Editors Herald: We are the only Saints in this part of the country so far as we know, my stepfather and myself. We hope and pray for an elder to come this way. It has been several years since I heard a sermon, only as I read them in the HERALD. I enjoy reading the HERALD, as my poor old mother did before she died.

I am writing this to ask Brother E. A. Erwin to come and preach her funeral. She wanted him to preach it, so I thought the surest plan to get him was to write to him through the HERALD. My mother was Mrs. H. F. Bussell. E. A. Erwin may write us to the address given and come to Temple, Oklahoma. We will meet him and care for him as long as he can stay. We would like for him to come by October 15.

We ask all the Saints to pray for us.

Your sister,

ROUTE 3.

MAGGIE BENNETT.

ROCKFORD, ILLINOIS, September 22, 1913.

Editors Herald: Have just finished on Sunday another eight-day meeting here, held at private houses.

There is no branch here as yet, but there are now about one dozen members and one dozen "leaners." We organized a Sunday school yesterday with at least twenty-four members. We feel sure that the school will be a success and that in the Lord's due time the "leaners" will all be members, and a branch organized here.

We have had quite a lot of opposition from the pastor of the State Street United Evangelical Church. The editor of the Register Gazette has been very good and has published our articles, as well as those of the Reverend Hershey.

Brother J. F. Curtis was with us two nights last week, and gave us two good stirring sermons. Brother J. A. Daer was with me most of the week, and assisted much.

I am feeling good in the work, and have no reason to be discouraged.

Hopefully, trusting ever,

JASPER O. DUTTON.

HOUSTON, TEXAS, September 26, 1913.

Editors Herald: In a former letter I stated that we needed an elder to locate here that we might be organized into a branch. Elder N. L. Starks, of Stowell, Texas, saw my letter in the HERALD, and after some weeks of meditation concluded to move here and see if he could be of some service to the Master in helping to build up the work here in Houston.

Brother George Leigh and family also moved here to be with the Saints. Brother Leigh is a teacher, and it looks as if God directed both of these brothers to come here.

Brother W. M. Aylor came here about two weeks ago and remained with us over two Sundays. While here he organized us into a branch, with the following officers: N. L. Starks, president; T. J. Jett, priest; George Leigh, teacher; Sheldon Armstrong, deacon and clerk. In harmony with the Spirit, Brethren Jett and Armstrong were ordained to their respective offices, and thus the branch was fully organized, with twenty-nine resident members. A Brother Smith was baptized on the following Sunday, making thirty members.

Brother Smith is the father of Sister Zita Jett, and we believe his declining years will be spent in doing all he can in God's service.

We have Sunday school at 10 o'clock, preaching at 11, and again in the evening, also prayer service on Wednesday evening, at 110 East Ninth Street, Houston Heights. Brother Stark's address is 537 West Nineteenth Street, Houston Heights.

At our district conference, which convened with the Texas Central Branch, July 12, a district Sunday school association was organized, to be known as the Texas Central District Sunday School Association. The officers elected are F. C. Gough, superintendent; A. M. Nunley, assistant superintendent; Sheldon Armstrong, secretary and treasurer; Sister Frances Sherrill, home department superintendent; and Sister Lizzie Mitchell, librarian.

These minutes should have appeared with the conference minutes, but for some reason the conference minutes did not appear in the HERALD and thus the delay.

Your brother in Christ,

SHELDON ARMSTRONG.

News from Missions

Hawaii.

After an absence of over five months I returned here by the Sierra from San Francisco on Monday, September 15. I assumed my business and church duties forthwith, and have been kept busy, as you may realize.

I am pleased to report the church work to be in good condition. Elders McConley and Barrett, with the help of some of the local officers, have kept things moving during my absence. The Honolulu Branch lost two members by death while I was away. There have recently been some baptisms which we expect to be followed by others now interested. So progress is being made.

Yesterday, Sunday, the first Sunday school convention of the Reorganized Church in this mission was held in Honolulu. The convention was a great success, and our Sunday school workers are much encouraged over the prospects. The exercises, which were taken part in by American, Hawaiian, Japanese, and Chinese children, were in charge of Brother R. H. Harbottle, the district superintendent.

I feel that I have been benefited both spiritually and physically by my long stay on the mainland. I remember with pleasure my meeting with the Saints in Washington, District of Columbia, Stirling, Virginia, Brooklyn, Boston, Independence, Missouri, Garden Grove, California, San Jose, San Francisco, and Oakland. As soon as I possibly can I shall fulfill the promises made to some to write them personally, but for the present I trust the assurance I now give them through the medium of the HERALD that I am not forgetting them will suffice.

In gospel bonds,

G. J. WALLER.

SEPTEMBER 22, 1913.

Far West District.

I feel very grateful to our heavenly Father for his long-suffering and love manifested to me. It is surprising how patient and considerate he is toward his unfaithful children. If it were not for the consideration he has for the welfare of his work and people some of us would receive but little inspiration in our work. I, for one, want to grow better, for there is much room for growth in my case, (as with the most of others, I suppose).

Some fields are much easier worked in a missionary way than others. That being the case, we can not very well judge the success of individuals by the reports made on paper. But this we do know, it is very encouraging to read of the success being had in the different fields. We have labored as we could this year, with whatever success or failure time will more perfectly reveal. Have baptized ten so far, with bright prospects for missionary work in the future. I think this fall and winter we can do some preaching in new places.

About the 17th of this month I was called to Kingston to preach the sermon before laying the body of our aged Brother Andrew J. Seeley to rest in the grave. They preferred the "Jots man," to do this work, he, like Brother Seeley, being an aged soldier, not only in the Lord's work but also in his country's service, and a long time special friend of the family; but they could not get him, he being on the firing line, too far away. So I fell into the niche, not to take his place, for I could not possibly do that, but to do the best I could, which I did.

Brother Seeley was seventy-eight years, six months, and six days old. He was in the church for over forty years, a monument of patience and faithfulness, without an enemy, so far as I know. He was highly respected and honored.

He had been ill since March, quitting his workshop at that time, where he had been employed continuously for years, as a wagon maker. He had a cancer on his right hand. He brought his tools home last March, and from that time he steadily failed until death relieved him of his suffering, on September 16.

His dear wife told me that everybody had been so good to them that she wanted me to write something about it, and to make it strong, so you will understand her appreciation. May God bless, cheer and comfort her the rest of her days on earth.

I have now been five years in Far West District. My associations with the Saints in this district have been very pleasant, in the main. I have formed attachments that will be hard to break away from; but that is the lot of the missionary.

May the Lord bless all the followers of the cross, everywhere. With well-wishes to all, I am,

Your brother,

E. L. HENSON.

HARDIN, MISSOURI, September 26, 1913.

News from Branches

Los Angeles, California.

Patrick Miguel, the lineal chief of the Yuma Tribe of Indians, was baptized at the church in Los Angeles, Sunday, September 21, by V. M. Goodrich and confirmed the same evening by V. M. Goodrich, Frederick Adam, and R. T. Cooper. The confirmation was quite lengthy, and very comforting and encouraging. Among other things it was said that, if faithful, he should be richly blessed in visions and dreams, and have evidences of the work and its truthfulness and be able to say, "I know it is true"; that he would be called to do a work and be a chosen instrument in the hand of the Lord to minister unto his own people and to others; he should become a polished shaft.

After the confirmation he was presented with an Inspired Translation of the Bible, a Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, all in morocco binding, the Religio of the Southern California District being the donor, the presentation being made by Religio District President R. T. Cooper, especial stress being laid on the "plain and precious things" omitted from the King James translation, supplied in the Inspired Version and the covenants to his father, the Book of Mormon. The whole service was very impressive and accompanied by a marked degree of the Holy Spirit.

On the following Tuesday Brother Miguel quite unexpectedly came to Brother Goodrich to relate a vision received on Sunday night, saying that the one thing that had troubled him and over which he had prayed for light was to know about the Inspired Translation. He now feels assured on that point. The vision, in his own hand, follows:

"Up to the time and even after I was baptized I doubted and was greatly troubled over the Inspired Translation of the Bible. However, I trusted that the Lord would show me everything, as I had always trusted him. On the night following my baptism and confirmation I went to bed rather early, contrary to my habit, and it was not long till I went to sleep.

"I saw before me in my dream the Inspired Translation which was presented to me by Brother R. T. Cooper that evening. I saw also alongside of the Inspired Bible (King James) as it is. I saw a hand turning over the leaves of the two books and heard a voice say that the Inspired Book is correct. The hand, or a finger, pointed out certain places in the Bible where certain passages had been left out; the finger also pointed out to me in the Inspired where those passages left out in the Bible had been supplied. I woke up three times during the night, but each time I went back to sleep the same dream appeared to me. When I woke up the fourth and last time it was daylight.

(Signed), "PATRICK MIGUEL, Los Angeles, California.

"SEPTEMBER 22, 1913." R. T. COOPER, Correspondent.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN MISSOURI—Conference and reunion convened with the Ava Branch, August 22, continuing ten days. J. T. Davis, J. F. Cunningham, Ammon White, and G. A. Davis presided. Ministry reporting: J. T. Davis, J. F. Cunningham, J. W. Quinly, C. T. Barr, Benjamin Pearson, T. J. Simpson, G. A. Davis, Fred Moser, jr., G. W. Anderson, H. V. Braun, L. M. McFadden, Grant Burgin, J. W. Dubose, F. E. Yale, J. B. Scott, Brother Edwards. Branches reporting: Springfield 210, gain 10; Beaver 107, gain 16; Ava 103, corrected 98, gain 8; West Plains 57, gain 4; Thayer 39, gain 3; Grove Springs 51, gain 3; Woodside 50, loss 1. J. A. Miller and Glen Seley, of Ava Branch, were ordained priest and teacher respectively. C. H. Smith and W. R. Norris, of Woodside Branch, were ordained priest and teacher respectively. Piedmont Branch was disorganized. Organization of branches at Carter and Mills Spring were approved, matter being referred to district president and J. T. Davis, with instructions to organize. Benjamin Pearson reported as treasurer: Receipts since March, $5; expenses, $4.03. As Bishop's agent: Receipts, April to August 23, $149.44; expenditures, $126.06. Brother Pearson having resigned, G. A. Davis, of Thayer, Missouri, was recommended for bishop's agent. He chose as sub-agents, J. T. Davis, J. F. Cunningham, and J. W. Quinly, which selections were ratified. District officers were sustained. Vote of thanks was extended retiring bishop's agent. Conference adjourned to meet in March, 1914, at Dagonia, Missouri.

SOUTHERN WISCONSIN—District convened at Madison, Wisconsin, September 27, E. J. Goodenough in charge. Branches reporting: Madison, Janesville, Buckwheat Ridge, Wheatville, Beloit. Bishop's agent reported; Receipts $193.76; disbursements $113. Treasurer reported: Total receipts $16.75; disbursements $7.25. Ordination of Arthur Davenport of Wheatville Branch to office of elder was approved. Officers elected: President, E. J. Goodenough; vice president, E. A. Townsend; secretary, Miss Virgie Flint; librarian, Roy Farber. Delegates chosen to General Conference were: E. J. Goodenough, L. O. Wildermuth, A. E. Gratz, B. C. Flint, E. A. Townsend. Virgie Mae Flint, secretary.

Pastoral.

FIRST SEVENTY.

To the First Seventy; Brethren in Christ: In counsel together this, the twenty-fourth day of September, 1913, we concluded it advisable to send this epistle to you, without assuming that you had not taken thought along the same lines, but to stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance.

Your calling indicates active and continuous labor in the ministry. It calls from your family, as well as from yourself, a peculiar sacrifice which none can make except by a living faith. 'Tis true that we have met with discouragements by reason of our families not being properly cared for, although in a few instances it has been caused by our brethren of the ministry and their families not being willing to make the sacrifice necessary to live within the provisions made. This has come about for various reasons, all of which it may be necessary for us to correct or to render assistance in correcting, as individuals, as families, and as a quorum; and while doing our part we should let our moderation be known to all.

It is very easy, it seems, to see wherein others have been or are at fault, and we seem to further see that if we were in their position how much better we could do than they are doing. We are assured that the most effective way that the correction of past mistakes may be made is for every man to learn his duty, and to stand in his own office and calling.

Those who have been called to and have taken upon themselves the office of seventy should, so far as health and the conditions of their families will permit, place themselves subject to the requirements of their office; and if it becomes necessary to adjust home conditions, to do so as speedily as possible, so that no failure of the church fulfilling its purpose can be legitimately laid at our doors. Place your families in such a position that they can enjoy church, social, and educational privileges at a minimum cost, and then when placing your name for appointment give information of your needs and just wants, taking your family into your counsel in making your conclusions, and then they will be more willing to be subject to the sacrifice necessary to live within the specified amount.

By standing as a unit in our sacrifices and faithfulness to duty we can more consistently and effectively suggest and assist in outlining the policies that will encourage others to more fully carry out the law of God by which more laborers may be sent into the vineyard and the nations warned; and the families of all may be cared for within the purview of their "just wants" without the necessity of political enforcement of a changed condition. Thus may we prove to the whole world that the gospel has in it all that is necessary, when properly executed in the spirit of love, to redeem from the bondage of sin and Satan, and to bring about a condition by which all will understand how to utilize that which they have as God would have them, not by force, but by reason of the enjoyment that is had by so doing.

The voluntary contributions that come into our possession to satisfy legitimate needs should be used only as would assist in the building up the kingdom of God and to more fully establish his righteousness. In our expenditures we should be ensamples of how that for which we must give account to God should be used.

Your department should always be as "men of God," whether in public or in private, whether at home or abroad. Minimize your desires to legitimate necessities, and eat such things as are set before you in a manner to show you are appreciative of kindness shown. Do not make any unnecessary burden to those whose hospitality you may share.

Do not try to assume pulpit airs, neither be careless of the earnestness and devotion that should be shown in preaching the word. Put self in the background, and ever, in all you say and do, bear witness of the Christ, whose witnesses we are.

Information that any of you can give us for the good of the quorum or any member of it we will receive with gladness, and any assistance we can render any of you we are ready at all times to do, so far as we have ability. We have considered with sympathy and prayerfulness the trials that come to our notice, and we are made glad to know of your deliverance therefrom. Be patient, brethren, and cheerful in your warfare, and gather lessons from all these trying experiences that will better fit you for your peculiar responsibilities; and no matter how great the trial or how dark the day, do not, we beseech of you, do not give up and lay down your spiritual weapons. To yield to these conditions is to acknowledge our own weakness and lack of faith in the grace and strength of God being sufficient for our day; and, besides, this act of yielding would please Satan too well. It is he who endures unto the end that will be saved. Our sincere prayer is that none may fail, but that all may prove the power of God unto salvation.

We greatly need your support and prayers that we may render to the quorum and to each member of it the official and brotherly service that we should.

Your brethren in hope,
 JAMES MCKIERNAN, President.
 J. F. MINUN, Secretary.

FARMINGTON, IOWA, September 24, 1913.

Convention Notice.

Pittsburg Sunday school will meet in church at Fayette City, Pennsylvania, October 24, at 7.30 p. m. Sister G. I. Griffiths will take the leading part in the convention. The sessions will be devoted to institute and educational work. During the Sunday school hour on Sunday some very interesting special features will be given. Samuel A. Martin, secretary.

Eastern Michigan Sunday school and Religio will meet at Detroit in Saints' church, Fourth Avenue, near Holden, October 24. Prayer service at 9 a. m., followed by business and institute sessions. Send credentials to me by October 21. Cora M. Anderson, Saint Clair, Michigan.

First Presidency.

NOTICE OF TRANSFER.

Notice is hereby given of the transfer of Elder W. E. Peak from Idaho to the Nodaway District, in which the missionaries in charge concur.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary Presidency.
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, October 1, 1913.

Quorum Notices.

SEVENTH QUORUM OF TEACHERS.

Seventh Quorum of Teachers will meet October 26, at the conference at Detroit. There are two counselors to be chosen. W. C. Gault, president; W. G. Campbell, secretary.

Died.

MORGAN.—At Hite-man, Iowa, September 15, 1913, Brother John Lewis Morgan. Born February 14, 1869, at Brookfield, Ohio; baptized at Bevier, Missouri, May 6, 1879; married Nellie Jones, January 10, 1891; ordained priest in 1899. He leaves wife, five daughters, two sons, other relatives and friends, three children preceded him. Brother Morgan was highly gifted as a composer of vocal and instrumental music. Music of hymns 337 and 347, Saints' Hymnal, indicates the quality of his talent. He wrote other valuable numbers, some of which it is hoped may be available for church use. He was widely known and highly esteemed. Services in Saints' church, Hite-man, Iowa, P. P. Batten in charge; sermon by R. S. Salyards.

BULLARD.—Walter Henry Bullard, son of Brother and Sister W. D. Bullard, was born at Persia, Iowa, December 4, 1877, died at Independence, Missouri, September 26, 1913, after an affliction of several years with tuberculosis. He was baptized by W. E. Peak, June 11, 1887. He married Edith Barto, at Independence, Missouri, September 21, 1905. He is survived by companion, mother, father, brother, and two sisters. Sermon by J. W. Luff, interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

DUNCAN.—Etta May Duncan was born in Wayne County, Iowa, November 3, 1884; died at Spring Valley, Iowa, October 1, 1913. She united with the church January 16, 1898, died firm in the faith. The funeral was held in Elm Chapel, four miles west of Lineville, Iowa, sermon by M. M. Turpen, to a large congregation of neighbors and friends.

BULLARD.—Jonathan Bullard was born November 7, 1828, at Plum Hollow, Canada; died September 6, 1913, at the home of his son James near Persia, Iowa, after an illness of three weeks. He married Annie Maria Landon, September 17, 1849. They came to Illinois in the same year; in 1858 they moved to Decatur County, Iowa, then to Council Bluffs, in 1862. In the spring of 1868 they came to Shelby County, where he resided until death. To this union were born nine children, five having preceded him. His wife died January 22, 1899. He married Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Niblock in October, 1902. She died May 6, 1908. He united with the Reorganized Church in 1862, was ordained a priest in 1864. He was a faithful and consistent member to the end. He leaves to mourn two brothers, four children, William D., of Independence, Missouri, James H., of Persia, Iowa, Elethe E. Morrow, of Kewanee, Illinois, Sophronia M. Pelton, of Dighton, Kansas. There also survive him twenty-eight grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, many other relatives and a large circle of friends. Funeral services September 8, 1913, at the Leland's Grove Schoolhouse, in charge of Fred Hansen, sermon by Robert Chambers, of Magnolia, Iowa. Interment in Cass Township Cemetery.

WOODFORD.—Charles Harley Woodford was born in Rushville, Indiana, December 8, 1852. He resided at different times in Watertown, Ohio, Monrovia, Kansas, Waterville, Kansas, and Greenleaf, Kansas. From Greenleaf he moved to Washington, Kansas, where he filled the office of probate judge for three successive terms. He became a member of the church at Washington, under the hands of W. S. Pender, March 27, 1881. He married Bertha V. Allen March 27, 1881. To them was born one son, Leroy, who sur-

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 The Negro Problem in America - - - - - 997
 Notes and Comments - - - - - 1000
 Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, by Frederick M. Smith - - - - - 1001

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 My Model Preacher, by W. H. Gresty - - - - - 1007
 Hints on Church Behavior, by O. R. Miller - - - - - 1008
 Who Then May Be Saved, by C. H. Porter - - - - - 1009

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 The History We Want to Read - - - - - 1010

THE STAFF
 Albert N. Hoxie, Jr.—Herman N. Schwartz. - - - - - 1010

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - - 1011
 Emma L. Anderson.

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 1013
 Wallace A. Small—G. L. Sweet—E. L. Kelley—
 W. Maddock—A. A. Gaylord—G. M. Cox—S. W.
 L. Scott—George Elson—Maggie Bennett—Jasper O. Dutton—Sheldon Armstrong.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 1015
 G. J. Waller—E. L. Henson.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 1016

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 1016

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.
 Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.
 When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.
 If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us.
 The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.
 All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.
 All errors in the filing of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.
 Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.
 For advertising rates apply to the business department.
 Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.
 Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

vives him. On June 27, 1888, married Clara Mary Hawkins. To them were born four children, three of whom survive him. He died from a paralytic stroke at Portland, Oregon, September 10, 1913.

Book Notes.

Written English, by John Erskine, associate professor of English in Columbia University, and Helen Erskine, has been issued in a new edition, with all the chapters revised and new chapters discussing the composition as a whole and offering exercises for correction.

The Century Company is issuing Algebra, First Course, by Professor W. C. Brenke, of the University of Nebraska, and Miss Edith Long, of the Lincoln, Nebraska, high school faculty. The work is volume one in a new series in correlated mathematics for secondary schools.

Doctor F. S. Chapin, of Smith College, has written a book on Social Evolution, which is intended to give the general reader an elementary survey of the supposed facts and principles involved in the development of human nature out of the raw materials of lower forms of life. The book will be published by The Century Company in the early fall.

COOPERATION

HERE IS YOUR CHANCE TO BEGIN IT

The PROFITS go to your own house; come back to you.

Doesn't that sound good?

This is the way.

Just make out a list of Magazines, Daily or Weekly papers that you wish to take the coming year. Send this list to us and we will let you know the club rates. Don't wait until the rush of the holiday season. Do it NOW.

Herald Publishing House

LAMONI, IOWA

Herald Publishing House $100 Gold Bonds

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated April 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamon, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

BANK BY MAIL
WITH THE
STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth, containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Brother Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth .....75c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

WANTED—Competent cook wanted at the Children's Home. Apply to W. P. Robinson, Superintendent. 18-tf

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.
Order No.

- 141 cloth .....75c
- 141 1/2 leather .....$1.00
- 174 flexible .....$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth .....75c

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HALL BOKK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the ## Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.)
John Zahnd,
6-tf Independence, Mo.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

531 NEBRASKA FARMS TO BE GIVEN AWAY

346,000 acres near Hyannis, Nebr., on the Burlington Route to be opened to homestead. Point of registration—Broken Bow, Nebr. Time—any day October 13th to 25th inclusive. Drawing will take place October 28th. Filings will begin November 17th. See me about rates and for further information.

L. F. SILTZ, Agent
Lamoni, :: Iowa

Supplement to the Saints' Herald, Lamoni, Iowa, October 15, 1913.

BISHOP'S ANNUAL REPORT

Of Receipts and Expenditures of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints from January 10, 1912, to January 10, 1913.

RECEIPTS BY BISHOP.

Aid returned .....	$ 41.00
Local bishops and agents .....	45,382.83
Bishop's office expense returned .....	.40
Bonheim and Kensington Homes .....	2,351.10
Central Church, Kansas City, account .....	279.21
Children's Home .....	561.85
Christmas Offerings .....	8,561.96
Church buildings .....	1,599.15
College running expense account .....	524.31
Consecrations .....	3,833.36
Elders' expenses returned .....	231.39
Elders' family allowance returned .....	22.82
General expense, refund .....	5.00
G. H. Hilliard, counselor .....	50.00
Interest .....	1,377.21
Kirtland Home .....	780.00
Kirtland Temple Fund .....	57.73
Live stock .....	85.00
Postage .....	.30
Rent and leases .....	9,180.99
Real estate expense .....	5.00
Real estate contracts .....	5,796.32
Real estate .....	4,300.50
Sandhedens Banner .....	.75
Saints' and Liberty Homes .....	11,280.66
Sanitarium .....	1,244.22
Multigraph account .....	21.25
Taxes refund .....	69.08
Tithes and offerings .....	21,404.19
Tracts .....	219.50
Zion's Religio-Literary Society .....	2,174.55
Bills payable, deposits, etc., with church .....	153,918.01
Bills receivable .....	8,160.21
Accounts receivable .....	39,354.69
Total .....	$322,824.54

EXPENDITURES BY BISHOP.

Account brought forward last report .....	$ 436.78
Aid, poor, sick and needy .....	16,016.78
Auditing expense .....	99.00
Bishop's agents .....	3,198.47
Bishop's office expense, rent, postage, light, telephone, wages of help, express, freight, etc. .	4,143.61
Bonheim, church home .....	3,453.94
Church buildings .....	250.00
Central Church, claims taken up .....	4,049.72
Children's Home .....	1,879.62
Christmas Offering return .....	4.00
Graceland College .....	365.00
Elders' expenses .....	12,101.04
Elders' families .....	18,068.89
Exchange .....	20.09
First Presidency's expense .....	1,968.24
Furniture and fixtures .....	81.05
General church expense .....	2,456.39
Hawaiian Island mission work .....	100.00
G. H. Hilliard, counselor .....	100.00
Historian's office expense .....	339.39
Inheritance (elder) .....	260.00
Interest .....	9,336.04
Kensington Home, (old people) .....	843.87
Kirtland Home .....	1,133.47
Kirtland Hotel .....	6.40
Kirtland Temple repairs .....	18.22
Bishop's office library .....	54.10
Church Library .....	50.00
College Library .....	50.00

Presidency's Library .....	123.43
Palestine Mission .....	194.00
Recorder's office expense .....	1,482.04
Rent, refund .....	22.00
Real estate expense and repairs .....	917.15
Real estate improvements .....	1,110.15
Real estate .....	10,663.99
Real estate contracts .....	3,591.49
Saints' and Liberty Homes .....	3,363.33
Sanitarium .....	6,880.84
Secretary's office expense .....	180.99
Steamship agency .....	229.45
Supply Store .....	1,062.17
Multigraphs, general offices and mission department	1,267.16
Taxes paid on real estate .....	1,798.49
Tracts .....	135.96
United Order of Enoch (receipts reported) .....	1,773.57
Utah Mission .....	40.00
Zion's Religio-Literary Society .....	1,651.37
Bills payable .....	141,918.59
Bills receivable, notes, and tithe accounts credited ..	13,937.26
Accounts .....	47,143.79
Total .....	$320,371.33
On hand .....	$ 2,453.21

REPORT OF E. A. BLAKESLEE, COUNSELOR.

Receipts.

Last report due church .....	$ 63.90
Tithes, offerings, and consecrations .....	25.00
Total .....	$ 88.90

Expenditures.

Paid elders' expenses .....	$ 5.00
Due church .....	83.90

ACCOUNTS WITH AGENTS.

Receipts.

Balance due church last report, $38,062.18 less differences in balances $5,690.77 .....	$ 32,371.41
Received from Bishop .....	3,332.31
Received from other districts and agents .....	5,263.41
Received from tithes, offerings, consecrations and surplus .....	149,727.64
Received miscellaneous .....	7,497.27
Due local bishops and agents .....	1,072.92
Total .....	$199,254.96

Expenditures.

Due agents last report, $913.90, less difference in balance, $40 .....	$ 873.90
Paid Bishop .....	44,400.47
Paid elders' families .....	81,234.92
Paid elders' expenses .....	9,062.24
Paid aid, poor and needy .....	10,646.55
Paid other districts and agents .....	5,429.68
Paid miscellaneous .....	12,967.59
In hands of local bishops and agents .....	34,589.61
Total .....	$199,254.96

REPORTS OF ELDERS.

Receipts.

In hands of elders last report, less settled balance and elders not reporting .....	$ 970.28
Donations from Saints and friends .....	25,159.54
Received from bishops and agents .....	18,812.86
Furnished by elders .....	2,933.83
Total .....	$ 47,876.51

Expenditures.
Expenses, traveling, etc.	$ 46,622.01
In hands of elders	1,254.50
Total	$ 47,876.51

STATEMENT AVAILABLE ASSETS.

January 10, 1913.

Cash on hand	$ 2,453.21
Cash in hands of E. A. Blakeslee, counselor	83.90
Cash and notes in hands of local bishops and agents	34,589.61
Bills receivable	53,051.42
Accounts receivable	65,457.64
Real estate contracts	7,127.17
Real estate	123,607.62
Bonheim inventory	2,386.51
Central Church, Kansas City, Missouri	16,348.72
Central Church, Kansas City, Missouri, furniture	100.00
Children's Home	14,843.68
Children's Home, account due church	347.07
Graceland College	2,990.24
Danish Book of Mormon account	301.56
Derrick	275.00
Furniture and fixtures	2,286.94
Home dam	3,163.93
Independence Planing Mill & Supply Co., stock	2,147.50
Independence Stake assets	617.32
Kensington Home inventory	234.90
Kirtland Home inventory	1,344.55
Kirtland Hotel inventory	846.05
Lamoni Stake assets	3,405.00
Library, Bishop's office	1,445.66
Library, Church	1,388.40
Library, Historian's office	48.83
Library, President's office	563.97
Live stock	542.30
Saints' and Liberty Homes	45,387.54
Sanitarium	54,047.87
Sanitarium account	9,635.77
Multigraphs	1,245.91
Automobile, as former report	700.00
Central Lumber Company, stock	841.00
Supply Store	9,235.75
Society Islands Mission House	620.95
Total	$463,513.49

STATEMENT LIABILITIES.

Bills payable	$169,874.17
Accounts payable	12,560.39
Due agents	1,072.92
Temple Consecration Fund	1,951.70
Zion's Religio-Literary Society	1,939.78
General Sunday School Association	2,089.38
Book of Mormon Translation Fund	8.24
Graceland College	446.46
Total	$189,943.04
Net assets	273,570.45
Total	$463,513.49
Net assets January 10, 1913	$273,570.45
Net assets last report	255,604.38
Net gain	$ 17,966.07

SAINTS' AND LIBERTY HOMES.

Receipts and Expenditures by John Smith, treasurer of committee.

Receipts.

Balance January 1, 1912	$ 253.44
Grain	1.00
Live stock sales	63.72
Care and board	35.00
Offerings	81.41
Rent	14.00
Pasturage	41.16
E. L. Kelley, Bishop	1,651.00
Total	$ 2,188.73

Expenditures.

Groceries	$ 761.40
Repairs and improvements	573.25
Medical services	21.75

Miscellaneous expense	44.92
Labor	766.66
Grain	9.25
Total	$ 2,177.23
Balance	$ 11.50

Receipts and Expenditures by Joseph Roberts, treasurer of committee.

Receipts.

Live stock sales	$ 477.21
Pasturage	132.20
Rent	70.00
Board and care	258.46
Collections	35.00
Loan	209.95
Offerings	35.34
Gas pipe, windmill and tank sold	69.20
Contested check	25.00
Account	55.34
E. L. Kelley, Bishop	800.00
Total	$ 1,667.70

Expenditures.

Labor	$ 942.24
Grain and feed	242.15
Groceries	112.22
Harness and implements	118.00
Fuel	103.33
Aid	11.00
Clothing	3.00
Live stock	30.00
Contested check	27.50
Care and board	8.31
Loan	10.00
Medical services	59.95
Total	$ 1,667.70

CHILDREN'S HOME ACCOUNT.

Assets.

Two horses	$ 360.00
Ten head cattle	300.00
Five head hogs	100.00
Nineteen dozen chickens	63.00
Work harness	40.00
Farm implements	150.00
Hay	125.00
Corn and ensilage	280.00
Lawn mower, swings, child's wagons and sleds	22.00
Provisions	300.00
Reserve clothing	100.00
House furnishings	1,200.00
Cash in hands of treasurer	705.72
Cash in hands of W. P. Robinson	60.03
Real estate, vacant lots	2,500.00
Home place	12,400.00
Bills receivable	100.00
Total	$ 18,805.75

Liabilities.

Bills payable	$ 400.00
Due on real estate	1,100.00
(A. Banta, March 15, 1913)	1,900.00
(Ethel Banta, March 15, 1913)	210.00
Interest	352.07
Due church as per Presiding Bishop	14,843.68
Net worth	$ 18,805.75

INDEPENDENCE SANITARIUM.

Assets.

Office supplies	$ 59.87
Groceries	336.67
Bills receivable	240.18
Buildings	45,445.35
Medical and surgical	240.44
Cash	36.18
Furniture and fixtures	4,606.48
Live stock	359.50
Real estate	7,599.72
Accounts receivable	4,932.72
Improvements	1,448.39
Total	$ 65,355.50

Liabilities.

Accounts payable .....	$ 1,455.84
Due general church .....	9,744.49
Present worth .....	54,155.67
Total .....	$ 65,355.50
Present worth January 10, 1912 .....	56,847.98
Present worth January 10, 1913 .....	54,155.67
Loss .....	$ 2,692.31

Loss and Gain Account.

Receipts.

From live stock .....	$ 174.50
From drugs and dressings .....	81.42
From discounts .....	13.75
From operating room .....	775.00
From private rooms .....	3,993.00
From offerings .....	420.67
From special nursing .....	941.88
From steward's miscellaneous items .....	56.95
From ward room .....	2,936.47
From garden account .....	52.90
From cows .....	118.05
From chickens .....	89.37
From miscellaneous .....	1.47
Total .....	$ 9,655.43
Net loss .....	2,695.31
Total .....	12,350.74

Expenditures.

Paid for medical and surgical supplies .....	$ 757.88
Paid for groceries .....	1,200.14
Paid for office supplies .....	81.78
Paid for administrative expense, sundries .....	744.16
Paid for general expense .....	17.35
Paid for repairs .....	169.92
Salaries and wages .....	5,342.60
Paid for equipment of nurses .....	57.19
Paid for fuel .....	880.67
Paid for water .....	239.48
Paid for insurance .....	45.70
Paid for meat .....	344.05
Paid for butter and eggs, dairy products .....	871.14
Paid for tools and implements .....	.75
Special rates .....	1,328.07
Repairs .....	280.02
Furniture .....	133.25
Accounts .....	56.59
Total .....	$ 12,350.74

BONHEIM AND KENSINGTON HOMES.

Receipts.

Care and board .....	$ 2,601.90
Expense .....	3.25
Groceries sold .....	2.40
Fuel sold .....	2.00
Offerings .....	3.00
Stove sold .....	10.00
From general church funds .....	1,946.71
Due matron, Bonheim .....	6.58
Total .....	$ 4,575.84

Expenditures.

Paid expenses .....	$ 359.57
Paid fuel .....	299.91
Furniture and fixtures .....	402.77
Groceries .....	1,364.18
Improvements .....	569.61
Labor .....	1,068.77
Lights .....	27.45
Refund on offering .....	160.00
Repairs .....	103.55
Supplies .....	220.03
Total .....	$ 4,575.84

Received and Disbursed by E. L. Kelley, Presiding Bishop.

Unknown. t .....	$ 1 00	Briggs, George N., and wife,	100 00
A member .....	50	D. C., t. ....	15 00
A sister .....	20 00	Brown, Mollie, Mo., acct. ....	1 00
A sister, Cal. ....	450 00	Brown, Mollie, Mo., o. ....	1 00
A sister, Wash. ....	30 00	Brush Creek Sunday School,	4 04
A sister, Ill. ....	15 00	Ill., D. O. ....	5 00
A sister, Ill., c. ....	20 00	Brooks, Mrs. E. W., Sask.,	2,300 00
A sister, Iowa .....	2 00	t. ....	5 00
A sister, Man. ....	5 00	Brewster, D., acct. ....	2,300 00
A brother and sr. B. C. 1,500.00		Boyd, Mary A., Colo., t. ....	2 00
Allen, W. A., Ida., t. ....	5 00	Brown, Dorothy, Colo., t. ....	8 40
Allen, Blanche, Mo., acct. ....	95 00	Brackenbury, A. J., Mo.,	525 00
Allen, Blanche, Mo., t. ....	12 00	acct. ....	25 00
Allen, Brenetta, Ida., t. ....	5 00	Brown, M. B., and wife,	60 00
Ida., t. ....	4 00	Brackenbury, A. J., t. ....	1 00
Adams, Chas. W., Mo., acct. ....	10 00	Brown, Ed. and wife, Io., t. ....	18 15
Adams, Chas. W., Mo., b. o. ....	18	Brown, H. E., Mo., t. ....	4 10
Ahrens, Rosetta, Mo., t. ....	5 00	Brown, H. E., Mo., o. ....	2 00
Ahrens, Rosetta A., Mo.,	49	Bundy, Lillie R., N. D., t. ....	100 00
b. o. ....	5 00	Brown, Ed., Okla., t. ....	5 00
Ahrens, Lewis, and wife,	5 00	Buttalo Sunday School,	4 20
Mo., t. ....	65	N. Y., b. o. ....	2 00
Albron, Sister Cal., b. o. ....	31 00	Burlingame, Ruth A., K. I.,	5 00
Aid returned .....	300 00	t. ....	20 00
Alabama, Mobile District,	100 00	Burlingame, Ruth A., K. I.,	1 00
Frank Stiner, agent .....	5 00	t. ....	20 00
Amend, Tillie, Cal., o. ....	5 00	Bush, G. W., Mo., acct. ....	10 00
Anderson, Emma, Kans., t. ....	10 00	Button, Mrs. H. A., N. Y.,	10 00
Anderson, L. E., and wife,	10 00	o. ....	20 00
Iowa, o. ....	10 00	Burr, Martin T. R., Alta., t. ....	5 00
Anderson, Charlie, Kans., t. ....	38 00	Butler, George A. P., I. t.	5 00
Anderson, A., and wife,	14 00	Bumton, Arthur G., and	5 00
Kans., t. ....	10 00	wife, Wash., t. ....	5 00
Anderson, Artie, Kans., t. ....	2 08	Butts, Sr. S. D., S. Dak., o. ....	1 00
Andrews, W. Me., t. ....	40 10	Bills payable .....	163,018 21
Anderson, William, Pa., t. ....	80 00	Bills receivable .....	8,180 21
Anderson, William, acct. ....	15 50	California, Northern Dis-	3,200 00
Anker, Lena, Cal., acct. ....	30 00	trict, C. A. Parkin, Bp. ....	500 00
Anthony, Joana, Pa., t. ....	40	California, Southern Dis-	5 00
Anthony, David S., Mex., t. ....	40	trict, Fred Adam, agent .....	5 00
Archer, Mrs. A. W., Tex.,	40	Calvert, Etta, Kans., o. ....	5 00
Arnold, F. M., and wife,	40 00	Calley, Stella, Tex., t. ....	8 00
Texas, t. ....	110 00	Campbell, W. O., Mo., t. ....	4 00
Amend, Mrs. J. H., Cal., t. ....	10 00	Campbell, G. F., Mo., o. ....	50 00
Armstrong, Mrs. Walter,	100 00	Campbell, Jane, Ont., c. ....	11 92
Sask., t. ....	7 00	Campbell, Jane, Ont., o. ....	50 00
Armstrong, Mrs. Walter,	16 00	Campbell, George, Ont., o. ....	11 75
Sask., o. ....	24 00	Cameron Branch, Mo., obla.	2 10
Askins, Sarah, Wis., t. ....	4 00	o. ....	10 00
Atkins, Myrtle, Mo., t. ....	10 00	Carson, C. D., Mo., t. ....	33 00
Atkinson, Frank, and	900 00	Carson, Minta, Mo., t. ....	10 00
wife, Sask., t. ....	20 00	Carson, C. J., Jr., N. Dak.,	50 00
Austin, U. A., Mo., acct. ....	14 00	acct. ....	20 00
Awat, Mrs. F. E., Cal., o. ....	6 00	Carstensen, Peter and	2 00
Babbitt, L. L., Mo., t. ....	10 00	Mary, Kans., t. ....	2 00
Badder, H. J., Mo., acct. ....	15 00	Carstensen, Peter, Kans., t. ....	2 00
Baker, C. W., Mo., acct. ....	2 00	Carns, Amy, Oreg., t. ....	2 00
Baker, C. W., and wife,	10 00	Casey, D. W., and wife,	10 00
Mo., t. ....	6 00	Ill., t. ....	10 00
Baldwin, J. N., Pa., t. ....	10 00	Case, Maude, Mo., acct. ....	50 00
Baldwin, D. M., Ark., t. ....	2 00	Case, Martin M., Nebr., t. ....	270 21
Ballinger, Mrs. S. E.	5 00	Central Church, Kansas	97 05
Mo., t. ....	5 00	City, Mo., acct. ....	2 00
Barnes, Mrs. J. H., Kans., t. ....	7 00	Chapman, Mary G., Nebr., t. ....	0 00
Barnhart, Lucy, Mo., acct. ....	1 00	Cherokee Branch, Io., Swed-	3 50
Barnhart, Lucy, Mo., t. ....	1 00	ish Mission .....	5 00
Barnwell, P., Tex., o. ....	15 00	Chiles, C. N., and wife,	5 00
Bartholomev, George, Jr.,	5 00	Ill., t. ....	5 00
Mo., t. ....	15 00	Chrysler, Mrs. R. Mo., t. ....	8,561 96
Basquin, Emma, La., o. ....	5 00	Christmas Offerings .....	10 00
Baumgartel, Otto, Kan., t. ....	15 00	wife, Mo., t. ....	50 00
Beal, A. M., Mo., acct. ....	150 00	Chrestensen, Ellen, Io., t. ....	561 85
Beebe, Emily, Ill., t. ....	20 00	Church buildings .....	1,590 15
Beebower, W. H., and	55 00	Ciapp, Joseph C., Mo.,	02 25
wife, Okla., t. ....	5 00	acct. ....	40 00
Beebe, Mrs. C. A., Io., t. ....	5 00	Clark, Anna, Mo., o. ....	5 00
Beeman, Emily, Mo., acct. ....	5 00	Clark, Ann, Mo., t. ....	33
Begg, A., Me., t. ....	15 00	Clark, C. F., Ill., f. ....	200 00
Behnke, C. W., Mo., t. ....	25 00	Clark, Mrs. Joseph O., Mo.,	50 00
Benson, B. F., and wife,	2 25	acct. ....	50 00
Idaho, t. ....	3 30	Clark, M. G. and Nellie	50 00
Benton, Mrs. Fred,	4 91	Clevenger, F. R., Okla., t. ....	5 00
Nebr., t. ....	50 00	Cline, Albert, and Emma,	100 00
Benz, Mrs. A. D., Kans., o. ....	55	Mich., s. ....	2 00
Blekan, Sarah, N. Y., o. ....	10 00	Cline, Mrs. A. Mich., t. ....	1 00
Bird, W. H., and E. M.,	380 35	Closson, Margie, Mo., o. ....	55
Mo., t. ....	25 00	Clark, Ardelia M., Mass., o. ....	2 50
Blastow, George W., and	12 90	Coal account .....	034 72
wife, Me., t. ....	2 50	Coats, F. T., Alta., t. ....	32 00
Bliehl, Bertha M., Mo., t. ....	5 45	Cochran, Dr. Athol, Kans.,	50 00
Bledsoe, W. N., Okla., t. ....	150 00	t. ....	1 50
Boise Branch, Idaho, o. ....	2 00	Coddington, Mrs. J. L.,	2 25
Booker estate .....	2 25	Mich., t. ....	15 00
Book of Mormon transla-	3 30	Cole, Mrs. J. C., Ill., acct. ....
tion fund .....	38 01
Bootman, Wilhelmina, Mo.,	4 91
t. ....	50
Bowman, B. F., Okla., t. ....	2,000 30
Burt, E. A., Mo., t. ....	2,000 00
Burton, Mrs. E., Cal., t. ....	6 05
Bonheim .....	2 50
Bowman, Lizzie, acct. ....	2 50
Boswell, J. J., and R. A.,	2 00
Kans., t. ....	115 00
Bradshaw, Muttie, Ind., t. ....
Bradford, Mrs. L. A., Ill.,
t. ....
Brolliar, R. A., Ida., t. ....

Coles, Noredin, Io., t.....	100 00	Epperly, James A., and wife, Ill., t.....	5 00	Harrison, Edith, Ark., t. . .	1 00	Joahnk, C. C., Io., t.....	4 70
Colvin, A. B., Mo., acct.....	20 75	Erwin, E. A., Okla., o.....	55	Harrington, Mrs. J. A., Kans., o.....	55	Johnson, Margaret Bailey, Mich., t.....	5 00
Colley, W. B., Tex., t.....	10 00	Errett, Carrie, Kans., t.....	1 00	Harpe, C. E., Mo., t.....	21 40	Johnson, Minerva, Nebr., t.	5 00
Coak, Laura, Pa. sen., Mo., t.	16 50	Evans, A. J., Ida., t.....	2 50	Harper, Mary, N. Y., t.....	3 00	Johnson, Minerva, Nebr., c	5 00
Cook, D. P., sen., Mo., t.....	5 00	Evans, William J., Mont., o	1 00	Harper, Grace, Ida., t.....	2 00	Johnson, Mary, Mo., t.....	25 00
Cook, Martha J., Ala., o.....	2 00	Expense Bishop's office.....	40	Hartegan, P. B., and wife, Mo., t.....	1 00	Johnson, Bessie, Mo., acct.	84 00
Couser, Jane, Mo., acct.....	100 00	Farmer, Irene B., Kans., t.	1 00	Harper, Frederick, and wife, N. Y., t.....	3 00	Johnson, John, Mont., acct.	25 00
Constance, C. D., Mo., o.....	2 00	Farmer, Btta, Kans., t.....	1 00	Haskins, M. E., Mo., t.....	16 10	Johnson, K. and wife, Mo., acct.....	95 00
Conrad, Mrs. E. A., Minn., t.....	1 10	Fasig, W. C., Kans., t.....	3 50	Haskins, Ray, Kans., t.....	5 00	Johnson, Sister children, Cal., b. o.....	71
Collins, G. R., and wife, Mo., t.....	10 00	Fairclough, Mary J., Mo., t	2 00	Feller, Eva, Ind., t.....	5 00	Johnson, A. M., Cal., b. o.	18
Corbett, William, Nebr., t.....	11 00	Fairbanks, Ray, Kans., t.....	5 00	Ferlis, Mrs. J. A., Minn., t	5 00	Johnson, Mary, Mo., estate	107 00
Coshaw, James O., N. M., t.....	3 00	Ferrill, Miss A. B., t.....	6 20	Ferrill, Miss A. B., t.....	50	Jones, David R., Nev., c 2,000	00
Colorado, Eastern District, C. E. Bverett, agent.....	592 90	Fisk, Mary S., Nebr., acct.	28 00	Finch, S. L., and wife, Pa., t.....	5 00	Jones, Aseneth, Ill., t.....	5 00
Cowan, Alice M., Colo., t.....	50 00	Flinders, R. O., Mo., acct.....	10 00	Finn, Hulda, Mo., t.....	17 80	Jones, J. R., and wife, Nebr., t.....	10 00
Cowley, Robert, and wife, Okla., t.....	42 00	Finn, Hulda, Mo., acct.....	676 66	Fleeger, Ellen, Ind., t.....	4 00	Jolley, Philip, and J. C., Ind., t.....	5 50
Cox, A. J., and C. A., Mo., t.....	12 03	Floyd, Mary J., Mo., acct.....	194 00	Floyd, Mary J., Mo., acct.....	23 48	Jordan, Lovina, Mich., t.....	12 66
Cox, J. N., Tex., t.....	5 00	Forrest, Mrs. S. F., Wash., t.	75 00	Foss, J. C., Mo., t.....	169 07	Jordan, Melissa L., Io., t.....	1 25
Cox, Mrs. J. N., Tex., t.....	5 00	Frances Branch, Sask., oblation.....	6 85	Frances Branch, Sask., oblation.....	6 85	Kirk, W. M., Ill., t.....	25 00
Cox, Mrs. Sidney, Ont., t.....	25	Frederick, J. C., W. Va., t.....	20 00	Frederick, Mrs. J. C., W. Va., t.....	1 00	Kelley, Audencia, Io., t.....	5 00
Cox, Mrs. L. Mich., t.....	38 80	Freel, Iva, Io., t.....	2 70	Freed, William, and wife, Va., t.....	15 00	Kelley, E. L., Mo., o.....	55
Craven, Jennie, Nebr., t.....	5 00	Fry, Robert, Ohio, acct.....	35 00	Garmer, Eliza, Ill., t.....	32 00	Kelley, B. L., Mo., acct., 1,450	00
Craig, Paul N., Mo., t.....	32 00	Galena Branch, Kans., o.....	35 00	Gadde, W. J., Alta., t.....	10 00	Kelley, Jeannette V. Mo., t.	6 00
Crabb, J. C., Alta., t.....	125 79	Gault, Jane, Nev., t.....	50 00	Gallett, M. M., Minn., o.....	1 50	Kelley, James M., Mo., t.....	50 00
Craton, Charles A., Nebr., t.....	175 00	General Sunday School Association.....	300 00	General expense.....	5 00	Kelley, James M., Mo., acct.	800 00
Crick, William, Mo., t.....	400 00	Gerber, Fred J., Mo., o.....	54 00	Gibbs, Mrs. Joseph, Kans., t.....	1 00	Kelley, Margaret, Mo., t.....	10 30
Crick, D. H., Mo., t.....	100 00	Gilbert, Mrs. H. B., Cal., o.....	1 00	Gilbert, J. W., Mo., acct.....	430 58	Kelley, Margaret, Mo., o.....	1 70
Crippen, Mrs. A. R., Io., Swedish Mission.....	1 00	Gilbert, J. W., Mo., t.....	72 12	Gilbert, J. W., Mo., t.....	72 12	Kelley, Viola, Okla., t.....	2 00
Cross, Mollie, Okla., t.....	2 50	Gillispie, Mrs. John, Mo., t.	2 25	Gilliland, Margie Viola, Michigan, acct.....	5 00	Kelley, Clara, Mo., t.....	2 00
Crumley, Charles E., Mo., acct.....	300 00	Gildden, Mrs. Volney, Mich., t.....	1 00	Gildden, Mrs. Volney, Mich., o.....	1 00	Kelso, Hattie E., Ill., t.....	1 00
Culver, C. E., Mo., acct.....	30 00	Glenwood Church, Iowa, acct.....	38 08	Gold, A. E., S. Dak., o.....	3 00	Kelso, N. W., Ill., t.....	1 00
Culver, C. B., Mo., t.....	30 00	Goold, Hugh W., Mo., acct.	64 58	Goold, Hugh W., Mo., acct.	64 58	Kelso, Nellie A., Ill., t.....	1 00
Cunningham, F. Mo., o.....	55	Gowell, M. F. and Lillian, Utah, t.....	26 50	Gooch, A. M., Okla., t.....	50 00	Kesali, M. Matate.....	432 00
Cushman, S. F., Mass., t.....	21 40	Goode, Ella, Mo., acct.....	75 00	Goode, Ella, Mo., acct.....	75 00	Kensington Home.....	144 80
Cushman, Mrs. D. R., Ill., t.	1 00	Gould, George A., Mo., acct.	100 00	Gould, George A., Mo., acct.	100 00	Kennedy, J. E., Texas, t.....	1 00
Curry, W. J., Ill., t.....	5 00	Gouldsmit, C. L., Mo., o.....	12 00	Gouldsmit, C. L., Mo., o.....	12 00	Kennedy, J. E., and wife, Mo., t.....	65 00
Curtis, Myrtle, Kans., t.....	5 00	Graybeal, Mrs. E. V., Mont., o.....	3 50	Graceford College.....	524 31	Kentucky and Tennessee, J. R. McClain, agent.....	305 30
Curtis, Emsley, and Martha, Io., t.....	1,000 00	Graveland, Frances, Mich., t.	21 00	Griffin, Ia., Ky., t.....	2 50	Kepley, W. W., Mo., t.....	2 00
Curtis, J. P., Mo., acct.....	111 60	Griffin, J. T., and Annie L., Ky., t.....	17 50	Griffith, Mary, Ore., t.....	10 00	Ketchum, George R., Mo., t.	25 00
Curtis, Frank, Kans., t.....	55	Grimes, Orressa Matelda, Nebr., t.....	1 50	Grimes, Orressa Matelda, Nebr., t.....	1 50	Kipp, Grace E., Nebr., t.....	5 60
Curtis, J. D., Colo., o.....	55	Graham, David, Mo., t.....	20 00	Graham, David, Mo., t.....	20 00	Kilburn, John, Nebr., t.....	10 00
Curtis, Lillian, Kans., t.....	10 00	Graham, Mrs. W. R., Sask., t.	1 00	Green, Mary R., Mo., t.....	5 00	Kilburn, Violet, Mich., t.....	18 00
Daniels, H. M., Ark., t.....	5 00	Green, Mary R., Mo., t.....	5 00	Gunsolley, J. W., Mo., acct.	10 00	Kilburn, Violet, Mich., o.....	6 00
Dancer, Alice P., Io., t.....	20 00	Gunsolley, J. F., Io., acct.	53 12	Gunsolley, J. F., Io., acct.	53 12	King, Vera, Cal., b. o.....	15
Darles, John, Mo., o.....	300 00	Gurwell, C. A., Mo., acct.	268 01	Hans, John G., and wife, Minn., t.....	20 00	King, Harvey, Cal., b. o.....	11
Davis, Gwanch, Cal., b. o., o.....	02	Hans, John G., and wife, Minn., t.....	20 00	Hansen, John G., and wife, Minn., t.....	20 00	Kinnear, Flora, Ind., t.....	75
Davis, E. V., Cal., b. o., o.....	28	Hain, David and Amelia F., Okla., t.....	65 00	Hain, P. M., Okla., t.....	10 00	Kinney, Inez, Io., o.....	4 00
Davis, D. W., Wash., t.....	11 50	Hain, P. M., Okla., t.....	10 00	Hale, Henry, W. Va., t.....	10 00	Kirland Temple.....	57 73
Davis, George, Kans., t.....	5 00	Hale, Katie L., Nebr., t.....	5 00	Hale, Katie L., Nebr., t.....	5 00	Kirland Home.....	780 00
Davis, A. M., Kans., t.....	6 00	Hall, Mina H., Io., t.....	20 00	Hall, Mina H., Io., t.....	20 00	Krahl, D. J., acct.....	1,550 00
Davis, A. E., Kans., t.....	27 50	Hall, Mina H., Io., acct.....	150 00	Hamil, Margaret E., Colo., t.....	11 00	Krahl, D. J., Texas, det.....	45 52
Davis, A. B., Kans., tks., o.....	1 00	Hamil, Margaret E., Colo., t.....	11 00	Hammond, D. G., W. Va., t.	1 00	Krischowsky, Louis, Ont., o	5 00
Davis, May, Kans., t.....	10 00	Hammond, D. G., W. Va., t.	1 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	LaChapelle, Mrs. M., S. Dak., o.....	20 00
Davis, Eugene A., Mo., acct.	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lake, Mrs. C. H., Mo., t.....	13 00
Davidson, Mrs. T. A., Pa., t.	2 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lamkin, Clarence, and Clara B., Colo., t.....	10 00
Day, Sophia T., Io., o.....	50	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lambert, Mary G., Mo., t.	1 00
DeVore, L., Mo., acct.....	80 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Law of Christ and its Fulfillment (books sold).....	221 30
Dean, W. H., Mo., t.....	1 10	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Landers, John, Nebr., t.....	10 00
Deards, Rose, Nebr., t.....	49 07	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lane, Stella D., Mo., t.....	3 00
De Berry, T. C., Mo., acct.	30 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Laughlin, M. F., S. Dak., o	3 00
Dennis, Ruth K., Ill., t.....	2 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Larson, Mrs. Bingto, Io., Swedish Mission.....	6 00
Dennis, Angeline L., Mo., acct.....	40 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	La Rue, W. E., Mo., t.....	84 88
Dennis, William W., and Mable, Wis., t.....	1 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lawson, Martin, Ida., t.....	20 00
Dexter, Zion's Relief-Society, Colo. trans., t.....	3 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lease, Far West farm, 4,800	00
Denton, Ellic J., Sask., t.....	3 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Leben, Edna L., Ind., t.....	2 00
Derry, Charles, Io., t.....	20 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lester, E. K., Io., t.....	2 50
Deuel, Mrs. G. E., Kans., o.....	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lewis, William, Mo., o.....	25
Devore, Rebecca E., c.....	1,400 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lewis, J. P., Okla., t.....	15 00
Dildine, George, and Emma, Mo., t.....	138 20	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Leibold, Mrs. Robert, Mont., t.....	12 00
Dingle, Mrs. O. B., Mo., t.	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lindsey, Margaret, Mich., t.	10 00
Dowker, W. H., and wife, Ill., t.....	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lindsey, Margaret, Mich., dep.....	221 05
Doty, W. A., Mo., t.....	10 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lipscomb, Mrs. W. J., Mo., t.....	30 00
Downer, Mo., t.....	1 75	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Intlie, Charles, Mo., acct.	7 50
Drucy, Jonas, Nebr., t.....	20 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Live Stock.....	85 00
Durrett, W. J., Texas, t.....	15 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lernerod, William, and Sophia, Mich., o.....	3 00
Dumanag, J. W., Io., t.....	14 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Loar, B. C., and wife, Mo., t.....	20 00
Eastwood, Mrs. A. L., Okla., t.....	3 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Locking, Alma, Mo., t.....	1 00
East Delavan Branch, Wis., oblation.....	14 70	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Locking, W. B., and wife, Mo., t.....	1 25
Eastern Colorado District Religio, trans. f.....	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lode, Michael, and Jennett, Wash., t.....	5 00
Edwards, J., and wife, Texas, t.....	10 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Logan, Mrs. H. L., Okla., o	55
Edwards, Evelyn, B. C., t.....	10 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lloyd, J., Texas, t.....	10 00
Edson, C. I., and wife, Wyo., t.....	3 50	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Luff, John, and Amelia, Mo., t.....	38 53
Edwards, Joseph L., o.....	12 30	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lukonbi, Ernest, Mo., t.....	1 25
Eckman, Andrew, Mo., o.....	0 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lundquist, Ellen, Mo., acct.	30 00
Eckman, Andrew, Mo., t.....	0 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lundy, Bessie, Mo., acct.	2 00
Elders' Expense.....	231 30	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lundeau, Ida. H., Mich., t.	5 00
Ellis, Elizabeth, and William D., Wis., t.....	10 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Lund, Fred, and wife, Mo., t.....	5 00
Emsley, Mary M., Nebr., o.....	10 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Madden, Cora M., Mo., t.....	2 00
Emmons, Mrs. A. M., S. Dak., o.....	4 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Madden, Mrs. E. L., Ore., io correct acct.....	10 00
Emmons Publishing House, t.....	123 58	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Madison, Minnie, Mo., t.....	18 00
Epperly, Eli, and wife, Ill., t.....	25 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Madison, Lena, Mo., t.....	30 00
		Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Hammond, Julia, Mich., c	5 00	Madison, Minnie, Mo., t.....	10 00

Mahoney, Mrs. M. A., Ida., t. . . . . 40 00
 Maine, Eastern District, H. R. Eaton, agent . . . . . 150 00
 Malone, Densil Walter, Minn., b. o. . . . . 50
 Maloney, W. S., and wife, Kans., t. . . . . 50 00
 Manitoba, Winnipeg District, W. I. Arnold, agent 450 00
 Manley, J. W., and Lilly E., Mo., acct. . . . . 15 00
 Maine, Eastern District, J. A. Koehler, agent. . . . . 100 00
 Mark, Mrs. F. S. N. Y., t. . . . . 5 00
 Marsh, Joseph, and Hattie, Nev., t. . . . . 8 00
 Marth, Mrs. Arthur, Ind., t. 5 00
 Massachusetts District, M. C. Fisher, bishop . . . . . 1,013 15
 Mason, Mrs. O. B., Ohio, o. 25 00
 Matthews, Annie, Mo., s. . . . . 5 00
 Matthews, Annie, Mo., t. . . . . 28 00
 May, Roderick, Mo., acct. . 637 80
 May Grain Company, acct. 700 00
 May, Nephi, and wife. . . . . 30 00
 May, Alvin, Mo., t. . . . . 10 00
 Mefford, Caroline, Io., acct. 75 00
 Merryman, H. E., Oreg., t. 57 83
 Merrick, Sister H., N. Y., t. 50
 Meadows, Jessie, Io., t. . . . . 3 00
 Messenger, Dr. W. B., Mo., t. . . . . 50 00
 Michigan, Central District, G. W. Burt, agent . . . . . 1,000 00
 Michigan, Eastern District, W. F. Smith, agent . . . . . 2,000 00
 Miller, Ida F., Ark., t. . . . . 15 00
 Miller, David and Mary, Iowa, o. . . . . 5 00
 Milner, Mrs. T. B., Okla., t. 2 50
 Mink, John Mark, Mo., t. . . . . 2 70
 Minor, M. C. A., Oreg., t. . . . . 20 00
 Minor, Emma, Mo., t. . . . . 1 00
 Minden City Sunday School Beginners, Michigan, Jerusalem Mission . . . . . 30
 Missouri, Clinton District, W. E. Reynolds, agent. 200 00
 Missouri, Far West District, C. P. Faul, agent . . . . . 500 00
 Missouri, Independence, Stake, P. B. Elder, bp. . . . . 205 00
 Missouri, Northeastern District, W. B. Richards, agt. 500 00
 Missouri, Nodaway District, W. B. Torrance, agent t. 700 00
 Missouri, Southern District, J. T. Ford, agent . . . . . 300 00
 Missouri, Saint Louis District, R. Archibald, agt. 400 00
 Moler, H. E., Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Montana, Thomas Reese, agent . . . . . 1,330 00
 Mountainville Branch, Mo., oblation . . . . . 12 40
 Morrison, Elijah, Mo., t. . . . . 100 00
 Morrison, Sarah . . . . . 3 00
 Morgan, D. J., Mo., o. . . . . 8 00
 Morgan, Lery J., and wife, Kans., t. . . . . 4 50
 Morgan, Anna May, Io., acct. . . . . 50 00
 Morgan, Mrs. J. W., Mo., acct. . . . . 13 82
 Moore, G. B., Io., o. . . . . 10 00
 Mullen, I. M., and wife, B. C., o. . . . . 5 00
 Mulgrough, C. O., t. . . . . 18 25
 Muiphy, Martha L., Kans., t. 2 00
 Myers, Joseph, Mo., t. . . . . 2 00
 McBride, Chris, and wife, Ont., t. . . . . 10 00
 McClanahan, Ada, Io., o. . . . . 50 00
 McCullum, Alex., Io., t. . . . . 5 00
 McCulley, Nellie I., Oreg., t. 100 00
 McConnell, Carliss, Ida., t. 30 00
 McCormick, Elmer E., and Alice C., Mo., t. . . . . 600 00
 McFadden, L. M., Mo., acct. 112 00
 McGuier, George A., N. J., o. 1 00
 McHenry, Mrs. T. W., Nebr., o. . . . . 5 00
 McKiernan, Alma M., Mich., t. . . . . 2 00
 McKiernan, James M., Io., t. 28 54
 McLeod, G. T. Alta., t. . . . . 150 00
 McMercedith, Mrs. J. B., Eng., t. . . . . 24 35
 McNellis, Mrs. N., Okla., t. 3 00
 McVay, C. W., and wife, Mo., t. . . . . 30 00
 McWilliams, Luetta, Oreg., t. 2 50
 Nager, Edward, and wife, Fla., acct. . . . . 65 00
 Nebraska, Northern District, H. S. Lytle, agent . . . . . 50 00
 Nebraska, Southern District, C. H. Porter, agent . . . . . 250 00
 Nebraska, Western, and Black-Hills District, Bert B. Hart, agent . . . . . 30 00

Nebraska, Western, and Black Hills District, C. W. Prettymann, agent 277 55
 Nelson, John D., Mich., o. . . . . 05
 Nelson, Hulda A., Mich., o. 05
 Nelson, Alma, Mich., o. . . . . 05
 Nelson, Joseph, Mich., o. . . . . 05
 Nelson, John E., Minn., t. 18 00
 Nelson, William; Pa., t. . . . . 20 00
 Nelson, Cora, Mo., t. . . . . 2 25
 Nickelson, Mauda L., Kans., t. . . . . 10 00
 Nevada, D. R. Jones agent 8 00
 New York and Philadelphia District, John Zimmerman, bishop . . . . . 3,040 00
 New York, Western District, F. J. Upsyde, agent . . . . . 850 00
 Newton, Mrs. C. J., Cal., t. 18 00
 Newton, William, Mo., o. . . . . 55
 New Albany Branch, Ind., oblation . . . . . 96
 Newton, O. W., Mo., acct. . 23 80
 Newkirk, R. E., Mo., acct. . 2 67
 Nova Scotia, Lois Johnson, agent . . . . . 65 25
 North Dakota, J. E. Wildermuth, agent . . . . . 235 00
 Ode, Frederick, Ida., t. . . . . 1,773 95
 Oliver, C. F., and wife, Wash., t. . . . . 5 00
 Oliver, Mrs. Elv., Io., t. . . . . 5 50
 Olson, Coza, Ill., t. . . . . 30 00
 Oregon, Eastern District, H. B. Merryman, agent. . . . . 30 00
 Oregon, Southwestern District, William Smith, agt. 350 00
 Ontario, R. C. Evans, bp. 4,000 00
 Oregon, Portland District, L. Stover, agent . . . . . 170 00
 Osler, Wm., Alta., acct. . . . . 25 00
 Page, J. C. and Irene, Mo., t. . . . . 16 68
 Page, J. C., Mo., o. . . . . 25
 Pahley, Mrs. C. A., Mich., t. . . . . 2 00
 Palmer, H. A. and Alice A., Kans., t. . . . . 4 32
 Paulopolous, Stilanias, Mo., c. . . . . 70 00
 Paulopolous, Stilanias, Mo., t. . . . . 250 00
 Paulopolous, Stilanias, Mo., o. . . . . 50 00
 Patterson, Celia, Alta., o. . 2 50
 Patridge, Mrs. R., Mich., t. 5 00
 Patrick, J. W., Mo., t. . . . . 1 00
 Patridge, Mrs. R., Mich., o. 2 00
 Patridge, Mrs. M., Mich., t. 2 50
 Pattysom, W. D. C., Mo., t. 5 00
 Park, J. Lee, and Lulu, Colo., t. . . . . 55 00
 Payne, Mrs. E. A., Nebr., acct. . . . . 15 00
 Pickles, Mrs. E. L., Oreg., t. 1 00
 Pickles, Isabel C., Wis., o. 2 00
 Pickles, Isabel C., Wis., c. 4 46
 Pickles, Isabel C., Wis., t. 13 54
 Pell, H. J., Nebr., t. . . . . 40 00
 Perry, W. F., Minn., o. . . . . 10 00
 Perry, S. J., Kans., t. . . . . 1 00
 Peterson, Fern Barona, Iowa, t. . . . . 1 00
 Peter, E. E., Mo., t. . . . . 25 00
 Peterson, Carl Oscar Adolph, Ida., t. . . . . 61 55
 Peterson, Lillie, Mo., t. . . . . 20 50
 Peterson, Gus, Ill., t. . . . . 20 25
 Philippin, P. H., and wife, Oreg., t. . . . . 20 00
 Phelps, Emma, Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Pickering, W. R., Mo., t. . . . . 2,500 00
 Pilsenberger, Mrs. H. C., Kans., t. . . . . 2 00
 Pierce, H. N., Io., t. . . . . 21 81
 Pleasant, R. P., Wash., t. . . . . 5 00
 Plain, Christopher, Mo., acct. . . . . 127 00
 Planch, Claude, Me., t. . . . . 10 00
 Planch account . . . . . 260 19
 Potter, S., Mo., t. . . . . 60 00
 Postage . . . . . 30
 Post, J. H., and wife, Texas, t. . . . . 34 15
 Powers, Joel H., Me., t. . . . . 6 50
 Pratt, Leora and Minnie, Iowa, t. . . . . 4 70
 Price, James H., Conn., t. 50 00
 Price, Daisy Belle, Nev., t. 35 00
 Pronsot, O. W., and wife, Oreg., t. . . . . 10 00
 Quick, Mrs. W. L., Ill., t. . . . . 4 00
 Quick, Silas, Ill., t. . . . . 5 00
 Quick, Ersie, Ill., t. . . . . 50
 Ralston, Augusta, Colo., o. 5 00
 Ralston, Nancy J., Mo., t. . . . . 1 00
 Rankin, O. G., Ariz., t. . . . . 9 60
 Rankin, Jeff Ariz., t. . . . . 9 60
 Randolph, LaVern W., Minn., b. o. . . . . 50
 Ransom, Samuel H., jr., Texas, t. . . . . 60
 Ransom, Rhodes, Tex., t. . . . . 65

Ransom, Emma E., Tex., o. 5 00
 Reams, I. C., and Lucy I., Io., o. . . . . 45 00
 Real estate repairs . . . . . 5 00
 Redfield, Lenora, Mo., t. . . . . 1 00
 Redfield, Frank W., Mo., t. 1 00
 Redfield, Lenora, Mo., dep. 97 35
 Redfield, E. N., Kans., t. . . . . 50 00
 Rent . . . . . 2,093 49
 Reed, Millie, Mo., t. . . . . 50 00
 Reed, Odiss, Okla., t. . . . . 10 00
 Reiste, S. M., Io., t. . . . . 95 65
 Rice, I. O., and wife, Ohio, t. . . . . 7 50
 Richards, Lillie M., Nebr., t. . . . . 59 13
 Richards, Lillie M., Nebr., o. . . . . 22 50
 Rink, Mrs. A. F., Ill., t. . . . . 5 00
 Richards, E. T., and wife, Mo., t. . . . . 37 00
 Richenbach, Annie P., Mo., t. 4 35
 Richardson, Etta, Io., t. . . . . 10 00
 Richardson, Wayne R., Io., t. 5 00
 Riggle, Mrs. James E., Ala., t. . . . . 3 00
 Roach, George and D., Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Roblison, J. A., jr., and wife, Okla., t. . . . . 3 00
 Robinson, S. B., Mo., t. . . . . 5 60
 Robinson, Safome, Io., o. . . . . 12 00
 Roberts, J. V., and Elнора, Ala., t. . . . . 10 00
 Roberts, J. A., Mo., . . . . . 55
 Robertson, Mrs. W. H., Ind., t. . . . . 1 50
 Rockhold, O. L., and wife, Cal., t. . . . . 5 00
 Rodgers, William G., Io., acct. . . . . 20 00
 Rodger, Dr. G. W., Io., t. . . . . 30 00
 Rodger, Zalde M., Mo., t. . . . . 82 50
 Rogers, O. D., and wife, Ala., t. . . . . 15 25
 Roell's, Margaret, Class, Mount Zion Sunday School, acct. . . . . 3 00
 Rogers, Mrs. S. M., Ill., o. 15 00
 Rogerson, Harriet H., Mass., t. . . . . 20 00
 Rogers, K. H., Utah, t. . . . . 10 00
 Rome, Frederick A., Mich., t. . . . . 20 00
 Ross, R. K. and May, Mo., t. . . . . 50 00
 Rosson, William, Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Roth, W. C., Mo., t. . . . . 200 00
 Roth, Anna S., Pa., o. . . . . 2 00
 Roth, Carrie L., Mich., o. . . . . 11 00
 Rowley, Mary, Ind., t. . . . . 21 00
 Rowley, Luin, Ind., t. . . . . 2 00
 Rubin, J. O., Cal., b. o. . . . . 28
 Rubin, Herbert, Cal., b. o. . . . . 16
 Ruppert, Joseph, Cal., t. . . . . 10 00
 Real estate contracts . . . . . 5,457 22
 Real estate . . . . . 21,240 13
 Schrunck, Lucy, Io., dep. 100 00
 Schrank, Mrs. T. F., Ill., t. (deceased) . . . . . 100 00
 Schmitt, Katherine, Mo., t. 5 75
 Schmitt, Wm. K., Tex., b. o. 15
 Schreier, Marie L., Tex., b. o. . . . . 10
 Sedoris, O. E., Mo., t. . . . . 20 00
 Self, R. O., Mo., t. . . . . 52 22
 Severin, J. C., Kans., t. . . . . 100 00
 Shaver, Irma, Mo., acct. . . . . 25 00
 Shaw, Daniel, and wife, Mass., o. . . . . 1 00
 Sheldon, James O., and Martha B., Mo., t. . . . . 1,000 00
 Sherman, R., Kans., t. . . . . 5 00
 Shirk, D. D., Mo., dep. . . . . 100 00
 Simpson, Peter, Kans., o. 1 00
 Smith, Alfreda, Kans., o. 1 00
 Short, June A., Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Shoemaker, W. W., Okla., t. 2 50
 Shover, J. D., Mo., t. . . . . 24 57
 Sires, E. D., and wife, Nebr., t. . . . . 3 10
 Sires, Mrs. N. E., Mo., t. . . . . 2 00
 Sires, Mrs. N. E., Mo., c. 200 00
 Skinner, W. O., Mo., t. . . . . 14 13
 Smith, Herbert J. and wife, Alta., t. . . . . 10 00
 Smith, Clark, Kans., o. . . . . 10 00
 Smith, Mrs. B. C., Mo., o. . . . . 55
 Smith, Mrs. C. R., Mo., o. . . . . 55
 Smith, Joy, Io., acct. . . . . 7 50
 Smith, Alvin, Mo., t. . . . . 41 30
 Smith, Mrs. H. O., Mo., acct. 35 00
 Smith, Joseph, Mo., t. . . . . 3 17
 Smith, Hale W., Mo., dep. 540 06
 Smith, Hale W., acct. . . . . 16 65
 Smith, E. P., Mo., t. . . . . 67 00
 Smith, Freda L., Io., acct. . 15 00
 Smith, John G., Ill., t. . . . . 50 00
 Smith, M., Mo., t. . . . . 3 86
 Smith, John, Nev., t. . . . . 50 00
 Smith, Catherine, Alta., t. 50 00
 Smith, L. A., Mich., o. . . . . 10 00
 Sneed, May, Mo., acct. . . . . 63 00

Sneed, May, Mo., t. . . . . 7 00
 Snider Mrs. J. H., Mo., o. . . . . 55
 Snow, J. C., Mo., acct. . . . . 60 00
 Snow, L. R., Mo., acct. . . . . 123 00
 Snow, L. R., Mo., t. . . . . 13 00
 South Dakota District, E. D. Willard, agent. . . . . 38 00
 Soule, George H., Mo., o. . . . . 28 75
 Spangler, Mrs. D. O., Kans., acct. . . . . 20 00
 Spurlock, C. J., Mo., t. . . . . 6 50
 Sprague, Jennie, Nev., t. . . . . 25 50
 Spicer, B. P., and wife, Texas, t. . . . . 25 00
 Spicer, C. C., and wife, Texas, t. . . . . 4 00
 Spicer, J. A. and wife, Texas, t. . . . . 5 00
 Speece, Mrs. Auntie, Ohio, t. 2 00
 Steele, W. R., and wife, Mo., o. . . . . 3 00
 Steele, Mary, Mo., acct. . . . . 110 90
 Steamship Agency . . . . . 150 35
 Steevens, Eva, Kans., t. . . . . 1 00
 Stephenson, Jennie, Kans., t. . . . . 6 00
 Stewart, L. O., Mo., acct. . . . . 5 00
 Standefer, W. R., Tex., o. 1 00
 Standefer, W. R., Tex., t. . . . . 15 25
 Standefer, Addie, Tex., t. . . . . 2 00
 Sritt, D. B., Oreg., t. . . . . 65 00
 Stearns, Lily B., acct. . . . . 1,045 00
 Stonger, Elizabeth S., Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Stonger, Sarah E., Mo., t. 1 30
 Stoker, Gertrude E., Mo., t. 2 65
 Stoker, Gertrude B., Mo., o. 5 00
 Stoker, Genevieve, Mo., t. . . . . 6 77
 Sterrett, Hosea B., Mo., t. 3 70
 Stoker, Mary, Mo., t. . . . . 30
 Sterrett, Susie, Mo., t. . . . . 55
 Stowe, G. M., and wife, Mo., t. . . . . 50 00
 Strickley, Nelson, and Polly, Mich., o. . . . . 10
 Stonger, P., and S. E., Mo., t. . . . . 25 50
 Stoddard, Will, and family, Nebr., t. . . . . 11 00
 St. John, Charles E., Mo., t. . . . . 5 35
 St. John, A. C., Mo., o. . . . . 3 00
 Strachan, D. M., Ohio, o. . . . . 4 00
 Sullivan, Sarah M., Mo., t. 11 00
 Sumner, Janie, Nebr., t. . . . . 5 00
 Sumner, Emily, Mo., t. . . . . 1 00
 Sumner, Lizzie, Mo., t. . . . . 1 00
 Surridge, Maggie, Mo., dep. 25 36
 Suspense account . . . . . 1,000 00
 Supply Store . . . . . 1,000 00
 Swenson, Swen, and wife, Mo., t. . . . . 40 00
 Tainter, Mrs. B. S., Mo., t. 50 00
 Taxes . . . . . 74 08
 Thompson, H. B., t. . . . . 10 25
 Thompson, G. P., and wife, Mo., t. . . . . 2 17
 Thompson, Martha E., Oreg., t. . . . . 10 00
 Thomas, Julia A., Mo., t. . . . . 5 00
 Thomas, Alice R., Mo., t. . . . . 1 50
 Thompson Ruby, Kans., o. . . . . 3 50
 Thorp, Nancy, Kans., t. . . . . 7 00
 Tharp, N. J., Wash., o. . . . . 10 00
 Thorp, E. R., Mo., t. . . . . 10 50
 Tibbles, Grant, Nebr., t. . . . . 2 50
 Tibbles, F. W., Nebr., t. . . . . 6 50
 Tomlinson, J. R., and Mary, Jan, Mo., t. . . . . 50 00
 Tomlinson, J. R., and Mary Jane, Mo., s. . . . . 5 00
 Tooze, Mrs. L. A., Oreg., t. 5 00
 Touchatt, Cora, Mich., t. . . . . 6 00
 Towle, John J., and wife, Me., t. . . . . 10 00
 Trachsel, Allen, Kans., t. . . . . 3 75
 Trachsel, Lizzie, Kans., t. . . . . 23 00
 Trachsel, Edwin, Kans., t. . . . . 88 76
 Trachsel, Jacob, Kans., t. 150 00
 Travis, Lee B., Nebr., t. . . . . 2 88
 Travis, R. W., Nebr., t. . . . . 2 00
 Travis, C. J., Nebr., t. . . . . 10 00
 Trapp, S. L., Cal., t. . . . . 13 00
 Tryon, Aseneth B., Ill., t. . . . . 15 00
 Trowbridge, R. B., Mo., acct. . . . . 500 00
 Tucker, Mrs. J. A., Tex., t. 40 00
 Tucker, D. E., and Cammie, Mo., t. . . . . 2 00
 Tucker, Alfred H. and Hannah, Mich., t. . . . . 2 00
 Turnour, Jennie, Mo., o. . . . . 5 55
 Tracts . . . . . 10 50
 Twaddle, Lizzie, Nev., t. . . . . 20 00
 Ulmer, John and Melvina, Kans., t. . . . . 20 00
 Ullrich, David, Germany, t. 28 40
 United Order of Bunch 5,015 54
 Urch, Edwin, Colo., o. . . . . 5 00
 Utah District, G. J. S., Abels, agent . . . . . 70 45
 Utterbach, Annie, Io., t. . . . . 5 00

Kelley, E. L., e.....249 62
 Kelley, E. L., f.....1,400 09
 Kelley, W. H., Iowa, e.....245 50
 Kelley, W. H., Iowa, f.....84 00
 Kelley, James M., acct., 1,262 75
 Kelley, James E., acct., 210 00
 Kelley, James E., f.....96 00
 Kelley, W. H., Mo., e.....27 00
 Kelley, T. C., e.....15 00
 Kelley, W. H., Mo., ex. f. 9 00
 Kelley, Emelin, sal.....30 00
 Kelley, W. B., acct.....5 50
 Kendrick, Ada B., a.....25 00
 Kemp, James.....240 00
 Kensington Home.....843 87
 Kentucky and Tennessee
 Districts, J. R. McClain, agent.....85 00
 Kern, Mrs. John, a.....32 50
 Kuykendall, Glad R., e.....30 00
 Kennedy, Emma, a.....11 50
 Kipp, A., f.....25 00
 Kippe, A., f.....60 00
 Kirtland Home.....1,133 47
 Kirtland Hotel.....6 40
 Kirtland Temple.....18 22
 Knisley, Alvin, e.....35 00
 Knisley, Alvin, f.....52 00
 Knisley, Alvin, ex. f.....52 00
 Krausdon, Mrs. Johanna, acct.....50 00
 Koehler, H. A., e.....45 00
 Krahl, D. J., acct.....1,502 63
 Kuykendall, Glad R., f., 120 00
 Krahl, D. J., sal.....1,140 50
 Lake, C. H., e.....102 50
 Lake, C. H., f.....127 40
 LaFerty, Mrs. E. R., a.....27 15
 LaFerty, R., a.....2 00
 Lamb, Miss N. R., a.....26 00
 Larkin, B. S., e.....15 00
 Lamanika, a.....65 00
 Landers, David, a.....10 00
 Landon, Mrs. Clara E., a. 10 00
 LaRue, W. E., e.....35 00
 Law of Christ and Its Fulfillment (printing and binding).....401 00
 Layland, A. J., e.....70 00
 Lees Summit Sunday
 School, acct.....5 85
 Lenon, Mrs. Belle, a.....90 00
 Lentell, J. R., e.....28 00
 Lewis, William, ex. f.....40 00
 Lewis, William, c.....35 00
 Lewis, Ruth, e.....25 00
 Library, Bishop's office.....54 10
 Library, church.....50 00
 Library, college.....50 00
 Library, Presidency's office 23 43
 Long, B. E., e.....43 50
 Luff, Alma, acct.....15 00
 Lundy, Bessie, acct.....4 00
 Lundquist, Ellen, acct.....15 00
 Lundquist, D. V., acct.....220 70
 Lytle, H. S., e.....10 00
 Lytle, Elsie, a.....18 00
 Madden, New, f.....40 00
 Madden, S. J., e.....14 00
 Madden, S. J., f.....137 00
 Madison, Mrs. A. B., f.....25 00
 Madison, James, acct.....274 10
 Madison, Lena, sal.....291 00
 Massachusetts District, M.
 C. Fisher, bishop.....33 95
 Martin, Alice, acct.....57 05
 Martin, Alice, a.....18 00
 Massach, Stephen, a.....73 00
 Mash, Mrs. John, a.....18 75
 Mash, John, a.....115 03
 Meador, Mary L., a.....10 00
 Metcalf, J. W., e.....27 00
 MeFord, Caroline, acct.....75 00
 Maloney, R. M., f.....141 00
 Maloney, R. M., e.....40 00
 Meeker, Lydia, a.....10 00
 Miller, O. R., e.....20 00
 Miller, O. R., e.....92 00
 Millard, C. N., acct.....33 00
 Miller, C. Ed., e.....18 50
 Missouri, Southern District,
 Benjamin Pearson, agent 45 00
 Missouri, Independence
 Stake, R. Bullard, bp. 210 50
 Manning, W. H., f.....115 00
 Mannering, W. H., e.....80 75
 Missouri, St. Louis District,
 R. Archibald, agent.....2 00
 May, Roderick, acct.....2,854 97
 Millard, C. N., acct.....45 00
 Miller, A. G., e.....25 00
 Mintun, J. F., e.....20 13
 Moldrup, Peter, acct.....50 00
 Moley, H. B., e.....24 35
 Moler, H. B., f.....45 00
 Moler, James, e.....15 00
 Moser, Ella, sal.....153 80
 Moser, Fred, jr., e.....45 00
 Moore, Lloyd C., e.....15 00
 Moore, D. C., a.....15 00
 Morgan, D. B., f.....100 37
 Morgan, E. B., e.....217 34
 Morgan, Anna May, acct. 50 00

Morgan, J. W., e.....133 20
 Morgan, J. W., f.....113 80
 Morgan, J. W., acct.....1 50
 Morgan, J. W., ex. f.....33 63
 Morgan, Edwin, e.....32 00
 Mullen, Bri B., a.....15 00
 Multigraph.....1,267 16
 Macrae, W. S., e.....30 00
 Macrae, W. S., ex. f.....125 00
 McCallum, Emma, acct.....5 00
 McCarty, Mrs. M., a.....9 00
 McCarty, Tiny, a.....5 00
 McCoy, H. A., e.....5 00
 McConaughy, J. C., e.....27 00
 McClain, J. R., e.....15 00
 McClain, J. R., f.....84 00
 McDowell, W. A., e.....25 00
 McDowell, W. A., ex. f. 10 00
 McFadden, L. M., acct. 90 00
 McFadden, L. M., e.....11 00
 McFadden, L. M., f.....220 00
 McGregor, Daniel, e.....30 00
 McKierans, James, e.....52 34
 McKindsey, Mrs. Alphene,
 acct.....40 00
 McKim, B. L., e.....32 00
 McKnight, J. W., e.....10 00
 Nazer, Edward, a.....60 00
 Newcomb, Mrs. T. A., acct. 63 00
 Newton, O. W., sal.....616 80
 Newton, William, e.....178 45
 Newton, Thomas, acct 30 00
 Newkirk, R. B., acct.....2 67
 New York and Pennsylvania
 District, John Zimmermann, bishop.....94 42
 Norris, Alice, a.....25 00
 Nunley, J. M., e.....12 00
 Okerlund, O. W., e.....153 00
 Okerlund, O. W., f.....342 00
 Oklahoma, Western District,
 Hubert Case, agent.....25 00
 Oslie, William, acct.....25 00
 Page, B. E., sal.....239 00
 Page, James C., e.....52 68
 Palestine Mission, Rees
 Jenkins, agent.....194 00
 Parker, J. L., e.....19 50
 Parker, J. L., ex. f.....30 00
 Payne, Mrs. E. A., a.....15 00
 Paxton, J. W., e.....35 00
 Peak, W. E., acct.....117 85
 Peak, W. E., f.....448 00
 Peak, W. E., ex. f.....40 00
 Peak, W. E., e.....133 75
 Peak, Ferol S., acct.....15 00
 Peak, Fern, acct.....30 00
 Pender, W. S., e.....236 45
 Pender, W. S., f.....245 98
 Pender, W. S., ex. f. 10 00
 Peninger, Cornelius, contract.....300 00
 Peterson, J. W., e.....50 00
 Peterson, J. W., ex. f. 10 00
 Peterson, F. A., acct.....12 80
 Peters, Mrs. A.....28 00
 Petre, J. F., e.....25 00
 Petre, J. F., ex. f.....25 00
 Peters, C. J., e.....26 50
 Phillips, Frank R., acct. 10 00
 Phillips, A. B., e.....15 00
 Phillips, Cuelina, acct.....10 00
 Pickering, V. P., e.....15 00
 Pierce, F. J., e.....34 10
 Pierce, H. N., e.....21 81
 Plain, Christopher, acct.....29 85
 Postage.....16 70
 Postage.....27 65
 Prettyman, C. W. f.....60 00
 Prettyman, C. W., e.....10 00
 Price, Mrs. Maud, a.....17 68
 Price, Mrs. William, a.....4 00
 Pritchett, Fred O., e.....41 00
 Pritchett, Fred O., f.....40 00
 Pruitt, W. H., a.....20 00
 Prumo, Mrs. R. W., a.....15 00
 Puffy, Daisy, a.....8 50
 Purfurst, A. B., e.....122 85
 Quick, Lee, f.....74 00
 Quick, Lee, ex. f.....90 39
 Randall, E. H., e.....5 00
 Rannie, E. ex. f.....25 00
 Rannie, E., e.....42 60
 Ranney, W. J., a.....72 00
 Rasmusson, Peter, a.....4 50
 Ray, Nellie, sal.....54 64
 Real estate improvements 1,030 64
 Real estate repairs and expense.....996 60
 Ream, Frank L., acct.....50 49
 Redfield, Mrs. L., acct.....75 00
 Redfield, Mrs. O. A., acct. 31 00
 Redfield, Forest, acct.....20 00
 Reiste, S. M., e.....95 65
 Renfro, B. E., e.....30 00
 Renfro, B. E., f.....108 00
 Rent, Utah Mission.....37 00
 Riley, J. T., f.....30 00
 Riley, J. T., e.....30 00
 Riddle, Mrs. A., a.....10 00
 Rivers, Brother, a.....10 00
 Rivers, Margaret, a.....64 00
 Roberts, J. A., f.....189 00

Roberts, J. A., e.....37 50
 Roberts, I. N., e.....10 00
 Rodgers, Wm. G., sal.....71 14
 Rogers, E. L., acct.....15 00
 Robinson, Saidu, acct.....20 00
 Rowe, Fred A., acct.....20 00
 Rogers, Burton, acct.....5 00
 Rudd, Mrs. Wm., acct.....40 00
 Runsey, Mrs. E., acct.....40 45
 Rush, W. R., a.....18 20
 Rushton, J. W., ex. f. 134 68
 Rushton, J. W., acct.....7 00
 Rushton, J. W., f.....590 08
 Russell, F. A., e.....129 35
 Russell, F. A., e.....93 05
 Russell, F. A., e.....80 25
 Russell, R. C., ex. f. 50 00
 Russell, F. A., f.....76 00
 Rushton, W. T., a.....5 25
 Real estate contracts 3,578 99
 Real estate.....10,701 49
 Sade, O. B., e.....129 35
 Salvars, R. S., f.....132 00
 Salvars, R. S., e.....97 84
 Sandoval, R., a.....15 00
 Sandoval, R., acct.....55 00
 Sanders, William, a.....10 00
 Sandhedens Banner, acct. 75
 San Jose Church, Cal.,
 acct.....329 43
 Sanders, Julia, a.....10 00
 Sanitarium.....6,850 84
 Saints' and Liberty
 Homes.....3,288 33
 Sawley, F. L., e.....40 00
 Savage, H. W., e.....30 00
 Scandinavia Mission, Peter
 Mucus, agent.....1,000 00
 Scott, B. J., e.....25 00
 Scott, Bonnie, a.....41 00
 Scheidecker, Delia, acct. 100 00
 Schmidt, H. G., acct.....15 00
 Scott, W. G., ex. f.....25 00
 Scott, S. W. L., e.....10 00
 Scott, S. W. L., f.....75 00
 Scott, Joseph R., a.....40 00
 Scott, C., e.....55 00
 Scott, C., ex. f.....61 48
 Scott, Thomas, a.....10 00
 Seidors, Harriet, a.....5 00
 Seif, R. O., contract.....129 00
 Seif, R. O., e.....52 22
 Scoggin, Mrs. N. B., a.....10 00
 Scudder, Jennie, a.....10 00
 Shaw, Elizabeth, a.....20 00
 Sheldon, Mrs. N. V., f. 210 00
 Sheldon, N. V., e.....15 00
 Sheldon, T. J., acct.....25 00
 Shower, J. D., f.....312 00
 Shower, J. D., e.....79 57
 Shakespear, W. E., e.....25 00
 Shaver, Miss I. L., acct. 25 00
 Shaver, Mrs. L., acct.....65 00
 Sheehy, F. M., e.....72 50
 Sheppard, T. J., f.....87 00
 Shinn, D. L., f.....15 00
 Shirik, D. D., acct.....100 00
 Shores, J. A., a.....10 00
 Silvers, Mrs. A. C., f.....32 00
 Simons, C. O., e.....240 00
 Simmons, S. W., f.....85 00
 Simmons, S. W., e.....78 00
 Simmons, Jesse M., f.....29 50
 Sinclair, Lucretia, a.....50 00
 Shirik, Oliver D., e.....45 00
 Sires, Mrs. N. E., a.....25 50
 Sirov, Julia, F., acct.....106 94
 Slover, F. M., ex. f. 27 32
 Slover, F. M., e.....20 00
 Slye, R. F., f.....241 00
 Slye, R. F., ex. f. 21 82
 Slye, R. F., e.....61 00
 Smith, F. A., f.....500 00
 Smith, Mrs. A. H., f.....102 72
 Smith, F. M., e.....1,138 16
 Smith, F. M., e.....1,144 80
 Smith, F. A., e.....101 75
 Smith, S. S., e.....33 00
 Smith, Edgar H., f.....108 00
 Smith, Joseph, f.....319 20
 Smith, Joseph, ex. f. 31 25
 Smith, Joseph, e.....127 00
 Smith, Joseph, acct.....5 73
 Smith, E. P., acct.....15 00
 Smith, Heman C., e.....240 00
 Smith, S., ex. f.....152 00
 Smith, S., ex. f.....93 00
 Smith, Inez, sal.....220 00
 Smith, John, e.....227 46
 Smith, W. R., f.....30 00
 Smith, W. R., e.....48 50
 Smith, W. R., ex. f. 120 00
 Smith, Elbert A., e.....94 21
 Smith, F. M., ex. f. 80 00
 Smith, Fred A., acct. 30 00
 Smith, George A., e.....45 00
 Smith, W. W., e.....12 50
 Smith, David D., e.....26 00
 Smith, H. O., e.....60 00
 Smith, H. O., ex. f. 77 50
 Smith, Hale W., e.....39 05
 Smith, Hale W., acct.....31 00

Smith, Hale W., f.....53 30
 Smith, Hale W., ex. f. 10 00
 Smith, J. W., f.....34 00
 Smith, Jessie B., acct.....25 00
 Smith, Elma, acct.....25 00
 Smith, F. C., acct.....5 00
 Smith, J. W., e.....25 00
 Smith, Mrs. H. O., acct. 35 00
 Smith, Mrs. B. B., acct. 297 00
 Snow, L. R., acct.....13 40
 Snyder, R. L., acct.....95 00
 Snow, J. C., acct.....20 00
 Snead, M. Dillic, acct.....120 00
 Spaun, Mrs. M. J., acct.....55 00
 Spurling, Henry, f.....77 00
 Spurling, Henry, e.....30 50
 Spurluck, C. J., a.....75 00
 Steamship agency.....229 45
 Stead, J. D., e.....55 00
 Stead, J. D., f.....40 00
 Stem, Nathan B., a.....10 00
 Stebbins, H. A., f.....300 00
 Stebbins, H. A., e.....10 00
 Stone, A. E., e.....15 00
 Stewart, Mrs. L. O., acct. 59 42
 Stubbart, J. M., e.....25 00
 Stearns, Mrs. A. B., acct. 141 00
 Strand, Mrs. a.....15 35
 Supply Store, acct.....1,027 17
 Sutton, J. R., e.....15 00
 Sutton, J. R., f.....150 00
 Swensen, Swen, e.....05 00
 Swensen, C. A., e.....45 00
 Swensen, C. A., f.....25 00
 Talley, Etta, acct.....91 50
 Tanner, J. A., e.....15 00
 Tarnberg, Mrs. M., acct. 10 00
 Taxes.....1,748 40
 Taylor, Phoebe, a.....10 00
 Teters, J. A., f.....08 00
 Thorp, T. A., a.....10 00
 Thomas, Porter W., a.....72 00
 Thomas, C. E., a.....53 75
 Thomas, T. U., f.....149 00
 Thomas, Lydia A., acct. 50 00
 Thomas, O. B., e.....18 00
 Thorburn, George W., e. 40 00
 Thomas, Mrs. Pearl, acct. 10 00
 Tillery, Leah, acct.....30 00
 Tomlinson, S. W., e.....48 00
 Tomlinson, J. R., acct.....100 00
 Trowbridge, R. B., acct.....500 00
 Tucker, Effie, a.....8 00
 Twombly, Samuel, f.....200 00
 Twombly, Samuel, e.....44 75
 Turnour, Grace, a.....15 00
 Turpen, M. M., e.....20 00
 Tracts:
 Wm. Anderson, N. S.....6 38
 T. E. Bailey.....2 35
 A. B. Becker, Ohio.....2 00
 E. C. Briggs, Io.....1 42
 N. L. Booker, Tenn.....6 00
 Mrs. Dora Booker, Ky. 1 20
 W. P. Bootman, Mont. 8 00
 B. Brackenbury, Mo. 3 38
 J. A. Bronson, Ill. 1 00
 A. M. Chase, Utah.....17 00
 Hubert Case, Okla.....2 50
 J. C. Christensen, Utah. 2 50
 A. T. Higdon, Okla.....1 00
 J. W. Dubose, Ky.....1 40
 Charles W. Deuel, Cal. 1 39
 L. Fike, Ariz.....1 50
 Levi Gamet, Nebr.....1 00
 M. F. Gowell, Utah.....7 50
 C. J. Hunt, Io.....1 53
 John Harp, Texas.....1 86
 A. M. Crawford, Mo. 1 63
 J. B. Homan, New York. 1 00
 George Jenkins, Mo. 1 95
 W. B. LaRue, N. Y. 5 25
 Joseph Lockhart.....40 00
 D. Macgregor, British Columbia.....1 50
 J. R. Lentell, Penn.....9 50
 W. S. Macrae, Mo.....1 50
 J. A. McClain, Iowa.....2 22
 J. R. McClain, Ky. 1 50
 M. C. McConeley, I. T. 3 75
 C. E. Miller, Ohio.....94 04
 W. H. Mannering, Tex. 2 25
 B. B. Morgan, Io.....1 25
 E. Rannie, Nebr.....2 18
 J. A. Roberts, Ky.....2 20
 Russell.....1 50
 Sherwood, Okla.....1 00
 New Madden, Oreg. 2 13
 J. W. Morgan, Texas. 1 35
 J. F. Mintun, Iowa.....1 02
 J. F. Petre, Colo.....4 00
 W. S. Pender, Io.....2 65
 P. T. Plumb, Wash.....6 73
 F. O. Pritchett, Ill. 1 75
 S. W. Tomlinson, N. Y. 2 50
 J. Pycock, Ont. 1 00
 Made.....15 00
 J. F. Mintun, Io.....3 30
 W. P. Pickering, Mo. 1 38
 B. Rannie, Nebr.....2 20
 J. W. Rushton, Mo. 4 37
 W. R. Standefer, Texas. 1 13
 H. A. Stebbins, Io.....50 00

J. M. Stubbart, Utah..... 3 25
 Thompson, Canada..... 1 00
 W. M. Aylor, Texas..... 88
 Unknown..... 1 00
 George M. Wyman, Kans..... 35
 J. B. Yates, Okla..... 46
 Mrs. J. Wismer, Wis..... 50

United Order of Enoch.....1,773 57
 Vall, Mrs. W. L., acct..... 85 00
 Vanderwood, J. B., acct..... 50 15
 Vanderwood, J. B., e..... 52 60
 Vanderwood, J. B., e..... 22 10
 Vanderveer, Albert, ex. f..... 52 00
 Vanderveer, Albert, e..... 17 50
 Vaughn, Blanche, a..... 6 00
 Walters, R. T., f..... 20 00
 Walters, R. T., e..... 25 00
 Warnock, Mrs. M., a..... 50 00
 Warnock, Mary, acct..... 105 38
 Ward, F. S., a..... 10 00
 Webster, Mrs. L. A., acct..... 25 00
 Welch, Addie B., a..... 596 10
 Weiler, Mrs. C., acct..... 10 00
 Weiler Dora, acct..... 9 50
 Wells, R. a..... 210 00
 White, I. N., f..... 103 75
 White, I. N., e..... 108
 White, V., a..... 54 00
 White, V., acct..... 35 00
 White, Ammon, ex. f..... 18 00
 Whiteaker, A. L., e..... 1,866 72
 Whitting, W. W., acct..... 10 00
 Wight, L. L., e..... 24 00
 Wight, Paul P., acct..... 70 03
 Wight, J. W., e..... 60 00
 Williams, T. W., e..... 40 00
 Williams, Nettie, acct..... 50 00
 Williams, B. E., acct..... 40 00
 Winegar, Mrs. J. B., acct..... 70 00
 Winegar, J. D., f..... 66 00
 Wittfong, J. D., acct..... 10 00
 Wittfong, J. D., ex. f..... 41 20
 Wittfong, J. D., a..... 55 00
 Wildermuth, J. B., e..... 35 00
 Wildermuth, J. B., e..... 14 00
 Willey, C. B., e..... 22 75
 Winegar, H. B., e..... 25 00
 Winegar, H. B., f..... 225 50
 Winegar, S. B., acct..... 19 00
 Willis, R. L., a..... 75 00
 Wisconsin, Southern District, C. C. Hoague, agt. 20 00
 Wood, Mrs. C., acct..... 2,006 43
 Woodland Avenue paving
 acct..... 78 00
 Wyman, George M., acct..... 100 00
 Yates, J. B., f..... 85 00
 Yates, J. B., ex. f..... 50 00
 Yates, J. D., e..... 108 80
 Yates, J. D., acct..... 1,051 87
 Zion's Religio-Literary Society..... $320,371 33
 Total..... $ 2,453 21

REPORT OF E. A. BLAKE-SLEE, COUNSELOR.

Receipts.
 Balance due church December, 31, 1911..... $ 63 00
 Blakelee, E. A., t..... 25 00
 Total..... $ 88 00

Expenditures.
 Scott, S. W. L., e..... $ 5 00
 Total..... $ 5 00
 Due church..... $ 83 00

TABULATED REPORT OF LOCAL BISHOPS AND AGENTS FOR THE YEAR 1912

Districts, Local Bishops and Agents.	Last Report Due		Received		Paid		Paid		Balance Due
	Church	Agent	Bishop	Other Agents	Tithes Offerings Consec. Surplus	Miscellaneous	Bishop	Families	Expenses	Aid	Other Districts	Miscellaneous	Church	Agent
Alabama, George O. Sellers.....	$ 57.99	$ 3.70			$ 682.90	$ 0.00	$ 300.00	$ 700.00	$ 33.00	$ 19.00		$ 1.81	$ 7.89
Alabama, Mobile, Frank Stiner.....					1037.59			102.25	58.55				160.83
Arizona, S. D. Condit.....					588.00			403.00	430.50				2,562.43
Australasian Mission, George Lewis.....					2,591.91			2,732.22	481.10				351.61
British Isles Mission, R. May.....					1,156.26			800.00	612.81				536.99
California, Northern, R. A. Axinin.....					4,740.00		3,200.00	1,764.50	30.00				557.84
California, Southern, E. A. Axinin.....					3,429.05		1,500.00	1,740.05	70.00				1,803.66
Florida, E. J. Everett.....					1,622.53		592.90	510.00	5.00				14.90
Florida, E. J. Everett.....					1,717.60			480.00	340.80				222.63
Florida, E. J. Everett.....					337.60
Hawaii, G. J. Waller.....					337.60
Iaaho, Elias E. Richards.....					178.40			104.00	85.00				198.82
Iaaho, Northern, Myron J. Durrice.....					494.99			506.00	22.00				361.10
Illinois, Central, Martin Bolt.....					1,382.71		50.00	1,330.00	58.00				87.76
Illinois, Central, Luther Simpson.....					1,234.00		234.00	1,234.00	73.90				203.97
Illinois, Keokuk, Charles D. Jones.....					548.50		246.96	1,234.15	169.50				520.30
Illinois, Southern, Jas. F. Keir.....					4,135.00		2,650.00	1,579.00	50.00				15.45
Indiana, Northern, John Zahrad.....					180.25		5.81	31.60	15.00				37.94
Indiana, Southern, Chas. H. Fish.....					30.47			20.00	15.00				15.31
Iowa, Des Moines, J. F. Mintun.....					50.95		2,500.00	515.00	15.00				97.00
Iowa, Eastern, John Heide.....					389.97		3,975.00	595.00	13.00				160.91
Iowa, Fremont, Lorena Lecky.....					1,445.11		3,975.00	595.00	13.00				741.49
Iowa, Fremont, Lorena Lecky.....					4,457.38		1,500.00	1,500.00	173.92				33.78
Iowa, Galena, C. J. Roberts.....					7,085.98		3,350.00	5,214.00	60.00				3,738.45
Iowa, Lamoni, Stak, J. M. Fyranov.....					3,499.56		1,332.48	1,332.48	258.43				322.28
Iowa, Lamoni, Stak, J. M. Fyranov.....					2,502.18		1,000.00	1,739.00	97.00				18.20
Iowa, Pottawatomie, J. A. Hansen.....					1,049.00		1,000.00	1,096.00	488.00				362.75
Iowa, Pottawatomie, J. A. Hansen.....					585.07			488.00	10.88				6.20
Kansas, Northeastern, John Cairns.....					257.00		2,500.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Kansas, Northeastern, John Cairns.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				46.41
Kansas, Spring River, Ellis Short.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Kansas, Spring River, Ellis Short.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Kansas, Spring River, Ellis Short.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Kentucky and Tennessee, J. R. McClain.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Maine, Eastern, H. K. Eaton.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Maine, Eastern, H. K. Eaton.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Maine, Eastern, H. K. Eaton.....					1,053.57		3,005.00	1,632.00	308.85				32.48
Michigan, Central, R. L. M. C. Fisher.....					505.87		1,500.00	400.00	130.30				6.80
Michigan, Central, R. L. M. C. Fisher.....					505.87		1,500.00	400.00	130.30				6.80
Michigan, Central, R. L. M. C. Fisher.....					505.87		1,500.00	400.00	130.30				6.80
Michigan, Eastern, Wm. F. Smith.....					3,314.67		1,000.00	2,855.65	262.00				174.53
Michigan, Eastern, Wm. F. Smith.....					3,314.67		1,000.00	2,855.65	262.00				174.53
Michigan, Northern, J. C. Goodman.....					9,180.41		2,000.00	1,469.00	236.67				2,432.53
Michigan, Northern, J. C. Goodman.....					9,180.41		2,000.00	1,469.00	236.67				2,432.53
Michigan, Northern, J. C. Goodman.....					9,180.41		2,000.00	1,469.00	236.67				2,432.53
Michigan, Southern, and Northern Indiana, Samuel Stroh.....					1,057.47		5.00	864.00	54.21				1,475.40
Michigan, Southern, and Northern Indiana, Samuel Stroh.....					1,057.47		5.00	864.00	54.21				1,475.40
Michigan, Southern, and Northern Indiana, Samuel Stroh.....					1,057.47		5.00	864.00	54.21				1,475.40
Michigan, Western, F. W. Hastings.....					1,476.35		1,143.00	1,143.00	13.00				197.77
Minnesota, Leon A. Gault, Reynolds.....					1,912.63		1,150.00	1,150.00	96.52				216.56
Missouri, Central, Chas. P. Paul.....					1,273.37		1,880.00	1,880.00	72.00				508.96
Missouri, Central, Chas. P. Paul.....					1,273.37		1,880.00	1,880.00	72.00				508.96
Missouri, Independence, R. Bullard.....					1,868.01		206.54	1,050.00	13.00				139.67
Missouri, Independence, R. Bullard.....					1,868.01		206.54	1,050.00	13.00				139.67
Missouri, Nodaway, W. B. Torrance.....					4,859.70		500.00	3,777.00	347.00				1,181.47
Missouri, Nodaway, W. B. Torrance.....					4,859.70		500.00	3,777.00	347.00				1,181.47
Missouri, Nodaway, W. B. Torrance.....					4,859.70		500.00	3,777.00	347.00				1,181.47
Missouri, Nodaway, W. B. Torrance.....					14,542.03		700.00	8,517.00	241.35				1,181.47
Missouri, Nodaway, W. B. Torrance.....					14,542.03		700.00	8,517.00	241.35				1,181.47
Missouri, Nodaway, W. B. Torrance.....					14,542.03		700.00	8,517.00	241.35				1,181.47
Missouri, Northeastern, W. B. Richards.....					10.00		500.00	537.00	5.00				165.77
Missouri, Northeastern, W. B. Richards.....					10.00		500.00	537.00	5.00				165.77
Missouri, Northeastern, W. B. Richards.....					10.00		500.00	537.00	5.00				165.77
Missouri, Northern, Benjamin Pearson.....					1,232.94		400.00	1,843.00	32.25				12.84
Missouri, Northern, Benjamin Pearson.....					1,232.94		400.00	1,843.00	32.25				12.84
Missouri, Northern, Benjamin Pearson.....					1,232.94		400.00	1,843.00	32.25				12.84
Missouri, Saint Louis, Russell Archibald.....					2,835.34		1,330.00	1,843.00	141.00				50.00
Missouri, Saint Louis, Russell Archibald.....					2,835.34		1,330.00	1,843.00	141.00				50.00
Missouri, Saint Louis, Russell Archibald.....					2,835.34		1,330.00	1,843.00	141.00				50.00
Montana, Thomas, Reese.....					4,046.68			825.00	56.07				4,766.90

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Mizell, Woodie 2 00; Owens, J. F. 7 60; Parker, James G. 15 00; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Davies, E. A. 49; Foster, Sr. 9 74; Henderson, Sr. 2 19; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Scattered Members. Bradley, J. C. 73 05; Hall, R. W. 24 34; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, Richard Chift, London District 19 71; Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, Thomas Gould, Eastern Wales Dis-strict 41; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Total $587 59; Expenditures. Balance due agent $ 3 70; Oscar, Tillman, a. 4 00; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Blackstone, Sr. 1 46; Clarke, Sr. 24 35; Everitt, Sr. 2 19; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Roe, W. 9 86; Butterworth, S. 34 09; Butterworth, C. 2 44; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Victoria District, t and o. 9 86; Butterworth, S. 34 09; Butterworth, C. 2 44; etc.

ARIZONA.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Arizona District. S. D. Condit, Agent. Receipts. A sister, t. $ 6 00; Austin, Donna, t. 1 70; Beers, Wanda, t. 10 10; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like McLaren, C. S. 97 40; Oblations 18 65; Rankin, Sr. B. 4 14; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Advertising differences in churches $ 5 36; Barmore, A. C., f. 210 15; Bank charges 4 87; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like United Building and Tent Fund. Adelaide Branch 9 03; Barmore, A. C., f. 35 33; Hamilton Branch 8 83; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like AUSTRALASIAN MISSION. George Lewis, Bishop. Receipts. Balance due church December 31 1911, $2,717 76; difference in balance $2,065 12; Wallsend Branch, t and o. Clark, Sr., and family $ 1 22; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Adelaide Branch. Cole, Sr. 11 45; Chenoweth, G. 18 75; Francis, Sr., sen. 1 83; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like Adelaide Branch. Cole, Sr. 11 45; Chenoweth, G. 18 75; Francis, Sr., sen. 1 83; etc.

Table with columns for names and amounts. Includes entries like BRITISH ISLES MISSION. Roderick May, Bishop. Receipts. Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 $233 00; Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, John Austin Sheffield District 5 73; etc.

Table of financial entries including Missions collection, MacKay, George, Naden, Francis and Mary, Norton, E., and wife, etc.

Table of financial entries including Jowett, J. A., Laylock, L. A., Walton, P. S., Chapman, Sarah, Sharp, Harriet, etc.

CALIFORNIA.

Northern District.

C. A. Parkin, Bishop.

Table of financial entries for California Northern District, including Balance due church December 31, 1911, A sister of Santa Rosa, etc.

Table of financial entries including Ely, Stella, Frank, Esther, Flory, Isaac J., Flory, Emma B., etc.

Table of financial entries including Farr, F. B., Farr, F. B., e., Emma, Mary, A., etc.

Southern District.

Frederick Adam, Agent.

Table of financial entries for Southern District, including Receipts, Balance due church December 31, 1911, Ames, Margaret, etc.

Lamkin, C. H., and wife.	10 00
Longstroth, Edward	10 00
Los Angeles Branch, obla.	178 97
Light, Sr. B.	5 00
Ladies' Aid, San Diego	5 00
Mitchell, Lyle	3 00
Mitchell, Lola	3 00
Moore, Nellie	2 00
Mills, Adelia	5 00
McFadden, Sr. A. C.	50 00
Morse, Sr. E.	1 00
McKee, Sr. M. J.	2 00
Mitchell, Sarah	2 50
Newport Branch, oblation	26 62
Nash, Silva	1 00
Powell, Howard C.	50
Powell, Greta N.	15
Penfold, Stephen, and wife	130 00
Pierce, Callie	1 18
Packard, Mary	3 35
Powell, J. C.	2 10
Pickles, Elizabeth	48 00
Paulson, Nettie	9 80
Pierce, Ethel	9 25
Perchoud, Theresa	50 00
Paulson, Nels, and wife	125 00
Prothero, E. and wife	20 00
Powell, Lillian, and wife	20 00
Parks, Lavina J.	5 00
Parks, Mildred	11 00
Rent church lands	50 20
Ritter, Viola	8 63
Rent, Urbita House	38 00
Rabel, Sr.	5 00
Rochford, O. F., and wife	20 00
Reynolds, Annie	60 00
Rockholm, Raymond	15
Sloane, James	9 00
Staats, Kate	1 00
Staats, Josephine	1 00
Santa Ana Branch, obla.	35 85
Snively, H. C., and wife	10 00
Snively, Gertrude	3 00
Snively, Rhea	3 00
Swall, Ethel	3 00
San Bernardino Branch, oblation	43 43
Schnell, Elizabeth	10 00
Slotterbeck, Sophia	5 00
Smith, Christine	22 00
Salter, Charles, and wife	25 00
Schade, William, and wife	40 00
Swall, Herbert	3 15
Straszacker, Pauline	2 50
Switzer, Ella	74 50
Switzer, Sr. E. F.	92 70
Soderburg, Augusta	11 50
Salter, Tina	5 00
San Diego Mission, obla.	10 30
Slotterbeck, Harry	3 50
Swain, Frances	3 00
Thornton, Hugh	75 00
Thurston, Olive M.	1 00
Thompson, Margaret	1 00
Wixon, George, and wife	15 00
Weather, W. O.	7 85
Woodward, Caroline	4 00
Woods, Lydia	1 00
Will, Pauline	1 00
Wetz, Sr. F. E.	5 00
Westphall, Catherine	78 10
Wise, Bertie	50 00
Worden, Sr.	2 00
Total	$5,472 38

Expenditures.

Adam, Fred, e.	2 50
Betts, Peter M., acct.	240 00
Burton, Emma, f.	289 00
Crumley, C. D., f.	153 00
Davis, Ivan A., f.	240 00
Dani, R. H., f.	70 00
Davison, H. J., e.	5 00
Gibson, William, f.	180 00
Hartnell, D. L., a.	5 00
Hanson, Paul M., f.	175 00
Haxton, J. H., a.	25 00
Kelley, James E., f.	206 50
Kelley, W. H., e.	10 00
Keeler, B., f.	286 00
Keeler, B., e.	11 00
Kelley, D. L., Bishop	500 00
Kelley, D. L., Bishop	1,000 00
Meyer, M., a.	5 00
Sheely, F. M., e.	30 00
Taxes	70 82
White, I. N., f.	105 00
Total	$3,668 82
Due church	$1,803 56

COLORADO.

Eastern District.

C. B. Everett, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 (cash).	$ 43 81
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 (notes).	97 50

Adkins, Hannah	15 00
Anthony, Josephine C.	3 00
Brannan, Ella	45 00
Bullard, Mary E.	10 80
Bartlett, H. D., and wife	39 00
Bartlett, Fred H.	1 00
Black, Fred, and wife	50 00
Blowers, Bert H., and wife	1 50
Bullard, Mrs. W. H.	5 00
Brolliar, W. H.	22 00
Brannan, Charles	1 00
Boyd, David S., and wife.	20 00
Berry, Hobart W.	9 00
Brown, Martha	412 00
Brown, Sr. A. E.	5 00
Clarke, B. J. and wife.	8 00
Colpitts, J. O., and wife.	20 00
Cramer, Hortense C.	2 50
Cramer, Hortense S.	3 00
Cramer, Isadore	4 30
Chase, Jessie M.	16 70
Conway, Sallie	4 10
Cowan, W. H., and wife.	12 50
Chambers, Marion	5 00
Colorado Springs Branch, o	3 00
Chase, Dena	1 00
Conley, R. E.	12 00
Cotterell, F. H. and Eva.	10 00
Davis, Mrs. Moses	10 00
Denver Branch, o.	17 50
Davis, Emma	1 40
Davis, John	4 50
Danielson, Floyd M.	2 00
Edwards, I. C., and wife.	1 20
Elliot, Elizabeth, t.	4 00
Elliot, Elizabeth, c.	1 00
Everett, Charles B., and wife	10 00
Edwards, Iver C.	1 00
Echternacht, Frank and Hattie	25 00
Edwards, Ralph	4 00
Fishburn, Louisa	19 00
Fishburn, Howard	1 00
Pothevingill, Mattie	5 00
Grutsch, Ella	1 20
Gruetz, Louisa	1 20
Gandy, R. E., and wife	25 00
Gorney, F. M. and Ida M.	9 00
Huddleson, Julia	2 50
Harshman, Cora E.	4 00
Hutchins, A. A., and wife.	9 00
Hopper, Glen, o.	1 00
Hammond, Nora	1 00
Jensen, Emma	5 00
Kelley, B. L., Bishop (special funds)	4 60
Kemp, Margaret	6 00
Kemp, Delbert A., and wife	5 00
King, Willis L.	52 50
Kemp, Joseph S.	10 00
Kennedy, George O., jr.	1 00
Kemp, Robert J., and wife	30 00
Lyon, L. A., and wife	30 00
Linscott, Rufus B.	30 00
Milbert, William, and wife	3 00
Morris, S. A., and wife.	5 00
Morris, Gertrude	8 50
McQuary, Nellie M.	10 00
McConley, George E., and wife	20 00
Neef, Carrie	15 00
Nudd, Lillie S.	6 00
People, Martha E.	25 00
Parker, Ella L.	10 00
People, Josephine	10 00
Park, Albert, and wife.	20 00
Park, Ella	2 00
Park, Ray J., and wife	10 00
Park, Thomas A., and wife	10 00
Russell, Sarah H., o.	20 00
Rutland, Lulu B. and Dan A.	6 50
Sampson, Nellie E.	42 00
Shupe, Homer and Eva (note)	32 51
Shumate, F. B., and wife.	7 50
Sampson, Blanche	29 25
Saxton, Mrs. J. N. (Lulu)	8 60
Staley, Ella C.	2 15
Templeton, Florence P.	43 00
Tabor, A. B. and N. A.	112 50
Tabor, Ellen E.	27 00
Tabor, Harold A.	35 80
Tabor, H. J.	1 00
Trachsel, Lizzie	5 00
Veller, W. J., and wife	15 00
Westland, Martha A.	5 00
Ward, Alice A.	10 85
Woodruff, D. B., and wife.	2 50
Yelland, Margaret.	1 00
Order of Bnoeh	1 00
Loans repaid	23 50
Total	$1,791 99

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	5 00
Eghe, Mary E., a.	8 25
Curtis, A., f.	8 50
Curtis, J. D. e.	5 00
Cramer, Hortense S., l.	8 00

Gillespie, Mrs. G. G., a.	5 00
Holloway, L. G., f.	49 80
Holloway, L. G., e.	17 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	592 90
Kelley, E. L., Bishop (Or-der of Bnoeh)	1 00
Morgan, J. W., f.	126 00
Nerron, Thomas B., a.	45 00
Petree, F. J., f.	5 00
Russell, F. A., f.	47 75
Russell, F. A., e.	1 00
Trombly, Samuel, e.	21 00
Wingart, H. E., e.	12 00
Barhart, W. C., a.	24 00
Total	$1,500 30
Due church (cash)	269 18
Due church (notes)	22 51

FLORIDA.

Florida District.

E. N. McCall, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 5 83
Allen, Avery	120 00
Allen, Avery	7 50
Barnes, J. D.	15 00
Barnes, Charles E.	8 00
Barnes, George W.	1 00
Barnes, T. J.	10 00
Booker, Elizabeth	25
Booker, Perry W.	25
Booker, Irwin	25
Booker, Robert	25
Chestnut, Annie	2 00
Chestnut, James D.	3 00
Clark, C. J.	31 00
Cooper, James	3 00
Cooper, Roxie	30
Crosby, Bertha	25
Dixon, Joseph G.	3 00
Dixon, Samuel	10 00
Dixon, Rebecca	2 00
Dixon, Claiborne	1 50
Dixon, Willoughby	1 00
Edoker, Frank M., sen.	5 00
Hawkins, John N.	5 00
Hawkins, William Moroni.	10 00
Johnston, John H.	10 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	20 00
McArthur, John D.	125 00
McArthur, George H.	10 00
McCall, John A. and Martha M.	35 00
McCall, J. Sidney	15 00
McCall, Martha E.	10 00
McCall, Ruby E.	1 05
McCall, Emmett N.	25 00
Muldoon, James	1 00
Peevy, C. Brock	2 00
Peevy, Patsy	5 00
Russell, E. P.	5 00
Thompson, Pleas and Anna	15 00
Vickrey, T. W.	100 00
Vickrey, J. K.	10 00
Wagoner, Indiana	100 00
Will, B. E.	5 00
Willis, K. E.	4 00
Total	$743 43

Expenditures.

Dixon, L. Jane, a.	$ 5 00
Moler, H. E., f.	495 00
Slover, T. M., f.	15 00
Vanclave, Albert, e.	5 00
Agent's expenses	90
Total	$520 90
Due church	222 53

HAWAII TERRITORY MISSION.

G. J. Waller Agent.

Receipts.

Akama, Eugenia	$ 10
Albert, J. J.	15 00
Antone, Rachel	7 50
Antone, John	1 00
Barrett, Mary S.	5 00
Bartells, William and Esther	2 00
Friend, A.	4 05
Hartbottle, Isaac, and family	6 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	200 00
Kann, James	26 50
Kelley, Wm.	1 00
Kealoha, Eddie	2 70
Lee, Charles	5 00
Mahuka, John, and family	29 05
Mahuka, Fannie	50
Mahuka, Thomas	1 00
Mathias, Napallo	3 50
Mathias, Anna	3 50
Mahoe, Napahu	50
McConley, Fern F.	10 15

Moore, L. A., and wife.	7 50
Moore, Madeleine	3 00
Moore, Helen	50
Moore, Nellie	50
Moore, Marguerita	50
Moore, Lawrence	25
Moore, Rose	25
Nato, Paulino, and wife	17 50
Naimadu, John	1 20
Onaha, Julia	12 00
Pahuu, Robert, jr.	2 00
Paoa, Henry, sr.	3 50
Poepoe, J. M.	1 00
Panawaa, Mary	50
Poepoe, Emily	3 50
Piikoi, David	1 00
Puouhan, Helen	2 00
Puouhan, James	8 50
Schmidt, Fanny	50
Scott, Maria	10 50
Scott, John	3 50
Sharp, Cecilia	2 25
Sharpe, Emily	10
Sharpe Children	25
Thompson, Emily	28 00
Thompson, Emily	50
Thompson, Johnnie	50
Thompson, Henry	25
Thompson, Margaret	50
Waller, G. J.	100 00
Woman's Missionary Society	1 00
Total	$537 60
Due agent	338 03

IDAHO.

Northern District.

Myron J. Durfee, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 89 45
Condit, James E.	6 00
Durfee, Myron J.	16 55
Dumpster, Alice	17 85
Ferguson, W. T.	64 00
Fuller, Floyd	10 00
Glonner, William	15 00
McConnell, Amanda C.	5 00
Ross, S. I.	37 00
Snively, S. I.	7 00
Total	$267 85

Expenditures.

Bullard, Richard, e.	$ 10 00
Davis, John, e.	15 00
Knisley, Alvin, f.	104 00
Rushton, John W., e.	10 00
Total	$139 00
Due church	128 85

ILLINOIS.

Central District.

Luther Simpson, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$112 99
Barton, S. E.	3 25
Bartlett, S. J.	10 00
Clifford, James	15 00
Davis, C. H.	2 00
Ettinger, J. G.	20 00
Harmon, Roseline	1 00
Lufkins, Susie	1 00
Nowack, George	5 00
Oblation, District conf.	5 15
Oblation, Taylorville	5 25
Oblation, Pana	3 62
Reynolds, Ed.	5 00
Reynolds, Rober	1 00
Reynolds, H. F.	1 00
Ruppert, Mary	2 00
Seeger, Mary	2 00
Sharrock, Nellie	20 00
Thurman, Elmer	1 00
Total	$216 26

Expenditures.

Walters, R. T., f.	$ 78 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	50 00
Agent's expenses	50
Total	$128 50
Due church	87 76

Central District.

Martin Bolt, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Central District, listing names and amounts such as From L. Simpson, former agent, 87 76; Bartlett, S. J., 30 00; Barstow, S. V., 12 70; etc.

Total $582 75

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Central District, listing names and amounts such as Paxton, J. W., f., $304 00; Paxton, J. W., e., 22 00; etc.

Kewance District

Charles L. Holmes, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Kewance District, listing names and amounts such as Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, $495 87; Allen, J. William, and wife 85 00; etc.

Total $540 04

Table of receipts for Central District (continued), listing names and amounts such as Gillin, Charles, and wife, 5 00; Gritton, Mrs. Sarah C., 10 00; etc.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Central District (continued), listing names and amounts such as Arber, Joseph, f., $512 00; Arber, Joseph, ex. f., 18 00; etc.

Northeastern District.

James F. Kehr, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Northeastern District, listing names and amounts such as Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, $814 80; A. B., t., 1 00; etc.

Table of receipts for Central District (continued), listing names and amounts such as Cook, Silas, t., 5 00; Darc, J. A., and wife, t 1,500 00; etc.

Table of receipts for Central District (continued), listing names and amounts such as Wildermuth, L. O., f., 452 00; Wildermuth, L. O., e., 37 00; etc.

Table of receipts for Central District (continued), listing names and amounts such as Wildermuth, L. O., f., 452 00; Wildermuth, L. O., e., 37 00; etc.

Southern District.

F. M. Davis, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Southern District, listing names and amounts such as Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, $ 19 90; Burroughs, Lucy, t., 1 00; etc.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Southern District, listing names and amounts such as Agent's expenses, $ 11 45; Bozarth, C. B., e., 5 00; etc.

INDIANA.

Southern District.

John Zahnd, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Indiana Southern District, listing names and amounts such as Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, $ 30 47; Allen, Anne B., 10 10; etc.

Hyatt, E. J., and wife.....	3 25
Indianapolis Branch.....	1 40
Jaegers, B. A.....	2 00
Jolly, Philip S. and Jane C.....	13 50
Kinnear, Flora.....	3 00
Knowland, Elissa W.....	50
Kreutzler, Walter, and wife.....	4 00
Lahue, Emma A.....	10
Lahue, William.....	10
Lahue, Thomas.....	10
Lahue, Frank.....	50
Lahue, Rebecca.....	50
Lahue, George.....	50
Louisville Branch.....	11 08
Maier, Chris, and wife.....	18 90
Miller, Edw.....	4 50
Miller, Myrtle.....	2 50
Miller, Robert.....	2 50
Miller, Granville B., c.....	1 00
Monroe, Elmer, and wife.....	5 00
New Albany Branch.....	0 65
Perry, Edwin.....	5 00
Riggie, Minnie.....	5 50
Rivley, L. E.....	5 50
Sandage, Dora.....	3 00
Sandage, Rosena.....	3 00
Sandage, Roxanna.....	2 00
Schlauterback, Nellie.....	10
Sigler, Willard, and wife.....	2 00
Tempest, Edith G.....	5 00
Thompson, Mary and Lewis Vance, Lucy.....	50
Warne, J. E., and wife.....	2 00
Warne, Mrs. J. E.....	2 00
Willis, Robert.....	2 15
Wynn, James, and wife.....	4 00
Wynn, Emma E.....	1 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop.....	7 00
Total.....	$217 75

Expenditures.

Byrne, E. O., e.....	5 00
Dougherty, Flora, a.....	3 00
Egan, F. A., f.....	31 00
Halb, Jacob, e.....	20 00
Jaegers, B. A., a.....	3 45
Maier, H. B., e.....	25 00
Oliver, James, loan.....	25 00
Shanks, Charles, a.....	12 00
Willis, R. L., a.....	74 55
Agent's expenses.....	12 94
Kelley, E. L., Bishop.....	5 81
Total.....	$217 75

Southern District.

Charles H. Fish, Agent.

Receipts.

Allen, Annie E., t.....	05
Allen, John J., t.....	20
Baker, Jessie M., t.....	10
Davis, John W., t.....	10 00
Davis, William H., t.....	2 00
Fish, Charles H., t.....	5 00
Fish, Juanita N., t.....	50
Froman, Minnie, t.....	10
House, Annie E., t.....	10
Hyatt, E. J., and wife, t.....	3 00
Indianapolis Branch, o.....	67
Knowland, Elissa, t.....	10 00
Knowland, Lyman, t.....	25
Knowland, Lyman, t.....	10
Lahue, Emma, t.....	10
Lahue, George, t.....	25
Lahue, Rebecca, t.....	25
Lahue, Samuel F., t.....	50
Lahue, Thomas, t.....	15
Lahue, William, t.....	10
Louisville Branch, o.....	2 33
Maier, Chris, and wife, t.....	2 10
Merrifield, Lillian, t.....	1 50
Nolan, Charles A., t.....	10 00
Perry, Edwin, t.....	5 00
Warne, Jas. B., and wife, t.....	4 00
York, William T., t.....	2 50
Total.....	$ 50 95

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses.....	64
Flinn, Peter A., f.....	20 00
Moler, H. B., e.....	5 00
Moser, Fred, jr., c.....	10 00
Total.....	$ 85 64
Due church.....	15 31

IOWA.

Des Moines District.

J. F. Mintun, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911.....	$389 07
Amis, Adaline A.....	5 00
Allen, Mary L.....	5 00
Bailey, Harry.....	20
Brown, Jos. M., and wife.....	10 00
Brown, Cyrus B., and wife.....	100
Brown, Israel, and wife.....	2 00

Buckley, Joseph.....	20 00
Bixby, D. S., and wife.....	3 00
Burnell, Milo, and wife, o.....	1 50
Chaney, Fred.....	5 00
Burnell, Milo, and wife, c.....	646 00
Castings, Henry, and wife, c.....	1 00
Castings, Henry, and wife, t.....	15 00
Coll, Ora.....	35
Carpenter, Joseph G., and wife.....	50 00
Clark, A. H., and wife.....	10 00
Clark, E. O.....	7 00
Charter, Mrs. Bertha.....	5 00
Charters, Mrs. Bertha.....	5 25
Carr, Nettie L.....	25
Castings, Lizzie.....	1 50
Deal, J. W., and wife.....	2 00
Davis, Mrs. Adda.....	10 00
Drake, Mrs. Jennie.....	25
Davis, Eunice.....	5 00
Davis, H. T., and wife.....	29 80
Elekson, Oliver, and wife.....	100 00
Elkston, E. A.....	25 00
Flinney, L., and wife.....	2 00
Freel, Ancl.....	8 50
Petter, Bessie.....	50
Griffin, Pearl B., and wife.....	10 00
Galpin, Mrs. Julia.....	15 00
Howe, Mrs. Hannah.....	2 00
Hand, Henry H., and wife.....	16 00
Hand, Lena.....	6 30
Hufaker, Mae.....	10 00
Hufaker, Mrs. Jane.....	5 00
Hampton, Mrs. Odessa.....	10 00
Hidy, John C., and wife.....	10 00
Hardy, W. C., and wife, c.....	20 00
Harney, Mrs. Gertrude.....	5 00
Hidy, Harold B., Joseph L., and Gordon B., o.....	6 00
Hayer, Chris F., and wife.....	50 00
Harris, Mary E.....	10 00
Houghton, Mrs. Viola.....	5 00
Isenhart, A. B., and wife.....	39 92
Jordan, J. B., and wife.....	2 00
Johnson, Charles R., and wife, c.....	5 00
Johnson, Charles R., and wife, t.....	538 00
Kennel, Mrs. Mary.....	5 00
Laughlin, James B., and wife.....	150 00
Laughlin, G., and wife.....	50 00
Laughlin, Alata.....	10 00
Livingson, Mrs. Clara.....	5 00
Lewis, Edward W.....	30
Lehman, Jacob, and wife.....	5 00
Longdon, Mrs. Mary.....	1 00
Malcor, Clement, and wife, c.....	10 00
Martin, Charles B., and wife.....	57 27
Mather, James H.....	100 00
Mintun, James F., and wife.....	13 22
Merrill, Calvin F., c. h.....	25 00
Macrae, Grace.....	5 00
Myers, Joseph W., and wife.....	75
Mintun, Alice E.....	10 00
McBirtie, Wm., and wife.....	8 00
Nirk, Charles, and wife.....	4 00
Park, Emma B., o.....	5 00
Park, Nancy F., c. h.....	5 00
Park, Nancy F., t.....	29 00
Park, William, and wife.....	15 00
Pool, Mrs. Clara.....	4 02
Price, Myrtle.....	15 00
Pratt, Henry, and wife.....	10 00
Perry, Edwin, and wife.....	10 00
Park, Robert B.....	10 00
Robinson, Thomas, and wife.....	20 00
Ridgeway, Joseph, and wife.....	1 00
Richeson, Charles M., and wife.....	36 45
Richeson, Fern.....	1 00
Reed, Wayne.....	1 16
Richards, Ella.....	2 89
Rodger, Sarah M.....	3 00
Saisbury, Orman, and wife.....	7 00
Settles, Fred A., o.....	5 00
Settles, Fred A., t.....	32 00
Smith, Albert, and wife.....	5 00
Shannon, Carl V., and wife.....	28 60
Sister, A.....	41 35
Skidmore, Lydia, A. M., c.....	1 30
Skidmore, Lydia, A. M., t.....	2 95
Smith, Mrs. Belle.....	4 00
Sherman, Ellis, and wife.....	3 50
Sherman, Ernest.....	3 00
Smiley, Samuel, and wife.....	10 00
Sister, A., and brother.....	350 00
Veach, James, and wife.....	5 00
Wickor, A., and wife.....	9 95
Wells, Fred, and wife.....	11 11
Watson, H. T., t.....	45 00
Watson, H. T., o.....	2 00
Walters, Elsie.....	05
Walters, Frank, and wife.....	5 00
Weeks, Mrs. Emma.....	7 00
Weeks, Elty G.....	15 00
Weeks, May.....	15 00
Youtz, Mrs. Blanche.....	4 00
Zimbleman, Mrs. Ida.....	5 00
Total.....	$8,451 01

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses.....	$ 7 50
Coll, Mrs. Delossa J., a.....	18 00
Grim, Mrs. Mary, a.....	18 50
Kelley, E. L., Bishop.....	2,450 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop, (for Children's Home).....	25 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop, (Per-ry church).....	50 00
Mintun, J. F., e.....	15 00
Mintun, J. F., ex f.....	35 00
Mintun, Alice E., loan.....	60 00
Reiste, S. M., e.....	189 00
Reiste, S. M., e.....	5 00
Tucker, John B., a.....	2 61
Turner, M. M., e.....	5 00
Total.....	$3,171 61
Due church.....	279 40

Eastern District.

John Heide, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911.....	$368 83
Beal, C. A., o.....	75
Benson, J. B., and wife, t.....	14 34
Benson, Bessie.....	10 00
Clayton, C., and wife.....	5 00
Campbell, C. A., and wife.....	25 00
Curtis, Caroline.....	10 00
Clark, Fred, and wife.....	5 00
Clark, Otto.....	1 00
Clark, Laura.....	5 00
Clark, Adna.....	1 00
Clark, Jessie, and wife.....	10 00
Chamberlain, I. A. and wife.....	2 00
Clemens, Isaac.....	5 75
Douglass, Bertha, o.....	34 00
Davis, Mary T.....	10 00
Davis, Mae, o.....	2 00
Dykes, C. G.....	5 00
Drake, Mary T.....	1 00
Elledge, Pauline.....	100 00
Frank, B. F.....	3 00
Green, Susie.....	25 00
Green Elizabeth.....	10 00
Hinds, W. H., and wife.....	20 00
Hinds, Peter.....	2 50
Heide, B., and wife.....	5 00
Heide, A. W., and wife.....	25 00
Heide, John, and wife.....	15 00
Heide, Nettie.....	7 50
Haller, Charles, and wife.....	25 00
Hodges, John, and wife.....	1 00
Johnson, Ida.....	9 00
Johnson, B. J., and wife.....	2 00
Johnson, Charlotte.....	5 00
Jackson, George.....	62 50
Ketchum, Volma.....	1 66
Krogaard, Peter, o.....	1 25
Low, Ed, jr., t.....	25 00
Lowe, Ed, sr.....	17 00
Loveland, Hannah.....	14 93
Loveland, Leuben, and wife.....	10 00
Loveland, Charlotte.....	1 70
Lloyd, Alice.....	1 00
Loper, E. H., and wife.....	1 85
Myatt, Louis.....	12 05
Melita, John, and wife.....	5 00
McQueen, John S.....	5 00
McQueen, Victoria E.....	25
McQueen, W. B.....	25
McQueen, Bernice.....	25
Mann, O. S.....	1 00
Nedraw, Mary, o.....	5 00
Powers, Vestal, t.....	33 88
Pitts, Amos, and wife.....	40 00
Roush, Martha.....	29 20
Robinson, Ezra, and wife.....	10 00
Robinson, Mabel.....	2 00
Sartwell, Emily.....	5 00
Stoll, Will, and wife.....	25 00
Sartwell, Vera.....	5 50
Schrunk, Mrs. T. P., request.....	600 00
Speer, D., and wife, t.....	40 00
Seward, Louisa.....	5 00
Sweeney, Elizabeth.....	22 90
Sunshine Band.....	1 20
Swales, Matilda, o.....	1 50
Shields, Louisa, t.....	3 00
Shields, Minnie.....	3 00
Voelpe, Edith.....	1 15
Weston, N. B.....	20 00
Williams, K.....	0 00
Weir, John, and wife.....	10 00
Total.....	$1,813 94

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses.....	$ 2 03
Farr, F. B., f.....	160 00
Hills, L. E., f.....	80 00
Hills, L. E., e.....	25 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop.....	975 00
McKiernan, James, e.....	6 00
Turner, Warren, f.....	240 00
Turner, Warren, e.....	40 00

Wildermuth, J. B., e.....	10 00
Wildermuth, J. B., f.....	115 00
Total.....	$1,653 03
Due church.....	160 91

Fremont District.

Lorena Leeka, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911.....	$434 02
Becksted, Frank, and wife.....	200 00
Becksted, Simon, and wife.....	51 28
Brown, A. N. and wife.....	31 50
Barber, Louisa.....	10 00
Claborn, James and Matilda.....	20 00
Claborn, Matilda.....	200 00
Claborn, A. M., and wife.....	10 00
Comstock, James, and wife.....	160 00
Crawford, J. W., and wife.....	255 00
Crawford, John A.....	3 00
Crawford, Mary.....	7 50
Dunsdon, Roy.....	20 00
Dunsdon, Mrs. Marion.....	25 00
Donaldson, L. C.....	2 00
Donaldson, Dellah.....	2 00
Duncan, Emma Ross.....	10 00
Elliott, Ernest.....	5 00
Eyler, William.....	1 00
Gaylord, Moses W.....	24 50
Hillyer, Alice O.....	20 00
Hillyer, R. S., and wife.....	100 00
Huston, John, and wife.....	5 00
Kemp, J. Henry.....	10 00
Leeka, Jay.....	2,600 00
Leeka, Lorena.....	50 00
Moore, J. C., and wife.....	10 00
Mortimore, N. L., and wife.....	10 00
Newton, Mary A.....	80 10
Redfield, J. F. and Lucy.....	35 00
Roberts, C. M.....	10 00
Stewart, Mrs. John.....	10 00
Stewart, Elizabeth.....	10 00
Skank, Mrs. Fred.....	2 00
Skank, Ethel I.....	10 00
Schenck, R. S.....	7 00
Stephenson, Maurice B.....	7 00
Swain, Mrs. J.....	10 00
Wight, J. R., and wife.....	8 50
Total.....	$4,891 40

Expenditures.

Haden, W. B., f.....	$365 00
Haden, W. B., e.....	13 00
Knisley, Alvin, f.....	104 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop.....	3,614 00
Otis, Carl, insurance.....	50 00
Glenwood church.....	54 00
Total.....	$4,150 00
Due church.....	741 40

Gallands Grove District.

C. J. Hunt, Bishop.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911.....	$ 95 42
Deloit Branch.....
Brogden, Francis H. and Julia.....	20 00
Cose, Cora.....	1 00
Dillivan, Walter.....	5 00
Dobson, Marie.....	60 00
Dobson, Jennie.....	15 00
Dobson, Eunice B.....	10 00
Hunt, Edward C.....	25
Hunt, Russell W.....	25
Hunt, Arlo L.....	25
Imes, Clarence K. and Stella.....	30 00
Jordan, Melissa E.....	5 00
Jordan, Nora.....	2 00
McKim, Ethel.....	2 50
McIntosh, Melinda.....	5 00
Miller, Rebecca E.....	15 00
Myers, William W. and Hattie.....	40 00
Myers, Lucy O. and Myrtle.....	75 00
Myers, Mearle O. and Bessie.....	50 00
Myers, Agda M.....	12 00
Newcom, Heman G. and Chloa.....	30 00
Newcom, Cybert-J. and Nellie.....	10 00
Lee, Vivian.....	2 50
Richardson, Mary I.....	2 00
Stevens, Sarah A.....	1 00
Worley, Eliza J.....	11 00
Winey, Carl W. and Flora.....	50 00
Winans, Sabina.....	10 00
Wedlock, Herald A.....	7 50
Salem Branch.....
Bullard, Jonathan.....	30 00
Bullard, James H. and Edith.....	20 00

Bell, Thomas ..... 9 00
 Hall, David and Emeline ..... 352 80
 Hall, Nellie ..... 2 00
 Hall, Alva and Lulu A. .... 15 00
 Hansen, Frederick and Mary ..... 25 00
 Coalville Branch.
 Beadle, Jane ..... 1 00
 Dixon, Samuel ..... 27 00
 Jordison, William C. .... 35 00
 Jordison, John and Mary. 12 00
 Jordison, Clarence ..... 2 25
 Jordison, Richard and Agnes ..... 16 00
 Hay, Thomas and Elizabeth 9 00
 Hay, Mabel ..... 1 50
 Hay, Roy ..... 8 00
 Hay, William, Jr. .... 50
 Ladies Aid Society ..... 1 20
 Sylvester, William and Polly A. .... 2 00

Cherokee Branch.
 Crippen, Albert R. and Isabel ..... 30 00
 Gross, Byron ..... 6 00
 Hayes, Nathan H. and Catherine ..... 45 00
 Jullus, John ..... 25 00
 Jullus, Charles L. and Matilda ..... 5 00
 Mann, Carl O., and family 38 00
 Larson, Bengta ..... 2 00
 Reeder, William V. and Myrtle ..... 2 00
 Sheldon, Frank M. and Amanda ..... 100 00
 Sheldon, Zenas B. .... 5 00
 Shove, William and Hattie 7 00
 Walker, Etha R. .... 10 00
 Yarrington, Juliaette ..... 20 00

Mallard Branch.
 Barker, Alexander, and family ..... 30 00
 Carmichael, Eleanor ..... 28 00
 Carmichael, Charles L. and Sarah A. .... 80 00
 Fish, Robert and Ethel ..... 20 00
 Ford, George E. and Ora E. 20 00
 Ford, Frank E. .... 50 00
 Hartshorn, Manly W. .... 40 50
 Hartshorn, Catherine ..... 54 80
 McDonnell, Alice ..... 15 00
 Smyth, John W. .... 10 00
 Tuog, Lulu, sen. .... 50 00

Dow City Branch.
 Butterworth, Ora ..... 25 00
 Butterworth, James L. and Christena ..... 100 00
 Baber, Richard J. and Mary ..... 5 00
 Crandall, Jennett ..... 5 00
 Galland, William W. and Elizabeth ..... 2 00
 Jackson, Alfred and Martha ..... 5 00
 Leise, Isabel E. .... 3 00
 Leise, Hazel I. .... 10 00
 Merrick, Melissa, and children ..... 12 30
 Merrick, Stella ..... 13 00
 Marks, Lilla A. .... 2 50
 Marks, Wilma ..... 60
 Marks, Myrtle ..... 30
 Rudd, Abel H. and May ..... 15 80
 Rudd, John R. and Serilda 8 00
 Rudd, Gladys ..... 15
 Rudd, David M. and Helen B. .... 23 44
 Sharp, Adam and Patience 6 00
 Schafer, Theresa ..... 10 00
 Tripp, George S. and Mary L. .... 2 00
 Tripp, Mary L. .... 1 00

Harlan Branch.
 Brewster, David ..... 30 00
 Franklin, Thomas N. and Pearl S. .... 156 40
 Roberts, Mary E. .... 5 70
 Auburn Branch.
 Carroll, William A. and Martha, Elizabeth ..... 10 00
 Wallace, Elizabeth ..... 20 00
 Lanesboro Branch.
 Duckett, Lora ..... 15 00
 Donkin, Frances ..... 1 00
 Juergens, George and Mary 15 00
 Salisbury, Herald and Pearl 100 00
 Salisbury, John O. and Cora 2 50
 Gallands Grove Branch.
 Ballantyne, Marinda, and family ..... 68 00
 Baughman, Eugene A. .... 5 00
 Baughman, Ezekiah N. and Irene ..... 43 77
 Baughman, Irene ..... 1 15
 Baughman, Grace ..... 4 50
 Baughman, Elvin ..... 2 00
 Belcham, Duty ..... 30 00

Crandall, Albert H. and Leona ..... 5 65
 Gunsolley, George H. and Ruth ..... 14 25
 Howland, Sanford B. and Bessie L. .... 20 00
 Hansen, William and Julia B. .... 7 50
 Hansen, Julia E. .... 2 60
 Hansen, George I. and Ruth C. .... 6 00
 Holcomb, Drayton A. and Roy ..... 50 00
 Kearnes, C. Wesley ..... 5 00
 Kearnes, Clyde W. and Bessie M. .... 5 00
 Kearnes, Bertha ..... 5 50
 Kearnes, Laura A. .... 2 00
 McCord, William and Isabel 5 00
 Pet, John ..... 55 00
 Pet, John M. and Ella E. 20 50
 Pet, William and Sarah ..... 50 00
 Penell, Ellen ..... 1 00
 Pearsall, George A. .... 1 50
 Pearsoll, James and Harriett ..... 1 00
 Roundy, Sophia ..... 20 00
 Tripp, Lefa ..... 2 40
 Scattered Saints.
 Brown, Mrs. W. B. .... 5 00
 Edson, Elizabeth B. .... 10 00
 Hunt, B. W. .... 10 00
 Hodges, Lorena ..... 10 00
 Hinds, Amelia P. .... 50
 Snyder, O. H. .... 5 00
 Wight, Paul P. and Mabel 5 00
 Total ..... $2,914 53

Expenditures.
 Butterworth, Charles E., $841 00
 Hattery, Martha, a ..... 22 77
 Hunt, C. J., e. .... 147 92
 Hunt, C. J., f. .... 456 00
 Jordison, John, f. .... 26 00
 Kelley, E. L., Bishop ..... 1,282 95
 McKim, B. L., e. .... 15 00
 Richardson, Margaret, a. 16 00
 Scott, Columbus, e. .... 10 00
 Scott, Columbus, f. .... 100 00
 Wight, Roman, f. .... 240 00
 Agent's expenses ..... 98 11
 Total ..... $2,890 75
 Due church ..... 23 78

Lamoni Stake.

Joseph Roberts, Bishop.
 Receipts.
 Balance due church December 31, 1911 (cash). $1,979 33
 Balance due church December 31, 1911, notes, $2,112 92
 less paid $317.55 ..... $1,705 37
 Attendants Branch.
 Blk, William, t ..... 5 00
 Mull, Mima J., t ..... 2 33
 Rhehart, Pearl E., o ..... 5 00
 Andover Branch.
 Bergman, Gus, sen., and wife, t ..... 5 00
 Bierlein, Samuel, t ..... 75 00
 Bierlein, Mrs. Samuel, o ..... 3 00
 Harp, Edward, and wife, t 40 00
 Heide, A. J., and wife, t ..... 50 00
 Jones, Sarah P., t ..... 4 60
 Perry, John T., t ..... 5 25
 Sneathen, Christina, t ..... 2 00
 Stanley, Jane E., t ..... 8 00
 Centerville Branch.
 Angell, George T., and wife, t ..... 10 00
 Archibald, Theda, o ..... 50
 A sister, Centerville, o ..... 50
 Beard, Mrs. W. L., t ..... 5 50
 Duckorth, Mrs. Jean, o ..... 2 25
 Mullin, Ira, t ..... 17 50
 Taylor, David, t ..... 14 19
 Wheatley, David, t ..... 20 00
 Evergreen Branch.
 A sister, Lamoni, t ..... 2 00
 Barrett, William and Nelia, t ..... 5 00
 Bender, O. A., and wife, t 20 00
 Bouton, J. L. and S. B., t 3 50
 Bouton, E. S., E. t ..... 5 00
 Ford, Fred, and wife, t ..... 15 00
 Johnson, Bertha, t ..... 50
 Johnson, Lizzie, t ..... 50
 Kaestner, Henry, and wife, t ..... 25 00
 Keen, A. L., t ..... 30 00
 Loper, Mrs. H. W., t ..... 6 00
 Loper, Nora and Lida, t. 5 00
 Martha, James, sen., t ..... 15 00
 Phipps, W. J., and wife, t 25 00
 Richards, Lucy J., t ..... 5 00
 Shakespeare, Mrs. Samuel, 3 00

Shakespeare, William B., t 3 00
 Graceland Branch.
 Stemm, Letta, t ..... 1 00
 Stemm, Maggie M., t ..... 2 00
 Stemm, William, and wife, t 5 00
 Greenville Branch.
 Lovell, Nepht, t ..... 20 00
 McDaniel, Jehu, o ..... 5 00
 Hiteman Branch.
 Batton, Parley, and wife, t 17 00
 Burk, Charles E., and wife, t ..... 89 00
 Giles, Edward J., and wife, t ..... 14 00
 Griffiths, John J., and wife, t ..... 1 00
 Griffiths, John K., and wife, t ..... 27 30
 Griffiths, Patience, t ..... 10 00
 Jenkins, John J., and wife, t ..... 19 00
 Luke, Gertrude ..... 8 00
 Miller, Alexander U., and wife, t ..... 4 50
 Morgan, Elizabeth, o ..... 1 00
 Morgan, Sr. J. L., t ..... 1 00
 Morgan, Sr. J. L., o ..... 1 00
 Morgan, J. L., and wife, o 1 50
 Rowley, Samuel, and wife, t 35 00
 White, Samuel, and wife, t 10 00
 Wilkinson, William, o ..... 1 50
 Wilkinson, William, and wife, t ..... 7 00
 Williams, Joseph A., and wife, t ..... 16 00
 Williams, Joseph T., and wife, t ..... 6 00
 Williams, Reece, t ..... 18 00
 Williams, Thomas, t ..... 35 00
 Williams, William E., and wife, t ..... 9 00
 Wilson, William, and wife, t 14 30
 Wilson, Mrs. William ..... 1 00
 Zimmerman, Robert, t ..... 4 00

Lamoni Branch.
 Abbott, Mrs. A. P., t ..... 2 00
 A brother, t ..... 64 00
 Allen, Annie E., t ..... 60 00
 Allen, Annie E., o ..... 25 00
 Allen, Mary A., and wife, t ..... 3 00
 Anderson, A. K., and wife, t ..... 50 00
 Anderson, John E., and wife, t ..... 100 00
 Anderson, Oscar, and wife, t ..... 250 00
 Anderson, Oscar Kelley, t 24
 Anderson, Richard Carroll, t ..... 20
 Anthony, J. G., t ..... 25 00
 A sister, t ..... 3 00
 A sister, t ..... 13 60
 A sister, t ..... 10 00
 A sister, t ..... 5 00
 Atkinson, Nellie G., t ..... 25 00
 Baguley, Ruby E., t ..... 30 00
 Ballantyne, Fred, and wife, t ..... 3 00
 Banta, Ethel M., t ..... 655 00
 Banta, Mary C., t ..... 10 00
 Barr, Mrs. E., t ..... 5 00
 Barrows, Malcolm, t ..... 16 00
 Benedict, Emma, t ..... 5 00
 Bently, Lily, t ..... 07
 Blakesley, C. H. and E., t 21 00
 Blair, C. E., and wife, t ..... 30 00
 Blair, G. W., and wife, t ..... 50 00
 Boeman, Clarence, and wife, t ..... 5 00
 Brackenbury, Shirley, t ..... 12
 Breakle, A. L., t ..... 3 70
 Brown, George V., and wife, t ..... 100 00
 Butts, Nancy Jane, o ..... 95
 Carille, Fisher, t ..... 02
 Carmichael, Emma, and Bessie, McCullough, t. 77 64
 Cave, Luclina M., t ..... 07
 Chandler, Hattie M., t ..... 4 25
 Chandler, J. Roy, t ..... 51 00
 Chapman, Alma, t ..... 5 38
 Chapman, C. E., t ..... 1 50
 Chapman, Fern, t ..... 01
 Chapman, J. W., t ..... 8 00
 Chapman, Walter, t ..... 1 42
 Clark, Charles, Jr., t ..... 07
 Clark, Hannah, t ..... 10 00
 Cracraft, M. T., and wife, t 10 00
 Crudis, Anna J., t ..... 10 00
 Crudis, Anna J., o ..... 4 00
 Cudney, Virgil, t ..... 03
 Dancer, Alice P., t ..... 50 00
 Dancer, Anna A., t ..... 185 00
 Dancer, David A., t ..... 3 50
 Dancer, Howard M., t ..... 3 00
 Dawson, Edwin T., t ..... 30
 Earley, Susannah, t ..... 50 00
 Feldhahn, Mrs. Anka, t ..... 5 00

Feldhahn, John, t ..... 1 50
 Fessler, Mary P., t ..... 7 20
 Fessler, Mary P., o ..... 9 20
 Fisher, Mrs. A. E., t ..... 7 00
 Fleet, Grace C., t ..... 20 00
 Fletcher, Elmer, t ..... 5 00
 Fletcher, Mrs. J. M., t ..... 7 50
 Foreman, Luclie, t ..... 1 00
 France, Mrs. Thomas, t ..... 50 00
 France, W. A. and wife, t. 250 00
 Freeland, Thomas, and wife, t ..... 103 00
 Fuller, Eliza J., t ..... 1 75
 Garner, Mary J., t ..... 6 70
 Garver, John P. and Minnie, o ..... 2 00
 Godfrey, C. O. .... 1 00
 Godfrey, John A., and wife, t ..... 50
 Godfrey, John A., and wife and Seth R., and wife, t 142 22
 Godfrey, Stewart E., and wife, t ..... 23 66
 Goode, John, t ..... 11
 Goode, Joseph, and wife, t. 18 25
 Goodenough, Jesse, t ..... 20 00
 Graham, J. P., t ..... 3 00
 Gray, Ryan, t ..... 3 00
 Green, Gladys, t ..... 2 50
 Green, O. E., t ..... 100 00
 Greer, Bertha A., t ..... 59 95
 Grenawalt, Ruth, t ..... 10
 Hackett, Frank, and wife, t 5 00
 Hancock, F. M. and Josie, t 31 80
 Hancock, Helen, t ..... 4 24
 Harrison, J. B., and wife, t 20 00
 Harpo, Charles, and wife, t (mdse.) ..... 2 50
 Hartshorn, H. A., and wife, t ..... 5 00
 Hatcher, Pearl, t ..... 50 00
 Hawley, E. P., and family, t ..... 20 00
 Hayer, Oliver, and wife, t. 67 00
 Heathman, Anna E., t ..... 1 05
 Hill, George, and wife, t ..... 13 10
 James, R., and wife, t ..... 10 00
 Hopkins, J. Adah, t ..... 20 00
 Hopkins, R. V., t ..... 20 00
 Hopkins, W. A., and wife, t 100 00
 Horner, Deam, t ..... 10
 Hougas, John, and wife, t 15 00
 Howery, George, and wife, t ..... 2 00
 Jacobson, Mrs. Maren, t ..... 2 00
 Jagers, Mary and Etta, t. 10 00
 James, R., and wife, t ..... 5 00
 Jamison, Pearl, t ..... 4 00
 Johnson, Ralph W., t ..... 30 17
 Johnston, Robert T., t ..... 11 30
 Kelley, George B., t ..... 6 00
 Kelley, Lea, t ..... 5 00
 Keown, David, t ..... 55 00
 Keown, Esther, t ..... 5 00
 Keown, Gertrude, t ..... 15 00
 Keown, Grace, t ..... 3 00
 Kirkpatrick, Stella, t ..... 2 00
 Lambert, Bruce, t ..... 12
 Lamoni Mite Society, t ..... 10 50
 Lectum, Lars, and wife, t. 50 00
 Lester, Martha, t ..... 30 00
 Long, Wilber, t ..... 20 00
 Lovell, Alfred, and wife, t. 00
 Lovell, Lulu, o ..... 2 00
 Maden, Mrs. Mary, t ..... 5 00
 Mather, William J., and wife, t ..... 50 00
 McCullough, Albert, t ..... 02
 McCullough, Estella, t ..... 3 00
 McElroy, Clara P., t ..... 7 00
 McKean, E. D., t ..... 25 00
 McKean, Etta, t ..... 35 50
 Mohr, Peter, t ..... 2 00
 Monroe, Isaac A., and wife, t ..... 127 07
 Moore, L. B., t ..... 2 05
 N. A. L., t ..... 2 00
 Newcomer, W. C., and wife, t ..... 191 90
 Nicholson, Gracia, t ..... 15 00
 Nicholson, Minnie B., t ..... 45 00
 Oldfather, Theron, t ..... 21
 Parker, O. W., and wife, t 10 30
 Paul, W. B. and Ethlyn, o 20 00
 Parvis, Susan, t ..... 1 00
 Perry, Sarah, t ..... 5 00
 Peters, Otis, and wife, t. 5 00
 Pfaff, W. G., t ..... 20 00
 Prall, O. B., and wife, t. 25 00
 Prall, Willard, t ..... 25
 Ressernie, Lucy L., t and o 60 00
 Roberts, Byron, t ..... 1 1
 Roberts, Fred, and wife, t. 85 00
 Roberts, Jesse, and family, 4438 00
 Roberts, Jesse, o (mdse.) 5 05
 Roberts, Joseph and Clara, t 58 00
 Roberts, J. V., and wife, t 20 00
 Roy, Mary Jane, t ..... 3 00
 Sanders, Ella, t ..... 8 55
 Sanders, Forest, t ..... 2 00
 Savage, Grace M., t ..... 10 00
 Scott, R. C., t ..... 2 50
 Schofield, Mrs. James, o ..... 50
 Schofield, Vernon, t ..... 03

Shenogle, Mary, t.	5 00
Smith, Mrs. David H., t.	2 00
Smith, Lorraine, t.	05
Smith, Mrs. N. W., t (mdse.)	6 00
Snethen, J. D., and wife, t	10 00
Snively, Bertha E., o.	10 00
Snively, Myrtle C., o.	10 00
Spague, Nepht, t.	10 00
Spague, Hattie, t.	10 00
Sprague, Janette, t.	4 15
Stagger, Hannah, t.	10 00
Stebbins, Callie B., t.	3 00
Steele, Bertha, t.	15 00
Strickland, Alice, t.	145 00
Strong, Catherine, t.	9 43
Stowell, Mrs. J. E., t.	4 14
Sumption, Sarah, t.	3 00
Thomas, Mrs. O. B., t (mdse.)	25 00
Thompson, F. L., t.	16 00
Thompson, F. L., and wife, t.	5 00
Thompson, Grace, t.	19 00
Thompson, Laura, t.	43 70
Tilton, Letha, o.	5 00
Trumbull, A. M., and wife, t	10 00
Waltenbaugh, Jacob and Mary, t.	2 00
Wasson, Melissa P., t.	10 00
Weedmark, John, and wife, t	25 00
White, D. C., and wife, t.	10 00
White, Rollin, t.	3 20
Wight, Estella, t.	20 00
Wight, Keith G., t.	26
Wiley, Roscoe C., and wife, t.	35 00
Williams, Hansel T., and wife, t.	8 45
Willits, Hattie, t.	50
Willson, Christian, t.	30 00
Yarrington, A. J., and wife, t.	108 50
Yarrington, Charlie, t.	02
Young, Gracie A., t.	16 00
Young, Martha A., t.	65 00
Young, Zula G., t.	1 85
Lone Rock Branch.
Cummings, E. V., t.	10 00
Cummings, Mrs. E. V., t.	10 00
Hatchen, Matilda, t.	27 25
Jones, Mrs. Earl, t.	2 50
Kinder, P. J., t.	3 00
Sandage, Nevada, t.	1 70
Lucas Branch.
Evans, J. A., and wife, t.	100 00
Evans, J. R., and wife, t.	10 00
Hawkins, Christopher, t.	100 00
Hawkins, Mrs. C. C., t.	8 25
Williams, Robert D., and Ann, t.	50 00
Oland Branch.
Haskins, Malcolm, f.	1 74
Nicholls, John and Emma, t.	120 50
Sharp, Grover, t.	11 55
Pawnee Branch.
Dunwoody, Sarah, t.	20 00
Hitchcock, Catherine, t.	5 00
Sharp, Mrs. Ray, t.	5 00
Pleasanton Branch.
Alden, Leah, t.	10 00
Bailey, George, t.	1 00
Bailey, Goldie, t.	50
Leeper, Helen, t.	12 89
Leeper, Lucinda, t.	24 60
Leeper, Ollie, t.	6 42
Morey, G. M., t.	18 00
Morey, Walter L., t.	5 00
Vandel, Sylvia, t.	7 00
Ward Branch.
Ensley, George, t.	9 00
Lane, Albert, t.	50
Roxley, Ed, t.	10 00
Wilkinson, Fred O., t.	15 00
Wilkinson, Fred O., o.	1 00
Wilkinson, James, o.	2 00
Wilkinson, James and Mary J., t.	16 51
Wilkinson, James and Mary J., o.	2 00
Williams, Rodger David, and wife, t.	18 00
Miscellaneous.
Constance, C. E., t.	15 50
Engstrom, Minnie, o.	1 00
Hall, Rosa, t.	2 00
Kennedy, John M., t.	5 25
Lewis, Richard, t.	30 00
Logan, Noma Faith, t.	10 00
Stewart, Esta, t.	5 50
Graybeal, Mrs. E. V., t.	20 00
Lamoni Mite Society, Christmas Offering	12 30
Downey Sunday school, Christmas Offering	4 35
Johnson, Joseph, Jr., Christmas Offering	25

Quandt, John, Saints' Home	5 00
Hayer, Lorenzo, and wife, Saints' Home	80 00
Nichols, John and Emma, Children's Home	50 00
Interest	11 33
Case, Mrs., a ret.	808 35
Loans received	821 87
To apply on loans	225 60
Bills receivable	504 50
Church property	100 00
Industrial organization fund	10 00
Nichols, John and Emma	100 00
Plain, Christopher	1 00
Ensley, George	1 00
A sister	1 00
Strauss, Jenette	1 50
Plain, W. G.	5 00
Interest on Leon church fund	10 00
State expense	9 10
Graceland College	28 50
Notes from loans	518 00
Merchandise	175 00
Total	$13,998 33
Expenditures.
Allen, Lizzie, a.	9 00
Anthony, Mrs. R. J., f.	204 00
Baggerly, I. P., f.	240 00
Baker, J. H., f.	160 00
Case, Mrs. J. M., a.	77 05
Cochran, A. S., f.	216 00
Elvin, R. M., f.	240 00
Elvin, R. M., a to grandson	25 00
Evans, J. R., f.	240 00
Garner, Mrs. M. J., a.	128 34
Garver, J. F., f.	400 00
Goode, Mrs. Emma, a.	57 00
Graham, Cynthia, a.	7 67
Harrison, Henry A., a.	5 00
Hicks, Ethel, a.	13 45
Holloway, L. G., f.	256 00
Lambert, J. R., f.	240 00
Lambert, J. R., c.	60 00
Landon, Clara, a.	306 79
Mohr, Peter, a (mdse.)	1 00
Morgan, E. B., f.	208 00
Morrell, J. W., a.	9 00
Rainey, William, a.	7 12
Rodger, Mrs. M. f.	141 00
Rodger, Mrs. M., a.	60 03
Salyards, R. S., f.	300 00
Smith, Mrs. A. H., f.	180 00
Smith, H. C., f.	480 00
Smith, John, f.	240 00
Smith, Nettie, a.	155 11
Stead, J. D., f.	60 00
Stedman, Mrs. E. A., a.	13 40
Stubbart, J. M., f.	392 00
Thomas, O. B., f.	308 00
Thomas, Mrs. D. W., a.	3 50
Turpen, M. M., f.	160 00
Wells, G. R., f.	569 00
Whorlow, E. W., a.	5 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	350 00
Merchandise	175 00
Office expense	393 97
Office fixtures	84 50
Interest	5 40
Stake expense	139 64
Kelley, E. L., Bishop, Christmas Offering	16 00
Children's Home	49 75
Saints' Home	35 00
Loans	1,463 03
Loans (notes taken)	518 00
Loans paid	733 35
Church property	58 08
Graceland College	39 54
Interest on Leon church fund	16 51
Kelley, E. L., Bishop, Lamanite fund	12 00
Norway Mission	5 00
Merchandise to Liberty Home	4 65
Merchandise to Children's Home	31 00
Total	$10,250 88
Due church (cash)	1,047 58
Due church (mdse.)	177 50
Due ch: (notes)	2,513 37
Little Sioux District.
A. M. Fyrando, Agent.
Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$201 40
Adams, Arthur H., and wife, t.	52 00
Adam, Wm. R. and wife	13 80
Aid Society, Magnolia	2 00
Aid Society, Mondamin	2 00
Amundson, Ole, and wife.	50 00
Asquith, Alice	4 00
Amundson, Elmer O.	3 00
Baker, Hattie	2 00
Barr, Orren J., and wife.	10 00

Ballantyne, Jane	5 00
Ballantyne, Francis M.	35 00
Ballantyne, James C., and Ballantyne, C. R. and wife	30 00
Ballantyne, Charles R., jr.	50 00
Ballantyne, Myrtle	25
Beecham, James, and wife	14 30
Benc, May	1 00
Benc, Charles	1 00
Benson, Charles, and wife.	130 00
Benson, George L.	30 00
Benson, John	5 00
Bryant, Lucinda	1 25
Bryant, Geraldine	1 25
Butterworth, Robt. Wm., and family	50 00
Case, Mary	6 00
Caffall, Eliza	9 35
Christy, Mary A.	4 50
Clark, Lenna	1 00
Clark, George W., and wife	10 00
Clark, Lizzie	6 65
Clulow, Nancy	6 65
Conyers, Matthew, and wife	4 00
Correll, Sister	4 00
Crabb, Charles	100 00
Currie, Joseph A., and wife	25 00
Levy, Sophia	5 00
Deal, James H., and wife.	10 00
Derry, Charles	10 00
Derry, Charles, jr.	5 00
Derry, George A., and wife	1 60
Derry, Anna E.	9 58
Derry, Oliver M.	5 05
Emmerson, Trumbull F.	10 00
Emmerson, Elizabeth, o.	3 85
Fares, Paul, and wife.	25 00
Fry, Bert B., and wife.	10 00
Gamet, Ida D., and wife.	50 00
Gamet, Herbert S., and wife	50 00
Garner, John P., and wife	10 00
Grigsby, Chloe	4 50
Halberg, Katie	10 00
Harper, Allen F., and wife	203 00
Harrington, Ella	75
Hawley, Anna M.	5 00
Hawley, Adel, wife.	3 00
Helstand, William, and wife	50 00
Hight, Asa, and wife.	76 10
Hoffman, Arley E., and wife	43 50
Holeton, Sister Jesse	5 75
Howard, Minerva	10 00
Hoyt, Margaret	10 00
Hoyt, Cora	1 00
Hyde, Charles L., and wife	20 00
Jensen, Aurella	1 50
Johnson, Annie	2 00
Jones, John F.	1 00
Kemmish, Susan	55 00
Kemmish, Wm., and wife	56 50
Kemmish, Arthur	125 00
Kibler, Sylvester B., and wife	555 98
Kierulff, Gertrude	6 00
Kirkwood, Lizzie	3 00
Koehn, Clinton A., and wife	48 50
Koehn, Lula	30
Lamb, Charles W.	11 65
Lane, Joseph W., and wife	18 10
Lane, John P., and wife.	25 00
Lane, Arthur J., and wife	60 00
Lanson, Anna	89 00
Mann, Lou G.	5 00
Mann, Laura E.	13 00
Mann, Athal	1 00
Mann, John W., and wife	127 50
Mann, Malvin W.	12 00
Martole, John	5 00
Martin, Esther M.	2 00
Martin, Amasa L., and wife	25 00
Merchant, Joseph W., and wife	11 00
McElwain, Delana M.	6 00
McIntyre, Ammon	20 00
Newberry, Luella M.	25
Oviatt, Fred C., and wife.	300 00
Oviatt, Frederick H.	6 00
Oviatt, Sarah J.	4 00
Peasley, Sylvester J., and wife	24 50
Peasley, Lawrence	50
Peasley, Mary A.	10 00
Perkins, Mfner N.	12 00
Pitt, Sidney, jr., and wife.	24 50
Purcell, Henry C., jr., and wife	1 30
Purcell, Onal (deceased).	1 65
Purcell, Henry	55
Redfield, Elmer, and wife.	5 00
Reynolds, Ella	4 00
Reynolds, Ada	2 00
Reynolds, John	5 00
Runkle, Frank, and wife.	5 00
Scofield, Mand	2 00
Seddon, Joseph	5 00

Shearer, John W., and wife	25 00
Shearer, Leslie, and wife.	25 00
Smith, Clarence R., and wife	20 00
Smith, Anna	25
Smith, Edie	8 03
Smith, Addison J., and wife	100 00
Strand, Lenna	5 40
Stuart, Annie	39 00
Swain, Henry D., and wife	10 00
Van Eaton, Pearl	5 00
Van Sickle, Helen	1 50
Vredenburg, Charles, and wife	51 70
Vredenburg, May	10 00
Vredenburg, Leroy	50
Vredenburg, Glen	50
Vredenburg, David H., and wife	90 00
Waples, Hugh, and wife	64
Waples, Mabel	1 00
Wentworth, Emma	1 70
West, E. S., and wife.	12 00
Whitsitt, Robert B., and wife.	5 00
Worsencroft, John T., and wife	8 75
Worsencroft, Priscilla	21 50
Worsencroft, Martha	1 10
Wilder, Clarence M., and wife.	5 00
Yeaman, R. W., and wife.	50 00
Yocum, Nepht	19 00
Total	$3,720 01
Expenditures.
Agent's expense	$ 18 20
A brother	3 00
Butts, Elsie E., a.	120 00
Caffall, Eliza, f.	144 00
Chambers, D. R., a.	120 00
Crabb, J. C., Laura E. Bassett) f.	160 00
Daley, Emily, a.	120 00
Derry, Charles, f.	240 00
Fares, Simon, a.	5 00
Haner, Isaac, a.	16 00
Hilliard, G. H., e.	10 00
Holeton, Thirza, a.	19 00
Landingham, Bro and Sr., a	3 00
Martin, Elizabeth, a.	15 00
Parker, Jesse L., f.	344 00
Parker, Jesse L., e.	2 00
Smith, W. A., f.	324 00
Wight, J. W., e.	7 58
Wood, Lulu B., a.	45 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	1,053 48
Total	$3,668 68
Due church	32 28
Pottawattamie District.
J. A. Hansen, Agent.
Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$383 50
Adams, Mary and May.	45 75
Adams, John, and wife.	70 00
Altrup, Bro. Thomas	8 00
Brown, Sr. Lulu	10 00
Bracken, John, and wife.	156 40
Baxter, M. S.	48
Bebe, Sr. Emma	80 00
Butler, Catherine	20 00
Butler, Daniel, and wife.	50 00
Clark, Carrie	20 00
Christensen, James P., and wife	100 00
Campbell, Joseph, and wife	50 00
Carille, Ethel A., and wife	20 00
Carille, Earl H., and wife	20 00
Christensen, Chris O., and wife	15 00
Carille, George	20 00
Evans, John, and wife.	68 52
Elswick, Marian F., and wife	65 00
Elswick, Edna	19 25
Fenn, Myrtle	5 00
Frederickson, Peter W., and wife	35 00
Frederickson, Laura	5 00
Frederickson, George J., and wife	200 00
Hansen, Ellen C.	30 00
Hansen, Sophia	6 00
Hansen, John A., and wife	25 00
Hansen, Anna	18 00
Hansen, Hans N., and wife	300 00
Harding, Estella	15 00
Jensen, Elsie M.	5 00
Jacobson, Stephen, and wife	40 00
Jensen, Martin, and wife.	40 00
Johnson, Nels P., and wife	25 00
Jensen, Caroline	17 20
Lapworth, James R., and wife	250 00
Larsen, Jennie	5 50
Larsen, Charles C., and wife	25 00

Table listing names and amounts: Larsen, Peter 25 00; Mackland, Joseph, and wife 20 00; Spanawick, W. T. 5 00; Peterson, Petrus, and wife 75 00; Peterson, Hans, and wife 50 00; Peterson, Marie 2 00; Rasmussen, Kate 10 00; Riley, C. I. 2 50; Riley, C. I. 10 00; Scott, William 5 00; Scott, Ralph, and wife 4 00; Scott, Carrie 5 60; Smith, John, and wife 200 00; Terry, Esther 17 00; Tidwell, Helen M. 10 00; Underwood, Samuel, and wife 15 00; Wind, Mary H. 103 00; Wind, Floyd 2 00; Total $2,775 68

Table listing names and amounts: Arber, Joseph, e. $ 6 00; Baker, James H., f. 80 00; Baker, J. H., e. 42 00; Blair, Elmer, a. 85 00; Daugherty, Sr. M., a. 15 00; Gayford, Nora, t. 5 00; Hillard, G. E., Bishop 235 50; Kelley, E. L., Bishop 1,000 00; Knudson, Johanne, at Sanitarium, a. 75 00; Lentell, J. R., e. 33 23; McIntosh, C. G., a. 10 00; Mann, Sr. R. O., f. 20 00; Pierce, H. N., e. 120 00; Pierce, H. N., e. 16 40; Scott, C. f. 108 00; Sheldon, N. V., f. 386 00; Smith, F. A., e. 50 00; Sheldon, N. V., e. 36 85; Wight, J. W., f. 75 00; Wight, J. W., e. 41 45; Total $2,422 93; Due church 352 75

ILLINOIS AND IOWA.

Nauvoo District.

George P. Lambert, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table listing names and amounts: Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1917 $1,091 60; Beady, J. Lynn, t. 2 00; Bullard, Ida M., t. 80 00; McKiernan, James and Hattie, t. 3 60; Warnock, Susan, t. 10 00; Ammonhauser, Annie, t. 13 40; Buchanan, John, t. 61 00; Bauer, John, N., t. 10 00; Bierman, Sean, s. 10 00; Brown, Sarah B., t. 1 25; Batley, Louisa K., t. 17 00; Beatty, Mrs. Lynn, t. 1 00; Batchler, Mary B., t. 4 50; Clawson, Julia, t. 5 00; Freuburg, Alice, t. 5 00; Galt, Emma, t. 1 00; Gibson, Christopher, and wife, t. 15 00; Horsey, Catherine, t. 20 00; Harton, Elizabeth J., t. 10 00; Jacobs, Jeremiah H., and wife, t. 10 00; Kite, Margaret, t. 5 00; Kite, Hubert, t. 1 00; Kaestner, Henry, sen., t. 20 00; Kroiger, Florence, t. 5 00; Lacey, Ethel A., t. 11 35; Lawson, Lewis, t. 1 00; Lawson, John, and wife, t. 10 00; Lewis, Ewan H., and wife, t. 5 00; Lewis, Maggie, jr., t. 1 60; Lewis, Maggie, t. 5 00; Lewis, John O., t. 3 00; Lankford, Ellen, t. 4 50; Lambert, William T., t. 100 00; Lambert, Geo. P., and wife, t. 137 00; Lambert, Leland G., t. 2 43; Lambert, Diltbert W., t. 2 00; McComas, Mrs. George, t. 1 00; Mapes, Edith L., t. 5 00; Miller, Louverna, t. 1 00; McKiernan, James and Hattie, t. 5 00; Newman, John, and wife, t. 5 00; Ontieb, William, t. 25 00; Orr, Elizabeth, t. 1 00; Orr, Margaret, t. 10 00; Pitt, Henry T., t. 25 00; Reed, Joseph, t. 2 00; Reed, Catherine, t. 7 00; Rodgers, Robert, and wife, t. 12 00

Table listing names and amounts: Ross, Ellen, t. 2 00; Royer, Leonard P., t. 50 00; Salisbury, Don C., t. 10 00; Salisbury, Mary L., t. 16 00; Salisbury, Josephine, t. 9 00; Sloan, Mrs. B. G., t. 5 00; Schweers, William, t. 30 00; Scott, Annie, t. 6 50; Siegfried, Mary B., t. 6 00; Simpson, Thomas J., t. 1 00; Santae, Ernest E., and wife, t. 10 50; Stevenson, Grace A., t. 8 00; Stevenson, Mrs. T. M., t. 50 00; Stevenson, Elizabeth, t. 2 00; Thomas, Eva, t. 50 00; Tripp, Solomon, t. 32 00; Tripp, Solomon, o. 1 00; Winter, Marie B., t. 15 00; Williams, Daniel T., sen., t. 1 00; Williams, Daniel T., jr., and wife, t. 2 00; Williams, Daniel T., t. 2 00; Williams, Edward B., t. 2 00; Wallace, Mary A., t. 10 00; Wright, Ida M., t. 80 00; Wright, Margaret S., t. 10 00; Wright, Fred E., and wife, t. 2 00; Wilson, Elizabeth J., t. 1 00; Willey, Charles F., and wife, t. 10 00; Willey, Rufus T., t. 35 00; Weaver, Jessie W., t. 5 00; Total $2,190 69; Due agent 28 31

Table listing names and amounts: Bullard, Richard, e. 13 00; Beer, Florence, e. 55 00; Cooley, Mrs. N. S., a. 60 00; Cooper, F. M., f. 300 00; Cooper, F. M., ex. f. 20 00; Cooper, F. M., e. f. 10 00; Guyyatt, Mary, a. 19 10; Hoverson, Ollie B., a. 13 00; Hoverson, Andrew, a. 33 00; Herrick, Lenora, a. 10 00; Harpe, Charles B., f. 20 00; Harpe, Charles E., e. f. 100 00; Kelley, D. L., Bishop (property expenses) 97 90; Kelley, E. L., Bishop 600 00; Lambert, G. P., e. 14 00; McClintchen, Lafayette, a. 10 00; McKiernan, James, f. 240 00; Miller, O. R., f. 150 00; Miller, O. R., e. 120 00; Otto, Auguste, a. 8 00; Shockley, Angelma, a. 8 00; Total $2,210 00

KANSAS.

Northeastern District.

John Cairns, Agent.

Receipts.

Table listing names and amounts: Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1917 $ 17 15; Bell, Emeline 10 00; Bradley, George 10 00; Blauser, E. Hattie 9 00; Blauser, A. Sarah 10 00; Burns, W. James 5 00; Baillie, James, and wife 20 00; Cairns, F. George 7 00; Cairns, John 75 00; Chew, Maggie 10 00; Cole, S. Hartley 5 00; Davis, H. Charles, and wife 50 00; Edwards, B. Charles 4 00; Fennet, C. George, and wife 32 35; Green, Ann 15 00; Green, M. John, and wife 40 00; Hart, M. Ina 3 00; Hedrick, F. Gilbert 2 50; Hedrick, G. Frank, and wife 15 00; Hayes, W. Lawrence 3 00; Jackson, F. B. 10 00; King, Brooks Viola 5 00; Lucas, T. B. 2 50; Lonestene, N. Chris 4 00; Miller, J. A. and Elmira 4 60; Menzies, William 30 00; Mathison, Ragner 0 30; McDougal, Matilda 5 00; Morris, Arthur 4 80; McCray, Maggie 5 00; Norman, S. Joseph 20 00; Patterson, John 9 00; Robinson, H. George 22 00; Robinson, S. John 5 00; Scott, Mary 5 00; Sprague, B. Alice 10 00; Sprague, B. Harry 20 00

Table listing names and amounts: Shanneman, H. Cassie 3 00; Thomas, A. Nancy 3 00; Wise, Annas 8 00; Willey, B. A. 20 00; Willey, Anna 1 00; Total $552 20

Expenditures.

Table listing names and amounts: Brooner, W. A., f. $ 71 00; Okerlind, O. W., f. 114 00; Okerlind, O. W., e. 8 00; Peak, W. E., e. 15 00; Rivers, Oliver, a. 32 00; Twombly, Samuel, e. 3 00; Twombly, Samuel, f. 225 00; Walters, R. T., f. 78 00; Total $546 00; Due church 6 20

Northwestern District.

J. A. Teeters, Agent.

Receipts.

Table listing names and amounts: Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1917 $ 22 38; Anslay, John B. 150 10; Bullard, Elvin and Lois 20 00; Bergsel, Mary 10 00; Greer, Phoebe 3 00; Haskins, Ransom and Mary 10 00; Sumner, Addie 5 00; Seaman, Mrs. P. M. 3 50; Sears, Mary 10 00; Teeters, John and Eva 5 00; Thompson, O. D. 10 00; Wolfe, Mrs. T. B. 6 00; Total $254 98

Expenditures.

Table listing names and amounts: Peak, W. E., e. $ 10 38; Teeters, J. A., f. 109 00; Ward, F. S., a. 12 00; Postage 1 12; Total $222 50; Due church 32 48

Spring River District.

Ellis Short, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table listing names and amounts: Anderson, A. $ 10 00; Atten, Robert 15 00; Attenburg, Frankie 20 00; Adams, W. L. 1 00; Barracough, E. L., and wife 11 00; Bird, Guy 1 00; Bird, Richard, sen., and wife 35 00; Bird, Lottie 5 45; Bradford, O. L., and wife 1 00; Blair, Ed. K. 18 20; Barnett, C. H. (1911) 27 35; Barnett, C. H. 26 00; Bradford, Edith 9 00; Bath, William, jr., and wife 5 00; Baldwin, D. M. 2 50; Beagan, Ida N. 5 00; Bradley, Florence 1 00; Cheney, Warren 12 00; Tugston, Carrie 20 00; Christensen, Nellie 3 00; Christensen, C. C., and wife 55 66; Carson, John P. 19 00; Cochran, James and Elizabeth 10 00; Cale, S. L. 1 00; Curtis, Laura 1 00; Carter, G. B., and wife 25 00; Cheney, W. W. 10 00; Carrow, S. G., and wife 10 00; Crawley, Margaret 5 30; Cummings, Myrtle 5 50; Davis, Mariah 21 10; Davis, A. M. 5 00; Davis, J. H. and Ida 10 00; Daniels, Elizabeth 15 00; Evans, Sr. C. B. 1 50; English, F. L., and wife 10 00; Foster, Ray, and wife 157 05; Free, A. P. 2 00; Gray, Sidney, and wife 52 00; Goff, Vera 3 00; Gocottell, S. F., and wife 3 00; Hutchenson, R., and wife 10 00; Hobart, C. H., and wife 2 00; Hickie, N. R., and wife 1 00; Hutchenson, Bessie 7 00; Hutchenson, Bertie 7 75; Holsworth, Mabel 10 00; Holsworth, Myrtle 10 00; Hart, Elmer, and wife 15 00; Hart, James L. 50 00; Hart, Jesse M. 20 00; Hayes, Carlee 1 00; Hayton, Nellie 1 40; Joplin Aid Society 5 00

Table listing names and amounts: Jones, H. B., and wife 3 00; Jones, R. G., and wife 15 00; Jenkins, J. H. 20 00; Kelley, E. L., Bishop 342 00; Kirk, W. and Anna 7 00; Kanady, Bertha 7 50; Kines, C. K., and wife 10 00; Karlstrom, A. V., and wife 12 50; Landon, J. D. 60 00; Leggett, Jennie 15 00; Leslie, Elwood 25 00; Lewis, Ed., and wife 10 00; Lewis, Etta 10 10; Lewis, Arles 11 22; Iewls, Glenn 22 00; Lowell Branch 2 00; Myers, C. O. 10 00; Mullen, S. 5 00; Mullen, W. B. 12 00; Martin, W. N. 5 00; Merrill, Charles 10 00; McFarlin, Mary 5 00; McCall, H. L., and wife 90 00; McQuirk, E. J. 3 00; McClain, J. B., and wife 4 45; Nunamaker, O., and wife 12 50; Nunamaker, Nancy R. 3 50; Nunamaker, Lillian 2 25; Nunamaker, James R. 10 00; Nashville church, proceeds sale 75 00; Nelson, John 20 00; Needles, Alice 1 00; Quick, H. B. N. 11 50; Richardson, H. M. 10 00; Richards, J. M. 3 00; Randall, Charles 10 00; Ross, Emma 1 00; Ransom, Sherman 2 00; Robinson, J. Monroe, and wife 20 00; Rivers, Helena 50 00; Short, Ellis 400 00; Sutherland, O. P., and wife 67 55; Sutherland, L. 2 42; Steffens, Max, and wife 13 00; Stricklin, W. S., and wife 5 00; Severine, J. C. 20 00; Shervin, John N. 2 00; Smith, James M. 5 00; Stofer, Minnie P. 15 74; Seymour, Asa 1 00; Turner, Alexander D. 15 00; Thomas, J. N. 16 50; Taylor, Walter 20 00; Terry, Lucy 1 00; Thorp, Nancy 2 00; Virgin, John C. 64 45; Westervelt, W. D., and wife 10 80; Williams, Mark 101 86; Williams, Roland 10 00; Williams, Sr. N. B. 2 00; Wyatt, Sr. R. N. 17 00; Watson, James, and wife 50 00; White, Sr. Arlie 5 00; Warren, John 5 00; Wheeler, Sheridan 25 00; Wortman, Anna 2 55; Young, W. A. 120 12; Total $2,500 73; Due agent 676 08

Expenditures.

Table listing names and amounts: Balance due agent Decem-ber 31, 1917 $701 40; Deceased Sister, a. 12 50; Chaburn, T. W., e. 5 00; Cobb, Mrs. W. a. 40 00; Davis, J. Alfred, e. 20 00; Davis, J. Arthur, f. 450 00; Davis, Ewan A., f. 30 00; Davis, J. Arthur, e. 108 00; Davis, J. Arthur (1911) e. 27 35; Edwards, George, f. 35 00; Fulks, Charles, a. 20 00; Harris, Otto, a. 10 00; Keck, F. C., f. 200 00; Kern, Mrs. John, a. 180 00; Montague, Nellie, a. 15 00; Peak, W. B., e. 10 00; Peak, W. B., f. 348 00; Quick, Lee, f. 370 00; Riley, T. J., t. 10 00; Rasmussen, Bro. A. 36 00; Sparling, Henry, (1911) f. 15 00; Smith, W. R., e. 10 00; Sparling, Henry, f. 239 00; Smith, James M., e. 32 00; Smart, Henry, e. 97 50; Silvers, A. C., f. 192 00; Short, E. C., f. 47 00; Deceased sister, a. 12 50; Agent's expenses 20 00; Total $3,275 81

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Kentucky and Tennessee District.

J. R. McClain, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Kentucky and Tennessee District, listing names and amounts.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Kentucky and Tennessee District, listing names and amounts.

MAINE.

Eastern District.

J. A. Koehler, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Maine Eastern District, listing names and amounts.

Western District.

Henry R. Eaton, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Maine Western District, listing names and amounts.

Table of receipts for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, listing names and amounts.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, listing names and amounts.

MASSACHUSETTS AND RHODE ISLAND.

Massachusetts District.

M. C. Fisher, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Massachusetts District, listing names and amounts.

Table of receipts for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, listing names and amounts.

Table of names and amounts, including Nickerson, Arthur S., Frost, William F., Greene, U. W., Kelley, B. I., Bishop, Koehler, Arthur, f., MacCallie, Mrs. Robert, a., Phillips, Arthur B., f., Robley, George W., Sheehy, John, f., Smith, H. O., f., Agent's expense, Total, Due church, Reynolds, Lester W., Rice, Mary, Roberts, Anna F., Roberts, Frederick W., and wife, Roberts, John Wm., and wife, Robley, George F., Robley, Fred A., Rogers, Fred C., Rogers, Mary Eva, Rogerson, J. E., and wife, Ross, Lillian, Sanford, Albert L., and wife, Scoville, Dora, Sears, Addie, Sears, Bessie M., Sears, Calvin, Sears, Lucie H., Sears, Nettie A., Sears, Sally J., Sears, Terry A., Sharpley, Carrie, Siddall, Edith, Siddall, John, Siddall, Lillian, Simmons, Alice W., Sister, A., Fall River, Sinclair, George D., and wife, Sister, A., Dennispot, o., Sister, W., and wife, Sister, A., Dennispot, o., Smith, Alice, Smith, Clifford, Smith, Delmont, Smith, Harry C., Spurling, Annie R., Stanfield, Edna, Stanley, Ida F., Steele, Myra G., Steele, Neta, Thayer, Harvill, and wife, Thayer, Cassius B., and wife, Thayer, Ella, Thayer, Verna, Thompson, Etta L., Trask, Harriet B., Ward, Abraham B., and wife, Webster, Charles M., Wentworth, Stephen, Wetmore, Amanda, Wetmore, Edgar, Wholley, Peter, and wife, Wholley, Nellie, White, Pascal H., Whitehouse, Lavina S., Wilkes, L. J., Wilson, Julia, Wood, Alta, Wood, Annie E., Wood, Clara M., Wood, Cyrus W., Wood, Gertrude, Wood, Gilmore, Wood, Harriet B., Wood, Helen, Wood, Harry, and wife, Wood, Thora I., Wylie, William, Yarwood, Jane, red. fd., Yarwood, Luke, and wife, York, George W., and wife, York, Jessie W., Kelley, B. I., Bishop, special funds, Young, William B., and wife, Total $7,080 38

Table of names and amounts under Expenditures, including Anderson, William, e., $10 00, Anderson, William, f., 208 00, Britton, Olive, a., 3 00, Chester, John, a., 42 25, Davison, H., f., 384 00, Farrell, R. W., f. (Cynthia), 25 00, Farrell, Ralph W., e., 8 00

Table of names and amounts, including Farrell, R. W., f., 490 00, Frost, William F., l., 18 00, Greene, U. W., e., 116 00, Greene, U. W., f., 126 00, Kelley, B. I., Bishop, 1,000 00, Koehler, Arthur, e., 18 00, Koehler, Arthur, f., 240 00, Koehler, J. A., f., 128 00, MacCallie, Mrs. Robert, a., 125 25, Phillips, Arthur B., e., 25 00, Phillips, Arthur B., f., 749 65, Robley, George W., e., 50 00, Sheehy, John, e., 10 00, Sheehy, John, f., 265 00, Smith, H. O., f., 240 00, Smith, H. O., e., 25 00, Agent's expense, 22 08, Total $1,828 28, Due church, 2,752 13

MICHIGAN.

Central District.

G. W. Burt, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of names and amounts, including Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, $ 90 03, Albertson, George, and wife, 151 20, Albertson, O. D., and wife, 1,201 00, Acker, Hannah, 3 00, Armstrong, Josephine, t., 13 20, Armstrong, Eliza, t., 10 00, Arnold, Sarah, t., 2 00, Atkinson, Thomas, and wife, t., 40 00, Bailey, George W., and wife, t., 4 00, Bailey, Cashus, t., 1 00, Barr, John J., t., 10 00, Barr, Stephen, t., 8 00, Barber, Jane, t., 1 00, Barnes, Thomas, and wife, t., 1 00, Bellenger, John, and wife, t., 2 00, Blackman, Pitt, t., 10 10, Bennett, Richard, t., 10 00, Bennett, Elmore, t., 15 00, Blackford, Sarah, t., 10 00, Boelenbaugh, J. W., t., 50 00, Bowlsby, Sydna, and wife, t., 3 52, Bowlsby, Elizabeth, t., 1 74, Bowlsby, John, t., 1 10, Bradbourn, Mary, t., 1 25, Brower, Charles, and wife, t., 3 00, Brintnell, Jane, t., 3 00, Brown, George E., t., 22 50, Brown, Mary, t., 1 50, Brown, Mary, t., 1 00, Burr, Mary Ann, t., 1 00, Burr, Abram, and wife, t., 5 00, Burgett, J. W., and wife, t., 2 50, Burt, Ernest N., and wife, t., 5 00, Carrick, Elizabeth, t., 1 00, Carrick, J. R., and wife, t., 15 50, Carrick, N. A., and wife, t., 17 00, Carrick, L., and wife, t., 1 00, Carlton, David J., t., 1 00, Cavanaugh, Thomas, and wife, t., 8 87, Chafee, Charles, t., 4 40, Clingerman, Dora, t., 5 25, Clingerman, Emmitt, t., 4 43, Collett, Herman, and wife, t., 45 00, Cooper, Philip, and wife, t., 4 00, Corey, Milla, t., 2 50, Cornish, Ida M., t., 1 00, Currie, Dora, t., 11 00, Delong, Oscar, and wife, t., 1 50, Degere, Harvey, and wife, t., 2 00, Deemes, Ida, t., 11 00, Demaray, Nettie, t., 1 00, Douglas, Adelbert, and wife, t., 10 00, Douglas, Evah D., t., 1 00, Dowker, Sarah, t., 5 00, Duncan, James D., and wife, t., 50 00, Echer, Mary A., t., 3 25, Finch, Ametha, t., 40 00, Field, William, and wife, t., 13 50, Flashman, E. B., and wife, t., 60 00, Frank Orlando, and wife, t., 4 50, Frank, Harrison, and wife, t., 61 15, Frank, Omar, and wife, t., 6 00, Gumble, Louisa, t., 6 50, Garbett, William H., t., 100 00, Goodwin, Mrs. C. M., t., 100 00, Goheen, Thomas, and wife, t., 70 00, Goheen, Israel, and wife, t., 2 10

Table of names and amounts, including Gorton, Jennie, t., 2 00, Greer, Mary J., t., 25 25, Greer, Michael, t., 25 25, Grubb, William, t., 5 25, Hall, Marie, t., 25 25, Hall, Estella, t., 25 25, Hall, Warren, t., 25 25, Hall, Ben, and wife, t., 1 35, Hall, Ernest, and wife, t., 2 00, Hall, Charles, and wife, t., 73 00, Hanscom, Isadore, o., 2 00, Hanscom, Isadore, o., 2 00, Harris, J. B., t., 20 00, Hog, Agnes, o., 2 00, Horn, Anson, and wife, t., 35 00, Healey, Welcome, and wife, t., 91 28, Hemmanway, Marshall, and wife, t., 20 00, Ingterlight, Ross, and wife, t., 20 00, Ivys, Amos, and wife, t., 20 00, Jones, Elsie O., t., 4 00, Kehr, Thomas, and wife, t., 2 00, Kilbourn, Susan, t., 14 42, Kinise, Alvin, and wife, t., 4 65, Laird, Gordon, t., 25 25, Laird, Sarah, t., 20 00, Lake, Victoria, t., 2 75, Lane, James, t., 2 00, Larr, Lillie, t., 2 00, Lavery, Susan, t., 4 00, Leverton, Anna, t., 1 75, Lewthwait, James, and wife, t., 25 25, Louthan, Bertha, t., 80 80, Macklin, Harry, and wife, t., 2 50, Mann, Jacob, and wife, t., 6 95, Marshall, George, and wife, t., 2 00, McEntosh, Matilda, t., 5 00, McCormick, Mabel, t., 10 00, McDonald, Elizabeth, t., 12 00, McDonald, Francis, and wife, t., 42 00, McQuade, Ethel, t., 50 00, Merritt, Chaney L., and wife, t., 1 00, Methner, Frank F., and wife, t., 80 00, Methner, Fred F., t., 5 00, Miller, Ben, t., 100 00, Miller, Clara, t., 25 50, Miller, Mrs. Floyd, t., 1 00, Morrison, Belle, t., 15 00, Morrison, Joseph N., t., 50 00, Morgan, Nettie, t., 12 00, Morgan, Alex., and wife, t., 15 00, Muro, Alex., and wife, t., 5 20, Munro, Samuel, t., 5 40, Naab, William, and wife, t., 25 00, Newman, Richard, and wife, t., 25 50, Newberry, Alfred E., t., 47 85, Nichols, Augusta, t., 5 00, Nichols, Ernest M., and wife, t., 2 00, Nottor, Nettie, t., 1 80, Nottor, Gids, t., 1 80, Norcross, Alma J., t., 2 75, Norton, Ezra, and wife, t., 7 00, Norton, Dwight, and wife, t., 50 00, Norton, Otta, t., 50 00, Norton, Orvil, t., 75 25, Norton, Pearl, t., 65 00, Oasmb, Grace, t., 1 00, Oasmb, Samuel, and wife, t., 25 25, Osbourn, Sydna, and wife, t., 20 00, Owens, Henriette, and wife, t., 11 80, Phelps, Lydia, t., 35 35, Phelps, Anna, t., 20 15, Phelps, Levi, t., 2 50, Preston, Ethel, and wife, t., 12 15, Proper, William, and wife, t., 1 00, Provost, Anna, t., 5 00, Provost, Henry, and wife, t., 10 10, Provost, Violet, t., 6 20, Provost, Samuel, and wife, t., 1 50, Prer, Fred, and wife, t., 5 00, Rasmus, John, and wife, t., 25 25, Rice, B. C., t., 2 00, Rowe, Asa, and wife, t., 10 00, Russell, Mrs. Bert, t., 2 30, Schrock, Willis, and wife, t., 50 50, Shepherd, Grace, t., 25 25, Shults, Tracie, t., 3 00, Skeels, Sarah J., t., 20 00, Sloan, John, and wife, t., 75 75, Smith, Mary B., t., 2 00, Smith, Kate, t., 25 25

Table of names and amounts, including Simons, Seymore, t., 7 00, Sommerfield, George, t., 2 95, Sommerfield, Anna, t., 4 00, Sommerfield, Michael, jr., t., 1 00, Sparks, Cryton, and wife, t., 1 50, Stewart, John, and wife, t., 5 00, Stewart, Richard, and wife, t., 6 80, Stocks, William, sen., t., 1 00, Surbrook, Harry, and wife, t., 32 50, Sylvester, Frank, and wife, t., 3 70, Sylvester, George, and wife, o., 1 00, Sylvester, George, and wife, t., 5 00, Tessonman, Charles, and wife, t., 14 00, Uiman, Mary J., t., 2 75, Uiman, Mable, t., 1 00, Umphry, Mathew, and wife, t., 10 50, Umphry, John, t., 20 00, Umphry, Libbie, t., 20 00, Underwood, Clarica, t., 10 00, Underwood, Henry, t., 1 00, Vennard, William, t., 11 00, Ward, Robert, and wife, t., 4 20, Wallace, N. T., and wife, t., 10 00, Welch Lewis, and wife, t., 5 45, Wescott, Sarah, t., 1 00, Wheeler, O. J., and wife, t., 51 05, Wheeler, O. J., and wife, o., 50 00, White, D. S., and wife, t., 9 00, White, Mrs. Joseph, t., 2 00, White, Lillie, t., 7 00, White, Nellie, t., 5 00, Whitford, Lyman D., t., 10 00, Wiley, Glen, and wife, t., 37 23, Wiles, Herald, t., 4 00, Wooden, Anna, t., 5 00, Woods, Clara, t., 25 00, Yeager, D. R., t., 4 00, Yeager, Horatio, and wife, t., 4 00, Yeager, Francis, and wife, t., 18 33, Yeager, Edward I., t., $3,404 70, Expenditures, Burr, A. B., t., $280 00, Burt, G. W., f., 384 00, Burt, D. N., f., 100 00, Radley, S. A., 10 00, Burr, A. E., e., 35 00, Bechtel, Anna, a., 32 00, Burt, Earl, e., 11 00, Burt, Ernest N., e., 23 23, Bailey, J. J., e., 7 70, Burt, G. W., f., 27 80, Cooper, Margaret, a., 25 00, Dowker, William, f., 240 00, Dowker, William, e., 85 00, Fultz, E. D., e., 2 00, Ferguson, Maggie, a., 18 00, Fetting, Otto, f., 140 00, Harrison, Chas. C., a., 25 00, Hemmanway, Marshall, e., 10 45, Hawley, Margaret, a., 10 00, Hawn, O. J., e., 5 00, Ives, Amos, e., 10 25, Pendleton, S. T., f., 140 00, Mayhew, Sr., a., 10 00, Pendleton, Samuel T., e., 24 31, Sheffer, Joseph, e., 2 00, Smith, David, f., 185 00, Yager, Henry, a., 10 00, Sommerfield, M., e., 3 10, Kelley, B. I., Bishop, 1,000 00, Agent's expenses, 150 03, Total $2,950 86, Due church, 453 84

Eastern District.

