We expect now to remain here until the St. Louis district conference meets, then Bessie and I and the baby are going to visit Parsons, Kansas, thence to General Conference.

I did not like to leave Providence and Fall River Saints so soon, quite, but events seemed then, and have since seemingly justified us in this direction. We hope and pray for full recovery of the sick, and that the peace and good-will that should characterize Saints, may abound.

This letter, already too long, must be for the most part an answer to many New England Saints for a personal communication.

With thankful spirit to God for His care and protection and spiritual blessings bestowed thus far, I am,

In gospel faith and bonds,

M. H. BOND.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as mothers of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

Mrs. Mary E. Hulmes, President, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. H. Robinson, Corresponding Secretary, Box 487, Independence, Mo.
Mrs. B. C. Smith, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. Lucana Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect St., Kansas City, Missouri.
Mrs. Clara Frick, Independence, Missouri.
Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Recording Secretary, Lamoni, Iowa.
Mrs. Anna Murphy, Treasurer, Independence, Missouri.

"Courtesy," Cicero has beautifully remarked, "is the property of justice not to injure men, and of politeness not to offend them."

An amiable temper, and firmness of principle go far toward making a boy courteous. Honest, true and religious, we hope you will be. With such principles, you will not only be happy yourselves, but add to the happiness of those with whom you come in contact. Kind words, pleasant looks, and a thoughtfulness for the comfort or happiness of others, cost but little, yet no one can estimate their happy effects upon those with whom they associate. By such acts a charm is thrown around the home circle.

It is a cheap way of securing respect, and augmenting the circle of usefulness. If a youth be friendly disposed, it cannot be a hard task to give a nod of friendly recognition to the humblest individual you meet along the street. The outlay is small in proportion to the largeness of the returns.

I remember a poor woman living at one time across the street from us. Our nephew, a young man, was staying with us that summer. This woman was heard to say of him, "That youngster is a perfect gentleman. He'd as soon speak to me spudding around in my bare feet, as to the president of the United States. I never saw the likes of him, for he bows and speaks just as polite to me as to the biggest man in town." That is true courtesy, and it partakes of the Spirit of the Master, who never gave a cold look, or turned a cold shoulder on the lowest and vilest. Do you fall in with a feeble old man or woman, who, with tottering steps, may be carrying heavy parcels? Let the "May I assist you," come readily to your lips, and when you have left them at their door, and hear the "Thank you, lad, may God bless you and help you to grow up as you have begun," you will carry away a light heart, and feel well paid for your trouble. No matter if other boys sneer at you for it, as we go through life we are often treated with contempt by those who are beneath us, and cannot understand the spirit that actuates us. Let us rather pity than blame them. Such things give us strength for the battle of life, for life is a battle from the cradle to the grave, and the more victories you gain while young, the easier the battle in after years.

It is cheering to see how a bright smile, or a word of condolence goes to the heart of another who may be borne down by poverty or sorrow. Did we but realize how much good we might do, we would be more chary of our frowns, and more free with our smiles. Only a few days ago, meeting a boy on the street walking on stilts, I said, "A fall on those hard stones, and then where would your head be?" "Why, Mrs. Phipps," was his reply, "is that you? Why, when did you get home?" "Oh, I've been home a long time." "Why don't you come to see us?" "It is such a long walk, I hate to undertake it." "I'll come after you with the horse and buggy some time soon." "All right, I'll go then."

I was visiting this boy's mother two years ago, talked to him and his brothers all evening, except a while that I read to them. Told them of my experience in teaching in a log house in Iowa in an early day, etc., and knew I had more listeners than the children, for the parents were very attentive, too. Now, it was not much trouble to make those chil-

$2.50 WORTH SENT FREE.

DR. MILES, THE GREAT SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF THE HEART, NERVES, STOMACH AND KIDNEYS.

WILL SEND A TRIAL COURSE OF HIS NEW AND REMARKABLE TREATMENTS FREE.

When an experienced physician offers to give away New Treatments for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach, or dropsy, it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in it. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Special Treatments his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration.

That Franklin Miles, M.D., L.L.B., is one of the world's most successful physicians is proven by hundreds of wonderful cures of well known people. One patient cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians, one after being given up by thirty physicians, one after failure of twenty-two physicians, another after nine of the leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed.

The late Prof. J. S. Jewell, M.D., editor of the Journal of Medicine and New Diseases, said: "by all means publish your surprising results." Prof. J. P. Ross, M.D., Ex-President of Rush Medical College, wrote in 1874: "Dr. Miles has taken two courses of my private instruction in diseases of the heart and lungs." Mr. Truman D. Weiss, editor of the Chicago Times-Herald, states: "Dr. Miles cured me of years of inherited headache and dizziness." The well known manufacturer of Freepport, Ill., J. C. Scott, says: "I had fruitlessly spent thousands of dollars on physicians until I consulted Dr. Miles." Mr. Frank Smith of Wabash Ave., Chicago, writes: "Dr. Miles cured me of dropsy after five leading physicians had given me up."

One thousand remarkable testimonials sent upon request. As all may have $2.50 worth of treatment especially prepared for their case, free, as a trial, we would also like to send for it at once. Address, Dr. Franklin Miles, 209 State Street, Chicago. Please mention this paper.

dren happy, and yet it was a red letter day to them that they will remember, while I felt better for pleasing them. Do you know the song that says:

Oh, the good we all may do, While the days are going by.

If we wait to do some great thing we shall be a failure in youth, and a failure through life. We must not be like Micawber, "wait for something to turn up," we must go to work and "turn it up." It is the little things that come daily to our hand, it is the constant seeking to make those with whom we are thrown every day, happier and better for our being with them. Would we not rather see their faces light up with pleasure at our approach, than to see a frown appear, as much as to say, "You are not wanted." On every side are found those whose lot in life is far from being easy. Let us speak to them cheerfully and encourage them. Let one envelope himself in an atmosphere of courtesy, and he will increase his usefulness ten-fold. As this course does good to others, so it is sure to benefit oneself.

No one cherishes a spirit of true courtesy, and is careful to act it out, without finding it tributary to his own enjoyment. It did Abraham as much good, perhaps, as it did his guests, to prepare them a repast, and then to stand by and see them eat under the shade of the tree.

It is said of the father of Mary Lyon, principle of the Mount Holyoke Seminary, that he was never kinder to speak an unkind word. No wonder it was said of him, "He was greatly beloved by all his acquaintances." If you strive to make others happy, the happiness you seek for will spring up within your soul like flowers come to greet the sunshine.

M. J. PHIPPS.

GUARANTEED TO CURE

Immediately Relieves Without Drugs The Most Obstinate Diseases. A Most Remarkable Invention. Physicians astonished, and thousands of grateful users testify to the wonderful results obtained by using the new 1003 style of Quaker Thermal Bath Cabinet. Every home should have one for bathing purposes. Seated within the Cabinet, clouds of hot air and vapor surround the body, giving a hot vapor bath, which opens the millions of skin pores, sweats out of the system all impure salts, acids and poisonous matter which, if retained, overwork the vital organs and cause disease, debility and sluggishness, keeps the body absolutely clean inwardly and outwardly, vigorous and healthy without medicine. No more bath tubs or doctor bills. We positively guarantee results. Our Treatment cures hard colds, clears the skin, cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, La Grippe, Sleeplessness, Neuralgia, Dropsy, Aches, Pains, Weakness and all Diseases of the Nerves and Blood, as well as Kidney, Urinary, Liver, Stomach and Skin Troubles.

All symptoms of the grippe, pneumonia, fevers, throat and lung troubles are positively broken up and eradicated from the system in one night. This is a genuine Cabinet with a door, handsomely and durably made, best materials. Guaranteed fitness on bath or your money back. Rubber lined. Firmly supported by a rigid steel frame. Will last a life time. Weighs 10 pounds; folds flat in 2 inch space; easily carried. In use it is an air tight, rubber walled bathroom within itself, amply large for a grown person to comfortably rest on a chair and have at home for 3 cents each all the cleansing, purifying and invigorating effects of the famous Turkish, Russian, Hot Air, Sulphur or Medicated Baths, with no possible danger of taking cold or weakening the system. Dr. E. L. Eaton was so astonished at the wonderful cures made by this treatment that he gave up his practice and has already sold over 600 Cabinets. Right Rev. J. C. Harzell, Bishop of Africa; Rev. G. A. Hagan, L. L. D., Chicago, recommend them highly, as also do U. S. Senator Hon. Chaucey M. Depew, Congressman John J. Lentz and hundreds of others. J. A. Hagan, afflicted fifteen years with rheumatism, was cured in six days. Rev. G. N. Barlow, D. D., afflicted for years, was cured of frightful case of rheumatism, kidney troubles, la grippe, etc. L. B. Washbrook, afflicted forty-five years, was cured in three weeks of catarrh, asthma, rheumatism, heart and kidney trouble. Thousands of others testify to marvelous cures by this Thermal treatment. Quorum of Twelve.

The following preambles and resolutions were adopted by the Quorum of Twelve at its sessions during the annual conference of 1901, at Independence, Missouri, and ordered published:

WHEREAS, It is important to know how and to what extent a minister of the church is affected by having charges preferred against him, and

WHEREAS, It becomes necessary to determine whether a minister of the church is required to cease official work upon his being notified that charges have been preferred against him, embodying offences of a character sufficiently grave, if proven, to justify his silence from official duty, therefore, he be

Resolved, That where charges of the above character are preferred, and entertained, the minister so affected should be held as silenced from the time said charges are entertained by the authority having jurisdiction, and should so remain subject to action of proper church tribunal. In cases of doubt as to whether the charges are, or are not, sufficiently grave to justify silencing the officer, reference should be had to the missionary in charge. If, however, said charges are preferred against the missionary in charge, or if, for any other reason, he be disqualified, reference should be had to the First Presidency of the church, and the advice given by the missionary in charge, or the First Presidency, as the case may be, should govern in the case.

On April 23d, the following communication was received by the quorum and considered:

"To the Quorum of the Twelve, Greeting:—Brethren of the Quorum, I do greatly desire to be restored to the fellowship and privileges of the Quorum. I hereby withdraw the injurious and recriminating statements I have made against the motives of those who have taken part in this affair, without reserve or self justification.

"I accede to the verdict of the Quorum, and submit thereto, as I also do to the Conference action on the report of the Council. And further, I hereby present my apology to the Quorum, to the church, and to all persons who have been injured in any wise by me during the continuance of this affair; and I hereby declare that should the privileges of the Quorum be accorded to me, I will engage in the duties of my calling with a more careful supervision of speech and conduct; and will, so far as wisdom may be given to me, serve the Master in such way that no wrong nor harm shall come to the church, the cause, or my co-laborers therein.

"Respectfully,
"E. C. BRIGGS.
"INDEPENDENCE, Mo.,
"April 23, '01."

The following resolution was adopted, based on the above paper:

Resolved, That we accept the restitution made by Bro. Briggs, as contained in the document submitted by him today, and that all disability imposed upon him by our action of last year be removed, and he be restored to Quorum privileges.

The Quorum sustained its present officers, and adjourned to meet at Lamoni, Iowa, March 29, 1902.

Published by order of Quorum.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

Southern California district conference convened with the San Bernardino Saints in their chapel, corner of Fifth and G Streets, March 1, 1901; T. W. Williams and A. E. Jones presiding; E. A. Smith and Maggie Pankey secretaries.

Branch reports: San Bernardino 272, officials 17, 1 baptism; Los Angeles 171, 5 baptisms, officials 15; Newport 251, officials 23.

Ministry reporting: High priests, T. W. Williams, Albert Carmichael and A. E. Jones; elders, Wm. Gibson, E. A. Smith, J. W. Brackenbury, H. L. Hemmingway; priests, J. Wixom, C. M. Salter, Jas. Baldwin; teachers, S. Penfold, H. S. Pankey, J. Miller.

Bishop's agent's report: On hand, $373.07; received, $1697.35; disbursed, $1793.13; balance due church, $278.29. A. Carmichael, R. F. D. No. 1, Anaheim, California, agent. Report audited and found correct.

A committee consisting of the president and secretary of each branch was selected to act as a committee to locate branch boundaries.

On motion, branch officers were instructed to use all means to locate scattered members, and failing, they were to transfer their names to the district record as scattered.

Present officers were sustained and resolution passed that the term of district officers be for one year.

T. W. Williams, T. W. Chabrun, D. A. Anderson and Maggie Pankey were selected to represent the district at the coming General Conference. Provisions were made for the district to defray the expenses of Bro. T. W. Williams to and from Conference. It was also provided that in case Bro. Williams could not go, that we send Bro. A. E. Jones in his stead.

The preaching was by the following brethren in the order named: Elders C. W. Earl, J. W. Brackenbury, A. Carmichael and T. W. Williams. Sunday was devoted to fasting and prayer, that the sick may be healed and that the Father may be pleased to bestow more spiritual blessings upon the district.

Adjourned to meet with the Los Angeles branch; time left to the district president.

The following ministry were present at the conference: High priests, T. W. Williams, A. Carmichael and A. E. Jones; elders, C. W. Earl, J. W. Brackenbury, E. J. French, E. A. Smith, Wm. Gibson and H. Hemmingway; priests, N. W. Best, Jasper Wixom, H. Thornton and J. Prothro; teachers, Jas. Miller and Jas. Baldwin; deacons, H. Hendrickson and N. Paulson.

This was one of the most spiritual conferences ever held in the district. Complete harmony prevailed throughout. The power of God was markedly present. The addresses of the district officers are as follows: T. W. Williams, Los Angeles, California, 1322 Myrtle Ave. A. E. Jones, San Bernardino, California, 1420 Walnut Ave. A. Carmichael, Anaheim, California, R. F. D. No. 1.

Convention Minutes.

Sunday School convention of the Pittsburg district convened at Wheeling, West Virginia, March 1st and 2d, General Superintendent T. A. Hougans in charge.

Reports were received from the following schools, Pioneer of Pittsburg; Unity of Fayette City; River View of Wheeling.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing term: Superintendent, F. G. Pitt; assistant superintendent, O. J. Tary; secretary, L. A. Serig; treasurer, Joseph Ebelling; librarian, E. H. Thomas.

Adjourned to meet at Fayette City at call of superintendent.

LOUIS A. SERIG, Dist. Sec.

WHEELING, W. Va., March 8.
Massachusetts district Sunday School Institute will meet May 11, 1901, at Fall River, at 2:30 p. m. As this is our first session for Institute work we shall expect a good attendance of teachers from every branch.

Come prepared to help along the work as well as to receive good. Our faculty is composed mostly of normal graduates, and we expect that our coming session will far surpass any past work.

We desire to remind you that no business is to be transacted during this meeting, the full five sessions being given to class drills, papers, etc. Please see that reports are in by May 5th, to Miss Ora V. Holmes, Diamond Hill, Rhode Island.

M. C. FISHER, Dist. Supt.

The Far West, Missouri, district Z. R.-L. S. convention met at the brick church in St. Joseph, March 15th, at 7:45 p. m. Reports from locals showed an increase of 76 in membership. Good, live interest was manifested by reports of officers. Routine business was done and 29 delegates elected to General Convention. A very interesting program was rendered and much good was done. Adjourned to call of the president.

W. W. SMITH, Dist. Pres.

APPRECIATED.

Editor Ensign:—At the regular bi-monthly business meeting of the Chicago branch, held April 1, 1901, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The conference year is about to close, and inasmuch as we have no assurance that Bro. and Sr. Terry will be returned to this city, and

WHEREAS, They have been located with us during the past three years, and, during this time, have made many sacrifices and have labored hard, continuously and, we believe, conscientiously, for the work we all love, and

WHEREAS, We believe that their efforts have been productive of much good to the gospel work in this city in general, and to this branch especially, and

WHEREAS, The efforts put forth in behalf of truth have won for them our love and esteem as our brother and sister in the gospel bond, therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the Chicago branch, express our appreciation for all the faithful efforts of our missionary and his wife during their sojourn with us, by extending to them a vote of thanks for the same, and be it further

Resolved, That we, as a branch, will deeply regret if circumstances are such that a change in Bro. Terry's appointment is necessary; but if, in the providence of God and His people represented at the General Conference, Bro. and Sr. Terry are again returned to us, we shall be greatly pleased and we can assure them a hearty welcome back to our midst, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Saints' Herald and also to ZION'S ENSIGN, for publication.

Cure for Smallpox.

The following recipes were taken from an exchange some years ago, and we publish them, that if any virtue is found in them our people may receive the benefit.

No. 1.
A Paris physician says: "I herewith append a recipe which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It is as unfailing as fate and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I have used, and cured my children of scarlet fever; here it is as I have used to cure smallpox: when learned physicians said the patient must die, it cured." "Sulphate of zinc, one grain; fox-glove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two tablespoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed, add four ounces of water. Take a spoonful every hour; for a child smaller doses according to age. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours."

If countries would compel their physicians to use this, there would be no need of pesthouses. If you value advice and experience, use this for that terrible disease.

No. 2.
The following was communicated to Improves the flavor and adds to the healthfulness of the food.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO. CHICAGO.

NOTE.—There are imitation baking powders sold cheap by many grocers. They are made from alum, a poisonous drug, which renders the food injurious to health.

the Liverpool Mercury by a Mr. Hine. He says:

"I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man if the worst cases of smallpox cannot be cured in three days, simply by the use of cream of tartar. One ounce of cream of tartar dissolved in a pint of water drank at intervals when cold, is a certain, never failing remedy. It has cured thousands, never leaves a mark, never causes blindness and avoids tedious, lingering illness."

Conference Notices.

The Eastern Maine district conference will convene with Saints at South Addison, June 1st and 2d. Hope the Saints will make an effort to get there and be blessed.

J. N. AMES, Pres.
CHARLESTOWN, MASS., April 23.

Conference for the Southern Nebraska district will be held at Nebraska City, May 26 and 27, 1901. A full report is expected from all the branches, and of the ministry as well. Come together and let us be built up in the good work.

By order of the president,
J. W. WALDSMITH.
INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Apr. 20.

Convention Notices.

The Philadelphia district Sunday Schools will meet in convention at Baldwin, Maryland, May 4th and 5th. Let all make an effort to attend and try to make the convention a success.

H. H. BACON, Supt.
E. B. HULL, Sec.

April 14.
The Sunday School association of Southern Nebraska district will convene with Nebraska City branch on the 24th and 25th of May. Please send in a full report of all schools of the district, and come yourselves and let us strive to forward on the Sunday School work.

W. M. SELF, Supt.
INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 19.

Reunion Notices.

The reunion of the Southern California district will be held in Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, commencing July 19th, and continuing over Sunday the 28th. It is the purpose of the committee to make this the best reunion we have ever held.

We are planning to have Bro. Joseph Smith attend this meeting. Bro. Joseph Luff, our missionary in charge, will be with us. There is also a possibility that we will have some of the missionaries who have been appointed to the South Sea Islands and Australia in attendance. We are almost sure to have Bro. Burton with us. Definite plans will be made as soon as I return to the coast.

Due announcements relating to board, tents and other accommodations will be made in plenty of time. It is to be hoped that the Saints will take hold of this with a united effort to make the meeting a complete success.

There are bright prospects ahead of us as a district if we will but take advantage of the opportunities thus afforded us.

Respectfully submitted,
T. W. WILLIAMS,
For the Committee.

PREPARE THE WAY.

Independence, Missouri, has for many years held the affectionate interest of the Saints, and of nearly every one who, at any time, has accepted the ministry of Joseph Smith the Martyr, as being divinely authorized. The unrest and turbulence manifested among the societies of the world has for many years served to impress upon the minds of faithful Israel everywhere the necessity for the gathering to a central place where they may have kindly and congenial association under the protecting hand of Israel's God. Earnest prayers from longing hearts have ascended to the Most High that He would hasten the redemption of Zion, and aid His people in their preparation for the conditions by which they might be permitted an abiding place there. And when, at last, the time came for an advanced step to be taken, and the commandment was given to organize Stakes at Independence, Missouri, and Lamoni, Iowa, there was general rejoicing among the Saints, and with it a renewal of courage and strength to press forward in the things still before them, to enable them to occupy as the Lord designs they shall.

That renewed interest has been aroused by the events recently transpiring in this regard, is evidenced in the inquiries now being received by some of the Bishopric; some of the Saints being desirous of coming to Independence or vicinity, and other parts of the Stake, that they might share in the benefits which, in due time, are to be received by the inhabitants of the land, if they are faithful and diligent in the observance of those things given for their instruction and guidance, by which the proper preparation shall be made. The world is fast ripening in iniquity and the cry of the oppressed of every land must move the heavens. Selfishness and greed are dominating influences in business circles, and the large majority of the wage earners are burdened in the effort to secure even a livelihood. In the strife of competing interests, the utmost capacity of the individual laborer, whether clerk or manual toiler, is often taxed, and overtaxed, in the demands made upon him, until nature succumbs, when the unfortunate victim of this rapacious spirit of greed is cast off as a useless piece of machinery, and a younger man replaces him until he, in turn, is worn out before his time. No wonder hearts sicken and courage flags at the unequal contest, and the soul longs for a condition where the necessities of life may be obtained without destroying soul and body to secure them; a condition where brotherly love, and consideration for another's interests is given, the same as for one's own. This is the condition our heavenly Father designs shall exist in Zion and all her Stakes, and the step recently taken when the Stakes were organized as directed by the Lord, is the preparation and beginning for such conditions to be brought in.

But while this condition must be attained before all the benefits may be realized which Zion is to bring to her converts, such a state has not yet been gained, and there is much to be done before ideal conditions are reached. Yet that progress to that end has been made, is evidenced by the establishment of these Stakes making it possible that the requirements to this end may be met, and development for higher and better conditions made. Increased blessings enforce increased responsibility, and more is now demanded of the Saints than under former conditions. A new order now exists in the Stakes by which certain explicitly given directions must be complied with if the Saints are accounted worthy to stand; and the faith of every one will be put to the test, whether or not they shall be found worthy to abide in Zion. Section 98:9 and 108:4, Doctrine and Covenants, provide that those who gather to the land of Zion shall have all things prepared before them; and section 72:5 provides that a certificate of worthiness signed by three elders of the church, or by the bishop, shall be carried to the bishop in Zion, otherwise they shall not be accounted wise. The individual who cannot maintain his integrity, and honor his profession where he now lives, will not be an acceptable inhabitant of the Stakes of Zion, and every one who desires to come to these places should possess both the desire and the will to comply with the laws of the Lord which are to govern in Zion. No one will be justified according to the law, in moving to these Stakes, until they have first laid the case before the Bishopric (rule 9,) and they should be willing to abide the decision given.

The following resolutions of a joint council of the presidency, bishopric and high council of Independence Stake is given for the information of the Saints. There is not the slightest disposition on the part of any one residing at the center place to keep any worthy member of the church away; but under the present conditions especially, it is necessary that every family contemplating moving into either Stake should take the matter up with the bishop, and have all things prepared before them. There should be no indiscriminate rushing to these places; such a course will be sure to bring disaster, suffering and hurt to all concerned:

JOINT COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

At a joint council of the presidency, bishopric and high council of the Independence Stake, held at Independence, Missouri, May 3, 1901, the following resolutions were adopted as being their opinion:

THE PRESIDENCY.

1. Resolved, That the duties of the presidency of the Independence Stake are to reside within the limits of the Stake territory, viz., the former Independence district, to preside over the Independence congregation, the Stake conferences, direct the labors of local ministers, and have the supervisory charge over all the congregations and members.

2. To convene the high council when necessity demands and preside over same when in session.

BISHOPRIC.

3. Resolved, That it is the duty of the bishopric to take the active oversight of all the temporal affairs of the church in the Stake, looking after the wants and needs of the poor, and families of the ministry; the purchasing of land, building houses of worship and other buildings for the benefit and use of the church. To keep the Lord's storehouse and treasury, collect tithes and offerings, disbursing the same as the necessities of the work demand.

4. It is their privilege and duty to call on the presidency and high council for advice and counsel in purchasing lands, building churches, or other buildings, or any matters where they may need advice or counsel.

5. To call on the high council when difference of opinion in temporal things arise between members of the church and the bishopric; to decide what is proper and right in the case. The bishopric being alone responsible to the church for the finances, should be left free, to act on their own judgment in the administration of the affairs of their office and calling.

HIGH COUNCIL.

6. Resolved, That it is the duty of the high council to assist the presidency, when called upon, by their advice and counsel, collectively or individually; to convene on call of the presidency to hear cases that may come before them, by appeal, or otherwise.

7. To decide what is just and right for members to have, where differences of opinion arise between members and the bishopric.

8. To assist the bishopric, when called upon, with their counsel and advice, with regard to buying lands, building houses of worship and other buildings, or works, for the use of the church.

MEMBERS.

9. Resolved, That all members of the church contemplating moving to the Independence Stake, should correspond with the bishop of the Stake and have all things prepared before them in harmony with the law.

10. Resolved, That it is the duty of members residing, or coming to reside in the stake, to comply with the law which requires them to place in the hands of the bishop all their surplus property, or that which they have to impart for the care of the poor and needy and such other uses as the needs of the work may require; and after this first consecration, to pay one-tenth of their interest annually.

SURPLUS.

11. Resolved, That the meaning of the word "surplus," as used in Doctrine and Covenants, in section 42, paragraph 8, and section 106, paragraph 1, is that amount above the needs of business, or support of family.

12. WHEREAS, God has said (Sec. 42, par. 9), "Every man shall be made accountable unto me, a steward over his own property, or that which he has received by consecration;" also section 64, paragraph 7, "Behold, the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind; and the willing and obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days."

Resolved, That all offerings, consecrations and tithings, must be the voluntary act of every individual, as all must answer to God, and be rewarded as a faithful or unfaithful steward in the end.

13. It is the duty of all members living in or moving into this Stake, to comply with the law as given in section 73, paragraph 5, in order to be considered wise stewards, and fully in harmony with the law.

CHURCH LOCATION AND BUILDINGS.

14. Resolved, That we look with disfavor on locating, erecting and purchasing church property, except as it may be approved by the bishopric, or, if necessary, by the direction of the high council.

15. Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to ZION'S ENSIGN and Saints' Herald for publication, and that a copy be sent to the president of each branch of the Stake, to be read to the members.

WE STAND CORRECTED.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 4, 1901.

W. H. GARRETT, Editor of ENSIGN,

Dear Brother:—I see by your issue of May 2d that you have fallen into an error which I learn is quite common among the membership. In speaking of the organization of Independence Stake you say: "When the first Stake in its [Reorganized Church] history was organized."

On April 6, 1853, there was a Stake organized at Argyle, Wisconsin, to be known as the Zarahemla Stake, with William Cline president and Cyrus Newkirk and Isaac Butterfield counselors. (Church History, Vol. 3, p. 218).

There is nothing in the minutes regarding the organization of a High Council at that time, but at the Annual Conference of 1854, according to the original minutes kept by Samuel Blair which were not in our hands when the book went to press, there was provision made for the choosing of a Council. The resolution reads as follows: "On motion the Quorum of Apostles was appointed to select twelve men to constitute the High Council of the church."

Whether the organization was completed or not does not appear, but it was partially organized and declared to be a Stake. In the Conference for 1854 the president and council were sustained. (Church History, Vol. 3, p. 231). There is, however, a discrepancy regarding the word "council" in the last quotation; in the published history it is spelled as here given, but in the minutes it is "counsel."

In bonds, as ever, your brother,

HEMAN C. SMITH.

WHEN we united with the church in 1866, and for a good many years thereafter, we were informed that the Church of Jesus Christ was reorganized April 6, 1860, at Amboy, Illinois, when President Joseph Smith was accepted as the Prophet, Seer and Revelator to the church, and was at that Conference made its president. It was this organization we had in mind when writing the editorial in last week's issue, to which our brother, the Church Historian, refers.

Volume three of the Church History has but recently been issued from the press and we have not yet had an opportunity to "explore" it. We thank Bro. Smith for his correction and give the information for the benefit of our readers, who may need it.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SR. A. R. CORSON, 3829 4th Street, Fulton, Richmond, Virginia, will be glad to receive cards for her Sunday School scholars if any have them to spare. She has sufficient Hopes for the present. She usually has an attendance of from 16 to 20. She also requests the prayers of the faithful that she may have strength and help for her needs in the work.

"THE TWO WAYS ILLUSTRATED" is our latest sermon tract, being from the pen of Elder A. H. Parsons. The narrow and broad ways are elucidated, with the works and final ending of each. It is a good tract to hand those who are searching for the "way of life." Price 5 cents each, 3 for 10 cents, 25 cents per dozen, in neat paper cover. We can fill orders promptly.

SOME good brother, presumably Elder J. W. Rushton, has a fine article in the Hamilton (Scotland) Herald, issues of March 1st and 8th, explanatory of the mission and work of Joseph Smith the martyr. It is entitled "The Mormon Prophet—Joseph Smith. His Work." We cannot begin to quote from it, but it certainly shows that splendid opportunities are being opened to the eldership in every land to get the truth prominently before the people, and in that manner present the gospel to some who would not otherwise hear it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER J. W. BRYAN, Eagle Ford, Dallas county, Texas, April 29th:

I am preaching with fair prospects of some coming into the church, as the house was crowded last night, with good attention, and very favorable remarks heard by a brother.

ELDER C. J. SPURLOCK, attending General Conference, Independence, Missouri:

The thought of so many of the ministry now being at General Conference awaiting their appointments to their several fields of labor is an impressive one. We hope that our associations will be such while here that added spiritual strength will be given us that we may go to our several fields of labor with increased zeal, courage and such other blessings as will be commensurate for the work to be accomplished.

BRO. JOHN TEETERS, Grinnell, Cove county, Kansas, April 22:

I lived in Fairfield, Nebraska, a few years ago, where there was a branch, and enjoyed the usual church privileges, but now I am one of the isolated. I would like very much to have an elder come this way. I am acquainted with Bro. W. M. Self, and think him a very fine man. There are a great many Catholics in this neighborhood, about seventy-five per cent of the population, I presume. Oh, how I wish there was a branch of God's people near here, so that I might attend and gain much needed spiritual strength. There are two families of Saints living about twenty-five miles north of here, about three miles west of Seldon, Kansas.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

President G. H. Hulmes will visit the First and Second Kansas City branches next Sunday.

The Willing Helpers, numbering ten, met at the usual hour on the 8th, spending the afternoon in their usual industrious way.

Bro. Elliott's lumber yard on West Lexington, near the ENSIGN office, is new in running order, and he is meeting with encouraging success.

Sunday School picnic sometime latter part of June. It's going to be a "Word of Wisdom" affair this year, which should make it all the more enjoyable.

Sr. R. Etzenhouser, who was very low last week, received help through administration, and is now recovering nicely. She was very close to eternity at one time.

Sr. Lydia Billinsky, of the ENSIGN composing force, is off on an extended vacation for rest and recuperation. She has gone to St. Louis to visit her brother, J. J., and family.

President G. H. Hulmes preached at the stone church last Sunday morning, and Bishop Hilliard at night. The sacrament service was largely attended and was a profitable season.

James Ackland Hamilton, son of Bro. and Sr. Thomas Hamilton, was baptized in Shultz's pond May 1st by Elder T. W. Chatburn and confirmed at the evening prayer service same date by Bishops G. H. Hilliard and R. May.

Sr. Nellie Lloyd, daughter of Bro. and Sr. T. E. Lloyd, having finished her course in stenography, has returned to Montana, where she has a remunerative position. Sr. Nellie is a bright, intelligent young lady and will make a success of her avocation, we are assured.

On Wednesday the 1st, the Daughters of Zion met and elected their officers for the ensuing year, the choice being for president, Sr. B. C. Smith; for secretary, Sr. Abbie Horton, and for treasurer, Sr. R. May. Some important work was done, although only six members were present to transact business.

"Children's Day" will probably be celebrated the second Sunday in June. Judging from the past efforts in this direction, it will be both pleasant and profitable. We hope our Kansas City brethren will find it convenient to hold their celebrations of the day on different dates to the above to permit an interchange of visits by those who may desire to do so.

Bro. Gomer R. Wells returned Monday from his old home, Knob Noster, Missouri, where he preached several times since Conference to crowded houses. Was warmly greeted by his old acquaintances, and accorded an earnest, respectful hearing in his presentation of the gospel. He left this, Thursday, morning for Deer Lodge, Montana, to make preparations for departing to his mission field, Australasia, about the 1st of August, where he expects to remain for a number of years. He desires to express his thanks to all who have assisted with subscriptions for the Australian paper.

Don't forget that we are to have a reunion this summer near Independence. Bro. I. N. White having so many things to look after, has appointed Bro. Geo. H. Hulmes to take his place on the committee, which will now be composed of Bro. Hulmes, R. May, and Edis Short. We hope as many as possible who reside within Bro. I. N. White's mission, and any others who may be so disposed, will make their arrangements to attend and help to make it the success it deserves to be. Forward, all, is the watchword, and all who can do so, should feel it a duty, as well as a pleasurable privilege to aid this work in this place, for the influence it may have for good, in the center place. Further announcements later. Come and help us.

Municipal lighting for this city carried by seven votes over the necessary two-thirds majority at the special election, Tuesday. We will soon have a first class service now, under the management of a board equally divided as to politics, which will take it out of the realm of a political "influence." Orders have also been given for the widening of West Lexington street from Pendleton to Bro. Maguire's store, and bids ordered for paving the street from the square to the Pacific bridge. So that at last these long delayed improvements are materializing and the city will be greatly benefited thereby. The city engineers have also been instructed to prepare estimates for repairing West Maple avenue, which is in a very dilapidated condition. The contractors, it would seem, did very poor work in macadamizing it two or three years ago, and it is so full of holes that the travel on that street is rendered very unpleasant.

Sr. Bertha Ray, wife of Bro. John H. McMullin, after a long, earnest struggle with consumption, succumbed to the destroyer at the home of her sister at Webb City, Missouri, shortly after midnight of Friday last, aged 29 years. She suffered considerably until a short time before her demise, when all pain left her as had been prayed for, at her request, by one of the elders for whom she had sent, and she fell asleep in the Lord peacefully and calmly with the shadow of a smile upon her lips. The remains were brought to Independence Sunday morning and at 1 o'clock at the church Bro. Joseph Luff preached the sermon, after which the remains were interred in the city cemetery. The floral offerings, a wreath, anchor, sheaf and banks of roses, were beautiful indeed. Bro. John and little daughter Ruth have the sympathy of a very large circle of friends in their deep bereavement. Sr. McMullin was of a quiet, amiable disposition and universally esteemed by all who knew her.

Bro. W. E. LaRue, who was taken with what is called the smallpox—the disease which has been going over the country during General Conference, is about well again; he has not been very sick at any time, we believe. He was staying with Bro. Thomas Crick when he first became ill, in a neighborhood where there has been no cases of this kind before or since Bro. LaRue's, and being taken so soon after his coming here, it is evident the disease was in his system when he arrived. We have heard of no cases here among the Saints since Conference, though there is a case now and then heard of in different parts of the city. The cases are so far, however, very few. Bro. F. C. Keel, who it is said, went home from Conference sick with this disease, must have gone at the opening. We did not see him here at all, that we remember. He has, also, we are glad to say, recovered. In talking with a physician here about this disease he was doubtful that it really is smallpox, and expressed the opinion that those who have passed through an attack of it, would not be immune from an attack of the genuine smallpox; so the brethren should not be careless about the matter if they should be in a neighborhood where that disease is known to be; drink cream of tartar water and avoid having an empty stomach, use wisdom in eating when exposed, and there will be little danger of taking it.

The regular business meeting of the branch was held Monday evening at the church, President Hulmes in the chair. The usual official reports were read, the treasurer's report showing $129.10, total collections, and $140.63, expenses; due treasurer, $11.44. Bro. John R. Lentel on letter of removal from Lee's Summit, Missouri, branch, and Alma Dille, on certificate of baptism, were admitted to membership in this branch. Letter of removal was granted Sr. Eliza Keene Moran to the Hillman, Michigan, branch. The work of caring for the records of the branch having become burdensome for one person, it was on motion divided, and separate offices of recorder and secretary were established. This being the time for the election of branch officers, a motion that the time of service hereafter shall be one year, instead of six months, prevailed. On motion the election was ordered by nomination and vote of show of hands. The following brethren were all re-elected: presiding priest, W. H. Murphy; presiding teacher, Lester Braackenburg; presiding deacon and branch treasurer, B. C. Smith. For secretary Bro. Frank Rudd was chosen, and for recorder, Bro. J. W. Luff. For chorister Bro. Orville James was re-elected, as was Bro. Horton for janitor. Auditing committee, C. M. Mills, B. J. Scott and Frank Rudd were also re-elected. The following preambles and resolutions prevailed:

WHEREAS: There does not seem to be any real necessity that a business meeting of the branch should be held every month, and

WHEREAS: So little interest is taken by the membership, as a rule, in these meetings, and

WHEREAS: When occasion requires the president of the branch may call a business meeting of the branch at any time, therefore be it, Resolved, That hereafter the regular business meetings of this branch be held quarterly.

Resolved, that letters of removal may be received or granted at the close of any prayer and testimony service of the branch.

Resolved, That any rules now in force, conflicting with the above is hereby rescinded.

Adjournment was then taken.

President Joseph Smith preached to a large audience of Saints at 11 o'clock Sunday morning and Apostle Heman C. Smith occupied at night.

The afternoon sacrament service was largely attended and was in charge of the President of the Stake, Bro. John Smith, and his counselors, Bro. J. A. Gunsolley and David Wight. A spirit of earnestness characterized the testimonies borne. New conditions now surrounding the Saints in this place; all seem eager to know what is required of them and the general feeling is to get nearer to God and to sustain his work.

The Sunday School anticipates observing a Children's Day the latter part of this month or first of next.

At the afternoon prayer service yesterday Alma Jacob, infant son of Mr. and Sr. Bierline, was blessed by Elders Lambert and Scott.

Elder Eli Hayer was ordained Sunday evening to the office of a Seventy, by W. H. Kelley, J. R. Lambert and Columbus Scott.

Bro. and Sr. H. A. Stebbins left Saturday night for Davis City where Bro. Stebbins will preach on Sunday; they will remain over Monday.

Sr. Stubbart and granddaughter Edie, returned from their visit at Octavia, Nebraska, on account of the severe illness of Sr. Pearl Stubbart. Sr. Pearl is today reported better.

At the home of Bro. H. R. Harder, her son-in-law, May 1, 1901, of old age, Sr. Elizabeth Daugherty, aged 79 years 5 months and 21 days, passed from this life. Born in Belmont county, Ohio, in 1821. Maiden name was Hardesty. Married Hiram Daugherty April 18, 1839. Both were baptized March 25, 1875, near what is now Lamoni, by Elder C. H. Jones. Faithful and active Saints. Funeral service at house by Elder H. A. Stebbins as per her request.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

We are having very fine weather; a light rain fall Saturday evening laid the dust, and this (Sunday) morning all nature seemed to praise the Creator.

The services were well attended. Bro. Wm. Lewis was the speaker of the morning and Bro. S. F. Cushman of the evening. The sacrament service at 6 p. m. was very spiritual, many fine testimonies were borne. The attendance at the Sunday School was much larger than usual.

Bro. H. O. Smith, who is visiting his family, is quite sick we are glad to learn that his condition is improving.

Sr. Ida Pearson, of Kansas City, spent the day with her old friends. Bro. Merrill Etzenhouser, Lester Warnky, Lerman Holmes and E. Harrington of Kansas City, spent Sunday in the city, and were in attendance at the morning service.

Bro. Guinand has opened a Sunday School at St. George. The attendance and attention was good. Preaching at close of Sunday School.

Bro. and Sr. G. J. Whitehead and family are visiting friends in the city.

Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Bro. R. Archibald smiled very broadly yesterday, for Bro. Alfred White, made his appearance, and he learned that Bro. Allen was on his way to St. Louis, and that Bro. Fred Smith would be present with us the 1st of June; this means lessening of the burdens which sometimes weigh heavily upon a very busy man's shoulders. Bro. White was our speaker, 11 o'clock service, and held the attention of his audience. We were pleased to hear him.

Bro. Ed Bell has been on the sick list; was unable to be present at the Friday evening Religion prayer service; Bro. Baraclough presided in his stead.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

GOODWIN-BRAMBLET DEBATE.

Sometime ago a debate took place at Condon, Oregon, between Elder W. A. Goodwin, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ and Elder Bramblet of the Missionary Baptist church, and as I have not seen a report of it from any one else I will try to give a short sketch of it.

The propositions were drawn up by Elder Tonkins, of the Baptist church, and were as follows:

The church with which I stand identified, known among men as the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, is in fact the church of Christ. It possesses the Scriptural characteristics sufficient to entitle it to be recognized as such, they being the same in faith, organization and practice with the apostolic or New Testament church. W. A. Goodwin affirms and Bramblet denies.

The other proposition read the same, excepting Bramblet affirmed the Missionary Baptist church.

They were to have three nights apiece, but Elder Goodwin asked for another night and it was granted. The first night all went well. Elder Goodwin had printed on large charts the names of the offices in the apostolic church with scriptural references, and on another piece the spiritual gifts in the apostolic church. He stated that if we can find out the faith, organization and practice of the apostolic church, we would then know what Christ's church should be in this age. He showed that the apostolic church had apostles, prophets, evangelists, priests, teachers, deacons, etc., and referred to 1 Corinthians 12:28; Matt. 10:1; Eph. 4:11; Titus 1:7, and others. That they practiced the laying on of hands, and quoted, Acts 6:6; Acts 8:17; Acts 19:6.

Elder Bramblet didn't deny but what that was all right for the apostles, but we didn't need such things now; and said that if the brother's church is the New Testament church he must be able to find his church name in the Bible. Just find the Reorganized church in the Bible; you can't do it. Bro. B. must have forgotten he had affirmed the same for the Baptist church. He had quite a hard time to find Missionary Baptist church in the Bible. He found it though. John was a baptist and was also a missionary, therefore, Christ's church is the Missionary Baptist church. He took the same old grounds with which we are all so familiar, and made this statement: "When the apostles died their office ceased." Bro. G. took the United States for an illustration. When these United States first became a republic, they elected a president and put him at its head, then a vice president, a congressman, and so on down to governors and justices of the peace; according to my opponent's argument, as soon as their time expired, or if one should die while in office, their office ceased until we come down to the governor and the justice of the peace; they must be retained. No, no. "What God doeth he doeth forever." The Baptist church has as officers, elders and deacons. And Elder B. said that elder in the Scriptures meant old people. Bro. G. kept reminding him that as elders referred to old people, the Baptist church had only old people and deacons in it as officers.

In commenting on 1 Corinthians 13:8-13, Bro. B. said that the Corinthian brethren hadn't become perfect yet, and it was only they who saw through a glass darkly, and when they became perfect then they would have no need of these gifts, and they should cease. But Paul says in the 12th verse, "Now, I know in part, but then (when that which is perfect is come) shall I know even as also I am known. Prophecies shall fail, tongues shall cease, knowledge shall vanish away, when that which is perfect is come, then we shall know even as we are known."

Paul, in Ephesians 4, tells us more on this subject. Verse 5: "Wherefore he saith, When he ascended up on high he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men." He "gave" gifts, and not took away gifts. Verse 11: "And he gave some apostles, and some prophets; and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers." In verse 12 he tells us what they were for. "For the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ." How long were they to remain? Verse 13: "Till we all come in the unity of the faith." It seems to me that passage is so plain that no one could say we don't need them now. Are we perfect? Have we "all come in the unity of the faith?" We must answer, No.

The second night Bro. G. touched lightly on Revelation 12, and left it for his opponent to touch. Bro. B. went at it in earnest. He said that the one thousand, two hundred and three score days equalled 1260 years, that the woman was the church, and the man child was the ministry. The explanation was very good and Bro. G. let it go just that way. He thanked the brother for his assistance, and took the date the church went into the wilderness (570 A. D.) and added to it 1260, the number of years the church was in the wilderness, which made 1830 A. D., the date the church should, and did, come out of the wilderness, and she must come out with the same faith, organization and practice with which she went in, or she could not be recognized as the same church. As the ministry was caught up to heaven it must be restored from heaven, or we would have no authorized ministry on earth. When Bro. B. tried to prove succession Bro. G. reminded him that the ministry was caught up to heaven, and how could a church be in an organized and working form with its ministry in heaven.

Elder B. called prophet Joseph and the leaders of the church almost all the mean things he could think of, but wound up by getting down on his knees and saying, "If you will just show me a sign, give this brother a leg, restore this sister's hearing [both the persons as much a disbeliever as he himself, just show me a sign and I will —] what? "Join you and make the best preacher you've got." Bro. G.'s reply was, Then you, after professing to be a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, would, if we would show you a sign, quit following Him and become a humbug with the rest of us.

The third and fourth nights Elder Bramblet wouldn't pay any attention to Bro. G.'s argument, but spent most of his time in reading from the Inspired Translation of the Bible and Doctrine and Covenants, making such expressions as these, "Well, we know where Cain got his wife now. So Cain loved Satan more than God, did he?" Bro. G. started to explain what the Inspired Translation was, and spoke of the mistranslations in King James' translation, but was ruled out of order as they had agreed to take the latter as the standard of evidence. He was not allowed to explain.

Bramblet read from Doctrine and Covenants, section 17, verse 10. Before reading he made an apology for reading it, saying he hated to read it, but he had been earnestly requested to do so. He must have been earnestly requested to not read it right; at any rate he did not, but declared that he read it alright. This is the way he read it: "The high priest's duty is to preach, teach, expound, exhort, and baptize, and administer the sacrament, and visit the house of each member and exhort them to pray vocally and in secret and attend to all the family duties." He read the clause "and attend to all the family duties" so very soft and easy. Bro. G. hit him so hard I don't think he will want to read it like that again soon.

When Bramblet's affirmative came Bro. G. tackled up two more charts beside the first two, one, the officers in the Baptist church which were elders and deacons; the other, the spiritual gifts in the Baptist church with a blank with only the word "see." That showed up the difference to perfection. Bro. B. was badly mixed up on his propositions; he couldn't drop the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ. The very last night he read what David Whitmer had to say about us, forgetting that it was the Baptist church that was under consideration. He got so anxious for a sign that he went to the bother of getting a small bottle of carbolic acid and holding it out towards Bro. G., told him to drink that and prove to the people that he could drink deadly poison and still live. Bro. G. said he reminded him of a personage back 1900 years ago who asked Christ to cast himself down from the pinnacle. But Christ's answer was, "It is written, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God;" but should he drink the poison accidentally, it would not harm him. Bramblet declared he called him a devil, but that didn't satisfy his desire for a sign. Elder B. made the statement that the power to lay on hands was never given to the third party, that if it could be found he would apologize to the audience. Bro. W. A. turned to Mark 16, beginning with the 15th verse, and read, "And he [Jesus the first person] said unto them [the apostles, second person], Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature [third person]. He [third person] that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them [third person] that believe; in my name shall they [third person] cast out devils; they [third person] shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not harm them; they [third person] shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover." Bramblet spoke right up and said that wasn't a command. He afterwards said he meant third person from the apostles. He didn't apologize.

Now, this is but a small part of what passed between the speakers; I feel that I have not done justice to the subject, but must say that the power of God was with Bro. Goodwin all through the debate. We feel that much good was done; much prejudice was removed even to personal prejudice. The Saints are all rejoicing.

Yours for the triumph of the truth,

OTIS W. PROPST.

THE TEN KINGS OF DANIEL.

BY ELDER W. A. GOODWIN.

Editor Ensign.—Although the above subject has been discussed over and over again, yet I believe there has been no definite conclusion arrived at, and as it is the blessed prerogative of every man to express his opinion, through the medium of your columns, so long as he gives it as such, I therefore ask space to set forth a few thoughts upon the subject above stated, and I ask all who read to bear in mind this thought, that in the year 1830, on April 6th, this, the church of Jesus Christ, was organized or set up, and we, its representatives, have been, and are yet, making the claim before the world that this church comes in fulfillment of the prediction made by the prophet, Daniel 2:44. This being true, it then behooves us to so study and inform ourselves, that when asked to explain our position to others we can do so in such clear and definite terms, that no doubt will be left in the mind of the hearer.

You who read will remember that this prophet, Daniel, was a captive, held in bonds by the King Nebuchadnezzar; and while Daniel was so held, this king had a dream while upon his bed, and the dream troubled him inasmuch that he sent for the wise men, the astrologers and soothsayers, and desired that they tell him what he had dreamed, for he had forgotten it. But they, like all false pretenders, could not tell the dream, but said, "Tell us the dream and we will tell the interpretation." This made the king angry, and he ordered all the wise men of Babylon slain, because he realized that these were trying to deceive him. Daniel asked time, and said he would tell the king both the dream and the interpretation; in time he came before the king and said (Dan. 2:27):

"The secret which the king hath demanded cannot the wise men, the astrologers, the magicians, the soothsayers, shew unto the king."

Daniel here fully realizes that these men were working by their own power; but note now what he tells the king (V. 28),

"But there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and maketh known to the King Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days."

In the 31st verse Daniel begins telling the dream, and says that the king saw, while asleep, a great image; its form was like a man, but the head was made of fine gold, his breast and arms of silver, his belly and thighs of brass, his legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay; and further (the king saw that a stone was out out of the mountain without hands, and this stone was to smite the image on the feet and break them in pieces.

Now, let us try, if we can, to understand or locate the image. Daniel tells us, in the 37th verse, that the God of heaven had given to Nebuchadnezzar a kingdom whose bounds was the entire known world; moreover God gave him power, strength and glory. Here the question arises, Was this kingdom that the God of heaven gave him a spiritual or a temporal kingdom? I shall take the position that while God made him temporal king over all his creation, He also gave him spiritual power, strength, and glory, but he, like other weak men, did not obey God, and for this reason God permitted the Medes and Persians to wrench from him his temporal power, while God took away his spiritual power and glory. Thus we see that the Medes and Persians was the kingdom represented by the breast and arms of the image.

History informs us that the Grecians overcame the Medes and Persians, and thus they fulfilled the kingdom represented by the belly and thighs. Next came the Roman Caesars, or Pagan Rome, which kingdom represents the legs of the image, from the knees down to the feet. It was during the reign of these Roman Caesars that Jesus Christ came in the flesh and established His kingdom; this, none who read to inform themselves, will deny. But as we go on in the prophecy we find that another kingdom would arise, inferior to the Roman Caesars, for they (the Caesars) were to be as strong as iron, but the kingdom to arise after them was to be mixed with iron and clay, and Daniel tells us this kingdom is represented by the feet and toes. Bear in mind, reader, the feet and toes together were first called a kingdom (verse 41), and in this verse we are told that the kingdom (which is represented by the two feet) was divided.

Now, as this kingdom is conceded to be Papal Rome, I ask, Where was Rome divided? and answer, She was divided between the two sons of Constantinople, one being placed at Constantinople, the other at Rome. Next we are told by the prophet that ten other kingdoms came out from the kingdom called the feet, and as Papal Rome is found to be that kingdom, we can only look to her to find the ten kingdoms represented by the toes, and here I wish to quote the 44th verse of this prophecy:

"And in the days of these kings (the ten toes and the feet) shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

Reader, have you borne in mind that we started out with the understanding that this, the church of Jesus Christ, composed of Latter Day Saints, makes the astounding claim to the civilized world that in the year 1830 the God of heaven set up His kingdom in literal fulfillment of Daniel 2: 44, and that such kingdom is called a church?

Now, if this be true (and it is true), when and where shall we look for the ten kingdoms that Daniel tells us would exist when God's work began? True it is we easily find the kingdom (or church) from which the ten were to come. Here the objector may step in and say, Why do you say church when you say the kingdom represented by the feet? Simply because Papal Rome is a church, and was a church in the year 1830, when God set up His kingdom (church), and for the benefit of all who read, let me here ask, Are you aware of the fact that our church, as a body, has the ten toes all in existence before the feet began its work, or in other words, they show the ten toes before there is any feet?

I have before me a statement from one high in one of the leading quorums of the church, that the first toe's kingdom showed itself in the year 356 A. D. I will give you the ten toes as they appear before me.

1, The Huns in Hungary arose 356 A. D. 2, The Ostrogoths, 377 A. D. 3, The Visigoths, 378 A. D. 4, The Franks, France, 407 A. D. 5, The Vandals, Africa, 407 A. D. 6, The Semoi and Alleus, Spain, 407 A. D. 7, The Burgundians, Burgundy, 407 A. D. 8, The Heruli and Rugi, Italy, 476 A. D. 9, The Saxons and Angles, Britain, 476 A. D. 10, The Lombards, Germany, 483.

These are claimed to be the ten toe kingdoms, but look, reader, at the position occupied by those who make this claim; you notice that according to this argument the first toe kingdom arose just 214 years before Rome, the feet kingdom. As it is conceded that she arose in about the year 570 A. D., does it not thus appear unreasonable to say that the toes would appear before the feet? And not alone rendering, not one of those were standing in 1830, when God set up His church on earth. Turn with me, reader, to the Saints' Herald for October 10, and read the letter from Bro. Moroni Bishop, of South Wales; it seems they have an organization called their "Mutual Improvement Class." At one of their meetings, at least, this question of the ten toes of Daniel 2: 44 arose, and as you will find, Bro. Bishop goes to the trouble of looking up, and he names, every king that stood in 1830, then asks some well read person to point out the ten that represent the toes of the image, but as yet no attempt has been made to answer him through the press, at least; I hold no fear that any will so attempt to answer it, as there is no proof to bear out any such attempt.

The argument has been presented that the kingdom given by God to Nebuchadnezzar was only given in the sense of permitting him to hold temporal power. Suppose we grant the argument, does that exclude the Lord from giving him spiritual power also? Daniel says that God gave Nebuchadnezzar power, strength and glory. Why all this bestowal upon the king, unless he stood at the time in favor with God?

Again we find not only Latter Day Saints, but all the civilized world, using the word "kingdom" synonymously with the word "church;" then if the kingdom that God was to set up (Dan. 2: 44) is a church, by what kind of reasoning does anyone say that the other eleven kingdoms (the feet and the toes) are not churches also? I would not object to such a rendering providing any man would furnish "Thus saith the Lord," or any other authoritative personage for proof.

Now, as before stated, Papal Rome is, and was in 1830, a church; and the Pope is, in some countries, head of both church and state, as was Nebuchadnezzar; then to her, and through her, and her alone, must we look for the ten toes to come, and be standing in 1830, or else we will be obliged to surrender our position as to the time of organization; for if the ten toes arose between the years 356 and 483, and as not one of them existed in 1830, and as God was to set up His kingdom during their days, then we must go back of 1830 to find His church. And just here let me offer one or two quotations to prove that about the year 1830 was the time when God was to set up His church. Isaiah tells us in his 29th chapter and 14th verse, that sometime in the history of the world God is going to do a marvelous work and a wonder among the people, and it will be of such magnitude that the wisdom of their time (the world's) wise men shall perish; and in the 10th verse of this same chapter, the Lord says it will be at a time when there are no prophets, no rulers (sent of God) and surely that will answer to the nineteenth century; for from nearly every pulpit in Christendom we hear loud denunciation of all who believe in prophets today, although there is ample proof in Scripture that there should be; and now this Prophet Isaiah in this same chapter and 17th verse, tells us about when we may look for the fulfillment of those things; it reads:

"Is it not yet a very little while and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field."

Reader, do you know that in the fall of 1852 and the spring of 1853, the early and latter rains were restored to the land of Palestine, that the Jews (God's covenant people) are again beginning to enjoy the fruit of their labors in their own lands, and while you remember this, don't forget that a little while before this takes place, God was to do a marvelous work and a wonder. Was it done? Go with me to the days of Joseph Smith the Martyr. See him when only an obscure boy, confronting the religious world with the astounding statement, that an angel, direct from the courts of high heaven, had appeared to him in answer to prayer. Listen to this boy telling the ministry of his day that their creeds were an abomination in the sight of God; with childlike innocence he tells them that the angel told him to join none of their churches, for they were all in error. See him gathered around the family fireside with gray haired father and mother, his brothers and sisters, and while they listen, he tells them what the angel had told him.

Soon the news began to spread, preachers and lay members left no stone unturned whereby they could slander and vilify him; but did they succeed in making him deny his first statement? NEVER! He soon claimed that God had given him authority to organize the church, not after the organizations of men, but after the plan instituted by Christ; he began the work, and in the short space of fourteen years succeeded in establishing a church with over 200,000 members. Reader, does this not fulfill the prediction of a "marvelous work and a wonder," when we remember that all the powers of earth and hell combined, were arrayed against it?

Then the prophet Nahum tells us in his second chapter, concerning a railroad, and tells that it shall be in the day of the Lord's preparation, and history informs us that the first railroad was built between Manchester and Liverpool, England, in the year 1825. So according to the prophet 1832 was the day of the Lord's preparation. What was he preparing to do? Send the everlasting gospel to the ends of the earth, to prepare a people for the appearing of Jesus Christ in His second coming. Reader, have we not shown you, briefly, that the year 1830 is the proper time? Then who can deny that the ten toes of Daniel must be standing in 1830?

Let us now turn to Rome and ascertain, if we can, who came out from her, and as we cannot find any temporal kings who fill the prophecy we shall look for spiritual kingdoms; and as Rome is a spiritual kingdom, or church, one may look for spirit ual kingdoms or churches to come out from her, and we begin with Martin Luther, Philip Melancthon, John Calvin, Ulrich Zwingli, Henry the Eighth, John Wesley, John Knox, William Penn, Roger Williams and Alexander Campbell.

I do not give them in their order but leave that for those who have history at hand; suffice to say Rome is the mother of all these, and others could be cited; who will deny the position? Please, brethren, do so if you can, by proof, substantial.

SAINT OR CHRISTIAN?

The followers of Christ are called "Saints" by the New Testament writers. Paul, writing his epistle to the Romans, addressed it "to all that be in Rome beloved of God, called to be Saints." Romans 1: 7. And to the Corinthians, "Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the Saints which are in all Achaia." Ephesians 1: 1: "To the Saints which are at Ephesus." Philippians 1: 1: "To all the Saints in Christ Jesus which are at Philippi with the bishops and deacons." Colossians 1: 2-4: "To the Saints." So now for the way the epistles are addressed.

Now, for some individual instances in which Christ's people were spoken of as Saints, showing that this was the name by which they were constantly known in New Testament times. Ananias, speaking of Saul, said, "How much evil he hath done to thy Saints." Acts 9: 13. Romans 8: 27: "He maketh intercession for the Saints." Romans 12: 13, a duty enjoined, "Distributing to the necessity of the Saints." Romans 16: 2, commending Phebe, "receive her as become a Saint." Ministry of the Saints, or ministering to the Saints. 1 Cor. 15: 16; 2 Cor. 8: 4 and 9: 1; Heb. 6: 10; Rom. 15: 25, 26; 1 Cor. 16: 1.

They were called Christians by their enemies only, or as when Peter refers to the use of that term by others, as in 1 Peter 4: 16. In Acts 11: 26, "first called Christians at Antioch." And Agrippa (Acts 26: 28), uses the same term, "almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." There is no place in the New Testament where the name Christian is used by the Saints when writing to each other.

What we understand by the name "Saint:" A follower of Christ; one who has received "the faith once delivered to the Saints." (Jude 3). Those who have obtained "like precious faith" with Peter. (2 Peter 1: 1).

"But no one is perfect." No, neither was Peter who denied his Lord, and afterward dissembled concerning eating with the gentiles. (Gal. 2: 11-14). It will be remembered too that he had previously acknowledged that God had shown him not to call any man "common or unclean." Acts 10: 28. The weakness of the flesh was apparent in these instances; yet Peter was a faithful man and was assured of his acceptance with God, writing that he was "also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed." 1 Peter 5: 1. There were contentions among the early Saints—not a saintly characteristic by any means, but an outcropping of human weakness. Paul and Barnabas once had such a sharp contention that they parted company. (Acts 15: 39). There were contentions among the Corinthians. (1 Cor. 1: 11). Paul, writing to Titus, admonished him to avoid contentions. (Titus 3: 9). James tells us (5: 17) that "Elias was a man subject to like passions as we are," showing that human nature had not changed from the days of Elias to his time; nor do we suppose that human nature has changed since the days of James. And we believe that those who obey the gospel of Christ now, are as properly called Saints as they were in those days; not claiming by that name to be perfect, or in any way different from the Saints of former times.

Believing the same gospel, having the same doctrine, we receive the same gifts and blessings. Paul wrote (Gal. 1: 8, 9) that if either an angel or man preached any other gospel (doctrine) than he (Paul) preached, "let him be accursed." But wherein did Paul's preaching differ from the preaching of today? Christ's last commission was "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 28: 20. Upon the condition that they would teach the people to observe all things which he had commanded them he would be with them. Now, if we can discover what Paul taught—preached—we can learn all things which Christ commanded. By turning to Hebrew 6: 1, 2, we learn that the principles of the doctrine that Paul taught were faith, repentance, baptism, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment. If we omit any of these, we come under the condemnation recorded in Revelation 22: 39. Yet Latter Day Saints are so frequently accused of adding to the Bible, a thing they have never done; but we never hear our accusers say anything about taking away portions of the Bible.

Let us see: As to faith and repentance we do not differ much from other professed believers in the Bible. But as to baptism, we believe according to Peter's statement, that it is for the remission of sins (Acts 2: 38), and that it must be performed by one having authority from God to do so, otherwise it is not valid. That there were invalid baptisms in Paul's time see Acts 19: 1-6. Paul finding that they had not even heard of the Holy Ghost, knew that they had been baptized by some one who knew not the gospel, for the promise was "and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2: 38); so he rebaptized them, and laid his hands on them and they received the Holy Ghost. Now, this laying on of hands must have been one of the things Jesus had taught them to observe, or Paul would not have mentioned it to the Hebrews, nor have laid his hands on those whom he baptized, as recorded in Acts 19: 6. Notice too that Peter and John practiced the laying on of hands, and in the observance of this ordinance the Holy Ghost was given. (Acts 8: 17). They had received the same instruction Paul had, and were observing the same ordinance; and Christ, true to His promise, recognized their obedience by sending the Holy Ghost according to promise.

But you may ask, "Do people speak with tongues and prophecy now as then?" or, you may say they do not. Well, let us see: I have heard the gift of tongues, interpretation of tongues and prophecy. Let us turn to 1 Corinthians 12, where Paul says, "concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. The manifestation of the spirit is given to every man." Verse 7. The 8th, 9th and 10th verses name the gifts wisdom, knowledge, healings, miracles, prophecy, discerning of spirits, divers kind of tongues, interpretation of tongues. Now, what has become of all those gifts? We are told they have ceased to exist. In other words, the churches instituted by man have "taken from" the word of God, dropped them out, saying they are not needed. The truth is that during the early apostasy the church departed from the "faith once delivered to the Saints," and began to introduce practices not ordained of God, and to omit those He had commanded, consequently He ceased to recognize them, and they no longer had the testimony of Jesus. (Rev. 19: 10). John, attempting to worship the messenger who was sent to him, was forbidden to do so. "I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren that have the testimony of Jesus; worship God, for the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." Does it not then follow that any church which has not the gift of prophecy manifested among its members, has not the testimony of Jesus? Mark says, 16: 17, "These signs shall follow them that believe," they shall cast out devils, speak with new tongues, take up serpents, drink deadly things without hurt, lay hands on sick and they shall recover. Christ's promise, "these signs shall follow them that believe," can never be broken. But to believe is to obey. "If ye love me keep my commandments" were his instructions. And, "If any man will do his will he shall know of the doctrine." (John 7: 17).

Christ's doctrine was not popular when He was on the earth. "My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me," was ever his declaration. The people "were astonished at his doctrine." (Matt. 7: 28). "He that abideth not in the doctrine of Christ hath not God." (2 John 9). Can it be possible that the doctrine of Christ has changed? Every one must answer, "No." Then if it has not changed, how is it there are so many different doctrines being taught, and each claiming to be of God? Surely some of them must be only the opinions of men taught as doctrine; and Jesus said, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." (Mark 7: 7). Since that was true when Christ taught in Jerusalem when there were some nineteen or more denominations, and He pronounced none of them right, accepted none of them, reformed none of them, but established His church anew upon the rock of revelation, is it not just as much true when the number of religions or denominations now in the world are numbered in the hundreds? "In vain do they worship me" should be the reason why we should all very anxiously desire to know which teaches the truth, and to most diligently search until we find it.

It is not enough that we are "sincere," we must have the truth as Christ taught it, we must have that same doctrine that so astonished the people of His day, and which just as much astonishes, and will astonish, the people of this day. We cannot reject the counsel of God as did the Pharisees and lawyers, without falling under the same condemnation as they. Let us be like the people and publicans, who, having heard Christ, "justified God being baptized with the baptism of John." (Luke 7: 29).

The baptism of John, what was it? John was sent of God (John 1: 6); he had authority to administer in the ordinances of the church. We have seen at least one instance in which some claiming to baptize unto John's baptism, were without authority to do so, and Paul re-baptized those people, for they were honest souls, and were so anxious to inherit the kingdom of God, that they were willing to come in as he had directed. Paul could not have made a mistake.

The doctrine of Christ brings joy to the soul, peace to the mind. The Holy Ghost, the Comforter, is given now as in the time of Christ, following baptism by the laying on of hands by those who have authority. The gifts and blessings are in His church now as then. The "testimony of Jesus" still follows His people. With David, all who have partaken of the life giving stream that Jesus promised, can say, "Oh come and taste and see that the Lord is good." We should, therefore, give the doctrine of Christ the honest and careful investigation that such an important subject deserves.

This "gospel of the kingdom" is to be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come. (Matt. 24: 14). "This gospel" must certainly mean just as it was preached then, with all the gifts and blessings, with just the same requirements, no more, no less. "An angel flying in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach, for the hour of his judgment has come." (Rev. 14: 6, 7). Could God be so unwise as to send an angel to preach the gospel if it were being preached, as some believe? Even if one should think this angel had not yet come, it would not change the fact that he was to come to preach the gospel, because it was not being preached. But the angel has come; the servants of God are again preaching and baptizing and laying on hands as of old. Come and receive with us of the joy and peace, the gifts and blessings as of old. Search the scriptures to see if these things be true.

SR. IDA STEWART.
Co-operation Crystallized.

An organization has been effected by the Saints of Colorado which, we think, is a step in the right direction, and in keeping with the spirit of the age—co-operation and combination. "The Independent Live-stock Association" is the name of the company that has been fully organized and incorporated under the laws of Colorado, with a capital stock of $250,000.00, divided into 25,000 shares of $10.00 each.

The object of the association is to deal in live stock of different kinds; to grow cattle, sheep, hogs and other live stock that may be deemed profitable, to maintain meat markets, to own and control, buy and sell real estate, or any and everything else necessary to carrying on and maintaining the live stock industry.

Seven directors have been elected who have the managing of the whole company. The following are the names of those elected for the first year, Emsley Curtis, Leopold Korf, D. H. Bellrose, Geo. E. McConley, J. W. Gilbert, Michael Wagoner and Chas. Curtis.

Emsley Curtis was elected president of the board of directors; D. H. Bellrose, vice president and treasurer; J. W. Gilbert, secretary. The bond for the treasurer was fixed at $10,000.00 for the first year. The board ordered one thousand copies of the articles of incorporation and by-laws to be printed for circulation among those who would like to investigate, with a view to becoming stockholders in the company.

The section of country selected for the growing of stock is Yuma county, Colorado. The main office or headquarters of the company is in Denver, Colorado.

We mean business, and intend to make it pay, and would like to have the co-operation of any and all members of the church who would like to become stockholders in the company.

All inquiries will be promptly answered if directed to J. W. Gilbert, 1458 Washington avenue, Denver, Colorado, or to Emsley Curtis, Bryant, Colorado.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. GURTIIS, Editor.

I HAVE been led to wonder if the covenants into which so many enter are as effectual in bringing blessings as we imagine. I do not refer to those covenants and sacrifices which God, in His word, exacts of us.

Often we desire a blessing very much; perhaps we are in deep trouble, perhaps only in a mood of zealous desire to do "something" that will please the Lord. Whatever our motive, we grant it is a good one, but the question has arisen, would we not, by a true and perfect life, have received the coveted blessing without it? God's promises are, "I will be with you always, even unto the end of the world," and, "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord." Loving the Lord is keeping His commandments. He promises us that if we will keep His commandments, all needful blessings will be given unto us. Can we not rest secure in that promise, or do we seek greater assurance? Anything that restricts legitimate and proper liberty is not required of us. Christ did not lay numerous commands upon His people.

When asked what man's highest duty was he replied: "To love the Lord thy God with all thy soul, might, mind and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself." That, He says, "comprises the whole law." Many masters tempt to sin, and where we lay petty restrictions upon ourselves we are fettered, bound down and deprived of the privilege that God Himself gave us, to use our intelligence, to do that which is for our good, and abstain from that which is contrary thereto. When we are obliged to refrain from a harmless pleasure or desire by being bound within ourselves to do so, we are not proper men and women, but slaves.

This needless sacrifice partakes of the spirit of religious zeal that followed the christian era, when men and women entered into many vows and covenants, inflicted tortures upon the body and set a seal upon legitimate desires, believing it would be pleasing to God, but which cannot be necessary to receiving blessings if we believe truly that God is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. "All things shall be added," means all things essential to our happiness, and God is not bound to give us anything that may or may not be good for us, because we have entered into a covenant which He has not exacted of us.

Neither relinquish a liberty nor usurp one that is not rightfully yours, but strive for that broad, deep, abiding faith that trusts Him for all things, for it is only in the exercise of the fullest, legitimate liberty, the "choosing" and holding fast to that which is good, rejecting the evil, that we rise to the full stature of men and women.

HOW I DO wish some one would invent a way to ventilate our houses without the dangerous draughts! It is disagreeable enough for any one to be shut up in a close room for any length of time, but how must it be for the little children who are too small to go out doors on very cold or stormy days? Some way should be devised in which to purify the atmosphere of the room they occupy all day. Even when one window is kept open a few inches most of the time, it is hardly sufficient to keep the air perfectly pure.

I have found it a good plan, on a stormy day, to dress my little ones as if for an out-door walk, and having opened the outer door and the windows of the kitchen, let them play out there awhile. In the meantime throw open the doors and windows of the room they have left, and by thus freely allowing the air to circulate, the room will be made fresh and pure by the time the children are ready to return, when it may be closed as usual, the fire brightened up, and it is really surprising how contented they will be after this "indoor outing." Even the few months old baby may be dressed warmly and wheeled out in his buggy with the rest, and his quiet sleep afterwards will prove how much he appreciates it.

We freshen up our sitting room the same way while we take our meals; some one goes, a few minutes before the meal is concluded, to close the openings and mend the fire, so that the room is purified without any one being made uncomfortable.

I have heard some say they do not feel like wasting fuel by letting in cold air all the time, but I actually think it saves the fuel, because the oxygen in pure air will help keep our bodies warm, so that they will not require so much artificial heat. Try it and see, but don't expect to keep warm with an open window and less fire if you have not been used to it; give your blood time to become pure by constantly inhaling fresh air, and then you will be better able to get along with a little less outward heat.

PASTORAL.

Being placed in charge of North-east Kansas district, by Bro. I. N. White, general missionary in charge. I wish to give notice to those laboring under my direction, Elder J. W. Roberts, and Priests G. W. Beebe and R. J. Pierce, to enter your appointed field as early as possible, to enter in upon the duty to preach the gospel. Don't meddle with branch affairs, let the local authorities settle their trouble, or appeal to those in charge. Push out and tell the people of the world the old, old gospel story. Act very wise in your ministerial labor. Report to me your labor done, sermons preached, baptisms, and all items of interest on the first day of the following months: July, October, January and March. My address is Independence, Missouri,

J. C. FOSS,

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 1.

To the Saints in the Rocky Mountain Mission, Greeting:—According to appointment by the late General Conference, the following missionaries will labor in the Rocky Mountain mission, comprising the states of Montana, Idaho, Utah and Western Wyoming:

Bro. Gomer Reese and J. H. Wells will labor in Montana; S. D. Condit and Charles Albertson, Idaho and Cache county, Utah; A. J. Layland, Eastern Idaho and Western Wyoming; D. L. Harris, Northern Utah, Salt Lake City and Ogden objective points; W. S. Pender, Southern Utah, including Utah county, Bro. D. W. Wright will labor as a general missionary, rendering assistance wherever it is needed, so far as practicable for him to do so: also looking after the interests of the Sunday School work in the mission.

Dear Saints, it is not necessary for me to admonish you to sustain the work and the missionary force, for you have done well in the past, and I firmly believe that you are desirous to so continue.

I hope the local brethren will do all they can to care for the work in their respective localities, thus leaving the missionaries free to do more work in new fields. Let us endeavor to labor together in unity, love and peace, "in honor preferring one another," praying for the success of the work.

Owing to other work needing my attention at present, it will be impracticable for me to reach the field at once, and matters pertaining to the work in the mission may, until further notice, be sent to my home address, Box 539, Staaberry, Missouri.

PETER ANDERSON,

Missionary in Charge.

LAMONI, Iowa, May 1st.

To the Saints and Officers of the Branches and Districts of Michigan and Indiana Mission, Greeting:—The conference is closed, and those having the right to direct, have continued me in charge of the mission, with a number of associate laborers. In looking over the mission I do not think it wise to make any change with those in charge.

J. J. Cornish will continue in charge of missionary work in the Northern and Eastern districts in Michigan, W. E. Peak in charge of the missionary work in that part of the Southern district that is in Michigan, and G. A. Smith in charge of the missionary work in the state of Indiana.

I hope all will report the labor done to those in charge where the labor is performed. In making your last report be sure to make statement as a summary of all work done, and the number dependent upon you for support; also state where you would wish to labor, if you have any choice.

I wish, so far as it is possible, for you to go two and two and open up the work in new places, seeking to get to preach in halls and in school houses, and preparing regular missionary work, not laboring in the branches so much.

By mutual agreement Bro. W. H. Fuller will labor at Independence and vicinity for about three months, and then one month in Chicago, and then on to Detroit, Michigan for the balance of the mission year.

I hope to be in the mission as much as I can and attend to all duties devolving upon me, and hope to attend as many of the district conferences as I can.

Come, brethren, let us all be united to put forth every effort we can for the spread of the gospel in the mission during the mission year.

Yours as ever, true in the gospel conflict.

J. H. LAKE, Missionary in Charge. INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Apr. 24.

To the missionaries appointed at the late General Conference to do labor in Missouri and Kansas, also in Southeast and Central Illinois districts, this is to say:

Bro. M. T. Short is placed in charge of the missionary force appointed to the Northwest Kansas district.

Bro. John C. Foss in charge of the Northeast Kansas district.

Bro. Sven Swenson in charge of the Far West district, except the city of St. Joseph and suburbs, which is in charge of Bro. J. M. Terry.

Nodaway district in charge of Bro. D. C. White.

Clinton district in charge of Bro. James Moler.

Spring River district in Missouri, Kansas, Indian Territory and Arkansas, in charge of Bro. F. C. Keck.

South Missouri district in charge of Bro. Henry Spurling.

St. Louis district in charge of Bro. Arthur Allen, except the city of St. Louis and suburbs, which is in charge of Bro. F. A. Smith.

Southeast Illinois district in charge of Bro. F. M. Slover.

It is expected that all those who have been appointed to labor in the fields named, will report regularly all of their labors to the one placed in charge of their respective field. Those laboring in Independence and North-east Missouri districts, will, for the present and until otherwise directed, report to me direct. Those who are placed in "charge" should keep in touch with all of their men so as to be able to wisely direct and encourage them in their work.

So far as it is practical, I urge the missionaries who are placed in charge to observe the law which says: "And moreover it is expedient in me that my elders in going to declare my gospel to the nations, shall observe the pattern which I have given. Two by two let them be sent that they may be a help and a support to each other in their ministry."

I wish to say to my brethren: While in fasting and prayer on the night of March 6, 1901, I dreamed I was at our General Conference just as the missionaries were on the eve of departing to their several fields of labor. The Spirit rested upon me, and the word of the Lord came unto me and said: "Thus saith the Lord unto you, my servants: You that will go to your fields where my servants have appointed you, and do it without murmur or complaint, and do not entangle yourselves with the things of the world, will be greatly blessed in your labors."

I cannot close this epistle with more forcible and cheering words than that which the Lord gave to the elders in the revelation of 1893, through Joseph the president of the church: "Press onward, ye elders of my church, even my little flock, and as I have spoken to you in times past, so will I again speak to you as my friends, inasmuch as you speak in my name: and lo! I am Alpha and Omega, and I will be with you unto the end. Amen."

Let us all cheerfully heed the counsel given—press forward to the "mark of our high calling in Christ Jesus our Lord," and earn the reward that awaiteth the faithful and diligent worker in the Master's vineyard.

Your brother and co-laborer in Christ,

I. N. WHITE, Minister in Gen. Charge. INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 25.

To All Whom It May Concern, Greeting:—I address the following communication to all who are interested in the European mission, especially the English, Welsh, Danish, French, Swedish, Norwegian, Scotch and Irish in the United States and Canada.

All of you are aware of the fact that the Saints in Europe, with the exception of a few in England, are quite poor in this world's goods. We have two ministers appointed to labor in the Scandinavian mission, namely Elders N. C. Enge and Peter Muecus; also two assigned to Scotland, J. W. Rushton and James Williamson. We expect to have one or two in Wales, and it will require considerable means to prosecute the work successfully in these countries, as we have but very few Saints there. Hence, we desire that those Saints who have the means will kindly remember the effort that the church is now putting forth to bring your countrymen to a knowledge of the gospel. Every little will help. So please forward what you can to my address at Temple, Lake county, Ohio, during the next two months, after that to 17 Dawson street, Manchester, England.

My object in making this request is because the missionaries haven't always convenient places to stay, for the reason that there are only a few there, and they are poor, and it is imposing upon them for the elders to stay with them any length of time. Therefore, if the Saints in America are interested in the people in their native country, they could help those who in their poverty try to keep the ministry. Again, I would like for those in America who have relatives in Europe, to send their addresses to me so that we can visit them.

The late revelation says that all of the missions which were opened by the church in the days of the martyr, are now open to us. Hence, we intend, if the way opens up, to re-establish the work in France, and would like for the French people in the church to give us a helping hand to effect the same. We feel confident that the Lord will bless the effort in good to His cause and to mankind, so we hope you won't be backward in responding to these urgent requests. I shall publish the amounts received and the amounts expended, in due time, in the church periodicals.

The Bishop and myself will sail for Europe in time to attend the British Isles mission conference the fore part of August, and we hope that a special effort will be put forth by the brethren of both orders of the priesthood to be present so that we will be able to carry out some of the instructions of the Lord in regard to quorum organization, etc.

Soliciting an interest in your prayers and the hearty support and co-operation of the European Saints, so that our mission will be a success, and redound to the glory of God and result in the salvation of many people, I remain,

Your brother and co-worker in Christ, GOMER T. GRIFFITHS. BEVIER, Mo., April 29.

The Daughters of Zion.

A general meeting was held at Independence, Missouri, April 11, 1901. The meeting was called to order by the president, in the basement of the church at 10:30 a. m.

Opened by singing; prayer offered by Sr. B. C. Smith. In the absence of the recording secretary, Sr. C. B. Stebbins, of Lamoni, Sr. Audentia Anderson was chosen secretary pro tem.

Sr. M. E. Hulmes, chairman of the advisory board, made opening remarks, briefly explaining the object of the organization, stating that there was evidently a work to be done which belongs largely to the sisters, and that it was desired to interest all mothers in the movement.

The chairman then called for short speeches from the following, who responded: Mrs. A. Anderson, Lamoni, Iowa, G. E. Harrington, Elwood City, Pennsylvania; B. C. Smith, Independence, Missouri; H. H. Robinson, Independence, Missouri; John Smith, Lamoni, Iowa; Louise Palfrey, Nacoo, Missouri; A. A. Horton, Independence, Missouri; Nina P. Kearney, Lowry City, Missouri; F. C. Warnky, Kansas City, Missouri; Sarah Hoffman, Pisgah City, Iowa. Closing remarks from chairman; "Praise God from whom all blessings flow" was sung; dismissal prayer by Sr. Kaler.

AUDENTIA ANDERSON, Sec.

The annual business meeting, April 12, 1901, at 10:30 a. m., was opened by singing and prayer. Minutes of session of 1900 were read. Reports were read from the following officers of the organization: Sr. M. E. Hulmes, president; Sr. C. B. Stebbins, recording secretary; Sr. H. H. Robinson, corresponding secretary; Sr. Anna Murphy, treasurer. Financial reports from chairman of advisory board, corresponding secretary, and Sr. Curtis, editor of Daughters of Zion department in Enston, were also read. By motion these financial reports, with the treasurer's, were referred to an auditing committee appointed by the chair; Mrs. Frances Williamson, L. L. Rensigie and A. A. Horton, committee.

Reports from the following locals were read: Lamoni, Independence, and Armstrong, Kansas, and Kansas City. Time being limited, other reports from Australia and elsewhere being not addressed to the general society were not read. Oral report of committee on delegate to the national congress of mothers was given by Sr. Hulmes. Report was read from Sr. Frances Davis, the delegate to the Mother's Congress, at Des Moines. These reports were on motion accepted.

It was moved that the advisory board be empowered to call upon the general society for needed funds. Moved as a substitute that the former rule be amended to read, "advisory board" instead of "general society." Substitute carried.

Moved and seconded that the present advisory board, also the present recording secretary and the treasurer be re-elected for the coming year. Carried.

Report of auditing committee was presented, reports were found correct. By motion accepted.

Resolved that the matter of sending a delegate to the next National Congress of Mothers be left to the discretion of the advisory board.

Resolved, That the matter of providing blanks for reports from locals to the general society be left with the advisory board.

A suggestion was read from C. J. Spurluck regarding proper preparation of food, etc. By motion it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the advisory board for their consideration and action in the matter.

Minutes of both sessions of this year were read and approved. The meeting then adjourned, with benediction.

AUDENTIA ANDERSON, Sec. pro tem.

DIED.

GRICE.—At Kewanee, Illinois, April 6, 1901, of paralysis, Sr. Maria Grice. She was born February 14, 1827, at Heap, Lancashire, England. Baptized April 15, 1850, at Kewanee, Illinois, by J. W. Gilten, confirmed by Elders Shippy and Gilten. Funeral at the Saints' church, April 10th, in charge of Elder J. S. Patterson. She leaves a husband, two sisters, a brother, with a large number of relatives and friends to mourn her departure. She was a faithful Saint.

SMITH.—At East Las Vegas, New Mexico, April 13, 1901, of consumption, Bro. James Bert Smith. He was born in Lapeer county, Michigan, October 13, 1867, and was married October 12, 1892, to Miss Adella Burwell, at Pontiac, Michigan, who, with one son and three daughters, remain bereaved. He was baptized August 1889, at Whitetale, Michigan, by Elder J. J. Cornish, and continued a faithful consistent Saint, strong in the faith, and departed peacefully to await the resurrection of the just. Funeral from Saints' church, Independence, Missouri, April 16th, sermon by Elder S. W. L. Scott. Interment in Independence cemetery.

INDIGESTION. If you have it, you know it. You know all about the heavy feeling in the stomach, the formation of gas, the nausea, sick headache, and general weakness of the whole body. You can't have it a week without your blood being impure and your nerves all exhausted. There's just one remedy for you—AYER'S Sarsaparilla. There's nothing new about it. Your grandparents took it. 'Twas an old Sarsaparilla before other sarsaparillas were known. It made the word "Sarsaparilla" famous over the whole world. There's no other sarsaparilla like it. In age and power to cure it's "The leader of them all." $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. Ayer's Pills cure constipation. "After suffering terribly I was induced to try your Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles and the cure did like a new man. I would advise all my fellow creatures to try this medicine for it has stood the test of time and its curative power cannot be exceeded without cost." J. B. DODD, Jr., Jan. 20, 1892. Brownstown, Va. PRICE, $1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

W. H. GARRETT, EDITOR.
J. W. LUFF, BUSINESS MANAGER.

Makes all remittances, and address all communications to ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Box B, Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

New subscriptions can begin at any time. It is possible to avoid it, never send silver as it is liable to wear through the envelope and to lose. Always give the name of the post office to which your paper is sent or we can not find your name on our lists.

When desiring your address changed, give both the old and new address.

Papers will be discontinued one month from the time subscriptions expire, unless ordered continued.

In making remittances, money orders are preferable for they are absolutely safe. If you can avoid it, do not send coin or stamps. Canadian stamps are an entire loss, and Canadian currency is only worth almostly cents on the dollar to us, for that is all we can get for it at the bank.

Letters should be addressed, and orders and drafts made payable to

CONSIDER THE BEAM.

How easy a matter it is to offer a criticism upon another's words or actions; but how difficult it is to see within oneself that which is hurtful to the development of those traits and characteristics which elevate and ennoble the possessor. Every individual has, and will have, so long as he is subject to the influences of this world, some weak place in his make-up which may invite the attacks of the critic, should he feel so disposed, though he himself may be a fit subject for far more serious criticism. But therein lies a difficulty. The one who first sets about correcting the imperfections in his own character, before essaying to improve others, will invariably find so much to do, that he will have neither opportunity nor disposition to search out that which is lacking in another. "Let him that is without sin among you first cast a stone," will fit in a great many more instances than in the one which first occasioned its utterance by the great Teacher of men.

Another difficulty in this matter, is to present a criticism which is just and right. How often is it that the motives of the one upon whom a criticism is passed, are misinterpreted, misunderstood, misjudged, and impugned; and from that standpoint what is more natural than to criticize unjustly, and unrighteously, because it is incorrect and untrue. Again, one may take umbrage at some real or fancied wrong done him, and thenceforth, so long as that sense of injury is cherished, or remains, the individual who is thought to be responsible for the cause of it, is a victim of prejudice, and all his actions are judged and colored thereby, in the mind of the injured one.

Is he active and zealous in magnifying his calling, seeking opportunities to tell the gospel story and do good? It is because he wants to "show off." Is he kind to the poor? O, he wants people to know that he is charitable. Is he kind and sociable with his brethren, endeavoring to encourage and uphold them in their efforts to faithfulness? He is blind to their imperfections and unworthiness; and so in all that is done, this poor critic can only see the darker side of humanity, the improper motives. He is to be pitied.

But a critic is not necessarily an enemy. Indeed, one who can offer a kindly and just criticism is, in the truest sense, a benefactor; though even a just criticism may be made harmful by the harsh and unkindly manner in which it may be given; particularly if the one so criticized is sensitive to the good or bad opinions of his fellowmen. A harsh criticism stings, even if a true one, and should it be unjust, the painfulness is not mitigated, but the rather increased. Yet no criticism, harshly or kindly offered, unjustly or justly bestowed, should be unheeded. The first thought with the individual thus singled out, should not be of resentment and vexation, but, "Is there any truth in it?" If there is, it is to his interest to set about correcting the fault of which complaint is made, if fault be found, and thus disarm the critic while perfecting the character. No man will probably be free from criticism until the ushering in of the millennium, especially if he occupy a position of publicity and trust; and he is truly fortunate who is able to receive it with patience and good faith, without permitting his equanimity to be disturbed thereby, and who can calmly and dispassionately canvass the criticism and take out of it any benefit it may contain for him.

But criticism and fault finding are pretty closely allied with some, and that which they complacently term the former, is more often found to be, more properly, the latter. We often hear the term "Carping Critic," meaning one who habitually finds fault, who watches for the opportunity to do so, and had rather see occasion for blame than for praise; one who cavils, who raises captious and frivolous objections, and unnecessarily finds fault. Happily there are but few of these characters met with in one's life experience. Yet it is not so rare to find one who mistakes faultfinding for criticism, deceiving both himself and those who may be influenced by him. Fortunately the true spirit is soon discerned, and, generally speaking, the effort rebounds upon the individual and he is the one who suffers most from the exercise of his peculiar talent(?), losing prestige and influence. The exercise of considerable patience is sometimes necessary when dealing with this class, but in the end, it brings a sure reward. The devil has always in the past, and will in the future use this spirit as a means of weakening and hindering the progress and development of those who are really and earnestly endeavoring to carry out the Divine will; seeking to discourage them in their work to chuse, if possible, that their influence shall be lessened. In Revelation 12:10 we read of a time which John saw, when "the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night." Every one therefore should be watchful that they are not influenced by a wrong spirit—a contentious spirit—when essaying to speak unfavorably of another's action, for the Savior declares in the Book of Mormon that such a spirit is not of God.

It seems, until the Savior comes to settle the truth of every question that may arise, there will always be differences of opinion, honestly and sincerely held, among the children of God—ministry and laity—along some lines, on points which do not necessarily affect disastrously the salvation of any; but no one should be so uncharitable and unchristlike as to despise another because his views are thought to be faulty. Common sense, to say nothing of the Spirit of Christ, would adjudge that those who maintain erroneous views are to be pitied and commiserated, rather than censured—so long as those views do not affect morality, or the rights of others—because they are the losers, always; the one who holds correct views and adheres to them cannot be adversely affected so long as he holds fast to them, and is able to demonstrate to his own satisfaction their correctness; the only one unfavorably affected is the one who holds, to an error, and because he is the loser by so doing, is more entitled to a kindly admonition given in a spirit of love and sympathy, than he is worthy of harsh; censorious criticism. The former spirit may win him from his error and "save a soul alive;" but the latter course will only anger and harden the individual thus blamed, and tend to defeat the very object that should be the basis of all criticism, the elimination of error, replacing it with truth, and the perfection of the character.

A critic should also be consistent in his criticism; the use of hyperbole—exaggeration of facts—or of downright falsehood, should be avoided, if the object sought is to do good. Only those who wish to make another appear ridiculous to others will knowingly condescend to such a course. It is unfair, and only serves to show the insincerity of the effort made when the facts are known, and but makes the action of the individual using it to appear despicable. Facts are said to be "stubborn things," and only fact is truth. It is truth alone which benefits, and it should be considered sufficiently forceful for all purposes; exaggeration never renders any assistance to the truth, and should be discarded when seeking to correct another's erroneous position. It is far better to withhold criticism of another's action or views until one is able to judge righteously, than to do injustice and injury to him, for righteous judgment is the only kind that will be approved of by the Master, when our stewardship is accounted for.

"For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again."—Matt. 7:2.

"And the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."—1 Cor. 3:13.

"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."—Rev. 22:12.

GATHER UNTO THE REGIONS ROUND ABOUT.

The following notice from Bishop May will have considerable interest for some of the brethren and sisters:

There is now a good opportunity for several families of good Saints to move into the neighborhood of Knob Noster, Missouri. Land is reasonably cheap, and there is a small branch of the church, and a good sized church building, located in the town. Bro. F. E. Weidman is president of the branch, but is now quite aged and not able to look after the interests of the church as he would like, and the branch needs some good elder to assist in the work. I would be glad to correspond with any who may desire to move Zionward, but remember the injunction, "Let all things be prepared before you." (Doc. and Cov. 98:9). Knob Noster is on the Missouri Pacific railway sixty-five miles east of Independence, and within the limits of the State. The soil is good, the country healthy, and there is no reason why good, industrious Latter Day Saints cannot make a good living; yes, more than a living.

RODERICK MAY,
Bishop Independence Stake,
INDEPENDENCE, MO., May 14.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

The Spring River district has gotten up one of the most complete forms for reports of branch presidents that we have seen. It calls for information on about every kind of service held in the branch, by different officials. If branch presidents in that district do what is required of them in filling out this blank, the district officials will be in possession of very full information regarding the condition of the work in the different branches.

BRO. L. C. DONALDSON, River-ton, Iowa, is rejoicing at the return in good health and safety from the Philippines last Sunday, the 12th, of his son, Bro. Lorenzo D. Donaldson, of Co. F, 32nd U. S. infantry.

BRO. M. W. HARTSHORN, Marathon, Iowa, says they live where there is a branch, but are so scattered that they only attempt to hold branch meetings once a month, and that is about all the opportunity afforded them of hearing preaching by our elders.

ELDER D. S. CRAWLEY, Seiling, Oklahoma, May 5th, says he had just returned from a six session debate with a Millennial Dawn preacher, held, we presume, at Deighton, Oklahoma. He has baptized five there of late, three last week, two Seventh Day Adventists.

BRO. R. T. JONES, Box 176, Farmersville, Texas, would like to have the address of the missionary appointed to labor in North Texas; he would like to correspond with the missionary nearest to him regarding an opening for preaching which he has ready for occupying.

On April 29th some one sent us four silver dimes for "Sabbatarian Theories a Delusion," "Who was Joseph Smith," and six sermon tracts, but neglected to give name of post office or sign any name. The envelope was post marked Cairo, Nebraska. We have endeavored, by correspondence, to trace the remitter, but unsuccessfully. We are waiting for further instructions.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

MRS. FANNIE REED, ADA, I. T.: I hope some of the elders will come to Ada soon, for I know it is a good opening for the gospel: Satan has begun his work. I wish to relate a dream. My husband and I have been sending the silent preacher around to our neighbors, and it seemed to me that we were on a roadside talking to the people as they passed by. One young man stopped to listen and Bro. J. D. Erwin came up between us, and began to talk, and they all stopped to listen. Come on, Bro. Erwin, I think it will be you to preach to this people. I ask the prayers of all the Saints for me and mine.

BRO. J. C. FOSS, Atchison, Kansas, May 13:

Have preached here nine times in eight days; baptized three yesterday making five since General Conference, and 509 in all in 32 years. Organize a Sisters' Prayer Union Tuesday, and go to Netawaka, Wednesday. I found the branch doing well under the care of Bro. Robert Warnock. He has the promise of Forest Park free, with lights, straw, water, and 2,000 posters for our reunion. It is the finest place for a camp meeting I ever saw. Electric cars run to the park; there is a nice lake of water and a fine building in which to hold services.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Sr. H. C. Webster, of the South Side, is seriously ill. Bro. T. W. Chaburn left Wednesday for Wisconsin, his field of service this year.

Bro. R. J. Parker departed for his mission field Tuesday evening, Burlington, Colorado, being his objective point.

Bm. H. H. Robinson and A. H. Parsons will leave for the East Friday or Saturday, to enter up on their mission work.

Bro. Thomas Hamilton has again located his shoe shop on west Maple next to the post office. He is a most excellent workman.

President Hulmes and Bishop May will be at the Armstrong branch for the morning service, and at Chelsea Park at the 7:30 p. m. service next Sunday.

Bro. and Sr. John W. Luff are much pleased in the advent of a hearty, nine pound, young son at their home, Monday morning about 3 o'clock. Congratulations are in order.

Srs. Cordie Short, daughter of Bro. and Sr. M. T. Short, and Gertrude Reyner, daughter of Bro. and Sr. G. E. Reyner, are graduates from the High School this year. The class numbers 40.

The chief janitor of the Independence public schools, Mr. D. C. Berry, has just completed the enrollment of children in this district, showing 3029 are of school age, an increase over last year's enrollment.

Dr. and Sr. H. B. Curtis are contemplating locating in Independence. The doctor is a pleasant, intelligent, young man and will, no doubt, make a success of his chosen profession. We welcome them to our midst.

Bro. B. C. Smith, successor to Bro. Orville James in the grocery business, is quite a rustler, and is having quite an encouraging trade. Bro. I. N. White's sons, Brn. Ammon and Mark, are also lively hustlers for trade and get a very fine share of it too.

A large party of our young people made a raid on the home of Bro. and Sr. J. H. Lee Monday night, for a surprise on their daughter, Sr. Lucy. They had a nice jolly time, as our young people know how to have when they set out on that kind of an errand.

Sr. H. B. Curtis, editor of Daughters' of Zion department in the ENSIGN, and Sr. Mamie Pitt, daughters of Bro. and Sr. C. Clark, are visiting home folks, as is also Dr. Curtis. Bro. Clark suffers considerably from his afflictions, but bears them with patience and resignation.

Sergeant W. H. Blatt, son of Sr. Wm. Blatt, who was a member of the 32d regiment, arrived home about noon Sunday, after two years' service in the Philippines. He enlisted as a private, and in less than two weeks time, he worked up to a corporal, and while over in the Philippines he served as regimental scout. After resigning that office he was promoted to sergeant. He brought a number of presents for his mother and sisters.

Our Chicago items this week give information of the heavy affliction through which Bro. Geo. Horton's daughter, Sr. Bushwoit, is passing, the eldest daughter having succumbed to that dread disease, diphtheria, two other children suffering with it, and Sr. Bushwoit herself threatened with it. Our sympathy and prayers are earnestly offered.

Sunday the president of the Stake was engaged at the First and Second Kansas City branches. At the morning hour here, Bro. A. H. Parsons presented some thoughts for consideration of the Saints, which all would do well to keep in practical memory. At night Bro. R. J. Parker was the speaker, to the comfort and assurance of the Saints. The afternoon service was full of interest and activity, a good season of encouragement was enjoyed. Brn. Joseph Luff and W. H. Garrett in charge.

Mr. G. B. De Bernardi, a widely known citizen of Independence, died at his home on South Osage street, Wednesday evening at 9:30. He was born in Zabienna, Piedmont Italy, February 24, 1831. He came to Independence about 1855, and has since been identified with its interests and progress. He was in the truest sense a philanthropist, and his life was devoted to the amelioration of the evils of the present system of commerce. He invented, elaborated, and put into practical operation, a system which he named "The Labor Exchange," and for a while published a monthly paper in its interest called also The Labor Exchange, besides numerous tracts or propaganda literature; a system of checks was connected with the plan to take the place of money in exchange. This printing including the paper, so long as it was continued, was done at the ENSIGN office. Mr. De Bernardi was a clear, forceful writer, a cogent reasoner, and a general pleasant companion. He gave largely of his own means in the furtherance of the work of his life, and worked very hard to make it a success. He was for many years at the head of the State "Grange," and was an earnest and prominent lecturer for that society, as well as a practical farmer himself. He has been gradually failing all winter, and expressed himself the day before his demise as being ready for the change. His wife and several children, all grown, remain to cherish the memory of a kind, loving husband and father. One of his sons is a division superintendent on the Missouri Pacific railway. The funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow (Friday) at 3 p. m., and will be in charge of Rev. R. Lin Cave, pastor of the Christian church. The service will be strictly private.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Two very excellent sermons were delivered yesterday at the brick church. In the morning Elder David Wight spoke from the text, "Ye shall not live by bread alone;" in the evening Elder F. B. Blair preached from the text, "Have ye been spiritually born of God?"

The afternoon prayer service is reported good. Four hundred and thirty-eight were present at Sunday School.

Apostle W. H. Kelley spoke at the Saints' Home Sunday evening. The efforts of Bro. C. I. Carpenter, in taking charge of the Book of Mormon class, on Saturday nights, at the Home, are very much appreciated by the Saints there. Sr. Minnie G. Ulery, sister of Sr. J. Case, was baptized last Friday by Elder J. A. Gunsolley, and confirmed at the Sunday afternoon meeting, by Elders J. A. Gunsolley and J. W. Wight. Mildred, daughter of Sr. Ulery, was blessed by Elders Wight and Gunsolley, at the same meeting.

Elder John Smith, president of the Lamoni Stake, will visit Pleasanton branch next Sunday and conduct services.

At the regular business meeting last Tuesday evening, fifteen new members were added by letter.

Sr. Susan E. M. Jones, daughter of Bro. and Sr. W. N. Abbott, died at their home here on May 5th, aged 40 years, 1 month and 17 days. She leaves two children, a son of twenty and a daughter of sixteen who mourn their loss. Funeral service was held at the house in charge of Bro. H. R. Harder, Bro. Stebbins preaching the sermon. Sr. Jones had been ill about two weeks.

At one o'clock on Sunday morning, May 5, 1901, the spirit of Sr. Deborah Post passed from the mortal body to its place of rest. Her home was at Davis City, Iowa, and her age at departure was 74 years, 1 month, and 5 days. She leaves four sons and four daughters, all living and members of the church. The funeral sermon was preached by Elder H. A. Stebbins, assisted by Elder James McDiffitt. G. L. K. May 13.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 6731 Manchester Ave. services: Sunday School, 10 a. m.; social meeting, 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Sr. Jno. Billinsky, accompanied by Sr. Lydia Billinsky, returned to the city during the past week.

Business meeting of the branch was held Monday evening May 6th; a number of exchanges effected.

Tuesday evening some of our people attended a temperance lecture at the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

Bro. Wm. O. Thomas, familiarly known to a great many, is very ill at his home in Cheltenham.

A choir has been organized at Cheltenham, under the direction of Brn. Ivor Davis and Joseph G. Cole.

Bro. Chas. Remington, district Sunday School superintendent, visited our school yesterday morning.

Bro. Alfred White was kept busy yesterday, addressing the Saints twice, being assisted each time by Bro. Russell Archibald.

The afternoon social service was in charge of Brn. Beard and J. G. Smith; the seven children baptized the Sunday previous were confirmed under the hands of different of the ministry.

Bro. Arthur Allen is expected here this week; we understand he has been laboring with the Whearso branch.

At our morning service yesterday we were visited by "Herr Gustavus Cohen," a lecturer, a Jew with Christian experience. It appears that he has recently come from England, and delivers lectures upon different subjects; after the preaching service, Bro. Russell Archibald had a long talk with him, concerning the tenets of the church. He was much interested, and was apparently well acquainted with the difference existing between the Reorganized church and the one out west. We would like to be privileged to hear one of his chalk talks, or lectures, illustrated, as he comes highly recommended by the eastern press. ETTA.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner 23d and Holly. One block south of Observation Park line.

Last Sunday President G. H. Hulmes and Bishop R. May occupied the morning service with thoughts on new responsibilities, and cited the Saints to section 59 Doc. and Cov., and 4th chapter Philippians, as being particularly applicable to the household of Israel in this stake.

At the afternoon social meeting, which was profitable, Mable, the infant daughter of Bro. and Sr. Grainger, was presented at the throne of grace by Brn. I. N. White and G. H. Hulmes, according to the pattern given in Mark 10:16.

Bro. Newton expounded the Word of Wisdom in the evening to a small assembly.

Bro. Hulmes preached at the First Kansas City branch, and Bro. I. N. White in the tent, at the end of the Argentine car line, in the evening. JOHN C. GRAINGER.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

Weather is fine, a little cool of nights, but pleasant of days.

Seven added to branch in the past week, four by baptism and three by certificate from branch at Conifer.

Bro. Roush baptized four young people last Sunday in the Platte river; the day was fine and a large congregation of Saints and strangers assembled at the water's edge to witness the ceremony. Those baptized were Bro. and Sr. Stanbro, Miss Lillie Emmons and Sr. Landfried.

Elder J. B. Roush went to Colorado Springs for Sunday. Elder James Kemp has been in the city for several days.

The Religio gave a box social

Friday night which was quite a success financially.

Fasting and prayer was observed Wednesday for Bro. Joseph Graham.

Bro. Westland, who had his arm broken a short time ago, is getting along nicely.

Preaching services at the church Sunday morning by Elder James Kemp, and in the evening by Deacon I. C. Edwards. S.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Branch headquarters, 8 South Wood St. Sunday meetings, 2:45 and 7:45 p. m. Lang Mission, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. West Pullman branch, 748 119th St., 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. 508 W. 76th St. (colored mission), 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The Chicago branch is now holding forth in their new place of meeting, No. 8 South Wood St., near the Lake St. elevated. Sunday School at 1:30 p. m. Preaching at 3 p. m. Religio at 6 p. m. Preaching at 7:45 p. m. At a special business meeting recently Bro. J. M. Terry resigned as pastor, and Bro. F. M. Sheehy was duly installed as his successor.

Bro. Terry and wife left the city last week for their new field of labor. A number of Saints attended their departure at the train. They leave a host of well-wishers behind them in this city. Many presents were tendered them as tokens, of love and esteem; however a deeper significance was expressed by the brotherly feeling shown in the moistened eye and crystal tear drooped born of the love begotten by gospel association.

Our young brother, Joseph Lambert Benson, who has been attending the Northwestern University Dental school, received the honor of a diploma entitling him as D. D. S., as one of the graduating class of about two hundred. The exercises were held in Studebaker hall on the afternoon of May 2d, and were very imposing. Our brother was not without his friends to cheer him when his time came to receive his "sheepskin" as several of the Saints were in attendance. "They say" his blood quickened when the usher passed him that lovely bouquet, especially when he recognized the delicate feminine chirography.

Bro. F. G. Pitt and wife have gone to Pittsburg. Bro. F. M. Cooper is expected to leave for the west this week. Bro. Sheldon and wife were in the city lately, also Sr. Pomeroy, of Plano.

The family of Sr. Bushwoit have been having a terrible siege of diphtheria. The oldest daughter, Della, died on the night of the 9th, and at 1 p. m. the following day was buried—such are the requirements of the Board of Health. The next child Mabel was sick in the house at the time of the funeral, and since then the boy George has taken the malady, although he had been removed to the home of Sr. Braidwood as a precaution. Two of the others are now cared for by Sr. W. H. Deam. We learned last eve that the mother is also coming down with it. She is a daughter of Bro. Horton, your efficient church janitor. Bro. Isaac Richardson (formerly of Cleveland) has been doing excellent service treating that disease with electricity, he being somewhat of an adept on that line. His labors are indeed commendable and much appreciated.

Bro. Burwell and family of the West Pullman branch, are about to move to Michigan City, he having been advanced by the railroad company who employ him. Their usefulness among the Saints at West Pullman will be sadly missed.

The services at the tri-branches are moving fairly well, some new faces in evidence at about every meeting. The local brethren are active. Our new missionary made his round of three services yesterday.

Bro. Noyaka has returned to the city from his trip to General Conference, and other parts. He is contemplating translating the Book of Mormon into the language used by the people of his far eastern home, the island of Ceylon.

The address for the present of our new missionary to Chicago is 9 Walnut St., care S. C. Good.

Sr. Mamie Pitt has gone to Independence to visit her parents, Bro. and Sr. Clark.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 6.

Editor Ensign:—After an occupancy of over thirty years in their hall on 4th avenue, the Saints have moved to 5th avenue and Stevenson street, over 5th avenue bank. They now have a better hall, though not quite so large. Elders passing through the city please notice the address, also that we have preaching meeting Sunday morning at 10:45; prayer meeting at 12; and Sunday School at 1:15. Bro. Ed Miller, presiding elder, resides at 112 Lillian street, where the ministry always find a welcome.

We reached our new field Saturday, in company with Sr. Pitt, and was welcomed by the Pittsburgh Saints. Our address is 112 Lillian street. There was a fairly good attendance Sunday morning. Our theme was, "The Late General Conference."

A box social will be given next Thursday evening at Bro. Jacob Reese's, 454 Lombard street, for the benefit of the chapel fund. This fund is growing and the Saints still hope to erect their new church this summer. Pittsburg has some live workers, therefore we may look for them to succeed.

All the members are requested to attend meetings next Sunday, and bring their friends with them: we expect to be present and will try and make it interesting for all. Don't fail to bring the children to Sunday School. We were pleased to meet Bro. Geo. McCabe, from Grapeville, at our Sunday services: also Sr. Margie Warnock, from Washington, D. C.

The elders have organized a Ladies' Aid Society and report a good interest thus far. This certainly is a move in the right direction. We preached Sunday evening in the Knoxvill Presbyterian church, one of the large churches of the city.

ARTHUR, Ont., May 10.

Dear Ensign:—Please indulge us with the privilege of this letter by way of notice to the Saints of London district. Some have written me as to how to reach Arthur by way of Grand Trunk railway, and as we expect to have to answer very many letters the same way, we would like a little space to give information to the Saints who expect to attend conference in June. Arthur is an awkward place to reach by way of G. T. Ry., as the nearest station to us is Goldstone, seven miles from here, the only way across is to drive, but you can go around by Mt. Forest, which is fifteen miles north of us, and make connection on the C. P. Ry., which comes right into the village, four trains a day arrive, two from the east and two from the west. No other railroad comes in here only the C. P. Ry. We are trying to prepare to drive over to Goldstone to meet as many as we can, but as none of us in town have horses, we will ask you to help us by sending us a card at least a few days ahead, should you wish us to meet you at Goldstone. We did not figure on meeting trains at Goldstone on the G. T. Ry., until we are getting letters of late, so that we ask you to help us to help you.

We look for a large conference and a good time. Look up the time tables and see to it in time, that will save confusion. When we come to conference we should forget all our cares at home, come with a contented mind free from worry, unnecessary fretting about the cows and calves and horses, fit up things in such a shape that you can go away to worship God with a whole heart; come with a blessing for others, and you will go home with new and good resolutions to make home your heaven, and all around you happy. Never mind if the conference does cost you from ten to twenty dollars, what is that compared to the refreshing influence of God's sweet Spirit filling your soul with a burning love for even those who are your enemies, and baptizing us anew with zeal and fire. I'd rather have the Holy Spirit with me than all earthly treasures: there is nothing to be compared to it.

Come Holy Spirit come heavenly dove, Come fill my heart with zeal and love. May our lives united be With God and Christ through eternity.

Your struggling brother,

(GEORGE BUSCHLEN.)

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 3.

Editor Ensign:—Having been appointed to the Colorado mission, my field address, until farther notice, will be 221 West 10th street, Cheyenne, Wyoming. Will the Saints of Wyoming please send me their names and addresses.

J. B. WILDERMUTH.

SPICKARDS, Mo., May 9.

Dear Ensign:—Inasmuch as Bro. W. E. Haden and myself have been assigned to labor together by Bro. Swensen, in charge of Far West district, and have been asked by him to look after the interests of the Master's work in Grundy and Davies counties, we take this opportunity of informing the Saints of said counties, that we are in the field and would be glad to hear from Saints that may be scattered through said counties, as we are strangers and there is only one branch in the territory.

We would like to get into the towns of Trenton and Gallatin, or any other that we can. It will be necessary to labor in the towns for a time as the farmers are so very busy with their crops that we can do little or nothing in the country for a few weeks, roads are almost impassible at present. Saints, let us hear from you, and let us all strive together to advance the work and build up the waste place. Hoping and praying for a prosperous year, I am,

Your brother in bonds,

J. W. ADAMS.

Editor Ensign:—I suppose, because of my long silence, the Saints think F. C. Smith is dead, or not doing any thing. But I can assure them I am not dead nor asleep either: if they could have seen the large gathering on the banks of the Pigeon river to witness the baptism last Sunday the 5th, they would have to say something was being done in eastern Michigan, and as for myself I feel to thank the Giver of all good for his mercy and goodness to His people here.

I have been holding meetings in the township of Grant at a place called Walsh's Corners, and have, I believe, the majority of the people in favor of the gospel: some were very prejudiced when I started there, but have changed their minds, and they believe the true gospel of Christ. The Baptist minister closed the church against me and that has had a great effect towards helping the people to see the light of the glorious gospel plan, so three were baptized, and I believe there are more to follow soon. At the confirmation service there was a large crowd, and a good feeling throughout, and a lady, not of the faith, presented her little babe to be blessed.

It seems so strange to people to see such things, and to learn it is in the Bible and they never knew it. Oh, how true the statement of Paul "How shall they hear without a preacher."

I am pleased to know Conference passed off so nicely, and that God has given that which is good from heaven to cheer His people on.

F. C. SMITH.

DELTA, Colo., April 16.

Dear Ensign:—Please say to those who have been appointed to this mission field, that here a band of Saints wait to bid them welcome. We have secured the use of the Advent church for services, and are ready to assist them in their good work for the Master.

There are about forty Saints in this vicinity, most of whom are trying to exemplify the golden rule. The branch officers are trying to do their duty, as best circumstances permit, and the membership are responding to their call with no uncertain refrain.

Some of the early gospel pioneers are beckoning from the other shore, and are missed most by those who knew them best; their words and works sleep not in the dust, but in sweet though silent whispers tell of the hopes that moved them here: while the magic name of mother still makes it impress felt, and the little ones are gathering to the fold. Six, ranging from nine to sixteen years, were baptized on the 6th inst; all children of the Saints.

The Spirit's power is manifest in preaching, social meetings, healing of the sick, and in the daily walk and conversation of those not heretofore active in the discharge of duty, yet all may improve. None of the missionaries have visited us for more than eighteen months; our numbers are scattered, and local laborers are few, and hindered by circumstances over which they have no control; for poverty stalks abroad to mar the dream of prosperity, holding many a willing worker and anxious heart in its cruel, cruel grasp; yet the watchword is forward, cause advancing, numbers gaining and inquiry concerning the gospel increasing; but realizing the enemy's power, our own weakness, and the crying necessity for labor, we send the Macedonian cry to those in position to respond.

We are gathering together as best our environments will permit and wisdom dictate, still the inaccuracy of human judgment makes many a crooked path, heartache, sleepless night and empty purse, all of which hinders spiritual progress and the redemption of Zion. We appreciate the church publications and send these silent but effective preachers on their mission of love.

We solicit the prayers of all, and proffer our pleadings in return for the advancement of the cause we all hold in mutual admiration, love and esteem.

FAIRVIEW BRANCH,

CHASE, Mich., April 14.

Editor Ensign:—In your issue of January 17th, I notice an article in regard to "Abolishing Prayer Meetings." Allow me to say that I agree in the abstract with Dr. Coombs, yet I do not believe that modern thought, or education should transplant religious teaching, nor hinder christians from performing any moral obligations to their Creator, and advantages to be enjoyed in the capacity of suppliants to the heavenly throne for all needed blessings.

The prayer meetings, as now conducted, are merely formal, and not in a sense conducive or beneficial to spiritual advancement.

Many who are "professors" think that it is almost impossible for them to be heard unless the desire of the heart be expressed to the Divine Being in a kneeling posture. They forget the injunction of the apostle, "Pray without ceasing."

I believe the body is the temple in which man is to "worship in spirit and in truth," whether in temple, synagogue, church, or out of them.

If our treasure is in heaven there will be our thoughts, whether in the counting house, at the plow or on the street.

The projector proposes to make it a "series of political, social, or educational in municipal affairs." It is a question whether it would be more conducive or beneficial to a religious life. When love predominates in the heart and life of man, social problems will be solved and not until then. All the combined efforts of man's talents and education fall in the effort. It must come from the good and perfect Giver.

Christ said, "My kingdom is not of this world." True, the influence of the teaching of His kingdom would necessarily be felt, but it is doubtful if the interest of the kingdom would in the final be advanced by God's ministers embarking in the discussion of "political, social or municipal affairs." "Make the fountain pure and the stream will also be pure," is a wise saying. Again "personal experiences" are of little account if the life of the narrator does not conform with his utterances. What is needed is more of a living faith in God the Creator, and less pretensions of which the world is overcrowded. The best substitute for the prayer meeting is a life of love, kindness, benevolence, purity, holiness, and faith, against these there is no outward law, for themselves are the fulfilling of the higher law of God.

Yours for the truth,

C. J. BACHANT.

NASHVILLE, Mo., March 13.

Dear Ensign:—I write to you desiring to communicate with your many readers through your silent pages. As General Conference will soon convene and perhaps some of the northern or eastern brethren might want to locate in Zion or regions thereabouts, I write in regard to Barton county. It borders on the state line on the west, is well watered with small streams, plenty of timber for present needs, underlaid with coal; good markets for anything one wishes to raise. Lead and zinc mines within ten miles of south line of county. Railroads through the county, but no county bonds outstanding. Large school fund on hand, taxes low, and good, friendly citizens if one will be the same. Land sells from $15.00 to $30.00 per acre according to improvements.

If any of the Saints wish to look at the country, take a run down and I will show them around and care for you while here. We have the only Latter Day Saint church house in the country; have good Saints living here; room for more. If any wish to look at this country take cars to Lamar, county seat of this county, and the mail back for Nashville and you can be set out at my door on the hack line.

I would advise the Saints to steer clear of land agents: they are fleecing the people. You can buy land from the owners and save 10 to 25 per cent in purchase price. Any one wishing to write me, I will give all the information I can. I have lived here for twenty-seven years and know all the advantages and disadvantages of this country.

Your brother in the gospel,

R. F. MILES.

SIMMS, TEXAS, April 15.

Dear Ensign:—As I feel that I want to say something to the readers of your most welcome columns I will endeavor to write a few lines which I hope you will give room if you find it worthy. I am quite young, only 16 years of age last December 29. I obeyed the gospel February 17, 1898, and have tried to live the gospel law ever since. I have enjoyed the blessedness of the Holy Spirit that leads me to know that the work is the true gospel of Jesus Christ and I rejoice to know that the good Lord has been so kind as to show me the road that leads to eternal life: though I have had many trials and temptations I still look beyond this vale of tears at the glorious things that God has promised to those that endure till the end.

February 2, 1901, my dear mother died, which caused me to grieve over her departure from this life, but I rejoice to know that she was a true Latter Day Saint. Her last hour seemed to be the happiest in this life: she sung a beautiful song and asked us all who were present to pray with her, which we did: and she prayed a beautiful prayer and called papa to her bedside, and told him her pain would soon be over, that she had a work to do in the glorious home. Oh! how I rejoice to know that we have a chance to meet again where parting is no more, as she said that she was going home to reign with the beautiful angels of God.

Dear Saints, we count the presence of a good mother, dear unto us here, but, oh! what a glorious thought, we can meet again and reign forever more where there is no pain, no sorrow nor sickness, but eternal joy and happiness. Dear Saints, pray for papa and I, that we may be useful in the latter day work, and that we may be able to raise my three little sisters up to love and serve the Master in an acceptable manner, that they may be saved in God's kingdom.

I wish some good elder would come and preach for us here, I believe there is a work to be done here at this place, I have been giving ENSIGNS to the people here and they seem to be very willing to read them. I wish I had a thousand gospel sermons to distribute here, I believe they would do a great deal of good.

Your brother in the one faith,
JAMES A. HERVEY.

LINX, Missouri, March 23.

Editor Ensign:—I like to read the ENSIGN and hear of the good works going on. My husband and I both belong to the church. We do not live close enough to attend every meeting, but go whenever we can. We live about six miles from the church. We have recently moved to our new home. Bro. Spurlock and Beebe are now with the branch. They are doing a good work. I believe the branch is doing better since they came. Bro. J. Banks is priest; our elder is J. Wilson; Bro. D. Mantle deacon. My mother, father and sister belong to the church. I pray for all the Saints and I ask the Saints to pray for me.

Your sister in the faith,
MRS. LIZZIE LITTON.

NEW FLORENCE, Mo., March 9.

Editor Ensign:—We have had no preaching here by our elders until on December 1st last when Bro. Charles Spurlock and Geo. Beebe, Jr., came and preached for us in a Methodist church house. Congregations were small, but some were interested. They staid a week with us and we enjoyed their coming very much.

I had the opportunity of being baptized while they were here, which had been my desire for years. I was baptized by Bro. Beebe and confirmed the same evening under the hands of Bro. Spurlock. I desire to remember the covenant made to my heavenly Father at the waters. Long and sharp was the struggle after I saw the truth.

Bro. W. M. Aylor has been preaching at Bellflower and close around for four weeks and in a short while is going to Montgomery to labor awhile. I hope this part of the field won't be neglected. I will bring my letter to a close by asking the prayers of all the Saints that I may never leave nor forsake my dear Master who has done so much for me, but that I may prove faithful to the end.

Your sister in the faith,
NORA M. COLEMAN.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

SERMON BY ELDER J. S. ROTH.

There are a great many ideas advanced in the world concerning the kingdom of God; I have selected a part of the 83d verse of the 6th chapter of Matthew as a starting point, and it reads like this:

But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness.

We want to examine first whether or not God had a kingdom on the face of the earth, and if he had, of what the kingdom was composed, and whether that kingdom was to continue, or whether a time was to come when it was to end. I know the position is taken by some, and I have heard it taken myself, that Jesus Christ never had a kingdom on the earth while he was here; and I once heard a man say that He would not have one till He came the second time; that all the organizations known as kingdoms or churches were organized by men for their own convenience. I was rather surprised at the statement. Then there are others who claim that the kingdom is not an organization, but that the kingdom can exist in the heart of an individual. These are points which I shall examine as we pass along this evening.

But first we want to learn what the kingdom is, or whether Christ had a kingdom. It seems to me if He had no kingdom the words of the text are superfluous and misleading, because Jesus says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God." If He had no kingdom I don't see why any man or woman should possibly seek for it, or how any one could find it. It would be just as absurd for me to make the claim or the request of some of you to point me out the track of a bird that flew through the air yesterday, or to show me the furrow which the great steamer plowed through the Atlantic two weeks ago, when there is no such thing in existence. But when we start out to seek for this kingdom we certainly comprehend, or should at least, that there is such an organization in existence.

Some of you ladies or gentleman, before you came across the great deep, first heard there was a country known as the United States; you made yourselves acquainted with the laws, and with many things concerning, or pertaining to, the government of the United States; and after you had satisfied your minds that there was a country known as the United States of America, you then started to seek for that country. Before you started, however, you informed yourself concerning the law, the government, the officers, the location, perhaps, and all pertaining to that government. Well, when you took the ship to sail for America, perhaps you landed somewhere along the British coast and you began to inquire, "Where is the government of the United States? I have heard of such a government, I have come to locate there; to become a citizen of the United States of America." You pass along till you get up there perhaps to Quebec, or somewhere in that part of the country, and you begin to inquire, "Where are the United States of America?" Some one will tell you, "Why, right here; you are in the United States now." And you begin to inquire, "Where is the president's house? Where is Congress? Where is the capitol?" "Well," some one will tell you, "here is the capitol; but then for the president's house, we've got no president here. This dominion is ruled by a king." "Well," you reply, "then it's not the United States of America." "O," says the objector, "there is a country down south here, a little patch of country, known as the United States of America; but then this is just as good."

But you have started out to find the United States, and when you get into them you will know that you are there by the government which you have learned or studied before you came across the water; you have learned that the chief magistrate of this country is called the president, and that he has a Congress, and that the country is divided up into states; that states have heads or authorities which are known as governors, and so on down until you get down to the school board of the government of the United States. You examine your record, and you find that that agrees exactly with what you have learned before you started to seek for these United States of America. You are satisfied that you have found that for which you started to seek.

Now, we are starting out to seek for a government tonight. We are starting out to seek for a kingdom; and I take the position that this kingdom referred to here is the church. The words, "kingdom," "church," "body," and "bride," "the Lamb's wife," and such terms as these are all synonyms referring to the organization of the church of Jesus Christ. I will admit that sometimes the word "kingdom" is used for that government beyond, or where God is. But, we are not seeking for that tonight; we are seeking for the government on the face of the earth, the church of Jesus Christ, as established, as set in order when Christ was here.

Well, in the first place, what does it take to constitute a kingdom? We want to learn first what it takes for a kingdom, and then we shall examine further along whether we can find that kingdom. I take the position that there is no kingdom upon the face of the earth, or in heaven either, without proper parts, or organization and laws. It takes five parts to constitute a properly organized kingdom; it takes a country, it takes laws, officers, a king or ruler, I don't care which you may call it, and people to be governed, before we have a properly organized kingdom. And I expect to find tonight that this very kind of a kingdom was upon the face of the earth when Jesus was here, or at least set in operation about that time. And we want to go on now, and see first, whether we can find this. We turn to Matthew, the 11th chapter, and read, about the 11th verse, to prove that Christ had a kingdom or church on the earth: "Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist: Notwithstanding, he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he."

Here we have the present tense used. "Well but," sometimes the objector says, "we go right back and find in the prophecies of the old Bible where the prophet prophesied in the present tense and it wasn't fulfilled for years afterwards." Well, perhaps that is true. We will take the next verse then: "And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent,"—and I presume there is not one who will take the position that the days of John the Baptist were in the future when Christ made this declaration; therefore I hold that the 11th verse refers to the past, to the present, and to the future, as well as the 12th verse: "And from the days [the time that Jesus made the declaration] * * * the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force."

The kingdom suffered at the hands of the wicked or the violent from the days of John the Baptist, and that was before Jesus Christ made this declaration; therefore I claim that there must have been a kingdom in existence or it could not have suffered violence from the days of John the Baptist until that time. And the violent took it by force. We can find that illustrated by following the history of Christ and His church: Christ, the king of that kingdom, was nailed to the cross, the officers of that kingdom were murdered, and therefore the wicked, the violent, took the kingdom by force. Then there must have been one, or they could not have taken it by force.

But we will turn to Matthew, the 21st chapter, and there we have another reference made to the kingdom of God, where Jesus says, in the 43d verse:

"The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."

Was Jesus going to take the kingdom from a people that had no kingdom among them when He said, "The kingdom shall be taken from you?" I hold that there must have been something to take. You cannot take a thousand dollars from me for the reason that I haven't got them. So you could not take the kingdom of Jesus Christ from a people and give it to another nation if there was no kingdom. But we will pass along from that, and turn to Colossians, the 1st chapter, and get the connections now concerning this kingdom, that is, the church or body, and show you further that there was a kingdom. In Colossians the 1st chapter and 12th verse, we read:

"Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light: who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated [is that in the future?] and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son."

If the position be correct that Jesus had no kingdom, and will not have till He comes again, then Paul was wrong. Sometimes people are liable to be wrong. I have been wrong myself a good many times. But I believe Paul was correct in making the statement that he was translated, changed, set apart from the position or condition in which he was, into the kingdom of Jesus Christ. I go a little further, and I read in the 18th verse: "And he is the head of the body, the church." Then we have twice, at least, in this place where the body is the church. I want you to remember that, kind friends, because I am going to use that several times in proving how many churches there were, or how many kingdoms:

"And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the first born from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence."

And I pass along to the 24th verse, and read again:

"Who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh for his body's sake, which is the church."

Then we have the "body" to be the "church," haven't we? So I think that is sufficient upon that point, that the body is the church of Jesus Christ.

But I know the objector says, "Yes, I believe that you can prove that point very clearly, because that Bible is just like an old fiddle; you can play any kind of a tune upon it, and of course you can prove anything you have a mind to." I had that to meet before, but I don't believe that at all. I don't believe that you can play any kind of a tune on that Bible, or prove anything, the same as playing a tune on a fiddle. Now, if there is a fiddler here I want to appeal to you on this very proposition to prove that that is certainly false. I don't care how expert a player you may be, just lay that fiddle down on top of that organ and take your bow and seesaw from June till eternity, and what have you? You have but one sound, haven't you? There, the fiddler nods his head. Well, then, how do you play the tune? You take up that fiddle in your arms or hands, and you begin to touch, and pinch, and press the strings, and you make that fiddle talk and play anything from Old Hundred down to the Devil's Dream. But how? By putting your construction on the strings that are on it. You make the strings talk, and that's just the way you play, or prove all things out of the Bible. You lay that Bible down on that desk, and I don't care who reads out of it, whether it is the preacher on the stand, whether it is the little schoolboy, whether it is the professor, the lawyer or the doctor, I don't care who reads it, it reads just the same.

But when we come to play our tune upon it—I once heard a man try to play a tune on it—he was preaching upon the 3d chapter of St. John, and the 5th verse; and he read, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." And he played his tune like this: "Friends, that don't mean what it says; that means, 'You must be born of truth and the Spirit, or you cannot enter into the kingdom of God.'" Well, to my mind, that man took that Bible up in his hands, and he put his finger on that string—water—and he squeezed the very last drop of water out of it and made it say "truth." That is how he played his tune upon it.

When I read it, it reads "water," and I believe every schoolboy in the house would say w-a-t-e-r spells water, and not truth. It spelled that when Christ was here; it spells it today. A man may say it spells truth if he has a couple of titles to his name, such as D. D. and LL. D.; but as far as that is concerned, if those D. D's have to be added (I suppose you understand that D. D. means doctor of divinity, and I have never learned the necessity of divinity having any need for doctors), when they doctor they doctor the word to suit themselves. And I will tell you, kind friends, when a man comes to doctor that word and doctors it differently from what it reads, I don't care if he has as many D. D's as there are spikes in the Pacific Railroad, it does not change the word at all, only in his opinion; it is just the same after all. So it's just here the fiddle and the Bible are just alike; you cannot play but one tune upon it until you change and pervert. Therefore I hold to the position that Jesus Christ had a church or kingdom, and all the conjuring and the doctoring will not change that, for the Bible says so.

I know that some claim this is heresy, and there is a sermon circulating over the country now, in a paper which says that doctrine is dangerous "heresy," if I have the term right; it states something similar to that, at least. Well, we'll see if it's heresy; if it is, it's some of Paul's kind, and I am satisfied that Paul will answer for the heresy which he preached. So we will turn a little further and find another objection. We turn to the 17th chapter of Luke; I am going to examine several objections tonight and see whether they are made of solid material, or whether they are a little gassy. We turn to the 17th chapter of Luke, and find in examination of the 20th verse that Jesus was demanded of the apostles (that is what a preacher said once, and that he told them that the kingdom of heaven would not come, but was within them then, in their hearts). Well, let us see then, how it reads:

"And when he was demanded of the apostles, when the kingdom of God should come."

O no, that is not the way it reads, but:

"When he was demanded of the Pharisees [not the apostles at all, but another class of people; we will see who they are before we leave this subject], when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you."

The objector says, "You had better not have read that." Well, I will try another translation, which is still stronger than that. It reads like this, "Das Himmelreich ist inwendig in uch."

And when I translate that into English we have these words: "The kingdom of heaven is inside you." That's plain enough, I guess, for you and I to stand on; and I might as well try to tell my Lutheran brethren that the sun never rose as to tell them that there was a mistranslation, because they would say that it was impossible for Luther to make a mistake in translating. I was right there myself once. Well, we'll see the inconsistency of the declaration. A kingdom is composed of a country, is composed of subjects, of laws, of officers, and a ruler; and for the human family to get all of that into their hearts—I am afraid they would be in a bad condition; they would feel worse than when they had the grip. I heard a man say in Chicago, that it didn't make any difference whether a man got the kingdom of heaven into him, or whether he got into the kingdom of heaven. Now, so far as I am concerned, it would make considerable difference to me whether I got into Illinois or got Illinois into me.

Then let us examine the consideration here of Jesus' words. He says:

"Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is among you."

That is what it says in the margin of my Bible here. He was demanded of the Pharisees. They looked forward to the time when Jesus Christ should come as a king and a conqueror, as a mighty emperor at the head of a great army to throw off the Roman bondage from the Jewish nation; therefore they thought it would come in that way. But Jesus says they shall not say, Lo here, or, lo there; for he shall not come as a mighty monarch or warrior: "Neither shall they say Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within (or among) you." And when we examine that as I have stated, what it takes to constitute a kingdom, it is impossible to apply the declaration that it could be in the heart of anybody. And it was the Pharisees at best that demanded when it should come.

But perhaps some one might still think that Jesus meant that it should be in the hearts of these Pharisees; so to see who these Pharisees are we will turn to Matthew the 23rd chapter and learn there what Jesus had to say about the Pharisees and then let you judge whether or not he meant the kingdom should be within them. From the 13th verse of the 23d chapter of Matthew we will read:

"But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven in your hearts and won't let anybody else in."

Does it so read? No, that is not the way it reads, but as follows:

"But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in."

Why, it seems that there was some organization here; that there was a possibility of those Pharisees closing the door against the people that tried to get in. They would not enter themselves, neither would they allow those who were desirous, to enter in. We read further:

"Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! [for ye have the kingdom in your heart? No], for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayers: therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation."

The idea that that class of people should have the kingdom of heaven in their hearts, and Jesus tell men to seek for it! If there be but one kingdom of heaven, and that in the heart of somebody, and we are told to seek for it, it will take a long hunt to know whose heart to examine to find it!

"Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte, and when he is made, ye make him two-fold more the child of hell than yourselves."

And these people, we are told by some, had the kingdom of heaven in their hearts! Well, it looks to me rather far fetched, so I pass from that and go on to the 13th chapter of Matthew and see the parable that Jesus gives concerning the kingdom of heaven. In the 13th chapter of Matthew and about the 31st verse, I read:

Another parable put He forth unto them, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed."

It looks to me as if here is something tangible. Here Jesus conveys the idea that the kingdom of heaven came forth from a small beginning, just like a grain of mustard seed. But it springs forth as a very tender plant, and it grows up and its branches extend east and west, north and south, and the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof. So with the kingdom of heaven; it sprang up slowly and spread out east and west, north and south, and we find there were branches at Philadelphia, and at Corinth, and at Ephesus, and all over that country. So we have the kingdom of heaven today spread out over the world, with its branches at Lamoni, and at Independence, and Des Moines, and Boone, and Clinton, and Davenport; and all the birds of the air, the nationalities of all climes, coming and lodging in the branches of the kingdom. So I think the parable is very applicable to the Church of Christ; that it grew up unobserved the same as the little mustard tree right among them. They didn't know the difference between the little tree and any other tree until it grew up and became a large tree and became a habitation for the birds of the air of every clime. So these branches of the kingdom of Jesus Christ spring up all over the land as a resting place for the different nationalities of the world. Just so then, we find this beautiful parable illustrates that there is something tangible, and that it is like the kingdom of Jesus Christ.

It would be very strange to me if God, the creator of the universe, the God of order, should have chaos and disorder in His kingdom here on earth, and yet be the great God of order in the heavens; it looks to me that it would not be Godlike to have everything in chaos here, without organization, head or governing officers, and so on, when He is a God of order. In the 41st verse we read again:

"The Son of man shall send forth His angels, and they shall gather out of His kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity [then shall this kingdom shine in the righteous like the sun? No,] then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father." [47th verse]. "Again the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and the fish swallowed it? No. No! the fish got into the net. So the people get into the kingdom, not the kingdom into the people, nor the net into the fish. But sometimes the net catches bad ones, which apostatize and must be cast out of the net, or church, again, they shall be cast into the furnace of fire; there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth."

Let us go a little further now, and see how many of those kingdoms Jesus Christ had. We will turn to the 1st Corinthians the 12th chapter and about the 12th verse, and I read there the record of Paul, as he says in the 1st chapter of Galatians that he received this doctrine not of man, neither was he taught it by man, "but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." Then let us see what Paul received here from Christ. He says, in the 12th verse of the record cited:

"For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ."

Does that mean more than one when it says one—one body? I turn to the first chapter of Colossians, the 18th verse, and Paul says that that body is the church, the church of Christ, the kingdom that we are seeking for. Then Paul says there is one church. Now let us read it:

"For as the church is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: so also is Christ."

"Ah," says one, "you are per-verting that." Perhaps I am. Let us see whether Paul does not say so. Colossians, the 1st chapter and 18th verse:

"And he is the head of the body, the church."

"The body is the church. Now if there is anybody going to fight over that, let him and Paul have it, and I will stand back. 14th verse (1 Cor 12):

"For the body is not one member but many."

The body, composed of members; the church is composed of members. I make a quotation from Acts 2:47. It is necessary to belong to the church from the very fact that the declaration was made that there were added to the church daily such as should be saved. A man said to me once, that it made no difference whether he belonged to the church or not. I asked the individual what the apostle meant when he said, "There were added to the church daily such as should be saved?" And he answered, it didn't say church. Well, he was right. He had another translation. But that translation said "gaminda" and when we get that into English we have, "the congregation." Therefore, God added to the "congregation such as should be saved." And I would like to know where the difference is, now, between the congregation, the church and the kingdom. So we look along a little further; we turn to Ephesians the 4th chapter and the 4th verse. Remember that this word tells us that in the mouth of two or three witnesses shall all things be established, and I read these words:

"There is one body."

"Ah," says one, "that does not say church." But remember that Colossians 1:18 says the body is the church. We read further in Ephesians:

"There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism."

Then when I come back here again to the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians, in the 19th and 20th verses, I read:

"And if they were all one member, where were the body? But now are they many members, yet but one body?"—church.

Is that sufficient on that?

What is that church or kingdom composed of? How shall we know when we find the kingdom? I go a little further, and in this 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians and the 28th verse I read:

"And God hath set some in the church, first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps."

God set them there. I read away back here in the beginning of the Bible, that God, at a certain time, set the sun and the moon in the skies, in the heavens, and He set a rainbow there. They are there yet. What is the reason? The only reason that I can give is that there is no man large enough to reach up and take them out of their places. They have taken these officers out, and I don't believe they had a right to do it; but if you take man's theory for it, they had.

Let us see further what other officers there are. I might cite a whole catalogue of them that "God set in the church." Here it is declared, "apostles" and "prophets;" and I find by referring to other places, quite a number of other officers. They are enumerated like this, not in their proper order, but in the position which they hold: "apostles," "prophets," "evangelists," "pastors," "teachers," "deacons," "elders," "bishops," "helps," "governments," and so on. Well, are they there today? Are those officers in the church of Jesus Christ today? "No, they are not needed there today," we are told. I heard a minister make the declaration once, when I asked him, "Sir, does your organization have these officers in the church?" "Yes sir," he says, "we have them." Well, I confessed to him I was mistaken, for I thought they did not claim to have them. But I asked him to be so kind as to tell me the names of some of the apostles and prophets in their church, and he turned over and referred me to Luke 6:14, 15, 16, and read, "Peter, Matthew, Luke and John," and so on, and he enumerated them.

"Well," I said, "I thought those were officers in Christ's church." I said, "Do you have those officers now in your church today?" "O no," he says "they are not alive, we don't need them alive today." I wanted to know why. "Well," he said, "from the simple fact that we have the teachings of the apostles and prophets in the Bible." "Well," I said, "do you believe that when Jesus Christ set apostles and prophets in His church they were dead men?" "O no, they were live men. But then," he says, "we don't need them now. We have the Bible and therefore we don't need them today."

"Well, that's pretty good;" I replied, "what kind of officers do you have in your church that are alive? Have you prophets there?" "No sir, we have their teachings." All right, we will examine that now. Then God set living apostles and prophets in His church eighteen hundred years ago, but we don't need them today because we have the writings of the apostles and prophets. Well, that's good. Do we need any living teachers today? I take position that we do not, upon the same ground. We have the Bible. Do we need any elders today in the church? "O yes, because we must have them." But I take the position that if a dead apostle is good, and a dead prophet is good, and a dead teacher is good, a dead elder is just as good as they are.

I further asked him, "Do you have dead deacons or living deacons in your church?" "O, living ones to be sure; we must have a living deacon." Well, why? Haven't we the declaration in that word just what a deacon shall be—the husband of one wife, he shall have good children, and so one? But I hold that we don't need a living deacon, on the same grounds, because we are told all about them, more than we are about the apostles, I believe. Then if a dead apostle is good, and a dead prophet is good, a dead deacon, and a dead elder, and a dead seventy, why not just as good when they are all dead? Where shall we find the kingdom if the officers are all dead? Jesus says, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God," and I guess when we come to find the kingdom, or seek for it, which Jesus Christ had, if they are all dead, of course they are buried; and in order to find them we must use the spade. "But," says one, "that don't satisfy my mind that we have a right to expect apostles and prophets today, because I turn to the 13th chapter of 1 Corinthians and find that prophecies shall fail, and a little further on I read that knowledge shall vanish away."

Let me read in the 13th chapter from the 8th verse: "Charity never faileth." Why does charity never fail? Because it is one of the grand attributes of God. God is charity, or love, and because love never had a beginning, can never have an end; and therefore the apostle truly could say:

"Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail, whether there be tongues, they shall cease: whether there be knowledge it shall vanish away."

"Now," says the objector, "that does away with the whole idea of the continuation of prophecy and those gifts in the church which you claim." Well, if the book says so, I am satisfied. I am ready, as I have made the statement time and again, to come to a unity with all the churches on the face of the earth on a Bible basis, and if the Bible says so—that they have failed—I am ready to say amen. But let us read just a little further:

"Whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away. For we know in part, and we prophecy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away."

And that book tells me, "What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." "Well," says the objector, "that does not mean this; that just means man and wife alone." I wish they would apply it right closely then, and not separate; but I hold that whatever God hath joined together, let not man put asunder; and God has joined together prophecy, and tongues, and knowledge, and where one fails, the other must go. Is there anybody who will say that knowledge has failed and vanished from the earth? If not, the other two must stand side by side as far as God is concerned. If they have failed, it is because man would not receive them any longer.

Let us see when prophecies shall fail, etc. "For we prophecy in part;" the very thing which we are told shall fail. Paul says we prophecy in part, and, he goes on further:

"But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away."

We are told by some that that which is perfect is come. Well, if that is true, then these parts shall be done away. What part? Prophecy, tongues, and knowledge. Then that perfection has not come. When is that perfection? When all shall be restored as it was from the beginning, and I claim that that time has not yet come. You will find it more fully described in the 65th chapter of Isaiah, also in the 11th chapter. When that which is perfect cometh, when that which is perfect shall be restored; when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea; when the lamb and the wolf shall lie down together, and when the lion shall eat straw like the bullock, when that which is perfect has come; and I hold that that time has not yet come. I know there are people who will object to that position and say that that time has come; that the lion and lamb do lie down together. I'll admit that too; but the lamb fails to get up again.

"Well," says the objector again, "that isn't to be understood literally; you must spiritualize that." Well, how do you spiritualize it then, my friend? "Well, that lamb and that lion spoken of there is the human family. For instance, we have a protracted meeting going on, and of course men and women attend, and by and by, the woman, being more susceptible to the gospel, comes forward and is converted, and she embraces Christ as her Savior, becomes a lamb of God, and the old man won't do that. He goes home, the lion goes home with the lamb, his wife, and they dwell together." Well, there is one objection to that; if it be true that that means the man and his wife, just show me that man that eats straw like an ox, and I'll give it up. It says emphatically that the lamb and the wolf shall lie down together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox, etc. If one is spiritual the other is too. But perhaps that is spiritual straw he eats.

But we will go a little further with this examination and see when these spiritual blessings shall be done away. They go together; prophecy, tongues and knowledge. Have tongues been done away? O yes; speaking in tongues in the church is done away because no longer needed, so we are told. Well, where does the Bible say so? I am ready to believe it if the Bible says so. But tongues are not done away. I would like to know how many different tongues there are in this house tonight; how many different languages there are spoken. When that time comes that that which is perfect shall come, then all the different languages will be one language; the Adamic language will be restored. If that time has not come, then all things have not been restored as they were at the beginning. When that which is perfect is come, we will have no need for prophecies; then we will have no need for tongues, because there will be but one language, and all will understand that, and I hold that that time has not yet come, and therefore it is yet in the future. It will not come till Jesus comes again.

But let us go a little further. We turn to Ephesians the 4th chapter, and there we get another additional witness upon this subject of just how long these prophecies shall continue. We read here in the 4th chapter and about the 11th verse:

"And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers."

Now remember this is the same writer that we have quoted in Corinthians. He was up yonder with the Corinthian church and he told the people there how the church should be organized; how it should run; what the officers were; how long it should continue. Now he comes down just the same as we have some of our brethren preaching a sermon on a certain subject, and they come up here, and they preach a sermon on the same subject, but do not use the same identical words. I never heard Latter Day Saint preachers who preached sermons from the same subject just exactly alike. They all vary somewhat or other in the presentation, but it does not change the subject.

So with Paul; he was at Corinth, and told the brethren there (see the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians and the 28th verse) that God put officers in the church, and he goes on to tell what they were: apostles, and prophets, and pastors, and teachers; and so on. Now he comes down to the Ephesian branch of the church and he says, speaking of God, "And he gave some apostles; and some, prophets." Why, he gets them just in the order that he had them up yonder, apostles and prophets. But how long shall they be there, Paul? "And some, evangelists; and some, pastors, and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints." Are they all perfect? (I wish the Saints were all perfect.) For the perfecting of God's children? Will you allow that construction? Are they all perfect? Well, there are some who claim they are. I never would have found it out by their lives if they hadn't said so. "For the perfecting of the saints; for the work of the ministry." Does the ministry need any work today? If it does, then these officers are in the church, or ought to be. "For the edifying of the body." The body? What is that body? Why, it is the church; for the edifying of the church of Christ. "Well," says the objector, "we haven't got them, we don't need them." Well, I have no objection to that. I am not examining any man's church or organization, I am seeking tonight for the kingdom of Jesus Christ—the church. That is what I am examining, without alluding to any man's organization whatever.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a school in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Small Duties.

May I enter the domain of the Daughters of Zion and have a little chat with the boys and girls on a few of the duties that are so hard for them to perform and that are hard sometimes for even we older ones, who are supposed to know our duties better? I call them the "small duties," believing in the thought so often expressed, that "If we do our small duties well we will be prepared to perform the larger duties as they may present themselves." We will take "Duty at prayer meeting" as the subject to start on.

Some time ago, in conversing with a sister about prayer meetings, she said:

"I have decided to try to take part in every prayer meeting, if possible."

When I met her recently, she said:

"I have taken part in every meeting except one, since I told you I had decided to do so, and I find I feel better in meeting when I take part."

Of course she would. Don't we all feel better when we do our duty? "I don't want anybody to dictate to me when I should or should not take part in meeting, it is a matter of conscience with me," some one may say. Don't you know that at times, at least, conscience is a matter of education. I have known people who have educated their conscience to believe that it is all right when we ask why they do not take part in meeting, to say, so earnestly, that we cannot help but think that they honestly believe it to be so, "I don't know what to say."

If you never felt glad that you were in the work, never had a blessing in it or received a testimony of it in any way, then you might say, "I don't know what to say." And if it is true that you never enjoyed yourself in the church, do your duty in taking part in meetings, and see if the Lord don't bless you so that you will soon have something to say.

There is another class of individuals who only occasionally take part in meetings, and who have educated their conscience to say, "I don't take part often because I have nothing new to say and don't want to say the same thing over and over." I don't think that either of the above classes have educated their consciences correctly, and they are hardly in a proper condition to say, "It is a matter of conscience with me whether I take part or not."

Maybe something has gone wrong during the day, you feel out of sorts, etc., and come to meeting with a determination not to take part. Where would be a better place to get down and pray God to forgive what you have done wrong, or to get up and say that "I have not lived as close to the Master as I ought to have done today," and ask the prayers of the Saints to help you to be faithful.

Maybe you feel tired and sick and don't intend to take part. Do you know that often, after attending a good prayer meeting and taking part, a person feels much better physically as well as spiritually?

It appears to me some people are willing to let others do their duty, and to enjoy the fruits of others' labors and not do their share. I do not believe, however, one can enjoy themselves fully without taking part.

If a person makes the resolve to try to take part in every meeting, they are apt to have the thought with them at all times, that, "If I am to take part at the next meeting I must live and act in such a manner that I will feel

$2.50 WORTH SENT FREE.

DR. MILES, THE GREAT SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF THE HEART, NERVES, STOMACH AND KIDNEYS.

WILL SEND A TRIAL COURSE OF HIS NEW AND REMARKABLE TREATMENTS FREE.

When an experienced physician offers to give away New Treatments for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach, or dropsy, it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in it. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Special Treatments his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration.

That Franklin Miles, M.D., LL. B., is one of the world's most successful physicians is proven by hundreds of wonderful cures of well known people. One patient cured after failure of eleven Grand Rapids physicians, one after being given up by thirty physicians, one after failure of twenty-two physicians, another after nine of the leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago failed.

The late Prof. J. S. Jewell, M. D., editor of the Journal of Mental and Nervous Diseases, said: "by all means publish your 'physic' results." Prof. J. P. Ross, M. D., Ex-President of Rush Medical College, wrote in 1874: "Dr. Miles has taken two courses of my private instruction in diseases of the heart and lungs." Mr. Truman DeWesse, editor of the Chicago Times-Herald, states: "Dr. Miles cured me of years of inherited headache and dizziness." The well known manufacturer of Freepost, Ill., J. C. Scott, says: "I had fruitlessly spent thousands of dollars with physicians until I consulted Dr. Miles." Mrs. Frank Smith of Wabash Ave., Chicago, writes: "Dr. Miles cured me of dropsy after five leading physicians had given me up."

One of our most remarkable testimonials sent upon request. As all may have $2.50 worth of treatment especially prepared for their case, free, as a trial, we would advise them to send for it at once. Address, Dr. Franklin Miles, 306 West Superior, Chicago. Please mention this paper.

in a proper condition to take part," and with this thought in mind at all times, I believe that the resolve to perform your duty at every meeting will be one of the incentives to help you live closer to the Lord.

Do you know that by kneeling down at home just before starting for meeting, and praying the Lord to help you do your duty and bless the meeting, that when you reach the church you will feel in better condition to take part than if you had not thus prepared yourself.

It seems to me that almost no matter how we turn we can hardly find a legitimate excuse for not doing our duty at prayer meeting, especially if we are to be as the scriptures say, valiant in testimony, and to pray without ceasing. Still I do not, of course, mean to say that there are not times when it may be excusable for us not to take part.

I offer these thoughts in the spirit of love, not of fault finding, hoping that they may find some one to thinking, and, if possible, cause some to resolve to take part in every meeting.

Turquoise Mining in Southwest.

Turquoise mining in New Mexico is of very remote origin. Many of the present mines, when located, indicated operations by the inhabitants of New Mexico at a time prior to or contemporaneous with the Aztecs, stone and earthen vessels of great antiquity being found in the workings.—The Western (Neb.) CANCER A CURABLE DISEASE.

Many people have an idea that cancer is incurable, but we have over 150 original and recent testimonials of cures of actual cancer, the sufferers having taken 8 to 24 bottles of the famous B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) which is meant to cure old obstinate blood and skin troubles. B. B. B. kills the cancer poison in the blood and the sores quickly heal. No cutting required. Among others cured was Mrs. M. L. Adams, of Fredonia, Alabama. Had an eating cancer, the bones of her nose and upper part of her mouth entirely eaten out. Could only eat strained soup, yet the cancer healed perfectly by taking 14 bottles of B. B. B. Allan Grant, Sparta, Georgia, had painful sore on lip called epithelial cancer, also much pain in bones and weakness in back; 10 bottles of B. B. B. healed the sore and gave him strength, and made his blood pure and rich. B. B. B. heals ulcers, scrofula, eczema, cancer in any form, old sores, etc. Druggists or by express prepaid, $1.00. A trial treatment of B. B. B. free by writing Blood Balm Co., 86 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Georgia. Describe trouble and free medical advice given. Medicine sent at once prepaid.

DAUGHTERS OF ZION.

PHRESIDENTS' REPORT.

To the General Assembly of the Daughters of Zion, Greeting:—With a feeling of thankfulness to God, and abiding gratitude for the loadings of His Spirit and His watchcare which has been over us as a society during the past year, I greet you at this time, and gladly embrace the opportunity of expressing my thankfulness to each one of you, my fellow-laborers, who have so nobly and cheerfully aided the advisory board for the advancement of this work the past year.

At the business meeting held at Lamoni, Iowa, April 19, 1900, Mrs. B. C. Smith and M. E. Hulmes were appointed a committee to consider the advisability of sending a delegate to the National Congress of Mothers, to be held at Des Moines, Iowa, the May following; and if committee so decided to send a delegate, that they have the power to select one. It was decided to send a delegate, and Sr. Frances Davis was chosen to represent our society. We have her report at hand, and it will be read at this meeting.

At the first meeting of the advisory board for 1900, Sr. Walker was requested to continue to act in the selection and preparation of literature for use of locals, and has cheerfully responded to our request.

The committee on preparation of one or more books to be published by advisory board, for use of the society, was continued. This committee consisted of Mrs. M. Walker, Lucy Rensigie and Frances Davis. I am glad to report that they have prepared the manuscript for the first book, which has been submitted to the advisory board and accepted. The contents of same give us reason to be thankful that we have in the ranks of our church and society, those who are capable of preparing such literature for our needs, and we hope that every mother in Zion will place this one first book, which is for young ladies, in the hands of her daughters. We expect this volume soon to be on sale, and at a small price.

We hope the incoming board will continue present committee on books, until the whole series is completed. While the work of this committee is a free will offering, we hope the general society and friends of this work will respond with financial aid that the publishing of literature may not be hindered when the work is prepared. May each one feel this responsibility is our prayer. Truly this committee is serving in a work of love for God's people.

While our editor in Home Column in Herald, and editors in Daughters of Zion department in Autumn Leaves are so commendably carrying on their work, we have been made glad in the fact that through the courtesy of the management of the ENSIGN, we have, during the past year, received space for a department; then we have a faithful editor for the same.

While the advisory board has held a number of meetings, yet we have been greatly hindered most all of the year by sickness among the members of the board; notwithstanding this, we have been able to accomplish that which has, and will, with God's help, result for good to this work.

We represented our work at the Washington Park reunion last year with good results. Sr. Walker was with us and aided us much; also a number of the ministry were present and gave voice to words of encouragement regarding the need of this organization, and the work to be accomplished through the society. This gave appreciated assistance to those who were, and are, laboring for the advancement of this work. Sr. Walker and I, feeling it a duty required at our hands, went to the Dow City reunion to represent the society work there, Sr. Walker being especially led that we should do so. Upon our arrival at the reunion we were pleased to hear that the committee regarding arrangements for representing Sunday School work and Religious had decided that these organizations and the Daughters of Zion in representing their aims, work conjointly, thus our way was not only opened up, but we felt glad to have all recognized in this way as needed helps in this great latter day preparation. We feel amply repaid for the effort there, and thank God that He stood by us, and for the interest manifested: also that the work was supported by His ministry and the congregation assembled, and for the words of encouragement we received, giving cheer to last as we journey on our way in this cause. We are pleased to report that the Dow City local was organized at this time and among their numbers are those capable of carrying on the work.

While in the east I visited the Wheeling, West Virginia, branch, in interest of starting again the society work there. I found sisters there whose hearts are in this work. They report having met since, in local meeting. I have, to some extent, by correspondence, tried to further the work of organizing locals, but this work has been mostly the work of our corresponding secretary, Sr. H. E. Robinson. While we have not received word of as many new locals being organized as we would wish, I feel we can be thankful for the progress the work has made this last year. In some places where there are no locals existing, as sisters may be living so far apart, or no one thought by them competent to carry on local work, sisters are found so interested in the society that they wish their names to remain on the general record as members of the general society. I wish to make a suggestion that it may be advantageous for the general society to supply blanks as a guide for locals to report to advisory board, also to urge the thought of the necessity of more prompt reporting.

In conclusion I wish to say that ample encouragement has come to us, as a society, to strengthen us to continue our labors in the future, and I feel sure we only have to make the people better acquainted with the character and scope of our work to enlist their active co-operation. While I feel much of our work must be done by publications, we need the ability to send out one or more active, energetic organizers, who, by visiting the different branches and properly presenting our work, could organize locals, and in various ways labor for the advancement of the society's interest. Let us earnestly "pray the Lord of the harvest" that such may enter into our ranks.

May God bless and guide us all in the transacting of the business of this meeting and His continuing guidance be ours, is the prayer of

The Clinton district Sunday School Association will convene at Veve chapel May 31st. We hope to see every school in the district represented. We hope every school will choose the full number of delegates to which they are entitled, and it would perhaps be wise to instruct delegates to choose others to fill the places of those absent. Such instructions should be enclosed with credentials.

Owing to the dissatisfaction expressed by many in regard to the present teacher's report, this subject will be discussed, and if deemed advisable, a more simple form adopted. Each school is requested to take up a contribution for the association,

HONOR THE LAW.

