on the other hand, by which our attitude of advisers of that which is good to those suffering justly under the law may not be put in jeopardy."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The pine must whisper to the palm,
The northwind break the tropic calm;
And with the dreamy languor of the Line,
The North's keen virtue blend, and strength to beauty join."

In presenting the letter of "sister Christie" to the readers of the Home Column this week, we were reminded of a clipping sent us some months ago, by Bro. Joseph, "The Future of Our Girls," which we insert below and commend to the careful consideration of reflecting parents. In our next issue we propose to offer a few reflections, which have long been weighing upon our mind, in regard to this subject, but which recent communications have had a tendency to deepen and intensify.

THE FUTURE OF OUR GIRLS.

A DREARY OUTLOOK FOR THE YOUNG WOMEN OF TO-DAY.

Jo Howard in Boston Globe: Of the 25,000,000 of children in this country it is fair to assume that 15,000,000 are girls between the ages of one day and eighteen years. What to do with children is one of the most perplexing problems known to the ordinary parent, but that is sinking into comparative insignificance in the presence of the momentous question, What is to be done with our girls? While in Chicago a few days since I was informed by Carter Harrison, the driving and impetuous Mayor of the city, that the women and shop-girls of that place were indebted to a Socialistic Alderman for an ordinance directing and compelling the storekeepers of the city to provide seats for their female employees. A crying evil is that which we see and to a certain extent participate in every day of our lives, that which compels women, old and young, and girls of tender age, to stand upon their wearied feet from early morn until the evening shades, when the doors are closed to trade and traffic.

But physical rest is, after all, a small part of the desideratum.

Our girls are in a precarious position, and stand upon places far from secure.

The flippant answer which naturally arises to the lip of ninety-eight in every hundred readers of the question, "What is to be done with our girls?" is "Marry them."

Well, now, let us look at that for a minute. The girl of to-day must marry the boy of to-day.

What will he be ten years from now? I do not refer to the city boy alone, but to the boy of the country—the average lad of the day. How does he compare with his sturdy father or his manlier grandfather? What are his habits? First and foremost, an excessive indulgence in tobacco. The cigaret fiend looms upon us from every corner. He makes offensive the platform of every street-car. He stenches the foyer and corridors of every theatre; he promenades impertinently along the streets of the city, poisoning every foot of God's pure air. Do you mean to tell me, as a serious man, the father of a daughter, that you would cheerfully yield her to the embrace of a man whose nerves are shattered, whose muscles are flabby, whose morals are under-toned, whose eyes lack lustre, whose blood is thinned, and who knows better than you, be he young or old who reads this letter, that the vile stuff these boys tamper with so continually is a deadly poison, working subtly, slowly, surely, but working to a ruin they can never hope to overcome or eradicate.

But that is one path our boys pursue, only.

Let us follow them into the realm of "John Barleycorn." We find athleticism amongst a certain class of our young men, but no athlete, however muscular, has yet been found who could successfully cope in a series of wrestling matches with John Barleycorn; yet with what dexterity, with what accustomed ease, our young boys take their matutinal cocktail, their noonday whiskey, their evening "pick me up," their champagne, their cordial, so that we see it every day of our lives, we see it every hour of the day.

Come with me to Brown's chop-house, a celebrated place (and the mention of it can do Brown no good, for he has been dead these three years) on Twenty-seventh street.

Who are these in bright array, this innumerable throng ordering pigs' feet, oysters, woodcock, game of every name, chops, Welsh rare-bits? What is it they are drinking? Champagne, Burgundy, whisky, brandy, all manner of mixed fluids. Who are they, I repeat? Well, they are the boys to whom you expect to marry your daughters. The fire in their eyes is artificial, the flush in their cheeks is born of the drink in their stomachs.

Take one of them by the hand, grip it, and he will almost scream with pain. Take him by the nape of his neck, push him away, he will stagger to and fro like a drunken man. Virility? They haven't any. Stamina? They don't know the meaning of the word.

Ask them a question in relation to politics, foreign or domestic. They will look at you amazed, light a cigaret and puff its noxious fumes into the air, and slink away with their poor little pale hands stuck in their pockets.

This is one element, one reason against the remark of "to whom we shall marry our daughters." There are other reasons, moral, physical, why marriage is not the one thing needful or the great desired end for girls well-born and well-bred.

What, then, are we to do with them?

It is gratifying to note that among the progressions of the day—in fact, of the age—is the labor of women, and in various realms of occupation, for self-support and, therefore, self-respect. Those which occur to us at the moment are, first, stenography; second, type-writing; third, telegraphy; fourth, teaching; fifth, the last and worst of all, stores.

The physical requirements of an active, conscientious stenographer, typewriter, and telegrapher are such as tax the average woman's strength. Her head, her back are liable to ache. Sitting in a cramped position causes her pains in the chest. No snow-storm is ever pleasant to go out in, and exposure to the rains, and under a burning sun is likely to give her a thousand and one ills to which her particular kind of flesh is heir to, and that makes trouble in the office.

In my judgment the highest work performed by men or women is the teaching the young. Everything in the future depends upon the teaching in the present. The man or woman competent to take a child, to impress upon his mind what he should know, to mold his morale so that his feet will naturally tend to planes that are high and in paths that are noble, is fit to stand among Kings and dine with Queens. Yet the drudgery of the work can never be exaggerated in words. The pay is poor, the compensation, so far as reputation is concerned, is next to nothing, and the great sordidness of the world shows itself in no place so conspicuously as when it deals with the teachers of its children. Well, if it is not a good idea for our girls to take these various roads to success, or to become teachers, what ought they to do? Go into stores as shop-girls and parade themselves as "salesladies," little thinking of the ridicule they bring upon themselves by calling themselves names, which, if applied to their brothers and masculine friends, would be to heap contempt upon them? Who ever heard of a "sales-foreman" or "sales-gentleman?" Why not say "saleswomen" as well as "salesman?" It seems to me that one glance at the girls standing behind the counters of our great retail stores ought to satisfy any person that it is the last ditch into which they could get by any possible tumble. In these places the work has nothing stimulating about it. It stirs no latent energy, it acts in no sense as a tonic to the brain. It is physique-wearing, patience-exhausting. The average pay of these poor girls is $3 per week. Out of that they must pay their board, clothe themselves—and clothe themselves respectably, too—pay their car fare, the doctor's bills, and for what little pleasure they get in the way of amusement. Now, I do not intend to preach morality, but I simply open the door and ask you to look in yourself at the 10,000 girls in this great city, whose average compensation is $3.50 per week, with an enforced vacation in many of the larger stores of from six to eight weeks' duration, during which they get no pay whatever, and then tell me whether this is a school for virtue, whether this is a promenade on which can be safely placed the tender feet of girls too young to understand the meaning of the snares that encircle them, but old enough to wish to dress as well as their companions, and weak enough to follow any example, however pernicious, that they may get on.

Now, all this leads up to the question, Where shall they go? What shall they do? It seems to me that, outside of the factories, where children are little better than slaves, there are fields of labor in which the unquestionable intellect and marvelous adaptiveness, physical, of woman might be utilized. I am not very familiar with spinning and the varied cognate employments connected with it, but I believe that there is a realm in which women could do an immense amount of work, and for which they would receive pay (they would hate to take "wages," I suppose) commensurate with their achievements. Household service, mental service, of necessity, occupy the time and attention of thousands. So far as cities are concerned that class of work is monopolized almost entirely by foreigners, but throughout the great country, on New England farms, on Western ranches, there are opportunities where self-respecting and self-reliant girls could find congenial employment. The great picture dealers of this city tell me that they sell with wonderful rapidity, and at most gratifying prices, crayon sketches and water-color pictures, done by men or women, so long as the subjects are unique and sympathetic. Women's intuitions are quicker, their sentiments are finer, and so they ought to be better able to select subjects which, being pleasant to them, would be agreeable to purchasers. A portion of our city churches have woman organists. Some of our largest concerns have women accountants. The best proof-reader I ever knew was a woman.

Women in a newspaper office, as a rule, are a nuisance. The reason of this is two-fold: First, they insist in terms and in manner upon being treated as women. They want their copy judged more leniently; they want their little episodes of forgetfulness passed over very lightly, not because they were ill, but because they are women. The ordinary woman-writers seizes almost intuitively upon fashions as her topic, as though dress and its idiosyncrasies were the chief thought of their readers, and therefore of themselves. They are unwilling to be directed. They are often petty and small in their comprehension of affairs. They are, as a matter of course, obviously precluded from certain phases of newspaper work, but in the composing-room I have always found them as serviceable as a man, and in the proof-room, as I say, the best reader I ever knew was a woman.

Literature, the world around, seems to be a fair field for women if they would be content to enter before the mast and work their way up irrespective of their sex, or of any special domestic trouble that might be annoying to them. In other words, if they wish to stand shoulder to shoulder with their brothers, receive a man's pay for a man's work, they should be content also to take the risks and to expect the hazards, precisely as their brothers are compelled to; so that, after all, it seems to me the first thing our girls should be taught is the necessity of self-reliance for their own support, the necessity of a training to some special end, precisely as a boy is trained for a special end, and then go ahead with the understanding that their work is a life's work, into which matrimony, if it comes at all, comes as a divertant, and an aid, and a help.

LAMONT, Iowa, April 6th, 1887.

BEECH LANE, March 9th.

Dear Sisters:—I come again asking a little space for my letter among many that might prove more interesting. I see that some of the sisters have been writing on the subject of dress, and as I think it quite an important one I will offer a few thoughts. In my opinion there is too much spent on dress and in encouraging the love of fine array that is inherent in nearly every woman's nature. I love beautiful things myself, and perhaps would give way to buying them if I had plenty of this world's goods. Now if we buy a piece of cloth for a dress, and just buy enough to make it up plain, it will take just as much as though we make it up prettily but not too fashionably, but if we buy trimming for that dress that will cost as much perhaps as the cloth itself, I think that we are doing wrong. How much better it would be to put it in the Lord's treasury to carry on his work. Putting silk and satin on our dresses is not allowing the work of them to be the beauty of the work of our own hands, but neatness and prettiness and graceful drapery can be the work of our own hands. Perhaps I am wrong, but I do not believe that God wants us to do without the nice things that are within our reach, but at the same time he will be pleased, yes and it is his law that we wrong him not in tithes and offerings, and we must not forget the many free-will offerings either. The giver is far more blessed than the receiver. May the peace of God which passeth all understanding be with all the weary and troubled ones in Israel is the prayer of

SISTER CHARLOTTE.

Dear Sisters:—In the last number of the Herald Sr. Christie Stuart touched upon what to my mind is a most important subject. The young people of the church should endeavor to be as unlike the world in this matter of marriage, as in other respects; and as the world is suffering to day from the results of mistaken marriages, the young Saints should use the greatest care to prevent like occurrences among us. The Home—who can estimate its power for good or evil, according to the influence exerted by the parents—not parent—for you all know of homes where the influence of one is almost counteracted by that of the other. If the mother does not teach her children as she should, what can the father do; and if the father, on the other hand, fails to sanction the teaching of the mother, and support it by his authority, how can she alone train her children in the way they should go?

Look to it then, young friends, that when you lay the foundation of your homes you cast out all that would give rise to discord or mar the perfect peace of your little realm.

I wish now to make use of just one injunction, and that not a new one: "Don't marry out of the church." If you do, there is one great point, already, on which "your house is divided against itself."

We read in the Doctrine and Covenants that "such shall be considered weak in the faith." But some marry hoping to bring the unbeliever to the light. I believe this to be unsafe. Win them in, if possible, but do not step out of the straight path to do it, for you may be the weaker one, and yourself be led away into darkness. "Let him that thinketh he stand take heed lest he fall." These lines are penned by another

SISTER CHRISTIE.

MALDEN, Mass., Mar. 28th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I thought I would write a few lines to the Home Column. I think the Herald is an interesting paper, and every Saint that can, ought to take it. I send my mite, or birthday offering, to the Missionary Fund, though it is small, as I am but sixteen years old; but every little may help this blessed cause.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

ANNA M. METZ.

ESSEX CENTER, Ont., Mar. 29th.

Dear Sister Frances:—It is with a heart overflowing with love and thankfulness to my heavenly Father, that I commence to write to you. My husband has been out of work since fall, till one day last week he had a short job that came to three dollars, that being the first earnings he has brought in since fall. I send you one dollar for the Lord's work, for the greatest desire of my heart is to see this glorious work go on, and to help to do all the good I can; for I realized more every day that indeed the harvest is plenteous but the laborers are few. Where I am living we have no branch, my husband and myself being the only Saints in the place.

Last Friday night, on going to rest, I was kneeling down, going to ask God to watch over me through the night. I did not commence at once to pray, but was thinking over his loving care through the day, when all at once the Spirit of God rested upon me and the words came to me, "Seek first the kingdom of God, and all other things shall be added unto you." Oh how happy I felt. I told my husband with what force those words came to me, and not to be discouraged, for all we had to do was to live near to God and and all would be well. Praise his holy name; I have never doubted his goodness since I commenced to serve him. I have always found him faithful to his promises. Oh that I could be more faithful to him.

I am so glad to see my sisters sending in their offerings. I would like to see more from Canada responding to the call. I find such a comfort from some of the letters in the Home Column. Sometimes I have to put the Herald down and fall on my knees before God and weep tears of joy and praise. I look as anxiously for the Herald as I do for a letter from my home in England. The Saints that do not take it are missing a great deal.

I am also glad to see the question of dress taken up. I, for one, think there is too much spent upon dress, in the church. I think we can not dress too plainly; yet at the same time I do not think it right to wear anything to attract attention, such as the Salvation Army, and Church of Friends wear.

Dear sisters, time is short, let us live so that we may not have any regrets when we come to our death-beds. I think with my brother, in the Herald, that the regenerate man or woman can not be satisfied with the things of this world, but must soar above. I am going to put away for the cause of Christ what would buy an extra dress for this world here; it will add to the robe I hope to wear in the sweet bye and bye.

Desiring the prayers of the Saints, that I may live faithful to this work, which I know by the power of God to be true, and ever praying for the welfare of Zion.

I am your sister in the ever lasting gospel,
 MILLBROUGH MARY BROOKS.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sr. Maggie E. Thomas writes from What Cheer, Iowa: "I have been a member of the church ever since I was a child, and so far from ever regretting it, I rejoice in it more and more each day. I am strengthened and encouraged by both Herald and Hope. Bro. J. S. Roth has been laboring with us, and organized a branch here of sixteen members. We would be glad to have the elders visit us often, and will do all in our power to help spread the gospel."

Sr. Sarah E. Olson writes from Raymond, Wisconsin: "I have two little children, and when I have read in the Herald how other mothers have striven with kind words, and the love of God in their hearts to raise their little ones before the Lord, I too have knelt with my little ones and asked the Lord for the help of his Holy Spirit, that I might always speak kind and lovingly to them, and bring them up in his love and fear, ever setting a good example before them. The Lord has never failed to hear and answer my prayers; and he never will fail when we are faithful, and come humbly before him. It has been eight years since I have seen or heard a Latter Day Saint, and I often think, Oh that I could meet with some of God's people and sing praises to God with them!"

Correspondence.

TEMARIE, ANAA, Nov. 7th, 1886.

Dear Herald:—It is now two years since we landed in Papeete, (November 6th, '84), and it may not be amiss to give you our views of the condition of the mission and its peculiarities and necessities. I found here three distinct and antagonistic parties, claiming to regard Joseph Smith, the martyr, as the prophet of the latter times. One of these, residing mainly on this Island, (Anaa), ignored Joseph, the son, or (Iotefa te tamaiti) as he is commonly called, and all apostles, except Benjamin F. Grouard; that is they knew only Joseph the father and Grouard; and of course they knew nothing of the prophetic calling of Joseph, only as Grouard taught them. About all they seem to remember is, that Grouard said that Joseph was a prophet, and had translated the Book of Mormon, and that he was sent out here by Joseph as a missionary—a Seventy, I believe. They remember what he said about Ephraim and Manasseh, and Joseph's land, in Genesis, 48: 49, and Deuteronomy 33; and about the "book," in Isaiah 29, and Ezek. 37. So that when I call their attention to these teachings they say, "That is the same as Turuati taught." This party are very few in number, that is, those who heard Grouard, and were baptized by him. I have not found over twenty in all this mission. The rest are dead, or because of persecution waged against them by Catholics, about 1852; and because they had no shepherd for over thirty years, have gone into the Catholic Church. The local organizations have been kept up, but the great majority of the membership are young people or rather those who were unborn, or very young when Grouard went away; but they talk as glibly about what Tumati taught, as if they had heard him for themselves, but do not know what he taught. There was one oversight on the part of Grouard, and that was a failure to translate the laws of the church affecting the duties of the various officers of the branch, and the duties of the members, and concerning the conferences, etc.

There are some branches, which do not receive the church, and refuses to acknowledge the revelations contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; because as they say, that Grouard did not tell them anything about such a book. They supposed that the formula of baptism, and the prayers in the sacramental service, and the duties of priests, teachers and deacons, which he taught them was learned from Joseph, and not from any printed book, which the Church here was to receive as authoritative, and from which he had learned what he had taught them.

The second class were those who had departed from the faith as taught by brethren Rodger and Wandell in 1873, the few days they were in Tahiti. They had been baptized (most of them) by elders ordained by these brethren, who without thought as to the interpretation that would be put upon it, in their certificates of appointment to missions—called the appointees "elders in Israel," and from this, without warrant of course, they got the idea that Israel was to be part of the church name, and that they were Israelites in the flesh. From this grew the idea of Abraham being their head to the disparagement of the Messiah. From these mistakes grew the title "Israelites," and an antagonism between the Grouardites and them, and the feeling was not far from bitter. The Israelites went to one extreme, and the other party to the other, for while the former gave more prominence to Israel than is justifiable by the Scriptures, the others began to condemn everything Israelish, and forgot the fact that Jesus himself was an Israelite in the flesh, and that "Salvation is of the Jews." I have had to fight both of these parties with the truth found on middle ground.

These people are of Israelitish origin I am satisfied—and for several reason; and like Israel of old, they are a crooked, perverse, stiff-necked generation. I soon got them to see the truth about Abraham and Israel, and I have found them ever since, more humble, teachable, and tractable than these Anaa people, whose cry is eternally, "Anaa te upoo;" "Anaa is the head."

The third class were those whom I found in Tahiti and Maatea, these were squarely with the Reorganization, the good fruit of the labors of Brn. Wandell and Rodger. The wisest, and best informed, and most earnest ones I found in these places. They had indeed an advantage, for they had the Heralds coming to them which they now and then had translated by Mr. Barff. I would like to see the Herald taken in every branch, but what good would it do, as on but few islands could they get the articles translated, for even if men could be found capable, yet they would in most cases be Catholics, and they would not translate honestly, and besides they would not know what to select for translation.

The three parties whom I have mentioned are now about one, as much so as this present generation ever will be. Nothing can bring about a perfect oneness except a willingness to receive my teachings, as translated into their own tongue. To give them the Bible as translated by the Protestants would be to say to them, go ahead with your wild and extravagant fancies and interpretations of the Scriptures, and divide and wrangle as heretofore over questions of no moment.

The latest objection those of whom I wrote before, urge against me is that I baptize toward my left hand, while their Grouard baptized toward his right hand, and they even profess to believe that all my baptisms (twelve hundred in all) have been invalid on this ground. It is on just such unimportant matters as these that they contend or argue day after day, and divide, and by so doing drive the young people into the Catholic Church, for they see order, quietness, and peace there; and contrasting that with the love of contention, and the mastery shown by men and women alike, they refuse to unite with such a church, even although they see that the Catholics are not sound in faith and practice. This fact coupled with the license allowed to drink, gamble, break the Sabbath, and to cheat and lie, calls nearly all of the rising generation into the Church of Rome.

I have endeavored to have translated into Tahitian about every thing that I considered necessary to give them a correct idea of our faith and order, and the church history. But few pages of the Book of Mormon remain untranslated, and I should like to see it translated after awhile. I would have to be on hand, to see to the proof reading, as I have not time to copy some seven hundred pages of manuscript; and besides I would not wish to trust the book (as it is translated into a large blank book) by mail, or into any hands; except some one of the church going to America. I have been to great trouble and care, and much expense in getting the translation done. The church has contributed at least one hundred dollars toward the translation. There is one little work that I would like to ask the Board of Publication to print for us, for gratuitous circulation; and that is, a new work, called "Our Faith," a sort of Epitome. It would make about four pages of the size of our tracts. If the Board can not afford print about 500 or 600 of these tracts, I would ask our brethren and sisters to donate something to assist in the matter, for it will be a great help to the native elders in presenting the doctrine of the church.

While there are many extremely discouraging matters connected with this mission and many, very many of the natives seem not to be worth the expense and labor connected with it, I can not conscientiously advise an abandonment of the mission; but think that at least two earnest, intelligent elders be sent out here, and that at once.

Brother Burton is doing excellently, in Australia, but he needs help; I am beginning to feel the same anxiety to get to that field that I had to come here. Understanding the case here much better than any one can do in America, unless I am admonished by the Spirit through Bro. Joseph to remain longer, I expect to leave for Australia by the 1st of February. Of course if I feel constrained by the Spirit to remain, I shall do so; but I do not expect to be governed by policy, or to stay here till the church gets ready to send some one here, on the expediency question. I have not forgotten that policy as applied to brethren Gillen and Rodger. Time is too short to waste any of it. Bro. John Hawkins can look after the affairs in and around Tahiti, while Bro. Johnsen can keep watch over Anaa, and a portion of the Paumotus, such as Farava, Marko, Hau and other Islands. I shall send him to Tarova and Tapoto from here, and to go to Hau if he can get back here by April next. I baptized some nineteen at Koupura conference.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 27th.

Pres. J. Smith:—I had rousing meetings at Kaysville this week. Came down to city last night; have spoken twice to-day to good audiences, and feel that we are gaining ground. I go to Plain City in the morning, to speak at night and all the week; but to return here for Sunday. Bro. R. J. Anthony requested me to be in the city on Sundays, so I will speak each night during the week in the settlements north or south, and try and keep the camp-fire burning till the boss returns. This week I will review Elder Lamb, and perhaps next week I will continue on the affirmative side of the question. May God bless you in the coming conference.

TEMPLE, Texas, Mar. 25th.

Dear Herald:—Brother T. W. Sherrill and myself went to Peoria, Hill county, as I wrote you before. The Adventists backed out and would not let me have their church to preach in. They appointed a committee and sent for me. I responded to the call; answered all the questions asked by them; but they thought it best to lie rather than let me have their church. I gave the committee one of the Epitomes of faith, after they looked it over, I was a Mormon and of course rejected. On the 13th, which was Sunday, Mr. Fields tried to get the school-house, but could not get it. As that was our last chance we gave it up. I felt that we had done our duty. We then spent our time in talking with Mr. Fields and his kind family, every one enjoying the conversation; but the end was not yet. The Methodists held a meeting, and of course partook largely of a spirit that moved them to send a mob of nine good brethren to order me out of the country. One of the number was a preacher, and of course he had a spirit. These nine sanctified mobocrats called for Isaac, the servant of the Lord. I met them kindly, for God was with me. The spokesman of the gang began thus: "Are you the Mormon preacher?" I answered, "No, sir; I am a Latter Day Saint minister." He said it was all the same to them; we want you to leave here; we do not want you here; we don't want you to preach here; we don't want to hurt any body; we don't want to be hurt. I told them as far as I was concerned that I had no fears of being hurt, and if they did they must keep their nose out of other people's business. I gave them to understand I was a citizen of the United States, and protected by the same; when their authority was demanded for such conduct, they left in a hurry. I left when I got ready. I have been informed lately that they are somewhat scared up about their behavior. It may come before the Graud Jury yet. I also heard that the Adventists say the reason they would not let me use their house was, I would not preach out of their Bible, which I never said.

Peoria must hear the gospel. I will go back there some time this year, if the Lord is willing. The Lord is working with the honest people in that place. I came back from there to this place, began meetings on the evening of the 15th, and on Sunday the 20th baptized two more souls into the fold of Christ; administered to the sick, God giving the blessing, and to him be the glory. I can truly say that I am greatly encouraged in the Master's work; the severer the trials the greater is the blessings. Dear Saints; let us go onward in the love of God, and the victory is ours. I earnestly ask the prayers of all the Saints, to sustain me in this large field of labor. We are working hard here to banish the monster (whiskey) from our country. God help us is my daily prayer. Will the elders of the South-Western Mission take notice? I want to hear from you all. My address is Cook's Point, Burleson county, Texas. Ever praying for the redemption of Zion, I am as ever, your in gospel bonds,

Joseph and Blair:—I finished my labors for the present at Clear Lake, Indiana, on the 28th inst., came here on the 29th, en route for home. Commenced lecturing same night of my arrival, and shall continue Deo volente till April 4th; then off for home, having decided not to attend conference. I baptized five last week in Clear Lake, and prospects are bright for the future. To God be all the glory.

Yours for the right and victory,

TADMRE, Texas, March 12th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—I will tell you how I became a believer in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. When I was eighteen years old, I took a white swelling in my right arm, which took all of the bone out from my elbow to the wrist. I have to write with my left hand. In April, 1868, I had taken another white swelling in my left hip, and a bone felon on my thumb. The doctors gave me out to die, and said it was impossible for me to get well. I could not turn myself in bed. I kept the Testament there with me, and read it over two times. There in that bed of affliction God opened my eyes; I saw that I was not serving God the right way. I had been a member of the Methodist Church for thirty years. I found by reading the Testament that Christ's Church had the gifts of healing in it. I believed if I would send for the Elder to anoint me with oil I would be healed. I did so, he came and I told him what I wanted. He said, "O brother Grim, that is the Apostolic doctrine; it is done away. He prayed for me, but did not ask God to heal me. But I prayed constantly to God and promised him if he would heal me I would serve him the right way, and he heard my prayer, and answered it. When I got well I returned my sincere thanks to God for healing me, did not forget my promise, but could not find the Church of Christ. I almost quit going to hear any person preach till the fall of 1878, when Bro. James W. Bryan came through this vicinity, and the people cried out "A Utah Mormon." I got him to preach in this neighborhood, notwithstanding I was an enemy to the name Mormon. When he preached it was my belief exactly. A few days afterward one of my neighbors said to me, "That Mormon preaches what you believe, and what are you going to do about it." I answered that I was going to find out if they believed in polygamy, and if they did not, I was going to join them. I went to work to find out, asking God to help me. I borrowed the Book of Mormon and sat up nights and read it. I found on the page 116 it condemned polygamy. It read as follows; "Hearken to the word of the Lord; for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none." It also removed all doubts from my mind concerning polygamy. It explained to me the passage where Christ said, "other sheep I have which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice."—John 10: 16. I saw that it was the same book the prophet Isaiah spoke of, Isaiah chapter 29. I also saw that I could not believe in Christ, if I condemned the Book of Mormon; and that if I condemned the Book of Mormon, I would condemn God's prophets. I read in Mark 16: 17, 18, that Christ said, "these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover." And in 1 Cor. chapter 12, I found these gifts to be the operations of the Spirit, and that they were enjoyed by God's people.

Now by believing in the Book of Mormon, I could no longer resist. On the 20th of April, 1879, Bro. James W. Bryan baptized me, and I became a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and then persecution and prejudice commenced. It is needless to say anything about persecution; all the Saints know what persecutions are, especially the early Saints of Missouri. Here I will say to all Saints, Let us turn a deaf ear to persecutions against the Saints. If we were not persecuted we would not be the children of God. Let us live in the way that if we should lack wisdom and knowledge, or any other blessing, we may feel assured that by calling on God for the blessings, he will give them to us. The stumbling block in this vicinity is the Book of Mormon. I can not see how a believer in Christ can stumble over a thing that points out the plan of salvation to man as plain as the Book of Mormon does. I advise every person to lay down prejudice and read it before they stumble, for fear they fall an eternal fall, or one that will keep them from reigning with Christ a thousand years on earth. We read that Paul said, "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." Therefore we advise all persons to read the Book of Mormon, for it is good; it is the word of God.

About one year ago I preached in a neighborhood about thirty miles from my home; and the 24th of last December I was sent for to be there on that day and unite in marriage Mr. J. W. Grim and Miss Adar Brinkly, which I did. On Christmas night I preached there to a large audience. After preaching I was invited to come back and preach in their church. I went back in January, but did not preach on account of a protracted meeting going on. I was invited to come back again, and I went the 19th of February, and preached at night. God surely blessed me with a delivery of speech, and convinced the people that we were not the Utah Mormons. I also convinced some of them that baptism was for the remission of sins, and that by the laying on of hands the Holy Ghost was given. A Baptist was there to hear me. The next night I went to his meeting, and he called on me to lead in prayer, which I did. The good man gave out my next appointment there and said, "Brothers and sisters, I want you all to go and hear him; he will do you good, he done me good."

My next appointment there is on the third Sunday of the present month. These good people want me to get one of our elders to come and help me, and give them a protracted meeting. I would be glad if brother Wm. T. Bozarth, could be here and preach a few discourses to them. They are well pleased with my preaching, but I feel to be one of the least elders in the church.

I will here state a vision I had last fall. Before retiring to bed I went to secret prayer, and there I humbly asked God to reveal to me if Bro. Joseph Smith was called of God to reorganize the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and he showed me that only two hundred and thirty-one thousand would be able to meet Christ. These were grown people. The little children I could not number. He also said, "A long time after you meet Christ you shall see the persecutors of Christ's Church and see them receive their reward." From the above vision the Reorganized Church is the old Ship of Zion; and her timbers are pure gospel. Now I say to the Saints, Cling to the old ship; she is the only one that will land us where sin and sorrow can never come.

I expect to devote the most of my time in preaching the gospel. I ask to be remembered by the faithful Saints, that I may at all times be able to preach the truth as it is in Christ. I received a letter to-day from a lady that lives in Sullivan county, Missouri, to come and baptize her into Christ's Church. She is down with consumption. She was here last November on a visit and heard me preach. If I can raise means to travel on I will go.

Your brother in the gospel of Christ,

HENRY GRIM.

HEARNE, Texas, April 4th.

Dear Herald:—The Saints here are getting along spiritually very well. We have our prayer meetings every Sabbath; preaching twice a month by Priest S. R. Hay and Elder E. W. Nunley. Bro. Nunley preached two able discourses here; one on Saturday night, and one on Sunday at eleven o'clock; sacrament meeting at two o'clock, after which we proceeded to organize a Sabbath School, and enrolled fifty-one as members. This is our first effort with a Sunday School here, therefore I ask the prayers of the Saints everywhere in our behalf.

THE BAY PORT ROW.

EDITORS OF THE SAINTS' HERALD;
Dear Sirs:—Having heard and read so much about the Bay Port trouble, and as letters have been showering in thick and fast asking so many questions, and so many papers and slips, etc., concerning the debate have been sent, and as I am so busy almost every day, and also the best part of the night, I take this opportunity to reply, and hope that the brethren throughout the different states will take this, and reply to their home papers or any others who have written false statements; and thus assist me, and help take a little of the burden off of me, and set the truth before the people.

I did not talk in an unchristianlike manner at that debate, as stated. I did not abuse Mr. Davis, (my opponent). I was not at all angry in that debate. I did not get up a mob to abuse Mr. Davis. There was no Mormon chairman presiding at that debate. There were no Mormons nor Gentiles knocked down. The Rev. Mr. Davis did not jump out through the window as stated. There are no fears of bloodshed over the debate. I did not baptize any young lady who took sick and died the next day, from a cold contracted at baptism. I did not come from Salt Lake to debate with Mr. Davis. I did not leave three days after the debate, and take three women with me. That debate was not on the Sabbath, (Sunday). I was not followed by a sheriff to Bad Axe, who put the handcuffs on me and locked me up in jail. I was not hung while in Deckerville, Sanilac county, two weeks after the debate. I did not steal a horse while in Lexington, neither was I put in jail in Port Huron, as stated. And in short, I did not do anything of the above, with a host of other evil things, as has been stated through the press and in the pulpit, and from other sources. And there is not one in or around Bay Port who can bring the slightest test case to speak evil of me. And I have no enemies in or around Bay Port, (that I know of), except it be those who are enemies to the gospel of Jesus Christ as found in the New Testament. And furthermore, there is no great excitement in, or around Bay Port, as stated through the papers. And the greatest and the harshest talk is over the many false statement made against the Saints.

The facts in the case are, that while I was quietly preaching in and around Bay Port, Mr. J. W. Snell (a sort of an Infidel living in the place, who it is claimed has challenged every preacher who came around, and all who undertook to meet him got the worst of it, etc.) when he heard I was coming around made his brag of what he was going to do with me.

The time came for the contest, and he got so badly whipped that it made him mad, and he, with a few of the opposers of the truth, sent to Boston, Massachusetts, for the Rev. Mr. Davis, who, when he came preached a few times, boasting of what he was going to do with Cornish, Joe Smith and the Book of Mormon, etc.

In the afternoon of the 27th of February, in one of his own meetings, he put to vote and had every thing arranged his own way, as follows: All who want that I (Davis) should debate against the Latter Day Saints or Mormons, raise the right hand. Carried. And that the debate commence on Tuesday, the 1st of March, [not on Sunday]. Carried. And that J. J. Cornish affirm his doctrine and take the lead, etc. Carried. O yes, of course they could carry any thing they liked in that way, and in their own meeting.

Well I came. The people appointed a chairman, (not a Mormon, as stated), who acted as a gentleman all through that night's debate. I took the lead, which was contrary to all good ruling. Mr. Davis should have taken the affirmative, (coming as he did, all the way from Boston to upset the doctrine), and me the negative. However, knowing that the debate would cause others to see the truthfulness of the doctrine who did not then believe, and that it would also confirm the faith of those who were believing, I went on. The first half hour passed; time was called. Mr. Davis replied the next half hour. I took the third half hour, Mr. Davis the fourth. I stuck to the Bible. Mr. Davis' first half hour was Bible, the second was a little of Bible, and much of abuse to Joseph Smith, J. J. Cornish's doctrine; the men who smoke and chew tobacco, and the ladies who wore bangs, etc., winding up with,—“All the people who joined the Latter Day Saints were bound under all the oaths of Free Masonry to live up to Mormonism, right or wrong.”

I requested that each speaker have another half hour to speak; Mr. Davis refused to speak the half hour. The people then voted that each speaker should speak fifteen minutes each. At that one of the opposite party in the congregation said he was sick, and the chairman gave five minutes for the sick one to be removed; but Mr. Davis and party made other excuses, and the meeting was broken up, with the understanding that the debate would be continued on the following evening.

On the next evening (Wednesday, March 2d) the people began to arrive early, and before the time came to open the meeting the school-house was filled, and several came afterwards. I arrived early at the school-house, because I knew there would be a large crowd there, and thought that we would likely start early, as we did the night before, from the fact that when the house was crowded and others standing outside by the windows, etc., it would be useless to wait for time. Mr. Davis was not there when I arrived, and as several of the community had purchased our hymn books and had been trying to learn to sing some of our hymns, they commenced to sing, and after singing would wait for the opposite party to sing one of their hymns, as they did the night before. The night before, those who had purchased our books would sing a hymn, then wait until the others would sing one out of their books, and so on, until eight or ten hymns were sung. But this night the leader of the singing on the other side did not come until Mr. Davis came; so only two or three were sung. And I wish to here state that there were only three baptized up to that time, and two of the brethren came from Ubyly, with myself, making six only in all. Pretty small mob amongst perhaps three hundred people!

A few minutes before time Mr. Davis came in, and stood in the aisle about half way up from the door to the stand, and said: “Ah! Order here a minute. If you want to hear me speak to you to-night you will have to clear out two of those aisles here.” Every thing was silent, and one looked at another wondering why he should speak thus, when the night before it was crowded to its utmost capacity, and loads of people who came with teams had to turn around and go home.

I arose and said: “Ladies and gentlemen, just keep your seats and not listen to any thing of the kind. As it would be impossible to comply with that order of things here to-night.”

Mr. Davis then spoke very harshly to me, and abused me and the people, and said that I had come there with my mob, etc. I knew that he was trying to get out of debating, and that he knew from the way he lost ground on the first night, and from what he had said in his last half hour's speech the night before, that he would be entirely beaten and put to shame, etc. But he kept on talking very boisterously, and demanding that the aisles be cleared.

Then one of the school officers arose and said: “Mr. Davis, I think it is unreasonable to ask that we clear out two aisles.”

Davis: “I demand it; it's according to law.”

Cornish: “Such laws may be in cities and large towns, but not in a country school-house like this.”

Davis: “Supposing a fire breaks out, how could the people get out?”

School officer: “But, Mr. Davis, there is no fire in the stove now, and we will not need any, with this crowd of people; you see we have let down two of the top sashes now, and perhaps others will have to be let down before we get through.”

Davis: “I want the aisles cleared out.”

School officer: “Well what will we do with them? They will have to be put out if we clear the aisles.”

Davis: “Well, put them out, I don't want to lay myself liable to the law.”

School officer: “Well, I don't want to go out myself, neither do I want to put any one else out; and if we did, we could not keep them out.”

Davis: “You give me the power to keep the aisles clear, and I will do it.”

A vote to give him the power was then put by the chairman, and a large number voted in his favor. I said at the same time, in an under-tone, "Don't let a hand be raised against him;" and when it was said by the chairman; "Those who are opposed to Mr. Davis having the power to keep the aisles clear make it manifest by same sign," not one hand went up. Then Mr. Davis said: "Ah, you didn't all vote that I should keep the aisles clear; I won't do it."

Chairman: "But, Mr. Davis, there was no one voted against you."

A vote was then put to the house to this effect: That Mr. Davis be requested to come to the front and stand to the agreement. Carried. But he still kept up his flimsy excuses, after which another vote was taken as follows: Resolved, That in the opinion of this people, Mr. Davis is making excuses only to get out of debating fair and square; and that we request him to go on with the discussion, or back down like a coward. Carried.

"O yes," said Mr. Davis, "How many does it take to lead a horse to water, and how many does it take to make him drink after you get him there?"

Then I arose and said: "Mr. Davis, why don't you tell the people what you mean? Tell them that you are whipped, and that you can not prove the doctrine to be false, and tell them that you want to get out of it." This of course set up a great lot of laughing, etc. The chairman called order, after which Mr. Davis asked me if I would come to the door and debate there. I told him No; I was not a coward, I purposed to face the people like a gentleman would do, and what I had to say I wanted to say it to their faces, and not down by the door behind their backs. This gave rise to a few cheers, and Davis said, "I'll get out of here."

In the past there were one or two men, and one woman of the opposite party who generally had some thing to say in my meeting; these were near Mr. Davis, and as they were about to leave the house with him, one of the men yelled out something to me.

I said, "That's it; let the other man say something too." And so he did.

Then I said, "Now let the old lady say something, and that will settle it."

And sure enough, the old lady did look back over her shoulder, and gave vent to her feelings against me, all of which made much roaring and laughing, stamping of feet and clapping of hands, etc. And as Mr. Davis had said something against the chairman, and cloven-foot, etc., that caused a little excitement, and the trouble of Mr. Davis and his colleagues getting out through the crowd caused excitement.

After a while the chairman said: "Now let us come to order, and we will hear Mr. Cornish answer Mr. Davis' last half hour's speech of last night, etc. But there was so much talk that they did not get to order very soon. Then the school officer got up on one of the benches and called "order." The Justice of the Peace also called "order." The chairman likewise called order. But a few of the opposite party down in one corner, did not come to order,

Then the chairman said: "Well, if I am put in chairman to keep order, I'll see it is kept;" and he did pull off his coat and vest and walk back on the top of the seats and commanded order. At the same time some of the ladies (as they generally do at such times), showed signs of fear. I am also told that five or six went out through the window. But the chairman, school officers, and Justice of the Peace and others, soon obtained order. I then went on with my side of the argument for one hour and forty minutes.

And as so much has been said through the press, and from other sources, I wish to say that the whole thing only lasted about fifteen or twenty minutes, from Mr. Davis' first appearance in the school-house that night, and the time order was gained after he left by the door, (and not by the window as stated). All of which row would not have been, had Mr. Davis stood to the argument like a man. Up to this time fifty-six have been baptized; out of that number are Spiritualists, Infidels, Methodists, Baptists, Lutherans, Catholics, drunkards, fiddlers and dancers, etc., all being baptized into the one Body; and although many were at enmity one with another before, all are now enjoying themselves in unity together. I have stated facts in the above; none of which the opposite party dare deny in the part, and with the people where it happened.

TYPE OF HOLY BAPTISM.—No. 4.

N A A M A N .

A TYPE OF WATER BAPTISM.

"WASH and be clean."—2 Kings 5: 13. It is a well known remark, that "the Old Testament, rightly understood, is prophetic of the New;" and this is true, not only regarding the strictly prophetic portions of the sacred volume, but also in its various historical personages and transactions. "The relations sustained by the most public characters, the parts they were appointed to act in their day and generation, the deliverances that were wrought for them and by them, and the chastisements that were from time to time given them to experience, did not begin and terminate by themselves. They were parts of an unfinished and progressive plan, which finds its destined completion in the person and kingdom of Christ; and only when seen in this prospective reference do they appear in their proper magnitude and full significance."

We purpose to apply the principle thus enunciated to the history of Naaman, and show how his miraculous cleansing from the leprosy in the waters of Jordan, "is a type of our cleansing in the waters of baptism from the disease of sin. Naaman (as we read in 2 Kings 5) was captain of the host of Benhadad, king of Syria, "a great man with his master, and honorable; because by him the Lord had given deliverance unto Syria;" but he was a leper. Now there was in the house of Naaman a little maid, an Israelitish captive, who told her mistress that there was a prophet of Samaria who would recover him of his leprosy. When this was told to Naaman he obtained permission from Benhadad to go to Samaria, and took from him a letter to Jehoram, king of Israel. On receiving the letter, Jehoram, probably mistaking its import, in imagining that Benhadad bade him recover his captain of his leprosy, rent his clothes, and said, "Am I God, to kill and to make alive." Now it was so that when Elisha heard that the king had rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, "Let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel." Naaman came, therefore, with his chariot and horses, and stood at the door of Elisha's house; and Elisha sent a messenger to him, saying, "Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean." Indignant at this proposed mode of cure, and at the conduct of the prophet, Naaman was wroth, and went away in a rage, exclaiming, "Behold, I thought, he will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper. Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them and be clean?" But his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, "If the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then when he saith to thee, wash and be clean." Then he went and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, "and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean."

Such is the history, and in considering its typical significance we must first observe the disease with which Naaman was so grievously afflicted. The leprosy was a plague of the most loathsome and detestable character; appearing at first in the form of a single bright spot in the skin of the flesh, its ravages soon began to spread. The spots assumed a white, scaly appearance, and little by little, by a slow but sure and stealthy progress, the disease covered the whole body. The terrible nature of the malady may be understood by the mournful cry, "Unclean, unclean," whereby the Jewish leper testified his woe; and by the prayer of Aaron regarding the leprous Miriam: "Let her not be as one dead, of whom the flesh is half consumed when he cometh out of his mother's womb."—Num. 12: 12. And the hopelessness of its cure by any human means may be learned by the despairing question of Jehoram in this place, "Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy."—2 Kings 5: 7. A leper was, as it were, in a state of death; and to effect his recovery was to make him "alive from the dead." Now why may we suppose that this disease was chosen of all others to be thus terrible, why was it so insidious in its spread, so deadly and incurable in its nature, so awful in its punishment?" Why for it alone was there to be exclusion from all society, the trappings of mourning, the covering of the face, the heartrending cry "Unclean, unclean?" Why should leprosy be stigmatized as the sickness of sicknesses, and the leprous as emphatically, "the smitten?" The answer is manifest. It was intended to be typical of sin; to show, as it were, parabolically, the wickedness of sin, the stealthiness of its progress, the wretchedness it produces, its deadly character, the shame arising from it, compelling the sin-stricken to hide his face, and utter an exceeding bitter cry, testifying that he was an abandoned outcast. (See 2 Chron. 26: 21). The leprous man was an outward and visible representation of the sinner; the leprosy figured the fatal disease of sin.

And if we are thus to see in leprosy a type of sin, so in the history of Naaman may we read the mode of cure which God has graciously provided,—a typical foreshowing of the washing away of sin in the waters of baptism. First, then, observe that Naaman was commanded to perform an outward act, to the due performance of which the promise of perfect cleansing was attached,—“Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.”—2 Kings 5: 10. It was only by doing this outward act, faithfully and obediently, that he could possibly be cleansed; the outward act was necessary for the healing. Not a mere sprinkling, but the immersion of the whole body seven times in Jordan restored his flesh again to him like unto a little child, further showing to us that little children are whole, and free from sin, and of such is the kingdom of heaven. (See Mark 10: 14). Further, observe the simplicity of the outward sign. So simple was it, indeed, that we read that Naaman was offended at it. “Behold, I thought” said he, “he will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place and recover the leper.”—2 Kings 5: 11. He expected the act of healing to be accompanied by some striking manifestations of power, through the laying of the hands upon the ailing parts. We have many passages in the Old Testament which go to show that the laying on of the hands was taught as part of the doctrine all through the old dispensation, the same as was preached in the new, by Christ and his apostles. Or how did he, Naaman, expect it to be done unto him. And even if the cure was to be effected by water, he could not see why Jordan was to be chosen out as a laver of cleansing. Why not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus; might he not wash in them and be clean? And yet, though at first offended at the simplicity of the outward means, he was afterwards led by this very simplicity to see the hand of God in these means. If the prophet had used any of the extraordinary means Naaman had expected, there would have been great danger of the cure being ascribed to him, rather than unto God. But when he was cleansed by means in themselves so manifestly inadequate, he was forced to confess the power of God: “Behold, now I know that there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel.” Now, through obedience having been cleansed, the knowledge given, he fully understood that the cleansing of any is not of the water, but of grace,—“by obedience to the commands of God” through his chosen servants. (See Acts 9: 6-18). These then, are two leading lessons we learn from the typical history of Naaman. First, the necessity of the outward burial in water, baptism for the inward washing away of sin, and next, that the simplicity of the outward and visible sign is no cause whatever for disbelieving that God should make it the channel for the conveyance of inward and spiritual grace.

There is something apparently humble in the arguments with which some dispense with the necessity of sacraments. “Spiritual healing,” they say, “must come from God, and not from man or water, or any human means. We must go direct to God. We want nothing between us and God. We can not put sacraments instead of Christ.” But the fallacy of this argument is of course patent, for if God has appointed certain ways in which he wills us to come to him; humility is shown in seeking him in those ways, and not in the Abanas and Pharpars of our own choosing. True faith consists in the unquestioning acceptance of those truths which God is pleased to reveal, and acting on them without reserve. Naaman would never have been cleansed if he had not washed in Jordan. His general faith in the healing power of God, which led him to take a long journey and put himself to much expense to find the prophet of the Lord, would not alone have sufficed. He needed, moreover, faith in the means which God, through his chosen servant, the prophet, had appointed for the conveyance of his healing power. And so, not only must we have a general faith in the power and goodness of God, but I may say, that particular faith, whereby we steadfastly believe the promises of God made to us in that sacrament, which he has ordained. If we are bidden, “Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins,” we have no right to suppose that we can have remission of sins without baptism. (Acts 2: 38). If it is said, “baptism doth also now save us,” (See 1st Peter 3: 21), we have no right to except salvation without baptism. When Saul (afterwards Paul) received the command, “Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins,” (Acts 22: 16), his faith in God was shown in his immediate obedience. Baptism was as necessary for his inward cleansing as washing in Jordan for the outward cleansing of Naaman. “The blood of Jesus Christ” indeed cleanseth us from all sin, but not before we have humbly bowed down in obedience to God’s commands, and been buried in the waters of baptism. (See 1 John 1: 4-7). The blood cleanseth us inwardly, as Naaman was cleansed outwardly, but only on the selfsame conditions, “Wash and be clean.”

The simplicity of the outward or visible form of baptism is no ground for disbelieving that God should make it the channel for the conveyance of inward spiritual grace. And yet the stumbling-block of Naaman is that of thousands to-day, and we may say with the whole Christian world from the beginning: Thus it was, that “when he came unto His own, His own received him not.” (John 1: 11). Thus “they were offended in him,” saying, “Is this not the carpenter’s son?” (Matt. 13: 55). Thus too, nowadays, people disbelieve the healing virtue of the sacraments, because they, like their divine author, have “no form or comeliness;” and when men see them they have no beauty that they should desire them. They are “despised and rejected of men, despised and esteemed not.” (See Isa. 53: 2, 3). When, with the utmost simplicity, and with no pomp or show or expense, a man goes down into the water and is baptized, while a few words are pronounced over him and he rises up again, not at all or a very little cleaner, his having acquired eternal salvation is deemed incredible.

Alas! wretched unbelief, which denies to God his peculiar attributes, “simplicity and power.” Man rears a noble mansion by the hands of a multitude of builders, and by the employment of piles of massive materials, but God rears the fabric of this universe by the word of his power. Man heals the sick by many medicines, and oftener finds himself utterly baffled; but God cleanses the leprous with his word. Thus: “I will, be thou clean.” (Matt. 8: 3). Him who was blind from his birth, by unction with spittle and washing in the pool of Siloam; (John 9: 6, 7); Peter’s wife’s mother, (Matt 9: 15), and the two blind men (Matt. 20: 34), by the simple touch of his holy flesh; the palsied servant of the Centurion, and the daughter of the woman of Canaan, (Matt. 15: 21), when absent, (Matt. 8: 5-13), and the daughter of the ruler of the synagogue, by taking her by the hand and bidding her arise (Matt. 7: 4). In all these cases the means were utterly disproportionate to the end; but in this very way we are led, as Naaman, to confess that the “excellency of the power” is of God. “For God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to naught things that are mighty; that no flesh should glory in his presence.”—1 Cor. 1: 27.

But once more: Notice the river in which Naaman washed and was cleansed, the Jordan. Naturally, I suppose, the rivers of Damascus were better than all the waters of Jordan. There was no absurdity in Naaman’s argument. As worldly men would say, he spoke like a sensible man, using his own judgment, and not suffering himself to be beguiled by the prophet. But nevertheless, we know that not in the noisy and rapid rivers of Abana and Pharpar, (for the word Abana means “most swift,” and was given to the river owing to the rapidity of its course), but in the more silent stream of Jordan was he to be healed. And what truth have we here; first, perhaps, an intimation that not in the noisy agitation of the world, but in the quiet working of God’s church are we to seek all good; not in convulsive, exciting efforts, but in the quiet and faithful use of the means of grace, are we to be "made meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light." (Col. 1: 12). Not in the wind, the fire, or the earthquake, but in the still small voice uttered, in the sacraments and gifts of Christ's church is God to be sought and found. In these "his word is with power," (Luke 4: 38); in these his "power is present to heal," (Luke 5: 17). And next, there is surely another reason for the choice of Jordan above all other rivers. Jordan was afterwards to be the place of our Lord's baptism, by which "the element of water was sanctified to the mystical washing away of sin." And in accordance with the ordinary method of God's dealing, it was fitting that there should be types announcing before hand this event in our Lord's history, and that the wonders wrought in Jordan, should prepare the way for this glorious restoration in these the last days. As "signs were these things set forth, and by this sort of significant instruction were the realities ushered in." Thus by the use of water, in general, and baptism in this river in particular, clearly pre-signifying what was to be, for Jordan alone of rivers having received in itself the first fruits of sanctification and blessing, became the channel, as it were, to convey in figure that by the same obedience, the grace of baptism to the whole world. Thus again was "baptism to save us," and "make us inheritors of the kingdom of heaven." It was pre-figured by the entrance of the Israelites into the promised land by the river Jordan. Thus was our Lord to be publicly manifested at his baptism in Jordan, and from thence to begin his ministry. So in Jordan did God begin to magnify Joshua (Jesus) in the sight of all Israel, (Joshua 3: 7), and he commenced to govern the people; that Jesus fore-ordained the twelve disciples, the ministers in baptism;" or lastly, was baptism to separate Christians from unbelievers. So was it also fore-ordained that even in its natural situation, the river Jordan should sever the country of the Israelites from that of the Gentiles. But, once more Naaman was commanded to "wash in Jordan seven times." Here again is a mystery. Seven was the number symbolical of rest and sanctification. Seven days, for example, was the leper to be shut out from the camp; seven times was the leper to be sprinkled for the cleansing of his leprosy; seven times was the blood of the sacrifice to be sprinkled on the mercy seat; the seventh day was a day of rest; the seventh year a year of rest and release. Have we not, then, in the washing of Naaman seven times in Jordan a type, first, of the sanctifying power of baptism, when we "were washed, justified, and sanctified, in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of God;" and next, on that blessed rest which follows on the perfect remission of our sins, both original and actual, and our restoration again to the favor of a reconciled God. Or, seeing that the gifts of the Spirit were sevenfold, we may perhaps find here an intimation that not all water, but water consecrated by the Holy Spirit, regenerates and saves. "The element is one thing," the consecration and operation another. The element is water, the operation is of the Holy Ghost; the water cures not, unless the Holy Ghost has descended and consecrated the water." Whatever grace there is in the water, is not from the nature of the water, but from the presence of the Spirit. And all this is the more important for us, because Naaman was not a Jew, but like ourselves a Gentile, and his cleansing was a type of ours. For as Elijah and Elisha were types and precursors of our blessed Lord, so was Naaman a type of the Gentile world, to whom Christ, leaving the Jews on account of their unbelief, transferred through his Apostles, his church and grace. Our Lord at Nazareth makes allusion to this in his first: "Many lepers were in Israel," he says, "in the time of Eliseus the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, save Naaman the Syrian."—See Luke 4: 27. In the meridian of time, when Christ came in the flesh, Jews as well as Gentiles were encompassed by the leprosy of sin; but while the Jews, from their unbelief, were left in their misery, the Gentiles, believing, were cured of their deceit and wickedness, and by obedience to water baptism, were purged from all filthiness of the flesh and mind.

And who was that little maid who had been brought away captive out of the land of Israel. Her example teaches us that even they who occupy the lowest stations may be the means in God's hands in leading others to the truth; and even the temporary error of Naaman is not without its lesson. When Naaman was wroth he could not receive the truth of God; "he turned away in a rage," and could not discern the divine will. It was only when he came to himself, and listened humbly and teachably to advice, that he understood the deep things of the Almighty. Anger, clamor, and strife, can not understand mysteries; this privilege is reserved for the faithful. Men blinded by party spirit, and angered by all that opposes their pre-conceived notions, can hardly penetrate into the inner signification of holy writ. Mysteries are revealed to the meek, to the humble inquirer listening patiently to the preacher, or kneeling humbly at the footstool of Jesus, saying, Lord, open thou mine eyes, that I may see the wondrous things of thy law. These are such as he shall guide in judgment; to such as these he draws near, and opens their understanding that they may understand the scriptures. Nor is the subsequent conduct of Naaman without its instruction. No sooner was he cleansed than he solemnly testified that he would henceforth offer neither burnt offering nor sacrifice unto other gods, but unto the Lord. And so in baptism we solemnly covenant, to serve the true and living God only. Cleansed from our sins, united to Christ, our great High Priest, an holy priesthood, "sanctified" to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God, by Jesus Christ, by being partakers at the table of the Lord, whereon we show the Lord's death till he come, and offer up the sacrifice as a memorial before God. And if, further, the first thought of Naa-man's heart was to show his gratitude by offering of his substance, ("now, therefore, I pray thee, take a blessing of thy servant,") so should it also be ours, "to do good and to communicate forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased," Heb. 13: 16. "And having, therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a living way, which he has consecrated for us, through the veil, that is to say, his flesh, to which we are united by baptism;" and having an High Priest over the house of God, let us draw near with a true heart, in the full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast our faith without wavering, (for he is faithful that promised,) and let us consider one another, to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching for the times of the refreshing," the coming of the Lord," so may we be able to cry, So come Lord Jesus. Amen.

Conference Minutes.

INDEPENDENCE.

Conference of the above district convened on March 5th, 1887, in the Saints' Chapel, Independence, Missouri; J. N. White president, T. W. Chatburn clerk. Elders reported:—F. C. Warnky baptized 1, B. Hogue, W. S. Loar and T. W. Chatburn. Priests reported:—A. U. Austin, J. Allison, J. Vickery, S. Farrow, A. Munn, R. May, J. F. Clemenson, W. P. Brentz, A. Cox and H. Etzenhouser. Branch Reports:—Independence 480; 5 baptized, 2 received by certificate of baptism, 7 by letter, 1 by evidence of membership, 3 marriages. First Kansas City 27; 2 received by letter, 1 removed by letter. Armstrong 95; 6 baptized, 3 received by letter, 4 removed by letter, 1 died, 1 ordination, 2 marriages. Clinton 36; 8 baptized. Holden, no change since last report. A petition of C. C. Frisby and others, with a purported revelation from God, to the effect that the said C. C. Frisby had been commanded to write to brethren interested for forgiveness and restoration, was read and referred to a committee, consisting of F. G. Pitt, S. Maloney and E. Curtis, to investigate and report to this conference, which after due consideration reported as follows:—"Independence, Mo., March 5th, 1887: We your committee appointed to take under advisement the case of C. C. Frisby, beg leave to report that we have examined the petition and heard the several witnesses upon the matter before us, and according to the evidence presented, we find the petition unworthy our endorsement, and the said C. C. Frisby unworthy of membership in the church." Report received and committee discharged. The office of district treasurer was discussed at length, and on motion declared abolished, and the moneys on hand turned over to the Bishop's agent, A. White. The following brethren were elected delegates to the General Conference: Joseph Luff, A. H. Smith, I. N. White, F. C. Warnky and A. White. Joseph Luff declined to serve as such delegate, and Bro. Samuel Crum was chosen. Bro. I. N. White's report and letter of instruction to the district was read and adopted as follows:—"Brethren in conference assembled: Cares of the work, and what I call providential hindrances, have prevented me from attending the other conferences that have been held here. I am pleased to be with you to-day. The work you have been pleased to call me to preside over is in more than fair condition in the southern and central part of our district. Kansas City, Armstrong and Independence branches have not been visited by me since last conference, but I learn are in good working order. My time has almost wholly been given to the work. I have directed the laborers (those who have cared to trust me) with care, and trust the work has not received an injury from labor so distributed. I have by no means pleased all, and my management may have been faulty. Brethren A. White, H. H. Robinson, Emsley Curtis, W. S. Loar and C. St. Clair, have all asked to labor, and the work done has been of the nature and kind that merits praise. The first three brethren have labored considerably and all are well liked where they have labored. Bro. Loar's financial affairs have been such that it seemed impracticable for him to be in the field much of the time; while he was out, his labors had telling effect for good. Bro. St. Clair did not labor much; his reasons to me were for want of means to defray expenses to and from appointments. Some difficulty arose in his mind by reason of the way I handled the funds placed in the hands of the treasurer of the district. I believe it is due to the district president, whoever he may be, to appoint a committee at each quarterly conference to audit the claims of the different laborers; the duty of this committee to take into consideration the amount of money on hand, and the necessities and amount of labor done by all the applicants, the president of the district being careful in his report, to give to the conference the names of those laboring under him, and the amount of travel and labor he has called them to do. I have received letters accusing me of partiality and favoritism in distribution of the funds of the district. While I have been acting president of district I have tried to be wise, not only in this matter of distributing the funds, but also in calling the laborers to such parts of the field as would make the funds go the furthest to the good of the work. I am not urging any special complaints, as I have long since learned that there is no man that can please everybody, let him be ever so careful. The work is looking up in nearly every quarter of the district; fields are now opened up that can not be abandoned without great damage to the work. I have baptized nine since January 30th. Many are much interested at Holden, Clinton, Cedar Springs and near Lowry City. On February 25th I received a letter from Dr. E. C. Taylor, of Stockton, the county seat of Cedar county, asking that I come there. He says in his letter:—"I am prepared to say we will be glad to see you here at your earliest convenience. . . . Come prepared to stay a week or more. Your expenses here will be paid. Stop at 'Tennessee House.'" Stockton is twenty miles north of

Cedar Springs. This doctor was on business at Cedar Springs in February, when the brethren and myself were holding meetings there, and only heard us twice. His residence is at Stockton. He says they have a union church house there, and if I will inform him when I can come, he will see that the appointment is well circulated. I consider this an important call, coming from the source it does. Many such calls are coming from other points, and all of worthy note. Can laborers sit idly still and see these calls go unanswered? Saints with their means should step forward and assist worthy and good men to the front. If there is any place that should be wisely and thoroughly canvassed with wise men as laborers, it is this Central District. Wise men are needed to preside both in district and branch. If you put incompetent men into these positions that are aspiring to climb into "Moses' seat" the good you might do is greatly retarded. I have just closed a week's meeting at Holden. I had good congregations, and a marked interest is manifested in the work there. The work should be early renewed. These are some features of the work at Holden that are not found in many places, and that is polygamy. There is one Mr. Thomas who is a polygamist Mormon, and he attends nearly all of our meetings. He tries to throw discord in among our people, but in this he utterly fails. Some good minds are investigating, and these are privately visited by him, and the tales he tells poison their mind against the truth. He never fails to tell that Joseph Smith was a polygamist and had many wives and they now live in Utah. This has caused people to say we were all one and the same body with the Utah people. Thursday evening I had occasion to preach on polygamy. We had a good house and God enabled me to "set up" this "twin relic of barbarianism" in such light that our polygamist man at one time cried out, "Read on," while I was reading from the Book of Mormon, on page 116. I did read on to his great chagrin. This man got a letter only a week ago from two Utonian elders now in Tennessee, stating they would soon be in Holden, and would hold meeting. Mr. Thomas told me Thursday he had the promise of the same room I was occupying, for them to speak in. I have fully paved the way for them, and when they withdraw the wedge of truth that I left well planted in the minds of the people in Holden, we will give them a "free pass" to the happy hunting grounds of their leaders, Taylor and Cannon. My debate with Elder W. W. Blalock was all that I anticipated. It opened a great inquiry for the truth. Whether the debate will be renewed I can not say now; there are some signs of it, but not at the same place. The Campbellites want no more debate there. The cause is being assailed by Elders Price and Jones (Campbellites) in Cedar county. Jones spoke against us six times; Price a number of times. I heard Elder Price in one of his efforts and answered him the same day in a two hours' effort. Other places are threatened. I think this is no bad omen for the work. Elder Price tried hard to excite a spirit of mobocracy against our people. Arrangements are being made among these people to put men in the field to follow up our efforts; so I have learned. Our elders have nothing to fear if living faithfully and studying to show themselves workmen. I would press upon the conference the need of system in our labor. Without system many places will be neglected that need the labor and time now spent where it is of but little benefit. I pray that God may lead us wisely." Statistical report so far as reported shows a gain of 36 members during the quarter, 27 baptisms, 9 received by letter, 5 removed by letter, and one death; a net gain of 30 members. I. N. White was chosen president, E. Curtis, vice-president, and T. W. Chatburn, clerk, for the next quarter. The authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness, together with local authorities. Delegates to General Conference were instructed to vote for the convening of the General Conference at this place in 1888. Preaching Sunday morning by A. H. Smith, on the subject of tithing, which was well received. Prayer-meeting at two p. m., in charge of Brn. Pitt and E. Curtis. Preaching in the evening by I. N. White. The Spirit prevailed during the several meetings and was well received by the large audience in attendance. Adjourned to meet in Independence, Saturday, June 4th, 1887, at 10 o'clock a. m.

POTTAWATTAMIE.

A conference of above district was held in the Saints' Chapel, Hazel Dell branch, Iowa. H. N. Hansen president, R. Kirkwood secretary pro tem. Council Bluffs, Crescent and Hazel Dell branches reported. No report from Wheeler's Grove and North Star. Elders John F. Drebis, B. Harding, H. N. Hansen, and Priest John Evans reported labor done. C. A. Beebe was appointed delegate to the General Conference. The present officers of the district were sustained. The authorities of the church were sustained. All elders and priests were requested to labor as circumstances may permit. Preaching on the Sabbath by H. N. Hansen and B. Harding. An hour was spent in testimony, and many strong ones were borne by the Saints. A collection was taken up to aid our brethren in Texas, suffering from the drought, amounting to $10.65. A two-days' meeting was appointed to be held at Wheeler's Grove, commencing April 9th, 10:30, a. m. Adjourned to meet at Crescent the last Saturday in May, at 10:30 a. m.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

The semi-annual conference of this mission was held at Panau Korikura, October 6th to 10th, 1886. As many of the brethren are compelled to go to conference from a week to a month before the time or run the risk of not reaching the place of meeting in time, we make it a rule to have preaching, and other services daily up to the day of business; so that on Sunday, October 3d, Pohemiti, president of Niau branch, preached. At 10 a. m. preaching by T. W. Smith and H. Jonsen, at two p. m. by Metuore, president of Ziona branch, Tahiti; after which the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered, and a testimony meeting followed. After the 10 o'clock meeting five men and three women were baptized by Bro. T. W. Smith, and were confirmed at the beginning of the afternoon service. On Monday and Tuesday mornings a school was held at 7 a. m., at which various scriptures were explained by Bro. Smith. Preaching at 10 a. m., Tuesday, by Tahito, of Avatoru Rairoa. Prayer meeting at five p. m., Tuesday. Wednesday, October 6th, preaching at 7 a. m. by Tehopea, of Taronia branch, Tahiti. Business commenced at 10 a. m. Bro. T. W. Smith, president of the mission, presided. D. M. Pohemiti, president of Niau branch, was chosen clerk, and Pofatu, of Panau branch, and district clerk, was chosen to assist. Minutes of April conference were read by Bro. John Hawkins, as they appeared in the Herald and were translated by him. Reports from missionaries were read: Teahi, of Maihi branch, who did not report last April, reported the baptism of 18 at Taega, 9 at Makemo, 42 at Raroia, 11 at Takume; in all 80. A branch was organized in each place, with an elder, priest, teacher, and a deacon. H. Jonsen baptized 3 at Avatoru Rairoa. Tehopea had baptized 2 at Taronā. T. W. Smith had baptized 21, among them Bro. John Hawkins, formerly an elder of the church in the days of Grouard. He was re-ordained at the conference. Afternoon session.—After singing and prayer, reports of branches were read. Ziona, Niau, Panau, Apatai, Manihi, Moturaa, Avatoru and Taronā branches reported. No reports from Maatea, Tikahau, Taroa, Tapoto, Rotoava, Makemo, Roroia, Taega, Takume, Tamarie, Tuuhora, Matahoa, Faite, Hau, Amanu, Tauere, Teirei, and Tubuai. It is almost impossible to get the idea into the heads of these people that they should send the branch report, if the president of the branch does not attend the conference, but they think that if he does not go, they can do nothing. Preaching on Thursday morning at 7 o'clock, by Tamaru, president of Avatoru branch, on Friday morning by Teahi, of Manihi, on Sunday the 10th, at 7 a. m., by Tane, president of Manihi branch, at 10 a. m. by Elder John Hawkins, and at 2 p. m. by Elder H. Jonsen. The following rules were adopted by the conference. 1. That there shall be two general conferences each year, one to begin April 6th, the other on October 6th. 2. That there shall be two district conferences each year in each district, one on January 6th and the other on July 6th, and that no district shall meet when the general conferences meet; in other words, that there shall be no district conferences on April 6th or October 6th. 3. Each branch shall collect a franc from each member and forward to the general conference to help defray the expenses thereof. 4. Lincoln secretary, Leslie Darrow assistant, William Hart treasurer. Minutes of last conference read and corrected to show membership of San Francisco branch 57 instead of 75, and Oakland branch 95 instead of 97 as printed in Herald. Minutes then accepted. Elders' reports.—Thomas Daley, of the seventy, baptized 6. J. R. Cook baptized 1. John Nightingale, George S. Lincoln, G. W. Harlow, J. H. Parr and Charles A. Parkin reported. John Parson has been called by the Spirit of God to unite and labor with the Reorganized Church; was called by the same Spirit through Joseph Smith to take hold and work. In accordance with the voice of the Spirit went to Oakland, met with the Saints there and in San Francisco, where the Spirit testified of God's acceptance of him. Has united with the Oakland branch, and labored there and in San Francisco, with the Spirit continually acknowledging him and his efforts. Preaching in the evening by H. P. Brown. Second day.—Met at nine o'clock for prayer and praise. Business resumed at ten o'clock, H. P. Brown in the chair. Elders' reports continued.—James Steele, Owen Dinsdale, Albert Haws and H. P. Brown; by letter: William Anderson, C. W. Hawkins, William Hart (has served as treasurer of district, received funds, leaving cash on hand at date $7.85), and Heman C. Smith. H. P. Brown, chairman of committee on re-unions, reported nothing done in that direction; he had waited to hear from similar committee from the other districts. Priest Samuel Weldon reported by letter. Andrews, reported by letter: Cash on hand last report $1,038.37; received from tithings $183.15, from offerings $20.25, total $1,241.77; expenditures, missionary $85, to the Bishop $300, poor $106; total $491; leaving cash on hand at date $750.77. Preaching in the evening by John Parson. Prayer and praise meeting on Sunday morning; preaching in the forenoon by Thomas Daley; sacrament meeting in the afternoon; preaching in the evening by H. P. Brown. Priest J. A. Stromberg reported by letter. The following preamble and resolution was read and unanimously adopted: Whereas, the Northern District of California has from time to time, by tithing and free-will offerings, placed in the hands of the Bishop's Agent in said district large sums of money, and whereas, very much of said money has been used from time to time by the Bishop to assist to carry missionaries to distant fields, and to be used east, thereby depleting the treasury in this district, to the extent that the work of the Lord in this district has been badly crippled for want of funds to place the elders, or considerable part of them, in the field and properly sustain them, and whereas, it is the sense of this conference that the interests of the church, in this district have not been properly attended to, and that we believe that a large portion of the money paid into the hands of the Bishop's Agent in this district is absolutely needed here, and ought in justice to us be used here, for the support of our poor and the work of the ministry; therefore be it resolved by this conference here assembled, that we do respectfully, yet earnestly petition and pray the Bishop and the Twelve to allow the money in the hands of the Bishop's Agent, and whatever may be hereafter paid into his or her hands to be used for the benefit of our own poor, and the work of the ministry in this district, until such times as it shall be just and equitable to divert it to other purposes and other plans. Thos. Daley was given a vote of thanks for past services as district president. By request of the Sacramento branch Bro. W. A. Skinner was ordained to the office of a priest. Adjourned to meet Oakland, California, October 6th, 1887, at ten o'clock.

DIED.

CUNNINGTON.—At Davis City, Iowa, April 2d, 1887, Elder William Cunnington, aged 81 years, 6 month and 16 days. He had been feeble for many months but a paralytic stroke was the immediate cause of his death. He was born at Preston, Lancashire, England, in 1805; obeyed the gospel as restored in latter days some time in the "forties," came to America in 1847; was in Utah and later in California; returned eastward in 1872 and came into Iowa in 1875. He joined the Reorganized Church at Stockton, California, in 1864, remaining faithful and true to the Lord's work and having nothing to do at any time with the evils instituted by men. He was a member of the Third Quorum of Elders. His wife survives him. Two sons live in Utah, one daughter in Montana, and two daughters in Iowa, one the wife of Bro. E. Robinson of Davis City. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins in the Union Chapel, Davis City.

EVELAND.—At Pekin, Illinois, March 10th, 1887, of quick consumption, Eva L. Eveland, aged 19 years, 3 months and 17 days. She had been sick for the last five months; she rallied for a time, but the seeds of early death were too firmly planted in her constitution, and she closed her eyes in death while yet in the morning of her womanhood.

TEETERS.—At Clear Lake, Indiana, March 24th, 1887, of old age, Sophia Teeters. She was born February 27th, 1806, near Wilksbarre, Pennsylvania, aged 81 years and 26 days. She was a faithful wife, a good mother, kind and generous to all; she fell asleep in Christ with the hope of a glorious resurrection, and awaits the coming of Jesus the King. Funeral service by Elder B. V. Springer, in presence of a large gathering of friends.

We laid her away in the old church yard,
From the labors of earth now set free;
Where the sweet birds sing and the wild flowers spring,

'Till we all come, dear mother, to thee.
Sleep on, dearest mother, and sweet be thy rest,
Thy trials and cares are all o'er;
We patiently wait for the summons to come,
To meet on the evergreen shore.

ALLEN.—At Cleveland, Iowa, March 25th, 1887, of heart disease, Betty, the beloved wife of Bro. Thomas R. Allen, in her sixty-fifth year. She was born in Little Lever, Lancashire, England, about January 12th, 1823; baptized into the Reorganized Church May 23d, 1866, at Alton, Illinois, by Henry Cuerden. She leaves a husband, two sons, and two daughters, eight grandchildren, and many friends to mourn her loss. She lived in full assurance of the truth of the latter day work, and ever bore a strong and powerful testimony to that effect to her last breath. She passed away out of this life suddenly, and seemingly without pain or a struggle. Funeral services was conducted by John Watkins, Sen., and sermon by George Spencer.

HASKINS.—Near Crescent, Iowa, March 22d, 1887, Sr. Mary Haskins, aged 78 years, 10 months, and 13 days. She embraced the gospel through the labors of W. W. Blair and E. C. Briggs, in Decatur county, Iowa, in the early days of the Reorganization, and since then her life has been in keeping with her profession. Funeral service by H. N. Hansen.

EMLEY.—At Wisner, Nebraska, February 12th, 1887, after two weeks' illness, Bro. Joseph Emley, husband of Sr. Mary Emley, who died May, 1886. They were baptized in Indiana, 1843, whence they came in 1865, living in the above locality until their death. Some time after this, Bro. C. Derry was preaching here, and both expressed a desire to unite with the Reorganized Church. Their union was blessed with fourteen children, eleven of whom are living. Their names and works are held in respectful remembrance by all who knew them.

Sister Ellen Fisher, writing from Eight Mile Grove, Oregon, says:

"I would not know how to do without the Herald; it is my only preacher since I came to this place. I have not seen one of our faith in this State, but have heard of one, Sister Rush, about fifteen miles from here, who is doing all she can in the way of distributing tracts; she has a good reputation among her neighbors. I hope to see her soon."

PERSONAL CLEANLINESS.

PERSONAL cleanliness is one of the best of Christian virtues, and must go largely with cleanliness of mind. Uncleanliness of person too often betokens a careless, listless, and indolent condition of mind. Laziness is a perverse weed, and needs careful cultivation against it, to prevent injury to the nobler qualities of the human brain and heart. Any excellent quality held in check by indolence loses in intensity, and is finally overcome. Perverse habits kill out and destroy good intentions; and no matter how much regret may be indulged after the mischief is wrought, the ruin can not be repaired; pardon may be obtained, but reparation is impossible. Men ought to guard against indolent ways as against a thief in the night. So, also, ought Saints to guard against personal uncleanliness.

Not many months ago it was our privilege to attend a public place, where young men assembled for study, to prepare themselves for ministerial labor for one of the several popular sects; and in the hall where the word was preached, we noticed that the floor where many of the seats were, was badly stained with tobacco juice. Our thought was, Here, on this side do congregate those of unclean lips. We remarked to the man kindly showing us over the building: "This is the tobacco chewers side of the house." "Yes, he replied, 'the boys will some of them use the weed.'" In another public building, where courts are held, in a popular city, we encountered a similar condition of things. In still another, in a country county seat, the floor, the aisles, the bar, all reek with the fumes of decayed tobacco spittle and stale smoke, to such an extent that the nostrils of a sensitive man tingle and smart with the fumes, and breathing after a time becomes oppressive. Men lounge in and complacently masticate tobacco, and eject the spittle everywhere; the windows are kept closed, and the atmosphere becomes foetid and foul; how can clean lips bear such contamination and escape free from hurt.

It is pleasant to think that there has been a very marked change for the better in regard to cleanliness in personal appearance, clothing, and habits in public, and the places where the Saints congregate. These are regarded with a cleaner thought, and a greater respect is shown to the place where it is hoped that the Good Spirit will meet with those who gather there. We feel encouraged, and hope that when the Angel Messages come more freely than heretofore, we may have an army of men of clean lips to herald them abroad.

BRIGHAM VS. JOSEPH.

IN Nauvoo, April 6th, 1845,—nearly ten months after the murder of Joseph Smith, Brigham Young in a speech delivered to the church, and printed in the Times and Seasons for July 1st, 1845, vol. 6, page 952-3, deliberately uttered the following words, in which are plainly seen his ambition for extra influence and power with the Saints, also his cunning craftiness in paving the way for the introduction of polygamy, secret oath-bound endowments, and their kindred anti-gospel doctrines and doings. These are the words:

"When you receive all that is for you, you will say, O the blindness of Christendom! O the ignorance of the world!! Even the Latter Day Saints that have assembled themselves together at the April Conference in the year eighteen hundred and forty-five will say, What am I? Joseph in his life time did not receive everything connected with the doctrine of redemption; but he has left the key with those who understand how to obtain and teach to this great people all that is necessary for their salvation and exaltation in the celestial kingdom. . . . If we improve upon the small things, greater will be given us."

In this quotation Brigham claims substantially (1), that Joseph "in his life time" was ignorant of some things "connected with the doctrine of redemption;" (2), that the Saints up to 1845 had not received "all" that was for them to learn of that "doctrine;" (3), that these things which neither the Saints nor Joseph had received, others would "obtain and teach this great people;" (4), for the reason that Joseph "left the key with those who understand how to obtain and teach this great people all that is necessary for their salvation and exaltation in the celestial kingdom of our God," which things, mark you, he asserts neither Joseph nor the Saints knew of.

He further asserts that what Joseph and the Saints knew in Joseph's "life time," were "small things" when compared with what would be taught "this great people" by those with whom Joseph "left the key . . . to obtain and teach" the Saints.

What new thing did Brigham and his fellows teach the Saints, after June 27th, 1844, as being "necessary for their salvation and exaltation in the celestial kingdom?" It was polygamy—"celestial marriage"—and his system of secret oath-bound endowments! In proof of this, please read what he afterwards, in the same speech said, after having thus prepared the minds of the Saints for some of the promised "greater" things which "Joseph in his life time did not receive." Brigham said:

"I would now call your attention to some of the sayings of the Apostle Paul. I hope you will not stumble at them. Paul says:—"Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord; for as the woman is of the man, even so is the man also by the woman, but all things of God." The same apostle also says:—"The woman is the glory of the man." Now brethren, these are Paul's sayings; not Joseph Smith's spiritual wife system sayings. And I would say, as no man can be perfect without the woman, so no woman can be perfect without a man to lead her. I tell you the truth as it is in the bosom of eternity; and I say so to every man upon the face of the earth; if he wishes to be saved he can not be saved without a woman by his side. This is spiritual wifeism; that is, the doctrine of Spiritual wives."

This, then, is some of the "greater" things that belonged to the Saints' "salvation and exaltation in the celestial kingdom," according to the teaching of Brigham Young. Brigham in these teachings "let the cat out of the bag," as to what himself and his fellows intended to teach the Saints as principles essential to salvation. And this he teaches as new doctrine to the Saints, that which he claims, "Joseph in his life time did not receive," and that which the Saints had not previously known.

How cunning; how crafty to assume that others besides Joseph held "the key" by which "to obtain and teach" the Saints principles pertaining to "salvation and exaltation" that "Joseph in his life time did not receive!" Verily; if Brigham's claims were true, Joseph and the Saints had not received what would save and exalt them in the celestial kingdom of God, but it remained for himself and his fellows, by virtue of "the key" left them, to "obtain and teach to this great people" those wonderful things of which Joseph and the Saints had been ignorant, and which were "necessary for their salvation and exaltation."

In this Brigham flatly contradicts the authorized books of the church, for all of them teach that "salvation and exaltation" are attained by the gospel, and that the gospel is taught in each and all of these books. Besides this, the Lord said, "I will show unto my servant Joseph all things pertaining to this house, [Temple in Nauvoo], and the priesthood thereof."—Doc and Cov. 107:13. And yet Brigham had the audacity to claim that he and his fellows would teach the church what Joseph and the Saints had not received up to 1844!

Well, they have done so; and the result is, they and those who follow them are made, like rebellious Israel, "a bye word, a taunt, a proverb, and a reproach." Brigham and his co-workers, in their efforts to be greater and wiser than those who preceded and were once over them in the ministry, ran rapidly into error from 1844, since when their church has been widely different in doctrine and principle from what Christ's Church was at any time in the history of ancient or modern times, as that history is found in the sacred books of the church.

BRO. JOSEPH F. BURTON sends us copies of the Wallsend and Plattsburg, N. S. W., Sun for the 5th and 12th of February, in each of which is a digest of a discourse delivered by him, at a hall in Plattsburg. We give place for one of them for the matter which it contains.

"Last Sunday evening Elder Burton of the Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints preached to a fairly large audience at the Mechanics' Institute, Plattsburg. Following is an outcast of his discourse:

There is a spirit of unrest in the religious world. . . . Old doctrines are being revived and doctrines venerable by having received the sanction of our fore-fathers, are dismissed the creeds of to-day by reason of research, investigation, and light. For instance, the "Theological Seminary" of Andover, Massachusetts, is in trouble over the doctrine of Probation after death, so also the doctrine of future punishment has been considerably modified. The last few centuries have given us a host of reformers, who have endeavored to expurgate the churches of doctrines which to them seemed erroneous. The doctrines, perhaps, which called for reformation more than all others was that of "justification by works" alone; thence came the cry of the reformation "justification by faith," which gradually has taken upon itself this expressed thought, "Jesus has paid it all;" and so persistently has this statement been urged that to-day Christianity is lifeless and the spirit of the age is pre-eminently Universalistic. The expression, "No works needed," was perhaps not intended to be taken in its absolute sense, and may not be so used now, only that thereby the thought is expressed that any works of righteousness which man may perform could never have given the race salvation; therefore could never give it to an individual. While this is admitted there must always be this thought that as "Christ has paid it all," not only now—not only from Calvary—but from "the foundation of the world." He then has done all that he intends to do, and man to be saved must accept individually of the offer of eternal life made by Christ to all persons upon the terms he has made.

If there are no terms of acceptance of necessity, we must be Universalists, for God is no respecter of persons. If there are no terms or conditions, may we be saved while rejecting them? We will find it difficult to continue the distinction between "justification by works" and "justification by faith;" but if we accept the thought that the faith by which a man is justified is of that character which demands action, and thus unite the two, we may see our way clear. We hear it stated that ALL that is necessary is, "believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Do those who use that expression mean that they are willing to trust to Christ to save them, because of their belief that He is the Christ; or that because they say I believe, therefore I am saved. Are they saved? If so, are not they saved by their belief—and is it not a fact that such persons Christ has not paid it all in the sense that the terms of salvation need not be complied with by them, for unless "they believe," Christ has not saved them—and they make that proposition the condition of salvation. But if "Christ has paid it all" and I am saved if I believe, will I continue in a saved condition, if I do not continue to live righteously. No; but if I sin I must repent if I would continue in such a state, then I find a law of salvation affecting me after I become a Christian, which was not operative before I was saved, that is, repentance, for all that a sinner needs to be saved is to believe, but after that he must add repentance to belief to be saved; but if it is stated that the sinner must also repent then we have as two conditions of salvation—belief in Christ and repentance.

There are are some notable cases recorded in the New Testament which may throw some light upon these questions. Christ says (Luke 24:47) that "repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name in all nations." In Mark 16:16, He says "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." If I am saved because of my belief in Christ alone, this statement of Mark is incorrect, for he puts salvation after and contingent upon belief and baptism, and so in answer to the question of the thousands on Pentecost day. "What shall we do? Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." (Acts 2:38). Also in the case of the eunuch, "what doth hinder me to be baptized," and the answer, "if thou believest thou mayest," and the affirmation of belief "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." Philip then baptized him. When was this man saved? When he believed; if so, what of Christ's statement "he (a Eunuch) that believeth, and is baptized shall be saved." If he was saved before baptism, evidently baptism was not for the remission of sins, and the statements of the rule of action as made by Christ and the Apostles are incorrect. We do not think that Christ was wrong when he said "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," or that St. Peter was wrong in answering the question "what shall we do?" by saying "repent and be baptized every one of you;" or that Philip was in error when teaching the Samaritans "concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ," he baptized both men and women. So then the faith by which a man is justified is of that active nature that produces works, and by works faith is made perfect; therefore a man is justified by a perfected faith, or as James (2:17) says: "faith if it hath not works, is dead being alone." "Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only.—24v. Then a man is justified by a faith which causes belief in Christ, repentance, and baptism for the remission of sins.

SIGNIFICANT STATISTICS.

THE following may help you to determine which class of men you will array yourself with, those whose chances are the better or those whose chances are worse. Choose, but remember the conditions when called upon to meet the consequences.

Mr. Nelson, the most distinguished of English actuaries, after long and careful investigations and comparisons, ascertains by actual experience the following astounding facts:

Between the ages of 15 and 20, where ten total abstainers die, eighteen moderate drinkers die.

Between the ages of 29 and 30, where ten total abstainers die, 31 moderate drinkers die.

Between the ages of 30 and 40, where ten total abstainers die, 40 moderate drinkers die.

Or, expressing the fact in another form he says:

A total abstainer twenty years old has the chance of living 44 years longer, or until 64 years old.

A moderate drinker has the chance of living 15½ years, or until 35 years old.

A total abstainer 30 years old has the chance of living 36½ years longer.

A moderate drinker 30 years old has the chance of living 13½ years longer, or until 43¾ years old.

A total abstainer 40 years old has the chance of living 28¾ years longer, or until 68½ years old.

A moderate drinker 40 years old has the chance of living 11½ years longer, or until 51½ years old.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. W. Vernon, writing from Oakland, California, April 3d, says:

"The reading of the Herald pages affords me some of the happiest moments of my life. Bro. Derry gives the skeptic his due, and Bro. T. W. Smith is splendid on the fruits of the Spirit. They have the law in their hearts instead of in their pockets. Our new church and Sunday School is a credit to the branch."

Bro. P. B. Seaton, writing from Paris, Tennessee, April 5th, says:

"Bro. Griffin and myself are trying to spread the work here as best we can; prejudice is subsiding, and interest increasing. We are making new openings, and holding the fort at the old ones, and desire to still press on in this glorious latter day work, being assured that it is of God."

REVELATION.

TO THE ELDERS OF THE CHURCH—

Thus saith the Spirit:

1. It is not yet expedient that the Quorum of the Twelve shall be filled; nevertheless, separate my servants, James W. Gillen, Heman C. Smith, Joseph Luff and Gomer T. Griffiths, unto the office of Apostles, that the quorum may be more perfectly prepared to act before me. I have still other men of my church who shall be designated in their time if they still continue faithful unto me, and in the work whereunto they are now called.

2. There is a great work to be done by mine elders, and that they may be fitted to do this work and the accomplishment thereof be not prevented it is enjoined upon them that they shall not only be kind of heart and of a lowly spirit, that their wisdom may be the wisdom of the Lord and their strength the strength of the Spirit, but they shall lay aside lightness of speech and lightness of manner when standing to declare the word, and shall study to approve their ministrations to the people by candor of speech and courtesy of manner, that as ministers of the gospel they may win souls unto Christ.

3. The elders and men of the church should be of a cheerful heart and countenance among themselves and in their intercourse with their neighbors and men of the world, yet they must be without blame in word and deed. It is therefore not seemly that they indulge in loud and boisterous speech, or in the relating of coarse and vulgar stories, or those in which the names of their God and their Redeemer are blasphemed. Men of God, who bear the vessels of the Lord, be ye clean in your bodies and in your clothing; let your garments be of a sober character and free from excess of ornamentation. Avoid the use of tobacco and be not addicted to strong drink in any form, that your counsel to be temperate may be effectual by your example.

4. That the work of restoration to which the people of my church are looking forward may be hastened in its time, the elders must cease to be overcareful concerning the return of those who were once of the faith but were overcome in the dark and cloudy day; fearing lest they should bring in hidden heresies to the overthrowing of the work; for verily there are some who are chosen vessels to do good, who have been estranged by the hindering snares which are in the world and who will in due time return unto the Lord if they be not hindered by the men of the church. The Spirit says "Come;" let not the ministers for Christ prevent their coming

5. And the Spirit saith further: Contention is unseemly, therefore, cease to contend respecting the sacrament and the time of administering it; for whether it be upon the first Lord's day of every month, or upon the Lord's day of every week, if it be administered by the officers of the church with sincerity of heart and in purity of purpose, and be partaken of in remembrance of Jesus Christ and in willingness to take upon them his name by them who partake, it is acceptable to God. To avoid confusion, let him who presides in the sacrament meeting, and those who administer it, cause that the emblems be duly prepared upon clean vessels for the bread and clean vessels for the wine, or the water, as may be expedient; and the officer may break the bread before it is blessed, and pour the wine before it is blessed; or he may, if he be so led, bless the bread before it is broken and the wine before it is poured; nevertheless, both bread and wine should be uncovered when presented for the blessing to be asked upon it. It is expedient that the bread and wine should be administered in the early part of the meeting before weariness and confusion ensue. Let him that partaketh and him that refraineth cease to contend with his brother that each may be benefited when he eateth at the table of the Lord.

6. The service of song in the house of the Lord with humility and unity of spirit in them that sing and them that hear, is blessed and acceptable to God; but song with grievous sadness in them that sing and bitterness of spirit in them that hear is not pleasing to God. Therefore, in all the congregations of the people of God, let all strife and contention concerning song service cease and that the worship in the house of the Lord may be complete and wholly acceptable, let them who shall be moved thereto by a desire and the gift to sing take upon them the burden and care of the service, and use therein instruments of music of the reed and of the string, or instruments of brass in congregations that are large, and as wisdom and choice may direct. Let the young men and the maidens cultivate the gifts of music and of song; let not the middle-aged and the old forget the gladness of their youth and let them aid and assist so far as their cares will permit and remember that Saints should be cheerful in their warfare that they may be joyous in their triumph. Nevertheless, let the organ and the stringed instrument, and the instrument of brass be silent when the Saints assemble for prayer and testimony, that the feelings of the tender and sad may not be intruded upon. To facilitate unity in the song service of the church those to whom the work of providing a book of song has been introduced may hasten their work in its time.

7. And the Spirit saith further: Inasmuch as there has been much discussion in the past concerning the Sabbath of the Lord, the church is admonished that until further revelation is received, or the quorums of the church are assembled to decide concerning the law in the church articles and covenants, the Saints are to observe the first day of the week, commonly called the Lord's day, as a day of rest; as a day of worship, as given in the covenants and commandments. And on this day they should refrain from unnecessary work; nevertheless, nothing should be permitted to go to waste on that day nor should necessary work be neglected. Be not harsh in judgment but merciful in this, as in all other things. Be not hypocrites nor of those who make a man an offender for a word.

8. Prosecute the missionary work in this land and abroad so far and so widely as you may. All are called according to the gifts of God unto them; and to the intent that all may labor together, let him that laboreth in the ministry and him that toileth in the affairs of the men of business and of work labor together with God for the accomplishment of the work intrusted to all.

9. Be clean, be frugal, cease to complain of pain and sickness and distress of body; take sleep in the hours set apart by God for the rebuilding and strengthening of the body and the mind; for even now there are some, even among the elders, who are suffering in mind and body, who have disregarded the advice of the Spirit to retire early and to rise early, that vigor of mind and body should be retained. Bear the burdens of body of which the Spirit of healing from the Lord in faith, or the use of that which wisdom directs does not relieve or remove, and in cheerfulness do whatever may be permitted you to perform that the blessing of peace may be upon all. Amen.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"How sweetly come the holy psalms
From saints and martyrs down;
The waving of triumphal palms

A RETROSPECTIVE GLANCE.

At this particular period in the history of the "Home Column" it seems to us that a brief glance of retrospect may not be amiss. In regard to some affairs of this life we knowingly premeditate, fit ourselves for them and work for the accomplishment of that which we aim to do; but in regard to others we arise in the morning perfectly unconscious that the day will bring any change to us, and before the sun has passed its meridian we find ourselves suddenly brought face to face with events for which we have made no preparation, and we turn our steps into new and untried paths. Thus the event of taking charge of the department in the Herald, now known as the "Home Column" came to us, and after having said to "Bro. Joseph," We will do the very best we can, our thoughts took a hasty glance over the field, and instantly we began to question, "Are you sufficient for this?"

Time was not required in order to answer this question definitely, once and forever. In us there was no sufficiency, and never were we enabled to realize it more fully than after our promise was given and we began to question ourselves as to the full extent of that which it involved. No instruction had been given us, no line of demarcation or boundary, neither was it a field in which others had labored into whose labors we might enter. In saying that this particular work came to us unpremeditated, we said truly; but we had for some time been impressed that there was a work for us to do and had been so told by the Spirit through others, therefore our first thought was of reliance upon God. If indeed he had sent us the work he would fit and qualify us for it, and give wisdom as we needed it. Feeling this we went to God in earnest prayer, that as he had brought the work to our hands, he would direct us in regard to it, and through the communications which should from time to time be sent in, he would put us in a relation with the needs of the work, the wants of those for whom we should labor, so close that it would not be possible for us to go astray in regard to it. This was our constant prayer, and as time moved on we became stronger in our faith, more abiding in our trust, until to-day we feel an assurance, amounting almost to certainty, not only that we have been guided in the past, but that we are doing the work of the Master, and so long as we keep ourselves humble and prove worthy before him, he will guide us still.

Day by day the vastness of the work opens before us, and in the silent watches of the night the Spirit presents to us, thoughts which chide our grasp by day, and while we wait that we may more fully consider and digest the matter, the same Spirit bids another, "Write," with an authority which can not be resisted, and in many cases the young members are bidden by the Spirit, to write, and also to take action upon subjects which have heretofore been tolerated, not by the young of the church only, but by parents, guardians and the ministry, who if not approving, have at least never censured or stamped with that disapproval which we believe God requires at their hands. This is not said with any disposition to cast blame upon any one, but is spoken as the honest conviction of our own soul, and we believe that whoever lives to see the closing of the next decade will see a mighty change for the better in this church, and that change will be inaugurated and brought about largely by those who to-day are youths and maidens in Zion. If, as a people we are true to the work we are entrusted with, this will be the case, for, if God has not set his hand to prepare a people to meet him at his second coming, then is there no adequate cause to be assigned for the manifestation of his Holy Spirit to that people, neither for those events in the world which in their sure and rapid development are being heard as they shake the earth with their ominous tread.

When God made choice of a people to be the guardians of his law and truth, his commandments to that people were very strict in regard to the way in which they should separate themselves from the nations by whom they were surrounded. The sons should not take wives of the daughters of the unbelieving, neither should they give their daughters to them for wives. This was the commandment of God, and why was it? Because the unbelieving would estrange their hearts from the true God. Notwithstanding this, the Lord left right in the midst of Israel, remnants of these nations; and for what purpose? To prove them and know if their hearts were fully set to serve the Lord their God. Many a Dalilah ensnared the heart of a Hebrew Sampson, but only grief came of it, for few like Ruth are mentioned, who were heard to say, "Thy God shall be my God, and thy people my people!" God chose Abraham and commanded him to leave his father's house. As a nation Israel was chosen, but we read that the Holy Spirit through Simeon declared, "God visited the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name." When the Gentiles received the gospel, they did not receive it as a nation, neither was there tribal relations, but they became Israel by adoption. Christ was a light to lighten them, but He was the glory of Israel, and we must be graft in and partake of the fatness of the root.

The very definite command of the apostle was, "Be ye not unequally yoked with unbelievers." Why? How knowest thou whether the believing wife shall win the unbelieving husband, or the believing husband win the unbelieving wife. And what if this be not the case? "Then are your children unclean." Just what Paul meant by this phrase we are not prepared to say, but we know, as our young sister said in her letter last week, that here at the very beginning, into the home where unity of thought and sentiment should exist, is introduced an element of discord, and one which may never be banished. More than one sister has written us, "I can not have my children baptized because my husband will not consent. Poor children, was it not a hard thing to have their birthright sold before they were born, and has not the mothers time to repent and see the folly of what she has done when it is too late?"

Just here we wish to ask a question. Who did sin, the mother of these children, or the careless, unthinking parents, who raised this mother without any reference to her responsibility as the probable mother of immortal souls? Are we as parents guiltless in the sight of God with reference to this matter? Do we train up our girls and boys, judiciously striving to impart to them as far as we have the ability an abiding sense of the obligations they are under both to God and society, to fit themselves to become fathers and mothers of a race of freemen, to say nothing of sons and daughters of God?

We have heard of crying sins in the world, but have been very slow to admit the possibility of such existing in the church; but the letter to which we give place in this issue comes from a source not to be gainsaid. "Write! write!!" was the command of the Spirit to this God-fearing woman, and had we the power to reach the heart of every mother in Zion we would entreat you to listen, and if it can be that you have so far forgotten the holy feelings of motherhood, as to have fallen down before this most abominable idol of the Gentiles, remember the solemn declaration of the inspired pensman when he says, "No murderer hath eternal life abiding in them." Oh, daughters of Zion, if indeed any of you have not been taught of your mothers the sin and crime attaching to such deeds as these, then listen to the voice of One who has said of his people, "Though the mother forget her sucking babe, yet will God not forget you," and repent e'er it be forever too late. Can we wonder that the anger of a just and holy God is kindled against this nation when such crimes exist, and in their bold shame facedness women will talk of them as lightly as they would discuss an ordinary matter. Oh, if the meek and lowly Nazarene were here to-day, would not the Spirit which ever flashed forth from his indignant heart when brought face to face with wickedness in high places, lead him again to say: "The publicans and Harlots go into the kingdom of God before you."

"For he established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers, that they should make them known to their children."—Ps. 78: 5.

Dear Sisters:—The march of time is onward, and ever and anon comes the pleasant opportunity of feasting from the crumbs that fall from the lips (pens) of the experienced ones. The food from the Mothers' table grows more and more tempting, is savory and palatable, served up in various styles, with now and then a sprig of the home practical—to grace the dish; and while it has been so delicious, I have felt to draw back in the shade, impressed with the littleness of my own poor morsel, and how insignificant compared with those whose energy and God-given talent hath enabled them to excel. But, says one, have we not all a work to do, great or small? Yes, truly, and perhaps we who are not so well qualified and thoroughly schooled, will be able, by dint of perseverance, to fill in little nooks and crevices that perchance have been overlooked; and when at last the grand work is completed and the good counted, there may be a tie; and as I have pledged myself to aid, as best I can, in this good work, this finds me once more casting in my mite.

I can not begin to tell the good I have received, the lessons I am continually learning, and the comfort I have taken to myself from the timely letters of my sisters, coupled with the editorials which come to us laden with balm adapted to the nature of our every wound or ailment (spiritual-speaking). And while I read and ponder, I sing,—way down in my heart—Dear Home Column—blessed comforter. But my joy is not unmixed with pain and regrets, however, for duties which have been—shall I say—neglected? Ah no, but rather, unperformed; for it was not through a wilfulness, but ignorance, that they were left undone; and how often I am led to cry out in my soul: "Where, oh where have we been, in the years gone by, that we have laid so dormant as touching our maternal duties?" If we could have stood in our earlier days where our young mothers stand to-day, and have received the instructions and help they are now receiving, what onward strides we might have made, and how much better prepared our boys might have been to take the places of the dear old veterans that are one by one passing on to victory! Perhaps it was God's will thus to be. However, the past we can not redeem,—the future is not ours, we can only make use of the present, and how thankful I am, this glorious day has dawned ere my sun went down, that I have the opportunity of improving the little time remaining to me.

I feel much encouraged as I watch the workings of the Spirit, and its strivings with both old and young, and the interest manifest by them, which bespeaks for the church a glorious future. Young mothers, yours is a grand opportunity; do not let it pass; cherish in your hearts the beautiful lessons that are sent to you from time to time; hang the lovely pictures in halls of your memory, where you can gaze upon them at your pleasure, and when not even the sheriff's hammer would dare attempt to wrest them from you. You will find in them a continual source of pleasure and instruction.

Much has been said on rearing the young; nor must we be passive. As mothers and prospective mothers are constantly coming into existence, and as it will be so while time shall last, these lessons (like the alphabet before the young), must be kept before them.

Many and varied are the opinions as to the proper time that training should begin. I believe, as some others do, the exact time to begin is before the little one is born; yes and I may say as soon as it is thought of; for even then, with all our care, our might, mind and strength brought into requisition to subdue our passions, control our evil natures, that our offspring may not imbibe thereof—I say even then will we find it inheriting some of the evil propensities of the father; and to this end will only add that if you do not want to transfer any of your moral deformities to your offspring, let the father as well as the mother exercise the necessary precaution over his own evil disposition, and bring it into subjection, that your little ones may be formed and fashioned (morally speaking) in the likeness you would have them to be.

There is one point I would lightly touch upon; and were it not so fearfully prevalent I would fain throw around it the mantle of charity, and delicacy would forbid my even writing upon it, but there is a duty to be performed; some one must do it; who shall it be? I would that I had language to more forcibly and indelibly stamp it upon the hearts of my sisters, but I trust there are few who need this short lesson. Among the many evils engendered in the heart of the unborn babe is that of a desire for the destruction of life; and can we wonder when so fearfully prevalent, is the practice of putting an end to the life of unborn babes. How many there are who are ignorant of its consequences. I do not know, but there are hundreds of women to-day who secretly practice this sin. Some of these are brought to light, and even mothers are known to educate their daughters in such practices, and then boast of their wisdom. This is not all, but they seem so lost to all sense of the purity of womanhood, as to point the finger of scorn at those who will not join hands with them in their unholy deeds, or who are so ignorant in this enlightened age as not to live for a purpose more refined than the one God created them for. This is not only immoral, but criminal, being destruction of both health and life. Let no one flatter themselves that time has anything to do in mitigating this sin. Let any sisters remember that from the time they place themselves in a position to become mothers, their responsibility before God begins. How many of our sex have recourse to petty nostrums which are nothing but frauds. Young mothers who love ease and dislike responsibilities, older ones who having borne some children, but want no more, will waste their means upon these things only to meet with disappointment; and in their disappointment have they not created within that little immortal soul a murderous desire; and who is to blame? This is strong language; nevertheless, the facts are staring me in the face.

Oh, my sisters, we who have taken upon us the name of Christ; in the name of him who created us, let us stand clean and pure before him, and all the world, of this accusation. All creation seems to be groaning and travailing in pain; the world is already reeling and tottering on its axis, with the weight of its sins and corruptions; shall we who profess to walk in the light add one drop to its already running over cup of abomination? Verily no; let our acts accord with our profession, and our lives be as symbolical of the life to come as we can possibly make them. True, we are called at many times to drink to the very dregs the cup of bitterness, but will not our days of sorrow and suffering soon be at an end? Yet a little while, and ye shall see me, saith the Lord. Oh, that the eye of faith might be more intently fixed upon his glorious appearing! Then would the world, with all its gilded fascinations, and its soul destroying influences, loose its power to dim and obscure our one blessed hope. Let the distant beacon light cheer us on; and though tempest tossed and rough are the billows that dash over us, yet will it not have a tendency to draw us nearer to God, and that desired haven of rest? Even here we may, if we will, enjoy a foretaste of the coming bliss, by walking closer and closer to God. Then will he give us strength, when self must be sacrificed, hardships and trials be borne, to say thy will be done.

Dear Column:—I have a son sixteen years old. Like many other young men he thinks it looks very manly to be seen with a cigar in his mouth. When I found it out I said, "O, my son, you surely do not smoke cigars, do you?" "Yes some times, mother." I said, "Don't you know what the Word of Wisdom says?" He answered, "Yes, but there are lots of Latter Day Saints that smoke and chew, too. If it is wrong for me, is it not wrong for them?"

O fathers and brothers, see what a stumbling block you are casting in the way of the young; and they stumble over it. May the Lord open your eyes to see your error. I will do as Hannah of old, I will give him to the Lord, and say, "Do as you think right with him, O Lord!" Oh, that the Lord may show one and all the right way.

From your sister.

COOK'S POINT, TEXAS, March 29th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I feel this evening that I was the servant that had the one talent and hid it up for his Master. I have been waiting for others more able than I to write for the Home Column; but I have delayed long enough. I believe every sister ought to be up and striving to help move on this glorious work. No matter how weak, if they will work, trusting in the Lord, he will bless their labors. We don't know how much good we can do until we try. If we only do our part the Lord will certainly do his. I feel the time is here for the Master to prune his vineyard, and all that do not bring forth good fruit will be cut down. Look at the scourges all over our land and country. Earthquakes, storms, pestilence and famine; but we have the promise, if faithful, to be spared. What a glorious promise! I fell to thank God every day for the privilege of hearing the blessed gospel; like many others, the first Latter Day Saint I heard preach I said, Oh, they are Mormons. I was so prejudiced I would not listen until my father laid hold upon the rod of iron, and my mother, who had been a Methodist for some thirty-five years requested baptism. I was bound to admit then that there was something in it, after all; and laying aside prejudice, I began to investigate; and the consequence was when the day appointed for my mother to be baptized arrived, I was ready, too. And though we have been called Mormons, derided, and evil spoken of, I can truly say I have never once regretted the step. I am comforted when I think of the Scripture which says: "Blessed are ye when man shall revile you and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my name's sake." I love to read the letters in the Mothers' Home Column, and hear what the sisters are doing, and especially those in Texas, for this is a broad field and but few laborers. It seems that this is not a very inviting field for most elders, but Bro. Roberts is not daunted at all, and is putting in his time with good results. I think he is a noble saint. We are expecting him home in a few days.

Your sister in Christ,

A. H.

Correspondence.

STAUNTON, Ills., March 30th.

Bro. Blair:—My first conversion with the latter day work took place in the winter of 1862, at which time I was a bitter enemy to the Latter Day Saints. My mind was first attracted by reading the 13th of first Corinthians: "Charity never faileth, but whether there be prophecies they shall fail; whether there be tongues they shall cease; whether there be knowledge it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophesy in part, but when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away. For now we see through a glass darkly, but then face to face. Now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known."

I desired to know the full meaning of the above passage of scripture; it was the first thing on my mind in the morning, and the last at night. This continued for about two or three weeks, when all at once every mist of darkness was cleared away from me. This caused my soul to thrill with exceeding great joy in the work of inspiration. I was at this time a member of the Christian Church. The question was now asked, which of all the churches is right? When the day came so that my faith was strong enough to go before the Lord, I did not ask which of the churches was right; but the true and living way that leadeth to eternal life. I asked the Father in the name of his Son Jesus Christ. The Spirit of the Lord came upon me in mighty power, testifying to me that Joseph Smith was a prophet of the Lord, and that the Book of Mormon is the word of God. This filled my soul with such exceeding great joy that I shouted out aloud in praises to God and the Lamb.

However my faith may have been tried in the past, my testimony in regards to Bro. Joseph Smith being a prophet of the Lord, and the Book of Mormon being the word of God, has always been the same, and is to-day; for which I feel to say, Bless the Lord, O my soul, for the great love wherewith God hath loved me. Shortly after receiving the above revelation, I was baptized and confirmed; but I experienced no change, spiritually speaking, after baptism. In the following spring we emigrated for Utah; after reaching Florence, Nebraska, I stayed in the camp about a week; by this time I became disgusted with the ways and manners of my brethren, the Brighamites. I did not know of any other Latter Day Saints in the world but these, for they kept me in the dark in regard to other Latter Day Saints, and a Book of Mormon could not be had. The Lord blessed me often in secret prayer.

In going to Florence from the camp, I hardly knew what to do; but the first store I stepped into, a new feeling came over me, and I felt so happy I could not tell why; but presently the man of the store came to me, as though he was led by the Spirit, saying to me, "Well, dear sir, did you come on the emigration train?" I told him I did. He inquired then if I was going to Salt Lake. I told him I did not know. He advised me not to go, telling me that he was the only true Latter Day Saint in town, and many other good things in regard to the latter day work, inviting me very kindly to come and stay with him a week or so, and read the Bible, Book of Mormon, and take the word of God for my guide, giving me his name, George Medlock.

I accepted the kind invitation, and in about three days after, Bro. Medlock had the pleasure of baptizing me. I can not tell how happy I felt after I was baptized; but one thing I do know, my soul was filled with Heavenly love towards all men. These were days long to be remembered. Bro. Medlock, and Bro. George Hatt and their families, and the saints, were very good and kind to me.

My testimony in regards to Bro. Joseph being the anointed of the Lord, October 29th, 1876, on the Lord's day, in going out where prayer was wont to be made, about four miles from Austin, Texas, a place where I thought no one would hear me, I commenced calling upon the Lord. While I was praying, I asked the Lord to bless Bro. Joseph, the anointed of the Lord. At this moment I was so overcome with the Spirit of God, I could not pray out. This was done twice in succession. On the following day, at the rising of the sun, the Spirit of the Lord came upon me again, and remained with me, in power all that day till the sun set, testifying to me in regard to Bro. Joseph being the anointed of the Lord. I never passed such a Heavenly day on the earth before. In writing of the above outpouring of the Holy Spirit, my heart is still filled with joy and comfort in the Holy Ghost. The very thought by times produces the same effect.

It is several years since I have been able to visit the St. Louis conference. The real cause is, a little over four years ago, I was prompted by the Spirit in regards to some things; but I neglected to do as I was commanded, and for about twelve days I was apparently delivered over to the buffetings of Satan, and for about three years after this, I had one stream of trials, one after the other to pass through; and had it not been for the grace of God to help me at times, I should have gone down to perdition. The above grieving of the Holy Spirit, I have repented of many times. I never passed through fiery trials, till I had to encounter with the above. Surely the saints will not blame me for making this frank acknowledgement, for I am only doing as I am lead to do, and notwithstanding I have had to pass through these many trials, the Lord has blessed me with very many rich and glorious blessings, for which I feel to thank and praise his great and holy name. I have never felt better, spiritually speaking, than I have for several months back, and I feel better now in the latter day work, than I ever felt before, thank the Lord. I desire an interest in the faith and prayers of the saints.

Your brother in the one faith,

JAMES HOUSTON.

SILVER CITY, New Mexico, April 3d.

Bro. Joseph:—You will see that I am quite a long distance west from my home. I came here January 29th. I do not intend to remain long in this place. This is quite a warm climate, and very dry, as it seldom rains here. Cattle raising and silver mining are the principal industries here; the former seems to be the most remunerative. There are about 2,500 inhabitants here at present, whilst four years ago they had about 4,000, which shows that this city with its mining interests is on the decline. There are three churches: the Catholic, Methodist and Presbyterian. I have not found any Latter Day Saints here, but I would be much pleased to meet with some of our brethren. I am termed a full-blooded Mormon here, already. I take it as a good advertisement, and that I should honor the name by preaching the fulness of the gospel to all who are willing to listen.

There are many evidences remaining all around this city that show that the Lamanites had extensive works of industry, in which they manufactured earthenware, which was finished equal to similar earthenware of this day; they also had extensive stone works, of which many remaining pieces evidences the use of the chisel to hew and smoothing intruments to dress the stone and cut it in many shapes for which it was intended. Methinks they had times of peace and quiet when they were engaged in this industry, and that the mountains then abounded with all kinds of game, on which they could subsist and feel at home.

But alas, their surroundings has been changed to their great sorrow and grief. The white man pushed his way in amongst them as a trader of merchandise first, and afterwards as a hunter after their game on which they principally lived. As the white man poured in hunting for silver and gold, they ate up and destroyed the game. Then the cattlemen came in and took possession of their best pastures and watering places, which are scarce in this country, and because the poor Indian indicated his disapproval of these things, he was at once considered hostile, and the Government was called upon to send her troops out to put down the hostile Indians. The call is complied with, and troops are sent forth to guard the Indians, who are now considered hostile, when in fact they are only trying to take care of their own interests; and the more they try the more desperate the white man gets, and demands the Government to move the Indians. The Indians are moved or drove further back by the force of arms. His happy home is now broken up; he is robbed and insulted; and feels it keenly. He has no power at command to get redress for the wrongs committed against him, and so he suffers and wanders to and fro as if he was not a part of the human family, and as if he was to be starved and murdered by the people of this nation, whom the mighty Jehovah, the God of Jacob, permitted to come from the lands of other nations to this most choice land, and has blessed them with great liberty, and with the abundance of the good things of this land, and yet they are not willing for the poor Indian to hold his possessions and to enjoy his liberty and peace as in bygone ages. Methinks if their father Lehi, and their noble young brother Nephi, who led them out of the land of Jerusalem into this land, and whose blessing was left on the land for the Gentiles when the time came that God would bring them unto this land; if they now know and behold the works and doings of the Gentiles, would they not speedily seek to turn their blessing into a curse, because of their ungratefulness, after having received such choice blessings which were prepared for them to enjoy in common with the Indians or Lamanites; but instead of enjoying with the Lamanites they stand ready to destroy them and capture what little remains.

Who is there now that is ready to stand up and plead the cause of the poor Lamanites, and hold in check those who stand ready to destroy them? And again, who is there amongst all the household of faith who is willing to put on all the armour of righteousness, and who is willing to be sent forth amongst and to preach the fulness of the gospel to them, and to bring them back to a knowledge of the covenants which God made to their forefathers? May God bless such.

Your brother in Christ,

JOHN BEAIRD.

FARWELL, Mich., April 7th.

Dear Herald:—Realizing the great and solemn work that we as Saints of the Most High have entered into, and the shortness of time to accomplish that work, before we shall have to stand before our Judge and give an account of our stewardship, with this thought in view I am prompted to pen a few lines for your pages, which are full of comfort and consolation to the afflicted and careworn soul. My husband and myself are the only Saints in this vicinity that we know of. We are feeling very lonely here without the Saints we left in Bay City; but we are striving to strengthen and build one another up in the faith of Jesus, and live our religion before the world. We feel that we have been called here for some good purpose—for what we do not know; but we are striving to live so before God that he will make us the humble instruments in his hands of bringing some precious souls to the light and knowledge of the glorious gospel; for He often uses the weak and foolish things to confound the mighty. We ask your prayers, that God would bestow upon us his Spirit, and that he may give us wisdom to be the means of convincing this people of the truth of the gospel. As we have been here but a few weeks, and are not acquainted much with the people, we can not tell so well; but think that if an elder could come in here and preach, some honest ones would be gathered. The appearance of the people are intelligent and moral; there is but one saloon in Farwell, and they are taking steps to put that one down. There is an old lady, a neighbor of ours, eighty-four years of age, whose father was one of the first pioneers in Kirtland. She said she had heard Sidney Rigdon lecture a good many times. If any of the elders should be passing this way, we would be very glad to have them stop at our home, and they would receive a hearty welcome. Enquire at Farwell station for the John Brown farm, and they will direct you to us. We are not taking the Herald at present, but intend to soon as we are a little better able to, for we feel that we can not do without it. Some kind saints lent us theirs to read in Bay City. We are now reading over our old Heralds that we took some years ago. We have the Inspired Translation, Doctrine and Covenants, and the Life of Joseph the Seer, and we read them and receive great light and comfort and establishment in the truth. I am glad to see in late Heralds a portion devoted to mothers in home training; may God speed them in their glorious mission and labor of love for the rising generation. This is a healthy location; high, rolling land. There is a beautiful stream of water running back of our house. With love for all the Saints, and a desire to see the gospel spread far and wide, I remain your sister in the bonds of the gospel,

M. B.

PETROLIA, Ont., March 30th.

Bro. Joseph:—We are having quite a lively time here with a Methodist divine, by name of D. Pomreoy. Bro. Arthur Leverton and him has had a discussion through the Petrolia Topic, and although he has used the blackest falsehoods to misconstrue the position of the church, it has resulted in doing good, and has showed to the unprejudiced mind the corrupt principle of his nature. And Bro. Arthur's able and lengthy replies has made friends to the cause. The Saints are numerically small here; but are striving to show by their daily walk and conversation that they have been with Jesus and learned of him. It is about five years ago now since I obeyed the truth, and I have never regretted it, and have no desire to draw back; but my determination is to press with vigor on. It is a glorious work; may it roll on, till the stone that was cut out of the mountain without hands fills the whole earth. Desiring an interest in your prayers, I remain yours for truth.

GEORGE C. TOMLINSON.

CLINTON, Mo., April 3d.

Editors Herald:—While reading the testimonies and experiences of others, it makes my heart rejoice, for I have had like experiences and testimonies. I was sometime investigating this work, and finally convinced of the truthfulness of the same, by the manifestation of the gifts, and the Spirit of God. I was baptized some three years since, and have had no cause to regret the step I took; for I was healed at the time of my baptism of catarrh, which had been afflicting me for several years, and for over three years have only been sick but once, so as to call on the elders, and in this instance I was healed. I believe I have one of the best gifts, which is faith, and I am continually praying for wisdom, which I consider a gift greatly to be desired; and I believe if we would ask more for these gifts, we would be better off. When I am away from home, where I can't get the Herald to read, I am almost at a loss to get something to fill its place, as the papers of the world are so filled up with evil.

I am trying to keep all the commandments, and live up to the law of tithing. I am glad to see that prejudice is giving way, and people are beginning to investigate our faith. I believe that if we had pamphlets with our faith and belief for general distribution throughout the country, they would do away with a good deal of prejudice, and bring a good many to a knowledge of the truth. I love the work, and am trying in my weak way to push on the same. I believe God will bless us according to our works, and as far as we can stand prosperity he will bless us in this world's goods. I am willing to be governed by his over-ruling power. I have found him the best Master I could serve, and am still willing to trust him. Ever praying for the advancement of the cause and kingdom, I remain your brother in Christ.

Editor Herald:—We are trying to keep the candle burning that we lighted thirty-nine years ago. Bro. Willard J. Smith gave us a flying visit and one sermon. For the benefit of those who are afraid to join the Latter Day Saints, for fear there would not be room enough in heaven, I send you a clipping that will allay all fears.

Your brother,

DIMENSIONS OF HEAVEN.

"And he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equal."—Rev. 21:16. The Statistician finds:—Twelve thousand furlongs, 7,920,000 feet, which being cubed, 499,793,088,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Half of this we will reserve for the Throne of God and the Court of Heaven, and half the balance for streets, leaving a remainder of 124,193,272,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this by 4096, the cubical feet in a room sixteen feet square, and there will be 30,321,843,750,000,000 rooms. We will now suppose the world always did and always will contain 990,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts for 33½ years, making in all 2,970,000,000 every century, and that the world will stand 100,000 years, or 1,000 centuries, making in all 2,970,000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there were one hundred worlds equal to this in number of inhabitants and duration of years, making a total of 297,000,000,000,000 persons, and there would be more than a hundred rooms sixteen feet square for each person.

OSAKOSH, Wis., April 4th.

Bro. J. Smith:—I will write you a few lines to let you know that the Saints though scattered, are yet alive. I visited Bro. J. M. Wait at Aniwa; while there held four meetings; went up to Antiga, stopped over Sunday with Sister Pickel; could not get a public place to hold a meeting, so had a meeting at her house—only one came in; he will join us in the spring. Sister Pickel is a live Saint; she lets her light shine before all; the sects are afraid of her. I also visited Birnam wood, six miles from Aniwa; preached five times, one young man, the school teacher, seemed very much interested. I think he will investigate for himself to see if the doctrine is true. On my return home I stopped at New London, and went out eight miles, to Royalton and visited brother Cornell's family; while there held four meetings at the school-house; had very good attendance. There are quite a number of Seventh-day Adventists there, some of them attended; our doctrine rather disturbed their soul-sleeping and annihilation theory; they began to look about to see if their foundation was sure. I had very good liberty in presenting the truth; shall try and preach some the coming spring and summer. Bro. Wait is doing what he can to set forth the truth; the field is large here, and no laborers; may God send forth more laborers. When I look at this part of the field I feel that unworthy as I am, I must go and try to warn this people, and it seems at times that the troubles that I have are upon me to drive me in to the field. My prayer is that God may give me strength to do my duty. May heaven's choicest blessings be poured out upon the Saints, and may they all live in that way that they may be worthy to receive them.

Your brother in the covenant,
W. S. MONTGOMERY.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 4th.

Dear Brother:—As I was reading the Herald, and seeing how the work of God is prospering and God blessing his Saints, it makes my heart rejoice. I thought I would send you word how God is blessing his Saints in this part of his vineyard. I was in Boston, Massachusetts, on Sunday the 27th, and I never was in a better meeting in my life, for the Spirit of God was there in power, and several spoke in prophesy, and some of the brethren who had not been at meeting for some time, and were slaves to the tobacco, made strong resolutions to leave it off, and attend to the meetings. My prayer is to God that he will help them to keep their promise. With kind regards to you and all in the office.

THE DAYS ARE NOT ALWAYS CLOUDED.

What tho' the days that come to us are clouded;
What tho' we count the hours in weary pain;
What tho' the night seems somewhat dark and lonely,
And sleep forgets to soothe the throbbing brain?
Are there no blessings round our hearthstone crowding?
Doth fall no loving tones upon our ear?
Are there no treasures 'neath our roof-tree gathered?
And is our pathway always dark and drear?
Oh, thankless heart! We murmur so at crosses,
We fret because some clouds obscure our sky;
We want our path hedged in with blooming roses,
With not a thorn to sting as we pass by.
We crave one round of ease and wealth and pleasure;
We long to wreath our brows with glowing fame,
And nigh forget that dear sweet hands are twining
Home flowers for us, upon love's golden frame.
What tho' those hands are horned by sun and labor,
And some have only learned love's sweet caresses?
They cull no thorns to weave among the garlands
They link together for our silver tresses.
Ah! we forget a Savior's hand is leading Us in the path best fitted for our feet;
And we forget the love to us extending
Is all sufficient when with storms we meet.
For as the sunshine and the pelting shower,
And summer's heat, and winter's storms that rave,
Make the whole year so perfect in completeness,
So should our trials make us strong and brave.
Rise up, O heart! thy burdens may be heavy;
Lie down, thou wilt be crushed, forever lost;
Rise up, thy load will seem to thee much lighter,
And life's extremest summit soon is crossed.
Our duty is our own, and not another's,
And there is work for us 'mid toiling lands;
Good seed to sow, lest we no sheaves to garner,
Go up to meet our Lord with empty hands.
And there are some who with bright days have parted;
Who see no rays of gladness round them shine;
To whom we may speak words of love and comfort,
And cheer them with the light of truth divine.
We may ourselves have long since ceased our singing,
We may have grief we do not care to tell;
And like the Shunamite of old, when questioned,
Our trembling lips have answered, "All is well."
But we will gather healing balm for others,
And so forget the pain God only knows;
The oil we use to heal our wounded brother's
May fall on us, and we find sweet repose.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

EDITORS HERALD:—As we can not admit to the Home Column, articles from the brethren, will you kindly give this a place in your columns, and we earnestly trust your readers will find a place for it in their hearts.—M. W.

[For the Mothers' Home Column]

As I am very much interested in whatever tends to make better mothers (in whom all real reforms must have their beginning), and that being the design of the Home Column, I have read with more than ordinary interest the good advice and instruction given through the Mothers' Column. And I believe it to be a move in the right direction; and this Mothers' Column should become the great educator of the mothers and daughters of Latter Day Israel, and not simply a place for correspondence. Every writer should endeavor to educate their readers to a higher plane, as it is of the utmost importance to us, as the Church of Jesus Christ, that should be, and is, the light of the whole world, if we live up to our calling. And we should let our light begin to shine out through the mothers in the church to the world, as a beacon light in these perilous times; and mothers and daughters should be educated up to the highest standard of motherhood and womanhood, and in the great designs of their creation; that they may become queens in the kingdom of our God and his Christ, which is their privilege as the daughters of God, if they do not forfeit their adoption.

And, because I am deeply interested in this subject, I ask for a place in your columns for a few thoughts, and I ask the dear, good mothers and daughters to carefully read, and carefully consider as they read, this subject. It is an admitted fact by all writers and thinkers, that the family and the home circle is the great reservoir and character-former for nations, states, churches, and future generations; and it is further admitted by these same writers and thinkers, that mothers, being so inseparably connected with the family and the home circle, are the factors right there in the home, that bounds and forms the characters of nations, states, churches, and rising generations. In fact, the family and home circle are all of these in miniature, morally, mentally, and physically. Now these are logical, indisputable, and admitted facts; and reason, common sense and philosophy say, in thundering tones, to the nations, states, churches, and future generations, keep your mothers pure, and give them the best and highest character that can be obtained, morally, mentally and physically; keep the great fountain-head, the reservoir, pure and holy in character, and the whole stream will run clear to its very mouth. It may at times become impure, and a little muddy in places, but this is only an evidence of the perturbed conditions of the great fountain-head, the mothers, the homes, the family circles; and wisdom would dictate the purifying of the fountain-head, and the stream of nations, states, churches, and future generations will soon run pure and holy.

And right here let me give a timely and prophetic warning to all nations, kindreds, churches and people, See to it that you keep your mothers and the home circle pure and holy, or prepare yourselves to say farewell to national, state, and church government, as it is only a matter of time when disintegration and self-destruction are inevitable. The apostle looked forward with a prophetic eye and saw the effects of a terrible falling away in the character of mothers, families, and the home circles. In 2 Tim. 3: 1-4, the "perilous times" there described never could have obtained if parents, but more especially mothers and the home, were kept pure and holy, and controlled by natural affections. Would children become unnaturally "disobedient to parents, unthankful [and] without natural affections," if parents had retained natural affections for each other and their children? Could these terrible characteristics of the present day have obtained? I answer no; most emphatically no. Reform, reform; is the cry of nations, states and churches, and will be the cry of future generations until reform commences at the great fountain-head, the mothers, the family, the home circles. There are many inventions of men and women brought to bear to accomplish a reform; but all to no avail, for these unnatural conditions are largely on the increase, and are indubitable evidence of a muddy fountain-head. Think of it, and see to it, you fathers and mothers of Latter Day Israel, who expect to become kings and queens in the kingdom of our God and his Christ; are you spending your time, money and talents in following the pernicious habits and fashions of ruming, smoking, chewing, pleating, frilling, puffing, chuffing, powdering, banging and snuffing, or any other unnatural or unlawful use of your money, time and talent; if so, see to it that you commence to reform one person right there and then when you read this warning; and step up on a higher plane, and by example first, and then by precept, endeavor to reform, and bring up your families in the fear and admonition of the Lord.

Again I say, think of it, you dear good mothers and unthinking fathers, who love your dear children so well, should not your time, talents and money, be spent in reforming yourselves first, and then reaching out and helping others. Could one of you, having the pure love of God in your souls, think of enjoying the kingdom of God, who have never sacrifice one rum, one smoke, one chew, one pleat, one frill, one puff, one ruffle, one powder, one bang, one snuff, or any other unlawful way, habit or custom that is of no manner of use to you. Again I say, have you ever sacrificed any of these things upon the real altar of reform. Do you not realize that the great sacrifice upon Calvary's Cross was made in the interests of reform. Can you expect to enjoy the privileges, powers, dominions, and blessings of the kingdom of God without sacrifice? And can others make sacrifices for you? No they can not.

This subject will be continued at some future time.

TYPE OF HOLY BAPTISM.—No. 5.

THE POOL OF BETHESDA.

A TYPE OF WATER BAPTISM.

"FOR an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water; whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in, was made whole of whatsoever disease he had."—John 5:4.

As in gold mines, one skilful in what relates to them could not endure to overlook even the smallest vein, as producing much wealth, so in Holy Scriptures it is impossible without loss to pass by "one jot or tittle." We must search into all. For they are all "written for our instruction," that we may search out the ways, and will of God, and do them." "And nothing useless is written in them." "These things were not written carelessly, or without a purpose, but as by a figure and type, they show in outline things to come." It is in the same spirit we would desire to examine the same miracle, searching in it for another type of the healing power of water baptism. Nor is it unreasonable that we should expect to find the clearest indications of the sacrament of Christ in a miracle wrought even in the time of our blessed Lord. If the great realities of the gospel had burst upon men all at once, they might not have been able to bear them. Their faith might have been staggered by the unexpected revelation of "the wondrous things of God's law;" and hence in mercy God prepared the way for the realities, by types and figures, the meaning of which they would afterwards understand. But as these realities drew nigh, it was natural that the types should be more luminous and significant; and that as guards (to use an illustration) near the person of the prince, are more splendid than those afar off, so should it also be with the types; that as the fulness of time approached, the typical foreshowings of Christ and his kingdom should be more pregnant with instruction.

A baptism was about to be given, possessing much power and a mighty gift; a baptism purging all sins, and making men alive from the dead. (See Col. 2: 12). It would be strange, therefore, if the tokens of this were not richer in meaning as the day approached when the Sun of righteousness arose with healing in His wings. (See Mal. 4: 2).

With still greater confidence, too, do we look in the pool of Bethesda for a type of Divine baptism, because it was ever so regarded in the early days of the Christian church. The very name the primitive Christians gave to their baptisms was the same as the word translated "pool," both here and in John 9: 7. So natural was it to them to consider "the pool of Bethesda," and "the pool of Siloam," as types of holy baptism, that they found no fitter appellation for the place where it was wont to be administered. In the first place, then, the name of the pool arrests our attention. The names of the principal places in the gospel seem to shadow forth great truths in Christ's history. Let us for a moment glance at these places. Christ was born at Bethlehem. The bread of life was given to the world at Bethlehem, (the house of bread). The Man whose name is Nester, (the branch), grew up at Nazareth, (whose name, derived from its branching shrubs and trees, may have shadowed forth this circumstance in his life). He chose his apostles, who were to be "fishers of men," from Bethsaida (the house of fishing). He dwelt at Capernaum (the town of consolation). He healed the impotent man at Bethesda, (the house of mercy). Bethany, (the place or house of palms), speaks of the palms and hosannas of his triumphal entry into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday, and of the victory and triumphal glory of his ascension. In Bethpage (the house of figs) we see a momento of the warning that he gave to Jerusalem and the world by the withering of the barren fig tree. And now Gethsemane (the press of oil) is witness of the agony in which it "pleased God to bruise him" for our sakes, that oil might flow from his wounds to heal our souls. At Golgotha he rolled away our shame, and on the Mount of Olives Christ went up to heaven, whence he holds forth the olive branch of peace between God and man. And the fact that occasionally interpretations are given by the evangelists, makes us look for some hidden teaching in a name. Not without reason, therefore, was this pool here (where the water healed the diseases of those who washed in it) called Bethesda, whether we take it as a "house of mercy" or "house of washing." For thus the very name seems to call our attention to that "washing of regeneration" (see Titus 3: 5), whereby God, according to his mercy, saves us, to the answering of a good conscience towards God, by the resurrection of Jesus Christ. (1 Peter 3: 20, 21).