W. F. Smith, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of names and amounts, including Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911, $081 13, Allen, George, t., 5 00, Allen, Hannah, t., 1 00, Allshouse, Verna, t., 70 00, Allshouse, Carmine, t., 50 00, Anderson, Henry, t., 20 00, Anderson, Mary H., t., 20 00, Bailey, Frank, and wife, t., 10 00, Bailey, J. J., and wife, t., 10 00, Bates, William, t., 30 00, Bars, Joseph, t., 2 00, Becker, Marie, t., 22 00, Becker, Marie, t., 10 00, Bennett, R. D., and wife, 445 00, Bennett, W. L., and wife, 24 00, Benedict, Phoebe, t., 2 00

Belleisle, Paul E., and wife	16 00
Blasdel, Zella	20 00
Borah, Jennie	8 00
Bopra, Margaret	5 00
Bopra, David, and wife	100 00
Bradford, Sarah	6 00
Bradford, Nell	5 00
Breake, Isabella	6 00
Brown, Samuel	1 00
Brown, Margaret	1 00
Brown, Robert, jr.	35 00
Brown, Rilla	5 00
Brown, Ida M.	45 00
Brooks, Cora	1 00
Burley, Martha	3 00
Burtch, David G., and wife	3 00
Butterfield, Hilda	2 00
Cadow, Fred W., t	4 00
Cadow, Catherine, t	4 00
Caloon, Leslie, t	6 00
Cank, Clara, t	1 00
Campbell, Bitta, t	6 00
Carlton, Eliza, t	9 00
Carey, James, and wife, t	11 00
Carr, Myron, t	1 00
Cassler, A. A., t	1 00
Chute, Clara, t	5 20
Cline, Cynthia, t	25 00
Cline, Albert, and wife, t	33 00
Cline, Mrs. Albert, o	1 00
Cleland, Matthew, t	1 00
Clark, George, and wife, t	10 00
Claus, Edwin, t	10 00
Collins, Frankie, t	10 00
Corbett, Mary J., t	10 00
Conklin, W. M., and wife, t	10 00
Conkin, Grace, t	1 00
Connelly, Louis, t	1 00
Cummins, Emily, t	5 00
Cummins, Edna, t	1 00
Cummins, Lizzie, t	1 00
Cummins, Mary, t	1 00
Cudney, Mrs. Hiram, t	1 00
Davis, William, and wife, t	24 00
Davis, J. W., t	10 00
Davis, Mrs. William, t	5 00
Day, Mary, t	5 00
Daunt, Robert, Jr., t	5 00
Daunt, John, t	3 00
Daunt, Robert, and wife, t	3 00
Diem, Bruno, and wife, t	100 00
Diem, Robert W., and wife, t	62 00
Diem, Edward R., and Mary, t	400 00
Dickinson, Josie, t	27 50
Dickinson, Reha, t	2 00
Drager, Fred A., c.	5 00
Duckert, Albert, t	20 00
Eastman, Mrs. t	10 00
Edwards, Judith E., t	160 00
Farley, John, and wife, t	10 00
Farley, Gladys, t	2 00
Fetting, Albert, and wife, t	25 00
Fetting, Jennie, t	2 00
Fetting, Mrs. Otto, t	4 00
Fetting, Alice, t	1 00
Forbes, Thoma, t	75 00
Forbes, W. H., t	102 00
Foster, Dexter, t	1 00
Frisbie, R. A. and Elsie, t	20 00
Frisbie, Sarah, t	11 00
Gault, James, and wife, t	166 17
Gardner, Emma J., t	75 00
Good, Phoebe, t	3 00
Green, Israel, t	5 00
Guy, Amos, t	2 00
Grice, J. R. and wife, t	53 25
Grice, Mrs. W. M., t	2 25
Grant, C. U. and Phoebe, t	60 00
Graham, Jessie, t	2 00
Green, Jennie, t	14 00
Groves, Irene, t	1 00
Hinton, Catherine, t	3 00
Harder, G. W., and wife, t	10 00
Harder, B. Z., t	3 00
Harder, B. C. and Rachel, t	8 00
Harder, Nevada, t	3 00
Harder, Howard W., t	33 10
Harder, Ralph A., t	64 20
Hartzler, Henry C., t	356 63
Harp, Minnie, t	4 00
Hartnell, Elizabeth A., t	16 10
Hartnell, Elizabeth A., o	2 00
Hartnell, Elizabeth A., c.	3 90
Harris, Johana, t	35 00
Harvey, Anna, t	15 00
Harrison, J. B., and wife, t	210 00
Heaviland, Edward, t	7 00
Heaviland, Lloid, t	1 50
Henry, John, and wife, t	132 00
Hill, Lydia, t	7 00
Hinton, Jeanette, t	1 00
Higgins, John, and wife, t	50 00
Hodgins, Henrietta, t	8 00
Hutchins, H. R., t	4 00
Hutchins, Fred C., t	21 00
Hunter, Edward, t	5 00
Hunter, John, and wife, t	5 00
Hunter, Blizzenla, t	1 00

Huston, R. H., and wife, t	40 00
Johnson, George L., t	1 00
Johnson, Cora, t	10 00
Jones, Mrs. George, t	5 00
Jones, J. and wife, t	20 00
Jones, Margaret, t	1 00
Kennedy, H. W., and wife, t	13 00
King, Mrs. F. M., t	3 00
Kile, Henrietta, t	1 00
Kohl, Emma, t	5 00
Kosanko, Lillian, t	2 50
Krouse, Fred, and wife, t	13 00
Lakin, George, t	5 00
Ledsworth, Eva B., t	3 50
Ledsworth, Albert and Jennie, t	5 00
Ledsworth, Calvin, t	5 00
Levitt, Isaac, t	50 00
Lewis, Delbert, and wife, t	10 00
Lively, J. H., t	5 50
Lively, W. A., t	3 00
Lively, Arthur, t	7 00
Lively, Henry and Martha A., t	7 40
Lively, H. R. and Marietta G., t	5 00
Liscom, Adelaide, t	18 00
Lundean, Ida H., t	5 00
McCann, Emma, t	7 25
McCaun, Henry, and wife, t	1 00
McDonald, Lottie, t	2 50
McDonald, Lottie, b	1 00
McDonald, Murdock, t	5 00
McDonald, Peter, t	5 00
McGar, R. H., t	39 00
McGeachy, Benjamin, t	5 00
McGregor, Adam, t	10 00
McIntosh, Arthur, and wife, t	10 25
McIntosh, Earl, t	9 00
McIntosh, Grace, t	18 15
McIntosh, Lucinda, t	18 35
McKenzie, Kathleen, t	1 00
McKenzie, Katie, t	9 55
McKenzie, Archie, and wife, t	28 05
McKenzie, Archie, and wife, Order of Enoch, t	5 00
McKenzie, Mrs. Archie, t	20 15
McKenzie, Mrs. Archie, c.	5 00
McFagart, Alfred, t	2 19
McFagart, William, and wife, t	10 00
McFagart, Ida, t	5 25
Mack, Rebecca, t	5 00
Maedel, John, t	10 00
Maedel, William, and wife, t	10 00
Marshall, George and Lena, t	3 50
Marshall, Lena, t	5 00
Martin, Anna, t	1 00
Mead, James, and wife, t	3 00
Mills, W. J. and Eliza-beth, t	35 00
Miller, F. J. and Maggie, t	5 00
Miller, Thomas, and wife, t	8 00
Morgan, Charles, and wife, t	50 00
Morell, Ellis, t	5 00
Morrisson, Sarah, t	2 00
Moore, Kathryn, t	15 00
Muir, Blanch, t	2 25
Muir, Joseph N., and wife, t	24 00
Muir, H. E. C. and Ida, t	2 00
Myers, G. W., and wife, t	5 00
Nawok, Morris, t	7 00
Nevel, Anna, t	1 00
Orme, Robert and Sarah, t	32 00
Orme, Robert and Sarah, o	5 00
O'Brien, Joseph, and wife, t	25 00
O'Brien, T. H., t	7 00
Pangman, Orin, t	5 00
Parker, Silas, and wife, t	5 00
Parker, Viola, t	2 00
Parker, B. F., and wife, t	20 00
Parker, Barbara, t	5 00
Pearson, Mrs. Nelson, t	2 00
Perritt, Thilla, t	4 00
Phetteplace, B. F., and wife, t	50 00
Phillips, Maud, t	10 00
Pitripp, Abraham, t	10 00
Pitripp, Alexander, t	10 00
Ponplewell, William, t	9 00
Plato, Lizzie, t	350 00
Plato, Jennie M., t	2 00
Poley, Lizzie, t	2 00
Proctor, Alice, t	1 00
Provost, Wilber, t	5 00
Quick, George and Thillie, t	5 00
Rawson, Thomas, II., t	2 00
Reeves, James, t	2 00
Rexford, Roy F., and wife, t	2 00
Riggs, Fred, t	5 00
Rimberger, C. C., and wife, t	36 00
Rivett, Frank, and wife, t	30 00
Rohde, Mrs. G. C., t	26 20
Rushton, W. J., and wife, t	6 00

Rushton, Sarah J., t	3 00
Rushton, Ruby, t	1 50
Sage, George, and wife, t	2 00
Salmolner, Philip, t	6 00
Schaar, Vincent D., and wife, t	10 00
Scheibel, Margaret, t	5 00
Schrivener, Charles, and wife, t	13 00
Shaw, Anna M., t	1 00
Shaw, Mrs. Richard, t	5 00
Scheuffel, May, t	4 00
Schawbner, Rebecca, t	7 00
Sheffer, W. H., and wife, t	6 25
Sheffer, E. D., t	8 55
Sheffer, Charles W., t	25 20
Sheffer, Ruth, t	20 00
Sherman, Charles E., and wife, t	2 00
Shiff, Anna B., t	5 00
Shippy, M. B., and wife, t	25 00
Simmons, J. H., t	1 00
Skinner, George H. and Martha J., t	12 50
Skinner, Martha J., t	4 50
Smith, Eunice, t	6 00
Smith, A. H., t	59 50
Smith, L. A., t	50 00
Smith, George, and wife, t	6 00
Smith, W. F., and wife, t	56 50
Somes, Mary, t	1 00
Stevens, Iva, t	5 00
Stark, William, t	2 00
Stark, John, t	4 00
Stewart, H. C., and wife, t	5 00
Stewart, H. C. Jr., t	6 00
Stinchouse, Lydia, t	8 00
Stinchouse, Matilda, t	1 00
Summers, Ann, t	10 00
Summers, Frank, t	2 50
Summers, Tennyson, and wife, t	30 00
Surbrook, W. A., and wife, t	4 00
Sweet, Mrs. A. D., t	5 00
Taylor, D. M., and wife, t	10 00
Tedford, Charles, and wife, t	5 00
Terry, I. A. and Mary, t	125 00
Thomas, Emma, t	8 00
Vincent, Loretta, t	1 25
Vincent, Ida, t	2 00
Volz, Elizabeth, t	2 00
Volz, Lucy, t	10 00
Volz, Anna, t	50 00
Volz, Jacob, and wife, t	75 00
Volz, Frederick, t	100 00
Volz, Charles, and wife, t	30 00
Volz, Mrs. Fred, t	20 00
Wade, Dan P., and wife, t	2 00
Wade, Stella, t	25 00
Walker, Jamna, t	5 00
Walker, Mary M., t	5 00
Washburn, Alfred, t	1 00
Washburn, Alfred, o	1 00
Washburn, Myrtle, o	1 00
Weaver, Isiah, t	10 00
Weaver, R. D., t	19 00
Weaver, John, and wife, t	10 00
Weaver, Edward, and wife, t	10 00
Westover, C. A., t	2 70
Wheeler, Sarah, t	5 00
Williams, Bert, and wife, t	2 00
Willard, George H., t	10 00
Willard, Sophia, t	5 00
Wood, Earnest, t	5 50
Wyman, Eugene, and wife, t	2 00
Wyman, Ray B., t	5 00
Young, Lottie, t	27 00
Young, Thomas, t	50 00
Young, Amanda, t	50 00
Total	$6,166 54

Northern District.
John C. Goodman, Agent.
Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 38 31
Adams, Elizabeth J.	1 00
Allred, Wesley, and wife	41 05
Allen, William T.	4 10
Albertson, Elizabeth	1 00
Armstead, Elsie	3 40
Atkinson, Thomas P., and wife	143 60
Atkinson, Mildred B., o	25 00
Banks, Mary J.	1 50
Barker, Edna B.	1 50
Barker, Edna B., o	50 00
Barney, William A., and wife	20 00
Barney, William A., and wife	5 00
Barney, Jemima	1 00
Barney, Jemima	5 00
Bashan, Esther	1 00
Bashan, Lewis	1 00
Boyne City Branch, obla-tion	20 84
Brearley, Mathew, and wife	7 00
Brown, Eliza	1 00
Bryce, Adam, o	30 00
Caffey, Theo. S. and wife	1 50
Campbell, Rebecca, o	1 00
Carpenter, James A., and wife	15 00
Carpenter, James William	9 00
Carter, Clarence, o	1 00
Caverly, Sarah J.	30 00
Cease, Andrew, o	2 50
Crawford, Catherine	2 50
Davidson, Mary, o	25 00
Derenzy, Will and Pearl	5 00
Donaldson, Mina	50 00
Dudley, Leonard, and wife	3 00
Dunham, Earnest, and wife	6 50
Dunham, Almon L.	2 00
Dunlop, William, and wife	5 00
Ecker, George H.	15 00
Elliot, Maud	1 50
Emmel, Ellen	1 40
Emmel, Gertie	25 00
Fairman, Adelia	1 00
Fairman, Adelia o	50 00
Farwell, Mary A.	25 00
Ferguson, Mary	1 30
Flanders, Andrew	3 00
Gagie, Katherine	5 00
Gagie, Doris, o	25 00
Goodman, John C., and wife	72 20
Goodman, Margaret	2 00
Grossett, Billy R.	1 00
Hardy, Anna	2 00
Harper, Noble and Bessie	36 19
Harverland, Louisa	3 25
Heller, Anna	1 00
Hill, Martha	10 00
Hunt, Thomas, and wife	10 00
Jones, Mrs. John A.	10 00
Joslyn, George H., and wife	5 00
Joslyn, Alice M.	4 00
Joslyn, Alice M., o	5 00
King, Sophronia	65 00
La Fayette, Charles, and wife	2 40
La Fayette, Lester	20 00
Lalone, Alex., and wife	1 00
Lalone, John	8 00
Lavery, Alvin, and wife	10 00
Light, John	9 00
Lusk, Charles, and wife	53 31
Mathews, Fannie	1 00
Maxwell, Eliza E.	2 00
Moran, John, and wife	10 00
Moran, Robert, and wife	20 00
Morey, Herbert and Della	42 40
Mitchell, Samuel	1 50
McAllister, Arthur, and wife	15 00
McAllister, Arthur, and wife, o	2 75
McAllister, Coda	4 50
McAllister, Coda, o	1 00
McArthur, Lula	1 20
McClain, William, and wife	20 00
McClain, William, and wife, c	10 00
McClain, William, and wife, o	8 00
McClain, Clara	2 00
McClain, Lewis A.	11 50
McDowell, Katherine	5 00
McKinnon, Dora	1 50
McKinnon, Charles H.	3 00
McLennan, Murdock, and wife	11 00
McLennan, Mrs. Murdock	1 00
McLennan, Ethal	1 50
McValley, Emily J.	3 75
Oden, Minnie	5 00
Onaway Branch, oblation	9 55
Orton, Madona A.	25 00
Orton, Mayme B.	6 00

Expenditures.
Allen, Arthur, f.	$431 00
Baker, G. J., c.	75 00
Batley, J. F.	60 00
Cline, George, a.	10 00
Davis, William, f.	444 00
Dowker, D. E., c.	55 00
Dowker, D. E., f.	374 00
Etzenbouser, R., f.	200 00
Grice, W. M., f.	200 00
Hawn, O. J., f.	480 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	2,000 00
Lathan child, a.	5 00
Order of Enoch	5 00
Smith, T. A., e.	100 00
Sweeney, J. C., a.	5 00
Webb, Mrs. B. A., a.	70 00
Dowker, D. E., a.	25 00
Webb, Mrs. B. A., i	50 00
Detroit church building	100 00
Agent's expenses	2 14
Total	$4,601 14
Due church	1,475 40

Table listing names and amounts for various church members and agents, including Orton, Earnest, Oswalt, Edna, Parks, Charles, and others.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Scattered Saints and Clear Lake Branch, including Benjamin, Allen, and wife, Bailey, Florence, etc.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Alto Branch and Buchanan Branch, including Dygert, Mrs. Charles, Bell, Bertha, etc.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Knox Branch and Western District, including Lohse, Bertha, Pearson, Mollie, etc.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District, including Blackmore, James H., Carpenter, Jas. A., etc.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Capitol City Branch and Gallien Branch, including Dalley, Alevnia J., Grant, Sarah J., etc.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Belding Branch, including Aclick, James D., and wife, Barhart, Dora, etc.

Table listing names and amounts for members of the Grand Rapids Branch, including Bleff, Ernest B., and wife, Evans, Louise, etc.

Warden, Mary A., t	5 50
Warden, John, t	16 00
Wetherell, Amanda, o	1 97
Whitehead, Carlyle, t	1 50
Whorton, Mary J., t	5 00
Yonker, David, t	14 00
Yarger, Nora, t	25 00
Ziglar, Adela, t	80
Ziglar, Adela, o	20
Total	$1,912 63

Expenditures.
Balance due agent Decem-
ber 31, 1911	$ 75 16
Brackenbury, F. S., f	272 00
Brackenbury, F. S., e	28 00
Brackenbury, F. S., f,
omitted 1911	10 00
Biglow, Mrs. Elijah, a	81 00
Davis, James, f	368 00
Davis, R. D., e	8 00
Doty, H. A., e	1 32
Ellis, W. D., f	480 00
Ellis, W. D., e	45 00
Green, Sr. Frank, a	25 00
Hastings, F. W., e	4 20
LaCure, Lewis, a	62 70
Pilbeam, George, a	62 70
Roth, Carrie L., loan	90 00
Richardson, Bertha, a	53 75
Ranlet, Charles, a	4 25
Smith, F. A., e	10 00
Scott, Emma, a	5 00
Ward, Sr. C. M., a	5 00
Agent's expenses	4 99
Total	$1,696 07
Due church	216 56

MINNESOTA.

Minnesota District.

Leon A. Gould, agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1911	$167 62
Aeble, H. M., t	5 00
Barnhard, Abe, t	5 00
Barnhard, Abe, o	2 00
Bennet, Edward, t	8 00
Bostad, Ole, t	20 00
Corner, Della J., t	1 00
Day, George W., ret. l	42 00
Day, George W., and wife,
t	11 50
Day, George W., and wife,
e	1 00
Day, George W., and wife,
s	50
DeLapp, Carrie, t	2 00
Elmes, J. H., and wife, t	20 00
Gould, W. W., and wife, t	37 12
Gould, Hallie M., t	5 15
Gould, Iva R., t	6 94
Gould, Leona, t	1 02
Gould, Phyllis, t	1 35
Gould, L. A., ret. l	60 00
Gould, L. A., and wife, t	11 88
Harpster, Jacob, t	18 00
Harpster, William W., t	18 00
Hastings, J. A., and wife,
t	10 00
Hawley, Lucy M., t	20 80
Hawley, Lucy M., o	4 20
Hering, W. J. R., t	59 00
Holtman, John, t	300 00
Horne, Bert G., t	8 00
Horne, Bert G., and wife, t	4 00
Horne, Ida L., t	5 00
Houghton, Leonard, and
wife, t	5 00
Hursh, Minnie, t	50 00
Jepson, M. L., and wife, t	6 80
Johnson, Lena, t	8 00
Johnson, Lena, ret. a	15 00
Johnson, Lena, o	10 00
Johnson, Emma, t	5 00
Kimber, Alta, t	20 00
Kimber, Sr. C. R., t	10 00
Lambkin, B. S., and wife,
t	2 30
Marlin, P. W., and wife, t	17 00
Marlin, P. W., and wife, o	5 00
Minneapolis Branch, obla-
tion	20 00
Murdock, Ellis, t	10 00
Murdock, O. E., and wife,
t	15 00
Murdock, A. L. and family, t	3 00
Murdock, R. B., and wife,
t	26 00
Murdock, Lucia, t	10 00
Noel, Sr. John, t	50
Oleson, Andrew, t and Mrs.
Andrew, t	50 00
Perry, William, and wife, t	10 00
Roth, Tilla, t	1 00
Stann, Samuel, and wife, e	100 00
Smith, J. W., ret. l	34 00
Snuggins, Sr. O. B., t	10 00

Tucker, O. E., and wife, t	4 00
Union Sunday School,
Easter, o	4 30
Van Someren, P. C., and
wife, t	15 00
Whiting, Lester, and wife, t	175 00
Whiting, Arthur, and wife,
t	20 00
Whiting, Floyd, t	5 00
Willy, Robert, t	8 00
Williams, Lucy, t	40 00
Williams, Dale, t	70
Williams, Delmar, t	50
Winslow, Mary, t	1 00
Winslow, Edna, t	3 00
Wise, Sr. Harry, t	7 00
Wise, Sylvester, t	40
Wise, Gladys, t	32
Wolfe, Sr. G. E., t	3 00
Total	$1,576 99

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	$ 13 04
Christy, Ward L., e	25 00
Christy, Ward L., f	54 00
Christy, Ward L., ex. f.	42 00
Day, George W., l	42 00
Gould, C. A., e	17 00
Gould, L. A., l	60 00
Houghton, Leonard, e	15 00
Houghton, Leonard, f	304 00
Lambkin, B. S., e	15 00
Lambkin, B. S., f	312 00
Lambkin, B. S., ex. f.	4 00
Whiting, Alonzo, f	200 00
Total	$1,067 04
Due church	509 95

MISSOURI.

Clinton District.

W. D. Reynolds, agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1911	$ 99 98
Athey, Charley H., and
wife, t	5 00
Budd, J. C. and Jennie, t	50 00
Brunson, Dollie, t	2 60
Billingley, Hazel, t	5 00
Burcham, Mrs. N., t	1 00
Bollweg, Maud, t	2 50
Brown, Maria B., t	3 50
Brown, Hatlie B., t	1 00
Brown, Gladys A., t	3 00
Bachman, Joe, and wife, t	22 00
Crayne, Wm. P. t	22 00
Charleton, Sr. S. J., t	5 00
Chezem, Stephen, and wife,
t	20 00
Crocker, Arthur, and wife,
t	40 00
Cheney, Warren, t	21 00
Crooks, Mary M., t	10 00
Duзан, Ruth A., t	1 00
Davis, Sr. M. A., t	5 00
Doller, Joseph, and wife, t	67 00
Delavay, Alice V., t	25 00
Duзан, Rolla, and wife, t	15 00
Davison, G. W., and wife,
t	5 00
Billthorp, Wm., t	10 00
Frost, Henry, t	3 00
Graham, John A., and
wife, t	15 00
Glenn, Annis, t	5 00
Hawley, F. A., and wife, t	25 00
Hays, Rosa, t	6 00
Higdon, Amos T., o	50
Ingram, John and Delia, t	10 00
Johnston, Mary B., t	3 00
Jones, Estella E., t	20 00
Kearney, W. W. and
Minna, t	133 50
Leeper, A. S. and wife, t	10 00
Lockling, Sr. A. M., t	3 95
Leneve, Zula, t	25 00
Leneve, C. R., t	5 00
Lockling, Alma, t	5 00
Lucous, G. N., t	5 00
Mitts, Sr. L. J., t	1 00
Marlin, Clarence, and wife,
t	20 00
Matson, Julia A., t	20 00
Matson, Clarence W., t	15 00
Mitchell, W. P., and wife,
t	10 00
Marsteller, J. A., t	80 00
Masterston, Lloyd, t	1 10
Mapleton Branch, oblation
McCormick, T. L., and
Mollie, t	3 50
McKelvey, Sr. A. J., t	5 00
Nelson, Carolyn, t	5 00
Nickelson, Maud I., t	5 00
Penick, Sr. R. C., t	5 00
Paxton, Mary V., t	3 31
Quick, Sherman, and wife,
t	425 00
Reynolds, Sarah, t	2 00

Rolstin, Nancy J., t	10 00
Roberts, A. I., and family,
t	25 00
Rogers, Fred J., and wife,
t	10 50
Rounds, Abbie, t	10 00
Remington, B. A., t	300 00
Snodgrass, Sarah A., t	5 00
Stevens, Sarah A., t	10 00
Silvers, A. C. and Lucy, t	5 00
Silvers, Sr. M. A., t	10 00
Snodgrass, Nora, t	10 00
Sandage, J., and wife, t	3 00
Shovalter, Lolia, t	1 00
Silvers, Jessie F., t	1 45
Starling, Hillie, t	1 00
Searius, W. A., and wife,
t	100 00
Sarratt, Anna A., t	5 00
Sarratt, O. W., t	5 00
Short, Walter, t	53 00
Sallee, John, and wife, t.	3 10
Welch, T. C., t	4 00
White, T. R., and wife, t	10 00
Weddie, J. P., t	6 90
Wetherbe, Perlina, t	15 55
Williams, Iris, t	25 00
Watman, Archie, and
wife, t	11 15
Wood, John, sen., and
wife, t	20 00
Wedlock, Liza, t	2 93
Weeks, Bert, and wife, t.	5 00
Wells, Sr. Georgia, t	4 00
Walker Branch, oblations.	1 65
Total	$1,967 99

Expenditures.

Agent's expense	$ 5 41
Akers, Hattie, a	10 00
Collins, Minnie, a	36 00
Frost, Henry, a	5 00
Higdon, Amos T., a	88 00
Keller, D. L., Bishop	206 54
Kramm, Tabitha, a	36 00
Macrae, W. S., f	708 00
Moler, James, f	264 00
Moler, James, e	3 00
Ransell, M. S., a	10 00
Shirk, Oliver, e	5 00
Thorp, T. A., a	5 00
Walters, Lizzie, f	78 00
Total	$1,479 95

Far West District.

C. P. Faul, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1911	$188 47
Error	01
Ackerly, May	1 50
Andes, J. S., and wife	2 50
Andes, Jacob	1 00
Adams, Samuel, and wife.	15 00
Agenstein, John	50 00
Basket, Helen	1 50
Brooks, Mabel	9 50
Burlington, Belle	5 00
Bell, H. W., and wife.	5 00
Bailey, A. M., t	2 05
Byergo, E. N., and wife.	25 00
Bacus, Bro. and Sr.	1 00
Bear, John L.	2 00
Bear, Joffery	16 00
Beadnal, Robert, and wife	2 50
Bean, B. L.	50 00
Bennett, Sr. H. E.	4 35
Brown, Martha K.	113 10
Bean, L. L.	15 00
Bhinsted, E. D., and wife	12 25
Constance, W. B.	24 00
Constance, S. H.	26 60
Constance, J. S.	17 84
Conc. Francis	2 50
Carpenter, D. P.	60 00
Craven, Elsie	21 00
Clay, William	10 00
Davis, Mary E.	10 00
Dice, B. J.	133 10
Diem, Herman, and wife	19 15
Dietrich, Mary C.	2 00
Dodge, D. D.	25 00
Elbers, August	1 80
Erickson, O. A., and wife	60 00
Elvert, G. A.	5 00
Fisher, Sr. R. E.	7 10
Far West Branch, oblation	16 48
Ford, J. T., and wife	300 00
Poster, Levl	5 00
Franklin, Fay	12 80
Franklin, Eva	10 50
Franklin, J. M.	15 00
Ford, Mary	15 00
Ferguson, L. F.	15 00
Faul, C. P.	50 00
Gore, I. N.	12 50
Goben, Mary	2 50
Gazell, Dora	6 00

Graham, Ida Alice	10 00
Garr, John	2 00
Henry, R. L., and wife	3 00
Hale, Thomas E.	22 50
Hill, Sister	90
Hill, Clarence	75
Hutchins, W. F.	5 00
Head, M. J.	3 00
Hamann, C. C., and wife	40 00
Hines, S. J.	160 00
Hinderks, Mary H.	12 15
Hinderks, T. H., and wife	208 80
Hinderks, T. T., and wife	20 00
Hinderks, A. C.	60 00
Hinderks, O. C.	10 00
Holmes, John	1,000 00
Holmes, Lillie	5 00
Hamann, Wm.	100 00
Henry, L. F.	1 00
Head, Maggie	25 00
Hawkins, Mary	2 50
Hovenga, Cora	6 30
Herndon, J. R.	5 00
Jones, Ora	2 65
Jones, Ora	2 65
Johnson, Sr. Telke	5 00
Johnson, August	10 00
Johnson, Clara	5 00
Jones, R. C., and wife	11 10
Knipschid, Sr. Fred	200 00
Liggett, Charles, and wife	40 00
Lewis, Anna	10 00
Lewis, Emma B.	50 00
Lewis, Carrie M.	31 25
McFee, Belle	5 50
Martin, Chas., and wife.	40 00
McNutt, F. J.	5 00
McNutt, Mrs. F. J.	5 00
McCormick, E. E., and wife	172 00
Macson, Vina	6 00
Morrison, E.	45 00
McCullum, Celia	10 00
Moore, Zillah	3 75
McCord, Arch D., and wife	40 00
Nesser, John, return loan	2 50
Pickering, W. P.	2 00
Pickering, S. J.	1 00
Pickering, Clarence	6 50
Pugsley, P. H., and wife	25 50
Pottorf, Joseph	2 00
Piepergerdes, G. W.	375 00
Piepergerdes, John	100 00
Pierce, Sr. Frank	1 50
Powell, Jos. E., o	10 00
Rogers, Philo I.	119 50
Rapp, Fred	10 00
Richardson, A. A., and wife and family	15 70
Rube, Andrew	43 50
Ranes, J. E., and wife	10 00
Ranes, Elmer	5 00
Ripple, Elvira	2 00
Smith, Mary	7 00
Stroker, Ada	50 00
Scott, Nellie	15 00
Spillman, Robert	4 00
Spillman, Christina	3 00
Schweedler, Sallie	50 00
Stone, A. C.	18 90
Schoff, George, and wife.	25 00
Snider, Mrs. J. H.	49 45
Simmon, Samuel H.	60 00
Summerfield, George, and wife	4 00
Sebby, Alida	10 00
Shuppe, Carrie	2 00
Schoff, Richard, and wife.	5 00
Snider, Coleman	10 00
Saint Joseph, 1st Branch,
oblation	86 49
Saint Joseph, 2d Branch,
oblation	23 63
Saint Joseph, 3d Branch,
oblation	23 11
Tilden, J. P.	9 80
Taddicken, H., and wife.	13 50
Uphoff, Fred	20 00
Uphoff, Addie	5 00
Wilke, Sr. M. L.	10 00
Total	$5,048 17

Expenditures.

Anderson, Peter, f	$564 00
Anderson, Peter, e	20 00
Andes, J. S., a	7 50
Barnhouse, Maggie, a	30 00
Davis, John	324 00
Guyer, Mrs. W. H., a	10 00
Goodrich, V. M., f	480 00
Goodrich, V. M., e	120 00
Harpe, Chas. D., f	128 00
Hawkins, Bro., a	97 20
Hensen, B. L., f	640 00
Hensen, B. L., e	31 00
Herndon, J. R., a	15 00
Herndon, B., a	18 00
Johnson, Sarah C., a	18 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	500 00
Lewis, Wm., f.	349 00
Lewis, Wm., e	75 00

McWilliams, George R., a	12 85
Pickering, W. P., t	324 00
Parker, Bro., a	50 00
Roberts, I. N., f	324 00
Roberts, J. A., e	25 00
Roberts, J. A., f	108 00
Summerfield, W. E., f	120 00
Smith, Hale W., f	291 00
Smith, Hale W., e	31 00
Swenson, Sven, f	100 00
Sweeney, Clara, a	10 00
Swift, Carrie, a	10 00
Wilson, James, a	5 00
Ziegenhein, Henry, a	95 00
Total	$4,908 50
Due church	139 87

Independence Stake.

Richard Bullard, Bishop.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$599 01
Armstrong Branch, oblation	32 36
Argentine Branch, oblation	5 37
Anderson, Augusta, t	3 00
Allen, B. L., t	15 00
Armstrong, Ladies Aid, o	300 00
A Sister	8 91
Aylor, Wm. M., and wife, t	80 00
Allison, A. N., acct.	2 00
Ashbaugh, Chas. W., t	9 80
Arnold, George F., t	15 00
Arnold, George F., acct.	40 00
Anderson, Anton G., and wife, t	99 06
Abrahams, Neils, t	50 00
A little girl, t	4 00
Anderson, B. M., and wife, t	150 00
Adkins, George O., and wife, t	4 00
Arber, Jos., and wife, t	5 00
Arber, Jos., Alexander, t	1 00
Arber, Archibald, o	50 00
Arber, Dorothy M., o	25 00
Arber, Grace Edna, o	25 00
Bennington Heights, oblation	21 05
Bronson, W. G., and wife, t	30 00
Ballinger, Sarah B. and M. B., acct.	7 00
Ballinger, Sarah B. and M. B., acct.	1 00
Bullard, Mary Ellen, c	150 00
Beal, Alonzo M., and wife, t	29 92
Beal, Alonzo M., acct	221 00
Bond, Nellie M., t	11 50
Brackenbury, Jos. A., and wife, t	90 00
Bullard, Richard, t	2 20
Bullard, Richard, acct	7 50
Booker, Henry, t	2 00
Booker, Henry, o	1 00
Baker, Allen, and wife, t	1 00
Bozard, H. E., t	2 50
Brocaw, Royal, t	2 50
Brose, Paul J., and wife, t	53 00
Brose, Paul J., and wife, o	2 50
Blackock, Wilson W., t	15 00
Blackock, Chas. W.	15 00
Bullard, W. D., and wife, t	63 20
Buschow, Rosa B., t	20 00
Boothman, H. J., t	5 00
Brown, Sr. R. S., t	7 00
Badder, H. J., and wife, t	3 55
Bullard, W. J., and wife, t	50 00
Blankenship, Alexander, and wife, t	4 50
Blackock, Kendall, and wife, t	50 00
Burgess, Robert B., and wife, t	45 00
Bozarth, Jennie, t	1 00
Ballinger, Carrie, t	3 90
Ballinger, L. W., t	27 12
Balley, Asa A., o	5 00
Bullard, Walter, and wife, t	27 60
Barrett, George W., and wife, t	4 00
Brooks, D. S., and wife, t	60 00
Braidwood, Julia M., t	14 38
Blackock, Wilson, t	05 00
Blackock, Walter, t	05 00
Bierlein, John P., and wife, t	400 00
Briggs, Mrs. C. E., t	7 00
Briggs, Mrs. C. E., o	1 00
Brocaw, Nellie, t	38 00
Burdley, E. A., t	1 00
Brown, Char. W., o	3 00
Barto, C. N., and wife, t	17 00
Bedford, Edward P., t	2 00
Bleil, Bertha, t	21 75
Barnett, Delbert, t	6 00

Birg, A., t	5 00
Bullard, Richard, t	5 00
Bullard, Richard, jr., t	2 50
Black, Ellen J., t	9 10
Brocker, John, t	40 00
Bleil, Stella, t	15 50
Bierlein, Martha, t	100 00
Beard, Wm. T., t	12 30
Braidwood, Della, t	5 00
Boyd, Newton, W., t	25 00
Brace, Alice, t	1 00
Bird, W. H., o	1 00
Burden, Lucy L., t	3 00
Crick, Thomas, t	430 00
Chelsea Park Branch, oblation	17 05
Cleveland, J. Frederick, t	26 10
Curtis, H. B., t	6 00
Clymer, Lydia, t	10 00
Christensen, Alfred A., t	14 15
Chatburn, Mrs. T. W., t	5 46
Crow, John, t	12 10
Catlin, Cora B., o	5 00
Cook, Mary B., o	4 00
Carlson, Wm., t	8 00
Clemenson, James F., t	27 00
Curtis, J. T., t	14 60
Cook, Chas., t	15 00
Crayne, Robert J., t	5 00
Crayne, Mary, t	30 00
Curtis, Wm. A., t	17 00
Curtis, James A., t	17 00
Carlson, C. J., t	25 00
Crow, David, and wife, t	13 00
Crow, David, and wife, o	5 00
Crayne, C. E., and wife, t	4 00
Conlin, Ethel, t	10 00
Craig, Paul N., o	3 00
Campbell, H. H., t	1 00
Campbell, Okie, t	1 00
Campbell, Archie, t	5 25
Case, Maud, t	5 00
Christensen, Chresten, o	5 00
Christensen, Anna M., t	100 00
Clow, Robert, and wife, t	150 00
Cook, Marjorie, o	20 00
Carson, C. D., and wife, c	5 00
Carson, C. D., and wife, t	15 00
Carmine, Bertha, t	60 00
Cook, Bessie, o	5 00
Culver, Chas. B., t	5 00
Cook, Rupert B., t	7 21
Cook, Lillie, t	17 50
Callin, W. H., and wife, t	10 00
Clossen, Almeda, t	1 00
Cressie, H. G., and wife, t	72 00
Cook, Frederick Wilhelm, t	45 00
Cleveland, J. E., t	11 00
Crum, Paul, t	50 00
Christie, F. G., and wife, t	6 14
Clark, Anna, t	31 50
Cook, Hattie, t	5 00
Campbell, Willis O., t	21 00
Clarke, Ada, t	1 00
Cartwright, Kate, t	2 50
Chapman, Mrs. D. L., t	20 00
Christensen Brothers, t	5 00
Deck, John, t	4 00
Dungee, Mrs. F. G., o	1 00
Dungee, Mrs. F. G., Ins.	245 20
Dungee, Frank, acct.	7 50
Devore, Mrs. L. R., acct.	7 50
Dark, Laura, t	50 00
Dubose, Mrs. J. W., t	5 00
Donaldson, Bertha, t	75 00
Doble, P. T., t	5 00
Davis, Eugene A., t	5 45
Davis, Eugene A., o	10 50
DeBerry, Thos C., and wife, t	88 60
DeBerry, Lloyd M., t	70 00
Douglas, John, t	25 00
Dempsay, Albert, t	2 60
DeTray, E. Donald, t	10 00
Drowns, Roy W., t	20 00
Drowns, Bert, t	20 00
DeTray, Catharine, t	12 00
DeTray, Emily, t	12 00
Dillon, George, t	11 00
Dooley, Hattie, t	20 00
Dennis, Francis M., t	8 00
Davis, H. N., t	1 00
Dillee, Alma K., t	17 55
Davis, Alroy C., and wife, t	5 00
Davis, Alroy C., and wife, t	5 00
Dickson, J. J., t	12 75
Dempsay, S., t	63 82
Deam, W. H., and wife, t	10 00
DeTray, Ray, t	1 00
Dunn, Lettie, t	50 00
Ely, John, and wife, t	16 00
Ely, John, and wife, (R. May acct.)	10 00
Ely, Wm. M., t	3 00
Edward Mission, oblation	8 81
Evans, Francis A., t	20 00
Eitzenhouser, Virgil, t	27 00
Edwards, Wm., and wife, t	7 00

Eitzenhouser, M. A., and wife, t	235 68
Eitzenhouser, M. A., and wife, c	10 00
Eitzenhouser, Mrs. B., t	45 50
Ellison, Eleanor, t	250 00
Eckles, John M., t	22 00
Emmett, Fanny, t	2 00
Eastwood, G. W., and wife, t	28 00
Dvans, Francis A., sr., and wife, t	11 60
Baton, Chas. B., t	5 00
Edwards, Mrs. B. J., t	7 50
Eitzworth, Elizabeth, t	2 00
Fry, Orrin K., and wife, t	8 00
First Kansas City Branch, oblation	40 88
Fourth Kansas City Branch, oblation	3 08
Fishback, Sophia, t	9 00
Farber, Fred B., and wife, t	39 90
Faler, Sarah, t	4 00
Farrow, W. A., acct.	5 00
Frick, Bertha H., t	23 31
Fisher, Jeremiah, and wife, t	5 80
Pickens, Ellen, t	2 00
Poote, Elizabeth, t	5 00
Franklin, Nephil, and wife, t	30 00
Fender, Edad, and wife, t	30 00
Farrar, B. B., t	8 00
Farrow, Jos. A., t	37 50
Fairland, Mrs. M. J., t	3 00
Farrow, James M. B., t	2 00
Frick, George W., and wife, t	17 50
Flinn, Mary T., t	1 00
Fisher, Ora C., and wife, t	3 00
Fuchs, K., t	6 00
Frye, Vandella M. A., t	2 00
Frick, Roland W., t	12 10
Farber, John E., t	10 00
Faircloth, Robert, and wife, t	3 00
Fry, Chas., and wife, t	3 00
Farrow, James B., t	10 00
Farrington, S., and wife, t	5 00
Ferguson, Martha, t	3 00
Farr, Nellie G., t	38 10
Guinand, C. E., t	9 40
Garrett, W. H., and wife, t	20 00
Garrett, W. H., and wife, acct.	15 00
Gerber, Theo., t	17 87
Gerber, Theo., o	2 00
Grabske, T. T., and wife, t	21 50
Grallich, Bernice, t	5 00
Gerber, Fred J., t	80 00
Good, Sherman, and wife, t	1 00
Goffin, Myrtle, t	19 00
Gilmore, Mary, t	1 50
Green, George W., and wife, t	44 55
Gilmore, Maud, t	45 60
Goodrich, J. A., t	10 00
Goodwin, J. C., and wife, t	10 00
Goodale, Mrs. O. L., t	35 00
Gould, George W., and wife, t	1 00
Gurwell, Chas. A., and wife, o	5 00
Gurwell, Chas. A., and wife, t	50 00
Goode, Frank, and wife, t	100 00
Graham, Wm. J., t	5 00
Green, J. W., acct	5 00
Gerber, Ralph B., t	50 00
Grandview Branch, oblation	8 24
Goode, Andy H., t	20 00
Giesch, Louise, t	60 00
Hudson, O. O., t	5 00
Holden Branch, oblation	54 90
Heckman, Eliza, t	25 00
Holden Ladies Aid, t	7 50
Holden Ladies Aid, o	3 50
Hendrickson, James, t	120 00
Hughes, Quorum, acct.	8 00
Handy, A. B., t	2 00
Howell, Fred, t	15 00
Hartnell, Carlotta, t	13 10
Hartnell, Carlotta, o	24 85
Harvey, Anna P., t	10 00
Hobart, Pearl, t	45 00
Harvey, Fred, t	40 00
Harvey, William, t	16 00
Hager, Ida, M., t	2 00
Haines, Mrs. M. B., t	89 40
Haas, L. H., and wife, c	2 60
Haas, L. H., and wife, o	35 75
Haas, L. H., and wife, acct.	40 00
Hartnell, Jesse, t	10 00
Hartnell, Willard, t	1 00
Hughes, Violette, t	2 25
Hills, L. B., and wife, t	10 00
Howden, Joseph, and wife, t	7 00
Hughes, Oliver, o	10 00
Harring, George A., and wife, t	400 00
Harring, Minnie A., t	67 00

Harrington, George Leon-ard, t	9 00
Hale, Jacob, and wife, t	30 00
Hubbard, Annie, acct.	20 00
Havenue, Malvina, o	5 00
Harrison, Mary J., t	45 00
Harrison, Mary J., acct.	100 00
Hodges, Arthur O., t	2 50
Holcomb, O. B., t	10 00
Hiles, George M., t	5 00
Hepworth, George F., t	12 00
Huckie, Elizabeth, t	5 00
Hartgan, I. B., t	1 00
Harring, Gilbert E., t	1 00
Harring, Blanche A., t	1 25
Hayer, Ida, t	2 00
Hartman, Lettie J., t	8 00
Hott, William, and wife, t	1 00
Holesworth, J. A., and wife, t	37 50
Highman, James, and wife, t	20 00
Hansen, Jacob, t	10 00
Hutton, C. L., and wife, t	5 00
Helling, Carl, and wife, o	25 00
Hills, Sarah A., and wife, t	25 00
Hand, Rebecca L., t	15 00
Hiles, Flossie, t	2 00
Herbert, George, t	14 50
Hansen, James, t	10 00
Haas, Ellison Hale, t	1 00
Harrington, Jos., and wife, t	13 50
Hands, W. O., and wife, t	10 00
Hutchinson, Wm., t	12 00
Harvey, Wm. A., t	10 00
Hiles, Perry, t	1 00
Hitchcock, Frank P., t	200 00
Hopkins, James T., t	5 00
Independence Branch, oblation	421 25
Independence Branch, acct.	16 00
Inman, George, t	13 60
Isaacs, Mary A., o	10 00
Isaacs, Mary A., t	5 00
Inman, Mary, t	3 00
Inman, Carl, t	6 00
Johnson, C. H., t	3 80
James, Pauline, t	3 00
Jellings, C. D., and wife, t	12 00
Jellings, C. D., and wife, o	50 00
Johnson, Nancy, ret. aid, o	5 00
James, Mrs. M. B., t	4 00
Johnson, Walter, t	5 00
James, Edna, t	15 00
Jenkins, George, and wife, t	1 00
Jenkins, J. G., and wife, t	5 00
Knobnoster Branch, oblation	12 47
Kirby, Jos., and wife, t	20 00
Kirby, Jos., and wife, c	32 50
Kemp, James, t	4 80
Kemp, Robert, and wife, t	60 00
Kenworthy, A. L., t	32 00
Kelley, R. C., and wife, t	2 50
Kelley, B. C., Bishop, t	200 00
Knisley, Alvin, and wife, o	60 00
Kepley, Harbin H., t	8 04
Kaplinger, Jacob I., t	1 50
Knisley, Alice, t	10 00
Kaylor, Minnie, t	4 50
Kaylor, Minnie, o	2 50
Krahl, D. J., and wife, t	12 75
Karant, Frank, t	5 00
Kelley, Mildred, t	2 00
Kelley, W. H., and wife, t	4 00
Kemp, Paul C., t	1 00
Kunz, Hyrum A., t	3 00
Kolleschnig, Ella M., t	10 00
Korf, Lee, t	200 00
Ketchum, George R., t	2 00
Lees Summit Branch, oblation	9 27
Lexington Branch, oblation	7 58
Lamsdin, Ida, o	10 00
Lloyd, B. W., t	52 00
Layton, Ida A., o	10 00
Layton, J. W., o	1 50
Layton, J. W., t	5 00
Lloyd, John M., t	30 00
Lloyd, Julia, t	12 00
Lighthfoot, A. L. and May, t	15 00
Luxton, Ella, t	5 00
Lewis, Leo G., t	35 50
Lloyd, J. R., t	2 50
Lytle, Fannie, o	1 50
Luff, J. J., and wife, t	54 20
Luff, J. J., and wife, o	32 25
Luff, J. J., and wife acct.	17 50
Landfried, Philip, acct.	15 00
Layton, Jos. L., and wife, t	5 00
Loveland, John, and wife, t	16 00
Lovel, John, and wife, t	10 00
Lewis, Wm. T., t	10 00
Lovel, Birdie, t	3 00
Lovel, Mary, t	5 00
Lentell, John R., t	8 50
Larson, Andrew P., t	18 00
Layton, Anna V., t	4 00
Loar, Delbert W., t	5 00
Lowe, Dora, t	2 00
Lundquist, Ellen, t	2 00
Loar, Vernon W., and wife, t	45 80
Lentell, Thos. C., t	5 00
Lewis, Chas. G., t	30 00
Lang, John M., t	1 00

Loosemore, Reginald H., and wife, t. 2 00
 Loosemore, Henry L., and wife, t. 2 00
 Layton, Mary H., t. 1 00
 Luff, J. W., t. 20 00
 Loveland, Hannah, t. 5 00
 Layton, J. J., t. 50 00
 Moorman, R. J., t. 25 00
 Malvern Hill, Oblation, t. 8 79
 Moneymaker, Lura, t. 3 00
 Monroe, N. R., and wife, t. 6 00
 Monroe, N. R., and wife, acct. 17 00
 Metcalf, J. W., and wife, t. 1 50
 Mauzey, Thomas, t. 1 00
 Moler, Martha, t. 28 35
 Martin, A. T., t. 8 00
 Martin, Alice, acct. 5 00
 Moneymaker, Frances, t. 6 00
 Matthews, S. N., t. 6 50
 Muse, Margaret, t. 2 50
 Madden, Cora, t. 5 00
 Miller, Evelyn, t. 2 00
 Munroe, C. L., t. 1 00
 Madden, George, and wife, o. 1 00
 Millott, Alfonso, t. 17 20
 Morgan, A., and wife, t. 33 65
 Morgan, A., and wife, c. 1 00
 Mortimore, Floyd N., t. 50 00
 Mosier, Laura, t. 20 35
 Mills, H. R., t. 40 00
 Martin, Alvin C., t. 9 00
 Moneymaker, J. M., t. 40 00
 Marsteller, J. A., t. 20 00
 Martin, Ethel, t. 50 00
 Murphy, W. H., t. 25 00
 Moorman, Emma, t. 5 00
 Mosier, Andrew, and wife, t. 40 00
 Mayham, U. T., t. 12 00
 Mosier, Myrtle, t. 2 05
 Meyers, Jennette, t. 10 00
 Meakin, M., t. 10 00
 Moneymaker, Kate, t. 21 00
 Maunering, Lura, t. 3 00
 Moorman, Eva, t. 5 00
 Meyers, Herbert, t. 3 00
 Miller, Benjamin F., t. 484 56
 Mills, A. H., and wife, t. 25 00
 Morgan, Roy, acct. 30 00
 Miller, Edie P., t. 14 00
 Mosier, Frances, t. 17 50
 Martin, Edward G., t. 10 00
 Moorman, Oscar, t. 5 00
 Mount Washington, obla. 2 17
 Mathison, Willard C., t. 20 00
 Moler, Alma, t. 6 00
 Moneymaker, Ticy, t. 4 00
 Macrae, W. S., and wife, t. 5 00
 Morris, Eva, t. 5 00
 Moler, James, t. 15 00
 McIntosh, Alexander, sr., and wife, t. 34 00
 McLaren, W. H. and Jesse M., t. 40 16
 McCord, R. A., and wife, t. 28 00
 McWehey, Fred, and wife, t. 21 00
 McCadden, L. M., acct. 5 00
 McCleod, George T., t. 100 00
 Nursery Company, acct. 9 00
 Netherfield, George, t. 40 00
 Nederville, Emma, t. 17 25
 Nunn, Mrs. J. C., t. 50 00
 Nicoll, J. B., t. 50 20
 Netter, George, t. 2 52
 Nolan, Charles A., t. 10 00
 Needham, A., t. 80 00
 Newton, Thomas, t. 1 00
 Nowack, George, t. 5 05
 Nesbitt, Dina, t. 3 00
 Nixon, W. A., t. 50 00
 Newkirk, Roy E., and wife, t. 6 00
 Noon, Elizabeth, t. 12 35
 Oelsen, Svonn, t. 10 00
 O'Dell, W. R., t. 65 00
 O'Dell, Mary, t. 35 00
 Page, Jerome E., t. 13 50
 Post Oak Branch, obla. 12 72
 Presidency refund on mileage. 2 05
 Peck, Lillie, ret. aid. 10 00
 Petre, Joseph, t. 10 00
 Parsons, A. H., and wife, t. 21 25
 Parker, Robert J., and wife, t. 100 00
 Plain, C. t. 5 00
 Painter, Maud C., t. 9 00
 Painter, Florence M., t. 6 00
 Petre, J. F. and wife, t. 33 00
 Price, Maud, t. 2 00
 Pooler, Wm., and wife, t. 18 50
 Palmer, E. N., and wife, t. 6 50
 Petre, Blumer B., and wife, t. 110 15
 Parsons, O. R., and wife, t. 203 40
 Pooler, Chas., and wife, t. 5 00
 Pooler, Emma, t. 18 00
 Peterson, Bert B., and wife, t. 102 50
 Peterson, Bert B., and wife, o. 5 00

Peterson, Fred A., and wife, t. 25 00
 Peterson, Fred A., and wife, o. 5 00
 Powell, Wm. M., and wife, t. 30 00
 Peterson, Silas, t. 2 00
 Post, J., and wife, t. 1 00
 Phillips, Jessie M., t. 5 00
 Pointer, J. G., and wife, t. 65 00
 Perry, J. P., t. 5 00
 Perry, Robert, t. 7 50
 Petre, Emma, t. 2 00
 Prahrer, Chas. H., and wife, t. 20 00
 Quindaro Branch, oblation 15 33
 Quick, Basha, t. 50 00
 Rudd, J. F., t. 17 75
 Rudd, J. F., t. 25 00
 Richards, Medy, t. 25 00
 Rushfelt, Henry L., t. 36 19
 Rushfelt, Henry L., o. 5 00
 Roell, C. F. A., and wife, o. 5 00
 Roell, C. F. A., and wife, t. 151 72
 Roberts, H. B., and wife, t. 14 00
 Reynolds, Sarah E., t. 2 00
 Robinson, Mrs. J. A., t. 10 00
 Rushton, W. T., acct. 1 00
 Redfield, Hattie, t. 90 33
 Redfield, Hattie, c. 5 00
 Ross, J. N., and wife, t. 10 00
 Roberts, J. W., t. 130 95
 Ravell, Wesley, t. 9 00
 Robertson, Margaret, t. 12 00
 Robertson, Atha, t. 2 50
 Redfield, Edward E., t. 11 00
 Radmald, Sadie, t. 5 00
 Roberts, Ada, o. 10 00
 Roberts, John H., acct. 5 00
 Redfield, Mabel A., t. 1 00
 Redfield, Earl T., t. 12 22
 Redfield, Eva M., t. 4 35
 Rogers, J. O., t. 25 00
 Rhode, Hattie, t. 5 00
 Ringer, Harry, and wife, t. 5 00
 Roberts, Samuel, and wife, t. 10 00
 Roberts, Roy, t. 1 00
 Reese, David T., and wife, t. 8 00
 Redfield, Sarah W., t. 2 76
 Ravell, Elva, t. 6 00
 Ramsey, Peter, sen., o. 10 00
 Robinson, Mrs. H. H., t. 1 00
 Rhode, Julia M., t. 20 00
 Rhode, Julia M., c. 5 00
 Roush, Bella B., t. 100 00
 Reinking, Chas. E., t. 25 00
 Ravell, Earl, t. 10 00
 Rannie, Alma E., t. 16 30
 Rannie, Paul R., t. 1 63
 Schwab, John C., and wife, t. 42 53
 Second Independence Branch, oblation 71 45
 Second Kansas City, obla. 17 28
 Sterrett, Chas. B., and wife, t. 5 00
 Shimmel, J. J., t. 24 95
 Stewart, Lawrence, t. 03
 Slocum, Elsie, t. 8 60
 Shaw, Mrs. M. A., t. 7 00
 Shimmell, Philip, t. 100 00
 Scarechill, C. P., t. 10 00
 Stewart, Fessie, t. 2 50
 Smith, Harry, and wife, t. 15 50
 Smith, B. C., and wife, t. 10 75
 Snell, W. W., t. 10 00
 Shore, Maggie, acct. 23 00
 Shore, Maggie, t. 17 00
 Steele, Mary E., t. 15 75
 Stewart, L. O., acct. 5 00
 Stegfield, M. H., and wife, o. 2 25
 Scott, Minnie E., t. 8 48
 Simpson, Caroline, t. 50 00
 Stover, and McCadden, acct. 80 00
 Scott, B. J., and wife, t. 7 00
 Scott, B. J., Notary Fees. 5 85
 Spurlock, Chas. J., t. 8 45
 Spangler, David O., t. 3 00
 Spangler, David O., acct. 5 00
 Sand, Walter E., t. 30 00
 Shiplett, Nancy J., t. 1 00
 Smith, Francis A., t. 180 00
 Smith, T. N., and wife, t. 4 40
 Shearer, George H., and wife, t. 36 00
 Snell, Gordon, t. 5 00
 Shirk, Daniel D., t. 1 70
 Soderstadt, Anna, t. 2 00
 Shirk, Daniel W., t. 67 00
 Stout, Jos. t. 10 00
 Swearingen, Oart A., t. 15 00
 Stoughton, Jos. W., and wife, t. 3 00
 Schweers, Fred A., t. 65 97
 Short, Billis, c. 25 00
 Skinner, Ruth, t. 12 00
 Smith, Ralph G., and wife, t. 67 50
 Smith, H. O., B. May acct. 100 00
 Savage, Hattie, t. 1 55

Stuck, Daniel W., t. 10 00
 Stuck, Daniel W., acct. 5 00
 Savage, Eliza, t. 5 00
 Smith, C. R., and wife, t. 15 00
 Smith, Francis A., t. 3 50
 Sandy, Charles, t. 21 10
 Smith, Francis A., t. 21 10
 Sterrett, Hosea B., t. 4 00
 Seafurus, W. A., t. 100 00
 Sandy, Seth, t. 50 00
 Smart, Margaret, t. 50 00
 Smith, Alvin, t. 4 50
 Slocum, G. B., t. 1 10
 Smith, Nora E., t. 11 50
 Sturgiss, J. R., t. 5 00
 Savage, Ralph, t. 5 00
 Steele, Wm. R., t. 10 00
 Steele, Wm. R., o. 2 00
 Savage, G. M., and wife, t. 10 00
 Stonger, Grace, t. 10 00
 Smith, H. Lyman, t. 12 00
 Schweers, J. Henry, t. 50 00
 Sears, John, t. 5 00
 Sperry, Nelson, t. 15 00
 Sperry, Nelson, c. 5 00
 Scanlon, Frank, t. 10 00
 Skinner, Sarah, t. 19 00
 Schrader, Chas. H., and wife, t. 2 00
 Swearingen, Gurdy, t. 5 00
 Steele, J. W., and wife, t. 47 50
 Stover, F. M., and wife, t. 47 29
 Self, R. O., and wife, t. 50 00
 Stover, F. M., t. 70 00
 Savage, Cynthia, t. 5 00
 Sullivan, Jessie, t. 5 00
 Stoker, Geneva, t. 6 25
 Stoker, Gertrude E., t. 2 20
 Sawyer, J. W., t. 40 00
 Stafford, L. M., t. 5 00
 Shimmell, Ralph E., t. 5 00
 Shimmell, Jesse W., t. 27 50
 Slusher, Mrs. W. M., t. 1 00
 Short, Ruby, t. 1 00
 Tucker, William, t. 20 00
 Tinsley, Jasper M., and wife, t. 35 00
 Thatcher, Albert, acct. 5 00
 Thompson, Henry B., and wife, t. 69 48
 Tucker, D. E., and wife, t. 5 38
 Tent fund, acct. 18 87
 Thompson, Lizzie, t. 17 00
 Thompson, Alice R., t. 3 00
 Tillery, Grace, t. 5 00
 Tillery, Wm., t. 3 20
 Townsend A., (by John Ely, on acct.) 4 00
 Thompson, George, t. 5 00
 Taylor, Minnie, acct. 15 00
 Totty, Ely, t. 1 00
 Thomas, John, t. 3 35
 Towsley, George W., t. 10 00
 Taylor, Ernest P., t. 1 00
 Tanner, J. A., t. 3 00
 Trusler, Nettie, t. 20 60
 Thompson, Laban, t. 6 00
 Thomason, F. O., and wife, t. 10 00
 Thomason, Neal O., t. 5 00
 Tankard, James, o. 10 00
 Taylor, Mary, t. 50 00
 Trowbridge, R. B., o. 5 00
 Tankard, Alma J., t. 25 00
 Tovey, Jia A., t. 5 00
 Tucker, Edward, t. 15 00
 Tucket, Edward, o. 10 00
 Turner, Philip, and wife, t. 5 00
 Tannahill, A. R., t. 2 00
 Taylor, Margaret, o. 2 25
 Thompson, Albert J., c. 2 00
 Vall, J. B., and wife, t. 25 00
 Vanderwood, J. E., and wife, t. 6 00
 Vinson, Mrs. J. W., t. 3 00
 Vickery, Ransom, t. 10 00
 Vincent, Dale F., t. 2 50
 Vermillion, Mrs. W. L., t. 2 50
 Winn, H. F., t. 4 00
 Winn, Mrs. D. F., t. 80 00
 Warrensburg Branch, obla. 20 44
 Wright, M. C. S., acct. 5 00
 Wright, M. C. S., t. 4 00
 Wood, Ella D., t. 24 00
 Wood, Walton, and wife, t. 4 50
 Wear, E. E., t. 5 00
 Wilcox, Owen, t. 10 00
 Westwood, Mamie, t. 10 00
 Weed, Edd S., and wife, t. 2 00
 Williams, Eva, t. 5 00
 Warnock, Robert, t. 13 00
 Wells, Jennie, t. 22 00
 Wilcox, Eva Coats, t. 10 00
 Winn, Fann, t. 3 00
 Winegar, G. W., acct. 12 00
 Wible, Christian, and wife, t. 3 00
 Wheatley, John A. D., t. 10 60
 Webber, Mary E., t. 10 40
 Weston, John F., t. 12 50
 Wloughby, Ethel, t. 2 00
 Walnut Park Mission, obla. 7 25
 Walnut Park Mission, piano acct. 35 00

Woolsey, John V., and wife, t. 10 33
 Wyman, George M., t. 7 15
 Westwood, Joseph, t. 90 00
 Wolfe, Lillie E., t. 5 00
 Wuntch, Elijah, t. 34 00
 Warren, Chas. S., and wife, t. 4 00
 Warren, Chas. S., and wife, o. 5 00
 Wooden, Charles, t. 1 00
 Weston, W. J., t. 12 50
 Wilson, Emma J., and wife, t. 1 00
 Wilson, W. A., and wife, t. 6 28
 Walden, Mrs. J. S., o. 5 00
 Williamson, Myrtle, t. 1 35
 Woolsey, Minnie, t. 3 50
 White, Mark S., and wife, t. 280 96
 Wright, Chas. H., t. 5 00
 Webster, Charlotte, acct. 10 00
 Wintaker, Annie, t. 50 00
 Williamson, Wm. J., t. 10 00
 Walter, Bernice, t. 6 00
 Wilcox, Olive, t. 4 00
 Walrath, Harriet J., t. 1 50
 Wilson, Mamie A., t. 2 10
 Walrath, Wm. H., o. 1 00
 Weir, Hazel, t. 1 50
 Ward, I. A., and wife, o. 5 00
 Ward, Gerlie, t. 2 00
 Walker, Mrs. J. M., t. 25 00
 Yarrington, Tracy H., t. 2 00
 Zuelzke, Lydia, t. 10 00
 Zerr, Chas., and Ella, t. 20 00

Bishop's Office.
 Sale of stoves 10 00
 Tracts sold 8 19
 Telephone fees 60
 Highman & Co., error 1 00
 Independence Branch, stenographic work 2 50
 Burn rent 2 00
 Change house rent 45 25
 Refund on mileage 2 02
 Returned check, Home Tel. Co. 4 75

Cemetery Account.
 Davis, A. C. 20 00
 Stake funds, W. P. Cairns acct. 10 00
 Bullard, Richard, sr. 4 00
 Bullard, Richard, jr. 2 00
 Crier, William 12 00
 Soderstadt, John E. 20 00
 Winchell, S. K. 10 00
 Beasley, Lucretia 5 00
 Harrington, G. Leonard 20 00
 Leaton, Alice 15 00
 Weed, Edd S. 40 00
 Bowen, Scott M., for work 46 95
 Inman, Jasper 3 00
 Hankin, H. J. 10 00
 Nunn, Mrs. J. C. 10 00
 Gould, George A. 10 00
 DeTray, Albert C. 21 35
 Page, Albert 15 00
 Snider, Ray 1 50
 Beal, M. N. 3 00
 Beagle, Nancy M. 46 00
 Bullard, Ruth D. 45 00
 Bierghien, Wm. M. 18 50
 Coler, Wm. 3 00
 Malins, George E. 15 00
 Savage, Frank 15 00
 Edwards, W. H. 25 00
 Smith, Nora 25 00
 Gould, C. G. 5 00
 Shearer, George H. 15 00
 Goodale, Emma 25 00
 McClanahan, James 20 00
 Ott & Co., for Murdock's 5 00
 Seaforth, Jennie 3 00
 Dodge, S. D. 8 00
 Smith, Mrs. Ralph G. 5 00
 Stafford, B., o. 2 00
 Morgan, A., o. 3 00
 Nelson, Mrs. W. D. 5 00
 Stuck, Daniel W. 20 00
 Tankard, Alma J. 45 00
 Savage, Cynthia 10 00
 Rogers, S. A., o. 5 00
 Monroe, N. G. 8 00
 Lalg, I. B. 1 50
 Handy, Alice B. 2 00
 Gerber, Theo. 25 00
 Pasture rent 1 50
 Esslin, Chas. M. 1 00
 Allison, Edward 43 00
 Cooper, Mrs. I. N. W. 2 50
 Criley, Emma 20 00
 Dickinson, Caroline F. 5 10
 Kalar, Mary H. 34 00
 McKim, Carle 15 00
 Warner, J. M. 15 00
 Meggers, Henry 20 00
 Ott & Co., for Hickman 3 00
 Towsley, George W. 5 00
 Bird, W. H. 1 00
 Farrow, Albert 3 00

Sterrett, C. E.	32 00
Farrow, James B.	19 00
McFadden, L. M.	2 00
Chaplow, Emma	40 00
Bradford, Sarah	10 00
Peterman, W. D.	5 00
Roell, C. F. A.	20 00
Dungee, Frank	25 00
Lentell, Wm.	12 50
Knobnoster Saints, loan	680 00
Blakeslee, Mary E.	1 50
Arthur, Ross B.	3 00
Lawton, J. W.	1 00
Bower, and son, for W. R. Ford	5 00
Cooley, J. R.	15 00
Fisher, Smith R.	23 00
Phillips, Wm. B.	5 00
Knisley, Alvin	25 00
Drown, Alma, by Carson	3 00
Dowker, William	15 00
Willett, C. M.	25 00

Total $18,410 57

Expenditures.

Aylor, Wm. M., f.	$310 00
Allison, A. N., a.	8 00
Ashbaugh, Chas. W., and wife, a.	73 33
Arnold, George F., acct.	40 00
Ashbaugh, L. M., a.	2 00
Eslinger, Sarah E., and M. B., acct.	45 51
Ballingier, Sarah B., and M. B., acct.	1 00
Burch, Ellen, a.	22 00
Beal, A. M., and wife, acct.	181 00
Bond, M. H., and wife, f	240 00
Bullard, Richard, a.	574 00
Bullard, Richard, ex. f.	30 00
Bullard, Richard, e.	93 00
Baker, Mrs. J. W., a.	13 00
Booker, Henry, acct.	29 86
Brown, Andrew, acct.	29 50
Bush, Mary, a.	44 74
Bennington Heights lot, acct.	64 38
Baker, J. W., a.	4 00
Babecock, D. D., a.	2 25
Ballou, Opal, a.	12 00
Barnhart, Lucy, a.	4 88
Campbell, James F., a.	116 15
Chafburn, T. W., f.	240 00
Cairns, Wm. P., a.	13 00
Curtis, J. F., f.	612 00
Clofelter, Benton, a.	50 00
Curtis, Mary R., a.	6 50
Curtis, Mrs. Wm., a.	1 00
Dungee, P. G., and wife, a	241 99
Dungee, Frank, funeral expenses	144 16
Dell McCarthy, Tiny, a.	106 37
Dubose, J. V., f.	135 00
Davis, Elma, a.	61 41
Farrow, W. A., acct.	5 00
Farrow, W. A., a.	2 00
Fritz, Misses, a.	2 25
Filson, H. C., a.	3 50
Farrow, James M. B., a.	35 00
Fox, Frank B., a.	20 00
Garrison, James B., a.	37 04
Givens, Nancy, a.	82 96
Garrott, W. H., f.	240 00
Garrett, W. H., e.	2 85
Garrett, W. H., acct.	15 00
Garland, Samuel, a.	10 45
Griffin, Annie, a.	7 00
Grandview Ladies Aid, R. May acct.	100 00
Haldeman, Mrs. William, a	307 53
Herman, Mrs. A. B., a.	180 84
Hughes, O. S., a.	30 31
Horton, George and Abble, a.	134 72
Handy, A. B., a.	10 71
Harrington, George B., f.	552 00
Harrington, George B., e.	55 00
Harrington, George B., acct.	20 00
Hills, Salina, a.	11 00
Haas, L. H., f.	364 00
Haas, L. H., acct.	40 00
Hansen, Oliver, R. May acct.	50 00
Hatfield, Edward, a.	10 00
Hubbard, Annie, acct.	17 75
Hubbard, Annie, acct.	19 88
Holmes, J. E., a.	25 00
Harrison, Mary J., acct.	55 00
Hushual, Mrs. L. M., a.	3 00
Harder, H. A., a.	5 00
Harris, Elmira, a.	27 88
Johnson, John, a.	25 00
Johnson, Nancy, a.	40 00
Johnson, H. C., a.	5 00
Johnson, Mary, a.	6 50
Kern, George, a.	15 00
Kennedy, Emma, a.	27 00
Krick, Ada B., a.	50 03
Kenworthy, A. L., a.	32 00
Kaler, Mrs. John, f.	384 00
Kelley, T. C., f.	412 00

Kemp, Henry, f.	240 00
Kelley, B. L., Bishop	200 00
Knisley, Elizabeth, a.	20 00
Kearl, Minnie, a.	2 00
Kelley, W. H., f.	160 00
Layland, Jordan, a.	240 66
Layland, Ella, a.	67 00
Library Committee, acct.	62 37
Lundy, Bessie, a.	5 00
Luff, J. J., acct.	20 00
Landfried, Philip, acct.	15 00
Lyle, Frances, Parsons & Scott acct.	37 67
LaFerty, Elmer R., a.	4 50
Masterson, Lewis, acct.	2 00
Montroe, Norman R., acct.	13 00
Morrow, Clara, a.	12 00
Metcalf, J. W., f.	444 00
Mauzey, Thomas, a.	2 12
Martin, Alice, a.	65 00
Marvell, Philip N., acct.	60 00
Mikel, Wm. L., a.	56 50
Morgan, Roy, acct.	30 00
McCarthy, Belle, a.	74 50
McFar, L. M., acct.	5 00
Nursery Co., acct.	4 25
Newton, Thos., acct.	25 00
Ogle, Grace, a.	5 00
Peek, Lillie, a.	20 85
Petre, J. F., f.	415 00
Price, Maud, a.	28 90
Peters, Alice, a.	3 75
Rudd, Mrs. H. A., a.	18 00
Redfield, Frank W., R. May acct.	9 00
Rushon, W. T., a.	14 95
Rushon, W. T., acct.	1 00
Rogers, Philip, a.	29 15
Resch, Henry, acct.	39 50
Seavert, Elizabeth, a.	2 00
Sires, Mrs. A., a.	5 40
Shore, Maggie, acct.	23 00
Stewart, L. O., acct.	15 77
Stegfried, M. H., f.	466 00
Stegfried, M. H., e.	87 00
Stover, and McFadden, acct.	80 00
Scott, E. J., f.	492 00
Smith, W. R., f.	680 00
Snow, C. I., f.	345 00
Spangler, David L., acct.	5 00
Smith, Edgar H., e.	3 50
Stuck, Daniel W., acct.	5 00
Shedd, M. A., acct.	40 00
Shimmel, Maud, a.	58 58
Thatcher, Albert, acct.	5 00
Tent Fund, acct.	12 25
Taylor, a.	3 90
Taylor, Minnie, acct.	15 00
Tanner, Jos. A., f.	312 00
Taylor, John M., acct.	15 00
Vanderwood, J. E., f.	451 00
White, Valentine, a.	20 00
White, George W., a.	73 93
William, William, a.	1 00
Wiltfong, J. D., and Harriet, a.	11 00
White, Bert H., a.	3 00
White, L. N., f.	35 00
Wilburn, Nora, a.	157 73
White, Ammon, f.	384 00
Winegar, G. W., acct.	12 00
Walnut Park Mission, piano acct.	65 00
Webster, Charlotte, acct.	10 00
Warnock, Minnie, a.	15 00
Yarrington, Tracy H., a.	10 00

Bishop's Office.

Incidentals	35 50
Fuel	26 62
Lights	5 53
Repairs	10 03
Work on basement	2 65
Stationery and postage	51 25
Ledgers	20 55
Telephones	39 05
Mileage books	37 50
Janitor	8 55
Furnace	50 00
Buggy	18 50
Water Co.	2 12
Revised statutes and other books	12 75
Plumbing	41 70
Error to Highman & Co.	1 00

Cemetery Account.

Horse feed	120 85
Bill beads	1 25
Sexton, S. M. Bowen	535 50
Telephone	14 50
Jackson County Bank, note	1,450 00
Interest on above (8%)	54 18
Sundries	21 17
Werner, J. M., refund	5 00
Water company	22 32
Postage	13 00
Cement sand, lime, etc.	2 00
Knobnoster note	680 00
Buggy	20 00
Horseshoeing	12 50

Harness	8 55
Lumber	27 04
Stake Presidency's Office.
Fuel	20 23
Horse feed	6 00
Lights	5 91
Telephones	37 95
Basement work	4 60
Postage and stationery	35 04
Incidentals	30 14
Repairs	8 60
Janitor work	6 00
Buggy	13 50
Water bills	2 10
Mileage	37 50
Books	2 75
Plumbing	40 00
Furnace	50 00

Stake Expense.

Ensign Publishing House	28 17
Brown, W. S.	56 82
Devore, L. R., funeral ex.	7 50
Quorum hall, Janur J.	7 50
Stake records	5 00
Stake secretary's desk	15 00
Cabinet files	21 15
Incidentals	7 73
Total	$17,220 10
Due church	$1,181 47

Nodaway District.

R. K. Ross, Agent.
Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$211 75
Nelson, Alma	10 00
Total	$221 75
Expenditures.
Shower, J. D., f.	$ 24 00
Silvers, A. C., f.	25 00
Total	$ 49 00
Due church	$172 75

W. B. Torrance, Agent.

Receipts.
Received of former agent	$268 50
Anderson, Inez W.	2 00
Fannon, Edward S., and wife	25 00
Froyd, Elmer, and wife	25 00
Hawley, Alma, and wife	200 00
Hawley, May G.	50 00
Hansen, James, and wife	25 00
Ivye, Thomas A., and wife	25 00
Jacobson, Andrew, and wife	50 00
Jensen, Andrew, and wife	170 00
Kalstrup, Christian, and wife	25 00
Knudson, Knud C., and wife	25 00
Kjesner, Lehman	10 00
Lorenson, Rasmus, and wife	20 00
Nelson, Carl C., and wife	50 00
Nelson, Alma	80 00
Nelson, John R., and wife	20 00
Nelson, Ernest	25 00
Nelson, Alvin J., and wife	20 00
Powell, Jane	10 00
Powell, Benjamin F.	10 00
Powell, Lavina	10 00
Ross, Wm. T., and wife	5 00
Ross, Verna	10 00
Torrance, Caroline	50 00
Torrance, Wm. B., and wife	25 00
Winslow, J. D.	10 00
Wohlford, Sarah	6 00
Total	$1,202 00
Expenditures.
Kelley, W. H., f.	$ 54 00
Kelley, B. L., Bishop	700 00
Silvers, A. C., e.	25 00
Silvers, A. C., f.	60 00
Willey, C. E., e.	25 00
Willey, C. E., f.	160 00
Wyatt, Ellen, a.	40 00
Total	$1,664 00
Due church	138 00

Northeastern District.

W. B. Richards, Agent.
Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 62 34
Bevier Branch, oblation	30 00
Ryers, Paul, t.	90 10
Burch, F. M., and wife, t	10 00
Bogle, John, and wife, t.	2 00
Bogie, J. W., t.	2 00
Barnett, J. W., t.	5 00
Binder, A. H., and wife.	20 00
Chapman, Wm. C., and wife, t.	6 00

Cochran, Rose, t.	1 00
Dockstader, F. A., and wife, t.	13 00
Dockstader, Margaretta, t	6 00
District conference, obla.	5 10
Edmunds, Daniel, and wife, t.	5 00
Edmunds, Miles, t.	7 00
Edmunds, Charles, and wife, t.	8 00
Frey, George W., and wife, o.	7 00
Frey, George W., and wife, t.	70 00
Fassnacht, John, and wife, t	110 00
Foster, Jane Ann, t.	5 00
Friend, A.	10 00
Graupner, John W., and wife, t.	4 70
Gray, Charles F., and wife, t.	20 00
Holvey Ruth, t.	2 00
Higbee Branch, oblation	5 15
Hicklin, W. Thomas, and wife, t.	120 00
Jones, David B., and wife, t.	2 00
Jones, Richard R., and wife, t.	10 00
Jones, Mary E., t.	1 00
Joyce, Samuel J., and wife, t.	19 00
Jones, David J., and wife, t.	15 00
Lewis, Lewis, and wife, t.	14 00
Lilly, William, t.	30 00
Mussell, F. T., and wife, t	75 00
Mussell, Frank, t.	50 00
Morgan, Grace, t.	50 00
Miller, Elizabeth, t.	31 50
Maple, Ediza, t.	10 00
Miller, Sadie, t.	10 00
Miller, Charles, t.	5 00
Mullina, Myrtle, t.	4 60
Miller, Martha Jane, t.	7 50
Pilkerton, Mary Ann, t.	2 00
Proctor, Ed. B., and wife, t.	10 00
Perry, Thomas E., and wife, t.	2 00
Richards, W. W., and wife, t.	20 00
Rogers, Bertia, t.	3 00
Surridge, Ivor W., and wife, t.	23 50
Surridge, Maggie, t.	15 00
Stimpson, George, t.	10 00
Stanford, Alice B., o.	1 00
Salver, James W., and wife, t.	10 00
Summerfield, A. J., and wife, t.	2 50
Sharp, Oia t.	224 31
Triplett, Florence, t.	14 00
Tanner, Ben S., t.	6 00
Thomas, Mary Ann, t.	10 00
Vaughn, W. T., t.	70 33
Vansklike, John P., t.	62 80
Ward, Effie, t.	7 00
Williams, Hattie, t.	12 00
Total	$1,295 33
Expenditures.
Agent's expenses	$ 7 55
Anderson, Peter, e.	5 00
Cochran, Rose, a.	80 00
Kelley, B. L., Bishop	500 00
Richards, W. B., f.	297 00
Swenson, Sven, f.	80 00
Tucker, D. E., f.	160 00
Total	$1,129 55
Due church	165 78

Saint Louis District.

R. Archibald, Agent.
Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$654 51
Adams, George, and wife, t	30 00
Anderson, J. B., t.	10 00
Angell, Lucy, t.	13 00
Archibald, Jennie P., t.	15 00
Atkins, Elizabeth, t.	20 00
Avery, Richard, and wife.	5 00
Beard, John, t.	50 00
Beard, Irene B., t.	45 00
Belford, Irene B., t.	16 00
Belleville Aid Society, t.	6 10
Betts, Walter I., t.	72 35
Hillinsky, Josie, t.	15 00
Boren, James, jr, t.	1 00
Bourgeret, Maria, t.	6 00
Bourgeret, Mary C., t.	5 00
Boyce, Louis L. and Nellie, t.	30 00
Brunkhorst, H. W., and wife, t.	5 00
Brunkhorst, H. W., and wife, e.	5 00

Table of financial entries for the first column, including names like Burgess, H. C., and wife, and various monetary amounts.

Table of financial entries for the second column, including names like Griffiths, Russell, and Hillard, G. H., and monetary amounts.

Southern District.

Table of financial entries for the Southern District, including Benjamin Pearson, Agent, Receipts, and Expenditures.

EXPENDITURES.

Table of financial entries for the Southern District Expenditures, including Agent's expenses and various church costs.

MONTANA.

Montana District.

Table of financial entries for the Montana District, including Thomas Reese, Agent, Receipts, and Expenditures.

Table of financial entries for the third column, including names like Christofferson, A., and Catron, Deilia, and monetary amounts.

NEBRASKA.

Central District.

Table of financial entries for the Nebraska Central District, including Levi Gamet, Agent, Receipts, and Expenditures.

Table of financial entries for the fourth column, including names like Dickerson, Ellen J., and Flowers, Jesse, and monetary amounts.

EXPENDITURES.

Table of financial entries for the fourth column Expenditures, including Duthrige, W. D., and Gamet, Levi, and monetary amounts.

Northern District.

H. S. Lytle, Agent.

Table of financial entries for the Northern District, including Receipts and Expenditures for H. S. Lytle, Agent.

Southern District.

C. H. Porter, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Southern District, including items like 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911' and names of contributors such as Anderson, Mrs. T. C., and Godfrey, William F.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Southern District, including items like 'Holeton, Sr., a.' and 'Kelley, E. L., Bishop.'

Western Nebraska and Black Hills District.

Bert E. Hart, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Western Nebraska and Black Hills District, including items like 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911' and names of contributors such as Baskins, Nora L., and Craton, Charlie A.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Western Nebraska and Black Hills District, including items like 'Agent's expenses' and 'Kelley, J. B., f.'

Western Nebraska and Black Hills.

C. W. Prettyman, Agent.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for Western Nebraska and Black Hills, including items like 'Godfrey, William F., and Nellie' and 'Goddard, Ira B.'

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for Western Nebraska and Black Hills, including items like 'Agent's expenses' and 'Brafett, Lizzie, a.'

NEW YORK AND PENNSYLVANIA.

New York and Philadelphia District.

John Zimmermann, Bishop.

Receipts.

Table of receipts for New York and Philadelphia District, including items like 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911' and names of contributors such as Angus, Archibald, t., and Atkinson, William F.

Expenditures.

Table of expenditures for New York and Philadelphia District, including items like 'Fry, William B., c.' and 'Harrison, Mary B., t.'

Table of receipts and expenditures for various branches and individuals in the New York and Philadelphia District, including items like 'Shaw, Daniel T., t.' and 'Brooklyn Branch, tract.'

Table of receipts and expenditures for various individuals and families, including items like 'Rathburn, Mrs. J. H., t 8 00' and 'Sphnnett, F. J., and wife.'

Table of expenditures for various individuals and families, including items like 'Booker, Alma, f.' and 'Booker, Alma, e.'

NORTH DAKOTA.

North Dakota District.

J. E. Wildermuth, Agent.

Table of receipts and expenditures for North Dakota District, including items like 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911' and names of contributors such as Brown, C. M., and Boe, Gilbert.

Western District.

F. J. Updyke, Agent.

Table of receipts and expenditures for Western District, including items like 'Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911' and names of contributors such as Brothers, William, and wife, t.

Expenditures.
Agent's expense	$ 30 00
Houghton, Mrs. Leonard,	152 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop	235 00
Page, James C., e.	20 00
Page, James C., f	160 00
Sparling, Wm., e.	15 00
Shakespeare, Wm E., e.	35 00
Sparling, Wm., f	240 00
Wildermuth, Mrs. J. E., f	420 00
Wildermuth, J. E., e.	35 00
Whiting, A., f	80 00
Total	$1,422 00
Due church	555 84

NOVA SCOTIA.

Mrs. Lois G. Johnson, Agent.
Receipts.
Dimock, J. W.	$ 25 00
Fleming, Blair	2 00
Hall, Mrs. Elberton J.	9 00
Haley, Mattie (nee O'Brien)	5 00
Hyatt, Kenneth	25 00
Johnson, I. Boyd	25 00
Johnson, Leander, and wife	25 00
Johnson, Edwin F.	3 00
O'Brien, Annie	5 00
Wood, Wilfred	10 00
Wood, Mrs. Bertie	15 00
Total	$149 00
Expenditures.
Kelley, E. L., bishop	$ 65 25
Anderson, William, e	35 00
Greene, U. W., e	8 00
Shick, Oliver, e	40 00
Agent's expenses	75
Total	$149 00

OHIO, PENNSYLVANIA, AND WEST VIRGINIA.

Kirtland, Pittsburg, and Ohio Districts.

J. A. Becker, Bishop.
Receipts.
Kirtland District.
Balance due church Decem-
ber 31, 1911	$ 68 99
Ahlstrom, Martin, and
wife, t	20 00
Akron Branch, oblation	29 17
Allen, James J., t	2 00
Allen, Verna, t	1 50
Angus, Bruce, and wife, t	2 00
Atkinson, Lorena, t	2 00
Atwood, Frank W., and
wife, t	1 50
Baldwin Branch, oblation	13 04
Baldwin, John, sen., and
wife, t	8 50
Baldwin, Richard, e	1 00
Barber, Mina, t	19 00
Barker, Margaret, t	3 50
Bartley, John D., t	25
Bartley, J. M., and wife, t	85
Bartley, Susie, t	10
Beck, Carl, and wife, t	45 00
Beck, Carl and wife, o	25
Becket, George, t	25
Benbow, Dennis, and wife, t	3 50
Bigler, Louis B., and
wife, t	5 00
Billman, Emma, t	3 00
Billman, Emma, o	2 00
Billman, Perry, t	2 00
Blassley, Barbara, t	1 00
Braman, Earl, t	1 00
Braman, Paul, and wife, t	1 00
Brockway, Frank, and
wife, t	18 00
Buchanan, Matilda, t	3 00
Burdick, Leon G., t	5 00
Burdick, Mable, t	13
Bush, Earnest, t	2 00
Calhoun, Daley, t	115 00
Calhoun, Lawrence, t	18
Calhoun, Lester, t	24
Canton Branch, oblation	7 08
Carlisle, Belle, t	50
Carlisle, James, and wife, t	13 00
Carlisle, John, t	10 00
Carroll, Louis, t	1 00
Carroll, Paul, and wife, t	19 00
Childs, O. J., and wife, t	3 00
Cleary, Jennie, t	2 50
Cleary, Michael, t	2 00
Cleveland Branch, oblation	40 45
Cooling, Samuel, t	1 00
Cozadd, Mary	5 00

Cramer, Charles, and wife,
t	25 50
Cramer, Dora, t	1 25
Cramer, John, and wife, t	2 00
Curry, Earl R., t	6 00
Curry, Lemuel, and wife, t	67 00
Davidson, Lawrence, t	8 00
Dickelhofe Harriet, t	45 00
Ebeling, Orville, t	3 85
Ellwood, William, and
wife, t	21 00
Erter, John, t	20 00
Farmfield, Mrs. J. C., t	4 00
Fishel, Agnes, t	2 50
Fishel, Warren H., t	5 00
Focht, Flora D., t	4 15
Focht, Dorris, t	4 15
Frew, Thomas, t	2 00
Frew, Mrs. Thomas, t	2 00
Fuller, Robert, t	28 00
Gale, Thomas, and wife, t	48 50
Gale, Thomas, and wife, o	8 00
Gardner, Olive, t	4 25
Garland Branch, oblation.	1 18
Garwood, U. L., and wife,
t	1 50
Gaskins, Mrs. E. M., t	12 00
Gaskins, Pearl E., o	2 40
Gaskins, Pearl E., o	7 60
Gaskins, Vivian, t	1 00
George, William C., and
wife, t	12 10
Givens, Dora, t	10 00
Gordon, Sr. Alexander, t	75
Gordon, Mary, t	5 00
Gondy, William, and wife, t	2 50
Gaff, Marie, t	6 50
Gross, John, and wife, t	5 00
Gross, Mark, and wife, t	1 00
Gross, Marion, and wife, t	1 95
Hanford, Mrs. T., t	1 00
Hansen, Jacob, and wife, t	9 48
Hardin, Jesse, t	2 00
Harper, Mary, t	5 25
Harper, Pearl, t	20 50
Harris, William, t	19 05
Hartz, Cora, t	1 00
Hartz, Joseph, and wife, t	4 50
Haynes, Fred T., t	40 00
Hedley, Morah H., and
wife, t	86 80
Hensel, Charles, and wife,
t	14 00
Hettrick, W. S., t	5 25
Hettrick, Mrs. W. S., t	1 00
Hiser, Nettie, t	15 00
Hollibaugh, Elsie, t	2 00
Hollibaugh, Harry, and
wife, t	60 00
Hollibaugh, Harry, and
wife, t	3 24
Hollibaugh, Margaret May,
t	19 00
Hollibaugh, Samuel S., t	5 00
Hollibaugh, Sarah C., o	1 00
Holman, Leonard S., and
wife, t	2 50
Holt, Hattie, t	2 50
Houghton, Carrie, t	5 45
Householder, Evela, t	5 00
Huff, Benjamin P., and
wife, t	30 00
Johnson, Leona, t	05
Johnson, Mary, t	1 00
Jones, David H., and
wife, t	4 00
Jones, David J., and
wife, t	3 00
Jones, David R., and
wife, t	55 00
Jones, Eleanor G., t	11 00
Jones, Hannah, t	25 50
Jones, Jennie May, t	14 50
Jones, John C., o	5 50
Jones, Thomas J., and
wife, t	1 00
Kelsey, Frank, and wife, t	1 50
Kelsey, Ira, t	3 00
Kelsey, Myron, t	20
Klar, A. B., t	25 00
Kling, Martin, and wife, t	80 00
King, Minnie, t	25
Kurtz, George, t	1 00
Kurtz, Stanley, t	24
Lake, John H., and wife, t	2 00
Lewis, John D., and wife, t	10 00
Liston, William S., and
wife, t	15 00
Liston, William S., jr., t	1 00
Loughnone, Sr. B., t	2 00
Lute, Eliza, t	50
Loho, Jacob, t	25
Mackenzie, Margaret, t	10 00
Manchester, A. R., and
wife, t	25 00
Mason, Rachel J., t	3 00
Masters, Mary Ann, t	10
McCaughy, James C.,
and wife, t	1 60
McCoy, John, and wife, t	4 00
McDowell, Delos, and
wife, t	23 00

McDowell, Frank, and
wife, t	1 00
McDowell, Frank, and wife, c	1 00
McDowell, George, t	1 00
McParland, Nellie, t	1 75
McMan, Sarah, t	2 50
McMillan, Frances, t	50
McMillan, Margaret, t	50
McNiel, John A., and
wife, t	81 00
Mellon, Tillie, t	3 00
Meredith, James, and
wife, t	4 00
Meyers, Earnest, t	2 25
Miller, Charles Ed., and
wife, t	30 25
Miller, Eben, t	55 00
Miller, Harry C., t	50
Miller, Robert, and wife, t	60 00
Miller, Robert, jr., t	1 85
Miller, Vera, t	85
Minkler, Ruth, t	5 00
Moore, James, t	3 00
Moore, Lizzie, t	50
Morris, Samuel, and wife, t	6 50
Morris, Lucy Ellen, t	16 45
Morris, Ferdinand, t	2 40
Neville, Cecil, t	26 37
Neville, George, and
wife, t	28 25
Neville, Johnnie, jr, t	25
New Castle Saints, obla-
tion	6 92
New Philadelphia Branch,
oblation	34 13
Nodine, Lucetta, t	1 75
North, Fannie, t	5 00
Ovenden, Edith, t	11 00
Pappe, Joseph, t	1 50
Perry, Jesse, t	1 00
Powder, Lorenzo W., and
wife, t	25 00
Proper, David H., and
wife, t	5 00
Proper, Auvergn, t	1 25
Rhodes, Herbert, and wife, t	2 00
Riblet, Sr. S. J., t	3 00
Rice, Herald, t	1 70
Richards, Celia, t	4 30
Richards, Olive, t	3 00
Richardson, Edith E., o	1 00
Richardson, Frances E., o	5 00
Richardson, Frances J., o	3 45
Richardson, John A., o	6 00
Ritchie, Sr. M. t.	1 65
Ritchie, Daniel, t	1 00
Robertson, C. H., and
wife, t	10 00
Robertson, Eva S., t	3 50
Robertson, Elias, t	1 00
Robson, Edwin, and wife, t	1 50
Robson, George, t	66 60
Ronson, John, and wife, t	1 00
Romig, Charles, and
wife, t	11 00
Russell, Margaret, o	1 00
Russell, Melzine, t	20 00
Ryhal, Frank, and wife, t	9 25
Ryhal, Leonard, and wife, t	8 00
Ryhal, Myron, and wife, t	6 25
Sautters William H., and
wife, t	5 00
Schmidt, Edward P., and
wife, t	21 00
Semler, Orin, t	20 33
Sharon Branch, oblation	10 95
Shepard, Arthur, t	20 00
Shepard, Chloe, t	3 30
Shepard, Jane, t	23 00
Shultz, Mary, t	10 00
Smith, Sarah, t	20 25
Sparks, Lizzie, t	6 50
Steffec, Rosina, t	10 00
Steinbaugh, Edward, and
wife, t	10 00
Stiffler, Joseph, and wife, t	6 00
Stone, Cora, t	6 00
Stottler, Silas, and wife, t	6 00
Talmage, Emma, t	25
Temple Branch, oblation	17 55
Thomas, Anna, t	6 00
Thomas, Ephraim A., and
wife, t	2 00
Thomas, Iva Z., and wife, t	13 00
Thomas, Iva Z., and family, o	2 00
Thomas, Phomas, t	5 00
Thomas, Thomas U. and
wife, t	13 00
Thomas, Uia, t	5 00
Thomson, Margaret, t	1 00
Titus, Israel P., t	1 00
Toledo Branch, oblation	5 00
Topping, John W., and
wife, t	58 50
Topping, Sr. L. I., t	05
Topping, Ruth M., t	6 00
Twelfth Quorum of Teachers,
Kirtland District, t	53
Ulrich, E. L., t	3 00
Unopolis Branch, oblation	1 02

Warner, Clarence F., and
wife, t	3 50
Warner, Katie, t	5 00
Warner, Rosa, t	6 00
Webbe, Earnest A., and
wife, t	21 75
Webbe, Frank C., and
wife, t	20 00
Webbe, Rosa B., t	50
Webbe, W. F., t	35
Welch, Mary, t	1 00
Wheeler, Loreta, t	1 10
Whitcomb, Sadie, t	5 00
Wigton, Brangeline Robson, t	6 35
Willard, Lawrence, t	50
Wilson, Earnest W., and
wife, t	3 00
Yates, Martha, t	10 00
Young, James N., and
wife, t	5 00

Pittsburg District.

Barnes, Elijah, t	$ 5 00
Barnes, Henry, t	1 00
Baumgardner, William M.,
t	2 00
Beach, Leona, t	2 50
Beach, Leona, t	5 00
Biles, Elizabeth, t	50
Birkbamer, John, and
wife, t	129 00
Birch, Eliza, t o	1 00
Bishop, James E., and
wife, t	45 47
Bishop, Mabel M., t.	1 25
Booher, John R., and wife, t	6 00
Boylan, Mary, t	25
Brewster, Mary S., t	3 00
Brewster, Mary S., o	4 00
Brewster, William M., t	5 00
Call, Clara, t	2 00
Chambers, Lillie E., t	2 25
Clark, Lovina, t	75
Clark, Johanna C., t	1 00
Cleg, Nellie Henderson, t	10 00
Collin, David, t	1 50
Collin, John, t	17 40
Cooper, Charles E., t	1 00
Cooper, Thomas, and wife, t	15 00
Craig, James, and wife, t	10 00
Crow, Clyde, t	25
Curry, Ebenezer, and wife, t	9 00
Curry, Lemuel F. P., t.	64 50
Daugherty, William H.,
and wife, t	32 00
Davis, Catherine, t	20
Dobbs, Amos C., t	75
Dobbs, Annie E., t	5 25
Dobbs, Deva, t	1 00
Dobbs, Gordon E., t	1 00
Dobbs, J. Frank, t	1 25
Dobbs, Jasper N., t	8 00
Dobbs, Jasper N., o	1 00
Dobbs, Lovina E., t	13 50
Dobbs, Lovina E., o	50
Dobbs, Pearl, t	10
Dobbs, Rosa, t	75
Dobbs, William A., t	50
Dobbs, W. Henry, t	2 50
Drenko, Mary, t	1 00
Edwards, Adolph H. D.,
and wife, t	21 65
Elder, Anna, t	6 00
Fayette City Branch, obla-
tion	6 90
Fuller, William H., t	10 00
Gann, R. T., and wife, t	3 95
Gaskill, Mary, t	50
Gaskill, Samuel, and wife, t	65 75
Gill, Annie, t	2 00
Givens, Oky N., t	5 00
Givens, William A., o	1 00
Glassford, Edith, t	16 50
Grazier, William C., and
wife, t	14 10
Gunn, Rhoda, t	25
Hartup, Frank, and wife, t	4 00
Hicks, Sarah, t	25
Hillman, Robert, t	2 00
Jacques, Joseph A., and
wife, t	13 00
Johnson, Clarence, t	1 00
Johnson, Mollie, t	2 00
Johnson, William, t	5 00
Kaylor, Emerson, t	2 00
Lamer, Presley, and
wife, t	1 00
Lang, John M., jr., and
wife, t	19 00
Lang, John M., sen., and
wife, t	8 00
Lawrence, J. H., o	5 00
Lewis, William, t	2 00
Lewis, William B., and
wife, t	5 00
Liston, William B., and
wife, t	18 00
Liston, William S., jr., t	1 00
Lockard, Emma, t	1 00
Lockard, George H., t	2 00

Lockard, Henry, and wife, t	17	00
Lockard, Lucy Ann, t	25	00
Lucas, Emmet, and wife, t	9	75
Martin, Chester A., and wife, t	10	00
Martin, John W., and wife, t	10	00
Martin, May, t	25	00
Martin, Samuel, t	44	15
Mathews, Anna, t	50	00
McDowell, William I., and family, t	25	10
McMillen, John, and wife, t	3	00
Miller, Chris, t	5	00
Oliver, John P., t	30	40
Pace, John G., and wife, t	19	70
Penick, Clifford, t	45	00
Perrie, Emma A., t	60	00
Phillips, Laura B., t	25	00
Pittsburg Branch, oblation	1	57
Pittsburg Ladies' Aid Society, t	2	05
Poullion, Blanch, t	1	00
Raisbeck, Della, t	1	00
Randall, Elijah H., t	5	50
Rayser, Regina, t	1	00
Redicar, Arubel, t	4	00
Richards, William, and wife, t	7	00
Rush, Herman B., t	5	00
Rush, William B., and wife, t	2	00
Serig, Louis A., and wife, t	28	50
Shanks, Bertha A., t	15	00
Shannon, Mary, t	5	00
Shepard, John, and wife, t	10	00
Simpson, Bula, t	1	50
Smith, Annie E., o	2	50
Smith, Levey D., t	5	00
Stenk, Mary, t	2	00
Steuernville Branch, oblation	16	09
Steuernville Z. R. L. S., t	4	40
Stone, Elizabeth, t	2	00
Tary, O. J., and wife, t	33	45
Thomas, Clarence H., t	41	00
Thomas, Clarence H., c	6	00
Thomas, Evan Henry, and wife, t	4	00
Thomas, Lydia J., t	2	50
Thomas, Mabel, t	2	25
Thomas-Myron B., and wife, t	2	75
Toth, Frank, t	5	00
Treadway, Susan, t	10	50
Ullom, L. D., t	20	25
Wayt, Iven, t	6	00
Wentzel, L. L., t	4	00
Wensly, Mary O., t	2	00
Wheeling Branch, oblation	10	95
Williams, Charles O., t	5	00
Winefield, Mrs. B. F., and daughter, t	5	00
Winship, George, and wife, t	3	50
Winship, Jesse B., and wife, t	21	00
Winship, Mary, t	25	00
Winship, Robert H., and wife, t	9	00
Winship, Samuel, and wife, t	3	20
Wright, James, t	50	00
Yocum, Isaac B., and wife, t	7	50
Yocum, Herbert, t	1	00
Yost, Herbert, o	2	00
Yost, Taylor, t	2	00
Yost, Taylor, o	3	00
Bradish, Rachael M., t	1	00

Ohio District.

Altman, Samuel, t	17	00
Bachelor, Sarah B., t	8	50
Barley, Mabel, t	2	50
Barhouse, Andrew C., t	1	00
Bealer, Martha, t	4	00
Beiley, Dora, t	03	00
Beiley, Hazel, t	05	00
Beiley, Vera, t	05	00
Bennington, Earl, t	05	00
Bennington, M. L., t	30	00
Bennington, Mrs. M. L., t	10	50
Bennington, Rachael, t	6	00
Betz, Catherine, t	1	00
Booker, Frances C., t	13	00
Booth, Susie, t	1	00
Bowen, Laura, t	5	00
Bradish, Rachael M., t	11	00
Brooks, William, t	1	00
Buhler, Annie, t	2	50
Burgess, Ethel, t	1	00
Byers Branch, t	1	45
Campbell, Hazel, t	55	00
Carr, Effie Ellen, t	50	00
Carriagan, Elizabeth, t	50	00
Carter, Harvey A., t	58	33
Clark, C. W., t	40	00

Clark, Ivo, t	35	00
Clark, Jessie, t	40	00
Clements, H. B., and wife, t	25	25
Clements, H. B., and wife, c	1	00
Clements, H. B., and wife, o	1	50
Columbus Branch, oblation	74	00
Columbus Ladies' Aid, t	20	90
Cook, Jane, t	6	50
Cooper, Charles, and wife, t	7	50
Countryman, Grace, t	25	00
Countryman, Laura, t	8	00
Countryman, Laura, o	10	00
Countryman, Thomas, t	2	50
Countryman, W. H., t	10	00
Crabtree, Ida, t	2	40
Culp, Harvey, t	11	00
Culp, Rufus, t	3	00
Culp, John Martin, t	5	90
Culp, William, t	3	75
Culp, Nellie, t	7	50
Curtis, Rebecca, t	5	00
Curtis, Rosa, t	5	00
Davis, Addie, t	1	00
Davis, Addie, o	1	00
Davis, Carr, t	1	00
Davis, D. J., t	1	00
Davis, Louis, and wife, t	1	00
Donaldson, Louie M., t	89	00
Donaldson, Frank, t	70	00
Eichorn, Bliza, t	18	00
Ellis, Lizzie, t	25	00
Ellis, Mary, t	1	50
Ervin, Phoebe, t	1	25
Everman, Edith, t	5	00
Everman, Pearl, t	2	00
Fair, Mary, t	2	50
Fair, Peter, t	5	00
Ferguson, Jessie, t	5	50
Foss, Lewis, t	2	00
Forst, Lizzie, o	7	50
Foster, Lottie, t	1	50
Frederick, J. C., and wife, t	153	00
Fry, D. B., and wife, t	8	33
Garvey, James, and wife, t	4	00
Geiffiths, Edith, t	3	35
Geiffiths, Katherine, t	05	00
Haller, Jessie, t	10	00
Hanna, Donald J., and wife, t	51	00
Hanna, S. D., and wife, t	10	00
Harnish, Thomas D., and wife, t	1	00
Henry, Charles, t	11	00
Hocking Branch, oblation	8	00
Howard, O. S., t	5	00
Ironton Branch, oblation	6	00
Jeffers, Mary, t	2	50
Jeffers, S. J., t	5	00
Jones, C. E., and wife, t	11	00
Kelley, Howard P., and wife, t	9	00
Jones, R. B., and wife, t	10	00
Keyes, Grace, t	5	00
Kirkendall, Asa S., t	1	00
Kirkendall, Gustaf, t	1	00
Kirkendall, Guard H., t	7	75
Kirkendall, Maggie, t	1	00
Kleim, Lillian, t	52	00
Kline, Sr. R. C., t	1	00
Knox, C. H., t	2	25
Koon, Alice, t	3	00
Koon, Alvira, t	9	50
Kriebel, A. W., t	2	00
Kriebel, Bliza, t	15	00
Kriebel, Ruthy, t	10	00
Kriebel, S. B., and wife, t	34	00
Kriebel, Walter R., t	50	00
Landrum, Effie, t	5	00
Lanning, Mollie, o	1	00
Lewis, L. C., and wife, t	13	00
Lewis, Thomas, t	15	00
Liston, Gomer, t	1	00
Liston, Matthew W., t	4	10
Long, Lyman B., and wife, t	22	50
Long, Lyman B., and wife, o	1	00
Mathews, Jerome B., t	1	00
Masheter, Emma, t	3	00
May, Francis, and wife, o	50	00
May, Julia, o	25	00
May, Vera, o	2	00
MacBryane, Mary, t	5	00
McCray, Charles R., t	1	75
McCray, Harley, t	1	00
McCray, Lewis, t	1	00
Merrick, A. J., t	5	00
Metcalf, J. W., t	2	00
Middletown Branch, oblation	30	37
Miller, John E., and wife, t	3	25
Miller, Mary, t	5	00
Miller, Nephil, t	5	00
Mullen, Samuel, t	1	00
Mur, Ann, Cora, t	05	00

Munyan, Jeremiah, t	50	00
Nelsonville Branch, oblation	12	01
Niemann, A. H., t	7	75
Niemann, Frank, t	1	00
Niemann, Harry, t	3	00
Noble, Lulu, t	4	00
Parks, Harriet, t	7	00
Parks, Hattie, t	1	50
Perry, Joanna, t	25	00
Phillips, Wesley, t	1	00
Pleasant Valley Branch, oblation	16	34
Pratt, Alfred, t	25	00
Robert, C. E., t	50	00
Rhoades, Mary, t	10	00
Rhoades, P. Stacey, t	20	00
Rowe, Mary, t	12	00
Scharfenberg, Charles, t	1	50
Schmidt, Ida, t	10	26
Schmidt, Royal, t	12	00
Schmidt, Theressa, t	1	05
Schmidt, Anton, t	2	12
Schneider, Pearl, t	2	08
Shelton, Fred, t	3	08
Sherman, A., t	5	00
Sinnot, Anna, t	1	50
Sisler, James, t	3	05
Sisler, James, o	2	25
Skeen, Addie, t	30	00
Small, Frederick, t	25	00
Smith, Hiram K., t	10	00
Smith, J. C., t	4	00
Smith, Mrs. J. C., t	2	00
South, Angie, t	50	00
South, Joseph, t	50	00
Sparnon, Elizabeth, t	25	00
Stanley, Emery, t	05	00
Stanley, Frankie, t	05	00
Stanley, James, t	10	00
Stanley, Rosetta, t	1	75
Stanley, Velma, t	05	00
Steadman, Sr. C. A., t	1	50
Stearns, John, Effie, t	20	00
Stovell, Frank, t	1	00
Strickland, Martha, t	5	00
Vale, Lute, t	8	00
Vales Mills Branch, oblation	30	45
Vanfossen, L. D., t	25	00
Van Meter, James, t	10	00
Wallace, George, and wife, t	15	00
Ward, C. H., t	5	00
Wellston Branch, oblation	2	65
Wheat, Nathan, t	1	00
Wickline, Addie, t	2	25
Williams, Clara, t	2	60
Williams, David, t	2	50
Williams, Esther, t	2	50
Williams, Jane, t	3	00
Williams, J. B., and wife, t	10	00
Williams, Jesse J., and wife, t	35	70
Williams, John, t	6	00
Williams, Joseph, t	2	00
Williams, Mary, t	50	00
Williams, Thomas S., t	3	50
Wilson, Hannah, t	6	75
Wilson, Hannah, c	3	00
Wilson, Sylvia, t	1	50
Wife, Earl, t	5	25
Wolfe, Emma, t	1	50
Wolfe, Levy, t	4	50
Woods, Allee C., t	8	50
Woods, Edith O., t	3	00
Woods, Isaac P., t	15	00
Wren, Edith, o	10	00
Wren, Elizabeth, t	5	00
Wyatt, Minnie, t	30	00
Winship, Mary, t	50	00
Yonker, D. J., t	2	00
Total	$5,194	97

Expenditures.

Baldwin, Richard, e	$ 25	00
Baldwin, Richard, f	160	00
Becker, J. A., e	267	73
Becker, J. A., f	456	00
Booker, N. L., f	240	00
Brown, Samuel, e	15	00
Burdick, G. Leon, e	20	00
Burdick, G. Leon, f	340	00
Court expenses	16	35
Craig, James, f	180	00
Ebeling, Francis J., e	15	00
Ebeling, Francis J., f	404	00
Farnfield, J. C., e	25	00
Farnfield, J. C., f	180	00
Fry, Charles, f	380	00
Griffiths, Gomer T., e	20	00
Griffiths, Gomer T., f	408	00
Griffiths, Gomer T., ex f	50	00
Jeffers, S. J., e	5	00
Kirtland District Tent Fund, account	25	03
Lake, Abner H., e	40	00
Lake, John H., e	280	00
McConaughy, James C., f	300	00
Miller, C. Ed., e	10	00
Miller, C. Ed., f	324	00

Miller, O. R., f	60	00
Agent's expenses	64	10
Russell, R. C., e	127	00
Shupe, W. S., f	240	00
Stem, Martha, a	10	00
Tucker, D. B., t	80	00
Unionis Branch, acct	25	15
Wheeling Branch church building	137	50
Wickline, Addie, a	6	50
Winegar, H. D., e	16	00
Total	$4,962	26
Due church	$232	71

ONTARIO.

R. C. Evans, Bishop. Receipts.

The following items were reported in both the Ontario report and Toronto District report for 1911 in error:
Harry Martin	$ 5	00
Madelin Randall	5	00
Jennie Turner	4	00
Total	$ 14	00

Balance due church December 31, 1911	$ 94	97
Less error	14	00
Correct balance due church December 31, 1911	80	97
Burger, J. L., Agent	900	00
Evans, R. C., agent	2,900	00
Faulkner, James, and wife	50	00
Hewitt, B. E.	100	00
Interest	1	55
Jones, Reces	100	00
Lingre, Mrs. George	4	00
Mottashed, Charles, and wife	1	00
Nanias, Sister (estate)	100	00
O'Dell, Leslie, and wife	40	00
Pennicott, Emma	1	00
Simpson, Harry, and wife	50	00
Tyrell, J. H., agent	800	00
Temple, Harriet	11	50
Vasbinder, John, and wife	100	00
Veech, Thomas Henry	5	00
Wylie, James, and wife	5	00
Willing, Bro.	16	00
Total	$5,216	52

Expenditures.

Kelley, E. L., Bishop	$4,000	00
Moss, William, a	2	75
Agent's expenses	183	80
Total	$4,186	55
Due church	$1,029	97

Chatham District.

J. H. Tyrrell, Agent. Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1911	$109	55
Armstrong, Edward and wife, t	5	00
Atkinson, Everett and Nellie, t	11	00
Atkinson, Henry and Maggie	3	00
Andrews, John and Mary, t	15	00
Andrews, Margaret, t	1	65
Andrews, Edith, t	10	00
Andrews, Willie, t	10	00
Andrews, Jeanette, t	10	00
Andrews, Nellie, t	10	00
Arnold, Foster, t	2	00
Arnold, Minnie, t	18	00
Annett, Levi and Bliza-beth, t	10	00
Badder, Charles Wesley and Mable, t	8	00
Badder, Amos C., t	60	00
Badder, John Wesley and Maggie, t	55	75
Badder, Hannah, t	3	00
Badder, Stella, t	25	00
Badder, Thomas, Jane and Band, t	2	00
Brown, Samuel, t	13	00
Brown, May, t	1	00
Brown, Leslie, t	30	00
Brown, Gordon, t	2	35
Bristol, Clarie B., t	11	20
Brealow, Ira, t	2	00
Buck, Charles, t	2	00
Birkby, Myrtle, t	2	00
Birkby, Arthur, t	2	00
Boydington, Wellington, t	3	35
Boydington, Martha, t	1	00
Bacon, Arlo, t	1	00
Bacon, Lottie and Bortha, t	1	00
Bacon, Samuel and Maggie, t	10	00

Booth, Ellen, t	1 00
Benjamin, Ellen and Bertha, t	6 55
Clark, Howard, t	45 00
Coats, William, t	23 00
Clathworthy, Duncan, t	20 00
Coburn, Richard and Margaret, t	42 00
Coburn, Gordon, Orlow, and Elizabeth, t	20 00
Campbell, Myrtle, t	2 10
Campbell, Lawrence, t	12 30
Campbell, Elizabeth, t	1 75
Campbell, David, t	30 80
Campbell, Clyde, t	1 85
Connor, Earnest and Maria, t	1 00
Chatham District Conference, oblation	3 70
Carrier, Elizabeth, t	6 00
Dooling, James, t	86 00
Dakins, George, t	13 00
Dent, Joseph, t	1 00
Doubbs, James, t	25 00
Duba, Emma, t	4 85
Edmunds, Alexander and Bisle, t	2 00
Ellis, Alexander, t	3 00
Ellis, Tillman, t	1 00
Fletcher, Daniel, t	9 45
Gragg, Wesley and Mary, t	7 00
Gragg, Horace, t	3 75
Gibson, James and Nancy, t	7 00
Gillson, J. M., t	3 00
Green, Philetus and Fannie, t	1 50
Green, Kezia, t	3 00
Green, Mary E., t	1 00
Galbraith, John and Maggie, o	1 00
Hackett, Thomas, t	10 00
Hovles, Fannie and Bessie Baker, t	13 00
Hildreth, John, t	30 00
Hughes, Pierce and Annie, t	17 00
Hewitt, Anthony R., t	9 00
Hewitt, Joseph, t	2 35
Hewitt, William and Jane, t	73 73
Hewitt, Benjamin, t	1 00
Huston, Henry, t	50 00
Hasson, Mary, t	1 00
Jacklin, Christopher and Harriott, t	20 00
Johnston, William, and wife, t	10 00
Johnston, Alfred, and wife, t	100 00
Johnston, D. V., t	20 00
Jones, Richard, and wife, t	50 00
James, John, and wife, t	25 00
Kelley, James and Charliott, t	8 00
Kelley, Isaac and Louisa, t	3 00
Kelley, A. E., t	15 10
Kelley, Rachel, t	2 00
Kelley, Maria, t	2 00
Kimbball, Wellington, t	11 00
Kimbball, Charlotte, t	18 00
Kimbball, Charles, t	2 00
Kimbball, William, t	2 00
Leach, Emma, t	16 00
Lamont, Stewart, t	13 00
Lively, William, t	45 00
Lauber, John, t	5 00
Littlewood, Arthur, and wife, t	2 00
Leverton, Fred and Lizzie, t	50 00
Leak, Magness, t	5 00
Martin, Albert and Hattie, t	15 00
Martin, Minnie, t	10 00
McDonald, Lawrence, t	1 00
McNulty, Nellie, t	1 25
McDonald, Florence J., t	7 25
McDonald, David, t	25 00
McDonald, Maggie, t	3 00
McDonald, Ella, t	3 00
Mead, Bette, t	1 25
Moffet, Verna, t	1 00
Moffet, Alexander, t	2 00
McFadden, Melissa, t	26 00
Nash, David and Mary, t	2 00
Nevins, William, t	40 00
Outrim, Philip, t	25 00
Orr, Charlott, t	1 00
Osbourne, J. W., t	1 00
Pritchard, Marnie, t	9 50
Pritchard, James, and wife, t	25 00
Pritchard, Ivan, t	3 75
Pritchard, Vernard, t	10 00
Perritt, George, t	1 00
Perritt, William and Olive, t	50 00
Perritt, Sr. James, t	5 00
Parrott, James, t	25 00
Piper, Nancy, o	7 75
Ramsden, Zebina, t	34 50

Ramsden, Charles, t	12 00
Ramsden, Emma, t	3 00
Rowe, Winifred, t	1 00
Russell, Richard Clark, and family, t	29 65
Robinson, Josia, t	25 00
Ray, Alice, t	2 00
Roberts, Lena, t	5 00
Russell, Stanley, t	3 80
Stover, John, t	5 00
Stous, Aaron, t	16 00
Spencer, Emma, t	1 50
Sharrow, Rebecca, t	11 00
Shaw, Shelby, and wife, t	11 00
Shaw, Charles W., t	3 00
Shaw, John, t	6 00
Shaw, Pheland, t	55 00
Shaw, Agness D., t	35 50
Shaw, Francis, t	4 00
Shaw, Arthur, t	5 10
Shaw, Clarence, t	1 00
Shaw, Ernest, t	1 00
Saint John, Charles O., and wife, t	50 00
Snobelen, Sarah, t	22 63
Smart, Frederick and Elizabeth, t	9 16
Smith, Maria, t	1 00
Spencer, A., t	10 00
Schradler, John, t	4 00
Struthers, Mary, t	2 00
Snobelen, David, t	30 22
Saint John, Benjamin, t	2 00
Shields, John, t	2 00
Solway, Charles, t	10 00
Solway, William, t	10 00
Thompson, George A., t	100 00
Toles, Catherine, t	2 75
Thorpe, Elizabeth, t	25 00
Thorpe, George, and wife, t	200 00
Tedford, Lena, t	1 00
Tyrrell, James Henry and Elizabeth, t	50 00
Vince, Hattie, t	2 00
Vince, Mary A., t	3 05
Vince, Thomas, sen., t	5 00
Vince, Thomas, jr., t	10 00
Veal, Agness, t	1 00
Veal, John A., t	2 10
Vansickle, David, and wife, t	5 00
Vickers, Albert, t	25 00
Vickers, Orel, t	25 00
Vickers, Louisa, t	25 00
Walker, George and Harriott, t	8 00
Walton, Emily, t	10 00
Wilmore, Walter, and family, t	10 00
Woods, Leola, t	3 00
Woods, Richard, t	10 00
Woods, Benjamin and Daisy, t	5 00
Wismer, Theodore A., t	10 00
Wolch, William, and family, t	25 00
Yates, Mary Amella, t	3 00
Total	$2,311 25

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	$ 11 81
Brown, Emily, t	440 00
Rurt, George E., e	39 00
Davis, James, e	20 00
Evans, R. C., Bishop	800 00
Gregory, Frederick, e	10 00
Russel, R. C., f	504 00
Russell, R. C., e	49 00
Shields, John, e	20 00
Saint John, Grant, f	45 00
Total	$1,938 81
Due church	$372 44

London District.

John L. Burger, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$406 74
Armstrong, Thomas, and wife, t	10 00
Banister, James, t	10 00
Bannister, William, and wife, t	200 00
Bannister, W. S., and wife, t	50 00
Bears, Jessie, t	1 50
Bearrs, Mahlon, and wife, t	17 93
Beemer, Lizzie, t	12 00
Beemer, Maggie, t	15 00
Beemer, Elizabeth, t	5 00
Beemer, Sr. B., and son, t	10 00
Bell, R. A., and wife, t	50 00
Borbridge, A. W., and wife, t	50 00
Burch, Ida, t	3 00
Burch, S. Thomas, t	3 00
Cambridge, Clara, t	5 00
Chapman, John A., and wife, t	4 00
Cohoe, J. Herbert, t	121 70

Cornish, Elizabeth, t	10 00
Crake, M. R., t	7 72
Dueling, John, Jr., and wife, t	25 00
Else, Charlotte, t	5 00
Farthing, W. H. and wife, t	20 00
Finch, George, t	1 25
Fishleigh, Sarah, t	1 25
Gilson, Roy C., t	5 00
Gray, Alma G., t	5 00
Gray, Frank, and wife, t	10 00
Gray, Robert William, t	2 00
Gray, W. H., and wife, t	8 00
Hardey, Ethel, t	2 05
Hardey, W. A., and wife, t	50 00
Hardey, W. E., t	15 00
Harrison, Sr. John, and family, t	3 00
Henley, George H., and wife, t	22 00
Hodgson, Robert, t	10 00
Insell, Charles, t	30 00
Interest, Bank	10 40
Jenkins, William, t	5 00
Jewell, Fannie, t	3 00
Johnson, Annie, (Grandma), t	2 00
Johnson, Annie, t	11 85
Judkins, Levi, o	4 00
Julife, James, and wife, t	18 50
Klein, Alexander, and wife, t	25 00
Klein, William, t	100 00
London Branch, o	64 57
Longhurst, R. C., and wife, t	35 00
Meadowcroft, Elizabeth, f	5 00
Mottashed, J. C., and wife, t	1 00
McKerley, Clara Rachel, t	15 00
Oliver, Frank, and wife, t	2 00
Pearson, Ada, t	50 00
Pearson, Isaac, t	4 00
Pearson, Lorne O., t	50 00
Pettit, James E., and wife, t	10 00
Philippin, P. H., and wife, t	12 00
Proctor, Harriet, t	10 00
Rodwell, George, and wife, t	20 00
Sadler, Mrs. Fred, t	5 05
Schradler, Ben, t	14 00
Scldon, Mrs. Clifford, t	1 00
Skelton, Joseph, and wife, t	14 25
Small, Biljah, t	10 00
Small, Sr. Samuel, t	10 00
Smith, David, t	30 00
Smith, Amos, and family, t	10 00
Saint Thomas Branch, o	19 20
Talbot, George, and wife, t	10 00
Tinkwell, Martha, t	10 00
Vanoss, Branch, o	5 00
Veech, Lizzie, t	13 00
Waterford Branch, o	7 00
Wylie, James, and wife, t	5 00
Yerks, Mary, t	10 00
Yerks, Percy, t	20 00
Total	$1,957 56

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses	$ 14 45
Davis, William, e	20 00
Evans, R. C., Bishop	900 00
Longhurst, R. C., f	180 00
Longhurst, R. C., e	37 00
Shields, John A., f	407 00
Total	$1,558 45
Due church	399 11

Toronto District.

R. C. Evans, Bishop.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 599 68
Arthur Branch, o	6 55
Armstrong, William W., t	10 00
Andrews, Martha J., t	5 00
Arnold, Joshua	100 00
Allen, Agnes M., t	10 00
Ashbee, Maggie	17 00
Armstrong, Sarah	2 00
Arnold, Annie E., t	2 45
Bieger, D. L., t	30 00
Bates, William, and wife	50 00
Bueshelen, George, and wife	100 00
Braden, Jeanett	6 00
Barriek, Clarence	45 00
Berry, Mrs. Thomas	4 00
Beckett, George W.	5 00
Blow, Arthur, and wife	188 00
Barnhart, Royden, and wife	40 00
Barriek, Grace	7 00
Bryant, Joseph	40 00

Bricker, Charles, and wife	60 00
Boyce, Alice	2 00
Bates, Rachel and Wil-liam	100 00
Bayliss, Pearl	4 60
Brown, James, and wife.	3 00
Burley, Thomas	6 00
Bird, Henry	1 00
Burley, William	1 30
Barrick, Alvin, and wife	150 00
Barwick, Francis, and wife	2 00
Burley, Judson	3 10
Belrose, Edith	2 85
Redell, Ethel	50 00
Clavering Branch, o	5 00
Clifford, Emma	10 00
Clark, J. V., and wife.	125 00
Chillman, Emma	5 00
Cullington, Walter, and wife	15 00
Crowley, Thomas, and wife	2 00
Campbell, Thomas	12 75
Clark, Samuel	10 00
Childs, Albert	15 00
Campbell, Maggie	4 00
Cato, David, and wife	19 50
Caskie, James, and wife.	16 00
Campbell, William	10 00
Chapman, Ward	10 00
Crowley, Joseph M., and wife	20 00
Cooper, King, and wife.	15 00
Creak, Mary	20 00
Clifton, Frank	5 00
Culp, Leah	5 00
Campbell, Vera and Gladys	25 00
Cameron, D. W.	50 00
Cedar Valley Branch, o	10 30
Cross, L. W.	15 00
Clark, Ernie	16 00
Clark, Mrs. John	3 50
Campbell, Jean	8 00
Chambers, Sr. E.	2 00
Christian, J. B., and wife	50 00
Cameron, Annie	61 00
Cameron, Viola M.	3 10
Church, Mrs. John	2 00
Davisville Branch, o	75 00
Dickout, Hiram, and wife.	33 92
Derby, G. C.	5 00
Dood, George	10 00
Dobson, Robert	50 00
Dobson, J. R.	5 00
Dobson, William G.	2 00
Dodd, Thomas	30 00
Duck, William, and wife	10 00
Dudley, Charles	51 00
Dorothy, Sarah	40 00
Darby, Harry, and wife	2 00
Dobson, Robert G.	1 00
Egremont Branch, o	12 60
Eaton, Maria	9 50
Elliot, William	8 00
Ellis, Thomas G.	8 50
Farr, Charles E.	50 00
Frazier, Henry	5 00
Field, Alfred	3 00
Frazier, Henry, and wife	13 00
Fletcher, Fred, and wife	25 00
Forest, Alex., and wife	12 00
Franks, Marnie	2 50
Foreman, Emily	1 50
Field, Isabella	5 00
French, Edwin	18 00
Field, B. G.	8 00
Farrow, Alfred, and wife	15 00
Forrest, Walter	1 00
Furness, Esther	2 20
Forest, Andrew, and wife	2 00
Farrow, Martha	5 00
Goodes, Effie	27 00
Goodman, George	50 00
Gray, Frank, and wife.	12 00
Gozzard, William, and wife	5 00
Garrard, Charles T.	5 00
Griffin, George, and wife	1 00
Gerlie, James, and wife.	8 00
Grice, Annie	70 00
Goheen, George	10 00
Gigsby, William T., and wife	10 00
Gray, A. B., and wife	75 00
Gray, Thelma	1 50
Gray, Pearl	1 75
Gordon, Arthur	15 00
Gibson, Mrs. James	5 00
Hathaway, Hazel	2 50
Hamilton, Elizabeth	50 00
Hathaway, May	25 00
Humber Bay Branch, o.	23 42
Hillis, John, Jr., and wife	10 00
Hunnings, Edwin, and wife	30 00
Hannah, Charles, and wife	41 00
Hill, Elias, and wife	5 00
Hovey, Ethelbert, and wife	1 00

Harrison, Robert, and wife	5 00
Hamilton, Adam	1 00
Hill, Harry, and wife	10 00
Hay, Thomas	30 50
Howlett, Fred	14 80
Hamilton, Robbie	3 00
Hill, B. C., and wife	25 00
Humphries, Robert	75 00
Hands, William, jr.	1 00
Hepburn, James, and wife	1 00
Interest	27 49
Jordan, Perla	10 00
Jack, Charles, and wife	10 00
Johnson, William F., and wife	25 00
Johnson, James, and wife	57 00
Kelly, Henry, and wife	2 00
Kilpatrick, Matilda	14 00
Kilpatrick, Myrtle	14 00
Kearney, Flora	10 00
Kennedy, Angus	7 00
Kilpatrick, Arnold	2 00
Law, Edwin, and wife	200 00
Long, Fred, and wife	10 00
Lislee, Elbert J.	120 00
Leader, N. E., and wife	20 00
Laddlaw, Ralph G., and wife	50 00
Laird, Chester, and wife	10 00
Leader, May	3 00
Lonsway, J. H.	25 00
Life, Henry B.	7 00
Little, Francis	3 50
Lane, Elisha, and wife	8 00
Liddard, Frank	2 00
Lands, Henry H.	38 00
Long, Nathaniel, and wife	1 00
Legg, Gertrude	6 00
Leader, Walter	30 00
Leader, Ralph, and wife	30 00
Leader, Ed	10 00
LaPlant, Frank	5 00
Lake, Hattie	10 00
Lackie, Bertha	13 50
Lockyer, John	3 00
Lockhart, W. S.	5 00
Leader, Iden	16 00
Morris, John, and wife	7 00
Minor, Roland, and wife	25 00
Martin, W. A.	5 00
Martin, Harry A.	5 00
Mills, C., and wife	70 00
Mortimer, George A., and wife	15 00
Minor, Minnie	1 00
Moffat, Reginald	50 00
Murray, William A., and wife	32 00
Milligan, Eva	4 00
Mather, Mamie	5 00
Mather, Bessie	5 00
Minor, Mrs. Arthur	2 00
Miller, J. C., and wife	1 00
Mather, Thomas	20 00
Marchmont, Albert	25 00
Myres, Agnes	61 40
Morrison, James	25 00
McLean, A. F., and wife	40 00
McLean, Charles	10 00
McKibbin, Annie	6 00
McArthur, Mrs. John	25 00
McLean, A. T.	500 00
McConnell, Mary	3 00
McMurdo, Agnes	10 00
McLean, William F.	5 00
McLean, Isabella	3 00
McKibbin, John	10 00
McVey, Eliza	2 00
McLean, Samuel	20 00
McPhail, Agnes	5 00
McLean, Frank	10 00
McDonald, Alice	2 00
McMurdo, Stephen	10 00
Norris, Alfred, and wife	1 00
Noble, Harry	5 50
Noble, Golden O.	2 00
Owen Sound Branch, o	5 05
Oliver, Mary	4 00
Osbourne, Joseph R.	15 00
Oliver, Ernest, and wife	5 00
Osborn, George M., and wife	32 00
On, Richard	2 00
Orton, Frank	9 00
Prentice, Angus, and wife	100 00
Place, William, and wife	30 00
Port Blgin Branch, o	23 76
Prentice, Leslie	10 00
Parks, Harry	10 00
Phillips, James, and wife	12 25
Palling, Percy, and wife	15 00
Perrin, Parmenas E., and wife	5 00
Philpot, Thomas, and wife	21 00
Philpot, Thomas, and wife, ref. a	59 00
Phipps, Annie	8 00
Phillips, Charles	10 00

Powell, E. M.	8 44
Phillips, Matland W.	2 00
Perry, Alvin	13 50
Phillips, J. W., and wife	1 15
Perego, William T.	10 00
Peters, Lula	1 00
Quackenbush, Maud	2 00
Randall, H. R.	45 00
Ridley, S. T., and wife	7 25
Rouledge, John	3 40
Reedie, William, and wife	8 00
Redickville Branch, o	8 53
Russell, William, and wife	12 00
Rourke, S. A.	11 00
Rydale, Burford, and wife	3 00
Richardson, Herbert	10 00
Ramsden, Emma	3 00
Rhodes, Laurene	50 00
Rhodes, Joseph	10 00
Reeks, Albert	15 00
Street, Lula	10 00
Smith, W. R., and wife	15 00
Swainson, Earl	15 00
Smith, Mary	5 50
Smith, Sidney, and wife	1 00
Shrank, Oswald, and wife	10 00
Swainson, Sadie	5 00
Snell, Victoria	10 00
Stade, William and wife	10 00
Staley, Jacob H., and family	17 00
Seymour, H. J.	10 00
Snell, Lillie E.	1 00
Sager, Lottie	10 00
Shute, Sarah M.	31 00
Swainson, John, and wife	10 00
Swainson, John, jr.	2 80
Silk, Herbert, and wife	5 00
Sherwin, Lewis J., and wife	11 00
Shrank, Sr. Otto	1 00
Smith, Franklin, and wife	2 00
Smith, William	5 00
Sharpe, William, and wife	101 00
Sager, Emily	10 00
Sager, Ernest	10 00
Sage, Mrs. Myers	50 00
Sharp, C. W.	25 00
Snell, Sarah A.	10 00
Swainson, Mrs. Thomas	13 25
Taylor, J. H., and wife	50 00
Toronto Branch, o	75 59
Thomas, Frederick	10 00
Tubb, F. R., and wife	8 00
Thaler, Mrs. David	105 00
Thorge, George, and wife	13 00
Travers, Alex.	5 00
Trickle, George	5 00
Vary, Louisa	4 00
Whiteman, James, and wife	13 00
Wale, Walter C.	3 00
Warton Branch, o	14 05
Washington, George, and wife	22 50
Wood, Margaret E.	5 00
Whitehead, John T., and wife	50 00
Whitehead, Robert, and wife	5 00
Whitworth, George, and wife	400 00
Wilson, Susan	40 00
Willacott, Minnie	1 00
Williams, Joseph T., and wife	25 00
Ware, Martin, and wife	10 00
Watson, James	5 00
Waters, Frank	1 00
Wade, Walter	12 00
Waldman, William, and wife	20 00
Wilson, Mary	6 00
Wilson, Hugh	25 00
Wilson, William	11 00
Whitehead, Merl	75 00
Witt, Arthur, and wife	6 00
Wassman, William	5 00
Whittaker, L.	1 00
Young, Harry P.	10 00
Young, Lillie	65 00
Total	$6,913 57

Expenditures.
Bvans, R. C., f	$324 00
Bvans, R. C., e	190 00
Bvans, R. C., Bishop, On-ario	2,000 00
Bills, W. D.	20 00
Poss, S. O., f	216 00
Poss, S. O., e	10 00
Gillespie, G.	20 00
Gregory, Frederick, e	70 00
Gregory, Alice, f	408 00
McCarthy, William, a	8 50
Norris, J. O., a	17 00
Philpot, Thomas, a	59 00
Prock, James, e	135 00
Pycock, f	280 00
Sheridan, Sister, a	4 00
Sanderson, Sister, a	4 50
Saint John, Grant, f	384 00
Saint John, Grant, e	45 00

Smith, F. A., f	480 00
Thompson, J. T., f	180 00
Thompson, J. T., e	65 00
Tomlinson, G. C., f	180 00
Tubb, F. R., a	30 00
Agent's expenses	82 70
Total	$6,112 81
Due church	800 76

OKLAHOMA.

Eastern and Central District.

Ellis Short, Bishop.

Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911
Almgren, C. W.	$379 23
Broughton, E. T.	10 00
Broughton, Flora	2 00
Bly, Delcie	15 00
Berry, T. N.	4 00
Bradley, Sarah C.	5 00
Blackwell, Sarah	2 00
Blackwell, Nice	6 00
Beck, Amanda	25 00
Bussell, Sr. S. B.	9 00
Boren, J. H., and wife	300 00
Baker, Estella	5 00
Briggs, Nancy	10 00
Brannon, J. P.	5 00
Brannon, W. O.	1 00
Bowers, B. M., and wife	7 50
Bailey, Earl D.	5 00
Comer, F. M., and wife	120 00
Chrisman, Charles	19 50
Cummings, G. W.	10 00
A sister	5 00
Dalby, H. L.	105 47
Dalby, Dora	18 00
Dobbs, Foka	2 00
Dillon, Edna	50 00
Erwin, Blam A.	40 50
Gooch, A. M.	40 00
Gooch, W. O.	20 00
Gooch, Lloyd	11 00
Gooch, J. B.	25 00
Gooch, Cordie	1 00
Goss, Salem	10 00
Goss, Ben	5 00
Coleman, Lither	5 00
Harder, Angie	2 10
Hicks, Anna	1 00
Hughes, Sr. P. A.	2 00
Hogue, Mrs. Ralph	5 00
Hampton, W. H.	2 00
Hooks, Mrs. Baxter	2 00
Hixon, B. R., and family	20 00
Hunter, H. Lee, and wife	13 00
Hattenhauer, Sarah	7 00
Hawthorn, Elv	5 00
Hudson, J. W.	2 00
Jones, Gussie	2 50
James, O. L., and wife	25 00
Jackson, J. L.	5 00
Kelsey, James B.	4 05
Kelsey, Joseph E.	45 00
Kelsey, Ora	5 00
Kelso, S. N.	10 00
Kelso, Ora	5 00
Kanady, Bertha	2 50
Kause, Hettie E.	5 00
Kean, Mrs. E. J.	5 00
Manning, Wiley, and Riley	5 50
Manning, Thomas L.	90 00
Mills, Frank, and wife	25 00
Moore, L. S., and wife	6 00
Miami church rent	44 45
Moore, Sr. J. S.	10 00
Miami house rent	32 00
McVester, Mollie	1 00
McKinnon, Josie	18 00
McMurray, Janie	35 00
Newland, W. L.	5 00
North, Frank, and Sarah	2 00
North, Mrs. S. E.	3 00
Nelson, Sr. E. C.	8 00
Parshall, J. W.	20 00
Parshall, Sr.	10 00
Parshall, Lillie	5 00
Parshall, Mary	20 00
Powell, A. M.	1 00
Pyle, Sr. E.	25 00
Pago, Minnie	25 00
Reed, Flora	2 00
Rouden, Fannie	1 00
Robinson, W. N., and wife	25 00
Stephens, J. C., and wife	52 50
Simmons, F. S.	5 00
Shepherd, C. F., and wife	9 00
Thomas, W. H.	50 00
Wooten, A. L.	10 50
Waits, S. P.	1 45
Wagner Branch	2 50
Wells, Sr. L. B.	2 50
Waltz, Florence	15 00
Waltz, Florence	10 00
Williams, Dan, o	3 00
Yates, E. D., e	30 00
Total	$2,544 46

Expenditures.
Agent's expenses	$ 20 00
Aylor, William (1911), e	10 00
Aylor, William (1912), e	10 00
Bailey, J. W. A., f	320 00
Hogue, William, a	10 00
Erwin, B. A. f.	310 00
Miami house tax	50 00
Maloney, R. M., f	424 00
Shepard, T. J., e	351 00
Simmons, T. M. (1911) e	3 00
Simmons, Jesse M., f	104 00
Yates, J. B., f	350 00
Yates, J. A., e	10 00
Total	$2,001 00
Due church	543 46

Western District.

Hubert Case, Agent.

Receipts.
Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911
Box, Zorah, t	$ 33 92
Brown, Vesta, t	5 00
Brown, Elma, t	1 50
Bly, A. J., and wife, t.	4 80
Bliss, John L., t	10 00
Bullinger, Grace, t	5 00
Bartels, Mary, t	5 00
Cooper, Joseph, and wife, t	10 00
Craven, Alice J., t	15 50
Craven, E. S., t	1 15
Craven, C. C., t	85 00
Cheney, W. W., t	3 15
Cheney, G. I., and wife, t	3 00
Channel, Jessie, t	50 00
Crandall, J. E., and wife, t	10 00
Carter, S. G., and wife, t	5 00
Doggett, H. L., t	16 75
Dowers, Onal, t	5 00
Dowers, Mrs. A. A., t	5 00
Downing, Earl V., t	1 00
Durley, Viola, t	1 00
Edwards, L. N., and wife, t	10 00
Fisher, Mary, t	3 50
Gamet, W. S., and wife, t	20 00
Garmatz, John, t	10 00
Hain, David, and wife, t.	41 10
Hershey, Henry, t	5 00
Kelley, D. L., Bishop	25 00
Lester, J. H., t	6 25
McGeorge, T. L., and wife, t	10 00
Moldrup, Morris, and wife, t	25 00
McCullough, J. E., and wife, t	2 00
Nunley, T. J., and wife, t	22 50
Owen, B. A., and wife, t	5 00
Plain, Walter, and wife, t	18 00
Potts, Mary, t	5 00
Rowland, Rex R., t	2 50
Stuart, Cameron, and wife, t	20 00
Smith, Clyde, and wife, t	100 00
Sorden, L. M., and wife, t	50 00
Steele, George M., and wife, t	10 00
Sprague, Mrs E., t	7 00
Treaney, J. E., and wife, t	10 00
Treaney, T. C., and wife, t	50 00
Trego, A. V., and wife, t	20 00
Taylor, M. A., t	15 00
Vredenburg, Grace M., t.	50 00
Van Valkenburg, J. L., and wife, t	25 00
Williams, H. G., and wife, t	65 00
Total	$770 47

Expenditures.
Case, Hubert, f	$530 00
Case, Hubert, e	28 25
Cook, Phillip, Indian Inter-preter	50 00
Janes, Joseph, a	3 00
Maloney, R. M., f	31 25
Maloney, R. M., e	5 00
Smith, Edgar H., e	7 50
Yates, J. B., t	44 80
Yates, J. B., e	5 00
Agent's expenses	7 88
Total	$712 68
Due church	63 70

OREGON.

Eastern District.

A. J. Moore, Agent.

Receipts.
Austin, N. E., and Lucy	$ 01 00
Cuendet, Henry	17 00
Dunlap, Nettie	5 00
Dums, Mollie	29 50

"Sandhedens Banner."

Table with financial entries for Peter Muceus, Agent. Receipts: Subscriptions $47.01, Donation 267.42, Total $314.43. Expenditures: Balance due agent Decem-ber 31, 1911 $11.13, Printing including old jobs 195.60, Postage 21.50, Wrappers, writing mate-rials, etc. 3.50, Note to the printer 74.32, Total $306.05, Due church 8.38.

SOCIETY ISLANDS MIS-SION.

Table with financial entries for Tetaku a Moeava, Agent. Receipts: Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 $99.71, Araiauti, t 1.00, Atofora, t 4.90, Avatoru Branch, Sisters 7.30, Avatoru Branch, o 25.20, Gidiana, t 30, Hiringa, t 40, Hikitiai, t 1.50, Hiuoro, t 4.30, Huru, Agent, t 44.60, Heberona Branch, o 3.22, Kapuroro, t 2.00, Kaiokau, t 4.00, Kaogo, t 1.30, Lake, Sr. C. H., t 50, Matahira, t 4.00, Maave a Pou, t 4.80, Mata a Helu, t 60, Mareira, t 1.00, Mahuru, t 3.00, Maoni, Agent, Niau 102.07, Mataungu, t 1.00, Makatea Branch, Christ-mas Offering 10.00, Niau Branch, Christmas O 23.00, Peretel, t 2.00, Pala a Mahuru, t 2.50, Pinga, t 1.00, Paho, Agent 25.00, Raia, t 1.00, Rongotama, t 7.00, Rua no Takoplo Tikehau 35.00, Teuivaera, t 2.00, Tupu, loan returned 21.00, Tupu, t 1.00, Tarona, Christmas O 7.76, Tarona, Sisters, o 20.99, Tikehau Branch, o 25.50, Tubuai, o 5.91, Tamanaha, t 2.00, Taahoa, t 8.00, Tiona a sister 1.00, Tiona Branch, o 3.30, Tearli oteha 2.00, Tetaku, agent 383.70, Tahuka, t 2.00, Teroromate, t 1.40, Tepongi 1.00, Teaua 5.91, Takapoto Branch, o 10.00, Turatahi M., t 2.00, Tapairu, t 3.50, Tehel, t 4.50, Turatahi nahai, t 1.00, Taarora, agent, t 25.30, Teahi, t 2.00, Tahiri 1.20, Tetuarere 1.20, Tetua 1.00, Temata 8.00, Teina 3.00, Tiputa Branch, o 15.00, Teahu 1.00, Teupoo and Taarora, o 2.80, Tanenui 1.00, Tuamea 5.00, Tanetuporo, t 4.88, Tane a Pou, agent 15.00, Tane a Pou, t 55.00, Tane a tetai, t 50, Teahi, t 50, Tarohua, t 2.00, Tu, t 6.00, Torohua, t 1.00, Tekahu, t 1.00, Tekarohi, t 2.00, Tiputa Branch, Christ-mas, O 10.60, Temarei, agent, Taenga 49.80, Vaetua, t 2.00.

Receipts from Printing Work .107 53 Total $1,260 08

Table with financial entries for Expenditures. Items include: Hiti a Temanava, e 3.00, Haorea, loan 5.00, Kehauri, e 6.50, Mafihira 3.00, Take hu, loan 1.00, Temamu, e 1.00, Teuira, e 2.00, Tarula, e 2.00, Tiona, real estate ex-penses 14.80, Tupotahi 7.60, Tefau 1.30, Taia, loan 3.00, Translation Work 1.90, Tai horapii (Captain Manureva) 24.00, Tuamea 2.00, Tai, e 5.00, Tarau 3.00, Mrs. H. W. Savage, f 144.39, H. W. Savage, e 48.38, Mrs. H. W. Savage, e 2.00, C. H. Lake and wife, f 247.37, J. Chas. May and wife 317.13, J. Chas. May, e 42.00, J. Chas. May, and family, e 12.00, Bishop's agent expense 1.25, Books for Library 9.78, Water Barrels for Mission House, Tiona 5.20, Incidentals, Carbide for lantern, duty, freight on goods, etc. 30.52, Kitchen utensils 4.70, Medicine fund 10.98, Mission duty on goods 12.33, Paint for Missionary House 28.34, Bedroom furnishings 12.67, Missionary House for fence 33.20, Missionary House, water tax 12.32, Postage 8.30, Standard Publishing Co. 10.65, Stationery, ink, typewriter, ribbons, etc. 15.75, Expenditures for printing work 112.33, Total $1,207 67, Due church 52.41.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS MISSION.

Report of Bishop's Agent of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Table with financial entries for Receipts for 1910. Manihi Branch: Hiringa 1.35, Teaua 2.30, Hotu 9.00, Vaiari 4.70, Ngaki 6.80, Teiotetua 3.00, Marutake 1.20, Punau 2.40, Teatotea 2.00, Tafautuata 1.00, Tekopu 1.50, Tapea 5.00, Tehina 5.00, Tamariki 3.30, Tematal 4.80, Tutapu 2.00, Tengabe 1.00, Mauroto 1.00, Maul 1.00, Hatu a Matum of Tikehau 1.00, Mahara 3.00, Manaraha 1.00, Puahel 1.40, Manurahel 2.00, Teariki 6.00, Maave 2.00, Pala 350.00, Terika 2.00, Avatoru Branch: Taihia 2.40, Hiro 1.40, Petuera 1.00, Pala 1.65, Ilea 1.40, Aha 2.00, Aehotahiri 1.00, TeMaui 4.00.

Table with financial entries for Tikehau Branch. Items include: Tetua a Pua 49.10, Temateu 7.20, Hotu a Matuu 11.60, Hoarau 3.00, Rua 5.20, Teua 2.00, Moohono 1.20, Mahia 2.00, Tehu 2.00, Tekonea 1.80, Teroro 2.00, Helima 1.00, Rere 5.20, Taviricia 1.00, Hitiemanava 16.65, Pahoa 2.00, Maevatua 1.00, Tearli 7.00, Tahiri 2.00, Aehi 1.00, Teipo 6.00, Tetara 1.00.

Table with financial entries for Niau Branch. Items include: Putahel 9.00, Bohemiti 1.40, Teuahi 1.00, Teuahi 2.00, Taelua 1.00, Ieremia 1.00, Unu 7.00, Temamu 2.00, Matarai 1.00, Teautahel 1.00, Teraiefaa 2.80, Ruta 1.00, Tehani 1.00, Tefatu 4.00, Ahunui 4.00.

Table with financial entries for Apataki Branch. Items include: Tanetehina 10.00, Tekanachau 10.00.

Table with financial entries for Tiputa Branch. Items include: Teuhi 2.48, Tevahinetuihau 1.00, Tutohu 1.00, Tetoa 15, Tapora 1.00, Teuata 1.00, Teuhui 1.00, Temata 6.00, Tearitahel 1.00, Teupoo 1.00, Iiunua a Nui 3.00, Tekahu 2.00, Hotu, agent of Pakarava Division 52.00, Tetai, agent of Kaukura District 23.80, Rua, agent of Tikehau 5.70.

Offerings to the Church and the United Order of Enoch 1910.

Table with financial entries for Sunday school rally of the Mission at Manihi, April 13, 1910 $21.40. Sunday school gifts at Rairoa, December 25, 1910, as follows: Tupita Branch 6.50, Avatoru Branch 6.40, Manihi Branch 0.30, Pakarua Branch 4.00, Tarona Branch 4.00, Tikehau Branch 1.00, Niau Branch 2.00, Makatea Branch 3.00, Money Given to help the Order of Enoch: Kaleho of Manihi 100.00, Nuihau of Makatea 1.00, Maro of Makatea 1.00, Oriori of Makatea 1.00, Tera of Makatea 1.00, Tupu of Makatea 1.00, Tetua a Pua of Tikehau 1.00, Helima of Tikehau 1.00, Mochohno of Tikehau 1.00, Paahotu of Tikehau 1.00, Hiti of Niau 1.00, Total $368.94.

Table with financial entries for Receipts of 1911. Manihi Branch: Tarava $2.50, Tetua 5.06, Tekahukura 3.45, Ngaki 9.80, Vaiari 5.60, Metuaro 7.00, Teiotetua 4.40, Marerenui 9.00, Puahel 20.00.

Table with financial entries for Tafautuata. Items include: Tehina 3.50, Tematal 1.00, Tahuri 2.32, Rai 2.00, Tearli 4.70, Karoariki 1.30, Mauroto 5.50, Tahui 5.00, Teatotea 2.50, Punau 2.20, Tamariki 1.50, Raunua 7.00, Manihi Branch: Maba 1.10, Kava 1.00, Teatuhukura 1.00, Arirau 1.00, Ton 1.00, Tahua 9.00.

Table with financial entries for Taenga Branch. Items include: Tuko a Tuaira 2.00, Tehihiko a Tuahine 10.20, Kirirau a Kirirau 2.00, Total $99.37.

Sunday school rally at Niau, April 12, 1911, Gifts as follows:

Table with financial entries for Niau Branch: Niau Branch $13.40, Manihi Branch 0.00, Takapoto Branch 1.50, Tiputa Branch 1.00, Kaukura Branch 1.70, Apataki Branch 1.00, Tikehau Branch 1.30, Taenga 4.40, Takarua 1.00, Makatea 1.80, Total $29.10.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

South Dakota District.

Table with financial entries for B. E. Willard, Agent. Receipts: Aldridge, Catherine $5.00, King, Mary, A., t 5.00, Mosher, Nellie t 10.00, Turner, Anna M., t 5.00, Willard, Ervin B., t 13.00, Total $38.00.

Table with financial entries for Expenditures. Kelley, E. L., bishop $38.00.

TEXAS.

Central District.

Table with financial entries for J. M. Nunley, Agent. Receipts: Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 $38.97, Allen, John G. and wife 6.50, Belcher, Cornelia F. 10.00, Belcher, Georgia Lee 10.00, Dotson, Mollie A. 2.00, Dotson, Samuel L. 10.00, Drosche, Mary Nola 1.00, Drosche, Conney 0.05, Drosche, Charles H. 3.00, Drosche, Mary 1.00, Drosche, Martha 1.00, Drosche, Gerhard 1.25, Drosche, Rebecca 1.00, Drosche, Johnnie 2.00, Dunnabont, Minnie 1.00, Dotson, Harry B. 5.00, Franklin, Amelia 2.25, Gough, Frank C. 1.00, Goodson, Rufus J. 1.00, Hobbs, John T. 10.00, Hollis, Mary 5.00, Hay, Sallie 2.50, Hay, Samuel R. 25.00, Hill, Ella 6.00, Higginbotham, David B. 5.00, Hartman, Elias W. 25.00, Hobbs, Nancy 5.00, Hay, Vida 5.00, Hay, Ella 5.00, James, Frank A., and wife 2.50, Joslin, Walter S. 6.00, Lloyd, Jerry 10.00, McAlister, Vick A. 5.00, Norcross, Aaron 5.00, Norcross, Seleta 1.00, Nunley, John M. 5.20, Nunley, Ethel 5.50, Pressley, Rena A. 1.00, Sherrill, Tommie 2.25, Spicer, Benjamin F. 5.00.

Spicer, John A. ....	5 00
Standefor, Walter R. ....	2 00
Schuster, Carl E. ....	31 40
Spence, Charles Wesley ....	5 00
Schuster, William A. ....	5 00
Schuster, Carl Augusta ....	11 00
Spiker, Roland L. ....	20 00
Spies, Virginia H. ....	3 00
Van Cleave, Lena L. ....	5 00
Total .....	$302 17

Expenditures.
Agent's expenses .....	$ 13 55
Palmer, David S., f .....	50 00
Renfro, B. F., f .....	103 00
Total .....	$166 55
Due church .....	135 62

Northwestern District.

S. W. Simmons, Agent.

Receipts.

Bennett, Orton .....	$ 5 00
Harper, Dora A. ....	5 00
Simmer, Ira .....	15 00
Total .....	$ 25 00
Expenditures.
Simmons, S. W., f .....	$ 25 00

Southwestern District.

D. S. Palmer, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 .....	$ 19 20
Adams, Ollif .....	1 50
Adams, Bwing .....	1 75
Albright, Etie .....	1 20
Baccus, Lizzie .....	1 50
Davenport, Jane .....	4 00
Dorow, Maude .....	7 80
Forester, J., and wife .....	30 00
Gifford, Ruth .....	3 00
Hay, V. E., .....	2 10
Hodges, Exie .....	20 00
Hodges, Sr. F. .....	0 00
Hodges, Vernon .....	9 00
Hodges, Veroy .....	65
Hodges, Minnie .....	11 65
Johnson, O. D. ....	9 00
Langford, Mary .....	25 00
Larman, Harriett .....	5 00
Larman, Katie .....	5 00
McWhorter, James .....	9 75
North, W. G. ....	20 00
Neal, Elma .....	7 30
Nunley, John .....	50 00
Paulger, W. H., and wife .....	40 00
Pike, Blige .....	25 75
Palmer, D. S. ....	30 00
Rodgers, Pauline L. ....	22 00
Rodgers, Monroe, and wife .....	25 00
Secret, Willie .....	1 00
Secret, Duila .....	50
Secret, Alvis C. ....	1 00
Smart, Leona .....	7 00
Wallas, Sr. W. G. ....	7 00
Total .....	$ 404 15

Expenditures.

Davenport, Jane, a .....	$ 26 25
Harp, John, e .....	44 25
Harp, John, f .....	160 00
Mannering, W. H., f .....	140 00
Morgan, J. W., e .....	19 55
Wight, L. L., e .....	5 00
Total .....	$ 302 05
Due church .....	12 10

UTAH.

Utah District.

G. J. S. Abels, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 .....	$138 72
Abels, Gerard, S. o. ....	10 00
Bowldige, Minnie, t .....	70 00
Cameron, C. A., t .....	8 50
Carter, Jane, t .....	4 00
Carlson, Ellen, t .....	17 75

Coy, Sarah, t .....	15 00
Coleman, Anna, t .....	15 00
Condit, Ida, t .....	4 00
Condit, Amanda, t .....	1 00
Cox, John, o .....	1 50
Davis, Edward M., .....	1 00
Dykens, Pauline, o .....	50
Pahrni, William J. and Mira, t .....	10 00
Gowell, Lillian, t .....	50
Garns, William and Johanna M. ....	8 00
Garns, William and Johanna M., o .....	1 25
Gardner, Lorenzo, t .....	15 00
Hedlund, John E., t .....	30 00
Hedellus, Carl, o .....	2 50
Hall, John, o .....	1 00
Hall, Anna, t .....	1 75
Hall, Anna, o .....	1 00
Jones, Eliza M., t .....	25 00
Johnson, Ola, t .....	1 00
Kinghorn, Ellen, o .....	2 50
Koig, Nettie A., o .....	3 15
Logan Saints, oblation .....	30 00
Larsen, Mary C., t .....	5 00
Laudie, Margaret B., t .....	25 00
Lorenson, Hans, t .....	5 00
Lorenson, Hans C., t .....	5 00
Lorenson, Delbert, t .....	2 00
Marriott, Joseph, o .....	10 00
Nazer, Edward, t .....	6 00
Newman, Henry A., t .....	10 00
Nowak, Fred I., t .....	1 00
Nelson, Caroline, t .....	11 70
Ogden Branch, oblation .....	3 95
Provo Branch, oblation .....	50
Pettit, Ezra, o .....	8 00
Pettit, Jane M., o .....	50
Pettit, Jane M., t .....	20 50
Richard, E. T., t .....	5 25
Ross, J. B., o .....	10 00
Rogers, Keth, o .....	1 00
Richard, Margaret, ob-lation .....	31 74
Salt Lake Branch, ob-lation .....	76 50
Smurthwaite, C. A., o .....	1 00
Smith, Mary, t .....	200 00
Stubbart, J. M., t .....	50
Sister, A. O. ....	1 00
Thomas, Ann, t .....	18 00
Thomas, Lavina, t .....	31 00
Winkworth, Wm. E., sen. and Susan .....	6 50
Winkworth, Wm. E., sen. and Susan .....	3 85
Warburton, Emma, o .....	1 00
Wilson, Jefferson D., o .....	1 50
Walker, Sr. M., o .....	5 25
Woodhead, George, and wife, o .....	2 00
Woodhead, George, and wife, t .....	5 00
Wardle, Jas. and Mary, t .....	25 00
Total .....	$959 36

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses .....	$ 45 10
Bullard, Richard, Bishop, e .....	20 00
Christensen, J. C., e .....	5 00
Chase, A. M., e .....	39 40
Chase, Charles, e .....	5 00
Chas. A. M., f .....	59 88
Julia Pitzenhouser, a .....	5 00
Gowell, M. F., f .....	197 64
Ivan Richards, a .....	5 00
Gowell, M. F., e .....	25 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop (for special funds) .....	70 45
Mission Auto, e .....	19 62
Newton, William, e .....	10 00
Ruston, J. W., e .....	10 00
Salt Lake City Branch, e .....	98 85
Vanderwood, J. E., f .....	20 00
Vanderwood, J. E., e .....	7 00
Total .....	$642 44
Due church .....	316 92

VIRGINIA.

New Hope District.

P. P. Starke, Agent.

Receipts.

Bowman, N. ....	$ 75 00
Coffman, Ina .....	3 65
Coffman, Maggie S. ....	1 00
Starke, P. P. ....	15 00
Total .....	$ 94 65
Expenditures.
Kelley, E. L., bishop .....	$ 94 65

WASHINGTON.

Seattle and British Columbia District.

Frank Holmes, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 .....	$1,287 22
Berringer, Jacob, and wife .....	1 00
Beal, Harley W. ....	6 00
Butterfield, Jessie .....	50
Crum, Samuel .....	8 35
Fisher, Lula .....	1 00
Kinghorn, S., and wife .....	15 45
Paris, Mrs. J. D. ....	6 00
Quigley, Mrs. D. F. ....	4 00
Rhodes, Leonard .....	22 00
Ward, Jessie J. ....	10 00
Ward, Ella .....	1 00
Total .....	$1,362 52

Expenditures.

Johnson, William, f .....	$115 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop .....	900 00
Thorburn, George, e .....	40 00
Willey, Mrs. C. E., f .....	81 00
Agent's expenses .....	87
To William Johnson, agent 207 87 .....	87
Total .....	$1,344 74
Due church .....	17 78

Seattle and British Columbia District.

Wm. Johnson, Agent.

Receipts.

From former agent .....	$207 87
Aid Society, Centralia, t .....	5 00
Broadway, R., t .....	5 00
Berringer, J., and wife, t .....	20 00
Briggs, Henrietta, t .....	2 00
Burnet, B., t .....	1 00
Butterfield, Thomas, and wife, t .....	15 00
Crandall, Annis, t .....	8 25
Crum, Samuel, o .....	5 00
Crum, Mrs., t .....	3 50
Cox, Mrs., t .....	2 50
Cox, Iris, t .....	50
Clark, Charlie, t .....	1 15
Corliss, Bro., t .....	20 00
Drier, Ferdinand, t .....	1 00
David, D. W. R., and wife, o .....	5 00
Davis, Gertie, t .....	8 50
Dancer, Anna, t .....	10 00
Dunlap, May, t .....	8 00
Emslie, Irene, t .....	2 00
Emslie, William, t .....	36 00
Emslie, David, and wife, t .....	10 00
Ervey, Margaret, t .....	2 00
Fisher, t .....	10 00
Good, Melissa, t .....	10 00
Green, Margaret, t .....	10 00
Hartnell, John, t .....	400 00
Hartnell, Richard, and wife, t .....	100 00
Harris, Amy, t .....	5 50
Hastings, Agnes, F., t .....	10 00
Headling, Norris, t .....	1 50
Holman, Bertha, t .....	60
Johnson, William, and wife, t .....	10 00
Kinghorn, Samuel, and wife, t .....	13 50
Matson, Ben, t .....	15 00
Mercer, Sr. M., o .....	15 00
McGuire, Robert, t .....	100 00
McMullen, George, and wife, t .....	7 00
McMullen, Isaac, and wife, t .....	12 00
Nicholson, B., t .....	4 50
Oliver, Sr. C. F., t .....	7 20
Phipps, Sr., t .....	11 00
Phipps, Lee, t .....	80
Peacock, Anna, t .....	20 00
Plumb, P. T., and wife, t .....	6 00
Premo, May, t .....	2 10
Premo, Lillian B., t .....	2 40
Premo, Emma, t .....	20 00
Rainey, Gertrude, t .....	100 00
Rhodes, Leonard S., t .....	55 75
Scott, Sr. A. J., t .....	50 00
Scott, Cecll, t .....	60
Scott, Marguerite, t .....	25
Stanton, Mira, t .....	5 00
Sanders, John, t .....	5 00
Smith, G. W., t .....	1 00
Smith, Alice, t .....	50 00
Stade, Henry, and wife, o .....	20 00
Vater, William H., t .....	5 00
Ward, Jesse J., t .....	17 60

Ward, John, and wife, t .....	2 00
Ward, Hattie, t .....	1 50
Wilson, Lena, t .....	5 00
Wells, George .....	50 00
Williams, Agnes, t .....	7 00

Total .....

Expenditures.

Agent's expenses .....	$ 16 87
Johnson, William, f .....	314 00
Johnson, William, e .....	15 00
Kelley, E. L., bishop .....	400 00
Macgregor, Daniel, f .....	160 00
Macgregor, Daniel, e .....	18 00
Plumb, P. T., e .....	17 00
Premo, Parley, e .....	6 00
Sheehy, F. M., e .....	15 00
Stillman, Louise, a .....	20 00
Total .....	$981 87
Due church .....	$598 50

Spokane District.

W. W. Fordham, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911 .....	$385 22
Allen, Mary B. ....	16 00
Allen, Thomas L. ....	15 00
Bell, James B., and wife 131 25 .....	131 25
Benson, Zora L. ....	6 50
Birdsell, William H., and wife, o .....	2 00
Brett, Ella F. ....	5 00
Brett, Leah C. ....	1 00
Brett, George R. ....	15 00
Buchanan, Mary M. ....	5 00
Butler, Clarence A., o .....	2 00
Clark, Clara V. ....	5 00
Clark, George, and wife, o .....	25
Clark, George, and wife, o .....	5 00
Clark, Sarah .....	25 00
Cleary, Lettie .....	5 00
Connett, Louis J. ....	2 50
Columbia River Saints, o .....	4 00
Davis, Corda .....	30 00
Fels, Sophrona .....	11 25
Fauds, Charles G. ....	50
Friends, o .....	7 75
Fry, Harry S., and wife 13 50 .....	13 50
Gilmore, A. A., and wife 5 00 .....	5 00
Gilmore, Maud and Pearl .....	5 00
Gunter, Alta E. ....	8 75
Gunter, Sarah F. ....	2 00
Gunter, Vernon L. ....	20 00
Harper, Lucinda .....	2 50
Harper, Sterling P., and wife .....	1 10
Harp, William M., and wife .....	45 05
Harris, Eva .....	8 00
Harris, Mina .....	5 75
Hansen, Hans P. and Donna M. ....	20 00
Hoisington, Frank, and wife .....	20 00
Holmes, Aimee D. ....	55 00
Holmes, Lawrence E. ....	100 00
Hooker, Sarah F. ....	50 00
Hower, J. Oscar and B. M., o .....	1 00
Jenkins, Hyrum P., and wife, o .....	1 00
Kellum, Ada .....	25 00
Kennedy, Joseph W., and wife .....	8 00
Lane, Edwin H., and wife .....	1 00
Martin, Jerome W. ....	18 30
McDote, Dana S., and wife .....	90 05
McDole, Robert A. ....	15 00
McKim, Ida .....	2 00
Miller, Jeremiah .....	12 00
Nice, Alice I. ....	5 00
Oblation, Spokane, Wash-ington Branch .....	49 86
Oblation, Sagle, Idaho Branch .....	15 53
Oblation, Milton, Oregon, Branch .....	55
Olney, John C., and wife 20 00 .....	20 00
Oman, R. D., and wife 20 00 .....	20 00
Owen, William R. ....	5 00
Osborn, Ora P., and wife 14 50 .....	14 50
Patrick, Edward, and wife .....	9 50
Peterson, Oscar R., and wife .....	5 00
Place, Albert, and wife .....	4 00
Powell, Nathan, and wife 5 00 .....	5 00
Richards, Ewan .....	126 50
Rommel, Bessie A. ....	5 00
Schmuck, Bugenia .....	4 00
Sills, Lake and Hattie .....	5 00
Smith, John W. and Anna .....	5 00
Summers, Mary .....	13 00
Tomlinson, Jane .....	11 50
Tomlinson, Mary .....	10 00

Tomlinson, Mary C. ....	50
Thompson, James F., and wife, o	1 00
Townsend, Charles N. ....	1 85
Turnbow, Benjamin R. ....	75 00
Turnbow, John B. ....	7 00
Turnbow, John B., and wife	30 00
Turnbull, Mary Jane ....	10 00
Turnbull, Oliver ....	10 00
Turnbull, Phoebe ....	5 00
Twillegear, Henry, o	50
Whiting, Charles and wife, .....	1 00
Wilson, Joseph L. ....	5 00
Williams, Frederick ....	30 00
Winegar, James, and wife, o	5 00
Winegar, James and Clara, .....	100 00
Wing, Henry ....	2 00
Wright, Raymond L., and wife	10 00

Total .....$1,838 96

Expenditures.

Boyce, Thresa, a	$ 85 95
Case, Oscar, f	440 00
Case, Oscar, e	27 00
Fordham, W. W., e	40 50
Hart, Anna, a	1 00
Keeler, B. f	80 00
Layland, A. J., f	384 00
Premo, P. W., f	75 00
Plumb, P. T., f	408 00
Inurance	4 30
Agent's expenses	6 00

Total .....$1,551 75
Due church .....$ 287 21

WEST VIRGINIA.

West Virginia District.

B. Beall, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 45 30
Beall, Mary J.	1 55
Beall, Charles M.	2 50
Beall, Florence R.	2 50
Beall, Baronet	5 00
Carpenter, Mary B.	1 00
Cottrill, Joanna	1 00
Callihan, S. S., and wife.	10 00
Cottrill, Elden	50
Collins, Dolly	50
Cottrill, Nellie	50
Collection	11 17
Dotson, Clara	50
Griffith, Madge	2 00
Griffith, Mary	1 10
Griffith, Mabel	1 00
Griffith, Mildred	1 40
Johnson, Harry G., and wife	37 50
Kelley, Lizzie	2 00
Lisnon, Mary A.	1 00
Ruby, C. G.	10 00
Rush, W. E.	15 00
Rush, Herman E.	1 00
Ross, Joe B.	1 00
Ross, Willa A.	1 00
Smith, Thomas	2 00
Scott, Alice	1 00

Shinn, Frank L. ....	5 00
Shinn, Darrell	1 00
Shinn, Lyle	1 00
Shinn, Emma R.	3 00
Wadsworth, B. B.	5 00
Williams, Effie G.	1 00
Williams, Luchinda	5 00

Total .....$180 02

Expenditures.

Brown, Samuel, e	$ 18 50
Crabtree, Cora, a	43 00
Moore, John, a	5 00
Richards, Ida B., a	70 00
Welch, E. B., f	15 00
Exchange	05
To F. L. Shinn, agent	28 47

Total .....$180 02

West Virginia District.

F. L. Shinn, Agent.

Receipts.

From B. Beall, former agent	$ 28 47
Conley, Elizabeth J.	5 00
Hammond, Earl G.	1 30
Leason, Mary Jane	2 00
Rush, W. B., and wife.	2 00
Shinn, Francis L., and wife	50 00
Saunders, Sr. Bennett	1 00
Wadsworth, Boyd B., and wife	50 00

Total .....$139 77

Expenditures.

Crabtree, Cora, a	$10 00
McConnaughy, James C., e	10 00
Richards, Ida B., a	20 00
Shinn, D. L., e	13 50
Agent's expenses	3 20

Total .....$ 56 70

Due church .....83 07

WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg District.

W. I. Arnold, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$815 13
Arnold, W. I., and wife, t	46 80
Branch, Winnipeg, o	33 47
Braden, John H., o	3 00
Burton, Ollie, and wife, t	40 03
Carleton, A. C., and wife, note	25 00
Clark Forbes, t	65 00
Carleton, Helen, t	1 00
Dallin, Ambrose, and wife, t	24 98
D'Arcy, Otis, and wife, t	15 00
Gifford, Maria, t	15 00
Gifford, Maria, o	10 00
Hayward, Estella, t	5 00
Hayward, Minnie, t	13 00
Kittle, Murdock, t	3 00
Ringland, Sr. Lucy, t	16 00
Ringland, Harold, t	2 00
Scott, Sr. Mary, t	25 00
Wilson, Nelson, and wife.	250 00

Wilson, Wellington, and wife	200 00
Total	$1,408 41

Expenditures.

Braden, J. H., a	$ 30 00
Carleton, A. C., note	15 00
Griffith, G. T., e	10 05
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	450 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop, ex-change	3 19
Long, E. E., e	30 10
Long, D. E., f	420 00
McKim, B. L., e	18 00
Peterson, J. W., e	29 00
Tomlinson, S. W., e	15 00
Total	$1,020 34
Due church	388 07

WISCONSIN.

Northern District.

Nalmer Johnson, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 47 12
Betterly, Frank, and wife	2 00
Betner, Mary	5 00
Colbert, Leroy, and wife	436 00
Colbert, Orlando	85 00
Collins, Mary	5 00
Dennis, Wm. W. and Mable	68 50
Dreyer, Joseph	25 00
Gano, Fletcher	40 00
Gano, Alice	10 00
Gano, Elsie	5 00
Hemstock, Mrs. G. E.	5 00
Hewitt, George	5 00
Johnson, Paul M.	1 00
Johnson, Nalmer and Cora	32 00
Knapp, Orlin, and wife	50 00
Livingston, S. E., and wife	35 00
Livingston, Mary	10 00
Livingston, Lee	5 00
Livingston, Wm., and wife	15 00
Longsdorf, John and Lucy	15 00
Mair, James, sen., and wife	3 00
Mason, F. L., and wife.	10 00
Neff, Cally C.	50
Renier, Mrs. Victor	1 00
Richardson, P. L., and wife	3 50
Runkel, Augusta E.	7 00
Shaver, Mrs. M.	5 00
Thompson, Mrs. S. D.	3 00
Tucker, Lucy	5 00
Tucker, Mrs. Nelson, jr.	5 00
Wingfield, Ben	5 00
Total	$940 62

Expenditures.

Flint, B. C., f	$286 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	250 00
Stamps	1 48
Whiteaker, A. L., f	324 00
Total	$861 48
Due church	88 14

Southern District.

C. C. Hoague, Agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church Decem-ber 31, 1911	$ 06
Anderson, John N.	25 00
Archambault, Hubert J., and wife	45 00

Archambault, Robert	25 00
Askin, Sarah	20 00
Askin, Sarah, o	10 00
Anderson, Maranda	10 00
Brown, Ira, and wife	27 00
Burton, George, and wife	5 00
Brinkhoff, Frederick W.	40 00
Carpenter, Oscar M., and family	10 00
Dutton, Julia N.	5 00
Dutton, Julia N., o	7 50
Dutton, O. N. and Ezra.	49 00
Davis, Fredona	2 00
Drew, Jacob A.	66 50
Dahlem, Olive	3 00
Dreyer, Fred V., and wife	41 50
Ellis, Orvall, and wife	10 00
Ellis, A. Lincoln, and fam-ily	50 00
Edwards, John	40 00
Edwards, Irvie	10 00
Edgington, Eliza	10 30
Flint, Alfred M.	12 00
Gaylor, Martha	12 00
Gratz, August, and wife.	10 00
Held, Willard W.	17 33
Held, Effie	2 00
Held, Charlie	5 00
Harwood, Esther	1 00
Hoover, Elmer G., and family	59 34
Hoague, C. C., and wife	23 85
Hoague, Mary, o	10 00
Hoague, Charles C., jr.	10 50
James, Mary	1 00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	75 00
Lenox, Elmer, and wife.	8 00
Lenox, Ervin	5 00
Lamke, A. J., and wife.	2 50
Leighty, Fred, and wife.	20 00
Leighty, Mrs. Fred	10 00
Matthews, William, and wife	2 00
Miller, Jessie	5 00
Miller, Clara	5 00
Montgomery, Fanny	1 00
Montgomery, Frank, sen.	2 00
Noble, Leander, and wife	15 00
Oates, Thornton	30 00
Orton, Lenora	1 00
Ott, Harlow S., and wife	2 00
Pannock, Lucretia	10 00
Pendleton, Joseph T.	3 00
Pendleton, Joseph T., o	1 50
Pendleton, Rosella F.	1 50
Pearce, Clara	5 00
Richardson, C. E., and wife	10 00
Rounds, Isabella	10 00
Rogers, Mrs. Samuel M.	2 00
Stevens, H. D., and wife	14 40
Spase, John, and wife	65 00
Spase, David	15 00
Sperry, Marnie	3 00
Sperry, Ida M.	11 00
Whiteaker, J. W., and wife	10 00
Williams, Agnes	1 50
West, Almin	40 00
Total	$1,035 78

Expenditures.

Dutton, J. O., f	$373 00
Flint, B. C., f	135 00
Goodenough, E. J., f	100 00
McDowell, W. A., f.	360 00
Total	$1,028 00
Due church	7 78

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES OF ELDERS, FOR YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1912

NAMES	Due church Last Report	Receipts			Total		Balance Due church
		bps. and Agts	Individuals	Furnished by Self	Receipts	Expenditures
Allen, Arthur			$ 359 25		$ 359 25	$ 359 25
Anderson, William		1 61	118 44		279 44	279 28
Anderson, Peter		30 00	164 10		194 10		16 00
Arber, Joseph	15 65	36 50	159 60		211 75	199 35	12 40
Aylor, William		49 00	168 85	1 30	219 15	219 15
Balley, J. W. A.		17 34	162 05		179 39	159 30	20 09
Baker, J. H.		72 76	5 00		98 64	98 64
Baker, J. M.	8 97		87 38	20 88	99 87	99 87
Baldwin, Richard	2 80	25 00	89 88	3 52	117 18	117 00	18 00
Barrett, J. B.		151 40	47 75		199 15	191 70	7 45
Baty, James, sr.
Becker, J. A.		276 73	66 62		334 35	334 35
Bond, M. H.		155 00	10 39		165 39	165 39
Booker, Alma		50 00	104 91	10 64	165 55	165 55
Booker, N. L.	5 88	25 00	138 17		169 05	163 92	5 13
Bozarth, C. E.		35 00	32 00	79	67 79	67 79
Bozarth, R. E.		60 00	14 55	25 55	100 10	100 10
Brackenbury, F. S.		28 00	49 46	22 39	99 85	99 85
Braun, Henry			4 00	11 58	15 58	15 58
Bronson, Jott A.		10 00	91 64		101 64	99 77	1 87
Bronner, W. A.		19 00	55 13	5 09	79 22	79 22
Brown, Samuel	12 72	33 50	125 22	36 59	208 03	208 03
Burdick, L.	9 86	50 00	120 83	5 67	186 36	186 36
Burr, A. E.		51 00	82 06	2 35	135 41	135 41
Burr, C. H.		43 00	35 00	43 28	121 28	121 28
Burt, E. N.		34 14	59 41	02	93 57	93 57
Burt, G. E.		50 00	33 23	30 02	113 25	113 25
Burt, G. W.	2 55	134 29	15 00		151 84	143 17	8 67
Bulhard, H.		108 50	91 60	17 42	217 52	217 52
Butterworth, C. E.	20 13	13 30	155 41		188 84	179 24	9 60
Butterworth, C. A.			69 60		69 60	69 60
Constance, C. E.			21 79		21 79	17 69	4 10
Cady, Charles J.	24 65	76 00	23 55	6 80	131 00	131 00
Campbell, Duncan		80 00	50 00		130 00	130 00
Carpenter, J. A.		25 00	10 35	10 15	45 50	45 50
Case, Hubert		45 75	99 27		145 02	145 02
Case, Oscar		52 00	31 45	3 40	86 85	86 85
Chambers, D. R.		55 00	47 20	2 13	104 33	104 33
Chase, Charles	2 00	5 00	54 75		61 75	61 75
Chrestensen, J. C.		95 00	81 97	37	177 34	177 34
Christensen, A. H.			54 00	15 46	69 46	69 46
Christy, W. L.		25 00	8 00	23 77	56 77	56 77
Condit, S. D.		51 85	162 15	58 90	272 90	272 90
Cook, M. H.		20 75	131 10		153 55	153 55
Crabb, J. C.		125 79	72 25	1 70	198 04	198 04
Crumley, C. E.		146 00	148 20	103 55	397 75	397 75
Curtis, J. D.		5 00		1 25	6 25	6 25
Curtis, J. F.	12 75	68 00	260 82		350 57	350 57
Cousins, Charles
Chase, A. M.
Chandler, W. H.		379 70	83 50		463 20	463 20
Chatburn, F. J.		19 20	41 40		60 60	41 36	19 24
Chatburn, P. W.	17 75	25 00			42 75	25 00	17 75
Cooper, F. M.		39 00	43 60		73 60	63 60	10 00
Davison, H. J.	9 50	70 00	24 00		94 00	90 30	3 70
Davis, E. A.		17 00	148 11		165 11	165 11
Davis, James	7 04	70 75	133 75		204 50	201 00	3 50
Davis, John		20 00	78 15	6 63	111 82	111 82
Davis, J. T.		170 00	84 80	15 25	270 05	270 05
Davis, R. D.	03	141 00	53 00		194 00	194 00
Davis, William	9 49	8 00	135 08		143 71	141 46	2 25
Darry, Charles	3 25	38 00	101 06	2 36	150 91	150 91
Deuel, C. W.			60 84	7 10	71 19	71 19
Dickson, S. E.		35 00	77 35	44 40	156 75	156 75
Dowker, J. A.		5 85	18 44	18 36	42 15	42 15
Dowker, D. E.		39 00	156 44		196 06	196 06
Dowker, William		115 00	294 51		409 51	384 51	25 00
Dubose, J. W.		35 00	25 69		60 69	60 69
Dutton, J. O.		100 25	69 25	33 50	205 00	205 00
Edaing, F. J.		10 00	184 50		194 50	180 00	13 60
Edwards, George		95 00	180 77		275 77	223 25	52 52
Ellis, A. R.		48 00	49 19	1 91	97 10	97 10
Ellis, Clyde F.			151 82		151 82	144 87	6 95
Ellis, W. D.			106 05	14 26	120 31	120 31
Elvin, R. M.	23 91	65 00	186 03		274 94	206 78	68 16
Erwin, E. A.		1 93	21 73		62 16	62 16
Etzenhouser, R.	5 77	18 00	62 75	38 50	81 10	81 10
Eyans, R. C.	2 05	204 68		91	211 36	211 36
Farnfield, J. C.	8 00	190 00	66 00		256 00	256 00
Farr, F. B.		85 00	85 10		178 10	178 10
Farrell, R. W.		86 00	90 75	20 85	197 60	197 60
Fetting, Otto		38 00	358 00		396 00	395 00	1 00
Fields, S. H.			54 57	65 84	120 41	120 41
Filke, Lyman	24 30	68 00	105 15		197 54	197 54
Fitzwater, F. E.		25 00	30 16	68 00	123 16	123 16
Flinn, P. A.		86 00	23 65	100 05	123 70	123 70
Flint, B. C.	1 00	12 00	98 81		86 00	86 00
Foss, J. C.		87 03	12 30		141 81	141 81
Foss, S. O.		50 50	77 34		99 33	99 33
Fry, Charles		45 00	71 50	79 35	127 84	127 84
Gammidge, W. H.		20 23	24 25		195 85	195 85
Garver, J. F.	11 18		243 07		44 48	44 48
Gamet, Levi		15 78	132 92		254 25	239 68	14 57
Garrett, W. H.	7 48	2 96	4 30	04	148 74	148 74
Goodenough, E. J.		20 00	100 22		14 74	13 71	1 03
Goodman, J. C.		39 21	36 78	40 43	169 65	169 65
Goodrich, V. M.		153 00	252 10		75 99	75 99
Gowell, M. F.	17 80	82 64	22 00	9 80	414 99	414 99
Gratz, August			3 75	37 10	122 44	122 44
Greene, G. W.	3 74	204 00	224 92		40 85	40 85
Gregory, Fred	22 50	140 00	80 22		432 60	416 92	15 74
Grice, William			65 70		242 72	236 22	6 50
Griffiths, G. T.	5 00	262 06	183 46	31 08	96 78	96 78
					450 52	440 52	10 00

Greenwood, W. H.	12 53	51 66	35 04	3 19	102 42	102 42
Haden, W. E.		36 00	48 88	39 08	123 90	123 00
Halb, Jacob	16 84	20 00	91 99		128 83	115 31	18 52
Hansen, H. N.		150 00	8 61	37 52	196 13	190 13
Hansen, J. H.		159 35	42 55	37 74	239 04	239 04
Harp, John		74 25	80 25		154 50	164 50
Harpe, C. B.		62 00	130 37	2 73	201 10	201 10
Harrington, G. B.		249 00	29 15	8 38	280 53	286 53
Hawn, O. J.	2 64	25 00	119 18	17 82	104 04	104 04
Hayer, Eli
Hensen, E. L.		51 00	104 78		155 78	153 08	2 10
Higdon, Amos T.		15 00	85 22	18 82	119 04	119 04
Hills, L. E.		105 00	122 04		227 04	220 86	08
Holloway, L. G.		149 36	102 65		252 01	252 01
Hougas, T. A.				24 55	24 55	24 55
Houghton, L.		25 00	81 95		100 95	88 08	23 27
Hughes, J. E.			58 10	21 61	79 71	70 71
Hunt, C. B.			86 16		86 16	86 16
Hunt, C. J.		147 92	51 68		199 60	199 60
Hanson, P. M.		10 00	64 25	107 68	181 93	181 93
Joehnk, C. C.		7 00	138 47	18 24	163 71	163 71
Johnson, Oscar		85 00	14 49	170 76	270 25	270 25
Jordison, J.			12 17		12 17	12 17
Jenkins, George	2 06	142 93	68 09		213 08	213 08
Jenkins, Rees		102 99	7 60		172 59	164 45	8 14
Johnson, William		70 00	142 45		222 45	209 24	3 21
Jones, J. H. N.	4 30	15 00	96 41	41	145 11	141 08	3 18
Keck, F. C.	23 00	278 00	14 50	39 50	355 00	355 00
Kelley, J. D.	1 30	46 35	35 70		83 35	82 85	50
Kelley, W. H. (Ind.)			50 00	25 30	75 30	75 30
Kemp, James	37 22	35 00	68 65		140 87	105 00	34 91
Knisley, Alvin		95 00	140 00	02	235 02	235 02
Koehler, H. A.	3 14	40 00	111 16		154 30	154 30
Koehler, J. A.		30 00	58 95	8 05	97 00	97 00
Kuykendall, G. R.		11 00	35 00	8 82	54 82	54 82
Kesler, E.	14 22	60 00	61 25	28 10	101 57	101 57
Lambert, J. R.		30 00	97 20	5 92	134 12	133 12
Lambkin, B. S.		123 00	445 85		568 85	546 06	22 10
LaRue, W. E.		80 00	80 40	21 85	182 25	182 25
Layland, A. J.				17 05	17 05	17 05
Leggott, G. W.		112 31	79 81		192 12	191 48	04
Lentell, J. R.			104 99		104 99	100 25	4 74
Leverton, A.		125 00	111 35	5 05	242 00	242 00
Lewis, William	9 30	113 50	195 40		318 20	309 20	9 00
Long, E. D.		37 00	22 25	20 23	79 48	79 48
Longhurst, R. C.			26 75		26 75	26 75
Lake, J. H.			137 49		137 49	137 49
Lewis, George		73 00	159 45	45 16	277 61	277 61
Macgregor, Dantel		5 47	87 45		92 92	89 99	2 03
Madden, New		40 00	45 29	22 49	107 78	107 78
Maloney, R. M.		80 75	47 35	4 15	132 25	132 25
Mannering, W. H.		91 08	20 55	7 19	118 82	118 82
McClain, J. E.	1 04	37 00	164 44		202 48	200 36	2 12
McConnangly, James		12 90	48 75		60 75	56 08	4 07
McConnangly, James		58 54	76 10		134 04	134 04
McKadden, L. M.		65 00	113 04	6 06	184 10	184 10
McKiernan, James		5 85	50 15		56 00	56 00
McKim, B. L.		27 00	103 53		130 53	115 38	15 15
Meredith, J. E.		25 00	83 01	21 82	130 43	130 43
Metcalf, J. W.		28 50	175 05	2 40	205 05	205 05
Miller, A. G.		132 00	63 16		195 16	195 16
Miller, C. Ed					158 17	155 44	2 73
Miller, O. R.	1 32	40 13	116 72		163 87	163 87
Mintun, J. P.	11 75	54 35	89 00	8 77	103 87	103 87
Moler, H. B.		18 00	82 55		101 09	85 92	15 17
Moler, James		48 00	113 48		172 75	172 00	00
Moore, L. C.	11 27	32 00	4 40		37 02	57 02
Moorman, E. E.	3 03	265 34	28 70	18 79	342 08	342 08
Morgan, E. B.		153 70	43 50	48 94	197 20	190 05	0 55
Morgan, J. W.		67 00	16 00		83 00	82 40	1 11
Moser, Fred		184 13	1 00		135 13	135 13
Muceus, Peter	5 58	10 00	127 83		143 41	132 10	11 22
McKnight, J. W.	2 11	42 00	76 49		126 00	116 00	10 01
May, J. Charles	15 50	184 40	48 35		248 25	240 70	7 55
McConley, Myron A.	4 75	25 00	129 78		150 53	148 78	1 75
McDowell, W. A.			50 44		50 44	48 46	1 98
Mann, R. O.		5 44	72 48		77 02	77 02
May, R.		167 70	14 20		181 90	181 90
Newton, William		12 00	25 90		37 90	37 90
Nunley, J. M.		161 00	87 11		248 11	220 11	28 00
Okerlind, O. W.		72 68	91 65	1 16	165 49	165 49
Page, James C.		141 91	61 25		203 16	203 16
Parkin, C. A.		21 50	72 25	10 98	194 73	194 73
Parker, J. L.		71 50	147 37		218 87	215 06	3 81
Paxton, J. W.	15 80	173 35	75 95		204 88	259 13	5 75
Peak, W. B.		23 45	8 50		244 05	244 05
Pender, W. S.		24 81	38 44		62 75	62 75
Pendleton, Sam, T.	29	26 50	22 70	25 96	75 45	75 45
Peters, C. J.	04	30 00	66 86		97 80	87 40	10 40
Petre, J. F.	5 10	109 00	184 20		298 30	278 30	20 00
Peterson, J. W.		40 00	149 36	30 57	228 93	228 93
Phillips, A. B.		25 00	25 04	2 25	52 29	52 29
Pickering, W. P.		38 81	34 55	3 00	76 36	76 36
Pierce, H. N.	1 47	33 00	43 20		76 01	76 01	1 00
Blumb, P. T.		6 00	22 01		28 01	27 00	41
Premo, Farley		10 00	133 00	42 48	185 48	185 48
Prestyman, C. W.		62 90	71 35		134 25	121 49	12 70
Prichett, F. O.	89 60	123 35	108 31		320 76	288 51	32 25
Purhurst, A. B.		135 00	88 22		223 22	213 20	10 02
Pycock, J.		48 70	191 24	28 50	208 44	268 44
Pitt, F. G.			173 30		173 30	163 14	10 16
Quick, Lee	11 00	45 00	97 36		153 96	184 06	19 00
Rannie, Edward			8 50	32 37	40 87	40 87
Radford, Earl			4 55		4 55	4 55
Reese, Thomas		100 65	67 20		167 85	167 85
Reife, S. M.		30 00	40 25	58 03	123 28	128 28
Renfro, B. F.			61 64	1 05	68 28	68 28
Richards, W. B.	5 59		110 80	2 65	143 45	143 45
Riley, J. T.		30 00

Roberts, I. N.		35 00	4 20		39 20	39 20
Roberts, J. A.	23 90	37 50	42 65		104 14	92 86	11 78
Robley, George W.		50 00	98 31		148 31	90 78	48 58
Roth, J. S.	14 77		61 01	1 37	77 15	77 15
Rushton, J. W.	22 82	120 00	149 05	6 16	298 03	298 03
Russell, R. A.		53 00	94 50		147 50	147 50
Russell, R. C.	3 95	206 00	212 74		422 69	412 62	10 07
Sade, O. B.		18 00	163 39	6 84	188 23	188 23
Salyards, R. S.		70 84	58 55	9 83	139 22	139 22
Sawley, F. L.	36 55	90 00	52 28		178 83	131 06	47 77
Scotfield, James
Scott, B. J.		145 00	13 50	3 88	162 38	162 38
Scott, Columbus	6 19	151 10	106 26		263 55	258 55	5 00
Scott, S. W. L.		24 00	124 22		148 22	146 48	1 74
Self, R. O.		62 22	8 45		60 67	60 67
Self, W. M.		60 00	76 00	11 25	87 25	87 25
Shakespeare, W. E.		50 80	50 80	27 25	138 05	138 05
Sheehy, J. P.	82	13 00	117 28		131 39	131 39
Sheldon, N. V.	6 20	51 85	88 10		181 39	181 39
Shields, John	7 96	20 00	143 76	10 54	156 69	156 69
Shippy, G. M.			10 00		171 72	168 34
Shirk, O. D.		90 00	42 20		10 00	9 95	2 88
Siegfried, M. H.	45	87 00	15 47		192 20	123 24	8 96
Silvers, A. C.		40 00	103 29		102 92	94 75	8 17
Simmons, Jesse M.		29 50	34 20	12 68	143 29	143 29
Simmons, S. W.	20 95	60 00	65 60		76 38	76 38
Simpson, Luther			9 15		136 55	117 18	19 37
Showers, J. D.		79 57	32 75		9 15	9 15
Shupe, W. S.		20 00	13 33	18 95	112 32	112 32
Slover, F. M.	32 40	20 00	196 90		32 28	32 28
Slye, R. E.	60	61 00	137 55		245 30	214 63	34 67
Smart, W. H.		97 50	75 30		199 15	197 35	1 80
Smith, Edgar H.	4 35	11 00	20 50		172 80	164 20	8 60
Smith, Elbert A.	2 41	94 21	191 00		35 85	35 85
Smith, David		26 00	44 85		287 62	252 14	35 48
Smith, F. A.	7 17	291 75	228 48		70 85	70 85
Smith, F. M.		1138 16			527 40	498 27	29 13
Smith, H. G.		85 00	168 25		1138 16	1138 16
Smith, Hale W.		54 00	109 12		253 25	253 25
Smith, Heman C.		240 00	80 80	30 29	163 12	163 12
Smith, I. M.	1 10		180 45		351 09	351 09
Smith, John		227 46	31 00		181 55	163 80	17 75
Smith, J. W.	9 38	37 80	69 10		258 46	258 46
Smith, S. S.	1 47	48 00	100 15		116 28	114 28	2 00
Smith, W. A.			129 82		149 62	147 25	2 37
Smith, W. J.					129 82	129 82
Smith, W. K.		63 50	78 97	3 29	145 76	145 76
Smith, Walter W.		12 50	138 50	21 75	172 75	172 75
Snow, C. L.			79 75		79 75	79 75
Sparling, Henry		39 50	197 45	23 51	170 46	170 46
Sparling, Wm.			177 20		177 20	168 36	8 84
Stead, J. D.	19 02	88 95	164 25		272 22	244 78	27 44
Stebbins, H. A.		10 00	29 45		39 45	39 45
Saint John, Grant	17 06	45 00	126 15		158 21	180 71	7 50
Stone, A. E.	3 18	31 00	84 98	3 36	122 52	122 52
Strand, T. O.
Stubbart, J. M.	4 40	25 00	21 10		50 50	46 10	4 40
Sutton, J. R.	10 00	39 50	151 00	3 82	204 32	204 32
Swenson, Swen.		65 00	91 63	2 61	159 24	159 24
Swenson, C. A.		47 50	80 13	15 82	63 45	63 45
Savage, H. W.	35 68	53 34	80 08		189 10	168 33	77
Sheehy, F. M.		206 00	112 10		818 10	310 16	7 94
Sheppard, T. J.			37 50	34 15	71 65	71 65
Tanner, J. A.	8 35	27 50	189 50		225 35	222 71	2 64
Taylor, John W.		2 43			2 43	2 43
Taylor, Thomas	3 24		62 58		65 82	49 60	16 22
Tectors, J. A.
Terry, J. M.	20 00		236 30		256 30	236 30	20 00
Thomas, O. B.	8 30	18 00	60 45		86 75	85 44	1 31
Thomas, T. U.		169 82	46 75		156 57	156 57
Thorburn, George	16 72	80 00	145 25		241 97	206 25	35 72
Tomlinson, G. C.			39 12	3 37	42 49	42 49
Tomlinson, S. W.		63 00	108 09	54 29	224 28	224 28
Tucker, D. E.			41 95	35 61	77 56	77 56
Turner, Warren E.		40 00	25 95	5 12	71 07	71 07
Turnen, M. M.		30 00	51 45	11 56	93 01	93 01
Tumbly, Samuel		68 75	107 35	16 25	192 35	192 35
Vanderwood, J. E.	1 15	59 60	105 30	15	166 20	166 20
Walters, R. T.		25 00	71 76	14 41	111 17	111 17
Weaver, R. D.			103 24		103 24	94 12	9 12
Wells, G. R.		36 60	54 00	19 68	110 28	110 28
Whiteaker, A. L.		18 00	43 16	10 81	77 97	77 97
White, Ammon			381 84		381 84	311 95	69 89
White, I. N.	1 15	50 00	6 00	125 15	132 30	132 30
Whiting, Alonzo			9 20	61 46	70 69	70 69
Wight, J. W.	4 33	123 48	252 92	5 32	386 05	386 05
Wildermuth, E. M.	3 00	15 00			18 00	18 00
Wildermuth, J. B.		45 00	26 75	56 34	128 09	128 09
Wildermuth, J. E.		120 00	85 40		205 40	192 00	12 50
Wildermuth, Lester		57 00	58 17	5 65	120 82	120 82
Willey, C. E.		39 00	98 23	33 00	170 23	170 23
Williams, Henry		30 00	42 16		72 16	70 69	1 57
Winegar, H. E.		30 00	109 02		160 78	151 93	8 85
Wood, L. G.		51 75	3 50	50	4 00	4 00
Yates, J. E.		85 00	151 20		236 20	226 20	10 00
		$970 28	$18,812 86	$25,159 54	$2,033 83	$47,876 51	$46,622 01	$1,254 50

*Furnished own expenses.

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA, CHURCH ACCOUNT.

Angus, Archibald	$ 30 00
Anonymous	3,257 80
Bacon, Mrs. Hosea H.	1 00
Christy, Ogden T.	5 00
Copeland, Asa	20 00
Desjardins, Paul	28 00
Edwards, Ada	5 00
Engle, Susan C.	10 00
Freus, Sarah	10 00
Freeland, David	37 00
Freeland, Jennie	5 00
Fry, William E.	5 00
Harrison, Alma	20 00
Hiller, John	5 00
Humphrey, Alice	5 00
Lewis, George	15 00
Mitchell, May	5 00
Nickerson, Alison	2 00
Nickerson, Emma	2 00
North Philadelphia Women's Exchange	40 00

Jenkins, John	2 00
Parrot, Susan	3 00
Peck, Anna	5 00
Reeves, Samuel A.	5 00
Roth, Anna	2 00
Sanders, Jennie	07
Sanders, Mary	05
Schwartz, Herman	2 00
Senior, Harriet	1 00
Shaw, Daniel T.	5 00
Stone, Sarah	5 00
Taylor, Arthur T.	10 00
Tegge, Mathilda	6 00
White, Virginia	5 00
Wilson, James	10 00
Zimmermann, John	1,000 00
Total	$4,566 45

SCRANTON, PENNSYLVANIA, CHURCH ACCOUNT.

Bishop, Amelia	$ 1 68
Bishop, Beatrice	1 68

Bishop, Lot	13 02
Coates, Clyde	2 00
Coates, Helen	5 00
Cushing, Thomas	50
Davies, William J.	25 52
Engel, Mrs. Charles	3 00
Evans, Benjamin	4 25
Evans, Frank	32 00
Evans, Thomas	60
Evans, William	3 50
Fossie, Nicholas	50 00
Fossie, Sarah	7 00
Gore, Thomas	4 33
Harris, Maria	1 43
Harris, Verna	66
Hawkins, Richard J.	32 70
Hawkins, William F.	75 00
Hedgelin, Clinton	2 64
Hoffman, Mrs.	2 00
Isaacs, Mrs.	20 00
James, David	31 00
Jenkins, Elizabeth	86
Jones, Isaac T.	30 20

Jones, Tallie T.	67 06
Jones, Anna	2 06
Lewis, Evan	20 68
Lewis, William J.	8 73
Marchant, Mary	100 00
Mayers, Anthony	7 00
Morris, George	40 00
Morris, Mary and Thomas	1 34
Morris, Elizabeth	10
Robinson, Fannie	1 20
Ruth, Mrs.	1 00
Saunders, David	1 25
Saunders, Joseph	1 00
Scott, Mrs.	5 00
Simpson, Charles	10 00
Thomas, William J.	50 00
Watkins, Mrs. Benjamin	8 00
Weisen, Louisa	10 06
Total	$606 85

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, OCTOBER 22, 1913

NUMBER 43

Editorial

LAW AND LIBERTY.

But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed.—James 1: 25.

In the paragraph just quoted James mentions law and liberty in the same connection. In this he does exceedingly well, because the two great fundamental ideas suggested by these words are naturally inseparably united. This is an instance where that which God hath joined together no man can put asunder.

There can be no liberty without law, neither can there be law without liberty.

When we say there can be no law without liberty we refer to an orderly execution of the will of the people. Whenever the people surrender their liberties or are deprived of them, the will and whim of some despot takes the place of law. Such a condition is seen in Russia where the people have that which has been termed "a despotism tempered by assassination"; or in Mexico at this writing. And the same condition may obtain to a degree in any community. To the extent, for instance, that the people of New York State and New York City surrender their liberties they are ruled, not by law, but by the will of Tammany Hall and whoever may happen to be boss of Tammany Hall at that particular time.

On the other hand it is equally true, perhaps more obviously true, that liberty can not exist without law. Whenever the law is abrogated at the behest of those who fancy that it interferes with their liberty, the result is license, anarchy, chaos, and confusion.

It is God's will that throughout the universe law and order should reign supreme. This is beautifully expressed in section 85 and paragraph 9 of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants:

All kingdoms have a law given: and there are many kingdoms; for there is no space in the which there is no kingdom; and there is no kingdom in which there is no space, either a greater or lesser kingdom. And unto every kingdom is given a law; and unto every law there are certain bounds also, and certain conditions.

If it were possible for us to live long enough and travel fast enough to reach the dimmest star that may be discovered with the aid of the most powerful telescope we would find when we reached it that it is governed by certain fixed principles of law, to which in turn there are certain fixed metes and bounds. In fact, we do not need to go to these distant stars to discover this, because astronomers have learned that these stars are governed by such fixed, undeviating laws that it is possible for them to predict the exact relative position of the planets and stars one hundred years hence. This is true because natural laws are so perfect and unchanging from century to century. Natural laws are God's laws.

And so when we turn to that particular law applying to human souls, mentioned by James as the "law of liberty," we need not be surprised when we find him terming it the perfect law. The Psalmist had the same conception of this law when he said, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul."

Human laws are experimental and evolutionary. They are imperfect in conception, in interpretation, and in execution. This is true because human hearts and wills are imperfect; and imperfect men as legislators conceive the law, as judges and jurors interpret it, and as officials execute it.

Forty-four thousand new laws were passed by the various legislatures of the different States in the United States in the year 1910. Probably many of those laws are now inoperative and practically forgotten. In the meantime thousands of others have been placed upon the books. The statute books of the past are cumbered with imperfect and sometimes foolish, if not wicked laws that society has outgrown.