Now that the questions of "surplus" and "consecration" are to engage the attention of the dwellers in the Stakes recently established, as well as preparing the minds of those who shall yet become residents, either within the borders of those now founded, or within the precincts of others yet to be established, would it not be well for all to avoid undue agitation as to what is required under the law now in force in this regard? The Lord has appointed certain individuals to decide upon these points, and it is surely a wise and safe procedure to permit them the free exercise of their rightful prerogatives of their divinely designated duties. To pursue a contrary course is to invite confusion and contention, which is always disastrous to peace and right development. "Let every man learn his duty" is an admonition which, we sincerely believe, every individual called to official position in the Stakes' government, is especially and diligently striving to do; and the more difficult the duties enjoined, the greater light and direction these men must receive, being entitled to divine guidance where their own judgment is faulty.

It is possible that in the fulfilling of the demands now pressing upon every faithful Saint in doing his part for the establishing of Zion, and making sacrifices of his means to that end, that no two cases will be just alike in every particular. Every resident should make his statement, and arrange with the bishop of the Stake on his own account, without regard to any other persons accounting. Whatever agreement may have been made by the bishop with our neighbor, we are bound to believe by our faith in his integrity as a man of God, of His own choosing and appointment, has been made in righteousness, without consideration of personal bias, or particular friendship for him more than for any other worthy individual placed in like circumstances. We have no right to impugn motives, nor to suppose that he has not conscientiously performed his duty in the matter. The Lord has very wisely provided a remedy for any discrepancy that may be apparent, and any one, it matters not who, when he comes to the bishop with his statement and finds that he cannot agree with him in the amount he should pay into the Lord's treasury, the high council of the Stake, twelve true, good, unbiased men, may be called in to adjudicate the matter, and see that justice is meted out, both to the individual and the treasury.

It should commend itself to every mind as a reasonable proposition, that when the Lord calls men to do a certain work, He will certainly qualify and endow them for that work—no matter how difficult may be the duties attaching—if they are faithful and diligent in striving to magnify their calling. Those who cannot accept this sentiment had better "examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith." It is certainly an untenable position to occupy that God would lay responsibilities upon men, and see them striving with honesty and earnestness to execute their duties, and refuse to aid them when they sought Him for the instruction which they lacked. No earthly potentate would be guilty of such an act of injustice, and yet hold his ministers subject to punishment for any failures they might make under such circumstances, much less the Lord of glory. He can be depended upon, by all the experience and testimony of the past to render needed assistance in the carrying on of His own work, until perfect conditions obtain.

This proposition then being agreed to, is it reasonable to suppose that He will thus endow others, whose duties do not require them to act in the matter? We think not; hence the interpretation of the law, and the judgment they place upon the cases brought before them, may be depended upon as being given in righteousness; and if for any cause there should be disagreement, the high council can settle the matter, and their decision, at least, should be accepted and acquiesced in with cheerfulness, and promptness, otherwise it may be found that "sin lieth at the door" of the rebellious, the consequences of which may be found anything but pleasant to the offender.

The Lord has in times past admonished the Saints that they should give heed to those who were placed over them in the church and that if they did not, they should come under condemnation.

And if my people will hearken unto my voice, and unto the voice of my servants whom I have appointed to lead my people, behold, verily I say unto you, they shall not be moved out of their place. But if they do not hearken to my voice, nor unto the voice of these men whom I have appointed, they shall not be blest, because they pollute mine holy grounds, and mine holy ordinances, and charters, and my holy words, which I give unto them." Doc. & Cov. 107: 13.

This instruction is again emphasized in the revelation this year.

If my people will respect the officers whom I have called and set in the church, I will respect these officers; and if they do not, they cannot expect the riches of gifts and the blessings of direction.—Par. 14.

We are expressly taught that "every elder, priest, teacher or deacon, is to be ordained according to the gifts and callings of God unto him," (Doc. & Cov. 17: 12), and when the Lord places a man in any position of service, so long as he wisely acts in his office, the people of God are responsible for the manner in which they uphold and sustain his efforts in the "righteous discharge of the duties made obligatory upon him." Of what benefit is it that God should place men as leaders to His people, if every man or woman is privileged to be a law unto him or herself, and to work as they please, regardless of the instructions those officials may give within the purview of their calling? They would simply be reduced to the position of a useless ornament, their appointment merely a form, a sham. The great God does not so move, and the people who are blessed, and honored of Him, are they who respect the servants whom He has appointed to represent Him. And it is clear that if men and women, who contemplate coming to the Stakes of the Lord, expect to be favored and blessed in so doing, they will honor God's appointments, communicate with the bishop of the Stake within the limits of which they desire to make their home, and abide the instructions they receive; doing which, in the honoring of God and His law, they may, with utmost confidence look for the favor and blessing of God to attend them, even though at first the instruction may not be just what the individual hoped for, or thought should be given.

It is a matter for more serious consideration than many appear to appreciate: as to who shall abide in these places. It is not enough that individuals are called Saints, but it will be required that there shall be a manifest disposition to observe the commandments of the Lord, and to live faithful, consistent lives; and the individual who does not show such an inclination before coming to the Stakes, would not be likely to put forth any greater effort after coming, and it would be a useless move to make, for he could not remain through the sifting that shall decide as to who are worthy to remain to enjoy the blessings of the "goodly land." No one need expect to escape trials and temptations simply because they are dwelling upon a land which has been especially designed for the gathering of the Lord's people; the adversary does not neglect his opportunities there, to any appreciable extent, and the individual who gives him any encouragement in these Stakes, will find him as ready to occupy as if it was a less favored spot. Righteousness, and consecration to God, are the only safeguards against his power, and these are fully as effectual and applicable anywhere else as in the land of Zion. Bring these with you when you come to the Stakes, having made arrangements beforehand with the bishop of the Stake, and any one may reside in peace, happiness and blessing, anywhere within their borders. But honor God's appointments first. Submit your cases to those appointed of Him to adjudicate upon them, accept with cheerfulness their direction, and the Lord will bless your efforts, if you live in faithfulness before Him and among His people.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER A. B. PHILLIPS, 2418 M Street, Sacramento, California, has been holding meetings recently at Deighton, California, and baptized three there. In the confirmation following on the same day the Holy Spirit was present in power. Others there express their convictions of the divinity of the restored gospel.

ELDER SWEN SWENSON, Kerr, Caldwell county, Missouri, has made some openings in the Far West district; many are investigating and some are convinced. The Spirit seems to be moving upon the hearts of the people, and though he still encounters some prejudice, it readily gives way, when opportunity is given to explain the faith of the church. He has organized one Sunday School since he began his labors in Far West.

The brethren at Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, are working hard to secure the necessary funds with which to build their new church this summer. They meet with many obstacles but they are being patiently met and surmounted, and they are hopefully pushing ahead. The Pittsburg branch met in one hall, 67 Fourth Ave., for over 30 years, and have paid out many thousands of dollars in rent. They have now gone to another hall, 1351 Fifth Ave., entrance on Stevenson street, and would be glad to have any of the ministry or friends passing through the city to stop and worship with them. The ministry will always find a welcome with Bro. C. Ed Miller, the branch president, at 112 Lillian street. We hope the good brethren and sisters of that branch will be given all possible encouragement and assistance in their efforts to get a church home. One of the sisters of Independence, Missouri, selected the finest peach tree in her orchard and has set it apart for the benefit of the church at Pittsburg; all the proceeds from the fruit goes to that fund. This is a good example for some in that district to follow; the consecration need not be confined however to fruit trees; anything else that will produce an income can be used. Try it.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER JOHN KALER, No. 128 Evans Street, Rozelle, Sydney, Australia:

We had a good reunion at Easter time. All well and God's blessing with us.

ELIZABETH WICKESER, Greenup, Ills., May 8:

We live south of the depot forty rods, and if any of our elders come this way, we would be glad to have them stop and preach for us awhile.

J. G. MORGAN, Upton Works, Michigan, April 20:

I am here from Harbor Beach, Michigan, keeping the Upton boarding house. Will be glad to have the Saints and elders call on us when passing; they will be made welcome.

SR. IDELLA BODGE, North Dexter, Maine, March 24:

I am the only one of the church here, and all I have is the ENSIGN. Elder Cunningham was here and preached, with good interest, and I think some will obey if they have the chance. I hope that after Conference an elder will be sent here.

SR. (Mrs.) RUTH A. BARNES, Box 62, Springfield, South Dakota:

The ENSIGN is the only preacher we have now, as none of the missionaries have visited us since Bro. Swen Swenson and Walling left here nearly two years ago. We would gladly welcome any of the elders who would come here.

SR. (Mrs.) J. S. MERCER, Rose-dale, British Columbia:

I have been in the work about one year and a half and can truly say that I rejoice in having been permitted to hear and obey the only true gospel. I know it makes all wise unto salvation who will follow its divine precepts. I always lend the ENSIGN to others to read and am always glad if they will do so. Am also glad to say a word in the Master's name whenever opportunity offers itself.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Rally Day Next Sunday!
Children's Day, June 9th.
These days are always especially enjoyable for the older ones, as well as the children. Come and enjoy it with us.

Elder T. C. Kelley left Tuesday evening for Minneapolis, Minnesota, to enter upon his missionary work of the year. Elder T. W. Chatburn left for Wisconsin, his field of labor, last week.

Two were baptized in the font Sunday, a daughter of Bro. and Sr. J. J. Vickery, and a son of Bro. and Sr. O. S. Noble. These are the first to be baptized in the font; it is not yet in very good condition for use. Bro. Joseph Luff officiated.

Bro. C. D. Carson, of Morganville, Kansas, is considering the feasibility of engaging in the undertaking business in Independence. He is an energetic, affable brother, and will doubtless give satisfaction in any line he may decide upon entering.

Bro. T. W. Williams of Los Angeles, California, thinks he left his Compendium and Instructor in Independence while at the Conference. If they have been found by any one please forward to him 1322 Myrtle Ave., or send to ENSIGN office.

Sunday was a magnificent day. At the morning hour Elder Joseph Luff was the speaker, and at night Bishop Hilliard occupied. Both efforts were replete with good instruction. The afternoon communion service was well occupied, comforting the earnest, faithful worshippers.

Bro. and Sr. D. W. Wight, of Lamoni, Iowa, were in the city Monday, guests of Sr. R. J. Parker. They are en route to Bro. Wight's mission field, the Rocky Mountain mission, and are visiting Bro. Wight's sister in Kansas City. They were to leave Wednesday for the West.

Every member of this branch, so far as possible, should be present at all the services next Sunday, it being the annual Rally day. The choir will render some good selections, and we hope to have Bishop E. L. Kelley with us at that time. Get ready everyone and be prompt at every service.

Bro. Joseph Luff, son of Bro. John Luff and brother of the business manager of the Ensign Publishing House, who has been employed in the press department for a number of years, severed his connection Saturday last, and left for Marquette, Michigan, Tuesday, to join his brother Edward, having accepted a situation there. Joe is a steady, industrious young man, and makes friends wherever he goes. We wish him success.

Bishop R. May met with a severe and very painful accident Wednesday, about noon. Himself and eldest son, Nephi, were taking two racks of empty barrels to Kansas City, in an order, and being short of man that day, Bro. May took a large one on load. They had reached the bottom of a hill and released the brakes on the wagon, and Bishop May had climbed part way up to the seat when the horse suddenly started, Bro. May being in such position he could not control the lines, nor reach the seat; he attempted to jump off and was thrown in such a manner that the front wheel on one side passed over his left shoulder, he rolled over as it passed him and the hind wheel passed over his back. A buggy was secured as quickly as possible and he was brought home. An examination by Bro. Joseph Mather M. D., showed the third and fourth rib fractured and another splintered or "chipped," and a large laceration on his back; no other internal injuries were found. Administration was had but the night was passed rather restlessly. This (Thursday) morning as we go to press, he is some easier, but the bruised muscles and fractures are yet quite painful. It is a very unfortunate occurrence as there are so many things depending upon his supervision. We pray he may have a speedy recovery. The horse ran a short distance until stopped by a fence, but managed to wreck the wagon in doing so.

The May festival of the Oratorio Society of Kansas City was held in the big Convention Hall, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of last week. It was an immense affair and a success in every way; 2,000 singers, about 90 of an orchestra and a Kimball pipe organ made the rendering of the selections presented, "The League of the Alps" and Haydn's "Creation" indescribably grand. Miss Helen Buckley of Chicago, the soprano soloist, has a voice of remarkable power and sympathy. Mr. Joseph Bearstein of New York captivated the audience with his magnificent bass, and with Mr. George Hamlin of Chicago, the tenor soloist, was encored a number of times. There was about 15,000 of an audience present. The chorus work was very fine indeed. Choral societies from Emporia, Kansas; Joplin, Missouri; Cameron, Missouri; Leavenworth and Lawrence, Kansas, and four from the two Kansas Cities, were present. In the contest Emporia received prize, $300.00; Joplin second, $200.00; Cameron third and Leavenworth fourth price. Bro. W. N. Robinson is Secretary and Manager of the Society, and to his energetic, unceasing work, backed by the excellent work of the chorus on previous occasions, the success of this festival is due. As he advanced to the front of the platform Thursday evening to announce the results of the contest, he was greeted with the applause of the audience, showing the recognition his efforts are receiving. Quite a number of Independence Saints are members of the society and are prominent singers in the Oratorio Society; Sr. W. N. Robinson and Bro. Orville James and one or two others whose names escape us, being assigned solo parts. These festivals will probably be a yearly affair hereafter. It was quite a sight just to see that vast audience; the singers making a beautiful picture, the ladies in white with an occasional pink dress to give a color effect, and the gentlemen in black. The Convention Hall is an immense building, being 814 by 200 feet and cost $325,000. Kansas City is, it will be seen, a live progressive place and appreciates good music.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Patriarch Alexander H. Smith addressed the Saints Sunday morning upon the topic, "The law of the Lord is perfect converting the soul." Elder Fred A. Smith was the speaker at night. The usual prayer and testimony meeting was held in the afternoon.

The Sunday School held their regular prayer and business meeting last Tuesday evening. Prayer meeting at the Mite Society last Thursday evening was very well attended indeed, we believe every chair was occupied. The Spirit of the Lord was present with us, and we hope there may be many more such meetings there.

Mr. Trueman McLees, janitor of Graceland College, and also a student there, was baptized Saturday afternoon by J. A. Gunsolley. Miss Clara Lasley, a student of the college, and Daniel McPeak, a former student, were also baptized by Bro. Gunsolley. Freda Smith, daughter of Elder Fred A. Smith, was baptized by her father. These were confirmed at the Sunday afternoon prayer meeting by Elders Columbus Scott and Fred A. Smith.

Elder James M. Stubbart preached at Saints' Home Sunday evening; J. A. Gunsolley preached at Evening Sunday; Elder H. A. Smith, at Greenview; John Smith, at Pleasanton.

The G. A. R. will hold memorial services at the church next Sunday morning, and President Joseph Smith will deliver the Graceland College baccalaureate sermon in the evening.

Sr. Audentia Anderson, instructor in instrumental music in Graceland College, entertained her music class last Thursday evening.

Bro. and Sr. D. F. Nicholson, whose son Walter graduates from the High School this year, entertained the class last Friday evening.

A baby girl was born to Bro. and Sr. D. C. White on the 6th inst.

Elder Jas. M. Stubbart leaves for Colorado, his mission field, tomorrow. Elder Fred A. Smith will go to Omaha for a few days, thence to his mission field, St. Louis, Missouri.

Bishop E. L. Kelley spent a few days in Omaha latter part of last week, returning yesterday.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH
2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2308 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1358.

The work, although not chronicled of late, is progressing. Last Sunday the Sunday School attendance was the largest we have ever had. Practicing is going on for Children's Day which will be held on June 2d.

At the regular business meeting all the branch officers were sustained for the ensuing six months, viz., D. F. Winn, presiding elder; L. H. Ashbaugh, priest; M. M. Leeton, teacher; Geo. Hidy, deacon and treasurer; J. Arthur Gillen, chorister. Sr. Geo. Hidy was elected organist.

We have been having some very instructive sermons from the officers of the Stake and the bishopric on the temporal law.

Assistant superintendent, E. Etzenhouser, visited the Northeast mission Sunday School on Sunday, May 11th, and found a few earnest sisters endeavoring to feed the lambs. It was decided to hold the services at 3:30, and on last Sunday several from the First Kansas City Sunday School went down and assisted, among them were Bro. and Sr. D. H. Blair, Bro. J. A. Gillen, and Sr. E. Etzenhouser. If the older Saints there will lend their assistance and encouragement, much good can be accomplished there.

A brother from Harlem, Ray county, Missouri, came over on last Sunday, looking for an elder to fill appointments over there. Elder F. C. Warnky and wife went over, about twenty were out to hear, and regular appointment for services every two weeks was left.

The Sunday Schools of the two Kansas Cities will hold their second annual picnic at Budd's Park, on Saturday, June 22d. Members of other schools are cordially invited to come. All are expected to bring well filled baskets. A pleasant time is assured.

Sr. Robt. Winning and family, who have been visiting with Sr. D. H. Blair, expect, in the near future, to go to Niagara Falls, New York, their future home.

Bro. Will Blair, who has been away several weeks on a business trip, is again with us.

Elder Joseph Luff is announced to address us on Sunday 25th, both morning and evening. We should have a full attendance.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

Branch headquarters, 8 South Wood St. Sunday meetings 2:45 and 7:45 p. m. Lang Mission, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. West Pullman branch, 748 119th St., 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. 508 W. 37th St. (colored mission), 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Meetings at the tri-branches yesterday were fairly well attended; preaching by Brn. Peement, Earl and Pitt, with the new missionary getting in once at each place. At the Central branch one was baptized.

Re-election of Sunday School officers for the west side yesterday resulted in the selection of Bro. Penny for superintendent; Bro. Sherman, assistant; Sr. Ethel Bellaw, secretary; Della Braidwood, treasurer; Bro. Sanderson, librarian; Clare Sherman, artist; F. M. Pitt, chorister; Della Braidwood, organist.

The diphtheria rage has loosened its hold; those afflicted have now passed the danger line. Kindly mention of the work of Sr. Mabel Sanderson, who, as an angel of love, left her home and stayed with the afflicted ones all through the siege, regardless of her own welfare, will be a worthy meed of praise. Sr. Powell has now come to render assistance.

Bro. M. F. Gowell passed through the city en route to his mission in Wisconsin; he was the guest of Bro. Culver.

Bro. W. H. Deam and family have moved to Morgan Park, a suburban town, where he is employed at his craft.

Some ferment in town just now over "Dr." John Alexander Dowie, it threatens to become quite general. A late editorial in such a prominent daily as the Tribune actually suggested mob violence. The county attorneys are trying to find some law to apply to his case, but cannot, so the legislature is to be urged to make some that will apply. In a few years this man has started a new religion, runs a bank, hotel, started the foundation of a city with Zion tendencies, is classed among the millionaires, said to be worth five millions, rides around in a magnificent coach attended by livered servants. All this inside of thirteen years, from a penniless emigrant from Australia. "American people like to be humbugged." (P. T. Barnum).

Independence will have to warm up on the line of Sunday School artist, to retain the laurels for Bro. Kress, as Bro. Clara Sherman is certainly in the race. 36 N. Paulina will hereafter be the address of F. M. Sheehy and R. S. Nayaka.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

We are having very fine weather, quite warm with cool nights.

Bro. I. N. White, who is with us for a few days, spoke morning and evening Sunday; both sermons were very edifying. He also spoke in the afternoon at the Mission, and will speak tonight at the church, and tomorrow night at the Mission.

We are glad to see Bro. H. O. Smith around again.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give a strawberry festival in the basement of the church on the 27th; tickets fifteen cents. Music etc.

The infant of Bro. and Sr. Kinder died Sunday morning 19th inst., of small pox. The mother was stricken with the dread disease the day of its birth April 23d. Sr. Kinder, we are glad to learn, is recovering slowly. The sympathies of the Saints are extended to the family.

The interest in the Religio is reviving. We are having very interesting meetings. A cordial invitation is extended to every one.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Bro. White has been stopping with Bro. Jas. Christenson and wife; he has been doing valiant service, preaching quite often; we understand he leaves on the morrow for labor in Illinois field. He addressed the Saints twice upon yesterday at the rock church.

Bro. White and A. Allen presided at the prayer meeting last Wednesday evening; only a small attendance.

The Sunday School entertainment and social of last evening, we hear was a success financially. A splendid program, after which ice cream and strawberries were served. A large crowd present.

The choir treated us to a delightful anthem yesterday morning.

Bro. Allen left Thursday night for his mission field, Nebo, Illinois, being the objective point.

Appointments yesterday, Bro. Billiasky, Belleville, Illinois; evening service, Bro. R. Archibald, Oak Hill Mission.

ETNA M. HITCHCOCK.
2510 N. Garrison Ave., May 20.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Polson Sts. Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

There was a good attendance at Sunday School, April 29th. Our Sunday School is thriving. At 11 a. m. Bishop C. A. Parkin was our speaker. The church was well filled. In the evening we were much pleased to have with us Elder Thos. Daley, who addressed the Saints in a very interesting and instructive manner.

J. B. Anthony preached at Oakland in the morning. Albert Haws went to Santa Rosa and addressed the Saints there. J. B. Saxe was the preacher at Berkeley at the morning hour.

Last Sunday was a home day for the ministry here. As it was sacrament Sunday all stayed in the city and all were out at our services. We had preaching at 11 a. m. by Bishop Parkin. It was the largest assembly we have had for a long time and nearly all remained to the afternoon service. Our prayer meeting was good and spiritual; all felt well paid for the time spent there. A few strangers were in the congregation. In the evening the writer had the pleasure of addressing the Saints and friends on the ever interesting subject of the gospel.

The attendance was good at the Religio Friday night and the interest is still on the increase.

There is always a full house at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting now, and all, as a rule, do their part to make it a profitable meeting, and a good spirit always prevails.

The Sisters' Prayer Union still meets regularly Thursday afternoons. All is going nicely here.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

Guy, Okla., May 14.

Editor Ensign:—In February last I finished a debate with a Seventh Day Advocate, at Delighton, Oklahoma, twenty miles northwest. Returned there and baptized two March 4th. Mr. Hamilton took a good picture of the baptism, with the Christian minister standing on the river bank with his hand to his ear (it being very high wind) to hear, as he admits, if I baptized in the name of "Joe Smith." Returned there and baptized three more April 26th. Mr. Hamilton, artist, Methodist, and Mr. Clark Smith and wife, Adventists. Returned again May 4th. to find a minister of the Millennial Dawn faith ready for battle, there being a few families of that faith living there, very nice people. Held six sessions debate, resulting very favorably, as I believe, for the truth. Many invitations to come and talk with the people on my return.

In all my labors I am ably assisted by my co-laborer, Sr. Crawley, whom many say explains matters better to their understanding than I do. This I write for the encouragement of the sisters who are not aware, many of them, of the influence they can exert for good. Am to return there the 10th. There are several families there who are very favorably impressed in favor of the truth.

The people there are now talking of getting an infidel to meet me soon and disprove our faith, choosing rather, probably, to have the Bible overthrown than to admit its teachings as we present them. I tell them I am ready at any time to meet him or any other who think they can disprove our faith. He lives near there, a very nice man, I hear.

My heart is made glad to see the advancement of the cause as manifested in the late conference and elsewhere. May the Lord speed the right.

As ever in the faith,
D. S. CRAWLEY.

ALBEO, Ill., May 17.

Editor Ensign:—Leaving Independence on the 22d of April, we sped homeward, arriving at Chicago on the 23d, we fell into the hands of dear friends—Saints indeed—and were soon very busy packing our household effects preparatory to the move to St. Joseph, Missouri. We had gathered considerable physical strength while at Conference, but when we had put in four or five days in packing and shipping, we found our supply of strength about gone again. We spent a few days in rounding up our work, responding to some of the invitations to call, saying good-by, with mingled gladness and sorrow—sorrow because of the parting, and gladness because of the strong evidences of love and union existing between us.

At a special business meeting, called for the purpose, we offered our resignation as president of the Chicago branch, which was duly accepted, and Bro. F. M. Sheehy, our worthy successor, was placed in charge.

At the close of the meeting a something was presented which Bro. Sheehy said looked like a gun, but it was not, as on being unwrapped it proved to be a finely mounted, silk umbrella, with "J. M. Terry" engraved upon the handle. When we raise this umbrella to shelter us from the storm or excessive heat, we will remember the kind hearts that bestowed the gift.

Tearing away from dear ones, whose every moment of association was precious to us, we boarded the "cruel cars" on the 8th, which bore us away from those we loved. After a ride in a chilly car for about six hours we landed here in the midst of kind friends and relatives, where we have been under the hospitable roof-tree of our sister in the flesh and gospel also, Mrs. B. A. Smith. We remained in bed for some days, but are now able to get out some, and hope to soon be able to take up the line of march again in the front ranks of our new field. We receive many admonitions from interested ones, advising moderation in our work, which for us is no easy task. The words of Bro. I. N. White to us, "Your field is waiting for you when you are ready to occupy," ring in our ears and urge us onward. We expect to go to Millersburg tomorrow to spend Sunday and a few days. How lost we were last Sabbath without church privileges. What a lonely world without Saintry associates. My wife is vigilant in trying to build up my health, to whose careful nursing, under Providence, I attribute my present favorable condition.

To us our three years' experience in Chicago has been productive of much valuable knowledge; even from what might have been unpleasant experiences, we are able to draw good lessons; the many rich blessings have so far outweighed the unpleasant, that it sinks into oblivion. How pleasant the memory of those days when after preaching three times and attending Sabbath School and Religio, when at the close of the last service, when all hearts would be swelling with the spirit of love, and every countenance would be beaming with good-will and love divine, when on coming down from the stand I would meet the smiling face and warm grasp of "Fred," when he would remark, "Well, that was good, another good day's work done for Chicago." The Saints would linger together and seem loth to separate. Such has been the repeated scene in Chicago.

After shipping our goods Bro. and Sr. W. H. Deam gave us a most congenial home, where we ever found a welcome when the evening shades drew around us. Other homes were offered. Bro. Reubin Elvin called on us twice since here: he is now located here, but was formerly of Herald office force. Our prayer shall ever be for the advancement of the work in Chicago, as also for its general good. On Sunday at the three o'clock service, after we had preached our final farewell, the beautiful little child (by law) of Bro. and Sr. R. A. Penney was blessed by the writer and Bro. S. C. Good, having placed upon her the significant name of Pearl Terry. May she be a pearl, indeed, of great value. Yours ever for work and victory,
J. M. TERRY.

PEJEPSCOT, Maine, April 20.

Editor Ensign:—Returning from Conference it may not be amiss for me to say a few words through the columns of the ENSIGN to my friends who may be interested to know something about the Conference and matters in general connected therewith.

First let me say I enjoyed the trip going there very, very much indeed; new and varied scenery attracted one's attention all the way; the country through which we traveled is vastly different than that of eastern Maine, not slightly speaking of good old Maine, nor her people at all, but those wide spreading fields of southern Ohio and Illinois, not to mention the more extensive fields of Missouri, the land of Zion, the future home of the Saints, were enough to make one nervous that had lived on some little farm among the rocks and mountains of Maine for years; one has only to see that country to become imbued with a desire to live there now, if not in eternity. It may well be said that Joseph Smith, with the inspiration of God, selected Jackson county, Missouri, as the place for the seat of government for God's kingdom through the Millennium. It is quite evident from observation the land just now around Independence is better adapted to godly conditions than the people are. Love at present is more a melee than mellifluous. "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples if ye have love one for another."—Jesus.

The Conference being the forty-eighth one is said to have been the best one ever held. About two thousand people in attendance on Sundays, with nearly as many some evenings at the first, with a gradual decline or drop off near the last, many getting tired sitting so long. Conference was represented by many nations, including the Lamanites, the Africans, the South Sea Island, and the Ceylon Island and Australia. The meetings, both social and preaching, were good and quite spiritual; several spoke in tongues and many prophecies were given which added pleasure to the Saints in general.

The business meetings were held each afternoon, and were by times very interesting and exciting, while at other times they were tiresome; matters being discussed at length by those who thought they knew, but though seemingly trying to be pious (or mighty) on points of law, were led to see there is another side to it. It is certain that many of our wisest men in Conference sit quiet and let those do the talking that choose to do it. It is certain also that President Joseph Smith is wonderfully endowed with patience, as also excellent judgment in presiding.

Altogether I believe the Conference to have been profitable to all in attendance. While there I met with some with whom I had become acquainted before, the names of whom I forbear mentioning here for want of space; besides I formed a brief acquaintance with many others which is of interest to me: among the number is Grandma Davison and Bro. and Sr. Burton, formerly of Nova Scotia.

I must not forget to mention on going out I was very kindly cared for, and pleasantly entertained by, and at the home of Bro. and Sr. Busiel, in Boston; they somehow have a way of making one love them, and feel at home with them; the family have my best wishes; am especially indebted to Elder Busiel for taking me to see Boston's best sights, such as Tremont Temple, Faneuil Hall, the State house, the Commons, and to the spot where the first blood was shed, and the first man fell in the time of the Revolutionary war, besides many other places of note especially the Museum where can be seen the relics of many years gathering, consisting of pottery, sculpture and the works of art; the works of ancient mound builders so artfully constructed as also the skull bones of warriors and weapons of ancient warfare, were to be seen. Particles from the ruined cities of Peru and Mexico are there exhibited which serve to confirm one's faith in the Book of Mormon, all of which is of lasting interest to me. We were royally treated by the Saints of Boston: on going out they were mindful of the demands of our physical man, and amply provided appetizing food and luxuries for the same. May their cup of blessing never diminish.

After twenty days stay in the land of Zion we turned our back on that beautiful country, bade the Saints good-by, and mounted the iron horse and started for the east and home by way of Kansas City, Chicago and Buffalo, passing through the Hoosac Tunnel, and so on to Boston. Parting here with our genial companions J. N. Ames and W. W. Blanchard, who had accompanied me, and whose company made the trip pleasant to me at least, I wended my way to the home of Elder F. P. Busiel's, here to be refreshed with food and sleep; the following day was spent with the Wood family in Arlington; returning to the home of Bro. Busiel's for tea, and after the usual good-by to the two Sisters Busiel and the young brother, C. H. Rich, we wended our way to the Portland steamer, here to find Bro. Busiel and Geo. Carter waiting to give us the parting hand. Thanks to the brethren for the interest thus taken. The night was roughly spent upon the waters where the ill-fated steamer, Portland, went down some two years since. However we reached Portland safely, and spent the following day and night in the city with friends to whom we tried to talk the gospel at their homes; feeling I had left a good impression I left them on the morrow for Pejepscot.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., May 14.

Editor Ensign:—You will remember that not long ago Bro. Terry wrote in the ENSIGN in reference to the baptism of our daughter's little girl, and how promising they were with their sweet, young lives consecrated to the Master's work.

We rejoiced much over this, we assure you; but, oh, how keenly disappointing to poor, weak, human hearts are the dispensations of our heavenly Father, at times.

The oldest grand-daughter, Zella, gifted, bright minded, in her budding, precious, innocent maidenhood, has been taken from us. She is at rest. We do not mourn for her, but for the dear, desolate loved ones left behind.

We desire to express our thanks to our beloved sister in the gospel, Mabel Sanderson, for her kind, self-sacrificing and thoughtful watchcare over the bereaved ones, and to the dear Saints there for their tender sympathies extended to the family, especially the younger ones. And now, after passing safely from under so dark a cloud, let us renew our love to our heavenly Father who doeth all things well.

Your brother and sister,
GEO. AND ABBIE HORTON.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 13.

Editor Ensign:—Permit me to tell your readers I did not receive the farm I was working for. If any of those who subscribed for the paper do not receive it, please notify me.

Some one has sent in an order for olive oil, the letter was misplaced some time ago. Will the party in question please send their name and address?

I reached home safely: the attendance at church had fallen off materially in my absence. We are attempting to rally the lagging forces. Bro. Dana, Earl, Crumley and Joehnk occupied in my absence. Bro. Crumley leaves tomorrow for his mission field, Oregon. Fiesta week and the McKinley reception are things of the past. The floral display eclipsed anything ever attempted here: I am sure President McKinley never had such a floral tribute: such a thing would be impossible anywhere but in California. The parade was magnificent; the streets, carriages, floats, automobiles, and bicycles were one sea of flowers: carnations, roses, and every other variety of flowers, wrought into every conceivable pleasing design.

Bro. and Sr. Burton and Metaore are expected here on Thursday.

Yours in the faith,
T. W. WILLIAMS.

FAIRLAND, I. T., May 20.

Editor Ensign:—I landed in this part of the field May 1st. Bro. J. T. Riley and I have been laboring together since, and we have found plenty to do, more calls than we can respond to; we have been holding forth east of here on Grand river with the best of interest; while its in the timber, dark nights, and very busy times, yet we have had a house full and sometimes as many outside. Bro. Riley baptized five the first week, I baptized five the second week, and closed last night with a many more nearly ready. One had belonged to the Christian church for years, and had preached some for that church, but admitted we had more light than they had.

We expect to hold a week in another place, then I will go to Willorton. Have been enjoying good liberty and feel good in the work. I see by this week's Ensign some are giving good news from their fields. I believe all that will be active this year will do a good work. Any one wishing to write me, direct letters to Independence, Missouri, and they will be forwarded at once.

Yours for the gospel,
W. M. AYLOR.

SAVANNA, Ill., May 9.

Editor Ensign:—We are still alive here, though we have passed through severe trials. We feel that our heavenly Father is still watching over us and that we still feel to trust Him. Our hall is still open and we would be pleased to have the elders call on us over Sunday when convenient. It does not seem practicable to hold meetings through the week at the present time when passing through here.

I also wish to say that Bro. J. W. Crawford, our teacher, has moved near Emerson, Mills county, Iowa, two or three miles northeast, and as they are worthy Saints and desire to attend church, I trust that those in charge of that part will call on them and inform them in regard to the work. There are nine in the family, five of whom are Saints. How near are they to a branch?

THE KINGDOM OF GOD.

SERMON BY ELDER J. S. ROTH.

[CONCLUDED.]

Paul says further: "For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

How long Paul? "Till we"—Who? Well, I will give you his own words. "Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." Are we there today? I don't believe we are. There are various opinions upon the earth, among the children of men; I don't know how many organizations there are. And this declaration is that there shall be apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers in the church of Christ, till we all come in the unity of the faith, to the perfect man, in the fullness of the stature of Christ Jesus; and I hold we are not there. Then the declaration is, when "that which is perfect is come," then these things shall be done away; and that these officers shall be in the church of Christ until that time; and when we find the kingdom or the church of Christ we will find all those officers in it. We are seeking for that kingdom.

Jesus has commanded that we should seek first the kingdom of God. Now is that the kingdom of God? If it took apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, deacons, elders, bishops, helps and governments to constitute officers of the church of Jesus Christ eighteen hundred years ago, does it take anything less today to constitute that same church? I don't believe it does. If it does, God has changed; if it does, where does the Bible say so? I cannot find anywhere that that law has ever been repealed. God set them in the church. If God set them there, where is the man or set of men that had the right to take them out? And if they are not there—and we are told everywhere that they are not—then some person must have taken them out.

"But," says one, "what is the need of these prophets in the church today?" Well, that is very important. We are told that we have all that is necessary and of course we do not need prophets today; but we will ask a question: What was the need of them eighteen hundred years ago? Was there need for prophets in the church then? Or did God make a mistake when He said He set apostles and prophets in the church? Were they needed then? If they were, what did they do? What was their office work? If we can ascertain what their office work was then, and we have any need for that kind of work today, then we hold that they ought to be there now just as well as then.

I don't know that I can compare the prophet of the church to anything better than to the headlight of a railroad engine. When the railroad was first made, the company put the cars on the track and the engine ahead of the cars, and on the front of the engine the large headlight. What for? "Well," says one, "it was to show in the dark night when the cars come along, when the enemy of the company (and you never saw an institution on the face of the earth that did not have enemies); when the enemies of the company are trying to destroy that company's property; when they throw some obstruction in the way, the headlight reflects and the men of the engine, the fireman, and the engineer, see the obstruction by the headlight that is on the engine, and they can take care that there be no accident and that the company suffer no loss." Just so it is with the headlight today.

But supposing that after the railroad company had run some five, six or ten years and they began to imagine within themselves, "Well, we have been over this road and we know every whistling post, every switch, every turn, crook and curve, and we don't need a headlight at the head of the engine any more;" and the next time he starts out he puts the engine to the other end of the train; and more than that, he gets the engine blind end foremost, and the headlight reflects to the rear, and some dark night you go out and you hear the noise of the train, but you don't see the headlight, but the noise of the train comes closer and there is no headlight. You say there is something wrong; but by and by you hear the train coming thundering along, and the enemies of the company have discovered what the trouble is; the trainmen have changed the headlight; it is at the rear end of the train now and the enemies throw some obstruction in the way, and the train is ditched, and the company suffers loss, and the men are killed. Well, now, you see the necessity of the headlight at the head of the train.

So we have the headlight of the Church of Jesus Christ. We have the prophets away back yonder at the head of the church; apostles and prophets representing the headlight, the Spirit of God reflecting through them what the enemy is going to do. We find that the enemy of the church is the devil, and he has been throwing obstructions in the way ever since God made Adam; and God, through the headlight of the church—the prophets of the church, warned them of the obstruction the devil has put in the way, therefore the train is saved, or the church is saved just so long as it has the headlight or prophets and apostles at the head of the church.

But after the church had run along about 450 to 570 years and the people began to think they did not need the prophets in the church any more, they turned the church around and now they look back to the dead prophets; they look back to the dead apostles and they have the headlight or the reflection of Jesus Christ by the Spirit of inspiration at the rear end of the train or the church away back yonder and they are coming along rear end foremost. And the churches are groveling along in darkness because the headlight is at the rear end of the train, looking away back there to Jerusalem for knowledge and wisdom and all the spiritual gifts enumerated in the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians, and the church is running along and the devil has thrown obstructions in the way, heresies and apostasies, and that church is wrecked and the company suffers loss, and the men are destroyed, just because they reversed the headlight and put it to the rear of the train. They reversed the office of apostles and prophets and put it away back yonder, when it was placed at the head of the church by Jesus Christ. We find a prophet named Agabus prophesying and warning the church that they should prepare, for a great dearth was coming and a famine; and they did prepare. That is the way that the headlight served the church 1800 years ago. Has the church any enemies? If it has, it is just as essential to have the headlight today as it was then. If it was needed then, it is needed now. If not, why not?

But we go a little further, and we find in the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians some more work of these officers in the church, and learn that Paul describes the church as a man, and that the hands and the eyes and the feet were all essential. But after a while they began to look around and they come to the conclusion that they are not essential. Paul says emphatically that the hands cannot say to the feet they are not essential because the feet are not the hands, the eyes or the ears, therefore they are not essential; but he says that every member in the body is essential; and if they were essential then, where does the Bible say they are not essential now?

Suppose I make another illustration here: When God made Adam and Eve He made them perfect in organization, "very good," the record says. Well, after a while Adam began to look Eve over and he thought there were more members there than were necessary, and he says to Mother Eve, "God has said you were organized very good; he gave you hands, and eyes, and ears, and feet; but I do not see the necessity of all these members in that body now, for I think they have served their time and purpose and therefore are no longer needed; and I think I can improve on that." So he takes off an arm and it don't seem to affect her very much, and he takes off another; and he looks at the two eyes, he says there is no use for two eyes in one head and he takes out an eye, and he looks her over again and again and trims her down till by and by there is nothing left there but just a stump of Mother Eve. And he calls in the two boys, Cain and Abel, and he says, "Boys, I want you to have a kind visit with your mother." And the boys come in, and they look around and say, "Father, where is mother?" "Why, there she is." "No, that isn't mother, that's an old stump. Mother had eyes, ears, hands and feet, but we don't see any of them. What is the matter?" Why, the man was going to improve on the body which God made. So we have here in the Church of Jesus Christ apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers, deacons, elders and bishops, helps and governments; but after while man began to look that woman—the church—over and began to trim her down; and what have they left? Why, only two feet, the deacon and the elder. Is that the church we are seeking for tonight? Is that the kingdom of God which Jesus said to seek first? Well, when we find that kingdom, will we find anything different from that which Jesus left here? If we do, how shall we know that it is the kingdom of God?

"But," says one, "you just misunderstand that; you misapply it." We turn over to the 15th chapter of John and the 5th verse, and Christ says there: "I am the vine, ye are the branches." I'll admit all that. Let us see what Christ says here, "I am the vine, ye are the branches." "Now," says the objector, "you don't understand the idea conveyed here; all these organizations are branches of the vine." Let us see if that is correct. I will turn to the 12th chapter of the 1 Corinthians and see whether that is applicable to the position taken, "I am the vine, ye are the branches." Now suppose we make a comparison here of the vine. We take a grape vine for instance, and I don't care how large that grape vine is; I don't care where you find it. It grows up and has branches east and west, north and south, and when you go for fruit on that vine in due time, what do you expect to find? Why, every little girl will say, "You expect to find grapes there." Isn't that what you expect to find on grape vines? Certainly! Then every child would expect to find grapes on that vine. Well, now, if that vine bears grapes, will the branches bear the same? Most assuredly! Nature teaches us so. Well, let us examine that.

Here we have a vine, say in a garden of some of our brethren, and he goes out in the fall of the year when grapes are ripe, and he finds on the main vine beautiful clusters of grapes, and he looks upon another branch running off east and he finds raspberries on that; he looks upon another branch and he finds peaches upon that; he looks upon another branch and he finds apples on that. "Well," says one, "is not that all fruit?" Yes, that is all fruit and good fruit. I am not objecting to the fruit. I want to see whether they are all grapes or not; and if they are not grapes, I claim that the branches have no connection with the vine.

Well, the man is puzzled about the affair. He looks around over these branches, and he says, "I cannot understand how that one branch of my vine bears grapes, another bears apples, another this kind of fruit and another that, and I am going to make an examination." And he follows up this first branch and he gets up close enough to the old vine to see that there is a little space between the vine and the branch, and the branch gets the shadow of the old vine and not the substance or the sap, if you please; therefore it is reasonable that the branch could not bear the same kind of fruit that the old vine did, because the branch was not connected, and he examines every branch in connection and he finds every one in the same condition.

Well, now we turn to the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians, beginning at the 1st verse, and I am going to give you just a few clusters of the grape from the old vine. I read:

"Now concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant. Ye know that ye were Gentiles, carried away unto these dumb idols, even as ye were led. Wherefore I give you to understand, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus accursed: and that no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost."

Now there are diversities of gifts, we will call those the grapes, now, or fruit; there are diversities of gifts. In the 5th verse:

"And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord. And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all. But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. For to one [member] is given ** wisdom. [That is one bunch of grapes]. To another the word of knowledge [that's another] by the same Spirit; to another faith by the same Spirit; to another gifts of healing by the same Spirit; to another the working of miracles; to another prophecy; to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; but all these worketh that one and the self same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he [God] will."

These are the grapes of the old vine; they are the fruits of the old church. Now if the branches or organizations called churches are actually branches of that vine, they will all bear that same kind of fruit. Is that reasonable? If they do not bear that same kind of fruit, I am forced to the conclusion that they are only under the shadow of the old vine, and do not receive of the sap, or substance, or Spirit of the old vine. For if they partook of the same Spirit, they of necessity must bear the same fruit the old church did.

"But," says the objector, "we believe in prophets." O yes; I will admit that; a great many believe in prophets. But they are spelled just a little different than what prophets are spelled in the Bible. They believe in buying a horse for fifty or sixty dollars, and then selling him for one hundred dollars; they believe in profits, but not in prophets. That is the kind of profits they believe in. But here are Bible prophets who foretell future events; but they are done away with, we are told, because no longer needed. Well, does the Bible say so? That is like a great many other points. Perhaps some one will take the position that that ought not to be there. Well, let us read here, right in the 14th chapter of 1 Corinthians and the 26th verse: "How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edifying."

Edifying of the body. I read back here that these officers were for the edifying of the body, the church. Now let us go a little further; 37th verse:

"If any man think himself to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord."

But some say we do not need them now. It does not say that we do not need them now. "Oh well, says the objector, 'we turn back and Paul says he is going to show you a better way.'" Yes, sir; that's what he says, right here, "I show you a better way." Well, now, we get the better way in the 14th chapter, 39th verse: "But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant. Wherefore, brethren, forbid to prophesy, and don't let them speak in tongues." No, that is not the way it reads, but, "Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak in tongues," that is the better way you see. I get these things mixed sometimes. My father was a preacher of a popular church and he used to tell me that it didn't mean as it read; that they were done away, were no longer needed in the church.

But Paul said here in plain words, in this 14th chapter, 39th and 40th verses, "Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy." "O well, all this is done away with, of course." But the Bible don't say so, and I don't believe it ought to be cut out of there at all. God put it there. Because Paul says in Galatians that Jesus revealed it to him; and in the 8th and 9th verses he says if an angel or a man preach any other gospel let him be accursed. So I say to you today: seek ye first for that kingdom, and you will know that kingdom when you find it, by the pattern which is left on record, the same as the Englishman or the Norwegian or any of the foreigners that come to this country; they know the country by that which they have read. So when you find the kingdom of Jesus Christ you will know it by the pattern which was left. The officers in that kingdom are apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers and so on, as you have heard them enumerated time and again. And the way to get into that kingdom is by faith in God; repent of all that is evil; be baptized for the remission of your sins (Acts 2:38), and have hands laid upon you to confirm you as a member of the church and for the gift of the Holy Ghost. (Acts 8:17; 19:6; 9:17). That was the law to get into that kingdom. Is not that the law now? If it is not, pray tell me when it was changed?

Then again we find here that this kingdom is called the bride, the church, the Lamb's wife. And I read a little further; Jesus says in the 14th chapter of St. John, I think about the 2d verse, "Ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again."

Now Jesus has gone to prepare a place for somebody. Who is it for? For the kingdom, for the bride, which He left here on earth; and I believe that when He goes to prepare that place and He has that place prepared for his bride, He is going to come again. Christ is going to come to be wedded to His wife, the bride which He left here. Well, how many brides did He leave here? I find here that Jesus Christ said by the mouth of Paul that He left one bride here; that He left one body here; that He left one church here; and that church is the church; that He will seek for that church when He comes again.

It would be very, very strange if the position be true, that it takes all the different organizations to constitute the Church of Christ—and I learn by that word, and I believe it, that in order to get into the kingdom triumphant, we have to be in the kingdom militant—and if it is true, that it takes all the churches or a thousand organizations to make one church, the church of Jesus Christ, then in order that I may be saved in the church triumphant I must be in the church here; and if that is true; it would be necessary that I would join every one of them before I would be in the Church of Jesus Christ, that is, if it takes them all to constitute the church or kingdom of God. But then I fear that would be a very expensive investment if I had to give each of the preachers ten dollars every time he came around. But I believe that when Jesus comes He will come seeking for but one church.

Let us suppose a case. A young man takes the notion to get married and settle down, and he hunts up the girl that suits his fancy, and he tells her, "Now, you be true to me until I go to prepare a place for you," and she promises she will. And the young man starts away off to prepare a place for his bride. After he has gone, perhaps about ten years, he comes again. Now he comes to seek for his bride; do you suppose that when he comes to find his bride that about twenty-five or thirty girls will present themselves, and all claim to be his bride, the very girl he left behind? But if so when he investigates he learns that not one of them looks like the girl he left here, and he learns still further that one of them has no eyes, the other has no hands, the other no feet, and in fact not one is properly organized or developed. But he must make the best of it; he cannot find the identical girl he left here. So the best he can do is to gather them all up in his arms and start for his new home singing, "Halle-lujah, I have got them all." I am afraid he would have a sorrowful time of it. But I am sure he would not do that. No, never! Then how can we expect Jesus to accept so many different churches when He comes? He left one bride here and that bride was adorned with prophets, apostles, pastors, teachers, deacons, elders, bishops, helps and governments, with all the gifts and blessings of the gospel which were in the church 1800 years ago. And when He comes for that bride He will expect to have a grand supper or feast and He will look for the identical bride He left here. And I don't believe He will take one thousand for the one He left here. Therefore when He comes He will have the pattern with Him, and He will take the pattern around over the world until He finds the bride, the kingdom, the church, the Lamb's wife, which He left here.

Then it is essential that we seek for that bride. Remember not brides, not churches, but "the bride," "the church." We shall know that bride; and when we find that Church of Jesus Christ, when we find the kingdom which Jesus Christ organized, we will know it by the pattern which He has left here. And when you find that kingdom, get into it by obedience to the gospel of Jesus Christ. Jesus says in John 7:17 that you shall know of the doctrine that is taught in that church or kingdom; you will know whether it is the Church of Jesus Christ by the pattern which He left here. Jesus has made the declaration in the 7th of John; the 17th verse, that he that doeth the will of the Father he shall know of the doctrine. He that examines the pattern of the Church of Jesus Christ, he shall know that kingdom when he finds it. May God help you to first seek the kingdom of God, and then give you decision of character to enter in and become a citizen of God's kingdom and heir of salvation.

OUR PRESENT DUTY.

ELDER T. W. WILLIAMS.

We are living in an age of transition. The latent forces of all the centuries seem stirred to action.

The initial decade of the new century will be replete with evolutionary culminations.

The march of the world is onward. We may not be able to discern the evidence of advance in every movement. Occasionally, it becomes necessary to retrace our steps in order to correct the demonstrated effects of ignorance and misguided effort.

Old customs and traditional thought have very little weight with men of today. The adage, "Necessity knows no law," is the slogan of the age. The cherished heirlooms of church and state are losing their power over the lives of men.

The prophetic forecast of the Nazarine as to our time, "Knowledge shall increase," and "the love of many shall wax cold," has been fully verified.

The past century has witnessed the most profound and startling evolution in thought of all the ages. Where, hitherto, men worked in a haphazard way, and every move was a leap in the dark, now the inexorable law of cause and effect must be reckoned with, if we ever expect to succeed.

In the realm of science the Iconoclast finds a fertile field for action, and strewn around in undistinguishable heaps lie the cherished idols of some of the wisest sages of modern times. These have all served their purpose. Though largely a mass of ruins they now form the nucleus for a higher growth and there are many, very many, unfinished pieces which the wiser and future builders will polish and arrange in systematic order. Much of the orthodox teaching of the present scientific century may become obsolete in time, yet it will have served its purpose. Because a crawling babe has eventually learned to walk, it does not follow that its crawling was all in vain. Most of our experiences serve a purpose.

The oft repeated assertion that religion is slowly, but surely, losing its hold on the human family, and that the spirit of devotion is on the wane, calls for more than a passing thought from those who are seriously considerate of the progress of the race.

It seems that we have reached a condition in our development where we are able to determine whether religion is a good thing or not; whether it is the key to progress or the clamp of superstition and ignorance. If the former, then all men should know it, and the environments which have intercepted its fullest and noblest operations should be removed. If detrimental to the proper evolution of the race then there was never a time more opportune than the present for us to repudiate the whole institution, and, by a combined effort, effect its overthrow. We should be willing, however, to give even the devil his due, providing he has any entry in the credit column.

It is a very easy matter to profess religion, but amazingly difficult of practice. There are thousands, aye millions of men, who are willing and would cheerfully die in the name of religion, but precious few make any serious attempt to live it.

It is not martyrs that the church needs now. We need heroes and heroines brave enough to face the ever increasing number of malcontents and scoffers, and, though dwarfed by heredity, cramped by man-made environments, and beset by sin, yet have the courage and personal power to practically enforce the spiritual and ethical principles of our particular cult. Religion is nothing if not genuine. The greatest spiritual authority of all the ages said, "If the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted? It is therefore good for nothing; but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men."

The past century has witnessed many changes in the domain of religion. There was a time when our Puritanic Fathers were content to be religious for religion's sake. They were genuine to the core. No superficiality, no policy working, no standing on appearances, no winking at iniquity for revenue, no striving for the mastery, no very costly edifices from which the poor were practically excluded. No paid choirs, who sing that they may be heard of men; but a simple, unassuming faith, which, even now, lends added luster to their memory. The "yoke" borne by the ordinary christian is very easy, and his "burden" does not inconvenience him though he travel till the "weesma' hours o' the mornin'."

The humble Nazarine said, "By their fruits ye shall know them." If the status of present day Christianity was to be determined by the fruits of christian men and nations, methinks we would find it deficient in quality, and of light weight. This in no sense gives any comfort to followers of other faiths, for Christianity, though oftentimes distorted and wrested from its original pedestal, still is the handmaid of civilization and the "Light which lighteth every man which cometh into the world."

The relation of the church to the present national and international issues should be determined and preserved. A christian is a moral coward if he does not take a deep interest in the questions of state, which not only affect him, but likewise all men. Because politics have become corrupted the majority of church members have been content to remain away from the primaries and conventions, and it has been an easy matter for wily politicians to stuff these gatherings and carry whatever measure they chose. A pure primary makes possible a righteous government. A dishonest primary defies sin and enthrones crime. Would we, as Latter Day Saints, help redeem this nation? Then let every one see to it that corruption be excluded from every department of the government with which he has anything to do, and that proper methods obtain and wholesome laws are adopted for the regulation of the country.

It has been considered a very improper thing for a minister to have anything to do with so-called politics, and while politics are to be eschewed, he who fails to exercise his political and social franchise abridges his usefulness and stultifies his manhood. It is our duty to do all in our power to effect reforms and shape policies, local and general, which will the more readily permit the kingdom of heaven to come on earth. We are approaching a crisis in our civilization; a crisis that will tax the wisdom of men; a crisis such as the world has never witnessed. We are now even on the threshold. Inbreathed greed on the one hand, and wronged toil on the other, are marshalling their hosts for the final conflict. It will not be a Waterloo or Gettysburg. Ah, no; but in many respects a second Cumorah.

I may be fanatical, but I verily believe that we have it in our power, as a church, to, in time, become the social, moral and political saviors of the world. It is very evident at the present rate of production and the inevitable contraction of consumption, that, sooner or later, we will have a world wide panic; our people will suffer along with others unless they are prepared therefor. The only way we as individuals or a church can be preserved is to cheerfully and fully apply the divine law relating to temporalities in our lives. All this talk that "we cannot do this" and "we cannot do that," and "we must wait until God moves," is the most flimsy excuse we can offer in extenuation of our inefficiency.

"Until God moves!!! Why, God is moving everywhere. He is away ahead of the church now. He has, lo, these many years, been waiting for the rank and file to catch up. Whatever we do let us not blame God for our tardiness. Don't hold Him responsible for present conditions. There is no tomorrow, it always is, it always will be today. What are we doing today? How are we succeeding with the present task? We can only judge of our future strength by the power of enforcement we manifest in present day duties. Then let us cease our procrastination and make the work of today a success. There is not a law, not a precept in the whole scheme of redemption which is impracticable or inoperative. We must never forget, however, that we can never work in geometry until we have mastered the rudiments of mathematics.

Of all people we should not be narrow. The Lord has commanded us to "Seek ye out of the best books words of wisdom; seek learning even by study." We are also directed to "be instructed more perfectly in theory, in principle, in doctrine, in the law of the gospel, in all things that pertain unto the kingdom of God, that are expedient for you to understand; of things both in heaven and in the earth; things which have been, things which are, things which must shortly come to pass; things which are at home, things which are abroad, the wars and perplexity of nations, and the judgments which are on the land and a knowledge also of countries and of kingdoms." We should inform ourselves. Knowledge saves; ignorance to often damns.

The law of consecration, surplus, tithing, Word of Wisdom, the golden rule: all these are topics which demand our attention in the church. Without we must deal with the question of equality; the wage system, justice, competition, interest, trusts, etc. The man who is in touch with the spirit of the gospel will be able to solve these problems. Happy man will he be.

AS HE IS PURE.

Behold I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his works shall be.—Rev. 22:12.

He that testifieth these things saith, surely I come quickly.—Rev. 22:20.

among the many promises with which the scriptures abound, of the speedy return of our Lord, to "build again the tabernacle of David which has been thrown down," and to rule and reign in righteousness upon the earth. And yet nearly nineteen hundred years, as men reckon time, have passed away, and still, that earnest, longing cry, wrung from the heart of the "beloved disciple" on the lonely isle of Patmos, comes ringing down the centuries and is echoed in the hearts of His waiting ones today, "Even so, come Lord Jesus." How anxiously we scan the horizon of the years for the signs of His coming; and as we find them recorded all along the history of the christian era, and read them in the startling events of the present time, we lift up our heads and rejoice, knowing that our redemption draweth nigh.

But there are times when the "lamp of hope" burns dimly and we begin to say in our hearts, my Lord delayeth His coming, until reminded by the Comforter that His word is not yea and nay, but yea and amen, and he has said, "He that cometh, will come, and will not tarry." Then why this seeming delay? "The Lord is not slack concerning His promise as some men count slackness; but is long suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." (2 Peter 3:9.) We are prone to forget that His promises are always conditional, and that it is not the Bridegroom who tarries, but the bride has not made herself ready. Before our Lord can fulfill His promise to return, there must be a people prepared to receive Him. The bride, the Lamb's wife, must be adorned for her husband; "arrayed in linen pure and white, which is the righteousness of Saints." "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." (1 John 3:3.) To what hope does the apostle refer? To the hope that "when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." (v. 2).

What earthly bridegroom is willing to take a bride less pure than himself? And shall the spotless Son of God return to celebrate a marriage with a polluted bride? Surely not; for as the Apostle Paul has written (Eph. 5:27), "He gave himself for it [the church or bride], "that he might present it to himself a glorious church [or bride] not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." Where shall we look for this pure and spotless bride who is waiting for her Lord, "who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works?" (Tit. 2:14). "Children of the highest," are we looking for and hastening unto the coming of our Lord? Are we anxious for His coming? Then let us remember that it depends largely on ourselves how soon the bridegroom will return. Let us each examine ourselves —not our neighbors—and may we each be able to say with Bro. Paul, "I testify to you that I die daily," and in so doing, be able to "mount on stepping-stones of our dead selves, to higher things."

We rise by things that are under our feet;
By what we have mastered of good or gain;
By the pride deposed, and to passion slain,
And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.

It is only the pure in heart who have the promise that they shall see God; and we are admonished to follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord.

"For hereunto were ye called; because Christ also suffered, leaving you an example that ye should follow in his steps." "He that saith he abideth in him ought, himself, also to walk even as he walked." If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me. "These are they who follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth." Yes, the way is narrow and steep, and those who would reach the summit must climb. But see! Up yonder is a hand, a beautiful hand, bearing the prints of cruel nails, beckoning to us, and listen, the same gentle voice that stilled the waves of Galilee is calling, "Come up higher."

"Who does not choose the narrow track
With ever widening view, and freshening air, upon the mountain side,
And honeyed heather, rather than the road,
With smoothest breadth of dust and loss of view,
Soiled blossoms not worth the gathering and the wise
Of wheels instead of silence of the hills,
Or music of the waterfalls?"

The Apostle Paul tells us, we must "work out our own salvation, with fear and trembling;" but in the next breath assures us that "It is God that worketh in us both to will and to do of his good pleasure." So then the work of purifying unto Himself a peculiar people is co-operative, and we must labor together with Him for our own and others' salvation. We must crucify the flesh with the affections and lusts thereof, and be able to say with Paul (1 Cor. 9:27), "I keep under my body and bring it into subjection; lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should become a castaway."

Let us, dear Saints, endeavor to "purify ourselves as He is pure, then shall Zion awake and put on her beautiful garments, the Bridegroom will come and will not tarry, and all of this weary waiting, labor and unrest shall cease forevermore.

"Build thee more stately mansions,
O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea."

Yours for Christ and His church,

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. GURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as mothers of our character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be glad to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

The Children Are Long Away.

I set here, in the evening, by the old-time fireplace—
I see the firelight flicker—lighten' my wrinkled face;
An' I say, I say to the old man—as I've said for many a day—
"The children have left us lonely—the children are long away!"

Well, he gives me a world of comfort—
"stretches" his chin gray hair;
An' he says: "The flowers are bloomin' still, an' the birds sing everywhere!"
But I feel the teardrops fallin', an' ever I sigh and say:
"The children have left us lonely—the children are long away!"

The same sun rises each mornin' an' brightens the sky above—
The bright green on the meadow—the violets speak of love;
An' the love o' the Lord is with us in the darkness an' the day;
But ever I'm missin' the children; they are so long away!

We never can keep 'em with us—in the home their love has best;
When the birds are pledged, forever they leave the mother nest.
An' so, as the shadows gather, forever I sing an' pray:
The children have left us lonely—the children are long away!"
—Atlanta Constitution.

THERE is one thing we sometimes see in the face of the young that is sadder than the ravages of any disease or the disfigurement of any deformity. Shall I tell you what it is? It is the mark that an impure thought or an unclean jest leaves behind it. No serpent ever went gliding through the grass and left its trail of defilement more palpably in its wake than vulgarity marks the face. You may be ever so secret in your enjoyment of a shady story, you may hide ever so cunningly the fact that you carry something in your pocket which you purpose to show only to a few and which will perhaps start the laugh that, like a bird of carrion, waits upon impurity and moral corruption for its choicest feeding, but the mark of what you tell, and what you do, and what you laugh at, is left behind like a sketch traced in indelible fluid. There is no beauty that can stand the disfigurement of such a scar. However bright your eyes, and rosy-red your color, and soft the contour of lip and cheek, when the relish of an impure jest creeps in, the comeliness fades and perishes, as lilies in the languor of a poisonous breath from off the marshes. I beg of you, dear girls, shun the companion who seeks to foul your soul with an obscene story or picture, as you would shun the contagion of small-pox. If I had a daughter who went out into the world to earn her bread, as some of you do, and anyone should seek to corrupt her purity by insidious advances, I would get down on my knees and pray God to take her to Himself before her fair, sweet innocence should sully under the breath of corruption and moral death. Nobody ever went to the devil yet by one big bound, like a tiger out of a jungle or a trout to the fly; it is an imperceptible passage down an easy slope, and the first step of all is sometimes taken when a young girl lends her ears to a smutty story or a questionable jest. Then let me say again, and I wish I could borrow Fort Sheridan's bugle to blow it far and wide, that every girl might hear; close your ears and harden your hearts against the insidious advance of evil. Have nothing to do with a desk-mate or with a comrade who seeks to amuse or entertain you with conversation you would not care to have "mother" hear.

MARTHA EVERTS HOLDEN.

Forgive as You Would be Forgiven.

I do not give this as my belief, though it might be an innocent imagery, but one thing is certain, many marriages might be much happier than they are if there were about them more common sense and a simple obeying of the words of the Master.

I have been looking back over my own married life to see if I could give you anything that would be helpful to you. I was a very imperfect woman, an imperfect girl when I married, very impulsive, and I knew very little of self control, but I can see clearly now that I did practically believe some things that Christ said. One was, "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed," and "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." So I knew absolutely that if I did not forgive I simply shut the door of heaven in my own face! And with all my faults I made a resolution in my early married life that I would never go to sleep without asking forgiveness if I had in any way hurt my husband's feelings, and this I kept up for a lifetime.

I am sick at heart with all I know to day of unhappiness where there is no need of unhappiness. The words of Saul, "I have played the fool," will yet be used by many a man and woman who are simply playing the fool in trifling with what is so tremendously vital to all their earthly and eternal interests.—Margaret Botome in The Ladies' Home Journal.

CHURCH FINANCES.

Among the necessary things to success in our work is a proper financial standing. We must keep the tithe and offering fund fully up to the line of progress in other departments or we cannot hope for an ultimate triumph in anything. This means that every member must proceed at once and cast in his "mite" or "of his abundance as the Lord has blessed him" and thus have a united effort in the church temporal interests.

The extension of gospel preaching, the gathering in of larger numbers of people, the "building up and establishing" of the church of Christ, all make new demands upon the body, requiring renewed efforts and energies on the part of the membership in order to meet the emergencies incident to the new condition of things.

It will hardly be necessary to stop to argue the matter as to whether a largely increased ministerial force means a greater demand upon the tithe and offering fund; that an increased membership calls for extended lines of organization and special preparation of the youth and middle aged of the church for carrying on the work; and that the growth and planting of the work calls for additional "helps and governments" for its protection. The larger the growth of the body, the greater necessity for activity on the part of every member to avoid disease, decay and death. It can hardly be expected then that the time will ever arrive in the work of God that place and favor will be found for the indolent or slothful. Name and place in the church of Christ means activity, duty, watchfulness and earnestness that we become not dead branches.

The Lord has promised us plenty and to spare, together with peace and comfort in Him if we are thus alive to our respective duties in His cause. His promises will never fail if we will rely upon them and move forward. "Then let us work while the day lasts."

1. Have we made diligent settlements in our tithes and offering account? If not, let us begin and look out the bishop or bishop's agent in our respective districts and adjust them at once.

2. The duty we owe to the educational branch of our work should be discharged in a diligent way. Last year we asked for one thousand names at $25.00 each, to cancel the college indebtedness and put our educational work in proper shape. While we have the number of names possibly, or more, yet we have not the number for the $25.00 each, but lack at least one-half the amount. Special subscription lists are being sent out to complete this work. Your earliest attention is called to this. I am anxious that the full lists should be completed by the first of July next so that I may have no trouble or anxiety over this part of the work after my departure to the British Isles. It is hoped then, that every member will send in his or her subscription either directly to this office or to the bishop's agent in their district, stating the amount they will give during the present year for the canceling of the college debt.

Let us have your name and the amount first. Then you can send in the money when you are ready to do so later. The sooner the money is sent, the sooner the debt will be paid and all interest stopped, hence the payment part should also be attended to as soon as practicable.

It is with full confidence in the work of the truth and in all Saints that this hasty appeal is sent out in the hope of an early response from each and all.

Ever confident in the triumph of the Lord's work,
E. L. KELLEY,
Presiding bishop.

Address to Saints of Lamoni Stake.

Editor Ensign:—The following address to Saints of the Lamoni Stake was prepared and adopted by the joint action of the high council and bishopric of said Stake. It was also ordered by the joint council that copies of the same be sent to Saints Herald and Zion's Ensign with request that they give it space in their publications.

RICHARD J. LAMBERT,
Sec. Stake High Council.

To the Saints of the Lamoni Stake, Greeting:—The Lamoni Stake having been organized in conformity with the late revelation, and a presidency, high council, and bishopric having been chosen, we deem it due the Saints to acquaint them with our understanding of the present needs and duties.

Believing that questions of grave import to the church will naturally result from such an organization, we feel that there should not be undue haste in forming definite lines of action.

The work before us is evidently a preparatory one and in its inception, and we believe the Saints should make an earnest effort to reach a higher plane of individual righteousness. As the Saints continue to rise in spirituality the law can and will be more effectually placed in operation. In our opinion, the first and most important need is a special effort to bring about this condition; and we feel prompted under existing conditions to labor to that end, to the fullest extent of our ability.

With respect to the question of consecration, we shall hold ourselves subject to developments and the leadings of the Spirit, feeling assured that the Lord will direct aright.

We disapprove of any attempt upon the part of anyone to take advantage of a possible gathering within the limits of the Stake, by speculation on the prices of real estate.

We believe that in cases of difficulty arising in branches, the advice and counsel of the Stake presidency should be sought before resort to elders' courts is had.

Any person wishing advice or counsel should feel free to consult the Stake officers, either personally or by correspondence. Questions appertaining to temporal affairs should be referred to the Stake bishopric; those relative to spiritual matters and points of government to the presidency of the Stake.

As soon as practicable, the Stake presidency will give such personal assistance to the several branches as may be possible under prevailing circumstances. We caution the Saints against undue zeal, hasty conclusions, unjust and unnecessary criticisms, and advise patience, forbearance, prayerfulness, and a more diligent study of the latter day revelations, that a better knowledge of the Lord's will may prevail.

We feel encouraged and confident in the assurance that God's work is moving forward; and if diligent and faithful, sufficient light will be given us to meet every emergency. To this end let us unitedly and prayerfully work.

In bonds of peace,
JOHN SMITH,
President of Stake.
RICHARD J. LAMBERT,
Secretary Stake High Council.
WM. ANDERSON,
Bishop of Stake.

Railway Clergy Permits.

In answer to queries from some not acquainted with action connected with issue of clergy credentials, notice is hereby given that promptly at the close of each General Conference all General Conference appointees to missionary labor are indorsed to the Western, Southwestern, Trans-Continental, and Central Passenger Associations—all of the associations that issue clergy permits; also that said associations are furnished with lists of names, addresses, and territory of all missionaries in charge. Ministers making application will therefore find their applications duly covered by indorsement of the church secretary.

All besides General Conference appointees who make application should apply to their missionaries in charge for indorsement, in harmony with established rule.
R. S. SALLYARDS,
Church Secretary.
LAMONI, Iowa, May 10.

Southwestern Mission.

The attention of missionaries appointed to labor in the Southwestern mission is called to the following appointments of missionaries in charge of fields of labor, as made by Bro. H. O. Smith, missionary in charge of the mission, and who is confined to his home by sickness.

Texas, Bro. T. J. Sheppard; address, Oklaunion, Texas. Oklahoma and Indian Territory, Bro. Hubert Case; Okarobe, Oklahoma. Arkansas and West Louisiana, Bro. W. S. Macrae; Blendsville, Missouri.

Those appointed to said fields will report to the brethren in charge, and on the first day of July, first day of October, first day of January; and first day of March, promptly; that those in charge may report to the missionary in charge on the tenth day of the months named.

JOSEPH SMITH, Pres.
For H. O. Smith, Missionary in Charge.
LAMONI, Ia., May 15.

Besides husband and daughter, five brothers, five sisters, two half brothers, and one step-sister survive her. She was a devoted wife and mother, a faithful, consistent Saint, and has gone to rest from her labors in the Paradise, to come again when the Savior shall come with all His Saints. Funeral from the Saints' church, Independence, Missouri, Sunday, May 5th, at 1 p. m. Sermon by Elder Joseph Luff.

BLUES
Ever have them? Then we can't tell you anything about them. You know how dark everything looks and how you are about ready to give up. Somehow, you can't throw off the terrible depression. Are things really so blue? Isn't it your nerves, after all? That's where the trouble is. Your nerves are being poisoned from the impurities in your blood.
AYER'S Sarsaparilla
purifies the blood and gives power and stability to the nerves. It makes health and strength, activity and cheerfulness.
This is what "Ayer's" will do for you. It's the oldest Sarsaparilla in the land, the kind that was old before other Sarsaparillas were known.
This also accounts for the saying, "One bottle of Ayer's is worth three bottles of the ordinary kind."
$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.
Write the Doctor.
If you have any complaint whatever and desire the best medical advice you can get, write to the doctor freely. You will receive a prompt reply, without cost.

PRICE, $1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

W. H. GARRETT, EDITOR.
J. W. LUFFE, BUSINESS MANAGER.

Make all remittances, and address all communications to ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Box B, Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

New subscriptions can begin at any time. If possible to avoid it, never send silver as it is liable to wear through the envelope and be lost. Always give the name of the post office to which your paper is sent or we can not find your name on our lists.

When desiring your address changed, give both the old and new address. Papers will be discontinued one month from the time subscriptions expire, unless ordered continued.

In making remittances, money orders are preferable for they are absolutely safe. If you can avoid it, do not send coin or stamps. Canadian stamps are an entire loss, and Canadian currency is only worth ninety cents on the dollar to us, for that is all we can get for it at the banks.

Letters should be addressed, and orders and drafts made payable to

THE RECOMPENSE.

Results are of the utmost importance in the life of every one. Theories may be, and often are, beautiful in contemplation; they may even be found useful when founded upon correct principles, as conducing to methodical work in reaching a desired end. But it is the ending, the final results of the effort made and the work wrought, by which the value of both theory and work is to be determined. One thing is certain, whatever may have been the motive, however earnest and sincere the effort in that which has been sought to be accomplished, the reward will be governed by the results reached according to the laws appertaining to that work. Spiritual development and understanding cannot be attained by devoting one's efforts in the domain of politics; a knowledge of political affairs will alone follow such a course; it is the natural consequence of the procedure and none would expect it to be otherwise. A selfish nature allowed to dominate and control one's life, will blind the judgment to the rights of others, and to the demands of justice in their behalf; more than that, it blinds the comprehension of the individual himself to the displeasure and disfavor with which such a nature is regarded by the "Judge of all the earth." Selfishness is so entirely foreign to the nature of Deity that the heavens will neither own it nor give it place, and it remains for one or two other powers to claim it, the flesh or the devil, with the honors pretty evenly divided as to the rightful claimant.

On the other hand, the fruitage of a faithful, consistent life, devoted to the service of God, is fully as distinctively marked; and while individuals thus influenced, are not often a success from a worldly standpoint, and they do not often reach places of eminence in state or national affairs, nor are they generally known for the immense wealth they possess in the goods which are accounted in this life of most value, yet if everyone could observe the record in the eternal world, and be permitted to scan the accounts which are so rigidly and accurately kept in the heavenly archives, the success of some of these faithful ones would be seen to be marvelous and grand. But there are also evidences of the approval thus gained by these noble men and women, the results of which are not confined to eternity. A faithful service to God is also service to humanity, and a good deed performed in ministering to the necessities of another will usually receive grateful recognition from the one benefited, as well as divine approbation. No satisfaction is so complete as the evidence that one's efforts have the sanction of the Most High, and when that is received, it is most encouraging as well as desirable. It is, too, a result for the pleasure of which we do not have to wait until eternity comes ere it is realized. It is, and may be, often enjoyed by the faithful child of God in his every day experience.

Men and women to be successful in a secular work must, and do, have an end in view, to the accomplishment of which, thorough, efficient, methodical and diligent effort must be employed if it is attained. We see this being performed in different directions every day, and we see success crowning such effort; but this result is only possible because good business principles are conscientiously adhered to and followed. What can be more certain, if thorough, efficient, methodical and diligent work along lines laid down for our guidance by the Almighty, followed with conscientious and scrupulous exactness, than that we shall attain the results to which such efforts are entitled—eternal life in the celestial kingdom of God? Nothing is more absolutely certain than this result; why not then make a practical, continuous application of these rules, especially as encouragements given as progress is made, that we are pursuing the proper course? If we do this, we need have no concern about the ultimate, leaving us to devote our energies in the ever PRESENT; doing well the duty next to us every hour, and we may be assured that the results will be more than we probably anticipate, and all that we can desire.

AN EPISTLE.

To the Officers and Members of the Independence Stake; Greeting:—

Having been called and set apart by the church to preside over this Stake, an institution having before it a wondrous and prophetic future, we exhort that we each and all so conduct ourselves in humility, prayerfulness, wisdom and diligence in all duties and opportunities which time and circumstances may develop in God's wisdom for us, that we may be approved for our faithfulness under the spirit of our calling, as officers and members of this center stake, of whose future so much has been written and spoken; and to obtain so great a privilege, an inheritance of those promises, must mean a cultivation of that wonderful mainspring and fountain of every christian grace and success, a pure heart; for sooner or later—and we believe the time is very near at hand—Zion, and they who will successfully abide and become her inhabitants, will be the pure in heart; as declared in Doctrine and Covenants 94: 5, "Therefore verily thus saith the Lord let Zion rejoice for this is Zion, THE PURE IN HEART."

Evidently our final success, under God's blessing, must lie along not merely theoretical lines, but eminently practical ones; seeking, as individuals, cleanness of thought and conduct, becoming known for moderation, mildness, temperance, long suffering, patience and kindness; all of which are the fruits of the Spirit of God, and without which we cannot abide His coming. If, therefore, we desire an inheritance here, we may as well begin at once, in "dead earnest," their cultivation. The Spirit of God will not always strive, and if we fail to make a serious and continued effort, the Lord will not long permit us to cumber the ground, or to hamper His work; but in His own way, and by agencies directly spiritual and higher than human, will scatter abroad those who persistently fail to make the effort to meet this requirement.

The Ruler of all the earth will do right, and they who will seek a dwelling place in the midst of Zion and her stakes, will be required by Him to be humbly and consistently trying so to do. "Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect" (Matt. 5: 48), means, as we understand it, simply an application to our individual life and actions, of God's law as revealed concerning the government of our lives.

As to the family: We advise the appointment in each home of an altar of prayer in the morning, as often as practicable, and always at night. If the father is away, the mother should take the lead, and if both be absent, some other member of the household should be instructed to take the lead. In family, as in public prayers, we advise the application of our Savior's instruction and example, simplicity, directness, earnestness and brevity; not wearing our children or friends with that which is the very opposite of His advice and command—long prayers.

We advise also the careful training and education of children, that they may become useful members of society and the church; that parents shall use special care regarding their associates, keeping them off the streets after nightfall; and to this end they should make home as attractive to the young as it is possible for them to do.

Branches of the Stake: With the exception of the branch at Independence, over which we have direct charge, our duties are purely advisory; except so far as general Stake laws apply to branches, and where, by request of a president of a branch, we are called upon to assist in any way or where laws which ought to govern in branches are being neglected or ignored: in such cases it will be our duty to set in order and rectify the omission. But usually, where branch officers have the good of the whole at heart, even this may be done in an advisory way.

General priesthood of the stake: We hereby give notice that a report will be expected from every one holding license to act in any ministerial capacity (except those laboring under missionary appointment who are required to report to the missionary in charge) at each Stake conference, the first of which will be held at Holden, Missouri, September 21st and 22d, next. All reports should be in the hands of the Stake secretary, Bro. D. Robert Winn, 2306 Bellefontaine street, Kansas City, Missouri, by September 10, 1901, to enable him to properly arrange them for conference.

Being in a measure responsible to God and His church for the spiritual well-being of the Stake, we feel that we cannot afford, from mere sympathy, to countenance, without good and sufficient reasons being given therefor, any neglect of so important a matter as the non-performance of ministerial duties on the part of any. We herein state it our opinion that only sickness or advanced age can be a legitimate excuse for at least a reasonable performance of the duties of any office; unless it may be some employment which demands the individual's time every day, including Sundays; but even in such case he can report to the conference his situation and interest, and by his consistent life and conversation, bear the fruit of a good and loyal member of the church. Otherwise, in our opinion, instead of it being a lack of kindness and charity to refuse to sustain such men, we believe it to be the highest expression of charity and sympathy, not only for them, but for the body, whose well-being and advancement their influence may be retarding, for the conference to remove from their shoulders, at least in some degree, a responsibility they fail to honor, and by which a hurtful example is manifested before the membership and the world.

Wherefore, now let every man learn his duty, and to ACT in the office in which he is appointed, IN ALL DILIGENCE. He that is slothful shall not be counted worthy to stand, and he that LEARNS NOT HIS DUTY, and SHOWS HIMSELF NOT APPROVED, shall not be counted worthy to stand.—D. & C. 104: 44.

See also Sec. 58: 14.

As the local work and conditions develop, new duties, responsibilities, and requirements will become apparent; but to be binding upon us they will and must be in strict harmony with the highest principles of civil and religious liberty, and the highest educational development, physically, mentally, morally, and materially, agreeing always with the three standards, the New Testament, Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants.

For a time, for reasons which only eternity will reveal, a ministrations of suffering seems to have place in present preparations for future bliss; and while deep in our nature may lie reasons why, and we only may learn complete obedience by the things which we suffer, yet even affliction may become, in God's hands, a ministry for our future good. But as a rule it is evident from promises abounding to His people, that He is willing for us to learn along pleasanter paths if we will. Though if, through no fault of our own, we become the pilgrims of sorrow and affliction, let us not lose courage, as we share a noble companionship, even that of God's royal Son, who was "a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief," and finally, when the mists have rolled away, God will stand revealed before us in the triumphs of His perfect government. Then, if not before, will be answered every question of the soul, and if we, even through the darkness of pain and adversity, have proven loyal to Him and His law, how great our heritage.

We would advise that throughout the Stake, meetings be promptly opened on time, and that we may keep faith with the people who attend, promptly closed on time also. We advise holding branch business meetings quarterly, instead of monthly, and would urge the avoidance of any business which can possibly lead to discussion, in any meetings appointed for public worship. In our judgment, the holding of business sessions on the Lord's day should be entirely avoided, except so far as relates to the granting or receiving of letters of removal, or receiving members on baptismal certificates or other evidences of membership, which may properly be attended to at the close of any prayer or testimony meeting, so that none may be deprived of their privileges. If it becomes apparent to the president of the branch that there is special business which should not wait the regular meeting, a special meeting may be called, recognizing the rule, that no other business, other than that for which the special meeting is called, shall be transacted. We advise a careful study of the book of "Rules of Order and Debate," by those whose duty it may be to preside, and also on the part of all who expect to take part in the transaction of business. If the ministry and membership obtain a clear knowledge of those rules, adopted by the church for their government, it will make improbable confusion or disorder of any kind, as well as avoiding personalities and discourteous expressions, or rudeness of conduct. In the light of a fair understanding of these rules, such actions become, usually, an evidence of ignorance on the part of those so offending, and the offender may be called to order by the presiding officer or any member having sufficient knowledge of the rules of order to do so. Order being one of heaven's first laws, let us as a people, carefully cultivate a knowledge and practice of such law.

In accordance with the Lord's instruction to us, Doc. & Cov. 119:6, we advise that individuals, families and branches, shall encourage the cultivation of music, both instrumental and vocal, as this is pleasing to the Lord, and He evidently intends to make use of it as a mighty force for good in the presentation of gospel truth. With the same natural love for music which others have, what can there be added as incentive, higher than the advice and command of God?

So far as consistent with the will of the membership, we advise the administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper upon the first Sunday of each month, that a more general observance of that privilege may be had not only by those Saints whose close proximity to the branch enables them to take part in all meetings, but that also those in the outlying parts of each branch may come together on that day for that purpose, leading to a spirit of greater unity and action throughout the entire Stake, both in devotion, and the offering of our oblations to the Lord.

We also advise an early consultation and understanding with the bishop of the Stake, as every member should be on his books as a contributor to the advancement of God's work. Let us not fear some lurking danger, and therefore withhold; it is only a trick of the enemy of all progress to be constantly suggesting that "there are lions in the path" (Prov. 22:13). Let us go forward, and seek from those whose right it is to instruct along those lines, such counsel as will lead to a proper performance of our duty, and the work will become to us not only one of interest, but of real pleasure, when we find ourselves a working part of a great system, whose triumphs will be soon and sure, if we do our part.

Hoping to frequently meet with you, and seeking your prayerful and active co-operation for the success of the Independence Stake and of God's church and kingdom, we remain,

Your brethren in the one faith,
G. H. HULMES,
W. H. GARRETT,

ELDER A. H. PARSONS preached in Cleveland, Ohio, Sunday morning and Elder H. H. Robinson in the evening in the hall used by the Saints, 199 Superior Street. Bro. W. E. Kelley discoursed in the Temple at Kirtland both morning and evening. He will occupy at Akron, Ohio, next Sunday morning and evening; Bro. J. H. Lake at the Temple in Kirtland and Bro. Parsons in Cleveland. While there he is domiciled with Bro. and Sr. W. C. George, No. 69 Auburndale Street. Bro. Robinson left last Monday morning for Greenwood, New York.

THE PRESIDENCY of the Independence Stake being unable to reach all the membership by personal visits at once, have in this issue of the ENSIGN addressed an epistle to them, and ask for it a careful reading. A copy of this issue will be sent to the president of each branch in the Stake who is requested to have the epistle read to his membership, that a united and general effort may be made throughout the Stake to comply with the requirements of the advanced position now being taken.

As soon as practicable the various branches will be visited personally by one or more of the Stake authorities, to obtain an understanding of the needs of the work, and to become acquainted with the membership so far as possible. Let all work earnestly, wisely and diligently "for the accomplishment of the work entrusted to all."

W. A. TUDOR, Reese Mill, Indiana, in renewing for the ENSIGN, says:

I do not belong to the church, but hope to be inducted into the kingdom in time. There is no one to stand with me now but the God of heaven. I ask the prayers of the Saints in behalf of all the isolated ones including myself.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. Metuore probably sailed from San Francisco for his home, Society Islands, the early part of this week. Bro. and Sr. Burton will probably follow the latter part of July.

Bishop May is improving steadily, though still confined to his bed most of the time. He is quite weak and can only remain up a few minutes at a time. We hope to see him about again in a short time.

Bro. Mark White has again accepted a situation with Bro. George Bartholomew in his trained horses exhibition, and leaves this week to join him at Atlantic City, New Jersey, on the sea shore.

We understand Grandma Davison is standing the change from Independence to Colorado very well, and is maintaining her own as well as could be expected. We all miss Grandma's cheery greetings, and cordial receptions. May the fine air in her new home do much to restore her strength.

The Religio exercise tomorrow (Friday) night will be in the nature of a social and will be held at the home of Bro. and Sr. Wm. Bushnell, West Lexington street. Question cards have been issued, the answers to which will be found instructive; every member should be present on time.

Bro. S. O. Waddell knows from past experience that the ENSIGN ~~for~~ enjoy fruit, in season as well as out sometimes, and favored them with a donation of some very fine strawberries Monday. They were very poor keepers, however, for in a short time they had all disappeared, but not without appreciation of their qualities and Bro. Waddell's kindness.

Bishop E. L. Kelley left for his home Tuesday morning. He is not in the best of health, but it is hoped that his ocean voyage to and from England will greatly benefit him, as well as his sojourn among our good brethren in "Britains fair Isle." He, in company with Bro. G. T. Griffiths will probably sail from Boston, Massachusetts, in the Saxonia, the first part of August.

Bro. J. C. Foss arrived home Monday night. He says he has been very busy since he entered northeast Kansas district. Preached several times at Neta-waka, where one or more were to be baptized on Sunday 26. He spoke last week several times to the interesting people of Fanning. Next Sunday, June 2d he will be at Scranton, near Topeka. He also says Bro. M. T. Short has many warm hearted friends in northeast Kansas, where he labored last year.

Bro. J. D. White left for St. Louis, Missouri, Sunday night in response to a telephone message requesting him to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Howard Molyneux at 2 p. m. Monday. The early demise of this gifted young Saint, whose life was so full of promise of much usefulness, has disappointed the hopes of many concerning his future. It comes as an especial heavy blow to the mother, as less than a month since, his sister, a fine young lady of 19, was laid to rest. May the Lord bestow that comfort which alone belongs to Him.

Twin boys were born to Bro. and Sr. Allen, son-in-law and daughter of Bro. and Sr. Thomas Hamilton, Tuesday morning, but did not survive except for a short time. They were buried in the afternoon Tuesday, Elder G. H. Hulmes being in charge. The young couple have the sympathy of the Saints in their loss.

Last Sunday, "Rally Day," was an enjoyable occasion. The attendance was not quite so large as on previous occasions, but the services were pleasing and profitable. Bishop E. L. Kelley occupied as speaker morning and evening to the edification of the hearers. The program rendered by the choir was a very pleasing feature, and was appreciated by the audiences. The afternoon service was a good one, fairly well attended and fully occupied. The announcement of the death of Bro. Howard Molyneux, of St. Louis, brought forth expressions of sympathy for those bereaved, and many useful thoughts regarding the uncertainty of the time allotted for each to accomplish the work assigned them here were expressed.

Bro. John D. White, as a result of missionary efforts in the neighborhood of the terminus of the Argentine, Kansas, electric railway, baptized two promising people last Sunday. The use of the Dunkard church building for alternate service, has been secured and regular services, probably in charge of Bro. W. H. Pease who has been assisting there, will be held. They have quite a lively and successful Sunday School in operation. The tent will be moved to Ivanhoe this week, and Bro. B. J. Scott will be given charge there. The missionary work is moving nicely in the Kansas Cities, and is being planted upon a good substantial basis, under Bro. White's supervision.

Bro. John W. Luff, who has been with the ENSIGN since its first inception, working up by faithful attention to business to the position of foreman under Bro. Wm. Crick, and to Business Manager, since becoming church property, has resigned, taking effect June 1st, to accept a position as bookkeeper and shipping clerk in Bro. Wm. Crick's foundry. Bro. Luff is an active attentive and accommodating young man, and will make a valuable acquisition to Bro. Crick's force. We wish for him abundant success. He will be succeeded by Bro. C. Edward Miller, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, a practical, energetic young business man, now in charge of the Wrigley Printing Company 215, 217, 219 East Robinson street, Allegheny, Pennsylvania, one of the prominent printing houses of that city, having plants in New York City, Cincinnati, Canton and Akron, Ohio. He is an active elder also, being president of the Pittsburg branch, and while he will be much missed in that capacity his sphere of usefulness will be largely increased in his new field, and his transfer therefore will not be a loss to the church. Bro. Miller will not arrive until June 10th, but Bro. Luff has arranged to give part of his time until Bro. Miller's arrival to the ENSIGN.

LAMONI, IOWA.

"Forget not the field where they perished."

President Joseph Smith delivered the memorial address announced, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. The main floor of the auditorium was filled, and about one hundred occupied the gallery. The members of the G. A. R. post of this city were present, and the sermon is very highly spoken of.

Afternoon prayer and testimony meeting was only fairly well attended yesterday, near the close of the meeting the Saints became quite active in bearing their testimonies, but in justice to other meetings, the exercises closed on time. If we could only begin where we left off at previous meeting we could have so much more enjoyment. Will we try?

President Joseph Smith also delivered the Baccalaureate sermon of Graceland College last evening at the church. The speaker read from Luke 14:28, "For which of you intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first and counteth the cost?" in connection with Prov. 24:27, "Prepare thy work without, and make it fit for thyself in the field; and afterwards build thy house." Thoughts upon resources at command and suggestions upon material moral and spiritual building were drawn from these texts. The closing words to the class were, "Only that which is good will abide," "build well."

The sixteen graduates are, Eloction, Florence Mabel Horner, Lamoni Iowa; Preparatory, Floye Josephine Lewis, Denver, Colorado; commercial, H. S. Gamet, Pisgah, Iowa, W. T. Ross, Mound City, Missouri, R. A. McCord, Defiance, Iowa; and John Howard, M. M. Chivington, Samuella Bailey and George Clapp, of Lamoni; shorthand department, Clara Lasley, St. Joseph, Missouri; Maud Gunsolley, Webster City, Iowa; Willie Mason, Lamoni, Iowa, LeRoy Parker, Smithland, Iowa, Myrtle Gunsolley, Pickering, Missouri, and Carl Sheen, Highmore, South Dakota.

Elder H. A. Stebbins preached memorial sermon at Davis City, Iowa, on Sunday, and Elder J. W. Wight at Pleasanton. Elder R. S. Salyards spoke at Greenville, and Neph Sniively at Evergreen. Apostle J. R. Lambert has been holding services at Lucas, Iowa, the past week.

The first stake conference will be held at Cleveland, Iowa, Saturday and Sunday.

Elder D. C. White leaves this week for his mission field Nodaway district, he has been delayed on account of sickness at home.

Children's Day will be observed the second Sunday in June. The entire day will be given up to the Sunday School. In the morning at 11 o'clock the primary children will give their exercises. The ordinance of the blessing of children will be attended to at this service. The afternoon and evening will be occupied by the intermediate and senior members of the school. Baptism will occur at 4:30 in the afternoon and confirmation take place in the evening.

Bro. and Sr. E. H. Tordoff were made happy over the advent of a little son in their home, May 17.

Bro. Charles Lake, assistant manager of the Herald office has been smiling very generously the past week. The secret of it is Sr. Lake was expected from the east the latter part of the week. She arrived.

Bishop E. L. Kelley went to Independence Saturday, where he was announced to preach yesterday. He was accompanied by Sr. M. E. Ronat, of the Saints' Home.

There will be a recital at the church Wednesday evening by the elocution department of Graceland College.

On Thursday evening will occur the commencement exercises of the elocution department of Graceland, assisted by the musical department, Mrs. Ruth L. Smith and Mrs. Audencia Anderson instructors.

The students of Graceland College gave a reception to the faculty Friday evening, May 24th.

Friday morning, May 31st at 9:30, commencement exercises will be held at Graceland College chapel.

Memorial service will be held at the church Decoration Day; a Rev. Harper will address the audience at 2 p. m.

Sr. Bush and family went to St. Joseph, Missouri, last week where Bro. Bush has employment; they will reside there in the future.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 531 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Sr. Elder Bell, Sr. Cooke, Bro. Gibbens and a number of others are on the sick list.

Bro. T. J. Bell, late of Lamoni, stopped with us a few days recently, en route to his mission field in Indiana.

The past week we were apprehensive regarding the condition of Bro. Howard Molyneux. Friday evening at the Religion lesson only was gone through with and then followed a season of prayer for him. Saturday, at 12:30 p. m. after much suffering his spirit went back to God who gives and taketh away. Sorrowing friends crowded our church edifice Monday afternoon, where nature and art had done all possible to beautify and embellish in his honor to pay a last tribute of love. Bro. John D. White of Independence was in charge of the services, assisted by Bro. Bell. The funeral cortege wended its way to beautiful Bellefontaine cemetery where the last simple rites for the dead were ministered. Offerings of beautiful flowers entirely covered his last resting place; and as we turned from that grave side so eloquent with its burden of flowers bespeaking the life beautiful, of immortality, our trust was in God, who gave His Only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life.

Bro. Bell addressed the Saints morning and evening, Sunday, May 26th. He leaves Tuesday for his mission in Indiana.

Bro. Allen is at Nebo, Illinois, while Bro. Alfred White is at Troy; both busying themselves in the Master's cause.

Today is an anniversary of the great St. Louis cyclone.

ETTA M. HITCHCOCK.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The services Sunday were fairly well attended. Bro. H. O. Smith, who was the speaker of the morning and evening, delivered a very forceful discourse on the subject of baptism in the evening which was highly appreciated.

Bro. Lou Hardman was baptized Sunday afternoon by Elder M. Shaw and confirmed by Elders R. Archibald and M. Shaw at the social service.

Sr. Gault, of Lamoni, Iowa, is at the St. Joseph hospital taking treatment for her eyes; an operation was performed on Thursday last and she is doing nicely; her daughter Sr. A. J. Moore, of Texas, is with her.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday: Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

Colorado has had considerable rain lately and Denver has its share, only not so severe as some other localities which have been visited with cloud bursts and severe storms. At present writing it is quite cool.

The little brick church, corner 22d and Arapahoe streets, has changed appearance quite materially of late; it has been calcimined and cleaned till it looks like new and is much more pleasant to meet in.

Elder James M. Stubbart arrived in the city Tuesday and remained over Sunday, then proceeded to the southwestern part of the state to engage in missionary work.

Elder A. M. Chase was delayed on account of washouts and stopped over one night in our city.

Sr. Estella Simmons has been very sick with pneumonia; but is some better at present.

One addition to the branch last Sunday by certificate of membership.

The services Sunday were pretty well attended; preaching both morning and evening by Elder J. M. Stubbart.

The Religion program was very interesting; more interest is being taken in the Religion work than ever before.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

MILLERSBURG, Ill., May 23.

Editor Ensign:—I am glad to report that I am slowly recovering from the effects of my recent sick spell, "small pox," and hope ere long to be able to be at my post and at work. Bro. J. M. Terry and wife are sojourning here at present with relatives. Bro. John is also recovering from a very severe sick spell.

The work here seems to be in a fair condition. Some seem to be interested and are, no doubt, among the thousands, whom, if they will but listen to this latter day message, it will cause them to think very seriously. And right here the power of exemplary, saintly lives, on our part, rings in with no uncertain effect. Bro. Terry and I expect to hold a few services here this week. May He, whose eyes are always upon us, with whom we have to do, now look to the harvest, waiting and waiting for the reapers. And with such an endowment of the Holy Spirit's power as we have never felt before, may we all go forward under the mandate of our Savior, and "Occupy till I come."

In bonds,
WILL E. LARUE.

HUNTSVILLE, Mo., May 27.

Editor Ensign:—I came into my mission field April 28th, going first to Bevier; then in company with Bro. J. A. Tanner, to Higbee, where we preached over two Sundays. The work is looking better at Higbee, many of the Saints who had moved away, are coming back. We came to Huntsville on the 13th, and on Wednesday following Bro. Tanner called a Saints' meeting and the Saints made choice of Bro. George Summerfield for branch president. We preached at Bro. Summerfield's house the rest of the week. On Sunday I had the pleasure of speaking at Mt. Hope Cumberland Presbyterian church, all seemed satisfied; one old timer said, "If that's the gospel you preach, it's all right."

On Monday night we opened up at Kimberly, Bro. Corthell having joined me on Saturday. We continued there till Saturday, the 25th, and yesterday, the 26th, we opened up at Hardister school-house: fine crowd, about one-fourth of the people unable to get in the house last night, much interest here; the congregation do most of the singing and bring lamps and lanterns; prospects very good in this place. We will continue here for a week, and hope to do much good. Ever in the hope of the gospel.

I am your brother,

Editor Ensign:—Bro. R. J. Parker and the writer are declaring the gospel message near this place, having erected the gospel tent at Bro. D. W. Zimmerman's store. Good attendance for this sparsely settled country is had. Bro. Parker arrived in his missionary field on the 13th, and he and I will operate the tent the coming season. We contemplate moving to the Arkansas Valley as soon as we get through at Burlington, Colorado, to which place we will move this week. If any of the Saints have relatives or friends living in the Arkansas Valley, whom they wish the missionaries to visit, please drop Bro. R. J. Parker, Independence, Missouri, a card giving name and post office.

Last Sunday, May 19, we buried Mrs. Ida B. Root in the liquid grave, from which she came forth to walk in newness of life. Sr. Root is a daughter of Bro. and Sr. Chas. Huddleston, of Fox, Arapahoe county, Colorado, and we are convinced will lend much aid in the conducting of Sunday School and church services in this branch. Her heart is devoted to the work. May the Lord raise up many such able and consecrated workers. The Colorado missionaries enter the religious arena this year with greater hope than last, and the expectation is that proportionately greater results may follow.

The Saints at Wray, Colorado, have about completed their church building. It is a credit to the town and especially the Saints. Much of the means necessary for its construction was contributed by outsiders. The Saints donated liberally of their finances and labor, making possible the building of this church, costing about $700.

There is some talk of building a sod church near this place, in the Highland Branch.

May the good cause speed on.

Dear Ensign:—Bro. J. T. Davis and I are laboring together in these Ozark regions. If any one thinks we are having a soft snap, come down and travel with us a few days. Walking in this country isn't all taken up. The railroads are few and far between, and about the only thing serviceable in our case would be a one horse shay. We are going to make a strong effort to get one, and if we don't, we will feel awfully disappointed. I don't believe God requires His servants, in this age of electricity and steam cars, to walk themselves to a frazzle. We don't consider ourselves too good to walk, but in this country it's such a slow method to realize fruit from the labor performed. Mr. Editor, if you know how sore our shoulders were this morning, no doubt you would sympathize with us, but we find plenty of sympathy down here among these people. A better hearted people never lived; they would divide the last piece of bread.

This country is so picturesque that one can hardly refrain from "writing poetry." Bro. Davis has already gained for himself quite a reputation. At present we are preaching at Beaver in a private house. There are a few cases of smallpox or we would go to the school-house. As I came through Springfield I spent a very pleasant time with the brethren and sisters there. Through the efforts of Bro. Sparling and Saints, they have a neat little chapel almost ready for dedication. We occupied several times on the square, in connection with local brethren, to large and interested crowds. Bro. Quinby, Duesler and Tillman assisted nobly in our street work. Let me say to Bro. Christy, that I met his brother at Republic and preached him a sermon from my steam engine chart. He seemed very much interested. Bro. Davis and I labor together harmoniously and have had some good times, considering the long walks we have made. We have labored some at Bruner, McFalls school-house, and John's Mills.

The Saints at John's Mills are not in working order, they need a visit from the district president to have matters adjusted. We hear some talk of disorganizing this branch, yet the branch has not been visited by a district officer for nearly a year. There is some good material in this branch, and if officers would do their duty, Bro. Davis and I might have done a good work there. Instead of disorganizing and tearing down, I think the better policy is to reorganize and build up. We would like to attend the conference at Woodside in June, but it will be impossible.

Yours for a one horse shay,
A. M. BAKER.

WILBURTON, I. T., May 30.

Dear Ensign:—We are still contending for the faith once delivered to the Saints.

Our hearts were made glad when Bro. L. D. Ullum, of Wheeling, West Virginia, came to our assistance and preached the restored gospel to us in the Saints' church. We had already made arrangements with the Indians (Lamanites) to bring all of our Sunday School to meet with the Indians' Sunday School, at Bolling Springs, eight miles west of Wilburton; so according to promise we all started for our drive, of eight miles, in wagons to meet with the Indian school, Bro. Ullum among the scholars.

About fifty of the Saints and children met, about forty-five or fifty of the Indians; so the Indian preacher (invited Bro. Ullum and I to preach to them. Bro. Ullum preached to them on the first principles of the gospel of Christ; it was a fine sermon. I then took the stand and preached to them on the Book of Mormon, showing them the history of their forefathers and telling them the great Spirit whom we call God, was going to bless them in the last days, and that they would become a fair and delightful people.

After I got through the Indian preacher arose and spoke in the Indian tongue; what he said we do not know, but after he was through he came to me and said, "We Indians want you to come again on the first Sunday in June."

My son was well supplied with Essays and Hopes, and we gave every Indian a paper of some kind, and there was a smile on every face when they received the Hopes. Now if the good Lord wills, we will meet again the first Sunday in June, when I will lecture on my Book of Mormon chart. May the Lord hasten the time when the pure in heart will be gathered home to Zion, in my prayer.

Your brother in Christ,
PETER ADAMSON, SR.

Dear Ensign:—We have many good people living down here in the hills and flints of the Clinton district, and many who have obeyed the gospel who are living a righteous life, enjoying the gifts and blessings of God, but there are also many yet to be converted to the true gospel of Christ, for which cause Bro. Willie Mannerling and the writer took their grips and started afoot on a missionary trip, like Abraham of old, knowing not whither we went, but we felt that the Lord was with us on our journey, as strangers in a strange land, without purse or scrip.

Some of the people treated us well, and shared their hospitality with us, while some were ready to let us know we were not welcome in their homes; but we were not surprised when we considered that the Lord Jesus Christ was not welcomed in many cities, and among many people, but the Spirit of God makes His servants bold and strong, or, in other words, enables them to endure toilsome journeys and hard persecutions.

Well, after considerable travel and talking the gospel as opportunity presented itself, we came to Weaubleton, a nice little town on the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad, where we secured the school house and opened up our meeting, where for two nights we had fair attendance and good interest, but Satan finally got his forces organized and then the people quit coming out: but we rejoiced to know we had the privilege of sowing some gospel seed, which is the word of God, and He has said that His word should not return to Him void. Now we have returned back to where the sunlight of God's gospel shines through His children. I go again tomorrow with Bro. J. Stephenson for a traveling co-laborer; hope the way may be opened up by the Lord to receive the word.

Praying for the welfare of Zion, I am your brother and co-laborer in gospel bonds,
C. P. WELSH.

NEW WINDSOR, Ill., May 16.

Editor Ensign:—The Saints here are still alive and hope to see some of the ministry with the district tent this summer. We are isolated but not alone, and I realize one thing, that a great many who live nearer church privileges, do not, and that is the blessing of being able to attend our own places of worship whenever we have the chance. I think that there is one sin that a great many of the isolated ones will not have to answer for, and that is, staying at home from church when we do have a chance to go. We have our trials, but we also have our blessings.

My hope and prayer is that my hands may soon be unclenched so that I may do more in the ministry than I have yet been able to do, and so that I may fulfill that which has been spoken of for me to do.

Your brother in the one hope,
J. W. ALLEN.

GOSPEL UNCHANGEABLE.

Sermon Delivered on Sunday Evening, July 15th, 1900, at the Saints' Church, Independence, Mo., By Elder I. M. Smith.

As a text, or a foundation for the remarks that I may make this evening, I shall call your attention to the second chapter of Revelation, the 25th verse. It reads as follows:

But that which you have already, hold fast till I come.

The unchangeability of the gospel is one thing for which the Latter Day Saints have earnestly contended from the beginning. It is one of the things that are taught so clearly in the New Testament that it seems to me there is no possible chance to evade the conclusion that the gospel was designed by the Almighty to be the same, until He should come, that it was in the beginning. All of its officers; all of its blessings, all of its ordinances, everything pertaining to it, were to remain the same until the coming of the Messiah.

The gospel that was taught by our Savior did not originate with Him, was not His. In John 7:16, He says:

"My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me."

If there was not another text in the Bible, on this, that one is sufficient. But there are a number of others which I wish to read; because in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established. In the 8th chapter of John 26th verse, the Savior says again:

"I have many things to say, and to judge of you: but He that sent me is true; and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of Him."

In John 8:28, He says again: "As my Father hath taught me, I speak these things;" showing that Jesus was not teaching on His own accord, but that He was speaking to the world what He had heard of His Father. And in John 12:48, 49, 50, He says emphatically:

"I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, He gave me a commandment what I should say, and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as He has said unto me, so I speak."

Now He says the Father gave Him a commandment, telling Him what He should say and what He should speak, and that He spoke just what the Father commanded, and what the Father commanded is life everlasting.

Again, in John 14:10, He says: "Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? The words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." In the 24th verse of the same chapter: "He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me."

Please note that the Savior was very careful to impress up on the minds of the people that He was speaking as directed by His Father; that He was not here to teach His own doctrine, to do His own will, nor to carry out His own purposes; but that He was here on a mission, sent by His Father. And in harmony with this is the prophecy found in the 55th chapter of Isaiah, 4th verse, where the Father is represented as speaking of the Son:

"Behold I have given Him for a witness to the people, for a leader and a commander to the people."

The Father had sent Him as an especial witness unto the people; and in harmony with this thought again are the words of the Savior to Pilate, as recorded in John 18:37, where He says:

"To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Everyone that is of the truth heareth my voice."

Here the Savior tells us that He was born and came into this world for the express purpose of bearing witness unto the truth. And He also says that "Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice." You remember He says in John 8:47,

"He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, because ye are not of God."

As He was here to bear witness unto the truth, and as He says, "Thy word is truth," that is, the word of the Father is truth, everyone that is of the truth should be willing to hear what He says, to accept His teaching, and to live by it. And, when He came to bear witness unto the truth and to speak what the Father commanded Him to speak, we are told that He gave the words of His Father unto His disciples.

Please read John 17:8, where He is praying to His Father, and praying for His disciples. He says, "For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me." And in the 14th verse He says, "I have given them thy word." Here we learn that Jesus was sent from His Father to teach the doctrine of His Father. His Father had given Him a commandment what He should say and what He should speak; and He says that He gave to His disciples the very identical words that His Father gave to Him; and He also says that His disciples had received the words which He spake, and had known that they came out from the Father, and had believed that the Father did send Him. And not only had He given them the words which His Father had given to Him, but we are told, in John 17:18, that He sent them out to preach just as His Father had sent Him: "As thou hast sent me into the world, so send I them into the world." And in John 20:21 the same thought is recorded: "As my Father hath sent me, so send I you." He said this to His disciples. So we see He gave to them the very words which His Father gave to Him, and then sent them, as His Father had sent Him; that is, gave them a commandment what they should say and what they should speak. And not only that, but in the commission as recorded by Matthew, 28:20, He says:

"Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Remember, now, He has given them the words which His Father had given Him, and sent them as His Father sent Him, and they are to teach the nations to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded." And not only this, but those words that He had commanded them to teach unto the nations are to be the standard or the law by which the nations are to be judged in the last day. For, in this 12th chapter of John, 47th and 48th verses, He says:

"And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not; for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day."

We find, then, that the gospel of Jesus Christ is indeed the power of God unto salvation, it is a savor of life unto life or of death unto death, as it is expressed elsewhere; that is, it will either save or condemn those who hear it. "The word that I have spoken the same shall judge him in the last day."

Now keep in mind that this was not the Savior's doctrine, in the sense of His being the author of it, but that it originated with God, the Eternal Father; that it was brought by the Savior who came as a special witness unto the people, and delivered unto His disciples; that they were sent out, as He had been by the Father, to teach it unto all nations; that the nations were to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you;" and keep in mind also that the word which He spake shall judge the world in the last day: either save or condemn.

I want to call your attention, next, to the fact that the apostles did teach this, and that the church of Christ abode in the doctrine that was taught by the Savior, so long as we have any record of it in the Bible. There were some in the church who did not abide in the doctrine of Christ; that we concede; but the church, as a church, its inspired teachers, apostles and prophets, taught the doctrine as it had been delivered to them by the Savior without any change. Turning to the 2d chapter of Acts and reading the 42d verse, we find this:

"And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers."

Turn also to the 11th chapter of 1st Corinthians, and the first verse, and read again:

"Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ. Now I praise you, brethren, that ye remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them to you."

Here we find that the church of God at Jerusalem continued in the apostles' doctrine; the church of God at Corinth remembers the teaching of the Apostle Paul, in all things, and they keep the ordinances as the apostle had delivered them unto them. In 1st Thess. 1:6, he says again:

"And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghost: So that ye were ensamples to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia."

In the 2d chapter, 14th verse, same book, "For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God which in Judea are in Christ Jesus." So, in Jerusalem, and in Corinth, and in Thessalonica, they all continued in the doctrine as it was taught by the apostles; kept the ordinances and remembered their teaching in all things.

So whether it was among the Jews or Gentiles, it was the same: they held to the gospel as taught by the Savior, and as it was committed to His disciples. And when the apostles began to write, it was the same; they exhorted the Saints to continue in that doctrine, and not to imagine, even for a moment, that some parts of it had been done away by Divine appointment, or that some parts of it were not essential to their salvation; but they were taught to obey that gospel, to live according to that teaching, abide in the doctrine of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The first text to which I shall call your attention on this, will be found in the 16th chapter of Acts and about the 4th verse. Speaking of Paul and Silas, the writer says:

"And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at Jerusalem."

Now, mind you, these apostles and elders had received from Christ the words which He had received from His Father; and they had been sent as He was sent, and had been told to teach the nations to observe all things whatsoever He had said. Hence when Paul and Silas went through the cities, they delivered to the churches the decrees which had been ordained by those inspired apostles and elders to whom Jesus had committed the words which He had received from His Father.

Turning next to Philippians 4:9, we hear this same apostle Paul teaching like this:

"Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you."

Now we certainly desire that the God of peace be with us. That, I trust, is the desire of every heart present this evening. Here are the conditions: we must obey that which had been embraced and taught by the apostle Paul, keeping it in its entirety. We must not conclude that part of it has been done away by Divine appointment, and that we are to do only some of the things which they had learned and received of Him; but we must do whatsoever he had done and taught, if the God of peace is to abide with us. And not only are we to do this, but we turn to 2d Thess. 2:15—and by the way, this entire chapter is a prophetic history of the great apostasy—in which the Apostle Paul tells the Saints that the day of the Lord shall not come except there come a falling away first, and the man of sin be revealed; and he goes on to tell what this man of sin will do: that he will sit in the temple of God and set himself forth as God, blaspheming against high heaven. And in the 15th verse he says, "Therefore," because these things will be; because there is to be an apostasy, a falling away from the truth; because they are to give heed unto seducing spirits and doctrines of the evil one; "Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word or our epistle." That is, whatever we have written, whatever we have preached unto you, hold that fast, because this anti-Christ power is going to teach contrary to the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. This anti-Christ power will sit in the temple of God and represent himself as God, trying to exalt himself above God; and because he is to do this, to teach contrary to the gospel, the apostle exhorts the Saints of God to stand fast and hold the traditions which they had received, whether they had received them by word, or in his letters to the different churches.

Again, in the 3d chapter, same epistle, and the 6th verse, he says, "Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ"—makes it very emphatic—"we command you," not in our own name, but "in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that you withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the traditions which he received of us." Here the apostle says that every man, every brother that would not walk according to the traditions which they had received, as taught by the apostles and elders, every brother that refused to do this, should be shunned; the saints were commanded to have no fellowship with him, because when they ceased to walk according to the traditions which they had received, it was accepted as proof that they were apostatizing from the gospel, departing from the truth which was able to make them free, which would deliver them from the power of darkness and translate them into the kingdom of God's dear Son.

In the 1st chapter of 2 Timothy and 13th verse, the same apostle says once more:

"Hold fast the form of words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus."

And in 2 Timothy 2:2:

"And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also."

There is no intimation here that the gospel will be changed; there is no intimation that some of the things which the apostles had been teaching then were to cease by divine appointment; but they were to be committed by Timothy to other faithful men, and they, in their turn, would teach the same things to others: it seemed that God had designed that it should go on and on, in its entirety, in its fullness, as long as men would accept it, and would walk in the light of the gospel of Christ. But when the time should come that they would teach the doctrines and precepts of men, and would not endure sound doctrine; when that time should come, then the Spirit of God would be withdrawn, and they would be led by those doctrines and precepts of men, and would be led by uninspired men; and their wisdom would be that of men, and the power that attended them would be the power of men, or from the opposite source from that from whence the gospel came. At any rate, it would not be from God. The power that would attend them would be anti-Christ in its nature, because they did not abide in those things which had been taught and practiced by the disciples of Christ, in the early days of the christian era.

Now turn next to the 1st epistle of John 2: 24, and we find this:

"Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning shall remain in you, ye also shall continue in the Son and in the Father."

Here we find that God had promised to the Apostle John that the saints would continue in the Son and the Father, upon condition that they would let that which they had heard from the beginning abide in them. We understand that that which they had heard from the beginning was the word of Christ, as the apostle says elsewhere, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly." And Jesus says, "If ye abide in me and my words abide in you." The word of Christ was what they had heard from the beginning, and the Apostle John says if it abide in you, ye shall continue in the Son and in the Father. In 2 John, 6th verse, he says again: "And this is love, that we walk after the commandment." Let us remember that, in 1 John 5: 3, He also says that the love of God is "that we keep his commandments." Here it is recorded, "And this is love, that we walk after his commandments." Well, John, what is His commandment? Listen. "This is the commandment, that, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it." The love of God, remember, is "that we walk after his commandment," and the commandment is "that, as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it."

Now, how long should they walk in that which they had heard from the beginning? You will remember that the Apostle Mark records it in his 1st chapter, 1st verse, "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God," and in the 4th verse, "John did baptize in the wilderness and preached the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins." That was the beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Now John says that this is the commandment, "As ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it." But how long are we to walk in it? Let us turn to our text and see. Here the apostle says, or the angel says to him—because it was the angel talking to him—the angel says, "But that which you have already, hold fast." How long, Lord, shall we hold fast to that which we have heard from the beginning, and that which we have already? Shall we hold that fast until the end of the first century? No, he doesn't say that. Shall we hold that which we have already, until the end of the second century? No, he doesn't say that. Shall we hold fast to that which we have already, until the apostles, and those upon whom they have laid hands, all die and pass away? No, it doesn't say that. But "that which ye have already hold fast till I come," is what the Savior says. Now, they were to walk according to that which they had heard from the beginning, and hold fast that which they had then until Christ comes. I see no possibility for the gospel to be changed, and I see no excuse for any man taking away from the words of God and teaching a part of the gospel for the whole of it. There is no excuse for this, if the statement or exhortation of the angel, as recorded above, is correct.

Now, what had they heard from the beginning? What did they have at that time? They had heard the gospel, the preaching of baptism for the remission of sins, the laying on of hands for the reception of the Holy Spirit. They had apostles then, they had prophets then, the gifts of healings, the gift of tongues, and the gift of interpretations; and they had angelic ministrations then, because it was an angel, here at this very time, talking with the Apostle John. They had all these things in the church at that time, and the angel says, "That which ye have already, hold fast till I come." Can you see any chance for a part of the gospel to be done away, while that exhortation stands on record? I confess that I see no excuse for a man to come along and tell us that a part of the gospel was to cease, by Divine appointment, especially as these things came from the Savior, the special witness sent from the Father, and were given by Him to His disciples, and they sent to preach it unto the nations, with the understanding that it would either save or condemn. The gospel, as taught by the Savior and His apostles, and as it was accepted by the church of Christ eighteen centuries ago, is to be the law by which you and I are to be judged; and the Lord commanded His church to teach, practice, and hold fast to that which they had heard from the beginning, that which they then had, until the Christ should come in the power and glory of His Father.

There is one more thought and that is, any man who would teach contrary to this, was not to be accepted as a teacher sent from God. John 3: 34 says: "He whom God hath sent speaketh the words of God."

Romans 16: 17 says: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple."

If they do not teach according to that which they had learned, that which they had heard from the beginning, the saints were told to avoid them, and know for a surety that they are not the servants of the Lord Jesus Christ.

In Galatians 1: 8 Paul says: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed."

"And in 2d John and 9th verse, he says:

"Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. And if there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him Godspeed."

We have now learned: First, The gospel of Christ, as it was taught by Himself and His apostles, was not His in the sense of His being the author of it; but it originated with His Father, and must, therefore, be the very best that infinite love, mercy and justice could suggest; the very best system of faith that infinite wisdom and infinite knowledge could devise; and the very best law for man's salvation and eternal perfection, that infinite power was capable of putting into execution.

Second, The Savior was sent from heaven, as a special "witness to the people," to preach this gospel, and to make provision for its being preached unto all nations.

Third, In making provision for the gospels being preached to all nations, the Savior chose twelve disciples, whom He called apostles, and gave to them the very words which His Father had given to Him.

Fourth, After the Savior had chosen and ordained the apostles, and had given to them the words which His Father gave to Him, He sent them out to preach this gospel, just as His Father had sent Him, telling them to teach the nations to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Fifth, The Savior told His apostles that the gospel which He had given to them and sent them out to preach, would save those who obeyed it, and condemn those who rejected it: that if any man rejected it, "the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him at the last day."

Sixth, While the apostles lived, the church of Christ in Jerusalem, in Corinth and in Thessalonica, continued "steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine" (Acts 2: 42), and kept the ordinances as the apostles "delivered them to you" (1 Cor. 11: 2), and we have no intimation of any change in doctrine, ordinances, blessings or power.

Seventh, The apostles, in their writings, as recorded in the New Testament, predicted that there would be an apostasy, that the people would get so that they would "not endure sound doctrine" (2 Tim. 4: 3), but would have a "form of godliness" and deny "the power thereof" (2 Tim. 3: 5); but they exhorted the Saints to continue in the things they had already learned, walk as they had heard "from the beginning," and hold fast that which they then had "till I come."

Eighth, And we have also learned, last of all, but not the least important of all, that if any man, or even an angel from heaven, should preach any other gospel than that which Paul had preached, or teach contrary to the doctrine "which ye have learned," that man or angel will be accursed; we are commanded to "avoid them," and not even bid them godspeed, for if we should bid them godspeed, we compromise the truth with error, and become partakers of their evil deeds.

And yet, with all this evidence from God's word staring them in the face, respecting the unchangeability of the gospel, the religious world brazenly asserts that the gospel of Jesus Christ has undergone a change; that we should not now teach as the Savior taught it; that we should not now preach the gospel as Paul preached it; and that ministers of today are at perfect liberty to teach "contrary to the doctrine" which the Saints of God eighteen centuries ago had "already learned." A serious accusation, did you say? I know it is, my friends, but I have tried it, and I doubt whereof I speak. If you doubt my word you can test the matter for yourselves. Just go out and preach to the religious world as the Savior did, "And these signs shall follow them that believe" (Mark 16: 17). Preach to them, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3: 5). Preach to them, as the Savior taught, that the Holy Spirit will "show you things to come," and that it will take of the things of God and "show it unto you." (See John 16: 13-15).

Preach to them as Peter did, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." (Acts 2: 38). Preach to them as Ananias did, "Arise and be baptized and wash away thy sins." (Acts 22: 16). Go out and baptize men and women into the church, and then lay your hands on them and pray for them that they may receive the Holy Ghost, as Peter and John did (Acts 8: 17), and as Paul did. (Acts 19: 6).

Go out and preach as did Paul, that the Spirit of God will give to one the "gifts of healing," to another, "the working of miracles," to another "prophecy;" to another "discerning of spirits," to another "divers kinds of tongues." (1 Cor. 12: 9, 10). Go out and preach to the people, "Follow after charity, and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy" (1 Cor. 14: 1). Preach to them as Paul did, "I would that ye all spake with tongues, but rather that ye prophesied." (1 Cor. 14: 5). "How is it, brethren? When ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation." (1 Cor. 14: 26).

Preach to them as Paul did, "Wherefore brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak with tongues." (1 Cor. 14: 39). Teach them as James did, "Is any sick among you, let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord, and the prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord shall raise them up, and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven." (James 5: 14, 15). Go out and tell the people as Paul did, "For these stood by me this night the angel of God whose I am and whom I serve, saying, Fear not." (Acts 27: 23, 24).

Tell them as John did, "And I saw the souls of those who were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, * * * and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years." (Rev. 20: 4). Tell them that angels came and delivered you from the power of the enemy as they did the apostles (Acts 5: 19), and as the angel delivered Peter (Acts 12: 7). Go and tell the religious world, as Paul did, that you "knew a man in Christ," who was "caught up to the third heaven," "caught up into Paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter." (2 Cor. 12: 2-4).

Yes, friends, go to the religious world and preach to them all these things, just as the Savior and His apostles did, and they will tell you that these things are all done away, that they are not for us, or are not essential, and that we really don't need them. Yet the Savior and the apostles so preached in their day and time, and they said, if men or angels preached any other gospel, taught anything contrary to what the Saints had "already learned," or brought "not this doctrine," that they should be accursed for so preaching; and that those who should fall in with them and bid them godspeed, would thereby become partakers of their evil deeds.

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." But remember that the Savior has said, "Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." (Mark 7: 7). Nothing but the gospel of Christ can save you, "for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." (Romans 1: 16).

I cannot see how anyone can afford to tell the people that some parts of the gospel were to cease by divine appointment. I cannot see why anyone should take the position that the gospel, in its entirety, with all of its ordinances and all of its gifts and blessings, should not be taught and practiced by the Saints of God now, as it was when the Savior was here, and as it was by His apostles and saints after He had ascended on high, after He returned to His Father.

"That which ye have already, hold fast till I come," is the language of the text; and as a people, I hope and trust that we will observe the admonition. Hold fast all the teachings of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and live by "every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." And may the Lord help us to do so, is my prayer, in Jesus' name.

HOME DUTIES.

ELDER T. A. PHILLIPS.

Editor Ensign.—I think I was at Wabash when I wrote you last; have been laboring on the north side of the Chatham district since last October conference, held at Chatham. I was at Appledore, Wallaceburg, St. Clair, Kimball, Wilkesport, Bear Creek, Petrolia, St. Thomas, London and Chatham, now Oungah or Grand Valley Branch. Have been doing the best I can for all that comes to my care, and have been kept busy; preaching has not been the busiest place, but in the home. The home work is to me the most neglected part of our work; church work in sewing circles, Religio, and Sunday Schools will not do the good that the father and mother can do in the home; we can neglect the home and go to the sewing circle, and our children running about as street Arabs. I can go to the prayer meeting and my children not cared for, and not even taught to pray. Again, some great church workers will go to the church work, in any of its departments, while at the same time the home is a bedlam of disorder and untidiness from top to bottom; the children's clothes unattended and faces unwashed, and if you should happen some time to ask where ma or pa was, ma would be at the Ladies' Auxiliary, prayer meeting, or Sisters' Sewing Circle, and pa at or in the lodge room smoking cigars and chewing tobacco, and many other things too numerous to mention. And father, mother, children, all on the church book. What would my readers think about this kind of work? I would say, would you not think the home training is lacking?

Some will wonder how it is some dear old brethren and sisters' sons and daughters have grown up so distant with the church, they do not join the church, and the question is asked, How is it, Mr. and Mrs. So and So, if your church is the right one, your sons and daughters join some other church besides the Latter Day Saints church, or some turn infidel, and different things their minds are turned to? Now, dear readers, to my mind this is the principle reason: Solomon said, "Train up a child in the way it should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." I believe this is right. Now how should he go? Jesus said there was but two, the right and the wrong, the narrow and the broad. See sermon on the mount, Matthew 7:13, 14; Proverbs 22:6; Titus 2d chapter; Colossians 3d chapter; Deut. 6:7; Ephesians 6:4; Nephi; Mosiah 2:8; Alma 16:23, 29; Doctrine and Covenants 68:4; Doctrine and Covenants 90:6, 7, 8, and many more could be added.

Where should this kind of work be done? Why, it's the home. The works of the church teach when to sleep, how to sleep, and when not to sleep; how to eat and what to eat; what not to drink and what to drink; the style to clothe ourselves and who should do it; what not to cook and what to cook, and whether to use tobacco or not to use it. God has told what books to use, books not to use; He has told us to stop fault-finding and do more praying; not only praying, but doing according to that which is written. How do I know what is written if I don't read in the home? I don't know what the preacher says is right except I search and see at home first; take no man's word but prove by the law and testimony; how will you know it if you don't get the standards to read.

Some say they are too poor, yet at the same time those same people can find money to buy tobacco, gum, candy, large and high feathers, and a host of other things, but cannot get the books of the church. A sister once admitted to me she had been in the church about twenty years but did not have the Book of Mormon in her possession, did not know anything about it, and still said she knew this work was true. If there are many such cases in the church as this, are they not violating the 83d section of Doctrine and Covenants 8th verse; we will quote it in full to see where the old church went astray.

"And your minds in times past have been darkened because of unbelief, and because you have treated lightly the things you have received, which vanity and unbelief hath brought the whole church under condemnation. And this condemnation resteth upon the children of Zion, even all; and they shall remain under this condemnation until they repent and remember the new covenant, even the Book of Mormon and the former commandments which I have given them, not only to say, but to do according to that which I have written, that they may bring forth fruit meet for their Father's kingdom, otherwise there remaineth a scourge and a judgment to be poured out upon the children of Zion; for, shall the children of the kingdom pollute my holy land? Verily, I say unto you, nay."

Again, section 32:3:
* * * "And ye shall remember the church articles and covenants to keep them."

The mother rocks or nurses the world for evil or good; how many mothers and fathers are there who know how to take care of their bodies as well as spirits? If father and mother don't know, how can those same fathers and mothers take care of those children intrusted to their care? The great majority of this world are getting ready for that terrible destruction spoken by Malachi the prophet, 4th chapter.

The well regulated home, according to the standards of the church, is what will make the church a mighty power in the earth; it's of no use, fathers and mothers, to leave your training to some one else; you must pray, you must teach your little ones to pray, and this is not all; read to them about the coming forth of this great latter day work; get them to read with you, sing with you, exhort with them, and this is not all; confess your faults to them when you make mistakes before them, get your children to do the same; never let a bad example pass their notice, but you atone for it before them.

Some may say, "I have no children, it does not mean me." Make up your mind it does mean you also, confess your faults one to another and pray for one another that you may be healed; and this is not all, after we have confessed to one another, confess it to the Lord and keep on doing it, till we have overcome. I hope we will do as bidden, come up higher.

Dear brethren and sisters, come to the Chatham district conference, held at Zone, town hall, June 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th. Come right and we will meet with God and all will be right. I wish to say I thank all the kind brethren and sisters and friends for their kindness to me in my visits with you this last year. I am now visiting the last branch in the Chatham district, and as far as I know, I have worked some in all the branches, more in some than others. May God bless His people everywhere, and He will, if we do His will; we shall grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth.

OUNGATE ONT., May 18.

FROM THE FIELD.

ELDER M. T. SHORT.

The large representation at the General Conference, along with the ardor, patience, civility, and, in fine, most every other good grace, and quality duly manifested, as well as the happy termination, and the speedy outgrowth of the organizing and setting in motion of the Independence Stake of Zion, are all bright links in the golden chain of my grateful memory. When I think of the unifying power of the Spirit; the growing confidence amid the brotherhood; the fixed and settled determination of the ministry; and the hearty concurrence and support of the membership, as also the good wishes of all observing friends to the cause, I feel to take aboard new courage, redouble my diligence, and "pull for the shore."

Having completed my share of a line fence between Elder J. D. White and myself on the 1st inst., I set out for my new field and charge, the following evening, and arrived here late in the afternoon of the next day. Shortly after I boarded the 10 o'clock p. m. train, at Kansas City; on giving out church papers I was interviewed by an intelligent, affable gentleman of skeptical proclivities. He appeared honest, fair and candid. Presently others were involved in this all around free exchange of thought. By and by a cattle man, and the largest land owner in Mercer county, Missouri, came to the front with much assurance. He stated he lived in the town of Mercer, and that his name was Jesse George. He was converted by the United Brethren and Methodists, baptized by a Campbellite, and confirmed by a Church of God minister. He did not seem to have fellowship with any organization, appeared somewhat a Salvation Army follower, or a sanctified Holiness enthusiast, and for assumption and loud presumption, has few equals and fewer superiors. It was passing strange and painful to behold such stupid, dogmatic blindness.

The Conference convened on the morn of the 4th, in a tent, and all in attendance appeared happy. The president being absent, I was selected to preside on that occasion. Elder Jay Hoffman, late of Kansas City, lives here, and is the president of the branch. Elder Thomas Elihu Thompson, formerly of Ripley county, Indiana, also resides in the western portion of this wide spread church; was present with his wife, America, nee Scott, and several of their offspring. A few of the lesser priesthood constituted the official staff, and but few Saints from elsewhere were in attendance, among whom were Sr. Ella Landers, the secretary, and one Sr. Brown, who, till recently, was Sr. Givens, of Virginia. These handmaidens drove one hundred miles against the wind all alone, and, zounds! they had to face the chilling gale all the way back. It proved a tonic for Sr. B., however, so all is well that ends up all right. The committee thought a new broom would sweep clean, hence I had to face the people Saturday night and three times on Sunday. We also had sacrament and social service after the 2 p. m. discourse, and all things went off perfectly right from start to finish. The interest being good I continued the preaching all last week, and over Sunday.

It was a beautiful picture, indeed, to behold the feasts of charity in the forms of basket dinners, on those two Lord's days of pleasing memory. On the last day, however, after luncheon, the rain and hail came quite lively for an hour. When it slackened we drove three and one-half miles northwest to the home of Gottfried Kueffer, and after the second shower we repaired to his large tank where his two brothers and wife were immersed by your humble servant. While there the thunder sounded terrific, and the lightning streaked forth furiously, and as the last one was being waited upon, the dash came in real earnest. We confirmed the three at the house, and administered to many others, and declared the afternoon and evening meetings off. I will say for the encouragement of Brn. Pender, Mannering, Gurwell, Pierce and others, who have toiled much, especially the first two named, around here, that now I reap some of their labors, and others appear to be at hand and at the door. The Kueffer schoolhouse is where I am sounding the trump, and Marion Thompson aids me, et al.

BAZINE, Kan., May 14.

Indians' Tallest Mound.

The ploughshare of the farmer is slowly but surely obliterating one of the first monuments left in southern Indiana by prehistoric man. One mile south of Petersburg, on the farm owned by James McCoy, is the largest mound in the state. That it was artificially constructed is beyond question, as there are no natural hills in this vicinity, and the land for miles around shows where the dirt was removed for its building. Whether thrown up as a perpetual monument to commemorate the virtues of the ancient Mound Builders, or laboriously constructed by the red men as a place of council, or a burying ground for departed graves, is a question that none can answer.

Arthur Veatch, of Rockport, who was for some years employed by the state in excavating Indian mounds in southern Indiana, has seen the mound, and believes it was the work of a race who lived before the Indians, as the specimens of arms and various implements found in similar mounds do not correspond in any way with the most ancient Indian relics.

The mound is almost 100 feet above the surrounding country, and covers five acres of ground. Until a few years ago the mound rose almost abruptly from the roadside, but the farmers who tilled the adjoining fields have scaled the steep ascent higher and higher each year, until now almost one half of the elevation is covered with growing grain.

When Pike county was first settled by white men a fort was erected a short distance from the base of the mound, and the mound itself was used as a lookout station and graveyard. Some of the old tombstones are still standing, and mark the last resting place of many pioneers, who died while pushing westward in search of the delusive fountain of health and fortune. —(Indianapolis News), The Kansas City World, May 11.

EDITOR REV. IRL R. HICKS, the "Weather Forecaster," in his St. Louis, Mo., Word and Works for June, 1901, says editorially:

Remember, June is the month when men and women lose their tempers, and when solstice rain squalls slip upon you from wrong directions. Watch both your temper and the squalls.

That is excellent advice so far as watching our tempers is concerned, for any month on the calendar; and it might be a very good idea that when we all get into good practice on the watching habit next month to keep right along the same line indefinitely and note how much more smoothly the old world will seem to jog ahead.

Rev. Hicks' special admonition for next month is in view of the fact that peculiar atmospheric conditions prevailing will be very trying on the nervous system.

OUR FIRST DUTY.

ELDER J. S. STRAIN.

In view of the fact that the church is now entering upon a new era, and taking an advanced step, I would like to say a word to the Saints in relation to our duty in this important period of the church history.

God has set to His hand to the uplifting of Zion, and to enlarge her borders. With the inauguration of the work along lines indicated in the late revelation, there comes increasing responsibility, and a proportionate increase in effort calculated to further on the work so auspiciously begun.

We read that God set in the church certain officers for the work of the ministry and for the edifying and unifying the body, or the church. The duties of the foregoing officers are clearly defined. But however faithful these men may be, they cannot bring about the uplifting and unifying of the body, except the body be willing to participate in the work. I fear that very many of our people fail to observe that they can, in any sense be a factor in this work, and depend too much on the priesthood; when the fact is, their work is as important, and as necessary as the work of the ministry.

If a branch sits idly down, and loses the missionary spirit, and performs its duties in a sort of perfunctory manner, they need not be surprised if none of the promised blessings come to them. If the ministry are successful, it will be because the church has co-operated with them, and held up their hands, and have so kept the law of God as to give a very practical demonstration of the power of the gospel to make men better, and lift them to a high degree of spiritual excellence.

Among the important duties that present themselves before the church at this time, none are more pressing than tithing; and we can not fail to see that to neglect this duty would retard the work of the missionary, and reduce the number actively engaged. Nothing would encourage the preacher more than to feel that while absent his dear ones at home are remembered; they should not return to enjoy a rest, and find the flour bin empty, and the family needy; it would fill his heart with sadness. It should also be borne in mind that the active preacher needs aid while going from place to place, and I think it would be a good plan for the branches to create a small fund to be used for the purpose of paying the fare of the ministry who call on them. Paul enjoined the Saints to lay by a sum as God had prospered them, that there might be no need to gather after he came. There should be no public collections for this purpose. God has heard the prayers of His people, and has come to their aid. Then with what earnestness and zeal should his Saints manifest their gratitude by engaging heart and mind in an effort to push Zion's car on to victory.

Much damage is done to the cause by the careless way in which many Saints conduct themselves. Some insist that there is no harm in going to the theatre, and other places of amusement, thus saying to the world: I don't find sufficient in the religion of Christ to satisfy my mind, I must have some diversion. Others seem to think it is only necessary to attend church once a month, and often only once in three months, or a year. These things act as a weight on the shoulders of the ministry, and act as a stumbling stone to others. "Ye are the light of the world," said the Master; "the salt of the earth," "a city set on a hill." Oh if we could only see the result of such conduct; could only see that while God and His faithful ministry are pleading for men and women to accept the angel's message, and tells them it will make them better and lift them to a higher life, the conduct of godless professors gives the lie to their teachings, and brings the truth into disrepute. O if we could only realize how important it is to manifest the fruits of righteousness in our lives.

The Apostle James tells us that he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off and has forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

May God help all to stand in holy places before God, that He may have a people prepared to receive at His hands all He has to bestow.

PASTORAL.

To all the Saints on the western slope of the state of Colorado: having been appointed to labor in the western part of the state, in connection with Bro. James Stubbart, by our worthy missionary in charge, J. B. Roush, we wish to say to all the dear Saints in Garfield, Mesa, Delta and Montrose counties, and other counties not named, that we would be glad to hear from any and all of them in regard to the prospects for preaching in your localities. My home address is Conifer, Colorado. Let all the Saints be patient and we shall try and visit as many as circumstances will permit.

Hoping and praying that a good work will be done in this mission field this present Conference year.

Yours in hope,
JAMES KEMP.
CONIFER, Col., May 18.

To the Saints in South Missouri districts:—We are favored with four good missionaries this year, and I hope we may have the co-operation of all the Saints and especially the scattered ones. Send us your address and how to reach you; we are anxious to have all the Saints help us in getting new openings.

Don't fail to ask a missionary if he needs a little help; and when you see one of them with his shoes worn out, or his clothes shabby, don't fail to render assistance. It only takes some good Saint to start the thing to help replenish an elder's wardrobe.

Also, don't fail to remember I am bishop's agent, and that I like to get a cheering letter from you once in a while, and glad to know God is blessing you. Let us try and help the work all we can. Money paid to Bro. Baker or Bro. Thomas, or sent to me, 1802 Springfield avenue, Springfield, Missouri, will be receipted for.

Trusting to hear from all this coming year,
In bonds,
HENRY SPARDLING.

To the Saints of the Southwestern Mission:—After long delay caused by my sickness, as stated recently in the Herald and Ensign, I greet you again in the beginning of this, the second year in charge of this field.

I have appointed as assistant missionaries in charge Bro. W. S. Macrae, 2318 Empire St., Joplin, Missouri, in charge of Arkansas and western Louisiana. Hubert Case, Red Moon, Oklahoma, in charge of Oklahoma and Indian Territory. T. J. Shepard, Oklaunion, Texas, in charge of Texas. All calls for preaching and reports will be made directly to these men in their respective fields.

I have deemed it necessary to make some changes in the men because of the needs of the different localities. Bro. J. F. Grimes, whose mission reads Arkansas, will labor in Indian Territory. Bro. Aylor, whose mission reads Oklahoma and Indian Territory, will labor in Indian Territory; also R. M. Maloney, if he can do so. I shall endeavor, so far as possible, to attend the different reunions and conferences in the various parts of the field, if the brethren having charge of these things do not get the dates of holding them to conflict, as I can not be in two places at once.

Much depends upon the Saints in the different localities as well as upon the ministry. Co-operation of all the forces will give us the victory. Saints, do not forget that the elder must have traveling expenses paid, and that it is your duty to pay them. Don't forget that as another has said, "God has commanded His servants to study, hence they need books sometimes, unless the church would have their thirst for knowledge quenched, and an ignorant ministry barring his doors, instead of an intelligent one opening wide its doors to all the world," and it is your duty to furnish this means so far as in your power. If you labor in the affairs of business and of work and impart of that which you receive to the support of the ministry and their families, by your tithes and offerings, you are entitled to just as much glory, honor and reward as though you stood in the pulpit and proclaimed the word.

Let the ministry be diligent and careful in the use of time and money placed in their hands. Last year there was a lack of prompt reporting by some of the ministry which was embarrassing and caused the reports to show up poorly as all the labor done could not be included in the reports. Let me say again that reports are due the first of July, October, January and March. The reports made July 1st must include the labor done in March, April, May and June. It is just as easy to make your reports the 1st as to wait until the 2d, 3d, 4th, or later. Reports are expected from every one of the ministry whether they have done any thing or not, so do not forget, and may peace abide and prosperity attend each, is the prayer of your brother and co-laborer,
HYRUM O. SMITH.

Missionary in charge.

NOTICES.

To all whom it may concern:—An effort will be made at the Arthur, Ontario, conference, June 15-17, to organize a Religio association in the London district. There are five locals, and this number is certainly sufficient. All Religians are requested to come prepared to take an active interest in this matter.

I also suggest that the locals act in business capacity in relation to it. Niagara Falls and Low Banks have already done so, and that favorably, and Humber Bay and Selkirk intend to do likewise. We are not sure about London, but feel reasonably certain that it also will fall into line. We look to it for help since it is the oldest local in the district.

The writer regrets his inability to be present, but Sr. Floraline Miller, or some other competent person, will be there to take charge of the work.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder adds to the healthfulness of all risen flour-foods, and makes the food lighter, sweeter, finer-flavored, more delicious.

It is worth while to exercise care in purchasing baking powder to see that you get the kind that makes the food more wholesome and at the same time more palatable.

NOTE.—There are many imitations, made in imitation of baking powder, which it is prudent to avoid. They are lower in price than pure powders, but are made from alum. Alum in food is poisonous.

Reunion Notices.

To the Saints and friends of the Northern Minnesota district:—We, your committee on arrangements for the above named district, have completed arranging for board, horse feed, etc., and hereby give notice, that this meeting begins on Thursday, June 20, 1901, at Clitherall, Minnesota, and is to continue over two Sundays. Board and lodging will be three dollars per week. Barn room for teams and one ton of hay free. Wood free, plenty of good water on the ground. Those wishing pasture for their teams will be furnished free. All those wishing to be accommodated to the above conveniences will please let the committee hear from them at once, so as to avoid any inconveniences to any one. We urge upon all to comply with the wishes of the committee.

All are cordially invited to attend these meetings, that a good time may be enjoyed by all. Bro. G. H. Hilliard, of the bishopric, is to be with us, also we hope to have those of the missionary force and the missionary in charge on hand. Everybody come: Sr. M. F. Hawley will be on hand with her musical talent to help along the work. None are slighted, the invitation is to all. Come praying, bring the good Spirit with you and a happy time will be to all. Branches see that your reports are on hand, as the district conference will be held on Saturday, the 22d, according to previous notice.

I. N. ROBERTS,
In behalf of the committee.
CLITHERALL, Minn., May 22.

REPEATED HISTORY.

The shade of Joseph Smith cannot complain of not having praise in his own country. A Mormon elder, Seymour B. Young, in the tabernacle service in Salt Lake City, May 12, after speaking of both Lincoln and Napoleon, said that "those who were selecting the names to grace the Hall of Fame had neglected the greatest name of the nineteenth century—Joseph Smith." Thus do the myrtle leaves fall on the name of the epileptic and illiterate Smith, who had stones in his hat.

The above clipping from the Kansas City, Missouri, Central Christian Advocate, for June 22d, an organ of the Methodist Episcopal church, serves to illustrate the fact that the spirit which actuated and inspired the traducers of God's servants anciently, still has active and willing supporters today. It argues nothing to say that the author of the above may sincerely believe, with many others, that Joseph Smith was an impostor, and therefore a fit subject for poor wit and so-called sarcasm. The same may be said with equal relevancy regarding those who opposed the mission and ministry of others of the children of men, whom the Lord called and designated for an especial work, which existing conditions of their times made necessary. That fact did not, in the sight of God, excuse the mockers, defamers and persecutors of those times; nor will it in these days, as will ultimately be realized, whether or not men now appreciate that fact. The Great Judge will not forget their presumptuousness and effrontery, and it is safe to say they will themselves condemn their own conduct relative to this matter, as foolish and despicable.

Noah was sent with a special message of warning to the men of his day. That he and his sons labored diligently to deliver the message, warning the people of the calamity that was to overtake them unless they repented, ceased their wicked ways and turned to works of righteousness, the building of the ark and the salvation of himself and family, with his sons and their families, abundantly testify. It is also evident that the inhabitants of the earth at that time, scorned the messenger and the message; doubtless made all kinds of sport when they beheld the building of the ark, in the many, many years required to complete it, with the limited number probably working at it. But their scorn and unbelief did not affect the truth of the message, nor the authority attaching to Noah to deliver it. They were doubtless sincere in their belief that Noah was not worth noticing, and his message unworthy of credence; but that did not alter the truth nor change facts; and they had to suffer the consequences of their lack of faith, not only in a physical sense, but in a spiritual, as well; for the Apostle Peter makes especial mention of the fact that the Savior went to preach to the spirits of these individuals, which were in prison. (1 Peter 3:18-20). What is there inconsistent in the claim that in this respect also, there is very likely to be a repetition of history, when the servants of God, especially sent of Him today, are condemned and their message despised?

Another character, whose fame has come down to us as a man of sterling integrity, appointed of God to do a special work; a meek, humble man, seeking the good of his people and willing to spend all his energy in advancing their interests. MOSES, made of the Lord a type of the highest and grandest character that has ever graced and blessed the earth—the Lord Jesus Christ. How his enemies hated him; how even his own brethren despised him, and often rebelled against him, even after they had witnessed the power of God displayed in and through him; and though his life was often made bitter by these experiences, he, nevertheless, was the servant of God. Did the fact that he was opposed and condemned by the king of Egypt and all his nobles, change, in the least degree, the fact that God had sent him to liberate His people from bondage? Not in the least. Moses proceeded with his work and was honored and acknowledged of the Lord therein, and destruction overtook the chief actors in their opposition to God's work.

Even the blessed Lord was not exempt from this experience. He was hated, despised and persecuted, and His message treated with contempt, by a very large majority of the high and noble of the nation. The most prominent among, indeed all, the sects of that day, were arrayed against Him, and while among themselves there was bitter, unwavering opposition over various points of doctrine, when it came to the question of the doctrine of Christ, they became one, and united all their forces in the effort to destroy the Savior and His disciples and eradicate His doctrine from the face of the earth. But all that procedure did not in any wise change the truth, nor the fact that He was sent of God, and was recognized as His Son. Think of the crown of thorns pressed upon that tender brow; of the scourings and cruel mockings, the painful crucifixion, hated and despised of the very ones for whom He came to minister and to bless with happiness unknown to mortals. He was truly "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." But He arose triumphant, and His enemies, those who opposed and hated Him, are now experiencing the results of such a procedure.

Such experience seems to have been common to nearly every man whom God has sent among men, especially commissioned with a message of life to them, and endowed with authority to represent Him on the earth. They have been persecuted, and eventually sealed their testimony with their blood. All who have in their day accepted their message, recognizing the divinity of their call, have been classed by these knowing ones—the enemies—with fools and fanatics. But this judgment, born of unrighteousness, has not changed the facts, and they also must be suffering the consequence of their folly. In these latter days, when, like as it was in the days of the Savior, men had departed from the faith, and had introduced different forms of church government, had enlisted in their communion the noble, the wealthy, and the "high" ones of the earth, the Lord sent His angel, as the angel showed John the Revelator He would do (Rev. 14:6), to a lad, "illiterate," it is true—for in 1820 to 1840, it was not an uncommon occurrence to find illiterate people—when he called him, like the fisherman of Galilee, but honest and true at heart, and possessing the ability to acquire any information needful for this work; to this lad God did commit a special message, and did clothe him with power and authority to execute that commission. But in the performance of that work, like all his predecessors, he met with opposition most bitter and relentless, until, finally, his testimony was sealed with his blood, in the Carthage, Illinois, jail, a victim of hatred, and the broken pledge of the governor then presiding. But at his death, no man could truthfully say he was "illiterate." His diligence in study, and the ability he possessed, together with the assistance of the Holy Spirit, made him more than the equal, we believe, of any minister of his day. Joseph Smith taught the gospel as the Lord Jesus and His apostles with Him, taught it, calling upon all men to repent and obey it, under the promise that if they did so, they should individually know of the doctrine, whether it was from God, or only from man (John 7:17), a test an impostor would never dare offer. He suffered martyrdom June 27, 1844, and at his death the church numbered from 150,000 to 200,000. In 1846 and later, Brigham Young and his ministers led less than 10,000 to Salt Lake, a barren waste, which they, with their followers, have since made to blossom in beauty. But Joseph Smith never was there, and in no sense whatever is it "his own country," as the editor of the Advocate asserts; the statement, however, shows from what sources his information is derived. But he has certainly drawn upon imagination, either his own or some other as unreliable, when he attaches the word, "epileptic," to the character of Joseph Smith. He certainly has the honor (?) of being the first man, to our knowledge, to assert that Joseph Smith ever manifested the slightest tendency in that regard; but, as with others of his brethren before him, nothing seems to be too mean or harsh to apply to these men, no matter what the excellence of their message or work.

"Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," is a safe axiom; but no work, meritorious or otherwise, was ever disapproved by contumely and abuse; and while the language used by the writer from whom we quote is comparatively mild, as compared with many ravings of disordered minds at other times, there was presented an opportunity for some comparisons, which ought to be profitable to some of our readers, and we submit these thoughts in the hope that from them may be drawn useful lessons. We believe the day will come when even this "doubting Thomas" will concede that the statement, purported to have been made by the Mormon elder, was not so very far wrong, and that Joseph Smith did a far greater work than his enemies are now willing to credit him with doing.

THE COLLEGE INTERESTS.

Those to whom the affairs of Graceland College have been entrusted, are manifesting a very commendable and zealous interest in complying with the instructions of the Lord regarding this institution. First, Bro. R. M. Elvin, looking especially after the running expenses, presents his claims under the caption, "A New Campaign." Next, Bishop Hilliard makes a strong plea for the payment of the debt in his article, "Word from Heaven, Let All Respond," and finally Bishop Kelley presents the opportunity for every member of the church to do his part towards obeying the instruction of our heavenly Father in paying "this great debt." The plan as presented in Bishop Kelley's article, "College Subscription Lists," is eminently a practical one; and every one should feel himself obligated to assist to the extent of his ability. Read all these articles carefully, remembering that we are committed by our devotion to the Lord and His work, to do something in enabling the bishopric to clear off this burden. Bear in mind also that the Lord says, "Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you" (John 15:14), and he has commanded that this debt be paid. Reader, are you equal to this test now? Are you indeed His friend? May the Lord help us all to make the sacrifices necessary to do our part in this matter.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

ELDER F. C. WARNKY reports that he is having excellent meetings at Harlem, near Kansas City.

BRN. W. H. GRIFFIN and S. D. Love are requested to send their post office address to Elder F. C. Warnky, secretary 2d quorum of elders, 2422 Wabash Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri.

Bro. J. W. BURGESS, Guttenberg, New Jersey, writes that Elder Joseph Squire of Brooklyn, New York, was to go to Scott's Corners, Connecticut, on May 26th to assist Elder U. W. Greene, who expected to baptize ten on that date.

Bro. J. A. WELCH, Moscow Mills, Missouri, reports, May 26th, that Bro. Spurlock and Thomas were doing some preaching at Silex that week, and were expecting to commence at Moscow Mills, June 1st, Bro. Welch having secured the promise of the Methodist church for their use.

ELDER C. J. SPURLOCK, Linn, Missouri, June 1:

One more soul has been added to the Whears branch of the church of Christ. Bro. Fred Kempe was baptized April 30th. He has been reading the ENSIGN for some time and is quite well informed as to the duties of a Saint and will therefore make a good member we believe. Although there is yet some trouble existing in this branch, we believe if proper wisdom is exercised it may be removed.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Bro. C. D. Carson has opened an office for undertaking and embalming in the McCoy block, West Lexington street, next door to Bro. Hayward.

Bro. C. G. Gould will retire from the express business this week, and will enter the service of Bro. Elliott next week, hauling lumber.

Next Sunday, Children's Day. Keep your flowers for the occasion, and be sure to attend. The children and teachers are hard at work in their preparation for the event.

President G. H. Hulmes was the speaker last Sunday morning at the Saints' church. At night Bro. Joseph Luff addressed the congregation. The afternoon communion service was full of interest and comfort.

Parents should visit the primary department of the Sunday School as well as the other departments. They will be pleased as well as surprised, perhaps, at the kindergarten feature and the work being done there.

The bids for the paving of West Lexington and Electric streets from the Square to the Pacific bridge, will be let on the 11th inst. The municipal electric lighting plant affairs are being pushed as rapidly as possible, and in the next few months there will be considerable business in Independence, the results of which will greatly improve our pretty little city.

Joseph W. McReynolds, aged fifty-two, and Roscoe A. Young, aged ten, son of Bro. and Sr. John Young, were baptized in the font last Sunday by Bishop G. H. Hilliard; confirmation was given at the afternoon service by Bro. Joseph Luff and G. H. Hilliard. Our font is proving a very great convenience and will be much more convenient when fully completed with all water attachments.

The weather has been very warm and dry recently, and the roads were becoming quite dusty; but Monday night and Tuesday morning a refreshing rain was sent, for which many thanks were doubtless given. The crops were needing it badly. We understood that Bro. Williamson, instead of harvesting about three thousand crates of strawberries, would only have about five hundred crates, which is quite a loss to them. We hope the rain, though not as long continued as we could have wished, will improve the conditions considerably and increase the yield of "the fruits in their season."

Bear in mind the "Word of Wisdom" picnic of our Sunday School the latter part of this month, and as the menu is a very important feature contributing to the success of the occasion, it will be necessary for our good sisters to get their "wits" in good working order to satisfy the capacious (not to say rapacious or voracious) appetites of the rising generation and their progenitors, who may be present at that auspicious time. Animal and fowl flesh are to be barred, as also tea and coffee, from which it will be understood that some ingenuity and culinary skill will be demanded to supply this omission. But we are quite sure our sisters will be found equal to the occasion. Let every body attend and see what surprises will be sprung in this direction.

Prof. Holiday, who has been superintendent of the Independence public schools, having over two thousand pupils in five large buildings, one of them exclusively for colored children, has accepted a like position at Carthage, Missouri, at three hundred dollars advance in salary. He is an affable gentleman and a diligent worker, and seems to have done very successful work here. Prof. W. L. C. Palmer, for many years principal of the high school, has been elected to fill the vacancy. He is much esteemed here, and many are of the opinion that it was a fitting tribute to the careful work he has done in his department for so long, and that it is a wise selection. Independence has a good school system and a corps of competent instructors. Prof. Bryant, formerly president of Woodland College, of this city, has been elected to succeed Prof. Palmer as principal of the high school.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Patriarch Alexander H. Smith, Apostle J. W. Wight and Bro. Leon A. Gould went to Burlington last week, to attend conference.

Sr. Coiner, wife of Bro. John Coiner, died very suddenly at Saints' Home last Wednesday. Funeral service was held at the Home Monday; sermon by Elder H. A. Stebbins.

Little Frances White, daughter of Elder D. C. White, who has been very ill the past few weeks, first with measles and then pneumonia fever, is reported a little better. The request sent by her on Sunday that the Sunday School children pray for her touched many hearts.

Sr. Ella B. Cowden, of the Saints' Home, who was making a short visit at Sr. Elliston's last week, met with a severe accident. She was about to enter what she thought was the hall; instead of that it proved to be the door to the cellar, she consequently stepped off into space and fell, breaking three ribs and bruising her head. She was taken back to the Home on Monday and is now feeling quite comfortable. Sr. Dr. Greer attended her injuries.

May Ritchie, Nora Hudson and Emma L. McKean were baptized and confirmed by Elder H. A. Stebbins last week, at the Home pond.

Bishop Wm. Anderson and wife, Stake President John Smith and wife, B. M. Anderson, R. M. Elvin and J. A. Gunsolley attended the Stake conference at Cleveland, last Saturday and Sunday.

The elocution department of Graceland College gave an entertainment at the church last Wednesday evening to a large audience.

Miss Mabel Horner, graduate in elocution at Graceland College, gave a very fine recital at the church Thursday evening. She was assisted by the musical department of the College.

Bishop E. L. Kelley and Elder Columbus Scott were the speakers Sunday morning and evening. Bro. Stebbins preached at Evergreen, Bro. F. E. Cochran at Surprise school-house, R. S. Salyards at Saints' Home.

Next Sunday is Children's Day. The Sunday School will have charge of the exercises. The regular Sunday School session will be held at 9:30 a. m.; at 11 o'clock the exercises will be by the primary children; at this service the blessing of children will be attended to. In the afternoon at 4:30, a number of the Sunday School children will be baptized, confirmation will take place at 7:30 p. m., and the intermediate and senior members will give the evening program.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The weather is very fine, warm and dry; we are sadly in need of moisture.