In John 5: 2, it reads:—"Now there is at Jerusalem, by the sheep market, a pool which is called in the Hebrew tongue, Bethesda, having five porches." Wherever they read of the number five, it turned their thoughts to the five books of the law; so the five porches represent the people of the Jews shut up in the five books of Moses. These books but disclose the ailing, not healed them; the law convicted sinners, "not absolved them." Therefore the letter brought men in guilty, "whom on obedience grace delivered." For thus saith the Apostle. "If there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteousness should have been by the law. But the Scripture hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe." (Gal. 3: 21, 22). The porches served to display the "wounds and bruises, and putrifying sores" (Isa. 1:

6.) of the sufferers, but they could not cure them. This could only be effected by the pool situated by the gate; which typifies the church, wherein the waters of baptism, with the godly sorrow of repentance, and firmness of our faith in Christ Jesus to obey his holy commandments, cures all sorts of diseases, and they are healed and are saved if so be they abide in the truth. Water here, therefore, as in so many other places of Holy Scripture, is made instrumental for healing, yet it must be remarked that it is not water simply, but "water endowed with power from above, which healed." For an angel (we read) went down at a certain season into the pool and troubled the water." (John 5: 4). In all probability the angel was invisible to mortal eye, and men only became aware of his approach by the perturbation of the water. Yet though not visible, the ministry of the angel was not the less real.

The Bible contains the revelations of God, and here of his mercy and love he reveals again in these the last days to his obedient children, his mind and will concerning them, thus making known unto mankind that he is a God that changeth not, but unto those that do his holy will, them God heareth. (See John 9: 31). He draws back the veil from his word, and sheweth them spiritual things; God to the eye of faith shows the "angel of the waters" (Rev. 21: 4-6) doing "wondrously," (Judges 13: 19), and communicating life and salvation to him who enters within the door of baptism for the remission of sins. When the Holy Ghost moves the water, then it becomes a laver of regeneration.

This angel announced the descent of the Holy Ghost, which consecrates the waters. Sacraments are "heavenly ceremonies which God has sanctified, and ordained to be administered, "in his church, first, as marks whereby to know when God doth impart the vital, or saving grace of Christ unto all that are worthy thereof; and secondly, as means conditional, which God requireth in them to whom he imparteth grace. For, since God in himself is invisible, and can not by us be discerned working; therefore, when it seemeth good in the eyes of his heavenly wisdom, that man, for some special intent and purpose should take notice of his glorious presence, he giveth them some plain and sensible token whereby to know what they can not see. For Moses to see the whole glory of God and live, was impossible; yet Moses knew by the burning bush where the glory of God was present, when the Lord spake from the bush. (Ex. 3: 4). So the angel by whom God endued the waters of the pool of Bethesda with virtue to heal, was not seen of any; yet the time of the angel's presence was known by the troubled motion of the waters themselves. The apostles by "fiery tongues" were admonished when the Spirit, which they could not behold, was upon them. (Acts 2: 3, 4). As God is no respecter of persons, and saith "that whosoever doeth the will of God, he will baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire," then why men should think it strange when we declare that God hath, through Jesus Christ, poured out upon us this same blessed gift, through our obedience to his holy gospel, restored in these the last days. In like manner it is with us. Christ and his Holy Spirit, with all its blessed effects, though entering into the soul of man in a manner we are not able to express or apprehend, do, notwithstanding, give notice of the time they make their entrance, because it pleased God to communicate by sensible means those blessings which are incomprehensible.

These signs shall follow the believer only? No; but was for those who believed and were baptized. (See Mark 17: 16, 17; also Acts 2: 38-41). With these words of Christ and his apostles in the pages of holy writ before our eyes, we stand condemned in the sight of God through non-obedience to them. (See 1 John 2: 3-5). Next mark the greatness of the power of healing. "Whosoever then first, after the troubling of the water stepped in, was made whole of whatsoever disease he had." There was no disease so grievous as not to be cured in this "pool of mercy;" and this may be well taken to signify that there is no sin which baptism does not wash away, if we but come unto God in his own appointed way. (See Acts 22: 16; also Acts 17: 33, 34).

This type of baptism, then, being nearer to the truth of the things typified, set forth a greater manifestation of might; and yet, in comparison with the reality it was sadly stunted. The baptismal waters in the Church of Christ heal at all times and all seasons. The angel "went down and troubled the pool" and one was healed; but now, the Lord of heaven and earth having gone down into the river Jordan as an example unto the whole world to do likewise, has, unto such that obey, sanctified the elements of water, to the washing away of all sins. For no man can "fulfill all righteousness" without obedience to God's commandments. (See Matt. 3: 15). At Bethesda he who descended first was healed; but by the grace of Jesus Christ, who hath called us out of darkness into the glorious light and liberty of his holy gospel unto obedience, it is made known unto us that not only one, or ten, or twenty, or hundreds, thousands, or tens of thousands, but the whole world can receive the knowledge that all their sins are remitted, or washed away, and they are cleansed through the operation of the Spirit of God by their obedience. The laver of regeneration never faileth when the name of God is duly invoked upon the waters; at all times and in all places, they cure all persons of all spiritual diseases, whatever they may have, as it was on the day of Pentecost. (Acts 2: 41).

But what shall we suppose to be the reason one only was cured; now all; or rather, only the one people in Christ Jesus. It might seem little in itself that he who possessed all power in heaven and in earth should cure one only in a multitude; but the Almighty chose but one as the recipient of his gift. So is "the church of God one," throughout the world; unity is salvation. Depart not, then, from unity, if thou wouldst not be without the saving cure. There is one body, and one Spirit, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all. (Eph. 4: 3-6). "And whosoever departs from this unity can not obtain the salvation which is of one. "Whosoever, then, first after the troubling of the waters stepped in, was made whole." The lesson we seem to be taught here is an important one; that even in the reception of the divine gifts which are bestowed upon us without any merit on our parts, "diligence is of much avail." "Grace is given to them that seek and strive after it, and use the appointed means of grace." They which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain." (1 Cor. 9: 24). Cleanse thy vessel, that thou mayest receive the gift more abundantly; for remission of sins is given equally to all, but the communication of the Holy Ghost, is bestowed according to each man's faith. If thou hast labored little, thou shalt receive little; but if thou hast wrought much, "ample the hire." And herein, also do we learn the Spirit with which we are to draw near to the fountain of cleansing. "Exalt not thyself." If thou wilt be cured, go down; he that first "stepped down" was healed; therefore is no cure without humility. (See 1 John 1: 1, 7).

But now let us turn to the sick man whom the Lord singled out of the crowd. "And a certain man was there which had an infirmity thirty and eight years." Why is the time of his infirmity noted? First, doubtless, to magnify the miracle, which would appear greater in proportion to the deep-seated nature of the ailment to be overcome. Thus, as the power of Christ was shown forth specially in the cure of the woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years. (See Luke 13: 11). In that of the woman having an issue of blood twelve years. (See Luke 8: 43). In the raising of Lazarus when he had already been four days dead. So here all these things doubtless tended to show forth the miraculous power of our great physician, who could overcome so inveterate a disorder. But perhaps we may consider that the number thirty-eight was not mentioned without another reason. Thirty and eight years was the time of the affliction of the children of Israel in the wilderness, (Deut. 2: 14); and we may see in this man, who had been undergoing chastisement for the same number of years, a type of Israel after the flesh. Whoso cometh in humility to the fountain opened to the house of David "and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem," for sin and for uncleanness, should receive remission of sins, and be made whole of whatsoever disease they had. "When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole? The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool."—John 5: 7.

From out of the depths of misery this poor sufferer spake a great truth. He wanted a man to help, but there was no man to afford relief. For "the Lord God revealed his secrets unto his servants the prophets." (Amos 3: 7). Till the advent of the Mediator between God and man, human nature lay helpless, like this impotent one, pent up in the porches of the law, till He came, baptized into whose body we attain salvation and sure cure. Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and set up "my standard to the people; and they shall bring thy sons in their arms, and thy daughters shall be carried upon their shoulders."—Isa. 49: 22. If the little children (Mark 10: 13) had not had friends to bring them to Jesus they would have lost the inestimable privilege of his heavenly blessing. He takes them up in his arms and blesses them; not that they had any sin to be repented of, for little children are without sin, being made whole from the beginning; and of such is the kingdom of heaven. And "their angels behold my Father's face which art in heaven." And so by blessing and bestowing upon them the power of the Holy Ghost, they may be able to withstand the tempter of their souls in the day when he shall tempt them, and endeavor to draw them away from the path of God.

In verses eight and nine Jesus saith unto the man, "Rise, take up thy bed and walk. And immediately the man was made whole." He was the true healer; and this was he who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost, and he will visit all who obey him, and keep his commandments. And where there is a hearty desire to receive them they can be had. But it is the height of folly to expect to know the truth while we neglect the way of Christ's own appointing, and wilfully deny his doctrine, for such to expect to be saved out of due time, and who are continually looking for a miraculous interposition of providence in their behalf. Though God is not tied to sacraments, we are. For God requires all men to come unto him, "and whosoever cometh," he saith, "I will in no wise cast out." (See Matt. 12: 47-50). Again, in Mark 2: 9 we read of Jesus saying unto the sick of the palsy, "Arise, take up thy bed, and walk." He gained the blessing and healing through their determination to overcome every thing that stood in their way, having exceeding great faith to accomplish the task they had undertaken, and having full confidence in the Lord Jesus, that he would heal and make him whole. (See verses 3 and 5). May we not see an injunction to the performance of good works after baptism, where we are "created in Christ Jesus unto good works," (See Eph. 2: 10). Wheresoever he pardons sin, he also makes the soul able and nimble to "run in the way of his commandments." "Take up thy bed" signifies, "Love your neighbor," "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." But this is not all; love to our neighbor must not be without love to God. Hence in loving our neighbor we must be having a view to God's commands, walking heavenward—"Carry him, therefore, with whom ye walk, that you may come to Him with whom ye desire to remain." (See 1 John 2: 2-5. "By looking for the blessed hope and appearing in glory of our Lord Jesus Christ, leave your old sins; and in all that you do, see that you fix not your thoughts on the world, but hasten to behold the face of your Redeemer."

The place where Jesus found the impotent man "was the temple," (John 5: 14), and the place where the baptized should often be also. It can not be doubted that he hastened thither to pour forth his gratitude and praise. Not into the public haunts of luxury and ease, went the restored man, but to the temple; though about to endure a violent attack from the enemies of Jesus, nothing would keep him from the house of prayer, the place of sacrifice. There Jesus found him, there he gained strength to confess Christ before men. "The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jesus, which had made him whole." (Verse 15). So with the baptized into Jesus Christ, in the temple must they seek him. There will they find him. There will he find them. There will they gain strength to fulfil their baptismal covenant, and not to be ashamed to confess the faith of Christ crucified, but manfully to fight against sin, the world, and the devil, and continue Christ's faithful servants unto their lives' end.

To "continue." For we must conclude this miracle with the solemn typical warning the words our Lord gave to those who have once been made whole: "Behold thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee." Thirty and eight years had the malady lasted. The ruthless might of the disease had withered up his limbs, and hope deferred had made his heart sick. Year after year had he crept to the porches of the pool to wait the coming of the angel, and as often, in bitter disappointment had he seen another step down before him. What could be worse than this? Thirty and eight years of a wretched life, unfriended, powerless in body, and sick in soul. And yet our Lord speaks of some "worse thing." What an awful idea does this convey to us of the terrible punishment which sin draws on its victims? What a solemn warning to beware of sin after baptism of the water and of the gift of the Holy Ghost, the baptism of fire, the gift of God to all that will obey him, and keep his holy commandments. What a call to watchfulness and constant prayer, and holiness of life and conversation, when once we have had "our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water." But if we hold "not fast the profession of our faith without wavering;" if we neglect the performance of good works; if "we forsake the assembling of ourselves together;" if we "sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth;" what can we expect? "Alas," says the apostle, "there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation." "He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses. Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite to the Spirit of the living God and his begotten Son, Jesus Christ."

I pray that God will give to the readers of these few lines grace to understand the necessity of obedience unto the plan of life and salvation, which God in his love and tender mercy hath again sent unto mankind upon the earth in these the last days, the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is the power of God unto salvation to all that will believe and obey it. We cry as did one of old, "Arise and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." And so be prepared in holy separation from the world, with our bodies filled with light, be looking, watching and waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ in the clouds of heaven. So by thus looking we may go on day by day, purifying ourselves against the day that he, the perfect one, shall come, that we may be found worthy of entering into His rest.

SIMONY, OR CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

BROTHER M. T. SHORT, of Millersburgh, Illinois, goes for the Christian Science people in the following forceful manner, in the Aledo, Illinois, Democrat, for the 11th of March, a copy of which he has kindly sent us:

I am credibly informed that it is the design and intention of some party or parties, styling themselves "Christian Science Healers," to give a dozen lessons, in Aledo, beginning next week, upon the above named topic, for the simple sum of $100 per scholar.

Barnum's humbugging for one dollar per head, in worldly matters, is thrown sadly in the lurch by these portentous frauds, vagabond exorcists, systematic blasphemous robbers, wily knaves, unsuspecting spiritual parasites, and general self-righteous egotistical deadbeats. Simon Magus, of olden time, bewitched the people for a great while, and thereby secured both gain and veneration; but when he sought to purchase the gift and power of God he was officially declared to be in the "gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity."

You common sense people let me advise you, as a firm, undaunted friend, to keep your money, and live devoted lives for spiritual blessings, prestige and power. Naaman, the Assyrian leper, proffered Elisha rich rewards for a wonderful interposition of Providence, but the man of God answered nay, verily; whereas Gehazi, his servant sought and obtained some of the proffered aid, and with the ill-gotten gain the leprosy fastened on the guilty wretch. Daniel refused the chain of gold saying to Belshazzar, "Let thy gifts be to thyself, and give thy rewards to another," but this is not at all akin to the policy of the associates of Mary Barker Glover Eddy, of Boston, who is the hub, heart, soul and divinity of the entire concern. If selling doves in a temple would bring down the curse of Jesus Christ, what about "merchandise" of "slaves and souls of men," professedly in the name and by the authority of the lowly Nazarene, that had not where to lay his head—For detailed blessings, all of and elementary, temporal and physical character, as also curses of an offended God (see Deuteronomy 2: 8, and Leviticus 26.) The conditions are set forth that will bring the plague, famine, ague, mildew and premature death, as well as the happy converse in all the walks of life.

In 1st Corinthians, 12: 9, the gifts of healing" are a factor among a constellation of "spiritual gifts," and amid other "signs," our Savior said the obedient believer "shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." The inspired apostle James catches up the glad refrain and echoes forth as follows, viz:—"Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick; and the Lord will raise them up, and if they have committed sin it shall be forgiven them."

You see I have given you the key to the healing art as intended by our Heavenly Parent, and that too without money and without price. Wine, milk, honey and salvation, are free as the tireless winds, or the gentle sunbeams. Gross and all the like stripe to the contrary. Avoid all such pusillanimous villainy, as you would shun an oriental plague, the simoon of the desert, or the deadly Upas. If you have faith, knowledge and piety to be healed, and it is God's will to bestow this particular blessing when you honor and magnify the gospel law, all right. All, of even the faithful, were not healed, in the good old days of accredited miracles; but, for all of that grace was forthcoming till life's latest breath. "The Jews require a sign," and "except ye see signs and wonders ye will not believe," said the long-suffering Messiah to that untoward age, and so say I to many of our day.

Will you follow Christ for the loaves and fishes, or will you bear the cross and despise the shame, and say in sunshine and shadow, in prosperity and adversity, in pain, disgrace, poverty, and death, "Thy will be done." Let us be patient, resigned and devoted; when chastened, refined and purified, if need be in the very crucible of affliction and suffering, nor think to thwart the firm and fixed purposes of the Almighty by applying to the black arts of modern charlatans.

I have written the above in the interest of humanity at large and my friends and neighbors in particular. Should these delectable "healers" wish to arraign me before the courts for damaging their "craft," I will be easily found. In both a human and divine sense I am my brother's keeper. Hence let me say make haste to go slow and look well where you are to alight ere you give the fatal leap. And now let me exhort these fine fed, sleek swindlers to cease the unhallowed traffic of perverting the ways of the Lord, and making merchandise of the gospel pearls of great price. With well defined charity, unbounded pity, and a painful sense of my own weakness, I remain an uncompromising enemy of darkness, a lover of all mankind and a worshiper of the Supreme Being.

DRIVE THEM OUT.

BRO. JAMES CAFFALL sends us a copy of the Hay Springs, Nebraska, Alert, for March 25th, in which he replies to some over zealous religionist, in the following vigorous fashion:

During the forty-eight days of my sojourn in Hay Springs and vicinity, in the prosecution of my ministerial labor, which I thought I could do without interfering with or spoiling the coveted equanimity of the orthodox portion of your community, or unnecessarily arousing the ire of those choosing to be skeptical, nor is there to my knowledge any such results growing out of my labors, attendant upon the delivery of forty-two discourses at different points, illustrative of the religious faith and practices of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, save in one instance as on-dit. I heard of one Mr. ——— who was visiting Mrs. ——— when the conversation turned on the Latter Day Saints, (vulgarly called Mormons), the gentleman said they ought to be driven out. I need not pause to enquire as to his proclivities, but it is fair to presume that he is a religionist, for past history shows that religionists have prosecuted religionists.

Drive them out, might have met with a ready response ere the news of Luther's protestation against the usurpation of the Pope had sped its way to earth's remotest bounds. But in the light and guarantee of liberty of the 19th century the sound savors too strongly of mobocracy, with little or no conception of the supremacy of the law, and would be as inimical to good morals, law and order, as an infringement upon known or recognized laws by religious fanatics.

My observations during my brief sojourn reveals to my mind the fact of a preponderating liberal element, though with varied proclivities. There is therefore, no apprehension that human rights will be jeopardized by a few narrow minded bigots.

And I would respectfully inform the gentleman, as also the balance of your readers, that the few Latter Day Saints at or near Hay Springs, are hard fisted sons of toil availing themselves of the liberal provisions of the government, to secure themselves homes amid the romantic hills and fertile valleys in the beautiful Sheridan and Dawes counties of Nebraska.

Furthermore, our church discipline is as explicit in imposing loyalty on its members to Constitutional laws as any ever obtained. And should the gentleman ever know of overt acts being perpetrated by Latter Day Saints, and will take a legitimate course for their arrest and punishment, he will exhibit sound manliness, prove a benefactor to the people who would suffer by the overt act, and the Church of Latter Day Saints would applaud the act and admire his good sense and loyalty.

But perhaps, Mr. Editor, we, in consideration of the low estimate had of our intellectuality ought to be apologetic for assuming to even offer suggestions amid the glare of modern orthodoxy, which has become so famous by being dangled on the knees of kings and queens. But having exceeded my limits I will consider about the apology business on my return, and if further information is desired I may be addressed 137 Benton street, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Respectfully,

JAS. CAFFALL.

NEWS FROM PALESTINE.

EXTRACTS from a letter written by Mrs. Abigail Alley, at Jaffa, Palestine, to Mrs. S. M. Norton. Mrs. Alley went to Palestine with the colony that sailed from Jonesport, Maine, in the year 1866. She says: The changes that have taken place since she first went there are truly wonderful, and no one can help seeing in them a beginning of the work of restitution in literal fulfillment of prophecy. She further states: "When I came here the doctors said I could not live two years; but by the goodness of God I have lived twenty years and am still enjoying the best of health. This is indeed a heavenly country, now it is being restored to its former beauty and fertility. While I am writing the rain is pouring down so hard that it looks like smoke in the air, which is what is needed to make the grain grow, large fields of which you can see as far as the eye can reach. Now we shall have a good harvest, thanks be to God who gives us all things needful. I wish you could be here to enjoy with us the continual summer that we have; there is no cold winter to freeze the marrow in your bones; it does not become cold enough to stop the grass and flowers from growing. On one side of the house that we live in is a large vine filled with red flowers, of which I send you one; and in front are three large trees filled with sweet smelling white flowers; and then the orange groves all around us that fill the air with perfume. You have only to open the window and the house is filled with the most delicious odor; and the view is most beautiful. I was invited out to a picnic a short time ago in one of their gardens. It was filled with pomegranates, figs, date and palm trees, apples, peaches, oranges, apricots, quince, cherries, and last but not least, grape vines. The people here are very kind, and always treat me with great respect. The houses are being built here very fast all through the country. They dig down hills and level them off into the valleys for the stones that are in them; the stone is then built into houses; for you must know the houses here are all built of stone. The old colony is being filled with German Jews, and they are gathering here every year to inherit their own land according to prophecy."

THE LOVED AND THE LOST.

The loved and the lost! Why do we call them lost?
Because we miss them from our onward road?
God's unseen angel o'er our pathway crost,
Looked on us all, and loving them the most,
Straightway relieved them of life's weary load.

And this we call a "loss;" oh, selfish sorrow
Of selfish hearts! Oh! we of little faith!
Let us look round, some argument to borrow
Why we in patience should await the morrow
That surely must succeed this night of death.

Ay, look upon this dreary, desert path,
The thorns and thistles wheresoe'er we turn;
What trials and what tears, what wrongs and wrath,
What struggles and what strife the journey hath!
They have escaped from these, and lo! we mourn.

Ask the poor sailor when the wreck is done,
Who with his treasure strove the shore to reach,
While with the raging waves he battled on,
Was it not joy where every joy seemed gone,
To see his loved ones landed on the beach?

A poor wayfarer, leading by the hand
A little child, had halted by the well
To wash from off her feet the clinging sand
And tell the tired boy of that bright land
Where, this long journey past, they longed to dwell;

When lo! the King who many mansions had
Drew near and looked upon the suffering twain,
Then pitying spake: "Give me the little lad;
In strength renewed, and glorious beauty clad,
I'll bring him with me when I come again."

Did she make answer selfishly and wrong—
"Nay, but the woes I feel he too must share!"
Or, rather bursting into joyful song,
Go on her way rejoicing and made strong
To struggle on, since he was freed from care?

We will do likewise; death has made no breach
In love and sympathy, in hope and trust;
If outward sign or sound our ears ne'er reach,
There is an inward spiritual speech
That greets us still, though mortal tongues be dust.

It bids us do the work that they laid down—
Take up the song where they broke off the strain;
So journeying till we reach the Heavenly town,
Where are laid up our treasures and our crown,
And our lost loved ones will be found again.

CHRISTIAN FAITH AMONG THE HINDOOS.

By the kindness of Bro. J. Crossett, lately returned from Peking, China, and now at Hinsdale, Illinois, we are able to give the HERALD readers the following, which will be very interesting. In sending a letter dated March 9th, brother Crossett says:

I believe all the Tartar tribes, like the former Americans, are of the children of Israel. The Mongols and Tibetans have a peculiar interest to me, because of this belief. I hope to go into Tibet (D. V.) some day.

It will surprise you, as it did me, to learn that London is the headquarters of the extensive Moravian missions. Herrnhut in Saxony may be the spiritual centre of the Moravian Church, if it has any, but London has the Moravian publication office, 32 Fetter Lane; the office of its mission, 29 Ely Place, Holborn, (E. C.), and the office of the London Association in the aid of the Moravian mission at the latter address. If you visit London and are at all desirous to know of the missions or philanthropies of the Moravians call on secretary B. La Trobe, 29 Ely Place, Holborn, (E. C.). His father is Bishop James La Trobe, Victoria-square, Cotham, Bristol, who is the especial friend and helper of the Leper Hospital at Jerusalem. If you wish to learn about that interesting hospital at Jerusalem, address either the father or the son for printed statements, reports, etc.

My especial object of enquiry were relating to the Tibetan Missions in Central Asia, which I wish to visit at some time, and the Leper Hospital at Jerusalem, which I have already visited.

Regarding the mission, I find that there are three stations occupied by four German missionaries on the borders of Tibet, and that they reach them via Bombay, India. The oldest is Kyelang, where mission work was begun in 1856. The city is in Kangra district, reached via Kullu via Bombay and North India.

The next is Poo (begun in 1865) in Upper Koonawar Valley, whose post office address is Kotgurh, near Simla, the summer capital of India. The third is Leh the capital of Ledak, begun in 1885. Its address is via Sealcote and Cashmir, North India. As you may not be able to travel to these mission stations, you will find by writing letters in English, addressed to Moravian mission at either of the three places, that you will receive replies also in English. May you be profited by such information as you seek.

AN INTERVIEW WITH CAPT. VALJI BAHI.

BY AN EX-TOPEE-WALA.

E. T. W.—I am told that you have found many interesting traces of Christianity among some of the Indian religions.

Capt.—Yes, I firmly believe that at one time Christianity must have flourished over a large part of India, but afterwards from fear of persecution it was so altered and concealed that at last the worshippers themselves became ignorant of this fact.

E. T. W.—To what religions do you especially refer?

Capt.—I have devoted my special attention to the sect of Kabeerees, and also to the Seekhs, and in both these religions there are the clearest traces of Christianity.

E. T. W.—What about the Kabeerees?

Capt.—This sect sprung into existence about three or four hundred years ago. Their leader is named Kabeer. This name is in itself very singular, not being of Indian origin. It is from an Arabic root meaning the Mighty One. I have no doubt that it was really another name for Christ. Many of the facts in his life exactly tally, the only difference being that his birthplace and life are described as having taken place in India, owing to the extreme prejudice against foreign religions.

E. T. W.—But is there any definite clue which points to Kabeer being really intended for Christ?

Capt.—Look at this paper. It is a commission which was given to a preacher of this sect. You see it is written in the Hindi character, and they have strict orders to keep it private and not to show it to any one. Now you see this seal at the head of it. Look at these Arabic characters right across the centre of the seal. Here you have actually the very name of Christ "Isa Masih!" This then is the real key to their religion.

E. T. W.—How strange! Do you think they really worship Christ.

Capt.—I met one of their teachers once, and he told me that privately among themselves when telling their beads upon their rosary they were accustomed to repeat the following words—

"Isa Masih sattan, Aur asattan."

that is, "Jesus is true and the rest are untrue."

E. T. W.—In what way do you suppose that the Kabeerees became acquainted with Christianity?

Capt.—I believe that their teacher was himself a Christian, and that his writings were a sort of popular versified tract on Christianity. He himself says that his religion came from Southern India, the Dravid,—where we know that St. Thomas preached and had many followers.

E. T. W.—Is there anything of the same kind among the Seekhs?

Capt.—Yes, among them the traces are even more distinct and interesting. The name is literally "Shish," which means a disciple. They call their sacred scriptures the "Granth Sahib," which is just equivalent to our "Holy Bible," and they treat this book with great reverence. To me there is no doubt that this also is a popular tract on Christianity, being also written in a sort of Native metre.

E. T. W.—Do you think this is likely to be any help to us in reaching these people?

Capt.—Yes, they are very pleased when they find that we do not pooh-pooh their scriptures and are well acquainted with them. Besides there are some things which are particularly interesting among the Seekhs to the Salvation Army. They have a military organization, and their special distinctive colors are exactly those of our own flag—red, yellow and blue. Look at these pictures and you will see how constantly and remarkably these three colors, especially the red and yellow, are repeated.

E. T. W.—But don't you think this may have been accidental?

Capt.—No; they are evidently emblematic, and that of the same things as among us. Look for instance at this yellow. Do you notice these marks upon it. They are tongues of flame referring evidently to Pentecost.

E. T. W.—But what about the red?

Capt.—Listen to this passage from the "Granth Sahib,"—their scriptures;—

"Iha tana maya pahiya piyare,
Litara labi rangae;

Mere kanth na bhavai cholara piyare;—

Kyun dhan sejai jae?

Hun qurabanai jaun, miharwana,—

Hun qurabanai jaun!
Hun qurabanai jaun tinankai
Laini jo tera nau!
Laini jo tera nau tinankai,
Hun sad qurabanai jaun!
Kaya rangani je thi, ai piyare,
Paiyai nau majith!
Ringanwala je rangai sahiba,
Aisa rang na dit!
Jin ke chole rattare, piyare,
Kanth tinankai pasi;
Dhuri tinanki jo milai ji,
Kahu Nanaka ki ardashi!
Ape saje, ape range,
Ape nadari kareyi,
Nanaka, kami kanthai bhavai,
Ape hi raveyi."

The meaning of this passage is as follows:

"Satan seized his body, oh beloved!
Having stretched it (i. e., on the cross) he fully colored it.
My Lord desired not (to buy in the bazar) a red garment, oh beloved!
Why should he waste money?
I will be a sacrifice, oh merciful (Father)!
I will be a sacrifice!
I will be a sacrifice for those,
Who take Thy Name!
For those who take Thy Name
I will be a perpetual sacrifice!
The color with which his body is dyed, oh beloved,
Is named crimson.
Like that with which my Lord is dyed any dyer
Has not seen such a color.
Those who have their robes dyed red, oh beloved,
The Lord is near them!
That he may get but the dust of their feet,
Such is the prayer of Nanak.
Robed by himself, dyed by Himself,
Put upon her by himself,—
Oh Nanak, the bride of my Lord's choice (is she),
Proclaimed such by himself.

E. T. W.—Who is this Nanak?

Capt.—He is the founder of the Seekh religion. His name like that of Kebir is not of Indian origin. I am inclined to think it is a corruption from the word 'nuncio,' or 'nuncius,' the name given to a Papal delegate. There are several things in these pictures which seem to show Nanak to have been such. For instance he is represented as having a halo round his head,—a thing which is never seen in any purely Native picture, but which is common enough among Roman Catholics. Again in this other picture you will notice that he is represented as standing upon a fish, the common emblem of Christianity, the reason for it being that the letters of the Greek word "ikthus" were taken to represent their creed. Iesou Christes, Theo Uios, Soteer," that is "Jesus Christ, God's Son, Savior." You will see also that in several of the pictures there is a cross. For instance this man is leaning upon one.

E. T. W.—Do you suppose these pictures to have been very old?

Capt.—No doubt they must be so, and hence their meaning is not now clearly understood. But look at this other one. Here is a Seekh Priest giving the Lord's supper to a Raja. Here are the very vessels which you commonly see used in a Church, and which are unlike Indian ones. Not only so, but it is well known that baptism is also commonly practised among the Seekhs. So that here we find these two distinct rites practised among them to this day. They have also an expression "Sat Guru Parshad" which they constantly use and which means that 'The true Priest (or Savior) is our Food.' There is another common expression "Wah Guru!" which just reminds one of the passage, "His name shall be called wonderful."

E. T. W.—Does the name of Jesus occur at all?

Capt.—Yes, sometimes. For instance in one passage it says—"Jesus is God. He, full of truth is the equal of Hari (Savior)."

Another passage from the "Bawan Akhari Granth" is as follows—

"He is the truth, the truth, the truth!

Not by any means is He separate from God!
Let no doubt nor unbelief overspread thee at all.

Openly, boldly proclaim Him."

E. T. W.—What use would you make of these facts?

Capt.—I would let them know that the One whom they ignorantly worship is the very Savior whom we proclaim to them; and I would urge them to search their own scriptures and to believe their testimony if they will not ours. In this way much interest has been aroused among the Kabeerees, a large number of whom come purposely to visit me lately and to inquire about these things. They were not only interested, but also very much softened, and we had several of them profess conversion lately. I have little doubt that if we make a push large numbers of them will be convinced and converted.

Conference Minutes.

NODAWAY.

This district conference convened as per appointment of the president, at the Ross Grove School-house, Holt county, Missouri, on Saturday the 19th of March, 1887; President James Thomas in the chair, Joseph Flory secretary. Branch reports.—Platte branch 79; 4 baptized, 1 ordained. Ross Grove report referred back to branch for correction. Elders Joseph Flory, R. K. Ross, Jr., Peter Rasmussen and J. Thomas, reported. Priest Wm. Stocks, and Teacher R. K. Ross, Sen., reported. Bishop's Agent reported having received since last report $43, paid out $42, on hand $1. C. C. Nelson, sub-agent for the Platte branch, reported having received $112, and having paid the same to Bishop G. A. Blakeslee. Resolved, that the district be reported to the General Conference by letter, and that we send no delegates. And that the secretary in his written report to the conference request the conference to take into consideration our need of laborers in the district, and provide for the same to the extent of their ability to do so, by sending missionaries to labor in the district. President James Thomas offered his resignation, but on motion he was continued as president of the district for the next six months. On separate motions Joseph Flory was sustained as secretary of the district, and R. K. Ross, Jr., as Bishop's Agent. Resolved that each branch president be authorized to solicit means to be used as a home missionary fund; the treasurer of each branch to have charge of said means, to be used as he may be directed by the officers of the branch. President Thomas reported having received donations to the amount of $16.15. Preaching in the evening by Elders J. Flory and J. Thomas. Sunday forenoon and evening preaching, preaching by Elder J. Thomas. Sacrament and social meeting in the afternoon. Adjourned to meet at the time and place which may be appointed by the president, notice to be given through the Herald.

UTAH.

The above district conference met in the Saints' Chapel, Salt Lake City, Utah, March 12th, 1887. R. J. Anthony president, C. H. Barrows clerk. Branch reports.—Union Fort 32; 2 baptized. Beaver 27; Springville 35; Kaysville 7; Provo 26; Heber 15; Wanship 33; Lehi 47; Elsinore 16; Richfield 18; Salt Lake Mission 96; 6 baptized, 3 received by letter. Elders reports—R. J. Anthony had labored ten months in this mission, four of which were spent in Montana and Idaho. During the fore part of the season it was almost impossible to get a good hearing anywhere; but after returning from Montana in the fall, I discovered in Idaho especially, a feeling quite different from what I ever experienced before. In Kamas and other parts of Utah, a like feeling was manifested, so much so, that we found good public houses open with fair audiences to listen. In Kamas four were added, three on original baptism. Promised to go back, but not receiving word in time, did not do so. I then went south to Piontown; had a school-house for several evenings; good attention was shown. Also held forth in Provo to good congregations. During all of this time have added 29 members to the church. John Larson had baptized six, preached about 45 times. Had labored mostly in settlements visiting the members and trying to save what we have got. Am convinced that we have got the truth, and so try to hold it up to the people. P. Anderson had labored in the Territory since our last conference except three months I was back East. Have preached in ten or eleven settlements, with fair interest. Think the prospects are better now than they have been, some are believing. I urge the necessity of all being fully satisfied before coming into the church; have baptized one. J. C. Clapp had been engaged in the ministry continually for the last year, preaching in various parts of Utah, Idaho and Montana. The outlook is encouraging; the Spirit manifested where I have labored would indicate that the people are desirous of hearing. Don't know what the result of my labors may be, it must be left to future developments. Have baptized four, blessed 16 children. I feel greatly encouraged as to the advancement of the cause. R. J. Anthony was elected delegate to General Conference. It was the desire of the conference that R. J. Anthony be returned to this mission. All local officers and spiritual elders were sustained in righteousness, including brethren Larson, Anderson and Clapp. Preaching in the evening. Bishop's Agent's report.—

Received $404 07, paid out $386 37; balance on hand $17.70. Peter Anderson was appointed president of the district; and C. H. Barrows as clerk. Oliver Johnson requested to be forgiven, after making a full confession of his fault. Moved that Oliver Johnson be received back in full fellowship. Carried. Preaching service in the evening; J. C. Clapp occupying the stand.

In the evening prayer meeting in charge of Bro. U. W. Greene. The weather was stormy throughout, yet in all our sessions the peace of the Holy Spirit was present, and all were blessed.

EASTERN IOWA.

The above district conference was held in the church in Nashville, Iowa, March 11th, 12th and 13th, 1887. Preaching on the evening of the 11th by Bro. J. S. Roth. Jerome Ruby president, William T. Maitland clerk. The president represented the impoverished condition of the district, and advised the securing of a permanent laborer for at least one year. Branch reports.—Jackson 15, of whom 8 are scattered. Davenport 7. Buffalo, in sorry condition. Butternut Grove not reported. Apostolic, returned for correction. Elders reports.—J. S. Roth had labored some and baptized four, and blessed several children. Jerome Ruby had preached forty-one discourses in addition to other district labor. C. C. Reynolds had preached four discourses. I. B. LaReu had preached some and assisted other elders. Priests reports.—James Bradley, James R. Johnson and D. W. Clow had all assisted others in public meetings in and out of branches. William T. Maitland had preached fifty-five discourses, and assisted elders in other meetings. Bishop's agent, C. C. Reynolds, reported. Jerome Ruby was elected president till next conference, and Wm. Maitland secretary. Motion prevailed, asking the General Conference to appoint Elder J. S. Roth to labor in this district during the ensuing year. Elder J. S. Roth was chosen as delegate, to the General Conference and instructed to vote for General conference to adjourn to meet at Independence, Missouri, in April, 1888. On motion, the Herald is hereby asked to notify the Saints of the silencing of Jobe Brown, for heresy; also that the said party delivered up his certificate of membership voluntarily. In the evening met in Bro. Larkey's house for prayer and praise meeting, in charge of J. S. Roth; an excellent time was had. Met on Sunday forenoon in church in Nashville; preaching by J. S. Roth, assisted by Priest David Clow. At three o'clock, met in vicinity of Peter Larkey's for baptism service, in charge of J. S. Roth; ordinance performed by Wm. T. Maitland; four were baptized, and immediately after, at Peter Larkey's house, confirmed by Bro. J. S. Roth. After confirmation the sacrament was administered, and the Saints continued some time in prayer and testimony, enjoying much of the Spirit of God. Adjourned subject to call of president, who was very sick at the time; prayer was offered, his healing asked for. On the morning of the 14th, the president arose well and called the conference; met at eight a. m. The authorities of the church were sustained in righteousness. Vote of thanks tendered to Saints and friends for kindness and hospitality, and especially to friend Isaiah Crane of Nashville, for his services, and the hospitality of his house. Adjourned subject to call of president.

FLORIDA.

Conference called to order by Bro. G. R. Scogin in the stand; I. M. Beebe, clerk. The Hy-note branch reported no change since last conference; no other branch report. No report from elders except Bro. G. R. Scogin; he stated that he had labored some in all the branches, and had held a series of meetings in or near the town of Milton, in which quite an interest was manifested; some expressed a determination to unite with the church. The Bishop's agent reported he had received nothing since last report. Bro. Scogin arose and offered his resignation as district president; he was sustained by vote. Adjourned to meet at eleven o'clock Sunday morning. Sunday forenoon Bro. Scogin preached to a very large congregation. In the afternoon Bro. Scogin told the people what the Lord has and is doing for the salvation of the human family; after preaching he again proposed to resign his position. A motion then entertained and carried by vote that the matter be referred to all the branches in the district to see whether they would sustain him by their means. Adjourned to meet at the Pleasant View branch on the first Saturday and Sunday in June, 1887.

TRADITIONS OF THE ESKIMOS.

BUT speaking of traditions, I might say that these people possess a great many of them. It is, however, very difficult to induce an Eskimo to speak of such things or of his religious beliefs. The only way of extracting such information from an Eskimo is to make him your friend, and then getting him away from his companions promise that you will not tell them what he may tell you, and having done this to draw him step by step into the line of conversation you want to get at.

One of their traditions is about the flood, and I think it is particularly interesting, as it is one of many similar legends held by the savage tribes. The Eskimos say that a very long time ago there was a great rain which flooded the earth and destroyed all men except a few, who constructed a large boat out of a number of small ones and used it as a means of escape. After a while the poor creatures, being exposed to the fury of the storm in their open boat, began to be cold and uncomfortable; so their chief, standing up, threw his spears and ornaments into the waters, and this was sufficient to pacify them and they subsided. They have also a romantic legend about the origin of the sun and moon.

LATENT FORCE.

SOME events seem purposely sent for the development of character. The little stream murmuring along its way, dreamily and happily, through green meadows and sunny slopes, makes no change in its course until it meets some impediment. Then it rouses and wakes to action, roaring and gathering itself into white foam, wholly changing its current and character. So with ourselves, lives move on calmly and evenly, with scarcely more than ripple to show that latent force is there.

Some business misfortune comes with a crash, almost without warning. The first sensation is paralysis of all the energies, then the reaction, and we find ourselves strong to do and dare. The death-angel enters the home-circle, the one place we had considered too sacred for its intrusion. Both brain and body seem about to sink beneath the terrible crushing weight; suddenly the dormant faculties awake. We must do or die.

"The gods in bounty work up storms about us,
That give mankind occasion to exert
Their hidden strength, and throw out into practice Virtues that shun the day, and lie concealed
In the smooth seasons and the calms of life."

The easiest places in life fail to draw out the richest part of our nature, we are even capable of better things. The most precious metals are found deeply imbedded in the dark, cold earth, and much toilsome action is required to force her to yield up her treasure. Yet each stroke, though laborious, causing great drops to start, brings us nearer the coveted prize.

The experience of others may be brought to bear upon our lives, but only as signposts indicating the right road. No great achievement can be accomplished by following aimlessly a beaten path. We are cowards doubting our ability outside of our daily routine. We are fearful of the world, its smile or frown means so much, almost more courage than we possess is required to buckle on the armor of independence and make war on this very cowardice.

WORDS FITLY SPOKEN.

A WORD spoken at one time may have an effect exactly opposite to what it would at another. The impression may be lasting. It often takes only a word to ruin a man, and it often takes only a word to save him.

We should not make too much of a bugbear of this fact, for it would take away all the pleasure of conversation. One might as well be dead as feel that every word he said was freighted with the fate of a human soul. Besides it would be a huge mistake. Still on rare occasions a single word is charged with saving or fatal electric power.

Sometimes the subject does know where the shock came from—does not know that it was in the word spoken, and never thanks the speaker for it. When the influence is recognized and acknowledged the result is most pleasant. Words are not such cheap things as they are supposed to be. They do not always come easy. We often find it utterly impossible to speak the word we want to.

Hence gratitude for a word spoken fitly and in season may be increased by a realization of how hard the word was to say. It may have almost stuck in the throat of the person who said it. And yet it was said, and saved a soul, who never knew it and gave no thanks. The amount of that kind of ingratitude that there is in the world is quite shocking.

FOOD IN THE SPRING.

IN the springtime of the year there is great occasion for care in the matter of food. The kind that has satisfied and supported the body during the winter has served its purpose and is no longer fit for use. In cold weather the human system can assimilate materials that would clog and derange it in spring. There is no need for drugs to make people feel well when the things which have remained dormant in the ground begin to give signs of life. A judicious change of diet is required; that is all. It is better to take the materials for health from the grocer than from the druggist.

Begin the morning meal with an extra allowance of fruit. Take two sound oranges or apples if you have been eating only one, or three if you have been eating two. Be sure there is no decay in the fruit employed in this manner. Eat good bread and butter. If you are a coffee or tea drinker, moderate the usual allowance. If you are a hot water drinker take as much as you like. If you are a flesh-eater, take half as much as you do in winter. Pork is unfit for human food at any season. Eat less butter and grease of all kinds in spring. If potatoes are sound and mealy they are not objectionable; cheesy potatoes are unfit. There is the utmost need for the exercise of caution in the use of vegetables of every kind. Unless they have been well preserved and have a wholesome flavor, the part of wisdom is to avoid them. Raw cabbage that has been spoiled by freezing is often served in oyster houses of a certain class. The odor is disagreeable and readily marks it.

In spring it is important that the heaviest meal should be eaten in the middle of the day. The warm rains produce an atmospheric condition which causes drowsiness. Eating a hearty meal in the midst of this pressure adds to the weight upon the system. In daylight the demands of business or duty will enable you to cope with it. In the evening there is no such stimulus, and the result is injury to the health. The evening meal should be light and easily digested. Don't eat buckwheat cakes or doughnuts. If you are a meat eater be sure that the meat has been broiled or roasted. Don't eat fried food of any kind. It is not desirable to feel that you have eaten enough. Moderation is the best doctor.—Herald of Health.

KIRTLAND CONFERENCE.

ONE of the best sessions of conference we ever attended was held in Kirtland from April 6th to 14th inclusive. Unity, with but slight exceptions, prevailed from first to last, and the peace and love of Christ seemed to pervade every heart. The topics treated by those who preached were timely, and were delivered with divine grace and wisdom. The prayer and testimony meetings were seasons of gladness, and were marked by a large endowment of the Holy Spirit. The council meetings proved fruitful of good results and tended largely to expedite conference business. The Saints and friends vied with each other in making the occasion most pleasant to all.

The repairs on the Temple rendered it neat and attractive, making it a significant type of the work of restoration going on among the Saints in cleaning away the filth and rubbish of the latter day apostacy, and in repairing the breaches made by unfaithful builders on the foundations laid of God in the organization and establishment of his church in this last dispensation. "Great events cast their shadows before." When the revelation of April 11th was read, explained, and then adopted by a rising vote, quorum after quorum, and then by the entire assembly; and when after that the entire assembly, standing, sang "We thank thee, O God, for a prophet," followed by "Old Hundred," the very dome of the temple answered back the swelling, heart-felt melody that poured forth in one inspired volume, and the Holy Spirit bore witness of heaven's acceptance of the work of that important and blessed occasion. God was there.

The reports of the ministry from nearly all quarters were most encouraging, and all indications pointed forward to a glorious future for the church near at hand.

We have no hesitancy in saying that the outlook for the church was never before so bright as now, and that if the ministry and membership press steadily forward as best they can, in the spirit of love and godly zeal, wonderful victories for Christ and his people will be won in all parts of the land. The following clipping from the Willoughby (Ohio) Independent of April 15th, will enable the Saints to see themselves as others see them:

THE RELIGIOUS GATHERING AT KIRTLAND AND OTHER NOTES.

The attention of a large portion of the religious world has been centered the past week upon our neighboring town of Kirtland, as the Mecca to which hundreds have turned their feet by reason of the Annual Conference of the sect known as the "Reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints," which held sittings daily in the Temple of historic and world-wide fame. Numbers of the faithful had been gathering for a week previous to the opening, which took place on the morning of April 6th—being the fifty-seventh anniversary of the day on which "The Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints" was organized at Palmyra, New York. The conference was attended by representatives from various portions of the states and territories, and as the sessions were all public, numbers besides adherents of the faith have taken advantage of the open doors; but the gathering of strangers was not so numerous as the one held four years ago, probably in consequence of the passage of the inter-state commerce bill by Congress, some railroads declining to grant special round trip rates to delegates or others. None of our older readers need to be informed that Kirtland is the original home of the Mormons, settling here as early as 1831, and commencing the erection of the present structure in 1833. When the schism in the church occurred, some years later, the building came into the possession of the followers of Brigham Young, who after locating at several points, finally pitched their tents in Utah. After much trial and tribulation the present branch was organized about 1852, and in the year 1880 obtained by litigation in the courts of this county the present property, which had largely fallen into decay and become the refuge for owls and bats; since which, under the supervision of Elders W. H. and E. L. Kelley, the Temple has undergone extensive repairs at a large outlay, and we believe it is the intention to restore it as far as possible to its pristine condition. This branch has no fellowship with the Utah Mormons, and must not be confounded with them—the 'Josephites' being hostile to the monstrous doctrine of polygamy upheld and practiced there under the name of religion.

The conference is presided over by Joseph Smith, jr., a gentleman a little past the prime of life, of commanding presence, force of character, and more than average ability. He is assisted by his counselor, Elder W. W. Blair, a gentleman of dignified appearance and high intelligence. Both are residents of Lamoni, Iowa, and are joint editors of The Saints' Herald, a paper devoted to the dissemination of the distinctive views of the sect. After the President's opening address, which was largely of a personal character and a review of the work, several short talks were made, and later in the day the proper officers made their report, showing that twelve months ago there were 17,928 members; to-day there are 19,236 registered members. During the past year 1,710 members were baptized for the first time, 990 were admitted by letter and vote, 918 were lost by letter, 157 by expulsion, and 317 by death, leaving a net gain on record of 1,306 members. Iowa has the greatest number of Saints, 4,227, and Missouri comes next with 2,085. Besides membership in the United States, England, Scotland, Australia, Denmark, the Society Islands, Switzerland, Wales, Canada, Manitoba, and Nova Scotia all furnish adherents to this faith. Twenty-one new branches have been started during the year, and about $30,000 in cash has been received by contributions to the general treasury.

Embracing the opportunity we were driven over to Kirtland on Friday by Mr. Durban, where the day was spent. At nine o'clock a social meeting was held in the lower room of the Temple, which was probably two-thirds full, presided over by Elder Rogers. It differed little in character from an old-fashioned Methodist prayer and experience meeting. The various testimonies of both men and women were positive and direct, the prayers earnest, and the singing hearty and inspiring. Among the speakers was Elder M. H. Bond, whose testimony to his faith was clear and emphatic. It was evident that dreams were regarded as of significance, and that the healing of the sick, the gift of tongues, and the working of miracles generally were not regarded by the speakers as lost to the true church.

During the day we were introduced to many of the delegates and became interested in their conversation. The business manager of "The Saints' Herald" is Mr. David Dancer, a gentleman of massive frame and pleasing manners. We learned that the Herald was flourishing, and circulated in nearly all the states and territories, besides portions of Canada, England, and other points abroad. In case of any disturbance in the office by persons aggrieved, by calling in Mr. Dancer quiet might be the result, for an exercise of his physical abilities in a certain direction would land the disturber some rods on the outside. We have seen the time when muscular christianity proved of great utility in a printing establishment. Typographically speaking the Herald is the most neatly printed paper on our exchange list.

On Sunday the weather was magnificent—as indeed it had been since the opening day—and the temple was crowded at all the services with attentive listeners from all parts of the country. In the morning Elder Joseph Lambert spoke from these words: "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me;" and at the close Elder W. H. Kelley officiated at the marriage of Mr. John Lake of Canada, to Mrs. Woods of Pittsburg. At one o'clock three ladies were baptized near the bridge by Elder E. L. Kelley, in the presence of a large concourse. At 2½ o'clock Pres. Joseph Smith preached on the subject of polygamy, of which system he was very severe in condemnation. In the evening the sermon was by Elder Joseph Luff of Independence, Missouri, and is said to have been one of the very ablest.

JOSEPH SMITH AT BOND'S HALL.

The announcement made by us last week that Mr. Joseph Smith would speak on Temperance on Monday night, was sufficient to fill Bond's hall. He was introduced by Mr. Bond, and for over an hour discussed the topic in an interesting manner—taking altogether a new position and arguing from a practical stand-point. It was not a tirade against the traffic, but an appeal to man's better judgment, and to that consideration which invariably touches all—the pocket—and was not only temperate in language but evinced a zeal born of pure philanthropy. His premises were clearly and skillfully drawn, and so logical and sensible that had a vote been taken it would have resulted in a unanimous endorsement of his position. Mr. Smith was warmly applauded throughout.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

THE following letter from Governor Dunklin will enable the reader to see he held that the Saints were persecuted without any justifiable cause, and that his sympathies were in their behalf, though he was in a measure helpless to redress their wrongs.

"CITY OF JEFFERSON,
April 20th, 1834.

To Messrs. W. W. Phelps, E. Partridge, John Corvill, John Whitmer, and A. S. Gilbert:

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 10th inst. was received yesterday, in which you request me, as Executive of this State, to join in an appeal to the President of the United States for protection in the enjoyment of your rights in Jackson county. It will readily occur to you, no doubt, the possibility of your having asked of the President protection in a way that he, no more than the Executive of this State can render. If you had asked for that which I may be of opinion he has power to grant, I should have no objection to join in urging it upon him. But I could no more ask the President, however willing I am to see your society restored and protected in their rights, to do that which I may believe he has no power to do, then I could do such an act myself. If you will send me a copy of your petition to the President, I will judge of his rights to grant it, and if of opinion he possesses the power, I will write in favor of its exercise.

I am now in correspondence with the Federal government, on the subject of deposits of munitions of war on our Northern and Western borders, and have no doubt but shall succeed in procuring one, which will be located, if left to me, (and the Secretary at war seems willing to be governed by the opinion of the Executive of this State), some where near the State line, either in Jackson or Clay counties. The establishment will be an 'Arsenal,' and will probably be placed under the command of a Lieutenant of the army. This will afford you the best means of military protection the nature of your case will admit. Although I can see no direct impropriety in making the subject of this paragraph public, yet I should prefer it not to be so considered for the present, as the erection of an Arsenal is only in expectancy.

Permit me to suggest to you that as you now have greatly the advantage of your adversaries in public estimation, that there is a great propriety in retaining that advantage, which you can easily do by keeping your adversaries in the wrong. The laws, both civil and military, seem deficient in affording your society proper protection, nevertheless public sentiment is a powerful corrector of error, and you should make it your policy to continue to deserve it.

With much respect, and great regard,

I am your obedient servant,

DANIEL DUNKLIN.

Times and Seasons, vol. 6, page 1059.

We now add another proof that the Saints designed to act strictly within the provisions of the laws of the land as interpreted by those having authority to execute said laws:

"LIBERTY, Clay county, Mo.,
April 24th, 1834.

Dear Sir:—In our last communication of the 10th inst., we omitted to make enquiry concerning the evidence brought up before the Court of Enquiry in the case of Col. Pitcher.—The Court met pursuant to adjournment on the 20th February last, and for some reasons unknown to us, we have not been able to obtain information concerning the opinion or decision of that court. We had hoped that the testimony would have been transmitted to your Excellency before this, that an order might be issued for the return of our arms of which we have been wrongfully dispossessed, as we believe will clearly appear to the Commander in Chief when the evidence is laid before him.

As suggested in your communication of the 4th of February, we have concluded to organize according to law and apply for public arms, but we feared that such a step, which must be attended with public ceremonies, might produce some excitement, and we have thus far delayed any movement of that nature, hoping to regain our arms from Jackson that we might independently equip ourselves and be prepared to assist in the maintenance of our constitutional rights and liberties as guaranteed to us by our country, and also to defend our persons and property from a lawless mob when it shall please the Executive, at some future day, to put us in possession of our homes, from which we have been most wickedly expelled. We are happy to make an expression of our thanks for the willingness manifested by the Executive to enforce the laws, as he can consistently "with the means furnished him by the Legislature," and we are firmly persuaded that a future day will verify to him whatever aid we may receive from the Executive has not been lavished upon a band of traitors, but upon a people whose respect and veneration for the laws of our country, and its pure republican principles, are as great as that of any other society in the United States.

As our Jackson foes and their correspondents are busy in circulating slanderous and wicked reports concerning our people, their views, &c., we have deemed it expedient to inform your Excellency that we have received communications from our friends in the East, informing us that a number of our brethren, perhaps two or three hundred, would remove to Jackson county in the course of the ensuing summer, and we are satisfied that when the Jackson mob get the intelligence that a large number of our people are about to remove into that county, they will raise a great hue and cry, and circulate many bugbears through the medium of their favorite press. But we think your Excellency is well aware that our object is purely to defend ourselves and possessions against another unparalleled attack from the mob, inasmuch as the Executive of this State can not keep up a military force "to protect our people in that country without transcending his power." We want, therefore, the privilege of defending ourselves and the Constitution of our country, while God is willing we should have a being on his footstool.

We do not know at what time our friends will arrive, but expect more certain intelligence in a few weeks. Whenever they do arrive, it would be the wish of our people in this country to return to our homes in company with our friends under guard, and when once in legal possession of our homes in Jackson county we shall endeavor to take care of them without further wearying the patience of our worthy Chief Magistrate. We will write hereafter, or send an express. During the intermediate time, we would be glad to hear of the prospect of recovering our arms.

With due respect, we are, sir,

Your obedient servants,

(Signed,) A. S. GILBERT,
EDWARD PARTRIDGE,
JOHN WHITMER,
W. W. PHELPS,
JOHN CORRILL.

P. S.—Many of our brethren who are expected on, had made arrangements to emigrate to this State before the outrages of the mob last fall. We hope the painful emergency of our case will plead an excuse for our frequent communications." Times and Seasons, vol. 6, page 1072.

From what we have already seen, and what will soon appear, we must conclude that the Saints intended to use only "legal," honorable, justifiable means in obtaining redress and redemption in respect to the land of Zion, and also that we should interpret and explain, in the light of these historical facts, the revelations of August 6th, 1833, December 16th, 1833, February 24th, 1834, and June 22d, 1834, in Doctrine and Covenants. To further confirm this position we add this:

"About the last of the month I received by letters from friends in the East, and of brethren in Kirtland, &c., the sum of two hundred and fifty one dollars and sixty cents towards the deliverance of Zion.

May 1st, 1834.—More than twenty of the brethren left Kirtland for Missouri, according to previous appointment, accompanied by four baggage wagons. They traveled to New Portage and there tarried with the church until the remainder of the Kirtland company arrived, who were not in readiness to start with them.

The following letter from Elder Phelps to us clearly shows the necessity there was of the saints in Missouri receiving assistance from afar:

LIBERTY, May 1st, 1834.

Dear Brethren:—There are great moves in the west. Last week an alarm was spread in Jackson county, the seat of iniquity and blood-shed, that the 'Mormons' were crossing the Missouri to take possession of their lands, and nearly all the country turned out 'prepared for war' on Saturday, and on Sunday took the field near old McGees, above the Blue. But no Mormons came, neither did Arthur go over to see about his spill whiskey, so that the scene closed by burning our houses, or many of them. Our people had about one hundred and seventy buildings in Jackson, and a bonfire of nearly all of them at once must have made a light large enough to have glared on the dark deed and cup of iniquity running over, at midnight.

The crisis has come; all who will not take up arms with the mob and prepare to fight the 'Mormons' have to leave Jackson county. I understand some have left the county because they refuse to fight an innocent people. It is said the mob will hold a 'general muster' this week for the purpose of learning who is who. They begin to slip over the Missouri and commit small depredations upon our brethren settled near the river, so we have reason to believe.

It is said to be enough to shock the stoutest heart to witness the drinking, swearing, and ravings of the most of the mob. Nothing but the power of God can stop them in their latter day crusade against the Church of Christ.

Our brethren are very industrious in putting in spring crops, and they are generally in good health, and the faithful in strong faith of a glorious hereafter.

I remain yours, &c.,

W. W. PHELPS."

THE REBELLIOUS.

'ELI WHIPPLE arrived at Benson, Ariz. Ter., a few days ago, with a train of Mormon emigrants on their pilgrimage to Chihuahua, where a colony has been instituted under the direction of apostle Erastus Snow. The location of the new colony is to the north of Casas Grandes, Mexico, which town will be their present post office. They have been granted large bodies of land, and will undoubtedly convert the same into a flourishing garden in the course of time. They are traveling with teams, and are now over the bad part of the trip. From now on plenty of grass will be found for stock, which will leave them free from further hardships."—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Lord said by Joseph the Seer, September 11th, 1831, that "the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away," as may be seen in the following:

"Behold, the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind; and the willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days; and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land; for, verily, I say that the rebellious are not of the blood of Ephraim, wherefore they shall be plucked out. Behold, I the Lord, have made my church in these last days like unto a judge sitting on a hill, or in a high place, to judge the nations; for it shall come to pass, that the inhabitants of Zion shall judge all things pertaining to Zion; and liars, and hypocrites shall be proved by them, and they who are not apostles and prophets shall be known."—Doc. & Cov. 64 : 7.

OUR Baptist puritans are sorely exercised over Mormonism in general and the Reorganized Church in particular. The Examiner thinks the Baptist Church a hard field for Mormon proselyting except where the Scriptures are not understood. The reverse of this is nearer the truth, for the ministry of the Reorganized Church preach and teach Christianity as contained in the Scriptures, which, when sensible Baptists understand, they of course unite with that church.

MORMONISM IN THE EAST.

When we speak of Mormonism we at once think of Utah and the adjacent territories as the only place where it is a dangerous institution. But Mormonism has always been a missionary religion. Its emissaries have for many years been busy in all parts of Europe, as the constant stream of European converts has testified. The portentous growth of the system has been due, mainly, to this missionary activity. There are indications that this system of proselyting, while it has not been abandoned in Europe, is being vigorously pushed in New England and the Middle States.

A Baptist pastor in Maine testifies that Mormon elders have been at work in his section, and that two members of his own church are proselytes to their faith. Rev. M. T. Lamb, who has given much attention to the Mormon problem, was lately lecturing on the subject in New Bedford, Massachusetts, and was challenged to a public debate by a Mormon present. He found on inquiry that a church of the Latter Day Saints numbering thirty-five members is in that town. Another church of a hundred members exists in Fall River. These churches belong to the "Reorganized Church," a secession from the Utah Mormons led by one of Joseph Smith's sons. Their headquarters are in Iowa. They denounce polygamy, and so obtain access to communities and to a class of people who would not tolerate the polygamous Mormons of Utah.

If this growth continues, it is evident that the Christian churches of our Eastern States will soon be face to face with a "Mormon problem" of their own. Indeed, some of these churches already have to face the problem. It should seem that the worst recruiting ground in the world for a church founded on a supposed new revelation would be a Baptist church, whose members profess to accept the Bible, and the Bible alone, as an authoritative rule of faith and practice. But such does not prove to be the case. What can we infer but that many church members are so little instructed in the Scriptures that they fall an easy prey to plausible missionaries of another faith, who have a show of Biblical knowledge and considerable facility in quoting texts that seem to confirm their views? One who is deficient in Scripture lore is naturally much impressed by this free handling of the Word of God, and this opening once gained, victory is comparatively easy for the proselyter.

It would be well if the ministry could be instructed in the tenets of Mormonism, so as to be able to meet the arguments of its emissaries convincingly. Something may need to be done by our Seminaries in this direction. Something is done, we believe, at Louisville by Professor Whitsitt, who has given special attention to Mormonism. But the defense most to be relied upon is not, after all, anti-Mormon polemics, but the more faithful and complete preaching of the gospel by the pastors of churches—not mere emotional harangues, but the exposition of Scripture teaching in its breadth and fullness. Of such preaching there is far too little, as is amply proven by the growth among us of such bodies as the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints.—The Examiner.

THE press, generally, has given prominent place to the following statement of President Joseph Smith at the late Kirtland conference:

"Joseph Smith, Jr., son of the great Mormon prophet, and himself a leading Mormon, lectured to a session of the 'Church of Jesus of Latter Day Saints,' at Kirtland, Ohio, recently, in which he said: 'I have no belief in this philosophy of polygamy. I am identified with a people, many of whom have gone over with the extremists, and cast their lot with the advocates of plural marriages. I desire to state publicly, that I am not of their number. This question of polygamy has bothered the American nation for years, and it is the ambition of every statesman to solve the problem. As a people, we, the members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, have not believed it. It is now a matter of bitter controversy between us and polygamists. I need make no personal onslaught on those who accept the polygamous clause in the Mormon religion, nor shall I. We ought to take it for granted that when he created the world. When the earth was ready for man God placed man upon it. He placed Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. If he had intended two wives for Adam he would have given them to him. When Adam and Eve were joined together they were immortal and the marriage was celestial. When Eve wandered away from the beaten track Adam followed her—and I don't blame him. Now, there came a time when it was necessary to begin populating the earth again. Men and women had sinned, and God wished to crush wickedness out of the world. If he had made a mistake at the creation n giving Adam but one wife, here was a grand opportunity to reverse the order of things and give Noah two wives or more. Did God do so? No; he commanded Noah to take one wife and his sons one wife. Do not you, my brethren, believe that God is wise enough to have improved that opportunity to rectify any error in judgment in parceling out to man but one helpmeet? But God had another opportunity to correct the mistake, if one had been made. When he led Lehi and his wife out of the land of Judea to America, if God had desired to revise his judgment in giving Noah but a single wife, he could then have put himself right. But he did not do it. I take these three great events as proof positive, unanswerable and overwhelming that God intended man to have but one wife. But men say that this is an age of progression, that men are becoming more liberal and broad minded. Aye; but God's laws never change. The law of 6,000 years ago is the law of to-day. God has no right to lie to us, and he will not. We believe that when he gave Adam and Noah and Lehi but one wife each, he intended that for all time man should have but one helpmeet."—Utica Globe.

GOD KNEW WHAT HE WAS ABOUT

LEVERTON VS. POMEROY.

BRO. ARTHUR LEVERTON, of Bothwell, Ontario, in a recent newspaper discussion in the Topic, with a Rev. D. Pomeroy, gets in some telling blows on his adversary, both in respect to his veracity and logic, to say nothing of his flimsy theology and ministerial sincerity. Mr. Pomeroy, like most of his kind, asserts that Joseph Smith and Sydney Rigdon stole Spaulding's Romance and made the Book of Mormon out of it, and argues that because Joseph Smith was charged with crime and murdered, therefore he was a wicked man, and his teachings were delusions. How wise! Here are some of Bro. Leverton's replies:

"But if the doctrine I believe in will not stand the test of Bible proof and other good evidence let it fall; I do not want it. Come to the front, Mr. Pomeroy, and let us see whether it will or will not. I have not found the man yet that can bring Bible proof to condemn it, and I have had a number try. It may be that Mr. Pomeroy is more expert and better posted than the common run of ministers, but it seems to me that he has lost confidence in himself when he will not meet me before the public or before a committee. But I think he should have disposed of the Latter Day Saints in some way or other before he brought the Baptists, Mohammedans, Swenborgians and Spiritualists into the controversy. Mr. Pomeroy makes a number of statements that he can not prove, which is the true cause of his not coming to the front. Why do you misconstrue my statement in regard to the Solomon Spaulding romance? Smith, Rigdon, or any other Latter Day Saint never had it in their possession; and now it has come to light and proves that all the statements and oaths made in regard to it were based upon falsehood. I stand ready now and at any time to prove the coming forth of the Book of Mormon in fulfillment of the prophecies of the Bible.

"The Rev. gentleman still thinks that if Smith was a bad man, that Mormonism (as he calls it) must fall. But he has brought no proof that he was bad, nor yet can he. What about Methodism upon the same standpoint. For it was reported, and is in history, that John Wesley was a bad man. The people of England rotten egged and stoned him on the streets because, they said, he was a bad man. I will give you a small portion of history found in Hale's History of the United States, chapter xiii, page 106. 'In 1736 John Wesley, a celebrated Methodist, made a visit to Georgia for the purpose of preaching to the colonists and converting the Indians. Among the former he made some proselytes, but more enemies. He was accused of diverting the people from labor, of fomenting divisions, of claiming and exercising high and unwarranted ecclesiastical authority. His conduct towards the niece of one of the principal settlers was highly resented by her friends. Thirteen indictments for alleged offences were found against him, but before the time of trial he returned to England.

"So, according to the above, John Wesley, running from his trials looked like his being guilty. But Joseph Smith stood his trials like a man and was honorably acquitted every time. So now you see, Mr. Pomeroy, that if you interpret right the Methodist Church must fall; yes sir, and Christianity must fall too; for the pious religionists of 1800 years ago had Christ put to death because they believed him to be a bad man, an impostor and a devil. But my dear sir, let it be the last time you ever come before the public with such weakness and lack of wisdom and you will save a great deal of reproach coming on the name of the Rev. D. Pomeroy. I have no ill will towards Mr. Pomeroy; I wish him well and hope and pray that the day may soon come when he may be brought out of the delusion in which he is. In conclusion I will say that I am willing and ready at any time to meet Mr. Pomeroy either before the public or before a committee upon the conditions I stated in my former letters. Hoping the blind may see, the truth be triumphant and error be exposed. I am as ever,

ARTHUR LEVERTON."

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

TO CONTRIBUTORS.—We again admonish writers for the press to write on only one side of each sheet of paper, make your letters plain, "cross your t's and dot your i's," otherwise you will puzzle the printer and perplex the editor, and they may make you say what you don't want to. Make your quotations exact, and put them in precisely the same form as you find them in the text from which you quote. When you have written, review your work and cut out every needless word, and add nothing but what is really essential. Don't bury your ideas out of sight in a pile of unnecessary words. Be plain; be direct; be neat; be attractive. Do not make abbreviations; write all words in full.

Our readers will please bear in mind that both of the editors were absent near twenty days at late conference time. Our correspondents also will please note this fact and take it as an explanation for our seeming tardiness in replying to them. We shall seek to "catch up" on all lines of duty as soon as practicable.

Send us letters and articles on living and timely topics, and see that they are carefully prepared in matter and style. Write all business matters on sheets separate from other affairs. Send all business letters to D. Dancer, box 82, Lamoni, Iowa.

Bro. James G. Scott wrote from New Providence, Indiana, March 29th. He had preached some of late in Washington county and baptized an intelligent, worthy man. He says the Mt. Eden branch is prospering.

Bro. W. W. Hodge sends us from Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania, a paper with notes on Kirtland Conference. It is gratifying to find secular papers all over the land publishing facts in respect to our work.

A Mrs. R. C. Cato writes of late that an elder will find welcome at the home of herself and husband. They are believers in the doctrine of the church. They reside in Fort Scott, Kansas, about half a mile west of the rail-road depot.

Bro. J. J. Cornish preached the word of God at Bayport, Michigan, baptized a few score, and as a consequence "the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing." Yet in the midst of this the Lord has raised up friends and fair-minded persons who defend Bro. Cornish against the false and slanderous attacks of his opposers, and the newspapers of that region are redolent with hotly worded articles, some of which are more noted for perversity and bitterness than for the gentle graces of Christian controversy. Bro. John is gentle as a June zephyr until roused up by evil doers, and then, like a faithful soldier, he neither fails nor falters.

Bro. E. Delong wrote from Vassar, Michigan, March 25th, that he lately baptized two at that place, and that the Lord's work was moving on well in that region, the Saints were united and zealous, and prospects good. Bro. Delong speaks highly of the Saints at Tawas and of their substantial aid given him when laboring there.

Bro. J. H. Lambert, of Adrian, Illinois, asks the prayers of the Saints in behalf of Bro. John Simpson of Montrose, Iowa, that he may be healed. He also says there is an invitation extended by the keeper of the City Hall in Nauvoo, to our ministry to preach there. Bro. Thomas Revell is helping on the work by distributing tracts, etc.

Bro. John Burlington of St. Joseph, Missouri, writes that he has a few copies of "Lost Israel Found," or "The British Nation Identified with Lost Israel," which he will sell at $1.25 per copy. We thank him for copy sent us.

Bro. D. W. Murphy writes us from Kit Carson, Colorado, to change his address, but fails to say where from. Will Bro. Murphy please explain. He says he would be pleased to have the ministry call and preach there.

Bro. J. F. McDowell has been preaching of late at Dow City, Galland's Grove and Missouri Valley with fair success.

President Joseph Smith was still at Kirtland on the 20th instant, and there was some probability of his going to Cleveland, on call, to lecture. He may not be home for some days yet.

Conference minutes were sent us by express, but they have not come to hand yet, and we therefore can not give them to our reader till our next issue, which we regret. In another place will be found a list of missionary appointments.

Always write the Business portion of your Letter on a separate piece of paper, and let it be brief and explicit.

If you have anything to say to the Editor, or something you wish published, do not write it on the back of a business letter. Business is Business, and must be done in a business-like manner.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"The exultation, the divine
Insanity of noble minds,
That never falters, nor abates,
But labors and endures and waits,
Till all that it foresees it finds,
Or, what it can not find, creates!"—Keramos.

WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT?

WHEN we concluded our last editorial we did not intend that this should be retrospective in its character, but as we sit down to write to-night, memory is busy with thoughts of the faces we saw, and the sweet converse we held with brethren and sisters at the conference one short year ago. We remember how eagerly we watched for their coming, and with what feelings of sadness we saw them depart. How the hands would linger in the close clasp of regretful parting, while the lips gave utterance to the words of benediction welling up from the heart. How it came home to us in those days, the tender effort made by the Master to comfort his sorrowing disciples whom he was leaving, with the assurance of the need there was that he should go away. "If I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you." Before those brethren was stretching out the broad harvest field of the world; the grain was ripening to the sickle, the Master was calling, and they must labor while the day lasted. But thanks be to Him who in his going away long centuries ago "Sent another Comforter," which, binding our hearts in one, bids us be of good cheer while we labor in our different spheres, each with our eyes bent upon that polar star of our faith, the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. But this "Other Comforter," which must abide with his people until the time of his return, what of it? How the words linger around the heart strings as we repeat, "He shall take of the things of the Father and show them unto you." Between the Father who hath sent me and you my poor struggling disciples there shall be an interchange of comforting messages—of assurances of approval, as well as chidings and rebukes when your hearts wander from me. Long centuries ago was this promise made, and yet, to-day, the message comes to us, and we are bidden to "Listen to the voice of the Spirit," conveying to us the mind and will of the Father. To receive this message is cheering, but there is sadness in the retrospective glance which our soul is taking over the field of the past, to-night.

If any ask why is this, we answer in the words of Jesus: "O, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that stonest the prophets and killest them that are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not." How often in the past has the word of the Lord come to us, we have listened and heard it, but like one beholding his face in a glass, we have straightway forgotten what it is like, and instead of conforming our lives to the will of the Lord, seeking to live by every word of God, we have gone back to our old ways, forgetting and passing by unheeded, the message sent us by the Comforter; and like the swine, after trampling them beneath their feet, we take up the cry of the daughters of the horse-leech, give, give.

"Better not to ask for revelation from me, than not to obey it when received," was the admonition of the Spirit at Kirtland on Sunday morning last, and on Tuesday the revelation was read to the conference. Sisters, in that revelation there is much to cheer and encourage us, though our names were not mentioned. Have we been striving to gain and wear humility as a garment, we are exhorted to be humble. Have we earnestly believed and advocated that all the talent we have should be cultivated? in that we have all the sanction of the Lord, for what is true in regard to music, is equally true in regard to all other talents bestowed upon us. Have we entreated the elders to be "clean who bear the vessels of the Lord," and not to defile their bodies with tobacco or liquor; God has set his seal to this also, and the command to the ministry is direct and imperative. Have we advocated simplicity and neatness of attire; will not that which is said to the elders apply to us as well?

But just here comes to our mind the query: Will we be gathered? How often in the past have we received the instruction of the Spirit, only to refuse to obey it. Will we still in our blindness continue our strife and contentions one with another. Because perchance we have but one talent committed to us, will we continue to envy our brother or sister who possibly has more, and if we see them diligent in striving to improve upon it, will we misconstrue their motives, misrepresent their intentions, and strive to tear down all which they would build up?

Will our elders make straight paths for their feet lest that which is lame be turned out of the way, or will they continue to go up to the house of God and stand to declare the unsearchable riches of Christ and him crucified, while their breath and garments are tainted with that which God has commanded them not to use? In brief, will we as a people be the better for God's having spoken to us again, or will we be the worse? Justification if we heed him who speaketh, condemnation if we heed not. Surely in the past we have had enough of strife and controversy. It is time God came to the help of those who are weary, even unto death, of it, both in the columns of our church paper and outside of it. Will we be gathered? O, the sheltering love of the wings spread out to cover us! Will we nestle close up against the bosom of our Savior, beneath the shelter of his wings, or will we refuse his gentle admonition, his tender care?

Watchman what of the night? What of the flock over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God which he hath purchased with his own blood? Shall they have the food convenient for them, or must they be fed with that which the ancient apostle tells us, comes of lusting for that which we have not, but desire to have? God is loving, plenteous in his mercy, full of grace and truth. Let not the faithful fear, for nearing us, in the valley of years, we hear the glad refrain wafted back to us, "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me to give to every man according to his works."

CONTENTMENT.

THIS is indeed a priceless gem, for it is the most peaceful state of mind to which any one can attain, and is like the influence of the sun upon the frozen earth, imparting warmth and comfort to the lonely soul; and as a sweet savor, scattering its fragrance upon all around. Go to the home where contentment dwells and behold the fruits! Poverty may be there, affliction may have brought low the beloved and the blest, but what do we see? Hearts that are willing to bear without a murmur all that God in his infinite wisdom sees necessary for their perfection. What do we hear? Father not our will but thine be done! Oh, what an expression of perfect submission when the last faint hope is fled, and in extreme agony of spirit, resigned to the will of heaven, saying, All is well. Thorns and briars may be strewn along their pathway; clouds may sometimes hover over them, but through faith the eye can penetrate the darkness and view the beautiful light that ere long will burst forth as at noonday, filling them with unspeakable joy. Who is there (with experience), by taking a retrospective view, that can not discern the hand of God through scenes most distressing? Persecution may have followed their footsteps, trials and temptation may have pierced to the center of their hearts, but the blessings derived therefrom are of greater worth than the gold of Ophir; yea, more precious than rubies. Faith has been strengthened, hope confirmed, knowledge and wisdom increased, then why are we oftentimes bowed down with sorrow, refusing to be comforted? Look up; lift up your heads, for he in whom you trust with a full purpose of heart, is mighty to save, full of love and compassion, and will not suffer you to be tempted above that which ye are able to bear; but the dross must be consumed; the gold refined!

Contentment, thou art a jewel! The very essence which flows from that living faith possessed by the child of God. Paul says, "Godliness with contentment is great gain." Let it be entwined around the heart, and not only roses and lilies will be found cheering your pathway, but it will be to the home what a drink of cold water is to the weary, thirsty traveller. All are travelling through the sandy desert of life, and need that living water which cometh down from above to comfort and enliven the fair ones of earth. Dark and gloomy the road would appear, were it not for that sparkling stream, ever refreshing and enlightening the soul. Contentment does not always garnish the halls of the rich and great, but is seen far more frequently in the cot, garbed in poverty. The toiling one, whose hard hands earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, moves onward. The eye that is quick and powerful, searching the inmost thoughts of the heart, is ever upon you, weighing in the balance the motives prompting action, holding in his hand the rod of justice, and judgment will be passed upon all as their works shall be.

C. ACKERLY.

DAVID CITY, Neb., March 9th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—My faith is growing stronger in the Lord's work of these latter days. As the gospel is unfolded to me, I exclaim, O, wonderful words of life. What a comfort to know we have a heavenly Father who is nigh at hand and not afar off. I was very much blessed in reading Bro. Daniel Shirk's letter in the Herald, as I believe his coming into the church was in answer to my petition. After I had obeyed the gospel there arose scoffers, and many turned against me, which cut very sensitive nature sharply; and feeling my loneliness, I went to God and asked him to raise up one more in the place, to stand up as a witness that the church I had joined was the true church of Christ restored in these last days, and I was not deluded as some supposed. Time moves on, and God seemed pleased to call an old settler of that place, well known and respected, (that had removed to other parts), into his vineyard to bear testimony with me, and now they are reading his strange testimony, which makes me rejoice.

Brother Shirk, it pays to be persecuted for the truth, doesn't it, as the knowledge of Israel's God is revealed to us?

As the Mother's Column is one of the needfuls, I rejoice to see so many sisters like Sister Eleanor coming to the front, that can wield the pen, putting the shoulder to the wheel, the Spirit leading them on into the battle of the Lord.

Your sister in Christ,

MRS. JENNIE KRAHL.

ESCANABA, Mich., March 15th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—I have a great love for the Saints and for our church, because I believe it is Christ's church. I regret that I have not done more for the church in the past; may God forgive me and help me to do better in the future. I try to live right and do right, but I find that I fall short of keeping God's commandments in many things. Oh, that my faith may be increased and that I may strive harder to gain the crown!

I wish every mother knew just how to deal with her children. I loved my children, and taught them to pray; but I was too indulgent, and let them have their own way too much. I would even help them dress to go to balls; you see, dear sisters, my faith and works were not what they should have been. I felt that I was not doing right; still I let the adversary lead me on, and at the same time I bore the name of Latter Day Saint. Oh, how wrong, after any one has taken the name of Christ upon them, to be so easily overcome as to let the adversary have place.

God was pleased to take three of my dear children away from me in their infancy. I have three daughters, one son and my husband, left to me. One daughter in the church with me; the others, I am pleading with God for the welfare of their souls.

I would say to the young mothers and also fathers, Be very careful not to let your children rule you, but go to God for strength and guidance. His grace is sufficient, if we will trust him as we should. Love your children; be kind and affectionate, and help them to see that you know better than they do what is for their own good.

Correspondence.

DOW CITY, Ia., April 15th.

Bro. Blair:—I have been reading a little book of about 370 pages entitled "The Wonders of Prayer," designed to show God's willingness to hear and answer prayer. Some of its statements are wonderful indeed. How strange that so many testimonies are given showing that God is willing, in answer to the prayer of faith, to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, supply money and fuel for the needy, heal the sick and dying when all other help has failed, and yet none ask, "What must I do to be saved?" Or, "Which is the way, that I may walk therein?" It has brought forcibly to my mind the experience of the "Palmyra Seer" when first desiring to know what to do. In that we have an illustration of the wonders of prayer in the highest and fullest sense of the word.

How many of our people there are who could bear a clear and positive testimony to God's goodness in showing them "the way of truth," the church of his own building by his divine power, and his willingness to rebuke fevers, cure cancers, cause the blind to see, the lame to walk, and the deaf to hear, and that, too, in harmony with the plan laid down in his word.

How many can testify to the fulfillment of promises made to them through the Spirit that would be marvelous and soul-cheering to many who would read them if they were in print. If these testimonies were collected, compiled, and printed in book form, it would be a choice volume indeed, one that would create faith in the mind of the unbeliever and increase that already in the mind of the believer. I believe it would be a book that would sell readily and pay well, and be a source of strength to the church in many ways. Our branch is doing quite nicely.

Your brother in Christ,

C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

MECOSTA CITY, Mich., April 4th.

Editors Herald:—I am still striving by the help of God to prepare myself for that great day when Christ shall come to dwell on this earth, that I may be ready to meet him at his coming. Last Wednesday night I had a vision, I was not asleep, nor yet awake. It seems I started to go a journey; the road was a long, dark, dreary one, for a great ways; then as I walked along, it began to grow lighter, and on my way I met some people, and the road being very narrow, it seemed almost impossible to pass; but they stepped aside and held to my hand as we passed by each other. Still further ahead of me the road became wider, and more people; but all going the same way as myself. And three or four asked where I was going; I said to the judgment seat, and two of them directed me where to go; then I came to where the road forked, and I met another man; he said you are all right, go on and you will meet the chariot soon. It seemed as though I walked for most a day, and then I met the chariot. It was the prettiest thing my eyes ever beheld. The man asked me to ride, for it was free, and good for my salvation. We rode quite a ways, and came to the judgment seat. It was the largest building that I ever saw, and all seemed to be made of dove-colored pearl. Three men met me at the chariot, and went with me into the bar to be examined. I stood in front of a man that was called the book-keeper; he opened a very large book, larger than I ever saw before; he asked for my book, and fear came over me, for I thought I had forgotten my book; but to my great relief and joy my book seemed to come from my heart, which I opened and handed to him. My book had apartments like a pocket-book; but very small. He took it, began to read aloud, and I remembered every thing that was written in the book. Mine read just the same as his did; he then said you are free, your sins are all forgiven. Then was given me a pass to go in and see and talk with the Lord; he was dressed in a long dove-colored gown or robe. The Lord told me that through obedience I could come back and remain for a term of years; but did not say how long. Then I went in to the feast. I eat, walked, and talked with the Saints; many of them I knew. How happy we all were. The floor was as bright as gold. There was four gates to the city; it was lighted by the presence of God. There were many that wanted me to stay; but I was told to come back and finish my work; talk to and persuade all to come to the Lord. Will you please interpret this for me, it may do great good in this great and glorious latter day work.

Pray for me that I may ever be faithful. Your brother in the great latter day work,

WM. BRACY.

FORSTER, N. S. W., Feb. 27th.

Bro. G. A. Blakeslee:—Our meetings are held twice a week, Sundays and Thursdays, and are conducted by Bro. Wright, who is very persevering and instructive. The Saints are very zealous and growing stronger and firmer in unity in the faith, notwithstanding the prejudice and opposition with which we are besieged.

The ministers of the various denominations were very indignant at the result of Bro. Burton's teachings and for a short time were rather energetic in their attempt to reclaim their lost ones, but have now apparently become reconciled to the circumstances.

I regret to have to record the death of one of our sisters, Rachael Seaburg. She was baptized on Sunday, August 8th, and died on the sixth Sunday after (September 26). She was an anxious seeker for the truth; and an ardent lover of the gospel, and her death was a sad bereavement to the Saints. Bro. Burton left us about the middle of last month, (January), bound for Newcastle where he is now laboring. During his stay amongst us he won the respect of all with whom he became acquainted, and the Saints, who were all warmly attached to him, rather reluctantly parted with him. Our sympathies are with him and the glorious mission which he is on; and we look forward to the time when we shall again have the pleasure of his presence, before taking his final departure across the Pacific. I forwarded our tithing to Bro. Ellis, your representative in Sydney. Wishing our noble cause Godspeed,

I remain yours in faith,

CLAUDE L. McLAREN.

MACHIAS, Maine, April 9th,

Dear brothers and sisters:—When I was a child I wanted to be a Christian but put it off, and the devil told me to wait until I was older, for he always desired to have my soul. The Lord wanted me to do right, but the devil always stood ready to help me not to. When I was quite young I read in the Scriptures how the Lord blessed his children, and often thought if I had such religion as that it would be worth living for. I was told by man I could not attain such blessings. But I was all the time looking for something I did not know of; time rolled on, and in this dark age as it seemed, I read a book about a sect called Mormons; I kept these things to myself. Some years after this I heard there was a Mormon preacher coming to our town, then I wondered what he would say and do, and what was he like. I could hardly wait, I was troubled in mind. A brother who had joined them came first and brought some tracts, but that did not seem to satisfy me, so I asked the Lord to help me, and was directed to a man that always opposed religion. When I asked him he said, "if there is a religion to live and die by, they have it." This brought me peace and joy. But Satan desired me, and he took all the good feelings out of my heart and hindered me from going to meeting for two nights. I broke away from him and went the third night. I never can forget the feelings that came over me. The first words that servant of God uttered was food and drink to my hungry soul. I ought to have obeyed it the same hour. While some said it was "Mormonism." I was converted to the truth; and I could say it was the truth as it was in Christ, I was ready to obey it, caring only to do the will of my Father in heaven, for then I had the promise I should know for myself. I knew that the Spirit I already had could do much for me, but if there was another measure of the Spirit for us by obeying the word, it would have something more to do. On this promise I went forth, knowing I was honest in heart, and believing the Lord would do his part. I was baptized, and how happy I was! Some might say I ought to have been satisfied. But I was not. I was looking for the promise I knew when I was born of water, and believed I should know when I was of the Spirit. So I did; and many others who were present could testify to the same. Some may say, "What did the Spirit do for you?" It did wonderful things; it took the things of the Father and showed them to me; and while in the Spirit I testified by the Spirit, that Jesus was the Christ, and at the same time, that Joseph Smith was a prophet. This was the first I knew about Joseph Smith. But I got very much acquainted with him that evening, and with many more precious truths. I did not know there was such a book as the Doctrine and Covenants; and when it was presented to me I was asked if I could believe it. The answer was, "How can I help believing it." I had received the Spirit of it; and it has always been precious to me ever since. I testify to all who see this, that I know it is true. I often think how men can deny these things. Though I have been in darkness many times, I could not doubt it, even if Joseph Smith should turn away and deny it. I should still hold it up to the world as truth. I love it the best of the three books. It seems nearest to me. I wish I had lived nearer to its teachings. What joy and comfort while living by it. I often think of what the apostle said when he told some Saints they did "run well for a season." And what hinders us? The evil one crept in unawares, seeking whom he may destroy. Many times he has had me in his grasp; but the goodness of God saved me. He never tempted me to deny the work, but many times to find fault, which caused darkness. Then I would rally again, and say let others preach as they liked, I would hold to the old foundation. The apostle Paul said he had laid the foundation and others had built thereon. Bro. T. W. Smith laid the foundation here, and I can never forget the doctrine that he preached, the Lord confirming the word by signs following. But what a change since his last mission. Of myself I am speaking, not of others failings. I have had plenty of them ever since I obeyed the gospel. God knows I always wanted to do right, but have come far short of it many times. To-day while writing, my desire is to do right. * * * The church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is my home; I still have faith to believe that all will come out right, just as it has been spoken by the Spirit to me. I once more bear my testimony that the gospel is true. The doctrine as taught by Joseph the Seer, and the law laid down in the Doctrine and Covenants prove themselves to be true.

Yours,

E. C. Foss.

ROSSVILLE, Texas, April 12th.

Editors Herald:—We are passing through one of the severest and most continued drouths we have any recollection of. The oldest settlers say they have had nothing like it before. We have had no rain since the 20th of last August to wet the ground three inches. A good many have had to leave their homes and take their families in search of work. It was so dry last year that there was only about a half crop made, so you see this year's drouth has struck us bad. We have not yet been able to plant, nor even plow my land for want of rain, and it is now time to plant cotton. The cattle are also about to die for want of grass, and they will die if it don't rain soon, as it will be impossible to feed any longer, and the cattle are not able to drive. However, some portions of the State are faring better than we are, as rain is falling in some places.

But we feel very thankful that we do not feel quite so discouraged spiritually. I am living about fifteen miles south of Oak Island and the Oak Wood branch, with no other family belonging to the church but my sons and a gentleman that I baptized on the 30th of March. He is an old resident of this place, a man of family, an intelligent and well educated man, of extensive reading, and the best of it is, he came into the church without ever having heard a sermon preached by one of our elders. I furnished him the Book of Mormon and the Doctrine and Covenants, Heralds, and other church periodicals. He read and compared them with the Bible, and gave the books a thorough investigation, and the result was, when he came to bring the books home he demanded baptism, not wishing to wait for any preaching, saying he was satisfied, had counted the cost and desired to be baptized without further delay. Accordingly I went to his house on the 30th and we repaired to a place that he had already prepared, in the creek, and there I baptized him, with his family and one of my sons to witness the sacred ordinance. We feel confident he will be of use to the church. He was a zealous member of the Christian Church. There are others about here who are reading, and have been for some time, but are wanting to have a discussion held, and waiting for a thorough investigation of the doctrine of the church.

The Oakwood branch is doing better than it has been, but not as well as we would like to do. Some of the members are alive and doing all they can. There are a good many others who have not met with us in so long a time, I really can not say how they are doing. Bro. A. J. Murry, the gentleman baptized on the 30th, met with us at the Oakwood branch, Sunday a week ago, and attached himself to the branch. We have not heard from Bro. Roberts since he left Oak Island. The people here are anxious to have him, or some other elder, meet a Christian minister in discussion here. We hope Bro. Roberts or Bro. Curry will come as soon as possible and give them a chance for an investigation of the claims of the Reorganized Church. I think a branch would be organized here. Pray that the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard may prosper.

THE PRESENT TRUTH.

"WHEREFORE the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be administered to you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord Jesus Christ. Wherefore, I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth."—2 Peter 1: 10-12.

History shows, and present observation demonstrates that the common sin of humanity has been and is that of rejecting "the present truth," or in other words, in overlooking the work of God in their own time. It requires but little effort, seemingly, for people to believe in the manifestations of God's goodness and power in the enchanted past; but to give credence to his word and work now, is altogether another consideration.

We are led to enquire after the cause of this mental and spiritual phenomenon, and conclude that one of the causes is that "the present truth" makes a demand upon every sane being who hears it, necessitating a reformation of character in order to avail themselves of the benefits of that truth, and to escape the consequences of an indulgence in those things forbidden by it; while the work of God in the past may be believed without forcing the conviction so strongly of such demands upon those living now. Indeed, our present array of Christians find no fault with the economy of God administered in the primitive church. It was well enough for that age, they think, but are they willing that such an economy shall be enforced now? No. Why, the enforcement of primitive methods would utterly demolish modern orthodoxy, chaste, pious, and respectable as it claims to be. A faith that lays hold on the blessing and power of God; repentance in which the whole soul is absorbed in turning from error and doing the whole will of a benign Creator; baptism in water by divine authority, for the remission of sins; laying on of hands to confer ministerial authority and power, and for confirmation of the membership by the reception of the Holy Spirit, also for the healing of the sick; the administering of the eucharist or Lord's supper by those set apart holding the priesthood; a literal resurrection, in which the spirit and body shall be reunited and consigned to a condition of celestial glory if prepared for it; a judgment in which all men shall be judged and rewarded according to the degree of good or evil they have done—these things the Bible teaches and the Saints believe.

The Saints have, do, and will "contend for, the faith once delivered to the Saints;" but alas for modern orthodoxy, so called! The actual facts of history showing how God has manifested his power in the ages past, is used now by the talented clergy as a symbol only of God's grace administered to the faithful of the present time. For example: God delivered the Israelites from Egyptian bondage; this symbolizes how he will deliver us from sin. The Lord called Noah and his family into the ark—he calls us into the ark of his love, &c. Men who see nothing more than this in the teachings of the word, and examples of the past, are blind to the important realities of the "present truth." This peculiar condition of things in the religious realm is in perfect keeping with Paul's prediction to Timothy:

"For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine; but after their own lusts [desires] shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears, and they shall turn their ears away from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables."—2 Tim. 4: 3, 4.

The Bible shows plainly that present revelation is a factor in the economy of the gospel, and without it the church and its membership are in the dark,—blind leaders of the blind. The Lord told Abram to arise and go to a country that he should show him; called Lot out of Sodom; commanded Noah to build an ark; the Spirit said to Philip, "Go join thyself to that chariot." The Lord told Saul of Tarsus to go into the street called Straight, and enquire for Ananias; an angel said to John, "Come up higher." Revelations from Jesus Christ were given to the seven churches in Asia.

Now all these commands were specific in their application. They constituted the "present truth" necessary to be known and observed by those to whom the commands were given. In all the dispensations past, prominent among which is that in which Jesus and his apostles ministered, present revelation was a necessity, not only to inaugurate but to conduct the work of God. The Almighty supervised the work of his own planting. The ministry were comforted, guided and aided, by the indispensable ministrations of the Holy Ghost. In fact they were forbidden to go into the world and preach until they were endowed with this power. It was not required of them to preach the word of life until their own souls had been quickened and made alive by its transforming power. Hence the religion of Christ as known to these men, taught by them and received by others, was a vivid reality of regenerative forces, a vital experience in the things of God, an actual conversion to the Lord and an acquaintance with his power. Not merely a tradition of what others had seen, realized, and known. They drank from the crystal fountain themselves, they ate of the bread of life, and knew of the joys of adoption as children of God. Thus they were "established in the present truth," and were alive to the interests of the work then being done under the supervision of the Almighty.

The preaching of the gospel is a declaration of God's will, and must be done by the consent, authority and co-operation of the Holy spirit, otherwise it is not the work of God, but of men. The Jews lauded Moses and extolled the prophets; but rejected Christ, thus sinning against the "present truth."

This generation of people usually concede that primitive gospel ministration was expressive of the will of God then, and attended with the manifestations of divine light and power; but unfortunately it contents itself with a mere skeleton of that primal form, and the faintest rays of that burnished sun that shown with such brilliancy upon the era of the Christian Church.

Thousands of men of no religious profession at all admit their belief that Christ wrought miracles, and that he was the Son of God; also that the apostles and seventies were endowed with grace and power from the Lord; but do they anticipate anything of this kind now? Oh no. It is too near home. A traditional belief of wonders past is quite natural and easy, as such belief makes no special demands upon them; but to accede that God has spoken again, "and now commandeth all men every where to repent, "is troublesome—annoying in the extreme. There are exceptions, however, to the general rule, as is shown by the number embracing the gospel. God's elect are being gathered preparatory to the Lord's coming.

"God has spoken from on high,
This the light, this the light,
And now bids the world come nigh,
To this light of God."

The Lord promised through the prophet Isaiah (29th chapter) that he would do "a marvelous work and a wonder" among the people at some time after that of writing the prediction. A "book" was to come forth, and so marvellous was to be the manner of its coming, that "the wisdom of their wise men shall perish and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid," which shows that this book was not to evolve as the result of man's wisdom and learning. The contents of the sealed book were to be read, "and in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity, and out of darkness."

The Book of Mormon being a history two distinct races of people who settled this continent,—the first coming from the Tower of Babel at the time the language of the people was confounded, the second from Jerusalem, six hundred years B. C., during the reign of Zedekiah king of Juda,—was translated by the seeric gift of God, by the use of the Urim and Thummim. As early as 1830 this Book was published and its contents made known to all who chose to read it. The prophet says:—"Is it not yet a very little while and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest."

Let us arrange in order the prominent facts as they are connected in this chapter, beginning with the ninth verse. Verses nine and ten show the world to be in a condition of fearful degeneracy from the high altitude of the gospel plan. "For the Lord hath poured out upon you the spirit of deep sleep, and hath closed your eyes; the prophets and your rulers, the seers hath he covered." Evidently the result of transgression as represented in the 24th chapter of the same book, where he says: "The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof, because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant" which is the unchangeable gospel of Jesus Christ.

Now because of extreme wickedness "the spirit of deep sleep" has fallen upon the people, their eyes are "closed" to the plain, precious things of God. The prophets and seers are covered, though the prophetic office is a fixture in the Church of Christ, thus showing the terrible apostasy which has occurred, so that darkness has reigned supreme over all the earth known to present civilization. The Lord declared by the mouth of Amos:

"Behold the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord."—Amos 8: 11.

Then follows in Isaiah 29 the statement concerning the sealed book, which is "delivered to him that is not learned, saying, Read this I pray thee; and he saith, I am not learned." Joseph Smith was unlearned at the time he translated the Book of Mormon. Wherefore the Lord said, "Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men; therefore, behold I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people, even a marvelous work and a wonder; for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish." &c. Following this is the statement of the return of Palestine or Lebanon, to a condition of fertility. It is a matter of history that since the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, God has smiled upon the landed patrimony of the Jews. Remarkable has been the change in the condition of the soil and of the elements conducing to the growth of vegetation. I remember of hearing Bro. John A. Robinson state that a minister of the United States sent to Palestine from Fort Madison, Iowa, reported that so remarkable was the blessing of God upon that land, that five acres cultivated in the interests of a convent, (I believe it was), not only supplied the inmates of this institution; but they were enabled to sell two thousand dollars worth of vegetables in one season.

The bringing forth of this "sealed" record by the wisdom of the Almighty, the organization of the church by command of God, the restoration of the priesthood and the primitive gospel, the gifts and graces bestowed upon all the faithful who have loved and honored this work, are features of the "present truth," which are far more important to this generation than are matters of antiquity.

Yes; the Lord has spoken from on high, and commissioned men to organize his kingdom, and to preach the word of his power as in days of yore, to administer the ordinances of his house, and to bless humanity who will believe these things and obey the gospel of Christ. Every one who hears this gospel is subject to the grand test of character. Those who take it to the Lord in earnest devotion and are willing to know the truth, will see the force of these evidences, and God will help and bless them in obedience to his word and work, while those who depend upon their own wisdom and do not seek the Lord for counsel, will reject the truth and jeopardize their own souls, bringing them into the bondage of sin. This one fact alone proves the work to be of God—that those who go to him for testimony concerning it get the evidence desired, as thousands can testify. This work is encompassed with a cloud of witnesses, not one of which have been made by men trusting to their own sagacity for discrimination in matters of religion. These testimonies have been purchased by intense anxiety of mind to know whether these things were so, which led the one concerned to ask God in sincerity of heart for knowledge concerning them. And any one who desires with full purpose of heart to know and do the will of God, and will continue to bow in humility before him, will be led to a knowledge of these things and receive a fulness of joy.

The gospel as restored by the instrumentality of Joseph Smith is God's greatest gift to man, it is the power of God unto salvation; hence it should be encouraged, not opposed; it should be loved, not hated.

I pray that we may all be established in the "present truth."

SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATIONS.

IN a religious paper, under the caption of "Jesus' words," I find an article based upon the subject matter as contained in St. Luke 16: 19-31, inclusive, and among the conclusions arrived at by the author, the following is one of them.

"III. There is and can be no such thing as spiritual communications. Whatever assumes to be so impugns the word of Christ."

If the above statement is a just and truthful statement of the case, and the words of Christ as found in the New Testament will sustain such conclusion, we ought to know it; and on the other hand, if it is but a chimera of the author, that also should be understood. Man setting limits to God and his words, as manifested in Christ and his love to humanity, has the appearance of presumption, or ignorance of the height, depth and width of the marvellous works of that God who "made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters." Instead then of passively accepting as true the conclusions, the better plan is to do as the Master directed, "search the scriptures." In so doing we obtain this revelation and promise: "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will shew them his covenant." With this heavenly encouragement, we, with the fear of the Lord, and with the holy unction from on high, enter into the sacred presence of our Lord and in humble, childlike simplicity enquire; O Lord, reveal unto us the truth. Are all thy "spiritual communications?" ended? Is there now no answer to our earnest, faithful agonizing prayer? Ah, blessed Savior, we hear thy word coming down the ages, as the cadence of sweet music to cheer our drooping spirit. Like the oasis in the desert to the weary pilgrim, the beatitudes of the mountain sermon still retain all their life, freshness and power to beatify the soul that puts their trust in thee. Thou hast said, "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you; for every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." Here is not only the instruction for us to "ask," "seek" and "knock," but the same is supplemented with the promise, that those who do so shall be recognized and rewarded. Surely, never were teachings more simple and plain. The child may understand them; and yet the theologian is muddled and clouded.

Once more let us ask at the feet of the Divine Teacher. "Of whom shall we ask? To whom shall we seek? And where shall we knock?" All these questions are answered in the sermon we have quoted from, namely: "And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and on the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily, I say unto you, they have their reward. [Yes, of men; but they are strangers to God.] But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."

Thus are we informed of the manner of our praying, and how we are to conduct ourselves so that, proving acceptable before God, we shall be found worthy of his kind care and blessing. "After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name."

Here are positive and explicit replies to our threefold query. 1st, Our asking must be addressed to God. 2d, Our seeking must be unto God, and 3d, Our knocking must be unto God in heaven. "And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it. If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever, even the Spirit of truth; whom the world can not receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you."

Shall we believe these words of Jesus, and go to the Father in prayer and be blessed from the unwasting fulness, even unto the obtaining of spiritual communications? or be soured, saddened and finally discouraged by some uninspired man, with the fallacious idea that God is partial and changeable. Who can be reconciled to the palpable contradiction, that to believe and obey the word of God in the first century it would bring unto those believing, spiritual communications, then God was truthful and both willing and ready to bestow such gifts and blessings as were asked for in the name of Jesus. But in this age, while men are required to profess a belief in the word of God, and give a tacit obedience thereunto, and should any such one confess that God was mindful of the word of promise, and gave spiritual guidance and divine light, he is profoundly informed that he impugns the word of Christ. Wonderful logic that reaches such conclusions, declaring harmful and unholy that which anciently was to be sought after, earnestly contended for, and was considered praiseworthy.

In our last quotation the "Spirit of truth" is promised to abide as a comforter in lieu of Christ himself; and as our absent Lord is our only hope of salvation, and as the "Father may be glorified in the Son," wherein we obtain eternal life through fellowship with Christ, which can only be accomplished by the same Spirit that is in Christ, being in us as is plainly taught in this,— "Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch can not bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. I am the vine; ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing. If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." This unity, in the body of Christ is the result of our having the Spirit to abide with us, otherwise we can not become an integral portion of the body of Christ. No limit to time or locality is fixed by the Master in which there shall be a cessation of the attendance of the "Spirit of truth" to those who believe and seek to live by the word of God; but contrariwise, the commandments and promises of God are unto all men in every nation, kindred, tongue and people, in every land and clime, thus being of a general application, and the only pre-requisite that is imposed that the spiritual gifts may be received, is that we abide in the word of Christ. So doing, whatever we ask of him, he has promised to give. So fades away the false deductions of men, as cobwebs before the broom of the house-cleaner, or the hoar frost before the rising sun.

As we have to pass the crucible of Christ's words, and at the last day be judged by the same, it would be well to make no mistake in our present interpretation of the privileges and blessings of the true citizen of the Church of Christ. And if by the word we are permitted spiritual communications, let us contend for the same and stand in the dignity of disciples in very deed, and as they who anciently waxed bold in telling of what Jesus did for them.

We take new hope in this conflict by the perusal of this word: "And in that day ye shall ask me nothing. Verily, verily, I say unto you, whatsoever ye ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. Hitherto have ye asked nothing in my name: ask, and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full. These things have I spoken unto you in proverbs; but the time cometh, when I shall no more speak unto you in proverbs, but I shall shew you plainly of the Father. At that day ye shall ask in my name; and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you." Man for many ages has wholly depended upon his own wisdom and learning, to the exclusion of any divine interposition in the affairs of eternal life and the preparation therefore, mistaking their calling and duty, and arrogating to themselves the responsibility of the salvation of the people. God's word is the seed that will produce eternal life. Now what is the process by which such a grand result may be obtained.

God certainly is unconditionally the author and finisher of our salvation. He gave the word. He calls the minister (who if otherwise called, is not God's minister) who is thereby made an agent of God. The word is preached by the agent, faith springs up in the heart of those who hear, (for faith cometh by hearing), and thus the seed is planted. One agent may plant and another water the seed, but God alone can give the increase.

To illustrate; a kernel of corn is put in the ground. What are the essential elements necessary to produce an increase? 1st. The ground is prepared. 2d. The kernel of corn is put into the soil, and should there be no moisture in the soil, the kernel will not germinate. 3d. Without the genial rays and warmth of the sun, the kernel would rot in the ground, and without the moisture and the warmth of the sun, the kernel would remain in an unchanged condition for an unknown length of time. So it is with the "word of God," the seed of eternal life. The agent by preaching the word prepares the candidate for accepting the word and complying with the requirements thereof. If the proper developments ensue, the person will give evidence of faith in the word, and will bring forth fruits meet for repentance, and will immediately seek for the cancelation of sin. This will be obtained by either the agent who preaches the word, or some other agent administering baptism. That is, one may plant and another water; but if the applicant for eternal life proceeds no farther, the crown of glory he can never wear, worlds without end. He would be in the same condition as the kernel of corn without the warmth of the sun. But thanks be to Jesus who giveth us the victory, we, having been planted in the likeness of his burial, have a right to expect a fulfillment of the promise "ask and it shall be given;" or, "whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you."

Let all the meek and humble of earth send up a glad anthem and alleluia of praise and devotion, that the mighty God of Jacob is not bound, nor prohibited by the narrow mindedness of short sighted, uninspired man. As the light and warmth of the sun to the kernel of corn, so is the Holy Spirit to the struggling pilgrim on the journey to the home beyond the tide.

Christ vividly portrays the importance of spiritual communications, in these expressions: "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." How are we to know God, or Christ, without direct and immediate revelation and that to each individual who shall inherit eternal life? For thus it was that Christ did predicate the possibility of gaining the greatest gift that God hath promised the offspring of Adam. Once more hear the voice of him that spake as man never spake: "All things are delivered unto me of my Father; and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him." O vain man, wilt thou still contend against the only means that God hath established whereby our union with God and Christ is found.

The word is inexorable and unalterable, that man, to obtain eternal life, must know both the Father and the Son; and no man can know either the Father or the Son but by revelation. Why should we be constantly invited to come to Christ, and make heaven our home, and then be told that, if we believe in the only means ordained and appointed of God, and obtain the object of our labor, that we thereby impugn the word of Christ. The very idea of so perverting the truth as it fell from the lips of Christ is enough to make the angels weep.

When our Savior was so severely and bitterly tempted by the arch-deceiver, this was the invulnerable and pointed reply: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." In this verse continuous revelation from God is plainly taught. There is a parallelism that no amount of cunning can disprove or make nugatory. Man, as used in this text, is a representative word, and comprehends the whole human family, it being a generic term.

We do not exaggerate when we say no person can live godly in Christ Jesus without communing with the Father. "Proceedeth," is indicative of a continuous flow of the word from the mouth of God—not that he spoke to Adam, Moses, Amos, Malachi, Christ and Paul, and then made an abrupt and absolute end of all revelation of himself to his servants. Just as well say that when we had eaten we never need eat again. No, no; our spiritual nature needs food as much as does the physical nature; and as these wants recur there is an adequate supply to meet them, so that man need not live by bread alone, neither upon the husks of speculation on the principles of life and immortality taught by the Messiah.

I have assiduously avoided the introduction of any evidence from either prophet or apostle, and tenaciously clung to the words of Christ in this investigation, and believe that sufficient has been presented for this time. I rest satisfied to take shelter within the bulwarks which God has provided, believing that they will survive the ravages of time, and weather the severest storms of skepticism. I am not an enthusiast concerning spiritual things, still I have an abiding confidence that our God will be as mindful of us as he is of the sparrows. Neither do I believe that spiritual manifestations are in harmony and accord, with the convictions, will and desire of the one through whom those gifts are manifested, or to the one the manifestation is given. That some such may have been in the past, and may continue, still that does not confirm it as the rule. But on the contrary, the true Spirit is granted that we may have protection from all impositions.

May we escape all the wiles of the devil and abide, until Christ fulfill his promise, "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me, shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." And again,—"If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." To be worthy of the love of God and Christ, is to insure the attendance of the Holy Spirit; "and if this be treason make the best of it."

RUSSIA, BULGARIA, AND THE EASTERN QUESTION.

BY THE REV. T. J. MALYON.

CONSIDERING the important part which Russia is predicted to play in the solution of the Eastern Question, her present policy and proceedings in Central Europe demand attention. The mystical Euphrates is rapidly drying up; Turkey is being almost daily dismembered or weakened; and Russia is casting covetous eyes on the city of Constantinople, and should it fall into her hands for a prey, she will then in all probability aspire to supremacy in the Mediterranean, and thus bring nearer the point of realisation the designs she has long been known to meditate on Syria and the Holy Land. Any frivolous circumstance may furnish the longed-for pretext to Russia to "cry havoc, and let slip the dogs of war," when she will hurl her thunderbolts at the Porte; and, if permitted by the allied Powers of Europe, will advance without any further notice, into the very heart of the Turkish dominions, and the imperial city of Constantinople will fall before the rapacity of the Russian eagles. The marvellous modern development of Muscovite prestige, audacity, and territory, combined with the mercurial and highly combustible character of current political events, may at any moment result in a tremendous climax and catastrophe, such as will imperil the thrones—the most stable thrones of Europe—at least will make them tremble to their very centers. Happily, however, amidst the din and tumult of war, and the heavy tramp of millions of men armed to the teeth, and panting for the fray, the Bride of Christ expectant, hears the footfall of her Lord and rejoices. She lifts up her head with grateful confidence, knowing that her redemption draweth nigh. Events such as are now transpiring on every hand, are to her as forerunners and harbingers of the Lord's return as the blossoming of the primrose, or the blithe carolling of the lark are prophetic of advancing summer.

THE STATE OF BULGARIA,

owing to the recent autocratic domination, and hectoring behavior of Russia, is pitiable in the extreme. But events are moving on, though but slowly. General Kaulbars has left Sofia, taking the road to Constantinople, and the fact produced quite a fresh outbreak of excitement and speculation on the Eastern Question. A St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphed that "general surprise is expressed in this city, where people do not seem to know much about the intentions of the Czar." The understanding between the Czar and the Sultan has, however, long ceased to arouse any other emotion than wonder at the readiness and simplicity with which the fly walks into the spider's web. In St. Petersburg, confidence in the preservation of peace augments from day to day. If the Czar is prepared either to disavow General Kaulbars, or to acquiesce in the failure of his own designs in Bulgaria, this sanguine estimate of the future may be justified. But there is more than ordinary virtue in this "if," and nothing in the Czar's recent conduct bears out so favorable an expectation as that he will be governed by reason, justice, or common sense. If his desire was to furnish the Constitutionalists of Europe with a striking caricature of absolute monarchy, he could not have carried out his object in a more effective manner. Alexander III. has, as a Paris correspondent remarks, done much to promote the scheme of a Balkan Federation. He has shown himself the enemy of freedom in the East, and has ostentatiously refused to recognise the status of authority of the National Assembly in Bulgaria. Neither Servia, nor Montenegro, nor yet Roumania, can be certain whose turn will come next. So soon as they all realise

THE IMMINENCE OF THE DANGER

which threatens them from the North, they may be expected, in self-defense, to combine against the common enemy of them all. We do not believe that they would be without allies. No one can deny that if Russia had been left to herself, with nothing to fear foreign opposition, she would long since have occupied the Principality. Prince Bismarck, who holds the key of the situation, is manifestly prepared to give the Czar a certain amount of license, and no more. A man may be a complete autocrat within his own dominions, subject always to the fear of assassination which tempers every tyranny, and yet be cribbed, cabined, and confined the moment he steps outside them.

Russia has now a splendid opportunity. She, or rather he, may abandon Bulgaria to her own resources, and leave her to extricate her own way out of her financial difficulties. There is much talk in Russia about peremptorily ordering the Prince of Mingrelia to accept and ascend the Bulgarian throne. There are limits to human omnipotence, and the Russian Empire is not quite like the Roman, where "to resist was hopeless, and it was impossible to fly." If the Prince preferred some other exotic residence to Sofia, it is difficult to see what the "Divine Figure" could do. Moreover, he would be a bold man who should undertake to obtain the assent of the Powers to the election of a Russian subject.

In Vienna, which is the focus of all rumors, true or false, on this Bulgarian question, the latest intelligence last month was of a highly colored and sensational type. "The Czar," said the Vienna Tagblatt, "is going to Moscow accompanied by the Grand Dukes, there to make an announcement which shall cause the ears of mankind to tingle. Moreover, M. de Staal is to be recalled from London, and Prince Lobanoff from Vienna." M. Katkoff's organ, the Viedomosti, rages more furiously than ever, and has already begun to talk about privateering. We attach very little importance to these speculations, for such they really are, which the Vienna correspondent transmits for what they are worth. M. Katkoff is generally believed to be more imperial than the Emperor, and to have recently received from the highest quarter a gentle rebuke for excess of zeal. As to the agreement which is said to have been formed by England, Germany and Austria, it is a much more serious affair. We should be glad, and so would the vast majority of her Majesty's subjects, if by purely peaceful and diplomatic means this country could save, not only Bulgaria, but all the Balkan communities of the East, from Russian aggression. The South Russian Press, which discusses foreign affairs with much greater freedom than the journals of St. Petersburg or Moscow, regards with complacency, if not with satisfaction, a new Quadruple Alliance between England, Germany, Austria, and Italy. Such a league would no doubt, so long as it lasted, be able to impose terms upon Russia, even if Russia were assisted by France. But how long would it last? These as modern history has repeatedly proved.

It is apparent that no amount of exposed falsehood on the part of Russian statesmen has hitherto prevented the credulous Powers of Europe from giving the perfidious Muscovite another chance to deceive them as often as it has been demanded. In this matter particularly, history has at frequent intervals repeated itself in the most startling manner during the past 120 years.

Let us give a few illustrations of this fact. About 1766 Russia was, or pretended to be, the champion of a portion of the Polish nation, as she afterwards was, or affected to be, the friend of the Turkish Slavs. On both occasions Russia posed in the simulated garb of the purest disinterestedness, and went through the preliminary pantomime of waving the palm branch of peace. Then also, as well as since, the seizing upon certain guarantees was explained as being for the good of the people despoiled, rather than for the enrichment of the Russian monarch. At the date just alluded to,

THE EMPRESS CATHERINE DECLARED,

with the impious because insincere solemnity which has become traditional among her successors, and which would be more truthfully characterised as reckless levity, "that she only desired peace." She then added, "only envy and malignity could suggest that she coveted Polish territory; I will never," this bad bold woman asserted, "make any claim to the territory of Poland. I will even secure the integrity of that country if any other Power should attack it." It is probable that in those days some of the other great nations of Europe had not become aware of the crafty and unscrupulous nature of the Northern Octopus, or they might possibly have interfered to save brave little Poland, with all its faults, from extinction. As events resulted, it became known in time that, at the very date the Russian Empress was thus perjuring her evil soul with honeyed lies to an intrepid, if impulsive people, her statesmen in conjunction with those of Austria and Prussia, were secretly negotiating together the partition of Poland, and soon afterwards Russian troops entered the country. One good turn is said to deserve another, but in all human experience one bad action invariably and imperatively demands another for the purposes of excuse or concealment, so at this juncture

FURTHER FRAUDS WERE RESORTED TO.

It was given out that the Russian troops were not in Poland to conquer or even to overawe, but simply for the purpose of "preventing any disturbances which might be caused by the grant of concessions to the malcontents;" and it was further alledged that "The Empress' motherly heart* would be deeply grieved if any blood were shed unnecessarily." Under these circumstances it was expected that the troops would withdraw as soon as the apprehended troubles subsided, and quiet restored. What happened? The Russian motherly protestations, like those at the present moment being hourly whined throughout the Balkan Peninsula, especially for the benefit of the Bulgarians, were only so much tainted breath. A large slice of Poland was immediately annexed, and when the Poles objected, they were assured by the * History relates that this amiable individual had her husband, Peter III., arrested for intending to disinherit her son, and divorced herself on account of her infidelities. This little matter was managed with great decision: the unfortunate monarch was immured within the palace of Robscha, and on the 17th July, 1762, he was strangled by Alexis Orloff—the Empress' favorite lover—and other conspirators, while that most motherly lady caused it to be spread abroad that Peter had perished from colic.

Russian Ambassador that "while the Empress still preferred the interests of Poland to her own, the annexation being an accomplished fact, it could not be reversed by metaphysical arguments." Every reader of history knows what subsequently happened to Poland: few persons can be ignorant of the continual encroachments accomplished and attempted by and all the present generation of politicians must be perfectly conversant with the landgrabbing performances of his son and grandson in Central Asia, Turkey, and elsewhere, and all prefaced by multitudes of barefaced falsehoods, evasions, duplicities, and prevarications. Coming to a more modern period, it will be recollected that in the year 1873 the Czar Alexander gave "the most solemn assurances" to the British Government "that he desired no conquests, that he aimed at no aggrandisement, and that he had not the smallest wish or intention to be possessed of Khiva." Noting could have been more impressive than the air of truthful gravity with which these words were uttered in the presence of a British official by the Russian Goliath, and yet the utterance could have been nothing else than a deliberate untruth, for, spoken as it was in the month of February to lull the unsuspecting officials of the British Foreign Office to sleep, by August the act of thievery was completed, Khiva was annexed, and remains to this day a beacon of Russian falsehood and fraud. On the 21st of November, 1876, the London Gazette, at the request of the same veracious Emperor, published the substance of a conversation held shortly before between His Majesty and the British Ambassador, Lord Augustus Loftus. This conversation formed the text of a despatch by the latter to his chief, the Earl of Derby, and was dated from Yalta, 2d November, of which the following is an extract: "His Majesty then said . . . he regretted to see that there still existed in England an inveterate suspicion of Russian policy and a continued fear of Russian aggression and conquest. He had on several occasions given the most solemn assurances that he desired no conquest, that he aimed at no aggrandisement, and that he had not the smallest wish or intention to be

POSSESSED OF CONSTANTINOPLE.

All that had been said or written about a will of Peter the Great, and the aim of Catharine II. were nothing more than illusions and phantoms; and never existed in reality; and he considered that the acquisition of Constantinople would be a misfortune for Russia. There was no question of it; nor had it ever been entertained by his late father, who had given proof of it in 1828, when his victorious army was within four days march of the Turkish capital. . . Intentions, continued His Majesty, are attributed to Russia of a future conquest of India, and of the possession of Constantinople. Can anything be more absurd? With regard to the former it is a perfect impossibility; and as regards the latter, I repeat again the most solemn assurance that I entertain neither the wish nor the intention."

After reading the above quotations, and having a knowledge of later events, the student of Russian diplomacy may well be excused if he or she adopts the opinion that Muscovite rulers and statesmen are that the Russian yea and no are to be understood in exactly the contrary sense to that in which they are spoken or written; that in short, when a responsible official of that country gives an assurance to the representative of another, in a peculiarly solemn and awe-inspiring tone, it is to be regarded as utterly false and untrustworthy. We know that Russia has already lied, beyond the power of ordinary reckoning, about Poland, Turkey, the Khanates and Afghanistan, and is busy at the present moment hatching fresh plots, and daily manufacturing new falsehoods, to the detriment of the struggling nationalities of the Balkan Peninsula. Will any one of her clumsy romances be now believed? It is sadly to be feared that the statesmen of Europe are as culpably credulous as ever.

In the above quotation, mention is made of the will of Peter the Great, which the Czar Alexander endeavored, in the usual solemn manner peculiar to Russians when about to indulge in lying, to impress upon Lord Augustus Loftus, "never existed." The authenticity of this testament has doubtless been questioned, both before and since, by Russian agents and their foreign dupes, but always with a similar show of indignation and emphatic denial which characterized the speech of His Majesty. It is certainly a very extraordinary and suggestive document, and read in the light of past Russian attempts, achievements and failures, seems to carry on its face an air of truth which must be very annoying to a government conscious of its mendacity. For the sake of our readers who may not have seen the curious production, we give below a copy of this will, premising that the original is said to have been deposited among the treasures of the palace of Peterhof, near St. Petersburg. Copies are also reported to have been given to the Abbe de Bernis, Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1757, and to Louis XV. It was probably the latter which was found in the Archives of France in 1859, from which the following translation was made:—

"THE WILL OF PETER THE GREAT.

"Preliminary considerations.—In the Name of the Most Holy and Indivisible Trinity, we Peter the First, Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias, etc., to all our descendants and successors to the throne and government of the Russian nation:

"God, from whom we derive our existence, and to whom we owe our crown, having constantly enlightened us by His Spirit, and sustained us by His Divine help, allows me to look on the Russian people as called upon hereafter to hold sway over Europe! My reason for thus thinking is, that the European nations have mostly reached a state of old age, bordering on imbecility, or they are rapidly approaching it; naturally, then, they will easily and indubitably be conquered by a strong people in youth and vigor, especially when this latter shall have attained its full strength and power. I look on the future invasion of the eastern and western countries by the north as a periodical movement, ordained by Providence, who in like manner regenerated the Roman nation by barbarian invasions. These emigrations of men from the north are as the reflux of the Nile, which, at certain periods, comes to fertilize the impoverished lands of Egypt by its deposit. I found Russia as a rivulet, I leave it a river: my successors will make of it a large sea, destined to fertilize the impoverished lands of Europe; and its waters will overflow in spite of opposing dams, erected by weak hands, if our descendants only know how to direct its course. This is the reason I leave them the following instructions. I give these countries to their watchfulness and care, as Moses gave the Tables of the Law to the Jewish people.

I. Keep the Russian nation in a state of continual war, so as to have the soldiers always under arms and ready for action, excepting when the finances of State will not allow of it. Keep up the forces: choose the best moment for attack. By these means you will be ready for war even in the time of peace. This is for the interest of the future aggrandisement of Russia.

II. Endeavor, by every possible means, to bring in, from the neighboring civilized countries of Europe, officers in times of war, and learned men in times of peace, thus giving the Russian people the advantages enjoyed by other countries, without allowing them to lose any of their own self-respect.

III. On every occasion take* a part in the affairs and quarrels of Europe; above all, in those of Germany, which country, being the nearest, more immediately concerns us.

IV. Divide Poland, by exciting civil discord there; win over the nobility by bribery; corrupt the diets, so as to have the influence in the election of kings; get partisans into office—protect them;† bring to sojourn there the Muscovite troops, until such times as they can be permanently established there. If the neighboring powers start difficulties, appease them, for a time, by parcelling out the country, until you can retake in detail all that has been ceded.

V. Take as much as you can from Sweden; and cause yourselves to be attacked by her, so as to have a pretext for subduing her. To accomplish this, sever Denmark from Sweden, and Sweden from Denmark, carefully keeping up their rivalries.

* "To steal and to lie," said Bulharyn, one of the best Russian writers, "are the two auxiliary verbs of our language." Certainly Peter I. has made good use of them in his will, adding now and then the verbs to extend, to advance, to divide, to share, to dominate, to hector, to bully, to subdue, to corrupt, etc.

† Stanislaus Poniatowski, lover of Catherine II., and last king of Poland, was elected by the influence of the Princess Augustus and Michael Czartoryski, his parents being declared partisans of Russia.

VI. Always choose as wives for the Russian princes German princesses, so as to increase family alliances, to draw mutual interests closer, and by propagating our principles in Germany, to enlist her in our cause.

VII. England requiring us for her navy, and she being the only power that can aid in the development of ours, seek a commercial alliance with her in preference to any other. Exchange our wood and the productions of our land for her gold, and establish between her merchants, her sailors, and ours, a continual intercourse; this will aid in perfecting the Russian fleet for navigation and commerce.

VIII. Extend your possession northwards along the Baltic; and towards the south by the Black Sea.

IX. Approach as near as possible to Constantinople and its outskirts. He who shall reign there will be the true sovereign of the world. Consequently, be continually at war—sometimes with the Turks, sometimes with Persia. Establish dockyards on the Black Sea; getting entire possession of it by degrees, also of the Baltic Sea; this being necessary to the accomplishment of the plan. Hasten the decline of Persia; penetrate the Persian Gulf; re-establish, if possible, the ancient commerce of the Levant through Syria, and make your way to the Indies—they are the emporium of the world. Once there you can do without the gold of England.

X. Seek, and carefully keep up an alliance with Austria; acquiesce, apparently, in her ideas of dominating over Germany; at the same time clandestinely exciting against her the jealousy of the neighboring provinces. Endeavor that the aid of Russia should be called for by one and the other, so that, by exercising a kind of guardianship over the country, you prepare a way for governing hereafter.

XI. Give the House of Austria an interest for joining in banishing the Turks from Europe; defraud her of her share of the booty at the conquest of Constantinople, either by raising a war for her with the ancient states of Europe, or by giving her a portion which you will take back at a future period.

XII. Attach to yourselves and assemble around you, all the united Greeks, as also the disunited or schismatics which are scattered either in Hungary, Turkey, or the south of Poland. Make yourselves their centers, their chief support, and lay the foundation for universal supremacy by establishing a kind of royalty or sacerdotal government; the Slavonic Greeks will be so many friends that you will have scattered amongst your enemies.

XIII. Sweden severed, Persia and Turkey conquered, Poland subjugated, our armies reunited, the Black and Baltic Sea guarded by our vessels, you must make propositions separately and discreetly—first to the Versailles, then to that of Vienna, to share with them the empire of the universe. If one of them accept—and it can not be otherwise, so as you flatter their pride and ambition—make use of it to crush the other; then crush, in its turn the surviving one by engaging with it in a death-struggle, the issue of which can not be doubtful, Russia possessing already all the east and a great part of Europe.

XIV. If—which is not likely—both refuse the propositions of Russia, you must manage to raise quarrels for them, and make them exhaust one another, then profiting by a decisive moment, Russia will bring down her assembled troops on Germany; at the same time two considerable troops will set out—the one from the Sea of Azov, the other from the port of Archangel—loaded with Asiatic hordes, under the convoy of the armed fleet from the Black Sea and the Baltic. Advancing by the Mediterranean and the Atlantic Ocean, they will invade France on one side, while Germany will already have been invaded on the other. These countries conquered, the rest of Europe will easily pass under the yoke without striking a single blow.

XV. Thus Europe can and ought to be subdued.

(Signed),

PETER I.

Autocrat of all the Russias.

True or false—more like the former than the latter—this is the singular, one might say atrocious, bequest of concentrated wickedness left by a Russian monarch for the mention of which by the intelligent foreigner seems to exercise a similar effect upon the Russian Czar of the period, and on his high officials which the display of a red rag before the eyes of a bull accomplishes. Why this feeling of antipathy if the will and its phraseology are forgeries? Why such an expenditure of periodical indignation if the terms of the documents are in no sense an epitome of Russian policy? Fortunately for the future well-being of Europe, and notwithstanding the occasional state of anesthesia into which the governing bodies are temporarily thrown by the soft clumsy motions of The Bear, the bulk of the people are wide awake, and are never again likely to trust to the false tongue of Russia. Meanwhile her past history of fraudulent annexation on every side perfectly justified the suspicion of the people of Great Britain complained of by Emperor Alexander in 1876. The will of Peter the Great and the aims of Catherine II., may possibly be but phantoms, but certainly Russian soldiers on ordinary occasions bear

THE GUIDANCE OF HIS POSTERITY;

NO RESEMBLANCE TO GHOSTS.

Since the days of these illustrious personages the troops of the Czar have every year drawn nearer and nearer to our greatest Eastern possession, as well as to Constantinople. Nevertheless, in order to please the Czar, we are to shut our eyes and smilingly believe that Russia desires possession of neither. Plain speaking under such circumstances is best, so it is well that the Emperor should know once for all that the days for such bungling evasions are past and gone for ever. He lusts for India, the whole of Turkey, and the Balkan Peninsula, and the period seems quickly approaching when united Europe, anticipating the Apocalyptic Armageddon will be constrained to combine in driving back the great Brigand of the North.

Referring to this question, Mr. W. J. Ross, of Derry, an intelligent student of prophecy says with much sagacity:—"From many circumstances it would seem to be a warrantable conclusion that the flag of Russia will yet unfurl itself over the splendid

'GATES OF THE EAST,' CONSTANTINOPLE.

"In 1854, the Czar made a move towards what seems the ultimate destiny of the Muscovite. The massacre at Sinope was a blow struck at the vitals of the Porte. Then followed the Crimean War; but Europe shook her mailed hand in the face of the Autocrat, and compelled him, for the time, to desist from his design to annihilate the 'unspeakable Turk.' The Treaty of Paris was then wrung from the Czar, but though stained with some of the best blood of France and England, and purchased with priceless treasure, that Treaty only sealed the peace of Europe for a few short years. By that Treaty the neutrality of the Black Sea was then secured, and Russia was forbidden to float a war vessel, on its waters. Now more proudly than ever the Russian flag floats over the Euxine, and Sebastopol, demolished by the allied armies in 1856, is fortified, and made stronger than before.

WAR IS IN THE HEART OF RUSSIA,

neither promises nor entreaties can bind her. She has resolved on obtaining a southern sea-board, and is still intent on pursuing her traditional policy, which determines Constantinople as her prey. That she still intends to seize Stamboul is patent from Russia's acts in the Turkish War of 1878, which was only closed when her armies and the fleet of England were brought face to face before the walls of Constantinople. With the city in view of his troops the Muscovite was obliged, by the arm of England, to relinquish the long coveted prize. The late Lord Beaconsfield at San Stefano checkmated the Czar, and for the time secured the peace of Europe. The Treaty at Berlin will, no doubt, in turn be sacrificed as was that of Paris.

DESTINY IS STRONGER THAN PARCHMENT.

For the war of 1878 Russia's pretext was the relief of the Bulgarian Christians; that for the campaign of 1854 was the keys of a church at Jerusalem. What will the apple of discord be which will next launch the Muscovite on the war path?

"Soon, it is believed, whatever be the proximate cause, the 'Golden Gate of the East' will open for the entrance of the Prince of Rosh, and the Czar will spread his purple in the Imperial City of the Eastern Cæsars. Once at Constantinople a basis of operation for adventures in the Levant will be afforded. Want of a southern sea-board cripples Russian advances toward Palestine, but that the Muscovite aims at Zion as well as Pera is too well-known to be disputed for a single moment.

"With the prescience of genius, the master-mind of the great Napoleon grasped the destiny of Russia. While a caged eagle at St. Helena he caught sight of the political surges that would break over and wreck half the thrones of Europe, he said: 'In the course of a few years Russia will have Constantinople, part of Turkey, and all Greece. This I hold as certain as though it had already taken place. France, England, and Prussia united, could not prevent it. Once mistress of Constantinople, Russia gets all the commerce of the Mediterranean, becomes a great naval power, and God knows what may happen.

"Constantinople won, one of Russia's earliest efforts would probably be the emancipation of Jerusalem. The Greek church groans at the thought of the crescent crowning the holy places on Mount Moriah. The crescent must be supplanted by the cross. 'The profane and desecrated lands of the East, once hallowed by the tread of angels and blessed by the presence of divinity, must be recovered, and the broad highway to the sacred prize is through the fertile provinces of the Turk. Constantinople is

THE GATE TO JERUSALEM.'