We are always changing, ever approaching, but never reaching perfection. But God, being both omniscient and omnipotent is capable of conceiving, interpreting, and executing a perfect law. And this law, we are told, is given that it might bring us liberty.

All men prize liberty. The brightest page in the history of any nation is that which records some victorious struggle for freedom. Patrick Henry said, "As for me, give me liberty or give me death." That expression may sound bombastic, but in fact it is a cry springing from the very depths of human nature. Thousands of men and women have sacrificed their lives in a struggle to win freedom for themselves, or, more sublime sacrifice, to secure freedom for others.

Witness the long legal struggle of Harry K. Thaw to secure his liberty, since the day years ago when he so rashly placed himself in jeopardy of the law. Thousands and millions of dollars will be given for freedom.

It is said that a robbery was committed some years ago in one of our big eastern cities, and one peculiar feature of the affair was that several canary birds which were confined in a cage in the room were liberated. This puzzled the police until the robber was captured, when he confessed that he had just finished a term in Sing Sing, and he declared, "I could not bear to see any living creature behind bars."

Humanity chafes under bonds, rebels against imprisonment, and ever struggles to obtain freedom.

Humanity will never have fullness of joy until humanity is entirely free.

But we have previously stated in these editorial pages that it is possible for individuals to grasp the shadow and miss the substance of liberty. One may be living in free America or in orderly and liberty loving England, and yet not be free. Jesus brought this home to the Jews when he said, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

They resented the implication that for them freedom was still in the future, and boasted that they were of Abraham's seed and were never in bondage to any man.

Jesus replied, "Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin."

They were not free in any sense. Politically they were under the yoke of Rome, religiously they were under the bondage of the rabbis, morally they were victims of vile thoughts and evil habits that held them in complete bondage. But Jesus made to them this sublime proposition: "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." And added, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

It is impossible to make men free until they have knowledge of truth, and only to the extent that they have obtained this knowledge can they ever be free. This is true of nations and communities and of individuals as well. We boast sometimes that Abraham Lincoln, at one stroke of the pen, freed the black man, but that boast is only partially true. In many instances the negro merely passed from one form of bondage into another. Thousands of negroes are not yet free. They never can be free until they know the truth and become capable of individual government.

Jesus wants men to be free in the mass and individually. And he comes to each man with a proposition of self-government. He invites the individual to a new stage of activity and freedom. He declares, "Ye must be born again." In the language of Paul he admonished them to put away the old man and his deeds and to put on the new man and enter into a new life.

Having in view the imperfections of human law, why not give a complete obedience to that perfect law which God has given to make men free? Yet, when we go to the world preaching that gospel, which includes repentance, baptism, the reception of the Holy Ghost, and those other divine principles which are intended to work out the redemption of man and the conversion of the soul, we find the people unwilling to accept and abide by these laws.

Nor are we as church members entirely free from this disposition. For instance, while worldly people maintain they can find a substitute for baptism, some of us flatter ourselves that we can find a substitute for tithing and consecration.

Foolish thought; that man can find something as good as a divinely appointed and perfect system.

We have given to us that law which is designed to bring about industrial freedom, and the redemption of Zion in a material sense. We have that law which is designed to bring about equality and which will relieve poverty and place the riches of the wealthy at the disposal of God in the redemption of man. Yet many of us are fearful and hesitate to put this law to the test. It is not yet fully borne in upon our consciousness that the law of God is perfect, converting the soul, and that he who looks into the perfect law of liberty and becomes a doer, not merely a hearer of these principles, shall be abundantly blessed in his deeds.

A perfect law demands a perfect obedience,—nothing less.

God wants us to be free. He does not give us these laws that they may be a burden upon us; but that they may deliver us from bondage and bring us into communion with him where we can be friends with Christ and cooperate with him in the great work of redemption.

Obedience to this law must be voluntary. That is why the redemption of man proceeds so very slowly. God might put men where they could not do wrong, but he wants to get them into that condition where they will not do wrong.

What a vast difference there is between a man who does right because he is afraid that he will be found out if he does wrong, and the individual who does right because it is right! Blessed is the man who does right because it is right, for God shall not hesitate to have dealing with him.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

THE NORMAL DEPARTMENT AT GRACELAND COLLEGE.

Each year brings to our walls students from various States, who desire to prepare for teaching. Our personal experience in the teaching profession has been so gratifying that we gladly welcome young people who also feel to devote at least a few years of the best of their lives to the mission of the education of the young. And there are but few callings so richly endowed with opportunity for real service to humanity—a service which can be made to yield a satisfactory revenue in true happiness and in dollars and cents.

However, the purpose of this insertion is not, primarily, to induce students to enter the Normal Department at Graceland. We wish to suggest to the great number of our fellow teachers who read these pages one way in which they may each assist us in preparing these students for their work.

PUBLICATIONS WANTED.

Each year we carry a few subscriptions to educational magazines for the benefit of our students. But, of necessity, the number is limited; and the resources of our library in pedagogical literature are not all that we desire. We wish to ask teachers who are regular subscribers to educational magazines to let us know what they have, especially in volumes from 1905 to the present, that they would be willing to send to the college for our use. If we are not already supplied we will notify the donor to ship them, and upon their receipt will have them bound at our earliest convenience, and placed upon our reference shelves.

The standard educational magazines like Education, Educational Review, School Review, and the Elementary School Teacher are most valuable. However, state journals, and the special kindergarten, mathematical, scientific and other technical magazines have much in them that can be used as valuable additions to our library material. What we have said of educational magazines applies also to scientific, historical and literary magazines. Let us know what you have that you are willing to send us. But in all cases it will be best to write before shipping, as duplicate volumes are usually of no special value.

LATTER DAY SAINT TEACHERS.

We wish, also, to suggest to the Saints everywhere and especially to those who are interested in education, as officers in school districts or as patrons of the schools, that we annually prepare a score or more of young people to become really efficient teachers. Many of them desire to teach in Iowa, or Missouri, but there are always some from other States. These teachers would be glad to find schools in communities of Latter Day Saints, where they might have the privileges of the church; and many would make valued workers in Sunday school and Religio.

It is a part of Graceland's mission to prepare the young people for efficient service, and we would gladly locate these teachers where they could be of service, educationally and in the gospel work. The ranks of the normal alumni are continually increasing. We have a list of some forty or fifty teachers who have received their training partly or wholly in Graceland. They now have added years of experience, and in some cases additional training at state institutions, and are already filling places of responsibility in the teaching profession. If we can assist in placing these teachers where both they and the community will be mutually benefited, our services will be gladly and gratuitously rendered.

We would be pleased to enter into communication at an early date with parties who desire to see a good live Latter Day Saint teacher come into their school for the ensuing term or year. In every case we will do our best to give satisfaction. Our recommendation of a teacher is based upon our personal knowledge of the individual, preparation and teaching ability.

This is another way in which we hope to cooperate with the general church membership to our mutual advantage. We trust that by united effort the scope of Graceland's usefulness may be increased, and that, more and more, Graceland may come to take the place she should occupy, and fulfill her mission among the Lord's people. Address all inquiries to

CHARLES B. WOODSTOCK,

Instructor in Charge of Normal Department.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

VALUE OF RELIGIOUS IDEAL AND SPIRIT.—In a very interesting address delivered by Henry D. Estabrook, of New York, before the annual banquet of the Missouri Bar Association in Kansas City, September 26, Mr. Estabrook made the following statement:

All such on the one hand. On the other hand, I call your attention to the millions who sympathize with the poor and helpless in their struggles for the necessities and comforts of life, who realize that the good things of this earth are unequally and often inequitably distributed, who condone much of the crime and violence committed by poverty in its ignorance and desperation, and who would willingly risk much and sacrifice much to ameliorate the hard conditions of many of those who toil. This spirit of altruism, almost universal, is the most hopeful symptom of our bewildering epoch. I do not belittle it; for I know that I share it. But I also know that while legislation may do much to check and punish rapacity and protect the ignorant, only Christianity—not as a state religion or an abstract faith, but as a vital, dynamic principle of individual living, can cure the evils of mankind. There is infallible authority for that statement. Hate can not do it; sabotage can not do it; syndicalism can not do it; legislation can not do it; majorities can not do it.

INTERESTING JOINT DISCUSSION ON SOCIALISM.—A discussion of much more than usual interest begins in the October number of Everybody's Magazine on the subject, "Socialism, promise or menace." This debate occurs between Mr. Morris Hillquit on the one side and Reverend John Augustine Ryan, D. D., on the other. Mr. Hillquit is a well-known socialist writer, author of History of Socialism in the United States, and Socialism in Theory and Practice, and has been a delegate to the national conventions of the Socialist Party since 1899, and to the congresses and conventions at Amsterdam, Stuttgart, Copenhagen, and Brussels. Reverend Ryan is professor of moral theology and economics at Saint Paul's Seminary (Catholic), Saint Paul, Minnesota, and is author of A Living Wage. The subject discussed is International Socialism. Mr. Hillquit brands Christian Socialism, State Socialism, etc., as "bastard offshoots" from the main branch, the chief function of which is "to confuse the minds" of unwary critics. The opening numbers of this debate appearing in the October issue display a dignified, courteous, and fair spirit that is very commendable. It is a pity that discussions of religion can not always be conducted upon the same high plain of dispassionate logic. It remains, of course, to be seen whether or not this spirit will continue throughout the debate.

INTERESTING STATISTICS.—Statistics are often said to be dry and uninteresting. Occasionally, however, certain statistics may be brought together in a way not only to attract our attention, but also to suggest significant social, religious, and other conditions. Our Church Recorder, Brother C. I. Carpenter, furnishes us with statistics compiled from cards in his department and showing baptisms for the years 1911 and 1912 in various districts from Maine to California. One thousand cards were included in this collection and were taken at random. The statistics show that of these one thousand baptisms sixty-five per cent were performed by missionaries; thirty-six per cent of the candidates were males, and sixty-four per cent females; thirty-six per cent of all candidates were under the age of fifteen years. It is a well known fact that in the present day women show more activity in the various churches than do men. It is also claimed that the early adolescent period is the one in which individuals are more likely to show interest in matters religious; that is, they are more easily reached in this period. The statistics herein reported can with reasonable certainty be said to represent the condition in our ranks. It would seem, therefore, that the latter-day message finds about the same conditions with which to contend that confront various other propaganda.

EN ROUTE.—Elsewhere in this issue will be found a long letter from Brother G. T. Griffiths, descriptive of the journey of himself and Brother C. Edward Miller en route to Australia. They had reached the Hawaiian Islands. The letter tells of the warm reception given them there by the American missionaries and the native Saints.

JERUSALEM REACHED.—We are in receipt of letters from Brother U. W. Greene, stating that he and Brother and Sister Koehler reached Jerusalem, September 14. Brother Greene says they are comfortably situated, and that they went at once to work. The letters will appear in early issues of the HERALD, perhaps next week, and the week following.

EPITOME PUBLISHED.—Brethren A. T. Higdon and Roy Budd, conducting tent services at Metz, Missouri, were accorded the privilege of publishing in the Metz Times for October 3 a brief epitome of the faith, following a comprehensive announcement of the meetings and statement of their success. A cut of Elder Higdon accompanied the announcement and epitome.

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS.—The fight on the latter-day work makes strange bedfellows. The active representative of the National Anti-Mormon Missionary Association of the Churches of Christ, an issue of the Christian Church, progressive, has for a long time been occupying space in publications of the Church of Christ, Anti-Christian. These two institutions are bitterly opposed to each other on many points: The organ in divine worship, the Sunday school, missionary societies, etc. They conduct a continuous running war on each other. Their only point of agreement is in a fight on the truth. They unite in this one herculean effort because the latter-day message strikes at the very foundation of their superstructures. None know better than do these people the consequences of latter-day truth. As was expressed by one at Omaha, Nebraska, upon the occasion of the organization of the National Anti-Mormon Association, "They [Latter Day Saints] have taken more people from our church than all other religious people." When truth strikes error the reaction is general and combined regardless of the relation of factions to each other. In the divided brotherhood of Alexander Campbell we have no exception to the rule.

---

Go, rose, since you must,
 Flowerless and chill the winter draweth nigh;
 Closed are the blithe and fragrant lips which made
 All summer long perpetual melody.
 Cheerless we take our way, but not afraid;
 Will there not be more roses—by and by?
 —Susan Coolidge.

Original Articles

SACRAMENT OF THE LORD'S SUPPER.

--PART 2.

BY FREDERICK M. SMITH.

INSUBSTANTIATION.

The foregoing will suffice for the historical development of the Eucharist in the Romish Church. Less rapid and definite was its development in the Greek Church. According to Harnack it was not until the time of Eusebius, whose death occurred in 340 A. D., that there appeared any idea in the Eastern Church that there is in the Lord's supper the oblation of the body of the Christ. The slowness of the "eastern fathers" "in fixing so concrete a theory of the eucharist as transubstantiation" Mr. Adamson thinks is due to the more mystical character of Greek theology. Clement of Alexandria, (150-220 A. D.) as a thinker under the influence of the philosophical thought of his time and land, was disposed to minimize the value of knowledge gathered from sensuous media, and "was ever ready to interpret the sensuous in terms of the allegorical and symbolical" (Adamson, The Christian Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, p. 45).

"The mystical symbol, then of the holy blood," says Clement, "the Scripture hath called wine. . . . He (Christ) allegorically speaks of the Word who was poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins, the holy Fount of Joy. But that what was blessed was wine he showed again, saying to the disciples, 'I will not drink of the fruit of the vine,' etc. But that what was drunk by the Lord was wine, he himself says of himself, upbraiding the Jews with boldness of heart."

Adamson, to show the "spiritualizing style of Clement," quotes the following:

Twofold is the blood of the Lord. The one is his natural blood, by which we have been redeemed from destruction; the other, spiritual, i. e., wherewith we are anointed. And this is to drink the blood of Jesus, to partake of the immortality of the Lord. But the virtue of the Word is the Spirit, as blood is of the flesh. Analogously, then, the wine is mingled with the water and the spirit with the man. The one, the mingled drink, feasteth unto faith; the other, the Spirit, leadeth to immortality. And the mingling of both again, of the draught and the Word, is called Eucharist.—Ibid., p. 46.

Of Origen (185-254) Mr. Adamson says:

His life was one ceaseless effort after close fellowship with the unseen and the eternal. He strove rather to ascend into the suprasensuous than to bring the unseen down into the form of the sensuous. . . . What Origen characteristically accentuates is the Word, the Truth which alone lends meaning to the symbol. "It is not the substance of the bread, but the word spoken over it, which benefits."—Ibid., p. 47.

The idea that the eucharist has sacrificial value does not appear in the development of the eucharist doctrine in the East until, as has been noted before, the time of Eusebius of Cæsarea (264-340 A. D. bishop, 315 A. D.) Saint Gregory Naz (330-389 A. D.), a Greek churchman, in his desire to see in the Lord's supper a "continuation of the process of the Incarnation," (Ibid., p. 49) developed his theory of transformation, closely allied to the transubstantiation theory. As the divine Logos residing in the body of Christ transformed it into the Divine, so through consecration the divine Presence brought into the bread transforms it into the Divine body, the form only and not the substance being changed in the elements. This theory is not transubstantiation as later developed; but Harnack credits this theory of Gregory with being responsible for all subsequent developments, "especially the liturgical, and for the nominally Christian heathenism" (Ibid., p. 50). By the middle of the eighth century, John of Damascus (676-754 A. D.) had combined "the realism of Gregory and the ritualism of Dionysius" into the view of the eucharist ratified by the Greek Church at the second Nicene Council, 787 A. D., according to which the elements are by the Holy Spirit taken into the body of Christ. Commenting on the resemblance of this theory to the one held by the Romish Church, Adamson says:

In spite of its resemblance to the Romish doctrine, the distinction must be kept in mind. The Greek theory may be called that of insubstantiation as contrasted with transubstantiation. As the Roman view suggests the idea of Christ's body suddenly descending from heaven and taking the place of the elements, the Greek view represents the glorified Christ as assuming the transformed elements into himself. It is often asserted that the Greek Church holds the Roman doctrine, but his excellency Joannes Gennadios has recently quoted with approval the statement of the late Dean Stanley, that transubstantiation "if used at all (by the Greek Church) as a theological term, is merely one amongst many to express the reverential awe with which the eucharist is approached." The distinction, somewhat subtle, no doubt, may be expressed in the words of Dorner: "The Greek doctrine remains distinct from the Romish transubstantiation. The latter makes the elements to be annihilated as to substance, and merely the semblance—the species, figure, of the same—to be left. The Greeks endeavor so to interpret the miracle as to suppose the elements to continue, while holding a transference of them to the substance of the body and blood, whereby they become accidents of this other substance. The transformation is therefore to be regarded as an implanting in another substance. . . . The Greeks, however, notwithstanding the analogy of the incarnation suggested here, reject the hypostatic union of Christ with the elements. The obverse, then, of this implanting in Christ's body and blood is that Christ's body and blood sustain the elements and are present under their veil." The Greeks thus escape such an identification of the elements with Christ as would make the same happen to Christ's body and blood as happens to the elements, say, in the act of partaking. In one word, then, the Greek Metousiosis is not the Latin transubstantio.

Other points of difference between the Greek and Latin churches are the use in the former of leavened bread, communion in both kinds, and children's participation, confirmation following baptism. Both churches are at one in considering the eucharist to be a propitiatory sacrifice.—Ibid., pp. 51, 52.

LUTHER'S POSITION.

The reformers quickly turned their guns of criticism upon the Roman theory of transubstantiation, Luther making the first serious inroads upon it; though Wyclif, Huss, and others had directed their criticism upon it. "It was," says Adamson, "the doctrine of justification by faith, discovered and applied by Luther and others, that proved the irresistible solvent of the superstitious system connected with the mass" (Ibid., p. 56). As for his ideas of the bodily presence in the eucharist it must be admitted that Luther did not get far away from the doctrine of transubstantiation, his own theory of consubstantiation being closely allied to it. He taught that there was not an actual change in the elements, yet there was present with the natural bread and wine the body and blood of Jesus, "as fire is in red-hot iron, or a sword in a sheath," and that it was so truly present that it was "bitten by the teeth" of the communicant. (Life and Letters of Martin Luther, by Preserved Smith, p. 238.)

Adamson states:

The process by which Luther arrived at his position might be summarized thus: The objective view of the sacrament as a genuine means of saving benefit must be vindicated against the Quietists. The frankest method of vindication is to teach the bodily Presence. Now this Presence can be none other than that of the exalted Christ, whose glorified body must therefore be ubiquitous (Occam's Scholasticism). The eucharist then, is the parallel to the incarnation (Paschasius Radbertus again). As Godhead and humanity are blended in the incarnation so the whole Christ is united with the untransubstantiated yet consubstantiated elements (Nominalism invoked). Result: That in and with the bread the body of Christ is truly partaken of; that accordingly all that takes place actively and passively in the bread takes place actively and passively in the body of Christ; "that the latter is distributed, eaten, and masticated with the teeth." The Lutheran Church thus began to relapse into a "miserable doublette" of the Roman. In justice, however, to Luther himself, it should be said that in his own case this decadent view never detached him from the original evangelical truths which it is his glory to have rediscovered for the world.—Christian Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, p. 60.

From Luther's theory of consubstantiation it is evident his conservatism would not permit him to get farther away from his old religion than he was compelled to by adherence to the principles on which he based his reform. Speaking of Luther on this line Adamson says:

The Roman Catholic view of the Presence in the sacrament continued to be invested with a certain glamour in his eyes. "Good rough old Martin Luther" had, besides, a liking for the concrete; or, in other words, "he felt most deeply the importance of the objective means of grace." Intellectually, again Luther's strength did not lie in metaphysics. Philosophically, he remained to the end under the influence of the Schoolmen, whose subtle distinctions and intricate dialectic he was not best fitted to employ, as unhappily he attempted to do in his eucharistical controversy with Zwingli. Had he in this province only preserved his earlier manner, had he made no mauvais pas, there would have been little to regret.—Ibid., p. 58.

Luther's attack on the Roman theory of the eucharist was wrapped up in his larger denunciation of the Catholic idea of the sacrament when he asserted (victoriously, according to Harnack) his three propositions:

(1) that the sacraments are of service for the forgiveness of sins and for nothing else, (2) that they do not "become efficacious in their being celebrated, but in their being believed in," . . . (3) that they are a peculiar form of the saving Word of God (of the self-realizing promise of God,) and therefore have their power from the historic Christ. In consequence of this view Luther reduced the sacraments to two (three)—nay, at bottom, to one only, namely, the Word of God.—History of Dogma, vol. 7, p. 216.

Luther's own words on this question are:

Giving the cup to the laity at communion is enjoined by the Bible and forbidden by the pope; wherefore I shall proceed to show that they are wicked who deny the sacrament in both kinds to laymen. In order to do this more conveniently, I shall sing a prelude on the captivity of the Roman Church.

In the first place I deny that the sacraments are seven in number, and assert that there are only three, baptism, penance, and the Lord's supper, and that all these three have been bound by the Roman Curia in a miserable captivity, and that the church has been deprived of all her freedom. Howbeit, should I wish to speak according to the usage of Scripture, I should say that there was only one sacrament and three sacramental signs.—Life and Letters of Martin Luther, by Preserved Smith, p. 89.

Commenting on the above, Mr. Smith says:

Before summarizing Luther's criticisms of the Roman sacramental system, it may conduce to clearness to give the briefest possible account of that system. Sacramentum in Latin means a sacred thing, and by the early fathers was applied to a number of holy objects, for example, the cross of Christ. It soon came to have the more special meaning that it now bears, that of a rite of the church to which a spiritual meaning is attached, the two distinguishing characteristics of a sacrament being an outward sign and a promise. Thus the rite of distributing the bread and wine, with the promise of forgiveness, constituted the eucharist, the immersion or sprinkling with water, with the promise of salvation (Mark 16: 16) is baptism. In like manner confession and forgiveness (James 5: 16) were made the sacrament of penance, and the anointing of the sick with oil for his recovery and forgiveness (James 5: 14 and 15) became the sacrament of supreme unction. Confirmation and orders had the same sign, the laying on of hands, but with a different purpose, the first to strengthen a layman in his faith, the other to impart the spiritual character to a priest (Acts 6: 6; 13: 3; 1 Timothy 4: 14; 2 Timothy 1: 6). Finally, marriage was made a sacrament for two peculiar reasons. Peter Lombard, who first formulated the doctrine (circa 1100), was like many ancient and medieval philosophers, much under the obsession of sacred numbers. Having as yet but six sacraments, he wished to complete the sacred seven by the addition of another, and hit upon matrimony, which is not a specially Christian institution at all, but one common to all mankind.—Ibid., pp. 89, 90.

CALVIN'S IDEAS.

Calvin in his "Institutes" refutes the theories of transubstantiation and consubstantiation and presents his own theory in which he holds that there are in the Lord's supper two things, the bread and wine as perceived by the natural senses, and Christ "by whom our souls are inwardly fed, as with their own proper aliment." "A true communication of Jesus Christ is presented to us in the supper." "The internal substance of the sacrament is conjoined with the visible signs; and as the bread is distributed to us by the hand, so the body of Christ is communicated to us, in order that we may be made partakers of it." "The spiritual means whereby the bread and wine become to us the body and blood are faith on the part of the communicant; the Holy Spirit carrying us to heaven, that we may there behold Christ in the glory of his kingdom; and the energy of Christ, who can manifest his presence by the exercise of his power, wherever he pleases, in earth or heaven."

As an example of the positive force of Calvin's ideas, Adamson quotes the following passage from the "Institutes":

Christ is the only food of our soul, and therefore our heavenly Father invites us to him, that refreshed by communion with him, we may ever and anon gather new vigor until we reach the heavenly immortality. But as the mystery of the secret union of Christ with believers is incomprehensible by nature, he exhibits its figure and image in visible signs adapted to our capacity, nay, by giving, as it were, earnestness and badges, he makes it as certain to us as if it were seen by the eye; the familiarity of the symbol giving it access to minds however dull, and showing that our souls are fed by Christ just as the corporeal life is sustained by bread and wine. We now, therefore, understand the end which this mystical benediction has in view, namely, to assure us that the body of Christ was once sacrificed for us, so that we may now eat it, and, eating, feel within ourselves the efficacy of that one sacrifice,—that his blood was once shed for us so as to be our perpetual drink. This is the force of the promise which is added, "take, eat; this is my body which is broken for you." The body which was once offered for our salvation we are enjoined to take and eat; that while we see ourselves made partakers of it, we may safely conclude that the virtue of that death will be made efficacious in us. Hence he terms the cup the covenant in his blood. For in the covenant which he once sanctioned by his blood he in a manner renews, or rather continues, in so far as regards the confirmation of our faith, as often as he stretches forth his sacred blood as drink to us.—The Christian Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, p. 68.

IN THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND.

The development of the eucharistic doctrine in England appears in the various editions of the Prayer Book. In 1549 an edition appeared called, "The Booke of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and other Rites and Ceremonies of the Church; after the use of the Church of England." The "Supper of the Lord and the holy communion commonly called the Mass," is treated of in one section, where the following language of the Epiklesis is found: "And with thy Holy Spirit and word vouchsafed to bless and sanctify these thy gifts and creatures of bread and wine, that they may be unto us the body and blood of thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ" (Ibid., p. 68). Wine and a "little pure and clean water" are to be mixed in the chalice, while the unleavened bread is to be received by the people "in their mouths" rather than their hands, to avoid the chance of the bread being secretly taken away and "abused to superstition and wickedness." It is further provided that there "shall always some communicate with the priest that ministereth" (Ibid., p. 68).

Later the English formula was slightly changed to read: "Grant that we, receiving these thy creatures of bread and wine, according to thy Son our Savior Jesus Christ's holy institution, in remembrance of his death and passion, may be partakers of his most blessed body and blood." The necessity of a number being present with the priest during communion was made more emphatic, while to promote reverence and order it was enjoined upon the communicants to kneel during reception. Adoration of the elements was prohibited as this view of the Presence was set out: "As concerning the natural body and blood of our Savior Christ, they are in heaven and not here. For it is against the truth of Christ's true and natural body to be in more places than in one at one time." This Calvinistic view precludes any belief in the "real and essential presence" of Christ's flesh and blood.

King Edward's Prayer-Books, according to Adamson, "formed the basis of those of Queen Elizabeth," while the "present Thirty-nine Articles are based on the Forty-two Articles agreed upon in the Convocation and published by the King's Majesty" (Ibid., p. 71). From Edward VI Adamson quotes the thirty-ninth article, on the Lord's supper, as follows:

The supper of the Lord is not only a sign of the love that Christians ought to have among themselves one to another; but rather it is a sacrament of our redemption by Christ's death; insomuch that to such as worthily, rightly, and with faith, receive the same, the bread which we break is a communion of the body of Christ; likewise the cup of blessing is a communion of the blood of Christ. Transubstantiation, or the change of the substance of Christ's body and blood, can not be proven from Holy Writ; but it is repugnant to the plain words of scripture, and hath given occasion to many superstitions. Forasmuch as the truth of man's nature requireth that the body of one and the selfsame man can not be at one time in divers places, but must needs be in some one certain place; therefore the body of Christ can not be at one time in many and divers places. And because (as Holy Scripture doth teach) Christ was taken up into heaven, and shall there continue unto the end of the world; a faithful man ought not either to believe or openly confess the real and bodily presence (as they term it) of Christ's flesh and blood in the sacrament of the Lord's supper. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was not commanded by Christ's ordinance to be kept, carried about, lifted up, nor worshiped.

This view of the eucharist brings from Adamson the following comment:

Had Edward's Prayer-Books and Articles remained unmodified by Elizabethan action, whatever might have been their divisive effect in the English Church at the time, much nineteenth century and current controversy arising from the designed ambiguity of the present formularies would clearly have been avoided.—Ibid., p. 72.

However, no vital changes were made in the sacrament. After covering minor alterations through which the ritual passed, Mr. Adamson concludes:

The variations through which the Prayer-Book has passed have not effaced its Calvinistic features. While the extreme ritualist of to-day may read into the communion service more than the Edwardians of the sixteenth century would have admitted, the holders of the Calvinistic view (and even of a lower view) may all unaffectedly rejoice in the beautiful Communion Office of the English Church.

THE CHURCH IN SCOTLAND.

As for the idea of the eucharist prevailing in the church in Scotland, it is substantially as set out in the Scots Confession and the First Booke of Discipline (1560) prepared by Knox and others:

And thus we utterly condemn the vanity of those who affirm the sacraments to be nothing else but naked and bare signs; no, we assuredly believe that by baptism we are engrafted in Christ Jesus to be made partakers of his justice, whereby our sins are covered and remitted: and also that in the supper rightly used Christ Jesus is so joined with us that he becomes very nourishment and food to our souls; not that we imagine any transubstantiation of bread into Christ's natural body, and of wine into his natural blood, as the Papists have perniciously taught and damnably believe; but this union and conjunction which we have with the body and blood of Christ Jesus, in the right use of the sacraments, is wrought by operation of the Holy Ghost, who by true faith carrieth us above all things that are visible, carnal, and earthly, and maketh us to feed upon the body and blood of Christ Jesus, which was once broken and shed for us, which is now in heaven, and appeareth in the presence of his Father for us: and yet notwithstanding the far distance of place which is between his body now glorified in heaven, and us now mortal on this earth; yet we most assuredly believe that the bread which we break is the communion of his body, and the cup which we bless is the communion of his blood. So that we confess and undoubtedly believe that the faithful in the right use of the Lord's table, do so eat the body and drink the blood of the Lord Jesus, that he remaineth in them and they in him; yea, they are so made flesh of his flesh and bone of his bones, that as the eternal Godhead hath given to the flesh of Christ Jesus (which of its own nature was mortal and corruptible) life and immortality; so doth Christ Jesus his flesh and blood, eaten and drunken by us, give unto us the same prerogatives. Which, albeit we confess are neither given unto us at this time only, neither by the proper virtue and power of the sacrament only; yet we affirm that the faithful in the right use of the Lord's table, have such conjunction with Christ Jesus, as the natural man can not apprehend; yea, and further, we affirm that albeit the faithful, oppressed by negligence and manly infirmity, do not profit so much as they would, in the very instant action of the supper, yet shall it after bring fruit forth, as lively seed sown in good ground; for the Holy Spirit which can never be divided from the right institution of the Lord Jesus, will not frustrate the faithful of the fruit of that mythical action; but all these we say come of true faith which apprehendeth Christ Jesus, who only maketh his sacraments effectual unto us. . . .

Then to the end that we may be worthy partakers of his merits and most comfortable benefits, which is the true eating of his flesh and drinking of his blood, let us not suffer our minds to wander about the consideration of these earthly and corruptible things (which we see present with our eyes and feel with our hands) to seek Christ's bodily presence in them, as if he were enclosed in the bread and wine, or as if the elements were turned and changed into the substance of his flesh and blood; for the only way to dispose our souls to receive nourishment, relief, and quickening of his substance, is to lift up our minds by faith above all things worldly and sensible, and thereby to enter into heaven, that we may find and receive Christ, where he dwelleth undoubtedly very God and very Man, in the incomprehensible glory of his Father. . . .

We utterly renounce the error of the Papists; secondly, we restore unto the sacrament his own substance and to Christ his proper place. As for the words of the Lord's supper, we rehearse them, not because they should change the substance of the bread or wine, or that the repetition thereof, with the intent of the sacrificer, should make the sacrament, as the Papists falsely believe, but they are read and pronounced to teach us how to behave ourselves in that action, and that Christ might witness unto our faith, as it were with his own mouth, that he hath ordained these signs to our spiritual use and comfort; we do first therefore, examine ourselves, according to Saint Paul's rule, and prepare our minds, that we may be worthy partakers of so high mysteries; then taking bread, we give thanks, break and distribute it as Christ our Savior hath taught us; finally, the administration ended, we give thanks again according to his example, so that without his word and warrant there is nothing in this holy action attempted.

Later a Confession of Faith was adopted as "agreed upon by the Assembly of Divines at Westminster with the assistance of Commissioners from the Church of Scotland (1642-1643), approved by the Scottish General Assembly in 1647, and ratified by the Scottish Parliament in 1649." "These Presbyterian standards," says Adamson (Ibid., p. 88), "are frankly Calvinistic, though by no means hyper-Calvinistic."

The Larger Catechism declares the sacraments to be effectual means of salvation, not by any power in themselves or in the administrator, but by the working of the Holy Ghost and the blessing of Christ. . . . In the sacrament no real sacrifice is made at all for the remission of sins of the quick or dead, but only a commemoration of the sacrifice of the cross. Therefore the popish sacrifice of the Mass is "most abominably injurious to Christ's one and only sacrifice." Transubstantiation is repugnant not to Scripture alone, but even to common sense and reason, and overthrows the nature of a sacrament. Consubstantiation is excluded; for the body and blood are not corporeally in, with, or under the bread and wine.

Yet the outward Elements are not devoid of a relation to Christ. There is such a relation between them and him "as that truly yet sacramentally only, they are sometimes called by the name of the things they represent, to-wit, the body and blood of Christ." In substance and nature, however, they still remain truly and only bread and wine as they were before. Ministers are to declare Christ's Word of Institution to the people, to pray and bless the elements of bread and wine, and thereby to set them apart from a common to a holy use.—Ibid., pp. 90, 91.

The latter half of the seventeenth century was marked by some skeptical controversies on the sacrament, while the eighteenth century, not marked by a warm religious sentiment, shows somewhat of a dearth in eucharistical development. Butler, Paley, and others of the church, theologians were kept busy offsetting by apologetic arguments the effects of the skepticism of Voltaire, Hume, and Rousseau.

IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

The reaction of the nineteenth century in philosophy, literature, and religious thought from the prevailing spirit of the eighteenth brought a revival of the religious controversies and contributions to the literature of religion; but the general attitude toward the eucharist changed but little. Adamson, in commenting on the literature of this period, pays particular attention to a work by Charles Gore on The Body of Christ, of which he makes a brief review. From this review we quote some paragraphs as being of interest to one following the historical development of the eucharistic idea:

In his valuable work, The Body of Christ, we have a most candid and thoughtful inquiry into our subject. Starting with Goethe's idea of a sacrament as a "partaking of heavenly under the form of earthly nourishment," Gore premises that we can not be satisfied with any theory which makes the eucharist a mere metaphor for believing in Christ or receiving his words. The flesh and blood of Christ mean a gift which faith receives but does not create. It is a point of agreement amongst the reformers that there is in the sacrament an actual and substantial communication to us of Christ's body and blood, his life and self, to be our spiritual food. The sacramental principle, that a spiritual gift should be communicated by God to man through the medium of a material ceremony, is in accordance with a true philosophy of the relations possible between spirit and matter. The main questions, then, to be answered are these: What is meant by the body and blood of Christ in connection with the sacrament? How is Christ spiritually present? What is done in the eating and drinking? What is necessary on the part of the communicant? In what sense is the eucharist a sacrifice?

The sacramental body of Christ is his glorified body only not now in its material particles, but in its spiritual power and virtue. The flesh of Christ is not a flesh of material constituents, but the spiritual principle of his glorified manhood. The blood of Christ is equivalent to the human life of Jesus in his glory. The union of the supernatural life of Christ with the natural elements is not hypostatical. Transubstantiation is both unscriptural and unpatristic. The presence of Christ in the sacrament is spiritual; and a spiritual presence is one in which the Holy Spirit, or generally spiritual purposes, effectively manifests itself, and which it effectively controls. In the eating and drinking, therefore, that which the communicant partakes of is the spiritual energy of the glorified Lord. It requires faith not only to appreciate, but to entertain and receive it. As to the sacrificial character of the rite, the church "can but make the appointed remembrance of Christ's passion and death and resurrection, and of his second coming which she awaits, and offer to the Father the appointed symbols, praying him by the consecrating power of the Holy Ghost to fill the sacrifice with a divine power by accepting the earthly elements at the heavenly altar." There is no repetition of the sacrifice upon the cross. The sacrificial offerings of worship, of gifts, of self, lend to the communion a sacrificial value of their own. . . .

Our historical sketch may be brought to a close with a word upon the attitude of Roman Catholic thought at the present time. Modern philosophies of the relations between matter and spirit have not failed to exercise some influence upon Roman opinion. Attempts have been made to improve upon the earlier grossness attaching to a materialistic view of transubstantiation. Whereas formerly the substances of the bread and wine were said to be changed into the substances of the body and blood of Christ, the accidents remaining; a more substantial character is now attributed to the accidents. This amounts to a virtual abandonment of the old attempt to distinguish between substance and accident. The accidents being formerly considered to be unsubstantial veils, the mind had no interest in asking what became of them in the process of digestion and corruption. Such a question, however, inevitably suggests itself to the more scientific mind of to-day. This difficulty is now met by the explanation that at a certain stage after the reception of the elements, "the supernatural substances are withdrawn and the natural substances (of bread and wine in the process of digestion or corruption) are restored, and the accidents have again "a subject to inhere in." Doctor Gore is surely right in condemning this expedient as failing to obviate materialistic and unspiritualising results. For, of course, the further query arises, at what stage after reception does Christ withdraw himself from the elements? After a quarter of an hour, it is suggested. But this comes perilously near to a reductio ad absurdum.

Again, there is an important particular in which later Roman theology derogates from the sacrifice of Calvary even more than medieval opinion. Each Mass, it is now held, involves an actual resacrificing of the victim. The syllogism would run thus: The Mass is a sacrifice; a proper sacrifice requires the destruction of the object sacrificed: therefore in the Mass Christ is sacrificed. In submitting himself to be broken and bled in each Mass, he submits himself to be repeatedly crucified. To this we might reply first, that there is here some reasoning in a circle; and, secondly, that such a view connects the rite too exclusively with Calvary as compared with Christ's presence in heaven for us. Christ having died, dieth no more, but now ever liveth to make intercession for us.—Ibid., pp. 122, et sequentes.

(To be concluded.)

• • • • •

STEWARDSHIP.

I have appointed unto you to be stewards over mine house, even stewards indeed.—Doctrine and Covenants 101:10.

We are stewards indeed, most assuredly. I have often thought that we forget that we are stewards and that we shall answer to God for our faithfulness or unfaithfulness. It is just as important to continue right as to begin right. You do not require to be told, "Ye must be born again." Well, it is a fact you have been appointed a "steward over earthly blessings." What are you going to do about it? Are you going to ignore it?

"It is wisdom in me . . . that I, the Lord, should make every man accountable, as stewards over earthly blessing, which I have made and prepared for my creatures" (Doctrine and Covenants 101:2).

This principle is just as important, just as true, just as much in force now as the one you yielded to, to come into the church. "Ye must be born again." Would you be in the church if you had not obeyed? Surely not. Can you "abide in" if you fail to act wisely as a steward? God "will render to every man according to his deeds." (Romans 2:6.) And again: "So then everyone of us shall give an account of himself to God." (Romans 14:12.) "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock." (Matthew 7:24.)

In our spiritual, as well as our material life, we want to build securely, safely. "If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches?" (Luke 16:11.) "And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?" (Luke 16:12.)

Now listen to what the Lord says: "And again, a commandment I give unto you concerning your stewardship which I have appointed unto you; (now note this) behold, all these properties are mine." (Doctrine and Covenants 101:10.) Therefore, we are stewards in charge of these "earthly blessings." We are to so use them that God can approve of our actions as in harmony with his will.

We are to be so consecrated to his cause that we will love our neighbor as ourselves, lose our selfishness, live to bless others. "The Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind." Certainly he is not going to compel you in the performance of your duties as steward any more than he did to be born into the kingdom. And the willing and obedient shall eat of the good of the land of Zion in these last days: and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land. Why not? Because they were unfaithful stewards and did not impart of their substance as becometh Saints (faithful stewards) over the manifold blessings of God.

Were it not for the transgressions of my people, . . . they might have been redeemed even now; but, behold, they have not learned to be obedient to the things which I require at their hands, but are full of all manner of evil, and do not impart of their substance, (as stewards) as becometh Saints, to the poor and afflicted among them, and are not united according to the union required by the law of the celestial kingdom; and Zion can not be built up unless it is by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom, otherwise I can not receive her unto myself; and my people must needs be chastened until they learn obedience, if it must needs be, by the things which they suffer.—Doctrine and Covenants 102:2.

This was the mind of God in 1834, and as we are positively assured he does not change, that is his mind now. When I was a boy at school I was told: Whatever you do, do with your might, for things done by halves are never done right. That is a good rule in our stewardship. If we do not do it right God will not accept of our services and we will be like the unjust steward in Luke 16; we will be deposed from our stewardship. Do you want that?

"Let everyone be persuaded in his own mind."

CHARLES A. PARKIN.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

A SYMPOSIUM ON THE DUTIES OF A PASTOR.

"DUTIES OF OFFICERS" SERIES.

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following questions have been submitted to some of the brethren of the ministry, mostly men experienced in pastoral work. The answers given may be profitable and interesting to the Saints generally, and particularly to presidents of branches. Those answering in this number are: Elder M. H. Bond, of the Independence Stake, Elder Russell Archibald, of Saint Louis, Missouri, and Elder J. M. Terry, of Oakland, California. Another installment on this same subject will follow at a later date.]

1. What is your conception of the work of a pastor, his relationship to the people under his charge, and his methods of administering to their needs?
2. What is the relationship of the branch president to the other branch officers? Should he allow each officer to run his own department quite independently? Or should he assign them their work and keep the reins rather closely in his own hands?
3. How can the branch president keep the officers under him in touch with each other and with himself so as to secure thorough cooperation?
4. Should he permit the various officers of the branch to settle such matters as appointing speakers, etc., by vote in the priesthood meeting? Or should he conduct these matters as he is led by the Holy Spirit in his ministry?
5. How should the work of the teacher be arranged? Should he visit freely among the members as he may feel disposed? Or should the president give him a list of names that need labor, and assign such cases to him in that way?
6. When one of the lesser officers has a measure or policy that he feels should be carried out, should he submit it to the branch president or to the priesthood meeting, or should he go ahead on his own initiative?
7. On what matters should the officers confer in the priesthood meetings?

AS SEEN BY ELDER M. H. BOND.

1. In answer to your first inquiry, Saint Paul has told us, (Ephesians 4:11) that God set, among other officers in the church, pastors, and for purposes stated, namely, "the work of the ministry" and the edification "of the body of Christ."

The work of the pastor and the relations sustained under proper rule and procedure to the body over which he is called to preside, though differing from other church officers in specific ways, and as outlined in the more complete instruction given in our day, as in Doctrine and Covenants 17, is of no less importance—in fact, proper and efficient pastoral work may be signified in its importance from the fact that it is regarded as among the things that lie at the foundation of permanent church building.

To "preach the word," to baptize and lay hands on an individual, is to have gone but a little way in the "perfection" of a Saint. The successful pastor must be equipped with a knowledge of duties of officers beneath and above him in official rank, that he may know his place and act within the limits of duty, and with courage and wisdom act in his calling, and not in that of others.

(a) A pastor is, or should be, a preacher of "the word," especially that part which relates to orderly or disorderly, or careless deportment in regard to the law, which the member is supposed to be willing to be governed by; and to relegate this part of his duties to the visiting or casual minister, or even to those missionaries whose abilities to "entertain" the people are thought to be of a superior character; or, through a misplaced sense of "courtesy," or "modesty," upon his part, to neglect the law and the spiritual instruction to him in this regard is a mistake. This, however, may apply more particularly to large branches that include elders, local or traveling, in their midst.

(b) Pastoral visits should, when practicable, be had among the members, showing interest in all that pertains to their welfare, expressed by a loving and tender spirit and proper deportment, as relates to the sexes. In this kind of work the membership are won to him and will heed his advice or preaching in the pulpit. These visits are in no case to be a substitute for the work of the lesser officers, or an interference with their legitimate business.

2. The relation of all branch officers to each other is entirely interdependent, if the best success is aimed at; but the pastor or president, if understanding his duties, and willing and courageous and wise enough to act in his calling, is to stand as the advisory head of all departments of branch services, taking note of disposition to act independently or unwisely on the part of other branch officials.

3. One of the best or most effective means of successful cooperation between pastor and branch officers are frequent meetings for questions, instructions, etc.

4. My answer is no! This is not a matter in reference to or included in the law of "common consent." That idea is settled in the choice of himself as pastor, and as provided for in the law. In this, as in other matters, an arbitrary or assumptive, or contentious spirit is to be avoided, as much as is practical and consistent with a performance of duty.

5. In large branches it may be practical for the president to furnish to the teacher for visiting, a list of names, for instance, of members known to be careless and neglectful of duty; but I would not hold that the teacher should be barred from acting upon his own initiative, in many, if not a majority of cases.

6. I believe that a lesser officer with an idea or proposition for the introduction of any new measure or change regarding branch affairs should first submit his thought or plan to the presidency or the pastor, especially in large branches. It would not be wise to spring his propositions upon a priesthood meeting, in my opinion, without consultation with those who have by law been made the chief spiritual advisors in all matters of importance. (See answer to second inquiry).

7. Matters of local interest, such as relate to spiritual or even financial affairs connected with the branch, may be discussed; the discussion or interpretation of law, measures, policies, or precedent, relating to general church government, and relationship to the auxiliary societies of the church, etc., may follow in their order. Programs of topics for discussion furnished by the Independence Branch presidency have, I believe, proved profitable and satisfactory.

FROM ELDER RUSSELL ARCHIBALD.

1. The work of a pastor comprehends that with a general understanding of the entire work under his supervision he shall keep all departments working harmoniously and to the best possible advantage. This can best be accomplished through personal contact and acquaintance with every member of the congregation, knowing their strength as well as their weaknesses. The attitude of the pastor should be that of a father, which awakens a deep interest in the welfare of each member, and causes him to treat with the greatest consideration the particular weaknesses in individual character which he seeks to remove. Wisdom will soon demonstrate he is not dealing with persons, but dispositions and characters; and meeting the situation upon this plane the "personal" features which sometimes become embarrassing should, to him, be submerged and engrossed in the finished product which he is laboring to produce. The needs of individuals are varying, but there is a common ground of spiritual need from which all work of embellishment must proceed. The pastor is working upon material to produce a desired result, and the success of his undertaking depends upon his sensing the spiritual needs and administering to them in kindness, until he sees growing around him, in various stages of development, the Christian character. He must not only preach and practice the principles of the gospel. He should be acquainted with the home and social life of his flock. He must know the trend of the lives which he is seeking to develop; must know the other influences which are at work upon them and always keep the spiritual sentiments of the individual in the ascendancy. His course should be such that he would not need to seek out the ailing ones, but that they would turn to him for succor, knowing he was at all times in sympathy with their needs. The best recommendation which the true pastor can have from his flock is to have the weak ones coming to him with the greatest of confidence, seeking for help.

2. The branch being a complete organization in itself, it is quite necessary that each presiding officer should sense the work to be done in his department and see that it is accomplished. If this is done the branch president need not specially concern himself about their work. However, as the head, it is important that the president see to it that all the other officers are discharging their duty, and, in case they are not, take such steps as will result in their doing so. It should not be necessary that he assign to the priest, teacher, or deacon their particular work, so far as such work is outlined in the law; but where special cases are brought to his notice, demanding attention, he should make inquiry of the proper officer and assure himself that suitable action is being taken. In some grievous cases where the teacher is dealing with iniquity, he should keep a close watch of the proceedings, and the teacher should consult with him freely, that a complete understanding may obtain in all that is done,—this not with a view of being arbitrary, or causing the teacher to feel that he mistrusts him, but to insure the teacher of his support in all that is done and to establish greater confidence between them.

3. Where it can be done there is nothing better than for the branch officers to have regular meetings, where they may discuss the needs of the work, and exchange views. In all such meetings the lower officers should report fully to the president the conditions in their particular field, and ask for advice where they may feel it is needed. Such meetings bring before them all the work in its component parts in their relation to each other, and can not help but produce mutual sympathy and confidence among the officers.

4. In the matter of appointing speakers, etc., the branch president should take control, seeing that each meeting is properly provided for and that the very best work is secured in each case. In a sense he is thus conducting the meetings as he is led by the Spirit, leaving the more detailed direction to those immediately in charge. In all these matters he should have constantly before him the two-fold object of rendering at all times, through his appointees, the best service possible in the interests of the church and the people, at the same time affording opportunity for the development of the inexperienced and new members of the priesthood. One person handling a work of this kind can do so to better advantage than where there are several, and this responsibility primarily rests with the president of the branch.

5. In the absence of any specific instructions from the president of the branch, calling attention to cases which need immediate attention, the teacher should keep his work well in hand, visiting freely among the members in the discharge of his duty as outlined in the law. However, where the president finds it necessary to give him specific instructions, this work should be attended to in preference to other matters, and whatever may be his views in the case he should give due deference to the instructions of his superior officer. Where the president knows of cases requiring the work of the teacher in a special way, he should so inform the teacher, giving him at the time whatever instructions he may deem necessary.

6. The lesser officers should be encouraged to meditate upon the needs of the work in their particular fields, and should not fail to offer freely to the president, or in the branch priesthood meeting, any ideas which they consider will benefit the work. In quite a number of cases, where none but their immediate work would be affected, they would be justified in going ahead on their own initiative; but where the general interests of the work are involved, they should present the matter where all others interested can give it proper consideration.

7. The officers should confer freely on all matters which affect the interests of the branch. If there are any matters retarding the work they should be given consideration, and concerted action should be taken with a view to removing them. Special attention should always be given to that which it is deemed will advance the work, such as special services, the work of the auxiliaries, financial needs, etc. Where brethren are called to the ministry through the presiding officer he should submit said calls to the other branch officers before bringing them before the branch. These and any other matters which might arise affecting the interests of the church should properly be considered by the branch officers as occasion demands.

FROM THE VETERAN PASTOR, ELDER J. M. TERRY.

1. I base my answer on the supposition that by "pastor" is meant one called to preside, especially over the branch. With this understanding I would say his work is to freely yet prudently mingle with his flock, visiting at their homes—making his visits short and spicy; for visits, like sermons, are usually better enjoyed when short. In entering a home, notice only the pleasant features, and accommodate yourself to the surroundings. Listen patiently to the complaints, or whatever may be presented, always studying and praying for that spirit that will make of you a "peacemaker." Always have a cheerful spirit and have some good thing to say as you depart, leaving a pleasant farewell, and something good for them to think about. Sympathize with the troubled, and aid them to bear their burdens; do not seem indifferent to their woes. Mingling the disposition of father and mother to children, you get the disposition necessary for a good pastor,—the sternness of the father, and the pathetic, tender feeling of the mother.

2. The relationship of branch president to the other officers is, first, he is the alpha and omega—that is, the first and the last. First in the sense of having the responsibility of the whole work, and last in that he should be willing to be and really is servant of all. He should permit each officer to manage his own department, keeping in close touch with him, yet permitting him to bear his own responsibility—thus giving diversity and freedom instead of "one man" idea and servitude. However, he should hold the reins wisely, and in love and leniency direct.

3. There should be a very close relationship between the officers of a branch, and to this end frequent council meetings should be held, so that matters of importance may be discussed.

4. In such matters as appointing speakers, etc., the branch president should bear the burden principally alone, as he may be directed by the spirit of wisdom and revelation. It is and has been our custom to counsel with the priest in this regard, especially when we expect to be absent from the branch; but when present, we manage it alone. Our aim is to appoint such as will do the most good for the cause by presenting the work in the best way possible.

5. The teacher should visit mainly those who need visiting—the indifferent, the absentees, those in transgression, etc. The elder should assist him in this duty in every way possible.

6. All measures or policies conceived by any of the lesser officers that may be out of the ordinary line should by all means be submitted to the branch president if they pertain to or affect branch affairs—but if on general principles, it would be well to submit to a priesthood meeting.

7. Only matters pertaining to the general work should be submitted to priesthood meetings, not personal matters that belong to the branch officers alone, such as individual cases of transgression, or matters of a personal or private nature. I am very averse to giving unnecessary publicity to the unpleasant affairs which arise.

Of General Interest

A COOPERATIVE RURAL LAUNDRY.

For the man on the farm a great deal has already been done by the banishment of back-breaking labor, such as flail-threshing, scythe-mowing, and so forth. And many time and labor-saving household devices have also been invented. But one of the most promising helps towards the emancipation of the farmer's wife from household drudgery thus far evolved is the cooperative laundry, such as has been established in the little town of Chatfield, Minnesota. An account of this is given by Miss Mary A. Whedon, in the Farmer's Wife. If this experiment points the way to the solution of a big problem—namely, the abolition of the "blue Mondays and backache Tuesdays," it will go far toward making the life of the woman on the farm brighter and happier.

Conditions in Chatfield were, no doubt, the same as in practically any other rural community—for the problem of the week's wash is very much the same all over the country.

Chatfield had a successful creamery, for which success Mr. Chapman was largely responsible, and the fact whetted his appetite for further responsible success. Evidently tired of the lack of "step" between the work of men and women he divined the idea of utilizing the creamery power, taking an old churn run by a belt from the shaft which ran the creamery machinery, for his washing. There was always an abundance of hot water and steam to sterilize the clothes, and the more progressive men of the creamery company at once got the idea that it would be practical to use this surplus power and steam in doing the family washing of the creamery patrons.

Out of that spontaneous thought-germ has grown the first rural cooperative laundry of which America can boast.

The laundry has now been in operation about six months; its popularity is steadily increasing, and many enthusiastic testimonials from its patrons bear witness to its benefits. "All I have to do is to gather up the clothes Monday morning and see that the basket is set in the creamery wagon, and the clothes come back ready for wear. All this is done for five cents a pound," writes one woman. Especially laudatory of the laundry as a blessing are the mothers of large families of eight and ten, who, with hired labor scarce, have literally been submerged by the pile of soiled wash staring them in the face with persistent regularity each week.

But now the overworked farm wife of Chatfield and vicinity has more leisure and energy for other things.

There will be increased time and strength for the mother to interest herself in her children, their associates, their entertainments and their education. There will be more time and strength for the mothers in any one locality to come together and bring their common interest and their combined strength to the bettering of all their common conditions. There will be more time for the study of preparing balanced rations for the family diet. There will be more time to study sanitation, purify water supplies and to carry out the plans which will help to improve the grounds round about farm homes.

Considered solely from the financial side, the cooperative laundry is an economical institution, for with the amount of time spent at the wash-tub and at the ironing-board, the mending was often neglected, so that clothes had to be replaced more frequently. In addition, there were also the doctors' bills resulting from overworked bodies, overstrained nerves, pneumonia, and colds from exposure. Now there is a considerable saving in all these items.

This rural laundry has not only won the commendation of the patrons of the creamery, but the people of the village and the surrounding country gladly make use of it, carrying their washbaskets to platforms from which they are collected and taken to the laundry. Even the people of the surrounding towns send their baskets of soiled clothes to the laundry by train. Being a cooperative institution, the laundry is run not as a money-making proposition chiefly, but for its benefit to the community, and just pride is taken in the quality of the work turned out.

We are not surprised to be told by the writer that many inquiries regarding this enterprise have already come to the promoters of the Chatfield laundry from various parts of the country, which may result in the establishment of similar rural laundries elsewhere. It is certainly to be hoped that Miss Whedon is correct in her stated opinion that "the day is bound to come when it (the cooperative laundry) will be as common a thing as creameries and cheese factories." For this much desired relief from the unwarranted physical wear and tear of family washing processes, there would undoubtedly arise from farmers' wives all over the country a pæan of heartfelt thanksgiving. —American Review of Reviews for August.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

EACH FOR ALL.

The principle of cooperation for the correction of the industrial inequalities of the modern commercial world is being argued in many tongues and applied in many lands. The following sentiment, expressed recently in Glasgow, Scotland, as reported in the Kansas City Times for August 26, is interesting as representative of English thought on this live theme:

Cooperation as the basis of the ideal state of the future was the keynote of the address of Earl Grey, former governor general of Canada, at the opening of the congress of the International Cooperative Alliance here to-day. Cooperation would put a barrier against the tyranny of the trusts, he said, and would reconcile the warring forces of labor and capital.

Six hundred delegates were present, representing twenty million members of cooperative societies in America and England.

Earl Grey's views, enunciated with much fervor, were warmly applauded. He declared the application of the cooperative principle to the industrial life of Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany, Denmark and Ireland was proved by the substitution of organized distribution for unorganized distribution, cooperative buying for individual buying, cooperative transportation and marketing for individual selling, and the cooperative use of power for the individual use of machinery. The wants of both producer and consumer could thereby be met more effectively at a smaller cost, he held, thus assuring to the consumer a reduction in the cost of living and a greater command, not only of the necessities, but the comforts and conveniences of life, and to the producer a substantial increase in the amount of net profits available for distribution, which meant an increase fund from which alone could be drawn the high wages all desired for underpaid workers.

Although the delegates, Earl Grey continued, might be separated by differences of race, language and religion, they had met as one people under the flag of cooperative fraternity, carrying in their hearts the same motto, "Each for all and all for each."

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. Evelyn Burgess, vice president, 5920 Etzel Avenue, Saint Louis, Missouri.
 Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. Pearl Gardner, treasurer, 707 South Fuller Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, West Walnut Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.
 Mrs. M. Walker, honorary member, Lamoni, Iowa.

Superintendents of Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.
 Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, Lamoni, Iowa.
 Eugenics Department, Mrs. Jennie Studley.
 Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.
 Young Woman's Department, Mrs. Pearl Gardner, 707 South Fuller Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Sewing and Aid Department, Mrs. Minnie B. Nicholson, Lamoni, Iowa.

All money for the Auxiliary, including subscriptions for leaflets, should be sent to the treasurer, address as above. Money raised for the Children's Home by local societies or by scattered members working for the society should also be sent to the Woman's Auxiliary treasurer.

Woman's Auxiliary.

(Home and Child Welfare Department.)

November Reading.—Maria Montessori.

WHO IS SHE?

She is a woman of Rome, a physician, a scientist, and a pioneer in education, whose extraordinarily successful methods, first with deficient, then with normal children, is attracting world-wide attention.

A little less than six years ago, there was opened in Rome a school for young children of working mothers in one of the poor quarters of the city. The Italian name of this school was the Casa dei Bambini, and its meaning is "The House of the Children." This school was under the direction of Doctor Maria Montessori, and it is the methods employed by her in this first school and in others that soon followed that are bringing to her doors inquirers from far-away Australia, from Norway and Mexico, from British Columbia and Buenos Ayres, and, most of all, from the United States.

"Children's houses" multiplied in the poor districts and soon extended to the middle class in Rome, and the method is now being put to test in the United States.

AN EXTRAORDINARY WOMAN.

Maria Montessori was an only child of devoted parents, of middle class Italians. She developed into a singularly beautiful and gifted young woman, who, notwithstanding the social prejudices of her time, which would have debarred one of her sex from that broad course of study which she followed, fitted herself to be a physician, and, after graduation, received appointment as assistant doctor to the Psychiatric Clinic at Rome.

At that institution idiots and feeble-minded children were treated in connection with the really insane, and in her visits to the insane asylums, the attention of the young doctor was attracted to the deficient children lodged under the same roof. She found herself absorbed in a study of them.

Observing their unregulated movements, she traced the cause to the brain centers which so fitfully ruled the activities of these children. The question before her was one of getting at brain centers. This process is education.

"The doctor at work on these problems was all the time in active practice as a physician, an influence in her life which is not to be forgotten in summing up the elements which have formed her character. She was performing operations in the hospitals, taking charge of grave diseases in her private practice, exposing herself to infection of all sorts in the infectious wards of the hospitals, liable to be called up at any hour of the night to attend a case anywhere in the purlieus of Rome. It was a soldier, tried and tested in actual warfare in another part of the battle for the betterment of humanity, who finally took up the question of the training of the young."

WORK WITH DEFICIENT CHILDREN.

In order to concentrate her attention upon the problem of the development of deficient children, Doctor Montessori gave up her active practice as a physician and accepted the post of Director of the State Orthophrenic School, an institute for the feeble-minded.

"Throwing herself into the work, heart and soul, with all the ardor of her race and her own temperament, she utilized her finely-tempered brain and indomitable will, in the hand to hand struggle for the actual amelioration of existing conditions. For years she taught the children in the asylum under her care, devoting herself to them throughout every one of their waking hours, pouring into the poor cracked vases of their minds the full, rich blood of her own powerful intellect. All day she worked with her children, loved to idolatry by them, exhausting herself over their problems like the simplest, most unthinking, most unworldly and devout sister of charity; but at night she was the scientist again, arranging, classifying, clarifying the results of the day's observation, examining with minute attention the work of all those who had studied her problems before her, applying and elaborating every hint of theirs, every clew discovered in her own experiments. . . . Then, one day, as such things come, after long, uncertain efforts, a miracle happened. A supposedly deficient child, trained by her methods, passed the examinations of a public school with more ease, with higher marks than normal children prepared in the old way. The miracle happened again and again and then so often that it was no longer a miracle, but a fact to be foretold and counted on with certainty.

"Then the woman with the eager heart and trained mind drew a long breath, and, determining to make this first success only the cornerstone of a new temple, turned to a larger field of action, the field to which her every unconscious step had been leading her, the education, no longer only of the deficient, but of the normal young of the human race."

CONSCIOUS PREPARATION FOR HER TASK.

In 1900 Doctor Montessori resigned from the Institute for the Feeble-minded and began to prepare consciously and definitely for the task before her. She registered as a student of philosophy in the University of Rome, and there followed seven years of self-imposed study, meditation, observation, and intense thought, together with thorough examination of the existing and recognized authorities in her new field. She gave special attention to child psychology. She began to visit primary schools, at the same time reading widely upon educational subjects. The children in those old-established institutions did not afford her the opportunity she desired for observation, because they were in conditions unnatural to childhood, being forced to remain quiet in stationary seats and "to give over their natural birthright of activity to a well-meaning, gesticulating, explaining, always fatigued, and always talking teacher."

CONDITION OF THE POOR IN ROME.

While Doctor Montessori, noting the rapid advance of idiot children under her system and the slow advance of normal children under the old-fashioned methods of the schools, was working upon her problems, an influential, intelligent, and patriotic Roman, Signor Edoardo Talamo, was studying the problem of bettering the housing of the very poor.

Doctor Montessori, in her inaugural address upon the occasion of the opening of the second Casa dei Bambini, refers to the distressing conditions which prevailed in the tenement districts of Rome, the dire necessity of which called forth "the great and kindly work" of the Roman Association of Good Building under Signor Talamo as Director General. She tells of streets with deep holes, where the doorsteps were broken and tumbling, where not a carriage was seen, and where not even the cheerful voice of a street vender nor the sound of a hand organ was heard, where the only shops were the low wine-shops which opened evil-smelling doors. She speaks of the houses with walls broken and scarred, the interior of which was so dark even at midday that it was impossible for one coming in from the light to distinguish the details of the room. Of the little children born in these places she says, "They do not 'first see the light of day'; they come into a world of gloom. They grow among the poisonous shadows of overcrowded humanity. These children can not be other than filthy in body, since the water supply in an apartment, originally intended to be occupied by three or four persons, when distributed among twenty or thirty, is scarcely enough for drinking purposes."

Here was only poverty with its inseparable companion, vice. Reports of violent and immoral crime committed here reached the public at intervals. Here the evil of subletting prevailed, making family privacy almost unknown. A tenant who rented an apartment would sublet a room or a part of a room, or even a corridor to a poorer tenant. In these conditions a birth and a death might occur at the same time in the same room; a large family with growing boys and girls, would sleep in one room; a courtesan might occupy a rented corner in close proximity to these boys and girls, bringing into their young lives an acquaintance with blighting vice.

It was the reforming of these conditions to which Signor Talamo had applied himself. He tore down those parts of buildings which encumbered the central courts, thus doing away with dark, ill-ventilated apartments and giving air and light to the remaining portion of the tenement. He increased the number of stairways, improved water facilities, and made small, homelike apartments which tended to prevent subletting. This work was done on a scale so great as to improve the family life of thousands.

THE CASA DEI BAMBINI.

In these clean, new buildings which the tenants quickly learned to respect, the association met with a difficulty in regard to those children under school age who must be left at home alone during the entire day while both father and mother went out to work. "These little ones, not being able to understand the educative motives which taught their parents to respect the house, became "ignorant little vandals," wandering about the clean halls and stairways, defacing everything they could reach, and constantly getting into mischief.

Signor Talamo had heard of Doctor Montessori, and for the preservation of his renovated buildings he requested her to undertake the organization and the management of the different groups of children in his tenements. "It was Signor Talamo's happy idea to gather together into a large room all the little ones between the ages of three and seven belonging to the families living in the tenement. The play and work of these children was to be carried on under the guidance of the teacher who should have her own apartment in the tenement house."

Here was Doctor Montessori's opportunity. Here were children of exactly the age she needed, unrestricted by conditions such as existed in the public schools, in working with whom she might test her ideas of the methods to be employed in the education of normal children.

Thus was opened the first Casa dei Bambini, the first "House of the Children" in Rome, the first of those schools which are now attracting the attention of the educational world. In this school she applied methods "now seen to be based on the deepest foundations and to point to the improvement of the human race, individually, biologically, and socially . . . and her contribution is real, because she gives us, with the enthusiasm of genius, only theories that have been scientifically tested and methods proved to be successful."

The fundamental principles underlying Doctor Montessori's system of development are that the desire to learn is inherent in the human mind, and that self-education is the only real education. Her pupils always learn by doing and discovering. With the materials and conditions furnished them in the first Casa dei Bambini "The children justified all her visions of their capacity for perfectibility and very soon went far beyond anything she had conceived of their ability to teach and govern themselves."

PUBLIC RECOGNITION.

Only a little over a year after the first small beginning, in 1907, this remarkable work for the children was discovered by the public. "Pilgrims of all nationalities and classes found their way through the filthy streets of that wretched quarter, and the barely established institution, still incomplete in many ways, with many details untouched, with many others provided for only in a makeshift manner, was set under the microscopic scrutiny of innumerable sharp eyes.

Soon enthusiastic magazine articles in regard to it appeared in this country, preparing a thoroughly interested audience for the reception of the English translation of the Dotoressa's book, "The Montessori Method," which was published here in 1912. We now have a second book from her, Pedagogical Anthropology, published this year. A Montessori Mother, by Dorothy Canfield Fisher, and A Guide to Montessori Methods, by Ellen Yale Stevens, are expositions of the system. Series of articles, based upon the Montessori method, are running in the Delineator, the Mother's Magazine, and other publications.

We are indebted to The Montessori Method, and A Montessori Mother, for the quotations and information continued in this article.

A TRAINING SCHOOL IN ROME.

To satisfy the demand for instruction in the new method of teaching, arrangements have been made by the Montessori American Committee with Doctor Montessori for a training class to be held in Rome for American teachers. This is the more to be appreciated because the Dotoressa is still engaged with important investigations, having sacrificed all her personal interests that she might continue her experiments, resigning from all public work, including her occupancy of the chair of anthropology in the University of Rome.

She has found it necessary "to live in the most intense retirement, never taking a vacation from her passionate absorption in her work, not even giving herself time for the exercise necessary for health. She is surrounded by a little group of five devoted disciples, young Italian women, who live with her, who call her 'mother,' and who exist in and for her ideas. . . . Together they are giving up their lives to the development of a complete educational system, based on the fundamental idea of self-education, which gave such brilliant results in the Casa dei Bambini with children from three to six."

In her later experiments, Doctor Montessori has applied her ideas to children from six to nine, and the results are pronounced "as astonishingly successful as her work with younger children."

Further presentation of her work will be presented in our future readings.

CALLIE B. STEBBINS.
CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE FIFTH THURSDAY IN OCTOBER.

Our country and our rulers; that the preaching of the gospel may make greater progress and win its way over all false systems and creeds to the enlightenment of the Gentiles of Joseph's land.

Lesson, Book of Nephi 15: 1.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

An aged brother and sister in Montana desire the prayers of the Prayer Union. Their health has suffered by the severe winters, and they wish to dispose of their homestead to enable them to come to Missouri. Pray that the Lord may aid and direct them, for they are sorely tried.

MALHEUR, OREGON, October 7, 1913.

To the Prayer Union: I write to request prayer in my behalf, as I am afflicted and would like to live to see my children old enough to do battle with the world. I have a little girl of four, and, if the Lord wills, I would desire to be healed, that I may guide her and my boys, who are older, in the path of life.

I am isolated and very seldom see an elder. Pray for me, that I may remain faithful and guide my children aright.

Your sister in the faith,

JESSIE PENROD.

LEEDS, ENGLAND, October 2, 1913.

Dear Editors: It would give me great pleasure if you would insert the following under the Prayer Union notices in the HERALD. Sister Walker, of the Wortley Branch, desires an interest in the prayers of the Saints in her behalf, that she may have her sight restored.

I remain, in behalf of the sister named,

JESSE TAYLOR.

Letter Department

Lamanite Prophecies.

The following are prophecies of the Yuma, California, tribe of Indians, written by lineal Chief, Patrick Miguel, from oral tradition, claimed to antedate the advent of the white man to America.

"I saw in a vision all the races of the past and those that are to come. Some were old, some were middle-aged, some were youths, and others mere children. The youngest of them all was of a different color from all the rest; the color of his skin was white, his hair almost red.

"Just as a man of many children would do, the Lord brought forth many toys and tools to his children. I saw implements of all sorts and sizes. I saw immense buildings. I saw ships. Yea! I saw all things which are to be used by man.

"I saw piled up like great mountains all the provisions and all the riches of the world. All of this the Lord proceeded to divide equally among his children. The child whose skin was white was not satisfied with his share and tried to get also those which were given to his brothers. He cried,—refused to be comforted, and also refused to accept his share unless those things given to his brothers were also given to him.

"His brothers held a council, and fearing that he would cry himself to death, agreed to give him everything. This was done and the child was happy."

Further on this same prophet says: "From the shores across the pond [Atlantic Ocean] east of us, I saw many books tossed upwards to the four heavens. All but one failed. That one book reached the fourth heaven. The cover of the book became its wings, and spread over all men on earth. The book flew and circled four times above the earth. I saw another book tossed up to the four heavens from this land, and behold that, too, reached the fourth heaven, and that, too, had wings. One changed into a male dove; the other a female, and they were united in marriage by the hand of the Lord.

"The four heavens are but the four periods of your history. The books shall not be united in marriage until the close of the fourth period.

"I saw plants from which a book flew out and came to the Hom-qua-chan. No sooner had the book flew out, behold the plants withered and vanished. This is nothing more than the word of God which shall be preached to you, the tenets of which religion should be written on mesque [papyrus]."

R. T. COOPER.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, September 21, 1913.

DESERET, UTAH, September 20, 1913.

Editors Herald: For the benefit of those who may desire to know of my labors, I wish to say that I am still in the conflict for gospel truth. I have not spent so much time in the mission work of late as I should desire. The death of my sister, Ellen J. Dickerson, of Shebesta, Nebraska, last March, and the necessity of caring for her estate, have hindered me some. I am relieved of that matter until I can sell her land here in Utah, and make final settlement.

This has not kept me from work, as I preached in different places in Nebraska, and baptized three. Then I went up into Wyoming and preached a number of times at Alva, and also about twelve miles west of Herlett, and baptized three more. Several others are near the kingdom. Work is needed there later in the season when people will not be so busy.

I then came on to Ogden and met with the Saints and preached for them. I made a short stop in Salt Lake City and then came on here.

The alfalfa crop is fine here, and I shall have some to my share if all goes well. Business will hold me here for a little while, then on to the work again.

Yours in the faith,

J. M. STUBBART.

CARY, IDAHO, September 21, 1913.

Editors Herald: I am wondering why some of the elders do not come this way. There are so few of us out here in this little town, and we are so left alone that I, for one, am beginning to wonder if we have been thought of much, if at all.

I go sometimes to hear our friends the Brighamites preach, and almost long to be one of them,—I have such a desire to feel that I belong to something, some place.

These people work for all there is in it for the church, and then go about doing just as they please, with no restraint on their conduct.

I would like very much to visit Independence, just to see for myself what our people are doing, and see just how I am occupying.

Trusting that this letter will find its way into some good heart, and that I may receive a good long letter from some one back there to encourage me a little and help me find out my real relation to the church, I am,

Yours very truly,

MRS. J. T. BRISTOW.

ITHACA, NEW YORK, September 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: Please let your readers know that we have located at the above address, and should there be Saints or friends in this New York District who would like to see or hear from me, I can be reached at this address. Would be glad to hear from any in this district, and to have their cooperation in making new openings or reviving old ones.

Just closed a very interesting meeting among the Tuscarora Indians.

Sincerely,

A. M. CHASE.

445 NORTH TIOGA STREET.

News from Missions

Eastern Maine.

Just after writing you last I took a trip in the hoppel boat, Messenger, to Jonesboro. Never having been there before, I got somewhat mixed on the direction and went a number of miles out of my course. However, I arrived at my destination after some delay, and was made to feel welcome by Brother and Sister Gay.

We got out an appointment for services at once and held forth in the union church. I continued the services until July 4, when Brother James Carr and family and two of Brother Gay's boys, with the writer, went on a picnic.

We caught fish and then went ashore on the beach and made fish chowder. Oh, how we did eat! After a sail around "Pulpit Rock," and then up Englishman's Bay to the mouth of the Jonesboro River, the writer embarked on the Messenger for Jonesport.

The wind had been steadily rising and a "choppy" sea made the gospel dory dance in a way very unbecoming for a religious boat. The writer was "absolutely" wet. Just as I was congratulating myself on my safe arrival in the "Reach," my propeller left me without even saying good-bye. A walk of two miles brought me to Jonesport, glad to feel solid earth under my feet.

I preached at Jonesport on Sunday and started for Jonesboro again on Tuesday. A new shaft and another propeller fitted me up for sea again. Brother Sherman Woodward and wife went along in their boat, and attended the service in the evening. We continued through the week, and on Saturday baptized five nice young people, three daughters of Sister Carr and two sons of Brother Gay and the next week another son of Brother Gay.

July 22 found me out on the ocean, which was smooth and delightful, bound for the Massachusetts reunion by way of Stonington; Brother Sherman Woodward was captain, Sister Woodward pilot, and the writer passenger. We arrived at Stonington in time for the writer to take the afternoon boat for Rockland, and then the boat for Boston. I was at home for two days to help the good wife and the "kiddies" get ready for the reunion.

The reunion was a good one. It might have been better, but did you ever see a good meeting that might not have been better? The preaching was excellent, and the Sunday school and Religio sessions were very good, indeed. Perhaps more thoughtful prayer and preparation would bring greater results spiritually.

August 20 found me in Jonesport again. My son George joined me on the 23d. Sunday I was taken sick, but thought I would try to preach anyway. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak; I had either to sit down or fall down, so concluded to sit, and let George do the preaching, and he did. He made another trip to Jonesboro, where Brother George did his share of the preaching, and then he had to return to his regular work. He wrote me he was glad to get back. Well, there is no place like home.

On September 13 we were made glad by the presence of Brother Paul M. Hanson, our general minister in charge. He preached two very edifying sermons on Sunday to large gatherings. Paul is a sailor, and like his illustrious brother—of the same given name—has also been in perils by sea, if not by land. It was a beautiful morning, September 16, that we embarked on the good motor boat Messenger, bound for Kennebec. The sea was calm, the broad expanse of water dotted here and there with islands made a picture long to be remembered. Neither of us knew the way. I had been the trip once, with a crowd, and returned at night. One who has never traveled, or rather sailed along the coast of Maine can not imagine how it looks to one who is not sure of his way. We had a chart and compass. We went through the "thoroughfare" and started across Englishman's Bay for Cow Point, I don't know how many "Cow Points," and "Fan Islands" we passed, anyhow we kept going. After a while we saw a lighthouse right ahead.

Paul said, "Do you recognize that light?"

I said, "No; it looks like an old friend, but I never saw it before."

Then a village came in sight.

"Do you see that village?" said Paul.

I replied, "Yes."

"Do you remember passing it before?"

"Not when I was awake," I replied.

We asked a man if we were on the way to Kennebec and he said, "Yes; keep right on," and we did.

After a time we came to another village, and as we could not go any farther we stopped. We were at the head of the river. I jumped ashore and asked two young ladies who stood some distance away if this place was Kennebec. They laughed at us, and said nothing. I went up the bank and asked two men who were at work where we were, and they said, "West Machias," about twenty miles by water from the point we started for.

The tide began to go down, and the engine refused to work longer, so we concluded to stop over night in the village. After hunting for a place to stay for some time, or in several places, we were directed to a certain house and engaged a room. Here, to my surprise, I heard some one say, "Why, how do you do, Brother Robley?" I looked around and saw the pleasant, smiling face of Sister Eliza Walker, of Jonesport. We were among friends.

Next day we made a fresh start and reached Kennebec in good time for our appointment. We held services there until conference time, preaching to interested audiences. The conference at Jonesport was a very good one, and largely attended. Brother Hanson and the writer are now holding a series of meetings at Jonesport. GEORGE W. ROBLEY.

JONESPORT, MAINE, October 2, 1913.

En Route to Australia.

Doubtless many of your readers will be pleased to hear how Brother Miller and myself are progressing on our way toward Australia. Well, we just crossed the equator, eight days out from San Francisco. The day is fine, and the sea is comparatively calm. In fact our ocean voyage so far has been very pleasant and agreeable, as we have not encountered any boisterous seas, and but few of the passengers have been seasick.

We are aboard the Tahiti, which is an English ship with a Welsh captain and English employees throughout. They are very courteous in their treatment of the passengers, doing all in their power to please, and make the voyage comfortable.

The absence of animal life on the Pacific equals the Dead Sea, as, with the exception of a few sea gulls and several sharks, with shoals of flying fish, we have not seen a living thing, all these many miles of water. We have not sighted a vessel since we left the Golden Gate, and now are out of touch with wireless, so if we were to go down nothing would ever be known about us; but our trust is in the Lord. We are wishing all along, to break the monotony, that a telegraph pole would stick up somewhere in sight. One would look very acceptable to us just now, after seeing nothing but sky and sea, and the next day sea and sky.

Our fellow passengers are a good-natured lot of people, of various nationalities, and they are trying to make the voyage pleasant for each other. This is the first ship I was ever on where there was a total absence of drinking and gambling. There has been none of either thus far. To pass away the time, various games of cards, deck billiards, etc., are indulged in, all of an innocent nature.

We had considerable excitement on board four days out. A young man, a wireless operator, working his way to Australia, where his folks live, was employed in the boiler room, firing. The work seemed to be too much for him, and while temporarily insane he jumped overboard. After the ship had gone about a mile they succeeded in stopping her, and a boat was lowered, which cruised around for an hour, but the young man could not be found. There is no doubt but what the sharks got him, as they gathered all around the ship.

When he struck the water, he seemed to come to his senses, and was swimming calmly until the speed of the boat lost him to view. As he passed the stern, and was struggling there in the mighty Pacific, he looked like the most lonely and helpless object the mind could conceive of. Life buoys, with lights attached to them, (so they would be visible in the dark), were thrown him, but he couldn't reach them. When last seen he threw up his arms, and those experienced in the ways of the sea say then is when the sharks got him.

A Frenchman added to the excitement by wishing to jump overboard, and an officer had to threaten him with the irons before he calmed down. His poor wife, hysterical, and the stewardess, hanging on to him, with the presence of the officers, finally brought him to his senses. There was a gloom over the ship for some time. The loss of a human being affects humanity the same everywhere.

A traveler who takes a modern ship doesn't need to be afraid of starving to death so long as there is anything on board. They serve seven luncheons and meals every day! In the morning the steward brings you tea, fruit, or any dainty you may wish, before you arise! Then breakfast. And since we have reached the tropics, instead of tea, etc., an ice cream lunch is served at 11; then about 12.30, quite an elaborate luncheon, and at 4 o'clock, tea, with cakes, etc., and dinner at 6. And for fear the guests are starving to death, the chef has a dainty lunch at 9. The meals are served in courses, the service is perfect, and the cooking excellent. Seven knives and seven forks are placed before each plate. Teaspoons are only used for tea and coffee; large tablespoons are used for dessert and everything else. Some of the fruit served looked as if it were immortal; it almost looked a sin to eat it!

The bath steward is anxious to have your salt water bath ready for any time in the morning you wish, but you must not forget the tip. No doubt "tipping" is a nuisance, and has been carried too far in some things, but if the institution of tipping wasn't in vogue, additional charges would be made for service by those running restaurants, railroads, boats, etc.

We are writing this on Thursday morning, the 28th. We expect to land at Tahiti some time Sunday evening, after having been on the water eleven days. We are looking forward with considerable pleasure to meeting Brethren and Sisters Lake, May, and Savage, and the native Saints. We expect to stay there twenty-eight days, and then leave on the steamer Moana for New Zealand and Australia, which is a journey of over four thousand miles.

I bade farewell to loved ones at home on July 29. Surely it was a sad parting. If we had not had the assurance that the Lord had directed in the appointment, the temptation would have been strong to give up the mission, and spend the remainder of our days with loved ones. It is a great trial to be separated for so long a time, and to be so far away from home. It is a sacrifice that requires great faith on the part of those who go, and for those who remain at home.

I am sorry to say that many of our people do not realize what a cross it is to those whose duty it is to go as special witnesses for Christ in all the world. It is very trying to the missionary to hear comments such as, "He ought to stay four or five years, to save expense to the church." But it happens that the preachers are acquainted with some of the people who make such unwise comments, and they know these same people wouldn't stay away from home more than three to five months, if the church would require it from them; and they also lose sight of the fact that the same God who sent the ministry away from home can send them back home again.

I have been amused at the close of General Conference when some of our enthusiastic young missionaries call for the singing of the hymn, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord." It has been my lot to be associated with some of them afterward in the field, and then they were ready to sing, Dear Lord, send me home, sweet home. Everything looks splendid at a General Conference, with the environment of congenial association, but when we have to battle in the front ranks, often alone, away from home, with an unpopular message, we are likely to lose some of our enthusiasm.

Saturday morning, August 30. Another fine day seems to be before us overhead, but the sea is rolling. We are fortunate in having a fine cabin, amidship, and an outside room, getting our air direct from the porthole, into which an air funnel is placed, which sends the air all over the cabin. In connection with this, an electric fan is going all the time. We truly appreciate these modern devices, especially as we are passing through the tropical climate. We expect to arrive at Papeete to-morrow (Sunday) evening. We are very anxious to get there to break the monotony of the journey, as the eye gets tired looking at the same land- or "seascape." A great many people enjoy life on the ocean waves, but I will take mine on terra firma.

Since on board ship I have been thinking about the different glories spoken of by the Apostle Paul, and have compared them to first, second and third class passengers. Here the lines are drawn very rigidly, and it is almost a criminal offense to cross the line. It seems that those of the first class have about three fourths of the best part of the ship, and the best of everything. They are very jealous of their rights, and will not permit them to be infringed upon by the other "classes." I have been wondering if those of the celestial glory will be possessed of the same jealous, selfish spirit. The second and third classes are more humane and sociable with each other, hence I would always prefer to travel second class.

I have been anticipating the pleasure of taking Brother Miller's picture in the act of feeding the sharks, as this is his first experience on the ocean; but I fear, from present appearances, I shall be disappointed, as he seems to pay very little attention to the rolling and heaving of the ship. However, we are told by men who have had experience on this line that we shall encounter rough seas between Cook's Island and Australia. I am keeping the kodak within easy reach, so that his young friends back east may know how he looks in that kind of a pose. He is very anxious to witness a terrific storm, but I think one experience of that kind will suffice.

I truly appreciate the many expressions of good will and the prayers offered up for our success all along the journey. I was given a hearty welcome by the Saints at Los Angeles. Brother Miller and myself attended the Irvington reunion part of two days, and we shall not soon forget the reception tendered us by officers and Saints. We can still see before our mind's eye, Apostles Sheehy and Kelley, Brethren Waller, Wallace Robinson, Anthony, Dameron and family, Sister Tates and her daughter Lillian, Sister Peterson, and my nephew, Edwin G. Bath, who came to the wharf to see us off. They waved us farewell until we steamed out of sight. However, our minds ran back to the loved ones who were far away, and our hearts were sad when we thought how long it would be before we should meet them and our friends again. We shall feel more joyful in coming back to Uncle Sam's domain than in leaving our native land. This feeling is, of course, quite natural since our loved ones are there, and since it is the bosom of the church, and the land of our birth.

On Sunday, the 31st, about 3 p. m., there was great excitement on board ship, and a mad rush to the railing, as the cry went forth that there was land in sight. To our right was an island visible, where cocoanut trees were seen with the naked eye. About two hours later the vessel was warping up to the pier, at Papeete. We were anxiously looking to locate on the wharf Brother and Sister Lake, and Brother Charles May and wife. We soon spied Brother May and wife, and called out, "Where is Brother Lake?" He answered, "He has left the island for ever." We then knew he was dead. This sad news depressed us very much, of course, and made us feel how uncertain life is.

After going through the red tape of the custom house, we were brought to the mission house, where we met Sister Lake. From her we learned that Brother Lake died on the 15th of June, on a lonely island about six hundred miles from here. She and her husband were the only white people there. The native Saints treated her with every kindness in her hour of great trial, and laid our brother away in a lone grave. She could not bring his body here, as the French Government requires that one year shall pass before a body can be moved from one place to another. The natives built a cement vault for Brother Lake's body. They say they will bring him here when the time has expired, as it was his wish to be buried beside the little native adopted boy, Turatahi, who had died a few months previous.

Sister Lake is very brave and bears her trial in patience. She exerts a wonderful influence among the natives. She is very active, and it will be a loss to the work here to have her leave. The native Saints are imploring her to stay and will take good care of her, and we sincerely hope she will remain until the spring of 1914, as her presence is very much needed in this place. The Lord will surely reward her for all that she has endured for the gospel's sake. Imagine what she passed through, away off there in that isolated place. It was two months before she could get word to the Saints here that her companion was dead.

We have fallen in love with Papeete. We do not think there is a more picturesque place in the world. It is built in a half moon shape, about two miles along the beach, and the shores are lined with bananas, cocoanut, palm, and other tropical trees. For a background it has majestic mountains, one peak towering seven thousand five hundred feet into the clouds. In front of the island is a coral reef, with a sufficiently large natural opening for the entrance of vessels. The inhabitants consist principally of French, Chinese, and the natives. The store buildings are largely after the architecture of the French and Chinese. There is a strange mingling of the modern and the primitive. There are electric and ice plants, automobiles, water works. The water supply comes from the mountains. It has a fall with a drop of seven hundred feet, and is as clear as crystal. The people don't walk on the sidewalks because there aren't any; but the roads are fine.

The mission has a piece of ground comprising about five acres, about four acres being inclosed with a three and a half foot stone wall, to keep out the tidal waves. The mission house is an attractive six-room bungalow. The church building is a temporary affair, but they expect to erect a new building soon, to cost about three thousand dollars. The natives of this branch gave us a kindly welcome Sunday night, and Wednesday the Saints of the district met and gave us another welcome and presented us with gifts in token of their love for us. The singing and entertainment were kept up until midnight. On Wednesday Brother Miller and I led seven souls away out into the ocean and baptized them. It is a difficult thing to drown a native in the water. These natives do not fuss and strangle when they are brought out of the water; they take to it like ducks.

It is amusing to see these people in the church house. When the benches are filled the women and children sit on the floor, tailor fashion; and when the babies get sleepy the mothers lay them down on the floor. You ought to hear them sing. They go at it with all the power of their souls. They sing very loud, but still there is considerable harmony. They wind up every piece with a holding of the last note until they can not hold out any longer, then stop abruptly with a grunt. They are a very interesting people, and are very earnest and childlike in their innocence. They love the latter-day work and have great reverence for those who hold the priesthood. Judging from some of the speeches we heard, they are quite intellectual and quick to see a point. They want a reason and Bible for everything. Those in the church are more intelligent than those on the outside, which is an evidence that the Spirit of the Lord is operating on them.

We thought it very strange when a baby only four days old was brought the other night to be blessed. I could not tell from the name whether it was a boy or girl, so I had to call it "it" all the way through.

We have spoken a number of times, and have felt blessed in our efforts. Brother May interpreted for us. We have also ordained Brother May to the office of seventy, as provided for by General Conference some time ago.

On Thursday, the 4th inst., by invitation we visited the Pupu people. Their leader, Lui, brought the invitation in person. They are beautifully situated upon a high hill, which commands a glorious view of the majestic Pacific and the island of Moorea. The village is one continuous street up the mountain, decked on either side with picturesque native houses. The land all around is covered with cocoanut, mango, iita, breadfruit, banana, and orange trees, and sprinkled here and there with a variety of flowers. The scenery is beyond my description. It is a sight that one would not forget during a lifetime.

They have a commodious church building, over sixty feet long. As we entered the door the people arose to their feet and remained standing until we were seated; this was an act of respect for us. Then a hymn was sung, in which they all joined with a will. I was called upon to offer the invocation. The president made a speech of welcome, which was interpreted by Brother May. The sentiment of regard and love manifested on the part of these people toward us was touching. As an evidence of their friendship they presented us each with a purse and new hat made by themselves. Of course Brother Miller and I responded with short speeches.

We have arranged with these people for another meeting, about October 5, with a view to bringing them back into the fold of God. There are about eighty adults and a goodly number of children. They were expelled from the church some years ago. We have strong hopes that they will soon return to their Father's house. We were favorably impressed with them, and felt the Spirit of the Lord resting upon us as we talked to them, which was evidence to us that the Lord was feeling after them.

As a climax to their friendship for us, they prepared an elaborate feast in our honor. The following is a menu of the good things which was spread before us: Chicken stew, chicken fry, beefsteak smothered with onions and tomatoes, crabs, fish, poi, cabbage, eggs, oranges, bananas, pomegranates, lettuce, and young cocoanut water. They cut an opening in the top of the cocoanuts and put the other end in the glass, so we had to drink out of the top of the cocoanuts. This drink is very delicious, refreshing, and healthful.

They would not sit down with us at the table, but selected some of their own number to wait upon us. They are surely a kind, loving people, and we will never forget the experiences of that day. They sent for us and brought us back in an automobile. God bless them and bring them back into the fold is our earnest prayer.

We sail to-morrow to the island of Takume, where a large number of our island Saints are gathered for pearl diving.

It will take us about a week to go and a week to come back. We will remain at this island about two weeks. We call at other islands going, and upon our return.

With love and best wishes to all of God's people, I am,
Your brother in gospel bonds,
G. T. GRIFFITHS.

News from Branches

Knobnoster, Missouri.

I am glad to be able to report that our branch is keeping pace with the work, and that the Saints are progressing spiritually. Many of our meetings recently held have been spiritual feasts, the Lord having poured out his Holy Spirit to the comfort and edification of his children. Elders W. S. Macrae and Harry Hattey have favored us with some excellent sermons in the recent past, and we believe that lasting good has been done.

Work on our new church is progressing nicely; we have the walls up and the roof partly on. We hope to be ready to occupy it in a few weeks. Your coworker,

ROBERT E. BURGESS.

SEPTEMBER 28, 1913.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

LONDON, CANADA.—Met in annual conference at Stratford, October 11 and 12. Conference was a success, especially from a spiritual and educational standpoint. Preaching by J. C. Mottashed, W. L. Pligg, R. C. Evans, John Shields. All branches reported except McKillop and Osborne. Edwin Gray Beemer, of Saint Thomas, was ordained a priest, and W. Parker, of London, a deacon. Officers elected: R. C. Longhurst, president; J. L. Burger, vice president, bishop's agent, and treasurer; P. H. Philipin, secretary; Sister Graves, member library board. The conference voted to send R. C. Longhurst as its paid delegate to next General Conference. Collections were taken up at conclusion of each of the preaching services which the conference voted to the Stratford Saints to apply toward liquidation of the remaining debt on their church building. Adjourned to meet at Saint Thomas the second Saturday and Sunday in October, 1914.

CENTRAL ILLINOIS.—Assembled at Pana, Illinois, October 4, M. R. Shoemaker and John W. Rushton in charge. Ministry reported: J. W. Paxton, Charles H. Davis, Luther Simpson, R. L. Fulk, G. L. Hartsell, J. L. Johnson, W. Daykin, H. Jones. Branches reported: Pana 66, Taylorville 160, Beardstown 90. By-laws drafted by committee were amended and adopted. Appointments of Brother Shoemaker as first counselor to president of elders' quorum, Brother Hartsell as first counselor to president of priests' quorum, and W. Daykin as second counselor to president of teachers' quorum were approved and the brethren ordained. Preaching by Brethren Paxton, Bolt, and Rushton. Bishop's agent reported a shortage of $13.35. Treasurer reported balance on hand of $15.98. Next conference will be held at Taylorville, Illinois, first Saturday and Sunday in March. W. Daykin, secretary.

POTTAWATTAMIE.—Convened at Crescent, Iowa, September 27 and 28, district presidency in charge. Branches reported: Boomer 62, loss 1; Carson 43; Council Bluffs 339, loss 1; Crescent 150, loss 1; Fontanelle 35; Hazel Dell 67; North Star 136; Wheeler 42. Ministry reported: Joshua Carlile, J. P. Carlile, S. Harding, C. B. Bardsley, D. Parish, P. L. Anderson, J. C. Lapworth, A. J. Davidson, R. McKenzie, J. A. Hansen, W. A. Smith, F. A. Smith, George Beatty, J. P. Christensen, C. C. Carson, H. N. Pierce, E. D. Blair, D. E. Butler, J. C. Adams. Expense of secretary, $1.60, ordered paid. Treasurer reported: Total receipts, $7.63; expenditures, $4. J. A. Hansen, bishop's agent, reported: Total receipts, $2,160.75; expenditures, $1,511. C. B. Bardsley, O. F. Anderson, and D. E. Butler were appointed to audit accounts of the agent for the year 1913. A resolution that the Pottawattamie District unite with the Fremont and Southern Nebraska districts in holding a reunion in 1914 was adopted. S. Harding was sustained as committeeman from Pottawattamie. District treasurer was authorized to pay Pottawattamie proportion of any remaining debt that may have been incurred by the Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska reunion for 1913. Preaching was by W. H. Kelley, Frederick A. Smith, William A. Smith. Conference adjourned to meet at Council Bluffs last Saturday in February, 1914.

CENTRAL TEXAS.—Convened with Central Texas Branch, July 12, S. R. Hay presiding. Ministry reporting: S. R. Hay, J. M. Nunley, D. B. Higginbotham and F. C. Gough. Branches reporting: Texas Central, Cookes Point, and Philadelphia. Philadelphia report referred to branch for correction. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts, $58.37; expenditures, $51.15. Report audited. In compliance with request of secretary, a committee of two of each branch were appointed to assist the branch clerks in securing a correct record for the districts. Those appointed were: Texas Central, A. M. Nunley, Douglas Dotson; Philadelphia, B. F. Spicer, E. W. Hartman; Prairie View, D. B. and Brown Higginbotham. District Sunday school association was organized with following officers: F. C. Gough, superintendent; A. M. Nunley, assistant superintendent; Sheldon Armstrong, secretary and treasurer; Sister M. E. Mitchell, librarian; Sister S. F. Sherrill, superintendent home department. District officers were elected: J. M. Nunley, president; S. R. Hay, vice president; C. M. Mitchell, secretary. J. M. Nunley was sustained as bishop's agent. The speakers were R. M. Maloney and S. R. Hay. Conference adjourned to meet with Cookes Point Branch. C. M. Mitchell, secretary, Caldwell, Texas.

LITTLE SIOUX.—Met at Sioux City, October 3 and 4, Sidney Pitt, Joseph W. Lane, and J. W. Smith in charge. District tent reported not in use during year, funds collected at last conference being in hands of bishop's agent. Tent reported purchased by Sioux City and four other branches, cost, with equipment $126.90; tent was for local use, and had been operated at Bronson and Sioux City. President Pitt had labored all he could. J. W. Lane, Alma Booker, J. W. Smith, T. O. Strand reported by invitation. Reports of local ministry were so meager that they had not been tabulated. Individual reports from ten of the priesthood were received. Spiritual conditions showed no troubles, but need of labor by local officers. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts, $1,235.04; expenditures, $1,223.50; collected on church debt account, $750.58, all remitted to Bishop Kelley; of this last amount $102.50 was from nonmembers. Statistical reports showed membership at last reporting, 2,016; present membership, 2,047. Speakers: Joseph W. Smith, Sidney Pitt, sr., Alma Booker. Adjourned to meet at Moorhead, first Saturday and Sunday in February. James D. Stuart, clerk.

EASTERN COLORADO.—Met at Wray, Colorado, September 6, Samuel Twombly and Peter Anderson presiding. Branches reporting: Wray, 168; California Mesa, 29; Trinidad, 53; Delta, 47; Durango, 63; Colorado Springs, 119; Denver, 262. Ministry reported: E. F. Shupe, Arthur H. Mills, Thomas B. Neron, Krokot Seli, G. F. Walling, E. J. Williams, S. J. Howery, F. B. Shumate, E. J. Clarke, J. E. LaLonde, J. F. Petre, A. E. Tabor, M. L. Schmid, Seph Hubbard, E. D. Bullard, T. A. Park, Fenner D. Bullard, George F. Bullard, B. H. Blowers, D. A. Kemp, H. D. Bartlett, Coral E. Willis, Freeman E. Bullard, W. C. McGlochlin, Albert A. Park, William Robson, Homer Shupe, W. E. Boyd, William Cowan, W. S. McBurney, Samuel Twombly, J. LeRoy Park, J. W. Hupp, J. S. Roth, George W. Beebe. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts, $833.32; expenditures, $820. Delta recommended for ordination David S. Boyd, teacher; California Mesa, Thomas Albert Rose, elder, Arthur Guy Rose, teacher; Wray, T. W. Curtis, priest, H. B. Travis, teacher, F. M. Burress, deacon. Recommendations approved. Conference recommended Arthur H. Mills for bishop's agent. Officers elected: Samuel Twombly, president; A. E. Tabor, first vice president; J. D. Curtis, second vice president; E. J. Williams, secretary; Sister J. C. Anthony, chorister; Sister Tabor, member library board. Adjourned to meet in Denver first Saturday in March. E. J. Williams, secretary, 1210 South High Street, Denver Colorado.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Convened with Providence Branch, October 4 and 5, district presidency and H. O. Smith, and A. B. Phillips presiding. Credentials were presented from all branches. Statistical reports: Attleboro 108, gain 1; Boston 211, gain 5; Brockton 49, loss 2; Cranston 34, gain 2; Dennistport 64, gain 2; Fall River 131, loss 2; Haverhill 33; Little Compton 18; New Bedford 60, gain 5; Plymouth 42, gain 1; Providence 292, gain 10. Ministerial reports: C. H. Rich, R. W. Farrell, I. B. Ames, William Bradbury, Benjamin W. Leland, J. W. Roberts, J. E. Rogerson, James W. Davis, Hyrum O. Smith, W. A. Sinclair, F. W. Roberts, John Gilbert, H. W. Howlett, A. N. Hoxie, S. F. Cushman, N. R. Nickerson, J. C. Hoxie, A. N. Baker, G. H. A. Gates, John E. Rogerson. Eastern Quorum of Priests reported. Nineteenth Quorum of Teachers reported. Edwin Moore and John H. Waggott, Attleboro, were ordained priest and teacher respectively. Treasurer reported: Receipts, with balance, $72.20; expenditures, $66.01. Motion prevailed requesting each branch to take up a collection once a month to be sent to the district treasurer for the benefit of the district. By motion $5 were ordered contributed each month to Hyrum O. Smith to help defray his expenses. Reunion treasurer reported: Receipts, $1,924.12; expenditures, $1,886.83; money on hand not accounted for, $15.22. Adjourned to meet at Boston, January 31, February 1. W. A. Sinclair, clerk.

Convention Minutes.

EASTERN IOWA.—Sunday school convened at Fulton, Iowa, October 3, 1913, with Superintendent C. G. Dykes in charge. Schools reported: Muscatine, Davenport, Clinton, Fulton, Baldwin, Oelwein, Anamosa, Center Junction. Officers elected: Superintendent, C. G. Dykes; assistant superintendent, William Stoll; secretary, Anna Lowe; home department superintendent, John P. Weir; treasurer, John Heide; librarian, Clarence Beil. Next convention will be held at Davenport, Iowa.

SOUTHERN WISCONSIN.—Sunday school convened at Madison, September 26. Reports read and approved. Delegates to General Convention chosen. Officers elected: Superintendent, N. R. Funk; assistant superintendent, R. R. Farber; secretary, Charles C. Hoague, jr.; treasurer, Ida M. Sperry; librarian, F. P. Carpenter; home class superintendent, Sylvia Dennis. Charles C. Hoague, jr., secretary.

Quorum Notices.

MISSOURI-ILLINOIS TEACHERS.

Teachers of Saint Louis, Central Illinois, and Southeastern Illinois districts desiring to become members of teachers' quorum organized by J. W. Rushton at last conference held by Saint Louis District, at Belleville, Illinois, should send name and address to the undersigned. Louis L. Boyce, secretary and treasurer, 1925 West Main Street, Belleville, Illinois.

Conference Notices.

Minnesota District will convene with the Minneapolis Branch, November 3 and 9, 1913, at 9:30 a. m., corner of Fifth and Queen Avenues North. Saturday, business; Saturday evening, Woman's Auxiliary; Sunday school 10 a. m. in charge of local officers. Farther program arranged at conference. Take Western Avenue and Second Street car going west at Union Depot, go to end of line, walk one block west, two blocks north. B. S. Lambkin, president.

Minnesota District will convene with the Minneapolis Branch, November 8 and 9. Lester Whiting, secretary.

Convention Notices.

Massachusetts Sunday school and Religio will convene at Fall River, Massachusetts, Saints' church, Clafin Street, November 3, at 2:30 p. m., continuing over Sunday. Ora Viola Holmes, secretary, Diamond Hill, Rhode Island; Calvin C. Sears, secretary, 15 Sycamore Street, Winter Hill, Massachusetts.

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana Sunday school will meet October 31, with the Clear Lake Branch. Send reports before that date. Mrs. J. W. McKnight, secretary.

Southern Indiana Sunday school will meet November 7, at 3 p. m., with the Olive Leaf School at Indianapolis, Indiana. Annual election of officers, and other business of importance. Olive M. Ford, secretary.

Address.

W. A. McDowell, 1621 Trinity Street, Los Angeles, California.

Lamoni Stake Postponement.

Lamoni Stake conventions and conference, owing to bad weather, have been postponed from October 16-19 to November 13-16, inclusive. Program will be as before announced, conventions to open with joint session Thursday evening, to continue over Friday; conference to open with prayer services at 9 a. m., the 15th. Oland church, as previously announced, will be the place of meeting. John Smith, president; C. J. Carpenter, secretary.

Died.

LEWIS.—Richard Lewis was born November 1, 1836, at Radworshire, Wales, died at his home near Eagle Grove, Iowa, September 24, 1913. He was baptized in November, 1893, by C. E. Hand, as also was his faithful companion in life. He leaves wife, four daughters, three sons, two having passed away in childhood. Funeral at Head Grove Church, September 26. The large attendance showed the respect in which the departed was held. Sermon by Eli Hayer of Lamoni, Iowa, interment in Woodstock Cemetery.

EWING.—At Dennison, Kansas, October 3, 1913, of heart disease, Andrew J. Ewing, aged 66 years and 6 months. He only lived thirty minutes after the attack. Besides his wife, and eight children who survive him, there are eight grandchildren, five brothers, and three sisters. He was baptized at Lamoni, Iowa, March 14, 1896, by C. W. Dillon. At the funeral was a large gathering of the people of Dennison and vicinity who had never heard a sermon on our faith. H. A. Stebbins preached the discourse, assisted by the Methodist and Presbyterian ministers of the town.

CARTER.—Oliver Sir Dion Carter was born in Rome, Ohio, March 1, 1852; died July 13, 1913, at Blair, Nebraska, after an illness of seven months. Brother Carter was a faithful member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints for many years, and was also faithful to the end. He was the pioneer who first brought the faith to Washington County, and was the first president of Blair Branch. As a result of his faithful labors in seasons of great trial nearly two score of people in Blair and Desoto, Nebraska, heard and obeyed the gospel, among this number being his dear old mother, his sister, and four of his children. His wife was a member of the church since childhood and both have labored for years for the work in Eastern Nebraska. Brother Carter married Mary A. Leach at Desoto, Nebraska, thirty-five years ago; wife and eight children survive him and mourn the loss of a kind and loving father. During his last illness he was a great sufferer; he often obtained relief from pain through administration. His last conscious words were for God to take him, as he was ready to go. Services were at the home, two miles north of Blair, in charge of Elders Shakespeare and H. S. Lytle. The choir of the Masonic and Rebekah lodges furnished the music. He was laid to rest in the Blair Cemetery, mourned by his family, who hope to meet him in a better world.

BIRD.—Martha Bird was born in Newton County, Mississippi, November 30, 1851, departed this life September 11, 1913. She moved to Texas in 1867, married I. C. Bird in 1879. She was one of the first to accept the gospel in that part, uniting with the church in 1878. Sister Bird was all her days a devoted member of the church, administering to the needs and comfort of all. She leaves one sister.

MARSHALL.—Mary A. Marshall was born at Essex, England, January 29, 1829; died at Saint Joseph Hospital, Belvidere, Illinois, September 4, 1913. She married William Marshall in 1850. She leaves a large number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She suffered severely with heart trouble and dropsy, but bore patiently her illness. She had great faith in the ordinances of God. Funeral at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Butcher, conducted by Jasper O. Dutton.

HAWKINS.—William Hawkins was born in Chittenham, Gloucestershire, England, April 14, 1826; died September 27,

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

EDITORIAL:

Law and Liberty	1021
The Normal Department at Graceland College	1023
Notes and Comments	1023

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, Part 2, by Frederick M. Smith	1025
Stewardship, by Charles A. Parkin	1029
A Symposium on the Duties of a Pastor, by M. H. Bond, Russell Archibald, J. M. Terry	1030

OF GENERAL INTEREST:

A Cooperative Rural Laundry	1033
Each for All	1034

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN

LETTER DEPARTMENT	1034
-------------------	------

R. T. Cooper—J. M. Stubbart—Mrs. J. T. Bristow
—A. M. Chase.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS

George W. Robley—G. T. Griffiths.	1037
-----------------------------------	------

NEWS FROM BRANCHES

Robert E. Burgess.	1041
--------------------	------

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT

	1041
--	------

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

1913. He joined the church when fifteen years of age. As an elder he was for many years an able defender of the faith. He resided in and near Saint Joseph for forty-eight years, served as postmaster for fourteen years, making many friends. He leaves a son, Frank, of Onawa, Iowa, and daughter, Mrs. Clara Martin. Funeral at the home of Sister Martin, sermon by B. J. Scott. Interment in Rose Hill Cemetery, Lamoni, Iowa; dismissal at the grave by D. C. White.

I don't think much of a man who is not wiser to-day than he was yesterday.—Abraham Lincoln.

Whenever a young man works simply for the pay he receives, he does both himself and his employer an injury.—Backbone.

The Printing Question

WHAT DO YOU NEED IN HIGH GRADE COMMERCIAL PRINTING?

We make a specialty of commercial printing of all kinds; namely, books, catalogs, bank supplies, office supplies, letter heads, envelopes, wedding announcements, calling cards; in fact we print everything. We have three important facts with which to answer your printing question; First, Give you just what you want; second, Give you a better class of printing than you could get elsewhere for the price; third, Give it to you at a price you can afford to investigate. We deliver all printing to your nearest railroad point at the price submitted in our bids. Write for our bids on all kinds of work.

THE HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

Lamoni - - - Iowa

BANK BY MAIL
WITH THE
STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK
Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth, containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Brother Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth .....75c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

WANTED—Competent cook wanted at the Children's Home. Apply to W. P. Robinson, Superintendent. 18-tf

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.
141 cloth .....	75c
141 1/2 leather .....	$1.00
174 flexible .....	$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.
Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth .....75c

WE URGE YOU TO ATTEND
The Zion's Star Sunday School

First Branch, St. Joseph, Mo.
BECAUSE:
You can help us.
We may help you.
Visitors always welcome
Nine-thirty a. m. every Sunday.
Seventeenth and Faraon Streets.

BARGAINS.
A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.) John Zahnd,
6-tf Independence, Mo.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

FOR SALE
A bargain for some one.
I offer my home in the east part of Holden, Missouri, consisting of 1 1/2 acres of land in good condition, fenced and cross fenced with woven wire fence. House of 6 rooms, large pantry, four porches and a fine cellar, wash house, wood house and shed, coal house, chicken house and park, 2 good barns, 3 cisterns, plenty of fruit of a fruit season. Apples, plums, peaches, cherries, and grapes. $4,000 will buy it if taken by March 1, 1914. Come and see. Reasons for selling, I wish to go East. JAMES MOLER, 43-1t Holden, Missouri, Box 205.

ARE YOU GOING SOUTH THIS WINTER?

- To Florida—famed as the land of the Fountain of Youth.
- To Cuba—filled to overflowing with its tropical delights.
- To the Gulf Coast—with its numerous resorts and beaches.
- To Mobile and New Orleans—with their attractive and interesting environs.
- To Texas—with its great variety of climate and natural charms. If you have ever longed to travel through the wonderful southland in the winter time, why not take advantage of the

Special Winter Tourist Fares

which will be on sale to all principal points during the fall and winter months. The trip will be all the more enjoyable if you go

Via The Burlington

It is my business to plan trips. Come in and let me help you plan the one you have in mind.

L. F. SILTZ, Ticket Agent
"There's Comfort for You on the C. B. & Q."

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, OCTOBER 29, 1913

NUMBER 44

Editorial

REVEREND W. A. STANTON ON THE THREE WITNESSES.

RIGDON'S CONNECTION WITH BAPTISTS.

In a pamphlet entitled Three Important Movements; Campbellism, Mormonism, and Spiritualism, by Reverend W. A. Stanton, D. D., published by the Philadelphia American Baptist Society, there appears the following statement:

Neither Smith nor Rigdon had money to publish this "Golden Bible." They succeeded in interesting a well-to-do farmer named Martin Harris, who furnished the means. Oliver Cowdery was employed as an amanuensis. He wrote what Smith dictated to him from the farther side of a concealing curtain. In 1830 the book was printed, and with it a sworn statement by Cowdery, Harris, and a David Whitmer that an angel of God had shown them the plates of which the book was purported to be a translation. Some years later these three men renounced Mormonism, and declared said sworn statement false. I once opened the Book of Mormon that lay upon the pulpit in the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City; upon its page was this sworn statement by these three men, but their recantation was not there.

In behalf of the Bureau of Publicity we wrote to Reverend Stanton in regard to this statement, a reproduction of our letter appearing below:

LAMONI, IOWA, July 25, 1913.

REVEREND W. A. STANTON, D. D.,
6340 Marchand Street, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir: I have received and read with some interest your pamphlet entitled, Three Important Movements. As I represent the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, sometimes referred to by nonmembers as the "Non-polygamist Mormon Church," to distinguish it from the Utah people, it is but natural that I should be interested in that part of your pamphlet which refers to the work founded by Joseph Smith. Naturally there are statements contained therein with which I could not agree; but in that particular I trust that we could agree to disagree with good feeling and Christian regard for one another. There is, however, one statement to which I wish to call your attention, believing you to be sincerely desirous of stating historical matters exactly in harmony with truth.

On page thirty-five of your book you say that the three witnesses, Whitmer, Cowdery, and Harris, left the church later in their lives and renounced the testimony which they had previously borne to the divinity of the Book of Mormon. I believe that the facts in the case will not warrant such a statement. Shortly before his death, David Whitmer, one of the three witnesses, at that time residing in Richmond, Missouri, went to considerable expense to publish and distribute a pamphlet entitled, An Address to All Believers in Christ, commonly referred to now as David Whitmer's Address, published at Richmond, Missouri, 1887. Probably you can obtain access to this publication in some of the libraries in the East, that have anything like a complete collection of Mormon literature. From this pamphlet I quote:

"It is recorded in the American Cyclopaedia and the Encyclopaedia Britannica, that I, David Whitmer, have denied my testimony as one of the three witnesses to the divinity of the Book of Mormon; and that the other two witnesses, Oliver Cowdery and Martin Harris, denied their testimony to that book. I will say once more to all mankind that I have never at any time denied that testimony or any part thereof. I also testify to the world that neither Oliver Cowdery nor Martin Harris ever at any time denied their testimony. They both died reaffirming the truth of the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon. I was present at the deathbed of Oliver Cowdery, and his last words were, 'Brother David, be true to your testimony to the Book of Mormon.' He died here in Richmond, Missouri, on March 3, 1850. Many witnesses yet live in Richmond who will testify to the truth of these facts, as well as to the good character of Oliver Cowdery."—David Whitmer's Address, p. 8.

"Unto all nations, kindred, tongues, and people, unto whom these presents shall come:

"It having been represented by one John Murphy, of Polo, Caldwell County, Missouri, that I, in a conversation with him last summer, denied my testimony as one of the three witnesses to the 'Book of Mormon.'

"To the end, therefore, that he may understand me now, if he did not then; and that the world may know the truth, I wish now, standing, as it were, in the very sunset of life, and in the fear of God, once for all to make this public statement:

"That I have never at any time denied that testimony or any part thereof, which has so long since been published with that book, as one of the three witnesses. Those who know me best well know that I have always adhered to that testimony. And that no man may be misled or doubt my present views in regard to the same, I do again affirm the truth of all of my statements, as then made and published," etc.—David Whitmer's Address, pp. 8, 9.

Also he took the matter up in the Conservator, published at Richmond, Missouri, March 24, 1881, in which number also appears a statement from the editor in which he said that there could be no doubt that David Whitmer still held to his belief in the divinity of the Book of Mormon. In the same issue appear indorsements from leading citizens of Richmond, including General Alexander Doniphan, Honorable George W. Dunn, judge of the Fifth Judicial Circuit, J. T. Child, editor of the Conservator, C. J. Hughes, probate judge, and some sixteen other prominent citizens of the community, who declared that David Whitmer had resided in that city since the year 1838, and certified that they knew him intimately and knew him to be a man of the highest integrity and of undoubted truth and veracity.

David Whitmer was buried at Richmond, Missouri, where he had lived so long; and in harmony with his wishes, on the top of the marble monument that marks his resting place there reposes a chiseled figure of the Bible on which lies one of the Book of Mormon, while underneath is the inscription, a quotation from his last words, "The Record of the Jews, and the Record of the Nephites are one. Truth is eternal."

I have much more evidence which could be presented to show that not only Whitmer, but Cowdery and Harris reaffirmed their testimony just prior to their departure from this life. The statement so widely circulated that they had denied their testimony is absolutely without foundation. I trust that you will investigate the matter and take steps to correct the statement made in your pamphlet, feeling that you can not conscientiously do less.

The fact that these men did separate from the church owing to a difference of opinion existing between them and Joseph Smith only renders more striking their continued adherence to their testimony that the Book of Mormon was actually revealed by the hand of an angel. With that testimony, of course, I can not expect you to agree, with your present understanding of things; but you will concede, of course, that no matter what your attitude may be toward the work nicknamed "Mormonism," you should state only facts when writing or lecturing on that subject.

I am also mailing you a marked copy of the SAINTS' HERALD, in which I have reviewed the Solomon Spalding romance theory of the origin of the Book of Mormon, mentioned in your pamphlet.

Not wishing to take up too much of your valuable time, and trusting that I have not wearied you beyond the point of patient endurance, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

ELBERT A. SMITH.

Receiving no reply to our communication we wrote again at a later date, as follows:

SEPTEMBER 19, 1913.

REVEREND W. A. STANTON, D. D.,

6340 Marchand Street, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Dear Sir: Inclosed you will find a copy of a letter addressed to you under date of July 25. Not having heard from you I assume that the letter may have miscarried and so take the liberty of forwarding you a copy. The matter mentioned in the former letter is of such importance that it certainly merits your consideration. Being a minister and a representative of one of the leading churches, you of course will indorse the sentiment contained in the golden rule, and will endeavor to give to our people and to myself the same courteous consideration that you would ask for yourself and your people.

Had I made an attack upon your people I would certainly consider myself in duty bound under the rule, whatsoever you would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them, to give careful consideration to any correction or defense that might be placed in my hands, and would certainly feel myself bound under that divine rule to acknowledge receipt of such communication. I remain,

Most sincerely yours,

ELBERT A. SMITH.

To this the following reply was received:

HIGHTSTOWN, NEW JERSEY, September 23, 1913.

MR. ELBERT A. SMITH, Lamoni, Iowa.

Dear Sir: Yours of September 19, 1913, received this morning—via my former Pittsburg address, and registered. I moved to Hightstown last October and more or less mail sent to Pittsburg since then has never reached me here.

In reply I write as follows:

I wish to be fair with all folk, no matter whether I do or do not agree with them. Your courteous letter deserves attention and reply. You call my attention to my statements as to the departure from the church of Whitmer, Cowdery and Harris, and their renunciation of their former testimony as to the divinity of the Book of Mormon and the story Joseph Smith told as to experiences connected with the finding of said book in the original form and contents that he said it had. I read with interest what you send me from David Whitmer's address and what you write as to certain contents of The Conservator, of Richmond, Missouri, March 24, 1881. If "David Whitmer's Address" is genuine and authentic and the Conservator is correct in its diagnosis of what is ad rem in the point at issue, it follows of necessity that I and those from whom I quoted, and because of whose writings I drew my own conclusions, are wrong so far as the point at issue is concerned. I can do no more than make such a statement as the one just made. Where witnesses disagree and a judge or jury is dependent on written, printed or indirect testimony, and where said judge or jury has no means of proving the genuineness and authenticity of the documentary evidence offered an intelligent and dogmatic verdict is impossible. Hence I become agnostic as to this particular issue about the "three witnesses." I will add, however, two items to the above:

1. Whether said three men did or did not continue in and die in the faith as to the revelations and the Book of Mormon in no way proves that they were justified in believing what they did or that the Book of Mormon is either divine or inspired. For example: My faith in the inspiration and divinity of the Bible is no evidence that such is the case. Nor would my unbelief in it prove the contrary.

2. Not long after the publication of my booklet I received communications from Lamoni and elsewhere positively denying what I wrote as to Sidney Rigdon's expulsion from the Baptist denomination and its ministry. Alleged evidence was offered to prove that I was wrong. Of course that was not so important to your church, nor to the polygamists, as is the issue you raise; but it did have to do with the character, stability and prior record of one who at the first was Joseph Smith's right-hand man. Fortunately, I was then a resident of Pittsburg and had access to the original documents and records of the First Baptist Church of Pittsburg and of the Ecclesiastical Council that tried and excommunicated Sidney Rigdon. I refer to this merely to show that a denial in after years does not necessarily disprove a fact of former years. Hence, between the assertions of the apostasy of the "three witnesses" and the denial of said apostasy, I take the stand of an agnostic and say to both parties, "I do not know."

In conclusion, I have only to ask that any use that you may wish to make of this letter shall be so fair that it will quote the whole of it in substance and not such part of it only as would seem to make me say unqualifiedly that I am wrong. Use it all and I will be satisfied. Suppress or omit any part of it that is vital to my real attitude and I will have just right to quote the golden rule to which you referred in your letter to me.

Yours truly,

W. A. STANTON.

Commenting on this letter from Reverend Stanton we have this to say:

We greatly appreciate his courteous reply and the fact that he is willing to admit that his statement to the effect that the three witnesses repudiated their testimony is wrong, providing the statements attributed to David Whitmer, and others quoted from the Conservator are correct.

This is practically a complete admission of error, for the reason that the genuineness of David Whitmer's Address will be readily conceded by all students of "Mormonism." A very little research by Mr. Stanton will set his mind at rest on that score, as well as regards the Conservator. Even our most bitter opponents will probably support us in that statement, because some of them have used Whitmer's Address against us very extensively on other points. The opposition should not drop it too hastily merely because it is two-edged and cuts their fingers.

Mr. Stanton may obtain access to a copy of David Whitmer's Address in the New York Public Library, on Forty-second Street, New York City, in the collection of "Mormon" literature of that institution. So he may, if he desires, trace this matter out and very soon arrive at something more definite than "agnosticism."

In view of the fact that Whitmer's genuine reaffirmation of his testimony, and his statement that the other two witnesses continued steadfast in their testimony, together with the Conservator's indorsement of his character for veracity, may be quite easily investigated, it is hardly sufficient for Mr. Stanton to fall back upon the statement that on the point at issue he is content to remain "agnostic" (not professing to know) as he does in his letter.

Those who write historical books and pamphlets should know what they are talking about. When such a writer makes a statement that is absolutely without foundation in fact it is not sufficient for him to slip from behind his own written and signed statement and declare that he does not know whether it is true or quite the opposite of truth.

The evidence of error is sufficient. But if not entirely satisfied, Mr. Stanton should investigate further and then take steps to correct the statement put out by the Baptist Publishing House over his name.

As to the two points raised by him near the close of his letter we have this to say:

1. He says in effect that whether the three men did or did not continue steadfast has no real bearing on the divine inspiration of the Book of Mormon. Why, then, was that question raised? Mr. Stanton raised it himself in his own pamphlet. The thought that they recanted is seized with avidity as an important argument against the work; but when it becomes evident that they remained steadfast and did not recant, the whole matter is dropped with celerity as "irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial."

Of course their belief in the Book of Mormon has no particular weight or importance in the way of convincing others; and their belief or disbelief could not in any way affect the truthfulness of the claims put forth in behalf of the Book of Mormon.

But it must be remembered that they bore witness not merely to the things that they believed, but to the things that they saw and heard, and handled, and in that particular their testimony is competent, material, and relevant. They said that they saw an angel, that they saw and handled the plates and beheld the engravings and heard the voice of the angel bearing record to the truthfulness of the book and the translation.

In these things they could not have been deceived. It was not a matter of belief but of knowledge. They either saw and heard the angel and beheld the plates or else they fabricated their entire testimony.

The persistency with which they continued this testimony has some bearing on the question at issue. The statement that they repudiated that testimony has no foundation in fact, and the leading character among them, as spokesman for all, publicly announced to the world that such a charge was false, and as publicly reaffirmed his testimony delivered so many years previous. This direct statement from his own pen outweighs any number of unfounded statements to the contrary made by sensational and irresponsible newspaper reporters.

2. In regard to the statement that Sidney Rigdon was expelled from the Baptist Church and its ministry, granting that Mr. Stanton is correct in his charge, the affair stands in many particulars distinctly to the credit of Mr. Rigdon, even taking Mr. Stanton's own statement of the case.

In the first place, Mr. Rigdon's personal moral character was not involved. Action was based purely on questions of theology.

Many charges were made, but the court found him guilty on only one specific point, that of "holding and teaching the doctrine of baptismal regeneration," and then took refuge under the vague term, "and many other abominable heresies." We quote:

A mutual council was called, and met October 11, 1823. Elder Frey was moderator, and Ephraim Estep, clerk. The council decided that the minority were the First Baptist Church of Pittsburg, and were entitled to the property. Mr. Rigdon was found guilty of "holding and teaching the doctrines of baptismal regeneration and many other abominable heresies." He was thereupon excluded from the church and deposed from the Baptist ministry.—Three Important Movements, by Reverend W. A. Stanton, D. D.

In addition to these charges they said that Mr. Rigdon emphasized the restoration of the ancient order of things, especially with reference to the duty of bringing one's possessions and laying them at the Apostles' feet. At this point the hard-headed Baptist fathers thought they smelled a rat, and believed that he purposed devouring their cheese. Rigdon preached this doctrine publicly and urged it in his pastoral visitations. He condemned the regular ministry because they preached for a salary and said "they milked the goats." This was also a reflection upon those to whom they preached, calling them "goats," and not sheep.—Three Important Movements, p. 20, by Reverend W. A. Stanton, D. D.

It is probably true that Sidney Rigdon entertained some minor theological ideas that were not entirely correct and were later modified; but on the main points at issue he was more nearly right than his fellow members of the Baptist Church at that time.

He had the courage of his convictions and dared to think for himself and preach that which the Scriptures taught, even if he did lose his salary and his ministerial standing. His associates, of course, took alarm at such a terrible thing as a proposed restoration of the "ancient order of things" such as prevailed at the Day of Pentecost and thereafter.

Had they lived in those days they probably would have felt the same alarm regarding the safety of their dearly beloved worldly "cheese." No doubt they would have smelled a rat, and Peter would have found his ministerial standing in danger. By the way, Ananias thought a good deal of his cheese, too; but he lost it. So with these others. All have gone their way into the beyond. Their "cheese" was left for others to quarrel over. God can safely be left to judge between them and Sidney Rigdon, as to who was justified, Sidney in trying to restore the ancient order of equality and true brotherhood, "applied Christianity," or they in resisting the return of conditions and institutions obtaining in those happy apostolic times, when men loved each other more than they loved their "cheese."

E. A. S.

TWO INTERESTING EVENTS.

DEDICATION AT ANDOVER, MISSOURI.

The dedication of the church at Andover, Missouri, occurred October 12. The writer delivered the dedicatory sermon in the forenoon, and was followed in the afternoon by Elder John Smith and in the evening by Elder John F. Garver, both members of the Lamoni Stake Presidency. Many of the Lamoni Saints availed themselves of the opportunity to attend the services, and members of the Lamoni choir assisted materially in the music for the entire day. The attendance was all that could be desired and the beautiful, sunshiny day made it possible for the Saints to enjoy the basket dinner which was served out-of-doors.

The Saints at Andover now have a very neat little chapel, entirely free from debt, and dedicated to the service of God. It is the only church in the locality, and the Saints there are building up a strong following. The church, though not elaborate, or costly, is of attractive design, tastefully finished both as to exterior and interior. It is built of cement blocks. It occurred to us while contemplating this little chapel that the Saints everywhere might well give equal thought to securing a building that will be both useful and ornamental when they contemplate erecting a church edifice. Too often we are satisfied if we secure four walls and a roof, without regard to appearances. It costs very little if any more to arrange designs tastefully and artistically; the chief added expense being an expenditure of gray matter, thought, and foresight to the end desired.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ORGANIZATION OF THE GALLANDS GROVE DISTRICT.

The Gallands Grove District was organized October 6, 1863, with Elder John A. McIntosh as president. There are at present ten branches in the district, with a total membership of one thousand twenty-eight. Under the able leadership of Bishop C. J. Hunt, president of the district, they have established the custom of observing homecomings and important anniversaries annually or oftener. This year they observed the semicentennial of the organization of the district, October 17, 18, and 19. It was the good fortune of the writer to be invited to attend this meeting, and open the event by delivering an address to the young people, Friday evening, October 17. The writer also spoke to the Saints again Sunday afternoon and to the Saints at Dow City Sunday evening.

The experience was greatly enjoyed and the trip very pleasant, being shared with Brother Heman C. Smith, who spoke to the Saints at Gallands Grove both Saturday and Sunday. The attendance at these services was quite large, every available seat being occupied on Sunday, despite the somewhat inclement weather. This meeting will probably be reported at greater length by some of the brethren in attendance.

It was a pleasure to us to visit this locality, the scene of former labors in years past by such worthy pioneers as President Joseph Smith, W. W. Blair, David H. Smith, Charles Derry, and many others who might be mentioned. We were pleased to become to some extent a collaborator with these men, some of whom have now gone on before, realizing that while Paul may plant the Apollos water, it is God that giveth the increase, and that to him belongs all honor for the success in any locality.

At this meeting we were pleased to meet with Brethren Hunt, Rannie, Wildermuth, Wells, Chambers, and others of the ministry.

E. A. S.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO MEMBERS OF BRANCHES.

Your branch president has recently received a communication from the Bureau of Publicity. Has he mentioned the matter to you? If not, ask him about it. Be ready to cooperate with him in the proposed action.

Sincerely yours,
BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

Original Articles

SACRAMENT OF THE LORD'S SUPPER.

---PART 3.

BY FREDERICK M. SMITH.

ANALYTICAL EXAMINATION.

Having thus briefly glanced at the historical development of the eucharist, we pass to an analytic discussion of the rite.

Sacrament is "a sign and a seal of a covenant," and as such implies faith and grace upon the part of the communicant as well as the officiating person. Goethe's view that a sacrament is a "partaking of heavenly under the form of earthly nourishment" would or should carry with the administration thereof the great solemnity and reverence making highly urgent the exercise of faith and grace by all participating in the ordinance. Sacrifice has been defined as "an act belonging to a sphere of worship in which a material oblation is presented to the Deity and consumed in his service, and which has as its object to secure through communion with a divine being the boon of his favor."—Hastings' Dictionary of the Bible, article "Sacrifice," Patterson.

"Sacrifice," says Strachan, "is primarily a sacramental meal, at which the communicants are a deity and his worshipers, and the elements the flesh and blood of a sacred victim."—Chambers Encyclopedia, article "Sacrifice."

In the Hebrew religion sacrifices formed an important part of the rituals. Very many of the devotions in the temples were accompanied by the offering up of birds or animals. It may, therefore, be considered as something more than an accident that Jesus, when he chose the occasion on which to institute the ordinance of the Lord's supper, should have selected one which would link it with the old ritualism in such a way as to preserve the spirit of sacrifice without the concomitant of killing. His supper, having as the elements the symbolic flesh and blood of the most precious "sacred victim" the world has known, might well be a feast where Deity and his worshipers can partake in spiritual communion. Thus Christ spiritualized the mode of sacrifice, as he had previously spiritualized the law, though sufficient degree of concreteness had been retained to make it efficacious among a people where the subjective must have objective demonstration.

In a broad sense, and considered etymologically, anything made sacred by being offered to God, or by being reserved for religious uses, can be called a sacrifice. Indeed, Augustine applied the name to "every act which is performed by us with the purpose of joining us to God." (The Christian Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, Adamson, p. 178.) Peter speaks of "spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ" (1 Peter 2: 5), while in Hebrews we find: "By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise continually; that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name" (Hebrews 13: 15). The Psalmist exclaims: "Let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing" (Psalm 107: 22; also Leviticus 7: 12). And: "I will offer to thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving" (Psalm 116: 17). So, according to the Scriptures, thanksgiving whether in gifts, prayer, service, or praise, is sacrifice. The Lord's supper may well be looked upon as preeminent among our thanksgivings.

ORDER OF SERVICE.

The features of the service in the "upper room" were: Jesus took bread, blessed it (gave thanks, as some versions have it), broke the bread, gave it to his disciples and commanded them to eat, saying, "Take, eat," etc. Then he took the cup, blessed it, gave it to the disciples, and commanded them to drink, saying, "Drink ye all of it," etc. Then after they had sung a hymn Jesus instructed them after they had gone to the Mount of Olives, as Matthew's version has it. It is not unlikely, however, that the instructions were given both in the room and on the Mount of Olives; for John gives at some length the happenings in the "upper room" and his account is replete with the sayings of Jesus which have an important bearing upon the rite and its significance.

It might be noted in passing that we do not find specific instructions in the New Testament Scriptures as to who shall officiate in the rite. The example of Jesus indicates that one having authority shall do so, while Paul's rebuke to the Saints at Corinth (1 Corinthians 11) clearly points out the danger of partaking when administered by those without authority and under improper conditions. Of course, with us, other scripture has settled that, and custom, at least, in the other church organizations has determined who shall administer.

PERPETUITY OF THE EUCHARIST.

In the light of what has foregone it seems almost folly to ask if the eucharist means more than a commemoration of Christ's death, or if it is mere formality. The strong and well intrenched belief in the scope and significance of the ceremony gives a positive answer, while the question of its permanency or perpetuity seems well answered in Luke by the Savior's own words, "This do in remembrance of me" (Luke 22: 19). This Jesus said to the apostles. Any further question of its permanency is dispelled by Paul:

For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread: and when he had given thanks, he broke it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood; this do ye, as oft as ye drink of it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.—1 Corinthians 11: 23-26.

This passage from Paul's letter to the Corinthians shows (1) that Paul received from the Lord special revelation regarding the sacrament of the Lord's supper; (2) that as Jesus originally commanded his disciples, so Paul did the Corinthian saints; (3) that the Lord's supper is a rite to be perpetuated, by being celebrated often, till the Lord's second coming.

FUNCTIONS AND CHARACTERISTICS.

The functions and characteristics of the Lord's supper as a rite may be analyzed as follows:

1. It is a religious rite from which blessings more or less specific are due. A religious blessing is something given of God as a result of observing the duties of worship or the obligations of churchly institutions. These blessings, of course, come through many channels. But in the eucharist there is, or ought to be, something more than a mere quickening. Such can come from any devotional exercise. But Jesus undoubtedly designed this sacramental rite to bring specific blessings. It is unique as a rite or ceremony,—communion with Christ. By this simple yet solemn rite Jesus' name is devoutly remembered, praised, and honored throughout the Christian world.

Public worship is in itself a good thing, to honor the Lord's name, to strengthen the faith and enable his followers to resist evil; but much more efficacious in these directions is communion at the Lord's supper; for at the table are only his guests. The Lord designed it so, and this demands close communion. Sitting as guest at the Lord's table and communing with him! What comfort in the thought; what courage to battle on! To thus sit with our brethren and participate in the divine feast implies a common belief in the ceremonies and teachings of the gospel and the church. It is a ritual of fraternity; simple, yet sublime. Its importance as a religious rite in blessings to follow its observance is emphasized by John when he reports Jesus as saying: "Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day" (John 6: 54).

IN MEMORY OF JESUS.

2. It is a commemorative rite,—commemorative of Christ's death as the great mediator; of his broken body, broken for us; of his blood shed for us, the blood of atonement; not that we believe God gloried in the sight of the blood of his Son, or that blood appeased his wrath; but that Christ's death was necessary to show his victory over death as the consummation of his great work of mediation and salvation. And Paul evidently held it to be highly important to commemorate Christ's death, as is done in the eucharistic rite, for he says: "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink the cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come," (1 Corinthians 11: 26).

There are those who hold the idea that the rite is purely commemorative,—a pictorial announcement or review of Christ's death. But if such be the full purpose of the ceremony the mere reading of the Scriptures regarding him would answer every purpose, with occasionally a sermon in which the death on Calvary is feelingly portrayed in burning eloquence.

But surely Jesus had in view more than a mere reminder of the suffering he was to pass through. We can well go with the Catholics, the Church of England, with Calvin and Luther in believing that the rite is more than commemorative, yet without going to the extremes occupied by some of them. It is more than incantation, it is not mummery. In a clear view of its significance the sacrament of the Lord's supper is rich in truths and ideas. In it can be seen the work and doctrine of Christ. In the bread and wine set before the communicants in the sacred feast as the emblems of the flesh and blood of the Christ is seen the idea of the incarnation. He lived as we live, having flesh and blood. But he died for us, and rising from the grave conqueror over death and the grave, he ascends to his abode at the right hand of the Father. Here is seen the hope-inspiring doctrine of the resurrection. He took to himself in his glorified state his body, the emblems of which are before us, and thus taking up into himself that human nature, there is still between him and us a sympathetic connection which makes him the great mediator. Thus to us is presented the idea of the Incarnate Logos, and to us, as we partake, the scheme of the gospel of Christ takes on anew its broad significance as our souls are lighted by the truth that Jesus is the Christ.

THE TIE THAT BINDS.

3. It is a rite of communion. It is first a communion of fellowship. Those united by the bonds of a common belief in and acceptance of Jesus the Christ, partake as his guests, and that bond of fraternity is strengthened thereby. It is a communion with the Christ; for as his guests, partaking of the emblems of his body and blood, his spirit quickens and solemnizes the partaking till the souls of the communicants receive of his spiritual nature. "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" (1 Corinthians 10: 16.)

Just how this communion with Christ takes place in the rite of the Lord's supper we can place with the "mysteries of godliness" (1 Timothy 3: 16) and not refuse to appropriate the blessings of this communion because we fail to comprehend the method of the communing. As we have seen from the foregoing, the Latin Catholic Church in attempting to account along material lines for the communing, has gradually formulated and gives credence to the doctrine of transubstantiation, according to which the body of Jesus literally comes down and replaces the emblems; while the Greek Church has a modified theory termed insubstantiation, according to which the bread and wine are transformed into the body and blood of Christ. Luther did not get very far away from transubstantiation in presenting his substitute theory of consubstantiation or impanation, in which the idea is held that the elements remain as they were, except the flesh and blood of the Christ enter into the bread and wine, so much so that the flesh of Jesus is bitten by the teeth, etc. Calvin gave credence to neither of the three theories here mentioned, yet held that the ceremony was much more than commemorative (see quotation previously given). Adamson, perhaps representing the Church of England, thinks that Christ is present in the sacrament as a whole, not simply in the elements. (Christian Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, pp. 153, 163, 74, etc.) And this view appears reasonable, and harmonizes to a great extent with our practices and beliefs in administering the rite. Christ is present through representatives (those holding the priesthood) and by his Spirit, and in the souls of "all those who partake" of the sacrament worthily. He is surely present in sympathy with his people during the proper administration of the rite. However his presence may be brought about, he has said: "He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father; so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me."—John 6: 56, 57.

A COVENANT.

4. Partaking of the Lord's supper is a covenant, and as such is a sacramental rite, in the light of the generally accepted definition of sacrament. According to our own belief it is a witness anew that we are willing to take upon us the name of Christ (Doctrine and Covenants 17: 22) and that we do always remember him (Doctrine and Covenants 17: 23). "He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me and I in him," etc. (John 6: 56.) This renewal of the covenant is a source of strength by renewing our faith and increasing our determination to further resist evil. Any public profession of Christ strengthens the bonds that bind to him his believers; and the repeated renewal of the baptismal covenant taking place in the Lord's supper as oft as it is eaten is therefore a constant source of strength to "fight the good fight" spoken of by Paul. (Hebrews 10: 32.)

FORGIVENESS OF SINS.

5. As we have seen, the idea is quite generally held that the Lord's supper is propitiatory. As forgiveness of sins follows the first covenant, so it does the renewal. If the eucharist is a complete renewal, then whatever terms are imposed by the first would become effective again in the renewal. If the rite be held as a saving ordinance the propitiatory character becomes self-evident. Luther and others of the reformers so regarded it. Harnack, in commenting upon the development of the eucharistic doctrine of the second century, it will be remembered from a quotation previously used in this article, said, "We shall search in vain for any special relation of the partaking of the consecrated elements to the forgiveness of sins." But by the end of the following century the idea had been well developed.

Jesus in presenting the cup to his disciples and commanding them to drink the "blood of the new testament," coupled with it the idea of forgiveness of sin (Matthew 26: 28); though it must be admitted that it is open to some argument as to whether the remission of sins he then referred to applied only to the efficacy of his blood as a propitiatory offering in baptism alone, or in both the initial and secondary covenant. We incline to the opinion that he here meant to convey the idea of propitiation as a part of the renewal of the covenant as well as the initial rite.

It would be unsafe, however, to maintain that the forgiveness is effected by mere participation in the ceremony. It must be sought and worked for. Forgiveness of sin as a result of baptism follows only after repentance; and the preparatory work of this principle must be operative in the secondary covenant as well as the initial.

MORE ABUNDANT LIFE.

6. The significance and efficacy of the Lord's supper as a means of spiritual life is startlingly stated by Jesus himself: "Except ye eat of the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you" (John 6: 53). "Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life" (John 6: 54).

We might therefore say of the sacrament of the Lord's supper that it is a sign or symbol of (1) the great love of God who gave his Son "that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have eternal life." (John 3: 15, Inspired Translation.) It symbolizes (2) the love of Christ who died to redeem man and (3) the extreme nature of his suffering and the completeness of his service,—unto death,—while it further betokens (4) the vicarious and sacrificial character of his death. It bespeaks (5) the benefits to be derived from it through believing it a divine institution, the remission of sins together with the soul development brought about by communion with the Christ. It is further a reminder of the final judgment and the promised second advent of the Messiah: "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come." (1 Corinthians 11:26.) And in temptation the memory of communion is often a deterrent from wrongdoing, as fraternity is a source of spiritual strength.

MANNER OF BLESSING EMBLEMS.

Before closing it might be of interest to comment on the manner of blessing the elements. Jesus broke the bread and blessed it (gave thanks), and likewise blessed or gave thanks over the cup.* This is the extent of the description in the Scriptures. Justin Martyr in writing to Emperor Antonius Pius, in the first half of the first century, concerning the sacrament of the Lord's supper said: "So we have been taught that the food over which thanks have been given by the word of prayer which comes from him (Christ)." This has led some writers on the subject to ask, Was there a form left by Jesus? It is not at all unlikely that there was. The form as coming through latter-day revelation may, by those who believe in continued revelation, well be believed to be it.

THE QUESTION OF WORTHINESS.

A statement by Paul to the effect that one who partook of the Lord's supper unworthily would eat and drink "damnation to his soul" (1 Corinthians 11:29), has resulted in many Christians refusing to partake because of a natural but perhaps over-sensitive feeling of modesty, which senses the "personal unworthiness which attaches more or less to all Christians" (Adamson, The Christian Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, p. 16). But it is quite clear that Paul did not have in mind this personal unworthiness so much as he did the manner, time, and place of celebrating the rite, and perhaps even the authority of the one administering it. Paul exhorted the unworthy ones to return to the table under other and proper conditions.

The Lord's supper is designed to furnish spiritual food, divine food, and should be taken, when properly and authoritatively served, as physical food is taken to sustain the physical body and strength when it has been properly served. This is not to say, however, that there shall not be made on the part of the communicant adequate preparation to sit at the table of his Lord properly qualified, by penitence of soul and contrition of heart, to partake of divine food and grace. Then he can communicate with heart filled to overflowing with thanks to God for his goodness and mercy in providing room at the gracious festal board for every follower of the lowly Nazarene, and receive strength and spiritual blessing flowing from the Spirit of the Christ to his own soul.

INFIDEL METHODS EXAMINED.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following intelligent and carefully written article appears in Food for Thought, published by Lambert Brothers, Lamoni, Iowa, in 1890. It was prepared by one well-known throughout the church, who for reasons which need not here be expressed withholds his identity. We commend the article to the Saints for a close reading, calling particular attention to the clear and concise manner in which the methods of infidelity are so successfully met.

Even the imperfect narrative which historians have given us shows that men opposed to truth have always adopted similar methods; and though these have differed greatly in details, their general course has always been the same.

We do not propose making a minute examination of the intricate mazes through which infidelity has led its march; but shall be contented for the present with a general survey of the forts, arsenals, weapons, and munitions and methods of warfare owned, manned, and employed by the foe of the humble Nazarene. We notice that the unbeliever plants himself usually in one of two positions: He affirms either that the Bible is shown to be untrue by internal evidence; or history and science, singly or combined, demonstrate its untruthfulness.

If history is relied upon, we answer first, that it is an incomplete witness. As no man can judge of the merits of a picture, unless at right distances and angles the light is thrown upon the entire view; so we can not judge the picture of the Bible, claiming to be divine, by the partial, prejudiced, uncertain, contradictory accounts furnished us by profane historians. It must also be remembered that the Bible lays claim to historic worth; and the unprejudiced student of history is compelled to acknowledge that in this respect it possesses superior merit; at any rate, we can not justly cast it aside and fail to consider and properly weigh its statements, when we appeal to history as a material witness in the case. We submit, that for the following reasons, profane history can not be relied upon to impeach the validity and accuracy of the Bible narrative.

It lacks comprehensiveness. So far is its light from covering the entire field that it gives but faint and uncertain reflections of undefined and in many instances imaginary portions. The blanks which it leaves are filled either by the imagination of the historian, which by lapse of time become hallowed into historical fact; or its chasms are bridged over by a process called reasoning, which is nothing more than comparison of the known to find out the unknown, which must therefore be uncertain and unsatisfactory, and can not by any ordinary stretch of imagination assume the dignity of historical fact. The relation, quantitatively speaking, which the historically known bears to the historically unknown, is not ascertained and can not be, until the unknown is explored. The unknown may be much greater than the known; in which case, the revelation of that great unknown historical quantity might be much more startling to infidels than anything they have ever found in the Bible; and might, and likely would, so completely modify statements at present received as facts that they would be found to be startling fictions instead. A careful distinction, we note, must be made between what is received and urged as known, by infidels, and that which is actually known; for professing to seek after facts, and to be willing to receive nothing else, they may justly be compelled by public criticism and demand, to give facts in support of their charges and criticisms.

As a second reason for disputing the infallibility of the world's historical record, we cite the fact that the best class of histories, those termed vaguely "authentic," are constantly undergoing revision and change. That which was received as absolutely true in a historical sense fifty years ago, is in many instances doubted or positively denied, as the old mists and fogs clear away, and new and stronger light comes. This change, which we need only mention, for everyone of you who has given the matter any considerable degree of study and thought knows it to be true, is fatal to the claim of infallibility or absolute truthfulness. That witness, who, surrounded by different circumstances and persons, and handled by a different lawyer, tells each time a different story, is not worthy of belief, unless supported by strong collateral evidence.

The appeal to science is no less unsatisfactory. Under this term, literally meaning knowledge, by a familiar process of enlarging the domain of words without changing their etymology, has been included all knowledge derived from a study of nature directly. We do not propose to consider the question whether science as now understood and the Bible agree or differ, but as in the case of history, we deny the reliability and infallibility of the witness. No man has yet had the hardihood to affirm that he possesses or that anyone else possesses a complete knowledge of any single branch of science. There is before every explorer in the scientific domain an unknown, of which he can only affirm that "there is but one thing he knows, and that is that he knows nothing." Thus in seeking to try and condemn the Bible by a scientific standard, the infidel stands, like the ancients at the pillars of Hercules, and measures the Bible by his knowledge of the seas and bays and gulfs around his native land, but never takes into consideration, because he knows nothing about it, the great expanse of unexplored waters before him. He grasps a weapon of the temper, size, and general features of which he confessedly knows but little, and stupidly and persistently declares that with it he can demolish the great civilizing and enlightening force of the ages. Having seen a few of the characteristics of the temple of truth, he avers that he possesses such complete knowledge concerning all the rest as to be able, by the light which they reflect, to try a record which contains a theory by which men have reached the highest ideals of goodness and greatness. The pretended certainties of science are born of the repeated assertions of that class of scientists who have again and again demonstrated the truth of the adage, "When philosophers set out to be foolish no folly is equal to theirs." But we must hasten to the other branch of our subject.

Infidels urge that the claims the Bible makes for itself, for God, and for God's people are all "unreasonable." This charge implies the erection, in their minds at least, of a certain standard, called by them reason. What is this? If they urge that it is outside of and above human experience and power, they seek to lead into the spiritual and inspirational domain, but are not willing to enter therein when led by the Christian, or Bible believer; and if they affirm that it is something within the pale of human experience, then we ask, What kind or class of human experience condemns the Bible? That of infidels, or that of Christians? Such a scrutinizing inquiry robs the infidel of at least half his stock in trade, which consists in the charm there is for many minds in the averment, the positiveness of which is only equalled by its carelessness, "It is not reasonable." More closely examined, reason is found to be that faculty of the human mind by which it compares things known to ascertain things unknown. Galileo compared his knowledge of rotary motion and the facts his rude telescope revealed with reference to the appearance, disappearance, and re-appearance of the sun's spots, and concluded from such comparison that the sun revolved upon its axis. But had either of the known quantities been wanting, the unknown could not have been discovered. Thus it appears that knowledge is the instrument which reason uses to enlarge her domain; and that, therefore, concerning that of which we have no knowledge we can not reason. The infidel affirms his disbelief in certain things because he has no knowledge of them, little thinking that thereby he confesses himself unable to submit them to the ordeal of reason; and that, therefore, as against him who with equal credit for honesty and veracity claims knowledge of them, he is an incompetent witness, and that in any court of our land he would be denied a hearing. In France, where the "Reign of terror," born of the worship of the "goddess of reason," drenched Paris with blood, a different rule applies.

We must, then, in order to be accurate and just, discriminate between the childish attempts of those who blatantly affirm that such and such things are not reasonable, and the calm and diligent efforts of those who possess knowledge and are seeking to increase it by the familiar reasoning process.

We may perhaps state here, with as much advantage as at a more advanced stage of the argument, the clear and grand distinction between infidels and Christians. The former is using all the force, ingenuity, and ridicule which he can command to destroy the belief that a revelation has come from God to man, pointing out the realities and glories of a future state and bidding men walk in certain clearly defined paths in order to receive a blessed state after death; the latter plants himself upon this platform: "God has revealed himself to us; and if you will comply with his conditions he will reveal himself to you." The infidel says to the Christian, "Enter into my scientific laboratory, and I will demonstrate to you that the Bible is not true"; the Christian enters, wades methodically through what are called demonstrations, and finds them to be simply the conclusions of the scientist, without warrant of fact. The Christian invites the infidel into his laboratory, and asks him in all fairness and candor to apply the test of his demonstration, but the unbeliever will not go. Loud and many times impudent in his declaration that the Christian will not submit to a demonstrating process the difference between them, he now, when the test is applied, reveals not only his weakness and the weakness of his position, but his moral cowardice also.

In regard to the portions of the Bible which are averred to be unworthy of belief, we can only speak in a general way. We notice first that they are nearly always those parts the existence of which is immaterial to the question of salvation. Moreover, built as we are upon the foundation of revelation from God, both individually and collectively, our position is absolutely impregnable in this regard. If through human weakness, either doctrinal or historical, errors have crept into the ordinarily received versions of the Holy Scriptures, we as a people need give ourselves no uneasiness; for God in his own time and way, according to our faith, will correct error by revealing truth.

We note also and wish especial attention directed to this thought, that the purity, the nobility, the beneficence of the life enjoined by Christ upon his followers have never been successfully disputed. Of all the benefactors of the human race infidels have not been able to show one equal to the humble Nazarene. So long as the teachings and life of Christ remain impregnable to the attacks of unbelievers, so long is the victory ours; so long as this the very citadel and high tower of our fortress of truth remains, just so long may we laugh at every maneuver of the foe. In connection with this thought we present the additional one: Infidels are always seeking to get as far away as possible from a discussion and consideration of principle. Their appeal is not to men's love of right and truth; for if it were they would appeal to Christ; for there, as nowhere else, are found the basic principles which have appealed to the common feelings of humanity as being just and right. There, as nowhere else, are found the searching, though profoundly simple expositions of human nature. There, as nowhere else, my friends, are found unswerving integrity, dignified sacrifice, yearning love, and godlike wisdom. If the infidel were searching for these things, and to accomplish no other and sinister purpose, he would bow the reverent knee at the cross of the great exemplar of truth and righteousness. If an unbeliever could be found who presented as much truth in his whole life as Christ presented in one day, infidels would never tire of pointing to him as a successful rival of the Christian's Savior.

In this connection we wish also to point to the fact that infidels to the latter-day work, and the fruits thereof, pursue the same course and use the same weapons which infidels to the Bible have always pursued and used. The attacks upon the Book of Mormon and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants have been marked with the same virulence, the same questioning with reference to origin, transcribing, publication, etc., which have marked the attacks of infidels upon the Bible. The Bible, the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, all enjoin holiness of life in order to salvation. Is this attacked? Suppose it could be shown that they enjoin unholiness of life in order to salvation; what then? Would infidels pass over this part of the record in silence?

The Bible has its ark, the Book of Mormon its ship that brought Nephi and companions to America; the Bible has its Urim and Thummim, and the Book of Mormon its balls and directors; the Bible teaches the doctrine of vengeance, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants is objected to for the same reason. Thus we might increase the volume of evidence that proves conclusively that infidels to the divine truth have in all ages adopted similar methods.

Christianity comes teaching certain principles, and insisting upon these as the only essential things in the message brought. The infidel refuses to fight upon this ground, and thus admits the correctness of the Christian's theory. The infidel says, as it were, "I admit the exalted character of your Christ and the purity and holiness of the principles you teach, but I have somewhat of fault to find with the means by which you came into possession of those truths. Your house is good enough to live in, and altogether too strong for me to tear down, but I will not come into it and abide there; for according to my notions there are some unreasonable things connected with your account of its erection. An examination of the building reveals nothing rotten, nothing imperfect, deformed, nothing that does not conduce to the welfare and happiness of its inmates; but I fear there is something unsound about your belief as to how the timbers were in the first place formed, or by what means they were brought into position and fitted to each other with such marvelous accuracy. Until these fears are allayed, and you can demonstrate, according to my standard, that the magnificent structure, which I confess is superior to anything else, was erected according to human reason, I must remain outside, though I confess a longing for the comfort and hope which you say you feel within the protecting walls of your Christian doctrine."

Briefly summarizing we note again:

History and science are incompetent witnesses against the Bible and Christianity, because they lack comprehensiveness, testify to different and contrary things, are constantly changing their point of view, and looking at things in a different light. They are unstable witnesses; in fact, they know but little about that of which infidels seek to make them testify, and are totally unworthy of belief, unless supported by other more reliable evidence. Human reason is but an application of human experience—a comparison of known facts for the purpose of discovering those which are not known. Upon that, therefore, concerning which we have no knowledge, we can not reason. He, therefore, who asserts that he knows nothing of any other world than this, thereby confesses that he can not reason concerning any other world, or concerning the truths, principles and laws of any other world. Infidels are therefore incompetent to reason upon the Bible, a book largely of laws, truths and facts concerning another world. It is the reason—the experience—of infidels that is against Christianity; that of Christians, the only ones competent to reason upon it, is all in its favor.

The infidel's challenge to investigation within the laboratory of science, if we permit this witness to be heard, has been many times accepted by the Christian. The Christian's challenge to investigation by direct appeal to God, the infidels have never accepted.

The infidel attacks what he claims to be bad about the Bible; but he will not accept and act upon what he confesses to be good. This shows that his real object is to oppose these good principles, though he will not directly attack them for lack of either show or reality of evidence against them.

Finally, whatever unbelievers may say or do, the golden precepts of the Bible, Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, are grand and eternal truths, on which if we rely no power shall be able to move us from the brightness and certainty of our hope in Christ. The more thoroughly these truths are investigated, the more glorious they appear, hence criticism should be invited, not avoided; but an appeal to basic principles should always be made, rather than pursuing a less comprehensive course.

Of General Interest

EPISCOPAL GENERAL CONVENTION.

The close of the second week of the General Convention marks a stage at which it is possible to discover the attitude of the Protestant Episcopal Church towards the pressing problems of the day. At the time of writing last week the convention had hardly found itself. There was a deluge of notices of motion and a multitude of proposals for canonical and constitutional amendments, all of which were promptly remitted to committees for consideration and report; and in the absence of discussion on the floor of the respective houses there was no means of gauging the mind of the church. So far as the House of Bishops is concerned that difficulty is still existent. The American episcopate still clings to secret sessions when a like privilege is not exercised by any other house of bishops in the world. The policy of publicity, so strongly advocated by Bishop Potter in his lifetime, and supported by such leaders as Bishops Greer, Lawrence, and Brent, was again defeated, after a debate prolonged over two sessions.

The socialist bishop of Utah assailed the convention as a convention of plutocrats. If so, they are singularly sensitive to social and industrial problems, for, so far, these have loomed more largely than purely ecclesiastical questions. The many-sided problems of marriage, including divorce and eugenics, have been under consideration, and they are remitted to a special commission for exhaustive inquiry and report. Then, too, the convention has awakened to the paramount importance of religious education in its manifold phases. This has been exhaustively discussed in joint open session, mass meeting, and conference, in its relations to the Sunday school, the college, and the university. Leaders have realized that in the absence of Bible reading and moral instruction in the public schools an increasing responsibility is thrown upon the church, and that the most pressing need of the hour is a radical reorganization of Sunday school instruction and the inauguration of a thorough system of teacher training.

On the ecclesiastically domestic side the outstanding question of the change of the name of the church is left unsettled, and it is determined that the question is not to be acted upon at this convention. The fine spirit of Doctor Manning was shown in his proposal that no radical change should be made in the Prayer Book except by a two thirds vote of the convention, a proposal which increases the difficulty of making any change in the title of the church. This proposal called forth an interesting but rather futile debate, significant chiefly because it showed the fine temper of the convention and its determination that no differences of opinion shall arrest the growth and harmony of the church. It was finally adopted by a nonparty vote.

One thing is markedly evident in this convention, and that is, a new sense of the vital importance of missions to the life of the church. They are no longer apologetic. The joint sessions held in the cathedral in the interests of missionary work, the presentation of the Women's United Offering of more than $300,000, and the great mass meeting in Carnegie Hall, all testify to a quickened apprehension of the imperial mission of the gospel. In her devotion to the evangelization of the world, the church will find the wisdom and strength so sorely needed to grapple with her problem at home.—Outlook, October 25, 1913.

• * * * •

THE ESKIMO TABOOS.

To illustrate one of the phases of the native religion of the Eskimos, we may consider the question of food taboos. In the mountains of Alaska, on the upper Kuvuk and Noatak rivers, and on the headwaters of the Colville, the prohibitions which applied to the eating of the flesh of the mountain sheep alone were as extensive as the entire dietary section of the Mosaic law. A young girl, for instance, might eat only certain ribs, and when she was a little older she might eat certain other ribs; but when she was full grown she would for a time have to abstain from eating the ribs which had been allowed to her up to then. After a woman had had her first child she might eat certain other ribs, after her second child still others, and only after having five children might she eat all the ribs; but even then she must not eat the membranes on the inside of the ribs. If her child was sick she must not eat certain ribs, and if two of her children were sick she might not eat certain other ribs. If her brother's child was sick she might not eat certain portions, and if her brother's wife died there were still different prohibitions. The taboos applying to the ribs of sheep had relation to the health of her children and of her relatives. They also depended upon what animals her relatives or herself had killed recently, and on whether those animals were male or female.—V. Stefanssen, in Harper's Magazine for October.

It is not strange that men lose the faculty of reverence when they do all their worshiping before a mirror.—Henry F. Cope.

The Staff

EDITED BY AUDENTIA ANDERSON.

Criticisms and Suggestions.

With the announcement of the new anthem books comes a wave of enthusiasm, making itself felt decidedly from all sides. Choirs are taking them up enthusiastically and with a vim which augurs well for the big 1914 Conference Choir. Let none fall behind in the general movement forward! "Be instant in season." Order your books at once, learn to sing the songs contained therein, with the Spirit and the understanding, and thus transmit to your listeners much of the uplift and joyousness which come to you as you study to send forth the gospel message on wings of melody and love.

A criticism concerning the delivery of choir music was recently passed on to us, and we were struck at once with its aptness. The brother said he believed very few choir members felt what they were singing. He said he had noticed, from his seat in the audience, that the singers wore much the same expression, no matter what they were singing; that he had heard them sing music and words intended to convey the very height of joyousness and gladness, with faces both long and solemn, and utterly devoid of even a suspicion of rejoicing. Think a moment, singers, and see if you can not take this criticism home and profit by it.

How about the ever burning question as to who is eligible for choir membership? Is the largest choir the most successful? Should quality be sacrificed for quantity? Or is there an inspiration and enthusiasm springing from the larger bands of singers which is lacking in the smaller ones? Which is the greater asset to a choir, a faithful member with small talent, or a greatly talented member with little or no sense of responsibility as to regularity of attendance, no consecration to the general interest? Should the humble aspirant with a poor voice be welcomed or barred? Should our greatest effort be to enlist the largest number of persons in this service of praise, or should it be directed towards the highest perfection possible for that expression? After all, to whom comes the greatest good from choral singing—those who sing or those who listen? What think you?

AUDENTIA ANDERSON.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 1300 West Electric.

Notes of the Staff.

Independence singers were favored recently by a flying visit from Brother Hoxie, who paused long enough in the midst of his business to gather together about eighty of the singers of this locality and give them a good practice upon the cantata to be rendered next April, "The Holy City," by Gaul. Brother Ed Bell, of Saint Louis; Brother Orville James, of Kansas City; Brother E. S. Losey, of the Independence South Church, and Sister Anderson of the Stone Church, were all present taking notes of the interpretations of the general director, so that each could conduct his own choir in harmony with such interpretation. It is by this combining of effort and interest that all are able to work in unison, and to the ultimate success of the church choir.

Brother Paul Craig, of Omaha, recently visited Independence, and evinced great enthusiasm along the lines of choir work. He has a fine and energetic band of singers, among them being a number who possess very fine voices, which serve to give his choir considerable renown. Brother Craig has promised us an article upon the subject of singing with the Spirit, which article we may expect soon.

Musical Notes.

A prize of two thousand five hundred dollars is offered by the Boosters Club of Southern California for the best original song expressive of the beauty and progressive spirit of that portion of the State. The writer of the best poem is to receive five hundred dollars of the amount, and two thousand dollars goes to the composer of the best musical setting for the poem selected. The contest is open to all, and the award will be made by a jury selected by booster officers. The names of the competitors will be withheld from the jury in order that their selection may be unbiased. The contest for the best poem, which closes November 1, will be first decided, after which it will be submitted for a musical setting. The rules to govern this contest may be had by addressing, Poem Contest, Boosters Club of Southern California, 431 Herman West Hellman Building, Los Angeles, California.

An economical way of obtaining blue prints of music manuscript as originally written on any ordinary white paper, is described in a late number of Popular Mechanics. It is done by means of an electrical process followed by a chemical bath. It will save the great labor and expense of copying on transparent material, and is said to be quite inexpensive.

Chicago, having waged war on immodestly suggestive songs for some time past, is now preparing to lend its influence away from ragtime music by circulating through its public library channels various operatic selections that have been produced there during the past year. About seventy-five musical scores have been purchased for distribution in this way.

Mr. Charles Granville, the distinguished baritone who has been appearing as a tenor for some time past, has recently returned to baritone work with brilliant success. Two points that he insists upon as necessary for the highest degree of success are: singing from memory, which aids true interpretation; and abstinence from tobacco during the season of his musical work, the use of which he claims is a hindrance to artistic production.

For some time advertisements have appeared in various periodicals, offering courses in piano tuning at nominal prices to those who can spend a short time in the study of this line of work. This seems attractive enough, no doubt, if one does not know all that is involved in producing a successful tuner. The tuning of the strings is often only a minor part of the work necessary to put a piano in proper condition; it is also necessary to regulate the tone and action of the instrument, which may contain from five thousand to seven thousand five hundred parts, requiring very accurate adjustments and thorough knowledge of the entire construction. The best piano tuners have been years in mastering their trade, and it does not really pay to employ one to do this work who is not entirely competent, as it is an injury to a first-class piano to have the work improperly done. The difference may be noted by one who has been compelled to have the work done over again by a reliable tuner, after having paid an incompetent one to do it. Not every tuner knows how to properly voice the instrument.

A. B. PHILLIPS.

Music in Worship.

It is not at all improbable that we are indebted to religion and religious ceremony for the development of the art of song, and especially choral singing, though some scientists have thought singing originally came from attempts to imitate birds. But be that as it may, singing has for centuries been an important adjunct of religious ceremonies in the Christian church. The role it played in the temple services under the old Mosaic law, by command of God himself, was elaborate. In Exodus fifteenth chapter, and Judges fifth chapter, are accounts of songs of victory of a religious nature; David by the use of instruments and hymns beautified the religious ceremonies of his day (Amos 6: 5); and in Psalms there is constant reference to instrumental and vocal music. The instruments used by the Hebrews are the lyre, harp, horn, trumpet, flute, and the pipes.

Interesting theories of the origin of music are given by Darwin and Spencer; but so far as church music is concerned, the origin is undoubtedly rhythm. And rhythm and song as an accompaniment to religious ceremony are not confined to the Christian religion, nor the religious ceremonies of the civilized or cultured races, but extend to practically all races of mankind. In fact, with the idea of evolution in mind, our present choral music in churches may be a development and an elaboration of the cruder religious music of the less cultured races.

The dance is almost universal among uncivilized races as a part of religious exercises; and the dance means rhythm. The sound of the stretched drum head on which fall the strokes determining the rhythm of the dancers would consciously or unconsciously be imitated by the chanters in the accompanying incantations, and a unison monotone would result. Then because of high and low-pitched voices, as for example the female and male, the octave would naturally be fallen into, and from this beginning choral singing has developed. The ancient Hebrew song was accompanied by the timbrel alone, to mark the rhythm. Harmony (the triad, consonant, and dissonant tones) is of comparatively late origin, as late as the tenth century. Hence we must conclude that the old Hebrew music was a unison, or followed the octave. It is worthy of note that Selah! an interlude, occurs seventy-one times in forty psalms.

This church music as rendered in the Hebrew ceremonies, and long after the time of Christ, was recitative, the rhythm enabling the choir and congregation to repeat the words together, the idea of response being dominant.

The origin of Christian hymnody, then, must be credited to Hebrew sources. Saint Augustine defined a hymn as praise to God with song. The word hymn to the ancient Greeks meant a poem in honor of famous men, heroes, or gods, to be recited on festive or solemn occasion.

Some have thought that the Hebrew music was founded on the Egyptian, Moses having introduced into the Hebrew services the music of the Egyptian priesthood. The singing was probably done by alternate choirs, this custom having later passed over into the period of the primitive or early Christian. It is to be expected that the first Christians would take with them some if not many of the temple melodies. At first the music of the Christians consisted chiefly of the singing of the Psalms, and was simple in its characteristics; but such as it was, it flourished in Syria and at Alexandria. Jesus and his disciples sang a hymn after they had celebrated the feast of the passover, and Jesus had instituted the sacrament of the Lord's supper. Paul speaks of psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs.

This should be observed: Music in the early church developed from the custom of reciting in rhythm. The emphasis was therefore upon the words; and the rhythmic words, not the sound, was the song of praise. As music developed and the laws of harmony were discovered, their use in church music enhanced the beauty of the rhythmic recitation. And where music has thus been preserved as an auxiliary to the other worshipful exercises of the church it has not interfered with the religious sanctity of the service, but has enhanced its effectiveness, and brightened its splendor. Only where it became independent and tended merely to the ornamental has it marred or detracted from the value of the services from the religious standpoint.

So, in attempting to follow the command of the Lord to develop our musical talents, and in giving these talents to the church in the services thereof, let us remember that it is for the purpose of enhancing the sentiments of praise and worship that rhythm and harmony have been called to add their share to our efforts to make worship beautiful, helpful, and inspiring. Let us, therefore, study to sing with the Spirit, that our devotional music may be uplifting, softening, and tender; full of praise and worship.

FREDERICK M. SMITH.

LA MESA, CALIFORNIA, September 30, 1913.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

"So as by Fire."

In a recent issue a sister wrote earnestly on the subject of dress, and about the same time there appeared in the Ensign a letter from one of our missionaries in which he asked why some of the women of the church who write do not express themselves on the subject of dress. These communications have moved me to narrate a spiritual experience had several years ago. I shall give it only in part.

I was sitting one balmy Sabbath morning in our church in Lamon. I had come up from the primary rooms of the Sunday school and was waiting for the morning preaching service to begin. My mind was entirely at rest; and as the choir filed up into their places they offered a picture pleasing to the eye, the bright tinting of dainty dresses and ribbons harmonizing with the soft morning air, with the glimpses of verdure in the tree tops that swayed gently at the windows, and with the generally pleasant conditions which combined to make me feel at peace with my surroundings.

And so I sat and looked upon the pleasant scene and wondered in my heart just what the Lord requires of his Saints with regard to their dress. It seemed to me that the beauty I saw in the dress of many was like the beauty the Lord himself has placed upon the flowers of the grass, upon "the lilies of the field," in the rocks of the earth, in the blue of sea and sky, and in fleecy, white clouds; for "he hath made everything beautiful in its time." I wondered if I had been wrong in thinking the Lord requires his Saints to curb their desire to beautify the outward appearance, to dress well.

My musings were cut short by the opening of the service. Very probably I thought no more on that subject during the day. It was in the night following that I had a dream, very clear to me in its meaning.

In my dream I stood in the room of a young woman, known to be a good dresser, one who, in modern parlance, is said to be "well groomed," one pleasant to behold; for it is pleasant to look upon artistic beauty, let it occur where it may.

I stood in my dream in a room in the home of this young woman and saw in great profusion many changes of apparel. Some were in process of making; some were finished but had not yet been worn; some had been but slightly worn.

Some material had not yet been cut. The beautiful, costly fabrics were strewn about in profusion. They indicated that the owner loved beautiful things, that she gave much thought to beautiful dress, and that she indulged her fondness for such things. They indicated refinement of taste and the expenditure of money in large amounts.

In the midst of this profusion of fine fabrics to be used in outward adornment, stood a small table, and on it my own typewriter.

Something caused me to go into an adjoining room for a short time. There, at a table, stood an older woman with whom I had intimate acquaintance. She was a woman who had a love of the beautiful in a degree equal to that of the young woman before referred to; but this older woman had always made her own garments, while her busy hands had toiled unceasingly at many tasks of love for others. She stood at the table measuring off the goods for a dress for herself; and, at the same table, leaning her elbows on it in such a position that the lace falling away revealed her round, white arms, sat the young woman in idleness, watching the older woman as she worked.

As I stood taking in the contrast between these two women, there came a knock at the door, and, when it was answered, there stood outside a person who delivered to the young woman an invitation to some pleasurable gathering, which invitation she accepted with happy courtesy. Life for her was largely a pleasure day. For the other woman, it had been largely a day of busy work.

I returned to the room I had left, the room that contained the young woman's treasures, those things her heart loved and to which she gave her attention. In our absence a fire had swept through the room, and the beautiful fabrics were charred masses. The young owner passed with me about the room, examining the condition of those things which once had been creations of beauty, to which she had given her time, thought, and money.

I recall distinctly and with pleasure that, amid the destruction that had been wrought, there was one dress that was marred but not destroyed. It was of white material with threads of gold in it, and the golden threads shone out brightly in contrast with the charred remains of the perishable materials that had been destroyed by the fire.

When the tour of the room had been made, I bethought me of my typewriter and hastened to ascertain its condition. I was relieved to find that the fire had not harmed it.

I awoke from the dream, which has remained with me in vividness in the years since it was given me, for it is not of recent date. I understood its teaching to be the warning spoken before by an inspired man of God, "The fire shall try every man's work, of what sort it is. If any man's work abide, . . . he shall receive a reward. If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss; but he himself may be saved; yet so as by fire."

The same inspired man suggested that we may spend our time and energy on enduring works, represented by gold, silver, and precious stones, while he has warned us that we may waste our time and attention upon perishable things, represented by hay, wood, or stubble. I am glad that, in my dream, the young woman's works were not entirely destroyed, that there were some enduring threads of gold. May we all be warned that we shall suffer loss, if we lavish our attention upon the perishable things of time.

The older woman in the dream, working with her own hands, making her dress neatly and daintily, as from my acquaintance with her I know she was accustomed to do, but satisfied with what was sufficient for moderate needs and not craving many "changeable suits of apparel," was, I believe, in harmony with God's law.

I am not inclined to believe the Lord desires us to repress our love for the beautiful to the extent that there shall be no ornamentation at all upon our garments; for he has said to the elders of the church that their garments should be free from "excess of ornamentation."

The person who holds the work of God above all other things, who desires above all other things to establish the church of Jesus Christ, who loves his neighbor as himself, can not find time or money to spare for extravagant dress. He finds too many demands for time and money in pursuing more enduring work.

Those people of Alma's time seem to have found the happy medium, who "did not wear costly apparel, yet were neat and comely." To be comely in appearance is to be of pleasing appearance.

In avoiding one extreme, we should exercise care not to go to the other extreme. In avoiding excess of ornamentation, many changeable suits of apparel, the use of costly apparel, we should not fall into the other error of clothing ourselves in garments that are devoid of all beauty.

He who has clothed nature with so much of beauty has surely given us reason, if we follow his example, to make our surroundings beautiful within the limits of that which is reasonable. But we should never forget that the imperishable gem which we should polish and beautify with the greatest care is the inner man who lives in our tabernacle of clay, the spirit which is beautified by the acquisition of kindness, humility, moderation, and wisdom.

They who are seeking to clothe themselves with this beauty can not lavish time, thought, and money to excess upon personal adornment.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE FIRST THURSDAY IN NOVEMBER.

Prayer for the church, its priesthood and members, that all may earnestly engage in the building up of Zion to the ideal condition of oneness and equality revealed in the revelations to the church. Pray that each member of the church may be clothed with that charity which will lead him to speak evil of no one, but to regard the reputation of a brother or sister as he regards his own. Pray that greater power may be had in the healing of the sick.

Scripture lesson, Doctrine and Covenants 58: 3.

Memory text, Isaiah 1: 27.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS.

From Chetek, Wisconsin, comes a request in behalf of Mrs. Matie Rich, who has been sorely afflicted in mind for about one year. July 13 she was taken to Mendota and has since been improving slowly. We are asked to pray that, if it be the Lord's will, she may soon be at home again with her family.

No man shall place a limit on thy strength;
Such triumphs as no mortal ever gained
May yet be thine, if thou wilt but believe
In thy Creator and thyself. At length
Some feet will tread all heights now unattained—
Why not thine own? Press on; achieve! achieve!
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

It is a great mistake to fancy ourselves greater than we are, and to value ourselves at less than we are worth.—Goethe.

To improve the world begin by improving yourself.—Backbone.

Letter Department

The Standing Minister and the Missionary.

I am sorry that the spirit and contents of the article bearing the title given above and appearing in the HERALD of July 23 was not understood, as is plain to be seen by the criticism offered in HERALD of August 27. I admire a clear-cut criticism or argument, based on facts, but assertions minus evidence are not arguments. W. G. T. Shedd is authority for the saying, "A clear statement, supported by evidence is solid argument"; and Junius has said, "Assertion unsupported by fact is nugatory."

Notice the criticism number one:

"That the local officers of branches and district can get along without the 'traveling presiding councils of the church' in their midst. Such a view, if believed by the readers of our church paper, can not but seriously interfere with the influence and work of these 'leading representative authorities of the church.'"

From the above the reader would conclude that some one has declared that there is no need of the presiding councils of the church in branches or districts, when the statement is:

"John. In my opinion, if we, of the traveling ministry, were to keep out of branches and districts, say one year, we would find the work in a sad condition."

"Dan. It is not contemplated in the law that the extreme view taken by you shall be maintained, namely, that all missionaries keep out of branches and districts. The law is, 'Leaving them, (branches and districts) so far as possible' (Doctrine and Covenants 122: 7). There are some districts that have competent material, and if left for a term of years (not all the time) would prosper without a personal visit of any of the missionaries, while there may be some that would need help. Notice Doctrine and Covenants 120: 3, (in the HERALD there is a mistake, it has paragraph eight and it should be three): 'The Twelve and Seventy are traveling ministers and preachers of the gospel, to persuade men to obey the truth. The high priest and elders, holding the same priesthood, are standing ministers of the church, having the watchcare of the membership and nurturing and sustaining them under the direction and instruction of the presidency and twelve.' You observe that the standing ministry are to move under the direction and instruction of the Presidency and Twelve. It is not necessary that either of the Presidency or Twelve should be on the ground; directions and instructions can be conveyed by correspondence."

The statement that "it is not necessary for the Presidency or Twelve to be on the ground, but that direction and instruction may be given by correspondence," is made with the understanding that this would be the method if their time were taken up with other work. The following shows that it was not intended that the traveling councils should be excluded from branches and districts:

"John. You believe that as branches, districts and stakes are established, that the traveling ministry should not labor in their jurisdiction, even with their consent or invitation?"

"Dan. No; I did not wish to convey that thought, (why make the accusation) for according to Doctrine and Covenants 120: 4, when the traveling, presiding councils of the church, (Twelve and Seventy, see Doctrine and Covenants 123: 13) are present in either district or branch, they are to be regarded and considered as the leading representative authorities of the church and be respected as such, and their counsel and advice be sought and respected when given."

Again Dan says: "I am sure that no objections will be urged by the standing ministry if the brethren of the traveling ministry visit them occasionally at the conferences and reunions and branches."

I ask why, in the face of the above, assert that the claim is set forth that the local officers of branches and districts do not want the traveling, presiding councils of the church?

The second criticism is a charge that the traveling councils of the church are wasting their time in branches and districts. The term, "wasting their time," is not mentioned. Here is the language:

"Dan. But, as I view matters, we, the traveling missionaries (not councils), are spending much means and valuable time in going often to the various branches, conferences, conventions, and reunions. In my judgment, by so doing we are neglecting our own fields and are not in keeping with the law."

There is a difference between the traveling missionaries and traveling councils; the former is to do missionary work, has not the responsibility of presiding; the latter are presiding, traveling councils, and also do missionary work. In support of what is said, I have known missionaries while having good interest, with tents or in schoolhouses, to close their meetings and go several miles to a conference or reunion, which, as said, was spending much means and valuable time, neglecting their own field.

Third: "If one who criticizes knows best how to carry on missionary work, why was he not ordained to that work?" Is this offered as an argument or a question? If as the former, I fail to see the point; if as the latter, I have this to say: If the reference is made to me, I was not called; and, second, I do not understand that all who have knowledge of missionary work are ordained to that line of work. I am safe in saying that there are many in the church who have knowledge but who have not been ordained. Since the query is, Why one having that knowledge, if he had, was not ordained to that work, we might ask, Why others having the knowledge are not? We might infer from the question that a knowledge of that line of work entitles one to the ordination, which I do not believe. It is a mistake to harbor the thought that only those ordained have a knowledge of that line of work unto which they were called and ordained. I do not understand that because we are not an apostle, seventy, high priest, elder, bishop, or any other officer of the church, we are not to have any knowledge of their respective line of work; neither do I understand that so soon as we have an understanding we should be ordained. In Doctrine and Covenants 130: 9, we are informed that there are others whom the Lord has in reserve, who are fitted for the apostolic work; so we do not lack for material.

Fourth: Reference is made to the epistles of Paul, written to the various churches (or branches). While he wrote to them, he was faithfully at work elsewhere. Had he devoted all his time in those branches, there would be no need of writing so extensively to them. In the travels and labors of Paul, we find him in organized and unorganized fields. If he is presented as an example, we have no objections, and hope that others called to that high and responsible calling will do as well; and as we honor and respect the former-day Paul and his collaborators, so shall we honor our own Paul and his associates, under similar conditions and circumstances.

The charge is made that "as we understand the validity of the apostolic work in regulating and setting in order the churches of Galatia, Corinth, Ephesus, and at Rome, it would reveal the false character of the interpretation of partial texts taken from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants used to sustain the view that the standing ministry should have complete and exclusive control of branches and districts." A grave charge! It is not necessary for me to stoop so low as to introduce partial texts to support that which we have not advocated or believed. The statement was not made that the Twelve have no rights in organized districts or in branches.

Fifth, we read:

"It would be most interesting if some one, holding the view that the Twelve should confine their efforts to unorganized districts and have no rights in organized districts or in branches, would contribute an article dealing with the validity or otherwise of the Apostle Paul's work in regulating and setting in order the 'churches of Galatia,' the church at Corinth, Ephesus, and at Rome. This would reveal the false character of the interpretation of partial texts taken from the Book of Doctrine and Covenants used to sustain the view that the standing ministry should have complete and exclusive control of branches and districts."

To this I can say that I know of none who would treat either the former or latter-day apostle with such disrespect; and I take pleasure in referring to nearly fifty years of my connection and association with the members and ministry of the church. My record will show that I am not guilty of the accusation; and as the charge is an imagination or supposition, I conclude by saying that, "Charity thinketh no evil."

After a careful perusal of the article criticized, I see nothing that conflicts with the law or spirit of this good work.

I wish to add that when men are placed in charge of districts or missions, it stands to reason that before they can know the conditions or needs of the field they must go over the ground, or obtain by corresponding, the needed information. They are to be judges of how much of their time they are to devote in the organized fields, before entering into new. The law is, "Leaving the branches and districts so far as possible." When we speak of new fields, we mean new openings, which may be in close proximity to a branch within the district or stake. The organized and unorganized is sometimes a wheel within a wheel; room for standing and traveling ministry to work. Let each learn his duty and do it.

There are in nearly all branches elders and priests who are not branch officers, and who are acquainted with the surrounding country. It is the duty of the elders and priests who are not branch officers to distribute tracts, make new openings, preach as often as their circumstances will permit, get acquainted with the people, seek a stopping place for the brother missionary, and, with his consent, make arrangements for him to hold services. By so doing, both the standing, or local ministers, and the missionaries can be laborers in the spreading of the gospel, which would be in keeping with the admonition to get out into new fields. Let the local ministry assist the missionary along this line, rather than devote all their time in the branch; and let the missionary encourage the standing minister in assisting in making new openings in place of spending too much time in the branches. I did not wish to intimate that the missionary or the one in charge had no right to go into the branches, districts or stakes.

Respectfully,

WILLIAM LEWIS.

CAMERON, MISSOURI, September 12, 1913.

IPSWICH, QUEENSLAND, AUSTRALIA, August 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: Joy and peace and love to all in the land of Zion. I received the first of the HERALDS and am glad to have them. I enjoy reading the letters of the Saints. Most of them are beautiful in their expressions, and strength giving.

We are looking forward to greeting Elders Griffiths and Miller, who are coming to Australia in mission work. I pray to God that they may enjoy a pleasant trip, and land safely in the best of health. May their work for the Lord Jesus prosper here like the beautiful olive tree, giving faith, healings, and blessing for all who hear and receive the word.

We are having lovely weather here, and the best of health to enjoy it.

Your brother in Christ,

R. C. T. SCHULTZE.

CITY BOARDING HOUSE, Bell Street.

CENTERVILLE, IOWA.

Editors Herald: We are still here, laboring for the advancement of the cause we love, and for the perfecting of the Saints. While we can not report any great thing done, yet we live in hope that our effort here will not be in vain.

We have been trying to learn the cause of the lack of union, harmony, and interest in the work on the part of some of the members here, and then to apply the remedies in the way best adapted to each individual case. We have learned by experience that one can not always proceed with different persons in the same way and bring about the proper results, even if the cases seem to be exactly alike. Therefore, we feel very keenly the instructions of Christ to his ministry, when he said, Be ye wise servants, yet harmless as doves.

We often feel the need of wise instructions and advice from the First Presidency, and are thankful for what has been published in the HERALD by them, especially of late. We hope they will continue this instruction from time to time, for in so doing I feel assured good will result.

May the Lord continue to bless his servants, giving added wisdom according to the needs of the work, and help us all to be truly laborers together with God for the accomplishing of the work intrusted to all, is my prayer.

In bonds,

M. M. TURPEN.

BOONVILLE, MISSOURI, September 26, 1913.

Editors Herald: We welcome the HERALD each week, with its good news of the restored gospel. The same gospel taught by the Saints of old is being taught to-day by the Reorganized Latter Day Saints.

If there are Saints living within six or eight miles of us, or further, I would like to get in touch with them. If we can secure an opening for preaching, I will make an effort to meet the demand. I live two miles east of Lamine, Missouri. If any of the traveling missionaries come through, I want them to call on me. I have a home for you so long as you can do good. Come around and preach through the country, open up the good work, and I will do all I can to keep the interest.

I feel strong in the faith and have a great desire to help spread the truth, and help others to learn the true way to Christ.

May all the honest in heart be gathered out of the world and brought into the fold of Christ.

Your brother,

W. R. RUSH.

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON.

Editors Herald: We have occasion to write the sad message of the tragic end of Brother P. T. Plumb. Brother Plumb has been laboring in the Seattle and British Columbia District as a General Conference appointee for over two years. Without the least attempt at undue eulogy we will say, a good man has gone to his reward.

Brother Plumb was at the hop fields at Claber, Washington, ostensibly to preach to the hop pickers, and while there engaged in the picking to some extent. On the afternoon of September 15 he, with some others, decided to go bathing in the Chehalis River. His sister got beyond her depth and called for Brother Plumb to help her out. He did so, and then seemed to lose all control of his faculties. Though an expert swimmer he perished in this small body of water. His stepfather, Brother A. Premo, went to his assistance, but the effort was futile of effect.

The physician who was in attendance said his death was due to heart failure, or congestion, due to the cold water. How true the statement, "In the midst of life there is death." Brother Plumb was buried under the auspices of the Centralia Branch. It was lovely to witness the tokens of regard manifested in the words of praise and flowers. The church has lost a true representative, and the Saints a good brother, and wise counselor.

To the Saints of the Seattle and British Columbia District, as bishop's agent, I make an appeal in the interests of the general church debt. Let us as a district meet this obligation immediately. Let each one send me your $1.50 now. I have received some, but this should not be passed by a single one. I expect to visit each branch in the next three months, but this will serve the isolated ones. Let us do it now. We can do it if we will but try. Any donation or amount will be accepted. Remember that I have some receipts that I will gladly exchange for tithes and offerings.

In bonds,

WILLIAM JOHNSON.

3618 EVANSTON AVENUE.

DECKERVILLE, MICHIGAN, September 29, 1913.

Editors Herald: We wish the Saints to know that we are still in the last great battle for life and salvation. In the immediate vicinity in which we live there are only eight soldiers to battle with the hosts that are against us, and some of our number are badly handicapped, being married outside of the faith; yet by the help of God we are trying to hold the fort.

As we are some six miles from the branch and not able to attend all the time, we are visited by Brother Amos Guy, of Shabbona, who gives us some very good advice and splendid admonitions. It is hoped that we will heed the same, and by so doing come up higher. Brother Guy held forth at the home of Sister Gonya Sunday, September 28, when a few of the Saints gathered together to hear the words of the Master. Although we were few in number, yet God's Spirit was felt, and we were all blessed.

Brother Guy spoke under the spirit of prophecy to Brother E. Ravin, who was told that if he would cleanse himself from the use of tobacco he would yet be preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ. While this message was being delivered to the Saints there was not a dry eye in the house. May it be so is our prayer.

In the evening of the same day we attended meeting at the Lee Schoolhouse, where we witnessed the confirmation of nine souls into the church and kingdom of God. They were all baptized by Brother Henry Shaffer, and confirmed by Elders Goheen and Harriman. The McGregor choir furnished some fine selections for the occasion.

Surely we can say that God is marshaling his army for the rescue of his truth, for he is bringing forth to battle both the aged and the youth.

May the good work prosper, and may many more precious souls be brought to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus, is the prayer of your humble writer and servant.

ELDORUS RAVIN.

JERUSALEM, PALESTINE, September 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: Our voyage across the Atlantic and through the Mediterranean was very enjoyable. The experiences while passing through the different countries were very, very interesting and educational.

Smoky London, gay Paris, beautiful Lucerne, dirty Rome and Naples, interesting Cairo and a few other places we visited gave us a fine chance to study the country and the people.

I had the privilege of witnessing the "Holy Carpet" procession while we were in Cairo, waiting the time of the departure of our boat from Port Said. The Holy Carpet procession, which comes once a year, attracts Mohammedans from all parts of Egypt. Few tourists see it because of it being out of season. The Bedouins were very much in evidence. The whole affair was so interesting that I thought the HERALD readers would appreciate learning of it.

Having been informed that it was quite necessary to procure a guide so as to get a good position to witness the proceedings, we started out upon our journey.

My guide was a strapping big Arab; with his Bedouin hat and flowing robe he looked the picture of the wandering Ishmaelite. Soon after starting out from our hotel we boarded a car which was packed with Mohammedans and Egyptian police going to the square. When we neared the place of the rendezvous, the motorman was compelled to slow down because of the great crowds that thronged the streets.

Arriving at our destination, we were compelled to push through the crowds of Arabs to get a suitable place to view the parade. As we pushed through the immense concourse of people, we saw the police strike the Arabs with whips in making avenues so the carriages, and the English officials could get to a place reserved for them. After getting a stand we began to look around and ask questions concerning things about us. I found that we were about five hundred feet below the fort that Napoleon built, and about three hundred feet below the citadel which commands the city, where eight thousand British soldiers are quartered.

One thing I noticed surprised me, and that was the absence of English soldiers in the parade. All the soldiers taking part in the ceremonies of the Mohammedan religion were from the Egyptian troops. I thought that it certainly displayed good judgment on the part of the English officers in holding in reserve so many men in the citadel during the day, at the time of gathering of thousands of fanatical Mohammedans.

My guide informed me that the dimensions of the holy carpet was about ten by fifteen feet. It is silk, and handmade. The best workers are obtained to make it. The approximate cost is $250,000. It takes a month for the caravan to go across the Arabian desert to Mecca. Five hundred Egyptian soldiers accompany the caravan to protect the carpet from wild bands of Arabs. The government is obliged to offer gratuities to the wild Arabs to keep them from attacking the caravan. It is considered a principle of Mohammedanism for every good Mohammedan to see Mecca once before he dies. There are five or six carpets taken along with the holy carpet which are placed over the grave of Mohammed, to protect it.

Just at this juncture of the conversation a salute of twenty cannon was fired for the prime minister who had just made his advent into the inclosure. Every Mohammedan raised his hand to his cap to salute him as he passed by. I was too busy taking his picture to spare the time of saluting. Just as soon as the salute was fired, the holy carpet, which was in a large, square case, supported by two heavy poles, was raised to the shoulders of twenty men, then a salute of thirteen cannon was fired for the carpet as the men prepared for the march.

Before the men carrying the carpet came out of the inclosure they marched seven times around a ring, followed by a native band, who rode on camels gayly attired in silk, and colors of every hue, playing weird music. At the conclusion of the seventh round, the holy carpet, preceded by Egyptian cavalry, was carried out of the inclosure. Just before the carpet was carried past me twenty or twenty-five men and boys threw themselves down on the ground in front of the carpet, permitting the men who were carrying it to walk over them. This last scene was in all probability a part in the program, as the soldiers and police did not interfere with this peculiar procedure, but waited until the carpet was carried by, then politely ushered the men and boys back inside the inclosure. None appeared to be hurt.

I have heard of the Buddhists permitting the juggernaut car to run over men who threw themselves down in front of it. I somewhat disbelieved the story. But I am half-convinced after seeing the Mohammedans, carrying the holy carpet, walk over the bodies of the men and boys, that there may be some truth in it after all.

After the holy carpet had been carried by, there were seven or eight cases, heavily draped with silk, inside of which were additional carpets to place over the holy carpet to protect it. The men carrying the cases wore gray robes and gray caps. The cavalry was next in line, each man riding an Arabian horse and carrying a banner. Their horsemanship can not be excelled. After the cavalry, came the mounted battery of six guns. It takes five mules to carry the equipment of each gun. The infantry which came next in line made the best appearance. With white uniforms and red fez caps, and with their bayonets glistening in the sunlight, they looked the picture of great fighters. Practically every man was a six footer, and as straight as a die. Nor do their looks deceive their record as brave and fearless fighters.

After the parade had passed, the police kept back the crowds while the carriages returned to the city. Here again I was very fortunate in having a guide. The way we were driven through the crowds of people was alarming. And such narrow streets, too! I had only ten minutes to make the hotel and train from Port Said. Arriving at the hotel I found Elder Greene and Sister Koehler in a nervous mood, thinking that I would surely miss the train. But we managed to get located in our car just long enough before train time to get cooled off.

Sincerely,

7 FRENCH POST.

H. ARTHUR KOEHLER.

Extracts from Letters.

Brother Benjamin Pearson, Tigris, Missouri, writes of the Ava, Missouri, reunion: "A good spiritual time was enjoyed by all, especially during the fore part, when the spirit of prophecy and admonition was in our midst. During the last days some of the ministry began to leave, and the reports came back that they were having large audiences, which was one of the blessings promised; this was encouraging to those remaining, and when we separated it was with thankful hearts to the Giver of all good. Preaching was by all the ministry present; all enjoyed the spirit of their calling. Seven were baptized during the reunion, and many more since in the different parts of the district."

M. A. McConley, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii: "We started on a trip around this island on foot the last Monday in September; were out one week, and I came home with the grippe. This laid me up the first part of the week, but I am recuperating and expect to go out on Monday. After we complete the rest of our one hundred-mile jaunt, we intend to go to the island of Hawaii, where we will remain until about the first of February. As we have items of interest in our travels I may drop you a line now and then. But facilities for writing are not exactly first-class out in the country, so do not expect much."

Maude McCracken, Myrtle Point, Oregon: "There were not so many campers at the Southwestern Oregon reunion as we would like to have seen, but that did not hinder the Lord from being with us. Owing to the Adventist camp meeting and the Christian revival, which were going on at the same time, there was not quite so large an attendance of the people of the town as at other reunions, but interest among those who did attend was good. After visiting the other branches of the district, Brother Sheehy preached at North Bend before taking the boat for Vancouver, Washington. Brother Crumley is still at Myrtle Point."

C. L. Wainwright, Chicago, Illinois: "Our Wednesday evening prayer service was a grand one. The Saints seemed to be enveloped in the very Spirit of God. During the early part of the session Mr. Crippen, a young man who has been investigating this work, as well as many others, arose and expressed his desire to come into the church, saying that he had never before, among any other people, witnessed the good fellowship and spirit that exists among the Saints. Brother Crippen was baptized Sunday afternoon by Brother Dowker and confirmed by Brethren Pitt and Dowker."

Mrs. L. C. Shirk, Sidney, Montana: "I am far away from any of the Saints, but God takes care of me. I am praying to be able to do more for his blessed work and hope I may be able to pay tithes and offerings for God's goodness to me. My prayer is to overcome all the trials of life and rejoice with all the redeemed in the kingdom of God."

W. L. Kimball, Plano, Illinois: "The Saints in this place are trying to do a little all the time, nothing great, but to keep moving; and this we hope to continue to do. Let us hear from others and let us get down to business and not stop until the church debt is paid. I believe that we should not go to any expense that we can get along without until after the debt is all paid off. I mean to work to this end myself. Although I may not do much I will do all I can and will try to do more each year."

News from Missions

Denmark.

Sister Hansen and I arrived in this city on the morning of September 17, having left our home and loved ones at Weston, Iowa, on the evening of the 3d. Our journey from home to Quebec was somewhat disagreeable, caused by a wreck on the Chicago & Milwaukee Railroad, which delayed us seven hours, in consequence of which we failed to make proper connections, and were compelled to continue our journey to Quebec, where we reached the steamer that we otherwise had expected to catch at Montreal.

Our passage across the Atlantic from Quebec to Avenmouth, near Bristol, England, was completed in one week. We left Quebec on the evening of the 6th and landed at Avenmouth the evening of the 13th. The steamer was the Royal Edward of the Northern Canadian Line. We found the accommodations quite good, notwithstanding we were traveling third class—the best third class accommodations I have seen. We were both well upon our arrival here, though Sister Hansen felt somewhat tired. As my health was very poor when I left home I felt that I had great reason to be thankful.

We had scarcely time to become located in this city before we went to Helsingborg, Sweden, to attend a two-day meeting on the 20th and 21st. This, however, was a pleasant opportunity to meet with the brethren and Saints with whom we have been associated upon former occasions. The meeting was not largely attended, as our membership is not numerous and not many nonmembers attended. Brother John H. Hanson of the missionary force could not be with us on account of ill health. Brethren O. W. Okerlind, C. W. Swenson, together with the writer, administered the word. All seemed to enjoy themselves; the Saints felt comforted and encouraged, and some who have not yet united with us are interested, and we hope are not far from the kingdom.

I have now entered upon the work in this city, where prospects at the present time are not very encouraging. I purpose, however, not to allow myself to become discouraged, but to make a thorough effort. If I fail to arouse an interest I will try some other place; but I am still hopeful, trusting in the Lord.

Just before leaving home, it was my privilege to attend the Western Iowa and Eastern Nebraska reunion, held at Missouri Valley, Iowa. This was a treat highly appreciated by me, after having been so long out on the front, where our gatherings are small. The meetings were spiritual and uplifting in their nature and all, with the exception of a few faultfinders, seemed to enjoy themselves. The Saints were appealed to for help in behalf of this mission, and a collection amounting to $100 for the benefit of Samhedens Banner, and other publications was taken up, for which we, in behalf of this mission, feel very grateful, believing the Lord will reward and bless all who so willingly contributed.

We hope to be remembered by the Saints in the homeland, and shall always be glad to hear from them. We trust also that all will remember that this mission needs your cooperation. We need your prayers that the Lord may assist, for without him we can do nothing. May the Lord help us all that indeed we may be truly laborers together with him.

In gospel bonds,

H. N. HANSEN.

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK, Lossøesgade 3.

Palestine.

Our long journey is ended, and we are located in the city of the great King. We arrived Sunday noon, September 14, via the Russian boat from Port Said to Jaffa. We were advised not to take this boat, but had been waiting a week in Egypt for one, and, by shifting to first class, managed to live through the experience. We draw a veil over the picture; one must see and smell it to appreciate it. Our descriptive powers are insufficient to do it justice.

Missionaries frequently do things they would not do if they were amply supplied with money. We did not prepare for a sojourn of a week in Egypt, and our dreams never revealed anything like their prices; so it was a question of go, if we expected to reach Jerusalem without walking. Had we walked, like Israel of old, we would have needed manna daily, and our faith was insufficient.

It was interesting to watch the boatmen surrounding the steamer at Port Said and Jaffa; such a scene of confusion and utter lack of system, can only be witnessed in the east. You can pay Cook and Son to cover all landing charges, but everyone who touches the luggage, rows the boat, up to the agent in charge, will make you miserable asking for "bak-sheesh."

A feeling of peace and rest came over us as we landed at modern Jaffa. We were glad to be there. The train passed from the city into beautiful gardens of orange, lemon, date, pomegranate, grape, and nuts, showing the wonderful fertility of the land. Slowly we moved out upon the plains of Sharon. I believe this country compares favorably with the Western Reserve, Ohio, or any part of Illinois or Missouri I have seen. At present it is dry. In a few weeks, when the rains come, it will be covered with growing grain. We entered the mountains in two hours. The change was great. There is practically no timber where it ought to grow in abundance. The rains have washed the soil into the valleys. Here and there were feeble attempts to cultivate a few grapes and olives, but these attempts were pitifully crude.

Our first sight of Jerusalem was interesting and encouraging. There are new stone buildings on every hand. Homes, hospitals, stores, churches, convents, with new buildings are under construction in every direction. We found Brother Floyd's home without difficulty, as everybody knows him, and received a saintly welcome from Brother and Sister Jenkins.

We had scarcely partaken of luncheon when we were pressed into service, and were reminded of my Hawaiian experience, preaching by aid of an interpreter, Brother Roos, an excellent German who has found the precious gospel in this far-away land. Brother Koehler had his first experience this evening.

We have already started a small school. Sister Koehler is doing splendid work, even without equipment. Many friends in America offered financial help if it were needed in Jerusalem. I trust they will respond as promised. We need everything from chairs up, and can largely obtain what we want here. We have found excellent buildings, with suitable school and church facilities, but need four thousand napoleons to secure them. We hope the Bishop can furnish the price.

We are comfortably situated, and find inquiring people humbly seeking for light. The sight of a daily paper or interesting magazine would do us good. Our address will be Jerusalem, box 97, care of the French Post.

Very hastily,

U. W. GREENE.

JERUSALEM, PALESTINE, September 19, 1913.

Australia.

On July 30 Elder Jones went to Moona, South Australia, and located at a private boarding house. Here he met two Utah elders. He let them know who he was. His next step was to write a letter to the local paper, and also to another paper, The People's Weekly. The Utah elders were met by Brother Jones on the street, where they had a verbal warfare, which ended by Brother Jones defeating them in all their defenses.

At Hamilton, Newcastle, there has been no advancement in membership, but all are as strong and zealous as they ever were. On June 20 two promising young men, Brethren A. Pascoe and Rupert Imrie, were ordained to the offices of priest and teacher, respectively, under the hands of Bishop Lewis.

As superintendent of normal work in Australia, Brother W. J. Haworth visited Wallsend, Hamilton, and Bulahdelah, during July last. At Wallsend four candidates sat for examination. They aggregated three hundred and ninety-nine marks, which was extremely gratifying, as the possible number was four hundred. The loss of one mark was due to a slip of the pen and not to inability to answer the question. At Hamilton six candidates piled up one hundred per cent each. At Bulahdelah fourteen candidates from very tender age up to middle age sat and passed, each scoring the "possible."