Sunday morning we were pleasantly greeted by a goodly attendance at the Sunday School. Every one was there on time, which was encouraging to the superintendent.

Bro. H. O. Smith occupied the stand Sunday morning and evening, giving good counsel to all who were present.

Sr. Johnston and daughter, Mabel, of Toronto, Canada, reached the city Friday and were present, at all the services Sunday. Sr. Johnston will reside here in the future.

The sacrament service in charge of Bro. R. Archibald and H. D. Ennis, was well attended and occupied. The Holy Spirit was present, comforting and cheering the Saints.

The Ladies' Aid Society will give an ice cream opening at the Lewis Creamery, 11th and Frederick avenue, Saturday afternoon and evening, for the benefit of the church. A. B.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH
2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. R. Winn, pastor, 2308 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1358.

Sunday was our Children's Day. The weather was fine and everyone seemed to enjoy it. The exercises were: Sunday School at the regular time; the attendance was 74; a sermon to the children at 11 a. m. by Elder B. J. Scott, assisted by Elder W. R. Pickering. After the sermon Elder D. F. Winn baptized four members of the primary department. At 12:15 the sacrament meeting was presided over by Elder F. C. Warnky and H. L. Ashbaugh; and Eva Winn, Myra Warnky, Nettie Wood and Ray Burnett were confirmed by Elders W. R. Pickering and B. J. Scott; and Charles Ernest, infant son of Bro. and Sr. Walter Sandy, was blessed by Elders B. J. Scott and D. F. Winn. The evening exercises were mainly by the primary classes and were well rendered to an overflowing house.

Bro. H. L. Ashbaugh recently baptized his grandsons John Isaacs, Lionel and Orville Givens. We understand Bro. Givens has gone to Colorado for the summer. He has better health there.

The many acquaintances of J. J. Pharo in and out of the church will no doubt be surprised to learn that he has at last determined to do what he was years ago convinced he ought to do and has become a child of the kingdom by baptism.

The writer has for about two years sent the ENSIGN occasional items and has frequently been censured for overlooking some one. Having contributed his own time and postage, and always hunted up all the items himself, he feels at liberty to announce these items as his valedictory.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.
Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Folsom Sts. Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 10th street.

Sunday morning, the 12th inst., we had preaching by J. A. Saxe, and in the evening by Bishop C. A. Parkin. Albert Haws preached at Berkeley, and your correspondent at Oakland.

Sr. Ella Lytle has so far recovered her health that she has resumed her position as superintendent of the Sunday School, which report says is very well attended, and the interest still increasing.

Last Sunday Elder Geo. Daley, from Sacramento, was our speaker at 11 a. m. There was a full house to hear him. In the evening Chas. Crumley, our missionary, en route to Oregon, was the speaker. His discourse was very much enjoyed by all. It was a little out of the usual line of thought, bordering on the scientific, and was very instructive.

We have been having gala days here during the last week, on account of the presence of Wm. McKinley, president of the United States. We have given him and his party a hearty reception, and the city is gayly decorated.

The general business of the community here is very much disturbed by the strikes now going on in many lines of trade. It is affecting nearly every business and becoming very serious, and the end is not yet.

Our soldier boys, returning from Manila, are being discharged here by the thousands; soon we will have nothing left but the regular army. Most of the boys have had enough of war and are anxious to be home again. There are quite a number of war ships and transports now anchored in the bay.

Our prayer meetings and Religion hold their regular sessions, and are well attended.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 29.

Editor Ensign:—The writer left home and loved ones on the 15th day of this month, and on the 19th had the pleasure of talking to the Saints in Sacramento and Oakland. I am glad to report that our entire missionary force is in the field and hard at work, and have been several days. There is impressed upon my mind the thought that we are engaged in the latter day work, not play, and that the active ministry is not the place to enlist when one is looking for pleasure, for if we use our time in the ministry following the pleasures of the work, we are certainly untrue to our trust as ministers for Christ. The Lord says that the idler shall not eat the bread of the laborer; and when we see the sacrifice that some of the Saints are making, so as to help sustain the missionaries, we are exhorted not to betray their confidence and indulge in pleasures which they think that they cannot afford.

We regret to report that Bro. Thos. Daley is seriously afflicted, and has gone to Santa Rosa for a much needed rest and try to regain his health and strength. May the Great Physician reach forth His hand and heal him is the prayer of all of the Saints of this district. Bro. Keeler and Schmidt are operating the tent at West Berkeley; but the nights are so cold that they will likely soon move into the interior, probably to Elmira.

We have lately bought a folding organ for the tent and need about $20.00 to finish paying for it. The writer took the responsibility of doing this, as the need for it was urgent, and I now trust that the Saints will send in their mites to pay for it. You can send to me and I will acknowledge receipt.

The General Conference was a splendid experience and we were grateful that the Lord recognized our condition and gave us light divine. A careful reading of the revelation convinces me that the wisdom of man will never make a success of this latter day work, as the revelation points out some of the mistakes of the past. When we see our mistakes, ought it not to increase our humility and make us willing to acknowledge, "perhaps I am wrong?" God will surely recognize our willingness to be assisted under such circumstances, and revelations will be more often received.

Any of the Saints of this district who see this letter and desire labor down to this vicinity should write me at the address given below. Especially is this true in regard to tent work. May God grant us grace sufficient for our every need that Zion may be redeemed and the honest in heart gathered within its borders, is my prayer.

Your collaborer in Christ,
F. B. BLAIR,
1244 Adeline St.

POMONA, Mo., May 28.

Editor Ensign:—Perhaps a word from this part might be of interest to some. Our gallant young brother, A. M. Baker, made his appearance at Springfield, May 1st, and commenced his work in earnest, preaching in the church and also on the square, with what results, time will tell. Taking advantage of such good help, I left on a tour through the district, going through Webster, Wright, and Texas counties, preaching by the way with fair liberty and sometimes good interest, while at other times I found it hard to get any interest.

I called at Hartville and found Bro. Peter Carrow hard at work; also I found a Bro. and Sr. Wright who were baptized at the Armstrong branch, Kansas City. They seem to be very nice Saints for what they know of the work, but do not take any church papers. They seem to think a great deal of Bro. Emmet, and I think it would be a good thing for him to write them and send them some church papers to read, and I think that way we can get them interested in the work and in the papers. They are nicely fixed and seem to be well liked by many of the best people in town. They promised to take care of any of the elders who might wish to go there and preach. I also called on Bro. and Sr. Bentley, and found them strong in the faith and very anxious to have preaching at that point, but not having time then we promised to send them help. I next called on Bro. and Sr. Bruce, and after satisfying my hunger, and a short rest, Bro. and Sr. B. and I writer went four miles to see Bro. and Sr. Taylor. I found them quite advanced in years and Bro. T. almost blind, yet they told me they were making a living. I stayed over night, came to Bro. and Sr. Savage's; the next day, Sunday, up bright and early, drove twenty miles or more to Pomona branch, in time for Sabbath School—and they have a good one—Sr. Steele is superintendent and is highly gifted in that line of work, and I do not know how I can better explain the progress the School is making than to tell you that after a week's preaching I baptized twelve of their Sunday School scholars.

Our quarterly conference convenes with Woodside branch, June 2d. The Saints here feel glad to see the fruit prospects this year; there will be an abundance of both peach and apples. Bro. Helsecamp has a very fine crop on his twenty-six hundred trees. Land is cheap, farms well improved can yet be gotten. The world is anxious to sell even at a sacrifice. Some Saints like it here while others do not, but the work is moving along nicely.

MESHOFFEN, Pa., May 30.
Editor Ensign:—On my way east I stopped at Cleveland, Ohio, met with the Saints on Sunday in their neat little hall. Bro. Parsons spoke in the morning and the writer in the evening. We were well received and had many invitations to come again. They were pleased to have Bro. Parsons in that mission again. The following Monday I started for Greenwood, New York, arriving at Bro. E. Updyke's in the evening; found them well and ready to care for the missionary. The next day I went over to Greenwood, meeting Bro. and Sr. Sheldon and the Saints there: found them in a prosperous condition. The church they have erected is a credit to them and the work they represent; and the best of all—their lives have been above reproach. The Methodists have become alarmed and had an evangelist come to lecture against our faith, or us as a people. We attended the lecture and Bro. Sheldon took notes. The speaker was an old soldier and had the flag spread over the pulpit. His main effort was to get the people to believe that Joseph Smith and the church were against the government. He said Joseph Smith had his soldiers out at the dedication of the temple of Nauvoo, against the flag, and said none of them enlisted to defend their country. Closing he challenged us for debate but would not give either of us a chance to speak there, or even ask questions.

At the close of the meeting I made myself acquainted with the old soldier and told him I had been enlisted in the service of our country the same as he, and a number of other missionaries. The next morning we met him to arrange for the debate. I asked him if his church would endorse him: his answer was, he was not a member of any church. I told him we wanted a man with something back of him to endorse him, so the Methodist pastor said he would endorse him as a christian minister, so the Methodists are responsible for an attack upon us, and they will feel the effects as time develops the final results.

Bro. Sheldon replied to his lecture last Sunday night, in a hall obtained free of charge. There was about one hundred present, notwithstanding it was a stormy evening. Many were pleased with the effort. The debate is to commence the 15th of July and last nine evenings, and to be held in our church.

I left Greenwood yesterday morning, arrived here in the evening, found the few Saints holding on to the faith and anxious that others may be added to their number. We expect to hold meetings here, and visit the scattered Saints, and do what we can to get the work more thoroughly understood in these parts.

The Saints at East Pharsalia have lost one of their members, Sr. Lewis, whose vacancy is sadly felt. I expect to visit them before long. We have been having some heavy rains here; the river is high and some damage done.

Should be pleased to hear from any of the Saints in this part of the mission. They can address me at Meshoppen, Bradford county, Pennsylvania. In gospel bonds,
H. H. ROBINSON.

WEBB CITY, Mo., May 28.
Editor Ensign:—This leaves me busily at work in my field, holding meetings at this place. I am now located in my field; 2230 Anabaxter street, Joplin, Missouri, is my home address. All Saints who desire my labors during the year, may write me. I desire to do all I can to advance the great work in this district.

I find plenty of work to do in these parts; I've been very busy ever since I entered the district; have held meetings at Joplin, Central City, Galena, Kansas, and Webb City. The Saints are building a real nice church in Webb City, Missouri, which will be a credit to them and the cause; but not ready to occupy yet, hence we are still using the old church for services.

I've met with some noble Saints in the Spring River district, who are doing all they can to live the gospel and prepare for Christ's coming. Let us all work and pray, also watch and be careful.

The Baptists at Central are stirred, and have challenged me for debate, which will take place on June 24th, if they get a man endorsed by the Baptist church.

In bonds,

SEAFIELD, Ind., May 28.
Editor Ensign:—Permit me, in behalf of the Saints at Seafield, to write a few lines to the silent preacher in regard to the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard. There are but few of the Saints here, but we are trying to head the admonition of the Lord to come up higher. We ask an interest in the prayers of all God's people that we may live so as to honor God and have a knowledge of our acceptance with Him as His children; and that we, with all His people, may grow up in love and in the unity of the faith, that we may fully comprehend the great fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. Bro. L. R. Devore stopped off with us while on his way east to his field of labor. We were greatly edified by his wise and able counsel, and feel to thank the good Father for raising up such men as Bro. Devore to defend His work here on earth.

With charity for all,
C. A. SELBE.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 2.
Dear Ensign:—The writer and Elder Barmore came to this place yesterday from Waterford, where we had spent about a week with rather pleasing results. Being on our way to Zone conference, which convenes in less than a week, we will probably take leave tomorrow and continue our journey en route for that place, hoping to arrive there not later than the coming Friday, to participate in the convention of the Sunday School association of the Chatham district.

We held four preaching services in Waterford, which were not very well attended by outsiders, on account of the rain and lack of advertisement. Waterford is the battle ground of the famous Wilkinson-Evans contest; and notwithstanding it is some ten or fifteen years ago that it took place, it still occupies a prominent place in the conversation of the Saints there; and many recall it as one of the most interesting reminiscences of their lives. The events which led up to the occasion of the discussion made it of a very auspicious character and very exciting. And then the crushing defeat that that distinguished champion met with in so short a time, has created an unending wonder in the minds of the people. One thing of significance is that Mr. Wilkinson never visits Waterford any more, while Bro. Evans still calls on them occasionally and preaches to large audiences.

My chief anxiety at the present time is success as a preacher. Bro. Barmore is a good talker, both publicly and conversationally; seems to be able to preach most any time on most any subject, with almost unnoticable variation in his degree of liberty. One of the best evidences to me of my future success is that I intend to do the best I can and rely upon God.

DUNSETH, N. D., May 27.
Editor Ensign:—We are trying to keep the gospel banner aloft in this northern country, and are cheerful in the belief that we are moving forward and increasing in strength and numbers.

During March and April Bro. Wm. Sparling and I held about two weeks meetings in Bottineau with splendid attendance and fair interest. One young man was baptized and a lady of splendid christian sincerity desires baptism as soon as convenient.

Much prejudice seemed to be removed from the minds of others. We met with some opposition from the local sectarian adherents; but we hope the seed sown will, in the Master's own time, bear fruit to His glory.

Soon afterwards the mud and unpleasant weather of early springtime came on, and Bro. S. was called home to look after his farm. I came into the Tustel mountains, where I have spent the most of the time the past few weeks.

This is a rolling, timber country, dotted with beautiful lakes, which was opened for homestead entries last year. The land has nearly all been settled within the past year. We have a very encouraging work, containing about twenty-five members in the neighborhood of Kelvin post office, which is conducted by Bro. James Leyde. Saints hold Sunday School and gospel service every Sunday, in the newly erected school-house, with good attendance and interest. A number may be baptized this summer who, we believe, will be good members in the cause of Christ.

I have also been holding meetings in a school-house in an adjoining vicinity, with very good attendance. We look for good to be done there if the interest can be continued. It is somewhat difficult to get attendance in this busy country during the week, but I find no difficulty in obtaining several places to hold meetings on Sunday, and with fair attendance.

I am of the opinion that much good could be done here by the distribution of pamphlets, books, etc., explaining the various gospel subjects. Not especially to sell them, but to loan and reclaim. But the missionary must work according to his means, which, in a newly settled country, is sometimes very limited.

It is cheering to hear of the progress of the Lord's work from week to week in various parts of the world, in these days of strife and wickedness; surely gentle times must be near an end. Amid the darkness and wickedness one is often led to wish the glorious appearing of the Master was even now at hand. But may grace and faith be given sufficient to lead us on till our humble warfare is done.

I was not among those who were permitted to attend the General Conference, but was among those whose souls were cheered by the light and blessings that came to the church.

Your brother in the Master's service,
LEONARD HOUGHTON.

PONTIAC, Mich., May 21.

Dear Ensign:—Although there are not many Saints here (there being only two, I think, of permanent residence) there are good facilities to Detroit on the suburban electric lines, of which we made use last Saturday evening, and attended the services at 34 Grand River avenue, on Sunday. I have resided in Pontiac only a week, having lived in Detroit all winter, but the week seemed to be sufficient time to give me a longing to see the Saints and hear their voices again, in praise to our heavenly Father. After spending a few months with the Saints and "Religians" (who number just seventy and are steadily growing, the society being a year old the 2d of last March) it causes the pangs of spiritual hunger, which, I am pleased to say were pretty well appeased by the exhortation and good counsel of Elder Gen. M. Stuppy, who talked to the Saints, calling their attention to the teachings of Paul, and saying many things to encourage the Saints, if we are only wise enough to remember them and try to practice them in our lives.

The next was the Sabbath School, which was of interest, and through which was taught and learned some good things by the parable of "The marriage of the king's son." Our prayer is that we may, as a "united" bride, be "ready" to meet the "King's Son" when He shall come to unite with us; and may we be clothed with "The righteousness of the Saints" (Rev. 19:8), which is to be the "wedding garment of the Lamb's bride."

Again, at 7:30, we met for preaching service, and were kept from nodding our heads or rubbing our eyes by the sly remarks of Elder N. F. Liddy. His discourse was good and showed much Biblical research, both from the Old and the New Testaments. The aim of the discourse was to strike a blow at that dogma that has taken so much effort on the part of our missionaries in holding it at bay, "Mormonism," which for a time he criticized very warmly and gave some very brilliant ideas along the lines of anti-polygamy. We see the good work that we love so dearly, rolling on to success, gaining slowly but steadily a foothold that will ever stand the rebuffs of the adversary of all good. It seems a great sacrifice to see a man of Elder Liddy's ability not in the field, but the Lord seems to be over-ruling the course of events otherwise, probably he may be doing a greater work as he is, by telling his experience from time to time to those who come out to hear, and many come in to listen to the gospel story as told in its latter day form. Elder Liddy is very frank in his statements generally, and tells his listeners occasionally that he is a man who works for a living and gets no support from the church, etc. Thus I say he may convince many that the work is all that we speak for it, or else he would not devote his time and talent in its interests.

Ever praying for the time to come when the faith of the Saints will be united in reaching the one great end, the building up of Zion on earth, I remain,
Your brother in the bonds of love,
WALTER L. BENNETT.

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., May 19.

Dear Ensign:—While looking over your columns and reading the many encouraging letters from different parts of God's vineyard, I fail to see any from East Delavan, and thought perhaps a word from here might be of interest.

While I cannot report our little branch in as prosperous condition as I would like to see it, yet I believe, with but few exceptions, each one has a desire to do right, but we all have so many little human weaknesses to overcome, and that self-governing power which is hard to attain, especially if we want our own way, and think we are all right and others all wrong. The good Master has admonished the Saints to come up higher. How are we to accomplish this; is it by having our own way, or are we to follow His precepts? If Christ is the law giver, why then do we not do whatsoever He has commanded? He tells us we must have charity one for another: love our neighbors as ourselves, and live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. I often ask myself, Do we fully realize what this "every word" means?

I feel, dear Saints, that I have lived very ignorant of the law, for the simple reason that it has not been taught in its fullness, by those having authority, as it should have been; but, nevertheless, that is no excuse for me, when we are commanded to search for ourselves, as this is an individual work—and I think God that it is—all have to stand or fall for themselves; and God has no respect of person, but in every age he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness, the same is accepted of him.

Dear Saints, when I read of the progress that is being made in our Sabbath School and Religio work, it does my soul good, to see the interest that is being taken with the younger ones: and if properly carried on, will prove a grand success in the end. But this is not the first stepping stone; parents should teach their little ones at home at the age of two, three or four years, and instruct them how to pray, and what for and whom to. It helps to give them confidence, and as they grow older it will not seem to be so much of a cross for them to pray or bear their testimony in our prayer meetings: and after a while they will begin to feel it a duty, as do the older ones.

MRS. LAUKA E. SOUTHWICK.

WESTERN RESERVE, O., June 3.

Editor Ensign:—Laborers for the kingdom of God performed duty Lord's day as follows: Bro. Griffiths and Kelley at the temple of the Lord in Kirtland. Bro. Griffiths administered the ordinance of baptism to his daughter Hattie, in Chagrin river, it being his birthday; just which I guess he would not care if we told—but we do not know. Bro. H. C. Smith, being relieved of the temple service, preached morning and evening at Cleveland, to an appreciative audience. Bro. D. L. Allen and Chas. Dalberg occupied in a school-house near Cuyahoga Falls, to a fair sized audience, with promise to return next Lord's day.

Bro. Parsons and Manchester performed ministerial service at the hall occupied by the Saints in Akron, to a small but appreciative audience. Bro. Parsons baptized Miss Abbie Nellie McCoy in the beautiful lake near Akron. Monday night he preached in the dining hall of Bro. Dalberg's boarding house; Tuesday, 10 a. m., preached at the funeral of Sr. Daisy Barshney, daughter of Bro. and Sr. McConnaughy, who passed from this life Saturday, June 1st, at her home near Kent, Ohio, leaving a baby boy.

Bro. Ebelling and Baldwin are operating in the eastern part of the district, meeting with fair success. Cool, damp weather has prevailed up to date. Health generally good.

BIG CABIN, I. T., May 19.

Editor Ensign:—I thought I would let the people know, who were so kind to send so many church papers, that I received over one hundred and sixty-six of them, and have distributed all but twelve, and these a man is to get today. I also sent for twelve tracts myself and gave them to the people.

There are only three Saints here, but some are near the kingdom I think. We would like for Bro. Keck to come and preach for us as soon as convenient. One man told me that he was not able to come from home, but if one of our preachers come to preach he would just come and stay.

The Methodist people are going to hold forth here this week. I think there are several here that believe the L. D. S. doctrine: one man said he had read the Bible through three or four times, and when Methodist preachers tried to preach, it made him tired, as they did not teach a man anything. If any of the elders come this way, come to my house, one-half mile east of Big Cabin switch.

Yours for truth,
J. R. HACKER.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

Delivered by President Joseph Smith, at the Latter Day Saints' Reunion, held at Washington Park, on Thursday, August 30, 1890.

I hold in my hand a card handed me yesterday by an elder on the ground, on which is a series of statements called "Articles of Faith." I will read the articles and then will proceed to make some statements, and possibly some arguments, which will show our attitude affirmatively on some of the main questions at issue with religionists and co-religionists:

We believe in God the Eternal Father, and in His Son, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost.

We believe that men will be punished for their own sins, and not for Adam's transgressions.

We believe that, through the atonement of Christ, all mankind may be saved, by obedience to the laws and ordinances of the Gospel.

We believe that the first principles and ordinances of the Gospel are: First, Faith in the Lord Jesus Christ; second, Repentance; third, Baptism by immersion for the remission of sins; fourth, Laying on of hands for the Gift of the Holy Ghost.

We believe that a man must be called of God, by "prophecy, and by the laying on of hands," by those who are in authority, to preach the gospel and administer in the ordinances thereof.

We believe in the same organization that existed in the primitive church—namely: Apostles, Prophets, Pastors, Teachers, Evangelists, etc.

We believe in the gift of tongues, prophecy, revelation, visions, healing, interpretation of tongues, etc.

We believe the Bible to be the word of God, as far as it is translated correctly; we also believe the Book of Mormon to be the word of God.

We believe all that God has revealed, all that He does now reveal, and we believe that He will yet reveal many great and important things pertaining to the Kingdom of God.

We believe in the literal gathering of Israel and in the restoration of the Ten Tribes; that Zion will be built upon this (the American) continent; that Christ will reign personally upon the earth, and that the earth will be renewed and receive its paradisaical glory.

We claim the privilege of worshipping Almighty God according to the dictates of our conscience, and allow all men the same privilege, let them worship how, where, or what they may.

We believe in being subject to kings, presidents, rulers, and magistrates: in obeying, honoring and sustaining the law.

We believe in being honest, true, chaste, benevolent, virtuous, and in doing good to all men: indeed, we may say that we follow the admonition of Paul, "We believe all things, we hope all things," we have endured many things, and hope to be able to endure all things. If there is anything virtuous, lovely, or of good report or praiseworthy, we seek after these things.

The name of Joseph Smith is appended at the close of these articles.

In 1842, at the time that an effort was being made by the Latter Day Saints, at Nauvoo, to secure legislative enactment in Congress in redress of injuries sustained at the hands of unlawful persons, in the state of Missouri, and to secure immunity from further troubles of like character in Illinois, there was in the Congress of the United States a gentleman from Chicago whose name was John Wentworth, known among politicians as "Long John Wentworth," on account of his extreme height. Mr. Wentworth was interested in this question at the time that the matter was pending, and as he was the owner and publisher of a newspaper in Chicago called the Chicago Democrat, he sent to his man of business in Chicago to send an embassy down to Nauvoo to examine the people there, and find out what their faith was, as some accusations were made against the people, and some strange statements made touching some portions of their belief. Mr. Wentworth sent his man of business there, and he stayed some little time; and when he went back he carried that statement of belief with him, signed by Joseph Smith, in 1842. He published it in the Chicago Democrat and it went all over the northern part of the state and of course was sent down into Nauvoo.

In 1844 a gentleman, by the name of I. Daniel Rupp, published a work—I suppose at Philadelphia, it doesn't say, I believe, on the title page where it was published—but it is entitled, "A History of the Religious Denominations of the United States." In that work is a chapter furnished Mr. Rupp by Joseph Smith; and here again, in 1844, this declaration of belief was furnished by Joseph Smith to this Mr. Rupp, to be published abroad in the world; so that in 1842, in the public newspapers of Illinois, published also in the Times and Seasons, the official Journal of the church at the time, this declaration of faith was made by the leading officer of the church. It was followed in 1844, the year that he was killed, by this publication in this public work that may be found in a great many libraries of the United States at the present time.

In 1892 I was invited to attend a mass meeting in Chicago, in the month of February. I was expected to form a part of the coterie of speakers to that meeting in Farwell Hall, and, to my surprise, when I reached the city, I discovered that the Honorable Judge Caton, ex-judge of Illinois, was presiding at the meeting. Mr. Wentworth was present. Dr. Thomas, Bishop Fallows and a large number of other representative men of the city were there; and I learned that it was expected of me to be the chief speaker upon that occasion. I presented our position of the question at issue with what liberty was given me, and when the proper time came, I asked Judge Caton if I might ask the Honorable Wentworth a question. He said I might, so I asked him if it was true that while he was in Congress that he sent an embassy to Nauvoo to make inquiry touching the belief of the people, and if he did so, whether he received the statement and published it. He said he did. I said, "Will you now please tell this congregation assembled in Farwell Hall, whether or not there was in that statement that you received from Joseph Smith there, any provision for the doctrine of plural marriage or polygamy?" I don't know whether any of you have ever seen Mr. Wentworth or not, but whether you have or not, he was a very large man and had a voice like a lion, and as I asked him this question, he roared out, "Not a line, sir."

Now my object in calling your attention to this card is that it is the faith into which I was baptized by my father. This was the faith that hundreds and thousands of people were baptized into. Under the administration of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, from 1830 to 1844, the date of his death, there had been a sufficiently prosperous propagandism carried on in the United States and Europe, so that in this published statement in 1844, by I. D. Rupp, furnished him by Joseph Smith, was one to the effect that there were from one hundred and fifty to two hundred thousand communicants or members of the church. Now, whether these numbers were correct or not, it is not necessary for me to inquire, I simply give it as it was published.

Out of that number a great many did not accept the introduction of this new dogma, and refused utterly to accept it. My mother, my father's brothers and my father's sisters and their families and myself, with a great number of others, refused to accept the new regime.

In connection with that, I have here what is called the book of Doctrine and Covenants. It answers in a sense to the discipline of the churches. It is, in fact, a compilation of the various revelations said to have been received by the president of the church, which became the law to the church, and in that book of Doctrine and Covenants is the specific declaration, passed and adopted in 1835, by a Solemn Assembly of the Officers of the church, the whole body combined together, called a "Solemn Assembly." This book of Doctrine and Covenants was published in 1835. There was an attempt made to publish a Book of Commandments in 1833 in the town of Independence, Missouri, but a mob came upon the people who were making that publication and destroyed the press and the book before it was ever issued to the public. It was compiled and published in 1835, and this that I present to you now, here, put in the book. You will discover my reason for making the statement, and I want to say that whatever I may say in this regard, I say with all due deference to the feelings of everybody, but with the direct understanding that these are the fundamental principles upon which the Reorganized church is based, and which forms the ground work very largely of the attitude that myself and my brothers have taken in this controversy, so-called, between the Latter Day Saints.

This is an article called "Marriage." It is section 111 of this book, and I am sorry that I cannot tell you the section in the book of these people (the Utah organization). Now my reason for my great grief in this respect, if it may be called grief, is simply this: that from 1835 to 1876 this covenant of marriage was published in all the editions of the book of Doctrine and Covenants, published by every faction, so-called, of the whole Mormon church; not a single edition was ever issued until the fall of 1876, that did not contain this section or this article on marriage. I, myself, have seen the editions of 1845 and 1846, 1852, 1854, 1856 published in Liverpool, England, under the administration of Elder Orson Pratt, and the edition in 1869, published by Albert Carrington, at Islington, in which this section on marriage was published, and it was not until the fall of 1876 that there was an edition published in Utah which eliminated this section of marriage, and inserted a so-called revelation said to have been received in 1843, providing for a different form of marriage, a different system of marriage. This was not until the fall of 1876. I give you the dates, and if you care to hunt them up you will see that my statements are correct. Further than that, it was not until 1852, August 29th, that there was ever a public declaration made of a difference of faith in this respect. It was not till then that a public declaration of faith in plural marriage was made. It was made in the Tabernacle at Salt Lake City, and Elder Orson Pratt preached the first discourse in public defense of plural marriage that was ever had in the so-called Mormon church. I want you all to bear these dates in mind. I am responsible for the statements as I make them and have the proofs where they can be had if it is questioned.

Now the Articles of Faith:

"All legal contracts of marriage made before a person is baptized into this church, should be held sacred and fulfilled."

This is our position with regard to the general system of marriage.

"Inasmuch as this Church of Christ has been reproached with the crime of fornication, and polygamy: we declare that we believe that one man should have one wife: and one woman but one husband, except in case of death when either is at liberty to marry again."

Now I have been told that it is held by some that this restricts the woman to one husband, but it does not restrict the man to but one wife. Any person reading that statement will discover that when the word "either" is used, when "either is at liberty to marry again," it provides for a distinctive agreement between but two persons, and when I read the preliminary statement, "Marriage should be celebrated with prayer and thanksgiving; and at the solemnization, the persons to be married standing together, the man on the right, and the woman on the left, shall be addressed by the person officiating as he shall be directed by the Holy Spirit; and if there be no legal objections, he shall say, calling each by their names:

'You both mutually agree to be each other's companion; husband and wife, observing the legal rights belonging to this condition; that is, keeping yourselves wholly for each other, and from all others, during your lives.' And when they have answered 'Yes,' he shall pronounce them 'husband and wife' in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and by virtue of the laws of the country and authority vested in him." It clearly defines but two parties to the contract.

This in direct respect unto the law of the land; and it fortunately happens for us in assuming this attitude that there was not a single state, nor a territory in which there were legal enactments passed touching the marriage relation, but what made the having of more than one wife a bigamous transaction, and held the parties so doing to be punished by a fine and imprisonment according to the turpitude of the act. There was no latitude given for any other than this monogamous institution of marriage.

I make the statement for this reason: that sometime in the early days of the church there was given to this people a commandment touching the laws of the land, and when I shall read it in your hearing, you will understand why I make this statement. The revelation to which I refer was given August, 1831. Some important events have happened to this church in August, and I apprehend that this meeting is an important one; it may prove to be such.

"Let no man think that he is ruler, but let God rule him that judgeth, according to the counsel of his own will; or, in other words, him that counseleth or sitteth upon the judgment seat. Let no man break the laws of the land, for he that keepeth the laws of God hath no need to break the laws of the land; wherefore be subject to the powers that be, until He reigns whose right it is to reign, and subdues all enemies under his feet. Behold, the laws which ye have received from my hand are the laws of the church, and in this light ye shall hold them forth. Behold, here is wisdom."—Doc. & Cov. 58: 5.

I may not compromise other speakers here in regard to what I may say in this particular moment of my discussion, but here is an understanding that I have had from the first; and it is this: that God, being an unchangeable Being, having direct supervision and cognizance of the affairs that were transpiring upon the earth and among His people, and as we have been fondly taught in the past, believing that this land was to be the arena upon which a great many of these revelations for the evolution of the Christ idea in the world, and for the publication abroad of religious and political freedom until it should go unto every nation, kindred, tongue and people, under the whole heavens, have believed that this work should be done under republican institutions, and that the constitution adopted by America in her Confederation of States, from first to last, should be respected both by me and by those who were to be subject to their governments, whether they were Democratic or whether they were Republican, so far as the administration is concerned; and now the question with me has been, if He gave a law in 1831 that required the people which He called His church to observe, and to keep the laws of the land, it is incompatible with our conception of His unchangeable character, that He Himself would give a command to that same people, that they should do things that would bring them under the ban of the law. It is an incomprehensible thing to me, and has been from the first, and has formed one of the strongest reasons why I have lifted my voice against any other interpretation of the marriage covenant than that adopted by the church in 1835.

I will give you some other reasons for that, and then you shall see why. Now, the question with me is, How long were these laws, which are said to have been instituted by Him, how long are they to continue? And I am answered, that it shall be until He reigns whose right it is to reign; and if there is any interval provided for in that revelation, I am not able to see where it is. I read some things in this edition of 1835, of the Doctrine and Covenants, that are provided in the law in what is called the 42d section of the book, and that was given in 1831.

"Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received, which have been given unto thee in my Scriptures for a law, to be my law, to govern my church; and he that doeth according to these things shall be saved, and he that doeth them not shall be damned, if he continues."

I cannot see any latitude there for deviating from that which has been given us in His Scriptures, which He has given us as His law to govern us as a people. And if there are any people anywhere in all the United States who are now practicing any religious formulas, or holding them out to the people, as preachers, and as trying to be the people of God, who are bound to keep the laws of the church and the laws of the land, it is the people called Latter Day Saints, under whatever other name they may chance to go.

I read farther the provision in this law and you will discover that I am treating it affirmatively.

"And again I say, Thou shalt not kill; but he that killeth shall die. Thou shalt not steal; and he that stealeth, and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt not lie; he that lieth and will not repent, shall be cast out. Thou shalt love thy wife with all thy heart, and shall cleave unto her and none else."—42: 7.

No provision for more than one. I am commanded therefore, to love my wife: love her with all my heart, and love no other man's wife, and no other woman, as my wife. That is the plain term of that language. That was given as a revelation. I will tell you in the next verse that I read, the reason why, and plant, so far as I and my brethren of the Reorganized church are concerned, a plank so sure that it never can be disturbed.

In the 49th section of this book of Doctrine and Covenants (this revelation was given in 1831)—on the occasion of the giving of this revelation it was thought best, by the officers of the church, to send a messenger unto the people called the Shakers, and the question was asked, What shall be the attitude when those elders shall go to these people. As a natural consequence, believing in the doctrine of Revelation at the time, they presented it to the Lord, and here is what He told them:

"And again, I say unto you, that whoso forbiddeth to marry, is not ordained of God, for marriage is ordained of God unto man; wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife."—Par. 3.

It is a fact it was lawful in the eyes of the land, in every state where the church had an existence, up to the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith. "Wherefore it is lawful that he should have one wife, and they twain shall be one flesh." Now, if it is argued, "It doesn't say that it is unlawful to have more than one wife," the one word "twain" limits it, according to this revelation, according to the strictest rendition of the laws of the English language, there is no possibility to make it more than one. I know that there are some lawyers here, and they understand that when an individual appeals to what is called the statutory enactments, he must construe them strictly, if not, the court will construe them strictly for him; and if he seeks to take advantage of it, he must keep within the strict letter of the law; if he does not the court will find against him, because he must not take advantage of his own wrong. "They twain shall be one flesh."

I am happy to say that in a great many of the commandments of the New and Old Testament Scriptures, He has given to the people to whom the commandment came, a reason why He has given them the commandments, and that is the very case in this one, "And all this that the earth might answer the end of its creation, and that it might be filled with the measure of man according to his creation before the world was made." Away back yonder, when they were considering how the world should be made, when the divine counsel was being held in the courts of heaven, there was a provision by which this earth should be enabled to answer the end of its creation, and be filled with the measure of man, and from that time on until this, so long as the earth has had an existence, God has seen to it that He has kept constantly before the minds of men that this was His rule and divine intention; because there has been a constant equality between the sexes from that time to this.

You take the United States for instance. You may find in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, a majority of women; but you will find in the west that the men are largely in the majority, and especially so in Montana, Utah, California, Iowa, and other states. God has set to His seal, and let me tell you as an instance, some of you may be curious to hunt it up; in a report made to the Utah church in 1889, it was certified by the one who made it that there were twelve hundred boy babies born in the territory of Utah, and eleven hundred girl babies; and the statistics will show that from the age of fifteen to the age of thirty-nine, the usual marriageable ages—though there are some of us that sometimes marry older than that—there was always a persistent larger number of men than there were women. God has set to His seal that He intended to keep His law prominently before the people in this very particular, that the earth might answer the end of its creation and be filled with the measure of man.

I am somewhat skeptical and have little regard to superstition; but when I can see a concurrence between the commandments of God, and the things that we see around us in this material world, I see what God has intended, so far as we are concerned as a people. He has not at any time given us a commandment that was temporal, but spiritual. The spiritual dominates and how is it? We go to the history of the world as found in the Bible, and in the 2d chapter of Genesis, we find that the Lord, stated after the creation, Behold He saw everything that He had made, and it was good, very good. I believe that is the language of the Scripture, and when we come down to the end of the 2d chapter, "Therefore for this cause shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife; and they shall be one flesh." In that case it simply seems to associate the thought that there was to be a husband and a wife. How does it appear? I will repeat what a celebrated elder has said in this regard in a sermon by Elder Orson Pratt, in the tabernacle at Utah, October 9, 1869. He preached there a discourse in which he used this language: "The only marriage in which God ever officiated was in the garden of Eden, and it was the marriage between Adam and Eve." One man and one wife was the type of the celestial marriage. Whatever he may have known about it at the time, I am not disposed to say. In this language found in the 2d of Genesis, the word "twain" does not occur, but when you come to Matthew 19, Christ repeats this language when the question was asked Him who should be the certain wife, or why or whether it was lawful for man to put away his wife on every occasion. He says, "For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife and they twain shall be one flesh." Whose language was represented in Genesis? If Jesus Christ was with the counsel on high; if He was the one to make the laws for mankind, then when He came to repeat the language as it is found in Genesis,

He has the right to determine whether it should mean more than one or not, and the limiting word "twain," is in both the 19th of Matthew and in the 10th of Mark.

You will pardon me for having referred to this subject at all, but it seems that the time was opportune, the discussion pertinent, and that we ought to stand affirmatively before the people, and they ought to understand where we are in regard to this constantly recurring topic, that comes up for adjudication.

"Where are we? June 27, 1844, Joseph Smith was killed. It has been fifty-six years since he died, and it was not until eight years and two months after his death that there was a public change in this law governing the domestic relation among any people called Latter Day Saints. There was the admission of it. I am not going to enter into an account of how it was done. I simply point to the fact when it was done. Here am I, a son of Joseph Smith; I have brothers, and we have relations; and all through the country there are hundreds of individuals who belonged to the church in father's day, were baptized into the belief which I read from that card as he stated it, and were not baptized into any other conception of that marriage law, only the one adopted by the church in 1835, and published to the world continuously from that time on until 1876. Why should I be accounted as an apostate? No ecclesiastical court has set upon my case, and said I was an heretic; I have never been cited to appear before any ecclesiastical court and been cut off on account of apostasy. I believe that statement today, and that was the faith into which I was baptized; and it does not pledge me to one single hour's maintenance of any other rule than the simple monogamous rule that obtained under this government of ours from first to last; and I anticipate that it will continue until such time as He comes and rules. And then when He comes and rules, it may be His pleasure to do just what He will; but until He does come, I am not absolved from observing the things which, by revelation, He declared unto us were to be the laws unto His church; and if there is any value at all in the language which the Apostle Paul has written, "If an angel from heaven preach unto you any other gospel than that which you have received, let him be accursed." We are not in fault in this.

Now there is something more in this than we first see. We talk about the principles of salvation which come by an obedience to the laws of God. But if it was proper to give rules touching the domestic relation, He intended that when He should give them the laws they should be in force until He Himself should come and emancipate the people from under the rules that they were then in. Further than that, He has seen fit to take notice of our monetary affairs and has seen fit to give us a financial law or rule by which we may be governed financially. If He has seen fit to do these things, why is it there should be a diversity of opinion and such a laxity of practice in reference to it? That is a mystery to me and has been. I have been preaching forty years. I have been trying to call the attention of the people to these things as they existed. I do not often mention them. I have the best of feeling for those who are of different beliefs. But when God tells us that we are to take the Scriptures to be our guide and the "man of our counsel," and we find these things so steadfastly stated in the Scriptures, we are not at liberty to disregard them.

"Well, but," says some one, "does not the Scripture sanction plural marriage?" I answer as I answered a man in California with whom I went to secure the use of his hall. He was a lawyer and said to me, "Mr. Smith, you can never prove from the Bible that plural marriage was not sanctioned by God." I replied, "If I do not do it I will agree to pay you for your hall, but if I do do it legally, by legal argument, what will you charge me for your hall?" He says, "I will charge you nothing." I did not pay for that hall either.

Now take that statement from the 2d of Genesis, and it means but two, as it is interpreted by Jesus Christ himself as reported by both Matthew and Mark. In the 6th chapter of Genesis you will find in the opening of the chapter that there is an indictment brought against the sons of God. I have been taught by the traditional teachings of the church of God that the sons of God were the priesthood. Admit it for the sake of the argument, although I do not say that I admit it. "The sons of God saw that the daughters of men were fair and they took to themselves wives of all whom they would," and it was followed by a bitter denunciation against their transaction and the statement was made, "My Spirit shall not always strive with man." He has corrupted his ways on the earth and as a consequence he is subject to condemnation.

In the 2d of Malachi there is an indictment again brought against Israel and the statement was made that there were follies wrought in Israel. Men had forgotten the wives of their youth, which was a folly wrought in Israel, and why should they observe this rule, and the statement is there made, "And did not he make one? Yet had he the residue of the spirit. And wherefore one?" Had he not the residue of the Spirit? Surely he had, and if it had been His will that this should have been a different rule, would He not have made it at the beginning? I surely think so.

Further than that, after the Lord had visited the world with the flood, and had destroyed men from off the face of the earth, how did He propose to rebuild it again? This is a historical fact. It was by Noah and his sons, and each of them with one wife. A historical fact in keeping with forms of creation. And again so far as we as a people are concerned, take the history of the Book of Mormon, and when we find God bringing Lehi out from Jerusalem in order that he might raise up a righteous branch from the loins of Joseph, He goes to work and brings out Lehi with his three sons and Zoram, each of them with one wife, and only one. It seems to me that God was very forgetful of His business at the flood if He did not give Noah and his sons more than one wife if that had been a correct principle and pleasing to Him. And why did not He tell Lehi that he should have more than one if it was necessary that it should be done in order that the earth might be peopled. It seems to me He slept upon His right, using a term you will all understand, if He did not intend the laws to be as I have shown you.

There is one thing that God has no right to do. God has no right to lie, nor has He ever commanded a man from the time of creation to now that has a right to lie; I do not care what priesthood he has, nor what his name may be. God has never authorized a representative of Jesus Christ to lie or to deal doubly with the families of men. And as I look upon the history of Jesus Christ I find Him walking in earnestness of life. "A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." He spoke no idle words unto mankind. He held no two faces to the world, but steadfastly one and the same, both to friend and to foe; no deceitfulness there; none whatever.

And now, my friends, with all these things staring us in the face, are we willing to accept a transmission from this one husband and one wife rule, given in this way, to something that is entirely different from it, involving a breaking of the laws of the land, which we are told we are to be under no obligation to do? Are we? I am simply asking for information.

Touching my own acts I am before the American public as the son of Joseph Smith, in a sense responsible to mankind for the kind of character that they shall form of Joseph Smith; and as his son I am interested in everything that will relieve his memory of obloquy and defend him against injustice and false aspersion. I am not, as his son, obliged to take the statements of anybody as derogatory to his character before the American public without I have the proofs of those who accuse him of that which they assert; and if the proofs are presented I have the right to examine them in a legal manner from first to last; and so with every added proof that is presented, I have the right to try it by every means in my power, to try whether it is legal or not. As his son I have the right to do this. As a member of the church, baptized into this faith which I have read in your hearing, I have the right, when anything else is introduced as a doctrine in the church and given to us for acceptance, I have the right to examine it, and if it contravenes the statement made by revelation to the church or in Holy Writ, I have the right to reject it and say it does not find place in our economy.

Is there anything wrong about that attitude? This is the attitude of the people whom I represent this morning, and this is the character of our teaching where recognized today. It is true. We have no fault to find for a man believing just as he pleases, but when we talk about the law of God binding upon him then we must come to an agreement upon what the law is. This is our attitude.

I feel like asking pardon from some of those who came to hear Joseph Smith preach this morning, that perhaps the topic may have been ill chosen for them. I hope not. I hope they will understand the reason why we do it and that we do it in a fair feeling toward others.

I thank you for the kindness with which you have listened to me.

WORD FROM HEAVEN! LET ALL RESPOND.

THE LORD HAS SPOKEN! "THE COLLEGE DEBT SHOULD BE PAID."

The church direction of General Conference built an edifice, known as "Graceland College," at Lamoni, Iowa. The building committee, to complete the house, with furnace, out buildings, etc., which, together with expense of running the school for a time, incurred a debt of about twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00). It was then required of the bishopric, by the General Conference, to raise the money and pay the indebtedness. They accepted the responsibility, and went to work in good faith to raise the means and discharge the obligation.

At the Conference of 1900, they proposed to raise the money by getting one thousand subscriptions of twenty-five dollars each ($25.00), or its equivalent, to be collected when the necessary amount was subscribed. They sent out subscription papers and asked the agents, missionaries and others to aid them by getting subscriptions. Many responded and worked nobly, some made but very little effort, and a few even opposed it, after General Conference had sanctioned the plan proposed, and sent them out to represent the church and its interests. This made it very hard for the bishopric to carry out the order of the Conference, and was very embarrassing; and perhaps not more than half enough to cancel the debt had been subscribed.

This spring the church, as a whole, sought the Lord by fasting and prayer, asking for light, guidance and direction in the work; and their pleadings prevailed with the Great Law Giver. The Lord, knowing all the circumstances and what we needed, spoke, and among other things said:

"The college debt should be paid, and ministers going out from the conferences held by the elders of my church, are not expected or authorized to throw obstacles in the way of the accomplishment of that which has been intrusted to the bishopric, to pay this great debt. Their right to free speech, their right to liberty of conscience, does not permit them, as individuals, to frustrate the commands of the body in conference assembly. They are sent out as ministers to preach the gospel, and their voices, if opposed to what may be presented to conference, should be heard in the conferences and not in the mission fields, to prevent the accomplishment of the object with which the officers of the church have been entrusted."

This comes to us with great force in the light of present existing conditions. The Lord has said:

"I will give unto the faithful, line upon line, precept upon precept; and I will try you and prove you herewith."—D. & C. 95: 8.

Now, after asking and receiving, let us show our faithfulness by doing what the Lord has said; and let the college debt be paid. Let all who have subscribed send in their subscriptions, and enough more subscribe and send in their subscriptions to lift the debt at once, or as soon as possible. In this way all can prove their faithfulness by what they do. Jesus said, Luke 6: 46, "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say." Now after we have called on the Lord and He has spoken, and said, "The college debt should be paid," will we faithfully and willingly respond? Consistency says yes, do what He has said before you ask again, or expect an answer, if you should ask.

I have said, and believe that the majority of the Saints wanted to do the Father's will; and, having confidence, we make this appeal, and ask the bishops and bishop's agents, presidents of missions, districts, stakes and branches, together with all missionaries, to bring this matter before the Saints and friends in their several charges and fields, as soon as possible, and let all who can give, subscribe liberally; and the amount necessary to lift this burden be sent into the bishop at once; and by so doing release the church of this great debt before the bishop goes to Europe. We all shall then be glad by doing what the Lord said in the last revelation should be done; and thus place ourselves (if faithful in other things) where we may ask again and expect the good Lord to answer. The presiding bishop concurs in this, THE COLLEGE DEBT SHOULD BE PAID.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Woman's Influence.

The question is asked, What influence has woman? We answer, woman's influence is unlimited. It is omnipresent, extending from pole to pole; for wherever the foot of man has trod, is left the imprint of woman's influence. Her influence is the most powerful, the most potent element, percolating through all the different branches and ramifications of the great social structure, which is the hub round which all other factors revolve. We believe that Harriet Beecher Stowe furnished the key to the situation, when, in her dedicatory remarks in her book, entitled "The American Woman's Home," she said: "To the women of America in whose hands rest the destiny of our republic, as moulded by the early training and preserved amid the mature influences of home."

Home, the dearest spot on earth; home, woman's realm, from which emanates all that is noble and good; and—O! I would that it were not true—that which is ignoble and wicked. If the mothers, wives and sweethearts in Israel could be made to realize the potency of this God-given, but too oft perverted, power, we feel sure that better conditions would prevail in our little world—the church; for woman's influence is paramount to all others and ever has been since that memorable day in the Garden of Eden, when God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and taking from his side that superfluous rib, fashioned and brought into being that creature destined to become man's guiding star, upward into the realm of light and peace, or down into the abyss of darkness and woe.

Six thousand years ago the then predominating influence was revealed by Father Adam when he said, "The woman gave to me and I did eat." The Lord must have recognized this power in woman else He would not have forbidden the men of Israel to take unto themselves heathen wives. We find that Solomon, Israel's great king, with all his wisdom, was not able to resist this subtle power—woman's influence, for he took to himself seven hundred wives, many of whom were heathens, and in consequence, he who had once worshipped the God Jehovah, with all the fervor and earnestness of his soul, afterwards bowed down to wood and stone.

A striking instance of woman's influence is portrayed in the story of Antony and Cleopatra. Antony, a triumvir of Rome, the proudest and most powerful nation in the world, at that time, went into Asia for the purpose of settling the affairs of the provinces there. Here he met and fell a victim to the enchantment and dazzling beauty of Cleopatra, "The fair sorceress of the Nile." In her presence he forgot all else—ambition, home, and country. He put away his faithful wife, Octavia, for this beautiful enchantress, and abandoning himself to a life of luxury and voluptuousness, fortune no longer smiled upon him. Meeting with reverses upon the battlefield, he fell upon his own sword, and died a victim to the influences of an artful woman.

Going back into the legendary lore of the misty past, we have an example of the unprecedented influence a woman exerted over two powerful nations, the Trojans and Greeks. The story of the beautiful Helen of Troy, which has immortalized the name of Homer, and although written at least one thousand years before Christ, is still pre-eminently first in classical literature. Homer makes a woman the bone of contention which brought about the scenes of carnage and bloodshed so minutely described in the Iliad. We admit the story savors of the mythical; yet it shows the trend of men's minds, and the influence women exerted over them at that early date.

But we are glad to say that woman's influence has not always been evil. Coming down to Colonial times, Sir Edward Saunders, who had been unsuccessful in his attempts to plant a colony in Virginia, became convinced that homes were necessary to give permanence to the settlements in America, and at once sent over ninety young women, who were soon distributed among the colonists as wives. From this event dates the successful colonization of Virginia. No doubt it was this high appreciation of woman's influence that inspired Mr. Payne to write those lines which have brought tears to the eyes of thousands:

Home, sweet home, Be it ever so humble, There is no place like home.

Within its precincts, where woman's influence reigns, were born, nurtured and developed such characters as Gladstone, Bismark, Washington, and the immortal Lincoln. From whence come those qualities of heart and mind that made his idol of ## College Subscription Lists.

Attention of the Saints and friends of Graceland College is called to lists now being sent to the bishops and bishop's agents of the Stakes and districts of the church, for circulation and use among the people, in the church educational interests.

We have drawn up these lists making them due and payable on or before one year after July 1, 1901, thus assuring ample time and opportunity to all parties who are willing to aid in this work.

Many of the Saints have already subscribed what they were able to meet in this direction. To these we are not sending out new lists, but a word of commendation; but to those who have not entered their names and made an offering and consecration for this purpose, we urge that they call for the lists and enter their names at once. Subscribe as you feel will be proper and as you are able to give. The twenty-five dollars if you can—or more if you can do so; if not so much, let us have the amount, together with your good-will toward the institution and we are content.

The bishops and bishop's agents are instructed to present these lists to every member of their respective districts, and make returns of the same by the 10th of July next. We trust that every member of the church will awake to the interests of this work and assist in the notice and circulation of these subscription lists, that we may have them complete at the time indicated. Those who may wish to pay cash at the time of subscription may do so, handing to the agent and taking his receipt, and the money will be applied at once upon the college debt and stop interest on the amount paid. We desire, and should have, upon these college lists the name of every member in the church.

May the Lord especially bless every one who shall make a faithful effort to discharge this obligation.

In behalf of the bishopric,

E. L. KELLEY,
Presiding Bishop.

LAMONI, Ia., June 3.

A New Campaign.

At the late General Conference, three trustees for Graceland College were elected. The board is now organized for the ensuing year, and a new campaign is inaugurated under most favorable auspices.

Our Heavenly Father, ever rich in blessing, has most kindly advised the household of faith to pay the college debt, and as one who will honestly and faithfully seek to discharge every responsibility, will urge all those who subscribed a year ago, that they at once take counsel from on high, and send their contribution to Bishop E. L. Kelley; and all those who are able, or are willing to heed the direction of God, and have not yet cast in their portion, that they do so without hesitation or delay.

And at this juncture I would advise one and all, that it is again my lot to be on the watch-tower in behalf of this church work, for since the interest manifested in behalf of the college by the Divine One, we can write without any compunction of conscience: "Graceland College, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," and have no hesitation to appeal for financial help in the running expense; and in response to this call for aid, let each Saint satisfy themselves, that in the great day of final account they shall have the approval of Him that giveth to one and all a righteous compensation for all of earth's labors. I would not wish that any individual should contribute unwillingly, or grudgingly, but with an open hand, a free heart, and a hopeful spirit.

We did our best to run the college the past year without increasing the debt, and were disappointed to a degree, but now the Lord hath spoken, so we renew our work with hope and courage, that we shall this year be more successful.

Let parents give us an early assurance of students for next college year, and let all who can send us money, books for the library, and do not forget the museum and herbarium; especially do we ask those in foreign lands, and in the islands of the deep, to keep us in mind, to build up these departments.

Hoping to hear from many,

For Graceland,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.
Box 224, LAMONI, Ia., May 22.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints of the Central Nebraska district, Greeting:—Having been appointed to missionary labor in this district, we desire to say to the Saints that we are now starting in for a summer campaign. We purpose to commence the use of the district tent in the near future and shall need funds to defray necessary expenses. Those who desire to contribute can do so through their branch treasurer, or by sending directly to Levi Gamet, Imman, Nebraska, or to W. M. Rumel, Clearwater, Nebraska.

We again call attention to the necessity of sustaining the work with your tithes and offerings. These may be sent by draft, post office or Express order or registered letter to Levi Gamet, bishop's agent, Imman, Neb., and will be duly receipted for.

Those desiring labor in their respective neighborhoods please communicate with us at the above addresses, stating what are the opportunities for getting a hearing.

In order that all may know where the Central Nebraska district is, we will name the counties as follows: Knox, Pierce, Madison, Merrick, Nance, Boone, Antelope, Holt, Wheeler, Greeley, Howard, Sherman, Garfield, Valley, Keya Paha, Rock, Custer, Dawson north of the Platte, Blaine and Brown.

Let all the Saints feel that they have an individual interest in spreading the knowledge of a restored gospel among their associates: and be found active in the work "entrusted to all," for wherein we seek to bless others we bless ourselves.

W. M. RUMEL,
LEVI GAMET.

To the Saints and Loyal Missionaries of the Southwestern Mission:—I find it necessary to write this additional letter. Bro. W. H. Smart who was appointed to Northern Texas will, by his request, be permitted to labor in Oklahoma until August.

I will endeavor to get into my mission soon. Will probably go direct to San Antonio, Texas, and from there endeavor to reach the various points in my field. My address in San Antonio will be 1217 South Flores street, care of J. P. Neal.

Last year I made a request that no discussion be entered into only with the knowledge and consent of the missionary in charge of field where the discussion is to be held. Some have been unwise enough to disregard that request, but I make it again this year, and do so, not with any desire to use the gag upon any, but that the interests of the work be subserved, and that all things may be done decently and in order. And I urge upon those who may have these matters in charge, that they be not hasty in challenging, or if challenged, in accepting. There is more lost by haste than by the possibility of being called slow or cowards. Be sure first, that there is a necessity for the discussion, and then humbly and prayerfully proceed. I would advise that no agreement be entered into to hold more than one session each day. Give yourself plenty of time to get your evidences together, and the people plenty of time to digest the evidence. We are always placed on the defensive no matter which side of the question we take. All the different denominations consider us legitimate prey, and any means to down us is fair to them, and their champions desire to carry everything with a flourish of trumpets and by throwing dust in the air and not giving us time to clean the atmosphere so the people can see clearly. I insist on having your rights and maintaining an honorable controversy, and God will give you victory.

Another trick of the opposition is to lessen the number of sessions to be held. I would not consent to less than six on each proposition, if church propositions are to be discussed, and I would advise more. You will then have little enough time to get our faith fully before the people, besides answering the slanderous statements that are always, or nearly always, made against us, and which must receive more or less attention in refutation.

We are anxious, or should be, for the fullest and freest investigation, hence the necessity of plenty of time. I never have held but one debate, hence, cannot call myself a debater, and while I have had but little experience personally along this line, I believe that, there is, at least, common sense in the above suggestion, so commend them to you for a trial.

Hoping that the utmost unity may prevail in the ranks of all my co-laborers in their intercourse with each other and myself. I am,

Yours in bonds,

HYRUM O. SMITH,
Missionary in Charge.

Mrs. Ed. Lamb, Sec.
722 N. Walnut St., Kewanee, Ill.

The Spring River district Sunday School convention will meet with the Pleasant View branch near Knifeton, Kansas, at 9 a. m., Friday, June 7th. According to resolution of last convention the whole time of meeting will be employed in Institute work.

The district Relic also at its last meeting decided to meet with the Sunday School at same place and date and engage with it in the same line of discussion.

We urge the attendance of every member of the church.

MOLLIE DAVIS, Supt.

M. S. FRICK, Sec.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 27.

Berry's Ferry Reunion.

We do not think it too early to remind you of the "big time" we are going to have at Berry's Ferry, Indian Territory, four miles north of Fairland, in August: the exact date will be given later.

The conference of the Spring River district declared some months ago that we would hold a grand reunion of all the Saints that could be induced to attend. The same conference also appointed a committee to supply the meals, or arrange for a boarding house on the grounds, to be conducted on the co-operative plan. This will relieve all the mothers, wives and sisters from the burdensome task of cooking, dishwashing, etc. The cooking will all be done by two cooks and their assistants, and meals served on seven long tables, accommodating at one sitting two hundred people.

Co-operation means that all concerned will work together to successfully accomplish the end desired; hence all attending will be willing to help as directed by the general committee. We all know, by experience, that there is truth in the maxim, "Many hands make light work." We are going to request of every one, where it is practical, to bring a breakfast plate, and if you use coffee, a cup and saucer, and families will bring plates enough for family, and two extra, also two or three table cloths, and two tea towels. None of these articles need be your best. Put your name or mark on each article. Bring your own toilet outfit for tent use. The committee will pay you the market price for flour, produce, chickens, etc., but if you have to haul it very far, better sell near home and bring the money. Your meals will not exceed 7 cents, and we believe less than six cents.

We want to engage two practical, experienced cooks, who can furnish good recommendations. Any cook capable of filling the place, write to the secretary immediately, stating terms for ten days' service.

The committee for the above arrangements is O. P. Sutherland, M. S. Frick, W. S. Macrae. Address all communications to

M. S. FRICK, Sec.

222½ Empire St., Joplin, Mo.

Religio Notice.

The Far West, Missouri, district Religio convention will meet at Kingston, Missouri, June 28th, at 7:30 p. m. All locals be sure and send reports and delegate credentials to J. A. Gardner, Station C, St. Joseph, Missouri. Let all make an effort to come. Election of officers will take place.

WALTER W. SMITH, Dist. Pres.

WARNING!

One Frank Anderson, a member of the Newport branch, Garden Grove, California, has obtained money on false pretenses by altering checks and giving false checks. When last heard from he was in St. Louis. Let all the Saints take notice and be governed accordingly.

A. CARMICHAEL,

President of Newport Branch.
ANAHEIM, Cal., May 21.

MARRIED.

LETTON-WARMOTH.—At the home of the bride's parents, 2008 East 19th Street, Kansas City, Missouri, May 29, 1901, Mr. Riley Letton and Miss Celia Warmoth, Elder P. C. Warnky officiating.

DIED.

(One hundred words free. One cent for each word over 100, and for every word of poetry. Amount should be remitted with notice, to insure publication.)

CARR.—At Döber, Indiana, May 16, 1901, Rosie Foster Carr, grand-daughter of Sr. Davies. Born March 3, 1897. Funeral in charge of W. C. Marshall and P. A. Flinn; remarks by M. R. Scott, Jr.

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too. 25¢ a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

C. ED. MILLER, BUSINESS MGR.

ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Make all remittances, and address all communications to Ernest Turner House, Box 11, Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

New subscriptions can begin at any time. It is possible to avoid it, never send later as it is liable to wear through the envelope and be lost.

Always give the name of the post office to which your paper is sent or we can not find your name or our lists.

When desiring your address changed, give both the old and new address. Papers will be discontinued one month from the time subscriptions expire, unless ordered continued.

In making remittances, money orders are preferable for they are absolutely safe. If you can avoid it, do not send coin or stamps. Canadian stamps are an entire loss, and Canadian currency is only worth ninety cents on the dollar to us, for that is all we can get for it at the bank.

Letters should be addressed, and orders and drafts made payable to

PARENTAL OBLIGATIONS.

Parenthood always has, and always will carry with it large responsibilities of gravity and importance, and while this fact does not appear to impress itself upon every parent as it should, it is nevertheless true that it is a trust which must be accounted for at the end of the individual's stewardship, if not before. "Husbands love your wives," "and the wife see that she reverence her husband," are admonitions which may not be disregarded without suffering. It is due to the child as well as to the father and mother that this instruction should be heeded; the habitual deference paid each other in the home, will leave its impress upon the offspring, and render the submission and obedience to parental authority more natural and easy. If the child is raised in an atmosphere of quarreling, and contention, the fruitage which will result will be unhappy for both parent and child. But where an example of loving consideration for each other's feelings, and kindly patience with each other's failings is habitually shown by husband and wife, it will be more natural for the offspring to develop the same habits, and thus grow up unto years of discretion under an influence which will do much towards shaping their character to, in turn, bless other associations and companionships. If there were no other consequences than this, it alone would repay all the effort necessary to accomplish a result so fraught with blessings to all. But the effect on the spiritual nature is of even greater importance, reaching as it does into eternity.

There has, apparently been too little attention paid to child training in the home in the past; too much laxity is, in some respects, more to be deplored than too much rigor; under the former as the child grows up, there is generally a tendency to disregard all authority, which is sure to lead to trouble for the individual thus dominated, and for those to whom his welfare is of special import and interest. While there are instances where an excess of severity has resulted disastrously—and extremes should never be countenanced—yet a firm and careful training by the parents, both working in harmony to the same end, will, as a rule, be of incalculable benefit and blessing to parents, offspring and society. But how dreadful, and indiscribably unwise it is for the husband and wife to pursue a policy of opposition to each other in the government, correction and control of the children; such a course is almost certain in every case, to cause a loss of respect on the part of the children, and unfit them for the development of self government; and the child who is not from early comprehension of things taught this important duty, will have a difficult matter in acquiring it, if indeed he ever does, when he has attained maturity.

We have known of instances where the love of a mother for her children amounted to an idolatry. No violation of the rules of good conduct in her children was ever, in her judgment, so serious as to require other than a deprecatory remonstrance; and if the father, with greater discernment and wisdom, saw the necessity for stern reproof or corporeal correction, the mother placed herself as the champion of the children, to prevent them receiving a deserved and necessary lesson, and if, as it has occurred, the father for the sake of peace has unwisely yielded his prerogatives in the matter, his power as a ruler in his family has suffered, and the children have learned to despise and disregard him, as they have grown towards their majority. The result has been that the children have themselves seized the reins of government, become a law unto themselves, and as a consequence, become a source of annoyance to those around them. Even the mother, who was responsible chiefly for this condition, was not respected by her children, and toward her they have used words of harshness and contempt. Such a manifestation is not only displeasing to the Lord, but is also to all good men and women who love the right. But the most unfortunate result of this lack of harmony in training children, is that the children in thus despising parental authority, become so heady and arrogant, that they even despise, or at least treat very lightly, the appointments of the Lord's house, and unhesitatingly show their disrespect whenever they attend divine services. This is truly a grievous sin, for which, perhaps, they will not be held more responsible than will be the parents, for their failure to exercise proper discipline and authority at the right time.

To properly train a tree or a vine, commencement must be made when they are very young. So with the child, the training should commence with its earliest conception of things around it. And as the training of the tender vine and young tree must be carefully, and tenderly, yet very firmly done, so it is needless that carefulness, tenderness and firmness must be exercised in training an immortal spirit, that the little one may grow up a comfort to parents, a benefit to society and a pleasant companion for associates. Too many young parents seem to regard their offspring, especially their first born, as a child would a pleasant toy, something with which to amuse themselves and help pass away the time. They fail to realize the heavy responsibility they have assumed in becoming parents; that to their charge is committed the training of a soul for eternity. Most parents are anxious to train their children so that their welfare in this life will be enhanced; making that the chief object in life. They seem to think that if their child's success in this life is assured, they have performed the most important part of their obligation as parents. How short sighted and lacking in knowledge of the truth, is such policy.

But there should also be care used towards each other by husband and wife before children are given into their charge. In these days of science and good books, written on almost every subject of importance to the welfare of humanity, it should not be difficult to get proper understanding; the functions of the body should be carefully studied and their demands heeded, so that when a child is born into the world it shall not be handicapped by hereditary weaknesses that entail upon it all its life, suffering and disease. It is due the child; it is due the Lord; it is due the world, and even the parents, that it shall be as free from taints of disease when it is born, as a human body may be. It is due the child that he may be free to develop his powers of body and mind to the fullest possible extent, so that the influence he may have in his sphere shall not be restricted by having to devote time and strength to correcting evils for which he is not directly responsible. It is due the Lord, that the child may be able to comprehend the purposes of his Creator in his being; be able to give earnest, pure and devoted service to God's work, in whatever direction he may be called to labor, and thus conserve the interests entrusted to him, to the glory of God and the benefit of the world. Disease is hurtful to both mind and body, restraining the powers and often lessening the capacity for good service; and it is just possible that the adversary may use individuals as his agents for the very purpose of lessening the forcefulness and effective influence a child would otherwise more fully exercise.

It is due the world that the child should be free from disease that he might the better be able to occupy a place for good in the midst of his fellows, exerting a moral force and a noble influence to elevate men and bring them nearer the ideal of the Creator in their creation; and lastly, it is due the parents themselves that they may have joy and comfort in the development of those for whose existence they are responsible, and that they do not have either to reproach themselves for lack of wisdom, nor be distressed at any failures their loved ones may make by reason of the unfortunate conditions under which they came into the world. It should be the highest ambition of all parents to so train their offspring, and to develop such traits of character in them that they may be of the greatest use in the service of God, and of the highest value to their fellows; to this end they should work together harmoniously that God may be glorified and the world blessed by their labors.

Stewardship and its accountability none may avoid. It is with every living soul. How best to fulfill, and to correctly discharge the duties appertaining thereto, should be carefully and prayerfully considered, if the reward each hopes to attain is realized, when the judgment is "set." Parental responsibility is a matter for deep and earnest and prayerful study, conscientiously pressing forward in right lines, as wisdom is sought and obtained, and so at the end the "Well done" of the Master will be sweet indeed to the anxious, faithful toiler.

EDITORIAL ITEMS

BRN. H. E. MOLER and Elmer E. Long were at Radcliff, Ohio, June 5th, from which point they were to go to Davisville, and from there into Gallia and Lawrence counties, Ohio.

ELDER J. M. TERRY advises June 10th that he expected to reach St. Joseph, Missouri, his appointment for this conference year, on the 12th, and to enter into the work at once. His health, while not good, is greatly improved, and he is still growing stronger. The Millersburg, Illinois conference, he says, was a great success. The district was well represented, and the spirit was good. We are glad to hear of the improvement in Bro. Terry's health, and hope he may speedily regain all his strength. He is an energetic consistent worker in the vineyard, and we hope he may be spared for many years of successful work therein.

THE MANAGERS of the Missouri State Fair to be held at Sedalia, Missouri, September 9-13 next, have issued a neat "Preliminary announcement" in pamphlet form. The grounds comprise 136 acres just outside the city limits, reached by the Missouri Pacific and M. K. & T. railroad. The Fair management announce "The greatest Live Stock exhibit on earth." "First in Poultry and Poultry products, with an annual output of 14,000,000.00." "We lead the world in variety and excellence of agricultural products." "Missouri destined to be the orchard of the globe." "A mineral output that rivals the Klondyke," etc. This will serve to indicate the position and importance of Missouri as a wealth producer and as a desirable place to inhabit.

SOME ONE in Ohio sent us June 2d a 25 cent coin for the ENSIGN. They however neglected the little formality of attaching either signature or address to the order, and unfortunately the post office stamp was so illegible it could not be deciphered even with a magnifying glass. It is probable this same "some one" will think the employees of the ENSIGN office are very dilatory and unbusiness-like in filling orders. That's the usual estimate in such cases. We await further advice.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. SARAH WOODS, Blackwell, Oklahoma.

I would be glad to hear from some small family of Saints living in Oklahoma or southern Kansas who are in need of help through harvest and who have church privileges.

BRO. J. L. GARNER, Echo, Indian Territory, June 3:

As we have preaching only now and then, in private houses, the silent preacher is a welcome visitor. Our branch is in fairly good shape considering our opportunities. We have something near $50.00 subscribed for a church building; there are only six families of us and all are poor. There could be a great deal of good done here if we only had a house. Our branch (Lamanite) has 21 members, of which 15 are Lamanite by blood.

S. C. BAUDER, Low Moor, Iowa, renewing for the ENSIGN, says:

I would hardly know what to do on a Sunday without the reading matter contained in the ENSIGN, especially the sermons. I do not belong to any church at present, but think when a favorable opportunity comes I shall join the Latter Day Saints.

M. C. MORRIS, Ava, Douglas County, Missouri:

We have a good Sunday School and very good attendance: there are some outsiders who are attending the school. Bro. James Davis and A. M. Baker are holding a series of meetings here now. They have good attendance and interest.

BRO. JAMES H. BAKER, Nye, Oklahoma Territory, June 4:

I would like to ask through the columns of your paper that if there are any Saints living in Beaver county, Oklahoma, they write to me. I am laboring at Nye and am having quite good success with good interest and very little prejudice.

ELDER F. G. FITZ, 538 Park avenue, East End Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, June 6th:

We may have to spend most of our time in this city as Independence is about to claim another of our leading men, and as a result our branch is left without a presiding elder. I am glad to say the way seems to be opening up for us to build our new church this summer, and we feel encouraged. I had the pleasure of preaching in the Congregational church at McKeesport, Pennsylvania, last Sunday evening. I had good liberty and excellent interest. We have secured the church for two nights next week: all this through interest of a friend to the cause, a Mr. Cadow, who I think will soon be one of our number.

ELDER A. MCKENZIE, Five Lakes, Lapeer County, Michigan:

I am devoting all my time on the farm this summer breaking up new ground and trying to get something ahead so as to be able to do a work for the Master this fall and winter. A week ago last Sunday I met with the Saints at Juniata, Michigan, and blessed the bread and wine for them, they being without officers since the Hartsells moved away. We held two meetings; the evening meeting was well attended, the church being almost full and I was blessed with good liberty. I was made glad to see so many with whom we used to meet in the past. The ENSIGN is indeed a messenger of light and truth, and its pages contain that which will help the people of God to understand and do their duty and show those who are looking for "the old paths" where to find them and how to walk therein.

BRO. ERNEST BUTTERTY, 44 Second Street, New Haven, Connecticut, remitting for the ENSIGN for some parties who have become interested in the latter day work, writes:

I want them to read some of the sermons. I take the ENSIGN myself and would not be without it for anything if I did not have any other way of getting spiritual food; I have the Book of Mormon and nearly all other reading matter in the line of books and tracts of the latter day work. So far I have spent eight or ten dollars to give to starved humanity, trusting it will be seed sown in good ground, which will take root and bring forth fruit in abundance. I am the only Latter Day Saint except my wife who came into the faith one year after me, and our daughter 13 years old will be baptized the first Sunday in July. I was two years old in the gospel May 26, and we are strong and happy in the Lord and His cause. I am not selfish, but am doing what I can for my neighbors and the cause. I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints that the Holy Spirit will work in this city so that in due season there will be a branch here.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Next Sunday, June 16th, will be "Children's Day" at the Armstrong branch, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. Children's part of program begins at 11 o'clock.

Bro. C. Edward Miller, the new Business Manager of the ENSIGN Publishing House, arrived in Independence from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, Monday morning. Monday afternoon Bro. J. D. White checked Bro. J. W. Luff, former Business Manager, out, and Bro. Miller in office, and affairs are moving along as usual.

Pres. Hulmes is expecting to be absent from our Sunday services for several weeks, desires, in view of existing conditions, to take up as a topic for Sunday 11 a. m. service the following: "How can our people best serve the Stake and church at this time?" He is to meet in business capacity with the Saints at their church, at Lee's Summit at 8 p. m., Tuesday 18th inst., and in company with Bishop May with the Saints at Holden, Missouri, Sunday 23d inst, and immediately following with other branches nearest that place.

The paving of West Lexington and Electric Streets has been ordered, contracts being let by the City Council Tuesday night. The streets will be paved with vitrified brick and the walks with granite or brick. Bro. J. E. Lewis received the contract for the curbing, which will be granite.

Mr. C. L. VanFleet of Waterville, Minn., made the ENSIGN a pleasant call Wednesday. Sr. VanFleet feels a deep interest in the center place and instructed her husband, who is attending the "Shriner" convolve in Kansas City, to look over the ground at Independence. He visited Sr. T. W. Chatburn and family, being an old acquaintance. He expressed himself as pleased with our city.

Elder I. N. White returned from Higbee, Missouri, Monday and reports a very encouraging Sunday School convention and conference at that place last week. He has secured an opening at Columbia, Missouri, where the University of Missouri is situated, to which Bro. J. A. Tanner was sent to fill the appointment, and Bro. White returned to have a troublesome tooth looked after.

Sr. Edith R. Clow, who has been in charge of the subscription accounts in the ENSIGN office for about four years, resigned last Saturday to enter into a domestic concern Tuesday, June 18th, of which herself and our worthy young brother, J. Aug. Koehler of Kansas City, Missouri, will be principals. Sr. Edith is held in the highest esteem by all who know her, and our association with her in business of the office for so long has been pleasant throughout. She is a faithful, consistent and devoted follower of the Master, an earnest Sunday School and Religion worker, and we wish for herself and chosen companion to be a life journey of happiness and prosperity. We feel to especially congratulate Bro. "Gus" in securing so excellent a life companion and commend the wisdom of his choice.

Sunday dawned cloudy and threatening, but cleared up about nine o'clock, and the day was beautiful, though quite warm. The main auditorium of the church under the skillful hands of Bro. Wm. Bushnell and his assistants had been decorated, a bower of pawpaw bushes covering the rostrum, its columns entwined with roses. Along the railing in front was a row of ferns, reaching from one end to the other, while on tables in front of the platform were roses and flowers of various hues and designs, the whole presenting a very striking and pretty effect. The exercises of the morning were in charge of Bro. W. N. Robinson and Ammon White, and consisted of references to the children of the Bible, various classes reading in concert selections in which such were mentioned; passages from the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants were also read. Bro. W. H. Garrett gave a fifteen minute address which concluded the morning program. At 1 o'clock twelve were baptized in the font, Bro. W. H. Garrett, officiating. The confirmation at 2:30 was given, Bro. Garrett, C. G. Gould, Bishop Ellis Short and B. J. Scott officiating. Bro. Ammon White was in charge of this meeting; prayer and testimony followed. At night a splendid program was given by the older scholars, closing a very enjoyable and successful "Children's Day." All engaged in the preparation are deserving of commendation for their good work.

Velma Louise, daughter of Bro. Royal and Sr. Nellie Brocaw, Katharine Marjory, daughter of Mr. Peter and Sr. Pearl Widener, and Walter Raymond, son of W. Herschel and Sadie M. Snow, of Tabor, Iowa, were blessed Sunday, Bro. B. J. Scott and W. H. Garrett officiating.

Bro. Joseph E. Haines and son, Quinn, of Keokuk, Iowa, were among those baptized Sunday. Bro. Haines is a nephew of Bro. and Sr. J. C. Clark.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Yesterday was Children's Day, but instead of the bright sunny day we had hoped to have, it was cold and gloomy and the clouds threatened ruin. Toward noon the sun came out, but in a short time it again grew dark and the wind blew so strong that many left the church before the exercises were over. However the rain was withheld, and the program was carried out as arranged. The committee on decoration had beautified the pulpit with bouquets and pyramids of flowers and immediately in front was a solid bank composed nearly entirely of roses. At the rear upon a black background were the words in large green letters, "We bring them Lord with thankful hearts." appropriate songs and recitations from the little tots up to the oldest of the primaries occupied the greater part of the morning hour. Five children were blessed by Patriarch Alexander H. Smith and Bishop E. L. Kelley.

The afternoon prayer meeting was in charge of Bro. R. S. Salyards and Columbus Scott. At the conclusion some two or three hundred of the Saints gathered at the Saint's Home pond to witness the ordinance of baptism administered to sixteen children, by Pres. J. A. Gunsolley.

The evening's exercises consisted of confirmation of those baptized, and a program given by the older members of the school. Elders J. A. Gunsolley, R. J. Lambert, R. S. Salyards and Chas. H. Lake officiated in the confirmation. Elders H. N. Snively and H. A. Stebbins opened a series of meetings Sunday in the district tent at Ellston, Iowa; the meetings will be continued probably two weeks.

Stake President John Smith was at Davis City Sunday, and expects to be at Pleasanton next Sunday.

Elder G. H. Hilliard arrived today and Elder E. A. Blakeslee is expected tomorrow morning to be present at the Bishop's court which convenes tomorrow. Bro. Arthur Gillen, of Kansas City, arrived Sunday and will spend his vacation with home folks.

Sr. Eliza B. Cowden is recovering nicely from the fall she received. Upon further examination it was found no bones were broken as was at first reported.

The entertainment given by the lower grades of the public schools last week was of a very high order, and has elicited many comments of praise.

The commencement exercises of the high school were held last Friday night in the church auditorium. There were twelve graduates, six girls and six boys. The decorations were in class colors, black and red, and upon the black back ground at the rear of the platform were the words, "The Die is Cast." The orations were exceptionally good, and the recitations and solos deserve creditable mention. Mr. L. J. Barr, president of the school board presented the diplomas.

We were pleased indeed to see our young brethren and sisters receive the diplomas, and trust their life work may be such that when they reach the other side they may receive at the hands of the Master that certificate of graduation in divine life that will entitle them to enter and abide in His celestial kingdom.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. G. H. Hilliard occupied the stand Sunday morning and evening to the edification of the hearers. A very large number attended the evening service.

Bro. M. Shaw led three into the waters of baptism Sunday afternoon, G. W. Antrum and little son, and Hela H. Dickerson. They were confirmed at the social service by Bro. H. O. Smith, G. H. Hilliard and M. Shaw.

Bro. and Sr. J. M. Terry are expected to reach the city by the 12th.

The Ladies' Aid Society have postponed their ice cream opening to the 15th, when they will serve ice cream at the Lewis Creamery from 2 to 11 p. m.

Bro. and Sr. H. O. Smith celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on the 3d. Bro. H. O. leaves today for his mission field in Texas.

Sr. H. L. Ashbaugh and two little grand-sons, of the First Kansas City branch, are visiting friends in the city, and are the guests of Bro. and Sr. Newton Collins.

The social service, presided over by Bro. Taddicken and Guinand was a spiritual feast of good things. We noticed among the worshippers Bro. C. J. Hunt, of Deloit, Iowa; Sr. A. J. Moore, of Texas; Sr. Manning, of Des Moines, Iowa; Bro. G. H. Butler, of Stewartville, Missouri; and R. Garlich, of Clarkdale, Missouri.

The Sunday School will have a real old fashioned picnic on the 4th of July. The committees on arrangements were appointed Sunday. An invitation is extended to the mission Sunday Schools to join us.

Sr. Gaultner has been removed from the hospital to 508 North 6th street. She is doing nicely. The sisters who can should visit her; she would appreciate your call. A. B.

June 10.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Chiltonham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

We are rejoicing in the gospel and because of it, this beautiful morning; and also that yesterday's services were refreshing and soul strengthening.

Bro. F. A. Smith arrived in the city Saturday June 1st, seeking refuge at the church, where he is at present domiciled, taking refreshment at Sr. Corwin's, also visiting among the Saints. Bro. Russell Archibald has been very happy to have Bro. Smith preach morning and evening on the 2d and 9th.

The past week's weather has been very trying, and the attendance at Tuesday evening's business session, also at the Wednesday evening prayer service was diminished because of the storms.

The Oak Hill Sunday School gave an entertainment last Friday evening, in charge of Bro. Dawson, superintendent of that school; a good program, with quite an attendance. A number of the St. Louis people present.

Sr. Cobb, lately of California, is visiting with her daughter, Sr. Fred Johnson; has attended our social services, and we have enjoyed her splendid testimonies.

Bro. Horton, of Chicago, again visited with us yesterday; being shown over the church by Bro. Dawson, he expressed himself as delighted with our church building, also was pleased at the attendants present. He is some what in hope of being located here permanently.

Our choir treated us to two delightful anthems yesterday; our young people certainly deserve words of praise for their efforts along this line.

Our social service, now, and for the succeeding three months, convenes at 6 o'clock. Last evening Bro. J. J. Billinsky and F. A. Smith were in charge. The service was quite enjoyable.

Fourth of July picnic on the "go."

Reunion echoes in the air.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH
2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1353.

Mr. Warnky went to Independence Saturday to enjoy Children's Day.

Bro. Leaton and family have moved into their new home at Ridgeway.

The Sunday School is making preparations for the picnic of the union of the five Sunday Schools of this city, at Budd's Park, June 22d. A very joyful time is anticipated.

Our superintendent, Bro. E. Etzenhouser, went to Argentine Sunday, to assist in the Sunday School work there.

The services were all well attended Sunday; at 11 a. m. Elder F. C. Warnky was the speaker, his subject, the parable of the fig tree; at 8 p. m. Bro. F. Parker, from Argentine, was the speaker. The prayer service was good, a lady of the Baptist church expressed herself as being fully satisfied of the divinity of the Latter Day Saints' church and desired to unite with us by baptism. Bro. J. D. White preached at Argentine; Bro. W. H. Pease at Armourdale, in the tent; Bro. F. C. Warnky, at 8 p. m., in the Baptist chapel in north Kansas City, where he has a regular appointment.

June 11.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner 23d and Holly. One block south of Observation Park line.

Children's Day next Sunday, June 16th.

The children, as well as some of the "grown up folks" of this branch, are looking forward with joyous expectancy to the union picnic which will be held on the 22d inst at Budd's park.

Tomorrow (Tuesday) the Ladies' Aid societies, of the two branches, Armstrong and the Second Kansas City, will hold their regular union prayer meeting at the home of Sr. Emmett. A good representation is expected, and if this meeting compares favorably with those of the past, it will be to the spiritual interest of all who can, to attend.

Prayer Union will meet at the home of Sr. Ada Koehler Thursday.

Our Religio met with the First Kansas City Religio in prayer meeting capacity on last Friday night. We have heard good reports from some who attended. This is a regular feature with the Kansas City, Missouri Religions, meeting on the first Friday night of each month, alternately at the two churches.

It was announced yesterday at the services that Bro. J. D. White had moved the Stake tent from Argentine to 8th and Ann streets in Wyandotte. He will probably be visited often by members of our branch. At least we heard that kind of talk yesterday.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening, Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

May has been more like April, very showery, a light rain nearly every day which has made the nights quite cool.

The district tent is doing service in the east part of the state, under the care of Bro. Parker and Hansen; it is intended to work the towns in the Arkansas valley, and get to Colorado Springs in time for the district conference in August.

Sr. Floy Lewis has returned from Graeceland. Bro. Sam Brannan was also expected home Sunday.

Bro. Samuel Platt is slowly failing, and it seems the end is near.

Bro. Joseph Schmutz had an operation performed Friday of last week by which a large tumor was removed from the bladder; it was feared by those acquainted with the case, that on account of his age, the operation might result fatally, but it seemed the only chance of relief. He is getting along nicely, and unless some unforeseen difficulty arises he will recover and be better than for many years; he has been continually remembered in prayer by the Saints, especially at the time of the operation.

Bro. O. A. Westland, who had his arm broken several weeks ago, is getting along nicely, and will soon have the use of his arm again; he has suffered very little pain, and has been on duty as having the oversight of the shop nearly every day since the accident.

Sr. Augusta Johnson had been lost track of for some time until Sunday last, when she sent for the elders to come and administer to her. She was taken very sick suddenly May 1st, and was taken to the hospital, and was not in a condition to communicate with the Saints, until she became convalescent; she had a very severe attack of peritonitis and came very near death's door; the prospects are for complete recovery.

Children's day next Sunday.

The Religio have bought a piano, and our choir leader Bro. J. W. Gilbert assisted by Prof. Guyler, teacher of voice culture, will give a concert at the church to help meet the payments on the instrument.

The services Sunday were fairly well attended, preaching both morning and evening by Elder J. B. Rouse, subject morning, "Man's dominion," evening, "The body without the spirit is dead." This text was presented in a new light from what we have heard in the past, and was very interesting.

The Religio Sunday evening was well attended, and the program was very interesting.

Bro. Hutchins and several of the boys from Lyons, were in attendance at the Sunday evening service.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Polson Sts. Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin, presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Sunday, May 26th, we had the pleasure of having Fred B. Blair, our missionary, for the speaker at the 11 o'clock service. In the evening Elder A. M. Chase, missionary en route for Oregon, addressed us. There was a good attendance at both services.

Monday evening, 27th, we held our branch priesthood meeting, Bro. Blair presiding. Many things of importance were considered; among others was the dividing of the city in districts, for forming a better system of visiting the members. All the elders consented to help the teachers and deacons in this work, and visit with them.

The attendance was good at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting.

Friday evening there was an open meeting at the Religio. All the members were requested to bring a coin of some denomination, as a contribution for the organ fund; seven dollars and seventy five cents was thus collected.

On Decoration day our Sunday School had a picnic at Golden Gate park. There was quite a large gathering of Saints and friends, and a good time was had. The older folks enjoyed themselves as well as did the children; it was a lovely day, and all went nicely and pleasantly.

Last Sunday Jos. F. Burton, was our speaker at the morning hour. A large congregation greeted him. His remarks were much enjoyed. At noon we assembled for sacrament and prayer meeting. We had the best attendance at these meetings; more visiting Saints and strangers than we have had for a long time. There was some little difficulty in finding enough seats for them. The social meeting was quite interesting. Five hymns were sung, eight prayers were offered, and twenty-five testimonies given, and no time wasted.

In the evening Metuaore, our Tahitian brother, preached for us. His text was, "He that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them." His discourse was very pointed and clear. Bro. Burton acted as interpreter for him. Fred B. Blair went to Irvington Sunday, and preached there. There was quite a gathering out to hear him.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

Hood River, Ore., June 5, 1901.
Dear Brother:—We are at this time writing "baking in" Hood River during the "berry picking season." We left home the 14th of May, and after some visiting and a little work on the way, reached here the 31 of June. Our tent will probably reach us here tomorrow and then we will try to tell the people here what it means to "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ" and accept His salvation. Bro. W. A. Goodwin will join us here before long and together we hope to be able to so occupy that some sheaves may be garnered for the Master.

There are three families of the Saints in and around here, and we hope to be able to plant the work here effectively before we go to other points. This will be our field address and Saints of eastern Oregon desiring to communicate with us can do so by addressing us here. The field is large, but we will do our best to fill the demands made on us. We need funds for our tent work. Can any help us? Due credit will be given for all that you send to us. We shall be glad to hear from the Saints.

Your brother in Christ,
A. M. CHASE.

REDMOND, O. T., June 2.

Dear Brother:—The work of another conference year, we begin with cheerfulness. The work is onward in this mission: calls for preaching in new places more numerous than I ever knew before. Bro. S. S. Smith and I are assisted by Bro. Hancock, holding a series of meetings at Redmond, so far attendance good. Our doctrine is new to them: one man is reading Book of Mormon, and many are inquiring.

I want to hear soon from all who desire preaching. Address me at Redmond, Oklahoma, and we will try and respond. I think best to remain west until after harvest in the eastern part of (Oklahoma).

Bro. Grimes, Aylor and Maloney will occupy in Indian Territory. The former named will take the oversight of the work at Wilburton, for the present at least. I hope to visit Indian Territory ere long if possible. I have been detained at home for a few weeks, getting my family located and an house built.

Write either Bro. Montague or me, here at Redmond regarding tent work. The branch and district work will be cared for by Bro. Montague and Pickering, and I wish to see my brethren, who were appointed to this field, push out into new places and make new openings.

The Saints of this mission did well last year in caring for the necessities of the mission, and I believe they are able and willing to respond gloriously this year as per Bro. H. O. Smith's request. Bro. S. J. Hinkle, of Stillwater, Oklahoma, is bishop's agent. May the blessings of peace and prosperity attend each one in my prayer.

HUBERT CASE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 3.

Dear Brother:—My mother, Grandma Davidson, who moved from Independence to Colorado a short time ago, wishes me to thank, through your columns, the Saints of Independence for their great kindness towards her, and their interest manifest at all times; but especially while she was sick and feeble during the past winter and spring.

I fear my words will be inadequate to express the tender love she cherishes in her heart for them. And truly that love has been well merited on the part of the Saints. The affection they lavished upon her, together with their thoughtful kindness and tender solicitude for her, has never, in my experience, been equalled in any community of people, and we, her children, most heartily add our signature to hers in a fervent God bless them.

Mother's health is much improved since going to Colorado. The latest news from Sr. Layton reports her able to walk out in the yard two or three times a day, and to sometimes wipe the dishes and read a little. Yet the days seem long, she sadly misses those friendly calls that were like golden moments to the "shut in." May the angels of heaven and about her, let this leave us well. Bro. Burton and Metuaore have gone to San Francisco, I remain here in Los Angeles. My address for three or four weeks will be, 1515 Main street, Los Angeles, California.

SR. EMMA BUTTON.

COLUMBUS JUNCTION, Ia., June 6.

Dear Brother:—As it is a long time since I wrote for the columns of our worthy ENSIGN, I concluded today to try again.

At the close of our General Conference I went to Burlington, where I was called by an urgent request to administer to a young lady of about twenty summers. I was there a week baptizing six during that time, the one administered to was one of the number: the Lord blessed her wonderfully. Then I came to Columbus Junction, to answer a request of Bro. I. M. Lane, to open a new place, and if ever there were two Sodom, Columbus Junction is number two. In the first place the editor of one of the papers refused to publish my notices, because he would do nothing to help Mormonism along: next a priest(?) old man advertised me as a Mormon evangelist. I met him a few days later, and took him to task about it; first he denied it, but I got too close on him, then he said, "Well the people call you Mormons. We answered his piece in the paper.

Next a Rev. Pool of the M. E. church took it upon himself to enlighten(?) the people by telling them that what I preached was repulsive and violated every rule of public decency to a disciple of the true faith, and my teaching was pernicious, etc. At this onslaught Elder D. M. Murdock, of Marston, Illinois, took up the cudgels of defence. But the ball continues, with new characters added. Bro. Lane visited the editor's sanctum with a reply to Mr. Pool of twenty-one pages, which cost Bro. Lane two dollars to secure the insertion; it will come out in the Muscatine Journal this week. I was warned in a dream before I came here what was awaiting me. One young lady of about twenty-six was very much dissatisfied with Presbyterianism, and Bro. Lane enlightened her mind on the gospel, and her mother threatened to lock her up if she did not stop going to my meetings. But all the abuse and threats of her mother and sister could not stop her. She, and Bro. and Sr. Lane were baptized, and if ever a Saint was in hell, this young lady is in one with her mother and sister now. She told Sr. Lane the other day that she believed she would be compelled to leave home yet for the gospel's sake, pray for her Saints, for she is a noble girl. She now holds the position of telephone operator in the town office; she was treasurer of the Presbyterian Sunday School, also corresponding secretary of the Christian Endeavor. But by obeying the gospel—she has sacrificed all her good traits of character." Too bad.

The Lord blessed me while preaching here, and some are looking for the truth, but whoever obeys the gospel in this town will earn their crown of glory. May God help them to stand. I am laying over here between trailers on my way to Clinton. I came here from Burlington this morning, where I was called to tie the matrimonial knot for a couple.

Last night, notwithstanding we had a terrible rain, quite a goodly number met at the Saints' church. After I preached a sermon, our worthy young sister Emma Liddie Bear, (daughter of Elder J. L. Bear), and her intended, Mr. Moroni Duke, were escorted to the matrimonial altar by the side of the pulpit, by Sr. Lillie Bear and Mr. Al Duke, when I pronounced the solemn words which made them husband and wife. Sr. Liddie always wears a pleasant smile, but it seemed on this occasion she wore the very pleasantest of all, she really looked angel-like in a white dress, very neatly gotten up, without any of those unnecessary superfluous fixtures, carrying a beautiful bouquet of white roses. May prosperity be theirs to enjoy.

I baptized two more at Burlington, eleven since conference. Our worthy brother, J. W. Went, will remain at Burlington over next Sunday, he gave us three good sermons while I was there, we had a splendid conference there, over last Sunday. May the Lord bless every effort to advance His cause.

Still in the conflict,

J. S. ROTH.

THE MORE EXCELLENT WAY.

ELDER D. S. CRAWLEY.

(1 Cor. 12: 31.)

On the 16th of March, in debate with Elder Judd, Christian minister, five miles south of Guy, Oklahoma Territory, he reasoned that from the above a "More excellent way" than that given in the above chapter, came into existence when the last of the New Testament scriptures were written, A. D. 96. All the inspired officers, gifts and blessings described in this chapter and elsewhere, being then "done away," no longer needed. I quoted Ecclesiastes 3:14, "I know that whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it, and God doeth it that men should fear before him." Here the unchangeable character of God, as displayed in all his works, is declared. In the beginning He set the sun and moon in the heavens to rule the day and night; and as long as day and night continued, no change will be made in His allwise plan for their government. So when the time came for Christ to build His church (Matt 16:18) John the Baptist was sent forth, preaching that one should come after him who should baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire (Matt. 3:11). Then the Christ chose the twelve and the seventy, sending them out to preach, He Himself telling the people the "doctrine is not mine, but His that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—(John 7: 16, 17).

This grand truth was and is the great rock of eternal truth upon which His church was built. This knowledge brings eternal life; for Jesus says, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent."—(John 17: 3). This knowledge could be obtained only by direct revelation to each individual as, "No man knoweth the Son but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him." ("Matt. 11: 27). This knowledge could be given only by the Holy Ghost. "Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth * * * and he will show you things to come." (John 16:13). This Spirit was promised to all the obedient, "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call." (Acts 2: 39). "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest [or make known] myself to him." (John 14: 21). And in the last great commission, Jesus said to the eleven:

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe [not the apostles, as is generally taught, but 'every creature' that believes and obeys in all the world; the pronoun 'them' must agree with its antecedent in person, number, etc., according to all rules of language; the 'apostles' were the second—those spoken to, and 'them' third person—those spoken of; 'every creature' in all the world]; In my name shall they cast out devils;" etc.—Mark 16: 15-18).

What for? "So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming [making known the truth of] the word with signs following. Amen." (vs. 19, 20.) What word? The gospel. The good news that Jesus was the Christ or Messiah; heir to David's throne; and that God was the eternal Father, doing all that Jesus had promised, sending the Holy Ghost, conferring signs or manifestations of the truth, upon all the obedient.

Without the signs following there could not nor cannot be any confirmation. Without confirmation no knowledge of Christ or the Father. Without his knowledge no "eternal life." (John 17: 3). Hence Paul says that when Jesus comes again, "He will take vengeance on them that know not God," etc. It is just as unscriptural to promise "eternal life," except, or hope for it, without signs following, as without faith, repentance, baptism or any other principle of the "everlasting gospel." (Rev. 14: 6). Hence, I always offer to affirm that signs following believers is just as essential to salvation as any other gospel principle or promise; hence the promise of God in the new covenant, that "I will put my law in their inward parts—for they shall all know me from the least to the greatest." (Jer. 31: 31-34). Paul says it shall be "written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart." (2 Cor. 3: 3). John says, "But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things." (1 John 2: 20). Having received the knowledge of God through this unction, by confirmation of the word, with signs following, all come in possession of eternal life, and if they continue faithful, will be crowned in the eternal world.

Paul writes to the church at Corinth, the sanctified in Christ, "With all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ." (1 Cor. 1: 2). Thanking God that the "testimony of Christ was confirmed in you; so that ye come behind in no gift." (vs. 6, 7). Christ's testimony as recorded in Mark 16, is that signs should follow to confirm believers; and Paul continues: "Who shall also confirm you [all, in every place who believe, as in verse 2] unto the end." (v. 8).—"End of the world." (Matt.

28: 20). Read the whole chapter.

In chapter 12 the good old brother read that night, Paul continues writing to them—as well as to us—not to be ignorant "concerning spiritual gifts." (v. 1). For none could say or know that Jesus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghost (v. 3). Or having the word confirmed by signs following or manifestations of the Spirit. Hence, after telling us that there are diverse ways in which signs follow, he says, "But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal." (v. 7). Every man in all the world he is writing to. How were these manifestations to profit all men? By confirming the word. He then specifies nine diversities of gifts, but the same spirit. But all these worketh that one and the selfsame spirit, dividing to every man severally as He will. For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ. Or, as all the members, in the human body are only one body, so also the members having those nine different manifestations of the Spirit compose one church or body of believers. For by one spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or gentiles, bond or free, and have been all made to drink into one spirit. For the body is not one member, but many. He then mentions the different members of the human body, showing that all the different members: with different functions, duties or gifts, such as seeing, hearing, smelling, etc., were all necessary to the existence of a perfect human body; and one of them could not do without the others, neither could any one of them make such claim truthfully: for God set the members, every one of them, in the body as it pleased Him. (v. 18.)

In the eight following verses Paul extols the wisdom of God, in forming the man's body with all its different members, showing the folly of one member claiming to have no use for all the others. Read this carefully. We, as well as Paul, honor God for the wisdom displayed in the formation of the human body, and there is good sense in Paul's reasoning in verse 21, that one member could not say to another, I have no need of thee. O, let us honor God in receiving all that He reveals unto us through Paul in this chapter, as well as elsewhere. Now hear Paul's application of all this grand, unanswerable reasoning about the human body, comparing it to the body of the church of Christ. "Now, ye are the body of the church of Christ, and members in particular." (v. 20). Who? All the members baptized into the one body, or church, and having received the nine different gifts enumerated in verses eight to ten, he then proceeds to give the names of the officers and members qualified to act as members of the body, because of the possession of these different gifts. "And God has set some in the church [or one body]; first apostles, secondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healing, helps, governments, diversities of tongues, and one member cannot say to another, I have no need of thee.

In chapter 14: 37, Paul says, "What I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord." This being true, does not every one claiming to be a member of Christ's church transgress that command of the Lord when they say, "We have no need of all the members Paul says God set in the church, as it pleased Him?" "Whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it." By reading carefully 1 Corinthians 12, any one can see that they were ignorant of spiritual gifts, thinking, no doubt, that the different gifts were given by different spirits, and that one person ought to have all the different gifts. This error Paul corrects, making it so plain by his comparison of the human body, with its different members, to the body or church of Christ, with all of its different members; and as all the members that God placed or set in Adam's body, are necessary to the existence of the perfect human body, even so, all the members that God set in the church, or body of Christ, are necessary to its existence.

Paul asks, "And if they were all one member, where were the body? But now are they many members, yet but one body." And says that God set the members, every one of them, in the body, as it hath pleased Him. After giving the names of some of the members having the different gifts, and giving commandment that one member must never say they have no need of the others, he then asks, "Are all apostles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?" (vs. 29, 30). Why, no, for he had shown them the more excellent way. To one member one gift, to another some other gift, as in the human body; the ears to hear, the eyes to see, the nose to smell, etc. In Christ's body "some apostles, some prophets, and some evangelists, some pastors, and teachers; for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry for the edifying of the body of Christ." [How long to remain there?] Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ, that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the slight of men and cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive." (Eph 4: 11-14). Could language be plainer? One scripture explains and corroborates another. This Ephesian letter was written by Paul five years after the first Corinthian letter, yet the brother tells us that all the members that the eternal, unchangeable God set in the church, enumerated in the 12th of 1 Corinthians, "as it hath pleased him," ceased; were "done away with," because, by an unfortunate translation, Paul is made to say, after commending all that in every place called upon the name of the Lord Jesus, 1 Corinthians 1: 2, to covet earnestly the best gifts, and yet "show unto you a more excellent way," telling us that "more excellent was" that all the members before that time set in Christ's church, ceased by the will of God, when the few manuscripts of the New Testament scriptures were written, ending in A. D. 96. That they then supplied the place of the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. This, he claims, because Paul, after extolling the greatness of charity in chapter 13, says, "Charity never faileth; but whether there be prophecies they shall fail. Whether there be tongues they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away." (v. 8). Then quoting verse 13, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity." Tells us that after A. D. 96, these three, faith, hope and charity, were all that remained in, or were to remain in the one body or church of Christ, of all the members that God had set in it, enumerated in chapter 12, and Ephesians 4; that this was the more excellent way as shown by Paul.

Now let us examine this position briefly. It was nearly three hundred years after this, before the few manuscripts of the New Testament were compiled into a book; and then but very few of them written with a pen, so costly that the poor had no access to them. How was the work of the ministry, the perfecting of the Saints, the edifying of the body of Christ to be accomplished during that long period, when not a Bible to a thousand or thousands of men was in existence? Is it not far more reasonable to believe God's plan as Paul gave it? "And he [Christ] gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors, and teachers; for the perfecting of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ," etc. But the brother's theory is "And he gave some Bibles," one perhaps to five or ten thousand people, for the perfecting of the Saints, etc. If whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever, nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it, how could a poor, frail man as Paul was, entirely take away all the members out of the body of Christ that the unchangeable God set in the church as it has pleased Him? Especially after His giving positive commandment through this same Paul, that one member must never say to another, "I have no need of thee." All that He set there was essential, that there should be schism in the body, but that the members should have the same care one for another. (1 Cor. 12: 25). "But speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head even Christ, from whom the whole body fitly joined together and compacted by that which every joint [or member] supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love." (Eph. 4:15, 16).

Could anything be plainer? Christ the head, all these different members and officers mentioned in 1 Corinthians 12, and Ephesians 4, being the joints and parts of the body; just as the arms, hands, legs, feet, lungs, etc., compose the body of man, the head being above all. It would seem presumptuous for a township constable to attempt to disannul an act of Congress signed by the president of the United States and proclaim a more excellent way, as a form of government than that selected by the framers of the constitution, consisting of, first, a president; second, a vice president; thirdly, senators, after that supreme judges, state and territorial governors, etc.; to assert they were only placed there until we had our constitutional law written, when they were done away with as no longer needed. That the constitutional law was all that was needed, and there never would be any more presidents or legislators, as in the beginning, to enact laws to suit the changing conditions of the government. And that the justice of the peace and constable were all sufficient to administer the law now. If this be so in this changeable, man-made government, how much more so for a poor, frail man like Paul, after telling us that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever, Hebrews 13:8, and that what he wrote were the commandments of this unchangeable Lord, 1 Corinthians 14:37, and that whatsoever God doeth it shall be forever, that in building His church God set the members every one of them as it pleased Him, first apostles, second prophets, thirdly teachers, then members having the gift of faith, healing, working of miracles, discerning of spirits, tongues, and interpretation of tongues; that these individuals having these nine different gifts, composed the body or church of Christ just as the eleven different members that God placed in Adam's body composed the man's body today, and after exhorting them to covet earnestly the best gifts, then to turn right away, and in defiance of all the commands of the Lord, declare "yet show I unto you a more excellent way," that all these officers, members, gifts and blessings were only set in the church until the constitutional law was written, then done away, no longer needed, and that the few scriptures written up to A. D. 96, was all that was needed to guide men into all truth, that there never would be in the church any more apostles, prophets, teachers, or gifts, no more revelations to govern the church in the changing conditions in the world; that pastors and deacons are all sufficient to administer the law after the year A. D. 96 until Christ should come again, is to argue that which is against reason.

Even Christ was no exception to that unchangeable law of that God who is without variableness or even a shadow of turning, but had to be called of God as was Aaron; but now men are so far ahead of those good old Bible times that all they need is to just to feel that they are called to preach. They take the honor upon themselves. Can you believe Paul would thus even attempt to nullify all these plain and positive commandments of the Lord that he had just written? Why go to all the trouble of writing about what our friends call the inferior way, such as only being able to know the Lord by the Holy Ghost (1 Cor. 12:3), of the useless way of giving the manifestations of the Spirit to every man to profit withal; of being all baptized into one body by one spirit; and then of all the different gifts of the Spirit qualifying those possessing them to act as members of Christ's body, and the foolish things about that inferior church, then knock it all in the head by telling us that in about thirty-seven years, from 59 to 96, that which is perfect would be come, the New Testament scriptures, when all, every vestage of that inferior church, which we took so much pains to describe in chapter 12, would vanish away—no longer needed.

Why trouble our minds by telling us of the old Jerusalem church, clothed with the sun (the Holy Ghost, with all its life-giving manifestations), and the moon (light of the Mosiac law) under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars (the twelve apostles). (Rev. 12: 1). Why was Paul inspired to write up such a glowing account of that inferior old Jerusalem church? filling our poor, finite minds with a longing desire to have lived then in the enjoyment of those inferior gifts and blessings; to have enjoyed the companionship of the illiterate apostles and prophets, mostly fishermen and publicans. Why did he not leave that out, and write us at once about the more excellent way that was so soon to dawn upon the minds of the Saints? That after the last of the apostles, John should write upon Patmos, the last revelation ever to be given to our poor, fallen race, contrary to all the former dealing of God with them since the days of Adam, that then we should have a far more excellent church than the old Jerusalem church, without an apostle, prophet, evangelist, pastor, a teacher, elder, bishop, or deacon, called of God as was Aaron. None troubled about the faith to be healed, nor gifts of healing, wisdom, knowledge, working of miracles, discerning of spirits, tongues, etc., all having vanished away because no longer needed. No more revelation from that time to trouble the minds of the Saints, consequently none but pastors and deacons are now required for the perfecting of the Saints. No need of them being called as in that inferior church, but only to feel that they are called, and, selected by their fellowmen, is all that is required in this age of superior light.

doubt, thought that each of them should have all the gifts; Paul corrects this error. They were to be given to different members, as different members are placed in the man's body; yet they all composed the one body, or church. He then asks: Are all apostles, are all prophets, etc., then tells them that he had shown them a more excellent way than that: different members yet only one body. He then shows that they might have all these gifts but without charity it would profit them nothing. Charity would exist forever, while all these imperfect gifts would come to an end. Not that anything inferior to them would take their place, but that a time so much better was coming, that they would be obscured by the greater glory. Like the moon, brilliant in her sphere, but when the glorious orb of day arises, the moonlight vanishes away. So Paul explains thus: Prophecies shall fail, tongues cease, knowledge vanish away; then says, "For we know in part, prophecy in part; but when that which is (not shall be) perfect, is come, then that which is in part shall be done away. (1 Cor. 13:8-10).

Paul compared the two conditions of the church in his day, with all its wondrous gifts and blessings, inspired officers, etc., and its condition when that which is perfect is come, to the two conditions of childhood and manhood, saying: "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, but when I became a man I put away childish things. For, how we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part, but then shall I know even as also I am known." (vs. 11, 12). Who cannot see that when that which he calls perfect is come will be at the resurrection. Then Paul will know as he is known, and see face to face. Prophecy in part will give way to the fulness of knowledge. Tongues will cease, because one universal language will be spoken. (Zeph. 3: 9). But until that time "abideth faith, hope, charity; these three, but the greatest of these is charity." What faith? The one faith. (Eph. 4: 5). The faith once delivered to the Saints. (Jude 1: 3). The faith of the gospel. Read of the blessings obtained by that faith, Hebrews 11, also mentioned in 1 Corinthians 12: 9, as the principle of power by which all spiritual blessings are received; and yet the ministers of this more excellent way tell us, "Now abideth faith, hope," etc., and yet not a spiritual gift in all this "more excellent" church. Not faith enough to receive the least of the spiritual gifts in this life, yet by their faith they teach that they will come forth in the resurrection of the just, after their bodies have molded into dust.

In that inferior Jerusalem church eternal life was obtained by the knowledge of God. (John 17: 3). This knowledge could only be obtained by direct revelation from God. (Matt. 11: 27). The Holy Ghost, by which this knowledge was received and revealed, was promised to all "whom the Lord our God shall call." (Acts 2: 39). The call was to every creature in all the world. (Mark 16: 15). And this knowledge of God was to be imparted to believers everywhere by confirming the word with signs following. (v. 20). No confirmation, no knowledge of God. No knowledge of God, no eternal life; for Jesus Christ is to be "revealed in flaming fire, taking vengeance on all them that know not God. (2 Thess. 1: 8).

In the old Jerusalem gospel the Holy Spirit confirmed the word with signs following; pray tell me what more excellent way have they in the church since A. D. 96, to obtain the knowledge of God, which is eternal life? I asked of them, "What shall I do to be saved?" Answer, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved. Correct; but Jesus said these signs shall follow them that believe. I suppose I am to expect them? Oh, no, no! Well, how shall I have the word confirmed to me that I may receive the knowledge of God? O, just read about others receiving confirmation till you know all about it. Just as well tell me, when starving for food, to read about the blessed Savior feeding thousands with loaves and fishes, until I am filled and hunger no more. The more I read of the good things with which the Lord fed them, the more hungry would I become until I starve to death. Nothing but food to eat myself would save me from death. Just so I might read until death, of others having the word confirmed with signs following, but that would impart no knowledge to me unless I was confirmed in the same manner.

In answer to the statement of the brother that "I deny nothing you have said, for it is all in the Bible, but there is only one way you can make me believe you; work a miracle. Drink some strychnia or let a rattle snake bite you, and if it don't hurt you I will believe. I am sorry for the dear, old brother, seventy-four years old, fifty-two of which he says he has been preaching in the Christian church, "the more excellent way." I used to teach that faith comes by hearing when in that church, and no doubt he has for fifty-two years; but now he has changed; faith now comes by seeing. Abraham told the rich man that his brethren had Moses and the prophets; if they would not hear them, they would not be persuaded, though one would rise from the dead. (Luke 6: 31). Just so it is today; the old brother has Christ and the apostles, whom headmits I have quoted correctly, yet wants a sign. If he will not believe them, neither would he be persuaded if one rose from the dead. Jesus said that a wicked and adulterous people sought for a sign.

In Revelation 16: 14, we learn that devils are to work miracles in the last days, deceiving kings and nations, gathering them to the great battle of the Almighty; and the dear old brother admits, virtually, that the first miracle working devil that comes along, he will believe him, and of course follow him off to that great battle. And those who believe with him that faith comes by seeing miracles wrought, no doubt, will follow with him. The same Spirit is here that brought Christ to cast himself down from the temple, quoting scripture, "It is written that the angels shall bear thee up," etc., and of course it would not hurt him, "If thou be the Son of God." What a pity it is that Christ did not work a miracle to convert Satan. Now, the same spirit says to me, if you are a believer in Christ, drink poison, etc., for it is written, "If they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them," and of course if you are a believer, and the Bible is true, it would not hurt you. But Jesus quoted some scripture also, "It is written thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." (Matt. 4: 7). If Jesus had tempted God by casting himself down, it would no doubt have killed Him. Just so, if one should tempt God by drinking poison, etc., it ought to, and likely would, kill him. But if by accident they should do so, they might escape death by the help of God.

But, my dear old brother, if you believe what you teach, that faith comes by seeing, that believers should drink poison, etc., to convince others that they are true believers, why not prove to the audience that you are a true believer, as you claim, by drinking your own deadly poison that you seem so desirous for someone else to do? I pray God to help men believe His word, though myself and everyone else should do as Paul said man-made teachers would do in the last days, turn their ears away from the truth, unto fables. (2 Tim. 4: 4).

The numerous errors in the uninspired translation of the Bible enable the teachers of this more excellent way, to turn the ears of the people away from the truth, and turn them unto fables, but our Father in heaven has not only revealed the Book of Mormon for all lovers of truth, but also an inspired translation of the Bible, no doubt, in fulfillment of Isaiah 59: 19. After speaking of the great restoration of all things, all through his book, he there says, "So shall they fear the name of the Lord from the west [this great western world], and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy [of truth] shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him." That this should be just before the second advent of Christ is evident from the verse following: "And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord." (v. 20.)

In fulfillment of this, Thomas Paine and others, by publishing books on the errors of the Bible, have turned thousands away from their belief in it. But the mighty flood of unbelief that swept over the world, caused by the lectures of the great agnostic, Col. Robt. Ingersoll, published in the journals of the entire world, and his books scattered broadcast, until nearly twenty five million are said to have rejected the Bible, and God only knows what the end would have been, only for the illuminating influence of the mighty angel of Revelation 10, sent from heaven with a "little book in his hand," and the "everlasting gospel to preach to every nation, and kindred, and tongue and people" (Rev. 14: 6), and the lifting up a standard against him (the enemy of truth), in the inspired Translation of the Scriptures, correcting the hundreds of errors in our uninspired versions, for the overthrow of error, and the salvation of all lovers of truth.

At the Eusang Publishing House, Independence, Missouri, can be obtained for twenty-five cents, "Three Bibles Compared," giving the rendering of the King James', the Revised, and the Inspired versions in parallel columns where differences exist. The King James' version, with the vast wealth of all Protestant churches, forty-seven of the great scholars of the world, seven years of time; with all the translations and manuscripts obtainable, were used in the production of this translation. This is given first place in the comparison: The Revised Version, eighty-two of the greatest scholars of the world, immense wealth, fourteen years, and all translations and manuscripts known being the factors in its production, yet only a little different from the other, is given second place. The Holy Scriptures translated and corrected by Joseph Smith, by the Spirit of revelation, is the third comparison. One young man, living in poverty, hunted from state to state by enraged and persecuting mobs, no translations or manuscripts used, but speaking by revelations while others wrote (when permitted by the mob), three years were occupied in this translation. Space permits me to quote but very little here. Send for the little book referred to, giving hundreds of texts in comparison from the three mentioned translations. It is worth its weight in gold to the honest Bible student.

Colonel Ingersoll reads Genesis 19: 8, where Lot is made to say to the Sodomites, that he had two virgin daughters, praying that he might "bring them out to you, and do ye to them as seemeth good to you," and says that was a sample of those Bible patriarchs that the God of the Bible favored. But the Inspired Translation says: "I pray you that I may NOT bring them out to you," etc., the word "not" being left out of the King James'. Genesis 48: 8: "And Israel beheld Joseph's sons," v. 10, "now the eyes of Israel were dim of age, so he could not see." Positive contradiction, says the colonel, but we must believe if we accept the Bible. The Inspired Translation renders it: "So he could not see WELL." "Well" left out of King James'. Exodus 23: 3: "Neither shall ye countenance a poor man in his cause." That's the Bible for the poor man? asks the Colonel. The Inspired Translation says "wicked man" instead of poor man, as in King James'. Deuteronomy 14: 21: "Ye shall not eat of anything that dieth of itself: thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates, that he may eat it. Or thou mayest sell it to the alien; for thou art a holy people unto the Lord." That's your Bible doctrine, says the Colonel; the christians must not eat their hogs or cattle that die of disease, but sell them to us infidels; for they are a holy people, you know. But the Inspired Translation spoils the Colonel's argument by saying, "Neither shall ye give it to the stranger, neither sell it to the alien," etc. And so in hundreds of places. 2 Chronicles, 22 makes Abaziah two years older than his father; 2 Kings 19: 35, men arose and found themselves dead, in the King James' Translation, and all these are magnified by skeptics, but are corrected in the Inspired Translation.

Brighamites get their polygamy from King James' translation, which makes David perfect in all his ways, polygamy included; the Inspired Translation in 1 Kings 3: 14; 11: 4; 16: 33, 38; 14: 8; and 15: 11, shows very differently, that David was wicked in some things, making it of great value in combating polygamy.

Numerous errors also exist in the New Testament which are corrected in the Inspired Translation. "Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." (Matt. 5: 8) Paul is made to contradict in 1 Timothy 6: 16; saying of God: "whom no man hath seen, nor can." Now, who lied, Paul or Christ? asks the skeptic? The Inspired Translation says: "whom no man hath seen nor can see, only he who hath the light and hope of immortality abiding in him." All this is left out of King James'.

Another quotation used with great effect against the Bible: "If any man think that he beareth himself unseemly toward his virgin, if she pass the flower of her age, and need so require, let him do what he will, he sinneth not: let them marry." (1 Cor. 7: 36) There is fornication taught, says the Colonel and others. The Inspired Translation renders it: "If he think he beareth himself unseemly toward his virgin, whom he has espoused, let him do what he hath promised, let them marry." Then comes the text that made the great bulwark against the organization of what Paul calls the church of God which is at Corinth (1 Corinthians 1: 2; existing there organized with all the different members so plainly described in chapter 12, set in the church (S&T, fixed, established.—Webster), as it hath pleased God who is without variableness or even a shadow of turning, commanding that one member must not say to another, I have no need of thee, because without all these members there will be schism (division) in the body. Then after naming some of those members set there by the Lord, asks if all hold the same office or have the same gift or duty to perform, and admonishes to covet earnestly the best gifts, ending in the King James' Translation with: "And yet shew I unto you a more excellent way."

This is made clear in the Inspired Translation, which is the same all through the chapter until the last verse, when after asking if all were apostles, prophets, teachers, or if all had the same gifts, or duties to perform, he answers: "I say unto you nay, for I have shown unto you a more excellent way; therefore covet earnestly the best gifts." Just what he had been showing them in the whole chapter; that they were not all apostles, prophets, teachers, etc., but different members; yet only one body or church. Paul's teaching in chapters 18 and 14 proves this to be the correct version. After saying, "Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, he then shows what this faith requires, to follow after charity and desire spiritual gifts, but rather that ye may prophesy. He then tells how to use all the gifts in the church meetings, speak in tongues, interpret or give a revelation or prophecy, etc., and as he was writing to correct those in every place ignorant concerning spiritual gifts (12: 1), he concludes his instruction in regard to the perpetuity and proper use of spiritual gifts by saying: "But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant, wherefore [because he foresaw the ignorance that would prevail in regard to all his teachings], brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak in tongues. Let all things be done decently, and in order." (14: 32-40).

Notwithstanding this strict command, which of the so-called orthodox churches, if one should be moved by the Holy Spirit, and should prophesy or speak with tongues in their assembly, would not forbid them? telling them that now they were living under a "more excellent way." Who but the poor, despised Saints believes and obeys this commandment of the Lord (v. 37) today.

In conclusion I ask, if the ministers of what they call the "more excellent way" have a better way "for the perfecting of the Saints for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ; till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ; that we be no more children tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness whereby they lie in wait to deceive," than that given by Christ's inspired apostles, evangelists, pastors and teachers (Eph. 4: 11-14), and have a more excellent way of church organization than the unchangeable God was "pleased" with, (1 Cor. 12: 18), with its inspired officers, gifts and blessings, as taught in the whole chapter, why is it that they all go back to the writings of those set in that inferior church who admit that they only saw through a glass darkly, knew in part, and prophesied in part; spake as a child, understood as a child, thought as a child, saying, "But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away; and they yet teach that that perfect time has long since come. When Paul said all these things that were in part should be done away, and then we shall see face to face; know also even as we are known. If they have a far more excellent way of seeing face to face, knowing as they also are known, why are they so terribly divided regarding the plan of salvation? Instead of the one body, a thousand bodies or churches. "Ever learning but never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." (2 Tim. 3-7).

May God bless all the honest in heart, and stir them up to search the Scriptures as Jesus commanded, relying upon His promise which never has, or ever will fail:

"If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."—John 7: 17.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. GURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Our Girls' Department.

With all this array of evidence in support of woman's influence how should our girls deport themselves? What should be their attitude toward the opposite sex?

We have already stated that woman's influence is paramount to all others; now, if this be true, and we sincerely believe it is, armed with this God-given power and clothed with the mantle of purity, no girl need hesitate to stoop down and elevate to her own level, the average young man of her acquaintance. This is not only her prerogative but her duty, and the path of duty is always a safe one. This is woman's mission, and with that purity, which, like Portia's definition of mercy, "Falls as the gentle dew from heaven, blessing him that gives and him that receives," she need not fail.

In the beautiful character of Owen Meridiath's "Lucille" is revealed the possibilities to which woman's purity of character may lead her. Read it girls, twice or thrice, study it, that you may emulate the noble deeds of that superb woman.

We do not mean to say that girls should accept the attention of young men without discrimination, for there are men who are so thoroughly imbued with that spirit which comes from beneath, that no girl can afford to place herself under its contaminating influence, she should flee from it as she would from leprosy.

We think Mary Anderson set an example that is worth imitating. When she made her debut upon the English stage the Prince of Wales, whose profligate life is known to all, pleased with her wonderful talent, requested an interview, which she promptly refused, saying, "I have always guarded my character with the most jealous care and have maintained a reputation that is above reproach, and I cannot afford to sacrifice it now."

This girl of twenty, this woman of lowly birth refused to be introduced to the heir presumptive to the proudest throne under the shining sun. This was twenty years ago, but Mary Anderson, who has retired to private life, (in connection with Charlotte Cushman) enjoys the distinction of having done more for the elevation of the stage than all others of that profession.

You may not become a Mary Anderson or a Charlotte Cushman in the broad sense of the term, yet in the narrow sphere in which you may be called to occupy your influence may be just as effective as was the influence of these celebrated women.

Then what should be a girl's deportment in manner and speech? In manner she should be kind and gentle and free from affectation; seeking to cultivate and develop those qualities of heart and mind which make the true lady. She should set her standard high and then eliminate everything not in accord with her ideal. The true lady shrinks instinctively from that which will make her conspicuous; hence, she never talks above a low, conversational tone in the street car or on the train. Never engages in conversation with the conductor unless he be a personal friend, neither does she make remarks, witty or otherwise, for the benefit of her fellow passengers.

A true lady spurns the attentions of a strange man whom she chances to meet, and, filled with chagrin and mortification, asks herself, "What have I done to warrant such familiarity?" If she would be a lady, she must be pure and chaste in her speech, for "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," and I know of nothing that so quickly betrays our true condition as our language, therefore, she should avoid the use of that vulgar form of speech known as "slang." "But," says one, "it is so expressive." It may be expressive, but it reveals a vein of coarseness which no girl can afford to display.

A boy said to his mother, after the departure of his cousin, who had been visiting them, "I expected to see somebody when I saw cousin Jane, but she don't amount to nothing, just hear the slang she uses."

Every girl should be careful in her speech, always using the choicest language at her command. A girl may be bright and vivacious, quick at repartee, but she may not indulge in these at the expense of that priceless gem—womanly dignity.

A girl's demeanor toward young men should be of a character to inspire him with confidence in her purity and integrity, and although kind and considerate, often yielding in points of minor importance, yet she should be made to feel that, where a principle is involved she can be as firm as "the rock of ages."

There are certain immutable laws underlying the great social fabric, which no girl can afford to disregard, for if she does, she does it at her peril. Then there are minor laws, known as the rules of etiquette, of which too many of our young girls are woefully ignorant, else she would not linger at the gate to talk with her escort after returning from church or places of amusement. Neither would she invite him to enter her home at an unreasonable hour, or after he had spent the evening in her company elsewhere.

A lady once said to her protegee, "Mary, I notice that you stop at the gate to talk with your friend after church, now I do not approve of this, and must ask you to discontinue it. If you wish to talk with Mr. Smith invite him to the house some evening during the week." The young lady repeated this to Mr. Smith, who said at once, "Mrs. Jones is right." The young man knew that this was not the proper thing to do, yet, where she led he would not refuse to follow.

Woman is called the weaker vessel, but wherever a principle of morality is involved, or in the defense of those higher and nobler principles which lift humanity above the groveling elements of the world, woman is expected to be "a very tower of strength."

CANCER A CURABLE DISEASE.

Many people have an idea that cancer is incurable, but we have over 150 original and recent testimonials of cures of actual cancer, the sufferers having taken 8 to 24 bottles of the famous B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) which is meant to cure old obstinate blood and skin troubles. B. B. B. kills the cancer poison in the blood and the sores quickly heal. No cutting required. Among others cured was Mrs. M. L. Adams, of Fredonia, Alabama. Had an eating cancer, the bones of her nose and upper part of her mouth entirely eaten out. Could only eat strained soup, yet the cancer healed perfectly by taking 14 bottles of B. B. B. Allan Grant, Sparta, Georgia, had painful sore on lip called epithelial cancer, also much pains in bones and weakness in back; 10 bottles of B. B. B. healed the sore and gave him strength, and made his blood pure and rich. B. B. B. heals ulcers, scrofula, eczema, cancer in any form, old sores, etc. Druggists or by express prepaid, $1.00. A trial treatment of B. B. B. free by writing Blood Balm Co., 86 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Georgia. Describe trouble and free medical advice given. Medicine sent at once prepaid.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints of the Northern Nebraska District, Greeting:—You will perhaps have noticed that your general missionary in charge, Elder Jas. Caffall, has extended his mission field to include the entire district so that my responsibilities as a missionary have been increased: and in addition to this, the district conference held at the Valley branch from May 31st to June 2, 1901, has chosen the writer to act as district president. Being unacquainted with the territory and a stranger to most of the Saints, I wish to state as follows: For the officers of the district to be successful in their work they need the co-operation of every member of the church within the district, both spiritually and financially. This requires a godly walk, chaste conversation and a consistent and persistent effort to discharge every duty which God and His church has imposed. The work before us is of vital importance to ourselves, to the church and to the world, and should be undertaken at once. We should endeavor "to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace," which will make our work both pleasant and profitable to all.

By action of General Conference the boundary lines of the district were so changed as to embrace the following counties: Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, Wayne, Thurston, Burt, Cumings, Stanton, Platte, Colfax, Dodge, Washington, Douglas, Sarpy, Saunders, Butler and Polk. We shall be pleased to hear from branch officers and scattered Saints with reference to the demands for any work properly belonging to missionaries and district officers, and promise to do the best we can to comply with every proper request or lawful demand. However, as there are but two missionaries in this large district it will be necessary that every local minister and branch officers do all they can to nourish and feed the church, and keep the truth before the people.

If the Saints desire that the district tent be used this season in gospel work they should respond at once to the request of the district, made some time ago, for financial help for this purpose, without which the tent cannot be successfully used. Send all money you wish to pay in as tithing, free will offerings or for district purposes to bishop's agent, Elder James Hoff, 1818 N. 21st St., Omaha, Neb., who will be glad to receipt you for the same.

Every member of the church should be acquainted with our work in its various departments and be ready at all times to give in meekness a reason for the hope which they have in Christ, and ever be prepared to tell why they believe the church to which they belong is the true church of Christ and this restored gospel the power of God unto salvation. Those who take the church papers and read them will be much better prepared to do this than those who do not. No family of Saints can afford to be without the Herald, Ensign or Autumn Leaves, and if they can take them all, it will be so much the better.

My permanent address is, Box 132, Dow City, Iowa, and my mission address is, 2267 Farnam Street, Omaha, Nebraska. Letters addressed to me at either of these places will reach me promptly. Bro. A. W. Ballard, 2208 Clark Street, Omaha, Nebraska, is assistant president of the district and will do all in his power for the advancement of the work in the district.

Yours in gospel bonds,
C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

June 3.
To the Saints of Arkansas and West Louisiana:—

The opportunities and duties of another year are before us. Seventy thousand people live in this territory, who have never heard the restored gospel.

To us has been committed the duty of teaching as many of them as time and opportunity will admit of. We have two ways of accomplishing this work: first, living our religion. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven."—Matt. 5: 16.

If you do not now, begin at once to have your family prayers night and morning. If you do not now, begin at once to take the church papers. If you are not attending a Salats' Sunday School begin at once if in reach of one; if not send at once to Herald office, Lamoni, Iowa, and get the Gospel Quarterly, and begin the study of the Scriptures at home. (If you are not able to buy the quarterlies, write me to that effect and I will supply you).

Second, scatter tracts and papers. Don't paste your ENSIGNS on the walls, but give them out to your friends. If you live in reach of a railroad depot put a paper rack or box in it, and keep it full of papers and tracts.

Don't refrain from scattering your papers, because you think they will be destroyed; distribute generously and some will claim attention. If you can use more literature than you have, write me and you shall have all you want.

Let us all work if we would succeed. If you will report the opportunities for gospel work in your localities to the missionaries, it will help us very much.

Will the missionaries please keep a record of their labor in harmony with the blank form ordered by General Conference.

Until further notice my field address will be Milliford, Arkansas. Home address 2318 Empire street, Joplin, Missouri.

In bonds,
W. S. MACRAE,
Sub-Missionary in charge.
MARTINS CREEK, Ark., June 7.

To the Members of the Second Quorum of Seventy.

Dear Brethren:—I wish to call attention to some errors that exist in our last Circular letter. By mistake the name of Bro. A. E. Mortimer of Canada was placed in our list; this was due to the fact that the quorum took action on his name and asked for his ordination, but later he was ordained a high priest. Also through some unaccountable mistake the name of Bro. J. D. Stead of Lamoni, Iowa, was omitted from the list. Bro. Stead was ordained at the Lamoni Conference of 1900. The address of Bro. C. L. Snow should be "Kirkskey" instead of "Kirby," as shown in the Circular.

In looking over the record I find that the items of birth and baptism of the following named brethren do not appear, viz: Sven Swenson, C. L. Snow, J. L. Goodrich, Silas D. Condit, E. J. Ebelling, R. J. Parker, D. W. Wight, D. C. White, M. R. Scott, Jr., W. A. Smith, Columbus Scott, W. D. Ellis, E. A. Erwin, J. M. Stubbart, Geo. W. Thorburn, Peter Muecus and Emil Hayer. I also lack ordination items of F. J. Ebelling and C. Scott.

I have not as yet learned of the ordination of Brn. J. R. Sutton of Iowa, and J. W. Rushton of Scotland.

I would like items of birth, baptism and ordination as soon as practicable after their ordinations.

Will the other brethren please respond and give me the needed information so that the record may be kept complete.

If Brn. Sutton and Rushton accept ordination to the office, it will make our number stand at fifty-four.

In the work,
H. E. MOLEN, Sec.

[Bro. D. W. Wight has been ordained high priest. See report of Lamoni State proceedings in Ensign of May 2d.—Ed.]

To Secretaries of Quorums.

The secretaries of the various quorums of elders, priests, teachers and deacons are requested to forward to the undersigned, lists of names and permanent addresses of the membership of their respective quorums, to date, 1901, including all changes made during the last General Conference. It is necessary that correct lists of every quorum be had in the Secretary's office, for general church use.

Lists of names and addresses only are wanted. Items of birth, baptism, ordination, etc., are not required in the lists asked for.

Secretaries of quorums are also requested to report changes, or to furnish new lists annually, that lists on file may be kept up to date. Early compliance with request is solicited.

In bonds,
R. S. SALYARDS,
Church Secretary.
LAMONI, Iowa, June 5, 1901.

NOTICES.

To the Brethren of the 3d Quorum of Elders, Greeting:—Your attention is called to the resolution passed at our late quorum meeting held at Independence, Missouri. Please see that a record is kept of all your official labors, namely of all services attended, times preached, other official acts such as number baptized, number confirmed, assisted in confirming; ordination, elders, priests, teachers deacons; branches, Sunday Schools, Zion's Religio organized; marriages solemnized, children blessed, sick administered to, etc., etc.

We want our quorum to be one of the foremost in the church. Do all the labor you can this coming Conference year.

We only had reports from 50 of our number at our late session. We should have at our next session 96 report if all the elders are living. The 50 reports were good. We can by making an extra or special effort double the labor reported. I hope and pray that our Father in heaven will greatly bless you and give you His divine grace to assist you in your labors of love.

I am your co-laborer,
CHARLES P. FAUL, Sec.
CLARKSDALE, Mo., June 5.

Conference Notices.

To All It May Concern:—On the 27th of July the Texas Central district conference will meet with the Texas Central branch, near Hearne. Let us have a full report from all branches in the district, also every officer. Send your reports to Bro. C. M. Mitchell, Cook's Point, Texas, so that he can get them before conference.

We also want to hold a reunion in connection with conference; let everybody come who can, and come prepared in every way to make the meeting a success. We request all the missionaries who can, to come, and come to stay until the close of the meeting. Don't forget to bring the good Spirit with you. I am,
Your co-laborer,
E. W. NUNLEY, Pres.
COOKS POINT, TEX., May 31.

Reunion Notices.

The Oklahoma reunion will be held August 16th to 25th, 1901, at Dover, on the Rock Island R. R., eight miles north of Kingfisher, has a fine, large grove and sheds, plenty of good water, and only one-half mile from depot. Plenty of pasture at fifty cents per month. I have a letter from Boots & McDavitt, of Dover, as Emigration agents for the Rock Island R. R., they think they can secure reduced rates at that time. We will endeavor to give notice through papers, of their success in securing rates.

OBITUARY.

A double blow has been dealt the church members in St. Louis in the death of two of our young people, Martha and Howard Molyneus, the former was only 19 years old, and we laid her to rest on the 25th of April. One can judge, then, what a severe loss it was to family and friends when her brother, aged 25, departed this life just a month after this funeral, on May 25th, having been seriously ill only about a week and a half.

Martha had been a member of the choir, and on that sad April day we were confronted with the pathetic sight of her vacant chair in the front row covered with a floral offering, while they bravely tried to stifle for Greatest in leavening strength, a spoonful raises more dough, or goes further.

Working uniformly and perfectly, it makes the bread and cake always light and beautiful, and there is never caused a waste of good flour, sugar, butter and eggs.

With finer food and a saving of money comes the saving of the health of the family, and that is the greatest economy of all.

her. But when they came to the words, "Thy loss we deeply feel," the sopranos in the choir broke down completely, and this part was lacking but for a stray voice or two in the congregation.

And now after so short an interval we have had another funeral, similar enough to seem more like a repetition than a separate event. The same mourners, the same decorations in the church, the floral tributes so strikingly similar, and nearly the same host of friends filling by in a continual flow for a last look.

Howard held a position in St. Joseph, Missouri, during last fall and part of the winter, and while living there he also gave his attention to church work, and seemed to make great progress spiritually. He was assistant superintendent of our Sunday School, in St. Louis, at the time of his death.

Our departed brother was good and kind, capable of religious feeling, and at the same time was of a lively nature and extremely witty. Last week, as we followed the pallbearers over the soft grass towards his last—no, his temporary—resting place, I heard a sobbing voice behind me exclaim, "He was so full of life!" And really the contrast would seem great enough to be almost impossible. That he, who had been so full of life, should be dead! That he, who had represented to us so largely the brightness and merit of life, should be the center of a scene so intensely tragic; yet in one of Louisa M. Alcott's books may be picked out a scrap of dialogue which is full of significance when such thoughts as these come:

"He was so full of life, so fit to live," "And therefore fit to die."

May it not be true, perhaps, that those who go through this life most bravely or cheerfully are best fitted for the happier and fuller life beyond?

Truly "his life was gentle," and we shall miss him. Yet although certain attributes of his character endeared him to us, we ought not to mourn as those having no hope. We have glorious hopes in the gospel. That blessed hope of the resurrection may not be so far off either, and at any rate there are joys to be felt now if we will but receive them, the joys of working in God's service, of feeling God's peace. So I hope that the lion of rebellion and doubt that has assailed some hearts because of our losses here in the past year, may be replaced by a dove of consolation and trust.

WILLIE.—At New London, Iowa, October 20, 1900, to Bro. and Sr. Lourencia Willie, a pair of twin girls, Blessed at Burlington, Iowa, June 2, 1901; Elder A. H. Smith blessed Florence Elnora, and Elder J. S. Roth Frances Rachel.

BABER.—At Dow City, Iowa, May 25, 1901, Grover C., son of Bro. Richard and Sr. Mary Baber, aged 14 years, 2 months and 22 days. He was born at Dow City, Iowa, March 3, 1887, and was baptized into Christ, May 25, 1896, by Elder C. J. Hunt. Funeral services were conducted at the Saints' church, Dow City, Sunday, May 26th, by Elder C. E. Butterworth, assisted by Elder J. M. Baker.

LEWIS.—At East Pharsalia, New York, May 21, 1901, Sr. Mary F. Lewis. She was born in German, New York, October 7, 1817, and married Nelson R. Lewis in 1875, obeyed the restored gospel in 1891, being one of the first to receive baptism in Pharsalia. She received much persecution because of her religion, but she endured to the end. A good wife and faithful Saint has entered into rest. A husband, foster child and one brother survive her. Funeral in Saints' chapel, sermon by Elder U. W. Greene, of Brooklyn, New York. A large number were present, many for the first time hearing of the faith "once delivered to the Saints."

KNOWING.

There is comfort and satisfaction in the assurance that we are doing that which is proper and right. When one is traveling a road of whose ending he is certain, there is nothing to concern the mind regarding the ultimate result of the course he is taking, and he can give himself over to the contemplation of the beauties opening to his vision as he progresses, or in the prospects awaiting him at the end. If, on the other hand, he is uncertain regarding the final ending of the road upon which he is journeying, his mind filled with doubt and forebodings as to what the outcome will be, he can neither appreciate the glories lying along his pathway, nor anticipate the pleasures and profits awaiting him at the end of his journey, and he is certainly in a very unhappy and unprofitable condition.

If this be true regarding the things of this life, how infinitely more so is it of the life beyond. Although few indeed seem to appreciate the fact, it is not only important that we choose the right way, but it is of the utmost importance that we know by indubitable evidences that the road we are pursuing will eventuate in leading us into the presence of our Heavenly Father, to abide. Once we become thoroughly satisfied that we are "in the way of life," we can enjoy the grandeur revealed to our understanding as we progress toward our "dwelling place," while we fit ourselves for the perfection into which we shall enter when we come into the "holy city."

There is comfort and satisfaction in the assurance that there is but one way that leads to eternal life, and that it is now, and always has been, a straight and unchanging path. So that when we turn to the record, and find how men and women anciently found and walked in that path, and, at the end, entered into life, we may know that by pursuing the same course precisely, we also may enter that same path as did they and, following it closely, reach the abode of the righteous. Jesus gave specific direction in this regard when he taught:

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat; because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it."—Matt. 7: 13, 14.

We notice that the entrance to either path—the broad or the narrow—is through a gate. The gate denominated the "strait gate," leading to the "narrow way" is "obedience," and it is both straight and narrow. It leaves no place for wandering. It is simply to do the things commanded of us by One who has authority to command, and power to fulfill all that is promised as a reward for the surrender of our individual will, and making it subservient to His superior wisdom and understanding. It is simply walking in the way which He has not only marked out, but which He also sanctified by Himself pursuing it. Obedience is certainly a straight gate; no side issues, just the one thing to do. It is truly a narrow way, but one un-deviating path leading both to and through it; and the glory of it is, that in pursuing such a course, the individual not only benefits himself now, in this life, but his happiness and joy is enhanced infinitely when the end of the path is reached.

On the other hand how wide is the gate and how broad is the way of disobedience, and truly how many "go in thereat;" many and devious are the paths leading to it, and it requires great breadth because of the numbers who walk in that path. The "broad" way opens to every individual who is unwilling to bring his own will to accept direction and instruction from the Lord; and as it seems to be human nature to want to do as we please, in which disposition the mighty influence of the adversary of righteousness is readily offered, it, unfortunately for the happiness of the human family, too often prevails, and, entering into the wide gate, they follow the broad path, becoming a law unto themselves; and if they continue therein, they reach the end—the destruction of their hope of happiness and salvation in the eternity to follow the short probation of this condition called "time."

There is, and always will be to those who enter in at the "strait gate," a world of comfort and assurance in the promise of the Savior; "If ANY man, will do his [God's] will, he SHALL KNOW of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." (John 7: 17). This language cannot by any rule of good logic or philosophy be limited to any age or people. The Savior has made certain definite promises of life everlasting based upon compliance with certain clearly defined principles which are embodied in the gospel of Jesus Christ; and, that those who accept those principles by obeying their requirements, should not have to wait until the end for the assurance that they had taken the right action in so doing, a promise was given that knowledge of that fact should be imparted them as they progressed, lest the trials and temptations of the adversary along the way should prove too much for their strength; and the word of the Savior is just as much pledged in this regard to every individual who obeys His gospel, as it is that by continued faithfulness to his covenant, he shall, in the end, enter into the joy of his Lord. The one is of no greater force than the other; and the individual who fails to receive a fulfillment of the promise recorded in John 7: 17, has no evidence that the one given in Mark 16: 16, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," will be. Both are made by the same person, and by the same authority. If one fails, there is no assurance that the other will not also. But thousands today are ready to testify that neither will fail, because one of these promises has, in their own individual experience, been realized to their complete satisfaction; they do "know of the doctrine," and they thus have the assurance and are competent to testify as living witnesses, that the first will be completely fulfilled also.

This fully establishes the fact that God is unchangeable in all His ways; and that in spite of assertions to the contrary by large numbers of educated religionists of the world today, He does reveal Himself, in precisely the same manner He always has done when He has made Himself known to the children of men; and in so doing He has acted consistent with Himself in this, as in all other ages of the world when the gospel has been preached by His direction. And thus may all men, every where, now, as in former times, have knowledge for themselves; may be comforted strengthened and cheered by knowing that they are in the narrow way, leaving their minds free to contemplate the glories of God as they are revealed to their understanding from time to time, and to perfecting their characters so far as they can in preparation for the coming of the Savior in power, that they may dwell with Him in the thousand years of rest and peace.

There is no need then, that any should be in doubt and uncertainty regarding the true and narrow way. The scriptures are plain, if we will allow them to speak for themselves. But when men undertake to interpret them according to each individual's own opinion, darkness and error will be the result, because, as a rule, such interpretations are faulty. Paul in Heb. 6: 1, 2 plainly indicates what the principles of the gospel—the narrow way—are, not for any one particular age, but for all times, for all ages; and, accepting those principles, there can be no mistake made, because the very same results will follow today, and tomorrow, that were manifested in the yesterday of Paul's day. Thus we may know. May have assurance and confidence to move forward unto the end, receiving knowledge continually as advancement is made, until the full fruition of our hopes is attained.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. ED. JACKSON, Floresville, Texas, desires the address of Bro. T. J. Sheppard.

The address of Mrs. F. W. Hefflon is Miramar, San Diego County, California.

ELDER GEORGE H. GRAVES, 2458 State Street, Chicago, Ill., writes that he has changed his mission to the above address from No. 508 37th Street. He asks that all who wish to write him will address him at No. 2458 State Street hereafter. He is hopeful that the work at that point may be more successful.

ELDER J. C. FOSS commenced a series of 12 meetings at Scranton, Kan., June 2d, having fair sized congregations. He speaks commendatory of the Saints and officials there, Brn. John Cairns, Menzie and Patterson. He requests the scattered Saints in his mission who may desire preaching in their neighborhood to write him at Topeka, Kansas, and he promises to try to supply the demands. Bro. Pierce was at Centralia and Bro. Beebe at Topeka. Bro. Foss expected to be in Topeka the 12th inst.

BRN. ELI M. WILDERMUTH and J. T. Hackett have been holding preaching services on the streets of Rockford, Illinois, since the 13th inst. They were having large crowds, and they are encouraged in the thought that they are successfully reaching the people, and that street preaching is the most successful way of spreading a knowledge of the gospel in large cities. They are well and feeling hopeful.

It seems necessary to again remind our contributors that we cannot use letters or articles written on both sides of the paper. Those who forget this admonition will have one explanation as to why their communication does not appear. Some still overlook the instruction often given to not write business items on the same sheet of paper with matter for publication. Those who neglect to heed it should not wonder why their matter for publication does not appear. It should not be necessary to speak of these rules so frequently, but some who do not write very often seem to forget, and it becomes essential to refresh their memory in this regard.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

SR. (MRS.) VIOLA D. MANNERING, Wheatland, Missouri:

I was baptized January, 1900, by Elder C. P. Welsh and rejoice in this latter day work. My heart's desire is to grow in grace and knowledge daily. Yesterday [June 8th] a good brother from the Disciple Church, residing near here, was baptized.

BRO. JAMES T. DAVIS, Ava, Missouri, June 8:

Since General Conference I have had Bro. A. M. Baker for a helper, which has been such a great relief for me, as I have had to labor all alone ever since I have been in the field. We have done considerable preaching since we started out. I trust this may be a year of success for the church.

ELDER PETER ANDERSON, Stanberry, Mo., June 16:

As items of interest from this part of the field, I may state that two weeks ago was held, near Bedison, one of the best, and to me, the most spiritual conferences I have attended in this district. Two of our young brethren, Scofield and Ross, were recommended to be ordained priests, and the Spirit amply testified to the divinity of their calling. There seemed to be a general desire on the part of the Saints here to keep step with the work as it advances. Five were baptized on Sunday. The few Saints living at Stanberry met today and organized a Sunday School, choosing Bro. James Scofield superintendent, and Sr. Scofield secretary.

BRO. S. C. ANDES, Hanford, Cal., June 2:

As a wandering pilgrim, isolated, for a season, from the Saints, I am able to realize the condition of those who seldom are permitted to meet with their brethren and enjoy the social meetings, Sunday School, etc. I can now sympathize with those who are thus isolated, and pray for the speedy redemption of Zion. Sometimes when living near each other, and because of small differences arising, we may think for the moment that it would be better if we were not permitted to live so near. Yet for me I will take for a neighbor a Latter Day Saint on the north, another on the south, and the east and on the west: the more the better. Long ago I was taught the lesson that man is mortal and liable to err, and that we must try to cultivate a disposition to be ready to forgive and endure.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

A little girl came Tuesday morning to gladden the home and hearts of Bro. and Sr. John A. Robinson, Jr.

The weather continues very warm and dry. We are needing a rain badly. Cisterns are getting low and vegetation is suffering.

Bro. Henry Hendrickson, son of Bro. and Sr. James Hendrickson, left Monday evening for Colorado Springs en route to the Pacific coast.

Sr. McCauley and her son, Bro. Smith, of Des Moines, Iowa, are visiting relatives in the city. Sr. McCauley is a sister of Brn. I. N. and Alfred White, and Sr. W. S. Loar.

Elder R. Etzenhouser left last Friday afternoon for Colorado Springs, Colo., en route to his mission field in California. He has been detained by sickness of himself and family.

Sr. Flower advises that her daughter, Sr. Grace Brown, for whom prayers were offered recently, is somewhat improved in health, so much so that a surgical operation contemplated for tumor has been found unnecessary.

The recent order in Kansas City closing the slot machines does not affect the Page machine which demonstrates the utility of his cushioned buffers on cars designed to prevent the horrors of telescoping in a railroad accident. The order referred to simply closes up gambling machines of the nickel-in-the slot class.

Brn. I. N. White, Jr., and Alma R. White, the former the youngest son of Elder I. N. White, and the latter a son of Elder Alfred White, graduated Wednesday evening of last week from the Kansas City, (Mo.) Law School. May success attend these brethren in their profession.

Dr. O. S. Riggs, who has attained celebrity in Cincinnati, Ohio, and other cities of the east as a specialist in ruptures, etc., has opened an office in Kansas City, Missouri, and will as soon as arrangements can be made, remove his family to this city. We welcome our brother and his family to our midst.

Sr. A. L. Newton and family, and Sr. Marcia Strong returned from Cove, Arkansas, Wednesday morning, and will be domiciled in their home on Pendleton avenue, the house formerly occupied by Bro. W. N., and later by Bro. J. A. Robinson, Sr. Sr. J. Cole Moxon and daughter also came at the same time. Bro. Moxon will arrive today, Thursday.

Sunday was a splendid day, clear and comfortable. At the morning hour Bro. G. H. Hulmes, president of the Stake, delivered a discourse on the topic, "How can we best advance the interests of the Stake." Many favorable comments upon the effort are made. At night Bro. Joseph Luff presented a strong discourse taking as his chief text the last clause of the 3d verse of Acts 17, "This Jesus whom I preach unto you is Christ."

At the home of Bro. and Sr.

Wm. Clow, parents of the bride, on Tuesday evening, in the presence of nearly fifty assembled guests, all but four of whom were relatives of the contracting parties, Bro. J. A. Koehler and Sr. Edith R. Clow were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by Elder Joseph Luff, the bride's uncle, assisted by Bro. Wm. Clow, the bride's father. The occasion was a remarkably pleasant one throughout. The congratulations and presents which abounded, were testimonials of love. The bride and groom are both well known in this locality, and admired as workers in the interests of the church, and everybody says amen to the prayer for their peace and prosperity in their new relation.

We desire to call the attention of the Saints to the notice of Bishop R. May on page 7 of this issue regarding some choice lots which he is offering for sale on account of the church. They are nicely situated (on some of them we believe there are large forest trees) and are very desirable for a home. The Missouri Pacific Railway station and Pacific station of the Electric line between Kansas City and Independence, are both of easy access. The street is to be paved with brick to Pacific bridge this summer and excellent walks of brick or granite will replace the boards now in use. Bro. Thomas James of this city has purchased one of these lots and will erect a nice residence thereon. The price fixed by the bishopric is at least $50.00 to $100.00 per lot less than other good lots in desirable locations are offered, and such lots are becoming very scarce in the west end of the city where the church is located. We do not apprehend that the bishop will have these lots in his possession for any great length of time.

LAMONI, IOWA.

President Joseph Smith preached at Ellston, Iowa, Sunday where meetings have been held the past week. Bro. Frank Cochran held preaching services at Leon.

The speakers at the church yesterday were Bro. G. H. Hilliard in the morning, and Bro. R. S. Salyards at night. Bro. Chas. Lake at Saint's Home Sunday evening.

Bro. Winfred Kelley, eldest son of Bishop Kelley who has just completed the law course at the state university, Iowa City arrived home Sunday.

Sr. Lou Audentia Gillin entertained a few friends last Thursday evening in honor of her brother Arthur Gillen.

Bro. E. A. Blakeslee left Lamoni last Friday evening for Clear Lake, Minnesota, to attend the quarterly conference at that place.

The Star of Bethlehem Sunday School have ordered a street lamp to be placed at the southeast corner of the church lot; this will supply a long felt want.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The services Sunday were peculiarly pleasing and interesting. Bro. Russell Archibald of St. Louis, Missouri, was the speaker of the morning, taking for his theme "hope;" his elucidations were clear and forceful. Bro. J. M. Terry occupied the stand in the evening; his sermon was full of wise counsel for both old and young.

Bro. and Sr. Russell Archibald and family, of St. Louis, Missouri, and Sr. D. J. Krahl, of Lamoni, Iowa, arrived Saturday. Bro. Russell returned to St. Louis Sunday evening; Sr. Archibald and family, accompanied by her mother, Sr. Krahl, leave today for Davis City, Nebraska, where they will remain for three or four weeks.

Sr. Emma, wife of Bro. Lon Hardman, and daughter of Bro. and Sr. Kinder, calmly and peacefully departed this life Wednesday at 1 o'clock, after a lingering illness, aged 20 years and 11 months. She was highly respected by all her acquaintances, and loved by those who knew her more intimately, for her sweet qualities, and lovely disposition. A very large number of friends followed her to last resting place. The funeral in charge of Bro. J. M. Terry, assisted by Bro. M. Shaw, was from the church Thursday, at 2:30 p. m.

Sr. Jones, mother of Sr. Wm. Lewis, is very low; she has been sick for a long time.

The Religio had their election of officers last Tuesday evening the following were elected Sr. Hattie Whitehead, president, J. A. Gardner, vice president; Janie McKee, secretary; Blair Dobson, treasurer; Pearl Smith, organist; Josie Lsieb, chorister; Russell McKee, librarian.

Bro. and Sr. Terry arrived Wednesday, and the prayer meeting in the evening was like a family reunion. Our hearts were filled with joy in having in our midst again those whom we loved and were associated with in the past.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 S. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m.; Central Branch, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2458 State St.

Recently our new missionary and pastor has been under a very serious affliction, said by the medical profession to be the most painful and exhausting that human flesh is heir to, called Venal Calculi.

Bro. Chatburn has been with us over one Sunday on his way north.

Yesterday Bro. D. A. Anderson and wife left for the East, to engage in tent work with Bro. Greene, in the New York district; they will take in the Pan-American en route.

We are about to begin a campaign of street preaching for the summer, by means of a wagon. Bro. Lang is the instigator. It is intended to have a quartet along also, for singing.

The recent district conference at Mission was a success. Brn. Rudd, Wildermuth, Keck, Anderson, Southwick, and Sheehy, of the missionary staff, and also Brn. Pement, Pitt, Midgorden, Kier and others, of local force attended. The Mission branch holds the "white plume," doubtless, on having the oldest in office, of any branch president in the church. Bro. Hougas has held it there for nearly forty years consecutively.

Chicago is rapidly assuming normal conditions again since the ferment caused by Dowie announcing himself as Elijah. The irreverent newspapers now call him "Lige" Dowie.

Bro. Graves now begins his mission and street work at and near 2458 State street. He is anxious that Bro. R. C. Evans be sure and call when passing through here.

Bro. F. M. Pitt will visit West Pullman next Sunday, in the interest of Sunday School work. He is contemplating a visit to Ladd soon for the same purpose.

Bro. C. W. Dempster and mother, of Anderson, California, were recent guests of Bro. Good. Bro. Garbut and family have returned from a visit to the Pan American Exposition.

Semi-annual business meeting for the election of officers resulted in sustaining Bro. Sheehy as president, Bro. James Kier as priest, Bro. Chas. Shaw as teacher, Sr. Mable Sanderson as secretary, Clara Sherman and Chas. Culver as deacons.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH. 2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1358.

Sunday was a lovely day, the Sunday School was fair; at 11 a. m. Bro. B. J. Scott, from Independence, was the speaker. At the close of the meeting he baptized Mrs. E. Omalla, who, for many years, had been a faithful member of the Baptist church. The afternoon prayer meeting was a soul refreshing season; God, by His Spirit, gave instruction, which cheered and comforted all present. Sr. Omalla was confirmed by Brn. Warnky and Scott. At 8 p. m. President D. F. Winn preached an excellent discourse, but the congregation was small on account of many having gone to the West church, it being Children's Day.

Elder F. C. Warnky preached Sunday evening at Northeast mission; Elder W. H. Pease is preaching in the tent.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Saturday and Sunday, June 22d and 23d, conference of the district. Important business will, in all probability, be transacted.

Brethren Spurlock and Thomas, were persuaded to "bide w" us until after district conference. Bro. Spurlock was speaker morning hour, yesterday, Bro. Fred Smith assisting. Quite a fair attendance last Wednesday evening at prayer service; Brn. Smith and Spurlock presiding.