Palestine is rapidly growing into the condition described by Ezeziel in the 38th chapter. In the 8th verse it is said:—"It is brought forth out of the nations, and they shall dwell safely all of them." In the 11th verse the happy and peaceful condition of the Jews is forecast, "And thou (Gog) shalt say, I will go up to the land of unwallled villages; I will go up to them that are at rest, that dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls and having neither bars nor gates, to take a spoil," &c.

At this moment Palestine is being re-peopled and colonised. Statistics show that in 1858 there were only 20,000 Jews in Palestine; in 1863, 100,000; now the number is estimated at 200,000 and upwards, and is greatly increasing.

In reply to the query, When shall these things be? it may be answered, when the double-headed eagle soars over the Bosphorus, when the crescent has been supplanted by the cross on the Mosque of Omar; when Judah's feet once more awaken the echoes of a temple dedicated to the Lord in Jerusalem (for this must take place before the final catastrophe)—then shall the epochal hour have struck for the Prince of Rosh, Meshech and Tubal to invade the land, and to receive his predicted retribution from heaven (Ezekiel 39th chapter).—Prophetic News.

SISTERS' AID SOCIETY.

The following preamble and resolution were adopted by the Sisters' Aid Society of Independence branch, at its last regular meeting, held April 8th, 1887. Whereas, we have undertaken to raise means to furnish the Saints' new church, and as we believe the Saints everywhere are interested in the work in Independence, and many are looking forward to it as their future home and would be glad to help us in our work here, and as we are getting up a bazar for that purpose, Therefore, be it resolved that we extend an invitation to the sisters everywhere to assist us by sending contributions of their work, in any line of fancy work or useful articles. We shall not get ready to hold the bazaar until sometime in the fall; so articles suitable for that season will be most acceptable, though none can scarcely send anything that will come amiss. Notice of the time of holding the bazaar will be given in the Herald when it is decided upon. A list of all articles sent will be kept with donor's name attached, and a report of them will be given, either privately or publicly. All donations and contributions should be addressed to Mrs. B. C. Smith, Box 61, Independence, Missouri.

DIED.

SHEFFORD.—March 30th, about midnight, Bro. William Shefford, the oldest citizens of Platte county, Nebraska, being in the 91st year of his age. The deceased was born in London, England, September 1st, 1796. Uniting with Christ's Church in 1850, he came to Nebraska in 1859, and went to Utah in 1862. He was baptized into the Reorganization in 1869, in Salt Lake, by Elder E. C. Brand, and returned to Columbus, where for the past eighteen years he has made his home with his daughter Sr. H. J. Hudson. He retained his faculties to the last, and was confined to his bed only about thirty hours. He bade the family good bye with a sweet smile, anxious to go to rest. A large concourse attended the funeral, the mayor, two judges and two members of the city council volunteering as pall-bearers. Elder G. W. Galley preached the funeral discourse. Bro. Shefford was faithful in his office, pure in his life, clean in his habits, sunny and cheerful in disposition, enduring to the end, in full faith of the promise to believers.

H. WASS.—At Indian River, Maine, April 8th, 1887, Sr. Betsey Wass, aged 71 years. Funeral services by S. O. Foss.

GEE.—Bro. George Gee, at Reese Creek, Montana, February 28th, 1887.

WYMER.—At Lamoni, Iowa, April 7th, 1887, after a long illness of consumption, Miss Hannah L. Wymer, aged 20 years, 5 months and 22 days. Though not a member of the Church, yet she was a pure-minded young woman, and she learned to call upon the Lord and also had the Elders pray for her. She said that should she recover she would do things that she now saw were necessary to be done. At her request her funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

HARTWELL.—In Hardin township, Pottawattomie county, Iowa, January 11th, 1887, Sr. Susan A., wife of Bro. Hiram C. Hartwell. She was born December 18th, 1843, and was baptized in March, 1869, by Elder Mark H. Forscutt. She leaves a sorrowing husband and nine children, besides many other relatives and friends. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder J. F. McDowell.

HARTWELL.—In Hardin township, Pottawattomie county, Iowa, January 23d, 1887, Margaret E., infant child of Hiram C. and the late Susan A. Hartwell. This little bud was born December 20th, 1886.

GILBERT.—At Fall River, Massachusetts, March 31st, 1887, sister Sarah Gilbert, aged 67 years. Her faith was firm in the latter day work. Elder John Gilbert, M. D., her son, was with her when she died. Funeral sermon was preached by Elder Thomas Whiting.

"She's gone! her work on earth is done;
Her battle's fought, her race is run;
Blest is the path she trod:
For she espoused the glorious cause,
In prompt obedience to the laws
Of the eternal God.

NELSON.—At the home of their parents, Omaha, Nebraska, George William, on March 19th, and Laura Amelia, on March 31st, 1887, both children of brother and sister Nelson, taken away thus near together by that terrible Spring-time scourge, lung fever. The boy was born March 3d, 1886, and the girl June 13th, 1883.

'Twas a terrible blow, 'twas hard to resign
By their parents, their loved ones, to Parent divine,
Yet with tears and with sobs, as they passed, one by one,
They cried, yet unwillingly, "God's will be done."

Funeral services at home and grave on Sundays following each death by their brother, in love and deepest sympathy, M. H. F.

NOTICES.

Many of my Welsh brethren may have a Welsh Book of Mormon, and as they have learned the English language perhaps some of them would sell it to me. If this reaches the eye of any who will sell one to me, I will be glad to buy it. I would like a book in good repair. Please address, JNO. R. WILLIAMS, 34 Avenue D., Bellevue, Scranton, Pa.

CONFUCIUS AND HIS BELIEVERS.

CONFUCIUS lived five hundred years before Christ, and his teachings and precepts from the Chinese bible held worldly advancement of little account and sought to obtain rather the moral than the material elevation of mankind. Even now few Chinese will admit that the European standard of morality is equal to their own. Christianity they consider to be a good enough religion in as far as, like Buddhism and other native cults, it teaches men to do good, but they can not see that in practice it has made much impression upon the nations of Europe. Their own country has seldom waged an offensive war, while all Europe appears to them an armed encampment. England prides herself upon her religion and her big ships of war; France sends her missionaries far into the interior, and her torpedo boats cruise around the coast and sink all the offending junks that come in their way. This is, of course, the unfavorable side of European character as it presents itself to the ordinary Chinaman. He does not, however, fail to discern our good as well as our bad points. That we are truthful he knows well by experience, and that no bribe will ever tempt an Englishman is a thing he often regrets, but never fails to admire. Though he does not altogether accept our ideas of progress, still he is willing to adopt some of our inventions. Steamers are rapidly supplanting the clumsy junks, and one very large and flourishing line is entirely supported by native capital and conducted by native talent.—The Nineteenth Century.

A DISCOVERY.—Onions inhaled cause sleep, rest, and refreshment. The soldier on his march and the exhausted iron worker get great strength from eating the onion. Tie a fresh onion around the neck and bruise it to make its odor thorough, and you secure sound sleep from its nightly inhalations.

BRIGHAMISM IN A CLOSE PLACE.

ELDER Angus M. Cannon, brother of George Q. Cannon, said in the Brighamite conference at Provo, of late:

"It is a question whether ancient Israel was in a closer place than now confronts the Saints. If the latest measure had failed in bringing the people into bondage, this failure was not to be accredited to any change in the feelings and desires of their enemies. If the people wish the incubus of oppression to be lifted and the prisons no longer to hold the servants of God, the families no longer to be scattered abroad, they have but to repent of their sins."—Deseret News.

If Mr. Cannon intended the latter half of the above to apply to those polygamists, etc, who by their false teachings and evil practices in the name of religion have brought scandal and reproach upon all who bear the name of Latter Day Saint, with smiting and chastisement upon polygamists and their abettors, then his advice is good and timely. But if he means to say (and he probably does) that polygamous Mormons are suffering persecution because of monogamous Mormons' sins, then he falsifies the plain facts in the case and would blind the people to the real fact that men of his kind have brought the pains, perplexities and tribulations of which the Utah people complain; for monogamous Mormons everywhere are suffering shame, reproach and loss, because of the abominable, criminal course of polygamous Mormons and their abettors. The bare insinuation that the monogamous Mormons are the cause of the persecutions and prosecutions against the Utah Mormons is an unmitigated and unbearable outrage, and the overruling hand of God will open the eyes of the masses of the Mormon people to this fact at no distant day. "The sinners in Zion are afraid; and fearfulness hath surprised the hypocrites;" but they must answer for their own sins and not make scapegoats of the confiding, long-suffering monogamists.

The Mormon polygamists and their helpers are in a close place, as Mr. Cannon says, and they may blame no one for it but themselves and their blind leaders. Their condition is, substantially, what we have looked for ever since 1860 and before; and knowing that wrath and tribulation awaited them unless they repented and turned heartily to the teachings and usages of the primitive saints as found in the New Testament, Book of Mormon, and Nauvoo edition of Doctrine and Covenants, the elders of the Reorganized Church, at great expense and peril, have faithfully sought to reach and reform those who were either blinded or polluted by the "grosser crimes" of polygamy and priestcraft. And while thousands have already heard them and escaped, the masses there, blinded and cowed by their leaders, have not heard, but are still in bondage and under the rod.

Brighamism is in a close place—just where it ought to be—and sensible Saints will step out of it and be safe.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. J. F. McDOWELL was at Boone, Iowa, April 20th; held meetings in the City hall and Baptist church, with good audiences and some earnest inquirers, and enjoyed excellent liberty in presenting the word.

We thank Brn. David Clow and E. Ladner for papers sent us containing accounts of Rev. M. T. Lamb's attack on the Book of Mormon. That "Rev." and his like may dash their artful periods against that book as they will, yet they and their admirers will ever find them as impotent to harm its divinely planted truths, as are the restless surging waves to beat down the eternal towering rocks of Gibraltar. God is its author; eternal truth its contents, while its purpose and mission are to teach in plain and humble terms, to Gentile and Jew, the fact that Jesus of Nazareth was and is the Messiah, the Son of God, the Savior of all men according to his glorious gospel, and that the immortality and eternal life and blessedness of man is a fact, that to this end man was created, and that in view of this God subjected the same in hope.

Bro. C. A. Bishop writes from Independence, Mo., under date of April 25th, that there is a great building boom in that city, Kansas City, and their vicinities; and that there are pressing calls for mechanics, laborers, and teams, at first-class prices.

Elder D. S. Mills reached Lamoni April the 27th, preached to an interested audience the evening of the 28th, and is under appointment for further services. He is in good health and spirits, and when he proceeds on to California will do what work he can at Elko, Carson, and their vicinities in Nevada.

Bro. A. H. Smith has moved from Independence to Andover, Harrison county, Missouri; his correspondents will therefore address him at the latter place.

Bro. J. Benner in a late letter from South Gardner, Maine, informs us that he is preparing the way there for preaching the word, and hopes good fruits will result.

By letters from Elder D. S. Mills and Bishop G. A. Blakeslee, dated Galien, Michigan, April 23d, we learn that a Rev. Hicks lectured twice against the Saints, and did much in the way of villifying the character of Joseph Smith and others.

Elder Columbus Scott replied effectively in three lectures, after which Bishop Blakeslee baptized two persons, at whose confirmation the Holy Spirit was poured out in great measure, so that "some not of the church wept and glorified God for the wonderful power which his Spirit manifested."

Bro. Mills says Elder Scott's replies to Mr. Hicks won a glorious victory for the truth, and that "many of the people are pleased and the Saints are jubilant."

God has promised to sustain his faithful ministry when humbly proclaiming his saving truth, and we have never known of a failure except when the ministry failed to comply with the imposed conditions. "When ye do what I say, then am I bound; otherwise ye have no promise," is the word of the Lord to his servants.

IN the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer for April 24th, we find the following in respect to President Joseph Smith and his purpose to lecture in that city.

"JOSEPH THE PROPHET."

"It is not every day that the people of Cleveland have the opportunity of seeing and listening to a prophet and the son of a prophet. They will have that opportunity the present week, as Joseph Smith, the head and prophet of the Reorganized Church of the Latter Day Saints and the son of the founder of Mormonism, is to deliver three lectures in this city in the latter part of the week on the subject of Mormonism. The first of the three lectures will be given in music hall on Thursday evening, the subject being "The Faith Once Delivered to the Saints." In this he will give an exposition of the Mormon doctrine as it is held by the members of the Reorganized Church and as he claims it was originally held by the Mormons, the tenets so objectionable to the American people having been interpolated by the Brighamites. It is not unlikely that in the later lectures he will have something to say concerning those interpolations, such as the practice of polygamy and the horrible doctrine of blood atonement which is responsible for so many tragic crimes committed by the Utah Mormons.

"It is but simple justice to the present Joseph Smith to say that he is an intelligent, earnest, conscientious man, evidently sincere in his peculiar belief, of unsullied purity in his life and free from all taint or suspicion of mercenary motives in his connection with the church of which he is the head prophet and seer. He and his followers have no part in the immoral and disloyal teachings and practices of the Utah Mormons, each of the two bodies of Mormons looking on the other as apostate. A searching analysis of Utah Mormonism at the hands of the head of the other branch of the Mormon church, and the son of the founder of Mormonism, would naturally be of greater interest and value than a violent denunciation of the polygamous branch by a Gentile, who could only study the institution from the outside, no matter how long he had lived among the people."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

President Joseph Smith writes us from Kirtland, Ohio, April 26th:

We had a fine meeting morning and evening here, Sunday 24th, though the day was cloudy and dull and cold. There has not been a single day pleasant enough for me to venture to go to Little Mountain.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Human hearts remain unchanged;
The sorrow and the sin,
The loves and hopes and fears of old,
Are to our own akin."

"SIMON, I HAVE SOMEWHAT TO SAY UNTO THEE.

ALL day, from the dewy morn until the blazing sun stood high in mid heaven over the hills of Judea, had the Master stood, instructing, comforting, cheering and healing all who came to him, bearing, as the prophet had foretold, our infirmities. Upon beds and crutches they came to him, but returned to their home walking and even leaping in their joy. The blind had come groping their way or led by the hand of friendship, but now they return with beaming eyes gazing in astonishment upon the beautiful world in which they have dwelt so long shut out from all these glorious sights now bursting upon their vision; lepers so long shut out from the abodes of man, shunned and wretched, seek him, and lo, they see their flesh restored to them even as in the joyous days when they dwelt at home surrounded by kindred and friends, and they hasten away to offer the gift for their cleansing, praising God as they go. Groups come and depart, followed closely by others, but still the Savior stands at his post. The air is hot with direct rays from the sun, the sand beneath his feet burns through his sandals and his limbs are weary, but still the multitude throng him and still he heals them with a word from his lips or a touch of his hand. Touched with his patient goodness, one at length drew near him and desired that he should eat with him. Weary and faint the Master obeyed the summons and entered the Pharisee's house and partook of the offered food. While he was reclining at meat there came a woman having a box of ointment, and going behind Jesus she kissed his feet, and after washing them with tears, wiped them with the hairs of her head and anointed them with the ointment. The Pharisee who had bidden Jesus said within himself, "If this man were a prophet he would know who, and what manner of woman this is, for she is a sinner." No thought crossed his mind of his own neglected duties, no sense of gratitude that the Savior had so honored him as to sit at his table, but instead thereof, unspoken doubts and cold criticism. If he were a prophet he would know.

"Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee."

"Master," was his answer, "say on."

Then Jesus propounded to him the question in regard to whose love would be the greater, one to whom much had been forgiven or one to whom little, and he was constrained to answer, "I suppose he to whom he forgave most." When the Master had commended the truthfulness of this answer, he proceeded to show Simon in what way it had been demonstrated: It is usual for the host to welcome his honored guest with a kiss, but thou hast given me none, neither water for my dusty, aching feet, and my fevered, throbbing head thou didst not anoint, but this woman hath washed my feet with tears, and the kiss which you refused your guest she has not ceased to bestow upon my feet since I came in, "Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins which are many, are forgiven, for she loved much; but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little."

What a lesson is conveyed in these words of our Savior, and with what force it should come to each heart that has ever professed its love for him. Like Simon we invite him into our house, and after refusing him the common civilities offered to an ordinary guest; we criticize those who through greater love, undertake to do the things which we in our cold indifference have omitted to do.

He is with us to-day, just as truly as he was the guest of Simon in that day, long years gone by. With us not only by the power of His Spirit, but by the delegated mystery of his love, which says, "Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." The voice of the Master has been heard and the command has come for his servants to leave kindred, home and friends to declare the gospel. Shall they and their loved ones be the only ones to sacrifice? Sisters, have we no part and lot in this matter? Let us call to mind the mercies, the tender forbearance with which all our life long He has led us, watching over us by night and by day. Let us remember the times when he has left the ninety and nine safe in the fold, and amid storm and tempest has gone forth following our wandering feet. With what tender love He has folded us close to his warm, pitying heart, nor left us until we were safe again in the fold. Have we no oil for the head which won the crown of cruel thorns, no water for the bleeding hands and feet? Let us not be weary in well doing. God is moving to the accomplishment of his purposes—moving with a purpose not to be misunderstood, and the time has come when the arm of man can no longer stay it, and happy that one who finds himself in harmony with it. It is a time when many are asking, "Shall I be able to stand amid the events of the near future, the day of the Lord's preparation?"

LAMONI, IOWA, April 27th, 1887.

ZIONA, Tahiti, March 8th.

Dear Sisters and Mothers:—I have just finished reading Sister Emma's letter, and I with her, believe that the Home Column will be a success, and think it adds greatly to the value and usefulness of the Herald. It would be a good thing for the young people to read the thoughts of Mothers concerning them. The mothers are helped by the experience and counsel of others, and it will help them be wise and careful, and exert the right influence over their little ones. I can say for one I have been aided by the counsel given. The Herald is very dear to me, and particularly since I came here; as I have no one to converse with in my own language, and when I read the letters of the sisters, as I am personally acquainted with many that write, and I know that their thoughts are worthy of our consideration and respect.

I was surprised when I read that sister Bourgouin had paid so far ahead for the Hope, as she is a hard working sister, and earns her money with her needle, and pays rent, and supports her husband, who is afflicted; and she takes the Herald and Hope, besides lending a helping hand wherever she sees it is needed. When on my way to this field I stopped in St. Joseph and there I got me two lawn dresses suitable for this climate, and I went to her, to cut and fit them, as she is a good dress maker. She not only cut and fitted them, but made them up, with the help of a dear young sister, Thiza Schmidt, (if she sees this letter I hope she will send me her address as I wrote to her, but received no answer; it was nearly two years ago), and as I was saying, she not only made them, but refused to take pay for her work. But she is always doing some kind act, and she will have her reward, if not in this world, in that which is to come. She is afflicted with deafness, and has not the pleasure of listening to the preaching of the word, and understands only as she sees the movement of the lips of the speaker, like sister Kearney. I can not see how they and others can be so patient, unless it is that they live so very near the Lord that they are continually led by the Holy Spirit. The last named sister also did some sewing for me, on my way to this land. I was helped and provided for all along the way by the dear sisters; and not only then, but in times past; and since I have come to this land they have sent papers, and books, and cards, and the Hope. Sister Eliza Dingle, of Montana, continually remembers us in one way or another.

I feel very thankful for all the kindness shown us. I have just seen what sister Frances wrote, "Can we and shall we." I should love to comply with the request, as I have just enough money that I earned this week with my needle, as I made two shirts, and got forty cents, and I am nearly forty-seven years old; but how can I send it; this French money is not good in America, and I haven't other, so I shall have to wait until I come back, or get American paper money.

I am pleased to see the work progressing; and when I read the letters in the Herald, and see the fulfillment of prophecy spoken years ago, it gives me great comfort. Six years ago, when in Pittsburg, I had a vision while in church, and saw brother Salyards, then just ordained a Teacher, in the stand preaching, and his face was transparent, and his voice was powerful, and a voice said, "He shall stand as his father before him, blest with the same office;" and you all know that he was appointed last year to the quorum of the Seventies. How can we doubt the word of the Lord, the gifts of the gospel? and I also see that brother Bozarth is doing a good work. In 1883 he was greatly afflicted almost the whole year, so he could not preach, on account of his voice, and he was spoken to by the gift of prophecy, that if he would continue faithful and trust in the ordinances of the house of God, calling on the elders, he should yet preach to many in his own neighborhood and elsewhere, and the work should prosper there, and that he should have many friends there. All these things help to strengthen me, as I ponder over the blessings of God in days that are past.

We do much miss the society of the Saints; that is, those that we can converse with on religious subjects. I can talk quite well with the natives, but, alas, they do not seem to know anything of the power and operations of the Holy Spirit. I can not account for this, unless they do not live worthy of the Spirit; I know that I could never receive that blessing, living as nearly all of them do. There are just a very few in every place who are really deserving of the sacrifices we have to make for their benefit. If we could only see some expression of gratitude, or some evidence that they appreciate our toils, care and self-denial, endured for them, it would help to make the mission more endurable. Discouraging as it is, we both are as confident now, as we were when we first came, that it was God's will that we should come here; and I believe that we have done our duty here.

Our little native girl, Emma, who is about five years old, talks with us now nearly as well as if she was born in America. She is very anxious to go to America, but it is doubtful if her father would give her up. I do not see how that I can part with her either.

I hope you, dear sisters, will earnestly pray for us. Our lot is not a pleasant one here, altogether, I assure you. We have to deny ourselves of many comforts and conveniences, and do not always have everything we need. I believe I would walk a hundred miles, if it took me a month to do it, to attend one good meeting with the Saints, such as you have every week in nearly every branch. Your sister in Christ,

HELEN P. SMITH.

Correspondence.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, March 4th.

Bro. Joseph:—The steamer "Raiatea," from San Francisco to Tahiti, burned at sea about six hundred miles from here, with all mail that reached San Francisco from the first to the twenty-fifth of January. The first three numbers of Herald and of the Hope, January Expositor, and all letters and papers that reached San Francisco from January 1st to 25th are lost. We did not receive a letter or a paper by the sailing vessel that left California on February 1st, except Herald of January 22d, and Hope of 27th of January, and the Salt Lake Tribune of January 27th, and a package of picture cards from Sioux City, Iowa, we think. I think that we will not remain here longer than the 1st of May. We will go sooner if help comes from Australia to assist in paying our fare.

Your brother in Christ,
T. W. SMITH.

The report of H. A. Stebbins, Church Secretary and Recorder, was read.

The report of committee on credentials showed that the Eastern Iowa and Des Moines districts were entitled to twenty-one votes; which, under an amendment to the rules of representation stating that no one delegate should be permitted to cast more than twenty votes, would not permit J. S. Roth, delegate present, to cast the full vote of the two districts, it was moved that the delegate be restricted to twenty votes. This was spoken to by Brn. E. L. Kelley and J. H. Lake, and upon vote prevailed.

Question being raised respecting the number of votes to be permitted under the rules to the delegate from Utah, he having been chosen to represent two districts. After which it was moved that the delegate from the Independence district be restricted to the twenty votes provided for in the rules; until other delegates should arrive, there being but one present at the time. This was discussed by Brn. E. L. Kelley and J. Luff, and was passed.

Reports from the field of ministerial labor were received. Of the Twelve: J. H. Lake, Thomas W. Smith, James Caffall, J. R. Lambert, A. H. Smith.

The following communication from the First Presidency was received and read:

To the brethren in Conference assembled, the First Presidency, in Greeting, present:—

We feel justified in congratulating you that there has been a decided gain and advancement in church work during the conference year just past.

The net gain in membership, as the Secretary's report will show is 1,306.

The total of the Bishop's receipts show an increase of property to the value of $7,542,89.

The cash receipts during the year are about $30,000, in round numbers. There has been a marked increase in the receipts of the Herald Office of nearly 29 per cent over last year, cash receipts; showing a healthy increase in the subscription lists, and an encouraging growth in the business of the office. The gain in bills receivable is something over five per cent.

These but show the increase of temporalities; but the increase on the spiritual side of the work has not been less marked than on the temporal side.

At the close of the last session there existed cause to fear a considerable loss in membership by defection following in the lead of those brethren who withdrew from us during the session. The loss from this cause has been but slight; though we regret that there has been any, the persons who were affected and withdrew being of good intention and good report, so far as known to us. The brothers Z. H. and E. H. Gurley have done some preaching in and around Pleasanton and Lamoni, Iowa, during the year; but to what result we are not fully prepared to estimate, other than that the effect wrought upon the mass of the members has been to the confirming of their faith in the calling and work of the Reorganization. We think this is the result at Pleasanton, the home of Elder Z. H. Gurley, and at Lone Rock and other points in Missouri, where Elder E. H. Gurley has spoken, and at Lamoni. Whatever else may be said, while the work to be done by the elders of the church may have been made more difficult, the cause has not been checked, nor any serious inroads made upon the numbers and faith of the body.

The effort lately made by Elder David Whitmer, J. C. Whitmer, J. J. Snyder and W. P. Brown, to create a diversion from the faith as held by us has not met the success which it may well be believed those who made it thought it entitled to, though it has been annoying to some and in that sense hurtful. We are informed of but few of the members who have been seriously affected by the statements of Elder Whitmer so far as made. What may be in reserve to be said we are not informed, and can not venture to offer a surmise either as to its nature or the course to be pursued by the eldership in view of it. Elder W. P. Brown baptized one at Lamoni, Iowa, and a number at, or near Cameron, Ontario, from those who were at the time, or had been members with us. Aside from these we are not aware that the faith of the Saints has been turned away from the truth as held by the church.

The outlook as presented by letters to us from every quarter of the field is a very encouraging one.

Australia under the ministry of Bro. Joseph F. Burton offers an attractive field.

The Society Islands, under Bro. T. W. Smith seems to offer an opportunity for considerable increase, but requires much labor.

The English Mission shows an increased vigor and changed prospects for the better.

If practicable the mission in Germany and Denmark should be strengthened. There are several brethren who are available for the Danish field, if it be decided to prosecute it anew.

From every part of the American field, with one exception, there are the most flattering reports. Alabama presents a stagnant condition. No labor of moment has been done there for the past two years; and there is great need of active missionary work being done there.

The work of the Reorganized Church in Utah never needed more careful and wise effort than now. The events of the past year have been peculiar, and favorable for a better hearing for our cause than for years back; and we believe the work should be continued there.

The circumstances surrounding the laborers in the field during the year have been conducive to an increase of knowledge regarding the history of the church in the past, and of the work demanded of the eldership. They have also tended to a better understanding among the laborers, and consequently to a better unity of opinion and feeling than has heretofore existed.

The attitude of the Government toward Utah calls for the most careful consideration and wise action on our part, that we may avoid undue prejudice against the people of the territory on the one part, and undue zeal as citizens of the United States, on the other part, by which our attitude of advisers of that which is good to those suffering justly under the laws may not be put in jeopardy.

We are not advised of any change to be made in the quorums, not having received direction in this regard.

We do not deem it wise that there should be any change in the mission fields of the general officers of the church, so far as we are informed. In all of them we believe good and efficient work has been done.

Commending the work to the care of the Master we are, in Christ, your servants,

JOSEPH SMITH,
W. W. BLAIR.

MISSIONARY REPORTS.

Of the Seventy: Joseph F. Burton, of the Australian Mission. R. J. Anthony and J. C. Clapp of the Rocky Mountain Mission. Heman C. Smith, Pacific Slope Mission.

A short recess was had and the audience rose and sung "Come, come, ye Saints," and the reading of reports was resumed. John Smith, Thomas Daley, E. C. Brand, I. N. Roberts, F. M. Sheehy, B. V. Springer, W. J. Smith, A. H. Parsons, W. M. Rumel, A. J. Moore, R. C. Evans, (Canada), E. M. Wildermuth, Henry Kemp, H. N. Hansen, Peter Anderson.

The presiding officer stated that the order of the meetings would be: Prayer and testimony at 9, a. m., of each day; preaching at 10:30; business session to begin at 1:30 each afternoon, and preaching at 7:30 in the evening, and on Sunday at 10:30 a. m., and at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. In pursuance of this order, brother Hiram Rathbun, of Lansing, Michigan, was appointed to speak in the evening, to be assisted by brother C. J. Hunt, of Deloit, Iowa.

At the evening service in the audience room on the first floor of the Temple, Bro. Rathbun was met by a fair audience; and despite the weariness of an all night's trip on the cars, preached an interesting discourse from the text, "And now little children, abide in him." (1 John 2: 28). He was assisted by Bro. C. J. Hunt.

THURSDAY, APRIL 7TH.

The morning prayer service was in charge of Bro. John Chisnall, of Kewanee, Ill., and David Chambers, of Persia, Iowa.

At 10:30, Bro. Isaac M. Smith, of Tunnel Hill, Ill., preached to an appreciative congregation; and was assisted by Bro. W. W. Whiting, of Dow City, Iowa.

The afternoon session for business began promptly at 1:30, Bro. W. W. Blair in charge. The audience sung, "Jesus lover of my soul;" prayer was offered by Bro. R. M. Elvin; the minutes of the session of the 6th were read and some necessary corrections were made.

BISHOP'S REPORT.

The Report of Bishop Geo. A. Blakeslee was read; and upon motion was referred to a committee of three, appointed upon nomination and vote, consisting of brethren John Smith, James Moler and R. M. Elvin.

KIRTLAND, Ohio, April 7th.

To the president and brethren in conference assembled:—

Herewith I am permitted to hand you an itemized report of the receipts and expenditures of tithes and offerings to the church treasury for the fiscal year just past.

I would call the attention of the eldership to the request made by those conducting the Sisters Home Missionary collection, through the secretary, Sr. Walker, as all the requirements asked so far as habits of the minister is concerned, are so reasonable, and in harmony with the law, as to make the same happily applicable to all of the eldership, whether they are receiving aid from this fund or not; and while it is hardly practicable even if advisable to undertake, to specially appertain and divide this fund, restricting it to a few chosen elders, we can make the suggestion, as to its use, apply in a general sense to all, and thus a moral as well as a Spiritual growth be attained, that must be specially approved by the Saints everywhere. The letter is herewith presented, to which attention is invited:

LAMONI, Iowa,

BISHOP G. A. BLAKESLEE, Dear Brother:—Enclosed you will please find draft for $411.41, being the aggregate amount of contributions to the "Home Column Missionary Fund" from November 27th, 1886, to March 26th, 1887, a period covering not quite five months. In presenting this to you, the duly accredited steward of the Lord, we wish upon behalf of those who have made up this fund to say a few words in regard to its disposal. It being purely a free will offering we feel greater liberty in so doing than we otherwise should. We wish through you, to state to the conference that we shall be pleased to know who are the recipients of this fund, for as it is given for the sole purpose of spreading the gospel, we desire to know the success attending its recipients and to be encouraged to further efforts by hearing from them occasionally, as opportunity may offer, and we would respectfully request that no elder addicted to the use of tobacco be the recipient of any part of this money. Furthermore, as very many who have contributed to this have expressed an earnest desire that our elders should manifest a greater interest in the spiritual welfare of the sheep and lambs within the fold, we do most earnestly entreat that our color-bearers shall remember that while the gospel is to be preached to the nations of the earth, God never intended his flock to go unfed, as witness John 21:15-18, also Acts 20:28. We as mothers feel that we have need of all the encouragement which can be given us, and nothing would be more strengthening than an occasional sermon from our pastors upon our duties as parents and as members of His church and kingdom. Finally, through you, Bro. Blakeslee, we wish to entreat our elders in conference assembled, that the home field may be more thoroughly supplied. That each one may at least enter into an examination with his own conscience and answer there-to as to whether he is guiltless upon this point. How many sermons has he ever addressed to the young—how many to the older ones—bearing upon their duties as members of God's church and kingdom? No body or member of a body can grow and thrive unless provided with proper food, and as overseers of God's husbandry, we as mothers in Zion appeal to you that you obey the words of Jesus as recorded in John. Doctrine is good and obedience thereto necessary to salvation, but is there not "a sincere milk of the word" necessary to growth in grace and spiritual life? Trusting to be able to contribute fully as much in the coming months as in those just past, we place this fund in your hands to be used in sustaining in the ministry such elders as the conference in their wisdom may see fit to appoint.

On behalf of the sisters of the "Home Column." I am most respectfully yours,

M. WALKER.

I have had occasion heretofore to call attention of the body to the necessity of making provision for the care of the poor of the church. This necessity is growing day by day and it is hoped that the conference may act upon the matter at once. Asking for the financial showing a careful examination on the part of the Saints.

ASA S. COCHRAN, Secretary.

On motion brethren M. H. Bond, of Lisbon Falls, Me., A. Barr, of Sanilac, Michigan, and R. S. Salyards, were appointed such committee.

Bro. M. T. Short and others discussed the propriety of there being a more explicit statement of the wages of the employees at the Herald Office; as it had been suggested that some were receiving a higher rate of compensation than was necessary, or than was in proportion to the support received by their brethren in the ministerial field. It was thought that the committee ought to be instructed to make inquiry and report to the body at this session in regard to the matter of wages, &c. The following was moved:

That the committee on the Report of Secretary of Board of Publication be instructed to enquire into the amount of wages paid to employees in the Herald Office by the Board, and report to this body any undue or excessive sums in the wages so paid.

On separate motion, J. H. Peters, of East Lake, Mich., and R. M. Elvin were added to the above named committee.

The committee on compilation and publication of Resolutions of General Conference reported; and by proper motion by R. M. Elvin and E. L. Kelley was made the special order for Saturday, April 10th, at two p. m.. The report is as follows:

LAMONI, Iowa, March 28th.

To the General Conference of April, 1887, Greeting:—As your committee appointed last April to examine the compilation of acts and resolutions of the General Conferences, and to recommend action, we hereby report, namely, That upon considering the matter and the historical worth of this record of past proceedings, we recommend that the whole compilation be published, either in a book by itself or bound with the next edition of the "Rules of Order." If this latter method is practicable we favor it.

We further recommend that the first "Rules of Representation" be inserted in the proper place, so that the steps the church took in that direction may also be at hand with other matter, together with the amendments that were made, a copy of all which we enclose herewith.

We also copy the resolution adopted at the conference of 1886, that they may be compiled with that which has gone before, if it meet your approval to so compile and publish.

We do not think it necessary to include in this book the acts in regard to the boundaries of Missions and Districts, for in the possible chance for controversy upon the subjects the rules can be easily found, and the interest in the matter is limited, as we think, and only local.

Our opinion is that the whole should be printed in the order of their dates, not divided into two parts, as proposed by the former committee, because it is not possible with some resolutions to tell just which class they should be placed with. Further, their reading will be consecutive as we propose them, will take no more space, and also a thorough index of them will readily show every reader just where to find what he seeks, as well as if classed in two parts.

Respectfully submitted,
H. A. STEBBINS, }
J. H. HANSEN, } Committee.
A. S. COCHRAN, }

A communication from the Twelve present, was read, and ordered spread upon the minutes.

To the Presidency and brethren in conference assembled:—

We, of the quorum of the Twelve, report to your honorable body, that we are now ready and willing to transact such business as may be properly referred to us in our present condition, being but five in number. We note with gladness the progress made in the general work, but can but regret our inability to perform important work, which seems so essential to the present and future safety and prosperity of the cause. We earnestly call your attention to the present condition of our quorum. We have but seven members, one of whom is in a distant land. Thus you will see that the second quorum of the church, as a quorum, does not exist in the land of America. Will your honorable body adopt such measures as you may deem proper, with a view to bettering our condition. We deem this as important a matter as can engage the attention of the conference; and we believe that God is willing to hear our prayer, and relieve us from this embarrassment.

JAMES CAFFALL, Acting Sec.

The reading of ministerial reports was resumed:—Of the Twelve: E. C. Briggs, Wm. H. Kelley; of the High Priests: C. Derry, D. S. Mills; of the Seventy: L. R. Devore, G. H. Hilliard, J. S. Roth, I. N. White, G. S. Hyde. W. T. Bozarth, I. L. Bear, M. H. Bond, J. C. Foss, M. T. Short, C. Scott, Evan A. Davies, G. T. Griffiths, R. S. Salyards, Elder Alfred White.

By request of Pres. J. Smith, the congregation rose and sang "Burst ye Emerald Gates," after which the reading of reports was continued. English Mission and Thomas Taylor of Birmingham, England, Samuel Brown (Canada), J. A. McIntosh, A. Haws (Oregon), J. R. Badham (Cal.), A. J. Cato, G. T. Chute, F. P. Scarcliff, H. C. Bronson, R. M. Elvin, E. L. Kelley, H. Rathbun, H. H. Robinson, J. J. Cornish, W. E. Peak, J. W. Wight, F. M. Cooper.

Special prayer was requested for Sr. Childs, of New York.

The request of Margaret D. Herrick of Newark, Mo., to be received into fellowship on her original baptism was received, having been sent by Bro. H. C. Bronson, of St. Joseph, Mo. This request was granted by the uplifted hand, and it was ordered that her name be enrolled on the General Record of names.

The name of Almira A. Johnson was presented by Bro. R. M. Elvin, with her request that she be received on her original baptism, and she was received by the uplifted hand, her name ordered enrolled.

Bro. J. J. Cornish was appointed for the evening service, to be assisted by Bro. A. White; which appointment was filled by the brethren named.

FRIDAY, APRIL 8TH.

Prayer service at 9, a. m. was presided over by Bro. Hiram Rathbun. At 10:30 Bro. M. T. Short preached to the assembly and was aided by Bro. T. J. Beatty.

At 1:30, after prayer by Bro. J. S. Roth, conference resumed business; Pres. W. W. Blair in the chair.

The minutes were read, corrected and approved.

The following resolution was presented by order of the Seventy.

Whereas, the depleted condition of the Quorum of the Twelve, and the important character of work needing to be done by it, has led the present members thereof to request this body to take some action regarding it, and

Whereas, they have expressed a belief that God is willing to hear and answer our prayers at this time regarding the matter, and

Whereas, the Quorum of Seventy have expressed anxiety in the same direction; therefore, be it

Resolved, that we unitedly ask the President of the Church to present the case again before the Lord, and that we, also, go before the Lord in earnest, humble prayer and fasting, that He may give instruction regarding this matter, and all other matters representing present need for further revelation to His Church.

JOSEPH LUFF,
G. T. GRIFFITHS.

An appeal to conference for investigation and relief from a ruling by the Bishop was presented by Bro. E. C. Brand, which was upon proper motion referred to a committee of three, appointed by the presiding officer, consisting of brethren A. White, S. Maloney and C. A. Beebe; committee to examine and report.

Bro. D. S. Mills, Santa Ana, Cal., presented a matter of statement and inquiry respecting some property formerly deeded to the church by Sr. Lydia Rebbeck, of Los Angeles, Cal. A paper from Bro. Heman C. Smith, in charge of the mission, concerning the same matter, was read:

I wish to submit for your consideration a matter which has arisen in the Pacific Slope, demanding, I think, some action by your body.

High Priest, H. P. Brown, president of Oakland branch, an attorney at law and member of the State and Federal Courts in the States of Iowa and California, has decided as the result of his legal research that the church can not hold property in California through the Bishop, as trustee-in-trust; claiming that an incorporation in Illinois does not make them an incorporate body in California; hence the necessity of incorporating Oakland branch before building a church edifice. The church holds considerable property in the State deeded to the Bishop as trustee, and I have been appealed to by several to know what should be done; and not being lawyer enough to decide, I present the matter to your body, praying that you will order an investigation made; and if you find Bro. Brown correct, that you take measures to legally secure other property now held by the church in California; and if you find him incorrect that you take steps to have the Oakland property properly turned over to the church.

Respectfully submitted,
HEMAN C. SMITH,
President Pacific Slope Mission.

Reports were read from: J. W. Gillen, Duncan Campbell, James Moler, F. C. Warnky; the secretary of the English Mission, including a request that Bro. Thomas Taylor, of Birmingham, England, be sustained in charge:

I am instructed by our last annual conference to write your honorable body, that should Elder Thomas Taylor consent to remain in charge, it is the express desire of this mission that he be continued therein. These requests and views are made with all due deference to your honor and integrity, but in full confidence that we who are on the ground are better able to judge the requirements of the mission than those who know little, if anything of the country. C. H. CATON.

Reports and requests for return of laborers were read. From the Nodaway, Missouri, district, for laborers:

The district has during the past four years paid into the general church treasury, as per records of conference minutes, over $650. The district is in need of help from General Conference Missionaries; and at the last session of its conference it was Resolved, "That the secretary in his written report to the General Conference, request of the conference to take into consideration our need of laborers in the district, and provide for the same, to the extent of their ability to do so, by sending missionaries to labor in the district.

From the Texas Central district, that Bro. I. N. Roberts be continued in the South-Western Mission; and the appointment of Bro. J. A. Currie to the same mission.

We the Texas Central District of the South-Western Mission, petition your honorable body to continue Bro. I. N. Roberts in charge of the South-Western Mission, and that you appoint J. A. Currie, jr., to a mission under him. Done by order of the Texas Central District on the 5th of March, 1887.

From the Eastern Iowa district, for the return of J. S. Roth to labor in the mission:

The district is in sore need of labor; teaching as well as preaching. The Saints for the most part, desiring the progress of the work and willing to aid, ask this conference to grant the request expressed in resolution at its district conference, viz, the appointment of Bro. J. S. Roth to labor here during the ensuing year. He having labored some for us, baptized four, Warren Turner four, W. T. Maitland four, and M. T. Short five. Many places calling for the word. We sorely need help.

From the Massachusetts district, for the return of Bro. M. H. Bond to labor in that mission:

During the past year we have been favored with the labors of missionaries Frank M. Sheehy, and Myron H. Bond; also with the labors of local brethren, who have been diligent in preaching the word, of whom we may mention: Thomas Whiting, E. N. Webster, C. E. Brown and A. W. Glover; also in the branches the presidents and branch officers have done what they could to keep up the interest in the work. Never in the history of the work in our district has there been such a demand for preaching as at present. I would ask that you return Elder Myron H. Bond to his former field of labor; and suggest the appointment of Elder Thomas Whiting, to labor in our district; he is a promising young man, sound in the faith and doctrine, and fully capable of representing this work before any intelligent community. His reputation as a laborer is well known by all who have visited the district. Our membership is near seven hundred, and on the increase; and we ask of your honorable body to do what you can to help us to prosecute this great work in the East, to the salvation of our fellow men.

From the Reese Creek, Montana, branch, for the return of Bro. R. J. Anthony to the Rocky Mountain mission:

Resolved, that said branch invite the General Conference to return our Bro. R. J. Anthony to our mission for the ensuing year. The same was duly put to vote and unanimously carried, and secretary duly authorized to notify you.

From the Southren California district, that Bro. Heman C. Smith be continued in charge of the mission:

We your petitioners composing the Southern District conference of California, do hereby most respectfully represent to your honorable body, that whereas our missionary in charge of this field, Elder Heman C. Smith is here in our midst, actively engaged in the duties of his office, and being acquainted with our situation; withal being held in our highest confidence and esteem, we therefore do most positively consider it to be essential for the welfare and prosperity of the work, that he remain and be continued in this field, in charge of said mission. We, therefore, do most earnestly pray your honorable body to so continue him. Trusting that the wisdom of heaven may guide and ever bless you in all your deliberations and acts, your petitioners will ever pray.

From Clitherall, Minnesota, for the return of Bro. H. L. Holt in Minnesota:

We the undersigned Saints of the Northern Minnesota district, do petition and pray you to send Bro. H. L. Holt to this district to labor this year, providing he is at conference. If not, please send some one you think best qualified for this field, as it is a rather hard field for an elder in the Winter, as it is very cold here.

From citizens of Scott township, Northern Indiana district, for the return of Bro. B. V. Springer to that field:

We, the undersigned citizens of Scott township, petition you to send B. V. Springer back to this work, another year at least.

From Box Elder, Colorado, for laborers.

The following paper from the Northern California district was read:

The following preamble and resolution were read and unanimously adopted at our district conference, held at Sacramento, March 11th to 13th, 1887.

Whereas, the Northern district of California has from time to time, by tithing and freewill offerings placed in the hands of the Bishop's Agent in said district large sums of money, and

Whereas, very much of said money has been used from time to time, by the Bishop, to assist to carry missionaries to distant fields, and to be used east, and thereby depleting the treasury in this district, to the extent that the work of the Lord in this district has been badly crippled by lack of funds to place the elders, or any considerable part of them in the field and properly sustain them. And,

Whereas, it is the sense of this conference that the interests of the church in this district have not been properly attended to, and that we believe that a large portion of the money paid into the hands of the Bishop's Agent in this district is absolutely needed here, and ought in justice to us, be used here for the support of our poor and the work of the ministry. Therefore, be it

Resolved by this conference, that we do respectfully, yet earnestly petition and pray the Bishop, and the Twelve, to allow the money in the hands of the Bishop's Agent, and whatever may be hereafter paid into his or her hands, to be used for the benefit of our own poor, and the work of the ministry in this district, until such times as it shall be just and equitable to divert it to other purposes and other plans.

Brethren W. H. Kelley and M. H. Bond moved that it be referred to the Twelve and Bishopric; which was spoken to by brethren W. H. Kelley, D. S. Mills, E. L. Kelley, G. A. Blakeslee, John Smith, M. T. Short and J. Luff. Brethren J. R. Lambert and W. W. Blair moved to amend by adding: "And that they be required to report to this body." This amendment was adopted, upon the call for the previous question; and upon the same order for the question, the motion to refer was put to vote and was denied.

Brn. E. L. Kelley and M. H. Bond then presented the following:

Moved that the request of the Northern California District touching a lack of ministerial aid be supplied at the earliest time those in charge of such work find it practicable; and that it is the mind of this conference that all moneys coming into the church treasury are to be expended at the discretion of those who are held responsible before the Lord therefor; subject to inquiry by the body in cases of misappropriation.

This motion prevailed.

A list of names of priests, teachers and deacons, who desire to be enrolled in quorums sent by the Secretary of the Church, was read and the action of conference asked for.

Priests:—Walter H. Barrett, Newton W. Best, E. D. Bennett, Wm. F. Clark, B. W. Dempster, F. G. Dungee, Ulysses W. Green, J. L. Gunsolly, Asel Hall, Hugh Havey, C. N. Hutchins, David E. Lander, Samuel Lovett, George W. Parks, Curtis Randall, D. S. Seavey, J. A. Stromberg, P. W. Surbrook.

Teachers:—J. B. Cline, John Coiner, D. S. Condit, Isaac Cramer, J. W. Dumbauld, George W. Leach, Lyman Little, J. F. McKenna, J. M. Mills, C. C. Nelson, F. W. J. Ode, J. T. Richards, W. B. Thatcher, A. R. Wilcox, John F. A. Smith.

Deacons:—John M. Bass, C. J. Nethercott, Charles Householder, A. B. Pierce, Thos. D. Raper, B. F. Renfroe, Loren D. Sperry.

Bro. E. C. Brand and others moved that the secretary be instructed to enroll the names; but S. Maloney and E. L. Kelley thought it better that it be referred to the Twelve for their examination and recommendation, and so moved; which motion to refer was on successive votes adopted, and the matter so referred.

The resolution presented from the Seventy was taken up on call of members, was re-read and adopted.

The following was then moved by R. S. Salyards and W. T. Bozarth:

Whereas, we have by resolution decided to petition the Lord to manifest his will concerning the condition of the Quorum of Twelve, and other matters, etc., therefore;

Resolved, That we as a body observe tomorrow, Saturday, as a day of fasting and prayer to that end.

It was thought by some that it would be better to observe Sunday, but the resolution was agreed to without change, after consideration, and it was so ordered.

A statement from Bro. Wm. Leeka, of the Fremont District, asking that Bro. H. Kemp be appointed to that district, was read and on motion referred to the Twelve.

Statistical reports were read from South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, Far West, and St. Louis, Missouri, and South Eastern Illinois districts, and ordered placed on minutes.

Far West district contains eight branches: St. Joseph, Stewartsville, Dekalb, Pleasant Grove, German Stewartsville, Far West, Delano, Center Prairie; 548 members. A general state of harmony prevails among the Saints. Among the world there are many calls for preaching, with some excellent openings for presenting the word. The elders are striving to labor as opportunities permit. John T. Kinneman president, Charles P. Faul clerk.

The St. Louis district contains 9 branches, and the fragments of several disorganized branches, with a total membership of 515; including 2 high priests, 31 elders, 21 priests, 14 teachers, and 6 deacons. During the past year 10 have been baptized, and 15 received by letter and vote, making a total increase of 25. During the same time 12 removed by letter, 3 died and 1 was expelled, also a loss of 6 not accounted for, making a total decrease of 22; leaving a net increase of 3 for the year 1886. William Jaques president, John G. Smith clerk.

The South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia district consists of 11 branches, as follows: Liberty, Morgan, Vinton, Highland and Milton, Syracuse, Ohio; Wayne, Union Grove, New Hope, Cabin Run and Clarksburg, West Virginia. There are 1 seventy, 20 elders, 7 priests, 11 teachers, 2 deacons, 359 members, 50 scattered members; total 409. T. J. Beatty president; A. B. Kirkendall clerk.

SATURDAY, APRIL 9TH.

The prayer meeting at 9 a. m. was in charge of Brn. F. C. Warnky and David Dancer; a very excellent feeling prevailed.

At 10:30 Bro. W. W. Blair occupied the stand, assisted by Bro. Joseph Luff. Bro. Blair speaking from the text: "Examine yourselves, whether you are in the faith."

Business session began at 1:30 p. m. Brn. Smith and Blair presiding. Bro. J. S. Roth led in prayer. The minutes of yesterday's session were read, corrected and approved.

The Fifth Quorum of Elders reported:

The work during the year as represented by the Fifth Quorum of Elders is cheering; and the Quorum is in good working order. The number of reports to this conference is 67; number in quorum 91. Over 1,940 sermons are reported, besides many not kept account of. Baptisms 124, confirmations 133, ordinations 10, sick administered to reported 198, many not kept account of; children blessed 65, marriages solemnized 15. E. A. Steadman, pres. pro tem.; J. A. McIntosh, secretary pro tem.

The Seventy reported:

The Quorum of Seventy have held three morning sessions in unison, concord and love, and received many encouraging reports from those both present and absent. The quorum, as a whole, have been blessed and prospered in the outgoing year in an encouraging and unprecedented manner, both through the co-operating power of the Spirit and the augmenting of our numbers. A large proportion have been in active field service, and others partially or occasionally engaged. A few have presided over districts or branches, while a very few are superannuated. No new difficulties have arisen in the expiring year, and nothing dark and complicated distresses the brethren of the quorum. A special service of one hour, previous to entering into regular work, was ordered April 8th, for prayer and supplication that God may speak peace to his people, in regard to the church, its organization, growth and work. Fervent invocations went up from the heart and mouth of many, while all joined in spirit and felt mutually comforted and encouraged. With gratitude to the Lord of Hosts and undying love for mankind, this band of ministers are toiling away.

The committee upon the request and appeal of Bro. E. C. Brand in regard to the Bishopric reported; the report was received and read:

The committee to which was referred the appeal of Bro. Brand from the ruling of the Bishop reports:

That the claim made by Bro. Brand is for arrearages extending from the year 1881 to 1886, and aggregating $171, being the amount Bro. Brand says his family should have received during these years, but did not. On the part of the Bishop it is claimed that it was in the fall of 1882, that it was recommended that the Elders should make out a probable estimate of the means that would be required for their families, and that in the Spring of 1884, there being no means in the treasury, which fact was well known to Bro. Brand and others, as shown by the report at the time the announcement was made to the conference, that the families of elders who went out would be supplied if the means came into the treasury; thus leaving the elder to a test of his own faith, as to whether he would go into the field or remain at home. During these years the Bishop claims that Bro. Brand's family shared equally with the other Elders of the church, all things considered, and that there is no proportion due him that is not equally applicable to every other Elder; and that whatever amounts may be claimed by them, it would not be justice to those making the offerings, or right for him to assume to pay them. This committee is of the opinion that wisdom and justice require that these back claims be not assumed.

A. WHITE,
S. MALONEY,
C. A. BEEBE.

Upon motion the report was adopted and the committee discharged.

The communication from Bro. H. C. Smith in reference to property in Los Angeles, was called up, and after discussion by Brn. Blair, McIntosh, Short, and statements from Brn. Blakeslee, Lake and others was referred to the Bishopric with instruction to make the necessary inquiry and take such steps as might be deemed best by the following resolution.

Whereas, the late sister Lydia Rebbeck, of Los Angeles, California, did on the 3d day of February, 1886, bequeath and deed to the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints a certain piece of real estate in Los Angeles, California, then valued at $5,000, and now estimated to be worth $10,000 to $15,000.

And whereas, the executors of the last will and testament of the said Sr. Lydia Rebbeck, by their attorney, have notified Bishop George A. Blakeslee, trustee-in-trust for said church that they will contest the validity of said deed; therefore be it resolved;

That this conference advise the Bishopric of the church to take such legal steps for the maintenance and defense of the interests of the church in its title to the said property as shall to them seem wise and proper.

W. W. BLAIR.
D. H. PROPER.

This resolution prevailed after being amended to include all other states of the United States and other countries in the inquiry to be made.

The delegates from the Decatur, Iowa, district presented the following resolution and request, being instructed to do so by resolution of their district:

Resolved, That the Decatur district requests the next General Conference to release Elder John Shippy from silence, and restore to him the privilege of an Elder.

Brethren J. A. McIntosh and R. C. Evans moved that the resolution and request from the Decatur, Iowa, district be entertained and that the request be granted.

This was spoken to by Bro. Short; and an explanatory statement made by Bro. Joseph Smith. The previous question was moved, but on request of several was not urged. The subject was then spoken to by brethren W. H. Kelley, J. H. Lake, J. R. Lambert, W. W. Whiting, R. C. Evans, E. C. Brand, J. J. Cornish and J. A. McIntosh.

F. C. Warnky and S. Malony moved the previous question, which prevailed, and vote upon the motion was ordered. Upon being put to vote, the motion to grant the request of Decatur district was adopted.

The committee on the amendment to chapter 13 of Book of Rules, and on appeals, reported.

Report was read and was referred to the April session of 1888, and made the special order of the third day of that session, and ordered spread on minutes.

The committee on church trials and appeals respectfully recommend to the body the following rules as an amendment to chapter 13, Book of Rules:

1. In cases of offense or transgression, where redress by church trial is sought, or discipline required for the purpose of reclaiming the erring, the following rules of procedure should be observed.

2. Any person, a member of the church, who shall have been offended by another, whether such offense shall have been publicly or privately given, or any officer whose duty it is to examine into and settle differences between brethren, shall be entitled to proceed against the person so offending before any court of the church having jurisdiction, providing that such proceeding shall be commenced within one year from the time such offense shall have been committed; except in cases of felonies, as provided by the laws of the land, and where the statute of limitation does not run.

3. No member shall be entitled to proceed against another for an offense before any church court whatever, unless he shall first have made efforts to reconcile, or become reconciled to the member offending, as directed in the scriptures.

The steps required are:—

The member offended shall seek opportunity to state his matter of grievance to the one offending as said by the Savior, "between him and thee alone." If explanation, apology, restitution, or reconciliation is not effected after candid and fair effort has been made by the one offended, then he shall take with him some teacher of the church, or if such teacher is no obtainable, or is an interested party, a member, and shall try a second time to secure an adjustment of the difficulty existing; but shall not state the matter of grievance to such officer, or member, except in the presence of the party offending.

If no reconciliation shall be effected by this second visit and effort, the offended if he shall so choose, may lay the matter before the presiding officer of the branch; or if such presiding officer be not an Elder, or other officer in the Melchisedec line of authority, before the presiding elder of the district, or mission if it be not in an organized branch or district, who shall appoint from the eldership of the church such persons as may properly sit to examine and try the case.

4. When it shall be determined to call an offending member before a court of the church, the officer appointing the court, shall cause to be prepared the charge, or charges made against the accused in writing, stating definitely and specifically what the offense is charged to be, a copy of which charge shall be furnished the accused, so that he may if he so desire, make settlement of the difficulty by reconciliation or otherwise, and avoid further action; this copy may be given to the accused by any teacher, or member in the absence of a teacher, or if left at his usual place of residence with a member of his family over eight years of age, it shall be held as given to him. Upon the failure of the accused to make restitution, or explanation, the court shall be appointed, and shall proceed to examine and try the cause upon the charge, the original of which, or a copy thereof, shall be furnished them by the officer appointing them; they shall, also, give due notice to all parties of time, and place when and where the trial shall be had as provided in "Book of Rules." Where in cases persons can not meet together by reason of great distances between them of travel or other obstacle over which they have no control, and which is sufficient to prevent meeting in person, the work toward reconciliation and labor referred to herein may be done by written correspondence between the parties.

5. In case satisfaction shall not be given upon the examination and decision of any cause before an Elders' Court, an appeal from such decision may be had by the party aggrieved to the conference of the district, if the court was appointed by a branch officer, or to the Bishop's Court; or if the Bishop was present at the trial by the Elders' Court to the High Council if the matter has been first tried before the district authorities.

In all cases of appeal, the person making the appeal must set forth clearly to the court to which appeal is made the reasons for such appeal. In case the appeal is made to the conference of the district, or to the Bishop's court, the court from which appeal is taken; or the branch or conference to which an Elder's Court have reported shall send at once upon receipt of notice of such appeal being taken, the papers and minutes of evidence and a copy of the proceedings of the Court and cause the same to be filed with the Court to which the appeal is taken.

In cases where a member has been adjudged guilty of an offense, for which the penalty has been suspension from Church fellowship, or Church privileges, such person shall so remain as affected by the decision until a rehearing and reversal of the decision shall have been had upon the appeal.

In cases where appeal is taken to the High Council, the rule laid down in Doctrine and Covenants, governing such appeals shall obtain. In all such cases notice of appeal should be made to the Presidency, by filing the notice in the office of the secretary of the church, and courts, branches and districts from which appeals to the High Council are made should upon notice of such appeal being taken, at once prepare minutes of evidence and copies of all the proceedings had of record by them.

6. In all cases where the court upon proper inquiry finds the accused not guilty, or that there is no just cause for action the decision is to be final; and no member against whom charge has been made so examined and decided as herein provided shall be liable to further action upon said charge and offense. A new trial or rehearing of a case may be had by any defendant or by either party to the action of the same is between two members, upon the discovery of fraud or new evidence the existence of which was not known to the party suffering thereby nor the court at the time of the trial. Application for a new trial or rehearing upon this ground must be accompanied by a statement of the character of the fraud or evidence, and the same set forth clearly before the Court, or the officer appointing the Court, or his successor who shall then proceed to the examination of the case, as at the first, he being first satisfied that the evidence relied upon is new and sufficient to justify such procedure.

7. Nothing in the foregoing rules shall be construed to interfere with the rights and duties of those whose calling is to regulate the affairs of the church in all the world, as is provided in the law of said church.

8. All rules, resolutions, or parts of the same contained in the Book of Rules, and which are contrary to the foregoing provisions are hereby declared inoperative and void.

JOSEPH SMITH, Chairman.

KIRTLAND, O., April 9th, 1887.

Upon call by Bro. J. Luff for the regular order, the report of the committee on the compilation and publication of resolutions and acts of conference, H. A. Stebbins chairman, was taken up, being made the special order for the hour.

It was moved to adopt the recommendation of the committee to publish in a book by itself; this was amended to publish in the Book of Rules; but it was finally referred to Board of Publication with authority to compile and publish if deemed best by them. The committee was discharged.

The following was moved by brethren E. C. Brand and Wm. Rumel:

Resolved, that we request the Board of Publication to publish in pamphlet form, "The History of Persecution and its Causes," as it appeared in Herald.

It was spoken to by W. W. Blair and W. T. Bozarth, in favor, and by E. L. Kelley against; when upon motion it was deferred until next session of conference.

Brethren F. M. Sheehy and John Smith moved:

Resolved, that the Board of publication be requested as soon as practicable to publish a cheap edition of Hymns and Tunes, for use by the church.

This resolution passed.

The following was moved:

Resolved, that elders and priests refusing to act when called upon by proper authority, without sufficient cause for such refusal, should be silenced and dealt with for unchristianlike conduct.

This was spoken to by Brn. Wm. Rumel and W. W. Whiting in favor, and by D. S. Mills and E. L. Kelley against; and on being put to vote was lost.

On motion the sustaining of the officers of the church was made the special order for Monday, the 11th, at two p. m.

The committee appointed by the session of April, 1886, to visit and confer with Elder J. W. Briggs, former Church Historian, respecting manuscript and data in his hands, presented their report, which was received, ordered spread on the minutes and the committee discharged. The report is as follows:

We, your committee appointed to wait upon Bro. J. W. Briggs, church historian, with a view to get possession of the manuscript in his possession of Church History, beg leave to report as follows:

That two of the committee waited on Bro. Briggs, immediately after the April session of conference of 1886. They were kindly received by him, and he appeared to be in a pleasant mood, and talked freely on church matters.

Regarding the manuscript in his possession he manifested a willingness to put it in the hands of the church; provided he had security, or assurance, that it would be published substantially as written; but entertaining a suspicion, or belief, that it is the determination of some that it shall not be so published, he declines in the following language in a recent communication to give up the manuscript:

"Your kindly expressions of good wishes are appreciated; and were it your committee with E. L. and others of like spirit and purpose I could easily comply with the wishes expressed in regard to the manuscript of history. But it is the conference, whose majority I have hitherto (and still do) arraign for inconsistency and injustice. That majority, the creature of caucus and intrigue, is the party you represent and to whom you must report and deliver whatever is delivered to you. Under these circumstances I must decline to accede to your wishes, but with nought but kindly feelings towards your committee.

Respectfully,
J. W. BRIGGS."

E. C. BRIGGS. }

A resolution concerning the sacrament was read and laid on the table subject to call.

Notice was given than an appeal from the action of the London, Ontario, branch, by Bro. Wm. Burch would be presented, and conference was adjourned for services until Monday at 1:30 p. m.

The fast agreed to on the 8th was faithfully observed until the evening meal; an excellent spirit prevailed among the Saints and they assembled at 7:30 when they were addressed by Bro. R. C. Evans, of London, Ontario, Bro. F. M. Sheehy being in the stand to assist him.

SUNDAY, APRIL 10TH.

Sunday morning prayer service was presided over by Bro. George A. Blakeslee and John Smith.

At 10:30 the Temple was filled, all available space being occupied.

Brethren W. W. Blair, Joseph R. Lambert and Joseph Smith were in the stand. "All Hail the power of Jesus' name," was sung; prayer was offered by Bro. Blair; Bro. Smith read the lesson from Matthew 25th, and the sermon was delivered by Bro. Lambert, at the close of the sermon Bro. John H. Lake and Sr. Martha Wood, of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, were united in marriage; Bro. W. H. Kelley officiating.

Bro. Lambert spoke from the text "My doctrine is not mine." The benediction was pronounced by Bro. Joseph Smith.

At 2:30 Bro. Joseph Smith spoke upon the subject of Polygamy, according to a previous arrangement; and set the position of the church on this subject before the people. The Temple was packed full, and the speaker was listened to with apparently great interest.

At 7:30 Bro. Joseph Luff preached an effective discourse from the text "Beware of false prophets."

There had been four baptized during the intermissions, and these were confirmed at the opening of the evening service. Laura Paden, Allan Irvine, Anna B. Shafer, and Maria A. Falk.

MONDAY, APRIL 11TH.

Prayer meeting in charge of Brn. J. Chisnall and Joseph Shippy.

At 10:30 preaching was by Bro. J. S. Roth, Bro. W. T. Bozarth assisting him. Subject, The Resurrection.

The business of conference was resumed at 1:30 p. m. Bro. James Moler leading in prayer. Minutes were read and approved.

A report from the Fourth Quorum of Elders was received, read and ordered put in minutes:

There were 33 elders reported; baptized 50, confirmed 50, solemnized 7 marriages, blessed 15 children, ordained 2, preached 277 times, administered to 87 sick—in many cases with immediate relief; 18 of the 33 in reporting state that they have preached many times and performed other ordinances, not giving any number, only mentioned many times. Actively engaged as presidents of districts 2, secretaries of districts 2, presidents of branches 4, secretaries of branches 6. Only two from the quorum have appointments from General Conference.

The committee on Bishop's Report reported that they had examined the report and found it to be correct. The report was received and the committee discharged.

Report of Presidency on the appeal of Bro. E. C. Mayhew was presented, received and ordered spread on the minutes:

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints: Before the First Presidency:—
E. C. Mayhew, appellant, vs.

David Dancer.

In the matter of appeal between these parties; it appears from the showing of the Appellant that the matters in issue were first submitted to arbitration before Asa S. Cochran, C. W. Hammer and Wilson Hudson, upon an agreement that the finding was to be final. That this arbitration was had September 19th, 1883, and an award was made. That Appellant appealed therefrom. That proceedings were had in the Courts of the County subsequent to the Arbitration. That the Lamoni Branch proceeded against the Appellant; from the findings of which inquiry Appellant appealed. That on August 14th, 1885, the matters appealed came on for trial before the Bishop's Court; that the findings of the Bishop's Court were laid before the branch at Lamoni, and were appealed from by the Appellant to the High Council on two Petitions, the last one dated April 6th, 1886, and setting forth averments of facts occurring subsequent to the trial before the Bishop's Court.

It also appears, upon inquiry, that at the time the matter was being tried before the Bishop's Court and subsequent thereto, there were actions between the parties pending in the courts of the county, in which the matters set forth in the petition for an appeal to the High Council, were in whole, or in part involved, and were being adjudicated by said courts, and over which the courts of the Church had no jurisdiction to dismiss, or to enforce the decrees thereupon when rendered.

We find further, that the matters in controversy are of such a nature that they have been placed before the courts of the land for adjudication; and that under the provisions of the law of the land the rights of the Appellant could have been conserved and he be secured from pecuniary injury; and that the trials before the Elders' and the Bishop's Courts of the Church were the outgrowth of the matters pending in the courts of the land; and we are of the opinion that the end of the controversy should have been reached before the Arbitrators, for the pecuniary side thereof; and before the Bishop's Court for the spiritual side. For these considerations, we deem it improper to convene the High Council of the Church for the further hearing of the matters alleged in the Appeal.

JOSEPH SMITH, } Presidency.
W. W. BLAIR, }

LAMONI, IOWA, March 7th, 1887.

The question of where the next conference should be held was taken up. It was spoken to by brethren M. T. Short for Plano; Brn. Luff and Warnky for Independence, and Brn. Dancer and Gillen for Lamoni; and upon being put to the question was decided in favor of Independence, Missouri, and it was ordered that when this conference adjourns it does so to meet at Independence, Missouri, April 6th, 1888.

The committee to which the report of the secretary of the Board of Publication was referred reported. Report was read:

We, your committee, appointed to examine the financial statement of the Board of Publication, and to also inquire into the amount of wages paid to the employes of the Herald Office, beg leave to submit to your honorable body the following as our conclusions upon a careful examination and enquiry.

First. In the absence of the books and papers of the Herald Office we could only pass upon the subject matter appearing upon the face of the secretary's report, which we found to be correct, with the exception of an error of $11 in the footings of the summary, which would increase the net gain $11.

Second. We made the inquiry as directed in the resolution of the conference, as to the number of employes of the Herald Office and the wages paid: There are eleven persons employed, and we believe that is not practicable to successfully continue the power of the press for good with a less number.

Third. Concerning the question of wages, we believe them to be not excessive.

Fourth. We submit for your consideration the propriety of having an annual examination of the books, and management of the Herald Office, by a committee duly appointed by the body for that purpose.

Signed,

M. H. BOND, Chairman,
ROBT. M. ELVIN,
ANDREW BARR,
J. H. PETERS,
R. S. SALYARDS.

It was moved by brethren Bond and Mills to adopt the report and discharge the committee. This motion prevailed; and upon separate motions to appoint the committee recommended in clause four of the report at this session, and limiting the number of the committee to three, Brn. J. H. Peters, W. C. Cadwell and Joseph Luff were appointed such committee; and were instructed to proceed upon the duties of their appointment at the close of the conference year and report at the session of 1888.

The sustaining of the officers of the church having been made the special order for the hour, it was taken up, Bro. Blair presiding.

All the officers of the church except the Board of Publication were then sustained by a rising vote, with great cordiality and unanimity.

It was moved to sustain the Board of Publication, brethren J. W. Gillen and J. A. Stewart being the movers.

A question was asked by Bro. Short. The question of sustaining was spoken to by Brn. Blair, E. L. Kelley, G. A. Blakes, lee, W. H. Kelley, and question asked by Bro. Joseph Smith and others. Bro. E. L. Kelley then moved as a subsidiary motion that the resolution of the conference of 1885 be re-affirmed as the opinion of this body. The resolution referred to was read:

The committee to which was referred the resolution presented by the Pottawattamie District conference, relative to the adoption of certain measures which shall govern in the publication of articles through the Saints' Herald, submit the following:

1. That in its opinion, the enforcement of iron-clad rules and arbitrary decisions by persons who were not governed in their work by broad and liberal principles of toleration, as is shown by the history of societies in the past, has had such a tendency to subvert the liberties and retard the progress of the race, as to make the enactment of any set rules to be followed under all circumstances of doubtful propriety and final good.

2. That in our opinion there is a just and proper line to be drawn between the positions of permitting a fair hearing of the views of any and all through the church paper, and the abuse of the sacred principles of toleration and freedom adhered to by the church by using to excess the columns of the church paper, in making a series of attack upon the life of the body, or an undue effort to enforce personal views upon the people, when they are clearly in parts antagonistic to the accepted faith of the body; and that the responsibility is upon the Editor and Board of Publication to see that this line is truly made in their discrimination, the improper exercise or abuse of such discretion, or agency, to be remedied by the selection of such persons for these positions as will fill them in wisdom and fairness to all.

3. That where radical differences of opinion occur between leading representatives of the body, the discussion of them should take place in quorum capacity, and not through the columns of the Herald.

4. That in our opinion in the acceptance of articles for publication through the Herald, the parties doing the same should exclude all such as make special attack upon the supposed private views and character of the dead, or that impugn motives and question the integrity of the living; there being neither sound argument nor wisdom attained by such methods.

5. The committee has not deemed it within its duty to pass judgment upon the right or abuse of the exercise of privileges in the extended controversy of the past few months, but to point out the proper steps to be taken in case the rights of the body are left unguarded in the future.

E. L. KELLEY,
J. T. KINNEMAN,
J. W. GILLEN,
C. SCOTT,
G. T. GRIFFITHS.

This was spoken to by brethren E. L. Kelley, W. W. Blair, J. R. Lambert, when by vote for the previous question, the resolution was put upon its passage and prevailed.

The discussion upon the motion to sustain the Board was resumed. It was spoken to by brethren W. H. Kelley,—and the discussion was arrested by the motion to adjourn made by brethren Brand and Griffiths, which motion prevailing, adjournment was ordered until 1:30 the 12th for business.

Adam Benner presented for baptism. Ephraim Thomas was requested to perform the rite at the close of the session for the afternoon.

At 7:30 the Saints and visitors were addressed by Bro. F. M. Cooper of Plano, Illinois, who was assisted in his labors by Bro. F. C. Warnky, of Independence, Missouri. Bro. Cooper's effort was an excellent and instructive one.

TUESDAY, APRIL 12TH.

The morning service of prayer was in charge of brethren D. S. Mills and E. A. Steadman. Bro. Adam Benner, baptized on the 11th, was confirmed by brethren Mills, Warnky and Steadman. Four were administered to, and a pleasant season was enjoyed; the gifts of tongues, prophecy, singing in tongues were had in the midst, God's name was glorified and the Saints comforted and strengthened.

The forenoon preaching service was presided over by Bro. R. M. Elvin; the sermon was by Bro. R. J. Anthony, from Matt. 12:30, "He that is not with me is against me."

At 1:30 p. m. after the call to convene, the brethren sang "Redeemer of Israel our only delight." Prayer was offered by Bro. J. H. Lake; the minutes were read and approved.

The following was presented by brethren J. Luff and J. W. Gillen, moved and adopted:

Resolved, that during the remainder of this conference, all members speaking upon questions before the body shall be limited to ten minutes, and shall not be permitted to speak a second time on the same subject, until all others who wish have spoken; and not then except by permission of the body.

A letter and request from Bro. M. H. Forscutt, of Omaha, Nebraska, were presented and read, and upon motion duly made, the letter was ordered spread upon the minutes.

OMAHA, Neb., April 7th, 1887.

To the Presidents and brethren in Conference assembled:—

Many, many years ago, I gave myself wholly, unreservedly to the Lord, promising and expecting to spend my entire life, and what little talent I had, to aid in promoting His cause. One year ago, the Twelve said they had "no recommendation for brother Forscutt." Laboring then under the double burden of ill-health, and terrible depression of spirits, I offered my resignation as a High Priest in the church, and asked to be released from all public ministerial responsibility other than that belonging to the office of an Elder. I thought then, and have thought ever since that I did exactly right, up to this day. To-day it has been so signally and strongly impressed upon and manifested to me that I did wrong in resigning all official trust. Now I am so thoroughly convinced that I have been in a serious error, firstly in offering such resignation, and secondly in sustaining my action argumentatively and otherwise. I am not worthy to be restored, hence do not ask it; but I do ask, and most humbly and earnestly ask that this conference will forgive my action of last conference.

During the year past, I have labored even beyond my strength, as desired by local authorities, and will still labor as desired, and as the Lord may give me strength and his Spirit. I now assure you that the experience of this day has not only showed me my own error, but removed from my heart all feelings before occupying it against my brethren, with every one of whom I hope hereafter to labor, so far as permitted to labor, in perfect unity of spirit, and to do my utmost to sustain each man in the position it has pleased God to place him.

My health is far from good; and in consequence of this, if I had still been actively engaged in ministerial work under General Conference appointment, and had the means to take me there, I should ask for a mission to the Pacific Coast, as I believe that the salubrity of the climate of Southern California, and the sea-breezes—always of great benefit to me—would, if anything can, contribute most effectively to my restoration to health. But by my own action removed from this sphere, and without recommendation from the appointing authority of the church, I can not do this. I name it however, as should I not improve in health, it will be necessary for me to seek such climatic aid as that country affords, and should I do so, or should I remain here, I want to labor with the fullest approval of General Conference, though unworthy to be one of its appointees.

Some have written me that they understood that there were differences between my former co-High Priests and myself. I name it here, and to correct that impression will unequivocally state that the brethren of that quorum and I have labored in perfect unity and brotherly love, without a break of friendship or unkind feeling. God bless them, and every quorum of his church, and lead you in this conference to his glory.

Yours very fraternally,
MARK H. FORSCUTT.

It was moved that the request of Bro. Forscutt for forgiveness be granted. This motion prevailed. In connection with the foregoing the following was presented by brethren J. Luff and W. W. Whiting.

Whereas, Bro. M. H. Forscutt has asked for and received forgiveness of this body for whatever offence was given by his action at the conference one year ago; and

Whereas, he has expressed anxiety to serve the church as it may hereafter direct; therefore, be it

Resolved, that he be and is hereby relieved from whatever disability may have been placed upon him by the acceptance of his resignation at that time.

This resolution was adopted; and in answer to questions the chair stated that his resignation from the Quorum of High Priests, his standing as an officer would depend upon the action of that quorum.

A report from the First Quorum of Elders was received and ordered put in the minutes:

We herewith report that we have held two meetings during the present session of conference; peace, good will and desire for the cause of truth were expressed.

Reports by letter: Wm. Anderson, James R. Badham, John W. Brackenbury, J. Boswell, H. C. Bronson, John Beard, J. F. Burton, John D. Bennett, Eli Clothier, J. P. Dillen, G. E. Deuel, D. K. In the case of Jobe Brown, it was concluded to hold his license. The following elders were enrolled: Thomas J. Beatty, James Moler, L. W. Torrence, Charles Coombs, John Taylor, Ephraim Thomas, David S. Holmes and Marcus Shaw. Licenses were granted to the above.

The following was unanimously adopted:

Whereas there has been published in the Herald an appeal in behalf of the publication of a magazine furnishing such instruction in character in advance of that contained in the Hope, and more suited to the youth than that which appears in the Herald. We, therefore, heartily endorse and co-operate in the efforts of Sister "Frances" and others, in their labor of love.

Resolution adopted: That the law as defined by the Bishopric and accepted by the church be the rule in all matters pertaining to finance, be accepted by us, and wherein there is any misunderstanding relative thereto, the question regarding the same be submitted to the Bishopric for explanation.

The reports show that considerable labor has been performed. There has been eleven present, and 169 baptisms reported.

Submitted in gospel bonds,

ROBT. M. ELVIN, President.

A communication from the Twelve was received, and upon separate motions the three clauses thereof were adopted:

We, the members of the Quorum of the Twelve, believing that the President of the church should be furnished with additional facilities for the performance of important duties made imperative by virtue of his high and holy calling; respectfully suggest to your honorable body, that the Bishop be requested to confer with the President concerning this matter; and that he be authorized to expend means from the church treasury, so far as it may be prudent to do so for such facilities at the earliest possible time which in his judgment shall be practicable and wise.

We further suggest the propriety of relieving the presidency from editorial labor, except that which is necessary in the exercise of a supervisory watchcare as soon as it can be done, without jeopardizing the welfare of the work.

JAMES CAFFALL, Acting Secretary.

A recommendation from the South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia district for the ordination of Bro. A. B. Kirken-dall to the office of elder, was on motion referred to the branch where he resides, with the request that he be ordained.

It was moved that we now proceed to vote upon the sustaining of the Board of Publication. This motion prevailing it was further moved that the Board as now constituted be sustained; which motion also prevailed.

President Smith here asked leave and retired, President Blair being in charge.

The following communication, having been presented to the Twelve and the Seventy for their examination and decision, and having received their approval, was presented to the assembly and read by Bro. Blair:

TO THE ELDERS OF THE CHURCH—

Thus saith the Spirit:

1. It is not yet expedient that the Quorum of the Twelve shall be filled; nevertheless, separate my servants, James W. Gilien, Heman C. Smith, Joseph Luff and Gomer T. Griffiths, unto the office of Apostles, that the quorum may be more perfectly prepared to act before me. I have still other men of my church who shall be designated in their time if they still continue faithful unto me and in the work whereunto they are now called.

2. There is a great work to be done by mine elders, and that they may be fitted to do this work and the accomplishment thereof be not prevented, it is enjoined upon them that they shall not only be kind of heart and of a lowly spirit, that their wisdom may be the wisdom of the Lord and their strength the strength of the Spirit, but they shall lay aside lightness of speech and lightness of manner when standing to declare the word, and shall study to approve their ministrations to the people by candor in speech and courtesy in demeanor, that as ministers of the gospel they may win souls unto Christ.

3. The elders and men of the church should be of cheerful heart and countenance among themselves and in their intercourse with their neighbors and men of the world, yet they must be without blame in word and deed. It is therefore not seemly that they indulge in loud and boisterous speech, or in the relating of coarse and vulgar stories, or those in which the names of their God and their Redeemer are blasphemed. Men of God, who bear the vessels of the Lord, be ye clean in your bodies and in your clothing; let your garments be of a sober character and free from excess of ornamentation. Avoid the use of tobacco and be not addicted to strong drink in any form, that your counsel to be temperate may be made effectual by your example.

4. That the work of restoration to which the people of my church are looking forward may be hastened in its time, the elders must cease to be overcareful concerning the return of those who were once of the faith but were overcome in the dark and cloudy day, fearing lest they should bring in hidden heresies to the overthrowing of the work; for verily, there are some who are chosen vessels to do good, who have been estranged by the hindering snares which are in the world and who will in due time return unto the Lord if they be not hindered by the men of the church. The Spirit says "Come;" let not the ministers for Christ prevent their coming.

5. And the Spirit saith further: Contention is unseemly, therefore, cease to contend respecting the sacrament and the time of administering it; for whether it be upon the first Lord's day of every month, or upon the Lord's day of every week, if it be administered by the officers of the church with sincerity of heart and in purity of purpose, and be partaken of in remembrance of Jesus Christ and in willingness to take upon them his name by them who partake, it is acceptable to God. To avoid confusion let him who presides in the sacrament meeting, and those who administer it cause that the emblems be duly prepared upon clean vessels for the bread and clean vessels for the wine, or the water, as may be expedient; and the officer may break the bread before it is blessed, and pour the wine before it is blessed; or he may, if he be so led, bless the bread before it be broken and the wine before it be poured; nevertheless, both bread and wine should be uncovered when presented for the blessing to be asked upon it. It is expedient that the bread and wine should be administered in the early part of the meeting before weariness and confusion ensue. Let him that partaketh and him that refraineth cease to contend with his brother that each may be benefitted when he eateth at the table of the Lord.

6. The service of song in the house of the Lord with humility and unity of spirit in them that sing and them that hear is blessed, and acceptable with God; but song with grievous sadness in them that sing and bitterness of spirit in them that hear is not pleasing to God. Therefore, in all the congregations of the people of God, let all strife and contention concerning song service cease; and that the worship in the house of the Lord may be complete and wholly acceptable, let them who shall be moved thereto by a desire and the gift to sing take upon them the burden and care of the service, and use therein instruments of music of the reed and of the string, or instruments of brass in congregations that are large, and as wisdom and choice may direct. Let the young men and the maidens cultivate the gifts of music and of song; let not the middle-aged and the old forget the gladness of their youth and let them aid and assist so far as their cares will permit; and remember that Saints should be cheerful in their warfare that they may be joyous in their triumph. Nevertheless, let the organ and the stringed instrument, and the instrument of brass be silent when the Saints assemble for prayer and testimony, that the feelings of the tender and the sad may not be intruded upon. To facilitate unity in the song service of the church those to whom the work of providing a book of song has been entrusted may hasten their work in its time.

7. And the Spirit saith further: Inasmuch as there has been much discussion in the past concerning the Sabbath of the Lord, the church is admonished that until further revelation is received, or the quorums of the church are assembled to decide concerning the law in the church articles and covenants, the Saints are to observe the first day of the week commonly called the Lord's day, as a day of rest; as a day of worship, as given in the covenants and commandments. And on this day they should refrain from unnecessary work; nevertheless, nothing should be permitted to go to waste on that day, nor should necessary work be neglected. Be not harsh in judgment but merciful in this, as in all other things. Be not hypocrites nor of those who make a man an offender for a word.

8. Prosecute the missionary work in this land and abroad so far and so widely as you may. All are called according to the gifts of God unto them; and to the intent that all may labor together, let him that laboreth in the ministry and him that toileth in the affairs of the men of business and of work labor together with God for the accomplishment of the work entrusted to all.

9. Be clean, be frugal, cease to complain of pain and sickness and distress of body; take sleep in the hours set apart by God for the rebuilding and strengthening of the body and the mind; for even now there are some, even among the elders, who are suffering in mind and body, who have disregarded the advice of the Spirit to retire early and to rise early that vigor of mind and body should be retained. Bear the burdens of body of which the Spirit of healing from the Lord in faith, or the use of that which wisdom directs does not relieve or remove, and in cheerfulness do whatever may be permitted you to perform that the blessing of peace may be upon all. Amen.

KIRTLAND, O., April 11th, 1887.

It was then voted upon, the presiding officer first asking the Twelve whether they had accepted the document and endorsed it. They replied that they had unanimously.

He then asked the Seventy whether they had considered the communication; to which they replied that they had and had accepted it by a unanimous vote.

He then stated that the Presidency were at unity in regard to it, and presented it to be acted upon; and suggested that it be voted upon by the quorums represented separately; whereupon:

Brethren R. M. Elvin and Alfred White, for the First Quorum of Elders, moved that the Revelation be received and adopted by them, to which by vote they agreed.

Brethren S. Maloney and F. C. Warnky, for the Second Quorum, made the same motion, which was agreed to.

Brethren Samuel Crum and Hiram Rathbun made the same motion for the Fourth Quorum, which was also agreed to.

Brother James A. McIntosh, for the Fifth Quorum, made a similar motion, and it also was agreed to.

Brethren D. S. Mills and C. G. Lanphear, on behalf of the High Priests, accepted and endorsed, which was agreed to.

The Bishop, G. A. Blakeslee, voted with his quorum of High Priests, and his counsellor, E. L. Kelley, with the Elders, he being an elder.

The vote of the enrolled Elders whose quorums were not present as an organization, and the Elders present and not enrolled, voted as a body to accept, and endorse.

The Priests, upon motion by brethren E. E. Perthel and L. D. Ullom, voted to accept and endorse; as did also the Teachers and Deacons; upon motions by C. J. Hunt and F. J. Reese for the Teachers and F. Criley and G. A. Blakeslee for the Deacons.

The following was then presented:

Resolved, that this conference as a body accept and endorse the Revelation presented to us as being the Word of God, and additional direction by which we should walk in faith and truth before him.

Moved by E. L. Kelley and W. W. Whiting.

This was spoken to, in favor, by Brn. J. R. Lambert and J. H. Lake of the Twelve; E. C. Brand, of the Seventy; G. A. Blakeslee, of the Bishopric; D. S. Mills, of the High Priests; J. Gillespie.

Bro. Alfred White asked that the Revelation be read again; this was done, and the vote being then taken, resulted in the revelation being accepted and endorsed by a unanimous affirmative vote; the membership voting with the conference members by request of Pres. Blair.

The congregation then rose and sang with great feeling, "We thank Thee, O, God, for a Prophet."

Thus closed one of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed in the Reorganization. The greatest of unity prevailed, and the Spirit was felt to be present in great power.

Brethren D. S. Mills and E. L. Kelley moved:

That the Board of Publication be and is hereby requested to print as soon as practicable this revelation upon sheets of a suitable size to be inserted in the Doctrine and Covenants we now have, and in such quantities as may be required.

This motion prevailed:

Brethren W. H. Kelley and E. E. Perthel moved:

Resolved, that brethren J. W. Gillen, Heman C. Smith, Joseph Luff and Gomer T. Griffiths be ordained to the office of apostles as provided for in the revelation; and that brethren J. W. Gillen, Joseph Luff and Gomer T. Griffiths be ordained at this conference; and Bro. Heman C. Smith as soon as practicable.

By motion of brethren J. Luff and H. Rathbun, the Saints sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and business was resumed.

Brethren J. W. Gillen and G. T. Griffiths, upon request of the presiding officer, made statements concerning their acceptance of the call made, and expressed their willingness to abide the call and the decision of their brethren.

Bro. Joseph Smith returned to the assembly in time to hear the statement of Bro. Joseph Luff, who spoke after his brethren, Gillen and Griffiths. Bro. Luff spoke feelingly and submitted himself to the will of God and the voice of the church.

The resolution to ordain was then passed by unanimous vote. And it was ordered that the ordination should be attended to at the morning preaching service of the 13th.

Appointments for evening service were made and the assembly was adjourned by officer in charge.

The evening sermon was delivered by Bro. R. M. Elvin, who was assisted by Bro. W. M. Rumel.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13TH.

The prayer service was in charge of brethren R. M. Elvin and D. Dancer. Many prayers were offered, many testimonies borne; a child of Bro. Henry I., and Jennie A. Holt was blessed by brethren Joseph Smith and R. C. Evans.

At 10:30 the audience sang, "My faith looks up to Thee." Prayer was offered by Bro. Joseph Smith. Ordination hymn, 601, "O Thou in whose eternal name," was sung, after which the rite of ordination was administered as follows:—Bro. Gomer T. Griffiths, by brethren Joseph Smith and W. H. Kelley; James W. Gillen, by brethren W. W. Blair and James Caffall; and Joseph Luff by brethren Joseph Smith and W. H. Kelley.

The ceremony was impressive, the Spirit being present in great degree, the Saints were sympathetic and responsive, and the brethren ordaining blessed in their administration. The remainder of the morning hour was occupied by Bro. Blair in an acceptable address of testimony, cheer and encouragement to the Saints. Bro. Smith closed the service by a brief charge, and the assembly was dismissed by benediction and song.

Afternoon session, 1:30 p. m. Presidents Smith and Blair in the stand. Bro. M. T. Short led in prayer. Hymn 666 was sung: After the reading of the minutes, upon motion of brethren E. C. Brand and J. A. Stewart, the Church Secretary and Recorder, H. A. Stebbins, was sustained by rising vote.

Brethren J. Luff and J. S. Roth moved to sustain Bro. John Scott, Librarian, which was agreed to by rising vote.

The following was moved by brethren Brand and Stewart:

Growing out of the regular routine of business of yesterday; that the revelation of yesterday be printed for insertion in the Doctrine and Covenants; we call attention to the fact that the last revelation concerning the Twelve and the Chicago Mission has not been printed; therefore, be it

Resolved, that that also be printed to make the appendix to Doctrine and Covenants perfect.

This resolution after having been spoken to by Bro. Lambert, and questions asked and answered, was upon the motion of brethren Blair and Blakeslee referred to the conference of 1888.

Petition from brethren J. J. Cornish and Joseph W. Shippy, delegates from the Northern Michigan district was received and read:

Inasmuch as the license of Bro. Robert Davis of the Northern Michigan District has been taken from him over five years ago. And whereas, the members of that district have on two occasions, petitioned the missionary in charge to grant him license as an elder and that he be permitted to labor with his brethren in that district, all of which has been denied.

Therefore, we the undersigned, delegates from that district, desire the brethren at this session to take the matter under consideration.

J. J. CORNISH,
JOS. W. SHIPPY.

KIRTLAND, O., April 13th, 1887.

Brethren Warnky and Chisnall moved that this petition be referred to a committee of three; which motion prevailed, and the chair appointed brethren David Chambers, D. S. Mills and Hiram Rathbun, said committee, with instructions to report to this conference.

An interval occurred here, during which short speeches on topics connected with the work were made by brother M. T. Short, on the needs of the work in his field; by Bro. A. White, on the efficacy of following the advice of the Lord in financial affairs as in spiritual—citing his own experience in proof. By brother George Masters on the same subject. By brother J. R. Lambert on the directness of the answers to faithful service done by the Saints in temporal as in spiritual affairs. Bro. John Smith on the practical profits arising from obeying the law of tithing—illustrated by affairs in his district. Bro. W. W. Whiting in regard to the want of ministers in his field to care for the branches, while laborers are building up abroad. Brethren Brand and McIntosh followed upon the same and kindred topics respecting the work and prospects in their respective fields.

The committee on repairing the Kirtland Temple presented their report. This was read:

KIRTLAND, Ohio, April, 10th, 1887.

To the president and members of the Annual Conference in session at Kirtland.

We, your committee on Kirtland Temple repairs, beg leave to report as follows:—In August last we renewed the work of repairing the Temple, but with so small amount of means on hand that there was little hope of being able to continue it to anything near a completion. The wages asked by professional workmen as a rule were much higher than the committee felt warranted in paying; they secured the service, however of Bro. Wm. Burch to do the mason work, who proved to be a good workman. With so little means available, the committee did not feel warranted in securing sufficient help to prosecute the work to any considerable extent at once, but worked according to their ability to do with the means at hand. Thus, by being able to employ but little help, it took time proportionately to perform the work; and no one could tell certainly what the incoming contributions would be. They came in slowly, but in a sufficient amount to encourage the committee to keep the work moving rather than abandon it. It was necessary to advance means, however, at times, to support the work, or suffer great loss by causing it to cease. The mason work formed a large proportion of that which was to be done, and when once the plastering was begun, there was no place to stop without leaving the house in a sad plight, and unfit for use; so that there seemed to be but one consistent course, and that was to keep the work moving to something near completion if possible.

It was essential to begin work in the upper rooms too, and work towards the lower, and when the old plastering and other material were removed, preparatory for the new, it was necessary to carry it to as near completion as possible. This seemed to be imperative, in order that the house might be fitted as a suitable place in which to hold the ensuing conference, and hence necessary to be done in a given time. It was much cheaper to plaster the whole of it at once, than to make preparation to do a part and then abandon the work for a season. It was also expedient, as a matter of economy in some respects, and necessity in others, to arrange partitions, seats, rollers, and pulpits, as the other work progressed; and do the painting while the staging and material for staging was already at hand.

The estimates of expenditure made by the committee came out quite exact, except that of the painting. This greatly exceeded their expectations in point of expense. The building is old, and it consumed paint proportionately, and the workmen made slow progress in spreading it, and this no fault, as we know, of theirs. But the painting being the final stroke, it was necessary that it be done.

Further; a furnace, or some other mode of heating better than the stoves in use, and fuel was necessary in order to warm the rooms in the cold weather, in order that the work might be continued, and that the house might be used for religious services. This will explain why the committee advanced means in a considerable sum beyond the contributions in their hands,

They believed it to be almost a universal desire that the house be refitted in a manner that would give credit to the church, and make it a place in which to worship, pleasant to the eye and and feelings of those who worshipped; and that it would be a great saving of time and means to do it now. And they were inspired with the thought that this was the wise expedient course, and that it would be acceptable and pleasing to God to thus regard his dwelling and perform the work.

The following is an exhibit in items of the work done in detail:

1. The plastering on the outside walls of the building has been replaced where needed, in order to protect and preserve the house.
2. The building has been newly plastered throughout except that part of the walls where the plastering was put on the stone wall, and this was pecked and a new putty coat put on.
3. The doors, windows and partitions are restored in the third story, and doors in the second.
4. The pulpits, seats and ornaments in the second audience room have been restored, and the room painted and finished, except the gold leaf on the pulpits.
5. The stairway has been fully restored, with its ornaments, and newly painted.
6. A furnace has been placed in the building, ample to warm it, and pipes and flues and registers arranged for use.
7. New chimneys were built, and out of new material.
8. Glazing of all of the windows in the building.
9. Ten dozen chairs for seating it.
10. A hundred and one things which no one can think of, only as they come up and demand attention as the work is proceeded with.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. H. KELLEY,
G. A. BLAKESLEE.

Upon motion of brethren Blair and Whiting, the following was moved:

The report be received, ordered spread upon the minutes, the committee discharged and the entire matter be turned over to the Bishopric, with instructions authorized to solicit donations to pay the amount due on the repairs made, and to continue the work unto completion.

This was discussed by brethren W. W. Blair, E. L. Kelley, M. H. Bond, F. C. Warnky, W. H. Kelley, John Smith; and by call of the previous question, was ordered to a vote and passed.

Bishop Blakeslee stated to the assembly that there was a sum aggregating $500, now due from the committee on repairs, for which he thought some provision should at once be made. And to provide for this exigency, it was moved by brethren Blair and Anthony:

That the Bishopric be authorized to pay from the general fund of the church the sum of $500, to liquidate said debts; said sum to be refunded by donations to the repairing of Temple.

Brethren Bond, Blair, Blakeslee, W. H. Kelley, Stewart, Crum, Mills, spoke to the motion; when upon call for the previous question by brethren Hulmes and Hunt, the vote was ordered and the resolution was adopted.

Upon motion of brethren Warnky and Luff, a vote of thanks was tendered the committee on Temple Repairs, for the faithful discharge of their duties.

The chair recalled the report of the committee on Church History, and presented the communication of Elder J. W. Briggs, concerning assurance respecting the publication of the manuscript as they were written by him. The report was read; and the subject spoken to by brethren Bond, E. L. Kelley, John Smith, Short, W. H. Kelley and Lambert. It was moved by brethren John Smith and E. L. Kelley, that the committee be discharged and the report spread on the minutes. This motion prevailed and it was so ordered.

The appeal of Bro. Wm. Burch, was presented and by motion of brethren — and Griffiths, the matter was referred to a committee of three composed of brethren John Smith, W. T. Bozarth and F. C. Warnky, with instructions to examine and report to this conference.

At 7:30 p. m., Bro. F. M. Sheehy occupied the stand, with Bro. S. Maloney to assist him. It was a good effort.

THURSDAY, APRIL 14TH.

The morning prayer service was presided over by brethren J. Chisnall and E. E. Perthel. Many testimonies were borne as to the truth of the work. Some testified to having been blessed with dreams, visions, &c. Prayers were offered in fervency by several, and songs of praise were sung at intervals during the session.

At 10:30 a. m., Bro. James A. McIntosh preached the morning sermon, Bro. J. H. Merriam being in charge of meeting.

Business session convened at the hour appointed. The brethren sang "Come thou fount of every blessing;" Bro. F. C. Warnky led in prayer; the minutes were read, corrected and approved.

The following report from the Seventy was received and ordered put on the record of minutes:

We have held 8 sessions at this conference, all of which were characterized by marked unanimity and brotherly love; and we have indeed enjoyed the presence of the Holy Spirit to a great degree.

Statistical report:—At opening of session 59, with J. F. Burton appointed but not yet ordained making 60. Members present 17, members reported 27, members not reported 16. Number taken from quorum:—By ordination to the Apostleship 3; dropped for cause 2, with one appointment, total 6, leaving our present number at 54. Restored to fellowship 2; baptisms reported by Seventies in the field in the past year 336.

The following items of business are presented as of interest to the general body: Whereas, this quorum referred the case of J. L. Adams to his district for further action; and whereas, that district has removed from him all disabilities, therefore, be it Resolved, that he be restored to his place in his quorum.

Resolved, that we receive the report of the committee, and adopt their recommendation to sustain Bro. Joseph F. McDowell in the quorum; inasmuch as he has in his written statement made satisfactory explanations of the causes that impelled the quorum to censure him.

Resolved, that we endorse the efforts of Sr. "Frances" and others toward the publication of a Magazine for the instruction of the young, such as are not reached by the Hope.

By resolution Elder John S. Patterson was expelled from this quorum for good and sufficient reasons. By resolution, Elder Robert Davis was dropped from the quorum by order of quorum.
E. C. BRAND, president.

The committee on the appeal of Bro. Wm. Burch reported as follows:

We your committee on appeal of the case of Wm. Burch, beg leave to report as follows:—After examining the case we find that offense by word had been given by Bro. Burch to Bro. Mottashed; that Bro. Burch had also made apology for the same, and asked forgiveness, but the offended party refused to forgive him; that in the absence of Bro. Burch from Cannada, a court was appointed without his knowledge, and sentence passed against him. We recommend, therefore, to the conference that the action of the district conference be declared void, and that the forgiveness asked for by Bro. Wm. Burch be granted. We hereby append the confession of Bro. Burch: "Inasmuch as I have given offence to brother Mottashed and the church by using language unbecoming a member of the Church of Christ, I hereby ask forgiveness of all you who are offended by my error."

JOHN SMITH,
F. C. WARNKY, } Committee.
W. T. BOZARTH, }

This report was on motion received, adopted and the committee discharged. Brethren W. W. Whiting and I. M. Smith moved:

Resolved, that the Bishop be instructed to pay to Bro. W. H. Kelley the $20 expended by him in visiting Bro. J. W. Briggs, to procure the manuscripts of History in his hands.

This passed and payment was ordered. The Twelve presented their report as follows:

We submit the following appointments for the missionary field, by and with advice of the First Presidency and Bishopric, which may fall below the expectation of many; but which in our judgment is the best, under the circumstances, that can be done. And we advise elders and priests not receiving General Conference appointments, to labor in their respective districts as they may find it practicable.

And to appointees we respectfully suggest that your special labor consists in opening up and occupying fields outside of branches; but you may co-operate with branch officials when necessity demands.

If any names that were forwarded have been overlooked, please notify missionary in charge.

The committee to which the petition from the Northern Michigan district for the release of Bro. Robert Davis from silence was referred, reported, and the report was read:

We, your committee appointed to examine and report on the resolution of the Northern Michigan district conference, in regard to restoring the license of Robert Davis, hereby report having made such examination and hereby recommend that said resolution of said conference and request be granted in restoring him his Elder's license.

Signed,

HIRAM RATHBUN,
D. S. MILLS,
D. CHAMBERS.

It was moved to adopt the report, grant the request to so release Robert Davis, and he be allowed to labor as an elder, and to discharge the committee.

This was spoken to by brethren Luff, Short, and Bond. The previous question was moved, and the vote ordered, and the motion to adopt was carried.

Thanks were voted to the newspaper men and reporters; the citizens of Kirtland, and the railway companies for kindness and courtesies shown.

Report from the Second Quorum of Elders was read and ordered put in minutes:

We have held one meeting; have reports from fifty-four members who had labored, and as a result of their labors, eighty-three were baptized.

F. C. WARNKY, Secretary.

Brethren R. M. Elvin and James A. McIntosh moved an adjournment subject to resolution, which was passed. The assembly rose, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" was sung; the benediction was pronounced, and the labors of this memorable conference were at an end.

It was the most harmonious session ever held. There was no division called on a single question put to vote; nor was there a call for the yeas and nays, and the presiding officer's gavel lay idly upon the desk, a thing of beauty but for the purpose of demanding order was needless.

KIRTLAND, O., April 14th, 1887.

The reports of brethren J. W. Gil'en, D. Campbell, James Moler, and F. C. Warnky were mislaid by the Senior Editor while transcribing the minutes and preparing the reports for the printers, at Kirtland, after the session closed; which loss he regrets but can not rectify.

EPISTLE OF THE TWELVE.

TO THE SAINTS SCATTERED ABROAD, GREETING:—

We congratulate you at the auspicious beginning of this another conference year; and we feel confident that you will join with us in the feeling of thankfulness and good cheer which has, in the providence of God, come to us as a church.

The year with its duties, anxieties and cares, its successes and failures, times of rejoicing and seasons of sorrow, is past; its closing being the occasion of one of the pleasantest, and most profitable and encouraging sessions of General Conference that the church has ever held.

The members were more than ordinarily of one heart and purpose—unity characterizing each work performed—so much so that the "yeas" and "nays" were not called for in a single instance during the entire session! God recognizing this oneness of spirit and purity of purpose, deigned to reveal Himself in answer to our prayers, in respect to most essential and important matters connected with our duties and work as a church, and signified the names of those approved by Him to occupy the office of apostle, that the quorum of Twelve might be more nearly filled. Thus a need, long since felt has been supplied, and we are greatly cheered and encouraged that others have been called to share in the burdens, duties and responsibilities of this ministry. Our petitions having been answered by our Heavenly Father, giving instruction upon such things as were engendering evil, division and discord among the Saints, to the end that unity and concord might obtain throughout the churches, in feeling, theory and practice; together with the thought that He does most assuredly regard us as His Church and people, must be received with thankfulness and rejoicing of heart, among the Saints, in every place, and should tend to confirm them in the faith, and lead to a renewal of their covenants and diligence in the work.

We are admonished of the responsibilities, and important trust conferred upon us, and what is required at our hands as laborers in the Lord's vineyard, and we purpose to renew our efforts and activity, so far as may be, and we ask the prayers and confidence of the Saints that this purpose may be executed in the way that will best serve the interests of the church.

The work of restoring the grand old Temple, built by divine commandment, and long since left to the winds and wastes of time, deserted, to be pillaged by the irreverent and thoughtless, has been nearly completed, in keeping with the work of restoring peculiar to the Reorganization, and is now made a pleasant and delightful place in which to worship. The repairing done reflects credit upon the committee which had it in charge, and the small indebtedness incurred thereby, should be promptly and cheerfully lifted. The Saints may well feel glad that they can no longer be justly reproached for a seeming want of interest in the house appointed by God to be built to His name.

The financial condition of the church is in a healthy state, showing an increased faith, confidence and interest among the Saints concerning tithes and offerings, which gives encouragement to the thought that the church will soon be able to put the whole of her available ministry into the field.

With hearts full of gratitude to God and love toward you, and with unfaltering faith and confidence in our holy religion, we invoke the blessings of God upon you and his work everywhere, praying that prosperity, and a renewal of confidence and effort may come to the church throughout the whole world. As a means of better understanding our respective duties, and with a view of coming to a greater unity of action, and avoiding misunderstanding and strife, we commend the following statements, declarations and definitions, for the guidance of district presidents and all whom it may concern:

1. The law of God provides for general presiding officers in the church, and also for presidents of branches: but it contains no provision for the office known as "district president." This office should, therefore, be considered as an outgrowth in organization, the object of which is to perform work not specially provided for in the law, and to assist in the discharge of duties and obligations which, by law, are imposed upon other officers of the church.

2. Presidents of districts hold and exercise their presidency, solely by virtue of selection by vote; hence they have no right to dictate, direct, or control any except those who placed this presiding responsibility upon them. A simple choice, only, made by any body of Saints, can not bestow authority to do the work which is clearly provided for in the revelations of God, and which is assigned to other officers of the church.

3. The branch organization with a presiding elder, a priest, teacher and deacon, to perform the respective duties necessary for the welfare of such organizations, is clearly provided for in the law; and if from any cause these branches need to be set in order, the law also provides for this emergency, and assigns the duty of setting in order, or regulating to another class of officers, whose duties and prerogatives are clearly defined. It follows, then, that the rights and duties of presidents of districts are outside of the above named provisions; and that they can not regulate, or set in order the branches of the church, except by invitation, request, or direction, of those to whom this work properly belongs.

4. Outside of all presidency known to the law, there are High Priests, elders and priests, all of whom, according to their circumstances and ability, should be engaged in ministering the word of life to the people. Hence the necessity for and wisdom of district organizations with presiding elders to take charge of them. It is evident, therefore, that the leading duties of presidents of districts are to open up new fields of labor; encourage and stimulate to activity the ministry in their respective districts, who are not burdened with branch duties, or who are not under general church appointment, and, so far as possible, aid all classes of ministers, in an advisory way, in order that the greatest possible degree of good may result from their labors in the respective localities where they are required to operate.

5. It is their right to preside over district conferences, by the voice of said conferences, when there is no member of the "travelling, presiding High Council" present, or a Seventy under special direction from him, or others whose duty and privilege it is to preside by reason of their position and standing in the church. They should be as conversant with the needs and demands of the branches as their circumstances will permit; and should aid by counsel, when called upon, in any work which properly belongs to branch officers. They should keep a vigilant watchcare over all their flocks, so far as practicable, and see that no evil or wrong doing is fostered, or practiced by the members, and more especially among the ministry. And when anything arises which reflects upon the moral standing or fitness of the ministry, he shall see that it is corrected through the channels provided in the law. It is not necessary, however, that he should travel from branch to branch, in one constant round, dictating and directing in branch affairs, and thus become an expensive burden while attempting to do that class of work which clearly belongs to branch and general church officials.

In connection with the above, we call attention to the two following questions which have disturbed and divided the Saints, in some localities, and which were duly referred to us for consideration and decision.

1st. Resolved, That it is our opinion that in all cases where faith and repentance are professed, and baptism administered by one having proper authority, that we can not assume the motive of the person baptized to have been evil because of subsequent transgression; but due diligence should be exercised by church officials, to honor the law contained in Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 17, par. 9; and sec. 42, par. 20.

2d. Whereas, there is a divided opinion with reference to the meaning of the law contained in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, sec. 42, par. 7, which reads as follows: "Thou shalt not commit adultery; and he that committeth adultery and repenteth not shall be cast out; but he that has committed adultery and repenteth with all his heart, and forsaketh it, and doeth it no more, thou shalt forgive; but if he doeth it again, he shall not be forgiven, but shall be cast out." Therefore, be it resolved, That it is our decision that the law of God requires the church to forgive once, upon confession; and that a second offense, demanding excommunication, can not be committed until after the guilty parties have been once forgiven of the crime charged.

May the spirit of wisdom, and the love of the truth abide with the faithful every where, is the prayer of your co-workers in the vineyard of the Lord.

BISHOP'S APPOINTMENTS

In accordance with the recommendation of the Southern Indiana district of the church, I hereby appoint James M. Scott as Bishop's Agent for said district, trusting that the Saints thereof will sustain him spiritually and financially for the benefit and progress of the work there and in the church at large.

Having been notified of the resignation of Bro. Thomas Matthews as my agent of Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia district, and Bro. Thomas J. Beatty having been recommended to me in his stead by said district, I therefore appoint him as Bishop's Agent for said district. And that the Saints may sustain and uphold him by their means and prayers in the discharge of his duty, is the prayer of your co-laborer and brother in Christ.

PERSECUTION AND ITS CAUSES.

SOME seem to not know that efforts have been made from the very founding of the Church of Christ to make it appear that the Saints were a vicious, lawless, treasonable people, but such is nevertheless the case, as the history of the past fully proves. Nor is this peculiar to Latter Day Saints, for in every age and dispensation God's people have been subjected to such treatment, whether known as primitive Christians, or protestant reformers, reaching from the times of Jesus and his apostles through the first centuries of the Christian era, down to the times of the Waldenses in the twelfth century, Wicliffe in the fourteenth, Luther, Melancthon and Knox in the sixteenth, Fox and others in the seventeenth, Wesley and Whitfield in the eighteenth, Murray and Ballou and Channing and Campbell, with Joseph Smith, the restorer of the gospel, and the founder of the authorized Church of Christ, in the nineteenth. All of them and their fellows have suffered misrepresentation, contumely, scandal, and sometimes bitter, violent persecution, and it has required time and patient endeavor to correct the evil reports and set well authenticated facts before the people touching these matters. With this purpose in view we continue this article, for now that strenuous efforts are being made to destroy Mormonism, root and branch, charging that from the first it has been vile and treasonable, we feel constrained to gather up legitimate, pertinent evidences, showing that it was neither the corruptness of the Saints' teachings, nor the criminality of their conduct, that caused the persecutions they suffered in New York, Ohio, Missouri, and Illinois, up to 1844, nor much of that which has followed since. We write to defend the Saints against the base calumnies heaped upon them from the first by which the public mind has been perverted and misled. And to furnish further evidence of the purity of the Saints' motives, and the uprightness of their conduct, showing at the same time the blindness and craft and malice of their enemies, we subjoin the following, which is an added proof that the Saints diligently sought by peaceful, legal means, to obtain redress for their wrongs and redemption of their legal rights:

All hopes of relief from the General Government was destroyed on receipt of the following communication from the city of Washington:

"WAR DEPARTMENT, May 2d, 1834.

Gentlemen:—The President has referred to this department the memorial and letter addressed to him by yourselves and other citizens of Missouri, requesting his interposition in order to protect your persons and property.

In answer, I am instructed to inform you that the offences of which you complain are violations of the laws of the State of Missouri, and not of the laws of the United States. The powers of the President under the constitution and laws, to direct the employment of military force in cases where the ordinary civil authorities are found insufficient, extend only to proceedings under the laws of the United States.

Where an insurrection in any State exists against the government thereof, the President is required on the application of such State, or of the Executive, (when the Legislature can not be convened), to call forth such a number of the Militia as he may judge sufficient to suppress such insurrection.

But this state of things does not exist in Missouri, or if it does the fact is not shown in the mode pointed out by law. The President can not call out a military force to aid in the execution of the State Laws, until the proper requisition is made upon him by the constituted authorities.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed), LEWIS CASS.

To Messrs. A. S. Gilbert, W. W. Phelps, E. Partridge and others, Liberty, Clay county, Missouri."

Times and Seasons vol. 6, p. 1073.

We next present a letter and an "order" from the governor, in respect to the arms surrendered by the Saints to Col. Pitcher, November 5th, 1833, when the Saints were being mobbed out of Independence and Jackson county:

"CITY OF JEFFERSON, May 2d, 1834.

To Messrs. W. W. Phelps and others: Gentlemen.—Yours of the 24th ult., is before me, in reply to which I can inform you that becoming impatient at the delay of the Court of Enquiry in making their report in the case of Lieut. Col. Pitcher; on the 11th ult. I wrote to Gen. Thompson for the reasons of such delay; last night I received his reply, and with it the report of the Court of Enquiry, from the tenor of which I find no difficulty in deciding that the arms your people were required to surrender on the 5th of last November should be returned; and have issued his order to Col. Lucas to deliver them to you or your order, which order is here enclosed.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
(Signed) DANIEL DUNKLIN.

The following is the order referred to above:

"CITY OF JEFFERSON, May 2d, 1834.

To Samuel D. Lucas, Col. 33d Regiment: Sir.—The Court ordered to enquire into the conduct of Lieut. Col. Pitcher, in the movement he made on the 5th November last, report it as their unanimous opinion that there was no insurrection on that day, and that Col. Pitcher was not authorized to call out his troops on the 5th November, 1833. It was then unnecessary to require the Mormons to give up their arms. Therefore, you will deliver to W. W. Phelps, E. Partridge, John Corroll, John Whitmer, and A. S. Gilbert, or their order, the fifty-two guns, and one pistol reported by Lieut. Col. Pitcher to you on the 3d December last, as having been received by him from the Mormons on the 5th of the preceding October, [November].

Respectfully,

DANIEL DUNKLIN,
Commander in Chief."

Times and Seasons vol. 6, pages 1073, 1074.

The following letter written to Gov. Dunklin throws added light upon the nature and extent of the outrages perpetrated upon the Saints by the Jackson county mob:

"LIBERTY, Clay county, May 7th, 1834.

Dear Sir:—Your favor of the 20th ult. came to hand the 1st inst., which gives us a gleam of hope that the time will come when we may experience a partial mitigation of our sufferings. The salutary advice at the conclusion of your letter is received with great deference.

Since our last of the 24th ult., the mob of Jackson county have burned our dwellings. As near as we can ascertain, between one hundred and one hundred and fifty were consumed by fire in about one week; our arms were also taken from the depository (the Jail) about ten days since and distributed among the mob. Great efforts are now making by said mob to stir up the citizens of this county and Lafayette to similar outrages against us, but we think they will fail of accomplishing their wicked designs in this county. We here annex a copy of the petition to the President, signed by about one hundred and twenty.

With great respect, &c.,

(Signed) A. S. GILBERT,
W. W. PHELPS.

Daniel Dunklin, Gov. of Missouri.

Times and Seasons vol. 6, p. 1074.

Here is a letter written by some of the leading brethren to Col. S. D. Lucas in respect to the restoration of their arms, also a letter written to the governor two weeks afterwards, in regard to the same matter:

"LIBERTY, Clay county, May 15th, 1834.

Col. S. D. Lucas: Sir.—We have this day received a communication from the Governor of this State, covering the order herewith, and we hasten to forward the said order to you, by the bearer, Mr. Richardson, who is instructed to receive your reply. We would further remark that, under existing circumstances, we hope to receive our arms on this side the river, and we would name a place near one of the ferries for your convenience. As the arms are few in number, we request that they may be delivered with as little delay as possible.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed)

A. S. GILBERT,
JOHN CORRILL,
W. W. PHELPS,
EDWARD PARTRIDGE.
JOHN WHITMER.

P. S. We will thank you for a written communication, in answer to this letter, and the accompanying order."

"LIBERTY, Missouri, May 29th, 1834.

Sir.—Your communication to us of May 2d containing or enclosing an order on Col. S. D. Lucas for the arms which were forcibly taken from us last November, was received the 15th inst., and the order forwarded to Col. Lucas, at Independence, on the 17th, giving him the privilege of returning our arms at either of the several ferries in this county. His reply to the order was, that he would write what he would do the next mail (May 22d). But as he has removed to Lexington without writing, we are at a loss to know whether he means to delay returning them for a season, or entirely refuse to restore them.

At any rate, the excitement, or rather spite of the mob, runs so high against our people, that we think best to request your Excellency to have said arms returned through the agency of Col. Allen or Captain Atchison. Report says the arms will not be returned, and much exertion is making by the mob to prevent our return to our possessions in Jackson county. We also understand that the mob is employing certain influential gentlemen to write to your Excellency, to persuade us to compromise our matters in difference with the Jackson mob, and probably divide Jackson county. We ask for our rights and no more.

Respectfully, your Excellency's servants,

(Signed)

W. W. PHELPS,
JOHN CORRILL,
S. A. GILBERT,
EDWARD PARTRIDGE."

Times and Seasons vol. 6, pages 1075-6.

To these we add the following to Governor Dunklin:

LIBERTY, June 5th, 1834.

Dear Sir:—We think the time is just at hand when our Society will be glad to avail themselves of the protection of a military guard, that they may return to Jackson county. We do not know the precise day, but Mr. Reese gives his opinion that there would be no impropriety in petitioning your excellency for an order on the commanding officer to be sent by return mail that we might have it in our hands to present when our people are ready to start. If this should meet your approbation and the order sent by return mail, we think it would be of great convenience to our society.

We would also be obliged to your Excellency for information concerning the necessary expenses of ferrage, &c. Are our people bound to pay the ferrage on their return? As they have already sustained heavy losses, and many of them lost their all, a mitigation of expenses on their return at this time, where they could legally be reduced, would afford great relief; not only ferrage across the Missouri river, but other items of expense that could lawfully be reduced.

We remain your Excellency's

Most obedient servants,

A. S. GILBERT,
W. W. PHELPS,
EDWARD PARTRIDGE, &c.'

As to what the governor thought of the treatment the Saints had suffered at the hands of the mob, also his views as to their right and their duty to bear arms, their right of religious liberty under the laws, and of his anxiety to have "a peaceable compromise" effected between the Jackson county mobbers and the Saints, the reader may gather from his letter to Colonel J. Thornton whom he appointed "an aid to the commander-in-chief," printed in the Missouri Enquirer:

"CITY OF JEFFERSON, June 6th, 1834.

Dear Sir:—I was pleased at the reception of your letter, concurred in by Messrs. Reese, Atchison and Doniphan, on the subject of the Mormon difficulties. I should be gratified indeed if the parties could compromise on the terms you suggest, or, indeed, upon any other terms satisfactory to themselves. But I should travel out of the line of my strict duty, as chief executive officer of the government, were I to take upon myself the task of effecting a compromise between the parties. Had I not supposed it possible, yes, probable, that I should, as executive of the State, have to act, I should before now have interfered individually in the way you suggest, or in some other way, in order if possible to effect a compromise, uncommitted as I am, my duty; though it may be done with the most extreme regret. My duty in the relation in which I now stand to the parties, is plain and straight forward. By an official interposition, I might embarrass my course, and urge a measure for the purpose of effecting a compromise, and it should fail, and in the end, should I find it my duty to act contrary to the advice I had given, it might be said that I either advised wrong, or that I was partial to one side or the other, in giving advice that I would not as an officer follow. A more clear and indisputable right does not exist, than that the Mormon people, who were expelled from their homes in Jackson county, to return and live on their lands, and if they can not be persuaded as a matter of policy, to give up that right; or to qualify it, my course, as the chief executive officer of the State is a plain one. The Constitution of the United States declares, "that the citizens of each State shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States." Then we can not interdict any people who have a political franchise in the United States from emigrating to this State, nor from choosing what part of the State they will settle in, provided they do not trespass on the property or rights of others. Our State constitution declares that the people's "right to bear arms, in defence of themselves, and of [the] State, can not be questioned." Then it is their constitutional right to arm themselves. Indeed our military law, makes it the duty of every man, not exempted by law, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, to arm himself with a musket, rifle, or some fire-lock, with a certain quantity of ammunition, &c.; and again, our constitution says, "that all men have a natural and indefeasible right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences." I am fully persuaded that the eccentricity of the religious opinions and practices of the Mormons, is at the bottom of the outrages committed against them.

They have the right constitutionally guaranteed to them, and it is indefeasible, to believe, and worship JOE SMITH as a man, an angel, or even as the only true and living God, and to call their habitation Zion the Holy Land, or even heaven itself. Indeed there is nothing so absurd or ridiculous that they have not a right to adopt as their religion, so that in its exercise they do not interfere with the rights of others.

It is not long since an imposter assumed the character of Jesus Christ, and attempted to minister as such; but I never heard of any combination to deprive him of his rights.

I consider it the duty of every good citizen of Jackson county and the adjoining counties to exert themselves to effect a compromise of these difficulties, and were I assured I would not have to act in my official capacity in the affair, I would visit the parties in person and exert myself to the utmost to settle it. My first advice would be to the Mormons to sell out their lands in Jackson county, and to settle somewhere else, where they could live in peace, if they could get a fair price for them, and reasonable damages for injuries received. If this failed, I would try the citizens and advise them to meet and rescind their illegal resolves of last summer and agree to conform to the laws in every particular, in respect to the Mormons. If both these failed, I would then advise the plan you have suggested, for each party to take separate territory and confine their numbers within their respective limits, with the exception of the public right of ingress and egress upon the highway. If all these failed, then the simple question of legal right would have to settle it. It is this last that I am afraid I shall have to conform my action to in the end, and hence the necessity of keeping myself in the best situation to do my duty impartially.

Rumor says that each party are preparing themselves with cannon. That would be illegal, it is not necessary to self defence as guaranteed by the constitution, and as there are no artillery companies organized in this State, nor field pieces provided by the public, and preservation of that kind will be considered as without right, and, in the present state of things, would be understood to be with a criminal intent. I am told that the people of Jackson county expect assistance from the adjoining counties to oppose the Mormons in taking or keeping possession of their lands. I should regret it extremely if any should be so imprudent as to do so; [for] it would give a different aspect to the affair.

The citizens of Jackson county have a right to arm themselves and parade for military duty in their own county independent of the Commander-in-Chief, or some other authorized by him, it would produce a very different state of things. Indeed, the Mormons have no right to march to Jackson county in arms, unless by order or permission of the Commander-in-Chief. Men must not "levy war" in taking possession of their rights, any more than others should in opposing them in taking possession.

As you have manifested a deep interest in a peaceable compromise of this important affair, I presume you will not be unwilling to be placed in a situation, in which, perhaps, you can be more serviceable to these parties. I have therefore taken the liberty of appointing you an aid to the Commander-in-Chief. I hope it will be agreeable to you to accept. In this situation you can give your propositions all the influence they would have were they to emanate from the Executive, without committing yourself, or the Commander-in-Chief, in the event of failure. I should be glad if you, or some of the other gentlemen who joined you in your communication, would keep a close correspondence with these parties, and by each mail write to me.

The character of the State has been injured in consequence of this unfortunate affair; and I sincerely hope it may not be disgraced by it in the end.

With high respect your obedient servant,
(Signed) DANIEL DUNKLIN.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

IN this issue we send out a "supplement," the Revelation of April 11th, 1887. Those having a Doctrine and Covenants can paste it in at the proper place for future reference.

Bro. A. Berg, when renewing of late for HERALD says, "The Herald furnishes the very best reading I ever paid money for. I could not do without it." We are receiving many scores of letters from various parts expressing similar sentiments, and we feel encouraged to ask the ministry and members to seek by every proper means to extend the circulation of the HERALD, and other church publications by procuring new paying subscribers therefor.

Sr. Thirza Chapman of Valley View, Iowa, sends HERALD for April 16th and 23d, and tracts to friends in England, and she thinks a competent, worthy elder could find an opening there for gospel preaching. The following are the addresses to which she sends: Mr. David Spanswick, Cadley, Marlborough, Wiltshire; Mrs. Joseph Hughes, Balsdon House, near Hungerford, Berkshire; Mrs. James Spackman, Estcot, Burbage, near Marlborough, Wiltshire; and Miss M. Blackman, 76 High Street, Burbage, near Marlborough, Wiltshire. Our ministry in that region should look to this call.

Bro. F. P. Schnell of Los Angeles, California, writes April 27th: "Prejudice against the work has been removed to a great extent, and the prospect for an increase is favorable."

Bro. D. W. Johnston of Moore, Ontario, in a recent letter says: "I have taken the Herald for fifteen years, have not lost one number. I could not do without it. Is it the first paper I read when the post arrives."

Bro. N. Stamm wrote from Angus, Iowa, the 2d inst., and is in fine spirits. He had preached a number of times; a Methodist local preacher and his wife were baptized, and Bro. Stamm thinks he will be a very useful man for the church. He says six had been baptized at Grimes not very long ago, and that now they have enough to organize a branch.

We find in the Wilkes Barre, (Pa.), Record of April 28th, a solid article by Bro. J. Hall, setting forth that polygamy was not, and never could be, a doctrine of the true Latter Day Saints, and that it was first publicly introduced by O. Pratt, at Salt Lake City, Utah, August 29th, 1852.

Many letters and articles are crowded out or delayed by conference minutes this issue. We are talking of having the General Conference minutes hereafter printed in pamphlet form, separate from the HERALD, for the reason that they would then be convenient of access, easily preserved and conveyed, and would not take much needed space in HERALD. Is the church ready for this?

Bro. F. C. Warnky of Independence, Missouri, writes May 2d, that he preached at Holden last week, and that Brn. I. N. White and C. StClair were there now, and that an excellent interest was manifest. He had been to Kansas City of late, prospects good there, and some added to the church there of late.

M. J. Avery of La Harpe, Illinois, (P. O. box 277) takes the HERALD, would like to read our church books, is pleased with the doctrine of the church, and would be pleased to have an interview with some competent minister of the church.

By letter from Mrs. Cynthia Cato, of May 2d, we learn that she resides at Eureka, Greenwood county, Kansas, instead of Fort Scott. If any elder can call there, her residence will be found half mile west of Fort Scott Rail Road depot, but they should send letter a few days in advance. The Christian minister there says he will give the use of his church to our ministers and attend their meetings.

DEFEND YOUR POSITION.

Elder J. S. Roth of Grinnell, of the Latter Day Saints, at the instance of Mr. D. W. Clow, sent the following challenge to Rev. M. T. Lamb, who preached against Mormonism last Sunday and the week before: The members of that faith in this vicinity are not polygamists, but believe in the Book of Mormon. They object to the statements of Rev. Lamb.

CHALLENGE:

As Mr. Lamb has publicly stated that the Book of Mormon was a fraud, and Joseph Smith an impostor; therefore, in behalf of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, we respectfully challenge him to defend his position in a joint discussion in the city of Davenport, he to affirm his position and we to deny—the time to be agreed upon hereafter. He can answer this by letter to D. W. Clow, 124 West Locust street, Davenport, Iowa, or to

J. S. ROTH, Grinnell, Iowa.

We clipped the above from the Davenport (Iowa) Gazette of April 20th, which contains a lengthy report of Rev. Lamb's lecture in the Congregational Church in Davenport of late. Mr. Lamb failed to accept a similar challenge sent him by our Elder Whiting of New Bedford, Massachusetts, not long since, and it is probable he will fail to accept Elder Roth's challenge—unless there's money in it, more than in his book venture.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. John Cobb, Sen., of Lower Lake, California, writes of late, saying:

"Times are very dull here at present. We hold meetings every two weeks and have the manifestations of the Spirit in them."

President Joseph Smith, in a letter dated Kirtland, Ohio, April 28th, writes:

"Mr. Geo. Russell, an old citizen here, says: 'I have been raised here—lived here from boy to man; have watched this thing for many years; but I now believe Mormonism has come to stay.'"

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"That cloud itself, which was before thee
Lies dark in view,
Shall with beams of light from the inner glory
Be stricken through.
And like meadow mist through autumn's dawn,
Uprolling thin,
Its thickest folds when about thee drawn Let sunlight in."

"BLESSED ARE THEY WHO SHALL NOT BE OFFENDED IN ME."

TO THE distant and lonely prison in which John the Baptist was confined, there came rumors of all the wonderful works which Jesus was doing, and he who was second to no prophet that had gone before him, who himself had borne witness of Christ and his divinely appointed mission, listened to the wonderful stories told him by his disciples, among which was related the bringing to life of the young man at the gates of Nain; and listening, his faith began to waver. "If indeed this is the Christ and he has power to perform all these wonderful things of which I hear, why does he not smite these prison bars and set me at liberty? Would he not know that they are wearing out my life, cankering my very soul? Oh, for the power to walk forth once more in freedom! To feel the pure air of heaven fanning this weary brow and the misty spray from the blue waves of Galilee bathing my temples! How often when in the desert did I look forward to the time of his coming, and when the word of the Lord came unto me in the wilderness commanding me to preach unto the people, "Repentance and baptism for the remission of sins," did not the same heavenly messenger say unto me, "Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending, and remaining on him, the same is he who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost," therefore I said to the people, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world!"

"Then I had thought to be with him, to learn of him and lean upon his strength. Not only to see all these mighty works which he is now doing, but to see the oppressors brought low, and kings to tremble before his power. Was he not sent to heal the broken hearted, to set the captives free, and give liberty to his bruised and down-trodden people? Why then am I a captive in this prison, in the power of a haughty, wicked king, because I told him of his sins? Surely there must be some mistake. If he were indeed the Christ, he would know all this; he would know how my soul is longing to be with him, and he would set me free.

"He must increase, but I must decrease. Yes; these words were given me and I spake them; but surely if he be the Christ he will send some comforting message to me when he knows my doubts and fears; therefore, I will ask him. If he be the Christ no man can deceive him. He will know what is in my heart, and if I must still remain here, he will send a message of love to cheer my soul and renew my strength, that I may have grace to do his will." Calling two of his disciples therefore, he sent them to Jesus.

Scarcely were the tears of joy dried upon the cheeks of the grateful widow of Nain, whose son Jesus had raised from the dead, when upon wings as of lightning, ran the news from lip to lip, from home to home, and from every quarter there came to him the sick and afflicted, or they were brought by their friends, that they might be healed of their infirmities. In the midst of this concourse of people the Master bent his gaze upon two, who had come with the others, but not to be healed. He had no need to ask them why they were there, for their errand was known unto him. Quietly he proceeded with his work, and at his word the sick were healed, the afflicted with plagues were restored, and from the possessed of devils the devils were cast out, and sight was given to the blind. When this had been done, he bent his gaze again upon the two, and they drew near, saying, "Master, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, 'Art thou he that should come, or look we for another?'"

Great, and full of tender compassion was the heart to which this question was addressed. No frown came to that placid face, nor rebuking question to his lips. "Did not John see the heavens opened and the Spirit of God descending upon me? Did he not hear the voice from heaven saying, 'This is my beloved Son, hear him?'" Not with questions like these did the Master answer John. There was not a throb of that true heart behind those prison bars, not a doubt which weighed upon that weary brain that did not strike a chord of sympathy in his pitying heart. How then will he answer him? John was not only a prophet—the messenger sent before the face of the Messiah to prepare his way,—but he was a priest and the son of a priest, and being such he was familiar with the prophets, and from them had learned the nature of the work Christ would do when he came upon the earth. "Go your way and tell John the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, and the dead are raised, and to the poor the gospel is preached."

Thus came the answer from his lips to the waiting messengers, whose eyes had seen all the wonderful things done by him while they were standing by, nor was this all, for as yet the answer is not complete.

There is to be added to this direct message sent to John, a clause to reach every heart seeking for divine guidance to the end of time—"Blessed are they who shall not be offended in me."