I am very pleased to say that the work is gradually being pushed ahead. Here at Kurri there are only six or seven members, but sometimes an elder from Newcastle comes this way, very seldom though. I have been on the lookout here for anybody I could see who would like to read the church books, and have found one young man. He used to go to the church in Wales before he came to Australia. He had read the Book of Mormon in the old country, and had the Inspired Version with him. I gave him the Fall of Babylon and The Voice of Warning; he says the books are splendid.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
AUGUST 24, 1913. J. R. BOEKENSTEIN.

Northern Indiana.

I was appointed to Northern Indiana, and came here direct from conference. I have since tried to do what I could for the Master, but I feel I have not accomplished much. There are few Saints in this district with whom I can stay; yet I have found some. Most of these have been very kind to me, and have done what they could to effect openings; but as a rule the people are so prejudiced toward the work they will not come to hear. Most of them are going after everything except the true religion of Jesus Christ.

I was in the city of Elkhart quite awhile, making my home with Brother and Sister Robert Walters most of the time. They are dear Saints, and did all they could to help me in my effort. There is a Brother Mark Johnson there also. His wife is not a member of our church and he could not assist as much as he otherwise would have done. I left some investigating, who I think will obey in time.

I went over the line to Mattawan, Michigan, where I found three families of the Gliddens, two of which are members of the church, and at one time lived in Lamoni. They regret having left there. They can not interest their neighbors in the gospel; and would like to have their children under the influence of the church. They think of selling out where they are and returning to Lamoni. I felt sorry to find them under those conditions. They are good Saints, and kindly remembered me in a financial way.

I am now making my home with Brother and Sister Julius Pancop, the only Saints here. We have endeavored to effect an opening but as yet have not succeeded. The other evening we went to a small village about four miles from here and engaged a schoolroom for a week's meeting, or longer, commencing to-night. The place is called Lisbon.

I would like to say to the Saints of the district that if they are interested in trying to make an opening at or near their homes and will write me I will be glad to do all I can in that line.

I have been short of means and have been helping Brother Pancop dig his potatoes; but a little hard work goes a long way with me these days.

I ask the dear Saints to remember me in their prayers, that I may succeed in the work of the Master.

Your brother in the faith,
OCTOBER 19, 1913. WILLIAM DOWKER.

Not in the clamor of the crowded street,
Not in shouts and plaudits of the throng,
But in ourselves are triumph and defeat.

—Longfellow.

The trouble with the man who never makes a mistake is that he doesn't know when he makes one.—Backbone.

News from Branches

Cleveland, Ohio.

This branch is growing, on account of the Saints moving into the city. We have had a larger attendance lately, and some especially good sermons by Brother Baldwin. Otherwise we do not note any particular progress. Some of our one time regular members are absent. Three ordinations occurred last Sunday, J. McNice, elder; Clarence Thomas, teacher; Brother Martin, deacon.

We believe that the work is destined to progress in this part of the vineyard. The good of the work must be the first consideration. Preferring one another and loyal support with a united effort is what we need. We have many favorable opportunities for advancement, if each will consider the others' welfare. Our Réligio has a new leader in Brother Mellish, lately moved here.

CORRESPONDENT.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

FAR WEST.—Convened with German Stewartville Branch, October 11 and 12, district presidency and J. W. Rushton presiding. Branches submitted summarized ministerial reports by branch presidents: DeKalb, John Piepergerdes; Oak Dale, Coleman Snider; First Saint Joseph, B. J. Scott; Second Saint Joseph, John L. Bear, jr.; Third Saint Joseph, H. B. Taddicken; Alma, L. F. Ferguson; Cameron, N. V. Sheldon; Pleasant Grove, S. J. Hines; Far West, S. H. Simmons; Stewartville, A. St. Lewis; German Stewartville, T. T. Hinderks; Kingston, E. M. Bryant; E. L. Henson reported. Branches reported: German Stewartville, 91, gain 2; First Saint Joseph 579, loss 6; Second Saint Joseph 161, gain 11; Third Saint Joseph 121, gain 8; Stewartville 237, gain 1; Oak Dale 55; Kingston 83, gain 1; Delano 82, loss 10; Alma 56, loss 1; Cameron 154, gain 14; Pleasant Grove 73, gain 1; Far West 41, gain 5; DeKalb 52, gain 2. Sunday school reported. Library board reported. R. L. Henry, district recorder, reported. Action on report of committee appointed at last conference to draft rules to govern future conferences deferred till next conference with order that printed copies of rules prepared be furnished each branch for consideration. Far West Quorum of Elders, Fifteenth Quorum of Priests, Fourth Quorum of Teachers, reported. Charles P. Paul, T. T. Hinderks and D. E. Powell were appointed to draft resolution in memory of our deceased brother, A. J. Seely, and to file copies of same with HERALD and Ensign. Charles A. Morton, of Kingston Branch, was ordained an elder. T. T. Hinderks was set apart as president of the Fifteenth Quorum of Priests, D. C. Wilke being set apart as his first counselor. Presidency were appointed to arrange for two-day meetings throughout the district and to assign minister to take charge of same. By motion the first Sunday in November was set apart for special collection to defray current expenses of the Children's Home, Saints' Home, and Sanitarium. Preaching by E. L. Kelley, B. J. Scott, and J. W. Rushton. Special collection was taken up, collection and promises amounting to $2,250. The pro rata of the Far West District for church debt as reported by the Bishop is $2,150. Adjourned to meet with First Saint Joseph Branch first Saturday and Sunday in March.

FLORIDA.—Met with Alaflora Branch, near Dixonville, Alabama, October 11, C. J. Clark, W. M. Aylor, and F. M. Slover presiding. Ministry reporting: A. G. Miller, B. L. Jernigan, F. M. Slover, Swen Swenson, W. M. Hawkins, W. A. West, James Cooper; C. J. Clark, J. H. Johnson, A. E. Warr, J. S. McCall, C. Dixon, J. H. Barnes, E. N. McCall, J. G. Dixon, Willoughby Dixon. Branches reporting: Alaflora 166, Fairview 24, Mount Olivet 61, Santa Rosa 83, Cold Water 102. Bishop's agent reported: Total receipts, $175.28; expenditures, $180. Report was audited and found correct. Treasurer reported: Total receipts, $10.47; expenditures, $3.15. It was ordered that treasurer pay expense bill of $10.71, incurred by president. Appointment of W. A. West as district historian was ratified. Report of report blank committee accepted and committee discharged. Ordination of J. L. Mize, of Flomaton, Alabama, to office of priest was approved. Next conference will be held with Cold Water Branch, near Botts, Florida, early in January. Preaching by I. M. Smith and W. M. Aylor. E. N. McCall, secretary.

CLINTON.—Met in conference at Veve chapel, October 11 and 12, W. S. Macrae and W. H. Lowe presiding. Branches reporting: Veve, Nevada, Fort Scott, Butler, Walker, Taberville, Coal Hill, Lowry City, Mapleton, Wheatland, Rich Hill, Eldorado Springs. Priesthood reporting: W. S. Macrae, W. E. Reynolds, W. H. Lowe, C. H. Athey, S. C. Williams, T. R. White, O. D. Shirk, C. M. Schroder, Amos T. Higdon, J. Harry Paxton, George Wells, John Sallee, Roy S. Budd, T. L. McCormick. Speakers were: O. D. Shirk, W. S. Macrae, Amos T. Higdon. Adjourned to meet at Nevada, Missouri, first Saturday and Sunday in March.

The Bishopric.

AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of Colorado, Northwestern New Mexico, and that part of Wyoming included in the Eastern Colorado District: The undersigned, as bishop's agent for the above-named district, desires to make a personal appeal to you in behalf of the financial interests of the district. Let us as Saints rally to the support of the church in its present need. Let us all by our personal efforts see to it that the work of the district shall not suffer, or the families of the missionaries be found in need. Remember that the work of the church depends upon the efforts of each one, and that this work is "intrusted to all."

Particularly is your attention called to the plan for reducing the general church debt. Let us respond gladly and quickly with the amount allotted to each one, $1.50; and lest there be some who are unable to furnish their allotments, let others contribute in greater measure so far as possible.

We trust that the divine Spirit will inspire and that heavenly grace will assist all in the performance of this most important duty.

ARTHUR H. MILLS.

DENVER, COLORADO, 358 Emerson Street.

To the Saints and Friends of Western Nebraska: Just a few words to remind you that I am still bishop's agent for Western Nebraska, and am anxious to be remembered by you with your tithes and offerings.

My dear brethren, sisters and friends, let us not lose sight of the fact that to withhold our tithes and offerings is to "rob God," (Malachi 3: 8-10). Just think a moment of the magnitude of such a crime! And then read this glorious promise: "Behold, now it is called to-day (until the coming of the Son of man) and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people; for he that is tithed shall not be burned (at his coming)"—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 4. Jesus taught the necessity of tithing. "But woe unto you, Pharisees! for ye tithe mint and rue, and all manner of herbs, . . . these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone."—Luke 11: 42.

Jesus further says, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven."—Matthew 7: 21. And in Luke 6: 46 we read, "And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?"

I trust that by these positive statements of our blessed Lord all will be admonished to come up to the help of the Lord in this great and final struggle for the emancipation of the souls of men from the consequences of sin. I am indeed thankful for the generous efforts you have made in the past, and trust that the Lord will bless you in "basket and in store," inasmuch as you shall seek to do his will. (Malachi 3: 10; Matthew 23: 23; Doctrine and Covenants 106: 1, 2.)

Checks made to me are as good as any other paper, so you need not be at extra expense or trouble to get drafts. Mail sent to me at Comstock, Nebraska, or 2312 South Twenty-fourth Street, Omaha, Nebraska, will reach me.

Yours for Zion's weal,

C. W. PRETTYMAN.

Convention Notices.

Minnesota Sunday school will meet in Minneapolis, corner of Fifth and Queen Avenues North, November 8 and 9. Alta Kimber, secretary.

Notice of Release.

Elder John F. Sheehy, who has been laboring in the Western Maine District, is released from his appointment for the remainder of the conference year; he has wrought well, and has requested the above action owing to home needs.

PAUL M. HANSON,
Minister in General Charge.

BIRCH HARBOR, MAINE, October 21, 1913.

Book of Rules Revision.

To Those Whom it May Concern: The committee on revision of the Book of Rules, as appointed by last General Conference, has subcommitted part of its work, and that subcommittee is now situated so it can begin its work. Brethren A. B. Phillips and H. O. Smith will be in Fall River, Massachusetts, much of the remainder of the conference year, and have planned to devote considerable time to the work of revision. Those who have suggestions to make regarding the Book of Rules will please take notice, and send such suggestions to A. B. Phillips, box 701, Fall River, Massachusetts. Other members of the committee will also please note, and communicate with Brother Phillips regarding any changes to be suggested. The work of the subcommittee will be to work out a report to the committee which will be the basis for subsequent committee work when it meets next spring. This will greatly expedite the work of the committee.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Chairman Committee.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, October 21, 1913.

Address.

William Dowker, home address Lamoni, Iowa; field address, 917 Cedar Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Died.

DYCHE.—John Dyche was born at Bradley, Stafford, England, May 14, 1847, died suddenly of heart failure at Govan, Canada, July 16, 1913. He was baptized in February, 1874, at Stafford, England, by John Seville; was ordained an elder July 21, 1895. He leaves wife, one son, two daughters. He was a devoted father and a strong exponent of the work. He tried to do right. Funeral at home of his daughter, Sister Morris, of Lumsden, Canada; sermon by Reverend Russell, of the Presbyterian Church.

NELSON.—Mary Nelson was born in Gotland, Sweden, January 7, 1834, died October 9, 1913. She came to America in 1865, located at Nebraska City, Nebraska, soon after uniting with the church. Since her husband's death, six years ago, she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. C. L. Gouldsmith, now living near Blue Springs, Missouri. She leaves three sons, one daughter, six grandchildren. Funeral at Nebraska City church. Sermon by H. A. Higgins.

ROGERS.—Loren Davis Rogers died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Olwins, Chicago, Illinois, September 21, 1913, aged 81 years, 10 months and 1 day. He was buried from the German Evangelical chapel, Sandwich, Illinois, F. M. Cooper of Plano, Illinois, preaching, assisted by C. H. Burr, also of Plano. Deceased married Miss Catherine Heavener, March 25, 1855. Of six children, three survive him, as do twenty-one grandchildren, twenty great-grandchildren, two brothers, three sisters. His wife preceded him. Brother Rogers was quite successful as a business man. He was a member of the church for over fifty years. He was a good man, one of the church's financial helpers.

PARKS.—Agnes Parks was born in Ayreshire, Scotland, December 14, 1837, died October 10, 1913, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Frederick. She came to America at seventeen years of age, soon after marrying James Parks. She leaves two daughters, three sons, six grandsons, one granddaughter. She had been a member of the church about fifty years. Her religion was seen both in word and deed, and her benevolence and kindness to the poor and needy was as the perennial fountain that quenches the thirst of the thirsty. Her life was like a perpetual sunshine. Buried from the home where she died. Sermon by F. M. Cooper.

MASON.—Eugene L. Mason was born October 25, 1869, at North Lawrence, New York; died August 17, 1913, at Appleton, Wisconsin. Brother Mason was baptized June 28, 1903, at Appleton, Wisconsin, by C. H. Burr. He was highly respected for the integrity of his character and was an earnest and faithful church worker, being a priest and president of Fox River Branch. Death was due to dropsy. He leaves wife and two daughters, besides many friends in and out of the church. Interment at Riverside Cemetery, services conducted by B. C. Flint.

HORTON.—At Independence, Missouri, October 15, 1913, George F. Horton. He was born at Rutland, Tioga County, Pennsylvania, August 17, 1836. Baptized at Plano, Illinois, September 26, 1875, by Joseph Smith. April 26, 1859, he married Miss Sarah Elizabeth Deam. Two sons and three daughters were born to them, three of whom survive. He also leaves nine grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. Sister Horton died September 1, 1877. He married Miss Abbie Augusta Johnes, May 17, 1879, who is left to mourn. Brother Horton was about eight years old when his parents left Nauvoo, Illinois, in the scattering of the Saints, but he held fast to the faith. Funeral from Independence Church; sermon by W. H. Garrett; interment in Mound Grove.

BLUE.—Agatha Blue was born August 18, 1857, at Clymer, Pennsylvania; died June 3, 1912, having been run down by an automobile. She leaves seven children. Sister Blue was baptized March 6, 1904, by A. B. Phillips.

H
O
L
I
D
A
Y

GOOD BOOKS ALWAYS MAKE FINE XMAS GIFTS

S
E
A
S
O
N

THE long winter evenings will be very pleasant and profitable to you and your friends by the reading of good literature. A good book is always appreciated as a gift, and the giver is remembered long after he has been separated by time or distance from his friends. Let us solve your holiday problems. Send for our latest list of books and make your Christmas selections early, and avoid the holiday rush. Do it NOW.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,

LAMONI, IOWA

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Reverend W. A. Stanton on the Three Witnesses 1045
 Two Interesting Events 1048
 Important Notice to Members of Branches 1048

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, Part 3, by Frederick M. Smith 1049
 Infidel Methods Examined 1052

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 Episcopal General Convention 1055
 The Eskimo Taboos 1056

THE STAFF 1056
 A. B. Phillips—Frederick M. Smith.

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN 1058
 —H. Arthur Koehler—Extracts from Letters.

LETTER DEPARTMENT 1059
 William Lewis—R. T. C. Schultze—M. M. Turpen—
 W. R. Rush—William Johnson—Eldorus Ravin
 —H. Arthur Koehler—Extracts from Letters.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS 1063
 H. N. Hansen—U. W. Greene—William Dowker.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES 1065
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT 1065

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

1913

1914

READ THIS

From date of your remittance to January 1, 1915, we will send the "Saints' Herald" and "Youth's Companion" for $3.25.

Regular Yearly Subscription to Saints' Herald $1.50
Regular Yearly Subscription to Youth's Companion $2.00

The rest of this year and 1914 for $3.25 only. This offer good to both old and new subscribers.

DON'T PUT THIS OFF—SUBSCRIBE NOW.

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President.
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth, containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Brother Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth .....75c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

WANTED—Competent cook wanted at the Children's Home. Apply to W. P. Robinson, Superintendent. 18-tf

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.
Order No.

141 cloth .....	75c
141½ leather .....	$1.00
174 flexible .....	$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.)
John Zahnd,
6-tf Independence, Mo.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the ## Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

There Is a Chance for You in the Big Horn Basin

You can prove it to your own satisfaction by going with me on the next excursion to the Big Horn Basin, where you can inspect the opportunities for establishing a new business, the employment of idle capital or the renting of an improved farm, which you can do for a share of the crop. No cash rents required, but it is possible for you to now secure a good farm for next year and move out in the Spring.

And You Don't Have to Wait for Rain

You simply turn the water on when your crops need it. A destructive hail or wind storm has never been known to visit the farming regions of the Basin Country. If you prefer, you can take up a Government irrigated home- stead or file on land under the Carey Act. Why not write to-day for particulars, maps and folders, and plan to take advantage of this opportunity?

D. CLEM DEEVER, Immigration Agent, C. B. & Q. R. R.
1004 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, NOVEMBER 5, 1913

NUMBER 45

Editorial

BUILDING THE HOUSE OF GOD.

(Dedicatory sermon delivered by Elbert A. Smith on the occasion of the dedication of the church at Andover, Missouri, October 12, 1913. Reported by Sister Elizabeth France.)

In Psalm 127: 1 I find a text that may be suitable for this occasion. "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it."

I realize of course that this is an old and favorite text with men preaching dedicatory sermons. But I believe that its possibilities are not by any means exhausted. The text that has served others so well can not fail to arouse some thoughts in our minds that will be profitable. "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." Or, to express it in other words, Except the Lord be with those who build the house, their labor shall be in vain.

I think that we could apply that text profitably, not only to the building of a house, but to the building of institutions, and to the building of men and women. We may just as well say that except God be with those who build the church as an institution, they labor in vain who attempt to build it. And except God be with those who educate and train and develop men, they labor in vain who engage in that work. Because the Master has said in another passage, "Without me you can do nothing."

It is not enough alone that God should not be against us; it is absolutely necessary that God should be for us. And we see why Joseph was told concerning Christ, "They shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." If God is not with us as an institution, if he is not for us, then our labor is all in vain. And if God is not with us as men and women, our whole lives shall have been wasted.

This is the predominant thought that we want to impress on your minds this morning, the absolute necessity of having God with us in all of our deeds and in all of our life. And we believe that this note should be sounded in this age as never before, because this is the age in which men and women and institutions are ignoring God. It may not be that they are all of them fighting against him, it may not be that God is against them, but they are simply ignoring him—paying no attention to him. And if God is not with this age, then this age certainly will be a failure.

WHAT DOES THE BUILDING REPRESENT?

We have met this morning to dedicate a house of worship—a building. And as we come together for that purpose we are reminded of the fact that every building, no matter what its nature, stands for something,—something more than brick and mortar, or wood, or stone.

The house that you live in may be simply a little cottage of four or five rooms, or perhaps only two rooms, but it stands for something more than a house. It stands for the family, which sociologists tell us is the unit of society. It stands for the home, which certainly is one of the great corner stones of civilization. The little, humble, log cabin that Abraham Lincoln lived in as a boy, certainly no less than any great mansion, typified the home and the family.

We might say in this connection that if God does not build the home, they labor in vain who build it. That is, if God is not in the lives of the men and women who are building the home, then their labors have been expended in vain. How many homes are there in this country that are ruined, simply because the home builders have labored without God! They have ignored God. He has not been with them in their labor, and as a consequence it has all been in vain.

It is equally true that every other building of any importance has its significance. The city hall is something more than a building. It stands for the community. It stands for the society that composes the city which it represents. The state capitol stands for the State, and the national capitol stands for the Nation. We may say in the language of our text concerning all these, that if God does not build the State, if he does not build the city, if he does not build the Nation, then they labor in vain who build these various institutions. To express it in other words, If our great national capitol in Washington, if the Houses of Parliament in London; if these do not stand for nations in which God is working, then those nations will certainly go down in defeat. It is not the number of men in the army, it is not the number of vessels in the navy, that make a nation formidable; it is not the thickness of the walls that makes the city strong, but it is the character of the individual citizens and the fact that God is truly with them. For, as the Psalmist goes on to say just following our text, "Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain."

And another statement is made in Isaiah 26: "We have a strong city; salvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks." It is not the walls that we build that make the city strong, but the fact that God has appointed salvation for that city. And though in ancient Babylon they had walls that were wide and high and strong, when God sent Cyrus against the city it was no trouble for him to find a way in and to destroy the wicked and drunken inhabitants who trusted alone in the strength of their walls.

We read further, in Isaiah 26, "Open ye the gates that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in. Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee."

It is the nation where righteousness enters in, the nation that keeps the truth that is strong.

And there is a principle in that statement made in the Book of Mormon concerning this Nation in which you and I live, that it shall never be brought into bondage, excepting the people shall lapse into iniquity. And if it ever does come about that this Nation becomes a nation of iniquity, then our armies and our navies can not preserve us.

But we come back to the fact that just as these other buildings stand for something, this building that you and I have met here to dedicate to-day stands for something. It stands for something more than the material and expense and labor put into it. It means an increase in the wealth of the church; but it means something a great deal more than that. This building that we have met to dedicate to-day stands, first, for the Church of Jesus Christ, as a great, organized institution. And it stands, second, for the individual worshiper, who comes here from time to time to meet with God. We put the individual worshiper second, but in some respects at least he is most important. For the whole church exists that it may save the individual worshiper who enters the doors of this church building and other church buildings to meet with God. And so we can truthfully say this morning that if this building does not represent a church that God has builded, then all our labor has been in vain. But the testimonies of the past and the assurances that we find in the word of God confirm us in the thought that God was with those men, who built this building. He was with those men who organized the church that this building represents. And we can say in the language of the angel, "God with us." We can call his name Emmanuel, which truly means, "God with us."

THE LIFE UNDER THE CORNER STONE.

It is said that the Russian people centuries ago had a custom that whenever they laid the corner stone of a public building, they would bury under it some living creature. I have seen a picture that I will never forget that represented the laying of the corner stone of some such great public building. It was one of such importance that they wanted a sacrifice of unusual value, and so they selected a young girl. And the picture represents her struggling in the grasp of those strong and brutal men who were about to cast her into that dark hole that she might be buried beneath the corner stone.

The theory was that the life of the individual went into the building—into the institution. And so, if we look back of every institution we will find the life of some individual or individuals who have given their lives; and their character and their lives have gone into the institution.

When we look at the church of Jesus Christ it is needless to say that we discover that his character and his life went into that institution. That is what Paul had in mind when he said, "The church of God, which he has purchased with his own blood." Just as that unfortunate girl was under the corner stone and her life was supposed to have gone into the institution to give it life and permanency, so Jesus Christ is through and in his church, and his life, his character, his vitality went into it as an organized institution.

WHAT IS THE ROCK?

Along this line we call your attention to Matthew 16. This is familiar to all, and you probably remember how Peter was talking with Jesus, and other apostles were talking with him, and he asked them several questions. Finally Jesus said to Peter, "But whom say ye that I am?" And Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." And Jesus answered and said unto him, "Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. And I say unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

We have heard various explanations of that statement, "Upon this rock I will build my church." The Catholics tell us, of course, that the rock was Peter. Some of our people have taken the position that the rock was revelation. Jesus said, "Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven"; hence they conclude that revelation, continued revelation, is the rock on which the church is built.

This has never appealed to me as being the correct interpretation. I believe that when Jesus made that statement his mind went back to the leading thought that had been mentioned, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." The mind of Jesus went back to that statement, and he said, "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Of course revelation is important (the church can not well do its work without continued revelation) but the thing revealed is more important than the mere revelation. The great fact that Jesus was the Son of God and the Savior of the world is the underlying fact on which the church of Christ rests. If we could take that away the church would have no foundation at all,—it would be simply a man made organization, and God could not be with it, because in that event Jesus would have been an impostor, and God could not be with such an individual nor with such a church, hence the text would apply, "Except God be with those who build the building, they labor in vain that build it."

But of course we could not remove that great fact. That Jesus is the Son of God still stands as the great foundation principle on which the church of Christ rests. There may be those assembled here who may not entirely agree with me on the point, as to the nature of the rock, but I presume that all will agree with me in the thought that Jesus is the great central figure, the great permanent figure in the church. As it is expressed in another place, "The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner."—Psalm 118: 22. Or, as Jesus himself expressed it in Matthew 21: 42, "Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the Scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner?"

Why, the Jews thought they were building the church, but when the time of Christ came it was evident that God was not with them in this building because they rejected that which he had designated as the chief corner stone, that which was in due time to become the head of the corner. While we can all look back and see what a woeful mistake the Jews made when they rejected Jesus Christ; yet the world is making the same mistake to-day.

The Christian world, so-called, is rejecting the doctrine of Christ. We can not reject the doctrine of Christ and have Christ with us. "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son," is the divine statement. (2 John 1: 9.) Jesus instructed the apostles that they should go into all the world and teach all nations, teaching them to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." What are the conditions? That we abide in the doctrine of Christ; that we teach the people all things that he has commanded us. On that condition, and on that condition only, he says he will be with us until the end of the world. And if he is not with us, then all of our labor is in vain.

NOT JOSEPH SMITH, OR PAUL, OR APOLLOS, BUT JESUS CHRIST.

We call your attention to these facts this morning for this reason: We frequently hear the charge made in the world that Latter Day Saints do not believe in Jesus Christ; that they believe instead in Joseph Smith. I have had people put to me this question, "How can you people worship Joseph Smith, and why is it that you put him in the place of Jesus Christ? And so this morning and at all times we want to set forth in plain terms the fact that Jesus Christ is the head of the corner, the Son of God, and that his is the only name under heaven given among men by which the children of men can be saved. We want to make that so emphatic that no one can misunderstand it, and that this church is not the church of Joseph Smith; it is the church of Jesus Christ, and in him and through him we obtain our salvation.

DID JESUS HAVE A CHURCH?

But then one asks, "Is it a fact that Jesus organized a church?" We meet hundreds of people in the world who do not believe that Jesus organized a church, or that God ever builded a church, or at least if they believe it they seem to ignore it. There are thousands of people who believe that Jesus is a great teacher, but they know absolutely nothing about his church; they do not recognize it as a great saving institution.

Is it not a fact that Jesus said, "On this rock I will build my church"? Nobody else would build it; he would build it. He made the definite promise that he would build his church on a rock and the gates of hell should not prevail against it.

Is it not a fact that in the first Corinthian letter, twelfth chapter, it is said that God set in the church apostles and prophets?

Is it not a fact that in the second chapter of Acts the statement is made that the Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved?

So we have three definite statements in the Bible that confirm us in the thought and knowledge that we have that Jesus Christ, working in conjunction with the Father, organized an institution known as his church; and that God set in it certain officers, and that those who were to be saved were not saved outside of the church, but were added to the church daily.

People ask, "Can not we be saved outside of the church just as well as in it?" We let the Scriptures answer that question. The statement is made that God added to the church daily such as should be saved. That was the divine rule anciently. And this rule will apply just as well to-day as it did in those days.

Yes, Jesus organized a church and it had a certain definite form. It was not a haphazard plan, for we read in this chapter (1 Corinthians 12): "And God had set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues." And in Ephesians, fourth chapter, we find the same thought presented. In other chapters we read of other officers, apostles, prophets, seventies, bishops, evangelists, deacons, all that went to make up the great organized church of Jesus Christ in those days.

ORGANIZATION AND DOCTRINE.

Now we have the plan by which God worked. Can we build along some other line? If we do God will not be with us, and if God is not with us then we labor in vain who build a church and build it without his sanction. How many churches are there existing that are patterned after this plan?

Is this church in harmony with that divine plan? We have apostles. Jesus said to his apostles, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." How many churches have apostles fulfilling that divine commission? We are glad to say that this church is carrying out that plan. Only yesterday a letter came from Apostle Greene, saying that he had just arrived in Jerusalem, taking the gospel to the Jews. Only the day before a letter came from Apostle Griffiths, saying that he had just reached Tahiti and had baptized seven of the natives there. We have Apostle Butterworth in Australia, Apostle Curtis in Canada, and others in the United States. And so they are carrying out the divine commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." And we have the seventies also in their place, the bishops and pastors, the teachers and deacons and priests; all those officers that went to make up the great organized church of Jesus Christ when he was here on earth.

The church had a certain definite form of doctrine, as we find in the sixth chapter of Hebrews. It is not necessary, perhaps, to take the time to read it this morning, but we will hastily run over it:

Therefore, leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection. (These you notice are the principles of the doctrine of Christ, that according to another translation we are not to leave.) Not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the doctrine of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

So we find that they had a certain definite form of doctrine that constituted the foundation principles of the doctrine and gospel of Jesus Christ. Since those days we have had a great many efforts made to draft a form of doctrine, but absolutely none that have been any improvement on that statement of faith that we find in the sixth chapter of Hebrews.

FUNCTIONS OF THE CHURCH.

The church of Jesus Christ in those days also had certain functions that it was to perform. And in order to bring this to our attention I will read an extract from a sermon preached by a prominent minister by the name of Frederick Lynch. Speaking of the church, he says that we should Make just the claims Paul made, namely, that Jesus Christ divinely instituted the church to be his representative in the world, and imparted to it all the powers he himself exercised upon earth, including the forgiveness of sins, the salvation of souls, and the giving of eternal life. He appointed the church to be what he was, say what he said, do what he did, and to continue to effect what he accomplished.—Literary Digest, October 4, 1913.

That sentiment is very striking, and will be new to a great many people, but it is not new in its essential ideas to us. Jesus Christ delivered his work over to his church, and the church was to do the very things that he had been doing. It was to perform the same functions that he had performed. It was to have the same power, the same authority, the same characteristics that he had as an individual when he was here among the children of men. One of those functions was the power to forgive sins.

In Matthew, the chapter I have already cited, (Matthew 16:19,) Jesus went on to say, "I will give unto you the keys of the kingdom of heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." Our friends of the Catholic Church believe that this commission was to Peter. But we see in it something more than simply the power of a pope confirmed in one individual; we see in it a commission that was given to the church. That church we believe is represented here to-day by this building that we are about to dedicate.

In the eighteenth chapter of Matthew this is cleared up a little bit where the statement is made regarding transgressors or one involved in a difficulty:

If he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church; but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as an heathen man and a publican. Verily I say unto you, Whatsoever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven:

and whatsoever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven.

Now Jesus was not talking to Peter alone on this occasion; he was talking to the disciples collectively, to the church, and the church was the final repository authority, and it still is. When members come into conflict and reconciliation is impossible, then it shall be told to the church. The church is the representative of authority and exercises that authority through individuals and members of the priesthood, and also by its own expression of opinion by way of vote. If the transgressor will hear the church and heed the church he may be forgiven, but if he will not hear the church, then he shall be cast off—excommunicated. For the church has power to bind on earth, to cast out, excommunicate; and the church has power to loose on earth, that is, to forgive under certain conditions. And whatever the church does along these lines, God says he will recognize in heaven.

Jesus also gave to the church this commission: "Go ye into all the world; and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." The church had the power and authority to go out and administer this ordinance of baptism, and thereby the sins of those who came in at the door would be abundantly forgiven.

THE INDIVIDUAL WORSHIPER.

We have considered the great institution of the church that is represented by this building. We have also mentioned the individual worshiper who comes into this sacred place that he may meet with God. How is it with you? How is it with those who constitute the congregation that meets here? Are you building along the lines that will apply to you as well as to the church: "Except God build the building, they labor in vain that build it"?

We are told, "For other foundation can no man lay than is laid, which is Jesus Christ."—1 Corinthians 3: 11. It is just as necessary that the individual should have Jesus Christ in his life as it is that Jesus should be with the church. The individual who tries to build without Jesus Christ in his life is absolutely sure to make a failure.

We can not have a strong nation without Jesus; we can not have a strong church without Jesus; we can not have strong men and women without Jesus.

Then the apostle goes on to say:

Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

You see we have no choice of foundation, but we do have a choice of material out of which to build.

We can choose gold, silver, wood, hay, or anything mentioned here in building our individual characters and life's work, but we must do so with the thought in mind that by and by the work we have built shall be tested. We do not all have to build alike, but we should all, within the limits of our abilities, try to conform to the divine pattern and try to incorporate into our lives that which will be eternal in its nature.

BUILDERS WISE AND OTHERWISE.

It is not enough to build; we must build right. According to the Scriptures there are builders who are wise, and there are builders who are otherwise. There are builders who are foolish as well as those who are wise. In the eleventh chapter of Genesis we read:

And the whole earth was of one language, and of one speech. And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there. And they said one to another, Go to, let us make brick, and burn them thoroughly. And they had brick for stone and slime had they for mortar.

What was their idea? They said, "Let us build a tower that will reach to heaven." What was their material? Brick for stone and slime for mortar. Nothing genuine. They did not have genuine stone or genuine mortar; but they had brick and slime and thought that they could build to heaven.

How many institutions are there in the world today with the same ambition, trying to get men to heaven; trying to bring about heavenly conditions, and their material is just as inadequate as the brick and slime that those people tried to use. What is the reason? Because they ignore Christ. They leave him out.

Then we turn to the statements of Christ himself as we find them recorded in Matthew 7: 24, where he tells us about two individuals who builded. You know the popular conception is that if you build, that is all that is necessary. In other words, if you are sincere, it does not matter how you build or what you build. But Jesus, evidently having this thought in mind, tells about two individuals who builded. The first was a wise man. He hunted around until he found a solid rock. He cleared away the obstructions and smoothed off the surface of the rock and built his house on that rock. It took a great deal of labor and thought. But when the floods came and the winds blew his house stood. Now Jesus said he would liken this man unto one who hears his words and does them.

Then there was the other man. He looked around and found a nice smooth strip of sand. It did not take a bit of work to prepare the foundation. It was just smooth and level and lovely; and so he went ahead and built. By and by when the storms came and the winds blew, the house fell. This house fell because it was founded on the sand. Jesus says this individual is like the man who hears the words of the Master and does not do them.

It takes work and thought when we have heard the words of the Master to go and do them. Anybody can hear them and then go blundering along the lines of his own conception, and he may be just as honest as the day is long, and just as sincere as Jesus himself, when the storm comes his house is going to fall. So we want to build, and not only build, but build right. We want not only to hear the words of the Master but to do them.

YE ARE THE TEMPLE OF GOD.

As we meet here this morning in this house that is to be dedicated to God, we realize that it is a holy building. We come here expecting that God will be here with us. We can feel the solemn influence of the Spirit when we come into the prayer services. God has pledged himself that he will be here with his Spirit, whenever two or three of us come here agreed and our hearts right in his sight. In a certain restricted sense it is a temple where God meets with men. But we must not forget that while the building is important, the men and women who meet here are vastly more important. While in a restricted sense it is the temple of God, in an unrestricted sense and in a higher sense you yourselves are the temple of God. For the apostle goes on to say, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." (1 Corinthians 3:16.)

Josephus tells us that shortly before the temple in Jerusalem was destroyed by the Romans, when the priests went in to administer in their sacred ordinances, they heard a sound like the rushing of the wind, then they heard a voice say, "Let us go hence," and the Spirit of God departed. Shortly the temple was destroyed.

Paul tells us that we are the temple of God and if we defile that temple by evil deeds perhaps some day we shall hear the Spirit of God say, "Let us go hence." And the apostle carries on the thought, "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy."

THINKING, FEELING, ACTING OUR RELIGION.

But we have happier and better thoughts concerning those who meet here. We trust that they will live in harmony with the religion that they have espoused, and you know that means a great deal. Jesus said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength."

Do you know what that means? That means that we shall think, that we shall feel, that we shall act the Christian religion. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." The heart is the seat of the emotions. "With all thy mind," the mind is the seat of thought and intelligence. "With all thy strength," the source of all action. Thy strength shall be devoted to his service. Feeling, thinking, acting the Christian religion we can not fail to merit the personal blessing of God.

May he bless the services that we observe here to-day, and receive this building and bless those who shall assemble here, that they may conform to the pattern that Christ has set them.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

DOWN AGAIN.—It is a bit amusing to note the various reports incident to the discussion of "Mormonism" so-called, with reference to the success of the opposition in downing the cause. The latest "victory" in this connection reaches us through the Christian Reporter, being a brief account of the Zenor-Etzenhouser debate, held at Tryon, Nebraska. Mr. Zenor says:

It is the universal verdict that the "Mormons" have done the worst thing they have ever done since coming to the country. The verdict of this community is that they are already down and out, for years to come, if not entirely.

E. D. Howe downed the faith in his Mormonism Unveiled, published in 1834. Every writer, every lecturer, every debater, with hardly an exception, from that day to this has reported a fall to his credit; and still the cause arises to conquest and to victory, having extended itself to every clime and to most every country. The situation does not bear comparison even with the proverbial nine lives of the cat. The modern game of football comes nearer to a true illustration: First down, yardage gained, and a touch-down every contest.

A FAIR FIELD.—Just how sincere the Utah Church is in the following expression appearing in the Deseret Evening News for October 16 may be attested by our proselyting brethren who have from the beginning been denied buildings in Utah owned or controlled by the Utah Church, and who have been assailed but met with a refusal to discuss in Utah the differences between the Reorganized and Utah churches:

We are perfectly willing that the opponents of the church should meet our elders in "a fair field"; that they should discuss our doctrines from every angle; that they should examine our claims, and even scrutinize our lives as an evidence of the character of the message our elders deliver to the world. All that is legitimate. But this is just what the opponents nearly always refuse to do. And when they, instead, resort to libelous slander and falsehoods, they are not fighting fair.

We remember in this connection that when granted the use of our church building in Lamoni a few years ago certain representatives of the Utah Church challenged our Brother Heman C. Smith to debate with them in said church. When told he would do so on condition that the discussion be repeated in Salt Lake City, these representatives stated that they had no control in Salt Lake City, but that they would take the matter up with the authorities there and report. No report has been made to date. The Utah elders are sometimes ready to consider fundamental differences outside of Utah where they have nothing to lose and all to gain; but in Utah where they have little or nothing to gain and all to lose they hesitate. "A fair field" seems to be found only outside the home camp.

FAIR AND LIBERAL.—The Household for September, in the column edited by Mrs. Alice E. Wells, in answer to the question as to the origin of the American Indian, acknowledges receipt of a copy of the Book of Mormon and of letters from various people holding said book to be sacred. A brief though comprehensive and intelligent synopsis is given of the journey of Lehi and his family from Jerusalem to America, and of the history of the Nephites and Lamanites thereafter, down to and including the destruction of the Nephites. We wish to commend the Household for this fair and liberal consideration.

EDITORIAL SELECTION.

CALVARY.

The Pilgrims through the city gates
While the night is falling fast;
They go to watch by Calvary's hill
Ere the twilight hours are past;
Though dark be the way, with eyes of faith
They gaze on His Cross above;
And, lo! from each heart the shadows depart
As they hear His words of love.

Far, far away, o'er the dreams of years
They hear the Voice of the King,
"Where, O Grave, is thy victory,
And where, O Death, is thy sting?"
Captive He leads them for evermore,
While weary pilgrims rejoice;
For looking on high to the Cross He bore
The faithful shall hear His Voice.

"Rest, rest to the weary,
Peace, peace to the soul;
Though life may be dreary,
Earth is not thy goal.
O lay down thy burden,
O come unto Me;
I will not forsake thee,
Though all else should flee."—Henry Vaughn.

Original Articles

THE WILL OF GOD IN CREATION.

Sermon preached at Lamoni, Iowa, September 20, 1913, by Heman C. Smith. Reported by Elizabeth France. Scripture Reading, Genesis 1: 1-24.

If it is requisite that I take a text this morning, I will invite your attention to the third verse of the chapter we have read, a portion of the first chapter of Genesis: "And God said, Let there be light, and there was light."

Volumes might be written upon the philosophy of this text. We shall not confine ourselves, however, to the fact recorded that light came to the world; that is a very small matter compared with the philosophy of the subject as to how it came and the power by which it was created. If I can understand it, and I suppose I do only imperfectly, God willed it to be so, and because he willed it it was. And it indicates to us that God has but to will a thing and, when his will is behind it, it is done. This is not the only passage of this kind. There are several of them in this chapter.

And God said, Let the waters under the heavens be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear; and it was so.

And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth; and it was so.

And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly, the moving creature that hath life, and fowl which may fly above the earth, in the open firmament of heaven.

The point I want to invite your attention to is that God can will a thing and his will is the highest law in the universe; that there is no other law or no other force greater than his.

By reading further than we have read this morning we will find it plainly indicated that God created these things in his own mind prior to their taking shape on the earth; that he formed the things that are spoken of here, as the Inspired Translation says, spiritually, before he formed them upon the earth. The same thought, though not in as plain language, is found in the King James translation: "And every plant of the field before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field before it grew: for the Lord God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground. These were all created before that; he created them before they were on the earth. That is, he formed them, if not literally, in his own mind. And when these formulations were made, or he had planned them, he had but to say, Let it be so, and it was so. There is no power that can thwart this mind; there is no power that can interfere with it.

It is not necessary to take the position that some have that this world and all that therein is has evolved by a slow process, and has developed from one thing or one specie to another. It is but reasonable to think God could will a thing to be so and it would be so. The process might be a very quick one, too. To illustrate that point so far as the power of God is concerned, we have but to think that this power is largely resident in man as well. Man has but to will things and they are so. It may be a more tedious process than it was with the Lord, but it is so when he wills, largely so. God took time when he willed a thing to be so to bring it to pass, or to create it in his own mind before he created it in fact. When he willed it the processes were in his mind to make it.

Now I say that this same power is largely resident in man. Nature never created for us certain things we enjoy. For instance, when man was made there was not created for him a house to dwell in. God left that for him to do. The crude materials were furnished at his hand. God made the sand and the clay; he made the metal and the slate. He made the running water and the growing trees. And when man wanted a home for himself and his children to dwell in he said, Let there be a house, and there was a house. He set to work the processes by which these materials were converted into the solid wall, ornamented with beautiful architecture, and lighted by means provided for the light to get into the dwelling—through transparent glass. He said, Let there be a house, his will was behind it, and the process was set in motion by which he had what he wanted. And what is true in regard to a house is true in regard to other things. God never intended that man should have everything furnished for his need.

The will of man behind a thing is a powerful agency to bring it to pass. He saw the necessity of better means of transportation than that given him by nature. He said, Let there be an engine, and there was an engine. The will of man was behind it, and the will of man was obeyed. The process might have been more tedious than that by which the Lord went to work, but it is the same principle that is involved. We do not come to the conclusion that what we do in this regard, and what we will, is the result of the processes of evolution, only as our minds evolve greater things. We know better. We know we have but to will a certain thing and put the process of its creation in operation and it is so. This power must necessarily be stronger in the Creator of the universe than it is in us; but it is illustrated in us to that extent that we need only follow up the philosophy of the statement that God made, "Let there be light, and there was light," and we can account for everything there is in creation upon that hypothesis. There is no necessity for anything else. Our own experience has demonstrated to us that the will power brings out things that we need. We create to supply the demand that is upon us.

The world is growing, they say, in knowledge. The world is becoming better so far as the ability to create things is concerned. But it is done simply by the will. The demand is upon us and we will something shall be created to meet that demand, and it is so. That was true of the Lord in the creation. He said, Let there be light; and there was light. He said, Let the earth bring forth grass; and it was so. He said, Let the sea bring forth living things; and it was so. There is nothing more mysterious in this than there is in our experience when we say, Let there be a machine; and there is a machine.

I was talking once in a town not very many hundred miles from here, of the power of God, speaking of Christ and his mission. And a man in the audience spoke up and said that Christ could not make a sewing machine. I do not know how he knew he could not. I acknowledge that he never did make a sewing machine; he never made a house; he never made an engine. He never made any such things that we have in the world. It is better for us that he did not. He could have made everything and let us occupy it. There would have been no exercise of our will, no room for us to develop and show forth the power that God has placed in us. He said, Let there be light; and there was light. He said, Let man exist upon the earth, and he did exist. He willed certain things should be and they were. Then he said that man should exercise his own will; and things that are necessary for your comfort and your support and your convenience in this world will come by the exercise of your own will.

And we make things in our own minds, as he did, before we make them literally. We form in our minds an idea of architecture, or machinery, and when we get it formed and made as far as plans are concerned, we say, Let it be that way; and it is that way. Sometimes we may make failures; but that does not interfere with the plans involved or the power by which it is done. There is enough of success in this world to know that we can do that. When we look at things from this standpoint it accounts for what we call marvelous, what we call miraculous. There is an ordinary way in which things are done in this world. But it does not argue that because there is an ordinary way there can not be an extraordinary way. It was extraordinary when the Lord said, Let there be living things upon the earth and in the sea. The ordinary way is what we call natural. I do not know why one is any more natural than the other. But we call one natural and the other supernatural.

I was once discussing with a gentleman of doubtful mind, what we call an infidel, an infidel at least in regard to the revelations of God to man. And he said, "I want you to state frankly to this people (his name I think was Joseph Cartwright) I want you to state frankly to this people if there is not something in the miraculous conception of Jesus Christ that you do not understand. I frankly confessed that there was. I said, There is something in the miraculous conception of Jesus Christ that I do not comprehend; there is also something in the miraculous conception of my friend, Mr. Cartwright, that I do not understand. But if there is a power in the universe that can create the germs of life by which an ordinary conception takes place, then that power can also reach the same ends by extraordinary means. I do not argue that Mr. Cartwright was not conceived because I do not understand the process. And I would be inconsistent if I argued that Jesus Christ was not conceived in the manner spoken of because I do not understand the process. One is no more marvelous to me than the other. It comes under our observation more frequently, but measured by the power it takes to bring about the results, one is just as marvelous as the other. It all lies behind the will power.

God willed that it should be so and it was so. And you and I will that certain things should be so and they are so. Dare we deny to the Creator of the universe the same power to work by the same philosophy that we do?

They say that when miracles out of the ordinary are performed then the laws of the universe must be changed; or it must be done contrary to the laws of nature. That does not look reasonable to me. I do not see but that they can be done in harmony with the laws of nature just as well as to be done contrary to nature. God can not violate his own law.

There are conflicts shown in nature and we never think about them. These flowers [pointing to a bouquet on the stand] grew in the sunlight, and without the sunlight they would not have been as perfect as they are, if they had been able to live at all. This sunlight made them or helped to make them what they are. But you have changed the conditions. Then they were being benefited by the sunlight, but now if you put them out in the sunlight they will die, and the more sunlight they get the quicker they will die. Has any law of God been suspended? Not at all. The same sun that has life in it under certain conditions has death in it under others.

For instance, this man, and some others I have heard, said that certain things spoken of in the Bible that are supposed to be miraculous would have been impossible. He said that it would have been impossible for an ax to float (2 Kings 6: 5-7) unless the weight of the ax was changed to be lighter than the water, and that God would have to interfere to the extent of making the ax lighter than it naturally was or else it would not have floated. Let us see. I raise my hand, not because it is lighter than the atmosphere. I determine in my mind that it shall rise up, and so abundant is my physical vigor, in comparison to the effort, that I can hardly notice it. It rises by my will. My will is under the hand and it goes up. God's will is under the ax and it will float, and it does not have to be lighter than the water any more than my hand has to be lighter than the atmosphere. No law of God interferes; but that one law that God wills it to be so which is the strongest power in the earth.

Mr. Ingersoll once said, and was very successfully answered by Father Lambert of the Catholic Church, that water always runs down hill. And Father Lambert said that it did not always run down hill; that the great body of the water in this universe is held by centrifugal force upon an inclined plane. If water always ran down hill it would seek the lowest place on the globe and stay there, becoming a stagnant pool, and there would be no circulation of water. This is true, is it not? It is a fact that there is more water ascending the capillary stems of vegetation in one day than goes over Niagara Falls in one year. And Father Lambert added that Mr. Ingersoll had seen a little water running down hill and thought it all ran that way. But to keep it in circulation it has to go up. Water, like every other substance in this world, is subject to the highest force that comes in contact with it,—to the strongest force. If gravitation is the strongest force it goes down. But if a force be stronger than gravitation it goes up. You can demonstrate this by getting hold of a pump handle.

The will of God is the strongest force in the world. And I think a great deal more of this theory that things are created by the will of God—he willed it should be so and it was so—than I do of accounting for their creation in any other way. Many of the miracles we hear in the word of God I might call attention to if it were necessary. All I have to say is that if his marvelous power is not enjoyed in the experience of God's people in this age of the world, it is only an evidence that God is not exercising his will. It is nonsense to talk about God doing certain things to establish his power in the world; working miracles in the world eighteen hundred years ago just to convince people that Jesus was the Christ, and to establish his mission, and when that was done there was no longer a necessity for it. I would despise myself if I thought God was doing that to show them what he could do and then quit. The will of God will always be the strongest force in the universe. And he is just as likely to will one day as another. I depend upon that largely for my protection. Do not you? If a man is deaf to-day, God is just as likely to will that that man's ears shall be opened now as he ever was. If he is blind, God is just as likely to will that his eyes shall be opened as he ever was. It is the will of God.

Man's power is limited, but God's is not limited. But within those limitations man wills that a thing shall be so and it is. It is in the history of man just as much the truth as in the history of God that man wanted a house and he said, Let there be a house; and there was a house. He said, Let there be machinery created, and there was machinery created. Some people say that God made his out of nothing. I do not care whether he did or not. We can not do that. We do not need to do it. The material is here. We take these crude materials and we fashion them according to our will. That is the reason why we have all the wonderful conveniences that we have in this world. Man said, Let the lightning come down from the clouds that it may serve us; and it did. It turned darkness into light, transported his thoughts from one part of the world to the other. It turns the wheels of commerce. Man's will is strong; it accomplishes a great deal from the material that is furnished. Our fathers did not have these things. They did not think about them. They did not create them in their minds. They did not formulate them spiritually or mentally.

One of the special miracles that the world finds fault with is the one which says that Joshua said to the sun, Stand still; and it stood still. Sometimes men can not do things themselves. They depend upon the power of God. And when they are in a certain relationship with God, God hears them, and God does for them what they want done. Why, somebody says, if that had been true, that the sun stood still in the midst of the universe, it would have created a heat that would have burned up a globe forty times as large as ours. I do not know very much, but I must use what little sense I do have. I do not want to sit down and let somebody tell me their opinion and believe it without using my own brain. I have thought about this heat business, and I did not believe it. Go and sit down on the steps to-day; out there it is cold, and you will get cold. Get up and run around the block and you will discover that it is movement of bodies that creates heat, and not their rest. It does not create heat to stand still; heat is in motion. So far as my observation goes, that is true. I never saw any heat created by bodies being at rest. The Book of Mormon says it was not the sun that was standing still. It is the earth that moves, not the sun. The earth was turned backward upon its axis, and the time of day was lengthened by that process. If God could say, Turn this way, and it could be done, he could say, Turn that way; and it would be done, would it not? I do not see anything more marvelous in one way than another. It is done by the will of God.

Talking about this matter of healing the sick that Latter Day Saints claim, a certain man said:

I do not dispute that they are healed. There are probably fifty people in this audience who would testify that they are healed, and I have no disposition to dispute their word. God had nothing to do with it. It was done by psychology. Psychological influences were used for the healing of the sick. When they could be brought to bear the result came.

I told him I always liked to agree with an opponent. I said I agreed that it was done by psychology. All these marvelous things are done through the influence of psychology; the miracles so-called were done that way. The question is, What is psychology? It means the power of mind over matter, and whose mind was it? Within certain limitations it is true that the mind of man may bring about wonderful results. He says, Let it be so; and it is so. Outside of these limitations he can not go. He has not force enough—not will power enough. Outside of that, the thing that man can not do is done by the influence of psychology, just the same as the thing which he can do, but it is a stronger mind that does it. God wills that it shall be so, and it is so. We will to a certain extent, and it is so; beyond that it is God's will.

There are some things that we can not account for from our human standpoint of human psychology. But we can carry out that same law to account for all that has been done on this earth. No law of God has been suspended. The laws are just the same. The weight of my hand is not made lighter because I raise it. The atmosphere is not made heavier to bear it up. The same relationship exists as when my hand rests on the pulpit. I will that it shall be done.

They say that our will can only control our own bodies. But we can do more than that. I do not know whether anybody ever willed that I should do a thing, and I did it, or not. They say if you get your mind fastened on a person and will that they shall turn around and look at you, they will turn and look. I have looked at a good many persons, but I do not know whether it was because they willed it or not. But they say we can control each other largely in that way. The same physical influence is manifested by a powerful speaker addressing an audience. I have myself been held entranced by a certain personality and have been interested, and have gone away and tried to think what he said but could not.

God said, Let there be light; and there was light. That is the only principle necessary to account for this universe and its creation. Illustrated in our own experience and by what we have done, it is not hard to believe. It is more intelligible to me to believe in creation by God's will than to try to reason out that through some slow process one specie developed from another. God created all things in the earth spiritually before he created them literally. That is all there is behind all these things that we are trying to account for some other way. There is an effort being made by science to find another way, born of the desire to get God out of the universe. They want to account for it without a God.

God said, "Let there be light; and there was light." The will power is there, and what he says is done. I do not see anything unreasonable about it.

More might be said upon this subject, but I leave it with you for your consideration.

• * * * •

WHY DO WE SUFFER?

I am persuaded that most of the useless suffering of humanity is the result of ignorance and carelessness, which is the inability to appreciate truth.

Tell the little child to keep away from the fire or he will get burned and it will hurt severely. Does he stay away? No. Why doesn't he? Because he fails to comprehend and appreciate the truth you have tried to teach him.

Let him see his playmate come in contact with the fire and get burned. He can look on and smile at the pain thus caused; not because he is hard-hearted, but because his sympathies have not been developed.

This development must be reached through suffering. When he has himself suffered, he will know what suffering is, and thus be able to sympathize with one who suffers.

It would be better for us to take a brand from the fire and touch lightly the flesh of a child than to allow him to thrust his arm in the flame and thus become a cripple for life. The obedient child needs no chastisement, to my way of thinking; though he needs must suffer in order to develop.

I do not believe that God has caused humanity a needless tear, though we have brought much needless suffering upon ourselves. The child who has burned the end of his finger severely, has learned as much about the nature of fire as the child who has sustained much greater injuries in that way.

Humanity must suffer—the object of satanic influence and power is to make us suffer more than is necessary for our proper development. Satan tries, through our ignorance, indifference, lusts, appetites, and desires, to lead us away from God.

What a glorious privilege it is to educate men away from the influence of the Evil One, which in all its phases leads to suffering and sorrow. Why should we hesitate to avail ourselves of this opportunity? There is a subtle, blinding, misleading influence, which says it is useless to try to do good, and that there is more satisfaction in the gratification of self with the things of this world. This is a gross deception and we must unmask it. But the burning question is, How?

Can we not accomplish something by prayer? Let us pray night and day.

Will talking avail anything? Let us exhaust our powers of speech in earnest talking.

Will not love help us? Let us love with all our hearts, and with all our might, minds, and strength.

What of the influence of a godly life? Let us strive to live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

If we have not done so in the past, let us take fresh courage for the future, as we have everything to gain by enduring to the end, and can by no possibility lose anything by so doing. Remember that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

I believe in taking an optimistic view, because it inspires zeal and sustains hope, which moves us to greater effort. But optimism may be misapplied—the sinner encourages himself with the thought that he may live many years to enjoy his sinful pleasures, thus hope is a curse to him. He is one kind of an optimist; but he makes a wrong use of the principle. Instead of using it as an incentive to good action, he makes it serve to offset the pangs of remorse, and of an outraged conscience. One must be sure that his aim is in the right direction, and his desires of the right character when applying this principle, for a force which when properly applied is of greatest benefit to us may be most destructive when wrongly used.

The swift passenger train is a promoter of happiness, and a blessing to mankind if controlled by a skillful and cautious engineer, but with an insane engineer at the throttle it at once becomes a means of destruction.

True and lofty ideals are the only promoters of true and lasting happiness, though there may be some momentary pleasure in the gratification of lust, or in the knowledge that evil desires can be gratified. Trials, suffering, and struggles develop character. The problems that our childish minds struggled with have now become easy of solution, though they were once trying; greater questions confront us now, and thus it will be until we have overcome all things, and can inherit all things. One writer says, "Doubt is a parley with difficulty; despair is the surrender to it." The best philosophy is to never yield an inch to either, but to rise above them.

The man worth while is the man who has met discouragements, who has been tried, who has been disappointed, and has suffered; and who through it all has retained his integrity and faith, and is still a man.

EARL ROBERTSON.

• • • • •

GALLANDS GROVE CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY.

The writer was present at the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Gallands Grove District at the Gallands Grove Branch, about seven miles from either Dunlap or Dow City, Iowa, held October 17, 18, and 19, and by request writes this brief account. If any who are in some way related to the events of that period find their names omitted, let it be remembered that I am unacquainted with the history of the district in detail, and do not have sufficient time to gather the facts. The conference was held at the same time, and was a part of the program, being presided over by Bishop C. J. Hunt and Elder J. L. Butterworth.

The first meeting was on Friday evening, the 17th, being a lecture by Elder Elbert A. Smith entitled, "The three keys of power." It was very instructive and of special value to the young. The keys were, work, study, and prayer. On Saturday, the 18th, the business of the conference was disposed of between 9 and 10.30 a. m. At eleven o'clock Elder Heman C. Smith was the speaker. A part of the time was used in relating reminiscences of that early time, some of which related to his boyhood life and that of his young manhood. He had been baptized on October 8, 1862, in a nearby stream, and was ordained to the ministry when a young man.

ELDER THOMAS DOBSON.

Brother Dobson was the first vice president of Gallands Grove District.

The lecture sermon was enjoyed by all, and especially by some of the older ones, who remembered Brother Smith as a boy in the old log schoolhouse, or as a young man when they heard the ears of corn bang against the sideboards of the wagon on a frosty morning in November. Since that time his voice has been heard in the valleys and on the mountains proclaiming the angel message, and that in fulfillment of prophecy delivered before he was yet called to the ministry.

This historic log church-schoolhouse was built about the year 1855. Several pioneer preachers of the Gallands Grove District began their good work in this humble building. It was destroyed by fire in the early sixties.

The service at 2.30 in the afternoon consisted of short talks by the pioneers, supplemented by some from the younger generation; among those of the pioneers, whose names we recall, were Alexander Black, Alfred Jackson, Chancey Holcomb, Charles Derry, Ichabod McCord, and Mary Ann Shaw. Among the names of those who were among the pioneers or moved in, or were baptized near that time, we recall the following: Rony Pett and wife, William Pett and wife, Hezekiah Baughman and wife, Eli Clothier, and Albert Crandall. A list of those present will be made out and given to the secretary to be kept on file for future reference. At the evening service Elder Heman C. Smith did the preaching.

The Sunday services commenced with a prayer meeting at 9.30 a. m., and was followed by a sermon by Elder Elbert A. Smith, his subject being "The signs of the times." The afternoon sermon was by Elder Heman C. Smith and the closing one by Elder Gomer R. Wells.

The meals were served in the district tent, which was set up in the churchyard. The manner of serving was not such as you would find in a million-dollar hotel with uniformed colored waiters,—it was stand up and eat, good, wholesome food, among a joyous, happy people who cared more for the love of each other and of their Lord than for the frills of society. It was a very pleasant and enjoyable gathering. The spirit of good will was present; hearts was in a log church, where many of the conferences have been held.

This anniversary was a gathering of happy and joyous people. So far as appearances go, many of them might be living at the centennial celebration, if such shall be held; for youth is still with a very large number of those present.

EDWARD RANNIE.

Of General Interest

THE FOE WITHIN THE FOLD.

The most dangerous enemies of the Christian Church would not ordinarily be sought within the fold, as the saying is, and yet that is just where they are found and noted by the Reverend Frederick Lynch, D. D., of The Christian Work (undenominational, New York). Foes the church has always had to face, Doctor Lynch reminds us, and she has "met them and triumphed," even when they appeared in the great minds of Voltaire, Rousseau, Gibbon, Shelley, Hume, and others. These were "avowed and open enemies," whom she need fear little, as she need little fear Socialism in this day. Nor is "the world," or those that follow after its lusts a serious menace to the church, because such people neither support nor attack the church. "They simply ignore it," we are told, except "to seek its offices at marriage, and at the death of their loved ones." Who, then, are the worst foes of the church and those who will bring about its collapse, if such an event were possible to conceive? They are the members of the church themselves and, "above all, its shepherds and pastors," which forthright accusation Doctor Lynch sustains as follows:

Our churches are full of ministers who have no particular sense of the divine origin and nature of the church, they lead and serve, nor particular love for, or awe in its wondrous presence, and often no conception of its transforming progress through the ages, or of its divine capacity to work miracles to-day. As a result of this their congregations have no love for it, attend its services as one habit or duty among many others, apologize to their friends for their connection with it, conceive of it as one society making claims upon them among many others, and feel none of that wondering awe in its presence, and none of that overmastering love and devotion for it that one sees in a Saint Paul, an Augustine, a Bernard, a Newman, or a Phillips Brooks.

Speaking from an experience and observation of twenty years, during which time he has been watching the churches "with anxious eyes," Doctor Lynch anticipates any charge of exaggeration in the foregoing statement, and goes on to say:

We have watched the sermon topics in the papers, and have seen year after year go by and certain pastors never once preach on the church. We have seen institution after institution spring up and draw men into such passionate

ELDER JOHN A. M'INTOSH.

First president of the Gallands Grove District. In this position he served for several years.

were made glad at meeting old and new friends; the older ones had found it a joy to be faithful in the gospel, and their hearts were made glad because they saw that there were many earnest young men and women to take their places in the great conflict for truth and right. The young were happy and full of hope; their young hearts had felt the power of the Holy Spirit, and they were made strong by the testimonies of the older ones who had passed through the storm and stress of life and still felt like continuing their journey on the old gospel boat.

The branch that bears the same name as the district was organized October 29, 1859.

The district was organized October 6, 1863. The first president was Elder John A. McIntosh, and the first vice president was Elder Thomas Dobson; the first clerks were O. E. Holcomb, sr., and Nathan Lindsay. The district is composed of twenty-one counties in northern Iowa. It has a membership of 1,028; with 10 branches, 8 Religio societies, 9 Sunday schools, and 8 church buildings. For about twenty-five years the place of meeting of the branch devotion as they never evinced toward their church—pastors saying nothing. We have seen one organization and society after another rise; settlements, institutes, all sorts of things to do the work the church should do, and making great claims—and the pastors still quiet. We have seen great groups of children come to the Sunday school as infants, spend fifteen years, and at twenty leave the Sunday school (not to enter the church), and during all that time not one word said to them by the pastor of the one divine institution of the world, the one society that has made their civilization and given them their homes, books, and schools, the one thing that persists unchanging while everything else has changed, the one house where God dwells, not exclusively, but, as it were, where his hearthstone is, his foyer, his meeting place with his children, his chosen vessel wherein he offers them the water and bread of life. We have quietly sounded the members of a big congregation and found they knew absolutely nothing about the wondrous, miraculous history of the Christian church, except the little they learned when they studied the Acts of the Apostles as children. And we doubt if the average congregation could do better.

But Doctor Lynch does not ask that his word alone be taken for the soundness of this contention; he offers by way of additional testimony, from lectures on "The building of the church," delivered before Yale Divinity School, these words of the Reverend Charles E. Jefferson, D. D.:

Many preachers are thinking little about the church, and others are thinking about it mistakenly. The very word church is in many pulpits tabooed. There are clergymen who preach no longer about the church. Their favorite theme is the "Kingdom of God." An influential American theologian, in a valuable treatise on theology, picks up the word church only to drop it, using in its place "the Christian people." . . . When those who sit in the seats of the mighty speak after this fashion, it is not to be wondered at that men lower down begin to think of the church with a slackened interest, and to speak of it with a diminished enthusiasm. The church has, to many Christians, become an object to be apologized for, and has ceased to be an institution to be sacrificed for and loved.

While disclaiming to be "unduly pessimistic," Doctor Lynch confesses that he "can not fail to see that the church is losing its hold upon many, both among the masses and the cultured of the world;" wherefore he issues this warning to the leaders of the church:

Unless we who are its bishops, priests, and ministers magnify it before the people, we shall lose increasing numbers. For many great and powerful organizations are asking the allegiance of the people, and making great claims for themselves. None of them can make the claims the church can; but that does not matter, so long as they make their lesser claims and the church makes none. We believe that all that is necessary to win the love and adoration and service of the great majorities of our communities, both of young and old, is simply to tell them the truth about her, so that every soul in the community shall know, and, before the non-churchgoing community, to make those claims one has absolute right to make for the Christian church. Make just the claims Paul made, namely, that Jesus Christ divinely instituted the church to be his representative in the world, and imparted to it all the powers he himself exercised upon earth, including the forgiveness of sins, the salvation of souls, and the giving of eternal life. He appointed the church to be what he was, say what he said, do what he did, and to continue to effect what he accomplished.

Such is the "apostolic conception" of the church, Doctor Lynch points out, which has always "worked its wonders when it was true to its nature," but will "pass out of existence if it begins to think of itself as simply one religious society or reform agency among many others." Then, remarking the irony of the fact that it remained for a philosopher, Professor Josiah Royce, to remind the ministers "that the one Christian doctrine which is based on universal experience is Paul's doctrine of the church," Doctor Lynch adds a final word:

There is nothing more suicidal to the minister than to fail to magnify the church to the Pauline proportions. It is the church which makes the minister, and not the minister who makes the church. Take the church away, and what influence would the minister have, or through what would he exercise his influence? It is to the manifold increase of his powers to build up the church and make it as powerful and resplendent as he can. It is through the church he shall save the people, and through the church that they shall become Christ's. Let us also be careful how we praise the kingdom at the expense of the church. Wherever there is even a little of the kingdom you will find that there was a very big church back of it. Even those who have left the church to serve the kingdom got their inspiration and ideal in the church. The kingdom will amount to very little a century hence if the church becomes weak and powerless. There will be neither men nor money forthcoming for philanthropy or reform when worship ceases and the church abrogates her special and divine calling as the vicar of Christ.—The Literary Digest, October 4, 1913.

• • • • •

LONDON BISHOP REPORTS HEALING.

The church since its organization in 1830 has taught that in the restoration of the gospel in latter days the signs were to follow the believer. Continuous testimony has been borne to the effect that among other gifts that of healing was enjoyed in this restored church. For many years both teaching and testimony were lightly received by a skeptical Christendom. Of late, however, various movements have sought to incorporate in their systems the principle of divine healing; and occasionally some recognized authority has expressed the conviction that God might or had intervened in the alleviation of distress and the restoration of the sick. We know of no more striking instance of the latter kind than that represented in the Chicago Tribune for March 16 last. We give the report in full as appearing in the Tribune.

LONDON, March 15.—The Right Reverend Arthur Poly Winnington Ingram, bishop of London, tells a story of the healing of a sick girl in response to prayer, which may be interpreted as a miracle by those who are disposed to regard it in this way.

The girl had heard the bishop preach before she became sick. When her illness became worse she asked her mother to petition the bishop to pray for her. The bishop went to the bedside of the girl, who had been raving in delirium, but who recognized him and became calm. The bishop prayed for her and anointed the girl's forehead with oil. He placed his hand on her head and blessed her. The girl, who had long been unable to sleep, immediately sank into a deep slumber, and slept for many hours, and is now recovering.

The bishop says: "I know Jesus was personally with us. It reminded me of the raising of the daughter of Jairus, and it seemed to be almost the same thing repeated."

* * * * *

THE WORK OF ZIONISM IN PALESTINE.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following was translated by Brother Frederick J. L. Roos, of Jerusalem, from a German report.

The eighth sitting of the Zionistic Congress at Vienna, which took place on the evening of September 6, was opened with a speech by Doctor Arthur Ruppin, Jaffa, the director of the Palestinian office of Zionism, on the work of Zionism in Palestine.

The speaker called the attention of his hearers to the fact that at the beginning of the systematic work in Palestine there had to be found, instead of the old and too much used methods, new ways which would make it possible to reach results with relatively small means. Through the creating of societies for parcels it was made possible for elements of great capital to take possession of developed farms; the creation of the big farms Rinereth and Ben-Schemen, made possible the education of farm workers and the proving of all technical innovations.

The creation of the farm of Rinereth brought about the rise of flourishing Jewish life at the sea of Tiberias; the foundation of the farms of Merihanja, Migdal et Dagania; the promising movement Achusa; and last, but not least, the introduction of farms for girls for the training of female colonists on farming work—from these farms issued the introduction of milk production and the systematic introduction of cattle keeping in the Jewish colonies of Palestine.

Of course it was not commendable to emphasize by the colonizing undertakings the standpoint of profit, because they were founded for quite other purposes. But the payment of high dividends of the Fumobilien Society and the prospering plantations in the Jewish colonies are proofs enough that commercial undertakings in Palestine give good interest. The question of the occupation of Jewish workers is no question at all, but a necessity; because if we came exploiting the labor of Jewish hands, we will also secure a moral right to property in Palestine. Just for this reason we entertained the best relationship with the native Arabian population.

The clearings of the Palestinian office in the last five years have increased thirty fold. While in the year 1908 the clearings amounted to 208,000 francs, they have surpassed already in the first half year of 1913 the sum of three and one half million francs. For the future the development of the schools, especially the opening of the technical school at Haifa, is of the greatest importance. Already the Hebrew Gymnasium at Jaffa brings to the Jewish population nearly a quarter million francs of school money from foreign pupils.

The speaker finished his speech with a warm appeal for further support of the work in Palestine. The speech of Doctor Ruppin was saluted repeatedly with tempestuous applause.

---

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE SECOND THURSDAY IN NOVEMBER.

Parents' Day. For our families; for the growth in spirituality, and a greater sense of parental responsibility; for the conversion of kindred outside of the church: Prayers for the sick and afflicted.

Lesson, Doctrine and Covenants 68: 4.

Memory verse, Proverbs 8: 17.

---

Letter Department

Little Journeys in Foreign Lands.

Thinking HERALD readers would be interested in foreign travels specially undertaken for missionary purposes, we pen the following observations.

SAYING GOOD-BYE.

It never seemed so hard to say good-bye to loved ones before, or to separate from those among whom we have labored for many years. The journey seemed so long, the new field so far away, the heartstrings were unusually touched. Commending all to God, we moved forward, satisfied it was the divine will, and that he would extend his protecting, guiding hand.

I had booked passage from New York, because the largest, fastest ships sail from that port; but the word of the Lord came, "You shall travel in safety and reach your destination without being sick." Mal de mer has followed me so many years, on very short as well as long trips, it did not seem possible of fulfillment. I may as well record here that it was true, not a moment of unpleasantness upon the water between Boston and Jaffa. Thanks be unto the Father for his goodness.

I was cared for in New York by Captain and Mrs. George Potts, whose latchstring is on the outside for every missionary. The kindness of Brooklyn Saints is a pleasant recollection.

One of the sights of New York is the departure of an ocean liner. In this instance the hour selected is one a. m., that the bay may be clear for the leviathan of the sea. For hours all has been bustle and apparent confusion, crowds hurrying to and fro; hundreds of trunks and bags lifted to the proper deck level by endless moving platforms, then whisked away by porters to cabin or hold as desired; last of all come the post office vans with stacks of mail for Europe. The great whistle sounds its note of warning, and "All ashore that are going ashore" brings the last handclasp and word of cheer from the many Saints who had assembled to speed the parting ones. The great gangplanks are lowered one by one, the hawsers cast off, and amidst the shouts of the people, the flutter of handkerchiefs, the shrieking of the whistle, we move slowly out into the river and turn our bow down the bay. The Battery, the Statue of Liberty are passed, and the increased vibration indicates sea room for speed. Our long journey has commenced.

PLEASANT VOYAGE.

We were fortunate in meeting that gospel veteran, Elder William Newton, returning to England in his old age to do good and convert men to the gospel of Christ. Sisters George Potts, George Box, B. R. McGuire and daughter "Ducky" were going abroad to visit relatives, so there was no fear of loneliness on board.

What a delightful experience; the smooth sea, the musical concert morning and afternoon, the splendid singing by the Rhonda Valley Welch Choir, the games, the good reading, and the sea appetite; my, how one can eat, and how diligently you watch for the lunch steward at 11 a. m., 4 p. m., and finally at 10.30. It is hard to satisfy the sea appetite,—you can not hold enough.

All too quickly the trip ended, the gulls intimated approaching land, and soon the Irish coast appeared. All travelers note with interest Fastnet Light; it looked good to us that morning, but the coast appeared strange. Toward evening the Welch hills were on our right, highly cultivated, but destitute of timber, as was most of England. At Fishguard the Cunard Line has a landing pier for London passengers. The steamer did not dock, but was surrounded by lighters that took the mail, the luggage, and passengers with perfect order; the sea was lighted by acetylene torches that added interest to the scene. Through the early morning fog the River Mersey and Liverpool appeared, and we were soon alongside the landing stage, the finest in the world.

We soon discovered we had traveled upon a treasure ship; several drays were loaded with bricks of gold and moved away without armed guards; it was evident that this was not America. Here they were more indifferent to gold, else realized the hopelessness of escape from their island without detection.

WELCOMED TO ENGLAND.

In the customs the pleasant face and hearty welcome extended by Brother W. H. Greenwood made me feel at home. Liverpool is a clean, beautiful city, one of the nicest I visited. Brother Greenwood escorted me to the Exposition. One of the finest things I saw there was the Scotch "pipers." The quaint costumes, the solemn seriousness of the men as they marched past, the weird music, presented a scene that lives with me yet. At night Brother Greenwood's estimable family made me welcome as only Saints can do. I was permitted to visit the historic places for a few days, and just before the conference convened went to the hospitable home of W. R. Armstrong. Truly the Spirit of the Master moves upon his children to care for his servants. Their kindness will ever be remembered.

One reason of my being in Manchester was to attend the British Mission conference. The brethren in charge were familiar with catering and the large crowd was well cared for. It was a pleasure to meet the veterans of past conflicts, to hear their fervent testimonies and to join with them in praise to God for the angel's message, and to leave my testimony of its truth. There were so many I can not recall all their names. The writer and Bishop R. May were selected with Brother W. H. Greenwood to preside over the conference. Brother Armstrong and assistants ably cared for the secretaries' work, and a splendid singer, whose name I do not now recall, marshaled the hosts for the songs of Zion. Brethren Baty and Greenwood of the Order of Patriarchs strengthened the Saints. The smiling faces of such able men, as J. E. Meredith, Thomas and J. W. Taylor, Thomas Bryan, J. A. Judd, J. G. Jenkins, Brother Thomas, Simon Holmes, J. W. Mather, greeted us with many others, who will pardon me if I do not recall their names. Business passed pleasantly and all were strengthened for the conflict.

TOUR OF BRANCHES.

After conference I was permitted to address the Stockport Saints. They greatly miss the labors of Elder George Baty and speak of him in highest terms. He did a great work there. Also addressed the Northeast Manchester Branch, where I met Elder J. W. Leggott, the pastor. They expect to erect a commodious church in the near future. It seemed to me that a central location uniting several of the small branches would strengthen the work in Manchester, radiating out in missions. It appeared to be an inviting field for vacation bible school work. It ought to be tried there. It helps break down prejudice and opens the hearts of parents for the gospel seed, as no other method in our experience has done.

From Manchester my itinerary of the branches began, or as many as my limited time permitted me to reach. Leeds was our first stop. The evening hour found the Saints gathered in their neat chapel, including several from Bradford. We tried to leave an encouraging testimony. This is the former home of our much esteemed Brother J. W. Rushton. The beautiful English home of Thomas Taylor extended its hospitality, and under his escort we visited the famous views of Kirkstall Abbey, dating from the twelfth century. When I saw the extent of the ruins, the many well-regulated departments, including wine cellars, the well-stocked fish ponds for fast days, I thought, Well, who wouldn't be a monk, if their highest ideal was the stomach! They surpassed the king in comforts. It is said that a delegation waited upon the king on one of his journeys and with prayers and tears besought him to restore their former bounty. The new abbot had reduced the courses at dinner from sixteen to twelve. The surprised king informed them he rarely exceeded seven himself, and commanded their list reduced to five. Poor monks, the pathway they trod was made exceedingly hard!

Our next point was Clay Cross, a mining town. Most of the people I met were named Holmes, and certainly made us feel at home. The Saints have a fine church there, and are carrying on a vigorous campaign of outdoor work. A fair was on and we found it hard to compete, so joined the thousands and enjoyed the day. The floral display was very fine, the fruit, especially the gooseberries, great, the vegetables only fair. The pit house races were amusing, the variety plays not up to their usual standard, but some points very nice. It was an enjoyable day and gave me an insight into English pastimes not otherwise obtained. They allowed gambling on the races, and sold beer and stout, but I saw no one drunk.

Unfortunately the name of our next stopping place has gone from me, but I assure you Brother Greenwood won't forget it. I found him hung by the fingers between the window frames and had some difficulty in releasing him, then ministered first aid. The Saints were very kind there. Among the interesting sights passed, I recall the crooked church steeple; no matter what side you view it from it is crooked. It is said that the architect committed suicide because he was unable to build another like it when offered a princely sum to do so. It is bad enough to have crooked religion without attempting to teach it in crooked buildings.

We stopped a few hours in Nottingham, famous for its lace and castle. Near here the celebrated outlaw Robin Hood and his merry men operated. I was shown the very caves under the castle where they lived. After visiting the castle and learning of its subterranean passages and dungeons, I concluded that the caves were a part of the system, exposed by modern road building.

Our next stop was Birmingham, where we were cared for by our genial brother, J. E. Meredith. Sister Meredith being away on her vacation, he proved to be an excellent housekeeper and cook. Through his kindness the Jerusalem mission will be supplied with an organ, which is greatly needed. We express our appreciation, realizing the spirit of helpfulness that moved upon the Saints, that we might be assisted in our work. Here we gave our parting hand to the president of the mission, Brother W. H. Greenwood, who had extended every courtesy during my visit. He is held in high esteem by the Saints wherever I have visited.

LONDON VISITED.

London at last, the largest city in the world in population. No trip abroad is complete without visiting it with its historic monuments. The genial face of Bishop May at the station and the saintly welcome from his good wife at the mission house made me feel like staying in England, especially when the flesh shrank from thought of strange lands, foreign tongues, queer people and customs.

Of course we visited the Tower of London, where the "beef eaters" in their strange uniforms keep guard. Here is the bridge over which Anne Boleyn passed, there the door by which she entered to become the wife (?) of Henry VIII. There is the block and ax and the identical spot where they cut her head off, when he tired of her; and yonder the tomb where her ashes molder. Cobbett records that one of the celebrated women of the court, Lady Boleyn, admonished the king to beware lest he marry his own daughter.

In the Parliament Building there are life-size paintings of Henry and his five wives. Yet the church of England owes its origin to the anger and lust of such a man, by act of Parliament, their only divine warrant. No wonder they have only a dead form.

Space will not permit me to record all the interesting things of London. Most of all Westminster Abbey fascinated me. I would enjoy spending hours therein. The monuments of statesmen, generals, admirals, explorers, poets, kings, queens, lords, dukes, and princes are interesting. We stood by the grave of Livingstone, Gladstone, and many others. We passed through the House of Lords and the Commons, the king's robing room and saw the throne, the coronation stone and the queer old chair in which all the kings are crowned.

It is said that this stone was used by Jacob for a pillow, and was carried to Ireland by the prophet Jeremiah, captured by the Scots in one of their battles and used as their coronation stone, and when the Scots were away during the Crusades, an English army captured the Edinburgh Castle and carried away the stone. Here in Jerusalem they show the original (?) stone with the impress of Jacob's head still upon it.

I am reminded by a circumstance here that it does not do to believe all they show you. In one convent they show you the skull of Adam; visit another, not far distant and they show you the skull of Adam; when you remind them you saw that a little while before, they reply, "Oh, that was his skull when a boy."

A ride down the Thames to Greenwich; a visit to the clock that regulates the time of the world; an inspection of the steel yardstick, the standard of measurement; and a view of the Parliament buildings and first-class hotels constituted another day of instruction and enjoyment.

We must not forget a Sunday with the Enfield Saints, ably presided over by Elder J. A. Judd, who has purchased a mission house and home on a prominent corner. We enjoyed the blessing of God in their midst and returned to London for evening service. Brother and Sister Koehler joined me here, also the New York Saints who arranged to spend a few days in Paris and connect with the Olympic at Cherbourg for New York.

JOURNEY RESUMED.

Ye missionaries booked for Alexandria, Egypt, with several stop-over privileges. We left London sadly. English Saints had been very kind; it was a pleasure to labor among them; we knew what was there, but the future, what had it in store for us? Our faces were steadfastly set toward Jerusalem; we were in God's hands; he had promised to be with us. We were not afraid, but sad at parting with old friends. Brother May accompanied us to Charing Cross, and his "God-speed" rang in our ears as the train pulled out. Another stage of our long journey had commenced. We carried only pleasant thoughts of England, and saintly hospitality.

Our permanent address is box 91, care French Post, Jerusalem, Palestine.

In the conflict,

U. W. GREENE.

Bailey-Smith Debate.

The writer was called to act as moderator in a debate, August 6 to 9, between Reverend Thomas Smith of the Church of Christ, (anti-organ), and J. W. A. Bailey, at Ravenwood, Missouri. We thought a few lines about the discussion might be acceptable to your worthy columns.

Both disputants recited scriptural reasons for church organization, doctrine, and practice.

Reverend Smith had much of the old "stock in trade"; that is, that tongues ceased, prophecies failed, and knowledge vanished away. He said, We have reached the unity of the faith, but we just have different opinions about things; we have come to a knowledge of the Son of God—all of us who know him; I said there were twelve apostles in the church, but I have not said there were no more; these inspired men were placed in the church to reveal the word of God to the children of men, and their work was completed as soon as the word of God was given. He submitted in evidence 2 Timothy 2: 2; John 20: 30, 31; 2 Timothy 3: 15; Acts 20: 20, 27. He agreed that if the apostles should continue in the church, then we should have a continuation of Christs; that Paul's office no one can fill, but we have his words; just like righteous Abel, Paul, being dead, yet speaketh.

Reverend Smith charged that the Book of Mormon claimed to be more "plain and precious" than the Bible, but when called for, the proof was wanting. He contended also that during the great apostasy the church that Christ organized never was disorganized; that the members who remained loyal to God just went off and left it as it was, and all that was necessary was for good men and women to come back and take up the work of God and go ahead with it.

Brother Bailey showed that the will of heaven would be revealed unto the children of men until the end of time. He was especially eloquent and blessed with the Spirit on the third evening of the debate, while setting forth the doctrine and practice of the church. I was impressed that everyone there could not but feel the force and power of the argument when he took up the laying on of hands for the blessing of little children.

Time will tell what good was done by the discussion. At any rate eggs seemed to get cheaper, as they were thrown around rather indiscriminately after the crowd was dismissed. We did not get to enjoy (?) this part of the program, as we had taken our departure for home before the egg throwing began.

Hoping for Zion's weal, I am,
CLYDE, MISSOURI, September 21, 1913.

E. S. FANNON.

COLUMBUS, TEXAS, September 18, 1913.

Editors Herald: Five months ago to-day I opened my doors for business in this town of about two thousand. I am the only Saint here. A week ago I enjoyed a visit from Brother Aylor; he stopped off on his way from San Antonio to Houston. One thing is certain, an isolated Saint who is striving to retain his hold on the gospel appreciates a visit from one of God's servants more than those who have daily association with them. I do not understand why God permits certain conditions to obtain in the lives of some of his children, unless it is the only way in which we can know our weaknesses.

Who is there who has partaken of the spirit of the gospel and has not been made to feel the spirit of the adversary of our souls? Those who are surrounded by the fostering care of the church do not know or see what there is going on in the world. Satan is more wise than we are, sometimes, for he looks for our weak points and works on them, while we overlook them, and fail to try to strengthen them. He does not try us where we are strong and well fortified, but where we are weak and unprepared. If we are in possession of the Spirit of the Master we are useful, but when we let any other influence actuate us, we are of no value to the cause of Christ. We do not lose our personality, but our power for good. I think that I comprehend the Master's statement, if you are not for me, you are against me.

How often we hear reference to the spirit as well as the letter of the law! How deep into this statement do we look? How much of it do we comprehend? The judge of a juvenile court says it is not the statutory law, but the law of Christ that makes these courts effectual. The truant boy must feel that he is in the hands of a friend who will help make a man out of him, instead of one who is meting out punishment because he has the power and can do so. If we of the church, members and priesthood, would learn that this is what the laws of the church are for, and all catch the spirit of our office and calling, the goodly influence would be felt throughout the entire church.

When I think of the statement, This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world, and look at the multitudes of people, then look at myself, one seventy-thousandth of the force that God has at present to warn the world, I realize in a measure how great the need of each Saint learning his or her duty and then doing it.

Ever praying for the advancement of the cause we all love so well, I am as ever,

Your brother in Christ,

GEORGE M. HILES.

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK, September 30, 1913.

Editors Herald: Report of the joint Sunday school and Religio conventions of the New York and Philadelphia District, held at Elk Mills, Maryland, August 30 and 31, will be published in the usual form, I presume. This will mention meetings held, business transacted, baptisms, etc., but it will not awaken, except perhaps in a slight degree, the Spirit enjoyed by those present. It may not relate the orderly manner in which the services were conducted, and the efficient and hospitable way the visiting Saints were entertained.

Neither do I hope through this letter to make any other than those who have at some time enjoyed the presence of the Holy Spirit realize the season of rejoicing experienced by those present on this occasion. The young soldiers of the cross under the able leadership of the general chorister, A. N. Hoxie, brought cheer, hope, and courage into our midst.

The meetings were not an outburst of wrought up feeling, an incoherent, exciting bubble of enthusiasm, but were peaceful, edifying, and strengthening. Prayers were fervent and purposeful, testimonies certified to experiences that had brought knowledge of the truth of the gospel, and appreciation of a life lived in harmony therewith.

The singing was inspiring, and the papers read at the institute were entitled to and received attentive hearing. The subject matter and the manner of treatment evidenced the fact that we have among our young members those who are alive to the problems confronting the different departments of the church, and now demanding solution.

The added interest since manifested in the branches reveals that the seed of advancement thus sown fell on fertile ground, and encourages the belief that Zion will be redeemed. Such meetings, such expressions, such a spirit exhibits the desire, the breadth of vision and the adaptability to accomplish the task intrusted to all.

Last Sunday was Rally Day in the Brooklyn Branch. District Sunday School Superintendent O. T. Christy, District President E. A. Squire, Evangelist A. D. Angus, and Bishop Zimmermann were among those present. This week Brother Angus is conducting a series of evangelistic services at the Brooklyn church. If Monday evening was a fair sample, surely the Brooklyn Saints will be greatly blessed through the effort. The Brooklyn choir is supporting the meetings. Monday evening they were assisted by Brother A. N. Hoxie and Sister W. N. Robinson. I could say some encouraging things about the choir, library, Sunday school, and Religio outlook in Brooklyn, but leave that for others.

I may state in closing that the Saints of the New York and Philadelphia District are going to raise their share of that seventy-five thousand dollars. Ask any member of the district.

Sincerely,

B. R. MCGUIRE.

LOCK FOUR, PENNSYLVANIA, September 30, 1913.

Editors Herald: I have been having some very trying times. The way I have been situated I could not get away to work, but I think it is over now. I think I can start this week. My mother, my wife, and myself have had very poor health for some time. My business is canvassing, and it takes me away from home.

For years I was groping blindly for what the Latter Day Saints teach, and I never heard enough to interest me till I happened to hear O. R. Miller. My eyes were opened by the plain truths taught. I borrowed what I could to read, and became convinced that this verily was the truth from God. It made very many things plain. I set the time to be baptized. The ordinance has not been attended to yet, but I hope to be baptized very shortly now.

In my canvassing I meet many people who are hungry for this truth. I have done the best I could to tell it. What I would do without the HERALD I do not know. I think it is the best religious paper I have ever read. There is much in it to help one. The article by Elder Pender last week helps me much. Oh, how I need some tracts! God being willing, I will get them in time.

I hope to soon be in loving hands, and be an heir to the kingdom. I want to be in the front of the battle where it rages the hottest. I have lost so much of life that I must be up and doing. God be praised, I have found the truth. Truly the blind shall be made to see. May God bless all in their efforts in his cause. I remain,

Yours truly,
GEORGE MASTERS.

BAR HARBOR, MAINE, September 30, 1913.

Editors Herald: I left Jonesport yesterday morning, where we held the Eastern Maine conference, and, thank the kind Father, we had a fine session. The speakers were Paul M. Hanson, G. W. Robley, and J. C. Foss. The house was well filled. I have been a member of the church and in the active ministry for over forty-four years, and I never listened to a sermon that suited me better than did that of Brother Hanson on Sunday evening. May our heavenly Father continue to bless Brother Paul.

My report at the conference showed that since June 29 I had preached sixty-eight times, baptized three, attended twenty-four other meetings, administered to forty-five sick. Some thought that doing well for an old man, most seventy years of age.

Last night I preached to the Saints and friends at this place. To-night I speak at Rockland, then on to Boston, and Providence, Rhode Island, to attend the conference. October 12 I am to be in Chicago. I expect to leave there for home Monday evening, after three months and a half of hard labor for the Master.

I feel well and cheerful.

Yours truly,
J. C. FOSS.

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, October 1, 1913.

Editors Herald: I write you from my new home in Santa Ana, mine as long as I pay the rent—just a suite of rooms, yet very pleasantly situated. I was reluctant to leave my home in Colton, there was so much associated with it that had become a part of my life. Yet I realize that I ought not to live all alone any longer, and I wished to be more nearly associated with a branch, to be where I could meet with the Saints more regularly. I now can easily walk to the services on Sunday and to the Wednesday night prayer meetings.

The branch here is in its infancy, but all seem to be desirous of doing what they can, and a good spirit is the result. The prayer meetings are held in the houses of the Saints, since they have no church of their own. Last Wednesday evening the prayer meeting was very good indeed. No time lost at all, and not too much singing.

The first Sunday I met with them the Lord in his goodness granted me the favor of hearing my son preach. I heard him all the way through, the reading lesson and all. May the Lord bless him in his spiritual work. He has little opportunity for making any preparations, as his time is not his own; he is fully occupied every day. But the Master knows it all and knows that he is doing the best he can.

I trust that some of the faithful ones who have better opportunity for prayer and meditation will at times remember him and others who are young in the ministerial work and who are battling their way against heavy odds, that they may have the special care and help of the Father, that they may not at any time become discouraged, but remember that they shall reap in due time if they faint not.

I am not living alone now. Besides being in rooms of the house of a very kind old gentleman and lady who are very friendly, I have a sixteen-year-old granddaughter with me. But the company that is the most gladdening, the most uplifting, is the church publications. How lean in spirit I would be without them! I am sorry for the loss sustained by those who have only time to read a sketch here and there. Yet they have the hearing of the ear, that I have not.

I greatly enjoyed Brother Ebeling's letter from South Rawdon. It revived memories of the past. Dear aged "Mother Haley," as I used to call her! May the Lord be very near unto her in the closing hours of life. Though she did not obey the gospel, her acts toward us, who were strangers, hungry and homeless, entitle her to the gladsome words, Come thou blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me.

EMMA BURTON.

620 WEST FIFTH STREET.

SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI, October 1, 1913.

Editors Herald: We of the Springfield Branch are still in the fight, with a full determination by God's help to win the battle. We have six services every week.

Last Sunday we had a real feast day. We had our regular forenoon services, when immediately after preaching we went to the park lake, where our presiding priest baptized a bright little Sunday-school boy. We then had two hours' priesthood meeting, which was interesting and will result in good. We enjoyed a stirring prayer meeting, and after five minutes' recess held our eight o'clock preaching, the writer speaking. All in all, it was certainly a profitable day for our branch.

While we are not gaining rapidly in numbers, we feel that we are growing in grace and in a better knowledge of the truth. We indeed feel glad that we are a part of the church and kingdom of God on earth, and by the assistance of Him who spoke as never man spoke we are going to do all we can to help redeem Zion.

Our district conference and reunion which was held with the Ava Branch was a decided success. Brother Ammon White, one of our worthy patriarchs, was there to instruct with his wise counsel. When the last song and prayer was offered and good-byes said, we left for our several homes feeling that it was good to be a Saint of latter days.

The writer was not at the reunion by reason of having made previous arrangements to take a week or so off and go back and view some of the scenes of other days, before I ever heard the angel's message. The places were in Saint Clair County, Osceola, the county seat, Roscoe, and Monegaw Springs. My first stop was in Osceola; then on to Roscoe, where I had lived eleven years. I landed there on Saturday evening and put up at the only hotel in the little city.

I met several old friends and acquaintances who knew that I had for years been a member of the Christian Church, and held the office of deacon. A lady whom I had taught for years in a bible class wanted to know if I had heard what she had said about me. She said she had told the people that if I were preaching for the Latter Day Saints I did not believe what I preached; but after hearing me preach three nights she changed her mind.

On Sunday morning I put my Bible under my arm and headed for the church. I felt that I had some right there, for I helped pay for it. I went in and found the pastor and a few others there. The pastor greeted me, saying he presumed I was a minister. I told him I was. I inquired if there would be preaching after Sunday school. He said no. I then told him I had one time lived there, had helped to pay for the house, and would like to preach at ten and at night.

He said they would be glad to hear me. When I told him whom I represented, he was silent for a while, then said he would consult the brethren. After Sunday school he made the announcement that the young people had requested him to preach for them at night.

I went back at night, and lo, the wise pastor took the sixteenth chapter of Acts for his text, where Paul and Silas cast the evil spirit out of the damsel. He said that some in this day made the claim of supernatural power. He reviewed the claims of Mr. Dowie and Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, then took up what he called the most stupendous fraud of the ages. He raised himself on tiptoe, and said that Joseph Smith was the greatest scoundrel that ever disgraced the earth, making the claim of supernatural gifts and miraculous power; that he had seen angels and that one had shown him where there was a record hid up.

He said that the contention that Joseph Smith planned and wrote the Book of Mormon was erroneous; that Sidney Rigdon was Joseph's scribe and that he was the power behind the throne. He said he knew what he was telling was true, for Sidney Rigdon was his mother's uncle, and that he had heard him tell of it. Then he went on with a tirade against Joseph Smith.

When he concluded I was granted permission to make an announcement. I told the people I would preach on the street the following night, and answer the gentleman's statements. By courtesy of Mr. J. S. Pence, who is the principal merchant in the little city, I occupied in front of his hotel and two store rooms, and had the use of the hotel and store chairs, numerous boxes, chicken coops, planks, buggies, high sidewalks, and other things too numerous to mention. The crowd grew in numbers each night.

The wise preacher was out every night, but did not answer when given the opportunity. His people were out to hear, and some wondered why he did not come back at me. One lady said she believed what was preached, but that she could never be a Latter Day Saint. I believe some had their eyes opened, and that much prejudice was removed. Some wanted to hear more, but we had to move on.

I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Huston, whom I had known for many years. In conversation with him about the Book of Mormon he told me he had at one time lived in the same town with David Whitmer, who was the custodian of the manuscript. He said he was a man of high moral standing, and was highly respected by everyone who knew him. Mr. Huston is seventy-six years old, has never belonged to any church. He said from what he knew of the Latter Day Saints he regarded them as above the average of church people, and their system of helping the poor commendable. The restored gospel certainly appeals to the fair-minded man or woman.

I went from Roscoe to Monegaw Springs. My conveyance left me one mile from the Springs, and at a crossroads where there were two farmhouses. I had more baggage than I wanted to carry, so I went up to one of the houses and asked permission to leave some of my load, which was granted. The good old man seemed so nice I thought he must be a Latter Day Saint. I asked him if he knew of any Latter Day Saints in that locality. He eyed me rather suspiciously, and said he and his wife were Saints. We had a regular Latter Day Saint handshake. Their name is Carpenter, and I believe they said they had at one time belonged to the Lowry City Branch. They had lived in their present location eighteen years. For isolated Saints they were well up with the doings of the church.

Monegaw is built on one of the ancient battle grounds of the Lamanites, and takes its name from Chief Monegaw, of the Osage tribe. He was killed and his tribe nearly exterminated. While on this famous battle ground my mind went back to the days of Nephite and Lamanite faithfulness when the blessings of an all-wise Creator were poured out upon them for many generations and for nearly two hundred years, when there were no poor among them, when equality abounded in the hearts and minds of all. Then I recalled the demons of pride and adultery and their deadly work.

We look out over the world to-day, and see the mad rush for greed, graft, and pleasure; God's offspring rushing into eternity without one thought of preparation, and have reason to feel sad again.

But we are told that straight is the gate and narrow is the way and few there be that find it. Will we be of that few? Zion and her people must be redeemed by sacrifice. Will we make sacrifice, or will we say, Soul, take thine ease, for thou hast much goods laid up for many years?

While at Monegaw, we met Doctor Loohanpossen, a French lady physician from Kansas City, and have seldom met a more intelligent lady. She spoke very highly of the Saints she knows. She said she had made a thorough study of Christian Science, but had to confess she found nothing that would aid her in her life work. We were pleased to meet one of her profession and nationality who would speak so highly of the Saints.

We of this branch expect to do our part in contributing to the $75,000 fund. May the Giver of all good sustain the Bishop in his efforts.

Ever praying for the redemption of Zion and her people,
I am still in the conflict,
J. W. QUINLY,
323 WEST PACIFIC STREET.

TRYON, NEBRASKA.

Editors Herald: E. E. Long's coming tract noted in the late HERALD should not fail of being published. The ministry can not afford to let it fail. It was of great service in late debate, and will be in many more and for general work. Three hundred fielders selling two each will more than cover it, to say nothing of local men who should push it as well. I can work twenty-five if need be. We need all such work put to the front.

R. ETZENHOUSER.

NORTH PLATTE, NEBRASKA, 1123 West Sixth Street.

News from Missions

Southern Missouri.

I am one of the missionaries laboring in Southern Missouri. The Father has greatly blessed me in the work since the reunion at Ava Branch.

I left the reunion for Rome, Missouri, where I held meetings for twelve days, and baptized five grown people. I organized a Sunday school of fourteen members, and left there for Ava, Missouri, where I secured a tent and held meetings for twelve days with good interest, and baptized one noble man. I then went to Ava Branch, about five miles from Ava. We renewed our efforts there. I held meetings for ten days and we baptized four. From there I was taken by one of our noble young priests, Brother Miller, to Tigris, Missouri, where we have a nice branch. Here I held meetings for nine days and baptized five precious souls.

The church at this place was not finished. I took up a collection to help finish it. In ten minutes we had twenty-eight dollars, afterwards two dollars more. The next day we went to work on the building and with the thirty dollars put the church in good condition.

I left there for Mansfield, Missouri, via Ava. I was stopped at Ava, the courthouse was secured for me, and I held a few services with good interest. I am now at Mansfield. I don't know what the results will be.

The Lord has surely blessed me in the good work.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

JAMES WILLIAM DUBOSE.

MANFIELD, MISSOURI, October 25, 1913.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

CENTRAL OKLAHOMA.—Meet at Terlton, Oklahoma, October 3 to 5, E. D. Bailey and J. E. Yates in charge. Branches reporting: Terlton, Holdenville, Piedmont, Ripley, Oak Grove. Ministry reporting: E. D. Bailey, J. E. Yates, J. S. Meyer, C. T. Sheppard, R. L. Herring, V. A. Herron, J. W. Parshall. President was appointed to confer with Eastern Oklahoma District relative to changing boundary lines. It was provided that a reunion be held next year at Holdenville. Conference adjourned to meet at Sperry. Officers elected: E. D. Bailey, president; H. K. Rowland, vice president; C. T. Sheppard, secretary and treasurer. C. T. Sheppard, secretary.

FREMONT.—District convened at Saints' church near Thurman, Iowa, October 18, 11 a. m., district presidency in charge. Branches reported: Glenwood 63, Thurman 200, Riverton 52, Hamburg 64, Bartlett 44, Tabor 67, Henderson 85, Shenandoah 112. Ministers reported: T. A. Hougas, W. E. Haden, C. Scott, J. C. Moore, James Comstock, M. W. Gaylord, C. M. Roberts, John Huston, Frank Beckstead, J. E. Claiborn, L. C. Donaldson, C. W. Forney, F. B. Knight, J. R. Wight, James Vinnerd, R. V. Greenway, R. E. Pratt, Roy Dundson, and D. M. Ettleman were selected as auditing committee, said committee to be perpetuated by election last conference of each calendar year. Hiram N. Pierce of Bartlett was ordained an elder. By motion committee was requested to provide for a reunion for 1914, to be located within the Fremont District. Preaching by T. A. Hougas, C. Scott, and W. E. Haden. Adjourned to meet at Hamburg, time left with presidency. C. W. Forney, secretary.

SEATTLE AND BRITISH COLUMBIA.—Convened with Centralia Branch, 10 a. m., August 16, William Johnson and P. W. Premo in charge. Branches reporting: Seattle 225, gain 5; Roslyn reinstated, 36; New Westminster 32, gain 9; Centralia 75, loss 3; Chiliwack 42, gain 1. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts, $2,149.35; expenditures, $1,732. Ministry reporting: T. C. Kelley, William Johnson, P. W. Premo, P. T. Plumb, S. P. Cox, F. W. Holman, Leonard S. Rhodes, Samuel Pope, Fred L. Robbins, Isaac McMullen, Henry Stade, Norris Heading. The subject "Is the church becoming worldly?" was profitably discussed. Centralia church was dedicated by T. C. Kelley. William Johnson spoke Sunday evening. Amos Rhodes was ordained an elder. Adjourned to meet in Seattle second Saturday in February. Members enrolled upon Tacoma, Castle Rock, and Nanaimo branches, disorganized, may obtain letters of removal from undersigned. F. W. Holman, secretary, 4233 Bagley Avenue, Seattle, Washington.

Convention Notices.

We wish to meet all the Religians of the Southern Indiana District at Indianapolis, November 7, 1.30 p. m., to transact such business as may be necessary. Katherine Schmitt, secretary.

The Bishopric.

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT.

To the Saints and Friends of the District of Utah: Please take notice that Brother C. A. Smurthwaite, 751 First Avenue, Salt Lake City, Utah, has been duly appointed bishop's agent in and for said territory in behalf of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in place of former agent, Brother G. J. S. Abels, Ogden, Utah, who has been unable, by reason of his business interests, of late, to personally look after the work of said office.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

$100.00

GOLD BONDS

Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent

Dated October 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamon, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best security, consisting of assets of $120,000.00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

The Bishopric extend special thanks to Brother Abels for the work that he has accomplished in the office as agent the past few years, and trust that wherever and in whatever work his lot may be cast that he may be blessed and directed to perform a good work for the Master.

The Bishopric bespeak for Brother Smurthwaite the ready and hearty assistance of each member and friend of the cause of truth within the district, for which the brother has been duly authorized to act as agent. We hope and trust that through the divine blessing that our heavenly Father has promised to his faithful children, each one may specially receive of the Spirit of the Master as they fulfill his law under the administration of our brother in his appointment as agent.

Please do not wait for the Bishop's agent to call on each one of you. It will encourage the agent and bless the work and you will feel approved of the Lord if you wait upon the agent either by letter or in person and assure him that what others may do it is your desire to move along with the work of the Master and fulfill his law in your efforts. That the Lord may specially bless you in your labors, together with the agent, Brother Smurthwaite, is the prayer of your brothers of the Bishopric.

Very respectfully,
E. L. KELLEY, Presiding Bishop.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, October 25, 1913.

AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of Central Illinois District: We are anxious to get into communication with all the Saints who are members of branches located in the Central Illinois District, so that we may collect the amount allotted to this district to apply on church indebtedness.

Those who are absent from the district will please send money to Martin Bolt, bishop's agent, who will gladly receipt for same. Amount is $1.25 each, or as much more as you can give.

The members of the branches who are living near the home will please pay the above amount, or as much as you are able to the following brethren: Taylorville, George L. Hartsell; Pana, E. E. Stonger; Beardstown, Charles H. Davis.

Let us all do what we can. The Lord will bless all of those that do their best.

Ever praying for the success of the work, I am
Yours in bonds,
MARTIN BOLT.

SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS.

Conference Notices.

Alabama District will meet with Flat Rock Branch, November 8 and 9. A. A. Weaver, president.

Two-Day Meetings.

Toledo Saints will hold a two-day meeting at their hall, 3055 Summit Street, Toledo, Ohio, November 8 and 9. Take Summit Street car. All Saints and elders are invited. W. S. Hetterick, branch president; John W. Topping, district president.

Graceland Benefit.

On November 18 the Patronesses of Graceland College will conduct a bazaar at Lamoni for the benefit of the college. The sisters throughout the church are by this means given opportunity to send in aprons or fancy work, or both. Let us all join in this bazaar for the benefit of our college. Send contributions to Mrs. M. B. Nicholson, Lamoni, Iowa. By order of committee.

Married.

MARTIN-GOODE.—At the home of the bride, in Lamoni, Mr. James H. Martin and Mrs. Emma Goode were united in marriage Sunday, October 26, Elder Elbert A. Smith officiating. Both are well known and highly respected citizens of Lamoni, and merit and receive the best wishes of the community.

Died.

FISHER.—Lyman Fisher, widely known throughout the East, late of Lamoni, followed his wife who passed on about a year ahead of him. The funeral was held at the home of his sister, Sister Eliza C. Badham, of Los Angeles, California, October 20; his other sister, Mrs. A. A. Eggleston, was also present. The sermon was by V. M. Goodrich. A goodly number were in attendance and the spirit of peace and brotherly love seemed to predominate, filling and pervading the entire assembly and supervising the service so that one could almost feel that God was near.

CHAPPEL.—The funeral of Sister Chappel was held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ira Gifford, 1143 Normandie Avenue, Los Angeles, California, October 23. She was baptized in England in 1857, by William Hart; came to Utah with her father's family, and later to San Francisco. She had not actively associated with the Reorganized Church, but it is evident that her membership lay with this church. She exhibited the characteristics of the true Saint in her sickness. Sermon by V. M. Goodrich, assisted by R. T. Cooper. At the request of her sister, Mrs. Gifford, Mrs. Vasek, pastor of the "Progressive Society of Spiritual Truth Seekers" followed Brother Goodrich with a poetical ritual and offered the closing prayer.

TAYLOR.—Elder W. S. Taylor departed this life at his home, six miles west of Columbus, Kansas, October 19, 1913. Brother Taylor was born at Yorkshire, England, June 26, 1833. He moved to Canada with his parents when about eight years old, coming to Illinois in his younger days. He was there united in marriage to Miss Mariah Hazelwood; to them eight children were born, seven of whom, with a number of grandchildren, survive him and mourn their loss; his wife and one daughter having gone on before. He moved to Kansas in the spring of 1870, where he has resided ever since. He united with the church in 1858 and ever remained faithful, devoted and loyal. The writer called to see him only two or three days before his departure, and while very near death's door. He rallied and said, "Tell Brother Joseph my testimony, now that I have reached the supreme moment, is that God is, and that the restored gospel, which he and I have borne witness to over fifty years, is true. My knowledge and testimony of it have been greatly reinforced very recently; God in his goodness lifted the veil and permitted me to view the mansion which is to be my abode,—the beauty and grandeur of which surpasses all mortal understanding, and which I can not, in my feeble condition, undertake to describe." Brother Taylor was one of the only three surviving grown men who attended and took part in the Amboy conference when the Reorganization was effected. To know him was to love him, for he was a kindly man, gentle as a springtime morning breeze; one who rejoiced with those who rejoiced and wept with those who wept; known and appreciated by a large circle of friends, both in and out of the church, many of whom had been partakers of his kindly ministrations and loving counsel; and young especially sought and accepted his counsel and advice. His knowledge of the restored gospel and his faith in it were the thought and theme of his life. When called upon to go to the assistance of the sick and suffering, which was frequent, he was always ready to respond, darkness, storms, or distance seldom or never preventing, and many have been the blessings received through his service and faith. Funeral service in charge of Bishop Ellis Short; sermon by Elder Lee Quick, which was beautiful and timely. The attendance was large. Thus passed another of the tried, the true, and the faithful ones.

BURROUGHS.—Arthur Hoyt Burroughs was born November 8, 1859, in Wayne County, Illinois; died October 6, 1913; of cancer. Was baptized when nineteen years old; was later ordained a priest and for several years was an efficient laborer. He married Margaret E. Bogle, July 15, 1886. To them were born four children, three sons, one daughter. Oldest son died when a child. He leaves wife, remaining children, mother, three brothers, and many friends. A good man has fallen. Sermon by I. A. Morris.

HETRICK.—Susan I. Hetrick died at Sioux Falls, South Dakota, September 28, 1913. She was the first daughter of Abner and Elizabeth Martin. Her age was 53 years, 2 months 18 days. She leaves husband, three sons, six daughters, mother, seven sisters, two brothers. Death was caused by cancer. Our sister was baptized in 1880. She maintained her faith in God and Christ to the end. The memorial sermon was preached by Charles Derry, at Woodbine, Iowa.

CRANDALL.—Gladys Crandall was born at Montrose, Iowa, August 13, 1873; died October 13, 1913, at Flora Vista, New Mexico. She married Walter Crandall, August 14, 1895, at Gallands Grove, Iowa. To them six children were born; one,

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Building the House of God - - - - 1069
 Notes and Comments - - - - 1074
 Editorial Selection - - - - 1075

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 The Will of God in Creation, by Heman C. Smith 1075
 Why Do We Suffer, by Earl Robertson - - 1079
 Gallands Grove Celebrates Anniversary, by Edward Rannie - - - - 1080

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 The Foe Within the Fold - - - - 1081
 London Bishop Reports Healing - - - - 1082
 The Work of Zionism in Palestine - - - - 1083

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - 1083

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - 1083
 U. W. Greene—E. S. Fannon—George M. Hiles—
 B. R. McGuire—George Masters—J. C. Foss—
 Emma Burton—J. W. Quinley—R. Etzenhouser.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - 1088
 James William Dubose.
 James William Dubose—C. Scott.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - 1089

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

an infant, lay on its mother's arm in the same casket. Five children, with the father, numerous relatives and friends, mourn. She was baptized in the spring of 1884. She lived a consistent Christian life, and was loved by all. During her last sickness she wrote letters to her children admonishing them to live lives of purity and usefulness and above all cling to the rod of iron. Sermon by W. B. Farley.

VAN FLEET.—Nelson Van Fleet was born August 21, 1831, in New York State. For a short time he lived in Illinois, coming to California in 1850. He married Abbie M. Austin, October 23, 1861. He was baptized November 6, 1864. In turn he occupied as priest, elder, high priest, and patriarch. He died at his home October 21, 1913. Funeral in charge of V. M. Goodrich, was from Los Angeles church; sermon by James E. Kelley.

1913

1914

READ THIS

From date of your remittance to January 1, 1915, we will send the "Saints' Herald" and "Youth's Companion" for $3.25.

Regular Yearly Subscription to Saints' Herald $1.50
Regular Yearly Subscription to Youth's Companion $2.00

The rest of this year and 1914 for $3.25 only. This offer good to both old and new subscribers.

DON'T PUT THIS OFF—SUBSCRIBE NOW.

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE
STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
Write for further particulars to.
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth, containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Brother Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth .....75c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.
Order No.

- 141 cloth .....75c
- 141½ leather .....$1.00
- 174 flexible .....$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.)
John Zahnd,
Independence, Mo.
6-1f

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year, four months, $1. Sold by all newdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

How Often Have You Thought of California

as a Place to Spend the Winter?

Some of your friends have spent winters there and told you of the wonderful sights and climate. Some are there now to welcome you.
Now, to be real honest with yourself, don't you owe yourself the trip this winter?
The lasting income from money invested in this way can not be duplicated in any other way. I have a money-saving proposition to make to you on this subject. Let me tell you about it. NO TROUBLE at all to answer questions—that's a part of Burlington service.
Ask for our folder. It is printed especially for and distributed free to people like you. It tells all about the Burlington's Personally Conducted Excursions.

L. F. Siltz.

Ticket Agent, Burlington Route

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, NOVEMBER 12, 1913

NUMBER 46

Editorial

AN APPEAL TO THE YOUNG.

(A sermon to young people delivered by Elder Elbert A. Smith, at Lamoni, Iowa, October 31, 1913, during the revival services that were in progress at that time. Reported by Elizabeth France.)

Oh the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counselor? or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. Amen.

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.—Romans 11: 33-12: 2.

REASONABLE AND HONORABLE SERVICE.

Your attention is especially called to that part of the scripture reading which says "present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service"; and in particular to that clause which says, "your reasonable service."

I heard a little story about a young convert who in the excess of his zeal stood up in prayer meeting and said, "I am willing to do anything that God wants me to do." Then he hastily qualified it by adding, "At least anything that is honorable." Now perhaps sometimes when we make such a pledge we have a mental reservation which says, At least anything that is reasonable.

The Apostle Paul was supremely confident that God would never ask any man to do anything that was either unreasonable or dishonorable.

The Apostle Paul was supremely confident that the whole Christian system was eminently reasonable. So much so that he did not fear to meet the most acute theologians of a race of theologians, the Jews; he did not fear to reason with the most profound philosophers of Greece; he did not fear to stand before the kings and emperors of Rome. And never did theologian or king or philosopher find a flaw in the system that Paul had to defend.

That is the thought that I want to impress on my hearers to-night: that the restored gospel that is given to us, the same old gospel that Paul taught is a reasonable system and demands a reasonable service. It is logical and we need not fear to defend it wherever we go. It is defensible, whether we consider church organization, church doctrine, or the gifts and blessings that follow. The world has never found a flaw in the system that we have to defend.

A BILL OF EXPENSES.

I know, of course, that the creedmakers and the doctors of divinity have been tinkering at religion until Christianity, so-called, is not always reasonable. Brother Robert T. Cooper, of Los Angeles, sent me a little document that is rather amusing. It seems that the trustees of an old church in Belgium engaged the services of a painter to fix up some of the old paintings that had become somewhat dilapidated, and the painter brought in a bill of sixty-seven dollars and thirty cents. The trustees insisted that he should itemize the bill, and these are the items that he brought in:

- Correcting the ten commandments, $5.12.
- Renewing heaven, adjusting stars, $7.14.
- Touching up purgatory and restoring lost souls, $3.06.
- Brightening up the flames of hell, putting new tail on the Devil, and doing several odd jobs for the damned, $7.17.
- Putting new stone in David's sling; enlarging the head of Goliath, $6.13.
- Mending the shirt of the prodigal son, and cleaning his ear, $3.39.
- Embellishing Pontius Pilate and putting new ribbon on his bonnet, $3.02.
- Putting new tail on the rooster of Saint Peter and mending his comb, $2.20.
- Re-pluming and re-gilding left wing of guardian angel, $5.18.
- Washing the servant of the high priest and putting carmine on his cheek, $5.02.
- Taking the spots off the son of Tobias, $10.30.
- Putting earrings in Sarah's ears, $5.26.
- Decorating Noah's ark and putting head on Shem, $4.31.
- Total, $67.30.

When I read that little document I thought that those doctors of divinity and creedmakers, and the men who have been tinkering at religion so long might bring in a bill something along that line. And these are some of the items they might possibly incorporate in that bill:

Remodeling the Godhead.

Reducing God from a personage to an essence, incomprehensible, indivisible, without body, parts, or passions, whose circumference is everywhere and center nowhere.

Tinkering up the eternal verities.

Denaturizing baptism.

Touching up the flames of hell.

Obliterating doctrine.

Sending unbaptized infants to perdition.

Incorporating the delectable idea of predestination.

Removing the underpinning and most of the studding and joists from the church organization.

Erecting a cross of gold on a lofty church spire above a street full of beggars.

Befogging the way of obedience.

Putting a kink in the straight and narrow path, and a not in "these signs shall follow the believer."

Probably there are many other items that we might have mentioned that they might bring in, and the bill would be considerable. And do not forget that humanity has that bill to pay.

In a book called, Half a Man, by Miss Ovington, of New York City, we are told about a library in a Calvinistic church that has recently been invoiced, and they found five long shelves full of books on hell, and five little, thin, emaciated books on heaven. No wonder preachers that came out of that library delighted to preach the "glad tidings of damnation," as some one has recently said in criticism along this line.

But when we strip away those false ideas and traditions of the elders and leave the pure gospel of Jesus Christ to shine forth it is eminently reasonable and defensible.

OLD IDEAS CHALLENGED.

Young people in particular demand that their religion shall be logical. Each generation challenges the traditions and beliefs and the customs of the generation that preceded it. We may hedge those things about with all the sanctity at our command, but the coming generation will demand that they shall stand on their merits. The younger generation does not respect that which the older generation respected, unless they find that it can command their respect because it is founded in truth.

This is eminently proper.

The truth need fear no challenge; error ought to be challenged.

Thus young people, especially those who are in the higher schools of learning, colleges, and schools of similar standing, who are beginning to think on these questions, if they are thinking along right lines, are in harmony with the divine injunction, "Prove all things: hold fast that which is good." And we would never stop them in their investigation so long as they continue along legitimate and wise lines.

EMOTION AND INTELLIGENCE.

It is true, of course, that they want a religion that appeals to the emotions. A religion that does not appeal to the profoundest emotion of the human soul would not be worthy of our acceptance. We want a religion that stirs the heart. We want a religion that appeals to the highest sentiments of reverence and adoration for God and charity towards our brothers.

And the religion that we have is that kind of a religion. We can join the Salvation Army in singing, "I've found a friend in Jesus"; and we can echo the solemn strains that come out of the dim cathedrals of the East, "Nearer, my God, to thee." There is not a heartstring that can not be stirred and touched by the religion of Jesus Christ.

WHEN THE BRAIN CHALLENGES THE HEART.

But while we want a religion that appeals to the emotions, we want one also that appeals to the intelligence. Young people demand such a religion, a religion that appeals to both the heart and brain. I suppose if we wanted simply a religion of emotion, we could develop men who could get up in these revival services and we could soon have some of you shouting and very much enthused. But to-morrow, when your brain began to question your heart, if you did not find anything back of that emotion, what good would it do? And so we want a religion that appeals not only to the emotions, but also to the intelligence.

PAGAN IDEAS; CEREMONY VERSUS MORALS.

I want to impress deeply on the hearts of this assembly to-night this thought: That as Paul says, in the gospel of Jesus Christ we have such a religion—a reasonable service, something that we never need feel ashamed of.

Possibly we can bring this home to our hearts in a clearer way by contrasting the Christian religion with some of the old pagan religions in some particulars. The pagans, or heathens, had an idea of a god that was a terrible, malignant deity, whom they must appease with sacrifices or he would come down upon them and destroy them. Such gods were not concerned with the morals of their devotees; but were greatly concerned with their ceremonies, their rites, and their sacrifices.

For instance, the god Moloch of the Phoenicians, was represented by a metal image with a hollow interior, containing a fiery furnace; and fathers and mothers brought their little children and they were thrown upon the red hot hands of that image and rolled down into the furnace to struggle and die, so that when the image was set up in the valley of Hinnom, outside Jerusalem, it came to be known very properly as "the valley of the groans of little children." This god was concerned with these sacrifices and they had to be offered in a particular manner. But he did not care a rap about the morals of the people who came there to worship. In fact, he made them the most horrible of murderers. He was unlike the great God of love, who is represented by Jesus Christ, who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me," and took them up in his arms and blessed them.

The goddess Venus, of the Babylonians, in her service required that sometime in her life every woman should go up to the temple of Venus and offer her virtue to the first stranger who might approach her with an offering of silver for the temple service. She did not care anything about the morals of her followers; in fact, she debauched every man and woman who came to her. But she was infinitely concerned with their ceremonies and rites. When you contrast her with the great God of heaven, notice well the contrast. God is concerned primarily with the morals and characters of his followers.

That is what makes the service reasonable as contrasted with all other religions.

It is reasonable because it makes you better and makes everybody better to whom you administer.

God is only in a secondary way interested in ceremonies and rites and sacrifices.

EVEN IN THE LAW OF MOSES.

Even in the Mosaic economy we find that thought shining forth very clearly. It is true that when God gave the law of Moses he came down (in a sense) to the plane of the people, and tried to reach them where they were living, and gave them a system that they could understand. He incorporated many ceremonies and many sacrifices in that economy. Some of these sacrifices would appear very disagreeable to us to-day. But I want to impress this thought upon your minds, especially on the minds of the young people who may be told sometime in their life that the God of the Old Testament Scriptures was a heartless and cruel being who delighted in sacrifices and knew and cared nothing about justice or mercy, that these sacrifices were made to point forward to something, and this was simply a schoolmaster to bring the people to Christ, as Paul very plainly tells us. And though people sometimes lost sight of the true character of God, and like the heathens thought only of the sacrifices and ceremonies, God himself, as interpreted by the prophets, thought all the time, not of the sacrifices, but about the morals of the people.

I will read from some of the prophets to prove that this is true:

And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Eli, that the iniquity of Eli's house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering for ever.—1 Samuel 3: 14.

And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.—1 Samuel 15: 22.

To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice.—Proverbs 21: 3.

God, unlike Moloch and Venus, was concerned with the morals of the people, and he thought more about judgment and justice than he did about any sacrifice, no matter how costly, that the people might bring to him. And the God that lived then is the same God that lives to-day. We can not cover up any private iniquity by our tithing and our free-will offering, for God is more interested in the private lives of the people than he is in any offering they can possibly bring to him.

To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord: I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he-goats. . . . Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.—Isaiah 1: 11-17.

Even through the imperfect law of Moses the great, loving, just heart of God shines forth.

For I desire mercy, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings.—Hosea 6: 6.

Wherefore shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Shall I give my first born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?—Micah 6: 6-8.

IN THE CHRISTIAN DISPENSATION.

We might go on and multiply these texts, showing that God all the time instituted a reasonable service, and that the things that he loved were justice, judgment, mercy, honesty, and purity of heart. If some one sometime tries to unsettle your faith by pointing to the Old Testament and telling you that the God of those old days was a cruel and wicked despot, just remember that the people themselves may have misunderstood him; but when the prophets spoke they revealed his true character.

When we come to the revelation of Jesus Christ himself we see more clearly revealed the fact that God was interested in the private morals and lives of the people. In Hebrews 10: 6 we read, "In burnt offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure." Then a little further, "But this man, [Jesus Christ] after he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down on the right hand of God."

The one great sacrifice toward which all these others pointed had been fulfilled.

In the Christian religion that Paul taught we have revealed that perfect, reasonable system that we come to present before you to-night. The ideal of true religion is not to placate a great, ill-natured deity, but to develop men and women.

The idea of true religion is to bring about a correct relationship between man and his God, and between man and his fellow men.

Is that not reasonable?

Is God asking anything unreasonable when he asks you to give yourself to such a service as that? Can you find anything in all the world that is nearly so reasonable in its demands upon you?

SOME OF THE GODS OF TO-DAY.

We do not have the gods that they had in those old days, but we have other gods that have taken their place to a certain extent.

Suppose you go out and serve the "god of material things." What demands do you think he will make upon you? Will his demands be reasonable? What is the creed of that great god? His demand is that you shall be successful. The poet Pope expresses it in these lines: "Get place and wealth if possible with grace; if not get wealth and place." Succeed if you can honestly, but succeed. Like those ancient deities, not concerned about the morals of the people, but altogether concerned about the service that is rendered to the great god himself.

Or suppose you go out, as some people do, and serve the god of fashion. Look at some of the things that are imposed upon the people in the name of fashion and tell me if you think that the service that is demanded is reasonable. While riding on the train not long ago I saw one of these creations in a hobble skirt shuffle down the aisle and try to alight from the train and get onto another train, and there was a struggle; a struggle worthy of a better cause. Two train loads of people watched that struggle. I have sometimes seen a hobbled horse, but never one that put the hobble on voluntarily, because, you know, a horse has "horse sense."

Suppose then we go out and serve the god of society, as many do. We will find, like the god of fashion, that the so-called "best" society cares little about the morals of her devotees, but is concerned about ceremonies and forms. You must know precisely what fork to use at the psychological moment at the table, and you must not drink out of the finger bowl. You must observe all these little forms, but the question of your personal virtue enters in to a very limited degree. In the old days when society believed in predestination, if a man were born to the aristocracy he might be as corrupt as the Devil himself; nevertheless society opened all doors for him to come in. To-day society believes in salvation by works, and if a man gets busy and earns money enough, no matter how corrupt he is, he and his wife and his children can take their place in the circles that many consider very select and of the highest society.

MEN AND WOMEN FIRST; CEREMONY SECONDARY.

But in the sight of the God that we serve, "A man's a man for a' that." And for that reason we can say with the Apostle Paul that this service is eminently reasonable. God is interested and concerned in the development of those who come unto him and not solely in the forms and ceremonies they may observe.

It is true that in the church he has instituted ordinances and rites and ceremonies of a sacred nature, but these are not the end; these are simply the means to an end. These are not primary, they are secondary. The primary thing is the development of men and the salvation of men and women.

HAVE WE THE SPIRIT OF SACRIFICE AND SERVICE?

The Apostle Paul says, I plead with you that you may give yourselves "a living sacrifice." Now he did not mean that we should die like those people of old died when they were given as living sacrifices to idols. God does not ask very many men to die for him. Even martyrdom is incidental to certain periods of persecution. He wants men to live for him, and those men and women who are living for him all the time are making of themselves a living sacrifice in the highest sense of the term.

We know how those people in apostolic times were willing both to live and to die for Jesus. They did it. When we read the things they suffered we ask ourselves, Has the same spirit come upon the church in the days of the restoration?

And we answer, Yes.

We remember Oliver Cowdery and his associates traveling through the winter snows fifteen hundred miles or more from Ohio to Independence, Missouri, and beyond; to carry the gospel to the Lamanites. We remember the bloody sacrifice of our people at Haun's Mill, where their mutilated bodies were buried in that old well. We think of the temples they built and the missionaries sent out everywhere against such great opposition, who have gone forth to spread this latter-day gospel.

Have we the same spirit with us? I believe that we have. We recall the death so recently of our Brother Charles Lake in that far-away island, five hundred miles from any other white man. He went there knowing that he could not live, but he went on his own volition. He said, "I can not do any good here; but I can do good there, and it does not matter where I die, so that I die in the harness."

We remember the devotion of his wife, watching by his lonely grave so many weeks, waiting for a vessel to come. And we remember also our Brother Charles May and his associate, Brother Savage, and the wives of these two men in the islands, dedicating six or seven of the best years of their lives to the service of God among the natives; and Brother Barrett and Brother McConley and their companions in Honolulu, and Brother Miller in Australia; mentioning those who are comparatively young. So we realize that the missionary spirit is still in the church, still with the young people. And we believe we have young people here in Lamoni, who when the test comes will give their lives to God. They may seem careless to us, some of them, but God alone knows the devotion that wells up in their hearts at times. We have confidence that when God puts a burden on them they will be prepared. Otherwise the future would look comparatively dark to us so far as the church is concerned.

HAVE WE THE SPIRIT TO SUSTAIN THE MISSIONARY?

But now, here is a thought; the missionary spirit is still with the young people, but is the spirit to sustain the missionary equally present? God tells us in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants that we are all laborers together; the business man together with the missionary.

We look to our young people in the future to be ready to give in business the same consecrated service that these missionaries give when they go out into the field.

Our missionaries go out and make the sacrifice, they die when necessary, but we see our business men shrink back a little. They hesitate to make that sacrifice that they are required to make to put themselves on the same plane and give their services that they may stand on a level with the missionaries and suffer the same privation and receive the same glorious reward in the hereafter. But God speed the day when we have men and women raised up who will not shrink from that sacrifice, and the business man, the farmer, and the missionary on a common level of sacrifice and service are altogether blessed in the sight of God. That is why we appeal to these young people to try to impress upon their minds that this is reasonable service. God is asking nothing unreasonable.

Let me exhort you in the language of Paul to "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." How significant that language, "lay aside every weight."

THE WEIGHT THAT HINDERS.

I read a story, claimed to be true, of a little incident that occurred up in the Klondike during the gold craze, about two men who had pushed far into the interior in their search for gold. They had been very successful; and when winter approached they waited too long, toiling on and on, gathering their gold. And finally when they started for the coast where they could get a ship for the south their provisions were almost gone. They were overtaken by a severe storm and cold weather, and it soon became evident that they would barely reach a haven of safety. One of these men was frail and there seemed little hope for him. The other man was strong and vigorous and not inclined to give any assistance to his frail brother. As they pushed on they finally became separated. Finally a morning came when the weaker man, lifting up his heavy sack of fifty pounds of gold, made his choice and threw it away and pressed on and reached his haven of safety. But the other man toiled on, carrying his burden. Every morning he would take it up, throw it away and start on, then come back and take it up again. The next summer they found his bones bleaching almost in sight of the ship that would have taken him to safety, and by the side of that whitened skull, marked by the teeth of the wolves, was the sack of gold that had dragged him down in sight of salvation because he would not leave it.

What is the weight that is dragging you down, that the Apostle Paul tells us we should put aside? What is the weight that is holding you back? You know. We do not know. God knows. But whatever it is, now is the time to get rid of it. Now, during these revival services, when the Spirit of God is burning in the hearts of some, as I am satisfied. Now is the time to cast aside every weight, every sin, every evil habit, every intemperate, obscene thought, or vile passion. Now is the time to leave these practices and run with patience the race that is set before us.

WHO IS IT WE ARE WORKING FOR?

Who are you working for? At one time I was pastor of a little branch, and when New Year's Day approached we thought that we would arrange for a special service and we would have special music. So we advertised the sermon and the special music all through the city. The evening came for our service, and where was the choir? Why, not one of them was there, excepting the chorister. Next day I started out in the face of a snowstorm to investigate, and I visited a family where resided a number of the best singers of the choir. I found out from them that there had been some trouble with the chorister and so they quit. I said to these girls, "Who is it you are working for? If you are working for the chorister you can quit. If you are working for me you can quit; but if you are working for God you have no right to quit until he says your work is done."

I wish you would bear that in mind in all your service, in the choir, or anywhere else. We are not working for the pastor, or the president of the stake, but for God, and we can not let anything turn us aside. We have no right to quit.

WHEN YOUTH IS NOT A BLUNDER AND OLD AGE A VAIN REGRET.

In conclusion. Some time ago I saw a thought expressed by a pessimist who said, "Youth is a blunder, manhood is a struggle, and old age is a vain regret." We will never reach the time this side of the millennium when manhood will not be a struggle. But if these young people will enlist in the service that Jesus Christ is calling them to, in this the church of his choice, and start out in this reasonable service, then their youth will never be a blunder and their old age will never be a vain regret.

Original Articles

THE BODY EARTHY AND TRANSITION.

Funeral sermon by Elder Joseph Luff over remains of Brother Walter H. Bullard, at Independence, Missouri, September 28, 1913.

I am reminded that our service this afternoon must necessarily be brief. I will therefore avoid any lengthy reading of the Scriptures, and ask your consideration of three or four verses which may incidentally bear upon the thought we may have to express while together.

From the fifteenth chapter of the first letter of Paul to the Corinthians I read a portion, first, of the thirty-sixth verse: "That which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die." Secondly, from the forty-eighth verse: "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly." Also from the gospel record made by Saint John, the words uttered by our Lord and Master under circumstances that seemed to demand such an expression of him: "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice and come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation."

Turning now to the fourth chapter of the gospel record as made by Saint Mark, the twenty-ninth verse, we read: "But when the fruit is brought forth (instead of the words brought forth, in the margin we have the words is ripe—when the fruit is ripe) immediately he putteth in the sickle because the harvest is come."

Instinctively my mind runs from passage to passage of scripture, as it has been doing since the occurrence that occasions our gathering together today to this place and I was asked to occupy. Among these stand out very prominently two passages; one may be found in the letter of the Apostle Paul to the Ephesians, the closing part of the letter wherein he, in addressing the people of God, tells them they had been separated from the world and brought into holy fellowship through the gospel bonds, "In whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." In this was revealed the design of God for the creation of his church that God might have a home.

When Jesus came into the world it is said he declared of himself, "Foxes have holes; and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." You, as well as I, know that he did not mean there was no place on the ground for him to lay his physical head. No, there was plenty of room for that. He meant something else. Ever uppermost in his mind was his Father's business. He was thinking of that, and he meant that the foxes have their places where they carry out their design of life, meet the requirements of their existence and perform the functions that relate to their being; so have the birds of the air; but the Son of Man has not. All there is in this world is foreign to it, hence I have come to create it. In the Corinthian letter Paul said: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual. The first man (which was Adam) is of the earth earthy; the second man is the Lord from heaven." The first was of the earth; the second was spiritual; and this second spiritual man came, and, staying for a while, sought to create a home wherein he could lay his head; wherein he could execute his purpose; wherein the Father, whom he came to represent, could have a habitation for the Spirit in and through and by means of which he might execute that infinite design which had for its finality the blessing of the world into which Jesus had come.

Permit me briefly to call your attention here to the statement made by the apostle in his letter to the Philippians, wherein he said:

For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that is may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.

What did he mean? "Our conversation is in heaven." Was it the utterance of these lips of ours or what did he mean? Our environment is in heaven. Our interests are not here; they are in heaven.

Adam was created of the earth, earthy, and there were given to him hands, ears, eyes, and all the organs that compose the physical framework, to adapt him to the life that now is, so that sound might be utilized, because he had ears to catch it; that light might be an agent to his advantage because he had eyes to utilize it; that hands might perform the labor demands; and that this brain might be active in directing the use of the eye, and ear and hand and foot and tongue. In other words, these organs were given to the physical man, or man of the earth, earthy, to adapt him to an earthy environment while he was tabernacled a human spirit. But the Apostle Paul when he said our conversation was in heaven had reference not to the body of the earth, earthy, but referred to this church, this body of Christ, this institution that has been separated from the world—our conversation, our environment, is in heaven; and all these things manifested as the will of God to this institution known as his body, or church, have been made operative, have been created for the express purpose of adapting these spirits of ours to that heavenly environment, so that, as with this ear I can catch the human sound, so by means of the agencies and organs in this new body, this second man from heaven, I can catch the voices from on high. That as I am enabled to walk upon the earth here by reason of these organs, adapted to that necessity, meeting that physical requirement, so, being furnished with these elements within this body and church of Christ, this second creation from heaven, which is the church, the body of Christ, I may be enabled to walk with God. I may be able to commune with angels. I may be in touch with the Infinite. I may bask in the midst of the celestial glory that knows of no full expression to the human race except through this medium called his church and this message known as the gospel of his dear Son.

Now I have a reason for using these thoughts in an introductory way this afternoon, and I will tell you what that reason is. Only thirty-five years have passed since he whose mortal remains lie in the casket before us made joyous the household wherein he was born. It was said, "Unto us a son is born."

The allotment of human years, according to the Scriptures, is threescore and ten. Not more than half of that allotment has been permitted to this young man in which to meet whatever requirements were imposed upon him by the Divine Mind in his introduction or entrance into this world. You have observed in life that some people have the ability of utilizing the good within their reach to better advantage than others. Some housewives will require ten dollars to do that which others will do with half that amount. Some people will cover a distance of ground in half an hour that others would take three or four hours to do. And the Infinite, in the execution of his purpose, adapts the means to the end; and just as in all other considerations, so with the measurement of human years, and that man doesn't live long who simply can say, I have been on this earth eighty or ninety years. A man may not have lived twenty years and yet have lived a long, long life. Life is long in proportion as it reaches the end for which it was ordained. Life is short in proportion as it fails to meet the necessary requirements. Some men will reach the intention of the divine thought in a dozen, in twenty or in thirty years, while others take eighty or ninety years to do this work.

When a man learns well that this life has but one purpose—to serve God; that he can not help God; that he can not make God any richer or do him any particular kindness; but that being a part of the divine heritage in this life, the great church and kingdom of God, separated from the world, our relationship being to each other, and in that sense and capacity that whatever lies at our command that can be brought into execution by which the measure of human good may be extended, the measure of the divine grace found within us be disseminated for human benefit,—whoever learns that lesson successfully lives a long life, and it makes no matter whether his years be many or few, for with the Lord a thousand years is as a day, and a day as a thousand years. There is only one measurement; it is the question of accomplishing or reaching the designed end—of serving a purpose; and if that purpose be served it matters not, except for those who may be left behind and who are called our survivors, whether we go hence as an infant in the bud, to unfold our petals to catch the rays of celestial light in the paradise of God, or whether we stay here subject to the hard work and knocks of experience, and the bitterness of a harsh existence—whatever helps to the end is to be appreciated as a divine necessity.

You will remember that the apostle said to certain people when he was discussing the sacrament of the Lord's supper, that some persons in doing certain things drank to their condemnation—drank unworthily, to their hurt, not observing the Lord's body. What is the Lord's body? It is his church, the apostle said. They didn't discern that that ordinance belonging to the church of Christ was a means ordained to adapt those who observed it to the divine environment, for which all these things were created.

In the verse that I have read last is another statement to the effect that God keeps close watch upon and is always in very close touch with those who are within his fold; and that when he notices that the last particle or atom of influence that is essential to complete the perfection of that character has done its work, immediately he puts in the sickle. He carries him away. It doesn't make any difference whether he has been here a hundred years or thirty-five years. It is all one to him, for the end is reached. And the other thought associated with it is this, that we are differently impressed by different circumstances and events in life.

I knew a man in Canada, a large, strong, robust man who knew nothing of suffering unless his own body was under distress. He was favored with a large family, a loving companion. Every child of his died after a long, lingering disease. His wife finally died, and never a tear was known to escape his eyes. But finally his own strong frame was in torture and agony. Then for the first time he suffered.

There are others, who, like that mother away out upon the Alpine mountains, when overtaken by the storm, traveling as far as she could go, became exhausted, and finding at last that there was no escape for her, she stripped the covering from her own body and wrapped it around the child she was bearing in her arms, and quietly laid herself down in the snow, glad in the thought that by depriving herself she could probably save the life of her babe. When found later the babe was crowing in the enjoyment of life and warmth, but the mother's corpse was a testimony of her devotion. Her one thought was of others.

That man had only one thought, and that was for himself; and it would be more than absurd—I am using plain language that you can not mistake my meaning,—it would be worse than absurd for an all-wise God to bring such influences and conditions in this life to bear upon such an individual as I have referred to as he would necessarily have to do upon the man whom I first referred to.

Our physical, mental, and moral characters are like an open book to his eyes, and their necessities call for varied interpositions; but all to conserve that one grand purpose of an adaptation to the divine environment, so as to bring about the ripening, when the removal is but a transition into the better condition. It is found necessary for this man to have a long life, while the other can do with a shorter. When the fruit is ripe, the sickle is put in. To this man was given a freedom from this experience; to the other man the endurance of such, and God will never impose upon an individual any experience beyond that which he will be able to bear. Bear in mind, I am not now talking about thistles and weeds, but about fruit and grain. I am not talking about the ungodly and their fate, but about the Saints of God and their reward.

We have heard people say, "If I could only have been permitted such experiences as that man I would have felt better satisfied and lived better." Such a person must learn the lesson that that isn't so, and whatever will teach him that lesson the quickest is the divine intention. That man over yonder feels dissatisfied, and says, This man or this woman is environed so differently; if I could only have been permitted to have lived as they lived and enjoyed as they enjoyed I could have grown faster spiritually. Until he learns differently God will need to administer distasteful experience according to his divine wisdom. In other words, before our transfer into celestial life the distance that is represented by the difference between our minds and the mind of Jesus Christ to-day, must be traveled by us. That is the thought I would seek to impress upon you.

Crowning this thought comes the statements I first read from the Scriptures to the effect that death is but a part of the program. Put it away from our thoughts as we may, distressing as are the conditions that it leaves among us in life, it is as absolutely essential that death shall come, under our present conditions, as that birth shall take place. As the grain by death evolves increased volume and beauty, and thus serves its ordained purpose, so do we, and this is immortality to unfold its ampler magnificence and glory.

The thought of immortality has been the one that has crowned the hope and the faith of people in all years; and they only looked for that immortality under the conditions that arrived after the purposes of change have been passed through by which this corruptible has been run through the changes that evolve the incorruptible. Even the philosophers of olden time recognized the truth of this. Even Ingersoll himself called immortality the conscious hope and desire of the human heart.

Plato in his soliloquy in regard to the soul made the statement:

The soul, secure in its existence,
Smiles at the drawn dagger, and defies its point,
The stars may fall; the sun himself grow dim with age
And Nature sink in years; but thou
Shalt flourish in immortal youth,
Unhurt amid the war of elements,
The wreck of matter, and the crash of worlds.

Another poet, in speaking of it, and drawing the lines of comparison, wrote:

Look nature through: 'tis revolution all;
All change; no death. Day follows night, and night
The dying day; stars rise, and set, and rise.
Earth takes th' example. See, the Summer gay
With her green chaplet and ambrosial flowers
Droops into pallid Autumn. Winter gray,
Hoary with frost, and turbulent with storm,
Blows Autumn and his golden fruits away,
Then melts into the Spring: soft Spring, with breath
Favonian, from warm chambers of the South
Recalls the first. All, to re-flourish, fades
As in a wheel; all sinks to reascend,
Emblems of Man, who passes, not expires.

Again he writes:

Can it be?
Matter immortal? and shall spirit die?
Above the nobler shall less nobler rise?
Shall man, alone, for whom all else revives,

No resurrection know? Shall man alone,
Imperial man! be sown in barren ground,
Loss privileged than grain on which he feeds?

The human heart carries the instinct of immortality, aside from the faith that is reposed in God, hence welcomes the declarations found in the Scriptures to be a truth. Immortality is the sphere, the life of man, the purpose of the divine being; and so man is well prepared to receive the statement made in the Scriptures: "The hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." "As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly. And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall bear the image of the heavenly."

Unto Him who knew best my brother committed the trust of deciding whether his days should be many or whether they should be few. All along through the years, while disease was wasting this frame of his, while all the efforts that he made to get relief proved vain, and the limbs grew feeble in their effort to bear him up, and he grew weaker and weaker, when conversing with his companion and others, he said, "I have no reason to complain. If God thinks best for me to bear a portion of this kind of experience as well as others, why should I not? He knows best and there is no use in being disturbed in mind about it."

The sooner we fall in line with the divine thought the quicker will we be adapted to the celestial environment. Oh, that life's lessons could be learned by us all so readily, and we could, under all conditions, feel as he did. My experience with him covered a few years, and during those years I have learned a lesson for my own profit in that I saw that under the most trying conditions,—under experiences that in some would instinctively breed dissatisfaction and discontent,—he was, by the grace of God, happy. A man can stand, a man can rise, a man can walk superior to these conditions that come to us in this mundane sphere. A man can so live that God can have residence within him, and what he does and experiences here will be but the carrying out, to his satisfaction, of the divine purpose, looking by faith to the culmination that has been promised and upon which his faith is set.

I must not talk longer. I learned to love him because of the lovable qualities he revealed. I learned also to admire more the gospel of peace because of the contentment, and the peace, and satisfaction that it enabled him to express in committing himself to God. I learned a lesson of value in regard to our gospel thus. May God give grace to all, and may we all lay more firm hold of the means of grace that helped to develop quickly within him that peculiar kind of adaptation to the heavenly that made him feel that the transfer over there would be to his home; that he would be more at home there than he could be here. The adaptation was growing, just as the ear catches sound and utilizes it here; so can the attuned ear of the spirit be trained to catch the music of the divine voices; and as the hands and fingers have been trained to grasp and hold the things of this life, so may the spiritual body adapt itself to that spiritual environment; and just when the moment comes that these lessons of pain, disease, and hardship are required no longer, God utters the words: "It is enough," and the messenger carries the dear and proven one hence.

Walter has gone to his rest. May the Infinite One so bless our estate that we may be able to walk in the paths of wisdom and righteousness while we remain.

• • • • •

UNWISE ZEAL.

This subject has been called very strongly to my mind by the forces and influences that I so often come in contact with, and with which I have many times had to deal. My observation has been that when men who are called to high and noble positions on earth become extremists they become unbalanced in mind; their judgment is dethroned, and they are disqualified for the functions of their positions. Hence these men become a detriment to themselves and to the work whereunto they have been called.

When Constantine, the great religious enthusiast, permitted his zeal to carry him to excess, he enthroned the church upon the political seat of Rome, set the woman upon a scarlet beast, as John puts it in Revelation; out of which condition grew the papal Inquisition, blood, misery, and suffering.

I wish, however, to confine myself to those of my comrades in the socialist movement who have as they firmly believe espoused the great cause for liberty and freedom, of justice to all mankind. If these claims be true, then the subject of social betterment would naturally demand the most cool and candid thought and the exercise of the very best judgment, entirely free from the so common wild enthusiasm, or that blind zeal that dethrones judgment and takes the place of good reasoning. I am a socialist, vote that ticket, and expect to do so as long as voting counts. But God forbid that I shall ever go to the extreme that a brother and an elder of whom I shall now speak has done.

This brother had been president of a branch. I visited him about the first of last June. I found him entirely out, as the saying is, down and out of the work. We had passed only a very few words when he called up the subject of socialism. I felt confident that as he and I were both elders and both socialists we would enjoy ourselves together, and that I could surely appeal to him on this subject of church work. But when I mentioned the church, and the condition of the branch in which he lived, it seemed to be repulsive to him. His first question was, "Why doesn't the church adopt socialism?" I found he was angry because socialism had not been adopted as the politics of the church. I observed also that he had drifted into Christian Science.

My answer to his question was that the church is not a political body, neither a political agitator, and could not afford to ally herself with any political power or party; but that every Latter Day Saint votes as he pleases and stands or falls on the merits of his own judgment. I remarked that if the church should adopt any political power or party it would be taking the first step toward Romanization, and would not meet the approval of the Master.

I asked if Christian Science people had adopted socialism. He had to say no. I then asked if he had approached any nearer the application of socialistic privileges by leaving the gospel and the church which is true and taking up Christian Science, something that he knew was not true; and that if socialism or its principles were true would it not be better to hold to them in connection with the gospel principles? If both were true, why lay one down and mix the other with something else that is not true? Would not two sets of true principles work best together? I stated that it had been the argument of many Latter Day Saint socialist comrades that the principles of socialism are identical with the teaching of Christ. If this be true, I asked if it were not inconsistent to take Christian Science or any other untrue science and mix it with socialism, adding that it was very disgusting both to a true Latter Day Saint and to a true observer in the socialist ranks to do so.

I do not desire at this time to say anything against or in favor of socialism, but if possible to say something that will help some one to avoid this lunacy or this extremely blind zeal of many of our comrades. Now let us sum up the losses and gains in such actions as we have been able to observe and see which weighs the heavier in the balances. First we will count the losses.

First, we lose our balance of mind; second, we lose our interest in the church and in the gospel; third, we lose our standing with the church; fourth, we lose those refreshing testimonies that are promised in the gospel, to which all are entitled, and we lose our confidence in those assurances we have been given in the past, both to ourselves and to our brethren; fifth, we lose confidence in God; sixth, we lose our blessings in a temporal and physical salvation; seventh, we lose our hope of eternal life, and forfeit our right to entrance into the holy city when Zion shall come again. Who can afford it? Keep cool and keep your head!

Let us now count the gains. The only gain we are looking for, or the chief gain, at least, is a full and complete application of the principles of socialism. Now ask yourselves the question, When we become so zealous and so interested in the socialist movement that we lose interest in the church and in the gospel, do we bring about an application of socialism to the world? Again, When we join with Christian Science, do we bring about an application of socialism to that people? When we leave the church of Jesus Christ do we apply socialism to our condition, and make it practical to ourselves or anyone else on earth? We know that in all these we do not, neither do we approach any nearer the application of the principles we advocate. Then why leave the church, or lose interest in the gospel? Let us keep cool, keep our heads! Let those who have left the gospel count their losses, for they have no gains.

The second time I visited our brother, the elder, he ignored me entirely; he did not invite me into the house; he was out in the back yard pretending to be working at a chicken coop, and kept his back to me all the while. I could not persuade him into conversation on the gospel, so I left him. A storm was coming up, and I was without shelter. But because I wished to talk the gospel, in which he had lost all interest, because of his extreme zeal in his politics, he seemed unconcerned as to my welfare. This is a sad condition and should be avoided by all Latter Day Saints. If this were the only case it would not be so regrettable, but there are many others.

Saints, let us all be faithful to our covenant and keep it holy till the day of our redemption, that our gains may be all and our losses none.

S. H. FIELDS.

• • • • •

DUTIES OF THE BRANCH SECRETARY.

"DUTIES OF OFFICERS" SERIES.

To my mind the office of branch secretary has never been fully appreciated by our branch officers.

In the first place, the president of the branch is responsible for all the work of the branch; that is, he is to see that it is done, and the secretary is his clerical assistant, just as the priest, the teacher, and the deacon are his assistants in their several lines of work.

When the branch is in session of any kind, the secretary should record the proceedings in order that all the official acts of the branch or its officers or properly appointed servants, whether elected as permanent officers or appointed for temporary or specific duty, may be placed upon the official record for future reference when wanted.

It often occurs that at a regular prayer meeting and sometimes at a preaching service some are confirmed or ordained, and if the clerk does not happen to be there and the elders officiating neglect or fail to report it, the items are lost, no record being made of them. Then when at a later time some one tries to gather them up, no one is sure of the dates or who was spokesman, and the record is imperfect for lack of proper clerical work at the time of the service.

In the matter of keeping the record of the names of members, if the secretary is faithful to his duties he is on hand and in touch with the presiding officer so that he knows just when every baptism takes place, when every death, marriage, or ordination occurs, and should put each item upon his record at once, not trusting to his memory, for with the most of us memory is at best more or less unreliable. Then, when it comes time for his report to be made for the conference, he does not have to make a canvass of the branch and especially the priesthood to find out what has been done before he can make it out, and have it imperfect and incomplete when done.

Some branch clerks make their notes on the report blank as the changes take place, and then when the time comes for reporting they copy the matter from the report on the record book and send the report to conference. This should not be. The report should be a copy of the record, the record being the place of original entry. Every time a matter is copied there is a possibility of an error; then let that error, if there is one, be on the report and not on the record.

The law makes it the special duty of the presiding elder and the priest to keep in personal touch with all the members of the branch. When a family moves away, as they frequently do, to territory where there is no branch, they can not be ministered to by the personal visits of these officers, yet the branch through its officers is responsible for their spiritual welfare, and the members should be made to feel that the branch is still their spiritual home, and that they have obligations to keep in touch with it and minister to its needs, even though they can not now meet with it. The branch secretary is the clerical officer of the branch, and is the logical one to keep in touch, by correspondence with these absent ones, advising them of the progress of the branch and of its temporal needs from time to time. In this way hundreds if not thousands of members would be saved to the church, who now are left to drift back into the world for the lack of pastoral attention, just because their business affairs may have made it necessary for them to move out of the personal reach of the branch officers.

In a few of the large branches the work of the clerk has been divided and is done by a secretary and a recorder, the secretary only doing the recording of the minutes of the meetings and the recorder looking after the record of names and the statistical reports. In this arrangement, however, the recorder is, in fact, an assistant to the secretary, for it is all clerical work and belongs to the clerk, and in most branches is done by one person; so we here consider it as a part of the work of the secretary.

In our system of handling the branch statistical reports, all possible precautions against error are applied, and yet many errors creep in through various sources, mainly; however, in the copying of matter from the record book to the report blank, from the letter of removal to the record book, or from the record book to a letter of removal. In the general office, however, we have a system whereby these errors are sooner or later detected. But when we discover that an error has been made we can not tell whether it is the first report or the last one which is in error; we must go to the district clerk, and he in turn must call on the branch clerk for the facts in the case. The branch clerk should not reply simply by saying that "My record says," so and so; but personal inquiry should be made of the persons whose data are involved for the actual facts. We are not specially interested in how the error was made or who made it; we simply want the facts, so that we may make the records correct. It should be considered the particular duty of the branch clerk to be sure that all entries on his record are correct, and he should make every possible effort to this end, a very important one of which is to respond promptly to inquiries from the district clerk or the general office after having made all possible effort to learn the facts asked for.

By some the records are considered sacred, and they hold that the clerk has no right to make any changes in any entries found therein. It should be remembered by such that an error can not be properly considered as sacred; that the record can only be held to be sacred when it is known to be absolutely correct in its essential details. So, when it is discovered that an entry is wrong, no matter who made it, it should be corrected; and as the district and general records should be exact duplicates of the branch record, these offices should be advised of every correction made in the branch record.

More might be said regarding the many minor details of the work of the secretary, but this is perhaps sufficient to meet the demands of this article. We wish to say, however, that we are glad to answer any inquiry from branch or district clerks regarding any part of their work at any time, and we solicit such inquiry.

C. I. CARPENTER,
Church Recorder.

Of General Interest

SEX EDUCATION.

The question of sex education in the public schools has been given a wide discussion in the public press of the country. Powerful forces have been working for and against the introduction of such instruction in the schools. Some idea of the plans and extended efforts of the advocates of public education in matters of sex may be gleaned from the following, appearing in the Current Opinion for October:

The question whether sex hygiene should or should not be taught in the schools is at present arousing intense interest throughout the Nation. Arguments pro and con may be heard on all sides. Religious, educational and medical societies debate the problems involved. Organizations favoring instruction in sex hygiene already exist in twenty-two States of the Union, and an American Federation for Sex Hygiene brings these organizations into closer relation and secures cooperation amongst them. On the whole, the present tendency is to affirm the need of sex education for the young. But powerful counter-currents may be discerned. The Chicago Board of Education, after indorsing Mrs. Ella Flagg Young's plan for a lecture course on sex hygiene, received so many protests that it decided to abandon the course. A majority of Chicago citizens seemingly think that such topics "might better be taught at home." The American Federation of Catholic Societies has also refused to countenance the movement; while America and other Roman Catholic papers are devoting more and more space to the exposure of what they regard as the dangers of the new propaganda.

One of the ablest documents dealing with the question is that lately published by a special committee which made its report to the Fifteenth International Congress on Hygiene and Demography held in Washington some months ago. It seems that in connection with the congress a letter was sent out to a large number of educators, medical men and social workers, asking their opinions on the following questions: 1. The importance of educating the young in the physiology and hygiene of sex; 2. The practicability of introducing sex teaching into schools and colleges; 3. The matter and methods of proposed instruction. In by far the larger number of cases, we are told, the answers received were quite favorable to the suggestions.

The committee offers a general outline of a plan for sex education, of which the gist is as follows: Sex instruction has a purely practical aim, its purpose being "to impart such knowledge of sex at each period of the child's life as may be necessary to preserve health, develop right thinking, and control conduct." A further aim is "to develop a healthier public sentiment in regard to sex, which will make it possible to discuss with more freedom than is now customary the grave hygienic and moral dangers to the individual and the community which grow out of the violation of the physical and moral laws governing sex life and the sacred processes of human reproduction." This instruction must not, however, "seek to create interest and awaken curiosity in the subject with which it deals, but merely to satisfy the curiosity which spontaneously arises in the child's mind."

Detailed descriptions of external human anatomy and human embryology are discountenanced, while emphasis is laid upon the importance of providing proper physical exercise for the young, the value of which, "in its bearing on the control of the sex instinct, is so generally recognized that it needs no further emphasis here." The scientific basis of sex instruction is to be laid in the nature-study classes in the elementary schools, and in the more systematic instruction in biology and hygiene in the secondary schools and colleges. This scientific instruction must be reinforced by ethical instruction, both direct and indirect. "Appeals to the sense of personal self-respect and purity and to the instinct of chivalry can be effectively made in the earliest years of adolescence, and even before."

Good reading is urged as one of the best indirect means of ethical instruction—the most effective, in fact, which is at present available in the public schools. Then for the purpose of outlining more specifically the character of the instruction adapted to various ages, the life of the pupil is divided into four periods, during each of which it is pointed out just what instruction should be imparted. Since parents who would naturally be expected to give much of this instruction to their children are generally unqualified and unwilling to do so, it is advocated that courses of lectures be provided for them at public expense. Courses in sex morality under the auspices of Boys' Clubs and Young Men's Christian Associations are also favored.

Finally the committee emphasizes the necessity of good judgment and tact in introducing sex instruction into the schools. "It should be introduced only when teachers can be found or trained who are competent to give it, and when public sentiment will support it." On the other hand, "undue weight must not be given to the difficulties attending such instruction even under present conditions, inasmuch as even occasional mistakes will do far less harm than allowing children to continue to gain this knowledge, as many of them do now, from impure sources."

The character of the discussion, the wide range it has taken, and the general interest in the matters at issue are indicated by the following.

Doctor Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, at the recent Congress of School Hygiene, urging the greet need of a union of forces against the ravages of evil, is reported as having said:

A remarkable change in public opinion has taken place in regard to sex hygiene, using the term in its broadest sense. The policy of silence was almost universal. Medical discoveries have contributed to the shift in public opinion, which also has been moved by the many signs of physical deterioration consequent on the rush to city life. Fathers and mothers feel a new duty toward their children. Churches take a new interest.

The most important question is: What force can now be put in play against the formidable evils which gravely threaten the very life of the race? No one force or agency can be completely relied on. Attack must be made against the three principal causes of present evil conditions: First, lust in men; second, complete lack of moral principle in certain classes of women; third, depravity of those who make commerce of these two.

Commercialized vice should be attacked in all its forms by all the powers of the law. The ancient policies of toleration and licensed segregation must be uprooted. Segregation has nowhere been successful. Regulation is a confessed failure. The laws against undesirable marriages need to be revised.

America, an influential Catholic journal, holds that it is not more knowledge that is needed, but more will power and less desire. What is considered the premature knowledge of school training is held to be a greater evil than the evil of ignorance. We quote:

We are foolish in relegating to the attics of the mind as so much mental junk the wise reticence of the past in matters of crime. "I know the higher way; I give it the sanction of my approval," said Ovid, "but I follow the lower." Shakespeare has told us of the pastors who point out to others the path of righteousness while they themselves "the primrose path of dalliance tread," and there is a still more potent authority on that topic if it were needed. "I see another law in my members fighting against the law of my mind and captivating me." Saint Paul puts the issue clearly. It is not the law of the mind which needs strengthening, but the law of the members that needs restraining; not more knowledge, but more will is required. In the very lesson in which you reveal the evils of sexual indulgence you are likely to elicit the attractiveness of sensual gratification. The evils are remote; the pleasure is present and insistent. The drunkard in presence of temptation is not going to be saved from his indulgence by tables of statistics.

There are indeed evils in ignorance, but the evils of premature knowledge are more numerous and more disastrous. This is especially true in the matter of purity which is now at stake in the school training of what is called sex hygiene. . . . Let the young have less desire, not more knowledge; strength of will, not complete information.

The Evening Bulletin, a Philadelphia daily, concedes the need of proper sex instruction, but contends that such instruction is a matter that rests entirely with parents or guardians, and that to shift the responsibility elsewhere would be a serious mistake.

Modern civilization is not yet prepared to take such advanced ground in public education, and the time when it will be still probably far distant. Too much is at stake in the training of the youthful mind to chance disaster from an experiment in the domain of morals. Custom and usage have set wise limits beyond which frankness and candor in public speech may not go without losing caste and becoming obnoxiously bald and immodest. The line between purity and pruriency is perilously thin when intimate personal subjects are discussed in the open. To convey sex knowledge to the young requires unusual tact, acute sympathy and entire understanding of the nature and temperament of each pupil, so that to teach it en masse in the schoolroom would be to assume grave risk of sowing evil where good alone should grow. The responsibility of instructing children in these matters rests on the parents or guardians, and the place of instruction should be the privacy of the home. Any attempt to shift the duty elsewhere would be a serious mistake.

A correspondent in the Independent thinks that building up barriers against temptation is proper, but that for public-school teachers to undertake the task would be like handling dangerous explosives:

Personally, I would prefer to handle the most violent explosives known and advocate it for others rather than fall into error on the question of "sex education." If I can't teach my children what they should know and what they should not know, and do it at the proper time, I certainly would not delegate it to the public-school teachers or others, who may or may not have children, and the desire to "teach" this dangerous matter most likely comes from the latter class.

"Building up barriers against temptation and avoiding the danger of exciting undue curiosity" is all very well, but that certainly rightfully belongs to parents and not the public. Any intelligent person knows that of all curious things on earth children take first rank, so lead them into right channels (and only parents can do this) that their curiosity may find vent on healthy subjects and minds occupied in the world of matters they may know of to their benefit. Good healthy horse parental sense with "a word in season" will do the rest, and if it can't be done that way, it can't be done at all.

The San Francisco Argonaut is of the opinion that we have already had too much discussion, that the cure for immorality is not in publicity and familiarity, but in reticence and mystery:

The barriers of morality and convention are by no means so distinct as we like to suppose. Usually they supplement each other. During the last few years we have seen the almost complete destruction of those reticences upon sex matters that doubtless had their own attendant evils, but that did actually prevent far more evils than they caused. What we call plain speaking became a vogue and a fashion. Literature and the drama combined in what was said to be a moral crusade, but that was actually a financial crusade. And now the churches have followed suit. Nothing is too private for public discussion, no audience too young for admission and participation, no vital fact too explosive for reckless handling. Upon every side we see gross familiarity at its deadly work. . . . The cure for this sort of evil is reticence and not publicity, mystery and not familiarity, the home and not the pulpit, the mother and not the school-teacher. . . . Therefore it is time that we called a halt to the sex fanatics. . . . It is these sex fanatics that are largely responsible for the juvenile immorality of the day. It is the sex newspaper, the sex drama, the sex novel, the sex reformer, and the sex pulpit that have created it. And it has been nourished by the apathy and the neglect of parents who are quite content that the policewoman and the delinquency court shall do the work that has been so shamelessly neglected by themselves.

Let us hope that we are nearly at the end of this particular epoch lest some worse thing befall us. It is bad enough that for years past our young people should have been forced to live in an atmosphere of public discussion comparable only with that of an open sewer. Things will have come to a pretty pass if we must now forbid our children to go either to school or to church for fear of the moral contamination that must ensue.

Collier's, while inclined to favor home instruction, seems to see in public instruction, by teachers of spiritual force to conquer the problem, and with personal reverence, the possibility of good:

There are many indications that the problem of what to tell our maturing young people is going to be given an answer within the next few years. In current discussions the position taken seems to depend very largely upon the speaker's fundamental belief as to the importance of chastity. This means that we are attempting to handle a practical problem from the most theoretical standpoint. It seems clear that experience so far shows that this whole problem of sex had better be approached in the spirit of personal reserve and reverence for personal relations that we associate with the better sort of home life rather than in the spirit of eager curiosity and practical experimentation that we associate with the schools. The psychologists are welcome to their endless wrangles as to the precise extent to which sex discussion arouses; in those discussing sex, cravings which might otherwise remain dormant, but it is certain that the average young medical student's first acquaintance with obstetrics is not a force making for personal or social purity. The contrary is far too often the case. Any system of instruction which gives a knowledge of sex hygiene merely as mechanical knowledge will be a gigantic mistake. Any instructors given this responsibility must have the spiritual force to conquer the problem and the personality to compel their pupils to reverence. Anything less will be instruction for dogs, not for human beings.

The Des Moines Capital, recognizes that the duty of proper instruction rests in the home, yet urges that since parents do not perform their obligations public instruction is necessary for the sake of the child:

Teaching of sex hygiene in the public schools by the lecture method is a solution of a troublesome question. . . . There is no doubt that the duty of telling children the mystery of life rests upon the parents. Since parents will not fulfill their obligations in this respect, it is apparent that another source must be found for the sake of the children.

The Chicago Tribune, in sympathy with public instruction, says:

It is not a question of whether the youth should remain ignorant or be instructed. It is a question whether it shall be well or ill instructed.

A writer in Collier's urges that the consequence of ignorance is in itself an argument in favor of public education.

All the time that this controversy is going back and forth the clinching argument for teaching sex hygiene is being cried in agonies; sons and daughters by the score are constantly being heaped in sacrifice upon the altar of prudery. The sob of a mother whose baby must go through life blind because of some one's ignorance is an argument for sex education that defies the glibbest debater.

Doctor Eliot, a champion of public instruction, on the occasion already referred to said:

Public progress in regard to sex hygiene and eugenics is to be procured chiefly through educational methods. The work must be done delicately and without interference with parental rights or religious conviction.

* * * * *

CIVILIZATION, STIMULANTS, AND NERVES.

All races of mankind discover at some period of their development the agreeable qualities of nerve excitants, these falling usually in the two classes of the alcohols and the alkaloids. But the later experience of each race demonstrates the dangers involved in indulgence in alcoholic drinks and even in the immoderate imbibing of such beverages as coffee and tea.

The third step of progress is twofold, consisting of zealous temperance propaganda on the one hand, and on the other of efforts to pluck the string from the dear familiar table companions that have been loved not wisely but too well.

Doctor Viktor Grafe, of the University of Vienna, writes on this subject in Prometheus (Vienna, July 27) with special reference to preparations of the South American stimulant mat'e and the preparation of what may be called denatured coffee, i. e., coffee with a large percentage of its caffeine extracted, but retaining its aroma. He writes:

The joy of nerve excitement in any race follows the path of a curve whose ascending line, beginning at a certain period of development, rises to a topmost point, at which reaction takes place and the downward slope begins. This downward curve, to be sure, will probably never sink to the level of its starting point, since it is highly improbable that any race will entirely abandon wine, beer, tobacco, coffee, tea, etc.

But reaction has already set in strongly in Europe and America. We begin to bethink ourselves that with the agreeable effect of the stimulant on the nerves is an injurious effect produced by the poison in the stimulant. For the zenith of civilization often goes hand in hand with a severe tax on the nervous system, especially under the strenuous modern conditions of the struggle for existence.

And this induces an augmented use of nerve stimulants, so that an increasingly large percentage of civilized mankind falls victim to such stimulant poisons; this is already commonly shown in the condition of irritable nervousness. . . . —American Reviews of Reviews, for August.

---

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

How Two Little Girls Learned to Cook.

There was almost four years difference in their ages, and when the older one was about two and a half years old, she was given a little rolling pin as a Christmas present, for she was always teasing her mother on baking days for a piece of dough with which she might do such things as she saw mamma doing.

She was taught as one of her first lessons that her little hands must be washed very clean. Then she was put on a chair by the table and was given a piece of cooky dough or of piecrust and was taught how to roll it out. If it was cooky dough, she was given a thimble, or a small cover of some kind, and was taught to cut out tiny cookies after the dough had been rolled to the right thinness. Then they were baked and three brothers were always ready to help her eat them, for her cookies were as clean and eatable as the mother's own larger ones.

When pies were being made, the same little girl was given a piece of piecrust and was taught how to roll it out and put it on a small pie tin. Mother put in the filling, and when the pie was baked it was eaten by the same accommodating brothers who ate the little cookies.

When bread was being baked, the little girl made what she called little biscuits. These also were eaten, for it was impressed upon the tiny cook that she must be careful and clean and that she must not be wasteful. She did her baking with the understanding that what she made should be placed on the table and eaten just as mother's was. Before this little girl was four years old, she could roll out crust for a large pie and make it look as nice as might be expected from one several years her senior.

The second little girl was taught in the same way. As they grew older, they were taught to mix their material, and when they wished to make a cake, they were given a cook book and were told to follow the recipe exactly. When necessary, they were instructed how to put the ingredients together.

On one occasion one of these little girls was greatly disappointed. Company had come in and she wished to make a warm molasses cake for supper but spoiled it by forgetting to put in the soda. Instead of giving up in discouragement, she quickly made another, which proved to be a success.

These little girls grew to womanhood and, as a matter of course, became adept in the art of cooking. The elder is now married and has a little girl of her own, five years old. The rolling pin that was her mother's is now the property of this little child, and we have no doubt it is still doing duty in her hands as it did in other little hands years ago.

One of the little girls who used it in the time long past went from this world on her nineteenth birthday. She had become an ideal housekeeper, as well as a good cook. The mother who has told us this story of how she taught her little girls to cook says she may some time tell us how she taught them to sew. We hope she will do so.

Taking Things Seriously.

There are several points in the above narrative, so pleasantly told, which seem worthy of mention. The little cooks were taught to be careful and economical, and that which they did was treated with consideration. They were not dabbling with foodstuffs, expecting to throw them away when they had tired of playing with them. They were not trifling. They were seriously at work, mastering something, achieving something worthy.

We are reminded of the admonition we once read, "Thou shalt at all times take thy child seriously." When we picture to ourselves the mother at work with her little daughter beside her, doing in miniature the things she sees mother do, we contemplate that which is pleasant and yet serious.

And this is the great task of humanity in the present, the task of learning to find pleasure in the earnest things of life, the task of finding satisfying pleasures, pure in character, and of lifting the world's necessary work from degrading drudgery to ennobling activity.

Running Away.

A little boy ran away from home one day. It was a winter's day, the older brothers and sisters were at school, and, much as he loved his mother, he craved a relief from the monotony of being shut up day after day in the same rooms. And so he ran away; not far, just to a neighbor's, where there was another little boy, toys different from those he had played with at home, and another boy's mother moving about at her busy work.

A man ran away from home one day. He ran away because he craved relief from the responsibility of providing for a family of children. They were bright, active little ones. In a way he was fond of them. He had been quite proud of the first one, but his interest and affection waned as the family increased and with this increase came the necessity of increased activity on his part. It grew very irksome to him, and, finally, he ran away.

"I'm glad he did!" stoutly affirmed his young son; "he was so cruel to us, I'm glad he went, and I hope he never'll come back!"

She ran away from home, the young girl whom seductive pleasures had lured from the path of virtue, and a mother's eyes are dim from weeping and her heart is faint from hope long deferred, and she scarcely can continue to pray for the return of the child she longs to take to her heart and forgive. This recital is not fiction; the story is real. Somewhere this girl wanders from home and the mother-heart tries to follow and call her back. Eagerly this mother is catching at everything that may prove to be a clew to her daughter's location, but thus far her watching and praying have been in vain and her home and heart are desolate.

He ran away, the man who sat in his office day after day, looking admiringly upon the girlish attractiveness of his young stenographer. She was physically more attractive than his faithful wife, at home with the children. As he indulged the admiration he should have repressed, as he yielded to the pleasures he should have denied himself, as the great tempter of men's souls wound about him the silken cords of self-indulgence, interest in his home decreased, love for wife and children waned, and he, too, ran away, exchanging a home that had been one of pure love for one of illicit companionship.

They are running away, some from unattractive homes, some from uncongenial husbands or wives to whom they have joined themselves without sufficient carefulness, some from duties to which they are unwilling to apply themselves, some from obligations they should regard as sacred. They are running away in quest of happiness, and many will not find it, because self-indulgence does not always bring lasting pleasure.

Over the Threshold.

The following lines were suggested to me one day when our baby boy was trying to get over the threshold where there were rocks that would hurt him and many things we felt he did not need:

Over the threshold my baby boy
Has often wished to go,
And has looked at me with tearful eyes
When I have answered, "No;
Over that threshold, darling child,
Are dangers you do not know;
So I place a barrier before the door,
Over which you can not go."

But he is so little he does not know
The rocks would hurt his hands,
And he looks and looks with longing eyes
On what are to him new lands.
I say, "Those rocks and all you can find
That over the threshold lie
Will, when you have learned to walk,
Be there for you to spy.

"But wait until that time shall come;
Be patient, and do not try
To reach for the things that mamma knows
Will make her baby cry.
It will not be long, my darling boy,
Till over the threshold of life
Your feet will carry you many times
Into a world of strife.

"And there will be many tempting things
That would hurt my darling boy;
You will find the world is not all gold,
But is mixed with much alloy.
May you shun the evils of life, my boy,
And may there be barriers there,
To guard my child from the evils of life—
Barriers of love and prayer."

—Nettie I. Smith.

Prayer Union.

FOR THE THIRD THURSDAY IN NOVEMBER.

Our missions and missionaries in all places, especially remembering the Lamanites, for the fulfilling of the prayers and prophecies of their forefathers; that God will bless the preaching of the gospel among them by our missionaries. For the Jews in Palestine, and for the mission at Jerusalem; for scattered Israel that the glad tidings of the gospel may reach them all.

Lesson, Jeremiah 31: 10-14.

Memory text, 2 Timothy 2: 15.

Letter Department

Little Journeys in Foreign Lands.

TO FRANCE.

In my last letter I said that we were leaving London upon the second stage of our long journey to the Holy Land. The famous chalk cliffs warned us that we were nearing the coast, and soon our train backed down to the wharf in Folkestone, and we transferred to the first-class (?) steamer for Boulogne Sur Mer, France.

Such a steamer! We never saw anything like it in America, only on the freight deck. Presently a young man approached asking for our ticket. He demanded two shillings each for the privilege of standing up or sitting on our suitcases. We resented the holdup and the party was richer by twelve shillings; but many in the crowd were defrauded.

A beautiful ride, destitute of scenery, but enjoyable because of the cool breezes, ended at the small city, famous in church history as the place where John Taylor in 1850 defended the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith, and the angel's message. To show that polygamy could not become a part of the faith of the true church, he used Doctrine and Covenants as adopted by the church in 1835. Yet he and many associated with him at that time were living in polygamous relations. Thank God! it is not necessary for the ministry representing the Reorganized Church of Christ to resort to duplicity in defending the work. None but apostates need have mental reservations.

Our inability to speak French brought about a number of laughable experiences that were destined to be reported in other countries. They kept us good natured; otherwise we would frequently have had an attack of nerves. On our first car ride the conductor, after receiving our fares, demanded a tip for a drink. We didn't decide whether he took us for American millionaires, or priests traveling incognito.

PARIS.

Paris is a city of broad, handsome thoroughfares, the finest of which is the Champs Elysees; this is a resort for pleasure seekers. The brilliantly lighted cafes-chautauts extend to the street, and are well patronized; every visitor is expected to take some refreshments, and may then watch the gay life. There is nothing done in a corner in Paris.

Our first day was spent in the Palace and Musee du France. Space forbids that I attempt to describe either the gorgeous building or its rich treasures. The gallery on the left side, ground floor, contains the famous statue of Venus, the admiration and model of every art student. A peasant of Milo found it, and sold it to France for six thousand francs. It is supposed to have been the work of a pupil of Scopas, in the time of Philip of Macedonia. There were galleries devoted to the statues of the gods and Egyptian mythology; bronzes and antiques from the sixteenth century; sculpture from the Roman period; busts of the emperors from Marcus Aurelius to Caracalla; one of Antoninus, said to be one of the most beautiful men of antiquity. After looking him over, I didn't see that he had much beauty above brother Koehler and myself. The Gallery d' Apollon, one of the most beautiful halls in the world, contains the crown diamonds, enamels, etc. Every night to protect them they are lowered into a safe that is submerged in water. We were deeply impressed with Rembrandt's "The Crucified Christ." As we looked upon those pierced hands and feet, that horrible gash in the side, that face, bearing every trace of terrible suffering, the tragedy of Calvary seemed more real than ever before.

We secured good snapshots of the Place du Carrousel, where Napoleon I erected an arch to the glory of the French army. It is forty-eight feet high and sixty-three feet wide and is crowned with four horses. There is also an equestrian statue of the Marquis de Lafayette, presented to the city by the school children of the United States.

No visit to Paris is complete without seeing the magnificent memorial to Napoleon I. The church of Saint Louis is adorned with battle flags captured by Napoleon, and adjoins the Dome of the Invalides, which consists of a square tower surmounted by the circular dome. Immediately beneath this dome is the crypt, thirty-six feet in diameter and twenty feet deep. The walks are of polished granite, and the golden flood of light, admitted through the stained glass windows, gave a wonderful effect. The pavement represents a laurel wreath and upon it rests the sarcophagus of the great general. In the chapel may be seen the velvet pall which enveloped his coffin when he was brought back from Saint Helena in 1840. A beautiful sarcophagus on the left contains the body of Jerome Bonaparte; one on the right that of Joseph Bonaparte.

Napoleon's ambitions were never realized, but a continent was drenched in blood, and thousands of young lives were sacrificed on the altar of that ambition. I felt that I gazed upon the ashes of a disappointed failure in more ways than one. When he appears before the Judge of all the earth he can say, I present to you devastated towns and cities, hundreds of thousands of wasted lives, rivers of tears, millions of curses, billions of wasted treasure, diverted from channels of peace to those of pillage. Will not all these things entitle me to a seat near the throne, and command of the legions of heaven? What shall the answer be? His last request was: "I desire that my ashes may rest on the banks of the Seine, in the midst of the French people whom I have loved so well."

We spent a few moments in Notre Dame de Paris, but cathedrals are so numerous and so much alike in Europe we shall say but little about them. We learned this one had thirty-seven chapels and, when full, holds twenty thousand people. In the treasury they claim to have fragments of the crown of thorns and of the true cross, also a nail from the cross. We are very skeptical about Christian relics in Europe and Palestine, as you will learn in time.

Towards evening we visited the famous Eiffel Tower which is now the property of the city. This tower has three platforms, the first about two hundred feet, the second three hundred seventy-six and the third nine hundred and five feet from the ground. There are restaurants and bars, and theatrical performances are given at 3 p. m. The base is a square of one hundred twelve yards, and there are one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven steps to the top. It is very graceful and can be seen from all parts of the city. It has been fitted with wireless telegraph apparatus and can communicate with Canada. As they wanted three francs each to let us up we did our act of admiration from the ground.

We counted the francs several times a day with a queer feeling as we noted how fast they disappeared, and we found the walking good most of the time. Near the tower we found a cafe and obtained a good meal for a reasonable price, the only one, by the way. The astonishment of the waiter was laughable when we refused his wine, his "very nice wine," for water.

That night we said good-bye to the Brooklyn Saints, as our train left early; they were returning home and we were going on toward Jerusalem. It is needless to say that severing the last link binding us to the dear home land made us sad. They were to sail from Cherbourg on the Olympic.

THE CHARMS OF SWITZERLAND.

Our trip to Lucerne was very pleasant. This country is under high cultivation; the mountain scenery is grand. We arrived in the evening and after dinner strolled through the town to the lake side. High up in air we saw numerous electric lights that indicated mountain hotels. The air was cool and bracing. Thanking God for his goodness to us, we sought rest, determined to make the most of our one day in Switzerland.

To those who have visited Mount Desert, Maine, know something of the charm of its mountain and lakes, its gorgeous views of the sea, I can convey an idea of the charm of Switzerland. We visited the famous "Lion of Lucerne," which is twenty-eight feet long, cut in the side of the mountain, to commemorate the heroism of the Swiss guards of Napoleon who died in defense of the Tuileries against the Austrians in 1792.

Near by were the glacier mills. They were discovered by a gentleman excavating for a house, who realized the scientific value of the discovery. Great holes in the granite rock were ground out during the ages when the ice mountains were slowly melting, and the mill stones were left in them. This is one of nature's remarkable workshops.

As the sun was setting back of Pilatus the heavens were painted a bright salmon color, gradually growing darker. Purple and clay, and shades of black appeared one by one. The deep blue of the heavens changed to gray and gold, while the lake, like a mirror, reflected them all.

Our tickets entitled us to the steamboat trip up the lake to Fluelen, which will dwell in memory as one of the most beautiful rides in the world. We passed the scene of William Tell's shooting the apple. A statue of Tell and a chapel mark the interesting spot. The railroad carried us through interesting scenery. We could see the glaciers occasionally. We passed through Saint Gothard tunnel, nine miles long, built at a cost of ten million dollars.

ITALY.

We were now in Italy, and what a change! The beautiful green hills gave place to dry, brown ones; the pretty chateaux were replaced by dugouts and crude stone huts; the clean, well-dressed people, by dirty, ragged, filthy ones. Our experience of the "customs" was very annoying, and but added to our disgust with conditions.

We stopped about four hours in Milan, visited its celebrated cathedral, built 1386-1500. It is four hundred seventy-seven feet long; one hundred eighty-three wide, and one hundred fifty-five feet high. Six thousand statues cover it in every direction. Near it is Victor Emmanuel Arcade, said to be the finest in the world. It is nine hundred sixty feet long and is a favorite promenade.

ROME.

An all-night ride brought us to Rome, where a smiling "barker" informed us our hotel was closed and offered the luxurious comfort of his own. We learned just in time that he was lying. Here we were in the historical city, founded seven hundred fifty-three years before Christ; once the proud mistress of the world, now exhibiting only the ruins of its former glory.

We first visited the Forum of Trojan, which must have been a magnificent series of buildings. The isles can be clearly traced, the gray granite columns showing a little of the former beauty. On the west is the "Temple of Saturn," dedicated 496 B. C.; near it is the Temple of Vespasian, and that of Concord, where Cicero delivered his philippic against Mark Antony. A short distance away is the Arch of Titus, erected in honor of his conquest of Jerusalem. Upon the reliefs may be seen soldiers carrying the golden table, the silver trumpets, and the seven branched candlestick, taken from the temple in Jerusalem. On the Capitoline hills stood the palace of Cæsar, where, it is said, Nero played the violin while he watched Rome burn. To save his own head from the angry populace he charged the crime of firing the city to the Christians and ordered their destruction.

With such thoughts we descended the hill to the Colosseum, so named from the great colossal statue of Nero that once stood near by. Jewish captives are supposed to have done the work, A. D. 72-80. It is said that ten thousand men and five thousand animals were put to death during the opening games which lasted one hundred days. The circumference of the Colosseum is about one third of a mile; the arena is two hundred seventy-nine by one hundred seventy-four feet in area, and could be flooded for naval combats. It seated sixty thousand people. We saw the cages where the lions were kept, the passages along which they were driven to the arena.

We tried to picture those white-faced men and women huddled together, some fervently praying, others turning their eyes to the horrible passages to see the dreaded lions emerge; we tried to picture that shouting, bloodthirsty mob, the roar of the animals, the shrieks of pain, and blessed death. And why all this? That Nero might escape the fury of those whom he had spoiled of their homes. These were the early day saints who loved not their lives, but the word of God. Under the altar their souls cried out, How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth? They were commanded to rest for a little season till their brethren should be killed as they were. Oh, the pity of it! And all in the name of religion. Pope Boniface IV gathered twenty-eight cartloads of bones, supposed to be those of the martyrs, and buried them in the Pantheon. Well, I had to cut my dreams of the past short, and use the time diligently; we were not moving very fast.

Who would see Rome and not visit Saint Peter's Church? It is only six hundred fifty-one feet long, four hundred forty-nine feet wide in the transepts; greatest width of nave eighty-nine feet; height of nave one hundred fifty-three feet; aisles two hundred seven feet long, twenty-one feet wide, and forty-eight feet high. The Basilica covers the site of Nero's circus; here many of the early saints were martyred. Here Paul was beheaded, and Peter crucified, head downward, because he did not feel worthy to die as did his Lord.

As we walked down the nave, on the right hand side was the bronze statue of Peter sitting on a marble throne. His right foot is extended. We saw a crowd of pilgrims step forward and kiss his toes; this has been done so much that they are partly worn away. Under the dome is the great Baldachin, ninety-six feet in height. Pope Urban VIII ordered the bronze beams taken from the roof of the Pantheon, —116,392 pounds. It is beautiful, but my respect for Peter's tomb would have been greater if they had not "taken it to preserve it" from the property of other people. That tomb is gorgeously beautiful for a fisherman, who during his life ministered to the necessities of others. A more modest one and a just distribution to the poor, who infest the place, would please Peter, as well as the Master whom he served. Ninety-five lamps are burning around the entrance to the tomb. Among the precious relics exhibited here one finds: The head of the lance that pierced the side of Christ; the handkerchief containing the impression of his face; and a piece of the cross. In the Tribune is the great chair of Peter, said to contain the wooden chair which he used.

Relics abound in Rome, but there appears to be an absence of religion. The priests watch for visitors and pilgrims as a cat watches for a mouse. They tell fantastical stories which no one but a religious ignoramus would believe. We became very skeptical in Italy, and did not avail ourselves of the privilege of buying plenary indulgences advertised for sale at many churches. It does not seem as though the protest of Luther against selling indulgences had been heard in Rome, for the system evidently brings good financial returns. The Church of Rome prides itself upon its wonderful possessions, but I was pained to think that a greater part of them were secured by the same methods used by the highwayman when he relieves you of your watch and pocketbook.

Space forbids mention of many interesting places, like the tomb of Hadrian, the Pantheon, and the Vatican Library, that we visited.

NAPLES, POMPEII, AND VESUVIUS.

Refreshed somewhat by a night of rest, we continued our journey to Naples, by the sea. Our hotel was beautifully located high on the bluff, overlooking the bay. We could see Vesuvius, with its crown of smoke, looking innocent enough, but having at its feet the mute evidences of its terrible energy.

We spent hours at Pompeii, trying to recall the dead past as we gazed upon its ruins. On the 23d of August, A. D. 79, the inhabitants of the cities at the base of the mountain were startled by a terrible noise and saw a great cloud arising above the cone which soon fell upon them a boiling rain and mud. Then great fissures opened and threw out masses of burning stones and earth. Who can describe the confusion and terror of that awful night? No one saw the sun rise. To them the end of the world had come; even in Rome they thought the judgment was at hand. We gathered some of the small stones, about the size of peas, and saw the layers of burned dirt that smothered the city. We walked past the houses, shops, and places until we reached the Forum which was over five hundred feet long and one hundred and twelve feet wide, with twenty-two pedestals for statues. Just north of it was the Temple of Jupiter. The pavement was black and white mosaic. Of course we have souvenirs. In one place we saw several skeletons lying just as they fell; but most of the skeletons have been removed to the museum, where may also be seen bread, found in a baker's oven, dates, figs, grapes, and pastry; these are somewhat aged, but recognizable. Practically everything used by men and women in that city have been found, from fishing tackle to the safes for their treasures. There is more to tell than can be put in the space of one letter, as there was more to see than could be seen in one day and a half.

We did not like Naples; it was dirty and filthy, its stench were nauseating. We did not find a respectable, clean restaurant there, and as we had arranged for only breakfast at the hotel, it came quite hard. We were disappointed in its harbor, and failed to see its beauty, so much raved over by travelers. In fact, we had spent several weeks of the summer along the Maine coast, which so surpassed Naples that we can hardly find words to express our disappointment. A welcome sight was the Prince Heinrich steaming into the harbor, and still more welcome the hour when she sailed quietly away, bearing us as passengers.

We got the disagreeable odors out of our nostrils finally, and settled down to enjoy a fine trip over the Mediterranean, for our faces were turned toward Jerusalem, once the city of the great King. But what were we to find? We were all anxious to reach there, but other experiences awaited us first. They must be deferred until our next.

In the conflict,

U. W. GREENE.

JERUSALEM, PALESTINE, Box 91, French Post.

EAGLE CITY, OKLAHOMA, November 4, 1913.

Editors Herald: We have decided to have another Christmas tree for the Indians at Calumet, Oklahoma, where we had the one last year. They have talked all the year about the other one. This will give us a chance to be with them for a week's meetings. They have agreed to buy the most of the presents for each other this year, which is as it should be. We will have to furnish the treat, decorate the tree, and put the presents on for them, and any little presents any wish to send we assure you will be greatly appreciated. We appreciate the kindness of those who responded to the call last year, and I trust we shall hear from a few this year.

I wish to call the attention of the Saints of the Oklahoma District to the fact that I am the bishop's agent here, and wish all who can to come to the rescue on the call to raise the funds to apply on church debt. We have half the amount now necessary for the district; who will help? Please let us hear from you; the amount is so small if all would respond it would only take one dollar for each member.

The indebtedness is a standing evidence of the fact that the people of the Lord have not done their duty or the treasury would be full, as the Lord has said. So many do not give anything, say nothing of the tithe offering the Lord has said is his. Zion is to be redeemed and we are to have place therein; are we willing to do our part? My address is Kingfisher, Oklahoma, and as bishop's agent I wish to hear from all the members.

Our new church in this place will soon be finished. Brother Chrestensen has been managing the building. At the same time he has taken to himself a wife. This beautiful ceremony occurred at the home of the bride's parents, Sister Emma Diamond.

We hope to visit many of the Saints of the district yet this conference year, and we would be very glad to hear from them.

Your brother,

HUBERT CASE.

To love the truth in an age of lies,
To hold fast art when hunger cries,
To sing love's song in spite of hate,
Keeping his heart inviolate,—
These are artist's victories.—Hamlin Garland.

Never to tire, never to grow cold; to be patient, sympathetic, tender; to look for the budding flower and the opening heart; to hope always; like God to love always—this is duty.—Amiel.

It's the knowing man who knows enough to know there's a lot he doesn't know.—Backbone.

News from Missions

Fremont, Iowa.

After the reunion held at Nebraska City, August 7 to 18, by invitation of Brother H. O. Higgins, of the Nebraska City Branch, I occupied in the city for one week in company with Brother Robertson, of the Southern Nebraska District. We held our services on the church lawn. We were blessed with good liberty. Brother Robertson is quite companionable, and an able and impressive speaker.

At the earnest request of Brother W. E. Haden, I went to a schoolhouse some four miles west of Hamburg, Iowa, where he had a lively interest and large audiences,—a new opening made by him and Brother Chester Constance in 1912.

We held services there about two weeks. The interest held good to the close. Many there wish another series of meetings this fall. We hear nothing but good words relating to Brother Constance here where he labored in connection with Brother Haden in 1912.

While down on the Missouri bottoms I stopped mainly with a Mr. Samuel Fordice, whose father and other relatives I was well-acquainted with when growing up, in southern Indiana. Mr. Fordice, by his mother's side came from that colony of McKinleys, closely related to the late martyred President of the United States, William McKinley. Mr. Fordice and family are investigating the work, and I shall be surprised if they will be satisfied this side of an entrance into the kingdom.

After this successful series of services held during the hot, dry, dusty season in August, Brother Haden and I operated for a few days at Hamburg, occupying through the kindness of the authorities concerned, part of the time during the week in the city park.

With the Saints, Brother Haden and I attended the union services (?) held in the park on Sunday evening, September 7. The Methodist Episcopal minister of Hamburg was the speaker. The effort was a masked general thrust at the latter-day work, but it did not take with the people. He sold his library before leaving for some other call.

Even the outsiders in the community do not believe the world in general is growing better morally. They say so to us. The question is, Is the world in any legal (according to the gospel) process of being converted?

Brethren Nathan Mortimore, Frank Beckstead, William Gard, Simon Beskstead and others' are standing by the work at Hamburg. Their deacon is a faithful worker. Our old soldier Brother James Claiborn, is the active teacher of Hamburg Branch.

We were at Hamburg when the rains came in September, and when the drouth was broken, at least in that community.

September 12 Brother Haden and I went to Riverton where Brethren James Comstock and our old soldier, Brother Louis Donaldson, who with others has stood by the work for so many years and that are still trying to keep the camp fire blazing, and by righteousness let their light shine. Their numbers there are being decimated, yet their motto still is, Onward and upward; a most worthy example to be followed everywhere by us all.

We tried holding services in the large pavilion that stands on the hill just south of the town; but the evenings became rather cool after the rains and not many outsiders attended, but the Saints were faithful. The Father of all blessed us, and the few who came stayed till the end.

Brother Haden was called from there to preach the funeral of Sister Elkins, of Glenwood. We remained at Riverton till after Brother Haden's return; then, after preaching the sermon of Saturday evening, I returned to Hamburg by agreement of all, and Brother Haden; I remained here over two Sundays, holding services every evening except one (it rained), and on each Sunday.

October 1 I went home, to Lamoni, to visit the dear home ones for a few days, and to learn of their welfare. Wife and I are getting almost back to where we began life together; with just one of our children to be at home with her of nights now. How quickly the thirty-five years of our life have flown, since September 1, 1878.

The conference of this district, held at Thurman, or Plum Hollow October 18 and 19 was quite well attended considering rain, mud, and clouds. A lively interest was manifested by all. Brethren Thomas A. Hougas and Nathan Mortimore presided, and Brother C. W. Forney was secretary. Business was done without a jar, and peace ruled the realm.

Elders J. Huston, C. Roberts, Moses Gaylord, James Claiborn, George Kemp and Brother C. Moore, and other officers too many to mention, were present to participate in the services and enjoy the occasion. H. N. Pierce, of Bartlett, Iowa, was, upon due recommendation of the missionary in charge, J. Arthur Gillen, and the Bartlett Branch, and vote of the conference, ordained to the office of elder, under the hands of Thomas A. Hougas, William E. Haden, and Columbus Scott.

Elder Thomas A. Hougas set forth the claims of Graceland College, in an excellent way. The conference was cheering and encouraging. The district will convene again at Hamburg, in February.

I am now engaged at Tabor. Brother Moses Gaylord presides over the branch here, Brother Samuel Clark is the acting deacon. A number that were here in 1903, when I labored in the Fremont District, are elsewhere, and are missed. We hope they are a gain to others in saintly encouragement and strength. Elder Haden is busy out by the hedges and highways of the work.

At the work in the field.

C. SCOTT.

TABOR, IOWA, October 23, 1913.

Seattle and British Columbia.

At this writing, October 10, I am domiciled with the congenial Brothers Hartnell, John and Richard, located in the woods at Clayburn, British Columbia, where the latchstring is always on the outside, with a warm welcome on the inside. I am making a visit to the various branches of the district, with the view of imparting whatever encouragement I may be able to do.

I left home, Seattle, on the 24th of September. All went well until I reached the boundary line, where we were called upon to pass muster, answer such questions as were necessary to satisfy the demands of international law. Answering the question as to what church we represented, we were informed that Mormons were not desirable citizens, consequently not wanted in Canada, and we were ordered to get our luggage ready for deportation. The officer passed on, but returned with one who seemed to be a superior. My credentials were examined and passed as O. K. Sitting directly behind me were three ministers who enjoyed the scene. On being O. K.'d I demanded an apology for being called a Mormon, which was reluctantly complied with. There is too much at stake for the elders to travel even under the suspicion of being Mormons. That is a stigma that we ought to rid ourselves of at every opportunity.

I have not completed my round of calls as yet. I have some three branches and several isolated points to visit. Thus far we have been astonished at the attitude of some Saints who manifested a marked indifference toward the work. On the other hand our heart is made to rejoice at the faithfulness of others who are making a good stand for the truth.

In the cities of the Puget Sound country we suffer for the lack of city workers (street preachers and distributors of tracts). Preaching in private houses is not the most satisfactory. It is all right in some cases, but to reach the discouraged, disappointed, benighted masses we must go into the "highways and byways," not occasionally, but persistently.

October 28. I am now writing from the hospitable home of Sister Dancer at Bellingham, Washington, having visited the Chilliwack Branch, where for several years Brother H. Stade has stood unflinchingly at the helm. This branch is made up of farmers exclusively, scattered over a considerable territory. This makes it difficult for them to meet together. We found them cheerfully pressing onward, with a persistence that will eventually win.

At Rosedale we were comfortably provided for with lodging at the home of Brother and Sister J. Muirhead and were sumptuously fed at the homes of the several Saints. We were also provided with the means of transportation. In all we were encouraged.

We called next at Sumas, Washington, where we met with a few isolated Saints. We held three meetings, enjoying a degree of the Spirit. On leaving them we were requested to come again.

To-night we begin cottage meetings at the home of Sister Hayer. Not only at Rosedale were we royally entertained, but at Vancouver and Westminster, British Columbia, where there are noble Saints. Space will not permit us to name all.

WILLIAM JOHNSON.

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, 3618 Evanston Avenue.

Southeastern Mission.

After a long silence I write the dear old HERALD in order that its readers may know that we are not sleeping, but are moving along in the good old way, trying to help build up the kingdom of God in this part of the earth.

The spirit of that beautiful song, "The old, old path," composed by Sister Vida E. Smith, is burning in my heart as I move along in this good old way doing the will of my dear Savior. The beauty and grandeur of our blessed gospel is expressed so eloquently in the second stanza of that hymn as follows:

"Find the old, old path, 'twill be ever new,
For the Savior walks all the way with you.
In this old, old path, made strangely sweet
By the touch divine of his blessed feet."

While the writer feels happy in this good old way, and others are finding the old path and are trying to walk therein, yet I can not truly write of the work in this large field as the poet wrote of the great work of God in the days of Enoch: "As himself each loved his neighbor; all were of one heart and mind." I feel sure, however, the work of God is prospering, and many in this great mission field are striving to be fully prepared to enter into the paradise of God when they are called to separate from this earthly house.

Several have obeyed the gospel this year and are rejoicing in the work on earth. There have been quite a number who have gone to the other side, where no doubt they are now happy and rejoicing in that peaceful state of rest, to which place we are all traveling if we continue on in the narrow way.

Since October 2 I have been laboring with Brother W. M. Aylor, the minister in charge. We expect to continue to labor together for some time yet. I feel sure that his presence in the field together with his counsel and advice has been a great help to the missionary force, as well as a means of encouragement to the Saints.

October 13 to 19 we attended the reunion of Florida District, which was held at Dixonville, Alabama, Brother Aylor and the writer with C. J. Clark, president of the district, were chosen to preside. The following missionaries were present and took part in the preaching: I. M. Smith, Sven Swenson, Hale W. Smith, A. G. Miller, and A. E. Warr. The preaching was of a very high order and very encouraging and instructive to both Saints and outsiders.

I am glad to note that all the missionary force present at the reunion manifested the true spirit of unity and brotherly love for each other, and are moving right on in harmony in the good work with a strong determination to do the right thing in every sense of the term. The prayer meetings were characterized by the gentle spirit of inspiration in peace and love and unity, cementing the hearts of the Saints together in the faith. Some excellent testimonies were related, causing the Saints to rejoice in the truth, giving them strength to press right on in the fight against the world and the power of Satan. Brother D. M. Rudd was present with us and enjoyed the services, taking part in the prayer meetings and bearing a very strong and comforting testimony to this latter-day message, which showed very plainly that he was moved upon by the genuine spirit of the gospel. The song service under the management of Sister Bessie Clark and Brother Hale W. Smith was inspiring and uplifting.

One lady who was very sick requested administration in order to receive strength enough to follow her Lord in baptism. After being administered to by Brother Swenson and the writer, I had the privilege of immersing her and five others the day the reunion closed. One had previously been baptized by Brother A. G. Miller and another was to be baptized by Brother C. J. Clark the day after the meeting closed. Thus we can write in history that the reunion of 1918 in Florida District was a success. Provision has been made to hold another reunion in 1914. Assistant minister in charge and district officers were selected with power to choose all other committees needful to arrange for next reunion.

The quorum of elders organized in this mission last year were in session at different times, doing their part in quorum work. I am glad to note that the interest in this department is growing. New members have been enrolled, until nearly all the elders of Mobile, Florida, and Alabama districts are members of this quorum. Those who are not yet members should send their names for enrollment to W. A. West, president of the quorum, Berrydale, Florida, or C. J. Clark, secretary, Botts, Florida. This quorum is starting out very nicely in its work, and will be a means of strength to this order of the priesthood if the quorum work continues to be kept up properly.

The opportunities for labor in this field are many, but, as elsewhere, there are things of a hindering nature to be met at times, hence the great necessity of all heeding the divine instructions: "And no one can assist in this work, except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity, being temperate in all things, whatsoever shall be intrusted to his care." (Doctrine and Covenants 11:4.)

I pray God to bless his people everywhere. In order to be among the true and faithful when Jesus comes, I desire to continue faithfully in the line of duty.

Yours as ever in the bonds of love,

F. M. SLOVER.

Mankind worships success, but thinks too little of the means by which it is attained—what days and nights of watching and weariness; how year after year has dragged on, and seen the end still far off.—H. M. Field.

News from Branches

Los Angeles, California.

Brethren Brunner and Slye are holding tent meetings at Long Beach. Sister Sadie Hanson went along to take care of the musical part. Friday evening, the 24th, the choir left Los Angeles early, reaching the tent in time to sing several songs before opening time.