One of our young sisters, Miss Anna de Jung, graduated from the St. Louis high school this last term. The exercises were held Friday evening, but owing to circumstances, only two or three enjoyed the privilege of attending. Following the Religio, many of the members assembled at the home of Mrs. de Jung, and Anna was congratulated by all. It pleases us to know that within the pale of the Religio, and of the church, we have young people who acquit themselves with honor, of duties imposed.

Bro. Horton attended Religio Friday evening; his experience proves to us the convenience of having the "church directory" published in the Ensign.

Sr. R. Archibald and children, left Saturday for St. Joseph, and points in Nebraska, for a summer vacation; she is to be gone some time we understand. Bro. Russell accompanied his family, as far as St. Joseph, visiting with father and mother there, but will have to return at once as duty keeps him here. Sr. Christenson and children are also away on a vacation, spending the time with her sister, Mrs. Dr. Brown, of Kansas.

Sunday, June 30th, is Children's Day; special efforts are being made to have it very instructive and enjoyable.

Good attendance at both preaching services yesterday; a number of strangers and visitors at each service.

Last evening's social service was a very enjoyable, and soul-refreshing one. Bro. Smith addressed the evening congregation.

Fourth of July picnic at Forest park.

Bro. Smith, we note, has taken upon himself a goodly custom of getting to the front of the church immediately after service and becoming acquainted with his "flock." Last evening there were a number of new faces among the congregation whose addresses Bro. Smith very soon acquired.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services: Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

Rain, lots of rain; but Sunday dawned bright and fair, and Children's Day was a grand success. The regular Sunday School session was had at 9:45 a. m. At 11 a. m. song by the school and prayer by the superintendent, Sr. L. A. Schmutz, followed by repeating the ten commandments, in concert, by the primaries, then a song, and the first psalm, in concert, by the intermediates, followed by a thirty minutes talk to the children and young folks, by Elder E. F. Stupe, and dismissal, after which the school gathered under the locust tree in front of the church and had their pictures taken. In the evening the church was crowded to witness the children's exercises. The program was well rendered in every part, the little ones especially did fine.

Credit is due the committee on decoration for their work of decorating the church for the occasion, the national colors being in the ascendency; also quite a lot of flowers were contributed by different ones.

The district tent has moved to Lamar; while no baptisms resulted from the tent work at Burlington, yet we think good has been done and the seed sown may bear fruit in due season.

The Saints at Colorado Springs are thinking of leasing a lot and building a temporary place for worship.

Bro. Schmutz is improving rapidly since the operation, and will soon be able to leave the hospital.

Sr. Eva Kennedy is visiting at Conifer and will shortly return home to Monte Vista, rumor says to change her name. We will see. S. June 17.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

WOODSIDE, Mo., June 5.

Editor Ensign:—As I never see a word from this part I will write so that many may hear from south Missouri. Our district conference has just closed and all the business was done without a jar. Our preaching was splendid, the speakers were J. B. Graham, O. B. Thomas, H. Sparling and J. C. Christensen. At the close there were two baptized, P. L. and J. T. McGuire. Our next conference will meet with the Pomona branch the last Saturday in August at 10 o'clock a. m.

The blessings of the Master was with us all the way through and we had a spiritual feast with the many Saints attending. Of course there are many Saints who never have been isolated as we have been.

We are looking for much good to be done in this part in the near future, as we have four missionaries in the South Missouri district; the mobs against the Saints have ceased, and the people are more ready to listen to the truth than ever before, for which we thank the Lord.

Your brother in the gospel bond, A. M. D. MCGUIRE.

PERHAM, MINN., June 9.

Editor Ensign:—Since leaving home I have labored at Audubon, Freiberg, Clithral, Silver Lake, Evergreen and Girard. Good interest is manifested by the "out-siders" and the Saints are alive in the work, hopeful of much good and ingathering of souls. Bro. F. D. Omans has laid aside his ministerial garb, and with Bro. Huntington are pushing the new church in Amor to the front. Sunday, the 16th, the first sermon will be preached in it by Bro. Omans. Why they just throw their hats off and put on the boards in fine shape. The Master is making friends from the outside, who are helping nobly in this building.

Will the brethren of the southeastern mission please send me their reports to Lamoni, Iowa, by July the 1st. I will be with you brethren soon, and hope to have the aid of all the Saints to push the work in the south to the front. Let every one take hold and work together in unity and the blessings of God will attend us. I am well and feel well in the work. Even praying for Zion's weal. I am still in the faith.

I. N. ROBERTS.

PIPER CITY, Ill., June 13.

Editor Ensign:—For the benefit of those who care to hear from me I wish to say that I am trying to do what I can in the work of God, and realize that it is work. How easy it would be if we could pass down through life without work—of course we can—but if we do we will not receive the reward, for that will be given as a result of our works. It is much easier to serve the flesh than the Lord, but it is not the easiest thing to do that bring the reward.

I have been in this district now since May 10th, and have found, wherever I have been, that there are some who seem to be doing all they can for the cause of truth. At Wilmington I held fifteen preaching services, with excellent interest, although the attendance was not large. One very encouraging condition there, is the interest the young are taking in the work. May they receive the encouragement due them from the older members. I ordained Bro. Elmer Kahler, a young man of promise, to the office of priest while there, and he was chosen as branch priest.

Our conference of the northeast Illinois district which was held at Mission, June 1st and 2d, passed off very pleasantly. Bro. A. J. Keck and I will begin meetings in the Heaven school-house here tonight. It is a very busy time of year, but we can't stop work, we must be busy too.

If any one who reads this wishes the labor of any of the northeast Illinois missionaries, they may address me at Dow City, Iowa, at any time, and we will do what we can for you.

Your brother in Christ, D. M. RUDD.

BURLINGTON, IOWA, June 10.

Editor Ensign:—Conference of the Nauvoo district passed off very pleasantly here the 1st and 2d inst, with a large attendance. Two were baptized; Bro. Roth being the Apollos. Bro. A. H. Smith and his secretary were with us. I have preached every night since, and have wondered what some of our good Saints would think of walking a mile and a half to church, yet that is just what some of our aged as well as young brothers and sisters have done!

I have felt right "at home" with the visits of Bro. Giesch and enjoyed my visits among the Saints. Go to Arlington, Iowa, tomorrow for a week, thence to Clithral, Minnesota, for their reunion; thence to Eagle Grove, Iowa, where a debate is in prospect. Have an invitation to five reunions in my mission, some ordinations in Fremont district to attend to, and what with the writing of five to eight letters a day, and questions of adjustment from different quarters, with almost every part of my field asking for a personal visit, where is the time for idling? It is much better to wear out than to rust out, however.

Can any one, Mr. Editor, suggest a good reason for me to send to the Herald an exact copy of this letter? And where is the wisdom of one taking a flying trip through another's field, and thereby gaining but a passing knowledge, and then writing to the Herald or Ensign, or both, suggesting the need of those in that field, being more "aggressive," or outlining the necessity of a branch organization, naming the very parties to act as officials, and possibly urging the missionary in charge to look after the matter!

It may be well to say that while personally concerned, I have no feeling in the matter; beyond what seems to me to be the necessity of lifting a note of warning against the unwise procedure.

If the proof is at hand that the missionary in charge or his ministers, or both, be not as aggressive as they should, then instead of making the matter public, the presidency should be informed, that proper adjustment could be sought. Or, if a branch organization seems a necessity, why not write directly to the missionary in charge rather than to embarrass future operations by such a public designation of branch officer or officers? I guess that is enough in the fault finding line.

Will the ministry of Iowa and Minnesota please remember that the first of July will soon be here, and prepare accordingly, Hopefully, J. W. WRIGHT.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 17.

Editor Ensign:—When last writing you I was in Illinois among kind relatives and Saints, trying to build up a weakened body, and through the kind care, the wholesome air and good fare we improved rapidly. While visiting at Keltsburg we were waited upon by Rev. Whittier, the M. E. minister, and invited to remain over Sunday and preach for him, but our hurry prevented our accepting. We have twice in the past occupied his pulpit. While at Millersburg we viewed the spot where we first saw the light of day, also the spot where, as a boy, we asked privilege to be baptized; also the building where we were ordained first to the Aaronic, then to the Melchizedek priesthood, and where we made our first attempt to tell the gospel story. We also visited the old school yard "where once we played the ball some thirty years ago." The old school-house has been supplanted by a new one, the trees, like the children, have grown beyond recognition, and the old professor (B. F. Brock) sleeps beneath the sod; peace to his ashes.

At the quarterly conference we met a few of the old familiar ones, but many had passed away. While sitting in the neat little church house we thought of the many days of toil of Bro. James Vernon, in gathering together the means and material, while the window shutters reminded me of the toll of Aunt Besty Miller and others, at a county fair, in running an eating booth. Their places were vacant, but their blessed memory comes as an inspiration to press on in the latter day work.

We met here Bro. Russell, LaRue, Steadman, J. Arthur Davis and O. H. Bailey of the missionary force. The conference was in charge of Bro. J. S. Patterson, vice president of district, in the absence of Bro. C. E. Clark, the president. Bidding a reluctant adieu to dear ones, we hastened on; making a short stop at Osceola we spent a few happy hours with Mr. L. C. Maine and wife, who is a sister to mine. Their great kindness afforded us pleasure, and their graphophone much amusement. By request wife and I filled a blank by singing two verses of one of our hymns, after which I made a little speech on the coming of Christ. This they will have, to reproduce at any time. These machines are a standing miracle, as great, to me, as the healing of the sick.

We hastened on, arriving at this place, and have been greeted by many a welcome grasp of the hand and expressions of joy at our return. We are now enjoying the hospitality of Bro. and Sr. C. H. Leitb, where also our hearts are thrilled by the music, vocal and instrumental, of Sr. Josie, their talented daughter. We had the pleasure of listening to an excellent discourse yesterday, by Bro. R. Archibald, of St. Louis. Last evening we addressed a good audience of attentive listeners. We see already here a wide field for work, and feel an assurance, with the aid of the local ministry, we may accomplish something for the Master. The missionary spirit is burning in many hearts here.

Yesterday where we took dinner, a young sister excused herself from the table, that she might attend a mission Sunday School at a remote part of the city. What a good example, we thought. As our strength permits, we hope to occupy until He comes, and to be found among the faithful servants, giving meat in due season.

Yours in the faith, J. M. TERRY.

JONESPORT, Me., June 8, 1901.

Editor Ensign:—All is fairly well away off here on the coast of Maine. I don't think I am longing for the leeks and onions of Egypt, but I must confess that I often think of the Saints and friends in Pottawattamie and Fremont districts, Iowa, and also of the pleasant experiences had with them the past three years. I went among them in April, 1898, a stranger, and was with them till May, 1901; and, in all that time, I never had to ask the bishop nor his agents for money for personal expenses, not even to attend the General Conferences, and yet I never lacked for anything. My wants were always supplied, and it was done cheerfully, too, without my having to make them known.

Is it strange, then, that I should look back upon those three years as among the most pleasant of my life? I found the Saints always kind, appreciative, and generous; and I hope they were not made any the worse by my three years sojourn among them. The feeling among the ministry was frank and cordial, and entirely free from jealousy and envy, so far as I know. I loved the Saints, and loved the ministry, and I regretted very much to leave them. The Saints of Carson, where I made my home, have especially endeared themselves to me, by their many acts of kindness and love, and I shall certainly remember them in my prayers for the same.

But those pleasant associations, like many other good things, had to end. When the appointments were read, at our last conference, I saw that I. M. Smith was assigned to the eastern mission; and on consulting the missionary in charge, Bro. W. H. Kelley, I learned that I was to labor in that part of the eastern mission known as the state of Maine. It was quite a change and, while I felt sad at the thought of leaving western Iowa. I also felt a thrill of joy at the thought of once more being permitted to see the eastern Saints. I have no fault to find with my mission. It is a very pleasant field in which to labor, and the Saints are noble and kind. I am satisfied with my field, satisfied with the Saints, and hope, sometime, to be satisfied with myself.

On reaching my new field of labor, I began work at once. Am enjoying good health, a first class appetite, and a reasonably clear conscience. I have no houses, lands, bank accounts, money, nor earthly wealth of any kind, to bother me, nor any debts hanging over me. "Having food and raiment, let us therewith be content, I believe is the way Paul puts it; and, this being my present condition, I am comparatively happy. I recognize, however, that "contentment, with godliness is great gain," and am therefore trying to "add" that Christian grace, known as "godliness," to my present stock of wealth. And if I succeed, fully, I shall consider it "great gain," indeed; for then I shall be quite rich.

There is plenty to do, to keep us all busy, so there is no cause for being blue or homesick. God has promised to be with His servants, if faithful, and I know He is as good as His promise. Let us take courage, Saints, and never falter by the way; clouds may hang over us at times, but God's hand is behind even "the darkest cloud," we sometimes sing, and we can see it, too, if our faith and trust in Him is what it should be. I feel encouraged in the work, and hopeful of its final triumph.

My address for the present, is Jonesport, Washington county, Maine.

May the blessings of our Heavenly Father attend his people, and give success to his work.

In gospel bonds, ISAAC M. SMITH.

POST OAK, Mo., June 11.

Editor Ensign:—Since last I wrote I have moved from Canada to the land chosen for the gathering of God's people and am trying to live worthily before the Lord, that I may receive the blessings He has promised to the faithful. We like this part of Missouri splendidly; the Saints are trying to build up the work of the Lord here. Although the school-house was closed to preaching, to shut out the Saints, a good brother, who is not a Saint, but believes in the doctrine, opened one of his houses which was built for a store, for us to hold meetings in, and I pray the good brother may not only believe in the Lord's gospel, but will obey it.

A few of the Saints rallied together and organized a Sunday School, the best we could according to our means, Elder Madden taking the lead. We thought at present we could not go to the expense of sending for district superintendent, and I must say that our efforts have been rewarded with about thirty scholars. We hope we have not taken honors on ourselves in doing this, but have done the best we could under the circumstances.

We also have preaching at Sunday School, which is at ten o'clock, and hope that any of the Saints who have heard of our meetings will come and help us. We would be glad to have some of the officers from any of the Sunday Schools around, and especially from Holden, for we are acquainted with them. I might say Elder Madden will preach here at Post Oak every second and fourth Sunday at 11 o'clock, and at Teabo branch every third Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Your brother in the true faith, WESLEY RAVELL, Sec.

WAGAR, N. D., June 11.

Dear Ensign:—I thought best to write a few lines to your columns, as perhaps some would like to hear from me, especially the Saints at Holden, Missouri, who because I don't write often to your columns. There are no Saints here but myself and family; we came in March, and have organized a union Sunday School, and the people put me in charge, both as acting superintendent and Bible teacher. I wish to have the opportunity to explain much of the gospel to them. We have a good Sunday School, and the people all seem anxious to learn, and I have been teaching the Bible in a new light to that which they have been used. They have been very interested in preaching, and the last two Sundays I preached for them, and the people could not all get in the house. I never talked to more attentive hearers. Will commence a protracted effort at the same school-house, on the 23d, don't know what the result will be, but will do my duty and leave the Lord to give the increase.

There is but very little preaching of any kind in this part of the country, so I think it a good opportunity to get the truth before the people, will inform you later of the results of my efforts in this part of the Lord's vineyard. I ask an interest in the prayers of the Saints, that I may ever be found at my post, striving to do the Master's will. It is wholesome to be away from the branch of the church, but there are other souls to save, and I want to see other souls into the kingdom; and for that reason I am willing to bear the burden, and deprive myself of some of the pleasures of the world, and be situated so they can meet together and enjoy. Ever praying for the welfare of Zion.

Your brother in the gospel, J. S. WAGENBER.

LOWRY CITY, Mo., June 12.

Dear Ensign:—I wish, through your pages, to say that early in May I left my home, at Holden, Missouri, to begin work in the Clinton district, against the many objections. I proceeded to Rich Hill, where I met with two of my missionary helpers, Bro. T. R. White and A. C. Silvers. They remained two days and then moved on to other parts. I continued there over the night, and then preached five, then on to Walker, where I received a telegram to go to Seelie City to administer to a sick sister; I then returned to Walker, preached twice to a few interested hearers.

From Walker I went to Veve, to attend the district conference, and met with two more of my co-laborers, with a large representation of the district. The Spirit of peace and unity prevailed, and all things considered we had a very profitable time. I planned to be associated with so good a people. I remained at Veve a few evenings, and on the 7th came to this place. This is the home of our worthy brother, T. R. White. He tent set up, and ready for business when I arrived. The tent is in a good location close to Bro. T. R.'s house. We are having a good hearing with good order.

Bro. White, with his excellent wife and two daughters, who, fortunately, are at home at this time, and many others are doing all in their power to make the meeting a success, and also to make it pleasant for the missionaries. We will possibly continue here until the 13th or 14th, then the tent will go to Roscoe; citizens there offering to defray the expense of moving the tent. I am pleased to have so good an outfit of co-laborers in the district.

Many good, faithful Saints in this field, yet there is ample room for improvement, and I am pleased to hear a number expressing their determination to take higher ground. My prayer is that this may be the result of many all along the line. I have been instructed by the Spirit to teach the Saints to purify themselves quickly. May the great God help us to awake to our true condition.

Yours in the conflict, expecting to win, JAMES MOLER.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

OBJECTIONS EXAMINED.

Sermon delivered by President Joseph Smith, at Washington Park, Sunday, September 2, 1900, near Independence, Missouri.

A gentleman shook hands with me this morning with the remark that he was glad to shake the hand of the leader of a spiritual or religious movement that was born after he was, if I understood the statement. At the Parliament of Religions in 1893, we had made an application to be heard with all others whom we supposed should have the right to be represented in the Parliament of Religions—the World's Religions was the term as it was presented to the people on the bill.

There were present at that parliament, Elder B. H. Roberts, of Utah, to represent that branch of the so-called Mormon church, and on behalf of this Reorganized church, Elder Wm. W. Blair and myself were the accredited delegates to that parliament. It had been understood that Utah should be permitted to represent itself; it was also understood that the Reorganized church should have the opportunity to represent itself; but it so transpired through the will of those who had the controlling interests, that neither of these so-called factions of what was understood to be the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, or Mormons, was heard; and no single portion of the various remnants that seemed to have been left after the death of Joseph and Hyrum Smith was permitted to be represented there. Bishop Kelley, commenting upon that statement and our exclusion from the parliament, simply remarked that it was very appropriately styled a "Parliament of the World's Religions," and that the religion of Jesus Christ was excluded. I am not responsible for this remark, neither am I responsible for having been excluded; but it must strike the average thinker, both in the churches and out of them, that it is something remarkable that the only religion that is indigenous to American soil was excluded from that parliament; that the only organized religious body that had its incipient rise, and has had its continued existence and success of organization, on American soil should have been excluded from the representation in the "World's Parliament of Religions." Is not that singular?

I may be pardoned this morning if my discourse be somewhat discursive, and I review, as rapidly as I may, some of the things which have been done in the spiritual realm of controversy since this church was organized April 6, 1830. In the first place the statement made by the angel to him who was chosen as the earthly instrument by which the church should be represented abroad, and should find its organization, was that the declarations of belief, or the creeds, were an abomination in God's sight. At the start this was considered to be the utterance of a madman or a fanatic and it brought down upon his devoted head, together with those who were with him in the after movement, all the wrath of the proscriptive element in the various organizations of the churches at the time. But I, as his son, have lived to see the time come when many of the ministers of the different churches existent in the United States, met in solemn conclave, and as they did so, were strongly reminded while in that conclave, that the creeds were an abomination in the sight of God.

Now I come to you this morning representing no specific creed except what I understand to be the truth. While we have our articles of belief and faith, briefly stated, we are bound by no specific utterance of human kind, bound together by a creed of human origin, if any portion of that utterance of belief shall discard or disregard the revealed will of God as expressed in what we understand to be the Holy Scriptures. And while we say that, we do not adopt the unreasoning reverence for the so-called word of God that makes us, with the Bible shut, say that we believe it all to have been the result of plenary inspiration from the first to the last, for we know better. But we take the Bible to be what it represents itself to be, and while we strive to avoid the one extreme of worshiping and worshiping blindly, we try to avoid the other extreme of having a statement of religion so loose that there is no specific form or value to its representation.

One of the first things that was struck out by this new religion was the old time theory that man was, by nature, totally depraved, and that he was conceived in sin and born in iniquity, and that there was no good thing in him. The reason why this other proposition was struck out was, that we read in the book of God that He made man in His own image, and I myself have been obliged to combat that idea during the forty years of my ministry in different places and at different times, upon the hypothesis that it was supposed that this was the real creation of man. But when I challenge the proposition just as it has been challenged by those who preceded me, and I am but two years younger than the church itself, we challenged it upon the just proposal that if God made man in his own image, was it a material or a moral image, that was referred to?

I have been tried, in connection with my comrades, upon the hypothesis that we have degraded the character of God in believing that man was made in His physical image; but when we ask these supporters of this old time creed, "Does the statement mean that God made man in His physical image?" And they say no, and that we have degraded Him thus, and brought Him down to the level of man. Then we ask them, "Did God create man in His own moral image?"

And when they say, yes, we then ask, "Is it a credit to the Godhead that He created a being like Himself that was morally depraved?" I don't know whether there are any listening to me who have accepted and hold to that old-time theory or not, but if they have, pray tell me upon which of these two horns of this religious dilemma do you prefer to hang your religious faith and fate?

The next thing that was struck at directly by the intervention of this new faith, was that God had always had upon the earth a people, and that the voice of inspiration had ceased when the scriptures or the canon of scriptures was full; as a consequence, from that time on down through the history of the earth, there had not, and was not, and would never be, any further revelation from God. This thought was struck at because that there could be found no specific line in the enactments called the New and the Old Testament scriptures, by which, if the old time law had become abrogated—there was not a single line written in all the New or Old Testament in which it is stated, that God would no more reveal himself unto the human family; but on the contrary, there was much in the New Testament scripture to warrant the thought that wherever and whenever God had a people upon the earth there would be found a line of spiritual communication from the heavens to that people, through those whom he might choose, who might be surnamed prophets, apostles, evangelists, pastors and teachers. And Joseph Smith dared the reprobation of the world in his presentation of this new theory, the new doctrine, whatever you may call it, which culminated in the institution of a church, April 6, 1830, by saying that he had received the visitation of an angel. Their theory of meeting that was that Joseph Smith did not see an angel, simply because there were no angelic ministers sent to the earth at the time.

That was a strange thing. I have never been to London nor to Paris. There are a great many things in this world that I know by observation and hearing and reading, that I am thoroughly apprized exist; but yet if my testimony is to be taken, I do not know anything at all about them; but if my neighbor proposes to tell me what he has seen or heard in other climes, under other skies than this, may I too say, because they never passed under my observation that he never saw nor heard anything of the kind? That, to me, is the supreme height of nonsense—I was going to say—maybe that is too strong, but I will guarantee this, that if I were to go into the courts and undertake to impeach the testimony of any other wise, honorable man on such a proposition as that, the judge would rule me down.

Some of the things that were said by the angel to Joseph Smith have come so literally true that it is worth for me to mention them; among them was this: that while he was to be made the instrument of an institution of a new faith, so-called in the world, his name should be had for good and for evil, wherever it should be heard in the world; and from that time to this, there has never been, and there is not now, any place where I may go, or where my brethren may go, where the name of Joseph Smith has been presented, but that it is reprobated by one class and it is extolled by another. The angel surely told the truth in that respect. I am an instance in the fulfillment of this prophecy simply from the fact that go where I will, from the time that I was twelve years old until now, I have been followed invariably, north, south, east and west by the prefix, "The son of Joe Smith, the Mormon prophet;" and I have had otherwise good, intelligent, honorable, virtuous, religious, noble citizens turn their backs upon me rather than to be met on the street; and I have been avoided otherwise in such things as that, but so little has been known in respect to me, though I have now been before the world for forty years, that on this ground I was asked the question if I resided in Salt Lake City. I do not know but what the next question might have been, "Mr. Smith, please tell me how many wives you have?" Well, so far as that is concerned, I apprehend I am like a good many married men now present, I have one, and she would not let me have another.

Another thing that was struck at—and you will see in that the result of belief in present revelation—was that this manifestation of the Spirit named in the 12th chapter of Paul's letter to the Corinthians, should be a part of the so-called christian church; as there were manifestations of the spiritual life of the body of Jesus Christ, we were warranted in making inquiry touching the kingdom or the church of Christ. If they did not find this spiritual manifestation of the life in the body of Christ, they were justified in saying that there was reason to believe that that body of Christ was not alive.

I propose to talk plainly; I do not want anybody to go away and misrepresent what I say, and I will try to make it as plain as I can in this sense. This is a hot day, and it may be possible for some person to be stricken down with heat and overcome with the infirmities of the flesh, brought in here as apparently dead. A physician is summoned to make inquiry whether life is extinct or not. He comes in to where this body lies, and, lifting up the arm, it falls inert. Opening the eyes, he looks to see whether he can discern through the windows of the soul, life shining out; then he puts his hand on the heart to see whether there is motion in the seat of life. If he finds none of these evidences, he turns to those by whom he may be surrounded, and says, "The man is dead."

Now we propose to put, if we can, the body of Christ into extinction. It is claimed to be the body of Christ; we take the scriptural description of the body of Christ and make inquiry, Is there the spirit of prophecy in this body? Is there the manifestation of the speaking in tongues in this body? Is there the spirit of prophecy, or the healings of the sick, or the discernment of spirits, or the interpretation of tongues in this body of Christ? Are there any of these mysterious tokens that manifested or marked the body of Christ under the administration of the apostles? Are they found in this body? If they are not, what is the conclusion to which a man standing near and watching the examination will inevitably come?

When I was a lad I remember reading a sort of legendary teaching something like this: "An individual had gone among the Indians and had preached quite awhile there; had incited quite a degree of controversy and inquiry, and, distributing his Bibles, he gave one of them to an intelligent looking Indian. After awhile the Indian came back to him and said, "I like to read your book; now sir, will you please allow me to ask you some questions?" Of course the missionary was quite willing, as they almost always are. He says, "I would like to see an apostle. Will you please tell me whether you have apostles in your church and where I may see him?" "Ah no," says the missionary, "we have no apostles in our church; the apostles were in the days of the disciples, but they ceased, and there are no longer any of them;" or, "they are no longer needed." "Have you any apostles in your church?" "No, sir, none in our church." "Very well, then, will you please tell me whether you have a prophet or prophets in your church, and will you please let me see and hear one of them?" "No, sir, we have no prophets. Why, people believed in prophets in the olden time, but they do not believe in them now and they are not in our church." He says, "Do you have the speaking in tongues?" "No, sir."

"Do you have the interpretation of tongues or prophecy, the healings of the sick and the laying on of hands?" No, sir, all these were for the ages that were past and not now." He quietly took the book and handed it back to him and said, "This book is of no value to me, sir, for I read in it that the church called the church of Christ had all these things in it, and if your church hasn't these things in it, I cannot regard it as the church of Christ."

Now I know I am talking in modern times when there is a strong tide against superstition, when there is a strong element arrayed against undue priestcraft, and against that which brings the minds of men into subjection to the minds of other men. I am living in a day when there is a great deal of elementary belief in the peculiar personal magnetism of those who address the public, and I myself have been accused of hypnotizing the people to make them believe as I believe. I am not very rough given to the belief that I could hypnotize an intelligent audience on American soil.

But here we have the difficulty, and once when I preached in a little town called Colchester, in Illinois, before a number of the Christian brethren, and indeed, it was in their chapel that I made my effort, that in the afternoon I attended their Sunday School service, and heard one of their deacons reading from the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians, the manifestations of the Spirit of Christ as found in the church at that period of time; and when he had read it clear through, he shut the book, laid it down on the seat, and said to those who were listening, "My brethren,"—and I was astonished at the sadness of the voice—"I heard Elder Smith, the other evening, and he said that these things were for the Christian church. I have read in this book these things from the 12th chapter of 1 Corinthians, as stated by the Apostle Paul, and I find no warrant in my belief for believing that God ever deliberately set a time when these things should cease to be characteristic of His church. Now, all I have to say, brethren, is this, that if these things should be in our church, may God help us, for we have not got them." His brethren silenced that deacon and would not permit him afterwards to exercise the rights of his office, because, they said, he was drifting into apostasy, and in two years from that time the poor man died without a Christian hope.

Now, pray tell me, what and where is the consistent objection? If the Bible be the word of God; if this is the New Testament or the last will and testament of Jesus Christ the Lord, to the world, when and where is the time and place that God has ever set that these things should cease to characterize the body of the church or the body of Christ? I have sought diligently for it; my brethren have sought diligently for it, but in not a single instance can we find a line of authentic declaration made by God or by Christ, that authorizes us to believe that He has abrogated this will or these privileges; and if we may be found fighting against the great majority while the world shall stand or we live, I propose to go up before that great judgment bar and answer to Him, that "I had your word as you gave it to us, and by it we stand or fall before you for our belief in the Testament and our acceptance of that word.

Personally I am going to do just like I told the people in Utah once that I would do, when I was out there and preaching our view of the marriage covenant. I did not attack the situation there; said no unkind word of a single minister of that church in any form. I simply told our phase of it, and showed by the three books that is, that the Bible did not sustain polygamy, or plural marriage, that the Book of Mormon did not sustain it, and that the revelations of God to the church did not sustain it; and I told them that I proposed to go into the judgment day, and standing before that great august Judge, I should take the books which He had given us by revelation to be the doctrinal standards of the church, upon which to base our doctrinal beliefs and teachings, and then say to the Judge, "If you can condemn me on that, I am content to be condemned." All worldly minded men, and honorable men would have commended me for that, because of having dared to undertake the defense of a faith, that, to a great degree, had found objections with the world by the introduction of a something that was not found in the books, and doing it from the standard authority of the books—we cannot revert back to unbelief or to our condition of letting these things pass away. Now can we?

Among these things that were presented so early in the history of the church was the healing of the sick through the laying on of hands. It was, for a long time, a standard objection, and it was, for a long time, a constant source of reproach even within my own memory; but I have lived long enough to know that when I first began preaching, wherever we went, it was a constant source of objection and of scornful laughing at us because we believed that through the laying on of hands the sick might be healed; but I have lived with my conferees to see the time come when a convocation of religious ministers, gathered in Chicago some years ago, went to work deliberately and passed a resolution which said that the laying on of hands for the healing of the sick is not only scriptural, but it is a reasonable and tenable doctrine. I am thankful that they did that.

There was another theory that was extant about that time, that became punctured a little later on, and we know what it is worth now; but some of the ways that it was done were a little singular. For instance, I had a discussion with a Baptist lady in private conversation at one time, and she very seriously objected to us, as a people, because she said we limited the power of God. I wondered how that could be when we accepted the power of God as being equal to anything; the only thing that we denied He could do, was that He could not lie. She said that we did not believe that God created the world out of nothing. Well, I wondered just then how I was to get away from that theological knot. I understood it to be a prevalent idea, I had heard it when I was a boy. It grew up, in a sense, to my manhood with me, as being a standard teaching, that the world was created by the executive power of God out of nothing. I denied it, and those men who came forward with the Reorganized church in 1830, denied it, and they said the Bible itself said nothing of the kind. About all that it does say is, that "In the beginning" God created the world. He said, "Let there be light and there was light," but we are given to understand that there was in existence a great mass of chaotic matter, by which it was made possible for the world to be created as it now stands, by the fiat of God.

I could not make any impression on the lady. We were sitting in a station in Plano, Illinois, waiting for a train; we were sitting by the stove, and the janitor came along, opened the door and shoved a stick of wood into the fire. This suggested to me a thought. I said, "What becomes of that wood, is it destroyed?" "No, sir. It is resolved into ashes, the different quantities of solids may be taken out of the ashes, and the balance of it ascends in smoke, and the vapors arising also become mingled with matter." Are they destroyed? "No, sir. It always exists thereafter." It has not been destroyed, and cannot be destroyed? "No, sir. God himself cannot destroy it." He may change its form but not destroy it? "No, sir, once existing, it is always existing in some form." Then I laughed and said, "My dear lady, you are finding fault with myself and my brethren because we limit the power of God, because we say God did not create the world out of nothing; but yet you deliberately turn and say to me that God has created a thing, that He cannot destroy. Pray, which is the worse?" Some of our conferees over in Canada undertook to get rid of this conclusion, and this is the way they did it. "I do not believe that God created the world out of nothing, but He created the world out of that which had been created out of nothing." That is the way they got rid of that theological knot. We accept neither.

So we run along down through the history, and, one by one, we have seen some of these peculiar theories that have come to us, as, I believe, from the dark ages, or from the ages before, reformed little by little, until there was what I believed to be the presentation of a lucid and clear statement of what the Bible teaches us for the salvation of men.

Let me present the single thought that our so-called declaration of faith, every single portion of it from first to last—I believe I remember seeing on the back of one of the church's creeds this morning twelve declaration—that each one of the important portions of this declaration of faith can be traced directly to the teachings of Jesus Christ, either in personal teaching or in personal conduct. As, for instance, the doctrine of baptism. "Baptisms," in the Word as given by the Apostle Paul in the 6th chapter of Hebrews, is plural; the baptism of water for the body, the baptism of the Spirit for the spirit.

Now, when Jesus came, and it was stated of Him by John the Baptist, "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world," that word which had preceded John was that he was to "Prepare the way of the Lord, to make his paths straight." "God does not walk in crooked paths," is the teaching of the old book. If John the Baptist came to make His paths straight, then He may not walk in them unless He does so make them straight.

One of the first things Jesus did, before engaging in the general ministry, was to go to John the Baptist and ask baptism at his hands; and why? First, that there might come to that body of Abraham's origin which had been prepared for Him, a power by which it might exist, and finally be laid down in the grave, and taken up out of the grave; and that to each succeeding generation it was for the purpose of giving spiritual sight, that the language of the Savior to Nicodemus might be fulfilled, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." It is necessary for him to receive the new birth in order that he can see. There is something belonging to our visual organs of peculiar character.

There is something that attaches to the gray matter behind the skull that sometime makes individuals deaf, and blind. Though I may have two good eyes, apparently, there is one thing I do not see, and see clearly, and that is the beauty of colors. You men and women see the harmony of colors, and the exquisite shading and rejoice therein. I am 'one of those who may be called color-blind. I would not be chosen as a brakeman or pilot, or for any service that required the accurate distinction of colors, for just as soon as the lights are a little ways from me, I cannot distinguish the colors. I have been laughed at because I sometimes call things that are green, red, and blue, green. How much would I have given to have had that peculiar organization of the brain, in some way made better, that I might see and understand colors; but how much more to be deplored is the condition of the man in the world with the darkness over his moral vision so dense that he cannot see; and when the time should come that he desires to do something for his salvation in making the wise choice, he is unable to see, and sometimes must wait until the force of circumstances brought to bear upon him, compels him unto a conclusion, and compels a belief.

I have heard persons excuse themselves for unbelief because they had not yet had brought to bear upon them the force of evidence by which conviction was sealed upon them. I believe, not because I have been compelled to believe; I believe because, to me, it is the better course to pursue. When there comes presented before me two courses from which to choose, I believe in bringing my mind to the element that is in me, the power to receive and reason upon the two courses, and take that one that offers to me the better ending; to do it from choice, and because it has come to me with such evidence as I have been able to gather, and make it a proper choice in me.

No man can say when he proposes to enter into the service of God, just what God purposes to, nor what God may, fully require of him from the first to last; but he must put himself in to the way of receiving something from God or he never can have it. If he proposes to stand out and keep himself from the intervention of God's mercy, he will have to stand out until the lapse of time. I know that the example of the Apostle Paul may be cited here in apparent antagonism to this proposition. There was but one Apostle Paul. Will you wait until there comes to you a conversion like that given to the Apostle Paul? Will you continue to wait until God, by personal intervention, bespeaks your sins forgiven? or do you not think it the wiser plan to accept the general law of amnesty, and make your calling and election sure under that?

When the southern army laid down its arms, and the government was established again, was it better for those who had rebelled against the authority of the government to wait until, by slow succession, there had been introduced into the legislative halls of the Union specific and private bills by which their sins of rebellion were condoned, and they again rehabilitated as citizens of the United States, or was it not better that there should be a general amnesty law declared by which, when they took the oath of allegiance, they might then be considered American citizens? You all know the amnesty law was the better way.

When God recognizes that the world is in sin, He does not propose to deal with each recurring sin; He proposes to leave man in the intelligent exercise of his individual powers and give him an opportunity to make the wise choice, and to accept His general law of amnesty; and under that provision receive the remission of sins for which He can make no personal reparation either here or hereafter.

In order that you may understand me, I want to make a recitation of a little circumstance in my own life. Several years ago I was privileged to be present at a lecture delivered by a gentleman by the name of Webster. There may be some here who know something about the man. He was a spiritualistic lecturer, and in the course of his lecture, he made the statement, as I had read it in Andrew Jackson's work, that there were spheres, grading from the lower to the higher, and that each gradation held the key to that which was beyond; that if anything that would prevent an individual below from ascending higher because of something which he had done to his fellows, then he could not go into the higher sphere until he had received forgiveness from the lower sphere.

He recited an instance of a seance being held in a place and this kind of a manifestation being made, that the spirit of a man who was in a certain sphere in another world was present, wanting them to send for a certain individual in the village against whom he had done a grievous wrong while in the flesh; that this man in the flesh, held the key to the sphere above him, and until he got his forgiveness, he could not go into the other sphere. They sent for the man and he heard the message, and gladly forgave him, and there came from the spirit world the joy of a spirit relieved from its thralldom. At the closing, he having said something about the utility and in-utility of the Christian's belief, I asked to be allowed to ask three or four questions. The privilege being granted, I then asked if it was true in his philosophy, that a man having transgressed against one in the flesh could not progress beyond the sphere into which he was first admitted, until he had secured the forgiveness of that one in the flesh who is here now?

"Yes, sir."

"Suppose from any unforeseen contingency this man cannot obtain the forgiveness of the man on the earth, what is the result?"

"The result is he must continue to be kept in that particular sphere and can not progress further."

I asked if there was any rule by which this kind of forgiveness between individuals could be wrought out in this philosophy. He said no. I asked him then the question if it would not be proper and better that in the consideration that there are sins which men commit against their fellowmen for which they can make no possible reparation either here or hereafter, that there should be a specific law of amnesty by which the sins that men could not repent of against his fellows, could be condoned, and such sins forgiven? I will tell you, that instead of answering that question, he simply turned to the man who had charged and said something to him, and he told me that Mr. Webster was too weary to answer any further questions. You can see the reason why. He had attacked the position taken by myself and other religionists, that in Jesus Christ there was the opportunity for the condonation and remission of sins, for which it is not within the power of human beings, either here or on the other side, to make reparation for themselves.

As, for instance—I am going to put this case just as strongly as I know how—suppose that I, when a young man, had, under the promise of marriage, or otherwise, deceived one of Eve's fair daughters, and brought her into shame and disgrace; and when I had done that, I had gone my way, as hundreds of men have done and are doing now, and left her to suffer the scorn of this world, and the condemnation against such characters in the spiritual realm, if there is such a one. Afterwards I succeed in gaining the affections of another woman, and marry her, thus making it utterly impossible for me to repair that injury I have done that woman. How am I ever to make reparation for that crime? I know that the sentiment of a large portion of this congregation is, that it never should be forgiven in this world, or the world to come. Should I echo that sentiment here and now, it never will do; but the man who does it, must pass under the rod until such a time as there has been a reformation in his spirit; then when he makes this reformation, and makes it apparent unto the Almighty, there must be some reason, and some way, by which he may be absolved from the further consequence of that sin, or God is made a vindictive being, whom neither you nor I can worship intelligently, or trust as confident children.

I have only named one instance; but I can go up into the town of Independence on the morrow, and may there slander the reputation of a man or woman, and sow thorns in their path which shall wound their weary feet as they travel upward, and I never have opportunity to make reparation for that wrong. Now, if I see what I have done, and subsequently want to repair the wrong so far as I may, I cannot restore the blush to the peach or plum. I cannot erect the broken blade of grass that I so ruthlessly destroyed, but I may, so far as my spirit is concerned, bring myself into such relationship with the powers we are under, that I ought to be relieved from further consequence of my evil; and I must find this in the general rule of amnesty in the law of God, or I am lost. Pray, tell me, what is there wrong in this? A hope engendered within us in the restoration of the gospel of the Son of God by which this general law of amnesty is to be proclaimed, and those who may not make right the wrongs they have committed in the flesh, may have the restoration of that which is taken from them; the same as our penitentiary people can, through the clemency of the governor, have their citizenship retained for them on account of their behavior.

You people in the state of Missouri here, have strong laws against horse stealing. You prize horses higher that we do in Iowa, and very reasonably, for you have a much finer strain of horses. Your law provides that a horse thief must suffer the extreme penalty of the law. If I steal my neighbor's horse, he proposes to punish me for it. The law began with the state's existence, and until the state of Missouri is wiped out, I do not believe Missourians will ever change their policies in this regard; and though I may steal a thousand horses, I shall be a thousand times punished according to the law. It is the eternal law of punishment, provided as the eternal punishment, but it can exist upon one person only, until the limits of the term which the law fixed as the due punishment or penalty for my crime. That is what we call an eternal punishment. It is directly against the favorite theory that has been in the world for a long time, that which was struck at directly by Joseph Smith and others; it destroyed the idea of an eternal punishment forever and forever, a never ending hell fire for the man that did wrong.

But in the application of this principle I have referred to, if I am arrested and convicted for stealing a horse, and am put in the penitentiary for a term, when I have passed the limit of that term, and have tried to behave myself properly, there are two ways to treat me. One is to let me suffer my penalty clear out, and lose my right of suffrage; or when I have behaved well, the governor remits a part of the sentence and thus saves me my citizenship. Then when, in like manner, an individual has done wrong in the world which he cannot make right here, neither in the world hereafter, so far as the person against whom he has sinned is concerned, he passes under the operation of that everlasting, eternal law of God, and is punished by virtue of that eternal law. That is what we understand by an eternal punishment and to my mind it is perfectly clear and consistent.

I have covered some portion of the ground. I have only one little thing left and that I am going to present.

Martin Luther brought to pass a reformation in the church, and King Henry the Eighth brought to pass a reformation in the church. Alexander Campbell likewise; and it was said that Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon originated a church. Sidney Rigdon was a member of the Christian church when he became allied with Joseph Smith. It was said that he was one of the most eloquent men that there was in the Western Reserve. He had been instrumental in converting hundreds of individuals, and when he united with Joseph Smith in the church that was organized in 1830, it became a source of reproach among his former companions, that he had done so. If Martin Luther had the right to undertake to reform the Catholic church because of abuses that he discovered when he went to Rome and there took counsel around the Vatican, and could not reconcile what he saw and heard, with that which had been taught him in the north of Germany; if he had a right to interest Melancthon with him, and other citizens of the northern empire and undertake a reformation, and if King Henry the Eighth had a right to reform and create a new church by statutory enactments; if John Wesley and Alexander Campbell and John Calvin had the right to undertake to reform the church in which they were members, so had Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon a right to start a reform movement, and reform the church. Can anyone dispute that, intelligently? Answer the question, men, intelligent men, upon the proposition of human rights, of that right which undertakes to make the worse the better. What evil is in this, that if Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon have been able to succeed in placing a church before the American public that has better claims for divine relationship and a more intelligent compliance with the provisions of the New Testament Scripture than by a study of itself was had, are these men entitled to credit for that, for helping to sweep the cobwebs and myths from the spiritual horizon of man, and open up before them the visions of eternity and the good that might be received by them here and hereafter? By so much as they did this, are they entitled to the credit and respect of mankind; and by so much as myself and my brethren here are able to present an intelligent reason for our faith, and that it more nearly conforms to the New Testament Scriptures in theory, in doctrine and in practice, we are entitled to be heard, and then we have succeeded in establishing the claim for consideration, that we feel it is difficult to be defeated upon intelligently grounds.

Australian Mission Paper.

Editor Ensign:—Please say to your readers that I am still authorized to receive donations and subscriptions for the Australian Mission paper. I am booked to leave for that mission July 26th, but all communications must reach me six days earlier. In behalf of the Australian brethren, I thank all who have helped. Like Jacob, Bro. Haworth means to wrestle with the American brethren until he gets those 250 subscriptions or the equivalent. "Never despair" is his motto, and knowing his indomitable will, I forewarn you that you will continue to hear these appeals until the required mark is reached. Every week brings some encouragement, why should we stop trying when this is so? But we do not want to wait several years for it; we think it can be realized this year. So, if any one has intended to assist, and forgotten it, don't put it off any longer. We want this paper started by next Christmas or January 1st.

This is not a mere "fad," nor are its promoters engaged in some private pet scheme. This matter is to be submitted to the conferences over there, and become a church organ, for that mission. Very few of Herold or ENSIGNS are taken there, because much of the matter is not (and could not be) got up to suit their peculiar local conditions. If an officer of mission, district, Sunday School, Z. R. L. S., D. of Z., reunion committee or branch request for prayers, wished to get a notice to their respective members through the papers in America, it would take about three months to do it! A paper there is badly needed. It would give us a means of reaching the people yet in spiritual darkness; would be a means of defense which we now don't have only in a very, very limited way through the secular press; would also give our church a better denominational standing.

Will you not help us, dear reader? Out of the thousands who read this there ought to be 50 who can send 75 cents, for a year's subscription. Act now, don't put it off. Get some one to act with you. I am very hopeful that I will be able to carry to Australia enough names to complete the number asked for, and not have to make another appeal. Remember, my address till July 20th will be, Boxman, Montana. Anything, from one cent to any number of dollars, will be acceptable. (One member gives $25.00).

To Whom Shall we Go?

"The good Lord says: 'Pay this great debt.' To whom is this instruction given? To the church—to the Saints without a doubt, and to them must we look for the all needful to square accounts."

I am in receipt of the following:

"June 3d, '01.

Dear Bro. Elvin:—Just received the enclosed card in morning mail. Here's your chance now—or the Bishop's—to clear the debt on Graceland. You might send him the enclosed card as explanation of your communicating with him. It's not signed, but I presume Bro. Sheehy could verify the facts in the case, as to this man's willingness to assist struggling colleges of merit."

The postal card referred to in the above was addressed to the "Secretary Latter Day Saints Church, Independence, Missouri, or, Lamoni, Iowa," and reads as follows:

"NORTH BEND, Neb.,

"June 2, 1901.

"Dear Sir:—I learned that some of the Latter Day Saints would like Carnegie to help Graceland College. Why does the Church not appeal or apply to D. K. Pearsons, the Chicago millionaire? He helps all struggling colleges and schools that are at all deserving or meritorious, which make application to him, regardless of what denomination or sect is connected with them, or whether they are connected with any or not. I am sure he will assist Graceland."

I hope the author of the postal card is correct, and that we shall yet hear from Dr. D. K. Pearsons with a liberal donation. This is not the first time that gentleman has been brought to our notice; last October, Bro. M. F. Gowell, furnished us with a newspaper clipping, he being of the opinion that if the necessity of Graceland was presented to the Doctor, we would obtain needed help. I framed an earnest appeal, and honest statement, and mailed to him, and suppose he received the same, as it never came back. Again, last February I read in a St. Louis paper, where the College helper, Dr. Pearsons, aided handsomely a Texan college, and I clipped and sent that, with a more ample explanation of our situation and necessities, and I have every reason to think he received my letter, as it did not return; neither have I as yet obtained the desired donation. So far as I am concerned, if Bro. Sheehy could be successful in getting the millionaire philanthropist to aid Graceland, with all my soul I would say Amen!

But, dear Saints! when the Lord spoke last April, it was not to the rich men of the earth, but to His own people—the household of faith to whom he said: "The college debt should be paid," and I feel satisfied that God knew that His people were able to meet this obligation, otherwise He would not have required it of them. I feel free to urge upon each Saint to take counsel with your wives, and duly considering your circumstances, in the light of God's instruction, and commendment and earn your reward by an individual effort.

Whoever contributes the money to wipe out this "great debt," and put into our hands means for the running expense, are the ones who will receive recognition and reward from God our Heavenly Father.

We await your response, and offering, with abiding confidence that the Saints will honor the God of present revelation.

The Martyrs Memorial Fund.

To the Saints—With this week's issue of the ENSIGN we notice subscriptions to the Martyrs Memorial Fund to the amount of $100.00 sent in. If the Saints will take proper interest in the fund we should have enough to close it out within the next two or three weeks, and all who wish to contribute should send in their names at once so that the amount will be sufficient to place the graves of the Martyrs and the surroundings in proper condition with proper monuments, and thus stop our call upon the Saints for contributions. Those wishing to contribute to this fund we hope will do so within the next thirty days at least so that it will not be necessary to run it further upon our books.

PASTORAL.

To the Ministry of the Pittsburg District, Greeting—

Having been placed in charge of the district, I take this method of placing myself in communication with my associate ministers. Contrary to my personal desires, circumstances seem to make it necessary that I devote the greater portion of my time, for the next few months in Pittsburg and its immediate vicinity; Elder C. B. Miller, president of the Pittsburg branch, having moved to Independence. And in view of the fact that the branch is about to commence the erection of their new chapel, it was thought best to place me in charge of the branch, for the time being. This local work will now demand a portion of my time, and will doubtless hinder me somewhat from doing work in other portions of the district, which would otherwise be expected of me.

I am consoled, however, in the fact that we have so many able workers, both general and local, who by the help of the Lord we may expect will occupy where needed, and be prepared to meet every exigency. To this end we need to be very humble, prayerful and faithful. Not allowing ourselves to become too elated when successful; nor discouraged when obstacles seem to obstruct our progress. We are in the greatest conflict of the age, and only brave soldiers are in demand. If we can but keep in touch with our great leader, CHRIST, we have nothing to fear, and our triumph is sure.

I shall be pleased to hear from each of the missionaries laboring in the district in order that we may keep in touch with each other, and be able to assist one another by counsel or suggestion. The time to report is as near as convenient to the first of the months as follows: June, September, December, and March, so that I may have my report to the general missionary in charge ready by the 15th, I am a little late in thus addressing you, owing to my inability to get permanently settled in my new field sooner.

The local workers will feel free to push out and labor as circumstances permit and wisdom directs; and if needing help, let us know, and we shall be glad to render all the assistance in our power.

Ever praying for Zion's weal, I am your fellow-servant in the cause of Christ,

F. G. FITZ, 538 Park Ave. East End Pittsburg, Pa. June 13.

To the ministry of Kirtland District, Greeting—

Another year we are associated to labor together in the interest of this great work. And by the president of the mission I have been requested to take the oversight of the work. To do this it will be necessary to hear from you as provided by the resolution of the quorum of Twelve, and as oft as you may feel to correspond for mutual benefit in the interest of the work. My mission address is box 28, Cleveland, Ohio. Shall be pleased to hear from each touching the work in your part.

In bonds, A. H. PARSONS, June 10.

Notice to Sunday Schools and Officers.

The following rules applying to the sale and mailing of quarterlies were agreed upon by the officers of the General Sunday School Association at a meeting held in Independence, Missouri, subsequent to the late General convention.

- 1. All subscriptions for quarterlies will be promptly discontinued at the expiration of the time for which they are ordered, unless the subscription be renewed.
2. No quarterlies will be mailed at the yearly rate unless a full year's subscription be paid in advance.
3. When necessary, credit for not more than one year will be allowed on quarterlies, but in such case they will be charged at the single quarter rate.

The above rules will take effect with the mailing of the October-December issue.

We believe the above rules to be absolutely necessary and fair and just to all. And that you may the better see the reasonableness thereof, we offer the following explanations.

Rule 1. We discontinue the Quarterly because, first, schools are discontinued and do not need the quarterlies, and no notice is ever given to that effect. Second, Nearly all schools need to often alter their order; they need more of one grade and less of another, and the easiest way is to make an entirely new order. Third, schools change officers frequently; the new officers order the quarterlies but says nothing about any standing order. If the old order is continued, you will have two sets of quarterlies. Schools have received as high as three and four sets by this old method of continuing orders. What should be remembered now is that if you want quarterlies, you must order them every time your subscription expires, for they will not be sent beyond that time.

Rule 2. If you expect the benefit of the yearly rate which is about twenty-five cents cheaper than the quarterly rate, you must pay for your quarterlies a full year in advance. Some have written the Herald office and insisted on having the benefit of the yearly rate and pay at the expiration of the year. To allow this would do injustice to the school which ordered one quarter at a time and sent the cash with order. It would be "money in their pockets" to hold their cash to the end of the year and pay all at once. It would be selling cheaper on time than for cash in advance, a business principle which every one knows is both wrong and ruinous.

Rule 3. It is not intended to bring the quarterlies onto a strictly "cash in advance" basis as that would deprive many of our schools of the Quarterly entirely. But it is necessary to do business on correct business principles. The school that can not pay in advance for their quarterlies may get them any way and pay for them some time during the year; but do not ask for them at the yearly rate, as that can not be granted in justice to others.

As stated above, these rules will take effect with the mailing of the last quarter for the year, or about September 1st. Sunday School officers would do well to call special attention to this notice in order that no mistakes be made. We believe that all will be satisfied in this matter, at least as soon as they get themselves fully adjusted to the situation.

Ever hopeful for the prosperity of the work, we are, Your fellow workers, T. A. HOUGAS, Gen. Supt. DAVID J. KRAHL, Gen. Sec.

Convention Minutes.

The Kewanee district Sunday School Association convened at Millersburg on Friday, June 7th, at 2 p. m., with district superintendent, Sr. Alice James, in the chair, and Mrs. Ed Lamb, secretary of the convention. The general routine of business was transacted, and by motion a committee of three was appointed by the chair to conduct a parliamentary drill of one hour at our next convention using the most convenient time. Mrs. Ed. Lamb, Dist. Sec. 722 N. Walnut St., Kewanee, Ill. June 12.

PUTTING ON CHRIST.

The transitory character of this present life should impress a thoughtful mind with the fact that it is but a preparatory condition for something higher and better. Nothing in creation, as we view it, justifies the thought of a work without design. There are a great many things which have been made by human skill and intelligence, the uses or purposes of which a novice would be unable to explain until the inventor had given the necessary information. So, there are probably numerous things in creation for which it would not be possible for a man to tell correctly just what part in the economy of nature they were designed to fill; just what good purpose their existence serves; but that by no means argues that there was not a good end in view in their creation. When, however, the creation of man is considered, it is shown—if we accept the statement of the Scriptures, the only source of correct information in the matter—that the purpose was his exaltation and perfect happiness—a condition which this life does not afford—and it is apparent that it is in his interest to consider what is required of him, that he may place himself in the condition in which that purpose may be accomplished to him, become a reality.

The Apostle Paul, in writing to the Galatian brethren, indicates what is required of an individual desiring to possess the highest condition possible of attainment; it is to "put on Christ." He writes:

For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ.—Gal. 3: 27.

"Have put on Christ." What a comprehensive term; how full of significance it is. How much it means to every one. Perhaps, too often, this language conveys to the reader, merely the thought of that which the ordinance of baptism confers upon an individual; and the, at least, equally as weighty obligation in the performance of other duties enjoined in the process of "putting on Christ," is neglected or lightly estimated. While the Scriptures are emphatic and positive in their teachings regarding the necessity of baptism in order "to fulfill all righteousness," it must be regarded as simply an initiatory step, but one which can by no means be omitted if the complete end is to be reached. The first or initiatory step must always be taken, it cannot be avoided; and if an individual omits his duty in baptism, he simply does not make a beginning in the right road, his first movement is in the wrong direction, and no matter how far along the journey of life he has gone, or how many years it has taken in his progress, if he discovers his mistake before it is too late to rectify it, he must begin right where he should have started at first, and do the first works, repent and be baptized, by proper authority, for the remission of his sins; then he is in a condition to comply with other requirements.

To put on Christ, is to do the works which He did; it is to manifest in our life and character those traits which He exemplified; and one of the first things He did when reaching manhood, was to carefully honor the ordinances of His Father's house, and ask to be baptized by the heavenly authorized minister, John the Baptist. There were many other ministers claiming authority from the Lord to administer in the ordinances of His church, but only this one individual did He recognize as having proper credentials and to him alone did He come to be baptized. Then began an experience which, though fraught with much sorrow and distress to Him, was yet so portentous in its effects upon all succeeding generations. He truly neither lived nor suffered for Himself alone, "but gave His life a ransom for many," that in following His example others might possess that for which He wrought, and for which He suffered—eternal life. There was no stopping place for rest with Him, in the warfare, until the end had been reached, nor will there be for His disciples.

The life of the Savior was a peculiar one to the people who observed His deportment. They had been taught that it was lawful to demand reparation in kind for an injury done them. "An eye for an eye," etc.; hence it is probable they misjudged His motive, and the Spirit under which He moved in returning good for evil, in refusing to revile again when others reviled Him, and they doubtless thought it an exhibition of cowardice, rather than that of magnanimity. They could not understand Him. But the centuries have justified Him in the eyes of millions, who have accorded Him reverence and adoration in the sublimity of His teachings. As He distinguished Himself by a life of self abnegation and good works so that today the ethics of life which He taught and exemplified are the admiration of all right minded men and women, so must His followers—those who put on Christ—distinguish themselves among their fellows by the sobriety, the gentleness, and the kindness of their lives, and correctness of deportment. If, as the Apostle John states, when He appears we shall be like Him, it must be apparent that the likeness will be in the manifesting of those characteristics which so distinguished Him from others of His day and age; and they can only be so exemplified when the motive inspiring the action is that which moved the Lord—a sincere love to God and to man.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit, who come unto me," indicates that one of the first attributes of a Christ-like life, is that of humility. It may not count for much so far as the affairs of this life is concerned, but it is of great worth in the estimation of the heavens; and as our greatest interest lie in the life beyond, it is worth the effort and self denial necessary to its absorption in our characters. It is intensely human to resent an affront or an insult, but it is not Christ-like. It is not likely that there will ever be a time in the experience of a true man or woman, when it will be an easy matter to pass by an effort to humiliate them in the sight of others, to so control the spirit as to patiently bear unjust reproach and shame, but the Spirit of the Master, the endeavor to follow Him, requires every one, who has "put on Christ" to make a faithful and persistent effort to do so; the reward promised those who do will be found ample, "for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." The self denial required to exercise a spirit of true humility will receive such sweet recognition, that the sting of the affront will be forgotten, and the promise is that if we forgive our fellowmen their trespasses, our heavenly Father will also forgive us our trespasses; the antithesis is significant and forceful, if we do not so forgive, we have no forgiveness from our Father. Which then is the preferable? "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Talk about earthly riches, here is a promise which should satisfy all; and best of all, such an inheritance will be given only when the earth is in the very richest condition. Think of these things when tempted to resent injuries.

"And blessed are the merciful; for they shall obtain mercy," teaches the necessity for cultivating and exercising the grace of charity for others; to be tender hearted and forgiving. A harsh spirit is not pleasing to the Lord, nor does it make friends for us here. The promise is also made that if the disciples of the Lord hunger and thirst after righteousness they "shall be filled with the Holy Spirit." This is the power by which those who wage a successful warfare against sin are given ability to overcome. In this power Christ wrought; and that His disciples might have the aid of the same power which comforted and strengthened Him in the accomplishment of His mission, He graciously provided that when He went away, after completing the work assigned Him by the Father, the Holy Spirit should come as an abiding power to them; and if they paid the same attention to His guidance and direction as did the Savior, they also should triumph over sin as He did, and at the completion of their work, should also be privileged to dwell in the presence and kingdom of the Father, with Him.

The apostle Paul indicates the character of the fruit which will be manifest in those who "put on Christ." As it is the Holy Spirit which enables us to be true and acceptable followers of Christ, that which results from its guidance and control must be its fruits; hence the Apostle says:

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance.—Gal. 5: 22, 23.

It is not a difficult matter in the light of this information, for any to discern whether or not they have fully "put on Christ." If we manifest in our lives the fruit here described, the Apostle says "against such there is no law." And the Apostle farther says: "Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin." (Rom. 4: 8). If we then bear such fruit, sin cannot be imputed, for it will be evident that we have fully "put on Christ."

ELDER W. S. PENDER preached the funeral sermon of Bro. Reginald Cooper, at Ogden, Utah, the 17th inst., a large attendance being at the service. He also preached three other discourses to small audiences.

BISHOP G. H. HILLIARD preached at North Minneapolis, Minnesota, last week, and was to be in Clitherall, Minnesota, attending the reunion the 28d, continuing over the 30th of June.

BRN. F. J. PIERCE, Twombly, and Beebe are holding tent meetings at Hoyt, Kausus, in which considerable interest is manifested.

"OBJECTIONS ANSWERED," our new sermon tract by President Joseph Smith, has just been issued. You ought to have copies to hand your friends. 25 cents per dozen. Give us your orders quickly.

WE are obliged to pay a discount on all Canada currency or coin, as Independence is so far from the borders; and therefore especially urge our brethren in Michigan and other border states to get their Canada bills changed for United States money before remitting us, to save this expense, to the church.

BISHOP E. L. KELLEY, and Apostle G. T. Griffiths will sail for England on the steamer "Saxonia" which leaves Boston, Massachusetts, July 20th and will arrive in England in time to attend the British Isles mission conference, August 3d to 5th. So advises Bro. Griffiths in a card from Temple, Ohio, June 21st. We hope they may have a pleasant voyage.

THE following clipped from The Washta (Iowa) Journal, of June 20th, indicates that Bro. Hunt and Sheldon are having a good hearing at the tent services in that locality. There is not a tincture of prejudice about this notice.

Elders N. V. Sheldon and C. J. Hunt, of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, are conducting preaching services in a tabernacle on the vacant lots west of the meat market. Services every evening at 8:15 p. m. Special services Sunday at 3 and 8 p. m. The meetings are well attended. The ministers give permission for anyone to present written questions on doctrine and church history.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER W. S. MACRAE, Martin Creek, Arkansas:

You got my field address "Millford" instead of "Williford," Arkansas in your issue of June 13. Please correct. Rev. Black, Campbellite, is wanting debate. Have turned him over to the tender mercies of Bro. Joseph Ward. Two baptized since coming here: will begin at Center 22d, where I meet Bro. Ward.

ELDER C. R. DUNCAN, 655 Willamette St., Colorado Springs, Colorado, in a recent letter to the editor of the ENSIGN says:

The work is doing fairly well here. Bro. R. Etzenhofer is with us, preaching nightly. I baptized one lady in Prospect Lake, last Sunday (June 16) the first ever baptized by us in this city, and the second to obey who heard the word in the gospel tent. Sr. Hall, baptized at General Conference, being the first.

BRO. B. F. ORDWAY, Peoria, Illinois:
 "Please state in the ENSIGN that Bro. E. K. Evans and family are quarantined on account of one of his children having the small pox. This will prevent getting out the next issue of the Glad Tidings. Elders, especially in Michigan and Indiana, are requested to notify as many readers as possible.

INDEPENDENCE.

President Hulmes will be with the First Kansas City branch next Sunday Morning.

Bro. Thomas Franklin Rader, son-in-law of Bro. Thomas Hamilton, was baptized Sunday afternoon in Shultz's pond, by Elder I. N. White. He was confirmed at the afternoon service by Elders Wm. A. Smith and Alex. McCallum.

Work has been commenced on West Lexington street. Bro. J. E. Lewis, is putting in the curbing, and the grading is being done where needed. The authorities are certainly to be commended for the promptitude with which they have begun the work.

Judge C. H. Woodford and family, of Washington, Kansas, moved their household goods to Independence yesterday, Wednesday, and will occupy the property formerly owned by Bro. W. O. Hands, next to Bro. I. N. White, which Bro. Woodford purchased last spring. We give them welcome to our midst.

Bro. W. A. Smith, of Persia, Iowa, has concluded to become a resident of this city, and is now seeking to locate his family. We understand Bro. and Sr. Atkinson, of Persia, are coming next Saturday, and Sr. Smith thinks her health will be better here; for these reasons, and the fact that it is a time of gathering, Bro. and Sr. Smith have decided to make the move now. We bid them welcome.

Bro. Hulmes, May and Short, the reunion committee, held a meeting Monday, and decided to submit the question of holding a reunion this year to a vote of the Stake. It will be presented to each branch shortly, and as they decide, action will be taken by the committee.

Last Saturday afternoon we were visited by a most welcome rain, lasting for about an hour, and while it was hardly half enough, it was indeed a great relief and a blessing to all concerned. However the heat was only moderated for a time, and the thermometer has continued soaring along from 96 to 98 in the shade. It is the hottest June we have yet experienced in this region.

Last Sunday morning Elder I. N. White occupied at the Saints' church, his sermon being the deciding point for a son-in-law of Bro. and Sr. Thomas Hamilton, Bro. Thos. F. Rader, whom Bro. White baptized in Shultz pond after the service. He was confirmed at the afternoon meeting by Elders Wm. A. Smith and Alex. McCallum. The afternoon service was peaceful and cheering. At night Bro. Wm. A. Smith, of Persia, Iowa, preached very acceptably, and had a good hearing.

Bro. Hulmes and May were with the Holden branch last Sunday, and report good meetings and interest, the church being full at the evening service notwithstanding the extreme heat and drought. The rain with which this vicinity was blessed last Saturday afternoon did not even reach Lee's Summit.

Elder B. J. Scott met with the Lee's Summit branch last Sunday and preached for them. He will labor there regularly each Sunday for the present.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street; Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

The election of officers for the ensuing term, resulted as follows: A. A. Allen, president; associate, F. M. Smith; clerk, J. G. Smith.

Our reunion will be held August 9th to 18th inclusive, at Normandy Grove, same location as last year. Let every one in the district prepare to come and make this reunion the most enjoyable of all.

The St. Louis district conference assembled in the rock church at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, June 22d, with our district president, Arthur A. Allen in the chair. Upon request Bro. F. A. Smith was chosen to assist; clerk, J. Gordon Smith, assistant, Russell Archibald.

Branches reporting, St. Louis, Cheltenham, Whearso. Bishop's agent report showed a balance on hand of $84.52. Time of next district conference set for Saturday, September 21st, location rock church, St. Louis. Reports were in hand from the district Sunday School association, also the district Religio.

While the credential committee was out, short talks were given by F. A. Smith, C. J. Spurlock and H. Thomas. Of the ministry the following reported: A. Allen, F. A. Smith, Alfred White, R. Archibald, C. J. Spurlock, N. N. Cooke, Jno. Beard, Harry Thomas, Joseph Banks, T. J. Elliott, J. J. Billinsky, F. Wylie, Geo. F. Barraclough.

Last evening as we sang, "From Greenland's icy mountains," the very words seemed to have a particularly soothing sound. The heat was, and has been intense, but yesterday evening's session concluded one of the largest conferences we remember. We were very thankful to have our present chapel, as we know it was vastly cooler than in our little chapel on Elliott avenue.

The reports from all of the ministry were encouraging, and showed that the district was alive throughout; Bro. Allen reported as having assisted in the building of a little chapel in Pike county, Illinois, and upon petition this little branch, was admitted into the St. Louis district.

The appointment of Samuel A. Burgess, as district historian, was confirmed, Bro. Gordon Smith volunteering to give him all the assistance possible.

Speakers yesterday were Bro. F. A. Smith, morning hour, Bro. Alfred White at 8 p. m. The attendance was large, despite the heat.

A large number of visitors from outlying points; a brother and sister, visiting in the city, from the Indian Territory, were numbered with us; Belleville, Cheltenham, Oak Hill, Lebanon, were all represented by visiting members. We missed some familiar faces, however.

Bro. Spurlock and Thomas, leave the early part of this week for various places in the southern part of the district, while Bro. Allen and White, leave Tuesday for Sparta, Illinois.

Attendance at afternoon service yesterday was quite large, and a splendid time reported.

Next Sunday will be our second "Parent's Day," and all are invited; the children will have special exercises.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. B. F. Winn, pastor, 2308 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent, Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1358.

Last Saturday was the union picnic of the First and Second Kansas City, Armstrong, Chelsea, East mission and Argentine Sunday Schools at Budd park. About 850 scholars were present, and to say it was a joyful time is putting it mildly. The dinner table was prepared with the abundance of good things; the committee was so organized that no one was neglected, and nothing wasted. The day was delightful until about 5 p. m., when it began to rain, when all gathered at the large pavillion, where a choir under the leadership of Bro. E. C. Harrington was organized, and while the rain was pouring down for about an hour or more, we praised God in singing the songs of His redeeming love.

Elder W. R. Pickering was the speaker on Sunday at 11 o'clock, and Pres. D. F. Winn in the evening. Elder J. A. Gillen has returned from Lamoni, and preached at the East Mission. Bro. F. C. Warnky preached at north Kansas City, in the Baptist chapel, and Bro. W. H. Pease at the tent, which is, now located at Chelsea Place.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 So. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m. Central Branch, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave. Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2458 State St.

Owing to the recent illness of Bro. Sheehy, he has been unable to hold his mission in Chicago, and has gone East for an indefinite visit, in the hope of obtaining benefit from the salt water.

Bro. Pement occupied at the Central branch Sunday, and we had the privilege of hearing from two of our young elders on the west side; Bro. James Koir in the afternoon, and F. M. Pitt at the evening service.

Bro. Pitt reports an active interest in the Sunday School work at West Pullman and the Hope of Israel Sunday School is doing nicely in the new neighborhood.

Children's Day was celebrated a week late in Chicago, and was a combination of both the city schools. A very interesting program was rendered and the day passed pleasantly, thanks to the untiring efforts of Sr. Good.

Bro. Elmer Johnson is on the mend again, after a slight setback of a week ago.

Miss Elizabeth Mead, who has been at school until recently, was welcomed in the city this week, by relatives and friends. Bro. Mead's mother adds one more worker to our ranks, for which we feel very thankful. There is plenty of room.

Sr. Mamie Pitt has returned from Independence, but it seems our forces scatter in one direction as fast as they collect from the other.

NOVICE.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

After a long silence as a regular correspondent, I resume the task once more, hoping to keep your many readers, so far as possible, posted in items of general interest. Those in possession of such items will please mention to us. This writing finds us trying to keep cool, under the scorching rays of a hot sun. A breeze sometimes cools the fevered brow. The T. W. of California, may think himself fortunate in escaping it.

The work at Aspey mission is moving on nicely with a good Sabbath School, and two social and one preaching service each week. Bro. G. W. Best occupied there last evening in preaching the word.

Bro. H. B. Taddicken is sustaining the Sabbath School work in the South Park mission. We wish soon to commence preaching service there. Let his hands be sustained.

We have started a "Mission Fund" for the extension and support of the mission work in the city. We will gladly receive contributions, for which we will account once a quarter.

Bro. Wm. Lewis, in the morning sermon, at the church, gave some cogent reasons why he believed there was a God. The writer occupied the evening hour from the words, "One in us." We also spoke at the mission at 8 o'clock.

August 16th is an important date, for then will begin the famous North Missouri reunion, at Stewartville, Missouri, on the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad, twenty-two miles east of St. Joseph.

The Ladies' Aid Society are performing a commendable work, trying to aid in reducing the cumbersome debt on the church. To this end they will hold an ice cream festival at the "South St. Joseph Mission," situated on Park avenue, near Texas avenue stock yards, on Monday night, July 1, 1901. A short program and ice cream will be the heaping measure meted out for fifteen cents. If you can't go, send your fifteen cents.

We visited for the first time the south St. Joseph mission, yesterday, and, to our joy, found a nice, orderly little Sunday School in session. Bro. C. E. Guinand is in charge, aided by Bro. Joseph Camp. Three of the young talented sisters from the main church were present to aid the cause in singing and teaching. We have arranged to commence a protracted effort at this mission on July 7th, and, by the aid of the local brethren, will continue for two weeks at least. Let all who can, aid in this effort; more chairs are needed, and other expenses will occur, to meet. We have the truth, and success is our watchword. Do not forget the date, July 7th, 8 p. m.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Folsom Sts. Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

There was good attendance at the Sunday School at 9:45, and all were interested in the lesson of the day. At 11 o'clock Elder Keeler preached; our church was well filled, many strangers being in the congregation. In the evening your correspondent presented some of the features of the last dispensation. Our meetings are quite well attended now, and many seem inquiring.

We had a fine prayer meeting Wednesday evening, at the residence of Bro. Saxe. The double parlors were well filled; nearly all in attendance took part in the meeting.

Our choir has improved very much in their singing, and is an honor to our cause. It renders some fine anthems for us every Sunday of late. The singing is pleasing, and is a great help to speaker and hearers.

Our city is well protected now, we have four of our battleships anchored in the bay at present, and soldiers and marines are quite plentiful on our streets.

Elder Keeler is out with the tent, at present, in Alameda county, doing good work there.

Our branch is in a fine condition, and still improving.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

NECEDAH, Wis., June 10, 1901.

Editor Ensign:—Leaving home by early train on the morning of May 30th, I went to Chicago via the Burlington route, arriving in due time, and a brisk walk took me to the C. & N. W. depot, where I had arranged to meet Bro. T. W. Chatburn, and accompany him at least part of the way to our missionary field. The first to greet us when we reached the station, were Bro. F. G. Pitt and F. M. Hicks, who had come to bid ye missionary a God speed. The "Jots" man soon put in his appearance, and in due time we boarded the train and were soon speeding away toward the lands assigned as our labor fields for the conference year.

At Afton I parted company with Bro. C. and took the branch road for Janesville, where I was met at the station by Bro. Muecus and McDowell, and we were soon comfortably stowed in the carriage, and on our way to the hospitable home of Bro. and Sr. O. N. Dutton, whose pleasant reside has so often warmed and cheered the wandering missionary. But our stay here was of short duration, and at 9:30 p. m. we again boarded train in company with Bro. P. Muecus, bound for Standley, Chipeway county, whither we went to assist Bro. Muecus to take unto himself a wife, before he departs to foreign lands on his evangelizing mission.

At five minutes before twelve o'clock midnight, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sweet, the wedding march began, and while the important words were being said the stroke of the clock ushered in a new day, and the vows which made two hearts one, were spoken in the earlier moments of June 1st, 1901.

At 4 o'clock a. m., we (the wedding party, rice, old shoes, etc.) boarded train again, this time bound for Valley Junction, and the northern Wisconsin district conference. We arrived at said place at 2:05 p. m., and if the many smiling faces, and hearty hand clasps, and the many expressed wishes for future joy, are an index for the future, then our brother and his newly made missionary wife, should be happy indeed.

As per previous notice, the conference had convened with Bro. Chaburn and Closson, presiding. By invitation we took a seat on the rostrum, and the regular business of the conference proceeded. Of the missionary force present there were, Elders Chaburn, Gowell, Robinson, Whitteaker, Closson, Muecus, and your humble servant. Quite a large delegation of Saints were present from Pepp and Pierce counties, coming with teams over one hundred miles. Quite early Sunday morning we gathered at the water side to witness the baptism of two, who had come many miles to obey the gospel.

The Holy Spirit, with its gentle soul-cheering influence, was with us all the way through, and though the conference proper closed on Sunday evening, yet by mutual consent, all met at the church for one more time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, and we were not disappointed, for we truly were made to rejoice because of His presence.

Early Tuesday morning all were astir, and the teams of the visiting Saints began to drive up, and the Saints both resident and non-resident, began to assemble. A bed quilt, as a token of love, with a few appropriate words, was presented to Bro. Muecus and bride; the last hymn was sung, the blessing of God was asked upon all, the good byes were said, hands clasped hand, and with many a glistening tear, as a token of what the heart felt, but the lips refused to say, and the wheels began to turn, and the northern Wisconsin district conference was a thing of the past.

The missionary force had been assigned their respective fields, and by twos began to move out to perform the labors assigned. Bro. Chaburn and Robinson were to remain at Valley Junction for a few days, then go to Porcupine to hold a two days meeting June 15th and 16th. Bro. Gowell and Whitteaker to Twin Lakes and vicinity to look after the interests of the work there. Bro. Closson and your scribe, came here in answer to a call of a little band of Saints who have gathered here from various parts of the land, and who petitioned to be organized into a branch, said organization being effected yesterday, June 9th, and known as the Seal Prairie branch. Next week we expect to go to Lost Creek to organize a branch there.

The present indications, as we see them, so far as the work in northern Wisconsin is concerned, is quite cheering, and is in fulfillment of that which has been spoken by the Spirit, that the Lord had a people here, and that he would bless his work in these wilds.

May God bless His servants, that their labors may be fruitful for good, is my prayer.

Your brother in gospel bonds,
CHAS. H. BURR.

POND CREEK, O. T., June 10.

Editor Ensign:—I could use much literature if I had it. The Presbyterian minister of this place called on us and asked what church I was associated with. I told him and showed him I was not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Gave him the principal evidence of the divinity of the restored gospel, and showed him where to find it. He repeated the Spalding story, asked me if I would be offended if he told me he knew three men in New York who knew Joseph Smith, and that he was a bad man. I told him I was not offended, he might be perfectly honest, but I could not believe what a person's enemies said about them: that Jesus himself said that a prophet was not without honor, save in his own country; and that he could not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

I told him if that were a test we could not believe in Jesus Christ, for He came to His own and His own received Him not, but persecuted and killed Him and His followers; that the Jews today do not believe, but that the Book of Mormon in connection with the Bible, was to convince the Jew and the gentile that Jesus was the Christ.

We were speaking about the sciences and how I came to be led to the gospel. He said he had investigated Christian Science and had a diploma to practice. I told him I understood considerable about the sciences, having studied before coming into the church: had read the "Key to the Bible," by Mrs. Eddy, that they were all similar and was the anti-Christ power spoken of in 2 Thessalonians 2, that would be in force just before Jesus' coming. I told him they, like the Spiritualists, denied the efficacy of the blood of Jesus Christ; that Jesus Christ did not die for oursins according to the Scripture, but to demonstrate the Christ truth that there was no death, only in himself, and that he could take upon himself the body; that Christ has come already in the "Christ power" (Christian Science), that all will soon know the Lord (the law) from the least to the greatest.

He wanted to know how a person could tell the false from the true. I read him Isaiah, 8:19, 20, "To the law and to the testimony," which is according to the gospel that Jesus Christ and his apostles preached, and showed him it was God who gave wisdom; that no one could rightly interpret the scriptures without the Spirit. Read him Hebrews 5:4, also Amos 3:7, and John 7:16, 17; told him God did not want us to be deceived. I showed him that through the dark ages the authority was lost, the ordinance changed, the saints destroyed, according to Daniel and John the revelator. That God said he would send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing of the words of the Lord. Amos 7:11, 12, also quoted Revelation 14:6, 7, "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth," etc. I said, what was the use to bring the gospel if it was already here.

I told him the Reformers had done a great preparatory work and would be rewarded according to the light they had; quoted Malachi 4:5, 6, "Behold I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord," etc., and told him the gospel was restored by the hand of an angel with authority, with all the gifts and blessings, and that the people were under as much obligation to accept the gospel and the prophet this time, just before Jesus' coming, as they were before his first coming.

He asked me if we had the gift of tongues. I told him yes, that although I had never had the pleasure of hearing it, but had heard others say they had, and I believed it; but it was not for a plaything, for Satan could perform miracles now to make believers: that faith in God came by hearing the words of God, as told by the servants whom he has called. I told him many other things. I told him if he would go to God in fasting and prayer, if he had faith, it might be possible the Lord would reveal it to him, as he did to many. He said he would return those papers. I told him he was welcome to read any of the books or papers I had. Pray with me that he may see the truth and obey. I explained the difference between us and the Utah people.

Last winter two preachers preached at the school-house, they called them selves the Saints of God. They preach a good deal like our elders, claim to have the gifts; they do not understand the restored gospel, but get the Holy Ghost by prayer, teach sanctification as a special work of grace. My husband invited them home with us to dinner, they came, and we had quite an interesting talk. They came again in a few days and asked what church we belonged to: I told them; explained the restored gospel to them and gave them Enssons, Heralds, and pamphlets to read. A short time ago I went up town and one of them was preaching on the streets; he recognized me, and after singing came over to where I stood and spoke: we had quite a little talk, I told him I had his song book and played and sang some of the songs, and had read the papers and books he gave me. I asked him if he had read the papers I gave him, he said yes. I asked him how he liked them. He said he liked some of it very well, but of course, could not endorse it all. I told him of course he could not understand it all at first, but it was worthy of investigation. They have a tent and are travelling preaching. Their church paper is The Gospel Trumpet, Moundsville, West Virginia.

I hope some well informed elders will come with a tent and preach in this country.

Your sister in Christ,
MRS. EFFIE J. MCCULLOUGH.

BENVILLE, Ark., June 1.

Editor Ensign:—After the close of the General Conference, by invitation of Bro. M. B. Williams, branch president, I went over to the Armstrong branch in Kansas City, Kansas, to assist him (and others) in a week's meeting. I am glad to say that I found a branch of good workers, and my heart was made glad when I met with them in their prayer meeting; I was led to ask, "Lord, how long will it be until I can move my family from their present isolated condition into a good, live branch like this one, and as no answer came I am satisfied that we will have to continue for a short time yet in the cold world.

After coming home and spending a few days with my family I began to look around to see where to begin the year's campaign, and as I had made an opening near Henderson last fall, and baptized one, I thought perhaps that was the place. When I went I found the people glad to see me, and I arranged to begin a meeting Saturday night following; but it is crop time, and besides some sectarian preachers had warned the people not to go, so our congregations were small at the start, but increased a little, and the interest was all that I could expect under the circumstances, and I closed a very interesting meeting last Sunday, and organized a union Sunday School. The attendance at the meeting was not large, but the few who attended became much interested. One man was converted and expressed a desire to be baptized, but as he was suffering with what the doctor called blood poison, and not able to sit up, his baptism is deferred to some future time.

I came here expecting to begin a meeting tomorrow, but don't know whether I will be able to go to the church or not, as I had the misfortune to sprain my ankle yesterday, and don't know whether I will be able to preach or not, but hope to be able to go again in a few days.

My family and I spent the whole day Tuesday on the creek. I baptized my two daughters, Alice and Nellie, while we were there, and had a general good time.

It takes a long, continued effort to make any impression with the gospel on the minds of the people in this field. If the effort is not repeated in a few weeks, they remind me of the children of Israel, when Moses went up in the Mount Sinai to receive the tables of the law.

Preachers who take so much pains to keep their flocks and other people from hearing the gospel preached, "not in word only, but also in power" (1 Thes. 1: 5), as it is now being preached by the ministry of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, know full well that they dare not meet the issue and discuss it, or their false position would be exposed; and they are afraid for the people to go and hear it for themselves, lest they should be like the three thousand on the first Pentecost after Christ's ascension, that they will be pierced in their hearts by the converting power of the gospel, then they would say unto us, "Men and brethren whom shall we do?" to be saved. (See Acts 2: 38).

I would be glad if the good, honest-hearted people would rise in the might of their power and shake off the unholly bands of priestcraft that is binding them in bundles; would be glad to see them step out in the beautiful sunlight of God's power and enjoy the blessed gifts of the gospel, and a knowledge of the Christ, and of their salvation. (Matt. 11: 27; John 17: 3; John 7: 17).

I shall content myself to do the best I can to teach the principles of a higher life as revealed in the restored gospel, and leave the result in the hands of the Lord: it is His work, and I am only one of his servants.

We have many open doors in Baxter, Fulton, Sharp and Randolph counties for preaching, and I am hopeful, believing that our work will be more permanently planted in this field this year, than ever before.

In bonds,
JOSEPH WARD.

WESTERN RESERVE, O., June 10.

Editor Ensign:—Elder G. T. Griffiths and Bro. D. L. Allen preached to a fair sized audience at and near Akron last Lord's day. Bro. and Sr. W. H. Thomas, of Cleveland, laid their little baby boy in the cold silent grave Tuesday to wait the resurrection morn of the pure and good. How sad to the soul of man with all he knows of God through the revelations of nature as unfolded in the botanical world, and the Holy Scriptures, and confirmed by the Holy Spirit. It is hard to see these little blossoms snatched from our arms of love.

Bro. W. H. Kelley is on the sick list with a cold. These sudden changes takes hold of the old warriors, as well as the younger ones. Elder J. H. Lake is the happy father of a promising boy, hence is enjoying home life for a few days. (The boy is an adopted one about four years old). Bro. Henry C. Smith occupied the pulpit at Saints' hall in Cleveland to an attentive audience, with profit to all present.

Bro Wm. C. George fell from his express wagon last week came near breaking his arm; he has not been able for duty since. Bro. Parsons preached morning and evening at the Temple, to an appreciative audience. Quite a few strangers out at night. So the good work is moving slowly in these parts.

"Z"
CHILLICOTHE, Mo., June 21.

Dear Ensign:—We are still in the harness and toiling away for the advancement of the cause. We feel well in the work and have been greatly blessed since we last wrote you.

We closed a very interesting series of meetings at Parkerton, June 2d; had a wonderful interest there and expect to return later and do more labor. It is a new opening.

We went from there to the Delano branch and preached three times to good congregations and the Saints seemed well pleased with our effort. Then on to DeKalb branch, where we held forth a week with good effect. Also preached four times in Stewartsville; and have been here nearly a week having a good interest; the house is packed to the uttermost and many on the outside listening.

Last night was prayer meeting night where we are preaching, so we spoke in the city park to over 200 people. Expect to stay here till conference time. Opposition and prejudice are giving away. The editor of the Mail and Star of this city wrote over a column in his paper in regard to the Brighamite apostasy after a talk with us.

There is a great deal of prejudice here yet, but we have many friends. We hope to continue in the conflict till the Master says enough.

Yours in bonds,

W. E. HADEN.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER J. J. CORNISH, Shabona, Michigan, June 20.

We are having a warm time here; the people are much excited over the coming debate; some for us and some against us. I will report later.

SR. GERTRUDE DODSON, Excelsior, Kingfisher county, Oklahoma.

We are isolated from church privileges and do not have the opportunity to meet with the Saints; reading the good sermons in the ENSIGN, and testimonies from others in different parts, cheers our lonely hours. My health is quite poor and I ask the prayers of the Saints that it may be restored. I love this work, knowing it is of God, and desire to raise our two little ones who are left us, upright in the sight of the Lord.

SR. MARY A. ASA, Dudley Missouri:

I often think I would like to write to the ENSIGN, as it is all the preacher I have. I am all alone here except for the help of the Lord; He is my comfort. I am trying to spread the gospel as best I can by lending my papers to my neighbors, and in doing so have got one man to subscribe for the ENSIGN. Prejudice is high here, but not so much so as it was when Bro. Spurlock was here. Some are asking when he is coming back. I am poor as to this world's goods and cannot help financially, but I try to sow the gospel seed as best I can. I have been in the church forty-three years and like it better all the time. My testimony is that it is the true church.

R. M. MALONEY, Guy, Oklahoma, June 15:

I am requested by missionaries in charge, to change my field of labor from Oklahoma to Indian Territory; and take this method of acknowledging the change, and also to request correspondence with Saints in Indian Territory. I would be pleased to hear at once from Saints at Paul's Valley, Ida, McGee, Walker, Conkate, Mounds, Wetumka, Wilburton and any other points where labor is desired. I am ready to go at once to my new field, but desire to hear from those in field first.

SR. M. F. STRICKLIN, Morehouse, Missouri:

I would like Bro. I. N. White and some other brother to come to this place and preach for us, and administer to me, my health is poor. I united with the church three years ago and have not heard a gospel sermon since. I know this is the true church for I have the witness, as the Savior promised to those who would obey the gospel. None of my family are in the church and I am so anxious for them to hear the gospel. There is a union church near here, but if they will not let our elders have it, they can preach in a house, we will try to make them feel at home.

BRO. D. I. MAPPLE, Belleville, Kansas:

It is spiritual mana to the soul to read the ENSIGN's bright clear pages of grand sermons and encouraging letters from even those whom we never met in this life, but whom we hope to meet in the great beyond, where God and Christ shall reign supreme. The Scandia branch to which we belong is in fairly good condition spiritually, considering our scattered situation and how seldom we all get together. We endeavor to meet every two weeks, and last Sunday they met at the house of the sister. A spiritual session was enjoyed and we were blessed in the efforts put forth. We live on the east side of the court house square, Belleville, Kansas, conducting a planting establishment, and would be glad to have any of our missionary force call upon us.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

CONCURRENT TESTIMONY.

Sermon delivered by President Joseph Smith, at Lamoni, Iowa, Sunday morning, April 11, 1897, during the General Conference.

I regret to some extent that it falls to my lot this morning to address you, while at the same time it gives me a great degree of pleasure to stand as a representative of, what I believe to be, the means by which God has intended that man might be saved, and have an everlasting salvation. Some of those who have addressed you have done so upon the requirements of the law, and have dealt with questions that are largely connected with the events of the time in which we live; and if I shall be permitted to follow the trend of my thought successfully, I too shall present some reasons why we believe as we do.

The greatest prophet that has ever lived, one whose fame and renown will never be excelled, one whose prophecies we cannot afford to believe shall prove false or delusive, has left upon record a statement which to me this morning, has a strikingly peculiar significance. While in the flesh and sojourning among men for their good, He expressed Himself upon one occasion in this form: "Repentance and remission of sins shall be preached in my name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." (Luke 24:42). And upon another occasion He gave utterance to a saying that is like this, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come." (Matt 24:14).

One of these texts is a statement, the other is undoubtedly a prophecy; and as we look out this morning, recalling the history of the world as it has transpired touching religion, it is not hard for us to believe that the statement itself has been kept good, and shall we look for the fulfillment of the prophecy? I make the appeal today, both to those who believe the scriptures and these who do not, challenging the inquiry of the latter class to the position that we occupy in regard to this religious movement, and challenging the belief of those who say they believe the Bible and in the mission of Jesus Christ, to a contemplation of the relationship that we think we can show between our work and the prophecy which is referred to.

Whatever we may think concerning prophets as among men, there is no class of us who believe in the Bible but what must necessarily accord to Jesus Christ presence, fore-knowledge and infinite love. And we cannot think without stultifying our own better natures that He has at any time either designed to deal deceitfully with men, or has done so. And if there is any one thing that could possibly create a better sentiment in our hearts toward Him, so far as exciting our trust may be concerned, it is to think that when it had been designed of His Father, in the counsels on high, that a sacrifice was necessary to be made, He was quite willing to make it, and came upon this extraordinary errand with an extraordinary means for the accomplishment of that upon which He was sent.

We may ask the students of history if they know of any movement among the religious people from the time, that it is said, the church went into the wilderness, until now, that bears the marks of a fulfillment of the prophecy? And, if I am answered by many who believe that the gospel has been taught; it may be possible that before the hour shall have passed, there may be some things presented which shall create at least an inquiry in the mind as to whether or not the impressions that the gospel has been preached in all the world as this witness referred to in this prophecy indicates, may possibly be a mistake.

We cannot err in supposing that the gospel referred to was that which the Savior Himself was preaching, and of which He said, "I must preach this gospel in other cities," when upon one occasion he was invited to stay where He was; but no, it had been imposed on Him to preach that gospel elsewhere, and hence He says, "I must preach this gospel in other cities also." The beloved disciple on one occasion, writing to the elect lady, makes use of the expression, "If any man come unto you and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house," and no class of men that has ever preached, that I know anything about, has had so clear occasion to understand this passage of Scripture, or that has met this declaration made more persistently against them in nearly all the places where I have ever preached; and men have sought to warn the people against them from this text, upon the supposition that they did not preach or bring the gospel or doctrine referred to in the apostolic admonition, and therefore should be excluded from their houses, public and private.

We must believe that what was referred to by the beloved disciple, was the same referred to by his Master; and as a consequence, whenever we, in our inquiry, identify that gospel, we may be able to trace it or its counterpart through every age and dispensation in which it may possibly have been taught. What are the characteristics of that gospel? Briefly stated by the Apostle Paul, they are, faith in God, repentance from sin; baptisms (plural) for the remission of sins, the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. Six indispensable principles, called the principles of the gospel of the Son of God, by the Apostle Paul, who says he received his gospel by revelation and not from man, as characterizing the gospel of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Without going farther in this premise, let me ask you if it shall be practicable for us to identify that which we are presenting to the world as bearing the characteristics of this definition of the Apostle Paul, are we not entitled to say that we teach the same gospel; that we have based our hopes for life and salvation upon the fulfillment of the Savior's words; that it should be preached in all the world for a witness, and hence, preached in our time, in our nation, for a witness unto us, before we can be justly condemned for rejecting the gospel, and be shut out from the light of life in His wondrous declaration?

For this purpose, I take up that book so much misunderstood by the world, and upon which it may be possible some of our brethren have laid too great stress. I refer to the Book of Mormon, and premise what I may quote therefrom with the statement, it is understood by us to have been, and to be, a revelation from God in our own time, applicable in our own generation, and to us. It cannot be condemned so far as witnessing unto the world is concerned, for it bears a concurrent testimony to the word preached by the Master. I read from the 2d book of Nephi and in our large edition, the 13th verse:

"And the Father said, Harken ye and repent ye and be baptized in the name of my beloved Son."

I now ask you to stand with me on the outside of that wondrous crowd, that listened to Peter upon the day of Pentecost, and hear what is said by him, as moved upon by the spirit of information he answers the request, "What shall we do?" "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Pray tell me, Did not that Spirit bear witness to Peter, and does it not bear witness to us when this language comes by the voice of revelation confirming that statement on Pentecost day? And how shall you and I answer unto that great bar where the Judge shall sit, if we have denied His word, come to us from whatever sources it might.

"And also the voice of the Son came unto me, he that teaches in my name, to him will the Father give the Holy Ghost like unto me; wherefore follow me and do the things which you have seen me do."

Listen to the voice of that Prophet when he says:

"The works that I have done you shall do also, and greater works than these shall ye do because I go unto the Father."

Are there any marks of identification here at the very outset of our inquiry in regard to the inspiration that gave the Book of Mormon to us, that penned its lines and wrote them in the life of the men of its time, to come forth in the own due time of the Master? Is not the inspiration identical, and who shall say that the second witness shall be rejected, and the first received?

I read still further: "For the gate by which you should enter is repentance and baptism by water."

Go with me, if you please, and stand by the side of the Master who says unto Nicodemus, "He that is born of the water and of the Spirit can see the kingdom," is that the language that he used? Ah, no, "Except a man be born of the water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom." Hence the Book of Mormon, the inspiration of it, and the inspiration that spoke to Nicodemus are identical; and how can we deny the one and accept the other?

I read still farther in the 26th verse of this chapter at the close of it,

"And now behold, this is the doctrine of Christ and the only true doctrine of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost, which is one God, without end. Amen." Then, if you please, take up your Scriptures, and turning, if my memory serves me right, to the 7th chapter of John's gospel, read this statement made by this august teacher: "For my doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me," and we have these co-relative testimonies side by side; and we as a people, believing that Christ did not come to trifle with men or to speak idle words, are under obligation to Him with thankful hearts, for the inspiration that gave us this book, the second witness in the great enterprise to save the world, or to condemn it by His word.

But opining that this language was addressed to a people upon a different land from ours, I propose to introduce to you the third witness; for this reason; that away back yonder in the morning of time, but a little while after man became corrupt in his mind, a law was added unto the gospel, and grievous burdens of statutory enactments imposed upon him which the Apostle Paul said, "neither we nor our fathers could bear." That law contains one central thought of infinite love and justice as well, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word be established. That line of law, or principle has run through all the generations since that time, and now remains as the great bulwark of safety upon which every man may rest, whether in the courts of earth or heaven; he cannot be condemned safely and justly, except upon the testimony of two or three witnesses.

We believe that God makes His appeal unto men through Jesus Christ, by virtue of the better judgment resident in man, with which God has endowed him, to bear with him, and to be with him, all his days, and govern and control every act of his life; and if you please, I will use the homely phrase and call it common sense, that with which every man must be endowed; that which must underlie the making of his character and the answering for what he is when he shall stand in the judgment to give an account for what he has done. If it be necessary that each one of us shall be converted by the Almighty as He did the Apostle Paul, how many of us shall ever be saved? Shall we ever be thrown deaf and dumb by the wayside and stricken down by the wondrous light of his coming? No, it is not proper that you and I shall look for any such special dispensation in our behalf, when He has so wondrously provided a general law by which we may all approach him one by one, and even a nation be born in a day.

When this book came forth—the Book of Mormon—it was accompanied by the statement as borne by an angel, that there should be a restoration; and that those to whom this restoration should come should receive influence and power and delegated authority to go abroad and preach to men; and if they did, and were believed, those who believed and received the administration of baptism at their hands, should receive of that same Holy Spirit by which testimony should be given unto them that they will have life. When the voice of revelation was heard, I ask you to listen to what it came and purported to give. At an early period of the church's history, before yet it was organized as a religious body and took its place in the controversial field among them who believed in Christ, there was this statement made on May, 1829, and at the close of this section 10 in our book, 15th, 16th and 17th paragraphs, we have this: "Behold this is my doctrine." How careful the Master was that the talk which he had and the ministrations to the people represented upon this land by the Book of Mormon, that statement made to those over yonder about Judea and Jerusalem, and that which had come to us in our own time should be characterized by the same unity of expression, "This is my doctrine." Whosoever repenteth and cometh unto me, the same is my church." How thankful my heart is to God this day, that away from that favored land, living at a period of time so remote from the period in which the Master and His disciples ministered to man, how thankful I am that this voice of inspiration has come to us, and warns you and me and all of us, whoever we may be, that whosoever repenteth and cometh unto God, the same is His church. "Whosoever declareth more or less than this, the same is not of me, but is against me; therefore he is not of my church."

If this people could possibly give a guarantee unto their neighbors and their friends, if they could possibly give unto the citizens of the county, or the state, or the union where we live, and the nations where we were born and whence we came, all earnest, upright, honest, religious intentions, before God and man, it would be to spread that as a phylactery upon our brows and wrists, and insist upon its public declaration everywhere, that whosoever declareth more or less as the doctrine of Christ for life and salvation, was not of Christ's church. The very fact that we make this profession, and have published it abroad everywhere to the world, is a tantamount declaration of good faith, of citizenship, of uprightness of heart in our religious declarations, and you will pardon me for making the statement this day.

"And now, behold, whosoever is of my church, and endureth of my church to the end, him will I establish upon my rock, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against him."

The Master said unto one of olden time when they asked Him who He was, turning, he asked them the question, "Whom do ye say that I am?" And Peter answering him said, "Thou art the Christ." The Master says to him, "Upon this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." How concurrent the testimony! How closely allied they are, and how beautifully they link themselves together as witnesses to you and me this day that God has remembered the world.

But in order that we may reach as good a conclusion in this respect as it is practicable for us, I call your attention to the fact that it is somewhere stated in the New Testament scripture, that if you are promised heirs, then are you heirs according to the covenant, and then you are Christs' and Christ is God's. Upon the establishment of this Abrahamic covenant it is briefly stated: "In thee and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed," the whole super-structure of the New Testament gospel, and its wide ramifications throughout the entire length and breadth of the world, is based, and every church throughout this broad land—except possibly the Higher Criticism, which is proposing to establish a platform which every disgruntled christian can stand—every church, wherever it may be found, is building upon the thought of the establishment of the Abrahamic covenant through Christ Jesus our Lord.

I turn then unto the 12th chapter of the second book of Nephi, in the Book of Mormon, and I read again:

"And it shall come to pass that my people which are of the house of Israel, shall be gathered home, unto the lands of their possessions; and my word also shall be gathered in one. And I will show unto them that fight against my word and against my people, who are of the house of Israel, that I am God and that I covenanted with Abraham, that I would remember his seed forever."

Not forever, today, for yet time goes on, and eternity has not yet begun; and just as surely as God remembered Abraham and brought forth the Shiloh from his seed, so shall He continue to keep His word with man, and establish His covenant with them that will hear Him, forever and forever. Is it not strange, my friends, my brethren? Nay you answer me, no. But those who differ from me, answer me this. Does not it seem strange that when this revelation of the Book of Mormon came forth, that it should be identical in spirit, and in power and principle, with that covenant of Abraham? I read from the 61st verse of this same chapter the positive character of these principles:

"And the gospel of Jesus Christ shall be declared among them, wherefore they shall be restored unto a knowledge of their fathers, and also to the knowledge of Jesus Christ, which was had among their father." I remember hearing once of a minister who undertook to do something to retard the progress of this work, and the opening utterance of his essay was, "Mormonism is a religion without a faith and without a history;" and let me tell you, that something like twenty-five years have passed since that time, and Mormonism which he referred to, that which is held to by this Reorganized church, has made manifest that they have both faith, and have made a history.

I have but a little more of this producing of witnesses, and I return to the third one again. And I find in this something of a peculiar character:

"Thou shalt ask and my Scriptures shall be given as I have appointed and they shall be preserved in safety, and it is expedient that thou should hold thy peace concerning them and not teach them until you have received them in full, and I give unto you a commandment that then you shall teach them unto all nations, kindreds, tongues and people."

I remember, and call your attention to the thought in the 14th chapter of John's revelation, 6th verse, where you have the declaration that warrants you and me to believe that the time shall ultimately come when the angel shall be sent and have the gospel to commit to men to be preached to every kindred, tongue and people under the whole heaven. Now, when it shall come, will it bear the marks of identity of this gospel of which my text states it shall be preached as a witness unto all nations? If so, we are preparing to identify it, and let me tell you, you can do it easily. "Thou shalt take the things which thou hast received, which have been given unto thee in my scriptures for a law, to be my law, to govern my church; and he that doeth according to these things shall be saved, and he that doeth them not shall be damned, if he continues."

Let me ask you, my friends, if there be any listening to me this morning, who are outside of this faith, could you ask me or my brethren to place ourselves more completely in your hands for successful opposition touching the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, than read this statement which I have read from the 42d section of this Book of Covenants of ours? This acknowledgment of the Spirit of revelation by which God has spoken to us in our own time, and called our attention to the fact that He would hold us responsible for the manner in which we listened and obeyed and heard His Scripture, and telling us what it was?

I present you here the fulfillment of the statement made concerning His words being gathered and put into one, for I have in my hand both the record of the people upon this land, the language and teaching of Jesus Christ to them, and the New Testament Scriptures, that gives us to understand all the teaching and mission of Jesus Christ at Jerusalem. And the Reorganization has been the repository of these Scriptures that were referred to there, pointing their attention to it, and has been the power by which they have been joined in one, the stick of Ephraim and the stick of Joseph and Judah.

I have not time to pursue this theme farther, as we have much to do today. We will gather for baptism over here, and some will be administered to, and will take upon them the covenant that dozens of us have taken upon us that are witnessed this day. And we trust that unto them shall come, what has come to us in this last day; having heard the gospel, having received the marks of identification, having been able to trace it in the Bibles which our fathers left us, we are preparing to take up this day this question, if brought to us, "Turning the hearts of the fathers to their children, and the hearts of the children to their fathers," and thus fulfilling again a prophecy of Scripture. But we have a modern prophecy, to present to you. On my left here, sits Grandmother Ruby; she prophesied twenty-five or twenty-six years ago to this man, Elder John A. Robinson, who was a scoffer at her religion, and told him she would live to see the day that he should preach the gospel of the Son of God. She heard him this morning, and sees him presiding at this meeting, and yesterday afternoon when I requested that man to take charge of the meeting, I did not know anything about that prophecy; so we live in the days when prophecies are fulfilled.

I give you another, however, which is partially self-laudatory. When we undertook to build this chapel, one man said he would give us so much money if we would build it big enough; and we proposed to build it to hold a thousand people; many said it would never be filled. I took the liberty to say then, that within five years after it would be built, it would be filled to its utmost capacity. Pray tell me what you think of this prophecy this morning.

JOTS BY THE WAYSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

Dear Ensign:—Leaving home and the Zion land, May 15th, with all it holds dear, we started for our new field of labor; stopping off at Chicago we made the acquaintance of many new faces, and was warmly greeted by those whom we knew; we partook of the welcome hospitality of brethren Pitt, Lang, Good, Graves, Pement, Palfrey, and Sheehy and Nayaka, who are rooming together, with Nayaka as cook, and "Douglass" master of ceremonies. Our little dark hued brother, though very neat and nice in all his culinary departments has not yet fully inaugurated the prohibition of knives, forks and spoons, we believe, however, "Douglass" leans that way.

We preached in the Saints hall at the Lang mission, and on the street, visited "Dowies, Zion plant," and heard the prophet(?) speak to his thousands of dupes gathered in the auditorium building, witnessed the ordination of Mrs. Jane Dowie, as overseer of women's work in Zion, and the legal successor of her husband. Dowie is reported as having already accumulated five millions from the brethren in tithes and offerings, much of it is held in houses and lands in and around Chicago, not in "trust" however for the church, but all in Dowie's name. There are some murmurings in the ranks, but Dowie is the "Elijah," the forerunner of the second coming of Christ, and as a matter of fact, objects to every thing that does not help swell the receipts of "Dowie Zion bank."

On decoration day thousands went out to the Zion plant where the temple is soon to be erected. Dowie in his address denounced vigorously, strewing flowers upon the graves of the dead, as a foolish practice; cursed the editors and doctors of the city, declaring in thundering tones, that "soon, very soon, no man will follow the flag of this or any other nation, but all would follow the flag of Dowie's Zion."

While he was swaying the multitude with his pomp and gush, his six hundred guards robed in black, around him, his wife and himself clothed in flowing robes imported at a cost of one thousand dollars each, pronouncing his vile anathemas on the beautiful tribute to the dead—all over this fair land could be seen processions of men, women and children laden with flags and flowers, wending their way to the silent cities, and there among the grassy mounds, close beside the headstones, they are kneeling, blessing the memory of father, mother, brother, sister and lover, and placing carefully the loving for get-me-not then with tears for the dead and sighs for the living, softly steal away.

Receiving orders from Bro. Burr, missionary in charge of Wisconsin, we were soon on our way to Valley Station, where we met in conference as faithful a band of Saints as it has been our pleasure to enjoy. The Spirit the Saints enjoy here, carries us back in memory to "ye olden time." Think of thirty members representing thirteen families from the Porcupine branch, traveling over land one hundred and twenty miles to meet with the Saints of the Valley Junction branch in conference; all journeying together, camping together each night en route, pitching their tents by the way side, holding either a prayer or preaching service every evening, and inviting the strangers hard by to join them in their services. Such loyalty to Zion's weel, such faith exhibited in God, could not fail to bring the promised blessings. We feel at home with such Saints, and enjoy indeed the Spirit in presenting the word. May our Father's guiding hand be made manifest.

Here we met Bro. Burr, Clawson, Gowell, Whittaker, Muceus and Robinson, of Conference appointments, with whom we are to labor for the year, under the guiding hand of Bro. Burr. The conference was grand, seasoned with the Spirit from first to last, not a negative in its deliberations, but with a oneness on the part of minister and laity to move forward to the glory of God. Bro. Peter Muceus, appointee to Norway, was married to Sr. Emma Shaver, on Friday eve, who will accompany her husband to the far off land.

This morning before the partings, the Saints gathered in the yard of Bro. Whittaker, a hymn was sung, prayer offered, and after a few remarks by the writer, a valuable present was tendered to Bro. Muceus and wife, as a token of the love and respect in which they are held by the Saints here, with a heartfelt prayer that God would "temper the winds to her who leaves father mother, sister, friends and native land with the man of her choice, to be a stranger in a strange land; and while the missionaries path is not always strewn with flowers, we hope their greetings by the Saints of Norway will be seasoned with the same Spirit of love and confidence as the partings here.

We must not fail to note the very efficient service rendered by Sr. Mary A. White, of Lamoni, as chorister and organist of our conference, they are gratefully remembered and appreciated by the Saints.

We are not yet a full fledged "badger" of this "badger" state. The loving Saints and experiences in California, with her sunny skies, her flowery dales and snow-capped peaks, are fresh in memory, and can never wholly be effaced therefrom. This country is noted for its beautiful lakes filled with delicious fish, and after sampling and becoming acclimated, will tell you something about it.

My field address for the present is Porcupine, Wisconsin. Saints living near, and have openings for preaching, please write me.

Wrote Sermons in His Sleep.

Narrating "Some Remarkable Cases of Double Personality," Dr. R. Osgood Mason cites, in the May Ladies' Home Journal, the case of a "young ecclesiastical in the Seminary with the Archbishop _____, of Bordeaux, France, who was in the habit of getting up at night in a condition of somnambulism, going to his study and composing and writing his sermons in the dark. When he had finished one page he read it over and carefully and properly corrected it. A broad piece of cardboard interposed between his eyes and his writing made no difference to him. He wrote, read and corrected just the same as if there had been no obstruction. Having completed his work to his satisfaction he returned to bed, and in the morning he had not the slightest idea of what he had done in the night, and had no knowledge of it until he saw the manuscript in his own handwriting."

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "manhood to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Editor's Address, Independence, Mo.

I often think how unkind some young people are without meaning to be so. I know of no way in which they can offend more than in the simple desire of wishing the old landmarks in the home changed, the old fashioned things done away with; the comfortable rocker replaced by a smart new one, very pretty, and often very hard on one's back. Perhaps the father and mother have started in housekeeping with some of these old things, and they have been endeared to them by time, use and association. These are the things the younger generation would banish from sight. Father may mourn the chintz covered lounge on which he has been accustomed to take a noontime rest; or for the old clock that ticked away the happy hours when mother was a bride and he a fond young husband, who begrudged those flying hours; mother may sigh, just a wee bit to herself (for mothers never want anything but what the children want) for some of the "old things" that have been relegated to oblivion; "but then," she says to father, "the children are young as we were once, and want things pretty." But "father" does not always see it that way. However, he does his little complaining in mother's ear alone, with only an occasional remonstrance to others, which is set aside as gently as possible, but set aside nevertheless.

Wouldn't it be better to indulge these dear parents of ours just a little? The time will come when we, too, will love the old fashioned things. Suppose, with the eyes of love, we look ahead just a little to that time, and leave things, at least a few of them, as they "used to be." The new velvet couch may be prettier to look at, but it cannot take the place of the old lounge; the handsome clock can no more than tick off the minutes and hours, it cannot begin to tell the tales of the old "Seth Thomas."

There are so many little ways of being selfish that it requires eternal vigilance to keep our little garden plot free from the encroachment of this obnoxious weed. Because we all do it is no excuse. If the majority were always right, the world would have been redeemed long ago.

There are days when my heart is so full of love for young girls that as I pass them on the street I feel myself smiling as one does to walk by a garden of daffodils. And when I see how careful some of them are to be circumspect and demure, I think to myself how fine a thing it is, to be sure, to have good manners! How happy the parent whose young daughter knows just how to hold her hands in company, just how and when to smile, just how to enter a room or gracefully leave it. Easy, indeed, must be the head of that mother who is secure in the knowledge that her daughter will never make a false step in the stately minut of etiquette, or strike a discordant note in the festival of life; that she will never laugh too loud, nor turn her head in the street, even when the gay and glittering "king of the cannibal isles" rides by, nor do anything odd or queer or unconventional. To the mother who believes that good manners can be taught in books and conned in dancing schools, there is something to satisfy the heart's finest craving in a strictly conventional daughter, who thinks and acts and speaks by rule, and whose life is like the life of an apricot, canned, or a music box wound up with a key. But to my thinking, my dear, good manners are not put on and off like varying fashions, nor done up like sweetmeats, pound for pound, and kept in the storeroom for state occasions. They strike root from the heart out, and the prettiest manners in the world are only the blossoming of a good heart. Surface manners are like cut flowers, stuck in a shallow glass with just enough water to keep them fresh an hour or so; but the courtesy that has its growth in the heart is like the rose bush in the garden that no inclement season can kill, and no dark day force to forego the unfolding of a bud.

The Home Ideal is the Important Thing.

The location of the home is not the important thing to consider in establishing one; it is the home ideal. American homes are of a thousand varieties, from the simplicity of the barest, to the luxury of the grandest; they are detached and independent in the country, standing one by one amid fields and gardens, or they are culls in a crowded hive in city blocks and apartment houses. The home itself may be in one room, it may be in a hut or in a houseboat, or in a dugout; or, equally, it may be in a great avenue mansion or a stately palace, where, for generations, men and women have been in the enjoyment of ease and culture. The home ideal is everywhere the same. Home means people of kindred blood, congenial disposition, and common endeavors, gathered around one table and under one roof. A boarding house or an inn can never carry the true home idea, since it stands for the convenience of the crowd, and not for the upbuilding of the family. Striking its notes deep down into primitive soil, the family signifies the permanence of the race, and always, for its perfect background, the family needs the home. A true home is earth's best gift.—Margaret E. Sangster, Ladies' Home Journal.

ALL local organizations of the Daughters of Zion are urgently requested to contribute funds for the publishing of literature and other needs of the work, soon as possible. Those desiring to help, send money to treasurer, Mrs. Anna Bozarth, Independence, Missouri.

MRS. H. H. ROBINSON, Sec. INDEPENDENCE, MO., May 25.

FAITH AND WORKS.

We who have obeyed the gospel surely have faith in this latter day work. Are we doing all we can to help forward this cause we profess to love so well? Are we doing all we can in every possible way to assist in building up the work? Or are we sitting idle while some one else toils unceasingly for our good, doing what they feel to be their duty? As soldiers in this great army we need to move forward. James says, "faith that hath not works is dead, being alone." If we wish to be alive in the cause we must be up and doing to help ward off the enemy, for he is trying in every possible way to hinder the progress of the Saints. If we do not muster our forces together he may overpower some of us and cause us to fall by the way. He is very cunning and may attack us when we least expect it, and if we are not striving to work for our heavenly Master, we may be led by the opposing power.

We, as a people in this age of the world, have much for which to be thankful, having greater privileges than those of our forefathers. One of the blessed privileges we now enjoy, is the work of the Daughters of Zion. This I believe to be worthy of consideration by all parents, and all others who are entrusted with the welfare of the young. If properly understood and taught to those who come under our care, it will be the means of helping instill the principles of virtue and purity of character in their lives. There are none of us so well fortified that we do not need help at sometime in our lives. This work is a stepping stone to God, and help may come to us through this channel.

We, who are called Daughters of Zion have need to be humble and prayerful and consistent in our lives, so that those who cannot now see the good there is in this work, may be led in time to be co-workers with us in this great conflict, for the overcoming of Satan's power. May we all take hold with renewed vigor and help in every possible way to do good to all with whom we associate, whether of our faith or not, and show forth in our lives that we are not only Saints in name but in deed also, is the wish of one who loves the cause.

MRS. H. H. ROBINSON. INDEPENDENCE, MO.

Buddhist Now a Mormon.

Ten years spent on two hemispheres in the study of all the religions of mankind has convinced R. S. Nayaka that Mormonism is the highest form of religious belief. He has ceased, for the while, his studies at the University of Chicago, where he has been a student for two years, to devote all his time to the acquirement of a deeper knowledge of the creed of his new faith.

Nayaka, the son of a wealthy merchant of Colombo, Ceylon, and reputed to be a descendant of a one time reigning family of the island, was originally a Buddhist. He entered a theological school known as Vidyaydaya, which means "the rising of knowledge," soon after his sixteenth birthday, and there commenced his search for religious truth. Although Buddhism is the dominant creed of the land and he was intended, by his parents, for a priest of that faith, he was free to study at that institution, the spiritual beliefs of all people. He is now past 26 years of age, and most of his time since then has been given to religious research.

To India and the countries of Asia he went in quest of truth. He studied the creed of Zoroaster, and watched the fire-worshipping Parsees at their devotions. He saw the Mohammedans bow to the rising sun and sing the praises of Allah, but could find no sufficient reasons for their devotions. He examined the sacredotal philosophy of the Brahmans and absorbed the doctrines expounded in the Vedas. The pagan rites of the ancient tribes in Asia and Africa attracted his attention for a time and then he pursued his inquiries among such of those as had embraced the belief of christianity.

After studying Confucius' teachings and the various oriental fatalistic theories he came to the United States and continued his inquiries. At the Chicago university he sought instruction as to the various credal beliefs of the Christian denominations, and recently heard of the Mormons. When he heard that they were among the plainest and most worshipful of the followers of Jesus he determined to go to their services. After attending several meetings in a humble temple at 116 Wood street, he cast aside the religions of all other lands and climes, and bent a suppliant knee to the God of Joseph Smith and his strange followers.

Nayaka is small, with intelligent eyes, high forehead and a complexion the color of coffee. The little English he knows he speaks carefully and with perfect enunciation. He wants it clearly understood that he is a member of the church founded by the original Joseph Smith, or the Iowa faction of Mormons, known as Latter Day Saints. The members of this church regard the Utah Mormons, the polygamists, as renegades. Nayaka will leave the university at the end of next year, and when he returns to Ceylon he will organize a branch of the Mormon church among his own people. Of his acceptance of the Mormon creed he says:

"After carefully studying the manifold phases of religion for more than ten years, I have finally reached the conclusion that the doctrines of the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons, are those of true christianity in the most exalted sense of the term. They are, in fact, the teachings of Jesus Christ, untrammelled by any narrow sectarian bias or dogma. In turning from Buddhism to Mormonism I feel that I have embraced the highest form of religion. I have not the slightest doubt but the number of Latter Day Saints will rapidly increase as the years go on, and I hope to see many of my countrymen follow my example.

"The book of Moroni is more than a great book. It stands like a beacon light far above all works of religious faith, with, of course, the exception of the Bible. We Saints believe implicitly in the Bible. It is the religious history of one-half of the world and the book of Moroni is the history of the other half.

"While the New Testament tells of the coming of Jesus Christ to redeem the world, it neglects to tell of His visit to the western hemisphere as well as to the eastern. For he did visit the race which once inhabited the two continents of this hemisphere just after his crucifixion at Jerusalem. It is this gap which the book of Moroni fills."—The Chicago (Ill.) Chronicle, June 15.

A Body Preserved by Copper.

The discovery in a Chilean copper mine of the body of an Indian workman who had died there many years ago, and who had been preserved from decay by the antiseptic action of the copper, is reported by J. A. W. Murdock in the Engineering and Mining Journal (May 11). The mine in question is situated in the district of Chauquicamata in the desert of Atacama. The Indian had evidently been killed by a fall from the roof while engaged in collecting atacamite in a small basket, which was still in his hand, his stone implements being found alongside. "The body is in a perfect state of preservation, evidently due to impregnation of the tissues by copper salts, as well as to the antiseptic action of the exceedingly dry climate. As these mines were apparently quite unknown to the early Spanish colonists, it is to be inferred that the body is of considerable antiquity; this is corroborated by the style of dress (a waist-cloth and two anklets) and by the stone tools used. The local belief is that it dates from before the time of the Spanish occupation, say A. D. 1600."—Kansas City, (Mo.) Journal, June 8 1901; from the Literary Digest.

A Lack in the Practical Education of Girls.

There is too great a lack in the practical education of our girls. Such a practical phase of a woman's life as the realization and meeting of honest obligations never enters into a girl's studies at school, college, or, in the vast majority of cases, even at home. We go on and let our girls study useless ologies and isms, and accumulate a vast amount of undigested and unintelligible information which never, even for a single moment, will be of the slightest use to them in their lives. But of the practical things, yes, the fundamental principles which must govern their lives, they are taught either nothing or little. There is where we are floundering in this country, despite our boasts of progress in matters educational. The things we ought to know we know not, and the things which avail little are often our choicest boasts.—Edward Bok, in 'The Ladies' Home Journal' for June.

SHRUBS growing in a poor soil seldom produce bright, high-colored flowers. Generally the application of manure in liberal quantities will improve their color. Iron filings and scales collected about a blacksmith's anvil have a tendency to intensify the color of many plants, if dug into the soil about their roots.—June Ladies' Home Journal.

AN APPEAL

TO THE SAINTS OF THE INDEPENDENCE STAKE.

In order that we may place before you our views on consecration, surplus, tithings, etc., we present the following:

We endorse the statements made in the Herald of May 29, 1901, Vol. 48, No. 22, page 433.

"Consecration is the act of setting apart what one may have and chooses to spare to the up-building of the cause of Christ, as we and the rest of the Saints understand the term. To consecrate is to put into the bishop's hands, or into the storehouse, whatever of moneys, or other property, of which a person may be possessed, which that person intends to set apart to be used for the work of the ministry, building a temple, storehouses, meeting houses, the care of the poor, and any and all other uses which the needs of the church, in any and all of its business affairs may require, or that may be found advisable or necessary.

"Consecrations are such sums of money, goods, wares, merchandise, houses, lots, and lands which the members of the church may put into the hands of the bishop, or his associate bishops, or agents, which such members may intend shall be used for the purposes referred to, all to be used in legitimate ways for the general good of the body and the necessities of those who may need.

"All this is favorable to the carrying out of the law of tithing, consecration, and freewill offering, as found set forth in the Doctrine and Covenants, these being but three parts of the one law, providing for three divisions of finance collections; tithing, the tenth, or tith; freewill offering, a larger giving than a tith, after the tith has been paid; and a consecration, of whatever a man may have, more than he may have need, his station, business, family, and his personal needs all being taken account of."

And thus enjoined upon us as the Lord has directed us, we read:

"If thou lovest me, thou shalt serve me and keep all my commandments. And behold, thou wilt remember the poor, and consecrate of thy properties for their support, that which thou hast to impart unto them, with a covenant and a deed which cannot be broken; and inasmuch as ye impart of your substance unto the poor, ye will do it unto me, and they shall be laid before the bishop of my church and his counselors, two of the elders, or high priests, such as he shall or has appointed and set apart for that purpose."—Doc. & Cov. 42: 8.

And also this:

"Verily thus saith the Lord, I require all their surplus property to be put into the hands of the bishop of my church of Zion, for the building of mine house, and for the laying the foundation of Zion, and for the priesthood, and for the debts of the presidency of my church; and this shall be the beginning of the tithing of my people; and, after that, those who have thus been tithed shall pay one-tenth of their interest annually; and this shall be a standing law unto them forever, for my holy priesthood, saith the Lord.

"Verily, I say unto you, it shall come to pass that all those who gather unto the land of Zion shall be tithed of their surplus properties, and shall observe this law, or they shall not be found worthy to abide among you. And I say unto you, if my people observe not this law, to keep it holy, and by this law sanctify the land of Zion unto me, that my statutes and my judgments may be kept thereon, that it may be kept most holy, behold, verily I say unto you, it shall not be a land of Zion unto you; and this shall be an ensample unto all the stakes of Zion. Even so. Amen."—Doc. & Cov. 108: 1, 2.

Only by these principles can Zion be built up. There is no other way by which the Lord will accept the building up of His kingdom.

"Behold, I say unto you, were it not for the transgressions of my people, speaking concerning the church and not individuals, they might have been redeemed even now; but, behold, they have not learned to be obedient to the things which I require at their hands, but are full of all manner of evil, and do not impart of their substance, as becometh Saints, to the poor and afflicted among them, and are not united according to the union required by the law of the celestial kingdom; and Zion cannot be built up unless it is by the principles of the law of the celestial kingdom, otherwise I cannot receive her unto myself; and my people must needs be chastened until they learn obedience, if it must needs be, by the things which they suffer."—Doc. & Cov. 102: 2.

We praise the Lord because He has brought us thus far, and that He has directed the organizing of Stakes, that the revelations given to the church might be better carried out for the blessing of His people. We long to see the day when all the blessings promised of the Lord will be enjoyed by His people, when we shall see the law of God carried out as it was in the days of Enoch. Consecration, surplus, tithing and offering giving, must be the free act of every individual. In Moses' time when an offering or sacrifice was made, it was a voluntary act as is shown in Leviticus 1: 3.

When Ananias and Sapphira, his wife, sold their possessions, Peter said, "While it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power." (Acts 5: 4). He could have done as he pleased with his property, but the awful crime was that they conspired to lie, not only to man, but to the Holy Ghost.

"Behold, the Lord requireth the heart and a willing mind; and the willing and the obedient shall eat the good of the land of Zion in these last days; and the rebellious shall be cut off out of the land of Zion, and shall be sent away, and shall not inherit the land; for, verily, I say that the rebellious are not of the blood of Ephraim, wherefore they shall be plucked out. Behold, I, the Lord, have made my church in these last days, like unto a judge sitting on a hill, or in a high place, to judge the nations; for it shall come to pass, that the inhabitants of Zion shall judge all things pertaining to Zion; and liars; and hypocrites shall be proved by them, and they who are not apostles and prophets shall be known."—Doc. & Cov. 64: 7.

The bishopric of Independence Stake feel it to be their solemn duty to call upon all the Saints in the Stake to put forth a special effort to comply with the law as herein set forth. We are all stewards over our own properties, and responsible only to God. Let it not be said of one who now lives in Zion, as it was said of them in former years:

"Now, I, the Lord, am not well pleased with the inhabitants of Zion, for there are idlers among them; and their children are also growing up in wickedness; they also seek not earnestly the riches of eternity, but their eyes are full of greediness. These things ought not to be and must be done away from them; wherefore let my servant Oliver Cowdery carry these sayings unto the land of Zion."—Doc. & Cov. 68: 4.

"See that ye love one another; cease to be covetous; learn to impart one to another as the gospel requires."—Doc. & Cov. 85: 88.

Let us take warning by the example of those people whom the Lord warned and forewarned, and the consequences which followed.

"Verily, I say unto you, concerning your brethren who have been afflicted, and persecuted, and cast out from the land of their inheritance, I, the Lord, have suffered the affliction to come upon them, wherewith they have been afflicted in consequence of their transgressions; yet, I will own them, and they shall be mine in that day when I come to make up my jewels. * * * Behold, I say unto you, there were jarings, and contentions, and envyings, and strife, and lustful and covetous desires among them; therefore by these things they polluted their inheritances. They were slow to hearken unto the voice of the Lord their God; therefore, the Lord their God is slow to hearken unto their prayers, to answer them in the day of their trouble. In the day of their peace they esteemed lightly my counsel; but in the day of their trouble, of necessity they feel after me."—Doc. & Cov. 98: 1, 3.

Dear Saints, let us build up unto God a work with which He will be pleased; and let every individual make the necessary sacrifice. Let us have the name of every member in the Stake on the bishop's book at once, be it much, or be it little; but let it be as the Lord has prospered you. We believe the time has come when the people of the Lord are turning their faces toward the land of Zion and her Stakes, and we ask the members of the Stake to extend a welcome hand to any and all who may come; and to those who are thus contemplating coming, we can only add from Doctrine and Covenants, paragraph 4, section 108: "But verily, thus saith the Lord, let not your spirit be in haste, but let all things be prepared before you."

Conference Notices.

The reunion and conference of the Utah district will be held in Provo, beginning August 24th and continue over two Sundays. One day or more will be devoted to the convention and work of the Sunday School, as may be arranged by the superintendent of the district. Saints of Utah, southern Idaho, and, all who can possibly attend, please take notice, come, enjoy, and help make this meeting a success. Will branch officers please see that correct reports are made out and sent to secretary of district in good time.

Reunion Notices.

The ninth annual reunion of north-western Missouri will be held at Stewartsville, DeKalb county, Missouri, twenty-two miles east of St. Joseph, August 17th to 25th, 1901. We want to say to the Saints in the adjoining territory in Missouri, Kansas and Iowa, that we have no extra inducements to offer in the way of electric lights, street cars running to and from the camp ground, no lake near by where you can boat ride and go fishing; but we have a beautiful grove, situated high and dry, where you can meet good Saints and enjoy an outing for ten days, in songs, in preaching of the word, in social and prayer meeting, Sunday School and Religio, exercises where God can and will bless you, if you come with the proper motive.

The committee have made the date early so our city Saints, also school teachers can attend, as this is the season of the year when business is dull in the cities and the rush of the work in the rural district is over, so all can attend.

Bro. C. J. Craven, of Kingston, David Morgan, of Bevier, Missouri, and Sr. Carrie M. Lewis, of Stewartsville, have been appointed chorists and organist at this notable gathering. Good grounds, ample preparation, eminent speakers, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

CHARLES P. PAUL, Sec. CLARKESDALE, Mo., June 17.

Our reunion this year will be held in Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, beginning July 19th and continuing over the 29th. Everything is propitious for an excellent reunion: Bro. Joseph Smith, Alexander Hale Smith, Joseph Luff, Joseph F. Burton, Wilmer Gilbert, A. Carmichael and Elbert A. Smith, of the general ministry are expected. It is not often that the Saints of Arizona, New Mexico, and Southern California have an opportunity of meeting so many of the leading ministry of the church. Arrangements will be made with the various railroads centering in Los Angeles, viz, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, and the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad, whereby all who attend the reunion will be able to secure one and one-third fare rates for the round trip. Those coming will please secure a certificate from the railroad agent where you purchase your ticket, certifying that you have paid full fare one way to attend the reunion of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, at Los Angeles, California. Ask your agent when tickets coming to the reunion are good. Do not forget this. It makes no difference if you have the money to pay full fare both ways, consider others who may come hundreds of miles and their advantage is bridged because of your negligence. Let everybody coming to the reunion secure these certificates.

It is purposed now to have some trustworthy brother conduct the dining hall, serving meals to all who may desire, at reasonable rates.

Tents can be secured for the following prices: 10x12, $1.50; 12x14, $2.00; 12x16, $2.25; 12x20, $2.50; 16x24, $4.00. Double cots, 50 cents; double mattresses, 50 cents; single cots, 25 cents; single mattresses, 25 cents; chairs, 5 cents; tables 25 cents. If parties coming will bring plenty of bedding, such as quilts or blankets they can get along very well without the mattress. There are a number of available rooms, several already furnished, which can be secured at reasonable rates. Parties desiring accommodations will please write to Elder T. W. Williams, 1322 Myrtle avenue, Los Angeles, California.

Sycamore Grove is one of the best reunion grounds in the country. The facilities are unexcelled anywhere. The grounds are far enough removed from the city noise so as to give all the pleasure of country seclusion.

Let every Saint who can possibly do so, come and make this the banner reunion of the state. It will be a commendable way to begin the new century. Do not make the mistake and come for only a few days. If there is anything discouraging to a reunion committee it is to have a number of the Saints come in to spend the Sunday or a few days at most. Come on the 19th and remain until the 29th.

Respectfully submitted, T. W. WILLIAMS, NELSON VAN FLEET, COX. S. PENFOLD.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

Northern Wisconsin district conference convened at Valley Junction, June 1, and 2, 1901. Bro. T. W. Chaburn was chosen chairman, Elders Closson and Burr, assistants.

Reports were read from Elders A. V. Closson, C. H. Burr, A. L. Whittaker and Wm. Hutchinsson. Priests: S. E. Livingston, M. O. Shedd, A. J. Fisher, and Wm. Closson. Teacher: M. A. Shedd. No deacons reported.

Branches reporting: Evergreen, 46; Frankfort, 129; no report from Reed branch.

Bishop's agent, Wm. Hutchinsson, report: cash in hand October 10th, $11.00; received in tithing, $35.00; received of bishop's agent, $40.00; total amount, $86.00; balance on hand June 1, 1901, $12.00.

District treasurer's, M. O. Shedd, report: had on hand, 50 cents; received at conference, October 7th, $3.25; total amount, $3.75; paid to district secretary, 50 cents; balance on hand, $3.25.

A request from Aracunia township, Juneau county, Wisconsin, for branch organization at said place was granted.

Missionaries for Wisconsin, T. W. Chaburn, W. P. Robinson, M. F. Gowell, and P. Mucus, missionary to Norway were in attendance. Conference adjourned to meet with the Reed branch the first Saturday and Sunday before the full moon in October.

CAMREN. — At Rushville, Indiana, May 7, 1901, Sr. Priscilla Camren. She was baptized June 1, 1884, by Elder W. H. Keley. Her husband, three girls, and four boys have the sympathies of all who knew her. A large crowd was present at the funeral. Sr. Camren always gave the ministry a welcome home. Funeral in charge of W. C. Marshall and J. J. Boswell, remarks by M. R. Scott, Jr.

SIDES.—At the residence of Mr. Theodore Winters, Washoe, Nevada, May 31st, 1901, after a severe illness, Bro. Richard D. Sides, aged 75 years. The deceased was one of the pioneers of Nevada, and was identified with the Reorganized Church in early days. He leaves a sister and two daughters. Mr. Winters, daughter and family took great care of the deceased in his sickness, with kindness and unselfish charity, and buried him as one of their own. God will most surely reward them for their kind acts. Funeral services at the residence by Elder T. R. Hawkins, of Dayton, Nevada.

Gray? "My hair was falling out and turning gray very fast. But your Hair Vigor stopped the falling and restored the natural color."—Mrs. E. Z. Benomne, Cohoes, N. Y. It's impossible for you not to look old, with the color of seventy years in your hair! Perhaps you are seventy, and you like your gray hair! If not, use Ayer's Hair Vigor. In less than a month your gray hair will have all the dark, rich color of youth. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address: J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

A CONTINUING CITY.

For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come.—Heb. 13: 14.

Although the Scriptures are clear and pointed regarding the final abode of God's children—the Saints—the majority of professing Christians are looking forward to a "mansion in the skies, after they close their eyes upon the scenes of earth; but this hope probably rests more upon tradition than anything else for its foundation. It is true the Savior said:

In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also.—John 14: 2, 3.

We notice first that there are a great many departments in the Father's house or kingdom. Scientists are advocating the theory that the stars are planets similar to the one upon which we dwell, and that they are inhabited, basing their theories upon evidences altogether outside of the Scriptures. But the Lord through the Palmyra Seer, Joseph Smith, has made the matter quite plain. In a vision shown to Moses, the Lord told him:

And worlds without number have I created; and I also created them for mine own purpose; and by the Son I created them, which is mine Only Begotten. And the first man of all men have I called Adam, which is many. But only an account of this earth, and the inhabitants thereof, give I unto you. For, behold, there are many worlds which have passed away by the words of my power. And there are many which now stand, and innumerable are they unto man, but all things are numbered unto me, for they are mine, and I know them"—Doc. and Cov. 22: 7.

Of course this quotation may not be accepted as even collateral evidence by many, but we believe it will commend itself for its clearness of statement, to every unprejudiced mind. It certainly agrees with the Savior's teachings of "many mansions" in the house (kingdom) of His Father, revealing clearly the means prepared by which "He shall reward every man according to his works," (Matt. 16: 27), placing every man in the condition in the life to come for which he has wrought in his days of probation. And this teaching is still further strengthened by the statement of the apostle Paul in 1 Cor. 15: 40-42:

There are also celestial bodies, and bodies terrestrial; but the glory of the celestial is one, and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead.

Every individual therefore who has striven to "work out" his "own salvation," will receive a full reward to the extent for which he has labored, and all will acknowledge that full, complete and exact justice has been meted out to them "according to their works," so far as the reception of the glory to which they are assigned, is concerned. And it is possible that the tradition of a mansion in what appears to be the skies may be realized by many, even though it is not the abode of the Saints in the celestial or highest glory.

We notice again the language of the Savior is significant, "and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." As He once came literally, so will He AGAIN come literally, and receive His disciples unto Himself. The Scriptures show that when He comes again, it will be "with power and glory," "and all the Saints with thee." It will be at the resurrection of the just, when He comes to reign upon the earth a thousand years with His Saints. Daniel saw the time when the earth would be the abode of the Saints.

And the kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heavens shall be given to the people of the Saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve, and obey him!—Dan. 7: 27.

Job had a vision of the time when the Savior would again stand upon the earth, and that after his resurrection he should see Him there.

For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth.—Job. 19: 25, 27.

John on the Isle of Patmos also had the same testimony.

"And they sang a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth."—Rev. 5: 9, 10.

This language is attributed to those who had been dwellers upon the earth at one time; had finished their probationary estate and had gone to the paradise of God to await the resurrection; and it will be seen, their hope and expectation was that they should reign as kings and priests unto God on the earth. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," and after filling it with everything that was good to make it desirable as a habitation for man, He placed man upon it as the crowning handiwork of His creation, giving him dominion over it all. Nothing which was placed in the earth at that time could lessen man's happiness, or make it undesirable as an abiding place. It was not until after sin entered that unhappiness was introduced, and to that alone is chargeable all that has destroyed the peace and contentment which it was intended that all the creations upon the earth should enjoy.

God does nothing without an end, a purpose in view—a wise one, of course—and the evident intention in the creation of the earth and its creatures was that it might be an everlasting abiding place for mankind. Shall we for a moment admit that Satan was wiser than our Heavenly Father, by reason of which he is able to thwart the purposes of the Almighty and cause them to come to naught? We cannot afford to do that, and we are then forced to the conclusion that the earth shall yet be made to fulfill the grand design of its creation and become the final abode of mankind. But it will have to undergo the great change foretold by the Apostle Peter when he prophesied:

But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall shake, and the earth also shall tremble, and the mountains shall melt, and pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall be filled with fervent heat; the earth also shall be filled [with heat], and the corruptible works which are therein shall be burned up.—2 Pet. 3: 10. (Inspired version).

We quote this version because it is so much plainer and more complete than the account given in the King James' version. This statement evidences that the earth is to be restored to its primeval beauty. The Lord says by the prophet Isaiah:

For, behold I create a new heavens, and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind.—(Isa. 65: 17).

Again:

For as the new heavens, and the new earth, which I will make, shall remain before me, saith the Lord, so shall your seed and your name remain. And it shall come to pass, that from one new moon unto another, and from one Sabbath to another, shall all flesh come to worship before me, saith the Lord.—Isa. 66: 22, 23.

Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.—2 Pet. 3: 13.

The change which will come upon the earth will make of it a new earth. The briar, the thorn, and all that is abominable will be removed, and it will once more become a fit habitation for the Lord.

In Revelation 21: 1-4 we read: And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. And I, John, saw the holy city, new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things have passed away.

What grander existence is it possible for human kind to enjoy. No death, or sorrow, or pain. God himself, with them; all the old things which caused distress completely destroyed, and a new life of unalloyed bliss opened up for all in this glorious new Jerusalem which is to come down upon earth from God, out of heaven. In this same chapter of Revelation, verses 10-27, and chapter 22: 1-5 a most glorious and inspiring description is given of this beautiful city, which shall have no ending. It is the continuing city which the Apostle Paul declares the children of God are seeking. Nothing unclean, nor the unholy, may enter there and those who are earnestly seeking for a habitation in that city must abide its laws here, and now, thus preparing themselves for an inheritance which is "incorruptible, undefiled and that fadeth not away."

DISCOURAGING.

The east as well as other parts of this country is presenting rather an uninviting field for the labors of the Utah elders according to reports from those in a position to know. Apostle M. F. Cowley in the course of a sermon in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Utah, Sunday, June 23d, said:

In the eastern mission during 1900, 136 elders baptized 102 converts, 50 of these being children of members; 52 is the result of the labor of 136 men for a year. While this is the poorest showing of all the missions, the others are very similar.

Speaking on the redemption of Zion and the return of the church to Jackson County, Missouri, he said:

Every principle revealed to Joseph Smith will be established in power never to be overcome by its enemies.

This, Bro. R. Etzenhouser says, was repeated and emphasized, and adds, "What they say was revealed is, of course, the key to this."

Well, so long as they honestly and sincerely confine their teachings to the principles REALLY revealed to Joseph Smith the elders of that church will not meet with very severe opposition anywhere. But they must not try to palm off the heresies of Brigham Young and others as the teachings of Joseph Smith unless they are prepared to meet the strongest, the most determined and persistent opposition from the elders of the Reorganized Church. So long as there is a faithful elder of the true Church of Jesus Christ as represented in the Reorganized body, remaining, the traducing of the character and work of Joseph Smith will not be allowed to go unanswered. And so far as anything these people of the Utah church, or any other for that matter, have been able to present as evidence in the matter, it is a slanderous and shameful falsehood to say that Joseph Smith either ever authorized or taught the doctrine of polygamy and its kindred evils. If it had been in their power to produce anything conclusive along that line, they would have done so long since. They have presented the best they could obtain and have made a complete failure. It's too late now to do anything more. They had better do a little revising of their principles and honestly confine ALL their teachings, public and private, to those principles which Joseph Smith did receive from the Lord. They will have less for which to answer in the Judgment if this course is pursued.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SR. (MRS.) F. M. DAVIS, 1104 South Locust St., Centralia, Illinois, says they are entirely isolated, there being no Saints near them to their knowledge. She adds, "Any of the Saints passing this way would be welcome at our home."

It may be of interest to any of the Saints who contemplate visiting the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, New York to know that Bro. William Brothers, 356 Tryon Place, in that city, has arranged to accommodate a few visitors at reasonable rates. Better write him however, before going, as he can only take care of a limited number.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

ELDER T. W. CHATBURN, Madison, Wisconsin, June 28:

Just finished a successful series of meetings at Ono. Will commence tent meetings here immediately after the Fourth. This will be my address. Hot, when!

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Elder Geo. Montague of Oklahoma passed through Independence Wednesday en route to Iowa to visit his daughter.

President Hulmes will be with the Independence branch next Sunday morning and at the Second Kansas City branch in the evening.

Bro. A. H. Mills and wife are visiting relatives in Lamoni, Iowa. Bro. Frank Mills left on his bicycle for the same point last week.

Bro. Wm. Crick left for Denver and Colorado Springs, Monday evening. His health has been rather unsatisfactory of late; rest and change it is thought will help him.

Sr. Wm. Clow, daughter Carrie and son Harold, left Monday via the Union Pacific for Denver, Colorado, on a visit to Bro. Alfred Clow and family. Sr. Carrie is a typo on the ENSIGN force. Bro. J. J. Luff fills her "case" in her absence.

It will be necessary for our Independence subscribers who desire to have their ENSIGN delivered by the letter carrier to bring or send to the ENSIGN office the number and name of the street where papers are desired to be left, otherwise they will get their ENSIGNS as usual upon inquiring at the post office.

Bro. G. H. Hulmes is graining the front doors of the church artistically. Bro. Belmore is "coating" the window frames and cornice. Altogether the building will be much improved in appearance, as well as preserved from the effects of weather. Bro. Sam Olsen assisted Bro. Belmore.

Bro. James Atkinson and family, late of Persia, Iowa, are moving into their new home on Cryster Street, the property formerly owned by Bro. W. H. Murphy. We welcome them to our midst. Bro. Murphy is building a new home on West Short Street, west of Bro. H. R. Mills.

Sunday morning Bishop R. May addressed the Saints, instructing them in their duties regarding their finances and their obligations to bring forth acceptable fruit to the Lord. At night Priest W. H. Fuller, our colored missionary, was the speaker. The afternoon service was lively, interesting and comforting.

John Hayward Davis, son of Theodore F. and Bonnie Hayward Davis, born at Kansas City, June 26th, was blessed by its grandfather, Elder Geo. Hayward, June 30th. The little one died June 30th and was interred in Independence cemetery July 1st.

Sr. Margaret A. Peek, daughter of Sr. W. H. Blatt, granddaughter of Bro. J. F. Clemensen, died at the home of her mother north Liberty street Monday night about half past nine, from a complication of ailments, mainly gastritis, of a chronic type. She suffered severely for a time, finally lapsing into unconsciousness, in which she passed away, leaving a husband, mother, grandfather, sisters and brother to mourn her early demise. The funeral took place from the house yesterday, Wednesday, being in charge of Elder W. H. Garrett; Bro. C. D. Carson was the undertaker.

Work has begun in earnest on West Lexington and Electric street in preparation for paving. A number of the fine large shade trees have been cut down to give room to improvements. The large elm in front of Bro. J. A. Maguire's store near the church, has disappeared, and all the trees on the church property from the ENSIGN office up to the corner of Osage, are being taken down. The side walks are being filled up and the unsightly steps in front of the ENSIGN office have been removed. There will be a 15 foot granite walk in front of the ENSIGN and other church property next door. We understand the old church, corner of Lexington and Osage, where the ENSIGN was formerly printed, is to be torn down. Visitors here next year will see quite a change in this part of the city.

President J. D. White, in charge of the missionary work of the Independence stake, has arranged for a basket meeting at Chelsea Park Kansas, for Sunday, July 14th. There will be nothing on the grounds to interfere with the worshippers, as the proprietors of the park expect the entertainment program to be discontinued after July 4th. It is probable that all the four Kansas City branches will unite in the service there and the intention in taking lunch along is to obviate the necessity of leaving the grounds until the close of the day's service. This meeting is not a picnic, it is simply a grove meeting, with Divine services during the day and evening in charge of Bro. White. It is likely that arrangements will be made to hold these meetings once each month during the warm weather.

Preparations are being made for a big 4th of July celebration today. Speakers have been engaged and a stand erected in the court house yard, under the shade trees. No firing of any kind will be permitted in the courthouse yard, the Mayor reserving it as a place of safety for Ladies and children. But there will be plenty of noise around the square commencing with an anvil salute at break of day.

Free delivery of mail was partially established for Independence, commencing Monday morning. Postmaster Bostian advises that the census of the place being returned at only 6,000, but three carriers were allowed. There are about 10,000 here now, and he hoped when his returns were all in, to be able to show the department that we were entitled to two more carriers. The entire southside, quite a populous district, where the carrier system is most needed on account of distance from the post office, is left unprovided for. It would seem that the common sense way to arrange this delivery would be that those living nearest the post office should call there for their mail, while the outlying parts of the city should be served by carriers; but the authorities do not see it that way. We hope we may soon get the two additional carriers.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The weather continues hot and very dry; vegetation is suffering, the pastures are dried up and the potato crop is a failure—so reported. What a great need of a humble living, and faithful seeking before the Lord.

Bro. R. Archibald, John Gardner, the writer and wife, attended the quarterly conference at Kingston, Missouri, seven miles from the temple lot at Far West, after which the district is named. Bro. J. N. White, W. E. Haden, W. E. Summerfield, Swen Swensen, B. Dice, J. W. Adams, and W. W. Smith, of the general missionary force, were present. Bro. T. T. Hinderks, the worthy president, and C. P. Paul, the jolly and life long secretary, were also present and sustained in their offices. It did me good to look again into the familiar faces present, and hear the clear sounding ring of their testimonies.

The conference was very peaceful, the reports showing a membership in the district of 1,220, an increase of thirteen in the last quarter. There were fifteen baptisms reported. A spirit of earnestness was exhibited which portends success to the work.

Bro. John Gardner, one of our St. Joseph boys, was elected as president of the district Religio organization at the late convention. Bro. John received the honor gracefully, and will make a success of it.

We begin a continued effort at South St. Joseph Mission, Sunday 8 p. m. There are many ways you can help in this effort—by your presence, by singing, by inviting others, by prayer, by preaching, by distributing tracts, by a word of sympathy, by a freewill offering, and by living an upright life. The mission is located on Park avenue, near Texas avenue; get off car at Texas, go north to fourth door. Come Saints, let us build up the work at this new point.

The reunion committee held an interesting session at the conference, and concluded to occupy the same ground as last year. Arrangements are completed guaranteeing a successful and happy time. Make arrangements to attend August 16-25.

We are pleased to see "Jots" once more in your columns, and that his lot is cast where he can cast the hook and catch the fish, and eat them too. We hope that he as one of the Lord's fishermen will be able to "catch" many precious souls on the gospel "hook" baited with divine truth. Success to you, T. W., Old Far West has not forgotten you.

Bro. F. W. Mills was at the conference en route on bicycle from Independence to Lamoni.

Yours for truth,
J. M. TERRY.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 6731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Yesterday was our second Parents' Day of the Sabbath School, and it was very successful. Bro. Arthur Burgess had spent quite a little while in decorating the black board, and we were agreeably surprised at the way in which the review of the entire school was conducted by Superintendent T. J. Elliott. Little Misses Etta Swift and Myrtle Peters favored us with a song; altogether, it was very good, and somewhat of an innovation.

The weather is intensely hot, and if our good Bro. F. A. Smith continues to labor as he did yesterday, preaching three times, one of the appointments being at Oak Hill Mission quite a way out, he will not be as corpulent in a little while as at present. Attendance at morning service was rather light, but in the evening the congregation was rather large, and a number of strangers were noted.

Friday night, Religio was in charge of vice president, Sr. Florence Burgess; our president, E. C. Bell, and wife, left Thursday evening for a visit with home folks at Lamoni.

Tuesday evening was the regular election of Sunday School officers; Bro. T. J. Elliott was sustained as superintendent, Bro. Arthur Burgess being chosen to act as assistant; secretary, Dan De Jung; treasurer, Mrs. S. R. Burgess.

The Cheltenham Religio met at the home of Bro. and Sr. Trowbridge last Tuesday evening; refreshments were served, and a pleasant time reported.

It saddens us, to so soon again chronicle another death. Sr. Mary Ann Remington, departed from this life last Wednesday morning, and was laid to rest Friday afternoon, Bro. F. A. Smith being in charge of the funeral services. "They're gathering homeward—one by one."

Bro. Smith visited Belleville this past week; was recalled to attend to the funeral rites of Sr. Remington.

Wednesday evening prayer service was quite well attended, and a good meeting reported.

Bro. Archibald left Thursday evening, for a short visit with his family in Nebraska.

'Twas reported at social service last evening, that Sr. Mary Whiting had been seriously hurt; she had sent a request for the prayers of the Saints.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening, Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

The weather has been very warm for several days, but no prostrations from the heat.

Sr. Johnson and family, of Buffalo, New York, are sojourning in the city.

Srs. E. M. Shupe and Grace Merchant, of Magnolia, Iowa, are visiting Bro. E. F. Shupe and family.

Bro. Thos. J. Watkins, late of Kansas City, Missouri, has secured a position with the Montelius Piano company, and will make Denver his home.

Bro. Wagner, of Ft. Morgan, was up to attend the services Sunday and left a nice contribution to the Graceland College fund, and by the way, our Graceland College fund is growing nicely, and the Eastern Colorado district will be heard from with its share in due time.

Bro. Joseph Graham who has been confined to the hospital for about seventeen months, passed away Wednesday the 26th; funeral from Walla & Rollins undertaking rooms Friday, in charge of Elder J. B. Roush. The service consisted of a reading and prayer, and the sermon followed at the church by the same brother Sunday the 30th. The house was filled, the choir rendered some fine music for the occasion.

Bro. Roush also conducted the funeral on Thursday, of the child of Bro. and Sr. Stuart, formerly of Independence, Missouri; it died very suddenly, we did not get the particulars.

At the regular semi-annual business meeting of the branch, Monday the 24th, E. F. Shupe was re-elected president; O. A. Westland, priest; Eldor K. Seli, acting teacher; Leo Shupe, secretary, and Sr. E. B. Lewis, treasurer. As our deacon refused to serve longer the office was left vacant for the present.

The offices of teacher and deacon have been a problem to the branch for a long time, and a motion prevailed that a day of fasting and prayer be observed by the branch July 7th, to see if we can get the mind of the Lord as to who shall fill these offices.

The Religio Sunday evening was very interesting.

The Sunday evening service was fairly well attended considering the heat; the park and other resorts are so attractive these warm nights that they draw the largest crowds.

July 1st.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Elder J. D. White is at his post again in charge of the work in Kansas City. The interest at the tent is increasing, Bro. W. H. Pease doing most of the preaching. Arrangements are being made to have union meeting in the near future of all the branches in the city.

Sunday morning President Hulmes occupied the pulpit, and in the evening Bro. Ashbaugh was the speaker.

Bro. Warnky gospelized at Holliday both morning and evening.

Bro. J. A. Gillen is doing well in the east bottom mission.

Bro. J. J. Luff is announced for the speaker next Sunday at 11 a. m., and in the evening Elder F. C. Warnky will preach on the subject, "The Condition of Man After Death."

July 1st.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

MONSIEUR, Maine, June 14.

Editor Ensign:—My last communication was from Pejepscot, where I had just arrived from General Conference; had thought to occupy there as soon as I reached that place, but a misunderstanding about the building resulted in a delay for a few days. However, we succeeded after a time in securing a place to hold meetings in, one part of the school building, a very good place indeed; but as the time for holding our conference in Mountaineville was so near, I did not have time to occupy but twice. Something new, as a doctrine, had come to them, and they were all attention, and seemingly, very anxious for me to stay with them longer, or come again soon. Shall hope to reach there in the fall.

Leaving here I came to Rockland, visiting and talking to the few scattered Saints living there, encouraging them to be true to God, and keep their covenant inviolate. Rockport, where lives some parties interested with the latter day work, was visited with good results. Passing on to Mountaineville to conference, by way of Little Deer Isle, holding forth twice: the Saints there are seemingly quite united, under the supervision of our worthy brother, J. J. Billings.

The conference of Western Maine district was very good, and all present seemed to enjoy it. Four were baptized during the conference, by Bro. Cunningham, and I learn that eight have since been baptized by the same brother; evidences of the good work he has been doing there during the past winter: go on, S. G., convert them all if you can, from hobbies to which they have been wed, teach them that which was wisely remarked by one who was speaking of liberal churches, it is often a sign of growth in the individual, an intimation that some cherished belief has done for them all that it can, and that they must seek something else. Old influences do their work and drop off, as the plant casts its old buds and stems that its life may flow up higher into better developments. Men will, if they grow, cast off many of their old ideas, beliefs and associations; they do not deliberately reject them, they leave them with sadness often, because they hold no more of value. We are walking through an orchard, the growths of many years are about us, there is sighing among the boughs, the apple blossom is mourning because her beautifully tinted petals are falling, one by one, to the ground. Foolish blossoms, do you not know you are losing these petals because you have already begun to develop into something better? Do you not know that these have been cast off by the forces already at work in your bosom, forces which are bringing you to your fruitage? You are on your way to autumn, and in its mellow light you will see that the loss of your dainty petals was your real gain. We lose old thoughts, beliefs and habits, that we may obtain something better, that our lives may be grander and richer in fruitage of thought and of deed.

I had hoped to return to western Maine in the near future, but the wisdom of the worthy brother in charge says go to Aroostook, and thither I will wend my weary feet. Coming from western Maine to my home I stopped in Bar Harbor one night and a day, also in South Gouldsboro, and at West Gouldsboro a short time, using the time as profitably as wisdom would direct. The conference of Eastern Maine was considered quite good, attendance large, one baptized. Bro. Isaac M. Smith is a worker, and here he finds chances to improve his time. Surely with unswerving faith, and uniformity of action, the work will advance here, as also in every place. Seventeen have already been baptized in Maine since May 4th, add still others are ready for baptism. May the good work go on till all may hear the sound and have opportunity to come to Christ in His own appointed way.

Recently one of those men who has been taught to believe that God will eternally punish all who do not come to Christ, here and now, said to me, "I will forfeit my life if you will show me one place in the Bible where God will save man at all. In any other way than by the gospel." I thought if he would be driven to suicide it was not safe to cite him to Paul's sayings in 1 Corinthians 15: 22, 23: 1 Timothy 4: 10, and 1 Cor. 3: 15, but kindly informed him that God in His mercy would in due time save all by the gospel, except those committing the unpardonable sin. I think it's better to convert men to the gospel by telling them of heaven, and of heavenly things, than to persuade them to come through fear of future torment. S. O. Foss.

WACO, Mo., June 14

Editor Ensign:—On the 6th of June I left home for my mission field, after a delay with smallpox ever since General Conference. My whole family had it but my wife: our four children had it very bad. I caught it at Coffeyville, Kansas.