From the time when God first made choice of Abraham to be the father of a great nation, when from all the families of the earth He selected one to be the repository of his oracles, gave to them His statutes and made with them His covenants, even to the present day He has chosen whom He would, has sent by whom he would send, and steadily forward has moved to the accomplishment of the great end in view, the salvation of the human race. The thoughts, the dreams, the aspirations of man have been as the waves of the sea, but the course of God is one eternal round. When Moses first presented himself before his enslaved brethren he thought they would at once have known and recognized him as the one God had chosen to be their deliverer, (See Acts, 7: 25), but when they reproached him with smiting the Egyptian, he fled into the land of Midian, and there remained until sent by the Lord to accomplish the work appointed him to do. Were we to inquire the reason of Moses thinking that his brethren should have known the nature of his work—that he was sent of God to be their deliverer—we can find no satisfactory answer outside of the fact that God must have revealed it to his prophets who had taught the people to expect it. We know that the Lord had told Abraham in regard to their captivity and their deliverance; Joseph had also said to them, "God will surely visit you and bring you out of this land," but we are led by the language of the apostle to infer that they had more definite knowledge than this. Be this as it may, we are assured this is God's plan. "Surely the Lord will do nothing but he revealeth his secrets to his servants the prophets." From the day when Adam and Eve went forth out of the garden of Eden, the Lord by his own voice promised a Savior to the world, and through his prophets from time to time the promise was renewed. With this nature of this work, no living man was better acquainted than John the Baptist, but under the stress of that trial, which sooner or later will come to every true child of God, doubts arise in his mind; his soul is troubled and he turns to Jesus for assurance and comfort.

Saints of God, mark this—to Jesus were the messengers of John sent; not to the priests or doctors of the law, not to the Sanhedrin of his nation, nor yet like the wise men in quest of knowledge concerning this same Jesus, to the king on his throne, but to the travel worn, weary, despised Nazarene, even Jesus the son of Joseph the carpenter.

"Blessed are they who shall not be offended in me." Tell John these things and it will be enough. Shall I not finish the work the Father has for me to do? His prophets have told you what that work was—be not offended at it, nor yet in me, "for one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law until all be fulfilled.

John in his lonely prison, shut out from the world of nature, with all its sights of beauty and its sounds of joy, with an uncertain future before him, doubtless was under heavy trial, and for the time the face of the Father was hid and the comforting assurance which had been with him during all his sojourn in the desert, while he waited for the Master's coming, was withdrawn, and in his time of trial he turns to Jesus. Later on this same cup was pressed to the lips of Jesus himself, and in his agony he cried, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Of this latter day work prophets and apostles have written, and the departure from the truth has been clearly pointed out, yet still we are offended. God has chosen his own instruments to bring to pass his work, and high above all he is moving on to its final triumph and accomplishment. But we fancy our way is better and wiser than the Lord's way. It is not in strict accordance with our preconceived ideas and we are offended. Blessed are those who like John appeal to Jesus. Offenses, we are assured must come, but in view of what the Savior has said, it stands us in hand to be very careful that they do not come through us. Better we were cast into the depths of the sea, than offend one of the little ones who believe in Him. Let us therefore strive to "make straight paths for our feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way."

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Mary Knipschild, writes from Norborne, Missouri: "In reading my article in the Herald I observe one mistake, where it is stated that after receiving the wonderful vision which I related upon coming to a knowledge of things by which I was surrounded, I could do nothing but 'stand.' What I intended to express was, I was so overwhelmed with amazement that I could do nothing but wonder at the great manifestation of God's power and the revelation of it which he had made to me. During the ten days that my spirit was out of the body, this was the feeling which I had. Wonder, love and praise, wrapt my whole being, and although I had five little children, and of necessity had to care for them and their wants, yet I was not conscious of doing it, for I moved with such ease that nothing seemed like work, nor was anything burthensome to me, but afterwards when my spirit returned to the body, what a change! My body felt so heavy that I could hardly move. There was no desire left for the earthly. The spiritual things were the reality and all earthly things of a secondary nature. Could my sisters see, as I then saw the light in which pride appears, there would be left in them no desire for the adorning of the body. This adorning which is manifested pride, is in reality 'a weakness of our sex,' as one sister has expressed it, and when I remember how it appeared to me, then I pray for my sisters who indulge in it, the prayer of Jesus, 'Father, forgive them, they know not what they do!' A highly adorned person sets herself up as an idol, manifesting self-love more than the love of God, and how often I wish, as I said before, that my sisters could see how God looks upon it as it appeared to me when in the Spirit. It is grievous to see the daughters of Zion haughty, and at another time I want to talk more with my sisters concerning this."

Sister Hannah Moore, writes from Cambridge, Ohio: "I have been much interested in reading the letters from the sisters, and in sending in my mite to the Missionary Fund I wish to tell them this and pray that God will bless them and help them that they may not grow weary in well doing."

Sister Hannah Sailsbury, writes from Sandwich, Illinois: "I am pleased to read so many good letters from the sisters, and hope to hear more said upon the subject of dress. I feel the need of reform both for comfort and looks. I do detest some of the styles now adopted, and I for one will try not to follow them."

Sister R. J. Yocum writes from Logan, Iowa: "There is a couplet which comes to my mind when the griefs and cares of life are pressing heavily upon my heart, it is this,

"There may be burning deserts through which our feet must go;
But there are green oases where pleasant palm trees grow."

I am striving to think oftener of the oases and less frequently of the burning deserts. I ask an interest in your prayers.

QUARRY, Ohio, April 21st.

Dear Sisters in the Everlasting Covenant:—To-day I take up my pen to comply with your requests. Some who have been untiring in kindness to me since Sr. Frances' appeal for me in the Herald, have continued to send their comforting letters, and say, "You need not worry to answer letters, but write to the Mothers Home Column, and let us all hear how you are improving."

After thanking all for your kindness, I am happy to tell you I have been gaining strength and improving much for two or three weeks, and especially since General Conference. I sent a petition to be remembered in their solemn assemblies, and although I can not walk a step yet, when the weather is warm I can sit most of the day in my easy chair on the cast porch and see the beautiful flowers in our yard, hear the birds sing, enjoy the beauty of nature putting on its robe of green, and breathe the refreshing air of spring. O, sisters, I can tell you it is refreshing, after being confined to a bed of severest pain and suffering and fiery trials for ten long weary, dreary months; and my heart rejoices to tell the dear Saints that

"The friends that most cheered me
Were the friends of our Master,
The children of God."

And in my prayers for you all, I have felt He will bless you for your kindness to one so alone in my condition.

S. A. ROSE.

Sister Rose writes also that she will be thankful for any nice patterns for quilts, or for crochet laces, as she can only do light work and is anxious to do something by means of which she can aid the work.

CHILDREN IN THE HOME.

Polemicus Pattie, in his letters has said, somewhat humorously, "folks now-a-days hez decided that children is a heritidge ov the Devil stid ov the Lord, an' ev gone ter raisin' cats, birds, poodles an' sich, which they declare is cheeper an' eesyer done."

And no one who has taken note of the sentiment of the times concerning this subject will deny the truth of the quaint old gentleman's statement.

We condemn, or perhaps pity, the heathen mother throwing her helpless babe under the cruel wheels of the Juggernaut, or into the dark waters of the Ganges, as an offering to her god; yet scores upon scores of our Christian (?) women sacrifice their yet unborn infants, from a far less holy motive, upon the altar of society, fashion, and personal ease.

The world is rushing on at too mad a pace to bother with children,—no time to nurse their colics—steady their little tottering feet,—to brood them in childhood's petty storms,—to guide them while making the perilous rapids to manhood and womanhood!

"Get some beautiful house plants—a charming canary—a dear old cat, and a love of a poodle!—these are not always in the way; don't disturb your nights; don't keep you home from the ball, the opera, and the thousand and one imperious but delightful demands of society! Then too, Robert and I can be all in all to each other."

Thus reasons many a silly and ignorant young bride, as she imperils everything, even life itself, rather than welcome these God-given angels to her home.

That capricious and conscientiousless dame, Fashion, has invaded this holy precinct and now arrogantly dictates that to be in the height of style, there must be no children. One offspring, if puny and delicate, but elegantly dressed, may be allowed—two shows a serious disregard of the laws of society, while more completely ostracizes (from the elite) and consigns you to the "common, vulgar class."

There is scarcely a crime in our nation; not even that of intemperance, we believe, that is working such insidious but sure devastation of our homes, our physical health and our social purity as this crime. The intelligent physician and studious philosopher must regard it with apprehension and alarm.

Wrote a friend just entering upon the sacred duties of marriage: "there is nothing we so much fear as children." And this "fear," though it may be unexpressed, is far too wide-spread.

Even our landlords and the proprietors of fashionable boarding houses, have declared them a nuisance. A "man and wife without children," they advertise.

No room! Crowd them out! But did you ever think what an army of these un-owned, despised ones, must be gathering to the arms of Him who said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me?"

And is there no one to lift a voice against this slaughter of the unborn innocents, while scores of quacks and professionals stand ready to deceive and aid in this wicked business?

We need instruction. We need plain talks on these vital subjects. We want it in our medical words, by the press, from the pulpit, and from the parents in the home.

Our youth should be taught that children are the crowning glory of the marriage relation, and that none should enter it who are unfit or unwilling to assume this sacred responsibility.

Some one has said, "Life is all preface before the children come;" and truly how little we know ourselves, our weakness and our strength, until we attempt to rear a family. Children are our great educators; teaching us self-denial, patience and industry. They are the strong cords binding (often wavering in their affection or untrue) together. "For our children's sake" becomes the noble and inspiring watchword of the household. And it has saved many a family ship from the breakers and final dismemberment.

Children keep the home warm and bright and the hearts of the parents young and cheerful. If you want to find a fussy, fidgety, finical woman, wrinkled, haggard and disagreeable, look into the homes of those whose order and neatness has never been trespassed upon by a flock of merry, mischievous children.

It is ignorantly supposed that children are like an untimely frost, destroying all physical freshness and beauty. But some of the most beautiful, healthful, and fascinating women I have known, are those who have reared large families; upon whose features have rested the beneficent smile of the Madonna. And any intelligent and honest physician will tell you that nothing so undermines the health as the wicked attempts to avoid the duties of maternity.

"What is home without the children?
'Tis the earth without its verdure,
And the sky without its sunshine,
Life is withered to the core!"

Correspondence.

CHATHAM, Ontario, April 30th.

I have just arrived at this place, preparing for my work. Met Bro. J. H. Merriam. He has been preaching some at this place. I see by the last Herald, that the missions are mentioned, but the Canada mission is omitted, I presume by neglect. Good reports of the late conference at Kirtland, are mentioned in some of the papers of the Dominion. Received letter from Bro. R. C. Evans, and he has commenced the battle at London. I expect to labor in this (Kent and Elgin) district until after their June conference, second Saturday and Sunday.

Yours for truth,
J. H. LAKE.

CORMORANT, Minn., April 25th.

Brother Joseph Smith:—I was very much pleased to learn of those worthy brethren being called to the apostolic office. It met with the highest approval and appreciation by me, for they have proved themselves men of God and well worthy of God's honor and blessing. I am highly pleased with the Herald and Hope and of the good views they bring. I saw a good, very good piece in last Herald from Aunt Patience. God bless her. What a glorious work we are engaged in! Nothing on earth like it, and yet how few there be who receive the glorious gospel that gives an endless life beyond.

I have not been able to preach for some time, until lately. I am now holding forth at Spring Creek with very few to attend, therefore I will remove to another fishing ground. As it is a day of warning and not of many words I must do my part in telling the story to as many as I can. I was in the Spirit yesterday for one hour, to a full house, and am satisfied the seed fell on good ground. Sister Johnson whom I baptized not long since, expressed her feelings yesterday after partaking the sacrament—"O, I am so happy!" One young man asked me for the Voice of Warning. Of course he carried it home with him. I am glad to see such interest among the young.

May the God of our fathers bless and strengthen you, brother Joseph, and make you mighty in his great wisdom, to lead the church of Jesus Christ.

Yours in the one faith,
J. C. FOSS.

BANDERA, Texas, April 27th.

Bro. Blair:—I read a letter from "a sister" in Mother's Home Column, just now, and I felt like saying something about "tobacco." I know it can be overcome, for father quit it when fifty-eight years old, (two years ago), though he tried several times before he did. He just went to God for help and he received it when he went right. Since that time he is doing all he can to get the Saints to quit it. Others are at work against it here in Texas, and I think we can count ten or fifteen that have quit it, who were once its slaves. Young brothers, let us take that as a part of our work, and fight against that evil all we can. My mother was hastened to her grave I believe, by the use of snuff. I long to see the sisters lay that habit aside. This is the headquarters for tobacco and coffee, I think. A man is hardly recognized as a Texan if he uses neither. I never felt so much like casting in my mite as I have of late. Why could not all tobacco users make an estimate of their expenses for one year, quit it that long, send that money to the church, and see what a wonderful sight it would be! I expect to fight little sins as well as I can, overcome big sins, then fight them to the end. Brothers, the sisters are marching onward! Can't we? will we? Let us work for our master "by sacrifice." I wish some older ones would write more about tobacco. I'm going to see how many I can get to quit it this year. How many of you, young brethren, will join me?

J. A. CURRIE, Jr.

VERMILLION, Ill., May 2d.

Bro. J. Smith and W. W. Blair:—Spoke twice in the Christian Church in Vermillion, yesterday. The congregations were small, but good was done. Pride, ignorance and prejudice stand in the way. However, could I remain here long enough, I am satisfied I could get a respectable hearing in Vermillion, and perhaps a much better one in other places. I am fully persuaded that patient and continued efforts are what is most needed; and that, as a rule, the missionary does not want to spread himself over too much territory. The peculiar condition of the people demand this kind of an effort, and I can not see how good work can be done in new places without it. I expect to reach my field by, or soon after, the 15th inst.

Your brother in bonds,
JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., April 28th.

Bro. Blair:—Our quarterly conference was held in this city, last Sunday and Monday. Brethren Chas. H. Porter, R. J. Anthony, and James Caffall, did the preaching, before, during and after the conference. Peace, love, and good will was the order, and many are of the opinion, that it was the best conference we have had for a number of years. The same spirit that ruled at Kirtland, was felt here.

In bonds,

HOLSTEIN, Ont., April 26th.

Dear Herald:—Since I last wrote you I have been constantly engaged, endeavoring to build up the great work. I believe I was at Cameron when I last wrote, so I need not delineate my effort there. I found a goodly number of Saints and friends there whose kindness has a place in my affections and will not easily be forgotten. I arrived at Holstein the 24th of January, and did some labor there among the Saints. The branch there has about forty members. They have a comfortable little church, and they love to meet together in the interest of the great work. This branch is presided over by Elder Walter Morrison, a good man, who by his timely counsel and humble disposition has gained the confidence, and respect of the community, especially the Saints, yet there are some among the Saints who do not seem to appreciate his labors of love, at least to the extent that they should, in upholding their presiding officer. There are a few who do not live up to their privileges, yet when the Saints, as a branch, come together, the Master meets with them, and they are cheered by the gifts and manifestations of God's Holy Spirit.

After spending some little time there, I went to the Proton branch to regulate some affairs there. This I found to be a rather difficult job, because the peculiar ideas of some had caused discontent among the rest. This branch numbers about forty persons. They are in a rather better condition at present; but that unity and peace that should be enjoyed by the Saints of God is not realized as it should be. When I see the Saints easily disturbed, I think why is it so? When we talk to them in regard to the work, they almost invariably testify, "I know this work is true;" and any amount of persuasion could not make them think differently. At times very small things will cause some Saints to neglect their duty. The enemy of righteousness then creeps in, destroys their peace, driving out the grand principle of love which Jesus said should be characteristic of his people. If the Saints realized the reward there is in store for the people of God, in the ultimate triumph of the work, they would be more willing to bear and forbear, and would not readily take offense at things of little or no importance. My earnest petition to the Master is, that the Saints who have been slumbering in the past, thinking all was at ease in Zion, may awaken from their lethargy and bind on the war equipments, and earnestly and zealously fight for Zion's cause. We are confident there is a great work to do, and the responsibility of accomplishing it does not rest upon the elders alone, but upon all who have entered into covenant with God. There is no room for idlers in God's work. If we do not do that work, we will be responsible to the Judge of all the earth. No excuses will be accepted. If we have failed, we will suffer loss, being deprived of the glory that awaits the redeemed. All should arise in the strength of Israel's God zealously labor for the glorious triumph of the Redeemer's cause, whether elder, priest or lay member. The voice of the Spirit to Israel is, "work while the day lasts, for the night cometh when no man can work."

I feel satisfied that not many seasons shall pass ere the heavens shall reveal the Son of God, coming in majesty and power, to reign with his Saints, and before his ancients gloriously. My soul swells with joy, as I fondly anticipate the glory then to be revealed; for they that are accounted worthy of an entrance in that celestial city—being made like unto Christ—will bask in the radiance of God's glory, throughout the endless ages of eternity.

While I was in Proton a Methodist preacher, through the press, painted the Latter Day Saints as a terribly deluded people; and with all the ghoulishness of the hyena, desecrated the grave of Joseph the Seer, covering the honored dust of the noble and defenseless dead with falsehood and slander, and wound up with the usual sectarian cry, "Don't go to hear them," "beware of the false prophets" &c. This had its effect with some until we succeeded in getting a hearing through the same paper, and although our article was cut down some, yet we managed to get a challenge printed wherein he was invited, to "come to the front" and maintain his assertions, or show to the public by declining that he was a consummate coward and could not meet what he had said. This served as a quietus for the "Rev."

From Proton we went to Riverview, remained a few days, and thence to Masonville, where Elder J. A. McIntosh had previously labored and did a good work. Here we remained for four weeks, baptized nineteen, fifteen of which were heads of families, and on the sixth of April we organized a branch there of thirty-five members, to be known as the "Masonville Branch." The Saints there are alive to the interests of the work, many others investigating and we think ere long will obey. I am to be there again on the eighth of May to remain for awhile.

Hoping, and praying be able to accomplish the work required at my hands, and for the success of Zion's cause, I am, in bonds of love,

WILLARD J. SMITH.

GENERAL ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

REPORT OF CHURCH SECRETARY AND RECORDER.

I submit the following report of the labor done upon the Church Records during the past year, and I believe it will be considered as a satisfactory showing of the progress and condition of affairs. I have placed upon the records during the past year exactly two thousand and seven hundred names, with their items of birth, baptism and confirmation, seventeen hundred and ten of these being baptisms that have never been upon the General Church Records before, and nine hundred and ninety names recorded as received from other branches or by vote. The losses have been as follows: Nine hundred and eighteen by removal, three hundred and seventeen by death and one hundred and fifty-seven by expulsion; total, thirteen hundred and ninety-two. This leaves the net gain for the year thirteen hundred and six members (1,306). In my tabular statement last year I credited the Society Islands with four branches that were not yet on record, an excess of one hundred and twenty-nine, and failed to give Canada credit in that form of three members, so that the total last year was in fact but seventeen thousand, nine hundred and twenty-eight (17,928). To this add the net gain this year and we have now upon the records nineteen thousand, two hundred and thirty-six members (19,236). Ten years ago this Spring there was a net membership or but nine thousand, seven hundred and ninety-six (9,796) on record, or a few over one-half what there are now.

There has been a much greater loss by death and expulsion the past year than during any previous year, a great many veterans of the past having gone to rest, and branches having dealt with members and expelled those whom they considered unworthy of further fellowship. So far as known to the records the loss by the defection of those who withdrew last Spring has been but small, ten names, including the six released by General Conference.

There have been twenty-one new branches put on record the past year, namely: Zion's Hope in England; Ellice and Tilbury in Canada; Deer Creek in California; Box Elder in Colorado; Marshall in Dakota; Elkhorn and Samaria in Idaho; Logan and Willow Valley in Iowa; Dimondale, Gravel, St. Gideon, St. Thomas and Webberville in Michigan; Luce in Minnesota; Chelsea in Nebraska; Kirtland, Lake View and Washingtonville in Ohio; Cranston in Rhode Island; and Lone Star has been organized in Alabama, and Oak Island in Texas.

Some seem to have the idea that the transfer of names in removal from one branch to another is not recording, like the work of entering new names, when in fact it takes not less than three-fold more time and labor, some times five-fold. This for the reason that items of birth, baptism, confirmation and ordination have to be looked up, and often discrepancies are found in names, dates, and places, requiring not only a close investigation, but also making necessary a correspondence with clerks or others upon every point; for it would be a poor record that did not agree with itself, or that showed a member born in different years and different states, one way on one record and other ways on one or more other records. But such diversities are found on the majority of reports or copies of branch records that come in. Frequent reference to an atlas, post-office guide or encyclopedia is necessary about the names of towns, counties, shires, provinces, etc.

Besides recording, I have the past year indexed, alphabetically, seven thousand, three hundred and eleven names (7,311). Have placed upon the records nearly four hundred ordinations (398), two hundred and fifty-five of which have been new ordinations, or those not before reported and recorded. Have also made seven hundred and sixty-three (1,763) additions to or corrections of that previously recorded, namely as to names, initials, dates and places of birth, baptism, confirmation, ordination, removals, expulsions and deaths, where items were not had before, or had been incorrectly sent. Have made an alphabetical index-record of all the elders, priests, teachers and deacons known in the church, containing nearly four thousand names (3,994), with the pages upon each record book where they can be found, the quorums they are in, and the fact of death, expulsion or ordination to higher office. It shows that there are now left 1,203 elders, 682 priests, 491 teachers, and 346 deacons. I have all these now in one book, adding new ones as reported, and recording losses as they occur. This is very convenient for finding any man who holds office in the church, where he is, etc. Have written upwards of six hundred letters about records and other church matters, issued eighty certificates of appointment and Licenses, answered inquiries by letter about church rules, governments and doctrines, and performed such other work as devolved upon me.

For such Secretary and Recorder's work, and allowances, during the past five years, I have received (including $142.55 now due me) a total of $1,306.75, or an average of $261.35 per year during the five years. I wish this to go on record in the minutes, because there has been a great deal of misunderstanding that has perplexed some and been unjust to me. The balance paid me during that time has been $95 for ministry service, and $61.65 for expenses to two conferences, one trip on committee, and for postage and office fixtures. All this is according to statement of the Bishop, sent me last July. During the past year I have spent fully six months clear, full time, in this work, and much of the remaining time has been used in the ministry without expense to any church treasury.

I now present the changes by countries and states during the year, not giving the name of each branch and its number as heretofore done. WYOMING.—Last report none; 12 baptized, 3 received, 2 removed; net gain and present number 13.

The above statistics show a total one year ago of 17,928, and a gain of 1,710 by baptism and 990 by letter and vote, also a loss of 918 by letter, 157 by expulsion and 317 by death, leaving net gain of 1,306, with present total 19,236. Marriages recorded 205; new ordinations 255; old ordinations transferred and recorded 143.

REPORTS OF DISTRICTS.

I give an epitome of the districts whose officers have sent in reports of statistics and progress during the year, as follows:

Welsh Mission.—Bro. Thos. E. Jenkins, president, reports, that there are 9 branches, in which are 154 members, including 1 of the Seventy, 31 elders, 12 priests, 2 teachers, 5 deacons; 9 baptized, 2 removed, 2 expelled, 2 died. Bro. Jenkins says:—"In this mission are some very faithful elders, who are contending for the faith; among them Wm. Morris, Dan Davies, J. Lewis, J. R. Gibbs G. A. Cope, W. A. Webberly, and at present, Elder J. D. Jones of Kewanee, Illinois, a man greatly loved in Wales. Could you, brethren in America, assist his family a little, I think he would stay here longer. Think of it, brethren, and feel for us. One great hindrance, in my charge over the mission, is my bodily weakness; still I am always with the Saints, endeavoring to do all I can in the Master's cause. The work brightens up a little, and I earnestly pray for a better future." (The above statistics differ from my report, because I count fragmentary branches; also losses have been reported to me from away back).

English Mission.—Bro. C. H. Caton, secretary of the mission, says:—"In presenting this report I take pleasure in stating that the year 1886 has not passed away without progress being made in the Church of Christ in this country. There have been 42 added by baptism, the word has been preached upon ever available occasion, and there has also been a marked progress in the spiritual growth of the membership. So the mission can truly be said to be in a good condition. It is true that all things are not as could be desired, but at the same time, it is safe to say there are no "bitter burnings that do hinder us." We have a good array of soldiers doing battle against error. I was instructed by our last annual conference to write, that should Bro. Thomas Taylor consent to remain in charge, it is the expressed desire of this mission that he be continued therein. We pray for you and seek an interest in your prayers."

Northern Illinois District.—W. Vickery, clerk, reports about 10 branches and 7 fragments, with 758 members; 10 baptized, 9 received, 3 removed, 6 died. Bro. F. M. Cooper is the president of the district.

Decatur, Iowa.—There are 7 branches and 4 fragments, and in all 1,154 members. During the year 56 persons have been baptized, 45 been received by letter, 37 removed, 15 expelled, 9 died, 13 changes of name by marriage; net gain in membership 48. The cause is in fair condition, and the prospect looks encouraging, if the ministry will only go on in their labors, both in the branches and around about; and if harmony and peace continue among the Saints. The two movements against the Reorganized Church, by those once in the true faith, has cost us ten members during the year, including the five released by General Conference. On the whole the issue discussed have strengthened the great body of the people in our district. There has been an examination, a study of the books themselves, not only by the ministry but by the young and the old of both sexes, therefore good has been brought to pass by that which was only disposed for evil and to overthrow many, evidently designed by Satan as one of the sifting processes. Also those outside have come to know just how we regard matters upon which they were before prejudiced, and, consequently, many have become more tolerant and friendly, as they found we were not as represented. There have been many public and private talks about the "three books," and the brethren have been fearless in meeting the attacks upon them. H. A. Stebins president of district; F. M. Weld clerk.

Des Moines, Iowa.—There are 6 branches and 417 members. Baptisms 14, received 23, removed 22 expelled 3, died 5, leaving 6 as net gain. W. C. Nirk, president; H. A. McCoy, clerk. They report that Bro. J. S. Roth has devoted almost his entire time in that district, and done much good; also that Bro. McDowell was there a short time. Brethren Baker, Stamm, Shimeel, Nirk and Knox have also labored effectively, and brethren Ray, McBurnie and J. X. Davis in their respective branches, besides Priests Merrill and Jamison. Good openings have been made at points in Hardin, Polk and Story counties. There are plenty of chances and good prospects.

Eastern Iowa.—Contains 5 branches, with membership 95; baptisms the past year 15, and no other changes. Jerome Ruby president; W. T. Maitland, clerk. The district is reported as being in great need of laborers who can devote their time to the work, the five elders there being unable to do it, except Bro. Ruby does so a part of the Winter months. The Saints desire the progress of the work, and are willing to aid, therefore the district asks that Bro. J. S. Roth be appointed to that region for the coming year. There are many calls for preaching.

Galland's Grove, Iowa.—Composed of 10 branches, having 687 members, besides 26 scattering. During the year 51 have been baptized, 36 received by letter, 11 removed, 2 expelled, 10 died; leaving 64 net gain. The Pilot Rock and Shelby branches have been disorganized, nearly all the members having moved away. W. W. Whiting president of district; John Pett, clerk.

Little Sioux, Iowa.—Has 7 branches, 647 members enrolled, besides 125 scattered ones. The gain has been 12 by baptism, 148 by letter and otherwise, 104 removed, 1 expelled, 6 died, net gain of 49 for year. J. C. Crabb, president; W. C. Cadwell, clerk. They report that the demand for preaching was never greater, and several of the elders are filling all the appointments they can. Bro. Charles Derry has been almost constantly in the field, and is doing great good. The prospect is that branches will be organized at Woodbine and Missouri Valley soon. Bro. G. S. Hyde is doing good according as his health permits preaching. Bro. J. C. Crabb has done considerable work, and Bro. J. F. McDowell labored effectively near Little Sioux. Altogether the prospect is encouraging, so Bro. Cadwell writes. He says that the Reunion last fall was productive of great good, and the prevailing sentiment is that General Conference could not do a wiser thing than to provide for a missionary or two, whose whole time could be devoted to preaching the truth in that region.

Western Maine.—Comprises 5 branches, 142 members; 4 baptized during the year, 1 received; 5 net gain; W. G. Pert president; E. H. Pert, clerk. Branches said to be in a poor condition. Brethren F. M. Sheehy and U. W. Green have labored throughout the district, and Bro. M. H. Bond was in it a short time. If workmen could be had it is thought that much could be accomplished.

Central Missouri.—There are but 2 branches, with 77 members, and 47 members not in branches. M. A. Trotter, clerk so reports.

Nodaway, Missouri.—Has not been reported for four years till now. Bro. Joseph Flory, clerk, says that difficulties have existed which have seriously retarded the progress of the work, until recently. But the present indications are that there will be an ingathering of souls ere long, and that the cause will gain ground there. Some labor has been done by those under General Conference appointment, and some by brethren from other districts. A large portion of the elders in the district are of Danish birth. The president, James Thomas, has lately spent a good deal of time in preaching, and reports many calls and openings, and much inquiry among the people about the doctrine and principles of the Church. According to their conference minutes the district has paid into the church treasury the past year $650, and the clerk was instructed by their conference to ask the General Conference to take their need of ministers into consideration.

North-East Missouri.—Is composed of four branches, 200 members. Some of the branches are in bad condition, one of them not having even one officer active. The report says that they need an active ministry in the district from without. John Taylor is president and John T. Williams, clerk.

Southern Nebraska.—There are 6 branches, 399 members, 116 scattering members, total 515. Baptisms 28, received 12, removed 10, leaving 30 as a net gain. Levi Anthony, president; J. B. Gouldsmith, clerk. Nine others were baptized outside of branches. There are, besides the 515 mentioned above, about 100 who live in the bounds of the district yet are numbered on the records of other places or states. Three of the branches are in good condition, two are almost without meetings because of lack of ministers, and one is in a bad situation. Preaching has been done by James Caffall, M. H. Forscutt, R. C. Elvin, R. J. Anthony, Henry Kemp, E. M. Wildermuth, and R. M. Elvin.

South-Eastern Ohio and Western Virginia.—Composed of 10 branches, containing 330 members, besides 45 members on records of the three fragmentary branches. A. B. Kirkendall, clerk, reports it.

ELDERS, PRIESTS, TEACHERS AND DEACONS.

The following named have made application to be received into quorums, either into those that exist now, or into others that shall be organized at this conference or later. And I would like the brethren throughout the church to take notice that the rule adopted by the General Conference requires that every one must apply for himself, otherwise no one has a right to enroll him. If they will send word to me that they wish to be enrolled in a quorum that is sufficient. Then I will present such names at the time when conference convenes, and the existing quorums can fill vacancies from the list, or new quorums can be organized, as thought best by the church authorities.

ELDERS:—Samuel Ackerly, Levi Atkinson, T. J. Beatty, N. L. Blakeley, M. P. Berg, T. D. P. Cheney, Jacob Double, J. L. Goodrich, W. M. Gibson, John Harris S. J. Hinkle, David Hopkins, Wm. Jaques, J. W. Kent, Benj. Kester, Ekin Lovell, T. J. Martin, James Moler, Thomas Matthews, Marcus Shaw, Mitchell Stephens, Andrew Tabbut, A. W. Thomson, David Thomas, L. W. Torrence, M. M. Turpen, Henry Way, and J. L. Williams—28.

PRIESTS:—W. H. Barrett, N. W. Best, E. D. Benet, W. F. Clark, B. W. Dempster, F. G. Dungee, U. W. Green, J. L. Gunsolly, Asel Hall, Hugh Havey, C. N. Hutchius, D. E. Lander, Samuel Lovett, G. W. Parks, Curtis Randall, D. S. Seavy, J. A. Stromberg, P. W. Surbrook.—18.

TEACHERS:—J. B. Cline, John Coiner, D. S. Condit, Isaac Cramer, J. W. Dumbauld, G. W. Leach, Lyman Little, J. F. McKenna, J. M. Mills, C. C. Nelson, F. W. J. Ode, J. T. Richards, W. B. Thatcher, A. R. Wilcox.—14.

DEACONS:—J. M. Bass, C. J. Nethercott, A. B. Pierce, T. D. Raper, B. F. Renfroe, L. D. Sperry.—6.

I also send a list of the above priests, teachers and deacons to the Quorum of Twelve as those authorized by conference to attend to their organization, and the list of elders I send for the quorums to draw from, according to the rule last spring. I hope that during the coming year those brethren who wish to be enrolled in quorums will so inform me, in order that by another April something can be done at organizing them, as the word directs. There is virtue in it as has been proven.

I have nothing more to present at this time, except to express the hope that presidents and clerks of districts and branches will take a full interest in the work of records and reports; also that the traveling ministry will aid all they can to induce order and regularity in branch records and reports, themselves setting a good example by obtaining full items about every person they baptize and reporting them to branch clerks, or, if done outside of branches, report to the distrit clerk or to me, so that all names and items may go on record properly and promptly. Then many errors will be avoided and a great deal of present correspondence will be made unnecessary. It has required constant and repeated efforts to obtain correct details, and then there is occasionally some guess work.

Bro. Benjamin Bowman, of Virginia, having long been afflicted, and being far from the gatherings of the Saints and the elders, desires the earnest and effectual prayers of the church during the conference, that he may be healed and blessed of God.

Respectfully submitted to the General Conference and the church,
HENRY A. STEBBINS,
Secretary and Recorder.

MINISTRY REPORTS.

Elder Joseph R. Lambert, of the quorum of Twelve, present, reports:

I am pleased to be able to report this mission in a better condition than it was one year ago. The number of letters received from district and branch authorities asking for counsel and help to settle difficulties has been much less that it was in the previous conference year. I regard this as a good indication. Either the districts and branches are learning to settle their own difficulties much better than in the past, or (what is still better) there are not near so many difficulties to be settled. While this, with some other indications, has given me much pleasure, it is true that the enemy of all righteousness has given battle in another form. A few who were once active elders in the church have been doing all they could to annoy, divide, and if possible destroy the work of God. With one or more of these I have had almost constant warfare. They have resorted to the most vile and contemptible means, and have succeeded about as well as others have done when making similar efforts in a similar cause.

The demands for preaching and labor by the ministry in this field are very great. They can only be fully and properly appreciated by the faithful elders who take the field in the Spirit of the Master's cause. But the same spirit, I am pleased to report, is moving upon many of the Saints in this field, (especially of late) causing them to cheerfully impart of their means in order that the glad news of salvation may be preached to "all people," as the Lord has commanded.

My own labors, so far as travelling and preaching are concerned, have been confined to Decatur, Far West, and north-east Missouri Districts. I have tried so far as my charge would allow, to set a proper example for those who are too prone to glide over a great deal of territory rather than concentrate their efforts, thus enabling them to curtail expenses, and do more solid and permanent work. I have, I believe, preached and labored all that my state of health would justify, and have been blest of God.

This mission is an important one. Missouri is the old historic ground of the Latter Day Saints. Where they were once driven and put to shame they now have many friends; and in these and surrounding regions there are many opportunities for presenting the truth to the people. The grave question with us is: Shall these golden opportunities be improved by more fully supplying the vast and increasing demand? This can only be done by placing the proper number of worthy elders—those who can be trusted for wisdom and integrity in the field and then sustaining them in the important work they are called to do. According to the report of the church recorder last spring, this mission contains about one-third of the membership of the entire church! There were in these two states about the same as twelve districts, and eighty-four branches, with a membership of over six thousand. While we have many elders, I am sorry to state the force of local laborers is very small. St. Joseph and St. Louis, Missouri, must be largely supplied by missionary labor or we will suffer losses which we can ill afford to do.

I have no complaints to offer against the missionary force under my charge. As a body of ministers for Christ, they have done well. However, there is still room for improvement, (more with some than others) and the true servant of God will not fly the track and say or write a great many ugly and uncalled for things to the missionary in charge just because he is not regarded as the model of perfection in all things. These missionaries will doubtless report for themselves, and it will be seen that much good work has been done. Some have faithfully reported their labors to me as requested, while others have in a large degree failed to do so. Good work has been done by brother Hiram Bronson in St. Joseph, Missouri, and by brother J. W. Gillen in St. Louis. After another year's experience, I am, to say the least of it, as strongly opposed to a loose, careless way of building as I ever was. Moreover, I am of the firm conviction that we can not afford to ignore evil habits and immoral conduct in the ministry and membership of the church. As the work assumes greater dimensions, we must necessarily draw the reins a little tighter. Chewing and smoking tobacco is a pernicious habit which should not be indulged in by any member of the church, much less by the ministry. May the Lord help us to lay aside every evil thing for the sake of his work.

I am satisfied with my present field of labor; and considering all things, I know of no other in which I could probably accomplish as much good for the ensuing year.

Elder J. H. Lake, of the Twelve, present, reports:

Since your last sitting, I have labored in the Canada mission. When I returned to the mission last spring I was requested to go to the Cameron branch as there was a Mr. L. B. Tupper there from New York, wishing to discuss some points of the doctrine that we believe. I held two discussions with him and I think the truth did not suffer loss, but friends were raised up for the cause of Christ. From there I went into Haliburtan county, a new place; preached a number of times there; baptized two. I have travelled, preached and cared for the saints and the work as best I could.

The assistant laborers in the mission have done well in preaching the gospel and in defending the work; and they have added a goodly number by baptism, and I presume each will make a full report of their labors. May the 12th I ordained Richard C. Evans to the office of a Seventy; June the 5th I ordained James W. O'Brien to the office of a deacon; October 10th I ordained Arthur Leverton to the office of a Seventy; November 3d I organized the Tillbury branch, with thirteen members and Bro Walter Carless, presiding priest; January 7th I assisted in ordaining Bro. Walter Bailey to the office of a priest at London; January 17th I ordained at St. Marys Bro. Arthur E. Mortimer an elder, Robert Brown a priest, and William J. Roiney a teacher. I blessed twenty-one children, administered to the sick wherever called upon to do so, in some instances with marked results. I baptized twelve, three of them heads of families, and a young lady. As far as I am informed the mission is in fair condition; no serious troubles only what is common to the saints of mortality. As I have not heard of any resting place, I am still onward, endeavoring to keep my face "Zionward," and my eye on the "Mark of the High calling in Christ Jesus."

Elder Alex. H. Smith of the Twelve, writes:

I esteem it a pleasure as well as duty to report to you, my labors of the year, in the vast missionary charge you entrusted to my care at your last annual session April, 1886. As you are aware, my field comprised Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota and Manitoba. A much too large field for one man in missionary labor, unless he have a large corps of ministers appointed under him, and means of transportation. In this large field I had as aids in the ministry, of the Seventy Bro. M. T. Short and John C. Foss. The latter, early in the year opened up the work in Becker and adjacent counties, Minnesota, and so reported to me, and will no doubt also report to you. The former reported to and labored with me, later, as this report will show.

At the close of the conference of last April in consequence of my unsettled financial embarrassment, which I reported to your honorable body and from which I asked release, but obtained none. I was for some time at a loss what to do. But there seemed no way for me to turn, save to move right forward in the discharge of my duty as a witness for Christ, and let the responsibility of my failure rest where it belonged with the body who placed the responsibility upon me. After a severe spell of sickness I entered upon my missionary work, making the necessary arrangement for leaving home, and obeying immediate calls.

In the latter part of June I left home and entered actively into the work, beginning my labors at Keokuk, Iowa. From there I went to Montrose, Iowa, where I labored several days, and baptized two. From there my way led me into Illinois, Rock Creek being my next objective point; thence to Burnside. Here I began a series of meetings in open air, and after some sixteen services, I, in company with Elder Solomon Salisbury, tried to make an opening in the town of La Harpe. Labored a week there against adverse circumstances, the very Storm King himself seeming to be arrayed against us. Returning to Burnside, met President Joseph Smith, who came in answer to a request for aid; we again opened meetings. At the request of citizens of La Harpe, we again tried to hold meetings there. The elements were still against us, and we withdrew. La Harpe, Hancock county, Illinois, is the place where Elder Zenos H. Gurley, sen., did such a noble work in the early days of the church, converting and immersing almost the entire population of the town; many of the older citizens remember him in kindness and high esteem. Bro. Joseph returned home, and I visited McDonough county, but was discouraged in that quarter. So I returned to Hancock, and here I was made glad, in leading into the waters of baptism the daughter of my cousin Solomon Salisbury, and one of cousin Fred Salisbury's darling little girls; the Spirit was present in power at this baptism. In company with Elder Salisbury I attended the Nauvoo and String Prairie District conference at Rock Creek. Elder S. Salisbury rendered me very efficient aid at La Harpe and at Burnside, but he returned home from Rock Creek. Uncle William B. Smith also gave a helping hand at Burnside. I think much prejudice was removed both at La Harpe and Burnside, and good was done.

At Rock Creek I met Bro. M. T. Short, one of my co-laborers, and we labored together here, and then we went north to attend the quarterly conference of the Kewanee district, leaving the work in the Nauvoo and String Prairie district in good order and condition. Labored during conference at Buffalo Prairie with good liberty, and increasing interest. Believing this district and adjacent counties an excellent field, I left Bro. M. T. Short to occupy in connection with the district president, and bent my steps eastward to Kewanee. Finding the county fair in session here, I met the Saints on Sunday eve, preached to them once, and soon hastened on east to Plano. Labored here several days, assisted in confirming two baptized by Bro. W. Vickery. From here went to Mission, LaSalle county, attended conference of Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district, thence to Plano again, thence to Braidwood with Elder W. Vickery. Held several meetings here, tried to settle some unpleasantness here. Returned to Plano, thence westward to Lamoni, and home, preparatory to entering on the winter's campaign in Southern Illinois.

In November I again set out, via St. Louis, to open the campaign in company with Elder N. N. Cooke at Birkner, St. Clair county, Illinois. Eight days I labored here, in extreme cold weather, good liberty but few to hear. From here to Springerton, White county, to attend the South Eastern Illinois district conference. A week here, then on south to Johnson county, near Tunnel Hill, the scene of the combat between Elder E. L. Kelley and Rev. Wilson. Holding a series of meetings here, I spent Christmas holding services all that day. Was taken sick here, and returned north to Wayne county. In company with Father T. P. Green held a week's service near Jeffersonville, was too ill to fill appointments advertised at Brush Creek. Sent Elder George H. Hilliard to do so and to dedicate Chapel. The following week held a series of meetings at Brush Creek.

January 17th, 1887, met brethren Isaac Morris, S. Caudie and George H. Hilliard, in the Chapel on Brush Creek. I ordained Bro. George H. Hilliard to office of Seventy as per instruction of General Conference, the Lord blessing us mightily in the ordination. Finishing my meetings here I met Bro. Hilliard on the way to Sandoval, we held one service, and thence to McVey, Macoupin county; we here held a series of meetings, also some at Waterford. The weather being too bad to continue, and threatening a break up, I journeyed homeward, arriving at home near the middle of February. Have since done local labor, and have been preparing to change my residence. I am glad to be able to report the districts and local labor in them, in good condition and of a high order generally. The general out-look is good, very good. A universal desire to hear, and more calls for preaching than it is possible for us to supply. The South Eastern district, under the management of brethren Geo. H. Hilliard, Isaac M. Smith and Isaac Morris, is in excellent working order, and could these three men be kept in the field in Southern Illinois, they could effect a noble work, and build up the cause.

And now brethren, if I am thought worthy to be continued in the field, as I have been compelled to sell my home in Independence, I shall of necessity have to spend some time repairing my house and moving my family, but will do the best I can and fill my office and appointment as God shall aid and open up the way. Should I be retained in the same field, I shall insist on more of the ministry to assist me, or that my charge be made smaller. Bro. Gomer Reese of Highmore, Dakota, reports to me he can not retain charge there longer, as he intends leaving in the Spring. Another ought to be appointed in his place.

Elder Thos. W. Smith, of the Twelve, reports from Temarie, Avaa, Society Islands, December 11th, 1886:

It is over two years now since we landed in Papeete, Tahiti, having reached there on the 6th of November, 1884. I have been on the Island called Anaa since the 26th of October, having come here from the October conference at Koukura, calling at Niau, Rotoava and Tetamanu on the way. There was some difficulty here to settle caused by several aspiring elders, who through envy and jealousy sought to cause division, claiming that they alone were carrying out the teachings of Grouard, yet at the same time denying that there are any prophets or apostles in the church at the present time, and rejecting the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, and baptizing infants and administering the sacrament to them, and believing that Jacob, David and Solomon were justified in practicing polygamy. Now I hardly think that Grouard will father such teachings and practices, yet these fellows have written to various Islands where we have not been, and through multiplied lyings have led some to believe that they are the only true followers of Grouard, while those who follow me have departed from the faith taught by Grouard. I have written to Grouard several times during the past year and a half, urging him to write a letter to this country, and tell the people whether the Reorganized Church is or is not the same in faith and practice, in law and order, as the church in the days of Joseph the first president, and to state what he taught and believed when here, on certain points; but as yet I have received not a line. However there may be something from him in Papeete, as I have not received my mail from there for three months. I have been waiting for a month to get a chance to get there. I have had no opportunity to send any letters since the middle of August. I have not succeeded in bringing these parties here to their senses; so we have publicly proclaimed them as heretics, and leave them to themselves. There are two small branches here which refuse to come into the Reorganization. The three principal ones are all right. At Taroa there are a number who were baptized by Hanks and Jacobs, who Brigham sent out here in 1849, who hold out against us, because I will not acknowledge the baptisms of those men.

There are branches of our church at the following places: On the Island of Tahiti three, one at Ziona, one at Tarona, and one at Tearei. On the Island of Maatea one, on Tikahau one, on Rairoa two, one at Avatoru, one at Tiputa. On Koukura two, one at Panau, one at Moturaa. On Manihi one. On Taroa one. On Tapoto one. On Niau one. On Faraa one. On Anaa three, one at Temarie, one at Tuuhora, one at Matahoa. On Makemo one. On Roroia one. On Tanga one. On Hau one. On Amanu one. On ——— one. On Tubuai two. In all 25. Now on all these Islands there are good, honest people who should be watched over, visited and instructed from time to time by a competent missionary or two. There are many who are really not worth the time and trouble necessary to keep them straight. After weighing the matter carefully and prayerfully for months, I am satisfied that while there is enough here to vex the soul out of a man, almost, and to nearly compel him to leave the whole work go to the dogs, yet there are just enough good, honest, faithful, deserving ones in every place to make it a duty on the part of the church to keep the mission up. It will not do to abandon it, except for a little while. There would be no harm arise if I should leave at any time providing there was an assurance of some one or more coming here in a few months to take my place. I do not consider it to be my duty to stay here till the conference shall get ready to send some; for I am not forgetful of the course pursued in the case of Brn. Gillen and Rodger in Australia. Of course, if the First Presidency feel constrained by the Spirit to advise me to remain for a time longer, I shall pay heed to the advice, but if mere human judgment is to rule I think that I can judge better than any one at home concerning the case here. As I may leave before any one sent by conference can reach here, it would be wise that they come as soon as possible. Whoever comes must be content to let matters here rest as they find them. Any change made in any form of worship, or service of any kind would only serve to cause dissension and division. The circumstances and surroundings of the people here prevent us from carrying on the public services altogether as we do at home. I found here the church split in two on the most trifling matters. For instance, here on Anaa and on some other Islands they say that Grouard taught them to use only two hymns in their meetings; particularly in preaching meetings—one hymn in the opening and one in the close. I found the churches where Nelson had visited carrying on the service about as we do in America, using three hymns, one at the commencement, one before speaking, and one at the close. Now the Saints there may be amazed and also amused to think that I had the hardest kind of a time to bring about harmony on this point, and it was only done by those who sung three hymns giving up their practice for the sake of peace; they being more humble, and of a better spirit than the other party. Now two hymns is the common rule, should an elder come here and try to have the service as in America, he would find some to follow and some to rebel, and then the contention would begin, and one party or the other would bring in other points of difference and soon they would be at loggerheads again. Little matters of no importance are what they contend about. Let those who come here simply carry out my plans and rules, and he will have no trouble. I have endeavored to have the church here conform in all things to our ways at home, but in some unessential matters some changes must be permitted. They have no Tahitian Doctrine and Covenants, and so they understand nothing of its precepts and rules, only a little that they have received by tradition from Grouard. Since I have been here I have translated or at least had translated some paragraphs of section 17 and section 42, and the marriage ceremonial, and such matters as were necessary to give them an understanding of our work. I have had the Book of Mormon translated, and would be glad if the Church could publish it ere long. I have collected nearly an hundred dollars for the work of translating. I have written and had translated a Question Book of some 170 pages printed matter. A printer in Papeete has printed some 300 books at 80 cents apiece. The Office could have done the work much better for 40 or 50 cents per book, but the trouble and risk of sending the manuscript and the loss on the silver money in use here when exchanged there, and the time expended in sending the work and receiving the books here, led me to accept the offer made in Papeete. The last work done for us at the Herald Office was remarkably free from mistakes, and was very neat and attractive. I have often wished since I have been here that I had a small hand press that could print four small pages. It would be very convenient if an elder had a type-writer, especially as soon as he could write Tahitian. Elders coming here will find help that I did not have at first; for there are two white brethren in the church here now, who can translate for them till they can learn to speak the language, or get faith enough to master it by aid of inspiration.

Last October I baptized and ordained Bro. John Hawkins, an Englishman. He had belonged to the church when Grouard and Pratt were here; but since 1852, when the French authorities forbade his preaching, and banished the other elders, through Roman Catholic influence, he has been silent and fell away into the ways of the world. He is not able to travel much, owing to disability; but I have been endeavoring to get him to remove to Tahiti, and be on hand to assist any new elders who shall come here. He agreed to go when I left Koukura in October, and may be there now. This will be an advantage that I did not have when I reached Papeete a stranger. He is fully competent to translate as he speaks Tahitian well. The other man is Herman Jonsen, a Swede. He talks Tahitian very well, but does not understand many English words, yet he can talk quite well; but through not comprehending the meaning of some words we use, he is liable to not always correctly express our meaning. I think he will do very well now to travel among the Islands where I have not been, and can teach the natives vastly more than any native elder. He can read English, and it is wisdom that the church should provide him a copy of each of our publications, that he may understand our faith. To this end I recommend that they be sent him from the office. He will not draw any support from the Bishop, so I think the church can afford to supply these books. Bro. Hawkins should be similarly supplied; except with Voice of Warning and bound tracts, as I have given him them. He should have the Herald and Hope.

If I should go away from here before help comes from America, I will leave Bro. Hawkins in general charge, and have Bro. Jonsen travel among branches where I have not been, for there is no need of his spending time among the branches that have been instructed as much as most of those nearest to Tahiti have been. There are a number of Islands east of here that he could visit and should do, where I have not been, and where I do not expect to go, as he can do all that is necessary. Of course if I should stay here another year I would try to see those Islands, but there are others in another direction that I would also like to see; but what would be best would be for a couple of young elders, one of whom should be a Seventy, to come here and expect to stay three, four, or five years. I have got the work started, and in quite good shape. Now let some one come here, quick to learn the language, and with a good stock of patience, and not expecting to find enlightened white people as scholars. Whoever comes will find himself questioned everywhere concerning the meaning of this and that scripture, which in most cases if the questioner would have read the context, he or she would have found the explanation. One great fault among the natives in all this country, is the habit of spiritualizing nearly everything of a scriptural character. As far as temporal support is concerned, this mission will support half a dozen missionaries as well as one, for the reason that every branch will support him while he is with it, and they will not send any help to another branch, so as a half dozen could easily be employed traveling in so many districts, and give each branch a month's labor at a time, he would get enough to eat, and some money in every place. Missionaries coming here should have one good suit of black clothes to wear occasionally, beside that he can have but little expense, as a few suits of linen or cotton clothing will do. Clothing suitable for spring or fall wear will be abundantly heavy for the coolest weather here. I am writing this with all windows and doors wide open, and in my shirt sleeves; this is the beginning of the warmest season here. I recommend elders being sent with their wives, for two reasons: 1st, that they may be content to stay here for several years; 2d, to keep down the voice of the slanderer. However, I do not see why our elders under the influence of the Holy Spirit may not live continually for a few years. I hope that some two elders at least will be sent, and in view of the fact that they would probably stay here for several years without expense to the treasury at home, I do not see why the expense of about $175 a piece should startle the nerves of the church, when the same elder and wife would cost at home from $200 to $300 a year in all probability. Any intelligent, firm, steady-nerved elder would do. Of the elders with whom I am acquainted none would do better for this field than Bro. Luther R. Devore and wife. Bro. Willard Smith would do, as far as I can judge; but I am not personally acquainted with him. Sr. Devore could stand traveling around here, and it needs an able bodied woman to do it. Bro. Devore would follow my course here well, and beside I learn that they have had some intimation by the Spirit as to duty in this direction. I only look at the qualification and circumstances surrounding brother and sister Devore. There are many others who would be equally acceptable to me, but they either have too much family, or their wives are too weakly, or perhaps not sufficiently self-denying to make the sacrifice of home associations, comforts, and conveniences necessary to be made to carry on the mission here. A couple of young elders with no families, or perhaps one child, would probably like this country and would be willing to stay here for years.

I think I have done my duty here, and others should come and take the burden off my shoulders. Bro. Burton is doing well in Australia, as well as any one man can do; but the field is entirely too large for one man, or even a dozen or two such men. And as I understood through a vision given me of this mission, that Australia was part of my field, I feel that I should now get ready to go there. I would be glad if the conference could find a good man like Bro. Herman C. Smith, in instance, to go to New Zealand. A great work can be done there, and it would be among English speaking people. There was lately a young man united with the church in Temarie, a half-caste, the son of a Frenchman and a native woman. He can talk French and Tahitian exceedingly well. He will if faithful, be quite a help here. I would be glad if some one could send him a Doctrine and Covenants in the French language, if any have been published—and free from the interpolations of the Utah Church; that is, if there was any published before the polygamy revelation was added by the Utah Church. Will not some of the brethren in Utah see to this? I have a copy of the Book of Mormon in French, which I shall give to him when I return to Tahiti. I baptized twenty at Koukura, October 6th; one at Tuuhora Anaa, on December 1st, and four here on the 8th inst. If I can get an opportunity and time, I may add a few lines when I get to Tahiti.

Elder James Caffall, of the Twelve, present, reports:

My labors from adjournment of last Conference to October were, as per request, confined to branches in Nebraska, failing, as perforce of circumstances, to respond to other requests and partial promises in other parts of my assigned ministerial field. The unpleasantness arising from having to face results of hasty ordination, sheer negligence, and seeming perverseness, was made tolerable through the ready co-operation of local officials. I never have, nor do I now see a necessity for collision with traveling and local ministry, but believe a thorough and continuous co-operation from member to president very essential for the general weal of the church. That however guarded we may be, errors, blunders and misunderstandings may arise, opening the way for conferring and counseling together in a frank and godly way, and making such a procedure imperative. But if this is overlooked and duty thereby neglected, a corresponding evil will inevitably ensue. But should a zeal be felt, culminating in the adoption of an unauthorized method, the evil, instead of diminishing, would be augmented, in the same proportion that good comes by the adoption of authorized measures. Hence it is that saving good can only come through or by the gospel economy, which is an authoritative message. An attack being made on the cause at Brighton, Colorado, and the few Saints thinking an effort of defense necessary, I repaired thither on the last days of October, with no other result than reported in the Herald, save a cordial reception by the editor in chief of the Republican and Tribune, a first class daily paper published in Denver, with a promise of giving publicity to an article illustrative of our faith, which article appeared November 6th, 1886. The cordial reception was in beautiful contrast to the contumely Bro. James Kemp and myself received from the Rev. Wilson, before a Sabbath School, affording evidence that the more cultured and less bigoted are recognizing the Reorganization as a religious body, having rights in common. And however jubilant we may feel at the development of this fact, we should not forget the struggles that met the Reorganization at its inception, and all along; nor the men who spent the best of their manhood in the front of the battle. From first to last I have published thirteen articles in different places and papers in Colorado, and in February, 1887, I was admitted to the columns of the Alert, published in Hay Springs, Nebraska, while the editor of the Headlight, Clear Water, Nebraska, permitted a correction of an error appearing in his columns. And thinking the development of circumstances justified, a second article was presented on the 23d of March to the editor of the Alert, and its publication was promised. I think newspaper courtesy as favorable at one point of the compass as another, and that every lawful means to spread the gospel is legitimate.

I arrived at Hay Springs, Nebraska, January 23d, remaining until March 23d, then going to Clear Water to attend to church matters. In Dawes and Sheridan counties I delivered forty-two discourses to audiences of from seven to forty persons. These are new fields, requiring much persistent and steady labor; prejudice was perhaps removed, and a few appear interested. Having made the best use of the time, I felt no compunctions of conscience that none accepted the opportunity to enlist in the cause, as the result of labor—duty demands must rest with God and the people. I believe more persistent efforts to enter and open up new fields should be made, leaving fields where so much labor has been done, with no visible evidence of success, that the people may reflect, and perhaps be visited after many days. The rapid advance in theories, and corresponding love therefor, creates a great necessity, in my opinion, for explicitness in the presentation of the truth, that the difference between the religious position of the Reorganized Church and all others may be known and understood. Facing the realities of opening new fields may be less desirable than going in and out branches, where rest and a supply of good things is guaranteed, but the acceptance of the position of a travelling elder means all that and much more, only known by experience. Travelling and preaching by local elders, as circumstances admit, which is recognized under the general law, is just as effective as far as it goes, as if by a General Conference appointee. The former is always imperative, the latter, as circumstances may dictate or render practicable. Hence it is that the ministerial force must be increased or decreased as ability to provide for dependants may increase or be limited; which, together with the fact that discretion in appointment should exist, opens the way for satisfaction or criticism, the former by those sent, the latter by those left. And yet it is immaterial so far as our ultimate salvation is concerned, where we work, if our work is legitimate, and as ability permits. Nebraska is a very extensive field, needing a much stronger force of laborers if it could be so ordered.

With other labor I have administered the rite of baptism to ten persons, organized one branch, etc. And here I should stop, but wishing to make a statement ask further indulgence. Some, whose spirits were purer, and intellect more gigantic than mine, essaying to escape extremes find and pursue the medium, or climb and keep the towering plane of equality, and because of the love of principle have staggered and fled, leaving some to exult in the remark, Ah, I thought so!

In essaying to notice a letter written by Bro. Chas. Derry, in Herald for September, and a reply to editorial criticism in a later issue, a struggle between the carnal and spiritual nature ensued. The former subjugating and leading captive the latter, hurling me from the plane of deference into the meshes of vituperation and harshness, all of which was wrong, very wrong. For which, without mental reservation, I ask forgiveness of Bro. Derry, the Editors, and the body, with a fervent hope that my impetuosity and morbid sensitiveness, of which I know I have a full share, may only serve as a warning to others. And here I wish to say that an attack on motives was far from my design. I blame none for complaining of wrong,—with a visible pretext, but hate to hear complaint on an imaginary pretext, as it would seem like seeking unmerited sympathy. This leaves me free to say from my standpoint of justice, deferentially, that I neither endorse that part of the letter I referred to, nor the editorial criticism to which I also replied.

Christ's Church, I believe, implies system, law, order, etc., and exists in integral parts; one part must become effective by being sustained by another part, necessitating a thorough co-operation. And all this through an assured confidence and esteem, instead of suspicion and distrust; a feeling of cordial support instead of watchful dread that one man or quorum should in advance of the other, exercise more authority than belongs to him or those. And our organic law contemplates that one accepting a proffered responsibility is under obligation to work accordingly. And if evidence of an overt act is seen, it contemplates action against such an one, in a manner that the offender may hear and defend himself, or have the privilege. And only when a preponderance of testimony exists as to his guilt should he be published as a transgressor. Hence suspicious surmises or indirect charges are cruel and unjust, however piously made. I do not believe that feigned piety evinces a loyalty for heaven's authorized laws, but I believe a proper loyalty for God's law will beget an accepted piety. And since it is just to believe that one member of the Reorganized Church is as much opposed to priestly domination, sectarianism, etc., as another, I think, therefore whatsoever may lead to reflect or cast suspicion, whether oral or written matter, ought to be discountenanced. I would be far from objecting to a full, free expression of thought, believing as I do that when rightly done it becomes a means of mental and spiritual development.

The pertinency of an editorial under the heading, "Let every one learn his duty," in Herald for March 5th, was striking; especially "don't joggle the boat," etc. Let us hope that vibration felt through the joggling mentioned has been such as to ensure more protracted and effective efforts in inducing all to learn duty and show an approval in the place appointed, and the day of surmising, etc., has passed.

Elder Joseph F. Burton writes from Wallsend, N. S. W., February 14th:

The work on this continent is progressing as well as can be expected under the circumstances. There has been, since last report, an increase of membership of seventy-nine, seven of these having been baptized by the local ministry. I have confirmed the greater part of these, blessed upwards of thirty children; administered to several persons for various afflictions, and nearly always the Lord has bestowed the blessing asked for—sometimes markedly. There have been two branches organized—the Hamilton and Forster; 3 elders, 5 priests, 1 teacher, and 1 deacon, ordained. Some of the old branches are suffering from the evil doing of some of the members, and it seems difficult either to discipline or convert them; but generally the branches are in excellent order. Diligent and faithful officers and Saints, are having a marked influence upon their neighbors by their upright lives, and godly conversation. The new branch at Forster, includes with one exception, all the Protestants in the community; this is largely due to the wise instruction and upright life of Elder John Wright and companion. The local ministry in the branches are doing excellent work, and some of them are holding services outside of their own villages every Sunday. When sending last report I was in the colony of Victoria, and since last May have labored in this colony (N. S. W.) and expect to go to Victoria again in a few weeks. The view of the future for the work in this land is brighter and better than it has been since my arrival here. I am still at your disposal if sustained.

Elder R. J. Anthony, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I reached Salt Lake City early last May, and entered at once upon the discharge of my duty and remained in the field until the 15th of last March. I traveled extensively in Utah, Idaho and Montana, preaching and regulating the affairs of the church. My only apology for traveling so much during the year is that the work demanded it. The last year has been one of the most trying ones to me I have ever experienced. During the early part of the year, and indeed up to late in the fall it was difficult to reach the people. In Utah the constant and active prosecution and enforcement of the law against polygamy by the courts, together with the prospects of further legislation by Congress all had a tendency to agitate the minds of the people and draw their attention in that direction. Besides all that, every power and influence that could be controlled was brought to bear against our work. It required a constant effort on the part of both the local and missionary force to "hold the fort." Some of our people became discouraged because of the pressure that was brought to bear; but by the blessing of God we passed through the trying ordeal, and I am happy that I can report the prospects are at the present time brighter than they have been for the last two years. Since the passage of the late Edmunds-Tucker bill, the leaders of the Utah Church have betrayed a weakness that to your humble servant is very gratifying indeed; advising the people to take the "test oath," in my judgment is a direct admission that the position occupied so long by the Reorganized Church is the correct one, and its proof positive that the "leaders" of that "people have caused them to err." They have taken a step that never can be retraced. After so many years' preaching and claiming polygamy to be the only means of exaltation and almost forcing men and women to enter into that relation; now to come out in a general epistle and fairly admit that polygamy is not "essential;" and "that it was never intended," or "expected that the whole church would practice it," is fatal to them, or will prove to so in time.

The members of the Reorganized Church in our opinion have cause to rejoice, and can without boasting congratulate themselves that God has confirmed his promises to them and sanctified their efforts to their joy and his eternal glory. While the highest judicial tribunal in the land has sustained the church in the noble stand she took from the beginning, "the nations shall honor her," is being and will be verified in this coming crisis in Utah.

Brethren Clapp, Anderson and Larson have done good service in their fields. It was found impracticable to keep Bro. Oliver Johnson in the field. I recommend that the church be prepared to take advantage of developments that may present to us the opportunity. I have never failed to preach when or where opportunity offered. I have baptized twenty-six and received four into the church on their original baptism. With all the trials to me and adverse circumstances and surroundings under which we have labored, I feel greatly encouraged. I know the Lord has greatly blessed me, more than ever before in my efforts during the last year. For Israel's triumph I labor and pray.

Elder J. C. Clapp, of the Seventy, reports:

Since my appointment to Rocky Mountain Mission, I have been constantly engaged in the work. Have preached in Montana, Idaho and Utah; and to the best of my ability have expounded the faith of the church, and feel warranted in saying that my labors have not been in vain. I have baptized four, and blessed sixteen children. I desire to continue in the Master's service and wait the promised reward. If the church think best I will continue in the mission, but do not feel at liberty to choose my field.

Elder Heman C. Smith, reports from San Bernardino, California, March 25th:

In compliance with appointment of last Annual Conference, I arrived in California early in June, since which I have been continuously in the field, and have been greatly blest. Never, I think, have I enjoyed freer and better liberty than in this field. I have confined my labors exclusively to California, not having been able to visit Oregon or Nevada. I have labored in the cities of San Francisco, Oakland, Stockton, Sacramento, Watsonville, Hollister, Los Angeles, and San Bernardino; and in the counties of San Francisco, Alameda, San Joaquin, Stanislaus, Lake, Sacramento, Santa Cruz, San Benito, Monterey, Los Angeles, and San Bernardino. Have opened three new places, and the remainder of the time followed in the footsteps of those who have labored in the mission before me. Have baptized fifteen. The interest in the work, and the desire to hear the word are not so great as in some fields, but there are many inviting fields; while the Macedonian cry comes from several localities.

Of those who were appointed to labor under my directions Elder D. S. Mills has labored all the time he could on account of his physical disabilities. Has been actively engaged nearly all the time. He presides over the Southern California district, and is highly esteemed by the Saints. Is an able defender of the faith, and a congenial companion. Elder Thomas Daley has spent a part of his time in Northern California district, presiding over the same. He is earnest, faithful, energetic, and wide awake; full of zeal, and able to meet the opponents of the faith successfully. Elder Albert Haws I have not met, but have had excellent reports from Oregon, (where he has spent the entire summer), concerning him. Elder E. J. French has labored a short time in San Diego, and aided in many other ways. He is a man of sound judgment, and is ready to help in any enterprise promising good to the cause. Elder H. L. Holt has been detained at home the most of the year putting his temporal concerns in better shape, which are now in good condition to liberate him for the field. He is now in Central district, actively engaged. He is worthy and well qualified.

Of those referred to me for appointment, Elder J. R. Badham was assigned to the city of Los Angeles and vicinity, where he has done an excellent work, losing no opportunity (while laboring for the bread that perisheth), to advance the cause of Christ. Could he be liberated from secular cares, the ministerial work would be largely benefited thereby. Elder A. W. Thompson was assigned to labor in Los Angeles county. Having seven motherless children to support, he has not been able to devote any time except Sundays, but has been faithful and zealous in this. Elder Wm. Gibson was assigned to San Bernardino county, where he is constantly at work. He is a ceaseless laborer, always seeking opportunities to do good, caring for the sick, cheering and comforting the Saints, or leading the enquiring mind to saving truth. Elder D. L. Harris was assigned to Southern California, and labored for a season in connection with Elder French in San Diego county, where he gave excellent satisfaction. He is safe, and can be relied upon in that which he undertakes. Elder Wm. Anderson in answer to my repeated solicitations wrote me as follows: "About my entering the field I feel (whether my reasons are real or imaginary), that the church does not want me. I offered my services, and was at liberty to go any where. Now I have no promptings of the Spirit in that direction. My faith, feelings and usefulness have been trifled with. Besides, I have to do something for a livelihood. $20 per month would be a slim allowance for my family; but for the present I with the rest of appointees will ask to be excused."

All of these brethren except the last named should be continued in their present fields. As for myself I have heard of no personal objections from any one. The nature of the objections by a few to me presiding here you are familiar with. This has caused me some embarrassment, but I am at your disposal, if the good of the work demands that I shall stand in the breach I am ready; but if the cause can be as well served thereby I would be pleased with a smaller field, and don't be afraid of making it too small; one town or county affords me all the room I need to occupy my time. I know of no serious troubles, and a large majority of the Saints are striving for the crown.

Elder John Smith, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I was appointed by the last April conference, to labor in Massachusetts district as my circumstances would permit. I have endeavored to perform that duty, with a willing heart. Have labored in New Bedford, Brockton, Boston, Attleboro, Plainville, Providence, Cranston, and other places, and find an increased interest every where; the demand for preaching in our district, being in excess of the supply. I am not in a condition to labor under any different circumstances than those of last year at present, but will do the best I can for the advancement of the work.

Elder Thomas Daley writes:

I have labored in the Northern district of the State of California. I was elected president over said district at the conference held at Stockton, California, March, 1886, and was re-elected again at Sacramento, October 6th, 1886. I have labored during last year about seven or eight months; that is, I was actively engaged, and the balance of the time I was to work on my mine, preaching almost every Sunday at Grizzly Flat, El Dorado county. I have baptized sixteen since General Conference held at Lamoni, Iowa, April 6th, 1886. The Lord has blessed my labor in preaching and administering to the sick; the Lord has confirmed his word by signs following, thanks be to God. I expect to be able to remain in the field until about May, and then I will have to go to work on my mine for three or four months and then I am in hope to be able to devote my life-time to the service of my Master; God grant it so to be, for it is my greatest desire. I must work a while on my mine to get it opened, which I think will take about four months, then I hope to be free the balance of my life to labor for my Master.

Elder I. N. Roberts, of the Seventy, reports from Temple, Texas:

Since my appointment to this mission I have worked hard to build up the cause. The most of my work has been in branches. I thank the Master for his Spirit that he has given me in this work. Had it not been for this I should have given away under the load I have had to carry. I hope and pray you will be able to send us help. Dear brethren, we need workers here; who will come? I have not heard from Bro. Cato since Christmas, therefore I am not able to say what he is doing. Bro. Hyde did good work and made many friends during his stay in Texas; as also did Bro. J. A. Robinson. The places these brethren opened up while here are anxiously waiting to hear more. Who can come to the rescue? Bro. J. A. Currie, jr., has spent his time this year with me in the ministry. He is a worthy brother of about twenty-four summers, and is now ready to spend his entire time in the ministry. I therefore recommend him for appointment in the South Western Mission. The mission, as far as I have been able to get over it, is in a thriving condition. The branch and district officers are now working to hold the fort. May God bless them is my prayer. Since last conference I have baptized twenty, organized one new branch, and reorganized two others. May God increase their faith,

I pray. My heart is in the work—the sick are healed, and to God be the glory. Brethren, if you can send some one more competent to take charge of this mission, I will cheerfully submit. I would rather spend all my time outside the branches. May the God of love be with you in all your deliberations.

Elder F. M. Sheehy, of the Seventy, present, reports:

In the Spring, by request of Bro. W. H. Kelley in charge of the mission, I labored in the Massachusetts district under direction of the president of the district, visiting Boston, Brockton, Plymouth, New Bedford, Fall River, Providence, Little Compton and Attleboro. Subsequently, in company with Bro. Bond took a tour of the state of Maine, laboring at Tenant's Harbor, Martinsville, Long Cove, Hart's Neck, New Harbor, Green's Landing, North Blue Hill, Jonesport, Indian River, Addison, Epping and Mason's Bay. Found ample opportunity for labor. Our trip of nine weeks averaged a meeting per day. During the winter past have given my time chiefly to opening and attending new points where there are no churches of the Saints. Bro. U. W. Green, a young man just entering the ministry, being associated with me. Our points of labor were North Blue Hill, Morgan's Bay, East Blue Hill, West Surrey, Tenant's Harbor, Martinsville, Long Cove, Hart's Neck. Openings for preaching are constantly increasing. The people are generally disposed to listen, although slow to obey. The liberal minded element among the people I have found to be of good service, by keeping in check the bigotry and intolerance of the sects, who are in too many instances just as willing and ready to use unfair and low methods to prevent truth and light advancing as that unsavory and pharisaical element has been in ages past. The church interests in the mission are steadily and surely advancing. Several have been baptized during the year, while others are ready and waiting for opportunity. There has been that I know of (chiefly through Bro. Green), loaned and sold 125 Voice of Warning.

Individually, I have been made to realize the efficacy and worth of gospel truth as I exercise the functions of my calling in the ministry, feel confirmed in the faith and willing to contrive.

Conference Minutes.

ST. LOUIS.

This conference convened in the Saints' Hall, No. 1447 North Broadway, St. Louis, Missouri, April 2d, 1887, Wm. Jaques president, and John G. Smith clerk. Now hand in hand, and side by side,
May many joys around you spring;
Each day its pleasures to you bring;
And when this life has passed away,

DIED.

SHARP.—At Cleveland, Iowa, April 16th, 1887, of catarrh of the head and lung disease, Bro. William, oldest son of Bro. Luke and Sr. Barbara Sharp. The deceased was born in Northumberland, England, May 2d, 1863; he was baptized by G. T. Griffiths on the 21st of March, 1883, at at Byersville, Gurnsey county, Ohio. The deceased, was a sober, upright and intelligent young man. His illness has been a protracted one lasting over twenty months, and during that time his faith never wavered, but proved steadfast until the last, which endeared him more so to his parents, whose sorrows and lamentations are very sore, but they weep not as those who have no hope, for they look forward with joyous anticipations to their meeting with the spirits of the just. The deceased was endeared to all who knew him, being as he was in the bloom of youth; the parents have the sympathy of the community. The Sunday School took part in the procession, which showed the esteem in which he was held by that body. Funeral sermon by Henry Jones.

COURTS.—John Courts was born September 2d, 1818, in Wellford, Gloucestershire, England; died March 19th, 1887. He was a member of the old church for thirty years. A widow and four children mourn his loss. Funeral sermon by Elder John E. Reese.

HELSON.—At Appleton, Wisconsin, September 27th, 1886, of cholera morbus, sister Martha Helson, wife of Bro. Joshua H. Helson, in the 67th year of her age. Sister Helson joined the church under the Presidency of Joseph Smith, the Seer, at Allegheny, Pennsylvania, and was married to Joshua H. Helson by Elder William B. Smith. From there they moved to Illinois, near Nauvoo, shortly before the death of the Seer; and hoping that Brigham Young and his followers were right, they went as far as Council Bluffs; but there they found to their sorrow that they were following false shepherds who were leading the church away from the law of the Lord, and they left them and returned to Wisconsin, settling in Ozaukee, where Elders Wicks and Alden presented to them the claims of the Reorganized Church which they gladly embraced, and they with their four daughters and one son, came in at the gate into the Church of Christ. Sister Helson leaves a kind husband and eight children to mourn the loss of an amiable wife and an affectionate mother. She greatly desired to have an elder of the church to administer to her in the ordinance of the church in her last sickness, but none could be had, so she fell asleep in the faith of the Redeemer's glorious kingdom. In the absence of an elder of the church, the Rev. Mr. Leland of Appleton, conducted the funeral services at that place, after which her remains were taken to her home at Shiocton for interment, where another funeral service was held among her relatives and friends of the latter place.

GEE.—George Gee was born May 23d, 1834, in Philadelphia, Pa.; died February 28th, 1887; leaves a mother, wife and ten children to mourn his loss. Funeral sermon by Elder J. E. Reese.

O can I meet my Lord
And say that I have done
All things to please him here,
When the judgment day will come?
'Twas the 28th of February,
The year eighteen eighty seven,
That I closed my eyes in death,
To meet the Lord in heaven.
'Tis hard to part with those I love,
But death must claim its own.
O, do not weep for me,
For I am going home.

WHATLEY.—Brother B. F. Whatley departed this life on the 18th of February, 1887. He was born in Monroe county, Alabama, October 7th, 1832, and was baptized September 15th, 1878, in Monroe county, Alabama, by Elder G. R. Scogin. He was a good husband, a loving father, and a faithful Saint, and died in full hope of a glorious resurrection. He leaves a wife and seven children, besides many friends, to mourn.

COLEY.—Sister Sarah Coley departed this life September 19th, 1884. She was born April, 1818, in Edgefield, North Carolina, and was baptized January 22d, 1881, in Monroe county, Alabama, by Elder W. L. Booker. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Many children and friends survive to mourn her loss.

DAMBRUCH.—At Providence, Rhode Island April 9th, 1887, of cancer, M. G. Dambruch, aged 52 years and thirty days. He served his adopted country during the war of the rebellion, was ready to assist the church and ministry with his means, and who, despite his faults and failings, always maintained that the gospel as restored was true. The funeral was attended by the Saints and members of Prescott Post, G. A. R., of which he was a member. Elder Frank A. Potter conducted the services.

FLANDERS.—At the home of her son, Mr. Jas. Flanders, who resides five miles north-east from Maysville, Dekalb county, Missouri, on the 14th of February, 1887, sister Mary Flanders passed away, surrounded by all her children, many grand children, and numerous friends, beloved by all and weeping because of her departure. Sister Flanders was born on the 19th of June, 1811, in Ontario county, N. Y.; was baptized by A. J. Blodgett, January 2d, 1873, in Dekalb county, Missouri; confirmed same day by Elder W. T. Bozarth. Her funeral sermon was preached by W. T. Bozarth, March 20th. Ever since her youth sister Flanders tried to live a consistent christian life, and after uniting with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints she had redoubled her efforts, remaining true and faithful to the last, exacting a promise from the two sons who were yet out of the fold to meet her in the home to which she was going. Blessed are the faithful.

NEWCOMB.—At Deloit, Iowa, February 20th, 1887, Eunie Ware, daughter of Bro. J. S. and Sr. May Newcomb, aged 11 months and 20 days. Funeral discourse by Elder J. T. Turner.

Darling Eunie, thou art gone;
We will never see thee more,
Till the Father calls us home,
To the fairer, better shore.

KOCH.—At Middletown, Connecticut, April 5th, 1887, of consumption, Bro. George Koch, aged 29 years, 1 month, and 17 days. He was baptized August 29th, 1880, at Providence. The Saints mourn their loss, and remember him as one they loved, whose faithfulness and patience under trials afflictions and were worthy of imitation. His whole soul was enlisted in the cause of Christ, and his greatest joy was in the prosperity of Zion. He was fully resigned to the will of God, rejoicing in the hope of the resurrection. His death was as one falling asleep, without a struggle or a sigh. The funeral was held at his brother's residence in Providence, attended by a large number of Saints and friends. Services conducted by Elder Frank A. Potter.

ADAMSON.—At Windsor, Sonoma county, California, Lucinda Adamson, aged 18 years. She leaves a husband, two children, father, mother, three brothers, two sisters and many friends, to mourn her loss.

JOSEPH SMITH - - - - - EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR - - - - - ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 21, 1887.

AFTER the April session of conference, brethren W. H. Kelley, J. R. Lambert, G. T. Griffiths and E. L. Kelley thought it advisable that the senior editor should accept an invitation to speak in the city of Cleveland; Messrs. Prescott and Holden of the Plain Dealer, and SeSheverell of the Leader thinking the time and occasion to be opportune. Accordingly, Bro. E. L. Kelley visited Cleveland, conversed with several of the gentlemen of the city, and secured the use of The Peoples' Tabernacle, or New Music Hall, the largest and best hall in the city, for the evenings of the 28th and 29th of April; the owner very kindly abating the charges to a quite reasonable sum per night. The Plain Dealer and Leader, newspapers, gave the meetings timely and excellent notices; the Sun and another paper, making the four leading papers, also noticed the meeting, and on Thursday the 28th, Bro. Kelley had hundreds of dodgers scattered in the city, Bro. John Gillespie himself superintending the advertising. In the evening at the hour appointed the editor waited in the ante-room, for the moments to pass, nervous and expectant. Years of experience had not stifled the trepidation of a first appearance before a new, and possibly critical audience.

But time waits for none, and so at last the editor faced a fair audience in a large hall capable of seating 4,600 people, in which the hundreds really present looked like a handful. The text, "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," from John 8:32, was presented in fair liberty of speech only after a spirited prayer by Bro. E. L. Kelley. The second night the audience was hardly so large as at the first meeting; but a good spirit was present, and the editor discussed the question of polygamy, from the position of the Reorganized Church, to an interested and very attentive people; the reception being all that could be asked. Bro. W. H. Kelley was present with the editor on the platform and led in an excellent appeal to God for help and light.

The results of this venture remain to be determined; though we are inclined to think that it was timely and will be productive of good in several ways. The editor and Bro. E. L. Kelley were guests of the Hollenden House, an excellent hotel in the heart of the city, and near the hall.

Bro. E. L. Kelley was untiring in his efforts to make the meeting a success; and if his wish and labor could have accomplished it, the house would not have held the audiences that would have heeded the announcement. We were courteously entertained by both leading papers, the Plain Dealer and the Herald and Leader.

WE stopped in Kirtland for five successive Sundays, speaking each recurring Sunday; and delivering one temperance discourse at Willoughby. On the last day of our stay, the evening of Monday, May 2d, we were surprised at a gathering of the citizens of Kirtland at Bro. E. L. Kelley's, of which the following from the Willoughby Independent for May 6th will give the readers of the HERALD an idea:

The pleasant rooms of Elder and Mrs. E. L. Kelley were the scene of a very pleasant assemblage of our towns-people last evening, the occasion being a farewell banquet tendered to Pres. Joseph Smith, who leaves for his home in Lamoni, Iowa, this (Tuesday) eve. Over a hundred of his friends had been invited, nearly all of whom were present. After the bounteous supper had been served—a supper not as elaborate, perhaps, as the White House state dinners, but we are sure quite as wholesome and enjoyable—Elder E. L. Kelley in behalf of the donors presented a well-filled purse to Pres. Smith, with appropriate remarks; to which the President very feelingly responded, thanking the donors not so much for the gift, as for the regard and friendship evinced by the act. At the conclusion of his remarks speeches were called for from others present, and responses were made by Elders W. H. and E. L. Kelley, Elder G. T. Griffith, and Mr. E. W. Bond. Mr. David Hopkins being called for responded with a humorous recitation, which he said he would give to please the children; but which so pleased the children of a larger growth that he was enthusiastically encored, and for the second and third time called upon to keep on "pleasing the children." Miss Clara Brennan being called for gave a song and recitation, which were welcomed with applause. The balance of the evening, until nearly midnight, passed in pleasant sociabilities, and each of the guests as they departed took the hand of President Smith, bidding him a kind good bye. Z.

KIRTLAND, May 3d, 1887.

BRO. ALBERT BISHOP, of Independence, Missouri, sends us clippings from Kansas City papers, and asks us to work up a notice of the "boom" in real estate which the two cities named is having. But while we should be quite willing to give it some notice, we think the matter to be overdone to some extent; and Saints would do well to look before they leap; or to use language all should heed, "let all things be prepared before" them, in rushing to places where such extraordinary rises in real estate are prevalent. Just at present, there is a wonderful excitement raging in and around Kansas City, Independence, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, and other western, (or what were once western) towns, and those who are in the rush are likely to be aided to financial benefit; but homes are hard to get under the circumstances.

Bro. Bishop feels quite confident that they will be able to get their house of worship builded in good time. It is certainly needed; a six hundred congregation can not meet in a four hundred room, to say nothing of the strangers whom the Saints always are pleased to see in attendance at worship. We bid the workers of Zion "good speed" in their good work. May there be never a break nor a hindrance in their design and accomplishment. It would delight us to think when the work was done that from its inception to its completion there was neither jar of words, nor unpleasantness among the co-workers, but that all had worked upon the square and level of good fellowship and thorough work.

WE lately sent the following "correction" to the chief Brighamite organ, but it was returned without note or comment; therefore we give it to our readers and they must judge as to why we were denied a courtesy usually extended by all fair minded journalists. Possibly our explanations and proofs of the latter-day apostacy, and our claim that Brighamism is a prominent phase of it, dazzled and dazed the editors with such a sudden burst of light as bewildered them and caused them to forget the amenities due their fellowmen—especially when misrepresented.

LAMONI, Iowa, April 20th, 1887.

Editor Deseret News:—In your simi-weekly issue for the 15th instant is a press dispatch, dated at Cleveland, Ohio, April 13th, which says of my remarks in our late conference at Kirtland:—"Elder W. W. Blair, of Iowa, spoke of what he referred to as the great apostacy which lies in the west. . . . He asserted that the Utah Church would be destroyed, and said he now saw signs of its breaking up."

The reporter misapprehended what we said, the substance of our remarks being this:—"The church is rapidly recovering from the apostacy which befell it as predicted by ancient and modern prophets; the Saints are returning to the original doctrines of the church taught in their sacred books up to the death of Joseph the Seer. Brighamism is falling, and will be destroyed; and the painful experiences of the faithful Saints will help fit them more perfectly to understand the will of God concerning them, and teach them to steadfastly abide in His revealed word."

The apostacy we referred to was that predicted by Paul in 1 Timothy 4: 1-3; 2 Timothy 3: 1-9 2 Thess., 2: 3-12; and by Joseph the Seer in Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 1: 1; also in Revelation, June, 1831; Revelation, August, 1st, 1831; Revelation, August 2d, 1833; Revelation, July 23d, 1837; and in first half of Revelation, January 19th, 1841, etc., etc. And when we said "Brighamism is falling, and will be destroyed," we meant those doctrines and practices introduced to the Saints by Brigham Young since June, 1844, and not provided for in the sacred books endorsed by the church up to that date—this and nothing more. Should you decline to publish this correction, please return it to me, and oblige.

Yours for the truth,
W. W. BLAIR.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. D. S. MILLS took the parting hand of his many friends in Lamoni the afternoon of the 9th instant en route to Lucas, Council Bluffs, Salt Lake City, Elko, San Francisco, and thence to his home at Santa Ana, California. We were pleased to meet him in conference in Kirtland, and his stay in Lamoni has been most happy for the Saints and many others. His sermons have been able and timely, and the Spirit of the Master helped him mightily. He has evidently "enlisted for the war" and intends to devote his remaining days to preaching the wonderful words of life and salvation to all who will hear. On Sunday, the 8th, he delivered a powerful sermon on the divinity of the Book of Mormon to a packed and appreciative congregation in the Brick Chapel, and at 2:30 he preached at a school house north-west of Lamoni and had pressing invitation for further labor there. We bid him a hearty God speed and bespeak for him the reception due a faithful servant of God in all places where he may labor.

Pres. Joseph Smith, in his sermon in the Brick Chapel the evening of the 8th instant, stated the fact that he was baptized by his father in 1844, confirmed by Elder A. W. Babbitt and others, had not been baptized since, claimed that his membership in the Church of Christ was thoroughly legal and regular, and that from the time of his baptism his spiritual experiences were in harmony with the revealed word of God. His testimonies to the divinity of the Book of Mormon, the Messiahship of Jesus of Nazareth, the signs following gospel believers, was direct and very edifying. Altogether that Sunday was something of a "field-day" for the ministry in the Lamoni branch, for Bro. T. J. Bell held service five miles east of town, and Bro. J. Shippy about six miles south-east of town, with fair sized and attentive congregations.

The news from may points indicate that the ministry have taken hold this spring with a determination to prosecute preaching the word to the end.

Bro. Thomas J. Martin wrote March 30th, that a fair work was being done in Minnesota district. Bro. Foss was some improved in health. Brethren McLeod and Omans were laboring in the Luce branch.

Sr. Ella Vanderpool, of Spickardsville, Missouri, wishes Bro. J. R. Lambert or some other competent elder would visit and labor in that region. She thinks some would then be baptized.

Sr. Lucy Goble, who resides with her husband and family, sixteen miles south of Lewiston, Washington Territory, would be pleased to have the elders and Saints call on them.

Mrs. Thomas J. Shirley writes from Utica, Seward county, Nebraska, the 4th inst., that she is the daughter of old Latter Day Saints who died firm in the faith of the latter day work. She would be glad to hear some of the ministry preach. Those having charge in that region should note this call and supply it when practicable.

By letter from Bro. J. H. Lawn, dated April 24th, we learn that brethren H. L. Holt and J. R. Cook, after attending the conference for the Central California district, had held meetings in Long Valley, and the Jefferson School house, on the San Benito; and from there went into Tulare county, to extend their labors as far as they could. Bro. Lawn reports an excellent conference and a good spirit prevailing. Bro. J. R. Cook confirms this in letter from Tulare, April 27th.

The Standard, conducted by ladies in the interests of the W. C. T. U., comes freighted with excellent matter. We wish it success.

A well arranged, well written article, from the pen of Bro. A. B. Kirkendall, of Creola, Ohio, appears in the Vinton, (Ohio) Record of May 5th, to be followed by another at an early time. In this way many are learning valuable facts in respect to the Latter Day Saints and their doctrines.

Bishop George A. Blakeslee, of Galien, Berrien county, Michigan, wishes the full post office address of the following persons, who will please write him at once:—Mrs. J. D. Jones, of Kewanee, Illinois; Elder E. A. Steadman, Minnesota; Elder James McKeirnan, Iowa; and Elder John T. Davies, Kansas.

Bro. F. M. Fuller, of Phoenix, Mississippi, wrote us the 5th, inst., that he would aid an able, worthy elder ten or fifteen dollars if he will visit and labor in his place and vicinity. He looks for Bro. G. T. Chute from Alabama; and if he does not come, then he wants another. Bro. Fuller sent for a lot of tracts to distribute among his neighbors, and thus prepare the way for preaching the word.

Bro. Peter Anderson's report to conference this last April indicated that if some one was found who would edit Sandhedens Banner, he could devote more of his time to the mission assigned him in Utah, and to better advantage; but that if such an arrangement could not be effected, he was willing to continue to do the best that he could. He thinks that the Banner should be sustained. We think so too; decidedly. All lovers of the work, and especially the Skandinavian brethren, ought to feel a deep interest in this matter; and the subscription list of the Banner should show a test of that interest. It is a helpful tract, and Bro. Anderson is not only deserving of praise, but of substantial support in sustaining his paper. He makes no money out of it, does not want to; but does want to use it as an engine for good; and in this we should all bid him good speed.

During the session of Conference at Kirtland, Mr. Wynne Smith, photographer, from Painesville, Ohio, came to Kirtland, took views of the Temple, with a number of the prominent men of the church in front of it; and also took views of the house where the senior editor was born with Brn. Smith, Blair, Briggs, Lake, Blakeslee and others standing on the porch front—all very good likenesses, and are attractive pictures. We sat to the photographer's camera, to gratify him and some of the good folks about Kirtland. The pictures are good ones and the work well done.

Bro. Joseph F. McDowell, wrote from Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 9th, that the debate held by him with Eld. Truman, of Defiance, from the 2d to the 5th, passed off pleasantly. Bro. McDowell reports the interest at the discussion to be fair, and that the audiences were large and attention was good. He spoke twice at Council Bluffs on the 9th with good liberty.

The Cambria Daily Leader, of Swansea, Wales, under date of April 26th, has nearly a half column notice of a conference held by the Saints at Island-Street Chapel, Llanelly, the Sunday before, and gives a favorable and interesting digest of sermons and general business features, also noting the fact that the Reorganized Church had no direct connection with the Utah Mormons.

Sister Ella M. Fuhr, of Grove Hill, Bremer county, Iowa, writes us she would like Bro. W. C. Nirk, or Bro. J. S. Roth, one or both, to preach in her neighborhood this spring or the coming summer.

Sr. L. C. Hicks, of Spring Prairie, Wisconsin, writes us May 8th, that she feels an abiding interest in the progress of the work of the church.

Bro. N. A. Baker sends us a Des Moines News containing an article on the doctrine of the Saints, and expresses an ardent desire for the prosperity of Zion's children.

Bro. G. A. Blakeslee wrote from Galien, May 10th, that Rev. Hicks had almost incited a mobocratic attack on the Saints there; but the tide had turned, and all was running smoothly again. Bro. Blakeslee adds: "I never felt so well, spiritually, as now; I never felt so much of the grace and power of the Spirit in my life before."

The Des Moines, Iowa, News, of May 11th, comes to us by kindness of some brother, probably N. A. Baker, in which we find a three quarter column notice of our people at Des Moines, and of the work and cause generally. The branch numbers about one hundred. Bro. Baker and others are holding revival services, beginning May 10th. So goes the good work.

Bro. Emsley Curtis wrote from Independence, Missouri, May 10th, that he had been holding meetings in the Neet School-house, Central Missouri district, where an elder of the Holiness People had been laboring. Bro. Curtis met with a good reception; baptized four and organized a branch of nineteen members, to be known as Missouri River Branch. Bro. Joseph Westwood to preside; H. C. Manning was ordained teacher, and sister Ida Manning was chosen secretary. There are a number of others formerly of the Valley branch, who, if they unite with the new branch will make twenty-five in the neighborhood.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Who are those mentioned in Revelation 20: 8, "the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle; the number of whom is as the sand of the sea."

Ans.—(1) We understand the words "Gog and Magog" to refer to the empire of Russia, as it will exist at the second coming of Christ, and as is more fully explained in Ezekiel, chapters 38th and 39th. And as Russia at that time will be the greatest of all the nations, and will be destroyed in a most signal manner, she will stand as the representative of all worldly kingdoms at the time of her overthrow; and that, therefore, the remnants "of all the nations" (Zech. 14: 16; Isa. 60: 9-22; 66: 15-23) which are left at the second advent of Christ were denominated to John, "Gog and Magog," and will be known as such at the end of the thousand years' reign—the millennium.

(2) The words, "the number of whom is as the sand of the sea," simply signify a very great number, as in Gen. 22: 17; 41: 49; 2 Sam. 17: 11; 1 Kings 4: 20; Isa. 10: 22; Heb. 11: 12, etc.

If the reader will examine Doc. and Cov. 45: 6-10, he will get further light upon the fact of remnants of nations being left at the second advent.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote from Freesoil, Mason county, Michigan, May 5th:

"I have delivered three discourses here, and am to speak to-night. It got dusty here all at once, (it came from off their Bibles). It is surprising what three sermons will do, and yet not surprising when such is poured forth in the Spirit."

Of the situation at Independence, Missouri, Bro. E. L. Kelley on the 9th May, writes:

"Meetings well attended here yesterday and noticeable improvement in many ways. I notice also that the Saints are becoming an important factor in the industrial and business interests of Independence. This is encouraging. The new church is under way, and the prominence of its location, and the beauty of design as shown by the drawing, must give prestige in favor of the work, and especially so, since but a few weeks must intervene till a street railway will pass along by the door near which are the homes of a hundred thousand people. The Saints everywhere will be interested in the success of this work of building."

From a letter from Bro. James Baty, dated at Manchester, England, April 25th we glean:

"We have just concluded one of the best conferences ever held in this district, peace and harmony prevailed, business got through without a jar, and the devotional and preaching services were acknowledged by our Heavenly Father, the testimonies were soul inspiring and the preaching was with power and demonstration of the Spirit, the attendance was good and the attention excellent and we believe a great good was done to the people of Sheffield.

The reports from the branches show the work in good condition and the prospect good. May we all, officers and Saints, sanctify the Lord God in our hearts and be always ready with our reason for the hope that is within us."

THE "BOOM."

THE Chicago Mail has this to say of late in respect to what it denominates "The crazy western towns," and it is well for those interested to make a note of it:

"Lots are selling in Kansas City and Omaha at prices which would stagger the most optimistic real estate men in Chicago. There is a perfect real-estate craze in all the Missouri River and western towns, and people with more money than judgment, carried away by excitement or enthusiasm, are putting their all into dirt that will not pay 20 cents on the dollar. It is only to be expected that this real-estate craze should be followed by a panic. With all allowance for the growth which Kansas City, Omaha, St Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Denver, and other western towns may naturally attain, and conceding all that the wildest of their boomers claim, the property which is now selling at fancy prices is bound to take a tumble, for the reason that more property is sold than can possibly be improved in the next quarter of a century. The western towns are all prosperous, and they will all grow. The trouble with them is that they will overgrow. Then, as in the past, a period of stagnation will set in, they will have to wait for the times to catch up with them; and the greater the boom now the greater the reaction will be, and the longer they will have to await the return of natural growth. Kansas City, Leavenworth, St. Joe and especially Omaha, have had this experience before, but they do not seem to remember it now. At present they are mad as March hares, and they will run their course in spite of any argument. The men who will have the presence of mind or the judgment to unload in time are those who will make the money, but when the unloading process once begins, it will seem as though the bottom had fallen out of these enterprising, beautiful, but erring western towns."

THE Republic, Kansas County Pilot, of which paper Bro. John D. Bennett is co-proprietor and editor, comes to us as an exchange; and which we give a cordial welcome. In his greeting to his patrons, Bro. Bennett writes:

"A republican in politics, I shall treat all other parties with that courtesy born of "good will toward all mankind." A Latter Day Saint in religion, I shall ever regard it as my duty to respect the honest convictions of other faiths, extending to them the generous recognition due between man and man."

THE Saturday Globe, Utica, New York, for March 26th last, had the following bit of information which may afford a coigne of vantage to the Utah many-wived church-men, as evidence in retaliation:

MAY HAVE TWO WIVES IN THIS STATE.

"According to the laws of the State of New York a man may under the following circumstances have and live in lawful wedlock with two wives, a fact not generally known. In the following case the law permits polygamy in this State: If a man's wife deserts him and for five years he does not know whether she is living or not, he may take a second wife. If, after he is married the second time, the first wife returns, he must support both wives. Both are his lawful wives and are entitled to dower. If they are willing to live together in one house and mingle their families that is nobody's business. What is "sauce for the gander is sauce for the goose," and a woman may have two husbands under the same circumstances."

THE Psalmist says, "Great peace have they which love Thy law; and nothing shall offend them." But how about these pluralists in the Ogden, (Utah) district?

"There are about seventy cases under the Edmunds law awaiting adjudication at the present term of court, [in Ogden, Utah.—Ed]. The judicial machinery will have to run up to its full tension while the term lasts."—Salt Lake Herald.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Well she keeps her ancient stock,
The stubborn strength of Pilgrim Rock
And still maintains, with milder laws,
And clearer light, the good old cause!"

IN February last there died at Poona, India, Dr. Anandabia Joshee, who was a graduate of the Women's Medical College of Philadelphia, from which place she returned to her native land less than one year ago, and her coming was looked upon as the opening of a new era for women. From the "Open Court" we give the following answer to the question put to her in relation to the car of juggernaut and the casting of babes into the Ganges by their mothers.

"These stories she claimed to be exaggerations of the missionaries. The car of juggernaut being an immense structure, some thirty feet in height and proportionately heavy, used to be brought out once a year for holy procession. It was esteemed a sacred privilege to assist in drawing the car, thousands gathered from far and near, the country was hilly, sometimes the car would slip, and other accidents would occur by which life would be lost; and these accidents were exaggerated by the missionaries into willful sacrifice. The mothers who threw their babes into the Ganges were often driven thereto by poverty which threatened starvation to both, while salvation for the souls of the little ones was hoped to be secured by drowning in the sacred stream. Dr. Joshee said that during her experience as a medical student in Philadelphia a large number of new-born infants, found dead, with marks of having been killed at birth, or who had died by reason of the desertions of their presumably unmarried mothers, were secured as subjects for the dissecting room, and she might as well on her return to India relate this fact and claim that it was the custom of mothers in America to kill or desert their new-born babes, and adduce this as a result of christian belief."

Many of our readers have doubtless seen notices of this talented woman of India, during her stay in Philadelphia; and just before her death she had been appointed Resident Physician of the great Albert Edward Hospital, of Kohlapur in Bombay. There is no possible room for doubting her assertion in this matter, and even if upon her return to India she had so represented the mothers in America, would she have been far in the wrong? Perhaps not as far as our own countrymen and women have been in regard to the customs of India.

Mothers in Zion, we come to inquire, "Have we a car of juggernaut in our midst?" Is there within the folds of the church any who in the silence of night and the hours of darkness bring forth this car for its murderous purpose, while mothers instead of fleeing in horror from the sound of its wheels, creep stealthily forth to place their little ones beneath it? Again we ask, "Have we in our midst this car?"

Lest this question should be treated lightly, or like many an excellent sermon given in pure charity to our neighbor, we ask again, Can it be possible that any daughter of Zion, has so far forgotten her vows—the covenant entered into when she was buried with Christ in baptism, as to have branded herself with the sin of Cain? Did we say Cain? We should have said a worse, for can a brother be as near as a child? Can the man who through envy strikes his brother in the heat of passion be as bad as the woman who deliberately plans the death of her own child? Do not answer, I am not strong enough to bear children, and fancy thus to put the question aside, for we say in the words of Jesus: "It is profitable for thee that one of thy members perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell." There is a promise made in the word of God to which every faithful mother has a right to cling, but far better to die as Rachel died, if so be it is the will of God, than to purchase a few brief hours of life at such a fearful cost. Do not put this question aside, for as surely as there is a God, the day of reckoning will come. "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the hearts of the sons of men are fully set in them to do evil," but the word of the Lord adds, "Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not go unpunished, but the seed of the righteous shall be delivered."

"I have given unto you to be the salt of the earth." Sisters in the bond of the covenant, how can the church be pure if our homes are not pure? How can our elders go forth strong in the power of the Lord, if in the body of which they form a part, there exists such festering sores as this. Even in the Catholic church, which we look upon as having departed entirely from the faith, this is classed not among the venial sins, but is held to be a mortal sin. Terrible as has been the punishment of the Jews, this is a sin never laid to their charge, and can it be that it is justly laid to us?

"The gospel spreading through the land
A people to prepare;
To meet the Lord and Enoch's band,
Triumphant in the air!"

Upon one occasion, in Lamoni, brother Joseph gave us some plain talk upon this subject, but we feel to reiterate the sentence from the clipping inserted last week, "We need instruction upon these vital subjects. We want it in our medical works, by the press, from the pulpit, and from the parents in the homes." This last is the striking of the vital chord. We may sing forever of the gospel work and bear our testimonies to its truth, but if such thistles as these are growing upon the branches where the clustering grapes ought to hang, our testimonies will fall to the ground, as fall they ought; and we may be well assured that while the gospel is preparing a people to meet the Lord, the angels are also to be sent forth and gather out of his kingdom all things which offend. Mothers in Zion, it is high time we awake to the need there is of instructing our children that they may know to do that which is right, and avoid that which is evil, and if they know and will not avoid, then upon them, and not upon us, will the responsibility rest. We need all the aids we can get in this work, from the ministry and from God-fearing physicians, who will warn us of the dangers which beset the paths of our children in this corrupt and God-defying age of the world; but while we need this and while the ministry are in duty bound to come up to our help, let us realize that nothing can free us from the responsibility of instructing our own, and going before them in the way. The salt which loses its power to save, is fit only to be trodden under foot of men. If indeed we have among us this worse than car of juggernaut, let us beware for the day of God's reckoning is near at hand, and they who know the Master's will and do it not shall be beaten with many stripes.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Sister Dunn writes from Cedar Rapids, Iowa:—"I know this work is true and came from God, the Father of all, and I often wonder at the mercy which has been shown me in my being led to see and embrace it. Since I joined the church I have had many trials and many blessings. I thought I must be perfect in all things as soon as I embraced the faith, but I was instructed by the Spirit that I must overcome one thing at a time. I went to bed one night, feeling very much discouraged with the progress I was making, and in this frame of mind, fell asleep. I dreamed that I had a book presented to me, and on one side of the leaf was several squares scattered about, and on the other side these were formed into a perfect picture, and the Spirit said: 'Put one piece at a time until it is perfect.' Sisters, let us try to do this and God who is merciful will help us and give us the victory at last."

Sister Lily J. Smith writes from Richland, Dakota:—"What a grand lesson it is to learn to do all things with an eye single to the glory of God. I wish I had it stamped in my heart that I might never forget it in the hour of temptation. I feel that many times I may have advocated our doctrine because I could do so easily and silence those who were teaching false doctrines. Pray for me that I may not seek to gratify self, but seek to honor God, and in a meek and quiet way adorn my life with wisdom and knowledge. Oh, it is good to be a Latter Day Saint, even if we are away, alone among the world's people. But oh, how we long to be with the people of God when the Sabbath Day comes.

Sister Florence Young, writes from Lamoni, Iowa:—"I enjoy reading the 'Home Column' so much; and I know it is doing a good work. I presume you remember how sick I was last winter. I dreamed before I was sick that I was fighting for my own life and the life of my babe. He was not expected to live for some time, and thus you see my dream was realized. I knew that I must go unless the dear Lord spared my life. My heart would throb and then stop beating, and my limbs were cold to my knees; but after the Saints had that prayer meeting the Sunday during the conference, something whispered me, 'Be of good cheer, thy sins are forgiven thee.' And from that time I was better. How thankful I am that God saw fit to spare my life, for what would my dear little children do without a mother's care?"

Dear sister Florence:—We pray the dear Master to help you in the great work which lies before you, and give you wisdom to do it wisely and faithfully. And we say to you, as we say to all dear mothers who like you are struggling in the face of much which seems hard and discouraging, to bring up a large family of children; "Be not discouraged but lean upon the strong arm of the living God. In you the world sees but a poor frail woman, surrounded by a family of little ones, and they pity you for the constant care, the hourly sacrifices you must make; the incessant toil demanded at your hands from early morning until the small hour of the night. They see not in your little ones those later messengers sent from a purer world, to win your heart and mine back to the abode of the blessed. They see not enshrined in those little bodies an immortal spirit, the creation of the great Jehovah, and saddest of all, they take no note of the fact that when we shall stand before the great white throne, he who sitteth thereon will demand of us to render to him an account for the manner in which we have acquitted ourselves of our sacred trust. Dear mothers! be not weary, neither tempted to wish your sacred trust less, but seek each day, yes each hour to God for the wisdom which you will need each hour, and you will not be sent empty away. No matter how busy the hands may be, the silent prayer for grace and help may still ascend to the ear which is ever open to hear, and the low notes which lull the baby to sleep may be an anthem of thanksgiving and praise, sweeter in the ears of the angels than ever swelled from the cathedral's vaulted dome.

INCIDENTS OF TRAVEL.

Dear Column:—Six months and more have passed away since I gave the Herald a brief sketch of our visit among the Saints and people of Victoria, the southern part of this mission; and now I feel that I would come short of my duty towards those in the northern part, if I did not in like manner make mention of them, and of their kindness and interest in the work. We left Newcastle for Forster in a little vessel—that being the cheapest way of traveling—just after a storm, and consequently had a rough, unpleasant passage, all three of us sea-sick. I find, contrary to our expectations, that this is a very rough coast. The frequent squalls of rain compelled us to stay down in the little cabin, six feet by four, squeeze ourselves in the narrow little bunks, only one of which had a mattress, and were so close up under the deck that we could scarcely turn over; so we were obliged to lie and suffer with aching bones and sea-sickness for forty-eight hours. But on our arrival we were very kindly received by brother and sister Wright. The kindness and comfort we found there more than compensated for all our suffering and previous want of room. I never shall forget how happy I was when, after getting a little rested, we were shown up to our rooms. It seemed like getting into a new world to have a large, light airy room all to ourselves, and to breath air that was not pregnated with coal-smoke and the fumes of sulphur.

Mr. Burton has already written of the work in both Forster and Nambucca, so I will speak mostly of our travels, thinking many will be interested in learning how we get from place to place where there are no cars. But I must say the success that crowned the efforts put forth at Forster was almost unparalleled. It was the Lord who did the work and to Him be the glory. Nevertheless, it is encouraging to know that the work on earth is beginning to be done, and that there is one place at least that is ready for the end; or "upon whom the end of the earth has come," there being only the two churches now in that place: "The Church of the Lamb of God," and the Roman Catholic Church. Many of the latter are very friendly although not inclined to accept our faith. When we left here, myself and daughter only intended going as far as Forster, and remain there while Mr. Burton visited Nambucca and vicinity; but because of the earnest solicitation of the Saints of Nambucca, we determined to accompany him thither. Accordingly, after we had been in Forster six weeks, during which time the branch was built up and organized, we left them rejoicing in their new found treasure, and started towards Nambucca, where the Saints were becoming weary waiting for us.

The morning was fine, but there was a dark cloud making up in the distance. Mr. Burton must needs make the first twenty-five miles on horse-back, and Addie and I went another way. There being no wagon road for eight miles up the river, we went by water the first four miles on a steam punt, which was going up for logs for the mill; sisters Wright, Avery and Colvin, accompanying us that far. We all enjoyed the gliding over the smooth water upon which there was not a ripple. I thought truly this is one of nature's oil paintings, as we threaded our way upon the winding river, through the dense forest, mostly palm trees. No river bank; the moss-covered ground and roots of trees were on a level with the clear, shining water, which reflected the trees and foliage in its mirrored depths, with here and there a miniature island. But while we talked pleasantly concerning the strange things that had taken place in the village—much as the people of Judea might have done eighteen hundred years ago—the clouds had gradually overspread the sky, till now the sun was shut in; and as we stepped from the punt into the very small row-boat, in which Bro. Colvin was to row us the other four miles, the rain commenced to fall, and thunder rumbled in the distance; nor did it remain long in the distance. As we got farther up the river it became much narrower, and the forest more dense. I now fairly shuddered to think what a lonely picture we presented: two females crouched beneath an umbrella in that little boat, rowed by one man; there in the gloom of the dark clouds and thick woods—not an opening or habitation in sight. The thunder was crashing over our heads, and the forked lightning shooting down only a little distance from us into the water that was now white with the splashing of the large rain drops that were coming thick and fast; indeed it seemed rather to come in streams than in drops. Our umbrella was of little service; but we had time to get pretty well dried at the huge fireplace in the house at the landing, while waiting for the team that was coming from Taree to meet and take us that far. We had to walk about half a mile to get to the team; then a rough journey of eighteen miles. The roads were terrible, and such frightfully steep hills! We walked down and up all the worst of them. Arrived in Taree about sundown. Mr. Burton had got there a few hours before, and like ourselves was much fatigued.

We stayed at the hotel all night, and started off in the coach at eight in the morning. A very small coach it was. Mr. Burton sat outside with the driver. Addie and I, our trunk and hand-luggage filled the inside comfortably full. How much we enjoyed that day's drive. To see broad fields of last year's corn-stalks, and patches of green alfalfa, and young barley growing, was a treat to our eyes; the first Addie and I had seen since we left home, and could not help fancying we were again in the blessed land of California, and would soon drive up to some of the Saints' houses. The driver was also the proprietor of the road, and extended towards us more than usual courtesy; even stopped his horses and got down and gathered for us some white everlasting that grew wild over the hills. At noon the horses were left standing in the road while we ate our dinner.

We reached Port Macquarrie at dusk, and only had till nine o'clock to rest; then started again and traveled all night. In making this journey we have to cross five rivers on punts; three of these we crossed during the night drive. These punts are like scows, with platforms on hinges at both ends, a high railing, and on one side, the wheels for the cable. Near the water's edge, each side of the river, is a pile set firmly into the ground; a wire cable made fast around this is passed under a low, small iron wheel at one end of the punt; and up over another one larger and higher, and down again under the small one, at the other end, then stretched across the river and made fast to the pile on the other side. These wheels have deep grooves for the wire to travel in. The coachman drives right down on the punt, and does not get on them and off again without some pretty sharp jostling either. The ferryman steps out on his little platform by the center wheel, and winds us over, the whole load being propelled by means of a crank and one man power. One of these rivers is quite broad, and it takes twenty minutes to cross it. Quite different from the iron bridges of America; one would almost think they had been wafted back a century or so. Our night driver claimed to be from the Eastern States, and seemed quite anxious to get back. The well-worn little coach broke down twice during the night, and had to be disburdened of passengers and luggage to be fixed up again. Had one additional passenger who stayed by us and the horses while Mr. Burton and the coachman took one of the lamps and went in the woods to hunt a proper stick to repair the damage until we got in town. Our trunk was the "wonder of the age," and got the credit for the break-down; said they never took such a big box before; no one says trunk in this country. It was the smallest one we had; and in comparison with traveling trunks in America, would be very small.

Arrived in Kempsey about five in the morning, chilled through, and so tired we could just stagger to our rooms. It was not like a night in one of "Nahum's chariots," where one sinks back on the soft cushions and dozes comfortably all night. We slept till half-past eight. Started again at eleven, in an open buggy, with one of the Australian hot winds blowing, and I had a severe head ache. When we stopped for dinner I was too tired to eat; it was an effort to speak aloud. We had been cramped up in the narrow back seat, and wedged in with mail bags, and our hand luggage on our laps. That day was as miserable as the day before had been delightful. But in the latter part of the afternoon we commenced going over and around the mountains through the bush in this country, but forest in America. The tall trees shielded us from the hot wind, and mostly from the sun. I began to get rested, or accustomed to the motion. The forest too was beautiful. Not such a variety of bright colored leaves as in Nova Scotia, but the creeping vines that climbed up and twined around the dry branches and old trees, made them look prettier than a May-pole, and forming a complete network over the undergrowth, making natural arbors and summer houses. The wild honeysuckle has a bright scarlet flower; another vine a yellow flower, and another with a bright red berry and a waxy evergreen leaf. The scenery was all so new and interesting we enjoyed it much. Saw a Kangaroo and her young, also a Paddy-melon, and a little gray bear in the top of a tree. The roads were good, too; although the long hills were pretty steep, the driver never used the brake unless there was a rut in the road; he generally made the horses go fast enough to keep out of the way of the wagon. We had about two hours of moonlight before reaching Nambucca river, where we stayed all night. Were there met by Bro. Ballard's son Robert, who brought a horse for Mr. Burton to ride, and said Bro. Argent would send his buggy in the morning for Addie and me. The mail is carried the remainder of the way to Bowraville on a horse.

Friday morning we felt as fresh and bright as though we had not been traveling at all. At ten Robby Argent hailed for us from the other side of the river. We crossed on the punt, and two hours driving up hill and down, pretty slow one way, and pretty fast the other, brought us to Bowraville—a pretty spare looking town, but there is plenty of room for it to grow. Here we were met by sister Ballard and son William, also Bro. and Sr. Scrivener, all on horse back. This was a cordial reception, and made us feel at home at once. Bowraville is eight miles from Argent Hills, where the branch is, yet there is no store or post office any nearer. We all got dinner at the hotel together; and when the horses were rested and fed, started once more to complete our journey. There was quite a little party of us, and we had a merry time, being passed and re-passed by those on the horses. It was about sundown when we drove into Bro. Argent's yard, and were received with open arms by sister Argent and daughters; and were conducted into their nice, cool, quiet house, that bespoke rest to the weary travelers, having been on the road from Tuesday morning till Friday evening.

Correspondence.

CABOOL, Mo., April 25th.

Bro. Blair:—We are few in number here, yet we are trying to keep the faith once delivered to the Saints. I am trying to prepare the way for some of the efficient field-elders by lending the Kelley Braden debate to the best minds in town. One attorney here has carefully examined the discussion, and pronounces it a grand success in favor of the great truths taught in the Bible, said Kelley made a legal case clear through, proving every point; said Braden didn't prove anything. The Herald furnishes me a great deal of good solid food. I don't know how Saints can do without it.

Yours,

B. A. ATWELL.

SUGAR GROVE, Mich., April 28th.

Brn. Joseph and William:—The brethren here are in the faith, and more confirmed in it since hearing the Rev. Mr. Mills against the latter day work. Mr. Mills has not acted the gentleman in the lectures. He has not used our books fairly, but has misrepresented both them and us. Those who are willing to hear both sides of the question will be benefitted. But I fear some are so prejudiced against us they will not come out to hear the other side of the question. But others who did not want to hear our side before, want to hear it now; and such will be benefitted. It is said by the Saints here that Mr. Mills proved any thing he wanted from our books by reading a little, skipping a little, and adding a little, etc. And if any of the brethren would dare to say a word, the law was threatened on them. Such men need salting right down, or they won't keep until hot weather comes—I expect them to spoil then, anyway. "Every man's work will be tried so as by fire."

I feel well both in body and spirit; I feel renewed after being at the Kirtland conference. I have returned to my field of labor with a will and a determination to accomplish something for my Master. I have thought I would soon have a brother to labor with me, but there is none. It seems to be my lot, and has been ever since I have been in the ministry, to labor alone. And yet I have not been, and am not now alone, because the Spirit of my Master has been, and is, and will be with me whilst I live in the discharge of my duty and am faithful to the trust committed to my care. The prospects ahead are bright.

I am now, and hope to continue your brother in the one faith,

J. J. CORNISH.

SEATTLE, Washington Ter., April 25th.

Dear Brethren:—Having been convinced that the Latter Day Saints church is the right one, and believing it to be my duty, I am very desirous of being baptized. If you should know of an elder coming out here on Puget Sound, or out this way, will you please tell him to visit Seattle, if he can, so that I may be baptized. Call at last bridge on Jackson Street.

Yours in Christ,

PETER THYGEN.

CHATHAM, Ontario, May 9th.

Brother W. W. Blair:—Since I have been here Bro. Merriam and I have been holding a series of meetings; not many of the world's people out, but those who did come paid strict attention, and the Saints manifest interest in the work. The spirit of peace pervaded in all of the meetings. A case of healing occurred here since we have been holding meetings. At the close of the meeting on Tuesday evening, the 3d inst., Bro. George Walker and his wife wished to be administered to—he for deafness which he had been afflicted with for the last twenty-one years. He lost his hearing while he was in the British army, and had been examined under a council of twenty-four Physicians and had received his discharge, as they decided he could not be cured, for they said the drum in his left ear was destroyed, and the other was nearly destroyed. We left the hall where the meeting had been held, and went to Bro. Bardwell's house. A few of the Saints went with us. We had prayer before administering, and then Bro. Merriam anointed the brother; then we laid our hands on him and I prayed as I was led by the Spirit, for it was present with us in power. We then administered to sister Walker for general weakness; we were then dismissed and the Saints went to their homes. Brother and sister Walker state that the next morning when they first awoke sister Walker said, "How does your head feel." He replied, "It feels better, I hear the clock tick." This was the first time that he had heard the clock tick for twenty-one years, and he could hear the robins and the other birds sing for the first time since he had been in America. Sister Walker was blessed and comforted, and is much better.

I have heard that Bro. R. C. Evans is presenting the gospel to the people and caring for the London branch. Bro. R. Coburn states he had received a letter from Bro. G. A. Blakeslee that he is calculating to come to the conference of their district. I would say, "Come, brother Blakeslee and welcome. Hope to be present and meet you and many Saints. The weather is pleasant, and all nature seems to rejoice and give praise to God. Blenheim, Ontario, will be my address until June the 11th.

Yours in Christ,

JOHN H. LAKE.

HEPPNER, Oregon, April 24th.

Dear Herald:—I must tell you, you are a source of much pleasure to me. I do not know how I could do without you; I think the sisters' Home Column good. I would be pleased if sister Ellen Fisher of Eight Mile, Oregon, would pay me a visit, or write me a letter.

CELESTINE RUSH.

BRAIDWOOD, Ill., April 29th.

Dear Herald:—You are still welcome to me. Long may your pages be bright and shining, as they are. My desire is, that while I am in this state of probation, so to live that God will have glory in my creation. I am thankful to say God is mindful of his people here. We had three baptisms lately; father, mother, and daughter. The daughter was sorely afflicted for four years, with stomach complaint and other diseases. She had six fits in a day. Her parents had the different doctors that are here, and could do nothing for her. She went to a Chicago hospital, was examined, and the doctors said they could do her no good. She was baptized, along with her parents, by Bro. John S. Keir, and was made whole. We give God the glory for recognizing his authority in these the latter days.

In the one faith,
Sister MAGGIE KELSO.

DELOIT, Iowa, April 28th.

Brother Blair:—The work of the Lord is moving on in this part of the vineyard. I have been preaching nine miles north-east of Deloit, every two weeks, for some time. Two weeks ago last Sunday I baptized two young men, making four at that place. Others are believing. I have been greatly blessed in presenting the truth. The work we are engaged in is grand. Brethren of the local ministry, there is a great work for us to do; for many are perishing for the bread of life. Our voices should be heard in the school-houses in our different localities. May God bless his servants to put forth a greater effort is my prayer.

ARE YOU INTERESTED?

A VOICE FROM THE CENTER STAKE.

THE work of building a large house of worship, as decided upon by the Independence, Missouri, branch, has been commenced. The excavating has been completed, and the basement is now in course of construction. It is scarcely necessary to inform the church throughout the world that this undertaking is largely a work of faith. It has been taken for granted that all Saints would feel and exhibit an interest in erecting a creditable structure in Independence. To complete the work will require about $15,000, and if an interest is felt abroad such as is felt here regarding the matter, there will be no occasion for delay. Is there a member of the church who would not like to have a brick in this building? Erected just across the street from the temple lot, and in a prominent and conspicuous place, to be seen by all who enter the city by rail, and right on the line of the proposed street railway from Kansas City, and in a locality which is destined to become central at no distant day. Can we afford to miss the present golden opportunity of helping to erect such a building as will stand to the credit of all who love the work of God and believe in his revelations regarding this sacred spot.

The Presbyterians are about to build a church, costing over $30,000 in this place, and not a member of that church pretends to cherish feelings regarding Independence such as are ever inspiring and thrilling the hearts of Latter Day Saints the world over. The eye of every faithful Saint glistens as it turns in this direction, and the yearning heart throbs faster as the promises of God, associated with the signs of the times portray a glorious scene before the mind, and indicate its fast approach.

Instinctively the tongue peals forth the appropriate words:

"O, Zion, when I think of thee,
I long for pinions like a dove."

Yet if these "pinions" were furnished to all such anxious and hoping ones at the present time and they were to fly to this consecrated spot, they would find out what the inhabitants of the place have learned, namely, that we have no church room to accommodate them, and that the present need and demand is that we build unselfishly—build with faith in the future and in God's law and promises relating thereto.

Our numbers are increasing steadily, and from enquiries and intimations received from abroad we anticipate a steady increase in the future. We are laboring hard to maintain the dignity of our work here, and have a branch that according to the admission of many without the church, has forced the respect and confidence of the people around us. Old time prejudices are dying out, and we are now not only called of God, but also permitted by the people, to occupy a wider field and we desire to do it with credit to ourselves, benefit to the people about us, and glory to God.

The membership here are, as a rule, straining every nerve to make a success of the work undertaken, but confess to a confidence in the interest of Saints abroad. It will be impossible for the members here to finish this work of themselves, nor ought they to be expected to do it. Every man and woman's interest in this place and in the building up of the latter day work in it, should be of a character that will stimulate his or her benevolence in that direction, and a little moneyed interest from all such would help the building committee considerably more than their "prayerful interest" alone.

The late conference at Kirtland decided to hold its next session at Independence, and we are extremely anxious to have our building completed, so that all comers may be accommodated. We want (d. v.) to have the place not only finished, but free of debt so that one of the precious seasons to be enjoyed on that occasion will be in witnessing the dedication of a building to God and his worship, that will be creditable to the church in all the world. If you would like to witness such an event or know of its being witnessed by your brethren and sisters of like faith, just tax your generosity to the extent of your interest and ability, and it can and will be accomplished.

Think, if you can, of the satisfaction and holy joy that awaits all, who at that time can say "I have helped all I could in this laudable work." Think, also, that such experiences may be general throughout the church, for "whosoever will" may respond to this appeal for help, and afterwards participate in the glory to be revealed. We do not consider this a fancy picture, but are of the opinion that every dollar contributed and consecrated to such a work in such a place, is a pledge of faith in the revelations of God concerning the place, and is just so much applied toward one of the best local measures inaugurated to hasten the redemption of Zion. We believe it to be an important and necessary link in the chain of latter day developments. We believe the branch was directed at the proper time to take the initial steps in this direction, and that the committee was inspired in a noticeable manner from the first. We further believe that our present appeal will not only evince our earnestness in this matter; but will cause others to become interested, and will lead to their seeking and securing evidence from above that we have been moved thereunto by his unerring spirit, and in taking his counsel in this matter, we have become workers together with him, for a purpose, the accomplishment of which will aid in the revelation of his glory, by setting forth the light of Zion.

We hope that all parts of the world will be represented in this building. If you can send dollars by the thousand, send, without fear of giving offence to the committee. If by hundreds, tens, or units, forward them, and if but quarters or dimes are at your command, do not hesitate. Let us hear from England and Wales, and Scandinavia and Australia, and all countries where Saints dwell. Let all the United States and Canada speak, and speak loudly and liberally in this matter. Credit will be given through the Herald to all contributors, at the completion of the work, except where names are ordered suppressed. Send money by post office order, or draft to Joseph Luff, or F. W. Barbee, Independence, Missouri. Send soon, that our work be not delayed. We need money and will need it right along till the work is done.

Finally, Saints, respond and respond liberally, that Zion may "arise and shine," and your brethren and sisters here will ever pray that your liberality may be richly rewarded by him at whose counsel we are moving forward in this enterprise. Do not think that the Saints here are building a house for their own accommodation merely. We are building for yours as well. We are building for the future. We are building in faith that Zion as a location—the land of Zion, will yet be peopled by Zion the pure in heart, and that this will be the radiating center.

If the reading of this humble appeal from your anxious brethren awakens the least degree of fervor within your hearts, do not let that fervor subside, until you have mailed us the amount of your interest in our work, so far as your ability will allow.

Signed, on behalf of the building committee.

JOSEPH LUFF, President.
INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 6th, 1887.

TO THE PEOPLE CALLED CUTLERITES.

PRESIDENCY, ENDOWMENTS, ETC.

To the Herald readers I will say in explanation. I joined what was called the Cutlerite faction of the church when I was about nine years old, and continued a member of that church for over twenty years. But about three years ago I was led to give up my belief concerning father Cut-ler's authority to lead the church, and I joined the Reorganized Church, a step I have not regretted, but which has caused some of my dearest friends to mourn for me as lost, led into darkness, terribly deceived, and so on. And having but little opportunity to talk with them upon this subject, I take this way of trying to show them my reasons for believing as I do. "To the law and to the testimony," for if we speak not according to these there is no light in us. And if we are required to live by every word of God, how shall we know whether we are living as we ought except we compare our daily lives with the word of God? Likewise, how shall we know whether we believe aright except we compare our belief with his word and see if we are in the faith or not?

In the first place, let us find what the meaning of the term "President of the high priesthood" is. "Behold, there shall be a record kept among you, and in it thou shalt be called a seer, a translator, a prophet," etc.—D. C. 19:1. 2d. What is the duty of the president of the high priesthood. Sec. 104, 42d verse: "And again, the duty of the president of the office of the high priesthood is to preside over the whole church, and to be like unto Moses. Behold, here is wisdom, yea, to be a seer, a revelator, a translator, and a prophet; having all the gifts of God which he bestows upon the head of the church." D. C. 104:42. 3d. How is he to be called to that office? Joseph the Martyr was called of God: "Wherefore, I, the Lord, knowing the calamity which should come upon the inhabitants of the earth, called upon my servant Joseph Smith, Jr., and spake unto him from heaven." D. C. 1:4. Also in section 17, par 1, it reads: "Joseph Smith, Jr., who was called of God, and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ, to be the first elder of this church."

The present Joseph Smith has testified that he was called of God to the office which he now holds as president of the high priesthood, and others testify, that the Lord has made known to them that the eldest son of the martyr was called to be his father's successor. But I know of no evidence that father Cutler was ever so called to lead the church. "But" says one, "I remember hearing Joseph say in public that there were men sitting around him who were fitted and prepared to build up and carry on the work as he had done, and (putting his hand on father Cutler's shoulder) said, Here's a man who will do it. How are you going to get around that?"

Well, I am not going to try to get around it. I suppose Joseph said it, and no doubt meant it, and I do not know but that father Cutler did do all that he could to help build up the work before this was spoken, and for some time after. And he could only do this by standing in the place, or office, whereunto he was then called. But Joseph certainly did not mean that there were a number of men sitting around him all fitted and prepared to be president of the church, nor that father Cutler would lead the church, build it up and carry it on as Joseph had done, as any one can see by comparing the work done by the two men now that their earthly work is ended. Well, when God has called a man to such a place, is that all? No; he must be appointed and ordained. "Wherefore it must needs be that one be appointed of the high priesthood to preside over the priesthood."—D. & C. 104:31; again: "For behold, verily, verily, I say unto you, that you have received a commandment for a law unto my church, through him whom I have appointed unto you to receive commandments and revelations from my hand."—D. & C. 43:1. This shows that Joseph Smith jr. was appointed by revelation, and what he was appointed for, namely, to receive commandments and revelations for the church. For further proof read sec. 99:6: "The president of the church, who is also the president of the council, is appointed by revelation." Now, if the successor to the prophet is to be appointed by revelation, through whom shall it come? Turn again to section 43: "And this shall ye know assuredly that there is none other appointed unto you to receive commandments and revelations, until he be taken, if he abide in me." I understand from this that there can be only one at a time to receive revelations for the church. Again: "But verily, verily, I say unto you, that none else shall be appointed unto this gift except it be through him, (Joseph), for if it be taken from him he shall not have power, except to appoint another in his stead; and this shall be a law unto you, that you receive not the teachings of any that shall come before you as revelations and commandments. And this I give unto you that you may not be deceived, that you may know they are not of me." Now I understand from this that the second lawful president of the high priesthood was to be appointed through Joseph Smith jr., and that this should be "a law" unto us, "that we be not deceived. Now what is there in these few lines to hinder our being deceived? Has not every faction had this revelation in their books, and yet how many have been deceived?"

Let us try again to see what the Lord says. First, there was to be none but Joseph to receive revelations and commandments for the church, until he was taken away. Second; that the next president was to be appointed through Joseph. Is that all? O, no. "For verily I say unto you, he that is ordained of me shall come in at the gate, and be ordained as I have told you before, to teach those revelations which you have received and shall receive through him whom I have appointed." Now, shall we believe just exactly what the Lord says, that "he shall come in at the gate," (baptism), after this revelation is given, and shall be ordained as he had told them before. When had the Lord ever told them before how the man to receive revelation for the church should be ordained? We answer, in the 17th section and 17th verse. Shall we believe the word of God implicitly, and let that be a law unto us, that we be not deceived? Or shall we disbelieve it and seek to become a law unto ourselves? Now I have never heard of a single witness who testified that Father Cutler was appointed through Joseph Smith for to be president of the high priesthood. But I have read, time after time, the testimony of witnesses that young Joseph (as he is called) was anointed and blessed of his father to be his successor, and that Joseph, while blessing him prophesied that he should yet lead the church of the living God as prophet, seer, and revelator. I have none of these printed testimonies near me to refer to, but have mentioned them as I have understood them.

It used to be a common saying among the Cutlerites, when the news came to them at Manti, Iowa, that young Joseph had been anointed and ordained by his father, and that father Cutler was present at the time, that father Cutler said, "Ah! they take a blessing for an ordination." This was virtually acknowledging that he was present and knew of that blessing; though it appears that some have thought it was an ordination.

Let us now see if we can find anything in the revelations showing who was to be appointed. In sec. 107:18, we find that the Lord commands the people to build a house for the boarding of strangers, and that Joseph and his house shall have place therein from generation to generation. Why? "For this anointing have I put on his head, that his blessing shall also be put upon the head of his posterity after him." Do not the revelations show that Joseph's blessing was to be a prophet, seer, and revelator, having all the blessings which God bestows upon the head of the church? This blessing, then, was to be upon "the head of his posterity after him." Who is "the head" of a man's posterity if it is not his eldest son? "But," says one, "it does not mean Joseph's children, at all; it only means those who become heirs according to the priesthood, or those who hold the priesthood." In that case, then, the Lord would give Joseph and those who held the high priesthood place in that house from generation to generation! It would require quite a house to hold them, and methinks there would be little room for strangers. Joseph's "house," "posterity," "seed," must mean his family, his children according to the flesh, and none else. "And as I said unto Abraham concerning the kindreds of the earth, even so I say unto my servant Joseph, in thee, and in thy seed, shall the kindred of the earth be blessed. Therefore let my servant Joseph and his seed after him have place in that house, forever and ever." What for? So that the strangers might receive the counsel of those whom the Lord has set to be as plants of renown, and as watchmen upon the walls of Zion. What! Did the Lord appoint Joseph "and his seed after him" to be as "plants of renown," and watchmen upon the walls of Zion! And has the Lord said it! and also that Joseph's blessing was to be upon his "posterity after him," and yet we have been so blind us not to see it!