Brother and Sister McDowell are visiting their daughter, Sister Ball. Brother McDowell has been ministering to the Saints while here and is now assisting in the tent meetings at Long Beach.

Sister Packard has been untiring in her efforts to warn her neighbors, and it is because of her zeal that the tent meetings are being held not far from her home. Several are to be baptized next Sunday.

Services are held every other Sunday at Hermosa Beach, as a number of our people have built their homes at convention Park. MADGE P. KNOWLTON.

The Bishopric.

APPOINTMENT OF AGENT.

To the Saints and Friends of the District of Alberta: Please take notice that upon recommendation of the district conference of Alberta, Brother W. J. Levitt, North End, via Macklin, Saskatchewan, has been duly appointed bishop's agent in and for the district of Alberta of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

We hope and trust that the Saints and friends of the Alberta District may feel an interest in assisting Brother Levitt in his work and that the financial work of the district may be blessed in his efforts.

Brother Levitt is duly authorized to administer the law relating to temporalities in the church as found in the Scriptures, and we bespeak for him the sustenance and aid of every helper in the Lord's work.

Trusting all may be blessed of our heavenly Father. In the interest of the truth, Very respectfully,

E. L. KELLEY.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, November 1, 1913.

AGENT'S NOTICE.

To the Saints of Winnipeg District: Another year has rolled around, and is drawing to a close, which reminds us forcibly of the fact that our probation for usefulness is one year less. Can we look back upon it with pleasure, from the fact that we have heeded the admonition to "Seek first to build up the kingdom of God and to establish his righteousness," or have we sought to reverse this admonition, and sought to acquire the other things first, to the exclusion of the building up of the kingdom of God.

Building up the kingdom of God requires all the elements necessary to build up the kingdoms of the world; but distributed in such a manner as to be conducive to the most, and best good to all concerned. Hence the financial law was designed by God to be a blessing to all who observe it, and to all who come under its influence.

Jesus said: "Not every one that saith unto me Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." Get that thought. We can not enter into the kingdom of heaven unless we comply with the will of God, or the law governing this condition. God did not say, Invest your money in stocks or bonds, houses or lands, life insurance or fraternal societies, and I will open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing, but he said, Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and provide me herewith if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it. In Doctrine and Covenants 64:5 we read: "Behold now it is called to-day, till the coming of the Son of Man and verily (or truly) it is a day of sacrifice and a day of tithing of my people." Read Doctrine and Covenants 72:3; 75:4; 101, 102.

The Book of Mormon, Alma 2:19, 20 gives us to understand that by observing this law, and thus providing for those whom God sends forth to bear the message of peace, as also providing for the poor and the needy, we RETAIN a remission of our sins; so it is only by obedience to and a continuing in his word that we are made free, and when the Master comes shall be permitted to hear the plaudit, "Well done."

The church needs your assistance, not only in that which is honestly due, in tithes and offerings, but requires a little sacrifice on our part. The Bishop has called for a special effort to help liquidate the church debt. Will we arise to the occasion? The church has a membership of nearly 70,000. The Bishop has called for $75,000, a trifle over one dollar each. But suppose we take less than one fourth of that number, say 15,000, and make it five dollars each, payable in one month; about sixteen and two thirds cents per day, would secure the amount asked. Surely there are enough to respond. God does not judge us by our ability to pay, but by our willingness.

Now let us all arise to the needs of the work of the Lord, and untie the hands of the ministry, so they will be free to go out with the message of peace and salvation, that Zion may flourish, and blossom as the rose, for we are all workers (or ought to be) together with God, for the upbuilding of this the greatest work on earth, and when we get to the

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

TORONTO.—Convened with Port Elgin Branch, October 4 and 5. District presidency, associated with R. C. Evans, presided. The speakers were R. C. Evans, James Pycoc, and G. C. Tomlinson. District President D. B. Perkins gave a report of work done by branch officers in fourteen branches that reported, viz: Arthur, Colpoys Bay, Cockburn Island, Egremont, Garafraza, Hamilton, Manitowaning, Owen Sound, Port Elgin, Redickville, Sault Ste. Marie, Southampton; Wiarton, and New Liskeard. Secretary reported present membership 2,997, gain 163. Of the thirty branches, twenty-eight reported. The two not reporting were Stokes Bay and Saint Edmunds, practically disorganized. Two branches had been organized, New Liskeard and Southampton. By resolution Stokes Bay and Saint Edmunds branches were disorganized. Auditors found all financial reports correct. Resolution prevailed requesting missionaries performing labors in Toronto District to present report of labors together with financial receipts and expenses to district conferences. Officers elected: D. B. Perkins, president; N. E. Leeder and John H. Taylor, vice presidents; Mrs. Floralice Miller, secretary; Sidney Smith, member library commission; Bishop Evans was sustained as bishop's agent and treasurer. Delegates appointed to General Conference: R. C. Evans, D. B. Perkins, J. T. Whitehead, Floralice Miller, Charles Dudley, James Pycoc, S. G. St. John, G. C. Tomlinson, N. E. Leeder, Harry Young, J. T. Thompson, May Leeder, J. V. Clark. Adjourned to meet at Owen Sound, first Saturday and Sunday in October, 1914. Floralice Miller, secretary.

Convention Minutes.

CLINTON.—Assembled at Veve Chapel, October 10, 2.30 p. m. Number of locals in district, 10; active and reporting, 7. Taberville local reported perfect attendance throughout the quarter, and all members used on program. Lida Budd, secretary.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.—Sunday school met in Lincoln, Nebraska, July 18. Sister Blanche Andrews, of Lincoln, was elected district chorister, a new office in this district. The afternoon was occupied by round table discussion and convention program. In the evening a picnic was held at Capital Beach, under the auspices of the Lincoln school. This was done because we were not able to secure the hall for that evening. The conference very kindly gave over the Saturday evening service for further convention work of the Religio. This convention was greatly enjoyed by all. The Sunday school work seems to be alive in our district. Adjourned to meet at call of executive officers, prior to next conference, and at same place. Blanche I. Andrews.

1913

1914

READ THIS

From date of your remittance to January 1, 1915, we will send the "Saints' Herald" and "Youth's Companion" for $3.25.

Regular Yearly Subscription to Saints' Herald $1.50

Regular Yearly Subscription to Youth's Companion $2.00

The rest of this year and 1914 for $3.25 only. This offer good to both old and new subscribers.

DON'T PUT THIS OFF—SUBSCRIBE NOW.

FROM THE IOWA STATE COLLEGE

Ames, Io., July 12, 1912.

Herald Pub. House,
Lamoni, Iowa.

Dear Sirs:

We have just received your preliminary shipment of our Poultry House Bulletin. After a hasty glance at it I call it a fine job of printing. It is a delight to open up a lot of bulletins like these. I hope that a closer inspection will not reveal any flies in the ointment in the way of errors in proof reading. However, perfection in bulletin making is a thing always hoped for but rarely gained.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) F. W. Beckman,
Bulletin Editor, Iowa State College.

THE GREATEST ? WHERE TO GET YOU NOW HAVE YOUR PRINTING

IS DEFINITELY ANSWERED WHEN YOU ORDER IT HERE

A better class of printing than you can get elsewhere for the same money.
Just the kind of printing you have been wanting but could not get,
At a price which you can well afford to take advantage of.

Our Customers Do Not Hesitate in Sending Their Next Orders

Owing to our complete and up-to-date equipment we now make a specialty of all kinds of commercial printing and book binding, viz, catalogues, bank supplies, office supplies, wedding announcements, flexible back books, and in fact everything that can be printed. We deliver all printing to your nearest railroad point at the price submitted in our bids. Write for our bids on your work. A specimen sheet of our job type faces showing a few neat type arrangements will be mailed to you free of charge on application.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE

--:

Lamoni, Iowa

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
An Appeal to the Young - - - - -	1098
ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
The Body Earthy and Transition, by Joseph Luff - - - - -	1098
Unwise Zeal, by S. H. Fields - - - - -	1101
Duties of the Branch Secretary, by C. I. Carpenter - - - - -	1102
OF GENERAL INTEREST:
Sex Education - - - - -	1104
Civilization, Stimulants, and Nerves - - - - -	1106
MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - -
LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - -	1108
U. W. Greene—Hubert Case.
NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - -	1111
C. Scott—William Johnson—F. M. Slover.
NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - -	1112
MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - -	1112

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance when notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

other side we will find our inheritance built with the material we send up. Let us hasten the work by a prompt and cheerful response to the Lord's call to this very essential part of his work, intrusted to all.

WILLIAM I. ARNOLD, Bishop's Agent.

WINNIPEG, MANITOBA, 535 Richmond Street.

Conference Notices.

Idaho District will assemble with Hagerman Branch, Hagerman, Idaho, November 29 and 30. Those writing William Glauner or J. E. Condit, Bliss, Idaho, will be met with teams at Bliss. All branches should send reports to district clerk, to reach her not later than November 27. Missionary in charge, Peter Anderson, expects to be present. Mrs. T. B. Jackson, clerk, box 412, Boise, Idaho.

Spokane District will convene December 13, at 10 a. m., in Saints' chapel, corner Third Avenue and Smith Street, Spokane, Washington. Have reports in district secretary's hands a week previous. W. W. Fordham, secretary, South 238 Haven Street, Spokane, Washington.

Central Oklahoma will meet at Sperry, Oklahoma, February 6, 7 and 8, 1914. Mail reports not later than January 10. C. T. Sheppard, secretary, Holdenville, Oklahoma.

Idaho District will meet at Hagerman, November 29. Send reports to Mrs. T. B. Jackson, box 412 Boise, Idaho. The undersigned expects to be in attendance at the conference. Peter Anderson, minister in charge.

Convention Notices.

Idaho Sunday school will convene at Hagerman, Idaho, November 28. Send reports to Lottie Condit, Bliss, Idaho. Mrs. T. B. Jackson, superintendent.

Independence Stake Religio will convene at Holden, Missouri, November 29 and 30, instead of 15 and 16, as formerly announced, change made because of local reasons. Beside the regular business of the convention, a splendid program is being prepared, both musical and literary. We trust that every local will be well represented. W. A. Bushnell, president; Mrs. R. Brocaw, secretary.

Montana Sunday school will convene at Deer Lodge, December 5, at 10 a. m. We want every school in the district represented if possible. William J. Murray, secretary.

To the Evangelical Order.

I would like to have the addresses of all the evangelical ministers, so that I may send them blanks for reporting, and that I may get my list completed. I would also like to have the names of the new members of the order, with items of birth, baptism, confirmation, ordination, and so forth. Please send them to me at your earliest convenience.

HYRUM O. SMITH,

Secretary of the Order.

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, box 701, November 2, 1913.

Two-Day Meetings.

The following two-day meetings have by the committee appointed been arranged in Far West District at the places indicated, and in charge of the brethren named. Ministers who can not attend to the assignments will please see that others take their places. First Saint Joseph, November 23, 24, N. V. Sheldon and T. H. Hinderks. Second Saint Joseph, November 29, 30, B. J. Dice and Charles Householder. Third Saint Joseph, December 6, 7, I. N. Roberts and Paul Pugsley. Wyatt Park Mission, Saint Joseph, December 13, 14, A. E. McCord and George Mauzey. Edgerton Junction, December 13, 14, W. P. Pickering. Alma Branch, December 13, 14, M. F. Gowell and J. T. Ford. Kingston, December 20, 21, B. R. Constance and J. S. Andes. Far West, December 13, 14, Coleman Snider and Frederick Ehlers. Oak Dale, January 3, 4, D. E. Powell and A. W. Head. Cameron, November 29, 30, B. J. Scott and Charles Wood. Delano, December 13, 14, T. J. Hinderks and Charles P. Faul. Trenton, November 29, 30, Brother Eliry. Pleasant Grove, December 20, 21, C. Archibald and Roy Fifer. German Stewartsville, January 10, 11, Samuel H. Simmons and W. W. Scott. DeKalb, December 13, 14, A. A. Richardson and S. J. Hines. Stewartsville, December 20, 21, J. L. Bear, jr., and John Piepgerdes. Boxford Mission January 3, 4, W. P. Pickering. T. T. Hinderks, B. J. Dice, D. E. Powell, Charles P. Faul, committee.

Address.

T. U. Thomas, 306 Thirteenth Avenue, Scranton, Pennsylvania.

Died.

COMSTOCK.—Mary I. Comstock was born May 8, 1836, died October 21, 1913, at Riverton, Iowa. Funeral in charge of W. E. Haden.

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

THE GOSPEL MESSENGER. A new book by J. S. Roth, containing a series of sermons in which the Old Jerusalem Gospel is set forth in an entertaining manner. Brother Roth has been a successful missionary. By reading these sermons you will readily see wherein was his success.
No. 248a, cloth .....75c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140. Price .....50c

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.
Order No.
141 cloth .....75c
141½ leather .....$1.00
174 flexible .....$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.)
John Zahnd,
6-1f Independence, Mo.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

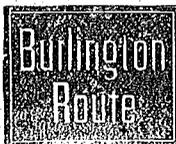

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

480 Acres—$222

Under the new homestead law you can file on a free 320 acre homestead in Wyoming at a cost of $22.00 and buy 160 acres of government pasture land adjoining for $1.25 per acre. These lands are valuable for mixed farming, dairying, and live stock raising.

Such an opportunity ought to interest you. Suppose you write me for particulars—to-day—before you forget it.

D. CLEM DEEVER, Care C. B. & Q. R. R.
1004 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, NOVEMBER 19, 1913

NUMBER 47

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CLERGY.

OFFICE OF FIRST PRESIDENCY, LAMONI, IOWA.

Dear Sir: Understanding that you are interested in the nation-wide campaign against "Mormonism," I desire to approach you with a request that I believe you will concede to be only fair and just.

The request is this; that in your lectures, and articles written for publication, you will make a clear distinction between the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and the Latter Day Saint Church of Utah, commonly called the Mormon Church. We have suffered much from misunderstanding and misrepresentation, owing to the popular tendency to confuse us with the dominant church in Utah, and we ask your help to clear up this misunderstanding, to the extent demanded by common justice.

As a representative of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and as a member of the highest presiding council of that body, I crave your indulgence for a moment while I set forth some facts that you should clearly understand before you reach a conclusion or express yourself upon "Mormonism." For no study of "Mormonism" is complete that ignores that body of believers in the Book of Mormon and the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith that is sometimes called "The nonpolygamous branch of the Mormon Church," a title that is not wholly correct, but is perfectly true so far as the nonpolygamous clause is concerned.

First of all let me state that we do not teach, practice, or believe the doctrine of polygamy, nor have we ever done so. We regard it as unscriptural, unscientific, and contrary to the nobler sentiments of manhood. We look upon it with unmixed abhorrence, as a menace to that great corner stone of civilization, the home. We believe that a man should have but one wife, and her he should love and cherish with all his heart, keeping himself sexually for her and from all others.

We reject the doctrine advanced by Brigham Young, that "Adam is our God, and the only God with whom we have to do." We believe in God the Father, Jesus Christ the Son, and in the brotherhood of man, just as those great facts are set forth in the Bible.

We reject the idea of "blood atonement" taught by Brigham Young, and recognize excommunication from the church as the extreme penalty within the power of the church to inflict here on earth. The State alone may deprive a man of life, liberty, or property.

We do not believe in political interference. Our members are free to support any political party, without dictation or interference from the priesthood.

We do not believe in commercialism within the church as exhibited in Utah. While we hold to the law of tithing as a scriptural doctrine, the paying of tithes is optional with the membership, and the spiritual authorities are not permitted to enrich themselves from the tithes gathered. A strict account of all money received and expended is published annually, and the account is audited by a committee elected by the membership of the church.

We are democratic in principle, to this extent—that in the annual conference, legislation may originate with any delegate, whether of the priesthood or the laity, male or female; and that all proposed legislation is freely debated on the floor of the assembly, and is decided by majority vote.

We believe that the laws of the land should be strictly obeyed, and hold to the principle laid down by Joseph Smith during his life: "He that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land."

Here permit me to state briefly a few items of history: Joseph Smith organized the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints April 6, 1830. He was assassinated in June, 1844. During the period of his life and presidency both he and the church taught strict monogamy and denounced polygamy and similar evils, as evidence abundantly shows; though it is true that he did hold to the doctrines of continued revelation, divine healing, and kindred ideas that were not considered orthodox by his religious contemporaries. But these other things of evil import were no part of his religious propaganda, despite the statements of certain encyclopedias and sensational exposés of "Mormonism."

After the death of Joseph Smith, Brigham Young led a part of the membership of the church to Utah, where he later introduced the doctrines that we have mentioned; and these doctrines have become so notorious that many now suppose that they were a part of so-called "Mormonism" from the first.

Those who could not conscientiously follow Brigham Young and could not accept his doctrines, came together and reorganized under the leadership of Joseph Smith, the oldest son of Joseph Smith, the founder of the church. The Reorganized Church has its headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa, with a large following at Independence, Missouri.

To avoid confusion, I will here state that Joseph F. Smith, president of the Utah Mormon Church, notorious for his polygamous views and practices, is a son of Hyrum Smith; while the president of the Reorganized Church, Joseph Smith, is the son of Joseph Smith, the founder of the church. The descendants of the Joseph Smith who founded the church have a regularly-organized association, with constitution and by-laws, and a membership of over one hundred, including direct descendants and those who have married into the family. Not one of these descendants ever at any time held membership in the Utah Mormon Church or gave allegiance in any way to the erroneous doctrines of that body of people.

You will discover by this that we regard the Utah Mormons as apostates from the original faith. It is equally true that they regard us as apostates. But in this we have the advantage of the argument, because the civil courts have twice sustained our contention that we are the true successors—and that after long and exhaustive investigation. You will see the deep significance of that fact at a glance. It means that all that we stand for now in the way of morality and religion, the church stood for under the administration of Joseph Smith, prior to 1844; and the conditions in Utah to-day are not a true criterion by which to judge the church in its beginning. Behind the evil mask of Utah Mormonism is seen the face of Brigham Young, not that of Joseph Smith. The so-called revelation sanctioning polygamy—found in Utah editions of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants—while it bears the name of Joseph Smith, was never published until eight years after his death, and was then produced by Brigham Young. It is a fraudulent document.

At this juncture you may well ask for some proofs to support my statements. Space will not permit me to produce one tenth of all that might be furnished; yet I will cite you to a few evidences.

The following is an extract from a decision rendered by Judge L. S. Sherman, in the Court of Common Pleas, Lake County, Ohio. (See Journal entry, February term, 1880):

That the said Plaintiff, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is a Religious Society, founded and organized upon the same doctrines and tenets, and having the same church organization, as the original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized in 1830, by Joseph Smith, and was organized pursuant to the constitution, laws and usages of said original church, and has branches located in Illinois, Ohio, and other States.

That the church in Utah, the Defendant of which John Taylor is president, has materially and largely departed from the faith, doctrines, laws, ordinances, and usages of said original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and has incorporated into its system of faith the doctrines of celestial marriage and a plurality of wives, and the doctrine of Adam-god worship, contrary to the laws and constitution of said original Church.

And the Court do further find that the Plaintiff, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is the True and Lawful continuation of, and successor to the said original Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, organized in 1830, and is entitled in law to all its rights and property.

March 16, 1894, Judge John F. Philips, in the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Western District of Missouri, Western Division, rendered a decision in the famous "Temple Lot Case," from which I quote:

The Book of Mormon itself inveighed against the sin of polygamy. . . . Conformably to the Book of Mormon, the Book of Doctrine and Covenants expressly declared "that we believe that one man should have but one wife, and one woman but one husband." And this declaration of the church on this subject reappeared in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, editions of 1846 and 1856. Its first appearance as a dogma of the church [the dogma of polygamy] was in the Utah Church in 1852.

Claim is made by the Utah Church that this doctrine is predicated on a revelation made to Joseph Smith in July, 1843. No such revelation was ever made public during the life of Joseph Smith, and under the law of the church it could not become an article of faith and belief until submitted to and adopted by the church. This was never done. . . .

The Utah Church further departed from the principles and doctrines of the Original Church by changing in their teaching the first statement in the Article of Faith which was, "We believe in God, the Eternal Father, and in his Son, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost," and in lieu thereof taught the doctrine of "Adam-god worship." . . .

In 1852 the scattered fragments of the church, the remnants of those who held to the fortunes of the present Joseph Smith, son of the so-called "Martyr," gathered together sufficiently for a nucleus of organization. They took the name of "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," and avowed their allegiance to the teachings of the ancient church; and their epitome of faith adopted, while containing differences in phraseology, in its essentials is but a reproduction of that of the church as it existed from 1830 to 1844.—Abstract of Evidence.

These court decisions must stand until reversed by some higher tribunal, and they should outweigh sensational statements of careless and uninformed writers.

United States Senator Julius C. Burrows was chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections during the long drawn out Reed Smoot Case. Great masses of evidence were examined, and scores of witnesses summoned. No man ever had a better opportunity to study the subject of Mormonism from the standpoint of an unprejudiced student. And at the close of this well-remembered case, Mr. Burrows made a speech in the United States Senate, from which I present two extracts for your consideration:

In order to induce his followers more readily to accept this infamous doctrine, Brigham Young himself invoked the name of Joseph Smith, the Martyr, whom many sincerely believed to be a true prophet, and ascribed to him the reception of a revelation from the Almighty in 1843, commanding the Saints to take unto themselves a multiplicity of wives, limited in number only by the measures of their desires. . . . Such the mythical story palmed off on a deluded people.—Congressional Record, December 13, 1906.

The death of Joseph Smith in 1844, however, carried dismay and demoralization throughout the entire membership of the Mormon Church, scattering its adherents in divers directions and for the time being seemed to presage the complete overthrow and dissolution of the organization. Recovering, however, from the shock, the scattered bands soon reappeared in various parts of the country and promulgated their doctrines with increased zeal, and set to work to reassemble and reorganize their scattered forces, resulting finally in the formation of what is now known and recognized as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, with headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa, and presided over by Joseph Smith, a son of the Prophet. The courts have repeatedly declared this organization to be the legitimate successor of the original Mormon Church, and its adherents—numbering some 50,000 peaceable, patriotic, and law-abiding citizens scattered throughout the United States in small church societies, conforming to the laws of their country wherever they may be, and adhering to the faith of the founder of their creed, repudiating and denouncing the doctrine of polygamy and its attendant crimes, without temple, edowment house, or secret order—worship in the open like other church organizations, unquestioned and unmolested.—Congressional Record, December 13, 1906.

At the same time, Senator Fred T. Dubois, another member of the committee, made the following statement:

It is only fair, I think, for me to say—and I am glad the distinguished Senator from Michigan (Mr. Burrows) treated upon it the other day—that there is a branch of the Mormons, called the "Josephites," who ought to be separated clearly in the minds of all Senators from the Brighamite Mormons. The Josephites claim that they are custodians of the church as it was founded. They claim that Brigham Young has interjected doctrines into the church which the Mormons did not accept in the beginning. At any rate, however that may be, the Josephite Mormons, with their headquarters at Lamoni, in the State of Iowa, and wherever they are, no matter in what part of the country, are among the best of our citizens in all respects.—Congressional Record, December 17, 1906.

So, in conclusion, I will repeat the statement, that no investigation of "Mormonism," as it is termed, is complete that ignores the Reorganized Church.

Here is a great body of people who command respect because of their morality; and yet they believe in the Book of Mormon and in the prophetic calling of Joseph Smith. You must approach them from a different angle than that from which you approach the Mormons of Utah. You can not wean them from their faith by attacking polygamy, for it has never been part of their creed. You can not convert them by relating the old stories that prejudiced people told about Joseph Smith,—to the effect that he was ignorant, dishonest, drunken, etc. They know that these stories are not true; and that just as evil stories were told about Wesley and Luther in their time, and about the prophets of old, not even excepting the pure and holy Man of Galilee, Jesus, the Son of God. You can only reach them by showing them something fundamentally wrong in their church structure or belief, or in the standard books of the church—such as the Book of Mormon, or Doctrine and Covenants—published during the life of Joseph Smith.

Of course I do not expect you to accede to all of our views without further investigation. Yet, I believe that you will concede the justice of the plea presented in the opening paragraphs of this letter. And as a man of honor and fairness—as I assume you are—and as one who holds to the old idea of the "square deal," I trust that in your public and private utterances on the question of "Mormonism" you will make a clear distinction between our people and the dominant church of Utah, on those fundamental questions of religion and morality outlined in the opening paragraphs of this communication.

If you desire further information in regard to our position on any question, it may be obtained from the Bureau of Publicity, Lamoni, Iowa. Church publications may be obtained from the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

Sincerely yours,

ELBERT A. SMITH.

For the First Presidency of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

AN APPEAL FOR GRACELAND.

LAMONI, IOWA, November 11, 1913.

To All: The Lord said, Pay that great debt. He had reference to the college debt. The college board feel that we should wait no longer, but that this God-given duty should be done. Some of the members of the board are willing to subscribe twenty-five dollars each, though financially they can ill afford to do so.

The board has authorized me to travel in behalf of the college in our effort to keep God's command to entirely liquidate this debt, which we hope to do by next annual conference, so that we can present a clean balance sheet at that time.

I hope to visit you personally so far as possible, but do not wait for my presence. On reading this write me immediately, even though you have nothing as yet to subscribe, and it will be seen to that you get your name on the list if you wish it there, and you certainly do.

The Lord said in Malachi's time, Try me and see. He has commanded us to pay the debt. Let us do as we are commanded! The Presiding Bishop concurs with the board in our effort to cancel the debt and in thus putting a man in the field.

Ask the president of your branch if he has heard anything from me yet. If not, you write to me, no difference what part of the world you are in. We are in need of present help!

Yours for liquidation of debt,
J. W. WIGHT.

NOTICE FROM BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

An Open Letter to the Clergy, a copy of which appears in this issue, has been printed and gotten out in splendid form on india tint paper with buff cover, convenient size for mailing in an ordinary envelope. Copies may be secured for personal distribution for thirty cents a dozen. Orders should be addressed to Bureau of Publicity, Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

GRACELAND VIOLIN DEPARTMENT.

Miss Enid Alexander has been secured by the trustees of Graceland College to teach the violin on Wednesday of each week. Miss Alexander is a graduate of Doctor A. Hefft's school, of Des Moines, and also of Randolph Macon College, of Virginia. She has had several years' experience teaching the violin, and since she is a resident of Leon, Iowa, the Board of Trustees have been able to secure her services on very satisfactory terms to the college.

Though the board has long desired to see such a department of music, they have hesitated to provide it on account of expense. The arrangements made with Miss Alexander are such as to avoid any loss to the college, as it can be handled without additional room in the studio, and the arrangements with Miss Alexander are on a percentage basis.

S. A. BURGESS.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY.—Vice President Marshall preached at a Virginia Methodist camp meeting last summer, his theme being a reversal of Scripture reading, "The sins of the children shall be visited on their parents." Among other things Mr. Marshall is reported as saying:

Children are sent to Sunday school for a part of Sunday; to regular schools for a part of five days a week; and the rest of the time they are forgotten, and they do as they please. It is high time for American fathers and mothers to have opinions on religion. You wonder why the turkey-trot, the tango, and the slit skirt exist. I say it is because the mothers of the country are not interested in training their children.

While a little out of the ordinary, this application, is timely. Lack of moral and religious training in the home is no doubt responsible for a large part of the irreverence and worldliness of the times. Would that parents might be awakened to a sense of their responsibilities along these lines.

REVIVAL MEETINGS IN LAMONI.—A series of revival meetings extending over two weeks has just closed in Lamoni. Careful preparations were made for these services. Elders Frederick A. Smith and John W. Wight, of the Evangelists, and Elder Elbert A. Smith, of the Presidency, were selected to do the speaking and were given full charge of the arrangement of services during the entire time. A committee on advertising and finances was appointed, consisting of John F. Garver, A. Carmichael, and Herbert Barto. Large handbills artistically lettered by hand and illustrated were posted in the store windows and a large banner was stretched across the main street. Bills were distributed to each house in town each day during the service and programs and personal letters mailed to hundreds in the rural districts from day to day. The attendance and interest were excellent. The Sunday audiences had almost the appearance of a General Conference crowd, auditorium, galleries, and rostrum being occupied almost to the limit of their capacity. A splendid spirit was present, and it is hoped that great good will result.

AN APPRECIATION.—Sister Nellie Martin of Perry, Iowa, sends to the Children's Home and Saints' Home, Lamoni, Iowa, a barrel of clothing contributed by Lutheran, Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist friends of the Saints of Perry. When our people live their religion they have influence among all, and become exponents of the beauties of the restored gospel. The good work of the Saints and friends at Perry is appreciated.

OTHER OX GORED.—The Deseret News complains because of the concerted action of the ministers of Lynn, Massachusetts, which has resulted in debarring the Utah elders from preaching on the streets of Lynn. The occasion recalls the arrest in Salt Lake City of our late and lamented Brother E. C. Briggs, for no other offense than distributing tracts in the vicinity of the temple. It makes a difference, sometimes, whose ox is gored.

Original Articles

THE ETHICAL TEACHER.

The need for the ethical teacher and the preacher will never cease.—Ely.

What is there in the cause of religion that justifies a man saying this? Is there that in our religion which will make our teachers and preachers a necessity? The man who expressed himself as above is, I take it, a Christian. What is there in Christianity which makes it a necessity in our social and economical development? The chief characteristic of Christianity is altruism. It is a social religion; that is to say, one man and God can not demonstrate it; it takes at least two men and God. Every teaching of the Christ breathes this spirit, and his every act exemplified it, from his acceptance of the mission of world redemption to his sacrificial death on Calvary.

It is difficult sometimes to differentiate between altruism and egoism. It might be said that the actuating motive of Christians is the hope of reward, immediate or delayed. And if this be found to be the motive of a number of those professing Christian belief, the fault will be found to be in the presentation of Christianity by their preachers rather than in Christianity itself. Christianity by some is thus erroneously presented. But this is observable: When one has been genuinely converted to Christianity he wants to share with others the pleasure derived therefrom, and he makes sacrifices to tell the "sweet old story" to others. Actuated by purely selfish motives he would "keep a good thing to himself."

The student of the present day is aware that we are on the threshold of important changes in social affairs. Those changes are already being wrought; suddenly in some instances, in others so gradually as almost to escape notice. In the evolution of industrial society we have reached a crisis. The changes which will be wrought will be important and so far-reaching as to affect every individual. As a people we must be affected by and participate in these changes, as we are now affected by present industrial conditions. God has given us instruction to study all good books, and it behooves us to study our social and industrial situation, the latter as reacting upon the former. In studying the works of men on experiments in industrial, sociological, and economic affairs, our admiration increases for the social schemes set out, fragmentarily, it is true, in the Doctrine and Covenants. "Coming events cast their shadows before them"; but to be able to see the shadows we must be able to read the signs of the times. A close study of past and present conditions will qualify us to see the growing shadows cast upon the screen of to-day by the immanent events of to-morrow.

We believe God to be the great lawgiver, who by the force of his intelligent will created all nature and the universe. To know God we must know all things. As our knowledge along any particular line of study increases or grows, and to this extent our knowledge of God and his greatness extends, we see him in a new light, and his word takes on new significance. Following more closely the line of study which has thus increased our knowledge of God and his word, we are prone to give bent or cant to our thoughts and we become "cranks" because we think that only those who have studied as we have can see God and his various manifestations in their true perspective. This is true relative to the things of God in the Doctrine and Covenants. And God, recognizing this propensity in humanity, has admonished us to study all good books.

The details of the social scheme briefly outlined in the Doctrine and Covenants are not fully worked out. Upon these details we may and probably will differ; and until the processes of our evolution have demonstrated what these details shall be, we must exercise due charity and broaden our concept by assiduous study. But of this thing we can be assured, as indicated by the quotation at the head of these lines, in any successful scheme of social regeneration religion will be a potent and very large factor.

The test of things Christian is the criterion of altruism. Put this test upon the social teachings of the Doctrine and Covenants, if you will, and they will be found to stand examination. Take, for instance, the so-called "temporal law," the financial law, the basis of the social scheme therein presented. How does it stand the test? Briefly, the whole of the temporal law is included in the law of consecration, of which tithing is a part. This is reversed by some, making tithing the whole law of which consecration is a part; but we look upon consecration as being the more extensive in scope, hence including tithing. We are taught to consecrate from our surplus a tenth or more, according to our circumstances and spirituality, that the needy may be supplied; who are in want. In every instance where the details of the financial law are specified, the care of the poor comes first. It is basically altruistic, and thus stands the test. With this suggestion, further application is left to the reader.

Truly the need for our ethical teachers and preachers exists to-day; and let us hope that we can so vitalize our teachings by consistent practice that we can demonstrate our reasons for being.

FREDERICK M. SMITH.

LAYING ON OF HANDS.

(Sermon by Elder J. W. Wight, October 29, at Lamoni, Iowa, during revival services. Reported by Elizabeth France.)

In the fourth verse of the third chapter of Habakkuk we have this peculiar language: "And his brightness was as the light; he had horns coming out of his hand: and there was the hiding of his power." The prophet is speaking here concerning the Lord. And if I comprehend the construction of the language, it means, in his hands was the hiding of his power. Giving to the word power its full scriptural interpretation, to have authority, it implies clearly that there is authority in the hands. Just why God has been disposed to grant such authority, I make no pretension whatever of knowing, but it is enough for me to realize that the Scriptures are clear upon this point.

While the music was being rendered my mind was pondering the great fact of the latter-day dispensation. I traversed rapidly the work of the reformation and those men who had the learning and wisdom of this world. I made a comparison. It is said that comparisons are odious, but it is not necessarily so. And in making the comparison I reflected as to how it could have happened that nearly one hundred years ago a comparative boy, occupying as a church builder, stood not only shoulder to shoulder with those reformers, but occupied higher than they in that he added nothing to scriptural fact, neither did he take anything away. And it has seemed to me that if I had faith in the man, or in any man so far as that is concerned, that it would be the wrong kind of faith. And I can not look upon him as having had ability from the standpoint of the human above his fellows, for history reveals to the contrary so far as the wisdom of this world is concerned, and the knowledge of this world. So that it seems to me that the central thought of our faith should be, not in the man, but the rather in the inspiration working with the man, which necessarily must have been a godly inspiration from the fact that it was directly in harmony with all the inspiration revealed in the word of God. And reaching this conclusion, it helps to strengthen my faith.

I propose to treat upon the subject of the laying on of hands to-night under four headings, which literally means four sermons crowded into one. Under the headings of: For the blessing of children; for the healing of the sick; for the ordaining of the ministry; and for the confirming or setting apart of people unto or for the reception of the Holy Spirit. And I will undertake to bring scriptural proof bearing upon all of these thoughts.

I met a gentleman in a friendly discussion, not a public discussion, but a private one, some years ago in the city of Melbourne, and he had two capital D's attached to his name. And in that friendly conversation he said to me, "Elder, I would not dare to presume to lay my hands upon any individual for the gift of the Holy Ghost."

I said, "Pardon me, sir; is it not a fact that the church of which you are a representative practices the laying on of hands to ordain men to the ministry?"

He answered, "Yes, sir."

"Very well, taking it from the standpoint of presumption, as you have been willing to do, has it not occurred to your mind that it is just as presumptuous to lay your hands upon a man to set him apart as a minister for God, to occupy as God's minister, as it is for me to lay my hands upon an individual to set him apart unto the receiving of the Holy Spirit?"

He dropped his head for a moment, and frankly admitted that it was an equal presumption. Said he, frankly, "Elder, I never thought of it in that light before."

BLESSING CHILDREN.

In Matthew 19: 13-15; Mark 10: 13-16; Luke 18: 17, 18, we have the history of Christ laying hands upon the infants. Search the record as we may, we can not find an instance recited in all that record where a baby ever had water applied to it as an ordinance. And I would just like to say in addition to the thought presented last night in the sermon on baptism, that so far as baptism is concerned, the individual is applied to the water and not the water to the individual. In so-called baptism by aspersion (either pouring or sprinkling of water), the water is applied to the individual, being directly opposite to what it is in immersion, where the individual is applied to the water.

Now, Christ was the great exemplar; there can be no question on that point. It is not worth taking time to discuss because we are united on that thought. And he came not to do his own but his Father's will. And coming to do his Father's will he says that he spake and did only that which his Father had commanded him to do. Consequently the Father must have commanded him to take the little babies in his arms and put his hands upon them and bless them. And what more pleasing ordinance? Going away back to the time when little Samuel was born—his father and mother dedicated him unto the service of God.

Here, in this act, came the mothers with their children desiring to dedicate them unto God. The apostles, not understanding the situation, we are told, rebuked them—the mothers. Jesus turns with the mild rebuke to them and says, "Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

We learned positively last night that baptism is for the remission of sin. We are united, I think, upon the thought that the sinner can not enter into the kingdom of heaven. The statement of the Master that of such is the kingdom of heaven, implies clearly that the baby is not a sinner, hence has no need of baptism for remission of sin. But the rather that it should be presented to God, dedicated unto him, dedicated unto holy service in this ordinance.

In the fourteenth chapter and twelfth verse of the gospel as written by John, Christ says: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also." One part of his work as a minister was to lay hands on the babies to present them to God. Consequently Christ's ministers, doing the work that he did, will necessarily follow his example, they having authority so to do, the horns of power being in their hands also—the authority of God. And if his servants as ministers do the work he did they will necessarily take the babies in their arms, put their hands upon them and bless them. Here is a scriptural fact, and being a scriptural fact it is one of the things in which this young man of nearly a century ago harmonized himself with the revealments of almighty God.

I do not wonder that it required four years of the service of an angel to give unto him necessary instruction. For these other church builders, exercising all the wisdom and knowledge that they had, some of them being able to read the Greek language, and studying the Scriptures day by day, being generally earnest and devout men, yet lacking in these material points, the angelic ministration and divine power of the gift of the Holy Ghost, did not receive necessary instruction to bring them into complete rapport with the word of God in their teaching. Yes, they came short in many respects; and even to-day some of them are denying the necessity of the laying on of hands for other purpose than ordaining men to the ministry.

Now, isn't it just a little strange that while the laying on of hands was practiced eighteen centuries ago under these four heads, that men will occupy behind the sacred desk and tell their auditors that they are ministers for God, yet leave out three of the ordinances of the laying on of hands, and accept but one out of the four? Did you ever stop to think about it in that light?

While I am speaking emphatically to-night, while I am speaking frankly, possibly unto bluntness, I want to say to my auditors who do not or have not as yet harmonized themselves thus with the word of God as we believe it, that my statements are made in all good feeling for you, with the hope that these statements may so exercise so far as you are concerned that you may be influenced to study the word of God more carefully than you have ever done before, and to go unto God in prayer, in supplication, seeking for wisdom, for learning, for understanding, that you may put yourself directly in harmony with his will concerning you.

And remember this one important fact, that when we stand in the presence of God at the great last day we can not make excuses there. The word that Jesus Christ has spoken will judge us there. He has so declared, and what will we do about it? Suppose, for instance, that we stand in that august Presence and seek to make excuses with reference to sprinkling or pouring water upon an individual, and the record is brought forth, for John saw that the books were opened, and this Bible will be one of the books that will be opened there. The record is turned to and no statement found there which teaches the sprinkling or pouring of water upon an individual. What excuse can you have then? And suppose that we have not believed in the laying on of hands upon the babies that they may be blessed of God, and here is the record so definite and so pointed and it is read in our presence there. It occurs to my mind that if the blush of shame has never before mantled our cheek it will do it there when we hear the word of God read right in our hearing and then are asked why we did not obey that word. What excuse can we have to offer? Will we say, "My minister taught otherwise, and I listened to him?" Will that minister be held responsible for our judgment? To my mind he will not. He should not, for if we have the ability to determine, if our mentality is complete enough, and if we have the opportunity to form judgment, we will be held responsible for the exercise of that judgment.

HEALING AND MIRACLES.

I turn now with reference to the healing of the sick. I call your attention first to Mark 16: 18, and wish to recite this thought of Jesus, standing in the midst of the eleven men, having been resurrected from the dead, and having made his declaration, as Matthew records it, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Having this "all power," he is giving them their commission and the certain promises in connection therewith. Their commission before was only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel; even into the cities of the Samaritans they were not to enter. But now the commission extended is to all the world to preach the gospel to every creature. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe." One of the signs that he enumerates is that "they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

It is recited of Mr. Ingersoll, I am not prepared to vouch for the truthfulness of it, that on one occasion he invited all the ministers of the town to be present at his lecture. And after giving the invitation to all the ministers present to come up on the platform, he took his text from the sixteenth chapter of Mark. And he said, "I am going to show you that there is not a believer here." Then he repeated the statement of the Christ, "These signs shall follow them that believe," and turning directly to the minister on his right he said, "Do you believe that these signs shall follow now?" That minister at his side shook his head. He passed down the row until all the ministers had been thus interrogated and all answered alike. "My friends," said Mr. Ingersoll, "what did I tell you? I have proved to you that there is not a believer here, because Christ said, 'These signs shall follow them that believe,' and these men say they do not believe the signs shall now follow."

It would have been somewhat embarrassing, if the story is true, had there been one of the Latter Day Saint ministers there. For when he reached that minister, that minister would have nodded, and he doubtless would have discomfited Mr. Ingersoll, to some extent at least. And I am glad indeed that as a people we believe these signs shall follow; that they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover. Unfortunately for the objector, Christ gives no limitation either as to time, distance, or people. The only limitation is that it must be a believer. It makes no difference what nation that believer may be found in; if he be a true believer, the promise of Christ, and that after he was resurrected from the dead and all power given to him, is that they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover. Why, it is not worth while to comment further upon this.

Acts 9: 17, 18. Ananias goes in and puts his hands on Saul and tells him concerning the Christ that appeared unto him, that he "hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost." And it is further recorded directly in harmony therewith that he received his sight forthwith. Now, I have not a doubt in my mind that had God seen fit so to do he could have healed that man in harmony with his prayer. And it is possible, quite probable, I think, that the man was lying there upon that bed not alone praying, but fasting, and doubtless asking God that he might receive his sight again. But God did not see fit to restore his sight in that way, but sent his heavenly messenger to appear unto Ananias and tell him to go and show himself unto Saul in that house, and going unto that house he found Saul languishing upon his bed and put his hands upon him and said, "The Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost." And his sight was given unto him forthwith. Why, when you come to turn the sacred pages you will find the healing of the sick recorded many, many more times than I have time to call your attention to.

Luke 4: 40: It is said that they brought their sick there, sick with divers diseases, and the recorder says that Jesus laid his hands on everyone of them and healed them. "The works that I do shall ye do also." And there is a scripture somewhere, I am quite sure it is there, or language to this effect, I may not get it exactly right, As ye have seen me do, do ye also, or do ye likewise. But the former thought is entirely sufficient, "The works that I do shall ye do also."

James 5: 14: "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord."

I had a public discussion with a man in the city of Melbourne some years ago; the last time I was over there. We discussed the question of officers in the church. And I said if that man were going to be consistent with himself, the thing to do was to declare that he did not believe in a single living officer. We were discussing the question as to apostles and prophets. And he said, "We have them." I was somewhat startled; I confess that. I demanded who they were, and whom do you think he named? Peter, James, John, Bartholomew, and the rest!

"Well," I said, "they are dead. And if dead apostles and prophets are all that are necessary for my friend here, by the same law of logic, dead elders and dead deacons (the only two officers he believed in), are all right for his church." And do you know, in the very next speech that man got up and admitted that he did not believe there was necessity for any officers at all! And I said, "Now, what is my friend going to do? For instance, he claims to believe in the Bible, and he says, Where it speaks we speak; where it is silent, we are silent. Now, it speaks in James 5: 14 and says, Is there any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church and let them anoint him with oil and pray over him; and the prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord will raise him up."

No man can do this. It is not within the province or the power of any man to raise another up. God will do that. It has been demanded of me time and time again: "Show us your power. Raise your sick." And I have said, "We make no such claim. It is God who does that."

"Now," I said, "my brother here has discredited even his elders and deacons. What is he going to do? If there is any sick in his church is he going to send for the elders and will they anoint them with oil and pray over them, and shall the prayer of faith save them and the Lord raise them up? Rather than to have admitted that he did not believe there was necessity for any officers at all, he should have admitted that it is necessary to have all of the officers in the church, as taught by Jesus Christ, in our day."

In Acts 19: 11 we are told that God wrought special miracles by the hands of Paul; that he sent handkerchiefs and aprons from his body, and by the use of these, people were healed. But these were special miracles, the recorder says. And I am just as firm in my faith that if God wishes to use one of his ministry to-day, and through him to perform special miracles, that that minister can bless handkerchiefs and send them and they will heal. Why, the people thought even the shadow of Peter would heal their sick, they had such wonderful faith in him after seeing the miracles he performed. The fact of the matter is that the gospel is connected with miracle, and miracle is connected with the gospel.

A man, the last one with whom I had a debate, said: "I am of the opinion that the day of miracles is past." And he used this argument. "In creation, miracle produced, then came the law of procreation. So in the organic structure of the church miracle produced, and after the production, then came the law of procreation, and hence we do away with apostles and prophets because they were the miracle working body, and when miracles ceased we are living under the law of procreation and no longer need apostles and prophets."

I said, "Behold that oak tree as you look out of the window there. If you could have seen an oak tree growing in the Garden of Eden and set it side by side with this, it doubtless would have been an exact counterpart. And the law of procreation produces an exact likeness of the creation which he calls miracle. And he may talk till doomsday and he can not do away with the law of procreation being a miracle in itself. The law of procreation is just as much a miracle to-day as was the law of creation in Eden." And the man never said one word about apostles and prophets being done away with after that.

ORDINATION TO THE MINISTRY.

If you turn to Acts 13: 3; 6: 6; 1 Timothy 5: 22; 2 Timothy 1: 6; 1 Corinthians 7: 17, you will find this plainly taught. No man has the right to ordain another man only as that man be called of God. We read in Hebrews 5: 4, "And no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron." Aaron was called by the inspiration of God speaking to his prophet, Moses, and telling him to set his brother, Aaron, aside. It is not worth while to make very much argument upon this, for the Christian world generally believes in laying on of hands to ordain men.

And here is where we come the nearest to unity, in the laying on of hands for ordaining men to the ministry. In all the other three, the blessing of children, the healing of the sick, and the confirming, we are at a difference with most. Some believe in the laying on of hands to confirm; the Catholic Church, the Church of England, the Lutheran Church [have since been told that the Lutherans do not lay on hands to confirm. J. W. W.], and possibly some others. But so far as my knowledge goes with reference even to these, not a single one of them lay hands on with the idea of the Holy Ghost coming as a result of being thus set apart. They may; I am not sure. But I do not care to discuss it, preferring the rather to discuss the question affirmatively. But I am glad to know that the churches generally believe in the laying on of hands to ordain men to the ministry.

CONFIRMATION AND THE HOLY GHOST.

Now we turn to the confirmation. I want to call your attention to a very important fact just here. Jesus counseled his men to tarry in Jerusalem, and he led them out so far as to Bethany, which is some distance southeast of Jerusalem. There he was wont to go in life, for it seems to have been the only place where he found a home. He loved Mary and Martha and Lazarus, and they gave him an abiding place, and it was the last place to which he went on this earth before making his ascension. He took the eleven men with him, his apostles. And he raised his hands and blessed them. (Luke 24: 50.) Luke said he touched the babies with his hand when he blessed them. And I think that he felt that when he said that Jesus Christ raised his hands and blessed them, the reader would understand necessarily that he contacted these men with his hands. And so I think Jesus Christ laid his hands on them.

And he told them, It is necessary for me to go away. But I will not leave you comfortless. I will send unto you another comforter. "Howbeit when he the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth."

Let me use a figure here. Some day, I know not how long hence, and I am not very much concerned, so far as that goes, some one will follow this body to its last resting place. Loved ones and friends doubtless will stand around the open tomb. Why? Why follow this body? Why lay it in the cold, cold ground? Why cover it over? It is because it is dead. Why is it dead? It is because the spirit has taken its departure. Where the spirit is not, life does not exist.

Christ acted as the great life-giving force, the spirit of the church, while he was with them. He was going away now to sit on the right hand of his Father, and he said, Go to Jerusalem. And he said, Tarry there until ye be endued with power from on high. Immediately he withdrew himself the church was in a condition of suspended animation, and hence had no power of volition until the animation was returned. And when that life-giving force, in harmony with the promise, returned to the church, then it was reanimated.

Ten days they waited, doing only the work concerning the calling of another man, and were fasting and praying when the day of Pentecost was ushered in. And there came into that room the sound as of a mighty rushing wind, and cloven tongues like as of fire sat upon each of them and they arose, these unlearned Galileans, and began to speak with other tongues as the Spirit of God gave them utterance. Life—force—had returned to the church. It was reinvigorated, and the man who fifty days before had been such a moral coward that three times he had denied the Lord and Christ, now stands up and faces the multitude. And when they said, These men are full of new wine, Peter said, They are not drunken, as you suppose, and then preached to the assembly a sermon filled with the power of God, by the authority of God.

Finally they cried out, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" And Peter said unto them, "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call."

Down through the centuries comes that promise that inasmuch as you yield obedience to the mandates of God the Holy Spirit will come with its comforting influence, its comforting power. I feel there is a necessity for the quickening power. I feel there is necessity for the power of the Holy Spirit to-day in the church, without which the church is dead. And may it not be true that we are getting into a sleepy, lethargic condition to-day as a church, disregarding the things of God, and the Holy Spirit is being withdrawn?

Now we come to the fact of one Philip preaching to people in Samaria, and when they believed his preaching, beholding the miracles that he did, they were baptized, both men and women. Turning to Acts 8: 14-20:

When the apostles which were at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them

Peter and John. Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghost: (for as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus.) Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost. And when Simon [the man who prior to his baptism had been a sorcerer] saw that through laying on of the apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost. But Peter said unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money.

AUTHORITY NECESSARY.

But here is the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost. I have already cited the fact of Ananias putting his hands on Paul. I turn now in the history of Paul to the nineteenth chapter of Acts:

Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus; and finding certain disciples, he said unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost. And he said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized?

Listen to the language of Jesus to Nicodemus, "Verily, verily I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he can not enter into the kingdom of God." And when Paul said unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? they said, Unto John's baptism. A great many people have falsely concluded that John's baptism was not Christian, and hence these people had to be baptized by Christian baptism. But if John's baptism was not Christian, how do you account for the fact that Christ was baptized by John's baptism?

Evidently these people had been baptized by somebody who had run without tidings, and did not have the authority to baptize them. And Paul or somebody else baptized them all over again. And the recorder says that when Paul had laid his hands on them (after they had been baptized over again by somebody having authority to do it), they received the Holy Ghost and began to speak in tongues and to prophesy.

It requires authority to do anything. I could not go and sit in the chair in the White House to-day and occupy in lieu of Mr. Wilson, because I have not the authority to do it. There is not a man in the land, though he may know more than Mr. Wilson, or may be a better politician (though I doubt it), who can go and occupy there without the authority to do it.

God's servants must have authority to do things. Man, to have that authority, must receive it from God. Here is the case. These men had been baptized by water, thought they were disciples, and shook hands with Brother Paul. Paul asked, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" And they answered, "We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost." If we preach water baptism unto the people and say nothing about the Holy Ghost, what are they to do? They will have to be baptized over again. Because the man that preaches without the baptism of the Holy Spirit has no authority from God, or he will preach the baptism of the Holy Spirit. It requires authority. Christ taught the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost.

---

The Staff

EDITED BY AUDENTIA ANDERSON.

Anthem Books, Special Music and Service.

Now that the cooler weather is here, and preparations for the winter festivals are receiving thought and attention, we find renewed activities along musical lines. Many local choirs are already using the new anthem books, and others are ordering theirs, awakening to a realization of the fact that they will be left behind in the general movement forward, if they do not get busy now.

Here is a suggestion we would urge for the consideration of every choir leader. Arrange to have regular, special song services every month this winter! We mean by this, to arrange a regular Sunday evening each month, when the choir may give thirty minutes, at least, of special musical numbers. Organ music, a solo, a duet or quartet, and two or three especially good chorus numbers will make up a very attractive service. Such service rendered regularly, and well advertised, will fill your church to overflowing.

Secure the cooperation of your branch president; get him to provide the best speaker possible. The same speaker, giving a series of sermons on timely topics, would prove an attraction. Begin your service, say at half past seven. Thus the preacher could begin at eight o'clock, and the whole program prove pleasant and profitable.

So many inquiries have come to us in regard to the new anthem books, that we take this opportunity to again announce concerning them. They may be obtained by addressing Brother Albert N. Hoxie, jr., 3119 North Sixteenth Street, North Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, inclosing seventy-five cents for each copy desired. He will also provide copies of Gaul's "Holy City" at fifty cents per copy, transportation to be paid by the purchaser.

This cantata, as has been announced previously, will be rendered during next conference, at Independence, by the big 1914 choir. Boost for it; everyone!

For the benefit of anyone who may be conducting a young people's choir or chorus, attention is called to "The Junior Choir," published by the Lorenz Company, Dayton, Ohio. It contains forty anthems, easy of execution, and adaptable to the needs of young voices.

In the little poem by Longfellow, which appears this month, is contained a lesson, very, very valuable to us as choir workers. Musicians, whether justly or otherwise, have obtained an undesirable reputation for crankiness—eccentricities, jealousies, touchiness, and general oddities along that line. But we believe that Latter Day Saint singers and musicians can prove to the world that they are innocent of this charge.

We have been in close touch with several large choirs of the church, and we believe the members are broad-minded, quick to commend worthy effort in others, willing to concede merit, generous in their praise, and anxious to render all the help they can to others. We have been intimately connected with one choir for the last three or four years, and we can truthfully say that if there is any jealousy, envy, or hard feeling among the members of that choir, we have yet to see the first trace of it.

This is as it should be. Our church is large enough, its services diversified and important enough, and the opportunities—nay demands, for keeping busy musically great and insistent enough to make room for every good singer it can possibly find.

Why should any be jealous of another's talents? God gave and is alone responsible for the gift; the recipient, however, is responsible for the use he makes of that gift—and surely God never intended it to be used in pride, or haughtiness, or in a spirit of self-seeking or self-vaunting.

May we emphasize Longfellow's thought, "I see no best in kind, but in degree; I gave a various gift to each, to charm, to strengthen and to teach."

AUDENTIA ANDERSON.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 1300 West Electric Street.

---

Boosters.

"I, for one, enjoy the Staff as published in the HERALD, and receive much good from it. I am interested in the advancement of our choirs."—F. E. C., Iowa.

"We are almost always represented at General Conference. I would be glad if several more could attend next year. I surely enjoyed the music at Lamoni last April."—Mrs. W. H. D., Kansas.

"Our choirs seems to have taken on new life."—J. A., Colorado.

"I don't know of anything I have been much more interested in than the Conference Choir, and hope to join it again next spring. . . . My best wishes for your success in the 'big movement,' in which we are all interested."—L. F., Missouri.

"Say! You should have heard our choir sing a week ago last Sunday at the rally and reunion services! They were certainly a revelation to me. . . . Have ordered fifteen anthem books and hope to start the 'Holy City' ere long."—P. N. C., Nebraska.

"I shall look forward to a splendid success in our efforts at Independence at our next conference."—T. J. E., Missouri.

"Permit me to say that the Staff in my judgment, so far, is a very pleasing feature of the HERALD, and I think will prove to have a refining and elevating effect among the Saints. It emphasizes, in a way that the HERALD would not otherwise be able to do, the need, the beauty, and the inspiration of music in the church, and upon the lives of our people, both young and old."—J. F. G., Iowa.

"Evidently everything is moving along well in the music department for our readers."—E. A. S., Iowa.

"I trust you will be greatly encouraged in this Staff work. You have made a good start, and we all have confidence in your judgment and ability to conduct the work. I am sure this department will be a great help to the church—in fact, we should have had it years ago; but then, we go, and grow, slowly."—H. E. M., Kentucky.

"If I am any judge as to the success of a good reunion, this one was made a success by the assistance of the sweet singers of Israel. The singing inspired the large audiences as well as the preachers. . . . I am glad to see the effort that is being put forth in music and song; for no one knows better how to value a good song service than the minister who stands behind the sacred desk. May those who labor in this department of God's work be blessed as they bless others."—J. F. C., Illinois.

"I trust this department will prove that we have a goodly number who are responsive along musical lines, who will, in time, materially aid this part of the work of the church."—A. B. P., Massachusetts.

Little Hints from Sister Nellie Martin.

How I managed a lazy little girl who hated to practice her lesson:

I placed a workbasket on my table near the piano. In it were seven packages. In one was a tiny doll; in another a stick of candy; another held six peanuts; another, a piece of bright sateen for her doll's dress; a cooky was in another, etc.

I said: "Now, Helen, play number fourteen over five times, and I'll let you draw a package from the basket." As she complied and drew, the number corresponding to the number on the package was stricken from the list.

"Now play this exercise, seven times, and you may draw two numbers!"

This plan worked wonderfully well.

How I managed a proud but ill-mannered little girl who would not count:

"Now, Margaret, let us play you are the teacher for a while. Here is a long skirt for you to put on; and, remember, the nicer you act to me, the nicer I will be!"

She counts steadily, while I play several times, always treating her with the utmost dignity and showing her great respect.

"Why do you have me play these notes more quickly than those?" I asked her.

"Because they are sixteenth notes," she answered.

Then I'd manage to say or do something a little rude, catching myself up short, saying, "I beg your pardon; if I talk that way, I will lose your respect."

She took the lesson home and treated me afterwards with more courtesy.

News Items.

SAINT LOUIS.

A short time since choir members, instead of meeting at the church where we usually assemble for practice, met at the home of our pastor, Elder T. J. Elliott, (who is incidentally a choir member). After a short, sharp practice of several anthems, the evening was given over to the "social" feature. Everybody reports a very enjoyable time. We were also favored with a couple of vocal selections by Mrs. J. O. Isaacs. Don't you think we should have more of these enlivening socials?

Vacation time is over, and we are getting back to our fall and winter choir work. We are now working on the Root-Bradbury cantata, "Daniel," which we hope to have ready for rendition some time during early November. Then comes our Christmas music.

We were glad to have General Director Hoxie call on us the other Thursday evening, and give us an interesting and encouraging talk along musical lines, choir features, etc. We hope to start Gaul's "Holy City" about the time of his next visit.

E. C. B.

DENVER.

We learn that the choir workers in this city have received an impetus since the coming to them of Brother Arthur Mills. He meets with them at rehearsals, and has proven a great help and encouragement to their faithful chorister, Sister J. H. Anthony.

CENTRAL KANSAS CITY.

Choir work here is in charge of Brother Orville James, and is receiving much commendation. They are using the new anthem books. Soon the special services in charge of Brethren F. A. Smith and J. W. Rushton will begin, at which time the choir will assist very materially. Success to you, Brother O. L!

LAMONI.

A two weeks' revival service was held in Lamoni, from October 26 to November 9. A very attractive feature of this revival service was the splendid music furnished by the local choir under the leadership of Sister May Skinner. An orchestra of young people, organized by Brother Joseph Anthony, also did splendid service in rendering special music. Good music is a great help in securing proper spiritual atmosphere for meetings of this kind.

REPORTER.

INDEPENDENCE.

The Children's Chorus has resumed its rehearsals, seventy children between the ages of eight and fourteen responded to the first call. They begin work upon a very beautiful Christmas service, which will be given on Christmas Eve, providing present plans materialize.

A Young People's Chorus has been organized, which will spend in song the hour preceding the regular Religio services. This chorus is under the joint leadership of Sister Anderson and Brother Charles Eaton, the latter being the Religio chorister. Later in the winter, some work for public appearance will be taken up if the interest and attendance justify.

The Singers.

No individual poets were intended.
God sent his Singers upon earth
With songs of sadness and of mirth,
That they might touch the hearts of men,
And bring them back to heaven again.

The first, a youth with soul of fire,
Held in his hand a golden lyre;
Through groves he wandered, and by streams,
Playing the music of our dreams.

The second, with a bearded face,
Stood singing in the market-place,
And stirred with accents deep and loud
The hearts of all the listening crowd.

A gray old man, the third and last,
Sang in cathedrals dim and vast,
While the majestic organ rolled
Conitron from its mouths of gold,

And those who heard the Singers three Disputed which the best might be;
For still their music seemed to start
Discordant echoes in each heart.

But the great Master said, "I see
No best in kind, but in degree;
I gave a various gift to each,
To charm, to strengthen, and to teach.

"These are the three great chords of might,
And he whose ear is tuned aright
Will hear no discord in the three,
But the most perfect harmony."

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. Evelyn Burgess, vice president, 5920 Etzel Avenue, Saint Louis, Missouri.
Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. Pearl Gardner, treasurer, 707 South Fuller Street, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, West Walnut Street, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.
Mrs. M. Walker, honorary member, Lamoni, Iowa.

Superintendents of Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Lamoni, Iowa.
Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, Lamoni, Iowa.
Eugenics Department, Mrs. Jennie Studley.
Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.
Young Woman's Department, Mrs. Pearl Gardner, 707 South Fuller Street, Independence, Missouri.
Sewing and Aid Department, Mrs. Minnie B. Nicholson, Lamoni, Iowa.

All money for the Auxiliary, including subscriptions for leaflets, should be sent to the treasurer, address as above. Money raised for the Children's Home by local societies or by scattered members working for the society should also be sent to the Woman's Auxiliary treasurer.

Woman's Auxiliary.

(Home and Child Welfare Department.)

DECEMBER READING—MONTESSORI SCHOOLS.

THE WIDENING CIRCLE.

"The thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."

The educational principles and theories promulgated by Doctor Maria Montessori of Rome are creating a deep interest in almost all parts of the world. They have been the theme of numerous press articles and lectures, and remote nations have sent competent investigators to obtain accurate information in regard to them. Among these are the Minister of Education from New Zealand and the Supervisor of Education, sent by the government of New South Wales. The governments of Switzerland and Australia have founded schools to carry out the teachings of this method, as also have the municipalities of London, Rome, Stockholm, and Johannesburg. In the Argentine Republic, in England, Paris, India, Syria, and Japan are Montessori schools. A Montessori Society has been formed in England for the spread of the method, and in the United States a Montessori Educational Association has been organized to promote and develop education based upon the principles "discovered" by Doctor Montessori. Letters of inquiry from all parts of the world pour in daily upon the Doctress, and one secretary is kept busy interviewing the visitors who come seeking information.

At present, the only authorized training course for teachers of this method is that in Rome which is under the personal supervision of Doctor Montessori. The present class is largely composed of teachers from the United States, nearly every state being represented. One American student is from the Philippine Islands, where she is the Government Supervisor of Manual Training and Kindergarten Work; another is from Panama; and still another is from Canada. The Delineator for December furnishes a list of more than sixty American teachers who have already received certificates from this training school, the majority of whom are conducting schools in this country.

WHAT VISITORS TO ROME FIND.

Looking in upon a Montessori school, one sees what a visitor has described as "a great white room with flooding sunlight and tiny waiting chairs and tables," connected with a garden by an arched doorway "that makes room and garden melt into one fragrant, peaceful whole."

From another visitor we have the following more extended description: "Imagine thirty children turned loose, absolutely loose, in a big, airy room, furnished with little chairs and tables, light enough for the little ones to handle, with room outdoors close at hand, where the children may run and play when they feel like it. Imagine a quiet, gentle, alert, nearly always silent superintendent, to whom all those little self-teachers turn for advice in their educational career; a piano in one corner of the room, to the music of which once in a while those children who feel like it dance and play. There are soft rugs on the floor, on which those children who feel tired may lie down and rest whenever they like. On the walls there are pleasant pictures of subjects suitable for little children. There are window boxes of plants, tended by the little pupils; there are in one corner some little wash stands with small bowls and pitchers where the children wash their own faces and hands, whenever they are dirtied by their work or play. In fact, the room and its furnishings are exactly like what every mother would like to give her own children in her own home. The Casa dei Bambini is truly a "Children's Home"—a place for self-reliant work and contented play. Such a home centers and holds within its walls the child's every interest, and how completely and happily children are at home in it."

This description is taken from the Montessori Manual, written by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. She is also the author of A Montessori Mother, and, in this book, she thus describes her first visit to one of the Montessori schools in Rome: "My first glimpse was of a gathering of about twenty-five children, so young that several of them looked like real babies to me. I found afterwards that the youngest was just under three, and the oldest just over six. They were scattered about over a large, high-ceilinged, airy room, furnished with tiny, lightly-framed tables and chairs which, however, by no means filled the floor. There were big tracts of open space, where some of the children knelt or sat on light rugs. One was lying on his back kicking his feet in the air. A low, cheerful hum of conversation filled the air. . . . Many of the children, absorbed in various queer-looking tasks, did not even glance up as we entered. Others, apparently resting in the intervals between games, looked over across the room at us, smiled welcomingly as I would at a visitor entering my house, and a little group near us ran up with outstretched hands, saying with a pleasant accent of good-breeding, 'Good-morning! Good-morning!' They then instantly went off about their own affairs which were evidently of absorbing interest, for after that, except for an occasional friendly look or smile, or a momentary halt by my side to show me something, none of the little scholars paid the least attention to me."

Miss Ellen Yale Stevens, author of A Guide to the Montessori Method, suggests the following as typical of a Montessori schoolroom: "The furnishings of the room are true to the child's scale of dimensions. The tables are low, broad, light, so they can be carried about, yet firm and solid. The chairs are also low, comfortable, and easy to move. The material is placed about the room in cases which are within the reach of childish fingers. The large windows are so near the floor that the children can look out freely. The wash-stands, lavatories and shelves or hooks for wearing apparel and towels are all so arranged that they can be used by each child without strain. Little squares of felt, rolled up and kept in corners of the room, can be quickly shaken out and placed on the floor by any child. The blackboards are low, the chalk and erasers are all within reach. Plants and flowers are arranged about the room so that the children can take care of them. If there is a garden, it is easily accessible, and each child has his own bed to care for as he chooses, and animals to love and tend. The rest-room with its easy hammocks, easy chairs, picture books and playthings is to be freely used."

Miss Stevens says: "I arrived in a school in Rome one morning before the teacher or her assistant. The rooms were open and several of the children who were there early were busily engaged in wiping off chairs, tables, window-ledges, and the tops of shelves; watering the plants, and caring for the bird cages; and the entrance of the teacher caused no interruption, so absorbed were they in their work. This training in neatness, order and cleanliness is extended to the children themselves. The universal custom of wearing aprons seems to me excellent from a hygienic standpoint, as they are brought clean from home, kept in the schoolhouse, and put on for the same reason that the nurse or doctor in a hospital puts on his gown, to protect the material. They add also to the neat, attractive appearance of the children. In most of the schools, the boys wear aprons of one color and cut and the girls of another. . . .

"The children love the feeling of absolute cleanliness. They are at once taught the proper use of soap and water, and are made to realize how much keener the tactile sense is when the hands are clean, and so take pleasure in keeping them in good condition. The fineness of touch thus developed makes them sensitive to the least dust. One day the children of a certain school came back from their recess in the garden and took their places in their usual seats. One little girl thought she felt some dust, which was not visible to the eye, on her table top. So she rose quietly, went to the closet for a dust cloth, and without a word wiped off, not only her own table, but all the others."

THE CHILDREN AT LUNCHEON.

Visitors to Montessori schools are greatly impressed by what they witness at the luncheon hour. The children, as a rule, busy themselves happily with the different parts of the apparatus most of the morning. Towards noon, preparations for luncheon begin. The children take turns doing this work, four or five being charged every day with the responsibility of setting the tables, bringing in the soup tureens, and serving their little mates. Doctor Montessori writes of this: "Anyone who has watched them setting the tables must have passed from one surprise to another. Little four-year-old waiters take the knives and forks and spoons and distribute them to the different places; they carry trays holding as many as five water glasses, and finally they go from table to table carrying tureens full of hot soup. Not a mistake is made, not a glass is broken, not a drop is spilled. All during the meal, unobtrusive little waiters watch the tables assiduously; not a child empties his soup plate without being offered more; if he is ready for the next course, a waiter briskly carries off his soup plate. Not a child is forced to ask for more soup, or to announce that he has finished.

"Remembering the usual condition of four-year-old children, who cry, who break whatever they touch, who need to be waited on, everyone is deeply moved by the sight I have just described, which evidently results from the development of energies deeply latent in the human soul. I have often seen spectators moved to tears at this banquet of the little ones."

Mrs. Fisher tells us that the little waitresses have their own meal first, it being a principle of the Montessori school that the children shall be comfortable while doing their work. She continues: "I held my breath to see four little waitresses enter the room, each carrying a big tureen full of hot soup. I would not have trusted a child of that age to carry a glass of water across a room. The little girls advanced slowly, their eyes fixed on the contents of their tureens, their attention so concentrated on their all-important enterprise that they seemed entirely oblivious of the outer world. A fly lighted on the nose of one of these solemnly absorbed babies. She twisted the tip of that feature, making the most grotesque grimaces in her effort to dislodge the tickling intruder, but not until she had reached the table and set down her sacred tureen in safety did she reach her hand to her face. I revised on the instant all my fixed convictions about the innate heedlessness and lack of self-control of early childhood; especially as she turned at once to her task of ladling out the soup into the plates of the children at her table, a feat which she accomplished as deftly as any adult could have done."

HOW ARE THESE MARVELS ACCOMPLISHED?

This is the question that rises in the minds of those who watch for the first time the children of a Montessori school. The same question presents itself when first we read of the wonderful development of those children.

Miss Carolyn Sherwin Bailey, who has been in Rome observing the children trained under the personal direction of Doctor Montessori, writes in the Delimitator for our enlightenment in answer to this question. She tells of a child of three years, "fat and good, but with little bent limbs, and a tired out spine, and clumsy, fumbling fingers." When this child had been in the school but a few months, the change in her was so great that the mother came asking how it had been wrought. She said of her little one, "She dresses the younger bambino at home, and buttons her own shoes. She no longer stumbles all day long, but stands well on her feet. She helps me to lay the evening meal and carries a dish of soup, full, to the place of her father. I do not understand it."

The explanation of the change was that she had received the benefit of those definite physical exercises planned by the scientific mind of Doctor Montessori. To the child it had come in the guise of most absorbing play of her own choosing, but the effect had been to cause her to grow straight, to find muscle-freedom and control by body-training.

The character of these exercises will be explained in a future reading.

The central idea of the Montessori system is "a full recognition of the fact that no human being is educated by anyone else. He must do it himself or it is never done. The learner must do his own learning, and this granted, it follows naturally that the less he is interfered with by arbitrary restraint and vexatious, unnecessary rules, the more quickly, easily, and spontaneously he will learn. . . . All growth must come from voluntary action of the child himself."

The purpose of the system is "first, to stimulate the little child's natural desire to act and learn through action; second, to provide him with action which shall give him a better control of his own body and will-power; and third, which shall lead him naturally from a simple action to a more difficult one."

Miss Bailey's stories give us glimpses of the process by which the children of the Montessori school develop. In one of her word pictures, we see children of four and over fingering with intelligent, trained skill the geometric forms—circles, triangles, squares—that they are learning to recognize through the "eyes in their fingers," which will help them "to see with the mind's eye the form that makes the beauty of our world." One little girl in her corner, after running her forefinger with the greatest delicacy of touch a dozen times around a circle, looks up with a new light in her eyes, darts out into the garden and walks slowly around the fountain, running her finger around its deep basin. Then calling to the directress, she says, "The fountain is a circle! I can see a pebble that is a circle, too! I see many circles!" So the children learn through the exercise of the senses.

Another child sits in a little chair for a time quiet, reflective. Her lips move. Her fingers trace signs in the air and on the table before her. With a sudden impulse she runs to the blackboard, seizes a piece of chalk and writes, Ma-ma! Ma-ma! Joyously she writes the word many times while other children crowd around with sympathetic interest.

This ability to write was not achieved suddenly. It was the result of a system of sense-training in which the child had at all times been free to discover things for herself as she used the devices found in the school. "The teacher, under this system, is the scientific, observing supervisor of this mental 'playground' where the children acquire intellectual vigor, independence, and initiative as spontaneously, joyfully, and tirelessly as they acquire physical independence and vigor by physical play." This teacher is trained to make whatever explanations are necessary, as brief as possible, giving just the ray of light that the opening mind of the child is ready to receive.

The Montessori method is in accord with the principles advocated by Mr. Burbank in his Training of the Human Plant, where he urges that young children should not be confined in the schoolroom in the early years, that they should be permitted to develop strong bodies, that they be given much sunshine and love, that they spend their time, not idly, but in cheerful occupation.

The Montessori method meets these demands of child-development.

CALLIE B. STEBBINS.
CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE FOURTH THURSDAY IN NOVEMBER.

For our Sunday schools, and the Religio Society; for all the auxiliary departments, including the Prayer Union, that each may be blessed in its work for the general uplift.

Lesson, Hebrews 6: 10-12.

Memory text, 1 John 4: 8.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

KENO, OREGON, October 30, 1913.

To the Prayer Union and the Church: I ask the prayers of all Saints in my behalf. I am the mother of five children and am very desirous that I may live and be able to raise my children. May God grant it.

Your sister in Christ,

MRS. BERTHA HOWELL.

IDALIA, COLORADO, October 29, 1913.

Dear Sister Salyards: Will the Saints of the Prayer Union remember me in prayer that I may be healed of asthma and kidney trouble. I have been administered to several times, but receive only temporary relief. I have two little girls, and my prayer is that I may live to raise them. Pray for my husband that he may be led to join the church.

Praying that I may live to be worthy of God's blessing,

Your sister in Christ,

MRS. GRACE ROGERS.

Sister C. E. Laurence writes from Thomson, Illinois, asking the Saints to pray for her. She is old and much afflicted in body, and is one of those isolated ones who has not access to administration at the hands of elders of the church. In times past she has been healed through administration and still lives to praise the name of the Lord. May comfort be given her from on high and may a bright hope cheer her declining days.

Letter Department

Little Journeys in Foreign Lands.

To those who have experienced sailing upon a large steamship, the sea like a river, just breeze enough to keep you cool, the charm of those four days on the Mediterranean will be understood—a never to be forgotten experience.

About nine o'clock the first evening, we passed Stromboli. At frequent intervals the lava would rise and overflow, its cherry color showing clear against the dark background. What a strange country we were traveling through. Every day we had watched the smoke rising from Vesuvius, but here was the fire in Stromboli. How often during the past Etna, Vesuvius, and Stromboli had spread terror and death over the land. There must be subterranean connection between them. And at times the sea seems to break through, when most mighty convulsions of nature occur.

ROMANISH INQUISITION, SUPERSTITION, AND DECEPTION.

If hell is beneath, and the Catholic doctrine of literal fire is true, then this volcanic country is handy for the church. Strange that those emissaries of the Devil, called "Holy Inquisitors," never thought to torture their victims by throwing them alive into one of the volcanoes (hell). Possibly their cowardly hearts feared lest they slip and share the same fate. It is a pity they didn't, for with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again, certainly applies to those priests and popes who inspired these fiendish tortures. What awful things have been done in the name of the Man of Galilee!

After visiting Rome, I am convinced that Catholicism is the greatest farce on earth. If anything more was needed to drive respect for that institution from my mind I found it here in Jerusalem. One needs to observe its nunneries for a few days, visit its holy (?) sites, listen to the weird tales they tell, note the lack of sincerity everywhere, and the job is done, unless you are an ignorant, superstitious fanatic.

Here is a sample: The Convent of the Holy Cross is near by. They tell you that after the incestuous conduct of Lot, Abraham met him and reproved him for his sin, saying it could only be pardoned if he would plant three nails on a hill shown to him, water them from the Jordan and not refuse any request for a drink. Well, he planted the nails and was toiling up the mountain with the water skin on his back when the Devil met him and craved a drink. He must have been very hot and thirsty, for he drained the skin. Poor Lot had to return to the Jordan for more water. The Devil continued to meet him and drain the water skin. He must have had a stomach like a camel. One day Lot found the Devil asleep and stole past him. The precious nails received their wetting in Jordan water. Miracle of miracles! The nails sprouted and grew into a big tree.

Solomon, requiring a massive timber for his temple, cut it down, but it was too short. They set it upon a stone, then it was too long. So they cursed it and threw it away. When the Jews crucified Christ, they remembered the accursed tree, split it up and nailed him upon it. If you don't believe it, they will show the hole in the ground where the tree came from; if you are a good Catholic you will kneel down and kiss the hole.

Then they tell you that the mother of Constantine visited the holy places in the third century; while listening to a sermon by a priest she looked over her shoulder and saw three crosses in a cave. Not knowing which was the true cross, they caused a sick man to touch them; when he put his hand on the true cross, he was immediately healed. If you don't believe it, come over some day and I will show you the church and you can sit down in Saint Helena's seat, look over your shoulder, and the cave is there.

In Rome they show you the wood of the cross. In Milan they do the same, and in several other places it is on exhibition. So how can you doubt, oh ye of little faith! You must have relics, for there is money in showing them to superstitious pilgrims.

A PLEASANT VOYAGE.

Well, I started on a sea voyage and brought up amidst the superstitious relics of Rome. That trip was great! Every morning I would quietly lie and watch the boat. No, it was not pitching or rolling—another perfect day, and no sickness. No wonder I felt to thank God for his goodness to me.

What a time we had trying to solve that German riddle—the menu card. The last night they served our dessert with little flags representing the different nationalities on board. They had spotted us as Americans, and the miniature Stars and Stripes looked good to us.

ALEXANDRIA.

The long, low, sandy coast of Africa was uninteresting, but Alexandria had a history. Founded by Alexander the Great, more than three centuries before Christ, it has survived the wreck of ages and stands to-day, a modern city by the sea. One could enjoy those sea breezes and the beautiful scene for a long time. No wonder it is becoming popular as a resort. The harbor is protected by a splendid breakwater and the wharves are commodious.

The hand of England was seen in the orderly arrangement everywhere. We were glad of that, for the porters were a tough looking crowd. They wore garments resembling our nightdresses; they were white, black, blue, red, striped, and sashed. Some, like the historic coat of Joseph, were of many colors. The fez and turban completed the outfit. Their brown, bare feet and legs exhibited great muscular strength.

What a babel of voices! Are they angry, will they fight? were questions we asked; but no, it's the fellahinian way. What enormous loads they carried on their backs! We watched the animated scene until our agent arrived and piloted us, luggage and all, through the customs to our hotel, where we were made comfortable.

Our long voyage was over, and not a moment of sickness. My faith was increasing in the wonderful promise made, that I should make the journey to my mission without mal de mer. Eleven days at sea, and only one remaining before us. Surely the Lord is not slack concerning his promises.

When Alexander the Great died at Babylon his body was placed in a golden coffin and brought to this city, where it was buried in the royal cemetery. They claim that his body still rests there.

Near the British consulate once stood the great library, at one time containing over nine hundred thousand scrolls. This was the center of scientific learning, where Euclid discussed those problems that puzzle the brain of youths.

To this city came Mark with the gospel. Here he was martyred and buried, in the year 63 A. D.

We visited Pompey's Pillar, a well-preserved monument of red granite, eighty-eight feet high, and about nine feet in diameter, supposed to mark the tomb of Pompey the Great. There are two large sphinxes of red granite, evidently marking what was once the entrance to the plot.

CATACOMBS AND BUILDERS.

Leaving there we entered the great catacombs of ancient Alexandria. We descended one hundred and nineteen steps. The tombs are arranged in several stories, one below the other, reached by passageways and bridges, all lighted by electricity. In the center was a shaft leading to all the stories. All around are rooms filled with niches and sarcophagi. We entered one room supported by four pillars, having three platforms or tables, where banquets were held in honor of the dead. Far below, was the most elaborate room of all. Inside are the statues of the man and his wife carved from the limestone. There are serpents, and crowns, and shields, and heads. The sarcophagi are hewn out of the solid rock, with two rows of tombs, ninety-one in all. Each contains three mummies, many of them more. We could see the obituary notices, in red paint. Several places were shown us containing camels, horses, etc. The tomb of the sacred cow and the ibis were there.

Who were these people so carefully laid away? We could not tell, neither when it had all occurred. Their care in preserving the body indicated a belief in a future life, and the resurrection of the dead. Upon no other hypothesis could I explain their elaborate care. Covered for centuries from the ruthless hands of men, they were discovered in 1900, and now their contents are found in every land for exhibition purposes. Even I partook of the craze and have a bundle of bones as souvenirs.

TO CAIRO.

The next day we were off for Cairo. The railroad passes through a fertile country that only needs intelligent cultivation to give rich returns. We passed through villages of mud huts, crudely constructed, that a hard rainstorm would have leveled in a day. Even the mosques show lack of intelligence in construction; many are cracked and falling into decay. We see the Libyan Mountains and desert sands on our right, and have a glimpse of the pyramids before reaching the city. Cairo is the capital of Egypt, the largest city in Africa, with upwards of five hundred thousand population, composed of Arabs, Turks, Copts, Jews, Negroes, and Europeans.

THE PYRAMIDS.

Near the city, on the west bank of the Nile, are the Pyramids of Ghize, and far away can be seen those of Sakkorah. For some reason they are always found in groups. They are surrounded by numerous tombs. They are supposed to date back to the invasion of the Hyksos, 3733 B. C. The pyramids were considered anciently as one of the seven wonders of the world, and if I were to select seven of the most wonderful things on earth to-day they would be in the list.

Doctor Lepsius solves the problem of the pyramids thus: "Before the actual building of a pyramid was begun a suitable rocky site was chosen and cleared, a mass of rock, if possible, being left in the middle of the area to form the core of this building. The chambers and the galleries leading to them were next planned, and excavated. Around the core a truncated pyramid building was made, the angles of which were made by blocks of stone. Layer after layer of stone was then built around the work, which grew larger and larger until it was finished. When a king ascended the throne, he built for himself a small but complete tomb-pyramid, and a fresh coating of stone was built around it every year he reigned; and when he died the sides of the pyramids were like long flights of steps, which his successor filled up with right angled triangular blocks of stone. The doors of the pyramids were walled after the body of its builder had been laid in it, and thus remained a finished tomb. Near the core of the pyramid the work is more carefully executed than near the exterior; that is to say, as the time of the king's death approached the work was more hurriedly performed."

Originally the pyramids are supposed to have been formed with a smooth covering, bearing inscriptions. Some of this is still seen on the second pyramid. The Arabs looked upon these monuments as convenient quarries, and many of their buildings were erected from the stones taken therefrom.

The great pyramid of Cheops measures seven hundred and fifty-five feet on each side, and is four hundred and fifty-one feet high. Somewhere between twenty and thirty feet have been removed from each side. The blocks of stone are very large, and the contents amount to eighty-five million cubic feet. There are three chambers within. In the upper one, made of real granite, is the tomb of Cheops, for his name is there in red, it is said. Herodotus says that "one hundred thousand men worked twenty years in building it."

THE SPHINX.

In the ancient graveyard next to the pyramids the Sphinx is the most interesting object. It was cut out of the natural rock and represents a lion's body with a human head. The head was carved with great care. The face has been much damaged by the Arabs, and the Mamelukes used it as a target. The body is one hundred fifty feet long, the paws fifty feet. The well-proportioned head is thirty feet high and fourteen feet broad; a person standing on the top of one ear could not reach the top of the head. Its origin is shrouded in mystery. It was for many years buried in the sand, but 1533 B. C. was restored by Thothmes IV.

A few feet south of the Sphinx is a temple, built of enormous blocks of red granite, supposed to have been a temple of the sun, the Sphinx standing guard over it, protecting the country from the encroachments of the sand.

Here is my solution of the riddle of the Sphinx. The pyramids are surrounded by tombs of priests and rulers. An American archaeological commission from Harvard University has opened a number of these tombs and are reported to have made valuable finds. Here again comes the thought: The ancients sacredly laid their loved ones away to rest until the resurrection morning, and these scientific vandals are desecrating the dead.

SIGHT-SEEING WHILE WAITING.

We were constantly annoyed by the Bedouins, who insisted that we ride a camel, a donkey, or employ them as guides.

We were saving our shillings; it was necessary; there was no post until Saturday and five days of hotel expenses confronted us. The number of times our gold pieces were counted! The long face of Brother Koehler as he realized we had not planned for such an emergency, and Jerusalem still far away! How we tried to save, and how everybody took us for wealthy Americans, and annoyed us by their solicitations to hire or buy will long live in memory. The Lord must have moved upon his Saints, who remembered the missionaries in their travels, else we would have been stranded in Egypt.

While waiting for that boat, we filled in the time as best we could, one morning visiting the famous Egyptian Museum. The collection is very fine. A great number of monuments and statues in a complete state of preservation, their location well authenticated, require time for examination. The mummies of Seti I and his son, Rhomeses II, were especially interesting. The Pharaoh of the oppression was before us. That shriveled up man, with narrow, retreating forehead, sharp nose, like an eagle's beak, those thin lips, indicated such a character as is described in the Bible. The beautiful treasures of gold, silver, and precious stones found by Mr. de Morgan at Dasher were exhibited here. The women of wealth to-day have very little with which to bedeck themselves above their sisters of four thousand years ago.

Through the kindness of a gentleman whom we met at the hotel we visited the famous bazaars of Cairo. The streets are very narrow, the shops small and open to the streets. Here were seen silk stuff, jewelry, brass articles, Persian carpets. Here was the rich merchant in silk, there the beggar asking for baksheesh. One thing we know, we would not have ventured in there alone.

No visit to Cairo is complete without seeing the citadel. There is a mosque in the center, the walls and columns of which are made of alabaster. The dome and two minarets are very pretty. Within the citadel is Joseph's well. Not the Bible Joseph, but Salahedden's, whose first name was Joseph. This well is two hundred and ninety feet deep, and is still used to supply the citadel with water. The machine, I can't call it a pump, used for raising the water is half way down and they carry the water from there on their backs or heads.

JOURNEY RESUMED.

All things come to those who wait, and that week passed finally. We took train and passed through the land of Goshen, where from the king the people of Jacob received their home. We were informed that five million people live there now, so it was possible for the Israelitish hosts to have lived there in Bible times. The desert finally encroached upon us, the air like the heat of a blast furnace.

At last the welcome sight of the Suez Canal attracted our attention, and became the theme of conversation. We were anxious to secure pictures of this canal and a steamer passing through. I took one; it so happened it was the smallest thing we passed afloat that day. It looked odd to see those great steamships apparently sailing over the sandy desert.

Port Said was a welcome sight. The breeze from the sea was a relief. We went on board a Russian steamer. Such a sight as met us there: Russians, Jews, Arabs; dirty, filthy, foul smelling. Could we pass the night under such conditions? We went to the first cabin, which was a little better, and after much effort succeeded in making them understand we wanted to change our quarters. We did, but ten francs each left our small savings for the blessed privilege. How we begrudged that money!

THE HOLY LAND.

Early in the morning I discerned the land of the Philistines, and finally Joppa loomed before us. It rises in terraces on the slope of a hill. Here, at last, was the Holy Land; we were at its gateway. Here Hyrum, king of Tyre, floated the cedars from Lebanon for Solomon to use in his temple. Here Peter, the apostle, had his vision upon the housetop of Simon, the tanner. Here the armies of Rome fought the Jews and destroyed the city. Here came G. J. Adams in 1866 with an American colony, that soon went to pieces, but that could have become wealthy had they remained.

Such disorder among the boatmen, such a noise can only be heard in the East. We were welcomed by "Cook's" men, taken ashore, past the customs, and put on the train for Jerusalem. Then, though our landing tickets cost $1.25, they lined up and demanded "baksheesh."

Our first stop was Lydda, famed as the spot where Saint George killed the dragon. We had the pleasure of listening to Brother Koehler tell that this spot was famous as the home of "Jack the Giant Killer." Our next stop was at Ramleh, and brought out the fact that this is pointed out as the home of Joseph of Arimathea. A fabrication, like most all the holy sites of this land, in possession of the Catholic Church.

The plains of Sharon impressed me with their beauty and fertility. Splendid orchards abound. Modern methods are not known. We saw them driving the ox to tread out the grain, and using the flail. They pull up the grain by the roots, leaving the ground bare. We pass near Gezer, an old Canaanitish city, not brought under the control of Israel until the days of Solomon. Bitter, another stop, is mentioned in Joshua 15: 61. Bar-Cockba, Jew, rebelled against Rome and they besieged the place three and one half years before capturing it. The Talmud says, "The blood of the Jews who were slain, reached to the nostrils of the horses, and flamed down to the sea."

As we entered the mountains we observed their barrenness—the absence of timber, for there is hardly a tree in the country. The rain, through the centuries, has washed the soil into the valleys; hence the rocks are seen everywhere. Traces of terraces can be seen, showing that these hills were once highly cultivated.

To-day we see the fulfillment of the curse pronounced upon this land by Moses. (Deuteronomy 28: 15-68.) What a fearful price the Jews have paid for breaking their covenant with God. How wonderful the promises concerning them in the latter days; and here we shall trace the hand of God in prophecy, in their restoration. Could these barren mountains speak, what a story they could tell.

JERUSALEM AT LAST.

At last, the new Jerusalem, that is, appeared. We were at the journey's end. Taking carriage, we soon passed the Jewish settlement, the British hospital, the valley of Hinnom. Above us was Zion, David's tower, the citadel, the Joppa gate. Now on both sides of the road were modern stone buildings. The great Russian establishment loomed up like a fortress. Above it was the camp of Titus. Here on this high ground he successfully stormed the walls of the city. How busy the brain thinking of the past history of this place.

But we have turned from the road, and here is the mission house, with a saintly greeting from Brother and Sister Jenkins, our faithful missionaries, Brother Roos, a German Saint, and Sister Brown, formerly of Kansas. Yes, and Esease, our house boy, gave his Arabic welcome. Later we had the pleasure of meeting others, and telling the gospel story in the land where the "glad tidings of great joy" were first heralded by the angel's message.

IMPORTANCE OF THE WORK.

In the latter times the angel's message is, The kingdom of heaven is at hand; repent and believe the gospel. The work before us is important: The purchase of mission property; the establishment of schools; the translating of tracts into Arabic, Hebrew, and German; the translating of the Book of Mormon and the revelations of God; the reaching-out into other sections with this message. While we hope to live righteously and receive the baptism of the Spirit, making possible our part of the work, we earnestly pray that the spirit of helpfulness may rest upon the Saints, because means are required to furnish home, school, and tracts, and to secure proper buildings.

We would greatly appreciate an American paper, or magazine occasionally. All we have aside from church papers thus far is the Appeal to Reason, that some one sends. We are not interested in its revolutionary tone. We trust the Saints will pray for the work in this land.

All letters sent here require a five cent stamp, and cards two cents.

In the conflict,

U. W. GREENE.

JERUSALEM, PALESTINE, box 91, French Post.

ELKHART, INDIANA, October 2, 1913.

Editors Herald: There are only four Saints in this city, my wife, myself, Brother Johnson, and Elder William Dowker of Flint, Michigan, who has been here about seven weeks. We have been holding meetings in a schoolhouse. We have had good attention but poor attendance. We are trying to get the work started here, though it is very discouraging. We have maybe twenty in attendance one night, and the next night only two.

I am out of work much of the time. I would like to get work somewhere where there are more Saints. I have had eighteen months' experience in the bakery, but I am willing to work at anything. Would like to hear from anyone having an opening for a brother.

We invite any Saints passing through this place to call. They will find a hearty welcome.

Your brother and sister in the faith,

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT R. WALTER.

917 CEDAR STREET.

ELK MILLS, MARYLAND, October 2, 1913.

Editors Herald: Our little branch was greatly strengthened by the district Sunday school and Religio convention held here August 30 and 31. We had quite a large attendance from Philadelphia and other branches. The music was rendered by the district choir, under the leadership of Albert N. Hoxie, jr. The young people's prayer meeting Sunday morning was very inspiring and encouraging to all. It left that sweet peace and joy of the Spirit which only Saints of God can understand and appreciate.

Five precious souls were by baptism ushered into the kingdom of God. Great was the joy of our brother Henry Carr, jr., who had worked faithfully to show two of the candidates the great beauties of the kingdom of God, when he was at this time permitted to administer to them the rite of baptism. All hearts of true Saints were filled with gratitude to our heavenly Father for this addition to our number.

We have some very sincere and faithful Saints in this part of God's moral vineyard, who with faith and courage are striving to hold up the banner of God. As in other places, there are also those who need encouragement and help from the stronger ones.

My desire is to be ever on the watch tower, and like the wise virgins have my lamp trimmed and burning. I want to do all I can for the upbuilding of God's kingdom in these the last days.

The Lord is calling for reapers, be it brother or sister. We as children of God, have received a knowledge of the truthfulness of this gospel. We also have each received a talent. The Lord wants us to put our talent in use. We should be among those who are gathering the ripening grain, that the harvest may be great, and the sheaves abundant. If we do not know what our vocation is, we should pray to the heavenly Father for wisdom and knowledge, and he will enlighten our minds, that we may know the very things he would have us do.

May God bless this work, and may we so live that we may be able to teach others the great plan of salvation, is my prayer.

Your sister in Christ,

MRS. IRA W. HUMES.

HARTFORD, MICHIGAN, October 3, 1913.

Editors Herald: Through the efforts of Brother Willard Bevilhymmer and wife we have effected an opening in Benton Harbor. At this call I preached there in the rescue mission last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights, and spoke briefly to the Sunday school Sunday afternoon. The interest was excellent, and prospects promise good. I expect to be there again in the near future.

If there are any of the brethren engaged in the manufacturing of gasoline or kerosene engines, I would be pleased to have them write to me, as I am designing some farm implements of the tractor order, and am interested in power.

Yours in gospel work,

FRANCIS EARL.

News from Missions

Visiting Tahiti.

Since our last communication it has fallen to our lot to help bury one of our brethren here, who died of leprosy. The funeral procession looked very odd to us. We were conveyed to the cemetery in an automobile, while the other friends of the family were taken in a sight-seeing automobile, of which there are four on the island. Then there were several carriages. But the part that appeared strange to us was to see the chief mourners and relatives walk, while all the rest of the procession were in conveyances. This is their custom, no matter how far away the cemetery may be. We wondered why they didn't have handles on the coffin, which was one of the old style kind, but when we saw them use a rope (which was coiled on top of the coffin in the hearse) to pull the box out with, we understood then they didn't want to place their hands on it because of the disease with which the corpse had died.

The concluding ceremonies at the grave were conducted as follows: The minister, G. T. Griffiths, made a short talk, offered prayer, and then everyone at the funeral took a handful of dirt and threw it in the grave, saying, "Ia ora na," which means, "May you have life," certainly a very appropriate leave-taking of the dead.

On the seventh of September we left for the island of Takume, on the French steamer Saint Michel. We were seven nights on board of this vessel, and a dirtier and more filthy boat I have never been on, in my experience of sailing on between seventy-five and eighty vessels, or boats. The cook and waiter, in their appearance corresponded to the vessel. We called at four different islands on the way, where the coconuts are in abundance. These are called "the low islands," being only four and five feet above sea level. All of these islands were damaged by the tidal wave of 1906. On one island we visited five hundred souls were swept away. We were also on the island where Brother Gilbert escaped death by climbing a cocconut tree, and who was instrumental in the hands of the Lord in saving the refugees of the whole island by inventing a still whereby the sea water was converted into fresh water; the natives speak in the highest praise of him, and hold him in high esteem.

These people have not forgotten the sacrifice and faithful service of the missionaries and their companions who have labored among them in the past. T. W. Smith and wife, Brother and Sister L. R. Devore, J. F. Burton and wife, Hubert Case and wife, J. W. Peterson and wife, Charles H. Lake and wife, Mark H. Forscutt, and William Newton, are remembered. Brother and Sister May, and Brother and Sister Savage, and Sister Lake are still here, working industriously in the Master's cause, and are loved by the people. Brother May acted as our interpreter in our travels around the islands. The natives say he does splendidly. He surely has done all within his power to make our visit pleasant and profitable. Sisters May and Lake have shown us every kindness, and we felt at home here in the "mission house." We have not as yet had the pleasure of meeting Brother and Sister Savage, they are away on some distant island.

On arriving at the diving island at Takume, we met with a great many elders and Saints, who were there to dive for pearls and shells. I was reminded of a dream that I had thirty-two years ago, which was literally fulfilled. At the time I had the dream I didn't know there were such people as these in the world. In my dream I thought I was sent to Australia on a mission. On the way I stopped off on some islands. I thought also there was a woman on board, who was a native, with whom I tried to converse several times; she was very large and was dressed in red. When we got off at the island, I thought that a large crowd of natives, old and young, gathered around me and seemed very glad to see me, and wanted to shake hands with me. They talked to me, but I couldn't understand their language. Well, the dream had its literal fulfillment, for on board the steamer Saint Michel there was a native sister, very large, and dressed in red, as I saw in the dream. When we got off the steamer, we had to go into a large scow, which took us to the edge of the reef, but could not land us on shore. The natives waded out to us, and carried us on their backs to shore, quite a distance away where nearly all the inhabitants of the island were waiting to receive us, and we had to shake hands with everybody, men, women, and children. And then they formed a procession and escorted us to the meetinghouse, where they tendered us a grand reception. While shaking hands, and seeing the kindly feeling displayed on their part towards us, the Lord brought to my remembrance the dream of thirty-two years ago. I don't think we will ever forget this unique experience.

A laughable incident happened at this time. The natives who came out to the boat competed with one another for the honor of carrying the apostle, high priest, and seventy to shore. In the boat with us was a wealthy little Jew. One of the natives, supposing it was Brother Miller, the high priest, took him on his back and carried him to shore, and didn't discover his mistake until he put him down. The other natives had a good laugh at his expense, and they tormented him all the time we were there, telling him he ought to pray for the spirit of discernment. These people have a keen sense of the ridiculous, and appreciate a joke as well as anyone.

This island is only inhabited four months out of the year, when the people gather from other islands during the diving season. We sojourned here for two weeks, right among the natives. They built us a house, and supplied us with everything possible for our comfort.

Dysentery had carried away quite a number of the natives before we arrived, and one and two were buried every day while we were there. Many of our people were sick with it, and they kept us busy administering to them, day and night. Remarkable as it may appear, not one of our people died while we were there; but the Catholics, Mormons, and Protestants were burying the dead nearly every day. The Lord surely displayed his power in behalf of these people. Some of the Protestants had us administer to them and they were healed.

We had the privilege of witnessing the natives diving, about three miles from shore, an opportunity which not even some of the inhabitants of the island ever experienced. The natives hired a gasoline tug for us so we could witness this interesting event. We were on the tug as it gathered up the canoes ready to take them back to shore. Our tug pulled seventy "vaas," or canoes, and it was a picturesque sight as the tug worked around, picking up more and more of the "vaas," and then pulling them in a trailing line behind, with a native in each "vaa," industriously cleaning his shells and looking for pearls.

Some of the natives can go down one hundred and fifty feet. The lagoon here averages one hundred feet deep. For a detailed description with illustrations,—see the Autumn Leaves.

On leaving, we were followed to the boat by the Saints, many of whom were in tears as they bade us good-bye. We were greatly blessed with the Spirit in our labors among them.

They conduct all their services the same as we do in America. We listened to many edifying spiritual testimonies. They speak right to the point. They dearly love to sing. They have a number of hymns which have been translated from our language to theirs. Some of them have excellent voices. We baptized a girl eleven years old. After being confirmed that evening, she led the singing in the services, using all American hymns. She inherits her fine voice from her mother, who is the wife of a native missionary.

We wouldn't object to being aroused before daylight every morning if we could have the experiences here enjoyed repeated. Three of the missionaries' families had their huts near ours, and they always had their family worship together, singing being part of the service; gradually we would become conscious of the singing and we enjoyed a daily morning serenade, the mother, and little girl referred to, leading the song service.

We arrived at the harbor here from Takume, September 30, on the same steamer we went on, but were not permitted to land until the next day because the captain, like the natives, was ill with the plague, and the doctor refused to let us land. The board of health was called in session and deliberated whether we would have to be segregated to the quarantine island in the harbor for fifteen days. Imagine the anxiety of all on board, especially we three, as the boat was so crowded we had to sleep on deck, and as it rained most of the time had to go down in the hull with the freight and native sailors. While we paid for first-class fare, we didn't fare first class, didn't have even steerage accommodations. We were anticipating a good, clean bed and a clean supper, which had been prepared by Sisters May and Lake, who were at the pier to greet us, but we had to stay on board all night, with misgivings as to what was to happen to us the next day. A policeman patrolled the pier all night to see that none got ashore. On the morrow, the entire board appeared on the pier and gave orders that we could land, providing we have all our luggage disinfected and appeared at the hospital every other day for ten days to undergo an examination. We were pleased to obey the orders, which we have faithfully observed. It was some consolation to know that we had the boyish privilege of sticking out our tongues at the source of our anxiety and trouble.

The object of relating these incidents is to show what our missionaries to these islands have to put up with. No wonder some of the brethren and their companions have returned as physical wrecks. Poor Brother Lake, on the last trip he made through the islands, had to sleep out in the rain, which was the cause, no doubt, of hastening his death. If the Saints in our country who have an abundance of means would only sacrifice some of it toward purchasing a motor boat in which the missionaries could visit these islands, it would bring great blessings in this life, and a greater weight of glory in the world to come. Three years' time is long enough to sacrifice on these islands at one time, under the conditions prevailing. The climate is springlike most of the year, the thermometer registering from seventy to ninety during the twelve months, but at no time is it oppressive, as in the States. Exposure in traveling and living largely on canned goods are health destroying. Nothing is raised on most of the islands except coconuts, but of course fish are always to be obtained.

It has appeared to me, since being here, that many of our young people could learn the Tahitian language at home, as it is not difficult to master, and some of the brethren and sisters who have been here could teach it to prospective volunteer laborers for these islands. Almost a year or two is wasted by the missionaries before they are of real service to the people here by being able to preach to them in their native tongue. Why could not the Sunday school and Religio take up the study of different languages, such as French, which is spoken everywhere, German, Hebrew, and Tahitian. Wherever I have been in my travels, the first three languages referred to are used quite extensively.

Yesterday (Sunday) the Saints of the district, with the Hill people, who are called the Poopo people, and many Protestants, as is their custom once a month, met for a feast and general celebration. Each branch takes its turn. The program is as follows: Preaching at 8, Sunday school at 9, preaching at 10, Religio at 11, a big feast at 12, singing and debating all afternoon, preaching at night, questions and singing until midnight. Strange to say, they would sing all night if the officers of the district would permit. There was a monster crowd present yesterday. Every seat was occupied, as was the platform; the floor was covered with women and children; the doorways and windows were filled. The women were dressed in their best, some having on satin gowns, tasty hats, with bare feet! The men looked very neat in their white clothes and navy blue suits. Many were barefoot, but some wear shoes, generally white ones with rubber soles.

The method of cooking the food for the feast was interesting to us. A hole about five feet in diameter and three feet deep was dug. Into this were laid stones, a fire was built on them, and after the wood had all burned out the food was laid on the hot stones. Dough and meat were placed in baskets made of the leaves of the coconut tree; these baskets were laid all around the bottom of the oven. Over these were placed a kind of a red banana, called faa; coconut leaves were placed over this, sacks on top of the leaves, then dirt over the sacks. The food was left in this condition about four hours, and was then taken out done to perfection.

We sail on the 27th inst. for New Zealand and Australia. The Saints here call me Aposetolo Go-ma-ra. Brother T. W. Smith is known as Aposetolo Ta-ma-ti. They call Brethren Miller and May, Eduati and Ioane respectively.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

I am greatly pleased to be able to impart some good news to the Saints. While on the steamer from San Francisco here the Lord gave me a dream in which he pointed out to me the condition that the pupu, or priesthood, company were in. A few days after our arrival here we were invited to visit them in their church house, at which time they gave us a grand welcome. I told them that I felt impressed to have a meeting with them with a view to have them come back into the church. The leading man present agreed to write to their people on the different islands and have them meet me in their church house on the hill about October 5. They did as they agreed, hence, we met in council with their leaders last Friday and Saturday, also on Sunday.

My, but they did fight hard to maintain their position and justify the course they took when they left the church and I want to tell you that they presented some very strong arguments that were hard to meet. However, I was led by the Spirit to tell them that their heavenly Father wanted them to come back through baptism and repentance, but they did not feel disposed to do so. On Sunday I told them again that the Lord wanted them to come by baptism and that they should return home and tell the rest of their people. They agreed to do so, and Wednesday, yesterday, seven or eight of their leaders came and told me that they did as I had advised them to do, and they had come to tell me that they and many of their people had decided to be baptized, and for me to appoint the time and place. I have appointed next Sunday at ten o'clock. We expect that about twenty-five to thirty or more will be baptized in the Pacific Ocean. In our next letter we will be able to give full particulars. We truly feel thankful to the Lord that he has moved on these people to return to his fold. There are about one hundred of them and they have a fine church building of their own and many of them have fine homes. Their leading men are very able ministers. They have never gone back on the doctrine and the organization, but have defended the same during all the years that they have been on the outside. They have great confidence in the officers of the church, especially the leading quorums. It was through mistakes and misunderstanding that they went astray. Some of these men have been good workers in the church in the years gone by, and they will do a great work for the church in the future. I have been led to reordain all those who were officers in the church when they withdrew from us; that is, all those who are worthy, also to reorganize their branch.

There is great rejoicing here among the Saints of this district at the prospect of these people coming back into the church. The Saints of this district will all meet here on Sunday and give these people a grand welcome. I can assure you that we are all thankful and very happy over the matter. God be praised.

The steamer leaves here on Saturday for San Francisco, hence we write this news at this time. With love to all, I am,
Your brother in Christ,

GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

PAPEETE, TAHITI, October 13, 1913.

Responsibilities gravitate to the person who can shoulder them, and power and success flow to the man who knows how, and who exercises his know-how.—Backbone.

Doing to-day just what he did yesterday, and this year just what he did last, dead to the opportunities around him; he rests and rusts—the self-satisfied worker.—System.

The earth is like a road, a poor place to sleep on, a good thing to travel over.—Hillis.

NAUVOO.—Convened at Fort Madison, October 11, District President Charles E. Harpe in charge, George P. Lambert and James McKiernan assistants. Statistical reports: Ottumwa 70, Keokuk 56, Farmington 65, Fort Madison 39, Burlington 158, Rock Creek 105, Montrose 102. Ministers reported: James McKiernan, George P. Lambert, E. B. Morgan, O. R. Miller, W. H. Gunn, S. Tripp, C. E. Harp. C. C. Joehnk was appointed associate district president. Albert Ersking of Ottumwa and John Lawson of Rock Creek were ordained to office of priest. District treasurer reported $22.16 on hand. District president and associate were appointed to inquire into statutes with a view to having the church at New London moved. Adjourned to meet at Burlington, February 7 and 8. W. H. Thomas, secretary, 1100 South Seventh Street, Burlington, Iowa.

GALLANDS GROVE.—Convened at Gallands Grove, October 13, at 9 a. m., with district presidency and Elbert A. Smith and Heman C. Smith presiding. Branches reporting: Auburn, Cherokee, Dow City, Deloit, Coalville, Lanesboro, Harlan, Gallands Grove, Mallard, Salem. Ministerial reports: C. J. Hunt, J. L. Butterworth, A. R. Crippen, Alfred Jackson; J. B. Wildermuth, Edward Rannie, Gomer R. Wells, D. R. Chambers, George Juergens, Frederick Hansen, John Jordison, D. S. Baughman, William W. Reeder, Neslin Smith, Bishop Hunt reported: Received, $1,527.39; expended, 1,336.39. Preaching by Elbert A. Smith, Heman C. Smith, and Gomer R. Wells. Adjourned to meet at Dow City, February 14 and 15. A. H. Rudd, secretary.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN AND NORTHERN INDIANA.—Convened at Ray, Indiana, November 1, district presidency associated with J. F. Curtis presiding. Branches reporting: Belding, Buchanan, Capital City, Clear Lake, Coldwater, Galien, Grand Rapids, Hartford, Knox, Sparta, showing gain of about forty. Ministry reporting: G. H. Smith, S. W. L. Scott, J. W. McKnight, B. H. Doty, S. Stroh, W. P. Buckley, Starr Corless, F. Earl, F. T. Field, N. A. Hill, C. F. Ellis, William Dowker. All officers were sustained. Delegates to General Conference: G. A. Smith, Belle Royce, Sister C. A. Clark, Sister John Kutt, C. F. Ellis, S. W. L. Scott, E. B. Blett, W. P. Buckley. Preaching by J. F. Curtis, E. A. Blakeslee, Daniel Macgregor. Two were baptized by Brother Shaub. The best, if there were any best, meetings came on Monday morning in the form of a priesthood meeting, followed by a farewell prayer service. The Spirit was present in both services to cheer, counsel and instruct, and to give healing. About twelve were administered to and some wonderful blessings were received. Adjourned to meet with Grand Rapids Branch, second Saturday and Sunday of June. W. P. Buckley, secretary.

Convention Minutes.

CLINTON.—Sunday school met at Veve Chapel, October 10, 10 a. m. Blank report form of Standard of Excellence was ordered printed. Roy S. Budd resigned as home class superintendent, and Sister Mabel Braden, 708 North Ash, Nevada, Missouri, was elected to fill vacancy. As per action of previous convention, funds had been collected for the benefit of the Independence Sanitarium. By motion this plan was continued, the collections of different schools to be sent to the sanitarium semiannually. Zora Lowe, secretary.

LONDON.—Religio met October 10, at 10 a. m. The various reports showed that the work was progressing rather slowly. Officers elected: President, James Winegarden; vice president, Bert Richardson; secretary, George Tomlinson, jr.; treasurer, Aubrey Blanchard; home department superintendent, Hazel O. Small; librarian, C. C. Raison. Secretaries will please send reports at the close of each quarter. The president wishes to keep in touch with the work this year and we desire hearty cooperation. George Tomlinson, secretary, box 357, Saint Marys, Ontario.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Sunday school and Religio met November 8 and 9 at Fall River. Reports from locals showed encouraging conditions generally. Sunday school officers elected: Lucie Sears, superintendent; E. A. Fox, assistant superintendent; Ora V. Holmes, secretary and treasurer; Alice Fielding, primary superintendent; Sylvia Megathlin, superintendent home department; E. F. Yerrington, member library board; Calvin Sears, editor Gleaner; E. F. Yerrington, superintendent normal department. By motion those attending convention hereafter were requested to send names in advance so that the reception committee can provide for all. By motion superintendent of each local was requested to send list of names of those going to convention to the superintendent of the school where convention is to be held. Following were elected delegates to General Convention: J. W. Davis and wife, H. O. Smith, E. F. Yerrington, A. B. Phillips, P. M. Hanson, Lucie Sears, E. H. Fisher and wife, E. A. Fox, G. W. Robley, William Anderson, R. W. Farrell, William Bradbury, Calvin Sears, F. W. Roberts and wife, Harry Smith, Herman Chellin, Olive Yarwood, Frank Dobbins, G. H. A. Gates, Emma Dobbins, E. M. Brown and wife. Those present were authorized to cast full vote, and in case of a division, majority and minority. Present membership of district eight hundred and sixty. Religio officers elected were: F. S. Dobbins, president; Herman Chellin, vice president; Calvin Sears, secretary; G. F. Robley, treasurer; E. A. Fox, member library board; Myra Heap, superintendent home department; R. W. Farrell, superintendent gospel literature; E. F. Yerrington, superintendent normal department. Donation of $5 was made toward paying general church debt. Delegates elected by Sunday school were appointed to represent Religio at General Convention. Present membership of district 316. Societies adjourned to meet in New Bedford, May 9. A. B. Phillips, press agent.

Conference Notices.

Alberta will meet with Edmonton Branch, December 27 and 28. All missionaries provided for free. Clyde C. Walrath, secretary.

Montana District will meet at Deer Lodge, December 6 and 7. Maggie J. Reese, secretary.

The Presidency.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT.

The Presidency, Bishopric, and missionaries in charge concurring, Elder W. A. McDowell has been transferred to Southern California for the balance of the conference year. Those concerned will please take notice.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary Presidency.
INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, November 15, 1912.

Address.

J. E. Vanderwood, 336 South Fourth Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Died.

ROY.—At Lamoni, Iowa, October 31, 1913, Sister Mary J. Roy, aged 71 years, 10 months, and 12 days. She was born in Coles County, Illinois. She united with the church in 1894, baptized by Isaac Hogaboom in Custer County, Nebraska. She removed to Dow City, Iowa. Being blind and having no kindred to care for her she was received into the Saints' Home at Lamoni, 1907. She endured her affliction patiently. Services in charge of John Smith, sermon by H. A. Stebbins.

ORR.—William Thomas Orr was born in Gilmer County, Georgia, June 29, 1859. He married Matilda Adaline Sted, July 31, 1881. Moved to Missouri, March, 1882. Joined the Reorganized Church February 2, 1896. To them were born six sons and six daughters; one has gone on before. He also leaves wife, one brother, seven grandchildren. He died November 1, 1913. Sermon by John W. Rushton. Interment in Curtis Cemetery, Carthage, Missouri.

HARGIS.—Josiah Hargis was born in 1878, in Barber County, Kansas, December 22, 1904, he united in marriage with Miss Frances Griffith. To this union were born six children, four of whom still live. This brother was baptized May 22, 1905, by William M. Aylor. He remained true to the covenant. Funeral at Auburn, California, in charge of S. M. Reiste.

SCHULTZ.—Carl Frederick Schultz was born February, 1836, in Germany, later moving to America. He was baptized by R. T. Walters, October 8, 1910, at Pana, Illinois. He died November 2, 1913, at Pana. Services in the Saints' church, J. W. Paxton preaching the sermon, assisted by Charles Moze. A large number attended. He leaves two daughters, Sister Minnie Nowack, and Mrs. John Shafer; nine grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

PRICE.—Eugene Clement Price was born June 12, 1913, at Taylorville, Illinois; died November 5, 1913. This child was seemingly in perfect health the evening before. When the parents, Brother Joseph and Sister Maggie Price awoke, it had passed away. Funeral sermon by J. W. Paxton, assisted by Frank Izatt. The bereaved ones have the deepest sympathy of all, as was shown by the very large gathering. Services held November 6, at the residence.

HOLSWORTH.—Mabel Clair Holsworth, daughter of William and Emma Holsworth, was born August 6, 1879; united with the church February 27, 1898; died at her home, 219 West Washington Avenue, Pittsburg, Kansas, November 7, 1913, having been afflicted some months with the dreadful disease, dropsy. She was confined to her bed only three weeks. She died firm in the faith. She was laid beside her father in Waco Cemetery. Funeral held at the home, J. Arthur Davis in charge, assisted by J. T. Riley. She is survived by three sisters and two brothers.

Book Reviews.

THE PIONEER TRAIL.—The Pioneer Trail is the title of a work recently published by the Deseret News, Salt Lake City, Utah. The author is Alfred Lambourne. The book is splendidly gotten up from a typographical standpoint, and is artistically illustrated with pen and pencil sketches by the author. This work deals with the old "Mormon Trail" over which the Mormons passed in their remarkable exodus westward.

SILVER ISLAND, BY D. LANGE.—Here is a boys' book that tells of the famous Silver Island in Lake Superior from which it is a fact that ore to the value of $3,089,000 was taken, and represents a youth of nineteen and his active small brother aged eleven as locating it after eight months of wild life, during which they wintered on Isle Royale. Their success and escape from a murderous half-breed are due to the friendship of a noble Chippewa Indian, and much is told of Indian nature and ways by one who thoroughly knows the subject. There is also much taught of nature and woodcraft along with the accounts of exciting adventures with which the book teems. The young brothers are good to know, and the tone of the story is wholesome throughout. Lothrop, Lee & Shepherd Company, Boston; cloth, net, $1; postpaid, $1.10.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE SIOUX, BY D. LANGE.—This story was written by a successful and prominent educator to satisfy the insistent demand of active boys for an "Indian Story," and at the same time help them to understand what even the young endured in the making of our country. Many stories of this nature cause young readers to get false ideas of both history and Indian nature, and Mr. Lange is especially well qualified to guard against such errors, while at the same time finely carrying out his primary purpose of interesting live boys. The story is based on the last desperate stand of the brave and warlike Sioux tribes against the resistless tide of white men's civilization, the thrilling scenes of which were enacted on the Minnesota frontier in the early days of the Civil War. Lothrop, Lee & Shepherd Co., Boston; cloth, net, $1; postpaid, $1.10.

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

EDITORIAL:
 An Open Letter to the Clergy - - - - 1117
 An Appeal for Graceland - - - - 1119
 Notice from Bureau of Publicity - - - - 1120
 Graceland Violin Department - - - - 1120
 Notes and Comments - - - - 1120

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 The Ethical Teacher, by Frederick M. Smith 1121
 Laying on of Hands, by J. W. Wight - - 1122

THE STAFF:
 Audentia Anderson and others - - - - 1127

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - 1129

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - 1131
 U. W. Greene—Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Walter—
 Mrs. Ira W. Hulmes.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - 1135
 Gomer T. Griffiths.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - 1137

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.
 Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.
 When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.
 If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.
 All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.
 All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.
 Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 60 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.
 For advertising rates apply to the business department.
 Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.
 Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

1913

1914

READ THIS

From date of your remittance to January 1, 1915, we will send the "Saints' Herald" and "Youth's Companion" for $3.25.

Regular Yearly Subscription to Saints' Herald $1.50
Regular Yearly Subscription to Youth's Companion $2.00

The rest of this year and 1914 for $3.25 only. This offer good to both old and new subscribers.

NOT GOOD FOR THOSE IN ARREARS, UNLESS REMITTANCE IS MADE FOR ARREARS ALSO.

DON'T PUT THIS OFF—SUBSCRIBE NOW.

BANK BY MAIL
WITH THE
STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.

Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK
Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00

UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS

Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

FOR SALE.

My circumstances are such that it becomes necessary that I sell my property in Independence, Missouri, in order to raise some cash by January 1. $750.00 will handle this property. Write for particulars to J. A. GILLEN, 17-3t 635 So. Fuller Street.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series. Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents. No. 140. Price .....50c

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and yidest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why. Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided. Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy. Order No. 141 cloth .....75c
141½ leather .....$1.00
174 flexible .....$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a. Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.

The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c

THE SWEET GOSPEL STORY, by W. J. Smith .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant. No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.) John Zahnd, Independence, Mo. 6-tf

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research. Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet. Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

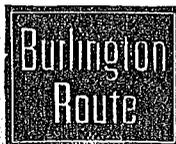

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HARBROOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American. A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

A Fine Chance to Start in the Dairy Business Without Much Money

Any dairyman who wants to get ahead but has only a little money, had better write and find out what I have to tell him about a way to get started in a great dairy country, where the first expense is small, and conditions including market are absolutely right.

Write at once, tell me something about yourself. Give me a chance to advise you. That's what I am paid to do.

D. CLEM DEEVER, C. B., & Q. R. R.
1004 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, NOVEMBER 26, 1913

NUMBER 48

Editorial

JESUS OUR STANDARD.

Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive.—Ephesians 5: 13, 14.

In the language just quoted Christ is presented as the standard of excellence. He is the perfect measure of that manhood towards which we are to grow. His example and teachings are to determine our personal conduct and our morals until we come unto "the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

Not only that, it is indicated that his teachings, whether coming from his own lips or from the lips of his inspired representatives, are to govern in all matters of church doctrine and personal belief, so that we shall be no more tossed to and fro and carried about with every "wind of doctrine." In a word, he is to be our standard, by which we are to weigh and measure conduct and belief in all things.

FALSE AND DOUBLE STANDARDS PROHIBITED.

And we read in Deuteronomy 25: 14, 15:

Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, a great and a small. But thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have.

We realize, of course, the importance of having standards by which to determine quantities, distances, and values. And so we have such units of weight and measurement as the pint, foot rule, and dollar in the United States, while other countries have similar standards.

A SCIENTIFICALLY EXACT STANDARD.

It is a correct principle that the importance of the measure increases with the importance of the thing measured. In other words, with every increase in the value of the thing measured there is a corresponding increase in the necessity for an absolutely correct standard of measurement. When men buy land in some great city by the square foot at fabulous prices, there is an immediate demand for a standard of measurement that is scientifically correct.

While there are standards in material things, there are also in spiritual matters, by which to determine morals, ethics, and doctrines. And in view of the principle just laid down we can see that in such matters, which affect not only individuals but nations, and that not here alone but hereafter, forever and for ever, it becomes absolutely necessary that we should have standards that are absolutely correct.

In Jesus Christ and his teachings we have such a standard, one that is scientifically exact. In that sense his gospel is not only religious, it is scientific. It is in harmony with the highest known laws, those that operate throughout eternity and are in accord with God himself.

WORSE THAN ROBBERY.

Long ago dishonest people discovered that they could profit themselves by use of dishonest weights and measures in material things. Consequently God spoke as he did in Deuteronomy, the twenty-fifth chapter, where he said, "Thou shalt not have in thine house divers measures, but thou shalt have a perfect and just weight, a perfect and just measure shalt thou have." Dishonest people still resort to dishonest weights and measures, as is shown by the fact that it is said that some years ago the government inspectors in New York City threw twenty tons of dishonest weights and measures into the bay. These had been taken from the storekeepers, butchers, and shopkeepers of New York City. And about one year ago the state inspectors in Iowa reported that in some of the cities and villages that had been examined thirty-three per cent of the weights and measures in use were dishonest.

In some instances this becomes worse than robbery. In the large cities where thousands of people are extremely poor and are living below the standard of decent living, and where many children are underfed and undernourished, if then they are cheated a little bit on every loaf of bread, on every nickel's worth of meat, on every quart of milk, it means murder as well as robbery. For it is in essence murder to take from people their sustenance when they are already insufficiently supplied.

THE DOUBLE STANDARD IN MORALS.

If it is true that dishonest measures under these conditions may kill the people, it is equally true in spiritual matters that double standards and corrupt and dishonest measures cause death, not only spiritually but physically. For instance, note the double standard in morals, which says that a girl must be pure and virtuous, while a boy must be allowed to sow his wild oats; that a married woman must abide by her covenant, while a married man is supposed to take his license. This false and corrupt double standard is responsible for the ruin and death of thousands of men and women.

THE SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS.

As a result of this folly it is alleged that seventy-five per cent of men in some of the larger cities are suffering from one form or another of loathsome disease. And it is stated on good authority that during 1912 fifteen hundred young girls disappeared in a single one of our States and were never heard from again by friends and relatives. They were forced or enticed into a life of degradation that in most cases ends in death in less than five years.

If one of our States were to set aside fifteen hundred innocent young girls every year to be taken into some horrible slaughter house and knocked in the head, a wave of horror would encircle the globe. But that would be a kind fate compared to that which is meted out to them. And all chargeable to this double standard.

Jesus sets a rigid single standard of purity and virtue, and in it is safety. Thou shalt not have a double standard in thy house, or in thy city, or in thy nation.

THE SAME YESTERDAY, TO-DAY, AND FOR EVER.

While it is necessary to have standards, it is also necessary to have those that are unchangeable. This is difficult to secure in material things. Even the dollar may mean a great deal more one year than it does another. In Christ as our standard in spiritual matters we have one whom we are told is the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever. In that respect Christianity is infinitely better off than any system that can possibly be devised by humanity. In fact, those who reject the gospel of Christ have no fixed standards.

Many so-called "advanced thinkers," including professors in some of the leading universities, are propounding the theory that there are no fixed standards of right and wrong, that conditions make a thing right or wrong. They argue that the sentiment of the community must determine all these matters.

If that be true, then polygamy may be right in Turkey and wrong in the United States; or it may be right in Utah and wrong in Iowa. Slavery is wrong now, but was right in 1860. Or to make it even more definite, in 1860 slavery was wrong ten feet north of the Mason and Dixon line, and it was right ten feet south of that line.

LOCAL OPTION IN ADULTERY AND MURDER.

If we recognize man only as the supreme law-giver, which is the only logical position left to those who do not recognize God and the Bible, then we must have "local option" not only in the question of temperance, but in all moral questions. And we are plunged into endless confusion and conflict.

But, thank God, we have revealed in his word and in his person, as represented in the life and teachings of Jesus, fixed and unchangeable standards of right and wrong. And we know that right is right because it is inherently so; while wrong is inherently wrong. Virtue is lovely always and everywhere; while vice is hateful all the time and in every place.

PAUL AND APOLLOS NOT OUR STANDARDS.

There is a pernicious tendency in humanity to follow other men. Paul noticed it in his day and declared, "One saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos." And he declared that while men did that they were yet carnal. But that is still the custom. Some say, I am of Martin Luther; some, I am of John Wesley; others, I am of Alexander Campbell.

Or, bringing it down more nearly home, even in the church we may select some individual and say, "If I can only become as good as he is, I shall be satisfied." This is a serious mistake, because the individual selected may fall, in which event our standard will be gone.

And even at best man constantly changes from day to day. On the other hand, we select some one whom we know is not any too good and say, "Well, I am no worse than he."

It is a very low expedient to select some one whom we know is wrong and congratulate ourselves that we are no worse than he. All these tendencies are wrong. We should look beyond the man and recognize Jesus as the fixed, unchangeable standard of personal conduct and belief.

TO THE LAW AND TO THE TESTIMONY.

Turning now from matters of personal conduct to matters of doctrine. The teaching of the church has ever been, "To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." When approached on the subject of church union we reply that we believe in church union when the revealed word of God is made the standard by which to determine the doctrines and practices that shall be retained. But we can not consent to the present theory that all doctrines upon which the churches can not agree shall be eliminated, no matter what the record may say regarding those particular doctrines.

THE KEYNOTE OF THE RESTORATION.

What was the first great revelation, ushering in the restoration of the gospel in these last days? What was the keynote of this dispensation? In the first vision, at the time when Joseph Smith went into the woods to pray, early in the spring of 1820, asking that he might know what was true and what was false in matters of doctrine, and which church was the true church of God, he was shown the Master, and the voice of God spoke to him, saying, "This is my beloved Son; hear him."

It has been said by some that the doctrine of present revelation is a "dangerous and damnable doctrine." Is there anything dangerous or damnable in that revelation? Should people fear a church, the keynote of whose teaching is, This is Jesus; hear him?

Why were men opposed to that revelation? Because they had been saying, "This is Pastor Jones, D. D., graduate of Harvard College, a very learned man; hear ye him." Or, "This is Bishop Brown, a very learned man, a graduate of Oxford University; hear ye him." Or, "This is the confession of faith adopted by that great convocation of divines at Westminster; hear them." Or, "This is the latest encyclical from the pope of Rome; hear it."

ONE CLEAR NOTE.

But in the midst of this confusion, like the clear note from a golden bell, fell this commandment: "This is my beloved Son; hear him."

Immediately all voices fell silent; and when they were heard again it was in unanimous denunciation.

Joseph Smith, coming out of the woods, and meeting a minister representing one of the leading churches of that time, related his vision and was told that it was "of the Devil."

When did the Devil begin to teach, This is Jesus; hear him?

In all of our controversies with the religious world we have insisted on the principle that the revelations of God should determine in all doctrinal matters, and should be the end of controversy.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE AND THE STANDARD.

Some years ago, while talking with a prominent Christian Scientist in Burlington, Iowa, head of one of the wholesale firms of that place, I asked him if he had ever attended our church. He replied, "No;

I seldom attend any of the churches for the reason that they do not teach or believe the Bible. For instance, they do not believe in divine healing, which is clearly taught in the Scriptures. Why do you not teach and believe these things?"

He was evidently ignorant of our position, and I replied, "You will find our people an exception to the rule. We believe in divine healing and have taught it for more than seventy years."

And I went on, "Since you have raised the question, I can answer without offense, We people believe in divine healing more nearly in harmony with the Bible than you do."

He did not think that could be possible, but I cited him to James, the fifth chapter, where it says:

Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him.

"Now this," we continued, "is the law on divine healing. But how is it with your people? Is it not a fact that if one of them becomes sick he goes to some professional healer, usually a woman, and for a cash consideration receives treatment?"

He looked puzzled and said, "I never thought of it in that light, but I am sure Mrs. Eddy could explain it."

We insisted that it needed no explanation. It is so simple that anyone can understand it.

We can not permit people to come between us and our standard of evidence with some interpretation of their own. The law is given there, perhaps not even forbidding recourse to medicine, but if recourse is had to divine healing the steps that are to be taken by the afflicted one are plainly indicated, while the duty of the elders is set forth by the Master in the language, "Freely you have received, freely give." No room there for a charge for healing. The healing that comes from God is to be sought in the way indicated, and it does not come for a price.

THESE SIGNS DID FOLLOW.

Again, while resident in San Bernardino a little less than a year ago, the churches of that place, through their ministerial alliance, decided that they must take some steps to rejuvenate and save the city. And it occurred to them that the first step to be taken in rejuvenating the city was to exterminate the few Latter Day Saints of the community. So they announced a lecture on "Mormonism." They selected one of their number, a Reverend Lee of the Methodist Church South, to deliver the lecture.

In company with Brother Boren we visited Reverend Lee on the day before the evening of his lecture, and succeeded in inducing him to make a fair distinction between our people and the Utah Mormons. After we had covered this phase of the situation, Reverend Lee said to us, "Do you people believe the Bible?" We replied, "Yes; we certainly do. We preach every Sunday night in the little church down here on the corner of Fifth and G, and always take our text from the Bible, and as a rule try to stick pretty close to the text."

Perhaps we should have stopped there, but we could not resist the inclination to go on, and added, "Possibly we believe some parts of the Bible that you do not."

He did not think that could be possible, so we inquired, "How about the closing verses of the sixteenth chapter of Mark, where it says, These signs shall follow them that believe? Do you believe those words?"

He replied, "Well, I believe that they used to follow."

"Yes," we answered, "that is the difference between you and us. You believe that they did follow,—religion in the past tense; we believe that they do follow,—religion in the present tense. You believe that God used to reveal himself,—religion in the past tense again; while we believe that God reveals himself now,—religion in the present tense."

At this juncture he changed the subject and said, "How about regeneration and the new birth? Do you people accept that doctrine?"

We replied, "Yes, Brother Lee, we certainly believe in regeneration. Jesus said, 'Ye must be born again,' and added, 'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God.' Yes; we certainly believe in the new birth. Man must be born of the water and of the Spirit. He must be baptized of the Spirit and of the water."

He drew back, scratched his head, and declared, "Well, I do not know about this water baptism, but the baptism of the Holy Ghost is certainly necessary."

What does the standard say? What did Jesus teach? "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God."

And so on all of these doctrinal questions we take the stand that the word of God shall be our guide and our standard in all things. And our message to the world is, This is Jesus Christ, the Son of God; hear him.

IS THE STANDARD TOO HIGH?

But some one says, "The standard is too high in matters of personal conduct. We can not attain to it. We do not join the church because we fear that we can not live our religion."

Of course you can not live your religion outside of the church. But we must remember the statement is made that "the Spirit helpeth our infirmities." And we should also remember that conversion is not instantaneous. That is, conversion does not occur in a moment of time, and we are not required to reach perfection at a single bound.

This is clearly set forth in 2 Corinthians 3:18:

But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.

ONE STEP AT A TIME.

Paul exhorted the people to go on to perfection. It was a process of going on.

One step at a time takes us to our destination.

If we have faith to take the one step immediately demanded we shall have strength and ability to take the next. Peter says that we should add to our faith virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge temperance, and so on. It is a matter of addition, of growth, of development, of progression. And in this work we are told that if God is for us no one can prevail against us.

Jesus himself indicated the principle of growth when he said, "Ye must be born again"; and when he told his disciples that they must become as little children. Children do not attain to manhood in a single day. Their growth is natural, normal, and continuous, and they entertain no fears or doubts regarding their ability to grow up and attain to manhood. Nor should we entertain any fears of our ability to grow up in spiritual things, providing we observe the laws of God as children do the laws of growth.

STUNTED GROWTH DEVELOPS A POISON.

But this rule should be borne in mind, that growth to be healthy must be continuous. To illustrate. Shortly after the severe freeze in southern California during 1912 we were talking with an expert on orange growing, and asked him regarding some of the young orchards filled with trees two or three years old. We asked him if these trees would not live and continue to grow, and he replied, "Yes; they will live all right; but they will never be profitable. They have been stunted in their development and will never bear the fruit that they otherwise would have borne."

We are reminded also that in India when they have those severe famines and children are nearly starved to death for a long period of time, it is said that though they may receive an abundance of good, nourishing food later on, they never get back to a normal condition. Their growth has been stunted and their development arrested.

And one suggests to us another illustration that bears out this theory, that of the case of the stunted growth of corn resulting from drouth in corn growing districts.

According to state authorities in Iowa, this stunted growth of corn develops a poison that destroys the animals that feed upon the stalks.

The thought is that the corn having been arrested in its development generates a poison and is not only destroyed itself, but destroys others.

And you perhaps have noticed this in the case of church members whose spiritual growth is arrested and who, as we sometimes say, "become soured." They develop within themselves a virulent spiritual poison that is capable of destroying all those who partake of it. There is no one more bitter and malignant than a "soured" Latter Day Saint who ceased to grow years ago and is now paying the penalty. And even as the Master warns his disciples to beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, so should Saints beware of the spirit that goes with individuals in the church who have ceased to grow spiritually and are soured and stunted in their development.

We should keep in touch with our source of life and strength, and continue to grow toward the "measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

ELBERT A. SMITH.

WHY EVERY BOY AND GIRL SHOULD HAVE "STEPPING STONES."

What are you giving your growing boy and girl to read? In this great reading age of the world, the boys and girls if not supplied with good reading material will find something not so good, for they will read. Are you placing before them the best, that they may early cultivate a taste for good reading only? Recognizing the needs of the boys and girls in this direction, the church is now putting out a paper especially for them. Stepping Stones is our new, illustrated paper, published in their interest. It contains literature suited to their needs, and every effort is being put forth to make it a wholesome, helpful, pure, uplifting, and attractive paper. Are you a subscriber for Stepping Stones? If not, you are depriving them of a valuable friend.

SOME OF THE INTERESTING FEATURES OF "STEPPING STONES" NOW AND FOR THE EARLY PART OF 1913.

BIOGRAPHY.

First, let us call your attention to the department of Biography contained in Stepping Stones. At present there is running an extended biography of Miss Frances E. Willard, ably written by the pen of Sister M. Walker. The life and good works of Miss Willard should be familiar to everyone of our young people, standing as she did for years, as the most prominent figure in the United States in the great temperance work, and serving long as the president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, using all the strong forces of her nature against the evils of the liquor traffic.

Following this will be other biographies, some of them short, of eminent men and women of the world, whose lives are a constant example and reminder of what noble and upright characters can accomplish. These will be written by various writers of the church. Among them Lula M. Sandy, of Kansas City, Missouri, and Vida E. Smith and Blanche Carpenter, of Lamoni, Iowa.

SERIALS AND SHORT STORIES.

Every young person loves a story, and if the stories are pure and uplifting, much good will be derived from them. Stepping Stones provides for the boys and girls stories written by some of our best writers in the church. A splendid serial, of nine chapters, for boys, will commence in January, entitled, "The sins of his fathers," written by Grace Baughman. You will want to read this story and so will your boy and girl. Other serials will follow, and there will be many short stories written by various authors known to our people, which will prove of interest and benefit to our readers. Among those promising short stories are Richard J. Lambert, Frederick A. Smith, Edward D. Moore, J. F. Garver, of Lamoni, Iowa; Audentia Anderson, of Independence, Missouri; Katharine Shippy, of Oelwein, Iowa, and Marcella Schenck, of Carson, Iowa.

NATURE DEPARTMENT.

Our Nature Department, under the able supervision of Ivy Carpenter Fisher, of Loyd, Wisconsin, who is a nature student and lover, is one of the most interesting features of our paper. On this page you will find information about many of the common things that are all around you. To read this page will make the boys and girls more observing, and they will learn lessons of thoughtfulness and kindness towards their little friends in the great world of nature.

BASKET WEAVING.

Nearly everyone is interested in handicraft, and valuable lessons in basketry in reed and raffia are now being given in Stepping Stones by Lenoir Carpenter Woodstock, of Lamoni, Iowa, who formerly taught this art to students of Graceland College. She is admirably qualified for the work, and in addition to the lessons given, she offers to give personal attention to requests for additional help in this line.

MANUAL TRAINING.

Professor Woodstock, who is at the head of this department in Graceland College, has consented to give lessons to the boys in this line from time to time. He will present lessons, showing how to make many little articles with saw and hammer that will be a pleasure and pride to both parents and boys. What boy is there that does not like to use the hammer? and how often is he handicapped by lack of opportunity for proper instruction? The boys will have the privilege here of gaining the right kind of instruction. The lessons in this and the basketry alone will be worth many times more than the price of the paper.

NEW THINGS AND EVENTS.

New things, new inventions, interesting and wonderful, are constantly coming out. Stepping Stones will tell you occasionally of some of these things; also events of importance that are happening around the globe. It will keep you in touch with many of the great movements of the world.

AND NOW

If you have boys and girls, can you afford to be without Stepping Stones in your household? We wish we could tell you right now all the good things that are to be contained in this paper the coming year; but we can assure you that many good things are forthcoming that we have not stated here. If you are not now a subscriber, what better Christmas or birthday gift could you find for your boy or girl?

Stepping Stones is published weekly for the boys and girls of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Subscription price, 50 cents per year in advance. In packages of five or more to one address, 40 cents per year. Send all orders to the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

TORONTO MEETINGS.—The Sunday evening meetings in the theater at Toronto, Canada, were opened for the present season on November 16. Report says this was the most auspicious opening yet experienced in this work there. The house was packed, even the choir members vacating their seats to accommodate attendants. Bishop R. C. Evans continues as the speaker.

UTAH CONVERSION.—Discussing the criticism of the present national administration passed in certain Catholic quarters because no Catholic was appointed to a place on the cabinet, the Deseret Evening News for October 18 says:

Many find it difficult to keep the two great institutions, the church and the state, separate, in their own minds. . . . The Latter Day Saints have been taught the true relations between church and state from the beginning. In the Doctrine and Covenants we read: "We do not believe it just to mingle religious influence with civil government."

We are pleased to note the seeming conversion of the Utah Church on this point. Time has been in Utah when it was sought to place the church above the State.

Original Articles

RESTORATION.

(Sermon delivered by Elder J. W. Wight at Lamoni, Iowa, November 5, during revival meetings. Reported by Elizabeth France.)

As containing matter incidental to the subject to-night, I wish to read a portion of the sixth chapter of the Book of Revelation, beginning with the twelfth verse and concluding with the chapter.

And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal; and, lo, there was a great earthquake; and the sun became black as sackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood; and the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig tree casteth her untimely figs, when she is shaken of a mighty wind. And the heaven departed as a scroll when it is rolled together; and every mountain and island were moved out of their places. And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains; and said to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb; for the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand?

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

I emphasize the last verse because I expect to call your especial attention to a portion of the third chapter of Malachi. But prior to doing that I wish to read a few passages of scripture relating to the fact of the second coming of Jesus Christ. My purpose in doing this is to show that as he is to come again and reign upon the earth, the prophets have prophesied concerning that coming and a restoration or preparing of the way for that coming. And as we have evidence from the Scriptures that he is coming again, then we have this basic thought: The necessity for a preparation for that coming, or, in other words, what to us is known as the great latter-day restoration.

For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works.—Matthew 16: 27.

Watch therefore; for ye know neither the day nor the hour wherein the Son of man cometh.—Matthew 25: 13.

When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory.—Matthew 25: 31.

And then shall they see the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory.—Luke 21: 27.

Behold, he cometh with clouds: and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen.—Revelation 1: 7.

As the disciples stood gazing into heaven when Christ took his departure up in a cloud, two men in shining white stood by, said to have been angels of God, and they said unto the disciples,

Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye here gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in a like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

We have it fully established, then, and this is but a tithe of the Scriptures that we might call to bear upon the importance of the fact that Jesus Christ is to come and reign all-gloriously upon this earth.

In fact, in the tenth chapter of Revelation, John declares that he saw him reigning a thousand years. And the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. So he is coming again. The angels declared that he was, and he himself made the declaration. So we feel that it is necessary that there shall be a preparation for that coming. And as one of the signs of that coming and the end of the world it was he who declared, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end come."

I want to take up now four verses, beginning with the first part of the third chapter of Malachi, and read and comment upon them, and then make the argument, after having laid down this premise.

"Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me."

It may seem presumptuous on the part of the speaker to-night to say to you that we differ with the majority as to the fact of this messenger. That is, as to the fact of the time when he is to come. Practically all Christian believers, so far as I know, look upon this declaration as having reference to John the Baptist. The majority of such believers believe it to refer to John the Baptist, coming nearly two thousand years ago, when, as a cousin of Jesus, he came as a forerunner to prepare the way before him. I do not look upon it as having reference to that time. It may refer to John the Baptist. But if Malachi here declares concerning John the Baptist, then in a vision he beholds John coming in the form of an angel, for the time that his messenger is to come can have no reference whatever to two thousand years ago, as I shall show you later, by the succeeding verses.

That he might come in the form of an angel we have scriptural evidence. Some people throw up their hands in a sort of holy horror when they hear you talk about John the Baptist coming in the form of an angel. But to clinch the thought that men can be given power to come again in the form of angels, let me invite your attention to that angel that communed with John, that opened futurity to his vision and permitted him to see the wonderful and marvelous events yet to transpire, down to the very closing scene. It was the angel of whom John declares that he saw a door open in heaven and heard a voice calling unto him, "Come up hither and I will show you things which must be hereafter." Not that mayest be, but that must be hereafter. Then the angel opens up the vision of John and permits him to see all these things as positively and clearly as you and I could behold them thrown upon a screen before our gaze. And finally, beholding many marvelous things, John, in the ecstasy of his joy, is about to fall down and worship this angel. And the angel said unto him, "See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God." Did the angel tell the truth? I think we all agree that he did. And since he was one of John's fellow servants, and of his brethren the prophets, then he must have died and gone to glory, and in the economy of God had been permitted to return again in the form of an angel, as a ministering servant, sent forth to open unto the vision of John the revealments of futurity.

So, if this angel could come and thus reveal unto John, John the Baptist, down in our own times, might do likewise. God may also permit him to come and reveal all that God desires that he shall in order to the accomplishment of his divine purpose in the great latter-day restoration.

So, then, you have my idea that if it has reference to John the Baptist it refers to him as coming in the form of an angel. And I tell you candidly to-night I believe that John the Baptist did come down in our own times as an angel, and opened up the priesthood of God, so far as the Aaronic priesthood is concerned, and authorized men to go forth and by that authority permitted them to start out in the great work of the latter days in the restoring of the gospel to the children of men.

And the Lord [no other than Christ] whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts.

Somebody may say, "Why, that refers to Jesus Christ coming eighteen hundred or more years ago." I say it does not. I say it in all frankness, and not with any idea of contradiction. But it must refer to a future time, for he is to come suddenly. When he was born as a baby in the manger he did not come suddenly, neither did he come to his temple. He went into the temple that had been built by Herod, that had been forty-six years in building, but he went in there for the purpose of driving the money changers hence, and told them they had made his Father's house a den of thieves. It can have no reference to his coming eighteen hundred or more years ago.

"But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? For he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap."

Now I want you to remember that important fact. It was not difficult to stand when he was born a baby into the world. It was not difficult to abide that day of his coming, so that Malachi can have no reference to that time, but must behold a future time, when he is coming in the clouds of glory with all his holy angels to take vengeance upon them who know him not and have not kept his commandments. That is the time of which Malachi asks by the knowledge granted unto him, "But who may abide the day of his coming? And who shall stand when he appear-eth?"

And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness.

Did they do so twenty centuries ago? Did they do so when he was here on the earth before? You only need to reflect to know that they did not. But listen, and then we have the whole argument so complete that it is utterly impossible to gainsay the thought.

"Then [when he comes as here outlined] shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years."

Eighteen hundred years ago, returning from the north and beholding the beloved city, it is declared that Jesus said:

Oh, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate.

Was the offering of Jerusalem pleasant unto him then? What about Judah? They said, Crucify him, crucify him, and deliver unto us Barabbas. So that Malachi can not have reference to two thousand years ago, but is looking down to futurity and positively declares that a messenger is to come to prepare the way. Jesus, directly in attune with this thought, declares that this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness, and then shall the end come. Not before.

Now I turn your attention to the sixth verse of this chapter I have been reading. We find the positive declaration, "For I am the Lord, I change not." If you turn to James 1: 17 you have the declaration that with him there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. And in Hebrews 13: 8 we read, "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever."

UNCHANGEABILITY OF GOD.

Perhaps my whole congregation to-night are wondering why I am seeking to emphasize this thought of the unchangeability of God, the unchangeability of Christ. For this purpose, my friends, that, being unchangeable, God will act just like himself. That in these latter times he will do as he did eighteen hundred years ago. And prior to Christ's coming into the world eighteen hundred years ago, a messenger by the name of Gabriel, an angel, came down from the heavenly mansion and made revelation with reference to the birth of that boy and said to Joseph, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins."

Mark that thought, my friends; every Bible believer to-night take it home to your heart and to your soul, that prior to the coming of Jesus Christ when he came before an angelic messenger heralded that coming. So we conclude that he will do likewise now, prior to the second coming of Christ. Now do you see the relationship of the thought? We have been seeking to establish the coming of Jesus Christ, and prior to that coming God will herald that coming by sending an angelic messenger.

THE RESTORATION.

But somebody says, "Is it not a fact, elder, that angels do not come any more?" Before we take up the question of the angelic messenger that we are to have, come with us to the occasion when the disciples took Jesus to the temple to behold it, and hear him declare that the time will come when not one stone shall be left upon another that shall not be thrown down. (Matthew 24: 2.) Follow them as they go aside privately and ask him the question, "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" One of these signs we have already quoted, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world." There is another sign of his second coming when he shall come in the clouds of glory, and that sign is this: "And then shall he send his angels, and shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from the uttermost part of the earth to the uttermost part of heaven." (Mark 13: 27.)

You and I can not possibly gainsay that which Jesus has declared, even had we the disposition so to do.

Now our brother last night outlined from scriptural declaration the thought of a great apostasy, and as if to emphasize that thought, called attention to the thought of the Dark Ages. Let me remind you of this thought, that when the Spirit of God is made manifest among the children of men there is a reflection of the light of God, light and glory is made manifest in the world. That Spirit withdrawn, and darkness ensues. The apostasy took place, and as a result we had ten long centuries of darkness. But after that darkness a restoration was to come. Then was to come the glory of the angel descending from the heavenly courts and bringing with him the everlasting gospel. But let me invite your attention to the thought that that angel could not have brought with him the everlasting gospel had that everlasting gospel been already upon the earth. So I invite your notice to Revelation 14: 6 where John says:

And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him.

The world was neither fearing God nor giving glory to him, or else there had been no need for the statements thus made. And mark that declaration. John said he saw another angel bringing that gospel, and heard him say, "Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come." Not judgments; it does not say judgments, though I have heard it quoted that way, and argument made that it had reference to the plagues that were to be visited upon the world. I do not believe it has any such reference at all. Christ explains it; I do not. "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day."

The hour of God's judgment was the restoration to the world of God's word. The heavenly messenger descending from the courts of glory was to bring with him the everlasting gospel in the hour of God's judgment, or when God's judgment would be upon the earth again. The angel was to bring the gospel.

Turn with me to the eighteenth chapter of the book of Revelation and we find the language. John said he saw an angel come down to the earth. And the angel with whom he communed said, Come up hither and I will show thee things that must [not that mayest, but that must] be hereafter—after John's day. And one of those things was an angel coming down to the earth so that the earth was lightened with his glory. The glory of God that that angel brought to the earth again was to serve its purpose in bringing the earth out of that spiritual darkness under which it had been burdened for ten hundred long years.

I do not wonder that John discovered light beginning to radiate, going out further and further until finally it encircled the globe. I do not wonder he declared the earth should be lightened with his glory. Now you see this great latter-day restoration is to come, and the gospel, this gospel of the kingdom, is to be preached again in all the world for a witness unto all nations. What has the history to show?

Going back some centuries we find one man after another stepping upon the world's rostrum and making declarations as to turning away from conditions then existing unto new conditions which this man, that man, and the other man may prescribe. But listen! Not a single one of them made any pretense that an angel had come to him to authorize him as God's messenger to bring back again all former things, to cry to the people to walk in the old paths and find pasture to their souls, until, almost a century ago, a young man stepped out and made the proclamation that an angel had come to him; that that angel had appeared unto him in his room after he had retired to his room for the night; and had talked with him as one man talketh with another. And when that young man in the simplicity of his soul went to a certain minister and told him that an angel had come to him, that minister said, It is of the Devil. That is to say, that the Devil was to reveal to-day. We can have present revelation from the Devil, but we can not have present revelation from God. That is the gist of that thought. That is the deduction of the statement. You can not get out of it.

But I should say Satan. One of my boys, when he was little, said to me, coming home one day from church, "Papa, you swore to-day."

"Why," I said, "how was that?"

"Well," he answered, "you said Devil."

I asked, "What should I have said?"

"You should have said Satan."

So I may say we have had Satan again revealing—present revelation from Satan! But listen: Satan is the counterfeit, and God the genuine. Did you ever see a counterfeit coin when there was no genuine coin in existence? We are going to have counterfeit revelation without any genuine revelation! We are going to have Satan revealing to us, deceiving us, and leading us astray, while the Father sits upon his throne and never says a word to keep us out of the danger of Satanic revealments. I do not see how a man claiming to be a minister could think such a thing, much less say it.

But John says the earth was to be lightened with his glory. This young man said an angel came to him. It will be one hundred years ago in 1923. What was the condition then? The earth was not lightened. The earth was not filled with glory yet. But immediately on the footsteps of that declaration, as it were, light came, revelation was manifested, and enlightenment ensued. And the marvelous inventions that have come into existence since that time have been marvelous indeed. You know that when that young man saw that angel, no one could ride on a train. None existed. No woman at that time could sew on a sewing machine. None existed. In 1827 the railway was in its incipency. And the sewing machine was not completed by Mr. Howe until 1847. And following rapidly on the heels of these inventions came one invention after another, until to-day man cleaves the air as does the bird; until to-day the telegraph spans the mighty ocean without connecting wires. I need not recite all the marvelous inventions that have come unto existence since that time.

The angel was to come down to the earth, and the earth was to be lightened with his glory. And that man lived in the midst of the United States of America, and here is the very centralization of that burst of glory that has gone around the world to-day. I care not where you go; I heard of it over in Australia that the Yankee is the greatest inventive genius known to the world. Possibly the Germans would not like that, for they are an inventive people. Not over in Canada, not down in Mexico, but here in the midst of the United States began that radiating light that has reached around the globe.

And an angel was to come down and the earth was to be lightened with his glory. And that young man received instruction direct from high heaven, not from Satan, for his revelation is darkness, and it would have tended to darkness. It was the revelation of God, and it tended toward enlightenment, and has brought into existence all the marvelous inventions of our day, and more and better than that, the gospel of the Son of God was restored to the earth; this gospel of the kingdom preached again.

As I showed you the other night, the apostles, prophets, evangelists, bishops, elders, priests, teachers, deacons, all the officers found in the church eighteen hundred years ago, are found in the church now, and it was because the angel came and told the young man just what to do. The other men as church builders had no angel to tell them, for if they had they would have told us about it.

I am going to read a quotation from one of the Wesleys, Charles Wesley, to show you what he thought with reference to the great latter-day restoration.

Almighty God of love!
Set up the attracting sign.

So it was not set up then, or he would not have been asking for it to be set up. Charles Wesley did not understand that it had yet been set up, hence he offers in supplication this poetic prayer:

Almighty God of love!
Set up the attracting sign,
And summon whom thou dost approve
For messengers divine.

From favored Abra'm's seed
The new apostles choose,
In isles and continents to spread
The soul-reviving news.

A prayer, a poetic prayer, and it was answered in 1835, when, after the incipency of the latter-day work, the culmination came in the choosing of the apostles, the direct sign, my friends, believed in by this wonderful man. I believe John and Charles Wesley were noble men. I believe so far as they saw the light they acted in harmony therewith. But neither of them ever claimed that an angel came to them. The Bible shows that an angel was to come and bring the everlasting gospel, and that young man in 1823 said an angel did come to him.

To some people this is altogether too marvelous. Let us see if it is. In Isaiah 29: 13, 14, we find— I forgot my text. I will tell it to you now while I think of it. It is found in Amos 3: 7: "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets." A good text is it not? But in Isaiah 29: 13, 14, we find:

Wherefore the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their heart far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men: therefore, behold I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people, even a marvelous work and a wonder.

When was he to do this marvelous work and a wonder? "Is it not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest?" Lebanon was what is called Palestine.

In 1830, on the sixth day of April, a young man established the church and kingdom of God, an exact counterpart of that established by Christ and the apostles. The angel came and brought the gospel in 1830, and it continued in the process of growth until finally it culminated in the completed organization in 1835. And twenty-three years after the organization of the church the former and latter rains were restored to the land of Palestine. Lebanon was turned into a fruitful field. "And the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest."

And in that semitropical climate they are raising tropical fruit to-day. I am told that some of the bunches of grapes are three feet long. And when I told that to a man in Australia he said, "I do not believe it."

"But," I said, "it is in harmony with the Bible story."

"It is no use to talk to me," he said. "I have read the Bible through fourteen times and I have never found anything like that."

"Do you remember," I asked, "about certain spies going into the land of Canaan to report of the land to the camp of Israel? And do you remember that they plucked a bunch of grapes and it was so large that it had to be put over a pole and carried by two men?" Perhaps it was three feet long. I do not know whether they are raising grapes over there that long or not; but it is enough that vintage is being restored to that far-famed valley of Eshcol.

Restoration has come. Not only is the gospel restored to the world, but God moving by the power of his Spirit is even restoring the test Isaiah said he would. Lebanon is beginning to blossom again as the rose.

I will read a clipping from the Detroit Journal of last April:

"Perhaps one of the most significant movements in the world to-day is the return of the Hebrews to Jerusalem," declares Joseph Cohn, of New York City, a Christian Hebrew.

"Twenty years ago there were only one thousand Hebrews in Jerusalem. There are now one hundred thousand, with two hundred thousand more close by."

Did you read Brother Greene's letter in a recent HERALD of the wonderful progress being made over there now?

Besides spending twenty million dollars for new railroads and introducing electric cars, Hebrews are cultivating arid waste lands. They will rebuild the temple of Solomon. Jerusalem will become as of old, the market place of the Orient.

God has set his seal not only on the land but on the people, and has restored the gospel to the world in these latter days. And to-night as I stand before you, in the fullness of my soul I have to thank God for the restoration of this gospel.

I sincerely thank you as a people in behalf of my brethren and myself for the way you have come out to listen to us. And if ever in my life I have entered into anything with a desire to serve God I do it now. I pray God that he will so move upon the people that those who are standing on the brink, as it were, who are making investigation, will continue that investigation until they become convinced and become one of the fold of God. God is moving by the power of his Spirit upon the children of men, and may he bless all to the end that salvation may finally come to us, is my prayer.

• • • • •

THE DENVER INDIAN CONVENTION.

There was held recently in the city of Denver a convention that was unique in many ways. It was the third annual conference of the Society of American Indians. This conference was attended by members of the Indian race from many parts of the Nation, and was in session from October 14 to 20, inclusive.

Acting upon the suggestion of Brother Hubert Case, of Kingfisher, Oklahoma, that some one of the Denver Saints attend the meetings of this organization, the writer was present at a number of their sessions, which were held in the assembly room of the Albany Hotel. Much was seen and heard of interest and educational value, and some acquaintances were made with members of this race.

The gathering was as picturesque as it was unique. There were present Indians of almost every type, representing many of the well-known tribes: Sioux, Ute, Kickapoo, Creek, Winnebago, Osage, Oneida, etc., and they were there in a variety of costumes, from the warrior in feathered headdress and war paint, the brave in gaudy blanket and bright-colored trappings, to the modern Indian in regulation civilian attire.

Indians of every shade and color were to be seen, ranging from the copper-hued, raven-haired full-blood to the individual in whom the strain of Indian blood was so thinned by that of the white race as to be scarcely discernible.

This association exists for the express purpose of considering in an intelligent, effective manner, questions of every kind relating to the welfare and future of the Indian race. Poor Lo has undoubtedly awakened to the fact that if his place and prosperity in the Nation are to be preserved and enhanced he must actively and intelligently interest himself in them.

From the primitive tribal "powwow," where matters of common interest were talked over, to the formal, orderly convention, where questions of nation-wide importance are intelligently considered, is a very far cry; but the Indians at this conference proved themselves equal to the situation.

Such questions were discussed as, "The Indian's place in the life of the Nation"; "What Indians can do for themselves and for their country"; "The legal condition of the Indians and its relation to their moral and social condition."

Matters of business were also considered and disposed of in an orderly, businesslike manner, although in nearly all of the speeches could be plainly discerned the Indian characteristic of extreme deliberateness, showing that, with all his advancement, the red man hasn't yet acquired the strenuous spirit of his white brother.

The work of the society, directed primarily to the advancement of the race, can not fail to be of benefit to society at large, bringing the Nation to a better realization of its relations and duties to the Indians. The inevitable conclusion reached from witnessing the work of the society is that the Indian, if properly educated and his activities directed along proper channels, is fitted for citizenship, and is readily assimilated into our complex society.

The writer met and conversed with a number of very intelligent Indians, some of them of fullblood ancestry. Mr. Arthur C. Parker, the secretary, is in a measure acquainted with the work of the church among the Indians of Oklahoma, and also understands the difference between the Reorganized and the Utah churches. One particularly intelligent, versatile young Indian, Mr. Henry Roe-Cloud, who is prominent in the affairs of the society, is a graduate of Yale. From the high degree of intelligence manifested by many of these Indians, combined with their gracious bearing and manners, the writer was led to perceive the beginning, at least, of the fulfillment of the prophecy concerning them in the Book of Mormon—that in time they should become a "fair and a delightsome people."

Active membership in the society is restricted to those who have, in some degree, at least, Indian blood, and can prove their descent. Associate membership is open to anyone. The writer, acting in conjunction with some of the brethren of the Denver Branch, enrolled Brother Frederick M. Smith as an associate member of the society. He is now a "good Indian" and in a position to watch the progress and work of the society from the viewpoint of the church.

ARTHUR H. MILLS.

* * * * *

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

"There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so."

This quotation from Shakespeare appears as a foretext at the beginning of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy's book, Science and Health, or a Key to the Scriptures.

Following as it does in her book the quotation from John 8:32, "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," Shakespeare's lines seem to be adopted by Mrs. Eddy as a key to the scripture.

Let us insert the key and see how it unlocks the Scripture. Remember, to be free is the thing sought. The lock to be unlocked is, What is meant by the Scripture which says, "the truth shall make you free"?

The key enters. Listen! Rattle, rattle, rattle—click! "There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so." Presto! What boundless freedom!

Nothing is really bad unless thinking that it is bad would make it so. Any kind of an act may thus be sanctified into holiness if we can just think that it is not bad.

All of Mrs. Eddy's further plea for purity of life and action is thus robbed of its strength, because of the fact that purity measured by such a gauge—nothing is evil only just as thinking may make it so—is altogether a different kind of purity from that which says certain things are good and certain things are bad in their very elements, and independently of whether people think this or that about them.

There is a great difference between light and darkness, but no greater difference than there is between the idea that evil is a positive, active force, and the idea that evil does not exist in fact, but is only imaginary.

When Christian Science (so called) gets its key to the Scriptures thoroughly turned and the lock fairly opened we find this on page 497 of their lady leader's book: "Evil is unreal." And again: "But the belief in sin is punished so long as it [the belief] lasts."

A system having its basic principles founded in such sand beds of error can not fail to be a disappointment at the last day, and a great loss to those who under its suggestion put darkness for light and light for darkness.

JAMES E. YATES.

THE BOOK THAT IMPRESSED ME MOST.

When I was a girl of only seventeen I was intrusted with the teaching of a class of small girls in a Baptist Sunday school. Succeeding nicely with this class, the pastor desired that I should change and teach a class of boys. This I did not wish to do, feeling that I was too young to control them. My refusal to change classes evidently displeased the pastor, for shortly afterwards he passed me on the avenue with averted eye, yet I knew he saw me. This incensed me, and I later left the Baptist Sunday school and started to attend the Methodist Church. I did not become interested enough to continue long and my eighteenth year found me stranded, outside the pale of safety, not even attending church or studying my Bible.

My people made a trip to California at this time, and upon our return we rented rooms temporarily. Here I found a book entitled, The Wrestler of Philippi, (a tale of the early Christians). It was printed on cheap paper, had no cover, was dogeared and soiled, in every way unattractive. I started reading it, and every word held my close attention. I had read all except three chapters when we moved to our new home. Getting settled and starting to school took my attention from the book for a time, and then a fire came that destroyed our home and all our possessions. The book was lost, but I remembered the title and later inquired for it. It was not to be had, so I gave up my search; but the story never left my mind, and I frequently rehearsed the tale to my friends and regretted that I had never been able to finish it.

Four years passed swiftly by and in sunny southern California I drifted into one of the many large bookstores in Los Angeles, in search of nothing in particular. Suddenly this book came to my mind and I inquired for it. In a few minutes, much to my joy, the clerk appeared with it, and I immediately purchased it and proceeded to reread it intently, enjoying it even more than I had at first.

These lines are written purposely to show how reading impresses the mind and molds the character, and how important it is that good, wholesome books should be chosen for the old as well as the young.

The reading of this story softened my heart and caused a kinder feeling to dominate me. I felt more kindly toward religion and those true ancient people of God; comparing them with what I know of the Christian world caused me to realize that religion was all right, even if the leaders of the various flocks did not observe to practice it.

In this book are found two splendid morals: First, how patience, humility, and faith in a child of God can influence the minds of others; and how by thus letting our light shine before men they may see our good works and glorify our Father which is in heaven. God moves in a mysterious way, his wonders to perform.

The principal characters are Paul, the apostle, and Silas, his companion; Lydia, the first convert in Europe; and the heroine, Elizabeth, a true saint, whose patience and faith are daily tried.

The author is Fannie E. Newberry, the book is published by the David C. Cook Publishing Company, Elgin, Illinois. This book can be read with profit by everyone; those fond of early Christian tales will especially enjoy it.

Trusting that good may be gained by this discussion of one good book, I am,

Sincerely your sister in bonds,

ELLA M. SWITZER.

Of General Interest

OLD STONE AGE.

Latter Day Saints are always interested in American archæology. They should be, and no doubt are, equally interested in archæological finds of the Old World, which shed light on the ancient races of the Eastern Hemisphere. While not in all points agreeing in their theology with the theories of scientists, yet the Saints should note the work of these men with careful consideration. The accompanying item, taken from the Outlook for August 9, is of profit as showing that in the earlier periods of the stone age men held to a form of religion, and cultivated, even though crudely, the arts, and that their caves are said to have been centers of culture.

The discovery of certain caves in Southwestern Europe brings us near to the men of the old stone age. Their history extends from the close of the last glacial age, say twenty-five thousand to twenty thousand years ago, to the arrival of the men of the new stone age, perhaps ten thousand years ago. We now know that these early men had a crude form of religion, that their dead were properly buried, that among them were undoubtedly chiefs or rulers, and certainly hunters and flint-makers. Their primitive implements are interesting and surprisingly modern. For instance, they used toothpicks! So states the director of the Ecole Odontotechnique in Paris. Now, however, we have other evidence of an early age than its primitive implements. If the industrial history of our race was begun by these artisans, they were succeeded by artists. To the stone implements there succeeded bone implements, and coincident with the bone there appeared attempts at sculpture and painting, as we now find from discoveries in France and Spain. To get to the history of art, therefore, we no longer need to go to Egypt or Assyria, but to the caves of France and Spain. They contain the first preserved paintings. How old are they? Anywhere from twenty-five thousand to more than two hundred thousand years old, according to the authority consulted. What is of more interest, however, is the fact that, as these works of art disclose, the cave man's life was doubtless superior to that of his nomad brother of the plains. For, according to Professor George Grant MacCurdy, of Yale, in the shelter and safety of the rocky fastnesses centers of culture arose. The caves were regarded, also, as sacred spots. The ideas sculptured and pictured there were often prayers for success in the various struggles of men against animals, or of tribe with tribe.

• • • • •

AMANA COLONY SUCCESS.

Charles Ratzel, manager of the Amana Colony in Iowa County, was in Des Moines conferring with state officials Monday. The members of this colony do not need any "back to Iowa" booster literature, as they stay here and have grown rich on the twenty-six thousand acre farm owned in common by them.

"We do not have much trouble about people moving away," said Mr. Ratzel. "The season just ended was very dry and we shipped only twenty-seven carloads of onions this year. We have no beans or late garden stuff to sell. We raised some good corn and will get a good price for it. We haven't a very large sum in the treasury, but our credit at the bank is very good."

There are one thousand eight hundred in the Amana Colony. The towns of Amana, South Amana, and Homestead are included. Mr. Ratzel has been connected with the colony for thirty-nine years.—Des Moines (Iowa) Capital.

• • • • •

THE ZIONIST DELEGATES.

The Jerusalem delegates to the congress have just returned, and speak enthusiastically of the results which are likely to accrue from the public and private deliberations of the principal leaders of the movement.

Among other successes, political and national, which have been scored during the eight days' congress, they state that six hundred thousand francs were subscribed there and then towards the erection of an up-to-date university in Jerusalem.—The Truth (Jerusalem) September 23.

• • • • •

A PHENOMENAL LANDSLIP.

The Hebrew press relates an extraordinary incident which occurred a few days ago at the Jordan.

A mountain four hundred and sixty feet high suddenly slid into the bed of the river, checking the flow of the Jordan for over twenty-four hours, after which the water gradually forced a channel through the obstruction.

Two shepherds with their flocks, who happened to be on the mountain, have disappeared.

Some Arabs suspect that the upheaval was due to the explosion of a mine laid by enterprising foreign explorers in order to blow up the mountain that they might discover what minerals it contained.

The obstruction caused the Jordan to overflow its right bank to a distance of two hundred meters.—The Truth (Jerusalem) September 23.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Loosening the Tension.

When the family washing has been done and you are putting away tubs, machine, etc., you loosen the screws of the wringer, that the rollers may the longer retain their elasticity. You remove the pressure that has been upon them while they were in service.

When the violinist is putting away violin and bow after having used them to elicit the sounds of music, he turns the little screws that permit the strings to relax. He removes the tension that has been upon them while they were in service.

In the times when men used the bow and arrow more commonly than now in hunting, war, or the pastime of archery, the tension was removed from the bow when not in use. It was allowed to relax from the strain that it might the longer retain power to do service.

And so men, women, and children have need to relax at times from the strain of work. They need to recuperate under proper conditions. "If we would relax somewhat from the intensity of our living, and obey more often nature's impulse to play, there would be fewer shattered nervous systems, fewer madhouses, fewer deaths from obscure causes"

"All Work and No Play."

You know the ending of the sentence. It makes Jack a dull boy. It makes Mary a dull girl. It makes the mother a tired household drudge, and the father a weary, overburdened family treasurer. This is what all work and no play does, for one of the demands of the human nature is recreation of some sort, relaxation from toil for "the enlivening of the soul." We need to do more than to eat, sleep, and work. We need to eat, to sleep, to work, and to play. Young and old need play in some form, a surcease from the toil that becomes needlessly oppressive if too long continued without relaxation.

Within the last year a daily paper gave the following picture of little children at work in southern oyster and shrimp canneries. Little ones, some of them as young as seven years of age, stood for long periods, patiently picking up one dirty cluster of shells after another, deftly prying them open, dropping the meat into a kettle. To follow this occupation hour after hour, day after day, month after month produced what? The following conversation will enlighten us:

"What is your name little girl?"

"Dunno."

"How old are you?"

"Dunno."

"How many pots do you shuck in a day?"

"Dunno."

The writer of this account adds, "And the pity of it is that they do not know. . . . Are you surprised that many children seem dumb and can not understand our language?"

In bright contrast with this pitiful picture of oppressive child labor is that of the little children of the Montessori schools who do things that at first reading seem almost incredible in children so young. But those children, while they work with intense absorption at things as difficult as the work of the little oyster "shuckers," are free to turn to play at any moment when instinct dictates the need of relaxation.

Our Own Children.

We have been looking with pity upon the young oyster shuckers of the South and with admiration upon the Italian babies of the Montessori schools. Now, coming back to our own children, let us consider what Professor Bolton has to say of the work that may reasonably be required of them, or, rather, that should not be required of them.

He says: "If pupils below the high school are diligent through five or six hours a day five days in the week, little home work should be expected, especially of a difficult nature. It is almost criminal to require ten-year-olds to work out their arithmetic lessons at night."

In the estimation, then, of this prominent educator it is not a commendable sight to see little boys and girls coming home from school with arms full of books for night study.

When he says little work should be exacted of them, he probably refers to mental work, study of school lessons; but it is not possible also to require too much from them of work of other kinds after a long session in the sedentary work of the schoolroom? How the children whoop and shout when school is out—at least every healthy, normal one of them! And how glad we should be to see them able to run, and shout, for the child who can not enter into play with zest is not in right condition, either physically or mentally. Somewhere there is something wrong in the young creature that can not run and exercise its limbs in the abandon of joy and in the sense of freedom that follows the restraint of school.

The writer remembers most distinctly coming home from a long day of work in school when a child, and of asking permission to go to play with a little friend. The picture returns to mind vividly, that of a little girl making the request for play, the mother about to grant it, and the interposition of a mistaken grandmother who sagely advised that the child be set to piecing blocks for a patchwork quilt. My recollection is that the interview was rather stormy on the little girl's part and that she did not piece any quilt blocks that night.

Since that time I have read in divine writ, "Children, obey your parents in the Lord; for this is right. . . . And ye fathers provoke not your children to wrath." Of course, "fathers" here includes mothers and counseling grandmothers.

There are times when every nerve in a child's body calls for relaxation, for play, when he who stands between him and his play interferes with his right.

Tired of Being Good.

Oliver Hurd Bragdon relates the following in the Golden Now:

Little George had been playing by himself for some time and very quietly. After a time he looked up and whined, "Mamma, I'se tired bein' dood!" He did not know what ailed him, only that the quiet that to him meant being good had become irksome.

At first, the mother looked at him curiously, not understanding what he meant. Finally, she thought she understood and she said to him, "So am I tired of being quiet, Georgie; come we'll take the sled and slide down hill, and then we'll see who can hit first with a snowball, and we'll make oceans of noise. We won't be quiet again until we want to be!"

The writer comments: "The sweetness of a child's spirit is often taxed too far; he can not be quiet all the time. He must shout, and romp, and kick, and let off steam, or he frets and grows sour. Discontent of 'being good' becomes a habit."

There are persons in advanced life who experience what this little child did, the craving for recreation, for a change even from doing what is, in itself, good.

The Little Rest Time.

Do you know that the only rest the heart gets is the time between the beats? And yet these enable it to work through the period of life night and day.

And so by giving ourselves little resting times, little periods of relaxation, we prolong our ability to work.

The Golden Now furnishes many valuable suggestions to the mothers of little children. It tells of a mother who, when she felt herself becoming irritated by the pressure of many things, among them the demands of the children upon her, would stop and rest herself, permitting the children to play with her, to ask her questions, to claim her attention in whatever way they desired. She relaxed, sometimes lying down on the couch while the children gathered round. When all were refreshed and soothed she again took up the work she had laid down.

Professor Bolton tells of an exceedingly successful high school principal who made it a practice to encourage his pupils to indulge in chatting, visiting, laughter, and general relaxation while passing to and from classes. This man realized the benefit of the small periods of rest thus gained from the nervous tension of study.

Change of Work a Rest.

Professor Bolton says further: "The proverbial statement that change of work is as good as a rest is certainly incorrect when applied to cases of fatigue due to depleted energies. . . . Nothing but rest, nutrition, and complete relaxation will suffice. Right understanding of fatigue will dispel the idea that students who engage in long hours of manual labor are thereby made better students."

It may be that change of work may be rest in some cases. In other cases, it may not be. Work is restful, work is play when it is pleasurable. The danger comes from continuing to work long after the mind or the body demands relaxation.

"Good humor is the clear, blue sunshine of the soul." We need to work in this sunshine. We need change at times, when our skies are of leaden gray. We by no means would convey the idea that we are not to learn to bear the yoke of hard service, but we mean to say that periods of relaxation are necessary, that we may be enabled to serve long in the serious things of life. God seldom dispenses to us long periods of gloomy weather; he gives us rifts in the clouds, and sunshine comes quickly after outbursts of storm.

Of Vast Importance.

Doctor Bolton says the question of fatigue is of vast importance, not only as it affects children and youth in their school years, but "in a still larger way affecting the whole life of a people." He says, "Physicians have sounded a note of warning against all forms of headlong rush and excitement which seem to be overstimulating and devitalizing American life." He says the term "Americanitis," applied to this rush and condition of excitement, may become more than a jest.

We seem to be living in the "hastening time," when all things are in motion, if not in "commotion." The whirl, the rush, the hurry of our rapid life are trying to the nerves, as on the other hand are the slow grind of conditions under which many of the poor live. The one excites, the other deadens. Both evils are in existence.

On May 17 of the present year there was in Paris an exhibition, the main object of which was to show the conditions under which the poor women workers of that city live. Among the exhibits were toys, such as the familiar stuffed lambs which bleat when pressed down on the bellows to which their feet are glued. For fixing the wool on the toys, painting it, fixing a ribbon around its neck, and attaching it to the stand the manufacturer paid three cents a dozen. A clever worker can not finish more than four dozen a day in a working day of ten hours.

There were also in the exhibition lamp shades which were finished at four cents a hundred, the maximum wages of a worker being twenty cents for a ten-hour day. Brushes were shown, made up at the rate of ten cents a thousand holes, or twenty-two cents a day. The flags with which Parisians cover their houses on days of public rejoicing were sewed and mounted at the rate of eight and one half cents a day.

In the center of the exhibition hall was spread a "sweated" woman's dinner, a morsel of stale bread, two cents' worth of cheese, a hard boiled egg, and a jug of water.

The hope of the exhibition was to arouse public indignation, and thus to bring about an alleviation of the conditions of those toiling women who live under the dulling and deadening condition of this extreme poverty.

The question of fatigue certainly is of vast importance; the mental fatigue, the soul fatigue which affects so large a portion of the civilized world, for there are in all lands a large class of oppressed poor. We are told on competent authority that our own American city of New York furnishes conditions among the tenement poor that can not be surpassed in the cities of the Old World. And we need not go so far as New York, nor into the tenement districts to find families living upon a wage far too inadequate to their needs, which does not permit their having opportunities to relax from their toil sufficiently to receive that recreation which is their God-given right.

The Right of Every Man.

Josiah Strong, writing on the subject of religion and amusement, asserts that the deep note of social unrest, heard from one end of the land to the other, is but the old cry of playground or game, "That is not fair; that is not fair!"

He says, "The church must have something more to say to men than that they should be sober, industrious, and frugal, in a word, law-abiding citizens. We are beginning to demand that our social order shall secure to all something more than the bare rights of existence. We shall not reduce life to the lowest terms, but rather carry it up to the highest terms possible.

"We must so organize society that every man shall be something more than an industrial unit. He shall have leisure and opportunity to be a man. The demand for shorter hours of labor and better pay is rapidly assuming a religious character, for the church is learning that it must cease saying, Our Father, unless with equal conviction and fervor it begins to say, Our brother. . . . The day has arrived when the church must take to itself the ancient law, both as a sound philosophy and practical regime: 'Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.'"

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE FIRST THURSDAY IN DECEMBER.

Prayer for the church, its priesthood and members, that all may earnestly engage in the building up of Zion to the ideal conditions of oneness and equality revealed in the revelations to the church. Pray that each member of the church may be clothed with that charity which will lead him to speak evil of no one, but each regard the reputation of a brother or sister as he regards his own. Pray for greater power in healing the sick.

Lesson, Isaiah: 62: 1. Memory verse, Jeremiah 29: 13.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS.

There comes to us in a very circuitous way a letter from an aged sister who is in a condition pathetic to behold. She is helpless and bed-ridden and has been so for eighteen years. This, in itself, is hard to be borne, but, in addition, she has suffered unkind treatment from one upon whom she was dependent for care. Recently she has been removed to the home of a daughter who has the filial love that makes her willing to care for her, but, unfortunately, the daughter herself is an invalid and poor. Prayers are asked for this sister, that she may be remembered by those who daily supplicate the throne of God for mercies to themselves. Blessings are promised to us, even as we bless others of the household of faith.

MISHAWAKA, INDIANA, November 16, 1913.

Mrs. Christiana Salyards: I request the prayers of the Prayer Union for an aged mother who is over seventy-two years old, that the Lord may enlighten her mind and lead her to obey the gospel in its fullness. I desire prayers also for my sister who is partially blind, that the Lord may restore her sight if it be his will.

ROXA ROLLING.

Notice to Locals.

Once again we call the attention of locals to our needs. The funds we have on hand are insufficient for some expenses we must meet very soon. As next month is the time for reporting the year's work and also when the assessments fall due, we kindly urge the presidents of all locals to see to it that their assessments are promptly sent. If this is done it will enable us to meet our expense. We trust all will cooperate to this end.

Will the local secretaries please take notice that the new report blanks being prepared will call for financial items as follows:

Money raised for Children's Home. Money raised for local purposes. Money raised for other purposes.

If you have not kept a record of these items during the year please gather them now so that you will be prepared to make out a complete report when required.

MRS. D. J. KRAHL, General Secretary.

Letter Department

Zenor-Etzenhouser Debate.

Of debates there have been many, and there will be some more. In many respects they are much alike, and reports of them not so interesting for that reason. When two Dutchmen have one, some interest may attach. Reverend W. H. Zenor, a German, is full six feet four in stature, and a good deal higher in mental acumen, in his own opinion. He is a man of good natural ability, and some acquired; claims he can do the Greek and Hebrew, etc. At misrepresentation he ranks well among all I have seen perform.

Brother J. F. Grimes had occasion to sprag his wheel, or to pull down his kite just a little. This resulted in partial arrangements on four propositions; the matter was lodged in the hands of Brother J. A. Gillen, and finally with me to respond as the warrior of the occasion. My poor health for several years past had jostled me out of line for such battles. I had, therefore, declined in the earlier stages to enter the combat. Finally, with much reservation as to the wisdom of it, both for the cause and myself, I entered the fray. I was, however, so signally blessed as not to have one weary hour through the long siege of thirty-two sessions of two hours each. It was, therefore, a happy event, in a sense the blessing of my life, among many.

The first proposition was Book of Mormon, eight sessions; second, Bible complete and all, four sessions; third, Was Joseph Smith a prophet of God, four sessions; fourth, Is Disciple the true church; fifth, Is the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints the true church, eight sessions.

Brother C. W. Prettyman was my moderator, and an excellent helper. Reverend Charles A. Shook, of Eddyville, Nebraska, author of Cumora Revisited, and who was raised in the Reorganization, forsaking it when he became grown and later joining the Disciples, acted as moderator on the other side. Mr. Wilmer Wood served as chairman most of the time. Doctor L. A. Carter, a classmate of Doctor Joseph Luff, whom Doctor Carter holds in warm appreciation, acting in the absence of Mr. Wood, Editor Dunn of the Lyon Graphic acting one session.

In the main, the work ran much as other debates on these questions, Elder Shook sagaciously blazing out the road to avoid at least some of the pitfalls, but inadvertently dropping into others. His book, of course, must be put up for its share of glory, and was glorified as all similar ones have been when getting on the gridiron of examination. Shook, Neal, Braden, et al, of the combination, were duly yoked up together and sent over the road in each other's company. How effectually it was done can be guessed at from the following:

Braden's dose was the Kirtland reception to Kelley, and a later one to Kelley and Scott. "Seventy-five a few of Kelley's friends," none or few members of the church. I asked for Braden's side of that famous Kirtland debate or any other similar. In addition I made a page the audience could see of his garbling of John 17, page 222 Braden-Kelley Debate, defying a duplicate from any man of ours on any work. My challenge stood unanswered. I ditched Neal similarly.

Braden and Shook I yoked up, specially on the witnesses to Solomon Spalding's writings. Of John Spalding's testimony Shook has twenty-seven lines, Braden eighteen; wife of John Spalding, Shook twenty-nine, Braden twenty-three; Henry Lake, Shook thirty-one, Braden six; Aaron Wright, Shook twenty-seven, Braden ten; Oliver Smith, Shook twenty-three, Braden thirteen; Nahum Howard, Shook fourteen, Braden five; Artemus Cunningham, Shook thirty-two, Braden eleven. (See Shook's Cumora Revisited, pp. 38-44.)

When I presented this it was explained to be so because, forsooth, the pages and type made the inequality. I then gave just the reverse order: Joseph Miller, Shook nine lines, Braden twelve, observing that the printed pages were hardly so elastic and that somebody, Shook or Braden, or both, had done some bad work. Shook at once called out, "It was Braden." I complimented him on being so generous, preferring his Brother, Braden, when special honors were in sight, but could not commend his generalship in downing Braden when Zenor was having such a time standing for him. I suggested they hold a session between themselves and report success. We never received the report.

I then got up a special page on Shook, visible to the audience, like I had on Braden, and demanded that they down me by a similar page from any man of us on any book, flaunted it before them from day to day, and still I wait.

These special pages I placed on file with Mr. Wilmer Wood for inspection by all.

Shook having devoted ten pages of an appendix to the Michigan relics as a fraud, they could not forego the opportunity of bringing the relics into the fray. Their success was just as good as in other cases. I presented the relics as a problem in the hands of Savage, Soper, Etzenhouser, and others who chose to take a part, scientists and all. I had no trouble at all in defending the relics and those interested in them, showing at the same time that the church was in nowise responsible. Shook had everything on the relic matter occurring among our own ranks as well as from all others; and it served him as little in the one case as the other.

After showing his methods by the special page and the comparison of his and Braden's reproduction of testimony, I showed his work utterly unreliable. For instance, where he gave the sum of what some author said he could not be trusted; and the additional nerve it took to reduce pages of an author to as many lines, not giving one quoted word. If an author is worth quoting, some of his words, at least, should appear. On page 95, Cumorah Revisited, will be found at the close of but two pages the reference figure that covers seventeen pages supposed to be reproduced in substance, but not a word put in quotation. On the same page nine lines are similarly made to do duty for six pages. Shook's condensed milk is a very doubtful fraud.

They supposed Michigan relics the product of my lantern, hence were very solicitous I should use my lantern, which I did, giving them American ruins in rich profusion and not one Michigan relic. To the delight of all, hymns were illustrated nightly.

So the debate was different after all. The attendance, with some variation, of course, was good throughout the thirty-two sessions. Some Saints came seventy-five miles, others thirty, and various distances. As usual, the Saints attended more than did the Disciples. Brother Prettyman, myself, and Brother and Sister Richards were the guests of Brother and Sister L. Renew, who cared for us nicely. Brother and Sister Richards were helpful in every way, contributing much to our comfort.

Many heard our claims and the sound is reverberating. Friends were made to the cause. The Saints were happy and content still to abide in the faith of their choice.

Since the Michigan relics were forced in by the opposition, it was perhaps well that the task fell to my lot.

If some one else does not do so it is likely that I shall write a brief expose of Shook's Cumorah Revisited. I prefer that some one else do so.

Still in the faith and at the service of its interests, and very grateful for the help given by the Master.

In bonds,

R. ETZENHOUSER.

NORTH PLATTE, NEBRASKA, 1123 West Sixth Street.

SWEET LAKE, LOUISIANA, October 4, 1913.

Editors Herald: I am of the isolated ones, and also one of the afflicted. I love God's people and I do love to read the good letters that the church papers contain. I am acquainted with only a few Saints. I enjoy so much to read a letter from those of my acquaintances—Brethren Samuel Simmons, B. F. Renfroe, Nunley, and Riley,—not that other letters are not good, for all are read with joy and gladness. We need some one to stir us up. This is a Catholic country.

We are having our trials, with harder times before us. Crops are a failure all around us. We had a very fair crop of rice, but it has rotted. I was not surprised at the disasters, nor do I think it unjust, for I think that if we had been living as Saints should we would have escaped, some way. God is just in all that he does. I suppose we will do well to get a cheap living. I will be very thankful for that.

I am very sorry we can not send for an elder, but we will not be able. The Holiness people are very much against us here. Their minister said it was a shame for people to believe as we do. I told him I was sorry for everyone so blind as he was. They live within a quarter of a mile of us, but neither he nor his wife have ever visited us. They are still calling Brother Riley a Mormon. I do not mind what they call me, it does not hurt me one bit. If we give the people a HERALD they say, "Oh, I'll look over it."

Dear Saints, we need your prayers in these hard times. I pray that we may pull through some way. As for myself, I am oftentimes on the bank of the river of death. My strength is failing me. Pray for me and mine. My family is in a lost condition, and it grieves me much. I know it will grow worse when I am gone, especially for the younger ones.

Your sister,

JOSIE HELMS.

OUTLOOK, MONTANA, October 3, 1913.

Editors Herald: Again we have had the pleasure of hearing another Latter Day Saint minister set forth this glorious gospel message. These words of God were delivered by Elder Robert Newby, of Fairview, Montana, who preached in our district schoolhouse. Brother Newby preached five sermons, blessed two children, administered to two Saints, baptized three, and administered the sacrament to the few members. In the blessings and administrations he was blessed with the spirit of prophecy.

The baptisms took place in the same pretty pond in which Brother Sparling baptized six. It was a beautiful and peaceful day. The baptized were confirmed at the water's edge.

We are anxious to have a Sunday school and branch organized. Many are interested in this grand, glorious work and are anxious to hear more of it. As each day fades into night we humbly ask our heavenly Father to send another elder so this good work may be kept before the people.

Your sister in Christ,

Box 26.

MISS MONTROSE SHALLBETTER.

FULTON, IOWA, October 8, 1913.

Editors Herald: We just closed one of the best Sunday school conventions and conferences ever held in Eastern Iowa District. Everything went off without a jar, and a friendly feeling prevailed. We all feel cheerful, willing to press forward and do better and be more humble, striving more diligently to magnify our calling.

The work needs our best efforts. Shall we give them, and receive the reward? Or shall we be slack in our labors and receive the reproach? Let us be wise.

Your brother,

JOHN HEIDE.

FAIRVIEW, MONTANA, October 10, 1913.

Editors Herald: We enjoy reading the HERALD, and receive much good from it; we especially receive much spiritual strength from the letters.

We came to Fairview six years ago. My father and mother were the only Saints here. They were baptized by our beloved brother, William Sparling, at Loma, North Dakota, in 1907.

After we were here about a year Brother Sparling came and preached a few sermons. A few precious souls saw the light; and when Brother Sparling and Brother Hale W. Smith came back in the spring they were baptized. During the fall and summer, however, they moved away, and left my father and mother alone again. The outside world looked down on them, and it made it hard for them to do the Master's will.

In August, 1911, Brother W. P. Bootman came and preached a few sermons. It seemed good to hear the gospel again. Brother Bootman baptized my brother and myself on August 13. Brother Moore and Brother Bootman came back last fall and organized a branch. We have fourteen members now.

My father was ordained an elder last fall, and is president of the branch. He is doing all he can for the Master's cause. He just returned from the north, where he baptized three more into this glorious gospel. This makes five he has baptized since the first of June. He has three more calls for new openings, so I suppose he will be away nearly all winter.

Ever praying for the HERALD, and for the gospel, I remain,
Your sister in Christ,
MISS HAZEL NUBY.

BURKHARDT, WISCONSIN, October 5, 1913.

Editors Herald: It has been a long time since I have heard from any of the church. I used to receive papers from the sisters. I feel very lonely.

We lost our little daughter, age eleven years, last March, and our hearts are sad. We know that God has taken her to his care, but we miss her.

I have other little ones, including a little boy whose health is very poor. My husband is ill too. All this world seems against us. I wish the Saints to pray for us, that we might gain our health and prosper. My husband works out by the month, as does our little boy; but it takes all they make, and then we are needy.

I never was baptized into the church, but I am a believer of the teaching of the Saints. I never had an opportunity to be baptized. My father was baptized into the church, and did good to many others.

Six years ago two elders came to our place and stayed four or five days, but the people would not come to the meetings. I was very sorry. There is no church here. I wish we could move to Lamon. It is such a cold country here, and people are so poor. There are many kinds of people here.

I ask the Saints to not forget us in their prayers.

Your sister in one faith,
MRS. IDA HURD.

LOVELAND, IOWA, October 15, 1913.

Editors Herald: It is with pleasure I read the letters of the Saints. I think they all give us courage. But there is sorrow in some of them and my heart burns for those who are afflicted, and those who have become indifferent.

Will the brothers and sisters pray for the Saints here, that we may in due time, if it be God's will, have a branch established at this place. We have Sunday school in a school-house, with a fine attendance.

I was baptized March 22 of this year, by Brother H. N. Pierce. He has been doing a fine work here. The good news is spreading. There were thirteen baptized here this year, and I think there are more yet to come.

Pray that I may be faithful and that I may assist in the work of salvation.

Your sister in one faith,
VIOLA STUEVA.

FAIRVIEW, MONTANA, October 4, 1913.

Editors Herald: I have just returned from a trip to the northern part of the State, where I was called to do a little labor for the Master's cause. I held meetings for a week and had the pleasure of leading three more precious souls into the waters of regeneration.

This is a place where our old pioneer gospel plowman, Brother Wm. Sparling, of North Dakota, opened up the work some two months ago. As is his custom, he did not leave the soil until he had it in such a condition that other planting would take root. I arrived just in time to apply the water to two of the candidates above mentioned. The other, a young man who never heard the gospel until he came there, was convinced after hearing three sermons, and demanded baptism.

While there I took the liberty to do a little canvassing for the HERALD, which I hope will be satisfactory. I am anxious to do all I can for the cause, and I know the church papers convert many to the gospel.

With best wishes to all, I remain,
Your brother and colaborer in the gospel of our Lord,
R. NEWBY.

CHERRYVALE, KANSAS.

Editors Herald: We are interested in this great latter-day work. We drove from Wichita County here this fall, having united with the church out there a year ago, wife and I. Our oldest son has come in since. We camped over Sunday with Elder Teeters at Alexandria, Kansas, and enjoyed the services in their new church very much.

I would like to attend meetings with the Saints every Sunday, but when we can't think we ought to attend with our children any church where we can worship and study God's word. We have received the best of Christian treatment from churches here, where we have attended.

I had a talk with a man on the way home from the Methodist Episcopal church to-day. He was saying we ought to practice more of the principles Christ established, and I lost no time in telling him I belonged to a church that believed and practiced the very things he thought to be lacking in their church. I have a friend reading the Book of Mormon now, who seems quite favorable.

I hope this may reach some of the Saints in this place, if there are any here. I would like very much to have any call on us. We could start a meeting this coming winter, I hope.

Praying that God's richest blessings may lead and guide us into greater usefulness, I am,

Your brother in the work,
615 EAST THIRD STREET. O. W. BRUCH.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, October 14, 1913.

Editors Herald: I arrived home to-day after being absent for one hundred and seven days on the rockbound coast of Maine. I visited many places, preached seventy-three times, baptized three, confirmed six, blessed eight children, married one couple, attended three conferences, presided over and attended fifty-four other meetings, making in all one hundred and twenty-eight meetings in one hundred seven days. I increased in weight ten pounds. This accounts for the many Atlantic Ocean fish, clams and lobsters that I ate.

I found many of the Saints pressing on through the trials of life, and by the grace of God striving to enter in to the marriage supper of the Lamb. They knew it took means to travel, and so, being among the liberals, they supplied the needy wants, for which I offer thanks.

The Joy Brothers, at South Addison, Maine, are doing a fine business this year, putting up the finest smoked herring that I ever saw.

I attended the conference at Providence, Rhode Island, October 5, and was kindly cared for at the home of Elder Bradbury and wife.

Your's truly,
J. C. FOSS.

LOYD, WISCONSIN, October 17, 1913.

Editors Herald: Perhaps some of your readers may be interested in a line from here. This is near where the old Willow Branch used to flourish; but at the present time there are only five or six Saints anywhere around, and they are widely separated one from the other. Elder William Newkirk, one of the early Saints, still survives, and although over eighty years of age still loves the faith of his youth. He is quite infirm in body.

Elder L. O. Wildermuth was with us a couple of weeks last summer and preached a number of times to interested audiences. This fall he again visited us, accompanied by his nephew, Elder J. A. Bronson. They brought a tent and held sixteen services, with good attendance and very good attention. It is necessary to use a tent here, as the only church building is owned by the Free Methodists, who do not allow other denominations to occupy.

While there were no visible results from the series of meetings held, we feel that our position has been clearly set forth, and that there is no need now for people to pretend to think that we are the same as the people of the West. The Utah representatives usually pass through this county about once a year and distribute literature.

We would be glad to entertain any of the elders who may find it convenient to stop here, and will try to find a place to hold services.

Brother McDowell is remembered here, as also are C. H. Burr and E. M. Wildermuth, as they have held tent meetings here in times past. We also remember Frank Hackett, A. L. Whiteaker, and C. Lange, now deceased.

Praying for the upbuilding of Zion,

MRS. IVY FISHER.

NORFOLK, NEBRASKA.

Editors Herald: There are a few Saints at Norfolk. We have our Sunday school regularly at two o'clock, and sacrament meeting the first Sunday of each month, in charge of Brother Jackson, of Meadow Grove. We have preaching only when some elder passes through.

As Brother J. W. Smith was on his way home, Bonesteel, South Dakota, he stopped off and preached two nights at the home of one of the sisters, where we hold our meetings, and baptized two. This has encouraged us all. Our number is now eighteen. We are weak in body, but strong in faith.

Asking the prayers of all the Saints, I am,

Your sister in Christ,

C. E. LILEY.

POMONA, CALIFORNIA, October 19, 1913.

Editors Herald: We wish the Saints to know that we are still trying to hold the fort. We had a series of tent meetings here conducted by Elders Roy F. Slye and W. A. Brunner, and enjoyed some grand sermons, one in particular on the Book of Mormon by Brother Slye, which was the means of removing a great deal of prejudice. Through these efforts we think there will be several come into the church in the future.

We hope that God will bless these brethren in their meetings at Long Beach. We trust they may be permitted then to return with the tent another year, as they made many friends in Pomona while here. The meetings closed with increasing interest. Should they return, we think they would be able to get a good hearing.

Praying for the advancement of God's work everywhere, and for the triumph of Zion, I am as ever,

Your brother in gospel bonds,

970 EAST SIXTH STREET.

FRANK J. LACEY.

FALL RIVER, MASSACHUSETTS, October 21, 1913.

Editors Herald: One week ago the teachers of the Massachusetts District visited Fall River and held a quorum meeting. Sunday morning three of the teachers, Brother Chel- lin, of Providence; Brother Frost, of Boston; and Brother Siddall, of Attleboro, delivered short sermons in which they explained the duties of a teacher.

Elder A. B. Phillips is the present pastor of the Fall River Branch. He is doing his best to arouse the Saints from the lethargy which seems to envelop them at times, and to help them to realize that during this probationary period of our existence we should make the most of every opportunity to serve the Lord.

Miserable, indeed, must be the man or woman who believes that death means the eternal obliteration of his or her soul. And those who know there is a God in heaven and do not serve him, unhappy must they be when the time comes for them to leave the passing vanities of this life behind. That time will come to every one of us.

Convention of the Sunday school and Religio of this district will be held in this city, November 8 and 9.

ALMA M. COOMBS.

DELOIT, IOWA, November 14, 1913.

Editors Herald: I have been absent from my field of labor (the Gallands Grove District), for a few weeks, locating my family at Independence, Missouri. We are pleased with our new home.

In contemplating this move we did not expect to find absolute perfection in the center stake of Zion, hence were not disappointed. Many noble ones are untiring in their work to bring all in full harmony with that blessed law which will help the Saints to be "of one heart and mind."

Providence permitting, I will do church work in the Gallands Grove District until General Conference. My field address will be Deloit, Iowa, and I trust all members of the district will do what they can to honor the law of tithes and offerings. The branch agents are making commendable efforts to raise their apportionment for the special demands of the church. If you have not contributed to that fund, do so at once.

In gospel bonds,

C. J. HUNT.

Extracts from Letters.

J. F. Grimes: "Western Nebraska and Black Hills reunion met with the Pleasant View Branch near Tryon, Nebraska, September 5, 1913. Preaching was from fair to excellent. Prayer meetings were very spiritual, the Lord speaking to his people in prophecy. The services were not largely attended during the day, but at night larger numbers came. It was unanimously voted to hold another reunion at the same place next year, time being left with the missionary force appointed to labor in this field."

Writing of a recent two-day meeting at Toledo, Ohio, Brother W. F. Sage, of Detroit, Michigan, says: "The meeting could not be called anything but successful, in spite of the fact that the worst storm ever had at this season of the year was in progress on the outside, which made the tranquil, soothing influence of the blessing Savior's Spirit all the more perceptible. About midday, in the Maunee River, the gate was opened for two more souls to enter the bright way, by Brother Ulrich, who is a zealous laborer for the Master."

George Elson, Wayne, Nebraska: "I appreciate the HERALD and pray for the good it may do."

V. M. Goodrich, Los Angeles, California: "Things are moving along quietly with us here. I have no ill tidings to bear on this score. My health has not been good since coming here, but I am thankful to say that I believe I am on the mend now."

News from Missions

Southern Indiana.

The semiannual conference of the Southern Indiana District was held at this place (Indianapolis), November 8 and 9. The conference in the main consisted of Indianapolis Branch. There was a small representation from other branches. This was due chiefly to the distance of this city from other parts of the district. Other hindrances were the late snowstorm, and a street car strike. Because of the latter it became necessary to walk (or ride by chance) out to the Saints' hall. It is about three and a half miles from the heart of the city.

The following traveling workers were present: Brother and Sister F. G. Pitt, Brother and Sister A. C. Barmore, H. E. Moler, J. W. Metcalf, J. G. Halb, and Charles A. Nolan. The preaching was good. The conference was very peaceable and highly educational.

Elders H. E. Moler and J. W. Metcalf have gone to Louisville and will labor there and in other parts of Kentucky for the rest of the conference year. Brother Nolan has returned to his home at Dana, Indiana, but will probably join Elder Halb later. The latter is still here, but will work in the southwestern part of the State. Brother and Sister Pitt will remain here about one week, and then visit Wirt, Indiana. From there they will go to other points in the district, and thence to Kentucky and Tennessee. Wife and I will attend them as far as Wirt, then return here and spend most of our time until the General Conference.

Sister Barmore and I came here from Oakland City, Indiana, where one of my sisters, Mrs. Hosea Burke, resides. With her I complete my first visit with my near relatives since returning from Australia. We arrived at her place October 29, and came away November 6. During that time I preached seven sermons, and delivered two lectures. Most of these meetings were held in the schoolhouse at a little village called Oatsville. There was a good interest and a large attendance.

November 4 was my fortieth birthday. My sister and brother-in-law, both of whom are Saints, gave me a birthday dinner. A number of guests were present. By request I preached to them in the afternoon.

We are pleased with our situation here. Indianapolis Branch has been organized only two years, but has made splendid progress for so short a time. Elder Charles H. Fish is president. He and his associate officers have done good work.

In gospel bonds,

A. C. BARMORE.

Colorado.

At present I am at the home of Brother W. F. D. Brandon, southwest of Otis about thirteen miles. I commenced a series of meetings here last Thursday night. This is a new opening, and the people who attend our services, with the exception of one man, have never before heard any preaching by our ministry.