To the Saints of Spring River district I wish to say that having been appointed by Bro. I. N. White, missionary in charge, as sub-missionary in charge over the district I desire the co-operation of the district, and especially the local force, to help out the missionary force. We have two less missionaries this year than last year. Let me know the demands of the work throughout the district, and we will do the best we can, as the Spirit and wisdom may direct. Dear Saints, don't think one man can do it all, or that only one man can preach. I would like to have that entirely rooted out of this district. Also read section 120, paragraph 3, Doctrine and Covenants; section 122, paragraph 10; section 122, paragraph 1; section 85, paragraph 8; section 70, paragraph 3; section 64, paragraph 2; section 59, paragraph 2; section 42, paragraph 23; section 90, paragraph 7. In the last section is a rebuke to Sidney Rigdon: please read these paragraphs and live by them: if you will do this in this district one year you would be surprised at its growth.

The district is growing, one evidence of which in last quarterly conference was the number of tithing receipts Bro. J. M. Richards had to write out. But remember, God has revealed Himself from heaven in regard to the College debt: let this district do her part in this matter, and commence now. We expect to put forth a strong effort in Joplin.

We are expecting a debate to come off June 24th at Central City, between J. D. Erwin and A. Carlin, of the Baptist church. We are having a good interest here and good turnout; we had an unusually large crowd at our quarterly conference. We had a good priesthood meeting on Sunday morning.

Send mail to 700 North Ash street, Nevada, Missouri, and it will reach me.

Yours in the gospel,

F. C. KECK.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 13.

Editor Ensign:—The Central Chicago branch holds services at 3411 Cottage Grove Avenue, 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.: Sunday school 9:45 a. m.; Wednesday prayer meeting 7:30 p. m.; sacrament union meetings first Sunday in every month at 3 p. m., Elder Phileman Pement presiding elder.

Our missionary to Chicago, Bro. F. M. Sheehy, occupied the morning hour at the Central branch on Sunday the 16th inst., to an appreciative audience. His discourse was of that character that impresses itself on the mind of the listener. You are always welcome, Bro. F. M. The work at this point in Chicago is progressing in a very encouraging manner, considering the obstacles that had to be met, and while there are some trivial things which must be overcome, we look forward with great hope to the day when "God's marvelous work and a wonder" shall be better understood by a far wider circle than at present, through the efforts put forth by the members of the "Central" branch.

The Sunday school work is very encouraging here and occasionally our district superintendent, Bro. F. M. Pitt, comes amongst us and by his cheerful and encouraging way of illustrating Sunday school lessons, both old and young receive lasting impressions in the way that leads upward unto God. And were it not that we would exhibit a large degree of selfishness we could wish for his presence with us every Sabbath. While other schools also have an equal claim on your time Bro. Fred, come as often as you can, for you do us good.

Preparations for the next district conference which meets on the South Side in Chicago next September are already under way.

That indefatigable missionary worker, Elder E. J. Tank, is still at his old tactics, i. e., trying to push the old gospel story into new places. He has equipped a gospel wagon capable of seating six or eight people to preach and sing the gospel we all love so well. This moving pulpit will be ready shortly, and a regular line of artillery (gospel) will be opened on the stronghold of sin and ignorance. May God bless the effort, for we are sure that the Master is using this brother in pushing the missionary work in Chicago, and we can truly pray for the Lord of the harvest to send more of this kind of laborers into the harvest field, men who make the gospel of Christ the primary object of their lives, or in other words, first, last and all the time.

Since the organization of the branch at this point (March 12) six or eight members have been added by baptism with more to follow in the near future, we truly hope. We are thankful to our heavenly Father for the peaceful Spirit that prevails among the members, coupled as it is with an active and energetic desire to see others brought into the knowledge of the gospel. We had 10,000 circulars printed and we are distributing them as invitations to come and hear the gospel.

A cordial and brotherly invitation is extended to all visiting brethren to call on us and come prepared to preach if you hold the priesthood, to sing and listen if you don't. Whatever you do, come anyhow.

In bonds,

P.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA, June 19.

Dear Ensign:—Since our district conference we have been trying to keep the ball rolling. Bro. Roman Wight and the writer continued meetings with the Boomer branch for ten days after its close, and we had a full house every night, notwithstanding the busy season. I have never seen a better interest manifested than we had, and the people were greatly pleased with Bro. Wight, and his plain and practical way of presenting the gospel. I find him a very kind and lovable co-worker, and I believe we are fortunate in securing his services in this district.

Bro. Chambers is in the eastern part of the district, I think, where Bro. Wight is to join him to hold a two days' meeting next Saturday and Sunday. I have been at home this week and have been assisting Bro. P. M. Cooper in visiting the members of the branches as a preparatory step towards inaugurating the mission work Bro. Cooper has in mind. Bro. Cooper has allowed no grass to grow under his feet since coming here, but has preached every Sunday and visited during the week. There is an increasing interest here since he began his work, and the attendance is on the increase. His sermons are highly spoken of, and I am sure if the branch will only hold up his hands there will be a revival here in all departments of the work. It is a pleasure to labor with Bro. Cooper, and I am confident that if the officers of the branch will lend a helping hand, and the officers work in harmony with him, and not allow any jealous feelings to arise, the work will receive a fresh impetus here, and a missionary spirit will be aroused that will bring the work before the people of this city in a way it has not been since Bro. T. W. Williams left here.

I intend to aid Bro. Cooper in every way in my power, and I do pray God that our hearts may be made glad by the conversion of many honest-hearted people. Sr. Cooper is expected here in a few days and she will aid Bro. Cooper in his house to house labors.

The Salt Lake elders have been doing some street preaching, and Bro. Cooper says it is very hard for him to keep silent and let them deceive the people. Mayor Jennings has granted him liberty to reply to them, and they will doubtless hear something drop if they continue their work.

The Saints are all well and so far as I know, are feeling well in the gospel and praying God to revive his work in our midst.

Ever praying for Zion's welfare, I remain, Yours in bonds,

J. S. STRAIN.

AVA, Mo., June 15.

Editor Ensign:—We have a few Saints out here in the backwoods of the Ozark Mountains who are organized into what is known as the Ava Branch, we are all poor people so far as this world's goods are concerned, but strong in the faith. We have a church house nearly completed, and when we look back and see how few there were to do the work, only four male members of the church, 18 months ago, and none of them able to command more than a dollar or two ready cash, yet they determined to make the effort, and ask those not of the faith to assist as they felt disposed, so the work was commenced and, I believe, under the supervision of God's power, has nearly reached completion.

We have quite a nice little branch here, and I feel that did the Saints all live more humble and draw nearer to God, or in other words, to seek more diligently the path that the Savior trod, there are others who will add themselves to our numbers. We have had a great spiritual blessing through the instrumentality of Elder A. M. Baker, Priest J. T. Davis, Elder J. G. Christensen, and tonight and over Sunday we have Elder H. Sparling. We certainly have had the most profound Christian instruction that is possible to be given to man by the mouths of God's servants, and I fully believe that of the good seed sown, some at least has fallen on good soil, that will sometime in the future spring forth and bear fruit unto the Master of the vineyard.

Bro. Baker organized white here, a Religio Society, for the benefit of the young people of the neighborhood, which I trust may prove a stepping stone toward the kingdom, therefore, believing this to be God's work, that is being performed in the last days, we will leave all in His hands and if good is the results of our labor all glory and honor shall be to the Father and His Only Begotten.

Ever your brother in the faith,

WM. TAYLOR.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., June 18.

Dear Ensign:—We are through another well attended conference of the Chatham district, held at Zone town hall, and the barn of Bro. Charles Taylor. Some of the business was done in the hall, but it being too small Bro. Taylor's barn was fitted up with seats and platform for speakers and choir. It was thought there were about six to seven hundred attended. The Chatham district tent was put up in the front of Bro. C. Taylor's farm house with two tables which would seat from one hundred to one hundred and fifty at a time. The Saints did well in providing for the conference and everybody was pleased and thankful.

Bro. G. Green was sustained district president, Bro. A. Leverton vice president, Bro. Coburn secretary, and Bro. J. Badder treasurer. Bro. R. C. Evans presided over the conference with the district officers assisting. The Sunday school district convention was good: two new schools added, Wilksport and Kimball, Miss Jessie Hackett superintendent, Bro. James Williamson assistant superintendent, Sr. Mary Green, secretary, Bro. J. H. Tyrrell second assistant.

Monday morning a short business session was held, after which some bore testimony, prayed and gave experiences, some presentations of visions seen, many good things said to confirm us in the faith of this great Latter Day work.

Conference dismissed to meet at Wabash the second Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday in October, 1901. Dear Saints, as I have been sustained to labor in the Chatham district for some time longer with you, I wish to work in love and peace with you all, if any of you would like to write to me I would like to hear from you. If you see new places for me to preach, let me know, or any other work I can assist you in, agreeably with the presiding officers of the district. You can always reach me at box 625, St. Thomas, Ontario.

Bro. Alma C. Barmore and Alvin Knisley are using the tent for the season. I hope good will result in all of our labors till conference again. I thank you one and all for your kindness to me everywhere I have been. Let us pray for one another for the day is fading fast.

In hope,

T. A. PHILLIPS.

FAYETTE CITY, Penn., June 21.

Dear Ensign:—Have just returned from a four weeks' campaign in Green county, Penn., where I have labored in company with Bro. W. E. Rush, who is a priest, and who is a worthy man and a zealous worker in the cause. I preached 22 sermons, held 1 sacrament meeting, administered to sick ones. Three baptisms crowned our labors, Bro. Rush administering the baptismal rite on account of the physical condition of the elder.

This is my first missionary labor, and although sometimes things are not so pleasant as we would like to have them, yet I am satisfied. The few Saints in that region, although poor in this world's goods, are rich in their willingness to do all in their power to make it pleasant for the elder. In this respect I may mention Bro. and Sr. Jaders; Sr. Jackson and family and Bro. and Sr. Rusli. Hope soon to return to that section, as I believe good can be done.

ELDER ROBERT PEARIE.

A LITTLE SLOW.

Who! What is a little slow? Why, contributions in aid of Graceland.

Notwithstanding the College is not now in session, nevertheless we have constant and daily expense, and there needs to be some repairs in preparation for the opening of the next term, which will soon roll around; and notwithstanding we did our level best last year, we run behind to a small amount; the aid supplied was not sufficient to meet the expense. Now, dear Saints, do not slight the counsel and advice of God, but manfully and faithfully meet this necessity, that you shall be the more completely prepared to meet the greater demands of the future.

Do not fail to take up your responsibility in the hope that some rich gentile will disgorge of his "mammon of unrighteousness," for if they do, surely theirs will be the reward, and the voice of old time revelation was, "Let no man take your crown." So be up and doing that you may possess your soul in peace. Do not put off that which you can accomplish, for procrastination robs many of the blessings they might enjoy.

This financial aid for the running expense is a necessity and we need it now! Shall we ask in vain? I have faith that we will not be disappointed. Do not hesitate because of the smallness of your offering, for God takes note of the sparrow that falls to the ground. We await your coming!

For Graceland,

ROBT. M. ELVIN.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

A COMPREHENSIVE FAITH.

Sermon delivered by Elder Frank M. Shochy, at Independence, Missouri, Sunday, March 11, 1900.

I will read the 16th verse of the last chapter of Mark:

He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved. He that believeth not shall be damned.

This text has probably, as much as any other one, done service in the past for much of the religious belief that has caused a great deal of our skepticism and infidelity. There comes to my mind now an instance of my own experience, where I had to meet such sentiment as is drawn from this language. I presume it will be admitted that all language is more or less ambiguous; that it never has been a perfect vehicle of thought. We have to make allowances always when language is used, for "the thing intended is the thing said."

A short time ago—last winter—in crossing the ferry from Oakland to San Francisco, a gentleman talked with me about the christian religion. He had attended the last night of our discussion with Elder Miles Grant, and was somewhat favorably impressed with what appeared to him and undoubtedly is to us the broad and magnanimous view we hold of the question of man's destiny, his punishment and ultimate condition. In the short time we were allotted that night to bring it out, it attracted this gentleman's attention, and so he sought to interview me. He had traveled from Europe to this country, and across the continent; was a man of medical research, and wondered why men could believe in the Christian religion, as there were to him some phases of christianity that were very harsh indeed. I sought to relieve his mind by saying that I thought he did not have the right conception of the question. He says, "Elder, doesn't the Bible say, 'He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned?'" He says, "I cannot believe; I cannot believe the religion as it is represented in christianity today, and I think it very harsh that I shall be damned because I cannot believe." So I went on to explain that there were certain qualifications and modifications necessary in regard to that very text. It should not be separated from its context; and to take any particular passage from a book of its size, that treats on the wonderful relation of man to God, and man to his fellow-man, and give it a private interpretation, would be unfair.

Let me explain it to you, and see if it will not appear more clearly than it does now. In the first place, we have this implied: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Modify as follows, "How can they believe on Him of whom they have not heard, and how can they hear without a preacher, and how can he preach except he be sent?"

So you see there are other passages to be brought in here in order to clarify the atmosphere surrounding this one, which atmosphere has been raised by man's wrong conception of what it contains. The text itself is not to blame for these impressions, but these traditions and existing gross superstitions that have arisen around it cover it, so that we do not see it really as it is.

There is embodied in that text very much; there are there two principles that are axiomatic, fundamental, indispensable. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." That is the positive phase of this question. There comes out also, in a negative way here, "He that believeth not shall be damned." He that believeth what? "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature;" meaning good news, glad tidings, God's righteousness revealed in the gospel. He that heareth that gospel and believeth it, and follows up its trend, attains to its legitimate results, shall be saved.

Salvation has often been defined from that text to simply be a condition somewhere outside of punishment. The ordinary way of putting that in the world has been, "If you believe the gospel, you shall be saved." Salvation with them means a keeping out of hell, that is all. It is not a question of where you will be, but only keep out of hell, and you will be saved. It is a form of salvation often expressed in the childish hymn:

"I want to be an angel,
And with the angels stand,
A crown upon my forehead,
A harp within my hand."

There is a great deal more depth to that text. We have here what may be called the metaphysical or psychical phase in "He that believeth." A matter of belief, of faith, a mental operation; and in "is baptized" a matter of obedience in an outward form, physical operation, both ways used by our heavenly Father to instruct us. God has created us in such a way that He communicates to us both physically (objectively), and psychically (subjectively). All this vast world that surrounds us on every hand has certain indications and ministrations of the Almighty towards men. It is said that we through our senses are in touch with physical surroundings, and we learn much. We may read of God in nature, as far as nature's book will teach us, and on every hand we can see God when we see aright. And I do think—it may not be new to some of you, it may be to others—that the proper comprehension of God must be attained by a right comprehension of our immediate surroundings. We want to be able to learn God in nature properly, and as we learn Him in this sense, and become acquainted with these conditions that are akin to us, and also akin to Him, through the senses, through nature, the physical, the outward, we can learn of our heavenly Father, this way, certainly. We must recognize these conditions because He has ordained them.

They lead us to the higher. I believe this will stand your fair criticism.

To me, it has entered into the realm of fact. After my mind was enlightened by the birth of the law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus, and my faculties were aroused, as the great prophet Alma said concerning a matter of this kind, "Arouse your faculties, it beginneth to enlarge my soul, yet it beginneth to enlarge my understanding," and when the mind was quickened, or the faculties aroused, I there began to see that:

"The very flower beside the path,
A sweeter, brighter beauty hath,
And all is fair, and all is bright,
And all is well when we do right."

To me, then, this understanding of God through this immediate medium, and to recognize the ministry of the physical in life, is a beautiful thing. When we learn how to adjust ourselves to the now, we will be ready for any emergency that arises, and whatever the future has in store for us, occupying the present is always sure ground to work upon.

So in the gospel, we are also brought into relationship with God physically; at least it is my experience. You will also discover the fact that under the experience of inspiration, we first began to recognize the things that are here in the "now" in their true relationship. How can a man love the God he has never seen; and how is it possible for him to truly love God until he first learns to exercise love toward man, his brother, whom he does see? Isn't it true that the new life or quickening in the soul began to express itself in that way, that we love men, our fellow-man? We begin to learn to love him in ways that we never thought of before. This opens up to us all the great creatures of God, the book of life on every hand, and we begin to read our heavenly Father in all of His ministrations; read Him everywhere, so that our eyes shall be single to His glory, and whatever we behold, or do when in this mood, we are in harmony with, we are in touch with God, we walk and talk with Him.

The mind reverts back at once to Enoch, of whom it is said, "He walked and talked with God." Is it true that Enoch jumped at once from this mundane condition of things to the higher, by some plan unknown to us, that he walked and talked with God? Enoch walked and talked with God just exactly as men walk, talk and commune with Him now. If men ever communed with their Creator, they commune with Him now, or may do it now—and the way they did in any age past, is the way they will do it now. That is fundamental; God's course is one eternal round, without a variability or a "shadow of turning." "I am God, I change not." These passages go to show that God is unchangeable, which is one of the peculiar arguments used by the Latter Day Saints from the beginning. The people should not require such argument, but they did, they do now. Man's awfully perverted vision of things makes him contort the simplest things of life, and if there is anything that would prove man's degeneracy, fallen or low estate, it is, the fact, stupendous on every hand, that man does not adjust himself properly to the most ordinary phases of life that surround him. He is out of harmony, he is not in response to his environment in the most simple way, strictly speaking, because he views it from the carnal standpoint; and whenever he views it from the carnal standpoint, he misconceives it. For "to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."

What is life? Response to environment. A proper adjustment and application to our surroundings, obtaining from our very existence and experiences all there is to be obtained and rightly appropriated, and getting the results and the benefit from them in the sense that the Apostle Paul expressed when he said, "All things work together for good to those," now notice "All things"—not one thing, all things, every circumstance of life, every experience that we undergo—"All things work together," not separately, not singly, but all work together. If a circumstance works here for good, and another one there for evil, you experience what is called a grasshopper process. That is not the genuine. "All things work together for good to those that love God and keep his commandments." This is life indeed. This is real, and outside of it is not life indeed. What is it? Death. To be carnally minded is death.

Now go back for a moment; away back in the early history of the race, we read of a circumstance, concerning a man who was pure; a man who could see things as they were intended, as God sees them, that man being our common ancestor, Adam; there was no harm in anything, no evil around him that he discerned. There is nothing wrong or evil "per se" in any of God's creations. When God made man in the beginning, man was not impure; but somehow or other, an experience came to this Adam, and he at once began to see evil, he began to discern himself naked. Now what is the trouble with the naked Adam and Eve? Anything wrong in what God made? Any evil in the creation of the Almighty? Not in the sight of God. Not from the standpoint of purity; but this carnal mind operates, transgression of law; this man became carnal minded and he saw things from that standpoint, and you know that you, Saint, who has been in touch with God, that when under the inspiration of His Holy Spirit "to the pure all things are pure." It is this carnal mind of man that brings the trouble. That of itself is death, because it does not see things as they are. A dead man does not see anything, strictly speaking, a man dead in trespasses and sins doesn't see things really, as God intended them, for they are hidden from him. It is only as man is qualified in the regenerated state of spiritual life he sees beauty on every hand. He reads his Father everywhere:

Back to the thought, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." I said to this man, the gospel—our way of putting it—provides that every man in order to believe the gospel must hear it; and what I mean by hearing it is, that it must be sent to him and explained to him within the capacity of his understanding, his mental grasp, so that he shall be convinced of its nature, origin, godliness, and after he has heard, and refuses it, then he loses; he is damned up or cut off from his privileges; this is the modified way of putting it. Before any man can believe he must hear; but before a man hears the gospel, somebody must preach it to him, and this falls right back to where it belongs, the responsibility of it rests with God and His duly authorized representatives. So Jesus says, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." All power is given to Him in heaven and on earth. Go therefore into all the world. Go out and preach to them the gospel, the glad tidings of heaven, the good news from God, that they may now approach Him, enter the holy of holies, receive from Him all that He has in store for them.

There are times when this opportunity is not given. Just think of it a moment. There are times in the history of the world, there are times in the history of society as such, when society has not had the opportunity to hear the glad tidings of the gospel; for instance, my very text, and the circumstances surrounding it indicates that the world, outside that particular place there in Jerusalem, did not, for it was confined there at that time. The opportunity was only offered to those immediate disciples and where they reached, which proves my point, does it not?

Paul says, "When it pleased God"—it never pleased God before that time.—When it pleased God to reveal His Son in Him, "Then immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood, neither went I up into Jerusalem to those that were apostles before me." These are the characteristics that mean success in the life of every man. When the time comes that it pleases God to reveal himself to an individual, he must take Paul, or follow the same principle that Paul did, in order to make a success. "Immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood, neither went I up unto Jerusalem to them that were apostles before me;" but he moved on in the line of conviction and true manhood, following the direction of his own judgment rather than to submit to another as to what they may think; follow his own convictions, the only true line of success. The poet has beautifully put it in the words or sentiment that I give, although not the words. "Be true to thyself and then thou wilt be true to every man." Individualize as much as we can, and if we only do this, we are doing the best we can.

In our lives there are times when it does not please God to reveal Himself to us. Up to such a time we are comparatively safe. There is not a particle of danger, for the justice that we can conceive of in our Heavenly Father, and the mercy and the love which moveth Him, will ever condemn us for rejecting something we never had an opportunity to receive. Not a particle of danger, so far as the ultimate of this matter is concerned, for any son or daughter of Adam, until such time as he has had fair opportunity, under as favorable circumstances as the best ever have had since the world began, or ever will have in the world to come. We cannot put this matter too strongly. The circumstances, the conditions, the surroundings must be just as fair for us, and as favorable, as it ever was to any man that ever lived. Justice demands it.

Now when the time comes that conviction dawns upon us as a result of God's process, we then become responsible. Here we have it brought out. "He that believeth." There is a phase of this subject that I am not able to analyze satisfactorily to my own mind, and I do not think I could reach your minds. It is this: to what extent a man is responsible for the condition he is in where he keeps away from the gospel, where he ignores opportunities for hearing it, and all of that; I do not really know, I would have to go back into heredity, to pre-natal conditions, into so many subtle influences in the past, that I cannot get the matter clear. It is a mystery to me today, unless I want to take in the idea that sometimes is taught, whether it is true or not, I shall not state now, that there was a foreordination in this matter and that I was a spirit, in a pre-existent state, and by a certain line of conduct there, I fitted myself to receive certain things here. These matters are a little too fine for me to consider just now. I cannot explain them satisfactorily, so simply meet the fact as it exists in my life.

I do not know why it was that God the Father of light and life ever sent me the gospel, and put it in such a way, and circumstanced me so that I could see and appreciate it, or that I was pleased to obey it. My head instinctively bows with holy reverence; my soul expands with thankfulness and gratitude; and could you, by any process whatever, get into my mental quarters, you would see a glowing there under a sense of gratitude to Almighty God, for the conditions of which I now speak; for ever sending me the gospel, and blessing me so that I received it and have rejoiced in it ever since; and tonight I think I am engaged in the highest vocation that a mortal can be engaged in. I know of nothing so noble, nothing so magnanimous, grand or sublime, as the position of a man, talking to his fellow man upon the great question of eternal life; ended as we presumably are, with the right to talk upon that question, and pleading with my fellows, reasoning with, and moving man on this wonderfully high plane of reaching his judgment his better sense, and moving him upon that high plane towards service to God, the best for him, the best for his neighbor, the superlative good in every sense. Nothing grander; nothing.

But yet it is to me somewhat of a mystery, as I have already stated, if you will excuse the indulgence in this personal reference. I was looking for pleasure, a young man full of life and vitality, looking for the fun and pleasure of this world. I was not hunting through this world of religious affairs to find out what was written upon religious matter. I was satisfied that I would be all right, whenever I got ready to be religious. That is all that bothered me. I did not want to be religious, until I was obliged to; only I thought it was the right thing to be religious, to keep out of hell. I did not care where I landed other than that. But in the great providence of things the gospel came into my life, and now I believe, and I cannot help that belief, but what God is just. I cannot look at Him in any other sense; and as I have become acquainted with Him through years of talking with Him directly and indirectly, in every expression of humanity wherever I can, and see Him here and there objectively and subjectively, I cannot for one moment think but what He will do just as well for the rest of my fellow-men as He did for me. In my soul is begotten, though gospel influences, a disposition to be just to my fellow-man, and I know what I would do for you; I know what I am willing to do for you, and I know that God will not do less for mankind, than a mortal man feels to do. Such is our comprehension of our Heavenly Father. So there will come a time, my friends, in your life, some time or other, when you will meet this issue, when conviction will come to you in God's own way.

Now he that believeth and is baptized. Here comes another phase of this matter. Belief is a matter that we cannot regulate voluntarily. A man does not believe what he pleases to believe. When you come to this department of the subject, we believe from the force of evidence; and when the evidence forces belief, we have to believe, and we cannot help ourselves. There may be a responsibility that the great prophet Alma speaks of where he says, that you must have the "desire to believe," that somehow or other, there is begotten in the soul of every man a "desire," "For hope springs eternal in the human breast." Whenever we find a man in a normal condition this hope is springing up, we believe, from the force of evidence. Truth has never asked anything but a hearing.

The great teacher, The Christ, only asked, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." That is what they did not do towards Him, and that is why He could go no farther than He did, when He sat upon the Mount of Olives and said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how oft would I have gathered thee as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, but ye would not." It is said of one of the early fathers, that no man ever investigated the claims of Christianity without believing them. I think so much of the skepticism of today exists because people do not investigate Christianity—they investigate "Churchianity" and other "anities," but they do not investigate Christianity. If a man will investigate the genuine claims and evidences, he would believe it just as easily as you could imagine. All then that truth asks, is to be heard, for it knows, or the Author of it knows, that when a man will stop and listen, when he will begin to think, when he centers his mind upon it, the evidence is at hand, and belief is the result.

"He that believeth"—is a mental process, the subjective condition, brought out, in this and it is a necessity. No matter what a man does in this world that comes into action, these two phases are necessary, the subjective and the objective. "He that believeth," the mental is expressed there, the underlying principle of action, and then the outward, the overt is expressed in, "and is baptized." No intelligent Latter Day Saint, no man who thinks upon this question for a moment, will say that anybody, by the simple act of baptism, is saved; you know better than that, if you investigate this question at all. It is not the belief of this people, that the simple act of itself is salvation.

But what then, is involved? A principle, viz: obedience. In baptism we have an act of obedience; we have a covenant, a contract, we have a symbolism, beautiful indeed, but expressing a subtle thought, an idea. He then that "believeth," or he that hears the gospel, and then puts that belief into practice by an obedience to it, that man is saved. The principle of obedience is involved, as a perpetuity, as a necessity to continue. For instance, if you are baptized, you must continue to believe what is taught you, only now you are under the instruction directly of the Holy Spirit, and that anointing, it teaches you and it is truth and you need not that any man shall teach you, for the anointing that you receive, it teacheth you, and it is the truth. In this teaching and instruction, is the same process exactly. Faith comes by hearing; a thought may be expressed and communicated to our mind by the process of the Holy Spirit. Faith is engendered. Belief comes as a result of that condition—then this other phase of it. He that attains unto the belief by these necessary conditions, and then obeys the belief, that man is saved. Now stop at baptism and are you saved think you? Baptism means the beginning, not the end. It is the very starting point, so that he that is baptized must continue his faithfulness, he must continue that life; being instructed properly by God's great process of the gospel, the Holy Spirit teaching him light and truth, and then he obeys that truth, then he hears another, then he hears another, then he hears another, etc., as it is written, from "faith to faith."

The apostle says: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth. For therein is the righteousness of God revealed from faith to faith." It is faith upon this point, then upon that. In the 16th chapter of Alma we have this thought brought out, oh, so beautifully; I would like to be able to go through with it, but I cannot. "Now"—said this prophet (he has done my soul so much good)—"Now behold, because ye have tried the experiment and planted the seed, and it swelleth and sprouteth and beginneth to grow, ye must needs know that the seed is good. And now, behold, is your knowledge perfect?" You have obeyed one step. Is your knowledge perfect? The man believes, repents and is baptized. Is he perfected? Not by any means. "Ye are your knowledge is perfect in that thing, and your faith is dormant." In no step you may take in this process of development can you have any more knowledge, anything more than you have had as far as you have gone in spiritual life in the gospel. No, as far as we have gone, we have been perfected just that distance. "And your faith is dormant, and this because you know; for ye know that the word hath swelled your souls, and ye also know that it hath sprouted up, that your understanding doth begin to be enlightened and your mind doth begin to expand." This expansion of the mind, this opening up of the faculties, this arousing the understanding, the quickening process is brought about; the mind is enlightened and it swells your souls and you also know that your mind doth begin to expand. "Oh, then is not this real?" Oh, you Latter Day Saint, are you waiting for testimony of the work? Are you waiting for something to come to you that you have heard others tell about, some sort of testimony or witness other than this spoken of by Alma? Oh, that has really become obsolete, let us get out of it. Every defunct phase of Mormonism has this to it. I have heard men testify that Joseph Smith was the leader, and I have heard the same men, having left this church, testify that Brigham was. Now, he knows he has a witness that Brigham Young was a prophet, and all that. Absurd. It is a misconception of what is in our religion and the real truth in the matter.

"Oh, then is not this real?" What real? Is it some undefined physical state of mind to which we are susceptible, that a person is wrought upon sometimes by emotions, sometimes by other forces that operate so much? Are we waiting for that? They feel a good deal like the man told me who said he knew he was saved. The same evidence that convinces him, was the same that influences the Chinaman who believed the spirit of his ancestor was in the dog, and so on.

"Oh, then, is not this real?" What is real? That your knowledge is perfect in this matter by your obedience, and that the spiritual process engendered in your soul and that your faith is dormant and knowledge is extant, and your soul is swelled and you sprout up and all the moral understandings have been enlightened and your mind doth begin to expand because it is light. God is light; in Him is no darkness at all. The soul in touch with God is light; it expands, it grows.

"I say unto you yea, because it is light." That is the reason it is real. It bears criticism and analysis, like everything genuine; the more you examine it and the more you handle it, the more real it appears; and that is so of religion if it is true: the more you compare it with everything else, the more the genuine appears. That which is defective, the more you look at it, the more defective it appears; and when truth is real, genuine, the more you look at it the better it is.

"I say unto you, because it is light; and whatsoever is light is good because it is discernible, therefore ye must know that it is good." It is discernible. What it discerned? Light from darkness, right from wrong. Is that the Spirit of God really? The spirit of truth that should lead and guide you into all truth. Then it is your instructor, your guide, it leads you, and when you have this leading, you have a testimony of the gospel. That is a living testimony, never dying, a well of water springing up into everlasting life continually. It depends upon the conditions of course, of a holy and pure life.

"And now behold, after you have tested this light, is your knowledge perfect? Behold I say unto you nay; neither must ye lay aside your faith, for ye have only exercised your faith to plant the seed, that ye might try the experiment to know if the seed was good. And behold as the tree beginneth to grow, ye will say, let us nourish it with great care." I met a man the other day in California who was once a Latter Day Saint. He had great blessings in what he called the old organization; he was never tired of telling what he used to enjoy twelve years ago, living and thriving on something that was dead and gone. You cannot do that—impossible.

I remember a few years ago of listening to the great Hutchinson Brothers sing in Tremont Temple, Boston, an old melody; a negro prayer meeting was described by these vocalists, and this was the title of the hymn, "Which way am your gun p'nted today?" That is the point. We do not want to depend upon what was in the past. We want to have it now. Therefore this language is applicable. "Neither must ye lay aside your faith, for ye have only exercised your faith to plant the seed, etc., and as the tree beginneth to grow you will say, let us nourish it with great care." It means work. A person cannot make a success of religion without working it out. "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." "The double-minded man is unstable in all his ways." For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed. "Let not that man think he shall receive anything of the Lord. That man will not make a success in this church, never.

"Let us nourish it with great care that it may get root, that it may grow up and bring forth fruit unto us. And now behold, if you nourish it with much care, it will get root." I have seen Saints who started out right, but they did not nourish the seed any and of course it died out. Two laws are in operation; one of growth and development by the use of any power or faculty; the other by not using a power or faculty, extermination or death. Spiritually we are growing or dying. "If ye nourish the tree, it will get root and grow up and bring forth fruit. But if ye neglect the tree and take no thought for its nourishment, behold it will not get any root, and when the sun cometh and scorseth it, because it hath no root, it withers away and ye pluck it up and cast it out."

It is not because the seed was not good, neither is it because the fruit thereof was not desirable. But it was because your ground was barren and ye will not nourish the tree; therefore ye cannot have the fruit thereof. And thus if ye will not nourish the word, looking forward with eye of faith to the fruit thereof ye can never pluck of the fruit of the tree of life. But if ye will nourish the word, ye, nourish the tree as it beginneth to grow—by your faith with great diligence and with patience, looking forward to the fruit thereof, it shall take root.

"He that believeth." You observe then the mental process. He that hears and believes whether it is the word heard by the prophet, whether it is the instruction of the Spirit given Him of God, it is the same. He that obeys is expressed in the term, "and is baptized," the outward, the objective, he that is obedient and nourishes and works will make a success.

So our belief is, "He that believeth and is baptized" in the sense of continuing and living his religion, keeping up the conditions implied in baptism, following out this beautiful symbolism or covenant with God. There is in it the new life, the old man laid aside, the remission of sins, everything of the evil gone, the new engendered. If he continues in it, it is life and peace. The opposite is carnality and death. To be spiritually minded is life; to be born into the Spirit is life; to continue therein is the unfolding of that Spirit, that life, and so these principles are fundamental, faith and obedience.

After they believe, keeping under the conditions of that, then the outward act, by continuing to obey in the great school of life, onward and onward until we have attained unto the end of what God has for us. "It doth not yet appear what we shall be," but the little conception given to us by the revelations of the Spirit offers a most enticing picture in the New Jerusalem where there is no sorrow, no death, no crying, the former things passed away and all things made new; man in direct touch with God. The mother earth is rolled away on her wings, she has accomplished her work, and now she is celestialized. Man is celestialized, he is with God, and God, man, and earth are one.

The great hope of the gospel is the hereafter, on a plane with our heavenly Father, where knowledge is power, where justice, mercy, and love, the Divine attributes, have been produced in the creature man. He is no longer carnal man. He will never be all divine, he will be the beautiful compound of the human and divine when celestialized; and that word expresses a volume. You cannot get any dictionary, any lexicographer to go into the depths of meaning that that word "celestial" means, only that it is a condition. "It has never yet been seen by mortal man, and I believe it will be true to state that the angels never saw it, they want to look into it. The great God has introduced it as His marvelous purpose. I believe I will be right in saying it has never been seen in the heavens; this glorifying of the human, will produce another realization, which will be a celestial glory.

"May God grant us strength and courage to continue therein to that end, is my wish and desire.

JOTS BY THE WAYSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

Dear Ensign—We are camped on the banks of the raging "Porcupine," in northern Wisconsin, holding a series of meetings in the Saints' chapel, a very neat and commodious edifice, a standing monument to the vim and energy of the Saints here.

Yesterday we were called to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Fremont McNeal, of "Ono," who departed this life on the 8th of June, 1901. The M. E. brethren (?) would not permit the use of their church for the funeral, which has caused a division in their ranks, and we are assured that the harm which was intended for Saints will prove a "Boomerang." The Saints took it kindly under the wise leadership of Bro. Wm. Hutchinson, who then arranged for the service in an upper room over a shop, which would seat nicely some two hundred or more persons; not nearly all could find even "standing room. Many of the M. E.'s were there for the purpose, no doubt, to hear the preacher's criticism upon their unkind action to one of their neighbors; but in this they were disappointed, as the preacher did not refer to it directly or indirectly.

We find in Bro. Robinson a fine companion, kind and loving in his address; we are well suited to travel together, the writer can do the rasping, and our brother pours on the oil. We will try the tent work in Madison, the capital, soon.

This part of the state is quite unlike the southern part, in the fact that it is a high rolling country similar to western Iowa, with a rich, dark, loamy soil, and clay subsoil, a very fine agricultural country, with the richest of grasses, fine corn, wheat, oats and barley. The whole country is heavily timbered, and of course saw mills galore.

We mentioned John Alexander Dowie in our last; the following is his sermon in part: "I am Elijah the Prophet who appeared first as Elijah himself, second as John the Baptist, and who now comes in me the restorer of all things. Elijah was a prophet, John was a preacher, but I combine in myself the attributes of prophet, priest and ruler over men. Gaze on me then: I say it fearlessly. Make the most of it you wretches in ecclesiastical garb. I am he prophesied of by Malachi. All who believe me to be in very truth all of this, will stand up." Three thousand people rose and greeted him with cheers. "I will take no counsel in my methods of government, nor will I ever rest till all other forms of government are driven from the earth; God must be placed foremost in the constitution. The government of the people by the people and for the people is mere twaddle. Listen to the first message from heaven through your prophet, pay your tithes and offerings into the Lord's storehouse or you will be damned." Dowie then in a frenzied manner cursed the pope, editors, bankers and every thing not connected with his Zion; and tore up and down the platform like a madman.

Now that John Alexander Dowie has proclaimed himself the prophet Elijah, seer and revelator and the "Restorer" of the latter days, it's to be hoped he will not finally proclaim himself to be the whole trinity.

The tracks of Brn. A. H. Smith, Pender, Peterson, McDowell, Curtis, Hilliard, Lake and others, last but not least, I. N. Roberts, are very visible; all are favorably spoken of. Weather hot and still heating, 95 in the shade.

Killing Ground Moles.

Ground moles, aside from the damage they do to growing plants by lifting them or disturbing their roots, are rather a friend than an enemy. They are insectivorous and it is in searching out grubs and cut-worms that they make tunnels. These tunnels are merely traps into which the worms fall and are picked up by the mole in his rounds. Persistent tramping in of his runs will drive him to parts of the garden or lawn where he will do no harm. However, if he must be killed, it can be easily done. Open his tunnel, saturate some waste with bisulphide of carbon, put it into the hole and cover it with dirt. The fumes will permeate the whole system of tunnels, and kill all animal life there. Don't poison grain; he won't eat it.—J. L. Irwin in the Farm and Fireside, July 1, 1901.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Editor's Address, Independence, Mo.

We read in holy writ how God formed man and women, and told them to multiply and replenish the earth. We also read that he formed man in His own image, not the physical man only but the spiritual or inner man too; and since through women man fell, is it not our duty, in so far as in our power lies, to redeem mankind from his fallen condition? I wonder how many of us realize the power within us to bring about the redemption.

Our elders are sent out with the everlasting gospel to preach to fallen mankind, and sometimes it seems hard, notwithstanding they listen, and some say "I believe," to get them to embrace that gospel; even our own loved ones whom we desire most of all to see within the fold, will not obey. Who is at fault? Mothers let us examine ourselves, and see if we are. Since "like begets like" on every plane of existence, then why are our children without the fold? Did we; when we found that a little one would soon come to us, consider it a blessing that to us God had entrusted a soul to clothe with mortality, its spirit or soul a part of the great Being who gave it to us? Do we even think that perhaps those pure souls will be required of us? They were made in His image, and to His image all must return, for we are told in the Holy Scriptures we must all come to the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ. Then mothers, did you, upon learning that another one was to be added to your home, say within yourself, "here is another soul to be saved if it lives to the years of accountability," and, with your husband, strive by pre-natal influence to so mould its character that to know and do good, would be its sole ambition? For its sake you should keep your mind on the gospel theme, as much as possible read good books, and thus form with your own right living, a pure mind and heart within your child, thus assisting future generations so that they will not have the struggle with self that we of the present generation have.

The Bible informs us that in the case of Christ himself, when his mother questioned the announcement of the angel that she should bring forth a son, and he shall be great, and shall be called the son of the highest, she was assured that "the Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the highest shall overshadow thee, therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God. This has indeed been generally regarded as an exceptional experience in the history of humanity, and one never to be repeated; but was it really and wholly such? Why should not every mother feel the uplifting and purifying presence of the Divine Spirit, and be overshadowed by the power of the Highest in preparing herself for, and in discharging this most sacred of functions? Most surely it may be so, if she earnestly aspires to it, and why, then, as a result in accordance with the law of physical impression. Should not every child be born a holy one, and worthy to be called a son or daughter of the Highest? verily this might be so, were the human instruments reverently to yield themselves to the will of the Most High, that His will, instead of the will of the flesh, may be done in and through them.

In this work of pre-natal culture, it scarcely need be said that the father should take an equal interest with the mother, for he is equally concerned in the object in view, the production of pure and noble offspring. He can lend his sympathy and encouragement at every step, guarding his companion against all untoward conditions and influences, as much as possible, thus helping to secure such a result as will be a mutual joy forever; a man or woman whom the Maker, God, shall look upon as He did on His first, and say, "it is very good."

The Weaver.

Wife means weaver, 'tis said,
And when hearts truly wed
There is knitting of soul unto soul.
Life itself is the thread,
From the heart's spool of red
Which will not our own doth unroll.
Through the warp of heart cords
Shuts the woof of sweet words,
And the shuttle that weaves them is love.
Fairer robes this affords
Than have Princes and Lords:
Less only than angels above.
Through the changes of life
Stands the weaver, the wife,
By the side of the love-driven loom;
Keeping out knots of strife,
While the bright threads are rife,
And she weaveth the beauty of home.

PASTORAL.

To the Saints in the Dominion of Canada, Greeting:—Having been appointed in charge of the mission for this conference year, I again address you briefly. The work being before us, calls loudly for a united effort on the part of every member of the church in this vast field. No one looking over the immense success that has crowned our labors in the past year, can fail to discern the hand of the Master, directing, controlling, sustaining, and giving prestige and victory to our common cause—His great Latter Day message. Up then, dear co-laborers, till by voice, pen, and by practical illustrations of the Christ-life in our life-work, we preach the gospel to the people scattered over this great Dominion.

I congratulate the missionary force and local ministry on the splendid work accomplished in new fields and old branches, and trust that the Divine favor of the past will stimulate you to prompt and careful action in the future. The church authorities heard our call for help and have given us more laborers for the field already white to harvest. This will no doubt result in a great increase numerically, but I would impress this fact, that the increase of missionaries means a greater demand upon the financial department. I trust that every member of the church in this great mission will remember their duty and pay into the storehouse that the work be not hindered by our refusal to keep or neglect to comply with the law of the Lord.

After prayerful consideration we have decided to request the missionaries to labor in the following fields: Elder R. C. Longhurst, High Priest and president of the London district will labor in the London district, Elder George Green, High Priest and president of the Chatham district will labor in Chatham district; Elder A. Leverton, High Priest, will labor in Chatham district; Elder A. C. Barmore, seventy, and Priest A. Knisley will conduct tent-work in Chatham district; Elder T. A. Phillips will labor in Chatham district; Elder A. E. Mortimer, High Priest, Elder Walter Bennett and Joseph Blackmore will labor in Niagara Falls district; Elder John Shields, seventy, J. L. Mortimer and R. C. Russell will labor in Sauble Falls district. Elders Samuel Tomlinson and George C. Tomlinson will labor in the Manitoulin Island district; Elder B. St. John, seventy, and Elder Geo. H. Henley will labor in the Cameron district. Elder R. B. Howlett, seventy, will labor in Toronto district; Elder Frederick Gregory, seventy, will labor in Manitoba district; Elder Daniel MacGregor, seventy, and Priest Alex. McMullen will labor in British Columbia district.

The brethren will remember the district lines as defined, and please labor accordingly; also do not fail to promptly report, as per former instruction, the first day of July, October, January and March.

Dear brethren, let us be frugal, diligent and prudent. Remember our mission is to seek the lost, encourage the disconsolate, help the feeble, recall the scattered, and in our holy mission, reflect Christ in us to the hope of glory. May sweet peace be with you all.

Your collaborator,

R. C. EVANS.

To the Saints in Beaver County, Oklahoma:—Having been sent to labor in your territory I am here ready for work, but as yet I have been unfortunate in finding only one family of Saints. I have been preaching at Nye for the last few weeks and have had reasonably good interest. But I leave tomorrow (June 20) to find new fields of labor.

I would be pleased if any Saints who live near here would write me at my present address at Nye, Oklahoma, for I am looking for new fields to labor. Praying for the advancement of the cause, I am your brother, Convention Minutes.

Convention convened at Higbee, Missouri, June 7, 1901, at 10:15 a. m. Sr. Mary Rudkin, superintendent in the chair. As secretary was absent Bro. Geo. A. Tryon was chosen secretary pro tem.

Reports were read from Bevier, Higbee, Pollock, and Salt River schools. Superintendents' reports read from David L. Morgan and Robert Thurtchley.

Treasurer's audited report: Balance last report $9.57, receipts $5.11, expenditures $1.64, balance June 6, 1901, $13.04.

Librarian's report was read and adopted.

A motion prevailed that we consider the action of the last convention, in regard to "all active Sunday school workers in the district who may not be members of local schools, being considered ex-officio members of the conventions" as illegal, and not binding on the district.

A question was asked, "Has a superintendent and secretary of a local school the right to appoint delegates to district conventions, without the consent of the school over which they preside."

Answer was:—When a superintendent has called a meeting and no one comes, then superintendent and secretary have the right to do so, but without call of superintendent, have not.

A paper was read by Bro. Geo. A. Tryon, subject, "Onward and Upward," followed by a talk from Bro. Walter W. Smith on the "Religio as an auxiliary to church work."

Bro. Earl Cortbell also gave a talk on "Sunday School Work." All were listened to with interest and were very instructive. At 7:30 p. m. a literary entertainment was given to a large and interested audience.

Sunday morning 9:30 Sunday school in charge of District Superintendent. Convention adjourned to meet at Bevier, Missouri, October 4, 1901.

MARY RUDKIN, Supt.

Geo. A. TRYON, Sec. pro tem.

The Sunday school convention of the Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan District met at Clear Lake, Indiana, June 14, 1901, with Bro. W. E. Peak in chair, Bro. O. H. Story secretary pro tem. Sr. Royce was sustained as superintendent, Sr. Jessie Corless was elected assistant superintendent. Bro. Floyd Smith was elected secretary. Bro. J. Shook was sustained as treasurer.

2:00 p. m. Report read. Lesson taught by Bro. G. A. Smith.

The subject of international texts was discussed by Bro. Corless, Sr. Ella Davis, Bro. Stroth and Bro. E. H. Durand.

The Shepherd's care of the lambs of the flock by Sr. A. E. Corless; she relates a vision; a song by the Spirit and spake in tongues and also the interpretation given especially to the young.

Bro. Lake related an experience with regard to Bro. Griffith's child. Adjourned.

FLOYD SMITH, Sec.

NOTICES.

Dear Brethren of the Northern Michigan District:—Having received notice from the Bishop to solicit aid from the members of the district for the purpose of paying off the debt now standing against the College at Lamoni, Iowa, but being about to enter into a discussion at Shabbona, Michigan, I take this method of asking the president of every branch that at your first regular meeting will present the matter before your branch, asking that all do what they can in reason, for that purpose, sending the same to me at Reed City, Mich., by about the 15th of July, after which I will send the whole amount to the Bishop, stating the amount given by each branch, etc.

J. J. CORNISH.

To the Saints in Utah:—This is the first time that I have addressed the Saints in Utah upon the subject of tithing since my appointment as Bishop's agent. I do not know that it would be necessary to do so now were there not greater demands made upon the treasury this year than ever before. I suppose this is true of most, if not all, the districts in the church, as more missionaries were sent out by the last General Conference than by any other the Reorganization has ever held. The families of four missionaries are now depending upon us for support, instead of two, as formerly. This will require a little more sacrifice upon the part of us all and give each of us an opportunity to "Prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Send all remittances to the undersigned, and the Lord will bless you "as you bless others of the household of faith."

Your sister in Christ, Mrs. JANE I. COOPER, 1509 Washington Ave., Ogden, Utah.

To the Saints of the North-west, Kansas District:—We again appeal to you in behalf of the tent fund. The time for the reunion is rapidly approaching; we must have a tent for the reunion. All who have not responded, please do so by a liberal donation. Send money to me, box 261, Greenleaf, Kan.

DIED.

(One hundred words free. One cent for each word over 100, and for every word of poetry. Amount should be remitted with notice, to insure publication.)

SHIPPY.—At Arlington, Fayette county, Iowa, June 4, 1901, Charles Stuart Shippy, aged seventy years. Born in Kent county, Ontario, Canada, March 26, 1831. He united with the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, October 27, 1889, and was a faithful consistent member until the end. He was a veteran of the Civil war and was with General Sherman on his famous march to the sea. He leaves nine children, three brothers, and one sister to mourn their loss. Funeral sermon by Elder L. E. Hills, Fairbank, Iowa, June 6, 1901.

BRUNSON.—At Ashton, Ill., May 28, 1901, Marlon Hiel Brunson, aged 12 years, 8 months, 1 day, only son of Bro. and Sr. B. I. Brunson. He was born at Plano, Illinois, September 28, 1888. The funeral was held at the Shaw church, Rev. Simpson officiating. His death was sudden and was caused by a team of ponies running away with him. (He had ridden and driven them for a year and were thought perfectly gentle.) They were hitched to a wagon and after he got in, it is supposed he found the line fastened in the check hook and got out on the tongue to loosen it and the ponies became frightened, and before he could get into the wagon again ran into a tree, throwing him between the wheel and box. His mother and sister were the only witnesses, and his mother took him from his position and he expired in her arms. He leaves a father, mother, sister and a host of friends to mourn their loss. He was a good boy and was loved by all who knew him.

DODSON.—In Kingfisher County, Oklahoma, January 20, 1901, Joseph Alma, son of Bro. James M. and Sr. Gertrude Dodson. He lacked one day of being nine and a half years old. He was born in Frontier County, Nebraska, July 21, 1891; blessed by Brn. Carmichael and Plickerlog at Los Angeles, California.

DODSON.—In Kingfisher County, Oklahoma, January 21, 1901, Jesse Leroy Dodson; was 22 months old; was born March 21, 1899, in Frontier Co., Nebraska; blessed by Bro. D. L. Payne in Nebraska. These two little brothers were laid side by side, both at the same time, in Excelsior cemetery to await the first resurrection.

WEITLICH.—Near Clarkdale, Mo., June 10, 1901, Bro. Frederick Weitlich, aged 76 years, 5 months and 10 days. He had been ill for sometime; lost the use of his mind towards the last. Death was a welcome visitor to him and passed away without a struggle. He was baptized March 12, 1892. He leaves a wife and ten children to mourn. Funeral services from the home. Sermon by Elder T. T. Hinderker to a large gathering, after which he was laid to rest in the German cemetery.

PRIOR.—Near Gladstone, Ill., June 12, 1901, Sr. Elizabeth Prior. She was born in Aurora, Indiana, October 8, 1857; was married to Allen Prior September 7, 1878, and united with the church January 8, 1891. She lived and died in the faith loved by all and she will be missed by all who knew her. She leaves three sons and a husband to mourn their loss. Funeral June 13th, in charge of F. M. McDonald; sermon by Elder J. Arthur Davis.

THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks to the Saints of St. Louis for their kindness in purchasing a buggy for us. May the good Lord reward them.

"WELLS WITHOUT WATER"

What a cruel mockery to a thirsty man is a well without water; such a well is to be compared in its worthlessness only, perhaps, to salt without saltiness. There is still some benefit to be obtained from a fruitless tree, for the shade which its foliage affords is often grateful to the weary traveler, and in the end its wood may serve a useful purpose. But a well wherein there is no water is a disappointment, and a cumberance to the earth. The Apostle Peter applies this term (2 Pet. 2: 17) to a class of individuals who have forsaken the right way and have adopted that which leads to disappointment. In appearance they may present that which is alluring; the way which they pursue may be apparently a profitable and pleasant one; prosperity may, seemingly, await their call, and every way they turn, in a business sense, may be profitable. They may, while connected with the church of Jesus Christ, restrain themselves from acts, the commission of which would jeopardize their membership, yet at the same time they enter into many of the frivolities of the world, and expensive enjoyments of its pleasures so that it is hard at times to distinguish between them and the worldly minded, and to say just at that time which is the christian and which the "sinner."

In consequence of this condition of affairs some who are discouraged because of adversities surrounding them, and the trials of their faith, become dissatisfied with the course they have been pursuing, in holding on to the integrity of their faith, and striving to lead a consistent life, and, pointing to the other class, compare the life of sacrifice they make, to the license the other is taking, and draw from it the conclusion that their own course is unprofitable, because the other parties seem to get along a great deal better than they, with out making the sacrifices they have done. We believe this is an unwise conclusion, when it is remembered that we are all to be rewarded according to our works, and if we allow ourselves to be deceived into forsaking the narrow path of duty to our heavenly Father, on account of the worldly enjoyment and prosperity of others, we will find in the end that we have come to a "well without water," a well wherein is no life giving and nourishing fountain, and that our hope is a vain one. We find the Lord rebuking some of His people in former times, who took this view of things. He declared:

Your words have been stout against me, saith the Lord: yet ye say, What have we spoken so much against thee?

They seemed surprised that the Lord should call them to account for their rebellion—for such it was—against Him. They seemed to think they were justified in their conclusions, when they saw the conditions around them, and they seemed to have the idea that they were the aggrieved ones. But the Lord said, "Your words have been stout against me." They had expressed themselves strongly in their complaints, apparently not realizing the position in which such expression placed them in God's sight; and this is what the Lord declares of them:

Ye have said, It is vain to serve God; and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hosts? And now we call the proud happy; yea, they that tempt God are even delivered."—Mal. 3: 13-15.

How often, in our experience, have we heard some despairing, tried and tempted soul utter some similar complaint, because they were denied some of the blessings of this life, to which they, because of their faithfulness and integrity to God, deemed themselves entitled? And yet that is an awful mistake for any one to make, because, first, it is an untruth, and, therefore, is an ally of the devil; and second, it is a serious rebellion and grievous sin against the best friend we can possibly have. The devil is most anxious to have every child of God believe that it is useless to serve the Lord and try to do good. He successfully worked that scheme, to some extent, in the garden of Eden, with woefully disastrous and distressing consequences, which have borne its bitter fruit all through the ages, and will continue to do so, until the end of time, with the exception of the grand sabbatic era, the thousand years of millenium; why should we continue to repeat the folly of heeding such influences, though they appear over so an ting? The same fruit will inevitably follow. It is a wrong view to take, a wrong premise to occupy, to pursue a certain course, which we know to be a right one, simply and wholly on account of the benefit we are to derive from it. So selfish a principle and purpose is unworthy of the object sought. A right way should be taken simply because it is the only correct and proper thing to do; follow the right because it is right, with only the consciousness of doing that which we are in duty bound to do, and the reward at the end will not be found wanting either in character or sufficiency.

The term "wells without water" had a special significance to the Jews. Wells of living water were often given the name of the individual who first caused them to be digged, and he was honored as a benefactor of the race. When Jesus was conversing with the Samaritan woman at the well she indicated at first that the patriarch Jacob was, in her estimation, a greater man than Jesus, because he gave her people the well from which they drew their daily supplies, and indeed, in a hot country or climate a good supply of good water is especially needful, hence, wells without water in the country of which the apostle was a native, were truly worthless property, bringing no benefit to any one. So is it of individuals who only live for themselves, and for this life. They are profitable to no one; not even themselves; there is no real saving power in them—they are salt without savor—consequently are unprofitable, and those who follow their example simply because they seem to get along well both in the church and out of it, are vainly seeking life giving sustenance from "wells without water." They are deceiving themselves. There is always safety in doing right, and why any one should want to make experiments in any other direction, is, indeed, surprising, from a philosophical standpoint. When at one time the apostles asked the Savior what they should have for the sacrifices they had made and were continuing to make in His service, after assuring them of the character of the reward attaching to such service as they were giving, He replied:

And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundred-fold, and shall inherit everlasting life.—Matt. 19: 29.

This, of course, will be understood as having reference to those who voluntarily leave the comforts of home and the prospects of earthly wealth to work in the vineyard of the Lord, provision having been made for the support of those remaining at home. But the lesson he intended to convey was that every sacrifice, of whatever kind, made for His sake and the gospel's, should not fail to receive the recognition it merited. It is not only useless, therefore, but unwise, to have recourse to "wells without water" for comfort and sustenance when the "fountain of life" is so freely flowing, to which the invitation is, to come and partake freely. The Savior promised definitely, that to the faithful the Holy Spirit should be given as "a well of water springing up into everlasting life." (John 4: 14). To that source, then, should all apply for strength and life.

Every one who takes upon them the name of Christ should feel the responsibility—which really rests upon them—of exercising a saving influence, to be wells with water, or, as the Savior expressed it on one occasion, "the salt of the earth." It is a condition which every follower of Christ naturally assumes when faithful to their covenant, even though they should not have opportunity to speak of their hope to others, or to explain the beauty and grandeur of the gospel plan to them; their very life and example will impress those around them that there must be a force and power in their faith beyond the ordinary; and even this will, at times, influence the observer favorably towards the faith. A faithful child of God will not and cannot hide his light under a bushel, for a fervent, earnest, faithful service will bear good fruit always; and thus those who are exercised in this manner, become co-workers with God and saviors of men. How grand is such a privilege; it is indeed sad that any should be neglectful of their opportunities in this regard, or lightly esteem the power within them to do so much for the happiness and salvation of their fellows.

It is every individual's duty to do all the good possible in the world. No man or woman is of any value to the world only as they may benefit others besides themselves. No one is of any value whatever simply as an entity; neither this or any other world needs drones. We only make our lives valuable as we intelligently make use of the capabilities and talents within us to bring happiness and blessing to others, and there is no scheme or plan under the whole heavens which will so uplift and bless mankind as that of the gospel of Jesus Christ. But it takes men and women to exemplify it. The very best plan that could possibly be devised would never in the slightest degree benefit any one except they comply with the conditions which are always attached to anything which brings good to mankind. So even in the gospel, as free as it is to all, there are ordinances to obey and rules to observe leading to the perfecting of the character by which, while benefiting ourselves, we also influence others for eternity. This is a privilege which should be eagerly sought by every one for the twofold benefit to be derived—to ourselves and to others.

If so high and perfect a character as our Redeemer could so completely submit Himself to the will of His Father that He could testify, "I came not to do mine own will, but the will of Him that sent me," why should any one in this world refuse to do the same will. Every one born into this world came, we believe, under the same condition—not to do their own, but the Father's will. To be sure, every one has their own free agency in the matter; so also did our Lord. No man ever had or ever will have a freer agency than He, but few seem to have made so good a use of it. Enoch and the Saints with him came so near perfection in the use of the agency given them that they were translated to heaven. How many there were we have no knowledge, but it is said they "walked with God," and in time He took them to Himself. The Lord Jesus certainly made a perfect use of His agency, and in so doing blessed the entire human race, redeeming them from the power of death and the grave; and if they will follow Him in the use of their agency, will redeem them from sin, presenting them to His Father spotless and worthy of eternal life.

"Wells without water;" let every one seek to escape such a condition; it is unworthy of an intelligent being, one for whom Christ died. Seek to bring forth the fruits of the kingdom of heaven, which are of inestimable worth to all mankind, and so fulfill the purpose of God in our creation.

Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness; but grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. To him be glory both now and forever. Amen.—2 Pet. 3: 17, 18.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

BRO. WESLEY RAVEILL, Post Oak, Missouri:

I made a mistake in the letter I wrote your paper on June 11th. Will you please insert a notice to the effect that our meetings, instead of being the second and fourth Sunday at Post Oak, are as follows: First Sunday at Post Oak; second at Henrietta; third at Post Oak; fourth at Teaboo.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Pres. Joseph Smith and Patriarch Alexander Smith arrived here Tuesday evening; they expect to remain a day or two.

Elder W. H. Garrett, editor of ENSIGN, is taking a much needed rest. He left Tuesday morning for Colorado Springs, accompanied by his wife and daughter Alice.

Sr. Lydia Billinsky, one of the ENSIGN compositors, returned to her "case" this week after a pleasant visit of two months with relatives at St. Louis.

The drought still continues, the thermometer registering 105 in the shade on Tuesday, and still no prospects for rain. Nearly everything is burned up here.

The work on the improvement of West Lexington Street is on the move, which will make a fine residence street when finished.

All subscribers living on the Free Delivery routes here in the city will please give us the name and number of your street as soon as possible. This will facilitate the delivery of your paper.

Elder W. A. Smith, formerly of Persia, Iowa, spoke to the Saints Sunday morning. Sacrament service was presided over by Pres. Geo. H. Hulmes, assisted by Geo. Hawley and W. H. Murphy. Elder John D. White occupied the pulpit in the evening.

Don't forget the basket meeting at Chelsea Park next Sunday, July the 14th. Services at 11, 2 and 7:30. Sunday School will in all probability be held at 4:30. I. N. White, missionary in charge, will be there. The park is not a public place, but is private property. A good attendance is expected and an enjoyable time anticipated. Come, everybody that can.

Bro. Levi Cheney died at his daughter's (Sr. Geo. Thompson) home, Atchison, Kansas, July 3d, and was brought to his home on the 4th. Funeral took place Friday, July 5th, Bro. W. H. Garrett preaching the sermon. Bro. H. R. Mills being in charge. He was born in Cattaraugus county, New York, in 1825. Joined the old church about sometime in the 40's, and was at Nauvoo when the martyrs were slain. He united with the Reorganized church in 1875, being baptized at String Prairie, Illinois, by Bro. J. H. Lake. He was consistent in his life and died firm in the faith. He first married Mrs. Rosetta Duncan, who, with an infant, preceded him to the eternal world. In 1879 he married Miss Amelia Baker who, with two daughters, Srs. Hattie R. Faunce and Samantha Thompson, a brother and other relatives, survive him.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 So. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:30 p. m.; Central Branch, 241 Cottage Grove Ave., Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2188 State St.

Sunday was the regular union sacrament service on the South Side and a good meeting is reported.

Bro. Strange preached in the afternoon on the West Side and in the evening the order of service was changed to a prayer meeting. Bro. Pitt was expected to preach, but was called to DeKalb for the purpose of organizing a Sunday School at that place and did not return until late.

Bro. James Keir, one of our active members in the various departments of the work here, was married June 30th, to Sr. Lottie Danielson, of Seneca. The wedding took place in the church at Mission, Illinois. Bro. F. M. Cooper, of Council Bluffs, performing the ceremony. Although Sr. Keir has never been a resident of Chicago, she is not a stranger to many of the young people, at least, and one and all join in hearty congratulation and best wishes for their happiness.

A union picnic of the city schools, together with West Pullman was held at Washington Park on the Fourth.

The gospel wagon did good service in the way of flying trips from the street cars to the picnic grounds. A large crowd attended and as good a time enjoyed as the heat would permit.

In the afternoon Bro. Nayaka from Ceylon told of his country and people, and many strangers gathered about to listen.

A religious service of any kind was prohibited by the park authorities, but national songs and speaking were allowed.

Mrs. R. T. Cooper is visiting with relatives at Mt. Ayr, Iowa.

Semi-annual business meeting of the Religion: the past week resulted in a slight change of officers and the meeting hour which has formerly been at six on Sunday will hereafter be held on Friday nights at 7:45.

NOVICE.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Yesterday being the first Sunday of the month, was sacrament day and a goodly number assembled at the church for that purpose. The meeting was in charge of Brn. R. Archibald and H. B. Taddickson.

Sr. M. Shaw is visiting friends in Iowa and will be gone for some time.

Bro. C. E. Guinand occupied at the church last evening. The writer did the morning preaching.

The national birthday was celebrated in the usual way on the Fourth. The Sabbath schools gathered in a grove and had a peaceful time, save a few who were taken violently sick in the after part of the day. All have recovered, however.

We began a series of meetings in South St. Joseph last evening under encouraging conditions. A fair audience greeted us with good attention. Sr. Josie Isleib gave us material aid by rendering two solos and otherwise aiding in the singing. Others of our talented young will aid from time to time. Let the older ones also help us as they can in the busy affairs of this busy world.

Bro. E. W. Barrett, of Lamoni, was seen among the happy throng on the Fourth. He is visiting a few days.

Four names have been handed us for baptism, which will occur next Sunday at the church font at five o'clock.

We are invited to attend and speak at a union Sabbath School picnic, July 24, to which the Stewartville, Sabbath School was invited and to furnish a speaker. It will be held in DeKalb county, about ten miles from Stewartville where the North Missouri reunion meets August 16-25. If you can't attend the picnic be sure and come to the ten days of happy spiritual camp life.

Yours to the end,
J. M. TERRY.

1913 Holman St., July 8.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m.; D. E. Winn, pastor, 2306 Holman St., telephone 208 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Itzenhauer, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1353.

The weather continues very dry and warm: some of the Saints' cisterns are dry, and they are very much inconvenienced, and anxiously waiting to see it rain; berries and vegetables are high and scarce, but work is plenty and wages are good, so all is well.

Last Sunday was a delightful day, and our meetings were all that we could well desire. Priest J. J. Luft, son of Apostle Luft, was the speaker at eleven a. m. A large audience greeted our young brother and his effort was very good. Bro. J. A. Gillen assisted him.

The 12:15 social meeting, in charge of Bro. Pickering and Warnky, was at least to our hungry souls. God, by his Spirit, gave words of counsel and comfort to His people through Bro. James Roberts.

At 8 p. m. Bro. Warnky preached to a large congregation (many of whom were outsiders) on the subject of the condition of man after death. He was listened to with interest.

On next Sunday there will be no services at the church on account of the union meeting at Chelsea Park, except Sunday School, and that will convene at 9 a. m. and close at 10 a. m. Nearly all the members and some of our neighbors are intending to go and spend the whole day. Our branch voted to that effect.

Bro. D. F. Winn preached at East Mission, Bro. W. H. Pease at the tent, President J. D. White at Argentine.

The Utah elders are preaching on the streets and are doing us good by bringing them and us before the people in our true light. F.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner 23d and Holly. One block south of Observation Park line.

President Hulmes was our speaker Sunday evening, leaving the Saints comforted and rejoicing, and we have since heard expressions of this character, "It was just what I needed." We would like to see him often in our midst.

Brn. Fred Koehler and Frank Parker are holding preaching on Sunday evenings at a mission at 19th and McGeo.

The two Kansas City, Missouri,

Religios met in regular joint prayer meeting with the Second Kansas City Religion last Friday eve. There was quite a nice delegation present from the First Kansas City, not as many as we would like to see, however. Bro. Arthur Gillen was in charge.

Last Monday night was the regular business meeting of the branch. The following officers were elected: Elder Joseph Emmett, president; Bro. Thomas Grabske, priest; Bro. F. Koehler, teacher; Bro. Wm. Brown deacon and treasurer; Bro. J. August Koehler clerk and chorister, and Sr. Susie Lewis organist. A motion carried which changed the order of our Sabbath day meetings somewhat. There will be no meeting in the afternoon during the three months, July, August, and September, the social meeting being held immediately after Sabbath School instead of in the afternoon as heretofore. There will therefore be no preaching Sunday mornings. The order of the day will be: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m., social meeting 11 a. m., preaching 7:45 p. m.

Last night (Monday) was election of officers for the Sabbath School. Our worthy sister, Sr. Mary McIntosh, was sustained as superintendent, Bro. W. S. Brown was chosen assistant superintendent, Sr. Lottie McIntosh secretary, Sr. Mima Lewis treasurer, and Bro. Herbert Barto chorister.

Sr. Charlotte Cleveland spent the Fourth with Bro. and Sr. Wright at Hartsville, Missouri. Sr. Cleveland has been on the lookout for opportunities to tell the gospel story for the past forty years and many have been brought to see the truth through her untiring efforts, and as usual she now reports that she sees a great necessity for laborers among the Ozarks.

Sr. Julia Koehler spent the Fourth with relatives at Paola, Kansas.

In the notice to the Daughters of Zion, in ENSIGN for June 27, the name, Mrs. Anna Bozarth, should be Mrs. Anna Murphy.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

SOMERVILLE, MASS., June 24.

Editor ENSIGN:—Matters of interest in this district are not wanting altogether, but a scarcity of correspondents, and neglect to improve upon talents already given, are among the causes of poor representation of church interests in columns of ENSIGN from some quarters.

Having nominal charge, at least, over Providence and Fall River branches, requires something of our attention: other demands are also upon us, and we are endeavoring to be directed in profitable ways of service in interest of church work generally.

June 2d we were at Fall River: the 5th at Providence, speaking in forenoon with Children's day exercises in afternoon, Dr. Gilbert speaking for us in evening.

Sunday 10th was at Plainville in forenoon, and Attleboro in evening: good turnout and good meetings. (Wednesday we came to Boston; have attended three sessions of a debate between Rev. Miles Grant, of Advent fame, and a Rev. Brown, at Park street church, upon the question of soul consciousness after death. The defence of Elder Grant, in their favorable assumptions, was not as strong as I had looked for from the man's reputation we had given us as a debater.

and the majority of points scored were, in my opinion, clearly in favor of Rev. Brown, who was neither lacking in wit, scientific data, or scriptural reference, at least from the restricted standpoint of view held by him, in common with the general orthodox standard of opinion of matters relating to man's future estate.

At the close of the discussion, or before, Mr. Brown endeavored to gain the consent of Mr. Grant to another discussion in relation to the continuous conscious state of both the wicked and the righteous after death, but did not succeed, and while interested in the discussion, I felt to thank God for the light of intelligence which the restored gospel had shed into, and upon my brain and heart, in regard to God's just, merciful, and eternal decree as relating to the estate of all men; and the conditions of service, award and punishment revealed to God's saints in these last days; showing forth so clearly that His "righteousness" of plan and decree is against the "gross darkness" that covers the minds of many honest seekers for truth, but who are still literally "in chains of darkness"—paddedlock—so to speak; "staked out" like some young animal, to the limited, barren, and "grubbed out" area, circumscribed and described by some man's creed, and with the key in the pocket of some priest, safely kept from the danger of getting outside of the limits of this "chain" for fear that his "charge" may go out, or get out, and had some "pasture" that may make him dissatisfied and discontented with his old worn-out pasture and place of feed.

Yesterday we met with, and spoke to, the Saints and friends, morning and evening, here in Somerville, having among our congregation in the morning service, Bro. F. M. Sheehy, who had just arrived the day previous, from Chicago. Bro. Frank has been having a siege of sickness of a serious nature, and was barely able to be at morning services; he went home and took to his bed; we being sent for in the afternoon, administered to him, and last night he was resting more comfortably; but we are somewhat anxious still about him, and expect to visit him again today.

Bro. Bullard and Rich have the district tent up, and are holding meetings near Silver Lake. Am expecting to give them what service I can next week myself.

There is a growing interest with outsiders in our work, a good many seriously investigating in Providence, here, and elsewhere in the district: some surely near the door. Additions are being made, and we are surely more than holding our own.

In bonds,

M. H. BOND.

AULSON, Wis., June 21.

Editor ENSIGN:—This writing finds Bro. A. L. Whitaker and self well up in the northern part of this state, (and, per consequence, of the United States) fighting the good fight of faith, and—mosquitoes. Bro. Whitaker had to beat a retreat last summer from Island Lake on account of these pests, so he tells me, and they seem determined to carry our position here.

This country has been a pine wilderness, and is yet, to some extent; but as the timber falls before the lumberman's ax, farms and farming operations hold sway. The country is level and pleasant to the eye where cleared and tilled, but the land is not strong and lasting as in the central western states, "the fields of the west's," where centers Zion, to a true Latter Day Saint, the hub of the universe. There should the attraction and the gravitation be, because of God's choice for homes and settlers and permanent abidings, and as we are taught to "seek not the things of the world, but seek first to build up the kingdom of God, and to establish his righteousness" (Matt. 6:33. I. T.) we should while elsewhere than in Zion, or her stakes, consider ourselves as pilgrims and strangers, "having no continuing city, or country."

We cannot establish righteousness in the world, in Babylon. Jesus said, "I pray not for the world." The world as a whole will not accept the truth, nor permit righteousness to be established, consequently Jesus prayed only for those chosen out of the world. He announced his intention to gather them together into one fold, and when that gathering is sufficiently accomplished will "come out of His place and punish the inhabitants of the world for their iniquity."—Isa. 26: 21. In same chapter, verse 20, we read God's invitation to His people in view of what impends—"Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee: hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast." Zion and her stakes are the chambers. God has specifically revealed in these last days the places for safety and peace.

The necessity for the gathering is daily becoming more evident to me. Scattered saints and those in small branches without pastors or teachers retrograde and die out spiritually. The unpolivated tree and its fruit becomes wild and degenerate. God, who has said, "he ye perfect," has placed certain officers in the church for the perfecting of the saints. The saints then need these officers and their gifts; they cannot be perfected without them or in the world—in Babylon. In Jeremiah 3, 14, 15 we read concerning the design of the Lord, "I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion, and I will give you pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding."

The gathering cannot be accomplished in a day or a year, or by any movement en masse of the Saints, so none need wait for a command to gather all at some one time. Latter day revelations harmonize with the one quoted from Jeremiah. We have been under the gathering proclamation since 1830. The Lord said in its inception, "be not in haste: observe to have all things prepared before you," knowing that for one thing the sale of homes, and purchase of others must take time and the exercise of wisdom. After that some were driven out of Jackson county, the command came to "continue to gather together unto the places which I have appointed." The revelation of 1873 reiterates this command, and the revelation of 1901, under which stakes have been organized is in further notification of the Lord's will to his people concerning their gathering together, and where.

It has required an effort of faith for us to sever former spiritual relations or establish new ones: it will require an effort of faith, and the making of sacrifices to sever our temporal connections in Babylon, and establish new ones in Zion: but this is what is marked out for us, and necessary to our salvation and Zion's redemption. Till Zion arises and in splendor shines, our efforts must continue. "For now abideth faith." Our faith must not cease to operate while in the world, while scattered abroad: while the law is only in part operative and salvation thus unrealized.

Let us labor in every calling, minister and member, to subserve the great end in view, to settle the real, living, vital issue of the day and generation, the building up of Zion by the principles of righteousness revealed from on high.

Wishing to do all within my power to this end. Your brother,
M. F. GOWELL.

OMAHA, Neb., June 29.
Editor Ensign:—Bro. Oscar Case and the writer have been doing tent work at Waterloo, Nebraska, since the 13th instant; have had a good attendance and excellent attention as a rule. The speakers have enjoyed fair liberty, and have been much comforted by the presence and assistance of the Holy Spirit. We believe the seed sown at that place will result in good to the work, though there may be no additions to the church at present.

Bro. Case is a pleasant companion and a humble minister and enjoys the Spirit's help in his work.

The accidental drowning of young

Bro. Leo Fetter and the sudden death of a Mr. Evans, who tried to rescue him, has cast a gloom over the entire community. The two Fetter boys were bathing in a small, though deep pond, and in diving the eldest got where the water was too deep for him and sank out of sight. Mr. Evans and several other men heard the screams of the younger boy and ran to the rescue. Mr. Evans being the first one at the place plunged into the very cold water while very warm, and the second time he came up he called for help. Bro. Archie Brown had come up by this time and was in the water trying to help Mr. Evans out, which he succeeded in doing in a few moments after Mr. Evans called for help, but every effort to revive him failed. It is thought that he died of heart failure. Bro. Leo Fetter was in the water over three hours before his body was recovered. How very careful every one should be about getting into deep water when they know they cannot swim.

The Saints of the Valley branch seem to be encouraged because of the good meetings we have had, for their sorrow for the departed one is not without hope.

May God help and bless his people everywhere, is the earnest desire of your brother,
C. E. BUTTERWORTH.

MANITOWANINGO, Algoma Dist.

Out., June 27.

Editor Ensign:—We wish to notify the Saints living on this island or in any part of the district of Algoma that the writer and Bro. G. C. Tomlinson have been placed in charge of this vast district for the summer season, by our worthy president of missions, Bro. R. C. Evans, and as we arrived safely at the village of Manitowaning yesterday, and intend working our way from this place we wish all Saints to communicate to us of their whereabouts and prospects for mission work in this locality, as we are strangers in a strange land, and the field is new. We need your co-operation and prayers, and hope by the help of God and your faith and prayers to be able to accomplish a good work.

We were met at the dock by our worthy brother, Alfred Ravell, late of Trowbridge, Ontario, who took us to his home where we are made welcome by himself and amiable wife; although not in the church she loves to make the elders welcome. She is what ye Americans call "a dry land Saint," but we look forward for better report of her in the near future. In all there are five Saints here, Alfred's father and mother and two brothers. We "fired the first volley" last night in a school-house, the first shot ever fired on this island by "long Tom." We heard no reply from the evening, so pitched our tent for the night in peace and happiness, feeling all was well and that our Captain was pleased with our first effort. Today we will go out scouting and report our success later on.

Yours in hope of eternal life,
SAMUEL TOMLINSON,
Care Alfred Ravell, MANITOWANINGO, Algoma district, Ont.

CLAVENING, Ont., June 29.

Editor Ensign:—The London district conference which convened with Arthur branch 15th and 17th inst. will be remembered by many as one of the best conferences of the district. The attendance was large, and the weather all that could be desired. The services on Sunday, as also the preaching service on Saturday evening, were held in the town hall; many outsiders were present at the Sunday preaching services. At 11 a. m. Elder R. B. Howlett was the speaker, at 2:30 p. m. Elder R. C. Evans and 7:30 p. m. Elder B. St. John. The prayer and testimony service which convened at 8 a. m. was good and spiritual throughout. A young sister was blessed with the gift of tongues and two of the brethren enjoyed tongues and interpretation. The following brethren were called to the eldership, Nathan Overholt of Selkirk, Walter Bennett of Wallaceburg, Clark Russell of Arthur and Douglas Cameron of Holstein. Bro. Bennett and Russell were already under missionary appointment to labor as priests. Bro. Cameron was also formerly a priest and Bro. Overholt a teacher. Bro. Overholt, Russell and Bennett were ordained at the Monday forenoon session; Bro. Cameron being obliged to return home on Sunday evening, we understand his ordination was provided for in the resolution.

For the information of your many readers not in attendance at our conference I will mention the distribution of labor as assigned by our worthy mission president, R. C. Evans. I quote from memory, and if I make any mistakes I hope the brethren will consider it but a venial sin and correct as well as forgive me. S. W. Tomlinson and Geo. C. Tomlinson, Manitowlingo Island and Sault Ste Marie, R. B. Howlett, Toronto, Humbert Bay and Hamilton; B. St. John and Geo. Henley, Lindsay, Cameron, Fenelon Falls, and points in Haliburton County; A. E. Mortimer, Joseph Blackmore and Walter Bennett, Lawbacks region. J. L. Mortimer, Clark Russell and the writer Kincairdine, Port Elgin, Owen Sound and all points on North Bruce Peninsula. I was forgetting to say that there was a district Zion's Religio-Literary formed, particulars of which will appear from the pen of those in charge.

I have been requested by the conference to perform the following unpleasant duty, viz.: Michael Mutbart (sometimes known as Will or William) who has been a member of Oliphant branch—but for the past year has been residing in Owen Sound—has been expelled from the church about May 10, 1901, and whereas he has visited Niagara Falls branch, borne testimony and partook of sacrament with them, this is to warn all Saints that he is not a member of the church and to beware of him.

Yours in gospel bonds,
JOHN SHIELDS.

DARLINGTON, Mo., June 25.

Editor Ensign:—Elder D. C. White and I came to this place a week ago last Thursday; we reared our new gospel tent and have been holding night service since that time. Extreme hot weather, busy times with the farmers and bad storm has worked against us, so as yet we are not having as large audiences as we expected. To be plain, this place is not an exception to other places; there are three church buildings here and neither has a settled pastor and a spiritual dearth is manifest as a result of these conditions. Those who do attend, come and go again generally without asking a question or inviting us to visit or even call on them, though we invite them to bring their Bibles or note book and pencil and investigate carefully and thoroughly our position. And were it not that Bro. Bray and Keown looked after our temporal needs, we would have a hard time of it indeed. We yet hope for better results than we have yet seen.

Along with these experiences one afternoon Bro. White and I were caught on a long covered railroad bridge by a fast freight train coming up behind us while we were riding through on a four-wheeled railroad bicycle car; we just escaped being run over by urging the car to the end of the bridge leaving it on the track, while we jumped down the embankment, the engine striking the car, breaking it all to pieces. Seemingly a half moment more and we would have been either killed or possibly maimed for life. To God we give praise for our deliverance. Yet for all these experiences we are glad we are accounted worthy to have entrusted to us the grand privilege of preaching the gospel.

BARLOW, Ohio, June 17.

Dear Ensign Reader:—I feel this evening that I should write you for aid and tell my reading friends of my new Ohio home. I am now with my grandma in the small village of Barlow, among entire strangers as to the knowledge of this true religion of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. They seem to know nothing of this beautiful light into which I stepped six years ago at the age of nine years, in the small town of Weir City, Kan.; walked into the water the same day my dear loving mamma did. Bro. Thorpe (now of Joplin, Mo.) did the baptizing. I have seen enough evidence, I should think, to convince the whole nation that this is the true work of God. I was raised by God's loving hand when suffering with typhoid fever.

I am young in age, yet find many temptations surround me each day. I want the aid of all my readers' prayers that I may always be strong enough to throw off the temptations with which I may come in contact. There is always comfort and blessing in prayer. My companions are very nice young people. Some few are church members, either belonging to the Presbyterian or M. E. church. I attend the Presbyterian Sabbath School and oftentimes find my teacher and I cannot quite agree. I attended school here the past winter. I wish in the near future to attend Grace-land College.

I wish the Weir City, Kan., church a large increase in number. And I often think how very much pleased they should be in having the opportunity in their small church to worship God, to have sisters and brothers so near to aid each other in the wonderful work. I know of none close to me. I earnestly hope that sometime there may be. I shall be ever so pleased to receive letters from any of the Saints. Bro. I. N. White wrote me a letter that I was glad to receive to think that he should remember me. He was at our home in Seaman, Kan., during his debate with Mr. Leonard. We became quite attached to him during his short stay and were always pleased to hear from him. I shall close my letter by wishing to see this wonderful gospel spread over the whole length and breadth of the world and may I be able to do what is assigned me to help. Your sister in gospel bonds,
PEARL E. THOMPSON.

REDWATER, TEXAS, June 24.

Editor Ensign:—Northeastern Texas is mostly a timbered country, many hills and hollows with the tall pine and low willow. We are busy telling the gospel to the people and every now and then lead a noble man or woman to the waters of baptism. The prospect for gospel is very good in this country. We are meeting with some persecution: the devil rages occasionally, but God is moving on the hearts and they have begun to think something is about to happen. It is well that they begin to wake up because there remains only a few more years for this generation. God is going to cut His work short.

Bro. Jenkins and I are down here opening the work in this country, as there has been no preaching up to this time in this region. Bro. Jenkins has a nice buggy and span of ponies. He is a noble soldier and is willing to do all he can to promulgate the gospel. We will close our meeting here tonight and if the Lord wills, will start in the morning for Baby Springs. Some are about ready for baptism. We are stopping with Bro. J. D. Fifer, a valiant soldier for the Lord. May God bless us this year to do a good work.

District conference will convene at Douglass on the Texas & Pacific R. R. July 26th. All the Saints in the district who can will please come, and as many of the elders as can will please attend. So come one, come all, and let us have a spiritual feast.

Your brother,
E. A. ERWIN.

CAGLE, Missouri, June 28.

Editor Ensign:—We are in the battle between J. D. Erwin and A. Carlin of the Baptist church. We are to have ten sessions, five on each proposition, each one affirming his church. Our church is in the lead and we are getting along fine. Bro. J. D. Erwin has been blessed in every speech. I am acting as moderator for him.

Last Sunday night at the close of a series of meetings at Webb City, while preaching my last sermon, the Spirit came on me in such power my voice changed and my whole body was filled to such a degree it seemed as though I would be lifted from the floor. I was preaching on the renewal of the earth and surely I was changed while in the pulpit. To God be all the glory. I felt the presence of those who are to be ministering spirits to those that are to be heirs of salvation. My whole being was filled with light. The Spirit has been with me to a marked degree ever since I got to our field.

Brethren, I want you to be careful and not challenge other churches for debates; let them be the aggressor. Preach the gospel and let others alone. Remember and report on the 1st of July.

Yours in the conflict,
P. C. KECK.

STOCKTON, Cal., July 1.

Editor Ensign:—I am now at Stockton, and by the providence of God, the consent and assistance of those in charge, and the help of local Saints, we have rented a large room and got it fixed up nicely; we will use it for a meeting place, a mission, free reading room, and, I hope to organize a debating and lecture club, a free employment office and, if possible, make the place self-sustaining. I want assistance in reading matter, so I ask especially the Saints of California, to send to the above address all of their old Zion's ENSIGNS and other church literature, tracts, books (not old, worn-out ones that I would be ashamed to loan). Brethren and sisters, open your hearts and make a sacrifice, as your books are only of use when they are read.

I have heard many of my brethren say they wanted to do all they could. I only ask a very little of what you can do, so come to the front and send books, tracts and papers to supply this little mission and I will try to get them read, that they may turn some to the truth. Send to 807 East Main Street, Stockton, California.

I am your brother in gospel bonds.
A. HAWS.

AUDUBON, Minn., July 1.

Editor Ensign:—The reunion at Clitheral which closed last night was a success. Bro. J. W. Wight, I. N. Roberts and T. C. Kelley presided over it. The preaching was good, and in the prayer and testimony meetings there was the spirit of humility and meekness manifested, which was very commendable. The attendance was said to be good, much prejudice removed, the Saints strengthened, nine baptized and two more expressed their intentions to be baptized soon.

It evidently will do great good for the work in that community, and was very encouraging to the Saints who attended it as expressed in their testimonies.

Bro. I. N. Roberts is held in very high esteem by the Saints in this mission as was evidenced by their expressions with tears streaming down the cheeks of many as they told him good-by. Bro. T. C. Kelley is going to continue the meetings a night or two longer. Bro. J. W. Wight left last night to hold a debate in Iowa, and I came to this place where I am to preach two nights. Bro. Roberts is to box the tent today, then in a few days will be off for the Southeastern mission, while Bro. T. C. Kelley takes his place here.

It is a pleasure to go through a mission where a man has labored for years and hear nothing but good words of commendation for them by all. I rejoice and thank God that we have so many faithful laborers in the field. I will remain only a few days in Northern Minnesota, then on to other fields, to do what I can to encourage and strengthen the Saints, and assist in "the work committed to all."

Praying God to bless every effort of His people, in every department of the work, I still hope to continue trying to do my part as best I can.

EXAMINATION OF THE REVELATION ON POLYGAMY.

BY ELDER E. L. KELLEY.

COMPILED BY ELDER H. ETZENHOUSER.

In the examination of any matter claiming for itself a divine origin or approval, we are held responsible to the Creator for the exercise of the highest and best faculties and gifts with which He has endowed us; and not only this but for making the examination in a fair and honorable way. And, however much prejudiced or opinionated we may be touching the matter presented for consideration, or whatever the undue influence exerted by others to force us into an acceptance, against our better judgment and sense of right and justice, of any principle, we can only be commended by Him who is just and true, when the conclusion arrived at is a true and just one; and it reasonably follows that we must receive for a wrong one, disapproval and condemnation.

Man and woman from the first were given a free agency by the Creator; and this order and rule is just as divine and should be just as sacred to us as any other act or law revealed by him. And having placed us in this state and demanded that we choose for ourselves and answer individually for the exercise of the rights conferred, nothing can be more pleasing to Him than to find us observing strictly this great boon and treasure unfettered by the shackles of superstition and without regard to the fear or favor of priest or people.

"Is it from heaven or of men?" is the material question to be answered touching every principle or plan that lays claim to a divine origin; and when this is correctly answered our duty to it is, or should be, at once settled. Jesus so applied the inquiry to the work of John the Baptist, and a greater prophet was not born of woman than John; and if to the work of John, so to any true or purported work or revelation of Joseph Smith, or of any other prophet.

Applying the inquiry to the document in hand purporting to be a revelation from God, and purporting to have been given "through Joseph the Seer," we may consider it from two worthy positions:

First: To whom was it given, and was he a servant and prophet of the Lord?

Second: The document itself; is it of such character, and its principles so in harmony with the revelations and doctrine already accepted as the word of God as to furnish evidence by reason of the thoughts and sentiments it contains that it is of divine origin, regardless of who may have been the party who gave it to the world?

In the title of the document is the statement, "Given through Joseph the Seer, in Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, July 12th, 1848." This is sufficient of itself to prove that Joseph Smith did not write that part of it, to anyone who is at all acquainted with his work and writings. While Joseph Smith was president of the church in his lifetime, and a prophet and seer, he avoided attaching titles to himself in giving to the church what he claimed to be a revelation from God. To attach these is unlike the man, and when we discover a document labeled as the work of another, and the label itself is so unlike the party that we know he had nothing to do in placing it there, it is proper to stop and make a careful investigation before accepting any part of it as his work. Of the one hundred and ten revelations given to the church by Joseph Smith, not one bears a title similar to that of this document before me.

The usual modest style chosen by him is simply the words, "Revelation given," with date as follows: "Revelation given December, 1831," "Revelation given March, 1833," etc. When other parties than himself are addressed in the revelation Mr. Smith often set out their names; as, "Revelation to Sidney Rigdon, Parley P. Pratt, and Lemon Copley, given March, 1831;" and in a few instances his own name is used, but when so used it invariably appears as "Joseph Smith, Jr.," or "Joseph Smith," the latter form being the one used after the death of his father when presenting the revelation of 1841.

We are justified in asserting then that the caption connecting Joseph Smith's name with this document under examination was gotten up by some one else than himself, and without his knowledge and consent.

Who did write this title, then, associating "Joseph the Seer's" name with the document? The answer is furnished by examining the edition of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants published by the Utah Church in 1876. In this the order and style of Joseph Smith is changed and his simple and unassuming manner is set aside and the words, "through Joseph, the Seer," introduced.

In questioning Wilford Woodruff, President of the Utah Church, as to who was responsible for the 1876 edition of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants printed by them, he answered, "President Brigham Young." This should forever settle the question as to who attached Joseph Smith's name to this document. It was Brigham Young and the entry was made without the knowledge or consent of Joseph Smith.

Passing from the caption to the historical features, it is noted that the first positive reference to this document of which there is any record was in August, 1852, and made by Brigham Young himself. This was eight years after the death of Joseph Smith, and singular as it may seem no inquiry, or search, had been made by any of the factions of the church including that under Mr. Young, for a lost revelation, or claim that there was a lost revelation of great importance which the prophet had received prior to his death. But at the date named Brigham Young comes before his followers in the mountains and says, "I have a revelation to present to you today. No man knew it was in existence but myself. I have a patent lock upon my trunk and have kept it there. I have not got the original, but a copy. The original was destroyed." Who destroyed it? would be of course the first question to arise. "Emma, Joseph's wife, burnt it," he said.

This was Brigham Young's excuse for his copy. He made the statement far away in the mountains, before a little flock of his followers, at a time when it took months to travel back to the States and under circumstances which indicated that Emma Smith, living in Nauvoo, Illinois, might never learn, or at least for years, of his assertion. In time, however, she did hear of it, and her answer to Brigham's charge was that the statement was false: "I never burned a revelation of my husband and would not have thought of doing such a thing."

This is substantially the full testimony of Brigham Young touching the identification of the document, and the answer of the wife of the prophet, Emma Smith. But it would hardly be fair to stop with the testimony here upon this point, so I will proceed.

Joseph C. Kingsbury, a witness produced by polygamists, takes the stand, and states as follows: "I copied the revelation on two sheets of foolscap paper or less, and it did not take more than one hour to do it; about one half hour. Hyrum Smith came to the door just before I was through and wanted the original, and Bishop Whitney went and told him to wait a few minutes and he would bring it out. Hyrum Smith waited outside the door and I finished copying it, and then I read over the copy while Whitney held one paper and we compared them to see if there were any errors, and then Whitney handed it to Smith who still stood outside the door waiting."

Comparing the document with the statements of Kingsbury in order to test it we have the following: What he saw, he says he copied on two sheets or less of foolscap paper in from one half to an hour's time. Not more than an hour. While he was copying it Hyrum Smith, he says, came to the door for it, and Bishop Whitney came in to get it, but being quite through, Whitney told Hyrum Smith he could have it in a few minutes, and Hyrum Smith waited outside the door while he finished it, and then he and Whitney read and compared the copy and then returned it to Hyrum Smith who still waited at the door. And yet Kingsbury states that it was the same thing published by Brigham Young in the 1876 edition of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and he had not seen the document or heard a line of it read since the time he fixes in 1843.

Let us examine the document now in the light of the facts. It contains 66 paragraphs and 3,250 words. Joseph C. Kingsbury was neither a scholar nor fine penman. For him to read and copy such a manuscript as this must necessarily have been, (if it was this purported revelation which he had) would have required at least six hours close work, and ten to a dozen sheets of foolscap paper. It would have required two hours longer time to have compared and corrected his copy; and yet he has in his testimony Hyrum Smith stand at the door outside on a July day, and wait until this document is partly written and all compared and corrected.

It was the public boast of Brigham Young at one time, that they had the biggest liars in Utah in the world. Well, I must confess that after I heard Joseph C. Kingsbury's statements, I thought I could point out one man at least that Brigham Young had his eye on when he made the assertion.

Mrs. Rachel Thompson is the next witness to this purported revelation. She says: "I saw that revelation * * * and had it in my hands, saw what kind of paper it was written on. It was written on foolscap paper. I do not know exactly how many pages there were of it, * * * am certain * * * that there was not more than one whole sheet of foolscap, that would be four pages. If there had been more than one full sheet, I would have known it. It did not require any pins in the paper to pin it together. * * * Cannot mention anything that was in it. * * * Do not recollect the first word nor the last word. * * * Do not recollect of ever seeing it again. The first time I ever saw this pretended revelation after I left Nauvoo was when it was printed in the Book of Doctrine and Covenants [Utah, 1876 edition]."

Mrs. Thompson was married she says to John Taylor in 1844 or 1845, she could not say which. He had a wife living at the time. She married another man in 1847 by the name of Lawson while on the road to Salt Lake. Taylor was still living, but he had some more wives. After she got to Utah she got a divorce from Brigham to extend back and cover the deficit occurring on the plains. Then Lawson had to go overboard in a few years. Mrs. Thompson Taylor Lawson is now a standing witness on the polygamy question.

But accept her testimony as true and it is impossible to connect the purported revelation Brigham Young gave to the world with that which she says she saw and read, and which she says was handed her by Hyrum Smith.

Mrs. Thompson Taylor Lawson, like Mr. Kingsbury, was positive in her testimony. She doubtless at an early time told the story to Brigham and Taylor, and determined to stick to it for her own reputation's sake. But she and her friends do not seem to comprehend the fact that if her story is true, then the purported revelation is false. Her testimony is particularized; Hyrum Smith told her that the paper he gave her was a revelation that Joseph had received. She knows that there was not more of it than a single sheet of foolscap paper, for she handled it and it was altogether and had no fastenings. It may have been true that Hyrum Smith handed her a revelation to read on a sheet of foolscap paper. But it is certain the paper handed her by him if her testimony is true did not contain this document placed in my hands for examination, containing 66 paragraphs and 3,250 words.

Of course Mrs. Thompson says it is the same. But how does she know? Not a single reason can she offer for so stating. I listened to her tale at two different times of little less than one hour each. She could tell nothing about this pretended document. She was as easily deceived in this, and her conscience as readily quieted, as in the case of her divorce by Brigham Young.

This is all. No other persons have risked a statement touching the document in question or laid any claim to a knowledge of it.

Should the document then agree in great part with the work and teaching of Joseph Smith, prior to his death, would we be justified in accepting it as genuine? Where is there a paragraph of reliable evidence upon which to base an intelligent belief? On the contrary, suppose that upon the examination of this document it is found to contradict and overturn all the work of Joseph Smith, the prophet, that we know he did do, antagonizing the principles he did believe and teach, up to and later than the date fixed in the purported document itself, what then is our duty in the premises?

This brings me to consider the second division of the subject; viz., the document itself. I examine it. The first paragraph recites a state of things that was not true and which Joseph Smith's former writings show could not be true.

Joseph is represented by this to have inquired of the Lord wherein he justified certain parties having more wives than one, reciting among others, Isaac and Moses, and David and Solomon. The first two were not polygamists; and the second two are condemned, instead of being justified, by the Book of Mormon for the practice of polygamy in this language: "Behold, David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord." (B. of M. page 116). In the paragraph in this purported revelation the expression is used, "Inquired of my hand." This certainly is not the form of expression the Lord would use, nor is it Joseph Smith's. The paragraph contradicts the teaching of the Book of Mormon, and the inspired translation of the scriptures, both works accepted and acknowledged as true and divine by Joseph Smith in his lifetime. Is it right then to take this document which is surreptitiously brought out after Joseph Smith's death, as representing his sentiments and faith, in preference to that which we know he believed and taught during his life?

The next statement that is glaringly contradictory to former revelations is contained in paragraphs 4 and 6 of the document. Paragraph 4 states: "For behold, I reveal unto you a new and an everlasting covenant." Paragraph 6 calls this "the new and everlasting covenant." But the Lord says, revelation Book of Covenants, given March 1831, "Wherefore I say unto you, that I have sent unto you mine everlasting covenant, even that which was from the beginning, and that which I have promised I have so fulfilled, and the nations of the earth shall bow to it."—D. & C. 49:2.

And again: "And even so I have sent mine everlasting covenant into the world, to be a light to the world, and to be a standard for my people and for the Gentiles to seek to it, and to be a messenger before my face to prepare the way before me."—D. & C. 45:2.

This was more than twelve years before the time of this new document. Did not the Lord know what he had revealed before when the purported language of paragraphs 4 and 6 was used? Let us answer as persons who are willing to judge fairly and intelligently and who expect to answer to the Lord in time to come for a proper exercise of the rights and privileges under which we are placed.

But this document is not in harmony with itself; paragraph 4 referred to is contradicted by paragraph 17. Paragraph 4 states: "If ye abide not that covenant, then are ye damned for no one can reject this covenant, and be permitted to enter into my glory." Paragraph 17 reads: "For these angels did not abide my law, therefore they cannot be enlarged, but remain separately and singly, without exaltation, in their saved condition, to all eternity, and from henceforth are not Gods, but are angels of God, forever and ever."

In the fourth paragraph they are damned, and in the seventeenth the same parties are saved.

In paragraphs 19 and 27 we have set forth and associated the two great sins; to-wit: Blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, and the shedding of innocent blood, in this language: "The blasphemy against the Holy Ghost, which shall not be forgiven in the world, nor out of the world, is in that ye commit murder, wherein ye shed innocent blood, and assent unto my death, after ye have received my new and everlasting covenant, saith the Lord God."

Alma in the Book of Mormon states: "For behold, if ye deny the Holy Ghost when it once has had place in you, and ye know that ye deny it; behold, this is a sin which is unpardonable; yea, and whosoever murdereth against the light and knowledge of God, it is not easy for him to obtain forgiveness."—Book of Alma 19:1.

There are two very important contradictions here. The first is in the fact that this new document makes the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost to be the shedding of innocent blood, while Alma shows that it is not; but makes it even a greater crime.

The second is, that in this new document persons can only blaspheme against the Holy Ghost as it states, "after ye have received my new and everlasting covenant, saith the Lord God." Whereas Alma (and he is supported in his statement by the teaching of Christ among the Jews, by Paul and Peter in the New Testament, and by the revelations to Joseph Smith), taught that, "If ye deny the Holy Ghost when it once has had place in you, and ye know that ye deny it; * * * this is a sin which is unpardonable." This brings it to anybody who has received the Holy Ghost whether they have come under the rules of plurality of wives or monogamy, or have no wife at all.

Again referring to this purported revelation we read paragraph 19: "And they shall pass by the angels, and the Gods, which are set there, to their exaltation and glory in all things, as hath been sealed upon their heads, which glory shall be a fullness and a continuation of the seeds forever and ever." Here is shown the spirit that prompted the document in hand, whoever may have been the writer,—exaltation, not only over the brethren in this life, but the angels and the Gods. How unlike the humble and lowly spirit of Jesus of Nazareth is this, and how unlike Jesus' teaching is this purported revelation!

Neither is it in keeping with the spirit or thought of a single revelation that Joseph Smith gave to the world. There is to be found in the Scriptures, however, its likeness. The first instance is in Genesis: "And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." Here is where the doctrine of the gods theory had its first revelation to the human family; and you may read all that God has revealed to the human family as found in the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, and you will find an entire absence of any intimation from the Lord tending to puff man up by giving countenance to the sentiment that he was to pass by the angels and gods, and ascend as a great big something upon high. Those who are inspired of Lucifer are said to have shown such a spirit. The Lord speaking to Isaiah of such, says: "For thou hast said in thine heart, I will ascend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the stars of God: I will sit also upon the mount of the congregation, in the sides of the north: I will ascend above the heights of the clouds; I will be like the Most High. Yet thou shalt be brought down to hell, to the sides of the pit." (Isaiah 14: 13-15.)

This document teaches that those who have a plurality of wives shall be exalted and pass all those who preferred but one wife. But this doctrine flatly contradicts the teachings of Joseph Smith. He taught that Adam stood in his place at the head of the race, and is "The Ancient of Days." But Adam was no polygamist; nor was Noah the preacher of righteousness for one hundred and twenty years; but he was saved when all the people "who took them wives even as they chose," were destroyed by the flood. When God wished to refer to three grand characters of honor and integrity to His will in the earth, He named Noah, Daniel, and Job, not one of them a polygamist; but this purported revelation essays to exalt those whom God has condemned, and for the reason that they practiced that which was "an abomination in his sight," or the doctrine of having "many wives and concubines."

In paragraph 64 of this document this language is used: "And again, verily, verily I say unto you, if any man have a wife, who holds the keys of this power, and he teaches unto her the law of my Priesthood, as pertaining to these things, then shall she believe, and administer unto him, or she shall be destroyed."

This is truly a wonderful paragraph. Let us examine it closely. I read: "If any man have a wife, who holds the keys of this power." Who holds the keys of this power? The wife, of course. But you may say it is simply a wrong transposition of the sentence. Let us see; I will transpose it then; and it reads, "If any man who holds this power have a wife"—what! That gives the keys and this great power of exaltation and passing the gods to a man who has no wife at all! Can an unmarried man hold the keys and power? If so, by this he can pass the angels and the gods or the paragraph is false. This is the death of the entire sentiment before set out in the document. It will never do to read this document and say, "If any man holds this power and have a wife;" that kills polygamy dead. So we again read as written, "If any man have a wife who holds the keys of this power," the wife holds the keys or the paragraph is a blunder.

And now comes in the question of killing her. It does not make any difference who does this, whether it is the husband or the Lord, the moral quality of the act is the same. The question is, Since she holds the "keys of this power" is it right to kill her if she don't accept her husband's teachings and let him marry another wife? If it is not right to kill her the Lord should be much farther from performing the act of destroying than the husband.

But the time allotted for this is all taken, and it is necessary to conclude.

Who is the author of this purported revelation? Not Joseph Smith. This is the work of a theological blunderer, and Joseph Smith has never been justly charged with that. Read every sentence that he ever spoke or wrote and you will find nothing that is on a plane with this. The works and writings of Joseph Smith are as dissimilar in sentiment, construction, and language from this document as the Book of Mormon is from the Spalding Story. No one should ever be troubled as to whether Joseph Smith ever had anything to do with this document.

But you ask who wrote it? The answer is, Brigham Young. He was a blunderer in theology and in business. His success lay in the fact of his imperious domination of those who trusted that he was a better man than he was. He was the blunderer in the revelation of the doctrine of the gods, and he even went so far as to teach that Adam was our God and all the God with which we have to do; and yet Adam had but one wife. Here is where the doctrine of passing the gods in the purported revelation is crossed by Brigham's blunder again.

Blunderingly he contradicts his own teaching as well as that of the faithful servants of God. It will not do to say that Adam brought one of his wives with him. That subterfuge furnishes no answer. If this document is true it is polygamy in this world that starts the exaltation—not the next.

Brigham again blundered when he taught the doctrine of blood atonement. Ministers of his own church are trying to hush it up now. He blundered when he pretended to divorce every wife in Utah by his lofty will. Who quotes that as a worthy act now? He blundered when he predicted the construction of temples from adobes. Where are the adobe temples? He blundered when he chinked the capitol building at Washington with eighty thousand tons of putty in one of his famous discourses. It would take four thousand of the largest and best freight cars to carry the putty that Brigham told his followers was in the cracks of the capitol. I might go on and name legions of his blunders, but time will not permit.

This document stands isolated and alone with few exceptions in one thing. No man, whether he accepts or rejects it, will stand before the public to defend it. Not a devotee of polygamy or the "Passing of the Gods" doctrine can be found who will stand as the "City set on a hill," and let his light shine in comparing with the truth. Jesus said in his time: "For every one who doeth evil hateth the light, lest his deeds should be reprov'd. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest." (John 3: 20, 21.)

Those who accept this document will not do this in Salt Lake, Ogden, St. George, Nephi, Logan, or in any state or territory east or west of the Rocky Mountains. Why? Because this purported revelation is not of the light but from beneath, and like its father, it may flourish in the darkness, but never in the light.

VERY QUEER EVIDENCE.
Mrs. Emily D. P. Young, in the Temple Lot suit at Kansas

City, Missouri, in 1893, relating to her alleged marriage to Joseph Smith:

"My father's name was Edward Partridge. I was married to Brigham Young in November, I think, 1844. I was not married in the temple because the temple was not built at that time; it was in process of erection, but it was not finished so that we could be married in it. At the time I married Brigham Young, in November 1844, I was at THE SAME TIME sealed to Joseph Smith; sealed to him for eternity; I was sealed to Brigham Young FOR TIME, and to Joseph Smith FOR ETERNITY. The manner that I was married to Brigham Young is what is known as marriage by proxy; that is what I considered it meant; that is, I was sealed to Brigham Young that day, DURING MY NATURAL LIFE, and in eternity I was to be the wife of Joseph Smith. I was not married to Joseph Smith under the revelation on sealing, but I was married to him under the revelation on plural marriage. I was married MARCH, 1843; on the 11th day of March, I think it was. I think I was married to him under the revelation of plural marriage. I was married to him on the 11th day of MAY, 1843.

"Q.—Now, I would like for you to explain how you were married to Joseph Smith under the plural marriage revelation, when the church you belong to claims that revelation was not given until July, 1843; just tell how you could be married under a revelation in March that was not given until July?

"A.—Well, I do not know anything about that."—Abstract of Evidence, p. 360.

MORE OF IT.

In company with Don C. Salisbury, we went to Carthage, Illinois, to engage the court house for holding a series of meetings; while there we called on the county clerk, in his office, to see what date the records gave of the marriage of Zina D. Huntington. The county clerk assisted us in our search, and we found in Book A, page 40, that Henry B. Jacobs and Zina D. Huntington were married in Nauvoo, March 7, 1841, by John C. Bennett, then Mayor of Nauvoo.

We also called on the clerk of the circuit court in his office, and in company with him examined the divorce records from 1834 to 1857, and found no divorce was ever granted said Zina D. Jacobs.

"Representative Women of Deseret," page 12, we read:

"Sr. Zina was married in Nauvoo, and had two sons; but this not proving a happy union, she subsequently separated from her husband. Joseph Smith taught her the principle of marriage for eternity, and she accepted it as a divine revelation, and was sealed to the prophet for time and all eternity, after the order of the new and everlasting covenant.

In the Historical Record, page 233, we read:

"Zina D. Huntington, afterwards the wife of President Brigham Young, sealed to the prophet, October 27, 1841. Dimick B. Huntington officiating."

Now what have we learned. 1. Zina D. Huntington married to Henry B. Jacobs in Nauvoo, March 7, 1841. 2. As a faithful wife bears her husband two sons (no claim made for twins) in less than seven months and twenty days after her marriage, as she was sealed to the prophet October 27, 1841; and this is not allowing any time for the publishing of a notice for a divorce. We are informed that the law requires thirty days' notice before a divorce can be granted. 3. That no divorce was ever granted her.

Oh! "Consistency" thou art a jewel." F. M. WELD.

...EVIDENCE STRONGER STILL. While in St. Joseph, Missouri, last winter, the Brighamite elders were challenged by me to prove that Joseph Smith introduced and practiced the doctrine of polygamy, and in response to the challenge they produced in evidence the reprinted copy of the Nauvoo Expositor, and since then I have learned that they have done the same in other places; and I thought it might be well to furnish the Herald readers with the character of the evidence which they rely on to carry their points, they themselves being the witnesses.

The following quotations are from the Historical Record, published by Andrew Jenson, of the Brighamite Church, who is the statistician of that organization. On page 549, volume 7, we find this in regard to the character of the men who were responsible for the statements of the Nauvoo Expositor:

"About the 10th of May a prospectus of a paper called the Nauvoo Expositor was issued and distributed among the people by these apostates. The prospectus stated the intentions of the publishers. . . . Its signers were no others than the two Laws, the two Higbees, and the two Fosters, everyone of them vile, adulterous, base men, who had been guilty of the most outrageous wickedness."

So much in regard to the character of the men. Now the opinion of that historian in regard to the contents of the paper, page 550:

"The Expositor made its appearance June 7, 1844, and was filled with the foulest abuse of Joseph and the saints. . . . Almost every line breathed a murderous spirit, and it was very clear that if such a sheet were suffered to remain in existence, mobs would be raised, and the acts of violence and bloodshed which had been endured in Missouri would be repeated, and the saints be driven from their homes. Anything that disturbs the peace of a community is properly called a nuisance. This sheet was to all intents and purposes, a nuisance.

On page 773, volume 8, the historian quotes from B. H. Roberts, as follows:

"The first, and indeed the only number of the Expositor, was published on the 7th of June, 1844, and contained a most scandalous attack upon the most respectable citizens of Nauvoo. It at once filled the entire city with indignation, and the city council immediately took into consideration what would be the best method of dealing with it."

"I have italicized the words, 'vile, adulterous, and base men,' 'foulest abuse,' 'most scandalous,' etc., to call attention to them especially. Job was a far-seeing man when he said, 'Oh that mine enemy would write a book,' for out of their own mouths they stand condemned.

HYRUM O. SMITH.

POLYGAMY.

NO MORE OF IT, EH?

PROUD OF HIS PROGENY.

In the Millennial Star for February 21, 1901, appears the following:

"Elder A. M. Musser, of the historian's office, Salt Lake City, who says he is seventy one years old, writing on other matters, incidentally gives an interesting memento of old time conditions, which we reproduce that it may be enshrined in the Star, although we ask his pardon for the liberty we take:

"I have four missionaries in the vineyard, all on the Pacific Islands. My sons take readily to missionary labors, which gives me great joy. I have a Kanaka grand-son, a Filipino grand-son, also a Ute grand-daughter, born to me last year, three different grandmothers."

The Utah people may have abandoned the practice of polygamy, and it may be a "dead letter;" but such items as the above, and others continually appearing in their publications, rather indicate that they are only awaiting an opportunity to resume their unholy practices. —Herald.

POLYGAMY IN PARIS.

In another part of the Herald will be found a letter from Bro. Peter Anderson, in which it will be noticed he speaks of the qualified manner in which the Utah people speak of the "practice of polygamy" when referring to the suspension of the practice in this country. The following dispatch from Paris, dated February 16, 1901, to the New York World and the Chicago Chronicle, will probably throw some light on the matter:

"A Mormon sect has just been discovered in Paris with a temple in a private house. Among the male members are sixteen owning fifty-eight wives. One man has seven, with just one child each. Another has three wives, with sixteen children. All Paris Mormons are respectable, industrious citizens.

Although the authorities have been informed of this, it is said that no prosecution is intended, the marriages being strictly religious, with no civil formality, the extra wives being viewed by the state as concubines, whose children, however, can be legitimized without entailing marriage with the mothers.

AN EFFORT IN BEHALF OF POLYGAMY.

The following is the text of a bill passed by both houses of the Utah Legislature, the scope of which is all too plain to those outside of Utah:

"Every person who has reason to believe that a crime or public offense has been committed must make complaint against such person before some magistrate having authority to make inquiry of the same; provided that no prosecution shall be commenced except on complaint of the husband, or wife, or relative of the accused within the first degree of consanguinity, or of the person with whom the unlawful act is alleged to have been committed, or of the father or mother of said person, and no prosecution for plural marriage shall be commenced except on complaint of the wife, or alleged plural wife of the accused; but this proviso shall not apply to prosecutions under section 4,208 of the revised statutes of Utah, 1898, defining and punishing polygamous marriages. —Herald.

Apostle M. F. Cowley, in a sermon in the tabernacle in Salt Lake City, June 23, 1901, referring to the redemption of Zion and returning there (Jackson county):

"Every principle revealed to Joseph Smith would be established in power never to be overcome by its enemies." This was repeated and emphasized. What they say was revealed to Joseph Smith is, of course, the key to this. —R. Eisenhauer.

[CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.]

Renunciation of Judaism.

Benedictus Levita, a Jew, writing for the Berlin Preussische Lehrbucher discusses the prejudices held by all of the Aryan races against the Jews and among other things says:

"Political Equality is granted to the Jew in theory, but in practice it is not fully given. Social equality is often denied, and it must be admitted that only a fraction of the Jews are ripe for a perfect union with the rest of the people. Not at all fit for such a union are the mass of orthodox Jews. In physique, language, mode of life, and way of thinking, they are sharply distinct from the Christians and from the rest of the Jews; and they have no wish to coalesce with their neighbors. Not quite fit are those who, though not orthodox, value their Judaism, but ignore their race problem, and deny the existence of a Jewish question. Fully fit for union are those who see nothing but a useless load in their Judaism. Our cause has retrogressed of late. We are no longer permitted to become army officers in Prussia. A few of the smaller states deny government positions to Jews altogether. This sort of thing embitters, but it is a situation that cannot last. More important is the social boycott. Very many clubs and associations nowadays refuse us membership. Among the upper classes good manners forbid such rough denials, but even here we do not get beyond commonplace civilities. In such circles marriage with Jews is counted impossible; even wealth cannot overcome the obstacles to it. But all this feeling changes when the Jew is baptized. The state drops its objections, and society willingly opens its doors to the convert.

Now, as the baptism is generally sought for reasons other than those due to religious conviction, one would say that the Jew, in order to become an equal, must show himself to be a rascal without character; and this explanation is preposterous.

"The fact is that the German is much more religious than free-thinkers are willing to admit. You cannot imagine him without his Sunday, his Christmas, his Easter, his Pentecost. However much the service of the Church may be despised, they are always made use of at marriage, birth, and death; they are not gladly missed by anyone in the education of their children. It must be admitted too, that with the Jew religion is national. The compact of God with Israel, the exodus from Egypt, the revelations, the ceremonies, all are national. The obsolete religious practices, with their somber character, do not fit in with the happy gaiety of the Christian Germans, their beautiful music, their happy christenings, their Christmas and their Easter. It may be told that the Christian negro, Indian, or Chinaman is not received by his white brothers in America; but we are not negroes, Indians, or Chinaman. It is our religion alone that keeps us apart from the rest of the German people. But we reject reform from a Christian basis. It may be said that we are no longer Jews, yet we cannot be come Christians. We cannot be lieve in the Divinity of Christ. But do the progressive German Protestants, with their higher criticism, believe in it? No; yet they hold fast to the old forms. The same ministers who teach from the pulpit the undogmatic Christianity are compelled to the Holy Trinity before the altar and confess their faith in the 'Son of God.' This cast iron 'I believe' is still there, and we cannot, will not, pronounce the formula, for we cannot believe. A mere formula, a piece of paper, divides us from our most enlightened Christian German brothers.

"But what shall we do? Are we to find a new Jewish-Christian sect in which Christ is recognized as man only? That would only separate us again, and we are tired, so very tired, of separation. Back into Jewdom we will not go, into the German nation we cannot go. The terrible cry of our forefathers is still fulfilled in us: 'His blood be upon us and our children.' Our children. Why should we transmit the curse to them? Why should they suffer for a cause which is no longer anything to us? If we find in Christianity the true religion with the exception of a single doctrine that has lost its force, then we must not educate our children as Jews. The piece of paper which hinders us does not exist for our children. Let them take part in the great spiritual battle which is being fought out in the ranks of Christianity. Ours was the prophet who destroyed the law and taught eternal love. Let the wandering Jew die. Let his children become Christians."

God is moving, his wonders to perform. Is this not a sign of the times that a learned Jew, as this man must be, is preparing the way for the promulgation of the gospel among the Jews? God speed the way! It's coming, brethren, it's coming! I hear the distant rumbling of the mighty host which is moving on! The operations of God's invisibles are becoming so prominent in the developments of this old world that we are no longer in doubt that this is "God's hastening time." To arms, my brethren and sisters in Christ. As the great forces of all the centuries are closing in on each other and the hitherto disinterested are commencing to take sides with one or the other how are you doing? Standing listlessly by while these great preparations are on? Then to work ere it is too late. Even now the faint light in the east indicates the morn of that new day. Never was there more assurance that our gospel is of God. Never more to inspire hope, to allay all fears as to the outcome. Then brush away with the hand of love the cobwebs of despair, and let the sunlight in.

Yours with a newer hope in the final triumph of truth.

Circus Tactics by Rival Soul Savors.

From the Chicago Journal.
"Right in this way; this way to meet the Lord."
"Here you are; right this way. This way to the kingdom of heaven."

"God is blessing us. We're the only people who are praying for you."
"Prayers that others make don't count; come in and pray for yourself. This is the only true way to salvation."

Half a dozen men stood on either side of the hallway of the First Methodist church this morning and tried to persuade the people who came in to go to the meeting revival which they favored personally. They prayed and shouted and sang in their attempt to wean the men and women—mostly women—from their intention to go into the audience room across the hall.

"Come in this way; we don't take any collection," said the thin man who led the men who were talking about the meeting Duke M. Farson was to address at 1 o'clock.

"We do take up a collection, but you don't have to give unless you feel like it," said the representative of Evangelist Shaw, who is holding meetings across the hall. —Kansas City Star, May 9, 1901.

To Avoid Freckles.
The best advice in connection with this subject is to say, "wear a sun bonnet;" and if in doubt whether a sun bonnet can be made attractive and pretty in contrast with the old head-burying abomination of years ago, every woman preparing to go to the country should look at the June Delineator and examine the dainty sun bonnets that are shown there with the crown ups and children.

$100,000,000 in Charity.

The above vast sum was given away by the Baron and Baroness De Hirsch. The Baroness in a large measure prompted the Baron to his remarkable benefactions to the Jews, and after his death the Baroness disposed of a large portion of the fortune left to her by the Baron. Sara K. Bolton, the biographer, speaks of the character and work of the Baroness Clara De Hirsch in the June number of The Delineator. This is the last of a series of six articles by Mrs. Bolton on women givers and their gifts.

THE whole island of New York was originally bought of the Indians for an equivalent of about twenty-five dollars. Today New York has a population of about 3,500,000, which is exceeded by only one other city—London. Its wealth is enormous; its annual expenditures are more than twice those of the Republic of Mexico, and almost one-third as much as those of the German Empire with its population of 52,000,000. And it has become the financial centre of the world.—July Ladies' Home Journal.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Editor's Address, Independence, Mo.

There is a subject which I have often thought has been somewhat neglected by us—and that is that we show too little reverence for the house of God.

Of course this is only seeming for there are none of us but love the place set apart for the worship of God, but I think we can all remember many times that there has been such a buzz of conversation going on all over the church that our presiding elder had to call us to order when the time came for the service to begin.

I have heard this discussed in conversation among the Saints, but while some objected to it others would always answer that we were a sociable people, etc., etc.

But would we not be willing to let our sociability wait till after the service, for the sake of a little more spirituality during it?

I firmly believe in taking note, and profiting by the good example set us, by whatever people or denomination, and I have been so deeply impressed so many times by the solemnity pervading the very air of the different churches I have attended.

To me there is something inspiring indeed in the sight of a congregation, each one of whom have entered quietly, with perhaps only a low spoken word or a smile for those near at hand, and then a season of silent prayer on bended knees—waiting in that solemn hush for the words of Life that are to be spoken. But, alas! how often, too, has my waiting ended in disappointment. How often have I listened to those renowned for their eloquence—waiting each minute for something more real, more tangible—only to find that eloquence was not spirituality.

And here let me say, that I have found my greatest strength in attending churches not of our faith, for the meagerness of their fare has shown me how bountifully our own table is spread.

And shall we who have such great light fail in anything that will aid us in our efforts to grow in that spiritual life that will lead on to perfection?

Girls can not commence a crusade in this matter by each one maintaining a more reverential attitude in the house of God—and I am sure we will be blessed by thus preparing our minds to hear the spoken word.

And as this column is "for the girls" I want to write a few words of encouragement for those who, like myself, were raised in the church, or have been members for years and as yet have no special evidence of the work—but rest assured it will come to you if you will but work for it—perhaps only after intense suffering or much prayer and fasting, but come it will as I can testify from personal experience.

I was much impressed once when reading Christ's answer to his disciples when they asked why they had not been able to cast out the evil spirit, and he replied, "This kind goeth not out but by fasting and prayer." So with many of our blessings, they come only with earnest prayer and fasting.

GRACE FLOWER-BROWN. ST. PAUL, Minn.

This question of order in church is one that can be urged upon many mothers as well as upon the girls. In no other church have I ever seen children allowed to walk about, run in and out, not once perhaps, but often, and so completely appropriate the attention of others, as in our own.

It is no kindness to a child to allow him to be the center of attraction, neither is it best to inculcate in his mind and heart an irreverence for the house of God; his respect for it will not increase with his years. Home is the best place for a child too young or too disobedient to be quiet in church; he should not be taken in there to disturb others, nor make the whole service a time of confusion. This opening and closing of doors, moving chairs, and heavy tip-toeing back and forth through the aisles is productive of annoyance and much unfavorable comment, and surely cannot be altogether pleasing to Him, who in times past, has used every opportunity to impress upon the mind of man that His house is a house of order where reverence and sanctity should prevail.

This may seem an unimportant thing to some mothers who have interesting or wilful children, but try for one Sunday to keep your child quiet and note the pleasing effect of a combined effort in this direction.

JAMESTOWN, Virginia, where the English gained their first foothold in the New World in 1607, was burned in 1676. Today nobody lives there. Little remains to mark the site except a crumbling church tower, dilapidated gravestones and remnants of the foundations of a few houses.—July Ladies' Home Journal.

A TRIBUTE.

Twenty years have glided o'er us
Since we stood in life's young bloom
Clasping hands in God's pure temple
Making vows as bride and groom.
Strength and beauty, love and virtue,
Crowned your brow that eve in June,
God had graced you with great wisdom
Ere you reached life's sunny noon.

Memory's eye looks o'er the decades,
Viewing scenes of peace and joy,
Busy hands and timely council,
Helphmate thou, without alloy.
When the road was rough and thorny,
And the storms were loud and high,
Then you stood 'mid cloud and billow
Like an angel from the sky.

God has blessed our holy union,
Giving us a girl and boy,
Each like blossoms sweet and fragrant,
Fills our home with love and joy,
Willie, nearly eighteen summers,
Lizzie, fourteen years, have seen,
May they evermore do honor
To their mother, and my queen.

In the scale of years I've weighed you,
Measured by the rod of time
Here before our God and people
I rejoice because you're mine;
Years have made you fairer—dearer
Perfected your gifts so rare
Heaven help me to be worthy Evermore your love to share.

Written by Elder R. C. Evans, while walking to Zone conference from Bothwell station, June 7, 1901, and sung by him before a large gathering on the twentieth anniversary of his wedding, June 11, 1901.

The London News has the following to say of that pleasant occasion:
Elder R. C. Evans and wife celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday. Their pretty home at 474 Adelaide Street, was enlivened by the presence of about ninety friends, many of whom came from the States. As a result china abounds all over the house. A diamond ring was also presented to Mr. Evans during the evening. The company broke up at an early hour with many expressions of their esteem for their host and hostess. Mr. and Mrs. Evans left today on a trip east.

Conference Notices.

Quarterly conference of the North-east Texas and Choctaw district will convene with the Shawnee Branch at Douglas, Texas, July 26th, 1901, at 10 a. m.

EARL D. BAILEY, Dist. Pres. GRANNIS, Ark., July 2.

The conference of the Philadelphia district will meet at Baldwin, Maryland, August 3, 1901. We trust to have a good attendance, and reports from all officers in the district.

Geo. W. ROBLEY, Pres. E. B. HULL, Sec.

June 29.

Conference of the Eastern Colorado district will be held in the city of Colorado Springs, August 17th and 18th. We expect the district tent to be there if circumstances will permit. Branches will please take notice and send their reports in due time to J. B. Housh, 655 East Willamette Street, Colorado Springs, Colorado, care of Elder C. R. Duncan. All Saints who expect to attend the conference who may not be acquainted in the city will be met at the train if they send notice of their coming to Bro. Duncan, at the above address.

JOHN B. ROUSH, Pres. A. E. TABOR, Sec. 2942 Calif. St., DENVER, July 3.

Conference of the Oklahoma district will convene during our reunion at Dover, August 24th.

It is hoped all the force of the priesthood, both local as well as general, will be in attendance to this reunion and conference, as well as the Saints of the mission, that a profitable time may be had, and the interests of the work forwarded and strengthened.

S. S. SMITH, Dist. Clerk.

Convention Minutes.

The Clinton district Sunday School association convened at VeVe chapel, May 31st, 1901, with the superintendent, Mina Kearney in charge. All officers of the district were present. The nine o'clock prayer meeting was well attended and the Spirit of peace and unity prevailed and was present during the entire session.

Reports were had from Wheatland, Coal Hill, Rich Hill, Ve Ve, Walker, Nevada, Coal Branch, Maple Grove, Ft. Scott, Kennett Home School, and El Dorado Springs Sunday Schools. Total enrollment gain, since last report, 133. It was decided to do away with the present Teachers' Report, the teachers in the future to report to their superintendent, who gives a summarized report of their work to the conventions.

A simple, helpful class record, arranged by Sr. Vera Goff, of Nevada, was adopted by the convention for use of the schools in the district. Bro. Willis Kearney, of Lowry City, Missouri, being authorized to print them, the schools ordering them from him if desired. Perfect unity, good attention and deep interest manifested by those present made this convention one to be remembered by those present.

IVA KECK, Sec.

NEVADA, Mo., July 3.

Reunion Notices.

Reunion of the Nodaway, Missouri, district will be held at Barnard, Missouri, August 9-10. All adjoining districts are invited to come and help us make this the best reunion in Northwest Missouri. All parties wanting tents report at once to E. S. Pannon, Bedison, Missouri. Nice grove close to town, good water, cheap boarding house tent, good speakers. Come everybody, and take a good rest in a nice place, and partake of this spiritual feast. Sunday School day will be Thursday, August the 15th.

Respectfully, E. S. PANNON.

BEDISON, Mo., July 6.

The Northwest Kansas district reunion will be held in the Riverside Park, Blue Rapids, Marshall County, commencing August 22, continuing to September 1st. Sunday school convention and institute work will be held during reunion.

Hay and straw will be furnished at cost, cook stoves and fuel free for all who come to stay on the grounds. Let all Saints who can possibly come, do so and invite your friends and neighbors to come with you and enjoy a feast of good things.

OTTO NELSON, Com. BELLE T. GRANT, EDW. SANDY.

LINN, Kansas, July 1.

The reunion of the Clinton (Mo.) district will convene three and one half miles north of Wheatland at the Pollock Paxton grove on August 23d, 1901, holding over the second Sunday. All wishing tents please notify secretary of committee by August 1st, as they will be ordered from Kansas City by that date. The tents will rent for no more than what will cover expenses: state what size of tents wanted, 10x12 or 8x10 can be furnished, price according to size.

Wood and straw will be furnished on ground free, also water on grounds or near by. Hay and corn will be sold on grounds at reasonable prices.

W. H. MANNERING, Pres. JOSHUA SANDAGE, Sec. of Com.

To the Saints of North East Kansas district:—Your committee appointed at last conference of above district to make the necessary arrangements for holding a reunion at Forest Park, Atchison, Kansas, hereby inform you, that after having consulted a number of the Saints in different parts of the district, also those whose assistance is desired, we have decided to hold said reunion, commencing September 13th, 1901, and continuing over two Sundays.

Elder T. A. Hougas, Superintendent of Sunday School association, and J. A. Gunsolley, assistant superintendent, who is also president of the Religion, have consented to attend. A sufficient number of good speakers will be in attendance.

The conveniences of Forest Park are of the best, and are offered without price. The invitation to come and occupy is cordial; The belief of many who have considered the matter, is that great good will result from the holding of this reunion.

Full information will be published in the church papers in due time,

Also an illustrated program of about sixteen pages will be ready for free distribution several weeks before the commencement of the reunion.

The committee respectfully ask Elder J. C. Foss, sub-missionary in charge, to assist in all the preparatory work.

I. N. White, Independence, Missouri, missionary in charge.

Samuel Twombly, Netawaka, Kansas district president.

James Baillo, Scranton, Kansas. R. Warnock, 717 Y. St., Atchison, Kansas.

Committee.

June 20.

Two Days' Meeting.

In keeping with the resolution of district conference, there will be a two days' meeting held in the Saints' chapel at Coldwater, Michigan, July 27, 28, also one at Gallien, Michigan, August 3, 4, also one at Hopkins, Michigan, August 10, 11. All are invited to attend and have a spiritual feast. Bring the Holy Spirit with you. Good speakers will be in attendance. If any other meetings are wanted in the district, notify me by letter.

Your brother in hope of eternal life, G. A. Smith, Dist. Pres.

FREMONT, Ind., July 4.

DIED.

ANDES.—At her home, Nashville, Missouri, June 11, 1901, Sr. Maggie Andes. She was born at Angola, Kansas, January 16, 1872. Married to Benjamin Andes, January 18, 1898. She was a model Christian, a good wife, and a loving mother. A kind husband and two sweet children, relatives and a host of friends mourn. Funeral services were held in Saints' chapel at Nashville, sermon by Elder F. C. Keck, assisted by Elder J. A. Davis.

NEEDHAM.—Near Carson, Iowa, June 27th, 1901, Nancy Ann (Petro) Needham. She was born in Franklin county, Ohio, January 8th, 1820, and was baptized by Elder Thomas Nutt, at Wheeler's Grove, August 18th, 1883, was married twice to which unions were born 12 children, 6 boys and 6 girls 8 of whom survive her to mourn their loss. She was beloved by every body, and went to her rest with an assurance of a glorious resurrection. Funeral services from the Saints' chapel, Carson, Iowa, in charge of Elder R. Wright.

FETTER-LEE J., son of Bro. W. C. and Sr. Anna Fetter, was born at Missouri Valley, Iowa, March 5th, 1884, and died near his home, near Valley, Douglas county, Nebraska, June 26th, 1901, by accidental drowning. He was baptized into the church when nine years of age, and has always been a good boy. Funeral services at the gospel tent, at Waterloo, Nebraska, on the 28th inst., by C. E. Butterworth assisted by Oscar Case. A large audience was in attendance at the services, and the remains were laid to rest in the Waterloo cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

Your Hair

"Two years ago my hair was falling out badly. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and soon my hair stopped coming out."

Miss Minnie Hoover, Paris, Ill.

Perhaps your mother had thin hair, but that is no reason why you must go through life with half-starved hair. If you want long, thick hair, feed it with Ayer's Hair Vigor, and make it rich, dark, and heavy.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

John Howard Payne wrote the heart song of the 19th century. He expressed the feelings of millions of his fellowmen in "Home, Sweet Home." What an important place the home is. What an influence, for weal or woe, is there exerted. Some one has said, "there is no place like home" is susceptible to two interpretations. It can be made the most hallowed place on earth or a place to be dreaded.

There is one phase of the home question that will bear much writing upon, and that is, furnishing of the living rooms. Environment has much to do with our happiness in this world as it will in the world to come. God never intended men and women to live in hovels and in squalor. The Lord designed that we should be surrounded with beauty and that which should make us happy. As is recorded in Doctrine and Covenants 59: 4:

And inasmuch as ye do these things, with thanksgiving, with cheerful hearts, and countenance: * * * inasmuch as ye do this the fullness of the earth is yours: the beasts of the fields, and the fowls of the air, and that which climbth upon the trees, and walketh upon the earth: yea, and the herb, and the good things which cometh of the earth, whether for food or for raiment, or for houses or for barns, or for orchards * * * all things which cometh of the earth, in the season thereof, are made for the benefit and the use of man, both to please the eye, and to gladden the heart. Yea, for food and for raiment, for taste and for smell, to strengthen the body, and to enliven the soul.

Should we not know more about furnishing a home now than our ancestors did a century ago? Are we progressing any in taste and refinement? We may be returning to "colonial furniture," etc., but should we not pick out the best of the past, and improve where we can, and confine that which is unsightly to the shades of oblivion.

THE "PARLOR."

When we use that really awful word (to many victims) "parlor," we have visions of an ill ventilated, little used room that is supposed to be too fine to use, and is only for visitors. Why should this room, supposed to be the nicest in the house, be kept closed to those who could enjoy it continuously? We would hasten the demise of the "parlor" and turn it into a bright, cheerful living room; we would take down those old-fashioned portraits of our ancestors, with their—to us of this generation—ridiculous garments and head dresses, all framed in ugly, oval or round, gloomy frames, hung away up near the ceiling; we would replace these with that which would "please the eye and enliven the soul." No disrespect to our ancestors either. We would take out the old hair cloth furniture, dusty and unhealthful (you who pride yourself on your tidiness just give the seat of a chair a tap with the flat of your hand and see how the dust comes out, been in storage for lo! these many years); we would replace this with plain, tasty, up-to-date furniture that don't have to have a cover put over it for fear it would become soiled. HAVE A HOME THAT IS NOT TOO NICE TO USE.

Wear out your carpets with use, don't let the moths eat 'em up. And after they are worn out don't buy any more because they hold too much dust for the labor saving, ideal homes our people should have; adopt the modern improvement of druggets or art squares for the floor, house cleaning will have lost its terror to some extent with no carpets to lift and put down again.

Let's look at this matter with 20th century eyes. What may have been the taste of your ancestors may not please your children, and because of an uninviting home, it may be the direct means of driving them away. Young people enjoy that which is nice, and very often that which is modern.

ALL TASTES BE SATISFIED.

Why not, where it is possible, let the young people furnish their rooms to suit their own taste, and when it comes to the living rooms of the family, have a general consultation, that which would please the majority, ruling.

God has said in the book of Revelation that the streets of the New Jerusalem were to be of gold, etc. Gold is the best word John could find to convey to the mind that we might picture the beauty of the streets. Let us reason from this basis then. If the streets were beautiful, the homes were also beautiful, as the homes are really part of the street, and if the homes are to be beautiful the furnishing inside would be also to carry out the eternal fitness of things. God holds out to us as an incentive, a beautiful home in the future. He would entice us to heaven through a beautiful home. He knows what value to place upon the importance that the home is to us here. Let us have as tasty, inviting and refined homes as we possibly can, but avoid any loud, gaudy, unsubstantial furnishings that give anything but an air of refinement to the home.

FAMILY RIGHTS

We have often heard of "woman's rights" and "children's rights," but in the home "family rights" hold sway. What right has any individual in the family to so manifest their individuality in the way the house is furnished that the balance have had no opportunity to carry out their pet notions?

We may not be blessed with much of this world's goods, but something useful and ornamental can occasionally be added to a room here and there that will improve the tone of the home and make it more attractive to its inmates. The wants of the family demand home improvements.

It is the little things in life that count, and with these taken care of the whole will be a magnificent triumph. It may be only a little thing for the father to lay aside all his cares of the day and come home with a smile, but it may mean an evening of enjoyment or of gloom to the others of the family. The mother may have had sore vexations during the day, but at this daily reunion she should make it the business of her life to emit cheerfulness as a restful balm to the weary. "Saints should be cheerful in their warfare."

OVER TIDINESS.

Over tidiness may not be as bad as untidiness, but it is to be avoided. Don't consider it an unpardonable sin in housekeeping to have some papers lying around handy on a table where they can be read during spare moments. Good books always handy for use may be the means of developing a taste for reading. Magazines with short articles are popular with the young today. They will often read these when they would not think of attempting to read a book. Cultivate a taste for reading in the home, and have a good light, with shade, to read by.

Now parents, go over the house, see how you can improve it for your own enjoyment and that of your children, and as your means may permit, furnish it in a refined, tasteful manner, make it bright and cheery, and it will ever live in the memory as

Home, Sweet Home.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

SOMETIMES testifying sounds too much like boasting.

THE best way to get along in this latter day work is to move right along.

IF this latter day work cannot convert sinners into Saints, the gospel of Jesus Christ has never performed that feat.

PEOPLE who don't know what they ought to know, don't know very much, no matter how much they know.

"OBJECTIONS ANSWERED," the new sermon pamphlet, is just the thing to hand to outsiders. Every page interesting. Twenty-five cents a dozen.

ANY man or woman who is starving to death in the church for want of spiritual food, must have an awful case of dyspepsia of some kind, or a woeful lack of the power of assimilation.

THE law of affinity sends the righteous seeking the good, the wicked hunting the evil, the spiritual searching for the spiritual. What are the characteristics of those you are congenial with?

By having "smoked" glass put over powerful telescopes, some of our religious contemporaries, who will not accept the whole gospel, in the hereafter may recognize a lot of Latter Day Saints marching in the white robed procession—that is, if the observer hasn't been sent too far away.

HAVE you ever noticed a big Shaughai rooster, or a little bantam fellow find some choice morsel, then cluck with persistence and vigor, until he gets a flock of hens around him, and then coolly gobble the goody himself and go his way feeling he has done his whole duty? Have you ever seen an elder gather a flock of Saints around him to partake of the social feast, and then use nearly all the time himself? This don't mean you though, brother.

ELDER W. W. BLANCHARD, writing from Birch Harbor, Me., July 2d, says the work is looking fine. Six have been baptized.

BRO. L. C. DONALDSON, Riverton, Iowa, advises that Bro. J. F. Mintun and Charles Fry have been holding meetings at that place and were to continue over Sunday, July 7th, making three weeks' services there. Meetings were held in the auditorium of the Riverton Park and the people are manifesting interest. There has been preaching every night, with Sunday School at 9:30 a. m. and preaching at 11 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 7:00 p. m., which certainly evidences good interest, considering the extreme heat prevalent recently.

Extracts from Letters.

ELDER RICHARD BALDWIN, 97 Elm Street, Sharon, Pa., July 6: Have just got through holding a three weeks' meeting at Titusville, Pennsylvania. Had fair crowds and baptized three. Many new openings for us to fill and the work is onward.

ELDER W. S. MACRAE, Center, Arkansas, June 24:

Bro. Ward and I are holding meetings here with one interest. This is where Bro. Ward won a complete victory in debate with Rev. King, "Campbellite." Much prejudice was removed.

ELDER T. W. CHATBURN, Ono, Wisconsin:

We organized a new branch here yesterday (June 23d) to be known as the Ono branch. Crowds are good and many interested. Weather hot and rainy; health fairly good.

FRANK P. SCARCLIFF, Mobile, Alabama, July 5:

Our district convention and conference which was held near here last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday was one of the best ever held in the Mobile district: it was truly an enjoyable and profitable session; there was such a loving, kindly influence present that all were encouraged, strengthened and blessed.

Mrs. (Sr.) Effie J. McCullough, Pond Creek, Oklahoma Territory, July 5:

I have a family on each side of our house who are interested in the restored gospel. They are reading what literature I gave them. I have spoken to others, and in the country where we had preaching last winter and spring a number are interested and have been reading our literature. They want to hear the gospel again and I have written Bro. Hubert Case to have the tent brought here this summer, and I want to prepare the way.

BRO. A. W. KELLEY and family, of Indian River, Maine, have suffered a deep affliction in the drowning of their son George. To add to their burden of sorrow the body was not recovered; it was seen floating on the water by a neighbor boy who was out in a boat, but before assistance could be had it passed on out to sea, and they have given up all hope of recovering it. In a letter to Bro. J. C. Foss, Bro. Kelley says the loss to them is no trial of his faith; he says:

I am established in the gospel. God has been good enough to make known to me that this latter day work is true, and if I should lose every friend in this world it would not shake my faith. But if I had not known that the work is true, I should of all men be most miserable, as the Apostle has said. But now we know that Christ has risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that sleep.

How sweet and precious is the hope of the gospel; when human sympathy in our distress is unavailing to console and comfort the wounded heart, or fill the aching void occasioned by the loss of loved ones.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

A shower visited us Wednesday afternoon which was gratefully received.

The preacher Sunday at 11 a. m. will be Pres. G. H. Hulmes, and Elder Robert J. Parker at 8 p. m.

Elder William Aylor arrived home this week from his field in Indian Territory.

Pres. Smith, Alex. Smith and Joseph Luff left last week for California. Bro. Alex. will soon depart for Australia.

Sr. Clark just returned from Glenwood, Iowa, from visiting her son. She is now going to visit her daughter in Idaho.

The basket meeting at Chelsea park was largely attended during the day, many strangers being present. Elder I. N. White preached in the morning, Elder J. D. White at 2:30, and Pres. G. H. Hulmes in the evening.

Elder John A. Robinson was the speaker Sunday morning. Bishop R. May had charge of the social meeting, and was the speaker at the evening service. The social meetings are uniformly good here, inspiration being made manifest through the different God-appointed channels.

All the Independence stake branches handing in results of vote on question "shall we hold a reunion this year," voted no, except the Armstrong branch, which voted 10 for and 6 against. The matter of the drouth seemed to be the deciding point with the majority.

Every branch in the church should have a stock of our new sermon tract, by Pres. Joseph Smith, "Objections Answered." A splendid sermon to distribute. 25 cents per dozen, at Ensign Publishing House.

Tuesday evening, July 16, at the home of the bride, Sr. Anna L. Crick and Bro. Nephi were married by President G. H. Hulmes. Sr. Anna is the oldest daughter of Bro. Wm. Crick, former proprietor of the Ensign, and Bro. Nephi is the son of Bro. R. May, bishop of the stake. We extend congratulations.

As young people start out on a new life, it is a splendid opportunity to start right, and they can have that promise of the Savior realized when he spoke of his Father and himself, "We will come unto him and make our abode with him."

What splendid company! When the home altar is erected (this is getting to be a lost art in American homes) reading a few moments every evening from one of the three books of the church, will, in the course of a year, cover a surprising amount of ground. Young people should adopt this method and stick to it.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The continued heat and drouth is causing alarm. People seek cool resorts and wonder what all this means. This is but a gentle hint from the Ruler of the universe "to prepare ye, prepare ye, for that which is to come," make peace with Him whose sword is bathed in heaven, and is beginning to fall upon an unbellying and rebellious world.

Let the Saints stand in holy places—that the destroyer may pass them by.

In our week's meeting at South St. Joseph mission, we have been greatly blessed in preaching the word. Some of our young sisters have proven themselves real missionaries by the use of their talent of music and song. Sr. Josie Isleib, Sr. Pearl Smith, Srs. Myra and Daisy Booker gave special aid to the missionary in this way.

Health is gradually returning to us. In the midst of the heat in the last eight days, we have had strength to preach nine times; baptize six, and attend five other services, and are not worn out either.

Bro. Peter Anderson came to the city on Saturday and occupied at the church morning and evening. The writer preached at Aspey mission in the morning, and at South St. Joseph mission in the evening, Bro. Best occupying the evening hour at Aspey. Bro. Anderson expresses anxiety to get to his field, from which he has been detained by force of circumstances. The Danish paper will soon be a reality again.

A prize was offered by the manager of an insurance company here for the most and best work done within a certain time. Bro. L. Neidorp, very poorly in health, was one of the twelve competitors. He started in with a prayer for help, and was awarded the prize in the end, of the race. May we all so run that we may obtain the great prize. We can do so if we follow Bro. Neidorp's example, pray and work.

At this writing Grandma Jones is lingering between life and death, the watchers expecting the end at any moment. She is prepared for the change, and, through much affliction, is made pure, and prepared for the Master's presence.

LATER—Grandma Jones passed away at 11:15 a. m.

Yours to the end,

J. M. TERRY.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Bishop E. L. Kelley and wife started towards England, via Kirdland and Boston, on the 8th inst.

President Joseph Smith and Patriarch A. H. Smith, and assistant, Bro. Gould, started to California on the 9th, the latter two to go to Australia.

Very good instructions were given yesterday, Sunday 14th, on the gathering, consecration and other topics, by Elder F. M. Smith and Bishop Wm. Anderson and Bro. Richard Lambert.

Hot, dry and dusty here.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 6781 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Regret to say that the hot weather is having some effect upon our congregations; however, there were a number of strangers at service yesterday evening, and were treated to a good sermon; Bro. F. A. Smith was speaker, assisted by Bro. Jno. Dawson.

Sr. Lydia Billinsky returned home after the 4th; Sr. Grace Johnson has gone away visiting in Lamoni; Sr. Christenson has returned from her sojourn; Bro. Archibald was out of town yesterday, having run up to Nebraska, where his family is at present.

Bro. Geo. Barracough has accepted a position in East St. Louis, which will take him from very active service here. Bro. Dan DeJung took a brief river trip during the past week.

Mrs. Trowbridge, of Parsons, came up, arriving Sunday morning, as Bro. and Sr. Dick Trowbridge are having quite a time with their little son Myron, who is quite ill; last reports were that the little lad was some better.

Bro. Ed Bell has returned from visiting with relatives and friends in the vicinity of Lamoni; his wife is still sojourning at Lamoni.

Bro. Arthur Burgess recently left for a visit in Nebraska with relatives.

Branch, Sunday School and Religio elections resulted in some few changes in the list of officers.

Sr. Lulu Dawson has been ill, but has partially recovered, enough, at least, to attend services.

Reunions much talked of now.

"Ye correspondent" recently made a flying trip to Pawnee, Missouri, capturing her son, who has been having a good time with grandfather and mother. We returned home on the 7th.

Very sorry to know that Chicago surroundings got the better of our genial Bro. F. M. Sheehy.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH. 2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Ritzenhauer, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1355.

First Kansas City branch have observed the day of fasting and prayer with a good degree of faith, that the good Lord will send us blessings of help spiritually, so that we may live right and let our light shine to such an extent that we may be instrumental in His hand to accomplish much good; also that rains may fall, and this drouth with which we have been suffering so long may be abated.

The only meeting at our church on Sunday was Sunday School at 9, and closed at 10. Nearly all went out to Chelsea Park to the union mission meeting, which had been arranged for by missionary, Elder J. D. White. The day was delightful, and the Saints of this city, and many from Independence, came, and it seemed that the good Spirit came with them. The pavilion in the park is in size about 80x200 feet, quite comfortably seated. At 11 a. m. the choir sang a number of the sweet songs of Zion, Apostle I. N. White in charge, Elder F. C. Warnky offered prayer; the Spirit of prayer rested upon the entire congregation, and a grand time was anticipated. Apostle J. N. White was the speaker, and by the help of God he was blessed in breaking the bread of life, to such an extent that all, both Saints and sinners, rejoiced in the glorious truths of the gospel in these latter days restored again. At 12:30 dinner was served in groups throughout the park, and a general social time had.

Mr. A. R. Ford, one of the owners of the park, was present; he is an intimate friend of Elder F. C. Warnky, who took pleasure in introducing him to the leading members of the church, and made it pleasant for him in general. Mr. Ford told us that we could have the park to hold meetings in, and all of the privileges of the park, free of charge, whenever we wished to.

At 2 p. m., after singing, Elder W. H. Pease offered prayer, and Pres. J. D. White was the speaker. Under the inspiration of God he forgot himself, and, if possible, the afternoon sermon was better than in the morning.

At 4:30 a session of Sabbath School was organized, Elder J. D. White, superintendent; Br. Clow, Warnky, Blair, Srs. Blair and Robinson acted as teachers; at the close of which a goodly collection was taken up for the benefit of the mission Sunday School.

An abundance of provision had been supplied and the inner man was again well taken care of.

At 7:30 p. m., after a few songs, Elder Warnky offered prayer and introduced Elder G. H. Hulmes, president of the Stake of Zion, as the speaker for the evening; and, as at the feast of the wedding at Canaan, the last of the wine was the best. At the close Bro. Warnky pronounced the benediction, asking that God would so bless the seed sown this day, with the dews of heaven, for a good harvest to the glory of God and the salvation of precious souls. Thus ended a day, a foretaste of what we look for in the sweet by and by.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

The weather is very hot, but no prostrations.

There is quite a commotion in religious circles over the decision of Judge Palmer, allowing the saloons to keep open on Sunday, and allowing women to frequent the wine rooms. His decision, while it may be good law, is very poor morals and will be contested to the courts of last resort.

Among the late arrivals in the city from other points are, Sr. Coates, of Omaha; Sr. Kate Smith and Bro. W. J. Clow and his mother and sister, Bro. Wm. Mills, with his wife and mother, all of Independence; Bro. Richard and Sr. Sarah Head, of Stew-artsville, Missouri; Bro. Parker, of Pleasanton, Iowa; Bro. Merriyman, of Cripple Creek, Colorado; and Bro. Emsley Curtis and wife, of Bryant, Colorado. Bro. Mills, wife and mother left for Colorado Springs on Wednesday, to remain a few days, and then will take up their abode in Denver.

Srs. Simmon and Johnson are sufficiently recovered to attend church services.

Bro. Arthur Smith has returned from St. Joseph, to take a position with the Shredded Wheat Company.

Bro. Joseph Schmutz has recovered enough to return home from the hospital.

Bro. Samuel Platt, who has been a sufferer from cancer of the throat for some time, passed away Sunday, the 7th, and was buried from his late home on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., service in charge of Elder E. F. Shupe, sermon by Elder J. B. Roush, interment at Fairmount.

Bro. Stuart's babe, which was given up to die by the doctor, is rapidly recovering.

Bro. Chas. Everett forwards to the bishop for Graceland, a subscription list of $196.50, considerable of which has been paid; he also has a subscription of $91.25 on the $25.00 subscriptions, most of which we believe will be paid.

At the special fast and prayer service, the 7th, the voice of the Spirit was that, those who had been called and ordained to the different offices in the church should magnify their office and calling, as far as possible, and they should be blessed in so doing. No instructions to ordain others to fill the vacant offices other than the above.

At the election of officers for the Religio, Leo Shupe was chosen president; Fred Mottashed, vice president; Ada Powers, secretary; Homer Shupe, treasurer; Sr. Mae Everett, corresponding secretary.

Preaching Sunday morning by Elder J. B. Roush. No evening service.

PROVIDENCE, RHODE ISLAND.

The Religio held its semi-annual election of officers on Tuesday evening, July 9th, with the following choice: Bro. John D. Suttill, president; Bro. Fred Roberts, vice president; Sr. Mabel Gondoff, secretary; Bro. Adolph Leckney, treasurer; Bro. Fred Roberts, critic. Before the business part of the program an interesting study of parliamentary law in the Book of Rules was had, conducted by Elder M. H. Bond. Sr. Mabel Gondolph read a very interesting paper at a recent session of the local on "What is a Good Religian."

It is anticipated that the program committee will give some important numbers in their future programs. The regular Religio prayer service was held Sunday, July 7, at 5 p. m., Bro. John D. Suttill in charge. These meetings are profitable from a spiritual and an intellectual standpoint. All should interest themselves to attend.

The local L. D. S. Sunday School elected the following officers at its recent election: Bro.

Edward Fox, superintendent; Bro. Fred Roberts, assistant superintendent; Bro. Adolph Leckney, secretary; Bro. Daniel Joy, treasurer; Sr. Ora Holmes, chorister; Sr. Laura Fraser, organist; Brn. Otis Toombs and Master Fred Clark, librarians. The school held its annual picnic at Hunt's Mills, East Providence, on Thursday, July 11, leaving Cranston street, head of Bellevue avenue, at 9:30 a. m., on special car, making the entire journey by electric.

Dr. John Gilbert, Sr. Susie Gilbert, Bro. W. A. Sinclair and Bro. Harry Howlett, of Fall River, were among the guests present. A very pleasant and enjoyable time was had by all. Some of the time was given up to games, potato and foot races, etc.

On Monday evening, July 8th, the regular business meeting of the Providence branch was held in their chapel, Bellevue Ave.; the officers as elected were: High Priest M. H. Bond, president; Elder G. H. Gates, first priest; Elder Wm. Bradbury, second priest; Brn. J. D. Suttill, Henry Arnold, James T. MacKinnon, teachers; Bro. M. Gondolf, deacon; Bro. Priestly Suttill, clerk; Bro. Daniel Joy, treasurer; Bro. Adolph Leckney, organist, with full charge of vocal and instrumental music.

The Plainville (Mass.) Religio celebrated its first anniversary with a lawn party on the grounds of Mr. and Sr. H. E. Coombs at Plainville on Tuesday evening, July 9th. Good attendance was had and a very pleasant time. Ice cream and refreshments were on sale; the young people played games, etc.

UNCLE BURNSIDE.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 8, 1901.

Dear Ensign:—As the superintendent of the Northeastern Illinois Sunday School association, I desire to write a few lines to the readers of your most valuable paper. My time for the past three years having been almost wholly taken up with local branch and Sunday School work, I have not been able to do as much visiting among the various schools of this district as I would have liked to have done, and as the condition of the work demanded. The change that I had for some time hoped would take place, occurred at the last business meeting of the Hope or Israel Sunday School when I was released from the superintendency of this school. I say "hoped would take place," not that I have less interest in this school, but because of a desire to answer some of these other demands that are being made for my service; and knowing that there were others fully qualified for this work, I urged that a change be made, and as a result I have been set free, so that I can now discharge some of the duties that I owe to the other schools of this district. I became so attached to this school, that it is quite a task for me now to deny myself their associations each Sabbath; but we take up our cross and go where duty calls. Much good has been done by this school; and many happy experiences have we passed through which will be pleasant to look back and meditate upon. Since May 10th I have kept busy in the new line of work, that at times looms up before me.

We attended the district convention held at Mission, and were permitted to see many of the workers of the district, and to make some new acquaintances. The routine business of the association was dispensed with in a short time, following which the Religio convention convened, and among other items of interest, a paper, full of bright and encouraging thoughts, was read; our much afflicted but patient brother, Elmer Johnson, was the author. At night the Sunday School and Religio combined and gave an entertainment, which was pronounced a splendid success, notwithstanding the fact that the rain prevented some from attending. Mission at present has the banner school of this district; but look out, there are others in the race. We had a very nice time throughout our stay at Mission: all the meetings were very enjoyable; preaching by Elders David Anderson, F. M. Sheehy, D. M. Rudd and A. J. Keck; all were fine sermons which were listened to by large and attentive audiences.

June 6th, I visited the Central Chicago Sunday School which is located at 3411 Cottage Grove avenue, and which is very nicely superintended by Bro. John Harris. At this point, all are full of life and energy; all seem to be trying to do something for the advancement of the great work. The interest in both the Sunday School and branch is at a high pitch and the prospects for the good work to continue in the future are very encouraging.

Through the efforts of Bro. E. J. Lang a handsome gospel horse and wagon has been procured, and most every night street preaching will be conducted during the summer season. By this method the people are being reached in this great city. Last Monday evening the undersigned, in company with Bro. Lang, spoke to a large and attentive audience for over an hour at the corner of 34th street and Cottage Grove avenue. This is the hardest work of the kind that I have ever done: but I don't think I ever felt better in telling of the angel message than I did upon this occasion. We are in hopes that we shall be able to gather into the gospel net as many, if not more, than was caught in this manner last summer. Bro. Lang, Cochran, Pement and Strange are among the active ones on the street this far.