Some people tell me that this revelation has no reference to the presiding authority; but I think if the Lord had said, "for this anointing have I put upon his head, that his blessing shall be put upon the head of father Cutler after him," or of Brigham Young, or some one besides his own "posterity," that some people could see more in that revelation than they seem to see now.

Joseph Smith, sen., was patriarch over the church, and his blessing was put upon the head of his oldest living son, (Doc. & Cov. 107:29), "that my servant Hyrum may take the office of priesthood, and patriarch, which was appointed unto him by his father, by blessing and also by right, that from henceforth he shall hold the keys of the patriarchal blessings." In this paragraph we find father Smith's office, priesthood, and blessing, inseparably connected. And all this is put upon Hyrum Smith by "blessing," as well as "by right" of being the oldest living son. And there is nothing in the books to show that Joseph's office and blessing could not in the same manner be put upon the head of his oldest son, by "blessing" and also "by right."

It seems from the revelations, that the presidency of the Aronic priesthood, rightly belongs to the oldest son among the descendants of Aaron; and that "the order of the Melchisedek priesthood was confirmed to be handed down from father to son, and rightly belongs to the literal descendants of the chosen seed to whom the promises were made." Is not the present Joseph a literal descendent of the chosen "Seer" to whom the promise was made that his blessing should be put upon "the head of his posterity after him?"

"But," says one, "young Joseph does not hold the Melchisedek priesthood at all." Then I ask, Did the Lord make a mistake when he told Joseph, in Doctrine and Covenants, 84: 3, that, "therefore your life and the priesthood hath remained, and must needs remain through you and your lineage, until the restoration of all things spoken of by the mouth of all the holy prophets since the world began."

Let us now turn to Doctrine and Covenants, 17: 17, and see how, after a man has been called of God and appointed by revelation, he is to be ordained to that office. "Every president of the high priesthood, (or presiding elder) . . . is to be ordained by the direction of a high council, or General Conference." Now to show that there is no mistake about this meaning the same office which Joseph Smith held, we read in Doctrine and Covenants, 107: 39:—"I give unto you my servant Joseph, to be a presiding elder over all my church, to be a translator, a revelator, a seer and prophet."

Joseph the martyr, according to his own history in the Times and Seasons and Millennial Star, was ordained president of the high priesthood at a conference of the highpriests, elders and members, held at Amherst, Ohio, on the 25th of January, 1832. They tell me that Father Cutler never was ordained to be president of the high priesthood, but that the people of his church voted to uphold him in that office, and that he received ordinations sufficient under the hands of Joseph Smith, so that he did not need to be ordained to that office! And yet we have just read how

"every president of the high priesthood" must be ordained. And in Doctrine and Covenants 27: 4, read; "neither shall anything be appointed unto any of this church contrary to the church covenants." Now I do not pretend to know what office father Cutler was ordained to, but mother Cutler, who was a witness to his ordination, said that father Cutler's ordination was similar "to those received by others at the same time, but that father Cutler's ordination was to be in force from that hour." Now if this is true, and father Cutler was ordained to lead the church, or something so near like it that he would never afterward need to be ordained, and it was to be in force from that very hour, then I think Joseph should have stepped down and out and let father Cutler preside.

The books teach us that, "by their fruits shall ye know them;" and I have never heard that father Cutler ever received a revelation; and I presume the reason was because it was not his duty to be a prophet, seer and revelator, and so the Lord did not require it at his hands. Some people at this time, try to make out that father Cutler was not deceived, and that he never pretended to be a prophet, seer, or revelator. But the very fact of his allowing his people to vote to uphold him in the very office to which these blessings belong, conference after conference, is proof enough for me, that if his people were deceived so was he, though they may every one be honest in heart.

When the church was "rejected as a church," or an organized body, I do not believe a single individual was rejected unless it was for his own transgressions; neither do I believe that any lost their priesthood except it was on account of their own sins; and I presume there were a good many who were not rejected, though they could not keep the church from being broken up. And when these persons tried to live as they ought, they were often blessed of the Lord; and that some who held the priesthood had authority to build up a branch unto the Lord, did so. And when the time came for the Lord to call upon the son of Joseph the prophet, to take the office to which he had been appointed, does it not look more reasonable that the Lord would send him first to some branch where there was not already a man set up as president of the high priesthood, than to have sent him to some "blind leader of the blind!" Many men have arisen since the days of Joseph the martyr claiming the right to that office, but the Lord did not grant them the gifts belonging to that office. But when the one whom God had called came forth, then the Lord granted the gifts pertaining to that office, proving to all who will investigate that he is indeed such an one as the Lord says it is "the duty of the president of the high priesthood" to be.

But it is just as easy now for people to deny these gifts, and to cry "false prophets," and "would-be prophets," as it was in the days of the martyr. And though he left so many proofs of his being a prophet of God, yet such are no proofs to them who think it wrong to investigate any doctrine that they have not always believed in. I am not ashamed to say to any one that I believe that Joseph the martyr was a true prophet of God. And when he, in Liberty Jail, Missouri, set apart his son Joseph by prophecy and blessing to succeed him, and when again in 1844 he formally set him apart by blessing, anointing and prophecy as plenty of witnesses testify, then I believe he was still a true prophet, and was directed by God so to do. And when the Lord blesses the present Joseph with like blessings which God gave his father, I do not wish to be found fighting against God by crying "false prophet." And if any tell me that there were to be no more revelations given, or needed, because the law was given through Joseph, then I shall refer you to the book of Nephi, 13th chapter: "Yea, woe unto him that shall deny the revelations of the Lord, and that shall say the Lord no longer worketh by revelation, or by prophecy."

I have ideas concerning what is called "endowments." In Doc. & Cov. 38:7, it reads; "Wherefore, for this cause I gave unto you the commandment, that ye should go to the Ohio, and there I will give unto you my law; and there you shall be endowed with power from on high;" and in 39:4: "and inasmuch as my people shall assemble themselves to the Ohio, I have kept in store a blessing such as is not known among the children of men, and it shall be poured forth upon their heads." And in 43:4: "sanctify yourselves and ye shall be endowed with power." Again, in 85: 1, "wherefore I now send upon you another comforter, even upon you my friends, that it may abide in your hearts, even the Holy Spirit of promise, which other comforter is the same that I promised unto my disciples, as is recorded in the testimony of John." Then in 92:2, "in the which house I design to endow those whom I have chosen with power from on high, for this is the promise of the Father unto you; therefore I commanded you to tarry, even as mine apostles at Jerusalem."

From the foregoing quotations, with some sayings found in the New Testament, I understand that the apostles were commanded to tarry in Jerusalem until they were endowed with power from on high, and that they received that endowment upon the day of pentecost. Now, there may have been some ceremonies such as fasting and prayers, etc., before that day; but the apostles knew better than imagine they had been endowed with power from on high, until that day when "they were all filled with the Holy Ghost." Likewise in these last days, his servants were commanded to tarry until they were endowed with power from on high, and according to the history of Joseph the Seer they received that endowment in a similar manner to that received on the day of pentecost; for there came a sound from heaven as of a mighty rushing wind, which filled the whole house, and they saw visions, spake in tongues and prophesied, and were indeed blessed with "power from on high."

From Joseph's own writings we find there were certain religious ceremonies, with songs and prayers, before this; but these were not the endowments promised. Oh no; for the real blessing was direct from God; something which man could not give. But, alas! how many since the death of the Seer have received certain secret ceremonies, oaths, and ordinations, grips and signs, and have honestly said within their own hearts, "Now we have received our endowments; yes, we have been endowed with power from on high;" when in reality it was a mere form; an empty, powerless show, and not at all like former endowments. The real endowments of "power from on high" consisting of a greater degree of the power of the Holy Ghost. That has been sadly wanting.

Some of these very things which Jehovah has not ordained nor sanctioned by His holy Spirit, has done more to bind latter day Israel in chains of darkness, and to keep them from seeing "when good cometh," than any other one thing.

With prayers for the welfare of Zion, and that all the honest in heart may be reclaimed, I close. Your friend, SISTER EMMA L. ANDERSON.

GENERAL ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Elder E. C. Brand of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since our last conference I have baptized five, confirmed twelve, blessed six children; ordained two Seventies, 1 elder, 1 teacher, solemnized 1 marriage, administered to the sick as often as called on with many blessed results; traveled 3401 miles and preached 143 times. Never saw brighter prospects for the work; never saw so many openings for preaching; never saw so much attention paid to preaching; never before this year were the elders so blest.

Elder B. V. Springer, of the Seventy, reports from Coldwater, Michigan:

Since entering the field of labor assigned me at our last Annual Conference, I have tried to be active and diligent, to show myself a workman approved of God; and in so doing meet the expectations and approval of my brethren. I have been greatly blessed in my labors both in spirit and body, not having been sick a day; for which I feel truly grateful to our beneficent Father. I have labored in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio. I have baptized 5 in Michigan, 9 in Indiana, and 6 in Ohio; have confirmed 21, blessed several children, ordained 1 elder and 1 teacher; sat on one court, and performed my whole duty to the best of my ability; and think I am able to predict good for the future in this mission. I have become acquainted with the needs and feelings of the people in this field, and am constrained to believe that with proper labor bestowed, much more will be accomplished next year than has been in this. I have pushed out into new fields and find the people for the most part willing to hear and investigate our claims. I hear that there are some ready to unite at two of the above places and are awaiting my return. Last Sunday I baptized a man in Clear Lake, Indiana, who resides in Lenawee county, Michigan; he came to the Lake on a visit to relatives; while there he attended my lectures, and went home rejoicing in the truth. This will form a nucleus there, and open the way for the introduction of the work in that section. Other points in Ohio and Indiana are open, so that whoever is sent there will find an inviting field, that will admit of no loitering and inactivity on the part of the laborer.

There seems to be a desire on the part of the Saints and the world that I should be returned here; if you so desire, I am perfectly willing to continue. This climate seems to agree with me; my health was never better than now. That God will bless you, my brethren, in your deliberations to the honor and glory of God and the salvation of souls, shall be my prayer.

Elder Willard J. Smith, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since my appointment at last General Conference, I have endeavored to labor in my calling to the best of my ability. I was appointed to labor in the Canada mission, but because of circumstances then existing, I was unable to enter at once into my field. I therefore endeavored to labor in Kansas until the 22d of August, when I started for Canada, stopping for a short time in Michigan with Saints and friends, with whom I had formerly labored, and endeavored to strengthen and build them up in the great work. Since arriving in Canada I have labored in Perth, Grey, Dufferin, Victoria and Haliburton counties, and have enjoyed excellent liberty in presenting the word. I never before felt so strong, and so much confirmed in the great work, as I have the past year. God has abundantly blessed me, and I still desire to labor for the advancement of his great cause. I have baptized thirty persons, and confirmed most of them; also assisted in ordaining one elder, one priest, and two deacons. I have otherwise officiated in the ordinances of blessing children, and administering to the sick; preached three funeral sermons, held two debates; one lasting six evenings, and the other four evenings, during which good was done. I am willing to labor on for the Master, and to go to any place I may be appointed.

Elder A. H. Parsons, of the Seventy, reports from Downs, Kansas:

As per appointment of General Conference at Independence, Mo., I have been laboring in Kansas, devoting the whole time in North-west Kansas District; have presided over the same to the best of my ability. I can not say that we are just what we ought to be as a district, but we have made some advance in the divine cause; which might have been greater if there had been a greater effort put forth by each Saint. Many more calls for preaching than I call fill. Have baptized five, assisted to confirm nine, blessed several children, administered to quite a number of the sick with fair results. Have been blessed in presenting the word of the Lord. The prospect is good for several to come into the church soon. We need at least two ministers to spend their whole time in the North-west Kansas district. We expect to have a tent by our next conference, which will be a great auxiliary for evangelizing the district. In all the duties incumbent upon me I have striven to attend to them to the best ability God gave at the time. I love this work and desire to continue faithful to the end of my days. It is a task for me to leave home and my family, but I shall try to be found at my post.

Elder W. M. Rumel, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Having been appointed to labor in Nebraska, I hereby report, that in harmony with my appointment I have tried to labor in the field assigned me. The fore part of the year my labors were confined to the North Nebraska district, having charge of the same until the latter part of June; and for some time after that I had to look after the building of the house of worship in Omaha. The latter part of the conference year I have labored in the Central Nebraska district. There are many places in that part of the field which offer opportunities for preaching which should be looked after; if so, believe that we will reap a fair harvest by and by. In all of my labors the good Lord has greatly blessed me to my entire satisfaction; I therefore feel well in the work, and expect to continue in the field if it be in harmony with the will of the body. I have full confidence in the work. When I see and hear of men trying to tear down the same, it only inspires me to hold more fast if possible, and stand by the old ship and help her along, which I expect to do by the help of God, until he shall call me hence. Have baptized one.

Elder A. J. Moore, of the Seventy, reports:

I have been engaged in ministerial work about six or seven months, during the past year; have been blessed in my efforts the most of the time; have baptized some, and in praying for the sick have been greatly blessed. I hope to spend this year in the work.

Elder R. C. Evans, of the Seventy, present, reports:

In accordance with your appointment, have labored in the Dominion of Canada under the presidency of Bro. J. H. Lake. I have been constantly in the field since the 12th of June. Have labored to the best of my ability for the Master. I have travelled as wisdom directed and circumstances would permit. Have labored in nearly every branch in the mission. Have made some new openings. Have had two discussions; one with a Mr. Sims, of City of Brantford; proposition: "Water baptism is essential to salvation." I affirmed, he denied. We had a good time; good was accomplished. The other with a Mr. Darby, in the Free Thought Hall, St. Thomas. (1st proposition) "Resolved that Joseph Smith sanctioned and practiced polygamy." Darby affirmed; I denied. (2d proposition) "Resolved that God through the Bible sanctioned polygamy." Much good was accomplished; many friends were made for the work and a mountain of prejudice removed. I have blessed 17 children; preached 170 times; baptized 43; ordained 1 priest, and assisted to ordain brother Leverton to a seventy, also assisted to ordain two elders. Hope to labor on till victory comes.

Elder H. N. Hansen, of the Seventy, reports from Weston, Iowa:

Being under an appointment by last General Conference to labor in Pottawattamie District, Iowa, send a report of my labor. Though cares of a temporal nature have engaged much of my time and attention, I have been able to do some work for the Master, through which I have realized the blessings of God. My labors have been confined to five different localities preaching nearly every Sabbath and sometimes through the week. I have baptized ten, confirmed, or assisted in their confirmation; ordained one elder; blessed several children; administered to the sick, and solemnized four marriages, I am acting president of the Pottawattamie district; also have charge of Hazel Dell branch. I find good opportunities for preaching both in branches and new places, and have many more calls than I can fill. My heart is still in the work, and I desire to continue to battle for truth until the victory be gained.

Elder Peter Anderson, of the Seventy, reports from Logan, Utah:

Since last reporting to you, I have endeavored to further the work in this difficult mission as God has given me aid. The results of my efforts I trust will be more visible in the near future. If some reliable and competent man would take the responsibility of editing the Danish publication, I would be able to do a more effective work as far as preaching is concerned; but if not, I shall continue on as heretofore, if the necessary financial aid can be had; as the Banner appears to me indispensable to keep up the work among the Scandinavians.

As I have informed the secretary of my quorum, I am willing to continue in this mission if you so decide.

Elder E. C. Briggs, of the Twelve, present reports:

Since my last report I have done the best I could in the ministry, have labored in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and made a short visit to Wheeling, West Virginia. Have been blessed in presenting the word of life, and have received many evidences of the truth of the gospel as restored in the day of preparation that the bride may make herself ready. Circumstances here prevented my visiting the eastern part of the mission which I regret very much. I desire to bring to your notice that Council Bluffs, Iowa, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, and southern Indiana ought especially to have an able ministry provided and sent by this Conference. Our very able and talented brother McDowell who has done so much good in western Iowa, has left Council Bluffs; he ought to be succeeded by a brilliant doctrinal preacher, or the advantage ground gained will suffer loss. The last year's experience has been but renewed evidences to me that God will ultimately establish peace in the earth, and nought but the pure and good shall have place there.

For years I have been laboring that my time might be wholly devoted to the ministry. That time has now come, so that my obligations to my family may not accuse me of denying the faith, and those I am indebted to will all be satisfied that I have acted in good faith. The criticisms upon my motives and acts have not been hid. I have noted them all, and I am happy to say to this conference I am with you to stay, and not to compromise principles, but to make persistent effort for the right, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Elder Henry Kemp, of the Seventy, present reports:

Since your last conference I have labored agreeably to appointment in south western Iowa, principally in the Fremont district; have devoted my entire time to the interest of the work in preaching the gospel and administering in its sacred ordinances. I have had great reason to rejoice in the goodness of God, for his blessing has attended my labors during the year that is past; much prejudice has been removed and many souls have been made to rejoice in hearing the glad tidings of great joy, as revealed in the gospel of peace. I have baptized sixteen in the year. The elders and officers of the district, as a general thing, have done the best they could under the circumstances in which they have been placed. We have some of God's noble sons and daughters, who are willing to show by their works as well as faith, that they love the cause they have espoused. We were considerably aided and much benefitted by the efficient labors of elder Gillen, also E. L. Kelley and E. C. Briggs. Bro. E. C. having located his family at Shenandoah in the district, has been a great help, and his labors have been appreciated, especially by the Saints. Brother Blair's visit to our last quarterly conference was very opportune, the Saints and friends were more then pleased; and much benefitted through the preaching of the word, and the wise counsels given.

My heart is in the work and I have an earnest desire to labor for its interest, for the salvation of the souls of men, for the spread of the truth, and the building up of the kingdom of God on the earth.

Elder E. M. Wildermuth, of the Seventy, reports from Nebraska City, Nebraska:

I have been able to do but little preaching since my last report one year ago; but I love the work with all my heart, and will go into the active ministerial field whenever and wherever your honorable body so desires.

Elder W. H. Kelley, of the Twelve, present, reports:

At your last session I was assigned to Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, the New England States and Nova Scotia, in conjunction with Bro. Edmund C. Briggs. I soon entered upon the duties of the mission, my labors being confined mainly to Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania. A combination of circumstances arose which debarred me from making a contemplated tour through York State, New England and Nova Scotia. For some time I have felt an urgent necessity for some one to visit the latter place but we failed to reach it. Brother Briggs thought to make the trip when here, but did not succeed.

When the work of repairing was renewed on the Temple, some time in August, it claimed a good share of my time, and for a much longer time than I had hoped. The work once began and contributions coming in periodically and slowly the time was unduly prolonged, leaving us anxious and in doubt sometimes, as to which would be the most expedient to attempt to do much or little, or nothing. This, with other unforeseen duties which arose, had a tendency to localize us for the time and there was no way clear but to resign to the inevitable. Seemingly inactive but on a strain of work and care all the time. This will explain a want of promptness in communications to members who may have thought they were intentionally neglected.

There has been far more prose than poetry in the repairing of the Temple; and once under headway there was no place to stop without disbanding and failing—leaving the building in a worse condition than if naught had been done to it, so far as practical use was concerned—in a good degree squandering the means which had already been expended. It became necessary to advance funds to tide over from one incoming donation to another or abandon the work. This devolved upon the chairman of the committee; and at times was a difficult task.

We have put in a busy and hard year's work, but in some respects not satisfactory to ourself, and possibly so to others. Good and cheering reports come from various parts of the mission field, east, west, north and south; and co-laborers have industriously defended the truth and gained members and prestige in its favor. The Wyoming, Pennsylvania, and Southern Indiana districts are all the ones but what a commendable condition of things is reported. Brethren E. Davis and W. E. Peak have put forth a persistent effort in the former place, and Brn. James, Moses, Monroe, and Leonard Scott have labored with some success in the latter. The work and efforts of brethren H. Rathbun, B. V. Springer, C. Scott, J. J. Cornish and others in Michigan are highly commended; as are those of Brn. John Smith, Frank M. Sheehy, M. H. Bond and others in New England, T. J. Beatty L. R. Devore, and James Moler in Southern Ohio, and G. T. Griffiths. Richard Salyards, James Brown and others in the Kirtland and Pittsburg District. The work in Southern Indiana has suffered some from the disaffection of Bro. Harbert Scott; I visited him in person to ascertain what the difficulty was, with a view to help him out of it; but he had taken a very decided stand, and flatters himself with the idea that he will be able to show the faith to be false—Book of Mormon and all. He had not his plans, motives, or evidences all out, so we had a friendly visit with him, heard some of his reasons, studied his temper, etc., and left him to perfect his plans for a test. Brother Harbert is not a bad meaning man but is a little cloudy just now. While in the district I thought it advisable to encourage Bro. Leonard Scott to enter the missionary field permanently and good reports come from the places where he has labored. It is proper to say that Bro. E. L. Kelley has been almost a constant laborer in this mission and has been of great service in helping to guide the work done on the Temple—representing the Bishop as committeeman in that work.

Viewing the field all over, the work that has been accomplished—the prospects, the spirit and temper of the Saints and people, the outlook for the church is most encouraging. The cause is gradually winning its way to the joy of the truth-loving and dismay of the crafty old religionists, who have a determined purpose and are married to their idols. Now and then one is plucky enough to whet up his sword and attempt a defense of their old systems, but they scarcely ever repeat it.

We also take great pleasure in the thought that here is Kirtland, where the ire of the enemy was once aroused, and a heated persecution gave disquiet and unrest of the Saints we have been able to occupy in peace and maintain the respect of the citizens, and at the same time preach the faith. God is certainly opening the way for the maintaining of his cause, and making it possible for Zion to be inhabited. A restored land and restored temple in the work of the reorganization is indicative of her work in organization, restoration in and of spiritual things as well as temporal, and answers to the declaration that "Zion shall be reinhabited." May the good work go on until God's purpose in sending the latter day evangel shall have been accomplished. I am in the faith and in the field.

Elder D. S. Mills, of the High Priests, present, reports:

As a missionary under appointment from your body at last session, I herewith submit the following. Have labored almost continuously in Southern California district, over which I have presided for several years; and which I have the pleasure as delegate to represent here. Have given my time to the work, and labored beyond my own strength—and much of the time have only kept up on borrowed strength received from the Lord, on whose arm I have not leaned in vain; both while declaring the word, in teaching, in counseling, and in all my ministrations; in many marked instances of healing the sick, of casting out devils, in interpretation of tongues, in discerning of spirits, in visions, in spiritual dreams—and in turning honest hearted souls to Christ; for all of which I give praise to the Lord. He has strengthened me in my weakness, by thus confirming the word by signs following. The Saints under my charge are firm in the faith, well united, and are growing; and as a body have been blessed by keeping the temporal, as well as spiritual law of God. No Courts of Elders have been called for at our conference; the local officers are alive and active in their duties generally; our Sunday Schools are well attended and very interesting—being a power for good. Zion's Hope is well patronized by them, and highly appreciated, but in every branch and every Sunday School, we have to use the Gospel Hymns too much, for the want of a tune book of our own, thus suffering loss by it. Again, we need another publication, medium between the Hope and the Herald—that our young men and maidens may be better instructed and fitted for life work as they step forward to take our places. My experience has probably been that of others, where the father is absent from home for years; the want of a father's training is often felt, and the elder's children suffer loss; as the over-taxed mother too often fails to hold control, and needs every aid that can be extended to her to fully qualify her for discharging these most important obligations which have a telling effect on the rising generation—they have a claim upon us, which we can not ignore, and the experience and counsels of those who are qualified to give it, would if placed in their inexperienced hands, be a boon highly appreciated by the daughters of Zion and the mother's in Israel. The Mothers' Home Column is more valuable than gold—it is lifting heavy burdens, cheering and giving new life and hope to the weary, worn and despairing ones, who oft shed bitter tears of sorrow in their loneliness as they appeal to God for aid, and for strength to help them bear the responsibilities which the husband and father is not there to share in. Branch officers can not fill this want; it requires an experienced, wise, loving woman to do it. We have those that can do it, and I pray they may be helped to do this (to my mind) very important work. It is an old saying, that ministers' sons are the hardest cases. This ought not to be a proverb among us. I ask pardon for this seeming digression from ordinary rules of report; but I feel deeply moved upon it, and believe it will soon be provided for by a publication that can be placed in every family of Saints.

We have in my district several able elders, who ought to be entirely in the field, as the needs of the work demand it. Never was there such a call for preaching there, as at present; this is the golden opportunity, I hope it will be improved. In our district are five noted watering places where thousands go to stay through warm weather; and being camped, afford an excellent opportunity for preaching. The Saints have raised the money, and Bro. E. J. French has made a tent suitable to seat 300 persons. With this we can reach these places, and also cities and towns where hall rent is too high—with Bro. Heman C. Smith I expect to travel with it—as long as he remains there; and then others will aid me. Q. S. Sparks, well known in our early church history has returned from his long wanderings, and has put on the harness for life I believe; he bears a strong testimony to the work. Bro. Heman C. Smith has named the laborers there under this conference appointment, so I will only confirm his report of them, and say we feel very grateful to you, for sending him to us; he is the right man in the right place, and is highly esteemed by the Saints, as well as many outsiders; is doing a good work, and our district conference has asked you to continue him there. The report of the Secretary will show a fair increase in membership, but I must say it takes more than double the preaching to get people to obey in California than in this eastern country, but they make good ones when they do get them. We would like you to send more help to us if you can. I can not find words to express my gratitude to God and to his Saints for kindness to me, and I expect to spend the rest of my days in the work; or as long as God wants me, and his holy Spirit and your body shall direct to labor. I know God owns and blesses this church and that it will triumph—no power in earth or hell can stay it—and all heaven is on our side. May we all ever continue to work together with each other and with God, being one as the Father and the son are one, till we arrive to the stature of Christ is the prayer of your co-laborer.

Elder Charles Derry, High Priest, reports from Magnolia, Iowa:

During the past year I have tried to do my duty by laboring in the field appointed me. I have the satisfaction to know that my labors have been blest, and I have been blest in them. It is true I have not baptized any, but I have ploughed the ground, sown the seed, and others have watered, and the real increase is the Lord's; and to him be the glory. I have tried to administer humbly and faithfully in all the duties pertaining to my calling wherever and whenever my duty called. I am not weary. To me it is a work of faith and a labor of love. I expect to end my days in the cause, if God deems me worthy. I have reported to the Quorum of the Twelve and also to the Bishop. And if thought worthy to be continued in the missionary field, I shall still try to labor for the triumph of the Redeemer's cause. The prospects in my field are favorable. There is a growing interest, which alarms the churches of the day, and which their ministers are trying to discourage in a quiet manner; but the people who have the courage to listen are compelled to think, and the result is that professed Christian and avowed infidel declare it "the grandest doctrine they ever heard."

One word about the Whitmer controversy: My observation as to its effects on the minds of the members of the church proves that its results are and must be good, while every right minded Saint deplores the necessity for it, and is sorry that the only surviving witness to the Book of Mormon should allow himself to occupy the position he does. But it has called forth the history of the rise and progress of the church for the first years of its existence, and the real facts that led to Whitmer's rupture with the church, so that thousands who otherwise would not have been likely to have been acquainted with that history are acquainted with the facts, and through those facts they learn the true spirit and genius of this great work as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever must be, until it has accomplished its mission of love and mercy to men. By this means they are strengthened. Some there were who trembled at the first shock coming from such a source as it did; but they quickly recovered when they saw him "weighed in the balance" and "found wanting." And their understanding is enlarged, their faith strengthened, and their hopes brightened. So mote it ever be. I am satisfied from a long experience that the vale of humility is always the safest for the child of God to walk in. Pride and ambition are the rocks on which the hopes and joys of countless millions have been wrecked, from Lucifer down. Nor can it be otherwise, for "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." "Thus saith the High and Lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy, I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones."

Elder L. R. Devere, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since my appointment by last April Conference to labor in the South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia district, have wrought in the Clarksburg and Cabin Run branches, West Virginia. At Coalton, Pine, Limerick, Center Point and Downardsville, Jackson county, Ohio. Vale's Mills and Wilksville in Vinton county. Buchanan, Morgantown and Elm Grove, in Pike county, and near Sinking Springs in Highland county, Ohio. Delivered in all 78 discourses, baptized 21, blessed a number of children, ordained 2 elders, 1 teacher and 2 deacons. Assisted Bro. T. J. Beatty in organizing one new branch in Highland county, and also to fully organize the Vinton branch in Ohio. On September 13th the office of a Seventy was laid upon me by Elder W. H. Kelley, at Vale's Mills, Ohio. Have had good liberty in a general way. Bro. T. J. Beatty, president of the district, was permitted to accompany me to a considerable extent. He is a wise counsellor, a congenial companion in travel, always ready to perform his share of the work, an able defender of the faith, and a man whom the church can trust to bear the message to the people. I make this request of the conference that if we (Bro. Beatty and I) are considered worthy of an appointment to a field of labor for the coming conference year, that that field be South-Eastern Ohio and West Virginia district, and also that we be associated in labor.

There is work in that field for a goodly number of diligent missionaries. The number of members in the district is nearing 400, and were they acquainted with their duty in a financial point of view toward the work, I believe it would be self-sustaining. They have prayed, (many of them), petitioned and hoped for months past to be visited by the Bishops, but we learn they have been diligent elsewhere. More doors are calling than the elders can respond unto in their present circumstances. The burden of the work in that field has been borne by the few. The elders have made the greatest sacrifice, besides giving much of their time, and traveling through the field to a great extent on foot, not having means to pay car fare always. Were it not for the promised reward to the faithful when the warfare is ended, there would be but little to induce one to labor as a number have.

I wish to aid in sowing the seed of the kingdom, that as the end is speedily approaching, many sheaves may be gathered thereby into the garner of the Lord. I love the work, and my aim shall be by the help of the good Father to roll on the work while life may be spared me.

Elder G. H. Hilliard, of the Seventy, reports from Jeffersonville, Illinois:

Since my appointment by the General Conference, last spring, I have done what I consistently could in the ministry. I generally leave home Saturdays, and get back Mondays, sometimes I am out a week or two at a time. I can not do any more under my circumstances. I have a large family to support and they need my help and attention most of the time. I could spend more of my time in the ministry if I had the means to hire help to run the farm. Crops have been poor here for several years past and we have hard work to make a living. I am still willing to work under the direction of the General Conference as I have been the past year, or do more if you think best to assist me some, or be dropped from General Conference appointment, and labor in the district as best I can. I want to do what I can to assist in the advancement of the cause. I am presiding over this district at present and hope to continue faithful in the covenant. I am fully satisfied the work is true. Praying that God may direct in all your deliberations, I am your servant.

Elder Alfred White, present, reported:

After leaving Lamoni, Iowa, your last place of sitting, I, in connection with brother I. N. White visited Spickardsville, in Grundy county, Missouri, and held a series of ten meetings with marked interest, then returning home I was requested by the district president to go to Tiblo, Kansas, some eighteen miles west of Kansas City. But after holding three services one of them in connection with Willard J. Smith and there being no interest manifest of note, I thought it wisdom to not continue longer so returned home. After remaining a few days, went to Holden in Johnson county, Missouri, and in connection with the district president (I. N. White) held a series of meetings with good interest attending. Having to attend to business, I did not preach any more until September. Then in connection with Bro. I. N. White held grove meeting in Henry county, Missouri, had very good interest shown. This Grove meeting was gotten up and expenses entirely met by those outside of the church. They sent word to the district president, offering to furnish the grove fitted up with seats and lights, and to lodge and board the preachers, while holding the meeting, free. Then, being requested of the district president to assist Bro. Joseph Luff to hold a series of meetings in Clinton, the county seat of Henry county, Missouri, I so assisted him by opening the meetings for him while he preached ten discourses; but there not being a desire shown on the part of the public to come and hear, we closed with the belief that if the labor had been done in some school house in the country there would have been more good accomplished. Then in November, December, January and February my labors were confined to St. Clair and Cedar counties, laboring with brethren E. Curtis, H. H. Robinson, W. S. Loar and I. N. White. Our combined labor in these two counties resulted in the bringing into the church by baptism of some twenty-five or thirty souls. I was much blessed in all these labors by the Spirit of God being given to me and my brethren. Ever praying that God may continue to bless his people, I remain your brother.

Elder I. N. White, of the Seventy, reports:

Having been appointed to a mission in Missouri and Kansas, I submit this report: My time has almost wholly been occupied in preaching the word. The brethren in this district have seen fit to call me to preside as president of district and my time has been all taken up in doing work exclusively in their territory. A number of calls outside have been made but I did not fill any. I held two public discussions and have baptized seventeen. Have had no great difficulty to obtain spiritual aid when living to merit it. I still wish to continue in the work as an active laborer. As my family grows in age, the more care and expence it is to me. This makes it necessary for me to labor in a field where I am located in a financial way. I think I can do work as before; can I be where I can occasionally look after the interest of my business, to a support of family.

Elder John S. Roth, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since my appointment I have labored in the field almost the entire time; about one half of it I labored in the Eastern Iowa district, and some in Davenport. Clinton, Canton, Nashville, Amber and Bennett. There are some noble Saints in this district, and many are investigating, and others are waiting baptism, and if conference could and would send one or two elders there to put in their entire time they could do a great work, for there is not one elder in the district that can give his time in the field. The rest of my time I labored in the Des Moines district, some in the branches, and also opening new places. I organized a branch in What Cheer, Keokuk county, which has eighteen members, and some more are interested. I opened one new place in Hardin county, and assisted in opening one, and I left quite a number investigating there, and some are very near the Kingdom. Many of the Saints in this district are alive to the work, both spiritually and temporally, and I find most of them take more interest in the finances of the church than they did a year since; but there are still a few, thank God, very few, of those chronic grumblers left there; but I hope they soon will become tired of it and quit. There is more help needed in that district, for I can not fill more than one-tenth of the calls for preaching which come from every side. The prospects have never been more flattering for gospel work than they are now in central and eastern Iowa, only we need help; and if conference deems me worthy I would again, the coming year, labor in the Des Moines and Eastern districts, if so appointed. During the year I baptized twelve, confirmed sixteen or seventeen, ordained two elders and two teachers, preached two funeral sermons, and assisted at several others, blessed fifteen or eighteen children, administered to the sick at various times, and performed such duties as pertained to my office. Did all I could in getting new subscribers, and old ones to renew for the church papers, and sold a number of our church books. My desire is to do all I can to spread this great work.

Elder J. C. Foss of the Seventy, reports from Cormorant, Minn:

Since my last report to the body my time has been continuously occupied in ministerial labor, up here in the north country. I find people here from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Ireland, Scotland, England, Wales, Germany, Americans, and the poor dark skinned Lamanite. Several of the latter were here this past winter from the Reservation, forty miles north of here; one led off a fat dog with him to cook and eat. When I learned of their eating dogs and rats, I turned to the Book of Mormon, (Enos 1:5), that "they became wild and ferocious, and blood-thirsty people, full of idolatry and filthiness; feeding upon beasts of prey." I felt I had an additional evidence of the divinity of the origin of the Book of Mormon, and felt very sorry for the poor ignorant souls. I wish if you have a good elder or priest that can speak the language of the above named foreigners, you would send him here at once, the battle goes hard—I need help. We need a good elder in the English language; will you please send us one? For the past year I have been preaching in new places, organized one branch, baptized eighteen. The local elders have done very well. Bro. T. J. Martin has of late been visiting the branches, and I learn has done a good work among them. I am willing to stay here till the cold winter sets in again; but I see no use of my staying here in the winter season, and can not then hold meetings. The past winter has been so severe that people could not go to meeting. I would go to the house and find no one there; and sometimes find a corporal's guard to talk to. I will, however, do the best I can until late next fall.

Elder W. T. Bozarth of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since last conference I have labored as best I could in the field assigned me, Iowa and Missouri. In the early part of the summer I went to Iowa, and labored for a while in the Des Moines district, in connection with brethren Roth and Nirk. In some places found good opportunities for preaching, and the Saints generally actively engaged in work. In this district I baptized two, and confirmed one. I assisted in holding two grove meetings there, and did other preaching and labor, sitting on one Elders' Court. From there I went into the Eastern Iowa district and attended the conference at Buffalo, where I was prevailed upon by the district to act as president for the next quarter. This district is not in a very good condition for lack of laborers, and of past difficulties there. I found some noble Saints there, and striving hard to honor the cause. 11 this district I had the assistance of Bro. J. S. Roth of Des Moines district also. I know of no district that stands more in need of labor than the Eastern Iowa. I labored in Davenport, Buffalo, Clinton, Amber, Bennett, also some just across the river in Rock Island and Moline. At Davenport I baptized one. Returning from Iowa I began labor in Missouri where I have spent the greater part of my time. I can say that I have never seen so great an interest in the cause there since I have been in the church. Where a few years ago we could not get a place to preach, now the people get the house and send us word that they want us to come and preach for them. I have more calls than I can possibly fill. There are a number in different places where I have been laboring that are near the kingdom, and I think soon there will be a good ingathering. One especial good feature is, that it is the leading classes of people that are now getting interested. I have been circulating the Voice of Warning sent me by Bro. Peters, and they are doing a good work. When I closed at some of my places of preaching to come to conference, the people did not want me to stop to come; and voted for me to come back and preach to them just as soon as I returned. I have baptized fifteen, confirmed eight, solemnized one marriage, and administered to a number of sick with good success generally, and some few the blessing was special. I desire to labor the coming year in Missouri for some special reason.

Elder G. S. Hyde, of the Seventy, reports from Little Sioux, Iowa:

"Having been appointed to labor in the South-Western Mission, I made haste to arrange my affairs and repair to that field. My labors there were reported in a general way in the Herald, hence I deem it unnecessary to reiterate what is already known. Arriving in Texas in June, in very hot weather, my health was threatened but I survived the change of climate, diet, etc., and was favored with very good health until the 20th of September, when the dengue fever prostrated me. This terrible disease has fastened itself upon my system and I have never recovered from it. I could hardly entertain the thought of leaving my mission field, lest I should displease God and prove recreant to the sacred trust reposed in me by the church. Yet I had no faith to be healed. A strong desire to return home seemed to take possession of me. I submitted the matter to God, telling him that if he would heal me, I would stay, but if it was my privilege to come home to give me testimony to that effect, which I received; so I returned.

The presidency of the church kindly granted me a mission in western Iowa, which I have endeavored to honor. Full houses have often greeted me and I have felt blessed in the divine ministrations. For two months past, however, sickness has compelled me to desist from labor. My lungs are in a state of constant irritation. Will the brethren pray for my recovery?

I am in fellowship with the doctrines and polity of the church. The editorship of the Herald I deem to be most excellent and the department of the "Home Column" indispensable to the good of the work. I long to be in the field at work for the Master; but whether I shall be so favored or the iron hand of affliction continue to bind me, is a serious problem.

In conclusion I wish to say that I am much indebted to that God-fearing man and noble brother, John A. Robinson, for help and comfort freely offered in the hours of my distress, when prostrate with fever and among strangers in the wilds of Texas.

Since the April conference I have baptized seven, solemnized one marriage; attended to confirmation and the blessing of children, administering to the sick, and such duties as are in purview of my calling. I fondly hope that the interest of the work will be conserved in the further filling of the Quorum of the Twelve and pray the Father to watch over the church and shield her tenderly by the angel of His presence.

Elder J. L. Bear, of the Seventy, reports from Agency, Missouri:

I am sorry to write that I was hindered from fulfilling my promise to labor for the cause last winter, through sickness in my family; but as I had no control over such circumstances, I had to resign to my fate and stay at home. God knows my heart is in the work, and I pray that the time may soon come when the way before me shall be open to spend the most of my time in the ministry. I have labored on Sabbath days in this neighborhood; but this is a hard place, people do not care much about religion, and no opportunities for preaching in the school-houses are obtainable. May the assistance of God's Holy Spirit be with you in your deliberations for the good of the work of God.

Miscellaneous.

IOWA AND MISSOURI MISSION.

To Whom it may Concern:—Having been reappointed to take charge of the above named mission for another year, I feel anxious that the best possible results should obtain. I trust that all the Saints will learn to dispense with every evil habit, as soon as possible, and make their bodies so pure that they may be fit temples for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. In this as well as in every other good thing, let the missionaries be a proper example "to all the flock." Call upon God daily for the guidance of His Spirit, and all will be well.

I can not tell you how well I am pleased that so many of the Saints are becoming willing to impart of their means for the benefit of the work as the law of God directs. Do not allow the love of the world, nor the ingenious tricks of the adversary to influence you in this important matter. Satan desires to keep us from performing this duty if he can, for by so doing he will not only hinder the work we love, but will bring to us loss and spiritual disaster. After a careful and prayerful investigation, I feel entirely safe in saying that no argument can be made against the practice of paying tithes, and offerings into the "Lord's store house," as held by the church, with either the Bible or sound reason to sustain it. However, for the want of a better understanding of the subject, it is quite possible that persons may hesitate to comply with this law. If there are any such in my charge, let them present their objections, or difficulties, to the Bishop's Agent, where they live; or in case he should, for any cause, fail to give them satisfaction, they can write to the Bishop, or the Missionary in charge, either of which will take pleasure in doing all he can to help them to see the right. Be sure that you have a greater love for the work of God than for self, and there is no danger but what you will come out all right.

As the work spreads and the demands increase, it becomes more and more necessary that we should throw method into our labors. I therefore request all the missionaries in this field to report their labors to the missionary in charge. Let the reports be brief, but sufficiently explicit to convey all that is needed. Tell me where you have labored, what you have done, what the prospects are, etc., etc. In order to bring about uniformity of action, as nearly as possible, let the reports be made out and sent to me about the 15th days of the months of June, September, December and March. In your March reports be sure and state whether you are willing to take the field for another year; what field you prefer, if you were allowed to choose; the smallest amount of money required to support your family, together with the actual number of its members dependent upon you for support. All this will be a benefit to the work, but must not be construed as interfering with or taking the place of any rule of the general church.

It is understood that Bro. Joseph Luff will be in charge in the regions where he may labor; and that Bro. J. W. Gillen is in charge in the St. Louis District. These brethren may be consulted by branch and district authority, when their services are needed.

Do not allow jealousy to have any place in your hearts. The more able a fellow minister is, the more thankful we should feel to God. Respect every officer and member of the church in the exercise of his prerogatives and duties. The order which been given to us is divine; therefore, the more strictly we adhere to it, the better will be the results.

My permanent address is Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa. Those who are not missionaries will please remember to send stamps when they write.

Dear brethren, let us strive to be wise, diligent and faithful, giving evidence to God and the spiritual minded among his people that we are worthy of the important trust which has been reposed in us.

Your co-worker for Christ,

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT,
Missionary in Charge.

VERMILION, Ill., May 2d, 1887.

We publish the following by request:
RESOLUTION OF THE MANCHESTER DISTRICT CONFERENCE,
11th April, 1887.

Whereas, The truthfulness of Elder Joseph Dewsnup, the president of this district, has been assailed in a letter written by Elder T. E. Jenkins, of Wales (by request of the Welsh Mission conference) and published in the Saints' Herald, December 11th, 1886, page 777; therefore, be it Resolved, That this (the Manchester District) conference considers the attack unjustifiable, and deeply regrets that Elder Jenkins should have so misinterpreted the meaning of Elder J. Dewsnup's communication, as to make it appear to in any way reflect upon the conduct of the officials of the Welsh Mission; which we know to be quite the opposite to his (Elder Dewsnup's) intention.

We the Elders of this (the Manchester district) do therefore, hereby express our unabated confidence in the truthfulness and integrity of Elder Joseph Dewsnup; and sustain him as the presiding elder of this district; and forward this resolution for publication in the Saints' Herald.

Moved by Elder James Baty, seconded by Elder W. R. Armstrong, and carried by unanimous vote. Elder John Austin in the chair.

BISHOP'S AGENT.

Bro. J. T. Richards having been recommended to me for my agent for North East Missouri district by the late conference held, instead of Bro. T. J. Williams, resigned, I therefore appoint him as my agent for said district, and recommend him to the Saints as such, and ask that the Saints may uphold him by their prayers and means, for the spread of the gospel.

Your brother in Christ,
G. A. BLAKESLEE, Bishop.

The church was tastefully decorated, the bridal party neatly and becomingly attired, and the ceremony impressive. Every seat in the chapel was filled at the appointed hour, and after retiring from the chapel a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents. About sixty invitations were out, and the representation in response was in number and character to crowd the house and do justice to the sumptuous repast prepared. Happier events and occasions seldom occur. Quite a number of beautiful and valuable presents were made to the happy pair, among which was a deed for the bride to a beautiful residence lot in Vernon place, from her father. All admit that Melissa has secured an excellent husband; all agree that Rudolph has been especially fortunate in securing a jewel for a wife, and all unite in wishing them a long life in which to enjoy their new estate. May the blessings of heaven qualify them to grace the new sphere as nobly and well as they have done their separate spheres in the past.

Mabon was born March 22, 1846, in Kane county, Illinois, and was married January 26, 1862. She moved to Iowa in 1869, casting her lot with us, cheerfully doing her part, always ready to encourage and assist the suffering and afflicted. Mr. Mabon and his sons are especially thankful to kind friends and neighbors in this their greatest grief and affliction for their help and sympathy." COM.

She was born January 15th, 1860, and was therefore at the date of her death aged 27 years, 2 months and 19 days. She was baptized by Elder W. W. Blair, October 20th, 1872, and every day of her life lived a faithful Saint of the Most High. Her whole life was spent in endeavoring to please God. No harsh or unpleasant word ever escaped her lips and her many lovable qualities secured her a large circle of admiring friends. Her influence for good reached beyond the pale of the church. She never regretted the choice she had made in uniting with the Saints. Her pure mind seemed always filled with beautiful thoughts expressed in refined language. Her beautiful life was unstained by sin. She made no great outward display of her religion, but at the close of each day, before retiring to rest, she knelt in secret prayer before God, consequently her life was beautiful and lovely, and she could see nothing but the good in everybody and in everything around; affectionate to her parents, to whom she was most dear. She transferred the beauties of her pure mind to the canvass which still remains with them as living memories. Too good for this world, when the divine Master called, with a willing and obedient heart, without a murmur, she was resigned to His will, and fell into her dreamless sleep. She had not yet reached the zenith of life, but passed away with the golden sunbeams of a useful life streaming upon her. To her all seasons were summer, and every day sunshine. Her death was as sweet as her life had been beautiful. It pleased God to remove the veil of obscurity, and she was permitted to look over into the world beyond. At one time after lying for several hours in a seemingly death coma, she called her father to her bedside and told him she had seen Agnes and little Abby, (two sisters that had passed on before), and that they were, Oh, so happy, and everything looks so beautiful. For the whole time during the last two days of her life she seemed to be constantly communing with the heavenly ones, and to continually view the beauties of the spirit world. On another occasion she exclaimed, "Oh, papa; look! look! Oh, how beautiful everything appears! Yes; sweetly and without a struggle she fell asleep in Jesus to await the resurrection of the just. Funeral services were conducted by Elder J. A. Robinson of Peoria, Illinois.

One sweet flower has drooped and faded,
One dear child-like voice has fled,
One fair brow, the grave has shaded,
One dear sister now is dead.
But we feel no thought of sadness,
For we know she's happy now;
She has knelt in heartfelt gladness
Where the blessed angels bow.
She has gone to heaven before us,
But she turns and waves her hand,
Pointing to the glories o'er us,
In that happy spirit land.

JOSEPH SMITH . . . . . EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR . . . . . ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, May 28, 1887.

BRO. H. P. BROWN, sends a letter in regard to the matter presented to conference by Bro. Heman C. Smith in reference to the holding of property by the church in California. We publish the letter, not for the purpose of raising a controversy between Brn. Brown and Smith, for it is possible that there is a misunderstanding, as suggested by Bro. Brown. Bro. Smith's object was to call attention to the matter for obvious and prudential reasons, and we see no necessity for any feeling about the matter, on Bro. Brown's part.

We are of the opinion that the inquiry asked for by Bro. Smith should be made; for the reason that the church is acquiring property in houses of worship in many states; and if there is a dissimilarity of laws in these different states, it is but just that the church, especially the Bishop should be informed in relation to them, in California as well. We have been under the impression that the church could hold property in different states as provided for in the Articles of Incorporation; but in this we may have been in error. It is true that any body of people can hold by trustee, as suggested by Bro. Brown; but whether the church can hold in the corporate names as required by Articles of Incorporation remains the subject of inquiry.

The question was asked of us at the time the Oakland branch was incorporated, whether it did not involve the creation of a new and separate organization. We replied that we thought no such thing was contemplated by the brethren there; and that we did not see that such was the necessary result. Nor do we now; but as there are several places in California where there are houses of worship other than Oakland, in which the title is held in accordance with the Articles of Incorporation, it is time that the matter be inquired into; and if the church has been proceeding improperly, the mistake may be recti-fied in a legal manner. It is now simply an affair for inquiry and of fact; there will therefore be no need for controversy or bad feeling over it.

WHAT HAS THE REORGANIZATION DONE?

It has saved the faith of hundreds in original Mormonism.

It has proved that evil, wrong doing, crime, and debauchery do not justly belong in the faith and practice to Latter Day Saints.

It has restored the confidence of hundreds in their fellow men, and shown that a man may be clothed upon with the priesthood, or authority to act in the name of Christ, without being given to evil practices by which his fellows are wronged and defrauded.

It has sent its elders into nearly all parts of the United States where the early elders of the church had gone, and there set about the work of redeeming the name of the church from the odium cast upon it by the advocates and practitioners of polygamy.

It has won respect for its doctrines in those places where its elders have been heard.

It is spreading the doctrines of primitive Mormonism in every place where elders can go, and in doing this it has made clear the difference between Utah Mormonism and the primitive faith of the church.

It has built up, since 1860, over four hundred branches, extending from Maine to New Mexico, and from Oregon to Florida, in England, Wales, Tahiti and Australia.

It has made the name of Latter Day Saint honorable in places where it was a hiss and a byword, and has been the instrument of fulfilling the word of the Lord, "and ye shall find favor in the eyes of the people."

It has so wrought that its Elders are able to stand up in defence of its truths without a cringing sense of shame of the name they bear.

It has kept its public pledges to advocate the truth and insist that honesty is not only the best, but is the only policy that will establish men.

It has an almost empty treasury, but its Bishopric can sleep in peace, because their coffers hold no ill gotten gains, and its officers do not fear the just complaint of wronged and oppressed comrades.

It has built no temples, but it has gathered together bands of believers into the "regions round about," who have no "milk of the Gentiles" to turn sour on their hands.

It has consecrated the individual labors of hundreds of faithful, honest men, but has not "consecrated" the wealth of others, nor of the "cattle on a thousand hills," without giving an equivalent in honest compensation therefor.

It has built "houses of worship" in places where its members dwell, and where they have sung, prayed, and worshiped God after the manner their neighbors call heresy, but have maintained their integrity during it all.

It is carefully and steadily gaining ground everywhere, and the "Lord confirms the word."

It has built up a publishing house worth many thousands of dollars, and is using it to spread the truth.

It has published and given to the Saints and the world, "In the own due time of the Lord" the Inspired Translation of the Holy Scriptures, the most valuable uncompleted (incomplete in the sense that it was not published in his lifetime) work of Joseph the Martyr.

It has placed the Scriptures, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants before the world, as containing the word of God, and has maintained them there honorably and consistently.

It has through the instrumentality of those agencies which God sometimes employs to bring his purposes to pass, discovered and placed before the Saints and the public, what is evidently the long lost "Manuscript Found," which the opposers of the latter day work have so industriously urged as the origin of the Book of Mormon; and which is proved to be a clumsy attempt to account for the settlement of this, or some other land, by a class of mariners cast away from their vessel which was lost. By making this discovery and publishing the manuscript the Reorganization has definitely shown that the Book of Mormon did not originate with Rev. Solomon Spaulding.

It has so labored and so lived, that the places whence the Saints were driven in the years gone by are open to their return, and the inhabitants thereof are asking the Saints to come in and dwell with them, thereby making practicable the fulfillment of the prophecy, which states that the "waste places of Zion shall be rebuilt."

It has made a happy and a smiling people of those cast down, oppressed with care and well nigh hopeless.

It is driving out the spirit of unrest and disquiet, so long resident in the hearts of Saints, and is filling its place with rest and quiet, causing them to begin to drive the corner stakes, plant the hearth stones, and raise the roof trees of permanent homes in which "Zion, the pure in heart," may dwell in peace and safety; and by God's blessing they will continue to do this, until "Zion and her borders be full."

It is striving in all its parts to make the name of Saint honorable, its faith permanent, and its practices lawful; and although there are, in places, contention and strife, they are in contravention and disregard of rule, not in accordance with it.

It has won a standing place in the arena of the world's great strife, and has demonstrated that its advocates are worthy to "fight the good fight of the faith," unto success.

It has, by dint of the "perseverance of the Saints," gained so great coigns of vantage against the common enemy, that those not of the faith are gladly willing that the elders shall defend the Christian philosophy against the assaults of unbelief.

It has restored the only Temple built by the Saints and accepted of God, after those who claimed to be true defenders of the latter-day-work had left it to be desecrated by careless and indifferent hands, a place for the bats and a shelter for sheep.

It has provided, by precept and example, that loyalty to the commands of God given to the church does not require men to be disloyal to the government which God caused to be "instituted" for the very purpose of the development of his church.

It has so far kept the commands of the Lord that they who are bearing the burden of the ministry have confidence to approach Him and ask that they be further directed in their work; and they are encouraged in their work by the fact that He hears and answers their requests.

Those who are looking on and denouncing us for not doing more, may read this with profit, and be content.

The above enables the Saints to see that the "kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal;" and that its work of enlightening and converting souls is still blessed of God.

It likewise proves that the Saints, though not of the world, may yet live in the world, and be preserved, prospered, honored and blessed, if they are just and faithful.

The church of the living God is moving. Let the Saints take courage and go forward to victory, triumphing in the Lord.

"IN THE ARK," OR "IN THE SIDE OF THE ARK."

BRO. K. H. HANSEN, of Gravel Ford, Oregon, sends us the clipping below, from the Gospel Sickle, and requests us to comment thereon:

"Our English version of the Bible says that the law of Moses was written in a book, and placed 'in the side of the ark of the covenant.' The learned Dr. Horne has these remarks on this passage:—

"Previously to the building of Solomon's Temple, the Pentateuch was deposited by the side of the ark of the covenant, (Deut. 31: 24-26), to be consulted by the Israelites; and after the erection of the sacred edifice, it was deposited in the treasury."

"On the phrase, 'by the side of the ark,' he has the following foot-note:—

"So it should be rendered, not in the side of the ark.—See Dr. Kennicott's Dissertations 2, page 298."

"The emphasis in both cases is his. 'Horne's

Introduction,' vol. 1, part 1, chap. 2, p. 200. This still more forcibly shows the distinction between the law of God and the law of Moses,—one was put in the ark, the other by the side of the ark."

The evident intention of the "Sickle" is to make a distinction between "the law of Moses" and "the law of God," and to prove the former to be inferior to the latter. But his quotation from Dr. Horne does not help his position; for what was "put in the ark"—the tables of the law—were also in the Pentateuch which "was deposited by the side of the ark of the covenant;" so that the ten commandments were in fact in both places.

It was wisdom that the ten commandments and the statutes and judgments thereunder should be more accessible than they would have been if placed in the ark of the covenant. This was a mere matter of convenience. But the ten commandments in the Pentateuch "deposited by the side of the ark of the covenant" were none the less holy by reason of the place in which they were put; nor were the same commandments any more holy when placed in the ark of the covenant; and only a superstitious mind or a wild theorist would seek to make them so. God gave all the law given by Moses; hence it was all God's law.

"This Ezra went up from Babylon; and he was a ready scribe in the law of Moses, which the Lord God of Israel had given." Of this "law" King Artaxerxes said: "And thou, Ezra, after the wisdom of thy God, that is in thine hand, set magistrates and judges, which may judge all the people that are beyond the river, all such as know the laws of thy God; and teach ye them that know them not."—Ezra 7:6, 25.

Nehemiah, a faithful servant of God, held and taught this same view: "They clave to their brethren, their nobles, and entered into a curse, and into an oath, to walk in God's law, which was given by Moses the servant of God; and to observe and do all the commandments of the Lord our God, and his judgments and statutes."—Neh. 10: 29.

Jesus taught that the law of the ten commandments was "Moses' law": "If a man on the Sabbath day receive circumcision without breaking the law of Moses, are ye angry at me because I have made a man every whit whole on the Sabbath day?"—John 7: 23. (See also John 8: 3-5; and Mal. 4. 4). This law for Sabbath keeping and adultery was based upon, and was a part of the ten commandments written upon tables of stone by the finger of God, deposited in the ark of the covenant, and frequently denominated "Moses' law."

Moses was a law-giver, but only in the sense that he gave forth the law which God gave to and through him; and for this reason such law is sometimes called "the law of the Lord," and "Moses' law."

It is further evident that the Sickle would attach special holiness, pre-eminence, authority, and perpetuity, to "the law of the tables" placed "in the side of the ark of the covenant." But far greater teachers have shown that law to be inferior and of secondary importance; for when a Jewish lawyer said to Jesus,

"Master, which is the great commandment of the law?" Jesus said unto him, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first [in importance] and great commandment. And the second is like unto it—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."—Matt. 22: 36-40. And neither of these commandments were written in the tables of stone deposited "in the side of the ark;" but they were written in the Pentateuch deposited "by the side of the ark of the covenant." In proof see Deut. 6: 5, and Lev. 19: 18.

Whoever will read carefully, and without bias, Christ's sermon on the mount, Matthew, chapters 5, 6, and 7, will soon perceive its superiority over "the law of Moses," either that which was written upon tables of stone, or what followed thereupon.

Christ well knew his disciples would perceive a wide difference between his teachings and those of Moses, and in order not to throw discredit upon nor disparage the latter in their estimation, he said to them: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil."—Matt. 5: 17. Jesus endorsed, honored, and observed "Moses and the prophets," yet he gave a covenant and a law that was as much superior to them as is the sun superior to the moon in its power to enlighten and to bless. All honor, then, to Moses' law, whether "in the ark" or "by the side of the ark;" but greater honor be to Him who hath purchased eternal redemption for us, who hath entered into heaven itself and has become our pattern, our pledge, our righteousness, and our redemption.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE have received from Elder David Whitmer, of Richmond, Mo., the pamphlet heretofore referred to as about being issued by him, in which he is supposed to state his views in regard to the church, its doctrine, philosophy, organization, and powers, etc. It is entitled "An Address to all Believers in Christ, by a Witness to the Divine Authenticity of the Book of Mormon." We have given this "Address" a partial reading; and recommend the elders to secure a copy that what it is may be seen and noted. We shall, if it becomes necessary, put the matters in the "Address" into examination. In the meantime let those who may feel interested give the subject matter what consideration they may deem it entitled to.

The local ministry of the Lamoni branch were many of them at work in the "regions round about," on Sunday the 15th of May; Bro. W. W. Blair was at St. Joseph, Missouri; Bro. Thomss Bell at the Rama school-house, in Missouri; Bro. B. V. Springer at Davis City, and Bro. John Shippy at the Fowler school-house; Bro. J. Smith spoke in the Brick Chapel in the morning and Bro. J. H. Hansen in the evening, at the same place. There is a growing determination that the neighborhood opportunities shall not be neglected; and it is certain that an excellent liberty is enjoyed by those who are in this way letting their light shine. Bro. Blair reports a good hearing at St. Joseph.

Bro. Isaac Hogaboom writes from Bloomington, Charles Mix county, Dakota, April 8th, that they had had a very dry season and hard winter; but that the winter wheat, rye and other crops of small grain were looking well. He had been talking to the people in several of the school houses around his place of dwelling, there is a good disposition to hear, and he thinks that some would obey if this labor were properly followed up.

Bro. Jasper M. Tousley, of Chester, Illinois, wrote May 12th, that they were still trying to keep the faith before the people of the southern part of the state, and that they were now accorded a hearing where but a few years ago they were threatened with being mobbed. So rapidly do the changes come in favor of the faithful who sincerely try to do that which God commands, that we no sooner hear good news from one region than we hear a similar report from another part of the great field.

Bro. Warren Turner of Clinton, Iowa, sends five dollars for tracts to distribute in Clinton and vicinity. He says Bro. Oden Jacobs of Leland, Illinois, passed through there on his way to Radcliffe, Iowa.

Bro. S. J. Jeffers of Vales Mills, Ohio, volunteers to procure subscribers for church papers and other publications. In this way he can aid the work solidly and most acceptably, and so can others if they will. No one should let an opportunity slip to aid as best they can.

We see by a late Lucas (Iowa) Recorder, that Bro. D. S. Mills preached in that city during last week and over the following Sunday, May 15th. From thence he started on his journey west.

Bro. David McGoan, of Waukon, Iowa, aged seventy-five years, writes for pamphlets and tracts with which to advance the latter day work where he resides. He says when he located there three years ago the people shunned him, but that now they treat him with kindness, and he hopes some of them may soon be caught in the gospel net.

Bro. F. M. Cooper writes from East Delavan, Wisconsin, the 16th, inst., that "a few have been baptized; others are on the threshold of the kingdom."

We publish the death of Bro. Wheeler Baldwin, of Stewartville, Missouri, with regret. Bro. Baldwin was one of the earliest to obey the call from death unto life upon the restoration of the gospel in these last days, and shared the good and the evil fortunes of the church, from its organization, or the conference held at Amherst, through the Missouri troubles, the Nauvoo driving, and the subsequent sorrows that the church was called to meet. He was with father Cutler when the Reorganization found him, and soon united with us, and has been a consistent believer until his death. He has gone "like a shock of corn fully ripe for the harvest."

FREE TRACTS.—We are now prepared to furnish tracts free for distribution. Care should be used that none go to waste, but that they be placed "where they will do the most good." A wise selection prudently used, will go far in aiding the ministry of the word and the building up of the church. Send up your orders to D. Dancer, box 82, Lamon, Decatur county, Iowa.

BRO. C. D. STEVENS, of Grand Rapids, Holt county, Nebraska, sends us the following pleasing testimony to the Book of Mormon received by him.

A Vision. On or about the 15th of November, 1886, I received the following vision, after having for several years earnestly prayed for a testimony of the authenticity of the Book of Mormon. I told the Lord that I wanted a testimony that could not be impeached. After retiring, I found myself in a large and well fitted room. It was neat and handsome in appearance; very long and narrow, with a partition running across through the center of the building, with an open space at one side of the room through the partition like a large doorway. In this doorway stood a beautiful table, or stand. There appeared in this doorway and near this table a personage having in his hand the plates of the Book of Mormon. The appearance of these plates was between the color of bright gold and slightly colored brass. The volume he held in his hand had three rings running through, one at either end and one in the center. He said to me, "This is the Book of Mormon, and it is true." I saw the characters and the engravings; but he would not let me put my hands on them. The room where we stood was lighted up as beautifully as any that I ever saw.

FROM the Chicago Times of the 4th of May, we clip the following, which will add something more to the confusion obtaining in the religious circles of the present generation. It would seem that the poor black man, the innocent cause of the conflict for political liberty in the United States, is to be, partially at least, a potent cause of quarrel in one of the prominent churches, and in the interest of liberty too, for it is the question whether the black man may have the same eternal life that the white man is to inherit by reason of belief in Jesus Christ; provided the same obedience to the command of God is manifested. We congratulate the good Bishop Howe in the stand he has taken; but then his white brethren will compel him to abandon his theory of equality in Christ, or they will disrupt the church.

"The South Carolina Episcopal diocesan convention met May 12th, in Charleston. When the committee on clerical credentials reported the bishop's list of delegates a motion was made to strike out the name of Rev. J. H. M. Holland, colored, rector of St. Mark's (colored) Episcopal church, Charleston. A warm debate began and continued all day. The next morning Bishop Howe declared the convention organized and ready for business. An appeal was taken from his ruling and the discussion of the color question was continued in the evening. Bishop Howe put the question of sustaining the appeal and it was voted down, the clerical and the lay delegates dividing. The bishop then ordered the secretary to read the rules of order, when Hon. C. G. Meininger, secretary of the treasury of the southern confederacy, sprang to his feet and sent a new secession ordinance to the secretary to be read, declaring that the delegates of St. Paul's church would withdraw.

This took the convention aback, and great excitement followed. The lay delegates from fourteen parishes quickly followed the example of Meininger and announced that they would retire from the convention, which they did, and the bishop was left with a quorum. The work will be continued to-morrow. When the seceding delegates retired Bishop Howe said with great feeling: "God-by, brethren. God bless you." The colored Episcopal church in South Carolina has been fighting for the admission of colored clergy to the diocesan convention for the last ten years. The bishop has stood firmly by the rights of the colored priests and has been supported by nearly all the clergy. The laity, however, have been kicking at this innovation, declaring they would never consent to receive the negro on equal terms with the white brethren in the conventions of the church. The result has been a split, which has been long expected.

THE following from the Willoughby, Ohio, Independent, will give the readers of the HERALD to understand some of the difficulties attendant upon the effort lately made by us at Cleveland. Dr. Pentecost had been carrying on a revival for over a week, and had worn the patience of the general public, (the unconverted), thread-bare; and from this straw, found in the Independent, it is not so hard to see how it was done. But then, the religious philosophy taught by the church to which Dr. Pentecost belongs has no room for the scriptural and common sense idea that all men are to be met in the next world by reward for their good, and rebuke and punishment for their evil, without regard to the especial church to which they may have belonged. And while the reverend gentleman teaches, in revivalist fashion, that those whom he converts to Christ may unite with any church to which they may take a fancy, how can he consistently denounce a man who may believe that if he does by reason of a good heart and a moral obligation what of good the so called Christian professes to do and does not, that it shall be tolerable for him in the good time coming.

We had supposed that Dr. Pentecost had the Peoples' Tabernacle in Cleveland full to overflowing, until we saw this reference in the Independent, but if the Doctor's estimate of the size of his congregation is a correct one, we have but little reason to complain, for we had as many out to hear us as did the revivalist.

"It appears that Dr. Pentecost, who lately spent several weeks in Cleveland, laboring as an evangelist, has been complaining of his lack of success while in the city—making special complaint that while Mme. Patti, the songstress, was favored with an audience of 5,000 persons, he could only command about 300 to hear him preach—and puts Cleveland down as a wicked city and religion at a low ebb. This may all be true; but when he said on one occasion, so reported, "that a moral, upright, law-abiding citizen, unconverted, did more harm to a community than a criminal," he threw a stumbling-block in the way of hundreds, and prevented a general flocking of the world's people to hear him. Perhaps the doctor has forgotten the advice of good old Dr. Watts in one of his sublime poems, to

"Never take the harsher plan,
When love will do the deed."

ELDER N. A. BAKER spoke in the District Court Room at Des Moines, the capital city of Iowa, the evening of May 12th, on the subject of polygamy, of which effort the "Evening News" for May 13th, gives the following excellent digest. Bro. Baker spoke on the evening of the 13th, at the same place, subject—"who then can be saved."

"The district court room was fairly well filled last night, when Elder N. A. Baker, traveling missionary of the anti-polygamour church of Latter Day Saints, rose to deliver his lecture, "Polygamy Exposed."

"The speaker said before entering upon his subject from the text selected, he desired to call attention to his card as appeared in the daily papers:

"We claim that the polygamy of David and Solomon was equally an abomination before God with the polygamy of Brigham Young and his apostate co-adjutors." Some criticism had already been offered on this card, perhaps from an improper view of its object or strained construction placed upon its terms. We wrote this card advisedly, and now re-affirm it purposely and thoughtfully. Marriage, as an institution, is a moral as well as sexual and physical question. The founding of the domestic compact antedates all human laws. It was established before the fall of man in Eden, having for its object the filling of the measure of man's creation according to the council of God before the world began. It is a divine institution, and is therefore either subject to divine approval if properly carried out, or to his disapproval if abused. Government may regulate the right for the protection of women and children, but the right originated in Eden's bowers, and the truth of the matter may be known by observing the varied relations of the compact, for truth is but the relation which things bear to each other, and as the relation which man (in justice) sustains to his wife and children to morality and to God, and God being unchangeable, the truth of the position occupied and relation sustained can never change in the sight of God while the marriage compact continues to exist for the purpose originally assigned it in Eden. Hence our claim that in all ages, ancient or modern, God held the same view, and by virtue of the same relation being sustained to polygamy that he now sustains, (the giver of monogamous marriage law), must look upon the violation thereof as an abomination—equally so in all. We are not attempting nor intending to compare Brigham Young with the ancient worthies, but to compare polygamy with itself in all ages in the light of God's law. It is not a question of the character of those men in other respects, but it is or was, is polygamy right in the sight of heaven?

"We will now call up our text and let it answer, Malachi 2: 11, 16. You will observe that the prophet Malachi declares in verse 11 that an abomination had been committed in Israel and Jerusalem by reason of which, as seen in verses 12 and 13, God would not accept their offerings any more. In verse 14 you will observe that the prophet tells Israel in answer to their inquiry, "Wherefore? because the Lord hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth." In verse 15 he shows that God established monogamous marriage at the creation, in the act of making but one, and in order that he might seek a godly seed." God then established monogamy in marriage to secure a godly seed, a righteous branch, and I presume he reasoned wisely. Can God ever desire any other seed than godly seed? If not, then in any age of the world he who by polygamy corrupt his seed offends God and practices an abomination in his sight. We now call your attention to the Book of Mormon, page 118 as follows: "Hearken unto me, saith the Lord, for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife, and concubines he shall have none, etc." This is surely monogamous; also the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, page 330, "We believe that one man should have one wife, and one woman but one husband, except in case of death." The marriage covenant was then read from the last cited book, which was rigorously monogamous.

What difference do I make between Abraham and Brigham Young? All the difference in the world. As to character, Abraham had no written law of monogamy, while Brigham Young had. When Sarah proposed to Abraham to put away his polygamous wife, and the Lord also approved of the thought, Abraham at once sent her away; but Brigham Young though forbidden by the written law of God, the experience of ages, and the present prophet and seer Joseph, the son of Joseph the seer now dead, still continued to practice his abominations in the wilderness in fulfillment of prophecy where it is said: "Ye shall dwell in a parched and a salt land and uninhabited." Abraham's error was for want of information, which was abandoned as soon as information was received. Brigham Young's was a lack of character in the face of imperative law, and was stubbornly persisted in till the last. No authoritative work of the church before the apostasy under Brigham Young ever taught the plural wife idea. The Reorganization has always and still does oppose it bitterly, and we claim with others the right to defend and define our own views, and to call the wandering, wayward ones back if possible to the paths of monogamy, virtue and holiness. While we do not court discussion we do not fear a controversy on this our faith, and are willing to defend it against any opposition respectably offered. We are determined by the help of God to be understood in the premises, and hope by pure, virtuous and upright lives to compel the respect of this people and all others.

"This evening elder Baker will speak again at the court house on 'Who then can be saved.'"

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. C. J. Hunt, of Deloit, Iowa, wrote May 16th as follows:

"Bro. James Turner baptized two young men a few days ago, and Bro. Ira Goff led three of our Sunday School scholars into the water yesterday. They were confirmed at the afternoon prayer meeting, and the Spirit of God was present in power. Bro. W. E. Peak is with us. He preached twice yesterday and will continue his efforts each evening this week."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—Is it right to administer the Sacrament to children?

A.—The sacrament is to be administered to believers, those who are able to discern the Lord's body; the commandment to the church being that none shall be permitted to partake of it unworthily. In the sense that children are not believers, discerning the Lord's body, it is not right to administer it to them. It must not be understood that we state that any particular wrong is done, either to the Lord's commandment, or to the children, if the emblems are given them, but that it was not instituted for them, but for disciples, members of the body of Christ. No wrong is done to the children by refraining to give them the bread and wine, and it is certain that no fault attaches to those who refuse it to them. The consecrating prayer is, "bless and sanctify this bread, this wine, unto all who shall partake" that "they may witness unto thee, O God, the eternal Father, that they are willing to take upon the name of thy son, Jesus Christ," etc. Children do not come within the meaning of this prayer, any more than they can believe and repent unto baptism.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

NEARER HOME.

One sweetly solemn thought
Comes to me o'er and o'er:
I'm nearer my home to-day
Than I ever have been before.

Nearer my Father's house,
Where the many mansions be;
Nearer the great white throne,
Nearer the crystal sea!

Nearer the bound of life
Where we lay our burdens down;
Nearer leaving the cross,
Nearer gaining the crown!

But that silent, unknown stream
Rolls dark before my sight,
Whose waves on the other side
Break on a shore of light.

O! if my mortal feet
Have almost gained the brink;
If it be I am nearer home
Even to-day than I think.

Father, perfect my trust;
Let my spirit feel, in death,
That her feet are firmly set
On the rock of a living faith.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 16th.

Dear Mothers of the Home Column:—While contemplating the goodness of God and reading in a Sunday School paper I was led to examine myself and I felt that it was my duty to write a few lines to you, for your letter often cheer me, and helps me to take courage and persevere through the many trying scenes of life. What I was reading about a mother caused me to think of us mothers, and I thought it was a good lesson to any one. She was Martha-like, cumbered about much serving, but she never had time to do any good for any one only her own family. Her neighbor was very sick and her conscience seemed to condemn her for not going and trying to do some good or say something about Jesus and his love, and she was aroused at last to feel that she must try and leave her own work and children and go as soon as she could. But one day went past and then another, and at last she heard the woman was dead, and she was very sorry she had put it off till it was too late. Dear sisters do not let us put off until it is too late to do something for the Lord who has done so much for us in giving us the light of the gospel, but let us try to be living epistles known and read of all that know us.

The desire of my heart is to do something to benefit and unto others good every day. I love to hear of God's work rolling on, and the glorious hope of the future.

E. CORNISH.

HOME, April 24th.

Dear Sister Frances:—Of late I have visited friends whom I dearly love, but had reason to fear that their surroundings were making them careless; and then, too, I was not sure the Herald was read in their home. In one family I found mother always too busy to read, and father seldom read aloud, and talked less of what he did read; so I got the Herald and read to them at night, your article on "the company we keep," and dancing; and I am sure that hereafter the Herald will do its work in that home.

When I asked a brother living at the same place if the Herald was not the most instructive paper to be had, and mentioned some of the articles, imagine my surprise when he replied, "I don't take the Herald now;" and to think what his reasons were—"His family was large and the girls had to dress well in order to be noticed, and it took lots of money." He did not mention the cost of tobacco for himself and two little boys which makes them objects of disgust. I did not say much to him but how I did wish that the writer of the article, "The home circle," would employ his talent in trying to elevate that brother.

How I wish I were capable of writing as so many of our sisters are; but I am thankful that I can appreciate and truly love all things pure and good; and I so much enjoy all that is beautiful in nature, knowing that the good Father has sent us these beauties to cheer our sometimes weary life.

How I thank sister Patience for her last letter. I grieve to say her counsel is much needed. I have two little boys at home; the eldest, Robert, is in his seventh year, and a wise little lad. He talks about sister Walker, and what he is going to tell her when he can write. He is in the third reader, and is, for his age, a good scholar. He heard brother Blair preach in Dawsonburgh last winter, and often tells what he said about tobacco. He loves the Hope, and on mail-day gives no little peace till it comes.

Little Neddie (three years old) knows when it is time for prayers as well as any of us, and talks about the Lord coming some day as though he knew all about it. Some weeks ago I sold some chickens, and straightway little Bobbie said: "Mamma you must give sister Walker her money, she needs it for the mission;" and lately I said I must stop drinking tea, as I fancied it was injuring me, and the little oracle says:

"What does tea cost?" and when I told him he said: "When you stop wont you give sister Walker that money too?" He is going to plant a garden for sister Walker; so you see your name is a familiar word in our home.

I am so pleased that there seems to be a general feeling against extravagant dress. How I do wish that the sisters, one and all, would adopt a dress that would proclaim them true Saints—having renounced the vanity and style of the world. Many years ago in the convent of St. Johns, New Jersey, where I was for two years a pupil, I became accustomed to the plain dress and truly Saint-like manner of those gentle pale-faced nuns, and ever since that time I have loved anything in dress that appeared nunlike. During the war when evil ran riot in those eastern cities, and a fashionably dressed lady did not feel safe on the streets without a male escort, those nuns were safe in any place where their mission of mercy called them. I sincerely hope the day is not far distant when we shall all lay aside our love for the vain and foolish things of this world, and live more in accordance with the religion we profess to love.

I have often wondered why I, of all my family should have been blessed with a knowledge of the gospel. My mother's people were all very strict Catholics. She, alone, in later years united with the Church of England, on her second marriage, and then for the first time saw the Bible; and my stepfather made me a present of one. How I loved to read it. Paul's teachings were my greatest delight. In my early married life I united with the Christian Church, as that seemed right or nearly so, and I was still expecting to learn more in the near future, as they did not accept the whole gospel according to my views as taught by the Bible. Something over fourteen years ago I came to this part of Iowa, where I met the first Mormons I had ever seen; and though they seemed good and kind, and only had one wife, I could not help fearing there might be something uncanny about them. Yet, I allowed myself to be persuaded to hear one of their preachers, who to my mind could make the Bible understood, and satisfied me that the gospel had no part of it been set aside; but right here began my trial, how could I ever be a Mormon? Oh, no, I would always strive to do good, and I would be safe! And when I quieted myself thus, or tried to, the words of that young preacher came back to me, and his face seemed ever before me with word and look of solemn warning; and so for several years, during which time I heard much, and read more of Mormon atrocities and Latter Day Saint delusion, till I almost tried to persuade myself into infidelity, and at this dangerous time that boy preacher's voice seemed near by, telling me to "ask God the way," which strange to say I had never done. Well, I heeded the warning and was directed immediately what to do; and then my impatience to obey seemed to me ridiculous, and I felt to reprove myself lest I was letting my imagination lead me astray. How could I resign my true and loving friends, my position in the Sabbath School as teacher? How could I bear to give up all social ties that made my life so peaceful? I well knew that I would take upon me a heavy cross, as I lived among those who hated the very name of Mormon; and while I sat trying to quiet myself I looked up from my work, and passing my door was one who I knew was called a Mormon, and though he was almost a stranger to me I walked out to him and told him I wanted to be baptized—where could I go? In a few words he told me to be prepared to go into the water the next day, which I also did, and what wonder my action occasioned in the community! How earnestly our elder prayed that the dear sister might be rescued from the snare Satan had set for her; and one of my brothers, hearing what I had done, came to me and appealed to me, first by persuasion, and then by warning me that none of my relatives would own me unless I renounced Mormonism. How I thanked the good Father for the much needed strength that enabled me to endure the stinging reproaches of those I honored! And most of all I thank him, that in all those years of search and longing for true knowledge he has been leading me. It is true since I belonged to the church, severe trial and bitter grief has been mine to bear, but through all I say to myself, God knows best why I am tried. I must need it or it would not be; and we comfort ourselves thus, my soul and I. Sometime since I learned that my mother, brothers and sisters, were asking questions of their pastors about the Bible and the true gospel which I trust will in time result in their receiving true knowledge.

Your sister,

"H."

WALSEND, N. S. W. Feb. 17th.

Sister Frances:—Since all are invited to ask questions on all subjects, especially the subject of instructing children, I would be pleased if you, or some other well informed sister, would speak through the column somewhat concerning children saying "grace," or asking a blessing on the food. When it is proper for them, and when it is not. Or if there is any time when it is not? Is it proper when the head of the house asks an elder or any one else to ask the blessing or return thanks, for the children to repeat their grace afterward, or to keep silent?—as I believe all Saints wish to have their children properly instructed in their duty toward God and their fellow men, that all their religious exercises may be conducted in a manner that will be acceptable to God, and not a mere form.

SISTER EMMA.

[Will the editor of the Herald please note and answer this question?]

NEBRASKA CITY, April 30th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I desire to have a little talk with my sisters concerning our physical health, which is accounted the highest good in this life, and truly so, for what are we and what can we do without it? Where there is no health there is no interest in life. The mind is dull, the spirit as if in bondage wants to leave. We know there are exceptions, and a weak and sickly body may contain a spirit superior, bright and intellectual, but such stay not long with us. We have heard and read that it is a sin to be sick. God did not intend that we should be sick, but he has given us laws to observe and duties to perform, if we would avoid it. If it is a sin to be sick, it is a sin to be ignorant. We find these words in a good old book: "Man, know thyself." This demands of us that we avail ourselves of all the knowledge possible, pertaining to our bodily, temporal, and spiritual man; and as the spiritual is so much dependent on the temporal, it becomes necessary that our attention be given to this first—nature and nature's laws. It is not a right and a privilege only, but a most important duty that we study and make ourselves acquainted with our physical nature, that we may know how to live in order to have health and keep it; in order that we may do well to ourselves and others, and fulfil all our destiny in life. When we have health we may not have all, but it is the greatest blessing to mortal man. Possessing it we are able to improve ourselves in every virtue essential to be Saints of God.

Then let us keep our bodies with care, (strictly heeding the laws of nature), remembering that the "Spirit of God can not dwell in impure or unholy temples;" nor must we doubt the promise of our Father, who is nature's God: "As thy day, so shall thy strength be." If our heart is only set to work righteously before him, it will never fail. Then we—as having received the gospel for the love of it, and for the love of Him who so dearly purchased the same for us—have furthermore a claim on his guiding Spirit to teach us continually, that we may learn and understand and do everything aright. But when we are toiling on, half forgetting ourselves in our work of love and care for others, suddenly we are reminded of self by a feeling of fatigue coming over us, or find that one or the other of the different bodily organs refuse to perform their local work. Let us not give up and think, Oh, I am sick now, I can't do a thing, and then go and lie down; but let us compose ourselves, seek rest and quiet, proper nourishment, or partake of no food or nourishment of any kind for a day or two; but in all difficulties avail ourselves freely of fresh air and fresh water, nature's free supply to all. God is our great physician, and in nature around us are all the remedies necessary to rectify every ailment. As an additional help in training ourselves and our children, we might select and procure physiological books, which contain both interesting and valuable knowledge.

Very respectfully yours,

NICOLINE THOMSON.

PLANO, Ills., May 3d.

Dear Sr. Frances: While sitting by the window this morning, looking out across the green field, my mind seemed to dwell upon these words: "But I would not have ye ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope." And the question arises, what is this hope, and have I attained unto it. And as the wind blows softly in, laden with the incense of nature's glorious resurrection, I yield myself up to its influence and read my own heart. Once I walked in my own strength. I had no care either for the present or the future, only as they should contribute to my temporal needs. To a certain degree I was happy; but still there would come unto me phantoms, whisperings of dark shadows and evil days that were inevitable to the course of human life; and many times I have turned faint with terror at the mere thought of death's chilly breath touching the cheek of a loved one; for I saw nothing beyond the tomb, and knew that it was but a question of time when I with my loved ones should enter its yawning portals. At last the evil hour came, and with trembling limbs and almost breaking heart I bade adieu to one I loved, and saw the door of the tomb close, shutting me out from ever again caring for the body that I would have given my life to have saved; and as I stood with empty arms I realized that part of my life had gone, and wondered God should have planted that undying love in my heart for my own, and then so rudely tear them away. So I lived in my bitterness and sorrow until one day I heard the voice of the Spirit, and hope was resurrected, and I knew in my heart that life and liberty were beyond the grave. That blessed word hope, how it cheered my troubled heart! How quickly I arose and sought the door which should bring me an assurance that this hope was not in vain.

Never was the water of baptism troubled with a more eager, happy soul than it was that day, because I saw in the great beyond the bands of love united, never to be broken. I saw all the tears of sorrow and pain forever wiped away; I saw the bands of death and the grave broken by one whose face was lovely to look upon, and whose tender voice said unto me, "Come and be at rest."

And to-day we, as a people, hope for what? Not for fame, not for power, not for riches, for the continuance of these things are uncertain; and within the circle of three score years and ten, they glide from our grasp and are known no more. So we hope for a better land, a dwelling place that can not be moved; and it leads us to build in a careful manner, of material imperishable. Yes, dear Saints, those of you who have friends near and dear, but whose hands no longer clasp your own, and the much loved voice fails to fall upon the listening ear, I know what your hope is. It is to one day behold the grave open by the power of God, and to see again the loved one who went down alone into the "valley and shadow of death" come back alive with immortality stamped upon the forehead. Then will our hope no longer be sought because of its realization, and our bursting hearts will sing for joy when we behold the victory which is lasting and eternal.

My prayer is that we may prove to those around us that we have that hope, by clothing ourselves in the garments of charity, which is the love of God; and if we are so clothed, we will abound in good works, unto not only to those we love, but unto all men, seeking no evil in any one, but rather to stand more approved before God in all things; and as the odor of nature's new life falls pleasantly upon my mortal senses, my soul is made to rejoice in the glad consciousness of possessing that which is indeed "an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil;" and I am willing to labor and await the will of Him who will counsel me well in life, and is able to guide my feet up the shining strand and into the glorious immortality prepared for those who are faithful unto the end.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 18th.

Dear Sisters:—The young people of this branch are making steady progress spiritually. Prayer meeting is held each Friday evening at the church, where the young members of the church offer prayer and bear testimony. These meetings were commenced only two months ago, but much good has been done, and prospects for the future are encouraging. The Sunday School, too, is prospering. It is in good condition spiritually and financially. The teachers are diligent workers, but too few in number. There being not enough of the older members to attend and take part, is a difficulty the Sabbath school has encountered ever since its organization. The Saints generally, are much gratified at the church's being so blessed while at Kirtland. The letters from the sisters to the Mother's Home Column are of intense interest to me. The welfare of Zion is the ardent desire of your sister,

Correspondence.

GALIEN, Mich., April 26th.

Bro. Blair:—Your favor of 23d at hand; thanks for citations, &c. Elder Hicks closed his harangue Sunday evening. Called it a review of his reviewer. His powerful arguments (?) were slanders, sneeringly delivered. The scriptural arguments, of some length, by Bro. Columbus Scott, were very nearly all passed over in dead silence by Elder Hicks, and those which were noticed by him were made sport of. He declined conjointly discussing a proposition of his own previous acceptance, on last evening, which evinced his cowardice and manifested his malicious object. His spirit is one of mobocracy, trying to inflame the public against the Latter Day Saints, something on Braden's plan, only Braden can tell a few more falsehoods, as he is an abler man. He had "Mountain Meadow Massacre" printed on his canvass. Slander, scandal, vituperation and abuse, are his chief weapons, including his strange, magical, arithmetical calculation of 666, of which we send you a specimen.

A defense will be made this Wednesday and Thursday evenings—or rather the correction. The Latter Day Saints' religion won't permit them to debase themselves and forsake true Christian dignity to wallow in the mire and filth as this man has done. His demeanor, all through the lectures, was Satanic. It has been quite a trial to the Saints of Galien; but the tide is now turning, and we trust the smoke will clear away and leave our banner brighter.

OBSERVER.

MOUND VALLEY, Kansas, May 15th.

Bro. Joseph and Blair:—Our conference is now past. It was a time of rejoicing to the Saints. Some from most parts of the district were present. The Spirit of our heavenly Father attended our meetings. The bread of life was well broken by the brethren in preaching. I feel that God is working with us and will bless and prosper us in common with all of his people so far as we keep his law given to perfect them.

As the Bishop's Agent of the Spring River

District, I call attention to the financial law. There are many places in the district where good could be done if we would sustain those in the ministerial field who are sent to us by general appointment from time to time. Also, some of God's people are some times known to be in want of aid. That these affairs may be properly attended to, and that God's law pertaining to these things may be honored, it is binding upon the Saints to tithe themselves, also to give free-will offerings. So far as I am informed there is a book in each branch and a brother appointed to act as solicitor. God has given the law and instructed us how to apply it. The further carrying on of this belongs to the Saints. I therefore request you to send moneys to the proper place that a proper distribution may be had.

That the Saints may know some of the reasons why I have often spoken with confidence in regard to the Reorganization, I relate the following: In 1873 Bro. Joseph Smith was with us. Believing that God would answer through the prophet my secret prayer, without consulting Bro. Joseph, I prayed to know whether it would be for the advancement of the cause for me to stay at this place. The answer came, "Brother Davies, you had better remain." This was of God. I have lived to see the words of the prophet fulfilled to a great extent, and feel to do all in my power to aid the further fulfillment of all things. Any of the Saints wishing to consult with me will write to the following address: Angola, Labette county, Kansas. Yours,

R. H. DAVIES.

HUNTSVILLE, Mo., April 25th.

Brn. Joseph and Blair:—I wrote you some time ago that I was firm in the faith of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and will now say to you, I expect by the help of God to remain so. In fact I can not be anything else; I have received too many evidences of the truth of the doctrine to ever try to deny it. And as I am determined to again unite with the church at the very first opportunity, I will make this statement: I have, as is very plain to me, done some things that are not in harmony with the law of the church, namely, leaving the church in the way I did. Now I do from the depth of my soul repent of the act, and I know that there is forgiveness for me; and for any act or word that I have ever said or done I ask my brethren and sisters to forgive me, and promise before God that the same shall never be repeated again. I have written some things to Bro. Lambert that I am very sorry for, and do ask his pardon for the same. I ask all Saints to pray for me.

I preached on Sunday evening January 23d, in the Oak Grove School-house, to a very large audience of intelligent people; subject, "The divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon." I spoke one hour and forty minutes, and when I was through and dismissed the meeting, three people told me that they were convinced of the doctrine, and were ready to be buried with Christ in baptism. A man and his wife, both Presbyterians, were two of the parties, and another man the head of a family. They said whenever I was ready to baptize them they were ready. I told them I would be ready just as soon as possible. Prejudice is very strong here. I preached in Hyman's Hall in the city of Huntsville yesterday, (Sunday, January 30th), to a large audience; Subject, The nature and attributes of God; who is he, and what is he, and where is he. A Baptist minister and a Methodist preacher were in my audience; the people seemed to be well pleased with our solution of the questions.

I received a very kind letter from Bro. Lambert, and was glad to hear from him, and to learn that he was able to be in the field once more, for the harvest is great and the laborers are few. So let us thrust in our sickles and reap. I close by asking an interest in the prayers of all Saints. I will say good by in full faith.

"Go bury thy sorrow, the world hath its share,
Go bury it deeply, go hide it with care;
Go think of it calmly, when curtained by night,
Go tell it to Jesus, and all will be right.

"Go tell it to Jesus, he knoweth thy grief,
Go tell it to Jesus, He'll send thee relief;
Go gather the sun-shine he sheds on the way,
He'll lighten thy burdens, go, weary one, pray."

Yours in bonds,

To the Herald:—It is painful to me to be obliged to be continually correcting mistakes made in regard to myself by those who ought by every principle of right to be my friends. On page 294 is a purported report of President H. C. Smith, touching the right of the Bishop to hold property in this state, and the substance of which Bro. Smith stated in San Francisco which not only did me a great injury as a man, a lawyer and High Priest of the church, but nearly prevented our receiving assistance from the Saints in San Francisco who were disposed to assist us.

The great trouble with Bro. Smith's statements are, they are not true in letter or spirit. In saying this I do not wish to impugn the integrity or veracity of Bro. Smith; but attribute it to making statements in regard to matters he did not understand. I never said that the church can not hold property in California through the Bishop, as trustee in trust. On the contrary, I say he can; so it can through any chief priest or presiding elder of the church, providing he becomes a sole corporator of a branch of the church. But the bishop, living in Michigan, who has not been made a sole corporator under the laws of the state of California, can not legally be a trustee in trust nor hold property belonging to the church. But if it is deeded to him without his being made a sole trustee, he holds it as any other man would under a mistake of law as the equitable holder of the property; and a court of equity could compel him to deed it to the church.

When we began to cast about in regard to building a new church edifice in this city, the question arose how we should proceed. As a lawyer, I examined the laws of this state upon the subject; and as a result of that examination I found we could legally organize our branch so we could hold property by getting the consent of our Bishop and making him a sole corporator; or we could incorporate by electing three, five, seven, or eleven of the citizens of the branch directors. If we incorporated by the Bishop we had to wait until we could get his consent; then we would have to elect him and go through the same forms of law we did to incorporate by three directors. Then we would have to get his consent to build a church; then he would dictate the amount that we might expend; then employ an agent to superintend and make the purchases and pay the debts; and if it became necessary to mortgage the property, then we had to go into court with a petition for leave of the court to do so; then advertise for four weeks our application; have an attorney appear in court and get a decree; and then send to Michigan to get the Bishop to make the note and mortgage. This we found would take us all winter to accomplish.

Bro. Bartholomew who proposed to give us a lot and five hundred dollars, was anxious to see the work go ahead as he wanted to leave for Europe in June, and so we concluded as the church here did not own a foot of ground nor a dollar in money that our best course was to proceed and organize under the law and have three trustees or directors who could proceed and build a church free and untrammelled, as soon as we could. This was duly placed before the branch in its full meeting, and acted upon in good faith; and we have lived to see the wisdom of our course, for we have had twice to mortgage the property to raise money to put it in a condition to occupy.

I make this statement to correct the false impression which has gone out, and to advise our brethren to be a little more careful when they say anything, that it shall be stated after full inquiry into the facts. We no doubt should have been assisted more to build our house had not this statement gone abroad that we were ignoring the Bishop. This is not true; but we honor him and his office, but we had not a cent nor a foot of land to deed him, and have not now; as the legal title of the property remains in G. Bartholomew.

I am respectfully,

H. P. BROWN,

Pres. Oakland branch.

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah, May 10th.

Bro W. W. Blair:—I wrote you in a former letter that I would let you know about the Plain City discussion. Although I practiced strict economy I could not make my opponent last but two nights. Our agreement was to debate the succession and polygamy, two nights each. My opponent affirmed that Brigham Young was the lawful successor of Joseph Smith the Martyr in the presidency of the church, etc. And I to affirm that polygamy was a false and pernicious doctrine. We were to be governed by the books. We debated the first proposition two nights; but the gentleman concluded he would not debate the second, for fear it would be considered as "aiding or abetting" polygamy, in conflict with the Edmunds-Tucker law. But we were told by good authority that his superiors ordered him to desist—that it was against the counsel of the church to debate with the Josephites, and especially on the subject of celestial marriage. My opponent never quoted or read a single word from either of the standard books of the church, neither did he bring either of the books with him to the meetings. But of course we could pardon him for that as there was nothing in the books that he could make any use of on his side of the question. The last speech he made, the chairman called him to the question, (he had hitherto been allowed to ramble at will), and just as soon as he found he had to talk to the question he sat down. The audience was very large, and as we had nothing at all to reply to from the affirmant, we made good use of the time in presenting from the books our most potent arguments in favor of our proposition; and

I venture that it will be a long time before some of the people will forget it.

We have no need to be discouraged in this field. God is working it after the counsel of his own will.

Your brother,
J. C. CLAPP.

RENICK, Mo., April 23d.

Bro. Joseph:—Nine years ago last December you was standing by the water's side, a witness to my baptism, under the hands of Bro. George Hicklin, in West Bellville, Illinois. The first I ever heard of this latter day work was told me by Bro. James Houston, in Dutch Hollow, Illinois, sixteen years ago. He labored much with me for years. At last I was brought very low on a bed of sickness, and nigh unto death, in the year of 1877. I called upon Bro. James Houston to pray for me. He did so, but my pain and anguish of soul no tongue can tell but them that have been brought down so near the grave. I could see nothing but darkness and despair before me; and in this bitter pain and anguish of soul I thought on the name of Jesus and cried unto him to have mercy on my soul and deliver me.

Thank God, in a moment all my pain and misery left me, my heart was filled with love of God, and I thought I saw my Savior standing above my head, and I heard these words, Thy sins are forgiven thee; arise and be baptized. The Lord did raise me up from that bed of sickness, blessed me with health and strength and brought me to the light and knowledge of the truth of the gospel of the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. Since then, Bro. Joseph, I have passed through many trials and temptations, but the Lord has delivered me out of them all, and filled my heart with joy and gladness, and blessed me with many heavenly dreams and visions of the kingdom of God. It is the desire of my heart to hold out faithful to the end of my journey, that I may enter into the rest of the Lord.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
WILLIAM VINCENT.

AUSTINBURG, Ohio.

Dear Brother Joseph:—I return thanks for the continuation of the Herald. I can not do without it. It is everything to me. I live in an isolated place where there is no one of my faith. I thank the Lord I have been spared to see this day of rejoicing; I have been reading over thirty six years with a determination to dig down to the rock and lay the foundation so all the powers of earth can not change it.

Your sister in Christ,
M. A. FAULK.

FREMONT, Ind., April 23d.

Brother David Dancer:—Enclosed please find pay for Herald for 1887. I see by colored label on Herald that it will not be due until June, but I remember Joseph once said he had two kinds of people to deal with, one class were too prompt, and the other not prompt enough. I prefer to be classed with the "too prompt" number, always having in mind the golden rule.

The church publications are welcome visitors at our home. Sometimes I wonder how Latter Day Saints can get along without them. This I know, that those who do not read the Herald miss much that is of vast importance and tends to strengthen and encourage the weak ones. Some say it is too expensive. To such I would say, subscribe for the Expositor, though it is only monthly, it is cheap, and is worth its weight in gold.

I am yours for the gospel truth,
ELLA HOUSMAN.

KIRTLAND TEMPLE FUND.

TO THE SAINTS:—The last General Conference of the church transferred to the Bishopric the matter of repairs on the Temple at Kirtland, Ohio, and therewith the duty of soliciting funds to meet the balance due by reason of repairs already made and amounting in the aggregate to about thirteen hundred dollars.

This sum should be placed in the treasury at once; and we shall feel a confidence, under the circumstances of your action through the General Conference of imposing the duty of this call for means upon us, in receiving a ready and hearty response to the same from the Saints everywhere.

It is evident from the things that have transpired of late years, that among the obligations belonging to the Reorganized Church, was that of restoring in a proper manner the "houses of the Lord" build and dedicated under the direction of the Master by the devoted hearts and willing hands of those in the church of which we are the succession.

We ought not only to do this, but to feel thankful that our Heavenly Father hath judged us worthy to undertake such task; and understanding it we should feel a responsibility in accomplishing it speedily and well.

The Saints as a body must be interested in the full completion of the Temple repairs—it is the Lord's House—and none will be excused in waiting for others to move in the work, for the duty is a general and not a special one, and each doing the part required, the full accomplishment of the work will be a burden upon none.

It is therefore urged by the Bishopric, that donations and gifts to meet the expenses incurred, and to perform whatever work remains to be done to complete the word of protection and repairs upon the building and grounds, be sent at the earliest time practicable by the Saints to the address of Bishop George A. Blakeslee, Berrien county, Michigan.

To aid in the convenience of brethren in branches and those who can attend meetings, it is hereby made a request of all agents of the Bishop to make it a special duty in their respective districts on the first Saturday and Sunday in June of this year, by themselves and under their direction, for the "branch solicitors" to call attention to and take by collection the offerings of the Saints for this fund and forward the same.

In this way it is hoped that we shall receive at once all the aid necessary for this object, and if there shall be much more it will be in the "Temple fund" and be held for use.

Asking of the Saints individually also to take hold of this matter and aid in the work of collecting and forwarding these offerings, and invoking the blessings of the Master upon all, we are your fellow workmen in bonds.

G. A. BLAKESLEE,

ILL HEALTH.

DOES any one one desire it? Is it an object for which the few or many seek? We may safely say no; and yet even this dreaded condition into which none wish to enter, and from which its victims ever seek to extricate themselves, may prove "a blessing in disguise."

God's elect people are to be tried and refined in the crucible of affliction—some in one way and some in another. The chiefest lessons to be taught us in the gospel school are, our entire and absolute dependence upon God, the imperative necessity of obeying his commands, and his unexampled goodness in bestowing upon us grace and favor in times of need.

If adversity shall better serve to bring us near to God and perfect us in the knowledge of his ways, rather than prosperity, then it follows that adversity is our friend.

Mr. Sankey, the revivalist, singer, and composer of music, shortly before his death originated the hymn in which these words occur.

"I had rather walk in the dark with God,
Than to walk alone in the light."

I regard it as an expression of the right kind of faith, the recognition of a wise and beneficent providence, an assurance of an infinite watchcare exercised by Him who "doeth all things well."

Ill health may result from various causes, such as unwholesome diet, excessive eating or drinking, extreme fatigue and exposure, unhealthy climatic influences or the development of hereditary disease.

To the church the precious promise is made, "they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." It is further commanded, "Is any sick among you, let them send for the elders of the church, and they shall anoint them with oil in the name of the Lord, and the prayer of faith shall save the sick." Oft and again has the Lord verified this blessed guarantee of special favor to the sick, while in other instances, for reasons known to himself, the coveted boon of convalescence has been withheld. I think we should desire and seek after the blessing of health, and by frugality and industry seek to be prosperous in the temporalities of life, and withal to labor with an eye single to the glory of God in whatever avocation we may be called to, but if by causes which seem inevitable we are hindered in our progress, we should cheerfully submit, believing in the unseen wisdom of a loving Benefactor.

While in Tennessee, near Kenton, I formed the acquaintance of a lady whose misfortune was that of being an invalid of the most delicate character for about twenty years. Her diet was a little fruit taken once in twenty-four hours. She drank no liquid of any kind, as it would not assimilate with her system and caused intense paroxysms. Reclining constantly on a couch, she could not endure to have the head elevated above the position of the body. She had, however, a pleasant home with her parents. Here others, blessed with health and vigor, went in and out in the exercise of their respective pursuits; but this patient sufferer knew no other lot than to endure the privation of those favors so freely given to others but withheld from her. Was this invalid overlooked in the wisdom and mercy of God? No, indeed! While she was deprived of almost every physical blessing and comfort, her mind was richly stored with gems of spiritual thought. Though her frame was wasted to a mere skeleton, her face was full and handsome, though very pale, and her hair luxuriant and beautiful. Her patient waiting for release, her firm, unshaken faith in Jesus Christ, and her assurance of a future state of happiness were a strong rebuke to infidelity.

It is said "the Lord tempers the winds to the shorn lambs." Yes, and he gave grace to this one, rendering her life one of usefulness in the realm of literature and spiritual thought, also a development of remarkable genius in the formation of flowers, wreaths, etc., of quaint material and with exquisite workmanship. A large circle of friends cherished her in tender regard, and now with reverence prolong the memory of one gone to rest in the paradise of God.

There is a refining effect about affliction, if borne with patience. When for a time one is brought near the portal of death, and it becomes a query whether they shall tarry long or soon pass to the other side, the tendency of such an experience is to purify the soul. Calmly we survey the situation and consider whether we are ready to die. Oh blessed thought if we are prepared! Death shall bring us into the presence of God—of our dear Redeemer! And yet: how can we be severed from the loved ones of earth? How precious to the needy soul is the economy of God in which is promised eternal life! This life is short and fleeting; but eternity has no end. Everlasting life will be given to the faithful.

To go and "be with Christ is gain,"
To stay may serve a better aim;
On God we cast our thought and care,
And consecrate our souls in prayer.

GEORGE S. HYDE.

GRAVES, ON THE IMAGE OF GOD.

IN a work entitled "The Seven Dispensations," by a Mr. Graves, of Memphis, Tennessee, he claims that man was made in the moral image of God; and that at the same time when God breathed the breath of life into man, it was no more than he breathed into the animal creation; it was only the breath common to all animals, thereby making man a moral image of God!

He seems not to know that God formed the spirit in man, (Zech. 12: 1), or that "there is a spirit in man, and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding."—Job 32: 8.

He starts out with the proposition that he will give the literal expression and interpretation of the Scriptures only, with few exceptions. But where he gets his "moral image," of God I do not see. For I know there is no such word in the New or Old Testament.

The word moral implies another word we call immoral. Now, no man with the fear of God before him will dare call God immoral, in any sense.

We read in the good book that God "created man in his own image." (Gen. 1: 27); and also in the image of his Son. (Gen. 1: 29, Inspired Translation). If he made man in his own image, and also the image of his Son, the Son and the Father must be alike; and Paul was therefore correct when he said that Christ was "the express image of his person;" (Heb. 1: 3); and Jesus also was correct when he said to Philip, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." John, 14: 9. In Genesis 9: 12-13 is found these words: "whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed. For man shall not shed the blood of man. For, a commandment I give, that every man's brother shall preserve the life of man; for in mine own image have I made man." This should be very conclusive, for these words occur after man was driven from the garden in consequence of sin.

Now, I do not pretend to know or say whether the man in his primeval innocency was filled with the Spirit, or whether he was created with blood in his veins. I am not informed only as Paul tells us in 1 Corinthians, 15: 45, "The first man, Adam, was made a living soul. The last was made Adam a quickening spirit." Also in 46th verse, "Howbeit that which is natural first, and not that which is spiritual." If this don't upset the exclusive spiritual theory, I don't see what will.

I am willing to believe, and do most certainly believe that man, after God had finished him, was perfect, physically and mentally; for God does not associate with men of corrupt minds; and we read that God did converse with Adam in the garden in the cool of the day, and that he explained to them their duties, and gave them privilege to eat of all the trees in the garden but one, and that the tree of life was one of which they could eat which would prolong life, how long we know not only as we read of what follows after the sin of disobedience.

We read that the tree of life was guarded by flaming sword lest Adam should put forth his hand and eat and live forever. I understand that this tree of life will be found in the New Jerusalem when it comes down from God. But sinners, as Adam was after the fall, can not partake; for if they could they might live forever in sin and rebellion against God. The thought comes now while writing, and it is to my mind very strong in favor of man's identity with God here and hereafter, as well as in case of Adam;—why is it that God exerts, by his ministers and by his Spirit, such effort and energy in the salvation of man, if man was of no more importance than some seem to think. But if God merely breathed into man the same as animals, in what sense can man be the "image of God" more than the beast? Are the beasts any thing like him? No; emphatically no. It is nowhere said the body shall return to earth and the spirit to God who gave it, as regards the brute creation.

The efforts put forth by the ambassadors of Christ and the faithful Saints to bring men and women to a knowledge of the truth, is evidence to me, very strong, that in coming to the truth they learn of their alienation from God through sin; they accept the offered terms of salvation, obey the gospel and learn, as they progress, that a rising from the grave, if they prove faithful till death, will reinstate them in that condition they were in before Adam's transgression. Adam was the image of God. And the most holy saint that ever lived can be no more, even after the resurrection. John says "we shall be like him;" and when he comes every eye will see him. He will come as he went, having the same body, minus the blood that left his side when pierced.

Paul tells us he was sent "in the likeness of sinful flesh."—Rom. 8: 3. There was a time when flesh was not sinful, and that was when God pronounced his work "very good." Christ was "in the likeness of sinful flesh," and yet he was "the express image" of the Father. Jesus looked so much like those around him—ate, drank, slept, and in short was so much like his associates in his appearance—that he was called "the carpenter's son."

The world's people were angry because he had so much wisdom, and he only a carpenter's son. But after all they could say he maintained the character he assumed, suffering, fatigued with journeying here and there, sorrowing for the condition of the children of men, doing all the good he could whenever or wherever needed, and all this time, (three years of ministry, also his entire earthly career before this), he was "the express image" of the Father; and those around him were like him, bodily, so far as any one could discover with the natural eye.

He was the Son of God, an Adam also; and now I would ask reverently, indeed, had it not been for the intervention of God, would the Savior's body have seen corruption? David says in one of his Psalms: "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine holy one to see corruption." God would not suffer it. Though he was made like sinful flesh, took upon him the seed of Abraham; and though the seed of Abraham suffered corruption, with few exceptions, yet through the plan of redemption for the restoration of man and the earth to their pristine glory and association with God, all things will be restored, man included. If Christ came to save that which was lost, he will save everything that was lost in the garden of Eden. And all those who since then have believed in God and died in faith, with all those now living who obey the gospel and retain their faith during this life, when the trump of God shall sound, then all the dead in Christ, and all the living in Christ, will be made to know for themselves that they are like Christ, for they will "see him as he is." "And he that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself, even as he pure." This passage of Scripture comes to my mind: (1 Cor. 11:7.) "For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God." Not that he was spiritually so in the creation. No; but as he was then, when Paul was speaking. And again; the apostle in Acts 17:29, says: "Forasmuch as we are the offspring of God:" The Athenians were the offspring of God, dating back to the creation. "In him we live, and move, and have our being." And while Jesus was the very "image" of the Father when on earth, how few knew it, only as the Spirit revealed it—as to Peter for instance—that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of the living God. Also as it was revealed many times in many ways and places, and so wonderfully and powerfully upon one occasion after his resurrection that three thousand were satisfied of the truth of what they heard, and they wanted to be like him and be where he was.

When persons are "born again," they do not lose their personal identity. The new birth is only the change from sin to righteousness; transferring their love from Satan to God; changing their mode of living; being born anew; walking in "newness of life."

Whereas man before bore the image of God, but served Satan; now he bears the image of God and serves him, yet no change in general appearance bodily. Faith, repentance, baptism, and the reception of the Holy Ghost by laying on of hands bring the new birth; but no physical difference in the outward appearance. We eat, drink, sleep, and do all for the sustenance of the body as before, but we are new creatures in Christ, and still "in the image" of God and Christ.

REVIEW OF "THOUGHTS ON PROPHETIC TIME."

BELIEVING with brother G. S. Hyde in Herald of March 12th that "unity must be effected by a mutual exchange of thought upon all matters pertaining to the good of the whole," I will present a few thoughts as a friendly criticism upon an article in the same paper by "Investigator."

The article seems to me hard to understand, yet it manifests much historical lore; and now for information, partly do I write. Why should we believe that "the one week cut off from the seventy (of Daniel 9:24) remains to be fulfilled in the latter day work of the Messiah?" I agree with the brother in explanation of "time, times and a half," and 1260 days, &c. I also believe that the "forty and two months" in Rev. 13:5 refers to the same period of time, (being three and a half years, or 1260 days), and that it is used interchangeably with those terms, also that it is used in reference to the same powers,—political and religious Rome." If they do, the healing of the "deadly wound by a sword," can not remain to be yet accomplished by

"a restoration for a short time of the temporal power of the Pope," as the brother says, for he was to continue forty and two months after the healing, and was also to make war with the saints and overcome them and have power over all nations after that.—Rev. 13:4-7. Will the brother please explain this.

As to the application of the three prophetic periods of Daniel, chapter 12th, I think we are none of us sure, and the brother may be as near correct as others in some things. But I differ from him in regard to the people fearing the Pope and worshipping the Virgin, Peter, Paul, and other saints, when the gospel was restored in 1830. That was not applicable to the great Protestant nation here in our land of liberty. They were rather worshipping a God "without body or parts."

The brother says, "France was the last head or supporter of the papacy." I ask, was not France one of the "ten horns of the beast," one of "the ten kings," instead of being a head at all? The beast had "seven heads and ten horns;" and "the seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman sitteth." Did not that refer to the location of the woman which "is that great city which reigneth over the kings of the earth," including France as one of these Kings? Did not the heads have a twofold meaning, as we read in the next verse after they are called mountains? "And there are seven kings; five are fallen, and one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh he must continue a short space," thus making sure that it was Rome which was referred to as "the great city," by giving the history of the five forms of government, or Kings, that had existed there and passed away, or "fallen." The Emperors the sixth, who "now is," existed at the time John wrote, and the seventh, that continued "a short space," until the beast, or eighth power arose. Is it not reasonable to suppose that the "deadly wound" was given by the sword of the Barbarians, causing the division of the empire into ten kingdoms which was alone "healed," or again united, under the ecclesiastical power that reigned over all these divisions, thus being diverse from all former kingdoms, in fulfillment of Dan. 7:24? But as all these are only different views of men, and not essential as doctrine for our salvation, they are of minor importance.

But if I understand the brother rightly when he says "The commandments as God gave them, and the gospel of Jesus are to be kept, 'the law of God, the moral law,' is binding upon us," to mean that the law given at Sinai is binding upon us, (and I can not understand him otherwise), I most decidedly differ from him, and ask him to give more definitely his reasons for so thinking.

True he says, "If there was no law, there would be no sin, no need of the gospel of faith, repentance, and obedience. They can not be separated," etc. If he means the decalogue, then there could have been no sin until the days of Moses, for that was partly made known by him. Yet sin existed before Adam. (1 John 3:3-22). But if he means as John, that "Whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, (God), because we keep his commandments, and do those things which are pleasing in His sight. And this is his commandment, that we should believe on the name of His Son Jesus Christ, and love one another as He gave us commandment; as love is fulfilling of the law," I I agree with him, believing that Jesus' law is perfect.

I agree with the brother that we can not look for much peace and safety in this government much longer; but I can not see what injury the enacting of a Sunday law would do the Saints. And if Constantine did "ordain" the first-day Sabbath, it is no evidence that it was not observed by the disciples of Jesus before that time, even by those who were to teach his commandments. Neither would it be an evidence that God had not commanded Sunday observance simply because "Catholics should enforce it." They enforce the law against divorcement also. The brother utterly ignores the great Liberal element of near 17,000,000 in this land when he says Catholics, Protestants, and Saints are the three principal bodies.

I do not see that "It is to destroy the church [the Saints] that this movement [the Sunday law] is inaugurated." Will the brother explain this, also how it would cause us to "have to suffer; and the Seventh-day Sabbath-keepers also." He says, "Who knows but this may be the mark of the beast?"—that is the Sunday law,—and I ask, "Who knows that it would be?"

Again he says, "The church is again established upon the earth, and the 'Lamb's wife is making herself ready.'" How can this be if a Sunday-keeping law could be the mark of the beast, as it is enjoined upon us in the Book of Covenants, and kept by the Saints? He again reasons, that if this Sunday law shall be enacted by the government, and should be the mark of the beast, and the Saints should not receive it, they "will not be allowed to buy or sell, and may be killed." If it should become a law of the land, it would not be contrary to the Saints' faith—and if it were possible it should be, God says "let no man break the law of the land." The writer further says, "But suppose they do, [keep Sunday as a law of the land] then what? If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead or in his hand, the same shall suffer the wrath of God." Now I can not conceive of a man receiving the Sunday law as "a mark in his forehead and in his hand;" nor how we can receive the first day as a Sabbath, as taught in God's law in Book of Covenants, and yet be guilty of receiving "the mark of the beast" by observing it if enacted as a law of the land.

If in explaining in parenthesis I have done injustice to the brother, it is not intentional. But if his argument is not in favor of the "ministration of death, written and engraven in stones," against the first day Sabbath, then I beg pardon for my want of perception, caused perhaps by my tenacity for the all sufficiency of the law of the new husband, Jesus Christ, for the government and perfecting of his bride, the church, without any of the dead husband—Moses' law. Romans chapter seven. Although they were revealed to Moses by "the unchangable God," yet they were only for the government of "Moses' house." Heb. 3: 5. "But Christ as a son over his own house, whose house we are," (verse 6) gave a perfect law to govern, redeem, and save that house.

The brother concludes wisely when he says, "It may be that that mark, and name, and number, is not yet revealed. But it will be." Until it is revealed it belongs to God, and it is wisdom that we let it rest with him, and especially that we do not teach that it may likely be a national Sunday law.

ACTIVE DUTIES.

LIFE is the drama in which every person, old and young, great and small, must take a part. As soon as we come into the world we stand before the foot-lights. We must all do our own acting; and when we have passed into the sunset of life can we answer the great question "Have we done our part?" This question comes up before me often, and it brings deep thought, so that when I reflect on the past, when I did not have such knowledge as now, and see how many lessons I have learned by experience—and some I thought I paid dear for—to-day I am glad for it. Yes, I do know that evil cometh upon children of disobedience; and I know that God has given his servants power and authority, and that those who do the Father's will shall know of the doctrine. When we look around us, everything is moving on with astonishing rapidity—nations, thoughts and ideas—in fact everything is changing except God, who is the same yesterday, to-day and forever.

As the ocean current passes quietly along through the mighty deep, so thought goes teeming through the mind, gathering the rivulets and rills of passing events. This should cause everyone in this day to pause and consider the great day in which we live; for we know whoever excuses his faults by saying, "I did not think," will never make a worthy mark in the world. It is the man who performs the every day thoughtful actions of human life, who will always be considered the true hero; and to succeed in life is the most convincing proof of true merit.

Then let those who are in search of success learn that true success is nothing without happiness. Man without a purpose in life is like a ship unruddered. Man should not drift, but steer. Every accident, instead of being mourned over should be turned to good account. We should not wait so many years for an opportunity to perform a large amount of good all at once, but go to work now, and keep doing a little all the time. A young man or woman starting in life should always regard character as capital; do some good and leave behind some monument that the storms of life can not destroy. For, dear sisters and mothers in Zion, I would say that there is much for you to do. Just pause for one moment and ask the question, "Am I doing my part?" The education of the human race is largely due to the faithful work of woman.

GENERAL ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Elder M. H. Bond, of the Seventy, present, reports:

Since last Conference I have been laboring in the Massachusetts district as per. appointment, with the exception of a part of last summer, which by the advice of those in charge I spent in the state of Maine, in company with brother F. M. Sheehy. On the whole I am feeling well in the work. The last year has been one of great spiritual blessing to me, and whatever the future may have in store, I can but look back with gratitude to my heavenly Father for blessings bestowed in the past, and to me perhaps, the best year of my life. I feel very strong indeed in this great latter day work, a knowledge of what the gospel of Jesus Christ is, and of its truth having been vouchsafed to me. It has become the most,—the all important factor of my life. The office of a minister and witness of Jesus Christ is to my mind, the most serious and important business that mortals are called to engage in. If thus called, I may not refuse without, to my mind, grave and serious consequence to myself, however hard the prospect may appear in this life from a worldly or pleasurable view. I suppose I may have to make up my mind that my life is to be given over to this service and ministry.

Believing and realizing that the day is coming that will try every man's work and how he has builded, I have not always sought to please men as the first and all important thing to be accomplished. If my service shall be passed upon with favor, and the "well done" of Him who has called me to labor in His vineyard, be given, I am going to try to be content with whatever trials I may be called to encounter in the prosecution of that work.

The needs of the Massachusetts district can not here be detailed. The common foes of truth in every age, ignorance and cupidity surround us on every hand, and who is sufficient for these things? We shall be, if we rise to the faith and works demanded by the law, and learn to live by every word that proceedeth from the mouth of God. And in my opinion, not until then. A commendable spirit of sacrifice has possessed many of the Saints, and it is but a simple truth to state that in every case, so far as I know, God has blessed in a degree beyond the most sanguine expectation those who are endeavoring to obey the counsel of God in regard to the law of tithing.

Brother Thomas Whiting of New Bedford is willing and ready to take the field and labor, provided he is authorized and his family sustained. He is an able man, and would prove a valuable accession to the ministerial force of that district.

Elder M. T. Short, of the Seventy, present, reports:

I have toiled in the field assigned me, and find the outlook good in several localities. Sickness in my family and secular matters have claimed some little of my time and attention, but I have done a vast amount of work. The Macedonian cry led me out of western Illinois into, and through Iowa. My efforts were interspersed with deep and painful anxiety, intense solicitude, fear, and trembling; seasons of joy,—the light and liberty of the Spirit, an open press, a kind and forbearing brotherhood, magnanimous aliens, returning prodigals, and obedient children; along with health of body, fixedness of purpose, fair zeal, and indomitable courage on my part, coupled with multifarious blessings of God, have each and all conspired to happyfy my heart, humble my spirit, endow my soul, and strengthen and preserve my physical frame. I have not sought ease and repose, neither have I run after hardships, or performed unnecessary and uncalled for penance. I have sought for healthful bodily exercise, and mental spiritual food.

My attempts have been promptly and ably seconded by the local ministry, here and there, and my reasonable wants have been anticipated by both good Saints and conservative sinners, all for which I do tender heart-felt thanks. Stubborn, long-standing, and complicated diseases have, under my ministrations, fled away to the four winds; eighteen have been obedient to the form of doctrine delivered them, and the weak have been fed, and the strong made courageous. In the month of February I delivered two dozen discourses in the towns of Sandwich and Plano. At the first named point I found the work at a low ebb, the flock being weak, dispirited and neglected. Preaching services had been few and far between, social meetings were sadly and almost wholly neglected, and few were inquiring for the good old way. Suffice to say that the Saints were revived, and an interest was evinced by many, pleasing to behold. At Plano my labors were blessed to the hearers, both in and out of the church, Brn. Cooper and Vickery upholding my hands in the Lord. Hundreds of places, all through the great and growing state, have never heard the gospel; while many are the localities where only a crumb has fallen to their lot. I stand like the poor widow before the gate of the unjust judge, begging for aid of at least a traveling co-laborer of my own quorum to advise with, and mutually assault the camp of the Philistines. I have asked a like favor of this honorable body before, but I think now the church is better prepared to grant this much needed favor. I feel an almost vehement determination to redouble my diligence and activity. My temporalities were never in so good shape as at present, and with the returning health of my consort I hope to go forth unfettered, and in the power and love of God's eternal Spirit. And now may glory arise upon Israel, and may the isles remote, and nations afar behold the star of Bethlehem, and press to the rising light of Zion, and bask in the light and warmth of the Sun of Righteousness. Oh Lord, arise in the ark of thy strength, and maintain thy cause to the salvation of peoples afar.

Elder C. Scott, of the Seventy, reports from Galien, Michigan:

On adjournment of the General Conference of 1886, after delivering a number of lectures at Davis City, Iowa, by special request, in reply to one of the advocates of the Seventh day theory, I entered upon the duties of the work in the mission assigned me, namely, Southern Michigan, in the territory of which I have bestowed most of my labors for the year. In June the Southern Michigan district imposed upon me the additional obligations of its presidency. This to me was new work, and for which I was not prepared. But I have tried to do service for the Master under all the circumstances as best I could. I have labored in Berrien, Van Buren, Kalamazoo, Eaton, Branch and Mason counties, Michigan, and in Noble, Floyd, Jefferson and Steuben counties, Indiana. Have baptized fifteen persons, confirmed ten, solemnized four marriages, blessed a number of children, administered to the ill on several occasions, with God's blessings attending in most instances. Brethren H. Rathbun, B. V. Springer, W. Horton and L. Scott, have labored in the district, and with good results following. During the last month I have been so out of health as to be unable to labor except Sabbaths; but I am now improving in health some, I think, and hope by God's blessing to be engaged actively in the work again at no distant day, which is my earnest desire, if worthy. I desired very much to have met with you in conference session, but this great privilege is denied me.

Elder G. T. Griffiths, of the Seventy, present, reports:

During the last year I have devoted my entire time in the general ministry, and take pleasure in stating to you that I have been abundantly blessed in all my ministerial labors, more so than ever before. Am still president of the Pittsburg and Kirtland district. The work in this part of the vineyard is in a splendid condition, and the prospect for a grand work being done in the future, is growing brighter all the time. Have opened a number of new places with good results; raised up and organized one branch. Have baptized eighteen, blessed eleven children. I am still willing to help roll on the great latter day work, providing you continue to sustain me.

Elder E. A. Davies, of the Seventy, present, reports:

About the first of June last I came to the Wyoming district; it being a new field to me, I spent some time before I became acquainted with it. This district has received no assistance from the church for years, and as a consequence was on the decline. Quite a number of the Saints had become rather discouraged, but had not entirely lost their love for the work, and in their turns revived, until the majority are found in line of battle.

We were refused the use of all school-houses, and the church was not able to expend money. After taking in the situation for a time, we were convinced that the working Saints were not able to pay hall rents, from the simple fact the times are dull, wages small, and hall rent exceeding high. We therefore adopted the cheapest, and it, in the long run proved to be the best method—speaking occasionally on the streets and in groves. We would judge by the vast multitudes, day after day and night after night, in different places that stood before us that the gospel, to the best our limited ability had been expounded to thousands of people. We are sure many friends have been made to the cause. There is a time of sowing and a time of reaping. Peradventure these labors may not be in vain. Later on our labors have been confined to private houses, whenever and wherever doors were opened, and laboring in connection with the authorities of branches, trying to instruct and encourage the Saints, by comparing the past with present, we are able to say their efforts were in a marked degree successful. A few of the elders have labored manfully with us. Bro. Peak remained until late in the fall. While here we labored as one. Bro. Peak is entitled to credit for a great portion of the above labor.

The most suitable man that could be sustained in this field would be one that can speak the English and Welsh languages, as there are many who can not understand the English as well as the Welsh. I hope that ere long God's servants will all go forth with no other object in view than to break the bread of life unto lost sons of Adam, and that more power will be granted can not be questioned, thus speeding the redemption of Zion.

Elder R. S. Salyards, of the Seventy, present, reports:

At the Annual Conference of 1886, I was appointed to labor in the Pittsburg and Kirtland district in the mission of Bro. W. H. Kelley. In accepting the appointment however, I did so with the understanding that I could not enter the field until the fall season of the year. Unforeseen events prevented me from giving entire time to the ministry until almost the close of the winter. However I have endeavored as far as possible, to be actively engaged in the good cause during the entire year, most of the time in presiding over a branch at Wheeling, West Virginia, and laboring some in Ohio, in preaching and in other general ministerial work; conducted two funeral services. I have baptized seven into the church, confirmed eight, blessed four or five children. In my efforts in preaching and in general work have indeed realized an increase of liberty and of blessing. Especially has my liberty increased during the past year. I feel strong in the work and very much encouraged by the bright prospects before us, and expect by the Lord's blessing to continue constantly in the field.

Elder Thomas Taylor, president of the English Mission, reports from Birmingham:

It gives me much pleasure in reporting to you to state that the work of the Lord in this mission is still onward, and the prospects for the future are encouraging. We have added quite a number of baptisms through the past year, and the brethren throughout the mission feel encouraged and are desirous to do all they possibly can according to their circumstances for the furtherance of the cause. As to myself, I have traveled considerably through the mission, and have given all the encouragement and assistance that I could, and upon the whole I consider that the work in this country is good.

Elder J. A. McIntosh, present, reports:

I have labored all my time since reappointment a year ago. Have spent every day in the field to which I was appointed to work under the presidency of Bro. John H. Lake, and have done all I could. My work has been confined principally to Dufferin and Grey counties; however, I have also spent from one week to three weeks with some of the branches laboring as their needs and requests demanded. At Alliston, Proton, Egremont, Masonville, Maple Valley, Riverview, Shelburne, and St. Mary's in the London district, and Chatham and Blenheim in the Kent and Elgin district. In all of these places the interest was good. Besides this, I have preached occasionally at a few different other places. During the year have preached 109 times, baptized forty-nine, confirmed forty-nine, blessed seven, administered to the sick twenty-four times, ordained one priest, solemnized three marriages, made two new openings, and held one debate with good resulting therefrom. I do not know that I could have done more under the circumstances. In administering to the sick all have been attended with good results but one case, and even that was acknowledged in administering. I have been called to leave parts where I was laboring and go back two or three times, thereby breaking the interest of meetings. If I can make such arrangements with the Bishop as necessary, I am still at the disposal of the conference. As I pray for the advancement and welfare of our common cause, so I hope for and ask an interest in your prayers.

Elder Samuel Brown, reports from St. Marys, Ontario:

I did not make arrangements with the bishop till the latter part of December, 1886, on account of scarcity of means. Since that time have labored in Blenheim, Chatham, Tilbury, St. Marys, and Ellice; baptized three; confirmed three; blessed eight children and organized the Ellice branch, not being idle before this time. I have baptized six; solemnized two marriages, also performed branch labor; have had good liberty in preaching the word. I still desire to work for the Master till my race is run here below.

Elder Albert Haws reports from Oakland, California:

I was appointed by the General Conference of two years ago, but circumstances controlling, I did not take the field until January the 22d, 1886, then made arrangements with the First Presidency, the bishop and the president of the mission, and left home on the 22d day of January for Portland, Oregon; arriving there on the 25th after a very rough voyage. The power and goodness of God being made manifest to me in controlling the terrible sea-sickness in my behalf. While nearly every one on board was prostrated, I was blessed and enjoyed the voyage. After a rest of a few days I commenced distributing tracts and hunting up Saints that lived in Portland and succeeded in finding three good sisters, by whose help I obtained a hall, preached three times; the weather being bad, with other excitements, few turned out; but I continued there a month, the three good sisters and myself holding two sacrament meetings, in which we were blessed. I then moved on to Linn county, Bro. C. E. Aldrich and Bro. James Alney meeting me at Brownsville, and kindly taking me to their home. The next Sunday we went six miles up the mountain, met some of the Saints and others, preached with good liberty and interest; stayed a few days, went to Sweet Home; preached several times; good liberty, good interest, good turnouts. Back to Crawfordsville, preached there; some interest, lots of prejudice and some rotten apples. On to Brownville, got Free Thinkers' Hall; little interest; back to Sweet Home; got the Saints together; made arrangements for a conference; good meeting; several Saints who had held aloof from the branch came forward, and with efforts of the brethren in authority and others, peace and harmony were returned and time for our conference set, which was well attended; preaching to the point and good liberty; Saints strengthened and encouraged; prejudice raged but all was overruled for good. The brethren raised means to buy a cart and harness, and brother Butler, after paying his portion, loaning me his good horse, George, who rolled the gospel cart over mountains and bad roads for several months; and with his and my brethren and sisters' help, we succeeded in opening fifteen new places. At some there was considerable interest, at others prejudice prevailed; baptized five; blessed several children; helped to confirm; administered to the sick with good effects; was blessed wonderfully in all, and in preaching the word. Labored all that my health and circumstances would permit, and was assisted and kindly treated by all my brethren and sisters, and by many that was not of our faith, for which I thank them and hope I shall always be worthy of their faith and confidence. On account of poor health I had to leave my mission before I had intended, and on the morning of the 25th day of January, 1887, I left Portland for home, arriving on the 27th, having been gone one year and five days; the results let time and others tell.

The wants of that mission are several active elders who will live what they preach. I am willing to go wherever the church sees fit to send me, and do all that health and circumstances will permit; having but one desire, and that is to spend my life in the work as God may direct and open the way. Whoever goes to Oregon should be prepared to stay several years.

Elder J. R. Badham reports from Los Angeles, California:

By the sanction of your honorable body, I was recommended to the missionary in charge on this coast. Soon after he arrived on his field, I was appointed to labor in the city of Los Angeles and vicinity. I have constantly labored, mostly in the city, having charge of the Saints who number at present sixty-three. There have been several additions by baptisms, and some by letter during the past year. We have gained influence in the city faster than we had expected. A great deal of prejudice has been broken down, the prospects are favorable for a good work to be done, if it can be properly prosecuted. I think this part of the mission is important, as there are so many migrating to this country. Almost every nationality is represented here, and opportunities are frequently presented for testimony to be borne. I am anxious that the work be sustained here, and trust that while you are considering the general interests of the work, that you will not forget Los Angeles and vicinity.