There are various castes of religion represented here; and from what I can learn there are some who feel as though their religion is just a little too holy to bring to a Latter Day Saint meeting. No doubt some of the people have read about the "Mormons," and they have concluded that in order to keep their religious skirts unspotted they had better keep their distance from our services.

I am thankful, however, that the more thoughtful and intelligent of the community turn out to the goodly number that come to hear the message of life. There is some interest here. What the outcome may be, of course, I can not now predict. But I had a spiritual manifestation before coming to this place that impressed me very strongly to the effect that there are some sheep in this community. Last evening my service was spoiled by a snowstorm, but the moisture was much needed here, so I did not feel to complain.

There has been a wonderful acreage of small grain sown in Eastern Colorado this fall; and I never have seen the grain in fall time look better.

Since the people in this western country live so far apart generally, the missionary finds himself considerably handicapped in his effort to reach places distant from railroads. I feel quite certain that until the missionary is provided with some better means of reaching these outlying places than is at present at his command, this feature of our work will be more or less neglected. A horse and buggy in my estimation is one of the surest, safest, and most economical means of travel for the missionary out here. The ready money to purchase such conveniences is the question. But the money spent by two missionaries in one year for car fare would more than pay for a good team and buggy. I hope the Saints in the field will think about these things, and not expect more of the missionary than is consistent with his strength physically and the amount of the precious means to enable him to purchase railroad fare.

My effort this year has been to open up as many new places as it has been in my power to do. I believe that the work in this field is opening up in fairly good shape, and that the gospel seed sown in patience and perseverance will in due time yield a fair harvest.

Brother and Sister Brandon are getting quite well along in years, but they manifest clearly to those about them that the fire of holy zeal in this work is still burning brightly upon the altar of their home. This is also true of many dear Saints whom I have met in this field.

I hope to continue in the conflict throughout life.

J. R. SUTTON.

OTIS, COLORADO, November 4, 1913.

Jots from Spring River.

This morning old Sol is struggling to smile through the misty, smoky way, to reassure us that these funereal tokens of sleeping life, the dropping leaf, the withered flower, the denuded hills, are the recurring reminders that the same intelligent and reviving rest is the common heritage of man. After the springtime of life and the heyday of activities comes the autumnal glory of resurrected life. All nature that was jeweled with joy has indeed become a tragedy,—sad, deep, and dark as the mystery of death itself.

The personnel of our district is also changing under the silent foe. We regret to have to note the passing of our aged and beloved brother, Walter S. Taylor, one of the pioneer Saints, if not the pioneer, of the district. In the infant days of bleeding Kansas he cast his lot in the Sunflower State, living to a ripe old age, a respected and honored member of the church and State.

Brother Taylor was at the Amboy conference in 1860, when Joseph, the son of Joseph, took his father's place. Coming west in 1870, he settled near the old site where Columbus now stands, firmly planting the gospel banner, under which he has consistently worked and lived, bearing a faithful testimony until his demise. His last words were: "Tell Brother Joseph my testimony is that God is, and that the gospel he and I have preached for fifty years is true. Tell him the veil lifted and I beheld the mansions prepared." And with a beautiful smile in the happiest, sunset hour, he passed into that dreamless sleep that kisses away every tear. He had climbed the heights of spiritual light until on his brow fell the golden dawning of a brighter day. Brother Taylor will be missed.

We have just closed a series of meetings at Webb City, Missouri, with our Brother J. W. Rushton, "the different," as mouthpiece of the gospel story. The meetings grew in interest from start to finish, closing on Sunday night, the 9th, with the greatest audience of the series.

"Rushton the different" is a very good appellation, and well earned by our worthy brother. He takes the old, threadbare texts, goes down into the deeper levels and brings out of them the richer values in such a pleasing, practical, logical, forceful way, it would seem every honest soul must accept his conclusions. We failed to discover any attitude to, or any cause for "daubing" him with socialistic political mud, for every conclusion centered in Christ and his gospel, which alone can bring the ideal heaven for man.

We are sorry, however, that our brother is homesick, at times, for Britain.

T. W. CHATBURN.

Miscellaneous Department

The Bishopric.

AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of the Utah District: The Presiding Bishop has laid upon me the responsibility of looking after the finances of the Utah District. My address is, C. A. Smurthwaite, 751 First Avenue, Salt Lake City, Utah. It will be a pleasure for me to hear from each and every member of the church in this district, with consecrations, tithings, offerings, etc. We don't want you to wait until you have "saved" a good sized amount before you send anything. It is much preferable for everybody to send in what they can spare from week to week, or at any rate from month to month. Don't think because your donation is small it will be less thankfully received, or that it is not worth sending. It is not the amount we give, but the spirit of the giving which is the important thing; and a little given promptly and often will do more real service than larger amounts at long intervals. We have two chief financial necessities in this district. (1) Caring for the families of our missionaries; (2) Paying off the debt on the Salt Lake City church building recently acquired.

Surely supporting the missionary force is the most important demand upon our financial system. If we had no missionaries we would not long have a church. If we had never had missionaries we would not now have a church. So that the very existence of the church as an institution depends upon the support of the missionaries and their families. If an individual who fails to provide for his family may be said to be worse than the infidel, can it not be said with equal truth that the church which does not provide for its missionary families is alike infidel? Let not this charge be laid at our door. Therefore, let us rally to the support of our brethren of the missionary force and see to it that their families are suitably provided for.

The debt against the newly acquired church building at Salt Lake City is a part of the general indebtedness of the church, for which the Bishop is responsible. When we are helping to pay off the local Salt Lake City church debt, therefore, we are helping to lift some of the burden from the Bishop. This church building is not merely a Salt Lake City affair, but it is a building for the district, having a parsonage attached where the general missionary, whose objective is this city, together with his family, may reside. It is also the headquarters of the district, and gives us much needed facility in this chief city of the mountains.

We have faith that such financial support is going to be given by the people of the Utah District that it will not be necessary any longer to call upon the Bishop for anything. We ought to be self-sustaining if nothing more. Salt Lake City is prospering, and if we all work together in honor preferring one another there is no reason why we should not receive heavenly blessings; individually and collectively.

I have appointed two assistant agents, to-wit: Elder J. C. Chrestensen, and Elder John E. Vanderwood. Their receipts will be equally as valid as my own for any moneys given them for my account.

Ever praying for the welfare of the honest in heart everywhere, I am,

Sincerely yours,

C. A. SMURTHWAITE, Bishop's Agent for Utah.

Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana: Who will join with us to swell the Christmas Offering? No doubt there are many by this time who are planning what they will give to their relatives and friends for Christmas. I wonder how many of us are making as great an effort to give to Christ, our elder brother, or to the cause for which he gave his life. It appears to me that we are observing the day more than we are the Christ.

We look back to the time when the Christmas Offering was first observed among our children. It was then but a small amount sent in to the Bishop. But we have seen it grow, and for the last two years, with the help of some of the older ones, it has reached something over eight thousand dollars a year. This should encourage all, and shows all the possibilities that lie before us.

We all know that a portion of the money expended for Christmas gifts is for useless articles, which we could easily do without, articles forgotten in a short time. Would it not be better to put the money in the treasury of the church, where untold good may come from it? And receive the approval of our Father in heaven, with the assurance that it will stand to our credit at the judgment bar of God?

As I have gone over our district this summer in the interest of the general church debt, I have tried to impress upon the minds of the Saints the necessity of sacrificing our own pleasures, in the giving and receiving from our friends, and of putting our means where it will help the Bishopric to carry on the work more successfully. I believe if we would do this there would be no need of the church making a special call for help.

Some say they want to give gifts to their friends. In this let us act as wisely as we do in the things of this world. We have our taxes to pay, and we do not let our Christmas gifts interfere; so let us do likewise in this, and feel that we have an offering to make, where we can hope for a better return.

We wish to express our thanks to the Saints and friends who have so kindly helped in reducing the church debt; and trust that those who have signed with us will try to send it before December 25, as we would like to send in the full amount to the Bishop January 1.

Our district treasury is empty. Many names do not appear on the agent's book. We hope no one will feel that what they have done for the general church debt will excuse them from their duty to the church by the way of tithes and offerings.

Hopefully in the battle for right,

SAMUEL STROH, Bishop's Agent.

COLDWATER, MICHIGAN, November 14, 1913.

To the Saints of the Little Sioux, Iowa, District: We appeal to you to aid in reducing the church debt. Every member should have an interest in this work. Our district is expected to raise $2,460.

We are reported as having over two thousand members, and some consider the payment of $1 their portion. But perhaps not more than two thirds and probably even less are within the district, or known to their branches. Of these many are too poor to assist per capita, the family perhaps embracing a number of members. Hence it rests with those who are able to do according to their means. Every member who is able to pay should do so. We invite those removed from the district and who have their names with us to send us their contribution. We trust all will do this as early as possible.

Then do not forget your tithes and offerings; and that only a few weeks of 1913 remain. Your name should appear on our records. Less than two hundred Saints have paid tithes each year the past twenty years, whereas there should be one thousand. Are you one of the two hundred? If not, why not? May we not come short of doing our full duty, through neglect? We think so.

ALMA M. FYRANDO.

Conference Notices.

Saint Louis District will convene at Saint Louis, Missouri, Glasgow Avenue and Dickson Street, December 13 and 14. Sunday school and Religio at 2 p. m. Saturday, business meeting of the district at 6 p. m. We desire a full representation of the district, as the election of officers will take place, also other important business. Do not forget basket lunch. R. Archibald, president; Charles J. Remington, secretary.

Southern Nebraska will convene with Nebraska City Branch, January 10 and 11. Bring or send reports to H. A. Higgins, 1207 Third Corso, Nebraska City, Nebraska. W. M. Self, president.

Convention Notices.

Alberta Religio will convene December 25, 1913, at Edmonton, Alberta. Mrs. Ruth Walrath, secretary, Edmonton, Alberta.

Quorum Notices.

FIRST SEVENTY.

The group picture of the First Quorum of Seventy is now ready. This is a splendid picture of all the members (70) of the quorum, 8 by 10, nicely mounted. Send sixty cents to Charles Branckenbury and Son, Lamoni, Iowa, and they will send you the picture.

THIRTEENTH QUORUM OF FRIENDS.

The Thirteenth Quorum of Friends will meet at Cleveland, Ohio, November 29 and 30. All priests are invited, whether members of the quorum or not. First meeting Saturday evening at 7.30. Sunday meetings 8 a. m. and 2 p. m. Take Wade Park cars to Seventy-First Street.

H. A. THOMAS, Secretary.

Notice.

All persons having claims against the treasurer of the General Sunday School Association are hereby requested to send the secretary's orders direct to the treasurer for payment. The bank in Lamoni has been instructed not to pay such orders.

JOHN SMITH, Treasurer.

Died.

SEAWORTH.—Jonathan Seaworth died at his home in Wilber, Nebraska, October 23, 1913, aged 77 years and 29 days. He came to Nebraska in an early day and has resided here continuously, excepting a few years when he lived at Lamoni, Iowa. He was friendly to the church, and was often seen at the services, but never became identified with the cause. Funeral from the home of his daughter, Sister Ella Haney, was well attended, giving evidence of his honest, upright, moral life. Sermon by S. Broliar.

WALKER.—John E. Walker died at his home near Tulare, California, October 27, 1913. He leaves wife, four children, mother, eight brothers and sisters to mourn his untimely departure. The esteem in which Brother Walker was held was expressed by the large gathering of neighbors and friends at his home and at the grave. The funeral sermon was by J. B. Carmichael of Fresno, California.

EATON.—Charity Eaton, widow of Thomas Eaton, died of heart trouble, November 7, 1913, aged 64 years. She leaves one daughter, three sons, nine grandchildren, many friends to feel the loss of a Christian mother and friend. She joined the church some forty years ago. She was faithful to the end. Service at Stonington Chapel, Maine, George Knowlton and J. J. Billings in charge.

LARSON.—Anders Larson was born in Proweres, Canton County, Sweden, March 17, 1839, died at his home in Moorhead, Iowa, September 20, 1913, at 11.15 p. m., aged 74 years, 6 months, and 3 days, after a lingering illness for the past five years. The past seven months he was confined to his bed. He endured his lingering affliction without complaint, being patient and cheerful at all times. He came to this country in 1871 and located at Chicago. He was united in marriage to Miss Matilda Johnson, in Chicago, March 17, 1877. To this union were born eight children, the two oldest sons having passed beyond, to greet his coming. In the year 1879 he moved to Iowa, and located on a farm about two miles south-east of Moorhead, where he resided until 1909, when he purchased a home in town, where he resided until his death. Brother Larson united with the church October 13, 1889, and remained a faithful member to the last. He leaves to mourn a devoted wife, two sons, Henry and Frank, of near Moorhead, four daughters, Mrs. Clara McDonald of Omaha, Nebraska, Mrs. Lillie Willey of Lamoni, Iowa, and Misses Anna and Nellie, who still reside with the mother, a brother and sister of Chicago, Illinois, besides other relatives and a host of friends. The brother, Nils Larson, came to attend the funeral, and, being an undertaker, brought with him a beautiful casket, upon the plate of which were engraven Brother Larson's name and dates of his birth and death. The funeral services were held in the church Monday afternoon, conducted by Brother Charles Ballantyne. The sermon was by Elder Mark Jensen, as requested by the deceased brother. Interment in Moorhead Cemetery. Brother Larson was a good father, a kind and true husband, and a friend to all his associates.

"St. Nicholas" Features.

All children, and most grown-ups for that matter, hate to go to a bookstore and ask questions about books unless they are ready to buy them, however desirous they may be for information. This accounts for the large correspondence that has been created by The Book Man department in St. Nicholas Magazine. The Book Man is a genial person who discourses with children about books through direct correspondence. He has some difficult questions put up to him from time to time; for instance, he was recently asked by an inquiring child, why Great Expectations made fun of a number of great books in his famous "Condensed Novels."

Edward Lippincott is conceded to be one of the greatest experts alive in titles for his stories and books. His Jungle Books, which originally appeared in St. Nicholas Magazine, contain many unforgettable titles. Another less distinguished, but widely read contributor to St. Nicholas, is Miss Amline Gilbert, author of a series of biographical sketches. Her paper on Lincoln is called "The Matterhorn of men"; on Washington Irving "The sunny master of Sunnyside"; on Duval Livingston "The torch bearer of the Dark Continent."

The Most Important Year of the "Century Magazine."

"The period through which we are living, in its display of scientific accomplishment and clashing social forces is the most broadly significant and humanly spectacular in the forty-three years of the existence of The Century Magazine," says an editorial in The Century.

It is the avowed ambition of the magazine, say its publishers, to be as nearly as possible representative of the times in which we live. Believing that fiction is virtually the only effective means of approaching the minds of millions of intelligent persons, The Century will devote about half of each issue during the coming year to fiction. In a magazine of the size of The Century, this amount of space given to fiction leaves a great many pages which as usual will be devoted to art and poetry and to such papers as those on immigration by Professor Edward A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, by W. Morgan Shuster, author of "The strangling of Persia," on subjects of international interest; for example, "Have we a foreign policy?" and "Shall the Filipinos have a Fourth of July?"

Characteristic of the "New spirit of the Century" are the genuinely important papers: Theodore Roosevelt on "The Progressive Party"; Edna Kenton on "The militant women—and women" which gives the case for the feminists, and "The modern quest for a religion," a serious and reverent study by Winston Churchill, author of "The inside of the cup," which will be a feature of the December Century.

In the February Century will begin a prophetic trilogy by H. G. Wells, in which this modern prophet sees a possible and logical future that stirs the imagination. The February number will be a "Short story number," and will contain a special group of stories by authors who are either celebrated already or likely to become so.

Always a leader in the art field, The Century will continue to make a number of interesting experiments in various reproductive processes. With its corps of artist-engravers and its elaborate art department, The Century is able to get effects in full color and in "Century color-tone" that are impossible in less carefully printed and designed magazines.

In its comic department, "In Lighter Vein," The Century continues to prove that the best illustrators and the best writers are glad occasionally to turn to the lighter treatment of current topics.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:

Jesus Our Standard - - - - - 1141

Why Every Boy and Girl Should Have Stepping Stones - - - - - 1145

Notes and Comments - - - - - 1146

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

Restoration, by J. W. Wight - - - - - 1146

The Denver Indian Convention, by Arthur H. Mills - - - - - 1151

Christian Science, by James E. Yates - - - - - 1152

The Book that Impressed Me Most, by Ellen M. Switzer - - - - - 1152

OF GENERAL INTEREST:

Old Stone Age - - - - - 1153

Amana Colony Success - - - - - 1153

The Zionist Delegates - - - - - 1153

A Phenomenal Landslip - - - - - 1153

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - - 1154

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 1156

R. Etzenhouser—Josie Helms—Miss Montrose Shallbetter—John Heide—Miss Hazel Nuby—Mrs. Ida Hurd—Viola Stueva—R. Newby—O. W. Bruch—J. C. Foss—Mrs. Ivy Fisher—C. E. Liley—Frank J. Lacey—Alma M. Coombs—C. J. Hunt—Extracts from Letters.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 1160

A. C. Barmore—J. R. Sutton—T. W. Chatburn.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 1161

Elizabeth Patterson.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 1161

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us.

The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald," All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

Empty wagons make most noise.—Proverb.

Don't care has no house.—Proverb

The less friction, the less wear and the more speed.—Backbone.

A Pretty Christmas Gift.

Send for a string of salt beads, made out of the salt of the Great Salt Lake. They are very attractive Christmas gifts, and can be had in any color desired; white, pink, blue, black, yellow, green, purple, brown, wistaria, etc. Any shade duplicated on receipt of sample color desired.

The beads cost the church nothing, made by our own ladies, and the money all goes toward paying off the debt on the Salt Lake City church building.

Prices: 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00 and up to $2.50, according to length desired. Sample neck-chain sent on receipt of fifty cents. Remittances should preferably be made by post office order.

Send orders to Mrs. Pauline Dykes, 1326 Second East Street, Salt Lake City, Utah. Be sure to write your name and full address. 48-3t

1913

1914

READ THIS

From date of your remittance to January 1, 1915, we will send the "Saints' Herald" and "Youth's Companion" for $3.25.

Regular Yearly Subscription to Saints' Herald $1.50
 Regular Yearly Subscription to Youth's Companion $2.00

The rest of this year and 1914 for $3.25 only. This offer good to both old and new subscribers.

NOT GOOD FOR THOSE IN ARREARS, UNLESS REMITTANCE IS MADE FOR ARREARS ALSO.

DON'T PUT THIS OFF—SUBSCRIBE NOW.

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
 Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
 A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
 Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
 Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
 Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
 LAMONI - - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa
 Capital $25,000.00
 Surplus $8,750.00
 UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
 POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
 Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

FOR SALE.

My circumstances are such that it becomes necessary that I sell my property in Independence, Missouri, in order to raise some cash by January 1. $750.00 will handle this property. Write for particulars to
 J. A. GILLEN,
 17-3t 635 So. Fuller Street.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
 Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
 No. 140. Price .....50c

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
 Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
 Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.
 Order No.
 141 cloth .....75c
 141 1/2 leather .....$1.00
 174 flexible .....$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
 Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
 The King of Peace.
 Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
 The King of Peace .....25c
 Within the Veil .....15c
 Wayward Stream .....25c
 One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
 Rest .....25c
THE SWEET GOSPEL STORY, by W. J. Smith .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
 No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.)
 John Zahnd,
 6-tf Independence, Mo.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
 Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
 Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
 DESIGNS
 COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HALL BROS. on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co 361 Broadway, New York
 Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

"Personally Conducted"
 Excursions to California

Are you going to California? Do you want to be extra comfortable on the trip at no extra cost? Would you like to have a first rate, good-natured, thoroughly competent and well informed conductor go all the way through on the trip with you, a man who is especially selected, and paid by our Railroad Company to look after your comfort? Such a man goes through with each of our "Personally Conducted" parties. We chose men specially fitted for this work. Men who are courteous and kind, who have made the trip many times and understand the art of making people comfortable. Just call or write and let me tell you all about the Personally Conducted, low fare parties to California, that have helped to make the "Burlington Route" service famous.

L. F. Siltz,
 Ticket Agent, Burlington Route

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, DECEMBER 3, 1913

NUMBER 49

Editorial

WAS THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES INSPIRED?

A GREAT SCHOLAR CHALLENGES THE "INSPIRATION THEORY."

And for this purpose have I established the Constitution of this land, by the hands of wise men whom I raised up unto this very purpose, and redeemed the land by the shedding of blood.—Doctrine and Covenants 98:10.

Believing this statement to be true, and that God indeed inspired and directed those who drafted the Constitution of the United States, we have been interested in a recent study of a very able work entitled, The Origin and Growth of the American Constitution, by Hannis Taylor, LL. D., of the Universities of Edinburgh and Dublin, author of The Origin and Growth of the English Constitution; International Public Law; and other important works on similar subjects.

In the very beginning of this book Mr. Taylor ridicules what he terms the "inspiration theory" of the origin of the Constitution. As this position is so flatly contradictory to the one set forth in the Book of Covenants, we followed his writings with intense interest, but failed to discover any very formidable arguments against the theory of inspiration. In fact, some of the things he presents strongly support the position that we have held.

GLADSTONE ON THE CONSTITUTION.

He cites us to the following statement made by Gladstone:

As the British Constitution is the most subtle organism which has proceeded from progressive history, so the American Constitution is the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man.

The English Constitution is the result of long and slow evolutionary growth through centuries, or as Gladstone expressed it, "has proceeded from progressive history." The Constitution of the United States on the other hand came rather suddenly into existence, and was patterned after no existing models. In fact, according to Mr. Taylor, it was based on what he terms "a path-breaking concept," and contains some four or five fundamental principles never before in the world's history incorporated in any scheme of federal government.

ALEXIS DE TOCQUEVILLE ON THE CONSTITUTION.

In his remarkable series of observations, published in 1835, Alexis de Tocqueville, of France, declared that the Federal Constitution of the United States is based "upon a wholly novel theory which may be considered a great discovery in modern political science."

Each of the several States patterned to a large extent after the English Government, but the Federal Government of these States could find no model there to imitate, because England is a "consolidated nation," while here there was a federation of sovereign States. All federations previously existing had lacked cohesion, power, and efficiency because the government was given no authority to go back of the respective state governments in levying taxes and executing its will upon individuals. It could only deal with the States as entities or corporations, and the final authority and power to execute orders rested with them.

Under the Constitution of the United States an entirely new condition arose, and a government resulted that, according to Alexis de Tocqueville, was neither federal nor national, but having some of the characteristics of both, recognized the right of sovereign States to exercise all prerogatives not delegated by the Constitution to the Federal Government, and not prohibited by that document, and at the same time gave the Federal Government the power "not only to dictate, but to execute its own enactments."

THREE PRELIMINARY PLANS.

Mr. Taylor scouts the "inspiration theory" and gives as one reason the fact that three individuals came to the convention of 1787 which finally drafted the Constitution with three different plans, carefully formulated and worked out in great detail, each of which contained five great fundamental principles finally incorporated in the Constitution. In fact these three plans were on all fundamental principles in perfect accord, though differing widely as to details. They included what is known as the Virginia Plan, presented by Madison, another, a "system of government," introduced by Charles Pinckney, of South Carolina; and the third, that advocated by Alexander Hamilton.

It seems absurd to Mr. Taylor to imagine that there should be any inspiration from God that could work upon these three young men, each without knowledge of the plans of the others, resulting in this perfect and remarkable concord of sentiment. But we are unable to detect the element of absurdity in this situation. Certainly it was no more difficult for God to work upon the minds of several individual delegates who were about to attend that convention and lead them to a common understanding, than it would have been for him to have operated through some one of the delegates and placed upon him the burden of converting all others.

THE FORERUNNER OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Mr. Taylor, however, traces the origin of the leading ideas contained in these three plans back to a common source. We quote from his book as follows:

From what common source did the draftsmen of the pre-arranged plans draw the "wholly novel theory," the path-breaking idea, which was the basis of all them? That simple and inevitable question was never answered until a few years ago, when the author reprinted, with a commentary, the epoch-making paper published by Pelatiah Webster, at Philadelphia, February 16, 1773, and there republished with notes in 1791, in which he announced to the world, as his invention, the entire plan of the existing Constitution of the United States, worked out in detail more than four years before the Federal Convention of 1787 met. That paper, entitled, "A Dissertation on the Political Union and Constitution of the Thirteen United States of North America," whose lightest words are weighty, is just as authentic as the Constitution itself, and far more elaborate. Two editions of it, with the author's commentary, have been published by Congress. When it was thus reprinted, after an interval of one hundred and sixteen years, its contents were as unknown to the leading jurists and statesmen of this generation as if it had been a papyrus from Egypt or Herculaneum.—Page 24.

On February 16, 1783, Pelatiah Webster—a great political economist and retired financier, the Adam Smith of that epoch, a graduate of Yale, a patriot in the Revolutionary cause, then a mature thinker of fifty-seven, better equipped perhaps than any other man in the country to deal with the vital question of taxation involved—published at Philadelphia, at the very doors of the Continental Congress, in a pamphlet of forty-seven pages, "the great discovery in modern political science," which was carried to the Federal Convention of 1787 in the three plans prepared by Madison, Pinckney, and Hamilton. At the moment that publication was made, Madison and Hamilton, then young men of thirty-two and twenty-six respectively, were in Philadelphia as members of the Congress in which Charles Pinckney, then twenty-five, took his seat soon afterwards. Even when the three plans drafted by Madison, Pinckney, and Hamilton are taken as one document, they present the great discovery in much less detail than the original in which it was proclaimed. After the adjournment of the Federal Convention, Webster republished his paper with copious notes, restating his claims and appealing to posterity for justice. As Madison frankly states, Pelatiah Webster was the first to propose, as early as 1781, in one of his of his financial essays, published at Philadelphia in May of that year, the calling of "a Continental Convention" for the making of an entirely new Constitution.—Pages 13, 14.

FOUR GREAT PRINCIPLES.

Four of the great principles advocated by Webster are thus set forth:

(1) A federal government with the independent power of taxation; (2) the division of the federal head into three departments, legislative, executive, and judicial; (3) the division of the federal legislature into two chambers; (4) a federal government with delegated powers, the residuum of power remaining in the states. The fourth proposition Webster stated in this remarkably ample and explicit form as an anticipation of the Tenth Amendment, which provides that "the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively or to the people.—Pages 29, 30.

And the results are thus described:

The discovery of these four basic principles, of which the world had never heard before, wrought a revolution whose essence is embodied in the fact that the new creation, partly federal and partly national, operates directly on the citizen and not on the states as corporations.—Page 30.

We may trace the germ of the ideas back ever so far, still we can not destroy the thought that God may have inspired these great "path-breaking concepts" first, according to Hannis Taylor, advocated by Webster, and almost immediately taken up by Madison, Pinckney, and Hamilton, and later through the combined wisdom of the delegates present at the great convention formulated into the Constitution.

THESE MEN PRAYED FOR DIVINE DIRECTION.

Mr. Taylor himself, speaking of Webster, says:

Approaching his fundamental concept from the commercial side, Webster manifested an almost supernormal prescience as to future conditions.—Page 30.

While Webster himself is quoted:

But now the great and most difficult part of this weighty subject remains to be considered, viz: how these supreme powers are to be constituted in such manner that they may be able to exercise with full force and effect the vast authorities committed to them for the good and well-being of the United States, and yet so checked and restrained from exercising them to the injury and ruin of the states, that we may with safety trust them with a commission of such vast magnitude—and may Almighty Wisdom direct my pen in this arduous discussion.—Pages 31, 32.

The men who finally assembled to draft a constitution went at their work in the same spirit that, according to Mr. Taylor, inspired Pelatiah Webster. Or at least they were so admonished by General

George Washington, who was president of the assembly and one of its most influential members. In support of this we have the following:

It was recalled, many years afterward, how General Washington had stood in the midst of a little group of delegates, during the anxious first days at Philadelphia, while they waited for commissioners enough to justify them in effecting an organization, and had cried, "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair. The event is in the hands of God."—A History of the American People, by Woodrow Wilson, vol. 3, p. 71.

This statement taken from the history by Woodrow Wilson (now President) is also quoted as authentic by Mr. Taylor on page 173 of his book.

Again we are told by Mr. Taylor concerning one of the ablest of these men:

In the midst of that crisis it was that Franklin, forgetting the mocking skepticism of his youth, proposed that the Convention should be opened every morning with prayer.—Page 45.

And he is quoted in a footnote as saying:

I have lived, sir, a long time, and the longer I live the more convincing proofs I see of this truth—that God governs in the affairs of men.—Madison Papers II, p. 985.

THE CHARACTER OF THE MEN.

At a dinner given by the Pennsylvania Society, December 14, 1912, in commemoration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the framing of the Constitution of the United States, James Bryce, retiring ambassador from Great Britain, as guest of honor, made a speech in which he said, in part:

The Constitution was the work of an extraordinary group of men, such as has seldom been seen living at the same time in any country and such as had never been brought together in any other country to undertake the immensely difficult task of framing a fundamental instrument of government for a nation. The Nation was then a small one and it is one of the most striking tributes to the genius and foresight of the men that the frame of government which they designed for three million people should have proved fitting to serve the needs of 93,000,000. . . .

Let us honor the memory of the illustrious men who rendered this incomparable and enduring service, not only to you, but to all mankind.

It should be borne in mind that this statement does not come from an American citizen, who might be carried away by national pride, but from a distinguished British diplomat and a recognized authority on subjects of political economy, well known as author of the great work called, The American Commonwealth.

Mr. Taylor says himself of the assembly:

The philosophers, statesmen, jurists, warriors, experienced men of affairs, who composed the august assembly that wrought at Philadelphia in 1787, may be compared, as to genius and learning, with the master spirits of any age.—Page 43.

IF ANY MAN LACK WISDOM, LET HIM ASK OF GOD.

If, indeed, as we seem to have it upon good authority, Peletiah Webster first undertook to set forth the essential elements of the Constitution of the United States, it is quite in harmony with the statement made in the Doctrine and Covenants to find him setting about that great task with a fervent prayer for divine direction and inspiration.

It is also in harmony with that statement to find George Washington, president of the assembly, declaring that the event was in the hands of God; and the assembly, as admonished by Benjamin Franklin, daily seeking divine aid and assistance.

The good old biblical promise was still in force, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

Let skeptics scout the "inspiration theory," and in the next breath admit that the prime movers in this work craved divine direction; we have a more consistent theory. We believe that they received the inspiration for which they prayed, and which God had promised.

From on high came this "path-breaking concept."

Not of themselves did they produce this "wholly novel theory which may be considered a great discovery in political science," as de Tocqueville says.

Not alone did they finally achieve that which the wise and great Gladstone pronounced "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

THE MODERN SCHOLASTIC, MATERIALISTIC VIEWPOINT.

Evidently Mr. Taylor entertains the modern scholastic, materialistic viewpoint, which does not recognize that prayers may be answered. Hence he attaches no importance at all to the fact that divine wisdom was asked for and that it came from some source to such a degree that in Webster's case Mr. Taylor himself declared it to be almost "supernormal," and to such a degree that as manifested in the finished Constitution it astonished and delighted the greatest statesman of his generation, Gladstone. This may be considered the broad and liberal viewpoint by the worldly wise; but to us it seems essentially narrow and unenlightened.

The profound researches and scholarship of such men as Mr. Taylor are extremely valuable; but it does not follow that their conclusions, though based upon undisputed facts, are to be accepted without question, especially when those conclusions are predetermined by an agnostic education and inclination which is just as liable to be one-sided and dogmatic and irrational as is the opposite spirit of blind religious credulity.

IN CONCLUSION.

In conclusion, we affirm that the statement made in the Book of Covenants to the effect that God directed and inspired the men who conceived and perfected (established) the Constitution, is supported by the fact that those men craved divine wisdom and recognized that "the event was in the hands of God"; and by the further fact that when the instrument was finally fully framed its character was of such a nature that Gladstone pronounced it the "most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

And the further statement found in the Book of Covenants to the effect that God raised these men up for that very purpose is supported by Ambassador Bryce's declaration that this was an "extraordinary group of men, such as has seldom been seen living at the same time in any country and such as had never been brought together in any country, to undertake the immensely difficult task of framing a fundamental instrument of government for a nation."

ELBERT A. SMITH.

---

THE VERDICT CONFIRMED.

In 1833 and for many years thereafter it was commonly thought that alcoholic drinks were beneficial and especially valuable at times of physical weakness or in the performing of some unusual physical feat. Physicians freely prescribed liquors as tonics, etc. More recently, however, it has been discovered that alcohol is damaging and disastrous in its effects. Athletes no longer expect added strength and endurance from alcohol; physicians have discarded it almost entirely only in external applications. So general is this reversal of opinion that we find spirituous liquors condemned in the business world, in athletic fields, and by the press on every hand.

As one instance among many we quote from the Des Moines (Iowa) Capital for November 8, keeping in mind that in February, 1833, Joseph Smith gave to the church that which purported to be words of wisdom through revelation, among which words we read:

Inasmuch as any man drinketh wine or strong drink among you, behold it is not good. . . . Strong drinks are not for the belly, but for the washing of your bodies.

The Capital, under the above caption, says:

"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Such was the conclusion of the wisest man the world ever knew. There is not a proverb that ever came from the pen of Solomon the truth of which has not been confirmed by practical human experience. It matters not how much of intoxicating liquors the race is consuming at the present day, nine out of every ten men and women addicted to the cup would be willing to admit, if forced to say, that the words of Solomon are painfully and tragically true.

Practical people are coming to see that there is a practical side to the temperance issue. The discussion is no longer confined to homiletic platitudes concerning the immorality of liquor drinking.

The business world, the industrial world, is realizing more and more the necessity of having sober people to transact its duties and perform its important work. And we hear the same demand in the realm of sport in which the multitudes are interested. Reverend D. F. Fox, a prominent clergyman of the Congregational denomination, stated in an interview a few days ago:

"I was talking the other day to Ban Johnson, president of the American baseball league, and he told me that no contracts for next year in either the American or the National league would be signed with players who did not agree in them not to use intoxicating liquors in the course of the season."

The meaning of all this is so plain that it requires no amplification. The world of sport recognizes the fact that sound bodies and clear minds are necessary to those triumphs of skill which make athletics a matter of perennial public interest.

If one were to study only the statistics from the internal revenue department it would be possible to obtain a very discouraging view of the temperance issue in this country. But there is a brighter side. The leaven of an enlightened public sentiment is constantly at work. It is finding its way into statutory enactment. These laws are not always sound, not always practical, not always reasonable; but the point is they show a public recognition of the great truth that strong drink mocks but never guarantees; that it tears down but never builds up; that it brings misery but never happiness; that it destroys moral fiber but never makes men and women better than they were before.

"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise."

Let him who does not believe it take a stroll any morning to the Des Moines police court and look upon the wrecks of humanity who are gathered in there in a single night. If he is honest with himself and honest with his fellow man, and is capable of looking upon perverted lives with a feeling of pity rather than a cynical sneer, he will freely admit that the demon of intemperance has never yet been depicted in terms of exaggeration.

The call of the world is for sober men.

J. F. GARVER.

---

THE CHILDREN'S HOME.

Over one year ago we appealed with splendid results, for aid to provide for the helpless children who are inmates of the Children's Home.

Prior to this we were running behind on current expenses monthly, and had not the people come to our rescue at that time we probably would have had to close the doors or become hopelessly involved in debt. But as a result of your help we have paid the arrears at that time accumulated on running expenses, and paid current expenses to date; besides reducing the original debt materially.

We come now to thank, in behalf of the home, and the church, all who responded in the time of need, and to inform you that our means is about exhausted, and we are again facing a crisis. This, we think, is all that we need to say, for your sympathy for this worthy institution, and your liberality have already been tested, and found to be all that could be expected.

We are aware that there are many demands for money for other worthy purposes, and it is embarrassing to us to add to these ever-increasing demands; but we think we would neglect our duty did we not inform you of the condition of this institution established by the church to care for homeless children. So that if anyone has anything, no matter how small the amount, which he desires to contribute to this worthy purpose, he will have the privilege of doing so by sending us the amount.

HEMAN C. SMITH,
President of Board of Trustees.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

LONG TRACT.—If the matter heretofore referred to in these columns and written by Elder E. E. Long is to be published as a tract those desiring that such be done must notify the Herald Publishing House at once. This discussion of the work of Alexander Campbell and his brethren followed long and painstaking study on the part of Brother Long, and in every way is an able presentation of the points at issue. Our brethren in the field need such a tract, and by cooperating with the management can secure it at a nominal figure. Write at once, notifying the Herald Publishing House as to the number you desire at twenty cents each, six for one dollar.

KANSAS CITY PROGRESSING.—In writing with reference to the Open Letter to the Clergy, Brother J. A. Tanner, pastor of the Central Church, Kansas City, says: "We are getting along nicely down this way; in fact, things are better now than at any time since I came here." To help in the upward progress of the work there, Brethren J. W. Rushton and F. A. Smith were engaged to conduct special services November 9 to 23. These meetings were announced by tags, folders, posters, etc., and in the November Central Church Bulletin, edited by Brother Harvey Sandy. By report from Brother F. A. Smith we learn that the meetings were well attended, the interest excellent, and the effort a success in every way.

SUMMER SCHOOL AGAIN.—In announcing a series of services to be held by Brother Paul M. Hanson, the branch at Somerville, Massachusetts, commonly known as the Boston Branch, states that the Daily Vacation Bible School work will be continued next summer. In the announcement Brother Farrell says: "We are even now planning ways to make the children happy and teach them useful things." This work at Somerville has been a success in every way, as it has been also at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Omaha, and Independence. There are other branches where it could be taken up with equal success. By "planning ways" now, all would be in readiness when summer comes. We are sure that from any of the above-named places information may be readily secured with reference to plans for the organization and carrying forward of this commendable work.

DEDICATION AT DETROIT.—Writing of the dedication of the new church at Detroit, Michigan, Brother William F. Sage says:

The dedicatory services on Sunday, October 26, with the church filled to its capacity, was indeed impressive of its solemn nature. The sermon preached by Elder Curtis was instrumental in bringing a realization of the need and use of such a building. The special singing by the Detroit choir was beautiful. Dedicatory prayer was by Elder William Fligg, of Canada. There was hardly a dry eye when the sweet, hallowed influence of the blessed Spirit of the Master was felt in token of the acceptance of the building which the Saints had erected at a sacrifice to numbers.

Brother Sage adds that publicity was given the dedication by the press of Detroit which was a result of "endeavor and work ahead of time by Brother Arthur Allen and others."

EDITORIAL SELECTION.

THE ANGEL OF PATIENCE.

To weary hearts, to mourning homes,
God's meekest angel gently comes;
No power has he to banish pain,
Or give us back our lost again;
And yet in tenderest love our dear
And heavenly Father sends him here.

There's quiet in that angel's glance,
There's rest in his still countenance!
He mocks no grief with idle cheer,
Nor wounds with words the mourner's ear;
But ills and woes he may not cure,
He kindly trains us to endure.

Angel of patience! sent to calm
Our feverish brows with cooling balm;
To lay the storms of hope and fear,
And reconcile life's smile and tear;
The throbs of wounded pride to still,
And make our own our Father's will!

Oh thou who mourned on thy way,
With longings for the close of day—
He walks with thee, that angel kind,
And gently whispers, "Be resigned;
Bear up, bear on, the end shall tell
The dear Lord ordereth all things well!"

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

Original Articles

INTERNATIONAL PURITY CONGRESS.

As a member of the Purity Board of the church, and under special appointment by the First Presidency as a delegate representative of the interests of our church, I attended the seventh International Purity Congress at Minneapolis, Minnesota, November 7 to 12. This congress is called annually by the World's Purity Federation, and was attended by some seven hundred delegates in all, under appointment from the Federal Government of the United States, from Canada, from over thirty States, and from various temperance, purity, anti-cigarette and anti-vice associations, from law and order leagues of States and cities, and from many ecclesiastical bodies and local organizations.

As noted above, the congress lasted over six days, a total of seventy strong addresses being given in a series of seventeen sessions. Among the strongest speakers on the program were the following: Reverend Charles W. Gordon, the well-known Ralph Connor, of Winnipeg, Manitoba; Doctor K. D. Shastri, an eminent reformer and educator of India; President Charles McKenny, of the State Normal School, Ypsilanti, Michigan; President Vincent, of the State University of Minnesota; Mrs. B. F. Carroll, Des Moines, Iowa; Chief Justice Harry Okon, of the municipal court, Chicago; Ng Poon Chew, a most brilliant Chinese scholar, Canton, China; Lieutenant George O'Hara, of Illinois; Superintendent William F. Crofts, of the International Reform Bureau, Washington, District of Columbia; Mrs. Booth-Clibborn, daughter of General William Booth, London, England; Miss Emma F. A. Drake, author, Denver, Colorado; Honorable William S. Kenyon, United States Senator from Iowa; Mrs. Mary E. Tuts, Chicago; Mrs. Kate Waller Berrett, president National Florence Crittenden Missions, Alexandria, Virginia, and many others of national reputation.

The congress was unique in that it sought to organize every available power for good among men with a view to suppression of vice and the violation of wholesome laws, under the motto: "The white slave traffic and public vice can and must be annihilated." Great credit is due the president, Mr. B. S. Steadwell, for the able manner in which the congress was organized, and in which its sessions were conducted. No preferences were shown because of social rank, color, or denominational affiliation; and the great program of eminent and stirring addresses was offered for the good of humanity, and without remunerative consideration.

It was a constant source of inspiration to witness the devotion on the part of so many sterling men and women to principles of honor, virtue, purity and right. Such forces can not but be productive of good in the world. We were pleased to be accorded a place in the assembly as a representative of the restored gospel.

We hope to embody many of the truths presented, together with the results of the past year of study, in a leaflet soon to be issued by the Purity Board. However, a few notes here may not be amiss.

Some significance may be attached to the case of Doctor K. D. Shastri, of India, who was severely taken to task for his statement in an interview with a newspaper reporter to the effect that India received little benefit from the preaching of sectarian missionaries from America. While he was soundly rebuked by many, one could not but admire his seeming integrity and the courage of his conviction. He would not rescind his statement, but sought justification on the ground that: We worship the Christ in India. But with us he is just the Christ. He is not the Christ of the Baptist, nor the Christ of the Methodist, but the Christ sent of God, the Christ of love and meekness, truth and self-sacrifice, whom we delight to honor. But most emphatically we say we must not have your sectarian Christianity, which suits not the spirit of the East, for our religion is the religion of harmony and truth.

The astounding fact of America's degeneracy was emphasized in the evidence that physical and moral degenerates are increasing in number, annually, two and one half times as fast as the increase in population. Unless the source of this decay can be stayed, which is definitely located in intemperance and sexual vice, our national decay is certain; and we must follow in the wake of Greece, Rome, France, and Spain. The hope of the Nation was represented as resident in the powerful forces operating to rid the country of intemperance and the use of tobacco, and to abate commercialized vice.

Among the forces tending toward the latter may be noted recent law enactment abolishing segregated vice districts in many prominent cities, restricting interstate traffic in prostitution, providing for police women, juvenile courts, and a strict censorship upon places of amusement, including moving picture shows. Most effective of all may be the awakening of a public conscience to the great moral and physical evils which have stalked unmolested through our land. Evidences of the awakening are seen in the demand for more pure and wholesome home conditions; sound reform laws and their strict enforcement; more careful training of our children in the home and at school in the great truths of life and generation—a preparation for economic and happy parenthood. True, the general public is not yet awake, but it is evident that only that portion which breaks the shackles of sin and arouses from the lethargy of indifference shall long survive.

Intelligent parenthood was the watchword heralded by many speakers. Looseness of morals in social relations of the sexes, especially in the early teens, the over stimulation due to suggestive post cards, suggestive songs, motion pictures, immodest dress, the dance, and late hours, with little intelligent parental restraint, or guidance, are given as the primary causes for the enormous prevalence of illegitimate children, divorce, and the entrance of our girls into lives of shame.

The double standard of morals, which has so unfortunately fastened itself upon the race, was unanimously given responsibility for three fourths of the evil extant in the land. "A white life for two," or a single moral code, equally binding upon men and women in every age and condition can alone establish freedom from the debauch of our manhood and the wrecking of our womanhood. The loss to the Nation of the virtue and life of over two hundred and fifty thousand of her fair daughters annually in commercialized vice, sacrificed to the unbridled passion and lust; and the concomitant entrance into an immoral and diseased life of at least two million five hundred thousand of our young men is an enormous drain upon the vitality of the Nation. And this because of the depravity of mankind in this noble country, the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Lust and desire for financial gain have long licensed the traffic in human souls, placed a blot upon the pages of American history, and opened festering sores in the Nation that only ages of reform may be able to efface and to heal. We question if human agency alone could ever effect the reform. It must perform its part, but redemption can only come through intelligent human effort supplemented by the power of God, the leading of the Holy Spirit, and the consummation of the mission work of the Savior. Truly, the earth groaneth and travaileth in iniquity!

The gospel has been established in its fullness and purity, and we rejoice in its truth; but the Saints of God must exercise exceeding caution if they meet the demands of the day, and keep their garments unspotted. While our greatest concern is in our own personal and family lives, and in the purity of the lives of those who have entered the family of God, we should intelligently seek to perform our part as citizens of every community, state, and nation to which we have sworn allegiance, to forward every good movement and work.

Again, we were pleased to find ourselves allied with these noble men and women of the earth who so earnestly seek the good of their fellow men.

Space prevents further delineation of the addresses here, but they will all be published during the coming months in the official organ of the federation, The Light, the subscription price of which is only fifty cents per year. We have an arrangement with the publisher by which a liberal commission is allowed the Purity Board for subscriptions sent through it. We can heartily recommend this periodical as being the best of its kind, and trust that many of our people will avail themselves of this opportunity to learn in detail of the forces which are combating national evils. Whatever commissions we may receive will be placed in the hands of our treasurer, and will be properly reported. Send orders with cash to the undersigned.

CHARLES B. WOODSTOCK.

LAMONI, IOWA.

* * * * *

SELF-DENIAL.

And he said to them all, If any man will come after me let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.—Luke 9: 23.

This is one of the famous utterances of the Master. It is a very grand expression and conveys to our mind, volumes of truth. It is one of the deeper sentiments expressed by our Master. It is not a parable, but a direct statement, and easily understood. In a sense it comes as a stern rebuke to the worldly man who is professing to be a follower of the Savior, yet in reality is found in the wrong pathway, and is following the god of pleasure (Bacchus). This individual would be a disciple, but like the "rich young ruler," has a greater esteem for the frivolous things of this world, which will perish, than for the riches of the kingdom of God.

If it were possible for a man to serve two masters, to enjoy the vain things of this world and commune with the Spirit of God, to drink the Lord's cup and the cup of devils; if it were possible to serve God and Mammon, many who are now aliens to the true conditions which pertain to the cause of Christ would be disciples. But no, the Master has said, "No man cometh to the Father but by me"; also, "If any man will come after me let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily."

To deny himself seems to be the initiative. But what is he to deny himself of? That which will warm him in the winter? that which might protect his body? that which would nourish his body? Let us see if we are not able to solve the question.

DENIAL WITHOUT WISDOM.

In far-off India there is a certain class of people whom we call religious fanatics. I believe that they are called "Penitentes." The same class of people, and of the same convictions, were to be found in Old Mexico, and until late years were found in parts of New Mexico. These people believe that if they afflict the flesh and torture their bodies, they will receive the greater glory. In Old Mexico they even went so far as to literally pick up their cross, to receive a crown of thorns, and submit to be crucified as their Savior was. This actually happened, and within the last century, and has been described in the works of Charles Loomis.

It is hard for us to believe, yet that was the example of their zeal. We will find the man in India living in a secluded spot, in a thatched hut, his food a bowl of rice with cold water, his bed not the old-fashioned kind that our grandmothers made, but consisting of thorns and spikes. Perhaps many times a day he will punish his body, and as many times a day he will pray to an unknown god. He has zeal; he also has self-denial; and that carried to the extreme; but we will question the claim that he is a disciple. He lacks wisdom. So it is with the illustration found in the south land. The letter of the law is carried out in detail, but the spirit of the message is unknown to them.

In the days of asceticism, in ancient Rome, there was a class of people who were of a similar conviction, which may be expressed in these words: To lead the Christ life one must segregate himself from the affairs of this life, pertaining to commercialism and state, and there in seclusion ponder upon those things which to them would seem to lead Godward. The same mistake was made again, but this idea fastened itself to the society of mediæval times, and was the foundation to monasticism, which exists in a great measure to-day. These people seem ignorant of the real virtues which lead to God.

NOT SEGREGATION BUT SERVICE.

Our Master was found in the market places, and by the seaside, and among the rabble, and at other times in the synagogue, teaching the people. It is true that he was a praying man; very often did he withdraw from the world for a few peaceful moments to commune with the heavenly Father. Just prior to the calling of the twelve he spent the whole night in prayer. But when these times interrupted his busy life, he would not torture his body to make an impression upon his Father. It is true that he suffered untold agony in the garden, but this was thrust upon him, or was the burden which he assumed, which was made necessary by the transgression of others.

From these illustrations we see that those that believe in segregation are as far from the principles of Christianity as the east is from the west. The Savior told those who were claiming to be teachers that they gave heed to certain things, but that they were omitting weightier matters. So in the case of these whose practices we have examined; they are lacking in some things that are of the most importance. First comes service, and along with that, and impossible to be separated from it is charity. You can not have one without the other, in the truest sense; and without either our religion becomes a mere form, and is contemptible in the sight of our Master. The individual who secludes himself from the temptations of the world will become a victim of self and the temptations from within. Selfishness will drive away all charity, and other things will work against a pure expression of the godly.

The Savior stated on a certain occasion that he who would be greatest in the kingdom of heaven must become the servant of all. This teaching he impressed upon the minds of the apostles by washing their feet. As a man is judged by the acts of this life, by his works, whether they are good or evil, then it should be our desire to do as he told us. And it was said of him, "He went about doing good." What grander expression could be made of the works and life of any individual? He said, "I am the way, the truth, and the light." And again, "I am the door." If this be true, then let us model our lives after the greatest Teacher that mankind has known.

THE ROYAL LAW.

But we have not pointed out in detail what should be denied in order to be a disciple. The Savior never gave us a law of carnal commandments. Ours is the royal law of liberty. And when he said one should deny himself, I believe that he referred in brief to those things which lead from a pure life, and those things which defile the body; that he meant to avoid those fleshly things of this world which have a tendency to undermine our better parts and our goodly desires. He aimed at those things which are the instruments of the Devil and by which he (the Devil) will enslave us and draw us down to destruction.

Our love must cease to be centered upon self, and we must learn to think of others. We must arrive at such a condition of mind that we will rejoice when our neighbor is successful, and not rejoice at his defeat. Yes, indeed; if we are to become servants of the Master, we must crucify self.

As we have seen, the Master went about doing good. But if he had been prompted by selfish motives, I am of the opinion that he would have followed the footsteps of his foster father and would have continued as a carpenter. If he had desired so to do he may have ranked as a leader of the people. No doubt he would have been popular in any line that he might have followed; but if this had been his desire, and selfishness had been his motive his name would not have been known outside of Judea. But we know him because he had a mission to perform, because he crucified self and performed that which was required of him by his heavenly Father. His love was so free that he gave his life as a ransom that we might live.

THE CHRIST WAY.

What was the Christ way? He said it was necessary to follow him. Which way did he go? Master, where are thy steps, that we may follow thee? Are you willing to say that? Perchance you have already said it. So let us find the path which leads to life.

The first stepping-stone is that of self-denial. We are able to see this principle in all his life, from the time that he said to Mary, "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" until we see him on the cross and hear those words ringing in our ears, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" We hear him groaning in the garden beneath that heavy burden. If he had followed the desires of the man life he then might have been a prince in a palace. He knew full well that those pleasures which had been offered to him by the prince of darkness were only temporary. How fully did he realize that the way to life was by the way of the cross! If we could weigh the virtues of the Christ life and the worldly life, we, too, would willingly take up our cross and follow him.

The Savior fully realized that should he lay down this temporal body, he would have a new body, a glorified one. He knew that should he lay down his body that he would take it up under better conditions. Now we are able to understand the statement, He that saves his life shall lose it. Were we to understand that this temporal existence is all that we have, that the grave is the end, if this were our faith, then the statement would seem to be a contradiction. But we do not so comprehend it. We realize that man is of a twofold nature, in one estate adapted to time, the other to eternity. Death does not end all. It is really a commencement of life. If we have wrought well in this life, we then will be able to realize that threescore years are but a brief moment when compared to the vastness of eternity.

This life is designed to be a period of preparation for us. As has been said, life is but a stage, and each one has his part to play. There is a grain of truth in that. It is true that if we do not do our part no other can do it for us, and we will lose by our neglect. In temporal things, if we want a goodly harvest we must sow good seed and labor until the harvesting is done; and in other lines if we want knowledge we must toil for it. And in the spiritual, if we desire the spiritual we must struggle for it.

It might not be a trial for me to avoid certain things, but for others those same things might be objects to tempt them. Because I have no desire for rum or tobacco and never did have any desire for them, I must not conclude that they will not tempt a brother. That might be his weakness. And if he would yield to that weakness, and be overcome by the temptation, he would suffer great loss. While I am not tempted by those objects, still I have my weak points; yes, they are many. But I must overcome those temptations if I would enjoy a closer walk with the Christ. In other words, I must deny myself the desires of the flesh. Perhaps if we are prayerful, and struggle, we will so develop that wherein we are weak we will be strong, and have no desire for those things which would enslave us. If we are satisfying self we are not following the Christ. It is a physical impossibility to satisfy the carnal desires and at the same time develop the spiritual conditions which pertain to the Christ life.

We are commanded to go on unto perfection. Are we doing it? Can we do it and satisfy self? I say that we can not. The Savior said that we must deny self. We will receive a hundred fold for what it might cost us. Some might think it a poor policy to forsake all to follow him. He asks us to forsake those things which are enemies to our righteous development. He asks us to throw overboard those things that are detrimental. And in lieu thereof he will bestow those things that will reward us. Out of weakness we will be made strong. For as the hand of the sculptor is to the block of marble, his hand will be to us. Yes, and more, he will develop all that is in us, and cause us to be happier in this life and able to accomplish more good, also prepare us for an everlasting habitation in the glorified beyond.

LINE OF LEAST RESISTANCE.

The lightning passes through the sky on a dark, stormy night. Its passage is marked by many angles. Did you ever ask why it is so? Would it not seem reasonable that it should go in a straight course, since it passes so swiftly? The reason it has such a crooked pathway is that it follows the line of the least resistance. That is a law of nature, and you are not immune from the principles of that law. If you give yourself over to the carnal desires you will follow the path of least resistance. If you take the easy way it will be with the crowd. One says, Why not? Why not have a good time in this world? We have not said that you should not have a good time. That which you find in the world is only imaginary and not real. The only true happiness is that which is eternal and found in the path which leads to life, and not in the broad way.

For another illustration we may look to the man in the jungles in the tropics. We notice first that he is indolent. He is on a very low intellectual plane. He has no foresight. In fact, if he thinks at all, as pertaining to the future, he will see that his food supply for to-morrow will be just as plentiful as it is to-day. He need not think of winter; that is unknown to him. You will notice that he, too, is following the path of the least resistance, is he not? Since competition is at a very low ebb, his path is an easy one, indeed, to him. Is he a character builder? He does not know anything about a character. He is just a human being, and that is all. His environment is his maker.

VIRTUE IN RESISTANCE.

We have another illustration, to make the thought plainer, in the white race—the race which has surpassed all others in the struggle in the commercial as well as in the intellectual world. This race is to be found in those portions of the world where competition is high, and where the climatic conditions are not always ideal. Perfection in production is the means to success. The law of the survival of the fittest is enforced, and the struggle for existence is severe. I see virtue in this contest. Inasmuch as perfection is required, then all the good in a man will be developed. He will learn to force his way. Poorer methods of production are cast aside and better methods are installed. Competition crowds the poorer articles from the market, and more perfect ones will be manufactured. This develops the faculties of the individual who thus is engaged in this great struggle.

The results are to be noticed in society as well. We have learned that nature is liberal with us in bestowing her choicest blessings. As Emerson has said, "We have learned that the world is not made of clay, but of iron," and if we would have a place in society we may be there by exercising our several abilities and hammering away with foresight and determination; our will power will be focused upon nothing less than success. And success comes when we have arrived at the limit of our possibilities. It has been said that "Man's life work is either a masterpiece or a botch, as each little habit has been carefully or carelessly formed." And it remains with me, this great problem, What material shall I select to build my character house, and how shall I build?

So it comes to this issue,—life is a struggle between two great powers, good and bad. As we sow we shall reap. As we utilize we shall receive. If we desire the spiritual it will be ours. But if we desire the rubbish of this world it will come without asking. Some one said, If you invite one of the children of the Devil to dine with you, all the family will come along and seek to be admitted.

Some are living in such unfavorable environments, as they say, that they can not lead the lives of Christians where they are. There, where you are, is the place to start. You may never be in any other locality. Christ never advocated segregation. The beautiful flower that blooms is more beautiful when it is found growing in decaying animal or vegetable matter. It is able to lift its head above its surroundings. It becomes a beauty to look upon. So in your character, and your spiritual conditions, if you will take the Christ burden and try to follow him, not waiting for better environments, you will be rewarded bountifully; every step that you take will be that much gain, if in the right direction. It is true, you might not reach the condition of complete florescence or fruitage while in those environments. You will need some assistance; that will be given to you when you require it. The life of the Christ shines more brightly since he was surrounded by such adverse circumstances. If you wait to assume the Christ burden until the time when it will not be a burden to start, you will never be found where duty calls you.

THE PROPER YOKE.

But the Savior said, Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for my yoke is easy and my burden is light. Yes, it is light if you wear the proper yoke. The Christ yoke is that which will enable you to do more. It is designed especially for carrying heavy burdens. But he is our older brother and does not ask that we should struggle alone. He will assist us. If you fear the Christ yoke, you will assume a far greater burden, and that of a tyrant, and that which will lead you to bondage instead of to that land of liberty. The yoke which will be thrust upon you will be painful, it will be galling! that is the difference between it and the one that we desire that you should assume.

So it hinges upon self-denial. Self-denial cultivates charity, love, patience. Godliness will be the complete florescence; and success will be the achievement. You will have hammered out that place which you deserve. And the reward is ever present, both now and in eternity. But if self-indulgence and self-satisfaction is your only desire, then you will be found in the broad way.

The man who has espoused the cause of the Christ will not be carried to paradise on flowery beds of ease. He who is so taught is deceived. He will gain a place in the spiritual world the same way that he gained entrance into the commercial world, and that was by persistency and perseverance. In the realm of the spiritual those qualities will be required; but with something additional, prayer, and other things which have been mentioned.

If we labor lawfully, looking to Jesus, who is the author of our salvation, who stands ready to assist, and to labor with us, we will be blessed.

LYMAN W. FIKE.

BLACKFOOT, IDAHO.

IMPORTANCE OF EDUCATION.

WHICH DO YOU CONSIDER THE MORE IMPORTANT, TO ENCOURAGE AND EDUCATE THE SAINTS IN READING CHURCH AND OTHER GOOD LITERATURE, OR TO PRESENT THE RESTORED GOSPEL TO THE WORLD?

To my mind this question is worthy of our careful consideration. Had it been asked the elders of the church when it was in its infancy, we know what their answer would have been. At that time the great responsibility of presenting the restored gospel to the world rested very heavily upon the shoulders of the elders of the church, and as they went forward, taking advantage of every opportunity to preach the gospel that presented itself, they met with great success, insomuch that it is said that over two hundred thousand people were baptized into the church within fourteen years.

As the church began to grow and become strong, she neglected the most important work ever intrusted to her care, that of educating and instructing the Saints as to their duties. As a consequence, the Saints failed to comply with the law which God had given them.

God, knowing what conditions the Saints would have to meet in their work, and the degree of development necessary before Zion could be redeemed, undertook to prepare them to occupy in the land of Zion, that they should not fall a prey to the power of Satan, and as a consequence be driven from the land. In a revelation given December 27, 1832, we read:

Behold I will hasten my work in its time; and I give unto you who are the first laborers in this last kingdom a commandment, that you assemble yourselves together, and organize yourselves together, and prepare yourselves; and sanctify yourselves; yea, purify your hearts, and cleanse your hands and your feet before me, that I may make you clean; that I may testify unto your Father, and your God, and my God, that you are clean from the blood of this wicked generation, that I may fulfill this promise, this great and last promise which I have made unto you, when I will.

Also I give unto you a commandment that ye shall continue in prayer and fasting from this time forth. And I give unto you a commandment, that you shall teach one another the doctrine of the kingdom; teach ye diligently and my grace shall attend you, that you may be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel, in all things that pertain unto the kingdom of God, that is expedient for you to understand; of things both in heaven, and in earth, and under the earth; things which have been; things which are; things which must shortly come to pass; things which are at home; things which are abroad; the wars and the perplexities of the nations; and the judgments which are on the land; and a knowledge also of countries, and of kingdoms, that ye may be prepared in all things when I shall send you again, to magnify the calling whereunto I have called you, and the mission with which I have commissioned you.—Doctrine and Covenants 85: 20, 21.

Some may conclude that this instruction applies only to the ministers who go out into the world to preach the restored gospel. To show that it applies to all the church, I quote again from the same section, verse 22:

Behold, I sent you out to testify and warn the people, and it becometh every man who hath been warned, to warn his neighbor; therefore, they are left without excuse, and their sins are upon their own heads.

You will note that all who obey the gospel are included in this commandment. The Lord, speaking to Joseph Knight, sr., May, 1829, states plainly the qualifications necessary for one who would assist in the gospel work:

Behold, I speak unto you, and also to all those who have desires to bring forth and establish this work; and no one can assist in this work, except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope and charity, being temperate in all things whatsoever shall be intrusted to his care.—Doctrine and Covenants 11: 4.

As a consequence of the failure of the church to properly instruct and encourage the Saints to read and study well the revelations of God, and to live according to the instructions therein contained, the church was warned as to what was in store for them if they failed to keep the commandments of God. Listen to the voice of inspiration. Speaking to the church, the Lord says:

I have commanded her, but if she observe not to do whatsoever I have commanded her, I will visit her according to all her works, with sore afflictions, with pestilence, with plague, with sword, with vengeance, with devouring fire; . . . if she sin no more, none of these things shall come upon her, and I will bless her with blessings, and multiply a multiplicity of blessings upon her, and upon her generations for ever and ever, saith the Lord your God. Amen.—Doctrine and Covenants 94: 5.

History informs us that the Saints did not give this revelation the attention it deserved, and as a consequence were driven and scattered; and the pendulum of their progress swung back a hundred years.

With these thoughts before us we unhesitatingly affirm that, to encourage and educate the Saints in reading church and other good literature is far more important than to present the restored gospel to the world. We are told that "as a man thinketh so is he"; and if we can encourage him to read and think along right lines, we are helping him to develop into a strong character.

To show you that others are thinking and viewing this question in a similar light, I wish to quote from an address delivered by H. O. Smith at the last General Conference. He said in part:

We sometimes wonder why it is that the world seems to be indifferent, and I believe that one of the reasons why that this condition of things exists, is that we are expecting too much of the ministry, and the lay members are not doing their part of the work intrusted to us all.

I look upon the organization of the church in branches and districts as homes for those whom we bring into the church; and until these branches and districts become so far advanced that they may take the raw material that is gathered from the world and educate them and make them Latter Day Saints indeed, we are not hoping for any great progress to be made in the preaching of the word outside.

The Lord has told us, "And now, behold, if Zion do these things, she shall prosper and spread herself and become very glorious, very great, and very terrible; and the nations of the earth shall honor her, and shall say, Surely Zion is the city of our God."— Doctrine and Covenants 94:5.

Is it not self-evident to all that the greatest work lying before the church to-day is to do all in her power, through the aid of the local ministry, the Religio and Sunday school, and all other legitimate institutions to awaken the Saints to a lively sense of their duty and responsibility, that it may be possible for the gospel to go forth in power to every nation on earth?

GEORGE H. WIXOM.

* * * * *

METHODIST AND BAPTIST NOTES.

In the Chicago Tribune for September 27, 1918, I notice that Bishop W. F. McDowell, while presiding over the Northwest Indiana Methodist Conference on September 26, at Hammond, Indiana, made some very telling hits at the sermons and manners of a portion, at least, of the preachers in that conference. The reporter states that the bishop declared that the ministers who tell their congregations that they are damned and then act as if they were glad of it are not really gospel ministers. He added that they may preach "the glad tidings of damnation" over and over, but that it is not the right way to do. Also he said that it is "a perfect scandal" that after one of them has been "talking pure drivel" to report that he has been preaching the "simple gospel."

He said further:

We must readjust ourselves to kind truths and plead with tears for the lost sheep. How many of you have preached a comforting sermon the last year? You can not win Catholics by lambasting that church, nor convert sinners by picturing the torments of eternal punishment.

That is surely a far-away change from the counsel given by their bishops and presiding elders in years gone by. The idea of "the glad tidings of damnation" is excellent. If they only knew how far to go and the way to go on this line! And by and by the Lord will take away the "vail of covering" which is over the world now, and in that millennial day all who are willing to receive the truth will come to an understanding of it.

I also note the statement made by Reverend S. E. Wilcox before the Central Baptist Association in session at Des Moines, September 18, wherein he mourned the present inefficiency of their labors in their efforts to convert people and make them members of that church. He said in part: "It is a sad commentary on the spiritual condition of our churches when fifteen churches in this State reported six hundred and seventy-one members as expelled and dropped from the records last year."

That would be an average loss of nearly forty-five members to each of these local churches. In addition he said: "Fifteen others, with memberships running from one hundred to two hundred and fifty reported no baptisms at all, and thirty-four churches reported only seven baptisms."

I presume this information given by the society will be a surprise to many of our people. But it is well to see it and keep it in mind. Although on our church records are thousands of names of those who must have passed from the living, yet their death can not be reported; and though many hundreds if not thousands of others are spiritually dead, yet the great number of baptisms throughout the church in all regions makes manifest the wide difference between the results in the full gospel church from those which have only a partial gospel.

H. A. STEBBINS.

---

Of General Interest

WHY ESKIMO CHILDREN ARE NEVER PUNISHED.

When a Mackenzie Eskimo dies the body is taken out, the same day that the death occurs, to the top of some neighboring hill and covered with a pile of drift logs, but the soul (nappan) remains in the house where the death occurred for four days if it is a man, and for five days if it is a woman. At the end of that time a ceremony is performed by means of which the spirit is induced to leave the house and to go up to the grave, where it remains with the body, waiting for the next child in the community to be born.

When a child is born it comes into the world with a soul of its own (nappan), but this soul is inexperienced, foolish, and feeble as a child is and looks. It is evident, therefore, that the child needs a more experienced and wiser soul than its own to do the thinking for it and take care of it. Accordingly the mother, as soon as she can after the birth of the child, pronounces a magic formula to summon from the grave the waiting soul of the dead to become the guardian soul of the new-born child, or its atka, as they express it.

Let us suppose that the dead person was a wise old man by the name of John. The mother then pronounces the formula, which may be roughly translated as follows: "Soul of John, come here, come here; be my child's guardian! Soul of John, come here, come here; be my child's guardian!" (Most magic formulæ among the Eskimos must be repeated twice.)

When the soul of John, waiting at the grave, hears the summons of the mother, it comes and enters the child. From that time on it becomes the business of this acquired soul not only to do the thinking for the child, but to help in every way to keep it strong and healthy.

The spirit of John not only teaches the child to talk, but after the child learns to talk it is really the soul of John which talks to you and not the in-born soul of the child. The child, therefore, speaks with all the acquired wisdom which John accumulated in his long lifetime, plus the higher wisdom which comes only after death. Evidently, therefore, the child is the wisest person in the family or in the community, and its opinions should be listened to accordingly. What it says and does may seem foolish to you, but that is mere seeming, and in reality the child is wise beyond your comprehension.

John must, therefore, be propitiated at every cost, and to deliberately offend him would be in fact equivalent to desiring the child's misfortune or death and would be so construed by the community, so that a man is restrained from forbidding his child or punishing it, not only by his own interest in the child's welfare, but also by the fear of public opinion; because if he began to forbid his child or to punish it he would at once become known to the community as a cruel and inhuman father, careless of the welfare of his child.—V. Stefansson, in Harper's Magazine, for November.

• • • • •

AFRICAN LANGUAGE, RELIGION AND CANNIBALISM.

A writer in a recent number of The Advance discusses the work of Dan Crawford, missionary, explorer, and author, for many years an extensive traveler in obscure regions of Africa. The language, customs, and religious proclivities of the native African, described by Mr. Crawford, are presented in The Advance.

Concerning the Bantu language, which Mr. Crawford says, "I had to learn in Africa—a wonderful language into which I had the incomparable privilege of translating the word of God," we read:

When I took to Oxford the other day my grammar of that language, I showed them a tongue that has thirty-three tenses for the verb, ten voices, and nineteen genders. What is your puny English to that? What has English in the way of tenses? Almost nothing, no aorist, no future! Oh, yes, I know, you have faked a future tense with the verb "shall" and "will"; but this is no future tense, and you adopt all manner of devices to make tenses your poor, cold, bald language does not have. We have futures, several of them. We have an immediate future and a proximate future, and a deferred future, and a progressive future, and a completed future.

We have nineteen genders. The African is far too modest to make sex—the most private and delicate of all distinctions—the basis of his categories in the classification of nouns. There are nineteen categories. Everything that has a vascular system is in one. All long things, palms, cane, tall grass, are in another; all short, blunt, or round things in another; all hard things in another; all soft, flabby things in another. You would need an adjective for each of them. Not so the man who thinks black. He has sixty sounds. It is difficult to represent them with twenty-four letters. A changed prefix makes the difference. The thousands of verbs all end in "ali"—a most musical ending. And can you imagine a language thus highly inflected and in which it is impossible to speak ungrammatically? It is so; the initial letter of the principal word gives all—as if you were to say, not "God is love," but "God gis love."

Of the missionary work and experiences of Mr. Crawford among the natives, we read:

Missionary work is hard, but there is a great glory in going without. I could tell you the romance of a pair of shoes that came to me in my need in the heart of the jungle; Elijah's God is not powerless now. Then there is the great law of compensation. The natives have no notebooks, but they have wonderful memories; I visit them once in ten years and they can repeat my sermon, word for word, so keen is their memory. They have no artificial light; they call such lighting "lighting God," for they think that he has drawn down the blinds for them to go to sleep, but they have instead most wonderful eyes. They have no shoes; David Livingstone, who first came among them with boots, is called all over Africa Mr. He Hath No Toes. But their ten toes are so strong that they can trust them where I with my boots dare not go. God compensates us in his own way.

Civilization is creeping up toward them from the south, where it means mines and liquor and sadness. When I told my native friends, as I left them at the head of the railroad, of all your wonders to-day, traveling in and under the earth and water, and tried to impress them with these modern "improvements," they said: "Better off is not to be better." In that is a whole system of ethics. They know the immortality of the soul; it is not even questioned from one coast to the other; with them the body is but the cottage of the soul, death is not departing but arriving. God is his own pioneer, and in the heart of Africa, black, "heathen" Africa, he had preceded us, and there everything tells of him.

Regarding cannibalism and the point of view of the native African, Mr. Crawford says:

Cannibalism? Oh, to be sure! It is not nice! I make no apology for it. But try for a moment to "think black" with me. Come, and let us tell some of these cannibal people that in the Balkans white men fought till four thousand were killed on one side and five thousand on the other, and he will cry out in horror, "Oh, venom of the serpent who slays, and not to eat!" Murder is not very pretty anywhere, and what is done with the flesh afterward is not the only point worth considering. After all, when you read of war between white men, how much do they lack of being cannibals? . . . Even our most glorious message meets the taunt of the black man. Once when I was telling the story of the cross, a chief named Malemba interrupted me, saying: "You white men are a bad lot. You killed the Boso One: we kill only criminals, and instead of being ashamed you cross the sea to come and tell it!" Do not think I apologize for their sin—and it is sin. . . . The gospel of God is what we need and what they need.

The night cometh when no man can work. Afar the golden-crested crane is calling. I must go back to Africa!

* * * * *

DECADENCE OF CHURCHES IN GREAT BRITAIN.

We are indebted to Elder W. R. Armstrong for a copy of the Daily Dispatch, of Manchester, England, dated October 9, containing a rather remarkable arraignment of the churches, written by "a parson." We do not agree with the writer that the Christian religion can not find expression in organized form, since Jesus himself said, "Upon this rock I will build my church," and since the Scriptures show that his church took very definite form. Organized form is necessary, and any vague idea of a mysterious diffusion of religion through society without an organized body of believers working with concerted action toward definite and great ends is too visionary to be of any worth. The difficulty is that the so-called Christian churches have sought expression through unscriptural forms of organization and in many instances have not performed or sought to perform the true functions of the church. Yet though we may not agree with this author in his ideas, his diagnosis of the situation is of considerable interest. He says:

The fact of the matter is that the churches which represent organized Christianity are doomed. They are dying simply because they are not fulfilling any useful function in society; and before another century has dawned they will be institutions remembered only in history books. The time is not far distant when the churches will have to keep closed their doors simply because it will be useless to open them. May I point out that I am not saying that Christianity is doomed; all that I am saying is that the churches which represent organized Christianity are doomed. The Christian religion is a much bigger thing than churches, and it is now making its appeal and having its effect independent of the churches; indeed, one might say, it no longer requires the churches as the medium through which it must find its way to the hearts and the minds of men.

The churches represent organized Christianity, and it is becoming abundantly clear that Christianity—the real truth of Christianity—can not be organized. As soon as it is expressed in creeds and forms of worships and ceremonies it is destroyed. Even the various forms of organized Christianity make that confession.

Nonconformity asserts that the real truth of Christianity can not be expressed in the established church, because the organization is wrong. Men will not conform to the order of the established church, because, they say, to do so would be to destroy the truth for them. Similarly the Anglican Church will not accept the control and the doctrines of Roman Catholicism, because that control and those doctrines destroy real Christianity. And Roman Catholics take up the same attitude towards the other two. Each makes the assertion that the other particular organization destroys the real thing, and each one is right. Organization, whether it is of the Nonconformist brand, or Anglican, or Roman Catholic, actually does destroy real Christianity. It so twists and warps the truth that no man can recognize it as it comes from the pulpits and creeds and doctrines.

People are finding out that this is the disastrous state of affairs, and every man who has had the slightest experience of work in the churches has heard men and women say, "I do not now need a church to help me with my religion. Indeed, I can manage far better without one." Any impartial observer can see what effect this attitude of mind is having on the churches. That is why they are empty. It is not because people are irreligious, or, in pulpit phrase, "indifferent to the higher things"; it is because they get their religion from other sources, and have given up seeking it at the fount of the church. They get it now as a result of their own thinking and reading. They are no longer dependent on the priest and the altar, for they know now that no vast organized body like Wesleyan Methodism, or the Anglican Church, or Roman Catholicism has a monopoly of religion. They can read for themselves now the simple words of Jesus Christ; they can ponder over them, and they can take his Spirit into their lives without all the paraphernalia of organized Christianity. They do not want to know the history of the church doctrines—of how Athanasius squabbled with Arius, and of how Luther defied the pope, and tricked the Devil. They do not need to sit two or three hours in a stuffy church, and sing hymns which, to the great majority, are meaningless, and listen to sermons which, for the most part, lack point and interest. Earnest men in the quest of religion do not need these things now, whatever men of the past needed. Religion, after all, is one of the simplest things, and men are finding out that it is absurd to keep up costly buildings and pay huge stipends in order that it might be discussed week by week. These things are useless, indeed they are harmful, for they destroy the simplicity and beauty of the truth.

The churches are doomed, and Ichabod is written, in plain, large letters over them all. Some of our large cathedrals and ritualistic churches may continue to be thronged week by week, but even clerics now admit that that is on account of the beautiful music and the love of ceremony. No one now confuses these things with religion. These places may persist, but only as appeals to the æsthetic sense, which is not necessarily religious.

Other churches which have not a second string of such quality to their bows are decaying. Churches which have seating accommodation for a thousand are occupied by a hundred. Many others count their congregations by tens. In most places ninety per cent of the flock is women and children.

During the last thirteen years I have preached in almost every town in the North of England, and I have noted the following facts: The churches are very poorly attended. For the most part they are attended by those who have a family interest in them amounting to proprietary rights. They are not attended by the cultured and the most intelligent classes, but by those who do not often think for themselves. Only on the rarest occasions have I met a doctor, or university professor, or teacher, or writer. But most important of all, one scarcely ever sees the strong, intelligent, capable youth who is going to count for something in the future in civic and national life. He is conspicuous by his absence, but I do not blame him. He has probably got a religion which is simpler and more effective than he can get from the creeds and doctrines of the church, and his open air week-end will help him to retain it.

The majority of the churches have become second-rate clubs, and most people have no desire to become members of them.

The churches have never yet faced the question as to whether their function is not finished. I wonder why!

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

"Beautiful Behavior."

Very much of the happiness or the unhappiness of our lives is occasioned by the behavior of other people toward us; by their looks and tones as they meet us; by their conduct toward us; by their faithfulness or unreliability; by the things they say and do, or leave unsaid and undone. And, on the other hand, we are contributing in like manner to the happiness or unhappiness of other people. What we may receive of joy or pain from other people is largely beyond our power of control; but what we contribute to the happiness of others is for us to decide and to give.

It is Emerson who calls good manners "beautiful behavior," asserting that it is "the finest of fine arts"; and Chaucer gives us the definition of gentility in his statement that "he gentil is who doth gentil dedes."

A True Gentleman.

The true gentleman has something more than external polish; he has "a heart of courtesy." He may or he may not wear fine clothes, but he is clothed with the mantle of charity. If he be a man of outward graciousness and gracefulness, he has also inward nobility and uprightness of character.

There are those who mistakenly suppose they may not do certain things, because they are gentlemen, while they permit themselves to do other things which refined manhood does not do. One writer says on this point: "A gentleman may brush his own shoes or clothes, or mend or make them, or roughen his hands with the helve, or foul them with dye-work, but he must not foul his mouth with a lie."

It is worth our while to consider what refinement is in reality. Refinement is not alone in clothes, or in outward bearing. Refinement is in the heart and in the kind manners that spring from consideration of others. We may have the outward appearance of gentility, but if we permit others to carry our burdens, to do work we will not do because it appears to us servile, we have not gentility of heart. We have but the veneering of good manners; we are not genuine to the heart's core.

A stalwart young man who swung along the street and permitted the slender lad at his side to carry his heavy grip did so in the mistaken idea that for him to carry it would detract from his gentlemanly appearance. He must walk erect, though the boy at his side bent double under his burden. A mistake this, that many are making, the mistake of believing themselves of the gentility whose right it is to be served by the less fortunate, the mistake of thinking a gentleman may not serve himself.

"He gentil is who doth gentil dedes."

The Gentlewoman.

What has been asserted of the true gentleman may also be said of the true gentlewoman. She is the doer of gentle deeds; she is kind, courteous, and true. She may or may not be fashionably dressed. The woman of elegant appearance who berates a shop-girl who makes a mistake is not a lady. A father, in writing to his daughter, said, "I want to tell you a secret. The way to make yourself pleasing to others is to show that you care for them." Interest in others, consideration for others is the source of polite behavior of the genuine sort.

Loss by Discourtesy.

A daily paper recently told of the loss occasioned by a discourteous telephone operator whose lack of politeness caused her firm to lose a thirty-five hundred dollar order. Instead of asking the customer's name in a respectful manner, the girl attendant asked the point-blank question, "Who are you?" and received the reply, "I'm a man who is through buying from your house until I can have respectful treatment."

The Politeness of Great Men.

It is related of President Jefferson that he was one day riding with his grandson when they met a slave who took off his hat and bowed. The President returned the salutation, but the grandson ignored the civility of the negro. "Thomas," said the grandfather, "do you permit a slave to be more of a gentleman than yourself?" A similar anecdote is told of Washington.

"Respect the burden, madam; respect the burden," said Napoleon to his companion as he courteously made way for a laborer bending under a heavy load.

An army official of General Grant's time told a story of an occasion when the General was seated at his son's desk in the absence of the latter. An irritable old gentleman came in to ask for a certain paper he had left at the desk. General Grant made search for the paper but did not succeed in finding it. He did succeed, however, by his sympathy and courtesy, in soothing the old gentleman's feelings, walking with him to the door and manifesting a patient and gentle interest in the affair. The visitor, not knowing the identity of the man who had thus kindly treated him, remarked that he hoped that he would be retained as he was the most polite clerk at military headquarters. He was greatly astonished when told the polite man was General Grant.

It is also related that, on another occasion, a woman entered the private car of the General by mistake and found him smoking a cigar. Not knowing him, she spoke to him sharply, remarking that he must be a foreigner, since he did not know there was a smoking car attached to the train. A moment later the conductor told her of the mistake she had made and she retired in confusion. The contrast is sharp between the rude onslaught of the woman and the lack of resentment or retaliation on the part of the gentleman who had quietly thrown away the offending cigar.

Courtesy in the Lowly.

It is asserted of the lower classes of French society that they are polite as a consequence of the civil treatment they receive from the upper classes. Another country of Europe is named in contrast, the lower classes there being impolite because of the rudeness with which they are treated by the upper classes. In like manner children are affected by the treatment they receive from those having them in charge.

Courtesy in the lowly and in childhood is as beautiful as in the highest circles known to the social world. A few days since, two men, one blind, both poor, old, and gray, were tottering along the street when they met a lady. The one who could see tried with slow and feeble efforts to guide his blind companion to the edge of the walk. Anticipating his action, the lady called out, "Never mind; I can easily step off." And at the same time the voice of the aged man quavered out, "Oh, we can just as well step aside."

Both had suited action to the words as they spoke. The lady took one step on the sward, the aged men for a second stood aside, and they had passed and gone their separate ways with a pleasant, "Thank you." What would life be like, were we all and always pleasant one with another in the small things?

Children Need to be Taught Politeness.

If the conditions under which children live were ideal, there would be little need of talking to them of the cultivation of polite manners; but conditions are not ideal, and children see and hear things on the street and elsewhere which make it necessary for parents, even in homes of culture, to give special attention to the habits these children are acquiring.

We quote the following: "A complaint often made against school children is that they are inclined to be thoughtless and selfish in not giving those whom they meet their share of the walk in passing. It is no unusual occurrence for three or four girls to promenade arm in arm, forming so solid a phalanx that one going in the opposite direction is obliged to step off the walk in order to pass. . . . Boys often play so roughly as to jostle against the passers-by. In meeting anyone, the rule is to turn to the right, but in crowded thoroughfares of large cities this is sometimes impossible."

We have heard complaints of the nature of those mentioned in the above quotation. Bands of school children, apparently oblivious of the rights of others, often make it necessary for those they meet to give them the entire walk. Often they pass, without a word, those whom they should recognize with respectful words of greeting.

This is due largely to the heedlessness of childhood and youth, but it calls, nevertheless, for admission upon the part of parents and teachers. There is an excellent little book entitled Lessons on Manners, by Julia M. Dewey, which contains many good suggestions for the teachers of children. It would be well for mothers to have this little book or its equivalent and to impress upon their children the fundamental principles of "beautiful behavior."

"Even a Child."

Even a child can give pleasure by courtesy of manner. He can give pleasure to the old who often are keenly interested in the affairs of childhood.

An old lady who lived alone had reason to be grateful to two lads who used to race down after school and carry in the pails of coal that were so heavy for her to lift. They did it not for pay, but from the kindness native in their hearts. A little girl's voice calling out cheerfully in the dusk of the evening fell gratefully on the ear and into the weary heart of a woman of toil as she made her way home from her day's work. The words and deeds of children may mean much of good cheer to the old and much of pure joy to themselves, if they learn in the early years to be kind.

We who are older should set them right examples and should sometimes talk to them in such ways as to lead them to be of gentle and courteous behavior.

A Diamond in the Rough.

It is Margaret Sangster who says: "Do not underrate polish. A diamond in the rough may possess value, but a diamond after the cutter's tool has brought out its smoothness and beauty will command a much greater price in the market."

One may have sterling qualities of rugged sincerity and faithfulness, and he will be made only the more competent for service in reaching the hearts of mankind if he gives attention to the manner in which he expresses the kind intents of his own heart.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE SECOND THURSDAY IN DECEMBER.

Parents' Day. For our families, for growth in spirituality; for parental responsibility; for the conversion of kindred outside of the church. Prayers for the sick and afflicted.

Lesson, Ephesians 4: 1-7. Memory verse, Malachi 4: 6.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS.

Brother and Sister Hillman, of near Uniontown, Kansas, request the prayers of the Union in behalf of their son, Reuben, who is sorely afflicted, that, if it is God's will, he may be restored to health again.

NOVEMBER, 20, 1913.

Dear Sister Salyards: I request the prayers of the Union in behalf of my nephew who has typhoid fever. He was taken to the hospital last Monday. Also remember his dear mother who has had much trouble, that she may be comforted and that her boy may be spared and may soon recover. Remember me, also, that, if it is the Lord's will, my afflictions may be removed and I may fully regain my health and live for the sake of my children.

May the blessing of God be with the Prayer Union.

Your sister,

MRS. TILLIE MELLON.

Letter Department

JOLIET, ILLINOIS.

Editors Herald: As we are leaving Joliet to-day for our mission field in Kentucky, will send a few lines explaining our whereabouts for the past few months. We arrived home in June, after three years' absence, and only one who has been absent all that time from loved ones can appreciate our feelings as we neared our little station, Joliet.

How many times during the three years when in foreign lands we had pictured to ourselves the old home, and mother at the door to welcome us, and now that it was so soon to be realized it seemed too good to be true. We found our loved ones at the station to meet us, and we were soon on our way home. All seemed perfectly natural, and as we neared the little corner dear to my heart, the door opened, and mother stood before us. My great wish and prayer had been answered, as she was there to welcome us, as she said she would be, when we left. After a nice visit, relating to her and others our experiences while with her relatives in Scotland and Australia, we left in a day or two for Chicago to visit Elder Pitt's people. The reception there with loved ones was repeated, and after a few days we returned home again.

Soon we were busy holding meetings in different places, and finally left for the reunion at Belvidere. We spent ten happy days with friends at the reunion, and it seemed very pleasant to meet old friends again. After our return home we commenced making ready for our field of labor, and had our baggage ready to be taken to the station, when we noticed mother did not appear to be well.

In order to determine the extent of her illness, a doctor was sent for, and we were informed that she might not live forty-eight hours. This indeed was a painful surprise. We could scarcely realize it, as we had not even surmised she was ill until that time. After waiting for a couple of days, Elder Pitt departed for Indiana, where he was expected, but I remained at home. The following week, mother becoming much worse, Elder Pitt was called home, and after three weeks of illness, during which time mother did not complain of pain, she passed away in her rocking chair, October 10, at 1 p. m., surrounded by all her children. She died peacefully, simply falling asleep in Jesus.

We certainly feel that the Lord was kind in permitting us to return home and to have a few happy months together before she was taken. The memorial address was given by Elder Cooper, of Plano, and he preached an excellent sermon. It was pronounced by the neighbors and friends attending to be the best they had ever heard, and many have called and inquired as to the work, as a result of having heard the sermon. In order to test the willingness of the neighbors and friends to attend if an opportunity were given, my sister invited nineteen in last Sunday for a farewell sermon, and seventeen came. The other two were not able to attend, and explained the cause of their absence, so we have hopes that in the future some results may obtain.

Mother was a member of the Reorganized Church for more than forty years, having been baptized by Elder Landers. She had many wonderful visions and dreams, literally fulfilled. At the time she was praying earnestly as to which church to join, at that time she was about to join the Methodist, having been formerly a Presbyterian, she was given a vision, in which she saw the one who was to baptize her, whom she had never before seen, and did not know who he was, until he called at the home one afternoon to see father. She at once recognized him as the one who had stood at the water's edge, when the angel spoke to her and told her she was to be baptized. She also recognized the creek where it was to take place. After inviting Elder Landers in, he made himself known to her as an elder who had come recently from California, and told her she was to be baptized. She answered him that she did not see how he knew, as she had not told anyone. He replied that he had seen her in vision, and had seen the water where she would be baptized. Mother answered that she had seen him also, and he replied, "Thank God, I knew he had sheep here, or he would not have sent me." So she came in, never having heard a sermon.

The latter part of the same vision she had fulfilled when attending meeting a few weeks later at Brother Dancer's, who resided at the Twelve-mile Grove. There in the parlor mother noticed a large portrait on the wall, and instantly recognized it as the man whom she had seen seated at a table writing, or in other words, recording names. Mother could not forget the face, so impressed was she, and upon inquiring who he was, Sister Dancer informed her it was Joseph Smith, the prophet of the church. Mother had never heard of such an one before, and did not understand the importance of that part of the vision until it was explained to her. This, with other spiritual manifestations, sustained her hope in the gospel, and made up largely for the lack of church privileges, and kept her firm in the faith to the end.

We are about to leave now for our mission, expecting to reach our destination in a few days, and we hope to be able to accomplish some good. We both greatly enjoy our work, and are anxious to get to the Indianapolis conference, where we hope to meet Brother and Sister Barmore and others.

We have not forgotten our dear friends in other lands, even though we have not written, but can say that we have a warm spot in our hearts for you.

In gospel bonds,

545 WEST MARION STREET.

ROSA PARKS PITT.

BOURBON, MISSOURI, November 12, 1913.

Editors Herald: This branch was organized some three years ago by Brother Paxton and the writer. Like most all country branches, it has its ups and downs. Some have moved away; others have grown indifferent; a few have remained firm. They have had much opposition to contend against. The schoolhouse has been closed against them, and other persecutions have beset them, so it is really wonderful to find them holding together even as well as they do. The conduct of some has been anything but encouraging to the few faithful. They have been left much to themselves, and all of them are more or less young in the cause. They have done real well. They come out to meetings much better than many city Saints do, although they have to come from a half mile to two and three miles, through a rough, hilly country. The sisters attend most every night, often carrying a baby the entire distance.

These poor people have often divided with the writer the best they have. I have often thought, can Saints living in town with salaries of from $75 to $100 per month, who pay no tithing, who do not help the ministry in their expenses, and who very seldom help in branch expenses, expect to gain the same reward as those who carry the burden with the elder and his family?

We sometimes hear those better situated say, Why does not the elder dress better? Why does not he get his clothes pressed? When he tries to dress better he may hear fault-finding because he is spending church money. If he can not dress well it may be said that he is swelling his bank account. Only the few pay their tithing, and it is usually the same few who help the missionary in his expenses.

I have spent twenty-five years in the active ministry in the field, and my family allowance has not exceeded twenty-four dollars a month on the average.

In our recent sad trial in the death of Brother Plumb, his wife and four little children are left to make their home with us. We feel that we shall need the prayers of the Saints and the help of our heavenly Father to enable us to raise those little ones. The Saints in Centralia, Washington, especially Sister Cox, tried to do everything in their power to help Sister Plumb in the sad hour of her trial.

My trip out there and back was rather costly for an elder and a missionary, yet I know I was needed. If the church is able to help they no doubt will do so. If not, I hope the good Lord will. I may have to get out and work for it like Brother Dick M. If I could make seven dollars per day I could soon raise it.

I shall continue as long as I am able, but I find that an allowance of twenty-five dollars per month does not go far in winter, with coal at five dollars per ton, and all other things in proportion. Yet I am hopeful.

HENRY SPARLING.

Baptisms at Graceland.

From time to time young people, not members of the church, living in parts of the country remote from Lamoni are brought under the influences of the gospel in a much more direct way than in their home locality. Some of these young people have parents, one or both, or some relatives who are interested in having them become interested in the gospel. The more favorable environment of college life at Graceland often arouses in them an interest in the church resulting in their baptism. The writer has had the privilege of administering the rite to quite a number of students, and others of the ministry have officiated in like manner at times.

Since the opening of the present school year in September two such baptisms have occurred. The first was a young man whose home is in the far western State of Washington, and who came to Graceland as a result of the persuasion of his grandmother, an estimable lady and a faithful Saint. This young man was a member of one of the popular churches of the world, and when he came felt quite secure in the faith he had espoused. But occasionally arguments with the young Saints, with attendance at Sunday services, Sunday school, Religio, and the young people's prayer meetings at the college, all contributed to opening the eyes of his spiritual understanding. He accepted the gospel, and the Spirit has borne witness to the fact that the Master has important work for him to do in his kingdom, and we shall expect to hear the name of James A. Waste mentioned as one of the faithful soldiers in the army of the Lord.

The other one is a young lady from far-off Saskatchewan, Sister Emma Irene Dow, baptized by the writer on Sunday, October 26. This young lady was baptized into the Lutheran Church when an infant, but upon arriving at years of discretion she failed to see the consistency between the claims of Protestantism and the teachings of the Bible. Her step-father is a Catholic, and she entered a Catholic school, but in a very short time severed her connection therewith and concluded that the truth did not lie with either Protestantism or Catholicism. By a peculiar circumstance she became acquainted with a sister in the church—a real live one—who told her of the gospel and gave her literature upon the subject. Her investigation was rewarded by spiritual evidence, which convinced her of the truthfulness of the position of the Saints, so that soon after her arrival at Graceland she was ready for baptism.

This sister had a peculiar experience concerning coming to Graceland, which she regards as divine direction. Upon leaving the Catholic school she heard of Graceland through the sister mentioned, and at once had a desire to attend, but it being so far from her home she thought it best to investigate other schools with a view of entering some institution nearer home. She wrote to a number of colleges and universities, but felt all the while she would and should come to Graceland. Her mother consented, and she came, and is now happy in the association of the Saints and happier in the thought of being one of them in deed and in truth.

J. A. GUNSOLLEY.

LAMONI, IOWA, November 3, 1913.

4 CNERGHYN, CRESCENT, PENYRHOEL, CAERPHILLY,
GLAMORGANSHIRE, WALES, October 22, 1913.

Editors Herald: I wish to state to the Saints that we are grateful to our heavenly Father for the preservation of our lives from the Senghenydd explosion on October 11. This deliverance includes myself and a young man working with me, who is almost in the church, and Brother James Evans and son.

We were in the mines and were at work in the lowest seam of all. At 3.15 a. m. we heard the roaring flame traveling in the upper seam, fifty yards above us. I remarked to Brother Evans that it had fired here. He said he believed it had. We began to prepare for going out. I tested the air and looked at the watch, and as the air was good we were not excited.

But a messenger came shouting, "Out to the pit!" Further out from us the men thought by the dust that a big fall of roof had occurred. We thought of home and dear ones, and knew that we would get there safely, but when?

We tried the intake, where the fresh air comes to us from the ill-fated downcast shaft; it was charged highly with the afterdamp, that kind one per cent of which will kill. It flew to the brain and eyes and affected the legs, weakening them. I said, "Back from here; this won't do."

We went on through a double parting, which had quite an effect upon us. I was in the lead of this crowd, and all followed with perfect faith in my leading, keeping heads low, and stopping when required. We went through a cloud of dust. Boys and men asked, "What is the matter, Tom?" I replied, "We are all right."

The fireman then stopped us and examined the intake again; the air was right. So now we had no fears of being caught like rats in a trap by the return air charged with gases.

After passing through to the pit bottom we were greeted with screams and groaning by boys and men, burned, gassed, and injured at the landing referred to. We restored some, and after rendering assistance in the upper seam, in two hours after the crash we were in the daylight, surrounded by our friends and the hundreds of distressed, who in this life will not again see loved ones alive.

We do thank God for his direction. Looking back we can see that he led me out of the danger. Myself and Sister Jones feel bad. Somehow for some three or four years we have had so much trouble, disappointment, and change. Yet we can say, Bless the Lord, oh my soul.

It is good to be a Saint. The kindly letters, telegrams, and inquiries enable us to feel the love of brothers and sisters. There is no love so rich as the love of those in the truth. We appreciate the visits of our brethren and the kindly feelings of those in the faith here.

I want the Saints to know that we have never besmirched our faith with unbelief, even in our darkest day. We remain and hope to continue to remain in the faith until God shall call us hence.

We believe that there are many things that have contributed to the low condition of the Master's work in Wales. But it can be revived by a restoration of love and activity. I felt this at our recent conference.

Your brother in Christ,
THOMAS JONES.

PERRY, IOWA, November 8, 1913.

Editors Herald: The Saints of Perry, as well as their friends, are enjoying a three-week series of meetings. Brother E. F. Hall of Lamoni is the speaker. He seems to be pleasing everybody. He has in his congregation representatives of all the different denominations except Unitarian. One Catholic lady is more than interested. Brother Hall is extremely successful in his delineations.

Brethren Hand and Settles have the branch work well under control here, which makes it easier for the missionary. Sickness has prevented some of our people from attending. Sister Doss is still grief stricken; the loss of her mother, grandson, husband, and grown son, all within a short time, and the great affliction of little Alta Doss brings a cloud of sorrow over the entire branch.

Some interested outsiders are obliged to stay away a part of the time on account of the ever present lodges, and the never ending business these institutions seem to have.

A movement is on foot by a city agent to secure the Book of Mormon poetry for dramatization, but Brother Mintun took the two large volumes in his hands and dedicated them to the use of the church only, and so shall they stand.

NELLIE M. MARTIN.

SIoux CITY, IOWA, November 7, 1913.

Editors Herald: I am trying to get our reading matter before the public here, and have succeeded in getting Autumn Leaves in the reading room at the Young Men's Christian Association, and have a sample copy of the HERALD, Ensign, and Autumn Leaves in the hands of the Public Library Board, to pass upon at their first meeting.

Respectfully yours,
ALMA BOOKER.

BENTLEY, ALBERTA, November, 4, 1913.

Editors Herald: How thankful I am—I can not express my feelings for the great blessings I have received in times past. I was once in very deep trouble, but I was made to rejoice in the comfort, strength, and endurance received. The end of my suffering came, and now I am so happy and thankful to my heavenly Father for his goodness and mercy. I came here to forget my trouble. With his help, and I have succeeded.

Coming here we were and are now penniless, having worked the whole year and received nothing in return except experience. But it will not be for long, as we will go to town (the Lord willing) and see what can be done. We are twenty miles from town and winter coming on, so it will be some time before we are on our feet again. I hope it will not be very long, however.

MRS. GEORGE W. STEELE.

BAY MINETTE, ALABAMA, November 4, 1913.

Editors Herald: I have read the HERALD and Ensign for a good while. I enjoyed reading them; and I felt like I ought to come into the latter-day work. I joined the church at Bay Minette, being baptized June 15, 1913.

I am only thirteen years old, but I read the HERALD and Ensign, which makes me feel stronger in the faith.

Your sister in Christ,

RUBY GERTRUDE SCOGIN.

LUCEDALE, MISSISSIPPI, November 3, 1913.

Editors Herald: I wish to let the Saints know that I am working for the Lord, and am trying to make heaven my home. I am trying every day of my life to live better than I did the day before. I ask the prayers of all that I may be strong and ever grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth.

My whole thought and effort is to do the will of the Lord. I have asked myself the question, Am I a soldier of the cross, a follower of the Lamb? Dear Saints, pray for me that I may hold out and endure to the end. I believe that God has called me to preach his word to men and women, that they may believe, repent, and be baptized. I ask help from all the Saints. I believe that God will help me.

Your brother in Christ.

E. E. BOOKER.

NEBO, ILLINOIS, November 2, 1913.

Editors Herald: The first Monday night in September Brother J. A. Dowker and myself began tent meetings at Pleasant Hill, Illinois. This was the first effort at that place, except one service preached some years ago by Brother J. C. Crabb. Our crowd came and went, but most of the time we were greeted with tent full and running over, and with few exceptions had good order. When necessary the marshal would come down and patrol the grounds.

For three weeks we made the distance of six or seven miles back and forth each night, working through the day. Although I am a local man, Brother Dowker not only courteously offered, but insisted that I get to work and preach right about.

We were blessed in preaching and were encouraged by those who attended. Most all the prominent people of the town came out. Some sat on their porches and heard. None seemed to think of coming to the front with objections. One man, a professor, came regularly throughout. He read Brother Macgregor's Marvelous Work and a Wonder, and was favorably impressed. Owing to bad weather Brother Dowker followed up the fourth week alone; interest continued good.

On September 27 and 28 we attended the pleasant and profitable conference of the Saint Louis District, at Belleville, Illinois. Brother J. W. Rushton organized the elders, priests, and teachers of Central, Southeastern Illinois, and Saint Louis districts into quorums. This system of organization will certainly afford an opportunity for effectual, harmonious action on the part of the priesthood.

Returning from conference Brother Dowker, with the help of Brother Tim Johnson and others, moved the tent down near Brother Marion Johnson's, in Calhoun County, and held forth with good interest and liberty for three weeks. Brother Archibald, of Saint Louis, came up and preached Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, and was well received; all enjoyed his preaching. A Holiness man was present and expressed himself as well pleased and said our prayer meeting was the best he ever attended. We hear some threats from the Campbellites; a fight may materialize, as we are on the ground with harmonious understanding with the proper authorities.

Brother Dowker left for other fields with the good feelings and regard of the Saints. We are looking for William Lewis and will gladly welcome his fatherly counsel.

It seems a little strange that so many of our missionaries are loath to write of their experiences for fear somebody will charge them with "wanting to see their name in print." Contributions from any would be valuable and would convey that which would edify thousands, perhaps.

In my twenty-one years experience in this work, many illuminating flashes or rays of gospel light have made the path to be trodden more unmistakably visible. But, among all the witnesses and signs, two stand out most prominently. One is the practical effect of the work on the lives of the Saints; the other is the practical effect of opposition on those who have fought the work. Many are to-day objects of pity.

May the Lord pity the poor unfortunate who willfully opposes his truth.

Hoping that we may be on the advance, I am,

W. A. GUTHRIE.

FORT TOMSON, OKLAHOMA, October 29, 1913.

Editors Herald: I am still trying to tell the beautiful gospel, preaching at night and trying to sell books during the day. I have recently been in Texas, where I had a few good meetings and baptized six noble people. I assisted Brother B. F. Pollard at Avery, in his Sunday school work.

Brother Pollard is a fine young man. He was ordained an elder by Brother Aylor in August. He bids fair to do a fine work in the church. When I baptized him there was a beautiful light around the pool.

Everywhere I go I find men's hearts troubled about the things that are coming upon the earth. Indeed, we are living in perilous times, and the clouds of destruction are growing darker. But we can see by the eye of faith, like Job of old, a better day coming. Yes; Zion is going to be built up and the pure in heart are going to meet Christ when he comes in power and great glory. So let us be up and doing, and awake to the signs of the times. The judgments are here and the end is near. Let us, therefore, lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and try to do our work with clean hands and pure hearts, and eternal life will be ours to enjoy.

Your brother in the hope of Zion,

E. A. ERWIN.

AVA, MISSOURI, October 28, 1913.

Editors Herald: Quite a number of the members of the Ava Branch have moved away. Still we have a good many left, all in good working order. Rain, snow, cold, or heat do not hinder our services, though we live in the country.

The district conference was held here in August. The Lord humbled us by sending a drouth from April 15 until after the reunion. When the district president, Brother Cunningham, came, everything was dry and parched. He suggested that we call the deal off. We said, Never; the Lord will provide.

There were five families of us near the grounds. Saints came from east, west, north and south, on trains, in buggies, wagons, on horseback. They ate with us for ten days. I, being nearest the grounds, the most of them called on me first.

Now, to prove that the Lord did provide, I will state that the meals I furnished at twenty cents each would have amounted to one hundred and four dollars, but only cost me five dollars. The other families were blessed in proportion. About twenty-five dollars were expended feeding two hundred people, more or less. This comes near equaling the loaves and fishes. Don't tell me the Lord does not provide for his people now, as in times past.

I was a member of the Methodist Church forty-nine years; have only been in the true church seven months.

Your brother in Christ,

IRA SELEY.

DAVIDSON, OKLAHOMA, October 27, 1913.

Editors Herald: I have not been able to enter my mission field this conference year on account of my afflictions. I have had a tilt with something like rheumatism, and no one knows what I have suffered, both in body and in mind.

I was delighted with my mission field this year and hoped to do a good work, but my hopes are blighted. I have tried to do all I could in a local way and have been blessed in my feeble efforts. I hope and pray that the Lord will bless me with health, that I may soon be able to enter my mission work.

I desire to spend my life in the service of the Lord. It is not my fault that I did not enter my field. I therefore ask the prayers of the Saints that if it is the Lord's will I may be healed of my afflictions, that the burden may be removed, and that the blessing of health may be mine.

I love the work and have made many sacrifices in order to remain in the field, and so have my family. They worked hard to support themselves while I was in the mission work, and we are still willing to make any sacrifice for the cause.

I desire to state, for the benefit of some of the Saints, that my family have not received a dollar of their allowance this year from the Bishop or his agents, nor have we asked for it. We are willing to make sacrifices for this grand work, and I am sure we don't want to be burdensome.

I hope the Saints will not think it is the dollars and cents we are after. No, no! I love the work and desire to help carry it forward instead of being a hindrance to its progress.

Asking the prayers of the Saints, I remain,

B. F. RENFROE.

CASTOR, ALBERTA, October 24, 1913.

Editors Herald: A recent article in the HERALD on our department (as it should be) in the church expressed my sentiments exactly. It has always seemed to me that if we expect to get the best out of the meetings we must have our minds upon the object in view. To do this we should come with prayerful hearts and contrite spirits, and in a devotional frame of mind, and not in a joking and talkative mood, with our minds upon worldly things.

I have been in meetings where the Spirit seemed to be held in check, as it were; by the Saints engaging in loud talking and laughing both before and after church; especially in this true in prayer and testimony meetings. On the other hand, when all come with their minds upon the purpose of the meeting, in serious thought, it always seems that we have the Spirit to a goodly degree.

In reading a book we can not expect to understand what the author means to convey unless we put our minds upon the subject in question. I have heard people say it was impossible for them, after a hard day's work, to get their mind upon Scriptures or anything pertaining thereto; that they needed something else to read to rest their minds; and yet some of these say they never get time to study the Bible as they would like. I have always found that when I was tired and sacrificed reading the newspaper and studied God's word, my mind was rested more than when I read something else.

Remember me in your prayers.

W. J. NUCKLES.

LUCEDALE, MISSISSIPPI, October 24, 1913.

Editors Herald: I came here from Dixonville, Alabama, where the Florida district reunion was held, October 13 to 19. We enjoyed communion with the Holy Spirit individually and collectively. The meetings were spiritual throughout. Seven precious souls were baptized into the kingdom, two of whom are severely afflicted and need the prayers of the Saints.

Space forbids giving details of the reunion, and the many features that contributed to its success. Provision was made for a reunion next year.

This leaves me at the above-mentioned place, a new territory, expecting to open fire on the enemy's stronghold tonight. Brother A. G. Miller, who is a zealous laborer, joins me soon.

Yours in the conflict,

A. E. WARR.

News from Branches

Saint Louis, Missouri.

Since last report many encouraging and instructive discourses have been delivered by God's chosen representatives, which, if heeded, will help us gain the desired end. The regular priesthood meetings have been held, which we believe lend strength to the brethren. Our prayer services are enjoyed because we feel that our heavenly Father is with us by the power of his Spirit.

Commencing the morning of November 9, the Sunday school sessions will be held in the upper auditorium, immediately following the young people's prayer service at 8.45, and will be carried right into the preaching service with only enough time intervening to permit those to withdraw who wish to depart. The object of this move is to obtain a better attendance of Sunday school scholars at the church service. The closing hour is planned to be about 10.45 or 11 a. m.

Our loving Father has been merciful and kind to some of our number who have been severely afflicted, for which we feel very grateful indeed.

Brother E. C. Bell, having been appointed district chorister by Brother Hoxie, our general church chorister, has been making efforts to interest all who desire to advance in the musical line, and requests that they inform him, whether they be old or young, as to which line of music they would like to take up, whether vocal, or instrumental, and he will arrange for teachers to help them.

2739 GREER AVENUE.

ELIZABETH PATTERSON.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

ALABAMA.—Met with Flat Rock Branch, November 8, presidency and F. M. Slover presiding. Ministers reported: W. M. Aylor, F. M. Slover. A. A. Weaver, J. R. Harper, G. O. Sellers, D. E. Sellers, G. E. Wiggins, W. H. Drake, H. H. Wiggins, J. W. Baldwin. Bishop's agent reported: Total receipts $257.65; expenditures $199. Agent's books audited and reported correct. E. C. Shelby of Pleasant Hill Branch was ordained an elder. G. O. Sellers, R. B. Booker, E. A. Warr were appointed to purchase a tent for the district, if deemed wise. Branches reported: Pleasant Hill, 297, gain 6; Flat Rock, 58. Adjourned to meet with Pleasant Hill Branch, Saturday and Sunday before full moon in March. W. H. Drake, assistant secretary.

NODAWAY.—Convened October 18, at Guilford, Missouri, T. A. Ivie and J. W. Rushton presiding. Branches reported: Bedison, 67; Guilford, 102; Sweet Home, 45. Auditing committee reported bishop's agent's books and report correct. Bishop's agent reported: Total receipts $504.21; expenditures $380. Treasurer reported: Total receipts $20.06; expenditures $14.50. Ministry reported: W. E. Peak, T. A. Ivie, J. W. Powell, R. M. Jeffries, R. Lorenson, W. B. Torrance, W. T. Ross, B. F. Powell, Andrew Jensen, Alec Jensen, Alma Hawley, C. Kalstrup. By motion Brother Rushton was requested to furnish district with constitution and by-laws for local priesthood. Preaching was by J. W. Rushton. Offering of $6.62 was taken up for district expenses. Subscriptions to the amount of $129.50 were secured to aid in reducing church debt. Adjourned to meet in February with Bedison Branch, time left to district president. W. B. Torrance, secretary.

EASTERN MICHIGAN.—Bishop's agent, William F. Smith, reported receipts $2,355, disbursements $1,389. Reunion committee receipts $942; expenses $873. Goldie E. Grant was selected member of library board. Ten branches failed to report. Practically all the priesthood failed to report. Preaching was by J. F. Curtis, Daniel Macgregor, O. J. Hawn, William Grice, R. D. Weaver. Meetings were good.

WESTERN MAINE.—Convened at Mountainville, November 15 and 16, F. J. Ebeling and G. H. Knowlton presiding. Branches reported: Stonington, Little Deer Isle, Dixfield, Mountainville, also informal report from West Surry Branch. Stonington report referred back for corrections. Ministerial reports: F. J. Ebeling, G. H. Knowlton, M. P. Eaton, J. J. Billings, H. H. Billings. Bishop's agent H. R. Eaton reported: Total receipts, $430.22; expenditures, $160. Treasurer, P. F. Billings, reported: Total receipts, $9.04; expenditures, $1.15. District president was authorized to organize a branch at Sargentville. Edgar Robbins was ordained an elder, and Arthur Robbins a priest. Officers elected: President, F. J. Ebeling; vice president, G. H. Knowlton; secretary, W. A. Small; treasurer, Pearl F. Billings; auditing committee, Joseph Eaton and Bessie Noyes; bishop's agent, H. R. Eaton, was sustained. Adjourned to meet at Stonington in June, date left with district president and missionary in charge. Delegates chosen to General Conference: Paul M. Hanson, F. J. Ebeling, J. F. Sheehy, George W. Robley, G. H. Knowlton. There was an excellent attendance and spirit throughout the conference. W. A. Small, district secretary.

NEW YORK.—Convened at Buffalo, October 4 and 5, district presidency and A. M. Chase presiding. Ministerial reports: A. E. Stone, B. L. McKim, F. H. Rathbun, William Brothers, P. C. Mesle, George Landes, Frederick Harper, F. J. Updyke, James Breegle, George Rathbun, Charles Koehler. A. M. Chase reported verbally. Statistical reports: Niagara Falls, East Pharsalia, Buffalo. Special collection for defraying conference expenses reported: East Pharsalia $1.25, Buffalo $1.90. Treasurer's report read and received. Financial reports on tent work received from A. E. Stone and B. L. McKim. Bishop's agent's report read. Daniel Joy, chairman reunion committee, reported verbally, suggesting that a reunion be held and that each family supply their own tent, meals, etc. Motion prevailed adopting these suggestions, and appointing committee of district, president of each branch, and one missionary, to be appointed by them, committee being authorized to arrange time, place, etc. Standing auditing committee was appointed: Charles Koehler and Noble Wilkinson; Anna Brothers, as alternate. Resolution presented from Buffalo Branch was lost. Motion prevailed to reimburse Sister Chase for fifteen dollars expended in tent work. Brethren A. E. Stone, Brothers, and Frank Mesle were appointed to raise funds to complete payment for district tent. Delegates chosen to General Conference: A. E. Stone, Frank Mesle, with Daniel Joy and A. M. Chase alternates. Delegates present authorized to cast full vote in case of division, majority and minority. Expense bill rendered by district president allowed. Adjourned to meet at call of president. Anna Brothers, assistant secretary, 36 Tremont Avenue, Buffalo, New York.

The Bishopric.

AGENTS' NOTICES.

I wish that the different branches in the New York District would send in their part to apply on church debt. This call evidences that the Saints have not paid their tithing, or there would be plenty.

Now Saints come, this is our church. Let every one of us have our name recorded. Don't let some one else get your reward. It is only $1.50 apiece if all pay.

I wish that all who desire to help in this would send it in to me so I can report the first of the year.

F. J. UPDYKE, Bishop's Agent.

To the Saints of Northern California, Greeting: The time for closing our books and making annual report is near at hand. Have you done your part? If so, all is well; but if you have not, how will it be then? Can you expect the same divine favor? This is a matter for each one to decide for himself.

One thing is clear, "If any man shall take of the abundance which I have made, and impart not his portion, according to the law of my gospel, unto the poor, and needy, he shall, with the wicked, lift up his eyes in hell, being in torment."—Doctrine and Covenants 101: 2.

Of course, the "poor and needy" are to be cared for by those in charge of the finances of the church—the bishopric. Concerning these men, the Lord says: They shall give account in the day of judgment for their conduct. Let us not forget that the tenth is the Lord's.

Thanking all who have done their part, and asking all others to consider what their duty is, we trust that we may so act as to be in favor with the Lord.

I am yours in hope,

CHARLES A. PARKIN.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 20.

Quorum Notices.

FIRST SEVENTY.

The group picture of the First Quorum of Seventy is now ready. This is a splendid picture of all the members (70) of the quorum, 8 by 10, nicely mounted. Send sixty cents to Charles Brackenbury and Son, Lamoni, Iowa, and they will send you the picture.

ARTHUR ALLEN.

Conference Notices.

Southern Nebraska will convene with Nebraska City Branch, January 10 and 11. All statistical and ministerial reports should be sent to secretary, 1207 Third Corso, at the earliest date possible. H. A. Higgins, secretary.

Northeastern Illinois will meet with First Chicago Branch, January 24 and 25. Branch presidents will please report all labors done by branch officers from June 1 to January 1; also see that statistical branch reports are on time. All of the priesthood outside of branch officers will report directly to me. J. O. Dutton, district president, Evansville, Wisconsin; F. E. Bone, secretary, 4339 Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois.

Convention Notices.

Alberta Sunday school will convene at Edmonton one day previous to district conference. Would like all schools represented. Mrs. Hubert Burton, secretary.

Address.

J. E. Vanderwood, 336 South Fourth East Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Notice of Amendment to Rules of Order and Debate.

At the last session of the Independence stake conference, September 14, 1913, the following recommendation came from the Independence Branch: "Moved that we recommend to the stake conference that the clause in the Book of Rules making the presidency of the stake the presidency of the largest branch in the stake, be considered and referred to General Conference with a view to having it annulled."

This was substituted by the following: "Be it resolved, That this conference petition the General Conference beginning April 6, 1914, to amend the Rules of Order and Debate, page 105, section 170, second and third lines, as follows: In the place of the words, branch in the city of the stake, or seat of organization, substitute the word stake; so that the resolution as amended shall read as follows: 'The duties of the stake presidency are to preside over the stake; have immediate charge and oversight of the general spiritual work of the stake,' etc."

This substitute passed almost unanimously, and instruction was given that it be published as per requirement, sixty days before the General Conference.

Respectfully submitted,

L. H. HAAS, Secretary Independence Stake.

Died.

FOREHAND.—James Roth Forehand was born at Gulfport, Mississippi, July 29, 1913; departed this life October 16, 1913. Funeral by R. M. King, at the home, interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

CALLAHAN.—Gracie Myrtle Callahan was born March 8, 1884; died November 5, 1913. She was baptized October 18, 1902. She leaves husband and daughter. Services at Stealey Heights; sermon by Frances L. Shinn.

BOYLES.—Edna L. Boyles was born December 11, 1882; died November 12, 1913, after a long sickness with tuberculosis. She was baptized September 22, 1899. She leaves husband and four children. Funeral services at Stealey Heights; sermon by D. L. Shinn.

NICHOLS.—Luther Nichols was born September 5, 1828; died October 16, 1913. He leaves a loving wife, three daughters, two sons. Services at the home, by Reverend Bert Webster, pastor of the Baptist church of Malone, New York. Many friends attended. Interment in Morningside Cemetery, where the departed awaits the resurrection, in which his faith was firmly fixed, and often expressed in song and conversation among his friends and family.

KEAIRNS.—Relda Brevier was born March 29, 1859, in Guthrie County, Iowa; died at Onawa, Iowa, November 21, 1913, of heart failure. She was married to Edward Pritchard, at Hartington, Nebraska, about 1877. A girl and a boy blessed this union. She married Frank Keairns in 1892, at Hartington, Nebraska. One child, Charles, was born to them. She was baptized in 1908 at Sweeney, South Dakota, by L. G. Holloway. Husband, three children, three grandchildren, two brothers, three sisters survive her. Services at the home, conducted by Joseph Lane and E. E. Gamet. Remains were brought to Mapleton, Iowa, where services were held at the Methodist Episcopal Church by E. E. Gamet, assisted by the pastor. Interment in Heisler Cemetery.

For Sale.

Twenty-two volumes of Autumn Leaves and thirty-four volumes of HERALDS, all nicely bound and in good condition. The Autumn Leaves are consecutive numbers 1 to 22. The HERALDS contain some of the old volumes which are now hard to get. Those books will be sold at cost. Correspondence solicited.

R. H. SMITH.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 711 South Fuller Street.

49-4t

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE*$100.00*GOLD BONDS*Bearing Interest at Five Per Cent*Dated October 1, 1912, Due October 1, 1917

Redeemable after due notice is given by the Herald Publishing House.

These bonds are offered to the purchaser at par.

The interest coupons call for payment semiannually—on April 1 and October 1.

Both principal and interest payable at the State Savings Bank of Lamoni, Iowa.

These bonds are backed by the very best security, consisting of assets of $120,000,00, and afford the purchaser a chance to invest with perfect assurance as to the soundness of the investment.

Note Some of the Facts About Our Bonds

(a) They are of small denomination, thus enabling those of very moderate means to become purchasers.

(b) We ask no premium—your interest is clear.

(c) We have issued only 200 bonds—$20,000 worth—all of which goes toward payment of our debt incurred in adding improvements since the fire, and in adding other improvements.

Better Investigate This Proposition

Write for Further Particulars

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

EDITORIAL:

Was the Constitution of the United States Inspired 1165
 The Verdict Confirmed - - - - - 1168
 The Children's Home, by Heman C. Smith - - - 1168
 Notes and Comments - - - - - 1169
 Editorial Selection - - - - - 1169

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:

International Purity Congress, by C. B. Woodstock 1170
 Self-Denial, by Lyman W. Fike - - - - - 1171
 Importance of Education, by George H. Wixom 1175
 Methodist and Baptist Notes, by H. A. Stebbins 1176

OF GENERAL INTEREST:

Why Eskimo Children are Never Punished - 1176
 African Language, Religion and Cannibalism - 1177
 Decadence of Churches in Great Britain - - - 1178

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN

Letter Department - - - - - 1180

LETTER DEPARTMENT

Rosa Parks Pitt—Henry Sparling—J. A. Gunsolley
 —Thomas Jones—Nellie M. Martin—Alma
 Booker—Mrs. George W. Steele—Ruby Gertrude
 Scogin—E. E. Booker—W. A. Guthrie—E. A.
 Erwin—Ira Seley—B. F. Renfroe—W. J. Nuckles—A. E. Warr.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES

Elizabeth Patterson - - - - - 1184

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT

- - - - - 1185

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department. Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter. Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

He who never makes a mistake never makes anything. —Backbone.

A Pretty Christmas Gift.

Send for a string of salt beads, made out of the salt of the Great Salt Lake. They are very attractive Christmas gifts, and can be had in any color desired; white, pink, blue, black, yellow, green, purple, brown, wistaria, etc. Any shade duplicated on receipt of sample color desired.

The beads cost the church nothing, made by our own ladies, and the money all goes toward paying off the debt on the Salt Lake City church building.

Prices: 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00 and up to $2.50, according to length desired. Sample neck-chain sent on receipt of fifty cents. Remittances should preferably be made by post office order.

Send orders to Mrs. Pauline Dykes, 1326 Second East Street, Salt Lake City, Utah. Be sure to write your name and full address. 48-3t

H
O
L
I
D
A
Y

GOOD BOOKS ALWAYS MAKE FINE XMAS GIFTS

S
E
A
S
O
N

THE long winter evenings will be very pleasant and profitable to you and your friends by the reading of good literature. A good book is always appreciated as a gift, and the giver is remembered long after he has been separated by time or distance from his friends. Let us solve your holiday problems. Send for our latest list of books and make your Christmas selections early, and avoid the holiday rush. Do it NOW.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE,

LAMONI, IOWA

Remember the Youth's Companion Offer

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

FOR SALE.

My circumstances are such that it becomes necessary that I sell my property in Independence, Missouri, in order to raise some cash by January 1. $750.00 will handle this property. Write for particulars to
J. A. GILLEN,
17-3t 635 So. Fuller Street.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper,.....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140. Price .....50c

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.
Order No.
141 cloth .....75c
141 1/2 leather .....$1.00
174 flexible .....$1.50

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a.
Cloth .....$1.00

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.
The King of Peace.
Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
The King of Peace .....25c
Within the Veil .....15c
Wayward Stream .....25c
One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
Rest .....25c
THE SWEET GOSPEL STORY, by W. J. Smith .....25c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.) John Zahnd, Independence, Mo. 6-tf

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 292, cloth .....75c

Makes Home Baking Easy

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure
HAS NO SUBSTITUTE
A Cream of Tartar Powder, free from alum or phosphatic acid

Why Don't You Go With Them?

Who? Those who make the most of life.
Where? To California.
When? Now.
Why? To spend the winter. They know by experience that in its unequalled climate they will avoid the ill effects of rigorous weather, sudden changes and the constant menace of catching cold.
You can live almost as cheaply out there, and much more comfortably. Then what stands between your enduring the hardships of winter here or enjoying it in the balmy breezes of the Golden West? Nothing but a railroad journey, perhaps. About the latter, I have something real interesting and helpful to tell you. You will be surprised at the low cost of the trip. Come in and let's talk it over.

L. F. SILTZ, TICKET AGENT.

Ticket Agent, Burlington Route

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, DECEMBER 10, 1913

NUMBER 50

Editorial

A LECTURE BY SIR OLIVER LODGE.

Our readers will be pleased to read the following editorial which we clip from the Kansas City Journal of September 13, 1913. The meeting referred to at which the learned Sir Oliver Lodge delivered the lecture was held Wednesday, September 10, and we give it to the readers of the HERALD as we have hitherto given the deductions of scientific men, so-called, respecting the great questions which agitate the mind regarding the far-off past, the wonderful things of the present time, and the things awaiting us when we shall pass into the great beyond.

Scientific men may have been startled to discover many important things relative to the past, which after inquiry have been found to be misconceptions, and the evolutions of inquiry in time have shown their deductions to be erroneous; they having reasoned from false premises, mistaking results for causes, and reasoning therefrom.

The final result of the investigations of Sir Oliver Lodge, as given in this extract below, is equal to that which was stated by Professor Tyndall, a contemporary of Haeckel and other scientific gentlemen, as stated by him in a lecture delivered to the workmen's association in Birmingham, England, which ran about as follows: Begin where you may, go back as far as you can, sooner or later we reach an abyss which we are obliged to bridge by conjecture.

He reached this conclusion in his lecture after a learned disquisition upon what had supposedly been found to have been remarkable facts concerning the evolution of things in this world, through which present existence had been accounted for. Like the question in the Journal editorial, we may say: What better is the conjecture of the scientific mind, which after all its labors through the accumulated dust of ages reaches an abyss which has to be bridged by conjecture, than that of the humble Christian philosopher who has lifted his heart to God in earnest devotion and has reached a knowledge of God because he has become conscious of his existence?

The learned Professor Hickox, after he had written a tome of speculative philosophy accounting for that which was called knowledge, all at once awoke to a great truth and wrote it down for others to read: "We know because we become conscious of." Is not the consciousness of the existence of God as real, as true, as elevating, as comforting and assuring to one when he is able to say, "I know because I know," as is the learned man's specific couchment after seasons of speculative philosophy, "I know because I have become conscious of."

How reasonest thou, reader?

Science bears many burdens and responsibilities as the world wags. In the wide range of philosophic explorations perhaps nothing holds so vital and eager an interest for the average human being as scientific speculations in relation to life beyond the grave. Of these speculations there is no end. In truth, as there are many millions of men and women in the world at one time so are there many millions of individual opinions, yearnings and dreams. We strain our eyes to pierce the veil that hangs before the door of the future but we see nothing. We project our fancy into the gray mists of eternity, only to realize that nothing we possess of enlightenment, of experience, of learning avails more than the primitive mental equipment of the savage.

A few months ago an announcement was made that the great Sir Oliver Lodge, president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, would make sensational disclosures at the meeting of the association which was held last Wednesday night. With his authority, his preeminence in the realm of psychic research and his acknowledged poise and sanity, it was believed by many that his heralded address would contribute important if not revolutionary data to the subject of the character of the human soul.

Sir Oliver's address was disappointing, yet it has the refreshing element of truth and rationality. He does not grope in a vast nebulous field of abstract speculation, nor does he attempt to clothe the unsubstantial elements of pure imagination with scientific hypothesis. His conclusions are reduced to these words: "Either we are immortal beings or we are not. We may not know our destiny, but we must have a destiny of some sort. Those who make denials are just as likely to be wrong as those who make assertions; in fact, denials are assertions thrown into negative form. Science may not be able to reveal human destiny, but it certainly should not obscure it."

How far are these conclusions from the exaltations of the American Indian who spreads his hands wide in apostrophe to the Great Spirit? Does not the unlettered savage, after all, know just as much of the future of the human soul as the learned Sir Oliver Lodge?

facture and sale of spirituous liquors for purposes other than as a beverage.

Camille Flammarion, Maurice Maeterlinck, James Hyslop and a host of philosophers of similar distinction have contributed largely to contemporaneous discussion of the future of the soul, but what is the sum total of their actual knowledge? The wild black man of darkest Africa sees God in the trees and stones and natural phenomena of his environment.

As yet we have no really authentic testimony that even the faintest shadow of ethereal life has ever passed between the eyes of mortality and the sun of the world beyond death. Yet this is simple negation. It is denial without proof.

There are abundant evidences of a probability of soul evolution. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handiwork. Fortunately for us all, the element of faith implanted in the human breast needs no laboratory demonstration to keep it alive. Therefore the work of the oculists while interesting is not essential. It is really far less important than medical or surgical researches. Which brings to mind the words of Pope:

Know then thyself, presume not God to scan;
The proper study of mankind is man.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE AND NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

The continuous fight kept up against the saloon and liquor for many years in this country reached its sharpest stage, thus far, in the convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, held recently at Columbus, Ohio. At this meeting the Anti-Saloon League was reorganized. Prior to this time the league had been a loosely federated organization of the various state anti-saloon leagues. Under this reorganization the league becomes a thoroughly centralized body. Thus, for the nation-wide campaign inaugurated, there is provided a national organization of greater power, the various state leagues being more thoroughly coordinated.

THE NEW ORGANIZATION.

Under this plan the national board of trustees, as formerly provided, gives place in the new organization to the national board of directors, on which board States are to have representation according to population. Each State is entitled to two representatives, with an additional representative or representatives for each one million inhabitants above the first one million, no state to have more than five.

The country is divided into sixteen sections, each section to have one member of a national executive committee, which committee is to have large authority in the carrying out of the policies of the league.

The financial support of the national league is to be drawn from the various state leagues, on a sliding scale of percentage, according to the ability of the States to pay. This arrangement, while not weakening the campaign in any State, will provide amply for the national propaganda.

The spirit of the recent convention was aggressive in every sense. Many prominent men of the country were present and participated in the discussions and deliberations of the assembly. Among these were Governor Ben W. Hooper, of Tennessee; Ex-Governor J. Frank Hanly, of Indiana; Governor George H. Hodges, of Kansas; Ex-Governor Malcolm R. Patterson, of Tennessee; Congressman R. B. Hobson, of Alabama; Governor L. B. Hanna, of North Dakota; Congressman William H. Murray, of Oklahoma, and others.

NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

This convention by a unanimous vote passed the following resolution, asking for the prohibition within the United States by constitutional amendment of the manufacture and sale and the importation, exportation, and transportation of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage:

The liquor traffic is national in its organization, character, and influence. It overflows the boundaries of States and refuses to be regulated or controlled. It is a federal evil; a national menace, too powerful for state authority, requiring national jurisdiction and treatment. It beggars the individual, burdens the State, and impoverishes the Nation. It commercializes vice and capitalizes human weakness. It impairs the public health; breaks the public peace and debauches the public morals. It intimidates and makes cowards of public men. It dominates parties and conventions. It cajoles, bribes, or badgers the makers, interpreters, and administrators of the law, and suborns the public press.

It claims for itself a special right and privilege asserted by no other interest in all the land, however great or powerful, a right and privilege utterly incompatible with free government—the right and privilege to infract municipal ordinances at will, to violate and break legislative resolves and enactments, and to set aside the constitutional provisions of sovereign States, however solemn and sacred. Refusing all domestic regulation and control, it leaves the American people but two alternatives—the abject surrender of their inherent rights of self-government, or its national annihilation. Between such a choice free men can not hesitate.

We therefore declare for its national annihilation by an amendment to the Federal Constitution which shall for ever inhibit throughout the territory of the United States the manufacture and sale and the importation, exportation, and transportation of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage.

To the consummation of this high purpose we hereby pledge, as pledged our patriot fathers one hundred thirty-seven years ago for the Nation's independence, "our fortunes, our lives and our sacred honor," and for it invoke the support of all patriotic citizens.

Many intelligent people have come to think that the only effectual way to deal with the liquor problem of the country is by national prohibition. The kind of prohibition proposed by the action of the Anti-Saloon League, if national prohibition were to be adopted, is reasonable, since it would, if we correctly interpret the resolution, admit of the manu-

OUR ATTITUDE.

Latter Day Saints should be able to support such a movement and such an action, since this has been the position of the church from the beginning. In 1835 the church by formal enactment adopted what had previously been received as the voice of God on the matter of the use of spirituous liquors. This instruction, while admitting of the use of alcoholics for the washing of the body, or for external application, advises that it is not to be used as a beverage, or for internal administration. We quote:

Inasmuch as any man drinketh wine or strong drink among you, behold, it is not good, neither meet in the sight of your Father, only in assembling yourselves together, to offer up your sacraments before him. And, behold, this should be wine; yea, pure wine of the grape of the vine, of your own make. And again, strong drinks are not for the belly, but for the washing of your bodies.

If not good for man as a beverage, it is neither good nor right that liquors be manufactured or sold as such. In this, as in many other matters, the church as instituted in the last days is a generation ahead of the times.

J. F. GARVER.

ONCE AGAIN.

The way in which responses are coming in for the liquidation of the college debt encourages us to make this additional request.

Feeling that some either did not see, or laid aside and forgot our other request, we ask that when you read this you write us immediately, laying all other work aside to do so, and state what you will do to help pay the debt. We want pledges enough, or cash, if possible, to be able to say that the debt is "off" when we report to next annual conference. If there be those who can not see their way clear to pay before July 1, 1914, all right, we will be glad to get it.

Beside giving over $500 on "College Day," Lamoni has already pledged more than $550, quite a lot of it in cash, toward paying the debt.

Graceland can not afford to pay interest. But to dispense with the college now would be a serious mistake, as its possibilities are but commencing. This year we have a Japanese student from far-away Honolulu, a member of the church; and who shall say that he is not being helped to yet become an instrument in God's hands to carry the gospel to and thus open up the work in Japan? We expect to have students from every nation and even from the islands of the sea yet, and that at no distant day, if we but maintain the college. Who will help?

Fifty cents apiece from the church membership will more than pay the debt! Send it right now! with what more you can spare. The Salvation Army raises thousands of dollars in "self-denial." Shall we let them be wiser in their generation than we? How much did you spend for gum last year, to say nothing of ice cream, candy, etc., etc.?

Hopefully,

J. W. WIGHT.

LAMONI, IOWA, December 2, 1913.

BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

The matter of provision for a bureau of publicity is meeting with approval from every quarter. The brethren who have in hand the distribution of An Open Letter to the Clergy are gratified both with the very liberal response by orders, and in expressions of appreciation of the work undertaken. The following extracts from letters received furnish some idea of the support given the venture:

O. R. Miller, Burlington, Iowa: "I like the tract very much, and can not see why it should not do much good."

M. M. Turpen, Centerville, Iowa: "I think this is certainly a move that will do good. Wish it were so you could send one to every minister in all the world."

E. B. Stafford, Davidson, Oklahoma: "It is fine; just the right thing in the right place."

T. W. Chatburn, Webb City, Missouri: "It's good and timely. I am urging our presidents of branches to send for sufficient to supply the clergy."

O. Salisbury, Baxter, Iowa: "I recently arranged with Governor Clarke to get a full list of the names of all the clergy of the State of Iowa, and already have something like five hundred names copied. I will no doubt get the list complete by December 1. I thought that I should let you know so if you thought advisable you could notify district presidents so they would not need to secure them."

J. A. Tanner, Kansas City, Missouri: "I think that Information Bureau will prove to be a valuable feature."

John L. Burger, Saint Thomas, Ontario: "Steps were taken to secure the names and addresses of all the clergymen in the city and vicinity. . . . No trouble was experienced in securing the money, as one of the brethren expressed his willingness to put up the entire amount."

James A. Gillen, Mondamin, Iowa: "I have been doing what I can to see that the branches in the mission fail not to comply with the request in order that the work may be left in the hands of the clergy, thereby leaving them without excuse for misrepresentation. I will continue to support the movement."

C. W. Hawkins, San Jose, California: "We took the matter up at our business meeting last Wednesday night, and the proposition met with unanimous approval. There was a committee appointed to attend to the collection of names and addresses at once."

R. Archibald, Webster Groves, Missouri: "I have read the Open Letter to the Clergy, which you kindly sent me, and will be pleased to do all in my power to give this document a wide circulation in Saint Louis District. I heartily approve of this kind of work, knowing how much it is needed, and believe that the spirit of fairness and candor the article breathes can not help but win for it proper respect and consideration among the individuals to whom it is addressed, which is bound to result in much good to the church."

F. M. Sheehy, Portland, Oregon: "Good move. I'll introduce it in every branch in the mission, with the idea of every minister on the coast having one. About the best thing yet in the line of proper advertising."

BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

AUSTRALIA REACHED.—By letter from Brother C. Edward Miller, we learn that on November 12 he and Brother G. T. Griffiths landed safely at Sydney, Australia. This letter also bears the good news that before leaving the Society Islands Brother Griffiths baptized thirty of the natives, who, a number of years ago, became estranged from the church, including all their leaders except one, who, it is thought, will follow soon. Nine of these leaders were ordained to the office of elder, some of whom left immediately for other islands to seek to recall the remaining estranged natives, about sixty in number. Thus, already, has the work of these our brethren been abundantly blessed.

MAKING FRIENDS.—Writing with reference to certain activities of the branch and Saints of Central Kansas City, Brother J. A. Tanner, pastor, says:

Our Men's Welfare League gave a public meeting last night in the church, and Ex-Mayor Brown lectured on commission form of government to a good audience. I am in touch with the commission for suppression of vice, and the Church Federation, and in this way the people are beginning to see what we stand for, and we are making some friends.

JAPAN AND CHRISTIANITY.—In a little pamphlet, written by Charles William Eliot, ex-president of Harvard University, entitled, Japanese Characteristics, published by the American Association for International Conciliation, under date of October, 1913, we find the following interesting comment on the situation in Japan as regards the propagation of the Christian religion in that nation:

The work of the American and European missionaries in Japan has been greatly hindered by the divisions in the Christian Church, divisions attributable to differences in dogmas, creeds, or polity. The Japanese can not understand such reasons for division, and they can not be interested in them. If Christianity is to get a strong hold on the nation, it will be some simple form which relies chiefly on the doctrines that God is love, that men are the children of God and therefore brethren, that the best way to serve God is to serve man, and that a man's habitual conduct toward fellow men is the best available test of the practical value of his religious convictions. There can be no doubt that the Japanese field is wide open for the advent of a simple, rational form of Christianity; and it is also clear that the educated Japanese are in search of religious motives adequate to keep the lives of their children pure and strong, and to inspire the nation with the love of truth, and the expectation of unlimited human progress toward universal justice and good will.

SERVICES AT CLEVELAND.—Neat folders announce services conducted in Cleveland, Ohio, by Brother Richard Baldwin. Subjects treated are: "Are we orthodox"; "A living church"; "Mormonism under the X-ray"; etc.

LORD CURZON ON GETTYSBURG SPEECH.—Lord Curzon has just delivered a lecture on Modern Oratory at Cambridge (England) University. To Americans this following excerpt from his lecture will be especially interesting:

The finest speech in English of the last half century was delivered at Gettysburg—a speech made by a man who had been a country farmer and a district lawyer, which ranks among the glories and the treasures of mankind. I escape the task of deciding which is the masterpiece of British eloquence by awarding the prize to Abraham Lincoln.

It will be conceded at least in this country that Lord Curzon's tribute will not arouse any controversy. It was a gracious thing for an Englishman to say. The cold and dispassionate verdict of history harmonizes perfectly with that of Lord Curzon.—Des Moines Capital, November 29, 1913.

CONSISTENCY UNKNOWN.—In commenting on the case of a woman murderer in Connecticut, sentenced to be hung in harmony with the state law, and as against the plea for pardon on the grounds of sex, the Deseret Evening News for November 14 says:

It is a perplexing question. Justice seems to be in conflict with mercy and sentiment. But there can be no doubt that the law should be executed as it is. If it is wrong, it should be amended. Laws that are dead letters should not remain on the statute books.

Strange as it may seem, in the light of the conviction on the part of this official organization of the Utah Church, leading authorities of said church are permitted, in defiance of statutory enactment, to unlawfully cohabit with polygamous wives. Furthermore, it is repeatedly urged by representatives of the dominant church in Utah that polygamy is a dead letter. According to the conviction of the News, therefore, the so-called revelation on polygamy should be stricken from the Utah Doctrine and Covenants, which has not been done. Consistency, thou art a jewel—unknown in Utah.

Original Articles

AN ADDRESS TO THE YOUNG.

(Sermon by Frederick A. Smith, at Lamoni, Iowa, November 7, during revival services. Reported by Freda S. Smith.)

I have chosen for a text to-night a passage of scripture found in Hebrews 12:28: "Wherefore, we receiving a kingdom which can not be moved, let us have grace, whereby we should serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear."

I am aware of the fact that when we talk about serving God that means service. Service means work, effort. A great many people, when we talk about a thing like that, begin to grow tired right away. It has that peculiar effect and influence, seemingly, of making the people tired. And especially does it appear that way when we talk about the service that we should render to God.

SERVICE A PRIVILEGE.

Now this service that we are supposed to render to God is generally summed up in one or two meetings on Sunday, possibly one in the middle of the week, (if we can get the time), and sometimes some little extra service that we may be called upon to do. That generally constitutes what we call the service that we render unto God. And I have wondered a good many times, in studying over the situation and watching the people as they come to the church and sit in the house of God, if we ever stop to consider seriously and with reverence the object and purpose of this service. Why, some say it is a duty. It may be a duty, but do you know that it is possible that it may be a privilege as well? Nor should it become irksome because it is sometimes put in the form of a duty; nor need you think for one moment that this is all there is to the service that we ought to render to God.

We use the term fear, sometimes, in connection with the service that we are rendering unto God. When we use that expression of fear we have often thought that it was used with the wrong application entirely. It is used in making an application of it to the thought that we are to be in fear of the judgment that would fall upon us, and the suffering that would be inflicted as a consequence of our failure, if we fail. But suppose we make an application of that fear for a little while this evening in the other way, and make it appear that we fear lest we do something that would displease God, not because of the punishment to follow, but because of the pain that it might give him by doing that which is not right, not proper. The fear lest we do something of this kind that shall bring to him a feeling of anguish because of us ought to have more potency, more effect so far as we are individually concerned in the making of our lives what they ought to be, than any fear of punishment that might be brought to bear upon the individual.

If we really have within our hearts a consciousness of what the Son of God has done for us, really grasp the situation and what it means to have a sacrifice made in the interest of us as individuals, surely there should be a feeling of gratitude, of love, of appreciation upon our part, that would move us and put us in that position that we would be fearful lest in our carelessness, indifference, or thoughtlessness, or whatever you wish to call it, we should do something that would bring about distress, pain, and anguish, unnecessarily, to the one who has done so much for us.

Now we know, some of us at least, that the duty that devolves upon us by virtue of the love that we hold for any individual is not irksome; and the deeper seated our love, the stronger that affection, the less that we have to do or can do for the individual upon whom our affection is centered becomes a duty, and the more it becomes a privilege, a pleasure. The same thing should be true of our relationship to God.

THE WRONG VIEWPOINT.

Sometimes I have had to answer a few questions from individuals out in the world. I am going to bring in one or two of them to-night, because I know that there will come times in the lives of these young people when they will be confronted with just such things. I remember talking with an individual once when the question of religion came up, and the service that we owe to God.

The man straightened himself up and said, "Well, I would like to know why we should serve God." "Why," he said, "he is the most selfish and egotistical being we have had anything to do with. He demands a service at our hands. He expects us to labor for him and give him our devotion, and then tells us that if we do not do it he will damn us. He asks us to pray to him, and then says he is going to take all the glory and the honor unto himself. I want you to distinctly understand I am a free man; I don't have to do anything of that kind."

This man did this in a pompous, self-conceited sort of way, and yet he was a man of what we might term good sense, he was really a good, keen, business man, and quite reasonable in his business propositions.

I had to think for a little while just how to get at him. I did not know just how to answer that question, and answer it satisfactorily. After I did make up my mind how to answer him, he looked at me a while, and then he said, "That is a different view from what I have generally had." Business stopped our conversation. I never had an opportunity to finish with him.

But I have thought along that line a good many times since, and I have thought that possibly a great many of the human family to-day are like him. They have but a faint conception of the service that God asks at our hands. They have no sense of the obligation that rests upon us. And as a consequence they do not sense that there is any duty, any responsibility resting upon them toward what we are pleased to call God.

PURPOSE OF SERVICE.

Now, I ask you people to-night to think, Why do we serve him? What is the purpose of that service? And who is the beneficiary of that service? We discover when we carefully begin to make examination that God has not confined that service wholly to the thought that it simply means a little lip service on the Sabbath day, or a prayer or two, and maybe attendance at the meeting, and a service in the middle of the week. He has not asked for that as being the only service we are to render.

We wish to study a little while this evening, something along the line of the real object and purpose down deep behind it all, for which we are asked to render this service. When I stop for a few moments and begin to think on the question of doing something that God may ask me to do for him, I can not help but feel when I look out around me and see the wonderful evidences of his divine power everywhere displayed, when I grasp the great magnitude of his creation and see the splendor of that which he has been able to put into execution, then think about the service I may render to him that may increase his glory, that may make his kingdom larger or better, or may give to him just one little meed of glory more than he would have or will have, I am forced to come to the conclusion that with these puny hands of mine, with this small brain he has endowed me with, there is little I could do that would possibly increase the greatness of his kingdom, or of his glory.

When an individual steps up to me and begins to talk about God in this manner, and of what service we ought to render to him, and says he is a free man and don't have to render any service unto him, it always grates on my nerves just a little bit. And I ask you to think seriously to-night. This individual, the created man, the human being, who steps up and makes this pompous declaration, what does he amount to? He is here to-day; to-morrow an automobile tips over, and he is gone. The train hits him, and that is the end of him. So far as his work is concerned, it is all over. We are here a few fleeting years. The best part of those years we devote almost wholly to learning how to do something.

There are a few years remaining in which we ought to do something, but we blunder around a good share of the time trying to make up our minds what we ought to do. Then, when our strength is gone, and our forces are abating, we conclude that we ought to do something for God, and we begin getting busy, and do all we possibly can. And then old age, sickness, and disease intervene, and we are disappointed. We have not accomplished very much. I am going to give a little illustration of that.

We had a brother in Nebraska, when I was there, who had been located in that place for a number of years. He had been an employee of the street car company for a number of years, and was an elder in the branch for a long time. Then he had been relieved by the street railway company, and put on the retired list. He was somewhere about seventy years old, or a little older. We had a tent in the district (two of them) running, and we needed another man. This brother did not have anything to do, and was quite capable so far as intelligence was concerned, so we went to him and said to him, "Do you have anything to do at present?"

"No," he said, "not a thing."

"Would you like something to do?"

"Yes," he said, "I would."

"Well," we said, "we can not offer you a big salary, but we need some help. And you have been telling us every prayer meeting for the last few years that you would like to do something, to preach a little, or try to help in some way. Well, the time has come when you can do it. You shall have good clothes, and be cared for, and your expenses met if you will go with this brother and assist him by accompanying him and helping him, and you can preach when you are able to do so."

He sat there with his head down for a while. Then he looked up and said, "Well, Brother Smith, I have thought for a long time I would give a portion of my life to the Lord." "I expect to do it," he continued, "but I have bought ten acres of land in Florida. I owe just a little money on it yet. I expect to have it cleared off, and to plant an orange grove on it. When I can get that cleared off and the orange grove started I will give a few years of my service to the Lord, but I do not see how I could do it now."

And he was seventy years old then.

"How long will it take you to get that in condition for you to leave?" I asked.

"According to my understanding, it will be about ten years."

He stayed all summer in the city, and did not do a thing. That man died at the Saints' Home right here at Lamoni.

My friends, I bring this up that you may get the thought. He wanted to serve the Lord. He was willing to serve the Lord, but there was something he wanted to do first. He waited until he did that first. If he does anything for the Lord he will have to do it on the other side.

Now in this service to God, the service we are expected to render unto him, I want to appeal to the young people to-night, and ask them, Do you think it is right, do you think it is a good thing to do your own will and your own pleasure altogether, until you get to that position where you can not do that to your own satisfaction, and then tell the Lord that you will give him the balance of your time? If you were in the Lord's place, and an individual would come to you in that way, how would you like it, and how would you receive it? If you spend the best of your days, the best of your talents, the best of your strength in the gratification of your own will and your own desires, and when you grow old and can not do it longer, you say, "Lord, I will serve you now," is that the kind of service, do you think, that would be acceptable to God? "We are not going to do that," you say. Maybe not; I hope that every young person might feel that that is not the way to do.

In order to persuade you people to think along that line, I want to give you a thought or two that I gave that man when he said, "I do not have to serve God." Neither do you; not one of you. It has been one of the pleasing things of the gospel that the Lord has not made, nor compelled anyone to serve him. He has not asked for that kind of service; he has asked for the individual to do it intelligently, and because he recognizes in that service something of value, something of good. That is why he wants them to do it, briefly stated.

THE MAGNITUDE OF GOD.

Now there is nothing we can do (and the more I think of it, the more I am struck with the truthfulness of it) that can increase or add to the kingdom and glory of God. When we comprehend God in his power we grasp the thought that he could call twelve legions of angels to his assistance, and I am sure that they could accomplish more than human beings could do; when we grasp the thought that all he did to the sea and wind was to say, "Peace be still," and the waters hushed their roaring, and quiet and calm prevailed,—the very elements obey him; when we sense this thought—let him speak to the human being and man shakes and quakes with the consciousness of divine power (and no other power in the wide world affects him like this) we have before us something of the magnitude of God.

I stood on Knob Hill, in San Francisco, and viewed the remains of that city, that wasted district five miles square. After listening to the tales that are told, the peculiar circumstances that accompanied that first jar and quaking of the earth that shook the houses down, set fire to them and burned them, I went into the city hall that had been supposed to be absolutely fireproof. They took me to a room in the basement where they had said there was not one single thing that could burn, and there were beams twenty-two inches deep, solid steel, warped and twisted all out of shape by the heat. One of the brethren told me he walked up the streets of the city and saw many of the walls standing when the roof and floors had all fallen in, and were practically consumed; yet those brick walls were one solid mass of flame, outside and inside. The question was, What was it that burned?

I asked myself the question, "What is man?" Here was the greatness of man proudly piled up and looked upon as one of the wonderful things, and yet destroyed in so brief a period of time.

I stood in the cemetery of Santa Rosa and there I saw shafts of marble, eight and ten inches through, just snapped off like the end of a corncob, taking but a single jerk to break them, the points lying on the ground. There was a power at work, a force so infinitely greater than man that it was almost impossible to conceive it.

I remember standing on the vessel when we were out at sea with our rudder off, being towed by a little tug that looked like an ant holding on to a junebug, and hearing the beating of the surf plainly, at ten o'clock at night. And I realized that if anything should happen to that little tug, if the cable should break, with eight hundred horsepower, we were absolutely helpless. The beating of that sea would have crushed our boat on the rocks, and no human power could have prevented it.

As I stood on the upper deck of that vessel, while crossing the bar, twenty-five feet above sea level while in the harbor, and saw the waves rushing over our heads, I came to the conclusion that there was a force at work there; that man had little to do with it; that he was a frail little insect of the earth.

All of these things bring to our minds that there is something besides our puny force, something greater than that.

In the face of all this we stand up in our dignity, in our greatness, in our might, and say we do not have to serve God. And yet that same magnificent power has made provision for our lives, for our sustenance, for every need, and for every comfort we have. God has made provision for us. We are indebted to him for the very breath of life we breathe. And yet, my friends, we will stand up and say we do not have to serve God. Just think of it! There is not even a sense of gratitude or of recognition of the obligation that rests upon us toward our Creator, our Father, regardless of anything else.

BENEFICIARIES OF THE LAW.

But when we begin to look carefully into the laws he has created, we discover every law of nature, as we are pleased to term it, has peculiar benefits for the good of the human being. Every one of them is for that purpose. Think for a few moments and tell us one that is not. And if we could understand better the situation and know more of the working of these things, we probably would be able to grasp and comprehend benefits that to-day we never come near.

Then when I take up the feature that we call the religious side of life, in which we are prone to take the ground that the Lord demands a special irksome duty for the glory of God, I have thought sometimes of the parents who tell the child they want him to be good. They say, If you love me you will obey me. And how often the parents hold before the child the thought that his actions are going to reflect upon the parent, and in one way or another will give to the world the recognition of the training the parent has given, and the influence that has been thrown around the child. If he moves in righteousness and uprightness, it must reflect to the credit and the honor of the parent. It can not help but do it. But if he walks in waywardness and sin, and does that which is wrong, it must and will reflect, in spite of everything you can do, whether it is just or not, to the discredit of the parent. Now, under those circumstances the parent seeks all the time to lead the child to sense this peculiar obligation that rests upon him.

I frankly admit that it has been one of the most potent factors in holding me in check as a young man, of everything I had to deal with. My father and mother, and especially my grandmother, used to take me and talk to me and point out the thought that my life and actions as a boy would be looked upon and criticized, and to a greater or lesser degree would affect the standing of my parents. And when I thought of grandmother (I loved her dearly) anything I could do that would give her pain or distress, I could not help but feel was wrong. I have hesitated many, many times because the thought came to me, right at the time, possibly, when I was in the act of doing something better left undone, What will grandmother say? What will mother say? It has held me in check. I have stopped and refused to go on, on the strength of it.

Now let me ask you, friends, to-night, under these circumstances, if it does not indicate that there is a force at work, and if it was not true that while it was affecting mother and grandmother and father so far as a little reflection was concerned, it was affecting me more than it was them? And they knew it. I was getting the benefit out of it. I was reaching a position that I had no conception of. I did not sense it until later in years, but I realize now how many, many times grandmother took me and talked upon things of this kind. Now I can see the force, the strength and the influence that has come from that teaching, and it has helped me in my life and in my conduct. It has saved me many sorrows, too.

Now let me ask you, Is it not true that while God has asked men to comply with his law, he has not sought to appeal from the first to their affections, their love, their sense of honor and their sense of right? That has been the side upon which he has approached us first; and then following that—(you just look it up and see if you do not find it so)—following that is the thought that if we disregard the commands and disobey them, certain consequences will follow, and we are left to choose which of these we would take. Now if you look into it carefully, you begin to discover that God has given every law that is laid down, every single principle that is presented to the human family and asked them to follow, as members of the church, as citizens of the kingdom of God, as human beings, under his divine direction, as the underlying principle, that it has been for the benefit of his creatures.

Now, who is the beneficiary? I do not hesitate to answer and make the statement that the beneficiary is man—the real beneficiary. I do not care who the individual is, he can not keep the commandments of God and the will of the Almighty in this life, but what it will bring its recompense and benefits right here in this life. You can not get away from them.

THE BETTER WAY.

Now, so far as the conditions are concerned that present themselves around us, of pleasure and the gratification of desire and all those things that we are talking about, that we have to give up and not yield to, I ask you to kindly look over the ground and point out one single place where the gospel asks you to dispense with, or lay to one side, one single thing that was for your good. In many of these worldly things you call sacrifices, we may ask ourselves, Am I any better for having that thing? You will have to answer, No. Am I any better for not having it? You will have to answer, Yes. Examine yourselves. You young people carefully go over the ground and think seriously upon these things, and see if you do not see where you place yourselves when you are honest with your own hearts. We are not always honest with ourselves; we may be with others, but not with ourselves. We are not willing to admit that which our own conscience tells us is true; we oftentimes keep that back and are not willing to yield to it.

Now, in considering this thought, let us make a comparison. The worldly man says there is nothing after death; so he has his pleasure in dances, lodges, and worldly pleasures of various kinds, and all of these different things he goes to and enjoys, and has a good time. He says there is nothing after this life; it is all here, and that when we die we are like the story of Rover, we are dead, we are dead all over, and that is the end of it. Now, are we sure it is? He goes to all of these amusements, everything he enjoys in this life, and has his good time in that way. Another man takes the other view of it. He believes in the teachings of God; he believes in the conscientious, righteous life, and moves along that line. He has his friends, his associates, and his pleasures of various kinds, and enjoys himself in that line, and he dies. Well, if there is not anything after death, I presume one is just about as well off as the other. They are pretty well balanced, one man takes one side of life and one takes the other. But which is the better off of the two? Look over life carefully, sum it all up and think it all over, and answer the question if you do not discover that the individual who has lived a Christian life and has put into practice these principles of righteousness which have enabled him to live a clean, conscientious life, free from the twinges of conscience, that indicates that he has been doing that which his own conscience would let him do without condemning him for it, and you will discover that he has been a free man in every sense of the word; free all the way through. He is not afraid of this or that or the other; he has no reason to be. He can look every individual in the face; he can talk without hesitation or fear from anyone. This man's life will make the best picture. When you come to make it up, it is clear, and you will answer without hesitation that his life is the best, he has the advantage of the other.

Now, suppose that when they get on the other side (I want you to add to it this thought), the skeptic advocating that there is not anything over there, the Christian advocating that there is something over there, they find that a higher and better condition exists. If when they both pass over and reach the other side, they discover that there is something else besides this life, that there is a future condition, that there is a God, that there is the condition of glory, of peace and joy, that there is what God has said there should be, I ask you frankly to answer the question to-night for yourself, Who has the advantage now? It is too late for our worldly man to correct the mistakes he has made; it is too late to go back and make preparation now; he can not do it. The man who has lived the Christian life is properly qualified to enter in and take advantage of the opportunity that now presents itself, and he has the advantage of his brother, he has the best of the bargain now. If there is nothing, he is as well off as the other and a little bit better.

Now, my friends, think of it. One object and purpose that God had in giving us commandments was to qualify us, to make us better, to bring us to a higher conception of life, to make us as brothers and sisters, delighting to work with each other in that kindly spirit that shall bring to us peace and happiness and the conditions in this life, yes, in this life, that will be akin to that which we have been told will exist in the future life. Under those circumstances you can not escape the conclusion that the individual who has lived the life of a Christian, who feels the religion of Jesus Christ and does just what our text says here, Serves God in an acceptable way, with fervency of spirit, is better off every day in the year than the individual who does not. I have often thought of this and have reached this conclusion, when men have talked to me about the selfishness of God and the idea of his asking us to do all this and then taking all the glory to himself for the increasing of his own greatness, I have failed to see it as they see it.

SACRIFICE AND UNSELFISHNESS OF CHRIST.

Going back carefully over the history of the church and of Christ, we are told that he was with God before the world was made. We are impressed with the thought that he left the realms of glory. He himself has given us to understand that he has command of hosts, if he has a mind to call them. He comes down here, recognizing our forlorn and lost condition, and realizing that no one of the human family yet had been able to so conduct himself that he would be worthy to make the sacrifice that would relieve us from the transgressions that had come upon us. Some one must do it for us. Christ offered to do it for us. In order to do that, he must leave the realms of glory; he must take upon him the nature of flesh; he must suffer the pains of this life, pass along these conditions; and when he finished his course under those circumstances he went down into the very depths of death itself.

I have thought often of the agony of the hour in Gethsemane, when bowing in contemplation of the great sacrifice he must make, recognizing that he must go through the torturing torment and the humiliations that came to him before ever he reached the cross, and that probably the most excruciating of any he had to endure. When we see him in that garden praying to Almighty God, the blood trickling through the pores of his skin because of his agony, we can not help but feel that he had to make the sacrifice, and sensed in the fullest extent just what it meant.

And then when hanging on that tree with his hands and feet pierced, his arms outstretched, the weight of his body on those nails, I have tried to think of that hanging. It must have been agony almost beyond description! Then we hear him cry out to God as he looked out over those who had caused him this agony, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do. Talk about that man being selfish, vindictive!

Then I turn again to that prayer, that wonderful prayer to God, where he tells the Father he has finished the work he was given to do. Did you ever stop to think just what he asks there? Did he ask as man is inclined to ask when he thinks he has done something that may give him a little more glory, a little more honor, a little more praise and a little more authority? No; but he said, Father, give to me the glory that I had with thee before the world was. Just let me come back to you, O Lord; let me have the glory I had before I came here. Now, he had that glory before. All he asks is to have it back. Where is there anything to indicate that he wanted more glory, or that he did it with a selfish purpose, with a selfish motive, with the idea of increasing and gaining more glory? Think of it for a few moments, and you will see in the work of the church the interest of heaven in us as individuals, and something of the nature of the unselfishness of the Master.

SELFISHNESS OF MAN.

I have tried to picture the other scene. I have looked upon it from the standpoint of what we would like to have and what we deserve. Why, we don't want very much; no, not very much. We are willing to serve God on Sunday, and possibly one day out of the week for an hour or so, and then say, Lord, we want you to give us something more, but what? Strength, and health down here, and an abundance of everything we need, everything working and shaping itself to our advantage, our comfort, our help, our strength, and our benefit. And then what? When we die, Why, Lord, we want eternal life. That is the most valuable thing in the world, and we want eternal life. We ask you, O Lord, to give us that, and we are not satisfied to have that alone; we want you to cleanse this old world, and make it beautiful, to give to it every glory you can conceive of, and then let us come in and take possession and occupy for ever and ever. We do not want much, do we? Not much, only a little bit.

I have heard people talk about somebody wanting the world, and then they were not satisfied, they wanted a fence around it. It goes further than that with us; we would not be content with a fence around it, we would want it covered with glory, we would want all that and more. The question comes up here, What are we willing to do for it? It is a question.

Do you want something for nothing? And let me ask you if you ever thought that in every command, every requirement, and every duty we have ever performed in the interests of the Lord, in the keeping of his commandments, that we have performed one more duty in the interest of our own salvation, our glory, our eternal life? That is the thought I want to drive home to you to-night. Every service we render to God, every duty that is asked at our hands, must necessarily bring home to us the result, and we must get the benefit of what we have done.

Men may laugh at you, may talk to you and make fun of the fact that you are striving to do right and to do good. They are depriving you of your rights and privileges if they would keep you from doing good.

THE JUDGMENT.

I have tried to think of the scene at the great judgment that is told about in Revelation, the great white throne and the King of the universe sitting upon it, and people going before it to be judged. Now my imagination is not so good as that of some people; I have not been able to work out the details as I would like to do. But there are some things in connection with the judgment that I can not help but think of. When we stand before that great white throne and look into the face of the King, there will come to us that consciousness that we can not hide anything from him, not a thing. We stand before him uncovered; he sees our every thought, our every act; he knows us absolutely. There are no secrets from him. We may have deceived our friends, we may have deceived our enemies, we may have deceived ourselves, but, my friends, we become conscious of the fact that we can not deceive him; he knows, he understands us.

I have tried to picture what the feeling would be when our mind begins to run back rapidly over our life, and a retrospective view of the whole thing rushes before us, and we see ourselves as we actually are, not as somebody might think they see us, but as we are. Would we have to wait until an angel ran over the record to see whether our name was written in the Lamb's Book of Life? Would we have to wait until the Great King would say, "Depart, ye workers of iniquity, ye never knew me. Go out into the outer darkness"? If our works had not been good, if we had been unwise and foolish, if we had not kept the commandments of God, if we had not lived the life he had asked us to live, I ask you to stop and answer the question for yourselves; could you in your own minds look back and see yourselves and what you had been, and for one moment expect to escape judgment, or would you not condemn yourself and turn with tears streaming down your faces to move out into outer darkness, away from the presence of the Son of God, ashamed to show your face? I tell you, friends, it is serious when you think of it.

But, on the other hand, if we have done the best we could, striving hard to keep his commandments and to keep our lives pure, working in the lines of righteousness and purity in keeping what God has asked us to do, then when we stand before that throne and look up into his face, there would come a change.

The Master would step forward and say, These are mine; these are mine who have kept my commandments and have done my will. They have worked for this reward. They are entitled to eternal life in my kingdom. The recording angel would rapidly go over the book of life and say, Yes, their names are here.

Then we may look back over our lives, the many little difficulties and trials that had seemed so hard, possibly, when we turned aside from that which looked so great to us, that we might rise to a higher spiritual development, and tried to live a cleaner and better life, and how small they will seem, those things we had been educated in and thought amounted to something. And as we turn and walk through the beautiful gates into the kingdom of God, there will come sweeping over us the consciousness of the beauty and the glory of eternal life, ours to enjoy, and eternity in which to appreciate the beauties of the kingdom of God and the association of God. We rejoice because of our redemption. Our hearts must swell with gratitude, our souls must overflow, and there will rise to our lips the song of praise and gratitude and gladness to God for what he has done. I have thought that if the Son of God looked down into those faces and saw those beaming countenances and heard that song of praise and thanksgiving going up from their lips, he would turn and say, Father, it is enough; it is worth all the sacrifice I have made; it is glory enough for me to see these my brethren rejoicing in the glory that has come to them.

If you doubt that, go help some poor soul that affliction has cast down; when you have done it, and have appreciated the tears trickling down their faces and the struggle through choking sobs for strength to tell how they appreciate what little you have done, there will come to you that peaceful feeling of satisfaction, of comfort, and of joy and happiness that nothing else in this world ever brings to a human being, and you can sense to a very little degree what the Master would feel.

REDEMPTION THROUGH SERVICE.

Now, friends, I leave you to think of this. I ask you young people to get the thought that in the service God asks you to render to him you are working for your own glory, for your own redemption—that better life; you are receiving those benefits here, and qualifying yourselves to receive the greater ones when you have passed from this stage of action. Grasp the thought that it is service that God is asking you to render to him and the benefits of that service come to you. When you can sense that thought, that condition, you can see why we have urged, and pleaded, and asked you to insist on mankind recognizing these things that are held out to them. Not only has he promised he would bless spiritually, but morally, physically, and in every way.

So let us try to sense what he has said and put ourselves in harmony therewith. Wherefore, we receiving a kingdom which can not be moved (where a kingdom may change in worldly things, passing hastily away, the kingdom God offers can not be moved), let us have grace whereby we should serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear. Let us serve with reverence and godly fear, not the fear of hell or the fear of punishment, but that reverential fear that we might offend, that we might do wrong, that we might not step in the path of righteousness and become faithful, and do that which would be pleasing to him, since he has made such a sacrifice for us.

Oh, if I could only impress it on you! If I could only bring you to feel it, you young people who are moving out into life! Or, that you might realize the glory of rendering service to God! Not simply the service of the lips, nor the church services that are rendered here, but throughout your life, in your thoughts, in your actions, in everything you do. That reverential, conscientious service that God has asked and that will be acceptable to him. That service that will bring to you peace of mind, and joy and happiness in this world, and that will bring to you peace and everlasting life in the world to come, with the presence of your God in his glory to crown your effort. If I could impress you with the thought that you are the beneficiary, then I know you would serve him gladly, and the pleasure of that service to God would swell your hearts with gratitude, would unfold to you the beauties of the kingdom, and would lift you out of the depths of despondency and show to you the glory, the happiness and the joy that comes from purity of living.

May God bless you and help you, and keep you pure in mind, and pure in heart in the struggle that you must wage against the temptations of the world, and the power of the Adversary. May God bless you in his infinite love and mercy, strengthen you and unfold to you those things, that you may see them and walk uprightly before him and be crowned with eternal life, is my prayer.

Of General Interest

THE INCOME TAX AND STATISTICS OF INCOMES.

Students of economics may find material for their scrapbooks in an editorial appearing in the Chautauquan for November 7, from which we quote:

The income tax, including the retained corporation income tax, is expected to yield annually about $115,000,000 at present. On personal incomes about $82,000,000 will probably be collected. Who will pay, and into how many rough classes the payers are divided in this country, the subjoined table, prepared by the Treasury Department, indicates with what is believed to be some approach to accuracy:

Incomes.	Number of Incomes.	Revenue.
$3,000 to $5,000	126,000	$ 630,000
$5,000 to $10,000	178,000	5,340,000
$10,000 to $15,000	53,000	4,240,000
$15,000 to $20,000	24,500	3,185,000
$20,000 to $25,000	10,500	2,100,000
$25,000 to $50,000	21,000	9,660,000
$50,000 to $75,000	6,100	6,600,000
$75,000 to $100,000	2,400	4,776,000
$100,000 to $250,000	2,500	13,775,000
$250,000 to $300,000	550	8,605,500
$500,000 to $1,000,000	350	13,653,500
Over $1,000,000	100	9,301,000
	425,000	$82,066,000

We say that it is little short of amazing that in a country so new, so rich, so big as the United States the number of persons subject to an income tax, even with a $3,000 exemption, should be as small as this estimate shows it to be. What a light it throws on the distribution of wealth even in a republic "whose other name is opportunity!" It is true, then, that, as the Department of Agriculture recently told us, the average farmer makes less than $600 or $500 a year, in spite of the admitted fact that our prosperity "comes out of the soil." It is true, then, that the average man can not hope to make or earn even $1,000 a year.

To what extent are special privileges, unfair tariff rates, trusts and monopolies, railroad discriminations, financial abuses, bad tax laws, and private exploitation of natural resources and public franchises responsible for this situation? We can not all be rich. We must earn our bread by the sweat of our brow. We must work, and work hard. But there is something wrong in laws and arrangements that cause so manifestly unjust and unequal a distribution of the wealth of a great Nation of unparalleled resources. The greatest of all problems is industrial and economic justice, the abolition of oppressive and fraudulent monopoly, the establishment of equality of opportunity and of fair reward of labor, thrift and industry.

There is another income-tax table that we may glance at with some profit. It has to do with the effect of the tax or its incidence in the several States. Though official, it is to be regarded as largely speculative or conjectural.

States	Persons with Income up to $25,000	Up to $50,000	Up to $100,000	Over $100,000
Alabama	84,000	100	10	...
California	25,000	500	200	50

Colo. and Wyo.	23,000	450	100	50
Florida	3,000	250	30	5
Illinois	46,900	1,000	275	50
Indiana	15,850	1,020	130	...
Iowa	16,000	50	30	5
*Kentucky	8,950	180	38	18
Louisiana	20,000	3,000	5	1
Michigan	9,500	950	250	120
Minnesota	25,000	1,000	500	150
Missouri	24,000	450	240	28
New Hampshire	2,100	425	25	...
New Jersey	12,000	650	170	55
New Mexico	775	65	2	...
New York	57,500	1,675	535	300
North Carolina	4,000	50	...	...
N. and S. Dakota	4,000	...	...	...
Ohio	33,250	1,781	398	158
Oklahoma	3,500	50	...	...
Pennsylvania	83,500	4,250	1,325	625
Tennessee	8,000	350	25	5
Texas	25,000	10,000	3,000	100
*Virginia	500	...	...	...
Washington	3,690	350	50	10
Wisconsin	9,500	450	75	20

*Returns incomplete.

The first comment on these figures is that a few States will pay the greater part of the tax. There are those who complain that this is unjust, but there is nothing in the complaint. Individuals pay, not States, and individuals draw their income from many sources, often from sources outside the State they reside in. New York has thousands of rich men whose incomes are derived from western mines and oil wells, from southern plantations, from franchises all over the country. Why should New York claim the wealth of Montana and Colorado?

Another comment is that, contrary to general notions, Pennsylvania is wealthier than New York and furnishes more millionaires. This shows that wealth is largely due to control of natural assets, patents and monopolies. The poor States are States that nature has failed to endow and that have few great centers and few attractions for the rich and powerful. Why should these States be expected to pay as much as their more—or less—fortunate sisters? The income tax is as fair to the States as it is to the individual citizens who will pay it.

Talents and skill tell for much, but conscience in work tells for more. The mechanic or the clerk who, beyond his stated salary, beyond even his obligations to his employer or the demands which public opinion could make upon him, exerts himself to make his work as perfect as he can, and delights in its thoroughness and excellence apart from any private benefit it can render him, has a value which can never be computed. It matters not what the work be, whether it be done with the spade of the laborer, the tools of the mechanic, the pen of the clerk, the brush of the artist, or the voice of the statesman. Such people are sought far and wide; there are places always open to them, and their services are always at a premium.—Selected.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Advisory Board, of Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. B. C. Smith, president, 214 South Spring Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. Evelyn Burgess, vice president, 5920 Etzel Avenue, Saint Louis, Missouri.
 Mrs. D. J. Krahl, secretary, 724 South Chrysler Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. Pearl Gardner, treasurer, 707 South Fuller Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. M. A. Etzenhouser, West Walnut Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Lamon, Iowa.
 Mrs. M. Walker, honorary member, Lamon, Iowa.

Superintendents of Departments.

Home and Child Welfare Department, Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Lamon, Iowa.
 Literary and Educational Department, Mrs. Vida E. Smith, Lamon, Iowa.
 Eugenic Department, Mrs. Jennie Studley.
 Domestic Science Department, Miss Bertha Donaldson, 700 North Topeka Avenue, Wichita, Kansas.
 Young Woman's Department, Mrs. Pearl Gardner, 707 South Fuller Street, Independence, Missouri.
 Sewing and Aid Department, Mrs. Minnie B. Nicholson, Lamon, Iowa.

All money for the Auxiliary, including subscriptions for leaflets, should be sent to the treasurer, address as above. Money raised for the Children's Home by local societies or by scattered members working for the society should also be sent to the Woman's Auxiliary treasurer.

Woman's Auxiliary.

(Home and Child Welfare Department.)

January Reading--Principles of the Montessori Method.

"I will praise thee; for I am fearfully and wonderfully made."—Psalm 139:14.

HOW WE LEARN.

"At birth, man comes into a strange land which he must learn to know through perception." We perceive through feeling, seeing, hearing, and other senses. "Suppose that a child of intelligent parents were ushered into the world without a nerve leading from his otherwise perfect brain to any portion of his body, with no optic nerve to transmit the glorious sensation from the eye, no auditory nerve to conduct the vibrations of the mother's voice, no tactile nerve to convey the touch of a hand, no olfactory nerve to rouse the brain with the delicate aroma from the orchards and the wild flowers in spring, no gustatory, thermal, or muscular nerves. . . . The wisest men might talk to him with utmost eloquence, all to no purpose. Nature could not whisper one of her inspiring truths into his deaf ear, could not light up that dark mind with a picture of a rainbow or of a human face. No matter how perfect might be the child's brain and his inherited capacity for mental activities, his faculties would remain for this life shrouded in Egyptian darkness. Perception could give memory nothing to retain, and thought could not weave her matchless fabrics without materials."—Halleck.

In contrast to this supposed condition, the fact is that the human body is threaded with nerves, just as telegraph wires thread a continent. "There is not a single city with as many wires entering it as there are nerves running into the spinal cord and brain. . . . When a toe is injured, a fire is seen, or a sound is heard, a message flashes along the proper nerve fiber. The delivery of this message is frequently but one part of the process. If some one stepped on our toes, the fact would not only be reported, but a command would be sent to the muscles to move the foot out of harm's way."

This receiving and transmitting of messages by the brain is illustrated by Professor Halleck as follows: "The manager of a press agency may be sitting on a dark night in his office. He can not see what is taking place in the rest of the world, but there is a click of a telegraph instrument, and he learns that an ocean steamer has been wrecked on the Irish coast. After a few moments' silence there is a sound from a different instrument, and he knows that a noted statesman is dead. Another instrument vibrates with a message that a certain city can not be heard from. An earthquake or a cyclone is suspected, and people are anxious about their friends. The manager himself sends a dispatch asking for news, and he now illustrates the second capacity of the nervous system, that of transmitting commands by its own peculiar automatic power.

"These telegraph wires are analagous to the nerves of the ear, eye, and other senses. It is the business of these nerves to report what is taking place in their own special world. The brain in its dark chamber can receive dispatches from them alone. If a man loses his sight, the optic nerves bring in no further news, and the case is similar to that of a distant city whose telegraphic communication has been broken by an earthquake or a cyclone."

BRAIN CELLS.

It is estimated that the number of cells in the human brain is from 600,000,000 to 2,000,000,000. The nerves are outgrowths of these cells and are the means of communication between the brain and the outer world. Sensory nerve fibers carry currents of sensation to the brain, and motor nerve fibers carry the outgoing current which produces motion. For example, when a child sees a beautiful flower, the sensory fibers carry the information to the brain. When the motor fibers carry back the power, he puts forth his hand and plucks the blossom.

"Whenever mental acts are often repeated, their corresponding brain cells are made stable and vigorous by the same law that gives strength to muscles when they are exercised. An arm kept in a sling becomes weak and flabby. The same is true of brain cells that are not given their proper exercise. A pair of strong arms can far surpass weak ones in elbowing their way through a crowd; so can a strong brain cell more easily affect consciousness. If, out of a hundred ideas, the thirty-fifth has been repeated more often than the others, the brain process corresponding to it will knock loudest at the door of consciousness.

"Repeated sensations from the same object modify the brain cells more effectively. The changed molecular arrangement tends to become permanent. One sensation, if of sufficient interest or intensity, may impress itself ineffaceably upon the brain; but in the majority of cases repeated impressions are necessary. The brain seems to work very much as the fingers do in playing the piano. They need much practice to become pliable; if the practice is intermitted, the pliability diminishes. If the brain cells are not brought into frequent action, they also lose their cunning, and we forget. . . . Again, the brain, like the muscles, is the most pliable in youth. The brain can not take on new modifications in advanced life, just as an old pair of hands can not learn to play the piano well. Millions of facts should be stowed away in the youthful brain."—Halleck.

So definitely have students of the brain mapped out its areas that "it is possible to find, for the purposes of a surgical operation, so small a center as that which moves the vocal cords, directs a thumb, or winks an eye." And they have observed that a comparatively slight deviation from the normal development of certain cells results in deficient intelligence or in some form of insanity.

SENSE TRAINING.

The information thus far given in this reading has been compiled by physiologists and psychologists. Doctor Montessori, herself a scientist, possessed of this knowledge, working with feeble-minded children, traced their unregulated movements to deficient brain centers, and began the work of correction. The process adopted by her was that of developing the faulty brain centers. Her work with feeble-minded children was highly successful, and, perceiving that she was working on fundamental principles, she devised a system of exercises which is held by its advocates to be the natural method of development for all children.

Professor Halleck asserts that any study is good which compels the student to learn facts from his own senses. In harmony with this, the central idea of the Montessori system is that of self-education. Mrs. Fisher, a student of the method, says of it that upon this idea rests "every smallest bit of apparatus, every detail of technic." The descriptions by this writer in her book, A Montessori Mother, enable us to understand how the children of the Montessori schools learn by applying themselves voluntarily to tasks which exercise their senses.

One little boy of three and a half years was holding a light wooden frame on which were stretched two pieces of cotton cloth, meeting down the middle like the joining of a garment. On one of the edges was a row of buttonholes, and on the other a row of large bone buttons. So absorbed was the child that, when Mrs. Fisher drew near his little chair and table, he glanced up for an instant's smile without stopping the action of his fingers in buttoning and unbuttoning those two pieces of cloth. That he was new at the game was to be seen from the clumsy, misdirected motions of his baby fingers, but, with eyes shining with interest, he buttoned steadily, slowly, without an instant's interruption.

Finally he stopped his work a moment and looked down at his little cotton waist, and she saw the light of a great idea dawn in his face. There was a row of buttons similar to the ones he had been using. Imitating the motions he had learned on his frame, he worked with the middle button until he had slipped it out of the button hole; then he set to work to button it again, no small task for his inexperienced fingers. When he had accomplished it, he looked up at the visitor with a face of triumph; then, rising, he crossed the room and lay down on a piece of felt, his hands clasped under his head, his eyes gazing with tranquil repose at the ceiling. He was resting after accomplishing a great step forward.

Near the table where this child had sat a little girl was occupied with a similar wooden frame, upon which she was tying and untying bow-knots of ribbon. She was making them rapidly, deftly, much better Mrs. Fisher thought than she could have done at that speed. She looked up a moment and then smiled proudly down at her flying fingers.

Another little boy was at work on a leather-covered frame inserting shoe buttons into their holes with a buttonhook. He stopped a moment and tried to apply the same system to the buttons of his own shoes. When he did not succeed, he returned with ardor to his frame. Near him a little girl was sorting pieces of money into different piles, according to their size. So absorbed was she in doing this accurately that she did not observe the visitor at her side. Across the room a little group of children were clamoring to be blindfolded, in turn, that they might be tested in their power to distinguish different fabrics by touch alone.

On squares of felt in the open floor spaces children were working with different series of blocks, varying in shape, size, and color. More advanced pupils were engaged with various geometric forms, with sets of flat spools wound with silk thread of varying shades from which they were learning to differentiate colors, or with sandpaper letters which they were tracing lightly with the finger tips. The latter were approaching the time when they would write.

THE OBJECT OF THIS TRAINING.

In the Montessori schools children are helped toward independence by learning to serve themselves instead of being served. The buttoning, lacing, and tying frames give them practice which soon enables them to dress themselves. The use of the little washstands gives them training in personal cleanliness. They are led to feel responsible for the cleanliness and order of the schoolroom, using little brooms, dustpans, and dustcloths each morning in the care of it.

While the exercises and apparatus of the system are not devised merely to amuse the children, they prove to be so absorbingly interesting that they lead the child to concentrate his attention upon his work, holding him to his task by his own will power, and resulting in that repetition of actions which, as psychologists have learned, deepen impressions in the corresponding brain cells, causing them to grow strong to reproduce similar actions at later times.

While the children do acquire much information that may be of immediate advantage to them, the purpose of the system is something higher. "It is apparent that our senses are our only means of conveying information to our brains about the external world which surrounds us, and it is equally apparent that to act wisely and surely in the world, the brain has need of the fullest and most accurate information possible. . . . The education of all the senses of a child to rapidity, agility, and exactitude is of great importance, not at all for the sake of the information acquired by the child, but for the sake of the finely accurate instruments which this education puts under his control. . . . It is of the utmost importance that he shall learn to take in accurate information about the phenomena of the world, from which ever sense is most convenient, or from all of them at once, correcting and supplementing each other as they so seldom do with us badly trained adults."

PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT.

Doctor Montessori believes "in giving the very young child every opportunity to indulge to the utmost his propensity to stretch himself, to kick, to walk on all fours, to throw himself prone on the ground, and in all the other ways by which he instinctively keeps his weight from off his legs, and so prevents undue strain. Many of her exercises for little children are definitely planned to lessen the weight of the torso, or trunk, on the extremities. There are parallel bars affixed to upright poles on which the children can pass along suspended by their hands. She has devised a swing with such a wide seat that the child's feet do not hang down, and his legs are supported by it. This apparatus is swung near a board or wall, against which the child pushes his feet in order to keep the swing in motion, and so strengthens his ankles. They may, while still seated in these chairs, vary the exercise by playing with rubber balls hung on cords. In this way the arms and spinal column are exercised. She has also devised numerous exercises with small rope ladders to assist the child in gaining equilibrium and poise, in kneeling, rising, walking, and running; and others to increase his chest expansion. . . . Other exercises are those of walking on a line, exercises for deep breathing, and those which teach proper articulation, enunciation, and pronunciation." (Fisher.)

Doctor Montessori encourages free play as a part of the child's motor training, and approves of balls, kites, hoops, beanbags, games of tag, or "Puss in the corner." The system devised by her makes provision for both the motor and the sensory development of the child, and in all of it he is left free to choose his occupation or to rest from it.

"The simple, industrial, tranquil life, full of profitable 'play' which is educational, and permeated with a sense of responsibility on the child's part for the conduct of his own life, is the Montessori life for a child between two and seven."

CALLIE B. STEBBINS.
CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECTS FOR THE THIRD THURSDAY IN DECEMBER.

For the missions and missionaries in all places, especially remembering the Lamanites, that the preaching of the gospel among them may be with conviction that will lead them to obedience, and that thereafter their lives may demonstrate its purifying, uplifting power. Also for the mission at Jerusalem; that the spirit of conviction may be poured out upon the city of David.

Lesson, Jeremiah 23: 5-8. Memory text, Acts 20: 21.

REQUEST FOR PRAYERS.

Again there comes from Sweet Lake, Louisiana, a request from Mrs. Josie Helms for the prayers of the Saints. This sister states in her letter that she is afflicted in divers ways. She is poor in this world's goods, is able to walk but a few steps with much suffering, and has other sorrows which weigh heavily upon her spirits. She humbly seeks relief through the power of the Lord. May this greatly tried sister receive in her heart comfort and strength to endure to the end, that the crown of the victor may be hers in the eternal world. May brothers and sisters in the bonds of the gospel pray for her to the God in whom our trust is reposed.

COMPENSATION.

To the dear sisters of the Prayer Union, and especially to the sick and afflicted ones, I desire to say a few words of encouragement. I had not realized that there was so much sickness and affliction within the church. It has seemed to me that with the divine instruction for right living, together with the ordinance of healing with us, there should be less of such ills with us than with those not so favored. Let us try to find the cause.

A sister told me she did not receive much benefit from the administration by the elders or through prayer. I asked if she were living by every word of God. She admitted she did not observe the Word of Wisdom, that she used tea and coffee, and ate meat in all seasons. Is it reasonable to expect a blessing under such conditions, going on with the use of things not good for us?

It is true that it is not always the ones who suffer who are responsible. We all have to suffer more or less for the sins of generations before us; but the more we grow in knowledge concerning the right way to live, living up to our light and knowledge, the better it will be for our own health and that of the generations following us.

There are some afflictions for which neither we nor our forebears are responsible, and for which the Lord can give us only grace to bear. There have been running in my mind all day some lines from a poem by a negro poet, now dead:

"Because I have loved so deeply,
Because I have loved so long,
God in his great compassion
Gave me the gift of song."

I do not know just what idea the poet meant to convey, but to me his lines brought the idea of compensation. The love of God in the heart is of itself a compensation for every ill. The gift of song may also be a compensation to those who have it, and song seems natural to the negro race. Remembering this, I wondered if God, in his great compassion for their misfortunes of race, had not granted them this compensation.

I can think of no greater earthly affliction to an intelligent, sensitive being than to belong to a race despised of men; and, when those among them rise above their condition of birth, and, through the love of God, are able to lift up pure hearts and clean hands to him, there will come to that heart a compensation commensurate with the suffering.

And so it may be with us all, whatever our afflictions. If they can not be removed, let us look for the compensation.

Lovingly your sister, ELEANOR.

CLINTON, MISSOURI, 926 South Main Street.

Letter Department

New Church at Manchester.

A very interesting ceremony took place in James Street, Manchester, on October 11, when seven memorial stones were laid in a new church building, by members of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The Saints of this (Northeast Manchester) branch are all working people and have for twenty years been saving and striving. Some years since they bought land, paying two hundred pounds for it, and have ever since worshiped in a wooden structure known as the gospel tent. This also was purchased from the Plymouth Brethren who built it, and quite a number of the now Saints were members of the Brethren Church when the tent was first built.

For over twenty years many of the Saints here have looked forward for the time when they would have a brick church all their own, and you may imagine the glad faces of those who witnessed a building so far advanced as to admit of the laying of memorial stones.

The Saints of this branch are naturally proud, for this is the first brick church built in the Manchester District.

About 3.45 p. m., between two and three hundred people began to march from the place where they have temporarily held meetings to the new building, headed by a trumpet band of the boys' brigade and the district banner. The ceremony was a very impressive one, and occupied nearly two hours; it was presided over by N. J. Weate, the president of the Manchester District, supported by W. H. Greenwood, mission president, and R. May, of London, bishop to the British Isles.

A splendid tea was partaken of in a schoolroom which had been kindly loaned for the occasion. The day's pleasures ended with an entertainment in song and sketch provided by Brother and Sister Greene and friends. The building will cost five hundred and thirty pounds.

A BROTHER.

A New Organization to Assist Sanitarium.

A ladies' society called the "Patroness Society for the Independence Sanitarium" was organized on last Thursday afternoon, November 20, in the basement of the Stone Church, the object of which is to assist the Sanitarium in a material way, by soliciting donations both of money and merchandise, and by making articles of linen and other accessories needed in such an institution.

Their officers are: Mrs. E. L. Kelley, president; Mrs. Doctor

Joseph Mather, vice president; Miss Della Criley, secretary; Mrs. M. T. Short, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edward Rannie, treasurer. Membership in the society is not confined to Independence alone.

Those invited to participate in the organization of the society were Richard Bullard, John W. Rushton, G. E. Harrington, of the Sanitarium Board; and W. H. Garrett, of the stake presidency. Richard Bullard was chosen temporary chairman, and J. W. Rushton, temporary secretary. There were about fifty ladies present; a good feeling prevailed, and the business was done in a satisfactory manner.

The bringing of this organization into existence is largely due to the efforts of Sister E. L. Kelley.

Respectfully, G. E. HARRINGTON.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, November 24, 1913.

LACONA, IOWA, November 20, 1913.

Editors Herald: I spent a very enjoyable season at the stake conference from the 13th to the 16th, at Oland Branch, when I enjoyed the acquaintance and association with the Saints of that place. The Spirit of the Lord was present in a marked degree.

One feature of business transacted shows much progress, and bids fair to place our work before the public in such a way as to do much good. I have reference to the information of work being done and proposed to be done by the Publicity Bureau and action had thereon. This work, when proposed last spring at the General Conference, was not understood, hence not approved; but since then a movement has been made that should have the approval of all the ministry and church workers.

The article in the last HERALD entitled, "An open letter to the clergy," is excellent, and should be followed by one to the "Women's councils for home and foreign missions," which no doubt will be done in time.

Previous to attending the conference I held over two weeks' meetings at Spring Hill Schoolhouse, near Lucas, Iowa, where much interest was seen. The few Saints in that vicinity showed commendable zeal, and did what they could to make my stay a pleasant and profitable one.

I began near Lacona last night with but little interest, but hope for good to be accomplished.

Hopefully,

J. F. MINTUN.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, November 20, 1913.

Editors Herald: My sense of appreciation constrains me to say that the dear HERALD grandly continues to give "the more abundant life" to its readers.

It refreshes my soul to drop into the city of the Saints occasionally, and note the fervor and activity manifested in the things concerning the kingdom.

Time, as well as events, plainly indicates to us to-day that there existed a power behind that prayer of consecration upon the land of Zion, in the early thirties, by command of Jehovah.

As we go hither and thither about our Father's business, we are made to marvel and rejoice in the fulfillment of the prophecies given in our own time, wherein the Lord, in the revelation concerning Zion, says: "Again, verily I say unto you, I will show unto you wisdom in men concerning all the churches, inasmuch as they are willing to be guided in a right and proper way for their salvation, that the work of the gathering together of my Saints may continue, that I might build them up unto my name upon holy places." (Doctrine and Covenants 98: 9.)

And can we not see, in a measure, a striking fulfillment of the following instruction had from the Lord: "Send forth the elders of my church unto the nations which are afar off; unto the islands of the sea; send forth unto foreign lands; call upon all nations; firstly, upon the Gentiles, and then upon the Jews. And, behold and lo, this shall be their cry, and the voice of the Lord unto all people: Go ye forth unto the land of Zion, that the borders of my people may be enlarged, and that her stakes may be strengthened, and that Zion may go forth unto the regions round about; yea, let the cry go forth among all people: Awake and arise and go forth to meet the bridegroom."—Doctrine and Covenants 108: 3. As late as March, 1873, the Lord thus continues: "Let my commandments to gather into the regions round about, and the counsel of the elders of my church guide in this matter until it shall be otherwise given of me."

Is not the hastening time now upon us? And is it not time that all should awake, that the church might receive strength to successfully carry out the designs and purposes of our heavenly Father in the speedy redemption of Zion, that shall enable the people of God to escape the perils which are to come?

My interests are still centered in the wondrous proclamation of "peace on earth, good will to men," as revealed in the sounding of the angel's trump at the ushering in of this last dispensation.

Yours in the conflict,

FRANK J. PIERCE.

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, October 27, 1913.

Editors Herald: As I lie in bed, not able to attend to my duties on account of an accident that happened to me on October 12, when the car that I was driving was struck by a street car, the car and myself being badly damaged, my mind goes back to the days when I first heard the gospel.

In the year 1884 I was living with my wife in Weir City, Kansas. I was working in the mines. The surroundings were very rough. As I had not yet obeyed the gospel, I readily partook of the things of the world; my wife was a good Latter Day Saint. I was not a bad man, but liked to play cards, and do such things as the world generally does. My companion always tried to tell me of the gospel; how the Lord had again called upon men to do his work as in olden times; how it was needful to have a prophet to lead the people; and how blessings and power were with the church now.

Of course I didn't believe this, as I was raised in the Lutheran Church, and had been taught that the gospel had come down from Christ to the present day, and had never changed. I tried to prove to her that she was wrong, that the idea of prophets nowadays was absurd; that they were not needed; that we had all that we ought to have to make us Christians; but to no avail, for she was firm in her belief.

My wife prayed for me, that the Lord would make the truth known to me. I felt sorry for her that she was so deluded. I write this that the reader may know my condition. The Lord heard her prayers. It was to be made known to me that the Lord had again set his hand to gather his people in these last days.

In the month of April, 1884, I was taken sick with throat trouble. We did all we could to relieve my condition, but I was no better. The doctor said I could not live; he said he had done all he could. By this time I could not speak. I looked over to my wife; she was crying. I was not afraid to die; but I desired to know if my wife were right in her belief.

That night, whether in dream or awake, I know not, I was out in the open, standing alone, when I saw a multitude of people coming toward me. Their heads were bare. In the center was a man walking with bowed head, holding a staff in his right hand. He had a mantle over his shoulders, and was talking to the people. When the procession came to within forty or fifty feet of where I was standing, the man in the center lifted his head and looked toward me. He raised his hand and beckoned me to come to him. I started at once toward him, the people making room for me to pass. He started to walk again, and began to speak, saying, "The Reorganized Church is the true church; Joseph Smith is a true prophet of God, and the Book of Mormon is true."

As we continued to walk along we came to a river spanned by a bridge. The people crossed on the bridge, but the man (whom I understood to be Jesus) took me by the hand and we went down the bank into the water. The water was very deep and covered us up. As we came out of the water, Jesus, still holding my hand, said, "In order to come into my kingdom a man must be born again of water and of the Spirit." As we reached the bank, Jesus turned and laid one hand on my head. In the other hand he had a pint tin cup of oil which he poured on my head and blessed me. I was full of the Spirit, and when I opened my eyes again I was alone.

Next morning my speech had returned, and I said to my wife, "Mary, you are right; Joseph is the true prophet of God, and I shall not die, but be baptized into God's church, so you and I can be one in the faith."

When the doctor came he was very much surprised to see me up. I was well and out of bed.

I was baptized about three weeks later, by Brother R. H. Davis, at Angola, Kansas. I have many testimonies of this work.

Your brother in gospel bonds,

J. C. SEVERIN.

HAMILTON, ONTARIO.

Editors Herald: Webster defines sin as the voluntary departure of a moral agent from a known rule of rectitude or duty, prescribed by God; any voluntary transgression of the divine law, or violation of a divine command; a wicked act, iniquity. Sin is either a positive act in which a known divine law is violated, or it is the voluntary neglect to obey a positive divine command, or a rule of duty clearly implied in such command. Sin comprehends not actions only, but neglect of known duty, all evil thoughts, purposes, words, and desires; whatever is contrary to God's commands or law. Robert Hall has said that sinners neither enjoy the pleasures of sin, nor the peace of piety.

The fourth verse of the third chapter of the first epistle of John harmonizes with Webster. John says whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law, for sin is the transgression of the law. Jacob, Book of Mormon, pages 114 to 116, small edition, speaking to the people of Nephi, tells them that it was his duty so to do, according to the responsibility that he was under to God, and in order that he might rid his garments of their sins, and that he might declare unto them the word of God. Then he goes on to say, But hearken ye unto me and know that by the help of the all-powerful Creator of heaven and earth I can tell you concerning your thoughts, how that you are beginning to labor in sin, which sin appeareth very abominable unto me, yea, and abominable unto God.

We read on and we find what sin it was that was so abominable to him and to God. It was seeking for gold, silver, and precious ores. Some had obtained great wealth, so much so that they became lifted up in the pride of their hearts, and would not recognize their brethren. We might say the poorer class. But is that a fact, that we are poor because we do not have of this world's goods? No. If we have the Spirit of God and faith in his restored gospel; and live according to his law, we are rich above all others who have of this world's wealth and who do not have of these greater riches, for we shall inherit that which no man can take away from us. We are laying up treasures in heaven where moth nor rust can not corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal.

How is it with us in these last days? How many of us are seeking after the wealth of this world regardless of the gospel and its benefits? How many are being lifted up in the pride of their hearts and disregarding their brethren who may not be in quite as good circumstances? How many of our missionaries are speaking as plainly as Jacob did in regard to pride and other evils that I fear are creeping into the church? God is the same unchangeable God that he was in the days of Jacob, Nephi, John, and Paul, and all the ancient worthies. If he would not permit these conditions in those days, will he permit them now? If destruction followed them then, will it not follow them to-day?

In Doctrine and Covenants 42:7 we are told what we should not do; and that if we disobey and repent not we are told what the outcome will be. And we are told, Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart and shalt cleave unto her and none else; and he that looketh upon a woman to lust after her shall deny the faith and shall not have the Spirit, and if he repents not he shall be cast out. Thou shalt not commit adultery, and he that committeth adultery and repenteth not shall be cast out. But if he repents with all his heart and forsaketh it and doeth it no more, thou shalt forgive, etc.

Sometimes I wonder if any of these evils spoken of in this section are in the church to-day. Such must have been, if not now, else there would have been no need for the instructions given. Are we living up to our duty toward God and toward his commandments? If not, we are neglecting our duty; hence the transgression of the divine law, which is sin. As we have quoted, He that looketh upon a woman to lust after her shall deny the faith. In James 1:15 we are told when lust hath conceived it bringeth forth sin, and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death, which Paul says is the wages of sin.

Then, as Paul puts it, in Hebrews 12:1: Let us lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, and then endure unto the end. For he that endureth shall be saved, and shall be made richer than those who have of this world's goods, but who are poor in obedience to divine law.

W. D. BANNISTER.

FULTON, IOWA, November 29, 1913.

Editors Herald: In October we had the district conference here, which was well attended by both Saints and outsiders. The Spirit of the Master was with us from first to last. Surely the conference went down in history as the best ever held in this district. All seemed so happy and cheerful, filled with love for the Saints and their heavenly Father.

We hold our regular meetings and Sunday school, which are well attended, especially Sunday forenoons, as we are all, or nearly all, farmers. Last Sunday afternoon we had the pleasure of leading five more precious souls into the waters of baptism, Brother and Sister McPeak and two grown daughters, and Sister McPeak's sister. This makes nine that have been added to our branch this summer by baptism.

We had a fine attendance at our Thanksgiving service. All seemed to rejoice because of the goodness of our heavenly Father. While so many suffered from drouth, we had copious rains. Our crops were good, corn going as high as eighty bushels to the acre.

I wish to say to the Saints of the Eastern Iowa District that I am behind in the funds to apply on the church debt. I have in hand so far only about one third of the amount allotted to our district. The amount could easily be raised if we but put forth an effort. Now come, brethren, and sisters, let me hear favorably from all who can assist. It may mean a sacrifice for some, but by sacrifice come the blessings.

Now when you read this take your check book and write a private check for what you can give. We need one dollar and fifty cents from each member. There are many who can not be reached at all. Others are not able to respond. So those who can should do what they can, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver. Also remember that the bishop's agent's books close December 31. Let those who give send before this date, so that remittances may be placed on the books for this year, and you receive credit.

Your brother,

JOHN HEIDE, Bishop's Agent.

LEVENSHULME, MANCHESTER, ENGLAND.

Editors Herald: I have often thought I would write a few lines to your readers, stating how I became a Latter Day Saint; but not until October 11, 1913, did I make up my mind to do so. I then felt that it was my duty to write your valuable paper. I wish to hereby acknowledge God's power in leading me into the Reorganized Church.

About nineteen years ago I was associated with the people known in the religious world as Plymouth or Christian Brethren, who worshiped in the gospel tent, James Street, Bradford. I enjoyed many happy times with these people, really believing in my heart that they were the true people of God.

Finally an old man named William Clarke, father of our respected Brother James Clarke of 127 Stockport Road, Manchester, entered into our meeting room, and joined in the worship. This old brother came several times, and each time would leave some of the tracts issued by the Reorganized Church. After a time he brought two or three men along with him. One evening he brought seven or eight more to a Bible reading, among whom were our late respected Brother Dewsnup, sr., and Brother Thomas Brien. The writer took a prominent part among the Plymouth Brethren, and well remembers going to our Brother Dewsnup, who sat in the rear, and persuading him to come to the front and make himself at home.

Our meeting soon after commenced. We opened with singing and prayer, and were about to enter into the study of the lesson, when one of our prominent men asked whether there were any Latter Day Saints in the room. A dead silence followed. The question was asked again; the answer, "Yes," was given.

The Plymouth brother then said, "We shall be glad if the Saints will leave, as their room is better than their company."

Of course this was because the Saints were thought to be polygamists. Brother Dewsnup tried to defend his position, but it was of no use. We voted that they should leave the room, the writer being one who voted to exclude them. They left the place, several belonging to the brethren leaving with them. Among the latter were our respected brethren, Thomas Taylor, G. W. Leggott, and William Clarke.