On June 23d we visited the West Pullman school and did what we could to encourage those who are trying so hard to keep the work going. It was thought at one time that the Saints would have to give up their hall, so many moving away has left the burden resting on a few; but a rally was made, and by a united effort we hope to see West Pullman doing a good work. Bro. Burwell, whose business called him away, is among those whose services are greatly missed.

On June 16th I attended the Children's Day exercises at our own beloved Hope of Israel School that is being nicely superintended by Bro. Richard Penney, and associated with him are a number of efficient and talented workers, who are doing much to spread the truth. What a pleasant sight it is to see those who only a short time ago were outside of the ark of safety, now occupying as officers and teachers in the blessed Sunday School work. About twenty-five members of the Central Chicago school attended this service, and many rendered what assistance they could to make this exercise a successful one. A very pleasant time was had.

July 7th (yesterday) I attended the Sunday School at DeKalb, Illinois, which is located about sixty-two miles west of Chicago on the Northwestern R. I was met at the depot Saturday night by the smiling face of Bro. John L. Cooper (son of Elder F. M. Cooper), and was conducted to his home. The following day we had the pleasure of telling of some of the benefits of membership in the Sunday School district association which resulted in the school, by resolution, making application for membership into our district. They have chosen the very fitting name of "The Barb City Sunday School." Bro. Cooper has been chosen as the superintendent, and he has a fine staff of able assistants. It is something remarkable to see the amount of interest that is manifest at this place at this time of year. Many schools are having a summer collapse, while here is manifest a self-sacrificing, earnest and determined spirit to forward and build up the cause of Christ. A deep feeling of interest was manifest as we explained the various duties of the officers and teachers, and introduced the association's method of conducting the Sunday School service, and in teaching the lessons. About thirty-five members were in attendance yesterday, and some of these do not belong to the church. By all settling a good, personal example, with the spirit of love and unity that does now exist, we look for a good work to be accomplished in DeKalb in the near future. Banner Sunday School, look out! Bro. E. M. Wildermuth, of the missionary force, delivered an able discourse in the afternoon on the subject, "Be ye therefore perfect." I enjoyed my visit to DeKalb very much, and I was sorry to have to leave so soon, and I guess John was too as he tried hard to cause me to miss the train. Thus far my experiences in district work have been very pleasant, all making me welcome and extending me an invitation to return again. I have other points in my mind that I want to visit in the near future.

With my best wishes and kindest regards to you all, I remain

Your brother and co-laborer in gospel bonds,

F. M. PITT.

WHEELING, W. Va., June 15.

Elder Ensign:—After enjoying one of the best conferences of the Reorganization, I started from Independence for Heartsboro, Indian Territory, on the 24th of April to look after the estate of a deceased brother. Not wishing to be idle, I made a new opening there, where the true gospel had never been heard of. While waiting for trip permit, I wended my way to Wilburton, and met with the Saints: had a very pleasant time while there, and by invitation preached four times. I was kindly cared for at the hospitable home of Bro. and Sr. Adamson Jr.

On Sunday, June 24th, we all drove out to Boiling Springs to meet with the Indians. Arrived about noon; spread our dinners under the shade and while eating, the Indian preacher came and requested us to preach for them, which fell to my lot. I spoke upon the principles of the two baptisms, how we were entitled to the baptism of the Holy Ghost, and that it must be administered by one having divine authority. The preacher took notes, and seemed to be well pleased with what he heard.

After I closed Bro. Adamson spoke a short time upon the lost record of their forefathers. By request the Indian preacher gave a short address to them in their own tongue. He invited the Saints to meet with them again the first Sunday in June. We gather from this that they were pleased with our visit.

On Monday I returned to Heartsboro expecting my permit, and to leave the next day, but was informed I had to first fill out a blank and wait returns, which would require ten days. On learning this I immediately began to look for a place to hold meetings. The Holiness people very kindly opened their church building. I preached about one week, and had the pleasure of baptizing four precious souls, Bro. and Sr. Fassig and Bro. and Sr. White. I wrote for Bro. Adamson to come and take charge of the work. He sent Bro. Grimes, on Thursday, and he came himself on Saturday. They rendered valuable service, and their efforts were highly appreciated. I feel if the work be continued there, a people will be raised up to the honor of God's cause. Bro. Adamson intended returning the following Saturday, to deliver some chart lectures on the street.

As bishop's agent for the Pittsburg district, I wish to say a few words to the Saints in regard to tithing.

Some of the Saints have done nobly the past year. Over fifteen hundred dollars were paid to the agent in tithes and offerings. This is a great credit to the Saints of this district, and I hope, as we were entering in upon a new year and century, we will not fail to continue in the good work to do our whole duty in paying all of our tithes and offerings into the church each month as the Lord promises each one of us. While some have done very well in paying their tithes and offerings, many have not done anything in the way of tithes. It is required of each of us, by the Lord, to pay all our tithes and offerings into the church. This is one way of laying up treasures in heaven where moths do not corrupt nor thieves break through and steal.

By reading the word of God we find this a law given to Abraham and all his posterity, to pay their tithes and offerings for the support of the ministry and the poor of the church. The Lord accused ancient Israel for robbing Him. But how? "Wherein have we robbed thee?" "In tithes and offerings. 'Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.'"—Mal. 3: 8-10. This grand promise should be sufficient encouragement for all God's people to willingly pay into God's storehouse His share and avoid being classed among the robbers.

In Doctrine and Covenants 6: 5, the Lord says this is a day of tithing of His people, "Behold, now it is called today (until the coming of the Son of man), and verily it is a day of sacrifice, and a day for the tithing of my people, for he that is tithed shall not be burned at his coming." Here is the best insurance policy we can hold in that great day of burning.

Send all moneys to No. 70 Water street, Wheeling, West Virginia.

Ever praying and laboring for the upbuilding of Zion, I am

Your brother in gospel bonds,

L. D. ULLON.

St. JOSEPH, Mo., June 24.

Elder Ensign:—I have been a reader of your— I had better say "our"—ENSIGN ever since my companion and myself became members of the church, on the 11th of February, 1893. It was a memorable day. The previous Sunday we had given our names for baptism, and it seemed that his Satanic majesty tried his best to prevent it. On the 5th of February, one day after we handed in our names, our oldest son was accidentally drowned in the Missouri river, and the river being covered with ice we never recovered his body. Can you realize the grief and sorrow and suspense which we experienced during that week preceding our baptism? But thanks to the consoling words of our beloved brother, J. M. Terry, in connection with the prayers of the dear Saints of the St. Joseph branch, we were able to bear the burden.

The day set for our baptism arrived, and so did a terrific snow storm, one of the worst I have ever experienced; all traffic was stopped, no street cars running, and some friends, who had come to stay with our children while we went to church, begged us to stay at home, saying that no one would be out on a night like that, but we were determined, and taking up our bundle we waded all the way through the snow, which was about a foot deep on the level. We arrived at the church all right, and found quite a number of faithful Saints assembled to witness the baptisms. Three candidates, besides ourselves, were in waiting, all the result of a series of sermons preached by Bro. Joseph Luff. O, how we enjoyed those sermons! We were baptized and confirmed that same night. Joy and peace entered our souls and we can now, after all these years, bless the day when we entered into a covenant with our Father in heaven, who, according to his promise, has given us peace and comfort and joy unspeakable at times. He has confirmed His word to us by giving us dreams and visions and countless other spiritual manifestations in times of need. All honor and praise and glory be unto Him forever more.

I have been requested by a number of the Saints here to write up an experience I had with some men in the factory where I am employed, showing how divine assistance comes in time of need. The men spoken of claim to be Free Thinkers, and are constantly throwing insinuations at the Saints. One morning a clipping from some newspaper was found pasted upon the ice water tank. It read like this:

"Once upon a time the Saints held a convention. It was international and harmonious. Preliminary to general business, two resolutions were offered:

"1. Resolved, The earth belongs to the Saints.

"2. Resolved, We are the Saints."

Around the above clipping were four narrow strips of paper, one on each side, one above and one below. The one above and the two on the sides bore the following words in lead-pencil writing:

"Get off the earth, or do as 'we' want you to."

I at once guessed who had placed these things there, and after consulting with some of the brethren who work for the same firm, I framed the following reply:

"Be it further resolved:

"1st, That 'get off the earth or do as 'we' want you to,' has been the motto of the enemies of the Saints from the beginning of the human race, and they have accordingly set about to destroy them.

"2d, That a certain class is spoken of in the 20th chapter of Revelation, 9th verse, who encompassed the camp of the saints with a view of helping them off the earth. But fire came down from heaven and devoured them. Therefore,

"Repeat of your evil ways and become Saints."

These resolutions I gave to Bro. Charles Hübacher, who had them printed on a typewriter, and who then pasted them up alongside of the other clipping. A few hours after the answer had been read these questions were written under it in lead pencil:

"Are you a Saint? If so, what is a Saint?"

"These questions came home to me with great force, direct as they were. What could I answer? If I said yes, and explained what a Saint should be, I would have only met with ridicule. I felt inclined to tell them about some of their sins and evil habits, and show them that they, at least, were not Saints, but wisdom said, that will not do, and I was at a loss what to do, when I retired for a few minutes to a quiet place, and I said: "Lord, what shall I say?" Instantly the following lines ran through my mind:

"Am I a Saint?"

"Why would'st thou know? Would'st thou on thy vain praise bestow?"

Or would'st thou, from thine evil heart,

Write words of scorn to make me smart?"

If thou would'st learn a saint to be,

Cast off deceit, God's child to be.

I am not poetically inclined, and was, therefore, very much surprised to receive the answer to the questions in rhyme, but I wrote them down, and, as before, Bro. Chas. Hübacher had them copied on the typewriter and pasted in line.

It was not long till a number of the men had read the answer, and some of those who knew about the circumstances came to me and commented favorably on it, but as soon as these two Free Thinkers had read it, it was torn down, and the end is not yet, perhaps.

I enjoy reading the articles, sermons and letters in the ENSIGNS and Heralds, and hope that these lines may strengthen some one. But as this letter is getting rather long, I will close.

Yours in bonds,

HENRY B. TADDICKEN.

And after all, what is a lie?

It's but the truth in masquerade.

'Thought is the property of him who can entertain it, and of him who can adequately place it.

EXAMINATION OF THE REVELATION ON POLYGAMY.

BY ELDER E. L. KELLEY.

COMPILED BY ELDER R. ETZENHOUSER.

[CONCLUDED.]

THE PER CENT OF IT—LATE FEATURE.

The Herald is indebted to Sr. Pauline Higgins, Salt Lake City, for a "Souvenir of Utah and Utah Interests," to which is added a "Sketch of Utah and Mormonism," by O. F. Whitney. From the sketch we quote as follows: "As early as 1862 Congress had legislated upon the subject of polygamy, the plural marriage system of the saints, practiced by Joseph Smith and other Mormon leaders at Nauvoo, but never publicly promulgated by the church until 1852. Never at any time did more than two per cent of the Mormon people practice plural marriage, though all or most of them believed the principle to be divine. * * To the saints it was a key to the celestial kingdom—the highest degree of heavenly glory," etc. According to this statement, but two per cent of the Mormon people availed themselves of the "key to the celestial kingdom—the highest degree of heavenly glory."

On Wednesday, August 30, 1899, the Boston Herald contained an open letter to the mayor, enlightening that officer concerning the traditional liberty of speech, supposed to have been so long exercised and enjoyed on the historic grounds, making several statements about the people of Utah and their faith. Among these is the following:

"You must also have understood that the practice of polygamy ceased at the time of Utah becoming a state. Furthermore, the Mormon missionaries do not, and never did, preach the doctrine of polygamy in any direct or indirect manner. As regards myself, I never had but one wife, and I do not know of one among the eighteen hundred missionaries of our church now out in the world who has a second wife. Not more than about three per cent of our people ever practiced polygamy, and persecution raged against us and the prophets were slain long before this practice was known to the church. And, though our enemies talk as if polygamy and Mormonism were synonymous, neither of these terms is descriptive of our faith and worship. The first is renounced, and the second is but a nickname."

Elder Ephraim Jensen unwittingly stated a fact in his letter in this item, for which he is entitled to our thanks.—Herald.

TRUTHS TOLD AT RANDOM.

The Yoeman's Shield of January, 1901, contains a purported report of a visit of one Dr. C. B. Paul to Salt Lake City, Utah, in which visit he had an interview with Elder Ephraim Jensen, of the Utah church. An item or two taken from that interview will be of interest. He wrote thus:

"Here is a little history learned from him:

"First, Polygamy was not practiced by the Mormons prior to and at the time of the execution of Joseph Smith, who was executed at Nauvoo, Illinois.

"Fourth, That only three per cent of the Mormon men practiced polygamy—a proof itself, says Mr. Jensen, that it was not essential to the creed."

If these peculiar statements continue to be made by our Utah contestants, the world will be compelled ere long to admit that our contention that polygamy was never a legitimate part of the faith as promulgated by Joseph Smith, the seer, is correct.—Herald.

THEIR CHILDREN RISE UP IN JUDGMENT AGAINST THEM.

Mrs. Susie Young Gates, of Provo, Utah, visiting in New York, is reported in the Deseret News telegraphic items for March 16, 1901, as saying:

"As to plural marriages, I wish as much as possible to follow the advice given me by the President of my church. He said to me, 'Don't talk about that. The time is past when it could be talked about, and the people have given it up.' But I would like to say that, even in the old days, only about four per cent of the Mormons were of that order. At Provo, where I live, I had occasion the other day to count up the number of families that had practiced that institution; there were just two out of fourteen hundred. I would not have any one understand me as opposed to the doctrine in theory, but our fellow citizens may be sure that as Mormonism began without polygamy, so it can go on without polygamy, now that we are sure that polygamy is against the laws of our country.—Herald.

DAMAGING, IF TRUE.

The Chicago Tribune, for February 11, '99, credits Mrs. Emeline Wells, of Salt Lake City, Utah, with a statement or two which are very damaging to the supporters of the plural marriage system:

"I presume I have a task ahead of me at Washington, in convincing the council that polygamy does not obtain in Utah to the extent many have been led to believe, and that it is being sternly discouraged by practically all the better element of the Mormon women. The truth is the people of Utah have kept the promises they made. It would be idle, of course, to deny that polygamy is not practiced, but it obtains to only a small extent, and is confined almost exclusively to the lower classes."

ANOTHER TESTIMONY.

Elder John W. Whittaker, of the Utah Mormon church, in a discourse delivered in the Amphion Building, Williamsburg, New York, Sunday evening, January 7, 1900, stated in regard to the time when polygamy was introduced into the church he represented, as follows:

"PERSECUTION BEFORE POLYGAMY.

"Go back to the founding of our church, April 6, 1830. There was no polygamy practiced or taught in Mormon literature until five years after that band of persecuted Saints reached Utah. Before that they had been driven from state to state. Men and women were beaten, tarred and feathered, and some died under the hand of the secret assassin."—New York Herald, January 8, 1900.

The band of "persecuted Saints" referred to reached Salt Lake Valley in July, 1847, and five years after would bring it to 1852. This agrees with the fact that it was on August 20, 1852, that President Brigham Young produced the so called revelation on plural or celestial marriage and had it presented to the church with a "You have got to believe and accept or be damned" sort of an indorsement.

We have reason to believe that Elder Whittaker is correct. Who will be the next to place himself in line of the truth on the point?—Herald.

From E. C. Briggs' autobiography, published in Herald, 1901: "I then said: 'Bro. Marks, [who was president of high council at Nauvoo], do you know anything of that purported revelation concerning polygamy as published in the Seer by Orson Pratt?' He replied, 'I never saw any such thing until I saw it in Pratt's paper, nor did I ever hear of it during Joseph's life. It was evidently gotten up by Brigham Young and some of the Twelve after Joseph's death.'"

The Herald of April 24, 1901, made extract from Chicago Tribune (date omitted):

"NO WIVES FOR 15,800,000."
"There are 15,800,000 men in this world who would have to remain single even though all women on earth should become married. In other words, there are 15,800,000 more men than women in this world."

Statistics then followed by countries.

CHARGE, DENIAL, ADMISSION.

Under date of August 29, 1898, the Utah Presbytery, in session at Manti, in considering the Mormon question, gave their united voice to this proposition:

"One 'lives his religion' in Utah who has entered the 'celestial order of marriage' and 'cohabits with all his wives. Of such cases more than two thousand have come to our notice, and this living has resulted in the birth of more than one thousand children since statehood was granted, January 4, 1896."

ELDER PENROSE'S DENIAL.

On September 3, 1898, Elder C. W. Penrose, now editor of the Deseret News, took six columns of the editorial page of the News for a denial and denunciation of the synod's declarations and of the ministers who made them; saying of the above statement as to cohabitation and the births resulting therefrom; that "It will stamp them as scandalmongers, tattlers, vain babblers, dispensers of idle stories, prostitutes of the power of the pulpit. All this for the malicious purpose of injuring a whole community on rumors about the acts of a few of its members."

Elder Penrose has repeatedly denounced the synod's statement as false and slanderous.

APOSTLE GRANT'S ADMISSION.

Speaking in the tabernacle on Sunday, April 30th, Apostle Heber J. Grant read from Eugene Young's article in the North American Review this passage: "There is no disposition anywhere to deny the polygamous relations entered into before 1890 are still continued." [On September 3, '98, Penrose, in News, denied in six columns, as appears above.]

On this Apostle Grant said: "I have never yet met a man, not one, that was sufficiently lacking in generosity to say that the polygamous relations that existed then, if there were no more future marriages, ought not to be allowed to exist."

The above from the daily Salt Lake Tribune, of May 2, '99.

BOOK OF MORMON DOES NOT TEACH POLYGAMY.

The San Francisco Call in its editorial column of a recent issue, in discussing the attitude of the United States towards the Sultan of Sulu and the religious institutions of his government, said:

"That religion is Mohametan, and the institutions are polygamy and chattel slavery. While we extend our jurisdiction over the Koran and polygamy and salary the sultan who believes in the one and practices the other, the Stars and Stripes, protecting the harems of Sulu, waves as a banner of virtuous vengeance to strike terror into the harems of Utah. The Book of Mormon and the continuing revelations that project it, like the Koran, teach polygamy as a religious duty, not assumed exactly as a burden, but rather as a means of offsetting certain austerities in the observance of creed and ritual."

To this the Deseret News, the organ of the Utah church, in its editorial column for August 10, 1899, replies:

"Of course there are no harems in Utah as the term is applied; there are no Moslem institutions connected with the 'Mormons,' though there would be no difficulty in the Call finding the seraglio as an institution in San Francisco. But we will not find further fault with its use of the term, since it seems to please it, and perhaps it knows no better. As to its assertion of what the Book of Mormon teaches, however, that being a statement which no one, with a regard for truth, would make without some reasonable foundation, we suggest to the Call that an error has been made in naming the book that teaches polygamy. It should have said Bible to be accurate; and then the doctrine is not to 'offset certain austerities,' the violation of which pharisaical moralists assume is necessary."—Herald.

Who expected that of the Deseret News, or this of Pres. Snow?—R. E.

As published in the Salt Lake Tribune for December 30, 1898, President Snow is reported as saying:

"Mormonism, contrary to the common notion, does not mean polygamy."

Salt Lake, Utah, September 15, 1898, Lorenzo Snow, the new president of the Mormon church, gave the following statement to the Tribune:

"* * It will not be expected by any reasonable persons that the plural family relations existing when polygamous marriages ceased by action of law and the inhibition of the church would be at once abolished."

BUT ROBERTS SAID IN CONGRESS:

"Joseph Smith received a commandment from the Lord to introduce our order of marriage into the church and on the strength of that revelation and not by reasons of anything that is written in the Jewish Scriptures the Latter Day Saints practice plural marriage. Polygamy is not adultery, for were it so considered then Abraham, Jacob, and the prophets who practiced it would not be allowed a heritage in the kingdom of heaven, and if polygamy is not adultery, then it cannot be classed as a sin at all. It appears to me that modern Christians must either learn to tolerate polygamy or give up forever the glorious hope of resting in Abraham's bosom."—Chicago Tribune, Dec. 29, 1898.

The News says the Bible is responsible for polygamy. Roberts limits it to "that revelation," one revelation only. And now President Snow and Roberts talk of Mormonism, polygamy and Abraham's bosom.

OH, THOSE LIVING ORACLES AND WHAT THEY ARE FOR.

From the Utah Enquirer, October 19, 1897, in account of Utah Stake quarterly conference:

"Elder G. Reynolds took pleasure in testifying to the noble character of President B. Young and said he knew he was a prophet of God."

"Apostle A. O. Woodruff next spoke. He said Pres. B. Young was not only the founder of this, great institution, but that he was also the founder of this great commonwealth."

"Saturday afternoon the first speaker at the stake conference was President David John. He felt that the Saints ought to rejoice in their knowledge of God, his attributes and powers, making them in no way dependent on the opinions or scientific theories of men. We are the children of God, begotten as other children: that is, we also had a mother in the eternal world."

"Apostle Woodruff regretted to see so many empty seats and so few young people in attendance. * *

"Supt. L. E. Eggersten explained to the [Sunday School] children the object of meeting with parents in conference. It was mainly to make children acquainted with the authorities of the church."

"Supt. A. L. Booth led the children in questions and answers relating to the general authorities of the church."

From the Deseret News of October 8, account of General Conference:

"Elder John W. Taylor of the Council of the Apostles was the next speaker. He dwelt for some time upon the great value of the living oracles of the church; which, he said, were of more value than the written word."

[Elder Francis M. Lyman also spoke on the "living oracles."]

"President Wilford Woodruff spoke briefly upon the comparative value of the living oracles and the written word of God; also upon the privilege of the priesthood and Saints generally to possess the spirit of revelation, and know the mind of God in respect to individual duties.

DID NOT INTEND TO GO WEST.

"The Twelve would invite the brethren abroad, in obedience to the commandments of the Lord, to gather to Nauvoo, with their means to help build up the city, and complete the Temple, which is now going forward faster than it has at any time since it commenced. Beware of the speculations about the prophet! Believe no tales on the subject. Time will tell who are the friends of Joseph Smith, who laid down his life for his brethren. We have no new commandments, but beseech the brethren to honor and obey the old ones. For whosoever the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together.

"More in the next,
"BRIGHAM YOUNG,
"Pres. of the Twelve."
—Times and Seasons, Sept. 2, 1844, p. 638.

WHY THEY WENT WEST.

October 6, 1899, their last accession to the Quorum of Twelve Apostles, Rudger Clawson, was one of the speakers, and among other things said:

"The Lord has said in these last days that he will not be mocked, and that we cannot disregard or treat lightly his words. We know that many troubles and evils have come upon the people from time to time because of the disregard of the word of the Lord. We have been told, publicly, by the president of the church, that if the Latter Day Saints had heeded strictly the word of the Lord delivered to them through the Prophet Joseph Smith, they would now have been established in those eastern lands from which they were driven, and would be today the wealthiest community upon the earth. The Lord would have watched over and delivered them out of the hands of their enemies."

We quote from the Minutes of the Conference, published by the Deseret News in pamphlet form, pages 4 and 5.—Herald.

CAN THEY GO BACK?

In the Herald for October 24, 1900, will be found a letter from Bro. Peter Anderson, dated October 10, in which he gives an account of a few things that happened at a conference of the "Utah Church" held in Salt Lake City a few days previous. In the letter he gives something to which we desire to call attention now. Here it is:

"President Snow, now in his eighty-seventh year, spoke on Sunday afternoon. Concerning the gathering, he said: 'The day is approaching when a large part of the people whom I am addressing will go back to Jackson county to erect the temple and establish the city of Zion. I shall go back, President Cannon shall go back, and President Smith will go back. I don't know about all the apostles, but a large majority of you will go back to build up a holy city to the Lord.'

"Mr. Snow urged the people to get ready for this event, and mentioned a most powerful manifestation he had received to the truth of what he had said. He also said: 'The time is coming very shortly.'"

In view of the above prophecy, the recent death of George Q. Cannon has rather a bad effect on Mr. Snow's record as a prophet, and we are wondering how the people of Utah can explain the failure.

"We are of the opinion that that is not the only failure that will occur in the above prophecy, for we do not believe that any of the men mentioned by President Snow will have a part in the building of the city of Zion in Jackson county—at least not in their present spiritual condition.

THE PER CENT OF IT ANOTHER WAY.

George Q. Cannon said: "Our elders spend two years or more in the missionary field and they baptize on an average not exceeding four souls or about two a year. I would not dare to tell you how much money is spent as well as time to do this. I will tell you another thing connected with this, inasmuch as it occurs to my mind. Many of those who are brought into the church under the present system of preaching with purse and with scrip, instead of without purse and without scrip, have not the faith to stand as they would have if they entertained the elders and furnished them with what they needed, as God has commanded. I do not believe we are getting so good a class of converts under this system as under the old system which was followed by the early elders of this church."—Conference Report, p. 66, October, 1900.

"Apostle M. F. Cowley said in a sermon in the tabernacle, Salt Lake City, June 23, 1901:

"In the eastern mission during 1900, one hundred and thirty-six elders baptized one hundred and two converts, fifty of these being children of members. Fifty-two is the result of the labor of one hundred and thirty-six men for a year."

He also said: "While this is the poorest showing of all the missions the others are very similar."

I was present and took this statement at the time.—R. Etzenhouser.

EARLY BRIGHAMITE TEACHINGS ON SUCCESSION.

BY ELDER J. F. BURTON.

In December, 1873, I united with the Reorganization, and shortly after began traveling in the missionary work, and have thus gone from Humboldt county on the north to the Mexican line on the south; and in the valleys and mountains of California have met many of those who were members of the church in the days of Joseph the martyr. From them, I very many times heard the statement that Joseph the Seer, before his death, had blessed young Joseph and ordained him to be his successor in the presidency of the church. And being desirous of learning how the elders of the church who were here from 1844 to 1860, taught concerning the succession, I made some inquiry and received the following statements:

"I was baptized in Tahiti by Elder Grouard in 1844, and remained a member of the church until the year 1856. During this time Bro. Hawkins traveled in the Paumotu as a missionary, and baptized about 1,500 persons, and married about 500; for before those days the natives did not marry, and none of those who were living as husband and wife were to be taken into the church unless they were married.

"In that year a vessel arrived in Papeete with a number of persons from Australia bound for Utah. Then for the first time I came in contact with the practice and doctrine of polygamy. The elders among these passengers taught it, and also gave me a volume of Zion's Watchman, a paper printed by them in Sydney, Australia, containing extracts from Brigham Young's sermons teaching that "Adam is our God," and that Jesus was not begotten of the Holy Ghost—all these things made me stumble, for I had been taught very differently by Elders Grouard, Pratt, and Noah Rogers—these men always taught us out here that young Joseph was the true successor of his father; and I have heard Elder Rogers tell repeatedly that Joseph the martyr blessed and set apart his son Joseph to be his successor in office and president of the church.—John Hawkins.

"KAUKURA, April 8, 1897."

"Elder Hanks (a brother of the Elder Hanks who died on the ship, on the passage to these islands, in the spring of 1844), a member of the Utah church, and a missionary from Salt Lake City, and who left here in 1858 for California, repeatedly taught that young Joseph was to be the successor of his father, and also that Joseph the martyr blessed and ordained his son as his successor in office in the church; and on the following Sunday he told the church that his work was finished, and that he was going to rest—and pointing to his son, said, 'Here is your president.'—John Hawkins.

"KAUKURA, April 9, 1897."

It was, and still is, a custom in these islands, for the American elders to write in books for the native elders, items of doctrine, church government, and history, as the natives had no printed matter excepting the Bible and a small Protestant hymn book. I found the following in an old book as the writings of Elder Hanks, the missionary before referred to:

THE ANOINTING OF JOSEPH BY HIS FATHER AS HIS SUCCESSOR.

"God commanded Joseph the martyr to set in order and straighten out the church—the kingdom of God—which he did by setting in order the quorums according to a vision shown to him as follows: The quorums of Deacons, the quorums of Teachers, the quorums of Priests, the quorums of Elders, the quorums of Seventies, the quorums of the Bishopric, the quorums of High Priests, the quorum of Twelve and the High Council, and the High Council of Zion, and the First Presidency of the church, and the Quorum of Council of the kingdom of God of fifty in number, this is from the law of Zion—and no law is to be given to this church unless sanctioned by this quorum of fifty.

"Joseph the martyr said, in this gathering, that he was commanded to anoint and ordain his son, his firstborn, a prophet and revelator to the church in his stead. He then anointed him and ordained him to the office spoken of above. Joseph and Hyrum and Whitney ordained him; Whitney held the oil and poured it on the head of young Joseph. After this was done Joseph the martyr said, 'My work is finished—I am going now to rest; my brethren in the holy priesthood, I place the kingdom of God on you to bear it in the name of the Lord.' On the next Sabbath, after the preaching was finished, Joseph the martyr said to his son Joseph, 'Come here by me,' and said to the people, 'My office work as a prophet is finished—this is your prophet—my son Joseph, who now stands in my office,—God has revealed it.'—Translated by Elder John Hawkins.

"KAUKURA, April 8, 1897."

"On the return of Elder Addison Pratt from Salt Lake City, in about 1849, he brought with him a missionary of that church—one of their seventies, James Brown, who taught us that young Joseph was to succeed his father in the Presidency of the church, and that Brigham Young was only holding that office until young Joseph should come of age, and this was commonly taught to the Saints of these islands.—Elder Mahana.

"I certify that this statement is true, for I also have often heard it made by Elder Brown.—John Hawkins, Interpreter.

"PAPEETE, April 25, 1897."

"In 1849 Elder Addison Pratt came from Tubuoi to this island, and in this same year I was baptized by him here. The elders, Pratt, Grouard, Hawkins and others, always, when in this vicinity, made their home with me at my house, and Elders Pratt and Grouard always taught us that young Joseph was to succeed his father in the presidency of the church, as soon as he came of age.—Elder Mahana. John Hawkins, interpreter.

"PAPEETE, April 25, 1897."

By these testimonies it will be seen that in this island mission, as well as in California, it was a matter of common report among the leading missionaries and church members generally—from 1844 on until 1860 at least, that young Joseph had been divinely appointed through his father to the presidency of the church and to succeed him in his office—and that some of the leading elders were present at a time when young Joseph was thus anointed and blessed by his father.

PAPEETE, Tahiti, May 5, 1897.

The following which was sent to the ENSIGN by Bro. W. S. Pender, will be of sufficient interest to our readers to justify its reproduction here. It appeared in the ENSIGN for September 20, 1900:

AFFIDAVIT OF MARTIN HARRIS' NIECE, MRS. SOPHIA K. COOK.

"PROVO CITY, Utah,
"Sept. 13, 1900.

"With no other motive than that the truth may be known by all men to whom this affirmation may come, I, Mrs. Sophia K. Cook, do hereby solemnly swear that I was born near Pontiac, Michigan, July 28, 1838. I was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Missouri, in my girlhood, my parents having previously united with that church; that I am now a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints, the headquarters of which is located at Salt Lake City, though I do not indorse polygamy; that I was present in a meeting held in a bowery in Nauvoo, Illinois, the date of which, to the best of my recollection, was the spring or summer of 1843 or 1844; I was sitting west from the speaker's stand, only a few feet; at this meeting I heard Joseph Smith, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, say, in substance: 'I have often been asked who would succeed me as the prophet to the church; he is here in the stand.' He then turned and led his son, Joseph, before the audience and said: 'My son, Joseph, will be your next prophet.' Approximately, I should say there were several hundred people present at this meeting.

Thy Neighbor's Wife.

Just after the fitting time of May, and the arrival of new people into old neighborhoods and vice versa, many a woman is in doubt as to what is required of her in the way of approaches to those already residents in the neighborhood to which she has moved. Mrs. Frank Learned in the June Delineator throws some light on the subject in the department which she contributes to that magazine entitled "Social Observances." The same number of the Delineator contains much practical advice written by Margaret Hall in regard to the new house and settling down in it. It is a very useful article and deals with the questions of the new house from cellar to garret, renovation of paper, removing of stains, etc.

"WANTED—A PROPHET."

The "Outlook" (Lyman J. Abbott, editor), for January 15, 1901, contains an article from the pen of the Rev. Henry A. Stimson, D. D., entitled, "Wanted—A Prophet," which portrays the present status of Christianity, and likewise contains several unexpected admissions.

Mr. Stimson is decidedly optimistic notwithstanding he avers that "from more than one point of view it would appear that a time of crisis is upon our churches." He hastens to state, however, that "there is no need of pessimism" even though "everywhere men are under more or less of strain."

"Sport has grown to be a business," says Mr. Stimson. "The patronage of the theater is immense; whist clubs and matinees fill the afternoons; and the sensuous pleasures that once were the foe of all that is good in society, are now competing with or allied to these other forms of amusement which, whether good or ill in themselves, are masterful in their interest and consuming of time. It is not strange that men are finding that they have very little time to devote to religious affairs, even if they do not come to have little care for personal religion. There is wide testimony to the effect that it was never harder to support the churches than it is today, and never more difficult to get Christian work efficiently performed." Mr. Stimson may discover a rift in the cloud in that men—unregenerated men—are thus affected, but I can not discover much encouragement in the following recital:

"Even on the part of our most interested church members excuses are both incessant and valid, and the conditions of many a man who is striving to do his part in the face of outside pressure is pitiable."

Is there much hope for a cause when men are "incessantly" offering "excuses" for the non-performance of duties voluntarily assumed? Think you that there is virtue sufficient to effect the regeneration of the race in such material?

The following admission is gratuitous to say the least: "With business men still in the prime of life breaking down on all sides from heart failure and kidney disease, it is impossible under present conditions to secure for the church life the thought or the care on the part of our best business men which it properly demands."

Legitimate duties in the physical realm should never intrude within the spiritual. If our best business men cannot give to "church life the thought or the care" that it properly demands, how could a prophet help them unless he outlined a policy which would change those conditions and thus place better environments about them? To attempt a cure without ever noting the cause of a disease is the work of a charlatan or a quack.

Eighteen hundred years ago the world needed a prophet—they did not want one—they never wanted a true prophet—they never will.

This same prophet enunciated a spiritual and economic code second to none. What was the result? The very people who professed discipleship have ever stood in the way of the expansion of this communistic philosophy of the Nazarine. The Jews needed as never before a prophet such as He; but a prophet of His type they did not want, neither would they have. They repudiated Him.

Recognizing the power of environment over the lives of men, Christ's immediate disciples withdrew from the world's activities and endeavored to establish a co-operative society which would make possible the enforcement of the ethical elucidations of this greatest of occult philosophers, without let or hindrance. The times were not propitious; the people were not prepared for such an undertaking and it failed of accomplishment. One would naturally think that the few who retained their discipleship would strive for the ushering in of those ideal conditions contemplated by their Great Teacher. What are the facts? The very nations who supposedly espoused His philosophy only can "we fulfill all righteousness," all people would flock to his standard? Should he proceed to lay on hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost and confirmation in the church, would the mass of Christian clergy accord to his views and concede his mission? Where is the churchman and where is the church that, for one moment, would give audience to an apostolic "pretender" who dared reiterate the Messianic polity of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers and deacons? How many of the suffering and dying laymen would throw away their prejudices and give audience to a prophet who would announce, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved and he that believeth not shall be damned," following up this aggressive measure with the promise, "And these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover."

It is all right to call for the "eternal verities," but when they come we are too prone to imitate the darkey and ask the Lord why He could not tell when we were joking. We cannot cajole the Invisible. Men have had the hardihood, or the insane recklessness and abandon, to trifle with the Infinite, but the day of retribution is at hand and we will then discover

That the God who reigned o'er Babylon

Is the God who is reigning yet.

Yes, "men are capable of being thus filled (with the vision of God and the glory of His kingdom and His gospel) as ever they were," but when we turn back the century folds in the curtain of time and review the history of nations and men, the eternal verity of the divine conclusion "the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth" needs no farther confirmation, and down from Gennesaret comes the judicial edict, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

As we stand "in the midst of Mars' Hill" of modern science and scholastic dissertations there is need that another Paul come declaring, "I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious, for, as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore, ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you."

The world is surfeited with form and ritual and hypocrisy which sends burning to the throne of God a smoke so dense and scent so carnal that heaven to the masses has for lo, these many years been shrouded in eternal gloom.

The human heart can not "be counted upon to be emptied in a moment of the surfeit that gorges it, and to cry out with all its old hunger and thirst after righteousness." The human heart never has thirsted after righteousness, for as Mr. Stimson says, "It takes a heart to move men's hearts, and the need today is for some great heart aflame with God."

We cheerfully acquiesce with the following: "Brilliant oratory and academic learning are for this need no better than trumpery entertainment and ecclesiastical diplomacy. Christians are not to be enticed out of worldliness, any more than the world is to be tricked into repentance."

You may be "waiting to hear God speak to the children of Israel that they go forward" but "when that voice was heard," though "Moses and the elders had only to arrange the swift details, as the people arose quickly and went," you must not forget the preparatory work performed by God's Anointed and the "leek and onion" aftermath.

You are right in thus addressing your fellow churchmen; "The whole question of the church and the community, for example, and of missions must be restated. Christians must get together. Differences must be set aside."

There must be some common ground of agreement, however. Christians can not get together when each and all are held captive by sectarian walls high and impervious as ever encircled an eastern metropolis or the Chinese Empire. First, these walls must be broken down.

"Differences must be set aside," but when those differences are vaporized the truth will still remain. In the contest 'twixt truth and error differences are ever apparent. Truth contributes its quota to the clash and yet no one would argue because one man has the truth and another is affected with error, that in order to heal the breach and absolve differences both must renounce their position. Man-made differences must "be set aside," but divine differences must be maintained. "In such a crisis as this, these (human) differences are as impertinent and as puerile as were the bickerings of the allied forces in the face of the peril around them at Trenton, but these divine differences are pertinent and potent factors and the only thing that will save the church from crushing defeat.

Daughters of Zion.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."

MRS. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general assembly, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development, that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Editor's Address, Independence, Mo.

There is a danger that often walks beside the girl who goes into public life, against which I would like to warn my girls. She will meet it in offices, and wherever she is called upon to mingle to any extent with the opposite sex. Many times it confronts her in her social life, and is an evil that is rapidly gaining the ascendancy. It is the married flirt of whom I would have her beware, or the man who says he is not, and may not be, congenially mated. Whenever a thing has received the ultimatum, "Thou shalt not," it takes on a certain fascination to many, but remember:

"Lost innocence returns no more; we are not what we were before transgression."

There is an inexorable law of nature to which all are bound as to the wheels of the ruthless juggernaut, and it is, that "he who breaks, pays." We cannot transgress any deep law of nature, or honor without having it react upon ourselves sooner or later. If a man has made a mistake, it is a sad thing, but it is not your privilege, nor is it within the code of womanly honor that you play the part of comforter. He must bear it alone; to attempt to administer consolation leads along paths too devious and far too dangerous for you to follow.

We all come in contact with such instances, but be wise and turn away, even though pity may be in your heart. You say, it is such a little thing to express that pity and sympathy; but remember also, there are always two sides to a story, and you have heard but one side. However, granting he is unhappy through no fault of his own, keep out of danger, and if his comfort must come through a woman, let it be some one else.

The married flirt does not deserve a place in your life; flee from him as you would from a pestilence. The marriage relation is becoming less and less sacred, and therein threatens a great evil. Go into any large city, especially one that cannot boast of the best of the truth for July.

of this fact, for fact it is, and the man is not always the offender, but often it is the wife and mother who thus basely cheats her husband, her family, and herself.

Above all things else, girls, respect and honor the wedded estate—an estate which God has ordained for a great and wise purpose; for whenever you cross this border, or allow another to do so, you invite into your life as many imps of mischief as Pandora loosed from her box, and your efforts to close against them will be as ineffectual; moreover, the harm does not stop with the present—for, "Wounds of the soul, though healed will ache; The reddening scars remain and make Confession."

Good Advice to Girls Who Travel.

The young girl who is traveling by herself should seek information from the train people rather than from her companions on the train. No girl in traveling should make confidants of strangers of either sex, disclose her name, her destination or her family affairs, or make acquaintances on the road. She may, however, show kind attention to a mother traveling with little children, amuse a wearied little one, and politely thank anyone who does her an unobtrusive kindness.—Margaret Sangster, in the Ladies' Home Journal for July.

Our True Character Shown in Traveling.

Quite without our suspecting it we show the stuff that is in us when we turn our backs upon home, and take the road. Our revelations are entirely unconscious. We display our familiarity with social usages or the reverse, but that is the lesser matter. A novice or a globe trotter alike lets down the mask which hides the inner self, when fretting over delays, careless of others' comfort, and selfishly monopolizing conveniences intended for the many rather than the one—July Ladies' Home Journal.

How French Girls are Educated.

The children of the lower classes in the country, as well as in town, all go to public schools. Little girls of the better class have an English or German nursemaid or a resident governess. When they are sent to a boarding school they go to some convent, but in Paris courses which leave the young girl most of the time at home are preferred. The courses are weekly, semi-weekly or even daily classes. The government schools have hitherto been attended mostly by the free thinking element. Private schools are fast being transformed into day schools. Then there are private teachers for those arts called "accomplishments" which occupy a prominent place.—Th. Benson (Mme. city, especially, and that cannot boast of the best of the truth for July.

Lunch at Dr. Hillis' Church.
 THE BROOKLYN PASTOR'S PLAN TO ATTRACT YOUNG PEOPLE TO EVENING RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Free lunch at church is the latest innovation, and strangely enough conservative Brooklyn will inaugurate the eating feature of religious service. The Rev. Dr. Hillis, pastor of Plymouth, is sponsor for the church free lunch. After the evening services he plans to hold a reception, and he wants the people to stay—especially the young people.

Plymouth church has a well-equipped kitchen. Here the free refreshments will be prepared and the ladies of the church will take turns in serving them. While the congregation is eating Dr. Hillis will be getting acquainted with its members.

Of course the free lunch menu will include cake and sandwiches, maybe roast beef and potato salad.

A prominent member of the church said last night:

"This plan to attract people to the church is purely experimental, and it is not certain that it will be continued. Our object is to make our evenings as interesting as possible for members, particularly the young people. Dr. Hillis has always felt that he would like to get in closer touch with them and hit upon this means to accomplish it. His reception to the people after the services is the principal thing and the refreshments an incidental feature."

In order to make it pleasant for the Sunday School teachers and pupils who live at a distance arrangements have been made with a boarding house near the church to serve luncheon after the morning service for a nominal price.—The New York World.

THE GOSPEL.

Glorious gospel, sent from above,
Teaching charity, telling of love
Of grace divine,
Wisdom, mercy, heavenly truth,
In hearts and minds of aged and youth
Its light shall shine.

Though heavens may fall and stars
may fall,
And man, the proudest of them all,
Should step from grace,
The beautiful gospel taught of old,
Tried in the furnace and proven gold,
Will keep its place.

The message it brings from our God shall roll
From the west to the east, and from pole to pole.

To every nation,
To every tongue,
The gospel truths shall be taught and sung
In words sublime.

Yea, stand it shall though the skies
may fall,
The work is of God and He rules o'er all

'Till Jesus comes as our king to reign,
The gospel's of God, it is not in vain,
His word is truth.

PASTORAL.

Dear Saints:—Having been appointed to Michigan it gives me the opportunity to labor among my own people as well as the English. Michigan is full of Hollanders. I am now in the western part of the state, having been laboring in the north among the English people; had grand success in sowing the seed and it gives me great consolation to know that if it does not spring up in this life, it must in the final restitution of all things. Some of the Hollanders believe that Jesus has died for our heavenly Father's people only, and His people are all that are foreordained to be saved before they were created; the rest are all the devil's although created by the same God, and yet they teach that He is a loving Father. How much love is there in that, to create the most of His people to be damned?

Now, Saints, help me all you can. I preach both Hollandish and English. If you live near Holland people let me know and I will come and we will do all we can to help some of them to a better understanding of the gospel. Address me at Crooked Lake, Mich.

Yours for the fight of faith,
ELDER H. J. DEVRIES.

A REQUEST.

We are now mailing Graceland College catalogues, and are sending to all the missionaries, to their field address when known, otherwise to their home address; will the families of missionaries please favor us by remailing these catalogues, and will the missionaries be kind enough to interest themselves in behalf of Graceland to talk up the matter with such persons as are likely to attend some college this year, or in the near future. We would be thankful, not only to the missionaries, but likewise to others, for names and addresses of those who may, or can attend college.

Any party who may read this request and desire any information relative to Graceland college, we invite them to write us regarding their wishes.

To all those who are interested in education, and especially in the success of this church institution—Graceland college—a God acknowledged work of this church, we ask that you aid us financially at your earliest convenience, for we have no other income at present than the donation of Saints and friends, and we are under the necessity of incurring considerable for printing and other items of preparation, before the opening, September 10. Now, dear Saints, will you, one and all, aid us in this work of God? We are still hopeful that the debt will be paid, and the running expenses promptly met. It can be done! Will it be done?

Yours for the success of Graceland,
ROBT. M. ELVIN.

LINN, Kas., July 6.

Arkansas Camp Meetings.

For the benefit of the scattered Saints in Arkansas, camp meetings have been appointed at the following places:

Ingleside branch, two miles east of Saltito, Faulkner Co., Aug. 3 to 11.

Bald Knob branch, Bald Knob, White Co., Aug. 14 to 24.

Martin's Creek branch, one mile north of Martin's Creek P. O., Sharp Co., Aug. 25 to Sept. 8.

Brethren and sisters, do not fail to arrange and come to these meetings, the one most convenient to you. Remember, salvation is what we expect. It comes only to the "pure in heart," only by taking hold of the means of grace. If we enter in through the "pearly gates" we must be robed in "fine linen, clean and white, which is the righteousness of saints."—Rev. 19: 7.

You are denied the privilege of association with the Saints and of prayer meetings and in these reunions you can enjoy both at least once a year. We expect a number from the Woodside branch in Missouri to attend the meeting at Martin's Creek.

Let everyone come prepared to care for themselves and enjoy a season of spiritual reviving. Those who have Quarterlies bring them along, as we expect to provide a Sunday School in the camp for the children: bring your Bibles also.

In bonds,
W. S. MACRAE,
JOSEPH WARD.

G. W. JOHNSON.

Look here everybody! The grand reunion of the Spring River district will convene August 16th at Berry's Ferry, Indian Territory. Everybody come and have a good time. We are going to have the grandest reunion ever held in the district, plenty of hay and corn at about one-fourth of the market price, and free pasture. Come one, come all, and have a grand good time. Arrangements have been made for tents at $1.25 for the ten days. All who want tents will please notify Bro. J. M. Richards, Pittsburg, Kansas, R. R. No. 4. Please send in your orders for tents as soon as possible. All orders must be made to him not later than August the 8th. Please remember the date if you want tents. Good speakers will be there. All missionaries that can come are invited.

The Saints composing the North-east Kansas District who would have to carry the bulk of the burden of the Atchison Reunion petition me thro' Bro. J. C. Foss, the sub-missionary, to declare the Reunion off on account of the drought that is now afflicting our country so badly. Therefore I declare the Reunion postponed. Let the Saints not feel discomfited, but press forward to the mark of your high calling in Christ Jesus our Lord. We are living in perilous times, but we should not faint by the way. Our Master said, "When you see these things come to pass, then look up and rejoice, for the day of your redemption draweth nigh." We should watch and pray. God will remember His children.

NOTICES.

To the Saints in Spring River District:—The first church to be dedicated in the Cherokee Nation will be dedicated July 21st at Miami, Indian Territory. Apostle I. N. White will preach the dedicatory sermon. All come that can and bring your lunch and we can have dinner on the bank of the Neosho river. There are only four families of Saints living at Miami. Bro. R. M. Peck individually furnished the money to build this church. I expect to be at the dedication.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

The Spring River district conference convened with Pleasant view branch, Cherokee county, Kansas, on June 7, 1901, with President J. M. Richards in chair.

The following named branches were reported, viz., Pleasant view, Columbus, Yebb City, Weir City, Galena, Angola, Blairville (name changed to Joplin), Fairland and Lamanite.

Ministers reported as follows: Of the seventies, P. C. Keck, baptized 1; J. D. Erwin. Elders J. W. Thorpe, W. S. Taylor, baptized one; W. H. Prewitt, J. A. Davis, C. K. Ryan, J. T. Riley, baptized; J. A. Grans, J. L. Lancaster, S. D. Love, baptized 3; J. C. Severine, T. S. Hayton, Noah Karahoo, A. H. Herke, Richard Davis, W. E. Westerville, Isaac Ross, George Bird, E. E. Bradley, R. G. Christie. Priests H. J. Thurman, W. B. Milten, R. E. Martin, M. A. Love, J. I. Young, Wm. Kirke, Richard Bird, James Davis and Curtis Randall. Teachers, M. S. Frick, George M. Rhonemus, J. C. Powell, J. M. McKnight, Robert Smith and E. E. Gilbert. Deacon, Charles Bird.

The bishop's agent's report showed receipts, etc., $57.83, disbursements $420.10, on hand $127.73.

The district treasurer's report showed on hand and receipts since last report, $39.50, disbursements $18.12, on hand $21.44. These accounts were audited and found correct.

A petition from Saints at Nashville, Missouri, for branch organization, was referred to the district president and missionary in charge, to do as they deemed best.

It was decided to hold our next district conference at Berry's Ferry, Indian Territory, at same time, and in connection with our district reunion, and that Thursday and Friday afternoons be set apart for to transact the business of the conference.

The time for holding the reunion was reconsidered and set to begin on the 16th day of August. It was moved that we extend to the district Sunday School superintendent the privilege to arrange with the district president for suitable time for the Sunday School convention exercises during the reunion.

Several good sermons were delivered during this conference: Elders F. C. Keck, J. D. Erwin, J. T. Riley and J. W. Thorpe were the speakers.

A priesthood meeting was held Sunday, 9 a. m., at which short speeches were made by the brethren regarding the welfare of the district, how to spread the work and get the gospel before the people.

The district president is authorized to ascertain cost of a new tent top, and in connection with the district secretary, to notify each branch president requesting him to solicit his branch for their joint proportion of the cost.

The following resolution prevailed: That we ratify the appointment of Vida Goff, of Nevada, Missouri, who has been commissioned by the general historian, to act as local historian for the Clinton and Spring River districts.

The Sunday afternoon sacrament service was in charge of Elders W. S. Taylor and T. S. Hayton. Ten children were blessed during this service. A collection taken up in behalf of the district tent fund amounted to $7.97.

There was a large attendance at this conference and a good time was enjoyed.

BORN.

McGEORGE.—At Morrison, Okla., to Bro. and Sr. McGeorge, July 5, 1901, a son, named Thomas Robert. J. L.

DIED.

POWELL.—Died at Galena, Kansas, June 30, 1901, Melba Furr, daughter of Bro. and Sr. J. C. Powell, age two months and four days. She was blessed on the 24th day of June by Elders P. C. Keck and T. S. Hayton. Funeral was preached at the Saints' chapel, at Galena, Kansas, by our missionary, F. C. Keck, assisted by Elder T. S. Hayton, president of the Galena branch.

STOFF.—Bro. John Stoff was born at Oversantklem, Germany, November 12, 1842, and died at the Swedish hospital, Omaha, Nebraska, June 28, 1901. He was baptized by Elder Fredrick A. Smith, June 28, 1896, and died strong in the faith. He was married to Miss Mary Kopenhagen, at Boone, Iowa, May 9, 1870. Eight children were born to them; the wife and six children are left to mourn their loss. Two children having died some years ago. Funeral services at the home, 1919 South Eleventh Street, Omaha, Sunday, June 30, 1901, by C. E. Butterworth. Services at grave by A. O. W. and B. L. E. lodges.

A Modern Martyr.

A woman lost consciousness in a dry goods store in Washington recently, and was carried to Emergency hospital. Looking for means of identifying the woman, the nurse came across a visiting card in her shopping bag, on which were the following memoranda:

"Chloride of lime: 1 spool pale blue sewing silk; 2 nursing bottles; shoes for Clarence; Jevon's logic; garden hose; board meeting 11 o'clock; market; telephone caterer dinner Saturday; dress-makers; church.

The first words the victim spoke were an apology for having collapsed. She was certain it was an indication of want of will power, for she was a firm convert to the notion that mind has supreme control over any matter that might seem to the uninitiated reason for a woman's strength failing. She insisted, moreover, that she must get up and go back to her shopping where she had left it off. The chloride of lime was needed in the cellar at once. If the spool of silk was not at the house by 1 o'clock the sewing girl would not be able to finish Margaret's dress for the party that afternoon. Clarence must have his shoes for the same occasion, and if baby did not get his new bottle nurse would probably feed him from a sour one, and that would undoubtedly mean death. All the marketing was yet to be ordered. If she did not keep the appointment with the dress-maker, she would not have her new dress for the little dinner she was giving on Saturday, of which the caterer had not yet been informed. Besides, she had gone on a civic board in order not to lose touch with the larger duties of life outside her home, and she was studying logic so that her mind should not grow rusty through the autumn, and she did, therefore, want not to miss her meeting or fail to get to the book store before it closed that day. She had meant to drop into church a few minutes, too, before going home; the restfulness of just sitting there a bit she had found was a great good to her soul. But she could let that go till another day, if the nurse and doctors really thought she was doing too much. The nurse and doctors found opposition useless, and as soon as the poor woman was able to draw a deep breath, out she went again to finish her self-inflicted task.

The doctor, at the suggestion of the nurse, corrected the entry he had made on the hospital books. He recorded:

"General collapse; cause, too much conscience and not enough common sense."

In the course of a paper the doctor has read since before the medical society, he recited this case as melancholy evidence of the direction in which some good women of the day are tending.—Harper's Bazar.

Long Hair

"About a year ago my hair was coming out very fast, so I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stopped the falling and made my hair grow very rapidly, until now it is 45 inches in length."—Mrs. A. Boydston, Atchison, Kans.

There's another hunger than that of the stomach. Hungry hair needs food, needs hair vigor—Ayer's.

This is why we say that Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color, and makes the hair grow long and heavy. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure to cover the name of your nearest express company. Address, J. C. AYER & Co., Lowell, Mass.

ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Make all remittances, and address all communications to ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Box B, Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

New subscriptions can begin at any time. If possible to avoid it, never send silver as it is liable to wear through the envelope and be lost. Always give the name of the post office to which your paper is sent or we can not find your name on our lists.

When desiring your address changed, give both the old and new address. Papers will be discontinued one month from the time subscriptions expire, unless ordered continued.

In making remittances, money orders are preferable for they are absolutely safe. If you can avoid it, do not send coin or stamps. Canadian stamps are an entire loss, and Canadian currency is only worth ninety cents on the dollar to us, for that is all we can get for it at the banks. Letters should be addressed, and orders and drafts made payable to

A SAINT don't need
A musty old creed.

THINK twice before sinning once.

LATTER DAY SAINTS want the earth—and they'll get it too.

A CONVINCING way to prove the gospel true is to be a living witness.

ONCE a Saint took sick, now a Saint indeed he would be; but when that Saint got well, what a sickly Saint was he!

We have three love stories in our divine library, our religious friends are content with only a part of one.

If you are unlearned, you don't need to tell it, people will discover that fact just so soon as you open your mouth.

VERY often Latter Day Saints are asked, by their friends, for a work that will explain their belief in detail. Just hand them any old New Testament.

THE gospel Joseph Smith introduced to the world was enough to make the devil mad—also his emissaries.

THE "narrow way" was broad enough for Jesus Christ and the apostles. What an immense amount of gray matter must garrison the brains of those individuals who need a "broader" way!

ONE of the triumphs of the latter day work is not how much wisdom it puts into an individual's head, but how much foolishness it takes out.

"THE Books and Utah Mormonism in Contrast," enlarged new edition, will soon be ready.
Bro. E. L. Kelley's splendid argument against the "revelation" on polygamy is contained in this edition. 12 cents each,
3 for 30; 15 for $1.00.

RUTS.

Individual, city, county, state, national ruts. Everybody every-where, from the blubber gorging Esquimaux to the denizens of the desert land of Patagonia, all are in some kind of a rut. And what a difficult task it is to get out of them. Road ruts have been responsible for broken wheels, broken bones and damage in general, but what misfortune has been caused by the ruts the old world is moving in. We may call them "idiosyncrasies," "character," "individuality," etc., but often plain "rut" would be more proper. These indentures become so much a part of our nature that we think they are nature.

OLD BOTTLES.

In the times of the Savior, skins were made in the form of bags, and these were called bottles. When wine was put in them, the gas arising from fermentation stretched them, so new wine was placed in new bottles to permit of this expansion, hence the Savior says:

Nether do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break and the wine runneth out.

The nearer we come to being an "old bottle" the less use can the Lord make of us. He didn't use, in former days, the educated scribes and Pharisees, because they were in too many ruts; the new wine of the gospel would break them all to pieces. They were old bottles. In the latter days the Lord saw fit to use an unlearned boy because he wasn't in a lot of theological ruts. He was a new bottle susceptible of large expansion. Probably if the angel had come to some of our ecclesiastical dignitaries with the message he brought, it would have mentally shattered the old bottles. Even when they were told of the affair it sent them into hysterics, and now, after seventy years of education, we rejoice to see the effect this force has had in getting the dear people out of old ruts into the straight and narrow way, which is rut proof.

Don't be an old bottle, no matter how young or old you may be.

THEOLOGICAL RUTS.

The gospel of Jesus Christ, as it has been restored, will appeal to the intellect, to the heart, to reason, love, judgment and good sense, and yet, because of the theological ruts poor humanity is in, it takes the power of God to get this attractive, beautiful gospel before the people. The Savior said because of the "traditions of your fathers"—only another way of saying "because of the ruts your fathers have fallen in."

THE CLIMBING OUT PENALTY.

It has been said, "He who attains to an eminence above his fellowmen, has charge of that eminence." The world's leaders, in climbing out of ruts, have been pelted with mud, their names dishonored, and often their lives forfeited because they took charge of an eminence.

"The man is thought a knave or fool, Or a bigot plotting crime, Who, for the advancement of his race,

Is wiser than his time;
For him the hemlock shall distill,
For him the ax be bared,
For him the gibbet shall be built,
For him the stake prepared;
Him shall the scorn and wrath of men

Pursue with deadly aim,
While envy, malice, spite and lies Shall desecrate his name."

Jesus Christ's mission was to get men out of sin ruts, sick ruts, death ruts, and they killed Him for it. When His servants work in His mission they receive the same treatment.

PRAYING RUTS.

A prayer is a petition. It should be a sensible appeal, dictated by reason. What would we think of a petition like this: John Smith, please send us some lumber; John Smith, send fine lumber; John Smith, send lumber without any profits in it; John Smith; etc. We would certainly become very tired listening to such a repetition of "John Smith," and yet we have been in branches where we have heard prayers punctuated every few words with "Our heavenly Father." We notice those who pray in this manner are generally long prayers. The Lord has said, "that which does not edify is not of God." Such a prayer can't possibly edify, and is merely tiresome twaddle, having a tendency to make the listeners send out the cry of those under the altar: "How long, Oh Lord, how long." The next time you pray see if you are in a praying rut; if so, read the Lord's prayer and those given in Doctrine and Covenants, to govern us. In families where there are children, long prayers will make the young people impatient and fretful, and will have a tendency to turn them against this divine custom. Get out of the long praying rut, it makes everybody weary. Pray without ceasing, but not in a prayer meeting or in assisting the elder in the stand, and don't take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; it is wicked to do so.

EATING RUTS.

We, as Americans, are so accustomed to three meals a day that we are positive that is just the right way, and when, as church members, we are requested to fast occasionally, we may think we are, to some extent, trespassing against nature. We are simply in an eating rut. There are some aggressive thinkers today who contend that with two meals a day we can obtain the ideal food supply, and that fasting is a splendid method of burning up impurities in the system.

With the high average for thinking possessed by the majority of Latter Day Saints, with their tenacious faith in the word of God revealed in the latter days, is it not really a deep rut that hinders our people from observing the "word of wisdom" in the way they should? Just examine this promise made in the closing paragraph:

And all Saints who remember to keep and do these sayings, walking in obedience to the commandments, shall receive health in their navel and marrow to their bones, and shall find wisdom and great treasures of knowledge, even hidden treasures, and shall run and not be weary, and shall walk and not faint; and I, the Lord give unto them a promise that the destroying angel shall pass by them, as the children of Israel, and not slay them.

Is not the expert evasion of the plain statements made in this revelation often resorted to by those who are otherwise faithful and strong, is their non-observance to do that which the Lord says will please Him, not caused by being in an eating or drinking rut? If you are in, don't pull growing children down the same cavity, then they will not need to struggle out should they desire to do so in later years.

DRESS RUTS.

There are dress ruts, certainly. We have our proverbial costumes, and they are right in our sight. If one should clothe himself today as did the Master and the apostles, what a genuine sensation it would create to enter one of our churches dressed in such a manner. And yet, was not that a sensible, hygienic, artistic costume? How often do we sit in judgment over what others wear, rendering a verdict perhaps of "loud," "immodest," "queer," etc. The facts are we are often governed in our judgment by ruts instead of reason.

Which sex is governed the most by fashion this hot weather? Which is the deepest in the rut?

EVOLUTIONARY TIMES.

These are the stirring times of great changes. It's a time to cultivate the power of adapting one's self to new conditions. The development of the church depends upon our ability to put off the old man and put on the new, or, in other words, to get out of old ruts and ascend on the highway of intellectual and spiritual freedom. The law of the universe is PROGRESSION.

What are we going to do about it, and how long will it take to do it?

"Where are we at" in this rut business?

Extracts from Letters.

ELDER F. C. KECK writes:
The debate between J. D. Erwin and A. Carlin, of the Baptist church, was a success on our side, and a grand victory for the truth. We are now holding forth in Joplin in a big tent.

BRO. H. R. HARDER, Gay, Jackson county, West Virginia, July 15th, says:

I am holding forth here for ten days. Excellent liberty and good congregations and attention. Feel well in the work and pray the Lord to hasten the harvest.

ELDER S. W. L. SCOTT writes from Coldwater, Mich., July 17:
Had good services at Palermo, N. Y. Opponent retired on the second evening. He publicly acknowledged that I "was sent of God" to preach. Confessed his inability to cope with the arguments, etc.

JOHN S. HOMMES, Chico, Cal., renewing for the ENSIGN, says:

I think the work in this vicinity is moving steadily onward. Bro. A. B. Phillips has baptized two more, making five new members for this spring's work in Butte County, with good prospects for several more in the very near future.

SR. ANDREWS, Vernon, Mo., says:

I have been a member of the church about two years and in that time have enjoyed myself more than during all the years I was in the Free-will Baptist church. The gift of prophecy was at the prayer meeting yesterday to the edification of those present.

SR. (MRS.) ALICE DYKES, Vacaville, California, June 23:

I left our Zion land April 30th. This is indeed a beautiful country; just now this valley is at its best, with abundance of fruit and grain, and work for all those who care to work. I am visiting with my parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hlayter, who, sad to say, have never heard the gospel message. I also have two brothers and two sisters, adults, who are not members of any church but are Bible believers. I wish to ask if there are any Saints living near Vacaville. Would also like the address of an elder or Saint in or near Oakland. Also where I could find their chapel: please give street and number. I would like to locate near the church or in neighborhood with Saints. My health has greatly improved since coming here. I rejoiced greatly to read in the ENSIGN that Bro. Peter Anderson was called to be an apostle. May God bless him for he is a noble Saint. His kind words and good advice I shall never forget.

THERE is only one way for us to get to heaven, and that is the liv-ing way.

BRO. HENRY W. GODFREY, Tryon, Nebraska, requests the prayers of the Saints in his behalf on account of a physical affliction.

OMAHA, Nebraska, chapel is at 1818 21st Street. Services Sunday.—Sunday School at 9:30 a. m. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m. Prayer meeting Thursday at 7:45 p. m. A. W. Ballard, pastor.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Pes. G. H. Hulmes will speak to the Lees Summit Saints next Sunday, morning and evening.

Because of the success of the last basket meeting held at Chelsea park, Brn. White and Pease, the missionaries who introduced this innovation, have announced another basket grove meeting to be held Sunday, August 11th, at Chelsea park. Come and enjoy a day in the woods and let's get better acquainted.

Elder C. Ed. Miller, formerly of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, will be the speaker Sunday morning. W. N. Robinson is expected to occupy the stand in the evening.

There was a great commotion in our quiet city, Monday evening, some time before midnight. Very few families but what were aroused, and flitting around in their robes de night. A fifteen minute thunder and rain storm was the cause.

The communion service, in charge of Brn. May, Hulmes and Murphy, was well attended.

Elder H. H. Robinson returned from his mission in the east.

The drought presents an amusing side also. Heroic efforts are made by the grocers here to make a display of garden truck, when they haven't anything to show. Potatoes, cabbage and onions (by the pound) and a few bunches of dried up beets are about all the "green goods" they handle just now, and when you come to buy these you almost think it is a swindling "green goods" game. It is amusing to notice how there is a daily shifting of the position of these "vegetables;" it reminds us of the song:

From Wibleton to Wableton was eighteen miles,
From Wableton to Wibleton was eighteen miles,
From Wableton to Wibleton and Wibleton to Wableton, from Wableton to Wibleton was eighteen miles.

Bro. Arthur Mills, the book-keeper for the ENSIGN, returned from his vacation Tuesday evening.

Bro. Wm. Crick left this week for California.

Our evening prayer-meetings are quite well attended, considering the hot weather.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

We believe that the days are really upon us fulfilling "the earth shall burn as an oven" for the heat is something terrible. The hot winds are scorching everything and everybody. Despite all this, however, there was quite a nice sized congregation at services yesterday.

The morning hour was improved by an excellent sermon from Bro. F. A. Smith, who later in the day went to Belleville, Illinois, having an appointment there.

The pastor of the Methodist church across the way, is off on a vacation; this we know because of a number of his flock attending our services yesterday.

The Religio of last Friday evening was largely attended; a number of specially good selections by our own talent, also a reading by a young lady from Utah, whose name escapes our memory just now, a guest of Sr. Sadie Lewis.

Friday, July 19th, was the day we had to meet our second note of $590.00. Our committee has been very active, gathering in all resources, and when Bro. B. went to pay the note, only the interest note was presented, as the gentleman explained with some little confusion, that he supposed that was about all we would be prepared to liquidate. Great was his surprise when informed that not only the $590.00 was to be paid but one hundred dollars besides. All of us are more than pleased that we were able to do this, as it leaves but $2,400, and we hope, the Lord prospering us, to pay this readily. We are sure that all of our friends will rejoice with us when informed of this good news.

Sr. Whiting has recovered somewhat from her late illness, and is going away for a restful sojourn.

Misses Tena Archibald and E. Jeanette Dawson left Saturday evening for a two weeks' sojourn in St. Joe and environs.

There are whispers floating around as to the advisability of postponing for this year, the reunion; owing to the drought the grass is dead, the country is hot and very dusty, provisions are scarce, canned goods are very high, and our recent effort in meeting the church note leaves some of us indisposed to present further financial outlay. However, at present we do not know exactly what action will be taken. We note that one or two other reunions have been postponed.

Little Myron Trowbridge is better.

Bro. Wm. O. Thomas continues very low, and is growing feebler rapidly. Sr. Johnson also is quite ill.

The Mite Society spent two or three days recently, quilting, in the basement of the church. Some are looking forward, preparing for the Thanksgiving bazaar, which, will, doubtless, be held at that time.

Sr. Hughes, of Cheltenham, has gone to St. Joe on account of serious illness in her brother's family.

Tuesday evening, August 6th, the Cheltenham Saints will give an ice cream social; admission ten cents, entitling one to a plate of cream. Everybody invited.

ETTA M. HITCHCOCK.

2510 N. Garrison Ave., July 22.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

On Wednesday the four year old child of Bro. and Sr. Harry Pierce, while playing with matches, ignited his clothing, receiving a severe burn, from which he died on the following day. Services were held on the 19th in a school-house near by in charge of Brn. C. E. Guinand and C. Archibald, the writer trying to speak of, not only our hope, but that of all God's family. The service was solemn and well attended. The bereaved parents have our sympathies.

Mrs. Wm. Hamme, niece of Bro. Frank Heckendorf was badly burned on Friday by gasoline explosion.

Grandma Jones (Martha) after sixteen months of suffering, passed into a paradise of peace on the fifteenth at the ripe age of seventy-two years. Her remains were taken to Stewartsville for interment where services were held in the church. Sermon by the writer. She leaves four children and a husband to struggle on in the battle of life.

Little Sr. Mary Kinnaman is visiting her grandmother Kinnaman near Stewartsville, Missouri.

We were pleased to grasp the hand of our congenial brother, I. N. Roberts, once more. He is spending a few days in the city enroute to his southeastern mission. He looks well and feels aglow with love for the work. He will attend a conference in Tennessee on Saturday and Sunday next. Bro. Roberts spoke twice while here. Blessing go with you I. N. and may you be received with open arms by the Saints of your mission.

We visited South Park yesterday and enjoyed meeting with a few in Sabbath School and preaching capacity. Arrangements were made to reoccupy Schulte hall with Sabbath School at ten sharp and preaching at eleven o'clock. Saints who are possessed of the missionary spirit come down and help us. Come ye singers, come ye musicians, and let us praise the Lord.

As soon as the heated term is abated we expect to hold a series of meetings at the Aspey mission. Let the Saints prepare for it. Could we not rearrange, cleanse and beautify the room. Let all rally to the work here at this point.

We occupied at South St. Joseph mission last night with splendid liberty of spirit, though few listeners. The Spirit bids us faint not, but press onward.

Before arising this morning our ears were greeted with the musical voice of Sr. Josie. The words took deep hold on our heart. They are as follows:

Is the way so dark, O wanderer,
Is the hill crest wild and steep?
Far so far, the vale beyond these,
Where the home lights vigil keep?
Still the goal lies far before thee,
Soon will fall on thee the night;
Breathe the path that takes thee onward.

Fight the storm with all thy might,
Though thy heart be faint and weary,
Though thy footsteps faint would cease.

Journey onward, past the hill-crest
Lie for thee the plains of peace.

Yours onward,

J. M. TERRY.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 So. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m.; Central Branch, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2458 State St.

It is necessary to report another change in the hour of meeting for the Religio which will be held on Tuesday evening at 7:45 instead of Friday. Wishing to give all the show possible for a large attendance at both meetings, it was thought best to have one night free between Religio and Thursday evening prayer meeting. Consequently no tired excuses will be acceptable.

Sr. Smith, Bro. Joseph's wife, gave us a flying visit of part of one day last week. We are in hopes that on her return trip she will be able to make a longer stay.

Srs. Cudworth and Logan left last week for an extended visit to eastern Saints.

A picnic for the Hope of Israel Sunday School was given on Saturday at Morgau Park, one of the prettiest suburbs to the South. Bro. and Sr. W. H. Deam kept open house, and in every way possible on their part, made the picnic a success. All report an enjoyable time.

Bro. and Sr. Mucous passed through the city last Sunday on their way to their mission in Norway.

Although the weather was almost unbearable yesterday, a fair attendance was given all services, and those who were present at the afternoon preaching service were given a joyous surprise. Bro. Elmer Johnson who has been unable to meet with us for over a year, made his first trip. We sincerely hope he will continue to gather strength and become a regular attendant as formerly.

NOTICE.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. P. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine, telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1358.

Hot, hot, hot, and dry. Never before have we experienced such weather as this in our city; the thermometer ranges from five to eight degrees higher than heretofore, and no let up in sight.

Meetings on Sunday were all quite well attended, at 11 a. m. Pres. D. F. Winn was the speaker. After the sermon Elder J. A. Gillen baptized Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, two elderly people, for many years devoted members of the Methodist church. They first heard and became interested in the gospel at the protracted meetings held by Elders J. D. White and F. C. Warny at Northeast mission last winter; they are excellent people. There are others who are standing at the door of the kingdom, looking in, and are able to see the good that might be enjoyed by them if they would enter in.

The prayer meeting at 12:15 was good and well attended; those baptized in the morning were confirmed by Elders Pickering and Gillen. Bro. Winn was the speaker in the evening.

Pres. J. D. White preached at Argentine at 11 a. m., and at the tent (which is now located at north end of Quindaro Boulevard) at 8 p. m.; Elder Pease preached at the tent at 11 a. m.; Elder J. A. Gillen preached at Northeast Mission; Elder F. C. Warny preached at Lee's Summit both morning and evening. The Saints at Lee's Summit are mostly farmers and are greatly interfered with by the drouth, and feel much discouraged; the corn crop and gardens are entirely burned up. We noticed the grape arbor at Bro. Flinn's, the leaves were entirely burned, the vines were loaded with grapes half grown. I was informed that was the condition of things all through the country. Some of the Saints are in a sad condition, but their trust in God is firm, and He has promised that every thing shall work together for good to all that love Him, and manifest their love for Him by keeping His commandments.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

GUBERNSEY, Cal., July 7.

Dear Ensign:—As I have not the privilege of meeting with the Saints, this Sabbath morning, will spend a few moments in writing a few lines for your valuable pages.

We have had no preaching here since last fall and long for the time to come when the gospel shall again be preached here. At present there seems to be very little interest taken in regard to religious matters. There has been a great deal of prejudice against our people in this neighborhood, and some have been bitterly opposed to our elders preaching in the union church. Bro. Daley once made the remark that the way some of them were doing, they would be sure to go down, and it certainly has come to pass, for the union church, that a few years ago was well filled, now has from fifteen to twenty out to their preaching services.

There are some honest people here, and I trust the time may soon come when they shall come forth and yield obedience to the requirements of the gospel. O, for the time to come, when this earthly pilgrimage shall be over, and we shall be gathered home, where we shall be free from the sorrows of this life. Many times I should feel discouraged indeed, were it not for the hope which I have beyond this vale of tears.

Scenes of sorrow most distressing,
Scenes that fill the heart with pain,
Often yield the choicest blessing:
Present loss is future gain.

In the darkest dispensation,
Oh, remember, God is just;
'Tis the richest consolation
In His faithfulness to trust.

When bowed down with the cares of this life, and our burdens seem almost more than we can bear, how much comfort we receive from our Father in heaven, after having entered our closet and there poured out our hearts to Him in prayer, asking Him to help us bear our trials.

I desire an interest in the prayers of all of God's children that I may endure unto the end and stand with the redeemed.

I remain your sister in Christ,
MOLLIE A. FLOWY.

BOZEMAN, MONT.

Editor Ensign:—Please say to your readers that I have lost a memorandum containing names of subscribers to the Australian mission paper received during May and June. This, in the hurry of breaking up house-keeping and traveling. I will be glad if all who sent subscriptions and donations during those months will drop me a card, notifying amount and the address. All others who have not received receipts will also notify me.

We have postponed the time of departure from July to August boat. We leave Bozeman, August 19th, and sail on Steamer "Moana" on the 23d, arriving in Sydney 23 days later. All subscriptions and donations for that much needed paper will be received at Bozeman, Montana, up to August 19th. We are still receiving encouragement. Upon my arrival from a preaching tour lately, I found about twenty letters awaiting answer, all containing something. Why should we stop? The South Sea Island Mission has a press, and the Scandinavian mission has a paper, why can't the Australian mission have a small mission sheet? We believe we are going to get it, and if help continues to arrive, we look forward to the purchase of a small press. We are now about 15 below the 250 mark, the number asked for from America. It is only 75 cents per year. Several $5.00 donations arrived lately. Don't spoil a good intention; let me hear from you.

There is good prospect of a debt of $150.00 being lifted from the Deer Lodge chapel. Have circulated a subscription and received over $100.00. The number of members in Deer Lodge is small. It is with pleasure that I acknowledge substantial help from the brethren of Butte, Anaconda, Stuart and Avon. Bitter Root and Gallatin are yet to hear from.

During our twelve months labor in this state we have not been privileged to meet with more commendable zeal and energy than in Helena. The members there are few, but all did nobly in assisting to get our great movement before the people. We were the guest of Mr. and Sr. Benedict who had fitted up a large double room of a vacant residence near their home on ninth avenue. Here we spoke to appreciative audiences, who were mostly friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. B. Through her social conduct all prejudice seemed allayed. Through Mr. B's effort we were interviewed by two reporters of daily papers who gave us column articles and big head lines. A third daily also gave us neat treatment in a half column editorial, the editor of this one being the son of an old time Latter Day Saint elder of Iowa.

On arrival here, was informed that Elder Gomer Reese has been having some good meetings in this valley and baptized one.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., July 14.

Editor Ensign:—Being an interested reader of your paper I concluded to contribute a few lines, my principal object being to address the Sunday School workers of this (the Pottawattamie district). As your district officer I am trying to become acquainted with the needs and conditions of the different schools. I find it difficult, however, to become acquainted as I should like because of the distance that separates us.

There may be places where some of our missionaries have succeeded in making openings, that schools might be organized and carried on successfully. Will the elders of the district please take notice and assist us in this direction. We must be careful, however, in organizing, and be sure there are some upon whom the burden of the work may rest before we start. There must, of a necessity, be a few in every school who enter upon the work with their whole heart. Spasmodic efforts are not wanted, but the faithful, steady worker is the one whose service we so greatly need. To find the superintendent and co-workers at their post of duty on one Sunday, but upon the following one to see their places vacant, caused by their willingness to sacrifice the duties of the Lord's day for the worldly pleasures of the previous night, shows too plain their unworthiness to act in such responsible places.

We appeal to the Saints and friends to assist us in bringing the Sunday School work in our district to the front. If there are any who feel that they have not done as much for the work as they might, let them begin to improve now.

Salute residing where there are no schools, what are you doing? By a little work could you not start a Sunday School, and having started, run it successfully? It does not require great numbers to have a lively school; remember the promise is made to two or three as well as to the multitude.

Our district conventions are intended to be productive of good. How much fruit they have borne I do not know, and should there be any in the district (and I hope there are) who feel that there is great need for improvement, please come on with your suggestions, criticisms and corrections; they'll be gladly received.

Remember our next convention meets at Hazel Dell, August 30, 1901. Will you help us to make it instructive? Address me,

J. A. HANSEN, R. Route 2, Council Bluffs, Ia.

CLEAR BROOK, Wash., July 8. Dear Ensign:—We live far from any of the Saints, and don't have a chance of hearing any of the elders. If Elder Devision, or whoever is in Washington state, would come and preach for us for a while, we would rejoice. Bro. Hiram Holt preached for us a few nights a year ago last winter. Any visiting elders will find us in Clear Brook in the northeast corner of the state. We can have the school-house; there is no church here. You that live where there is preaching and Sunday School are favored to an extent that you ought to appreciate very highly. God speed the ENSIGN. Your brother, MICHAEL LADE.

CLEVELAND, O., July 5.

Editor Ensign:—The day of days has passed, and for one I am pleased to know that we have only one Fourth of July a year. I do detest those fire crackers. Yet we have to suffer one day out of the year just to please those who would not know that there was a Fourth if fire crackers were not on the program. The heavy rain at seven o'clock last evening spoiled the opportunity for the display in vogue. The good Lord furnished a free exhibition of the heavenly fire works. But this was not enjoyed by many. Fearful and unbelieving are not all dead yet, is evidenced by fruits.

In view of high rents for halls, and the difficulty of getting people to come to such places, it was thought best to obtain a tent and give the people a chance to hear this gospel in the cities of northern Ohio, as far as it shall be possible to reach during the summer months. While our good brethren at the last district conference thought best to dispense with the idea of having a tent, and became so liberal that they burned what money they had on hand over to the bishop's agent of the Kirtland district, hence, without money we concluded to purchase a tent and start gospel work at once, and take our chances of raising enough money to pay for it. We have it located on Euclid avenue at Lockwood street, since June 22. We are meeting with fair success for city work. We are doing our part as the good Lord gives us wisdom and strength, and we feel confident that God will not fail to do His part.

Let the readers of the ENSIGN, especially those who reside in this district, when they read this, remember that we are talking to you, who are interested in the onward march of this gospel work, and asking you to assist us in paying for this tent. You may think, Well, they did not ask us whether we wanted it or not, and that you are under no obligation to help. This we will leave with you and the good Lord to settle. I am sure He will direct you aright if inquiry is made. So we will work on, anticipating your hearty support as the Lord shall bless you to give. Send all donations to A. H. PARSONS, Box 28, Cleveland, Ohio. Tent is 30x45, oval in form, with canvass settees six feet long, with a rest for the back, making a nice equipment for mission work; also an organ that furnishes the music.

Bro. Baldwin writes he has been meeting with success in the eastern part of the district, baptizing a number. Bro. Heman C. Smith is doing more gospel talking than all the rest of us. You ask me how is that? It is easy to understand if you will visit the temple of God most any day now! People from every part of the world are visitors there, and most generally want to know something about this latter day work, and but few leave without something to read. Just think, last year over thirteen hundred passed over the threshold to hear the good news of Zion's cause. Think it will not have its effect in due time?

Bro. W. H. Kelley has not been able to do much, and prospects are poor for obtaining any service from him for some time unless the Lord relieves him of that terrible throat trouble which has almost incapacitated him from speaking. However, preaching is a small part made incumbent on one in charge of so large a field as that to which he is assigned.

Wednesday evening the Kirtland branch, by the council of Bishop Kelley, voted to ordain Bro. James Kelley (son of Elder W. H. Kelley) to the office of an elder. Ordination will take place next Lord's day, and he enters into the field at once as a worker for God in behalf of fallen humanity. As the fathers fail by reason of age the sons step to the front. What is grander and more comforting to a father who has watched his wayward boy during the slippery path of youth, come to the front and cast his lot with God and His children.

It was thought wise and best for the work in Kirtland to ordain Bro. Eben Curry to the office of priest. Hence, the good work is moving on, I believe to please the Lord, whether it pleases everybody else or not.

Bro. G. T. Griffiths was called away suddenly to the bedside of his mother who is not expected to survive the sickness that has brought her very low. It is very unfortunate for him at this juncture, as his time was wholly needed to get ready for his eastern trip.

Bro. Scott and LaRue called on us one day last week, en route for York state. Bro. Scott gave us one of his characteristic sermons, holding the people spellbound for one hour and ten minutes. Come again, brethren!

Mr. O. McFarland and Sr. Nellie Allen were united in the bond of matrimony by our congenial brother missionary, D. L. Allen, brother to the bride.

Last Sabbath we dedicated the canvas tabernacle to God and His service, in the behalf of fallen humanity. The Cleveland quartet rendered some excellent selections. Quite a few of the Saints of Kirtland were present and assisted in the congregational singing. Bro. W. H. Kelley preached the sermon. Bro. D. L. Allen offered the opening prayer. Next Lord's day the Sunday School at Kirtland will give an exercise for the children.

In bond, A. H. PARSONS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 1.

Dear Ensign:—We started a mission known as the Northeast Kansas City mission, last fall, and we are still at work here. Sometimes we feel discouraged, but then again we feel all right. It seems pretty hard to get the people out to hear during this hot weather, but we are going to keep right on. I feel to rejoice in this work.

We had Bro. J. D. White with us last night and he gave us a good talk. We are glad that we have such a good man sent to us: it is my prayer that we may get the people awakened in this place and that some may be gathered out. Ever praying for the welfare of all my brethren and the ENSIGN,

I remain your sister, MRS. M. ROCKHOLD.

BREULE, O. T., July 7.

Dear Ensign:—Having moved here only this spring I take this way of telling the many dear Saints with whom we have met, know our whereabouts. We are located in Woodward county, five miles from Breule post office, thirty-five miles from Woodward, Okla. Territory, and thirty-five miles from Ashland, Kansas, in section 29, township 27, N, Range 22 W. I give this full direction because there are no sectional roads here, and if there are any Saints in these parts they may be able to find us if they have a sectional map. There are no school-houses here in which to hold meetings but we expect one to be built this fall, then we shall be very desirous of having meetings here. We are trying to interest all with whom we come in contact, distributing literature all we can and loaning the ENSIGN to our neighbors. We rejoice daily in the gospel and wish to live right, and thus be able to lead others into this marvelous light. Although very lonely we find sweet comfort in the gospel.

In the one faith, (Mrs.) INA S. BIVENS.

WEBSTER, S. Dak., June 23.

Dear Ensign:—I have never been a contributor to your columns, nor even a subscriber, though this last I shall be very soon. A dear friend in Christ sometimes sends me a bundle of ENSIGNS and Heralds from which I glean much comfort and instruction.

I was baptized eight years ago very much against my parents' wishes, and for a time I rejoiced in the truth. I had very little opportunity to communicate with the Saints, and after a short time we moved away from the farm to a town where there were none that I knew of. There, through my failure to keep the commandments, and the indirect influence of friends, I allowed myself to become indifferent. At one time I thought of withdrawing from the church and wrote to Elder H. A. Stebbins asking for the terms of withdrawal. He referred me to the branch which I had joined. Meanwhile I had earnestly prayed that I might know if it was or was not the will of the Father that I should take this step. When I arose from my knees I opened the Bible, believing that I would find my answer therein. The first words I saw were "My God forbid it me that I should do this thing." I thought no more of withdrawing from the church, yet continued an unfruitful member for a good many years. I married and came here. My husband is not a member of any church and greatly opposed to the true one. Dear brothers and sisters, pray with me that he may be guided into the right way, and that thus I may be allowed to bring up my children in the love and fear of God.

About a year ago I attended services in the Episcopal church here, and the sermon roused me from my indifference. Faith I had never lost, and when I heard this minister preach so earnestly, I thought, "Shame to me who have the full ripe grain and am such a coward, and this man is so brave when feeding on chaff." I went home and prayed and read my Bible and some old ENSIGNS and Heralds, and from that day I have tried at least to be a better Christian. Many times when prayerfully seeking light on certain subjects I would open the Bible at the very place. Once when very much cast down because of my past indifference and sin I opened it and read the 25th Psalm. What a comfort it was. Sometimes I grow heartsick from opposition, and long so for a word with a believing soul. There are no Saints near here, but I grow stronger in faith, and have had the courage to tell my neighbors of my belief, even the Episcopal minister's wife. They all look horrified until I assure them I am not a polytheist. One seems quite interested. Another is, I fear, drifting into Spiritualism. She has told me of queer dreams in which departed spirits speak with her, and says she can converse, at any time, with her departed step-father. She insists that these are good spirits for they speak only of good, and once warned her to give up a certain sin which the warning spirit knew not of while in this world. I have thought of, and almost decided to show her the passages in the Bible that warn against "familiar spirits." She thinks spiritualism is "grand," but being a Lutheran she has not "given herself up to it."

This letter may come under the eye of him whose years of faithful teaching led me to believe and obey the gospel. If so, this much I would say to him, "I am trying to walk in the way you pointed out to me. Well I remember your advice to me after I had been baptized and all friends seemed to have turned foes. You warned me never to neglect prayer—told me to 'pray always.' Being far from the Saints I cannot meet with them to worship nor to partake of the sacrament. You have prayed for me and mine so much, I ask you still to pray. I pray that ere my end may come I may have helped some soul to see the light."

May the good Father bless all the Saints, and especially the isolated ones. Truly there is nothing to compare with this beautiful gospel, and may God hasten the day when it will enter the hearts of all good men. Your sister in the bonds of Christ, C. W. L.

LAGGANDE, Ore., July 6.

Editor Ensign:—Words fall me to say how precious the pages of the ENSIGN are to me in my isolation, as I am the only Saint in this city, but there are plenty of members of the Utah church here: they have built a church and organized a stake here this spring. Oh, how I am hungering for the precious truth. May God hasten the day when He may send His ministers to preach the restored gospel, that there may be many precious souls here hear and obey. I have the promise of one church when not in use. If any of the elders should come to this city they will find us located on Adams avenue, one-half mile from postoffice.

My prayer is we may all live worthy the name we bear.

Your sister in Christ, MARY A. HARTNESS.

CONCORDIA, Kan., July 5.

Editor Ensign:—Bro. Jos. C. Vaughn and the writer are quite busy in the gospel work. The spirit of unbelief is quite noticeable, almost all the people are partaking of the same spirit.

The editor of the Linn Digest told us, "We have heard your doctrine for fourteen years, and know it as well as you do, we are tired of doctrine; we want a sign to make us believe you are right. There is no use for us to go and hear you," and they did not come but left us to preach to empty seats. Bro. W. S. Pender had formerly held a debate here at Linn. We find scattered here and there those who are willing to hear.

At Waterville at the close of our last meeting, a lady in the audience arose and asked the privilege of speaking; it being granted her, she said: "We should not come to hear those men preach. I did not want to come; I could not stay at home, God has given me a message and I am going to tell it. If Bro. Gurwell has power to lay on hands, he had better come back here and lay hands on all of us. I have the Spirit of God deep down in my soul; salvation is free. These men that are preaching here should be tarred and feathered. We believe in baptism and a whole lot of other things," she walking back and forth through the house; but we could see the spirit of evil was present, and they felt like mobbing us.

The leading people of that community are much interested in the gospel, we see no reason now, why they will not soon be one with us. This was the first preaching ever done here. We are unable to get a public building to preach in here. We begin preaching tonight on the street; some interest here.

We hope for a large attendance at the reunion August 22d at Blue Rapids. This letter tells some of the obstacles or missionary life in Kansas, and one can realize the fullness of the Gentiles is almost complete.

Laboring for Zion's onward march, your brother in Christ,

L. G. GURWELL.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., July 19.

Dear Ensign:—Bro. Adams and Haden are holding a series of meetings here, interest good. Baptized five yesterday at the Grand River; Bro. George Moody and his little daughter, Lydia, were baptized, also three from Brackenridge, Sr. Holmes and her two sons. We are rejoicing over the work the Lord is doing here through His servants: looks like there will be a great ingathering. Bro. Haden left this morning for Indian Territory on business.

May we be prayerful, humble and meek, that God may crown us in the celestial glory, is my prayer.

"WANTED—A PROPHET."

BY ELDER T. W. WILLIAMS.

[REPRINTED HERE ENTIRE.]

The "Outlook" (Lyman J. Abbott, editor), for January 15, 1901, contains an article from the pen of the Rev. Henry A. Stimson, D. D., entitled, "Wanted—A Prophet," which portrays the present status of Christianity, and likewise contains several unexpected admissions.

Mr. Stimson is decidedly optimistic notwithstanding he avers that "from more than one point of view it would appear that a time of crisis is upon our churches." He hastens to state, however, that "there is no need of pessimism" even though "everywhere men are under more or less of strain."

"Sport has grown to be a business," says Mr. Stimson. "The patronage of the theater is immense; whist clubs and matinees fill the afternoons; and the sensuous pleasures that once were the foe of all that is good in society, are now competing with or allied to these other forms of amusement which, whether good or ill in themselves, are masterful in their interest and consuming of time. It is not strange that men are finding that they have very little time to devote to religious affairs, even if they do not come to have little care for personal religion. There is wide testimony to the effect that it was never harder to support the churches than it is today, and never more difficult to get Christian work efficiently performed." Mr. Stimson may discover a rift in the cloud in that men—unregenerated men—are thus affected, but I can not discover much encouragement in the following recital:

"Even on the part of our most interested church members excuses are both incessant and valid, and the conditions of many a man who is striving to do his part in the face of outside pressure is pitiable."

Is there much hope for a cause when men are "incessantly" offering "excuses" for the non-performance of duties voluntarily assumed? Think you that there is virtue sufficient to effect the regeneration of the race in such material?

The following admission is gratuitous to say the least: "With business men still in the prime of life breaking down on all sides from heart failure and kidney disease, it is impossible under present conditions to secure for the church life the thought or the care on the part of our best business men which it properly demands."

Legitimate duties in the physical realm should never intrude within the spiritual. If our best business men cannot give to "church life the thought or the care" that it properly demands, how could a prophet help them unless he outlined a policy which would change those conditions and thus place better environments about them? To attempt a cure without ever noting the cause of a disease is the work of a charlatan or a quack.

Eighteen hundred years ago the world needed a prophet—they did not want one—they never wanted a true prophet—they never will.

This same prophet enunciated a spiritual and economic code second to none. What was the result? The very people who professed discipleship have ever stood in the way of the expansion of this communitistic philosophy of the Nazarine. The Jews needed as never before a prophet such as He; but a prophet of His type they did not want, neither would they have. They repudiated Him.

Recognizing the power of environment over the lives of men, Christ's immediate disciples withdrew from the world's activities and endeavored to establish a co-operative society which would make possible the enforcement of the ethical elucidations of this greatest of occult philosophers, without let or hindrance. The times were not propitious; the people were not prepared for such an undertaking and it failed of accomplishment. One would naturally think that the few who retained their discipleship would strive for the ushering in of those ideal conditions contemplated by their Great Teacher. What are the facts? The very nations who supposedly espoused His philosophy and the Christian churches are responsible for the very conditions which Mr. Stimson says make it impossible to secure for the church life the thought or the care on the part of our best business men which it properly demands.

For centuries the church has stood for individualism. They have ever stimulated men to seek heaven by portraying the awful torture inflicted on their less fortunate brethren in hell. This principle thus presented has been the greatest auxiliary to present conditions.

The thought of individual salvation to the exclusion of the great majority, has been one of the most nefarious propositions palmed off on a superstitious, ignorant world. If the happiness of the saved is to be intensified through the suffering of the damned, then is the proposition true, "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

Why this arraignment of society then? Christian men and nations are but the outgrowth of so called Christian teaching. "By their fruits ye shall know them," said the Master. According to this doctor of divinity the fruit is inferior and of questionable flavor. That which is true in the spiritual realm finds its counterpart in the material. What has the orthodox church ever done to change present conditions so a business man could give thought and care to church life?

Our vain pretensions are an inexcusable libel on the sermon on the mount, and, until men and churches lend adherence to the utterances of the prophets of the past, the cry "Wanted—a prophet" is of little utility.

"But the times cry out for something very different from all this. The need is for prophetic utterance. A word is wanted that shall come to the churches and to men's hearts, with the authority of the voice of God."

We cheerfully grant this, but upon what grounds—common grounds—are we to determine this question? If a prophetic utterance does come how are we to know as to its genuineness? There must be some means of determining what is truly the word of God. Must God speak in our dialect ere we accept His message? Are we willing to concede that any good can come out of modern Nazareth?

True, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel and Daniel had a message each for their time and people, but it was not as Mr. Stimson contends, "the word" for which the people were waiting, but the very opposite, and when it was uttered they did not recognize it as from God. No more would the people today recognize as the word of God that which disclosed their sin, depicted their folly and made heterodox their particular faith.

Orthodox Christianity is steered against present day revelation. When, in 1820, Joseph Smith came with a divine message, orthodoxy was satisfied with nothing less than his blood. It was not atheism that hounded him to his death. The doubter was indignant but the self-righteous modern Pharisee and priest could not—would not—entertain his message. As with all others of God's servants, he was repudiated and his message spurned.

Truly, the times do cry out for something different from all this. There is a need for prophetic utterance. It is a hopeful sign to note that one doctor of divinity is willing to concede that their patient will die unless reinforcements come. May they farther clamor for a consultation.

For several hundred years the spiritual practitioners have been plying their profession with varying results, and what with Calvinistic pills, Catholic potions, Episcopal diet, Methodist tonics and Congregational anisthenics, the church is sadly in need of a change of climate.

What is really necessary is for the patient to discard these quacks and secure the service of practitioners of the old school, who can furnish diplomas signed by the head of the institution. Of what service is a prophet save he have authority to apply the truth which he offers to the world! Of what benefit would Moses have been to Israel had he not the priesthood to enforce God's righteous decree? A man crying in the wilderness is not enough for this generation, we must have an "Elijah" who will "turn the hearts of the fathers to the children and the hearts of the children to their fathers."

We need not alone men with a divine message, but also those who are empowered to enforce said message, and, as Mr. Stimson says, "A word is wanted that shall come to the church and to men's hearts with the authority of the voice of God," but think you that God would sanction, aye condone, the present confusion of religious tongues? There must be a pure language, and, if Babylon today would hear the message, they must unlearn their dialect and master the new, and yet, ever old divine vocabulary.

What is needed is not only that the conscience of the entire church shall be touched, and the heart of the entire religious world set to throbbing anew, but rather that most men should learn that the thing they call the church, is the greatest menace to Christianity. There can be but one Church of Christ, and until men learn that they have no more inherent right to organize a church and offer divine fellowship, that a man has to arrogantly assume to represent some reputable business establishment and expect the consignment of their orders in their own way and without any legal appointment from the firm, we will not make much material progress in the solution of this vexed problem.

The prophet said, "Surely the Lord will do nothing except he reveal his mind and will to his servants the prophets," and the tacit admittance by Mr. Stimson that there are no prophets today and the world needs one, aye many, is a confession of God's apparent inaction among the organized representatives of supposed Christianity.

There is a vast difference 'twixt Christianity and Churchianity. So long as modern Israel are wedded to their idols, so long are they impervious to a divine message. Tables of stone with a modern Moses is of very little effect so long as there is an Aaron running a calf factory.

Yes, "men's eyes need to be opened to perceive relative values in their true relation," and the man who succeeds will be Christ-like. He will stand aloof from these man-made institutions. He will discard the "opinions of men" and, with that characteristic divine element which has been the mark of distinction among all of God's ambassadors, He will call upon men to "stand ye in the ways and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls."

There is no necessity for the creation of a new religious boulevard; what the world needs is some divine leader to discover to them the paths in which the fathers trod; that "strait" way which alone hath terminals in the eternal city.

We can concur with the statement "Reliance must first and always be upon the Spirit of God;" still we should never forget that "many false prophets are gone out into the world" and therefore "try the spirits whether they are of God," "for if it were possible they shall deceive the very elect." Isaiah says, "To the law and the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them."

Mr. Stimson continues: "The time has come for the awakening of God's people today and for this a prophet is needed. One is wanted who shall re-state the eternal verities, and shall fill once more the hearts of men with the visions of God and the glory of his kingdom and his gospel."

Yes, but think you, Bro. Stimson, should he come clothed in camel's hair, eating locust and wild honey, and teaching the absolute necessity of water baptism, the nominal churchman would accept his message? Do you think, should he designate water baptism as a "saving ordinance" and aver that in this way only can "we fulfill all righteousness," all people would flock to his standard? Should he proceed to lay on hands for the reception of the Holy Ghost and confirmation in the church, would the mass of Christian clergy accord to his views and concede his mission? Where is the churchman and where is the church that, for one moment, would give audience to an apostolic "pretender" who dared reiterate the Messianic polity of apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, teachers and deacons? How many of the suffering and dying laymen would throw away their prejudices and give audience to a prophet who would announce, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved and he that believeth not shall be damned," following up this aggressive measure with the promise, "And these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover."

It is all right to call for the "eternal verities," but when they come we are too prone to imitate the darkey and ask the Lord why He could not tell when we were joking. We cannot cajole the Invisible. Men have had the hardihood, or the insane recklessness and abandon, to trifle with the Infinite, but the day of retribution is at hand and we will then discover

That the God who reigned o'er Babylon
Is the God who is reigning yet.

Yes, "men are capable of being thus filled (with the vision of God and the glory of His kingdom and His gospel) as ever they were," but when we turn back the century folds in the curtain of time and review the history of nations and men, the eternal verity of the divine conclusion "the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth" needs no farther confirmation, and down from Gennesaret comes the judicial edict, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

As we stand "in the midst of Mars' Hill" of modern science and scholastic dissertations there is need that another Paul come declaring, "I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious, for, as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, To

THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore, ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you."

The world is surfeited with form and ritual and hypocrisy which sends burning to the throne of God a smoke so dense and scent so carnal that heaven to the masses has for lo, these many years been shrouded in eternal gloom.

The human heart can not "be counted upon to be emptied in a moment of the surfeit that gorges it, and to cry out with all its old hunger and thirst after righteousness." The human heart never has thirsted after righteousness, for as Mr. Stimson says, "It takes a heart to move men's hearts, and the need today is for some great heart aflame with God."

We cheerfully acquiesce with the following: "Brilliant oratory and academic learning are for this need no better than trumpery entertainment and ecclesiastical diplomacy. Christians are not to be enticed out of worldliness, any more than the world is to be tricked into repentance."

You may be "waiting to hear God speak to the children of Israel that they go forward" but "when that voice was heard," though "Moses and the elders had only to arrange the swift details, as the people arose quickly and went," you must not forget the preparatory work performed by God's Anointed and the "leek and onion" aftermath.

You are right in thus addressing your fellow churchmen; "The whole question of the church and the community, for example, and of missions must be restated. Christians must get together. Differences must be set aside."

There must be some common ground of agreement, however. Christians can not get together when each and all are held captive by sectarian walls high and impervious as ever encircled an eastern metropolis or the Chinese Empire. First, these walls must be broken down.

"Differences must be set aside," but when those differences are vaporized the truth will still remain. In the contest 'twixt truth and error differences are ever apparent. Truth contributes its quota to the clash and yet no one would argue because one man has the truth and another is affected with error, that in order to heal the breach and absolute differences both must renounce their position. Man-made differences must "be set aside," but divine differences must be maintained. "In such a crisis as this, these (human) differences are as impertinent and as puerile as were the bickerings of the allied forces in the face of the peril around them at Tientsin, but these divine differences are pertinent and potent factors and the only thing that will save the church from crushing defeat."

In our contest with error we must raise anew the Nazarine banner. Every star and stripe must be there: the red, the white, the blue.

The blood of Christ, the atonement, must color the whole with a crimson hue. The limitless love of the Infinite must also find expression. Our army must be organized after the divine pattern. We must recognize Christ as the supreme commander, and all army regulations which do not bear His signature must be abolished; no official, from general down to corporal, should be honored save he, carried with him the documentary evidence of his official appointment.

Our only safety lies in standing by the original orders of the captain of our hosts. The enemy must lay down their arms and surrender on the terms of the gospel. We cannot afford to modify the orders. We dare not abridge the terms of surrender.

How puerile is your statement, Bro. Stimson, "The full horror should be felt of the claim, whoever makes it, 'We do not recognize any other church,' whether because of the possession of a pope, or a bishop, or a liturgy, or a baptism."

Let me carry your deductions to their legitimate conclusions. The full horror should be felt of the claim, whoever makes it, "We do not recognize any other church," whether because of the possession of a Christ, or an apostle, or a prophet, or a deacon, or a gospel, or a baptism.

Here you are contending for a prophet: that it is the only way out of the wilderness, yet you are willing to surrender your position in order to amicably adjust the differences which are apparent in the orthodox church.

My dear brother, all is not gold that glitters, neither is everything that passes as a church recognized of the Father. Christ said, "I will build my church." All these man made, human orders and sectarian societies bear no more relation to the true church of Christ than the moon does to the sun. Whatever light they have is borrowed. There is no life within the moon, so likewise there is no inherent virtue in the sects.

Priesthood is God's permission for service; without it the keys to divine favor are lost, the combination unknown and man without the pale of safety.

We are in accord with the statement, "Any section that feels itself exalted above the brethren, by reason of its history, or its possessions, or its privileges is so much the more called to show its oneness with its head, by its humility, its brotherliness, its spirituality, and its unselfish devotion," but this does not demand the surrender of an official, a rule or a ceremony in the true church.

Man is not to receive credit because he is in possession of a truth, but should he stultify himself or compromise the truth, surrendering only in one point to error, in order to conciliate his fellows, he stultifies his manhood, neutralizes his power, and is worthy only the anathemas of God and man.

You state "the sorrows of life are growing portentous. The vices of heathenism are the vices of christianity and are terrific." True, aye, too true. And yet for three centuries the church has, with lofty head and scornful mien, protested its superiority. Would not your confession evidence that the salt has lost its savor? Let us cast out churchianity for it is only fit to be trodden under foot of men.

You ask, "Who will make us feel again the exceeding sinfulness of sin?" He who comes with the divine message and declares all under sin, and demands as Christ did of Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again," "Ye must be born of water and of the Spirit."

"Who will tell us truly how humanity is affected, and what is to be the destiny of the world?" A prophet of God like Moses, John or Joseph Smith.

You continue, "What will arouse the community? What will shake Christians out of their lethargy, and prosperous business men out of their selfish absorption?" The Spirit of God, of course.

Yes, but how are men to receive the Spirit of God? Is it a purchasable commodity? Can you secure it at all stands and of every vender? If my Biblical knowledge is reliable, in the apostolic age it was only obtainable from one quarter and dispensed by legally appointed representatives.

I am of the opinion that the world is looking for some learned theologian to be the voice crying in the wilderness. Is it not barely possible that the prophet for whom the world is looking has already come and the masses have not discerned his coming? This has been the case in all previous ages, why not now? If the past is a reliable index God's election will not accord with the human nomination.

I know not how you read your Bible when you say, "The prophets of Israel all were men prepared," "when the time came the man was not wanting, God spoke and the people heard. The word was that for which the people were waiting, and when it was uttered they at once recognized it as from God." The religious people did not. The sects did not. The common people, the sinners, did however. And so it is today, so it will ever be.

"The lesson of the hour then reaches back of the churches to individual christians," and to an individual church. The truth is all powerful. An admixture of truth with error neutralizes the former and gives a semblance of sanctity to the latter. And if we give "time for much prayer and self-abasement, and a looking to God for an answer and for help," God will supply the necessary light, but we must not forget that the provisions are, "If any man will do God's will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself," and "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering, for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the wind and tossed. For let not that man think he shall receive anything of the Lord."

"It is no time for scheming, or for pressing for position, or for magnifying human instrumentalities and rejoicing in human success. The crowd does not count." For this we have contended for three-quarters of a century. Thank God, others are coming to see the light! Bro. Stimson continues: "On all sides the leader is needed upon whom the Spirit of God manifestly rests. Our great missionary assemblies this year have laid bare the need, the facts are before the people, the hearts of the churches are stirred. What we want now, all over the land, is a restatement of great truths, not so much one great prophet, perhaps, as a multitude prophesying the great things of God. Then there will be blessing, when ministers are heard saying, 'The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me,' then the broken heart will be bound up, liberty will come to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound."

Brethren, here is the cry of one out of the wilderness of despair and darkness, pleading, aye contending, for the light. He is not alone. All o'er the world there is an awakening. The sham, the old shell of creed and ritual and sectism is found to be hollow without life or meat. Instinctively men are looking around for help. Shall we be equal to the occasion? Shall it be with us, "not alone one great prophet, but rather the multitude prophesying the great things of God?" We alone have the solution of this great question in our hands. Through Joseph Smith God favored us with the priesthood and re-committed the gospel for our dissemination by angelic hands. It cannot, it must not, be that some inaction of ours shall dissipate the halo which radiates around this "marvelous work and a wonder." Thank God he has spoken again. There is a "re-statement of great truths," "the whole question of the church and the community, for example, and of missions" has been restated, and "one" has come who has restated "the eternal verities," and hath filled once more the hearts of men with the vision of God, and the glory of His kingdom and His gospel, and that prophet; that great heart was JOSEPH SMITH.

INDIANS CAME FROM ASIA.

"Unquestionably of Asiatic origin" is the verdict as to the California Indians, rendered by a special commissioner sent to that part of the country by the Smithsonian Institution. Prof. W. H. Holmes, Anthropologist-in-chief of the National Museum, voices the opinion, which practically settles a long disputed question, in a bulletin that is about to be published. He says that the aborigines now found in the Golden state came long ago from the far North, from Behring Sea and beyond, having crossed over from Asia by way of the "frigid arch," which affords a land passage interrupted only by a narrow water barrier a few miles in breadth.

In California at the present time, says Prof. Holmes, are found remnants of twenty distinct nations, speaking as many languages. These varied ethnic elements, embraced within a region only 800 miles in length by 300 miles in width, seem to have been attracted one after another to the lowland and coastal valleys by the bait of an unfailing food supply. So formidable are the barriers of mountain ranges on the east, and so forbidding the deserts on the south, that few communities once settled there would ever take the trouble to seek homes elsewhere. It would appear that the peoples were caught like fishes in a trap; the way in was easy, but the way out was hard.

The Indians, or rather their remote ancestors, came from Asia by way of Behring Strait because that was the easiest as well as the shortest route. On an ordinary map it does not look the shortest, but it is such nevertheless, and that this is true may easily be ascertained by a brief examination of any geographical globe. It is considered reasonably certain that the earliest beings properly called human dwelt not far from the Straits of Malacca, and that thence their descendants spread over the world.

Prof. Otis T. Mason, of the Smithsonian Institute, calls attention to the fact that the shortest line between the Straits of Malacca and the continent of North America is a great circle passing northward along the east coast of Asia, across Behring Strait and southward to the Columbia river in Oregon. This was the route followed by the first comers to America. Not only was it the shortest, but it may be said that food grew in profusion all along it by the way-side. Early man was obliged to travel in those tracks which were marked out by nature and provisioned for his journeys. Water furnished the greatest quantity and variety of food for the least effort, and the same element afforded easiest transportation.

The route was nearly all the way by sea—an inside passage through land-locked seas and sounds. It led through the Indo-Malayan archipelago, the South China and Malay seas, the East China and Yellow seas, the Japanese and Tartary seas, the Okhotsk sea, the Behring sea and its bays, the Alaskan sea and inlets, the Tring-et-Haida sea, Vancouver sea, and the Columbia basin, a distance of 10,000 miles. All of these marine enclosures swarmed with animal life suitable for human food. The East China and Japan seas furnished inexhaustible supplies of fish, water fowl, crabs, oysters, etc. In Behring sea there was no limit to subsistence. No sooner was a latitude approached where the rigors of the climate demanded extra clothing and fuel for the body than marine mammals and land mammals were superabundant. These early travelers would naturally avoid the deep ocean, which is a desert to the voyager and offering no food supply. In the shallows the landmarks were their light house and the inlets were their harbors innumerable.

www.LatterDayTruth.org

One can conceive of a stream of canoes flowing for many centuries from the Indian ocean and peopling America steadily from Asia by way of its eastern shores and seas. For 3,000 years or more this continent was receiving in this way continuously a population. A great highway was opened, through which the stream of boats kept flowing. In every favorable place along the route colonies were dropped, and the nations thus started assumed proprietorship over parts of the highway. At length they shut off the stream of migration by declaring that it should no longer pass through their premises, and the flow of immigration being thus cut off, the ancestors of the present copper-colored aborigines were left to obtain, through centuries, traits of their own.

Though the present aborigines of California represent so many distinct nations, as proved by their languages, which are as far apart from one another as English is from Chinese, the character of the food supply and other local conditions applying to all have made them a good deal alike in respect to habits and customs. Generally speaking, the culture of the tribes of the Golden state may be said, as Prof. Holmes remarks, to revolve about the oak tree. They are eaters of acorns, which endless forests of oak furnish in unlimited quantities. They have almost no earthenware, few of them understanding anything of the potter's art, but are the most wonderful basket makers in the world, their products in this line displaying remarkably varied phases of form technique and embellishment.

Prof. Holmes examined several of their milling places, and describes one of them (a typical example) as a mass of granite rock with many conical holes, some shallow and some deep. All about were stones for grinding and pounding, adapted in shape to the hollows, in which acorns were put for the purpose of reducing them to meal. This place of industry was covered with a rude shelter of poles and brush to protect the women, who are obliged to spend much of their time at such work, from sun and rain.

The acorn cracking outfit ordinarily consists of a round stone with a shallow pit on the upper surface and another stone for striking, the nut being set on end to receive the blow. In the absence of such contrivance the teeth are used for breaking the shells. The kernels, after being dried, are pounded in a hole, the resulting meal being winnowed in a flat basket. A basin is then formed in the sand, and in this the meal is put, water being poured in repeatedly and allowed to drain away until all of the tannin is filtered out. It is the tannin that renders the acorn unfit for food in its ordinary condition, but after going through the process described, the flour, scooped out of the sand basin with the hands, is sweet and wholesome. The Indians, who call it "byota," vastly prefer it to our wheat flour.

Mortars carved out of stone are sometimes employed for grinding the acorns, with the help of a pestle. Prof. Holmes found two ancient ones, of a globular shape, in the possession of an old miner named John Cannon. They were so highly valued by Mrs. Cannon as receptacles for watering the chickens that one of them was secured only with the greatest difficulty. They had been discovered originally in a mine, together with a number of skeletons, buried six feet deep in gold bearing gravel.

The acorn flour is cooked in a number of different ways, but the utensil most commonly employed for the purpose is a basket so closely woven that it will hold water without leaking. Water and meal being put into the basket, the mixture is brought to a boil by heating small stones in an open fire and dropping them into the receptacle one by one. The stones are lifted with a pair of neatly trimmed and pointed sticks, and when the porridge is done, are taken out in the same way. Finally the stuff is dipped out with a cup into another basket and is ready for use.

The baskets made by the Indians of southern California are much coarser than those manufactured farther north in the state. Some of them are rude affairs three to five feet in diameter and three feet high, woven of willow splints, and are used for storing grain, acorns and other food products. Such an improvised granary is placed on a scaffold six feet in height, made by setting forked poles in the ground and laying other poles across. Among other foods commonly eaten by the California aborigines are horse chestnuts, various berries and more than a score of varieties of weed seeds.

On the Tulare reservation, near the south fork of the Tule river, were found a number of roundish earthen platforms five to eight feet in diameter, constructed among the boulders in favorable locations. On these were set willow twig loops for fastening decoy birds, and at one edge of each platform a brush or reed shelter was built, in which the man in charge of the snares hid himself. The loops of the snares lay extended upon the platform, and when the wild birds, alighting to feed with the decoys, became entangled they were quietly pulled beneath the shelter.—The Denver (Colo.) News, June 30, 1901.

Disagreeable Things May Be for Our Safety.

Last year I came home from abroad. As we crossed the Atlantic and were in a fog the fog-horn would blow, and it was very disagreeable, and yet the disagreeable noise was for our safety, and I wondered if we should not find out some time that the disagreeable things in our lives were really the means of our safety.—Mrs. Margaret Botome, in The Ladies' Home Journal for August.

"We cannot close our eyes to all evil, but God forbid that we should seek it in any man."

A SONG OF EXPERIENCE.

BY MRS. ALICE R. CORSON.

There is such music in my soul
As angels love to hear;
Through all its secret chambers roll
Glad joy notes, full and clear.
My harp of life and love is set
To Love's melodious strain;
Hushed is each cord of vain regret,
And stilled each note of pain.

White in a desert dark and drear
I wandered sad and lone,
My father sought and found me there
And claimed me for His own.
With tender hand He dried my tears;
He bade my wanderings cease.
His voice dispelled my doubts and fears,
His smile brought light and peace.

A wounded heart had long been mine;
He brought a healing balm;
Cheered my faint soul with oil and wine.

My fevered pulse did calm.
'E'en in the wilderness He spread
For me a bounteous store,
I drank the wine, I ate the bread,
I ate and wanted more.

A narrow path He showed to me,
Thorn-set on every side,
Where I must walk if I would be
More fully satisfied.
I laid my hand in His and cried:
"I'll follow thee my Lord,
Though foes beset, though friends deride,
I'll take thee at thy word."

So gently then He led me on Thou didst direct though the way,
His love removed each stumbling stone.

And cleared the thorns away.
He led me to an open door,
Where I, on entering in,
Would leave behind forevermore
My garments stained with sin.

He robbed me in His righteousness,
He crowned me with His love,
With richer grace my life did bless,
His promises did prove.
And daily from His bounteous store
With bread and wine supplied
My hungry soul: yet craved I more,
Nor would be satisfied.

At last He led me to the place
Where all His bounties be;
To grace He gave me added grace,
And spread the board for me.
Here daily, hourly, feasts my soul,
What can I want beside:
'Tis clothed and fed, cleansed and made whole:
Now I am satisfied.

JOTS BY THE YARDSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

"Camping on the old camp ground," on the banks of the placid waters of Lake Monona, within the incorporation of Madison, the capital of Wisconsin, Bro. Robinson and ye "Jots" man are holding forth in the district tent, on the south side, known as "Green Bush place."

Our audiences in adults is not large, but the children overflow the tent, with fifty or a hundred more outside. Bro. T. H. would surely be in his glory here, with Bro. J. H. M. as overseer; we divide our time, however, interesting the children with a pleasing story pointing to the gospel theme of Christ the Lord. Sr. Robinson is with us in the tent service, and has charge of the culinary department, which is done up with neatness and dispatch. With the lake close by, filled with the choicest of pike and pickerel, we are only longing for J. M. T., that he might be filled ONCE to overflowing. By the way, dear brother, we tried to fill your place in the pulpit of Chicago, en route here, but it was plain to be seen, and perceptibly felt that you hold the balance of power in the hearts and affections of that people. The loving memory of the Christ life reflected, and the kind deeds of yourself and Sr. T. will never fade away. We praised God for the brightness of the cloud that was o'er us, and a heart throbbing went up for the "winds to be tempered," and health restored for the service of God and Zion's weal.

Madison has always been regarded as an ideal site for a lovely city, noted for its picturesque, before marred by the hands of man, scenic and enchanting, inhabited only by the noble red man that had held it for ages, but in 1838 the pale face invaded it, and gradually banished the poor Indian from his home, where he had been reared amid worlds of game, luxury and ease, where he saw God in the clouds and heard Him in the winds. The city is situated between two large lakes, which are less than a mile apart; the land gradually ascending, a view of both lakes can be had from almost any part of the city, and a large scope of fine scenery. These mirrored lakes, teeming with a great variety of fish, is Madison's chief attraction, and gains the admiration of visitors from every part. Rob it of these sparkling gems and it would be ordinary indeed. These two main lakes, called Monona and Mendota (Indian names) are about five miles long and three to four miles wide, skirted with heavy forest timber, situated in the center of Dave county, and about midway between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river, being eighty-one miles from the former, and ninety-five miles from the latter, and one hundred and thirty-eight miles from Chicago, surrounded by as fine agricultural lands as lay out of doors, with the finest of timber; in fact, the land is, or has been, all timbered, the farms having been cleared by the sturdy husbandman.

Madison is fast becoming a tobacco center; thousands of acres are now set with the weed, of which we will tell you in our next for the benefit of your many readers in the sunny south. The weather has cooled, rains are copious, and farmers are happy, and we are hopeful.

Laws of Sound Little Known.

"The literature of acoustics is deficient in exact data," remarked a local architect, speaking of the problems involved in the designing of theaters and public halls. "Of course we have made a tremendous advance in the last fifteen or twenty years, and good acoustic properties are no longer a mere question of good luck, but the law governing sound waves is still so full of mysteries and contradictions that we can hardly lay claim to have mastered more than its rudiments. There is nothing stranger, for example, than the apparently arbitrary way that the voice will carry in the open air. Listen for a moment to this:"

As the architect spoke he threw open one of the end windows of his office and looked down into a court at least fifty feet deep. "Hi! Charley," he said, in an ordinary conversational tone, and in a moment a big man in his shirt sleeves peered up from one of the lower offices on the opposite side. "What d'ye want?" he called, forming a speaking tube of his hands. He was evidently making some effort, but his voice was barely audible. "Nothing particular," replied the architect, still speaking in his ordinary voice; "just wanted to know whether you were there. Thanks. Good-by." "Now, there's a trick I discovered by mere accident," he continued, after he had closed the window. "I happened to find out that my voice would carry down the right hand edge of that casement and thence on down the side of the wall to some point where it is mysteriously deflected across the court and pitched into my friend's office. Why it should do so I don't know.

"The phenomenon is attributable, of course, to some chance arrangement of obstructions, like mirrors reflecting a ray of light from one to another, but I have never taken the time and trouble to figure it out. Strange to say, the ordinary voice can't be heard from the lower window to the upper, and when I move half a foot away from one certain spot I get out of the carrying channel myself. I seem to have struck some narrow track through the air over which the vibrations move with particular facility. In almost any small room," the speaker went on, "it is possible to locate what might be called an 'acoustic center,' where all sounds are heard with extraordinary distinctness."

"Some time ago, when I was spending a week in Alabama, looking after some construction work, the bed in my room at the hotel was so situated as to bring my head almost exactly into this acoustic focus. I didn't suspect what was wrong, to begin with, but on the first night of my stay I was greatly annoyed by the loud ticking of my watch, which was lying on the mantelpiece, and changed its position several times without relief. Finally it got on my nerves and I deliberately wrapped it up in a lot of clothing and put it into my valise. That deadened the ticking, but meanwhile a lot of other noises—local noises, belonging strictly to the premises, had joined the chorus—such things as the gnawing of mice, the creaking of casings, the sifting of rubbish between partitions, and similar small sounds to be heard in any old house. It was trying, and I was on the point of leaving the hotel when I discovered that a shift of less than a yard took me entirely out of the zone of hubbub. I gave the old four-poster bed a slight push and for the balance of my stay enjoyed a season of peace and quiet."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Ancient City Unearthed.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 21.—A prehistoric city of immense proportions is said to have just been unearthed on the Navajo Indian reservation, between Durango, Colorado, and Farmington, New Mexico, the particulars of the find having been reported to the land department of the Santa Fe system in this city.

A mercantile company, which has been exploring in the territory in question for some time, a short time ago found a palace of prehistoric age, containing, it is said, about 1000 separate apartments, some of them in an excellent state of preservation. Another stone castle contained 100 separate apartments.

In some of the rooms were found the finest woods and other relics of a valuable character, specimens of which have been gathered and sent to the Smithsonian institute in Washington.

The find is said to be exceptionally valuable from a scientific and ethnological standpoint, and is believed to antedate the time of the Aztecs' occupation of the country ages ago.—Kansas City Journal, July 22, 1901.

DAUGHTERS OF ZION

The Daughters of Zion is an organization of the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes.

- ADVISORY COMMITTEE. Mrs. Mary E. Holmes, President, Independence, Mo.

I DESIRE to say a word to those who send manuscript to Daughters' of Zion columns: When an article is refused, it does not necessarily mean that there is no virtue in it, but that it is not suitable for the particular work the Daughters' of Zion wish to accomplish.

THERE is no place where children show their breeding, or lack of it, so much as at the dining table. It is not a pleasing sight to see children (or any one, for the matter of that) conduct themselves as though eating was the main object of their lives.

Intermix the business of dining with pleasant, social chat, not of a heavy character, but that which will be laughter provoking, as much as possible.

Teach a child to be quiet and neat at table, to handle knife and fork properly, not to bolt their food, and to join modestly in whatever conversation is within the scope of their intelligence.

The Art of Reading Aloud.

Elocution and dramatic expression have become a fad. The ability to read aloud history, poetry, descriptive articles in such a way as to bring out the meaning and give pleasure to the hearer, is not as common as it should be.

The first requisite is a low-pitched voice. That of the average American girl is pitched at treble G, while it should be at least as low as G below middle C. Try the voice with an organ and practice talking in the key of this low G, until it becomes easy and natural.

Next to a musical voice is correct pronunciation and distinct articulation. Be careful to give every letter its correct and perfect sound. Perhaps the most common and unnoticed errors are a neglect of final d and a pronunciation of e or i before r like u, as "gurl" for girl, "clurk" for clerk, "murcy" for mercy, "furst" for first, "furm" for firm, and so on.

Read slowly, take time to breathe tranquilly, try to express the meaning of what you are reading by emphasis, but do not let emphasis spoil the smoothness. In reading prose try to bring out the rhythm which we strive to avoid in reading poetry.

How does the poet speak to men with power, but by being still more a man than they.

Conference Notices.

Conference of the Northwest Kansas district will convene on camp ground at Blue Rapids, August 24th, at 10 a. m. There will be election of district officers and division of the district will again be discussed.

The West Virginia district conference will convene on Saturday, the last day of August, 1901, with the Centerville branch, Wayne county, West Virginia, at 9 o'clock.

The Saints of Eastern Colorado district will please take notice of the change of dates for the district conference. The conference will convene at Colorado Springs August 24th and 25th, instead of August 17th and 18th, as stated in previous notice.

Reunion Notices. The Reunion of the Southeastern Illinois district of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints will be held at Zenith, Wayne Co., Illinois, beginning October 5, 1901, and lasting until the 13th.

The reunion of the Nodaway, Missouri, district, is hereby declared off until next year. This, on account of the county board of health having quarantined such meeting. Done by order of the committee.

By reason of the drought I am instructed by Elder F. C. Keck, missionary, and the Saints of the Spring River district, to declare the Spring River district Reunion off. This Reunion was to have been held from August 16th to 25th at Berries Ferry, Indian Territory.

The Sunday School workers of the Des Moines district will meet in convention at Rhodes, August 10th. A profitable program is being prepared. If you are coming to reunion we want your presence in convention.

Conference Notices. The Sunday School workers of the Des Moines district will meet in convention at Rhodes, August 10th. A profitable program is being prepared.

Report of credential committee was read and accepted.

Resolved, That all Sunday School secretaries in the district make out their statistical reports and send them in one month before each convention, so the district secretary can get them corrected, thereby saving time, trouble and confusion in correcting mistakes at the conventions. Resolved, That a collection be taken up this afternoon and evening to pay money due district secretary, the balance to be retained by him for next term's expenses. Resolved, That the program for this evening be left in the hands of the presidency. Resolved, That the next convention be held Friday before the October conference, at the same place.

Meeting then adjourned till 8 p. m. Met again at 8 p. m., and listened to short speeches from some of the prominent Sunday School workers. All spoke of their love for the Sunday School cause and a desire to go on and work together for the good of the Sunday Schools.

JOHN L. BURGER, Sec. FLORENCE MILLER, Sec.

NOTICES. To the Clinton District Saints, Greeting:—With Bro. E. L. Kelley's consent I have arranged with Sr. Ira Keck, of 700 North Ash street, Nevada, Missouri, to serve as bishop's agent from August 1st, until I return from Nebraska, and notice of return is given.

Your brother and co-worker, G. W. BEEBE, Sr., Bish. Agt.

Northwest Kansas district Saints:—We need $35.00 yet to complete the tent fund. None realize the need of a tent as do the missionaries. Halls in town cost from one to three dollars per night. The rent for seventy-five nights will pay for a tent.

Desirable Foods for Summer.

Lean meats, eggs, milk and cheese are, in proper proportions, and when taken with succulent vegetables and fruits, desirable foods for summer. But the fats of meats, and fat meat such as pork, large quantities of cream and butter, as well as olive oil, should be avoided.

Hair Falls

"I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor to stop my hair from falling. One-half a bottle cured me." J. C. Baxter, Braidwood, Ill.

Ayer's Hair Vigor is certainly the most economical preparation of its kind on the market. A little of it goes a long way. It doesn't take much of it to stop falling of the hair, make the hair grow, and restore color to gray hair.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

VERY often a Saint in need becomes a Saint indeed.

WHEN we would do evil, good is present.

A PARADOX: How some of these christians hate these saints!

EXAGGERATION is the big brother of lying.

YOUNG man to young woman, "2 John, 5th v.," young woman to young man, "Ruth 1: 16, 17."

AN individual has no more right to think as he pleases than he has to do as he pleases.

IS THE world getting better? Yes, where Latter Day Saints are living their religion.

WE ARE trying to turn the world upside down so it will be right side up.

THE only way to keep from having our feelings hurt is to be hurt proof.

WE DON'T object so much to what our religious contemporaries do teach as to what they don't.

BRN. Paul and Peter would feel right at home in a Latter Day Saint social meeting.

NEARLY everybody has one gift finely developed, and that is the gift of discernment—of other people's faults.

ONE of the evidences of the divinity of this latter day work is, the program is too large for any man to have conceived and is too difficult for any man to carry out.

THE way some religious teachers quote only a part of the Scripture reminds us of the method one individual used to periodically humble his better half. He would pick up the New Testament and read, "There appeared a great wonder in heaven—a woman."

FAITH AND WORKS.

In one of the western cities there is an evangelist holding services in a tent, at the entrance to which there are two signs, one of them with the following quotation from Romans 4: 5:

But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness.

The evident intention of this quotation is to impress the mind of those who read it with the thought that there is nothing which can be done by man that will bring him acceptance with his Creator. This is misleading, and misrepresents the teachings of the Apostle Paul, who himself being required to do certain things before he could be accepted as a servant of Christ—a child of God—would certainly not be found teaching that others had nothing to do for their salvation except to simply express themselves as believers in Christ. Such a thought would be the very opposite of his instructions to the Philippian church; in referring to the fact that God had exalted the Lord Jesus, and given him a name above every name, to which "every knee should bow" and "every tongue confess," he adds:

Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence. Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.—Phil. 2: 12.

This plainly evidences that the apostle held very different views in this regard to those which some would ascribe to him; and the quotation first given above is shown to be one of those sayings of the apostle, to which the Apostle Peter refers as being "hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned [in the knowledge of Christ] and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction." (2 Pet. 3: 16). And what is the more astonishing in those who so tenaciously adhere to this "nothing to do" theory, is the facility and readiness with which they so entirely ignore this pointed and unequivocal language of the Apostle James:

What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? CAN FAITH SAVE HIM? Even so faith, if it hath not works is DEAD, being alone. Yea, a man may say, Thou hast faith, and I have works; show me thy faith without works, and I will show thee my faith by my works. YE see then how that BY WORKS a man is justified, and NOT BY FAITH ONLY. For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also.—James 2: 14, 17, 18, 24, 26.

To place the interpretation upon the passage in Romans 4: 5, which our evangelistic friend and his like are evidently doing, is to set the Apostle Paul at variance with his own teachings and with those of the Apostle James, as we have shown, which is, of course, not justified by the facts in the case. All who accept the Bible as the word of God must agree with the statement of the Apostle Peter, that "holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (2 Pet. 1: 21), and, therefore, could not teach something as truth at one time, and on another occasion that which is wholly at variance with it; hence, we must look to some other source for an explanation of any discrepancy in the teachings of these "holy men of God" which may be apparent, as advocated by uninspired men of today. It is evident from the arguments used by the inspired writers of the New Testament that the unprofitable and unnecessary works to which they referred, were solely those inculcated under the Mosaic economy, which law was fulfilled and abrogated at the coming of John the Baptist, when the gospel law was restored as it had been before the Mosaic covenant was instituted. The Savior might say that "the law and the prophets were until John." Since that time the kingdom of heaven is preached, and every man who seeketh truth presseth into it, hence it is the gospel laws with which all men now have to do, and whatever was advocated by the Savior and the apostles under those laws, is absolutely necessary for every one to obey who desires to "press into" the kingdom of heaven and be saved.

From this idea that the gospel requires no works of any one, has doubtless arisen the thought so prevalent among the sects that the ordinances of the gospel are really non-essential; that they are merely "signs" of one's profession of religion, and have no weight or bearing upon one's salvation. But this is the fault of men, not that of the gospel. Nowhere in the New Testament is there any authority for such a belief. There are no stronger believers in the divinity of the Lord Jesus Christ than are the devils; everywhere, whenever we have an account of their contact with the Master, they testify to His power and authority as the Son of God; and yet that faith, or rather that knowledge, of His divinity, does not save them; no one would be so reckless as to make such a claim. But if faith per se in Jesus Christ as the Son of God will save men, why will not that same faith save the devils? If faith alone, without any works on the part of the individual, will save men, it must be just as efficacious for any one who exercises it, and that must include the devils, for they have strong faith in the Savior as being all that He claimed for Himself, "the Only Begotten Son of God, to whom has been given all power in heaven and on earth." The difficulty is that they are incapable of rendering obedience to the ordinances of the gospel, which the Lord has made obligatory upon all who desire to live with Him and abide in His presence, and, as a consequence, all those who refuse to comply with those ordinances under the authority which the Lord gives His own appointed ministry to administer them, place themselves, to some extent, in the same class as those who have always been the enemies of the truth, notwithstanding their faith in the Lord, and their knowledge of His character.

Our Lord said "Come, follow me." He requires all who would have eternal life in the celestial kingdom, to honor His commandments. As He came not to do His own will, but the will of His Father in heaven, so must all who would be accepted of Him, make the Father's will paramount, and manifest their willingness to be obedient by doing the things He has revealed as being needful for them to do. This will be doing the works of the gospel; working out our own salvation, as the apostle says, and cannot be disregarded if acceptance with the Father is desired. Our Savior rendered obedience to His Father's commandments, and came to John, the servant authorized of God to administer the ordinance of baptism, and was baptized in the river Jordan, declaring it to be needful in the fulfilling of all righteousness, that He should do so. How then, is it possible for any other individual to fulfill all righteousness—which is to do the Father's will—unless he also shall be baptized by the authority of Jesus Christ? And when any one thus honors the commandments of the Lord, he is doing a work upon which his salvation has been made contingent; he is showing his faith by his works. The Lord Jesus said plainly, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3: 5). This should settle the question in the mind of every doubter regarding the ordinance of baptism being essential to salvation. If it is true that no one can enter the kingdom of heaven unless he has been baptized by competent authority, it surely determines the question that baptism is a saving ordinance; and if every one who enters the kingdom of heaven only does so after his baptism, it is a truth which no philosophising can alter that no one is justified in the sight of the Lord without being baptized, and it establishes in a manner that cannot be shaken, the fact that every one has some works to perform before he can be justified of the Lord.

This fact was always recognized in the time when the Savior was on the earth. Saul realized very forcibly that faith without works was unavailing, when the Lord Jesus appeared to him while going to Damascus; when he realized his condition he asked with all the earnestness of his soul, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? (Acts 9: 6), and was told to go into the city and there it should be told him what he must do. Being obedient to this command the Lord sent His servant Ananias to tell him what was required, who said to him, "and now why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." (Acts 22: 16). The Lord told him that in Damascus it should be told him what he MUST do, and that which was told him was that he must be baptized, uniting works with his faith. There can hardly be a question but that this action was necessary on the part of Paul, notwithstanding he had been privileged to see the Lord and to hear His voice, indisputable evidences of His existence, by which Paul could testify that He lives; and if under such conditions Paul was not excused from doing the things commanded by the Lord Jesus—obey the gospel ordinances—how much less can any one under the usual and ordinary circumstances of life be accepted of the Lord without rendering obedience to the gospel, doing the works ordained in the gospel for those who will be saved?

Again, our Lord has shown the necessity of works, and it would seem His statement should be conclusive:

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Therefore, whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house on a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand.—Matt. 7: 21, 24, 26.

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world. Amen.—Matt. 28: 19, 20.

James says: But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass, etc.—James 1: 22, 23.

It is deceiving one's self then to act upon the theory that faith alone will save us, and that there is no saving power in doing the works of our Lord. It is wiser to do as our Lord says, as we hear the word, to diligently perform the gospel works indicated in the Scriptures, doing which, we are as a wise man building his house upon a rock, where the storms cannot cause the destruction of that which we build.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Elder W. A. Smith departed for his mission field, the Little Sioux district, on Tuesday.

Elder W. A. Smith and family were accepted as members of this branch at the close of last Sunday's prayer service, on letters of removal.

The afternoon meeting was in charge of Brn. I. N. White, Josiah Curtis and W. H. Murphy, and was an enjoyable session.

And now the children are looking out of the window and saying:

"Rain, rain, go away,
Come again some other day."

Elder M. T. Short is in town. M. T. causes a total eclipse of the sun as he enters the average doorway. May his penumbra never grow less.

Every branch should have a supply of the sermon tract, "Objections Examined," by President Joseph Smith, 25 cents a dozen at ENSIGN office.

The attendance at the Religio was quite large last Friday, and there is a growing interest manifest among the young people in the study of the Book of Mormon.

The friends of Bro. Thos. Holdsworth will be pleased to know he is one of the fortunate ones, so the paper states, to draw a claim in the Oklahoma strip Uncle Sam is giving to homeseekers.

Bro. Wm. H. Fuller, our colored missionary, was to leave for Chicago Wednesday. He has been doing considerable street preaching around the court house, to attentive audiences at times.

The Religio held an ice cream social last Thursday evening at the home of Bro. Frank Rudd, for the purpose of raising money to purchase books for the society. The net proceeds amounted to $14.97.

Sr. Daisy Bradford, aged 13 years, 8 months and 17 days, died July 30th at 12:10 a. m. She was the daughter of Bro. and Sr. A. L. Bradford. The funeral was held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. from the church. Pres. G. H. Hulmes conducted the services.

Last Saturday, Sunday and Monday we were blessed by copious rains, which broke the long continued drought, for which we are thankful. The attendance at Sunday School was somewhat light, owing to the rain, being only 108, the lowest this year so far.

There were about twelve present at the last meeting of the Willing Helpers held in June. On account of the heat meetings are postponed until September, the regular appointment being the last Wednesday of each month. According to the regular notices a cordial invitation is extended to all the sisters who wish to attend.

At the July meeting of the D. Z. ten sisters were present. There was the regular program of scripture reading, singing, etc.; and an article on Obedience, by Sr. Krahl, written for the Home Column, was interestingly discussed. Srs. Aylor, Skinner and Kemp will act as committee for the Gleaners during the next term. Seven dollars were collected at the D. Z. Mite social held last week at Sr. Criley's, which was both very well attended and enjoyable. Three new names have been enrolled. Sisters, here is an opportunity to enlist in a good work.

The rite of baptism was administered to Srs. Harriet M. Vernon and Pearl Carpenter, by Bishop R. May, at 2 p. m. Sunday. They were confirmed at the 2:30 service by Brn. R. May and I. N. White. Sr. Vernon was born in South Africa and moved from there to Australia, where she joined the Utah church and went to Utah; becoming dissatisfied she came here and accepted the gospel as taught by the Reorganization, and now rejoices in the truth. She expects to return shortly to Australia, by way of England.

The improvements going on along Lexington and Electric streets (the latter really being a continuation of the former) consist of a double track for the Electric line from Kansas City; paving, consisting of Pittsburg brick, and sidewalks of granitoid or brick, at a cost of $1.62 per square yard for paving, and 44 cents per lineal foot for curbing. The work is expected to be completed before October 1st. The Temple Lot, the church, the ENSIGN and church property adjoining the ENSIGN are all located on these streets.

A party en route to the Mormon settlements of Utah were in the city Monday. They went at once to the historic Temple lot and took a view of the ground so sacred to Mormons. They were chaperoned by two foreign looking elders with high hats. The party was made up mostly of women.—K. C. Journal.

Sr. Mayme Chatburn, who has returned from Colorado a few weeks since to undergo a surgical operation, was successfully treated by Bro. Dr. Jos. Mather and is now able to be out again. It was a severe ordeal, but it has been very beneficial to her health.

LAMONI, IOWA.

It has been some time since anything has appeared from this locality, the former correspondent having resigned some four weeks ago, being unable to continue the work on account of other duties.

A special feature of a late Religio session was a discussion of the following proposition: "Resolved that the Hill Cumorah is correctly located on our present Book of Mormon Maps." The attendance was good and considerable interest was manifested. It is expected that this question will be publicly discussed here during the next General Conference, in 1902, and we wish to be prepared to "give a reason" for our opinions when the issue has to be met.

Sr. Anna Vernon, wife of Elder J. W. Vernon, died at the Saints' Home, on July 22, 1901, aged 75 years, lacking 8 days. She was born in Glamorganshire, Wales, in 1826. They came to the Home from California, during the past winter. She has been ill for some years, suffering both in body and in mind. All the ministry laboring in California have been well acquainted with Bro. and Sr. Vernon since the beginning of the work of the Reorganized church there in 1864. They lived in Oakland for twenty-five years. Funeral services were held at the Home, Bro. J. C. Clapp offering prayer, and Bro. H. A. Stebbins preaching the sermon.

The DROUGHT IS BROKEN. On Saturday evening at 7:30 joy and thanksgiving were brought to all the creations of God by the reception of the first rain for more than a month. All nature rejoiced as the parched and thirsty earth drank in the longed for drops of moisture as they fell from the hand of the all wise Creator. This shower was followed by another on Sunday morning, and still another on Tuesday morning.

The Sunday services were better attended than for some time past.

Lamoni brethren occupied Sunday pulpits as follows: C. H. Lake, at Pleasanton; F. M. Weld, at Spring Valley; J. A. Gunsolley, at Davis City; F. M. Smith and D. J. Krahl, at Evergreen; E. C. Briggs and R. M. Elvin, at Lamoni. F. E. Cochran and J. P. Anderson were in attendance at the joint convention of the Sunday School and Religio associations at Cleveland.

Brn. J. R. and D. F. Lambert were suddenly called to the home of their mother in Illinois, the latter part of the week, she being seriously ill.

Bro. Duncan Campbell, of Pleasanton, met with a sad accident Sunday evening. As he was unhitching his horse to start to the evening service, the horse gave a violent jerk on the tie-rope, catching his right thumb between the rope and the manger to which it was tied, crushing and severing the thumb at the first joint, and necessitating its amputation at the knuckle. It was dressed by a surgeon and at the latest report on Monday morning was doing nicely.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services: Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday: Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services: Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

The vote taken yesterday regarding the reunion of the St. Louis district, resulted in its being abandoned, so far as St. Louis is concerned. As matters stand we really believe this is the wisest course for us.

We understand there were but few present at the last Wednesday evening prayer service; the intense heat has had its effect upon nearly all of us, but we hope that with the coming of more moderate weather the attendance at all services will be better.

Sunday morning we were treated to an excellent talk by Sr. S. R. Burgess. Teachers' meeting of last week is reported as being well attended and very interesting.

Bro. F. A. Smith was speaker at both services yesterday; Jos. E. Betts, Jr., at Belleville, evening service; R. Archibald, evening service, Oak Hill mission; while Bro. T. J. Elliott occupied the "sacred desk" at Cheltenham.

Cheltenham folks have changed the hour of their social service; it is now at 7 o'clock instead of 2:30.

Last Tuesday evening Bro. S. A. and Sr. Florence Burgess attended the Cheltenham Religio. Friday night Bro. C. J. Remington, vice president of the district Religio, attended our Religio service.

Sr. Volz, of Cheltenham, was numbered with us at the morning hour preaching service.

Next Sunday is the sacramental service, 6 p. m.

"Old" Sr. Johnson departed this life Sunday evening about 6:30 p. m. Funeral service Tuesday, in charge of Bro. Smith.

The social service was presided over by Brn. Billinsky and J. G. Smith.

Always a few strangers into preaching service; quite a large assembly last evening, although the heat was somewhat burdensome.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

The mercury has come down and so has the rain, and given poor, suffering humanity a happy release. Both the animal and vegetable kingdom are gladdened, and even our daily papers said "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

We commence our protracted effort at the Aspey mission on next Sunday night. We are anxious to make this a success—it will be if you help us.

Sr. L. Landors has gone to Granite City, Missouri, to live, where her husband is employed. This is ten miles from St. Louis.

Srs. Tena Archibald and Emma Dawson are having a good visit in our city. May they have naught but good to report when they return to their St. Louis home.

We now occupy the hall again at South Park, and had Sunday School and preaching there yesterday. We will be there again next Sunday morning. Sunday School at 10 o'clock sharp, and preaching at 11 o'clock. We hope to see many there next Sunday morning. Come, wake up, Saints, and let us be about our Father's work. We hear now a distant sound like the fog horn on the lake in Chicago, warning the mariner to hasten to a harbor of safety, and to look out for breakers.

The Religio held a very interesting meeting on Tuesday night, their regular meeting time. Bro. Coventry Archibald had charge of the Book of Mormon study. Sr. Hattie Whitehead is acquiring herself well as president. Success to the Religio. We also attended the local at Aspey mission on Monday night, and found them interested, yet with their leader absent; but Bro. Baker occupied the breach acceptably. Bro. B. is awake to the interest of the work in all its departments.

We attended a union Sunday School picnic on Wednesday last, seven miles from Stewartsville, as the guest of the Stewartsville school. While it was the warmest day we ever had, yet had a pleasant time. We occupied fifteen minutes in talking on the Sunday School theme, and felt very free in spirit in doing so. We were nicely cared for by Bro. Jasper Duncan, and were afforded a cool place to sleep, thanks to Srs. Summerfield and Zella Moore.

We still share the hospitable roof of Bro. C. H. Isleib and wife, and our spirits are often cheered by the music of Sr. Josie, their daughter. We are still approaching normality in health, though yet quite a distance from it.

We regret the necessity of abandoning our reunion, but it seemed the only wise plan to pursue, so the committee thought at least.

In the covenant of peace,
J. M. TERRY.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

The heat has abated somewhat; the record of heat for July 1901 is the highest since the establishment of the signal office in Denver. There has been rain all around Denver, and even light showers in some parts of the city; but it has not yet been general.

Several of the Saints are spending a few days in the mountains during the heated term.

While the heat has been intense, yet there has been water for irrigation, so fruit and vegetables are plenty in the markets, and prices have not advanced only as the demand from a distance has increased them.

Elder J. B. Roush Sundayed with the branch at Conifer, so the preaching at the Denver church was by Elder Shupe in the morning, and Elder Sell in the evening.

Most of the visiting Saints have departed.

We wish to inform the Saints of Colorado that the tent is in operation in the Arkansas Valley, and the brethren in charge cannot live on the light air and mountain scenery of Colorado, but must have some of the legal tender; so please send along what you can spare for this work, to E. F. Shupe, 3633 Clayton street, or J. B. Roush, 2942 California street, Denver; and it will be forwarded to the brethren in charge. S.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH:

Corner 23d and Holly. One block south of Observation Park line.

The Saints here are rejoicing that God in his kindness has heard humble, fervent prayer, and has ruled the very elements in favor of those who have called upon him "in faith believing." Beautiful showers have occasionally fallen upon the parched earth of this city and vicinity since the night following the day of fasting and prayer, bringing relief to thousands of people who have been long wishing for a breath of cool air, under a temperature that has never been known to register so high in this part of North America. A beautiful rain came to us yesterday morning, and is now being followed by a thorough good soaking which has lasted for several hours and still continues with no end in sight.

Attendance at meetings yesterday was very good. Prayer meeting at 11 a. m. Preaching at 7:45 was by Elder Jos. Emmett. Bro. R. J. Parker carried the "message of peace" to the people north of the river in the little town of Harlem last evening, and although experiencing some difficulty in reaching the desired spot, he was greeted by a fairly good audience, and enjoyed splendid liberty. Bro. Fred Koehler accompanied him and assisted.

Our lively missionary, Bro. J. D. White, started at quite an early hour through a down pouring rain, for Olathe, Kansas, to fill an eleven o'clock appointment at that place yesterday morning. A drenching rain is no excuse for Bro. John. He reports that the work at the tent at Quindaro is getting along nicely. Feels that good is being done. Several of our Saints have been making regular trips out there to assist Bro. J. D. in the way of music, which he says he greatly appreciates. Let the good work go on.

Our Religians will meet with the East Side Religians on Friday night in their regular joint prayer meeting.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

PALERMO, New York, July 9.
 Editor Ensign:—Bro. S. W. L. Scott and I have just closed an interesting series of meetings here. People, generally, are so busy with farm work, but notwithstanding, we had good audiences most of the time. We believe the work may be firmly established here yet. Several noble-hearted, self-sacrificing Saints here, who will doubtless keep the banner unfurled. We were kindly cared for by all. We spent the nation's holiday on the shores of Lake Ontario, above Oswego, a very pleasant time.

Bro. Scott held two evenings discussion with a minister of the Baptist order, "Probation After Death" was the subject. They called me Mr. Chairman, and, of course, acted like "good boys" ought to. The most I had to do was to call time, which, as Rev. Wayman said, seemed to pass very quickly. Intense interest was manifested throughout. Mr. Wayman did not wish to continue after the second night.

If evil, in all its deceptive forms, can be kept out, and righteousness kept in, among our own people here, we think good may be done here in the future. We would all do well to think on the thought expressed by Mosiah in Book of Mormon in which he says that "nothing" can overthrow God's work except it be our own transgressions and sins. What a responsibility rests upon us as the representatives of the greatest cause that ever engaged the thoughts and actions of men, and how very careful we ought always to be, both in and out of the pulpit. I can now recall places where the work is practically dead, and at a standstill, because of sins, wickedness, unrighteousness, on the part of those who ought to be the examples of the divine life. There is nothing which hinders our progress and development and success, as a church, so effectively as these things. May God move upon us each one, as soldiers of the cross, and help us to close the rank, and take courage, and Behold! ere long the victory shall be ours!

Look, ye nations, gaze and wonder, Lo! the church of Christ appears, In her majestic splendor, With all her officers.

This wonderful message of the gospel brings to me every day some new evidence of its divinity and truth, and withal I feel happy in the good service. I go from here to Greenwood, Steuben county, New York, where we understand another minister is wanting to enter the arena of investigation for the benefit of the public. After this I will go at once to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. May the Lord now bless and prosper Zion, and keep us all up and in line.

For the truth's sake,
WILL E. LARUE.

NECEDAH, Wis., July 7.
 Dear Ensign:—I thought perhaps a few lines from here might be of interest to some of your readers. We moved to this place over a year ago, in company with my brother, Lester Wildermuth, and wife. We like the country and intend to stay. Last fall our cousin, A. J. Fisher, and family, moved here, also about Christmas. Bro. and Sr. Wm. Barnes, of Elgin, Illinois, moved here too. All in the same neighborhood, called Wildermuth corners, by the newspaper correspondents, but our postoffice is Necedah. This is the home of Elder J. B. Wildermuth, as his father's family lives here. Last winter we began to hold weekly prayer meetings at different houses in turn, then we felt lost without our Religion, so we organized a local, and have held some very interesting sessions. Then we felt the need of a Sunday School for the children's sake, so we organized one. We have a nice school, some outsiders seem greatly interested; others want to turn us out because we would not have union school and use David Cook's literature, but we seem to be gaining friends.

We sent a request to the conference at Valley Junction to have a branch organized. Bro. C. H. Burr and A. V. Closson came and organized us. Bro. Burr staid a few days and preached three excellent sermons. Several were greatly interested and inquire when he is coming back. We hope to see some baptized if they could hear a few more sermons. We hope some of the missionaries can visit us soon. We intend to build a church in the near future. We feel encouraged in the work and are thankful to have the privilege of having a branch here. Hope to keep the work moving on.

We have fine prospects for good crops here now. Had lots of rain lately.

Your sister in the fine faith,
RILLIE MOORE.

RADOLIFF, Ohio, July 10.
 Editor Ensign:—Since the General Conference I have been very busy with both the work of the ministry, and looking after affairs at home. I have recently been permitted to reap the fruits of the sowing of a number of years ago. When I first began in the ministry I did some work in the vicinity of the Fairview school-house, in Gallia county, following up the introduction of the work there by my father, and was assisted by Bro. W. H. Rhoads and later joined by Bro. T. J. Beatty; I continued the effort there alone at intervals, having fair interest by way of audiences and good attention, and while a number seemed favorable to the truth, none, seemingly, had the courage to obey. After a time we ceased our effort at that place, and later I was sent to other fields, and for about five years was kept out of the Ohio district as a missionary. There was no further effort made at this place by others, and I had supposed that those who were interested before, had become altogether indifferent to the gospel. But while laboring in Illinois, just before the Conference, I received a letter from Mr. William T. Jenkins, of the above mentioned place, and with whom I had made my home in the past, requesting me to come and hold some more meetings. As soon as practicable, after the General Conference, I made arrangements and an appointment for meeting. I was joined by Bro. Elmer E. Long, June 1st, who went with me to Davisville, where we held three meetings, and baptized one. This was Bro. Long's first experience at baptizing. From there we went to Davis Station (Fairview schoolhouse) and began meetings, holding over one Sunday and part of the week, with the result of three baptisms. From there we went on into Lawrence county, visiting some of the scattered Saints on Aaron's and Paddle Creeks, and thence, to Ironton, where we held about one week's meeting. Bro. Long returned home, and the writer to Fairview school-house, holding meeting over another Sunday, and baptizing two more, making five in all at that point; three of them are heads of families, viz., Bro. and Sr. George Butcher, and Sr. Margaret Jenkins. The others were Sr. Anna Jenkins, a school teacher, and Sr. Rosetta Butcher, who had the courage to step out and obey the gospel before her father and mother did. Others are almost persuaded. Some are well aware of their duty, and are only delaying. We think that there will be others there who will obey soon.

Since leaving the above mentioned place we have done work at Wellston, and at the Bails' schoolhouse. We assisted Bro. L. R. Devore over last Sunday at the last named place. Bro. Devore baptized one on Monday. He is now holding meetings at my home schoolhouse (Middle Fork) while the writer is looking after home matters during the day, and assisting with the meetings at night. Notwithstanding the busy time of the year we are having good sized audiences each night. Bro. Elmer E. Long joined us on yesterday, and preached last night. Bro. Long is just starting out in the ministry, and is a promising young man; he is very earnest and conscientious in his work, and is rapidly developing into an able preacher.

There seems to be plenty of work to do in this mission. The other brethren appointed to this district are all busily engaged, so we hear.

Still in the faith,
H. E. MOLER.

BOSTON, Mass., July 19.
 Editor Ensign:—This beautiful July morning I am going to write a few lines for your paper ere we sail. Tomorrow we sail for England, and thence to Norway, the mission of Bro. Muceus, and our home for the next three years. Though loth to leave America with its loved ones, yet God has promised to be with us, and his grace is all sufficient. For the past seven weeks we have visited Saints of Wisconsin, Chicago and Boston. We have enjoyed these visits very much, and they will long be remembered by us. Wherever we go among God's people there we find that spirit of love which God said should characterize his people.

While in Chicago we visited Lincoln park, and were much pleased with what we saw. The elephant was immense but believed in perpetual motion, so we could not get a picture of him. Of course the monkeys were interesting, as they were so very human in their ways, and so full of antics. Best of all was the excellent display of tropical plants which filled a portion of the hot-house. You could almost imagine yourself in the tropical regions as you gazed upon their luxuriant growth. To add to the scene a lizard lazily crawled on the moss at the foot of the palms, and we were indeed in the tropics.

On our way from Chicago to Boston we stopped off one day at Niagara, our object being to see those famous falls. They are indeed grand, and we feel to say, there is no grandeur like that of nature. Much might be written about them, but they cannot be described; and to realize their grandeur one must view them. The American fall is higher, than the horseshoe, but the horseshoe fall has a greater volume of water. Hastening on from Niagara we came to our present place of abode at the pleasant home of Bro. and Sr. O. C. Newcomb, in Boston.

We have had the privilege of meeting with the Saints in prayer service here, and must say they seem to be energetic, wide awake workers in the Master's service.

Dear Saints, one and all, let us try to live more as God would have us to do, so when our life work is ended we may have accomplished much in his service.

Build thee more stately mausoleons,
 O, my son,
 As the swift seasons roll,
 Leave thy low-vaulted past,
 Let each new effort,
 Nobler than the last,
 Fit thee for heaven.
 With a dome more vast,
 "Pill thou at length art free,
 Leaving thine outgrown shell,
 By life's unresting sea.
 Wishing to be remembered by you,
 I am,
 Your sister in Christ,
 EMMA MUCERUS.
 V. PORSGRUND, Norway.

HELENA, Okla., July 17.
 Dear Ensign:—Your weekly visits are enjoyed by the Saints and friends of this mission; and in our labors in the field we find comfort in the good news from Zion's land from the scattered Saints. I came here yesterday from near Cleo and Forrest where I labored four weeks, opening the work in three new places. I arrived in Woods county four weeks ago today, and have preached twenty-eight times and baptized two, Mr. P. W. Atkins and wife. They are indeed fine people, and I venture to predict that they will always be good, faithful Saints. I also found a Mr. J. W. West, near Forrest, who seems to be a firm believer in our work, but was not ready to obey. Several heard the faith for the first time, and the people received us kindly, and I am sure good was done.