We hope and pray that the Lord will bless, by bestowing the spirit of revelation upon your deliberations, and condescend to reveal his will in regard to the filling up, and setting in order all the quorums of the church. Since your last sitting I have preached about eighty-six times, baptized ten; ordained one teacher, blessed eight children, confirmed six, performed two marriage ceremonies; held many branch and prayer meetings; have attended to the finances of this district as Bishop's Agent. The prospects are fair. We trust there will be more done the next year than the past.

Elder A. J. Cato reports from Wilmott, Missouri:

Since your last sitting I have done not more than half what I should have done, because of sickness. I have preached some in Arkansas, Texas, and south-west Missouri; baptized six.

Found more of an inquiring spirit than I have ever met with before, and more openings. I am still desirous of doing all I can, and am still subject to your orders.

Elder G. T. Chute reports from Garland, Alabama:

I have labored in the South Eastern mission during the past year. I labored continuously through the summer and fall, which is the best time for preaching in this country. The most of the time within the jurisdiction of the Alabama district, acting in the capacity of president. I spent the month of November in the Florida district, laboring in most of the branches. In looking back over the past year I discover that I have not done nearly so much as I could have wished to, but I have this consolation that I have tried to do my duty, and to do all the good I could and as little harm. In all my labors I have been greatly blessed, many times beyond my expectations in preaching the word, in administering in the ordinances; also in the healing of the sick, in some instances to a remarkable degree; for all of which I have every reason to be thankful to our heavenly father.

Some of the brethren and sisters have done all they could to liberate my hands from the care of my family. They wish to see the church in this part of God's vineyard firmly grounded in the truth and moving steadily forward to victory; while some had said that they would help materially, that is, pay tithing, free-will offerings, and if we could have a president here appointed to this part of the mission, who have done nothing financially. Their reasons are best known to themselves. However, there are numbers of good Latter Day Saints in this mission whose hearts are in the work. This mission is a very large one and should have several Elders constantly engaged in the ministry. I hope that your honorable body will take into consideration the advisability of appointing at least two elders to this mission. Very little help need be expected from the local elders; but few are trying to keep up branch organizations where they reside; neither need you look for much financial aid. It may look bad for the church to have to support its missionaries sent here from the funds collected at the north, but such seems to be the present outlook, notwithstanding they are bountifully able to support the work in this part at least. The Alabama conference asked that you continue me in this mission; however I must decline, and ask that you release me, as circumstances at present seem to hinder me from continuing longer. I love the work at heart, and wish to see it prosper, and to this end will continue to labor as circumstances will admit.

Elder H. C. Bronson reports from St. Joseph, Missouri:

Herewith I make a brief report of my labors in the field assigned me at the last conference, and the condition of the work in said field. It will be remembered that I was assigned to the city of St. Joseph, Missouri, to do missionary labor there; and while this has been my field, I have also labored outside, as wisdom seemed to direct, namely, in the Delano, Stewartville, and German Stewartville branches, and in other parts of DeKalb county. Also, spent one week in conducting a joint debate with a minister of the Christian faith, by the direction of the missionary in charge; said discussion being held in Grundy county, Missouri. As regards the work in St. Joseph, where my principal labors have been performed, I am pleased to say that there has been a steady increase in numbers by letter and by baptisms; and I feel quite sure that we as a church are more thoroughly established in the city than we were a year ago. It is no doubt apparent to all who have had experience in laboring in large cities that whatever good results there may be, they do not develop themselves as rapidly as they would in small towns, or in the country. I am pleased with the outlook for future work in this place. I am satisfied from experience it will take longer time with strong, persistent effort to build up the work in the cities than elsewhere, and that one year's effort is by no means sufficient time to do the work justice, as it will take at least one year to get the work sufficiently established so as to successfully build the work up. I am further satisfied that with the experience of the past, a far greater amount of good can be accomplished in the year to come in St. Joseph than has been accomplished in the year that is past. In conclusion I would say that my feelings would be that by all means continue the work in St. Joseph.

Elder J. P. Scardiff reports from Scranton, Mississippi:

I was appointed to labor in this mission "if arrangements could be made with the bishop." He gave me some assistance and I have tried to labor as the circumstances would permit. The work in this part of the mission is very low; more general as well as local labor having been needed.

The press in this county is inclined to be courteous and have published my appointments and communications, and some of the leading citizens in the county have manifested friendly feeling towards me. If wise and faithful labor could be done in this county the coming year, I am satisfied much good would be the result.

I hope conference will be able to do something for this mission; and this section in particular. A gradual change in the people favorable to the reception of the work is going on in the South and I have reason to believe that ere long this section of the Union will be an inviting field of labor. In a few weeks I expect to move my family from Alabama to this little city in Mississippi.

Elder R. M. Elvin, president of First Quorum of Elders, present, reports:

During the conference year just closed I have devoted my undivided time in the discharge of the duties of my office and appointment, under depressing and hindering circumstances. The field to which I was assigned comprises something over seventy-six thousand square miles, the most of which is new country, and society is but forming; the demands are therefore an hundred fold more than any one man can possibly supply. Throughout this vast territory are scattered famishing Saints, who are begging so piteously that the bread of life should be administered unto them by some efficient, God-sent messenger of the gospel restored. If it were at all practicable to increase the ministerial force in this field I believe it would be very advantageous to the cause, and in the near future, would amply indemnify the church for what extra expense might be incurred, by yielding a large increase to our membership; at present there are already more openings than can be properly cared for.

I have administered baptism to twenty-one, confirmed fourteen, blessed seven children, and united in the bonds of wedlock one couple; in connection with others have administered to a number of sick, some of whom received immediate, and some partial relief. Have done much more labor in various ways to advance the cause of Christ among the people, as also activity, unity and good will in the household of faith; have counselled, encouraged, and instructed the saints both by word and by letter, and I confess that in all my ministrations, God in kindness and mercy hath blest me with the attendance of the Holy Spirit. Have sought for opportunities in which to defend the truth with my pen, as well as in the pulpit, and at present I am engaged in a written discussion with an Advent minister, on the Sabbath question. During the past year, I have received from the church full and prompt financial sustenance, for which I am very thankful, and believe that this indicates growing confidence upon the part of the Saints in all the laws and regulations of the church. I have gained that experience and understanding that confirms me in the divine life, and to establish my confidence and trust in the three standard books of the church, and I am confident that whosoever shall persist in setting up his personal opinions in antagonism to the expressed polity of the church, will walk a thorny path or sink into silence and forgetfulness.

Elder E. L. Kelley, present, reports:

For the year just past I have labored as I could in the districts of the church which it was possible for me to visit in the interest of the law of temporal things. A great part of my time since September however has been taken up by reason of the work of repairing on the Temple but since that time I have labored some in the Pittsburgh and Kirtland district, Western Iowa, and Southern Illinois, to which place I was called at the request of brother Isaac M. Smith and others to discuss with a Christadelphian minister, points of doctrine touching our faith and that of that society.

Several different issues were raised and debated with good results to the establishment of the truth. A fair and full test of our faith on a single proposition, when our opponents choose what they regard as the weakest of all our principles, ought to greatly confirm and encourage us when the proposition after such test is found to be strictly in accord with the truth; but when a person is selected on account of his especial abilities as a theological critic to make warfare upon our faith and select seven different propositions touching the same, no one of which he is able to show to be wrong even in the minds of a prejudiced public, it ought to be fair evidence at least that our faith is among those things "which can not be shaken" and must "remain."

I have labored as I could some little in the work of the Bishopric in Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Western Iowa. In Kirtland, aside from acting as a branch officer when present, I have had occasion to meet and canvass the question as to whether the "Bible taught and endorsed the doctrine of polygamy." I did this for two prominent reasons:

1st. Many persons not religious as well as some who are, and who have casually read the Bible have an indefinite belief that this book does teach such doctrine, and I desired to show such, if there were any in Kirtland how little there was in reality in the scriptures upon which to found such a belief.

2d. A minister of the Utah polygamous church came into our little town claiming that polygamy was the true order of things, and I deemed it a duty to the people here, the church, and to the party himself, to show what we believe to be the truth of the matter, and also give him the same right I asked for myself, which right he fully and fairly had, with assurance from me that he might have all the time he wanted.

In the branch work in Kirtland we have been greatly aided by Elders W. H. Kelley, G. T. Griffiths and Richard Salyards when they have been present, so that their labors have here tended to the good of the cause. Much in the way of preaching is needed in the near surrounding country, and if brethren Griffiths and Salyards or others could be permitted to do this, it would do great good to the work.

Elder H. Rathbun, present, reports:

Being in the west with my wife at the time of receiving my appointment, it was the last day of July before I reached home. From that time onward my labors were constant and continual. I have preached about eighty times, baptized and confirmed five—all heads of families, blessed two children, administered to ten sick persons with marked and remarkable results. On the twenty-third of November last I was taken severely ill, and remained so until the morning of the eighth of December I was remarkably healed. During the remainder of the winter up to the time I started to conference I devoted my time to my domestic affairs at home, with the exception of four weeks that I was absent from home laboring all the time in the ministry. Most of the Saints where I have been laboring, with a very few exceptions, are strong in the faith and actively at work in the interests of the kingdom of God and in the promotion of the gospel of Christ. They meet with strong opposition, but it is invariably sectarian and unprincipled—like that of a wolf attacking a sheep or a lamb in the absence of the shepherd. No one caring or so far daring to meet a Latter Day Saint elder, not even one of the weakest of the elders.

At Webberville the Saints are trying to build a house of worship for the Lord. They have secured a lot, in the right place, and built a good stone wall foundation. The work is done well, and all is paid for as far as they have gone. The help there is mostly women help, and their circumstances financially rather ordinary. They deserve the respect and sympathy of the church everywhere for their integrity and indomitable perseverance. As regards myself I have my afflictions, disappointments, fiery trials, sorrows in common with all Saints. But withal I am still in the faith, and holy hope still rides buoyant down every tear as I soon expect to be at the longest, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest. Please remember me in your prayers.

Elder H. H. Robinson reports from Independence, Missouri:

Since my report last April, have labored to the best of my ability in the field assigned me. Have preached in Jackson, Cass, Cedar and St. Clair counties; baptized and confirmed ten, blessed five children, performed one marriage ceremony, administered to the sick, distributed tracts, books, etc. Have been blessed in presenting the word, especially so in St. Clair county, in defending the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants against the attack of Mr. Parks of the Campbellite order. I am more established in the divinity of those books than ever before. There are better opportunities in this field for presenting the word, and more calls than can be filled by the present help.

Elder J. J. Cornish, present, reports:

Since the last April General Conference I have been laboring in Michigan chiefly, in Sanilac, Huron, and Bay counties. On account of the pressing calls for preaching in those counties I have not been able to visit the western part of the state, hence that part of the North Michigan district has been neglected. I have not been able to visit Canada nor labor there according to my appointment. In short I have labored to the best possible advantage with the means given, and where the most need of labor and interest demanded. I have baptized one hundred and three; and confirmed one hundred and fourteen. Held four debates; blessed about one hundred and thirty children, and administered to the sick; have been well blessed in all administrations. I have tried to do my best for the advancement of this great latter day work.

Elder Warren. E. Peak, present, reports:

Since my appointment last spring I have labored in Hyde Park, Pennsylvania, for about six months, with Bro. E. A. Davies, holding from five to seven meetings a week during that time. From there I went to Philadelphia, and remained with the Saints in that city for two months, preaching twice each Sunday, and meeting with the Saints in prayer meeting during the week. By request of Bro. W. H. Kelley I came into the Pittsburg district February 8th; I remained in Pittsburg two weeks, preaching twice each Sunday. From there I went to Blake's Mills, Ohio, where I remained till 2d of April, preaching some twenty sermons and holding ten prayer meetings, and baptized seven. In the last year I have held some one hundred meetings, baptized eight, confirmed seven, blessed two children, and administered to the sick whenever called on.

Elder J. W. Wight, reports from Moorehead, Iowa:

I was appointed to labor in the Little Sioux district. Being hampered in a financial way, I have not labored as I expected. Financial difficulty is now removed, but the firm for which I labor hold that they can not let me go before June and July of the present year. If you deem it necessary to appoint me to any special field after that date, you are at liberty so to do. I desire to act in accord with the will of God and the wisdom of the body.

Elder F. M. Cooper, present, reports:

Having been appointed to the Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin district, I labored to the best of my ability to advance the interests of the cause. I was also placed in charge of the district, which position changed the sphere of operations, confining my labors more to branches than in seeking new openings, and breaking new ground; but as it was, six new openings were made, where permanent good can be done if wise and persistent labor is applied. As to the number of efforts I have tried to make I have kept no record, but I have devoted my entire time to the work, except when sickness hindered, which was in two instances. I baptized seven, assisted in ordinations, blessing of children, administering to the sick. If my judgment is of any worth, it is that Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin is an inviting field, where a score of careful, and earnest elders would find plenty to do for the Master. An increasing interest in the cause of Christ is generally indicated throughout the district, which is to be attributed to the earnest efforts of the Saints. Bro. Short and others have labored some in our district very acceptably. As there is an ever increasing demand for the bread of life, I trust the little I may do, will be done with an eye single to the glory of God.

"AND FOUND WANTING."

"It is written."

ELDER DAVID WHITMER, the surviving witness to the Book of Mormon, has written "An Address" to "All Believers in Christ," of which we have received a copy. We are a believer in Christ, and therefore this "Address" is to us, and we shall take the liberty of examining it as a whole, and if opportunity and necessity demand, in detail.

The burden of this "Address" is the claim that Joseph Smith transcended the bounds of the divine commission given him of God; listening to men, giving to the church improper directions, in precept, doctrine and organization; and imposing upon the church false revelations; by all of which, his office, calling and authority were vitiated, and the people of the church deluded and led into error destructive of their hope of life and salvation,—trusting man (Joseph Smith), and relying upon an arm of flesh.

It would be well that those who have read the "Address," in which Elder Whitmer attempts to discredit and destroy the work done by Joseph Smith and his co-peers from 1829 to his death, should remember in connection with what is stated by Elder Whitmer, the following:

ORDINATIONS.

David Whitmer became a member of the church, as he states, in June, 1829, and that previous to this Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery had begun the work by command of God, and that those two had been ordained to the office of Elder. That Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, Peter Whitmer, Samuel H. Smith, Hyrum Smith and himself had been ordained elders. That in August, 1829, these began preaching the gospel of Christ. Address, page 32.

In his zeal to maintain the statement made by him on page 50 of the "Address" that "Elders, Priests and Teachers" comprise the offices of the church, and that "there is no need of any more spiritual offices than these in the church;" Elder Whitmer misstates the history. To show this clearly and thus make the object of this attack made upon the faith of the Saints apparent, it is only needful to state that Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were baptized May 15th, 1829, and that they were on the same day ordained unto the Aaronic priesthood, by divine direction; and that it was done under direction of those who held the Melchisedec priesthood. Upon the consummation of this baptism the Holy Ghost fell on them and they stood up and prophesied many things which should shortly come to pass, the rise of the church, and other things. Samuel H. Smith was baptized the same month; and in June following Hyrum Smith, David Whitmer and Peter Whitmer, jun., were baptized; the first two by Joseph Smith, the last by Oliver Cowdery. It was not until the month of April, 1830, that the promise that they should receive the Melchisedec priesthood, which held the authority to lay on hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, was fulfilled unto them. Previous to its fulfillment a revelation was given in which the nature of the priesthood and their calling in it were revealed. Elder Whitmer states that Joseph Smith and others changed this revelation to suit purposes of their own; but there has been no change in the part which will show Elder Whitmer's mistake. Quoting from chapter 15, paragraphs 10 and 11, of the Book of Commandments, of which we have two copies in our possession, we find the following:

10. "And now Oliver, I speak unto you, and also unto David, by the way of commandment:

11. "For behold I command all men everywhere to repent, and I speak unto you, even as unto Paul mine apostle, for you are called even with that same calling with which he was called."

ONLY "ELDERS, PRIESTS AND TEACHERS."

Elder Whitmer reiterates on page 60 his statement that the Church of Christ should have only "Elders, Priests and Teachers" in it. "Now brethren, the Church of Christ of old had in it only elders, priests and teachers."

He further charges that Joseph Smith and others struck out from one of the revelations a paragraph which reads thus:

"And thus, if the people of this generation harden not their hearts, I will work a reformation among them, and I will put down all lyings, etc.,

* * * and I will establish my church, LIKE UNTO THE CHURCH WHICH WAS TAUGHT BY MY DISCIPLES IN THE DAYS OF OLD."—Address, page 60.

It may be that we do not comprehend the object had in view by Elder Whitmer in quoting this from the Book of Commandments, chapter 4, par. 5, and in so greatly emphasizing the latter part of the quotation; but we think we discover that the following occurring after the word "lyings" was omitted by him, "and deceivings, and priestcrafts, and envyings, and strifes, and idolatries, and sorceries, and all manner of iniquities."

Immediately following this, Elder Whitmer says:

"They knew that the order of offices in the Church of Latter Day Saints, was not like the order of the Church of Christ of old; because the Church of Christ of old had in it only elders, priests and teachers."—Address, page 60.

Whatever purpose those may have had in leaving this part of the revelation out of the Doctrine and Covenants, of 1835, it must signally fail to help Elder Whitmer's object.

APOSTLES IN THE CHURCH AT JERUSALEM.

It should be well known to all who read the Scriptures that when Christ began his ministry the first men whom he called into active church work were the Twelve; and no matter what Elder Whitmer may now seek to call them, they were then known as apostles. They are so called in the Book of Mormon, by the angel of the Lord. See 1 Nephi 3:19, 20.

They are called apostles in Matt. 10:2; and in Acts 8:14, and Luke 6:13, "Whom also he [Christ] named apostles."

Paul and Barnabas were called unto the office of apostles by the voice of the Spirit. In Acts 13, the word was given: "The Holy Ghost said separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them."

He was recognized as an apostle in Romans 1:1, and other of the epistles. And in the revelation referred to in which Oliver Cowdery and David Whitmer were commanded to search out those who were to be the Twelve, who were to be called to declare the gospel, it is stated that Paul was an apostle,—the Lord calling him "mine apostle Paul."

Whatever then was the calling and priesthood of Paul, that was the calling, that the priesthood unto which Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, as well as the Twelve, whose duty it was to be to ordain Elders, Priests and Teachers, were called. Not long after the Twelve were called by Jesus into his ministry, he called others who were seventys; and it is not until Paul's day that elders were ordained in every "church" and in every "city." Acts 14:23, and Titus 1:5.

It seems strange, exceedingly strange that so devout a believer in the Book of Mormon, so shrewd an observer of rules, customs and usages as Elder Whitmer would have us to believe he is, should be so careless a reader, or so forgetful as to permit himself to so directly deny the plain statements of common Scripture.

APOSTLES IN THE CHURCH IN THIS LAND.

When Jesus commenced his work on this land he proceeded in a similar way. There were those who preceded him, who taught the great work he would do, and that would be done in his name and cause. He proceeded in a similar way as on the other land. He called to him twelve to be his disciples; and there is reason to believe that as he ordained the disciples at Jerusalem, so did he also those whom he chose on this land. Of those at Jerusalem it is said that "he breathed on them, and said, receive ye the Holy Ghost."

He first called Nephi out from the multitude and gave him power to baptize; after this he called others, Book of Nephi 5:8. He called twelve, and of them said: "Blessed are ye if ye shall give heed unto the words of these twelve whom I have chosen from among you to minister unto you, and to be your servants; and unto them I have given power, that they may baptize you with water."—Book of Nephi 5:9.

ONE MAN CALLED.

When administering the bread and wine to the multitude, as related in Book of Nephi 8:6, Jesus charged them, "Behold there shall be one ordained among you, and to him will I give power that he shall break bread, and bless it, and give it unto the people of my church, unto all those who shall believe and be baptized in my name."

This breaks the force of Elder Whitmer's statement and argument, if it may be called an argument, that there was no such thing as any one man being given more prominence than another in the church. For it provides that one should be chosen from among the disciples. The names of these twelve given in their order, were: Nephi, Timothy, Jonas, Mathoni, Mathonihah, Kumen, Kumenonhi, Jeremiah, Shemnon, Jonas, Zedekiah and Isaiah. These were baptized and received the Holy Ghost.

Moroni writing of the things which he deemed essential to be remembered, says; "And now I would commend you to seek this Jesus of whom the prophets and apostles have written." What goes before indicates that the "prophets and apostles" whom he refers to were those of whose writings he had been considering.—Ether 5:4. It is further in point that when they died or were removed others succeeded them who were also ordained.

JESUS ON THE APOSTOLATE.

It is fitting to close the evidence on this point by reference to Moroni, second chapter, where the writer states that the words of Christ, which he spoke to his disciples at the time he called them, but which the rest did not hear at the time, were those in which he charged them what to do, and said; "for thus do mine apostles."

This has great significance for this reason; it is a statement made by the Savior in regard to the work and calling of those called by him as especial witnesses, the twelve, and is not confined to those at Jerusalem; for there is no reference to them, more than others, but a comprehensive declaration having application to all, in every place and every dispensation, who are called to be apostles.

APOSTLES IN THE CHURCH NOW.

The Twelve chosen in the rise of the church were called and ordained to the office of apostles; and in the disputed section concerning the organization of the church, and as it appears in Book of Commandments, chapter 24, it is distinctly stated that Joseph Smith was "called of God and ordained an apostle of Jesus Christ;" and a similar statement is made of Oliver Cowdery. This fixes it that these men were ordained unto the calling of apostles, the same office and calling held by the apostle Paul, the same as that of all whom the Savior called "mine apostles."

SEVENTEENTH SECTION DOCTRINE AND COVENANTS.

Of the date of the reception of this section Joseph Smith states:

"In this manner did the Lord continue to give us instructions from time to time, concerning the duties which now devolved upon us, and among many other things of the kind, we obtained of him the following by the spirit of prophecy and revelation; which not only gave us much information, but also pointed out to us the precise day upon which, according to his will and commandment we should proceed to organize his church once again, here upon the earth." Times and Seasons, Vol. 3. p 928-9.

This shows that between the date of the revelation of June 1829 and April 1830 the subject matter of this section including the day on which the church should be organized was given; notwithstanding the apparent discrepancy of dates.

In regard to this chapter 24, which is the 17th section in Doctrine and Covenants now used in the church, and section 2 in the edition of 1835. Elder Whitmer states on page 61 of his "Address."

"This revelation was received in June, 1830, and these two paragraphs [16 and 17.—Ed] were added in June, 1832, in that paper." [Evening and Morning Star.—Ed.] "W. W. Phelps is the one who printed this revelation in that paper with 'items' (paragraphs 16 and 17), added to it."—Address, pages 61 and 62.

We hope that Elder Whitmer will not charge us with misunderstanding what he has written on this point.

Elder Whitmer in his zeal to brand Joseph Smith as a falsifier of the commands of God, here makes a great mistake. The two paragraphs were not printed by W. W. Phelps, in the Evening and the Morning Star, in June, 1832, in "The Articles and Covenants of the Church;" and we can not help thinking that had Elder Whitmer not been so intent to destroy the character of Joseph Smith as a minister for Christ, he would not have made this mistake, for we printed the article in HERALD of April 9th of this year, as it was in the Evening and Morning Star for June, 1832 and 1833; and as it is in the reprint of the same paper, published in Kirtland, January, 1835, and in the Book of Commandments of 1833. Had Elder Whitmer noticed the fact that the Reorganization had put this whole dispute before the people in the real facts, without comment, he would have been saved the present humiliation of discovering that in order to make an argument against Joseph Smith in support of the charge that he was false to his duty, he has stated what is not correct. The idea evidently entertained by Elder Whitmer when he made this statement was that the statement made by Oliver Cowdery, who was the Editor of the Messenger and Advocate, in January, 1835, when this disputed section was first printed with paragraphs 16 and 17 in it, to the effect that the document as published in 1832 was "different from the original," must be set aside; and to do it makes the chapter to appear in 1832.

It is now no matter who was to be blamed for this error, if there was one. Oliver Cowdery states that the "previous print," referring to the only times it had ever been printed, was "different from the original." The original was not at Independence, but at Kirtland; and Oliver Cowdery states: "We have given them a careful comparison, assisted by individuals whose known integrity and ability is uncensurable."

This was in January, 1835, seven months before the Doctrine and Covenants was presented to the church for acceptance. And to us the statement of a man like Oliver Cowdery, equally blessed of God to be a witness to the Book of Mormon, as David Whitmer; one chosen to be a scribe in the work of translating, which David Whitmer was not; a man of sufficient ability to fill the editorial chair, and who was conversant with the matter of which he wrote at the time it occurred, is worth more than the statements and soft sophistry of Elder Whitmer, who, we believe, was a thousand miles away from Kirtland at the time. Elder Whitmer holds up his hands and says: "Brethren, don't put your trust in man;" and we accept the injunction and refuse to put our trust in David Whitmer when he makes statements which the records deny. The object sought, to make it appear that Joseph Smith had the article transcribed to be sent to Independence, and that it was correctly transcribed and correctly printed in June, 1832, and was afterwards changed by Joseph Smith to suit his sinister purpose fails, from the consideration that to make it Elder Whitmer misstates the facts.

Besides this; the article as it appears in the Star of June, 1832, is not like chapter 24 in Book of Commandments. Elder Whitmer states that the "revelations were printed in Book of Commandments correctly." He says on page 56 of the "Address," "By the providence of God I have one of the old Book of Commandments, published in 1833." To this we say, "by the providence of God" we have two of the same old books; and we are of the opinion that the one that the "providence of God" permitted Elder Whitmer to keep is like those we have, and closes on the 160th page with the 47 paragraph of chapter 45, leaving the revelation of September, 1831, unfinished. And when Elder Whitmer states that the work was completed he makes a mistake, which is inexcusable.

The publishers of the Evening and Morning Star, in their issue for May, 1833, state in reference to the Book of Commandments, then being printed in their office.

"The book from which this important revelation is taken, will be published in the course of the present year, at from 25 to 50 cents a copy. We regret that in consequence of circumstances not within our control, this book will not be offered to our brethren as soon as was anticipated. We beg their forbearance, and solicit an interest in their prayers, promising to use our exertions with all our means to accomplish the work."

It was not then complete, nor was it July 20th when the press was destroyed; together with the sheets of the book as far as printed.

COMMAND TO PUBLISH.

Respecting the publishing of the revelations in a book, the preface to the Book of Commandments is the authority which Joseph Smith and others had for that very work. "Hearken, O ye people of my church, saith the voice of him who dwells on high, and whose eyes are upon all men; yea, verily I say, hearken ye people from afar, and ye that are upon the islands of the sea, listen together, for verily the voice of the Lord is unto all men." * * * "Behold, this is mine authority, and the authority of my servants, and my preface unto the Book of my Commandments, which I have given them to publish unto you, O inhabitants of the earth." "Wherefore the voice of the Lord is unto the ends of the earth, that all that will hear may hear." "Wherefore I the Lord, knowing the calamity which should come upon the inhabitants of the earth, called upon my servant Joseph, and spake unto him from heaven, and gave him commandments; and also gave commandments to others, that they should proclaim these things unto the world."

The object to be accomplished by this, so far as the servants referred to are concerned, is shown in paragraph 5. "And also, those to whom these commandments were given, might have power to lay the foundation of this church, and to bring it forth out of obscurity, and out of darkness." &c.

Here is positive and direct commandment to publish the commandments, not only to the church, but also to the "inhabitants of the earth;" and if the citizens of Missouri were inhabitants of the earth it meant them also. It is simply nonsense to charge that it was for this act of publishing the revelations in a book that the Saints were mobbed and driven out of Independence, Mo., or from any where else, for that matter.

There was no more harm in compiling them in a book than there was in printing them in the organ of the church Evening and Morning Star, and Messenger and Advocate; which was constantly being done in the Star. Original copies of the Star for 1832 and 33, are in our possession; and in the June number for 1832 the section referred to is published, and closes with what is section twenty in our Doctrine and Covenants; and chapter twenty-three in Book of Commandments. In June, 1833, it was published in the same paper and this chapter 23 left out, as it is in Book of Commandments. This Evening and Morning Star is a paper of similar form and size of the present HERALD. There were but fourteen numbers issued, beginning in June, 1832, and closing July, 1833.

ALL THINGS WRITTEN.

Elder Whitmer errs again when he says on page 58 of "Address" that the words "in them are all things written concerning my church, my gospel, and my rock," means "the plates,—the Book of Mormon." It is not possible that Elder Whitmer could have forgotten that the "record of the Jew" had been written, and that the Book of Mormon was to be taught in connection with that record; and that the two sticks were to grow together to the confounding of false doctrine. If he did he may now be reminded that the "things written" must have included the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the commands of God to his servants on this land and in this dispensation. This is the most reasonable conclusion; but is too wide to suit the views of Elder Whitmer. We very much fear that one of the reasons why Elder Whitmer was displeased with Joseph Smith was that the latter would not listen to him instead of listening to other men if led by either, which we deny. Had he listened and been led by Elder Whitmer rather than by Sidney Rigdon, Oliver Cowdery, and others, there might have been amicable relations between them until the prophet's death. Elder Whitmer says, "Poor Joseph! He was blinded and became ensnared by proud, ambitious men. I labored hard with him to get him to see it— from 1835."

In this we discover that Elder David Whitmer's remarkable intervention began in 1835. He continued with the church; holding the offices conferred on him by Joseph Smith, or by reason of his connection with Joseph Smith until 1838. His name is enrolled on the list of Elders whose licences were recorded in the preceding quarter on the Licence Records of the church and published in the Messenger and Advocate, June, 1836; showing that up to that date he was still in the faith and fellowship. In July 1834 David Whitmer was chosen president, W. W. Phelps and John Whitmer assistant presidents of a High Council organized from an assemblage of High Priests, D. Whitmer being one of them, and in this capacity he acted for some time. The organization took place July 3d, 1834, in Clay county, Missouri. Times and Seasons, vol. 6, pages 1109 and 1110. He continued with the church acting in his office until April, 1838, when for reasons that must have been considered good by those who did it, he was cut off the church. He now states that in June of the same year the Lord told him to "separate himself from" the Latter Day Saints. It would have had more weight, so far as circumstance could add to a statement, if the command of the Lord to so separate himself from the church had come before the church had "cut him off." We do not justify any persecution that Elder Whitmer and others suffered at the hands of their brethren. It was the fashion of the times to hurl opprobrious epithets at those who backslid, or left the church, and was wrong in principle and bad in practice, no matter who practiced it. But the fact remains as stated.

CHURCH BUILDING BY D. WHITMER.

Elder Whitmer has engaged in attempts to build up a church before this last revival; and was baptized and ordained by Elder W. E. McLellin in 1847, who was himself cut off the church in May, 1838. This baptism seems to have resulted from what W. E. McLellin states was received by him at Kirtland in February, 1847; as recorded by him in The Ensign of Liberty, published by him in that year. It is as follows:

"And as to our baptisms the Lord said, 'It is my will inasmuch as you have taken upon you my name that you should now be freed from all your dead works, from all evil spirits, and from all unrighteousness, by being born into my church by obedience to the ordinances of baptism and confirmation, that I may build up unto myself a holy people, zealous of good works.'"

On February 13th, 1847, M. Harris, W. E. McLellin and two others were immersed, confirmed and reordained to the same authority which they held while in the church before.

On September 6th and 7th, 1847, a conference was held in Far West, between W. E. McLellin, David, Jacob and John Whitmer and Hiram Page, apparently at the house of John Whitmer. At this conference, W. E. McLellin read a revelation said to have been received by him in February at Kirtland, which was approved by those present. In this revelation, so called, W. E. McLellin was commanded to baptize, confirm and re-ordain Martin Harris, and L. Rich, etc. This had been done, and the visit to David Whitmer was the result. At the close of this communication is the following:

"And now concerning the authority of my servant, David, I would say unto you that no man being directed by my spirit will ever condemn what my spirit now teaches you. Go forward then, that my designs in the work of the last days may prosper in your hands. And now I say unto you, to always trust in me, and you shall never be confounded, world's without end, amen."

This was agreed to and the parties covenanted to lay the matter before the Lord and abide by what should be revealed unto them. W. E. McLellin was to write, and he states that "what followed was delivered solely through David Whitmer, as revelator." From this communication thus written we quote:

"Therefore I the Lord have dealt so marvelously with my servant William. [W. E. McLellin Ed]. Therefore I have poured out my Spirit upon him from time to time, that the 'man of sin' might be revealed through him. To him I have given my Holy Spirit. I have inspired his heart to discern the true principles of my kingdom, that he may again build up my church as from the beginning. Therefore I have inspired him to build it up according to my law. Therefore he shall continue to do all things according to the pattern I have shown to him."

W. E. McLellin was commanded to return to Kirtland and build up there. This distressed him some, as he had concluded that David Whitmer would return with him making Kirtland the center. But David spoke again in the name of the Lord:

"Therefore as I had built up my kingdom according to my holy order, and placed you upon this land, and consecrated you to the holy order of my priesthood, therefore my servant David if thou shouldst leave this land, and those of thy brethren who have remained with thee, then you shall forfeit your right and make the word of God of none effect."

But W. E. McLellin was not yet satisfied, for he "said in his heart:" "If thou hast a word of intelligence more for me, reveal it, O reveal it now to me." To this says the writer, "The Lord through his servant David, made known, while I wrote the following."

"Verily, verily thus saith the Lord your God, unto my servant William, as I have shown unto you at many a time by the power of my Spirit, that I have called you to my work." * * * "Therefore I have given you the pattern, and the power, and the wisdom, and the understanding, to build up my church in Kirtland to be a standard and a light to the inhabitants of the earth, that they may know that the Church of Christ is established here on earth. And I the Lord will that you should teach my servants at Kirtland, and elsewhere, to adhere to the order of my church as it is written in the holy Scriptures; that all who have not obeyed the gospel in my church may be taught the principles of my church in the light of truth and righteousness, in all holiness and meekness before me, saith your God. For it is wisdom in me saith the Lord, that my people who name my name should observe harmony and good order, that the truth of God may prevail among the children of men."

D. WHITMER BAPTIZED AND ORDAINED BY W. E. M'LELLIN.

The next day they went to the water about a mile distant and the four, David, Jacob and John Whitmer and Hiram Page,—were baptized by W. E. McLellin. This would be September 8th, 1847. They returned to the house, partook of bread and wine and then W. E. McLellin confirmed the four. "And then, as directed," the record continues,

"I ordained H. Page to the office of High Priest, in the holy priesthood which is after the order of the Son of God, and we two ordained Jacob Whitmer to the same office. Then we all laid hands on John Whitmer and re-ordained him to the priesthood, and to be counsellor to David in the first presidency of the church. And then with the most solemn feelings which I ever experienced, we stepped forward and all laid hands upon David and re-ordained him to all the gifts and callings to which he had been appointed through Joseph Smith, in the general assembly of the inhabitants of Zion, in July, 1834."

The gifts and callings here referred to are those conferred upon him as a High Priest and president of a High Council; and being in 1834, and endorsed by the revelation given by D. Whitmer, in the name of the Lord, sanctions the work done by Joseph Smith, up to that date; and flatly contradicts, both by the occurrence at the time, and the re-ordination endorsed by the revelation of 1847, the statement of D. Whitmer that the placing of High Priests in the church by Joseph Smith was an error and was a sin of blindness and darkness, a trick of Satan, &c.

After this David Whitmer gave to W. E. McLellin another revelation in which the following is the prominent point:

"And thou shalt teach them to instruct all men that they are only called to preach the gospel, and build up the church of Christ here on earth, according to that which is written. Now I say unto you, my servant William, to thee have I given wisdom and light, therefore teach them in spirit and in truth, and thou shalt be blessed in thy calling."

WISDOM OF W. E. M'LELLIN.

On the first page of this number of the Ensign of Liberty, we have the statement:

"But we have full confidence in the high priesthood which is after the holy order of the Son of God. And we now hold the opinion that all the offices necessary for the government of the church, exist in the priesthood, even from the deacon's office to the office of the first President of the whole church."

ELDER D. WHITMER AS HE WAS.

We have no apology to offer for thus obtruding all this upon the HERALD readers; but as Elder Whitmer is so roundly decrying the work of Joseph Smith because of his having committed errors and made mistakes as he alleges, we think it well that we know the man as he is and has been. We here discover that about the date which he fixes as the one when he was shown all the errors of Joseph Smith, he heard and endorsed a revelation coming through W. E. McLellin, which commanded him to proceed to do certain work. In doing this work W. E. McLellin baptized David Whitmer and ordained him to the office of High Priest, and to be president of the Church of Christ, an order which he now says is not in the church. More than this; David Whitmer received, ostensibly from the same spirit and source, a communication endorsing the call of W. E. McLellin, and the work done under it at Kirtland, in which Martin Harris, Leonard Rich and Aaron Smith were baptized, confirmed and re-ordained to the offices they held in the church before. On page one of the Ensign of Liberty, for volume one, number four, from which we quote, we have a treatise on the priesthood; by the wisdom which the revelation of David Whitmer says the Lord had given W. E. McLellin:

PRIESTHOOD BY W. E. M'LELLIN.

"Priesthood is an order of ministry set apart for holy offices. There are in the Church of Christ two priesthoods, viz; the Melchisedec and the Aaronic, or Levitical. Each of these has in it officers or ministers of different grades, with special duties.—The high priesthood after the order of Melchisedec has in it the offices of Seer, Translator, President, Counselor, Apostle, High Priest, Evangelist, and Elder. The lesser or Aaronic priesthood has in it the offices of Bishop, Priest, Teacher and Deacon. In both orders each officer, or minister in his office, has marked and specific duties attached to it, which are peculiar only to that grade or station.

The Seer, who is always in a gospel age, the first president and head of the whole church, holds the gift, or keys of interpreting ancient languages and records, therefore he holds and of necessity acts in the office of translator. He holds the keys of the mysteries of the kingdom, even the key of the knowledge of God, and the keys also of all the spiritual blessings of the church. His office is the most important of any ever given to man on the earth. From him comes the administering of ordinances and blessings in the church in all spiritual matters. All other offices in this gathering dispensation in the Melchisedec order of priesthood, are assistants to the head, seer, and first president, in order to carry out the great work confided to their charge in this "dispensation of the fulness of times," in which they live: each one acting in his proper place according to the dignity of his station. But this priesthood itself is equal unto all those who receive it. All the priests in this order are made after the power of an endless life. It is an unchangeable priesthood. It is a royal priesthood. It comes not by descent from Aaron, nor does it descend from father to son, but is without beginning of days or end of years. And without this priesthood no man can see the face of God, even the Father, and live. Each one who receives any office in this priesthood, does it by his own faith of Christ.

"The Bishop is the head over all temporal matters of the church. He is president over all those who are ministers in any office of the lesser priesthood. He must sit in council with them, and teach them the duties of their calling. He is to be a judge, even a common judge in Israel, and with his counselors is to constitute a court, to sit in judgment upon transgressors, and to condemn or acquit them, according to the testimony as it shall be laid before him according to the laws of the kingdom. He holds the keys of administering in all temporal matters, in and for the church. To him all consecrations of property for church purposes should be made. He it is, with his two counselors, who should be "Trustee in trust," to hold all deeds, gifts, donations, consecrations, &c., made for church purposes, for the whole church. He it is who holds the power to humble the rich, and to exalt the poor by establishing in the church the laws of industry, economy and equality among all its members. And he is to have a knowledge of all these things pertaining to his duty by the spirit of revelation from God. All the other officers in the lesser priesthood are helps to the Bishop and his counselors, in the administration of all the laws and rules governing this order of priesthood. And thus the Bishop and all over whom he presides, stand as helps to the Melchisedec priesthood, which priesthood is after the holiest order of the Son of God, in building up, establishing and governing the true church of the Lamb of God in all things both spiritual and temporal, in all the world; so that she may be prepared as a bride adorned for her husband, when Jesus comes to the great marriage feast, to receive her to himself, in order to dwell with her in perfect peace for one thousand years."

We neither endorse nor condemn the spirit by which the foregoing was written; neither do we endorse nor condemn any of these revelations; we propose to let them stand upon the arbitrament of time. Our object is this: Elder Whitmer now tells the Saints and believers in the Bible, Book of Mormon, and the Doctrine and Covenants that he is directed by the Spirit of God to tell them the errors of Joseph Smith; and in doing this to tell them which of the revelations given to the church through Joseph Smith are of God, leaving it as his inference that the rest are either of man, or from the devil. He states that he received this knowledge in 1847—to 1849. We discover him in 1847 accepting an ordination to the high priesthood, to be the First President of the church; and while ostensibly acting in this office he gave a revelation endorsing W. E. McLellan, and declaring that he had the wisdom and light to set the work of the church before its ministers and the world. By reference to what this wisdom and light presented, we discover a complete endorsement of the two priesthoods in the church, and the officers in those priesthoods, now declared by David Whitmer not to belong in the church at all. This suggests the inquiry, what spirit was Elder Whitmer of when he gave this revelation to W. E. McLellan; and by what spirit is he now led.

WORDS AS FROM GOD'S OWN MOUTH.

In this connection we suggest that when Elder Whitmer gives us to understand that the revelations given by Joseph Smith as "mouth piece" were the ones by which "new doctrines and offices which disagree with the new covenant in the Book of Mormon and New Testament, were introduced into the church," (See "Address" p. 32); and that those received through the "stone" were the only ones to be relied upon, and the ones to govern us in church work, he endorses all that came up to the date fixed by him when he says Joseph Smith gave up the "stone." If David Whitmer had there let the matter rest, we might have thought him consistent, in a sense at least; but he states that Joseph Smith received a revelation, (which was never published by the way), through the "stone," that some should go to Canada and sell the copyright of the Book of Mormon; and that this revelation was a bad one, the men who went failing of their mission. To answer this Joseph Smith again consulted the stone and received a revelation that Elder Whitmer prints in italics, on page 31 of his "Address," and endorses, "Some revelations are of God: some revelations are of man: and some revelations are of the devil."

Elder Whitmer asks us to believe that the revelation to go to Canada was of the devil, or of man. This revelation came through the stone, as he states. Why not believe then that all the rest of the revelations received through the stone were of the same character, from the same source, and subject to the same objections as those received afterwards when Elder Whitmer says Joseph spoke as "mouthpiece."

Elder Whitmer uses this revelation about communications being of God, the devil or man, frequently in his "Address," and in an insinuating manner gives his readers to understand that what he now denounces was of the devil—or of man. To show that we do not misread Elder Whitmer on this point, we quote from page 31, "Address," near bottom of page:

"I could tell you other false revelations that came through Brother Joseph as mouthpiece, (not through the stone), but this will suffice."

Elder Whitmer makes a statement running all through his "Address," that the idea and principle was that the members of the church were to receive what Joseph Smith presented, as "from God's own mouth;" no matter whether it was by inspiration from God, or not. This is a mistake. No such principle was ever taught. The Lord said to the church through him that what Joseph Smith declared to them as he received it from God that they were to receive as from the mouth of God. This is the whole rock of offence found in the faith of the church, in this regard. There never was, there is not now, there never will be such a principle prevailing as that the words, directions, commandments of any man in an un-inspired condition should be taken as the commands, directions and words from God's own mouth. Elder Whitmer stultifies his own sense of right dealing, and insults the common intelligence of those whom he professes to love so dearly, when he states such a thing, or allows such an inference to be drawn from his statements. If any such sentiment ever had existence among the people of the church organized 1830, it existed only with a few and never among the intelligent ones, nor with the mass. Elder Whitmer has written his "Address" in such a manner as to convey the impression that the men associated with Joseph Smith were a set of dupes, (himself possibly excepted), who allowed themselves to be led into all manner of error and darkness by Joseph Smith, he being led and duped by Sidney Rigdon. Those who choose to accept this idea of it may; but we do not now believe it; nor have we ever believed it. Elder Whitmer says that he wonders why the editor of the HERALD can not see that he loves Joseph Smith, and loves his son. But, we can not see that love manifests itself in such way. Forty-three years after Joseph Smith is in his grave, into which he fell by assassination while teaching and living in defence of the principles of faith, doctrine and church organization which he had taught from 1829 to 1838, during which time Elder Whitmer was associated with him, and from that time to June 27th, 1844, Elder Whitmer comes out with an attack upon his work, affecting his character for sincerity, truthfulness and honesty of purpose and action, and deliberately proceeds to declare him the dupe of Sidney Rigdon, the slave of his own ambition, and the victim of the wiles of the devil; deceiving the people, violating the commands of God, introducing doctrines and offices and ordinances into the church not authorized of God, and assuming to lord it over the heritage of God. And this he does professing to love Joseph Smith; and expresses wonder that the son of Joseph Smith can not understand that he does love his father. The avowed enemies of Joseph Smith, and his work, from Dr. Hurlbut, to the last play of "The Danites;" have been using the same arguments, presenting the same sort of statements, and they hated Joseph Smith, and have had no love for his son; and the son can not understand how they hate him. Whom the Lord loves he may chasten; but he does not destroy. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad."

"Charity suffereth long and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

It will soon be fifty years since Elder Whitmer ceased to walk with any body of believers in the latter day work; forty-nine years this June. During all these years he has seen men once associated with him doing the best they could to carry on the work originating in the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, of which work D. Whitmer was an honorable partaker, and has carefully abstained from aiding them; and now when he sees a body of them successfully stemming the tide of evil, reproach and bad work that has been setting in against the work, he comes out of his seclusion throwing distrust and suspicion upon all the work in a misguided, misdirected effort to set the men doing this successful work right on what he wrongfully calls the "errors" of "poor," "blinded" "brother Joseph." For us, we hope, that when we are in the grave, should we chance to die before our work is accomplished, (as it may be supposed), there will no one of our present associates arise and spoil the splendid effort at image smashing that he may believe he has the opportunity to make, by such pity as that.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. D. S. MILLS wrote to us May 21st, from Council Bluffs, that he had a profitable time with the Saints at Lucas, also with friends at Dow City. He was to preach in Council Bluffs, Sunday, the 22d, morning and evening; and then start on to Elko, Nevada, and California.

Bro. H. P. Brown writes from Oakland, California, May 21st. He had preached the previous Sunday at Stockton. One person was to be baptized the following Tuesday, and a few were soon to be baptized at Sacramento. Bro. John Parson would leave at once for Stockton, to preach there and at other points in the district, and prospects were good for a revival of church work generally.

Mrs. Sarah Allen writes May 17th, from Springfield, Bonhomme county, Dakota: "I can not do without the Herald. I do not belong to the church, but will if I get a chance to join. I would like to see an elder come here."

Bro. C. G. Lanphear wrote us from Vermillion, Oswego county, New York, May 19th. He has been busily engaged visiting, preaching, and circulating church works, first in Chautauqua county, New York, then in Erie and Warren counties, Pennsylvania, then in Steuben county, New York, from whence he was called to administer to Bro. Whitehead, whom he reports some better. He also called on Bro. and Sr. Seelye, at Savannah, Wayne county, and he writes in grateful terms of those he met, both Saints and others, and he feels confident that the seeds of saving truth are finding lodgement in many honest hearts in all those regions.

Bro. J. C. Clapp was preaching at Pleasant Grove, Utah the 18th of May, and reports fine prospects.

Bro. E. C. Briggs was in Philadelphia, Pa., May 17th, expected to be in Brooklyn, New York, Friday the 20th, to remain till the Wednesday following. He found the Saints in Pittsburg, Pa., in good spirits, but says they need efficient help, as the harvest work is great, and he desires an able minister for Philadelphia, also, and says there is a good feeling among the Saints at that place, and he hopes to see the work progress.

Bro. and Sr. B. V. Springer reached Coldwater, Michigan, Saturday, May 21st, in fine health and spirits, and with good prospects. They hoped to be at the Clear Lake, Indiana, conference.

Bro. D. H. Proper, of Galien, Michigan, writes that he feels greatly strengthened since attending the late Kirtland conference. Yes, brother Daniel, and there are many more just like you in that matter.

Bro. N. Stamm was at Des Moines, Iowa, the 20th. Had been actively engaged preaching of late, felt well blest in his labors and intends to do all he can for the Master.

FREE TRACTS.—We are now prepared to furnish tracts free for distribution. Care should be used that none go to waste, but that they be placed "where they will do the most good." A wise selection prudently used, will go far in aiding the ministry of the word and the building up of the church. Send up your orders to D. Dancer, box 82, Lamoni, Decatur county, Iowa.

"MANY MICKLES MAKE A MUCKLE."

WE are frequently brought face to face with the power of small things, but the following, short but directly practical sermon on the power of the dime, ought to be worth the price of the HERALD, over and over again to many a habit-ridden Latter Day Saint. We see on the streets of Lamoni, nearly every day, from one to several young men who have a quid of tobacco between their teeth almost constantly, and often a cigar for which somebody has paid the nickle or the dime. We hear these same young men talking about the hard times, and poorness of wages; some of them are out at the knees and the elbows, but they must have the tobacco, they could not do without it. We know good, honest, industrious men, who laboring all the time can hardly "make both ends meet," as the saying is, and whose children are almost ragged and barefoot, but who spend from half to quite as much for tobacco, chewing and smoking, as would pay for all the shoes the whole family would wear; or as would keep the family in flour for the year. Somebody will have to meet the bills of such extravagance as this, and answer for the moral sin as well. To the looker-on it appears very singular that men, wearing the garb of well meaning men, can be found so forgetful of the love that they should bear to their wife and children as to be guilty of such abominable selfishness. Here are the unanswerable figures—how do you like them, Latter Day Saints.

We now sport a nice milch cow. How did we get her? Bought her. Paid $40 for her, the whole amount being 10 cents per day savings since March 6th, 1886. On that day a friend of ours insisted on "treating" us to a smoke as it was our birthday, but we refused the kindness, informing him, courteously, that we had never smoked a cigar, to which he replied that he averaged from one to three per day, at a cost of 5 to 20 cents each day and that he never missed the small change. We told him then that from that day we would lay away 10 cents per day as long as we were able to do so and see how much it would amount to each year. We have kept it up to date, and as a consequence we have a fine Durham cow and calf bought with 400 ten-cent pieces. Small business isn't it? Well, properly kept up it will result in something large, and while our friend who, no doubt, will see this article, can show nothing for his thirteen months of smoking, but cigar stubs, and, perhaps, impaired health, we can show a good cow and calf, worth $45 in cash.

WHICH IS "THE TRUE RELIGION?"

THE Presbyterian assembly in session at Omaha, Nebraska, May 24th adopted the following:

"We also recommend that the general assembly proclaim to the Christian world its statement of principles whereby in its judgment practical church unity can be realized and maintained: (1) All believers in Christ constitute one body, mystical, yet real, and destined to grow into the fullness of Him who filleth in all. (2) The universal visible church consists of all those throughout the world who profess the true religion, together with their children. (3) Mutual recognition and reciprocity between the two bodies who profess the true religion is the first and the essential step toward practical church unity."

But who shall decide which of the multitudinous and various systems is "the true religion?" If this was authoritatively and satisfactorily settled with all concerned, then unity could be easily effected. But it is not, and this proclamation of the Presbyterian Assembly is of little value only in expressing the fact and the evil of a divided Christian religion—so-called.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. J. M. Terry, of Stewartville, Missouri, speaks in high terms of the efforts of Bro. E. L. Kelley in their place, and says of that and other matters:

Bro. E. L. Kelley has been with us laboring in his calling, and has accomplished much good in this branch. I hope the seeds of peace sown by him may yield abundant fruit. We are glad he came. May God's blessing be with him wherever he goes. A few here are investigating, and some seem near the kingdom. The Lord has spoken to us by his Spirit, rebuking severely for neglect of duty and stiff-neckedness. May we heed the warning voice. The dawning of a brighter day is confidently looked for by the writer. The sifting time is here—who shall stand!

We have been blessed here with copious showers, and the prospects are bright for good crops, but who knows what may yet occur.

I would say to the Third Quorum, that I sent up all the reports received by me, but there were not enough members there to hold a quorum meeting, hence their non-appearance in the minutes.

Bro. J. J. Cornish wrote from Bayport, Michigan, May 21st:

"The Saints are all right here except one or two. Otherwise they are rejoicing in the great latter day work. It was a time of rejoicing when we met. I hear some more are to be baptized to-morrow. Oh! how I was blessed by the Master in preaching the word last night. Great good was done."

Sr. Charlotte Stewart, of Diamond, Ohio, writes us May 22d, and says:

"If any of our ministers are near Marion, Marion county, Kansas, or can make it convenient to call there, they will please address James D. Waite, and he will meet them there, as his wife and himself wish to be baptized. She heard Bro. E. C. Briggs preach nineteen years ago, and has never been a Methodist since, nor joined any denomination."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—Are the poor among the Saints entitled to any of the benefits accruing from the poor funds collected under the laws of the state?

Ans.—Yes.

Q.—How shall those wishing relief from such fund proceed to secure it?

A.—Make the necessary application to the Township officers whose duty it is to see to the fund.

Q.—Should there be any hesitancy on the part of the Saints to so apply?

A.—No; where there is a necessity for aid beyond what the relatives and immediate friends of the person in distress may and are able to afford.

Q.—Is it not expected that the Saints shall take care of their poor and helpless ones without subjecting them to the indignity of going to the poorhouse of the county?

A.—The Saints do, so far as they are able, look after the necessities of their poor; but it sometimes occurs that the burden of such care falls upon those who are in ill circumstances and can not give either of time or means without incurring distress; and in such cases there should be no reason why the help provided by the State should not be applied for and received. The Saints are expected to pay their proportion of taxes, including the fund for the indigent and helpless of society; and it is a hardship to pay this tax and then care for their poor altogether, ignoring the help to which they are entitled from the State. The law of the church, and the obligation of the covenant of peace, require us to impart of our substance for the benefit of the poor and needy, and this we must never neglect; but while doing this, duty, common sense and wisdom all require that we should avail ourselves of the privileges and benefits of citizens of the country as well as to bear its burdens and be subject to its disabilities.

INTELLIGENCE from the Holy Land informs us that in Jerusalem, in the streets once trod by King David, may be heard the shrill whistle of the steam engine. The city has, in the last twenty-five years, doubled its number of buildings and in other respects keeps pace with the great cities of the modern world.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Our outward lips confess the name
All other names above;
Love only knoweth whence it came,
And comprehendeth love.
Blow winds of God, awake and blow
The mists of earth away!
Shine out, O, Light Divine, and show
How wide and far we stray!"

THE MOTHER OF MOSES.

AMONG the many touching and beautiful incidents of Hebrew history, to us there is none more so than the almost unwritten one of the mother of Moses. Groaning under the heavy yoke of Egyptian bondage, toiling from early morn until late at night, at tasks utterly uncongenial to them (for hitherto their labor had been among flocks and herds in the green and fertile pastures of the land), there was added unto them this heavier bondage—the sanctuary of their homes was invaded and from them was snatched their little ones before they should ever know a mother's kiss or be placed in a proud father's arms. From the hour when the promise had been given unto Adam, "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpents head," upon that promise all who had any knowledge of God relied. It was the beacon star of their lives—the one light shining in the darkness which followed the wreck and ruin of the fall. "I have gotten a man from the Lord," was the joyful exclamation of Eve, when her first son came to her. Alas, she was even then looking forward to the near fulfillment of the promise, not knowing the centuries upon centuries which must roll away; the grief and agony with which this very son should wring her own heart; nor yet the untold sin and misery of unborn generations, who should yet drink the bitter cup her disobedience had prepared for them.

From the time that the Hebrews became a nation, the crowning glory of woman was her motherhood; and who shall say that the undefined hope of giving birth to the Messiah, may not have formed a part of the intense longing for children and the pride a Hebrew mother felt when sons or daughters were given to her? Moses was not the first born of his parents, for when the infant was hid among the rushes of the Nile, Miriam, his sister, was old enough to watch over him. Paul tells us that, "by faith Moses was hid three months of his parents, because they saw that he was a proper child, and they were not afraid of the king's commandments." Why were they not afraid? These Hebrews under ordinary circumstances trembled before their taskmasters much more than would they fear the king who had placed these men over them, and who had power unlimited either to punish or to take their lives. It must be evident to the thoughtful reader of this history, that God had revealed himself to the parents of Moses, and in part at least they knew his designs respecting their son, for we are told that, "They hid him by faith," and the same apostle tells us that "Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God," for this reason we must conclude that the word of the Lord had come to them, therefore they had no fear of the king's commandment.

We have all thought the expression of the mother of Samuel, "Then will I give him unto the Lord all the days of his life," not only beautiful, but replete with the spirit of sacrifice and devotion; and truly it was, but let us see how much greater the faith and sacrifice demanded upon the part of the mother of Moses was.

Samuel remained with his mother until he was weaned, and when the time of parting came he was carried in her own arms to the house of God. Moses when but three months old was consigned to a comparatively unknown fate. Doubtless this was at the command of God, and we believe that the mother placed him in the little ark among the bulrushes with the same unhesitating faith and confidence in God which nerved the arm of Abraham when he raised the glittering knife above his only son, bound upon the altar of sacrifice; but looking upon it from a human standpoint, how did it appear? Granting that she had assurance from the Lord that her babe should be protected, what a trial of faith to place him in such a helpless position. Not only was he exposed to the attack of reptiles, but if he escaped these what would his after fate be? Should her arms ever be permitted to clasp him again, her eyes to rest upon his lovely form, or her lips to sing the low sweet lullaby which should soothe her babe to rest? Dear mothers of Zion, who have nursed your babes in years gone by, or who now press them against your bosoms, while your hearts throb almost to bursting with the mother love swelling and surging there, pause just long enough to put yourself in the place of this Hebrew mother who so many years ago laid upon the altar of God's love this sacrifice.

Was it ended when the babe was taken up by the daughter of Pharaoh? Was there ever a true mother who was willing to part with her child or who could without throbs of agony place it in the keeping of another, even if that other were a friend? But the daughter of Pharaoh was not the friend of this Hebrew woman; instead thereof she was the daughter of the proud and cruel oppressor, not only of herself, but people; and harder yet to bear she was a gross idolator, and knew nothing of the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Samuel was taken to the house of God and placed under the instruction of God's ministry, and greater honor than this was not to be conferred upon any one. Each year the mother of Samuel went up to see him, taking with her the little garments she had made; but there would be no such visits in store for the mother of Moses. Into the palace of the king the poor Hebrews went only as slaves. We read the history and are told the incidents, but with regard to all the emotion, doubts and fears moving upon the heart of the mother, history is silent. Was Miriam inspired of God to ask the question, "Shall I go and call thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?" or was it the quick intuition of here undeveloped womanhood which saw the opportunity of returning the bade to her own love and its mother's arms? History is silent upon this point also, but the daughter of Pharaoh said to her, "Go; and the maid went and called the child's mother."

Can we not fancy how the feet of that little maiden went as if winged? Have our own little daughters never flown to us with eager beaming faces and eyes flashing with joy, when we have read the good news before their lips could frame the words to utter it? Every mother will answer, Many and many a time; but when did they ever bring to us such news as this? Mother, oh mother, the king's daughter has sent me for you! She has found our baby and wants a nurse for it. Be quick mother, for he is crying and she sent me to bring a Hebrew nurse. Do you think her feet were slow to obey the summons? No mother will need to be told how with beating heart and trembling fingers she drew a covering about her head and followed the flying steps of her child. Robbed, as these poor women were being of their children, it was nothing strange to find a woman among them who, having lost her own babe, was prepared to nurse the child of another, so that when she came into the presence of the daughter of Pharaoh, the princess simply said to her, "Take this child away and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages."

While the heart of the mother must have been overflowing with gratitude to God, for the wonderful manner in which her babe had been restored to her arms, mingled with this must have come a realizing sense of the fact that from henceforth she was to be to her own child, only a hired nurse. Can we fancy a trial much greater than this, to the heart of a loving mother? "I will give thee thy wages." Would not the human nature of the woman cry out, Thy wages perish with thee, I want none of them? This beautiful boy belongs not to you, he is mine, God gave him to me, and I would sooner return him to God than have him grow up under your idolatrous teachings and become a worshiper of your gods. Keep your money but give me my child!

But this was not the working of faith in the heart of that noble woman. She had put her hand to the plow. "By faith Moses when he was born was hid three months of his parents," and now she was not going to turn back; for having begun in the Spirit of faith, she knew that she could not finish in the works of the flesh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Apr. 11th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—The Herald is an ever welcome visitor at our home. Its purity of tone is truly refreshing to me, and I rejoice knowing the work is true. When I read the "Home Column" and think there are so many mothers much like myself; it causes me to pray to our heavenly Father, that he will help all mothers to cultivate in their hearts the graces of patience and perseverance, that with his Holy Spirit we may be able to overcome the trials and temptations which we have to pass through and to prepare ourselves for the coming of our Master. May the Lord still bless you, and all who work with you, that you may be able to gather much good news for us from time to time, is my prayer.

Your sister in Christ,
LUCY F. BARRETT.

FULTON, Mar. 26th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—Some twenty years ago I, a child of about eight years of age, was baptized into the Janesville, Rock county, Wisconsin, branch of the church, of which my mother (Mrs. Martha Carrington) and dear old grandmother (Martha Gibbs) were faithful members; but I realized very little about the obligation assumed. They tried to bring me up in the way I should go, and I tried to follow their teachings. I always said my prayers and tried to do about what I thought was right, but I had very little chance to mingle with the Saints. I had never been really converted nor received the Holy Ghost, and as I grew older I knew I would like to be a Christian, but I heard the church ridiculed and I dreaded to encounter that, and I could not tell what church was the right one; so I rather stood still and tried to lead a good moral life, and wait for time to make me a Christian.

Remember, we had no preaching after I was quite young. I can remember Bro. Henry A. Stebbins, a very young minister at that time; and liked him and his sermons. I have not seen him for years, and have not had a chance to meet with Latter Day Saints, or partake of the sacrament for ten or eleven years; and should hardly have felt worthy to do so, for I did not fully believe; I always inclined to that church on account of the good life I saw my mother and grandmother leading; and I never doubted their sincerity. About five years ago Elder J. S. Patterson came to our house with Bro. O. N. Dutton, and he preached on the following Sabbath at Indian Ford, and my husband and I went (I was married nearly ten years ago, to a good, moral man but an unbeliever entirely) to hear him, and I liked his sermon very much. I believe if I could have heard more I should have been convinced, but perhaps the right time had not come; at any rate he did not preach again, and I have not heard a sermon since, only read them in the Herald. Two years ago grandma died satisfied with life, as she had had the promise. Her death touched me deeply, I wanted to have the faith of which I read and of which they told me. I prayed and thought, and prayed earnestly, but the way seemed no clearer than before.

This winter a good old man, a Primitive Methodist, has been holding revivals, with some younger men to aid him, and I think the Lord through them has done great good. They were in our School-house, and I began to realize how much I wanted to be on the Lord's side, yet I hardly knew what to do. To start all over again was to renounce what I had been; and if I was wrong, I wanted to renounce it; I was in trouble. The minister was very unprejudiced; he preached no creed, only asking them to repent and believe in Jesus and join whatever church they pleased. He had told us of calling in a Latter Day Saint elder when he was sick, and of being healed under his administration. I finally thought I must make a choice in some way, and

I went to the Lord with it in prayer. I prayed for that change, above everything else in this world, and I was right as far as I had gone, I prayed for that change—that baptism of the Holy Ghost which I had been baptized to receive, to come upon me at home, by myself; but if I needed to make a new start entirely, then that it might come upon me at meeting. But, praise His holy name, that divine spirit came upon me, almost unpowering me, while in prayer, alone in my bedroom; and I have felt my faith and trust in God, and love of Jesus increasing ever since. Of course dark clouds arise, and the way I can not expect to be always easy, but I do hope you and others there will pray for me, that I may receive more light, and never turn back.

Yours truly,
MRS. C. HOAGUE.

VALLEY VIEW, IOWA.

Dear Sr. Frances:—While reading Sr. Stuart's letter in Herald, March 16th, I felt like writing a few words. With her, I think all young people should at least be twenty before getting married. Under that age they are unfitted to take upon themselves the cares and responsibilities of wife and mother. They should first ask mother's advice about the matter, but should not make mother their only nor most confidential friend and adviser, for often times mother objects because the young man is not wealthy and she wishes her daughter to marry up into higher circles. Mothers forget it is not riches of gold that makes life and home happy. Let me say to all young people, go to your heavenly Father in prayer, and make him your most confidential friend and adviser. He will guide and direct you aright to one suitable for you, if you ask him, and do not seek for riches in this life, but seek to lay up treasures in the life eternal, where they will neither rust or decay. I think it every mother's duty to take their daughters with them into their daily household duties, and show them how to work, teach them the duties of a wife and mother, so that when they are of the age to take upon themselves the cares and responsibilities of this life, they will be enabled to set about them, making all things around them pleasant and comfortable, without feeling it a hard task resting upon them. Let us put our trust in God and go to him often in secret prayer, and he will stand by us when all others fail us. He will never leave nor forsake us.

'Father of love, our guide and friend,
Oh, lead us gently on;
Until life's trial-time shall end,
And heavenly peace be won.
We know not what the path may be,
As yet by us untrod;
But we can trust our all to thee
Our Father and our God.'

Praying God to bless all the workers in Zion,
I remain your sister in Christ,

T. CHAPMAN.

KENTON, TENN.,

Dear Frances:—We are always glad when our preacher comes, as the Herald is our only preacher. There are no Saints near here. There is one lady says she is going to be baptized the first opportunity. I loaned her the history of grand mother Smith, then she wanted the Herald. She is a member of the Christian Church, but says she is a believer in the Later Day Saints. It is hard to get the people to read our papers. Once in a while we can send one out. We wish the saints to pray for us, as we are alone here, none but myself and my husband. Pray for the work in this part of Tennessee. Your Sister in the covenant of peace

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 23d.

Bro. David Dancer:—I can not do without the church papers. It keeps me alive to know of the welfare of the church. Having received evidences as I have of the truthfulness of this work, and of the divine appointment of Joseph Smith, and now again of "young Joseph," I can not let these evidences slip unheeded, except it should be by transgression. I am very well aware that transgression will darken our minds, and will at last bring us to destruction. But as long as there is a spark left of that which we received when we first believed, there is yet hope. I have sometimes thought that the Lord should have created us more perfect, and stronger, and I thereby have in all probability missed many blessings which I might have received at his hands. I shall however in the future depend more on the strength of the Lord, which he gives us by being obedient. One thing I have failed in the past to perform, which I now more fully realize as my duty; I shall now no more slacken my efforts to perform that duty under which I know I shall be blessed.

Yours in the everlasting covenant,
L. M. SOLLENBERGER.

BRAIDWOOD, Ill., May 21st.

I took my leave of "The House of the Lord," and the village of Kirtland, the afternoon of April 14th, along with a goodly number of outgoing Saints, and arrived in Chicago the following morning. I remained over Sunday in the city and spoke twice to an attentive few, in the house of elder S. C. Good, 463 W. Ind. St., who is the officer in charge. The brother and I attended McVicker's theater, where the famous Dr. Thomas preaches in the interest of "The people's church." If speculation about the "nebular theory," and conjecturing about "star dust" is regeneration and salvation, I am still out of "the narrow way."

My next objective point was Sheridan, where I held forth a while in the Universalist Church; but the attendance was light indeed, for a hamlet. I had a little more encouragement in a Saturday—Advent neighborhood and chapel, two miles west of town. That people gave us the use of a well furnished house; discoursed animated and beautiful music, listened courteously, and wished us to remain longer. I labored in the Mission branch awhile, with fair sized audiences, considering the busy planting season. I next brought up in Streator, (J. S. Patterson's old stamping ground), and found affairs in a deplorable state. Some of the membership had departed from the faith, others were indifferent; but thank the good Lord, numbers are striving for the right, pulling together, enjoying the blessings and the Spirit and power of Israel's God. I wrote articles for the three dailies of the place, held forth in Bronson's hall, north side; blest the two sons of Wm. Farley, late of Lucas, Iowa, and also baptized and confirmed the parents a week later. I came here the 16th instant, and brother J. S. Kier had actually secured the Presbyterian church. To complete this miracle I held three services in that colossal, elegant structure, all unmolested. I wish this order elsewhere, and that all worshippers would do likewise, for the glory of God, the diffusion of gospel light, and the redemption of the world. Four pages of foolscap from my pen will come out in to-days weekly paper here. I have spoken thirty or more times and attended other services since my return, and I feel somehow that I have to work too hard to see any good results. An ungodly world, indifferent Saints, my own many misgivings, and the devil on every turn and corner, makes Zion's ascent rugged. God's co-operating care and tender love out weighs all.

BARNARD, Mo., May 22d.

Dear Herald:—You are ever a welcome visitor, as you are all the preacher we get. We have heard ten sermons in thirty-seven years, and they were by brother J. C. Foss. We wish he could have staid with us. Our branch is scattered. We are old, and have no preaching nearer than four or six miles; but the Herald is a good substitute. We hope brother Moore will be with us this summer. We like him and think him a good man. We will do the best we can for all traveling elders who may come this way. We know it is the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. If we never hear another sermon we know our duty, and if we do it we shall be blest. We ask the prayers of all the Saints.

Yours in the one faith,

MARTHA KEENE.

Beaumont-St., HAMILTON, Australia,
March 16th.

Brother Blair and brethren and sisters, I must tell something of what I know of the truth of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Three years have passed away since I came to the knowledge of God and of the truth of the promises to man, and they on conditions. Truly I can say that his word has been confirmed to the Saints in Hamilton, for last Thursday night week, brother J. F. Burton spoke in tongues, and also gave the interpretation, which gave me great joy in knowing the will of the Lord to us in Australia. And on last Sabbath night, as it was too wet for us to go out to preach, we concluded to have a meeting at my house, where our meetings are held, and I can truly say that in was a pentecost to us, for the Spirit of the Lord rested very powerfully upon the whole house, and the gift of tongues rested on the Saints, and brother and sister Burton spoke in tongues, and the interpretation was also given. Only those that have experienced the same power can imagine how we felt.

My dear brethren and sisters, I have this testimony to bear of Bro. Burton, that he is all that I could wish for as a man of God and servant of Christ in all points; for I have tried him and have the proof for myself, and now bear my testimony. All honor to our Father for sending such a man here, for if I had the means, and my own way in this, he should never leave this district and this colony. Sr. Emma is as good as himself, and the daughter is a very upright and staid young Saint. May the dear Lord bless them abundantly, with all Saints.

A few words to all the officers of all the different branches, where they are not come to a unity of the laws on church government; consult with the missionary in your different parts, for they will all surely be in unity on that, so that when we in this part of the vineyard are teaching the law to the Saints, we are teaching the same as the Saints in America, and be sure that we all speak the same things, and that there be no division among us. In all things be true to the Lord. My desire is that the word of the Lord will be heard in the assembly in April concerning this mission, for we here can say that the harvest is great and the laborers few. We need faithful men here continually, for prospects never were so bright as now in Australia. May God bless the dear Saints throughout the world, and guide us all to our eternal home.

HENRY BROADWAY.

GALIEN, Mich., May 9th.

Editors Saints' Herald:—Some three weeks since, a Rev. Hicks began a series of so-called lectures in our village against the Latter Day Work, six in all. He had drawn up a chart on which, among the beasts to Daniel and John, was a nondescript image, said by him to represent the "two horned beast," of Rev. 13th chapter, and, which he stated represented the "rise and progress of Mormonism." Some parts of the thing, looked dog-like! His proof consisted in identifying the organization and doctrines of the Church with those of the "Little Horn," or Catholicism, and in vilifying the character of the Saints, Joseph the Martyr, his son Joseph, Elder Blair and others, including Bro. D. S. Mills.

He admitted that miracles were wrought among us, but of course they were done by the power of anti christ, but if we could just work one, he would buckle on the stripes, go with us and none could scorn him out of it.

He willfully, and knowingly misrepresented the books and papers of the Church.

When we replied to his charge of our being believers in human infallibility, he, in an effort to save himself referred to the Advocate where the editor, in reasoning with the Polygamists, referred to the doctrines of Christ as contained in the Book of Mormon as being God's infallible standard.

We showed that the work, in its rise, did not take possession of the territory and people, wherever established, as did the beasts as seen in prophetic vision, and it therefore could not be symbolized by a beast. It does not work miracles in the presence of the Catholic world, or the other beast, as the two horned beast was to do. It does not exercise "all the power of the" Dragon and Papal world, as the two-horned beast was to do, and was not, therefore, represented by the two-horned beast of Rev. 13.

In support of the position that a church could be represented by a beast, he assumed that the four beasts of Revelation, chapter four, represented the Church of Christ in four stages during four successive ages, and when on examination, he found this would not work, he changed his interpretation of the text, urging that the beasts represented four characteristics of the Christian Church. But when the question was asked: Which one of the four "stages," "conditions," or "characteristics," of the church is to give to "the seven angels seven golden vials filled with the wrath of God?" silence answered, Which! (See Rev. 15:7) made, he repeatedly called the statement of Joseph the Martyr, in his letter of Jan. 1844, to J. C. Calhoun, in regard to Missouri atoning for her sin of persecuting the saints, Joseph's prayer, and urged that the atrocious crimes committed in Utah, including the Mountain Meadow massacre, were the development of the spirit of that prayer. During the last lecture, (?) he indulged in such phrases as: "Latter Day devils," "Saints go on to damnation," not perfection, and derided the fasting and prayers of the saints at the late General Conference. And everybody present was astonished, when this Advent-Universalist declared that "the saints would go to hell and be damned for ever and ever!" I replied to three of the talks of Mr. Hicks, and by the prayers of the Saints and the blessing of God, met and refuted all his material points to the satisfaction of the saints and friends, and to the dissatisfaction of the opposers. The saints here feel stronger than before the opposition began, are in line, and during the battle Brother Blakeslee baptized two, the youngest daughter of Brother and Sister Hulse of Decatur, and Brother Hiram Hall of this place.

And as a further encouragement to us, I had the pleasure of baptizing Brother Christopher White and wife on Sunday the 8th inst. This will be good news, specially to Bro. and Sr. Butler of Lamoni, as also, Bro. Clinton White. And thus God is speeding his work. The services at the water were solemn and very impressive, and a real feast to the Saints and friends, and many of the large audience were noticeably affected during the notable prayer offered by Bro. G. A. Blakeslee. Others here are not far from the kingdom.

I greatly rejoice because of the blessings enjoyed by the Saints at the late conference at Kirtland and the divine grace bestowed on the church, and while we would gladly have retained in the Quorum of Seventy those chosen from among us to minister in higher and more extended responsibilities, I hope and trust they, and those chosen with them, may so honor their holy calling, magnify the office, merit the favor of Christ, go in and out before us so exemplary, that they may gloriously succeed to the end and be crowned. And we also as ardently hope God will in due time provide us with equally efficient workers to fill their places. I feel like still pushing on in the work and faith to the glorious consummation. Saints, pray for us.

C. SCOTT.

HOLLIS, Cloud county, Kan.

Mr. Joseph Smith:—Will you send me some of your works, tracts, etc., which treat upon the organization of the church by your father, and the cause of the split in it, and why two churches known as Latter Day Saints exist at the same time. There is something about the matter I can not understand. If you can inform my mind in reference to the above, I shall feel under many obligations to you or any of your co workers.

I am recieving papers and tracts from Utah, as well as invitations to go there, from some old acquaintance of thirty years ago, who has learned of my whereabouts in Kansas, and has written me, cautioning me against all who have anything to do with the Reorganized Church, etc., etc. If you have anything on the above subjects please send them, together with the bill of cost for same.

If it is not asking too much at your hand, I wish you would publish my address in some of your publications, as by so doing I may hear from some of the members of your church, and so have both sides of the question before I judge.

Yours respectfully,

WM. H. MORGAN.

DELHAVEN, N. S., May 16th.

To the Editors:—We are glad to learn through the Herald that the Nova Scotia mission was not forgotten by General Conference. If Bro. U. W. Green will send me his address I will correspond with him so as to meet him at the station when he comes. My address is Delhaven, Kings county, Nova Scotia. I have a married daughter living in Washburn, Maine, who would be glad to see an elder. If one is passing that way, enquire for D. H. Simpson, and he will find a welcome. We love the Herald, and also the latter day work. Your brother in Christ,

ROBERT NEWCOMB.

OSCODA, Michigan, April 18th.

Bro. Joseph:—I have often wanted to write to the Herald, but not being till of late a subscriber, I did not wish to fill the room of others. Ever since I have been a Saint I had the privilege of reading brother Burch's or some other brother's Herald, so I did not realize the want of it until last fall when that privilege was moved from me. I then saw I could not do without its sacred teachings, and I subscribed for it. If all the Saints knew its value, they would not fail to make some sacrifice and subscribe for it. Its teachings, if heeded, will build the saints up both spiritually and temporally. It is eight years since I embraced the gospel, under the preaching of Elder J. J. Cornish. I am only sorry that I could not see how to overcome errors in the past as I can now. We read that he who will do the will of the Father will know of the doctrine for himself. I can say that by obedience I have received the Spirit which is to lead us into all truth; and I was healed of the dropsy when all but myself thought I would die. I have heard the gift of prophecy and seen it fulfilled; also the gift of tongues, and know the interpretation to be true. I have known the Spirit to be poured out upon the people until those of the world said, Surely, this is of God. These with many other things have caused me to rejoice in the gospel, for I know if it was not of God the gifts and blessings would not be given as to the ancients. We see those who doubt this being fully the work of God, go into darkness. There are four brothers and eight sisters in this place. Of late we have found that brother George H. Graves is a priest. We were glad to make his acquaintance, as he is a noble soldier for the cause, and his wife is a dear good sister. We have prayer meeting Wednesday and Sunday evenings, and enjoy the presence of the Spirit. We think to patronize the the Home Column, as it seems to be a benefit to the cause.

C. M. GOODWIN.

PLAINVILLE, Mass., April 27th.

Bro. Joseph Smith:—The system of divine truth as taught by the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ seems brighter to my mind than it did over two years ago when I obeyed it. I could see before I entered the portals of the Church, its superiority in doctrine, and perfectness in organization over the creeds and methods of men. In this, the gospel of Christ, we can find in times of distress and affection, in trial and trouble, an ever present help that is suited to our condition and needs, which will lift us up from the beggarly elements of the world, and place our feet upon a sure foundation where the storms of persecution, error and doubt can not move us.

Jesus says we can know of his doctrine, whether it is of God or not, and "knowledge is power," and not only power but "safety," as one writer states it.

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in his excellent word;
What more can he say than to you he hath said,
You, who unto Jesus for refuge have fled!"

How applicable are the poet's lines to the chosen of the Lord to day. We have the word of the Lord in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Book of Covenants; and we are living, or are expected to live "by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God," which implies that God speaks through immediate revelation whenever and wherever his obedient children are found. Because people do not realize that He has spoken to this generation, and do not recognize the restored gospel as taught in its fulness and purity by the Latter Day Saints, that does not in the least disprove the fact of its existence.

Brothers A. W. Glover, Cyriel H. Brown and T. H. Potter have preached of late in G. A. R. hall, Attleboro. Elder John Smith spoke there last Sunday afternoon on Spiritualism, and many representatives of the latter system were present and must have been convinced that Bro. Smith treated the subject from a true Bible standpoint and that, too, in a gentlemanly way. Since the hall has been procured at Attleboro for regular service the attendance has been on the increase, and some have learned of our true position. The news from the late General Conference at Kirtland, Ohio, is pleasing to me, and the liberality of the press in representing us correctly before the world should be noted by all the Saints of God, and the compliments should be returned when opportunity affords. The eastern Saints were pleased with the people of Kirtland and vicinity, and also with the climate and scenery and were unanimous in their expressions of joy at meeting so many of the Church as they did. Yours respectfully, in bonds,

ARTHUR B. PIERCE.

DUKEDOM, Tennessee, May 22d.

Dear Herald:—The work is onward here, and, if we had sufficient ministerial aid, there would be much good done in the near future, and many precious souls brought into the fold of Christ in Kentucky and Tennessee. We have but two elders in this section, and they have been engaged in the work only three or four years and feel the need of counsel and assistance from more experienced and able elders. They feel disappointed because conference did not send some one to take charge of the South-eastern Mission. However, they are endeavoring by the help of the divine Master to do the best they can under existing circumstances. They are both poor men and have to labor daily to support their families, and have no time to preach except on Saturday nights and Sundays which time is well used contending for truth. Their zeal is commendable.

In many places, thank God, the mists of prejudice are already broken and the skies wear a brighter aspect. Many are opening their doors and calling for elders to come and preach, and there are none to respond. In school-houses once barred against us, we now see written in larg letters on the black-boards, "Free to all." "Welcome unto all." The harvest truly is plenteous.

Dear Saints, pray with us that the Lord of the harvest may send more laborers into the field. The Methodist Church at this place was refused us recently, for a funeral occasion, but the Presbyterians of Stubblefield freely tendered theirs which furnished ample room, and the services were well attended. Prominent Presbyterians gave marked attention at both day and night services, and one of them expressed his belief that the Latter Day Saints would in a few years be the leading church of that section. Two gave their names for baptism, others were convinced, many are investigating—so goes the work. The Voice of Warning is going the rounds and is causing some investigation in places; as soon as one has read it another calls for it. May God speed it on its mission and bless Bro. Peters in his noble work.

I am your brother in Christ,

THOMAS H. BLALOCK.

DEER CREEK, Nebraska.

Dear Herald:—Reading the many letters in your columns is a boon and a blessing from our heavenly Father, to cheer our drooping hearts. I often pause and think how merciful the Lord is, and his ways past finding out.

When I was in the Baptist Church I was alone, trying to serve my heavenly Father as best I knew how. I did not have the privilege of going to any meeting but seldom, and in my loneliness I often found I had a friend in Jesus, and to him I prayed for strength and grace to support me. I often felt the influence of God's Spirit telling me there was something more of good than I had received in that church. I prayed for an understanding of God's word, and that he would lead me in the right path, although zealous in the Baptist Church. When listening the first time to Bro. Oscar Beebe, preaching, pen can not tell the joy and confidence and zeal I had for his church and people at that time and from that time until the present; and through the mercies of God I hope it will continue to the end. Had I been free to act, I would have gladly obeyed the gospel at that time, but God's ways are not our ways. My husband at that time was a hardened sinner, and as time rolled on we went to the Saints' meeting occasionally. I lost all love for the Baptist Church; my whole heart was for the Saints of God; and in about one year from the time the gospel of Christ was made known to me by his Spirit, I had the joy of having Bro. Beebe administer to one of my sons who was given up by the doctor who said he could not do him any good only to keep him a little longer. His disease was inflammatory rheumatism, and had been afflicted for eight years and had settled near the heart. When he was administered to, he said he felt the pain roll off down his back. The next day he was walking around. It has been three years and over since he was healed, and he has not had any sickness since. In three months after he was healed I had the joy of seeing him and his wife and myself baptized into the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, for which I give God the praise. A little over one year from that time I again had the joy and consolation of seeing my companion also obey the gospel. I can not express my thankfulness to my heavenly Father for his mercy and kindness towards me one of the weakest of his children. I can see the hand of the Lord has been over me in great mercy. I have had many troubles and trials in this life, and the Father of all mercies has ever been my stay and comfort; he has heard my prayers and answered them many times; and the more I read his word, the more I can understand it. It is the Lord's doings, and marvelous in my eyes. I ask the prayers of the Saints that I may ever live faithful.

In gospel bonds, your sister,

LORINDA LEWIS.

THE TAHITIANS AND THE PAUMOTUANS.

I do not know whether I have attempted to describe the difference between the two tribes or nations named above, or not; I think I have stated that there is a difference; but that was about all. But there is a marked difference, and because of or through that fact I am enabled to account for the disappointment I have met here, in my expectations concerning the nobility of character, and grace of person to be found in this part of the world among the Tahitians proper. The sad truth is that the original or native Tahitians are nearly extinct. There are probably not over a thousand in this and the Western or Leeward Islands. There are very few native Tahitians on this Island (Tahiti) and the majority of them are living on other parts of the Island, very few indeed in and around Papeete. The native Tahitians are mentally, morally, and physically superior to the Paumotuans. They are many shades lighter skinned; and they are a proud, independent, self-reliant people. They are intellectually superior to the Paumotuans. They almost without exception belong to the Protestant Churches. Some have become Catholics by marrying with white people, notably the French.

The language of the Tahitians proper, is what is spoken on this Island and Morea (near by) and on the Leeward Islands, or the Society Islands proper. Such as Huahine, Raiatea, Borabora &c., and now is the language of the Coral Islands called the Paumotus. The head of the Paumotus originally, was Anaa, on which several thousand people lived, but which owing to the absence of a harbor is avoided to a great extent by traders, and the inhabitants have gone to one or another of the other Islands north, north-east and north-west. The language of the Paumotus, or the Anaa tongue more properly speaking, differs from the Tahitian greatly, as much so as the Swedish and Danish languages differ from each other. The Paumotuans, or the Anaa people have the letter K, and G, and W, and a letter written ij, sounding like our ng. The people are more thick lipped, and their noses are flatter than the full blooded Tahitians, and they are darker hued. But among them those who keep out of the sun most of the time are much lighter colored than those who are exposed to the sun more or less daily.

These Paumotuans are an improvident, unreliable, and deceitful race. You can not depend on them fulfilling any promise if it is more convenient to them or more to their personal comfort or pecuniary advantage to break it than to observe it. Having had about as much experience among the negroes or the south, as I have among these people, I must in justice say that in some few particulars the negroes have the advantage, but in their indifference to the truth, and improvidence, and antipathy for physical exercise, they are alike. These people perhaps, are more cleanly and tidy about their person than the negroes. They are in the water perhaps one fourth their time. Had our converts been from among the native Tahitians instead of the Anaa people, I believe I should have never wanted to leave them. There are some in every place in whom I have considerable confidence, and who need and deserve our care and oversight; and therefore I must urge that the mission be sustained. South of here about 300 miles is the Island of Tubuai. I understand that there are a number of Tahitians there. It would be well for a missionary to locate there, as there is an abundance of food there, and a good work may be done there. At Raiatea, Huahine, and Borabora many are anxious to join us, but the Protestant missionaries, who are the real heads of the government have so influenced the kings that they will not allow any one to be baptized. I expect every day to hear of the French taking possession of those Islands, and if they do, our way will be open. In case of a war breaking out in Europe in which France and England would be on opposite sides, the French ships of war would seize those Islands within forty-eight hours after they hear the news of hostilities having begun in Europe. The labors of missionaries sent out from the Wesleyan Mission, and the London Missionary Societies, were almost exclusively among Tahitians for then, (fifty years ago.) the native Tahitians were in the majority here, now they are outnumbered twenty to one by natives of other Islands. Here are found the natives of Pratt Island, Sandwich Islands, Athu, Rorotonga, Marquesas and many other Islands; but the native Tahitians are scarce indeed. They as a general thing consider themselves superior to the Paumotuans and other Islanders, and they do not consider themselves in any sense inferior to any white people that they have seen. I do not think that we have a full blooded Tahitian in our church. There are some half breeds; and some who had Tahitian mothers and white fathers. We have also a number whose mothers were Paumotuan women, and their fathers were white men, French American, English, and German. Very seldom were any of these unions made according to the civil law. Some were married by religious forms; but three-fourths, if not nine-tenths of the offspring of white men and native women, would be elsewhere considered illegitimate. But I can not see where any distinction is made socially, or in business matters, or in office holding, or church association, between the results of legal marriages and those who are really bastards. A mother here will feel bad and perhaps mourn over a daughter who goes on the street, but if she takes one man and lives with him as faithfully as if she was married, she is not found fault with, and the mother will care for, and fondle and love a child born to her daughter under those circumstances, fully as much as if she had been married both by civil law and in the church. And among these Paumotuans, Rorotongans, Pratt Islanders and others, I can not see that they show any less sympathy for a woman or a man living in open adultery than they do for those who are supposed to live continently. Those who know me will not ask, if they have not been taught differently. I believe "I have not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God."

Since writing the statement that I did not think there were any Tahitians in the church, I have heard that there were several. There is a very marked difference in the Tahitian and the Paumotuan women. The former will work and assist their husbands in different ways. The latter are the quintessence of laziness. Their men generally wash their own clothes, and do the cooking, and mend their clothes, while the women are lying flat on their stomachs looking on. In business matters and in every thing possible the women try to exercise as much authority as the men; and so bossy and overbearing are they that nine tenths of the officers of the church do or leave undone their duties according as the whims of their women happen to be. Of course this is inconsistent and contrary to the spirit of their calling, and I condemned it everywhere; but few however are manly enough to assert their rights; but allow themselves to be led by the nose by their meddlesome, presumptuous, and withal ignorant wives. I am in favor of women's rights, and have always defended the female suffrage side of the question, but here they demand and exercise what is not their rights by nature, nor by reason, nor justice. If ever a class or race of human beings loved office, or authority it is this people. Strange as the statement may seem to enlightened, refined, and thoughtful people, yet it is a fact, I can prevent more sin being committed, by threatening to remove a man from office, than I could by appealing to his reason, or his duty toward God, or to the certainty of punishment hereafter. Indeed these people do not seem to comprehend sin. They use the words sin, repentance, confession, etc., but they do not seem to comprehend their full and proper meaning. They are terribly afraid of corporeal suffering, or physical pain, and they would refrain from wrong doing a hundred times for fear of a few days bonds or imprisonment, while they would not hesitate a minute to do the same wrong, as far as a fear of future punishment is concerned. They are not constrained to do right from gratitude to God for his mercies; for gratitude is an unknown virtue among this race. I do not wish any one to think that I do them injustice, but I say it truthfully, lamentable as it may be, this people are utterly insensible to the influence and operation of the principle or virtue of gratitude.

But the gospel must be preached to every nation, however some are very barren ground, or not very fertile soil. There is unusual pleasure in preaching to or doing any good deed or kind act to the colored people; for they appreciate your efforts made in their behalf; they are a very grateful people. They will give quite liberally when it is to be ahead of some one else; thus if a branch discovers that another has given ten dollars to any work of the church, another will give probably ten or twenty cents more, so to be ahead. The pleasure one would derive from a liberal donation is lost in the knowledge of the fact, that it was not love for the work that prompted the gift, but love of pre-eminence; or to have something to boast over; or the spirit of emulation. But much of the disheartening features of the work here is softened by the fact that this people are simply children in intellect, in understanding, in character, and doubtless will be so considered in the day of judgment.

There are several men among the elders here, who are exceptions to the rule of weakness of intellect and capacity to understand the law and order of the church. Indeed there are a few in every neighborhood who are considerably above the average in mentality, and they are superior also in moral character. I wish that I could gather these to one Island, and exclude all the rest; I believe that I could form quite an interesting and worthy colony, whom it would be pleasure to teach, and who would enjoy, I think, quite a degree of the Holy Ghost. But there arises one serious obstacle; in but few cases would both husband and wife be fit candidates for such a community, and we could not justly separate them; so the wheat and tares must grow together till the harvest, and I can not therefore gather the wheat in the suggested barn. If it were not for these few measurably worthy ones in every place, I would say that it would not pay to send any one here to keep up the mission, but for their sakes, and for several reasons that I have not space to mention now, it would be wisdom to keep the mission up. The chief point to consider now, would be the ability of the elder to learn the tongue readily. The next would be firmness, or what is commonly called grit. The next is patience, he will feel like using a horse-whip often, and be tempted to cut a good many off from the church every trip he may make, and learns the doings of some in every place. And some he will feel to put in the calaboose. If he ever needed the Spirit of God anywhere he will need it here. And soon he will wish from his inmost soul, that he could take them away from their present associations and surroundings, for he will see that they could be made first rate men and women if they were placed under different and better influences, and circumstances. But here they have no chance to rise above the common level of thought, or of becoming of any particular benefit to the church, or their fellow men. There is no encouragement for a man here to attempt to assert the manhood and dignity, and superiority of thought, or larger endowment of intellectual powers, that he may realize are in his possession, for he would not be appreciated, but would become the victim of envy, and jealousy, and would be disliked for his very superiority, for where every man and woman nearly wants to rule, or lead, there can be no one accepted as a leader; or if accepted, yet his ability and success as a leader would be questioned continually by numbers who want his place. Priests and Teachers as branch officers are as a general thing entirely useless here. They never do their duty, as regarded by the law unless commanded directly by myself, or some one whose authority they will recognize. The Priests never visit the houses of the members as required by law. Teachers allow wrong doing to go on unchecked unless I am about to set them at work. In fact none of the teachers like to meddle with any case that would put them in trouble. The deacons as far as taking care of the churches is concerned do quite well. But the rule here is to avoid doing everything that is irksome, or unpleasant, or inconvenient, or laborious if at all possible to avoid it.

There are a few in every place who are truly trying to do as near right as they know how to do, or as well as they can with their surroundings. Indeed they do remarkably well; and are worthy of all the encouragement we can give them. If they were all gathered unto one place here, I could be willing to remain and labor among them for years, but as it is they are surrounded by others who with their duplicity, dishonesty, disobedience and general meanness, that I have only one hope for them, and I feel deeply interested in that direction, namely to collect as many as possible of these worthy ones to a locality in Southern California, in the neighborhood of San Diego, or Santa Ana, and colonize them. Some of these are skilful carpenters, and boat builders, and others can do anything that need be done on a farm, and all are quick to learn any kind of work. Nearly all the women are skilful in braiding hats with different material, and in different forms of braiding. Many can use a sewing machine quite skilfully. They could all earn a good living anywhere, where they could work, and have a suitable climate. I do hope that some of the brethren and sisters in southern California will interest themselves in this matter. I would be willing to look after their situation and condition, and work for a year at least. If four or five families could go there first, and stay a year at least before more would come, it would not be so very risky or expensive undertaking. Most of them are quite used to white people's habits and customs, and would not have much trouble to conform to their ways. I hope that something in the way of obtaining steady employment and a suitable location may be in behalf of the worthy ones among this people. Yours for the cause,

THOS. W. SMITH.

PRIDE.

THERE has been much said in the Herald on pride and the prevailing fashions of the day. We should all be in harmony. It is not pride alone that is evil, but costly apparel. Some say if we are not proud of our clothes, it is all right. Read Isaiah 3: 15 to 27, also the Book of Mormon, and see if the cost does not have something to do with it. If it was not for the pride of the heart and love of the world, we would not want costly array. but it seems that we can not stand the frowns of the world and follow the path the meek and lowly Savior trod. Come out of the world, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you. Love not the world, nor the things of the world, for he that loveth the things of the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

If we would do the works of the Lord, our works would follow us, and we would cease to harbor pride. When we are following the fashions of the world we are paying out money for what we ought not; for that which does us no good, but makes an outside show to the world.

Costly apparel is not pleasing in the sight of God, neither are the fashions of the day, because they grind the face of the poor. The fashions make them look hideous; and what we spend on garments more than is necessary for comfort and durability is sin. All unnecessary appendages, such as tucks, ruffles, overskirts, laces, jewelry, and fancy neckties, and all such things, I think are unnecessary, and are a waste of money. As I understand the written word in the standard books of the church, the Saints should dress plain, but have good durable clothes for health and comfort. made neat and good On page 144 of Doctrine and Covenants we read; "and again, thou shalt not be proud in thy heart. Let all thy garments be plain, and their beauty the beauty of the work of thine own hands; and let all things be done in cleanliness before me." One sister asked what this meant. I should think it means just what it says. For what is more than this, the money might be given to the poor or put into the Lord's storehouse to pay our tithing, which is a commandment as binding as any other if we want to keep God's law. I have resolved to pay in my portion as fast as possible, in the way that the Bishopric decided last spring. The Lord wants his people to be saving and industrious, not slothful servants, but diligent in business. Diligence applies to both spiritual and temporal matters.

We must separate ourselves from the world, not by dress alone, but by our daily walk and conversation, that we may be clean and pure before the Lord; not given to jesting and idle talk, but that which becometh Saints in truth and in deed. If we can put away all of these things, and live as becometh Saints, the world will be constrained to say the Saints are the people of God. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all strive to walk uprightly before God in all things, and labor for the crown that lies at the end of the race.

I will give some passages of scripture and I would ask the Saints to read these passages of the Bible, Inspired Translation, on pride:—Isaiah 3: 15-27; 1 John 2: 15, 16; 1 Peter 3: 3-5; James 4: 4-8; Titus 2: 12; 1 Timothy 2: 8-13; 1 John 3. Also Book of Mormon, pages 205, 207, 214, 220, 290, 413, 497, 103, 51, 23, and 80.

ARE THERE NOT TWO SIDES?

THIS afternoon while reading a letter written by Bro. Robert Elvin, published in Herald of January 15th, I was forcibly struck in reading the following extract:

"Strange that when persons can not have their own way—but if called in question for either word or act; they will withdraw from the body, and in nearly every case are free and full in finding fault with the church, pointing out wrong and evil doing."

For one I am satisfied people see things usually by the light of the spirit they possess, like the man full of the spirit of "John Barleycorn, who thought the lamp-post was drunk." These remarks caused me to enquire, "Are there not two sides to every case?"

As I am not personally acquainted with the brother, it will hardly require an apology for quoting the above extract, when my desire is to at least try and harmonize the parties that are sometimes involved in the issue. For the sake of the welfare of the body, the church has adopted the rule of "common consent," and for that reason the minority will acquiesce, if they are sufficiently endowed. But such a position does not prove the majority to be right always. For good reasons it has been so ruled that branches shall do business in their own way, and in the doing it, helps, (excellent for the place when called for), have been given the presidency, under circumstances that often work against the welfare of the branches by laying aside some of the elders. The one chosen very often finds the task too heavy. Consultations is had with some officials, natural affinities or otherwise, as the case may be, which of itself is the very beginning of fiery trials for all parties concerned. Offenses begin, officials through their zeal try to stop the evil, which act is in harmony with the law. But they thought their inefficiency may have been the cause of the evil entering, and for the same reason, not possessing the qualifications to control the elements, confusion arises, church authorities are called on to settle the difficulties, and very often matters are smoothed over, and if there has been a sacrifice made for the sins of the whole, it will be on the grounds of insubordination to church authorities, (common consent), but if dealt with, and treated from cause, many would be found condemned because the love of principle is stronger with them than the traditions and teachings of men. The question arises, how shall the evil be averted? Shall these officers be laid aside and others placed in their stead? By no means. If the problem of human life, is to develop character, and that by experience the character is developed, they will make full restitution for all wrong done, otherwise they will be hindrances, and in due time will find that the self-exalted will be humbled. It being human to err, it is the very nature of the divine to forgive. Of course, repentance is the pre-requisite condition. To forgive and sustain in unrighteousness would be contrary to divine teaching, though to bear with a brother's weakness through the spirit of christianity will save a brother and "hide a multitude of sins." This quality of character being the crowning stone of the temple many aspire for, but very few possess it.

The Elders are sent out to save—not destroy—to care for the sick and raise the fallen. Many reports in the Herald counteract the above principle, and cause the injured to turn from the writer of the article, and seek life from some other source. Though they possess qualifications to entitle them to prominence, worthily, they should not presume and denounce those that they have not power within themselves to draw. Christ said, "If I be lifted up, I will draw all men to me." If this is true—and very few will dispute it—reflect one moment. Don't authority to act in the name of Christ call for great love? Those who have had even a glimpse, a foretaste of the joys to come, have uttered these words, "Oh the height, the depth, the length and breadth of Thy love!"

The harvest is ripe, but laborers are few; and my heart responds to the advice, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest to send laborers into the vineyard." Good earnest young men, whose calling is not disputed by an untimely birth into the priesthood have injured themselves and others by partaking of the nature of priestcraft. For there are many members in the body that know enough not to be governed by priestcraft, and yet not to escape the evils and assist the one in the narrow way of priesthood. Under these circumstances evil has arisen. Time will rectify all mistakes.

In conversing with Bro. D. S. Mills, of California, concerning the unwise acts of some, which stopped my progress, (for I was not above finding fault), he said to me, "There are sometimes things that you will stumble or fall over. But if you just take a good look, though they be very close, yet you will find them a little off the way. This I have not forgotten, though I have stumbled, got bruised—which I don't like. But what I have learned far more than compensates for the suffering.

In Herald of same date, Bro. George S. Hyde writes an article entitled "Humility," which is excellent. Elders laboring under such influence have not much to fear, for they are walking on terra firma.

Yours,

GEO. S. MATTHEWS.

BAPTISM OF ANCIENT ORIGIN.

WE herewith present our readers with evidences proving that baptism, by immersion, as a religious rite for the purpose of cleansing and sanctification legally and spiritually, was practiced by the Israelites as early as the time of the patriarch Jacob, and that it was also practised in India, Egypt, Greece and Britain, before the times of Moses—how long before is not said, but probably from the very earliest ages of the human family—and further, that this rite had "one common origin." And why should this be thought incredible, when the scriptures teach that Christ's work of redemption was well known to the ancient saints, and that the scheme of redemption—the gospel—was foreordained of God from "before the foundation of the world?" Herein we have direct confirmation of the claims of the Book of Mormon in 1 Nephi 3:5; 2 Nephi 6:9; 13:2-6; Mosiah 9:8; Alma 6:3; 9:6, with 10:14; Book of Nephi 3:10; Moroni 6:1; and of the teachings of the Inspired Translation, in Genesis 5:43, 44; 6:53, 62-71; 8:7-11; and 14:17-40, with 17:4-6, all showing that baptism by immersion, for the remission of sins, was known and practiced by God's faithful people in all ages and among all nations. In this, as in other things taught in the books and revelations brought forth by Joseph the Seer, God is truly demonstrating that the latter day work committed to the Saints is indeed and of a truth "a marvelous work, even a marvelous work and a wonder." Its very enemies bear testimony (unwittingly) to its divinity, and hoary history confirms it. Read carefully the following:

From the Tribune.

JEWISH RITES—BAPTISM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20, 1845.

M. M. NOAH, ESQ.,

Dear Sir:—While reading your very interesting illustrations of Hebrew laws and usages, published in The Tribune, I was rather surprised to meet the declaration that baptism was a Hebrew rite; and I beg leave to say that I shall be gratified by being enabled to see the evidence of the fact, and to have your opinion of the origin of the rite. My attention having been directed to the investigation of the Ancient Mysteries, have become satisfied that a species of baptism was practiced therein, before the foundation of the Hebrew Commonwealth, in India, Egypt, Greece and Britain; and as those Mysteries, in the remote antiquity of their institution, were intended to preserve a pure worship of the Deity, and the transmission of the traditions of the early ages of the human family, the ritual must have had one common origin; but I was not aware that baptism had been incorporated into the Jewish rites.

There is also another point which I wish to understand better. It is this: "If she still refused to change her faith, or become a proselyte of the gate, or to observe the seven precepts of the sons of Noah," etc. What are the seven precepts referred to, and whence were they derived? The old Constitutions of the Freemasons speak of the "three principles of Noah," and it seems probable that the three and the seven descend from the same source. Undoubtedly many of your sources of information are contained in what to me are sealed books, or I would only trouble you for the reference, and hope you will pardon me for thus attempting to give you additional labor.

I am, dear sir, respectfully yours,
 JAMES HERRING,
 Grand Sec'y Grand Lodge S. N. Y. Howard House N. Y.

M. M. NOAH'S REPLY.

I shall proceed cheerfully to reply to Mr. Herring's questions seriatim.

Circumcision and baptism were the initiatory rites for the admission of Hebrew children into the established religion; and these two rites were inseparable from the earliest periods, but they are not of the same divine authority. The impression I know prevails, that baptism received its original form, and derived its observance from the apostle John, who baptized Jesus in Jordan; but it is evident that the baptism by John was the inunction to a new faith and not a new practice. Jesus, born a Jew, had received the initiatory rites in infancy, and understood them well. Maimonides—great authority always among Jews and Christians, as a wise interpreter of the law—says, (Issur Biah Cap. 13) "Israel was admitted into the covenant by three things: by Circumcision, by baptism, and by sacrifice." Circumcision was in Egypt; as it is said, none uncircumcised shall eat the passover. Baptism was in the wilderness, before the giving of the law; as it is said, "Thou shalt sanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them wash their garments;" and sacrifice, as it is said, "and he sent the young men of the Children of Israel, and they offered burnt offerings, they offered them for all Israel."

The origin of baptism dates from the time of Jacob, when he received into the church the young women of Sichern, and other heathens who lived with him. Jacob said to his family, (Gen. 35:2,) and to all that were with him, "put away from you the strange Gods and be ye clean, and change your garments." Eben Ezra, also a great authority, applies the words "be ye clean" to the washing and purification of the body;—hence the origin of baptism.

It is certain that heathens who become converts to the religion of the Jews, were admitted by circumcision, and baptism was inseparably joined to it.

"Whenever," says Maimonides, "a Heathen is willing to be joined to the covenant of Israel, and place himself under the wings of the Divine Majesty, and take the yoke of the law upon him voluntarily, Circumcision, Baptism, and Ablution are required." This practice continued to the reign of Solomon; but at that period, other nations became proselytes in such vast numbers that they were received by baptism or washing only. Some time elapsed, say thirty days, between circumcision and baptism, in order to give time for the wound to heal; the child was then brought to a running stream, called "gathering of the waters," and plunged in. If a man, the Triumviri or Judicial Consistory charged with this duty, when placed in the water, instructed him in some of the weightier obligations of the law, and plunged him in, so that every part of the body was immersed, not the tip of a finger was left exposed;—hence the difference between sprinkling and immersion in baptism. If an Israelite, says Maimonides, finds a Heathen infant and baptizes him for a proselyte, he becomes a member of the church; and baptism was always administered by persons regularly ordained, or appointed for that purpose, and witnesses and written testimony were necessary to prove the fact. Proselytes however were unwillingly made at all times, for many were tenacious of their old customs, and fell again to idolatry, so that finally Baptism was gradually abandoned, and it is only now practiced when a christian female desires to become a Jewess, and then under very considerable restrictions and ceremonies.

You will thus perceive that the rite of baptism dates from the time of Jacob, and by the wisest interpreters of the law, was pronounced a Jewish rite, and followed circumcision.

"A Proselyte of the Gate," is the next point about which you ask for information. There were two kinds of proselytes—the first of the covenant—the second of the Gate. The first, though of Gentile birth, were admitted to all the privileges of the Jews; they worshipped in the same Court of the Temple with the Hebrews, while others were prohibited, and were partakers of all privileges, Divine and human. The proselytes of the Gate were Gentiles, who were admitted to the worship of the God of Israel, and the hopes of a future life, but who were not circumcised. These proselytes, although permitted to worship in the Temple, could not enter the same Court with the Proselytes of the covenant, but were deemed unclean and a special Court assigned to them, called the "Court of the Gentiles"—they had a distinct place where the law was expounded to them, they were not denizens of Jerusalem. In the New Testament, Proselytes of the Covenant are called merely Proselytes, and Proselytes of the Gate are called worshipers; and it is a curious fact, and but little known, that the first proselytes to christianity were the Proselytes of the Gate. Their condition being free and unconstrained, merely semi-Jews, the transition to another faith was easy and natural, and as they were most numerous in the Roman States, they were the first cause of the spreading of the gospel; although Jesus of Nazareth never addressed himself to them, but always to his brethren who, like himself, were born Jews, and were not so by adoption.

The seven precepts of the sons of Noah, of which, as you say, Masonry knows only three, commonly called the Noah-chides are as follows:

- I. A renunciation of all Idols;
- II. The worship of the true and only God;
- III. To commit no murder;
- IV. Not to be defiled by incest;
- V. To avoid rapine, theft, and robbery.
- VI. To administer justice;
- VII. Not to eat flesh with blood in it.

This was the Common Law that prevailed from the time that Noah left the ark until the arrival of the Jews at the foot of Mount Sinai. The law of Moses is the codification of the Common Law, as given by the sons of Noah, amplified, extended, and made to apply in justice and in mercy, in good faith and principle, to the whole civilized world which now live under those laws, with some immaterial local amendments.

I am, dear sir, Yours, &c., &c.

PACIFIC SLOPE MISSION.

To the Saints, Greeting: As we are now entering another conference year, I feel constrained to address you a word of counsel. No doubt you, with the rest of God's people, are rejoicing because God has seen proper to again reveal himself and give information in regard to some vexed questions. I trust you will be among the most zealous in heeding the voice of the Spirit; and your diligence will be renewed in working for Zion's weal. Our missionary force has been reduced, which I very much regret, as it was too small for the demand before. This will be the source of some disappointment I fear, as I will not be able to supply some fields as well as I had given hope to believe I would.

I was making arrangements to supply Oregon this year with two laborers instead of one; but the small number of appointees will render it impossible to do so. Bro. Haws, however, who gave, so far as I know, universal satisfaction there last year, will resume his labors there again. I hope the brethren there will render him every assistance possible, and that his labors will be crowned with success through the blessings of God.

My intention was to make Nevada my own especial field this summer, but as the conference has requested Bro. Mills to labor there for a season, it would be unwise for me to spend means to reach them, and so will try to keep the work moving in southern California until Bro. Mills returns. This change will be a financial saving to the church, while Nevada will lose nothing by it. I mention it that those who were given reason to expect me will know why I do not come. After Bro. Mills returns from Nevada, southern California will have his entire attention, aided by Bro. Badham as circumstances will permit.

Northern California will have the services of Bro. Thomas Daley, if arrangements can be made to put him in the field; while central California will probably have the labors of Bro. Cook.

This you will see is a small force compared with the extensive field. So the Saints will need to exercise patience until such time as the work to be done can be reached. I hope to yet make arrangements for the appointing of some more; but should I fail in this, I hope those who can labor will not slacken their efforts, but labor locally as God shall open the way before them.

District and branch officials will use their utmost endeavors to keep the work in their respective departments in working order, so that we may have no regulating to do, but may give our time wholly to the preaching of the word. Recognizing the voice of the Spirit which says, "Contention is unseemly;" let us lay aside all "vexed questions," and give our time, our talent, and our means to forward the preaching of the principles of Christ's gospel, humbly imploring the mercy of God to be exercised towards our short comings, while his power through the gift of his Holy Spirit may be with us in our labor of love.

Those who were appointed to missions last year and received none this, I hope will labor in their respective fields as before as circumstances will permit, until further arrangements can be made.

I wish to call attention of the priesthood and parents of the church to the fact that the young in this mission, with but few exceptions, are taking but little or no interest in the church. Those who should be the hope of the church are not only careless, but in many instances entirely ignorant of the principles of the gospel. Something should be done to attract their attention and lead them to see the beauty of a life devoted to truth. As a means tending towards this end I call attention to and heartily recommend the enterprise suggested by Sr. M. Walker as advertised in recent issues of the Herald, and earnestly urge parents, branch officers, superintendents, and teachers of Sunday Schools to put forth an especial effort to make this movement a success. I have been detained at home for some time on account of the sickness of my companion; but with the blessings of God I will soon be out again, and propose to push my department of the work as vigorously as possible; and respectfully call upon all in the mission to aid in their respective callings as God shall give strength and opportunity. Neglect not to plead with the Master that his blessings may rest upon the labors of all.

Invoking the blessings of our heavenly Father upon you all, I subscribe myself your co laborer in the vineyard of the Lord,

HEMAN C. SMITH,

President Pacific Slope Mission.

LONDON DISTRICT.

The Two Days' Meeting of the London District will be held in the Egremont branch, Gray county, Ontario, June 19th and 20th, 1887. There having risen some items of business since our last session of conference it will be necessary that we organize into a short business session to attend to it. Hoping all Saints and friends who can make it convenient, will come, that we may bring the Spirit of the Master with us that we may have a time of spiritual blessings, as it is the first two days' meeting ever held in the London district in place of a conference.

SAMUEL BROWN, Dist. Pres.

VOICE OF WARNING.

Last January Bro. Peters, of East Lake, Michigan, sent me ten copies of Voice of Warning. I sold them readily. I had to send to the office for twelve more, as Bro. Peters was absent from home. I also sold two copies of Book of Mormon, two hymn books and will have to send and get more of them. I have also sold one of Elder J. J. Cornish's Bible Synopsis, and have five more signers.

MARRIED.

THOMAS—JOHNSON.—At the residence of the bride, Reese Creek, Montana, May 15th, 1887, Bro. John Thomas, of Salem, Oregon, to Mrs. Pauline Johnson; Elder J. E. Reese officiating.

DIED.

CADMAN.—At her home in Kingston, Caldwell county, Missouri, on the evening of May 13th, 1887, Sr. Sarah A. Cadman, aged 53 years, 3 months and 19 days. The last twenty-one years of her life were spent in the church. She passed away full established in the faith. Her suffering, though intense, was patiently borne. A husband and nine children remain to mourn her loss. The skillful care of a physician, the earnest prayers of God's people, the kind and loving care of relatives and sympathizing friends, were all bestowed, but her days were numbered. She passed on to await her final reward at the resurrection of the just. The funeral was largely attended—the M. E. Church not being large enough to seat those in attendance. Elder H. C. Bronson, of St. Joseph, preached the sermon, which was timely, and highly appreciated.

RASMASON.—At Council Bluffs, Iowa, April 22d, 1887, Lily Augusta, infant daughter of Sister and Bro. Rasmason; aged 1 year and 9 months. She suffered very much for fifteen days and then passed peacefully away. Funeral conducted by Bro. F. Peterson.

"Dearest, darling Lily; thou hast gone and left us,
And thy loss we deeply feel;
But we'll put our trust in Jesus.
He will all our sorrow heal."

HER MOTHER.

RALPHS.—At San Bernardino, California, April 21st, 1887, Sr. Mary Ann Ralphs. Sr. Ralphs will be remembered by all who have visited San Bernardino, as an upright, consistent, humble, generous Latter Day Saint. The church below will feel her loss, but her rest must needs be glorious. She was born in Manchester, England, January 1st, 1820. Her pilgrimage here was 67 years, 3 months and 18 days. Funeral services were conducted by Elder Heman C. Smith, assisted by Elders Wm. Gibson and D. L. Harris.

BASS.—On May 16th, 1887, at the home of his brother, at Beloit, Wisconsin, Bro. George O. Bass, aged 37 years and 4 months. Bro. George passed away quietly without a struggle, and is the fourth one of our family who have died with the dreaded disease, consumption. Funeral discourse by Bro. F. M. Cooper, to a large and attentive audience.

JOSEPH SMITH . . . . . EDITOR.
W. W. BLAIR . . . . . ASSOCIATE EDITOR.

Lamoni, Iowa, June 11, 1887.

BRO. JAMES WHITEHEAD, of Alton, Illinois, visited the Saints of Lamoni during the last days of May. He was with them over two Sundays, and spoke on Tuesday evening, the 24th. His presence and testimony were of great value to the Saints. He was a clerk in the office of Joseph Smith, the president of the church, from July, 1842, until Joseph and Hyrum were killed. He was in position to know much that was going on at Nauvoo, during the closing years of Joseph Smith's life, and was acquainted with the doctrines, theories, rumors, and incidents of the time in which he was so closely connected with Joseph the martyr. His recollections are clear and emphatic; his faculties unimpaired; and for this reason his statements concerning things which occurred in the time referred to are of great worth to those whose connection with the work began at a later period. His friendship for the prophet was unselfish and intense. He knew the man in his public and private life. He had seen him and known him during that stormy period from 1842 to 1844; was within the circle of counsel and conversation in which Joseph and Hyrum Smith, the Twelve and leading elders of the church moved, and was more or less conversant with the views, objects, designs and policies "more certainly believed" among them. Thus entitled to speak from actual knowledge of the times and circumstances, he was listened to with confidence by the members of the branch at Lamoni, and leaves among them the testimony of an untarnished life and an undiminished faith. It was not like "one returned from the dead," but it was like a messenger returned from a distant land unto which he had been sent with a message he had faithfully delivered and was returned again to relate it to the members of his father's household. He left Lamoni in company with Bro. H. A. Stebbins, to visit Bro.

Abram Reese at Pleasanton, Iowa, on the 31st of May; happy in Christ, and in his visit to Lamoni.

"AND FOUND WANTING."—No. 2.

D. WHITMER ON POLYGAMY.

IN his "Address" page 38, D. Whitmer says:

"I now have as much evidence that brother Joseph received the revelation on polygamy, and gave it to the church, as I have to believe that such a man as George Washington ever lived. I never saw George Washington, but from reliable testimony I believe that he did live."

Just before making this statement he says:

"I am receiving letters of inquiry as to my belief and knowledge concerning the question of polygamy. I have also another important reason for speaking upon this subject. There are false doctrines of importance in the book of Doctrine and Covenants, and I desire to prove them false doctrines."

The argument used by D. Whitmer, to accomplish the desire expressed above, is of a very singular and striking character. He says:

"If brother Joseph Smith received the revelation on polygamy and gave it to the church, the Doctrine and Covenants must be laid down, for the commandment is 'His word ye shall receive as if from mine (God's) own mouth.' Then you must receive the revelation on polygamy, or else you must lay aside the Doctrine and Covenants. For his word (all of his word) ye shall receive as if from God's own mouth."—"Address" p. 38.

The revelation from which D. Whitmer attempts to quote is chapter 22, in Book of Commandments, and section 19 of Doctrine and Covenants; and the honesty, fairness and love for Joseph Smith held by the one who quotes from it may be seen by any one who will take the pains to read the whole revelation "without prejudice," as he asks us to read his "Address;" and without "desire" in his heart to prove the Doctrine and Covenants to contain "false" things.

"Wherefore, meaning the church, thou shalt give heed unto all his words, and commandments, which he shall give unto you, as he receiveth them, walking in all holiness before me; for his word ye shall receive, as if from mine own mouth in patience and faith." * * * "For behold, I will bless all those who labor in my vineyard, with a mighty blessing, and they shall believe on his words, which are given him through me, by the Comforter, which manifesteth that Jesus was crucified by sinful men for the sins of the world; yea for the remission of sins unto the contrite heart."

There is nothing in the revelation, which if construed in fairness and "charity," the love of God that "thinketh no evil," can be made to mean what David Whitmer states in regard to it. He has no more right to misconstrue the words of this revelation, than the editor of the Her- ald has to misconstrue the words of David Whitmer; and the latter does violence to the commonest rules of construction when he quotes from the revelation the portion stated by him and construes it to mean that the church was, or is under obligation to heed all the words of Joseph Smith as "if from God's own mouth." The words to which they are to give heed are those which Joseph Smith was to "receive" from God, "walking in all holiness before him," the "words" "given him through" the "comforter." No other words or commands are included in the direction to receive his words. Elder Whitmer betrays himself here, and shows that his desire to prove Joseph Smith to have been a bad man, has pushed him beyond the confines of fairness and kind dealing. This is shown further on page 39 of "Address," where Elder Whitmer states that "the fact that Joseph received this revelation [revelation on polygamy.—Ed.] was then known and acknowledged in editorials in the Herald." No such knowledge was had or acknowledged by those having the Herald in charge at that time, January 1860, nor since. Brethren Wm. Marks, Zenos H. Gurley, Sen., and W. W. Blair, were appointed a publishing committee, and Isaac Sheen, Editor, at a conference held October 6th 1859. The first issue of Herald was published at Cincinnati, and a large number printed and distributed, everywhere, as specimen numbers. The editor, Isaac Sheen, wrote the article from which Elder Whitmer has chosen his evidence upon which he bases his belief that Joseph Smith received and gave to the church the polygamic revelation. Elder Whitmer intimates that the Heralds of the first issue have "been hid up and destroyed." So far is this from being the truth, that there was a large issue of this number reprinted in June, 1864, at Plano, Illinois; and it would not be surprising that the very number from which Elder Whitmer quotes is one of that reprinted issue.

But Elder Whitmer has misrepresented the article, and the scope of it, from which he first quotes. That article was a clipping from the Saturday Evening Post, for October 9th, 1852; and was written at a time when Elder Sheen was not connected with the Reorganized Church at all; and had Elder Whitmer been as honest and fair as he would wish the readers of his "Address" to believe that he is, he would have reproduced in connection with the statement the comment of the Post upon this statement of Isaac Sheen, who was not at the time writing in the interests of the Reorganized church; but against the Utah polygamists, and using their own statements respecting the doctrine, without reference to his private views on the matter; his communication being date September 20th, 1852. The comment of the Post is:

"It therefore seems that the Lalt Lake Mormons, if Mr. Sheen be correct, and he quotes the very words of the Book of Mormon, are acting not only in opposition to common decency and morality, but to the explicit commands of their own holy book, and to the dying testimony of Joseph Smith, their founder."—Saturday Evening Post, October 9th, 1852.

But, the language used by Isaac Sheen and quoted by David Whitmer does not implicate Joseph Smith in the manner "supposed" by this writer that loves him so much. Isaac Sheen does not state what connection Joseph Smith had with the spiritual wife doctrine; for he did not know, and could not testify as a witness. Beside this he states that Joseph Smith "caused the revelation to be burned." How, when and by whom? The only evidence ever offered on this burning business was the statement of President Brigham Young, made August 29th, 1852, at Salt Lake City, who said that "a wicked, wicked woman burned it," referring to the wife of Joseph Smith. The wife of Joseph Smith, Emma, stated repeatedly to Jason W. Briggs, L. C. Bidamon, her son Joseph, and others that she "never saw the revelation" and "never burned it." And yet David Whitmer goes out of his way as a witness of the Book of Mormon, to canvass the question of polygamy and Joseph Smith connection with it, of which he had and has no more personal knowledge than he has that the moon is, or is not "made of green cheese;" or a world like the earth, and inhabited by men, angels, or devils, and rolls this lie under his tongue as a savory morsel; because foresooth he thinks he can by it prove that Joseph Smith gave false revelations which are in the Book of Covenants.

Again: Joseph Smith said that the "doctrine was of the devil," himself. David Whitmer tells us no new thing when he asserts that the doctrine is bad and from the devil. He has Joseph Smith's word for it; and that word given too, when he was surrounded by enemies, seeking his life. It may be perfectly true what he is reported having said that "if it had not been for that accursed spiritual wife doctrine, he would not have come to that;" and still himself had no guilty connection with it.

David Whitmer states further:

"Brother Sheen does not state how long brother Joseph had connection with this doctrine, but of course we suppose from the time the revelation was given, July 12th, 1843, until the time of his repentance just before his death, in June, 1844; at which time he concluded that the revelation was not of God, but was of the devil, and caused it to be burned, voluntarily giving himself up to his enemies, saying he was going to Carthage to die."

Who is it that makes this supposition? David Whitmer resents the Herald's suggestion that anybody else than himself is engaged in dictating the "Address;" and yet he says: "but of course, we suppose." Who are the we? Here David Whitmer testifies to a supposition; a damaging confession of ignorance of the matter in question, and a form of evidence, always objectionable and never allowed as proof of alleged facts in any court. David Whitmer wishes the readers of the "Address" to believe that the Holy Spirit has led and directed him to give the things contained in it as his "testimony;" and yet he by an "of course, we suppose" locates the time when Joseph concluded that the "revelation was not of God, but was of the devil, and caused it to be burned" and gave "himself up to his enemies," and "going to Carthage to die," were all continuous events, occurring in June, 1844, just prior to his death. Does Isaac Sheen from whom Elder Whitmer quotes make any statements from which all this suppositious matter is derived? You who have read the "Address," can easily determine. David Whitmer states that the revelation to which he refers was given July 12th, 1843, but gives no source from which he derived that information. On what does he base such a statement? It certainly is not found in the article of Isaac Sheen from which he quotes; and Mr. Whitmer's "we suppose" so is the only authority given for it!

Again; David Whitmer professes to quote from an editorial article in Herald vol. 1, No. 1, January 1860. This professed quotation we give, just as it is found on page 40 of the "Address."

"I will now quote from the same number of the Herald, page 8. It is an editorial, being the second article in the first number of the paper. This adulterous spirit (polygamy) had captivated their hearts and they desired a license from God to lead away captive the fair daughters of his people, and in this state of mind they came to the Prophet Joseph (not Brigham Young). Could the Lord do anything more or less than what Ezekiel hath prophesied (answer a prophet according to his iniquity). The Lord hath declared by Ezekiel what kind of an answer he would give them, therefore he answered them according to the multitude of their idols; (giving them an answer through Joseph—the revelation on polygamy; and Joseph gave the revelation to them—the church). Paul had also prophesied that for this cause, 'God shall send them strong delusion, that they shall believe a lie; that they all might be damned who believe not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness.' Both these prophecies agree. In Ezekiel's prophecy the Lord also says, 'I will set my face against that man, and will make him a sign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; and ye shall know that I am the Lord. And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord have deceived that prophet (or, allowed the prophet to be deceived because of his iniquity—W), and I will stretch out my hand upon him and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity; the punishment of the prophet shall be even as the punishment of him that seeketh unto him; that the house of Israel may go no more astray from me, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions; but that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord God.' We have here the facts as they have transpired, and as they will continue to transpire in relation to this subject. The death of the prophet is one fact that has been realized; although he abhorred and repented of this iniquity before his death."

Of this, David Whitmer states at the close: "Here we have also the testimony of the editor of the Herald."

In the original article as it is in the HERALD there is not a parenthesis, nor a dash from the word "This," with which David Whitmer begins his quotation to the word

"death;" with which he closes it. But David Whitmer inserts the word (polygamy) in parentheses after the word "spirit;" the words (not Brigham Young) after the word "Joseph;" which would not do any particular harm, only they make the writer of the original article to say what he did not. But, after the word "prophe-sied," David Whitmer introduces the words "answer a prophet according to his iniquity;" which not only are not found in Isaac Sheen's article; but they affirm that Ezekiel prophesied that the Lord for a license for their iniquities according to the "iniquity" of the "prophet;" a thing which neither Isaac Sheen, nor Ezekiel did say. The good book says: "I the Lord will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols." David Whitmer is so eager in his "desire" to prove Joseph Smith to have given false revelations in the Doctrine and Covenants, that he not only testifies of what he had no knowledge, but he perverts the writings of a man who wrote upon a subject upon which he had no personal knowledge, and perverts the language of the prophet Ezekiel, also, whose character as a prophet is not on examination among Latter Day Saints. But this is not all: after the word "idols," David Whitmer inserts the words "giving them an answer through Joseph—the revelation on polygamy; and Joseph gave the revelation to them—the church."

Isaac Sheen's bones should turn in their grave at such an outrage on his language. He wrote nothing of the kind. There is not a thing in the article that indicates that Elder Sheen proposed to state that Joseph Smith gave the revelation to the church. The nominative of the personal plural pronoun, "their," used in connection with "hearts," "their hearts," is found in a sentence going before, which is "and men have set up their idols in their hearts;" this is still further preceded by "these back sliders;" "Brigham Young" and "his priests," as filling the prototypes of "King Noah" and his priests, to whom Elder Sheen refers, from Book of Mosiah, 7th chapter.

David Whitmer may say, "O, all these parenthetical sentences are mine; and only explanatory." This will hardly do, for Elder Whitmer has inserted in the midst of a quotation from Ezekiel, the words, "(or, allowed the prophet to be deceived because of his iniquity.—W.)" This is the only sentence in parenthesis which David Whitmer has marked if this one be marked as his. He could put them into the language of Isaac Sheen without marking them, thus making it to appear that he was the one making these perversions of the words of Ezekiel; but he had not the courage to spoil the sublime text of the old record in such a way. No human being who reads this purported quotation from the writings of Isaac Sheen could by any possibility know to the contrary but what he had written the words enclosed in parentheses. The reader must conclude they were Sheen's, not Whitmer's. No, the purpose was to make the article of Isaac Sheen do duty as a "testimony" against Joseph Smith,

It was not strong enough as it stood; it must be doctored. And will any man dare to say that it was done by the Holy Ghost, the Spirit of Truth, the Comforter.

Again: Taking the article for all that may be legitimately claimed for it; no blame can attach to Joseph Smith if the Lord did really answer those men who sought unto him "according to their idols." Ezekiel says: "I the Lord will answer them." And again: "And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord have deceived that prophet." David Whitmer undertakes to break the force of this by interpolating his explanation of what Ezekiel meant, in the words "or, allowed the prophet to be deceived because of his iniquity." Is it possible that David Whitmer has been sent not only to correct the errors of Joseph Smith but to rectify and explain those of Ezekiel and the rest of the prophets of Israel. If so, it is high time he was about that business.

Elder Whitmer shows decidedly bad judgment in attempting to fix the prophecy of Ezekiel to fit his preconceived idea that it was because of the iniquity of Joseph Smith that the answer of the Lord was to come through him, by which those who "sought unto him" were to be led to believe a lie. The man in Ezekiel's prophecy against whom the face of the Lord was to be set, was the man who sought unto the prophet; though both prophet and those so seeking should be punished, in order that God's people might no more go astray.

Altogether more has been made of this argument of Elder Isaac Sheen's than the article itself will bear. The present presiding elder was not then connected with the Reorganized Church, and was not so connected until April, 1860. The HERALD was printed at Cincinnati, Ohio, under the editorial charge of Bro. Sheen. The committee, Brn. Marks, Gurlley, and Blair, lived not many miles apart in Northern Illinois. The matter for the first issue of the HERALD should have passed through their inspection, but did not. The position assumed in the argument of Elder Sheen was not endorsed by them; nor was it ever acted upon and endorsed by the church formally. The present presiding elder of the church, and senior editor of HERALD refused to endorse such position both at the time of assuming the duties of his office, and steadily and persistently from that time to this. His position upon the question was then just what it is now, that he did not know whether the revelation was received by Joseph Smith, or not; that it was directly in opposition to the faith of the church and revelations accepted by it as from God, and therefore not binding being contrary to God's written word; that the revelation had not been given to the church by Joseph Smith, and had never reached the church, even under the presidency of Brigham Young in accordance with the rules governing the body, and which were given for the very purpose of preventing "damnable doctrines" being foisted upon the people of the church. And when Elder David Whitmer volunteers his statement that God gave "them an answer through Joseph—the revelation on polygamy; and Joseph gave the revelation to them—the church;" he states what he, nor the polygamists in Utah who claim the revelation as being a holy law and from God direct, have not yet proved and can not prove. The revelation, if there was one, was not presented to the church in the lifetime of Joseph Smith; and it was not until August 29th, 1852, that it was presented to the church in Utah, and that too by President B. Young, and without it having been submitted to quorum action.

If the argument made by David Whitmer on the article of Elder Isaac Sheen, which he so cruelly mangles in quoting, be a good one; that is, that Latter Day Saints must throw aside the Book of Covenants because Joseph Smith gave the polygamic revelation, and it was false, and therefore the "commandment to receive Brother Joseph's words as if from God's mouth was false," is a good one, what shall be said of the book of Ezekiel; for that prophet makes God the responsible author of what is given to deceive those asking for revelation; and Elder Sheen's argument is made upon the hypothesis that God did give the revelation to Joseph, and that for the purpose of deceiving those who came to him making the inquiry. If this is correct reasoning, then Joseph Smith's only crime in the matter of receiving the revelation was that he suffered God to deceive him. The conclusion from the argument of Elder Whitmer would seem to be that because Joseph was not smart enough to prevent the Lord from deceiving him and giving him a false revelation—"Some revelations are of God; some revelations are of men; and some revelations are of the Devil," which was this of—and because the Lord did so deceive him he was a bad man.