I have been informed since that when the Saints left the room, our Brother William Clarke stood opposite the meeting room and said, "Never mind, brethren, this room will yet be ours, and we shall worship here."

Eventually Brethren Thomas Taylor, G. W. Leggott, F.

Tapping, my mother and father and my brother John, and others joined the Saints. The writer continued with the Plymouth Brethren about three years. I often argued with my mother and brother, and have been out late at night, Bible in hand, under lamp posts, arguing with our Brethren Taylor and Leggott; but all to no purpose. I was convinced that the Latter Day Saints were wrong, and that the people with whom I worshiped were right. I would not give anything for a man who did not hold fast to that which he thought was right until convinced that it was wrong. Hence my position in opposing the Saints.

Towards the end of the three years before mentioned, I went on a holiday trip to the home of my brother John, in Warrington. While in bed at night I argued with him about the teaching of the Saints. We came home on Saturday night, and at my bedside I earnestly besought the Lord to reveal unto me the truth. I promised the Lord that if he showed me the Saints were wrong I would endeavor with all my might to pull their system down; if right, I would obey, and try with all my energy to uphold their faith. I had many times previously prayed to the Lord to show me who was right, but never with the same zeal and earnestness that I did on this occasion. The truth was, I did not want to believe the Saints were right, because I was happy and comfortable with the people with whom I worshiped. The Lord knew this.

The next day being Sunday, I went to mother's in the afternoon, for tea, along with a lady friend. While there mother said, "James, I don't know what it is that prompts me, but I do feel so convinced to talk to thee on the gospel."

Just imagine how I felt. A choking sensation came into my throat; I could not finish my tea, because I thought of my prayer of the previous night. I had not told anyone about it, even my friend did not know. We went to our own meeting, fearing lest we should be polluted if we went to the Saints' meeting. Strange to say, the preacher that night discoursed from John 3: 5, "Except a man is born of water," etc.

The way the man talked round that text was marvelous to me. He said the water meant the word: Except a man is born of the word and of the Spirit. I was just beginning to have my eyes opened. (I omitted to say that when mother spoke to me on this Sunday night, it was the first time after a long interval, for I was so headstrong in my belief that she made up her mind never to talk to me of the gospel again. However, you will see that this was the working of the Lord; and as Joseph Smith and others have said, It was marvelous in our eyes.)

After the night meeting my friend and I walked together for about two miles, not speaking to each other once. I was thinking about the words of mother and the preacher of the evening; it was quite unusual for us to walk thus. At length the silence was broken. I believe I asked her what she was thinking about, and she asked me the same question. I then told her what I had prayed the previous night, and that as yet I did not see anything in the teaching of the Saints. I told her that if it was revealed unto me I would obey. I told her she could please herself. She promised me that she would also obey, if she found it to be right. However, time has revealed the fact that she did not mean what she said.

After entering the work I lost this friend. This was providential, as I afterwards found one in the church; and I am thankful to say she has proved in many ways a great blessing to me, especially in my labor as a servant of the Lord.

I worked during the night at this time; I went on duty at twelve, midnight. The next night I went to work as usual, but the scripture, "He hath opened up a new and living way," kept forcing itself upon my attention. I could not forget it.

I thought I was walking in the way that Jesus had laid down.

I came home the next morning and took my Bible down. I opened it at Mark 1 and read: "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God," etc. This passage seemed new to me. There was new light in it, as I have never before seen it. Yet I was looked upon as one who knew the Scriptures well. I have no doubt that I had read that passage hundreds of times, but had never seen such beauty in it as I did at that time. I took it that if that was the beginning of the gospel, as it stated, there I must commence. I read on and found that John preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. I had previously been baptized by the Christian Brethren. They taught that it was an outward sign of an inward grace. I soon found that I must again be baptized, and by one having authority. I finally consented to join the church.

The Plymouth Brethren used to break bread together every Lord's day morning. On a certain Sunday morning I again attended their meeting. There were about thirty present. They were seated in a circle like a family gathering. When I arose in their midst, I told them what my convictions were, and that to be honest with myself and the Lord I must leave them. There was not a dry eye in the room after I announced my decision. I felt on leaving them as if my right arm was being wrenched from my body. I afterwards went home and wept freely.

I was baptized into the Reorganization on November 25, 1897. Oh, the change when I joined the church and entered into the service! Everything was done by common consent. Considerable time elapsed before I became adjusted to the routine. The people with whom I formerly worshipped were so sedate. I must give honor where honor is due, however. I may say that I owe my knowledge of the Bible to the people whom I so reluctantly left. They emphasized the fact that we should read constantly. In this way I obtained a knowledge of the Scriptures for myself. I was the last of the Saints to leave this people.

After I had worshipped with the Reorganized Church for about five years, one of the Christian Brethren came to our house, (at this time we lived close to the meetinghouse), and told me that the gospel tent was for sale. I at once told the Saints about it. A meeting was called and Brethren Brien and Mayne were appointed a committee to purchase it. It was offered for twenty pounds. A few forms and other things were thrown in.

While our brethren were bargaining for the tent, an evilly-disposed man present said, "No matter what those people offer you, I will give you one pound more." Be it said to the credit of the man authorized to sell it, that he would not let the man have it. This man desired to use it as a dancing academy. The seller stated that the Latter Day Saints had had the first offer made to them, and they were going to have it. The place was finally sold to us for thirteen pounds. In this way the prophecy previously uttered by William Clarke was fulfilled.

Although the tent was now ours, we had to pay five shillings per week ground rent. A new building fund had been established about five years prior to the purchasing of the tent, the Saints contributing three pence per week. In this way a large sum of money was accumulated, which enabled us to eventually purchase the land, which cost two hundred pounds. At the present time a new building is being erected thereon, to the glory of the Lord.

On October 11, we had a stone laying ceremony in connection with this new building. Brethren G. W. Leggott, Thomas Brien, F. Tapping, A. Mayne, W. Maddock, J. E. Meredith, and Sister Schofield, mother of the writer, each laid memorial stones, other prominent brethren taking part in the meeting. Brother N. J. Weate, the president of the Manchester District, was in charge of the service, assisted by Bishop R. May, Brother W. H. Greenwood, president of the British Isles Mission, and W. R. Armstrong, one of the pioneers of the work in Bradford.

There was a large crowd present, brought together through the instrumentality of the Boys' Brigade Band, which led the procession to the scene of the ceremony. The district choir sang sweet hymns; speeches were made by several of the brethren present. The police officers kept order, and a happy and historic day was brought to a close with a tea party and concert in a local Free Methodist Sunday school. Our new building will cost six hundred pounds (three thousand dollars) when completed.

This includes a baptismal font. The construction of the font has been forced upon us by the action of the city corporation, which has closed all its baths to us for religious purposes. This shows that when one door is closed to his Saints, the Lord opens another. Thus, the angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him. You can see, dear Saints, what can be done by a small band of united brethren and sisters.

In conclusion, I may say that the Lord has wonderfully blessed the writer in his ministrations as a servant of the church. At Bradford I acted as branch priest for about fifteen years. I have been called to the eldership, and am now laboring as a missionary, under the direction of the president of the mission, Brother W. H. Greenwood, whom I previously opposed when presenting his views to the people with whom I was once associated.

I well remember the time when we were holding a Bible reading and Brother Greenwood came in about fifteen minutes late. He sat down, crossed his legs and said: "I beg your pardon, brethren, I am sorry that I am late." He then asked how far we had proceeded with our lesson.

I whispered to the brother next to me, "He seems to think that we have been waiting for him, and can not go on without him. Ask whether he is saved."

Well, here we are to-day, both united brethren in the work of the Lord. Truly his hand has guided us up to the present.

Your brother in the one faith,
36 OSWALDS ROAD. JAMES SCHOFIELD.

GLASGOW, MONTANA, November 13, 1913.

Editors Herald: Thanksgiving Day is near at hand, the first Thanksgiving that I ever felt thankful or that I had anything to rejoice over. I would that many of my people could feel the same thankful spirit.

I am grateful that I am one of the household of faith, and to know our God liveth and has permitted me to become his believing child. I am thankful that he has blessed me with a choice piece of mother earth here in Montana. Above all, I am thankful to feel his Spirit with me.

I rejoice to have my children home with me for Thanksgiving dinner. Only a mother can sympathize with another when grieving for her children. Although isolated from our church privileges, we pray without ceasing, and remember our loved ones we left in Lamoni.

Our hearts were made glad when Elder T. J. Jordan, of Saskatchewan, visited us, if only for a short stay. He gave us a lovely talk. It was glorious to sit and listen to the precious gospel. I am heartsick and craving to hear our elders. We will feed them and help get a hall if only they can come to us. My husband is not a member of the true church, but he enjoyed the sermon, and the way Brother Jordan explained his subject. He made two converts while here. I am thankful he came.

How glorious to be in the light! And how thankful we all ought to be for this true latter-day gospel. I know our gospel is true; I love our church, our gospel, and our God. I am thankful for all his blessings, and for the gift of his dear Son.

Come help gather up the sheep and feed the flock with the bread of life. Think of me in your prayers, and be merciful to us, Lord, while we are isolated.

Your sister,

MRS. LILY B. ASCHBRENNER.

News from Missions

Nauvoo District.

Last April "authority" appointed me to labor in the Nauvoo District, Burlington (Iowa) objective point.

Immediately, Sister Miller and I came to Burlington, and later concluded to arrange to go to housekeeping—the first time since our marriage, more than three years ago. We are now nicely and happily located, about four blocks from our little church.

The work is moving along very nicely here at the present time. I have, during the fall months, done some preaching away from Burlington. While there is no doubt plenty to keep a minister busy right here in Burlington, yet the laborers are few in this district, as well as in others. Calls have come for help. I have responded to as many as I thought I could under the circumstances.

Brother Charles Harpe began a meeting in a schoolhouse near Mount Pleasant, Iowa, but was soon called home to his mother's bedside, she being very ill at the time. Brother Joehnk was sent to carry the meetings on, and successfully did so for a week, when it became necessary for him to leave. Brother and Sister Gillespie then went for me. I responded and spoke each evening for about one week. Closed with a full house and we hope some interest.

Having a standing invitation from the Rock Creek Branch, near Adrian, Illinois, to come and hold some meetings, I did so, remaining about two weeks. The weather was fine, and everything was in order for a good beginning. The attendance was good. God was with us, and that is enough to prove we had good meetings. I was told that we enjoyed the best attendance and interest had there since about seventeen or eighteen years ago. Two were baptized. Others, we think, are near the kingdom. I am indeed thankful to our heavenly Father for the blessings of the Holy Spirit, and to Saints and friends for their support and kindness while at the above-mentioned places.

A little more than three weeks ago I received a phone message from Brother Joseph Reed, asking me to come over to "Macedonia" (Montrose) and help. Brother Charles Harpe had been holding the fort there about three weeks, speaking to good crowds right along. I responded to the call, and spoke three evenings. Two evenings I spoke to a large, attentive audience on the prophetic mission of Joseph Smith. I enjoyed the best of liberty. I also enjoyed the association and hospitality of both Saints and friends there.

I returned from Montrose, Saturday, November 8, and occupied the Burlington pulpit Sunday the 9th. Tuesday the 11th I left for New London, Iowa, where meetings had previously been announced and advertised to begin that evening, in the opera house. Closed there Sunday night, November 23. Taking into consideration the opposition in the form of moving picture shows, box suppers and religious "Babylon," the attendance at our services was good. We enjoyed a reasonably good regular attendance, and three evenings the opera house was about filled. It was almost filled both Sunday evenings, notwithstanding all the other churches in town were running full blast. I am told that we had more in attendance than all of them combined.

During the second week I gave a lecture on the latter-day apostasy, or as we announced it, "Mormonism exposed," but rightly named, "Brighamism"! We had almost a full house that evening. More adults than at any time before. Some leading business men of the town and prominent church workers were among them. They gave the best of attention, and by the help of our heavenly Father I felt better satisfied with the effort of the hour than I had ever done before. That is, it seemed to be the thing needed at that time, and everything come to hand easily. God be praised.

There are but few Saints in or near New London, therefore the lack of music worked against the better success of the meetings. Some of the young folks came down from Burlington three evenings in autos and rendered us much appreciated help in the song service.

Elder Lawrence Willey, a resident of New London, procured the opera house, paying two dollars and fifty cents an evening for the use of it. He willingly spent several dollars in putting out advertising matter in the form of large posters, handbills and window cards, also some slides for the picture machines, announcing special subjects. (So we got some good out of the picture show.) Brother Willey will no doubt receive some help from the few Saints scattered about there, but he was the booster and backbone of the business. Yes, business! for I think that a proclamation of the gospel should be our first "business."

While the prejudice at times was like the Book of Mormon darkness, so thick that you could feel it, yet we are sure much of it was broken down and that good was done. One gave name for baptism and others seem interested. Some intelligent questions came to the platform, while some were abusive in the extreme. Some old mother Grundy stories that have been discarded by thinking people were used quite freely. However, we think the latter class were noticeably in the minority.

This is the place where Brother O. H. Bailey met and so completely defeated Elder Roberts. The shout of victory for Bailey and Latter Day Saintism hasn't died away among the New London people yet.

I might state here that while I was away from Burlington Brethren Joehnk, Harpe, Morgan and George P. Lambert occupied the pulpit there on different Sundays. Brethren Harpe and Morgan also held a series of meetings for about ten days while I was away. Glad to have all the above named brethren as coworkers. A change about once in a while I think is good for all concerned, especially for the patient audience!

Amid the rejoicing I have not been without affliction. For about three or four months I have been suffering at times intense pain in my knees, especially when I attempt to walk. I first thought it was rheumatism. Recently a personal friend of mine and one of the best physicians and surgeons of the city has examined my knees and informs me that the cartilage is loose, and that nothing in the way of treatment will do any good, that an operation is necessary. I have hoped to be able to drag through till time for conference and then go to the Sanitarium, but if they keep growing worse as they have of late I fear I shall have to do something before.

I have been administered to once. But knowing that James says, "If afflicted pray" I have requested the prayers of the branch, and I have sought the Lord continually, asking for cure, but no relief comes. I must have health or help if I attend to the work here as it should be attended to. There is much visiting to be done among the Saints, and much that should be followed up among nonmembers. May God give me strength to do it. Or better still, may I be able to say from the heart: "My God, thy will be done."

I want to thank the dear Saints and friends, among whom I have labored both in and out of Burlington, for their kindness toward me.

As a body of people, we know that our past record is made, the present alone is in our grasp, the future is practically unknown, but—All things work together for good to those who love the Lord. May God help us to be onward in the march.

In the conflict,

O. R. MILLER.

Miscellaneous Department

Convention Minutes.

ALABAMA.—During the conference held with the Flat Rock Branch, November 9, the Alabama District met for the purpose of organizing a district Sunday school association. Following officers were elected: C. E. Shelly, superintendent; H. H. Wiggins, assistant superintendent; Vida Harper, secretary; Fannie Patrick, treasurer; W. H. Drake, librarian; D. E. Shelley, home department superintendent. D. E. Sellers, secretary.

The Bishopric.

AGENTS' NOTICES.

To the Saints of the West Virginia District: At our last General Conference the Lord, by the mouth of his servant, our venerable president, commanded his people to pay off the existing church debt. The Bishopric are endeavoring to raise seventy-five thousand dollars to apply on this indebtedness. The portion that West Virginia District is called upon to raise is only three hundred and fifty dollars. I have been instructed by our Presiding Bishop to endeavor to raise this amount as soon as possible. This is a very small amount, provided each one will throw in his mite.

At this season the Nation is celebrating Thanksgiving Day. How shall we show that we are truly thankful to the giver of all good, but by manifesting our thanks in giving of our means to free our church from the burden of debt, thereby assisting in the proclamation of the angel's message.

The Lord also says that we shall cease from unnecessary buying. Do we spend our money for anything that is not necessary to feed and clothe the body? The Lord enumerates in Doctrine and Covenants 86 some of the unnecessary and injurious things, such as strong drinks, hot drinks, tobacco, excessive meat eating, etc. Let us not forget that the Lord has said that this is a day of sacrifice. What are we sacrificing in the interest of him who said, "Father, thy will be done," sacrificing his life for us? Faith without works, being alone, is dead. Let us show by our works that we have a living faith.

Send me whatever amount you can, and I will receipt for same. You may subscribe and pay as you can.

Your brother in the great family of God,

FRANCIS L. SHINN, Bishop's Agent.

CLARKSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA.

To the Saints of the Fremont District: Unto the members of this district has been assigned the task of raising thirteen hundred dollars as our portion toward reducing church debt. The latest enumeration shows six hundred and eighty-eight members in the district, which will require an average of almost two dollars for each member. But there are many scattered members who will not see this notice, and others who are not able to contribute, so that the burden will rest upon those who are able and willing to pay more than the average allotment. Let us be liberal and put forth an extra effort to raise this amount by the close of this conference year.

Let us also not forget our tithing before the close of the calendar year. These are duties that we owe unto our church and to our God, and if we are prompt, cheerful, and liberal in the performance of the same, we will be entitled to much greater blessings. When you remit, be sure to specify what amount is sent as tithing, and what as offering, and who for, so that proper credit may be given on our books.

May we each be blessed in our labors for this cause.

C. W. FORNEY, Bishop's Agent.

THURMAN, IOWA, December 1, 1913.

Conference Notices.

North Dakota District will meet at Minot, North Dakota, January 10 and 11. Saints wishing the next reunion held in their locality will write Brother Thomas Leitch, William Sparling, or the undersigned, stating the privileges they have to offer. The matter will be brought before the committee and considered at this conference. J. W. Darling, secretary.

Convention Notices.

Spokane Sunday school will convene in Saints' chapel, Spokane, December 12, at 2 p. m. Election of officers. Mary M. Buchanan, secretary.

Correction.

In the issue of the HERALD for November 26, page 1157, first column, close of second paragraph, I am reported as saying: Shook's condensed milk is a very doubtful fraud. It should have read: Shook's condensed milk is a very clear fraud, but a doubtful brand.

R. ETZENHOUSER.

Died.

BAILEY.—At Independence, Missouri, November 4, 1913, of pneumonia, Sister Elizabeth Bailey, wife of Brother Allen Bailey. She was born at Toronto, Canada, August 2, 1857; was baptized at London, Canada, February 2, 1871, by J. J. Cornish. December, 1880, she married Henry Robertson, at Armstrong, Kansas, who later deceased, leaving one daughter. About 1888 Sister Robertson married Allen Bailey, of Independence, who, with the daughter, one brother, and three sisters, mourn her demise. She was unselfish, and lived to make others happy. She was devoted to her invalid daughter, and desired to live for her sake. Funeral from the home; sermon by W. H. Garrett, assisted by M. H. Bond. Interment in Mound Grove Cemetery.

BINGER.—At Independence, Missouri, October 29, 1913, Brother Roy Binger, son of Brother Charles and Sister Rosa Binger. He was born at Independence, Missouri, May 29, 1899. Was baptized May 27, 1909, by W. H. Garrett; confirmed by John Kaler and D. J. Krahl. Funeral from Second Independence church, November 2, 1913, sermon by W. H. Garrett, assisted by H. W. Goad. Interment in Woodlawn Cemetery.

OWEN.—Ezra Owen was born August 25, 1882; died November 26, 1913, near Seiling, Oklahoma. Funeral in the brick church, Canadian Center Branch, in charge of J. W. Squire; sermon by H. F. Durfey. Interment in Seiling Cemetery.

CRANDALL.—Lyman W. Crandall was born in Davis County, Illinois, September 24, 1840. Was baptized September 15, 1862, at Gallands Grove, Iowa; ordained a deacon December 15, 1872. He passed away November 1, 1913, leaving a wife, two sons, and one daughter. Services at Gallands Grove were attended by a large number of relatives and friends. Sermon by Joseph Seddon. Interment in Holcomb Cemetery.

ANDERSON.—November 23, 1913, Mrs. Grace C. Anderson. She was born at River Sioux, Iowa, March 22, 1886. Was married to Richard B. Anderson, November 26, 1903, at Omaha, Nebraska. In 1911 she united with the Reorganized Church. She leaves husband, four daughters, three sons, an aged mother, five brothers, three sisters, besides many other relatives and a host of friends. Services at Saints' church, Blair, Nebraska. H. S. Lytle in charge; sermon by J. W. Lane, of Pisgah, Iowa. Interment in Blair Cemetery.

LAMBERT.—Alice Jane, wife of Elder W. T. Lambert, died at her home near Adrian, Illinois, November 27, 1913. Her maiden name was Pilkington. She was born in Sonora Township, Illinois, June 6, 1848. December 9, 1872, she married William T. Lambert, and they have since that time lived near their present home. Eight children were born to them. Ida May died in infancy; Mrs. Anna Byers, of Portland, Oregon; Mrs. Grace Stevenson, of Fairfield, Iowa; the Misses Elma and Irene at home, are the daughters; Millard G. resides on the home farm; Clarence J. at Wilson Creek, Washington; Arthur W. at Viceroy, Canada, are the sons. All were present except Mrs. Anna Byers. The funeral service was held at 10.30 a. m., November 27, in the Adrian Methodist Episcopal church, by Elder James McKiernan, assisted by the pastor, Reverend Band. Interment was at the Thornber Cemetery, near Powelton, Illinois.

CASSIDY.—Harvey Cassidy was born near Charleston, Lee County, Iowa, August 12, 1865. Was baptized by S. M. Reiste, March 8, 1908, at Fort Madison, Iowa. His death occurred on the Keokuk line's railway, near Galland, Iowa, November 28, 1913, he being run over by engine while walking on the track. Deaf, he did not hear the approaching train in time to escape. Service in the undertaker's chapel, Montrose, Iowa, James McKiernan in charge. Burial in Montrose Cemetery.

BAILEY.—Susan Schell was born July 25, 1848, at Brownville, Ontario; died November 24, 1913, at Ubyly, Michigan, after an illness of ten months with dropsy. She came to Michigan with her parents in 1862; married John J. Bailey, January 1, 1867; was baptized 1876. She leaves aged companion, nine children, twenty-two grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren. She has been a faithful Saint, assisting many by her words of counsel, advice, and testimonies. For fifteen years she sacrificed the association of her companion that he might go forth proclaiming the gospel. Services at Ubyly Presbyterian Church, by William Grice, assisted by Reverend Hurd, of Ubyly. Interment in Valley Cemetery, Ubyly.

TUBB.—Frederick Rothery Tubb was born July 17, 1855, in Essex, England; died of heart failure July 16, 1913. He was baptized in January, 1880, ordained a priest, later the same year an elder. Married Sister Elizabeth Cleave in 1882. Came to Toronto, June, 1901. His remains were taken to the Saints' church, Soko Street, July 19, where the funeral sermon was preached by A. F. McLean. Interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. His wife is the sole relative in Canada to mourn his departure, their only child, a daughter, having died in infancy.

St. Nicholas News Notes.

The publishers of St. Nicholas have found a happy title for their December issue. It is called "The Christmas Stocking Number," and judging from its contents in pictures and stories, should make an acceptable bulge in one of the stockings hanging from the mantel on Christmas morning.

Football fans are watching for the December St. Nicholas which contains "The Field-goal Art," an illustrated article on the technique of this difficult science by Parke H. Davis, the Princeton member of the Inter-collegiate Football Rules Committee which is responsible for the present style of game.

The graffddaughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, Hildegard Hawthorne, author of "The Lure of the Garden," continues to conduct in St. Nicholas Magazine the department "Books and Reading," in which she takes up different periods of history and describes them, mentioning the various books on the subject.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE BEST CLUBS SUGGESTED

Review of Reviews Woman's Home Companion McClure's Magazine	{ $4.15	Review of Reviews Woman's Home Companion Cosmopolitan Magazine	{ $4.50	Review of Reviews Everybody's Delineator	{ $4.15
Review of Reviews Delineator Cosmopolitan Magazine	{ 4.40	Review of Reviews Everybody's Magazine American Magazine	{ 4.15	Review of Reviews American Woman's Home Companion or Everybody's Mag.	{ 4.15
Review of Reviews Christian Herald St. Nicholas (new)	{ 4.90	Review of Reviews Lippincott's Magazine American Boy	{ 4.35	Review of Reviews Independent	{ 4.25
Review of Reviews Youth's Companion Harper's Bazar	{ 5.25	Review of Reviews Sunset Cosmopolitan or Good Housekeeping	{ 5.00	Review of Reviews Scribner's Harper's Weekly or Harper's Magazine	{ 8.25
Review of Reviews World's Work	{ 3.60	Review of Reviews Century	{ 5.25	Review of Reviews Pearson's Youth's Companion	{ 4.75
Review of Reviews Popular Electricity American Boy	{ 3.75	Review of Reviews Forest and Stream	{ 4.10	Review of Reviews Musician Little Folks (new)	{ 3.75
Review of Reviews American Magazine Pictorial Review	{ 3.90	Review of Reviews Boy's Magazine Delineator	{ 3.75	Review of Reviews Etude Woman's Home Companion	{ 4.25
Review of Reviews Country Life	{ 5.25	Review of Reviews Little Folks (new) Modern Priscilla	{ 3.45	Review of Reviews Farm Journal (5 years) Woman's Home Companion	{ 3.85
Review of Reviews Atlantic Monthly	{ 5.60	Review of Reviews Outing Garden Magazine	{ 5.40	Review of Reviews Christian Herald Delineator	{ 4.05
Review of Reviews Current Opinion McClure's	{ 5.40			Review of Reviews Everybody's St. Nicholas (new)	{ 5.00

Look for a more complete Clubbing List in next week's issue.

ADDRESS ALL ORDERS TO

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE AGENCY

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 A Lecture by Sir Oliver Lodge - - - 1189
 Anti-Saloon League and National Prohibition 1190
 Once Again, by J. W. Wight - - - 1191
 Notes and Comments - - - 1192

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 An Address to the Young, by Frederick A. Smith 1193

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 The Income Tax and Statistics of Incomes - 1200

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - 1201
 Callie B. Stebbins and Christiana Salyards—Eleanor.

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - 1203
 G. E. Harrington—J. F. Mintun—Frank J. Pierce
 —J. C. Severin—W. D. Bannister—John Heide
 —James Schofield—Mrs. Lily B. Aschbrenner.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - 1208
 O. R. Miller.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - 1209

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department.

Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.

Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

A Pretty Christmas Gift.

Send for a string of salt beads, made out of the salt of the Great Salt Lake. They are very attractive Christmas gifts, and can be had in any color desired; white, pink, blue, black, yellow, green, purple, brown, wistaria, etc. Any shade duplicated on receipt of sample color desired.

The beads cost the church nothing, made by our own ladies, and the money all goes toward paying off the debt on the Salt Lake City church building.

Prices: 50 cents, 75 cents, $1.00 and up to $2.50, according to length desired. Sample neck-chain sent on receipt of fifty cents. Remittances should preferably be made by post office order.

Send orders to Mrs. Pauline Dykes, 1326 Second East Street, Salt Lake City, Utah. Be sure to write your name and full address. 48-3t

For Sale.

Twenty-two volumes of Autumn Leaves and thirty-four volumes of HERALDS, all nicely bound and in good condition. The Autumn Leaves are consecutive numbers 1 to 22. The HERALDS contain some of the old volumes which are now hard to get. Those books will be sold at cost. Correspondence solicited. R. H. SMITH.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 711 South Fuller Street.

49-4t

WANTED.

By a young western stock farm manager, a responsible position with a future, or might invest $800 with a partner. What business do you know or have. Address Dan Lee, care Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4tpd

A NEW HOTEL.

A fine opportunity for a good hotel man to establish himself in an up-to-date town with a good business assured from the start. The hotel accommodations at Lamoni have not kept pace with the town. A man of experience with some money wishing to locate permanently in Lamoni and build a modern hotel will receive material assistance from the Lamoni Commercial Club.

For further particulars address G. W. Blair, Secretary of Committee, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4t

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.) John Zahnd, 6-tf Independence, Mo.

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research. Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

COMPENDIUM OF FAITH is a work for the student. It is a collection of texts taken from the standard church works on a great many subjects. Also a splendid brief history of the Apostasy.

Order No.
 141 cloth .....75c
 141 1/2 leather .....$1.00
 174 flexible .....$1.50

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant. No. 216, cloth .....75c

HOT BISCUIT,

hot cakes, made with ROYAL Baking Powder are delicious, healthful and easily made.

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE

STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President
 Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
 A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
 Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
 Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
 Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
 LAMONI - - IOWA

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa

Capital $25,000.00

Surplus $8,750.00

UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
 POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS

Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

HIS FIRST VENTURE, is a book you can depend on to hold the interest of the boys and girls long enough to suggest some valuable lessons. One of the Birth Offering series.
 Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
 No. 140. Price .....50c

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
 Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
 Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a. Cloth .....$1.00

An Exceptional Bible Offer

Endorsed by Representatives of all Denominations

THE 1911 BIBLE

Being the old familiar Authorized Version, carefully amended by American scholars in the light of the latest modern scholarship.

Not a Revision

Only such passages as are recognized by all scholars as needlessly obscure have been altered in any way.

Special Features

- A New System of Chain-References.
- A New System of Collected References.
- A New System of Paragraphs.

"We believe, unqualifiedly, that the 1911 Bible is far the best translation ever given the English-speaking people, and the worthiest of their confidence and affection."—Herald and Presbyterian.

Printed in large black-faced type, very easy to read

Special Offer:

For $2.00 we will send you, postpaid, a copy of this superb Bible, beautifully printed in large black-face type, and bound in the best French morocco, with overlapping edges, round corners, red under gold edges, headband, and fine silk marker. This Bible contains 12 beautifully colored Maps, and Index to Maps.
 Size, 8x5½ inches.

For $5.00 we will send you, postpaid, the exquisite Oxford India Paper edition of this Bible, which measures only ¾ of an inch in thickness. It is bound in the finest Alaska seal, with overlapping edges, full leather lined to edge, silk sewed, round corners, red under gold edges, and has silk headband and marker.
 Size, 8x5½ inches, ¾ of an inch thick.

Remember!! These Bibles are published by the Oxford University Press, American Branch - in itself a sufficient guarantee of their excellence.

Send for one of these Bibles to-day

Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa.

Why Don't You Go With Them?

Who? Those who make the most of life.

Where? To California.

When? Now.

Why? To spend the winter. They know by experience that in its unequalled climate they will avoid the ill effects of rigorous weather, sudden changes and the constant menace of catching cold.

You can live almost as cheaply out there, and much more comfortably. Then what stands between your enduring the hardships of winter here or enjoying it in the balmy breezes of the Golden West? Nothing but a railroad journey, perhaps. About the latter, I have something real interesting and helpful to tell you. You will be surprised at the low cost of the trip. Come in and let's talk it over.

L. F. SILTZ, TICKET AGENT.

Ticket Agent, Burlington Route

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, DECEMBER 17, 1913

NUMBER 51

Editorial

CHRISTMAS AND THE GIFT OF SERVICE.

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, . . . and, lo, the star, which they saw in the east, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young child was. When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy. And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshiped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.—Matthew 2:1, 9-11.

Thus was the first Christmas kept by the devotees of Christ—in rejoicing over the advent of the Messiah into the world, in worshiping in the spirit of true devotion, in the bringing of gifts. The true Christmas is ever kept in this way.

THE GREATEST GIFT.

The custom of bestowing gifts at the Christmas season is said by some to have been adapted from the Roman custom of making gifts at their winter festival. Christian people, however, like to feel that the custom grew out of the gifts of the wise men, in commemoration of the great gift of God to the world—the gift of "the Only Begotten."

The highest conception of this custom is expressed in giving to those less fortunate. In thus giving to those who can not give in return do men approach the gracious gift of the babe of Bethlehem.

It is well that we have a season especially for remembering the gift of God, the gift of Christ. It is well to remember that Christ came with the greatest gift in the power of God to give—the gift of eternal life. It is well that we remember the unfortunate. It is well that we remember God and the gift we may bring to him.

THE GIFT OF SERVICE.

Though great be the Father and the Son, they grant unto us that we may come to them with the gift of service. By this means has God ordained that a large portion of his work upon earth shall be done: The comforting of the distressed; the feeding of the hungry; the clothing of the naked; the visiting of the sick; the care of the motherless; the befriending of the friendless—all this does God seek to do through the humble activities of his people. He desires that it be done through the individual contact of those who have with those who have not, and through the official channels of collection and distribution provided in the church. And above all and tempering all, God desires the full devotion of his people, and through them the highest expression of love to God and love to man.

This is the spirit not only of the Christmas time, but of all time for the devotees of Christ. It is good that we have the Christmas to call to our remembrance our place among men and our service to God. It is well when we carry the Christmas spirit forward throughout the years of our probation.

And best of all, those who are permitted only to receive, not being able to give to others and to God material gifts, are yet able to give of the gifts most rare and most precious. Do they courteously receive from friends, and thankfully receive from God? They give back to man and to God joy and gladness. Do they endure penury, and affliction, and tribulation in evenness of temper and in sweetness of spirit? They minister to man and to God in those things so needful to this life and so necessary for the life beyond. Do they stand firm in temptation? They serve their followers with a most potent example of constancy, and God with lives unspotted from the vices of the world. Do they perform well their every work, seemingly insignificant though it be? Angels can do no more. To such as these as well as to the strong and the mighty will it be said, Well done.

THE CHRISTIAN JOURNEY.

The wise men covered a long, weary journey to offer homage to the babe of Bethlehem, and to lay at his feet priceless gifts. They traveled not as men travel to-day; their journey was by slow, painful stages. Weakened by many privations, harassed by many hardships, beset by many dangers, their weary way led through strange lands and hostile peoples. Yet, undeviating in their purpose the men of the East pressed anxiously onward, ever following the unfailing star. Through all these changing scenes their gifts were jealously guarded. The journey ended, with joy unspeakable, they lay before him their priceless gifts.

24 MAR 22 JULY 1914

The journey of the Christian warrior may be very much like that of these eastern sages; it may be a long way, traversed by slow stages—footsore and weary unto fainting, he presses on through denials severe, duties arduous, temptations dire. He is ever on guard lest the hostile forces of the world take from him his gifts. But, again, like the wise men, he has, in the Holy Spirit, a never-erring monitor; and like them he may eventually come to Jesus. Like them he may do the Christ homage and lay at his feet the best gifts—gifts of a life of devotion and of service. And, finally, like them he may have unspeakable joy—released from the limitations of carnality—joy divine.

THE CHRISTMAS ETERNAL.

Let us, therefore, not forget our gift, the gift of service unstinted. Let us not in weariness leave it by the way. Let us hold it firmly that it be not snatched from us by forces worldly and hostile. Let us press on bravely, remembering ever that the purpose of our long way is to give. Freely we have received, let us freely give. In a word, let us make of this world, so far as our influence may reach, a glad and a continuous Christmas. Doing this we need have no concern with reference to the joy of our triumph and the peace of our life eternal, for at the end of the journey we will have entered upon the eternal Christmas.

J. F. GARVER.

AUTUMN LEAVES FOR 1914.

A WORD WITH YOU.

Autumn Leaves is about to enter upon its twenty-seventh year. As a magazine it is still young, vital, energetic, and alive to the interests of the church.

Objectively, Autumn Leaves might be represented on a three-foot shelf,—twenty-six bound volumes. But this by no means represents the life's work of the editors and publishers.

Autumn Leaves is represented in the lives, in the characters and deeds of men and women who a few years ago were the "young people" of the church, and now are its capable and ardent supporters.

No yardstick or balance can weigh or measure the good that Autumn Leaves has done along that line.

The past speaks for itself, and Autumn Leaves may be judged on its merits so far as the past is concerned.

Our eyes, however, are on the future; like Paul we press forward,—otherwise we could not edit a magazine for young people, or in fact for any class of progressive Latter Day Saints.

We are concerned now with the problem of making Autumn Leaves better during 1914 than it has ever been before.

We think that we shall succeed.

Will you help us by your support?

We shall here name just a few of the good things in store for readers of Autumn Leaves for the coming year. These are merely presented as samples, and will appear in due time, subject of course to unavoidable changes: (Our rule is that when one good article that we advertise is omitted for any reason we give in its place two good articles that were not announced.)

THE GUEST OF THE EDITOR.

We have selected and invited twelve representative men and women of the church, each of whom is to occupy in the editorial department of some one number of Autumn Leaves during 1914 as the guest of the editor. Each one is to select his or her own subject. Those invited are:

Sister M. Walker, Lamoni, Iowa, founder of Autumn Leaves.

W. J. Haworth, Australia, editor of Gospel Standard.

Daniel Macgregor, of Canada, superintendent of the General Sunday School Association.

Sister M. A. Etzenhouser, Independence, Missouri, secretary of Zion's Religio-Literary Society.

Charles Fry, Independence, Missouri, editor of Zion's Ensign.

Emma Burton, Santa Ana, California, author of Beatrice Witherspoon, and well known as a church worker in the South Sea Islands.

J. Charles May, minister in charge of the South Sea Islands.

J. A. Gunsolley, Lamoni, Iowa, president of Zion's Religio-Literary Society.

S. A. Burgess, Lamoni, Iowa, president of Grace-land College.

Paul M. Hanson, Winter Hill, Massachusetts, minister in charge of the Eastern States and Maritime Provinces.

A. N. Hoxie, jr., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, general chorister of the church.

In accepting the invitation one of the above-named brethren wrote: "Once upon a time that term, 'guest,' signified rest and entertainment. My, what a reversal of meaning some of our twentieth century writers give to it!"

We replied to him that when a particularly gifted guest is present he is expected to sing a song, read a poem, or make an after dinner speech, according to his particular talents. And as we have invited none but talented individuals as guests of the editor during 1914, we will expect some very interesting articles.

SOCIAL SERVICE SERIES.

The vital topics that are being discussed in the world to-day are those of a social nature. All of these questions are involved in the general question of the uplift of humanity, and many of them are directly or indirectly involved in the building up of Zion, and in the welfare and safety of individual Saints.

We have arranged for a series of articles on social service subjects, and herewith give a partial list of topics and authors:

"The work of social reformers," by President Frederick M. Smith.

"The white slave traffic; its methods and results," by Elder John F. Garver, chairman of the Social Purity Committee.

"A discussion of legislation as a factor in ethical advancement," by I. A. Smith, formerly of the Iowa State Legislature.

"Industrial education in the United States," by Professor George N. Briggs, of the Department of the Interior, Washington, District of Columbia.

"Cooperation: its values and meaning," by Apostle John W. Rushton.

"The relationship of religion to twentieth century problems," by Bishop A. Carmichael.

"Prison reform," by President Frederick M. Smith.

"Trained men and their relationship to modern social problems," S. A. Burgess, president of Grace-land College.

"Social service" (in one or more articles); by Benjamin R. McGuire, of Brooklyn, New York, lecturer on social service before the North Philadelphia Institute.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH LATTER DAY SAINTS.

Our "travel sketch" articles of late years have been among the most interesting articles that we have published. These articles will be continued, and some splendid numbers will appear in 1914. We already have in hand the following:

"A visit to Lexington and Concord," by Elder G. Wellington Robley, illustrated with photographs by Elder H. O. Smith.

"Reminiscences of Egypt," by Rosa Parks Pitt, with illustrations by the author.

"A visit to Stratford-on-Avon," the home of Shakespeare, by President Joseph Smith.

"Through the mountains of California by stage," by Sister F. B. Farr.

"A visit to Catalina Island," by Ella Switzer, with illustrations by the author.

"Our experiences and impressions in Australia," by Rosa Parks Pitt, with illustrations by the author.

"Pearl diving in the islands," by Elder Gomer T. Griffiths.

Other articles will probably be received during the year, including notes from Jerusalem from the pen of Apostle U. W. Greene, and from Australia from the pens of Apostle Gomer T. Griffiths and Elder C. Ed. Miller.

FIRST PAGE EDITORIALS.

During the past year the first page of Autumn Leaves has been given over to short and pointed editorials addressed to young people. This custom will be continued during the coming year, as many have already expressed themselves to the effect that they have been greatly helped by these editorials. The following subjects are announced:

"The collector of virtues."

"Brain paths."

"Preserved or pickled?"

"The man who never stopped and never turned back."

"In line of duty;" the story of the Evanelia.

"Three keys to power."

"The drifting boat."

"Preparation and achievement."

"Vibrating heartstrings."

"Hunting moonstones."

"The heavy end of the log."

"Pulling the load."

OTHER FEATURES.

The regular features of Autumn Leaves will be continued, such as articles of interest and value on various topics by the best writers in the church, short stories, biographs, and poems.

Nor should we forget to mention the regular departments, which include the departments of the Woman's Auxiliary for Social Service, and the Religio's Arena. The former is devoted to a conservation of the home and is edited by Sister Callie B. Stebbins. The latter is devoted to the work of Zion's Religio-Literary Society, and in its management the editor is assisted by Sister Estella Wight.

ARE YOU A SUBSCRIBER?

Autumn Leaves is edited for the young people of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Men are said to be as old as they feel and women as old as they look. If the brethren will endeavor to feel young and the sisters to look young all may qualify as readers of Autumn Leaves, and they will be the better for it. Let not the old forget the gladness of their youth.

Autumn Leaves is published by the Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, Elbert A. Smith, editor. Address all orders to the Herald Publishing House. Only one dollar per year, in advance.

"Autumn leaves leave when autumn leaves; but Autumn Leaves never leaves—always in season."

NOTICE FROM BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

All orders for An Open Letter to the Clergy should be sent to the Herald Publishing House, Lamon, Iowa. All money orders should be made payable to Herald Publishing House. That confusion and extra work may be avoided, the Saints are kindly requested to comply with this arrangement.

BUREAU OF PUBLICITY.

Hymns and Poems

Selected and Original

A Christmas Carmen.

Sound over all waters, reach out from all lands,
The chorus of voices, the clasp of hands;
Sing hymns that were sung by the stars of the morn,
Sing songs of the angels when Jesus was born!

With glad jubiliations

Bring hope to the nations!

The dark night is ending and dawn has begun;
Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,
All speech flow to music, all hearts beat as one!

Sing the bridal of nations! with chorals of love
Sing out the war-vulture and sing in the dove,
Till the hearts of the peoples keep time in accord,
And the voice of the world is the voice of the Lord!

Clasp hands of the nations

In strong gratulations:

The dark night is ending and dawn has begun;
Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,
All speech flow to music, all hearts beat as one!

Blow, bugles of battle, the marches of peace;
East, west, north, and south let the long quarrel cease.
Sing the song of great joy that the angels began,
Sing of glory to God and of good will to man!

Hark! joining in chorus

The heavens bend o'er us!

The dark night is ending and dawn has begun;
Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,
All speech flow to music, all hearts beat as one!

—John G. Whittier.

To One Who Was One Among Men.

The monarch of Sheba once journeyed afar,
To honor a ruler clad in mortal array;
But we have enlisted to follow a star,
And we seek for a King who is brighter than day.

Her camels were burdened with silver and gold
As they drew toward the city where Solomon dwelt;
And rich was their tribute, with value untold,
When her sun-darkened slaves before Solomon knelt.

But ours is no offering from mine or from mint,
And no mortal its value can rightly appraise,—
A love without limit, bestowed without stint,
A service free-given, without number of days.

A greater than Solomon reigns as our King,
In the City of David, the whither we go;
With joy and with song and with tears—everything—
For one who was man among men long ago.

—E. A. S.

Christmas Bells.

I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old familiar carol play,
And wild and sweet
The words repeat
Of peace on earth, good will to men!

And thought how as the day had come,
The belfries of all Christendom
Had rolled along
The unbroken song
Of peace on earth, good will to men!

Till ringing, singing, singing on its way,
The world revolved from night to day,
A voice, a chime,
A chant sublime,
Of peace on earth, good will to men!

But in despair I bowed my head—
"There is no peace on earth," I said;
"For hate is strong,
And mocks the song
Of peace on earth, good will to men."

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep,
"God is not dead, nor doth he sleep!
The wrong shall fail,
The right prevail,
With peace on earth, good will to men!"
—Henry W. Longfellow.

Christ Story Retold.

As "coming events cast their shadows before,"
So the star of the East a great message bore,
When wise men gave heed to its beckoning light,
And found him they sought in a stable that night.
Meanwhile angel choirs sang this anthem abroad,
Peace to men, and good will, give glory to God!
And another proclaimed, Glad tidings! great joy!
A manger in Bethlehem cradles a boy.

Though a babe, yet a king; God's hosts told his birth,
Of the glory he left to redeem the earth.
Here the pains of the flesh he came to endure,
Man of sorrows his name, so humble, so pure.
Imagine the Son who loved mankind so well
That he gave his life to reclaim them from hell,
E'en the Father himself, in mercy and love,
The only Begotten sent down from above.

Nearly two thousand years have fled since the world
Saw the banner of Christ to Judah unfurled;
Yet the theme of his birth we welcome each year
As our Master, each day his name grows more dear,
And the signs that his second coming proclaim
Are plain to the Saints who believe on his name.
With joy in that hope, all his advent await,
When we'll meet with his host at the beautiful gate.

KIRTLAND, OHIO.

JOHN T. CURRY.

Original Articles

WHAT EXERCISES MAY BE HELD IN OUR CHURCHES?

[EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following article from the pen of President Frederick M. Smith was published in the editorial department of the SAINTS' HERALD some years ago. We have received so many inquiries from Saints regarding the propriety of admitting certain entertainments into local church buildings, that we have decided to republish this article, as it may answer some of these questions.]

A matter with which nearly every branch of the church has wrestled in one form or another is, What shall be allowed in the church building in the way of entertainments, etc.? and shall charges be made at the door? shall seats be reserved? and other concomitant questions. These questions arise because the church building, erected by the people for a place of worship and dedicated to the service of God, is believed to have around it an atmosphere of sanctity; and because of a fear, perhaps, that something foreign may be brought into it which may contaminate it, thereby lessening the degree of sanctity and in some way detracting from the worshipful exercises afterwards held in the church. There seems to be a more or less natural disinclination upon the part of the devout worshipers to break in upon the routine of purely devotional exercises for which the building was primarily erected. After all, to a large extent the effectiveness of a worshipful service depends upon the condition of those entering into the services; and those who enter the building without due feelings of reverence for God and for the place dedicated to his services perhaps will fail to get the full measure of good in the services.

Be that as it may, the question has been a disturbing one in nearly every branch, and the branches have dealt with it in various ways, so that the rules vary from hard and fast ones to rules which are very lightly if at all prohibitive. In some branches no money is allowed to be charged at the door for any services held within the building; in others, no seats are permitted to be reserved even when entrance charge is made. In other places, no exercises are allowed which are not religious or educational. And to determine what are educational and what are not is where confusion begins.

What shall we do with the church bazaars, socials, lunches, dinners, etc., is a perplexing question, and in some places so far have the prohibitive measures been carried that even the church lawns are forbidden to those who desire to hold them.

The general officers of the church have been addressed many times on this question, in a variety of ways: What shall be permitted and what forbidden in the church buildings which have been dedicated to the service of God? And these officers have been censured by some for having failed to clearly and specifically define what shall be permitted and what shall not.

How far have the general officers of the church the right to say what the various congregations of the church shall and what they shall not allow in the way of exercises in the church buildings? After all, is it not a matter of development, and will not the matter reach different adjustments as the spiritual condition of the branches improves? Doubtless in the past entertainments have been permitted in some of our church buildings which were out of harmony with the services generally supposed to be held in houses or temples dedicated to the service of God. And it may be that in time to come we will say that we are now permitting unseemly things to enter the churches.

As a general rule we think it would be safe to permit only such exercises as in the consensus of opinion are above question. What come under the head of doubtful, hold somewhere else until more suitable buildings under church control are obtained. We might of course say that anything which is not worthy to be held in the house of the Lord is not worthy to be participated in by Saints; but that attitude would be too radical.

It is clear that the Lord wants not a lugubrious but a happy people. On the other hand, he does not want to see his people given to levity. To properly draw the line between happy exuberance and levity becomes one of our spiritual duties, and where we draw it to-day may not be where we will draw it when the added experiences of passing time have enhanced our spiritual development.

Exercises, entertainments, socials, dinners, which promote or where there is allowed to be promoted a spirit of lightmindedness, levity, undue familiarity, looseness of conduct towards one another, a disposition to lower saintly dignity of deportment, certainly should not be permitted within the church walls. In fact they should be discouraged anywhere. The tendency should always be towards dignity, circumspection of conduct towards one another, a careful regard for all proprieties; and exercises which tend to elevate are not inappropriate in our churches. It is perhaps a safe rule to permit within the church building only such exercises as are devotional, reverential, dignified, and religiously educational. Those which pander only to the instincts of sociability or are purely for the purpose of raising funds, however worthy the object of the fund being raised, with propriety might be excluded from the churches and be held in other buildings where the atmosphere was less inharmonious. Sociables, dinners, bazaars, all have their places, but surely there are places much more appropriate for holding them than the buildings which have been set apart for holy purposes, for worshipful and devotional exercises.

On the other hand it might be asked, What are our church buildings if they are not places where the instincts towards social intercourse shall in a manner be satisfied? What would the devotional exercises at our church buildings be without the association of friends and relatives with us in those exercises?

It is a perplexing question as to where we shall draw the line, for in places where other public buildings necessary for all public occasions are absent or scarce, we are sometimes compelled to use our churches for what we might not otherwise. Local conditions, material and spiritual, to a great extent must always determine, and for the general officers of the church to lay down hard and fast rules would be impracticable, unwise, and useless. It remains for each branch to say where the line shall be drawn, and to renew their efforts toward the solution of the question as often as it comes up, until they have reached a decision which best promotes the interest of the branch and gives the best satisfaction to those comprising the branch membership.

• * * * •

THE WORKMAN AND HIS GIFT.

An English lecturer was once traveling on a train. A man boarded the train. His clothes were tattered and torn, his trousers were tied up with a bit of string, and he was carrying a dirty sack. In spite of his dirt and rags there was an attractive twinkle in his eyes. A lady in the coach began talking to him. She asked where he was going, and what his work was.

"Oh," he said cheerfully, "I am breaking stone." Turning to the speaker he added, "I can make five shillings a day breaking stone."

"Is that so? How do you manage it?"

"Well," he said, "can you tell me how Gladstone made his great speeches?" One would not imagine he had ever heard of Gladstone.

"No," the lady answered, "I can not tell you how he made his wonderful speeches."

Our friend, the stonebreaker, replied, "It was because he had the gift for it. I have the gift to break stones. God gives us each a gift, and we should use it."

This man was an illiterate, unpolished stonebreaker, but what a wealth of wisdom he possessed. Each one of us has a gift. Are we using it? It may be something small, something that on the surface appears unattractive and undesirable; but it is our gift.

We do not ordinarily think of stonebreaking as a gift. We might call it more of a misfortune; but there was a noble work—he could break stone, and he could do that better than anything else in the world. Who shall say he was not using his gift to the glory of God? We believe he was a happy workman; one who has found his gift and is using it to the best of his ability. In so doing he is happy. The simple consciousness that we are in our special field of endeavor, in our own place, a place that no other can fill, is an inspiration in itself. No wonder that the brightness of this man's eye attracted the notice of the lady. There is an unmistakable stamp of superiority, and every good worker bears that stamp—only a stonebreaker it may be true, but a splendid workman, happy in his work, rich in content—ashamed of his gift he could not be; and why should he be?

After all, a gift is a gift; and whether our talent lies in the more artistic fields, or along the lines of manual labor, it is still a gift, and so a treasure. The stonebreaker had no call to envy some other man his ability along another line. His work was different, but who will say it was not his; and that is a big point, too. The simple fact that a thing is ours gives it value in our eyes. Let us find our gifts, and when we are convinced beyond a doubt that our work is here, or there, or this, or that, let us do it bravely, happily, and beautifully, because the work is ours, and because the gift to perform it was given of God.

Any work that is worth doing is good work. The worker who feels ashamed because his work is not higher or more spectacular shames the work. The most pitiful thing in the world is a worker unworthy of his work. The most beautiful thing in the world is a worker confident because his work is that for which he is particularly adapted.

Let us pray that we may have wisdom given us to use our talents in a right and an acceptable manner, that it may not be said of us that our prayers are like letters which are insufficiently addressed, lost in the dead letter office. As we have often prayed, may the time soon come when the Lord's will shall be done on earth as it is done in heaven.

EMMALINE A. PERRIE.

• * * * •

SHALL ALL THE SAINTS BE ASLEEP WHEN THE SAVIOR COMES?

Some of the brethren in sermons and in their writings assume the position that the sleeping time referred to in Matthew 25 will be when Christ makes his glorious appearing. This, of course, is based upon the statement that while the bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept. The wording of this parable would seem to indicate that the sleeping, tarrying, and lamp-trimming times are synchronous; but this text, like many others, has to be interpreted in the light of all revealed truth.

If all the Saints are to slumber and sleep, yet in the future, how and who will perform the ponderous work yet to be accomplished? The very object and mission of the Book of Mormon has just barely begun, which was to convince the Jew that Jesus is the crucified Christ; and there remains the preaching of the gospel to the nations, the redeeming and building up of Zion, building the temple, the endowment, etc. Can all this be done by a sleepy church? It seems to me that if ever there was a time in the world's history when the Saints of God are to be wide-awake and mightily pushing the work forward it is now and until the coming of the Lord.

It is quite evident that the parable in Matthew 25 has its fulfillment extending over a long period of time. Some parts of it have been fulfilled, and some are yet to be fulfilled. Ofttimes the prophetic declarations point backward as well as forward. While the prime object of John's vision on the Isle of Patmos was to show the future state of the church, yet it carries us back to conditions before man was upon the earth, even to the rebellion in heaven.

The virgins represent God's people; and that may be in an organized or an unorganized state. A study of the New Testament and Doctrine and Covenants clearly reveals the fact that God had a people in all ages of the world; and more particularly during that time we call the dark age period. John saw the church (God's people, virgins,) going into the wilderness, which means obscurity, unseen, or unknown; unknown because of the lack of an organization, but who served God to the best of their ability. Those millions who were slaughtered during the reign of the man of sin because they refused to worship the beast and who stood by conscience, represented the unorganized church of Christ,—virgins, if you please. Always bear in mind that there was a church in the wilderness, (unknown to man), and that church was those who were willing to do the best they could, and that is all God requires of any of us at any time.

Doctrine and Covenants 5:3 says: "In this, the beginning of the rising up, and the coming forth of my church out of the wilderness."

In section 32:2 we read: "And verily, verily I say unto you, that this church have I established and called forth out of the wilderness."

That those people referred to as the church in the wilderness were slumbering and asleep, so far as knowing anything about the perfect law is concerned, all must admit. But to show that God had a people at the very time, which we believe to be the sleeping time, I have only to read Revelation 18:4, which says, in speaking of Babylon: "And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues."

Again, in Doctrine and Covenants 49:2: "Wherefore I will that all men shall repent, for all are under sin, except them which I have reserved unto myself, holy men that ye know not of."

This was a revelation sending Sidney Rigdon, Parley P. Pratt, and Lemon Copley to the Shakers, and among those people had God holy men they "knew not of."

The same thought is voiced in section 32:1: "And my vineyard has become corrupted every whit; and there is none which doeth good save it be a few; and they err in many instances, because of priest-crafts."

This clearly indicates the spiritual slumbering and sleepy state of the church, in this instance called the vineyard. The Lord here says there were a few doing good, but even they erred in many instances, or as we understand it were in the same condition as were those referred to in Matthew 25.

To establish the fact that there will be wise virgins, and not all slumbering and sleeping when Christ comes, we have only to read Doctrine and Covenants 45:10:

And at that day when I shall come in my glory, shall the parable be fulfilled which I spake concerning the ten virgins; for they that are wise and have received the truth, and have taken the Holy Spirit for their guide, and have not been deceived.

Again, read Doctrine and Covenants 63:13:

Even in the day of the coming of the Son of Man, and until that hour, there will be foolish virgins among the wise, and at that hour cometh an entire separation of the righteous and the wicked.

Now since these quotations positively declare that there will be wise virgins, who have the Holy Spirit (oil) as their guide, where will we locate the time when all are asleep? This we believe is clearly pointed out by Isaiah 29:10: "For the Lord hath poured out upon you the spirit of deep sleep, and hath closed your eyes: the prophets and your rulers, the seers hath he covered."

All will agree that this refers to the great apostasy, and as to the time, more particularly to the dawn of the coming forth of the latter-day work. Now at midnight, or when the time had fully come for the light to break forth, all the virgins, or God's people who existed in an unorganized state, or as the church in the wilderness, were all slumbering and sleeping, for as Isaiah says, God had poured out upon them the spirit of deep sleep.

Now when the cry was made, Go ye out to meet the bridegroom, was the time when the gospel was again restored and preached by divine authority. At this time they all arose and trimmed their lamps, or accepted the word, which word, as we find in Psalm 119:105, is called a lamp. The oil represents the Holy Spirit—see Doctrine and Covenants 45:10.

Only about one half of those who believe and are baptized will be received when Christ comes in glory. Thousands of people believe this gospel, but will not enter the church that they might receive of the oil, Holy Spirit. All such can be classed among the foolish virgins; for truly a more foolish thing can hardly be imagined than to believe such a good thing as the gospel with all its transcending beauties, and yet not obey it that they might become children of God.

In the light of the foregoing we can hardly agree with the idea that all the Saints are yet to fall asleep. It is sad enough to think that one half of them will do so. But we take considerable delight in the belief that the universal sleeping time as referred to by the Savior is a thing of the past. It would be very discouraging to me to think that all were to fall asleep, or quit working, and that, too, the very people to whom God has committed even the consummation of all things spoken of since the world began.

I hope my optimism has not gone mad; but I can see more real fruitage of the energy and sacrifice of the Saints in the last fifteen years than in all the history of the church. The very spirit and genius of the gospel is the material comfort and blessing of the Saints. During this time four homes for the aged, a sanitarium for the sick, a home for the orphan children, a college for mental, moral, and physical improvement, an Order of Enoch for the purpose of helping all to help themselves have been established. Pretty well for a class of people going to sleep!

It is also gratifying to see how the leading quorums have been strengthened by the calling of strong young men. How the Order of Evangelists and the Order of Bishops have been fortified by a stronger organization, together with all the quorums. And thus we are preparing for a mighty victory over the enemy.

F. J. EBELING.

• * * * •

TEMPORALITIES; OUR PRESENT DUTY.

The Spirit saith further unto the church assembled and at large: In order that the temporal affairs of the church may be successfully carried on and the accumulated debt of the church in its respective departments where debts have accumulated may be properly met and in due time discharged, the church is instructed, both as members and as the body at large, to avoid the unnecessary building of houses of worship or places of entertainment or otherwise expending the tithes and offerings of the church in that which may not be essential unto the continued onward progress of the general work; and both in private and in public expenditure carry into active exercise the principle of sacrifice and repression of unnecessary wants; and thus permit the accumulation of tithes and offerings in such amounts as may be needful to properly discharge the existing indebtedness of the church as a body. And the Spirit counseleth the church in this regard.—Doctrine and Covenants 130: 7.

TWO-FOLD OBJECT.

In the foregoing quotation the church is counseled to proceed along temporal lines, stating a two-fold object to be attained in such methods of procedure. One of these objects seems to be as important as the other; hence, one should not be lost sight of in the endeavor to attain the other; in fact, one can not be attained independently of the other.

The one is, that the temporal affairs of the church may be successfully carried on; and the other is, that the accumulated debt of the church may be properly met and discharged. The one has to do with the continued running expenses of the church, while the other deals with the existing indebtedness. To carry on the temporal affairs of the church successfully is to supply sufficient means in the proper and legitimate way, so that through prudence and care the church may keep out of debt, and, in addition to this, increase the tithes and offerings to the amount whereby the existing indebtedness may be

IN DUE TIME DISCHARGED.

There has been a call made for seventy-five thousand dollars to apply on church indebtedness. This amount is understood by some to be the full indebtedness of the church, which is not the case. Such suggestions or statements as hold forth the idea that in the event of seventy-five thousand dollars being raised there will be a clean slate to be presented to the conference body of 1914 are misleading and creatures of disappointment. This call should be considered in the light of the spirit of the revelation, which is to the effect that if the Saints respond there will be an increase in tithes and offerings, which increase will be the means, not in any stated number of years, but "in due time," of discharging the existing indebtedness which has been years in accumulating. We trust that as a stake we may be depended upon for doing our part in this time of need.

THE LAW APPLIED.

The application of the law as already given to the church to govern in temporalities is the means whereby the church debt, as also every other legitimate demand, is to be met.

"Carrying into active exercise the principle of sacrifice and repression of unnecessary wants" in the matter of expenditure is making practical the statement, "Verily it is a day of sacrifice and a day for the tithing of my people," which, when applied, permits the accumulation of tithes and offerings in the Lord's storehouse.

It is out of this fund of accumulated tithes and offerings that the continued expenses, as well as the indebtedness of the church is to be met. So, in order that there be any perceptible gain to the church, the yearly expenses must be met, also an excess of this amount raised to be applied on the church indebtedness; otherwise the raising of seventy-five thousand dollars to apply on existing indebtedness, thereby causing a deficit of an equal amount in the annual expense account, means nothing toward the discharging of church indebtedness. The running expense first met, the amount of tithes and offerings then accumulated and applied on church debt is discharging church indebtedness.

THE TRUE STANDARD OF CONTRIBUTION.

In carrying into active exercise the principle of sacrifice in the matter of tithes and offerings, there is no foundation for demanding that each is to contribute a sum equal in dollars and cents to that contributed by every other individual. An idea obtains among some of the Saints in the stake that $1.50 is the amount each member of the church is to contribute as an offering to apply on the general church debt. Using this as a basis for action, the poor widow out of her penury makes a sacrifice and contributes $1.50, while at the same time another member out of his abundance offers $1.50, which to him is no sacrifice.

The Spirit did not counsel the church that each of its membership contribute $1.50. What the Spirit did counsel was that the church, both as to members and as a body, avoid spending the tithes and offerings for those things which may not be essential to the onward progress of the Lord's work, and that the membership repress unnecessary wants and do their duty under the law of sacrifice. This is the standard which the Lord reiterates over and over again to guide his people in their sacrifices and contributions, and the only one which our heavenly Father recognizes. It is needful for us as Saints to learn our duty, which will cause us to make a consistent application of the law to our temporalities; there then will be ample means to meet the legitimate demands and in due time lift the burden of debt.

"RESPECTIVE DEPARTMENTS"; WHAT ARE THEY.

The church, through its legislative bodies, has caused to be brought into existence the different institutions or departments of church work. One department has to do with the missionary force of the church, another the poor, another the literary concerns, another the aged, another the children, another the sick and infirm, another the education of the young men and women, another the industrial welfare of the Saints. All of these, along with the Sunday school, Religio, Woman's Auxiliary Society, etc., are, either directly or indirectly, the product of church activity. Debts have not accumulated in all these departments, but where they have the Lord tells his church how they are to be met and discharged. The debt of the church consists in the sum total of the indebtedness of each of its departments; no one department having any more legal claim upon the funds of the church than any other. The church debt fund should be raised in the way designated in the revelation, and each department should have just claim upon such fund in the discharging of its respective obligations.

ESSENTIAL OR NONESSENTIAL, WHICH?

The Spirit counsels the church to avoid doing certain things which may not be essential to the progress of the work. This counsel was evidently given in order that means might be preserved to meet the urgent demand made upon church funds that otherwise might be expended in those things which are unnecessary and oftentimes detrimental to the work. The necessary things should be done and the unnecessary avoided. The task set before us is in determining which are necessary and which are not. This question should be thoroughly settled, however, before definite action is performed in the erection of new church buildings, in the taking down and remodeling of old ones, in the erection or purchase of property for places of entertainment, such as halls, auditoriums, gymnasiums, opera houses, skating rinks or parks, pleasure grounds, summer resorts, etc. He should be able to decide whether the establishing any or all of these things are more essential to the continued onward progress of the general work than is the use of means in meeting the obligations of the church in its various departments. Essential or nonessential? that is the question.

REPRESSION OR INDULGENCE, WHICH?

Under this same counsel of the Spirit the Saints are instructed to "both in private and in public expenditure carry into active exercise the principle of sacrifice and repression of unnecessary wants." This will permit all to have a part in the accumulation of tithes and offerings, that which is so necessary to the carrying on of the work.

The decision this time is to be made by each individual, and each one must decide whether he wishes to obey the Lord's instruction, and put into active operation the repression instructed in the revelation.

There are various ways in which this sacrifice and repression may be put in force, and it is quite likely that while one Saint will choose to deny himself in one way, another will choose a far different method. Care should therefore be taken as to our judgment of each other, and it will be better for each to watch himself in this, as in other matters, leaving his brethren to the exercise of their God-given agencies. But it will be necessary for all to so order their lives that they can conscientiously say to their Lord, "We have loved thy work as well as we have loved our own ease, and ask thy blessing upon us because we have tried to keep thy commands."

In addition to this, we must remember that in the united work of a number there is added strength; we are sure to be observed by some; and when a person who is just a little weak or thoughtless sees us and our families making evident sacrifice for the purpose of keeping this commandment, the impulse is for him to do likewise.

JUST A SUGGESTION OR TWO.

In order to stir up your minds, and that the power of suggestion may be used for all that it is worth, we may here call attention to a few ways in which it may be possible for the individual to practice the suppression of wants which may rightfully be regarded as unnecessary, but in this you must use your agency and the prerogative of personal decision as to what is right.

It is not right that you should deny yourself the protection of proper clothing, and it would be displeasing to your Father in heaven for his children to fail to care for themselves and those dependent upon them for this protection; but it may be possible that if you have the wording of this communication before you, ways may be seen in which money can be saved, the body cared for properly, and neatness of appearance preserved.

Christmas is coming in a few days, and the members of the family are all expecting something which will indicate that you have remembered them. With this revelation still in mind, is it not likely that all that is necessary to preserve proper feelings of affection and regard may be accomplished, and yet a number of dollars be saved for the payment of the church's obligations? We often hear that the value of a gift lies in the feeling of the donor, and each of us would be glad to know that God and his work had been remembered by those who are selecting gifts for us, at the time that we are remembered.

Your home may need some improvements which will make it a home indeed, and the One who gave the command at the head of this paper will be pleased to have you attend to this matter, and make it an attractive place to which all members of the family may repair when worn and tried with occurrences in the world of business, of educational institutions, or of society. However, it may occur to you when you are doing this that you can save a few dollars for the Lord's work, "by the repression of unnecessary wants."

In the matter of amusements, you are called upon to decide this question of repression or indulgence. If the counsel of the Spirit is to have meaning to the families of the church, due consideration must be given, and discrimination made between proper amusements, so wholesome to the spiritual growth of the membership, and those improper ones so detrimental to such growth. If we are able to help lift the financial burdens of the church by nonindulgence in some of the unnecessary amusements that are being supported, then we are certainly placing ourselves in line of approval from our heavenly Father in heeding his counsel.

We have asked the Lord for light and revelation on the serious problems confronting the church. He has spoken and has counseled the church, as well as the individual, to live and build within their means. We contract debts. He speaks and tells us these debts should be discharged, and gives us the method whereby it may be done. He has performed his part. Will we heed his counsel?—Taken from a booklet issued by the Lamoni Stake Bishopric, to the stake membership.

Of General Interest

ORIGIN OF CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS.

WHY DO WE KEEP CHRISTMAS?

Christmas celebrates the birth of Jesus Christ. The religious event is observed by the Protestant, Catholic and Greek churches on diversified dates in different parts of the world. The festivities of the day may be traced to the ancient rites celebrated in Scandinavia, Rome, Greece and Egypt, where the pagan people feared, as the days shortened in the darkest month of the year, that the sun was dying, and observed a time of rejoicing when the sun began to stay with them a little longer each day.

The leaders of the early Christian church endeavored to adapt the harmless features of the heathen sun festivals as a conciliation to those who had broken with their old beliefs and vowed their allegiance to the new faith. But despite their effort at control Christmas resulted in orgies not to be countenanced by the Christian church. Revelry continued in England, until some years after the coming of the Puritans to America the Roundhead Parliament abolished Christmas for twelve years, and in America the Court of Massachusetts followed suit. But Christmas must be kept, and it was later reestablished in more sane fashion by law in both countries, because the people were unwilling not to keep the festival. . . .

SANTA CLAUS AND CHRISTMAS STOCKINGS.

Saint Nicholas seems to have been the original of our Santa Claus. He was the Bishop of Myra about the year 300, and was very popular because of his good deeds and kindness, especially to children, whose patron saint he is supposed to be. An old legend says that he wished to bestow a gift surreptitiously upon an old nobleman who, though poor, did not want anyone to know of his poverty.

When the good Bishop reached the house he saw the old gentleman asleep by the fire, so he climbed to the top of the chimney and dropped his gift therein, thinking it would fall on the hearth. But it so happened that the money fell into one of the old gentleman's stockings, which his daughter had hung up to dry, where it was found and used as a dowry for his oldest daughter. And the old story says that Saint Nicholas never failed to put a gift in the stockings which were hung for him thereafter whenever a daughter of the house was to marry. When our Saint Nicholas comes around on Christmas Eve we look for gifts in our stockings.

The date of the bishop's death, December 6, is observed in many countries, and the closeness of his feast to that of Christmas Day has probably confounded the two celebrations. Santa Claus seems to be the name by which the good spirit of Christmas is most generally known. . . .

WHY WE SING CHRISTMAS CAROLS.

Singing Christmas carols is a custom so old that even the origin of the word is in doubt. The first carols were modeled on the songs written to accompany the choric dance and caroling—a combination of dancing and singing—which found its way from the pagan rituals into the Christian church.

In the year 589 the Council of Toledo forbade dancing in the church on certain days, and in the following year all secular dances in the church were forbidden. However, the custom did not die out until about the year 1209.

Many of the carols dating from the fifteenth century have the characteristics of folk songs and preserve curious legends. Carol singing flourished during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and the greatest English writers, Milton and Ben Jonson among them, produced some beautiful carols. A century later Charles Wesley wrote the famous "Hark, how the welkin rings," better known now as "Hark, the herald angels sing."

The earliest printed collection of carols was issued in 1621. It contained the famous "Boar's Head" carol, which is still sung every year at Oxford College.

The carol exists in France, where it is known as "Noel," and it is also existent in Germany and Italy, although the custom has died out in Scotland and some of the Continental countries. . . .

HOW THE CHRISTMAS TREE CAME TO BE.

Saint Winfried, who was, in the eighth century, a missionary to the Scandinavians, is credited in an ancient legend with having caused to be set up the first home Christmas tree. He tried to show the people that the Druid priests had made them worshippers of trees only, and not of a living God; and on Christmas Eve he hewed down the great oak tree around which they had gathered to offer a human sacrifice. As it fell a young fir tree seemed to appear miraculously beyond it, and Winfried said to the people:

"Here is the living tree, with no stain of blood upon it, that shall be the sign of your new worship. See how it points to the sky. Call it the tree of the Christ Child. Take it up and carry it to the chieftan's hall. You shall go no more into the shadows of the forest to keep your feasts with secret rites of shame. You shall keep them at home, with laughter and songs and rites of love. The thunder oak has fallen, and I think the day is coming when there shall not be a home in all Germany where the children are not gathered around the green fir tree to rejoice in the birthnight of Christ." . . .

WHERE WE GET THE CHRISTMAS CARD.

Christmas cards were first printed in London nearly seventy years ago, but did not become popular until fifty years ago.

The first Christmas card was only a visiting card on which was written the greeting, "A Merry Christmas," or "A Happy New Year." Snow scenes, holly branches and robins appeared later on embossed cards, probably picturing English Christmas scenery, as the robin is known in England as the Christmas bird, and also as "The Savior's bird," because of the legend of its red breast. This bird is still seen on Christmas cards, but not so often as formerly. . . .

WHY DO WE DECORATE THE CHRISTMAS TREE?

The ancient Teutons, who were sun worshippers, thought that the spreading of a great tree was symbolical of the sun rising higher and higher in the heavens, and the decoration of our Christmas trees is supposed to be symbolic of the sun tree. The lights represent the flashes of lightning overhead, the apples, nuts and balls symbolize the sun, moon and stars, while the little animals represent the sacrifices made to the sun god.

In another endeavor to give a new meaning to heathenish customs the early Christians put a new interpretation upon the tree itself and attached new meanings to its decorations. The fir itself, with its lights, represented the Christ, who was the beginning of a new life in the midst of the wintry darkness of heathendom, the tree of life, the light of the world. "Purely Christian symbols were introduced, the angels, the anchor, cross and heart, the star of the east and the golden threads, called Lametta, which represent the hair of the Christ Child. Under the branches of the tree lies the Babe in a manger, watched over by his parents and surrounded by sheep and oxen."

OUR CHRISTMAS COLORS.

For hundreds of years holly has been used for Christmas decoration. It grows in almost every country. The choice of our Christmas colors, red and green, has no doubt come about from these colors which nature provides at the Christmas season in the holly and poinsetta.

WHY DO WE KISS UNDER THE MISTLETOE?

Romantic Scandinavians, in paying honor to their great god, Thor, built great fires called "Jule," or "Yule" fires. The higher the flames towered through the forests the greater pleased was Thor. The men soon learned that the trees upon which mistletoe clung would give the brightest fires. They believed this was due to the great Thor himself, who caused the mistletoe to grow on those trees to let his people know which were best for burning in his honor.

The trees upon which quantities of the mistletoe grew were sapped of their vitality, and, being drier, burned with a brighter flame than other trees that were full of sap. So when any one met under the mistletoe in the great forests, no matter how great enemies they were, they dropped their weapons and greeted each other kindly; nor would they take up arms against each other until the sunrise of another day. This was their tribute in honor of Thor.

They began to take bits of the mistletoe into their homes and hang it over the doorways, and if any enemies came they could not enter the houses beneath the mistletoe without becoming friends of the people inside so long as they remained there. From this came the habit of greeting people who stepped under the mistletoe with an embrace or a kiss, and at indoor feasts the mistletoe was hung up in the room and the people greeted each other with kisses.

And, so in these days the couple kissing beneath the Christmas mistletoe in a spirit of fun or romance carries on a custom the Scandinavians had a thousand years before Christ.

WHAT THE CHRISTMAS CANDLE SIGNIFIES.

Burning candles at Christmastide is a custom derived from the Roman Saturnalia. Not only were candles used for the purpose of illumination during that festival, but they were also exchanged as gifts in token of cheerfulness and good will. It is probable that the employment of candles was derived from the Jewish Feast of the Dedication, which was held about the same time of the year as the Saturnalia and the Yule. The burning of candles was one of the incidents of that feast, and it is not unlikely that at the time of the birth of Jesus thousands of candles were brightly burning throughout Palestine—a fitting, though unintentional, proclamation of the Light that had come into the world. A fact that bears out this supposition is that the Catholics of the Greek Church call Christmas the "Feast of Lights."—Ladies' Home Journal for December, 1913.

---

The Staff

EDITED BY AUDENTIA ANDERSON.

Harmony.

"Music wakes the soul, and lifts it high and wings it with sublime desires, and fits it to bespeak the Deity."—Addison.

What message have we for the singers of the church this month? What can we say to help build up, to encourage or to fill you with enthusiasm anew? We feel that you are already awake, alert, and attentive, and that you are eager to grasp and absorb all of value or worth that comes your way. But let me ask you, alive and eager as you are, is it all for absorption and nothing for distribution? Are you giving, as well as receiving? Are you reaching out your hands both ways above for assistance and below to assist?

One of our ministers said recently that he didn't wish for unity for our people—but harmony. Unisons are tiresome and monotonous choirs composed of but one part would lack sadly in interest and message-bearing. We want variety, differences, mixtures; but oh, let us see to it that we have, with it all, harmony and peace! What harm is done when our brother has one opinion and we have another if we maintain, along with our differences, true brotherly love and kindly consideration? The harm comes when we are so narrow in our mental scope that we harbor ill-nature and hard-feelings along with our differences.

Above all, these organizations among the people of God, the aim of which is to render praise and thanksgiving in pæons of joy and gladness, should be the very last to cherish bitterness of spirit towards one another; and we are happy in believing that among the choirs of our church such a condition is the exception rather than the rule. With the most of us, "our choir" is a unit in this—that each member rejoices in the success of the whole, whether that success is demonstrated by a chorus number or by individual effort. "We" did well on that anthem, if Sister So and So sang her solo well. Her success is ours, and we glory in it.

So, for us, as choirs, let us adopt our national slogan, "In union there is strength," and submerging individual opinions and personal sensitiveness, make for harmony—the blending of "many in one."

AUDENTIA ANDERSON.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 1300 West Electric.

Gift and Service.

Has the real spirit of Christmas entered our hearts and lives this year? And if it has, what are we giving in return for the peace and joy that it has brought us? This Christmas has given our musicians great opportunity to consider the giving of gifts in a somewhat different light. Those who have had the princely gift of music bestowed upon them as an inheritance are fortunate indeed; that gift comes from the throne of grace—to use as we will. We desire to hold out to our musicians this thought: We will never realize the real beauty of the gift of music until we use it properly and in the places where it can perform the greatest service.

At one of our General Conferences, I opened a door to a small room and discovered one of our greatest and most talented singers teaching one of our missionaries the art of singing, and I afterwards learned that this performance was being repeated daily. The picture of that service, hidden from public view, gave me a pleasure that will be everlasting. Here, in this act, was a proper attitude and the kind of service over which the angels rejoice. Those of us who have talent should not only use it to the edification of the masses, but should diffuse as much of our knowledge to others of the same gifts, who might be less fortunate in their efforts to secure instruction, and especially the proper kind. Who among us are willing to take just one worthy individual and give him the benefit of our experience?

These last few months of more active service in musical endeavors have convinced me that God is interested in the development of this beautiful talent in our lives. A thought from the pen of Haydn in a recent issue of a well known musical paper has impressed me: "I know that God has appointed me a task. I acknowledge it with thanks, and hope and believe, that I have done my duty and been useful in the world. May others do likewise." I hope so too.

May this coming year find us all busy at our tasks. They may not be as big in their final results as the work of Haydn, and they may not accomplish as much as we wish, but let us be comforted with the knowledge that for their works the masters received at the time, but little recognition, and that the recompense was practically nothing; yet to-day their names live, and will live for ever. The greatest musicians that have lived, now live, or ever will live will necessarily be obliged to interpret the music of these masters, until the end of time; for its perfection and beauty have never been surpassed, and these examples of consecrated efforts will for ever be a basis for a thorough musical education.

We may not be privileged to have our names recorded in the pages of musical history, but we should be striving to have our recording angel busy entering more than enough good acts to counterbalance the great blessings bestowed upon us. Those who are most richly endowed must be the most active.

Here's wishing for us all a busy New Year, in active service. It will be a happy one if our work is done in the true spirit of consecration.

ALBERT N. HOXIE.

Notes of the Staff.

It is said that Elbert Hubbard once got out a book called, Essay on Silence. It was supplied with a most beautiful and artistic cover, with the name of the book, and the name of the author heavily embossed thereon. On opening it, one found a collection of perfectly blank pages! Profoundly impressive, and very characteristic of the originality of Mr. Hubbard, was it not? However, as we gather together the bright spicy "notes" sent in by the various "reporters" upon our staff, telling of the musical activities among this essentially musical people, we find we are very nearly in a position to demonstrate an essay on silence. Perhaps our various reporters feel that the "rest" is an important character in our music just now. We admit its importance, and we usually remind our singers to observe it religiously—in its time and place; but let us not employ it to the extent that our notes column shall resolve itself into a clever "Symphony in Repose"—all rests and no notes.

The Independence choir gave its usual Thanksgiving concert. The program included chorus numbers from Gounod, Mendelssohn, Verdi, and Haydn, together with some others "in lighter vein," such as a "Fairylane Waltz" and the Barcarolle, from "Tales of Hoffman." The ladies did some very artistic work in a setting of Poe's "Sleigh Bells." Just sixty voices in chorus; collection for music fund about fifty dollars, and the seating capacity of the church taxed, many standing throughout the program, which lasted just an hour and a half, are a few of the items noted.

At Lamoñi occurred recently a recital by the Graceland teachers of music and oratory. We have no direct report of the pleasant event, but gather from the local papers that it was an unqualified success. Sister Laura Kelley is in charge of the piano department, Sister Anna May Morgan of the vocal, Miss Enid Alexander of the violin, and Miss Zaida Gaines of the oratory. These ladies are all artists, and combining would produce a program of unusual brilliancy and merit.

Sister L. W. N. Robinson, studying in New York with Professor Saenger, has listened to the knocking of opportunity upon her door, and, responding with her ever ready enthusiasm, is conducting the Brooklyn choir. Thus they will be ready for the visit of the Philadelphia and Scranton choirs in February.

How many choirs are at work on "The Holy City"? Brother Hoxie says the Philadelphia singers are hard at it—and other things. They are planning for a uniting of forces for the February conference. Brother Hoxie also says he is afraid the edition of our 1914 conference anthems will be exhausted ere long. So if any have delayed ordering, let them "hurry up."

Sister Eva Shupe, of Denver, is studying the organ, now, with a view of making her services as organist of the branch there more efficient. The introduction of good organ music into our services brings an uplift of thought to the congregation, a centering of their minds in reverence, and awakens desires for good, as perhaps no other means can do. No organist should be blind or indifferent to the grand opportunities he or she has in this direction.

"It calls in my spirit, composes my thoughts, recreates my mind, and so not only fits me for after business, but fills my heart, at the present, with pure and useful thoughts; so that when music sounds the sweetest in my ears, truth commonly flows the clearest into my mind."—Bishop Beveridge.

An inquiry has reached our desk relative to an Easy Method of Music, advertised and put out by a Chicago company. It purports to have reached a "royal road to learning," so far as music is concerned. This is new to us, we confess, and we would like to know if any of our readers have had experience with this, or similar method, and what that experience indicates.

"Music is well said to be the speech of angels."—Carlyle.

SAINT LOUIS, MISSOURI, December 4, 1913.

To the Editor of the Staff: Never have the strains of Mendelssohn or Lohengrin, (as they have been used in the services of the Saint Louis Branch), attracted a larger and more appreciative crowd than did the cantata, "Daniel," as rendered by the Saint Louis choir, Sunday evening, November 13. Before the opening hour the auditorium was filled and the gallery was pressed into service.

Shortly after the hour of eight the audience was greeted by the chorister, Brother E. C. Bell, the thirty singers, and Sister K. Walrond, the organist, who quietly took their places behind a low hedge of palms and ferns.

After the filing, during which a voluntary was played, all joined in singing the doxology, following which the invocation was offered. A very graphic narrative of the story of Daniel was given by our pastor, Elder T. J. Elliott. This of course made the cantata recital, which immediately followed, the more plain and interesting.

With pleasure we say, The cantata was indeed well rendered. The phrasing, rhythm, and diction were noticeably good, and a delightfully sweet and expressive tone was maintained throughout the rendition. Then too it was a treat to note the cleanness of the attacks and the accuracy in the observance of pauses and holds.

The several soloists all seemed specially fitted to their particular parts, and deserve commendation.

We are glad to once more say the affair was a success and realize that it was because of hard work on the part of the chorister as well as the organist and members, and because of the degree of inspiration which attended, for most certainly does inspiration come to him who works. We hope that the reporting of this will prove to be an encouragement to those interested in the choir movement, for it is truly great and of divine origin. Hence we say, The choir movement to the front.

Yours for success,

ANNA DEJONG.

Musical Notes.

The governor general of Mexico has forbidden the military bands there to play American music. Evidently those mesmerizing tunes of ours were "soothing the savage breast." And yet, Mexico has spent $10,000,000 in the City of Mexico in order to establish a place for music there, it is claimed.

Paderewski will give between eighty and ninety concerts in America during this season ending in April. This great performer has said that when he neglects practice for a single day he notices the difference in his performance, and if he omits practice for three days his audience generally can distinguish the difference. Moral: Try it yourself.

One of the most necessary aids to the production of real music is study that develops the harmonic sense—the music that is sensed within—by which the bare notes become transformed into vibrant, soul-stirring musical interpretation. Time spent in copying and writing music manuscript will increase the student's proficiency, and will develop ability to play from written manuscript.

The new organ installed in Saint Michael's Church, Hamburg, is the largest in the world. It has twelve thousand one hundred and seventy-four pipes, and one hundred and sixty-three speaking stops, and eighty-six bells. The next largest organ is in Wanamaker's store in Philadelphia. Both instruments show the remarkable development in organ construction in recent years.

It is claimed that the gross receipts from eighteen concerts in which Mme. Melba and Mr. Kubelik appeared in October, separately or in combination, amounted to nearly $100,000. They are scheduled for various Pacific Coast points in December.

A Boys' Hymnal has been recently issued by a London publisher, and is meeting with considerable favor, apparently. Why should not we provide something of this kind that would be adapted to choirs of youthful voices? A children's choir for morning service would be worth trying, and might interest more of our young people in church service. If we do not interest them, something else will.

The efficacy of music is recognized in many places other than those conducted purely for pleasure, or worship. Jaques Vernes, a French manufacturer and financier, has introduced singing and orchestral music into his factories, and claims increased production is the result, as the men work better and more efficiently. Player pianos are in use on many of the battleships of both the United States and British navies.

New York is trying the expedient of Sunday night concerts in simpler music and at a more moderate price. It is said that the attendance has greatly increased as a result.

A program of Scandinavian music was recently given in Carnegie Hall by a Scandinavian Male Chorus and Symphony Orchestra, which was pronounced one of the most interesting of the season. Some time we ought to be able to present to the world a worthy program of purely Latter Day Saint composition and rendition. It would be an effective way to interest people in our message.

Don't pay more than fifty cents for a piano! At an auction of old square pianos in Saint Louis, twenty of them sold for fifty cents each.

A. B. PHILLIPS.

The Highest Inspiration.

Are you a singer? Then open yourself and let the God within pour forth in the spirit of song. You will find it a thousand times easier than all your long and studied practice without this, and, other things being equal, there will come to you a power of song so enchanting and so enrapturing that its influence upon all who hear will be irresistible.

When my cabin or tent has been pitched during the summer on the edge or in the midst of a forest, I have sometimes laid awake on my cot in the early morning, just as the day was beginning to break. Silence at first. Then an intermittent chirp here and there. And as the unfolding tints of the dawn became faintly perceptible, these grew more and more frequent, until by and by the whole forest seemed to burst forth in one grand chorus of song. Wonderful! Wonderful! It seemed as if the very trees, as if every grass blade, as if the bushes, the very sky above, and the earth beneath, had part in this wonderful symphony. Then, as I have listened as it went on and on, I have thought, What a study in the matter of song! If we could but learn from the birds. If we could but open ourselves to the same powers and allow them to pour forth in us, what singers, what movers of men we might have! Nay, what singers and what movers of men we would have!

Do you know the circumstances under which Mr. Sankey sang for the first time "The ninety and nine"? Says one of our able journals:

"At a great meeting recently in Denver, Mr. Ira W. Sankey, before singing 'The ninety and nine,' which, perhaps, of all his compositions is the one that has brought him the most fame, gave an account of its birth. Leaving Glasgow for Edinburgh with Mr. Moody, he stopped at a newsstand and bought a penny religious paper. Glancing over it as they rode on the cars, his eye fell on a few little verses in the corner of the page. Turning to Mr. Moody he said, 'I've found my hymn.' But Mr. Moody was busily engaged and did not hear a word. Mr. Sankey did not find time to make a tune for the verses, so he pasted them in his music scrap-book.

"One day they had an unusually impressive meeting in Edinburgh, in which Doctor Bonan had spoken with great effect on 'The Good Shepherd.' At the close of the address Mr. Moody beckoned to his partner to sing. He thought of nothing but the twenty-third psalm, but that he had sung so often. His second thought was to sing the verses he had found in the newspaper, but the third thought was, how could it be done when he had no tune. Then a fourth thought came, and that was to sing them anyway. He put the verses before him, touched the keys of the organ, opened his mouth and sang, not knowing where he was going to come out. He finished the first verse amid profound silence. He took a long breath and wondered if he could sing the second the same way. He tried and succeeded; after that it was easy to sing it. When he finished the hymn the meeting was all broken down and the throngs were crying. Mr. Sankey says it was the most intense moment of his life. Mr. Moody said he never heard a song like it. It was sung at every meeting, and was soon going over the world."

When we open ourselves to the highest inspirations they never fail us. When we fail to do this we fail in attaining the highest results, whatever the undertaking.—Selected from Ralph Waldo Trine, by Vida E. Smith.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

"I Will Take Care of Him."

It was so rainy a morning that, of the ninety small pupils enrolled in the beginner department, there were present but four. Three of these sat on their little red chairs, close to the book held by the teacher on her knee. She was telling them the story of Peter walking on the water, and the pictures she was showing them illustrated the narrative.

"See the water," the teacher was saying, pointing it out with her finger, "and the boat, and Peter, and Jesus." Lynn, aged three, gazing intently at the pictures, was murmuring, "Sure; sure," as his mind grasped ideas. Dorothy, who "weighed thirty-two pounds and was nearly four years old," as she announced later, sat next to him. The replies she made to her teacher's remarks and questions were more extended than his.

Lynn's mother had come with him that stormy morning, explaining as she came in that he was inconsolable at the prospect of missing Sunday school, and so she had brought him. For a time, she sat in the little circle; then, having occasion to speak to a person in another room, she excused herself to go. As she left her little son's side, Dorothy laid her arm protectingly around the boy's shoulders, saying as she did so, "I'll take care of him."

A loving act it was, coming from the pure heart of a little child. I hear the soft baby voice as I write; I see the baby arm throwing its protection around the one at her side, and the little curly, white head with the face turned earnestly toward her small charge. The spirit of the Christ was in her words, the spirit of him who came a child to Bethlehem, of him who soon will come again to reign in his kingdom upon the earth.

"I'll take care of him," was what small Dorothy said. To care for us the Son of God came to earth. To care for one another was the leading principle in the gospel he taught to his church as he walked and taught in Galilee and Judea and in the regions round about. It is the fundamental principle of the gospel restored to the church in these later times. Would that our hearts were more childlike, that more readily we might act upon this principle of loving-kindness and grow up into that unity in Christ to which the gospel invites us, "everyone serving the other."

"He Careth for You."

We love to take to our hearts the comforting assurance of the apostle, that our heavenly Father cares for us, that he will take care of us. We love to sing it, to believe it. We love to read, "He shall give his angels charge concerning thee, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone." And yet we are sometimes so wrapped up in ourselves that we forget that he who gives heavenly beings charge concerning us has given us a charge concerning our fellow men. We have a commission from the Lord as sacred as that which he has given his angels concerning us.

"Every man's brother shall preserve the life of man." This was the command given in the morning of the world and repeated in various forms in every dispensation of the gospel since. It is required of us that, using the child's words, we shall take care of one another. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," said the law of Moses; and the law given to Enoch enjoined upon the saints of his City of Holiness that every man should seek the interest of his neighbor. Both of these, and others of similar import, come to us from heaven now with the force of commands.

It is the heavenly law, that men shall care, not for self alone, but for one another.

An Unseen Guardian.

A man, old and blind, was groping his way along the street, trying, after the manner of the blind, to keep the pavement by feeling the edge of it occasionally with his walking stick. He was approaching a footbridge, the condition of which was dangerous to such as he, the railing which should have protected pedestrians from falling, having been torn away. It was a place dangerous to one walking in the night or in such darkness as the poor old man was in continually.

As he came cautiously along, a lady hurrying in the opposite direction approached. Perceiving his danger, she stood and waited until he had come opposite her. Then, without speaking and stepping so lightly that he did not hear, she turned and walked between him and the edge of the bridge until she had seen him safe over. Then she went her way, and he went on humming a happy little song, not aware that an unseen friend had walked a little way beside him, interposing herself between him and danger.

"Every man's brother shall preserve the life of man."

Big Brothers---Big Sisters.

The beginning of the Big Brother movement was in New York in 1905, when the Children's Court was established in that city. Mr. Coulter, in charge of the court, realized that a very large number of the boys passing through the court needed a friend more than anything else. He went to the men's club of one of the prominent churches asking how many of the men would volunteer each to become the big brother of one boy in need. He obtained forty volunteers at once.

These big brothers gave friendship. In very rare instances they gave money. Their interest in the boys whose care they had assumed took very practical forms. They invited them to their homes, took them to places of proper recreation, only incidentally giving them advice. It was personal friendship that counted. Out of the first seventy-five boys so befriended, only two ever came again before the Children's Court.

Big Sister organizations are needed also, and are being instituted, for many young girls are going astray who might be saved by the reaching out of friendly hearts and hands to protect them. In the waiting-room of the railroad station of almost any large city and in other public places one may see women in the quiet garb of deaconess or salvation army soldiers on duty to save young girls from the many pitfalls that threaten. "I will take care of her," is the watchword of these consecrated women who give their lives to the work of protecting the innocent and of rescuing the fallen.

The Good Fellows.

And then there is another band whose slogan is, "I will take care of them." These are the Good Fellows who are so busy in the great city by the Lake on Christmas Eve, trying to prevent any little child from spending a cheerless holiday. It is estimated that there are two hundred thousand children this year who must look to these big-hearted men for Christmas gifts, if any come to them.

Letters from these children are pouring in. In the simple language of childhood they tell pitiful tales of poverty. These letters are turned over to the United Charities for investigation, and, if conditions prove to be as described, the requests are then turned over to the Good Fellows who respond loyally to the call of childhood.

The Economy Teacher.

In that great, busy city, Chicago, there passes about in the homes of poor women, left with the care of families, a public official, whose duties are very important. She is the trained expert in housekeeping, employed by the city to go into homes where mothers receive the pension granted them under the law which was so amended last summer that "any woman who is a citizen of the United States and has lived in Cook County for three years, who is widowed or whose husband is incapacitated for work, and who, without property, is left to provide for a family, may apply for assistance, not as a matter of charity, but of legally recognized right."

About three hundred and fifty families are at present on the list. "I will take care of them," says the great city, its object being the preservation of the children who are to be the citizens of the future. At least once a month the city's appointed officers visit the homes of those thus cared for. With the regular officers often goes the expert housekeeper, whose work it is to go over the accounts which those mothers are required to keep; for they must keep accurate record of the way in which they spend the funds allowed them. The expert suggests to them how they can get the most good out of the money they have to spend. She even stands ready to make out special menus for each family, by which nourishing and appetizing meals may be furnished the children who are wards of the city; and should the mother not know how to prepare any dish suggested, the economy teacher willingly demonstrates the process.

The Woman's Vote.

On the fourth day of November of the present year, the women of Illinois for the first time had opportunity to register their mighty protest against the saloon, which they did "by a vote of more than four to one."

"I will take care of him," is what those women virtually said as they cast the vote which says the saloon is going, that it may no longer exist to destroy husbands and sons.

The Growing Refrain.

The refrain is growing, "I will take care of him." We may hear it, if we listen. From pulpit, from press, from the halls of law-making assemblies come sounds of the great conflict. The battle of the weak is being waged. Oppression, greed, and vice are strong, but love and right are stronger. There will come a day when peace shall prevail and every man shall be his brother's friend. Then shall Christ reign on earth and his will be done as in heaven. Till he come may our motto be, "I will take care of him," the weak one at our side.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE FOURTH THURSDAY IN DECEMBER.

Christmas Day.—Prayer for the Sunday schools, Zion's Religio, and all the auxiliary departments. Also for the Prayer Union, that each may help to bring about the exalted condition of purity and righteousness which God demands and expects of his people.

For the sick and afflicted.

Lesson, Luke 2:10, 11. Memory text, Luke 14:13.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Prayers are requested for Sister Bessie Franklin who is sorely afflicted. She has suffered long and has exhausted human skill with little, if any, benefit. She has the care of a home and family.

Prayers are also asked for Mr. Carlisle Dixon who is suffering the effects which follow an attack of typhoid fever. He is not a member of the church, but is presented as a worthy man who needs our prayers.

Sister Blanch A. Campbell, known to some as Blanch Crandall, desires to be remembered in our prayers that she may be blessed in her recovery from a serious operation. She asks us also to pray for her mother who is threatened with lung trouble.

A sister living in Battle Creek, Michigan, whose name is not given, is presented to us as one sorely afflicted. She desires S. W. L. Scott, or some other elder who may be near her, to call on her and administer to her. This sister should be remembered in our prayers.

A sister signing herself Sister Lizzie writes from San Diego, California, requesting prayers. She has been in ill health for some time, and is troubled with her eyes. She should be remembered.

Letter Department

BERLIN, GERMANY, November 7, 1913.

Editors Herald: Would that I could write to each and every one of the beloved Saints and friends. I take this method of reaching many, who no doubt will be glad to hear from us. This letter carries with it our love and best wishes for a bright and happy Christmas, a prosperous New Year, and for a seed planted never to be uprooted, to be a true, stanch Latter Day Saint.

Here one recognizes the full meaning, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every kindred, tongue, and people. Here the gospel of Christ is unknown—great massive churches, elaborately decorated, with a priest or minister who goes through a certain formality—and they call it church and worshiping. In the afternoon you can find these same people in the beer gardens, which are numerous here; and it puts one to shame to see young Americans over here for study who fall into this Bohemian swamp.

These conditions make one feel more grateful than ever for the privilege of having a knowledge of the gospel. No matter where we are or what we see, the desire to live nearer our God, our Master, increases, and we cling closer to those who know and heed the will of the Master.

One thing I can say, and that is, I have read my Bible more here than ever before. I have felt the necessity for it here, that the Lord might recognize our needs, our wants, and so protect us. We have felt the great good of every prayer put forth by the Saints. We feel we could not live without their prayers. Only those who have lived in a foreign country and labored there can understand the true situation. Morality here is not up to the American standards, and the usual temptations in all large cities are tripled here. It is a very common occurrence to see a refined, nice looking woman open her cigarette case and smoke. Again, it makes one love the gospel and appreciate having been taught the higher and better things of life.

The musical sphere is the attractive cycle to us, and to the vast majority of Americans who are over here. In this we are reminded that the gift of the Master surpasses the gift of man, and that, though intelligence is given to man, without the spirit and gift of the Christ even music is a blank. To hear the interpretation of the many great masters, to be able to study them affords one a greater opportunity here. But let us hope we will create within our own every branch and every department necessary to give our own the advantage of all this study at home, when the influences will be all the Master has ordained they should be.

Sister Marie Riggs is making good progress in her work, to the great satisfaction of the great Master Lhevinne, under whom she is working. The Lord has been kind in making it possible for one so young to be received by such a master, and I am sure that if she keeps in mind all the purposes of such a gift her expectations may be realized, if climate and physical conditions permit her to continue in her work here. Dear Saints, we ask that we be remembered in your prayers, in your sacrament services, that we might receive the benefit of the unity in prayer.

We are seven thousand miles away from Zion, in a city of four millions of people. We are living in that section of Wilmersdorf known as the American Colony. The children of the better families here are never allowed on the street alone. The American girl does not think anything of going down street alone at home, but here she is likely to be approached in broad daylight. However, she is not molested if she goes on her way. But it gives you some idea of the conditions which Americans must contend with in a foreign land.

We took a trip to Potsdam, and visited all the old palaces there. One palace occupied by Frederick III has never been occupied since his death. It is a paradise in itself. San Souci Gardens, so famous, are beyond words of description. Great terraces of white stone steps add to the beauties of lovely nature. Fountains play all over these gardens. Surely, Frederick III lived his heaven in this peaceful place. We visited the old church erected in 1735. It looks as good as a new one erected to-day.

There is no stretch of country so beautiful, so dear to us as Zion, and we shall be glad when our work is accomplished here, and we can return to be with those who love us, and all who are near and dear to us in the gospel bonds. May our love and greetings meet the eyes of many who know us, and may we be remembered earnestly in the prayers of the Saints.

Our address while in Germany will be 55 Charlotters Strasse, care American Express Company, Berlin.

In bonds,

HATTIE RIGGS.

HONOLULU, TERRITORY OF HAWAII, November 3, 1913.

Editors Herald: On page 1024 of the HERALD for October

22, in speaking of the trip of Brethren Griffiths and Miller to Australia, it is stated that "They had reached the Hawaiian Islands." We wish it had been true, but it wasn't. It should read the "Society Islands."

We are out of luck when it comes to securing visitors from the outside. We were promised a visit from Brother F. G. Pitt, but the Society Islands were favored instead. And we invited brethren Griffiths and Miller to come by this way, but it was not deemed advisable. So we appreciate this slip of the pen by the HERALD editor, which at least shows what we would have done, had we been given the chance. They would certainly have been given a warm reception by the American missionaries and native Saints.

We rejoice in the enthusiasm they are arousing, however, in the south seas, and hope that at some future time this mission may enjoy a like experience, and the statement of the editor as referred to above may be verified.

With faith strong in the final outcome of the work, and best wishes for all "latter-day Israel."

In gospel bonds,

M. A. MCCONLEY.

REXTON, MICHIGAN, November 17, 1913.

Editors Herald: I enjoy the letters in the HERALD, and am always disappointed when there are not a number of them. The Master has done much for me. I have been restored when the doctor said I could not recover. On this occasion I was administered to by my brother and Brother Grice. I feel that had I done the Master's will long ago I would not have had to suffer so much.

I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints.

Your sister,

MRS. M. J. MCKEAVER.

MASONTOWN, WEST VIRGINIA, November 18, 1913.

Editors Herald: We are still battling for this glorious truth, and are striving to do our duty in the best way that we know how. We ask the Saints to pray that we may grow stronger in this beautiful gospel, for we know that it is true, and that the blessed Master will help us if we only put our trust in him. We have many trials to overcome, and afflictions to bear; but if we do what is right we will wear the crown in the world that is to come, and will meet our blessed Savior and reign with him for ever and ever.

We have our regular meetings. We have a fairly good attendance. We have no church, and have our meetings at my home. There are only ten of us; but the Lord truly says that, where two or three are gathered together he will be in their midst. What promise could be grander, or what could we ask more?

One of my sisters lives too far away to come to the prayer meetings, but she comes to the sacrament meetings. Pray that she may be strengthened in this beautiful gospel, and that she might prove faithful to the end.

I ask the Saints to pray for my father. He hurt his hand, cutting and bruising it severely. We desire that the Lord will bless and heal him. He was working in the mine, and the car ran off the track and caught his hand. So pray that he might be able to go to work in a little while, if the Lord wills.

Brother James McConnaughy was here in the summer and preached some excellent sermons, full of light. We trust that he has not forsaken us and that he will come again. We greatly enjoy having the brethren come and preach this beautiful gospel.

I have never regretted the step I took when coming into this work. I know it is true. The Lord has blessed me in many times of trial and affliction. I have been in this church only a little over two years. I am eighteen years of age. Pray for me that I might prove faithful to the end. I want to be able to meet my blessed Savior when he comes with all his holy angels. This is my greatest desire. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion, I am,

Your sister in Christ,
MISS GERTIE RODABAUGH.

ELK MILLS, MARYLAND, November 16, 1913.

Editors Herald: The Saints here are struggling to keep the gospel banner waving. We are striving to be numbered among the Saints who, as the Bible says, should seek first to build up the kingdom of God and to establish his righteousness. We realize that the Lord requires this of his children, and that we can not be numbered among them if we are not doing service for the Master.

I have been enlisted in this great gospel since my childhood, but am sorry to say I can look back and see how many "golden opportunities" I have neglected, failing in service for the Master,—how I let my time pass idly by when I could have been telling this gospel story to my associates. If I had those years to traverse again I can see how I could improve my time. But those opportunities are past.

I wish to appeal to the young. Do not for your soul's sake, for the church's sake, and for Christ's, its author, lose your interest. We can never recover lost ground. Do what we can in later years, we can never regain those lost opportunities. The young so often express their minds in saying, "Oh, well, there is plenty of time." But if in their youth they are called to give an account of themselves, what excuse could they offer? The youth now are the ones who will carry this glorious gospel on in later years, and it is now they should study and make themselves approved.

I have received many evidences of the truthfulness of this gospel, and can honestly say this is the true church of Jesus Christ. We have been greatly blessed here. As a little band of Saints we have much to thank our heavenly Father for. We have seen his healing powers manifested, and have rejoiced together through the sweet influence of the Holy Spirit.

As we are nearing the close of this year, we can not but review the results of our efforts. Have we done all we could in the service of our Master? Or have we left things undone? That is between us and our Savior. If our lives are spared to enter into the New Year, let us take up our duties with a greater determination to make success of it than we did the past year. If we start forth in the strength of the Master and be ever prayerful, we will win success.

I want to be ever found engaged in this glorious work. I want to make a success of my life. Real happiness is service to God. We all want it. My desire is to live before my heavenly Father in that way and manner that when I am called to give an account of my life I will hear that sweet laudit, Well done, thou good and faithful servant.

Your sister,
MRS. IRA W. HUMES.

I am only one;
But still I am one—
I can not do everything;
But still I can do something.
And because I can not do everything,
I will not refuse to do the something that I can do.
—E. E. Hale.

News from Missions

Hereheretue, South Sea Islands.

It has been some time since we wrote you, and thinking that some of your readers might be interested in us or our work and experiences of late in the coral islands of the sea, we offer the following:

HEREHERETUE.

We are now on the island of Hereheretue, 148 degrees, 20 minutes west of Paris and 20 degrees south latitude. This is a mere dot in the ocean, a low coral reef, with clumps of cocoanut palms growing here and there in the coral sand, which covers the reef in places. The reef varies in width from about one hundred yards to about a furlong, and encircles a lagoon about four miles long and about two miles wide.

There are at present twenty-seven native inhabitants here, with no other whites than my wife, my baby, and myself. We found them living in their primitive state so far as food was concerned. They had not a mouthful of imported food of any kind. They were living on cocoanut, fish, and pandanus. Fortunately for us, we brought flour and some few other provisions with us.

The way we reached here will perhaps be interesting; but some things are less pleasant than interesting. At the close of our mission conference in the island of Hao, Brother and Sister Pitt bade us all farewell and departed on a power schooner bound for Tahiti and America, where we hope they have landed safe and sound ere now. A day or two later we said good-bye to Brother and Sister Lake and departed in company with Brother J. C. May. Brother May went on to Tahiti, and wife and baby and I stopped in Taenga, a way island, and began preparations for Hereheretue. A brother gave us free use of his boat for the trip, and we fitted it out and hired a crew of four natives, all of which cost us sixty dollars and the branch eight dollars. Provisions are up to old war prices here.

TROUBLES EN ROUTE.

Our outfit being completed, we set sail one fine morning. A good northeast wind took us skimming along till we passed Makemo Island and Marutea, where we took cocoanuts for food and water. We hoped to see Haraiki Island that night at about 11 o'clock, but did not. This was the first mishap on the trip. We could not safely go on till we located that island, as we were sailing by dead reckoning only, and this was the last intervening point from which we could take our bearings. Nothing but a fixed starting point and straight sailing would bring us to the little speck we sought, one hundred and sixty-six miles farther out in the open ocean.

We lay too and waited for day. We sought in vain all that day for Haraiki. Part of the day we lay in a dead calm, and waited under the shade of our sail for wind or night. The sun was very hot. Evening brought a breeze to us, and we sailed back to northeast in search of Marutea Island to take a fresh start. Fortunately the breeze kept up and we sighted Marutea at dawn. Taking our course again we once more sailed for Haraiki. The wind was good and we arrived in Haraiki at about 2 p. m., took fish, cocoanuts, and fire wood, and sailed at dusk for Hereheretue.

Dead reckoning means to sail straight, if possible, and never lose account of your mileage and course. If you do you are out on the broadest desert in the world. Every area between islands in the ocean is a death valley, and must be crossed carefully by all who go that way, and the better you are prepared the safer it is to cross the pathless ocean.

We sailed steadily on southwest a half west for forty hours. We were keeping account of our mileage by means of a ship-log I made of a piece of pine board and a fish-line sixty feet long, dropping the stick overboard and counting the seconds it took for the line to run out by the second hand of a dingy old alarm clock. From this the mileage is easily calculated.

We calculated at 9 a. m., May 14, that we were about fourteen to twenty miles from land, if our course had been kept correctly. These islands are so low they can not be seen over twelve to fifteen miles from the masthead of a cutter boat. We could see no land. An ugly cloud was bearing down upon us from the southeast. Signs of wind appeared. All sail was taken in and the deck cleared for rough weather. Belle and the baby went down inside the little boat. It was too low for them to sit up straight, so they lay down on a mattress. The natives discarded all unnecessary clothing, girded themselves with their middleclothes, and I donned a bathsuit.

We were none too soon in our preparations. The wind struck us in a puff and increased to a gale that moaned and shrieked in the riggings of our little cutter boat. The rain came down in torrents. The thunder roared and the lightning did all the necessary antics for the occasion. The wind soon picked up a very heavy sea, and there was danger of our boat being capsized. To avoid this we pulled up a little corner of our gib sail to keep us headed to leeward. I took a position at the hatch, over Belle's head, and watched my chances to let in air to her and baby, being careful to cover the hatch when a wave broke over our boat. Poor Belle down there in the dark must have had strange thoughts in the midst of that uproar, as she could not see what was going on. Tuata was at the tiller. He is a stanch old native seaman, born on the day the last white men were eaten in Raroia, in the Tuamotu group. And though he has been on the sea all his life, it required all his skill to keep us right side up.

On we went, pitching and plunging over that mad sea for six hours, not being able to estimate our speed. But later estimations proved that we must have covered close to sixty miles. That was a fairly good record for a boat of less than five tons capacity.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the wind fell, and went around to the northeast. We had given up the thought of Hereheretue, but this was something new. We had a fair wind to try again, and an unfavorable wind to go on back to Taenga, where we came from. We held a council as to whether we should try again, and to my surprise Belle proposed trying again. I decided that if she still had so much courage we ought not to give up, and so we turned our boat south again and sailed till nine a. m. the next day, eighteen hours in all. We averaged about five miles per hour, or a little less, as we lost two hours lying too. Calculating that the distance had been covered we, at that point, decided that we had missed the island to right or left; most probably it was to the west of us. Heading west we sailed for two hours and sighted land about fifteen miles away to the west of us.

LANDING UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

Arriving at the island we found that the heavy swell that was running caused a fearful surf on the reef, making the landing very dangerous, as there is no pass from open sea to the lagoon. There was no surf boat on the island and no means of landing us but in a canoe through the surf. Some native boys came out to meet us, and we sent them ashore again to consult with the older ones as to whether it was safe to try to land that evening. They soon sent a canoe out for us, and though we had decided to sleep aboard that night we hustled into the canoe and were soon drawing near to the breakers on the reef.

The two natives so skillful with the paddle pulled up close, retreated and came close again, watching for a favorable opportunity to pass over the deep chasm that opened at the edge of the rocks as the heavy undertow rushed back to meet each approaching wave. The day had slipped away and it was too dark. The natives were undecided. They are like fish in the water themselves, but they were not so sure about being able to pull us out in the dark if we should capsize. One said we had better go back to the boat, as it was too dark, and I agreed with him. We went back to the boat and slept there that night, but those two natives refused our invitation to stay with us. They went ashore in the dark through that roaring surf, and came again for us in the morning all safe and sound.

The sea had gone down a little, they said, and now it was light. We took to the canoe again. Belle held the baby and I took the spare paddle they had brought along. Again we stood on the brink of death and watched the deep yawning gap open and close at the edge of the rocks like the mouth of some unearthly monster, ready to devour anything that came before it. It was strange to see how those men held our canoe on the very brink of breaking waves, and then went back to sea when it seemed impossible to keep it from going ashore with the rushing torrent. Long we waited till the word "pull" came sharp and quick, and we all put full strength to the paddle and went in on a big wave to the reef like a rock from a catapult. Then I rested my paddle and the two natives set theirs to hold back; but we went so fast we nearly ripped the bottom out of the canoe. The natives ashore caught our canoe as we rushed in, and thus prevented a collision with the rocks ahead. So we landed in Hereheretue.

We were quickly ferried across the still water to the village. We shook hands with the rest of the population and took up our abode in the house of the chief, entering upon our duties as missionaries to the grandchildren of the cannibals.

OUR WORK IN, HEREHERETUE.

Our duties as missionaries in Hereheretue were as varied as they were numerous. Settling difficulties was, as usual, the first thing on the program. We had some of that to do from time to time while there, and there are still others to be settled. When it is remembered that only two generations ago these people were killing and eating each other for the possession and ownership of land in these coral islands, it can not be reasonably expected that they will not be stubborn and persistent in their contentions now over the land they inherited from their cannibal parents. So there is no end of that kind of trouble. It threatens to break up the branch in more than one island and Hereheretue is no exception to the rule. But for all that we kept things running pretty smoothly while there.

We started a school as soon as we got settled, my wife taking the class of children. Our school hours usually took up most of the forenoon. We kept the school up most all the time we were there. We taught the first principles of the gospel, duties of officers and members, true succession in First Presidency and uprooted as many silly and private interpretations as we could. Along with the above we taught them reading, writing, simple arithmetic, and how to keep their accounts square with the traders. Outside of our school, Belle taught the women how to sew and cut to patterns for plain clothing for their children as well as for themselves. I repaired their sewing machines; built a capstan to pull their boats ashore; and made a twister to make line with; taught them how to use the square, and to calculate the amount of lumber required in building a house; drew a plan for the church they intended to build there, and explained it in detail so they can build it without an experienced carpenter.

We also had some sick folks to doctor, but not many of them. We were out of all American food so long, having only bread, cocoanut and fish, that we were bothered a little ourselves. I suffered from a sore mouth for a long time; one week especially it was very bad. Belle had the same trouble, but was not so bad. We decided that it was from improper diet. We had saved our canned milk and cereals for our baby boy of two years, so he lived pretty well till along toward the last of our stay. He had to come down to bread and water and cocoanut at last, however, and he was not well pleased about it. He is a little thinner now but in good health, and perhaps none the worse for the experience, though I confess that it hurt my heart to hear my baby cry for milk and suitable food, and I could not get it for him for love or money. But for all that, we are not sorry to have to bear some privations if we can only see that our work is not entirely thrown away.

I baptized four children in Heretherue. I preached thirty-five sermons while there, and was surely blessed of the Lord in speaking, as well as in teaching the school which we kept up five days per week most all the time. Most of the natives took great interest in the school, and I am satisfied that we accomplished more in that school than I have in all the rest of my work in the islands. For there we see real results, real advancement among the children, and in the right direction.

In fact, I have decided to work more along that line from this time on and, give less attention to the clamorings of the older natives for definitions of the hoofs and horns. The fact of the matter is that the native elders and brethren would turn up their noses at a really good, moral sermon, and give preference to a sermon about some trivial subject which is not definitely stated in the scripture. I have made myself quite unpopular among a certain class of the natives, especially those of the priesthood, by refusing to draw pictures of the seven headed beasts and dragons, etc., etc. But the Master only knows what is best, and I am content to hammer away at the real problems of life and morals and to wait for the Lord to decide such matters as to whether "Adam had an unbiblical scar" or not, and just where the "woman" was located in the wilderness during her twelve hundred and sixty days of obscurity. I have preferred to learn and try to teach the natives what God wants us to do now, and how he will help us do his will, and to teach the children how to read, write, and cipher, so they may better study for themselves the will of God as revealed to us, pointing out to them the way of life now, in the living present, rather than waste time on the mysteries of the dead past and the distant future.

So we were very busy in our own crude way in Heretherue. While there we wrote the Sunday school book for 1914, and outlined twenty-four large cloth maps to accompany the same, one map for each branch. The book will soon be ready for the press. This would be a "quarterly" elsewhere, but we only put them out annually in this mission, which is as much as the native seems able to handle. We are going to have a map study this coming year on the geography of the Bible, and hope, in this way, to create a greater interest in the Sunday school work.

ANOA, October 11, 1913.

In gospel bonds,

H. W. SAVAGE.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.—Met at Lincoln, Nebraska, July 19 and 20, W. M. Self and C. E. Butterworth in charge. Statistical reports: Nebraska City, Lincoln, Blue River and Eustis. Bishop's agent reported, same being audited and adopted. Ordination of C. B. Edwards, of Lincoln Branch, to office of elder, concurred in and provided for. A district choral association was organized, with Blanch I. Andrews chorister, Edith Trask, secretary. Following resolution was passed: Resolved, That hereafter each branch in the district be requested to forward to the secretary of the conference with its statistical report, the sum of $2, more or less, to apply as its share of the expense of the conference, balance of said expense to be provided for by the branch with which the conference is held. Following officers sustained: President, W. M. Self; secretary, H. A. Higgins; bishop's agent and district historian, C. H. Porter. Adjourned to meet at Nebraska City at call of president, in January. H. A. Higgins, secretary.

SPRING RIVER.—Met at Vera, Oklahoma, October 11 and 12, district presidency presiding. Statistical reports: Pittsburg 156, Scammon 89, Angola 59, Columbus 63, Joplin 332, Lamanite 49, Pleasant View 118, Purcell 53, Vera 67, Fairland 225, Weir City 115, Webb City. Treasurer reported: Receipts, $7.08; expenditures, $5.43. Bishop reported, July 12 to date: Receipts, $539.50; expenditures, $738. Ordination of F. J. Reynolds, of Travers Branch, to office of priest approved. Committee on district by-laws granted more time. Preaching by A. C. Silvers, F. C. Keck, Ellis Short, Lee Quick; dedicatory prayer by T. W. Chatburn. Adjourned to meet February 14, at Scammon, Kansas. Mollie Davis, secretary.

Convention Minutes.

NEW YORK.—Sunday school convened October 4, 1913, at Buffalo. Officers reported. Election of officers: George Landes, superintendent; William Brothers, assistant; Mary Mesle, secretary; Louise Blackburn, treasurer; Dellis Perry, home department superintendent; William Brothers, member library board. Sister A. M. Chase, field worker, was requested to help, especially in normal work. She was also made chairman of good literature committee, which was voted three dollars from district fund, and for which about three dollars was collected by ten cent donations. Delegates to General Convention: A. M. Chase, B. L. McKim, Eliza Chase, Alice Chase, A. E. Stone and wife, Mary L. Mesle, James Breegle and wife, Anna Brothers, Frank Mesle, Daniel Joy and wife, William Brothers, George Landes, Sister William Brothers. Delegates present instructed to cast entire vote, and in case of division majority and minority. Mary Lewis Mesle, secretary.

Pastoral.

To the Isolated Saints of Eastern Iowa District: Let us all be workers together in the great latter-day cause, for we have that divine assurance that every earnest and honest effort will be abundantly rewarded. I am laboring as a missionary in the district above mentioned, trying to merit the reward of a faithful minister.

I am sure you can help in this great gospel work. The work really needs your help, and the missionary needs your cooperation. You need now, and will need in the final end, the reward given all helpers.

You may be where you never see a Latter Day Saint. And perhaps you think many times, What can I do? This you can do: Send a notice to the Ensign and the HERALD, or drop a personal letter to any of your missionaries, telling them where you are, how to find you, and thus let your friends and neighbors know about the gospel. I am sure you will soon receive a call from some of the elders. The old trails in this district are well beaten; the work needs to be spread. Will you help? Of course the old places need looking after; but I find in most places that the local men are qualified to do that.

On account of physical inability I am not able to get out and hunt up new places as I once did. But if you will let me know where you live I will take pleasure in hunting you up. This kind of work will bring you in touch with the

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

EDITORIAL:
 Christmas and the Gift of Service - - - 1213
Autumn Leaves for 1914 - - - 1214
 Notice from Bureau of Publicity - - - 1216
 Hymns and Poems - - - 1216

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 What Exercises May be Held in Our Churches, by F. M. Smith - - - 1217
 The Workman and His Gift, by Emmaline Perrie - - - 1218
 Shall All the Saints Be Asleep When the Savior Comes, by F. J. Ebeling - - - 1218
 Temporalities; Our Present Duty, by Lamoni Stake Bishopric - - - 1220

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 Origin of Christmas Customs - - - 1222

THE STAFF - - - 1224
 Albert N. Hoxie—Anna DeJong—A. B. Phillips.

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - 1227

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - 1228
 Hattie Riggs—M. A. McConley—Mrs. M. J. McKeaver—Miss Gertie Rodabaugh—Mrs. Ira W. Humes.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - 1230
 H. W. Savage.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - 1232

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 60 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department.

Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.

Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

realities of the church and the gospel, and will help you to appreciate more highly your calling in the world. It will bring gladness to the hearts of the people and the missionary; and finally will bring us together to enjoy our reward in the end.

My home address is 319 South Grand Avenue, Independence, Missouri.
 May God help us to labor together in love in the building up of the glorious gospel of Christ, is my prayer.
 Your brother in Christ,
 S. H. FIELD.

First Presidency.

NOTICE TO THE SAINTS OF OKLAHOMA AND ARKANSAS.
 We are informed that J. D. Erwin is continuing his activities as a minister notwithstanding he has been personally notified of his silence and notice published to that effect. This is to again notify all concerned that J. D. Erwin is not authorized to act as a minister, and his work will not be recognized by this church. Branch presidents and other local authorities are especially requested to see that Brother Erwin is not afforded opportunity to perform ministerial work in their branches.
 FREDERICK M. SMITH,
Secretary First Presidency.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, December 12, 1913.

Notice to Nebraska Priests.

Priests' Quorum of Northern and Southern Nebraska districts will meet at Nebraska City, January 10 and 11. Please forward annual reports to me before January 10, so that I may make complete report to conference. Arthur E. Stoff, secretary, 2914 North Twenty-fifth Street, Omaha, Nebraska.

Address Lost.

Some time ago I received a letter from Buffalo asking me to join the Sunday school class there. I have lost the address, and ask that the party please send same again.
 MRS. WILLIS PALMER.

Address Wanted.

H. F. Durfey of Seiling, Oklahoma, desires the address of John and Fannie Hogan, formerly of Seiling Branch.

Notice to Stenographers.

We wish those who intend to take up stenography work after the holidays would advise us, as we shall start a new class if there is sufficient demand.
 SAMUEL A. BURGESS, President Graceland College.

Died.

MORGAN.—James W. Morgan was born October 12, 1859; died December 5, 1913, at residence of James Farley, Bisbee, Arizona, of Bright's disease. He leaves wife, seven daughters, one son. Services in charge of S. D. Condit and W. H. Mannering, interment in Evergreen Cemetery, Lowell Arizona.

THOMPSON.—James F. Thompson was born February 3, 1854, Linn County, Oregon; baptized July 8, 1880, at Brownsville, Oregon, by J. C. Clapp; died June 11, 1913, at Loomis, Washington. He leaves wife, two sons, two daughters, several grandchildren. He remained true to the covenant.

WINSHIP.—Dortha Merle, daughter of Brother and Sister Jesse B. Winship, was born November 25, 1911; died January 10, 1913, at Wheeling, West Virginia. She was a sweet little bud, the fourth child Brother and Sister Winship have laid away to await the resurrection morn. Services at the home by O. L. Martin, assisted by M. E. Thomas. Interment in Greenwood Cemetery.

Choosing the Right Present.

Are you in doubt about a certain present? The Youth's Companion has proved to be one of the best that can be chosen. Perhaps you have not seen it lately, and are not quite sure. Then let us send you a sample copy or two. Suppose you ask for the issues containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial story of life in a boys' school—"His Father's Son." If you look the paper over carefully, bearing in mind that there are fifty-two such numbers for a year's subscription of $2, we are sure you will say that a better present could not be chosen, whether for a young person or for an entire family.

For the year's subscription of $2 there is included a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues for the remaining weeks of this year, dating from the time the subscription is received.

If you ask for sample copies we will send with them the Announcement for 1914.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,
 144 Berkeley Street, Boston, Mass.
New subscriptions received at this office.

For Sale.

Twenty-two volumes of Autumn Leaves and thirty-four volumes of HERALDS, all nicely bound and in good condition. The Autumn Leaves are consecutive numbers 1 to 22. The HERALDS contain some of the old volumes which are now hard to get. Those books will be sold at cost. Correspondence solicited.
 R. H. SMITH.
 INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 711 South Fuller Street.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE SUBSCRIPTION AGENCY

We have a general subscription agency in connection with the Herald Publishing House.

We kindly ask the Saints and friends everywhere to send us their subscriptions for any paper.

We earnestly desire to get our publishing house out of debt. You can aid us and it will not cost you a cent. Every subscription you send us means a few cents made by the Herald Publishing House. Somebody makes this profit when you subscribe for a paper or magazine, or when you purchase a book.

We want you to get in the habit of giving all these orders to your own publishing house. This is where we can cooperate, and the profits made go to ever one of us. It will help us to meet our obligations. And don't forget that these obligations of the Herald Publishing House are ours,—the whole church.

No matter what your profession or business is, we can supply you with your needed reading. Just send us, your remittance, give the name of your journal, or magazine, or book, with address of the publishers, if you have it, and we will take care of the rest.

All inquiries cheerfully answered.

Don't forget that all subscription orders must be accompanied with the cash.

HERE ARE A FEW OF OUR COMBINATIONS:

Modern Priscilla .....	$1.00	Harper's Magazine .....	$4.00	Harper's Weekly .....	$5.00
Woman's Magazine .....	.75	Housewife .....	.50	Pearson's .....	1.50
Children's Magazine .....	1.00	Journal of Education .....	2.50	Sunset .....	2.50
Regular Price .....	$2.75	Regular Price .....	$7.00	Regular Price .....	$9.00
Our Club Price .....	2.30	Our Club Price .....	5.90	Our Club Price .....	7.25
Atlantic Monthly .....	$4.00	Etude .....	$1.50	Woman's Home Companion .....	$1.50
American Magazine .....	1.50	Everybody's .....	1.50	American Boy .....	1.00
Boston Cooking School .....	1.00	Delineator .....	1.50	Baby .....	1.00
Regular Price .....	$6.50	Regular Price .....	$4.50	Regular Price .....	$3.50
Our Club Price .....	5.85	Our Club Price .....	3.65	Our Club Price .....	2.85
Fine Arts Journal .....	$3.00	Scribner's .....	$3.00	Technical World .....	1.50
Farm and Home .....	.50	Pearson's .....	1.50	Pearson's .....	1.50
Health Culture Magazine .....	1.00	Regular Price .....	$6.00	Our Club Price .....	5.15
Regular Price .....	$4.50	Ladies' Home Journal {	Any one, $1.50
Our Club Price .....	4.35	Saturday Evening Post {	Any two, $3.00
		Country Gentleman {	Any three, $4.50

To get some of our other combinations, and the prices, note the following: Select the magazines you want. You will find a number on the left hand side of the names of the magazines in the following list. This is called the class number. Add together the class numbers of the magazines you wish to order and multiply the total by five. This gives you the correct remittance price in dollars and cents. For example; suppose you selected Practical Farmer, Modern Priscilla and Delineator.

The class number of Practical Farmer is	15
The class number of Modern Priscilla is	17
The class number of Delineator is	23
Total	55
Multiply by	5
Cost of club	$2.75

The list below are some of the many we have in our list. Don't forget that we can get you any magazine or paper. Subscriptions to Canada require extra postage, and in some cases different subscription prices. Write us what you want and we will tell you exactly what it will cost you.

Let everyone get in the habit.

30 Ainslee's Magazine .....	$1.50	18 American School Board		35 American Miller .....	$2.00
77 Atlantic Monthly .....	4.00	Journal .....	$1.00	55 American Homes and
17 American Primary Teacher	1.00	17 American Poultry Journal	1.00	Gardens .....	3.00
17 American Boy .....	1.00	35 Automobile Topics .....	2.00	24 American Photography .....	1.50
70 Americana .....	4.00	60 Automobile .....	3.00	30 All Story .....	1.50
28 American Magazine .....	1.50	80 American Lumberman .....	4.00	80 American Naturalist .....	4.00
19 American Motherhood .....	1.00	35 American Carpenter and		17 Automobile Dealer and
16 American Thresherman .....	1.00	Builder .....	2.00	Repairer .....	1.00

60 Architectural Record . . . . $ 3.00	60 Fine Arts Journal . . . . $3.00	40 Motor Boat . . . . . $2.00
7 American Poultry Advocate 50	90 Fortnightly Review . . . . 4.50	35 Musical Trade Review . . . . 2.00
100 American Journal of Psychology . . . . . 5.00	16 Farm Gas Engine . . . . . 1.00	17 Modern Priscilla . . . . . 1.00
18 American Education . . . . . 1.00	7 Farm and Home . . . . . .50	90 Nineteenth Century . . . . . 4.50
200 American Architect . . . . . 10.00	5 Farmer's Wife . . . . . .25	70 North American Review . . . . 4.00
32 Bulletin of Photography . . . . 1.75	23 Garden Magazine . . . . . 1.50	45 National Geographic Magazine . . . . . 2.50
100 Bankers' Magazine . . . . . 5.00	15 Gleanings in Bee Culture . . . 1.00	15 National Guard Magazine . . . . 1.00
95 Brickbuilder . . . . . 5.00	16 Gas Power . . . . . 1.00	30 New Story Magazine . . . . . 1.50
77 Banking Law Journal . . . . . 4.00	17 Good Health Magazine . . . . . 1.00	18 New Music Review . . . . . 1.00
17 Black Cat . . . . . 1.00	27 Green Book Magazine . . . . . 1.50	30 National Builder . . . . . 1.50
15 Baby . . . . . 1.00	17 Health Culture Magazine . . . . 1.00	20 Nature Study Review . . . . . 1.00
140 Botanical Gazette . . . . . 7.00	50 Harvard Law Review . . . . . 2.50	25 Overland Monthly . . . . . 1.50
60 Bellman . . . . . 4.00	35 Horseless Age . . . . . 2.00	20 Organ, The . . . . . 1.00
17 Boston Cooking School . . . . . 1.00	50 House Beautiful . . . . . 3.00	15 Our Dumb Animals . . . . . 1.00
60 Blackwood's Magazine . . . . . 3.00	18 Hoard's Dairyman . . . . . 1.00	20 Open Court . . . . . 1.00
100 Book Review Digest . . . . . 5.00	18 Hints . . . . . 1.00	50 Outing . . . . . 3.00
30 Business Philosopher . . . . . 2.00	12 Home Needle Work . . . . . .75	60 Outlook . . . . . 3.00
18 Building Age . . . . . 2.00	20 Hunter, Trader, and Trapper 1.00	17 Popular Photography . . . . . 1.00
60 Bibliotheca Sacra . . . . . 3.00	70 Harper's Magazine . . . . . 4.00	7 Poultry Success . . . . . .50
90 Bradstreets' . . . . . 5.00	70 Harper's Weekly . . . . . 5.00	30 People's Ideal Fiction Mag. 1.50
40 Biblical World . . . . . 2.00	30 Harper's Bazar . . . . . 1.25	17 Philistine . . . . . 1.00
47 Bookman Magazine . . . . . 2.50	8 Housewife . . . . . .50	8 People's Home Journal . . . . . .50
35 Brick and Clay Record . . . . . 2.00	38 Horseman . . . . . 2.00	15 Practical Farmer . . . . . 1.00
70 Country Life in America . . . . 4.00	45 Homiletic Review (new) . . . . 3.00	24 Photo Era . . . . . 1.50
23 Camera . . . . . 1.50	53 Homiletic Review, (renewal) 3.00	60 Popular Magazine . . . . . 3.00
30 Concrete-Cement Age . . . . . 1.50	20 Investments . . . . . 1.00	27 Photographic Times . . . . . 1.50
50 Cassier's Magazine (new) 3.00	50 International Journal of Ethics . . . . . 2.50	75 Publishers' Weekly . . . . . 4.00
50 Cassier's Magazine, (renewal) 3.00	95 International Studio . . . . . 5.00	90 Puck . . . . . 5.00
40 Chemical Engineer . . . . . 2.00	100 Iron Age . . . . . 5.00	100 Pedagogical Seminary . . . . . 5.00
190 Commercial and Financial Chronicle . . . . . 10.00	40 Iron Age (Hardware) . . . . . 2.00	18 Plumbers' Trade Journal . . . . 1.00
23 Christian Herald . . . . . 1.50	70 Iron Trade Review . . . . . 4.00	17 Progressive Teacher . . . . . 1.00
60 Craftsman . . . . . 3.00	60 Inland Printer . . . . . 3.00	9 Poultry Keeper . . . . . .50
80 Century . . . . . 4.00	80 Index to Dates . . . . . 4.00	20 Pearson's . . . . . 1.50
16 Cooking Club Magazine . . . . . 1.00	17 Judge Quarterly . . . . . 1.00	23 Physical Culture . . . . . 1.50
20 Chautauquan . . . . . 1.00	40 Journal of Education . . . . . 2.50	30 Quarterly Review . . . . . 4.00
30 Classical Journal . . . . . 1.50	18 Judicious Advertising . . . . . 1.00	30 Railroad Man's Magazine . . . . . 1.50
90 Contemporary Review . . . . . 4.50	95 Judge . . . . . 5.00	23 Red Book Magazine . . . . . 1.50
100 Commercial (West Financial and Banking) . . . . . 5.00	60 Journal of Political Economy 3.00	240 Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature . . . . . 12.00
50 Current Opinion . . . . . 3.00	17 Judge Library . . . . . 1.00	40 Rudder . . . . . 2.00
120 Cumulative Book Index . . . . . 6.00	80 Journal of Geology . . . . . 4.00	80 Rider and Driver . . . . . 5.00
17 Camera Craft, (new) . . . . . 1.00	60 Journal of English and German Philology . . . . . 3.00	30 Real Estate News . . . . . 2.00
20 Camera Craft (renewal) . . . . . 1.00	39 Journal of Race Development 2.00	30 Smith's Magazine . . . . . 1.50
30 Camp and Trail . . . . . 1.50	17 Kindergarten Primary Magazine, (new) . . . . . 1.00	20 School Journal . . . . . 1.25
80 Cavalier . . . . . 4.00	19 Kindergarten Primary Magazine, (renewal) . . . . . 1.00	20 School Education . . . . . 1.25
60 Catholic World . . . . . 3.00	20 Kindergarten Review . . . . . 1.25	55 Scientific American . . . . . 3.00
40 Christian Science Sentinel 2.00	70 Keramic Studio . . . . . 4.00	100 Science . . . . . 5.00
40 Christian Science Journal . . . . 2.00	40 Keith's Magazine on Home Building . . . . . 2.00	35 School Arts Magazine . . . . . 2.00
20 Christian Science Herald . . . . . 1.00	95 Leslie's Weekly . . . . . 5.00	23 Short Stories . . . . . 1.50
100 Christian Science Monitor . . . . 5.00	60 Literary Digest . . . . . 3.00	18 School Bulletin . . . . . 1.00
45 Dress . . . . . 3.00	35 Lippincott's Magazine . . . . . 3.00	35 Sunset Magazine . . . . . 2.50
23 Delineator . . . . . 1.50	17 Little Folks' Magazine, (new) . . . . . 1.00	60 Scribner's Magazine . . . . . 3.00
12 Designer . . . . . .75	20 Little Folks' Magazine (renewal) . . . . . 1.00	18 South Dakota Educator . . . . . 1.00
35 Dun's Review, (new) . . . . . 2.00	100 Life . . . . . 5.00	22 School and Home Education 1.25
40 Dun's Review, (renewal) . . . . . 2.00	3 Ladies' World . . . . . 1.00	40 System . . . . . 2.00
33 Dial, (new) . . . . . 2.00	80 Library Journal . . . . . 4.00	40 Standard, Chicago . . . . . 2.00
38 Dial, (renewal) . . . . . 2.00	40 Metal Workers . . . . . 2.00	50 Suburban Life . . . . . 3.00
27 Electric Journal . . . . . 1.50	55 Municipal Journal . . . . . 3.00	Saturday Evening Post . . . . . 1.50
40 Engineering and Contracting 2.00	10 McCall's Magazine . . . . . .50	30 School Review . . . . . 1.50
55 Educational Review . . . . . 3.00	30 Munsey's . . . . . 1.50	10 School Music . . . . . .50
24 Electrician and Mechanic . . . . 1.50	23 Metropolitan Magazine . . . . . 1.50	30 Sports Afield . . . . . 1.50
23 Etude . . . . . 1.50	23 Musician . . . . . 1.50	45 Smart Set . . . . . 3.00
57 Engineering Magazine (new) 3.00	17 Medical Brief . . . . . 1.00	19 Table Talk . . . . . 1.00
60 Engineering Magazine (renewal) . . . . . 3.00	17 Musical Observer . . . . . 1.00	35 Trained Nurse . . . . . 2.00
40 Expositor and Current Anecdotes . . . . . 2.00	23 McClure's . . . . . 1.50	18 Teacher's College Record . . . . 1.00
25 Everybody's . . . . . 1.50	43 Missionary Review of the World, (new) . . . . . 2.50	40 Top Notch Magazine . . . . . 2.00
30 Elementary School Teacher 1.50	50 Missionary Review of the World, (renewal) . . . . . 2.50	30 Toilettes . . . . . 2.00
50 English Journal . . . . . 2.50	50 Moody Magazine, (new) . . . . . 3.00	23 Technical World . . . . . 1.50
80 Edinburgh Review . . . . . 4.00	60 Moody Magazine, (renewal) 3.00	30 University of Chicago Magazine . . . . . 1.50
50 Education, (new) . . . . . 3.00	90 Musical Courier . . . . . 5.00	15 Violin World . . . . . .75
60 Education, (renewal) . . . . . 3.00		75 Vogue . . . . . 4.00
50 Elite . . . . . 2.50		25 Woman's Home Companion . . . . 1.50
55 Electrical Review . . . . . 3.00		18 Wallace's Farmer . . . . . 1.00
50 Forum . . . . . 2.50		20 Western Teacher . . . . . 1.00
		12 Woman's Magazine . . . . . .75
		90 Westminster Review . . . . . 4.50
		23 Young's Magazine . . . . . 1.50
		40 Youth's Companion . . . . . 2.00

Royal

Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

The only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar

FARMERS STATE BANK
Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR
POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

BANK BY MAIL
WITH THE
STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI
W. A. Hopkins, President
Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.

Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - - IOWA

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a. Cloth .....$1.00

WANTED.

By a young western stock farm manager, a responsible position with a future, or might invest $800 with a partner. What business do you know or have. Address Dan Lee, care Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4tpd

A NEW HOTEL.

A fine opportunity for a good hotel man to establish himself in an up-to-date town with a good business assured from the start. The hotel accommodations at Lamoni have not kept pace with the town. A man of experience with some money wishing to locate permanently in Lamoni and build a modern hotel will receive material assistance from the Lamoni Commercial Club.

For further particulars address G. W. Blair, Secretary of Committee, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4t

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.) John Zahnd, Independence, Mo. 6-tf

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

JOSEPH SMITH DEFENDED, by Elder J. W. Peterson. A useful book for not only the investigator but also for the more mature student. It sweeps away many of the false ideas regarding the prophet.
Order No. 241, cloth .....50c

A GERMAN EDITION of a Marvelous Work and a Wonder. Just issued. Order No. 230b. Paper, .....25c

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
No. 140. Price .....50c

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.

- The King of Peace. Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
- The King of Peace .....25c
- Within the Veil .....15c
- Wayward Stream .....25c
- One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
- Rest .....25c

THE SWEET GOSPEL STORY, by W. J. Smith .....25c

OVER 65 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS & C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

How Are Things Going With You?

If you are not getting ahead just as fast as you would like to, suppose you write me something about yourself and your ambition. Perhaps I can put you in touch with just the opportunity you are looking for. You see along a big railroad like the Burlington there are always openings for good men in many trades in towns that are growing and where the opportunities are good. Sometimes, I hear of a snap in the way of a small dairy or truck farm. If I can't properly locate you at first, I'll make a note of what you want and write you when something good turns up. The Railroad pays me to do this. You are under no obligation whatever to me or anyone else.

Why not write me right away while you are thinking about the matter? A postal will do.

D. CLEM DEEVER, C. B. & Q. R. R.
1004 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8: 31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2: 36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, DECEMBER 24, 1913

NUMBER 52

Editorial

SECOND COMING OF CHRIST AND PREPARATION THEREFOR.

(Sermon by J. F. Garver at Lamoni, Iowa, December 7, 1913. Reported by Elizabeth France.)

Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in: behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts. But who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap; and he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years. And I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, and against the adulterers, and against false swearers, and against those that oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts. For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed.

I have read the first six verses of the third chapter of Malachi. In connection with this scripture I wish to call your attention to the question asked of Christ by the apostles, as recorded in the twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew and the third verse, together with the answer given to that question by Christ, as found more especially in the fourteenth verse. The question was this: "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" And Jesus makes answer, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come."

Now, I am sure there is no one in this audience this morning, nor yet one anywhere who would not agree with us in the conclusion that the language as read here in the third chapter of Malachi has reference to a work which Jesus Christ was to do. Jesus is the one referred to here who is to come suddenly, who is to sit as a refiner, who is to purge the sons of Levi, who is to come nigh to this world to judgment. But men in meditating upon the work herein set forth have not always agreed as to the time of the application of this scripture.

AN OPEN QUESTION.

The question of the second coming of Christ is one that has always been open; that is, since the beginning of the apostasy. The Scriptures plainly indicate the fact of the second coming of Christ, and the church so understood in the apostolic age. Christ recognizes that condition as a fact when he makes answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming?" He does not stop to explain that there is no second coming. He works upon that which is known to the apostles, as our scientific men teach us to-day, leading their minds from that which is known, he brings them up to that which is not known to them, and tells them that which is to be the sign, the especial sign of the second appearing.

The days of the apostasy have bred and brought forth the conviction that Christ had come, or was in the act of coming, into every life, or into society, according to the peculiar persuasion of different men. And so men hold to-day that this coming or appearing has reference to that time when Christ comes at death and bears the individual, the righteous believer away; or that it has reference to the coming of Christ into the heart and life of each individual, there to reign supreme during life; or that the second coming of Christ means that Christ comes in spirit to the human family, and that the common brotherhood of man is being built up in all the world, while the great divine fatherhood of God looks down upon all mankind. In this sense do men urge that we have Christ coming the second time to this world.

A LITERAL COMING.

You will remember that from the very beginning of our existence as a people we have laid firm hold upon the principles that were set forth in the Scriptures, and have taken to our hearts the hope that Christ would again appear in person, literally, to perform this work referred to in this scripture. And so we have continued to preach from that day to this. But as we have done in many things, I have thought that we have come to preach the fact of that appearing, we have come to preach the fact of the principles enunciated by Christ, and the fact of the organization effected under Christ, until we have in a measure lost sight of and have forgotten the significance of the divine appearing, and have let slip from us to a great degree the work of preparation that is needful to be done before Christ may make that triumphant appearing.

A SUDDEN COMING.

Now as referring to the question of the time that this work shall be done, let us notice carefully the scripture, and we will have no difficulty with the interpretation. "And the Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come." Christ did not come suddenly in Bethlehem's manger. He certainly has not come suddenly into this world of mankind and suddenly built up the work of brotherhood we hear so much about these days.

There are those, too, by the way, who hold that this scripture in Malachi has reference to the first coming of Christ. When Christ came in Bethlehem's manger he did not come suddenly. Why, it was needful that his parents should seek out a place, an obscure place wherein he might be sheltered from the elements. He was hidden away from the world; his presence was known only to those men who had laid hold upon the divine fact of his Messiahship. There came to worship him at Bethlehem only a little band of men.

WHO SHALL STAND?

But at the second appearing he is to come suddenly. The Apostle Paul in the first Thessalonian letter gives us to understand that he is to come as a thief in the night; he is to come and take men off their guard, suddenly, as a thief comes in the night when we are sleeping and at rest. Furthermore, these men who are not ready to receive him at his coming, who will not make themselves ready,—this scripture gives us to understand that such as these will not be able to stand when he shall appear.

If the appearing referred to herein means the first appearing, then must the scripture be rewritten; for no man was disturbed at the first appearing of Christ. And so far as not being able to stand is concerned, it seemed that Christ was the one that was not able to stand. He was hunted from one place to another. Even as a babe in his mother's arms it was needful that his foster father and his virgin mother should take him away from the influences which set so heavily against him. And only when that wicked man died was Joseph permitted of God to bring back again the boy Jesus. When he moved out in his ministry, upon every hand was he met with seeming obstruction, with persecution, with bitterness. He did not disturb society at this time. Every man stood in his own wicked place. But this scripture gives us to understand that at the second appearing of Jesus Christ men who are not ready to receive him shall be moved out of their places.

COMING AS A JUDGE.

He says here in the fifth verse, "I will come near to you to judgment." Christ did not come in judgment, or judging the world at his first appearing. He tells us, as is recorded by the Apostle John in the twelfth chapter, forty-seventh verse, "If any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world."

The fact is that at the first appearing Christ came as the Savior of the world, offering to mankind the means of redemption, giving his life's blood upon Calvary's cross, and performing faithfully his part, that he might finally stand between heaven and earth as the mediator for man, and continue to hold out to him the means of life eternal. He came as our Savior at his first appearing. But we understand that at the second appearing he is to come nigh to this world in judgment; as a judge is he to make his second appearing.

You remember the statement made here in Revelation, first chapter, seventh verse: "Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so. Amen."

All kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Now why? Because he is to come in judgment. The prophet gives us to understand that in this day of judgment he will be a swift witness against the sorcerers, against the adulterers, against false swearers, against all who have not named his name, and who continue to abide in transgression and evil. Such men shall not be able to stand.

He is coming to this world as a judge, as is so beautifully pictured in his own language, recorded in the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew, thirty-first verse, wherein he says to us, "When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." He will come as a triumphant king, as Christ, Immanuel, God with us, to reign upon the earth with his Saints, whose robes have been made clean and spotless. Only those who are not ready shall wail at his coming. Those who have made themselves to be ready are those referred to by the Apostle Paul in the ninth chapter of Hebrews, twenty-eighth verse: "So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation."

Now he is coming nigh those who are not ready in judgment; and these are they who shall cry out that the rocks may fall upon them, that they might be hidden away from the judgment to be passed upon them. But those who are ready, those who look for his appearing, those unto whom he shall not come as a thief in the night, those whose lamps are trimmed and burning, who know not the day nor the hour, but who have seen and who have recognized the signs, these shall be ready to receive him. Unto those who look for him shall he appear the second time without sin unto their salvation.

At his first appearing Christ came bearing the sins of the world, burdened with the sorrows of humanity, taking upon himself not only the original sin committed in the garden, but taking upon himself every individual sin of every man and every woman, bearing the burden of those sins. He gave his life upon the cross that man might be redeemed from the state of darkness, and despair, and transgression into which he had been plunged. But he is not coming like that the second time. And I thank the great God from the depths of my soul, when I meditate upon the work of Christ, that he is to receive his triumph, that he is to receive his kingship.

WORD TO JUDGE.

It is not in the spirit of exultation that he is to come; he will come meting out that kind of judgment he refers to in the twelfth chapter of John, wherein he says: "I judge him not. . . . The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." A man will be judged and will almost instinctively find his place as a consequence of the fact that there will be held up before him in the day of final reckoning those books which John saw when he said, "And the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books." These books are those which contain every rule and order of life. As men lay hold upon the books and comply with that which has been written, so shall be their judgment in that great and final day.

Christ comes forth at this second appearing in triumph, with the shout of the archangel, with the trump of God, in the presence of his angels, to receive unto himself those who have made themselves ready, not this time bearing the sins of the world, but without this burden upon him, and leaving those who have not made themselves ready, to go out into outer darkness.

LEVI TO BE PURGED.

Let us notice the third and fourth verses of the third chapter of Malachi:

And he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver: and he shall purify the sons of Levi; and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto the Lord an offering in righteousness. Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years.

Did Christ purge the sons of Levi at his first appearing? Did they offer any kind of offering that was pleasing to him in that day? Why, my friends, we remember that the chief men among these were those who were most active in the persecutions against Christ, and who upon every hand set the people against him in one way or another. And the Sanhedrin was ever ready to take under advisement any conduct of any individual representing Christ that might be construed into violation of statutory law, or of the law of usage. They did not offer an offering in righteousness, but when Christ comes the second time, as this prophetic utterance sets forth, then shall the sons of Levi offer an offering in righteousness which shall be pleasing to God.

THE SIGN.

What shall be the sign of his coming? This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world as a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come. The Inspired Version says that this gospel of the kingdom shall again be preached. We understand that the church went out in the apostolic age and sought to promulgate the principles of righteousness and the way of life. They were hindered in their work because of persecution from without, and because of sin from within. The forces of the adversary finally became so terrible that the church could not surmount its difficulties, and it went down into obscurity. But the promises of the Scripture were that this ensign was again to be set up, that this gospel was again to be preached in all the world, to make ready against the day of Christ's coming.

Take hold of the thought that God in his divine beneficence has never left this world without warning, without opportunity to make ready. The attributes of his divine character, as set forth in our lesson, do not permit of change or deviation in him; so will it be needful that the world shall have opportunity, prior to the second coming of our Lord, to make ready against that great day.

In the garden, away back in the beginning, Adam was warned as to the consequences of his evil. He was not left unprepared so far as work on the part of God was concerned. Before the flood was permitted to come and swallow up the wickedness of this world, Noah preached and lifted the warning voice, inviting those people to make ready. Before Jerusalem was carried away into Babylonian captivity, almost without number, the prophets raised their voices and warned the people, and sought to lead them back to God. The same was true before they were finally set aside as the people of God. Christ came first to the Jew; he sent his apostles first to the Jew; he gave the Jew opportunity and fair warning before he removed him out of his place at the destruction of Jerusalem.

WAY PREPARED.

When Christ came the first time, his coming was made ready. And so God, working in consistency with his divine nature, will make ready again prior to the second appearing of our Lord. And if you will notice carefully, the scripture indicates that the work necessary to be done before his second appearing is very similar to that done before his first appearing.

At his first appearing a messenger was sent beforehand, John, who came crying, Repent; take warning, you people. The kingdom of heaven is nigh at hand. Now is the set time for the Lord, the Redeemer, to appear unto mankind; and I am here as his forerunner, and as a witness of his divinity. I will bear record of him. And John bore that record.

John preached and gathered disciples together, baptizing them for the remission of sins. When Christ came John said, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." And Christ gathered up—I want you to notice this fact—Christ gathered up the disciples that had been made, and that had been baptized, and with them began the work of church building. The disciples whom John had made formed a nucleus around whom Christ began to build. Notice that when John bore his witness of the Christ, those who had been following John took up following after Christ; and one of those men to whom John witnessed became one of the twelve apostles in the apostolic church, and so did his brother Simon, and his friends. (See John 1.) So John performed his work of preparing the people (bringing together the material) to receive Christ at his coming.

THE GATHERING.

And so is it necessary that a work of preparation be done, that a day of warning shall be given, a day of witnessing and of preaching the gospel, that this world may be thus warned and may have ample opportunity to make themselves ready to receive Christ at his second coming. Whether or not many shall hearken does not matter so far as the purposes of God are concerned. But there shall be gathered together a people who shall be pleasing to God, and who shall be ready to receive Christ at the time of his coming.

This number is to include Israel restored, in the land of their nativity, and in their sacred city—Judah purged, and offering in righteousness service acceptable to God. You remember the statement in the eleventh chapter of Isaiah, tenth and eleventh verses, touching upon this point:

And in that day [and the language prior to this indicates plainly that it refers to this day ushering in the reigning of Christ] there shall be a root of Jesse which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people.

He shall set his hand again the second time, and those who are disposed to be gathered up and to make ready shall be made ready; Jerusalem shall be inhabited, as the prophets said, as towns without walls. Judah shall be purged of that which stood between him and God at the time of the first advent of Christ. He shall offer an offering in righteousness, which offering shall be pleasing to God. The Saints shall be gathered to Zion, and shall have been made ready to receive Christ against the day of his final coming.

My friends, we have our confirmation of the divinity of the mission of this people of latter days. The work of restoration has begun. The church started out in 1830, lifting the warning voice, witnessing that the angel had flown, and that man had been again commissioned with divine authority to go forward in the gospel ministry. They began to preach that gospel in all the world as a witness unto all nations, evidencing that the time had appeared, referred to in the Scriptures, and calling to the people on every hand to come and help make ready the work of preparation.

BOOK OF MORMON.

The church came in that day bearing in its hands a book which it held as sacred, which it witnessed to the world was a lost record of wandering Israel, which book had been restored. And they had the courage of their convictions to stand up before the world and show this book (the Book of Mormon).

The elders told the people that very soon they might expect to see Israel returning to their former home; that very soon they might expect to see Jerusalem rebuilt; that the time would come when Levi would offer an offering in righteousness. In those days there was not much to support that claim, outside of the word, which men were not willing to receive.

I want to make this suggestion: The work that this book is designed to do has not yet been done. What was the mission of the book? To convince Jew and Gentile that Jesus is the Christ. It has not done that. I make this statement guardedly, and carefully; in my humble judgment that work has not been done in the full sense intended in the word of promise. But I believe before God from the depths of my soul that that work will be done. I am persuaded that there are those under the sound of my voice who shall witness the performing of that work. I think the time will come—and I am willing to go on record here—out of the depths of my faith I believe the time will come when God will bare his arm to demonstrate the divinity of that book. And in that great day this mighty people who come up in worthiness before him will have at their disposal the divine power and potency which shall enable them to preach the gospel in all the world as a witness to the coming of Christ.

How feeble is our arm to-day! The brethren before me who have gone out and in the humility of their souls have sought to build up the kingdom are conscious of that fact. But the promises to us are that Christ shall finally grant unto us a mighty endowment. Our faith is that the divinity of the Book of Mormon shall be finally established beyond question. In that day, my friends, that book is to be a mighty evidence to be placed before the people.

EVIDENCE NEEDED.

It is clear that we need such an evidence. Look upon every hand in the religious world. When we went out to preach in 1830, so far as I know, nobody preached the second coming of Christ; you hear it everywhere now. We did not hear anything about revelation then; you hear it everywhere now. When we went out to preach in 1830 you did not hear anything about miraculous healing; you hear it everywhere now. A man can hardly go into any community but what the people tell him that they have these things. They say, Do we not have tongues? They seem to have them. Do we not have healings? I believe they do. Do we not have inspiration? I am willing to be liberal and say some of them do. (There is no question but that some of them do; there might be a question as to the source of it, however.) I am persuaded that some are blessed of God, and that to a degree they receive of the light of the Spirit. And they tell us, "We have all these things. Has God not placed the stamp of his approval upon us? Why should we hearken to your ministry?"

But I want to say that when God evidences to the world the divinity of that book, as I believe he will evidence, this church will have a mighty witness to demonstrate beyond doubt that we alone have the genuine gospel of these latter days, because we will be the only people who have the restored record which is to be a sign of the divinity of our claim to the convincing of Jew and Gentile alike. Thus fortified and possessed of the power of Israel's God we will be enabled, under God, to reclaim Judah and recall the Gentiles.

GOD CONCERNED.

But my brother, my sister, before that great day shall come to this church it is necessary that we sense our responsibility before God, and make ourselves ready to receive the light that he desires to bestow upon us. And let us remember that not only are the ministers of this church concerned with reference to this matter; that not only are the Saints who try to live worthy before God, and who receive of the light of his Spirit concerned with reference to this matter; but that God and Christ are anxiously concerned that we shall be faithful and make that preparation on our part which shall bring to us the divine favor and inspiration of God, which we so sorely need.

We have the book; we shall have it more abundantly by and by. We see Israel gathering back; we see Jerusalem inhabited as towns without walls. We have the inspiration of the Spirit with us. We have witnessed to the world; we have lifted the warning voice; we have preached the gospel as a means of preparation in making ready for the coming of Christ, when the bursting clouds of heaven shall reveal him. We shall some day preach with greater power, sustained by the divine witnessing of the restored record. Seeing that all these things known to us are to come to pass, and that upon us rests the burden of preparation, in the language of the Apostle Peter, What manner of people ought we to be in all holy conversation and godliness?

I should not be satisfied this morning to preach only the fact of the coming of Christ. Were that all I could do I would be disappointed indeed. If I shall have been able to bring to you anew the conviction that you individually are among the chosen people of God, unto whom have been delivered this great work of preparation, I shall feel that this effort has not been in vain.

Let me urge again that God is concerned with reference to this work on our part. The offering of Judah and Jerusalem shall be pleasant unto the Lord. So shall the Lord be pleased with our righteous service unto him. On the other hand, he is displeased when we fail to render that service. He is not displeased as we are displeased when men do not serve us as we desire, when we have not received that which we think we should have received; God is displeased not because violation on our part brings loss to him, but he is displeased, he is grieved because it brings great loss to us.

JESUS WEPT.

To impress us with the thought in mind I know of no more striking instance than the time when Christ wept over the city. At different times when Christ was among us he wept and was moved with sorrow. As Christ, Emmanuel, God with us, one of the Godhead, he was grieved and moved upon by those influences which beset men. Under the consciousness that Judah had rejected the counsel of God, had set at naught the work of the Messiah, and in consequence was to be set aside as the chosen people of God, suffering the loss incident to their rejection by the Father, Jesus wept.

When Christ weeps with the sisters of Lazarus we behold in him a friend and a brother. We draw nigh to him that we may receive from him that expression of love and sympathy that we need in our infirmities and troubles.

Jesus is sorrowful in the garden. In contemplation of the agony of the cross he is all but overcome with the trial of waiting and struggling alone. In this time of his deep distress we would that we might draw nigh to him in order that we might minister to him out of the depths of our sympathy in his behalf.

But, my friends, when Jesus Christ weeps over that city we stand aside in awe of his great sorrow, in reverence for his divinity; we dare not approach him. He is weeping there over the city, not because he has been set aside, but because Israel has set herself aside from the promise God has made, because Israel now is left without hope. They stoned the prophets, they have rejected the Messiah, the hour of his crucifixion is nigh, and the hour of their destruction approacheth.

Israel was not condemned alone because they rejected Christ as the Messiah, but because they also rejected the final warning and opportunity that God extended to them. Consequently Christ was heavy in spirit. We leave him at this time to sorrow alone. We have no consolation that we might bring to him. It is a time when gods weep, and when men have no power to comfort.

When the Spirit of God in the meetings of the Saints says to us that the Spirit is grieved, this grief of Christ's reverts to my mind. At these times I turn my investigation inward to see whether or no there is that in my life that would cause the heavens to weep.

Permit me to say on behalf of my brethren that the greatest heaviness that can come to a man of God in this world is to have wrought to the best of his understanding, after seeking God diligently in fervent prayer, and then to have the people set aside that which he has tried to do in humility of soul. When men feel that grief, that heaviness of spirit, they are able to sense in a measure what Christ felt when he wept over the city. Would that we might all sense this feeling of sorrow, that our lives might be ordered in a way more saintly.

PLEASING GOD.

Let us remember that God is pleased when we are righteous; that the heavens will smile upon us in the day of our worthiness; that the Father will bestow upon us, when we shall have made ourselves ready to receive it, that portion of divine grace that will enable us to perform faithfully and well our part in the work of preparation.

Let us, therefore, be heedful of the admonition of the Apostle Paul in the fourth chapter of the Hebrew letter, the fourteenth verse: "Let us hold fast our profession." This is our profession; this is our first work; this is the thing that God asks us first to do: "Seek ye first to build up the kingdom of God." If we hold fast to that profession, performing faithfully and without hesitancy our part, God in his own time will demonstrate to all men the fact that we have been with and have learned of him.

---

GRACELAND COLLEGE.

We realize that the church is interested in the work of the college, and has a right to know how it is progressing. Three young people have been baptized since the beginning of the year. The educational work is on a firm basis, and good work of a practical nature is being done.

Some rumor has been permitted to spread to the effect that the State University of Iowa would not accept our credits in history. We have a most emphatic denial of this rumor from Doctor Wilcox, dean of liberal arts of the State University of Iowa. Students will be received there as well as in other colleges, on graduation from the college preparatory course. This has occurred this fall, as well as in previous years. Students who graduate from Graceland College are admitted to graduate schools elsewhere, as well as to the State University of Iowa, and are permitted to do post graduate work. This is true this year as well as of previous years. Students who go to other colleges in the middle of their under-graduate work will be accepted for advanced standing, subject to their making good in the department. At the State University of Iowa, and some of the other universities, if they do not wish to continue work in the department they will be admitted to advanced standing and be given full credit on satisfactory examination.

This is not greatly different from the basis on which students are accepted by the State University from other colleges and universities, including those of undoubted first rank. There is a difference in the arrangement of the different courses of work at the leading universities. This difference is radical, so students desiring to take further work in other colleges will have their work here arranged and outlined on that basis, so that they may be prepared to carry on the exact work they wish, and in the institution they prefer. Standards of work must be maintained, and thorough work done. This not only for the credit of the college, but also for the benefit of students.

We have a faculty of marked ability, each one of whom could get more money elsewhere, and who are working on a basis of personal service and self-sacrifice.

Without losing sight of the necessity and value of the intellectual training, the fact is also kept clearly in mind, that education means development of the whole man—the unfolding. So in athletics and in work, the physical being is taken into consideration in accordance with the usual procedure of institutions of learning. But here, in addition, there is a deep sense of reverence and spiritual life among the young people.

Financially, a great many of the students have come needing help. We have continued applications from those who desire to work their way through, but we have not sufficient work for all. Many of them are loath to borrow money, as they have a horror of going into debt. It is a continued problem since "the girls' dormitory is full," as we easily could have had a number more students if we could have provided work for them. And they are young people who must have such help as this or they can not secure an education.

On account of the collection to reduce the debts of the church, no extra effort was made on the endowment in July; and probably for similar reasons but a relatively small amount has been received on College Day collection. Lamoni has given in money some $700 and in goods $200 more, and has promised very nearly an equal amount before the first of February, a total of sixteen to seventeen hundred dollars; while from the rest of the church the receipts of College Day collection at the college have been but a little more than $1,000, and the endowments about the same.

The year was started with a very heavy indebtedness, and although it is somewhat reduced at present, this has been done at the expense of money that is needed for present administration. By the approval of the Presiding Bishop and Board of Trustees, Elder J. W. Wight is making an earnest effort to raise the money to pay off the college debt. If each one does his share this can be done. And what better time is there for devoting a portion of our means to the work of the church of God, than at this Christmas season?

Yours for the common cause,
S. A. BURGESS.

---

Nothing worth while in this world is ever done without this uncompromising spirit, undaunted by opposition, determined upon victory. Every truth invites opposition, contempt, contumely; but if it really be truth, it is worth fighting for. Remember this, my fellow workers, and fight on!—Doctor W. C. Abbott.

Original Articles

ZION, THE PURE IN HEART.

There is a condition which honest souls are seeking, and perfect rest to such souls can never be secured until this condition sought for is attained. The same conditions of the faculties of sight demand a view of him whose offspring we are, and in whose image we are made. This sight is promised by the Savior in the following beautiful language: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Associated with this, God says, "For this is Zion, the pure in heart." This fully establishes the fact that those who are of Zion shall see God, without which view the creation of man will not be fully satisfied.

The evident longing in all to view the beautiful has been in a majority of cases misdirected by reason of a lack of proper education, and thus our concept of the beautiful is distorted. The willingness to gratify our desires and longings on the part of those influenced by the spirit of him who is interested in misdirecting, is manifest in most every direction; and time and money are profusely spent to behold the beautiful thus provided. The more people interest themselves in the provisions thus made, the more intense is that longing for something new and strange; and such longings grow on us in trying to gratify the lusts of the eyes when not governed by the Spirit of God.

We represent in our bodily form the image and likeness of God; and our vision, governed by carnality, desires to continually view the form thus represented in our bodies, the most beautiful in material form. The more corrupted our vision, the more we, in a social way, are given to display this form by way of fashion, and to feast our eyes upon the form thus displayed. The most attractive force in the playhouses is the display of the bodily form in both men and women, represented in the most attractive way. From this latter fact we have a concession by even the corrupted and corrupting that there is no material form more beautiful than the human body. This establishes the fact that that which is like God is the most beautiful of all that exists.

There is a wise purpose discovered in the fact that man is in the image of God, for we have ever before us the one who needs and for whom, when we minister to him, we show our love; and in doing this we are in the service of God. This conclusion is supported by Christ's explanation of the first and second commandments, representing love to God and love to one's neighbor, in which he says the second, love to thy neighbor, is like unto the first, love to God.

All images made of wood, stone, or metal are a poor representation of the true and living God. Man is the image we should look upon with an eye to serve, and to perfect in said image the beautiful, and not to gratify a carnal desire within ourselves. God has provided the law governing the right manner and spirit in which to look upon this image. The world has lost both the manner and spirit. God desires that we shall be satisfied to look upon his image for pure purposes. In his loving commands he has directed the manner; and his people, Zion's children, are chosen and should be qualified to be examples and lights to the world, presenting to them something that will draw them to have a right conception and love for the beautiful, instead of being drawn by what the world is furnishing.

These images of God, seen with the natural eye, should represent the beautiful character of the divine; and this we will do if we are the pure in heart. This condition is suggested by the inspired statement of the Apostle Peter, in which he says that the great and precious promises God has made to man are made that we might be partakers of the divine nature. These images of God become more beautiful the more of the divine nature we see represented in them.

How much more satisfying it is to look upon one of our fellow men and see continually shining out of his very existence this beautiful nature. More beautiful is this than pads, powders, and paints, with which many try to adorn their bodies to be seen and admired of men, which make them outwardly appear more attractive, while inwardly there may be deformity and hideousness represented by evil habits, ill dispositions, and impure desires.

However deformed the body, or emaciated the appearance, yet when there shines out purity of heart and beauty of character, the person becomes an attractive force. And the drawing influence of such a life will affect society many times more beneficially than will a beautiful body which incloses a deformed and corrupt spirit. Besides, when the spirit claims a body in the resurrection it can only be such a body as will enjoy the glory for which the soul is prepared by the purifying effects of the divine nature.

Zion will consist of only such as are purified from all worldliness, and in whom the nature of God is resident; and the place for Zion will be where all whose tastes for the truly beautiful and pure have been distorted can not abide in enjoyment; for they who can not abide the celestial law can not abide the celestial glory. In these the tastes for the really beautiful and God-like have been corrupted, and to them the views of the images the world has pictured for the beautiful will be desired, instead of a view of that which is divine, as reflected in the lives of the pure in heart by their good works. Hence, instead of being satisfied with Zion and its beauties, their depraved desires will lead them out into places and conditions more to be enjoyed by them, partaking less of the pure in heart. Or they may, to suit these impure and worldly natures, even try to distort the conditions of the places for Zion's children.

God grant that all who have been baptized into Christ may develop tastes for the truly beautiful as represented in God, and bring together in the places appointed for the gathering together of Zion's children more of a representation of the pure and the good, the most beautiful in earth and in heaven, to the elimination of all else. J. F. MINTUN.

• * * * •

THE ENDOWMENT.

Endowment, according to Webster, is "That which is given or bestowed upon the person or mind; gift of nature, talents, natural capacity."

The endowment as considered in this article is the special gift of the power of God to the elders of his church in these latter days.

In Doctrine and Covenants 102: 3, speaking of the needs of his people, God says:

And this can not be brought to pass until mine elders are endowed with power from on high; for, behold, I have prepared a great endowment and blessing to be poured out upon them, inasmuch as they are faithful, and continue in humility before me.

FORMER DAY ENDOWMENT.

The endowment herein referred to is a special gift of the power of God. It is not the gift in the ordinary sense as when one obeys the law of God and receives the Holy Ghost, or the Spirit of God to guide him into all truth, and to be a comfort, etc., but an endowment that goes still further and is for the priesthood.

Christ said to his disciples in Luke 24: 49: "Tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." We have a very brief account of this occasion in Acts 2: 2-4:

And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a mighty, rushing wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

This is the first account we have of an endowment given to the elders of the church of Christ.

LATTER-DAY ENDOWMENT.

The endowment received at Kirtland, Ohio, is the one promised in Doctrine and Covenants, already referred to.

The visions of heaven were open to them also. Some of them saw the face of the Savior, and others were ministered unto by holy angels, and the spirit of prophecy and revelation was poured out in mighty power; and loud hosannas, and glory to God in the highest saluted the heavens, for we all communed with the heavenly hosts.—Church History, vol. 2, p. 17.

President Sylvester Smith saw a pillar of fire rest down and abide upon the heads of the quorum, as we stood in the midst of the twelve.—Ibid., 6: 20.

And many arose and spoke, testifying that they were filled with the Holy Ghost, which was like fire in their bones, so that they could not hold their peace, but were constrained to cry hosannah to God and the Lamb, and glory in the highest.—Ibid., pp. 23, 24.

Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery were blessed with a vision at the dedication of the temple. (Church History, vol. 2, p. 47.)

PURPOSE OF THE ENDOWMENT.

That they themselves may be prepared, and that my people may be taught more perfectly, and have experience, and know more perfectly, concerning their duty, and the things that I require at their hands; and this can not be brought to pass until mine elders are endowed with power from on high.—Doctrine and Covenants 102: 3.

I will pour out my Spirit upon them in the day that they assemble themselves together. And it shall come to pass that they shall go forth into the regions round about, and preach repentance unto the people; and many shall be converted.—Ibid., 44: 2.

And there ye shall be endowed with power from on high, and from thence, whomsoever I will, shall go forth amongst all nations, and it shall be told them what they shall do.—Ibid. 38: 7.

The purpose of the endowment, then, was that the elders might be prepared to fulfill their calling, that they might more perfectly teach the people of God; that they might have experience with the things of God; that they might know more perfectly concerning their duties, and the things which God requires of them. Also that they might be enabled to successfully preach the gospel.

Paul says, 1 Thessalonians 1: 5: "For our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power." The endowment which was received at Pentecost caused them to go out and preach the gospel in power. We are all acquainted with the history of the event.

We believe that God is waiting to give greater power to his elders and his people even now, if they will only come up to the standard he has set for them. We as a people have received great and marvelous blessings from God, beyond that which those outside our ranks are willing to believe. For this reason we should be very thankful, not forgetting that these things only add to our responsibility, as history reveals to us. JOHN ELY.

♦ ♦ ♦ ♦

HOW TO GATHER TO ZION.

The writer, in common with many others, has often observed that disappointment and loss have sometimes come to the Saints when they have gathered to one of the stakes, or to the country contiguous thereto. Two things have been the special cause of such an unfortunate result.

First, a failure to understand the law that governs in this very important part of the Lord's work.

Second, an unwillingness on the part of some to obey the law when it is pointed out to them.

Without claiming superior wisdom over others who have written or taught in public or private, the writer will seek to put together some thoughts suggested by the law that may help the reader to avoid some of the difficulties above referred to.

There are two very important features of the work that will always command the special attention of the membership,—the missionary work and that of the building up of Zion. No greater work was ever committed to a people than is intrusted to the church in this dispensation, truly a "Marvelous work and wonder." The organization of the ministry of the church is very elaborate, very compact, for the purpose of carrying on the ministerial work. The law is very positive in its instruction in regard to who should be selected as representatives of the church, and in regard to the manner of life they should lead in public and in private. Before the church was organized the Lord spoke to Joseph Knight and others with reference to the kind of people who might be useful in building up his work, as follows:

Behold, I speak unto you, and also to all those who have desires to bring forth and establish this work; and no one can assist in this work, except he shall be humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity, being temperate in all things whatsoever shall be intrusted to his care.—Doctrine and Covenants 11: 4.

That the ministry might be further qualified for their work we have the following instruction:

Teach ye diligently and my grace shall attend you, that you may be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel, in all things that pertain unto the kingdom of God, that is expedient for you to understand; of things both in heaven, and in earth, and under the earth; things which have been; things which are; things which must shortly come to pass; things which are at home; things which are abroad; the wars and perplexities of the nations; and the judgments which are on the land; and a knowledge also of countries, and of kingdoms, that ye may be prepared in all things when I shall send you again, to magnify the calling whereunto I have called you, and the mission with which I have commissioned you.—Doctrine and Covenants 85: 21. See also Doctrine and Covenants 85: 36; 90: 12.

Concerning the character of the men to do the ministerial work, the Lord has instructed in the following manner:

In making these selections the presidents of seventy should confer with the several quorums before so selecting, and be guided by wisdom and the spirit of revelation, choosing none but men of good repute.—Doctrine and Covenants 120: 10.

The above instruction was given for the guidance of the council of seven presidents in selecting men for seventies who should devote all their time to missionary work.

The following was given in regard to the habits of the men who should represent the church as ambassadors for Christ.

The elders and men of the church should be of cheerful heart and countenance among themselves and in their intercourse with their neighbors and men of the world, yet they must be without blame in word and deed. It is therefore not seemly that they indulge in loud and boisterous speech, or in the relating of coarse and vulgar stories, or those in which the names of their God and their Redeemer are blasphemed. Men of God, who bear the vessels of the Lord, be ye clean in your bodies and in your clothing; let your garments be of a sober character and free from excess of ornamentation. Avoid the use of tobacco and be not addicted to strong drink in any form, that your counsel to be temperate may be made effectual by your example.—Doctrine and Covenants 119: 3.

In harmony with the above instructions the church will not send out missionaries who are addicted to the use of tobacco, or liquor, or who avoid the payment of debts they have contracted; neither will the church knowingly permit men to remain in her service who will not continue to maintain a high standard of morals.

The building up of Zion is a great and a very important work. It is not something originating with the Latter Day Saints, it must come to pass in order to fulfill what the prophets in both the Bible and the Book of Mormon have foretold. Some of the latter-day revelations give us light on the importance of the question. We will quote from a few of them:

And now, behold, if Zion do these things, she shall prosper and spread herself and become very glorious, very great, and very terrible; and the nations of the earth shall honor her, and shall say, Surely Zion is the city of our God; and surely Zion can not fall, neither be moved out of her place, for God is there, and the hand of the Lord is there, and he hath sworn by the power of his might to be her salvation, and her high tower; therefore verily thus saith the Lord, Let Zion rejoice, for this is Zion, the pure in heart.—Doctrine and Covenants 94: 5.

And it shall come to pass that the righteous shall be gathered out from among all nations, and shall come to Zion singing, with songs of everlasting joy.—Doctrine and Covenants 45: 14.

In Doctrine and Covenants 100: 3, we are informed that the power of God will be made manifest in the redemption of Zion, and that Christ and the holy angels will assist in the work. The following verses contain much valuable information on the subject: Doctrine and Covenants 45: 13; 64: 8; 98: 4; 108: 3, 4.

Another very important matter in connection with the redemption of Zion is the assignment of stewardships and the allotment of inheritances under the law of Christ. The writer will not attempt an explanation of this part of the work of the church, but will refer the reader to the teaching as found in Doctrine and Covenants 42: 9; 72: 1; 70: 3; 72: 4; 42: 19; 51: 1, and also to a book published by the bishopric of the church by direction of the General Conference of 1910, for sale at thirty-five cents by Bishop E. L. Kelley, entitled, The Law of Christ and its Fulfillment. Every person in the church should read this book. It is an authoritative statement of the law from those whom the Lord recognizes as teachers of the same. The receiving of stewardships and inheritances according to the law of Christ will be a very sacred obligation, as holy as our covenant made by baptism, for the Lord has commanded them both, and to trifle with them after receiving them would be a sin that God could not look on as a small matter, but, as he has said, he will hold us accountable both in time and eternity. (Doctrine and Covenants 72: 1.)

In the light of these facts we learn that the building up of Zion is no trifling matter, but one of great importance. We have learned that the Lord and the church are very careful about who are sent out as missionaries to represent the church. Is it unreasonable to believe that the same care should be exercised in regard to the work of Zion, and those who should gather within her borders? There is one thing that makes it of special importance that great care should be exercised in this matter. Should men of the ministry be negligent of their duty or indiscreet in their conduct, they can be removed from their ministry. Not so with persons who dwell in Zion; they can do many unwise things that will injure the Lord's work, and none can interfere with them; they can not be removed from Zion. Under the civil law a person has a right to reside wherever it pleases him so to do, and none can molest him, so long as he lives within the law.

The Lord has given us instructions how to gather to Zion, and by obedience to his counsel we will avoid most of the difficulties that many run into. The following was given for our guidance as far back as 1831:

But verily thus saith the Lord, Let not your flight be in haste, but let all things be prepared before you; and he that goeth, let him not look back, lest sudden destruction shall come upon him.—Doctrine and Covenants 108: 4.

The same advice is given later, in 1909:

Counsel has already been given to those gathering into the regions round about to consult with the elders and the bishops before removing into those regions, that such removal may be accomplished through the having of all things prepared before them who seek to remove and become resident in the regions round about.—Doctrine and Covenants 128: 4.

What is the preparation required of us by the Lord? There seem to be two very important things that are needful for that preparation.

First, a spiritual preparation. It will take the same kind of people to build up Zion as it does to do the missionary work; they must be "humble and full of love, having faith, hope, and charity." (Doctrine and Covenants 11: 4.) If we are covetous we will pollute our inheritance, and the Lord will not permit us to remain. (Doctrine and Covenants 98: 3.) The idler is not a proper resident for Zion. He should not go there. (Doctrine and Covenants 68: 4.) Those who are willing to keep God's commands, live upright and honest lives, and help in the work where they live, are spiritually fit to gather to Zion.

Second: A temporal preparation is necessary. Those coming to Zion must have some way of earning a living, unless old age or physical infirmity prevents them from laboring. Because a person is poor is not a sufficient barrier to keep him out, provided the conditions above referred to are complied with.

A brother wishing to become a missionary under General Conference appointment makes application to the Quorum of Twelve; and by them his record is looked into. They ascertain his fitness, especially his fitness of character, before he is given an appointment. Is there any just reason why the same care should not be used in selecting helpers for Zion? The Lord thought it was wise and proper that great care should be used in this part of his work; and in addition to what we have referred to above, he has given further advice and tells us we will be wise if we pay heed to it. It is found in Doctrine and Covenants 72: 5, wherein he advises us to secure a certificate from a bishop or from three elders. I will venture the opinion that such a certificate should contain the information that the person receiving it has been faithful to his duties in financial matters, helping the general and local church and the missionary who may have sojourned with him, and other information that will indicate that he may be a useful and worthy addition to Zion.

Further instruction was given as follows: "For according to the law every man that cometh up to Zion must lay all things before the bishop in Zion." (Doctrine and Covenants 72: 3.) The presiding Bishopric interpret this to mean the making out of an inventory to place on file in their office, which will inform them of the party's financial condition, income, occupation, and number of children in the family, if any. This information is very necessary for the bishopric to possess so that they may be in a position to advise and assist parties who may contemplate moving to Zion. This should not be considered a hardship, the missionaries do as much.

Going to Zion should not be looked upon as a holiday affair, or as going on a summer picnic. It is stern duty, often accompanied by sacrifice, both financial and otherwise. Many will go because they are commanded, or appointed to do so (Doctrine and Covenants 72: 5), leaving pleasant homes and lifelong friends. And why not? It is as much the duty for Saints going to Zion to make sacrifice, if necessary, as it is for the missionary and his family to do so. It is needful that the missionary go to the field to which the church has appointed him; so should Saints be willing to go to help build up Zion, according to the law and under the direction of the Bishopric. It is not wise to ignore the law in these important matters. A missionary can not appoint himself to his field of labor; neither should those contemplating going to Zion act altogether according to their own wisdom. The Lord has told us that we need not expect to enjoy the blessings that are promised to his people who dwell in Zion until we pay heed to the advice and direction of the Bishopric in these matters. (Doctrine and Covenants 129: 8.)

I will venture to make the following suggestion to those who contemplate moving to either one of the stakes. When you have come to a time in your life when you believe it is of importance to yourself and family to give consideration to this important question, write a letter to the presiding bishop of the church, send the required certificate and an inventory of your property; tell him about your occupation, your children, and all information that will help him to understand your condition so that he may advise you for your good, and the good of your family, and in a way that will further the cause of Zion. If the law is carefully observed in these matters it will save our people from many sorrows, and often from great financial loss. The bishopric has the responsibility before God of advising the Saints according to the law, and they will have to answer to him for their conduct. The Saints should be as careful about locating in Zion as the missionaries are in entering the itinerant ministry. If we are in doubt on any points of the law, we should seek advice from the bishopric; we do so from the missionary in charge when in our field of labor.

EDWARD RANNIE.

Of General Interest

PREHISTORIC AMERICAN DENTISTS.

Professor M. H. Saville, of Columbia University, who returned recently from an exploring expedition in Ecuador, brought back with him some skulls of a people who seem to have been superior to the Aztecs; in fact, equal to the Egyptians in some respects. Some of the teeth in these skulls, the Pathfinder states, were filled with gold and cement, indicating that the art of dentistry had reached a high degree of perfection in Ecuador possibly more than a thousand years ago. The borings in the teeth indicated that the instrument used did the work as well as those of the modern dentist.

These gold-filled teeth are the most valuable feature of his finds, in Professor Saville's estimation.

In his explorations in Mexico he has found teeth filled with cement and stone for ornamental effect, but never before has he seen prehistoric teeth filled with gold. The gold in these teeth appears to have been used less for ornament than for preserving them, because it had been applied from the inside so as to show but little from the outside. Other teeth were found which, after coming loose in their sockets, had been fastened to their more stable neighbor by means of gold bands much as is done in modern dentistry.

The people found living in those parts were unable to give any information in regard to the fillings. Professor Saville infers that the owners of the teeth must have been persons of the highest class, and that they were possessed of a remarkable degree of courage to undergo the process of drilling and nerve-killing without the use of cocaine or other anesthetics. Gold in that country was comparatively plentiful, but the fact that some of the people had their teeth filled with cement indicates that only the aristocrats used gold for that purpose.

In addition to the skulls containing the filled teeth, Professor Saville brought back two beautiful clay modeled heads about the size of an ordinary orange. These were colored a light hue, and it is thought they may have been made so in imitation of the complexion of the Ecuadoreans of the period of the artist. The features of the faces are delicately molded and show much expression. The professor says that he has never seen more skillful work of the sort anywhere.—Toronto World.

• * * * *

INTERNATIONAL HARMONY.

Many men are of the opinion that the present tendency is toward international harmony and disarmament. Among these is Viscount Haldane, Lord Chancellor of England, who, before the American Bar Association, at Montreal, is reported as having said:

There is in every nation, beside the actual code of state law, a standard of conduct recognized by the community, a general will and spirit of the whole body of men, a system of customary conduct—what the Germans call Sittlichkeit. No man will lightly transgress this unwritten code, and its influence is as strong as it is universal. The general will represents what is greater than the individual will. . . . There are few observers who have not been impressed with the wonderful unity and concentration of purpose which an entire nation may display—above all, in a period of crisis.

If this is so within a nation can it be so as between nations? Can nations form a group or community among themselves within which a habit of looking to common ideals may grow up sufficiently strong to develop a general will and to make the binding power of these ideals a reliable sanction for their obligations to each other?

There is, I think, nothing in the real nature of nationality that precludes such a possibility. . . . The world is probably a long way off from the abolition of armaments and the peril of wars. And yet there is growing up a disposition to believe that it is good, not only for all men but for all nations, to consider their neighbors' point of view as well as their own. There is apparent at least a tendency to seek for a higher standard of ideals in international relations. At times a common interest among nations gives birth to a social habit of thought and action which in the end crystallizes into a treaty.

In the year which is approaching, a century will have passed since the United States and the people of Canada and Great Britain terminated a great war by the Peace of Ghent. And now we have lived for nearly a hundred years, not only in peace, but also, I think, in process of coming to a deepening and yet more complete understanding of each other. It seems to me that within our community there is growing an ethical feeling which has something approaching to the binding quality of which I have been speaking. Men may violate the obligations which that feeling suggests, but by a vast number of our respective citizens it would not be accounted decent to do so. For the nations in such a group as ours to violate these obligations would be as if respectable neighbors should fall to blows because of a difference of opinion. We may disagree on specific points and we probably shall, but the differences should be settled in the spirit and in the manner in which citizens usually settle their differences.

This occasion has seemed to me significant of something beyond even its splendid hospitality. I have interpreted it, and I think not wrongly, as the symbol of a desire that extends beyond the limits of this assemblage. I mean the desire that we should steadily direct our thoughts to how we can draw into closest harmony the nations of a race in which all of us have a common pride. If that be now a far-spread inclination, then indeed may the people of three great countries say to Jerusalem: "Thou shalt be built," and to the temple, "Thy foundation shall be laid."

• * * * *

PREHISTORIC AMERICAN CIVILIZATION.

William E. Towne is reported in the Toronto World as saying in the Nautilus:

Our thoughts regarding the ancient races of mankind are tinged with smugness. We are apt to feel sorry for the poor old Egyptians, Chaldeans, Assyrians, and Incas.

Museums and travelers' records, however, reveal some interesting things concerning the ancients. They were not so far behind the times as we imagine. Indeed, in some ways we seem to be just catching up with them. And then, our pride should not lead us into forgetfulness of the fact that many of these early races were highly civilized while our Anglo-Saxon ancestors were living in caves, using stones and clubs for weapons, wearing a few skins for clothing and disporting themselves generally like some barbarians.

It seems that the ancient ruling race of Peru, the noble Incas, educated their sons in many of those things which we consider the essentials of civilization.

For instance, they were systematically taught the rites, precepts, and ceremonies of their religion, the art of government law, to read and write their substitute for our modern hand writing, to compute time, to converse fluently, the art of music and poetry, the sciences of philosophy and astrology. They were also taught somewhat of the care of a household and the bringing up of children. Evidently the Incas believed the father was even more responsible than the mother for the education of the child.

No, indeed, wisdom was not born with the Anglo-Saxon race alone. Perhaps it won't harm us to remember this.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Woman's Auxiliary.

(Eugenics Department.)

Prenatal Influence.

In the first creation of this soul, God seemed to have acted without the cooperation of the father and mother, but in the education—which is a second creation—God reserves to them the highest place. He appoints them the visible ministers of his providence. It is his desire that children should owe to their parents, not only life, health, and fortune, but, likewise, virtue, wisdom, the science of life and piety.

The first duty of parents is to study the grandeur of their calling, the immensity of their obligations, and to reflect seriously before God on the subject.

The most befitting feelings which one can or should have when thinking or preparing the possibilities of a child should be the profound humility of one's own fitness for the task; a genuine respect for the innocence and glorious possibilities of one's charge; and an uttermost confidence and trust in God to see one through with the task with which he has intrusted us; through a realization of the dignity of your vocation and the grandeur of your power.

Banish from henceforth, from both your thoughts and feelings, anything that is not pure and elevating. You are no longer one, for you are two. How well it would be if instead of the grumblings and complaint one so often hears (and perhaps acts) during this time of waiting, it were looked upon as but too short a period for the preparation needed.

No woman is fit to be a mother who has not trained herself beforehand for her child's birth (how many do?), because not only is the duty bequeathed to a mother of forming healthily, and so far as in her lies, perfectly the body of her unborn child, but likewise is the power then given to her of directing in a great measure both its nature and its mind. Thus, the duties of motherhood commence even before birth, the good of education in a great measure depending upon how these earlier stages have been tended and developed.

At this stage the education of the child may mean the education of the mother, for if she intends to properly fulfill her part to herself and to her child, she must go into training, watching carefully over her every mood and action. Self is hard to govern, but unless she obtains a mastery over it she will be unfit to govern others. How important, then, that one have entire possession of one's self; and this can be had only by the habitual exercise of self-control.

It is by no means an easy task to accomplish this, to be ready with sympathy and kindness for all, regardless of how one may be feeling. This steadfastness, this never-failing, never-changing evenness of temper, so much desired, religion alone can give, that religion which should and must be the foundation, mainstay and prop of future happiness for all.

The first step towards making the baby healthy is to be glad he is coming. Remember he did not ask to come. Be happy you and God are forming a soul to live throughout all eternity, a human being to be a blessing to mankind. Yours is a great and wonderful work.

Physical conditions and mental attitude have a tremendous effect upon an unborn child. Health and mind must therefore be guarded.

So long as human minds were interested only in romance and were satisfied with random guessing at the possibilities in heredity, a science of eugenics would never have developed.

Those children will have the best chance in life whose parents come from families that are at least sound physically and mentally, who love and desire their children and who, in harmony of life, in the vigor of manhood and womanhood live simple, wholesome lives, with much of the out-of-doors, who prepare for their coming and guard with loving care the developing life. These are the mothers and fathers worthy of honor. These are the well-born children. This is eugenics.

Young men and women begin the task of rearing children without ever having given a thought to the matter. If we should stop to consider for a few moments the effect of this ignorance of parents, simply upon their own children, to say nothing of the effect upon the Nation, you would begin to realize the importance of a system of education which would prepare all candidates for matrimony and for the responsibility of parenthood.

A cheerful disposition is essential to the happiness of the mother, the home and the best interest of the coming child. Right-thinking, good thoughts, and noble aspirations should be constantly entertained. The reading of good literature is a means of help.

The mental powers exercised and developed during pregnancy are the ones that will predominate in the mind of the child. It has been said that it is a hundred fold easier to give a child right tendencies through prenatal influences than to educate him later. Upon the mother the Creator has bestowed great responsibilities. Upon intelligent, trained, and conscientious motherhood rests in a large degree the progress of the race.

It is possible to bequeath to the unborn tendencies toward virtue and manliness. It is race improvement by and through prenatal influence.

The prospective mother should be free from worry and should live hygienically and normally during this period. The most important things to observe physically are nourishing, non-constipating diet, cleanly habits, bathing, and comfortably fitting apparel. Exercise either as work or recreation should be regularly taken and in sufficient quantity to keep the blood in healthy circulation.

The environments of the coming mother are of the highest importance. How can the coming child be properly and fitly mothered in an atmosphere of domestic discord or inharmonious? Too much softening or needless indulgences by the mother during the foetal life is injurious to the mental developing of the child. The supreme thought with every parent should be, I must be just what I desire my children to be, that I may transmit to them only good qualities.

How many young people entering the marriage state ever stop to think of the importance of the step to be taken, of the health of either, of the question of motherhood, and whether or not they are fitted to bring children into the world. Many times these same people who are contemplating matrimony would not knowingly mate even the lower animals, if they actually knew them to be in the same conditions they themselves are or may be in. Few parents understand or take in the importance or the sacredness of the office which they have undertaken, or the consequent responsibility which is theirs, to God, the child, and their fellow men.

With many the fact that they are dealing physically, mentally, and morally with lives is completely overlooked. This trust or stewardship is a sacred one which the almighty God places in the hands of a parent (mother). Not only the Creator, but likewise the child arriving at the age of understanding has a perfect right to examine how that stewardship has been carried out. As ye sow so shall ye reap. If you but realize more, not only the responsibility, but likewise the sanctity of the trust, many a later heartache may be spared, many a wreck averted.

It is, of course, of greatest importance that father and mother be of accord and cooperate at all times.

As has been said, there are some diseases which should have received attention some centuries before the birth of the victims. While we can not begin with our children, by regulating the physique of their grandparents, we can direct our energies to the welfare of the expected child by beginning with the mother.

For all trades and walks of life what preparation and what training do we not see going on around us; whereas, for child training (the most important profession the world holds) we see but little or none. JENNIE M. STUDLEY.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE FIRST THURSDAY IN JANUARY.

Prayer for the church, its priesthood and members, that all may be earnestly engaged in the building up of Zion to the ideal condition of oneness and equality revealed in the revelations to the church. Pray that each member of the church may be clothed with that charity which will lead him to speak evil of no one, but each to regard the reputation of a brother or sister as he regards his own. Pray for greater faith in the church.

Lesson, Doctrine and Covenants 101: 10. Memory verse, 1 Corinthians 12: 13.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYERS.

BRIDGE, OREGON, December 7, 1913.

Dear Sister Salyards: Will you please request the dear sisters of the Prayer Union to pray for me that, if it be God's will, my eyes may be healed and my sight improved. The doctor told me I would go blind, and my sight is failing very fast. But I have faith and confidence that our heavenly Father can heal affliction.

I also ask prayers for a sister who is having much family trouble, because her husband does not belong to the church and opposes her.

Your sister in gospel bonds,
LENA M. E. BAKER.

A letter comes to us from Olton, Texas, requesting prayers for Mr. James Davis of Ashville, North Carolina. He is not of the church. He is a sufferer whose afflictions are so great that it seems at times that death is preferable to existence under these conditions. Fifteen years ago he had typhoid fever, and his present disabled condition is the result. He is scarcely able to use his limbs and is much discouraged, but his mother hopes he may be healed through the power of God in answer to prayer. The sister who sends in this request suggests that some of the Saints living in his vicinity might do him good by visiting him. His number is 158 Park Avenue.

The same sister who writes us this letter asks prayers for a very dear friend of hers, Mrs. Merty Daugherty, who fears she has a cancer on her back. She is the mother of eight children whom she desires to bring up in the paths of righteousness. She has great faith in divine healing, while she is submissive to the Lord's will.

Brother J. J. Miller, of Escatawpa, Mississippi, is afflicted and feels that he needs the fervent prayers of the Saints. He asks those who are willing to fast for him to do so on December 19, until two o'clock in the afternoon. He earnestly desires that his request may be observed.

Letter Department

AVERY, TEXAS, November 18, 1913.

Editors Herald: Though I am young in the faith, I thought my experience since first recognizing that I had a Master to serve might be of interest to HERALD readers.

I joined the Baptist Church. I thought this was the only church that was right; not because I knew any of its principles or doctrines, but my father and mother were Baptists; in fact, all of my people were Baptists; so I thought it my duty to become a Baptist, and I did so. This was in August, 1903. I always had a desire to do right, and did so to the best light I had.

In a year or two after this Brother E. A. Erwin and another brother or two came to the home of one of the Saints near our place and held a meeting. They came once or twice a year and held meetings in our community. I attended, as did many others. I did not care much about it, not having any idea that I would become a Saint. I read the Bible some, and thought I knew what was right. But alas, I did not have any light. I did not know what the Baptist doctrine was then, but I wanted to find out. I did not know it was unsound until Brother W. M. Aylor came to our community in 1909. This was the first sermon I ever heard this man preach. His subject was "Sound doctrine." It seemed to be a little too sound for some of the good Baptist brothers; in fact, he did not get to preach any more of it in their house.

The Saints built an arbor and had meetings there. Here, by the help of the Lord, he could preach sound doctrine, and he did so. This is where I got the idea that all churches were not right, and that it did make a difference which church you belong to. This is the first time I became interested. I believed the Saints had the truth, but I stayed with my Baptist faith.

I was married April 7, 1912. It was not long after this until my wife wanted to be baptized, but I would not hear to it. I wanted to make some money, and felt that everybody in the business world would be against me if I became a "Mormon." But on August 16, 1913, I gave up the fight, and wife and I were both baptized by Brother W. M. Aylor.

I am now glad I am a Saint, and tell it everywhere I go. I was elected superintendent of the Sunday school here about a month after I was baptized.

A. L. CRUCE.

STONINGTON, MAINE, November 20, 1913.

Editors Herald: I believe I can say truthfully that the gospel is just as dear to me as when, by my own voluntary act, I accepted the same and became a part of the body of Christ. There are many things in this life we are not able to understand; but I still have confidence in him who has said, Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. Gracious promise to mankind! But how is it to be realized? Only by a perfect obedience to a perfect law, which emanates from a perfect God. But I ask, Are we doing this?

Two years ago I was called upon to take part in the active missionary work, but lo, I had an excuse to offer. Was it because I had married a wife? No, I already had one, and don't believe in having two at the same time. It must have been the few acres of land. Another year rolled away, and I was approached again, but at this time my heart was bleeding, and summoned diffidence and illiteracy for a possible excuse. But I find that procrastination is a poor teacher. If I have tarried another has gone, and will get his reward.

The district conference convened the 15th instant. The prayer meeting was edifying and the preaching spiritual indeed. Brother Ebeling on Sunday afternoon, preached an excellent sermon from the text: "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the way thereof is the way of death." It seemed that the brother cleared up every objectionable point, and presented the gospel in a clear and strong argument. May the Lord bless his work to the end whereunto he has sent it.

I am inclosing $2.50 to renew my subscription for the HERALD and Journal of History. I don't see how any of the Saints can get along without the HERALD, at least. If mine is lost through the mail I have to borrow one.

The Saints and community at large were made sad by the sudden departure from this life of our beloved and much esteemed sister, Charity Eaton. Her home was always a home for the missionaries. I have heard her say many times; "The door is unlocked, and the latchstring is on the outside." I heard a person say he believed she would have been five thousand dollars better off, had she not fed so many of the Saints. But Jesus has said, Inasmuch as you do it unto one of these my brethren, you have done it unto me. Verily, she shall have her reward. The funeral was largely attended, though the heavens were veiled in darkness, and rain fell in torrents. The sermon was ably handled by Elder J. J. Billings, of Little Deer Isle, a veteran of fifty years in gospel labor.

The Saints are looking forward to a series of meetings to be conducted by Brethren H. O. Smith and F. J. Ebeling; we truly are in need of such. After visiting among the Saints a few days ago, I came home with a feeling of mingled joy and sadness—joy because I found some strong as the rockbound coast of Maine, sadness because others had no foundation.

Three months after I embraced the gospel I was elected branch president, and have been sustained in that office ever since. Although I with other officers have worked hard, there are many things that cause a shade of sadness, and even a blush of shame.

Praying for the welfare and onward march of the work, I am,

Yours in bonds,

GEORGE H. KNOWLTON.

VINTON, OHIO, November 24, 1913.

Editors Herald: We are not sleeping, but are warning our neighbors. If all Saints can not preach, they can send in fifty cents or one dollar and have the Herald Publishing House preach for them. They can secure tracts, and distribute them among their neighbors. Thus are they helping the Lord's work along in two ways; helping the Herald Publishing House, and warning their neighbor.

We gave out sixteen tracts in just a few minutes, so you see what we are doing. The ministry should not be surprised if we call on some one or more of them to come and try to get the people interested. Some are interested now, but I think we can do better by securing some tracts, going to their meetings and giving them to the people.

We have the good will of the people here, and I think good can be done if we do our part. Asking the prayers of all the Saints, and praying for the redemption of Zion, we are,

Your brother and sister,

EDWIN E. AND ADA T. LAMBERT.

WILLOUGHBY, OHIO, November 24, 1913.

Editors Herald: In the SAINTS' HERALD during the spring of 1912 was published a vision which I sent you under date of January 2; in which I saw three buildings, one above another. Great crowds appeared and vanished. They were accompanied by three red beasts, which struggled, fell and remained down. I requested interpretation and a brother from Oakland, California, answered me, referring to Zechariah 13: 7-9, that being used as a basis for his answer. However, the letter he sent me was destroyed, and I hereby request him to send to my address another copy and also his present address, as I desire to correspond with him.

Yours very truly,

JOHN A. STEVENSON.

R. F. D. 2, Care Saints' Home.

TORONTO, ONTARIO, December 10, 1913.

BISHOP A. CARMICHAEL, Lamoni, Iowa.

Dear Brother: I received your letter. Always glad to hear from you. Now I wish to ask a favor from you. It is this, Will you announce in the HERALD, that all the book of sermons, in the large form, are sold,—not to send any more orders for them.

Will you also state that Brother Evans has published another book, with but eight sermons in it. The price is fifteen cents each, eight for a dollar, twelve dollars and fifty cents per hundred. I pay express or postage, but not duty.

Will you request the people to order direct from me, as it is a trouble for your office to deal with it.

We are sending sermons by the thousands all over the city, the theater is packed, and people have been turned away in droves each evening after the first night, on which was the worst storm of the year, and yet the main floor and first gallery were full, and some in the top gallery.

We are all well and happy in the work, and we are at it almost night and day.

Yours sincerely,

R. C. EVANS.

UTE, IOWA, November 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: I wish the Saints in Lincoln, Nebraska, would call on Mrs. Edward Pritchard, 1334 O Street. I met her at her husband's mother's funeral. She says she was raised a Roman Catholic, but that they teach much she can not believe. She is disgusted with them. Her little boy, seven years old, goes to the sisters to learn his catechism, and comes home so full of frightful stories that it shocks her, and makes her very nervous. He told me some of the stories, and I don't wonder that it makes her nervous to hear them.