Apropos of this: Elder David Whitmer states that he was "called out to hold the authority." But in 1847 he was baptized by W. E. McLellan and re-ordained by him to the office of High Priest and President of the church; and received a revelation as Seer, Revelator and Translator, which he gave to Jacob and John Whitmer, Hiram Page and W. E. McLellan, endorsing what the latter had done at Kirtland in pursuance of what he claimed to have received as a command from the Lord; thus compromising himself as fully as his words, acts and the spirit by which he was moved could do, with an effort to lead an organized body which he and they called the Church of Christ. Was David Whitmer satisfied with the authority which he says he was called out to hold, that had been conferred upon him? Why then did he submit to a re-ordination at the hands of W. E. McLellan? And why was not the authority to which he was so re-ordained confined to the office of elder, which he now says was the only high office in the church, instead of being to that of High Priest, into which he was ordained July, 1834 by Joseph Smith, or under the system and order taught and held in the church at that time? And why was the still higher office according to W. E. McLellan, whom D. Whitmer so signally endorsed, that of President of the High Priesthood, and of the church, added? And how is it that Elder Whitmer now states, as he does on page 28 of the "Address," that he has no desire to lead the church, and has refused to do so; he says:

"A one man leader to the church is not the teachings of Christ. After brother Joseph was killed, many came to me and importuned me to come out and be their leader; but I refused."

He certainly did not refuse in this instance; and he does not say who they were who came to him to get him to lead the church whom he did refuse. And now, was David Whitmer again distrustful and of weak faith respecting this call, and the ordination received in 1847? Again: If the ordination of high priests was such a grievous error and was fraught with such disastrous consequences, as to bring down at the very start the displeasure of God to such a degree that the devil was permitted to fall upon and bind some of those who were ordained, how does it happen that the devil did not put his spirit upon Elder Whitmer when he was so ordained in 1847? And how does it happen that John Whitmer wrote in his journal of events?

"While the Lord poured out his Spirit, the devil took occasion to make his power known; he bound Harvey Whitlock so that he could not speak, and others were affected; but the Lord showed to Joseph the Seer, the design of this thing. He commanded the devil in the name of Christ and he departed, to our joy and comfort."

Of this Elder Whitmer says:

"Of course it was given to brother Joseph to cast the devil out, but what was the design of the devil entering into these men just as soon as they were ordained the first High Priests ever ordained in the church? Of course it was to show that God's sore displeasure was upon their erring works of ordaining High Priests into the church of Christ. Any spiritual man can see this."—"Address," page 65.

At the same time that Harvey Whitlock was ordained, Lyman Wight, John Murdock, Hiram Smith, Reynolds Cahoon, John Whitmer, and others were ordained also. Of these only two were seized of the devil, Whitlock and Murdock. Is it not very strange that when Joseph Smith essayed to ordain High Priests against the will and to the displeasure of God as charged by D. Whitmer, that the Lord should pour out his Spirit upon those ordained, thus sanctioning the act; and that out of six or ten men so ordained by Joseph Smith, the great transgressor in the scene, only two should be seized of the devil; and that when these were so taken that Joseph Smith, whom John Whitmer calls "the seer," should be the one who should as a matter "of course" cast the devil out. From David Whitmer's curt saying "any spiritual man can see this;" he would have his readers to infer that the design of the Lord was to show his displeasure at the ordaining of High Priests by permitting the devil to torment two out of six so ordained. But John Whitmer says that the "Lord showed to Joseph the Seer, the design of this thing." Joseph commanded the devil in the name of Christ to depart, and he departed. If the Lord showed Joseph Smith the design of this visitation of the devil's power, then and there, while there was a necessity for both the wisdom and the power to act, Latter Day Saints, and every body else who read the "Address" of David Whitmer may depend that the Lord did not show to David, nor John Whitmer a different design in 1848. John Whitmer did not see it as David Whitmer now sees it for him, in 1831 when the circumstances occurred. He wrote then "the Lord poured out his Spirit." Upon whom was it poured? Upon those ordained to the office of High Priest. It so pleased the Lord that he confirmed the act of Joseph Smith by sending his Spirit; the same as he did when Jesus was baptized of John in Jordan. The devil was pleased, or displeased, and he sent his spirit upon two of six or eight. The Lord showed this spirit and its design unto Joseph Smith and he, in Christ's name and by his authority commanded the devil to come out of the men and depart, and it was done. Could men acting in the name of the Lord ask for any better, or plainer endorsement of their work? John Whitmer wrote truly; but his unnatural brother, now that John is in the grave and can not defend the aspersions cast upon his faithfulness and spirituality, states in relation to what the historian wrote of this affair that the "Spirit of God" was "poured out in abundance upon that occasion, some seeing visions, etc," that "you will learn in the next world, if you do not know it already, that the devil can give visions, appearing as an Angel of Light." The inference of David Whitmer here is plain. He desires to have his readers to understand that the spirit which was poured out, on that occasion when these ordinations took place, by which prophecies were uttered and visions seen was the spirit of the devil; and that his brother John Whitmer's statement was a falsehood. He carries the same inference when he says that John Whitmer tried to "explain it away," further up the page. David Whitmer is not content to detract from the fair name of Joseph Smith, but he casts aspersions upon the character of John Whitmer as well.

David Whitmer was not there and is not competent to state anything about what took place. John Whitmer was there; he partook of the Spirit of the Lord, then poured out; so did all the others, the men upon whom the power of the Devil fell included; for they experienced the force and influence of both, the darkness and misery of the one, the comfort and peace and blessedness of the other. It can not be that David Whitmer is so blind as to ask us to believe that it was the one and selfsame spirit of the devil that John Whitmer says was "poured out in abundance," by which men "prophecied" and "saw visions," was the one which bound the men Whitlock and Murdock, was the one that showed the seer the design and that cast the devil out of the men and released them from their bondage. Jesus said—"If I by Beelzebub cast out devils by whom do your children cast them out?"—Matt. 12:27.

Again: David Whitmer quotes from a statement made by Wm. Marks, also found in the first number of the HERALD:

"He (Joseph) said it eventually would prove the overthrow of the church, and we should soon be obliged to leave the United States unless it could be speedily put down. He was satisfied that it was a cursed doctrine, and that there must be every exertion made to put it down, etc."

Why did not David Whitmer quote the remainder of the statement of Wm. Marks to which the "etc.," at the close of what he did quote refers? Because it would interfere with the argument he wished to make; it is as follows:

"He said that he would go before the congregation and proclaim against it, and I must go into the High Council, and he would prefer charges against those in transgression, and I must sever them from the church unless they made ample satisfaction."

If those who read would exercise a little of the common sense with which God has endowed them, they would ask a few questions before gulping down the conclusions which Elder Whitmer gives in his "Address" page 41, on this statement of Wm. Marks. How does the statement inculcate Joseph Smith in the teaching or practice of polygamy? Does he here tell Wm. Marks that he has been guilty? No, it simply states that the doctrine was cursed: that if not speedily checked it would overthrow the church; that the church would have to leave the United States; that he, Joseph Smith, was satisfied that it was a cursed doctrine; that every exertion should be made to put it down; that he, Joseph Smith, would go before the congregation and proclaim against it; that William Marks, the Presiding Elder of the church (stake or branch) at Nauvoo, and presiding officer of the High Council, should go into the High Council, sitting in his place, where he, Joseph Smith, would appear and prefer charges against those in transgression; and that unless these persons so charged made ample satisfaction, Wm. Marks should sever them from the church. This is the plain common sense of the whole statement. From it has been constructed the hugest mountain ever created from so small a molehill. There is not a line in it that implicates Joseph Smith or Wm. Marks as guilty of teaching, or practicing the cursed doctrine. There is nothing in it that indicates that the doctrine was taught, or practiced as a tenet of the church; or that any considerable number were engaged in it. It is simply an inferential admission that there was something of the sort held by some, and that unless it was checked great mischief would ensue. Who made this discovery? Joseph Smith. To whom did he go to speak of it? To William Marks, the Presiding Elder of the branch, stake, or church at Nauvoo, where both lived. President Marks does not say in this statement that Joseph Smith said anything that can be construed as an admission that he was himself in the practice, or teaching the doctrine. On the contrary, if anything is to be derived from it by fair-minded men it would be that Joseph Smith had become possessed of the information that somebody was talking, and possibly doing the wrong spoken of; that he foresaw the danger, and to stop it proposed to go into the public stand "before the congregation and proclaim against it;" and that more than this, he would prefer charges against those persons and they should be expelled from the church. Is any one so foolish as to suppose that Joseph Smith was himself so big a fool as to publicly proclaim against a doctrine which he was secretly teaching and practicing; or that he was so foolhardy as to go before a legitimate tribunal and charge men with transgression of which he was guilty, and of which others knew he was guilty. Men who choose to believe such a thing must, like David Whitmer, have set up a "desire" in their hearts to prove Joseph Smith to be false to his trust in God.

The statements made by Isaac Sheen and Wm. Marks are all the proofs presented by David Whitmer in support of his belief that Joseph Smith received the revelation on plural marriage. Not a line of proof does he give as to how, when, or where Joseph Smith gave the revelation to the church. He left the church, making a virtue of necessity, in 1838; and the things alleged to have transpired in the statements which he offers in evidence occurred in 1844, six years afterward. David Whitmer was not with the church then, knew nothing personally of what was going on in the church; and we are impressed that this screed on polygamy injected into chapter four of the "Address," as a make weight, was to darken the character of Joseph Smith. It was wholly unnecessary to the purpose stated by David Whitmer, that of proving the Doctrine and Covenants faulty, if such were really the fact; and it can not fail to impress the candid reader unfavorably to David Whitmer's cause.

David Whitmer says on page forty-two of the "Address:" "I must say that all who stumble because of the errors of Joseph Smith, are weak indeed." David Whitmer began stumbling because of the errors of Joseph Smith in 1835, as he now states, and he has been stumbling ever since, and his last stumble is the worst of all.

"Prejudiced persons are blind and do not want to see and understand except their own preconceived way. There is none so blind as those who will not see."

So says Elder Whitmer on page sixty-five of his "Address." It fits his position exactly. His "Address" bears the marks of prejudice against Joseph Smith and his work from its opening chapter to its close; and in none of its chapters is it more strikingly displayed than in his attempt to add the weight of his testimony to the charge that Joseph received and gave as a revelation from God that monstrosity called by the church in Utah the "Revelation on plural marriage."

We have had great respect for David Whitmer, his age and the circumstances of his connection with the rise of the church have conduced to this; and had he confined his effort to those things and times within his personal knowledge we should have felt much more confidence in his effort; but when he so wantonly traverses fields outside of his own knowledge to fasten odium upon Joseph Smith and others, it to us, betrays an animus that throws suspicion over all that he has written.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

WE call attention to the advertisement of Sr. B. C. Smith, of Independence, Missouri, announcing that the Sisters' Aid Society has photographs of the Old Jail at Liberty, Clay county, Missouri, in which the brethren were confined in 1838, to be sold in aid of the church at Independence. This photograph has five of the brethren also in the group: Joseph and Alexander Smith, S. Maloney, F. C. Warnky and J. W. Brackenbury.

Bro. W. W. Blair leaves to-day for St. Joseph and Stewartville, Missouri, and Plum Hollow, Iowa, to look after church affairs and labor in its interests as he can. After attending the Plum Hollow conference he intends to meet with the Galland's Grove district conference, which meets in the Salem branch, June 10th. Last Sunday he met with the Lucas (Iowa) branch, and held two services, both of which were largely attended. There are a goodly number there about ready to take up their cross and follow the call of the Master. The Saints were refreshed by the excellent sermons and exhortations of Bro. D. S. Mills in his late visit there. It is pleasant and encouraging to follow such laborers, for their reputation is "like precious ointment."

Bro. C. M. Fulks wrote us under date of April 11th, 1887, but his letters did not reach us till May 31st. He is located near Harper, McDonald county, Missouri, and thinks it a very good point for persons to find homes cheaply and easily. There are now nineteen members of the church there, seven having been baptized by Bro. Depew of late.

Sr. Mira Carter, of Osceola, Iowa, invites us to hold services in that town. Pressing duties in other directions prevent our complying for the present, and we therefore leave it for the district president, Bro. H. A. Stebbins, hoping he may preach there at an early time.

Bro. R. J. Anthony would leave his home for his Utah field of labor, May 26th, calling at North Platte City and Hutchinson on his way west. We commend brother R. J. to the kind mercies of the Master in his labors in the west.

Bro. Cornish reports several more baptized at Bay Port, Michigan.

Bro. R. L. Ware writes, May 27th, that Elder E. L. Kelley had preached two excellent discourses in Kingston, Missouri, of late, and that they were well received.

Elder W. P. Brown, of Newton, Kansas, and who is laboring with David Whitmer, is out against the Reorganized Church in a pamphlet; send for one; address him at Newton, enclosing a stamp. We see that he calls Joseph the choice seer, while his co-worker, Elder Whitmer, says he is not. This is the same Elder Brown whom Elder Whitmer published in the HERALD last winter, and who returned from Canada in consequence thereof; would it not be well that the half dozen elders there is in the Church of Christ should agree together, before they claim the differences of opinion that there may be among the eldership of the Reorganized Church is evidence of their not being recognized of God. If a household of a half dozen can not agree, is it wonderful that one of several thousands may not.

By letter from Bro. T. Robinson who sends us a letter from Angus, Iowa, saying Bro. Thornton had returned, held a debate with a Methodist minister, and had baptized seven, and that they now had eighteen members and held testimony and prayer meetings Sunday afternoons. They desire some of the elders to call on them.

Bro. J. Armstrong wrote from Nebraska City, Nebraska, May 24th, that there never was a time that there was a greater need of preaching the word in their district than now. The people are hungering and thirsting after "the words of life." He says "I shall plant the good seed wherever I can, and trust that it may be watered in time, by myself or others."

Letters are received from several of the Saints for which we have not room, among them the following: Sr. Mary Hickling, Sheffield, England; Samuel Shaw, Beatrice, Nebraska; Joseph F. Burton, Hastings, Victoria; J. J. Cornish, Bay Port, Michigan; R. C. Evans, London, Ontario; J. Leatherdale, Harwich, Ontario.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. F. M. COOPER, of Plano, Illinois, reports that the Saints at East Delavan, Wisconsin, are at work and building solidly, both in the matter of their house of worship and in their spiritual work, as well. Bro. Cooper has been at Lyons and Beloit since conference. He says:

"Bigotry, prejudice and falsehood, have done their best to retard the advance of the work here, but up to this date truth has steadily gained ground. Three were baptized; while some of the finest people in this country have committed themselves upon the side of the faith, and in the future will obey. The Saints here are building from the ground up—none ever will join the church here half converted; they are afraid that their judgment were converted to our faith, but their hearts—well, the trouble was there."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ques.—That part of the revelation given April 11th, 1887, concerning the song service in our church, that at the prayer and testimony meetings the organ and all other instruments shall be silent. Does that mean that the opening and closing hymns at our sacrament services shall be sung without the accompaniment of the organ, or shall the Saints understand it to mean, that no instruments shall be played after the service is given to them to occupy: to sing, pray or speak, as led by the Spirit of God to do?

Ans.—We understand that it means that the prayer and testimony meetings among the Saints are to be held without the use of the organ or other instrumental music, either at the beginning, during the service, or at the close. We did not think that there could be a question as to the meaning of the word to us.

Q.—How can a man be born "by the word of God," as taught in 1 Peter 1: 23?

A.—By complying with "the word of God," which commands and provides for it. See John 3: 3-12; Matt. 28: 19, 20; Mark 16: 15, 16; Acts 10: 48; 1 John 2: 29; 5: 1; &c.

Q.—How is Christ "the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth?" (Romans 10: 4.) The sects say that we are under grace, and that there is no law now, not even the law of adoption.

A.—1. Christ was "the end of the law [of Moses] for righteousness," because that "law" was a means ordained of God to prepare a people to accept Christ and his righteousness—the gospel. Christ was the object—"end"—to which the law pointed, and to which it led those who believed in it. 2. Christ was "the end" of that law, for the reason that he terminated and abolished it by giving in its stead a greater, higher, holier, and more effective one, namely, the gospel, the "new covenant." See Jer. 31: 31-44, with Heb. 8: 6-13, and 10: 14-20, 28, 29; also 2 Cor. 3: 3-14; Rom. 7: 1-6; Heb. 7: 19; 10: 1; and Matt. chapters 5, 8, and 7, etc. 3. That we are under law is evident from the Scriptures; Rom. 7: 25; 8: 2; Heb. 7: 12; Jas. 1: 25; 2: 12; 1 John 3: 4; Heb. 8: 10; 10: 16, etc. Law is a rule of action; the commandments of Christ are the rule of action for all to whom they are given, therefore they are law to them, even "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus."—Rom. 8: 2. 4. It is true the Saints are "under grace," for the reason that it is by the grace of God that Christ was given to be the Savior of man by and through the means of the gospel. Deut. 18: 15-19, with Acts 3: 22-26; Isa. 55: 3, 4; John 14: 21-24; Rom. 1: 16, 17; Titus 3: 11; 1 John 3: 22-24; Rev. 22: 14. The "grace" of God furnishes man the means of salvation; by "faith" man may accept that means—the gospel—when properly presented to him; and when he accepts it, then by faith he must patiently "work out" his salvation strictly in accordance with "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus."

Q.—What does Paul mean when he says that "the gifts and callings of God are without repentance," in Romans 11: 29?

A.—He means that when God bestows gifts— favors—upon a person or people, he never repents of doing so. This the contexts clearly show, for St. Paul is here explaining "the gifts and calling of God" to Israel—past, present and future.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

Dear friends still toiling in the sun,—
Ye dearer ones who, gone before,
Are watching from the eternal shore
The slow work by your hands begun,—
Rejoice with me! The chastening rod
Blossoms with love; the furnace heat
Grows cool beneath His blessed feet
Whose form is as the Son of God!"

THE MOTHER OF MOSES.—No. 2.

"AND the woman took the child and nursed it." Sweet days of blessed privilege! The privilege of watching over and caring for her babe; but how there must have mingled with every throb of joy one painful thought! How the shadow of that hour in the near future must have fallen across the sunlight of the present, the hour when she must resign him to the king's daughter, must place upon his lips the last loving kiss, and know him no more as her own; but in obedience to the will of God lay her sacrifice upon the altar, and trust the results to Him. All too fast must have sped those precious days when her heart would tremble at each coming footstep, and her arms close more closely about her boy, lest the time and summons had come. As her child grew older how he grew into her heart. Daily some new charm was added to the winsomeness of that which went before; and so closely around her heart were entwining the tendrils of his young life that to sever them would soon be impossible, without crushing the life from hers.

"And the child grew and she brought him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son." Brief words in which to record an act like this! She waited not for the summons, lest her strength should fail; but taking her boy in her arms she hastened to the palace and left him there.

Sisters in Christ Jesus, whether we think upon it or not, such sacrifices have from the beginning been demanded by the Father, and both men and women have laid them upon the altar of his love. Has he asked us more than he has given? The knife of Abraham was stayed, Isaac was unbound, and without a mark upon his tender limbs was returned to his mother's arms—his father's love. At the time appointed, "Moses refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; and if his mother was still living, with what emotions of pride and joy she must have witnessed the mighty works God wrought by his hands in behalf of his afflicted people, and to the overthrowing of their haughty oppressors. But when we come to the Son of God, the Prophet like unto Moses, raised up from among his brethren, no voice is heard to stay the uplifted arm, no message comes in answer to the pleading cry: "Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me;" and, at the last, when the bitterest dregs of that cup was pressed to his dying lips, the face of the Father was veiled, and heart broken the Son cried out: "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

"Why hast thou forsaken me?" "I have trodden the wine press alone, and of the people there was none with me, . . . and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments, and I will stain all my raiment. I looked, and there was none to help, and I wondered that there was none to uphold; therefore, my own arm brought salvation unto me. * * *"

"I looked and there was none to deliver." Oh, the depth of that divine love and pity! "Father, send me; I will redeem them, and the honor and glory shall be thine." Filled with a love not to be fathomed except by God himself, the Son forsakes the glory he had with the Father from the beginning, takes upon himself the infirmities of his brethren; not the nature of angels, but the seed of Abraham, and is in all things made like unto them, that through knowledge of temptation he might be able to succor the tempted, and knowing all the infirmities of the flesh, he might be a merciful High Priest, ever interceding for us at the right hand of God. Having done implicitly and perfectly the will of the Father, he offered himself a willing sacrifice for the sin which had banished man from the presence of his God; and after having obtained the keys of death and hell, ascended up on high, leading captivity captive and gave gifts to men. And hear it, ye who so disregard the grand and glorious work wrought out by this mighty Redeemer, as to teach in his name that only the elect few shall ever be saved, while they who have not obeyed God in this brief span of life, shall be no more than the clods in the valley, or be consigned to endless torment forever and forever; hear it, we say, that God has sworn by himself, because he could swear by no higher: "As I live, saith the Lord, at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things and that in heaven, and things in earth and things under the earth; every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the father." If they confess it before God, it will be because they know it, for he to whom lying lips are abomination, will listen to no false confession from his creatures, and John says that this confession is life eternal. "And this is life eternal to know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life."

O, shame upon the man who dares stand as a minister for God and teach that those who are out of Christ shall perish, when millions upon millions of the human family have not as yet heard his name—the name of him whom God hath highly exalted, whose name is above every other name, and to whom every knee shall bow and every tongue confess."

O, the matchless love of God as manifested in the gospel of Christ. That gospel of which the world are to-day, very many of them, almost as ignorant as those who have never heard his name. The height and breadth, the length and depth of which they have never even had the shadow of a glimpse, and the nature of the atonement they comprehend as little as the love which prompted it.

But come we back to the mother of Moses and the lesson we would draw from her willing sacrifice. By faith she was enabled to make it, and by faith we may do the same. Not all of us have a Moses to lay upon the altar, but each and every one of us has a part to take in helping to spread the glad news of salvation. The fountain of sin and uncleanness has been opened in the house of David. We have been made partakers of the great salvation wrought out for us, purchased by the implicit obedience and blood of Christ, and now it becomes us to walk before him as Saints who knowing his will, hasten to obey it with gladness of heart.

Is this all? No, truly; there stands connected with our knowledge of Christ a solemn responsibility. It is possible for us to fall away. After having known Christ it is possible to deny him, to crucify him afresh and put him to an open shame. For all other sins there is forgiveness, either in this world or in that world which it to come; but for this there is no forgiveness; therefore, while all men except those who know him will yet have to come to that knowledge, there remains hope for all but us. If we deny him, there remains no longer hope, but a fearful looking for of that which is to come.

Our salvation was purchased with the most precious gift God had to bestow. His servants and handmaidens have at all times in the past laid upon the altar of his love their all, and can we, ought we to, expect to inherit a like glory with them unless we partake of their sacrifices, their labors. We never will, worlds without end, for God is just, and the privileges enjoyed by his Saints in this day are greater than in any former dispensation of time, and we may be assured that the account we have to render will be in proportion to our privilege, for "where much is given much will be required."

Sisters, we are pledged to the conference to help roll on the missionary work to the extent of our ability. Are we doing it? Many have done nobly, but are all striving to do their part? If all sent in their pennies, how they would add to the sum total. If those located in branches, where they have all the privileges of the church, only came up as promptly as those who are scattered and never have the privilege of attending meetings, the amount in our weekly list would soon double. There never was a time in the history of the Reorganized Church when the outlook was so cheering and the calls for preaching so urgent; and while our hearts are pained when we hear of those who are falling out by the way, the pain is for them, not because we have any fears for the work. Let us win them with reason and love, if we may, but if we can not, let us part in peace and double our diligence; and if we will keep in mind the work which is still left for the angels to do, we will take diligent heed to our own feet, lest though we be in the field among the wheat, we be found but a tare in the time of separating. The tares answer their purpose, or God would not suffer them to remain; but we don't want to be found among them, for we know that they will be bound in bundles for the burning, while the wheat will be gathered into the Lord's garner. The breeze which is passing over the church of God is causing every grain of wheat in his field to strike deeper root, and from the rich resources of his grace and love they are drawing such supplies as are making their lives "living epistles, known and read of all men;" and to-day and to-morrow, aye, forever, the church will be the better for every breeze which passes over the harvest field.

"Rejoice with me! The chastening rod
Blossoms with love; the furnace heat
Grows cool beneath His blessed feet
Whose form is as the Son of God!"

He is with us, and we are acknowledged of him. He has committed to the Reorganized Church the work of preparing a people to meet his coming, and as wives, mothers and daughters of Zion, he is calling upon us to take part in this work. Let our hearts and our homes be pure, and God will care for all the rest. If they turned away from following the Master himself because of the doctrine taught by his own lips, do you suppose that none will turn from his church for the same reason? Let us be steadfast, that we may be able to abide the day of his coming.

Sister Frances.—I have a desire to thank the Sisters that have written for the Home Column for their timely words of cheer and comfort. They have been strengthening to me and to others that have been but a few months interested in this work, and I hope they will continue to write, or that we may hear from others, as no doubt there will always be new converts that will watch with eager eyes for the testimonies of those that have been longer interested. I have not yet taken the Herald, but through the kindness of a sister I have the privilege of reading it. We have learned to esteem it very highly in this place, as it is our only preacher, unless we receive a visit from the traveling elders, which we are always pleased to do, and will kindly welcome any of them passing this way, if they would give us a call. There is no branch organized here, and we have no meetings, as there is no one to lead them; but it is my daily prayer that we may remain faithful to God and to this work, and that we may do nothing that will bring a reproach on the name of Christ Jesus. I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints.

Your sister in hope of eternal life,

M. WELSH.

Dear Sisters of the Home Column.—I thought I would write a few lines to the Home Column. I think it our duty to try even if we can but write a few lines. The people of God are to be tried, and if temptation overcomes us to-day, let us not give up, but keep striving day by day to overcome all evil. If we try and pray to God for deliverance, he will help us. We mothers have a great many trials to contend with in raising our families. We sometimes feel cross, and do not want to be bothered, and in that way give way to anger; but if we will lift a silent prayer to God he will help us to do better.

I, too, think it a sin and shame to buy silk, satin, and velvet, which is nothing only outward show; a plain dress trimmed with the same material looks neat and graceful, and more suitable for the Saints of God. I do not think we should try to dress like the world any more than participate in its other follies. Sisters, let us be wise on this subject. I have never regretted obeying this precious gospel. It is the power of God unto salvation. God grant that we may each live a pure life, so as to be worthy of that great reward—everlasting life.

Your sister in the covenant,

G.

BEECH LANE, Ont., April 22d.

Dear Sr. Frances.—I wish to tell you of a dream I had before coming into the church. I have read David Whitmer's communication to the Herald, and when I was reading it, this dream came to my remembrance. It was at a time when I was in great doubt and trouble as to which course I should pursue in regard to the doctrine that was being presented to me. I knew not which way to turn. I was a devout Methodist and I did not want to give up my belief unless I was sure that those awful Mormons were right, and I told the Lord that if they were right and the doctrine of divine origin, that I would forsake all and embrace it, if he would show it to me in a manner that I could not mistake.

After praying in this way I lay down on my bed to take my nightly rest, and I do not know whether I was sleeping or waking, but it was all very real and vivid. I thought that I stood in a narrow doorway, and to the right of the doorway, immediately in front of me was a forest, very dim and misty, with many paths leading through it, while to my left lay a very level plain, pure and as white as snow, with only one path leading straight across it. While I stood looking at it, there came a very bright ball of light in the sky. I wondered at it as it rolled from the east to the west through the sky, and I spoke and said, "I wonder what it all means," and then I distinctly heard a voice say: "The wilderness which you see is the religious world in which you have been wandering, seeking truth among its many dim paths and finding it not, but now the gospel law with its one straight path is being presented to you by my servants; which is the path across the white plain that you see is the light of the gospel, which is with my people. Believe and obey and find peace. It came from the country east of you and it went to the west, and lo, it has come to you."

I awoke with my mind greatly relieved and a great peace filling my soul. Perhaps you will not feel when you read this as I do when writing it, for the testimony is with me now, that the Reorganized Church is the true and only church of Christ, and if I always feel as I do now, not all the writings of the different factions combined can move me. The gospel is my joy and consolation in every trial, and by it I hope to gain salvation. God showed where his truth was and I propose to stand by it, though all men's works shall fall.

Yours in the hope of eternal life,

CHARLOTTE PIER.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, April 16th.

Dear Sisters.—My object in writing is to ask some good Mormon preacher to come here and preach and see if there can be enough members gathered into the fold to organize a branch. I am from the Valley Branch, Carroll county, Missouri; was baptized and confirmed by A. J. Cato, and I believe I was baptized into the right church. I am not willing to leave it and join some other church. I have grown very cold in the work; have not lived right in the sight of the Lord; have been afflicted six years. I desire the prayers of the Saints in my behalf. May the Lord send a preacher. Yours in the faith,

ADDIE WOOD.

Dear Herald.—There are about thirty Saints in the county. I came here last January, found about a dozen; now there are a goodly number of us. We have no organization yet, but hope to be organized this summer. We hold meetings every two weeks at some of the Saints' houses; and every two weeks in a sod school-house ten miles west. Elder Goreham and myself have been trying to tell the people here in two counties of the glorious gospel restored again; and of late brother T. E. Thompson, from Indiana, has been helping us; we have more calls than we can fill. This is a great change from a year ago, when Elder Goreham endeavored to preach and was threatened with ancient eggs. This change, we thank and praise God for; and when we come together for prayer and testimony meetings, the Lord is with us in great power. Last Sunday brother Goreham led three into the waters of baptism. In the evening we walked three miles, preached in a sod shanty, twelve feet square; and although it was raining, the house was filled and we had good liberty, and on Monday morning I went to my work on the railroad. Brother Goreham was with me, and he stopped and talked with the boss. After he had talked a while, the boss called me from my work, and said that he had thought me a Methodist, but wondered at my keeping so silent on religion while at work. "But," said he, "I want to read your Mormon Bible." He said, "I have heard what neither of you have; I heard Joseph Smith preach in New York and in Pennsylvania many times." Also said he had heard Sidney Rigdon and others; had seen Joseph baptize several of his relations. I said, "Mr. Steats, we don't believe in polygamy." "O, I know you don't," said he, "neither did Joseph Smith; but Brigham Young is the one that did that mischief since Joseph was killed." Every chance he has he is talking to me about the Mormons. Brother Goreham gave him a Voice of Warning, and today he gave me the money for it. I told him I would rather have the book. He said, "So would I;" and made me take the money. Praying for the welfare of all Saints.

SELIGMAN, Mo., May 24th.

Dear Herald.—When I last wrote to you I was at Silver Hill, Arkansas. Since that time I have had many things to overcome—trials, severe trials I have had. Sometimes it seemed I would have to succumb to their weight, but he who is ready to help the needy never left me entirely. Many times I was made to say alas, alas, what have I done that I should have to suffer so much! When sickness and death was making its way in my family, it was then that those from whom I had reason to expect aid forsook me, while they that I had been taught to look upon as enemies, were faithful to administer to our wants. This bit of experience learned me not to judge from ex parte evidence, especially when the evidence was given by those who had prejudice against the other party. It is not good to nourish such unpleasant thoughts, so I will let the past remain past.

In the Herald I have seen many things to encourage and strengthen, and I have seen some that has caused me to feel sad. When I read the speeches of some of the brethren on Decoration Day, and see how the Southern people are esteemed by them, and then of the G. A. R.'s, how they esteem the people of Dixie, I feel sad again. And often I am made to wonder why the Lord does not put an appendix to the gospel that it might have a law to meet every emergency. I thought the gospel had in it all things that was necessary for the salvation of the human family, and that its laws, if obeyed, would make us all one. If I have never said so before, I wish to say now that I was a soldier in the Confederate army, and I was just as honest then as I could have been had I been in the Northern states, and I have been in the South a great deal since the war, and I find the masses of the people as loyal as any that ever donned the blue. This is not all. The war with all its concomitant evils is past, and I for one think that the Saints ought to let the past remain past; and as one common brotherhood we ought to work for the common good of all, having neither north nor south among us.

I think it was perfectly right to give place to Father Whitmer's article, and the answer to it I think was opportune. I also think brother Lambert's hint to the Gurley brothers a hit in the right place—a hint to the wise ought to be sufficient. The statement of Bro. E. C. Briggs in the Herald and to the General Conference did me good.

I am now on my way to the South Western mission again, and as I expect to labor principally in new places, I hope I will be remembered by all the faithful ones. My sojourn in Ray county, Missouri, was not altogether what I would have liked. There are some there who take delight in working against the church, or it so appeared to me while I was there. Their efforts were all to disorganize—to tear down—and I did not see or hear of one effort they made to build up. I think the Wagonda branch needs assistance from the missionary in charge in that mission.

In conclusion, allow me to say that the church suits me exactly—books, revelations, presidents, Twelve, Seventy, editors and all. I really don't believe this church can be run by one man or one branch. When the Lord gives me the right to dictate to him, then I will begin to find fault with those that he has appointed to lead the church.

In bonds,

A. J. CATO.

OMAHA, Neb., May 27th.

Bro. Joseph:—Since Conference at Kirtland have labored about all of the time in the field. I have received more aid through the Spirit and by the Saints than ever before in my life, which makes it a pleasure to labor. Have preached several times at Platte Valley, Fremont, and at two points in Sary county. At several of the above places there seems to be an increased interest. Through the aid of brother J. Waltenbaugh, of Lewisville, Cass county, we got the use of the M. E. Church there, for one night only however. We tried to do our duty in presenting the word to a goodly number who came out, including the M. E. preacher. It seemed to be quite a curiosity to see a Mormon and some were anxious to hear what we would have to say, it being the first time that any preaching was done there by our people. I believe, after taking an hour and although the gospel light was made to reflect upon their creeds in no uncertain way, yet they had nothing to say. We feel that god was done, and could we have had the house longer, believe more good would have been done. There seems to be a growing desire on the part of the people to hear; but oh, how blind the wise (?) men of the religious world are; when the light of the latter day work is reflected, then is their blindness made manifest. Now is the time for the saints to let their light shine as in a dark place, and if ever in the history of the church we should lift up our heads and be glad it is now, since the Lord has again spoken to his people, giving evidence that he still owns them as his church. It must be great comfort and joy to those who have stood firm while the clouds were hanging over the church, holding fast to the rod of iron, looking forward to the brighter time, to now see the clouds lifted, and the sun of righteousness shining down upon them as in days of old. But those who have gone away thinking that the church had gone astray and that if they remained with her they would suffer loss, then to find that they were wrong and not the church, and have to so acknowledge and thus display their weakness it must be a great cross to bear indeed. If they had given heed to the word to "stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not again entangled with the yoke of bondage," (Gal. 5:1), also, "Blessed are they who have not seen and yet have believed," (Jesus), thus having avoided the necessity of bearing such a cross "we walk by faith," in this world.

"Oh for a faith that that will not shrink,
Though pressed by every foe,
That will not tremble on the brink
Of any earthly woe!"

"A faith that shines more bright and clear,
When tempests rage without,
That when in danger knows no fear,
In darkness feels no doubt."

I thank God for the privilege of engaging in such a glorious work, a work which is destined to triumph over every opposition, which is the "bride" which will be acknowledged by the bridegroom, the Lord Jesus Christ. This is my faith and assurance, and may the Lord help us to abide. I expect to go next week into Madison county to take part in a grove meeting to be held near Battle Creek, June 4th, and will labor in those parts for some time the Lord willing. Ever praying for the success of the cause everywhere.

In gospel bonds,

W. M. RUMEL.

HAMILTON, Australia, April 11th.

Bro. Joseph:—There are a few Saints here who are endeavoring to hold up the banner of truth, and calling on men and women to "repent for the kingdom of God is at hand." The efforts in this direction are not without results; and although very few have been gathered into the kingdom, yet we have cause to rejoice when we that have given obedience to the gospel and received the blessings of the gospel; for surely it is good to be taught by the Spirit of God. We rejoice when we see prejudice melting, and the spirit of light working on the hearts of the people, compelling many to admit the truths of the gospel as transmitted to us through Joseph the Seer, leaving them in a similar position to that of Agrippa when he said to Paul, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian."

On Saturday last brethren Broadway, Dickson and myself, were at Newcastle and preached the simple plan of salvation to the people; there was one who believed what we preached was the gospel, but he would not obey, which was the case with Felix, when he trembled and answered Paul and said: "Go thy way for this time; when I have a more convenient season I will call for thee." May God in his infinite mercy by his Holy Spirit impress upon the minds of this people the terrible condemnation under which they rest for ignoring the truth.

I with others of the brethren have great reason to rejoice for to have so faithful a servant of the Master as Bro. Burton to come to Australia, and that through his counsel, we have been put in line with the blessings of the "new and everlasting covenant." Truly it was good to hear him, for his counsel was by the Spirit of God. He deserves the prayers of all the Saints; and may God bless him and wife and daughter wherever they go. May God hasten the time when we will have Bro. T. W. Smith with us, for this is a large field of labor in Australia. We are far away from the chosen land, but God can hear us when we call upon him.

Yours in the faith,

JOHN G. DICKINSON.

SWEET HOME, Mo., May 21st.

Bro. Dancer:—I see my time is out for the Herald. I would not do without it. I can't see how so many Saints can do without it. Every one should take the church papers, especially those who are young in the cause, for it will strengthen the weak and encourage them. Every Saint should be interested enough concerning this work to take them and get the news. I am interested in this work. I want to see it prosper, which it will do, for God is at the head of it. I send five dollars to renew for my Herald, and to have you send a copy to my father, John Ford, for one year.

Yours for truth,

J. T. FORD.

WASHINGTONVILLE, Ohio.

Editor Herald:—I am not a Latter Day Saint myself, but my mother is. Last week we received a visit from brethren G. T. Griffith and R. S. Salyards which made the week very enjoyable. They tried to procure the M. E. church for preaching services, but the people of the town are so bigotted that they would not grant them the privilege, which of course was to their own loss. Friday evening brother Salyards preached a sermon at brother Robson's house, inviting those who would to come and hear, on the first principles. It proved a subject of marked interest to those who came, but of course people felt timid about coming to a private house, and consequently he did not have a very large audience. Saturday evening brother Griffiths preached a good and able sermon on the God-head, proving by scriptural passages that the Father and the Son are separate beings, and also that God has a body, parts and passions. This was very instructive as well as interesting to all the listeners.

Sunday morning they had a Saints' meeting, which I did not attend, and Sunday at 1:30 p. m., they baptized two sisters, my mother being one of them. Sunday evening brother Griffiths preached on duties concerning members of the church more particularly, and also on the fruits of the spirit. They departed Monday which was much regretted. Still we have hopes of soon seeing them again.

Now that the latter days have dawned, we are privileged to live in its glorious light, and we can more fully understand the meaning of the language, "And the Lord also shall be exalted in that day."

In the Latter Day Saints we have a bright example of this. Those who have entered the vale of humiliation through repentance and baptism by this means are able to ascend where all things are "most holy." With the Saints all work is done in the Spirit, and with the understanding that it is for the Lord, and it must be well done that it may be an honor to the Christian name.

In this church deception is not tolerated. Every thought, every deed of life, must be such as will bear the inspection of angels. Every wrong defiles the temple of God wherein the spirit dwells, and nothing of this character can abide among the Saints. The Latter Day Saints seek to dwell in God's light and love by coming into humility's vale and being baptized as was our blessed Savior. Not only these but all souls who enter this church can not long remain idle; all must labor to clothe themselves with the beautiful graces of the Spirit by deeds of kindness and love to all the needy, whether friend or foe. There is no secret lurking place for sin in this church, for there is nothing hidden but it shall be revealed. I do not belong to any church, and consequently can judge better than some others that do; and I believe this to be the true church of God. In this and in no other can you find practical religion. By these two brethren who I believe are true Christians we can prove that the gospel throws a mantle of peace around dissension; it sweetens life, mollifies its cares, it begets accommodation, consideration, respect and love. It also enables us to be cheerful under all circumstances, and what blessing is greater?

Brn. Joseph and William:—I expect, the Lord willing, to leave here for my field of labor, Oregon, on the 25th of this month, to remain there until next conference, the Lord sparing my life, or die in the field with the harness on. My old hurts and afflictions have not left me yet, and I am quite poorly at times, but I am trusting entirely in my heavenly Father and to the ordinances of his house. I want your special prayers and faith in my behalf, for I very well remember receiving a great blessing while at Battle Mountain. When death seemed inevitable, Bro. Blair and others prayed for me, and I was healed, though over five hundred miles away from them. I am trusting in that same God to-day, and I do not believe that it is his will that I should go hence yet. I am trying to the best of my ability to live as I should, and I want strength to go and perform my duty in the ministry; so lay my case before the Lord in the prayer of faith. I am perfectly willing to abide the results, for a dutiful child should be subject to his father, I have but one purpose to live for, and that is to preach the gospel and do some good in my day. Oregon is a hard field to labor in, and I should have some help. Can not there be some arrangements made to send Bro. Holt, of Southern California, to labor with me. I understand by letter from Bro. Heman C. Smith, that he intended to send him to Oregon with me, but the late conference omitted giving him any mission, so he could not send him.

But I will go and do the best I can, trusting in the Lord to raise up some one there. A brother Oliver Hansen living up there, the Spirit pointed out to me at our little conference last spring, but I said nothing to him about it then. It is probable you know him. I wish you would make this a subject of prayer, as there has been many unwise ordinations. Yours ever,

A. HAWS.

Editors Herald:—We are rejoicing over the prospects of a bounteous harvest, having been blessed with several good rains in the last ten days. We are also rejoicing over the prospects of a branch of the church being raised up here in this part of Ness county. One year has now passed since we cast our lot here among the homesteads. At that time there were only four Saints living in this part of the State; we now have over thirty members, and although we are in an unorganized condition, we are holding meetings every Sabbath, and the Saints are blessed every time we come together. We are all poor in this world's goods, but rejoice to know that the Spirit of the living God will be poured out upon us to-day in our little sod shanties on our claims the same as it was at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost.

Since coming here I have done the best I could in teaching the plan of salvation. Prejudice was very strong here, but is fast giving way. Last Sabbath I baptized three and many more are believing. In the South-east part of the county, where I have been holding meetings, several are very much interested. The last time I was there one old, grey-haired man, with tears in his eyes took me by the hand and said I preached the truth, and he was ready to obey it, but wanted to wait a little longer, believing that his wife and perhaps some of the children would go with him. Since I wrote you last October I have corresponded with some thirty different Saints. Of this number six have come here with their families. They have all got themselves good farms and are well pleased with the country. I believe a great many more of the brethren could get good homes here. Government land is all gone, but claims can be bought for from $200 to $1,000, owing to improvements and location. Two railroads are now running through the country. Bro. W. F. Clark, who hails from Boonsboro, Iowa, and Bro. Thomas E. Thompson, late of Ripley county, Indiana, are both zealous workers and have been a great help in keeping up the interest here.

Wishing our noble cause God-speed, I remain yours in the faith,

WM. M. GOREHAM.

MANCHESTER, Eng., May 16th.

Dear Herald:—After reading the beautiful and soul-inspiring testimonies, and the very instructive and edifying leaders, etc., that your valuable columns are constantly being fraught with, I feel moved to again ask your kind permission for the insertion of a few lines from one who feels, as it were, overwhelmed with love and gratitude for the great cause that we as the ministers and servants of Jesus Christ are engaged in.

It is a little over two years since my wife and I embraced this true gospel, and apart from regretting that step of obedience, we rejoice and thank God that in his tender mercy and goodness he constrained our hearts to perform that righteous act; for the promise to the obedient has been fully realized in that we have since been almost perpetually made recipients of the good Spirit of God; yea, as repeatedly as we have by the adopted mode requested and sought for it. We feel sure that it will by its influence (inasmuch as we live up to its desires) steadily, but most surely, guide us to that haven which is prepared for the faithful saints of God—those who persevere to the end.

We feel that every energy that we in this mortal state are able to exercise for the promulgation and establishment of this great pearl, will not in any degree recompense him who in his goodness has been so mindful of us. He has blessed us abundantly in every conceivable way, and oftentimes preserved us from dangers that were no less imminent than inconceivable.

A few weeks ago I was privileged to attend a conference at Sheffield, Yorkshire, and was most deeply impressed with the services throughout. The testimonies, prayers, and preaching were characterized by the influence of God's Holy Spirit, proving very unmistakably that they were accepted of God, and that we are God's people. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our Spirit that we are the children of God." I came away with at any rate one good resolution formed in my mind, and determined that I would as a minister called by Jesus Christ, henceforth endeavor to show by my walk and conversation that not only am I a representative of the gospel, but one who is striving to be a living witness to its precepts. Upon hearing the revelation which has recently been issued, I was forcibly struck with its injunctions, and am, I trust, fully cognizant of their importance, especially concerning the ministry, "Be ye clean that bear," etc. I feel bound to acquiesce in its requirements and say:

"Thy kingdom that I seek
Is Thine, so let the way
That leads to it be Thine,
Else I must surely stray.
Not mine, not mine the choice,
In things or great, or small,
Be thou my guide, my strength,
My wisdom and my all."

At our Band of Hope meeting held last Tuesday, I entered into a solemn league with God, and pledged myself with his help and strength to never again countenance the use of intoxicating liquors. I feel sure, God sustaining me, I shall never break this covenant. Thus at any rate I have removed one great and mighty obstacle, and I feel already relieved of a load which seemed in no small degree to mar the progress of the work, not that I was previously excessive, or intemperate in the indulgence of this pernicious habit, but I never felt the freedom that I knew I ought to do in my spiritual labors.

I have lately adopted the habit of family prayers in my home, always preceded by the reading of a chapter of the Bible, or anything equivalent, and have already felt God's blessing for this act. We have a daughter four and a half years old, and a little son six months old, and it is the heart's desire of my wife and self, that they should grow up as shining lights in the kingdom of God. May God strengthen us to daily set them a good example.

I would here strongly exhort all parents who have not as yet established this beneficial habit of family devotion in their homes, to try the spiritual experiment, if you will permit me the term, and they will I know be amply blessed by our Father in heaven for so doing. The effects are innumerable.

As to the work, I could write columns in its praises. Its progress and future prospects are on every hand encouragingly great; and not less so in our Manchester district and branch here. I bless it almost with every breath. In my daily vocation as a teacher of the young, it has proved of inestimable value to me, for it has been my constant teacher, both spiritually and temporally. My daily scripture lesson is a source of delight to me, for by the aid of the Spirit, which I always apply for, I have unveiled to me things that I heretofore knew not, although I have been a student of the Bible all my life. I have been a teacher now about fifteen years, yet was never before able to so beautifully comprehend the application and the plain and simple inferences of God's holy writ as they are presented to us. Well may I exclaim:

"Tis a glorious thing to be In the light, in the light."

This to me is a part of my unimpeachable testimony that I know the work is the work of God. The little stone is fast rolling on, in spite of the false and formidable opposition raised against it, and must inevitably triumph eventually over the whole world. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall never pass away."

And now I feel I am trespassing on your generosity, so I will conclude, praying that God may bless his work and his people, and that we the latter may "be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that our labor is not in vain in the Lord." With love and best wishes for all the Saints, believe me, your humble brother and servant in Jesus Christ,

SAMUEL F. MATHER.

MELCHISEDEC PRIESTHOOD.

"FOR this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him, to whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all; first being by interpretation king of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is king of peace. For this Melchizedek was ordained a priest after the order of the Son of God, which order was without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of years, and all those who are ordained unto this priesthood are made like unto the Son of God, abiding a priest continually."—Hebrews 7: 1, 2, 3, Inspired Translation. King James' Translation of the 3d verse infers that Melchizedek was without father, without descent, &c. This translation bears its own refutation in the 4th and also 8th verse, for the 4th verse reads, "Now consider how great this man was, unto whom the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils." The word "man" suggests both father and mother, descent, beginning of days and end of life. The 8th verse reads "and here men that die receive tithes." This verse settles the matter that he was a man and died, for Melchizedek did receive tithes here upon earth, from Abraham.

That the account in the Inspired Translation appears to be correct, is because it commends itself unto our reason and experience. Our experience tells us that man dies, and therefore our reason says if man dies, there must be some other power to which it alludes when it says, "without beginning of days or end of life." Man has both.

We know of no being, or power, that fills this description "without father, without mother" except the Infinite One, of whom it is said "Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth, and the world, even from everlasting thou art God."—Ps. 90: 2. As regards the flesh, Jesus Christ had beginning of days, and end of years. God caused the earth to be formed, and the inhabitants thereof, for an all-wise purpose in himself. To accomplish that purpose he had the right, as well as the power, to act either in person, or to delegate the power to act to whomsoever he might choose. He chose to delegate that power to his son, by whom it is said he created the world, (Heb. 1 chapter), and of whom it is said that he is "the author of eternal salvation to all them that believe." It is also written of him that "God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

It being purposed in the mind of the Father that the Son whom he gave should not come on the earth until the meridian of time to make reconciliation for the sins of the world, he having established a plan of salvation to be declared unto fallen man, it follows that the son must delegate authority unto man to act in his name and declare the conditions of salvation unto their fellow-man, and this must have taken place as early as the immediate fall of man. For all of the posterity of Adam are under the effects of that fall, and are in their carnal state at enmity against God, according to the word.

Men holding this authority were called priests after the order of the Son of God. Melchizedek was a priest after that order, so the word says, which priesthood, or authority existed with the eternal God,—co-existent with his being,—and consequently was without "beginning of days or end of life,"—"without father, without mother" &c.

The Book of Mormon agrees with the Inspired Translation, both with respect to Melchizedek being a High Priest after the order of the Son of God, also that there were other High Priests of that order before his time, even from Adam, and that the plan of salvation was taught to Adam's immediate posterity by men called to this priesthood. Alma, (Book of Mormon) page 241, Plano edition, says, "And now my brethren, I would that ye should humble yourselves before God, and bring forth fruits meet for repentance, that ye may also enter into that rest; yea, humble yourselves even as the people in the days of Melchizedek, who was also a High Priest after this same order of which I have spoken, who also took upon them the High Priesthood forever."

This order of which Alma has spoken is described thus in page 240:—"And again my brethren, I would cite your minds forward to the times when the Lord God gave these commandments unto the children of men, and I would that you should remember that the Lord God ordained priests after his holy order, which was after the order of his Son, to teach these things unto the people; and those priests were ordained after the order of his Son, in a manner that thereby the people might know in what manner to look forward to his Son for redemption."

The time when these commandments spoken of were given is made known on page 239:—"Wherefore he gave commandments, they having first transgressed the first commandments as to things which were temporal and becoming as gods, knowing good from evil. . . . Wherefore God gave them commandments, after having made known to them the plan of redemption, that they should not do evil, the penalty thereof being a second death."

The Inspired Translation, Genesis, chapter 11, verses 17, 28, 29, speaking of Melchizedek says:—"And thus, having been approved of God, he was ordained a High Priest after the order of the covenant that God made with Enoch, it being after the order of the Son of God. And it was delivered unto men by the calling of his own voice, according to his own will, unto as many as believed on his name." And Enoch declares in verse one of Genesis, chapter seven:—"Our father Adam, taught these things [the plan of salvation and redemption made known unto him by God, as in the previous chapter] and many have believed and become the sons of God." Adam had become a son of God according to that plan.

It can not be claimed that the High Priesthood was limited to the Mosaic economy, for as we see it existed in the days of Adam and Enoch. Neither can it be claimed consistently that Melchizedek and Abraham were under that economy, or anything like it, for the world says that what is styled the Mosaic law was not in being until 430 years after Abraham's time, which "law was added on account of transgression," as Paul declares in Galatians chapter three.

Fallen man, in order to be saved, or reinstated in favor with God, and be accounted as his children, can not become so by any scheme of their own devising, but they must attain that relationship in God's own appointed way, which way is the gospel. The gospel, or plan of redemption, to be effectual, must be administered by men called after this holy calling or order by God himself, or by angelic ministration, or by the Holy Ghost.

That the gospel was to be the only plan of salvation to all the posterity of Adam is made known by God unto Adam as recorded in Genesis, chapter six, of Inspired Translation, and it is styled in both translations, the everlasting gospel. It is also evident from the fact that Adam's posterity are all on the same plane in regard to the effects of the fall. What would save one, would save all, for it is written, "God is no respecter of persons."

There may be some who read this who will say, "We have no faith in the Inspired Translation nor in the Book of Mormon, and in King James' Translation you can not find where the gospel was preached before Christ."

Let us see; in Galatians, chapter three, it is positively asserted that the gospel was preached to Abraham. And in Hebrews, chapter four, it is as positively asserted by the same apostle that "Unto us was the gospel preached as well as unto them, [children of Israel in the wilderness], but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it." And by inductive reasoning we can demonstrate that it was preached by Noah, and that Abel also was acquainted with it.

In Romans 1:16, 17: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed."

Peter, in his second epistle, 2:5, says: "Noah was a preacher of righteousness." In Matt. 22:35, Jesus calls Abel a righteous man. If the righteousness of God is revealed in the gospel, and Noah was a preacher of righteousness, he was a preacher of the gospel. If Abel was a righteous man, he became so by obeying the gospel, and all this corroborates the Inspired Translation which says Adam taught his children the gospel. But the reader may say, "I don't believe the Inspired Translation." I am persuaded you never read it to compare it with the other translations; for I am satisfied that good sense will give the preference to its readings. Let me give you from the many blunders and incorrect readings in the King James Translation two specimens to compare with the Inspired Translation. Lot said to the rabble, "Behold, now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out to you, and do ye unto them as is good in your eyes, only unto these men [angels.—E. S.] do nothing, for therefore came they under the shadow of my roof."—King James', Gen. 19:8. Compare with this the following: "And Lot said, Behold, now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, plead with my brethren that I may not bring them out unto you; and you shall not do unto them as seemeth good in your eyes; for God will not justify his servant in this thing."—Insp. Trans., Gen. 19:13.

Reader, this a delicate subject, and we leave it with you to judge which is the most moral, the most Godlike and which agrees with the major portion of King James' translation, the New Testament portion at least.

Peter says concerning Lot in his second epistle, chapter 2, that the unlawful deeds of those Sodomites vexed his righteous soul from day to day. Think you, reader, that a righteous man whose soul was vexed from day to day with their vile proceedings, would act so unrighteously as represented in King James' translation? Read the following from King James: "Who is blind but my servant? or deaf, as my messenger that I sent? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the Lord's servant? Seeing many things, but thou observest not; opening the ears, but he heareth not."—Isaiah 42:19, 20, and then the following from the Inspired Translation, "For I will send my servant unto you who are blind; yea, a messenger to open the eyes of the blind and unstop the ears of the deaf; and they shall be made perfect notwithstanding their blindness, if they will hearken unto the messenger, the Lord's servant.

Thou art a people seeing many things, but thou observest not; opening the ears to hear, but thou hearest not."—Isaiah 42:16-21. It would be ridiculous in any case to think that the Lord would send a spiritually blind servant, or one that was spiritually deaf, and ask "who is so blind as the Lord's servant, and so blind as he that is perfect;" but when we consider that it was Christ whom the Lord through the prophet was speaking of, how superlatively ridiculous such language appears! Do you wonder that the Latter Day Saints take the renderings in the Inspired Translation in preference to the other? We are persuaded no reasonable person can.

That the major portion of King James' translation bears the divine impress we admit; but we claim that many blunders have crept in through its copyings and revisions and careless handlings, and many plain and precious truths have been distorted or left out.

But some there are who profess to believe in the Book of Mormon, and deny a belief in the Inspired Translation. According to our reading of the Book of Mormon, we consider such a belief untenable, for the simple reason that a believer of the one ought to be a believer in the other. As proof of our position we quote,— "Wherefore the fruit of thy loins shall write, [the Book of Mormon], and the fruit of the loins of Judah shall write [the Bible], and that which shall be written by the fruit of thy loins, and also that which shall be written by the fruit of the loins of Judah, shall grow together to the confounding of false doctrine, and laying down of contention," &c. 2 Nephi, 2. The careful Book of Mormon reader perceives the fact, that this quotation purports to be the word of the Lord to Joseph, the son of Jacob, who was sold into Egypt, foretelling that the writings of his seed and his brother Judah's seed, should "grow together to the confounding of false doctrine." &c.

"O, well; we believe in King James' Translation, and that is enough," say they. But according to the Book of Mormon, which you profess to believe in, that translation of the Bible is not a reliable guide in all things. In 1 Nephi, 3:39, 40, he was shown a book that was being carried forth among the Gentiles, which was "the record of the Jews, [the Bible], and he says; "And the angel said unto me, thou hast beheld that the book proceeded forth from the mouth of a Jew; and when it proceeded forth from the mouth of a Jew, it contained the plainness of the gospel of the Lord, of whom the twelve apostles bear record; and they bear record according to the truth which is in the Lamb of God; wherefore these things go forth from the Jews in purity unto the Gentiles, according to the truth which is in God; and after they go forth by the hand of the twelve apostles of the Lamb, from the Jews unto the Gentiles, thou seest the foundation of a great and abominable church, which is most abominable above all other churches; for behold they have taken away from the gospel of the Lamb many parts which are plain and most precious; and also many covenants of the Lord have they taken away; * * * because of these things which are taken away out of the gospel of the Lamb, an exceeding great many do stumble, yea, insomuch that Satan hath great power over them." &c. We see then, according to this word, that on account of many plain and most precious truths being taken from the gospel of the Lamb, together with many covenants of the Lord from "the book," an exceedingly many do stumble, and it therefore is not a reliable and perfect guide, and that that translation [King James'] can not "grow together" with the Book of Mormon to the confounding of false doctrine, etc; but that it requires a translation with all of those plain and precious truths of the gospel restored, as also the "many covenants of the Lord" that have been taken away.

Thousands of earth's children are made skeptical concerning the Bible on account of the serious contradictions in it, as well as omissions of truths that were once in it, and thus have stumbled. We are indebted in King James' translation of the New Testament portion, for the knowledge of the gospel being preached to the ancients before, as the old Testament, to our knowledge, does not mention it. This omission has caused many to contend that the gospel was not preached before Christ. This is a false doctrine, and the Old Testament, of that translation, could not grow up with the Book of Mormon to confound it. The Book of Mormon confounds it, and so does the Inspired Translation of the Bible as we have seen, and a belief in the two settles the contention.

We have seen that these two witnesses bear testimony that the gospel was preached to Adam and his immediate posterity, and that by the authority of this holy order of the Son of God, and that this "holy order" was prepared in harmony with, and for the preaching of this plan of redemption. These witnesses make the positive declaration that Enoch, Noah, and Melchisedek, were ordained to this holy order; and the Book of Mormon declares concerning Melchisedek, "Now this Melchisedek was a king over the land of Salem; and his people had waxed strong in iniquity and abominations; yea, they had all gone astray; they were full of all manner of wickedness; but Melchisedek having exercised mighty faith, and received the office of the high priesthood according to the holy order of the Son of God, did preach repentance unto his people. And behold they did repent, and Melchisedek did establish peace in the land in his days; therefore he was called the Prince of Peace, for he was the king of Salem, and he did reign under his father. Now there were many before him, and also there many afterwards, but none were greater, therefore of him they have more particularly made mention."—Alma 10:2. According to this language Melchisedek had received the office of the High Priesthood, and was preacher of righteousness, and the statement is, that there were many High Priests before him, and also many after him, but none rose higher in that office in that priesthood, consequently he was a presiding High Priest of the holy order of the Son of God, and of him the ancients made more particular mention. But many High Priests both before and after his day officiated in that office established by God to declare the plan of redemption. Hence we find Moses among the "many" who followed after him, preaching the gospel to the children of Israel in the wilderness, who "were all baptized unto Moses [or by the authority conferred upon him] in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual rock that followed them; and that rock was Christ."—1 Cor., chapter 10.

We have seen that Melchizedek was a High Priest after the order of the Son of God, but according to New Testament history this high priesthood was called "after the order of Melchizedek." Christ is called by the Psalmist, and this is repeated by Paul, "a priest after the order of Melchizedek." The holy order is not changed; for says God, "I am God, I change not, therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." It may appear to the reader, at the first glance, that the order of priesthood was changed; but upon reflection it will be seen that it is not.

What order of priesthood did Melchizedek belong to? That of the Son of God. If Christ was a priest after the order of Melchizedek, then it is plain he was a priest after his own order. How did it come about that the name was changed?

We have seen, according to the Book of Mormon as quoted, that there were many before Melchizedek, and many after him, but none were greater; and of him the writers of scripture made more particular mention. Joseph Smith, the martyr, said in his day, "It is called the Melchizedek Priesthood because Melchizedek was such a great High Priest; before his day it was called the holy priesthood after the order of the Son of God, but out of respect or reverence to the name of the Supreme Being, to avoid the too frequent repetition of his name; they, the church, in ancient days, called that priesthood after Melchizedek, or the Melchizedek priesthood. Doc. Cov., 104: 1. These are the only good reasons that the writer has seen for the change, and to him they seem justifiable. That which becomes too common, no matter how good, thereby loses its value and sanctity in the minds of men. We frequently hear, (and the writer wishes he was free from it) both in preaching and in the prayer circle, the too frequent repetition of the names Father, Son and Holy Ghost, etc., etc. And how the reverent mind feels hurt over these too frequent repetitions. We are persuaded that God winks at our ignorance, yet he has commanded his followers when they pray to "use not vain repetitions as do the heathen."

But we are told there were to be no High Priests after Christ, that he was the last High Priest. Well let us see. Paul, after speaking of Christ's High Priesthood, says:—"Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, [Christ's High Priesthood], consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus," etc.—Heb. 3: 1. In chapter five, and tenth verse, it says concerning Christ: "Called of God a High Priest after the order of Melchizedek." If Christ was called "after the order of Melchizedek," (or Melchizedek after the order of the Son of God), there were two High Priests certainly in that order. But he was "called of God a High Priest after the order of Melchizedek;" and Paul addresses his Hebrew brethren as "partakers of the heavenly calling;" so there must have been among his brethren some High Priests after the order of Melchizedek.

"But," says one, "that profession that the apostle alludes to is that of being a follower of Christ, and alludes to all the church of Christ, and the Savior was the High Priest of that profession, or church." But if you use that as an argument against High Priests being in the church, it proves too much, for it would destroy the fact of apostles being there also, because he is called the Apostle as well as the High Priest of their profession. None can deny that there were many Apostles in the church, for Paul in 1 Corinthians 12: 28, says:—"God set" them in the church; and and Jesus says to the Twelve, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you and ordained you." Paul frequently, when writing to the Saints says concerning himself, "Called to be an Apostle." Christ is the apostle, as well as High Priest of his profession, and Paul was "partaker of the heavenly calling;" and the conclusion is, so were the rest of the Twelve. And as there was a "profession" of apostles over which Christ was the "chief Apostle," so also there was of the High Priests over which he was the chief or High Priest.

That there are High Priests in the church is proven by the following:—"For [introducing a reason for something before advanced.—Webster.] every High Priest taken from among men, is ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that he may offer gifts and sacrifices for sins."—Heb. 7: 1. Webster defines the word "every," to mean "each individual of a whole collection, or aggregate number."

Each individual of the aggregate number of High Priests is taken among men, and ordained for men in things pertaining to God. Men therefore are ordained High Priests, and there is a collection of them, a quorum. Lest some should say that the Apostle has reference to the High Priests officiating in the law of Moses, we pursue the reading:—"Who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way, for that he himself is compassed with infirmity. And by reason hereof ought, as for the people, so also for himself to offer for sins."—Heb. 5: 2, 3; see also 1 Peter 2: 5. "And no man taketh this honor unto himself but he that is called of God as was Aaron. So also Christ glorified not himself to be made a High Priest; but he that said unto him, thou art my Son, today have I begotten thee."—Heb. 5: 4, 5. We see here that the question of High Priesthood is continued, and that Christ did not take this authority upon himself, but the glory belonged unto him that had appointed him a High Priest. And the Apostle reasons that if Christ could not, positively man could not take (present tense) in his day—not in the day when the law of Moses was in force—this honor of High Priesthood unto himself. This Melchizedek priesthood, or "the holy order of the Son of God," existed from the beginning whenever God had committed a dispensation of the gospel unto the children of men, until the law of Moses, which law Paul says, (Heb. 7: 11), was received under the Levitical priesthood, which priesthood was called "after the order of Aaron." And he reasons there that if perfection could be obtained under that priesthood, there would be no need of a priest after the order of Melchizedek, or for "the order of Melchizedek" being restored. But the priesthood of Aaron was changed, or superseded by the Melchizedek, which was adapted to the "change of the law," or gospel, the law of Moses being done away in Christ, who was a priest after the order of Melchizedek, he ordained other priests after that "order," after that "profession," after "the power of an endless life." For says he, "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain."—John 15: 16.

We have seen that under the Aaronic order of priesthood, perfection could not be obtained; and consequently eternal life, or life with that perfect being, God, could not be obtained. Therefore, of necessity a priesthood by which perfection could be secured was needed in the premises, and Paul says that one was "the order of Melchizedek."

Jesus said unto the apostles, "I have ordained you that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain." Now if any man has not attained to this priesthood, by the command of God, he may profess to preach from early youth until his locks are whitened with the frosts of many winters, and no matter how indefatigably, or perseveringly he labors, those whom he thinks by his labors are saved, or, in the language of the Savior, the fruit he has brought forth will not remain, or be accepted of God.

A man may be called of God to preach and baptize with water, and not having authority to administer in the baptism of the Holy Ghost, his fruit would not remain. Let us examine. John said to those whom he baptized with water, "I have baptized you with water, but he [Christ] shall baptize you with fire and the Holy Ghost." It appears then that John did not have the authority to administer in the baptism of the Holy Ghost.

In Acts chapter eight there is an account of Philip baptizing with water, the same as John; but not having authority to administer in the ordinance of "the laying on of hands" for the reception of the Holy Ghost, two apostles had to be sent down from Jerusalem to officiate in that ordinance for the above purpose. If these converts had remained under the one baptism, they could not have attained unto eternal life. Why? Because Jesus said in his prayer to his Father, John chapter 17, "This is eternal life that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." And Paul says that "No man can say [he knows] that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost." 1 Cor. 12. The Holy Ghost beareth record of the Father and the Son, and this Spirit not being attainable by John and Philip's priesthood, or authority, but under the Melchizedek priesthood, shows a necessity of that priesthood.

The Savior, ascended to his Father, and was to stay there until "The times of the restitution of all things spoken by the mouths of all God's holy prophets since the world began," and was under the necessity then, as at the beginning of the world, to delegate his authority to men to act for him in the preaching of the gospel, adopting men and women as citizens of God's kingdom that they might receive that Spirit which perfects all things needing perfection. It is said by Paul, Eph. 4: 5, 11, "When he ascended on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men." . . . "He gave some apostles, some prophets, some evangelists," &c. And in 1 Cor. 12: 28 he says, "God hath set in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, helps, governments," &c.; and he states in Eph. 4: 12, that this church, organized after this pattern, was "For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ; till we in the unity of the faith, all come to a knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." And surely that "stature" was perfection. Have we, brother Christian, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and all denominations of Christians—have we come to that stature of perfection? Have we, friend David Whitmer, arrived at that desirable condition?

It can not be answered in the affirmative by either party. Why, then, in the face of this word is it said they are done away, and no longer needed by professing Christians of every denomination outside of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints? Why is it said that "Joseph the Seer" committed an error by organizing the church of God according to His own pattern, and for His own purpose? If it took this organization anciently in order that men might arrive at the "measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ," it would take the same means in every other age of the world for men to arrive at that fulness; for all are on a common level by nature, and God is from everlasting to everlasting the same perfect Being, and knew perfectly what it would take to save men; and the plan of salvation was as perfect in Adam's day as in any subsequent age of the world.

It is true that in the New Testament is recorded the fullest description of the church organization, but that does not destroy the fact that the church of God was organized in like manner in the times of Adam, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Abraham, and Moses.

And it is positively declared in Acts chapter seven that the church was in existence in Moses' day; and Bible history states that then there were three leading officers, corresponding in number with the Matchless Three above, and with the three whom Paul said "seemed to be pillars" in the New Testament organization. There were also twelve men, one out of every tribe, chosen to assist Moses in his labors; and there were in the church "seventy elders." Exodus chapter 24.

Thus the organization of "the church in the wilderness" corresponds with the one in the New Testament times, so far as the history goes. We have seen according to the Scriptures that the gospel is styled, "the everlasting gospel," "the gospel of the kingdom;" and that it was preached in the days of the ancient worthies, at different periods of time. And being the everlasting gospel it was constantly the same; and being the gospel of the kingdom, or church of God, it follows it is the same gospel of the same church, (it could not be the same church except organized the same), established for the one, and the same purpose—the salvation of the children of men—hence it must be in all its offices, ordinances, powers, and privilege, identically the same.

When the Savior appeared on this continent, according to the Book of Mormon history, immediately after the crucifixion, he organized his church and chose twelve apostles. "But," say some who profess to believe the Book of Mormon, "hold; that assertion is not so easily proved." If it does not say apostles, it says he chose twelve men, and what would you call them? Do you think that Jesus would come from just organizing his church on the eastern continent with apostles, &c., and then organize his church differently to accomplish the same purpose intended on the eastern continent?

"Well, but he had organized his church once on earth and that was sufficient." Yes, and he might as well have organized it on another planet, so far as those on this continent were concerned, for they were unknown to the inhabitants of the eastern continent. The Europeans did not discover this country until about fifteen centuries after the church was organized on the eastern continent; and Jesus declared to those to whom he appeared on this continent, that his disciples on the eastern continent did not understand him when he said, "Other sheep I have that are not of this fold," etc., but thought he spoke concerning the Gentiles; and Book of Mormon believers must remember that that book and the Bible are to "grow together to the confounding of false doctrines." Now the Bible states that in God's church twelve disciples, called apostles, were chosen; and the Book of Mormon says twelve disciples were chosen. Can not you see, whoever you are that says Christ organized his church on this continent differently from that on the eastern continent, that you are teaching false doctrine, and that you must stand confounded? The teaching of Christ respecting the conduct of his people as taught in his sermon on the mount, was the same in every particular, upon the one continent as upon the other. Why should you say it was not so in church organization? And in view of the unchangeability of God, and his having "no respect of persons," why should he teach and organize his church differently?

It so happens that there is a pretty pointed statement contained in the Book of Moroni, chapter 2, to the effect that the twelve disciples on this continent were styled by Christ, "apostles." It reads: "The words of Jesus, which he spake unto his disciples, the twelve whom he had chosen as he laid his hands upon them. And he called them by name saying, Ye shall call on the Father in my name in mighty prayer, and after ye have done this, ye shall have power that on whom ye shall lay your hands ye shall give the Holy Ghost, and in my name ye shall give it, for thus do mine apostles;" thus calling them apostles.

We have extended this article farther than intended at the commencement; but of all we have said this is the sum: God, the Infinite One, created this world and all things therein. Man being created after the image of God, having an intelligent spirit "formed within him," was the only being capable of understanding or of being governed willingly by law. By virtue of God's creating man he had the right to command and give laws for man's observation, which scriptural history says he did, also giving man his choice whether he would obey his Creator or not. If he chose to obey, well; if not, he should die, become estranged, be cast out from the presence of his God, be a wanderer upon the earth without hope in the world, for ought he naturally knew. Having chosen to disobey, this became his condition, the which he entailed upon all of his posterity. But it being incompatible with the character and attributes of his Creator to leave him in this condition; a state of probation was granted, a plan of salvation established for Adam and all his posterity, obedience to which would secure eternal life and happiness, to dwell with God forever more. God chose his own plan of communicating this gospel message to fallen man. It was first announced to Adam by God's own voice. He clothed Adam with authority, after he first obeyed the message, to teach it to his children; and he authorized him to ordain others to teach the glad message to his posterity. From time to time the children of Adam departed from this plan of salvation, pursued their own evil ways, and were rejected of God, thus making it necessary for a restoration of the gospel from time to time, when the people would repent and begin to enquire of the Lord, and the same plan of salvation was restored, taught by the same authority, even that of God. He chose his own ministers in his own way, and this authority that men was clothed with was called "the order of the Son of God," afterward changed (to avoid the too frequent repetition of the name of the Supreme Being) to the priesthood after the order of Melchizedek.

Men were not allowed to run before they were sent, no matter how much they fell in love with the message, no matter how sincere they were. Earthly governments do not allow men to act in any of their offices except they have been duly chosen and qualified by said government to act in said office; and when so elected and qualified, their official acts, if they do not transcend their lawful bounds, are acknowledged of the governments so choosing them. And shall it be said that the government of heaven will be less wise than those of earth, and allow men to assume to act in its name, and acknowledge their acts as binding, when the transactions of the heavenly government are in point of consequence and duration, as much superior as the light of the Sun is to a spark of fire, or as is eternity to three score years and ten! Men assuming to act, or being chosen by their fellow men to act in the name of the government of heaven without that government first acting in the matter, has been the source of confusion, division and ruin in the religious world up to the present time, fulfilling the prediction of the Apostle that in the last days men would "heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and be turned unto fables."—Tim. 4: 4. This state of things proves a departure from the law of heaven, and necessitated a restoration from that source of that law, with authority to act therein.

We declare in words of soberness, knowing by the goodness of God our Heavenly Father, that he has restored the authority to organize his church, and to preach the law of adoption into it, by an holy angel from heaven, and men and women may avail themselves of the privilege of becoming citizens of the kingdom of God. And we exhort all to come unto Christ, the "author and finisher of our faith," and they shall have life everlasting. Amen.

PASTORAL ADDRESS.

To Saints scattered in Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, and that part of Wyoming Territory, not attached to the Rocky Mountain mission, greeting:—

Forasmuch as no change was made at the late Annual Conference, relative to the above mission, I may not be though presumptuous in offering a few suggestions. My labors in the past year for (as I thought) good reasons were confined, save a brief visit to Colorado, to parts of Nebraska. In the above extensive mission the entire ministerial force appointed at the late conference, could find ample room for labor without crowding, and still room left for more. So we have to say, the harvest truly is great, laborers few. Nor is it improbable that if desirous we might complain of having fewer laborers than others. But let us not lose sight of the important fact that measures not to favor, or please a person, branch, district or mission, but for the general and best interest of the work, must be thought of and carried into effect, so far as possible. To theorise on the grandeur of knowing no west, east, south or north, may be so simple that all may enjoy it, but to abide its practical working is the one thing needful. And we have no guarantee of success, when works, thoughts, and ways fail to evidence this broad and God imposed policy. God's equality and nonpartisanship, as reflected through his divine economy, are indeed sublime. We view it with delight, and thinking we ought to give evidence of our appreciation of it, essay the task; for in some way we are made to feel conscious, however tempted contrary, that claims, profession and promise, not rendered formidable with God imposed works are futile. Yet trouble comes, and necessity for litigation to teach us by a sad and trying experience what should have been the spontaneous outgrowth of our daily walk and conversation, as a result of an impression on our souls through a recognition of the gospel economy, and a declaration of our intention to accept and adopt it as our chart, and compass through life's tempestuous journey. The injunction of the Savior, viz; "Search the Scriptures," and subsequent declaration of Paul, "Follow me as I follow Christ," have a wonderful significance, imposing the use of individual exertion to understand, and the exhibition of some (at least) respect for, and confidence in those who teach, hence the declaration "those that heareth you heareth me."

It can not be, but the fact of Christ's church being in existence, presupposes system, order, rule, law, helps and governments. Hence, the division of God's moral vineyard into branches, districts, missions, etc., under the rule, or lead of one grand government. And if under this God appointed arrangement, latitude is guaranteed it must be construed to mean, that all may submit to the above or not; if more or less than this, then a warrant to invade the sacred precincts of, with a view to change, or modify the divine economy would be claimed, with a further claim, that justification would follow a recognition of and abiding in, or by the word, or not, as fancy leads or human wisdom dictates, making the word nonimperative, bringing no reward, for obedience or consequence for disobedience. In which event, the idea of an exclusive system of salvation would be ridiculous, to say the least. Every department such as branch organization, etc., may and should be efficient, having power to regulate their own affairs—but if failing, helps exist to help, not to depress, deprive, hinder, or injure, but to see that the needed help comes, and that legitimately, to defend the innocent and reprove, or punish the guilty. I would therefore suggest efforts with a view to efficiency, which will bring strength and peace. It should be known, that preaching by the local ministry under the general law, is as timely and effective as by general conference appointees, so far as it extends. To be indifferent therefore, because of no General Conference appointment, whether priest of elder—is decidedly wrong. Nor would it be less wrong for elders to refrain from preaching as their circumstances admit; and in order to keep their minds active, hear a sermon from a brother elder one Sabbath, and get the platform the following Sabbath to criticise or find fault with it. Removals sometimes bring a preponderance of elders to a branch; and thinking they should be doing, assume to regulate or become dictatorial in branch matters; which should be left to branch officials, and elders should scatter themselves on the Sabbath days, to reason with the people out of the Scriptures unless requested otherwise.

The rule of common consent has been fostered with a view that all might give their assent to measures which will, or ought to bring a responsibility on all concerned, and not to encourage intrigue, or any such thing; and, as voting presupposes an understanding of the importance of measures involved; it would evince a proper modesty, and prevent such suspicion, for parents having three or four children, just or emerging into their teens, not to show an over anxiety for their children to use their franchise, or vote for measures, the importance of which they can not understand. Measures have been carried by parents inducing two or three of their children to vote, causing great dissatisfaction. Let greater discretion and caution obtain in these small matters in the future, and peace will flow as a result. Legitimate striving, long and patient waiting for the right will bring greater satisfaction, and give more god-like exulting than hurried and hasty measures illegitimately brought forth; children will lose nothing by being taught to withhold from voting until they can do it understandingly. And it may prevent much unpleasantness. Furthermore; the practice of making special efforts to induce absentees from regular stated meetings, to attend business meetings, is calculated to excite suspicion. Let authorized officials see after, and encourage absentees to attend all meetings, as well as business meetings; especially prayer meetings; and if this is done, business meetings will be among the most harmonious, pleasant, and profitable. Authorization to legislate, adjudicate, etc., etc., comes to the body of Christ when in existence; in the former it may err, but which fact does not authorize a procedure in an elder or elders to distress the Saints by pointing out the supposed error, as evidence of the church being on the verge of apostacy. But such an elder, or elders may have the privilege at a proper time and place, to tell to the body his, or their grievances; and hold his peace until the proper time to speak arrives. What more could be asked? The going on to perfection does not mean immediate possession but to go on striving to reach it through being governed by and subject to proper rule and order.

We are not law makers, but must be law abiders if we would excel and be saved. Where practicable I would respectfully suggest to branches and districts, to hold through the summer season grove meetings; and when practicable general conference appointees attend them. In the summer of 1885 the Deer Creek

Branch (Nebraska) held eighteen such meetings, by which means many scores heard the gospel. This made work for the Saints, but they did it not for individual enjoyment altogether, further than that they found pleasure in doing their duty—duty's path was not thornless for the Captain of our salvation; why should we expect it?

I would suggest to all the members scattered in Colorado, that Elder James Kemp is the authorized Bishop's Agent; his address is Hutchinson, Colorado.

I have no promises to make but desire at present to co-operate with all so far as practicable. And shall be glad to hear from any or all, who have business appertaining to the mission to write upon. I have been profuse in what might be thought simple matters, knowing a failure therein has brought trouble in the past, and which I hope may be avoided in the future, and thereby evidence a spiritual growth. Sabbath School work and sustaining the press should not be overlooked.

In gospel bonds,

JAMES CAFFALL.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. Joseph Luff, writing from Independence, Missouri, May 30th, says:

"Yesterday morning I went by train to Knob Noster, Johnson county, Missouri, to fill appointments in the M. E. Church there, having been advertised by Bro. J. H. Wells, who, with his wife (daughter of Bro. Reese, of Montana) and children, are the only members we have in that town. Preached morning and evening in the church to large and deeply interested and attentive congregations. In the evening the Cumberland Presbyterian minister was present. A Union Christian Association meeting was held in the Presbyterian church at 3 p. m., and the subject for the hour was "Bible Influences," upon which four ministers of the place were to speak, followed by two of the laity. The four ministers did not put in an appearance, and the two lay brethren only occupied about ten minutes, when the president of the association called upon me to occupy the remainder of the time allotted, or as long as I wished, which I did, cheerfully, and put in about half an hour as best I could, after which the thanks of the association were tendered me through the president. The reception accorded me was cordial throughout, and I am not left without ground for hope that good was done. Bro. and Sr. Wells made my stay comfortable, and it was with considerable regret that I had to leave them this morning about four o'clock to return home and attend to items of business demanding speedy attention. Expect to hear from Knob Noster some day."

Bro. E. C. Briggs wrote from Providence, R. I., June 2d, that he had been at Pittsburg over three Sabbaths. He reports the Saints there as in a happy mood, and that there is some inquiry and good interest manifest. The work in Philadelphia needs a good laborer. So also does Brooklyn; the Saints in both places are desirous of doing good to the cause. Bro. Briggs says:

"I feel at home here, and the many Saints, true and good, already gathered out of Babylon, are but prophecies that the hosts that are coming to our help will be but a grand triumph for truth, to the entire destruction and overthrow of our enemies."

He commends Brn. Sheehy, Bond and others.

"AND FOUND WANTING."—No. 3.

BEFORE taking up and examining further any of the questions raised by Elder David Whitmer, in his "Address" to believers in the Book of Mormon, we deem it necessary to place certain things before the readers of the "Address" and the HERALD, which have a bearing on the denial now made by David Whitmer that he has no desire to lead the church and has refused in the past so to do; together with other matters connected with the "Address."

It will have been seen that Elder David Whitmer was on the 8th day of September, 1847, ordained to the High Priesthood, to the Presidency of the church, and to be the Seer and Prophet, the Revelator and Translator to the church, by W. E. McLellin. An entry in Elder McLellin's journal concerning the events of that day reads thus:

"David being thus directed they all then laid their hands on my head and confirmed my priesthood upon me and ordained me to the Presidency—to stand as special counselor to David, as Joshua stood to Moses, and as Paul stood to Peter, and Oliver to Joseph." &c., &c.

Those who are included in the "all" named above as having laid their hands on W. E. McLellin to so ordain him, were David, John, and Jacob Whitmer, and Hiram Page. This shows that whatever may now be the understanding and explanation of David Whitmer of that proceeding, it was then understood by all of them—the whole five—to be that David Whitmer was then and there set apart and became the President, or earthly head of the Church of Christ, as Joseph Smith's successor, and that John Whitmer and W. E. McLellin were set apart as his counselors, the latter being a co-president; and that this order was then considered to be an essential feature in the Church of Christ; as the examples of Moses and Joshua, Peter and Paul, and Joseph and Oliver are cited as illustrations of what was then done.

We are aware that this will be read with surprise by many, but this is a day of surprises, and in view of the statement of Elder Whitmer that there should be no High Priests, and no one man leader, head or president; no prophet, seer, translator &c. in the church, it is very surprising; for the reason that it involves the fact that in 1847, all these men were of the opinion, and the revelations and spirit by which they acted endorsed the opinion that the High Priesthood was an essential order in the church; and that there was also a necessity for a presidency, as a succession to the one filled at first by Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, &c., and that David Whitmer was ordained successor to Joseph Smith.

That this idea continued to be held by David Whitmer and others is evident. In August, 1875, a letter was written at the dictation of David Whitmer to M. J. Borland, of Omaha, Nebraska, which is signed by the writer "under the guardian hand of my grandfather, the anointed successor of Joseph Smith." This letter endorses the Bible thus: "The essential facts of true religion are found in the Jewish Bible and the Book of Mormon. (I mean by Jewish Bible both Old and New Testament.)"

This gives further color to the understanding had by those men in 1847, and further shows that the idea of leadership as centering in David Whitmer was fostered in the family by and with the consent and understanding of David Whitmer himself—even as late as 1875 at least; and we doubt not that it can be so shown much later than that.

In a communication from Elder D. Whitmer to us in June, 1886, he calls himself an apostle; he wrote, "To Joseph the son of Joseph who was my brother apostle in the days, when Jesus talked and counselled with us from day to day."

Here the fact that the office of apostle was in the church at its inception is clearly admitted both for Joseph Smith and for David Whitmer, and this admission is made in 1886.

At the time Elder David Whitmer asked us to publish his Epistle he wrote us the following letter:

RICHMOND, MISSOURI,
December 9th, 1886.

Brother Joseph:—I send you my first article to publish in the "Herald." I want this published first, and when I get the balance of it ready, will send it for publication. If you decide not to publish it, please return it at once and let me know. I have said as little as I possibly could on the subject of the "secret organization," as it was necessary to speak of it in some manner to show one of the causes of my leaving the "Latter Day Saints" in 1838. I do not intend to speak of "Polygamy." If you publish this article, I will not. The "worst" is in this article.

I also enclose a letter from Bro. Jno. C. Whitmer which please publish. Please print the sheets in the order in which they are numbered.

Your brother for the truth as it is in Christ.
DAVID WHITMER.

Elder Joseph Smith, Lamoni, Iowa.

From this letter we were assured that the forth-coming Epistle was to be written upon matters within the knowledge of the Witness himself; and that the question of polygamy was not to be discussed in it. This seemed eminently proper under the circumstances; and we commended the wisdom of the statement. We accepted the statement in good faith and feeling; because it indicated a sense of propriety and fitness that promised fairness in the treatment of the subjects to be presented in the pamphlet. We knew nothing to the contrary of this, until the "Address" was placed in our hands. Accompanying the pamphlet was the following letter:

RICHMOND, Mo., May 11th, 1887.

ELDER JOSEPH SMITH;

Dear Bro.:—When I sent you the first part of my article to publish, I said, if you would Publish it, I would not speak on the question of Polygamy, (in my articles to the Herald.) For fear you will not understand my meaning on this point, I write you to explain. I meant, that I would not speak of Polygamy in my articles to THE HERALD. At that time I fully believed you would publish that first article and subsequent ones. So I said that the worst was in that article, and if you would publish it, I would not speak of polygamy; meaning, of course in subsequent articles to the Herald. After sending you the first part to Publish, you returned it, refusing to publish it giving your reasons; But closed your letter by saying, that when I finished my Epistle to send it all you, and you would examine it with a view to its publication. Then, in order to get you to publish that first part, I wrote you that if you would publish it, I would not request the Herald to publish any more of the Epistle. Then you wrote, if I would strike out the headings of contemplated chapters to follow (subsequent chapters having not yet been written) that you would publish it.

Now I hope you understand my meaning. In the pamphlet I have spoken upon the question of Polygamy, believing it to be my solemn duty. My reasons for so doing, you will find in chapter 4 of the pamphlet.

I have not added any more of the facts regarding the Danites, which facts I wrote you in a private letter.

Now Bro. Joseph, I hope you understand my position; for I have tried to make it plain. What I have done, I have done in the fear of God and in the interest of man. May God help you to some day see and understand is my prayer in your behalf. Your brother,

DAVID WHITMER.

It will be seen that in the first letter Elder Whitmer states specifically, and without conditions: "I do not intend to speak of polygamy." He does not say in parentheses, or in any other way, that he meant that he would not treat of it in his articles to the HERALD. He does say that if we did publish the article he would not. We did publish the article; accepting the statements of Elder Whitmer that that article "contained the worst." We do not write this because we think the chapter on polygamy anything dangerous, or unanswerable, but simply to put the nature of Elder Whitmer's statements, promises and assertions before the readers of the "Address" and the HERALD. In his last letter his conscience seemed to prick him that he had violated his word to us; and he attempts to explain it, and confesses that he only made the promise in order to get us to publish that first article. We confess to having been taken by guile. The letter of explanation does not help the matter in our estimation; for in it Elder Whitmer expresses the fear that we would not understand his meaning. This fear resulted in Elder Whitmer's mind from the fact that he had distinctly stated that he would not do a certain thing which he named. There is no mistaking the sentence. It is not even covered under a threat that unless we did publish that first article he would treat on polygamy in his pamphlet. He states: "I do not intend to speak of polygamy;" and italicizes the word to call out attention to

it. We confess that we did misunderstand him. How were we to know that he intended to write one thing to us and mean right the opposite of that. We did not even suspicion that Elder Whitmer was attempting to deceive us, to make us think and understand one thing while he meant another. We did not think even that it might be a case of subtle double dealing calculated to take us off our guard. But Elder Whitmer seems to be full of these after explanations, that his words and acts do not mean what they at the time when they were done and said appeared to mean; and that he who should take them at their obvious intention at the time would make a mistake to his damage. We confess that if a man does not mean what he plainly says, or writes, we are very liable to misunderstand him. Nor can we now be satisfied that we can even read the "Address" with a consistent assurance that we understand the meaning of the writer.

HIGH PRIESTS—IN THE CHURCH.

David Whitmer attacks the Book of Doctrine and Covenants; alleging that in it are doctrines contrary to the teachings of Christ; "doctrines that Christ never taught to the twelve at Jerusalem, nor the twelve upon this continent. The Latter Day Saints believe these new doctrines, which do not agree with the teaching of Christ."—Address, page 26.

Among the things which Elder Whitmer classifies as false doctrines is that of having the order of High Priests in the church. He states that the Book of Mormon contains all that was, or is necessary for the building up of the Church of Christ. He does this, too, in the face of the statements which he acknowledges on pages 48 and 49, that Mormon said that there "can not be written in this book even the hundredth part of the things which Jesus did truly teach the people." And that of John, "I suppose that even the world itself could not contain the books that should be written;" if all the things that Jesus did and taught were written.—John 21:25.

Elder Whitmer sets the statement of Mormon aside by his dogmatic "of course this means all the words that Jesus taught or spoke to them, including the great mysteries," * * * "which the Lord forbade them to write."

The statement of John he evades by saying:

"Is any one so blind as to understand from this language that the doctrine of Christ, or as we use the expression, the teachings of Christ, are not contained in full in the Bible and Book of Mormon? No spiritual man would so interpret this Scripture."

We may not be spiritual, as Elder Whitmer rates men spiritual, or blind; but we certainly understand John to have said just what he meant to say, that if the things which Jesus did were written that it would make a multitude of books, and that the Bible does not contain the teachings of Jesus in full. We understand, also, that when Mormon wrote that "the hundredth part" of what "Jesus did truly teach the people," could not be written in the book, that the Book of Mormon, does not contain "the teachings of Christ," "in full;" for according to Mormon there is only the hundredth part. Elder Whitmer's "of course" can not make the word void.

We have shown that Elder Whitmer mistook in reference to the office of apostle in the church; and now propose to show that when he charges error in teaching and practice, for it is not a doctrine, in holding to the order of High Priests in the Church, he mistakes also.

THE WORK OF CHRIST.

The work of Jesus Christ, so far as the teaching of the Book of Mormon is concerned, began early in the times described in the book itself. King Benjamin taught as he had been instructed by the angel of the Lord.—Mosiah, 2:1. When he had done delivering the message, they said: "We believe in Jesus Christ the Son of God." They received a remission of their sins and the "Spirit of the Lord" was given them. They were called by him the "children of Christ, his sons and his daughters." Speaking of them and what they had done he said: "for he shall be called by the name of Christ."—Mosiah, 3:2. Priests were appointed to teach the people.—Mosiah, 4:1. Succeeding this, Abinadi withstanding the evil reign of King Noah, convinced Alma, and he teaching others baptized them in token of their covenant to take upon them the name of the Lord. In doing this the Spirit of the Lord was upon him, and the number baptized at the time was two hundred and four, and they were "filled with the grace of God; and they were called the Church of God or the church of Christ, from that time forward."—Mosiah, 9:8. Alma then having authority from God, ordained priests; one to every fifty.—Mosiah, 9:9. Alma also commanded that the people of the church should impart of their substance to the priests and others who had need, he having been commanded of God.—Ibid.

This body of men and women were under the spiritual charge of Alma. He directed their teaching and established their order, he having been commanded of God; and it was called the church of Christ. Will Elder Whitmer say that this was not the Church of Christ? The word elder does not occur yet in the history, but the teachers were called priests. As we pursue the history further we learn that Alma was warned of the design of King Noah to destroy him and his people, and he took them and fled away from the king. When they were established in safety, he refused to be their king, and counseled them not to trust a man as a king; and not to trust one as their teacher, or minister except he was a man of God; and the record states definitely: "And now Alma was their high priest, he being the founder of their church. And it came to pass that none received authority to preach or to teach, except it were by him from God. Therefore he consecrated all their priests, and all their teachers, and none were consecrated except they were just men."

This was the Church of Christ, and there was a "one man leader" in it; one of such a character that no one received authority to preach, or teach except by a call through him. Besides this he ordained, "consecrated," priests and teachers; but the record does not say elders; and therefore that Church of Christ had a high priest, priests and teachers as orders of officers; and all this by commandment of God. They were commanded not to trust a man as king; but did trust a man as a high priest.—Mosiah, 11: 2. This was all confirmed by subsequent similar action on the part of Alma, the high priest, when he established churches in the land of Zarahemla, under the rule of King Mosiah; every church having its separate officers, and every priest "preaching the word as it was delivered to him by the mouth of Alma;" and yet "they were all one church; yea, even the church of God." And, strange as it may appear, after what Elder Whitmer has written about the "sore displeasure of God," because high priests were ordained in 1831, the Lord by his voice commended Alma, the high priest in the church, and blessed him: "And blessed art thou because thou hast established a church among this people." Just as God blessed Alma by putting his Spirit upon him, commanding him, and speaking to him by his voice, so did God bless Joseph Smith, in 1831, while ordaining high priests in the church. (Mosiah 11: 15). If there is any doubt about that church being the church, it is settled by the following: "And they shall be established, and they shall be my people. Yea, blessed is this people, who are willing to bear my name; for in my name shall they be called; and they are mine. . . . For behold, this is my church; whosoever is baptized shall be baptized unto repentance." The voice of the Lord said to Alma, the son of Alma, the high priest, "This is my church, and I will establish it."—Mosiah, 11: 20.

Before the death of Mosiah, Alma was chosen to be "the first chief judge;" he at the time "being also the High Priest; his father having conferred the office upon him, and had given him the charge concerning all the affairs of the church."—Mosiah 13: 6. Alma and his son Alma, both held the office of high priest until the death of Alma the first.

Notwithstanding the statement of David Whitmer that the officers in the Church of Christ are only elders, priests, and teachers, it is plain that the church of Christ about which we have learned so much from the foregoing, existed all through the ministerial life of Alma, the first, and yet had not the office of elder in it till long after Alma's son had led the church, as high priest and first judge for years. Before the calling and ordination of elders, Alma said: "For I am called to speak after this manner, after the holy order of God, which is in Christ Jesus." This was in reference to the authority by which he declared the commandments and rules of the church concerning the coming of Christ, repentance, baptism, &c.—Alma 3: 6. He says further, "this is the order after which I am called."—Alma 3: 7.

After this he "ordained priests and elders, by laying on his hands according to the order of God, to preside and watch over the church." If the statement is made with the calling of the officers in the order of their authority then priests were first, and took precedence over elders. The words "to preside" over the church, here used gives a new and added significance to the calling and ordination, as to preside presumes prerogative, rule, authority to control and set in order, &c.

It may seem to some that we have been unnecessarily prolix on this point so far, but this charge of error in the church and in the Doctrine and Covenants respecting the order of high priests in the church, made by David Whitmer, is one of the key stones in his arch of assertion and argument; and if it is once clearly shown from the history and teaching of the Book of Mormon, unto which as unto Cæsar, David Whitmer has challenged us to go, that not only priests, but high priests were in the Church of Christ, his whole fabric of reasoning must topple to the ground. Alma's ninth chapter to the close of the fifth paragraph is a dissertation upon the plan of redemption and what is connected with it; and in the sixth paragraph of the ninth and the first and second paragraphs of the tenth he recites how it had been preached among those who had gone before them, and has especial bearing upon the subject under consideration, for the reason that the office of the priests referred to in the passages we have already quoted, and the nature of their calling and the character of the priesthood which they held, are clearly and positively defined.

"And again: my brethren, I would cite your minds forward to the time when the Lord God gave these commandments unto his children; and I would that ye should remember that the Lord God ordained priests, after his holy order, which was after the order of his Son, to teach these things unto the people; and those priests were ordained after the order of his Son, in a manner that thereby the people might know in what manner to look forward to his Son for redemption. And this is the manner after which they were ordained; being called and prepared from the foundation of the world, according to the foreknowledge of God, on account of their exceeding faith and good works; in the first place being left to choose good or evil; therefore they having chosen good, and exercising exceeding great faith, are called with a holy calling, yea, with that holy calling which was prepared with, and according to, a preparatory redemption for such; and thus they have been called to this holy calling on account of their faith, while others would reject the Spirit of God on account of the hardness of their hearts and blindness of their minds, while, if it had not been for this they might had as great privilege as their brethren. Or in fine: in the first place they were on the same standing with their brethren; thus this holy calling being prepared from the foundation of the world for such as would not harden their hearts, being in and through the atonement of the only begotten Son, who was prepared; and thus being called by this holy calling, and ordained unto the high priesthood of the holy order of God, to teach his commandments unto the children of men, that they also might enter into his rest, this high-priesthood being after the order of his Son, which order was from the foundation of the world; or in other words, being without beginning of days or end of years, being prepared from eternity to all eternity, according to his foreknowledge of all things. Now they were ordained after this manner: Being called with a holy calling, and ordained with a holy ordinance, and taking upon them the high priesthood of the holy order, which calling and ordinance, and high priesthood, is without beginning and end; thus they become high priests forever, after the order of the Son, the only begotten of the Father, who is without beginning of days or end of years, who is full of grace, equity and truth. And thus it is. Amen."—Alma, 9: 6.

"Now as I said concerning the holy order of this high priesthood; there were many who were ordained and became high priests of God; and it was on account of their exceeding faith and repentance, and their righteousness before God, they choosing to repent and work righteousness, rather than to perish; therefore they were called after this holy order, and were sanctified, and their garments were washed white, through the blood of the Lamb. Now they, after being sanctified by the Holy Ghost, having their garments made white, being pure and spotless before God, could not look upon sin, save it were with abhorrence; and there were many, exceeding great many, who were made pure, and entered into the rest of the Lord their God. And now, my brethren, I would that ye should humble yourselves before God, and bring forth fruit meet for repentance, that ye may also enter into that rest; yea, humble yourselves even as the people in the days of Melchizedek, who was also a high priest after this same order which I have spoken, who also took upon him the high priesthood forever. And it was this same Melchizedek to whom Abraham paid tithes; yea, even our father Abraham paid tithes of one tenth part of all that he possessed. Now these ordinances were given after this manner, that thereby the people might look forward on the Son of God, it being a type of his order, or it being his order; and this, that they might look forward to him for a remission of their sins, that they might enter into the rest of the Lord.

"Now this Melchizedek was a king over the land of Salem; and his people had waxed strong in iniquity and abominations; yea, they had all gone astray; they were full of all manner of wickedness; but Melchizedek having exercised mighty faith, and received the office of the high priesthood, according to the holy order of God, did preach repentance unto his people. And behold, they did repent; and Melchizedek did establish peace in the land in his days; therefore he was called the prince of peace, for he was the king of Salem; and he did reign under his father. Now there were many before him, and also there were many afterwards, but none were greater; therefore of him they have more particularly made mention. Now I need not rehearse the matter; what I have said, may suffice. Behold, the scriptures are before you; if ye will wrest them it shall be to your own destruction."—Alma, 10: 1, 2.

There ought to be no mistaking the nature of this teaching. The high priests here referred to are not to be confounded with those who held office and offered sacrifices under the law of Moses, as Elder Whitmer would have us to "suppose," but were an order in the church called and sanctified "through the blood of the Lamb," to preach repentance and teach the commandments of God; and that there was more than one at a time in the church, which Elder Whitmer denies, is abundantly proved. But, as no amount of truth can hurt a cause we offer the following: "Thus they were led away by Amalickiah, to dissensions, notwithstanding the preaching of Helaman and his brethren; yea, notwithstanding their exceeding great care over the church, for they were high priests over the church."—Alma. Helaman and his brethren, associates in the calling, order and office of high priests in the church, teaching, caring for, ministering to and presiding over the people of God in the church.—Alma 21: 6.

David Whitmer finds fault with Joseph Smith because that the spirit of war seems to have been imbibed by some in the church; but the Book of Mormon to which he bids us go, has a curious chapter following what is quoted above. One Amalickiah dissented from the church. He could not abide the teaching of Helaman and his brethren, the high priests; and doubtless felt that the office of high priest was not needed in the church; this man rose up and led a dissension against the church. Moroni, chief captain of the armies, and a warlike man, grew angry; tore his coat and wrote a motto for a banner on the rent piece: "In memory of our God, our religion, and freedom, and our peace, our wives, and our children." He raised this standard and took up the defence of the "all those who were true believers in Christ," who had taken upon them the name of Christ. These men believed in the church under Helaman and his brethren, and in the things existing under their administration as the high priests over the church of God under which rule they had freedom. "And Helaman and the high priests did also maintain order in the church; yea, even for the space of four years, did they have peace and rejoicing in the church." Moroni with his charge of the peace of the land, and Helaman and others in the church.

Again: The following from Helaman 2: 6, portrays the continuation of this same condition of things:

"And it came to pass that in this same year, there was exceeding great prosperity in the church, insomuch that there were thousands who did join themselves unto the church, and were baptized unto repentance; and so great was the prosperity of the church, and so many the blessings which were poured out upon the people, that even the high priests and the teachers were themselves astonished beyond measure. And it came to pass that the work of the Lord did prosper unto the baptizing and uniting to the church of God, many souls; yea, even tens of thousands."—Helaman 2: 6.

This was the church of God, baptizing unto repentance, a gospel work, and precisely the work intended to be carried on by the recovery of the "new covenant," the Book of Mormon, in these our times. Nephi and Lehi, sons of Helaman, succeeded in their day, "for they had power and authority given unto them," remembering the words of Helaman, and "keeping the commandments of God, to teach the word of God." He had charged them; "and now my sons, remember, remember that it is upon the rock of our Redeemer, who is Christ the Son of God, that you must build your foundation." This is not the charge of men holding the high priest's office in a Mosaic organization where the blood of bulls and goats makes an atonement for sin; but is the charge of men living within the line of the covenant in Christ; and under this charge the sons of Helaman baptized thousands in the church. So much was the power of God with them that when imprisoned, and encircled by fire their faces shone "as the faces of angels," and they conversed with the unseen host of heaven. Before this man Nephi, who was the son of Helaman, departed, he gave charge to his son, also named Nephi. In his day the prophecies concerning the coming of Christ to this land culminated in fulfillment. Jesus appeared unto the people, and among the multitude of those who received him was Nephi. Jesus called him, and he went to Jesus who said: "I give unto you power that ye shall baptize this people, when I am again ascended into heaven." Jesus "called others and said unto them likewise; and he gave them power to baptize."—Book of Nephi, 5: 8.

David Whitmer says that Nephi had to lay down the office of high priest; but there is nothing in the record that shows any such laying aside his robe of office. On the contrary, Jesus addressed him directly, called him from out the many, recognized his office, the same as he had that of John the Baptist, and at once indicated his choice of the man who was to be first in that work that had been going on and was to continue. He gave those whom he had called charge how they were to baptize, and whom to baptize; and the nature of those who should constitute his people. From the 8th paragraph of the 5th chapter of the Book of Nephi unto the close of the 8th chapter, there is a succinct relation of the acts and teachings of Jesus of a similar character to that found in the New Testament Scriptures, including the choosing of the Twelve and the Sermon on the Mount, and the institution of the sacrament of bread and wine. After administering the bread and wine he said to the twelve disciples: "Behold there shall be one ordained among you, and to him will I give power that he shall break bread, and bless it, and give it unto the people of my church, unto all those who shall believe and be baptized in my name."

In the 8th chapter and 10th paragraph of this Book of Nephi, it is related that after closing his instructions he "touched the disciples whom he had chosen, one by one, even until he had touched them all, and spake unto them as he touched them; and the multitude heard not the words which he spake, therefore they did not bear record; but the disciples bear record that he gave them power to give the Holy Ghost." The historian continues: "and I will shew unto you hereafter that the record is true."

This verification of what was said by Jesus to those whom he thus chose is found in the Book of Moroni, second chapter, as follows:

"The words of Christ, which he spake unto his disciples, the twelve whom he had chosen, as he laid his hands upon them. And he called them by name, saying, Ye shall call on the Father in my name, in mighty prayer; and after ye have done this, ye shall have power that on him whom ye shall lay your hands, ye shall give the Holy Ghost; and in my name shall ye give it, for thus do mine apostles. Now Christ spake these words unto them at the time of his first appearing; and the multitude heard it not, but the disciples heard it, and on as many as they laid their hands, fell the Holy Ghost."

When these twelve, whom Jesus thus ordained set about the business unto which they were called, Nephi was the first one who was baptized, and he baptized all the rest of the twelve. It does no violence to the record to believe that Nephi was the one chosen from among the twelve to lead among them. David Whitmer asks us to believe that this Nephi had to lay off his office of high priest and take up the simple role of an elder. Instead of this, we discover that he was invested with the office of apostle; upon him and the eleven chosen and ordained with him being conferred the right and authority similarly held by the apostles at Jerusalem. The character of their call, the investiture of the power to lay on hands, and the command to administer the bread and wine, all point to the first rank of office in the spiritual ministry, that of apostles. So instead of laying down the higher to take up the lesser, Nephi was called up higher, Jesus recognized the calling of the Father unto Nephi and the others in the Church of God and of Christ established before the coming of Messiah, in a similar way as he had the calling of God to John, and had sanctioned in his person what he had already done by his Spirit. All this was in harmony with the promise of God made concerning the covenant he had made, and which was to be fulfilled. David Whitmer uses an expression that by its supposed aptness captures the ear and deceives the reader. He styles that part of the Book of Mormon in which the coming of Jesus is related, "The New Testament of the Book of Mormon," thus drawing a distinction between that part of the book and the rest of it, which is nowhere warranted in the book itself. He also writes of the "New Covenant of the Book of Mormon;" which also misleads by its sound. The Book of Mormon is, so far as the restoration of the gospel on this land and in this age is concerned, the New Covenant the Book of Mormon; and there is no one covenant in it that can be styled by any fair construction "the new covenant of the Book of Mormon." It is the whole book that is to grow together with the Record of the Jews to the confounding of false doctrine, and not the restricted part as stated by Elder Whitmer.

There is an agreement between the teaching of the Book of Mormon and the New Testament Scripture respecting the priesthood that we cite. Paul writing to the Hebrews of the peculiar calling of Christ Jesus does not consider him as a High Priest, made so under the law of Moses, and after a carnal commandment; but calls him the Apostle and High Priest of our profession. In citing the call of Jesus Christ he states that he was "called of God a high priest after the order of Melchisedec."—Heb. 5 : 10.

Paul understood the character of this priesthood precisely as did the writer in the Book of Alma, 9th and 10th chapters, that is, that they were ordained priests after his "holy order," which was the "order of his Son," which order was "from the foundation of the world;" the "high priesthood of the holy order of God," which was to continue forever. It was the Melchisedec order, as stated by both Paul and Alma. Paul also urges that Jesus was "a high priest of good things to come," and not the high priest alone; signifying that in the "greater and more perfect tabernacle," the church, there was a better ministry than under the "carnal ordinances." Paul states too that this is under the covenant, which God had promised to make. The first tabernacle had "ordinances of divine worship;" so had also the one called by Paul "the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched and not man;" of which Jesus Christ was "a minister," "a high priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." We believe that Christ Jesus was and is the great high priest, from whom emanates all wisdom, light, power and authority in the church; but it is beyond question, that while he stands at the head of the church and the priesthood there was and of necessity must be still numbers of ministers in the church who are of the same order of priesthood that he held, for the reason that the business done in the church is done in the name and by the authority of God and Christ.

The gospel, as announced by the angel of Revelations 14:6, is an "everlasting gospel;" and it is eminently fitting that the priesthood by which it should be declared should be an everlasting one also; hence the priesthood of Christ was an everlasting one, precisely the sort conferred on the apostles of the primitive church, the one of the Book of Mormon times and of these last days.

That Elder Whitmer mistakes, and that greatly, when he charges that the institution of the order of high priests, or the high priesthood is an innovation, and an error, is seen in Paul's argument respecting the priesthood of Christ Jesus, when he says:

"If therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law), what further need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchizedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron." "And it is yet far more evident; for that after the similitude of Melchizedec there ariseth another priest, who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life." "But this man, because he continueth ever, hath an unchangeable priesthood." "For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmity; but the word of the oath, maketh the Son, who is consecrated for ever more."—Hebrews, 6: 7; and 8.

The fact that the priesthood of Jesus was and is an "unchangeable" one being proved, it must follow that those ordained unto the ministry of Christ's gospel economy are ordained unto this very identical priesthood, and in it are found the calling and office of apostle, high priest, seventy, elder, &c., and Joseph Smith not only made no mistake in so ordaining, but did follow the teaching of the Book of Mormon and the Jewish scriptures "both the Old and New Testaments;" and we believe the direction of the Spirit of God was given him in a similar way that it was to Alma who ordained such officers.

To this idea that men were called unto the priesthood in which our Lord was a servant unto his brethren whom he chose to represent him and his mission, the statement of Peter agrees: "Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." "But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should shew forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light."—1 Peter. 2: 5, 9.

That Paul was in himself conscious of this calling unto the ministry in which Christ came to serve, is evident from his writing to Timothy; for, speaking of the character of the mediation of Christ, he says:—"Whereunto I am ordained a preacher, and an apostle, . . . a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and verity."—1 Tim., 2, 7.

The affairs of the church, after the death of Jesus were in charge of the apostles; and there is reason to believe that Peter, James and John formed the leading quorum; but whether they did, or not, it is clear that the church then had in it apostles and elders. Paul and Barnabas traveled through the different churches in the year 46, A. D., and "ordained them elders in every church."—Acts, 14: 23. In the year 51, A. D., the question of circumcision was broached and controversy ensued; to settle this: "The apostles and elders came together for to consider this matter."—Acts, 15: 1-6. In this controversy James gave the decision; and it "pleased the apostles and elders, with the whole church," to such an extent that they sent two of their number, Judas and Silas, to bear their letter of decision which opens thus: "The apostles and elders and brethren send greeting."—Acts 15: 23. The two men sent, Judas and Silas, were prophets also, as stated in the 32d verse of the same chapter.

We have traced these offices thus far for the purpose of showing that if the New Testament, together with the acts and teaching of Christ and the church after the death of Jesus, are of any worth in connection with the New Covenant, the Book of Mormon, we are clearly entitled to believe that apostles, prophets, high priests and elders are grades of office in the one priesthood, that of the Melchizedek order; and that these were a part and parcel of the economy of the covenant, remembered, revived, and restored in the gospel church of these last days.

Jesus "ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach."—St. Mark, 3: 14. Of these men he said: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit."—John, 15: 16. Indicating the character of their sending, he further said:—"As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you."

David Whitmer states on page 33 of "Address" that he does "not consider that the church was any more organized, or established in the eyes of God on that day than it was previous to that day." The day referred to is April 6th, 1830. It does not matter what David Whitmer may now "consider" respecting the organization of the church in the "eyes of God." The church in the wilderness was in the eyes of God; but she must emerge from the wilderness and be seen in an organized form. So in 1830, that which existed in the mind and will of God respecting the church must be made visible, must take on an organized form; and that it was done according to the "will and commandments" of God, previously given to Joseph Smith, and others is to us beyond dispute. In that organization when completed we should expect a conformation like to that shown in the New Testament Scripture, supplemented and strengthened by what is supplied in the Book of Mormon as a whole, and not confined to that portion alone, which David Whitmer styles the "New Testament part of the Book of Mormon."

The church was commanded to go to the Ohio, and there God's law to govern the church should be given them. They did go to the Ohio; they did receive God's law; they did organize the church; men were called of God to hold the priesthood of apostles, high priests, prophets, and elders, which was the priesthood of the Son of God, after the order of Melchisedec, as we have shown from the word of God contained in the two records. David Whitmer has haled us before the tribunal of the Book of Mormon, as unto Cæsar; we have gone there and he must abide the arbitration of such appeal. The church of the Book of Mormon before Christ's appearing on this land under the spiritual government of high priests, and the temporal rule of Kings and Judges was the Church of Christ. In that church the officers which David Whitmer says were not in the church of Christ anciently are found; and their analagous co-workers holding the same priesthood are found in the New Testament church. This is sufficient.

Elder Whitmer alleges that after the devil had incited Joseph Smith to be chosen leader, April 6th, 1830, which he holds to be the first error, that "he and all" the rest had the "Spirit" with them; Joseph being "humble the most of the time." In this connection he charges that Joseph and others trusted in man, "put their trust in man." Yet he says in relation to the matters of a presiding elder and high priests that Joseph went to the Lord with their requests and received answers, "according to their erring desires." He professes not to judge Joseph Smith and others; and yet in this, as from first to last in his "Address," he does judge and condemn the motives and desires of the man inspired to bring forth the Book of Mormon, who he confesses was "humble the most of the time," and had the "Spirit," and declares that those motives and desires were "erring and iniquitous." His own statements show that Joseph Smith did not "put his trust in man," but laid the matters upon which he wished instruction before the Lord, as he had been instructed to do. Those who now choose to put their trust in David Whitmer, and believe that Joseph Smith blew hot and blew cold, was "humble the most of the time, but proud and haughty the rest;" received light from God, and was led by men; enjoyed communion with God, and was "cheek by jowl" with the devil; received revelations from God, from man and from the devil; was a servant of God and a child of hell; spoke the truth and lied like sin, all in the same breath, the same hour the same day—those who choose to thus lean on and put their trust in man, David Whitmer, may do so; but as for us, blind or seeing, carnal or spiritual, in the dark or in the light, in the error or in the truth, an alien or in the church, we can not accept the statements made in the "Address" by Elder David Whitmer on the subject set forth in this article, while we read the written word so differently.

BROTHER J. W. JOHNSON, of McFall, Gentry county, Missouri, is of the opinion that there should be considerable labor bestowed on Missouri, this present summer and fall; and that there is a most excellent opportunity for Saints to get homes in that state. He recommends that part of the state very highly, and says that property can be got hold of now cheap. He will give any information needed upon application; address him at McFall, as above. We agree with Bro. Johnson, that it is a good time to labor in Missouri; but so it is almost everywhere else; and the laborers are so scarce, for the demand. Our Utah opposers say that one of the most positive evidences they have that they are right and the Reorganization wrong, is the fact that we can send our elders into the fields of labor where theirs are shut out. They are of the opinion that this signifies that we are of the world, therefore the world loves us; because it loves its own. But we know that the Lord promised that if a certain course was pursued, He would give those following that course "grace and favor" in the eyes of the people, while they were seeking redress for their wrongs. Therefore, those who so construe the fact that we are received in such places, to mean that we are of the world, make a great mistake, and throw distrust upon the word of the Lord. Bro. Johnson lives in a section which was at one time greatly prejudiced against the Saints."

Bro. Brown of the Expositor thinks the "Saints in the east" a little "off" because they regarded Bro. D. S. Mills' preaching as "phenomenal." He says, "We never discovered anything peculiar about it." There is nothing strange about that; it is as old as Christ's day; "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." Home blessings lie round unregarded, the same blessings coming from a "far country" are highly prized. We of the east appreciated brother Mills.

Bro. J. C. Clapp has large audiences in Utah where he is preaching. He baptized two on the 28th.

Bro. E. C. Briggs' address is care of M. H. Bond, 46 Waverly Street, Providence, R. I.

Bro. John Smith, of New Bedford, Massachusetts, wrote June 3d: "At the conference at Brockton last week, three were baptized; good feeling and full meetings."

We read from the Expositor that Elder Thomas Daley baptized four at Eldorado, and after preaching a little more baptized nine others—thirteen in all; good.

Bro. John Parsons was at Stockton, and having good success.

Sr. Lucy Goble write us that there was an error in the death notice of Elder Thomas Harvey Humes, in HERALD for May 21st; it reads Thomas Hary, when it should have been Thomas Harvey, as above. We are not in fault, we can not venture to correct the spelling of proper names, unless we know the parties, and we gave this name as it was given us. All would do well to be careful and give names properly.

A card from Bro. W. W. Blair, dated at Tabor, Iowa, indicates that he had been there, but was on his way to Council Bluffs and Persia, for gospel work.

Bro. Levi Gamet writes from Clear Water, Nebraska, June 6th, that the two days' meeting held at Deer Creek was attended by brethren James Caffall and W. M. Rumel; that the attention was good though the audiences were small; they had a pleasant time. Bro. Gamet had made arrangements to have meetings in Neligh, the first ever held there. There are three papers in the town; and all will publish the notice of the meeting. It is expected that brethren Caffall and Rumel will hold a two days' meeting at Chelsea, the 9th and 10th of July.

Brethren M. R. Scott and Thomas F. Wheeler write from Indiana, that Elder Harbert Scott attacked the Book of Mormon, in the neighborhood of New Providence, Indiana, lately, but that there was practically nothing new in the arguments presented. Bro. M. R. asked for time for a short reply, but leave was not given him.

Bro. J. B. Prettyman wrote from Knox, Indiana, that they had been greatly strengthened by a late visit from Bro. Leonard Scott, who had done a good work there, being an able exponent of the faith.

Letter from Bro. E. Ray, Des Moines, states that Bro. E. C. Brand was there and was doing a good work, or it was thought that good would result from his labors there. Bro. Ray states that at the meeting of Bro. Baker in the Court House, and reported in the HERALD, there was not a full house, as stated, but only a few, comparatively. All we know of it is what was stated, and that we took from a Des Moines paper.

PROFESSING BELIEVERS IN CHRIST.

WE hear of some who say they will believe only what Jesus taught as recorded in the Book of Mormon. Very well; and what do his teachings there require them to believe? 1. That he created the heavens and the earth, and all things that in them are." Book of Nephi, 4: 8. 2. "In me is the law of Moses fulfilled,"—Ibid. 3. "I have come unto the world to bring redemption unto the world, to save the world from sin."—Ibid. 4. "O ye house of Israel whom I have spared, how oft will I gather you as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, if ye will repent and return unto me with full purpose of heart."—4: 10. 5. I am Jesus Christ, whom the prophets testified shall come into the world; and behold, I am the light and the life of the world; and I have drunk out of that bitter cup which the Father hath given me, and have glorified the Father in taking upon me the sins of the world, in the which I have suffered the will of the Father in all things from the beginning."—5: 4. 6. "I am the God of Israel, and the God of the whole earth, and have been slain for the sins of the world." 7. Verily I say unto you, that the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost are one."—5: 8. 8. "More blessed are they who shall believe in your words [the servants of Christ.—Ed.] because that ye shall testify that ye have seen me, and that ye know that I am."—5: 9. And this is not trusting in the arm of flesh, either. 9. "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets. I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil; for verily I say unto you, one jot nor one tittle hath not passed away from the law, but in me it hath all been fulfilled. And behold I have given you the law and the commandments of my Father, that ye shall believe in me."—5: 9, 10. 10. "Therefore, those things which were of old time, which were under the law, in me are all fulfilled,"—5: 11. 11. "Behold, I am the law, and the light; look unto me, and endure to the end, and ye shall live, for unto him that endureth to the end will I give eternal life."—7: 1. 12. "These sayings which ye shall write, [Book of Mormon.—Ed.], shall be kept, and shall be manifested unto the Gentiles, that through the fulness of the Gentiles, the remnant of their [the Jews.—Ed.] seed who shall be scattered forth upon the face of the earth, because of their unbelief, may be brought in, or may be brought to a knowledge of me, their Redeemer. And then will I gather them in from the four quarters of the earth."—7: 3. 13. "Ye remember that I spake unto you, and said that when the words of Isaiah should be fulfilled, behold they are written, ye have them before you, therefore search them. And verily, verily, I say unto you, that when they shall be fulfilled, [the 29th chapter, for instance.—Ed], then is the fulfilling of the covenant which the Father hath made unto his people, O house of Israel. And then shall the remnants which shall be scattered abroad upon the face of the earth be gathered in from the east, and from the west, and from the south, and from the north: and they shall be brought to the knowledge of the Lord their God, who hath redeemed them."—9: 8.

And of this work and this time Jesus said further, 14. "And, verily, I say unto you, I give unto you a sign, that ye may know the time when these things shall be about to take place, that I shall gather in from their long dispersion my people, O house of Israel, and shall establish again among them my Zion. And behold, this is the thing which I will give unto you for a sign; for verily I say unto you, that when these things which I declare unto you, and which I shall declare unto you hereafter of myself, and by the power of the Holy Ghost which shall be given unto you of the Father, [meaning his teachings in the Book of Mormon.—Ed], shall be made known unto the Gentiles, that they [the Gentiles] may know concerning this people [Nephites, &c.] who are a remnant of the house of Jacob, and concerning this my people [Lamanites] who shall be scattered by them; verily, verily, I say unto you, when these things shall be made known unto them [Gentiles] of the Father, and shall come forth of the Father from them unto you, [Lamanites], for it is wisdom in the Father that they [Gentiles] should be established in this land, and be set up as a free people by the power of the Father, that these things [Book of Mormon] might come forth from them unto a remnant of your seed, [Lamanites], that the covenant of the Father may be fulfilled which he hath covenanted with his people, O house of Israel; therefore, when these works, and the works which shall be wrought among you hereafter, [as recorded in the Book of Mormon], shall come forth from the Gentiles unto your seed which shall dwindle in unbelief because of iniquity; for it behooveth the Father that it should come forth from the Gentiles that he may show forth his power unto the Gentiles for this cause, that the Gentiles if they will not harden their hearts may repent and come unto me and be baptized in my name and know the true points of my doctrine, that they may be numbered among my people, O house of Israel; and when these things come to pass that thy seed [Lamanites] shall begin to know these things, [in Book of Mormon], it shall be a sign unto them that the work of the Father has already commenced unto the fulfilling of the covenant which he hath made unto the people who are of the house of Israel. And when that day shall come, it shall come to pass that kings shall shut their mouths, for that which had not been told them shall they see, and that which they had not heard shall they consider. For in that day, for my sake shall the Father work a work, which shall be a great and marvellous work among them; and there shall be among them who will not believe it, although a man shall declare it unto them. But behold, the life of my servant [Joseph the Seer.—Ed.] shall be in my hand; therefore they shall not hurt him, [Justin Martyr wrote to Cæsar, "you can kill, but not hurt us."—Apology Ch. 2], although he shall be marred because of them. Yet I will heal him, for I will shew unto them that my wisdom is greater than the cunning of the devil. Therefore it shall come to pass that whosoever will not believe in my words, who am Jesus Christ, whom the Father will cause him [Joseph the Seer.—Ed.] to bring forth unto the Gentiles, and shall give unto him power that he shall bring them forth unto the Gentiles, (it shall be done even as Moses said), they shall be cut off from among my people who are of the covenant."—9: 11, 12.

Are these objectors prepared to believe all these words of Jesus? If so, let us see if they also believe the following: "Thus said the Father unto Malachi, * * * Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me.

But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse, for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house; and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the fields, saith the Lord of Hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed, for ye shall be a delightful land, saith the Lord of Hosts. * * * These scriptures which ye [Nephites] had not with you, the Father commanded that I should give unto you, for it was wisdom in him that they should be given unto future generations."—12; 3, 7. Do these objectors consider these teachings to have been wise and profitable for the Nephite saints to whom Jesus gave them?

And do they think them equally wise and good for "future generations" of Saints, reckoning from the time when Jesus taught them to the Nephites?

Again; Jesus endorsed the writings of Moses and the prophets (Book of Nephi 5: 9; 7: 1), therefore those who believe the teachings of Jesus in the Book of Mormon must also endorse Moses and the prophets for just what they claim. Do these objectors do this?

Furthermore; Jesus says, "Wo unto him that shall deny the revelations of the Lord." (Book of Nephi 13: 6). Are these objectors justified in rejecting what that Seer who translated the Book of Mormon gave publicly, in a regular way to the church and the world as the revelations of Jesus Christ, with a "Thus saith the Lord?"

And to conclude; when God commends the "choice seer" by saying, "He shall be esteemed highly among the fruit of thy loins; * * * I will make him great in mine eyes; for he shall do my work. And he shall be great like unto Moses. * * * And out of weakness he shall be made strong, in that day when my work shall commence among all my people, unto the restoring thee, O house of Israel. * * * Behold, that Seer will the Lord bless; and they that seek to destroy him [in his official reputation and work] shall be confounded." When the Lord thus endorses and commends Joseph the Seer in this definite and pronounced manner, who that believes in the Book of Mormon has the authority to reject what that seer has, in a regular, public way given as the revelations of Jesus Christ? Jesus says of his servants, "He that receiveth you receiveth me. * * * He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward."—Matt. 10: 40, 41. But on the other hand he condemns those who reject his servants when they officiate in their office and calling saying, "Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm."

The Jews professed to believe in Moses, yet they rejected much of what both he and the prophets of God had written, and as a consequence they fell and were rejected of God.

LINCOLN AT PRAYER.

I HAD once been spending three weeks in the White House with Mr. Lincoln, as his guest. One night—it was just after the battle of Bull Run—I was restless and could not sleep. I was repeating the part which I was to take in a public performance. The hour was past midnight. Indeed, it was coming near to the dawn, when I heard low tones proceeding from a private room near where the president slept. The door was partly open. I instinctively walked in, and there I saw a sight which I shall never forget. It was the president kneeling beside an open Bible. The light was turned low in the room. His back was toward me. For a moment I was silent, as I stood looking in amazement and wonder. Then he cried out in tones so pleading and sorrowful, "O thou God that heard Solomon in the night when he prayed for wisdom, hear me; I can not lead this people, I can not guide the affairs of this nation without thy help. I am poor, and weak, and sinful. O God, who didst hear Solomon when he cried for wisdom, hear me, and save this nation!"—James E. Murdock.

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"Who hath not learned in hours of faith,
The truth to flesh and sense unknown,
That life is ever lord of death,
And love can never lose its own!"

"I MUST WORK JUST WHILE SHE SLEEPS."

SOME time since we were permitted to read a letter written by the mother of a beautiful little child who had only nestled in her heart one short year, when the angels came for her, and while there was joy in paradise there was sadness in the earth home, for the empty arms of the mother were stretched out with an intense yearning to clasp the form of her child again, and even the little ones, baby's brother and sister lifted their wondering eyes to her tear stained face asking, "Why could not baby have staid with us longer?" But peace, that peace which passeth all understanding, was in the mother's heart, and leaning upon the strong arm of her Elder Brother, she looked with eyes in which beamed the spirit of love and perfect submission into the face of her Father, saying, "Father, thy will be done."

"I can't realize," she wrote, "that our dear little one is gone! She had always been so well and good and happy, and it was so sudden that it seems as though she must be only asleep, as indeed I know she is, and I must work just while she sleeps, that I may be prepared to take her when the Lord puts her back into my arms." What an answer of mercy and love comes to the bereaved daughter from the heart of her loving Father:

"Daughter, I have tasted of this cup which is now pressed to your lips. I looked upon my sons and daughters, whom I had created, and my soul was filled with pitying love when I saw them wandering so far from me and none to bring them back or proclaim deliverance. My bowels were filled with compassion and my heart overflowed with yearnings for them. I looked upon my son, the only begotten Son of my bosom, and lifting his eyes to mine he said, 'Father send me. I will redeem them and the glory and honor shall be thine.' I saw the humiliation and the sorrow, the cruel mockings he must endure—his rejection and agony in that night when in Gethsemane's garden he must taste the bitter agony of a sinner lost. I heard his cry of pain upon the cruel cross, when for a time my face must be hidden from him, that he might know the bitter dregs of the cup he was pressing to his lips instead of my wandering children, that they might come back to me and have eternal life. I saw the dark dominion into which he must descend, there to wrench from the grasp of my bitterest enemy the keys of death and hell, and seeing all I bade him go. Mine own arm brought salvation, and look, my daughter, behold the glory which his life and death shall bring to pass! Fold not your hands and let not your cheeks be wet with tears. Your child is in my paradise, and heaven appointed instructors are preparing her for the work she is yet to do in helping my Son to perfect his kingdom. His work is not yet finished. It is finished he cried, but that was the atonement upon calvary, for the time is coming when he shall deliver up the kingdom unto me, and at that time it will be perfect. "Work just while she sleeps," for when he comes he will bring her with him, and if you would be prepared to meet them, work.

"Do you ask, my daughter, what there is to do? Behold the sorrow wrought by sin among my family. Angels and archangels, together with the spirits of the dead who have died in the Lord, are, with my Son, engaged in the work of redemption. Countless ages belong to me and I call upon all my sons and daughters to join me in this warfare against the enemies of my government, against the powers who have scattered the seeds of evil among my family, to come up to my help, even to my help against the mighty. You are enlisted under the blood stained banner of a King who has said to you, 'The friendship of this world is enmity to my Father,' they hated your Elder Brother and if you are like that brother they will hate you. What matter! Seek not the friendship of the world, but as you have found my kingdom seek to establish its righteousness and the Master will be with you even to the end.

"Behold, the mothers who sorrow as those who have no hope. Tell them, their little ones are with me. Show them how base is the faith which represents me as annihilating those sons and daughters whom I have created for my honor and glory, and whom I have redeemed through my Son. Say to the proud infidelity which mocks my weeping ones by the open graves of their loved, I am the resurrection and the life. He that liveth and believeth on me shall never taste of death, and he that doeth my will shall know of the truth of all the things I sent my Son to teach. By the mouth of my holy prophets I declared of my Son, 'I have anointed thee to preach the gospel to the poor, have sent thee to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and the recovering of sight to the blind; to set at liberty them who are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.' Oh, my daughter, how many are broken hearted, how many are led captive by Satan, my great arch enemy, at his will; how many are bruised by those who give them serpents instead of fish and stones when they cry out for the bread of life! The great work in which my Son is engaged will never be finished until the last son and daughter of Adam shall be saved."

"Work just while she sleeps." What mother does not know what that means! How the head has been bent and the needle has flashed in and out almost like the gleam of lightning, while every nerve in the body was strained that the task might be complete before the drowsy eyes should open into wakefulness and the little hands stretch out demanding mother's care. Mothers whose little ones have gone before you, that you may all so work for the Master until they come back to you or he calls you to them, is our earnest prayer. Let us each strive to labor with him who in "bringing many sons unto glory made the Captain of their salvation perfect through suffering." The world is full of misery because it is full of sin, and Jesus needs the faithful service of every one who has enlisted under his banner. Shall he have ours?

WE request as a favor that no one send money when sending his or her name as a subscriber for "Autumn Leaves." The prospect is not at all flattering that such a publication will ever exist much as we are persuaded of its need and of the ability of the church to support it. From the first we have rested the matter with the church and there we purpose to let it remain. When the friends of the "Home Column" say by their works, they want the publication, then we will notify subscribers to send in the money. Until then please don't send any.

ERRATA.—The letter from Beech Lane, Ont., in the last Herald, should have been signed, "Charlotte Pierce" instead of "Pier."