She was pleased with the elder's sermon, and I told her all I could in the short time I had to visit with her. She promised to read our tracts and papers, also to attend our services, if she knew where to go. Her husband also promised to investigate. She is a stranger in Lincoln, and gets lonesome.

This leaves us all fairly well, and strong in the faith once delivered to the Saints.

Your sister,

SADIE BURCH.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, November 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: I wish to tell the Saints what the Lord has done for me since I came into the church. I was baptized when I was but thirteen years of age, August 5, 1906. Not long thereafter I left school and went to stay with a lady by the name of Mrs. Williams. She was a very delicate woman. They were good people, but did not belong to the church.

The Saints here being few in number, our little meetings were held every Sunday at my mother's house, and at one of these meetings our brother told us we all had gifts of some kind. That put me to studying. I wondered if I had any. Every day I prayed to God to make it known to me if he had anything for me to do.

This lady with whom I stayed took very sick, and not knowing what to do for her I thought I would pray for her in silence, which I did. The Lord was so kind he heard and answered my prayer, and she arose to her feet and said, "I am well; what made me better so soon?" I did not tell her what I had done until three weeks had passed. The Lord is always ready to help if we are faithful and go earnestly about it. Not long after this the Lord called her home to wait till the coming of Christ.

A few years passed. I became acquainted with a man a number of years older than myself, not in the church. I wanted some one in the church. I prayed to God that he would help me to tell this man about our work so he could see as I did. He was led to the truth and was baptized.

My husband's father is very sick. He is past seventy years of age. They are not in the church, but wish me to come over every day and pray for him and tell him about our teachings, which I do. He says he feels so much better when I come and pray.

I never have regretted coming into the church, nor am I ashamed of the work. It is my desire to go on so I can meet God, and have a place with him in the sweet by and by. I ask the prayers of every one of the Saints. I never forget his children at any time.

If Brother S. Brown or Brother Jesse Hardin or both of them read this, we wish them to know that we would like to hear from them. We still have a warm spot in our hearts for them.

Your sister in gospel bonds,

MRS. CLARABELL BUSHONG.

82½ TOD AVENUE.

OUTLOOK, MONTANA, November 27, 1913.

Editors Herald: We few Saints have felt isolated. We have recently been blessed by having our Brother R. Newby, of Fair View, Montana, return, bringing with him Brother Moore, district president of Montana, residing near Belgrade, Montana. These brethren organized a Sunday school, which we were very delighted to have done.

They held meetings in our district schoolhouse, also in private homes. The sacrament and prayer meetings were glorious, all feeling a portion of the Spirit. My brother-in-law was ordained to the office of elder, which pleased us all greatly. Now we have our Wednesday night prayer meetings regularly, which helps us all spiritually.

Many think that because they live away from a branch they are to a certain degree forsaken. This is the wrong way to feel, as we know that even though we are only a few if we live prayerfully God will help us, and does do so daily.

We now are eager to have a branch organized so that this good work may go on more rapidly. Many outsiders are eager to hear more of this grand gospel, and we are trying to do what we can to encourage and help them.

Your sister in Christ,

MISS MONTROSE SHALLBETTER.

BELLAIRE, KANSAS, November 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: We moved from Argentine, Kansas, to this part of the Lord's vineyard, eight years ago next March. Being isolated from church privileges and from the Saints we grew very much discouraged. I began praying for the way to be opened up so that an elder might come here to preach.

My prayers were answered when Elder J. D. Shower stopped off here and gave us twenty-two rousing gospel sermons, full of the Spirit of God, plain enough, it seemed to me, to convince anyone of the truthfulness of the angel's message. Many believed, but only one thought it necessary to enter the fold of Christ at this time. It was so new to some that they wanted to investigate further. I hope and pray that they may not put it off too long.

As usual, the Devil is trying to get in his work. He never sleeps upon his arms. It behooves us, therefore, to be very watchful, and also very prayerful.

Brother Shower is a man of God. The work will never suffer in his hands so long as he is in the condition in which he is now occupying. We hope that he and Brother Knisley may be with us another conference year. We have not had the pleasure of meeting Brother Knisley yet, but from all reports we think he is also the right man in the right place.

I know this work is of God. While I have done many things since coming into the church that I should not have done, and have left many things undone that I should have done, yet I am striving in my weak way to come up higher. I crave and need the prayers of all God's Saints, not only for myself, but also for my family.

Ever praying for the redemption of Zion, and that the pure in heart may be gathered in, I remain,

Your sister in Christ,

MRS. SUSAN TURNER.

Extracts from Letters.

Brother Frederick A. Smith is in receipt of a letter from Brother William N. Hill, of Omaha, Nebraska, saying, in part: "Our business meetings and election of officers are all over now. We just had the finest meetings you ever saw, no contentions, everyone seemed to be tuned in perfect harmony with one another; naturally the results were perfect. Our prayer services of late have been very spiritual. We hope that success and good luck will follow you wherever you go, and will bring you back to Omaha in the near future. Brother Mike Peterson is our president."

J. Jaques, 1468 Fallowfield Ave. Pittsburg, Pennsylvania: "The work is progressing nicely here. We had five baptisms last Sunday and a fine social meeting. The Spirit was felt in power in the confirmations. There was scarcely a dry eye in the room. Those baptized were all young people, ranging from nine to sixteen years."

John A. Saxe, San Francisco, California: "We are struggling on in this great city to keep the gospel work moving. Sometimes it is hard work but we hope to do good to some at least."

News from Missions

Society Islands.

RETURN OF THE PUPU PEOPLE.

On Sunday, the 19 inst., the leaders and all of the members of the Heberona Branch, known as the Pupu people, met with the Saints at the Taronia Branch in Papeete, in attendance at the first service which began at eight o'clock. At nine thirty o'clock we all retired to the shores of the Pacific, only a few hundred yards away, and after singing and prayer we had the pleasure and the privilege of leading thirty-eight souls, men and women with the exception of two children, out into the waters of the great Pacific, and baptizing them back into the Reorganized Church.

It was a scene that will not soon fade from memory. There was a large crowd standing upon the shore witnessing this auspicious event, as all of the Saints of the Tahiti District were present, also many Saints from other islands, and outsiders. The day was beautiful. The sun was shining down upon us. All the candidates walked out into the water together and stood in a circle as I baptized. Two old sisters about eighty years of age walked in and out of the water arm in arm, which was indeed a pathetic sight, one being a cripple and having a long stick in her hand to support her, as she was very feeble by reason of age. She is the mother of two of the leaders of the priesthood company, namely, Lui and Pori. She is also the great-, and grandmother to about seventy-five children. The Spirit of the Lord was present in great power, bearing witness of and approving the work done.

Nine of the men were leaders in the Pupu movement, and elders formerly in the church, some of whom were very prominent church workers and missionaries. Lui is a man blessed with extraordinary ability, and is recognized as head man among those people. He is well thought of by their people and by ours. Pori, his brother, another influential man, and Tapu, who was a very efficient worker both in missionary and Sunday school departments, when Brother and Sister Devore were here, were also baptized. The latter was Sister Devore's main support in carrying on the Sunday school work. The other leaders who were baptized were equally efficient in the church work; and all wielded a good influence with the people and are still held in high esteem. All these brethren were reordained, and will be very useful men in this mission, as they seem to be very much in earnest and desirous of making up for lost time.

They truly manifested a true spirit of repentance on the day of their baptism. Happiness and the spirit of love manifested itself in their every movement. They were all confirmed in the afternoon, ten being ordained during the same service. The power of God was in attendance, directing in all that was done, to the joy and comfort of all. Truly it was a day of great rejoicing on the part of the Saints here. It was very touching to see the Saints welcoming these people back. Many embraced each other with a kiss, while tears of joy streamed down their faces.

Some of these leaders have gone to their home islands to use their influence to bring their families and friends back into the church. There are over one hundred of them, including their children, throughout the islands. Brother May, now acting president of the mission, will visit those islands as soon as possible, with a view of inducting them into the church. We have no doubt but that by next April conference nearly all, if not all, will have returned to their Father's house, as all of the leaders with the exception of one are with us, and he has written that he would abide by the decision of the brethren here. So we are glad that the old sore which has been a source of annoyance and trouble in this mission for the past six or seven years is about healed up. We do not anticipate any trouble from the leaders in the future, as they seem very anxious to retrace their steps and to become coworkers with the main body of the church.

We also baptized several women who were very prominent workers in the Pupu movement; one especially, called Sarah. She manifested the spirit of humility, and seemed to realize that she had done wrong. She had been a great worker in years gone by. She is a very attractive and intelligent woman, and will doubtless be a power for good among their race.

Perhaps it would be expedient to give a short sketch as to how these people went astray. About seven or eight years ago a few of them began to hold meetings on the quiet in the woods, with a view to receiving spiritual manifestations. Satan, who is ever ready to deceive, took advantage of this movement, and it was not long until they began to tell around that they had seen wonderful things, especially in visions. Some of these manifestations did not seem to be in harmony with the law. Their attention was called to this fact, and they were counseled by those in charge of the work to desist from holding these secret meetings. This was the beginning of the trouble and it is to be regretted that some of our own brethren who had to deal with this matter did not display the wisdom and love toward these people that should characterize the true Saints of God, hence it is that while these people made grievous mistakes when they permitted themselves to be led astray by false spirits, in a sense a phase of spiritualism, there were grievous mistakes made on the other side also. These people have learned their lesson, and some of them through much suffering. Like the prodigal son, they have returned to their Father's house; he has forgiven them of their past sins and has placed his seal of acceptance upon them. They rejoice and we rejoice because of the goodness of God made manifest to them in leading so many of them back into his true fold. Let us earnestly pray that the remaining ones may also return; let us thank God that the breach is about closed up, we trust for ever.

We have great hopes for the future prosperity of the mission. The people seem united, and with this added force, under the presidency of Brother May, who stands high in the estimation of all, with the assistance of Brother Savage, and with the new missionary help that we are expecting soon from America, we believe the mission will be on a better foundation than ever before. Of course, we don't expect perfection here any more than we do in America. The people here are of like passions and have their peculiar weaknesses and failings, which conditions we expect to see exist until Satan is bound and until Jesus Christ is seated upon David's throne, swaying his scepter over all the world as "King of kings" and "Lord of lords."

On October 28 we organized the Pupu people at Heberona into a branch. The Spirit of the Lord was present in great power, approving of the work done. Two were ordained to the office of teacher and deacon respectively, and several children were blessed. Brother May and myself administered the sacrament to them, at which time the spirit of humility was greatly manifested by them through prayer, song, and testimony, especially. At the organizing of the branch, Lui, their former leader, was unanimously chosen as president. And while it was done without suggestion on our part, we felt he was the proper one to be chosen. We are pleased to state that every other officer of the branch was chosen unanimously, and that the spirit of unity was present and prevailed throughout the entire meeting, which evidenced to us their acceptance to God.

These people are beautifully situated, having considerable land in their possession, covered with all kinds of tropical fruits and coconuts. They are close to the ocean, and many of them follow fishing as an occupation. These realize good returns, as fish are very high, which will be surprising to some. Most of these people have good homes. They have an up-to-date church building, which they erected since their departure from us. Of course this returns to the church.

I wish to state one thing to the credit of these people, and which is supported by the brethren here. The Utah Mormons and other denominations have been very persistent in their efforts to have these people unite with them, but every attempt in this direction was a failure. The answer was in every instance that the Reorganized Church was the true church of Jesus Christ; and that the difficulties that existed between them and us would in the due time of the Lord be removed. They have helped to support the missionaries and the church work in many ways. So the Lord would not desert a people who had such good desires, and who had such strong faith in the divinity of the latter-day work.

We sail this afternoon on the new steamer Willochra for New Zealand and Australia. After our meeting with the Pupu people in Heberona yesterday afternoon the Saints of the whole district assembled at Taronā. The meeting was therefore largely attended. Brother Miller and I preached our farewell sermon to the Saints last night at seven o'clock. The Saints of the district sang songs of rejoicing until a late hour. They all remained at the branch in Tarona, Papeete, to witness our departure, which will be at about four o'clock this afternoon.

We commit these people to the care of our Father in heaven, for his protection and blessings. They are surely very much in earnest, and are kindly disposed towards the Lord's ministry. We have felt drawn toward them. We glory in the thought that God is no respecter of persons, and that he loves all those who serve him according to the perfect law of liberty.

With best wishes for all of Zion's children, I am still in the conflict,

Your brother and coworker,
GOMER T. GRIFFITHS.

P. S. This is my native name: Gomera Tamati Girifiti.

Hawaii.

Hoping it will be of interest and encouragement to the Saints, I write to let you know how the work progresses in this mission. On September 15 Brother G. J. Waller returned from San Francisco, and resumed active oversight of the work.

On September 29 Elder Barrett and I started around the Island of Oahu. It is of volcanic origin, varying in width from ten to thirty miles, and has a range of mountains running as a sort of backbone the entire length of the island, and in the wider portion two ranges with a plateau between. It is over one hundred miles around, and we walked most of the way, following the coast line and visiting the houses along the road. But we had to pass up many of these, as we are only able to explain our work in English and Hawaiian.

We each carried a bookcase. In one we had our books, and a muslin chart on which is a map showing the different emigrations to America, as given in the Book of Mormon, and also the church organization, doctrine, apostasy, restoration, etc. In the other case we had the necessary wearing apparel, reduced to a minimum. At every house where we were allowed to do so, we gave the people a chart talk.

Saturday of the first week found us eighteen miles from Honolulu. From here we took the train home, when, for several days, I had the pleasure of an attack of the grippe, which detained us in Honolulu all of the following week. On October 13 we started out again, going by train to Nanakuli. From here we worked our way around, covering the ground as thoroughly as was possible under the circumstances.

We had made one trip around in 1912, but this time we met many new people. Although we have members at only three places, our means of support were provided from day to day. Sometimes we did not know where we were going to sleep until after dark, but thanks to the providential hand, a place was always forthcoming. Our hosts were generally Hawaiians. Some of them were quite poor, but they always gave us the best they had, and that willingly. They always made us eat first, the meal generally consisting of poi and fish, or meat. It is a little hard for the American missionary to relish this diet at first, but we are becoming accustomed to it.

The tropical sun was somewhat warm, and at times, when business seemed slack, I believe we received inspiration from the scenery which buoyed us up. On our right hand there was always a range of mountains, sometimes carpeted with green, and again rugged and bare. On our left was the vast blue ocean with its countless breakers. Together they made a rare combination in which was displayed the power and majesty of the Creator.

We reached Honolulu again on October 30. I found my wife sick in bed. Through administration and care she was soon well again, however.

The following are noted as results of our trip: One hundred and fifteen fireside talks with the chart; five meetings; one hundred and forty-five tracts distributed; twenty-five Hawaiian Books of Mormon sold, and four given away; one Inspired Translation sold; a subscription to the Ensign from Utah Mormons; a renewal of Autumn Leaves and HERALD, and some Sunday school home class work. None were baptized, but a lot of seed was sown. Most of those who bought Books of Mormon were Protestants and Catholics.

On November 8 we left Honolulu on the Steamship Mauna Kea and came to this place, two hundred miles distant. The sea was very rough, and I am a poor sailor. You can imagine the rest. Brother Barrett stood the trip a little better, he, too, was visibly affected.

We are trying to follow up the work which was started here last November, and are renewing acquaintances and holding a few good meetings. To date we have sold five Hawaiian and four English Books of Mormon, and several other church books.

During our absence some who were interested before have joined the Mormons, and others the Catholics, but quite a number are interested still. Opposition is very strong, especially from our Utah brethren. But then the Volcano Kilauea is showing activity also, after months of quiet. So this is nothing more than we might expect. It is only thirty-one miles up to the volcano, and we may make it a call later on.

With best wishes for the progress of God's work everywhere, and asking the prayers of the Saints on behalf of all in the mission field. In gospel bonds,

M. A. MCCONLEY.

HILO, HAWAII, November 22, 1913.

Northeastern Nebraska.

I attended the reunion at Missouri Valley, Iowa, which I enjoyed very much, after four months' labor in this, the Northeastern Nebraska District. I left the reunion feeling glad that our heavenly Father remembered his children, giving a foretaste of the joys that are yet unseen.

This light was plainly evident in the preaching, in the prayers, in testimonies, and in free-will offerings. The Spirit of the Lord was working in the hearts of his people. The signs promised to the true believer in Christ were manifest in the gift of unknown tongues, the interpretation of tongues and prophecy. So is God not a respecter of persons, but in every age does confirm his word with signs following.

Since this reunion I have been laboring in the western part of my district, until recently, when I came to this place, which is in the Omaha Indian Reservation. I have been preaching to both the whites and the Indians. The white people here are renting land belonging to the Indians. Many of the Indians are living on their own farms and are farming for themselves. I am visiting from house to house, leaving tracts where they will promise to read them. I am walking and preaching the gospel in nearly every house. I have found among this tribe a large number of very intelligent Indians. They are better informed in the Bible than are many of the white people.

I visited one Indian home where the woman was a widow. She had a large family of children, nearly all grown. Some were married. I introduced myself, and the church I represented. She wanted to know all about it. I preached the first four principles of the gospel to her and her children. She gave the best of attention, and said it was the first time she had heard the gospel of Christ preached as she believed it.

I also taught her concerning the Book of Mormon; of the great blessing given to Joseph, and how it had been fulfilled. She said this was in harmony with the traditions of her people; that they were of the seed of Israel. They had thought perhaps they were one of the lost tribes. She is a college graduate. She says she has something to think about.

She requested that I go with her to another family of her people, educated and greatly interested in religion. I promised to go and preach to them. My prayer is that this people may see the true light of him who said, "I am the light of the world." There is much more I could write covering my travels among this people, but I will close for this time.

I request the prayers of those who read these lines, that I may be able to preach this blessed gospel so plainly that all who hear may see that the message I bring to them is from heaven.

Your brother in the only true and living church,
PENDER, NEBRASKA, December 8, 1913. O. R. MANN.

News from Branches

Omaha, Nebraska.

The Ladies' Aid Society has been busy preparing for the bazaar to be given in the rotunda of the Bee building, December 17 and 18. They have a fine, large stock of articles all ready for the sale.

The Woman's Auxiliary gave a very interesting program and box social Thanksgiving evening. There were papers and talks on child-raising and some very enthusiastic discussions. Musical numbers were added to the program. The box supper after the program was given for the benefit of the building fund.

The Sunday school and Religio are doing well. The Book of Mormon normal is a more interesting study to us than the Bible normal, so that class is better attended. The Religio has been having some excellent, instructive lectures on bacteria, given by Brother R. W. Scott. Next Sunday, the 14th, a physician of the city whom Brother Scott engaged will give us a lecture on alcohol and its effects on the body.

The branch priesthood have their regular meetings Monday night of each week. The public speaking course which they are taking up is an excellent study and very beneficial. These meetings are well attended and always instructive, regular programs being arranged for each meeting.

A men's prayer service was held last Sunday afternoon at the church. The meeting was good, and the men enjoyed the Spirit's presence. It seemed to unite them more closely, if possible, than ever.

At the regular business meeting, Wednesday, November 26, Brethren H. A. Scott and A. E. Stoff were called to the office of elder, and Brother T. A. Hicks to the office of deacon. This makes eight calls to the priesthood in the branch this year.

Next Wednesday, December 10, is the regular annual election of officers. The newly elected officers take their places the first of next year. The Saints have been prayerfully considering this meeting, as they do all important meetings. The Lord has blessed us in the past as a result, and we look forward hopefully to his direction in this meeting.

The choir and Sunday school are working up a Christmas cantata called, "The Holy One of Israel," to be given Tuesday night, December 22.

We feel a spirit of unity and progress throughout the branch, and so are hopeful of the work in Omaha.

CORRESPONDENT.

Lincoln, Nebraska.

On November 23 Brother Dean McBrien, one of the younger workers in the branch, and at present a senior in the University of Nebraska, was ordained to the office of priest.

The Saints here are very active. Our meetings are held in a hall at present, but a building committee has been appointed by the branch to act with a similar group from the Ladies' Aid. We are hoping to have a church home of our own before very long.

The priesthood of the branch recently formed an organization with Brother Munsell as teacher and Brother Leon Snow as secretary.

The Sunday school and Religio are both making splendid progress. Several visitors have been noticed at the services recently.

VIRGIE MCCRAY.

First Chicago, Illinois.

Sister Lottie Kier is at present engaged in training her youngsters for the Christmas entertainment, which will be held on December 23. Our district superintendent, Sister F. M. Cooper, has been in the city the last two weeks, but has as yet not made us an official visit. We understand that she has been dividing her attention between the West Pullman and the South Side organizations. We have no reason to complain however, as she has visited us oftener than the other two schools. We believe that our school is now in a comparatively prosperous condition. At the present time we have eight well-filled classes in action.

An unusually large number attended our last sacrament service. Still better, it was an unusually good meeting. The gift of prophecy was manifested through Elder David Dowker, our worthy missionary. The Saints were commended for their humility and sacrifice, and our Father expressed great pleasure in the edifice that had been erected by our people, in which to worship him. The following were called to the priesthood, offices as designated: F. E. Bone, priest; Vernon Reese, teacher; Brother Collins, teacher; Elmer Hoover, deacon; John Petterson, deacon. Our presiding elder, James F. Keir, was warmly commended for his humility, and was promised additional power. Our presiding priest, Chris Hartshorn, was commended for his diligence in the performance of duties.

Our Sunday afternoon club is regarded as an important factor in the development of the young of our branch. It is a splendid organization, composed mainly of active young people. Elder David Dowker continues to infuse energy into the cottage preaching services. At the present time our branch takes care of three such meetings every Friday evening.

Brother and Sister Fred Johnson solicit an interest in your faith and prayers in behalf of their little baby, who is quite sick. We are advised that Sister Frank Sly is not much better. Please continue to remember her in your prayers.

On Tuesday evening, December 16, 1913, the Religio Society holds a mock trial. The object of this trial will be to acquaint our people here with the nature of the accusations made against our work, and with the manner of meeting them.

God speed the right,

F. F. WIPPER.

4532 WEST CONGRESS STREET.

Scranton, Pennsylvania.

This autumn have proved to be one of much activity among us. We have been pleased to note upon our records an addition of fourteen souls by baptism since last July. There has been a keen interest manifest in the different phases of branch work of late.

We are seeking to grasp every opportunity available to get our work properly presented to the public, and it is not amiss to say that we are better known to the people of this city than ever before. For instance, our Sunday school was recently well represented in a massive men's Bible class parade.

We are endeavoring to meet the demands brought about by our earnest workers through the establishment of a few new departments. Some time ago a brass band was organized by our boys and young men, which has brought them out most faithfully for rehearsals on each Monday evening. Their leader and bandmaster is our presiding deacon, Brother William J. Lewis. The sisters have organized themselves into a women's prayer league and sewing circle. We are informed also of the organizing of a men's glee club.

Sunday, November 16, was observed by the Scranton Branch as Family Day. We had been made acquainted with Children's Day, Mother's Day, etc.; but Family Day was something new, suggested by the pastor. Every member in each family throughout the branch was requested to be seated together as much as possible through the services of the day. Each family occupied a row of seats. The larger families were seated in the long center rows and the smaller ones in the short side rows. All the parents and married people wore a pink flower; and all the children, even to the youngest babes, wore a white flower.

This idea of family day carried with it two objects: First, to bring out members of different families who may be members of the church, but who are on the spiritual decline. Second, to bring those members of families out who may not be members of the church.

The Saints and friends responded remarkably well, considering the inclemency of the weather. The morning social service was one long to be remembered, the train of thought leading along lines of the God-given family institution.

Tuesday, November 25, the branch choir rendered the cantata, "Daniel," to a well pleased audience.

CORRESPONDENT.

San Francisco, California.

All is going nicely in San Francisco. Our meetings are quite well attended. The services are all good, and the preaching spiritual and instructive. We have enough local preachers to afford variety, and different lines of thought. Under the able leadership of our president, John A. Saxe, the officers and members are all working together for the general good of the cause. At present we have no trouble or discord in the branch. We are moving slowly and steadily forward, and trying continually to become more as Saints should be.

Strangers are almost always present at our meetings, so we have the chance to tell the good news of the kingdom to some new listeners. Our Sunday school and Religio are both flourishing and are doing their part in carrying on the work. Considerable visiting among the members is being done by the branch officers, which is resulting in good. All the Saints seem to be well at present, and happy in the work. The sisters are busy in their line, and are helping the cause nobly.

Yours in bonds,

GEORGE S. LINCOLN.

Miscellaneous Department

Convention Minutes.

INDEPENDENCE STAKE.—Met at Holden, Missouri, November 29 and 30. First session was a prayer service of twenty minutes' duration, followed by a "get acquainted" session. Reports from locals showed encouraging conditions. One hundred and seventy-one delegates were chosen to General Convention, with instructions to cast full vote, majority and minority. Present membership of stake is one thousand seven hundred and ten. A resolution adopted at Religio convention at Pertle Springs, June 14 and 15 was read: "Resolved, That members of the Religio who are addicted to the use of tobacco for other purposes than those mentioned in the Doctrine and Covenants are hereby declared disqualified for officers in this organization; further, that this rule is to be in effect and operation six months from the date of its adoption." The following was adopted: "Resolved, That the executive committee suggest to each local that its executive committee or the superintendents of departments be empowered to nominate all the teachers available for each particular class, and that the election shall be made only from those nominated." The Independence Orchestra gave a splendid concert Saturday night, the house being filled to overflowing, and many were turned away. Adjourned to meet at Central Kansas City in May. Mrs. R. Brocaw, secretary.

Conference Notices.

Saskatchewan District will meet with Minnesota Branch near Vanscoy, Saskatchewan, January 17 and 18. Delegates will be met by team at Vanscoy. Buy single fare tickets to Vanscoy, and be sure to get certificates from agent at your station, as reduced rates are being provided for. Grace Beckman, secretary.

Florida District will convene at Cold Water Schoolhouse, near Botts, Florida, January 10, at 10.30 a. m. Send reports in time. Each one of the priesthood is especially requested to be present. C. J. Clark, president; E. N. McCall, secretary, Dixonville, Alabama.

Convention Notices.

Saskatchewan Sunday school will convene January 16, at Vanscoy, Saskatchewan. C. R. Bowerman, secretary, Swanson, Saskatchewan.

Saskatchewan Religio will convene January 15, at Vanscoy, Saskatchewan. Joseph Bates, secretary, Disley, Saskatchewan.

First Presidency.

NOTICE OF RELEASE.

Those concerned will please take notice that Elder O. E. Sade, at his own request, has been released from missionary appointment for the balance of the conference year.

FREDERICK M. SMITH, Secretary Presidency.
J. F. CURTIS, Missionary in Charge.

Died.

GRUVER.—Simpson C. Gruver was born March 16, 1853, at Marietta, Ohio; moved with his parents to Perry County, Indiana, in 1868; baptized July 8, 1877, by Columbus Scott; married Charlotte Ayres, January 1, 1878. To them were born ten children; six survive. Died of apoplexy at Derby, Indiana, November 29, 1913. He leaves companion, one son, five daughters, two brothers, two sisters, eight grandchildren. Sermon by A. C. Barmore. He led an active life, having held for some time the office of priest. He is truly mourned by both Saints and fellow citizens. A good man has gone to his reward.

BOWEN.—Earnest Lester, son of Brother Evert and Sister Rhoda Bowen, December 13, 1913, after an illness of about three weeks. Born May 29, 1907; blessed by A. H. Parsons; funeral service at the Stone Church; sermon by A. H. Parsons; W. H. Garrett in charge.

CONTENTS

THE SAINTS' HERALD

EDITORIAL:
 Second Coming of Christ and Preparation Therefor - - - - - 1237
 Graceland College, by S. A. Burgess - - - - - 1242

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 Zion, the Pure in Heart, by J. F. Mintun - - - - - 1243
 The Endowment, by John Ely - - - - - 1244
 How to Gather to Zion, by Edward Rannie - - - - - 1245

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 Prehistoric American Dentists - - - - - 1247
 International Harmony - - - - - 1248
 Prehistoric American Civilization - - - - - 1248

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN
 Jennie M. Studley. - - - - - 1249

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - - 1250
 A. L. Cruce—George H. Knowlton—Edwin E. and Ada T. Lambert—John A. Stevenson—R.
 C. Evans—Sadie Burch—Mrs. Clarabell
 Bushong—Miss Montrose Shallbetter—Mrs.
 Susan Turner—Extracts from Letters.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - - 1252
 Gomer T. Griffiths—M. A. McConley—O. R.
 Mann.

NEWS FROM BRANCHES - - - - - 1255
 Virgie McCray—F. F. Wipper—George S.
 Lincoln.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - - 1256

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor.

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us.
 The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears, unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department.
 Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.
 Subscription received for Zion's Ensign, also orders for all Ensign publications.

HALL.—David Hall, of the Salem Branch, near Persia, Iowa, passed on to his reward November 29, 1913, aged 72 years and 18 days. He had been a member of the church about fifty-five years. He and his faithful wife, Emeline, had paid more tithing than any other family in the Gallands Grove District. His devoted companion, two daughters, one son, and grandchildren mourn, but not as those having no hope. Funeral from the home in charge of W. A. Smith, sermon by C. J. Hunt.

Nelson, Maria	5.00
Nelson, C. C.	50.00
Nelson, Albert	5.00
Nelson, William T.	150.00
Nelson, Bertha	15.00
Ross, Verna	2.00
Ross, W. T.	8.00
Torrance, W. B.	10.00
Wholfort, Sarah	2.00
Total	$687.50

Bishop's Annual Report, 1912.

CORRECTIONS AND OMISSIONS.

Received and Disbursed by E. L. Kelley, Presiding Bishop.
 Receipts.

Page 5, Missouri, Southern District, J. T. Ford, agent $300; should read Missouri, Nodaway District, J. T. Ford, agent $300.

Expenditures.

Page 6, J. F. Curtis, account $211.60; should read J. F.
 Curtis, account 111.60; J. T. Curtis, account $100.00.

Page 7, Smith, H. O., ex. f. $77.50; should read Smith, H.
 O., ex. f. $52.50.

Page 7, Smith H. W., ex. f. $10.00; should read Smith, H.
 W., ex. f. $35.00.

IOWA.

Fremont District.

Expenditures.

Page 14, Total, $4,150.00; due church $741.40; should read
 Wight, J. W., f. $540.00; total $4,690.00; due church $201.40.

MASSACHUSETTS AND RHODE ISLAND.

Massachusetts District.

M. C. Fisher, Bishop.

Receipts.

Page 19, Wood, Gertrude $4.00; Wood, Gilmore $2.00; should read Wood, Gertrude $6.00.

Expenditures.

Page 19, Robley, C. W., e $50; should read Robley, G. W., e
 $20; Robley, G. W. ex. f. $30.

MISSOURI.

Nodaway District.

J. T. Ford, agent.

Receipts.

Balance due church December 31, 1911	$392.00
Bond, W. S.	25.00
Nelson, Alma	23.50

Expenditures.

Kelley, W. H., f	$114.00
Kelley, W. H., e	5.00
Kelley, E. L., Bishop	300.00
Total	$419.00
Balance due church	$268.50

The Youth's Companion in 1914.

Seven college presidents and a number of college instructors, including ex-President Taft, will contribute to The Youth's Companion during 1914.

Then there is Gene Stratton Porter, whose stories of Indiana woods and swamps have made her famous, and Kate Douglas Wiggin, who never wrote a dull line in her life, and Mrs.
 Burton Harrison, who remembers when conversation was really an art as practiced in Washington and in the manor houses of Virginia. And this is just a beginning of the list.

If you know The Companion, you have a pretty clear idea of what is in store for next year's readers. If you do not know, ask us to send you sample copies—for instance, those containing the opening chapters of Authur Stanwood Pier's fine serial—"His Fathers Son." Full announcement for 1914 will be sent with the copies.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914, and all the issues of the paper for the remaining weeks of 1913, dating from the time the subscription is received.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,

144 Berkeley Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
New Subscriptions Received at this Office.

For Sale.

Twenty-two volumes of Autumn Leaves and thirty-four volumes of HERALDS, all nicely bound and in good condition.
 The Autumn Leaves are consecutive numbers 1 to 22. The HERALDS contain some of the old volumes which are now hard to get. Those books will be sold at cost. Correspondence solicited. R. H. SMITH.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 711 South Fuller Street.

HERALD PUBLISHING HOUSE SUBSCRIPTION AGENCY

We have a general subscription agency in connection with the Herald Publishing House.

We kindly ask the Saints and friends everywhere to send us their subscriptions for any paper.

We earnestly desire to get our publishing house out of debt. You can aid us and it will not cost you a cent. Every subscription you send us means a few cents made by the Herald Publishing House. Somebody makes this profit when you subscribe for a paper or magazine, or when you purchase a book.

We want you to get in the habit of giving all these orders to your own publishing house. This is where we can cooperate, and the profits made go to ever one of us. It will help us to meet our obligations. And don't forget that these obligations of the Herald Publishing House are ours,—the whole church.

No matter what your profession or business is, we can supply you with your needed reading. Just send us your remittance, give the name of your journal, or magazine, or book, with address of the publishers, if you have it, and we will take care of the rest.

All inquiries cheerfully answered.

Don't forget that all subscription orders must be accompanied with the cash.

HERE ARE A FEW OF OUR COMBINATIONS:

Modern Priscilla .....$1.00
 Woman's Magazine ..... .75
 Children's Magazine ..... 1.00
 Regular Price .....$2.75
 Our Club Price ..... 2.30

Atlantic Monthly .....$4.00
 American Magazine ..... 1.50
 Boston Cooking School ..... 1.00
 Regular Price .....$6.50
 Our Club Price ..... 5.85

Fine Arts Journal .....$3.00
 Farm and Home ..... .50
 Health Culture Magazine ..... 1.00
 Regular Price .....$4.50
 Our Club Price ..... 4.35

Harper's Magazine .....$4.00
 Housewife ..... .50
 Journal of Education ..... 2.50
 Regular Price .....$7.00
 Our Club Price ..... 5.90

Etude .....$1.50
 Everybody's ..... 1.50
 Delineator ..... 1.50
 Regular Price .....$4.50
 Our Club Price ..... 3.65

Harper's Weekly .....$5.00
 Pearson's ..... 1.50
 Sunset ..... 2.50
 Regular Price .....$9.00
 Our Club Price ..... 7.25

Woman's Home Companion ....$1.50
 American Boy ..... 1.00
 Baby ..... 1.00
 Regular Price .....$3.50
 Our Club Price ..... 2.85

Scribner's .....$3.00
 Technical World ..... 1.50
 Pearson's ..... 1.50
 Regular Price .....$6.00
 Our Club Price ..... 5.15

Ladies' Home Journal { Any one, $1.50
 Saturday Evening Post { Any two, $3.00
 Country Gentleman { Any three, $4.50

To get some of our other combinations, and the prices, note the following: Select the magazines you want. You will find a number on the left hand side of the names of the magazines in the following list. This is called the class number. Add together the class numbers of the magazines you wish to order and multiply the total by five. This gives you the correct remittance price in dollars and cents. For example; suppose you selected Practical Farmer, Modern Priscilla and Delineator.

The class number of Practical Farmer is	15
The class number of Modern Priscilla is	17
The class number of Delineator is	23
Total	55
Multiply by	5
Cost of club	$2.75

The list below are some of the many we have in our list. Don't forget that we can get you any magazine or paper. Subscriptions to Canada require extra postage, and in some cases different subscription prices. Write us what you want and we will tell you exactly what it will cost you.

Let everyone get in the habit.

30 Ainslee's Magazine .....$1.50	18 American School Board Journal .....$1.00	35 American Miller .....$2.00
77 Atlantic Monthly ..... 4.00	17 American Poultry Journal ..... 1.00	55 American Homes and Gardens ..... 3.00
17 American Primary Teacher ..... 1.00	35 Automobile Topics ..... 2.00	24 American Photography ..... 1.50
17 American Boy ..... 1.00	60 Automobile ..... 3.00	30 All Story ..... 1.50
70 Americana ..... 4.00	80 American Lumberman ..... 4.00	80 American Naturalist ..... 4.00
23 American Magazine ..... 1.50	35 American Carpenter and Builder ..... 2.00	17 Automobile Dealer and Repairer ..... 1.00
19 American Motherhood ..... 1.00
16 American Thresherman ..... 1.00

60 Architectural Record .....	$ 3.00	60 Fine Arts Journal .....	$3.00	40 Motor Boat .....	$2.00
7 American Poultry Advocate .....	50	90 Fortnightly Review .....	4.50	35 Musical Trade Review .....	2.00
100 American Journal of Psychology .....	5.00	16 Farm Gas Engine .....	1.00	17 Modern Priscilla .....	1.00
18 American Education .....	1.00	7 Farm and Home .....	.50	90 Nineteenth Century .....	4.50
200 American Architect .....	10.00	5 Farmer's Wife .....	.25	70 North American Review .....	4.00
32 Bulletin of Photography .....	1.75	23 Garden Magazine .....	1.50	45 National Geographic Magazine .....	2.50
100 Bankers' Magazine .....	5.00	15 Gleanings in Bee Culture .....	1.00	15 National Guard Magazine .....	1.00
95 Brickbuilder .....	5.00	16 Gas Power .....	1.00	30 New Story Magazine .....	1.50
77 Banking Law Journal .....	4.00	17 Good Health Magazine .....	1.00	18 New Music Review .....	1.00
17 Black Cat .....	1.00	27 Green Book Magazine .....	1.50	30 National Builder .....	1.50
15 Baby .....	1.00	17 Health Culture Magazine .....	1.00	20 Nature Study Review .....	1.00
140 Botanical Gazette .....	7.00	50 Harvard Law Review .....	2.50	25 Overland Monthly .....	1.50
60 Bellman .....	4.00	35 Horseless Age .....	2.00	20 Organ, The .....	1.00
17 Boston Cooking School .....	1.00	50 House Beautiful .....	3.00	15 Our Dumb Animals .....	1.00
60 Blackwood's Magazine .....	3.00	18 Hoard's Dairyman .....	1.00	20 Open Court .....	1.00
100 Book Review Digest .....	5.00	18 Hints .....	1.00	50 Outing .....	3.00
30 Business Philosopher .....	2.00	12 Home Needle Work .....	.75	60 Outlook .....	3.00
18 Building Age .....	2.00	20 Hunter, Trader, and Trapper .....	1.00	17 Popular Photography .....	1.00
60 Bibliotheca Sacra .....	3.00	70 Harper's Magazine .....	4.00	7 Poultry Success .....	.50
90 Bradstreets' .....	5.00	30 Harper's Weekly .....	5.00	30 People's Ideal Fiction Mag. .....	1.50
40 Biblical World .....	2.00	30 Harper's Bazar .....	1.25	17 Philistine .....	1.00
47 Bookman Magazine .....	2.50	8 Housewife .....	.50	8 People's Home Journal .....	.50
35 Brick and Clay Record .....	2.00	38 Horseman .....	2.00	15 Practical Farmer .....	1.00
70 Country Life in America .....	4.00	45 Homiletic Review (new) .....	3.00	24 Photo Era .....	1.50
23 Camera .....	1.50	53 Homiletic Review, (renewal) .....	3.00	60 Popular Magazine .....	3.00
30 Concrete-Cement Age .....	1.50	20 Investments .....	1.00	27 Photographic Times .....	1.50
50 Cassier's Magazine (new) .....	3.00	50 International Journal of Ethics .....	2.50	75 Publishers' Weekly .....	4.00
50 Cassier's Magazine, (renewal) .....	3.00	95 International Studio .....	5.00	90 Puck .....	5.00
40 Chemical Engineer .....	2.00	100 Iron Age .....	5.00	100 Pedagogical Seminary .....	5.00
190 Commercial and Financial Chronicle .....	10.00	40 Iron Age (Hardware) .....	2.00	18 Plumbers' Trade Journal .....	1.00
23 Christian Herald .....	1.50	70 Iron Trade Review .....	4.00	17 Progressive Teacher .....	1.00
60 Craftsman .....	3.00	80 Inland Printer .....	3.00	9 Poultry Keeper .....	.50
80 Century .....	4.00	80 Index to Dates .....	4.00	20 Pearson's .....	1.50
16 Cooking Club Magazine .....	1.00	17 Judge Quarterly .....	1.00	23 Physical Culture .....	1.50
20 Chautauquan .....	1.00	40 Journal of Education .....	2.50	80 Quarterly Review .....	4.00
30 Classical Journal .....	1.50	18 Judicious Advertising .....	1.00	30 Railroad Man's Magazine .....	1.50
90 Contemporary Review .....	4.50	95 Judge .....	5.00	23 Red Book Magazine .....	1.50
100 Commercial (West Financial and Banking) .....	5.00	60 Journal of Political Economy .....	3.00	240 Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature .....	12.00
50 Current Opinion .....	3.00	17 Judge Library .....	1.00	40 Rudder .....	2.00
120 Cumulative Book Index .....	6.00	80 Journal of Geology .....	4.00	80 Rider and Driver .....	5.00
17 Camera Craft, (new) .....	1.00	60 Journal of English and German Philology .....	3.00	30 Real Estate News .....	2.00
20 Camera Craft (renewal) .....	1.00	39 Journal of Race Development .....	2.00	30 Smith's Magazine .....	1.50
30 Camp and Trail .....	1.50	17 Kindergarten Primary Magazine, (new) .....	1.00	20 School Journal .....	1.25
80 Cavalier .....	4.00	19 Kindergarten Primary Magazine, (renewal) .....	1.00	20 School Education .....	1.25
60 Catholic World .....	3.00	20 Kindergarten Review .....	1.25	55 Scientific American .....	3.00
40 Christian Science Sentinel .....	2.00	70 Keramic Studio .....	4.00	100 Science .....	5.00
40 Christian Science Journal .....	2.00	40 Keith's Magazine on Home Building .....	2.00	35 School Arts Magazine .....	2.00
20 Christian Science Herald .....	1.00	95 Leslie's Weekly .....	5.00	23 Short Stories .....	1.50
100 Christian Science Monitor .....	5.00	60 Literary Digest .....	3.00	18 School Bulletin .....	1.00
45 Dress .....	3.00	35 Lippincott's Magazine .....	3.00	35 Sunset Magazine .....	2.50
23 Delineator .....	1.50	17 Little Folks' Magazine, (new) .....	1.00	60 Scribner's Magazine .....	3.00
12 Designer .....	.75	20 Little Folks' Magazine (renewal) .....	1.00	18 South Dakota Educator .....	1.00
35 Dun's Review, (new) .....	2.00	100 Life .....	5.00	22 School and Home Education .....	1.25
40 Dun's Review, (renewal) .....	2.00	3 Ladies' World .....	1.00	40 System .....	2.00
33 Dial, (new) .....	2.00	80 Library Journal .....	4.00	40 Standard, Chicago .....	2.00
38 Dial, (renewal) .....	2.00	40 Metal Workers .....	2.00	50 Suburban Life .....	3.00
27 Electric Journal .....	1.50	55 Municipal Journal .....	3.00	Saturday Evening Post .....	1.50
40 Engineering and Contracting .....	2.00	10 McCall's Magazine .....	.50	30 School Review .....	1.50
55 Educational Review .....	3.00	30 Munsey's .....	1.50	10 School Music .....	.50
24 Electrician and Mechanic .....	1.50	23 Metropolitan Magazine .....	1.50	30 Sports Afield .....	1.50
23 Etude .....	1.50	23 Musician .....	1.50	40 Smart Set .....	3.00
57 Engineering Magazine (new) .....	3.00	17 Medical Brief .....	1.00	19 Table Talk .....	1.00
60 Engineering Magazine (renewal) .....	3.00	17 Musical Observer .....	1.00	35 Trained Nurse .....	2.00
40 Expositor and Current Anecdotes .....	2.00	23 McClure's .....	1.50	18 Teacher's College Record .....	1.00
25 Everybody's .....	1.50	43 Missionary Review of the World, (new) .....	2.50	40 Top Notch Magazine .....	2.00
30 Elementary School Teacher .....	1.50	50 Missionary Review of the World, (renewal) .....	2.50	30 Toilettes .....	2.00
50 English Journal .....	2.50	50 Moody Magazine, (new) .....	3.00	23 Technical World .....	1.50
80 Edinburgh Review .....	4.00	60 Moody Magazine, (renewal) .....	3.00	30 University of Chicago Magazine .....	1.50
50 Education, (new) .....	3.00	90 Musical Courier .....	5.00	15 Violin World .....	.75
60 Education, (renewal) .....	3.00			75 Vogue .....	4.00
50 Elite .....	2.50			25 Woman's Home Companion .....	1.50
55 Electrical Review .....	3.00			18 Wallace's Farmer .....	1.00
50 Forum .....	2.50			20 Western Teacher .....	1.00
				12 Woman's Magazine .....	.75
				90 Westminister Review .....	4.50
				23 Young's Magazine .....	1.50
				40 Youth's Companion .....	2.00

No Substitutes

RETURN to the grocer all substitutes sent you for Royal Baking Powder. There is no substitute for ROYAL. Royal is a pure, cream of tartar baking powder, and healthful. Powders offered as substitutes are made from alum.

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.) John Zahnd, 6-1f Independence, Mo.

WANTED.

By a young western stock farm manager, a responsible position with a future, or might invest $800 with a partner. What business do you know or have. Address Dan Lee, care Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4tpd

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents. No. 140. Price .....50c

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.

- The King of Peace. Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....80c
- The King of Peace .....25c
- Within the Veil .....15c
- Wayward Stream .....25c
- One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
- Rest .....25c
- THE SWEET GOSPEL STORY, by W. J. Smith .....25c

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research. Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

FARMERS STATE BANK

Lamoni, Iowa

Capital $25,000.00

Surplus $8,750.00

UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS

Five per cent interest paid on time deposits Your deposit solicited.

BANK BY MAIL

WITH THE

STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI

W. A. Hopkins, President

Oscar Anderson, Cashier.

A. A. Dancer, Vice President.

Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00

Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.

Write for further particulars to

The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI - - IOWA

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why. Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided. Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a. Cloth .....$1.00

A NEW HOTEL.

A fine opportunity for a good hotel man to establish himself in an up-to-date town with a good business assured from the start. The hotel accommodations at Lamoni have not kept pace with the town. A man of experience with some money wishing to locate permanently in Lamoni and build a modern hotel will receive material assistance from the Lamoni Commercial Club.

For further particulars address G. W. Blair, Secretary of Committee, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4t

Order all your books through the Herald Publishing House. It is just as easy for you to do so and it helps us materially.

Alfalfa Land

The Prince of Monaco was amazed at the "Twenty Miles of countless stacks of alfalfa" on both sides of the Burlington through the Government Shoshone Project near Powell, Wyoming, and was further surprised to learn that all this wonderful development had taken place within five years' time. FARMERS ARE MAKING MONEY feeding this alfalfa to sheep, steers, cows and hogs—the easiest and most profitable kind of farming.

GO WITH ME TO THE BIG HORN BASIN and file on one of these Government irrigated homesteads where alfalfa means money.

YOU HAVE TEN YEARS TIME without interest to repay the Government the actual cost of water right and you have plenty of water for irrigation. You pay down $4.70 an acre and then skip two years before next payment.

Write for map and particulars.

D. CLEM DEAVER, Immigration Agent

1004 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Official Publication of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints

Entered as second class matter at Lamoni, Iowa, post office.

"If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."—John 8:31, 32.

"There shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."—Book of Mormon, Jacob 2:36.

VOLUME 60

LAMONI, IOWA, DECEMBER 31, 1913

NUMBER 53

Editorial

CHARACTER SKETCHES OF JESUS.

I. THE MANHOOD OF CHRIST.

I drew them with cords of a man, with bands of love.—Hosea 11:4.

There are three periods in the history of Christ that are filled with human interest. His first appearance in our midst was as the babe of Bethlehem. He comes to us in that period with all the appeal of helpless and innocent childhood, brooded over by careful and jealous motherhood. Here is an appeal to sentiment, reverence, and even pity when we read the words addressed by Simeon to Mary, "Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also."

At a later period he appears to us, following his resurrection, as a triumphant God, declaring that all power both in heaven and on earth, is given into his hand. He appeals to us as a deliverer.

Man has ever been ready to hail the conquering hero. Man has ever been ready to do homage to kings. Most heroes have had their weaknesses and most kings have had their vices. But here is the king incarnate, the impeccable hero. Those who really understand him do not withhold their allegiance; and when all come to understand, all will bow before him and acknowledge his sovereignty, some in one degree and some in another.

But between the infant and the conqueror there was a period when he was simply a man, when he was tempted in all things as we are tempted; yet with no more aid from divinity than any man may receive who will, he proceeded to show us what a man can be and do. He had passed out from under the fatherly care of Joseph; he was not yet crowned King of kings and Lord of lords; he was simply a man, and appealed to his followers to be his friends. He did not care for servants. Elijah, the prophet, had his "servant," and so did Elisha; but Jesus desired no servants—he wished for friends, comrades, some one to walk the road with him.

He was no fanatic, dreamer, sentimentalist, weakling, or coward. He was a live and virile man who could live in the desert, ride the heaving sea, climb the mountain, breast the tide of commerce in busy cities. He appealed to men and women, and with the "strong cords of a man" drew to him the tax-gatherers, fishermen, publicans, physicians, the pure Mary, the Magdalene, believing John, and doubting Thomas. He held them with "bands of love."

How finely the "cords of manhood" and the "bands of love" were blended. God had his ideas of what a man ought to be; but it is doubtful if anyone had ever fully lived the life of a man until Christ came. He was given as our object lesson of what a man should be. It is as though he said, "You admire manhood, but you look for it in the bloody butcher or the iron-heeled despot. Let me show you: In a man strength is blended with tenderness and power is blended with love. No man is a man who is cruel, or domineering, or false, or unable to rule himself."

All true men are not physically strong, all physically strong men are not true men; but we are constrained to believe that Christ was a perfect type of man. He endured forty days of fasting without the slightest weakening of purpose. Throughout his entire ministry he was a man without a home. The Son of Man "had no place to lay his head." He had no suitable food supply, and at times was compelled to pluck and eat the raw grain. He had only a single garment. In a word, he worked hard for three years without what we would consider proper food, shelter, or clothing. So much for his physical strength.

It is a severe test of manhood to remain fixed and true when the body is broken. This he did. He watched and prayed, while others, being worn and weary, slept. He showed himself worthy to command others by being always obedient to his superior officer. He typified the soldierly virtue of obedience when in the extremity he declared, "Nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done." He faced unpopularity, one of the severest tests. Finally, upon the cross, enduring terrible pain, he showed his ability to stand by a cardinal principle of truth, when he prayed the Father to forgive those who were persecuting him, on the ground that they did not know what they were doing. His moral vigor is undoubted.

Now here is the point for us to consider: Christ did not spring into the world a full-grown man, physically and morally complete as we find him later on. Our attention is riveted by the fact that he came as a child, undeveloped, and achieved his perfect growth by always adhering to certain laws which are embraced in his gospel. Thus he not only brought that gospel, but he was himself a product of it. If, as Amiel says, "The test of every religious, political, or educational system is the man which it forms," then we have an invincible argument in favor of the gospel, because representative atheists, as well as representative Christians, have lauded the manhood of Jesus.

24 MAR 22 JULY 14
L. C. 5015

This is an age of progress. We have outrun the wisdom of the past ages in many departments of human activity. But no man has ever improved upon the life of Jesus or the gospel that he taught. Is that not an unanswerable argument?

So many centuries ago, without libraries, or the press, or colleges, or the aid of kings or philosophers, an obscure young man, without influence or material resources, he conceived and presented a philosophy of life so excellent that none have improved upon it. Indeed, many confess to-day that they can hardly come up to the standard. There was divinity in it, and progress does not outrun divinity. Yet Jesus the man lived this gospel.

That we should observe the laws that Christ observed and obtain the results that he obtained is perhaps best stated in the parting exhortation which David gave to Solomon, "Be thou strong, therefore, and show thyself a man; and keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments."—1 Kings 2: 2, 3, Inspired Translation.

ELBERT A. SMITH.

[Note.—The next number will be entitled, "His consecrated purpose and self-sacrifice."]

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

GRANT VERSUS YATES REMANDED.—We are authoritatively informed that the case of R. E. Grant versus J. E. Yates has by the court of appeals been remanded for retrial.

CHATBURN ANNIVERSARY.—The editors desire to acknowledge receipt of an invitation to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of Brother and Sister T. W. Chatburn which was to have been observed on Christmas Day. Because of the long service of Brother Chatburn and his wide acquaintance among the Saints, especially in the West, reaching as far as the Pacific coast, we make this public acknowledgment, realizing that thousands of Saints will join in wishing Elder Chatburn and wife many more years of happiness and service together. Brother Chatburn also sent in a poem of his own composition addressed to his wife and dedicated to the Chatburn family. The opening verses have these characteristic lines:

Fifty years ago the Chatburn tree took root,
A spindling little sapling that promised little fruit;
But the little weakling grew apace and has gained considerable size,
Its branches reach unto the coast, and tower to the skies.

The poem closes with a verse in exhortation to the children:

So children, gather round us and help the cause along,
Far fling our gospel battle line and swell the million strong;
Armed with the sword of righteousness, let's continue in the fight,
For God is ever with us in our battle for the right.

Our motto, onward, upward, for home and Zion's land,
Upon the gospel rock of justice we will triumphant stand;
So group around the Chatburn banner, and join us while we pray,
In thankfulness, that God will bless our fiftieth wedding day.

WOULD PROHIBIT POLYGAMOUS RELATIONS.—At a meeting of the National Reform Association held recently in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, at which "Mormonism" was a topic of discussion, our Brother Leon Burdick secured from Professor Oscar Davis, chairman of the National Reform Commission, a clear and emphatic statement to the effect that anything said at the convention should not be construed as having reference to the Reorganized Church with headquarters at Lamoni, Iowa. A resolution looking to the amending of the Federal Constitution prohibiting polygamous living in all the States brought to his feet R. Murray Stewart, one of six Utah elders present, with the statement that such legislation was not necessary and defying anyone to show that polygamy had been practiced in Utah since the manifesto. Our Elder Burdick at this juncture took the floor and in connection with other remarks assured the assembly that ample proof of polygamous relations could be readily furnished. In the face of the admissions of President Joseph F. Smith before the committee in the Smoot investigation, the action since had against him in the civil courts of Utah, and the further and notorious facts upon every hand, representatives of the Utah Church must be hard pressed when they try to urge before such an assembly as the National Reform Association that legislation to prohibit polygamous living is not needed in this country. We may add that such a bill was on December 20 proposed by Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts. On this point of federal prohibition of polygamous cohabitation the Reorganized Church long ago took a favorable stand.

There are but few who can make a full measurement of their own faults and spread the mantle of charity over others.—Captain L. W. Billingsley.

Original Articles

THE SEARCH FOR GOOD BOOKS.

My mother was the daughter of a Canadian pioneer. Her mother was a very strict, severe, English lady, who taught mother to shun fiction as she would sin. When I was two years old, mother was left with six of us. She did not marry again until I was nine. To feed and clothe us required all her time and thought.

Not one of our family cared for reading as I did, so could not understand my need. At the age of nine or ten, when I would say, "Oh, how I wish I had something to read!" I was told to read the Bible, Book of Mormon, and Doctrine and Covenants, and that when I knew all that was in them, I might get something else to read. I heard this so much (from other members of the family more than from mother) that I learned to hate the sound of the names of the church books.

Again and again I tried to read the Book of Mormon. Each time I started on page one. I learned First Nephi by heart, trying to read to the end of Second Nephi. I did not read the Book of Mormon through until I was thirty years old.

When I was about eleven my mother and stepfather moved to the country. One of our neighbors had one hundred and fifty Nick Carters and a trunk full of common novels. When I told her how I loved to read, she said I was welcome to any of the reading matter she had. I informed her my folks would not allow fiction in the house. She said I could come to her home and read as much as I liked. She placed in my hands my first novel—Theo; the name is all I remember about it.

I knew it was wrong to disobey my parents, even if I did think their demand unjust. I knew it was deceitful to read and not let them know of it. I was very thin and small for my age until after I passed my fourteenth birthday, and my courage was thin and small too. I loved peace and harmony; I simply could not stand up for what I thought was right. If I thought I was in the right I went ahead without arguing. I let the other fellow do that while I went ahead. I know now that if I had been caught and thrashed, I would have taken the first book I could get and would have read it; if that one had brought the same result, I would have been more cunning and careful, but I would have read.

I read the one hundred and fifty Nick Carters and dozens of volumes from the trunkful of novels. I remember the name of only one, East Lynne. It was better than the rest.

When I was about thirteen we moved to town. A neighbor had dozens of cloth bound novels. I read two or three each week that winter. Of all the books she loaned me I do not remember the name of one.

The next summer we again moved to the country. A neighbor let me have two stories, running through one hundred and sixty pamphlets. I did not like most of the characters. I thought the stories coarse, but as I had nothing else, and felt I must read, through them I went. I understand now that they were vile, extremely so, and wonder I did not understand them then, but I did not.

Whenever a good book came within reach, it was certainly read by me. When none were to be had I read what I could get.

I had by that time read four of Louisa M. Alcott's books; I thought them royal. The characters were more like the kind of people I liked. I would have chosen one of her books out of a thousand. Now, I am sure if I had been reasoned with, and had been given a reasonable amount of good books, I would have been satisfied. I had sense enough to see I was not reaping any benefit from all those hours spent in reading that class of books.

Then came the fight upward; and it was a fight. I must not always read fiction, even good fiction. I must develop a taste for something else. At the age of about sixteen I tackled Professor Fowler's life work, in two large volumes. I went through them, and through the one on phrenology twice, or more. I liked it extra well. I understand now that I was starving for brain food, and did not know how to get it, what to get, or where. Being naturally intense, my desire to read was almost a frenzy.

Then there was not a city or Sunday school library. About this time Independence Sunday school began to have a library, but I did not live there. I always attended Sunday school every Sunday, and learned the lessons. At the age of fifteen my teacher asked the superintendent to make a teacher of me. Then I began to teach. When I was seventeen I was made assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, which numbered one hundred and fifty. The superintendent was away most of the time, and for a year or more I practically had charge of the school. I held that position for five years, then my oldest girl came and I retired from the front ranks, but never from the Sunday school.

I had never heard of a standard of literature, except that my folks condemned fiction. When I was about eighteen my younger brother gave me Teaching and Teachers, and loaned me Chastity. I judged all books by my own standard, which was that if I profited by them they were good; if not, they were bad. But I had to read them first.

When I was about sixteen I determined that no child in the Sunday school should suffer as I had. I formulated a motion that we appoint a committee to secure a library for the Sunday school. I persuaded the branch teacher, a man opposed to the idea, to second it (everyone seemed opposed). It passed, I do not know how, and the committee was the Sunday school superintendent, the branch priest, and said teacher. One year passed; by that time the teacher realized what was involved in the motion and was indignant that he had helped start the movement. He withdrew from the committee. The branch president was put in his place. About that time the Religio closed indefinitely. I made a motion that the fourteen dollars then in the treasury be donated to the Sunday school library fund. A sister bitterly opposed to the idea seconded it, thinking I said Sunday school fund. It carried, somehow.

In a few months the branch president came to me and said, "The committee has decided it is not expedient that we have a library, and thinks that the fourteen dollars should be turned over to the branch fund." I did not lose any time telling him that the committee was appointed to get a library, and not to determine whether it was expedient, or not expedient. (I was learning how to fight.)

At the end of the year the branch president withdrew from the inactive committee. Some one must have concluded I had come to stay, so put me on the committee. At the beginning of the next year we had a ten dollar bookcase, and one hundred and fifty books. About fifteen years have passed away, and we now have over two hundred books. Five thousand one hundred and twenty-eight books have been taken out.

Nearly eighteen years have passed since the start upward; during the first few years I said many times, "Father, you know you are all I have; teach me. Oh, teach me. You know it all; fill my brain; feed me." At other times I would beg him to help me to find good books, and to help me to enjoy reading them. During that eighteen years of climbing I have read two or three hundred books; about one half have been fiction.

I enjoy nothing as well as science; sometimes I read one or two romances, and find it is better than an effort to entirely put away that line of reading. I have read about one half the volumes of Autumn Leaves, borrowing them from those who have saved them, also five volumes of Physical Culture, in the same way. During the last fourteen years I have read most of the numbers of the Ladies' Home Journal. I consider that the Journal has helped me much, not by reading the stories alone, but by reading carefully all of the articles. Noted people write for the Journal from time to time on different subjects. Many of the editorials are jewels.

So many people possessing learning, intelligence, or wealth have no comprehension of the needs of those in opposite conditions. So much in this world is decidedly opposite to what it appears. So many times have people said at conventions and through articles in the periodicals, "Read good books." That is like so much Greek to many people. My first thought always is, What do you consider good books? I have wished each one making that statement would mention the names of a few they think the best.

In a late HERALD is an article by a sister concerning a book which was a help to her. All who enjoy it, The Wrestler of Philippi, will also enjoy Titus, a Comrade of the Cross, which is very similar. Ben Hur is interesting and educational for both young and old.

When I was about sixteen I read The Throne of David; later I read a Pillar of Fire, and Prince of the House of David. Soon after I had finished reading it, I was taken to a Baptist Sunday school and put in a class taught by the pastor's wife. It happened that the lesson was taken from that part of the Bible concerning which the book was written. By the answer I gave to the first question she asked me, she seemed to think I knew the lesson; and, out of courtesy to a stranger, I suppose, she asked me to tell the girls the story of the lesson as I knew it. The superintendent and classes near seemed to forget everything and listened to the narrative. It seemed to me ridiculous that any mere girl should be shown so much attention, because of a thorough knowledge of one Sunday school lesson, all of which I owed to the reading of a book. I suppose the description was somewhat vivid; I was very enthusiastic then.

For the children's sake, I was glad to secure the lists published last spring in the Exponent, but will be more glad to secure the list by Brother Burgess, which is expected to be published soon. L. H.

• • • • •

LAMANITE TRADITIONS.

(Synopsis of lecture by Patrick Miguel, lineal chief of the Yuma California Tribe, given in the Saints' church in Los Angeles, California, September 18, 1913.)

THE MEDICINE MAN.

The Indians are divided into four classes: Interpreters, chiefs, people, and medicine men.

The calling of the medicine man is higher even than that of the chief. He is the most potent man in the tribe. He is the doctor, adviser, and Indian preacher. He listens to everything, but does not say much. Contrary to general opinion, he advises hearing the white men. The white missionary does not understand this, and fights him; so the medicine man stays away, and the Indians stay with him.

The medicine man is supposed to have the gifts: To know the language; of enduring hardships; of patience and benevolence. He is sometimes accused of malpractice and bewitching, but must not show any resentment, and is always ready to help the people. He preaches, teaches, heals the sick, and casts out devils. He is the only man who stands out and favors the teachings of the white man. He advises the Indians to accept any missionary, because he may bring the right religion, and, besides, there must be a little good in every institution, and they might discover a word that would lead to God. Sometimes he faces a whole tribe of Indians to do so, but such conditions are probably the fault of the interpreters who are not usually the best men, hence the misunderstandings. The source of the medicine man's power can not be explained, because the language is lost even among the Indians, and to put it into the Indian tongue and then into the English language is almost impossible.

THE CROSS.

The cross was first known to the North American Indians about the time Christ was crucified. They saw the cross in the heavens in the East, and the medicine men said it represented matter, or earth; so God is of the spirit and matter. A chant was sung, which was the wail of Christ over the iniquities of the people. The weird tune is the lamentation of Christ; and it was said the same Christ would visit them again afterward, which he did.

FIRST TEMPLES.

Christ's first temples were constructed of four poles for corners, with rafters covered with brush. The Indians once built one, but it began to wobble, and was infirm. They conferred with a blind man, supposed to be the wisest in the tribe, and he said, You have not made an offering; take down the house and fill the holes three fourths full of corn, reset the poles, and the house will stand. They did so. The terrific hurricanes, storms, and rains came; the people gathered under the temple, and although the roof was thin the rain could not beat through it.

HOLY GHOST.

After the house was built the Lord sent out spirits, or angels, direct representatives of God the Creator, and they sent out wild geese, flying upward and forming a heavenly snake, lying in a circle above the earth. They flew around and found the serpent's head and invited it to the feast. The Indians claim the Holy Ghost came down in the form of a serpent. It came in the evening, found the temple too small, and ordered it enlarged. This happened four times. When the temple was enlarged the snake set himself afire and burned part of the temple. Parts of the snake exploded, and parts of it flew off among different tribes, and they began to speak and prophesy and were given great power, and began to speak the languages they now use and forgot their former languages, except a few songs which they kept. They think this Holy Ghost was from Jerusalem. Each of these controlling spirits had power to give their different powers to individuals, and they all centered in this snake.

REPUTED CURES.

In recent years the Yumas made demand of the agent that when the Indian children in the schools were sick they should be allowed to take them to the Indian medicine men for help. This demand came about when an Indian boy was shot in the thigh. Under the white doctor's care the boy died. Before this a Cocobed Indian became jealous and killed his wife, and shot another near the heart. The Indian doctor came to the wounded girl, sent the people away, but let them remain near enough to see. He stood near, breathed on her, sung a peculiar song in a dead language, walked around her, blew on her again and sang another song. If this case had been serious enough he would have sung three or four songs. He felt a peculiar feeling while walking around her, and said she would get well.

Many children died under care of white doctors. Brother Miguel, himself, took a sick Indian boy from the school to a medicine man. The boy was very sick with pneumonia. The medicine man felt all over the boy, and at midnight he was up walking, and in the morning ate a hearty breakfast. Brother Miguel says he is skeptical regarding the medicine men, but is compelled to believe in this case which he personally saw.

The Indian asks the white man not to make fun of his religion, but to hear him patiently before condemning him, and then condemn him if he must.

CONVERSION OF CHIEF MIGUEL.

Brother Miguel says he personally has always been skeptical with reference to religion. He thought a long time about joining this church. He has had many dreams that his own people thought meant he would some day join a church. He read the Book of Mormon, and made up his mind there was a great deal of truth in it. His second trouble was over the Inspired Translation of the Bible, but relied on the Spirit of God to show him if it were correct, asking God to show him, and he did, as has already been related.

Brother Miguel was baptized by Brother V. M. Goodrich about a week prior to giving this lecture.

SERPENT AND EAGLE.

The serpent with the eagle is the emblem on the Mexican coins to-day, as well as on the national arms. If this tradition were substantiated might it not furnish a reason for the serpent on the coin found in Atlantis, page 345, and lend a religious motive for the serpentine mounds in Ohio, referred to on page 205, same work? R. T. COOPER.

FORGIVENESS.

And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us. . . . For if ye forgive men their trespasses, who trespass against you, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; but if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your heavenly Father forgive you your trespasses.—Matthew 6: 13-16, Inspired Translation.

Then came Peter to him and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Till seven times? Jesus said unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times; but, until seventy times seven.—Matthew 18:21, 22.

Fulfill ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. . . . Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.—Philippians 2: 2-5.

And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted,—forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4: 32.

And ye shall also forgive one another your trespasses; for verily I say unto you, He that forgiveth not his neighbor's (brother's) trespasses, when he says that he repents, the same hath brought himself under condemnation.—Mosiah 11: 140.

My disciples, in days of old, sought occasion against one another, and forgave not one another in their hearts, and for this evil they were afflicted, and sorely chastened; wherefore I say unto you, that ye ought to forgive one another, for he that forgiveth not his brother his trespasses, standeth condemned before the Lord.—Doctrine and Covenants 64: 2.

RIGHTEOUS JUDGMENT NECESSARY.

Compare Matthew 18: 15-17 and Luke 6: 37. The Savior says, Judge not unrighteous judgment. Forgive and ye shall be forgiven. How often one is judged by the action and not by the motive; and one who has malice in his heart does all he can to herald the action to the world, and by so doing leaves a blot on the reputation of an innocent brother or sister that causes sadness to the heart—"Yea, wound the tender heart and feelings of my sons and daughters." Yet such an one, after understanding the motive that prompted the action, sometimes fails to seek to rectify the matter and repair the breach. When will they find forgiveness?

PREREQUISITES OF FORGIVENESS.

The first condition necessary to secure forgiveness, or to form a perfect agreement, as taught by the Savior in Matthew 18: 19, is found in the doctrine of forgiveness. In Matthew 5: 23, 24, we find these words as a basis of the doctrine of forgiveness:

Therefore, if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift.

Let us inquire what this gift is that we bring to the altar. Many no doubt have pondered over this and wondered what it meant, and grave and serious mistakes have perhaps been made in seeking to determine what this gift is. Is it the cattle on a thousand hills? No; for they are God's already. Is it the gold and silver of the mines? No. Is it the gems and corals of the ocean? No; for these are the works of his hands. Is it the garlands of flowers? No; for it was his own hand that gave the rose its beauty and the lily its loveliness and symmetry. What, then, is this spoken of by our blessed Lord? Let us first determine of what the essence of gift consists.

THE TRUE GIFT.

At Christmas time friends remember one another by gifts. At Christmas time a friend comes to you who has at his command a bank account and lays in your hand a goodly pearl, worth hundreds of dollars, which in reality cost him nothing. But here is a poor girl who loves you with the heart's true devotion, and who, snatching a few hours from her daily toil, after nightfall, and by midnight lamp works a piece of needlework, and at Christmas time with humble heart and perhaps sorrowing that her gift is not more precious, brings it and places it in your hand. Which of these would you call the true gift? The piece of needlework, which is a part of the giver, or the goodly pearl that cost the giver little or nothing? The value of the gift, therefore, consists in that it is a part of the giver. This is the secret of the widow's mite. She cast in more than they all, for she cast in all her living. (Luke 21: 1, 2.)

Emerson says the essence of a gift consists in that it is a part of the giver. Since it can be no outward thing, as all of those outward things are the Father's already, it can only be some inward thing. God tells us what that inward thing is, when he says, Son, daughter, give me thine heart.

It is our heart that is the gift to be laid upon the altar; and that gift, in order to be laid upon the altar must be tuned to the heavenly Father's thoughts; is to become one with him. He asks us to go and bring our thoughts into harmony with his thoughts and let his will, which is wiser, and the Father's ways, which are better, have undivided sway in our minds, and they will operate upon the physical organism as well as the spiritual, and health will come both to soul and body. But the gift can not be laid upon the altar while man indulges a thought of envy, malice, hatred, revenge, or any selfish thought concerning his brother or sister in the church.

RECONCILIATION.

Notice in this connection that Jesus does not say you must reconcile your brother to you; he says you must reconcile yourself to your brother. You may say this is impossible. My brother may be far away; so that I may not be able to reconcile myself to him, or him to me. The only injunction laid upon you is that you reconcile yourself unto your brother. The responsibility of his own reconciliation rests upon him. The Father does not hold you responsible for the acts of another, but he does hold you responsible for your own. You may ask how you can reconcile yourself to your brother. By simply casting out of your mind every thought of envy, revenge, malice, and hatred, and any evil thought, and wish for your brother all you would wish or desire for yourself.

Jesus said, Love thy brother as thyself. When you have cast out of your mind every harsh thought, and are willing to wish and desire for your brother all that you would wish and desire for yourself, and pray that every blessing that would enrich your life would come into his life, you have then reconciled yourself to your brother. Then your gift is ready for the altar; then your mind is tuned to the divine mind, which is universal love. It is the internal which makes the external; the forces residing in the atoms shape the pyramid; the beautiful soul within forms the crystal of the beautiful life without.

LIVE THY CREED.

Be what thou seemest to be; live thy creed. Hold up to the world the truth divine; be what thou prayest to be made; let the great Master's steps be thine. Sow love and taste its fruitage pure. Sow peace and reap its harvest bright. Sow sunshine on rock and moor, and find a harvest home of light.

THE LONE NEPHITE.

Of General Interest

CITIZENIZING THE AMERICAN INDIAN.

The conditions on many of the Indian reservations, including one in Colorado which he investigated during the past few days, are in a deplorable state, and should be rigidly investigated, in the opinion of Doctor Joseph Kossuth Dixon, leader of the Rodman Wanamaker expedition for citizenizing the American Indian, who arrived in Denver last night after a fifteen thousand-mile journey among the various Indian tribes of the United States.

"I am going to tell some of these conditions in a talk which I will give before the members of the Colorado Publicity League Thursday night," he said. "I am going to lay emphasis particularly on the conditions I found on the Indian agencies in Colorado, and I hope the Governor of Colorado will be there to hear it.

"It is strange that of the sixty-nine tribes I have visited not one of them had an American Flag. Many of them never had seen one. To every tribe I present a flag in behalf of Wanamaker. I have left a trail of flags behind me. And the spectacle of these people hugging the Flag to their breasts and kissing it is one that deserves the highest commendation.

FLAG NOVELTY TO INDIANS.

"Imagine any of our foreign population or our Socialists pressing the American Flag to their lips. Yet few of the real Americans ever have seen it. If we had given as much attention to the red men as we have to the black men, Congress would be half filled with Indians to-day."

Doctor Dixon, who has been a close student of Indian affairs for the past fifteen years, arrived at seven o'clock last night in a private car over the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad. He was met by John B. Maling, director of the Colorado Publicity League, who, in behalf of the organization, welcomed him to the city.

It is a strangely impressive and important message that Doctor Dixon is carrying to the Indian tribes of America. Not only does he present to every tribe an American Flag, but he receives from them, by authority of President Wilson, a declaration of allegiance to the Government of the United States.

The terms of the declaration were prepared by the chiefs of eleven tribes who participated in the breaking of ground for the national American Indian memorial at Fort Wadsworth, New York Harbor, February 22.

The memorial will include a museum, which is to harbor the history, the legends, and the relics of the American Indian which Doctor Dixon is gathering. He already has taken thirty-five thousand feet of moving picture films, and four thousand negatives of the several Indian tribes. He purposes to store in the museum, the gift of Rodman Wanamaker, photographs of every existent Indian tribe in America.

ARRANGING FOR MEMORIAL.

The expedition which he is leading now is largely to arrange for the visit of the various Indian representatives when the memorial is dedicated. Doctor Dixon started on his expedition June 7, and has been traveling continuously since then. He says he will travel about twenty-five thousand miles before he completes the journey and will visit every one of the one hundred and sixty-nine tribes in the United States. . . .

ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT PAGEANT.

Doctor Dixon said he was enthusiastic over the proposed 1915 Indian pageant which is to be given in this city.

"There is a sublime thought in the idea of placing the North American Indian in a position where he can be touched by his white brothers, that his misconceptions can be absolutely displaced," said he. "Such a comprehensive idea as you suggest will effect such a result.

"The trouble hitherto has been that we have written and talked about the Indian, but we know very little what the Indian himself thinks. My study of Indians on their own ground has enabled me to get hold of his thought.

"This body of Indians at the gates of the Queen

City of the West will, if carried out in its various phases, have a tendency to demand better conditions on the reservations."—Denver News, October 29, 1913.

• * * * •

GOOD WILL BETWEEN GREAT BRITAIN AND UNITED STATES.

We are pleased to note sentiments recently expressed by Sir Edward Grey in a speech welcoming United States ambassador, Walter Hines Page. Saints should ponder the excellent thoughts contained therein, and whether in the United States, in Canada, or in old England herself, should do their humble part toward promoting good fellowship between the great English speaking nations. No word should ever be expressed with the conscious intention to cause jealousy or division. We quote from the Chautauquan for October 25, which reports Sir Edward Grey as having said:

If Mr. Page comes to us with proposals arising from the desire of his Government to find some way of making more remote the appeal to blind force between nations he will find in this country and from the British Government a ready response. Of all great powers in the world the United States is most fortunately placed for taking such an initiative. It is beyond the reach of menace or aggression from any neighbor on the American Continent. The idea of menace or aggression on land towards the United States is both physically impossible and intellectually unthinkable. And on either side they enjoy the protection not of a channel but of an ocean. And, after all, with all those natural advantages they have also, we know, the capacity and the resources, if they desired it, to create both a military and a naval force greater than anything the world has ever seen. Now if, from such a quarter, peace proposals come, they come beyond the suspicion of having been inspired by any feeling of pusillanimity, by any national necessity, or by any desire to secure an advantage in disarming or placing at a disadvantage any other nation who can injure them. In other words, if there are to be proposals to make war between other nations more remote, it is from the United States most certainly that these proposals could be made in the world at large with full dignity and with a good faith which is beyond suspicion. One thought more. Great as is the friendly feeling between the United States and Great Britain to-day, it is a friendly feeling which I trust will still grow and develop; but to whatever degree it develops and however strong it becomes, I believe it is their wish, and I am sure that it is ours, that that friendly feeling between the two countries, though it may serve as an example to all nations, should never be a menace to any.

There is but one straight road to success, and that is merit. The man who is successful is the man who is useful. Capacity never lacks opportunity. It can not remain undiscovered, because it is sought by too many anxious to use it.—Bourke Cochran.

It is harder to be a useful hypocrite than to be a sincere, honest worker in the world's great vineyards or productive shops, factories, printeries, offices. Accomplishment is much more stimulating and pleasurable than deceitful "soldiering," less wearing and more healthful.—Backbone.

Mothers' Home Column

EDITED BY CHRISTIANA SALYARDS.

Prayer Union.

SUBJECT FOR THE SECOND THURSDAY IN JANUARY.

Parents' Day.—Pray for our families and for the families of each other; for the conversion of kindred. And pray that we may all have a greater growth in spirituality, and a greater sense of parental responsibility; that the homes of Saints may be model Christian homes.

Prayers for the sick.

Lesson, Doctrine and Covenants 77: 4.

Memory Verse, Proverbs 11: 27.

REQUESTS FOR PRAYER.

Brother Rufus Culp requests that he may overcome temptation, and that the hand of chastisement may be lifted from him. He desires to be especially remembered on the first Sunday of January.

Letter Department

The Standing Minister and the Missionary.

The article of five and one half columns appearing in the HERALD of July 23, entitled, "The standing minister and the missionary," and to which in explanation nearly three more columns were devoted in a late HERALD by the same author, was in the beginning taken exception to by me for the reason that I considered no good could come from an article of such length, or of shorter length, that was devoted entirely against the traveling ministry. Not one word of censure was offered to the standing ministry. The partiality of treatment did not appeal to me; though of course I did not object to the standing ministry not being charged with shortcomings.

The article deals with the two classes of the ministry indicated in its caption. It uses the terms "traveling missionaries" and "traveling ministry" interchangeably, and defines the "traveling ministry" as being "composed of the Twelve, Seventy, together with such high priests and elders as can or will travel. We may add the priest, for the high priest, elder, and priest become traveling ministers by the appointment of General Conference; the Twelve and Seventy are such by virtue of their calling."

The charge is made that the "traveling missionaries are spending much means and valuable time in going often to the various branches, conferences, conventions, and reunions. In my judgment, by so doing we are neglecting our own fields and are not keeping within the law."

In reply to my protest against the "traveling councils" being so charged, the technical answer is made that the charge quoted by me does not include the term "traveling councils," but that it applies to the "traveling missionaries." The Twelve and Seventy are "traveling missionaries," but they are also known in the law as "traveling presiding councils." The use through the article of the terms traveling ministry and traveling missionaries, in connection with the heading of the article, indicates the general tenor of the whole matter, and that my interpretation of this charge as applying to the "traveling councils," was fair.

And I object to the following being charged against the traveling missionaries: "That is the experience of the majority of the missionaries; I have noticed that the Saints, as well as those in charge of branches, urge the traveling missionaries to visit their respective branches, and we missionaries take it for granted that it is the Macedonian cry, when a very large percentage is only human, and I believe, as a whole, unwise."

Why charge the "traveling missionaries" with being "not in keeping with the law," that their inspiration differs from the Macedonian cry, and that they are "neglecting" their own fields: "spending much means and valuable time in going often to the various branches, conferences, conventions, and reunions"?

I again repeat, if one's calling is to guide the missionary work, why was he not ordained to that calling? If he is not so called, why should there be interference with those whose specific work is to attend to it?

I know the revelation says there are others fitted for the apostolic work; but what is the point in the reference? Let me assure the brother that, so fitted, when ordained they will not permit charges of a public character against the "traveling missionaries" under their direction except under protest.

Notwithstanding I am doing all I can to advance the interests of the church in every way, the following advice is given: "Let the leading men of the traveling ministry give heed to the command to 'push out into new fields,' and others will follow; and then, and not until then, will the Lord fulfill his promises wherein he said: 'They shall find a peace and vigor of mind surpassing what they have enjoyed in the past,' and again, 'peace shall come to the people as a cherishing fountain.'"

Are we to understand that advice does not extend to the traveling councils simply because the term traveling councils is not used in the quotation? Was it given publicly so the "leading men of the traveling ministry" would be more likely to heed the instructions? Why single out the "leading men of the traveling ministry"? What is needed is cooperation between all of the quorums of the entire church.

If the "traveling ministry" or "traveling missionaries" are not performing their work properly under the law, by whom should they be censured or instructed? So far as I am concerned, I am not asking or expecting instructions, censure, or an outline of my duties from indiscriminate sources.

I would suggest that the brother who gave a couple of quotations relating to evidence consider whether a direct application to an opponent of "Charity thinketh no evil," thus impugning motives, is evidence. Better consult the text book again. Good will to the brother, and to all.

PAUL M. HANSON.

PLYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, November 7, 1913.

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, November 25, 1913.

Editors Herald: During the last three years I outlined a building program which the Saints in the majority have supported. As a result we have a large, reconstructed church, with a five by eight concrete baptismal font. We have just finished paying for it; and now for new lights, with our new seats, and we will feel that in a financial way we can lend a more energetic and helping hand.

Brother Reiste is here. He has baptized four in the last ten days, with more to follow. While in war we must expect the consequences; but I am happy to say that in my judgment Satan is not victorious in these parts.

Sincerely yours,

GEORGE DALEY.

BIRDSEYE, INDIANA, November 27, 1913.

Editors Herald: An account of the Moler-Denny debate might be of interest. Brother Moler and I were in Louisville, Kentucky, holding meetings, when Brother Moler received a letter from Elder Thomas Stillings of the Christian Church, telling him that Mr. E. G. Denny would be at Birdseye on the 18th to meet Brother Moler in debate.

Though Brother Moler had not heard from Denny, nor had he signed propositions, Denny forged his name to a written copy and brought it with him, expecting to find Brother Moler off guard and not on the battle field.

However, Brother Moler and the writer were on hand and met Mr. Denny at the Oak Hill Schoolhouse at nine o'clock a. m., Tuesday, November 18. Propositions were agreed upon and the debate began at 10 a. m., for four days of two sessions each. The usual church propositions were discussed.

Denny failed to establish his church. He read from the Bible concerning the apostolic church and concerning the officers and gifts Christ placed therein. He could not be drawn away from Pentecost.

Brother Moler put up a chart, like a wagon wheel, the hub representing Christ and the spokes the officers in the church. Denny said he would tear that wheel in pieces and do away with every spoke and the hub also. Brother Moler went after him for doing away with Christ, as well as the officers.

Denny said that the doctrine of Christ as set forth by Paul in Hebrews 6: 1, 2 was done away, being only types and shadows under the Mosaic covenant. So Brother Moler went after him, as he did not need faith, repentance, or baptism any more. Denny floundered around continually.

A complete victory was won for the cause, and the Saints are happy. We are holding forth with good interest and good crowds every night.

The Campbellites are a sick lot and recognize their defeat. They made the boast that Denny would sweep the Saints off the earth, and sang the song, "When the battle's over we shall wear a crown." But now the people say that Moler is wearing the crown. H. E. is a good defender of the faith. I acted as his moderator, Thomas Stillings acting for Mr. Denny.

Yours for truth,

J. W. METCALF.

FRUITLAND, NEW MEXICO, November 28, 1913.

Editors Herald: Thinking perhaps the readers of the HERALD would be interested in learning the facts of the Navaho Indian war, I write concerning the same.

Fruitland, New Mexico, the seat of war, is in the north-western corner of New Mexico. The Navaho Indian reservation is separated from the white settlement by the San Juan River. There are about twenty-five thousand Navaho Indians. I have lived amongst these Indians for six years, and I find them to be peaceable, and good workers. Their women are good weavers of fine blankets.

Now the cause of the war came about in this way. One Indian had two or three wives. There is a Mormon colony here. About thirty-five years ago a lot of Mormons left Utah and settled on this river. There were no other people here at that time but Indians. A good many of the Mormons stayed amongst the Indians so long they almost forgot the English language. These Mormons married Indian women, and went into polygamy. At this writing I can count nine Indian traders' stores, all run by Mormons who teach and preach polygamy among these Indians.

Now the Indian agent orders his police to go and arrest the Indian women. They are arrested and put in jail. The Indian husband of these women comes home and finds his wives gone. He gets a lot of his friends and comes to the jail, overpowers the guard, and takes out his wives and flees to the mountains.

There are about three hundred and twenty-five soldiers, cavalrymen, camped at the foot of the mountain. The Indians are well armed. There are about thirty-five Indian warriors on the top of this mountain. The mountain is about nine miles long, by eight miles wide. It is almost impossible to get on top of this mountain, only through a narrow canyon.

Now if these Mormons had preached to the poor Indians out of the Book of Mormon, book of Jacob, second chapter, "Wherefore, my brethren, hear me and hearken to the word of the Lord: for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none, for I the Lord God delighteth in the chastity of women," this trouble would not have developed. But instead they have set a bad example before the Indians by marrying many wives, which thing is an abomination in the sight of God. And now the poor Indian is hunted like a wild beast for practicing polygamy, while the heads of this Mormon Church have the society of their wives and are not molested.

I pray God to have mercy on the poor Indians, and I hope and pray the war may be settled without the shedding of blood.

On the watch tower,

PETER ADAMSON.

LA JUNTA, COLORADO, November 29, 1913.

Editors Herald: I reached this place September 7. I went to work in the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe roundhouse the 8th. My family, including my mother, reached here the 27th. We were soon located in North La Junta, and at once made preparation for a series of meetings.

Elder J. F. Petre reached us and we opened the first meeting in Mr. Groom's hall in North La Junta on October 23. We held ten sessions. Commenced with an attendance of seven, and the audience grew to sixty before we closed. Brother Petre is a powerful speaker, and held the attention of his crowd. He also did lots of tract work, and visited much from house to house. The prejudice of honest people was broken.

Opposition to our effort has opened the way for a series of tent meetings here next summer. We also found fourteen other families of Saints here. On November 23 we had the pleasure of troubling the waters, feeling the Lord's approval of the work done, and also receiving the assurance that others would follow in the future. Thus began the work of God in this place.

Space will not permit me to tell how I happened to come here from my home in Fort Madison; but I followed the direction of the Spirit, and am very thankful I did so. Brother W. E. Williams, of Hiteman, Iowa, has come here and is at work in the roundhouse. He expects to move his family here. So we will keep the campfire blazing. Brother Williams expects to speak at my home Sunday evening. My neighbors are willing to come in and hear.

Elder Petre left here on November 28 for other parts of the field. He expects to return with the tent next summer. Hoping we may have the prayers of all the Saints, and the assistance of our Father in heaven, we will move on to accomplish all we can for the Master's cause in this place.

As ever, your brother in Christ,

SOLOMON TRIPP.

CALDWELL, TEXAS, November 30, 1913.

Editors Herald: We are still in the land of the living, and in the faith. The Bible says, somewhere, Sow thy seed in the morning, and withhold not your hand in the evening, for you know not which is to prosper.

I came into the church about twenty-five years ago. I have sent my folks who lived in the State of Tennessee a lot of the literature of the church, consequently two of my brothers and their wives became converts and members of the church. My youngest brother moved to Oklahoma several years ago. He and his family have been isolated from the church ever since. He now lives at Texola, Oklahoma.

One of his daughters, who is now over twenty-one years old, wished for five years to be baptized into the church. Her desires became so great that she decided to visit us in Texas, and to be baptized. So she came five hundred miles to be baptized. Like the eunuch, after her baptism she went on her way rejoicing. She was baptized by Elder John M. Nunley, one of her first cousins. It is a demonstrated fact that she was in good earnest about the matter. Thus have been borne fruits of my first labors in the church, for which I am thankful. I am still sowing the seed of the pure gospel, expecting the later sowing to prosper also.

My niece who was baptized is teaching school at Erick, Oklahoma. Her name is Lilly Nunley, her father's name is T. J. Nunley; they would be glad to have an elder visit them at any time, and preach some in that section (at Texola). I notice a letter from Sister Josie Helms, of Louisiana. I remember her well. I baptized her many years ago. She, too, represents fruit of my early sowing.

I am still yours for truth and righteousness now, and for ever.

E. W. NUNLEY.

MOUNT HOPE, WEST VIRGINIA, December 1, 1913.

Editors Herald: The HERALD is good for both the sheep and lambs. It is the best church paper published in the world. Many pages are marked and put on file in my office.

Yours respectfully,

LOCK BOX 258.

A. VERNON.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND, December 1, 1913.

Editors Herald: The church papers are very helpful to us, with their instructions. We enjoy reading them from week to week.

We recently had the benefit of a series of meetings in our branch conducted by Brethren H. O. Smith and Paul Hanson. Brother J. W. Davis, our pastor, deserves much credit as a faithful worker among us.

Yours for the triumph of this great latter-day work.

HENRY W. ARNOLD.

News from Missions

Sweden.

Perhaps a few lines from this part of the Lord's vineyard would be of interest to the readers of the HERALD. I arrived here the second of August, 1912, after an absence from this field of a little less than three years.

I found Brother Oscar Johnson and his wife at work here in the capital city of Sweden. They had been here about two years, and had labored hard to get a foothold in the city; and no one, unless he has tried himself, knows what that means—to get into a city like this, with so many rules and ordinances to observe before a person can start, especially if he is going to get a hall that has not been used for that purpose before. He finally succeeded in getting located, securing a nice little hall.

The rent is the hardest problem in this city. It is higher here than in any other city in the country. So help at any time and from any one is highly appreciated. We are thankful for help received up to the present time; but we would like to see more interest in this mission by the Swedish Saints in America. Some of them have stood by us nobly. There are others who could help this mission, I think.

At present we have a few faithful Saints in Stockholm. When I say faithful, I mean that in its fullest sense. I will give you one sample. A widow (with two boys) was baptized last spring. She has not, to my knowledge, missed any meetings up to the present. She always has something to put in the collection. She was the first one to pay her part to apply on the church debt. The writer is a frequent guest at her table. She is always ready to give for railroad fare when needed. Besides herself and the house rent she has her two boys to care for, with many other things that could be mentioned. Some may think she has a good income. She is sewing boys' pants, four to twelve years, and gets from four to thirteen cents a pair, and furnishes the thread.

I wonder how many of our American sisters would want to do that kind of work. They are not to be blamed if they would not want to do it, because if anything is slavery that is. Some one is making money out of it. No wonder the Apostle James said: "Ye have heaped treasure together for the last day. Behold the hire of the laborers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth; and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts, as in a day of slaughter. Ye have condemned and killed the just; and he doth not resist you." (James 5: 4-6.)

It makes no difference whether such work is done by those outside or inside the church (only the greater the light, the greater the condemnation) they will all receive their just reward, or condemnation. But I often wonder, How long, O Lord, can such things exist! Stores packed with goods, and the masses of the people are too poor to buy! Such conditions will certainly have to come to an end soon!

A few days ago I received goods for a suit of clothes (my first experience of the kind in seven years) from a brother who has no more than he needs for his own support; but we can all see what the gospel will bring people to do; that is, if they see it in its right light. Such liberality surely testifies to the truthfulness of the statement, This is a day of sacrifice. We delight in working among people who like to help the work along in every needful way. I believe there are many of that kind in this country, but the great question is how to reach them. We are compelled to rent halls if we expect to preach at all to the people, because we are not allowed to preach on the streets.

We have lately started a Sunday school in the city, and it is doing very well. At present I am laboring here alone, as Brother Johnson left October 14. So I will have to fight the battle alone, at least for the winter, but hope to see some one willing to come here in the spring. It does not pay to let the work go down.

We appreciate the help we have received from some of the Saints in America, and hope that the helping hand can be extended in the future, not only for this mission, but for the missions all over the Lord's vineyard.

I have learned many a lesson since I came here this time. I do not wonder that the Lord gave a revelation in the early days of the church telling the elders and Saints to obtain a knowledge of history, of countries, of kingdoms, of laws of God and man, etc., and to study all good books. I can see now, as never before, the need of an institution like Grace-land College, where the youth can be prepared and better fitted to meet the time that is confronting the church. I think the church will have to meet that which now and in the future, both at home and abroad, will require a knowledge of all the things mentioned above. We hope and long for the time when Zion will shine in all her beauty. Hope the time is not far distant when the Lord can and will display his power to the leading lights of the nations.

We rejoice in having a part in this great work, and hope to be able to have a part in it at the consummation of all things.

Yours in the conflict for truth,
OSCAR W. OKERLIND.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN, St. Paulsgatan 17, 1 tr.

Western Wales.

I am sorry to say that the work in the Western Wales District has been at a very low ebb for a long time, but am pleased to report that conditions are changing. I believe through the efforts put forth the district will be put into a good working condition. The Saints are beginning to understand their duty, and there is quite a movement forward throughout the district, both with the Saints and the ministry.

I may say that the president of the mission has the work of the Lord at heart. He has taken a great interest in Wales, and I am thankful to God that the church appointed Brother Greenwood this work. He has done well in organizing the work in Wales. We hope he will be reappointed. We feel that he has done a great work.

I have had the privilege of leading nine souls through the waters of regeneration during the past two months; and I am pleased to say that others are very near the kingdom.

We were permitted to reorganize the work in Neath on Sunday, November 17, when the Skeven Branch by resolution became known as the Neath Branch, the president of the mission visiting us for the purpose. A full organization was effected, and now the opportunity is afforded the brethren of going on to perfection and victory. We hope to provide in the near future for a better organization of the work in Llanelly. We have appointed F. Simmons to visit this branch, and minister to the wants of the Saints, etc.

Much harm has come to the work here owing to the emigration of the Saints in bygone days. In fact, the work has suffered all through Wales from the same cause, whole families leaving for the promised land. I hope that no more Saints leave this land before the time of the gathering comes. I do honestly believe that when that time shall come the Lord will reveal it.

I am glad to say that the Porth Branch is coming up nicely. I shall do all I can to move it on again. We have been blessed of late with mighty power from the Lord.

The Neath Saints have rented a large chapel, capable of holding some three hundred people; just the place for a mission conference. It has a very nice baptismal font. Elder T. J. Picton was selected as president of the branch. Elder Henry Ellis kindly consented to act as teacher for a short time. F. Jones was elected as priest. Brother George Jones was ordained a deacon and was elected as deacon of the branch. F. Simmons was elected secretary, Sister Wheeler treasurer. May God bless them, that they may in unity perform a great work for the Master.

Brother John Pughsley is in charge of Aberaman, where they have a nice little chapel. Porth and Gilfach are in my personal charge. Pontyeates is presided over by Edward Williams, and John Thomas and William Crouch are in charge of the mission at Pontrhydyfen.

We are well pleased with the efforts put forth by Bishop May. He has preached some able discourses upon the law of tithing; etc. The Saints are beginning to realize their duty in this respect. I think also that he has done excellent work in London. May God bless and help him in the future.

The western district is very large and the branches are scattered, so that it is very difficult for me to visit every part as often as I would like; but I am doing the best I can for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God.

We extend kindest greeting to all the Welsh Saints in America. If they care to assist in maintaining our big chapel in Neath we should be very pleased to hear from them.

Your brother,
JOHN J. JENKINS.

Miscellaneous Department

Conference Minutes.

SPokane.—Convened December 13, in Spokane, Washington, E. A. Davis and T. C. Kelley in charge. Statistical reports: Ellensburg, 15; Sagle, 50; Spokane, 329. Bishop's agent reported: Receipts, $673.82; expenditures, $664.70. Treasurer reported: Receipts, $12.75; expenditures, $10.06. Auditors reported accounts correct. Delegates selected to General Conference: Margaret Fordham, Oliver Turnbull, Mary Bastain, Katherine Wright, Emma Bell. R. A. McDole and George Johnston, of Spokane Branch, were ordained to office of elder, and William Wood, same branch, priest. E. A. Davis resigned as president and George Johnson was elected. T. C. Kelley resigned as vice president, and Robert A. McDole was elected. On motion rule five was rescinded. Spokane was chosen as place for next conference, in June. Preaching by T. C. Kelley. W. W. Fordham, secretary, South 238 Haven Street, Spokane, Washington.

CENTRAL NEBRASKA.—Met at Bonesteel, South Dakota, August 16, W. E. Kester and J. W. Smith presiding. Statistical reports: Inman, Clearwater, Meadow Grove, Bonesteel, showing a membership of 352; net gain, 7. Levi Gamet reported as bishop's agent: Receipts, $508.57; disbursements, $508.52. Action on recommendation for ordination of J. G. Bills, of Comstock, Nebraska, to office of elder, deferred, was referred to Brother Kester with power to act. Preaching by Levi Gamet, W. E. Kester, J. W. Smith. Five were baptized. Adjourned to meet with Clearwater Branch in February, date referred to district president. Mrs. F. J. Seeley, secretary conference; F. S. Gatenby, secretary.

NORTHEASTERN KANSAS.—Met on the reunion grounds at Blue Rapids, Kansas, September 19, Frank G. Hedrick, John W. Rushton, F. A. Cool presiding. Statistical reports: Centralia 32, Atchison 93, Blue Rapids 154, Idylwild 64, Scranton 100, Topeka 59, Fanning 122; net gain 11. Amendments to district by-laws presented, to be acted upon next conference. Brother Rushton addressed the conference with words of timely advice and counsel. Brother Hedrick was elected member of Graceland scholarship committee. Time and place of next conference referred to district presidency. Emma Hedrick, secretary.

Convention Notices.

Florida Sunday school will meet January 9, at Cold Water church, near Botts, Florida, at 2 p. m. Send reports in time for convention. Election of officers. S. M. McCall, secretary, Berrydale, Florida.

Southern Nebraska Religio and Sunday school will meet in joint convention at Nebraska City, January 7, at 7.30, continuing all day Friday. Send reports promptly after December 29. Mrs. Blanche I. Andrews, Bethany, Nebraska, secretary for Sunday school; Edith Trask, Fairfield Nebraska, secretary for Religio.

North Dakota Sunday school will convene at Minot, North Dakota, January 10. Would like each school represented. Emilie M. McLeod, secretary.

Notice to Saskatchewan Saints.

Parties attending conventions and conference with Minnesota Branch, near Vanscoy, January 15 to 18, are notified that regular trains will be met and all comers cared for.

A. E. NUNN.

Quorum of Twelve.

To the Members of the Twelve and Those in Charge of Missions; Greeting: I have sent out the application blanks to each of the ones who are in charge of the several missions, to the addresses either home or field. Should any fail to receive them, please let me know at once, and I will forward another batch.

I have sent new blanks upon which to make up the list of recommendations to the Quorum of Twelve, with columns marked for all of the usual information. There is also an extra sheet provided so that each one may retain a copy. We take the liberty of suggesting that each one make out the list on a typewriter.

If all the brethren in charge will please fill out these blanks and send them to my address not later than March 10, 1914, it will be a courtesy very much esteemed and will go a long way towards facilitating the work of the quorum.

Trusting to have your cooperation,

JOHN W. RUSHTON, Secretary of the Twelve.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, 701 North Cottage.

Conference Notices.

Northeastern Nebraska will convene at Omaha, January 17, 9 a. m., northwest corner of Twenty-fourth and Ohio streets. Officers are to be elected. Anna Hicks, secretary.

Correction.

The name appearing in the minutes of Alabama district conference, HERALD for December 3, as E. C. Shelby, should have been C. E. Shelley. W. H. Drake, assistant secretary.

Married.

In San Jose, California, December 6, 1913, Brother Clarence Cato and Miss Marjorie Whitehead, were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony, it being the first marriage ceremony performed in the Saints' new church. Elder C. W. Hawkins, pastor of the San Jose Branch, said the pleasing words which made two young hearts glad; and solved the mathematical problem, "How many are one and one?" Answer, One. May peace and joy attend them through life. C. W. Hawkins.

Died.

CARPENTER.—Charles Turney Carpenter died at his home at McDermott, Ohio, December 15, 1913, age 67 years, 6 months, 28 days. He was baptized October 20, 1912, since when he has lived true to the work. He died with the hope of the first resurrection. Service at the Methodist Church in McDermott; sermon by N. L. Booker.

Craven.—Joseph D. Craven was born at Richmond, Missouri, December 28, 1884; baptized May 22, 1893; married February 21, 1906; died December 14, 1913, of inflammation of the bowels. He leaves wife, two sons, one daughter, mother, three brothers, three sisters. Services at Methodist church, attended by a large number of relatives and friends; Richard Ferguson in charge; sermon by J. T. Ford; interment in neighborhood cemetery. He was an honorable man.

SUTTON.—Thomas A. Sutton was born July 2, 1841; died November 20, 1913, at Warnock, Ohio. He was a member of the church for thirty-five years. His wife preceded him seven years. He leaves one son, one daughter, three brothers, two sisters, many friends. Funeral from the home; sermon by James Craig, of Glen Easton, West Virginia.

HANEY.—George Thomas Haney was born July 29, 1912; died July 27, 1913. The loss of their only child was a sore trial to Brother and Sister Haney. All that love could do was done for the little sufferer by both parents and physician, and by administration, yet it pleased the Lord to take the child to himself. Funeral conducted by James McConnaughy.

McCAY.—Evelin Lucile McCay was born December 5, 1910; died December 8, 1913. A brother and sister preceded her. She leaves father, mother, two brothers, three sisters. She was the pride and life of the home, loved by all who knew her; a very promising child. Funeral in charge of Brother Rhoads; sermon by James McConnaughy.

DUNCAN.—Mrs. L. C. Duncan, wife of W. C. Duncan deceased, passed away at her home in Spokane, Washington, October 21, 1913. She leaves five daughters, Mrs. S. C. Weaver, Mrs. C. L. Potter, Mrs. D. H. Czum, Mrs. C. A. Mitchell, a single daughter, Stella Duncan, mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Flanders, sister, Mrs. J. N. York, three brothers, G. J. Douglass, William Flanders, and O. E. Flanders.

PAGE.—Iva M. Page was born at Whitmore, Kansas, May 16, 1868; died at Independence, Missouri, December 18, 1913. She was baptized at Honney Creek, Iowa. She leaves husband, whom she married February 7, 1900, mother, four brothers, two sisters. Services conducted by Abner Lloyd, J. C. Foss, and W. H. Garrett. Interment in city cemetery.

EPPERLY.—Martha Doty was born in Lee County, Iowa, September 2, 1846; died December 18, 1913, at Duncan, Illinois. In 1869 she married Eli Epperly. To them were born five children. She was a faithful Saint, a kind mother, a loving wife. She has gone to her bright reward. Funeral from Saints' church, Buffalo Prairie, December 24, 1913, F. A. Smith officiating. Burial in Duncan Cemetery.

PARSONS.—William Y. Parsons was born May 15, 1834, in Grant County, Indiana; died November 29, 1913, at his home in Holden, Missouri. He married Martha A. Kent, February 28, 1856. To them were born nine children. Seven remain, with the aged wife and mother. He was baptized May 7, 1838, by his son, A. H. Parsons, and was ordained to the office of teacher that fall. Service in charge of John W. Layton, Elder Head delivering the words of comfort and exhortation at the house. Burial in Mound Grove Cemetery, Independence, Missouri.

MCWILLIAMS.—Infant son of A. A. and Emma McWilliams, born December 7, near Pleasanton, Iowa, died a few hours after birth. Prayer at the home by L. G. Holloway, and at the grave by F. A. Smith, burial in Hamilton Cemetery.

ALLEN.—At Cherryvale, Kansas, December 3, 1913, Jacob Allen, aged 86 years and 2 months; born October 3, 1827. He was one of the earliest settlers in Decatur County, Iowa, in 1855, and lived near where Lamoni now stands when the "Colony" advance came here in 1870 and 1871. His wife died in 1904, and he went to live with a son in Kansas. Five children survive him. His body was brought to Lamoni, December 7, for burial and a brief service was held at the grave by H. A. Stebbins. Mr. Allen left an honorable record. He was a soldier, 1863 to 1865.

WHITTIER.—At Tuskeego, Decatur County, Iowa, December 9, 1913, Mrs. Hester Ann Whittier, of paralysis, aged 70 years, 7 months and 4 days. She was born in Indiana. Her parents located in Decatur County in 1858. Her husband was a soldier in the Civil War. He died in 1894. Of six children living, one is a member of the church, Sister Ray Omans, of Saint Joseph, Missouri. She and one sister and two brothers cared for their mother during the seven days she lived after the stroke. Funeral sermon by H. A. Stebbins in the Adventist church, Tuskeego.

A Story a Day.

A story a day for the 365 days of 1914—that is part of what you get by subscribing $2.00 for The Youth's Companion's new volume. The fifty-two weekly issues of The Companion will contain at least 365 stories, and all the other kinds of good reading that can be crowded between two covers—the best advice on athletics for boys, articles on dress and recreations for girls, contributions by famous men and women, suggestions for the care of the health, etc.

For the year's subscription of $2.00 there is included a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar for 1914.

If you want to know more about The Companion before subscribing, send for sample copies containing the opening chapters of Arthur Stanwood Pier's fine serial of life in a boys' school—"His Father's Son." With them we will send the full Announcement for 1914.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION,
144 Berkeley St., Boston, Mass.

New subscriptions received at this office.

The Century.

No prospectus for the year 1914 could express the "new spirit of the Century" so well as the current and the future numbers of the magazine. The program already drawn up is rich and varied, although The Century is too closely in touch with matters of current interest to tie itself down to a twelve months' program in advance. A prophetic trilogy by H. G. Wells will begin in the January number. This is the work of the modern prophet and seer who writes like a pure romancer. The February Century is called the "Midwinter Fiction Number" and contains a group of short stories which alone would make this issue notable. Among these is one by the author of "Madam Butterfly," in which John Luther Long returns to the scene of that classic which, since it was printed in The Century in 1893, has developed first into a play and then into a beautiful opera. The new story is called "The Temple of the Countless Gods." About half of each number of The Century will be devoted to fiction. As the editor declares that "this is, in a real and vital sense, the very age of fiction, we plan that each number beginning with the November Century shall contain, in addition to a leading article on modern conditions, an exceptional fiction feature." In a magazine of the size of The Century this leaves ample space for art, poetry, economics, history, and humor.

Among the papers on vital American subjects scheduled for 1914 are those of Professor Edward A. Ross on Immigration. These are already making the deep impression that the publishers anticipated. It is proposed that the magazine shall continue to lead in literature and art and to be "the leading art magazine of America." The comic section of The Century, "In Lighter Vein," is showing unusual vitality. It is edited on the theory that the best writers and artists enjoy touching upon life in a sprightly way.

St. Nicholas for 1914.

"No art or literature is too good for American boys and girls." This is the principle that St. Nicholas has lived up to for forty years. It is hard to overestimate the influence of this "best-loved of all magazines." A glance at one day's letters received by the editor of St. Nicholas shows the place this magazine holds in the hearts and minds of American children. The publishers' and others' responsibility entailed by this fact is taken very seriously in the office of the Century Company. In these days of changing standards in literature, it is a comfort to be able to rely upon a magazine that, though never namby-pamby, is as clean as a whistle. Among the art features of the coming year are more Mother Goose paintings by the distinguished artist, Arthur Rackham. These pictures make a strong appeal, even to those who have outgrown Mother Goose itself. The Arthur Rackham books are on many a drawing-room table. The current number includes part of a serial, "Miss Santa Claus of the Pullman," by Annie Fellows Johnston, whose readers are numbered literally by scores of thousands through the popularity of her "Little Colonel Books" and other stories. "With Men Who Do Things," by A. Russell Bond is a series that will be continued into 1914 with the same boys as character: but with a wider range of subjects, such as "A Hanging Building," "Freezing Quick-sand," and "A Chimney Built About a Man." Another series of a very practical kind will deal with most if not all of one hundred things that a boy can do or make indoors or out. This is written by F. A. Collins, author of "The Boys' Book of Model Aeroplanes," "The Wireless Man," etc. Caroline Barton French, author of "A Little Cook-Book for a Little Girl," etc., will describe in story form the household emergencies which Mildred (14), Jack (12) and Brownie (9) have to meet. The title of this entertaining and helpful series is "The Housekeeping Adventures of the Junior Blairs"; it will appeal to the scout type of boy, for surely no scout is worth his badge unless he can cook. Ariadne Gilbert continues her remarkable series of biographies, "More than Conquerors," in which she summarizes the lives of the world's most picturesque heroes. More space than ever will be given to articles on nature and science for young folks. The Riddle Box, the Stamp Department, The Book Man Department, and the Advertising Contest will be continued, as well as the various departments of the St. Nicholas League, which monthly absorb the attention of many thousands of young Americans.

Study the lives of those who have succeeded. You will see that they did whatever they did as well as they could.—Backbone.

"Better to strive and climb,
And never reach the goal,
Than to drift along with time—
An aimless, worthless soul.
Aye, better to climb and fall,
Or sow, though the yield be small,
Than to throw away day after day,
And never strive at all."

INDEX TO SAINTS' HERALD, VOLUME 60.

EDITORIAL.

- Acknowledgment, 301.
 Activity of the opposition, 592.
 Adulation, Evil effects of, 251.
 Alma on faith, 373.
 America in prophecy, Joseph's land; or, 759.
 Announcement from the Bureau of Publicity, 711.
 Anti-Saloon League on national prohibition, 1190.
 Appeal, A spirit, 74.
 Appeal for Graceland, An, 1119.
 Appeal to the young, An, 1093.
 Arrested development versus perverted development, 805.
 As reasonable men, 349.
 Assignment of meeting places for quorums, 275.
 At rest, A veteran, 177.
 Attack and of defense, The line of, 445.
 Author of unsigned editorials, 49.
 Autograph Letters from Joseph Smith to his wife Emma, 329.
Autumn Leaves for 1914,
 Baptist consecrates infants, 734.
 Basis of government, Love as a, 2.
 Be ye reconciled to God, 877.
 Bishop's annual report, 361.
 Body of Christ, The, 733.
 Books of Mormon to Lamanite brethren, Presentation of, 376.
 Branch officers, Duties of, 153, 178, 201, 225.
 Branch presidents, Open letter to, 903.
 Briggs, Death of Elder Edmund C., 664.
 Building the house of God, 1069.
 Bureau of Publicity, 1191.
 Bureau of Publicity, Announcement from the, 711.
 Bureau of Publicity, Notice from, 1120, 1216.
 Canadian items, 251.
 Catholicism, "One hundred years of Mormonism"; and one hundred and fifty years of, 273.
 Caution to the ministry, A word of, 926.
 Century of peace, A, 519.
 Character of the ordinances and ceremonies, Sacred and solemn, 781.
 Character sketches of Jesus, 1261.
 Children's Home, The, 1168.
 Christ and preparation therefor, Second coming of, 1297.
 Christmas and the gift of service, 1214.
 Christ, The body of, 733.
 Church and drink, The, 853.
 Church and social service, The, 469.
 Church of Christ, Trouble in the, 709.
 College Day, Graceland, 879, 950.
 Columbus, 758.
 Conference items, 328.
 Conference notes, 350.
 Consecrates infants, Baptist, 734.
 Constitution of the United States inspired, Was the, 1165.
 Constitution, The, 180.
 Contrast in expression, A, 297.
 Converted or inconsistent, Is Utah, 829.
 Correction, A needed, 105.
 Correction, A, 203, 275.
 Cuts for publicity work, 927.
 Day, Graceland College, 950.
 Death of Elder Edmund C. Briggs, 664.
 Death of John R. Haldeman, The, 25.
 Departed, A worthy workman, 130.
 Development versus perverted development, Arrested, 805.
 District and quorum secretaries, Open letter to, 806.
 District presidents, An open letter to, 735.
 Divine rule of evidence, The, 1.
 Drink, The church and, 853.
 Duties of branch officers, 153, 178, 201, 225.
 Endureth to the end, He that, 685.
 Editorial comment on various topics, 25, 493.
 Editorial selections, 424, 447, 472, 639, 712, 1075, 1169.
 Evidence, The divine rule of, 1.
 Evil effects of adulation, 251.
 Expression, A contrast in, 297.
 Faith, Alma on, 373.
 False rumors corrected, 49.
 Fast proclaimed, A, 302.
 Friend gone to his rest, A, 250.
 Function of judging, The, 130.
 General Conference, 361, 377, 397.
 General Conference, A brief review of the late, 422.
 Getting a new start in life, 73.
 Gift of service, Christmas and the, 1214.
 Give than to receive, It is more blessed to, 129.
 God, Be ye reconciled to, 877.
 Gone to his rest, A friend, 250.
 Good news from Toronto and Holden, 177.
 Graceland, An appeal for, 1119.
 Graceland College, 1242.
 Graceland College Day, 879, 950.
 Graceland College opening, 833.
 Graceland College, The Normal Department at, 1023.
 Graceland's industrial shop, 856.
 Graceland Violin Department, 1120.
 "Great is the truth and it shall prevail," 421.
 Great religious ideas advocated by Joseph Smith, 323.
 Haldeman, The death of John R., 25.
 HERALD, Magazine number of the, 251, 300.
 Heredity, A proposed study of, 517.
 Hero, A, 901.
 He that endureth to the end, 685.
 Holden, Good news from Toronto and, 177.
 House of God, Building the, 1069.
 Important notice to members of branches, 1048.
 Important to parents, 75.
 Indian medicine man is dead, An, 421.
 Industrial shop, Graceland's, 856.
 Infants, Baptist consecrates, 734.
 Inspired Version criticized, 973.
 Interesting events, Two, 1048.
 Israel and latter-day vindication, Returning, 782.
 Is Utah converted or inconsistent, 829.
 It is more blessed to give than to receive, 129.
 Jesus, Character sketches of, 1261.
 Jesus our standard, 1141.
 John Wesley and Joseph Smith, 105.
 "Joseph Smith, jr., as a translator," 541.
 Joseph's land; or, America in prophecy, 759.
 Joseph Smith as translator, 155.
 Joseph Smith, John Wesley and, 105.
 Joseph Smith the Martyr, 321.
 Journal of History, 155.
 Judging, The function of, 130.
 Kinney's book in tract form, Review of Mr., 13.
 Lamanite brethren, Presentation of Books of Mormon to, 376.
 Latter-day vindication, Returning Israel and, 782.
 Law and liberty, 1021.
 Lecture by Sir Oliver Lodge, A, 1189.
 Letter to the clergy, An open, 1117.
 Life, Getting a new start in, 73.
 Line of attack and defense, The, 445.
 Lodge, A lecture by Sir Oliver, 1189.
 London Branch, Canada, A protest from the, 27.
 Love as a basis of government, 2.
 Magazine number, Midsummer, 710.
 Magazine number of HERALD, 251, 300.
 Martyr, Joseph Smith the, 321.
 Medicine man is dead, An Indian, 421.
 Meeting places for quorums, Assignment of, 275.
 Midsummer magazine number, 710.
 Ministry, A word of caution to the, 926.
 Montrose, A visit to Nauvoo and the reunion at, 901.
 More blessed to give than to receive, It is, 129.
 Mormonism"; and one hundred and fifty years of Catholicism, "One hundred years of, 273.
 "Mormonism, the Islam of America," A review of, 565, 589, 613.
 Mormon menace, The, 949.
 Nauvoo and the reunion at Montrose, Visit to, 901.
 Needed correction, A, 105.
 Negro problem in America, The, 997.
 Normal Department at Graceland College, The, 1023.
 Notes and comments, 3, 27, 50, 109, 133, 155, 180, 203, 230, 252, 275, 301, 424, 447, 472, 495, 519, 569, 593, 639, 665, 683, 711, 735, 783, 807, 833, 856, 880, 904, 927, 951, 1000, 1023, 1074, 1120, 1146, 1169, 1192, 1262.
 Notice, 546.
 Notice from Bureau of Publicity, 1120, 1216.
 Once again, 1191.
 "One hundred years of Mormonism"; and one hundred and fifty years of Catholicism, 273.
 One thing needful, The, 903.
 Opening Graceland College, 833.
 Open letter to branch presidents, 903.
 Open letter to the clergy, An, 1117.
 Open letter to district presidents, An, 735.
 Open letter to district and quorum secretaries, 806.
 Open letter to quorum presidents, 783.
 Opposition, Activity of the, 592.
 Ordinances and ceremonies, Sacred and solemn character of the, 781.
 Our regards to the Word of Truth, 661.
 Our standard, Jesus, 1141.
 Parents, Important to, 75.
 Peace, A century of, 519.
 People, A reunited, 664.
 Perverted development, Arrested development versus, 805.
 Present revelation, The question of, 637.
 Present tense, Religion of the, 299.
 Presentation of Books of Mormon to the Lamanite brethren, 376.
 Prohibition, Anti-Saloon League on national, 1190.
 Proposed study in heredity, A, 517.

Protest from the London Branch, Canada, A, 27.
 Publicity Announcement from the Bureau of, 711.
 Publicity, Bureau of, 1191.
 Publicity work, Cuts for, 927.
 Question of present revelation, The, 637.
 Questions and answers, 301.
 Quorum presidents, Open letter to, 783.
 Quorum secretaries, Open letter to district and, 806.
 Quorums, Assignment of meeting places for, 275.
 Reasonable men, As, 349.
 Reconciled to God, Be ye, 877.
 Religio convention, 351.
 Religion in the present tense, 299.
 Religious ideas advocated by Joseph Smith, Great, 323.
 Religious lobby be proper, Would a, 546.
 Republic, A shortlived, 249.
 Returning Israel and latter-day vindication, 782.
 Reunion at Montrose, A visit to Nauvoo and the, 901.
 Reunited people, A, 664.
 Revelation, The question of present, 637.
 Review of "Mormonism, the Islam of America," A, 565, 589, 613.
 Review of the late General Conference, A brief, 422.
 Review of Mr. Kinney's book in tract form, The, 613.
 Rumors corrected, False, 49.
 Sacred and solemn character of the ordinances and ceremonies, 781.
 Second coming of Christ and preparation therefor, 1237.
 Secretaries, Open letter to district and quorum, 806.
 Service, Christmas and the gift of, 1214.
 Short-lived republic, A, 249.
 Smith as a translator, Joseph, 155.
 Smith, Great religious ideas advocated by Joseph, 323.
 Smith, the Martyr, Joseph, 321.
 Smith to his wife Emma, Autograph letters from Joseph, 329.
 Social service, The church and, 469.
 Spalding Romance theory has rival, The, 638.
 Special work for everyone, 665.
 Spirit appeal, A, 74.
 Stanton on the three witnesses, Reverend W. A., 1045.
Stepping Stones, Why every boy and girl should have, 1145.
 Sunday school convention, 357.
 Sunday services, 375.
 Superstition, 925.
 Theory has rival, The Spalding Romance, 638.
 Three witnesses, Reverend W. A. Stanton on the, 1045.
 Toronto and Holden, Good news from, 177.
 Translator, Joseph Smith as, 155.

Translator," "Joseph Smith, jr., as a, 541.
 Trouble in the Church of Christ, 709.
 Truth and it shall prevail," "Great is, 421.
 Two interesting events, 1048.
 Unknown grave, The, 322.
 Unsigned editorials, Author of, 49.
 Utah converted or inconsistent, Is, 829.
 Various topics, Editorial comment on, 25, 493.
 Verdict confirmed, The, 1168.
 Veteran at rest, A, 177.
 Violin Department, Grace-land, 1120.
 Visit to Nauvoo, and the reunion at Montrose, A, 901.
 Was the Constitution of the United States inspired, 1165.
 Why every boy and girl should have Stepping Stones, 1145.
 Word of caution to the ministry, A, 926.
Word of Truth, Our regards to the, 661.
 Work for everyone, Special, 665.
 Worthv workman departed, A, 130.
 Would a religious lobby be proper, 546.
 Young, An appeal to the, 1093.

HYMNS AND POEMS.

Armies of peace, The, 520.
 At the cross-roads, 496.
 Auld Lang Syne, 923.
 Beautiful house of to-day, The, 713.
 Blessing of the butterflies, The, 569.
 Bond, The, 928.
 Burden, The white man's, 857.
 Butterflies, Blessing of the, 569.
 Carthage jail. Old, 619.
 Columbus, 758.
 Coming of the King, The, 4.
 Consecration. Hope and, 857.
 Crisis, The, 414.
 Christmas bells, 1216.
 Christmas carmen, A, 1216.
 Christ story retold, 1216.
 Crossing the bar, 619.
 Cross-roads, At the, 496.
 Gettysburg fifty years after—July 1, 1913, 713.
 God is here, My, 570.
 Good word of God, The, 808.
 Guests at Yule, 68.
 Hills, Over the, 808.
 Hope and consecration, 857.
 Hymn, A, 109.
 In memory of W. C. Nirk, 134.
 King, The coming of the, 4.
 Liberation, 689.
 Mill, The old, 808.
 My God is here, 570.
 Nirk, In memory of W. C., 134.
 Oh soul, 520.
 Old Carthage jail, 619.
 Old mill, The, 808.
 One among men, To one who was, 1216.
 Over the hills, 808.
 Peace, The armies of, 520.
 Prayer, The, 689.
 Restoration, 496.
 Sleep, 4.
 Songs used during General Conference, 432.
 Soul, Oh, 520.
 Spring song, 520.
 Through the year, 713.
 To-day, The beautiful house of, 713.
 To-day, What have we done, 619.
 To one who was one among men, 1216.
 Unknown grave, The, 322.
 Waiting, 134, 808.
 What have we done to-day, 619.
 White man's burden, The, 857.
 Word of God, The good, 808.
 Work, 203.
 Youth, 857.

ORIGINAL ARTICLES.

Abolished, Has priesthood been, 502.
 Air, beating the, 837.
 Among our poets, 337.
 An address to the young, 1193.
 Anniversaries and special days in the Gallands Grove District, 911.
 Another's experience in distributing the printed word, 790.
 Another leaf from life, 184.
 Apostle, The duties of an, 643.
 Archibald, Russell, Duties of a pastor, 1031.
 Asleep in Jesus, 647.
 Bannister, W. D., Charity and jealousy, 959.
 Baptism, 929.
 Baptism of children, The, 161.
 Baptist notes, Methodist and, 1176.
 Beating the air, 837.
 Before the people, Getting the gospel, 302.
 Bishop, The duty of a, 594.
 Bible school, The summer vacation, 772.
 Bishop, Some things we may expect from a, 623.
 Blessings, Patriarchal, 839.
 Bodv earthy and transition, 1098.
 Bond, M. H., Duties of a pastor, 1030.
 Booker, N. L., Value and methods of tent work, 770.
 Book of Mormon as a translation, The, 577, 598.
 Book of Mormon prophecy concerning the Indians, 773.
 Book of Mormon, Twelve reasons why I believe the, 232, 253.
 Booker, The search for good, 1263.
 Book that impressed me most, The, 1152.
 Branch presidents, Duties of, 886.
 Branch secretary, Duties of the, 1102.
 Brooks, Nina, Capital punishment, 4.

Bullard, Richard, Gather to, and build up Zion, 907;
 Shake off the dust, 158;
 Some things we may expect from a bishop, 623.
 Burgess, S. A., Graceland College, 575.
 Butterworth, Charles E., Revival services, 276;
 The work of the patriarch and evangelical minister, 666.
 Campbell, Duncan, Our present condition, 953.
 Campbellism, Failures of, 448, 473, 500, 521, 547, 572, 601, 620, 640, 669, 690, 718.
 Capital punishment, 4.
 Capital punishment lawful, Is, 140.
 Carpenter, C. I., Duties of the branch secretary, 1102.
 Carthage, The tragedy at, 335.
 Case, Hubert, The church the Indians have long looked for, 156.
 Celebrates anniversary, Gallands Grove, 1080.
 Character and purpose of patriarchal blessings, The, 668.
 Character sketches of Joseph Smith the Martyr, 333.
 Charity and jealousy, 959.
 Children, Our duty to our, 885.
 Children, The baptism of, 161.
 Christian life, The, 859.
 Christian science, The, 1152.
 Christian Science philosophy, Error of, 454.
 Church and scholarship, The, 881.
 Church and social service, The, 477.
 Church behavior, Hints on, 1008.
 Churches, What is wrong with the, 838.
 Church, the Indians have long looked for, The, 156.
 College, Graceland, 575.
 Conduct a prayer meeting, How to, 638.
 Conduct the prayer service, How to, 230.
 Cooper, F. M., Joseph Smith; his prophecies, 363; Latter Day Saintism as seen from a Latter Day Saint viewpoint, 28.
 Cooner, R. T., The priest and his work, 411; Lamanite traditions, 1264.
 Corson, Alice R., Why I am what I am, 51.
 Cousins, Charles, Duties of branch presidents, 886.
 Cox, G. N., Parents in the Lord, 696; Salvation after death, 56.
 Craig, Paul N., The summer vacation Bible school, 772.
 Creation, The will of God in, 1075.
 Crumley, Charles E., Joseph Smith: his reaffirmation of the eternal verities, 338.
 Death, salvation after, 56.
 Death, Triumph over, 455.
 Debates, Public, 716.
 Debate, Propositions for, 426.
 Debates, Religious, 737, 785.

- Denver Indian convention, The, 1151.
- Derry, Charles, Another's experience in distributing the printed word, 790.
- Derry, Charles, The character and purpose of patriarchal blessings, 668.
- Dexter, W. R., The Book of Mormon as a translation, 577, 598.
- "Did Joseph Smith walk on water," 858.
- Director, The, 338.
- Discouragements, Human, 815.
- Distributing literature, 692.
- Distributing the printed word, Another experience in, 790.
- Distribution and uses, Joseph Smith; his attitude toward property, its, 343.
- Doctrine, Necessity of, 757.
- Dust, Shake off the, 158.
- Duties of a pastor, A symposium on the, 1030.
- Duties of an apostle, The, 643.
- Duties of a high priest, The, 570.
- Duties of branch presidents, 886.
- Duties of seventies, History and, 978.
- Duties of the branch secretary, 1102.
- Duties of the office of teacher, 523.
- Duty of a bishop, The, 594.
- Duty of the priest, The, 425.
- Duty to our children, Our, 885.
- Ebeling, F. J., Beating the air, 837; Temporalities; our present duty, 1220; Tent work, 497.
- Education, Importance of, 1175.
- Effect of persecution on religion, The, 791.
- Eliot, F. V., The reformation, 863.
- Endowment, The, 1244.
- Equality, 206, 237, 256.
- Error of Christian Science philosophy, 454.
- Eternal verities, Joseph Smith; his reaffirmation of the, 338.
- Ethical teacher, The, 1121.
- Etzenhouser, Mrs. M. A., How can the church through branch and district officers keep in touch with Religio and Sunday school work so as to secure the best results for the work, 768.
- Evangelical minister, Work of the patriarch and, 666.
- Evangelized our city, How we, 159.
- Ever called the Sabbath in the New Testament, Is Sunday, 739.
- Evil, The lesson of, 452.
- Experience in distributing the printed word, Another, 790.
- Failures of Campbellism, 448, 473, 500, 521, 547, 572, 601, 620, 640, 669, 690, 718.
- Faith, 30, 958.
- Faith confirmed by results Our, 526.
- Farthing, R. J., The effect of persecution on religion, 791.
- Fields, S. H., Unwise zeal, 1101.
- Fike, Lyman W., Self-denial, 1171.
- Finished course, The, 740.
- Forgiveness, 1266.
- Fry, Charles, Suggestions to teachers, 549; Twelve reasons why I believe the Book of Mormon, 232, 252.
- Fundamentals of the Order of Enoch, 78.
- Gallands Grove celebrates anniversary, 1080.
- Gallands Grove District, Anniversaries and special days in, 911.
- Gather to, and build up Zion, 907.
- Garver, J. F., Asleep in Jesus, 647; How to conduct the prayer service, 230.
- General suggestions; new openings; their value, 137.
- Getting into the newspapers, 110.
- Getting the gospel before the people, 302.
- Gilbert, J. W., Equality, 206, 237, 256.
- God in creation, The will of, 1075.
- Good books, The search for, 1263.
- Goodly inheritance, The, 164.
- Graceland College, 575.
- Grainger, John C., The church and social service, 477.
- Gray, Addie, Leaves from life, 6.
- Great Britain, The "Rota Plan" in, 181.
- Greenwood, W. H., The "Rota Plan" in Great Britain, 181.
- Gresty, W. H., My model preacher, 1007.
- Griffiths, Gomer T., The duties of an apostle, 643.
- Hammond, E. G., The right way, 905.
- Hanson, Paul M., Public debates, 716.
- Harrington, G. E., Duties of the office of teacher, 223.
- Has priesthood been abolished, 502.
- Haworth, W. J., Has priesthood been abolished, 502; Is Sunday ever called the Sabbath in the New Testament, 739.
- High priest, The duties of, 570.
- Hints on church behavior, 1008.
- Hintz, H. A., Necessity of doctrine, 957.
- History and duties of seventies, 978.
- Historical article upon the Inspired Version, 497.
- Holloway, Leonard G., Religious debates, 737.
- Horse and man live contemporaneously on the North American Continent in prehistoric times, 278.
- How can the church through branch and district officers keep in touch with Religio and Sunday school work so as to secure the best results for the work, 768.
- How to conduct a prayer meeting, 883.
- How to conduct the prayer service, 230.
- How we evangelized our city, 159.
- Human discouragements, 815.
- Hunt, C. J., Anniversaries and special days in Gallands Grove District, 911.
- Importance of education, 1175.
- Independence Sanitarium, Sixteen days in the, 789.
- Indian convention, The Denver, 1151.
- Indians, Book of Mormon prophecy concerning the, 773.
- Indians have long looked for, The church the, 156.
- Indian situation, past and present, The, 809.
- Infidel methods examined, 1052.
- Ingham, Edward, Priesthood, what is it, 261.
- Inheritance, The goodly, 164.
- Inspired Version, Historical article upon the, 497.
- International Purity Congress, 1170.
- Is capital punishment lawful, 140.
- Is Sunday ever called the Sabbath in the New Testament, 739.
- Jackson, A. E., Faith, 958.
- Jealousy, Charity and, 959.
- Jesus, Asleep in, 647.
- Joseph Smith; his attitude toward property, its distribution and uses, 343.
- Joseph Smith; his influence on modern religious ideas, 365.
- Joseph Smith, his prophecies, 363.
- Joseph Smith; his reaffirmation of the eternal verities, 338.
- Joseph Smith; Reminiscences of, 982.
- Joseph Smith the Martyr, Character sketches of, 333.
- Joseph Smith walk on water," "Did, 858.
- Kearney, Eleanor Waldorf, The tomb of the Martyrs, 337.
- Kirtland Temple, 764.
- Knisley, Alvin, The value of new openings, 861.
- Lamanite traditions, 1264.
- Lambert, J. R., Propositions for debate, 426; The second offense, 134.
- LaRue, William E., Getting into the newspapers, 110.
- Latter Day Saintism as seen from a Latter Day Saint viewpoint, 28.
- Laying on of hands, 1122.
- Leaf from life, Another, 184.
- Leaves from life, Addie Gray, 6.
- Lesson of evil, The, 452.
- Lewis, William, Patriarchal blessings, 839; The standing minister and the missionary, 714.
- L. H., The search for good books, 1263.
- Life, The Christian, 859.
- Literature, Distributing, 692.
- Little things that count, 936.
- Long, E. E., New openings, 204; The failures of Campbellism, 448, 473, 500, 521, 547, 572, 601, 620, 640, 669, 690, 718.
- Lord, Parents in the, 696.
- Lord's supper, Sacrament of the, 1001, 1025, 1049.
- Love, Redeeming, 456.
- Luff, Joseph, The body earthy and transition, 1098; The finished course, 740.
- Macgregor, Daniel, New openings; their value; general suggestions, 137.
- Macgregor, Margaret, Distributing literature, 692.
- McKiernan, James, History and duties of seventies, 978.
- Man live contemporaneously on the North American Continent in prehistoric times, Horse and, 278.
- Martyrs, The tomb of the, 337.
- Meetings, Revival, 813.
- Methodist and Baptist notes, 1176.
- Methods of tent work, Value and, 770.
- Methods, value, and results, Tracting, 76.
- Miguel, Patrick, Lamanite traditions, 1264.
- Miller, A. G., What must I do to be saved, 841.
- Miller, C. Edward, Tracting; methods, value, and results, 76; Horse and man live contemporaneously on the North American Continent in prehistoric times, 278.
- Miller, O. R., Triumph over death, 455; Hints on church behavior, 1008.
- Mills, Arthur H., The Denver Indian convention, 1151.
- Mintun, J. F., Another leaf from life, 184; Zion, the pure in heart, 1243.
- Missionary, The standing minister and the, 714.
- Missionary work, Some thoughts relating to, 834.
- Modern religious ideas, Joseph Smith; his influence on, 365.
- Moler, H. E., "Did Joseph Smith walk on water," 858; Getting the gospel before the people, 302.
- My model preacher, 1007.
- Necessity of doctrine, 957.
- New openings, 204.
- New openings; their value; general suggestions, 137.
- New openings, The value of, 861.
- Newspapers, Getting into the, 110.
- Openings, New, 204.
- Opening session speeches, 391.
- Order of Enoch, Fundamentals of the, 78.

- Our duty to our children, 885.
Our faith confirmed by results, 526.
Our present condition, 953.
Our spiritual bodies, 937.
Parents in the Lord, 696.
Parkin, Charles A., Stewardship, 1029.
Parr, Hazel M., Our spiritual bodies, 937.
Past and present, The Indian situation, 809.
Pastor, Duties of a, 1031.
Patriarchal blessings, 839.
Patriarchal blessings, The character and purpose of, 668.
Patriarch and evangelical minister, The work of the, 666.
Pender, W. S., Baptism, 929.
Perrie, Emmaline A., 1218.
Persecution on religion, The effect of, 791.
Peterson, J. W., How we evangelized our city, 159.
Pitt, Frederick G., How to conduct a prayer meeting, 883.
Porter, C. H., Who then may be saved, 1009.
Practical work of the priest's office, 408.
Prayer meeting, How to conduct, 883.
Prayer service, How to conduct, the, 230.
Preacher, My model, 1007.
Present condition, Our, 953.
Presidents, Duties of branch, 886.
Priest and his work, The, 411.
Priesthood been abolished, Has, 502.
Priesthood, what is it, 261.
Priest's office, Practical work of the, 408.
Priest, The duty of the, 425.
Printer's ink, The virtues of, 934.
Printed word, Another's experience in distributing the, 790.
Property, its distribution and uses, Joseph Smith; his attitude toward, 343.
Prophecies, Joseph Smith, his, 863.
Prophecy concerning the Indians, Book of Mormon, 773.
Propositions for debate, 426.
Public debates, 716.
Punishment, Capital, 4.
Pure in heart, Zion, the, 1243.
Purity congress, International, 1170.
Purpose of patriarchal blessings, The character and, 668.
Rannie, Edward, Fundamentals of the Order of Enoch, 78; Gallands Grove celebrates anniversary, 1080; Sixteen days in the Independence Sanitarium, 789; The endowment, 1244; Thinking about Zion, 208.
Redeeming love, 456.
Reformation, The, 863.
Regeneration, 31.
Religion and Sunday school work, so as to secure the best results for the work, How can the church through branch and district officers keep in touch with, 768.
Religion, The effect of persecution on, 791.
Religious debates, 737, 785.
Reminiscences of Joseph Smith, 982.
Restoration, 1146.
Results, Our faith confirmed by, 526.
Revelation to the church, 599.
Revival meetings, 813.
Revivals, 259.
Revival services, 276.
Right way, The, 905.
Roberts, Joseph, Joseph Smith; his attitude toward property, its distribution and uses, 343; The duty of a bishop, 594.
Robertson, Earl, Why do we suffer, 1079.
Roos, F. L. J., Historical article upon the Inspired Version, 497.
"Rota plan" in Great Britain, The, 181.
Rudd, J. F., Tracting; practical results, 76.
Sabbath in the New Testament, Is Sunday ever called the, 739.
Sacrament of the Lord's supper, 1001, 1025, 1049.
Salisbury, Herbert S., Reminiscences of Joseph Smith, 982.
Salvation after death, 56.
Saved, What must I do to be, 841.
Saved, Who then may be, 1009.
Savior comes, Shall all the Saints be asleep when the, 1218.
Schmidt, D. H., Is capital punishment lawful, 140.
Scholarship, The church and, 881.
Scott, C., Some thoughts relating to missionary work, 834.
Scott, S. W. L., Religious debates, 785.
Second offense, The, 134.
Section 130, Doctrine and Covenants, 599.
Self-denial, 1171.
Seventies, History and duties of, 978.
Shake off the dust, 158.
Shall all the Saints be asleep when the Savior comes, 1218.
Shields, John, Revivals, 259.
Side by side, 338.
Siegfried, Mark H., Joseph Smith; his influence on modern religious ideas, 365.
Sixteen days in the Independence Sanitarium, 789.
Smith, Frederick A., An address to the young, 1193.
Smith, Frederick M., Sacrament of the Lord's supper, 1001, 1025, 1049; The church and scholarship, 881; The ethical teacher, 1121; What exercises may be held in our churches, 1217.
Smith, Heman C., Our faith confirmed by results, 526; The will of God in creation, 1075.
Smith, Henry C., Kirtland Temple, 764.
Smith, H. O., Would the world be better off without tobacco, 112.
Smith, John, The duty of the priest, 425.
Smith, Vida E., Side by side, 338.
Social service, The church and, 477.
Some things we may expect from a bishop, 623.
Some thoughts relating to missionary work, 834.
Special days in Gallands Grove District, Anniversaries and, 911.
Spiritual bodies, Our, 937.
Standing minister and the missionary, The, 714.
Stebbins, H. A., Methodist and Baptist notes, 1176; The baptism of children, 161; The Indian situation, past and present, 809.
Stewardship, 1029.
Stillwagon, Iantha B., Redeeming love, 456.
Suggestions to teachers, 549.
Summer Vacation Bible school, The, 772.
Sunday ever called the Sabbath in the New Testament, Is, 739.
Switzer, Ella M., The book that impressed me most, 1152.
Symposium on the duties of a pastor, A, 1030.
Tanner, Joseph A., The duties of a high priest, 570.
Temporalities; our present duty, 1220.
Terry, J. M., Duties of a pastor, 1032.
Teacher, Duties of the office of, 523.
Teachers, Suggestions to, 549.
Teacher, The ethical, 1121.
Temple, Kirtland, 764.
Tent work, 497.
Tent work, Value and methods of, 770.
Things that count, Little, 936.
Thinking about Zion, 208.
Thoughts relating to missionary work, Some, 834.
Tobacco, Would the world be better off without, 112.
Tomb of the Martyrs, The, 337.
Tracting; methods, value, and results, 76.
Traditions, Lamanite, 1264.
Tragedy at Carthage, The, 335.
Transition, The body earthy and, 1098.
Translation, The Book of Mormon as a, 577, 598.
Triumph over death, 455.
Twelve reasons why I believe the Book of Mormon, 232, 252.
Unwise zeal, 1101.
Value and methods of tent work, 770.
Value of new openings, The, 861.
Vanderwood, J. E., Little things that count, 936; Regeneration, 31.
Virtues of printer's ink, The, 934.
"Walk on water," Did Joseph Smith, 858.
Way, The right, 905.
Webbe, Earnest, The virtues of printer's ink, 934.
What exercises may be held in our churches, 1217.
What is wrong with the churches, 838.
What must I do to be saved, 841.
White, Ammon, Revival meetings, 813.
Who then may be saved, 1009.
Why do we suffer, 1079.
Wight, Estella, The director, 338.
Will of God in creation, The, 1075.
Wixom, George, Practical work of the priest's office, 408; Importance of education, 1175.
Woodstock, Charles B., International purity congress, 1170.
Workingman and his gift, The, 1218.
Work of the patriarch and evangelical minister, The, 666.
Work of the priest's office, Practical, 408.
Would the world be better off without tobacco, 112.
Yates, James E., Book of Mormon prophecy concerning the Indians, 773; Christian Science, 1152; Error of Christian Science philosophy, 454; Faith, 30; The godly inheritance, 164; What is wrong with the churches, 838.
Young, An address to the, 1193.
Younge, J. N., Human disappointments, 815.
Zahnd, John, The lesson of evil, 452.
Zeal, Unwise, 1101.
Zion, Gather to, and build up, 907.
Zion, the pure in heart, 1243.
Zion, Thinking about, 208.

GENERAL INTEREST.

- Abolished, If sleep could be, 305.
African language, religion and cannibalism, 1177.
Alcohol, Ingersoll on, 868.
Amana colony success, 1153.
American civilization, Antiquity of, 457.
American civilization, Pre-historic, 1248.
American Indian, Citizenizing the, 1267.
America's gift to Europe, 116.
America, The hope of Rome, 386.
Ancient city is uncovered, 61.
Antiquity of American civilization, 457.
Appeal for Christian prayers, Chinese, 504.
Archæological discoveries, Important, 938.
Armaments of Europe," "The changing, 457.

- Ask for a receiver, 530.
 Arctic trip, Start on, 580.
 Authorized Version, The, 430.
 Babylonians, Were Mayas, 385.
 Big dam affects Nauvoo, How the, 282.
 Birthmarks, Mongolian, 189.
 Blond Eskimos, The first clew to the, 60.
 Calls to Jews, Palestine, 551.
 Camel of ages agone found at city's edge, 59.
 Campaign against the saloon, The, 865.
 Changing armaments of Europe, The, 457.
 Character of Washington, The, 885.
 Children are never punished, Why Eskimo, 1176.
 Chinese appeal for Christian prayers, 504.
 Church activity, Zion City, 793.
 Churches in Great Britain, Decadence of, 1178.
 Citizenizing the American Indian, 1267.
 Civilization, stimulants, and nerves, 1106.
 Clew to the blond Eskimos, The first, 60.
 Cliff dwellers, What became of the, 141.
 Colony success, Amana, 1153.
 Columbus was a Jew, Thinks, 962.
 Cooperative rural laundry, The, 1033.
 Confessions of a quack, 303.
 Christmas customs, Origin of, 1222.
 Death, From the jaws of, 141.
 Decadence of churches in Great Britain, 1178.
 Delegates, The Zionist, 1153.
 Dentists, Prehistoric American, 1247.
 Descendants of the mighty Incas, The poor, fallen, 413.
 Discoveries, Important archaeological, 938.
 Dreams, 240, 262, 280.
 Each for all, 1034.
 Easy lesson in hygiene, 649.
 Education, Sex, 1104.
 Episcopal Church arraigned, 843.
 Episcopal Church, The real issues in the, 745.
 Episcopal controversy, Protestant, 887.
 Episcopal general convention, 1055.
 Eskimo children are never punished, Why, 1176.
 Eskimos, The first clew to the, 60.
 Eskimo taboos, The, 1056.
 Europe, America's gift to, 116.
 Europe, "The changing armaments of, 457.
 Evangelism and inefficiency, Sectarian, 793.
 Foe within the fold, The, 1081.
 From D'Aubigne's history of the Reformation, 57.
 From the jaws of death, 141.
 General convention, Episcopal, 1055.
 Gift of tongues, The, 368.
 Gift to Europe, America's 116.
 Government protects migratory birds, 890.
 Great Britain and the United States, Good will between, 1268.
 Happiness is hard to grasp, 432.
 Harmony, International, 1248.
 Healing, London Bishop reports, 1082.
 Heaven, The mystery of, 962.
 Hell, The present, 816.
 Higher criticism, Methodism and, 866.
 History of the Reformation, From D'Aubigne's, 57.
 History we want to read, The, 1010.
 Hold optimistic ideals, 430.
 How the big dam affects Nauvoo, 282.
 How to read a book, Learn, 189.
 Hygiene, Easy lesson in, 649.
 Hygiene, Social, 889.
 If sleep could be abolished, 305.
 Important archaeological discoveries, 938.
 Improved conditions among the Indians, 722.
 Incas, The poor, fallen descendants of the mighty, 413.
 Income tax and statistics of incomes, The, 1200.
 Independence vacation Bible school, 794.
 Indian, Citizenizing the American, 1267.
 Indians have a knowledge of the gospel of Jesus Christ, 777.
 Indians, Improved conditions among the, 722.
 Indian's religion, The, 116.
 Indians, The President's message to the, 775.
 Indian tells about Indian prophets, 776.
 Ingersoll on alcohol, 868.
 International harmony, 1248.
 Is Rome losing in numbers, 721.
 Jaws of death, From the, 141.
 Jerusalem, With the Russian pilgrims to, 649.
 Jesus, A Jew's interpretation of, 672.
 "Jewish vote," "Mormon vote," 33.
 Jews are going home, 505.
 Jew's interpretation of Jesus, A, 672.
 Jews, Palestine calls to, 551.
 Jew, Thinks Columbus was a, 962.
 King of Servia's hymn to liberty, The, 386.
 Landslip, A phenomenal, 1153.
 Larger life, The, 211.
 Last journey, Preparing for their, 843.
 Latter Day Saints, The, 186.
 Laundry, A cooperative rural, 1033.
 Law. Mosaic and modern, 867.
 Learn how to read a book, 189.
 Liberty, The king of Servia's hymn to, 386.
 Life, Science and, 984.
 "Living oracles" give warning, 842.
 London bishop reports healing, 1082.
 Long distance wireless telephony, 552.
 Mayas Babylonians, were, 385.
 Merchants and war, Women, 10.
 Methodism and higher criticism, 866.
 Migratory birds, Government protects, 890.
 Mongolian birthmarks, 189.
 "Mormon vote," "Jewish vote," 33.
 Mosaic and modern law, 867.
 Mystery of heaven, The, 962.
 Nauvoo, How the big dam affects, 282.
 Nerves, Civilization, stimulants and, 1106.
 New continent, Seeking a, 505.
 Old stone age, 1153.
 One hundred years' peace with America; the celebrations of, 187.
 Operation, Unusual, 722.
 Optimistic ideals, Hold, 430.
 Origin of Christmas customs, 1222.
 Painting within forbidden portals, 530.
 Palestine calls to Jews, 551.
 Palestine, Work of Zionism in, 1083.
 Peace with America; the celebration of 1914, One hundred years', 187.
 Phenomenal landslip, A, 1153.
 Poor fallen descendants of the mighty Incas, The, 413.
 Prehistoric American civilization, 1248.
 Prehistoric American dentists, 1247.
 Preparing for their last journey, 843.
 Present hell, The, 816.
 President's message to the Indians, The, 775.
 Protestant Episcopal controversy, 887.
 Quack Confessions of a, 303.
 Races jostle at the holy tomb, How the, 505.
 Read a book, Learn how to, 189.
 Real issue in the Episcopal Church, The, 745.
 Receiver, Ask for a, 530.
 Reformation, From D'Aubigne's history of, 57.
 Religion and cannibalism, African language, 1177.
 Religion, The Indian's, 116.
 Rome, America the hope of, 386.
 Rome losing in numbers, Is, 721.
 Russian pilgrims to Jerusalem, with the, 649.
 Saloon, The campaign against the, 865.
 Saxon, The, 10.
 School, hygiene, 889.
 Science and life, 984.
 Seamen, The, 33.
 Sectarian evangelism and inefficiency, 793.
 Seeking a new continent, 505.
 Servia's hymn to liberty, The, king of, 386.
 Sex education, 1104.
 Sleep could be abolished, If, 305.
 Smallest thing in the universe, The, 580.
 Social hygiene, 889.
 Start on the Arctic trip, 580.
 Statistics of incomes, Income tax and, 1200.
 Stimulants and nerves, Civilization, 1106.
 Stone age, Old, 1153.
 Thinks Columbus was a Jew, 962.
 Tongues, The gift of, 368.
 Uncovered, Ancient city is, 61.
 United States, Good will between Great Britain and, 1268.
 Universe, The smallest thing in the, 580.
 Unusual operation, 722.
 Vacation Bible school, Independence, 794.
 Vacation Bible school work, 888.
 Version, The Authorized, 430.
 War, Women, merchants, and, 10.
 Washington, The character of, 285.
 Were Mayas Babylonians, 385.
 What became of the cliff dwellers, 141.
 Why Eskimo children are never punished, 1176.
 Wireless telephony, Long distance, 552.
 With the Russian pilgrims to Jerusalem, 649.
 Women, merchants, and war, 10.
 Work on Zionism in Palestine, 1083.
 Zion city church activity, 793.
 Zionism in Palestine, The work of, 1083.
 Zionist delegates, The, 1153.
 Zionist movement, The, 960.

THE STAFF.

- Anthem books, Special music and service, 1127.
 Appreciation, An, 698.
 "Atheism has no music," 817.
 Best way to teach music to the young, The, 697.
 Boosters, 1127.
 By way of greeting, 506.
 Comments, 605.
 Conference choir, The, 506.
 Criticisms and suggestions, 1056.
 Forward, 912.
 General choir movement, The, 506.
 Gift and service, 1224.
 Greeting, By way of, 506.
 Harmony, 1224.
 International language, Music an, 817.
 Lamoni, 915.
 Little hints from Sister Nellie Martin, 1128.
 Music an international language, 817.
 Music in worship, 1057.
 Musical composition, Teaching children, 914.
 Musical notes, 605, 913, 1011, 1057, 1227.

New anthem publication, 1010.
 News items, 1128.
 Notes of the staff, 506, 605, 697, 817, 1056, 1225.
 Omaha and vicinity, 697.
 Our own music, Why not, 914.
 Our possibilities, 817.
 Our work, 697.
 Philadelphia choir, 1011.
 Possibilities, Our, 817.
 Reading music, 698.
 Simple construction, 913.
 Singers, The, 1128.
 Song of gladness, A, 913.
 Suggestions, Criticisms and, 1056.
 Teaching children musical composition, 914.
 Teach music to the young, The best way to, 697.
 Why not our own music, 914.

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN.

"All work and no play," 1154.
 Another woman's mistake, 964.
 Appeals for modern Magdalene, Dean Sumner, 167.
 April reading, 283.
 Arise, for the day is passing, 117.
 August reading, 699.
 Baby on wash day, The, 964.
 Barbara, The folly of, 963.
 "Beautiful behavior," 1179.
 Big brothers—big sisters, 1227.
 Blessing of sleep, The, 939.
 Boy for citizenship, Training the, 626.
 Boy's character, The starting point in a, 626.
 Change of work a rest, 1155.
 Character poisoning, 868.
 Children need to be taught politeness, 1180.
 Children's amusements, 818.
 Children, The question of, 582.
 Children, Where are the, 940.
 Child's ideal, A, 868.
 Cleanliness and self-respect, 869.
 Commending goodness, 869.
 Courtesy in the lowly, 1179.
 Cry of a mother, The, 747.
 Dear Sumner appeals for modern Magdalene, 167.
 December reading, Montessori schools, 1129.
 Deserted home, The, 553.
 Diamond in the rough, 1180.
 Discourtesy, Loss by, 1179.
 Doing for himself, 819.
 Doll, The little girl's, 820.
 Dream, A, 480.
 Dress, Our, 1011.
 Economy teacher, The, 1228.
 Empty nest, The, 747.
 Encouragement to the young, A voice of, 986.
 Erring children, 746.
 "Even a child," 1180.
 Explanatory, 481.
 Father and the home, 625.
 February reading, 34.
 Few toys, 819.
 Food highly recommended, A, 890.
 Folly of Barbara, The, 693.
 Friendly letter, A, 795.
 Gentleman, A true, 1179.

Gentlewoman, The, 1179.
 Good advice, A piece of, 964.
 Good fellows, The, 1228.
 Goodness, Commending, 869.
 "He careth for you," 1227.
 Highest inspiration, The, 1226.
 Home influence, 746.
 Home, The deserted, 553.
 Home, The father and the, 625.
 Hours set apart for sleep, The, 939.
 "How can two walk together," 673.
 How long shall we sleep, 939.
 How two little girls learned how to cook, 1106.
 Husband, A, 582.
 In the faith, 794.
 "Is not the life more than meat," 890.
 "I will take care of him," 1227.
 January reading, 1201.
 Joy riding at night, 940.
 July reading, 606.
 June reading, 531.
 Least among you," "The, 581.
 Letter of appreciation, A, 650.
 Letter of warning, A, 723.
 Life's problems, One of, 794.
 Little girl's doll, The, 820.
 Little rest time, The, 1155.
 Locating the home, 746.
 Loosening the tension, 1154.
 Loss by discourtesy, 1179.
 March reading, 190.
 Margaret, Service of, 143.
 Maria Montessori, November reading, 1034.
 Marrying out of the church, 673, 795.
 Marry in the faith, 673.
 May reading, 415.
 Mistake, Another woman's, 964.
 Montessori method, Principles of the, 1201.
 Montessori schools, 1129.
 Nature, The simplicity of, 890.
 Nervous breakdowns, 939.
 Notice, 243, 285, 266.
 Notice to locals, 1156.
 Notice to locals of the Woman's Auxiliary, 191.
 November reading, Maria Montessori, 1034.
 Obscure teacher, The, 581.
 October reading, 915.
 Of vast importance, 1155.
 One of life's problems, 794.
 Only be patient, 83.
 Our dress, 1011.
 Our own children, 1154.
 Over the threshold, 1107.
 Overworked mothers, 581.
 Parting word to Home Column readers, A, 508.
 Picture, A, 964.
 Picture, A pleasant, 649.
 Plain little woman, A, 216.
 Politeness, Children need to be taught, 1180.
 Politeness of great men, The, 1179.
 Polly's religion, 265.
 Prayer, The result of, 242.
 Prayer Union, 11, 35, 83, 118, 144, 217, 243, 285, 317, 442, 480, 532, 608, 627, 651, 674, 700, 724, 748, 778, 795, 820, 846, 869, 891, 917, 940, 965, 986, 1012, 1036, 1059, 1083, 1108, 1131, 1155, 1180, 1203, 1228, 1250, 1268.
 Prenatal influence, 1249.
 Principles of the Montessori method, 1201.
 Questions, 508.
 Refrain, The growing, 1228.
 Rest time, The little, 1155.
 Result of prayer, The, 242.
 Return thanks, Teaching the children to, 891.
 Right of every man, The, 1155.
 Running away, 1107.
 "Seeing him who is invisible," 242.
 Self-respect, 869.
 Self-respect, Cleanliness and, 869.
 September reading, 844.
 Service of Margaret, The, 143.
 Simplicity in desires, 819.
 Simplicity of nature, The, 890.
 "So as by fire," 1058.
 Sleep, The blessing of, 939.
 Sleep, The hours set apart for, 939.
 Starting point in a boy's character, The, 626.
 Still lives, 11.
 Strength of the church, The, 553.
 Taking things seriously, 1107.
 Talk with the children, 747.
 Teaching the children to return thanks, 891.
 Teach them early, 747.
 "The least among you," 581.
 "The price he paid," 723.
 "The strong fight," 674.
 "They shall teach the children to pray," 673.
 "Tired nature's sweet restorer," 939.
 Tired of being good, 1154.
 Training the boy for citizenship, 626.
 True incident, A, 216.
 Two verdicts, 166.
 Unseen guardian, An, 1237.
 Voice of encouragement to the young, A, 986.
 Voice of warning to the young, A, 985.
 Warning, A letter of, 723.
 Washwoman's dinner, The, 964.
 We are too busy, 747.
 Weary hands, 552.
 "When your hair is white as snow," 795.
 Where are the children, 940.
 Whose work is it, 964.
 "With thanksgiving," 891.
 Woman's Auxiliary, Notice to, 191.
 Woman's vote, The, 1228.
 Word to the young, A, 723.
 "Work for the night cometh," 552.
 Young, A word to the, 723.

Anderson, Violet, 307.
 Anderson, William, 583.
 Anniversary letter, 120.
 Arber, Joseph, At the Chautauqua, 870.
 Are newspapers reliable, 170.
 Armstrong, Alice M., 459.
 Aschbrenner, Mrs. Lily B., 1207.
 Armstrong, Sheldon, 555, 1015.
 Armstrong, W. R., 14.
 Arnold, Henry W., 1270.
 Australia to America, 749.
 Bailey-Smith debate, 1085.
 Baker, J. M., 608.
 Baldwin, J. N., 434.
 Bannister, W. D., 1205.
 Baptisms at Graceland, 1181.
 Barmore, A. C., Australia to America, 749, 609, 847.
 Bean, J. W., 533.
 Beebe, G. W., sr., 191.
 Belcher, R. W., 307.
 Bennett, Maggie, 1014.
 Burch, Sadie, 702.
 Bishop Evans in the Princess, 171.
 Booker, Miss Missouri, 118.
 Booker, Sally, 38.
 Book of Mormon, No duty on, 268.
 Boomer, A. M., 36.
 Bond, W. S., 308.
 Booker, Alma, 1182.
 Booker, E. E., 1183.
 Bozarth, R. E., 511.
 Brackenbury, F. S., 653.
 Braden, Florence, 701.
 Bristow, Mrs. J. T., 1037.
 British Isles Mission President's address, 987.
 Brown, Samuel, 677.
 Bruch, O. W., 1158.
 Bundy, Lillie R., 583.
 Burch, Sadie, 1251.
 Burton, Emma, 1087.
 Burton, Sister E., 893.
 Bushong, Mrs. Clarabell, 1251.
 Case, Hubert, 1110, The Lamanite Christmas tree, 65;
 Warlick-Case debate, 571.
 Chase, A. M., 36, 145, 511, 919, 1037.
 Chatburn, T. W., Jots by the wayside, 919, 941.
 Chautauqua, At the, 870.
 Chrestensen, J. C., from Utah, 121, 849.
 Chrestensen, Mr. and Mrs. A. A., 434.
 Christmas tree, The Lamanite, 65.
 Cooper, R. T., Indian tradition, 987; Lamanite prophecies, 1037; Passing of a pioneer, 892.
 Condit, S. D., 192.
 Coombs, Alma M., 1159.
 Cowles, Mrs. Roy, 893.
 Cox, G. N., 1014; Why I am a Latter Day Saint to-day, 15.
 Crowley, Merton L., 144.
 Crownover, M., 822.
 Cruce, A. L., 1250.
 Curtis-Carlin debate, 287.
 Curtis-Elmore debate, 796.
 Curtis, Lillian, 847.
 Curtis-Roberts debate, 555.
 Daley, George, 1269.
 Davies, William, 894.
 Davis, E. R., 654.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

Aarons, Mrs. M. N., 676.
 Adamson, Edward F., 414.
 Adamson, Marie Julie, 306.
 Adamson, Peter, 484, 1269.
 Albertson, G. F., 823.
 Anderson, Emma L., 509.
 Anderson, Peter, R. E.
 Grant's lectures, 85.

- Davis, J. Arthur, Curtis-Elmore debate, 796.
 Dawson, Mrs. Charles, 483.
 Debate, Curtis-Carlin, 287.
 Debate, Robinson and Burt, 121.
 Debate, Simmons-Austin, 536.
 Dennis, Mabel M., 510.
 Derry, Charles, The veteran missionary, 701.
 Dexter, Joseph, 535.
 Diller, Sam, 555.
 Dimick, Laura, 169.
 Dixon, S., 677.
 Donaca, L. J., 991.
 Dowker, William, 84.
 Drazey, Henry, 14.
 Drazey, S., 118.
 Dreher, Louise, 678.
 Dudley, Caroline, 608.
 Duncan, Mrs. Effie, 285.
 Dunlop, Minnie, 848.
 Dutton, Jasper O., 1015.
 Earl, Francis, 1135.
 Earnest, William, 749.
 Edgeworth, F., 433, 748.
 Elias come, When will, 309.
 Elson, George, 533, 1014.
 Erwin, E. A., 83, 1183.
 Etzenhouser, R., 1088; Zenor-Etzenhouser debate, 1156.
 Eulitt, John, 145.
 Evans in the Princess, Bishop, 171.
 Evans, R. C., 1251.
 Extracts from letters, 16, 92, 145, 219, 269, 309, 435, 462, 484, 512, 536, 584, 678, 702, 726, 798, 849, 894, 920, 966, 991, 1062, 1159, 1252.
 Fannon, E. S., Bailey-Smith debate, 1085.
 Farrar, E. B., The temple of God, 846.
 Field, F. T., Robinson and Burt debate, 121.
 Fisher, Mrs. Ivy, 1159.
 Foss, J. C., 822, 1087, 1158.
 Fry, Charles, 38.
 Gainey, Thomas, 118.
 Garrett, W. H., and G. E. Harrington, Independence vacation Bible school, 918.
 Gaylord, A. A., 1014.
 Good literature work in the Northwest, 38.
 Gower, N. S., 872.
 Grant's lectures, R. E., 85.
 Grasshof, Richard, 461.
 Green, Mrs. George, 38.
 Greene, U. W., 725; Little journeys in foreign lands, 1083, 1108.
 Greenwood, W. H., British Isles Mission president's address, 987.
 Grieve, Robert, 655.
 Griffiths, Gomer T., 797.
 Gunsolley, J. A., Baptisms at Graceland, 1181.
 Guthrie, W. A., 119, 1183.
 Hall, Abel, A trip to London, 68.
 Hamm, Martha, 583.
 Hansen, J. A., 13.
 Hanson, Paul M., 849, 1268.
 Harpe, Charles E., 797.
 Harrington, G. E., and W. H. Garrett, Independence vacation Bible school, 918.
 Harrington, G. E., A new organization to assist Sanitarium, 1203.
 Hawley, Mary Beebe, Let us be active, 675.
 Heide, John, 1157, 1205.
 Helms, Josie, 218, 1157.
 Helms, W. A., 168.
 Hemenway, L., 36.
 Henson, E. L., 510.
 Hiles, George M., 1086.
 Hintz, H. A., They are on the map, 286.
 Hirst, Myron, 796.
 Holmes, Carrie, 942.
 Horton, Louisa, 192.
 How we dealt with Knox, Indiana, 218.
 Hoyt, Grace, 702.
 Hull, G. W., 170.
 Humes, Mrs. Ira W., 1135, 1230.
 Hunt, C. J., 1159.
 Hurd, Mrs. Ida, 1158.
 Independence vacation Bible school, 918.
 Indian mission suggestions, 15.
 Indian tradition, 987.
 Insee, Evan E., 243.
 Jenkins, Rees, 457.
 Jensen, Andrew, 217.
 Joehnk, C. C., 583.
 Johnson, Mrs. Libbie Chidester, 965.
 Johnson, William, 1061.
 Jones, D. R., 307.
 Jones, Thomas, 1182.
 Jots by the wayside, 919, 941.
 Kelley, E. L., 1013.
 Kelley, James F., Curtis-Roberts debate, 555.
 Kirtland, 65.
 Knight, Mrs. H. D., 14.
 Knisley, Alvin, In the regions round about, 286.
 Knowland, Charles, Study to show thyself approved, 726.
 Knowlton, George H., 1250.
 Knox, Indiana, How we dealt with, 218.
 Koehler, H. Arthur, 1062.
 Lacey, Frank, 1159.
 Lake, Passing of Elder C. H., 918.
 Lamanite Christmas tree, The, 65.
 Lamanite prophecies, 1037.
 Lambert, Edwin E. and Ada T., 1251.
 Lamont, Stewart, No duty on Book of Mormon, 268.
 Latter Day Saints, 267.
 Latter Day Saints, To all, 267.
 Lectures, R. E. Grant's, 85.
 Lester, E. K., 243.
 Let us be active, 675.
 Lewis, William, 243; The standing minister and the missionary, 1059.
 Liley, C. E., 1159.
 Little journeys in foreign lands, 1083, 1108.
 Lohse, Miss B. E., 434.
 London, A trip to, 63.
 Long-Roberts debate, 651.
 Lots, Order of Enoch, 244.
 Loucks, James and Cora, 144.
 Lull, Richard S., 170.
 Lum, V. L., 482; Simmons-Austin debate, 536.
 McConley, M. A., 1229.
 McConaughy, James, 511.
 McCullough, F. E., 11.
 McDonald, Miss Mary, 482.
 McDougall, Mrs., 627.
 Macgregor, Maggie, Good literature in the Northwest, 33.
 Macgregor, D., Order of Enoch lots, 244; Order of Enoch lots—a correction, 286.
 McGuire, B. R., 820, 1086.
 McKeaver, Mrs. M. J., 1229.
 McLean, A. F., Bishop Evans in the Princess, 171.
 McNamara, Katy Dutcher, 62.
 Maitland, W. T., 511.
 McKenzie, Mrs. A., 919.
 McKnight, Florence, 119, 509.
 Madden, Mr. and Mrs. S. A., 726.
 Madden, New, 511.
 Maddock, W., 1013.
 Manchester, New church at, 1203.
 Mann, R. O., 821.
 Map, They are on the, 286.
 Martin, Nellie M., 1182; New branch at Perry, Iowa, 309.
 Masters, George, 1086.
 May, J. Charles, Passing of Elder C. H. Lake, 918.
 May, Roderick, 62.
 Mercer, Clara M., 191.
 Meredith, J. E., 941.
 Mesle, Mary Lewis, 12.
 Metcalf, J. W., 1269.
 Miller, C. Edward, 167.
 Miller, O. R., Long-Roberts debate, 651.
 Minkler, Laura M., 627.
 Mintun, J. F., 628, 724, 872, 894, 1204.
 Mitchell, G. T., 847.
 Mitchell, Sister H. G., 168.
 Morgan, E. B., 724.
 Morris, George, 169.
 Mullin, Ira, 14.
 Nawok, M., 285.
 Nazer, Ed. and Alvina L., 582.
 New branch at Perry, Iowa, 309.
 Newby, R. C., 555.
 Newby, R., 1158.
 New church at Manchester, 1203.
 New organization to assist Sanitarium, A, 1203.
 Newspapers reliable, Are, 170.
 Newton, L., 14.
 No duty on Book of Mormon, 268.
 Norton, J. T., 941.
 Nubey, Miss Hazel, 1157.
 Nuckles, W. J., 1184.
 Nunley, E. W., 169, 726, 1270.
 Oliver, Daisy Lydia, 822.
 Oliver, Pearl, 748.
 One of the true church, 583.
 Order of Enoch lots, 244.
 Order of Enoch lots, A correction, 286.
 Organization to assist Sanitarium, A new, 1203.
 Parsons, A. H., United Order of Enoch, 892.
 Passing of a pioneer, 892.
 Passing of Elder C. H. Lake, 918.
 Peasley, Mrs. Fred, 848.
 Perry, Iowa, New branch at, 309.
 Peterson, Oscar, 533.
 Pierre, Frank, 1204.
 Pitt, Rosa Parks, 534, 1180.
 Potoff, Mrs. Lillian, 192.
 Powell, W. H., 37.
 Powers, W. S., 36.
 Phillips, A. B., 217.
 President Smith receives staff, 990.
 Princess, Bishop Evans in the, 171.
 Quinley, J. W., 1088.
 Randall, C. C., 847.
 Rannie, Edward, 167.
 Rathbun, Mrs. Floyd, 120.
 Ravin, Eldorus, 1061.
 Reed, Joseph H., 797.
 Regions round about, In the, 286.
 Reneau, Lillie M., 554.
 Renfroe, B. F., 1184.
 Researchers, To the, 512.
 Richner, Margaret A., Kirtland, 65.
 Riggs, Hattie, 1228.
 Roberson, Mr. and Mrs. Met, 510.
 Robinson and Burt debate, 121.
 Rockhold, Minnie, 848.
 Rockhold, Mr. and Mrs. O. L., 12.
 Rockwood, J. H., 893.
 Rodabaugh, Bessie, 677.
 Rodabaugh, Miss Gertie, 1229.
 Roos, F. L. J., 461.
 Root, H. B., 38.
 Roth, J. S., Anniversary letter, 120.
 Rush, W. R., 63, 1061.
 Russell, R. C., 308.
 Rust, J. L., 14; When will Elias come, 309.
 Sawley, F. L., 655.
 Schofield, James, 1206.
 Schofield, Sister, 459.
 Schrank, Mrs. Oswald, 749.
 Schultze, R. C. T., 1060.
 Scogin, Ruby Gertrude, 1183.
 Scott, Alice, 120.
 Scott, C., 653, 892; The veteran missionary, 701; A tribute, 701.
 Scott, S. W. L., 1014; How we dealt with Knox, Indiana, 218.
 Seley, Ira, 1184.
 Severin, J. C., 1204.
 Shalbetter, Montrose, 871, 1157, 1252.
 Shay, G. W., 653.
 Sheldon, N. V., 13.
 Shell, G. H., 508.
 Shelley, Buell, 676.
 Sheppard, C. T., 792.
 Simmons-Austin debate, 536.
 Simmons, Lizzie, 653.
 Skinner, Mrs. J. T., 192.
 Spocum, John, 84.
 Slye, Roy F., 652.
 Small, Lola J., 1013.
 Small, Wallace A., 243, 1013.
 Smith, Isaac M., 14.
 Smith, Joseph, President Smith receives staff, 990.
 Smith, Mrs. B. B., 191.
 Smith, Mrs. Etta, 12.
 Smith, Mrs. M. E., 62.
 Smith, Robert A., 217.
 Smoot, Benjamin H., 628.
 Snow, C. L., 167.
 Spangler, M. S., 534.
 Sparling, Henry, 483, 1181; Curtis-Carlin debate, 287.
 Sparling, William, 145.
 Standing minister and the missionary, The, 1059, 1268.
 Stearns, Mrs. Lily B., 36, 533.
 Steele, Mrs. George W., 1183.

- Stevenson, John K., 1251.
 Stone, A. E., 628.
 Stubbart, J. M., 1037.
 Study to show thyself approved, 726.
 Stueva, Viola, 1158.
 Sweet, G. L., 1013.
 Tait, Marjorie, 267.
 Tary, O. J., 267.
 Temple of God, The, 846.
 They are on the map, 286.
 Thomas, Mrs. J. H., 354.
 Thomas, O. B., 192.
 Torrance, W. B., 821.
 Trachsel, Erwin, 169.
 Tripp, Solomon, 1270.
 Trip to London, A., 63.
 Tubb, F. R., To, all Latter Day Saints, 267.
 Tucker, D. E., 510, 725.
 Turner, Mrs. Susan, 1252.
 Turpen, M. M., 1061.
 United Order of Enoch, 892.
 Utah, From, 121.
 Vanderveave, Albert, 435.
 Vanderpool, Mrs. W. G., 62.
 Vernon, A., 1270.
 Veteran Missionary, The, 701.
 Wainwright, C. L., 965.
 Wahlstrom, John, 193.
 Wall, Louise A., 482.
 Walter, Mrs. Myrta B., 965.
 Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R., 1134.
 Warlick-Case debate, 871.
 Warr, A. E., 1184.
 Warr, Miss Nora, 307.
 Warr, Mrs. M. F., 84.
 Weaver, R. D., 267.
 Wertz, Henry, 627.
 Western Wales, 1271.
 When will Elias come, 309.
 White, Alec., 534.
 White, E. S., 308.
 Whittemore, J. P., 748.
 Why I am a Latter Day Saint to-day, 15.
 Wight, J. W., Are newspapers reliable, 170; To the researchers, 512.
 Wildermuth, J. B., 676.
 Williams, D. T., 653.
 Williams, T. W., 84, 848.
 Wilson, W. A., 509.
 Winders, F. A., 434.
 Wilson, Rose, 942.
 Word of gratitude, A, 701.
 Wright, Mrs. Mabel, 461.
 Wright, Florence E., 483.
 Yates, James E., 554, 627; Indian mission suggestions, 15.
 Young, Violet, 677.
 Young, W. M., 941.
 Zenor-Etzenhouser debate, 1156.
- NEWS FROM MISSIONS.
- Alabama, 17.
 Alberta, 67.
 Arber, Joseph, Northeastern Kansas, 752.
 Arizona, 437.
 Arkansas, 39.
 Australia, 123, 437, 631, 798, 1064; en route to, 1038.
 Barmore, A. C., Southern Indiana, 1160.
 Barrett, J. B., and M. A. McConley, Hawaii, 19.
 Boekenstein, James R., Australia, 798, 1064.
 British Columbia, Seattle and, 558, 896, 1111.
 Brown, Samuel, Ohio, 464, 824.
 Butterworth, C. A., Australia, 631.
 Case, Oscar, Washington, 20.
 Case, Hubert, Western Oklahoma, 752.
 Central Maine, 92.
 Chase, A. M., Salt Lake City, Utah, 245.
 Chatburn, T. W., Jots from Spring River, 1160.
 Clinton, Missouri, 824.
 Chrestensen, J. C., Utah, 464.
 Chrestensen, Alva, Oklahoma, 171.
 Chrestensen, A. H., Western Oklahoma, 703.
 Clinton, Missouri, 824, 991.
 Colorado, 268, 1160.
 Condit, S. D., Arizona, 437.
 Copenhagen, Denmark, 219.
 Cornish, James, Saskatchewan, 194.
 Cornish, J. J., Saskatchewan, 390.
 Cox, G. N., Texas, 123.
 Crabb, J. C., Alberta, 67.
 Davis, J. T., Southern-Missouri, 463, 944.
 Davison, H. J., Northern California, 723.
 Denmark, 630, 1063.
 Des Moines, Iowa, 557, 704.
 Dowker, William, Northern Indiana, 1064.
 Dubose, James William, 1088.
 Dutton, Jasper O., Northern Illinois, 287.
 Eastern Maine, 727, 1037.
 Eastern Oklahoma, 942.
 Ebeling, F. J., Maine, 39; Nova Scotia, 943.
 Ecclestone, William, Leicester Branch, England, 146.
 Edgeworth, F., Australia, 437.
 Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, 309.
 En route to Australia, 1038.
 Erwin, E. A., Eastern Oklahoma, 942; Northeastern Texas, 556.
 Experiences of W. H. Kelley, 337.
 Far West District, 1015.
 Florida, 18, 245.
 Fremont, Iowa, 1111.
 Gallands Grove, Iowa, 557.
 Gowell, M. F., Utah, 436.
 Greene, U. W., Palestine, 1063.
 Griffiths, G. T., En route to Australia, 1038; Society Islands, 1252; Visiting Hawaii, 1135.
 Hansen, H. N., Copenhagen, Denmark, 219; Denmark, 1063.
 Harp, John and Ruth, Texas, 269.
 Hawaii, 19, 193, 943, 1015, 1254.
 Hawn, O. J., Michigan, 171.
 Henson, E. L., Far West District, 1015.
 Hereheretue, South Sea Islands, 1230.
 Higdon, Amos T., Clinton, Missouri, 824.
 Honolulu, 463.
 Houghton, L., Minnesota, 146; Wisconsin, 895.
 Hughes, J. Everette, Western Oklahoma, 41.
 Hunt, C. J., Gallands Grove, Iowa, 557.
 Idaho, 896.
 Independence Stake, 966.
 Indiana, 289.
 Iowa, 92, 193, 219.
 Jenkins, John J., Western Wales, 1271.
 Johnson, William, Seattle and British Columbia, 558, 896, 1111.
 Jones, J. H. N., Australia, 123.
 Jots from Spring River, 1160.
 Kelley, William H., 387.
 Koehler, H. Arthur, Central Maine, 92.
 Kuykendall, Guy R., Texas, 146.
 Lake, Alberta M., South Sea Islands, 966.
 Leicester Branch, England, 146.
 Lewis, William, Missouri, 41.
 London, England, 42.
 McConley, M. A., and J. B. Barrett, Hawaii, 19; Honolulu, 463; Hawaii, 943, 1254.
 Maine, 39, 438.
 Maloney, R. M., Oklahoma, 41.
 Mann, O. R., Northeastern Nebraska, 1254.
 May, J. Charles, Society Islands, 629.
 May, Roderick, London, England, 42.
 Michigan, 20, 171.
 Miller, A. G., Florida, 18.
 Miller, O. R., Nauvoo District, 1208.
 Minnesota, 146.
 Mintun, J. F., Iowa, 219; Des Moines, Iowa, 557.
 Missouri, 18, 41.
 Moler, H. E., Tennessee, 18; Indiana, 289.
 Moore, Lloyd C., Alabama, 17.
 Muceus, P., Denmark, 630.
 Nauvoo District, 1208.
 Nebraska, 66.
 New York, 704.
 North Dakota, 122, 631.
 Northeastern Illinois, 287.
 Northeastern Kansas, 752.
 Northeastern Nebraska, 1254.
 Northeastern Texas, 556.
 Northern California, 728.
 Northern Indiana, 1064.
 Nova Scotia, 943.
 Ohio, 463, 824.
 Okerlind, Oscar, Sweden, 655, 1270.
 Oklahoma, 41, 171.
 On the Atlantic coast, 288.
 Ontario, 269.
 Palestine, 289, 1063.
 Parker, J. L., Iowa, 92; Des Moines, Iowa, 704.
 Pitt, F. G., Sydney, Australia, 146.
 Plumb, P. T., Washington, 194.
 Poble, Josephine, Colorado, 268.
 Protyman, C. W., Nebraska, 66.
 Robertson, E. F., Palestine, 289.
 Roblev, George W., Eastern Maine, 727, 1037; Maine, 92.
 Salt Lake City, Utah, 245.
 Saskatchewan, 194, 390.
 Savage, H. W., 1231.
 Scott, C., Fremont, Iowa, 1111.
 Scott, S. W. L., Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, 703, 824.
 Seattle and British Columbia, 558, 896, 1111.
 Shakespeare, W. E., North Dakota, 122.
 Shirk, O. D., Clinton, Missouri, 991.
 Slover, F. M., Southeastern Missouri, 1112.
 Smith, H. O., On the Atlantic coast, 288.
 Smith, Isaac M., Florida, 245.
 Smith, W. A., Iowa, 193.
 Smith, W. R., Arkansas, 39.
 Snow, C. L., Missouri, 18.
 Society Islands, 629, 1252.
 Southern Indiana, 1160.
 Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, 703, 824.
 Southeastern Mission, 1112.
 Southern Missouri, 463, 944, 1088.
 Southern Wisconsin, 584.
 South Sea Islands, 966.
 Sparling, William, North Dakota, 631.
 Stone, A. E., New York, 704.
 Sutton, J. B., Nevada, 1160.
 Sweden, 655, 1270.
 Sydney, Australia, 146.
 Tahiti, Visiting, 1135.
 Tary, O. J., Wheeling, West Virginia, 268.
 Tennessee, 18.
 Texas, 123, 146, 269.
 Tomlinson, G. C., Ontario, 269.
 Utah, 244, 436, 464, 753.
 Vanderwood, J. E., Utah, 244, 753.
 Visiting Tahiti, 1135.
 Waller, G. J., Hawaii, 193, 1015.
 Washington, 20, 194.
 Weaver, R. D., Michigan, 20.
 Western Oklahoma, 41, 703, 752.
 Western Wales, 1271.
 Wheeling, West Virginia, 268.
 Wildermuth, Lester O., Southern Wisconsin, 584.
 Winegar, H. E., Idaho, 896.
 Wisconsin, 895.
- NEWS FROM BRANCHES.
- Adelaide, South Australia, 655.
 Another new church in Philadelphia, 220.
 Arkansas, Wisconsin, 485.
 Armstrong, Mrs. Alice, Kansas City Fourth Branch, 800.
 Baker, John E., Ottumwa, Iowa, 485.
 Barraclough, E. K., Wichita, Kansas, 704.
 Barraclough, G. F., East Saint Louis, Illinois, 798.
 Bay Minette, Alabama, 799.
 Bemidji, Minnesota, 872.
 Bennington Heights, 438.
 Boise, Idaho, 963.
 Boren, Will A., San Bernardino, California, 485.
 Burgess, Robert E., Knobnoster, Missouri, 1041.

- Burlington, Iowa, 512, 632.
Chicago, Illinois, 438, 799, 825, 1255.
Cleveland, Ohio, 147, 439, 585, 1065.
Coombs, Alma M., Fall River, Massachusetts, 67, 194.
Cooper, R. T., Los Angeles, California, 968, 1016.
Cornish, Mrs. James, Senlac, Saskatchewan, 728.
Crooker, Mrs. A. P., Toledo, Ohio, 485.
Davenport, W. H., San Antonio, Texas, 269.
Denver, Colorado, 195.
Des Moines, Iowa, 824.
East Saint Louis, Illinois, 798.
Epperson, J. R., Des Moines, Iowa, 824.
Fall River, Massachusetts, 67, 194.
Graham, Mrs. C. F., Minot, North Dakota, 992.
Gray, Frank, Toronto, Ontario, 656.
Hull, E. B., Another new church for Philadelphia, 220.
Jackson, Lula M., Boise, Idaho, 968.
Jones, D. R., Adelaide, South Australia, 655.
Kansas City Fourth Branch, 800.
Knobnoster, Missouri, 1041.
Knowlton, Madge P., Los Angeles, California, 171, 678, 873, 1113.
Lacey, Ethel A., Burlington, Iowa, 512.
Laughlin, Bessie Richeson, Rhodes, Iowa, 728.
Layton, C. A., Bennington Heights, 438.
Lincoln, George S., San Francisco, California, 1256.
Lincoln, Nebraska, 1255.
Livingston, S. E., Arkansasaw, Wisconsin, 485.
Los Angeles, California, 171, 632, 678, 873, 968, 1016, 1113.
MacCray, Virgie, Lincoln, Nebraska, 1255.
Macfarlane, E., New Bedford, Massachusetts, 729.
McLean, A. F., Toronto, Canada, 920.
Minot, North Dakota, 992.
New Bedford, Massachusetts, 729.
New Liskeard, Ontario, 631.
Oakland, California, 220.
Omaha, Nebraska, 246, 609, 1255.
Ottumwa, Iowa, 485.
Patterson, Elizabeth, Saint Louis, Missouri, 124, 246, 485, 558, 656, 753, 873, 992, 1184.
Philadelphia, Another new church for, 220.
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 439, 486.
Rhodes, Iowa, 728.
Saint Louis, Missouri, 124, 246, 485, 558, 656, 753, 873, 992, 1184.
San Antonio, Texas, 269.
San Bernardino, California, 485.
San Francisco, California, 1256.
Scranton, Pennsylvania, 147, 485, 800, 1256.
Senlac, Saskatchewan, 728.
Thompson, W., New Liskeard, Ontario, 631.
Toledo, Ohio, 485.
Toronto, Ontario, 656, 920.
Tupper, Harry, Oakland, California, 220.
Wainwright, C. E., Chicago, Illinois, 799, 825.
Walling, Edna U., Denver, Colorado, 195.
Wichita, Kansas, 704.
Wiggins, Allie, Bay Minette, Alabama, 799.
Williams, Mrs. Lucy, Bemidji, Minnesota, 872.
Williams, Thomas W., Los Angeles, California, 632.
Wilmington, Illinois, 799.
Wipper, Frank F., Chicago First Branch, 438, 1255; Wilmington, Illinois, 799.
- MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT.
- CONFERENCE MINUTES.
- Alabama, 291, 921, 1185.
Alberta, 825.
British Isles, 992.
Central Illinois, 195, 679, 1041.
Central Nebraska, 147, 657, 1272.
Central Oklahoma, 292, 1089.
Central Texas, 1041.
Clinton, 291, 1065.
Des Moines, 172, 657.
Eastern Colorado, 440, 1041.
Eastern Iowa, 220.
Eastern Michigan, 1185.
Eastern Wales, 610.
Far West, 291, 679, 1065.
Florida, 394, 753, 1065.
Fremont, 316, 705, 1089.
Gallands Grove, Iowa, 220, 679, 1137.
Idaho, 148.
Independence, 292, 969, 1256.
Kentucky and Tennessee, 195, 440, 609.
Kewanee, 825.
Little Sioux, 196, 969, 1041.
London, Canada, 1041.
Manchester, 486.
Massachusetts, 1041.
Minnesota, 43, 825.
Mobile, 293, 705, 969.
Montana, 316, 633.
Nauvoo, 1137.
New York and Philadelphia, 315.
New York, 1185.
Nodaway, 292, 729, 1185.
North Dakota, 94, 800.
Northeastern Illinois, 172, 657.
Northeastern Kansas, 440, 1272.
Northeastern Missouri, 68, 315, 945.
Northeastern Nebraska, 633.
Northern California, 440, 945.
Northern Michigan, 800.
Northern Nebraska, 439.
Northern Wisconsin, 315.
Nova Scotia, 729.
Ohio, 291.
Pittsburg, 315.
Portland, 315.
Pottawattamie, 270, 559, 1041.
Saskatchewan, 124, 195, 800.
Seattle and British Columbia, 439, 1089.
Sheffield, 172, 753.
Southeastern Illinois, 291, 873.
Southern California, 293.
Southern Indiana, 559.
Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana, 633, 1137.
Southern Missouri, 43, 487, 1016.
Southern Nebraska, 633, 1232.
Southern Wisconsin, 633, 1016.
Southwestern Oregon, 290.
Southwestern Texas, 270.
Spokane, 43, 657, 1272.
Spring River, 1232.
Texas Central, 293.
Toronto, 195, 1113.
Utah, 921.
Western Maine, 559, 921, 1185.
Western New York, 609.
Western Oklahoma, 291.
Western Wales, 68, 486, 679.
West Virginia, 945.
Winnipeg, 440.
- CONVENTION MINUTES.
- Alabama, 1209.
Central Nebraska, 585.
Clinton, 293, 679, 1113, 1137.
Des Moines, 172.
Eastern Colorado, 294, 993.
Eastern Iowa, 754, 1042.
Far West, 196.
Florida, 754.
Gallands Grove, 221.
Independence, 21.
Little Sioux, 173.
London, Ontario, 1137.
Massachusetts, 1138.
Minnesota, 172, 679.
Mobile, 293, 705, 969.
Montana, 316, 633.
New York, 1232.
North Dakota, 148, 705, 753.
Northeastern Illinois, 148.
Northern California, 441.
Northern Kansas, 487.
Northern Wisconsin, 294.
Papeete, Tahiti, 826.
Pittsburg, 441.
Pottawattamie, 173.
Southern Nebraska, 1113.
Southern Wisconsin, 221, 1042.
Southwestern Texas, 440.
Spokane, 44.
Spring River, 537.
Winnipeg, 441.
- GENERAL MISCELLANY.
- Alumni of Graceland College, Old students and, 22.
Amendment to Rules of Order and Debate, Notice of, 1186.
Annual report of Graceland College, 97.
Bishopric, The, 94, 173, 270, 294, 441, 466, 488, 585, 633, 657, 679, 754, 778, 800, 826, 945, 969, 993, 1065, 1089, 1113, 1161, 1185, 1209.
Bishop's annual report, 1020.
Book of Rules revision, 1066.
Canadian Saints take notice, 125.
Children's Home Annual report, 310.
Christmas Offering, 1912, Final call for, 149.
Church Secretary, 95, 270, 294, 634.
Condolence, Resolutions of, 222, 318.
Convention program, 317.
Correction, 45, 70, 125, 198, 317, 488, 611, 635, 730, 778, 802, 826, 1209, 1272.
Correction, Exponent, 466.
Deacons of Pittsburg District, 45.
Delegates to General Conference, 317.
Eastern Saints, 95, 658.
Elders take notice, 22.
Error, 247.
Evangelical Order, To the, 1115.
Evangelists, The, 270.
Evangelists, Order of, 149; Program of the, 95.
Exponent free, 586.
Final call for Christmas Offering, 1912, 149.
First Quorum of Seventy, 221, 316, 1162, 1185.
General Conference at Lamoni, 221.
General Conference reception committee, 197.
General Sunday school convention program, 317.
Gospel literature superintendent, 221.
Graceland benefit, 1090.
Graceland College, 95; receipts, 97.
Graceland College endowments, 680.
Graceland College, Old students and alumni of, 22.
High priests, Notice to, 197, 802, 897.
Hilliard, In memoriam, Bishop George, 294.
In memoriam, 489.
In memoriam, Bishop George Hilliard, 294.
Institute work, 538, 561.
Local reporting, 197.
Northern Wisconsin, 247.
Notices, 44, 95, 149, 317, 417, 465, 488, 1162.
Notice of amendment to Rules of Order and Debate, 1186.
Notice of appointment, 635, 850, 897, 994.
Notice of release, 778, 1066.
Notice of silence, 897.
Notice of transfer, 561.
Notice to Far West Priests, 922.
Notice to high priests, 802, 897.
Notice to isolated Saints, 971.
Notice to missionaries, 611, 705.
Notice to Nebraska priests, 1233.
Notice to Religio Quarterly subscribers, 897.
Notice to Salt Lake members, 922.
Notice to Saskatchewan Saints, 897, 1272.
Notice to subscribers, 897.
Old students and alumni of Graceland College, 22.
Ontario elders notice, 22.
Order of Evangelists, 149.
Order of Evangelists, Program of the, 95.
Pittsburg District, Deacons of, 45.
Presidency of district, Change in, 730.

Presidency, The, 22, 44, 124, 173, 197, 610, 705, 729, 801, 826, 969, 1017, 1138, 1233, 1256.
 Program, convention, 317.
 Program of the Order of Evangelists, 95.
 Quorum notices, 197, 221, 247, 270, 316, 437, 514, 538, 585, 611, 658, 680, 729, 854, 970, 994, 1017, 1042, 1162, 1185.
 Quorum meetings, 173.
 Quorums of Seventy, 247.
 Quorum of Twelve, 148, 1272.
 Reception committee, General Conference, 197.
 Resolutions of condolence, 222, 318.
 Resolutions of sympathy, 318.
 Rules of Order and Debate,

Notice of amendment to, 1186.
 Second Quorum of Seventy, 125, 316.
 Sixteenth Quorum of Deacons, Notice to, 45.
 Southeastern Missouri, 197.
 Superintendents' addresses wanted, 149.
 Sympathy, Resolutions of, 318.
 Thirteenth Quorum of Priests, 1162.
 Twelve, Quorum of, 149.
 Woman's Auxiliary notice, 586, 729.

PASTORAL.

Anderson, Peter, 513.
 Anderson, William, 873.

Aylor, W. M., 465.
 Baldwin, Richard, 513.
 Barmore, A. C., 754.
 Chatburn, T. W., 585, 970.
 Chrestensen, J. C., 610.
 Curtis, J. F., 466.
 Davis, William, 537.
 Ellis, Clyde F., 610.
 Petting, Otto, 513.
 Field, S. H., 1232.
 Foss, S. O., 585.
 Gillen, James A., 489.
 Gowell, M. F., 969.
 Greenwood, W. H., 537.
 Grice, J. R., 634.
 Hanson, Paul M., 537.
 Harrington, G. E., 513.
 Hawkins, C. W., 126.
 Ingham, Edward, 126.
 Kelley, J. E., 537.
 Lambert, J. R., 559.

Lambkin, B. S., 585.
 McClain, F. R., 680.
 McKiernan, James, 1016.
 Mintun, J. F., 1016.
 Moler, H. E., 513.
 Mortimer, J. L., 537.
 Pitt, Sidney, 488.
 Rannie, Edward, 610.
 Riley, J. T., 610.
 Rushfelt, H. L., 680.
 Rushton, John W., 489, 993.
 Russell, R. C., 488.
 Sade, O. E., 634.
 Saxe, John A., 126.
 Sheehy, F. M., 537.
 Slover, F. M., 634.
 Smith, Frederick A., 559.
 Smith, W. R., 538.
 Terry, J. M., 125.

THE SAINTS' HERALD

Joseph Smith and Elbert A. Smith, Editors; John F. Garver, Assistant Editor,

Published every Wednesday. Subscription price $1.50 per year in advance.

When payment is made, the date on the margin always shows the time to which you have paid, or the time when your subscription expires.

If not changed within a month after payment is made notify us. The paper will not be sent to persons who are six months in arrears. Unless special arrangements are made.

All articles, letters for publication, notices, etc., and communications concerning the same, should be addressed to "Editors Herald." All business letters should be addressed to Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa, and all remittances should be made payable to the same.

All errors in the filling of orders or rendering of accounts should be reported immediately as receipts for money received are sent within two days after reaching the office.

Marriage, death, and birth notices: Marriages, $1 per 100 words or fraction thereof. Deaths, 100 words free; above that number, 50 cents per 100 words or fraction thereof. Births, 40 cents per 75 words or fraction thereof. To insure prompt insertion, make remittance with notice.

For advertising rates apply to the business department.

Entered at post office, Lamoni, Iowa, as second-class mail matter.

Subscription received for Zion's Ensign; also orders for all Ensign publications.

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL:
 Character Sketches of Jesus - - - - 1261
 Notes and Comments - - - - 1262

ORIGINAL ARTICLES:
 The Search for Good Books - - - - 1263
 Lamanite Traditions, by R. T. Cooper - - - - 1264
 Forgiveness, by the Lone Nephite - - - - 1266

OF GENERAL INTEREST:
 Citizenizing the American Indian - - - - 1267
 Good Will between Great Britain and United States 1268

MOTHERS' HOME COLUMN - - - - 1268

LETTER DEPARTMENT - - - - 1268
 Paul M. Hanson—George Daley—J. W. Metcalf—
 Peter Adamson—Solomon Tripp—E. W. Nunley
 —A. Vernon—Henry W. Arnold.

NEWS FROM MISSIONS - - - - 1270
 Oscar W. Okerlind—John J. Jenkins—R. D.
 Weaver—W. M. Aylor.

MISCELLANEOUS DEPARTMENT - - - - 1273
 INDEX TO VOLUME 60 - - - - 1275

A Review: Thirty Pieces of Silver.

There is a ring of conviction in Clarence B. Kelland's exceptional little story, Thirty Pieces of Silver—the sort of conviction that sometimes gets embodied and visualized in a story when it can find expression in no other way. As in The Other Wise Man, the tale appeals through a natural yet dreamlike imagery to one's instinctive faith in the unseen, while the quiet swing of the sentences has the effect of that stately yet simple "prose poetry" which many attempt but few succeed in. As in Stevenson's Markheim, there's a touch of awe in it from the beginning. Do men have visions nowadays? These things—things like Saul's vision on the road to Damascus—happen, say the doubters, in the ages in which such things are believed. But here is the story of a vision that came to a doubter—an atheist—who not only disbelieved, but brought all his learning and eloquence and personal magnetism to bear on the task of destroying other men's faith; and the vision is not only the kind of allegory that hits one between the eyes with its dramatic force, but it is tremendously convincing, if you choose to take it so, as one of those pieces of personal religious experience which scientists and philosophers don't pretend to understand fully. Carnavon, who lectured on the folly of belief in the story on which Christian love and ethics have rested for nineteen hundred years—Carnavon who deprived men of their religion at a thousand dollars a night—was, among other things, a collector of ancient coins. In a strange way he became possessed of one of the very thirty pieces of silver which the high priest paid to Judas—and the vision followed. A sentimental plea for faith, perhaps, yet one feels that there is something more than sentiment here after reading the story.—Harper and Brothers, Franklin Square, New York City.

Give love, and love to your heart will flow—
 A strength in your utmost need;
 Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
 Their faith in your word and deed.—M. S. Bridges.

One feature of honesty and common sense combined is never to promise what you do not think you can perform, and then never fail to perform what you have promised.—Backbone.

Be not alarmed as to the future of a great truth. It may be obscured for a time by the darkness of error, but always to rise again in greater glory, like the morning sun.—Backbone.

A Royal Baking Powder Hot Biscuit is the luxury of eating
—MADE AT HOME—

FARMERS STATE BANK
 Lamoni, Iowa
Capital $25,000.00
Surplus $8,750.00
UNITED STATES DEPOSITORY FOR POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS
 Five per cent interest paid on time deposits. Your deposit solicited.

BANK BY MAIL
 WITH THE
STATE SAVINGS BANK OF LAMONI
 W. A. Hopkins, President
 Oscar Anderson, Cashier.
 A. A. Dancer, Vice President.
 Capital and Surplus - - $60,000.00
 Five per cent per annum interest paid on time deposits.
 Write for further particulars to
The State Savings Bank of Lamoni
LAMONI IOWA

THE OLD JERUSALEM GOSPEL. This book by Elder Joseph Luff has become one of our best and widest known and read books. There is a reason for this. Get the book and read it and you will not need to have anyone tell you why.
 Order No. 248, cloth .....75c

HIS FIRST VENTURE—A book for your boy or girl—just the age when healthy reading should be provided.
 Order No. 246a. Cloth.....50c

WITH THE CHURCH IN AN EARLY DAY, is a book in which the trying times of the latter day apostasy are vividly pictured. A story that elevates the reader and makes him strong for the right. Cloth, No. 243.....75c

German edition of the Book of Mormon (Das Buch Mormon.) Order No. 88a. Cloth .....$1.00

Lamoni Farm For Sale.

160 acres located four miles from Lamoni. Good house of 7 rooms, cellar, well and cistern. Fine orchard, large barn, double corn crib, implement house, hog house, stock scales, etc. Farm fenced hog tight with woven wire, cedar and hedge posts. 100 acres of this land lies well, the other 60 somewhat rolling, now in grass. Price, $100 per acre, with good terms.

We have sold more land in the vicinity of Lamoni this year and at higher prices than ever before and the farm land is still advancing. Anyone contemplating locating in this region in the near future had better investigate now.

Address, G. W. Blair, Secretary, Lamoni Land and Loan Co. Lamoni, Iowa. 53-1t

A NEW HOTEL.

A fine opportunity for a good hotel man to establish himself in an up-to-date town with a good business assured from the start. The hotel accommodations at Lamoni have not kept pace with the town. A man of experience with some money wishing to locate permanently in Lamoni and build a modern hotel will receive material assistance from the Lamoni Commercial Club.

For further particulars address G. W. Blair, Secretary of Committee, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4t

AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF ELDER R. C. EVANS. This book was written by Elder R. C. Evans. It contains the history of Brother Evans and the marvelous manifestations of God working through his servant.
 No. 216, cloth .....75c

BARGAINS.

A large list of nice homes for sale and rent, also farm land, easy terms. (Write for particulars.)
 John Zahnd,
 Independence, Mo. 6-tf

WANTED.

By a young western stock farm manager, a responsible position with a future, or might invest $800 with a partner. What business do you know or have. Address Dan Lee, care Herald Publishing House, Lamoni, Iowa. 50-4tpd

WHAT IS MAN, by Elder J. R. Lambert. This topic is an absorbing one and especially so when handled in such a forceful and logical manner as it is in this book. You can't afford not to be acquainted with its contents.
 No. 140. Price .....50c

SACRED MUSIC.

Just the thing for choirs and all who appreciate good music. All by Elder A. B. Phillips.

- The King of Peace.
 Orchestra number, 10 parts and piano, .....30c
 The King of Peace .....25c
 Within the Veil .....15c
 Wayward Stream .....25c
 One Sweetly Solemn Thought .....25c
 Rest .....25c
THE SWEET GOSPEL STORY, by W. J. Smith .....25c

PARSONS' TEXT BOOK. Revised and enlarged—contains a vast amount of collated facts to substantiate the latter day message. It saves you hours of weary research.
 Order No. 232, cloth .....75c

Alfalfa Land

The Prince of Monaco was amazed at the "Twenty Miles of countless stacks of alfalfa" on both sides of the Burlington through the Government Shoshone Project near Powell, Wyoming, and was further surprised to learn that all this wonderful development had taken place within five years' time. FARMERS ARE MAKING MONEY feeding this alfalfa to sheep, steers, cows and hogs—the easiest and most profitable kind of farming.

GO WITH ME TO THE BIG HORN BASIN and file on one of these Government irrigated homesteads where alfalfa means money.

YOU HAVE TEN YEARS TIME without interest to repay the Government the actual cost of water right and you have plenty of water for irrigation. You pay down $4.70 an acre and then skip two years before next payment.

Write for map and particulars.

D. CLEM DEAVER, Immigration Agent

1004 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