LAMONI, IOWA, JUNE 8th 1887.

St. BONIFACE, Manitoba, March 20th.

Dear Sister Frances:—I often think of you and your labor of love, and pray for you and all who are working for the good cause. The Home Column has been a great blessing to me already, and I often wish I could have had the good instructions of the Herald and Hope in my childhood and early youth. I wish the Hope could be enlarged again; it ought to be, and a paper printed for the young folks, and the sisters have a paper all to themselves. This is a good deal to wish for, but I have faith enough to think it will all be accomplished before very long. If I could do anything to help in any way I would, gladly. Hoping that the love of God will run from heart to heart among his handmaids, 'till it fills every heart and home, and that you may be greatly blessed, and not get weary in well doing.

I remain your sister,

LOIS A. DEWITT.

April 16th.—I wrote the above lines some time ago, intending to send them, but the same day, after I had written, we got the Herald, and when I saw in it that you would start a magazine for the sisters and the young, I was so glad I thought I would write again and tell you I will subscribe, and will help that good work all I can. My health being so poor has prevented me writing this before, but if my life is spared I will do what I can to help, for I am so thankful to see a move made in that direction. I have been praying for something of that kind for a good while. What a blessing the Sisters' Column has been to me, and I think a paper such as you propose will be splendid to give to those outside the church. I wish I had a hundred dollars to give, but if I am able to do any work this summer I may get some money.

My husband does not belong to the church, though he believes; won't you sisters, pray for him and me. I am alone here, have not seen any of my people nor any Saint for near two years; then I made a short visit home. I have had a consumptive cough for a long time, and other weakness, and this climate is very bad for me. I have to stay in the house most of the time, only during the summer months. French Catholics all around us, but I thank God for the blessings I have and want to be patient.

MANTENO, Iowa, Apr. 3d.

Sr. Frances:—I am much pleased with the "Home Column" think it is just what we need. Many times I have felt like writing a few lines, and as often have thought I couldn't write anything of interest.

I have been a member of this church since the fall of forty-one, and am still firm in the faith of its ultimate triumph; and hope to hold fast to the rod of iron, that Nephi saw, unto the end. I have seen many things to strengthen my faith, and also to try it, but the Lord has made a way for my escape. Do you ask how? By going to him who heareth in secret, with a contrite spirit asking strength to overcome and endure to the end. I have never been turned away empty, but have been upheld by his grace. He has promised to stand by us in six troubles and in the seventh not to forsake us. I have proved him in this and found him true, for which I truly thank his holy name. Hoping that we may be united and energetic in all things entrusted to our care, I remain your sister in Christ,

MARY A. JENKINS.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May.

Dear Sr. Frances:—Long years ago I first heard the glad news of the gospel in my native land, in Manchester, and it was as drink to a thirsty soul, or bread to one who was hungry. In the year 1865, with my husband and family I started for, as we then supposed, the Zion of our God; but we were satisfied to leave the pilgrims when we arrived at Wyoming, Nebraska, and find shelter and rest in this place. In 1866 the elders of the Reorganization came here, and soon after a branch was begun. I renewed my covenant with the Lord, and praise his holy name, I have been blessed many times by the goodness and mercy of my heavenly Father. I have had many trials and afflictions to pass through, and my sorrow has seemed like a river, well nigh to overwhelm me, but God hath been kind and mindful, and when I come to him in my distress, in faith and humility, he never turns me away without a blessing; for all of which I desire to be ever thankful. This may be the last I shall ever be able to do for the gospel work that I love so well, for let me assure you it is my meat and my drink to be doing something to help roll on this good cause. I am now old, feeble and poor, and can not go to meetings as formerly, so that my chief comfort is in reading the Herald as best I can with my failing eye-sight. I hope in the providence of God to find that rest and peace that has not been my portion in this life. I freely forgive all, as I desire God's pardon to come unto me. Your sister in Christ,

SARAH MATHERS.

Dear Sisters in Christ:—Some time ago I noticed an article addressed to the young sisters, on the subject of matrimony. This I believe was greatly needed; for on looking around us at the many unwise, and unhappy marriages, both in, and out of the church, we are led to think "there is something wrong somewhere." Our sister says, "Make mother your confidant." This is good, but not sufficient to risk your happiness upon. It is enough for those who believe that God has ceased to reveal his will to the children of men, to risk their happiness for life on human wisdom. But Saints, has God not said, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him."—Jas. 1: 15. Then, in a matter of such importance, be not rash or hasty, but lay your case before the God of heaven, in meekness asking for wisdom, and see if he does not grant unto you the desired wisdom. Be not afraid, dear young sisters, God has not shut his mouth forever; but his word is to us to-day as it was of old—"ask and you shall receive." In the meantime be obedient to your parents. Do your duty to them, though sometimes it may be a trial to you, and you shall have the approval of God, and a lasting satisfaction that you have done your part, which otherwise you can never have, for though in after days you may do the duties then surrounding you, yet in looking back would your words not be, "Oh that I had these days to live over again; I would make my parents happy by my devotion to them and my diligence in doing every duty?"

Hoping these words may encourage some one I remain,
A loving sister.

Correspondence.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., May 31st.

Editors Herald:—Your issue of the 28th inst., before me, and the communication of Bro. H. P. Brown read and re-read and carefully considered. I have only to say that he is correct. If my memory serves me, and I now understand him, his position as explained in this article is, in effect, the same as when I conversed with him in Oakland in October 1886, namely; that the bishop can not hold property legally in California by virtue of his office as provided for in "Articles of Incorporation."

This is all I intended to say in my communication to conference. I did not intend to say that Bro. Brown questioned the right of the Bishop to legally hold property "providing he becomes a sole corporator of a branch of the church."

If I was so ambiguous as not to be understood by the conference, I am sorry, but have no apology to make for having presented the matter to the body. The question arose in the mission over which I had oversight, and I thought it my duty to call attention to it. The point is just this: The church has in the past understood that the Bishop was by virtue of his office trustee-in-trust of all property belonging to the body, without further appointment. I am sure Bro. Brown will himself join in the desire to have this question settled. This is all I ask.

I intended to state his position exactly as he has expressed it in the following sentence: "But the Bishop, living in Michigan, who has not been made a sole corporator under the laws of the state of California, can not legally be a trustee-in-trust nor hold property belonging to the church." If the language I used conveyed any other idea than this it must be attributed to my lack of ability to express what I intend. Let the reader judge.

I may have made a similar statement in San Francisco though I do not remember it. If so I am sorry that it injured Bro. Brown "as a man, a lawyer, and High Priest of the church." I did not so intend. I respect him as a man, and honor his calling as a High Priest. As a lawyer I know nothing about him, nor am I competent to judge him. In conclusion allow me to say that Bro.

Brown's explanation of his position, touching this matter in his Herald article, under date of May 8th is as I have understood him from the beginning.

If I have publicly or privately conveyed any other idea I have not so intended, and I hope those thus deceived will stand corrected. So, Mr. Editor, there can be no controversy arise between us, nor is there any ill feeling upon my part. I am satisfied that upon due consideration Bro. Brown will recall the harsh statements made in regard to me; and that we with all God's children may unitedly labor for Zion's weal shall ever be my prayer.

Respectfully,

HEMAN C. SMITH.

DELOIT, Iowa, June 1st.

Bro. Joseph and Blair:—Since I wrote you, May 16th, there has been six more united with the church by baptism; all Sabbath School scholars but one; the good results of continued Sabbath School work, coupled with instructions given in Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 68:4. Bro. Peak continued his series of meetings until the 27th ult. The Saints were cheered, friends made to the work, and some are investigating.

Yours,
C. J. HUNT.

FREMONT, Neb., June 6th.

Herald Readers:—We are all striving to serve our Lord and Master. We have moved from Friend, Nebraska, to Fremont, and are once more united with the church, and are enjoying the blessings of meetings. All the Saints are well in this branch, and enjoying a good degree of the Spirit, and are blessed in temporal things. All are very busy at work.

BRO. & SR. D. BOWEN.

BOSTON, Mass., June 4th.

Dear Herald:—We are still alive in Boston, and now and then a stray sheep finds his way into the fold. I am thankful that amid the turmoil of life, I have found the pearl of great price, "better than rubies, better than gold." In this day of scepticism and infidelity, with the pulpit and press arrayed against the truth, it is a herculean task to make the people of a great city understand our position. But we trust in the near future to bring the light more prominently before the people. And as the opportunity for prosecuting the work increases, we hope there will be a corresponding increase of laborers. As I walk up and down streets of modern Athens, my spirit is stirred within me (as Paul's spirit was in him) to see the city given to idolatry: worshipping a god without body, parts or passion, (another name for nothing), also the god of fashion and lust. But there is no Mars hill, here brethren, where we can convince them from their own works that the gospel is restored in all its ancient purity and power. There is a Tremont Temple here, though, but it is not for the sect everywhere spoken against," as one of our missionaries can testify. But in spite of all the discouraging things we have to meet, we know that the gospel has come here to stay, and to spread until all the honest in heart are gathered in and Zion in all her beauty and grandeur will arise the pride of Saints, the envy of Satan; while Babylon falls to rise no more.

"And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." These things are not flights of fancy, but are the words of God and will have a fulfillment in our day. And while the world is sitting quietly with folded arms waiting for the millennial reign, Satan is gathering his forces and giving power unto his subjects of no mean character. The scripture is true that "we war not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers." Well, shall we lay down our armor and give up the fight? God forbid! Brethren, let us fight shoulder to shoulder, stand by the law that we may have the testimony, and always remember the words of our Master: "Fear not, little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

Yours in bonds,

GEORGE W. ROBLEY.

WEIR CITY, Kan., June 6th.

Editors Herald: I promised many of the Saints in and near Stewartsville to write them after my arrival here, but having been so busy at work, improving farm, planting crops, &c., having arrived here late, April 5th, I have not had time to write; I hereby state to all that I am pleased with my change, and with help of the Saints who turn out with teams here and help each other when in need, have my crops planted and in good condition, having had abundance of rain. The hearty welcome, and manifestations of love and good will of the Saints with whom I had dwelt formerly for thirteen years; also, hundreds of those not in the faith, is a great comfort to me, as an assurance that my former labors among them were not in vain, and strengthens me in my endeavor to renew those labors. My labors have not been confined to the farm, but almost every Sunday, and sometimes Saturday evening, I have been preaching in four different places; and find more calls than I can fill. The others are very busy at work, so they can not get around much at present. Brother Evan Davis has returned home; I have not seen him yet; he is to remain here this summer, I think. I went on Saturday some twelve miles west, among old friends; went in to a Christian Sunday School yesterday; preached after the school, and left appointments for two different places next Sunday.

Many wanted me to write them about facilities for getting homes here. Land is from ten to one hundred dollars an acre; but rent is very cheap. Mr. Jay Gould bought a great deal of land here a few years ago, and built a railway through. He will not rent for grain rent, and cash rent is a new thing here and they have to rent it very cheap. I passed many farms lying idle; some with fair house improvements; one eighty acres, good house, orchard, vines, pasture, all in cultivation, rented for $60. The next was vacant; the next 160 acres, adjoining depot, was rented for $75, an $8,000 farm. Some of it is in the settlement of the Saints. How long this will continue I don't know. Gould bought the land for the coal, paid high for the most of it. He requires no security for the rent, only the names of two on the note, so I am told, and the renters can pay it in work in the coal-mines. Many of his farms I had rather have to cultivate than what I paid three dollars an acre for last year. For particulars, I refer to Bro. Walter Taylor, Sherwin; Bro. Benjamin Jones, Cherokee; Bro. John T. Davis, Pittsburg, Kansas.

The Saints are feeling well here, and most are quite zealous in the good cause. May the Lord bless them; and especially the elders; more especially the young, with energy. Now when old and crippled for months so I can scarcely walk, I look back to the time when I would fill my saddle bags with tracts, strike out into a strange place, ride thirty to forty miles sometimes, to find those who had never heard, obtain a house, write upon my tracts the place, and hour of preaching, ride from house to house for miles, tell some, throw tracts to others and thus get a good audience the same night. Sister Dawson, of Ione, California, and many others will remember how they first heard until I almost wish I was young again that I might do more for the work; for with all my faults and infirmities, this work is worth more than all else to me and I still hope to do part in rolling it onward.

Your brother,

D. S. CRAWLEY.

NEW PROVIDENCE, Indiana,

June 6th, 1887.

Bro. Blair:—The work in our vicinity is in a prosperous condition. The Eden branch is in a better condition spiritually than it has been for some years. We have had some additions of late, good members, and we have good meetings, and the Saints are edified in the faith. We had an appointment at the Akers School-house, near Greenville, Floyd county, yesterday, June 5th, and we went and found the door and windows fastened, and two young men there to tell the crowd that services would not be there. Sr. Shamel lived near, and her doors were opened and Elder M. R. Scott and myself held three meetings, and the results were that I baptized one in the afternoon. At the confirmation meeting the Spirit of the Lord was present to a marked degree. So you see that the Lord moves the work in our vicinity, and we feel assured that it will roll on. Our determination is to move along in the work with energy and zeal. Pray for us and the efforts of the elders in our district, that wisdom may direct for the building up of the work. Your brother in the one faith,

JAMES M. SCOTT.

GRIZZLY FLAT, Cal., May 25th.

Brother Blair:—Have just returned from Eldorado, California, where I met Bro. Daley according to promise. I assisted him in holding ten meetings; prejudice seemed to give way to the truth, four being baptized. I think there will be enough come into the kingdom at that place to organize a branch soon. The Lord was with us. Yours in bonds,

WILLIAM O. SKINNER.

YOUNG CHRISTIANS.

Give every young Christian something to do. Make him feel that he must not be a cipher, but a good soldier of Christ Jesus. Impress upon him the truth that the Lord needs his service. Teach him to pray in the church and in the family. See that he has good books to read. Give him to understand that he must help bear the financial burdens of the congregation. Make him a missionary man from the hour he makes the good confession. A great deal depends upon starting right. A Christian is never more plastic than he is just after he turns to the Lord. It will save a church a world of trouble if it will look after its converts. Remember the words of Paul to the elders of the church at Ephesus: "Take heed unto yourselves, and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit has made you bishops, to feed the church of God, which he purchased with his own blood."—Christian Standard.

"NOTES OF THE SPICKARDSVILLE DEBATE."

BY JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

IN the "Christian Standard," published in Cincinnati, Ohio, beginning with December 11th, 1886, and ending with January 15th, 1887, (numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4), is what purports to be a correct account of the debate held between Elder H. C. Bronson of the Latter Day Saints, and J. Padget of the Disciples, last August, in Spickardsville, Missouri. The "Notes" were written up by Mr. Padget's moderator, A. L. Edwards, a minister of some notoriety in the "Church of Christ."

These articles are full of misrepresentation and falsehood. The whole thing appears to be a cunning and base attempt to redeem, if possible, what was lost in the discussion, and still any further inquiry into, and investigation of, the faith and doctrine of the Latter Day Saints.

Words and arguments which were never used during the debate, have been put into Elder Padget's mouth by the writer! Most of Elder Bronson's strongest arguments have been either left out entirely, or so changed and contorted as to make them appear very different from what they were as delivered by him. He is represented as saying that which he never said, and as being silent upon that which he plainly declared to the people.

The part performed by Elder I. N. White is so misrepresented as to cast reproach on him. That which was plain and easy to be understood, and which was fully explained at the time of the debate, is brought up again, and in such a way as to cast suspicion on one whose integrity and straight dealing are fully established in the minds of those who know him.

J. R. Lambert, Elder Bronson's moderator, is not only shamefully misrepresented, but actual falsehoods are published concerning him.

To refute all the mistakes and falsehoods found in these notes, would require the reproduction of the greater part of them; and I shall, therefore, content myself by presenting sufficient to illustrate how some men, who wear the "clerical cloth," propose to overthrow the faith of the Latter Day Saints.

I. The propositions, as originally agreed upon, and duly signed by the disputants, they read as follows: (1), "Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of which I, H. C. Bronson, am a member, in harmony with the New Testament Scriptures in doctrine and church organization?"

(2), Is the Church of Christ, of which

I, J. Padget, am a member, in harmony with the New Testament Scriptures in doctrine and church organization?"

In giving the first proposition, with the use of quotation marks, the words "of which I, H. C. Bronson, am a member," are left out, without anything to indicate it! Elder Edwards knew that the first proposition could not be made to apply to any other church than the one intended, even with these words left out; but he is now paving the way for a base fraud and imposition, in his rendering of the second proposition, which is as follows:

"Elder J. Padget affirmed the following proposition: 'Is the Church of Jesus Christ in harmony with the New Testament Scriptures in doctrine and church organization.'"

The very words, "of which I, J. Padget, am a member," so needful to identify the Campbellite organization, were coolly and fraudulently left out! But this is not all. After hearing Elder Bronson's argument on the name of the church, he has the daring to insert the name "Jesus" before Christ, which is not found in the original proposition! Why were these important changes made, and the proposition, in its changed form, submitted to the reader, (enclosed by quotation marks), as though it was the very original? No wonder that such men can dogmatically affirm, in opposition to scripture, good reason, and other competent evidence, that the true origin of the Book of Mormon is the "Spaulding Story;" and that the revelations and prophecies of Joseph Smith are "lying frauds." Jesus truly said: "For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." (Matt. 12:34). The reasons for this piece of unholy work, must be apparent to all who were acquainted with the situation. (a) Elder Padget had spent nearly two days in trying to prove that the Church of Jesus Christ, established in New Testament times, came into existence in fulfillment of prophecy, and is "in harmony with the New Testament!" Elder Bronson begged and pleaded for him to come to the proposition; but he would not, till the "Restored" Campbellite Church was compared with the New Testament, by the negative, Elder Bronson. Like Clark Braden with his pet propositions, with which he proposed to destroy our faith, he would not move "one hair's breadth."

When the notes were looked over, it was evidently seen that the argument and evidence were not at all suited to the proposition; but rather than confess it, like an honest man, (saying nothing of a "Christian," who is called by that holy and "new name,") the proposition is changed to suit the argument! (b) By this change, the Latter Day Saints are placed in the ridiculous attitude of denying that the New Testament church is in harmony with the New Testament!! I suppose this was considered a necessary safeguard for the (so-called) "Church of Christ."

II. We will now notice some of the false statements and misrepresentations of the notes "numbers I, II, III and IV."

(1), It is not true that the object of I.

N. White and his brother's visit to Spickardsville, "was a discussion," whatever Elder Padget may have been informed. They went there to visit their friends and preach the gospel, on their return home from the "General Conference." They simply signified their willingness to debate the issues existing between the two churches.

(2), Referring to our people, Mr. Edwards says:

"They are the 'Reorganized Saints, disclaiming any connection whatever with the 'Salt Lake Saints.' By many this is called in question. True or false, the teaching of the 'Reorganized Saints' is the same as the Salt Lake branch, except polygamy, which they deny."

All who are posted know that polygamy is but one of the many important differences between the faith and doctrine of the "Salt Lake Saints," and that of the "Reorganized Saints." Does Mr. Edwards believe that if polygamy is the only difference, they are about the same as one? In the "Braden and Kelley Debate," Mr. Kelley stated that he was ready to prove that there is more difference between the faith of the "Brighamites" and "Josephites," than there is between the "Brighamites" and "Campbellites."

(3). Mr. Edwards says that "he [Bronson] defined his proposition by reading a statement from a book of tracts." But the proposition was largely defined before the Epitome of our faith was read. Mr. Edwards was not there at the opening of the discussion.

(4). Speaking of the principles of the gospel, (Heb. 6: 1-3), Mr. Edwards says: "No stress was laid on any of them, except baptisms." This is not true. It is true, however, that more stress was laid on "baptisms," and the "laying on of hands," than on the other four principles, because these were the issues properly in dispute.

(5). "When the character of Joe Smith, Jr., as the founder of the Church of Latter Day Saints, was under discussion, claiming he was inspired to lay the foundation of the church, Bronson said:—'The character of Joe Smith has nothing to do with the proposition we are discussing.' Afterward, when his attention, and that of the audience, was called to the statement, the imposture, the lawless and criminal doings, Joe Smith's revelations, he (Bronson) denied saying anything of the kind, but said it did not make any difference what 'his character was as the prophet of God.'"

The above quotation from the "Notes," is a jumbled up mess of stuff, containing a vile misrepresentation of what Elder Bronson said. It was done in order, I presume, to cast reproach on him and the people he represents. Elder Bronson did say, and that truly, as any one may see, "The character of Joseph Smith has nothing to do with the proposition we are discussing—'Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, of which I, H. C. Bronson, am a member, in harmony with the New Testament Scriptures, in doctrine and church organization,' is the only question before the house." This assertion he never denied. He also stated that so far as the proposition under discussion was concerned, it made no difference what was the character of Joseph Smith "as a prophet of God." At the same time he signified our willingness to defend the prophetic claims of Joseph Smith, under any properly worded proposition.

(6). Mr. Edwards says that Bronson "never told the audience, neither could he be induced to tell what the gifts and powers are." The fact is, Elder Bronson read the Epitome of our faith in its entirety; and in addition to the quotation used by Mr. Edwards, and in the same paragraph is contained the following: "Viz, the gifts of faith, discerning of Spirits, prophecy, revelation, visions, healing, tongues, and the interpretation of tongues, wisdom, charity, brotherly love, etc." Elder Bronson also gave the proof-texts, fully sustaining his position on the perpetuity of the gifts. He read from the Bible on the subject of the gifts, and mentioned them, to that extent that Elder Padget accused him of getting all his proof from the 12th chapter of 1st Corinthians.

(7). Mr. Edwards represents Elder Bronson as saying the following:

"He stated that the Church of Christ was destroyed. That wicked men disorganized it. That it went into the wilderness."

What he did say was, that "the church went into the wilderness and became disorganized."

(8). Here is another falsehood of Mr. Edwards'.

"When asked to tell who were to perform the miracles named in Mark xvi: 18-20, those who did the preaching, or those who heard, believed and obeyed the preaching, to whom salvation was promised, he would not; neither did he answer during the entire debate."

Elder Bronson said, repeatedly, that the signs mentioned in Mark, 16th chapter, were to follow those who believed and obeyed the gospel, as preached by the apostles.

(9), Here is another one of Mr. Edwards' misrepresentations; but to those who will stop and think, and who are not blinded by prejudice, it carries with it its own refutation. He represents Bronson as using the following in proof of modern inspiration:

"Paul says: 'No man can say that Jesus is the Christ, but by the Holy Spirit.' This was answered thus. Demons believed, and confessed him, saying: 'Thou art the Son of God.' Bronson was very urgently asked to tell the audience who laid hands on them to impart the gift of the Holy Spirit. (Matt. viii. 29; Mark iii. 11)."

To Padget's bluster about demons, Bronson replied as follows: "The statement of Paul is, 'No man,' (not Demons), 'can say that Jesus is the Christ,'" &c. Mr. Edwards conveniently left this out, thus presuming on the ignorance of the reader.

(10), Here is another downright falsehood, without any excuse for him who penned it:

"Upon the baptism of the Holy Spirit and its endowments, promised to the twelve apostles, as his witnesses from the beginning, Bronson was asked, if not a witness how could he claim, not having been associated with the twelve whom Christ chose, any of the endowments of the Spirit? To the close of the debate he was as dumb as Dagon before the 'Ark of God.'"

Elder Bronson proved that all, who obey the gospel, are entitled to the baptism of the Spirit, and are his (Christ's) witnesses by virtue of the testimony of the Holy Spirit. The statement that he was "dumb as Dagon," &c., is false.

(11), Mr. Edwards represents Elder Bronson as "having stated that none can receive the Holy Spirit until they were immersed in water." This was not Bronson's position. He stated that the reception of the Holy Ghost, previous to baptism, is the exception, not the rule, as given in the New Testament.

(12) Here is another blunder.

"All know that Matthias was chosen to fill the place from which Judas, by transgression, fell. Mr. Bronson said he was chosen to keep the quorum of the twelve full. Three more were chosen, so that Peter, James and John could fill their places as presidents. They were Paul, Sylvanus and Timothy. He said these were chosen, but he utterly failed to prove they were chosen for such a purpose."

Elder Bronson's position was that Paul, Barnabas, and James, the Lord's brother, (see Gal. 1:19) were chosen. That if Peter, James and John, had not been taken out of the quorum, it would have been a quorum of fifteen instead of twelve.

(13). We now come to Padget's negative arguments on the first proposition.

"Second. Argument on covenants. It is stated in the Book of 'Doctrine and Covenants,' I, the Lord, do away with all former covenants, and make this my new and everlasting covenant with you, my servant, Joseph Smith.' If all former covenants are done away with, the church he represents can not be in harmony with the New Testament, in any sense whatever."

In connection with the above we quote the following words from Elder Padget's 4th argument. "On page 103 of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants it is positively stated that all old covenants are done away." Elder Bronson read the entire revelation cited, which effectually exposed the interpretation put upon it by Elder Padget. But as some good points? must be furnished for the reader, the passage has been interpolated and changed in a most shameful manner, and thus it is made to appear that Padget made a strong point against us! The revelation, as was shown at the time by Elder Bronson, was given "in consequence of some desiring to unite with the church without rebaptism, who had previously been baptized." The passage cited reads as follows: "Behold, I say unto you, that all old covenants have I caused to be done away in this thing, and this is a new and everlasting covenant; even that which was from the beginning. Wherefore, although a man should be baptized an hundred times, it availeth him nothing; for you can not enter in at the straight gate by the law of Moses, neither by your dead works; for it is because of your dead works that I have caused this last covenant, and this church to be built up unto me; even as in days of old. Wherefore, enter ye in at the straight gate, as I have commanded you, and seek not to counsel your God. Amen."

I have given the entire revelation, so that the reader may compare for himself. The first sentence is what Mr. Edwards claims to present, surrounding it with quotation marks, and giving no indication that anything has been left out! In the original there are thirty-five words; but as Mr.

Edwards gives it there are but twenty-three! Only eight words of the original sentence are found in Mr. Edwards' quotation (?). Thus he has left out twenty-seven words, and interpolated fifteen!! Surely, the Latter Day Saints ought to "throw up the sponge," and join the Christian Church when they see this telling argument which Elder Padget is represented as having made against their faith!

(14), The Book of Mormon was not in discussion. When the Polygamy revelation was introduced as evidence, Elder Bronson showed that it is not, and never has been, any part of our faith; that is was not made public even to the people of Utah, till August 29th, 1852, eight year after the death of Joseph Smith. He also showed up "Hell on Earth," the work from which it was read.

(15), Elder Padget is represented as having said: "The Latter Day Saints are many centuries too young to be in teaching, organization and practice with the New Testament." Mr. Edwards fails to tell us here, that Elder Bronson showed that we simply claim to represent the "Restored" Primitive Church; and that as an organization, we are but a few years younger than the "Restored" Church of A. Campbell.

(16), I quote again from the "Notes:"

"This introduced the character of Joe Smith, Jr., into the discussion. To prove his character the revelation on polygamy was from him, although these Mormons deny any such revelation, and say they do not believe in the institution, yet they have his revelation on this subject in their Book of Doctrine and Covenants."

The last statement of this quotation is false, made out of whole cloth. Mr. Padget had the Doctrine and Covenants, and used it during the discussion, and if the Polygamy revelation was in it, why did he read it from John's "Hell on Earth?" This revelation, as Elder Bronson showed, was not found in any but the Brighamite revised edition of the Doctrine and Covenants, and not even in that till 1876, when the article on Marriage was thrown out, and the Polygamic revelation inserted in its place. Is this the way Christian ministers propose to save the flock and down the Latter Day Saints?

(17), Mr. Edwards represents Elder Bronson as saying the following: "Mr. Bronson admitted during the discussion that it was difficult, very difficult, to find male members enough to fill all the offices of the church." This, like every other wilful falsehood, was evidently written to mislead and prejudice the reader. These men could not give better evidence to the thoughtful and unbiased, that they are opposing the truth, than is found in their manner of attack. Elder Bronson never made any such admission, and the statement is entirely untrue. Elder Padget did admit, however, that all the members in their church, male and female, are Kings and Priests!

(18). After Mr. Edwards has given what purports to be a large number of Elder Padget's affirmative arguments on the second proposition, he presents a statement in brackets, part of which I quote: "I will say just here that Bronson presented no counter arguments," etc. The reason of this is plainly indicated in the beginning of this criticism. Padget was clear off the proposition. Elder Bronson plainly told the people that he was not there to disprove that the New Testament Church was established in fulfillment of prophecy, and is in harmony with the New Testament. Elder Padget kept his church in the wilderness, or somewhere else, just as long as he could. And when Elder Bronson brought it out by using A. Campbell's "Christian System," they were terribly abused! The "doctrine of Christ held up to ridicule? O yes; no doubt the angels wept when that "Christian System" was read! If it is the same pure doctrine of Christ, why did not Elder Padget defend it? Is it so self-evidently holy that it needs no defense, and should not be examined?

(19). Elder Bronson is shamefully misrepresented on the names of the churches, both on the first and second propositions. On the first, he claimed the name to be "The Church of Jesus Christ." "Reorganized," and "Latter Day Saints," to be distinctive terms, just as we would say, "The late Mrs. Jones, wife of the lawyer." These terms would not make Mrs. Jones the wife of any other man. (The illustration is mine). He quoted Ephesians, 3: 14, 15. Mr. Edwards gives Elder Padget's argument and evidence on the name as follows:

"Eighth argument was on the names. They were during Christ's personal ministry, and for a time after the church was inaugurated on the day of Pentecost, called disciples. A prophecy must be fulfilled. The name was according to prophecy. It must be a divine name. "The Gentiles shall see thy righteousness and all kings thy glory: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name." (Isa. lxii: 2). It was given at the right time. This prophecy could not be fulfilled before the Gentiles received the gospel. Acts, x: 1-48: "And it came to pass that even for a whole year they were gathered together with, or in, the church, and taught much people; and that the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." In this name we have the name of the Bridegroom, of which the church is the bride. Agrippa recognized the name Christian as the one by which the church and its members were known."

Elder Bronson showed there is no proof that inspiration ever authorized the name Christian. He stated that it is only found three times in the New Testament. That the followers of Christ were usually called Saints, or disciples. That Elder Padget simply assumed the "new name" of Isa. 62: 2, to be Christian. He showed from Rev. 2: 17; 3: 12, that the "new name" was still future from John's day, and it is not revealed what that name shall be. He said: "We have just as good a right to assume that it will be 'Latter Day Saints,' as you have to assume that it will be 'Christian.'"

I have overlooked one point in number II. which I now introduce by quotation. Elder Padget is represented as delivering the following little harangue:

"Mr. Bronson, here are persons who have lost an eye, a limb, are diseased hopelessly for life; some wounded and maimed. Do like Peter and John at the Beautiful Gate, heal them. Mr. Lambert, their moderator, the twelfth and last apostle, you give the signs of your apostle-work, special miracles, to demonstrate your claim. Do it, and we will then believe you. This debate will close immediately. Unless you do we will not only disbelieve all you claim, but this people will know you are impostors, liars and deceivers. 'False apostles, deceitful workers, transforming yourselves into angels of light, trying to make believe.' If you are the apostles of Christ give the proof here and now. You know you have been tried, and, like those in Rev. 2:2, who said they were apostles, you have been found liars. Your proposition is false, your claims are false, your church a fraud—an imposture of the basest character.' The effect of this was marked and impressive."

All that part which refers to "Mr. Lambert" was not spoken; and yet we are gravely told that "the effect of this was marked and impressive!" Mr. Edwards gives himself away by representing Elder Padget as addressing Mr. Lambert, and at the same time using the personal pronoun "their," in the third person, and informing him, or the audience, (neither one of which was needed), that "Mr. Lambert" was "their moderator," &c. All this shows that the language was not spoken to the audience, but manufactured afterwards in order to mislead the reader who was not in attendance at the debate. When, and by whom, did Mr. Edwards learn that Lambert is "the twelfth and last apostle?" Neither he nor his brethren even claimed it. But as the greater part of the above quotation (?) has been manufactured since the debate, I will offer a few words in reply. (a) Mr. Lambert was not on trial; it was the faith and doctrine of the church. (b) If Elder Padget could have possibly proved the claims of the church to be false, by the Bible, there would have been no necessity of going any farther, and it is fair to presume there would have been no disposition to do so. (c) What right has any man to refuse to believe Bible claims unless God will miraculously manifest his power just when and where he shall dictate? (d) We challenge one single example from the New Testament, where either Christ or his apostles wrought a miracle to gratify unbelieving sign-seekers. However, the New Testament does show that this was a favorite means of attack with wicked men and the devil. (e) The fact that the Latter Day Saints will not undertake to gratify these sign-seekers is evidence that they are not that wicked and false power described in 1 Cor. 11:13-15; Matt. 24:24; Rev. 13:11-14; 16:13, 14; 19:19, 20. These scriptures describe a miracle-working and anti-christian power, which will make converts by means of those miracles which they will have power to do. Edwards & Co. say we are destitute of this power. Therefore, their own words and our refusal are evidence that we are not that false, counterfeit, anti-christian power represented in the word of God. So far, then, we are in harmony with the New Testament.

If the Latter Day Saints claim the promises and blessings of the New Testament, and do not enjoy them, does that justify anybody, especially Christian ministers, in denying a portion of God's word?

(21) We now close, on the last proposition, with a little speech made by Mr. Edwards, but now put into the mouth of Elder Padget.

"Finally, we believe what Christ and the apostles taught. We obey what they commanded; claim all the blessings they promised, We wear the same name; will not accept of any other; will not accept any addition to their word. We have the same officers. We observe the same ordinances the Church of Christ did in the days of the apostles. Therefore the Church of Christ that had all these now is in harmony with the New Testament Scriptures, in doctrine and church organization."

(a) Elder Bronson showed that they only believe a part of what "Christ and the apostles taught." (b) He showed that instead of claiming "all the blessings they promised," they persistently deny a number of them. (c) He showed that they "wear the same name" which was given to the early followers of Christ by way of reproach. That so far as the name of the church is concerned, they do not wear the name authorized by the angel, ("thou shalt call his name Jesus," Matt. 1:21), but only that other part—Christ. (d) He showed that they do not "have the same officers," only by claiming dead apostles and dead prophets, in their church; and that if dead apostles and prophets would do, why not dead elders, deacons, &c. (e) He showed that they reject the "laying on of hands" as an ordinance of the gospel, although it is stated by Paul to be one of the "principles of the doctrine of Christ;" and was practiced by the apostles, and by the early disciples down to the close of the third century. (d) The last sentence of this closing speech, gives Mr. Edwards away. It is in harmony with his revised and changed proposition; but when considered in connection with the proposition under discussion, it is seen that it contains neither good sense nor logic.

III. Under this head, we will examine Mr. Edwards' "Addenda." These delectable (?) additions to the "Notes" are so full of misrepresentation and falsehood that we give them entire:

"ADDENDA.

"It is necessary that the following facts be added to what has already been written:

"I. During the discussion of the first proposition, when Joe Smith's character as prophet was under consideration, the Mormons trying to prevent anything said about Smith, his pretended revelations, his practices, and his character, Mr. Bronson said: 'If Mr. Padget wants to discuss the prophetic calling and inspiration of Joseph Smith, Jr., when this debate is over, we will discuss the question with him to his heart's content.' The next day the following proposition was submitted: 'Does the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, contain evidences of fiction and falsehood? Was Joe Smith a deceiver, an impostor and a liar?' He was told: 'We will affirm this proposition, You can deny this proposition now.' He did not. This led to a correspondence as to a proposition involving the character of Joe Smith.

"II. Next morning Joe R. Lambert read a letter addressed to the elders of the Spickardville congregation. He asked for a division of the proposition into three instead of one; that the discussion be held at Lamon, Iowa, or at St. Joseph, Missouri; that we affirm the proposition then under discussion in affirmative form.

"That King James's version of the Bible be standard work. On American antiquities, all other evidence to be received on its merits. He said they wanted a representative man, as much as to say Bro. Padget was not qualified to discuss the questions. The answer returned to this and one other letter written by them was: 1. The challenge was given at and for Spickardville, Missouri. 2. Bro. Padget was challenged personally. The propositions would be discussed at that place. They could deny, or it would be accepted as a square back-down. That we have no authority to arrange for a discussion at St. Joseph, or anywhere else. That the proposition was an affirmative. They could deny or let it alone. 3. As to what will be accepted as standards, we would have something to say. It was not their right, neither their privilege to dictate what should be standards. 1st. All that is regarded by the learned world as authority would be standard evidence including King James's version and all other translations, history, and all evidence bearing on the questions, including the literature of Mormonism, will and must be admitted as evidence in the discussion. 2nd. As they intimated the kind of man they desired to debate, we have something to say on the question. We will accept on your part only such a man as is fully endorsed by your church, who is (1) A fair and candid man; (2) Honorable in every sense of the word; (3) One who believes what he preaches and teaches; (4) Practices what he teaches and preaches by signs, miracles, and divers gifts of the Holy Spirit. This is the kind of man we demand. No other need apply.

"IV. Mr. Bronson's last speech was a tissue of misrepresentation. After the debate closed, Bro. William Martin asked Joseph R. Lambert, the following questions:

"Do your people when they are sick send for the physician?" Mr. Lambert said they did. Bro. Martin asked, "Then the laying on of hands will not heal among you?" Not always, by any means. "Are you not an apostle?—Why then do you not heal them instead of sending for the doctor?" No answer to this was given. Did Mr. Bronson not misrepresent us in his statements? Joseph R. Lambert, the twelfth apostle chosen, said in answer to this question: 'I must say as an honest man, he did. He did not state the truth about your people, neither in the closing speech, on the first or last propositions, and many times during the discussion.' To a full house the admissions of Mr. Lambert were stated. The Mormons occupied the M. E. Church in the town. Sunday night they were told they could not use the house, by a decided vote. Early Monday morning the preachers and apostles of Mormonism left. Did not accept the proposition and terms of debate proposed to test their truth and sincerity. Much good will result from the discussion.

M. L. EDWARDS.

"CAMERON, Ind."

It will be noticed that Mr. Edwards regards it as "necessary" that the following facts be added to what has already been written." Why he considered it necessary may be largely determined by the character of the work he has already done. Mr. Edwards knew that many of the statements of his "Addenda" were not "facts," when he penned that word. We will notice his statements in their order.

(1). The reason why the "Mormons" tried to prevent anything being said about Smith, his revelations, character, &c., was because they had nothing to do with the proposition under discussion. The (so called) Mormons were anxious that the faith and doctrine of the church should be properly compared with the Bible; but the "Campbellites" tried to prevent this, to a great extent, both on the first and second propositions. The proposition referred to was presented by Elder Padget while he was on his feet making a speech. He wanted Elder Bronson to accept it right then and there, or admit that he had backed out! The proposition is not given correctly. The original, which I have in my possession, reads as follows:

PROPOSITION THIRD.

Does the "Book of Mormon" and "Book of Doctrine and Covenants" contain the evidence of fiction and falsehood?

And are we justified in rejecting Joseph Smith, Jr., as a false prophet and base deceiver?

J. PADGET, affirms.

(2). Under this number, Mr. Edwards purports to give the substance of the correspondence which ensued; but, as usual, he is found to be guilty of interpolation and misrepresentation, as may be seen from the original correspondence, which, fortunately, I preserved. First we give Elder Lambert's reply to Padget's proposition:

SPICKARDSVILLE, Missouri,

August 19th, 1886.

To the Elders of the Church of Christ now in attendance at the Spickardsville debate; Gentlemen:—In answer to the proposition for discussion, and the statements made by Elder J. Padget, on yesterday, we present the following: As we, not you, are the challenging party, we claim the right to formulate propositions covering the issues between us. Elder Padget's proposition is neither comprehensive nor fair; and while naturally and properly an affirmative, is, as stated by him, in negative form.

We offer you the following propositions, which fairly affirm that to which you so strongly object.

1st. Is the Book of Mormon a true record, and does it contain a revelation of God's will to man?

2d. Are the purported revelations found in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants of divine origin?

3d. Was Joseph Smith, the reputed founder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, a prophet of God?

We will affirm the above propositions with any representative man of your church, whom you will properly endorse, but would prefer to meet a man of first class ability. We also invite and challenge you to affirm, at the same time and place that the above propositions are discussed, the same proposition that you are affirming in this debate.

As it is not our privilege to set the time and place of holding the debate, but as we have come from our homes to meet you here, we ask, as a courtesy, that you appoint Lamoni, Iowa, or St. Joseph, Missouri, as the place at which said debate is to be held.

On the first propositions, King James' translation of the Bible, and standard works on American Antiquities shall be the standards of evidence. On the second and third propositions, King James' translation of the Bible shall be the leading standard of evidence. All other evidence, on any or all of the propositions, to be received upon its merits, subject to the rules governing such testimony before our civil courts.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

By this letter it is not difficult to see that we have been shamefully, and, it would appear, wilfully misrepresented.

Second, we give the reply to the above, signed by the Elders of the Christian Church, at Spickardsville.

SPICKARDSVILLE, Mo.,

August 19th, 1886.

Elder Joseph R. Lambert; Dear Sir:—In as much as we agreed to give you a written answer to yours of same date; in answer we would say: 1st, That as Elder J. Padget offered to read from the "Book of Doctrine and Covenants" and other books, which involve the character of Joseph Smith, Jr., the authenticity, and inspiration of the Book of Mormon, and Book of Doctrine and Covenants. Elder Bronson objected, stating that the authenticity of those books and the character of Joseph Smith, Jr., had nothing to do with the proposition under discussion. Elder Bronson challenged Elder Padget to debate a proposition involving the authenticity of said books, the character of Joseph Smith, Jr.

Elder Padget has submitted a proposition. It is clearly an affirmative, not a negative proposition. He will affirm it. You can deny it.

Regarding the propositions submitted by you, we say, Combine the three in one proposition, and we will accept it.

2d. As to the place of holding the debate, we have not now any authority to arrange for a debate either at Lamoni or St. Joseph.

But as Elder Bronson challenged Elder Padget here in public to debate such a proposition: "Stating that he would debate such a proposition until Elder Padget was tired of it." If you refuse to discuss the proposition submitted by Elder Padget, before this people with him, the truth of the proposition will be conceded. It is too late to talk about a first class debate when Elder Bronson threw the challenge directly at Elder Padget. We do not consider that there is any contemptible trap in the proposition submitted. It covers all the ground.

3d. As to rules and what will be standards we desire to have something to say about them. It can be arranged when propositions, time, and place are all settled. We say here however, every thing that bears legitimately upon the propositions ought to be used.

4th. We further say, when you can furnish a man who is fair, honorable, candid and believes what he preaches and practices what he teaches, we will accept your proposition.

5th. We further say that we endorse Elder J. Padget as a man, a gentleman and a Christian. We are are willing to trust our cause in his hands.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN T. WYATT, }
WM. J. JOHNSON, } Elders.
J. O. THOMPSON, }

Third, we present Elder Lambert's second letter.

SPICKARDSVILLE, Missouri,

August 20th, 1886.

Messrs. Jno. F. Wyatt, Wm. J. Johnson and J. O. Thompson; GENTLEMEN:—In reply to your communication of the 19th inst., would say, we are, and always have been, willing to affirm what we believe; but nothing more. We do not propose that you shall represent our faith, and then demand us to affirm it, as formulated by you.

Our propositions fairly and fully express our belief with regard to the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith. We do not propose to have them jumbled up into one proposition in such a manner as to give you every opportunity to throw dirt, while we are prevented from using the strongest evidences upon which these propositions rest. We have already stated our objections to your proposition, and this by no means concedes the truth of what is contained therein. But, gentlemen, when you refuse to meet propositions formulated by those who alone have the right to define our faith, upon the subjects named, you thereby concede either that the propositions are true or that although untrue, the Christian Church (commonly called Campbellite) is not able, or willing to refute them.

If you wish to discuss our belief with regard to spiritual gifts, you will have ample opportunity while negating the propositions which we have submitted to you, as both books named teach their perpetuity, and so did Joseph Smith.

There is no organization of your church at Lamoni. Why can you not hold the debate there? We will furnish a large church-house which will seat about one thousand persons, and board and lodge your debater and moderator free, throughout the whole discussion. Come, gentlemen, and convert about five hundred of us from the error of our ways!

Elder Bronson did not agree to debate these questions with Elder Padget. He addressed Elder Padget as a representative of your faith; and he said we, not I, will meet you on properly worded propositions, with reasonable notice of time, &c.

Why should you ask us to affirm one item of the doctrine of the church we represent (i. e. spiritual gifts), at this place, when we are just closing a debate in which an examination of all the doctrine of the church has been involved? Are you dissatisfied with the results of the present debate? and have you concluded that all the doctrine of the church is correct except spiritual gifts? Again; why should you require us to affirm four propositions while you affirm but one?

All the endorsement we ask for your man is that he should be of a good moral character, and a proper representative of your faith. We are willing to endorse ours in like manner. As to fairness and honesty in dealing with the issues between us, it would be like a fertile spot in a desert to find one of your ministers who will extend to us the same degree of both that we are, and have been willing to extend to you.

Yours for the truth as it is in Christ,

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

I will say right here, by way of explanation, that Mr. Edwards' reference to a "contemptible trap," and Mr. Lambert's references to "spiritual gifts" &c., were called forth by remarks made to the congregation by Edwards and Lambert.

Fourth, we close the correspondence by presenting a letter signed by Elder Padget. We made no further reply, because we could plainly see that they did not propose to be fair and honorable in dealing with the faith and claims of the church. Here is Elder Padget's letter.

SPICKARDSVILLE, Missouri,

August 23d, 1886.

Eld. Jos. R. Lambert; Sir:—All we have to say in answer to yours of Aug. 20th is simply and briefly this:

1st. Eld. Bronson did challenge Eld. Padget. We claim the same privilege you do. You can debate the proposition here where the challenge was made. We will not go elsewhere at present. You can then affirm a proposition embracing all you affirm or claim for Joseph Smith Jr., the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants.

2d. It is understood that in the discussion of the propositions all evidence history and the literature of Mormonism will and must be admitted. All standards accepted as such, by the learned world, must and will be allowed, by all, pertaining to the questions under debate.

Eld. J. PADGET.

For the Elders of the Church of Christ, Spickardsville, Missouri.

(3), This is numbered 4, in Mr. Edwards' "Addenda," but it should be 3. It is not true that "Mr. Bronson's last speech was a tissue of misrepresentations." It would be far nearer the truth to say that "Elder Bronson, in summing up, presented the weakness and unscriptional character of the claims made for the "Church of Christ" in a very strong light.

Now comes the climax, which was evidently intended to give tone to the whole thing. Let all give ear to the able (?) manner in which this servant of the Lord (?) closes up this important piece of work, by which the inhabitants of the earth are to know that the Latter Day Saints are base deceivers and hypocrites, and their faith a "lying fraud!" I refer to the purported conversation between "Joseph R. Lambert" and "William Martin." Let the reader examine it carefully, with our criticism thereon.

(a). To Mr. Martin's first question I replied, in substance as follows: "Some of our people send for the doctor; others depend entirely upon the ordinance of the church."

(b). Mr. Martin asked: "When you lay on hands and anoint with oil, do the sick always get well?" I answered, "No; not always." I then proceeded to show him that in New Testament times they were not all healed; that those primitive saints died, and that they had sick among them. (1 Cor. 11:30; Mark 6:5,6; Luke 4:23,27; 1 Tim. 5:23; 2 Tim. 4:20). Mr. Martin said he had witnessed some of these administrations to the sick by our elders, and he could not see that it did any good. I answered, "That may be, but we know that it does; and that the gift of healing is in the church."

(c). Mr. Edwards represents Mr. Martin as saying thus: "Are you not an apostle? Why then do you not heal them instead of sending for the doctor?" Mr. Edwards then says: "No answer to this was given." No, and for the best of reasons, namely: neither one of the questions was asked!

(d). Mr. Martin then asked me if I did not think Mr. Bronson had misrepresented them. I replied, "I do not know; possibly he made some things a little too strong—a man is apt to in the heat of discussion." I then told him that I believed we ought to be careful to not misrepresent; that Elder Padget had greatly misrepresented some parts of our faith. Mr. Martin said, "Well, we believe in faith, in repentance and confession." To which I replied, "Yes; I know you do."

That which Mr. Edwards represents me as saying, in this connection, is as false as though it had come directly from the lower regions. In looking over my diary for 1886, I find the following: "Saturday, August 21st, 1886; last day of debate; good attendance and good interest; the victory is complete; Bro. Bronson did well, and was blest of God; another victory over our old combatants." Now, I ask, is it reasonable to believe that just previous to making this private record concerning Elder Bronson's part, and the result of the entire conflict, I had made the humiliating concessions which Mr. Edwards represents me as making to the entire congregation? Let the reader judge. Mr. Edwards, with all his cunning, has caught himself in his own trap. In previous notes he has represented me as a wilful deceiver, lying hypocrite, "false apostle," &c.; but now he represents me as having the honest courage to face Elders Bronson and White, and the whole congregation, and of saying to them "as an honest man," that Bronson "did not state the truth about your people," &c. To the thoughtful it will be apparent that this whole thing refutes itself.

(e). "To a full house the admissions of Mr. Lambert were made." I have already shown that "the admissions" were never made. Concerning "a full house," &c., I have only this to say: "The latter part of the debate, as all know who attended it, was held in the grove. The conversation between Mr. Martin and myself was a private one, had after the congregation was dismissed.

(f). Mr. Edwards says that the "Mormons occupied the M. E. Church in the town. Sunday night they were told they could not use the house, by a decided vote." The last statement is another one of Mr. Edwards' many falsehoods. By invitation we occupied the M. E. Church. I spoke Sunday morning and afternoon, and Elder Bronson Sunday night, to large and attentive audiences. Not one word of objection came to our ears. Right here let me say, it was evidently the favor with which our preaching and debating was received, by a large number, which made the devil mad; and, as of old, stirred the blood in the veins of some of these pious (?) priests.

(g). I quote another falsehood from the pen of this ready writer: "Early Monday morning the preachers and apostles of Mormonism left." Elders Bronson and White did not leave till 3 o'clock p. m., on Monday; and Elder Lambert started home on Tuesday. Whether Mr. Edwards tells these falsehoods from choice, or by accident, we leave the reader to judge. In either case it is plain that he is entirely unfit for the true Christian ministry.

Quite a number of misrepresentations and falsehoods contained in these "notes," I have not touched; but the foregoing will be sufficient to show that elder Edwards is a "workman that needeth * * to be ashamed," forgetting, or wilfully ignoring some of the plain, and wholesome injunctions and prohibitions of God's word. If others shared with Mr. Edwards in fixing up these "Notes" for the edification of those who read the Christian Standard, I beg pardon for giving all the credit to him.

JOSEPH R. LAMBERT.

LAMONI, IOWA.

DR. PENTECOST in a discourse at Cleveland recently spoke of certain cities of this country as lost cities. He said that Cincinnati had fifty less churches now than thirty years ago. The churches exist there by suffrage. They have no control in public affairs, and are without influence. St. Louis and Toledo were classed in the same way, and several other cities were fast approaching this lost condition.

HOUSE PLANS.

One of the most substantial movements that could take place in this community would be for our monied people to build handsome and convenient houses; not "princely mansions," but houses of low and moderate cost, such as are needed by thrifty mechanics and clerks and business men of moderate means. The investment is first-class and the benefit extends to the whole community. Those people who intend to build should inquire among their local builders until they find one who has THE SHOPPEL BUILDERS' PORTFOLIOS. Such a builder can show the inquirer an immense number of excellent plans for modern houses, barns, &c.; and also can give correct local prices for building from any of the plans. Builders who have not yet procured The Builders' Portfolios should write at once to the Co-operative Building Plan Association, 63 Broadway, New York.

STILL "FOUND WANTING."

ELDER DAVID WHITMER has made two statements respecting what he affirms to be a call unto him in June, 1838, to come out from among the Latter Day Saints "to hold the authority." The first statement is the plain one:

"I was called out to hold the authority."

In his second statement he says:

"I did not say and did not mean that 'all others who may have held the authority during the establishing of the church at its organization, and prior to his (my) being so called out had forfeited their authority, and he (I) alone retained it.' You misunderstand me altogether. I said 'I was called out to hold the authority'—the authority that God gave to me. Others had the authority. I was not judging as to whose authority was good or whose authority was not good."

The common use of language places the definite article "the" to signify the one article, and only one; the use of the word being adopted in order to locate and identify the person, place or thing referred to. David Whitmer admits that he said, "I was called out to hold the authority." He intended that his readers should understand that he was called out of the church, in which he, Joseph Smith, Oliver Cowdery, Sidney Rigdon and others were co-workers and held authority in by ordination, and command of God, for the express purpose of holding the authority that was in that church while he was in it, but which did not remain in it after he went out. The incidents of Noah, Nephi, and others who took stand against wickedness and error in the church, or world against which they taught are cited in support of the idea. We did not mistake the language, nor misunderstand it. It was intended then, and Elder Whitmer's whole course in publishing the "Address" bears witness to it, to make it appear to all who might read the "Address" that the authority existing in the so-called Church of Christ, existing until 1830, and possibly till 1838, now remains in David Whitmer; and in him alone now rests the authority to organize the Church of Christ. Elder W. P. Brown so understood the claim of David Whitmer in June, 1838, when at Lamoni; elders J. C. Whitmer and J. J. Snyder so understood it then; for all three of these men were here together; and Elder Brown so understands it now, for he states on page 28 of his pamphlet:

"Now if Christ had not taken David Whitmer out of that body so that the authority might be preserved, an angel would have been obliged to come down again with the authority."

Do we also misunderstand Elder Brown? He states further on page 29 of his pamphlet:

"There is a man living to-day that stood in the presence of the angel with Joseph Smith, and who stayed in that church proclaiming against those evils until his life was in danger, than the Lord told him to come out of that church and has preserved him until this day for his purposes. If you want to be a member in Christ's body and acknowledge Christ as your head, you must go back to the authority. This is where I had to go."

Take this statement of Elder W. P. Brown, one of the elders ordained by D. Whitmer, with that of the latter himself that "he was called out to hold the authority," and who can fail to understand Elder Whitmer as meaning that there was no one of all the number in the church from which he was called out in 1838 that held the authority. In him it was preserved; and if he had not come out then an angel would have had to come to bring it.

Now, when we put the point of Elder Whitmer's claim plainly before the readers of the HERALD, he comes out and says he did not mean that; he only meant that he was called out to hold "the authority that God gave to" him; and that, "others held the authority." If this last statement is correct, as we most certainly believe and are assured of, then those men who held the authority remained with the church and continued the exercise of it, and the statement of Elder Whitmer that he was called out to hold such authority, and Elder Brown's statement that "Christ called him out that the authority might be preserved," are unnecessary, and being misunderstood as Elder Whitmer states we misunderstood him misleads the people.

But to show that we do not misunderstand Elder Whitmer; we take the statement made by him: "others had the authority," and inquire what does he mean by that? He asserts that we "misunderstand" him "altogether," when we state that we understand him to say that he alone retained the authority; and to do away with that misunderstanding he states that "others had the authority;" that is, that after he came out there were others in the church who had, or held the authority.

Now, if this is true, then authority remained in the church and David Whitmer could have remained in the church and still have held his authority, for if one could so could another; and the call to come out of the church in order that he might hold the authority God gave to him was unnecessary, for the authority was still in the church when D. Whitmer came out of it. But to show that Elder Whitmer does not mean what he says when he wrote "others had the authority;" we quote from the same page of the pamphlet accompanying the "Address" page 2, as follows:

"I am not judging as to the authority of any man now in the Church of Latter Day Saints, as I have told you in years past, you doubtless have authority to act in your church. But the Lord has made it known to me that the Church of Christ is another church, and that no man has authority to officiate in the ordinances thereof, without coming into it according to the gospel of Christ." . . . "I withdrew from the 'Church of Latter Day Saints,' I have been worshipping in the Church of Christ ever since."

Do we understand this? Elder David Whitmer tells us that he withdrew from the church he was in, and in which he held authority or he could not have held it after he came out of it; that he withdrew from that church in 1838, to hold the authority, and that he has been worshipping in the Church of Christ ever since, that is, ever since June, 1838. If this be correct, and if we understand it, it makes Elder Whitmer to say in effect and purpose; I was in the church of Church of Christ in which I with others held authority; I came out of the church in which I was a member that I might hold the authority which was in that church; when I left that church it became the church of Latter Day Saints, and I brought out of it the Church of Christ in which I have been ever since. There was only one member in the Church of Christ when Elder Whitmer came out of the other church, and which became the Church of Latter Day Saints when he left it, and that member was David Whitmer, and he held all the authority there was in such church. We can not mistake his meaning, for he says that God had shown him that the Church of Christ was another church, and not the first one from which he came out; he withdrew from the one not the Church of Christ and went into one that was.

This is in substance just the same statement as at the first, and the explanation by no means helps the matter but taken altogether is what we stated at the start. In the explanation the same claim is made that in the Church of Christ, of which David Whitmer is a member, alone there is authority. He seems to admit that others had the authority; but seeks to evade the result of this admission by claiming inferentially that the authority meant by him was the right to act in another church, not the Church of Christ; and to keep up the claim to sole authority he says:—"I withdrew from the Church of Latter Day Saints; I have been worshipping in the Church of Christ ever since."

In this statement the same cunning claim to the exclusive possession of the authority, claimed for Elder Whitmer, by Elder Brown is asserted; the inference being that Elder Whitmer held the authority "ever since" he came out of one church and went into another. How then about the "others" who "had the authority?" Who were they and where are they? David Whitmer states that in 1829 Joseph Smith "gave up the stone forever, and told" him "and the rest" of them "that he was through what the Lord had given him the gift to do." Who states this? Elder David Whitmer, who for eight years thereafter stood with and labored with Joseph Smith, acquiescing in the changed name of the church, if it was ever changed, accepting with the rest of the body the Doctrine and Covenants, accepting the leadership of Joseph Smith, accepting of an ordination unto the office of a high priest, and officiating as a high councillor, and now stating that he also accepted an ordination unto the same leading office which Joseph Smith held, as seer, president, &c. Joseph Smith and others did not so understand his work and calling, for they continued to labor to bring forth and establish the Church of Christ, or Church of God, or Church of Latter Day Saints, or Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints—and if David Whitmer is to be understood by what he writes, it was not until 1849, five years after Joseph Smith's death, that these discoveries of errors in the church in which he stood in 1829, '30 and '38 had so vitiated it that the authority was no longer with it. Joseph Smith's continued labor and fellowship with the body in which he began his religious career, his final death all bear witness that he did not consider that he was "through with what the Lord had given him the gift to do;" and although David Whitmer now asserts that to believe the statement and work of Joseph Smith, is to be blind and put our trust in man, we can not so easily put aside what the spirit of truth has so frequently borne testimony to, and discard the word and work of Joseph Smith, and the authority which he must have held among the "others" referred to, by which that work was done; and do this because Elder David Whitmer says so. It would be putting more trust in man than we are now willing to do.

David Whitmer rings the changes upon the name of the church. He does so in his peculiar statement about leaving the one church,—"Latter Day Saints," and getting into the other, the "Church of Christ." He quotes from the Book of Commandments, its title page and in that it is the Church of Christ; "for the government of the Church of Christ, organized" April 6th, 1830. In the 24th chapter in Book of Commandments and 17th section of Doctrine and Covenants the church is called the "Church of Christ" six times; and in the minutes of the General Assembly, August, 1835, the church is recognized as the Church of Christ thus: "the items of doctrine of Jesus Christ for the government of His church of the Latter Day Saints;" and in the 101 section of Doctrine and Covenants for 1835, the article on marriage, it is called again the Church of Christ; thus: "all marriages solemnized in this Church of Christ of Latter Day Saints;" and in the 4th paragraph, same section: "Inasmuch as this Church of Christ has been reproached," &c.

In the Doctrine and Covenants, as published by the Reorganized Church, the title page reads "Book of Doctrine and Covenants of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." In the 17th section of this work the church is called the Church of Christ six times; and in the 111 section it is called so twice. In the 9th chapter and 17th paragraph of Book of Commandments, a revelation given in May 1829, and one which David Whitmer permits us to understand that he accepts and endorses as from God, there occurs the following: "Behold this is my doctrine; whosoever repenteth, and cometh unto me, the same is my church; whosoever declareth more or less than this, the same is not of me, but is against me; therefore, he is not of my church."

Jesus teaching his twelve, as related in Book of Nephi 5: 8: "And whoso believeth in me, and is baptized, the same shall be saved; and they are they who shall inherit the kingdom of God. And whoso believeth not in me, and is not baptized, shall be damned. Verily, verily I say unto you, that this is my doctrine."

While David Whitmer so strenuously insists that they who were baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, are not his, Christ's church, except the church itself shall be called "The Church of Christ," in just so many words, no more no less, he would do well to remember that the formula of baptism given by Jesus Christ in Book of Nephi 5: 8, is "Having authority given me of Jesus Christ, I baptize you," &c. Just before that he had said to these same disciples, whom David Whitmer says were not apostles: "Behold, ye shall go down and stand in the water, and in my name shall ye baptize them." Here Christ affirmed that his name was Jesus Christ, and it was in his name, Jesus Christ, that they were to baptize. The formula for ordination in Moroni chapter 3, is: "In the name of Jesus Christ I ordain," &c. The formulas for blessing the bread and wine are: "We ask thee in the name of thy Son Jesus Christ to bless," &c. At the time Christ appeared to those on this land, he said: "Behold I am Jesus Christ." It is a pity that Jesus did not know his own name.

If Jesus said, "Whosoever repenteth, and cometh unto me, the same is my church," what authority has David Whitmer to say such men are not of the "Church of Christ;" and Jesus said this in that revelation of May, 1829, and said of this very statement, "behold this is my doctrine," and further stated that "whosoever declareth more or less than this, the same is not of my church." David Whitmer says that those persons who were baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, who organized the Church of Christ in 1830, are not the Church of Christ, because in 1834 they changed the corporate name of the church, (as is supposed), to Latter Day Saints; and that some of the same persons thus baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, and who are still living true to the faith in Jesus once espoused by them, are not the Church of Christ, not even in the Church of Christ, because they are now called the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, or the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Jesus said they were his church, David Whitmer says they are not.

In the same revelation, May, 1829, Jesus said: "Behold, I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God." He knew his name, full name, when he appeared to the Nephites, and he knew the same full name when he spoke to Joseph Smith, May, 1829. In April, 1829, to Oliver Cowdery: "Behold I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God."—Book of Commandments, chap. 5, par. 9. In May, 1829, to Hyrum (Smith): "Behold I am Jesus Christ the Son of God."—Ibid chap. 10, par. 12. In June, 1829, to David Whitmer: "Behold I am Jesus Christ the Son of the Living God."—Ibid, chap. 12, par. 5. In the same month to John (Whitmer): "Listen to the words of Jesus Christ."—Ibid chap. 13, par. 1. In the same month to Peter (Whitmer): "Listen to the words of Jesus Christ."—Ibid, chap. 14: par. 1. And in the last revelation which David Whitmer says was given through "the stone" to Joseph, David and Oliver the following is found: "Take upon you the name of Christ, and speak the truth in soberness, and as many as repent, and are baptized in my name, which is Jesus Christ, and endure to the end, the same shall be saved." "Behold, Jesus Christ is the name which is given of the Father, and there is none other name given whereby man can be saved." "And I Jesus Christ, your Lord and your God, have spoken it." These are paragraphs 23, 24, and 36.

David Whitmer takes a single statement in the Book of Mormon respecting the name of the church, and ignores all the rest; forgetting that the revelations which he endorses as from God are to be taken, and in the first paragraph quoted above, the Lord himself defines the proper understanding of the command "take upon you the name of Christ." We are not surprised, however, for if David Whitmer can successfully set Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, Oliver Cowdery and his other co-workers, right in the words they claimed to have spoken, and the works they claimed to have done by the same Spirit that was given to them as well as to him; correct and modify the inspired words of the prophet Ezekiel, as we have seen that he has done; why should he not also rectify the mistake Jesus may have made respecting his own name and the name by which his church should be known; as well as to correct the statement of Jesus as to who are his people, his church.

Nor is this all; the 22nd paragraph of the same revelation, June, 1829, contains a specific declaration to Joseph, David and Oliver; "Contend against no church, save it be the church of the devil." If David Whitmer acknowledges this revelation as of binding force, and he still under its direction, how will he account for the fierce onslaught he and his co-workers have made and are making upon the Church of Jesus Christ, as the same exists composed of those who have repented and "come unto Christ" and have been "baptized in the name of Jesus Christ," the only name "given of the Father" "whereby men can be saved."

Again: At the time Jesus commanded the Twelve whom he had chosen to baptize in the name of Jesus Christ, he commanded them not to dispute: "There shall be no disputations among you;" . . . "neither shall there be disputations among you concerning the points of my doctrine;" . . . "He that hath the spirit of contention is not of me, but is of the devil."—Book of Nephi 5: 8. And when the people asked the question upon the answer to which David Whitmer places such stress, Jesus said:—"Why is it that the people murmur and dispute because of this thing?" The thing here referred to is the name of the church. In answering it he said:—"Have they not read the scriptures, which says, Ye must take upon you the name of Christ, which is my name?" In teaching them further as to what they should do and say in building up the church, he charges them to say:—"Having authority given me of Jesus Christ;" "In the name of Jesus Christ, I ordain you;" "We ask thee in the name of thy Son, Jesus Christ, to bless," &c. All these indicate, taken in connection with the quotations we have made from the Book of Commandments, that the name referred to by Jesus, Book of Nephi 12: 3, is the one in which he announced himself among them at his appearing:—"Behold I am Jesus Christ." This agrees with the entire record, for he is called in the Book of Mormon, from Nephi to Moroni, The Christ, Jesus, The Mediator, The Holy One, Christ, Christ Jesus, The Lord Jesus, The Lord Jesus Christ; but in every instance when the full title is given it is Jesus Christ the Son of God; his name being Jesus Christ; the Son of God, the descriptive title, identifying him with the Father.

Again: In teaching them Jesus said:—"The time cometh, when the fullness of my gospel shall be preached unto them, and they shall believe in me, that I am Jesus Christ, the Son of God, and shall pray unto the Father in my name."—Book of Nephi 9: 10. Again; "It shall come to pass, that whosoever will not believe in my words, who am Jesus Christ."—Book of Nephi 9: 12.

As a further evidence that we are correct in our understanding of the statement of Jesus that "whosoever repenteth and cometh unto me, and is baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, the same is of my church;" we quote: "And it came to pass that in this year there arose a people who were called the Nephites, and they were true believers in Christ; and among them there were those who were called Lamanites, Jacobites, and Josephites and Zoramites; therefore the true believers in Christ, and the true worshipers of Christ, (among whom were the three disciples of Jesus who should tarry), were called Nephites, and Jacobites, and Josephites, and Zoramites."—Book of Nephi, son of Nephi, 1: 8.

This was in the two hundred and thirty-first year after the coming of Jesus.

"Hearken, O, ye Gentiles, and hear the words of Jesus Christ, the Son of the Living God;" is the closing exhortation of Nephi. Book of Nephi chap. 14.

We are committed to both the New Testament and Book of Mormon, and we introduce some evidences touching the name of the Christ, and the name of the church in connection therewith, from the former.

Matthew begins his gospel thus: "The book of the generations of Jesus Christ, the son of David." And in relating the circumstance says: "Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise."—Matt. 1: 18. The statement of the angel to Joseph was: "Thou shalt call his name Jesus."—Matt. 1: 21. Joseph obedient to the command, "called his name Jesus."—Matt. 1: 25. This same personage is called in Matthew's gospel Jesus Christ five times, Jesus the Christ five times, and Jesus one hundred and fifty-eight times. The angel called him Jesus. Mary called him Jesus, Joseph called him Jesus, the devils in the men in the country of the Gergesenes called him Jesus, the multitude that cried Hosanna, called him Jesus, (Matt. 21: 11), the damsel that shamed Peter called him Jesus; Pilate called him Jesus in the court and had his name written over his head "This is Jesus, the angel at the sepulcher called him Jesus, and the angels who waited at his ascension called him Jesus: "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven."—Acts 1: 11. Mark called him "Jesus Christ, the son of God."—Mark 1: 1. All through Mark's gospel he is called Jesus; Peter called him "Jesus, Master," Mark 9: 5. Blind Bartimeus called him Jesus, Mark 10: 46. Luke called him Jesus; Luke 2: 21, 3: 23. John called him Jesus, Philip called him Jesus, Peter and John called him "Thy holy child Jesus."

But we will not multiply the list further. Elder David Whitmer says that he is grieved that the editors of Herald are so "blind to the word of God;" but what shall be said of a man who insists that the church shall not be called the Church of Jesus Christ, because his name is Christ and not Jesus Christ. We have cited men of the New Testament times who knew him and knew who he was, they called him Jesus. We have shown that devils knew him and called him Jesus. We have cited the angels who called him Jesus, the Roman ruler who called him Jesus, and the Lord himself who distinctly affirmed his name to be Jesus Christ. Who knows best, all these whom we have cited, or David Whitmer?

The word church, having reference to an organization or worshiping people occurs twice in the gospels; these are, Matthew 16: 18, "And upon this rock I will build my church." It was Jesus, the Christ the son of the living God who said this, and it was to be his church that was to be so built. The other is; "Tell it unto the church: but if he neglect to hear the church, let him," &c.—Matt. 18: 17. In this passage the church is represented in an organized capacity, unto which representation of wrong doing could be made by an offended member. In all other places in the gospels where the organization supposed to be the church, is represented it as a kingdom, the kingdom of God, or of heaven.

In the Acts of the Apostles we have the organized believers called the church. "And the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved."—Acts 2: 47. The method of inducting persons into the church here referred to is found in the 38th verse of the same chapter. "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ." This is the same name given in Book of Mormon, and same method of getting into the church; was that church The Church of Christ, or the Church of Jesus Christ. "And great fear came upon all the church."—Acts 5: 11. This identifies the body, as the contexts show it to have been the apostles and their brethren. Acts 4: 33, 5: 12.

The church to which the references above are made is called the Church of God in Acts 2: 28, in which Paul addresses the elders of the church at Miletus. "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God." Paul wrote "to the church of God, which is at Corinth."—1 Cor. 1: 2. He charged them to "give none offence to the church of God."—1 Cor. 10: 32. Again: "or despise the church of God."—1 Cor. 11: 22.

Again: Paul referring to his life before his conversion says: "For ye have heard . . . "how that I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it."—Gal. 1: 13. In self-deprecation, the same apostle Paul wrote: "For I am the least of the apostles, that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God."—1 Cor. 15: 9. There can be no mistaking the church Paul was writing of, for the history shows that it was that body of believers in which Peter, James and John, were apostles, and "seemed to be pillars." And again: "For if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God,"—Tim. 3: 5. Paul writing to the Corinthians respecting women praying uncovered said, "we have no such custom, neither the churches of God."—1 Cor. 11: 16.

"For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God which in Judea are in Christ Jesus."—1 Thess 2: 14. The church is called the church of Christ, in Romans 16: 16. "The churches of Christ salute you;" and we know of no other place in the New Testament where it is so called. But we find that in Romas 16: 4; the same body of believers is called the "Churches of the Gentiles." That these were of Christ the Apostle seemed to be satisfied because he writes of others "who also were in Christ before me." In 1 Cor. 14: 33, the same body is called "churches of the Saints."

Would we be justified from what is so gleaned from the New Testament Scripture, in saying that the church established by Jesus Christ on the rock against which the gates of hell should not prevail, but which is called specifically the Church of Christ in but one place, was not Christ's church; and is it consistent, is it wise, is it safe to say that those who made up the church, called in the New Testament as we have seen the churches of the Gentiles, the church and churches of God, the church of the Saints, did not belong to and have proper relation to Christ as his church, for the reason that they are not particularly known and christened as the Church of Christ; as David Whitmer has stated concerning those baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, are not the Church of Christ now, because they bear the titles, the Church of Jesus Christ, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints? Apply such a rule in the way Elder Whitmer would have it applied and where is the Church of Christ?

It is evident that the church should be called in Christ's name; and we have shown most conclusively, we think, that his name is Jesus Christ, his descriptive titles are the Christ, the Lord, the Holy One, Lord of life and glory, Lord of Hosts, and many others; but the name dearest and nearest to the hearts of those who are baptized in the name of Jesus Christ and who receive the Spirit which testified that Jesus is the Christ, is Jesus, ever Jesus.

Who is it that is disputing about the name of the church? Who are they who are contending about who shall be called the Church of Christ? This contention is not with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, who have been "baptized in the name of Jesus Christ," have had hands laid upon them for the gift of the Holy Ghost, and have received of that Spirit of Truth which testifies that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God. There is no disputations among them in regard to the name of the church. It is in his name that they pray unto the Father. It is in his name they ask for and receive all blessings. It is in his name they trust. It is on his arm they lean, on his goodness they rest. Elder David Whitmer charges them wrongfully when he states that they are trusting in man; taking the words of man rather than the words of God. They read the words of Isaiah, Ezekiel, Moses and the prophets, as the words of God's prophets, honoring the one whom they represent, the Great One who sent and inspired them. They read the words of the New Testament apostles and prophets as the words of men of God, servants of Jesus Christ, and honor the one whom these servants represent. They read the Book of Mormon and the later revelations to the church, as the gift of God through men, chosen servants, and honor the Lord, in whose name they speak and in whose service they were and are; and do not in any sense place the men before the written word. Whoever states that the men of the Reorganized Church are trusting in flesh, or being led by men as men, do greatly err and speak without knowledge, no matter who or where they are who so assert.

David Whitmer says: "It grieves me to see that the editors of the Herald are so blind in understanding the word of God."—Page 6 of pamphlet accompanying "Address." He says this in reference to our citation from the Book of Mormon concerning the voice of the majority of the people desiring that which was wrong.—Alma 1: 7.

In this case the law referred to by which the majority was to rule was the law of the "people of the church;" and these were alarmed when Amlici attempted to lead a successful sedition against them. That it was the people of the church is seen from the tenth paragraph, where it is stated that Alma, the high priest of the church, was also chief judge and governor of the people. David Whitmer says it was a majority of the people of the nation; the Book of Alma says that they were the people of God.—Alma 1: 9.

In Alma, 1: 7, in which David Whitmer says it was "the voice of the people of the nation, and not the voice of the church;" the record states that Alma, still the high priest in the church, and chief judge and governor, "selected a wise man who was among the elders of the church, and gave him power according to the voice of the people." This man's name was Nephiah, and to him Alma gave rule as chief judge, retaining the office of high priest over the church; that he might preach to the people of Nephi, the people of God, while the other ruled the same people as chief judge.

In Mosiah 13: 4, 5, the people referred to are the people over whom Mosiah, the good King, reigned, and were people and church in one, and it was for this very reason that Mosiah counseled them not to have a king but judges, and over this very people, nation and church, Alma the high priest was chosen as first chief judge; and it was of this people of whom the record states: "Now it is not common that the voice of the people desireth anything contrary to that which is right; but is common for the lesser part of the people to desire that which is not right; therefore this shall ye observe, and make it your law to do your business by the voice of the people." But David Whitmer says: "The vote of the people of the nation is a very different thing from a vote of the people of the church." Page 6 of pamphlet. If by this Elder Whitmer desires to convey the idea that the voice of the people of a nation, the majority of the people, desires what is right; but that the voice of the majority of the people of the church desires what is wrong, we most certainly object that the Book of Mormon does not so teach. The fact remains that the people unto whom Mosiah gave this good advice, because that a king, if he turned his heart from God, could do the people harm by bringing things to pass that "were expressly repugnant to the commandments of God," accepted the advice, chose judges, and Alma, their religious ruler, their high priest "the founder of their church" was chosen as their chief judge.

Elder Whitmer says: "Of course the editors of the Herald may be conscientious, but in their blindness, by their wisdom and learning and many words, they are perverting the truth." He cites as an example our effort to show that Joseph Smith was not, as David Whitmer asserts, led and persuaded by men during the time of his ministerial life. To offset this and show that Joseph Smith was so led, Elder Whitmer cites Book of Commandments sec. 2, par. 3, "And behold how oft you have transgressed the commandments and laws of God, and have gone on in the persuasions of men."

This was said to Joseph Smith in the Lord's rebuke for permitting Martin Harris to take a portion of the manuscript of Book of Mormon, which was lost, and is in the revelation dated July 1828. Joseph Smith was in this overpersuaded by Martin Harris, not Sidney Rigdon, and was rebuked for it in 1828. He was afflicted for a season; but the Lord forgave him and told him in par. 4, that he was "still chosen," and would "again be called to the work." The HERALD editors have no where stated that Joseph Smith was not over-persuaded by Martin Harris on this occasion; hence there is no controversy between "God's word," and the editors. But David Whitmer quotes the statement of the revelation given in 1828, that affirms that Joseph had before that time gone on in the persuasions of men, to prove that Joseph Smith was led and persuaded of men all the time from 1829 to 1838. We are willing to take God's word for what it says, but are not willing to take David Whitmer's perversion of God's word to be God's word.

Elder Whitmer grows impatient under the fire of the HERALD's criticism and our efforts in denial of the charge that Joseph Smith was led and persuaded by Sidney Rigdon and others to do contrary to the commands of God, and says:

"What you have written to prove that Brother Joseph was not persuaded by Sidney Rigdon does not prove anything, for Brother Joseph was persuaded and influenced by him during their first and intimate acquaintance in Ohio, at which time many errors were introduced into the Church of Christ through the direct influence of Sidney Rigdon."

Because we deny this statement of David Whitmer and offer proofs in support of our denial, he says that we by our "learning and many words" are "perverting the truth." Does he show that our statements are not facts? Does he by reasoning prove that our arguments and conclusions are incorrect? O, no; but he simply sets the whole aside by saying: "I know that Brother Joseph was persuaded and led by Sidney Rigdon." And this is all the evidence presented by David Whitmer to prove his assertion that Joseph Smith was dominated, led and persuaded from right ways by Sidney Rigdon; thus destroying the reputation of Joseph and Sidney both; one for leading, the other for being led from the teaching of the Spirit, given to both, as well as to David Whitmer, by his simple assertion alone. No proof other than this bald statement of David Whitmer's is offered anywhere in the pamphlet, or the "Address," to convict Joseph Smith of being the weak dupe of Sidney Rigdon, and to prove that Sidney Rigdon was the base intriguer and deceiver to so dupe Joseph Smith. I, David Whitmer, I say I know it; that is enough. You Latter Day Saints, hear me; I tell you that Joseph Smith was "led and persuaded" to introduce errors into the Church of Christ.

"If you prefer to be blinded by the Herald in this matter, when God says that Brother Joseph was persuaded by men, I can not help it."

God no where says that Joseph Smith was "led and persuaded by Sidney Rigdon." Nor does the revelation of July, 1828, make any such assertion. It only says that Joseph Smith, had before that time "gone on in the persuasions of men;" and for that God forgave him, but it would seem that David Whitmer has not.

The Herald has not attempted to blind any one in this controversy. It has, however, tried to prevent Elder Whitmer from destroying the faith of the people of God, of the Church of Jesus Christ, upon whom the Spirit had shed remission of their sins. It has tried to prevent David Whitmer from so destroying the reputation of Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, Oliver Cowdery and others, for uprightness of purpose and integrity of spirit and work, during the period of time between 1827 and 1838, that the confidence and faith of the people in the Book of Mormon and the church established in consequence of its coming forth, shall not be destroyed also.

David Whitmer resents the idea presented in HERALD that he is being "led by others." He styles this "being reviled," "being persecuted." But he says he will not revile in return, and will suffer persecution. What does David Whitmer call the assault he has made upon the Reorganized Church, and the Latter Day Saints? What does he call the charge he has made that Joseph Smith gave false revelations, introduced errors, doctrines and practices contrary to the word of God; that his motives and desires were "erring" and "iniquitous;" that he was "led by Sidney Rigdon;" went on in the persuasions of men from 1829 clear up to 1838; went "deep into error and blindness;" that "Satan deceived them;" that he had revelations from man and the devil; that the HERALD editors are blind, and perverting the truth; and that the whole of us are trusting in an arm of flesh;—what does David Whitmer call all this?

To conclude on this point, we quote from David Whitmer's "Address," p. 42:

"I must say that all who stumble because of the errors of Joseph Smith are weak indeed."

"When a prophet, or any other man, prays to God and asks wisdom concerning a matter, his conscience will reveal an answer to him according to the desires of his heart. If his desires are in any way carnal, he being deceived, an answer will be revealed to him accordingly; and he will think it is the revealed will of God. Satan reveals his will to a man, mixed with much truth and scripture in order to deceive him, and makes it appear as an angel of light." * * * "It is Satan who deceives the man, but God permits it because of the wicked desires of the man, and it is right and justice in God's wisdom to permit the persistent transgressor to be led off and deceived by a delusive doctrine."

This peculiar statement is made to sustain the idea that Joseph Smith was so led and deceived. Take the statement as it stands, apply the principle to David Whitmer's confessed "desire" to prove the Doctrine and Covenants to contain false revelations and the church to have been led into error, and then place what confidence you can in the declaration "God has shown to me the errors into which the church has been led." Had the desires of David Whitmer to prove the church to be wickedly in error in regard to the name of the church anything to do with the revelation from "his conscience," "according to the desires of his heart?"

We have been denounced by one class of believers in the Book of Mormon for being a lawyer; and now another believer in the same book accuses us of "perverting the truth" by our wisdom and learning." We are not aware that it is a crime against God's law to be learned, or wise.

BRO. CORNISH reports more baptisms. So it is, when the work of the Lord is progressing, then will the forces of the adversary of the work and of souls be set at work to destroy and to hinder. And we can see on every hand, the cunning craft by which they lie in wait to deceive. Elder Whitmer now construes the manifestations of the spirit of the Evil One, at the time that men were ordained to the high priesthood, to mean that God was displeased with such ordinations. If that reasoning were to be accepted as true and the one that should prevail in such cases, then we must say that the good God was displeased when Jesus was baptized and set about his work of redeeming man; for upon that occasion, after Jesus was baptized, he was led away to be tempted of the devil, and was so tempted. The footsteps of the Savior were dogged by the Evil spirit constantly; and if we are to believe that such a thing indicates the displeasure of God there is nothing of the good work of God but what bears the similar marks of displeasure. David Whitmer receives the Book of Mormon; yet the footsteps of Joseph Smith were beset by evil spirits from first to last, in finding, obtaining and translating the records from which the book was taken. The manifestations of the spirit of the Adversary of Souls began at the opening of the dispensation, and continued to oppose and try those who received the work, from the first convert to the last; and it seems to be at a considerably late period of the history of the work that we are taught that such manifestations are to be regarded as the tokens of God's displeasure. David Whitmer and Oliver Cowdery were called to make the choice of the twelve men who were to be the especial witnesses, the Apostles of this dispensation; and they were to make this selection according to the direction of the Holy Spirit to them, and according to the gifts and callings of God to those whom they selected; and yet when these men went to England to preach the gospel, the devil tried to prevent their going, and after they reached England and began their work, while those who were baptized by them and received the laying on of hands received the Holy Ghost as promised, the spirit of the devil beset, not only some of those baptized but some of the Apostles themselves; insomuch they had to be on their guard, both for themselves and for each other that they should not be overcome.

There is something decidedly strange about this idea, that because the devil chooses to oppose the work of God, and besets the sons of men whenever and wherever they obey the word of God, therefore their acts are displeasing to God. The Holy Ghost was conferred on those men baptized in those early days of the Church, upon whom Joseph Smith, Sidney Rigdon, Oliver Cowdery and others laid their hands, both in confirmation and in ordination; and upon many of those there was also put a spirit not of God. Is it possible that now we are to hold that because such manifestations of the Evil spirit were present in that time that the work of those men, Joseph, Oliver and Sidney, in thus preaching the Book of Mormon and the gospel brought to the light in it, were displeasing to God, of whom the Book of Mormon gives us to understand, the power to do that very work was given? If so, it is tantamount to saying that whenever there occurs a circumstance of that sort, the manifestation of the Evil Spirit is to be taken as a token of the displeasure of God!!! We have hitherto supposed that when a man did anything in the name of the Lord, and the Holy Ghost attended such work, manifesting itself upon that occasion in keeping with the work done, that such work and such acts were pleasing to God, and not displeasing. And the contrary to this we have also thought to be correct that where the Spirit of the devil was made manifest against that which was being done in the name of God, or Christ, that such work was displeasing to the devil. And that where any work was being done in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and the devil interfered by his spirit and that spirit was rebuked in the name of Jesus Christ and took his departure, that such manifestation of the spirit of the devil was displeasing to God, and not the act being done with which the devil was interfering; how else can we know when we please God?

There is hardly an elder of any note whose experience began along in those early days but what can relate instance after instance which occurred in places where the work was being received; where while men received the preached word and were baptized, confirmed by the laying on of hands and received the Holy Spirit, the devil also put in an appearance and did all he could to make the work of the elders and the good Spirit to fail. It was then believed, and has been ever since, that when the preaching of the word was followed by the conferring of the Holy Ghost there was the pleasure of the Lord manifested. And if it so happened that there was a manifestation of an evil spirit it was taken as a sign that the devil was opposed to what was going on because it was of God; and if such evil spirit was discerned and reproved and cast out it was taken as a further token of God's pleasure in the work done. We believe that the manner these things were understood at that time is correct; and we look for the devil to keep up his old work and reputation for opposing the work of God.

Were we to yield to manifestations of evil spirits as indicative of God's displeasure and cease to do that which was thus attested as being displeasing, notwithstanding the Holy Ghost had confirmed it, then his Satanic majesty would reap the harvest of the world surely; for wherever the work of God goes, there follows the "accuser of the brethren;" wherever the good Spirit bids the banner bearing messengers to carry the glad tidings, there in their foot steps lurks the serpent to vitiate and frustrate their labors. It is just as certain now as in Job's day, that "when the sons of God came together, there came Satan also." The spirit of the Evil One is now opposing the men of God, resisting the spread of light and truth wherever he can. Bro. Cornish will meet him in Michigan, Brn. Lake, Evans and others in Canada; Brn. Smith, Brown and others in California; Brn. Roberts, Cato and others in the south; Brn. Anthony, Anderson, Clapp and others in Utah—and brethren of the ministry everywhere, Iowa, Missouri, and elsewhere—but the work of God will go on to its final victory in spite of the unfruitful works of darkness.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

LAMONI has been visited by copious rains since Tuesday, the 7th instant, and they were timely, for the meadows, pastures, and small grain were looking brown, and unpromising. The wells, cisterns and water pools are replenished and the hearts of the husbandmen are made glad. These rains are the first in quantity since May 9th, a year ago. Will some of those who have found fault with Decatur county because of its supposed hard-pan subsoil report some other county where the land has stood the drouth better than the land round Lamoni, if they know of any such. Corn has been a promising crop from the start.

Those ordering tracts for free distribution will do well to remember to enclose stamps for postage. Certainly if the Board furnishes the tracts those ordering them can afford to pay the postage on them. The same should hold good where Voice of Warning is ordered for free use. The Business Manager thinks more care would be used in the distribution of tracts if the one distributing them had an interest in the cost of them, however small that interest might be. It was not intended by the Board in advertising the tracts as they did, to pay postage on them to their destination, as a rule. Be thoughtful, brethren, be thoughtful.

By note from Bro. Blair dated at Persia, Iowa, June 10th, we learn that the elders had been holding meetings there for a week, seven had been baptized and more were to be baptized the day Bro. Blair wrote.

Bro. John R. Eardley sent us from his stopping place in his former home, England, a copy of the Alliance News, published at Manchester, in the temperance interest—a total abstinence paper, and a good one judging from the number sent us May 14th. Bro. Eardley also sent us the War Cry, Salvation Army paper, and the Central Hall monthly Messenger, a temperance journal.

Bro. G. H. Graves of Oscoda, Michigan, assures us of late that the Lord is blessing his work in that region, and that the Holy Spirit confirms the word with power.

Bro. Andrew J. Smith writes from Estil Spring, Franklin county, Tennessee. He sends for some tracts, and states that there has been no preaching there by the Saints that he is aware of. There may be an opening in time.

Some one (presumably Bro. C. H. Hasall) sends us from Manchester, England, "The Warning Cry," a paper devoted to the second personal advent of Christ, and kindred subjects. Thanks to the sender for the kind consideration, nevertheless we find much faulty teaching in the paper, some of which we may point out by and by.

Elder W. W. Blair returned the afternoon of the 14th, from a two weeks trip to Plum Hollow, Iowa, where he attended an excellent conference of the Fremont District. He held meetings at the Elm Creek Church and also at the Ross School-house, and had large and attentive congregations. At the former place Bro. Henry Kemp baptized two adults. The Saints in that region are united, active, and fairly prosperous. He also attended the Galland's Grove district conference at Salem, June 10th to 12th, but owing to the heavy rains the meetings there were much smaller than expected. Aside from the rainy weather and bad roads, it proved a pleasant, profitable season to those in attendance. Some fifteen or more were baptized there and at Persia—near by—and indications were good for further accessions in the near future. From what could be learned, the Little Sioux and Galland's Grove district are in fairly prosperous conditions and have good prospects ahead. All were looking forward hopefully to the fall Reunion at Harlan, Shelby county, which is likely to be very largely attended if the weather proves favorable.

The Kingston, Caldwell county, Missouri, Times, of May 19th, contains the obituary of Sr. Sarah A., consort of Bro. William Cadman, of that place. We knew Sr. Cadman almost from her earliest connection with the church, and condole with her family in their bereavement.

Bro. G. W. Parks will be pleased to welcome an elder at his home at Carthage, New York. He invites the elders to visit him.

Bro. G. W. B. Goodwillie writes from Tawas City, Michigan the 13th inst., that brethren Birch and Carpenter had done good work in their branch, and that the latter had baptized four of late, causing some commotion among the Methodists. He embraced the gospel three years ago, and now rejoices in its peace and love.

The revelation on the Rebellion was published in the "Pearl of Great Price" in 1851, was discussed by John Hyde in "Mormonism" in 1857, was published the same year in the "Compendium," and in the Saints' HERALD and other works in 1860, and by Beadle in his book later.

Our letter department this week is very interesting and edifying.

Bro. Frank Sawley writes from Merrill, Wisconsin, saying he is the only member there, but would like to have labor done there by the ministry.

We were pleased to receive a brief note from Br. and Sr. Stephen Richardson, who are now quite aged, but full of zeal and trust. They reside at Waterloo, Iowa.

Mr. Elijah Austin, of Sublette, Illinois, an old-time Latter Day Saint and a nephew of father John Landers, made us calls the 15th and 16th of June when en route to Abilene, Kansas. He promised to write up what the Saints will find most valuable reminiscencies of Joseph the Seer, and his teachings at Nauvoo just prior to his assassination. He is competent, and we await his work with interest.

The following letter is most encouraging, being short, pointed and substantial:

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 11th, 1887.

Bro. Dancer: Inclosed you will find order for five dollars for Herald, payment for two years, as one of my testimonies of its value to me.

Yours in bonds,

DANIEL DONOVAN.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

Bro. W. W. Blair wrote from Plum Hollow, Iowa, June 8th:

"Am having crowded and attentive congregations, notwithstanding the dry, hot weather, and the very busy times. To-night I speak again at the Ross School-house. Had large and deeply interested congregation there last night. I am requested to review an effort made against us here a few weeks ago by a Rev. Smith, Campbellite. The announcement was made by Bro. Wm. Leeka, at that time, that on the first Sunday in July some of our ministry would review him. A crowd is likely to then convene. The protracted drouth has nearly burned up the oats, meadows and pastures, damaged wheat, rye, and the like; but at two o'clock this morning a heavy, quiet rain set in, and the plowed ground is now wet down ten or twelve inches."

Sr. Abbie A. Horton, wrote from Plano, Illinois, June 7th:

The good cause is rolling on here in Plano; one baptized last Sunday morning by Bro. Cooper. Our district conference was largely attended and all seemed to enjoy the meetings. The Stone Church has put on this Spring a new appearance inside; and with its decorated walls and renovated furniture it fairly shines, if not in beauty, in the garb of cleanliness. We are all, with one or two exceptions, enjoying the blessings of health. Sr. Emma Smith is afflicted, and many prayers have been offered in her behalf, but still she has not received the promised blessing of health. She ought to be remembered in prayer by all the Saints. The district has extended courtesies to the Sandwich Branch in delegating Bro. Vickery to preach there one Sunday in every month. He goes well recommended; but we are glad it is for only once in the month that he goes. Bro. Vickery is held in high esteem by the people of Plano, generally, as is evinced by his being frequently invited to take part in exercises of a public character. In the Memorial services at the Rink he assisted in conducting the exercises on Sunday and Monday with unction. "Father Erhard" who delivered the address on Sunday, was highly spoken of for his gentlemanly manner, the fair presentation of his own views and those of his own people in regard to the commemorative services of Decoration Day; and also, for his eloquence of speech, his patriotism, and reverence expressed throughout the sermon. He is the Catholic Priest in Plano.

Bro. Arthur B. Pierce wrote from Attleboro, Massachusetts, June 8th:

"The conference at Brockton, Massachusetts, was the best I ever attended, which commenced the 28th of last month, and closed the 30th; three persons were baptized by Bro. M. H. Bond, one of them was a prominent member of the Episcopal faith. The prospects of the work here in Attleboro are good, and this fall will find it still better, if under competent management. It will yet result in great good to the church."

Bro. Chauncy Loomis, writes:

"I expect to spend my time this summer in the gospel field. Have been south of this place ten miles, talked some and baptized one, Sr. Martha J. Cutler. Her faith has been in this work for a long time past. Mr. Cutler's father and mother belong to the old organization. I think some more will ere long unite with the church there."

FROM a copy of the Liberty, Kansas, Review, of June 3d we learn the whereabouts and labor of Bro. Evan A. Davis.

Elder E. A. Davis, of whom we made mention last week, preached in Salisbury's Hall twice on Sunday and also on Monday evening. He is an entertaining talker and made a good impression on his auditors. He is well versed in the tenets of his church and is a logical reasoner. He does not try to force his doctrine offensively upon his hearers, but presents facts and arguments for their consideration. The idea so prevalent among the people, that Mormonism means polygamy, is erroneous, and Mr. Davis is particularly anxious to disabuse their minds of that belief. Whether a man accepts the religious teachings of Mr. Davis or not, he can not fail to be entertained and benefitted by hearing him preach.

We clip the following from the same paper, an editorial:

The Globe-Democrat says the son of the founder of the Mormon religion is preaching against polygamy and attributes the fact to the Edmunds bill. "Young Joe" Smith, as he was called in his youth, preached against polygamy twenty years before the Edmunds bill was passed.

THE Los Angeles, California, Tribune, for June 5th, has the following among the church notices:

"Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.—Preaching at 11, a. m., and 7:30, p. m., in K. of P. Hall, 24 South Spring street. Subject:—'The dispensation of the fullness of times.' All are invited to attend.

THE Hegewisch, Illinois, Journal, of June 9th, has the notice of Bro. Francis Earl's opening effort; for Sunday, June 12th:

"There will be preaching in the Harmon Opera Hall, next Sunday evening at half past seven o'clock. Subject:—'Faith and Doctrines of the Latter Day Saints.' All are invited to attend; seats free. Those wishing to come down from Hammond can come down on the six o'clock accommodation, and return on the 8:45."

Mothers' Home Column.

EDITED BY SISTER "FRANCES."

"I reverence old-time faith and men,
But God is near as now us then,
His face of love is still unspent,
His hate of sin as imminent;
And still the measure of our needs
Outgrows the cramping bounds of creeds."

"BY OTHERS FAULTS WISE MEN CORRECT THEIR OWN."

AMONG the many lessons imparted by our Savior in parable, perhaps none more nearly concerns us than the one contained in the parable of the wise and foolish virgins. It is evident from the nature of the parable itself that the Savior referred to the time just prior to his second coming, and also that the foolish virgins were not the wicked of the world, but were those who had taken lamps (or made a profession of Christ), but unfortunately had taken no oil in their vessels with their lamps, consequently when they heard the cry, "Behold the bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him," they were not prepared to go, for they had no light to guide them on their way and the hour was midnight. That they were invited guests is shown from the fact that after having replenished their vessels with oil they repaired to the mansion where the bridegroom was, but found the doors closed, and when they asked for admittance they were refused.

Paul tells us that "The carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. * * * But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Paul also refers to a certain class of individuals of whom he says, "They that are Christ's at his coming." When the angel restored the gospel to Joseph Smith, and he with others in accordance with divine instructions proceeded to organize the church or kingdom of God according to the divine will, repentance and baptism for the remission of sins were proclaimed to the people everywhere, and as many as hearkened to and obeyed the gospel placed themselves in the position of the ten virgins unto whom Christ likens his kingdom just prior to his coming. They not only had vessels for containing oil, but they had also lamps which had once been burning; and as no lamp can burn without oil, they must at the time when their lamps were burning have had oil in them, but they neglected to renew the supply, and while they went to obtain more Christ came and went in to the marriage supper and the doors were shut. Neither did their knocking afterwards avail them, but the answer came from within, "I know you not." In another connection Christ assigns a reason for this, and it is, "Depart from me all ye that work iniquity."

When the gospel was restored, who shall ever be able to express with what gladness of heart thousands of the people not only heard it but obeyed it and for a time walked in the light of Christ. Among those who came to inquire in regard to the latter day work were many who had been shown its coming forth and had anxiously been waiting its appearance, and when they heard the glad news they needed no man to tell them, "This is the way, walk ye in it," for they had been instructed of God, had been shown the man whom God would raise up to establish that kingdom, "which should never be thrown down nor given to another people," and who, when they saw Joseph Smith, knew him without the need of any one saying to them, "This is he." Among this number was our own father, and though he died in the dark and cloudy day, far away from the land of Zion, his dying exhortation and testimony to his wife and children was, "It is God's work, and he will raise up a man to lead his people; be faithful and fear not."

Many we said embraced the work with gladness of heart, and with the work, absolutely inseparable from it, came the spirit of gathering: "Thy people shall be my people, thy God my God, where thou diest I will die, and there will I be buried." Would God this had been all the spirit which came, but Satan as of old was returning from walking abroad upon the face of the earth, and as at other times when the sons of God met together his Satanic majesty came also, for strange as it may seem he has ever a liking for the company of God's children. But would God those children might remember, it is not to do them good that he comes.

By this time some may inquire, "What bearing has this upon Home Column work?" We answer, much; and in order to make our meaning plain we give below an extract from a letter written by one of the twelve in 1843, from Illinois, in regard to the condition of things in Nauvoo. This letter was written shortly after his return from an extended mission to England. He writes: "Another source of grief is to see so many of our young people and others who profess to gather with the people of God, so soon forget the object of the gathering; forsake the society of the Saints, join with the world and with all manner of rude company, and scatter as sheep without a shepherd or as wild partridges from their nests."

Now we confess that the first thought which entered our mind when we read this was, Were these young people orphans, or if indeed they had fathers and mothers, how came about such a state of things as this? "All manner of rude company." Fathers and mothers in the Reorganized Church, the question comes home to us to-day, are we willing to suffer the devil to enter our homes and rob us of our sons and daughters? Before we answer this question let us consider the consequences which very shortly followed this state of things in Nauvoo. Let us look upon those same young people and ask ourselves the question, "Do we desire a future like theirs for our sons and daughters?" Time after time were the people warned. God told them that they were under condemnation for this very thing, but they repented not, and while they slumbered in apparent security the blow fell and God suffered their enemies to prevail over them, and they were made to know, even though they did not understand, that God would not suffer them to pollute their inheritance.

ST. LOUIS, April 13th.

Dear Sister Frances:—To-day is the 5th anniversary of the birth of my little daughter, Ethel Taylor. I send five cents for her, trusting if spared to be able to contribute on each succeeding year until she is old enough to act for herself, when I know she will do so with a thankful heart. At her birth it was beyond the power of mortal to restore her to life, but I knew God could, and I believed he would listen to an earnest request of one of his children. Besides a mother's love for my babe, I had a stronger desire for her to be restored to me than words are able to express, nor would it be prudent for me to state here; so I prayed with all the fervency of a mortal's nature that God would restore her to me, promising that if she was restored to me, and God lending me his aid, that I would teach her so far as I knew, the gospel, and to love and reverence her God; and thanks to his goodness, thus far I'm successful, for she loves to attend church, asks that the food be blessed before meals, proffering her services to offer thanks, (at such times I always consent), and never neglects her evening prayer, which though of few words is a very appropriate one; and at times when grief has overwhelmed me, and pain been unbearable, she has ever been ready to pray for me, and her words of comfort uttered in her childish sympathy, together with the testimony God has been pleased to give me, (which I shall never forget, and I trust the others who witnessed the same never will, either), has aided in bringing me through scenes dark and drear. May he who doeth all things well ever keep us in the narrow way that we may discharge our duties as becometh Saints, is the prayer of your sister in Christ,

MARTHA TAYLOR.

COLDWATER, Michigan, May 6th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—It is thirty-two years since I believed in the principles of the gospel. I read the Voice of Warning, Pearl of Great Price, Government of God, the Gospel Reflector, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Commandments. As I read I began to believe that it was the word of God. I saw by reading that the Bible spoke of prophecies yet to be fulfilled, and that it spoke of a record yet to come forth having the fulness of the gospel; and that it should be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then the end should come. I naturally began to believe that what was written was true, and then I began to want to be baptized; but did not have a chance until eight years and a half afterward, twenty-three years ago. Father and mother Corless and uncle Philander Corless and wife, (Parents to sister Sarah Bailey, now in Lamoni) lived here all through the dark and cloudy day, and it was from them that we got our reading matter. I have had many a good visit with them, and felt encouraged and built up. They used to say sometimes they believed that young Joseph would take his father's place. Twenty-four years ago the 11th of last March, mother Corless died.

A while before she died, myself and some of the family stood around her bed, with some of the neighbors, and also the family doctor. She began to speak in an unknown tongue, and while she was speaking aunt Phebe (uncle Philander's wife) came into the room with her countenance entirely changed. She looked so brilliant or so angelic, clapping her hands, and she also began to talk in an unknown tongue; they both spoke a few words and then ceased. Then mother Corless says:—"Woe to America; I believe in the Bible, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, and all that Joseph Smith prophesied concerning this war will be fulfilled." These were the words she uttered just a little before she died; and oh, sister Frances, it did seem to me at that time that if I had never heard a sermon preached by a Latter Day Saint, I could not believe anything else. I have always believed in the principles of the gospel, since my first investigation, and I feel to rejoice in the latter day work, and do not feel like giving it up; So with these few broken remarks I will close.

PHEBE A. CORLESS.

WHEELER, IOWA, May 8th.

Dear Sr. Frances:—Shall I be able to stand amid the events of the near future? I ask myself this question often amid the scenes of worldly strife and our every day struggle to keep the narrow way. Why is it so hard to do right when well-doing brings so much rest and peace, and wrong brings misery and sorrow? Surely God will have a tried people, else why would his Saints meet with trials on every hand. What with doubts and fears and striving to raise my children and to keep them in the right way, I often find my way beset with thorns that seem hard to pass through; but I realize that the prize is at the end of the race, or I should often faint or fall by the way. I find much to encourage me in the "Mothers Column," and feel like saying to the sisters: Go on in the good begun work. Surely you will have a reward for the comfort you give to the weary and tried ones.

To Sister Etta Seely, of Wand, Kansas, who writes that she has never been sorry that she united with the Saints, I would say that is right. If we forsake home and friends to follow Jesus, he will never leave us nor forsake us, and we will have the assurance that we have one true friend in every time of need.

I joined the church when I was young and have never felt like giving it up, although I know at many times I have not done my duty, but God is merciful, and when I seek his aid he never says me nay. He is the only wise God, our Savior and our King; praise his name for the blessed gospel plan that makes us free indeed, if we do not fail to keep its laws. May God help his Saints to be Saints in deed and truth, is my prayer.

Your sister,

AMANDA WOOD.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

ELKO, Nev., May 27th.

Brethren Joseph Smith and W. W. Blair: I left Lamoni on the 9th inst., after a two weeks' stay—each week seeming only as a day—with that noble band of Saints, over whom the angels may well rejoice and smile upon, as one of the holy places of Zion, which it is truly being made, by both faith and works. I reluctantly gave the parting hand to that branch of our Father's family amid the adieus spoken and felt, as Saints only can feel. The fond memory of such experience is ever an oasis in the Sahara of life. On board, with a puff and snort, away we roll; yet in spirit lagging behind, until aroused from reverie at Chariton, I met Bro. John Davis with team from Lucas. Dexter soon took us over the green rolling hills to the hospitable home of Sr. T. R. Davis and family, where I made my headquarters for one short week. As I gazed upon the cemetery above her house where lies the body of our beloved and worthy brother, Elder Thomas R. Davis, thought bore me back to Oakland, California, to the blessed home of brother and sister R. M. Phenneger, where I lay prostrate with an acute attack of the terrible Bright's disease, faithfully and fondly watched over, nursed and ministered unto by a loving wife and kind friends, with many prayers and administrations of the elders. Medical skill and all efforts had failed: the end seemed very near, and I felt ready for it. (I hope when finally called I shall be as well prepared as then.) I was given up to die. A telegram in haste brought Bro. Davis from Nortonville. Never shall I forget his looks as he stood in the door, and with moist, glistening eyes gazing upon me, said: "Brother Mills; is it possible for you to arise and live?" I faintly breathed "Yes." "Amen," said he, with much assurance, "so shall it be," and with Elder P. M. Betts he administered to my wildly beating heart, which shook me with each pulsation; and he rebuked and commanded it to be regular and well. God confirmed the word, and it was instantly made whole. O, what a blessed relief! None can know except they have been a similar sufferer. Then they administered to my kidneys, and at the word quite a burning sensation passed through me. Again his words were sealed by the wonderful power of God. My fast ebbing life was given back to me, and as he administered the third time, he blessed me, and prophesied: "You shall arise and go forth in much power, and your voice shall be as the roar of a lion unto unto many people; and you shall bless many, and rejoice with multitudes in the mighty work of God. Adieu, my brother, I shall administer to you no more. I shall see you no more. Amen." And with streaming eyes he turned away. I never saw him again; but his words still live, and I hope to prove worthy to meet him where all are well, and no such adieus are ever spoken. That disease has never returned upon me.

It would take a week to tell all we experienced at Lucas and Lamoni; hence will not attempt it. Those noble Saints made it another bright spot; for I felt blessed both in speaking and ministering there; and again with tokens of love from loved ones, many at the station waved an adieu; and I left another branch of the family of God.

There are several young men at Lucas who will, ere long, go forth in power and proclaim the words of life. Arise, brethren, in the strength of Israel's God; gird on the armor and go forth to conquer. Never will the flag of Zion's standard be furled; "when once the bow is bent the shot can not be taken too soon." Onward! the cause will not stand still again. "There are glorious victories coming to the army of the Lord."

The excellent and large Sunday School at Lucas is patterning after the model at Lamoni. May legions follow their God-given example.

I next bring up at the familiar home of our esteemed Bro. and Sr. C. A. Beebe, the prince of furniture dealers in the bluff city, and an untiring helper in our Father's vineyard. Here I was much pleased to meet our noble, young ministerial brother, J. F. McDowell, with the old war-scarred veteran, Bro. Andrew Hall, firm as the Rock of Ages in his declining years. Also had a few minutes with our social, genial brother, "Charlie," and Bro. D. K. Dodson, and both staunch in defense of eternal truth.

Speaking here a few times to goodly audiences, after a flying visit to friends at Dow City, I called on Saints at the magic city, Omaha; could only attend one prayer meeting; sorry I could not stay longer, but time and duty forbade. Met our beloved brother, M. H. Forscutt looking very like a field marshal in the army of the Lord. May his shadow never grow less. Long may he live to blow the trump of Zion. He is daily engaged in the Treasury Department of the Union Pacific office, and nightly engaged with Bro. Isaac Sylvester, aiding him in arranging and preparing the tunes for Tune Book, ere sending it to the Bishop. It is quite an arduous task, and they will soon complete that part of it. I suppose the Board of Publication will issue such a collection of tunes as they deem best with the means at their disposal. There is a loud call for it everywhere I go. Speed it on. The promising Sunday School at the Bluffs, with their efficient corps of teachers, deserves more than a passing notice. I was pleased with them. Truly, young towers for Zion are arising. Welcome every one.

Quite an invoice of Utah elders have just arrived here, one of whom, Elder Hawkins, attended my meeting, and I had a pleasant conversation with him on the issues and situation in general; found him a well posted, conservative gentleman. He talked in a hopeful manner of the work in the future, spoke highly of Bro. Joseph, and well of our work. Hoped whatever might arise we would yet see alike; and would not feel aggrieved if the Lord were to speak and counsel them to stop polygamy, but did not see how he could—as he viewed it—though it was barely possible He would. I hope he may yet raise high the true standard of Zion, after having, with many others, returned and remembered "the former commandments and Book of Mormon, not only to say, but to do according to that which is written," and thus come from under the condemnation of God, under which they have remained and groaned so long.

Here is another world's wonder. I spent one evening at a night performance of the Salvation Army. It is pandemonium: a kind of burlesque and religious riot, 'mid wild yells, frenzied shouts, songs, prayer, dances, exhortations, gongs, drums, tambourines, &c., in which both sexes joined promiscuously. Young, athletic men in blue pants and red shirts, with women in plain navy blue dress, black bonnets, with bright ribbon on one side, completed the uniform; all too free and easy-like in their uncouth demeanor; all shouted they were saved, pure and spotless before God, Hallelujah! Said they had the devil down and would soon kill him. One young man sang and danced in true minstrel style this menacing stanza:

"The devil's mad, and I am glad;
Glory hallelujah!
He's lost this lad, oh aint I glad;
Glory hallelujah," &c.

Meetings every night with street marches and band. Five cents for the War Cry at the door; collections at various stages of the phase. Motto over the stage reads: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a man be born again he can not see the kingdom of God." It was a strange medley throughout. Paul's motto then came to my mind: "Let all things be done decently and in order."

At Omaha I saw many of the ministerial delegates to the great Presbyterian convention. Efforts are made by some of them to unite the church north and south; terms highly suggestive that one is north of Jesus Christ and the other one south of Him. Perhaps that is not as they regard it. But doubtless foreordination and predestination will help them through.

My railroad ticket costs the same from Omaha to Elko, or Carson, or San Francisco, as it does through to Los Angeles: hence took unlimited ticket through, with stop over privileges.

Again bidding adieu to the many loved ones I have not mentioned by name, on board Train No. 1 of Nahum's chariots, away we whirl westward, over the same ground that, on foot, with ox team, I traversed thirty-four years ago this month for the gold mines of Eldorado. But O, what a change is wrought on every hand! As I speed on day and night, no more on guard as night vigil to watch the prowling, stealthy Lamanite, and footsore, weary, sink upon the ground; no more the dark masses of buffalo with thunder tread obstruct our way; the thundering train succeeds them as the screech of the whistle does the blood-curdling yell and war-whoop of the blood-thirsty savage. And O, tell me what shall be the change of the next thirty years! Is it to be greater and better? Aye, Zion's light again is dawning; soon the Lord of Hosts will come.

On, on, we run with no incident transpiring worthy of mention, up the muddy Platte, with poor grass and still poorer cattle; most of the way among hills and mountains, and passing some old familiar camping grounds, forty-eight hours' ride.

We change cars at Ogden. We run in good view of the great Salt Lake eighteen hours, over much desert, and stop off at Elko, Nevada; soon find Bro. Penrod's and Bro. Stautts' places, just back of which, upon an eminence, lies the body of our lamented and worthy brother, Glauod Rodger, whom none knew but to love. He died at his post; passed behind the veil with those worthies—Hervey Green, Thomas Dungan, J. M. Parks, E. H. Webb, Cornelius Bagnall, J. Adamson, T. J. Andrews, and hosts of others, with whom we used to associate in the ministry. He will not be lonely over there with the goodly throng; he is home again with God's true noblemen. There are few Saints in Elko, but they are like silver purified by surrounding fire. Like the solitary oak upon the bleak hill-side, they stand alone as beacon lights 'mid the surrounding gloom. Elko is called a hard place, and I fear it responds to the call. More anon.

Yours in Christ,
D. S. MILLS.

REED CITY, Mich., June 7th.

Brn. Joseph and Blair.—Our conference is over; it was the largest and best ever attended in this district, while all were blessed, strengthened and encouraged. The business passed off without a ruffle or jar. All motions made, excepting one, were passed unanimously. In fact it was all one side. (To us it was the right side). In selecting the place for the next conference twelve voted for Hersey, while nearly all the rest voted for Bay Port. Four were baptized during the conference. The Bishop was with us and gave good instruction, especially on the financial law. There must have been over three hundred Saints present. On Sunday there must have been over one thousand people to hear and see, etc. All went away feeling glad they came. On account of the large number of people many of the outside people kindly received us, while some had to go to the hotels. When I thanked the landlord of one of the hotels for his kindness to us, etc., the tears ran down his cheeks. Having to wait a few minutes at the station we passed the time in singing, the station agent and others joining in. God is working with us more and more. The path is shining brighter, there is a good prospect ahead.

Family duties call me home for two or three weeks.

June 13th.—Some brother in Iowa sent me money for a copy of my "Bible Synopsis" some time before the work was done, and I have mislaid the address; I hope he may see this and send me his address and I will send the book.

J. J. CORNISH.

CORMORANT, Minn., June 7th.

Brn. Joseph and William.—Our conference at Luce, the 4th of this month, was the very best I have attended since I came to this State; truly the good Father blessed us. I think that all returned to their homes feeling much better.

It seems that during the conference the foundation gave way beneath the Advents, as one said I proved by the Bible that we had the true church of Jesus Christ. But still they want to have a debate with us. On Monday morning before we left there the proposition was written out by J. R. Anderson and Florence D. Omans, and "Aunt Mary," as she is called, of the Advent faith, has sent to Minneapolis for her big gun. I baptized one on Sunday.

Some are waiting for me to return into Otter Tail county, will try and reach there by the 16th, and labor in that county about two months. My address is Battle Lake, Otter Tail county, Minnesota, till further notice. My health is very much improved since it commenced to grow warmer.

Old grandfather and grandmother Keider, with several of their children from Friberg, were in attendance at conference; they don't belong with us as yet, but I must say that I never, in all my travel, found a better class of people. They believe with all their hearts that we are right; I do hope they will join the Reorganization. I have more calls than I can fill. Old Sister Buckley

Anderson bore her testimony in conference before many of the world, that she was personally acquainted with the prophet Joseph Smith and family, and knew Joseph was a good man, and died as a martyr. A colored preacher spoke here last evening; he says he has heard young Joseph Smith preach several times, and that he is a good man, and the church he presides over is not connected with the Utah people.

"Sing, brothers, sing, time's on the wing."

J. C. FOSS.

BROWNSDALE, Minn., June 13th.

Dear Joseph and friends:—I am twenty-five years old, of rather a religious turn of mind since a child, going to different sects in order to find out their belief and practice. I am considered as good as the best posted in this village on bible matters, teach a bible class in our Sunday School, and am counted truthful in all things. Considering myself old enough to judge in such matters for myself, I would say, that while attending a series of meetings in the Graves School-house in Grundy county, Iowa, I was forcibly struck by the new way the gospel was presented by elder I. N. White of your church; also by the manner in which the Spirit of Christ came upon him the night before the city of Grinnell was torn to pieces, causing him to prophecy before the congregation that there would shortly a great calamity come upon the people. This was said in the evening, and the next day I think we received the awful news of the disaster. These and many other wonderful things spoken by the brethren while there years ago have taken root within me, and I feel like a new man, and feel so thankful to my Creator for sending his children to show me the true way that words would be inadequate to express it. I have experienced that which the brethren told me I should. Now I am ready to be baptized for the remission of my sins. Please send some one here to baptize me. I will send money for Herald, and for tracts treating on the new gospel as you present it to men.

If an elder sent here gives a short time for the announcement of his preaching to circulate, I think he would have a good house. There are two churches in this village, and I think I could procure either one of them; the poor people of this locality would surely come out to hear the new gospel, for they never have heard such things in the past.

Your brother,

WILLIAM J. GRAVES.

[Elders in charge of above field should look after this call at once.—Ed.]

BROWN CITY, Mich., June 6th.

Dear Herald:—I am laboring all my circumstances permit. I have been in the church nine years, and in the ministry seven years of that time. Ever since I was called I have known it was my duty to go forth and labor; but have kept putting it off for a more favorable time, and by neglecting my duty I have got into many snares and difficulties which I would not if I had done my duty. About six months ago I made a covenant with God that I would go forth and labor in the field as a minister, and God showed me that if I did my duty he would bless me spiritually and temporally; so I started out. Suffice it to say that since I have tried to do God's will I have had many trials; as Paul says I have been in peril among the people of the world and among false brethren; but through God's grace assisting I have been able to do my duty. On the 3d day of May I left my home, through the direction of the Spirit of God, for a place called Five Lakes, some seventeen miles from home. Got there after a hard walk. I had labored some there before. The next day I baptized seven; remained there a week, baptized some every day or two, until I had baptized twenty-two.

On the 14th I left for Tawas City, as the Saints up there sent for me. On Sunday the 22d I baptized four. Stayed there a week, preaching every night, I found the Saints at Tawas in a very cold state, but as good hearted people as I ever met with, and they were willing to learn. The reason they had got in that state I think was that they have not had the privileges some others have had. They have been organized four years, and during that time no elder has been with them excepting once in a while one would drop in and preach a sermon and pass on. There is always a reason for our getting cold and lukewarm, and as a rule find it is when we work out of order. I must say I found as good material there for a branch as I ever found anywhere; some noble men and women who want to do their duty, and I believe they will. I also met with brother and sister Sinclair, two noble Saints, whose hearts are in the work, and I feel they will be a great help to the Saints there. I am sorry to see such men as brother Sinclair tied up, for if we had more of them in the field the work would prosper more. I also met with an old-time Saint, a lady by the name of Wheeler; she was baptized by one Hickey, but by talking with her I found she was not rightly brought into the church, but she was strong in the word of the gospel. I told the old lady she would have to be baptized again. She was willing to, but her son and daughter live with her, and they are very much prejudiced against the work. I am sure that the first time I or some one else go there she will be baptized.

I returned from Tawas to Five Lakes on the 28th, and stayed there until June 3d; baptized two more. Went from there to Uby to attend our conference on the 4th and 5th. When I got there I found a large gathering of Saints, and among them Bishop G. A. Blakeslee, which seemed to encourage me more than anything else, for I wanted to see some one who could tell me how to proceed, and he seemed to be just the one I had been looking for. We had a splendid time, the Lord being with us all the time we were together. We had good testimonies, good preaching, and on Sunday forenoon from Bro. Blakeslee a sermon on the law concerning temporal things,—a noble discourse, and very instructive and encouraging to the Saints. In the afternoon had a sermon from Bro. J. J. Cornish, after which four were baptized. Returned home Monday, found my family well.

Tuesday, started again for Five Lakes. Found that while I was at conference a Mormon-eater had been there, and wanted to eat me; as I was not there he will have to come back when I am there. I understand he will be there next Sunday, and if the Lord will I will be there too.

June 7th.—At Five Lakes, but no Mormon-eater here; he is expected here on Sunday next. I hope he will come, for there are a number here almost persuaded, and as a common thing some are baptized after a discussion. The people are in quite an uproar; I think there will be a calm after Sunday, there is after a storm.

I must say I never saw a time since I came into the church when there was such a call for preaching. On my right and on my left they are asking me to come and preach in their school-houses or their churches, or wherever they hold meetings. I am so thankful I have got started into the work, and I hope and pray that I may remain faithful. I am laboring under the direction of the Bishop and the president of the mission.

Yours in bonds,

J. A. CARPENTER.

MANCHESTER, England, May 29th.

Editors Herald:—I send by this mail copies of "The Warning Cry," edited by one Fredrick Boyce, who professes to be sent of God to prepare the Christian church for the Lord's second advent. When first this man made public his call and work, I put myself in communication with him and he has sent me his tracts and papers ever since. I love to try the spirits and prove all things as far as possible, not wishing to judge any one or any matter before I hear more fully. The platform of the latter day work is broad enough and firm enough to allow of free thought and free inquiry. If this man's claim is true it will stand; but if false it will result in loss and shame to all who accept it. As far as I have read his works and private letters I can not find aught to convince me that he is correct in his claim or views. One of his dates for the coming of the Lord has passed and those who trusted to it were deluded. His blows fall upon Latter Day Saints, Shakers, Spiritualists, etc., etc., as well as the older churches of Rome Greece, England and the Nonconformist churches. Many of his followers have left him as you will see in his "notes."

May we all hold fast to the rod of iron, the law and the testimony, and thus steer our barks clear of shoals and breakers.

Yours for truth and right,

C. H. HASSALL.

ISRAEL IN JAPAN.

IF it is the truth that the Japanese are of the Hebrew race and in their reigning family have a direct descent from the royal line carried away from Jerusalem over seven hundred years before Christ, then it is worth while to know it.

Your correspondent has recently come from Jerusalem, and has been impressed as all other visitors are with the city, its new life, and the signs of its restoration. May the people of Japan have a share in the good work of advancing the city to its destined greatness when it shall sit as the capital of the world.

In this communication only a few of the points can be touched upon, for considering the Japanese of the tribes who, according to prophecy, and in fact, have been scattered unconscious of their origin.

From Bryant's Ancient Mythology, volume five, page 229, the following is quoted, which, as you read, please bear in mind that there is almost certain proof that the Sacae are Israelites deriving their name from Isaac:

"Extending themselves northward, under the name of Sacae and Sacaians, they obtained possession of Sogdiana and the regions upon the Iaxartes and from thence they extended eastward to the ocean maintaining the renown they had acquired as great archers and calling their settlement Sacaiia. In one of these settlements their principal city was called Sacastan—the Sacastana of Isidorus Chasacenus. They also acquired possession of the upper part of China which they called Cathaia, from whence wanderers penetrated this China and passed over to the islands of Japan, one of which was called from the name of their country Sacaiia."

Arguments which have weight with us, work from the present Japan upwards and backwards to Judea, and forward, beginning with the dispersion, and coming downward, both agreeing most exactly.

We find Japan tracing up its present dynasty and the ancestry of the people at large, except the aborigines, is, the Ainos, to 660 B. C., where it stops; but above that is a mythological history of twelve and their wives, and of three greater personages, or demi-gods, all pointing to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and the twelve sons of Jacob, heads of the twelve tribes.

Not only do we find Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and the twelve patriarchs in the more misty annals of the Japanese which precede 660 B. C., but the names of the first parents of mankind according to the Hebrew records are well preserved in Japanese tradition, known by every body as Izanaki and Izanami. In Hebrew Ish is the first man and Isha the first woman, differing as do the Japanese words only in the last syllable. The similarity of the words is remarkable and too much alike to be a mere coincidence. China has no such terms as we can trace.

Again, the name of Japan is Nippon, that is the country of the origin or rising of the sun, which in Chinese Mandarin dialect is Feh pen, the first syllable being pronounced R with a Z or buzzing sound following, and the second been or ben. We hear Japan spoken of throughout the north of China as if the word were Reuben. Certainly it is so near as to be very suggestive. We turn to the land of Canaan, or Palestine, the ancient home of Israel, and we find the tribe and state of Reuben at the east and called also the land of the Sun Rising. The similarity of sound and meaning and position of the sun's origin, at the extreme east of the continent, separated by the Yellow Sea and Reuben the Land of the Sunrising at the east of Paletstine separated by the river Jordan and Dead Sea, is startling. The effect of such a disclosure upon one is largely sobered down into almost a certainty as to the identity of Japan with Reuben when you read in Deuteronomy (32: 8) that the Lord divides the earth among the nations according to the number of the twelve tribes of Israel. The additional points of comparison are the scriptural prophecies regarding Israel in general and Reuben in particular. The present race are not pure Reubenites, and it is well known that among Joseph's descendants are to be found the kings of Israel. One prophecy of Reuben reads:—"Let Reuben live and not die and let him be many in number." Another prophecy is that of the father of the patriarchs:—"Reuben, my first born, you are my strength, and the beginning of my children, hard to be borne, hard-obstinate, licentious as water you may not boil up, for you went up upon your father's bed, then you defile the couch where you pass up."

Japan is "Reuben"—having a position upon the east of Asia just as the first tribe of Israel lay at the east of Jordan. The Japanese whose history dates from 660 B. C., are Israelites, carried first into captivity to Assyria. Above then is Corea, known as Kaoli, or Gaoli, which is Gad, making the Coreans also of Israel. Still north is Manchu, that is Manasseh, extending north-east for an interterminal distance. The whole continent of North and South America, in their former civilization, were at one time largely of Israel. Joseph's descendants are the most prolific, and "run over the wall." The Mongols, Ilians, Tibetans, Kergese, Afghanistans, and others, all thro' north Asia are also Israelites. And so of Northern Europe; Dan, Napthali, etc., have their counterparts, in Denmark, Norway, Sweden. Judah and Benjamin are everywhere, but not so much in the north. The Jews are of them. Ishmael has a most numerous progeny; so probably have Keturah's children, and Esau's likewise.

I have not investigated sufficiently the claims of the Anglo-Israel identification party, but at present think them too exclusive. As my researches have been in Japan and Mongolia, I do not as yet succeed so satisfactorily in mapping off other parts of the earth.

I believe that the plot of a grand drama is to be revealed some day when it will be seen that the literal seed of Abraham have pretty much inherited the earth. The great revolutions have been going on unnoticed by man, but often it has been one tribe of Israel supplanting another.

PRIDE.

It seems as if this subject must have a ventilating from almost every corner of these United States; and, while we fully concur with the brother in some things in Herald of June 4th, we beg indulgence of the editors to say a few words regarding pride. It is true we should all be in harmony as touching our religious belief. Now, if the brother thinks that it is pride to dress decently, and having a Sunday suit instead of our every day clothes to wear on Sabbath, (although they be washed on Saturday previous for the occasion), we can not consistently agree with him. We believe we could mention members of our church who are proud because they are not proud, and who feel more important with a pair of overalls, and blue denim blouse, and old faded straw hat, than many persons who keep a decent suit of clothes to wear on the Lord's day. We should show some respect for the house of God, and not go about with downcast looks, wearing our every day clothes to correspond with our long faces,—for if there is any one who should be cheerful, and feel happy, it certainly is the Christian; and his raiment should be in harmony with his spirits and feeling; and if, as the brother says, the faces of the poor are caused to be ground, it is undoubtedly because of some of the brethren who go to Saints' meeting wearing their old overalls and old plow boots; for as a general thing the very poorest dress more decently than some of those who could afford it better, and who go around so long faced, and who try to make believe those who don't have their old every day clothes washed on Saturday to wear on Sabbath, is proud. While we are not upholding foolish extravagance, we would ask the brother to look at some of the old patriarchs, and Christ himself, did not they dress as the fashions were in those days? Did not Jesus himself wear fine linen? And Jacob, did he not make Joseph a coat of many colors, showing conclusively that he had an extra suit to wear, and sack-cloth was only worn when they wished to appear and to be penitent for some misdeed. Further; the brother speaks of extravagance in wearing jewelry, or probably a watch chain made of gold. We want to ask him how he'll reconcile himself to the apparent extravagance in building Solomon's temple. Look at the massive timbers of cedar which might have been put to better use, and the immense plates of gold and silver that could have been coined into money and given to the poor, for certainly there were poor people in those days. But no, Solomon wanted to outshine all others in splendor and magnificence, O how it must have ground the faces of the poor when they would look to the temple, and compare their own humble habitations with all this useless splendor, and compare their blue denim robes with Solomon's? He certainly should not have built this temple so grand. Does not the Lord delight in having his things grand and beautiful? His people as well as his property? Does the brother think, if we be so happy as to reach the New Jerusalem, we could enjoy ourselves walking the gold-paved streets with old, poor, cheap clothing on our bodies?

The brother also speaks of coming out from the world, &c. If we understand this scriptural quotation, it does not mean that we should dress meaner or poorer than others, because we are Saints, but at a certain time when the Lord shall call his people to Zion, then are we to come out from the world, and not till then. How are we to leave our earthly possessions and come out from the world? Does he mean that all these things are to be taken from us now, before the Lords calls? No, brother; the pride of which we speak is not in the clothes, but in the person; and we should endeavor to dress as befits our means and calling. If our elders were to go about preaching, wearing old, faded blue-drilling, the world would have more to say about us than they now do. God is a God of order and cleanliness, and requires of us to dress as becomes his followers, and wear a bright, and cheerful countenance, showing to the world that there is reality in the religion of Jesus Christ. Now, with the best of feeling toward the brother, we would ask him to reconsider a few of his propositions, and while our garments should be plain, let us have a different suit to wear on the Lord's day, and show to the world that we respect our God, and lay aside our every day overalls, and dress decently.

Yours in love,
J. W. DUMBALD.

She was baptized July 1st, 1883, at Lamoni, Iowa, by Elder H. A. Stebbins. She was a good girl and an obedient daughter. Also of the same family, Daisy Bell died May 5th, of the same disease, aged 3 years and 3 months. Thus a double sorrow has come to these parents.

JOHNSON.—At Fairfield, Nebraska, at 7:30 p.m. June 7th, 1887, of old age and general debility, sister Almira A. Johnson. During 1836 she lived for six months in the family of the Prophet; she was with the church through all its trials in Ohio, Missouri and Illinois, and not until the church rested at Florence, Nebraska, did she seek to serve the Lord elsewhere than where the body of the church met. Her faith in the cause never wavered, and she had respect and confidence for the Prophet and family. She was received upon her original baptism by the late Kirtland Conference. Elder Aylsworth, of the Christian Church, conducted the funeral services, and spoke kind words of her faithful service as a member of the church of Latter Day Saints. She had a great desire to unite with the Reorganization before going hence.

Elvin in the presence of a large gathering of friends. He sank into a calm and peaceful sleep after an illness of nearly six months.

WHITEHEAD.—At Mexico, Oswego county, New York, June 2d, 1887, Elder Ezra T. Whitehead, aged 71 years, 9 months and 26 days. He was born in Onondago county, New York, August 7th, 1815. He became a member of the Latter Day Saints in the year 1840, and was ordained an elder, 1842, and was an efficient laborer in his calling in the early days of his ministry, and always advocated the doctrine in all his long-life years to the time of his death. Peace to his memory. Funeral services at the residence; sermon by Elder C. G. Lanphear, June 5th; a large audience and long procession bore witness to the worth of the departed to society.

Baptized by John Shippy in 1862. Has been for several years a member of the Independence (Missouri) branch. Funeral services at the family residence, four miles from Blue Springs, and funeral sermon by Joseph Luff at the Saints' Chapel, Independence, June 5th, 1887. His wife and seven children survive him, and mourn his departure. Bro. Campbell was well known to the Saints near Fox River, Illinois, in earlier days. His faith in the gospel remained fixed to the last.