I will commence at Golden Valley school-house tonight, one mile from Bro. Z. J. Brewster's and continue as interest justifies. The outlook is encouraging for good attendance. From here I will go to Oklahoma reunion, which meets at Dover, August 16-25, on the Rock Island R. R. Then by request of those in charge I will visit the Indian Territory mission. We hope the Saints of Oklahoma and neighboring mission fields will make an earnest effort to attend the Dover reunion. These meetings are productive of much good to the Saints; even those who have the privilege of branch meetings are encouraged and strengthened in the faith. It is in keeping with God's commandments to "gather together often;" the object is evidently to be strengthened and to strengthen others in the work of the Lord. Our spiritual nature must surely be fed or it will become starved; and, therefore, that growth—"To the fullness of the stature of Christ"—will not, nor cannot, be made. So let us feed our spiritual natures by "assembling ourselves together," and receiving from the Father that "manna from heaven" which he has promised us by obedience to his gospel. Mission reunions and district conferences are favorable opportunities for God's children to receive the needed strength. May we not permit circumstances, trifles or business cares to hinder our progress in the glorious later day work. The sacrifice and effort to attend should not be considered in comparison with the blessings received. I hope the Saints of Oklahoma will rally—rally in real earnest and attend the Dover reunion. Don't forget the date, August 16-25.

With hope and confidence, faith and trust in God and the restored gospel, we labor on, endeavoring to do the best we can.

Your co-laborer,
R. M. MALONEY.

GRANADA, Col., July 10.
 Editor Ensign:—A few lines from the Colorado gospel tent will probably be in place. On the 13th of June Bro. R. J. Parker and the writer started with the tent from Burlington, Colorado, for the Arkansas Valley. Bro.

Otto Colpitts, with his amiable wife, furnished the conveyance. In the course of about three days we reached Lamar, and put up the tent. Poor attendance compelled us to make our stay there short. We stored the tent for a few days and accompanied Bro. M. F. Ralston out to his hospitable home, sixteen miles northwest of Lamar. Near his home we held a couple of meetings in a school-house. Bro. Bradshaw and family live in this neighborhood. The brethren aided us financially on our departure. Bro. Ralston bailed our tent from Lamar down nineteen miles east to Granada, where we have been holding nightly meetings. Bro. Parker was called home on the 3d inst., because of the serious illness of members of his family, and he himself was not well. Bro. J. B. Wildermuth was just joined me. He has been laboring in the northern part of the state, and in Wyoming, all spring and summer. The interest at this place is fair, but not what we would like. Our next move in a few days will be eleven miles east to Holly, then on to Coolidge. In the fore part of August we expect to slip the tent to Colorado Springs, so as to use it at the convening of Eastern Colorado district conference on the 16-18 of that month. While we cannot report any baptisms, yet can say that we are succeeding in removing prejudice. This is an entirely new field for our work, and an introduction is all that can be hoped. Future efforts will doubtless reap some of the fruition of the seed now sown.

May the Lord bless and care for his work and hasten it in its time.

Your co-worker in Christ,
A. B. HANSON.

LOWBANKS, Ont., July 15.
 Editor Ensign:—Since writing you last, from Pontiac, Michigan, conditions have changed somewhat, and this writing finds us (together with Elder J. A. Blackmore) laboring in the vineyard of the Lord, trying to prune the vine, and sow fresh seed, which we believe, to some extent, is falling on good ground, and will, in its proper time, spring up and bear fruit to the honor and glory of God. We look out on the world and see the wonderful work which is to be accomplished, and to our incomprehensible mind it seems that nothing short of the miraculous power of God, set forth under the supervision of that wisdom which framed the universe, would accomplish it. But we are here and our circumstances are such that we are not permitted to know all of the requirements that are necessary for the benefit of the work, and still we have enough revealed to us that we could "move the nations" if we, as a church unitedly, would live up to the light we thus have. Latter Day Saints should bear in mind the fact that it is the "living of their religion" that will convince the masses of the truthfulness of the angel's message as it has been restored. We have the pleasure of relating that last night after preaching service, the waters were troubled as a result of the convincing influence of the angel of light; and two more souls launched their barks in the sea of life's "tempestuous waters," but our prayer is that their spirits will always be as light as the foam on the crested billows, that they might float triumphantly over every wave of unjust criticism. One of them is a pure bud of promise of ten years, the other her great-uncle, who has lived to the best of her ability, identified with the Methodist church since she was young. The pleasing feature is the faith in which she has gone forth in obedience to the gospel. She says she knows her friends and old church companions will despise her, or at least her religion, but she says she has weighed the different circumstances in the balance and concludes (and justly too) that the beautiful and eternal expense of God's approving love far outweighs the troubles and trials of this life. What an example of outspoken faith for one who is so young in the gospel venture; older and more experienced Latter Day Saints would do well to take a lesson from it and live in comparatively as good faith. The Lord is gathering in such as should be saved, and the time is fast approaching when He will come to pass his terrible judgments and separate those who will be eternally saved, who will be joint heirs with him in the fullness of his glory.

FAITH IN GOD.

Sermon Delivered by Elder Columbus Scott, at the Reunion at Washington Park, Missouri, Sunday, August 26, 1900.

As a basis for the thoughts that we would desire to present for your consideration tonight, we invite attention to the words of our blessed Lord, found in the Book of Mark, the 11th chapter and 22d verse. These words read, "Have faith in God." They are familiar words to most of the New Testament readers and invite our attention at once to the subject before our minds, "Have faith in God." This is one of the most beautiful texts of scripture that there is by the aid of which to tell the people why I am a Latter Day Saint.

It is the astonishment of grave thinkers, ministers and philosophers, why it is that this strange work represented by the Latter Day Saints should have an existence at all in the world; and they wonder, from its strange peculiarities, why it should grow up here in this careful thinking and sharp philosophical America. They wonder why it is that this strange work finds place at all among the people of today, and consequently they wonder at the announcement sometimes read from the New Testament and the revelations of St. John when we present, as one of the evidences of our faith, the language, "I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, to every nation, kindred, tongue and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God and give glory to him, for the hour of his judgment is come."

This is a strange announcement to make in the face of the traditional faith of the world at this time, and they at once conclude that if any such a thing has happened as that the angel has come with the everlasting gospel, or shall happen, it would imply a belief in the doctrine of present revelation from God, and this forms the bed rock objection upon which our friendly neighbors, who differ with us, stand, who are brought to think upon this work; it is their leading objection, the idea that God should speak, the idea that He should reveal Himself in order to the prosecution of His work among men, the work of human salvation.

Now, I want to invite your attention to the text, "Have faith in God," and when I shall have examined that text just a few moments, some of you that are not with us in religion, but possibly are here tonight, will wonder why you have not been Latter Day Saints a long time ago. I want you to wonder about it and consider it. When I am enjoined by our Savior to "Have faith in God," all as New Testament believers, accept that as a divine injunction. You remember that this is the answer that Jesus gave to His disciples when they visited the fig tree recorded of, that Jesus visited when He was in search of, but found no fruit upon it, and He spoke the words, "Let no fruit from henceforth grow upon thee," and from that time the tree withered. When the disciples found that on a second visit the tree had actually withered, they marvelled about it; and the Savior invited their attention to the secret that had accomplished that work, and He answered and gave explanation to their marvelling and wondering by the expression, "Have faith in God."

I presume there is not a person listening to me this evening but who desires to have faith in God, but we naturally ask the question, or at least we logically should, when we think of having faith in God, What kind of a being is God? Is there any way that we can find out in what character He has presented Himself that we may be enabled to fulfill that injunction intelligently, and have faith in God? Everybody believes that it is essential to have faith in God, and nearly every religionist says we are saved by faith and we agree to that; we are saved by faith, and as we heard this afternoon, we are saved by preaching, and we are saved by grace, and we are saved by the blood of Christ, and Peter says we are saved by baptism, and we are told that we are saved by hope, and it is said in substance that we are saved by repentance. Then we are saved by the entire gospel scheme.

Now then, if it is essential to have faith in God in order to be saved, I want to ask this audience, in as simple a way as possible, What kind of a being do you suppose God is? I want to have a saving faith in God; I desire to have an effectual faith in God; I desire to have that kind of faith that I may be able to come into rapport with him, and have that faith that will bring down His blessings upon me and secure unto me that for which I am seeking—immortal, eternal life and glory on the other side. All intelligent believers are seeking for this and we want to know just what kind of faith will entitle us to the great prize at the right hand of God in the sweet bye and bye.

Again I ask the question, what kind of an idea do you have with reference to who God is, and what kind of a being He is? "It is no use to have faith, to pray, unless somehow or other I am brought to understand that He will hear and answer my prayer, is it? It is not essential for me to try to do the works that I suppose to be enjoined unless I somehow or other understand Him well enough to know that these works will commend me to Him and bring down the blessing that I seek. Did you ever think about that when you are going forward and trying to have faith in God, that faith that saves? What kind of a being is our Father? Or is it too sacred for us to think about? I do not think so. The Good Book that He has given informs us that one of the leading purposes of the revelations of God is to inform us what kind of a being God is. Is it necessary that I know something about who He is and what kind of a character He has in order to exercise a proper faith in Him? I think it is, and I ask again the question, What kind of a being do you think God is whom you ask me to believe in tonight in order to be saved? This involves the answer to the question as to what kind of a character God has. I want to talk about His character just a moment, and I do not expect to quote much scripture, for to all believers in the Bible I expect to present that about which we will not differ.

I presume everybody in the audience that has arrived to the years of accountability knows what the word "character" signifies. We all have a character. I have been in places where they did not know my character, and they have told some hard stories occasionally, they gave me a great reputation, and the Almighty has been given some wonderful reputations in the world, but who has thought to ask the question, what is His character? You know the difference between reputation and character. Sometimes they give us a reputation that we are not responsible for, that we are not guilty of, but where our character is well known, they know what kind of persons we are. I want to get acquainted with the Heavenly Father, and I ask, What kind of a character has He?

Now, there are certain elements that enter into and constitute real character. The first one, one of the important ones to which I would invite your attention is this: The great Being says, "I am the Lord, I change not. Therefore, ye sons of Jacob are not consumed." That is found in the Old Testament, given for the benefit of the children of Israel to enable them to rightly understand our Father. And what does the New Testament say about it? The Apostle James is authority for the language: "Be not deceived, every good and perfect gift cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom there is neither variableness nor the shadow of turning." Then, in getting acquainted with that heavenly Being I learn first, that He is an unchangeable God. Now, it is necessary for me to know that if I read in the Bible that He has a certain purpose in view, and that He requires me to carry out a certain purpose in order to please him, I learn the fact from this consideration, that when he has revealed that purpose, he doesn't change concerning it to suit anybody's convenience.

His purposes are suited really to the convenience of the children of men, and looking at it from our standpoint sometimes, we look at it as being inconvenient. It is inconvenient to the education of some of us I admit, but when we start right, seek to know God and who he is, when we learn that he is unchangeable, we may set it down that God does not vary from what he has said; that inspires confidence in his word to start out with, and that is one of the elements of faith. Have confidence in his law too, and that he will do just what he says, that if he has told you and me to do so and so, that he never varies from it; and that in the second place we are told, both in the Old and New Testament, that the Lord "is no respecter of persons." He doesn't have any respect to persons; all his beneficences are extended to the human family alike, with reference to the atmosphere that he has created for our well being. The sunshine he has given to the unjust and the just, in its beautiful rays and attraction and power, to the evil as well as the good. We all have access to his earth and place thereon to dwell our allotted time, and in the gospel beneficence we are told, God so loved the world—not a little portion of it, but the world—that he gave his only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him might not perish but have everlasting life; that Jesus Christ is the propitiation, not for the sins of a few only, but for the sins of the whole world; that Christ is a ransom for all men to be testified of in due time; so whatever is offered to the children of men through Christ, is equally offered to all the sons of men.

Our heavenly Father is worthy of our faith, is he not? Worthy of our confidence? And then another beautiful deduction that we notice from this thought that "God is no respecter of persons" is this: that when he ordained the plan of salvation for the children of men, he ordained the same plan for all, and he ordained it as an unchangeable God, and based it on unchangeable principles, and hence the gospel as a provision for life and salvation, like its great originator, never changes.

This is a beautiful thought, that the heavenly Father does not propose to save Adam and Abel and Enoch by one plan, and then change after awhile and propose to you and to me to be saved by another. He won't require of them certain conditions that they should obey in order to be saved, and then say to me, "Well, my child, you can be saved whether you do these things or not; do just what you may conclude is right and what you ought to do, and if you do not do just like Peter and Jesus and Paul, I will accept you." Do you think an impartial God could do that? Do you have that kind of faith in God? Is that your faith that God is thus partial? I want you to think about it a little while. God who is no respecter of persons, and was beautifully and yet so plainly presented to us the other day, how that this wonderful element in God's character was the crowning, comforting thought, and conviction of the Apostle Peter at the house of Cornelius when he was converted to the truth that the gospel of God was intended for all men and not for just a few Jews, when he said, when the Holy Ghost descended on the house of Cornelius, "Now I perceive," (now I see the idea; I am solemnly convicted "that God is no respecter of persons, but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness is accepted with him."

Here is another beautiful element in God's character that He is declared to be a God of eternal equity, in other words, a God of everlasting righteousness, that "his righteousness is everlasting." Therefore this impartial, unchangeable God, this God of eternal equity that I am believing in tonight, will do that which is eternally and infinitely right by all of his children, and toward all mankind. Isn't it lovely to think that our Father is that kind of a being? That I, tonight, in this year of grace, this 26th day of August, in this great year; this ending up of the nineteenth century of the era, this year nineteen hundred, that I, like Peter, on the earth nearly nineteen hundred years ago, could say, "Our Father who art in heaven," so you and I could have faith in the unchangeable, impartial, eternally righteous God. And his children can look up to him like Peter, and say, "Our Father who art in heaven," and it will really be so. Ah, to realize that we can call him Father; that he is our Father, and that herein we can learn the reason why.

Now, that is sufficient on the character of God; let us talk briefly about his attributes. That will help us out. You know what the word "attributes" means, don't you? I will endeavor to illustrate it. We all have our attributes in our make-up. This organ has certain attributes. One of its attributes is its height. It is about so high, it is about so wide, it weighs so much, and then it is porous. If it was not so constituted that the air could pass through it, there is air enough around to crush it. We are porous too in that regard, the air passes all through our being. Were it not so we would be crushed immediately, we would not exist, or if so, we would be crushed. That is one of the elements that enter into and constitute lightning when the passing lightning is so sudden, causing by the collapsing or the removing of certain strata of atmosphere, and allowing other strata of different temperature to come suddenly together, it helps to kill, to crush. Life cannot endure it.

God has his attributes; what are they? I do not think any of you will differ with me tonight if we enumerate seven of them as the leading ones. Seven is a kind of divine number; there is a seven in pretty nearly everything. There are seven ages of characters, seven beautiful distinct harmonies, and yet different tones, in the science of music; and seven distinct eras in the science of geology, and then, you know, there are a lot of other sevens along through the Bible. There are the six days' work and the seventh day is the Sabbath of the old law. There were the seven trumpets and six days around the walls of Jericho, and the seventh day the collapsing of the wall, and so we can enumerate many others. You remember how good little Jacob served seven years for his wife, served a long while; and then there are a lot of other sevens too numerous to mention. There seems to be about six thousand years of the world, and the seventh millennium of rest and a place we are trying to get to bye and bye, and the glorious resurrection.

Now God's attributes: The first I would mention is that of infinite power. You all know what the word "infinite" means as we shall use the word; it simply means all power in heaven absolute, or in all heavens, in all the worlds as well as this one. God, we say, is a God of infinite power. Now, you want to know that in order to conceive of the thought that whenever God proposes to do anything, if to resurrect you from the dead and give you immortality, change you from mortality to immortality, he is powerful enough to do it. Secondly, He is a God of infinite knowledge; He absolutely possesses all knowledge conceivable. Thirdly, He is a God of infinite wisdom; He possesses all wisdom, and those attributes of wisdom and knowledge of God will have a beauty to them when you conceive of God's infinite knowledge and wisdom. When you get this conception from the Bible, that they never had to you before, it will strike you as you read. Fourthly, He is a God of infinite truth. He possesses and knows all truth. All that He says is true, though we are not able to have all the truth revealed to us. We could not understand it. He gives us just what we are capable of comprehending, and He is a God of infinite truth, and then it is a beautiful thing to think that the great God never tells any lies, never has and never will.

Then, in the next place, He is a God of infinite justice (the infinitely just). God will do right to everybody, always right, eternally right, and He will never outrage infinite justice, never, to suit anybody or theory. And in the sixth place, He is a God of infinite mercy. His mercy endureth forever. His mercy extends to all generations. His mercy is higher than the heavens, deeper than that upon which the earth is founded, and comprehends the worlds and the foundations upon which they rest. And in the seventh, and last place, He is a God of infinite love. Now, then, coupled with these thoughts, these seven general attributes will comprehend his goodness, his holiness, his loving kindness, his long suffering, and every other outgrowing attribute from these seven, that you could imagine, or think about, or read about in the good Book.

Says one, "Is there anything practical about preaching the attributes of God? Is there anything practical in it?" If God be unchangeable and no respecter of persons, I want to say in the next place, the Almighty cannot change in the sense in which we are looking at him tonight. Do not be startled. I am using that word "cannot" in the moral sense. The Almighty cannot change. I will tell you why. It is simple as a b c when you think about it. He cannot change unless you could reduce his infinite power just a little, and take part of it from himself, or lay it aside. He could not change with reference to his knowledge without reducing it just a little. He could not change with reference to his wisdom without laying aside just enough to change. He could not change with reference to his truth without turning about and telling something besides the truth once in a while. So with his justice; he could not change his infinite justice without indeed sometimes judging unjustly.

Everything that is right is based on principle, and all that is contrary to it is the opposite of all principle. It is simply anarchy in thought, in feeling, in faith, and hence is not based on principle.

The Almighty could not change with reference to his infinite mercy without sometimes being unmerciful, and he could not well be unmerciful toward anybody unless he could change in his crowning attribute called love; but he could not do that without sometime turning and hating somebody, and the Almighty could not do that. Let me ask you, Can you hate anybody unless you know them and imagine they have done something mean to you? And do you need to hate anybody unless there is something to cause you to, and you get mad at them? But you would not bring God down to the low level of the human passion or anger, would you? Nay, the Almighty, the infinitely loving one is not moved in that way. Now, let me just make a deduction or two in the investigation of this question from this premise.

We will all agree so far as we have proceeded tonight, whether we are Latter Day Saint, Methodist, Baptist, or any other kind of faith, or even outside of any church. Now, if this Being, in whom we are enjoined to have faith, is God, as we have seen here tonight, it stands to reason that as an unchangeable, impartial, infinitely just, merciful and loving God, when he originated a plan of salvation, he knew the end from the beginning by his infinite knowledge. All things are present to him from eternity to eternity, as he says, "I dwell in the midst of eternity." Then indeed, he knows enough to ordain the plan of salvation once for all to save mankind, and doesn't have to stop after he has tried it a little while and finds he has made a mistake, and go back and change or improve upon it.

Hence, the plan of salvation, whatever it was in Adam's day, was the plan of salvation in the days of Christ, and whatever it was then, is the plan now; whatever the principles of the gospel were then, they are now. Is not that a logical and a proper deduction from the premises. Again we are told that this unchangeable God, for four thousand and one hundred years from Adam's creation down to the time when John the Revelator disappeared from among men, that from time to time he gave revelations, and I am told by all Christian people that the record of the revelations are here in the Bible, and of course I would be considered clear outside the pale of so-called Christian religion if I did not believe the teachings of the Bible.

If it be true that the Bible contains the divine revelations given during these four thousand and one hundred years, I want to ask the question, "Did this unchangeable God, just when he finished that book of Revelations and closed it up, did he there change and cease giving revelations to his children?" Now, they teach me in harmony with that idea that God changed, and they say to me, as a worshiper of Him, "You want to be a child of God, and must humble yourself and pray." If I pray to the Lord for knowledge and wisdom, they say, "Bro. Scott, if you want the wisdom and the knowledge you are praying for, go back to the Bible." "Try a game of chance on it and if you are really sincere and earnest, just open the Bible hap-hazard and perhaps the first verse your eye lights on will be just the knowledge you are praying for." I have known people to be superstitious enough to do that. God gave this knowledge to these children of His in olden days, and if you want to know anything, go back to the older children and talk to them. My earthly father never did me that way. There were six of us children. He didn't go to the three younger and say, when they asked him for information, "I expressed my will" to the three older children; if you want to know what I require of you, you go to them and let them tell you; I do not intend to speak to you. You are my children, I am your father, but then I am a little partial. I spoke to the first three children; these latter three shall never hear my voice only through the voice of writings to the first three."

They teach me that kind of an idea. They say that God, at the end of Revelations, one hundred years after the birth of Christ, changed, ceased to give revelations to his children, and almost every modern creed is based on that idea, and nearly every published creed in the world announces that the Bible contains the revelations that God intended for us, and is a sufficient rule of faith and practice, consequently is based on the very idea—this modern theological idea—that the great judge changed, and they tell us it was when He ceased giving revelations to John on Patmos. The unchangeable God changed, consequently, and you are resting, some of you, on that kind of a foundation here tonight. What do you think about it?

If God is unchangeable, if He is infinitely just and has a people today, will He not reveal Himself? He used to reveal Himself through His angels, through His own Son, and when He returned to heaven, He sent down as an official messenger from the worlds of light, from this unchangeable Father, the Holy Ghost as the grand infinite divine medium through which He would speak to His children. Now can you begin to see why it is that Latter Day Saints believe in present day revelation? Can you see, when you hear them pleading for faith in God, repentance from dead works, baptism and a burial with Christ as a birth of the water in order to an acceptance with God and the justification from past sins, and then tell you the joyful news that through the laying on of hands of God's servants you can receive the Holy Ghost? That leads you right up again to the objection you urged, when we talk about the laying on of hands for the gift of the Holy Ghost, when we bring to you New Testament evidences of these truths. These are only part of the principles of the gospel. When did those principles change? Are they still binding? Do they still form a part of God's covenant called the gospel, made through the Lord Jesus Christ and ratified by His blood? I think too much of the blood of Christ to trample on one of these principles or cast any one of them aside. I think too much of the infinite atonement made to do that, and then the beautiful doctrine of the gift and baptism of the Holy Spirit through which God will give you communication by vision, by spiritual dream, by angel ministrations and by prophetic voice inspired by Himself, attuned into harmony with God and giving us instruction essential to our eternal salvation.

Now do not consider me at all over-enthusiastic, or that I am going to the extreme on this question of new revelation. It is not necessary for God to give me a revelation as to my time to get up in the morning, or what I shall have for breakfast, or with regard to the ordinary affairs of each succeeding day; but when I want to know whether God is my Father, whether I have been adopted into His family, whether my sins have been pardoned, I cannot learn that by reading that Peter knew his sins were pardoned. I can read back there what the Father said to the earlier children, but I want to know something about whether He is going to be partial with me and fail to let me know whether I am accepted with him or not. Why should not I talk to one of the beautiful angels when God finds it necessary for me to? I am told in the New Testament, in the gospel, that the angels are ministering spirits sent forth to minister for those who shall be heirs of salvation. Are there any heirs of salvation in the world today? Anybody that wants to be an heir of salvation? Are you afraid of your messengers? Are you afraid to talk to them? We do not contend that God gives revelations to the unworthy and the careless, to the indifferent, to the sleepy; no, not to such when they are found even in the church; but we must live worthy, do that which is right, try to assimilate the character of God as nearly as we can, try to become regenerated, become as a little child again, then grow up and let all these old weak hindrances fall off. To illustrate the thought in a homely way, we should be transplanted like a little cabbage plant, and when we grow up, let these old desires to swear and drink and chew tobacco and play cards, and engage in other sinful pleasures, let them die off, just like those old outside leaves of a cabbage head while the head forms with fresh, new, splendid material, fit for use. That is the way to do, and when you grow up new, God will talk with you.

The Latter Day Saint elders have been trying so hard to tell the world what a loving God, infinitely just and merciful he is to man, and they object, many of them, to hearing it. Isn't it strange that these glad tidings of great joy to all people are so repugnant to them? If this old Adam's nature would get out of the way, these old dead, rotten leaves of our nature would fall off and give place to the better nature, and let it be developed and commune with God, the world would look at the Latter Day Saints differently.

I have just one more deduction that I desire to make from this premise and then I will not detain you longer this time. The Latter Day Saints are wondered at because they believe that the Heavenly Father has given us a record known as the Book of Mormon. Don't any of you get excited—I am going to talk to you about the Book of Mormon just a moment. That word "Mormon" scares lots of people where I have been. They have all sorts of distorted and fearful and consternating images created in their minds at once; and they think about great big families, women plotting and children quarrelling, and men that are not able to appease all the crowd and all that. If I could just add to the first syllable of the word "e," and if I had the right to add "ey" to the last syllable, you would not have to think of the quarrelling family; you would grab for it at once because it would then be "more money." That is the spirit of the age, but unfortunately the word does not mean that any more than the other, but seeks to tell us about this good Father we have been talking about; tells the same story that the Savior reveals to us, how to get into a condition to have communion with God. The book simply means more good, and I guess that is really all the scare there is in it.

Says one, What is it for? I will give you one reason for it and that is this: Some of you perhaps, attended the World's Fair. You went over there to what is known as the building containing the American antiquities—went in there to see the little representative houses of the Cliff Dwellers, how they had good cities chiseled out of the rocks over there in the Rocky Mountains, in which they lived, also temples, and grand palaces erected over here in Central America, South America. Since this book was published to the world, Catherwood and Stevens under commission from the gov-ornament of the United States went down to Yucatan in Central America and found at that time forty-two cities lying in ruins, some of them with trees hundreds of years old growing over them and their roots spreading among the rocks that once composed their walls. On the walls are hieroglyphics, and other evidences of written languages, and human existence, of a great population; and of advanced civilizations anciently inhabiting this wonderful western world. Probably more populous settled than it is today, possibly more men and women and children on the face of this continent, from Cape Horn and Patagonia on the south and including all of British America and New Foundland and Nova Scotia on the north than inhabit the continent now; people that builded cities, people that cultivated these farms, people that had governments, people that had written languages, intelligent, some of their very splendid ancient books were burned a little while ago right here in America by some of the early missionaries from Spain, that followed after the discoverers over in Mexico.

I want to ask you this question: the general idea of the world has been that in the modern land of Palestine, the land over in western Asia across the blue Atlantic deep, that in that land God once spoke to men and gave those people the plan of salvation and that that is the only plan, and that only, and that is the only revelation, and that is what makes the Bible, and is the only, and all-sufficient plan of salvation; and contains all that this infinitely loving, infinitely merciful, infinitely truthful, infinitely just, infinitely knowing and infinitely unchangeable Deity ever intended to say. In view of that position, (and it is even contended that the poor heathen today, many of them, are going down to hell because we Christians are so stingy we won't give them more missionaries to tell them the gospel.) they say if they have not the gospel, they are sure to go to the warm place we sometimes hear about. Did this loving, merciful God that you pray to, let these seventy or eighty millions of ancient Americans of intelligence and renown and power and of greatness, highly civilized in writing and in reading and speaking, did He let these intelligent millions go down to an eternal hell because He would not give them a chance to go to heaven? Is that the kind of a God that this sectarian world is pressing me to believe in? Don't you think that the Latter Day Saint idea of God is the better of the two after all? Don't you begin to wonder why you did not see it as the Latter Day Saints have seen it a long while ago? I believe you will, and the more you think about it the more you will wonder why you have not thought about it before, why you have not been a Latter Day Saint.

I want you to answer this argument. The position of the world in their opposition to the coming forth of that record that God gave on this continent, showing that He had prophets here, that He gave them the plan of salvation, that He showed to them the way of life, that His beneficence extended to them, His infinite goodness, and that they knew of the loving Father and had opportunities of life and glory on the other side. When you step up on the other side at the resurrection and show me some of the old prophets that lived on this western continent, perhaps one by the name of Nephi, one by the name of Moroni and possibly the one that was named Mormon, (and you will, if any of you were worthy to go to heaven) and shake hands with Him, what are you going to think about it when you used to say on this side, "Ah, that was all a humbug and these Latter Day Saints were deceived. Wait until you get over there and have to give it up. You had better think seriously now, and if we have good reasons, logical reasons, from this basis for our faith on this point, then indeed it seems to me that all reasoning people ought to admit, at least, if they do not believe as we do, that we have logical Bible reasons for our faith.

Now, it looks to me like in this age of trouble, in this age of increasing wickedness, in this age when the waves of corruption are spreading over the world one after another in irresistible ways, when the world is moving away from God and many are doubting the Christ, that if they would look into that book, that volume known as the Book of Mormon, and investigate the scientific basis for its truth and existence, and the reasonableness, and its consistency with the character of God itself, that indeed they ought to be persuaded it is correct.

And now I want to try to reach these fathers through their wives. We live in a day, among other evils, of wonderful trouble in the marriage relation, and if the women knew when times were good with them and wanted things to work out right, that they ought to be interested in convincing their husbands that the Book of Mormon contains the word of God, for it comes right along here saying that polygamy and other extravagances and vitiating principles, or rather lack of principles, elements that enter into and destroy the marriage relation and bring about so many divorces. That book says that polygamy is an abomination in God's sight. That book says, "Wherefore, my brethren, * * * and hearken to the word of the Lord, For there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife and concubines he shall have none." Now, persuade your husband that that is the word of the Lord, and he won't be running off so quick if you happen to speak up and make a claim for your rights as a member of the head of the family, once in a while, and try a legal censorship. Get him persuaded that he can have but one wife, else he becomes culpably guilty before God, and I promise you that order and peace will reign in the family. The Book of Mormon will bring good to the families, good to the children, good to the husband and wife, and, as a result, it will build up society, elevate it, and consequently will bring more good.

Now then, the Book of Mormon tells us that the unchangeable, infinitely just Father of ours that we worship, had a people on this land, and that to them was offered the same salvation offered to us. It is in harmony with God's character, and anything in harmony with God's character will be in harmony with the Bible, and anything in harmony with the Bible will be in harmony with the gospel, and anything in harmony with the gospel will be in harmony with Latter Day Saint faith, and the faith of every other saint that the brother referred to this afternoon, whatever church he belongs to. They will be one with the Latter Day Saints on this point.

Now, don't you begin to see that you wonder already why it is that you have not been a Latter Day Saint a long while ago, and when you wake up tomorrow, after you have slept and dreamed about this, think of it, and think today, tomorrow, and keep on thinking about it, you who are not united with us yet, until you see it, read it, and finally come around and get in harmony with the truth of the gospel of the unchangeable God, of the Christ who is declared, in the Bible, to be the same yesterday, today and forever.

Destroyed the Source.

The change in the face of nature caused by the destruction of the mighty forests of Lebanon has permanently impoverished the entire region involved. The Judean valley was rendered arid, and Palestine today can support but few people, because her water courses have been dried up, for the great trees which sheltered the snows and kept the pitiless sun from reaching into the heart of the springs have been destroyed utterly, and are without successors.—Sel.

A Touching Poem About a Real Incident.

Among the "Fresh Air" children who arrived at a farm near Pittsfield, in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, one day last summer, was a poor little tot who, as she was lifted from the wagon, caught sight of a field of daisies. With a cry of delight she darted to the rail-fence the moment she was set down, and, scrambling under it, threw herself, face downward, among the beautiful white and gold blossoms, clasping them in her arms and sobbing as if her heart were breaking. She had never before seen flowers growing. During her stay she spent all her time among them, and when the moment came to pack her shabby little bag it was found to be filled with flowers. A touching poem about this pathetic incident, "The Fresh-Air Child," by Elliott Walker, is published in the August number of The Ladies' Home Journal.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."
DAUGHTERS OF ZION
Mrs. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Editor's Address, 111 So. Fuller Ave., Independence, Mo.

"DAUGHTERS OF ZION." How the sound of that name starts memories of a glorious past, fragrant with sweet hope and promise for the great future, from which, as it were, the vision of our hope and faith catches revelations of a city of triumph. A city, the fruition of a long, long warfare with sin, and with all that is imperfect, whose finale will be only seen when "That which is perfect is come, and that which is in part shall be done away." (1 Cor. 13: 10.) A city of triumph whose glorious beauty will only be surpassed by that of its inhabitants, perfect immortals all, and clothed with glittering white, type of their righteousness attained.

A city, whose triumph means all that is good, true, beautiful and useful, and the final destruction of their opposites; the real and triumphant "evolution," the real and complete "survival of the fittest," of every age, and when again God shall in Zion walk and talk with men, it will mark a period more glorious by far than when He did so with Enoch long ago, for in the latter time the entire earth will have been conquered for God.

What are the possibilities of the present which can give the divine right to so royal a title as this "Daughters of Zion?" Surely it is the heritage and right of those who, having obeyed His command, have been buried with Him in baptism and risen with Him in newness of life—whose example and effort are a living invocation, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven." Not alone whose aim it is to have clean hands and a pure heart, but those who, with that all important work, seek also to advance the cause of right doing and right thinking in the lives and thoughts of others.

This is true and will affect not only the present in results, but in eternity will come in everlasting blessing unto those who make the effort to bring others to higher standards of life. See Daniel 12: 3: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars forever and forever."

Truly it is a most profitable work adding to our own talents, be they ever so few, and encouraging others, especially the young to do likewise, avoiding the wrong in every path of life, and by example and precept, and by every righteous method seeking to capture for God and his church the loyalty of human souls; and teaching even to infant minds the Godlike virtue of "loving righteousness and hating iniquity."

Daughters of Zion, by your constitution, and by your God-given right as an auxiliary of the church of Jesus Christ, one of its helps, this is a noble part of your mission, whose heaven is quietly, though perhaps unappreciated by many, already at work in fields even now white for the harvest.

To, with gentle words and unerring counsel, seek through the mothers of the church, and wherever your influence can reach by pen or otherwise, to warn, instruct and equip our youth from childhood, that when they stand on the threshold of home with eager faces turned outward towards the great untried world, they may go forth equipped to rule, at least their own spirits; and thereby become, in view of the testimony of the gospel in their possession, the "salt of the earth" which is not likely to lose its savor.

To send forth the children of the church to school or into the various avenues of labor and trade, or society, unwarned and less carefully educated as to the character of its greatest dangers and pitfalls, means often their going down to spiritual, moral, physical and mental disaster and death; while by utilizing every wise method of education of our young, by the sisterhood and motherhood of the church, means, wherever they may be, the safety of untold numbers of the young, saved for the church, for themselves, for those who love them, and to the world itself, as pillars of light and strength in the midst of moral decrepitude and uncleanness.

As I look over the Zion-land and consider the great work the Lord has given His church to do in the betterment of all who will place themselves under its government, in the providing a place of refuge and safety as the world's wars and troubles grow fiercer, darker, and more cruel, and her selfishness more oppressive and harder to bear, her sins more grosser and denser, and the cup of her iniquity nears the point of overflow, I feel to say in behalf of your work the wide world over, and especially in these regions, Daughters of Zion, be not discouraged; your work of love and education, such as outlined in your constitution and already done and on the way, is of a kind to make the angels glad, even where men may oftentimes fail to perceive its infinite possibilities for good.

Your brother in the one faith,
H. H. HULMES.

PASTORAL.

Dear Ensign:—Just upon the eve of departure for special work in a foreign field, I desire to thank the Saints for the special encouragement given in the work of the Bishopric by the general response to the appeal for means to liquidate the College indebtedness and maintain the work outlined by the last General Conference.

The increased missionary force; the heavy expense necessary to sending so many to the islands, to Australia and to Europe, make it important that every member of the household of faith perform his or her duty in the work and manifest a vallant spirit in occupying in the extended church service even by sacrifice and patient and zealous work.

Reports of College work to the 17th Inst. indicated a total list of cash and good subscriptions of $14,156.43. This is indeed moving upward in this particular work, but to reach the goal we must not stop, neither wait to see if the work will not be accomplished without our aid. Let us rather each feel and resolve that it shall not be done without our help.

Let no one feel that my absence for a few months from the office will cripple the work there. Good and faithful men are in charge there and they are in easy communication with Counselors G. H. Hilliard and E. A. Blakeslee, and by just a short delay I shall have ready communication with the office in all important matters also.

It is important that the law of Christ be fulfilled in all particulars if we would reap according to His promises. "The minister must not only work, but he must be very diligent and sacrifice in that work." The member must be equally diligent in his duties and faithful in his sacrifices. Our work is one and its responsibilities binding and fairly imposed upon all. In this grave hour no man or woman should fail of duty.

Stakes have been appointed and all the work required of the Master under the condition of occupancy under this situation of the church must be carried out in its time and place. The Bishopric will strive to meet every condition in its time, but do not think you will help us by pushing matters before the time. A few good souls in the past 18 years thought we were too slow, but time has proven that our work has been ample for every emergency. We did not do some things that we were urged to do, but the law was fulfilled without it, and it is plain now to see had we launched out according to some of the views expressed, we would have been as a ship upon the great ocean without sails or rudder.

Under the law of Stake organization there is to be fulfilled the further law of special consecrations of surplus properties. Every man, woman and child should step forward to fulfill this then. One, two, or a few dozen will not suffice. The application is general and it will require a general compliance. Are we ready and willing to occupy in this? It may be asked. What is the church going to do? Are you going to open store-houses; set apart inheritances; have all things common, or what? My answer is, we shall fulfill the law as the Lord directs. We are not testing Him, but He is testing us. The first step is to arrange with the Bishops this "first consecration," each to arrange with the Bishop or agent in his own Stake or district, or with the Bishop of the church and all under one rule and one system. This rule or system is that outlined in the revelations and directly outlined by the Bishopric and First Presidency of the church with the counsel and advice of the Twelve and all other officers of the church where it is practical to get their advice and counsel. If these first officers, who are made responsible, fail to give the proper direction and counsel, then the Lord will place others in their places who will.

It occurs to me that there is perfect safety in such an order as this; responsibility of action must rest somewhere and what place is better than upon those who will suffer if they do not move rightly.

We go to our present work confident and trustful that the Lord will look after His own. We also trust the Saints. I believe they will accomplish finally their part of the work and with this confidence we may fully trust that the blessings of the Lord will continue with all.

Faithfully yours,
E. L. KELLEY,
Presiding Bishop.

District treasurer's report was read and accepted, and is as follows: Balance on hand last report, $25.43; October conference collections, $38.78; total expenditures, $64.21; balance in treasury, $20.00.

Secretary's financial report was read and accepted and is as follows: Expenses for postage, stationary, etc., $16.72; received from October conference, $10.00, balance due secretary, $6.72.

Bishop's agent's report was read, audited and found correct. Officers for the ensuing term were then elected as follows: Bishop's agent, R. C. Evans, London, Ontario; president of district, R. C. Longhurst, Vanessa, Ontario; vice president of district, John H. Taylor, Garafaxa, Ontario; secretary of district, John L. Burger, St. Thomas, Ontario; treasurer of district, Samuel Pope, London, Ontario.

Resolved, That the next conference convene with the Saints of the Ellice branch at Rostock, Ontario, September 28, 29, and 30, 1901.

Moved and carried that district secretary issue a priest's license to Bro. Amos Smith.

The following petition from Religians was read:—To the London district conference assembled at Arthur, we the undersigned committee, having been appointed by a promiscuous assembly of the Religians, met 9:30 a. m., July 15th, do hereby petition said conference that they grant the several locals of this district the privilege of organizing a district association, and that they grant us time during this conference to take such action, and suggest from 1:00 to 2:15 p. m. Sunday.

The matter of church incorporation was again brought up and discussed, and committee reported favorable progress. Business meeting then adjourned.

Saints met at 8 a. m. Sunday for prayer and testimony meeting. Elder R. C. Evans presiding. During this service, thirty-nine testimonies and seven prayers were offered and nine parts of hymns were sung. The Lord spoke in the gift of tongues through Sr. Ada Pycok, admonishing the Saints to be faithful and diligent in serving Him, and He would open the windows of heaven and shower blessings down upon them, that in their present condition, they were not able to receive. Also rebuked some of them for their pride and hardness of heart, and told Saints if they were faithful their sick should be healed through the administration of the elders. Elder R. C. Evans spoke in the gift of tongues and interpretation, calling Brn. Walter Bennett, Clark Russell, Douglas W. Cameron and Nathan Overholt to offices as elders, the last named to act as a counselor to the district president. Elder Geo. Hienly spoke in the gift of tongues and interpretation to the president of Canada mission, Elder R. C. Evans, telling him if he would continue faithful the Lord had a far greater work for him to perform, and to Walter Bennett, telling him his prayers were heard and if he would consecrate his life to the Lord's service, that the Lord would bless him in all his labors and enable him to do a mighty work. Also spoke to the Saints, telling them to live pure and upright before Him, and pay their tithing and give heed to the teachings of the ministry and they would receive great blessings.

Business opened again at 8:00 a. m. Monday. Minutes of conference read and approved. Conference collections amounted to $34.23, expenses were to be paid and balance to go to district treasurer.

Resolved, That revelations of Sunday morning be accepted and the four brethren who were called be ordained.

Moved and carried that a hearty vote of thanks be tendered Arthur branch for the kindness and hospitality shown to Saints at conference.

Moved and carried that all committees and officers of conference be released with a vote of thanks.

Resolved, That the district hold a two days' meeting in Stratford, the time of meeting to be left to president of Canada mission.

Two persons were baptized during this conference.

Moved and carried that conference adjourn to meet again as pre-arranged.

HOPKINS.—At Gaylord, Kansas, July 9, 1901, Mary Norma, infant daughter of Bro. and Sr. Wm. Hopkins, born September 29, 1900. Funeral services conducted by Elder L. F. Johnson, at the residence of J. D. Cook.

EVERETS.—At the home of her daughter, Sr. M. A. Turner, 402 Summer St., Mount Washington, Pittsburg, Penn., July 4, 1901, Sr. Mary Everts, aged 93 years. She was born in Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, and was a member of the first organization, was well acquainted with the prophet and was living in Nauvoo when he and his brother Hyrum were so cruelly murdered. The sister has been a member of the Reorganization a number of years, and has been afflicted and blind for nearly twenty years. To her, death came as a happy release. One son and one daughter survive her. Funeral sermon by Elder F. G. Pitt.

"Thou art gone to the grave: we will not deplore thee; Since Christ was thy Ransom, thy Guardian, thy Guide: He gave thee, He took thee, and He will restore thee." For death has no sting, since the Savior hath died.

ENCOURAGEMENT gives backbone to effort.

A TOUCH of gospel makes the whole world akin.

THE earth was made for man, not man for the earth.

WEALTH doesn't create half as many classes as character does.

GOD so loved the world that He restored the gospel to earth.

WE are ashamed, not of what we are, but of what people think we are.

NOW the earth gets man, but in the sweet by and by man will get the earth.

THERE is a world of difference between intelligent criticising and common fault finding.

GOD uses the weak things of the earth, but after he has used them they don't remain weak.

A CITY is great, not by how many mansions it contains, but how few hovels there are to see.

ABOUT the only way to get rid of some faults that have clung to us for years is to dynamite them away.

IN these rapid 20th century times, we wonder why the ancients wondered at the Seven Wonders.

THERE be might in a mite of dynamite, and a wee bit of love doth more good than many mighty scoldings.

A FOOT rule is just one size, but there are millions of sizes it is not. Error is always in the broad way, the many ways.

SOME people's eyes are built on the plan of an enlarging camera. They magnify the defects they see in others, but with the lens turned inward a great reduction takes place.

BARNACLES.

The "Great Eastern" had tons of mussels growing on her iron hull; three hundred tons of barnacles! Soft ones, hard ones, large and small ones—barnacles galore. This mighty ship was a colossal failure from a financial standpoint; it took so much coal to feed her there was no profit left. She had a checkered career, punctuated with mishaps and smashups, until finally she was beached and sold for the iron in her. But she was BIG, and plenty of room for barnacles to cling to—three hundred tons of them. Large things, large men, large movements, all offer a fine opportunity for attack, for the accumulation of barnacles of some form. A tiny parasite enters the body of a caterpillar, and grows and propagates its species, and kills the caterpillar. Barnacles are dangerous! They hinder the onward movement of movements. They annoy and destroy.

THE ATTACK ON CHRIST AND HIS GREAT CHURCH
"The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." Of course there would be an attack made on such a great character as Christ, and on his church. The electric light, hung out on the yard arm, shining in the blackness of night, attracts, in swarms, the bugs of the air. It is a light to the feet of man, and an object of attractive attack to every vain and foolish tramp bug that is winging his way in the hours of night.

The church went to pieces, the beautiful ship, headed for the port of heaven, sunk under the load of barnacles. The floating debris was seized as being the whole ship, and barnacles, with the voice of men, cried out, "Io here! Io here! here is the great ship," and the mighty sound, from the accumulation of the debris was called BABYLON, and confusion was multiplied.

THE BEAUTIFUL SHIP AND HOW IT WAS BUILT
"He is the captain of our salvation." "I have given Him to be a leader and a commander unto the people." And what a conglomeration of interpretation is placed on the orders of this captain!

And God has set some in the church (ship); first, apostles; secondarily, prophets; thirdly, teachers; after that, miracles; then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diversities of tongues. That is the way this beautiful ship of heaven was built and commanded. Where is it? It was large enough to carry all humanity that wanted to get on board, and safe enough, under the direction of its captain, to land its load on the shores of paradise. Where is it? "We don't need that kind of a ship any longer, been done away with, one built of pastors, evangelists, etc., will carry us safely; a spar or a piece of timber is all we need now."

The orders of the captain were:

Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth [the gospel], and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not [the gospel], shall be damned.

And these signs shall follow them that believe [the gospel]: In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

THE PIOUS PARASITE AND HIS DEADLY WORK

Self appointed officers have changed and so confused the commands of the captain, that, with centuries of years for study, there is a greater difference than ever among those who profess to believe and obey, as to what the commands of the captain really mean. Dismantled ships are sailing the sea, commanded by men who give orders that are directly opposite to those commanding ships sailing for the same port, and by the same chart.

What should we call the variety of specialties that have been fastened on the christian religion, but barnacles? One saying of Christ or the apostles is separated and made a specialty, emphasized and enlarged upon, until its devotees are made to believe they alone are advocating the most important command of God. As the gospel of Christ has six basic principles, taught throughout the record of Christ and his apostles, it can be laid down as an infallible rule, that any organization everlastingly harping on the few specialties they have adopted, are not teaching the whole gospel of Christ, they have simply fastened barnacles on the christian religion.

A NEW SHIP NEEDED BUILT AFTER OLD PLAN

The times demanded a church really representing Christ and His gospel. An organization having authority of God. One under the direction of the captain, Jesus Christ. One clear of barnacles fastened by human hands, "teaching for doctrine the commandments of men."

The church was again organized, by divine command, after the pattern of apostles, prophets, etc. The gospel ship was ready for passengers. In fourteen years she gathered over one hundred and fifty thousand souls on board, then her heaven authorized steersman was slain; usurpation and mutiny took place, and God rejected that people as a church, but accepted many as individuals. On this rejected "Great Western" were found, after many days, numerous and varied barnacles, but the greatest of these was named POLYGAMY.

God gathered the accepted of His people, placed them on the beautiful ship Zion he had provided, and invites humanity on board to sail up the narrow way that leads to the haven of rest.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. Hilliard seems to know the benefit to be derived from having the church literature in the homes of the Saints. He sends in orders right along.

A. J. SHORES, Comanche, I. T., wishes to know the address of Elder W. H. Smart. Bro. Shores wants some preaching done there by any of the elders passing that way.

BRO. JOHN DAVIS, of Tacoma, Washington, advises us there is a man claiming to be a member of the Denver branch, making a practice of borrowing money from the Saints. He is small, of Jewish descent. Look out for him, and any other stranger, claiming to be a Saint, going around borrowing money.

RICHES are earnestly desired by all; even the millionaire would like to be a billionaire. That which is accounted the riches of this world are like the mortal part of man—they perish with time. But the imperishable riches of Christ are offered to every one upon the unchanging and eternal, yet impartial, terms of the gospel. Who will have them?

HAPPINESS, how many seek it, in how many various ways, and how elusive it often is. There is only one absolutely satisfying way in which to obtain it, and that is found in walking the "Narrow Way," the "Royal Road." There is no disappointment to be found there. But how very few there are who are willing to make the sacrifices necessary to attain it.

It is the business of the adversary to embellish and enlarge upon the failings and shortcomings of God's children. It is the work of the Holy Spirit to enable us to exercise charity for others, and to assist us in subduing and overcoming our own weaknesses. Which is the nobler pursuit? Whose side are YOU on in this work?

THE downward road is generally represented to be both rapid and easy, which is doubtless true of those who are CARRIED. But those who have toiled up the precipitous and rocky trails to the lofty summit of Pikes Peak in Colorado, have found that the descent is much more arduous and distressing. So when a well educated and active conscience accompanies the wrong doer, the broad way is often found troublesome and hard to travel. Happily the upward road, while sometimes toilsome and wearisome, is most comforting and satisfying in that which is to be attained at the summit.

Extracts from Letters.

W. S. STRICKLIN, Weir City, Kansas:

We met with the Saints yesterday and had a very good prayer meeting. If any of the elders come this way give us a call. We live on S. Poke street, three blocks from Main.

J. S. HOMMES, Chico, California, sending for the ENSIGN for Sr. F. Fulton, writes:

This is one of the new sisters recently added to the church in the vicinity of Chico through the efforts of Bro. A. B. Phillips. The work here is on the ascendancy; the prospects encouraging for more additions to the church in the near future.

ELDER WM. SPARLING, writing from Leeds, North Dakota, says:

Am busy as a bee. I find out the gospel has power in it as in days of old. The scattered ones are coming in by twos and threes. The College fund is being liberally subscribed to. Please tell the ENSIGN readers of North and South Dakota, I want to hear from more.

SR. ADDIE ANDERSON, Livingston, Wis., in renewing for the ENSIGN, writes:

We would be glad to have any of the elders call and hold some meetings here, as there is a great need for work to be done at this place; they will find a welcome with us.

GEO. W. HICKS, Mooreland, Michigan, writes:

Am here all alone; don't know as there is a Saint nearer than Grand Rapids, 35 miles away. If there are any in this locality, would like to get acquainted. Any elder coming this way will be welcomed.

WILL E. LARUE, Greenwood, New York, July 19:

The debate between Bro. Sheldon and Rev. Copeland is coming along nicely. Large crowds and excellent interest is manifest. As usual, Spaulding's romance, false stories and abuse is the stock in trade. If opposition is the life of trade I think we will come out all O. K. here. The people are beginning to see that there are two sides even to the "Mormon question," and slang and abuse are not sufficient to down it in their way of looking at it. May right and truth prevail.

BRO. CHAS. P. FAUL, CLARKSDALE, Missouri, July 13:

We are experiencing the passing through a severe drought at present, which will greatly hinder making our coming reunion, August 16-25, a success. Water for stock is getting low, new wells are being sunk. Pastures are burning up, in fact, should fire start the whole country would burn over. We are praying for the good Lord to so control the elements to give us a soaking rain. The wheat crop here was good, in fact, the best we have had for years, hay good, potatoes and gardens failure, hence everything in these lines will come high for those that will be compelled to buy.

The reunion committee may declare the meeting off this year for the above reasons. There would be danger of the camp being burnt as the blue grass is twelve inches high, but very dry in the pasture and ground where the reunion would be held. We are hopeful for a good rain in time.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Another good rain last Saturday night. The heat has somewhat decreased.

Elder Wallace Robinson will be the speaker on Sunday morning.

Several of the brethren were fortunate enough to secure Oklahoma claims.

Horace B. and Jesse A. Roberts will be baptized in the font at the church next Sunday at 1:45 p. m.

There will be a meeting of the Stake high council next Monday evening at the church.

Sr. Harriett Vernon left Monday for Australia, and will stop off at England, en route, to visit relatives there.

The little son of Mr. and Sr. M. Loveland was blessed at last Sunday's sacramental service by Bishop R. May and Elder C. G. Gould.

The quarterly business meeting of the branch is to be held the first Monday in September, the object being to hold it just previous to the Stake conference.

Bro. Wm. H. Fuller departed Monday for his new mission field, Chicago, where he is to labor during August, and then he will go on to Detroit, Michigan, for the balance of the conference year.

Don't forget the basket meeting at Chelsea Park next Sunday, August 11th. Good speakers will be there to make the preaching services interesting, and a good, social time can be expected in addition to the other attractions.

Some of the people here with garden room seem to be using the old adage "if you do not at first succeed try, try again," as many are making garden the second time this season. The growers say there was a large demand for seed right after the rain.

You, who are scattered where there are no branches, and those who are in small branches of the church, just imagine what an inspiring sight it is to see about one hundred bright, cheery young people gather in a meeting, as we had at young people's prayer meeting Tuesday eve., all Latter Day Saints. Great things will be expected of these young folks in the future; the young are the hope of the church.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Since last week's showers the weather has been cool and pleasant, with occasional breezes which suggest the change of the season. More rain is needed, however, as the earth is getting dry again, and fall gardens will not be a success without more rain soon.

Elder E. A. Steadman came in from his mission field last week for a short stay at home.

Elder George Montague was the guest of his daughter, Sr. Arema Thompson, over Sunday.

We are glad to be able to inform the friends of Bro. Duncan Campbell, that he is rapidly recovering from the accident in which he suffered the loss of his thumb. The surgeon removed the stitches Saturday and pronounced the wound as doing nicely.

Elder H. N. Snively is at present prevented from doing missionary work on account of being called upon to nurse a pet, in the form of a felon on his right hand. We trust that it will not prove serious, and that he will not be hindered long from attending to the Master's business.

Services were quite well attended here last Sunday and gratifying reports come from other meetings held in the regions round about.

Sunday pulpits were occupied by Lamoni brethren as follows: At Davis City, Pres. John Smith; Pleasanton, Elder J. C. Clapp; Evergreen, Elder R. M. Elvin, and Bro. J. P. Anderson in the interest of the Sunday School; Greenville, Elders F. M. Smith and C. H. Lake; Lamoni, Elders J. R. Lambert and George Derry. C. C. August 6.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 So. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m.; Central Branch, 3111 Cottage Grove Ave., Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2458 State St.

Bro. John D. White, of Independence, visited us on Sunday, preaching at the Central branch in the morning, and on the West side at the evening service. We feel grateful for small favors, but still wish he could come more often.

Sr. Grace Webster and mother, Sr. Williams, leave on Tuesday for Denver. We hope the trip will bring the desired change, and that Sr. Grace may be returned to us with renewed strength.

Bro. and Sr. Penney are under the trial of sickness. Their little girl, Pearl Terry Penney, was very low Sunday evening. Bro. White and Good were called to administer after the evening service. We are not informed at this writing as to her condition since.

Srs. Sherman and Sanderson have returned from extended visits with relatives and friends.

Those who are left in the city during the summer will be glad when all these vacations are over.

There were two baptisms on the South side yesterday, and five last Sunday, so Chicago is still working, if slowly, at least surely, and though the people come in one at a time, our ranks are gradually increasing, and we know that God is caring for the honest in heart.

NOVICE.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. John D. White enlivened our prayer service on Wednesday night by his presence and testimony. He accompanied us to the hospital the following day to administer to Mrs. Hommie who was severely burned some time ago. Bro. John has the spirit of go with him—well that is peculiar to nearly all "Johns."

Bishop C. J. Hunt is in our city for a few days, and preached morning and evening at the church.

Bro. Coventry Archibald kindly filled our appointment at South St. Joseph mission, while we were occupying at the Aspey mission, where we began a series of meetings. We had an excellent service with good spirit and attention and singing. One of our young sister missionaries was there. Elder Best was in charge of the service.

Sr. Ida Pearson came up from "that town on the Kaw river" to enjoy a few days among Saints and relatives in our city. She looks well kept, and the usual expression of happiness is seen in her countenance.

Sr. Russell Archibald and her mother, Sr. Krahl, passed through our city en route to St. Louis, the home of the former.

Sr. G. W. Best and daughter Pearl are on a protracted visit at and near Montrose, Iowa, among relatives and old time acquaintances.

Bro. "Welly" Johnson has about perfected some patents which promise to be of great use and value—a water motor, an air motor, and a rotary pump are among his inventions. The water motor will soon be put to a thorough test. We learn a company has been formed and incorporated to manufacture the machines. We wish "Welly" and the company great success. They are all good Saints.

Sr. Maria Brown, of Cuba, Kansas, called on us for counsel and administration. We did what we could and left her to the tender care of a loving Father. She was recently baptized by Prof. L. G. Gurwell. As you read this breathe a prayer for Sr. Brown.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services, Wednesday evening, prayer service, Sunday, Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services, Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Actually we have had a little rain, and we have been very thankful. Today is cool, has been cloudy, and we hope for more rain.

Appointments yesterday: Cheltenham, F. A. Smith, evening service; T. J. Elliott, at Belleville; Ivor Davis, at Oak Hill, evening service.

Sr. Maude Anderson left Saturday afternoon for Keokuk, via boat route. She will undoubtedly enjoy her well earned vacation.

Bro. and Sr. Christenson and family were to leave Saturday evening for the northern Lakes, to be gone some little time.

Srs. Tena Archibald and Emma Dawson returned from St. Joe Sunday.

Bro. S. A. and H. C. Burgess left Sunday noon for the Buffalo Exposition.

Bro. Russell Archibald very smilingly informed us that his "family" arrived Sunday morning. Sr. Krahl accompanied Sr. Pearl and will probably remain a month or two.

Bro. Alex Gillespie, formerly of Allegheny, Pennsylvania, who has been living here for some months, departed from this life Saturday afternoon last. The family at Allegheny were notified by wire.

Splendid attention was given by the Sunday School as Sr. Lizzie Patterson reviewed the lesson yesterday morning. Fair attendance. We noted Sr. Edna Peat Fath was again teaching her class. Sr. Fath has been sojourning in Lamoni with her parents the past few weeks.

A splendid sacramental service, presided over by Bro. Russell Archibald and N. N. Cooke; three prayers and fourteen or fifteen testimonies, with numerous verses of song, made the time pass all too quickly.

Bro. J. D. White was in the city for a brief visit; attended the Religio prayer service Friday night. Understand he left Saturday evening for Chicago, not being able to find here what he was seeking.

Sr. Johnson's funeral occurred last Tuesday afternoon; the services were in charge of Bro. F. A. Smith.

Our district conference was postponed from the 21st of September until the 28th, by vote of the branch, on account of the Stake conference to be held at Holden, Missouri, on that date, September 21.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH. 2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. E. Winn, pastor, 2305 Belmontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 2417 Prospect; telephone 1306. Missionary in charge, J. D. White, 609 Main St.; telephone 1353.

Since the refreshing rains everything seems cheerful; full houses at meetings, and a joyful spirit seems to prevail with all Saints. Our meetings were all that could be well desired. The Sunday School was up to its best. Preaching at 11 a. m. by Elder A. J. Gillen, assisted by Pres. Winn. Prayer meeting in charge of Bro. Pickering and Gillen. A good spirit prevailed, and the Saints were edified and felt blessed. Pres. Winn preached at 8 p. m.

Three new converts of East Mission were baptized by Priest W. O. Hands and confirmed by Elders Winn, Pickering and Gillen.

Bro. W. H. Pease gospelized at the tent with good interest; F. C. Warnky at Holliday; A. J. Gillen in the evening at Northeast mission.

Pres. J. D. White is making a visit to St. Louis.

Sr. H. Ashbaugh has returned from a visit with Saints and friends at Stewartsville.

Sr. Tessie Williamson, of Independence, visited Sr. Mary Warnky last week.

There will be no meetings at our church next Sunday; most all Saints and friends are intending to go to Chelsea Park and attend the union meeting of all the branches of this city. An enjoyable time is anticipated.

All last week thousands of people witnessed nightly, at Troost Park, the moving, life-like pictures of the life of Christ. It is certainly the wonder of the age; the pictures represent Him from the cradle to the ascension. Almost a death stillness prevails with the great throng of people from beginning to the end.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Folsom Sts., Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Our Sunday School held its regular session Sunday morning at 9:45. There was a good attendance, and much interest taken in the lesson and exercises. At 11 a. m. Bishop C. A. Parkin delivered quite an interesting discourse to an appreciative audience. In the evening John A. Saxe was the speaker. There was good attendance at all the services.

On Wednesday, the 17th, Bishop Parkin united in marriage Bro. J. Wesley Parks and Miss Ruby Carter. May happiness attend them.

Our prayer meeting Wednesday evening was enjoyed by all; the time was profitably spent in prayer and testimony.

Sr. Mark H. Forscutt is here; she has recently arrived from Reno, Nevada; she is present at all our meetings.

Bro. J. A. Saxe's family have been spending a few weeks at Irvington, but are home again. Their voices are a great addition to our singing.

Sr. Ella Lytle, our Sunday School superintendent, is camping in Niles canyon.

Our city is filled with members of the "Epworth League." They have assembled here from all over the union in their grand convention. Thousands of them are scattered all over the city. They seem to be earnestly engaged in their work. It seems too bad that they cannot see and understand the truth. Our city is nicely decorated and illuminated for them. And while they meet in their great assembly and make such a magnificent display, we meet in our little church and humbly preach the gospel to an interested few.

May God's cause prosper. GEO. S. LINCOLN.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

CENTRALIA, Kan., July 27.

Editor Ensign:—I have just arrived here from district tent at Wetmore, which is now in charge of Bro. Roberts and Beebe. To me the tokens of success for tent work are quite flattering this year. I am fully persuaded that the hand of the Lord is with this method of reaching the people when properly conducted. I do not believe that all ministers are adapted for tent work, but I feel to thank God that He has servants who are qualified for this particular work. Already the brethren are making a good impression at Wetmore, which is a new place for our work, and, with a little time and means, honest souls will, I believe, be gathered in. Let not the Saints in the district be slow in rallying to their support by sending money, for it takes money to carry on the Lord's work. How encouraging when one branch president wrote me, sending donations, "when you want more, be sure and let us know." God bless such cheerful givers. How great will be their reward for well doing. Bro. Roberts remarked the other day that if the Saints would furnish the fuel, he would furnish the wind. While we had the tent up at Hoyt we were obliged to ask the world for assistance, and received in response the sum of $3.75.

I am giving my attention to the reading and study of the Book of Mormon during my spare moments. How plain and simple is the fulness of the gospel as therein contained: what rich diet it affords to souls hungering after righteousness, yet how deplorably neglected is its reading and study in the homes of the Saints. I know now of only one Sunday School in the district that has a Book of Mormon class. This is by no means a good showing for church development in the study of the books. While I believe the Quarterlies are all right in their place, why not also have advanced classes in Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants studies. May the day hasten when such will be the case. I am convinced of the fact that, as a people, we are by far too ignorant concerning the contents of these inspired records. Before now I have been thrown among the families of other churches, and have been agreeably surprised to find there the family altar erected as it was with good Cornelius of old, and a portion of the holy word read every day. I tell you, that to my mind, this is a terrible rebuke to many of the Saints, the professed people of God. Instead of being a light to the world, the world is a light to us in many instances. Let us, then, shake off every lethargy that seems to bind us, hands and feet, from doing every known duty which God has enjoined upon us, ere we can rise in the scale of spirituality.

How cunning the devil is in making us believe we have no time to do this or that. How readily we find time to do our own will in preference to doing the will of our heavenly Father. This work requires perseverance and determination to do the right under all circumstances; live higher and holier lives, as becometh children of a holy God.

Many stay away from meetings on account of the heat or cold, when they wouldn't for a moment think to stay away from field or shop. What the church needs is busy workers in order that they may save themselves and others too. Let us take for ensample the tried and true of other ages and climes, and not be a whit behind in serving our God as we should, in the beauty of holiness, in the way of all truth revealed in the revelations of God.

FRANK J. PIERCE.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., July 20.

Dear Ensign:—In spite of the heat we are trying to keep in motion. Bro. R. Wight and the writer have been laboring at Honey Creek, preaching every other night with increasing interest. Despite the heat and it being harvest, good crowds were out and the attention excellent. We were invited on Thursday night to a private house to preach, where we found a number of anxious souls waiting to hear the truth. The writer spoke informally with good liberty. It seems that nothing will keep the people at home. We are encouraged with the outlook here, and think there will be an ingathering of souls soon. One has already asked for baptism and more will follow.

August 3d we begin a two days' meeting in a grove on Honey Creek. We anticipate a good time. A cordial invitation is extended to the branches and all others to attend. Bring well filled baskets and enjoy a spiritual feast as well. Stop at Honey Creek station; grove less than a mile from station. Bro. Chambers is at Atlantic; we expect him to be with us.

We expect to baptize a noble woman the 4th Sunday, near Grandma Bardsley's place, and others are expected. Bro. D. Parish favored us with a sermon at Honey Creek last Sunday. He is in the work soul and body. Bro. F. M. Cooper will preach at Crescent Sunday mornings during the summer, and at Council Bluffs at night. So the good work goes on, thanks to God, the giver of all good. The writer goes to Underwood tomorrow, to preach, and then across the country to join Bro. Wight on the Pigeon creek where we hope to establish preaching points at a number of new places. Crops are suffering badly, and all are praying for rain.

Nothing is needed here now but a united effort on the part of the Saints, a godly life before the world, and a desire to support the work in a financial way—live in harmony and love. Have the promise of some new subscribers after harvest.

May God bless every interest of this work in all the earth is my prayer.

In gospel bonds,

CHICAGO, Ill., July 29.

Editor Ensign:—Another successful Rally Day service was held at the Wilmington, Illinois, Sunday School, yesterday, July 28th. The writer met with the officers and teachers of the school Saturday evening, and after explaining the object of our Sunday School association, and the benefits to be derived as a result of membership therein, arrangements were completed for the exercises that were to be had on the following day. This school was organized about one year ago, and is being very nicely superintended by Sr. N. Campbell.

In addition to the organ, a cello and a violin rendered the music very beautiful. Sr. Robson is the organist, Sr. Jean Allott played the cello, and Bro. Elmer Kahler, the violin; each one performed their part admirably. The program was composed of songs, recitations, reading and a Sunday School object lesson. Elders A. J. Keek and Henry Southwick, of the missionary force, were present and added to the interest.

At the close of the meeting a resolution was passed by the unanimous vote of the school, making application for membership in our district association. Well may the North-eastern Illinois district feel proud of this addition to our number. With the Barb City school, of DeKalb, and the Sandwich school, and this last addition, we will have three good schools added to our number. We are in hopes of getting the Ladd school to fall in line with our onward movement by the time of our convention, which will convene in Chicago, September 6th. While at Wilmington we listened to an interesting sermon that was delivered by Bro. Keek at the morning service; the undersigned occupied the pulpit at the evening service.

The spirit of unity, love, and an earnest zeal for the great work, was made manifest on the part of all, both those who are in the church and those who are investigating. Bro. Southwick will remain for a few days and do some preaching; and before he leaves will baptize at least two, and we are in hopes that others will also take the important step. The Saints and friends at this place have not forgotten the former missionaries that labored here, as we heard many very kindly mentions of the names of Brn. H. E. Moler, J. B. Roush and F. G. Pitt.

May the Lord continue to bless the Saints and friends of Wilmington in their efforts to spread the gospel seed.

In bonds,

F. M. PRYR.

DICKEY, Idaho, July.

Dear Ensign:—Since our district conference, June 8th and 9th, Bro. A. J. Layland and I have been traveling together, Brn. Albertson and Wight accompanying us as far as Bliss, Idaho.

En route there from Malad we held meetings at different points in Cassia county, and at Hagerman, Lincoln county. Saints and friends treated us kindly and at the latter place some of the Saints are anxiously awaiting the pleasure of the missionary in charge to organize them into a branch.

At Carey, on Little Wood river, Blaine county, the Mormon bishop gave us the meeting house two nights. We were kindly cared for by Sr. Ward who is making her presence felt for good among the people here. We hope it may ever be so.

On Silver Creek a band of "Followers" from Oklahoma have settled and by energetic effort have made some accessions to their numbers. They are very boastful of the "signs following," proving their faith by taking up serpents, so they say. Their presiding officer, Apostle Smith, is reputed to talk in tongues; but in two meetings I attended he used principally a tongue of slander, abusing and ridiculing other churches and preachers including "Joe Smith," who he denounced as a "fraud, false prophet," etc., "falling to teach foot washing, and practice the holy kiss, unless it was among the ladies." I noticed, however, that he didn't slight the ladies. I promised them to try and return when time permitted and defend the work of Joseph Smith, also to examine their pretensions. Smith refused any discussion, quoting as excuse Romans 1:29. I suggested that "they who live in glass houses ought not to throw stones." However we were promised a hearing if we returned.

At Arco Bro. Herbert Jones' family treated us royally, and the 14th inst. two of their sons and a daughter-in-law made covenant with the Master, Bro. Layland baptizing them, and at confirmation and sacrament service a general determination to move forward was expressed. Bishop King, of Lost River postoffice, gave us use of their hall two nights, but attendance was small.

Yesterday we drove to this place, taking dinner with Mr. D. P. Wells, of Houston, en route. He was anxious we should return and preach there, and suggested that he might send for some Josephite friends and help start the work there in that way.

We found Bro. Wm. Bradshaw and family in this, Thousand Spring valley, where he has lived about twelve years, rearing a large family and establishing a reputation far and near as a christian and able defender of the Josephite philosophy. His nearest railroad point at present is Blackfoot, one hundred and twenty miles distant, but the survey of the road that is being rapidly built from that place, west, runs within two miles of his place.

We have traveled something over five hundred miles since leaving Malad, and expect to continue together to Blackfoot, when Bro. Layland will perhaps drop me off and continue his journey alone, visiting some other points on his way home, adding perhaps a couple hundred miles more to his drive.

Our labors thus far have been productive of good and we trust more fruit will be manifest.

In bonds,

WALLACEBURG, Ont.

Dear Ensign:—It has been some time now since I have seen anything in the comforting pages of your paper from this place. We are a little band of covenant makers, and some of us are trying to prove worthy of the name we bear. If we would all live according to our desires we would be worthy of the spiritual blessings of God.

Sunday, the 14th, we were pleased to see the smiling face of Elder Green and daughter, Sr. Mary, who came in time to take part in the Sunday School. We were also comforted in listening to an encouraging address by Sr. Mary, who is secretary of our district Sunday School association. In the evening Elder Green preached on the coming forth of the Book of Mormon, which was very interesting, as some of us have not heard many sermons on that subject. We were also made to rejoice a short time ago by hearing some grand, soul inspiring sermons from one of God's chosen servants, Elder A. C. Barmore, who stopped here on his way to Forest to do tent work. Many wished he could have stopped a while with us. I don't wish to murmur, but I can't help thinking that the admonition given to Peter, "Feed my sheep," is neglected in these last days. Many times the elders have been sent to preach in branches, who are called to preach to the world, therefore the sheep are neglected and are still hungering. If this happens to meet the notice of Bro. T. A. Phillips, of St. Thomas, there are some here patiently waiting to hear him break the bread of life to hungry Saints.

In hopes of eternal life,

MRS. LIZZIE CAMPBELL.

ANN P. O., Mo., July 16.

Dear Ensign:—We are still striving to stand in defence of the "old ensign." In some places the people are not disposed to take very much notice of us. But we keep pressing on, hoping the time is not far distant when the artillery at Springfield can be turned loose on the people of this south Missouri district. Pop guns are all right to keep on the frontier in the brush, but what can we do without the artillery and wheel horses. The cry all over the district is to send on the "wheel horses."

The people in this country are looking awfully blue because of the drouth. Crops are burned up. Land agents will not have a very fat time this year. People are pulling out of this region by the wagon loads. Its a difficult matter to get people to consider the gospel when their daily bread is not in sight. We have been busy most of the time, preaching every night to the few. We had an interesting time at West Plains, preaching on the street to a large crowd in front of the court-house. Many of the business men and county officials heard us. We distributed many tracts.

We had a pleasant sojourn with the Pomona Saints. While there I pulled off my coat and commenced (my maiden effort) electioneering for the college. Though the Saints are poor and times hard, they subscribed over twelve dollars in behalf of Graceland. "Long live the college." I have been convinced that the college debts should be paid. While in the Pomona branch we opened fire on the citizens of Pomona for the first time, in the school-house. Some interest was manifest. The work should be continued. We met old Grandma Burnett, who will be eighty years old here next birthday. She is an old pioneer in this latter day work, and loves to dwell upon the gospel theme. (Grandma is afflicted but happy and cheerful. It's a consolation to know that the gospel can do so much for people.

We have had some experience in this country with what is known as the "mountain boomers." It's horrible to think of. So far we have managed to escape. Bro. Davis caught one by the tail and commenced to look pale, so I reminded him of his "best friend," and we started down the hill behind fleet-footed Dan.

At the present writing we are holding a union meeting with a Campbellite preacher in an arbor. History deals in surprises and paradoxes quite as startling as this.

Saints, remember us in your prayers. We are trying to look on the "sunny side."

In bonds,

A. M. BAKER.

EONO, I. T., July 15.

Dear Ensign:—Since General Conference I have been doing considerable preaching, but at the present am not doing very much as I have to take care of my harvest, but I think after about two weeks I can get at my Father's business again.

I have been wonderfully blessed in all of my labor, and I feel strengthened and encouraged in this great latter day work. The closer that I live in compliance with the commands of our heavenly Father the more light and liberty that I enjoy.

Myself and Bro. Hillen just closed a ten days' arbor meeting with fairly good attendance. I preached there again last night with a large attendance: the arbor would not hold all the people. Latter Day Saint preaching is at a premium in this part of God's vineyard: the territory needs more preachers; Bro. Riley and myself are doing nearly all of the preaching that is being done now.

I administered baptism to a promising young man yesterday, and after preaching last night another request for baptism for this afternoon.

Your brother,
H. J. THURMAN.

PITTSBURY, Ill., July 10.

Editor Ensign:—In justice to "Doctor" Dowie, will you allow me space in your columns to compare his report of his Elijah speech with that part reported in "Jots by the Wayside," in ENSIGN of July 4th?

"Jots" says, "I am Elijah the prophet, who appeared first as Elijah himself, second as John the Baptist, and who now comes in me, the restorer of all things. Elijah was a prophet, John was a preacher, but I combine in myself the attributes of prophet, priest and ruler over men. Gaze on me then, I say it fearlessly. Make the most of it, you wretches in ecclesiastical garb. I am the prophesied of by Malachi." Leaves of Healing, edited by Dowie, reports it thus: "Elijah's first manifestation was that of prophet, in the reign of Ahab, king of Israel. His second manifestation was also that of priest, as John the Baptist was. But of Elijah's final manifestation all the Scriptures had said that the physical, psychical and spiritual embodiment of Elijah, must take the form of prophet, priest and ruler of the world. I say it fearlessly, that by the revelation of God I am, and shall be, that."

"Jots" says, "I will take no counsel in my methods of government, nor will I ever rest till all other forms of government are driven from the earth; God must be placed foremost in the constitution. The government of the people, by the people, and for the people is mere twaddle." The nearest utterances to these in the Leaves of Healing report are: "I take my commission from God. * * * I never asked my wife, nor my overseers, nor my people, what they think of this. I have never consulted with flesh and blood as to my making this declaration. The only question with me is this: What does God think? * * * The day has come when the God of Elijah will tear down the altars of Baal in every Masonic lodge throughout the world. The day has come when the God of John the Baptist will tear down the thrones of adulterous Herods, and hurl adulterous princes to the depths of well merited infamy. * * * This I preach and this is my work. * * * The prophet of God must establish the principles of Theocracy. Democracy has failed. The government 'of the people, by the people, and for the people' is simply an embodiment of selfishness. * * * The only true principle of government laid down in the Word of God is the government of the people by God, and for God—a Theocracy. * * * While I am loyal to the flag under which we stand, and would countenance no rebellion nor any violence, I at the same time declare that in the constitution of this nation the name of God must be placed, and the authority of God must be recognized."

"Jots" reports: "Listen to the first message from heaven through your prophet, pay your tithes and offerings into the Lord's storehouse or you will be damned." Leaves of Healing reports: "Unless you pay your tithes and offerings into the storehouse of God you are a nation of thieves. [quotes Malachi.] Will a man rob God? Yet you rob the * * * even this whole nation."

Mr. Dowie is so much attacked now that he has not time or opportunity to reply to all of it. I thought it only proper courtesy to him to see that he had a fair show in our paper. You will note quite a difference in the two reports above. I do not say which is correct, only allow Mr. Dowie to speak for himself.

I am not a follower of Dowie, his "restoration" came too late.

Your brother,
ADAM J. KECK.

Notice!

Notice is hereby given that the reunion of the St. Louis district has been postponed for this year on account of the extreme heat and drouth, with other good and sufficient reasons. It has been deemed best for the work to dispense with the reunion for this year.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

ZION'S REDEMPTION.

BY ELDER A. WHITE.

[Published in Autumn Leaves, December 1890, republished here as being of interest under the advanced step taken by the church at last General Conference.—Ed.]

During the summer of 1885 my mind was very much exercised about the manner of the redemption of Zion, which was caused by the manifestation of the Spirit, both in tongues and in prophecy, given at several different times through the summer and through several different persons, and all agreeing that the redemption of Zion was very near at hand, and some saying of it as "even at the door."

I had been thinking of Z. H. Gurley and J. W. Briggs, and what they had done for the cause; and after all they had fallen, although they had occupied such high positions. This caused me to wonder how the weak ones of the church could stand, if men who had received and borne such great testimony could be so shaken in their faith with regard to tithing, the doctrine of gathering and the redemption of Zion, as I knew that the church had accepted these doctrines, as well as the Book of Doctrine and Covenants, in which they are taught. I had understood from reading section 63, paragraph 8, of the Book of Doctrine and Covenants that the redemption of Zion would be by purchase.

These things caused me to doubt whether the before mentioned gifts were of God or not, as it appeared to me to be an utter impossibility for the Saints to purchase this land anywhere in the near future, because of the very high and rapidly advancing prices of all real estate in this region of country.

These things were a very great trial of my faith, because of the seeming impossibility for the land of Zion to be redeemed in the short time indicated through the gifts, without the intervention of the power of God.

These thoughts caused me to exclaim, "Oh! Lord, why suffer thy people to be tried so severely in this matter? Why not reveal unto thy people that which will relieve them of this great trial, and let them know how the redemption of Zion shall be," when I heard a voice (which I understood to be the voice of God) saying, "The time was when my people might have redeemed Zion, if they had kept my counsel, but now it has passed out of their power. I will redeem Zion in its time, and I will do it in this way." Then I saw a narrow and very bright red ring which enclosed Independence and a portion of the surrounding country, the center of which seemed to be a little southwest of where I was standing on a high spot of ground.

Then he said, "Do you see that ring?"

I said, "Yes."

Then he said, "I have sanctified all of the ground inside of this ring, and I will not suffer any person to live inside of this ring except those who keep the celestial law. Now mine elders shall receive an endowment, and it shall be the same endowment that Peter had when he judged Ananias and Sapphira." I was given to understand that only such elders received this endowment as were chosen by the Holy Ghost at this time. "Now all written law ceases on the inside of this ring, but on the outside it shall continue as it is. Now my judgment commences inside of this ring which is the judgment of the Holy Ghost, that no sin may escape. By the written law and the judgments of men, many guilty ones go unpunished, and many of the innocent suffer. You read in my word that Zion shall be redeemed by judgment. Many of my elders misrepresent me in regard to my judgment. They say it is storms, pestilence, earthquakes, etc., but this is not what I mean. I mean the judgment of the Holy Ghost, and as you see Peter yonder judging Ananias and Sapphira by the Holy Ghost, so shall the judgment be here. Death is laid at the feet of every person."

Then the vision opened to a very great distance, where I saw Peter judging Ananias and Sapphira by the Holy Ghost. Then looking back to near the center of the ring, I saw the judgment going on, yet at sufficient distance to prevent me from knowing any one engaged in it. There were about ten or twelve men standing with their backs toward me, and about four or five feet to their right stood a man judging some person who was in front of them, yet hid from my sight by the other men. Immediately there was a very great excitement around where the judgment was going on, which soon extended to all parts within the circle, all seeming to know that every one must immediately get out of the ring or come up and be judged by the Holy Ghost, which proved fatal to all whose consciences did not hold them guiltless; and I saw many hastening to get outside of the ring. Some ran, some walked and others went in wagons, one of whom I noticed more particularly. After he had driven over the ring, he turned alongside of it with his right hand toward me, so that I could see the tears running down his cheeks, and I was enabled to hear what he was saying to himself. He said, "Now I have lost this great blessing because I have not lived up to my privilege." I was also given to understand that he could soon prepare himself by repentance and faithfulness to return and be able to abide the judgment, which he immediately sought to do.

I also noticed another one, on foot, who did not care for, or know, what he had lost, but seemed to be glad he had escaped the judgment, and showed no signs of repentance. I understood that both of these were Saints. I looked back to where the judgment had been going on, but it had all vanished. Then I asked to know what degree of perfection would have to be attained to enable one to abide the judgment, and to have it manifested by pointing out some one that I knew. This He refused to do, but would tell me what kind of a character could abide the judgment and what kind of a character would have to go out.

He said all those whose words had been just and true, all those in whose hearts there is no guile or deceit, can abide the judgment. He also told me that the following characters could not abide the judgment; all those that forgive with their lips, but not with their hearts; all those who have not spoken the true sentiments of their own hearts.

I had formerly believed that the land of Zion would comprise a great portion of America, which caused me to say, "If this is all the land of Zion, it is a failure, as I understand it."

Then He said, "It is wisdom in me to sanctify but a small portion at a time, for you saw that many went out, and if I had sanctified a large portion there would so many have gone out that it would have left a great part of the land desolate and waste; but by sanctifying a small portion at a time there will enough remain on the inside with those who are on the outside who are prepared, who will be invited to come in immediately to build up and occupy the places that are going to waste; and when all of the land on the inside is filled up, I will move out the line and sanctify another portion as you read in my word, "The borders of Zion shall be enlarged." This is what I mean. It is wisdom in me to prepare my Saints in this way for my coming. If I did not prepare them, they could not abide my presence. If I should come unto them in their present condition, my glory would destroy them."

I was given to understand that the time had now come that the gospel should go forth from this place to every nation, kindred, tongue and people, with signs following; and it should go forth by those who received this endowment, and that they had power given them to smite the earth with all plagues as often as they would, such as lightning, plagues, earthquakes, etc.

After I saw the foregoing vision I was very much exercised in my mind over it, as it was so different from anything I had ever thought of. I commenced reading and studying the Book of Doctrine and Covenants to see if it would corroborate any such idea, and immediately after I had finished it, which took about six months, I dreamed that I was telling the vision to some person, and told it all right until I came down to where I saw the judgment going on, and I said he laid death at the door of every house.

Then I heard the same voice that I heard in the vision saying to me in an emphasized tone, "Tell it as I told it to you. You have misrepresented me. I told you I would put death at the feet of every person."

I said, "I see I have misrepresented a little, but I thought it would not make any difference."

He said, "It does make a difference, for this belongs to the vision I gave you and is a part of it."

I awoke immediately after this. I never told the vision until I received the above dream.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo.
Origin and History of the Aztecs.

The solution of a problem which has agitated the minds of archaeologists and ethnologists for a half century past and which is now occupying the chief attention of the Smithsonian institute and every other antiquarian organization in the new world and the old, is likely to be found in extensive explorations now being made near Phoenix, Arizona.

In excavations which have just been begun five miles east of this city, it is believed, will be found records which will give the origin and, at least, a part of the history of the strange people who occupied this continent before the invasion of the red man and the coming of the Spanish explorer. Not only does the preliminary work indicate such an outcome, but it is already bringing out new evidence of a civilization existing in pre-historic times in many ways nearly the equal of the height of cultivation achieved by modern peoples.

Not the least important, and, perhaps, one of the most interesting facts already revealed is the certain knowledge that the earliest settlers, the Aztecs, or their ancestors, whoever they may have been, were possessors of a form of organization bearing astonishingly close resemblance to the Masonic order. Indeed, within the last few days stone figures have been found upon which are carved the exact lines of some of the insignia of the Masons. Last week Dr. James Miller, president of the Arizona Antiquarian society, who is in charge of the excavations, secured a stone which gives indisputable foundation to the theory that Masonry existed among the Aztecs. The stone is as large as a lad's fist, and on one side are engraved the square and compass, now the chief emblem of Masonry. On the opposite side are the interlocked figures 9 and 6, now the sign of Cancer, and on another side is the double triangle. In several places large boulders have been found on which are duplicates of the inscriptions, besides figures of a hieroglyphic nature, depicting scenes, animals and reptiles of various kinds. The find is already attracting great attention from Masons, who are anxiously awaiting further excavations.

No one but an archaeologist who has investigated, can have comprehension of the vast evidences of a prehistoric people in all parts of Arizona. From the Mexican line to the Grand canon is a succession of ruins of cities, settlements and fortresses. In the valleys are immense piles of clay and stone, in most instances worn by elements of ages to shapeless masses of debris. In the hills near by are stone fortresses and lookout posts guarding the entrances to the valleys. Farther to the north are the cliff dwellings—marvelous structures, designed, doubtless, for habitation from which hostile tribes could be repelled with greater ease than in the lower valley.

Of all the immense heaps, which indicate a formerly populous country, the greatest one lies about five miles east of Phoenix. The mound is 200 feet long, over 100 feet wide, and from ten to twenty feet in height. For miles around are lesser mounds, some on high land and some down in the river bottom. From all appearances the large mound was the central figure in what was a settlement of larger size than any city of modern Arizona. Three higher places in the big pile indicate steeples or domes, and the archaeologists are of the opinion that the structure was a temple. The walls, made of adobe and rock, are in some places ten feet thick, and extend for many feet into the earth. Many of the smaller mounds have been leveled by the farmer, and in them have been found scores of relics in pottery, beads and stone implements. Farther down in the river bottom small parts of ruins have been found, and excavation has revealed the fact that at some time a heavy flood has buried many of the houses and covered them over with deposits washed down by the mountain torrents. It is believed, in fact, that the city of Phoenix is built over the buried ruins of a once great community.

In the higher lands are frequently found lines of the irrigation ditches of that remote day. In more than one place deep cuts through solid rock are mute witnesses of the industry of a race whose laborers excavated without any powder.

The excavations in the largest pile already have reached through the strong outer wall and penetrated a small chamber. Here were found Dr. Miller's Masonic emblem and a quantity of pottery, including a cremating urn containing ashes and small bones. It is believed by conservative students of archaeology that in the inner chambers will be found the tangible proofs of the origin of man in the western hemisphere.

The work of the archaeological society contemplates the most ambitious and exhaustive researches that have yet been attempted. At entrances to the Salt River valley, on the north and south, in four places, stand the remains of ancient fortresses. From these points of vantage can be observed every avenue approaching the valley. On these works will begin the next operations of the society. The largest fortification lies fifteen miles north of Phoenix and at the entrance where would have come the savage northern tribes. The stronghold consists of a series of stone works situated on a butte 150 feet high. Its heavy walls are capable of sheltering 500 men, and higher up is another but smaller wall, doubtless intended as a place of retreat. Fifty feet above the two is a small reservoir, from whence the defenders received their water supply. Scattered about the rocks have been found many thousand stone arrow points, an indication of scores of conflicts with the Northern red men, the Navajo and the Apache, who are credited with the ultimate conquest of the Aztecs. In a lower stockade of the fortress is a large cross engraved on a stone, and below it are the figures 1541. The marks are partially effaced by time, but are sufficiently plain to lead to the belief that they were placed there by Coronado and his men, who explored this valley in that year.

Work is also to be done at Casa Grande, a famous ruin near Florence, the walls of which are still in fairly good condition. In the north, from Phoenix nearly to the Utah line, the cliff dwellings are to be carefully explored. In many places these ruins never have been visited by scientists, and, in several localities—notably in the fastnesses of the high mountains south and east of Ponto basin—never have been viewed in the interior by white men.

Steps will be taken to protect the ruins from the despoiling hand of the vandal, and already guards have been placed at Montezuma's castle and Montezuma's well, Casa Grande, and other great relics, to protect them from marauding visitors. In fact, the Smithsonian institute has decided to secure a government protectorate over many of the ruins, and hold them as the national parks are kept. Montezuma's well is a large circular opening formed by volcanic action, and is 400 feet across and 100 feet deep. The precipitous walls are lined with remains of the homes of cliff dwellers. Several miles away is Montezuma's castle, a prehistoric dwelling set in a cliff 200 feet high.

Through Dr. Miller, who is doubtless the most capable, conservative and conscientious ethnologist and antiquarian who has made a study of the work, will be carried on an attempt to complete the relations which link the Pueblo Indians with the Aztecs. The Pueblo traditions tell of the journey, from a far southern country, of their ancestors to the north; of great growth and vast cities. There was a long period of prosperity and then the wars with savage tribes, and the Aztecs were driven still farther north and the race was divided and broken.

The Zuni and Hopi tribes, both of Pueblo stock, adhere to the practices of which the Aztecs left evidences. They have their secret organizations, using, in many instances, the insignia which was customary with the Aztecs. They are fire worshippers, as were the Aztecs, and from some of the mounds in this valley have been taken pottery and stones engraved in almost the identical manner employed by the Pueblos. In many instances these pictorial works bear close resemblance to ancient Japanese figures, and in some of their characteristics the Hopi and Zuni people are similar, in a slight degree, to the Japanese. From these facts the investigators gather that the race possibly sprang from Oriental origin, or that Japanese were shipwrecked on the coast of America after the race here was established, and by mixing with the natives, have left traces of their nationality, which have been carried down through the ages.—Denver (Colo.) News, June 30, 1901.

THE NINETY AND NINE.

Since the coming forth of this latter day work, many precious truths have been brought to light from the fact of God having a prophet in the world to guide and direct His people into light. One noticeable feature of the work has been the translation of the scriptures by direct revelation from on high. That there has been a need of a work of this kind is evident from the fact that many of the brightest lights of the nineteenth century, after years of study, have presented to the world what is known as the Revised Version, but we think in many instances the King James' Translation is superior to it. As direct inspiration is not claimed for the work, it would not seem strange if the mistakes of man should be made manifest in many instances. As the Lord has declared in ages ago through His word that He would do nothing but He would reveal His secrets unto His servants, the prophets (Amos 3: 7), it stands us in hand to investigate this record that was given by direct inspiration from heaven to His servants in these last days, the work being commenced in the year 1830, the month of June, and being completed July 2, 1833.

It would take many hours to show a title of the errors that have been corrected by this translation, but one in particular we wish to notice at this time, "The ninety and nine." As the reading is found in the King James' version, it would be understood that the ninety and nine were in the same condition as the one that was being sought after. The reading is as follows:

"What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost until he find it?"—Luke 15: 4.

Now, all the Bible students will agree that the wilderness in a scriptural sense means in the world, or in sin, so you can readily see the condition of the ninety and nine if we accept the statement as recorded above. But notice the difference as recorded in the Inspired version:

"What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine, and go into the wilderness after that which is lost until he find it?"

Thus we see plainly the contrast. Oh, that more would see the glorious light of this latter day work and come to a saving knowledge of its truth.

When Only One Man Was Fought.

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE ENSIGN.

"When God wants to have a new truth presented to this bigoted old world, He don't select weaklings to be his mouth-piece; but sends forth the sturdy sons of men who will battle for the truth.

The old world is slow to accept that which is new, and as Heine says: "We do not take possession of our ideas, but are possessed by them. They master us and force us into the arena, where, like gladiators, we must fight for them."

Science and religion have had to fight for the truth they possess; and often the fight has been within their own domain. When Italy was profoundly agitated by the issue which Galileo had raised, and while the church was preparing to make him retract his dangerous heresy, it was a Professor of philosophy at Padua, notorious for his anti-religious tendencies, who refused to look through Galileo's telescope and thus submit his theory to verification.

It was no further off than 1838, that Madame Daguerra, the wife of the inventor of photography, had an earnest consultation with one of the medical celebrities of the day, concerning her husband's mental condition. After acquainting the physician with the many indications of Daguerra's mental aberration, she added, with tears in her eyes, that the concluding proof of his insanity was his absolute conviction that he would succeed in making his own shadow to the wall, or in fixing it on magic metallic plates. It was finally decided to send him to the well known lunatic asylum at Bicetre. Two months later the world of art and science was stirred to its centre by the exhibition of a number of pictures actually taken by the new process. So the "lunatic" became the father of photography.

In Harvey's day, the college of physicians of London completely ignored his wonderful discovery. Half a century after he had communicated his new fact to the world, the Paris Royal Society of Medicine gravely listened to an essay which classed his discovery among the impossibilities.

When Benjamin Franklin communicated to the Royal Society of Great Britain the report of his experiments, showing the identity of lightning with other electrical phenomena, the report was greeted with a shout of laughter. The idea of asking science to learn new truths by playing with paper kites.

Galvani, whose name has been stamped on one of the most familiar forms of this stupendous force, wrote: "I am attacked by two very opposite sects—the scientists and the know-nothings. Both laugh at me—calling me the 'frogs' dancing master. Yet I know that I have discovered one of the greatest forces in nature."

When Castellet told Reaumur that he had reared perfect silkworms from the eggs laid from a virgin moth, the story was scouted. It certainly seemed contrary to one of the widest and best established laws of nature, yet, as one of our distinguished scientists says: "It is now universally admitted to be true, and the supposed law ceases to be universal."

Napoleon referred the subject of steam navigation to the Academy of Science, and it was promptly pronounced "a ridiculous notion."

When George Stevenson first projected the idea of railroad traveling, the British House of Commons would not seriously listen to his plans. The French Academy voted the Engineer Perdonnet a strait-jacket for his offer to build railroads. Robert Stevenson, son of George Stevenson, led the chorus of England in ridiculing the French project of digging a canal at Suez. The phonograph was pronounced "impossible."

Here we have a short record of man's antagonism to the introduction of new truths and conditions. But when we contemplate "man's inhumanity to man" upon the introduction of religious truths, we wonder if the end of persecution is as yet.

The Seven Bibles of the World.

The seven Bibles of the world are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Tri Pitikes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindus, the Zendavesta of the Persians, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, and the Scriptures of the Christians.

The Koran is the most recent of all, dating from about the Seventh Century after Christ. It is a compound of quotations from both the Old and New Testaments, and from the Talmud.

The Tri Pitikes contains sublime morals and pure aspirations. Their author lived and died in the Sixth Century before Christ.

The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, the word "kings" meaning web of cloth. From this it is presumed they were originally written on five rolls of cloth. They contain wise sayings from the sages on the duties of life, but they cannot be traced further back than the Eleventh Century before our era.

The Vedas are the most ancient books in the language of the Hindus, but they do not, according to late commentators, antedate the Twelfth Century before the Christian era.

The Zendavesta of the Persians, next to our Bible, is reckoned among scholars as being the greatest and most learned of the sacred writings. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, lived and worked in the Twelfth Century before Christ.

Moses lived and wrote the Pentateuch fifteen hundred years before the birth of Christ; therefore, that portion of our Bible is at least three hundred years older than the most ancient of other sacred writings.

The Eddas, a semi-sacred work of the Scandinavians, was given to the world in the Fourteenth Century.—Sci.

Are We Like Our Father?

A missionary arrived at the kraal of an African chief, and on being presented by the interpreter he was asked whether he had brought a present with him.

"Have you brought me a blanket?" said the chief.

"No," said the missionary, "but I have brought you something much better than that; I come with good news."

"And what is your news?"

"I have come to tell you about your heavenly Father, He who has made the world, and has given you cattle, sheep, goats, your cassava and eddoes, your mangoes, guavas, loquats."

He was impatiently interrupted by the chief, who inquired: "Does God give me all these things?"

"Yes, he does."
"And He is your Father?"
"Yes, He is."

"Well, I should think," said the chief, "that if you were anything like your Father, you might give me one blanket."—Banner.

Suffering is Appointed for the Soul.

Fulfilling these exalted duties in nature, suffering is also appointed for the soul. With more than a father's affection, with more than a mother's love, God sends pain to men. Suffering comes under divine commission. Sorrows do not riot through life. Men are not atoms buffeted hither and thither. "Troubles are appointed to refine away our grossness; to transmute selfishness into self-sacrifice; to destroy vice; to transfigure all our life. Refused, troubles bruise without softening; crush without maturing. Accepted and rightly used they change their nature and become joys. Tears are seeds; planted, they blossom into joy and gladness.

In his celebrated painting Delaroche has assembled a court of universal genius. Around an imaginary art tribunal stand the sages, orators, philosophers, reformers and martyrs who have achieved eminence.

Strange, passing strange, that those who stand in the forefront, pre eminent for their ability, are alike pre eminent for their sufferings! Denied his ambition and the promised land, Moses leads the immortal band. Blind, Homer feels his way. Then comes Paul, flogged and stoned out of all semblance of a man. Exiled, Dante, too, is there, whose Inferno in life best interprets his Inferno of death. There, too, is Milton, broken-hearted and blind. Now comes One who leads all that godly company. His name is "above every name." And whence His supremacy? This is His secret: "His visage was so marred more than any man, and His form more than the sons of men."—Ladies' Home Journal.

"To do an uncongenial task well, that is noble. To do uncongenial tasks which are not ours to do, that is sublime."

"It is well enough not to be too much saddened by the sorrow about us, but it is far nobler not to be hardened by it."

Chip Basket.

I found the following terse screed upon the "Five Talents," and hope it will impress others as it did me:

"The last man to go to for a helping hand for any new undertaking, is the man who has plenty of time on his hands. It is the man and woman who are doing most who are always willing to do a little more.

"The people who are tired of life are not those who work, but those who are too proud or too lazy to do so. Many of the rich are morbidly restless, while those who have to earn their daily bread are comparatively contented and happy. The Bible says that 'the sleep of a laboring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much' (Ecc. 5: 12); and the busy worker has health and blessing which the listless idler never knows."—Selected.

I trust that the majority of those who shall read this, shall be of the busy, active class, and that immediately upon reading they shall extend the "helping hand" to Graceland College.

From Caldwell, Kansas, comes the following from a Zion Hope:

"Dear Bro. Elvin:—I send you $2.00 for Graceland College, which I earned helping mamma. Mamma has been reading to me in the Herald about the Lord wanting the debt paid, so I send my offering.

"Yours, GRACE E. MASON."

Here comes another little maiden, the child of a faithful missionary:

"LAMONI, IOWA. Bro. Elvin:—I put half a dollar in this letter, which I earned for the college. I hope it will soon be paid for. I am only eight years old, but I would like to go to school there some day.

"Your little friend and sister, ALICE CHASE."

Will the rank and file of Latter Day Israel allow the hope of this child to be blasted? I trust not!

From far away Terryville, Connecticut, writes a brother who united with the church almost two years ago, sending his contribution. He says: "I was a man out of health, but followed my employment with difficulty up to the time I became a Latter Day Saint, and I have never had another day's sickness. To God be all the praise."

We might add many others, but space forbids, and past experience indicates that we are not yet done calling for needed aid.

Serious! permit me, dear Saints, to ask your consideration of: "Behold, it is not meet that I should command in all things, for he that is compelled in all things, the same is a slothful and not a wise servant; wherefore he receiveth no reward. Verily I say, Men should be anxiously engaged in a good cause, and do many things of their own free will, and bring to pass much righteousness; for the power is in them, wherein they are agents unto themselves. And inasmuch as men do good, they shall in no wise lose their reward. But he that doeth not anything until he is commanded, and receiveth a commandment, with doubtful heart, and keepeth it with slothfulness, the same is damned."—D. & C. 58: 6.

From a business point of view, there was no necessity for God speaking in relation to Graceland College, for those who had to do with this institution exercised their free agency under the direction of a resolution of the General Conference in a good work, a work that has already reflected credit to the cause, and in time to come I believe will be one of the brightest gems of our church work.

Now that God hath spoken, while will those stand who with slothfulness comply, or those who totally disregard?

This work of aiding Graceland rests upon all Saints, in all localities, and none can escape, it is for weal or woe unto one and all.

A Hint From Henry Clay.

A well-known southern politician, who died just before the Civil war, not infrequently spoke of an incident that took place in his first term in Congress, in which he received a lesson in statecraft from the great Whig leader, Henry Clay.

"I was a young man and an enthusiastic Whig," he said, "and I entered Congress quivering with eagerness to serve my party and to distinguish myself. I was on my feet shouting 'Mr Speaker!' a dozen times a day. I opposed even petty motions made by the opposite party, and bitterly denounced every bill, however trivial, for which they voted. Before the session was half over, I had contrived to make myself personally obnoxious to every Democrat I met.

"One day, after an ill-tempered out-break on a question of no moment, I turned and saw Mr. Clay watching me with a twinkle in his eye.

"'C——,' he said, 'you go fishing sometimes?'"

"'Yes.'"

"'Don't you find that the best rod is the one that gives a little at each joint? It does not snap and break at every touch, but bends, and shows its strength only when weight is put on it.'"

"I caught his meaning. I had seen him chatting familiarly with the very men whom I was berating. Yet I knew when the great interests of parties clashed, he was the one man whom they feared.

"I set myself then to learn patience and coolness. It is the strong, flexible rod which does not break under the big fish."

To come down from national to domestic life, it will always be found that the fretful, quarrelsome member of the home is of little use in a crisis. It is the man and woman of coolness, reserve, and good humor who control the emergencies in the household, as men and women of this type have always done in all human history.—Sel.

A FEARFUL FREAK OF FASHION.

Written Expressly for the ENSIGN.

The feet of Chinese women have been the subject of much written and oral comment, but how they obtain their "golden lilies" is not so well known.

There are several styles of binding the feet. The material used in all cases is a small roll of cotton webbing several inches wide. Of course the process is begun when the feet are tender and pliable, often as early as the fifth year.

The "foot former" bends all the toes, except the great toe, under the instep, which is thus forced up. When the foot has become quite pointed, with a decided arched instep, the heel and toes are tightly wound, pressing them toward each other, thus cruelly preventing any growth of the foot. Of course this means untold pain to the poor victim, all because of this fearful fashion.

These bandages are left on for weeks at a time, until the foot has lost all resemblance to its original shape, and becomes a mere stub, that makes it impossible for the poor victim to use as God intended. The binding continues through life, which means life-long agony for the devotee of a horrible fashion.

During a state function at Peking, at which the ladies of the American representatives located there were invited, the American spirit of audacity and aggressiveness was made manifest in the following manner:

Several of the American ladies determined they were going to use what influence they had to help stamp out this ancient custom of feet binding, so approaching one of the "first ladies of the land," they asked her why she didn't use the power she possessed to abolish this senseless and cruel fashion. The reply was a surprise, "You think this fashion cruel and barbarous, that is your point of view; now if you think this of us in regard to binding our feet with cloth, what do you suppose the educated ladies of China think of your system of binding the waist with steel and whalebone, distorting the most important functions of the whole body. Feet binding injures the feet alone, but your terrible system must injure the whole body. We wouldn't think of treating our daughters that way."

NAIVE.

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE ENSIGN.

Stanley on one occasion, while in Africa, stayed a few days at a friendly village of the natives. In conversation with the dusky belle of the place, he discovered some remarkable ideas held by this "beauty." She said the white man was very nice, all but his feet, and they were ugly to look at; the poor white man didn't have a single toe! Stanley didn't at first comprehend the situation, but eventually it dawned on him that this unsophisticated child of nature thought that his boots were part of his feet, so he pulled off his foot wear, after which demonstration that he had toes, greater respect was shown him by the lady.

We wear faults so much that the uncharitable think they are part of us, but the gospel will "pull them off" if we are only patient and earnest.

OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS. DAUGHTERS OF ZION Mrs. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

- Mrs. Mary E. Hulmes, President, Independence, Mo. Mrs. H. H. Robinson, Corresponding Secretary, No. West Electric Street, Independence, Mo. Mrs. B. C. Smith, 214 So. Spring St., Independence, Mo. Mrs. Luana Eitzenhouser, 513 Main St., Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Clara Frick, 208 So. Fuller Ave., Independence, Mo. Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Recording Secretary, Lamoni, Iowa. Mrs. Anna Murphy, Treasurer, Independence, Mo. Editor's Address, 111 So. Fuller Ave., Independence, Mo.

DEAR Daughters of Zion, come and let us have a little chat together about a few "don'ts" we should give up for the benefit of all. Don't always be finding fault with one another, for surely a fault-finder is not a very desirable companion to be with, as they will have a tendency to draw you down with them. Don't, when in church, turn around every time the door opens; we not only appear restless and uneasy, but are apt to lose something in the sermon that might be a good thought for us to remember; and it annoys the speaker, makes him feel that the people coming in are of more interest to the congregation than he is. Don't whisper or write notes; wait until after church, then you can talk. And above all, don't chew gum at home or on the street, and especially in church. I have noticed some of the sisters chewing just as hard as they could, and often wished they could see how they looked. I know they would be willing to stop the practice.

Don't harbor ill feeling toward each other, but try and help one another build noble and spotless characters.

We may find it hard sometimes to overcome the many little faults (I sometimes think the little faults are the hardest ones), but think of the victory we have gotten over ourselves and the enemy; he surely frowns when we succeed and smiles at our failures. So do not get discouraged by our many failures, for we cannot expect to reach the top by a single bound, but ascend to the summit round by round. Every fault overcome makes it easier to live down the next. So we will place on the tablet of our heart the motto: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again." Not once, but many times, till we come out conquerors.

Don't be tale-bearers, try and discourage the habit, always remembering we would not like to listen to some unpleasant story about ourselves, so we should be willing to do to others as we would have them do to us.

Don't use slang or vulgar words, for I think, above all, that is low and unchristian like.

In 1 Corinthians 15: 33, we read: "Be not deceived; evil communications corrupt good manners."

And also 1 Thessalonians 5: 22, "Abstain from all appearance of evil." It would be well to read the 23d verse of the same chapter. In that we find the blessing given to those holding themselves spotless, for God does not look with the least degree of allowance on sin, so we should try and keep our minds and hearts pure, and our lips from speaking evil. There is not one in the band of Christ's followers who want to be left out when we are summoned on the great day of judgment, before Christ the great Ruler. As He opens the book to examine us according to the deeds done in the flesh, we will want to hear Him say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." So let us be faithful to God and ourselves, so when the sifting time comes we will not be counted as chaff.

I find the more we study the Word of God and the church books, the less time and inclination we have to do other things. May we all live so we will be a happy family when the earth is redeemed, and all its peace and harmony, is my prayer.

J. M. BRAIDWOOD. CHICAGO, Illinois. The Meaning of "Lady."

The much abused word "lady" is modified direct from the early Anglo-Saxon, and means "loaf giver;" for the highest ideal of woman in those days was to be a good manager of her household in every particular; bread was then the real staff of life. The Delineator for September devotes its illustrated cookery article to the subject of bread in its various forms and every "lady" should study the article.

Restrictions of French Girl Life.

"The program of what a French girl may or may not do is drawn up very precisely," declares Th. Bentzon (Madame Blanc), in The Ladies' Home Journal for July. "Unless she is poor and has to earn her own living she never goes out alone. The company of a friend of her own age would not be sufficient to chaperon her. It is an established rule that novel-reading is a rare exception. She is entirely subject to her parents' will in the matter of reading. And if she asks to see anything at the theatre except a classical masterpiece, or an opera, they will tell her that such a thing is not considered proper, feeling sure of her silent submission. After she is fifteen years old she is generally allowed to be in the drawing-room on her mother's reception days, but must keep to the modest and secondary place assigned her: pouring the tea and presenting it, courtesying to her elders, answering when spoken to—in short, undergoing her apprenticeship. She has but few jewels, and under no pretext, any diamonds. Custom does not permit her to wear costly things; nor does it give her the right, in general, to have a money allowance worth speaking of, for her personal use. She receives a trifling sum for charity, her books and gloves. A young girl never takes the lead in conversation, but always the married lady the precedence, and she finds it quite natural to occupy the background."

A Thing Worth Knowing.

No need of cutting off a woman's breast or a man's cheek or nose in a vain attempt to cure cancer. No use of applying burning plasters to the flesh and torturing those already weak from suffering. Soothing, balmy, aromatic Oils give safe, speedy and certain cure. The most horrible forms of cancer of the face, breast, womb, mouth and stomach; large tumors, ugly ulcers, fistula, catarrh; terrible skin diseases, etc., are all successfully treated by the application of various forms of soothing oils. Send for a book, mailed free, giving particulars and prices of Oils. Address DR. BYE, Drawer 1111, Kansas City, Mo. (Cut this out and send to some suffering one).

CANCER A CURABLE DISEASE.

Many people have an idea that cancer is incurable, but we have over 150 original and recent testimonials of cures of actual cancer, the sufferers having taken 8 to 24 bottles of the famous B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) which is meant to cure old obstinate blood and skin troubles. B. B. B. kills the cancer poison in the blood and the sores quickly heal. No cutting required. Among others cured was Mrs. M. L. Adams, of Fredonia, Alabama. Had an eating cancer, the bones of her nose and upper part of her mouth entirely eaten out. Could only eat strained soup, yet the cancer healed perfectly by taking 14 bottles of B. B. B. Allan Grant, Sparta, Georgia, had painful sore on lip called epithelial cancer, also much pains in bones and weakness in back; 10 bottles of B. B. B. healed the sore and gave him strength, and made his blood pure and rich. B. B. B. heals ulcers, scrofula, eczema, cancer in any form, old sores, etc. Druggists or by express prepaid, $1.00. A trial treatment of B. B. B. free by writing Blood Balm Co., 86 Mitchell St., Atlanta, Georgia. Describe trouble and free medical advice given. Medicine sent at once prepaid.

TO THE BRETHREN AND FRIENDS IN THE NORTH AND WEST:
I can sell Corn, Oats, Hay, Bran, Flour, Potatoes, Apples, Cabbage etc. in car load lots to wholesale and retail dealers here. Will also purchase for brethren and friends in Alabama, Mississippi and Florida, supplies of all kinds at wholesale prices, plus a reasonable commission. Correspondence solicited.
I would like to receive shipments of Hens, Chickens and Eggs from Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi and near points in Florida. I am in a situation to dispose of them to advantage.
Mobile is a port from which produce and goods are shipped to foreign countries, as well as a distributing point for surrounding country, hence special freight rates are made to this point.
Do not ship anything without correspondence. Write and I will give you probable prices and freight rates. Brethren and friends, let us work for our mutual benefit: we can save, in many instances, several railmen's profits. Where special rates can be obtained, farmers can load a car themselves, or two or more unite and do so.

AUSTRALIA.

AN APPEAL TO ALL SAINTS.

At the last annual conference of the church in New South Wales it was decided to make an effort to raise money to buy a printing press and type to print a small monthly paper for the Australian mission.

Missionary work has been going on here for over twenty years, and only a few hundred have been gathered into the fold.

Who will help us to buy a printing press? It will be the property of the church and not of any one person.

The church college must be paid for,
and we do not want to hinder, but Australia needs a little help, and as a child who cannot yet walk alone turns to mother for help, so do we turn to the church in America to assist us.

There is all I have received from America, but I hope to hear from many more.
Will branch presidents and district and general workers assist by collecting small donations and see that they reach us? A letter to reach Australia must have a five-cent stamp on it.

Dow City Annual Reunion.

REDUCED RAILWAY RATES.

Rates have been procured over the lines of the Western Passenger Association in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska and Missouri on the certificate plan. The reunion will commence September 20 and continue over the 30th. Certificates can be procured as early as September 20th,

A number of able ministers have promised to be in attendance to help make the reunion a success. We want you to come early and save money for yourself and others. There is no reason why the meetings should not be as well attended and as spiritual and instructive in the fore part of the session as in the closing days.

Tents for the annual western Iowa reunion, which convenes at Dow City, Iowa, September 20, 1901, can be had at the following prices: 10x12, $1.00;

Five miles north of the city of Janesville, Wisconsin, on the farm of
Bro. O. N. Dutton, the Latter Day
Saints will hold a reunion, beginning September 21st, lasting until the 30th. District conference the 28th and 29th.

We hope the Saints will make an effort to attend, and come prepared to care for yourselves, and not be a burden to others. Tents can be rented cheap, and all those wanting tents, and all those coming on the cars, must drop a card to J. O. Dutton,
Milton Junction, Wisconsin, R. D.
No. 1, and you will be met with team at Janesville. The missionary force of Wisconsin are invited to attend, and all others who can.

REMYINGTON.—Sr. Mary A. Remington, June 26, 1901, at St. Louis, Missouri. She was born December 25, 1838, at St. Louis, Missouri, and was a resident of said city all her life; being baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day
Saints May 16, 1878, by Elder R. D.
Cottam, and confirmed by Elder Wm
Smith. She lived and died firm in her faith in the restored gospel; her mother, four brothers, and two sisters, with other relatives and friends, mourn her loss. May she rest in peace.

JOHNSON.—Sr. Catherine Johnson was born January 24, 1821, in Renfrewshire, Scotland, was baptized into the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at St.
Louis, Missouri, February 1, 1868, by Elder John Clark, confirmed by Elder
James Anderson. She died July 28,
1901, at her home in St. Louis, Missouri. She leaves one son and one daughter, with several grand-children, to mourn her loss. She has lived a long, eventful life, and may her spirit find rest in the paradise of the righteous. Funeral from rock church.

LAMBERT.—Sr. Jane Lambert, wife of Bro. Richard Lambert, departed this life at their home, near Adrian,
Illinois, July 26th, at 7:10 a. m., aged 76 years, 11 months and 27 days. She was born in Lancashire, England, Aug ust 2, 1824; was baptized in England by Elder Joseph Fjelding when she was aged 16 years. In a short time came to America, arriving at Nauvoo in the spring of 1841. She was married to Richard Lambert at Nauvoo,
April 10, 1843, by James Smithers.
was baptized into the Reorganization by James Burgess, November 5, 1843, and confirmed by him and D. H. Smith same day. She was the mother of fifteen children, twelve of whom survive her, namely: John H., Montrose,
Iowa; Joseph R., Lamoni, Iowa; Wm.
T., Adrian, Illinois; Mrs. Mary Sig-fried, Adrian, Illinois; Daniel F., La-moui, Iowa; Mrs. Margaret I. Head, Stewartsville, Missouri; Mrs. Agnes
Stevenson, Adrian, Illinois; Geo. P.,
Adrian, Illinois; Mrs. Hattie Rodfield,
Morton's Mills, Iowa; Alexander F.,
Blackwell, Oklahoma; Mrs. Ellen Pitt,
Adrian, Illinois; and Mrs. Susie
Mapes, Ferris, Illinois.

The funeral services were conducted at the Saints' Rock Creek church, Elder James McKiernan delivering the sermon to a large audience of sympathizing relatives and friends of the family. The interment took place at the Rowell cemetery. All of her children were present except Alexander F.

Why I Memorize the Bible.

I am a busy housekeeper, but every day brings tasks that employ my hands, leaving my mind idle. It is while doing these things that I learn verses from the Bible, or review those already learned. The results are surprising, but there is no secret about my success except that I began and have kept on.
Sometimes I am too tired and dull to learn, and then I wait until next day and try again.

I find that this memorizing is good mental discipline. At first, being long unused to such study, it was difficult for me to learn even one verse correctly, but, with a determination to have every "and" and "the" right, I can now commit to memory accurately and rapidly.

I find, too, that the constant repetition of high thoughts and noble language improves my own thought and expression, especially in prayer.

While committing the Bible to memory, cares, worries, bitter thoughts, vain regrets, morbid fancies and all the jumble of things that lumber an unoccupied mind are crowded out. By frequent repetition, rich meanings often stand out clearly in the lines, which would otherwise escape my notice. This growing familiarity with the Bible makes it ready for use in guiding my own way and in helping others.
How can I walk and talk with God unless I have in mind some word of His to which I can respond, or which satisfies my own questions and aspirations?

Some time I may be deprived of reading, and then what riches
I shall have in this store of Bible verses hid in my heart! Often at twilight or in sleepless hours
I say the sweet words over with a sense of comfort and companionship, that otherwise I should miss. Then besides all this, I believe that one of the greatest joys heaven will consist in tracing out God's providences in the light of His word, and for that reason I can never be too familiar with the Bible.—Hannah Journeyman, in Bible Reader.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

"OUR CREED: ALL TRUTH."

VOLUME 12.

INDEPENDENCE, MISSOURI, THURSDAY, AUGUST 15, 1901.

NUMBER 33.

ZION'S ENSIGN.

A Literary and Religious Newspaper, published in the interest of social, scientific and religious truth, every Thursday, at Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

PRICE, $1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

W. H. GARRETT, EDITOR.
C. ED. MILLER, BUSINESS MGR.

ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Make all remittances, and address all communications to ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE, Box B, Independence, Jackson County, Missouri.

New subscriptions can begin at any time. If possible to avoid it, never send silver as it is liable to wear through the envelope and be lost. Always give the name of the post office to which your paper is sent or we can not find your name on our lists.

When changing your address changed, give both the old and new address.

Papers will be discontinued one month from the time subscriptions expire, unless ordered continued.

In making remittances, money orders are preferable for they are absolutely safe. If you can avoid it, do not send coin or stamps. Canadian stamps are an on-the-loss, and Canadian currency is only worth ninety cents on the dollar to us, for that is all we can get for it at the banks.

Letters should be addressed, and orders and drafts made payable to
ENSIGN PUBLISHING HOUSE,
Independence, Mo.
Box B.

TWINS.—Love and Charity.

SAY, are you filling your mission in life?

SOME people have a mean way of saying what they mean.

THIS latter day work wants young people of positive opinions.

It is very evident Diogenes just came out of politics before he went on that famous hunt.

PROVING some one's unrighteousness doesn't help to establish your standing before God.

FOR some purposes steel is only useful when it is crushed. Rebel not when the heavy hand of adversity is upon thee.

THAT man who has so much sense that he can't make room for a little non-sense is sorely afflicted indeed.

It's a mistake not to make mistakes, as the only man who doesn't err, is he who doesn't do or say anything.

In these days of many trusts, the man who minds his own business is in danger of not having any business to mind.

You cannot judge a book by reading the first or last chapter. You cannot judge a person's whole life by a few of their actions.

A LITTLE lie often does more harm than a big one. When an individual tells a whopper, every body knows he is lying and are not deceived thereby.

LATTER DAY SAINT ministers are sent out, not to tell what other churches have not, but what their church has.

THERE was only one man out of twelve that gained the reputation of being "that disciple whom Jesus loved," getting wet and having hands laid on us is not alone going to obtain that love.

EXTRAVAGANCE

Men are spending their lives in devising ways to save the waste products of our factories and mills. The most marvelous results are now obtained from the residuum of our manufacturing establishments, that formerly was thrown over the dump. Even the common tin can is now placed in an oven, and after the solder is melted off, is then cast into sash weights.

Sawdust has become an important by-product. Compressed into bricks, with tar, it is employed for making gas. Bricks of clay and sawdust are recommended for building purposes, being only half as heavy as ordinary brick, and taking plaster direct without lath. The distillation of wood alcohol, and various chemicals from sawdust, has become an enormous business.

Our whole industrial system educates us to be saving. We are taught to be frugal so we can be extravagant. One of our wealthy men walks several miles daily to his business to save car fare, but he has given several million dollars away.

EXTRAVAGANCE IN ALL NATURE

If we take the lexicographer's definition of extravagance as "waste," strictly speaking, there cannot be any extravagance in nature. If we should place a piece of wood in a hollow air tight vessel, and then bring it to a white heat, every particle of that wood would remain, but in a changed condition. So it is in the universe, it is "air tight," nothing goes to waste, there is simply change of form. But if we look upon extravagance as that which is useless, nature is extravagantly extravagant. The sun pours out into space, light and heat in immense abundance, but only a small particle is utilized, the balance apparently goes to waste. Flowers are blooming in lands and nooks of the earth that no appreciative eye but God's ever sees. There is extravagance in the universe that is worthy of God; as is recorded in the Doctrine and Covenants, p. 280:

I, the Lord, stretched out the heavens, and builded the earth as a very handy work; and all things therein are mine; and it is my purpose to provide for my saints, for all things are mine; but must needs be done in my own way; and behold this is the way, that I, the Lord, have decreed to provide for my saints; that the poor shall be exalted, in that the rich are made low for the earth is full, and there is enough and to spare; yea, I prepared all things and have given unto the children of men to be agents unto themselves. Therefore, if any man shall take of the abundance which I have made, and impart not his portion, according to the law of my gospel, unto the poor, and the needy, he shall, with the wicked, lift up his eyes in hell, being in torment.

When Jesus fed the multitude there were twelve baskets full too much. God has made sufficient of everything, even with the curse upon the earth, plenty abounds somewhere.

EVILS OF ECONOMY

It is a law governing labor that the cheaper the laborer lives the less does he receive. Where living is cheapest, wages are the lowest. The poor man must be educated to demand more, the rich man must be taught to waste less, as is recorded in Doc. & Cov., p. 222: 4:

And you are to be equal, or in other words, you are to have equal claims on the properties, for the benefit of managing the concerns of your stewardships, every man according to his wants and his needs, inasmuch as his wants are just; and all this for the benefit of the church of the living God, that every man may improve upon his talent, that every man may gain other talents; yea, even an hundred fold, to be cast into the Lord's storehouse, to become the common property of the whole church, every man seeking the interest of his neighbor, and doing all things with an eye single to the glory of God.

Grinding poverty, the necessity of practicing perpetual economy, is not beneficial to character, and is not conducive to the advancement of the race, notwithstanding the noble examples we have had of character amidst poverty. The two halves are learning more and more how each of giving, this knowledge, disseminated by the various periodicals of the times, is acting as a schoolmaster to promulgate rational equity.

CIVILIZATION'S MANY DEMANDS

One of the chief distinguishing characteristics between civilized and uncivilized nations, is in regard to their demands upon nature. Demand separates the human from the wholly animal kingdom. As will be treated on in closing, it is the deciding point in defining who are the true followers of Jesus Christ. Civilized man demanded a better light than a pine knot and now he has electricity, he demanded a superior means of transportation than a horse or an ox cart, now he rides in a Pullman palace car. The printing press, the telegraph, every invention, is the result of demand. Modest demands are not always virtuous. The most highly civilized nations are those that demand the most. Mr. Carnegie's many libraries are becoming the means of educating the masses that they are no longer satisfied with the comforts of a cold dog before a warm fire. The "extravagantness" of the rich are educating the poor to make larger demands; for instance, the summer vacation is a modern diversion from, admitted, the modern "strenuous" life, invented by the rich and now enjoyed by tens of thousands of the middle and lower middle classes. They now demand it. The leveling process is going on, then there will be an elevation of the whole level, without any mountains or valleys.

THEOLOGICAL EXTRAVAGANCE

Or religious or spiritual extravagance and economy.

As civilized nations are those who righteously use the laws that govern the universe, and the material that God has provided, so we can unerringly decide who are the real, advanced people of God by this rule: THEY WILL BE THE ONES WHO ARE MAKING THE LARGEST USE OF THE LAWS, FORCES AND MATERIAL GOD HAS PROVIDED FOR THE SAVING OF THE HUMAN FAMILY. Every student of God's word knows that the Lord, throughout the sacred pages, is ever inviting the sons of men to "Come, partake of the water of life freely," and it is an infallible sign of either a wandering from God, or a total lack of acquaintance with Him, when the laws He has given are not used. The more we righteously demand of God, the more pleased He is. It don't need a multiplicity of Bible quotations to prove this. Now, where does this place the professed followers of Jesus Christ who use not the different forces He has placed in His church, and where does this place those who do not make use, even, of His church at all? Where does it place those who use not the means God has placed in His church for healing the sick, as recorded in James 5: 14.

GOD PROVIDES WHAT MAN SHOULD DEMAND

Where does it place those who use not the avenue of revelation for direction in church and individual matters, and even deny there is such a means appointed of God, although He has said, "The Lord God doeth nothing except He revealeth His will unto His servants, the prophets." It is written in Eph. 4: 11-13:

And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and in the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.

Where does it place those who demand not and use not these means of God for perfecting the Saints, for bringing themselves unto "the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ?" Stanley met pigmies in Africa, who, living under the dense overhead vegetation, had never seen the sun, and when told of the glorious orb of day, were incredulous of its existence. They didn't receive the benefit of sunlight and were pigmies. If we are so economical as not to want and use the God appointed means heaven has ordained for our growth, we will be spiritual pigmies, and no amount of argument can make it otherwise. "Whatsoever the Lord doeth, it is forever, nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it." C. ED. M.

Extracts from Letters.

BRO. MACK DAVIS, Wabash, Wabash county, Indiana, in renewing for ENSIGN, writes:

We believe that great good can be done at this place if an elder should, in passing this way, stop and preach for us. We will find a place for him to speak in, and he will be welcome at our home.

Mrs. C. J. Young, Madison, Maine, in renewing for ENSIGN, writes:

I should be lost without the ENSIGN, as it informs me of what the church is doing. I can't understand how any of the Saints can get along without the church papers. I hope some elder will be sent here as there are a number of persons who wish to hear one of our ministers preach.

JAMES W. BRYAN, Elkhardt, Texas, writes:

May I request Sr. G. R. Scoggins to send to the above address the date of Bro. Scoggins' visit to Texas and the organization of the Lone Star branch in Nacogdoches Co., Texas. As local historian for Texas I need that information.

L. G. GURWELL, writing from Belleville, Kansas, says:

Bro. Jos. C. Vaughn and I just closed a profitable meeting five miles east of Belleville; four were baptized. One of the greatest displays of Satan's power I ever read about or heard of, was witnessed by Bro. Vaughn and I while here. We go 14 miles north-west of here to begin preaching tonight.

WILL E. LARUE, writing from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Aug. 8th, says:

Just returned from Baldwin, Maryland, where our district conference met on the 3d and 4th inst. Also held a few grove meetings in that vicinity. Interest is moderate. "Wait till we get our new church done;" it is fast being completed, made out of the best stone and brick that can be found in this "city of brotherly love," in a fine location. 610 West Lehigh Avenue will reach me.

A. S. LISTER, signing herself Mrs. A. L. N., of Pryor Creek, Indian Territory, writes:

My step-daughter, Mrs. Lula Cunningham, has been baptized lately, which has caused me to rejoice. People are becoming interested here, and are reading the church literature. The Missionary Baptist preacher reads all of my papers and pamphlets, and seems to be interested.

ELDER W. A. GOODWIN writing from Hood River, Oregon, July 25th, says:

July 8th Elder A. M. Chase and I left Condon, my home, for Hood River, where he had been holding forth in the gospel tent for a week. On the 10th we began meetings again to a small crowd in the city; continued for a week and then moved the tent into the country where the attendance is on the increase and the interest also. There are five Saluts living here, Bro. Will Chapman and family, and Bro. Thos. Chapman and family; they are striving to let their light shine. The Advent Christians are on the war-path. Propositions have been submitted at their request and in a day or two we shall know the worst. We are feeling well and hopeful in the work.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Finding it necessary to have a central place for correspondence, etc., I have had a desk placed in the north room in the basement of the church. Any one wishing to see me on branch or stake business will find me there when in the city or when not engaged in outside pastoral work, at from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. If absent, any communication left with Bro. Horton will receive prompt attention upon my return.

G. H. HULMES.

Bishop Ellis Short will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning. Elder Jas. Roberts will preach at Lee's Summit next Sunday morning and evening.

Elder W. H. Garrett is expected to return from his vacation in the early part of next week.

Elder Charles Fry, of Iowa, is in town this week.

Sr. Tessie Williamson left on Monday for Chicago on a business trip.

Bro. Thos. Hamilton, who has been running a shoe repair shop here for some time, has moved with his family to Holden, Mo.

It is reported that Bro. Joe Luff, son of Bro. John Luff, Sr., is suffering with pneumonia at Marquette, Mich. He was a former employee of the ENSIGN.

Sr. Geo. E. Harrington and children arrived from Elwood City, Pennsylvania, Monday, to make their home again in Independence. Bro. Harrington will not return for some time.

More than 12 million dollars worth of poultry and eggs were shipped out of Missouri during the year 1900.

Under normal conditions potatoes sell for 50 to 75 cents per bushel. They are now selling for $1.40 per bushel. Apples can usually be bought at same price as potatoes. Corn is 15 cents per dozen, great, large ears that reminds one of a far western settlement, the survey is large, but the settlers are few and straggling. Eggs have sold this summer as low as 3 dozen for a quarter. Butter is 15 to 20 cents per pound.

Elder W. N. Robinson was the speaker at 11 a. m. Sunday, and Pres. Geo. H. Hulmes in the evening. The social meeting was well attended, nearly every chair was occupied.

The work of putting up the new electric light plant is soon to be started. The city will own and operate it.

Bishop May announced that on the first Sunday in September he would receive subscriptions for Graceland College, and requested that a special effort be made on that date to help pay off the debt.

Every branch should have a supply of the new sermon tract, "Objections Answered," by Pres. Joseph Smith; 25 cents a dozen at ENSIGN office.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Elder E. A. Steadman returned to his mission field Saturday evening.

Elder George Montague was still with us Sunday and was the speaker of the morning hour. He showed clearly from the three books that "consecration," the "gathering," and "all things common," are the results of purity of life and unity of purpose, which must prevail among the people of God before these conditions of organization can be realized. His effort was well received and much appreciated.

Elder D. C. White came in from the Nodaway district last week and was the speaker for the evening hour. He gave a spirited discourse upon the practical features of the christian warfare, and showed the necessity of being a Saint in deed, and not in name only. The attendance was fair and the attention good.

The Religio will hold an ice cream social the latter part of this month. The exact date will be announced later.

At the last business meeting of the branch our presiding deacon, Bro. Chas. Brackenbury, resigned, and Bro. Will J. Mathers was elected to fill the vacancy.

Lamoni brethren occupied Sunday pulpits at various places of worship in the Stake as follows: F. M. Smith and C. H. Lake, Davis City; H. A. Stebbins, Evergreen; R. S. Salyards and W. A. France, Hatfield; F. M. Weld, Lucas; J. D. Stead, Surprise school-house.

Pres. John Smith and Elder R. J. Lambert went to Greenville to fill an appointment made the day before, but after waiting an hour and no one appearing to meet them, returned without holding any service.

The local brethren are doing good work in the vicinity round about. Great interest is being taken in the question of "consecration," and activity seems to be on the increase in most places. C. C.

August 13.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Sr. Isabella Shields, formerly the wife of Bro. John Burlington, deceased, passed away at her home in Wathena, Kansas, on the 5th. She was laid to rest in beautiful Mt. Mora, the services occurring at the church here. She leaves a husband and five children—Sr. Isabella Jackson, Sr. Robert Winning, Sr. D. H. Blair, Bro. James and Elder John Burlington. Her husband was to the needy, and from providing for the missionary she turned not away.

To us the past eight days have been very pleasant, as each night we have been engaged in a very interesting series of meetings at the Aspey mission where many are inquiring the way of truth. The attendance, and attention and spirit have been excellent, for which we praise the Lord. Sr. Josie Isleib has rendered us great assistance by her musical talent; also Srs. Pearl Smith, daughter of Elder H. O., Sr. Tillie Garlich, and the Srs. Reidel. The meetings will continue indefinitely.

Bro. Chas. Hubacher and wife, Mina, started Saturday on their vacation trip for Denver and adjoining points of interest in Colorado. They go with the good wishes of all for a week of much needed rest from close application to business. Bro. Charles is stock manager, and Sr. Minna is head bookkeeper for Huttig, Moss Mfg. Co.

Bro. Best looked happier than usual last night, at our excellent meeting of which he had charge, and in looking around for a cause, aside from the good attendance, we discovered the presence of his wife, who had just returned from her happy visit to her old home in Iowa. Pearl also returned with her.

Mrs. Hamme, who was severely burned some time ago, and who was taken to a hospital, succumbed to the severity of her burns, and other causes, on the 8th, and was buried from our church here on Saturday. The sermon was by the writer. Many strangers heard of the fullness of the atonement. She leaves a husband and two small children. During the service at the church a telegram was handed him, stating that his mother was dead in Milwaukee, having died about the same time that his wife did. Truly a double bereavement—a wife of four years and a mother. What could be a greater loss?

Bro. Wm. Lewis and C. E. Guinand occupied at the church respectively on Sunday. Bro. Coventry Archibald at South St. Joseph last night. Coventry is one of our willing boys, ready always to say, "the best I can I'll do."

Bro. John Burlington and wife are spending a few days in our city after the burial of his mother. They contemplate a change in location, and may possibly choose St. Joseph as their future home.

Sr. Robt.-Jackson was quite sick on Friday of last week. Her sickness prevented the starting of Bro. Jackson on Saturday for Colorado, where he goes in search of health.

Sr. Ralph Brown, of Valley, Nebraska, attended our service at South Park yesterday morning. She is visiting her sister, Sr. Eliza Hawkins.

Sr. Oma Kinder is visiting relatives in Lamoni and other points near there; her little sister Dolly went with her.

Bro. and Sr. A. Hart, from Emporia, Kansas, sojourned in the city last night en route by team, to Lamoni, Iowa, where she will engage in educational matters.

Sr. Sadie Collins was seen making a train for Stewartsville, Missouri, where lives her mother.

Sr. Kinnaman, we heard something about peaches being ripe.

Bro. Swen Swenson and C. P. Paul came to the city and purchased a new tent and equipments for the district. It will be first pitched at old Far West where a protracted effort will be made. Bro. Swenson and B. J. Dice will operate it.

Bro. Wm. Ephraim Summerfield, one of the pioneer elders in this region, and who is still active in missionary work, passed through en route to Agency to hold some meetings.

We are pleased to learn that the work is being established in Chillicothe. Bro. Adams and others have done well, with Bro. R. S. Parker, who is an Elijah, who has prepared the way before them.

Yours for advancement,
J. M. TERRY.

1913 Holman St., Aug. 13.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street, services, Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday, Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 5731 Manchester Ave., services, Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

Lost! Noah N. Cooke; from his home in St. Louis wended his way Saturday last to Osage county, where he expects to be engaged in gospel work.

Visitors from out of town yesterday: Bro. Dunn from St. Joe; Bro. Butler, his daughter and nephew; present at the morning service.

Elder F. A. Smith was the speaker at morning and evening service yesterday, Bro. John Beard assisting. Bro. Smith also presided at prayer meeting last Wednesday evening.

Last Thursday the funeral of Bro. Gillespie was conducted from the undertaking rooms of F. Droste. His son from Cleveland, O., was here taking charge of the last sad rites. Bro. Geo. Gillespie attended prayer service Wednesday evening.

Last Tuesday evening at Cheltenham the ice cream social passed off pleasantly. A feature of the program was a solo by Bro. Alfred White.

Bro. A. Allen and A. White were in the city part of last week, leaving for their mission field after a brief visit.

Returned: S. A. and Harrel Burgess from the Buffalo Exposition Sunday evening.

A good attendance Sunday evening service. There were a number of strangers present.

Appointments yesterday were as follows: Ivor Davis, Cheltenham; R. Archibald, Belleville; J. J. Billinsky, Oak Hill.

ETNA M. HITCHCOCK.

2510 N. Garrison Ave., Aug. 13.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhouser, 507 Massachusetts Building. Telephone 613. Missionary in charge, John D. White, 609 Main St., Telephone 1358.

We are well prepared for such lovely weather as we are now enjoying, since the abundance of rains we are now having. In almost every back lot we can see men and women at work with a hoe working in their gardens. Many of the stores have had better trade in garden seed the last few weeks than they had last spring, and all kinds of garden truck is growing like magic. The large gardens in the suburbs of the city have revived wonderfully and soon vegetables will again be plenty.

The Sister's Aid Society will hold an ice cream social next Thursday evening on the lawn of Bro. and Sr. F. C. Warnky, 2422 Wabash avenue. They will also have on sale many useful articles of their own make, which they expect to dispose of.

Nearly all of the Saints went to Chelsea Park to the union meeting last Sunday. Early in the morning it rained, but cleared up about 8 or 9 o'clock, and the sun came out and the whole day was delightful, and the attendance was very good.

At 11 a. m. Apostle I. N. White called the meeting to order; Sr. Cordie White was chosen organist; Bro. W. H. Pease chorister. Bro. H. R. Mills lead in prayer, and Bro. M. T. Short preached a very instructive sermon; it was well received. At the noon hour the tables which belonged to the park were brought into service, and the beautiful grove looked perfectly lovely, and a happier lot of people are seldom ever seen. At 2:30 Elder J. A. Gillen presided over the meeting, Bro. F. C. Warnky lead in prayer and Elder R. J. Parker was the speaker, his subject was, "The Restoration of the Gospel." At 4 p. m. a good prayer and testimony meeting was enjoyed, Elder H. R. Mills and Bishop Ellis Short being in charge. At 7 p. m. Pres. J. D. White preached a good sermon. Quite a number of outsiders, who are investigating and are near the kingdom, were present all day and enjoyed all the meetings.

At night Elder J. A. Gillen preached at the Northeast mission; Elder F. C. Warnky in the Baptist chapel in north Kansas City to a full house. He will begin a revival meeting there next Monday night, and extends an invitation to all Saints, who can, to come and assist. He has a good interest in that part of the city.

Elder and Sr. Pickering and Sr. Spangler have gone on a visit to Colorado and Utah.

Sr. Chas. Householder, from Stewartsville, is visiting Bro. and Sr. Henry Ashbaugh.

Sr. Maude Warnky is making a protracted visit at Independence. Don't stay too long, Sr. Maude, the Sunday School is needing you. F.

August 13.

BENTON PARK, MO.

On July 1st, Bro. E. Etzenhouser and family moved into camp here.

Bro. Nephi May, and wife, for merly Anna Crick, are spending their honeymoon in camp here.

Bro. and Sr. Ordway's children, Ada, Clifton and Ora, are visiting with Sr. Etzenhouser.

Srs. Ida Pearson and Maude Warnky have been visiting here.

Sr. Eunice and Bro. Robert Winn attended teachers' meeting at Sr. Etzenhouser's camp last Thursday evening, others started but the attraction at Fairmount Park, just across the way, Banda Rossa, was too great for them.

Bro. and Sr. Horton and Sr. Eva M. Bailey were callers last week, in the interest of the Sunday School work.

Since the drouth is broken it is delightful in camp, our only inconvenience being the distance from church privileges.

ANON.

August 13.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 6 p. m.

We are having light showers nearly every day, and the weather is much more pleasant.

Bro. and Sr. Chas. Hubacher, of St. Joe, were in the city Sunday and attended the Religio service.

Bro. Henry G. Cole, of Boston, has been spending a few weeks with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Morris, near Denver, and left for home Monday. He and daughter Corrine were in attendance at the Sunday morning services.

Sr. Crowson, of Alton, Illinois, is visiting friends in the city.

Saturday evening a host of Saints and friends met at the home of Bro. and Sr. W. H. Fishburn, 1228 Cook street, to celebrate the 20th anniversary of their marriage. A very pleasant evening was spent and several nice presents were left by the departing guests.

Bro. Henry Hamlin has returned from Idaho satisfied that Denver is as good a place as there is anywhere in the west.

The concert given by the Religio Thursday night, the 8th inst., was fairly successful in a financial way, and would have been a success in a social way if some person had not tampered with the piano, thereby spoiling the instrumental music. If they are getting any satisfaction out of such procedure they are welcome to it. The choruses by the choir were excellent, some of them being very fine, as also the duet by Bro. J. W. Gilbert and Sr. Susie Shupe. The recitation by Sr. Floy Lewis was grand. As a whole the renderings were excellent. At the close a beautiful watch and chain were presented to Bro. J. W. Gilbert, by the Denver Saints, as a token of their appreciation of his untiring efforts to advance the song service of the branch. The matter had been kept a secret and Bro. G. was taken completely by surprise.

A reception will be given Bro. and Sr. Gilbert by Mr. Frank and Sr. Blanch Lewis Tuesday evening, at their home, 1638 Pennsylvania avenue, and they will leave Thursday via the D. & R. G. for San Francisco, to sail later for their missionary field, the South Sea Islands. We wish them success in their field of labor and a safe return to us at the close of their work in that far off land.

The preaching Sunday, both morning and evening was by Elder J. B. Roush.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Folsom Sts. Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacramento meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:45 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

The Sunday School was as interesting as ever last Sunday morning, and the usual interest taken in the studies.

At 11 o'clock we had preaching by Bishop Chas. A. Parkin. The church was well filled with members and friends. In the evening John A. Saxe was the speaker. Quite a number of strangers are hearing the word. There are some present at all of our services. Our general attendance is better now than it has been for years, and our sermons are spiritual and instructive.

There was a good attendance at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting. A good Spirit prevailled throughout, and nearly all present took part.

The Sisters' Prayer Union met Thursday afternoon at the residence of Sr. Roy Davis, 164 Julian avenue. An interesting time was had.

The Religio met Friday evening at the same place, and with the studies, music, etc., the young and old passed a very pleasant evening. The value of the seed sown at the Religio cannot be measured as yet, but will surely bring forth fruit.

Our city is now passing through a trying time on account of the strike. The Labor Union teamsters are striking to make the merchants acknowledge the union. They are also trying to prevent all non-union teamsters from driving. As a consequence very little freight is being moved, and very little fruit, merchandise, etc., is being taken from the docks. The few teams that are moving are under police protection. Many of our mills, factories, etc., are closed until the affair is settled. There is serious trouble ahead. Another of the signs of the times.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

CHICKASHA, I. T., July 17.

Dear Ensign:—In regard to the debate that was pending between Elder D. Collins, of Thompson, Nebraska, of the Christian church, and me, to be held at the Matthewson school-house, in Canadian county, Oklahoma, the debate was brought about by Elder Collins having lectured against us there. I replied to him. I had received the sanction of both the missionary and sub-missionary in charge, and also their consent, and also the good-will of the president of the district, to hold the debate. I have now turned the matter over to the sub-missionary in charge, as I find the few Saints who live where the debate is to be held prefer to have Bro. I. N. White to do the debating, they agreeing to pay his way there and return. I freely consent, for I assure you I do not want to stand in the way of Bro. White, if they can get him.

I have been stopping with Bro. J. F. Mantering for a month or so. He and Sr. Mantering are the only Saints in this community. Their little babe was sick when I came, and gradually became weaker. Seemingly the last ray of hope for his recovery was gone, but today there are some indications for a change for the better. They finally carried him to the doctor, and he told them there was nine chances against him where there was one for him. Bro. and Sr. Mantering having lost one little child before leaving Missouri, did not want me to leave them, so have tarried, but owing to excitement over the new country, drought, and no congregation, have not preached any, save a few times when I first came, in a school-house near by, which drew one of the (Christian) great men from the town of Chickasha to reply to me. They do not believe in the more excellent way as laid down by Bro. Paul of New Testament times. What a noise and smoke he did make, but that was all. It's the lightning that kills, not the thunder.

I will try my chance for a claim in the new country. Drawing will begin July 29th; August 6th is the day set for opening. Should I fail to get a home I will not cry; but the time to get a home is while we can. So can't do much in the way of preaching until after the opening.

Fraternally,
D. E. TUCKER.

STOCKTON, Cal., July 31.

Editor Ensign—I herewith give you a brief statement of my work in the Tolerant mission, as I have named it.

I commenced paying rent on the 27th of June, but did not get opened for visitors to amount to anything until after the 4th of July. From that time to the 30th I have given tracts and talked with one hundred and eighty-one persons. Quite a number of those who have obtained tracts have come back and talked with me three and four times, and a few are manifesting some interest. I have put into people's dooryards five hundred and thirty ENSIGNS, ninety-five Heralds and ninety Autumn Leaves. We have held small meetings every Sunday with from eight to fourteen in attendance, and if my health would have admitted I could have done much more, but I am thankful I am able to do the little I have done, and I feel so much better not to be eating the bread of idleness. I hope to build up the work here again in the course of a year, the Lord so willing and health permitting. I shall soon be out of tracts; who will send some? I am out of Autumn Leaves and sermons. One wishing to send tracts, it would be well for them to consult me as to what kinds I need. California Saints, who will donate "Presidency and Priesthood," by W. H. Kelley, "Voices of Warning," and other literature, that I can have, send them right along; now is the time.

My health is about as usual. My brethren and sisters, remember this mission with your books, tracts, papers, and means first, then with your prayers, and it will prosper sure. I am,

Your brother in the gospel covenant,
A. HAWS.

CORAL, Mich., Aug. 5.

Editor Ensign—Bro. Irwin and I began tent meetings here August 29th, and have been holding forth ever since; our crowds have not been very large, but the interest seems to be increasing. Two were baptized yesterday; one is eighty years of age, the other sixty-eight. Both seem to rejoice that they have living to hear the gospel preached in their towns.

The gift of tongues, and the interpretation were made manifest in our midst in our services yesterday; thanks to our heavenly Father for his blessings. I desire to say to the Saints of Southern Michigan that Bro. Irwin and I are operating the tent, opening up the work in new places, and the expenses incidental to such work are always more or less, so we solicit the aid of all those in this part of the mission who desire to see the work advance. If you can help us a little financially it will be gratefully received, and it will assist us in getting the gospel before the people. Address W. D. Ellis or Chas. E. Erwin, Coral, Michigan.

In gospel bonds,
W. D. ELLIS.

SUGAR CITY, Cal.

Editor Ensign—I am indeed a stranger in a strange land. We came to this place a few weeks ago. If there are any of the brethren in this part of the country, I would be so glad if they would call on me, or if any of the traveling elders pass through here, I want them to be sure and come. We live in the east part of town.

If any of the Saints would like steady employment this fall, this is a good place. A man with a good team can make from five to six dollars a day hauling beets to the sugar factory.

Your sister in the faith,
MRS. J. R. DIBBLE.

CARIBOU, Me., July 23.

Editor Ensign—I came to this section two weeks ago, found the people very busy haying, which prevented me from holding meetings a great deal during the week. Sunday is a busy day with us however; have been holding our services in a small grove in the edge of this village. Quite a number in attendance last Sunday. The few Saints living here are very much scattered, yet nearly all were present on Sunday morning to partake at the Lord's table. A good meeting indeed; many good testimonies were borne and beautiful songs sung. The Saints are laboring here under some difficulties, and all things considered they are doing very well. There are several just now investigating the work; what the outcome will be remains for time to tell.

Recently there has been two cyclones here accompanied by hail, that has done considerable damage. Some buildings blown down, and some fruit trees destroyed, and also other crops suffered; beside it blew the groves down. The hail stones were so large they destroyed grain and glass. It is reported that at Limestone pieces of ice fell measuring ten inches in length, but I cannot vouch for it. It has been very hot; the thermometer registered 116 one day last week, yet the crops are looking fine; frequent showers fell to push them along. Grains are looking elegant, and judging from the looks of the tops there will be an abundant yield of the tubers. Last year this (Aroostook) county harvested four million barrels of potatoes. Possibly no other country in this world equals this county for potato growing. This country resembles that around or near Independence—it is becoming more expensive to grow potatoes now as the old farms require more fertilizing.

S. O. FOSS.

WEAUBLEAU, Mo., July 22.

Dear Ensign:—Soon after General Conference I started out in the mission field, associated with Bro. C. P. Welsh. Labored with him for a while. Bro. Moler, our missionary in charge, called me in and placed Bro. T. R. White and I with the district tent. We set up at Roscoe, the place of our domicile. We held forth ten or twelve evenings. Attendance was fair, good attention given throughout our stay there. Two young ladies, having been convinced that we were preaching the gospel of Christ, yielded obedience, seeing that it was necessary for them to be born again of the water and of the Spirit, then yielding obedience to the fourth principle, the laying on of hands, and as a result of their obedience, they have become the daughters of Christ. May the Lord bless them in this, the day of perplexities that are upon the earth. There are many more at Roscoe who are almost persuaded to obey the restored gospel. We shall not forget to mention that the business men of Roscoe contributed very liberally to our tent fund for which we are very thankful, and our God will not forget to reward them for the favor.

We thence moved a distance of eighteen miles to Collins, a small town on the Gulf R. R. Put up tent July 6th. Our attendance was not large, but those that did attend were men and women who made no profession whatever, but I am sure our efforts will not be in vain. This is the hardest place I ever struck. I distributed one hundred or more tracts over the town, invited the people out to hear us, tried every way to interest them with the truth, but could not. Our tent was finely located, the directors having given us permission to locate on their school-grounds near Main street, where there was plenty of good water, but this would not entice them to come to the place of worship. I am sure we, as God's servants, have done all required of us, so we leave the rest in the hands of God. Our next move was to Weaubleau, five miles east of Collins, in Hickory county. This place is as full of prejudice as a rattlesnake is of poison. No one of our missionaries has ever been able to get them out. We have been here four nights only; we are of the opinion now that our attendance will be fair; some are already interested and it may be the tide is turning at this place for good. When the time of the gentiles is ended, this nation will be given in the hands of the Jews, for God has so decreed it. We are told by those best posted in statistical matters that the Jews own almost seventy-five per cent of the wealth of this nation in the way of mortgages, and if this be the case, such dearths as we have upon us at present, would not have to continue long until they would control or own this country entirely. Well, something has got to happen to favor scattered Israel, and God will hasten it in His time. Let us, as we have been admonished by our brother and missionary in charge, purify ourselves quickly. May we all walk worthy of the blessings of God in the prayer of your missionary in the gospel of Jesus Christ.

J. N. STEPHENSON.

BALD KNOR, Ark., Aug. 1.

Editor Ensign:—Bro. Joe Ward and I have held a series of meetings at Benville, Henderson and Wheeling, respectively, in July, at each of which we had good attendance and interest, and enjoyed good liberty in presenting the word.

Bro. Ward has done the pioneer work in North Arkansas, encountering, and overcoming to a great extent, stubborn prejudice and fierce opposition. We are now able to make a second canvass of above points, where we are meeting with large crowds and baptizing a few, and leaving many nearly persuaded, while others are laying aside their prejudice and are investigating.

Bro. and Sr. A. A. Farra live at Wheeling, and were uniting in their efforts to care for the preachers and make the meetings a success. We also acknowledge kindness of Bro. I's father, mother and sister, Miss Bertha, who contributed no little to pleasure of our stay there. Mr. Farra, though a believer of the faith, has never been obedient, but is a liberal minded man, and was the only one in his neighborhood, in Ohio, thirty years ago, who would furnish a home for the elder, Bro. Wagoner, while he presented the gospel there. We hope soon to see him in the covenant of peace.

An all night's ride in a lumber wagon last night landed us at Mammoth Springs, Arkansas, at 4 this a. m., where we boarded the train for Bald Knor. We go on to Sallitto to mornover, near where the Ingleside camp meeting begins, Saturday 3d. We return here August 11th, where camp meeting will begin, and thence to Martin's Creek, Sharp county, for similar meeting, August 28th to September 8th. We are glad to inform the Saints that Bro. H. O. Smith will be with us at each of these meetings. Our Baby Bilhorn organ is a magnet, it is equal to one missionary.

Bro. Ward and I find plenty to do in the northern part of the state, while Bro. Jackson and Babcock are active and pushing the work in the southern part.

A few of the Saints are taking up the home study of the Quarterly, and two Sunday Schools are still on deck. This field seems now to present a favorable outlook for work. We must have six missionaries next year if possible.

In the faith,

MACON, Mo., July 31.

Editor Ensign:—The work is onward in Macon. Bro. Corthell and the writer are operating the district tent at this place, having begun here the 18th inst. Thus far we feel that some good has been done. At first our meetings were poorly attended, but through the influence of Bro. F. Palfrey we secured the city park, and are holding forth there now with fine interest and fair crowds. Bro. J. A. Tanner will be with us tonight; we expect Bro. I. N. White Saturday. The Saints at Bevier have assisted us in our singing, and with the help of Bro. Palfrey we have been able to make ourselves heard here. We are at the home of Bro. P, who has cared for us well, and has sustained the financial end of the battle. May the Lord bless his home.

We have issued an invitation to the people of Macon to hear the angel's message, and hope to reach the ears of the honest in heart.

Your brother,
WALTER W. SMITH.

THE CAUSE AND ITS EFFECT.

In the 29th chapter of Isaiah, the last verse, we read as follows:

"They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine."

By reading the context, or the whole chapter, we are given to understand that just before Palestine should be restored to its former fertility, the Lord was to do a "marvelous work and a wonder." He was to cause a physical change over the land of Palestine, of a universal nature, but the greatest effect was to be that "they also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine."

God's educating power was to be so made manifest, that the result would be apparent to the children of men. Latter Day Saints claim that in 1830 the church of Jesus Christ was organized, under command of God, after the pattern of apostles, prophets, etc., and the gospel was restored to earth in fulfillment of Revelation 14: 6; that this happened a few years previous to the restoration of Palestine, which marvelous event took place in 1853, when the former and latter rains were restored, as Frank G. Carpenter, the well known correspondent, wrote, "to the great astonishment of the people there."

If God really has started this "marvelous work and a wonder" spoken of in Isaiah, we have a right to look for the effects the text says would take place. Has there really been any marked change since the introduction of what we call the Latter Day work, which started in 1830? If a great change has taken place, what has been the cause of that effect, as we must admit that every effect is the result of some cause. If those who "erred" shall "learn doctrine," will it not be by the introduction of the truth?

Now, here are some late clippings that show what the LEADERS in modern theology are thinking about.

"A BETTER DAY AT HAND—REV. THOMAS ROBENT SEES HOPE OF BETTER THINGS IN THE NEW THEOLOGY

"Rev. Thomas Robent, pastor of the First Congregational church, Braddock, Pa., yesterday morning discussed 'The New Theology.' He said in part:

"More acutely than ever do we feel that there is a theological revolution at the doors. By a thousand signs it is clear that the theology of the churches has changed and is still changing. There is tremendous strength in the onward movement.

"I am convinced that the essential living question in modern theology is the doctrine of the Scriptures. With the fall of the old doctrine of the infallibility of the Scriptures, the great mass of medieval theology must like wise go—then will rise a new theology upon the world like the dawning of spring.

"The new theology, however, is working towards a return to fundamental principles, and the dawn of a better and brighter day is at hand." [Extract from sermon as printed].

A "return to fundamental principles"—that implies that there has been a wandering away from them, an apostacy in fact, which intelligent christians everywhere admit took place in the church of Jesus Christ. The "better day" then would be a restoration of Christ's church and his gospel, "which came not in word only, but in power and in demonstration."

Here is a clipping from the writing of one of our foremost religious educators:

"THE FAITH AND THE SAINTS—REV. GEORGE HODGES ARGUES THAT THE FORMER SHOULD STAND JUST AS IT WAS AT FIRST DELIVERED.—THE MANY ADDITIONS WHICH HAVE LED TO ACCUSATIONS OF HERESY.—ORIGINALLY VERY SIMPLE AND BRIEF.

"Ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints." Delivered once for all. That is what the word means. It denotes an act which need not be repeated. Thus it is said in another place, in contrast with the sacrifices which the high priest offered every year, Christ was 'once' offered. That one offering sufficed. And this one deliverance of the faith St. Jude would teach us is sufficient. The true word has been spoken. Any other word must be compared with this, and be approved only in proportion to its agreement with this authoritative and final utterance.

"The christian preacher was very sure of his sermon in those days. St. Paul was so absolutely certain that he was teaching the whole doctrine of God, that he did not hesitate to say that if even an angel from heaven should preach any other gospel he would thereby be proved to be, not only a mistaken and heretical, but even an accursed angel. There was no doubt about it. The light that shone from heaven illuminated the mind of Paul so that there was not a shadow in it. 'I know,' he says, again and again. He did not guess; he did not argue cautiously from the known to the unknown; he did not read a shelf of books on this side of the question, and another shelf of books on the other side; and add up two columns of resulting figures and thus come to a conclusion which he might tentatively hold until another book should make a change in his position.

"THE COURAGE OF HIS CONVICTIONS.

"No man ever lived who was more sure of anything than St. Paul was of every article of his belief. That was what gave him his enormous influence. He went about people who were perplexed and puzzled, asking questions and getting no answers, not knowing what to think; and he spoke in a good, loud voice, so that everybody could hear, and in plain words, which the simplest could understand, and taught men without hesitation, without reservation, promptly, definitely, and with unqualified assurance, as Moses might have preached when he came down Sinai hill, having talked with God.

"St. Jude has the same confidence. The faith, he says, has already been delivered to the saints. We have the truth. He is aware, indeed, that this truth is questioned, that some bold folk even deny it, preaching sermons quite different from Jude's. But his sense of certainty is not disturbed. He fears lest some of his congregation may be unsettled, and writes this letter to confirm their faith; but his faith falters not. Bold he stands, like a shepherd by his flock when the wolves howl in the neighborhood, shouting defiance.

"Regarding St. Jude's earnestness, however, there can be no question. He halted not between opinions. He was thoroughly satisfied in his own mind. He knew what he believed and had no doubts about it. He was as sure of it as he was of his own being. St. Paul and St. Jude represent the attitude of the other christian teachers of their time. All things were against them. The influential people of the towns in which they preached gave them scant and disrespectful hearing; the religious leaders of the time were in opposition, having no faith in their new gospel; to the philosophers and the book-writers the whole movement seemed not even of enough consequence to be amusing. Public opinion—that dread, mysterious, terrifying adversary—was stout against them. In these timid days, when a review article frightens us out of our faith, and a popular novel makes us afraid for the foundation of our religion, and when even the orthodox fall into dismay at the remote imagination of heresy, and feel that the whole church is descending precipitately into the Great Bad, we may well applaud the robust faith of that earlier time when no attack, no argument, no majority of unbelief and opposition, stirred from their sure confidence the men and women who had put their faith in the gospel and the living God.

"A LAMENTABLE CHANGE.

"What makes this difference? How comes it that we seem less secure than they were? What is it which causes this lamentable change in the tone of christian preaching? Several reasons might, no doubt, be given, but one reason I wish especially to offer and to emphasize. The faith which these staunch believers had and preached was a simpler faith than ours. It was like the creed of the blind man whose eyes Jesus had opened. This one thing I know. The scribes and Pharisees plied him with hard questions, and he had no ready answers, he was no match for them in argument. But that did not for an instant disconcert him. How this and that may be, he says, I know not. This one thing I know, that whereas I was blind now I see.

St. Paul goes out upon his mission intent upon essentials. He refuses to be distracted from his supreme purpose. He tells us that he definitely resolved to preach nothing save Jesus Christ and Him crucified. That Jesus Christ had come from God and gone back to God, very God of very God, opening the blessed heavens, and that He had died to save us from our sins, this one thing he knew.

"The faith which was so strongly held in that early time was the faith which was once delivered to the saints. That is a somewhat different thing from the faith as it was afterwards delivered by the theologians. It may be that our departing from the fine serenity of the fathers, is due to some confusion, which they happily knew not, as to the actual contents of the faith.

MANY ADDITIONS MADE.

Presently the observations of the fathers upon the faith of the saints came to be added to that faith, so that men were now urged to earnestly contend not only for the brief and essential gospel, but for the interpretations, true and false together, which had been put upon the gospel. The christian must believe not only St. John and St. Paul, but also St. Athanasius and St. Augustine. Some of these comments upon the faith corresponded to the conclusions of a similar process which had gone on among the Jews and had resulted in what Jesus called tradition. He said that they made the word of God of more effect through their traditions which they had 'delivered,' using the word of the text. Again was the word of God made of more effect in the same way. Some good man wrote in the margin of his Bible his ideas about the philosophical nature of the Holy Trinity, and a hundred years after these ideas were accounted as sacred as the Bible itself.

"We are still in the midst of the inevitable confusion into which such a confounding of text and comment leads. We must accept the faith which was once delivered to the saints, and also as of equal value the remarks upon that faith which have since been made, in the pulpit or in the council chamber, by John Calvin or Martin Luther, or the Westminster Assembly of Divines—a condition of things of which St. Paul never dreamed, and to which he would not have submitted; no not for an hour. Indeed, to such a pass have we come that he who questions the infallibility of those excellent commentators, and suggests that saints and scholars of the twentieth century may perchance be as wise as they, is thought to have made a treacherous attack upon the faith itself.

"The faith, as we have seen, was simple, not only in its lack of extended explanation, but in the brevity of its details. It touched the great essential verities. These were not, indeed, the only truths which might be gathered out of Holy Scripture, but they were the chief of all. St. Paul, who delivered unto the saints the fact of the resurrection of Jesus Christ, spoke also of the personal adornment of christian women, of the manner in which the hair should be dressed, and of the wearing of veils. But St. Jude's congregation knew very well what 'the faith' meant. They knew that it included only the great facts of the work of the divine Redeemer.

"THE BEGINNING OF HERESY.

"Gradually, as theologians had leisure to assemble the many statements of the New Testament and tabulate them, one detail after another was added to the faith. Presently it was required of christians that they should believe in these minor details even as they believed in the essential verities. And then authoritative interpretations of these minor details were added to the statement of the faith. So that by and by he who differed from his neighbors in his thoughts about the holy communion was held up to reputation as a heretic. Whoever could not subscribe to the prevalent idea of predestination had denied the faith. The doctrine of baptismal regeneration, variously defined, was set among the articles of the faith. And finally it came to pass that one might be accused of departing from the faith who differed from the opinion of some unknown Jewish scribe as to the date at which some book of the Old Testament was written.

"We are still in the midst of this confusion. The faith has fallen into the condition of the sacrament of baptism in the middle ages, when it was surrounded by such a perplexity of symbols that the congregation knew not whether the baptism was the pouring of water, or the sprinkling of salt, or the putting on of a white robe, or the anointing with oil. What is the faith? Is it the doctrine of absolution, or the fact of the descent of Christ into hell, or the episcopal constitution of the church, or the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch?

"Thus have we fallen into our unhappy divisions, and are bewildered amongst many counselors, and perplexed amidst opposing voices; thus has that earnest contention for the faith, to which St. Paul exhorts us, become an angry contention betwixt brethren, a strife over small things, during which the faith goes neglected. It is well, indeed, to contend for the faith against those who deny it; but it is necessary today, as it was in Christ's own time, to defend the faith against those overzealous supporters of it who would first hedge it about with their own interpretations and then defend the hedge as if it were the faith itself."

The leaders are "learning doctrine." They have discovered the fact that they haven't the faith, and are telling it right out in "open meetin'."

When the boy, Joseph Smith, was told by revelation, that none of the creeds were right, but were an abomination in God's sight, he only heard then what theologians admit now, they are "learning doctrine;" why?

Here is another one that has "murmured:"

"WAS SEVERE IN DEALING WITH OLD DOCTRINES—REV. T. M. HARTMAN DISCUSSED CHANGES THAT HAVE TAKEN PLACE—CAUSE OF THE DECADENCE.

"Changes in Christian Doctrine" was the subject last night of the sermon preached by Rev. T. M. Hartman, pastor of the First Cumberland Presbyterian Church of McKeesport. It was the fourth in a series of sermons on "The Religions Progress of the Nineteenth Century." He was severe in his handling of some of the doctrines which he declares have gone out of date. In part he said:

"It requires no prophet to see that many of the old dogmas once dear to the makers and worshippers of creeds, have long since been outgrown. It is ruinous to insist, in this day of broad scholarship and thorough research, on the old plenary theory of Bible inspiration—that God used men like penstocks in writing the Bible, and the Bible is a complete and only revelation of the Divine Being. The old doctrine of "total depravity"—that men are physically, intellectually and morally depraved, that we have inherited the curse of eternal death, that all the human race is plunged in disaster because of the misdoings of the first pair—has no longer a place in modern religious thought. The doctrine of election and reprobation is dead. That a just, wise and loving God would elect a small part of the human race to eternal life, and condemn the large majority to eternal death, and that God is as much glorified in the damnation of the many as He is in the salvation of the few, has long since become unbearably offensive to human consciousness, though the doctrine still lingers in some of the creeds.

"The doctrine of retribution has also been wonderfully modified in the latter part of this century. The smoke of the furnace has been cleared away by the rising of the sun of righteousness. Not only is the monstrous doctrine of infant damnation, as preached fifty years ago, expelled from modern thought, but the pearly gates have been found sufficiently wide for numberless multitudes of hitherto condemned adults to pass through. Retribution is relegated to the conscience, and the conscience is the creature of heredity, education and environment."

What's back of all this broadening of interpretation of the word of God?

Here is a quotation from a sermon delivered November 18, 1900:

"ITS WEAK SPOTS—REV. ALFRED NICHOLSON POINTS OUT PROTESTANTISM'S FLAWS—LACK OF AUTHORITY FIRST.

In the East End Presbyterian church yesterday the pastor, Rev. Alfred Nicholson, preached a striking sermon on "Weak Spots in Protestantism."

"His text was, 'Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation.' His sermon was as follows:

"The present decade is one that has bred and bristles with repellent forces, both numerous and grave. Organ is in conflict with organism; progeny with parents; individual with corporate interests; statal with national issues and personal caprice with canonical obedience. This may be a sign of development, it may be a sign of independence of thought, it may be a sign of retrogression, it may be a symptom of anarchy. The significant individualism of the age appears in all the departments of man's life and labors. As an honest and hardworking teacher of good morals and sound doctrine I have not scrutinized, without alarm, the effect of the present tendency upon the whole area of Protestant christianity, and what is more lamentable, upon the very vitals of christianity itself. The protean forms of ecclesiastism are of no more moment to me than monkish jungles, but as a rational and moral being endowed with parental responsibility and immortal aspirations, I cannot but view the present outlook of gospel vigor with apprehension, discouragement and doubt.

"We make the claim that Protestantism is composed of those who, having protested against the innovations of mediocrity, endowed posterity with the apostolic form of christianity. If Protestantism as we see it is essentially apostolic christianity, then God pity us! What advantageth us if we have fought with beasts at Ephesus. Let us eat and drink for tomorrow we die.

"PROTESTANTISM TODAY.

"The beginnings of Protestantism are lustrous in the character of its founders and the spiritual heroism of its defenders, and to Presbyterianism in particular God has granted spiritual giants who impressed its institutions with order and decency and coherence. Let us look at our Protestantism, and especially our Presbyterianism, today. Let us mark with shame and sorrow her weakness as she totters to her fall. We do not gloat over her decay as an enemy. We rather give the alarm that we may repair to our original stronghold and from her neglected arsenals clothe ourselves with those weapons that will silence her enemies and regain her lost possessions.

"The first and fatal weakness of Presbyterianism today, and generally of the entire Protestant fabric, is lack of authority. This weakness is vital. It is as undeniable as it is deplorable."

Protestantism was a protest against the errors of Catholicism, but who "with authority" is to protest against the errors of Protestantism? It reminds one of the rhyme:

The river Rhine, as is well known,
Washes the city of Cologne,
But oh ye gods, what power divine,
Can ever cleanse the river Rhine!

Is there not need today for just such a "marvelous work and a wonder" that will help these perplexed, murmuring religious instructors, and teach them "doctrine" as it is promised in the 29th of Isaiah?

Here is a quotation from an address made before the Christian Endeavors at the time they held their convention at Cleveland, Ohio, several years ago:

"An address on 'International Fellowship' was delivered by Rev. F. R. Dauley, D. D., of Springfield, Illinois:

"Fellowship among all the forces of the Church of Christ comes to us with an imperative command in view of the threatened condition of our civil and religious institutions which we are concerned to defend and preserve. For the Church to remain divided would be the madness of insanity. Ultra-montanism has taken advantage of a divided Protestantism to banish the Bible from our public schools.

"The one American institution which above all others is pre-eminently essential to good citizenship is our free public schools. The sinful division of Protestantism has well nigh surrendered the stronghold of our christian civilizations. More than ever before the age demands a co-related and co-ordinated unity of all the diversified forms of church life."

What kind of an organization should succeed this "sinful division of Protestantism?" Can we ever hope to have any church superior to that which Christ organized? Should we not investigate then, a church that claims to be the church of Christ restored to earth, preaching the old Jerusalem gospel as is recorded throughout the New Testament? The church of Christ is sometimes called the kingdom of God; is that what this great light in the Protestant world wants, who uttered the following in December 30, 1894:

"The kingdom of God for which we pray is coming just as fast as we can make the road for it. When we really want it, and open the way for it, it will be here. That strong promise of Jesus Christ, 'Ask and ye shall receive,' holds absolutely true. Society gets everything that it asks for. Only we must not think that asking is but a matter of the lips. We really pray when our hearts utter the prayer, and when, having done our part, we ask God to do His, such prayer is always answered.

"When a wrangling church, divided into competing denominations, broken into parties, and too busy fighting christian against christian, to have much time to fight the devil—when such a church prays for the speedy coming of God's kingdom, God does not heed the unmeaning prayer. He waits for a real invitation. When we make his way straight, when we clear some of our unrighteous obstacles out of it, he will come."

The Lord has said, "this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world as a witness, and then shall the end come."

In 1880, when this Latter Day Saint church was organized, there were very few countries that would permit the gospel to be preached among their inhabitants. There was an effort made by this church to present the gospel, as it has been restored, to every crowned head. In November, 1841, a letter was written to Queen Victoria, and in December, 1841, a "proclamation" was published in the Times and Seasons, the organ of the church, some extracts of which appear below:

Send forth the elders of my church unto the nations which are afar off; unto the islands of the sea; send forth unto foreign lands; call upon all nations; firstly, upon the Gentiles, and then upon the Jews. And behold and lo, this shall be their cry; and the voice of the Lord unto all people: Go ye forth unto the land of Zion, that the borders of my people may be enlarged, and that her stakes may be strengthened, and that Zion may go forth unto the regions round about; yea, let the cry go forth among all people; awake and arise and go forth to meet the Bridegroom. Behold, and lo, the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him. Prepare yourselves for the great day of the Lord.—D. & C. Sec. 103, par. 3.

And now verily saith the Lord, that these things might be known among you, O inhabitants of the earth, I have sent forth mine angel, flying through the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel, who hath appeared unto some, and hath committed it unto man, who shall appear unto many that dwell on the earth; and this gospel shall be preached unto every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, and the servants of God shall go forth, saying, with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come, and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and sea, and the fountains of waters.—D. & C. Sec. 103, par. 7.

See how the way has been opened so the gospel can be preached to "every nation, kindred, tongue and people."

The following is taken from The Christian Union Herald, published by the Presbyterian Board of Publication:

"ENGLAND.—One hundred years ago, when Carey went forth as the first foreign missionary, England was so hostile to his work that she forbade his passage on an English ship, or his work under the English flag; today England is the heart of missions.

"FRANCE.—In '71 McAll commenced Protestant work. Repeatedly he has been decorated, and now is knighted by the government.

"ITALY.—Thirty years ago a Protestant was not permitted to bring a Bible into Rome; now thirty Protestant churches stand under the shadow of St. Peter's dome.

"TURKEY.—Religious toleration was decreed in 1856; its realization is bitterly contested, but the political power is rapidly drifting to men educated in Roberts' College.

"CHINA threw open her gates in 1858. Hon. S. W. Williams, her great historian, said 'before his death: 'God will do a work for China in the next few years that will astonish the world. At the present rate of increase she will be nominally christian in the next fifty years.

"SIAM.—When the first missionary landed, a Siamese scholar said with a sneer: 'Have you come to overthrow Buddhism with a toothpick?' When he left, broken in health, a Siamese statesman said: 'You have undermined Buddhism in Siam.' The king and queen now support the christian schools.

"COREA.—One of her leading statesmen is translating the Bible. He says it is the greatest work he can do for his country.

"JAPAN.—Thirty-seven years ago it was death for a christian to set foot on her soil. The law read: 'So long as the Sun shall warm the world, let no christian be so bold as to come to Japan, and let all know that if even the christian's God violate this command, he shall pay for it with his head.' In 1856 our Christian Republic knocked for admittance, and the gates that had been locked for three centuries swung open.

"MADAGASCAR.—The first convert died a few years ago. He had seen his people transformed from savage, cannibal tribes to a christian nation and prohibition state; 70,000 converts, and the church pass from a persecution of twenty five years, whose blazing fires and boiling caldrons could not weaken the converts nor check their increase.

"INDIA.—Eighty-five years ago Henry Martyn said: 'The conversion of a Hindu would be next to the resurrection of a dead body.' By the close of this decade, at the present rate, there will be two million converts.

"THE ISLANDS OF THE PACIFIC.—Forty years ago they were inhabited by naked, savage cannibals; today there is scarce an idolator. Darwin saw them when the first missionaries went out, and said: 'You might as well try to civilize a cow.' A few years ago he visited the same islands, and wrote: 'I would not have believed that all the missionaries in the world could have produced such a change.'

We are searching for causes. What is the cause of all this foreign toleration since 1830? And what is the cause of this unrest and dissatisfaction, as pictured by this writer, Rev. T. H. McMichael, November 3, '94.

"CHRISTIAN LOYALTY

"BY REV. T. H. MCMICHAEL.

"An aged Father in Israel, one who has since passed to his reward, one day as he laid his hand upon my shoulder used words like these: 'I almost tremble as I look at the future, as I think of the grave questions that are to meet you of the coming generation, and of the strength and courage that will be needed to meet them aright.' And are not these words descriptive of the age in which we are to live and act? It is a time of crisis. Conditions are changing with wonderful rapidity Old things are passing away, a new order is being ushered in—W. T. Stead calls it 'A crucial period in the history of the human race'—another speaks of it as 'A transition state in modern civilization'; another terms it 'A period of preparation.' Every breeze bears to our ears the whispers of revolution, in the social, political and religious worlds. From Germany, from England, from France, we hear the wild tramp of surging masses. From the Hermit Nations of the Orient comes the news of the crumbling of traditions and customs centuries old.

"We turn to our own land, and do we not stand appalled as we look to the unrest and fermentation that is going on all about us? Grave questions, questions of national and world-wide moment are everywhere pressing themselves upon us, and in no gentle voice are demanding solution.

"Throughout the whole order of things there is unrest; there is discontent; there are clashing interests, each cutting athwart the other. On the horizon are dark clouds. Out of the gathering blackness comes the moaning of a storm, as the mariner on the mighty deep views with apprehension the lowly cloud bank, so the wisest of our land today are turning white, anxious faces to the future, and are asking whereunto all this will grow.

"THE REMEDY.

"But is there no hope, no remedy, no way by which the troubled elements may be stilled? Long years ago when that little sea, nestled among the mountains of Galilee, grew boisterous, when the wind clouds frowned in blackness, and the storm swept down those mountain gorges until the little fishing bark of the disciples was beaten and tossed and well-nigh shattered by the angry billows, it was the form they discerned, dimly outlined through the darkness, the form of him who walked those waves that gave those disciples hope, and it was when he spake, 'Peace be still,' that the winds fled away and the waves crouched like spaniels at his feet. It was a miracle—it is a parable. Amid the disturbances of these present times, and the darkening clouds that overshadow—where is hope? Have you any, save as you discern the form of him who walked the waves of Galilee—and though you may hear a babel of voices, hear you any voice save his voice that reassures your heart, and speaks with such authority as to command the wind and the waves? Yes, it is the presence of the Man of Nazareth alone, nail-pierced and thorn-crowned, that can bring peace to the disturbed conditions of today. It is the gospel of the crucified One—the gospel of the blood and of the cross, that is the power of God unto salvation, and it is when this touches and permeates our civilization at every point that warring elements will be at rest. 'Neither is there salvation in any other.'

"THE APPLICATION OF THE REMEDY.

"Here, then, the hope, the remedy. But how is it to become efficient? 'Ye are my witnesses unto the people.' 'Ye are the light of the world.' 'Ye are the salt of the earth.' 'Ye are debtors both to the Greeks and the barbarians, both to the wise and the unwise.' 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel.' The application of the remedy. The proclamation of the gospel, Christ has committed to his church, to the company of them that believe. It is the only and all-sufficient remedy, but whether it will prove such here or not depends upon those who have received it; their faithfulness, their zeal, their loyalty.

"PRESENT OPPORTUNITY.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at its flood, leads on to fortune. Omitted, all the voyage of their life is bound in shallows and in miseries. 'In the history of our nation, as of the world, is the tide not at its flood? Do not all these changes, this upheaving of old foundations, proclaim it to be a time of wonderful possibility; of wonderful promise for the church of Christ, if she but prove herself equal to the occasion and to the demands of the hour?'"

"And especially is this not true of the church of America? Not only does she do battle today for her own homes and freights; but for humanity. Gettysburg was the decisive battle of the Civil War. Round Top was the key to that battle; about that little wooded knoll surged and struggled with Titanic strength the contending armies. Had the division of the Union army there stationed, had Hancock and Sikes and Sykes and Humphrey fallen at that point and in that hour, who can tell what the result would have been? 'America Christianized' means the world Christianized,' says Prof. Hoppin. 'If America fails the world will fail,' says another. 'I believe,' says Dr. Strong, 'it is fully in the hands of the christians of the United States, during the next ten or fifteen years, to hasten or retard the coming of Christ's kingdom in the world by hundreds or perhaps thousands of years. Truly then,

"We are living, we are dwelling, in a grand and awful time, in an age on ages telling, To be alive is sublime."

"Yes, to be living during the next decade, the next quarter century is sublime, if we realize and rise to meet the responsibilities that are upon us, but shameful, criminal if we do not. Gettysburg is here. Those now in the prime of life are engaging the enemies' vanguard, already we hear the rattle of their musketry, but upon you, now young, just entering upon the activities of life, will break the full tide of this battle. It will be yours to occupy and hold Round Top against the enemies' fierce assaults. Thus never did that exhortation of the old battle-scarred veteran of Tarsus to his son Timothy come with more of ringing force than it comes to you today: 'Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.' Never was more needed, absolute and unwavering loyalty to him 'whose you are and whom you serve.'"

What gospel is it that is going to help the nation but the gospel of the KINGDOM.

It's a time for the faith once delivered to the Saints to be made manifest. Christ said one sign that should precede his second coming would be that this gospel of the kingdom would be preached. Some of our brightest theologians admit they have not been preaching "the faith once delivered to the saints." Hear the angel's message in Revelations 14: 6, 7:

"And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters."

Instead of worshipping the God of the creeds, that have been so misrepresenting him, the nations are to worship the true God. If the gospel has been preached on earth ever since Christ left, why should the angel bring it to earth when it was here. The facts are, men have been teaching, and are universally admitting it, for doctrine the commands of men. The gospel has been restored, the gospel of power; the church has again been established, its force is being felt, and "they that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine."

C. Ed. M.

Be Interested as Well as Interesting.

Entertaining conversation is not alone dependent upon a well-stored mind, a ready wit or broad culture. It lays under contribution qualities of heart as well as head, and should reveal sincerity, sympathy and simplicity. We must feel an interest in our subject before we can inspire it, and enthusiasm is contagious when it is sincere. It gives animation to the face, vivacity to the manner, and has a thought-compelling power that aids fluency of expression.

Sympathy and adaptability are created in a measure by the desire to please, but one must be sensitive to the mood of one's audience and quick to perceive when some one else wishes to speak. There are talkers who metaphorically take the bit between their teeth and run away with a subject. When they finally cease no one has anything to say, despairing of opportunity.

Without simplicity no conversation has charm. The moment we perceive that it is labored, or that the speaker seems to calculate the effect of his words, if unnecessary mention is made of desirable acquaintances, or there is a display of attainments or mock-innocent vaunting of advantages—that moment do we feel only contempt for the affectation and pretense. Truth has a marvelous power of making itself felt, in spite of what is said. Self-consciousness is but egotism under a less severe name, and self must be forgotten before we can add to our speech the grace and dignity of simplicity.—Mrs. Burton Kingsland in Ladies' Home Journal.

DAUGHTERS OF ZION
MRS. H. B. CURTIS, EDITOR.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

Editor's Address, 111 So. Fuller Ave., Independence, Mo.

JUST now, when the attention and desire of those who are older, is concentrated in the effort to devise some means to interest the young and keep them within the pales of the church, the thought has come to me, that work, good wholesome work, and not continual novelty, will serve to keep the young alive in gospel, and that idleness fosters the feeling of discontent and unrest, that is responsible for so many of our young becoming dissatisfied and uneasy.

There are so many avenues of usefulness open to the young, and along the lines of church work, too. We have been used to relegate to the fathers, mothers and officers of the church, the duty of visiting the sick and aged, and caring for the poor and helpless.

Why need this be? Do not the old and sick love to see a fresh, young face, and imbibe some of the enthusiasm of youth? Will it not put new strength into them to enter, even ever so little, into a life they have left behind them? Read to them, chat with them of the great outside world, from which they are shut out, and minister to them in the thousand little ways that are so dear to them, and you will find abundant recompense both here and hereafter.

Every one of our girls should have, and strive to foster, the strong mother instinct that makes any woman lovely in the sight of God and man. Girls, do you never see neglected little ones, who are without the proper mother care, either from carelessness on the part of the mother, or perhaps because they have none? Is there nothing for you to do here? Can you not sew, mend and make over for such little unfortunates? Christ says, "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these, ye do it unto me." Is there not reward enough in that, or shall we go through life not seeing, not noticing any of the little things to do, that bring such rich returns, and then in turn become a burden ourselves and an added responsibility to those who have already so much to do? Do we have to be brided to stay in the church, and think you your crown will be as glorious?

Boys and girls, you who have reached the age of young man and womanhood, think for yourselves, see for yourselves, act for yourselves, and, by so doing, help to roll along this work.

God, in His Word and in every phase of nature, gives us to understand that He abhors idleness, and that the idle shall not be equal partakers with the industrious. Are you not, in a sense, spiritual idlers when you wait to be moved along in this work instead of using the means God has placed within your reach, to help yourselves. Arouse to a sense of your responsibilities, pray earnestly and without ceasing, for more strength to do your duty; enter heartily into what you find to do, and your discontent will disappear like dew before the rising sun.

You may not even need to go outside of your own home to find something to do. Do you never see your mother overburdened, have you done all that you could? Can you make, mend and make over your own and others' clothes? Can you do all kinds of housework well?

Entertainment for the young is eminently right and proper, but rather let it come as a well earned reward than as a means to keep you in the service of God. Enjoy yourselves all you can, be happy as you can now and all your lives, but strive for that strength that will enable you to serve God, because it is right and for your eternal welfare to do so.

Parents, in the name of Christ, whose glorious appearance we are waiting for and so soon expecting, see to it that your children are reared in the love of the gospel, as well as learning its precepts, and one of the most prominent sources of concern of those who bear the burden of the latter day work, will be removed.

The Politest Moment of Her Life.

Mademoiselle Cassini, niece of the Russian ambassador to Washington, is a personality in diplomatic society in the United States.

She frankly adores America and things American, and because of this she has been helping the butler in his struggles with the English language. This butler is over six feet high and might have served as a body guard to Catherine the Great.

He firmly believes he is also a diplomat, in his way. He knows how to keep persons out of the house in six languages, including the patois of the muzhiks; but he cannot speak English, and this is his tragedy.

It never entered his head that he would be called upon to use the English. The tongue had not been needed in Europe and a diplomatic position in the new country had not been reckoned on when he began the acquisition of his accomplishments. In Washington, English, and not French, is the official language; and the giant funkys is humiliated in his own eyes.

Mademoiselle Cassini found out the reason and at once began his English lessons. He learned with the desperation of the exile. He has begun to put phrases together.

The other day a lady of the social set called. She rang the door-bell herself and asked if Mademoiselle Cassini had returned from a trip. She is very small and dainty and she had to tilt herself back to look up at the powdered giant. He spluttered, turned scarlet, went white, then roared out, "Mademoiselle will return yesterday."

For an instant the two looked at each other, "Then I will come yesterday to see her," the lady answered. She afterward said that it was the politest moment of her whole life.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Combination Oil Cure for Cancer

Has the endorsement of the highest medical authority in the world. It would seem strange indeed if persons afflicted with cancers and tumors, after knowing the facts, would resort to the dreaded knife and burning plaster, which have heretofore been attended with such fatal results. The fact that in the last six years over one hundred doctors have put themselves under this mild treatment shows their confidence in the new method of treating those horrible diseases. Persons afflicted would do well to send for free book giving particulars and prices of Oil. Address Dr. BYE, Drawer 1111, Kansas City, Mo.

Twenty Years of the St. Louis Mite Society.

One more year, and the St. Louis Mite Society will be a man or at least will be old enough to vote. In the fall of 1880 there were residing in St. Louis an elderly gentleman and his wife, who were in very poor circumstances. Their destitute condition became known to a few of the good sisters who at once consulted together to see what they could do to provide help for this aged couple. While engaged in this worthy cause they began to realize that in "union there is strength," and also that "the poor you have always with you;" and one of them, we understand it was Sr. May, now of Lamoni, suggested that they band themselves together and cast their little mites for the benefit of the worthy pair of the church or any other worthy objects.

They there and then began uniting their efforts in behalf of the poor, but it was without a formal organization. In a very short time, however, they decided they could do more and better work with a permanent organization with duly elected officers and committees. Accordingly, twenty years ago today, or February 21, 1881, the following sixteen sisters met and adopted by-laws and elected officers: Mary May, Grace Remington, Pheby Smith, Sarah Hales, Sarah F. Burch, Evaline Burgess, Maria Cooke, Marian Hall, Catherine Johnson, Sr. Kyte, Sarah Molyneux, Eliza Cowlishaw, Belle Anderson, Mary K. Burch, Belle Cuttman, Maria Swift. Bro. N. Cooke volunteered to help them out with the keeping of the records. We understand he was made an honorary member, being the only male member in the society.

The financial foresight of the framers of the by-laws is shown in the law providing for a collection at each meeting in addition of the payment of the regular dues of five cents per week. The wisdom of this provision was soon manifest as some of the members paid more than their dues, and occasionally some good brother or visiting sister would contribute 25 or 50 cents or perhaps a dollar.

When once organized, the membership kept slowly but steadily increasing until it reached 22 during the first year. During the next four years it increased to about 25 members and remained at about that number for several years. Occasionally they received a new member or one died or resigned or perhaps was dropped on account of the non-payment of dues; for the sisters did not believe in having drones on their list. If they failed to pay dues for ten weeks they were to be dropped. The present membership is 29, including 2 honorary members. The 16 charter members are to be accounted for as follows: 4 are still active members in the society; 1 is an honorary member; 4 have died and 7 have resigned or been dropped, 3 on account of moving to other places.

They held a picnic July 4, 1881, and cleared $8.75. Their first tea party was given January 9, 1882, with a net profit of $12.45. Later they conceived the idea of making various articles and disposing of them for the benefit of the treasury or other special beneficiaries. The first work of this kind recorded is entered in the records of the meeting of May 18, 1884, as follows: "Sr. Marie Cooke offered patch work for a quilt which the sisters accepted and agreed to quilt and dispose of for the benefit of the society."

This quilt was afterwards disposed of and the society realized $27.40. But the real work, from a financial standpoint, began when the branch purchased the lot at 2518 Elliott Ave. and began to build the little chapel. As soon as the lot was decided upon they gave the branch $10.00. March 23, 1887, they gave their first entertainment, netting $45.85, which was turned over to the building committee. On April 7, 1887, they began preparing for their first bazaar, one sister donating a ready made quilt and another donated one ready for quilting. At this bazaar the society cleared $189.20, $180.00 of which was given to the building committee. At the next bazaar a net profit of $290.90 was realized.

And thus the good work has continued until we can give the following summary, which we think should be very encouraging to those who have labored so long and diligently: Total number of meetings held of which there is record, 355; number of donations to the poor, 289; helping 38 different persons or families to amount of $813.50; number of donations to funerals, church building, etc., 40; amounting to $2373.58; making a total expenditure of $3187.08. Of this amount $1330.65 was given to the building committee to assist in paying for the chapel on Elliott Avenue; and $231.18 towards furnishing it; $146.00 towards this property; $113.55 to help defray the expenses of various funerals; and the balance, $169.20, to tent funds, bishop, Herald and incidental expenses of the branch. This does not include the numerous baskets of provisions and articles of clothing solicited and taken to the poor, nor the many visits to the sick and other kind deeds too numerous to mention.

When we take into consideration the fact that the society has not numbered more than probably 25 active members at any time and most of the time less, a majority of them with families to look after, we believe they are to be highly complimented and should receive the hearty support and co-operation and the earnest prayers of all lovers of good works. This work has not been accomplished without obstacles being met. Every good work ever started has met with opposition at first and the Mite Society was no exception to the rule. Some thought it wrong, some had one objection and some another; and we are told that one in authority even spoke against it from the pulpit and said it was not of God and would go down. But we are glad there were those in it who had sufficient of the spirit of this latter day work to heed the admonition of St. James, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally," and when satisfied they were right to go ahead and stick to it through thick and thin.

Conference Notices.

Conference of Northeastern Illinois district convenes at the Central Chicago branch, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Illinois, September 7, 1901. Branch clerks that cannot send their reports to the conference by one of their officers, will please mail same to James F. Keir, 702 Washington Boulevard, Chicago. It is expected that Elder R. C. Evans and Elder Scott will be present, together with other good speakers, and we trust that we will have a large delegation from the district.

JOHN MIDGORDEN, Dist. Pres.

The conference of the Southern Nebraska district will convene with the Hebron branch, September 22-23, 1901; will meet at the Duncan school house, five miles south of Hebron. The ministry and branches will please to have their reports ready in due time. Come and let us have a good and profitable time together.

J. W. WALDSMITH, Dist. Pres.

The Kewanee district conference will convene September 7, 1901, at Rock Island, Illinois.

F. A. RUSSELL, Acting Sub-missionary in Charge. CLARENCE J. CLARK, District President.

Reunion Notices.

The Tabor reunion begins August 24th near Tabor, Iowa. Saints coming from the C. B. & Q. railroad will change at Malvern for Tabor, where they will be met by one of the committee if they previously notify Bro. M. W. Gaylor at Tabor. Those coming on the K. C. St. Joe & C. B. will be met at McPaul by notifying J. F. Greene, Tabor, Iowa, a week ahead. Tents may be rented from $1.35 up according to size by notifying Bro. J. F. Greene before August 20th. The Saints of other districts are invited to come and take part in the service of God at this reunion.

CHARLES FRY.

All who wish to use the rebate certificates to return for one-third from the reunion at Bushrod Park, Oakland, which begins August 30th and lasts ten days, can have them from the undersigned. A very much larger attendance than usual is expected on account of the presence of Bro. Joseph and A. H. Smith and Joseph Luff of the Twelve. Please send in time and send a P. O. stamp. In bonds,

C. A. PARKIN.

3010 16th St., San Francisco, Cal. July 25.

To the Saints concerned:—As you have placed upon us the duty of locating place and time of reunion, we feel to urge upon you the necessity of co-operating with us, by your attendance, to make this reunion a success. Remember time and place, August 16th to 26th, at Dover. Those who were in attendance last year were more than pleased with the results of our co-operative boarding tent. You, as a people, have voted for this, and it is your duty to help support it. Arrangements are being made to carry out your instructions of conference at last reunion. As this latter day work is progressive and we need teaching, come and take lessons.

Com. { GEO. M. HILES.
H. K. ROWLAND.

Two Days' Meeting.

The Inland, Benzie county, Michigan, branch will hold a two days' meeting at their church, August 24th and 25th.

There will be a two days' meeting held with the Pigeon River branch on the 17th and 18th of August, 1901, at Grant, near Canboro, Huron Co., Michigan. Also one will be held at Buel Center, Sanilac county, on the 24th and 25th of August. All are cordially invited to come and make these meetings a success.

A. BARR, Dist. Pres. APPELATE, Mich., Aug. 5.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

Conference of the Southern Nebraska district met at Nebraska City, May 13-14, 1901. J. W. Waldsmith and James Caffall were chosen to preside. Reports received from Nebraska City, Blue River, Elmwood and Hebron branches. Reports from Elders James Caffall, missionary in charge; J. W. Waldsmith, M. H. Forscutt, C. H. Porter, W. M. Self, W. Savage. Priests H. W. Belville, H. A. Higgins. Teacher John Hollenbeck. Bro. Waldsmith reported as bishop's agent. The action of district of Nebraska and of General Conference in regard to the boundary line of the district was ratified, including Shelton branch in this district. H. W. Belville was granted the use of the district tent for missionary work. All officers were sustained. Preaching by James Caffall, H. W. Belville, M. H. Forscutt, W. M. Self. Adjourned to meet with the Hebron branch, September 22-23.

The Northeast Missouri district conference convened at Higbee, Mo., June 8 and 9, 1901. J. A. Tanner presiding, assisted by I. N. White; Geo. A. Tryon secretary.

Branches reported: Higbee, Bevier, Pollock, Salt River and Huntsville. Ministry reported: Elders E. J. Chatburn, J. T. Williams, Walter W. Smith, Wm. Vaughn, Wm. Chapman, J. A. Tanner, F. Palfrey, J. F. Petre, F. T. Mussell, R. R. Jones. Priests Earle Cortbell, Geo. Essig, Thomas Broad, D. L. Morgan, Robt. Thurtchley. Teacher E. B. Petre.

Bishop's agent's report was read and approved as follows: Receipts since last conference, $276.48; on hand last report, $112.76; expenditures, $292.09; balance due church, $97.15. Treasurer's report was as follows: Balance last report, $5.30; receipts to date, $9.71; expenditures, $14.07; balance June 6, 1901, $1.03. Bills of expense allowed of the president, $2.78, and the secretary, $1.68.

The appointment of Bro. Joseph A. Tanner as district historian was ratified. The recommendation of the Higbee branch of Bro. Thos. Broad for ordination to the office of an elder was read and it was moved that the request be granted and ordination provided for. Chairman of the tent committee reported: I will state we have now $120.00 on hand. We shall need about $30.00 more than we have to buy the tent, seat and light it. I therefore suggest that the conference adopt such business measures as will enable us to procure the balance needed of not less than $30.00. As soon as this is done we are ready to purchase the tent and equip it with seats and lights.—F. Palfrey. The report was approved and the tent committee dissolved and a vote of thanks tendered the committee for past labors done. A new tent committee was chosen, consisting of F. Palfrey, Walter W. Smith and Earle Cortbell. The following resolution was passed:

"Be it resolved, that this district conference authorize the tent committee to purchase and equip a tent during the next ten or fifteen days for the use of this district, and if there is not enough tent funds to meet the expense of the purchase to borrow the balance necessary of Elder John T. Williams, bishop's agent, the amount so borrowed not to exceed $30.00; and we as a conference obligate this district to refund to Bro. J. T. Williams, the bishop's agent, the amount so borrowed as soon as practical after being notified of same by the president of the tent committee and bishop's agent. And be it further resolved that after the tent is purchased and equipped it be under the management of the tent committee and the missionary in charge or their successors."

A request was read from the Huntsville branch asking for the rescinding of certain motions upon the district record, and the following preamble and resolution was adopted: "Whereas, the necessity for issuing letters of removal to members of the Huntsville branch by the district officers no longer exists, therefore be it resolved that the resolutions authorizing said officers to issue such letters be hereby rescinded."

A report of the district delegation to General Conference was read. The election of district officers resulted in the choice of Bro. Joseph A. Tanner as president; Frederick T. Mussell as vice president; Geo. A. Tryon secretary and treasurer; Bro. John T. Williams was sustained as bishop's agent. Preaching services at 7:35 p. m. Saturday by Elder Frank J. Chatburn, and on Sunday at 11 a. m. the preaching was by Bro. Earle Cortbell. At the 2:30 p. m. sacrament and social service Bro. Broad was ordained an elder. At 7:35 p. m. Bro. I. N. White preached. The conference then adjourned to meet at Bevier on October 5-6, 1901.

JOTS BY THE WAYSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

The rains and cool weather are welcomed by all here. Corn and tobacco crops are materially damaged in Wisconsin. It is, in a measure, a check to prosperity's wave, to remind man of his manhood, and that there is a God to whom he is wholly dependent and responsible.

For thirty days we have been eating butter with a spoon, our genial and merciful cook says she is glad the poor flies will no longer be scalded in the butter dish. If we could only have a freeze now, to kill the flies and mosquitoes, our warfare would be ended. We are ready for the ending and the inscription is already written, "Ye have fought a good fight." We move tent tomorrow and we are happy in the thought that a few of the pests will feel lonely until they find us again.

Bro. G. H. Hilliard lit up our camp ground with his genial smile on the 25th inst., and gave us two rousing sermons in his own inevitable way; the bishop never attacks with the handle of the gospel fork. Come again, brother.

Bro. W. A. McDowell, the district president of southern Wisconsin, is with us at this writing, lend a helping hand, to the encouragement of ye camp ground elders. We are studying the characteristics of the president to ascertain which is really his favorite, fish or melons.

The irrepressible Sam Jones is here, not at our tent, in Madison, attending the Lake side assembly. We listened to the witty Georgian yesterday, he spoke for near two hours to an audience that filled every seat of the great auditorium building. His subject was "Life;" he might as well have omitted the subject for all the reference he made to it. There is neither gospel nor logic in his talk, but there is a thread of humor and wit peculiar to Sam Jones only, which is his stock in trade. Jones is surely master of sarcasm, and with his vein of humor, furnished great fun for his audience, as was evinced by rounds of applause given.

The speech was replete with humor and wit, rough even to coarseness, of the Sam Jones sort, and even though the vast audience may not have gone away with higher ideas of life, or a determination to live more in harmony with the Jones recipe, each had a quarter's worth of fun out of it, which goes to make up part of life, from a human standpoint, at least.

With cooler weather we are more hopeful in our tent work. Will trouble the waters on Friday.

"There is one sacrifice of which I wish I were more capable—to spend a little of my time with those unfortunates whose natures make them uncongenial to me, to study to find their good points."

My Hair

"I had a very severe sickness that took off all my hair. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor and it brought all my hair back again."

W. D. Quinn, Marseilles, Ill.

One thing is certain, Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. This is because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair and the hair grows, that's all there is to it. It stops falling of the hair, too, and always restores color to gray hair.

HONEST aiming doesn't always hit the bull's eye.

THE idea of there being non-essentials in the doctrine of Christ!

THE weeds grow the thickest in the cultivated garden that is neglected.

THE Bible from the east, and the Book of Mormon from the west, make good anchorage, no matter how the winds may blow.

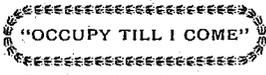

PUNY man can no more invent a religion that will universally meet man's requirements, than he can make a light that will universally do duty for the sun.

IT is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for an individual to enter into the kingdom of God without baptism—if the Savior told the truth.

AFTER all, about the only fault our "friends, the enemy" find with us is that we believe too much. God only condemns those who don't believe enough. We're safe, so far as believing goes.

PORTO RICANS must think "U. S." stands for "Use Soap," as in 1897 we only sold them $502 worth, but since Uncle Sam has taken them under his wing, in 1901, so far, we have sold them $27,348 worth of the cleansing article.

A VULTURE will fly over hill and dale, pass by golden fields of grain and honey laden flowers, and then will swoop down in a dark valley, seeking for a dead horse or carcass of some kind. There are some opposers of this latter day work who have the vulture appetite. They "can't see when good cometh."

"OCCUPY TILL I COME"

How grand it would be if every one who has obeyed the everlasting gospel could be assured they were occupying just where the Father desires them to be, and completely filling the place assigned them in His work. It is reasonable to suppose that when the Lord calls men and women to be Saints that He will fully endow them with the ability to become such, if they manifest a willingness to do their part in the transformation. The apostles in their epistles to the Saints sometimes addressed them as those "called to be Saints," and the Apostle John, on one occasion, declared of the Savior, that to "as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." (John 1:12). It is truly a high calling to which all men are invited by our heavenly Father, to become His own sons by adoption into His fold and family, through obedience to the gospel ordinances; to partake of His nature, to be controlled by His Spirit, to be governed by His will in all things; this is exactly the privilege extended to every one who obeys the gospel, though for various reasons, attributable to the weakness of human nature, and the power of the adversary, but few approximate to this exalted condition.

What is it to be a Saint, is an inquiry which should receive the most serious consideration of every one. Some have entertained an opinion—which, however, the Scriptures do not justify—that only those who have passed into the eternal world, who have been canonized here, are worthy to be called Saints; that none should be known as Saints unless they were perfect in all their life. But the authors of all the epistles to the Saints of olden times have made it apparent in their writings that those to whom they wrote were men and women subject to some of the same weaknesses as those which often are found manifest in the lives of men and women of our day, who make a profession of godliness, and these humble souls who suffered for their espousal of the cause of Christ, were, notwithstanding their weaknesses, designated as the Saints of God. So all who obey the same gospel today, and who, as a rule, lead consistent lives, are Saints, as fully and completely as those of former days—even though they should occasionally manifest that the human part of their nature is somewhat stronger, at times, than they desire that it should be.

Perfection, so far as this life is concerned, is a matter of time and growth. No seed brings perfect fruit at the instant of germination. Its work is only partially completed when the sprouts shoot up through the earth; but in time, if right conditions continue to govern, the full grown stock of grain appears, fruit develops, and gradually ripens to perfection. This is the law of life. A child cannot become a fully developed man or woman a few days after it comes into this world; it is only after years of careful training, care and attention, that a perfect type of manhood or womanhood is reached. True, a man or woman may reach perfection of stature without education or care. So do weeds which cumber the ground and annoy the husbandman. But a perfect type of any kind takes careful, persistent labor; often the same kind of work has to be done several times in order to produce the best results, a perfect crop. But the results, if all conditions are favorable, justifies the painstaking, patient efforts expended, when the harvest is gathered.

It is just so with the gospel seed. The word is sown broadcast by the servants of Christ, and as it falls upon differing conditions of soil, fruit is manifest according to the degree of faith engendered by the hearing of the word. When sufficient faith is resultant from a comprehension of what is required in the gospel to lead to the birth of the water and of the Spirit, it is then that power is given to become all that is designed by the Father for mankind to attain. But it is not reached at once. Even the Christ was not made perfect immediately, but this is the record of His development:

Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered; and being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him.—Heb. 5: 8, 9.

If this was the procedure with our divine Lord, what folly it is to expect that His followers should gain perfection under more favorable conditions than were accorded Him. "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord. It is enough for the disciple that he be as his Master, and the servant as his lord," (Matt. 10: 24, 25), is His own testimony, and it will not only require a lifetime of mortality, but a thousand years of millennial experience and instruction, to reach the highest condition by which man shall be fitted to be presented to the eternal Father as worthy to dwell in His glorified presence. It is but a natural consequence then, that imperfections of character should be manifest sometimes in the children of the kingdom, but this by no means should be contorted into an evidence that some progress toward perfection has not been made. "A tree is judged by its fruits," and if there is found more of righteousness in the life of an individual than there is of evil; if it is manifest that he is earnestly trying to exemplify the life of the Master in his own experience, even though there may be an occasional outcropping of his humanity, it is not a righteous judgment, to condemn him as unworthy the name of Saint, or to assert that he is not a follower of the Lord Jesus. It is a fact, that we also, must learn obedience by the things we suffer, and it is a safe conclusion that no Saint is ever betrayed into manifesting a weakness for which he does not suffer in spirit severely, through which he is led to a greater watchfulness for the future.

But a self examination as to the position we, as Saints, occupy, is often most beneficial to our development. What progress has been made in the gospel life "since ye believed"? Are we, as individuals, as quick to see evil in our brother, while we are quite as lenient to our own faults and failings, as we were formerly? One of the surest evidences of our development in the divine life, is our ability and our disposition to exercise the grace of charity and forgiveness when an offence or indignity has been done us. While the law is very plain with regard to offences, in the taking of the officers of the church as witnesses where a personal and private effort at reconciliation has been unavailing, we believe such instruction to be given only for extreme cases. There is a higher condition attainable, which should and will be occupied as we advance toward perfection; that is the ability, first, not to easily take an offence; and second, if we are affronted, to have compassion for the weakness of our brother or sister who has caused it, and extend unsolicited forgiveness; refusing to permit ourselves to cherish any hard-ness of heart for the injury done us. This would surely be occupying, in this regard, the position in which our heavenly Father desires us to abide, and it is certainly to our advantage to do so; for the increased favor and blessing of the Spirit would more than compensate us for the sacrifice and effort required to attain it. But this, of course, refers only to grievances of a personal character; offences against the church, if of a serious nature, should not be condoned, but should be referred to the officer designated by the Lord to look after transgressors —the teacher of the branch—for action, that the church be not reproached for harboring iniquity.

Another evidence that development is being made, and that we are attaining the conditions the Lord requires of His people, is found in the fact of an increased spirituality; the devoting and consecrating to God of all our energies in His cause; the making of His service paramount to all other considerations. All men have not the same calling, and the fact that the entire time of one brother, outside of the Lord's day, is occupied in business affairs, should not be taken as an evidence that he is not spiritual minded and devoted to the work of God. The Lord needs good business men, as he needs good preachers; and to such an extent is this necessity apparent, that He sometimes endows men with special qualifications in that line, as he specially endows men to preach and minister in spiritual affairs. All are called "according to the gifts and callings of God unto them," to be "workers together with him," in the salvation of mankind. But where the mistake of the past is shown, is the fact that men thus qualified in business affairs, have judged it to have been natural to them, and they have thus been led to use these qualifications for their own selfish purposes, the gratification of their personal desires. They have lived extravagantly, and sometimes absolutely wasted their substance in riotous living. We believe this to have been sinful, and if any of God's people fail now to recognize their responsibility in this regard, they will thereby incur the displeasure of the Giver of the talents, and will come under an unhappy condemnation for the misuse of that which He gave into their keeping as His stewards. No true, devoted servant of God will so misuse any talent, whatever it may be, for his own personal aggrandizement. But if he has the ability to make money and gather the riches of this world rapidly, he will, if he truly loves God and appreciates the talents given him, judge that he MUST use those talents solely for the glory of God. He will not use, for his own gratification, or that of those dependent upon him, any more of his accumulations than is needful to supply him with the necessities of his business and surroundings, and will account that all that he has of increase above those needs, is the Lord's goods, and to the furtherance of His cause will he devote this residue. Would this not be occupying in this matter, just where our heavenly Father designs we should?

The day of the Lord draweth nigh, when an accounting of our stewardship will be required. Let us be on the tower watching continually, that our rendering of accounts to the Lord of the vineyard, may be acceptable to Him, and profitable for us. It will be sweet indeed to hear Him say: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Finding it necessary to have a central place for correspondence, etc., I have had a desk placed in the north room in the basement of the church. Any one wishing to see me on branch or stake business will find me there when in the city or when not engaged in outside manual work, at from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. If absent, any communication left with Bro. Horton will receive prompt attention upon my return.

G. H. HULMES.

President Hulmes will be at the First Kansas City branch next Sunday morning, and at the Armstrong branch in the evening.

Bishop Hilliard arrived home early this week, and leaves tomorrow (Friday) to attend the Blue Rapids, Kansas, reunion. He is always busy.

Bro. and Sr. W. H. Garrett and daughter Alice, have returned and ye editor is again at his post. The trip was beneficial to the health of all.

The days seem a little too warm for comfort, ranging in temperature from 92-94, but the mornings and evenings are quite pleasant.

Bishop Ellis Short was the speaker at the morning hour last Sunday, and President Hulmes at night, at the Saints' church. Weather was rather warm, but the attendance and interest was good.

Sr. G. E. Harrington and family will again occupy their home on Pendleton avenue, this city. Bro. Edwin H. Garrett and family, who have occupied it since Bro. Harrington and family removed to Elwood, Pennsylvania, expect to vacate it this week. We understand that Bro. Harrington, whose position at Elwood was affected by the strike of the steel workers, will go to Philadelphia, though it is not fully determined he will remain. We welcome the return of the "wanderers" to our midst.

We are sorry to learn that Bro. Joe Luff, son of Bro. John Luff, Sr., and for several years an employee in the ENSIGN office, recently met with an accidental fall, which bursted three blood vessels in his stomach. To add to his misfortune, shortly after the hemorrhage was stopped he was taken down with pneumonia and has had a severe time of it. He was improving when last heard from. He has been with his brother Ed at a summer resort in Michigan, in the confectionary business. We hope to hear of his prompt and permanent recovery. He is a brother of the former business manager of the ENSIGN, Bro. J. W. Luff.

The electric cars are running on the new, second track between Pacific and Square, and the graders are busy as "mailers" grading down the old track bed, preparatory to putting down the new rails on the other side. The contract calls for the completion of the street ready for use by September 19. It will likely keep them a "hurrying" to fill their agreement. The brick seem to be all here and are piled up on the sidewalk all the way from the Square to the bridge, and the curb is all in, so that when the grading is finished they can make good time with the brick if the weather man is propitious.

The ordinance of baptism will be administered in the church font next Sunday at 1:30 p. m.

Mr. and Sr. Jolley and Mrs. Bloom, from Washington, Ohio, arrived Wednesday.

Bro. A. Del White, eldest son of Bro. I. N. White, left for Lincoln, Nebraska, en route to Spokane, Washington; Portland, Oregon, and perhaps California points. He is buying beans, tublers, and fruits for a wholesale house in Kansas City.

Bro. and Sr. Roy Newkirk and family have sold their property on Grand avenue to Bro. James Atkinson, and left for Illinois to visit Bro. Newkirk's mother who is quite ill, and whom he has not seen for several years. They will be missed from our midst. They are highly esteemed here.

Home grown peaches are on the market at $1.00 to $1.80 per bushel, and the odor from the preserving kettle is in the land. The farmers have no trouble in disposing of their fruits at these prices. Plums are also obtainable. But vegetables are scarce and prices high. There is, however, but little evidence of the severity of the drouth now apparent in foliage or in field. All look green and flourishing, but the harvest will be very short.

LAMONI, IOWA.

The Religio social, previously mentioned, will be held on Friday evening of this week.

On Thursday, the 29th, the local Sunday School will hold a picnic in the grove near the church. All neighboring schools have been invited to attend.

We are informed that on Saturday, August 31st, and Sunday, September 1st there will be held a two day joint meeting for the promotion of Sunday School and Religio interests, at Greenville. The services will be in charge of the district officers of both societies. All are invited to attend.

Elder A. C. Hart and family arrived last week from Kansas, to take up their abode with us. Sr. Hart is to teach in Graceland during the coming year.

Elder R. M. Elvin left last week for Keb, Iowa, where he will spend several weeks in church work.

President John Smith spent Sunday at Hiteman, preaching twice, participating in the exercises of the Sunday School, and baptized a promising young man.

Prof. W. L. Callison, of Powersville, Missouri, has been engaged to take charge of the Commercial department of Graceland the coming year. He comes well recommended, and under his direction we think the prospects for this department are promising.

Elder J. R. Lambert was the speaker at Davis City last Sunday, morning and evening, and Elder E. A. Stebbins at Greenville, in the afternoon. Elder R. S. Salyards spoke twice at Evergreen on Sunday.

Elder G. H. Hilliard came in last week from Northern Illinois, and was our speaker for the morning hour. He gave us a stirring discourse on the subject of consecration, exciting considerable comment on both sides of the question. He left for home Monday morning where he will remain a few days, and then attend the reunion of the Northwest Kansas district, to be held at Blue Rapids, Kansas, beginning the latter part of this week.

Sunday evening all enjoyed a treat indeed, it being the first of a series of discourses that are to be given by the Historical Department of the church. Elder Heman C. Smith, the General Church Historian, gave the first number, which was indeed well worth listening to. The house was well filled and the attention was excellent. It is expected that the whole course will be published, and we would recommend that every one make an effort to procure them, as they will furnish much valuable and interesting reading.

The Lamon Stake Council is holding regular weekly sessions for the purpose of coming to a unity of understanding on questions of importance that are now before the church.

On September 14th Mrs. Alice Thorburn, Kate E. Smith and Ada Hopkins will conduct a "bazar" and give a supper for the benefit of Graceland. It is to be hoped that their labors may be successful.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Our Aspey mission meetings continue with an excellent interest. A goodly number are deeply interested in the truth as presented. We shall continue the meetings another week or longer. We introduce a new idea, of first a thirty minute talk by some one, then the time occupied by any who wish to speak. Some of our Chicago Saints will recognize this plan as tried and working well there.

Sr. Harvey Parker and Sr. Alice Briggs are here visiting relatives and friends.

Bro. W. C. Cather preached last night at our South Chicago (?) mission, where he also occupied last Sabbath evening, instead of Bro. C. Archibald, as stated last week. Bro. Cather is on the move to St. Louis, Mo.

Bro. Coventry Archibald preached the morning sermon at Aspey mission yesterday, and Bro. M. Shaw at the church.

Yielding to the pressure of "continuous effort," the mission work is beginning to move here in nice shape.

Yours still pushing,

J. M. TERRY.

ST. LOUIS, MISSOURI.

Places of worship: Rock Church, Glasgow avenue and Dickson street. Services, Wednesday evening, prayer service. Sunday, Sabbath School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m.; social service at 2:30 p. m.; preaching at 8 p. m. Cheltenham, 631 Manchester Ave., services, Sunday School 10 a. m.; social meeting 2:30 p. m.; preaching 7:30 p. m. Oak Hill, Sunday School 9:30 a. m., and services at 2:30 and 8 p. m.

The Wednesday evening prayer service was in charge of Bro. F. A. Smith; better attendance than usual.

Among our visitors this past week was a Bro. Pruet, from southwest Missouri, who was directed to our "biding" place by one of our missionaries, and, it appears, felt impelled to return to the country where his childhood and youth had been spent, that he might preach the gospel to kindred and friends. He left for North Carolina, Thursday.

Some other brother, the early part of the week, also called around at Bro. Archibald's, asserting his intention of "visiting 'round with the Saints" for a week or two; this brother was a carpenter, and while stating that he could obtain plenty of work, yet had neglected to bring his tools with him, but was apparently well supplied with bottles of cough remedy, etc. This last case needs no comment. We people of St. Louis branch believe in hospitality, and in helping worthy causes, but "Wisdom is known of her children."

Bro. Alfred White was our speaker at both services yesterday, Bro. F. A. Smith occupying the rostrum at Cheltenham in the evening.

Bro. Archibald is afflicted with sore throat and was unable to fill his appointment last evening, but shared the honors assisting Bro. White, who was greeted by a fair sized evening congregation.

Bro. Geo. Barraclough, now of East St. Louis, was permitted to assemble with the Saints, evening sessions.

The Religio session last Friday was splendid; attendance not as large as it ought to be.

Ye correspondent and little son expect to leave for Buffalo, Saturday, the 24th.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

224 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Etzenhauer, 507 Massachusetts Building, Telephone 613. Missionary in charge, John D. White, 609 Main St., Telephone 1353.

Last Thursday evening a very successful ice cream social and bazaar was given by the sisters of the Hawthorne society of this church at the home of Sr. F. C. Warnky; while it was a success financially, it was also a success socially. Many of the neighbors, non-members of the church, were present, and a joyful evening was spent, which, no doubt, will bring some nearer to the church.

Elder M. T. Short, accompanied by Sr. Short, spent Sunday with us. The elder preached for us both morning and evening; both efforts were good and well received.

The Religio enjoyed a treat last Friday evening by Pres. G. H. Hulmes meeting with them and giving them some good instructions which was very much appreciated by all present. Come again Bro. H.; send word beforehand please.

Pres. D. F. Winn, assisted by Elder J. A. Gillen, preached Sunday evening at Northeast mission. Elder W. H. Pease at the tent where he is accomplishing much good. Elder F. C. Warnky preached to an appreciative congregation at Second Kansas City church.

Pres. J. D. White is attending the reunion in Iowa; we look for him back this week.

Every branch should have a supply of the new sermon tract, "Objections Answered," by Pres. Joseph Smith; 25 cents a dozen at ENSIGN office.

SECOND KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

Corner 23d and Holly. One block south of Observation Park line.

Attendance at meetings is good, although many of our membership are making regular trips to the tent, assisting with music, etc. We were glad to enjoy the association Sunday, of some who have not been permitted to meet with us for some time, because of sickness.

Bro. F. C. Warnky was speaker Sunday evening, and seemed to enjoy splendid liberty, edifying and encouraging his listeners. We have since heard comments of satisfaction from those who heard.

Bro. Wm. Cairns, who has just recently returned from his mission to his native home, the "land of the blue-bells," spent Sunday with his sister, Sr. D. Morgan, of this branch, and met with the Saints in the evening meeting. He is in good cheer concerning the work there, and says the work is more thoroughly established in Scotland at this time than ever before in the Reorganization.

Now, that the weather has become more tolerable, we hope to see the work pick up greatly in this city. A. C. K.

DENVER, COLORADO.

Church, corner of 22d and Arapahoe Sts. Services Sunday—Sunday School at 9:45 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; sacrament service the first Sunday in each month at 6 p. m. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening. Zion's Religio-Literary Society Sunday evening at 4 p. m. E. F. Shupe, pastor, 3633 Clayton St.

Bro. and Sr. Thomas Crick, of Independence, Missouri, were in the city a few days last week. Sr. Della Criley, also of Independence, is visiting in the city, and was present at the Sunday services.

Elder J. B. Roush was called to Haigler, Nebraska, Saturday, by telegraph, to preach the funeral sermon of Bro. Leonard Parsons. We have not received the particulars of his last sickness and death; have heard his death was quite sudden. We remember Bro. Parsons among our early acquaintances of the Rock Creek branch, Hancock county, Illinois, over twenty years ago.

A fair sized congregation was present both morning and evening Sunday. Bro. Shupe was the speaker with good liberty and enjoyed the Spirit. Surely the Lord does not forsake us in time of need.

Quite a number of the Saints and friends were at the depot Thursday night to say good by to Bro. and Sr. Gilbert. They intended to Sunday in Colorado Springs, and then on to Salt Lake, arriving in San Francisco to catch the vessel September 18th. S.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

BARTLETT, Ia., July 25. Dear Ensign:—Many of your readers in this mission appreciate your appearance very much, and I concluded to send an item or two for use, that an acquaintance with the spiritual efforts being made here may be further known. I find a kind hearted, teachable, liberal dispositioned class of Saints in southwestern Iowa, and enjoy my labors very much so far.

Preparation is now being made for one of the most enjoyable reunions ever held in this district, and the Saints are anticipating a feast of fat things, and by humility of purpose, and a willingness to assist in every good work I cannot but conclude that their anticipations will be realized.

We are now engaged in tent meetings here, with another meeting each night by the Christian church. This opposition but seems to be affecting our services favorably, and our experience here has proven that the best arranged plans to overthrow God's work proves a blessing to us in disguise. So it has been thus far with these meetings.

Since beginning in missionary work I have ministered at Thurman, River-ton, Anafoburg, and McPaul since June 10th, at each of which places good was done.

We anticipate an excellent work to be done here. Since beginning this letter I have overheard very favorable expressions made with reference to the services thus far held, and the pleasant and convenient arrangements we have made for services, and indeed, I think we have one of the nicest tents and most convenient seats and pulpit, it has ever been my fortune to use, all furnished by the liberality of the Saints here, who in seeking for a contribution of $75.00 raised nearly $100.00 from the result of the first invitation. For all these favors we feel to praise God.

Your brother, J. F. MINTUN.

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Aug 8.

Editor Ensign:—We have just closed a series of very interesting meetings four miles southwest of this place. We store the tent away for a couple of weeks that we may obey the call from Bro. Crumley to "come over and help us" at the Bandon reunion. Bro. W. A. Goodwin and I start for that point via Roseburg, in the morning. We have promised to return here and give the hungry ones a little more gospel food as soon as we get through at that point. Bro. Goodwin has been very busy at carpenter work for the last ten days, and taking his share of the work at the gospel tent nights. This that there might be means to go to Bandon with. He opened up the work here a year ago, and stirred up some opposition among the world, and a challenge from the Advent Christians was received by him then. Propositions were prepared then, but the A. C. church did not have their champion ready. When I commenced services here about the 8th of June, I heard considerable about it, and when Bro. Goodwin and I were putting up the tent in the town, the 10th of July, we were asked to furnish these propositions again as they had a man to "take it up." Of course we accommodated them and the indications now are that there will be a battle here when we return between Bro. W. A. Goodwin and one Anderson of their number. Well, so the work goes on. Many have heard the truth here, and some are very near the kingdom.

Ever in the praise of right, A. M. CHASE.

REED CITY, Mich., July 23.

Dear Ensign:—Our debate at Shabbona is over. We had a very large attendance for eight evenings. It was surprising to see so many out every night as it was such a busy time. We could see that the people were coming over on our side all the time. One gentleman, who was much opposed to us at first, attended the lecture against us and thought it was pretty good, but thought they acted unfair toward us, and was induced to come out to hear the other side, and the scale turned with him that night: he and his company followed up the debate every night, and when it was over they were both baptized with three others. Three days later two more were baptized, and from present indications there will be several more in the near future. Bro. Wm. Davis and K. C. Smith will continue laboring in that vicinity.

This is the first debate I ever held in which the Spaulding story was not brought up. The main argument all the way through was to pick, if possible, some flaws in the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants, by reading sketches here and there, making them appear contradictory, etc. Finding fault with the reading, etc., such as "And it came to pass," and we "did" this, and we "did" that, etc., too many dids, and inasmuch as it was stated by the different writers, therefore, one man wrote it all, and it must be a fraud. The boats, with the hole in the top and bottom, etc., all went to prove it false. Mr. Brown found much fault with the Doctrine and Covenants; Joseph cursed Cincinnati—the boarding house. A revelation for this, and a revelation for that, etc. He would sometimes read it wrong and make light of it, but being trapped in it so often he changed his method by reading correctly and then placing a wrong interpretation upon it and such like. But little was taken from the Bible to prove the work was false.

Bro. Brown did not discuss the doctrine of his church, as he agreed, but stated that perhaps he would some other time. This was his first debate with the Saints, and judging from his actions and sayings we think it will be his last. I was much blessed by the Spirit all the way through.

The holding of the discussion at Shabbona was a grand success in many ways. The Saints were confirmed and built up in their faith, as many things were brought up and discussed that would not be otherwise. Several who were formerly our enemies are now our friends. Some who before would not give a cent to assist in the building of the Saints' church there, have since come to our brethren and offered to help. It would not surprise me to see anywhere from ten to twenty obey the gospel in the near future. So may the work go on.

J. J. CORNISH.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 12.

Dear Ensign:—Your columns are ever full of encouraging letters, and your sermons are a source of helpful thoughts and food for the mind and soul. I deem my time well spent when I sit at an afternoon perusing the ENSIGN, Herald, or Autumn Leaves. How lonesome indeed the home where these precious pages never enter. I indeed feel sorry for the Saint or Saints who are too poor in worldly goods to have the pleasure of reading these papers. I would almost rather go without something else and have these papers to read, for they are so helpful.

While looking over the different letters, I came to our dear Bro. Terry's; tears of joy welled up to think that his health is better, and that he is permitted again to labor among those who love him, and I could not help but think of our parting here in this branch with both Bro. and Sr. Terry.

Our worthy Bro. Sheehy has had to leave us on account of sickness. We sincerely hope he may be able to return ere long, for surely this work needs close care in this city. Several able men could be kept busy all the time, and while there are lots of churches here there are hosts of good people who never heard the gospel preached in its fullness. I should like to have the people who live here in Lawndale hear one of our elders preach as they all know that I am a Latter Day Saint. I have given out lots of tracts, and give my papers wherever I think they will read them. I have loaned my Book of Mormon to several, one was the Congregational minister, but now I cannot get him to talk to me. He had 1. M. Smith's "Book of Mormon Vindicated," also read Solomon Spaulding Story and Eldwin's Ancient America, so he got enough that he don't care to talk upon the subject. He is a very nice gentleman, not at all bigoted. He said that he did not think that Joseph Smith was at all to blame for polygamy; also that he had been more sinned against than sinning. But I attempted once to talk to a man who had been a Methodist sixteen years and concluded he could not preach enough Bible in their pulpit, so left it and started one of our own. But oh, so bigoted! When I wanted to show him more scripture he would not listen, and said he did not need to be taught by me. He took up healing as a fad, and I understand he failed several times till he has quit. Surely the Lord humbled those who are exalted. Some of his followers have become disgusted with him and left. Truly this is a marvelous work and a wonder which the wisdom of the wise can not fathom. And oh, how it makes my heart rejoice when I think of this work and that I have the privilege of being one of God's children in these latter days, and a partaker of the same blessings as the former day Saints.

I ask the Saints to pray for my companion that he may see the need of obeying the gospel.

Your humble sister, Mrs. E. HORTON.

ONO, Wis., Aug. 5.

Editor Ensign:—On the 23d of July we were organized into a branch by Bro. C. H. Burr and A. V. Closson. There are only a few Saints of us here, and we are made to more fully realize each day that we are to put on the whole armor of God, and to live Godly lives in Christ Jesus.

I find, to be a true Latter Day Saint, one has much to do, and that we have so much to overcome before we can be a Saint indeed.

How often God has told us to come up higher and he would bless us, and for a time we would try to obey, but oh how soon we would get back into the old paths.

I rejoice in this restored gospel, and am so thankful that God in his mercy saw fit to enlighten the minds of a chosen few in this place. This is a very hard field for missionaries as the minds of the people are in darkness, and they seem to be afraid to come out to hear for fear their spiritual foundations will be wrecked, not realizing that they can find a better hope on which to build. I feel that we have much to be thankful for as I realize that God is hastening his work, and that we are living in the last days when God said he would do a great and marvelous work.

Yours in the one faith, MISS L. M. SHAVER.

REA, MEX., Aug. 5.

Dear Ensign:—We are a few scattered Saints here, Bro. Wm. Hailey and family, Sr. Vaughin, and my family. Bro. Vaughin is on a mission to Kansas. Elders D. A. Hutchins and J. S. Snively are conducting a tent meeting at this place; have been here nearly two weeks, and the interest increases. A large crowd greeted them last night when Bro. Snively spoke on the coming forth of the Book of Mormon; good attention and good order all things considered. The best people of the community came out to hear, and the elders have received invitations to visit some of them. Those who showed hospitality last year do likewise this. So may the good work go on until all the honest in heart shall hear the glad tidings, and be gathered into the fold.

R. F. HILL.

ANTONITO, Col., July 22.

Dear Ensign:—Bro. J. W. Morgan and I are yoked together for the summer; after laboring some in Cripple Creek district, where I had the pleasure of baptizing one, we started for the San Luis valley to labor among the Brighamites.

The rule "Prove all things and hold fast to that which is good," has been laid on the shelf years ago, and "Obey counsel" has taken its place. After we had preached at Fox Creek schoolhouse for about one week, where very few Brighamites came out to hear, Elder Massey, of the Utah faith, came and preached a sermon in which he told the people that it was better for them to obey the priesthood, whether their counsel was right or wrong; if the counsel was wrong the priesthood would be to blame and not them. He did not tell them that if the blind lead the blind both shall fall into the ditch. When people are already spiritually blinded they do not see that they are headed for the ditch, unless they renounce their false doctrine.

We spent the Fourth of July at Macassa, which is headquarters for the Brighamites in this valley. While we were there we were approached by two Strangite elders and publicly challenged for a debate. One of them, Ketcham by name, said that he had challenged Joseph Smith to meet him in discussion at several places in the East, but that he would not meet him. Bro. Morgan told them that they had better go and get them a crowd and preach to them, if they wanted to preach; but they said that they wanted to meet us in public debate before the people. Elder Ketcham said that we were cowards and that he knew we would not meet him when he came. It is just possible that that is the reason he was so anxious. A large crowd gathered around to see and hear what was going on, and after they had repeated their challenge several times, we told them that we would accept. So we drew up propositions and made arrangements for the debate the following week. We secured the Brighamite dance hall for the discussion. We made arrangements for a four nights discussion, but at the close of the first evening, in which we affirmed that young Joseph was the legal successor, we were told that we could have the hall for only one night longer. So the next evening they affirmed James J. Strang to be the legal successor of Joseph Smith. The Lord was with us and the victory was on our side. Two days before the debate commenced we received a letter from our opponents, in which they gave us a challenge to repeat the debate after thirty days anywhere in the San Luis valley. So at the close of the debate Bro. Morgan read the letter to the crowd and then told our opponents that we would accept the challenge and meet them in a Strangite neighborhood near Monte Vista, but they had a sufficiency so took water instead of debate.

We next attended a conference held by the Brighamites, which lasted for two days. A public prayer meeting is a thing of the past with this people, but not a public dance. Instead of the congregation kneeling when they ask a blessing on the bread and water, the one asking the blessing is the only one that kneels. They do not heed the statement in Doctrine and Covenants 17: 22, which says, "He [the one asking the blessing] shall kneel with the church." Perhaps the priesthood has counseled otherwise. Polygamy, Adam-God worship and Blood Atonement are not things of the past as the Brighamite missionaries in the eastern states would have you believe. It seems to me, that we, as Latter Day Saints, should take a warning, seeing how this people have departed from the faith, and "observe our prayer in the season thereof," that we may not be deceived.

Hoping to continue faithful until the final victory is won, I remain Your brother in the one faith, J. F. CURTIS.

"WISDOM is justified of her children" says the Master. Even worldly acumen is valued in proportion to its quality. A brainy man or woman always commands the highest prices or salaries for their services in the marts of the world. The heavens value the excellencies of wisdom no less. She was with the Lord in the creation, and all the created join in the acclaim of glory to God in the highest for the grandeur of His works.

SR. HARRIET TURNER, writing from London Mill, Ill., says: I am eighty-seven years and three months old. I most gladly greet the ENSIGN's weekly visits, freighted with gospel truths and light.

SR. EWEY HOWELL, of Pashaw, Vernon county, Missouri, says she would rejoice if she could attend the coming reunion, but she cannot. She has great faith in the latter day work and wants to remain faithful.

ELDER N. N. COOKE, Voshall, Osage county, Missouri, August 18:

I see by late issue of the ENSIGN that somebody was lost. Well, I am to be found here doing all the good I can to help the Saints and friends understand the laws of life in the gospel: how far I shall succeed I do not know, but I shall leave it in the hands of Him who doeth all things well, for Paul planted, Apollous watered, but God gave the increase. May the blessings of God rest with this people, is the prayer of your co-laborer in hope of eternal life.

A SISTER signing herself 'M. F. S.' writes from Morehouse, Missouri, July 29th:

Bro. Spurlock and Harry Thomas were here and preached two excellent sermons and revived my drooping heart. Sometimes I would give anything to be where I could go to our church; sisters, that have that privilege, do all you can to send this glorious gospel over the land, for I know it is of God. There are no other Saints in this place and I feel lonely. If I had some of the church literature I could scatter it around.

ELDER F. D. OMANS writing from Crystal, Michigan, July 29, says:

I am battling for the right, here in Montcalm county, Michigan. On Sunday, the 26th inst., I baptized two precious souls into the kingdom; they are both highly respected by all who know them and will have considerable influence over their many friends. The Lord is blessing his work and the great sickle of truth is gathering in the sheaves. I am as ever for the hope of Zion.

SR. LIZZIE M. HINKLEY writes from Wrayville, Illinois:

I am alone here in the faith; I hear no preaching only as I get it out of the ENSIGN. I many times wish I could meet with the Saints, but it seems as though I cannot. I have not heard a Latter Day Saint sermon for nearly two years. I hope there will be an elder come around here and again preach for us. I know there will be some who will go to hear if we could have some one to preach for us. I think they can get the school house now as they have new directors and two of them I think are friends of the Saints.

Waverly Magazine tells of a little tot who had attained to the dignity of a "kindergartener" saying one day to her father, "I know what two and two, and three and two, and two and four make." "Yes," answered the parent, "but what do you and I make?" and without a moment's hesitation the wise little mistress of problems replied, "sweethearts." Ah yes, love is the great unifier of the ages; it blesses and comforts all conditions and ranks. With its presence the privations and sufferings of poverty are lightened, and the riches of this world are made to produce fruit for eternity. But envy and hate are twin disgraces which sow the seeds of sorrow and death. Let us all, therefore, "Walk in love as dear children."

TRY THE SPIRITS.

Sermon delivered before the General Conference, at Lamoni, Iowa, Sunday morning, April 8th, 1900, by Elder J. J. Cornish.

The passage of scripture which I select for a starting point for my remarks, will be found in the first epistle general of John, the fourth chapter and part of the first verse; "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try the spirits whether they be of God."

It might be wise, perhaps, to call attention to the first chapter of Genesis, where we may obtain a little light regarding the spirits, and I notice in the 1st chapter and 26th verse, that God said, "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness and it was so." God said; He said that to some person. It appears there was no man as yet created and still God spoke to some person. "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness." By calling your attention to the first chapter of John, and the first part of the chapter, we notice that "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God; all things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made. In Him was life and the life was the light of men. The light shineth in the darkness and the darkness comprehendeth it not."

We read on a little farther, down to the 14th verse: "And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father) full of grace and truth." I understand, then, from this, that in the beginning was the Word, (Jesus Christ), and the "Word" (Jesus Christ) was with God (God the Father) and the "Word" (Jesus Christ), was God (God, the Son). That Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, etc.

We call your attention to the statement made by the Apostle Paul in the first chapter of Hebrews, first and second verses, "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds." "Let us make man in our own image, after our likeness." He was talking to Jesus Christ, his Son. I understand, then, that this was the spiritual creation of man; that then, the spirits that existed were brought together and formed in the image of God and his Son; and you will remember that Jesus Christ did not take a body until four thousand and four years after that time or thereabouts, so that He existed in spirit with the Father.

My understanding is, then, that the spirits were now created; not all made out of nothing as some vainly suppose, but that the materials existed and were simply brought together, created. Like, we may say, here is a building created, but it was not created out of nothing; it was all here before. The sand was worked over, and made into glass, and from ore that was in the ground nails were made; from the trees that grew were made our timber and our lumber, etc., and all that we have existed before; we simply manufactured it—brought it together, created and built. God created man, not everything out of nothing, but with the elements that existed he brought together, and he made man in his own image.

This is the spirit that I wish to talk about, but for fear some may not rightly understand me, I call your attention to the second chapter of Genesis; reading a few verses you will notice that it had not rained upon the earth that God had created, and there was not a man to till the ground. Some may say, "But you have quoted in the first chapter that God did make man, male and female created he them." Yes, and yet there was not a man to till the ground. I do not understand that that spirit can hold the plow or sow the seed without it lives and exists in a body made of the earth, so the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul.

We are sometimes questioned by our Advent brethren, "Is that breath, then, not the soul?" I remember one time when I left Canada and came to Michigan to preach; that one asked me that question, and I had never heard the question asked before, "What is the soul of man?" I was ignorant of it then, and after they had attended my meetings, some one of them said, "Elder, your preaching is very much like ours." "Well," I said, "I am glad you have got the truth then." "But there are some things you preach that we don't see alike." "Well," I said, "I wish we could all see exactly alike, all have the whole truth." "Say, elder, what is the soul of man?" I had never given it thought. "Did not God make man in the beginning out of the dust of the ground?" "Yes." "And breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul?" "Yes, sir." "Then," he said, "the breath is the soul, isn't it?" "Yes,—I guess so," but I didn't hardly think it, however; I didn't know what to say. I simply had to sanction it for the time being; but still there was a doubt. Just about two hours afterward, I met another man and he said, "Brother, I have heard you preach three times; you preach pretty good doctrine." "The doctrine is always good," I said. "But, say," he said, "What is the soul of man?" There, I said, is another of those fellows, I never met them on the other side. I said, "I met one of your men a little while ago who asked me the same question." "Now," he said, "Did not God make man in the beginning out of the dust of the ground?" "Yes." "And breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul?" "Yes, sir." "Then," he said, "the breath is the soul, isn't it?" "I haven't given that much thought. It may be, but I don't think it."

We entered into a little argument, and the next morning I met another gentleman who had been to our meetings. The first words he said were, "Elder, what is the soul?" "Well," thought I, "I am right in a nest of them!" (I was only a boy at the time). "Yes," I said. "In the beginning God made man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul." "I have met two or three of your brethren and they have sung that same song. I have learned it, I understand it (the song, but not the soul of man). I must know something about it." I made up my mind when I first began this work in the city of London that I proposed to live it and preach it, when I was called to preach it, and I would do the best I could under every and all circumstances wherever called upon to defend this work. But I could not read very well at that time.

When Bro. James Stratton, who now lives in Kansas City, was with me, and I could not read, I'd say, "Bro. James, I am going to preach; we will start it here, right in the city of London, said I, you read the chapter and the hymns. He said, "allright," and he read the hymn. I led in prayer, then he read the chapter over that I had thought in my mind would be well, and while I had selected a certain verse that I read over and over and over, I don't know how many times, so that I could read it in public; and you will understand me when I say I could not read anything above three or four letters in a word, I would have to spell it out. But in this way I would remember the verse and would read my text. They say, "Open your mouth and He will fill it," but sometimes people open their mouths and there isn't anything there, and I did not have anything there only as the Lord gave, and I made up my mind that if God could make a preacher out of me and fill my mouth, he could make a preacher out of any one; so I opened my mouth and said, "Lord, tell me what to say and I'll say it," and so I began to speak after having given out the text, and the words kept coming until I thought I had talked enough, and was talking loud enough, and went on a perfect stream apparently for about twenty-five minutes, and stopped all at once. I stopped, of course, I had nothing else to say. I thought in my mind when that was going on, that I was doing all right, it sounded good to me. Now I am stopped right off. Now what? I said, "Meeting again next Sunday at half past two." Something came to me right then "Now you have done it, you cannot tell anything more," and I fairly trembled, and many a time in getting up before the people I have had that same feeling of trembling; not because I thought this work was not true, but for fear I might not present it truly and as God would have me tell it.

Now, while starting out and commencing in that way, the Spirit has helped, has led and guided; and that part of the "soul" I never heard it there (in Canada) because I met no Adventists there, but when I came over to Michigan and they began to propound those questions to me that I was unable to answer, I made up my mind what I had settled upon in the beginning, when I started in this work, that it was true, and that every part of it was true, and whatever the church has stated upon it, as has been presented by the elders of the church, it must be right, because it was begun by a prophet, and it was being carried on by a prophet, and the inspiration of the Almighty was in these men, and in their co-laborers in the quorums right on down, and so far as I had gone, I never saw an article or a point in print where they had taken a stand, that these men had to take it back. When I saw that I was right in the midst of those people and had that point to answer, and could not answer it correctly, I made up my mind that God must help me now or I could not defend that part of it; and I did not want to represent a church or present a doctrine that I had to take back, and so I asked God to help me. There was no place else to go.

And the thought came, "Did not Jesus preach to the spirits in prison?" "Yes." "That was not breath." There is a good point. Did not Moses and Elias come to Jesus Christ upon the Mount of Transfiguration, and Peter, James and John were called upon as witnesses? Yes. Yes, that was a truth. Things began to loom up. "When I meet these parties again," thought I, "I am going to tell them that." Bye and bye I met Elder Wright. "Say, elder," he says, "Our people are stirred up much over your preaching." I said, "I am glad they are." Said he, "Can you tell me what is the soul of man?" "Yes, it is the inner man. I that speak to you is my Spirit, you that understand me is your spirit, and the inner man is exactly like the outward man, so far as its form is concerned, but in its organization it is of different material. And God made man in his own image, after his own likeness. This is the spirit. But after that there was not a man to till the ground; then the Lord God formed a man out of the dust of the ground," and I asked for Zachariah to come to my help now and put in a passage there to assist in that second chapter of Genesis, namely Zachariah the 12th chapter and first verse, wherein he says, speaking of the creation of the heavens and the earth, "And he formeth the spirit of man within him."

Now, then, I understand from the second chapter of Genesis, that God made man out of the dust of the ground, he formed the spirit that he had first created, that you read about in the first chapter; he formed one of those spirits in that man that he made out of the dust of the ground; then he breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and set the machinery at work, and that spirit and that body is the soul of man.

On meeting those men afterward, they did away, of course, with those passages in their way; even where Moses and Elias appeared, and Christ preached to the spirits in prison, that is all answered. All the preaching there was in it, Christ's spirit was in Noah preaching to them away back in that day, and so they tried to do away with the idea that we had tried to understand more perfectly.

But I continued to pray, read, study, and ask God for light, and one evening (I presume the Lord wanted to show me in such a way that I would understand it more perfectly, and that I'd never forget it), He permitted my spirit to leave my body, and I stood by the side of my body; I saw my spirit, and I saw my body (my inward man and outward man), and I said, "Why here are two Cornishes." I believe I understand that perfectly, so far as that is concerned. And, dear brothers and sisters, it is I that am now speaking; that is the spirit. I that speak is my spirit and not my body. I am simply using this body, and you that understand are your spirits, and that is the spirit that was created at the beginning that is the spirit that now lives in our body, the spirit that will live on in a highly conscious state between the death and the resurrection of our bodies.

And now there are many spirits created, and I understand they were all created to be good spirits, but there was one spirit that turned out to be bad, and that he had a name given to him; it was "Lucifer," the son of the morning, and he would tell different things about the other brethren, to God, that would not be true, and so he kept on bringing accusations against the brethren, day and night he did it; he was at it constantly, and finally he got several to follow him.

Dear brethren, now about these spirits. One is bringing railing accusations against the other; that was not God's Spirit, and so we will have you know, if ever we do the like of that, that we are to try that spirit to see if it was of God or not. Bye and bye, some of the other spirits that were trying to be good and do that which was right, made up their minds they would not put up with it, and a rebellion took place in the heavens, so we do not expect but what there might be a rebellion here on the earth sometimes; and there was a war in heaven; God's angels fought against Lucifer and his angels; Michael and his angels prevailed; Lucifer prevailed not, and he was cast out, he and his angels with him.

Now, what do we hear? Why, to the inhabitants of the earth, "Woe, for the devil has come down upon you having great wrath." Here is a separation. Hence, there are many spirits at work; there are good spirits and there are bad spirits, and we are told in the first and second chapters of the Hebrews that those good spirits are angels of God, which are ministering spirits; ministering to those who shall be heirs of salvation who dwell upon the earth; they are all ministering spirits. Now, all of us are guided by some spirit. No doubt we have angels to assist us, though we may not see them.

Now, we believe that it would be wise upon our part to always try these spirits, and see whether they are good ones or whether they are bad ones. If they should be the spirits of the opposite party they will lead us astray; they may tell us many good things in order to get us following along that line, but by and bye put in many bad things, and we will be led, little by little, until we are led astray and away from that which is right. So John says, "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but try them."

I wish to call your attention to a little circumstance that occurred at one time, wherein you may see the difference between the two spirits. You remember Peter was an apostle of Jesus Christ; was chosen to be so by the Master himself and considered one of the leading spirits in that quorum, but you remember one time when Jesus was about to be taken and crucified, how that, as the Master had said, Peter denied him. Bye and bye when a little girl came up and said, "You are surely one of this man's disciples," he said, "No, I am not." Is that a good spirit, telling a lie? Bye and bye when the question was asked again, he denied again; and again when a man asked him the same question, he cursed and swore and said he did not know the man.

There was one kind of a spirit made manifest in Peter. Some fifty-three days after that I find when the great congregation had gathered together upon that memorable day of Pentecost and the Spirit of God was poured out upon these men, that that same man Peter rose up in that congregation and said, "Men and brethren, let me freely speak to you." I don't want to admit anything today I will deny later, as the declaration, "I don't know the man," but now since the Spirit of God has come upon him, he is willing to rise up, and among that same class of people which thirsted for the blood of Jesus, and say, "Let me freely speak to you." This is another spirit. Let us try the spirits that are around us. That spirit that led Peter to deny Jesus was not of God, but that spirit that he had afterwards when he wanted to tell the people that Jesus had been slain by those cruel wicked hands, he hath ascended up on high and he hath shed forth what you now see and hear, was of God. There is the difference between the two.

Brother John, too, who was the forerunner of the Savior, who was sent to mark out the way and make the paths straight. (The others had made the paths crooked.) And while he was teaching, preaching and explaining the gospel, many came to him to be baptized. Among the number was the Son of God, the Savior of men, and John baptized him, and saw the Spirit come upon him, forming itself like a dove, and to this John testifies that "He that sent me to baptize with water, the same said unto me, upon whomsoever ye see the Spirit descending in the form of a dove, that same is he which shall baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire. Now, said John the next day, looking upon Jesus as He walked with the disciples, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." That is the one, I know him, and how? Because He that sent me to baptize, said the Lord would so come, and I did baptize Him, I did see the Spirit descend and I testify that this, is the Son of God. That is the good Spirit of God.

But bye and bye there was an hour of trial came upon John when he was put in the prison. He said to his disciples, "I wish you would go over and ask him if he is really the one that is to come, or shall we look for another?" There is a difference between these spirits, and we are to try them. What did Jesus say? How grand the thought! "Go tell John that the sick are healed, the blind receive, their sight, the lame are made to walk, and the poor have the gospel preached to them." Better tell that than to go back and say, "Tell him that I am the Savior, tell him as plain and decided as you can. Tell him what it is declared that God would do when He did come before you, and then it would surely call his attention to the past when he testified, "Behold the Lamb of God."

You see how easily one can get in the darkness, be he prophet or king or what not, and if the light that is in them be darkness, how great is that darkness. It behooves every Latter Day Saint to live according to the gospel plan day by day, each day of their lives, that they may obtain and retain the Spirit of God, that their minds may not be darkened, and that the evil spirit may not enter in and lead them astray.

Perhaps I should give a passage or two of scripture showing that angels may be the companions of those people who are trying to do right. Let me call your attention to the forty-eighth chapter of Genesis, in that case of Jacob blessing the grandchildren, the sons of Joseph, Ephraim and Manasseh, and while pronouncing that blessing upon them, he speaks of the God of his fathers, Abraham and Isaac, etc., and then says, "And the angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads, and let my name be named upon them." There was an angel to redeem them, there was a guardian spirit. David says in the Psalms that they encamp around about them that fear him, and delivereth them.

The apostle James had been in prison and had been beheaded by the authority of Herod the king, and seeing that it pleased the Jews he proceeded to take

Peter also, and he placed him in prison; but prayer was made and the angel of God came down and let the man out. He simply smote him on the side and said, "Peter, stand up. Arise up quickly." And the chains fell from off his hands; and he went out and followed the angel, and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel, but it thought he saw a vision; but it was indeed a fact and so he went down to the house of Mary where they were all gathered together praying, "And as Peter knocked at the gate, a damsel came to harken named Roda; and when she knew Peter's voice she opened not the gate for gladness, but ran in and told how Peter stood before the gate. And they said unto her, art thou mad. But she constantly affirmed that it was even so. Then said they, it is his angel." They understood that there were angels to guard those belonging to Christ, to assist them, and you and I might consider the history of our past lives and see where we have been guided by an unseen hand, by an over-ruling power that has assisted many a time, although we may not have seen them personally.

I remember on one occasion in Michigan, in Isabelle county, while standing up and defending this work before a minister of another faith in public discussion, that it seemed at one time the power of God was so great I scarcely knew I was standing on the floor. I was afraid to thrust my hand back for fear I would strike some one behind me, and one brother, Bro. F. C. Smith, as soon as that speech was over, said, "Bro. Cornish, I saw a heavenly messenger standing by your right hand side while defending that work."

These are the good spirits that are assisting in the hours when necessary to assist, but the world that is opposing this truth do not understand these spirits to be good ones.

Brethren, we are to try them, because Satan may transform himself into an angel of light; and so may his ministers. Who are they? They are the ones who are outside trying to destroy this faith. Try them. They say we are the only church having the power of God. A person once said to me, that one of their sisters in their meeting that morning was knocked down by that power and fell to the floor and laid there three hours insensible, and then they roused her up and she came to. "And what did she say," I said. "Why, I don't know." Just let me question her. "What did you see, sister, when you fell down that way?" "Nothing."

"Did you hear a voice or have any revelation, or anything?" "No." "Do you know any more now since that occurred than you did before?" "No." "What good was it to you? You felt weak afterward, you felt your own strength was gone, you had to be held up, one on each side, and nursed for a little while. What good was it?" This is one spirit that was manifested.

I now call your attention to the day of Pentecost. You remember how the Lord declared that these apostles should go out and preach this gospel, but wait, said He, "until you are endowed with power from on high," and that is the power that comes from God. "Wait until you have it," and they waited; and no doubt understanding that Jesus had gone up from them, and they, having witnessed that ascension, were expectant, waiting, that they might tell the story of the cross. And while there the time came when that Holy Spirit of God came upon these men. Did it knock Peter down to the floor? No. And the others? No. But Peter stood up and the eleven with him as witnesses, and they spake in the demonstration of that spirit of God and with power. There is power! Try these spirits and examine that one that knocked that person down, and try the other one that raised that person up. And he spoke to the people the unsearchable riches of Christ. "But isn't it sometimes possible or probable that a person may be carried away?" Oh yes, but not so often as we sometimes see in some of these distracted—oh, protracted, meetings.

Notice now, I want to read you another passage of scripture and show you two spirits that may be made manifest upon that passage. If thy brother trespass against thee, go tell him his faults, between him and thee alone. If he hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother; if he will not, take one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word shall be established, etc. That is the letter of the law, and now let us see if we can see what kind of a spirit might be manifested in that law. I will try one first.

A brother comes up and grabs me by the throat, and crushes my throat so that I cannot open my mouth to speak, and says, "Here, sir, you have said so and so about me, and if you don't take that back I'll smash your face!" But in the squabble I get the better of him, hence, do not hear him as the law says. Then to further comply with the law he brings two persons whom he believes to be his friends and at enmity with me, and who, apparently, are influenced by the same spirit which he himself manifests, who speak roughly to me threatening me with violence, etc. But I still do not hear them. Then they agree among themselves to draw me before a court of elders, and, if possible, have me expelled from the church.

Now I go over to the other side and I try another spirit, and he says, "Brother, you remember when you said that about me. You don't know how much that hurt me. You wouldn't like me to say that about you, would you?" "No, I do not think I would." "Can't we make this thing right now? We had better, we are in the one common family. Let us try and be reconciled." Thus you may see the difference between the two spirits. (I do not know but what I am talking chiefly to the people of Lamoni). But when you have told that brother his faults, do not go and publish it all around the country, never tell a soul about it. "Why," says one, "did you not say to take two or three witnesses?" Yes, but not talk it all over with them; tell it to that brother, in the presence of those witnesses, just about the way you told it to him before when you and he were alone, and these men now hear it for the first time. Now they can be competent witnesses, and thus you do not prejudice their minds.

I wish now to call your attention to another idea. Maybe I had better tell you what the old lady said in answer to the question given by her minister. There was a neighbor man that troubled her very much and she wanted to get even with him some way, and scarcely knew how to do it. She kind of wanted to do right, and yet at the same time she would like to do something to get even with him some way or another. Bye and bye her minister came to see her. "Elder," she said, "what do you think I had better do?" The parson said, "I believe if I were you, I would just heap coals of fire on his head." "Good," said she, "that will burn the brains right out of him; I will do it too." The parson didn't mean that; he meant what is referred to in the Bible. He meant you return good for evil; do good things, and thus you will heap coals of fire on his head. I want you to see the spirit that was manifested in that lady.

I want to refer you to a little circumstance mentioned in the Bible, at least a parallel with that, and it brings in the poor Apostle Peter again. It is in the Bible and we are going to bring it up, because what is in the Bible was written for our profit. You know when the people came to take Jesus Christ they were going to kill him—thirsting for his blood, and while they had heard so much about him, they didn't know enough about him to know who he was, and one of his own men had to tell them. He says, "I will tell you who he is; I will kiss him; that will be the one." And when they were about to take him, Peter said, "Shall we call fire down from heaven and destroy them, like Elijah did?" He said, "Ye do not know what spirit ye are of." Every Latter Day Saint, try the spirits. There was a wrong spirit that had got ahold of that apostle. Jesus says, "The Son of Man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save." That is the good spirit of God. That is the spirit we should try to follow. Peter said, "I will do something anyway, I will cut his ear off." "Now, Peter, put up thy sword, for he that taketh up the sword shall perish by the sword." "Don't do that." Jesus takes that man and heals him. What? That man that had come to kill him? Yes, that is the spirit that we must imitate; that is the spirit we must follow if we are to be like Christ.

Now, there is a plan marked out by the meek and lowly Jesus, that one that came to save the race; "and if you love me you will keep my commandments," and his commandments are that we should do good to all men, that we should love our enemies; not love them because they do bad things, but love them in that way that you would do good to them and bring them to the light, if possible. By your doing good for evil, you surely must win them by and by, and if you cannot do it in this life, when you come before the judgment seat of Christ and these parties come there, they cannot say, "Well, you are to blame; if it had not been for you, I'd have done differently. You were as mean as you could be to me; you called me everything, and that is why we used to call you Mormon," etc. Act Christ-like at all times, then they cannot say but what we have tried to do the best we could to win them to Christ.

While we notice that Jesus Christ there healed that man, here is a thought. Let me diverge a little bit to show this point. Sectarians say, "If you will do that miracle in the presence of the people, every man will believe in you." Why did not every man that had come to take the Savior believe in him when he healed the soldier's ear-rih in the presence of those people? We would see a sign from heaven was their plea. These signs were never sent to make men believe, but to follow those that do believe—that was the idea. So you see those people did not come into the church when they saw those things. If a man would require a sign or miracle to be performed to bring him in, it certainly would take one every day to keep him there, and that man is better outside. Well, what are they for, another may say. They are to follow the believers and strengthen them; those who believe the gospel to be true; it strengthens their faith, and if he is an unbeliever or outsider, if he sees those things, he gets mad about it and he is worse afterwards than he was before. He is of the opposite spirit, you know.

Jesus said to the apostle, "You know not what manner of spirit you are of," and a little while afterward, you remember, Jesus said to Peter, "Peter, when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." Not converted yet? No. Some people want converting lots of times, over and over, and there was a time that I was converted to a certain part of this faith, but because I was brought up to believe in sprinkling for baptism, it took a little more preaching to get me to believe in the mode as found in the scriptures. Conversion is simply a change from one condition to another, from one thing to something else; one may be converted from cursing and swearing, and turning around and praising God and glorifying his name. Another may be converted from praising and worshipping God, and turn around and blaspheme His holy name; it is a change one way or the other. So, Peter, when you are changed and get a little nearer, then strengthen the brethren.

While there are many spirits gone out into the world, Jude tells you in his epistle, that some angels changed and left their habitations, and God hath reserved them in everlasting chains, in darkness. They are to be punished; they are reserved in chains of darkness. I do not understand that these fallen spirits will be permitted to take a body as we have, and inhabit and own that body in this life; and that is the reason we see some of those spirits entering into other bodies that have spirits already. Jesus used to cast them out in his day, and they were so anxious and desirous to have a body that they prayed the Master if he did cast them out, just to allow them to go into a herd of swine. They were anxious to have a body if it was only that of a hog. Let us live right, so we may inhabit a glorified body. They kept not their first estate, they see what they have missed. If we do not keep the law given to govern us in this second estate, it will not be well with us, but we will be desirous of better bodies and better conditions.

Let us follow that good Spirit of God and live according to the law that is given to govern our present estate—our second estate—that we may come up by and by with a glorified body in the third estate—the coming time. Live in such a way that we may have the wedding garment on, which is the righteousness of saints, that garment which is called pure linen, clean and white. We want to live the religion of Jesus Christ, and more and more as we see the day approaching, and as we use the statement made by the prophet, seer and revelator, the martyr, that the spirit that works among the children of disobedience will become more prominent among them, and it will be among the members of the church unless they live right. Let us do right or we shall not escape it.

Look at that spotty animal out in the field. It has certain spots on it, white ones and black ones, etc.; that poor beast cannot hide them. In that day of accounts when we come to stand before the Judge of all the earth, if we haven't our garments on but are spotted all over, how will we feel? We want to live in such a way that we may be presented before the Father, pure and spotless, and just perhaps as that animal cannot hide those spots now, perhaps we cannot hide ours then when we get there. So now is the time to make wrongs right, wherever we have erred and transgressed; let us have that Spirit of God that will lead us and guide us and help us to see all our faults, and put them away from us, following that good Spirit only that will lead us to do good continually, is my prayer.

Her Church First.

In one of the children's hymns is the line, "Surely the Captain can depend on me," and it declares the quality of service which every cause, and especially the christian cause, needs. Church services, Sunday Schools, prayer meetings, need helpers who can always be depended upon, who will always be present in spite of bad weather, inconvenience or inclination, and who will give what aid they can, without reluctance or excuse. One helper who never fails, though he may be of moderate ability, is worth a dozen brilliant but uncertain attendants. Let your pastor depend on you, as a friend who writes the following account could depend on the lady he mentions.

Mrs. E. was the heart of the little church to which I first ministered. She was a very gracious lady and attracted by her winning ways; she had a large family of children, and always brought them to church to fill her pew; she kept her rather easy-going husband up to his church duties and obligations, and set the fashion of helping; the church to all her neighbors; but all this was of less account than her faithfulness. I could always depend upon seeing her in her place, and whenever she had any service to perform, I could always rest, for I knew that it would be done in season—and well done.

Now this faithfulness was not maintained by her without opposition or without careful management. Her attractiveness, the good nature of her husband, the social disposition of her children, made her house a favorite resort, and she never closed its hospitable doors. As a natural consequence the guests who came did not always take account of Sunday services or prayer meeting nights. It was not unusual for out-of-town guests to leave the cars at her gate on Sunday morning, with the intention of a day's visit with their hospitable friend. Or the neighbors would run in on the night of the prayer meeting for an evening's social call. The man of the house would count these interruptions as sufficient excuse for staying at home. "We go to church regularly, of course, but we cannot treat our friends rudely. We must stay at home this time," he would urge.

"I will arrange it," she would say quietly. Then, when time came for getting ready, she would say to her guests, "We belong to the little church here. We are much needed there and are always in the habit of attending. We have plenty of pew room, and should be glad to have you go with us. If you prefer to stay at home, make yourselves comfortable here till we return."

Such an invitation was generally sufficient, and the little congregation was increased by the presence of the visitors; but, if it was otherwise, and they preferred to remain at the house, they never could complain of want of courtesy on the part of their hostess. Her graciousness and sincerity left no room for anything but respect. She followed her convictions and at the same time gained everybody's esteem. When she died that church lost its strongest pillar. It had rested on her faithfulness.

"OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS."
DAUGHTERS OF ZION
Miss H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home keepers, and as moulders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

- Mrs. Mary E. Hulmes, President, Independence, Mo.
- Mrs. H. H. Robinson, Corresponding Secretary, No. 910 West Electric Street, Independence, Mo.
- Mrs. B. C. Smith, 214 So. Spring St., Independence, Mo.
- Mrs. John Stenhouse, 515 Main St., Kansas City, Mo.
- Mrs. Clara Frick, 203 So. Fuller Ave., Independence, Mo.
- Mrs. Callie B. Stebbins, Recording Secretary, Lamoni, Iowa.
- Mrs. Anna Murphy, Treasurer, Independence, Mo.

Editor's Address, 111 So. Fuller Ave., Independence, Mo.

AS CONSIDERABLE time has elapsed since the Advisory Board of the Daughter's of Zion made a call through the secretary, to all locals, for funds, for publishing books and such other literature as they felt they needed for the work, and but little response has been received, I now feel to again call attention to the matter, and ask how many of the locals are aiming to respond. Please let us hear from you at once, as the manuscript for the first book is now in the hands of the publishers, and we hope by the time the work is finished to be able to meet the expense, that we may go right on with other work of similar kind.

We wish not only to call attention of locals to this necessity for funds, but to all who feel that this work is a help in our homes, in society and in the church. I wish to state that the committee appointed to prepare this book for publication, has done all that work without any remuneration whatever, except the hope to help others, and will continue their good work as fast as means come in to carry it on; so now, why cannot all others who are interested in seeing the influence of this work extended, do what they can in this line to help it on. Surely this is an excellent opportunity for those interested sisters, who regret that they cannot have the privilege of meeting with the locals, to place themselves, as it were, on the roll of missionary workers, by financially aiding in the good work, through which we expect to reach many throughout the church, as well as others whom we could not otherwise reach. The good that may thus be accomplished would surely be sufficient reward for the outlay.

Our aim is to have the price of the book so low that it may be within the reach of all, and in order to have it so, we need your help. If more money is received than is needed for this book, it will enable us to go on with others that much sooner; so we trust that all who can will assist, and will be on the lookout for the notice of the book.

- MRS. M. E. HULMES.
President of Advisory Board of Daughters of Zion.

"THE true object of all education is to enable us to serve. Not self, but humanity comes first."

The Meaning of Home

A very practical article regarding Home and Family Life, by Professor Ellen M. Richards, appears in the September number of The Delinquent. The first sentence is, "The house is but the shell of the home, a shell meant to inclose and protect, not to crush it." These few words give an idea of the breadth and sympathy with which Professor Richards discusses the subject.

Cultivate the Passion for Excellence.

Man's reach should exceed his grasp, Or what is heaven for?—BROWNING.

Dr. Collyer has reminded us that Darwin's suggestion as to the evolution of the eagle is an instructive one. The desire to ascend was there before the wings, and through countless ages of development the process of formation and adaptation went on, until, at length, with mighty pinions, seven feet from tip to tip, the eagle soared aloft toward the sun. Of us it may be said that every well-meant trial and intention is part of a great process, each starts some feather in the eagle's wing.

It is he who aspires mightily who mightily achieves. The noblest character would soon degenerate if it should lose the love excellence. This passion for excellence is the voice of God, bidding us up and on, lest we forget our divine origin and degenerate to barbarism again. This principle is the guardian of the human race. It is God's voice in man. It is the gem which the Creator dropped into the dust when he fashioned us in His own image.

Thorwaldsen, being asked whether there was anything distressing him, answered, "My genius is decaying." "What do you mean?" said the visitor. "Why, here is my statue of Christ. It is the first of all my works I have ever felt satisfied with. Till now, my ideal has always been far beyond what I could execute. But it is no longer so. I shall never have a great ideal again."

"The more thorough a man's education," says Beecher, "the more he yearns for and is pushed forward to new achievement. The better a man is in the world, the better he is compelled to be. That bold youth who climbed up the Natural Bridge, in Virginia, and carved his name higher than any other, found when he had done so, that it was impossible for him to descend, and that his only alternative was to go on and scale the height, and find safety at the top. There is no going down. It is climbing or falling."

"The situation that was not its duty, its ideals," says Carlyle, was never yet occupied by man. Yes, here, in this poor, miserable, hampered, despicable actual, wherein thou even now standest, here or nowhere is thy ideal; work it out therefrom, and, working, believe, live, be free. The ideal is in thyself!

"Higher! It is a word of noble import," says a modern teacher. "It lifts the soul of man from low and groveling pursuits to the achievement of great and noble deeds, and ever keeps the object of its aspiration in view, till his most sanguine expectations are fully realized."

Nothing else will so save a man from self-consumption as a complete surrender to excellence—to a lofty ideal. It is a burning zeal to get higher in the scale of character, an ever-increasing enthusiasm for the best, that will take nothing less, that lifts life upon a plane worth living.

"Yea, higher yet, and higher, Ever nigher, ever nigher, While men grow small by stooping and the reaper piles the grain—"

"Higher yet, and higher, Ever nigher, ever nigher, To the glory we conceive not, let us toil and strive and strain!"—Sel.

Laying Aside Every Weight.

Here is a marked illustration of St. Paul's exhortation to "lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us." Phillips Brooks once said: "A great man's path is strewn with the things he has learned to do without."

The following anecdote is from The Youth's Companion.

I remember, said the old school master, a summer morning when I stood in the little square of the town of Chamouni, where two parties of travelers were preparing for the ascent of Mt. Blanc. One young Englishman disregarded all the directions of the guides and loaded himself with things which he declared were absolutely necessary for the journey.

He carried a small case of wine and delicate food to pamper his appetite; a camera, with which he proposed to photograph himself and his companions at different stages of the ascent; note books in which to record his impressions, and a picturesque, plumed cap and gay Indian blanket which he wore to win admiration from possible beholders of his triumph.

The guides, after a protest, whispered together and allowed him to have his own way.

Six hours after his party started ours followed.

At the little chalet, where the first night is spent, we found his food and wine. The guide laughed.

"Herr Engländer has found that he cannot stop to humor his stomach, if he would climb Mt. Blanc," he said.

A few miles further on we found the note-books and camera. He had given up the hope of winning fame by recording his progress in the actual hard struggle of the ascent.

Still higher he had thrown off the gay robe and plumed cap.

We found him at the summit in leather jerkin, exhausted and panting for breath. He had encountered heavy storms, and reached the top of the mountain at the risk of his life; but he reached it. Clothes, food and the comments of people below did not come into his thoughts.

He had reached the summit.

When I was a boy, the school-master said suddenly, leaning over his desk and looking at my pupils, I used to plan out my life just as he planned his climb. Fine, fashionable clothes would be a necessity in it, I felt, and good things to eat, and plenty of notice and applause from the public as I marched along, and a record of my progress to be kept forever by the world.

But at forty I cared only for clothes that kept me warm, and at fifty only for food that kept me strong; and so steep was the height above me that at sixty I cared little for the opinion of people below if I only reach it. And if I ever do safely reach that height, looking upward, I shall not care whether the world keeps any record of my climbing or not, for I shall know that God has it.—Banner.

Rhodes Reunion.

The annual camp meeting of the Des Moines, Iowa, district opened on August 15th as announced. The committee in charge of the meeting consisted of Bro. H. A. McCoy, Charles Richeson and W. C. Nirk. The large district tent stands on the Fair ground and is nicely seated and the family tents are located near. The committee had everything in readiness for the opening and a goodly number camped on the ground the first day.

Apostle J. W. Wight arrived from Boone on Friday, as did also Elder D. C. White from Lamoni, and John White and wife from Independence.

The continued dry, warm weather all over central Iowa has had a tendency to keep many away from the reunion, but the opening day was as much as could be expected.

Friday, the opening, was Religio day. District president, J. R. Epperson, of Des Moines, could not be present, and vice-president H. A. McCoy had charge, with secretary Mattie Hughes of Rhodes and treasurer Elsie Russell of Grinnell present. The Religio-Literary program at night was good and consisted of papers, music, recitations and a talk by Bro. Wight.

The weather for the opening was fine and promises to so continue. The camp ground is nicely located on good high ground. Saturday and Sunday was the regular district conference sessions and the meeting to continue over Sunday, August 25th.

CONFERENCE MINUTES.

Conference of the Texas Central district convened with the Texas Central branch on July 27-28, 1901. Conference was opened at 10 a. m. July 27th, President E. W. Nunley in the chair, with all other officers of the district present. Minutes of former session read and approved. Branches reporting: Angeline 12; Elkhart 30; Cooks Point 39; Texas Central 76; Philadelphia 28. Elders reporting: High Priest E. W. Nunley, Elders John Hawley, J. W. Bryan baptized 1, S. R. Hay, T. L. Veale baptized 2, B. F. Spicer, Jr., W. G. Allen, W. R. Standefer and W. W. Squires; priests, J. M. Nunley, John Hay, F. C. Gough and C. A. Schuster.

Being the regular time for election of officers the following were elected: E. W. Nunley president; J. W. Bryan vice president; C. M. Mitchell secretary; John Hay assistant secretary. Bishop's agent's report was as follows: Received $125.67; paid out $71.74; leaving a balance on hand $53.93. The appointment of Bro. J. W. Bryan as local historian was ratified by the conference and his work so far as done approved.

Services for the conference were appointed by the president. Preaching by Bro. H. O. Smith, John Hawley, J. W. Bryan and E. W. Nunley. Sunday morning was occupied in a prayer and testimony meeting, which was very spiritual and was enjoyed very much. After conference adjourned on Sunday night the following week was occupied in a reunion service. There were some excellent discourses delivered. Conference adjourned to meet at the call of the president.

C. M. MITCHELL, Dist. Sec.

Convention Minutes.

The Sunday School convention of the Des Moines district was held at Rhodes, Iowa, August 16, 1901, assistant superintendent, C. J. Peters, presiding in the absence of the superintendent, J. R. Epperson. John D. White, of Independence, was chosen chorister.

The following schools reported: Clear Creek, Boonesboro, Des Moines Valley, Eden, Des Moines, Head Grove, Grinnell and Oskaloosa. The district treasurer reported $12.17 on hand.

The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of Sunday School questions, and several papers which had been sent in were read. A general interest was taken in these questions, the one of grading the Sunday School being of the most interest, and the following motion prevailed: That the district favors the grading of the Sunday School and the issuing of text books to supply the place of the present Quarterlies, as soon as possible.

A lively interest was shown by all the Sunday School workers present, the sentiment of the above resolution was unanimous and created a new interest in the work.

The convention adjourned and will meet in Grinnell December 27, 1901.

The literary program rendered in the evening consisted of music, recitations and papers, and was full of interest throughout, and several pronounced it the best entertainment yet given in the district.

A. A. REAMS.

RHODES, Ia., Aug. 18.

The Sunday School convention of the Chatham district met at Zone, Ont., on June 7-8, 1901. Called to order by the district superintendent, Sr. Jessie A. Hackett. Sr. Hackett, Bro. Jas. J. Williamson and J. H. Tyrrell, assistant superintendents, presided; Sr. Mary M. Green secretary, with Sr. Maggie Burr as assistant. Sr. E. A. Leverton was chosen for organist, with Elder J. H. Tyrrell as chorister. Elders R. C. Evans, Benj. St. John and J. Blackmore were chosen for credential committee. Elders P. A. Phillips, A. C. Barmore and Bro. Kingsley were chosen for auditing committee. Visiting brethren and sisters were granted all the rights and privileges of the convention.

Minutes of the last business session were then read and accepted. Reports from the various schools in the district were then read with a statistical report as follows: Number of sessions 313; total enrollment 472; total attendance 6403; average attendance 246; number of classes 41; number of officers 69; balance on hand last report $32.07; total collections $83.54; total disbursements $86.61; balance in treasury $28.97; amount paid to district treasurer, 95 cents. Number of Hopes taken, 90; Senior Quarterlies, 118; Intermediate Quarterlies, 77; Primary Quarterlies, 86. Two school reports did not arrive. Three new schools were added to our number: one school was disorganized. Some of our schools are doing well, others need encouragement, and a visit from the district superintendents. Written reports were read from the district officers and superintendents of schools. Report from district treasurer, Bro. George A. McFadden, was read as follows: Last report, $1.66; received since, 30 cents; expended, $1.26; leaving a balance on hand of 70 cents. Also a report from district librarian, Bro. James H. Tyrrell, as follows: Received, $18.75; expended for books, $12.59; balance, $6.16, to be turned over to the district treasurer for expenses of district association. An order was given on the treasurer for the sum of $2.88 to defray the district superintendent's expense. The rules and regulations governing the library were corrected and afterwards accepted. It was resolved that the librarian, superintendent and secretary form a committee and they decide which route the library books shall go through the district. It was resolved that the officers remain as elected till next October convention. All committee reports were accepted and committees released.

The evening session was devoted to entertainment, the program consisting of music, singing, recitations, speeches and drafting. Those taking part did well, and some of the children deserve praise.

The Saturday morning session was devoted to a model Sabbath School class in charge of Sr. Jessie Hackett and Elder J. H. Tyrrell. Some good instructions were given by Elders R. C. Evans and J. H. Tyrrell, which, if heeded, we will comply with the injunction to "Come up higher." A vote of thanks was tendered the "Zone Saints for their hospitality. Resolved that we now adjourn to meet at 2 p. m. the Friday prior to the convening of the fall conference. Closed by singing and prayer.

MARY M. GREEN, Dist. Sec.

NOTICES.

The Central Chicago branch cordially invites the missionaries of the Northeast Illinois district to assist in a ten days' meeting to begin at the close of the district conference held in Chicago, September 7-8, 1901.

As these meetings are purely an effort put forth by the Central branch, it will be distinctly understood that the district will not be in anywise responsible for any expense connected with these meetings. We have secured the promise that Bro. R. C. Evans and S. W. L. Scott will be with us to help proclaim the glorious gospel. There are more places than one to occupy in this large city, and we desire to stir up those who seek to know the truth.

PHILEMON PEMENT.

Pres. Central Chicago branch.
3411 Cottage Grove Ave., Aug. 19.

To the Saints of the Spring River District:—There will be a camp meeting on the ground where the reunion was to have been held, commencing September 13th and lasting over two Sundays. It will be at Berrys Ferry on the Neusho river, south of Baxter Springs, Kansas, in the Cherokee Nation; follow red posts going south. 200 acres of pasture free. You will have to come prepared to take care of yourselves and furnish your own tents. Hay and corn will be on the ground at the market price. Apostle I. N. White, Bro. J. D. Erwin, F. C. Keck and other speakers will be there. The late rains have made the pasture good. Come, all who can and get the lawer man fed. If you want any more information write to John T. Riley, Fairland, Indian Territory.

F. C. KECK,

Sub-Missionary in Charge.
Joplin, Mo., Aug. 16.

To the Scattered Saints of Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana District:—Having been appointed secretary of the district and by request of our general church recorder, I hereby request all scattered Saints to send me the items of identification with the church. Give name, birth, town, county and state born in, when and where baptized, by whom baptized and by whom confirmed, giving the one who was mouthpiece first; also if holding any priesthood, what office, where and by whom ordained and date.

WM. F. SNAUB.

Fremont, Ind.

Two Days' Meeting.

There will be two days' meetings in the Southern Michigan and Northern Indiana district, which will be held as follows: Halls Corners, August 24th and 25th; South Scot, August 31st and September 1st; Clear Lake, Sept. 7th and 8th; Flint, September 28th and 29th; Knox, October 5th and 6th.

G. A. SMITH, Dist. Pres.

Reunion Notices.

The reunion of the Nauvoo district at Bluff Park will not be held this year. The district committee, after deliberate counsel, decided it not best to make the attempt, in the face of crop conditions and promise of light attendance.

JAMES MCKIERNAN,

In behalf of committee.

FARMINGTON, Iowa, Aug. 19.

MARRIED.

CIVRY-RILEY.—At the home of the bride in Ponca City, Oklahoma, Aug. 7, 1901, Sr. Hattie Riley and Mr. J. F. Civry of Blytheedale, Missouri. They took the 7 p. m. train for Blytheedale. May peace and happiness go with them.

MONTER-UNDERWOOD.—At Hopkins Station, Michigan, Bro. Frank Monter and Sr. Jennie Underwood were united in marriage August 11th after the morning services, the ceremony being performed by Elder W. D. Ellis in presence of a good sized audience. Their friends wish them a long and happy life and may it be spent for the Master.

Splendid Sermon Tracts, your own selection from our published list, 25 cents per doz.

Lost Hair

"My hair came out by the handful, and the gray hairs began to creep in. I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor, and it stopped the hair from coming out and restored the color."—Mrs. M. D. Gray, No. Salem, Mass.

There's a pleasure in offering such a preparation as Ayer's Hair Vigor. It gives to all who use it such satisfaction. The hair becomes thicker, longer, softer, and more glossy. And you feel so secure in using such an old and reliable preparation.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

"WHAT SIGN SHOWEST THOU?"

One of the remarkable experiences which quite frequently confront the servants of the Lord Jesus Christ in their ministry of the word is that after they have patiently, painstakingly, clearly and concisely set forth the gospel as instituted by our Lord in his sojourn among men, assuring their hearers of the immutability of His word and the unchangeable character of the gospel, and that the gospel gifts promised to the believers which were realized and enjoyed by those who were obedient to the gospel requirements in His day, were equally and as fully promised to, and to be realized by, all who are likewise obedient in these latter days, to have some, for want of any scriptural objection to such teaching, say, "Well, show us a sign and we will join your church! Just drink a cup of poison; just let a poisonous snake bite you, and if it don't kill you we will know your church is right," etc.

The astonishing feature of this experience is the evidence which it manifests that these individuals do not have faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, nor in the promises He has Himself given by the authority of His Father. In nearly, if not quite, every case this strange proposition is made by those who vehemently assert that they are believers in, and followers of the Lord, but in their works in thus making their acceptance of His promises contingent upon the working of a miracle for their personal satisfaction—not for the good it might do, the blessing it might bring to some suffering one, but for the simple gratification of an unrighteous and unholy curiosity, that their power of reason might be silenced by witnessing something beyond their ability to satisfactorily account for, they deny and dishonor Him as certainly, and hold His word in contempt as decidedly as the veriest skeptic or agnostic that ever lived.

"Faith cometh by HEARING, and hearing by the word of God, is the instruction of the apostle (Rom. 10: 17), but these modern doubters, like those anciently, will not believe unless they have some ocular demonstration—though what it would require to convince them, they themselves could not readily determine. But even though power was resident in the servants of Christ to comply with these demands, the only effect upon them would be to harden them in their unbelief, until, like Pharaoh of old, destruction would have to be visited upon them. If the faithful preaching of the word of God as He has caused it to be recorded, will not engender faith in the hearer, no working of miracles could avail to supply the lack. The Savior uttered his disapproval of this kind of skepticism when on one occasion he stated to one of the noblemen who came to Him at Cana, from Capernaum, and asked Him to come and heal his son who was at the point of death, "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe" (John 4: 48), yet on the importunity of the father He graciously granted the prayer, and the son was healed; and so pointedly was the promise of the Savior to the nobleman fulfilled, that it is recorded "himself believed" and his whole house. But the evidence in this case in no manner justifies the thought or theory that the Savior wrought this miracle to induce faith in His power to heal; it was simply a loving answer to the supplication of a suffering father pleading for the life of his child, and that father and family out of the gratitude in their hearts for the clemency extended, were willing to acknowledge that He was indeed all that He claimed for Himself. The father, it is said, "believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and went his way," and this faith was manifest before he knew anything about the fulfillment of the Savior's promise; it was not until the next day that he ascertained the facts in the case.

Some of the greatest of miracles were performed by the Savior in His time, almost under the very sight of the Pharisees. That of the man born blind caused a very great commotion and agitation in their ranks; but when the case of Lazarus being raised from the dead under His hands was brought before them, it plainly carried consternation with it among them; so much so, that the counsel was to not only put Jesus, but even Lazareth, to death, that the effect of the miracle might be destroyed and the progress of the work He was doing stopped. But none of these things caused them to believe in Him as the Messiah, the Son of God. Evidences of His power multiplied around them daily, which, instead of leading them to acknowledge the truth and accept Him as Christ, the Savior in very deed, only provoked them to acts of persecuting Him with greater energy and vehemence; and the climax of it all was reached when, humiliated and suffering innocently upon the cross, they mocked and derided Him, as it is thus recorded:

And they that passed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and saying, Ah, thou that destroyest the temple, and buidest it in three days, SAVE THYSELF, and come down from the cross. Likewise also the chief priests mocking said among themselves with the scribes, He saved others; himself he cannot save. Let Christ the King of Israel descend now from the cross, THAT WE MAY SEE AND BELIEVE.—Mark 15: 29-32.

It would be hard to credit, were it not so often demonstrated to be a fact, that there can, in our day, be found individuals claiming allegiance to the Lord Jesus, and to the doctrines He taught, who unhesitatingly range themselves on the side of these murderers of the Savior, and when His promises are even quoted, will, at least for the time being, espouse the cause of the scribes and Pharisees, and cry, "Show us a sign that we may see and believe," forgetful of the declaration of the Lord in Mark 16: 17, "And these signs shall follow them that BELIEVE"—those who have been convinced of the gospel who already believe, and who have obeyed the gospel by being baptized (immersed) for the remission of their sins, and have received the gift of the Holy Spirit through the laying on of the hands of the constituted and authorized servants of God. The statement is that the signs shall follow—not go before—those who believe, and there is not the slightest intimation by the Savior that there is any limit to the time when believers shall have these spiritual manifestations to comfort, strengthen and instruct them; they were to follow believers wherever and whenever the gospel of Jesus Christ is authoritatively preached and administered, and the effort to make the Apostle Paul contradict both himself and the Savior, by asserting that he showed them a more excellent way than that so plainly laid down by the Savior, is both vain and sinful, because it is contrary to the plan which originated with the eternal Father, and revealed through the Lord Jesus.

It is, therefore, strong proof that those who take up the demand of the wicked scribes and Pharisees against that which is so clearly and plainly set forth in God's word as the gospel of Jesus Christ, are precisely of the same class of UNBELIEVERS, and, referring to them, the apostle writes:

Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto the defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. They profess they know God, but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.—Titus 1: 15, 16.

Some people are wilfully ignorant of the promises of God and will have to suffer the natural fruitage of such a disposition when their stewardship is called into accounting. They read what the Lord has said, but because they are not the recipients of the blessings promised, endeavor to make it appear that they are "done away now," "no longer needed," etc., instead of getting down and facing the facts in the case, that they have never yet obeyed the requirements of the gospel of Jesus Christ, under His direct authority, and are therefore "out of the way."

For many, it is probable, this blindness will continue until it is too late for repentance to avail them, though, like Esau, they seek it carefully with tears; the penalty will have to be paid. But, sooner or later, every one who occupies this situation will be forced to acknowledge that it is true, and they were surely out of harmony with the God-given plan of salvation in their theories. "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," is a wise admonition, but no one can prove anything good who goes into the investigation with his mind full of prejudice and darkened by unbelief. A fair, honest and candid mind, prayerfully and earnestly considering the path the Savior trod, will not long stumble for lack of understanding, for He has said:

He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John 8: 12.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

BRO. H. G. SAMPSON, Big Otter, Clay county, West Virginia, has been preaching at school-houses in his neighborhood, and distributing tracts and ENSIGNS, which has resulted in arousing some interest. He has shown the difference between the Reorganized and Utah churches, so that prejudice is dying out, and he now has five calls in different places in the wealthiest part of the country. He asks for some elder to come to his assistance in September, if it is possible to have one come by that time, to Clay Court House. He will meet any one there who will advise him of his coming. He says some of the thinking people are getting deeply interested in this work, and he thinks he can do a good work with plenty of good literature. He proposes to devote his time to the work until winter.

AN elder in the active ministry in Oklahoma desires to borrow from some of the Saints $200.00 with which to enter his homestead land. Will give mortgage security on the land and pay 7 per cent interest for 3 or 4 years. The security is gilt edge as the land is worth $1,000 to $1,500. Address Elis Short, Box 60, Independence, Mo.

THERE is comfort and peace in the statement of the apostle (2 Tim. 2: 19), "the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, 'The Lord knoweth them that are his.'" It matters little how one may be misunderstood and misjudged by his fellowman; beyond the humiliation and suffering in spirit inflicted thereby if we are patient and steadfast in our integrity, the actions of those who misjudge us will not affect our standing and character in the sight of the Father. It is far better to be the innocent sufferer in this case than the offender, for it is written, "But woe unto them by whom the offence cometh."

Extracts from Letters.

ELDER T. J. SHEPPARD, Tolar, Hood county, Texas, August 19: I came to this place six days ago, a stranger here, held services each night to large and attentive congregations, three evenings in the Christian church, and by invitation, three evenings in the Baptist church. Have received splendid treatment by the people. The Christians or Campbellites threatened a while to get a man to go me up, but cooled off at last. I do from here to Dallas county.

ELDER ALFRED WHITE, Clinton, Missouri, August 19: I arrived here today at 11:50 a. m., from St. Louis. Expect my wife to join me here, and on the 22d inst. leave here for the reunion to be held five miles north of Wheatland, in a grove, commencing the 23d inst, and to hold some ten days. I hope to meet many there whom I have been acquainted with for years. I expect to attend the Stake conference at Holden, Missouri, September 21.

AUBURN, Ia., Aug. 12. Charles S. DeHart, of Carthage, Ill.—The building in which Joseph and Hyrum Smith met their fate at Carthage still exists. But it is no longer a jail. It is used as a private residence by an old couple who are very accommodating to visitors who call to see the interesting relic. The bullet holes still remain in the door of the room where the two unfortunate men were confined, and it is claimed blood stains can yet be traced in the flooring.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

Next Sunday a special effort will be made, not only here, but in every branch in the Independence Stake, to raise money for the payment of the Graceland College debt. Bishop May says, "Let all who are called to be Saints remember the statement in the late revelation:

'The College debt should be paid.'"

Commencing next Sunday, September 1st, all the evening services of this branch will begin at half past seven, instead of eight o'clock. Make a careful note of it and don't be late at meeting.

The Religio will give an entertainment in the church tomorrow, Friday, evening, at eight o'clock. Admission free, but a collection will be taken for the benefit of Religio work.

Elder B. J. Scott will be with the Lees' Summit branch next Sunday and each Sunday thereafter until the Stake conference at Holden, on Sept. 21st.

Elder J. A. Gillen of Kansas City was a caller at the ENSIGN Office Friday of last week. Bro. Gillen is doing a faithful work assisting in the missions under Pres. J. D. White in that great city.

Lois Agnes, infant daughter of Bro. John and Sr. Katharine Doty, late of Plano, Illinois, was blessed Sunday afternoon, Brn. W. H. Garrett and Geo. Hawley officiating.

Bro. Jonas Wolf of Independence and Benjamin Franklin Jones of Edgerton, Mo., were baptized in the font at the church Sunday by Bro. W. H. Garrett. They were confirmed at the afternoon service, Brn. Josiah Curtis, Sr., and W. H. Garrett officiating.

Sr. Lucy Hamilton left for Deer Creek, Oklahoma, Wednesday of last week where on Thursday at 2 o'clock she was married to Mr. E. C. Hoover, a prosperous lumber merchant of that place. A new home had been erected and was in readiness for occupancy by the bride and groom. We congratulate our sister and wish for herself and companion a happy and prosperous life.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cameron, who reside near Clinton, Mo., are visiting Bro. and Sr. P. Peterson, Mrs. Cameron being a sister of Mrs. Peterson. They are enjoying their visit, the more so as it is their first trip to our city.

The annual Sunday School picnic is being held at Fairmount Park today, Thursday, on strictly "Word of Wisdom" principles. Plenty of fruits, but no chicken or ham sandwiches. "Hunger is good sauce," and it is safe to say the viands will be much enjoyed at meal times.

The Sunday School last Sunday was well represented, 325 being present, with $3.74 collection. Chorister James imparted the usual zest to the musical part of the exercises.

The officers of the Religio and Sunday School associations are busy preparing a program for their Stake conventions, to be held on the 19th and 20th of next month at Holden.

Visitors come to see Temple Lot and "Josephite church" occasionally; three, from Utah, came Sunday. Bro. and Sr. Horton are glad to "show" them at any time.

Sr. Joseph Clark and daughter, Sr. Harry Hattey, have returned from an extended visit among relatives in the West.

Bro. and Sr. Thomas Thomas, late of Neola, Iowa, are the latest additions to our numbers. We welcome them.

The second track is being laid on West Lexington street. The Metropolitan Company has too small a force for expeditious work. They should, at least, try to avoid delaying the city in its effort to get the street completed before the unfavorable weather begins.

Dr. and Sr. H. B. Curtis are now located at 1210 West Short St. Sr. Curtis is known to our readers as the esteemed editor of the Daughters of Zion department. The doctor is a rising young man who is meeting with encouragement in his chosen profession. He is a very kindly, affable gentleman who improves with acquaintance, and we are glad to note that his friends are increasing in numbers.

The Daughters of Zion held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, the 21st. There weretwelve present, one of whom, Miss Canfield, is especially interested in the Kindergarten, a work the Society hopes to introduce here in the near future. It is worthy of the co-operation of all interested in the early training of children.

Bro. Newton Inman and family have been sorely afflicted in the short but fatal illness attending their little three year old daughter, Mary Silver, this week. Monday she ate some red baws, which is said to have been the primary cause of her illness; she became ill, but did not seem to be seriously affected until Tuesday afternoon, when she was taken with inward convulsions, and notwithstanding every effort possible, she died about 8 o'clock that evening. She was a very sweet child, and Tuesday morning when her father started to work, asked him if he did not think she would be well enough to attend Sunday School next Sunday. The funeral took place Wednesday, Bro. Robert Parker officiating. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the Saints in their sad affliction.

It is rumored that the ticket office of the electric line here will be closed September 1st, when the straight ten cent fare to Kansas City is put in force. It seems that there will be no more commutation ticket books sold here. You simply pay five cents between Independence and Sheffield, and five cents with transfer between Sheffield and Kansas City. In one way this will be a convenience to some, who will not have to either keep a supply of tickets on hand or walk away up to the Square to purchase one. On the other hand, to those who ride every day, it is a convenience to procure a month's supply of tickets which can be carried in a small space. It is probable, however, that these books may be purchased as usual at the city offices if desired.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Wedding bells are ringing. The Religio social last week was pronounced a success by all whom we have heard express themselves concerning it.

The second Historical lecture was given Sunday evening by Elder Heman C. Smith and was fully equal to the first. By the co operation of the Sunday School these lectures have been accompanied by special music, which forms an interesting feature of the services.

Sunday pulpits were occupied by Lamoni brethren as follows: Greenville, R. S. Salyards and W. A. France; Davis City, F. E. Cochran; Surprise school-house, C. H. Lake and J. P. Anderson; Evergreen, J. R. Lambert and W. N. Ray; Pleasanton, William Anderson and C. J. Peat in the morning, and M. M. Turpen in the evening. C. C.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. R. F. Hill of Rea, Mo., was with the Saints in worship yesterday visiting the missions, also the church. He is still firm as the "hill" in the faith.

We received the sad news this morning by telegram of the death of Sr. Eric Johnson, mother of Bro. E. E. Johnson of Chicago, so long time afflicted. In answer to request we start tonight to attend the funeral, which will occur Tuesday or Wednesday. She was a well earned reward in waiting for her.

Our profited meeting at the mission has held up well in interest and will continue for two evenings yet. Some noble souls have been deeply interested and the Saints built up in the faith.

On Saturday we attended a union Sunday School picnic as the guest of the Delano branch Sabbath School, held in a grove north of Cameron. We enjoyed the occasion very much and the good cheer we met in speaking in defense of the Sabbath School work. We had the choice of time and was told by those in charge, "give us a good talk and use as much time as you like."

We learn of the illness of Bro. Haden, also of Bro. Geo. Douglas of Stewartville, Missouri. It is severe and protracted.

Ernest L. Constance, left an infant of two weeks of age by the death of its mother in April last, passed away to be with its mother, and was buried by her side in the church yard at the Delano church on last Tuesday. A goodly number attended the service at the church, indicating sympathy for the bereaved; the service being in charge of Bro. J. C. Elvert, sermon by the writer.

By request of the parents we held service over the remains of a young man by the name of C. Lane, who was drowned in the river on Monday last week. The service was at the undertaker's rooms, where we told with liberty of the fullness of the atonement. The parents, though slaves to destructive appetites, wept bitterly over the loss of their son, who was said to be free largely from the ill habits of his parents.

Five more were born into the kingdom last evening by baptism, the result of the Sabbath School and individual missionary work. We love to see the children coming.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 So. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m.; Central Branch, 3411 Cottage Grove Ave., Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pullman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2458 State St.

Bro. Hackett preached both services at the Wood street hall Sunday. He has been street preaching the past week on the South side and will try that plan on the West this week.

Interest seems to have been awakened, and many strangers have found their way to the Lang mission since hearing the elders on the street.

Several visitors were welcome yesterday from Independence: Bro. Alex. McCallum and Bro. Frank Rudd, while Sr. Tessie Williamson has been with us for a couple of weeks.

In Chicago's last letter it was reported that Sr. Grace Webster had left for Denver, but she was unable to make the long trip and has just returned from a short visit in Wisconsin. She is feeling some better and we trust will continue to improve.

A little seven and a half pound girl was given Bro. and Sr. Alma Pitt on Sr. Mamie Pitt's birthday, the 19th of August.

Bro. Elmer Johnson seems to be improving slowly. He has been enabled to attend several of the services lately, and we hope will be in good trim for the coming conference. Sr. Johnson, his mother is unable to leave her bed now, and suffers considerably at certain hours during the day. S.

FIRST KANSAS CITY BRANCH.

2324 Wabash Ave., Sunday School 9:30 a. m.; preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; social service 12:15 p. m. D. F. Winn, pastor, 2306 Bellfontaine; telephone 205 Union. Superintendent Sunday School, E. Elzenhouser, 507 Massachusetts Building, Telephone 613. Missionary in charge, John D. White, 600 Main St., Telephone 1358.

Since the drought is broken and the weather has been cooler our attendance has been materially increased. An excellent spirit seems to prevail throughout the branch among all its members.

Last Sunday quite a number of new faces, not members of the church, were present both at the Sunday School and the morning preaching; Elder F. C. Warnky had been announced to be the speaker and that he would use a large chart representing the religious condition of the world. The lecture was well received, some of the non-members present expressed themselves more than pleased. The afternoon prayer and testimony meeting in charge of Pres. D. F. Winn and Pres. G. H. Hulmes was good; some excellent instruction and advice was given by President Hulmes. At 8 p. m. Priest Henry Ashbaugh was the speaker, the branch president, Bro. Winn, being absent preaching at the Northeast mission.

Sunday, July 28th, about 3 p. m., a young man came to my house inquiring of Elder G. H. Hulmes, and I had just got home from meeting. I asked him in and when he had sat down I inquired if he was a Saint, and he said not quite one, but he intended to be one just as quick as I could get Elders W. H. Pease and R. J. Parker are making progress at the tent at 6th Street and Quindaro Boulevard. The tent was moved from that location to 9th and Ohio Streets Monday.

Elder F. C. Warnky contemplates going to Rich Hill this week to be absent a month or more.

Bro. and Sr. Pickering returned from Colorado Tuesday.

We were pleased to see the work of the Hawthorne Society in decorating our church aisles with new matting. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Folsom Sts. Sunday School 9:45 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Sunday, August 4th, we had preaching at 11 a. m. by J. A. Saxe, and in the evening by the writer. At 12:15 we met for sacrament, prayer and testimony. There was a good attendance, and a good spirit prevailed throughout. Beside the opening ceremonies, eleven hymns were sung, six prayers offered and sixteen testimonies were given.

Wednesday night our branch business meeting was held, and local affairs attended to.

Thursday afternoon the Sisters' Prayer Union held its regular session.

There was a good attendance at the Religio Friday evening, and a very interesting time was had. Our young people are displaying considerable talent of late. We are justly proud of them.

Sunday, August 11th, our morning sermon was by Fred B. Blair, and at the evening hour we had the pleasure of listening to our Patriarch, A. H. Smith, who instructed us in things pertaining to the kingdom. S.

Wednesday evening at our prayer meeting, Bro. Saxe's parlors were crowded. We had with us Pres. Joseph Smith and also Bro. Alexander. Aside from the pleasure their presence afforded us, we all enjoyed the spirit of the meeting, and a good, profitable time was had.

Bro. Joseph Luff paid our city a flying visit, his stay was very brief, as he rushed on to the Oregon reunion.

The big strike is still on here, thousands of men are out of work, and many lines of business are suffering. All kinds of business is consequently dull, and growing duller.

All well with us,
GEO. S. LINCOLN.

LETTER DEPARTMENT.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 3.

Dear Ensign:—Perhaps a few lines from this large city might be of some benefit to some. The preaching here in the streets has been very hard on the speakers during this very hot weather, June and July, but I don't intend to give it up, but keep the camp fire burning.

Sunday, July 28th, about 3 p. m., a young man came to my house inquiring of Elder G. H. Hulmes, and I had just got home from meeting. I asked him in and when he had sat down I inquired if he was a Saint, and he said not quite one, but he intended to be one just as quick as I could get ready to baptize him; this seemed to me like a thunderbolt, for he was a fine looking white man. I said to him, "You are a stranger to me." He said, "Yes, I never saw you before, but I got your name in China before I left there; I got it through the Herald, and I have come 12,511 miles to be baptized by you." He is a Scandinavian, the same as Elder Peter Anderson, and I thought any time a man came all the way from China to Chicago to have the colored missionary baptize him and confirm him into the church, surely the brother ought to go to heaven when he died. He left the city yesterday morning, August 1st, for New York, then to Norway. I baptized him July 29th, and he gave me a handsome Bible he brought all the way from the Holy Land. I hope he will meet Apostle Peter Anderson, and others of our missionaries, at his home across the ocean.

I was invited out of the city for a few days, by the Ladd Saints, to preach to them and others; I preached a few times in Ladd and attended prayer meeting. At the last prayer meeting there the Spirit of the Lord was poured out upon all, bringing some to tears. A fine lot of Saints there, indeed; but the principal work was done at Seatonsville, four miles from Ladd. I preached seven times, and had the pleasure of baptizing a Baptist preacher, and at his baptism was gathered about a hundred people. The evening was fine and when I had changed my clothing we went to the church and had the pleasure of listening to a beautiful sermon preached by Elder Frank Izatt, of Ladd, followed by the writer; and after service confirmation was attended to by Elder F. Izatt and the writer. I was accompanied every evening to the colored church, four miles distant, by Elder Izatt and Bro. J. Lamb, and our noble sisters, Annie Lamb and Ada Walker, Bro. and Sr. Snow, Bro. and Sr. Phillip Turner, and Sr. Sadie J. Smith, who took the lead of the singing, which was fine. Had good liberty in preaching the word to the people. The last evening the baptism took place, the devil stirred up quite an uproar among the people, so that the deacons locked the church against us. Some were for the deacons, and some for Graves and the Saints. I believe if they would have let us had the church for seven nights more we would have captured church and all the people.

From there I went west to Kewanee. I arrived on Saturday p. m., and met with the Saints at their beautiful new church, and had the pleasure of listening to a sermon delivered by Elder Whitehouse. The writer preached in the evening to a noble lot of Saints, and perhaps a few outsiders. I was there a few days and stopped with Bro. and Sr. Norris and their noble sons. I hunted up the colored people of Kewanee and visited with them and preached one night at City Hall; about forty-five were present to hear our claims; chances are good there for a branch. The people want me to return again. The work here is onward, seven have been baptized by the white brethren and two by the writer, making nine in all, so the good work goes on.

ELDER GEO. H. GRAYES.
2458 State St., Chicago, Ill.

McFALL, Missouri, July 31.
Editor Ensign:—Elder Sawley and myself are out here in the country about four miles from McFall at Bro. Joseph Doty's place. We brought the gospel tent here July 9th and have preached 26 sermons. We have had a good hearing from the first, sometimes the attendance reaching from three to four hundred. No baptisms, but many became warm friends to the restored gospel. I was surprised to see such interest during the hot weather.

Last night we closed the meeting, just making three weeks. A number came to the stand for tracts and to bid us good-by and said they hoped we would come again. Yesterday Bro. Doty and I took a 24 mile trip to see Bro. Kirk Moffet near Berlin; we arranged while there to do some preaching in their neighborhood sometime in September. Today we go to Stanberry, Missouri, where Bro. Peter Anderson lives, to put up the tent; shall remain there about two weeks if the interest will justify.

While we were at Darlington in June holding meeting, J. D. McClure, a Campbellite preacher, made an attack on us: he announced that he would give two lectures against Mormonism or an "Exposure of Joe Smith." I offered to affirm that "Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God," if he would affirm his church; but no, he would not meet a fair issue. He told around that I would not meet him in debate. I issued the usual challenge to him at the time of his lectures and asked him there to meet the issue. Not a word from him yet. In his lectures he misrepresented our books and teachings, and refused to compare his books with ours, and was called upon by his own members to do so, but refused.

D. C. WHITE.

De Soto, Neb., July 23.

Dear Ensign:—I enjoy the sermons written on your pages, and also the cheering letters from the different parts of God's vineyard. We are isolated from church privileges and the association of the Saints, therefore these publications are the bread of life to us. I would love to meet often with the Saints. It is so strengthening and soul cheering to meet in prayer and testimony with the church brethren. It makes us feel like we were living for a purpose. I have been in the church eight years and can truly say today that I am glad to be a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. I am an old lady nearly seventy years old, and nearing the goal, and if I did not think this was the right church I would never try to make any one else think it was. I have been assured time and again of the divinity of the work. We have had no preaching here since a year ago last winter. Bro. Samuel Wood was with us two weeks and done some grand preaching. We hear he is going out of the ministry; we are very sorry to hear it for he could tell the gospel story so plain he ought to keep on. Bro. Huff, of Omaha, stopped off here a few hours one day last week to take donations for Graceland College. We are always glad to meet the Saints, they seem so like dear friends.

Were it not for my faith in the gospel and Him whose promise is to the widow and the orphan, I should be lonely indeed; but He is my solace by day and my shield by night, and so long as I know I am in favor with God I am happy on life's journey.

S. R. HINKLINE.

Fuson, Mo., July 30.

Editor Ensign:—I have just closed a very successful meeting at this place. By invitation of a Mr. Thomas Jordan, a well-to-do farmer, I came to this place, ten miles north of Hartsville, and held forth in the Christian church. I had a very good attendance, and better liberty I never had in my life. The people treated me very well, and the Christian people were very well pleased for the first three or four sermons, but after I got so far along as to show the "Bible and Bible alone" plan was not sufficient, there was quite a change in their manner, and it was very plain to see I was shoving too close to the old mark to please all of them, but I am glad that several could see that their plan was deficient. I was very careful to present Christ's teachings and let their creeds alone, but I presented Alex. Campbell and other reformers in support of our position, and it had its weight with the honest ones, while others rejected the evidence. I believe much good was done. I had several invitations to preach at other points near by.

The summer has been very dry and nothing raised; no corn, hay or anything so far, but the rain has set in in earnest I hope. The farmers will be very busy plowing up stubble and their meadows which the drouth has killed, and they will put in rye and wheat for winter pasture, as that is their only chance, and it will be a poor time to hold meetings until that rush is over.

The work is moving along. Bro. Thomas, Baker and Davis are keeping the word going and I look for good returns this fall. I hope the Saints will not forget that quarterly conference will convene the last Saturday in August at Pomona Branch.

HENRY SEARLING.

DELTA, Col., July 24.

Dear Ensign:—I have not troubled you much with my "Jots by the Way Side," but if Bro. T. W. C. will not object to me using the expression I will give you a few "Jots." But I will not promise to be like the fellow that fought the bear, and asked the Lord to help him that one time and he would not trouble him any more. I may write occasionally and let you know how the battle goes.

I left my home at Lamoni, for the west, May 21st, and went to Denver via St. Joseph. I stopped at Denver a few days and got acquainted with our esteemed Bro. J. B. Roush, and a good many of the faithful Saints there. I did some preaching there and attended prayer meeting, Sunday School and Religio, at all of which the Spirit of the Master was manifest.

I next went to Deseret, Utah, to see my aged mother, stopping a few hours by the way at Provo, with some of the Saints, where I promised to stop and do some preaching on my return if convenient. But I did not find it convenient to do so, but passed on, as I did not want to spend too much time away from Colorado, my mission.

I stopped a week with my mother, and did what I could to help and cheer her; and while we differed in church matters, we did so kindly, and agreed to disagree and let the matter rest at that. She took me to visit with some of her Mormon friends, and while the differences between the churches usually came up, they kindly received me, as some of them expressed it, as a member of another branch of the same family, and expressed a hope that in the near future the two churches would become one.

I met one, Joseph Daproni, there, who had been on a mission to the Society Islands, the same time our missionary, Bro. Gilbert, was there. He expressed great friendship for Bro. Gilbert, and not a little for our cause. Mr. Dameron is a fine man, and I would like to see him embrace our cause. I also met Jacob C. Hawley there, who is a nephew of Bro. John and Geo. Hawley. I had a pleasant visit with him and family.

Near Sardy I met Bro. Wardell and family. They are quite alive in the work and doing good for the cause. Their kindness to me will be long remembered. I have met Bro. Pender of the missionary force. I assisted him in a meeting at the house of a Utah Mormon. At the close of the meeting the bishop's counselor sought to break down the force of what Bro. Pender said by trying to tell us that Joseph's mantle fell on Brigham. I told him I could not see what good Joseph's old coat would do Brigham even if it did fall on him. He accused me of spiritualizing the thought. I said if any one had spiritualized it was he, as a mantle was but a coat or cloak and it required a stretch of imagination to make authority out of it; besides, ministry, as was expressed at that time, bore no evidence of being of God.

At Granite, Utah, I visited with my half sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Mitchell. I spent a pleasant time with her and family, and trust my visit will lead them near the truth. I visited the Mormon bishop and one of his counselors there, and had a pleasant talk with them, especially the latter, on the difference of doctrine between the churches. That is, they asked questions and I did the talking. They made no reply.

In Salt Lake I met a number of the Saints and found them earnest workers and doing what they could for the cause. I made a special call on Sr. Carrie Walker, at the request of Sr. R. J. Anthony, of Lamoni. I found her and daughter excellent Saints and highly appreciated my visit. Here I met Elder Kelsch, of the Utah church, and rekindled him of his sermon at Lamoni. Yes, he said, Homan C. Smith accused him of shooting and running, but he could not help that as he had appointments ahead. He said he came in on the blind side of Heman. Yes, I said, by admitting that the Adam-God theory and blood atonement are right. He said that was it, and admitted that but few of their elders would admit it, but deny it. He said he was going to start the 3d of July for Japan on a mission, and asked how it was, that if your church was the genuine and theirs the counterfeit, we let them get ahead of us in foreign missions. I told him that a counterfeit generally dodged around and got in to places where it could not be easily detected. I did some preaching in the city and had the pleasure of listening to Bro. Pender who is located there, and also Bro. R. Etzenhouser who stopped there on his way to California.

I went to Logan, Utah, to look after some business for mother, and there made the acquaintance of Bro. J. D. Condit's family and his wife's mother, Sr. Larson, besides some other Saints, and had the pleasure of preaching to a few of the Saints at Sr. Larson's house.

On the 24th of June I left Utah and came to Fruita, Colorado. Here I met Bro. James Kemp, my co-laborer. He had been holding meetings at the school-house near Bro. D. B. Tomlinson's, and had baptized three. I found Bro. Tomlinson and family excellent Saints, well respected in the community.

Fruita, as its name indicates, is a splendid place for fruit. So also is all the grand river valley and the Gunison and Uncompogra valleys around Delta and Montrose. The desert here truly blossoms like the rose wherever they can get enough water on it. But the irrigated spots are but oases in the desert, as the valleys are as parched and desolate as any desert need to be. But near the mountain tops, where they are not too high, grow excellent forests of spruce, pine, quaking asp, pinyone and cedar, and the ground is covered with rich verdure, and beautiful flowers of most all kinds. Here grows the beautiful Columbine, the state flower of Colorado, and also the equally beautiful Sago lilly, the state flower of Utah. This is also the place for invalids who need lung expansion.

I don't know as I needed much lung expansion, but I have just spent a week with some Saints at a sawmill on the top of the Uncompogra Mesa, 10,000 feet above sea level, and I discovered, whether I needed it or not, my lungs had to expand greatly to supply me with enough of that rarified air to satisfy the demands of nature. A little extra exertion would cause me to pant for breath, and I would feel completely exhausted as if I had run till completely out of breath. My lungs expanded till they were sore, but at the end of the week I felt quite comfortable. It is cool and pleasant there by day and almost cold at night. While in the valley it is roasting hot in the day time, but it is always cool at night even in the valley.

On the Mesa, or mountain I spoke of, one could get a splendid homestead of level land, prairie or timber, or both. He could raise barley and timothy hay and perhaps other grain and grass, and the range for stock is splendid. Some of the Saints are talking of locating there. Any one else who may wish to try it can correspond with Bro. R. H. Wright, Delta, Colorado. It is liable to frost there any month, and the snow lays on the ground from four to seven feet deep in winter. On the Grand Mesa, north of Delta, is a lovely place, but it is a government reservation. Here are lakes full of fish and the woods abound in deer and bear.

I took a trip one day with Bro. McConley who went for a load of wood up in the cedars on the side of Grand Mesa. While he was getting his load I went up to near the top of the Mesa, but could not get there for the rim rock that extended for miles along the summit in an unbroken precipice hundreds of feet high. I had a bear hunt. I had a gun and was loaded for big game, but my hunt proved a bare hunt from the fact I saw nothing to shoot but a rabbit or two, and they were too small prey for me.

I returned in the evening to the cabin in the cedars where Bro. McConley and I had arranged to stop all night. We cooked supper and at dark we selected the soft side of the door of the cabin, which was lying on the dirt floor, for a bed, and, like Jacob of old, I selected a smooth stone for a pillow. With these equipments, and the quilts we had with us, we were fitted out for the night. We lay down but not to sleep, for Bro. McConley told of the bears and other wild animals that frequent those woods, and the various exploits that hunters had had not far distant. We had not been in bed very long when the fire began to burn low and an animal made his appearance. He did not seem very wild, for while he came in through a hole near the top of the wall, he came down the wall right toward me. I had my gun leaning against the wall handy and I grabbed it and leveled it on the animal, but he was most too quick and was just disappearing through the hole in the wall when the gun went off. While it may have done him no bodily injury it surely scorched him, as I saw the flames reach him. He was not a bear but a mountain rat. They were very thick and annoyed us all night scampering around and squealing, running over us and gnawing at our grub box. While I could not sleep much for their racket I spent part of the night shooting at them, and they did not all escape either.

Bro. Kemp and I have been laboring what we could in and around Delta since the 29th of last month. The people are very busy with their crops and some can't get away even on Sunday to attend meeting. We have visited most all the Saints in this part of the country and did what we could to strengthen them. The Saints have made some arrangements toward building a church about five miles northwest of Delta. We hope them success.

On July 2d Bro. Kemp baptized three precious souls into the kingdom, Bro. Alex. Boyer and two of Sr. Snook's children.

Yours in the faith,
J. M. STUBBART.

BANK, Cecil Co., Md., July 31.

Dear Ensign:—It is quite a long time since I wrote you, but I do not fail to recognize the good the ENSIGN is still doing. I am holding grove meetings near the above place, and some interest is manifested in our work by the outside people. I often wish that more interest was apparent on the part of our own people, and a willingness to sacrifice personal comforts for the benefit of some poor soul that might hear the truth and be saved. There are so many persons who are willing to work providing they can do some big thing, or fill some prominent place, but it is hard for them to simply fill a seat in the church, when perhaps that is just the thing for them to do at that time. May God help the Saints to recognize the efficacy of filling simply a seat in the house of God.

I have labored alone since General Conference and as most of the work in this section of the country is new work, it is rather hard to make very much headway against adverse tides and minds. However, I expect help soon as Bro. La Rue will be with me for a while. There is a freedom and sense of peace about a grove meeting that I never noticed elsewhere, although there are some features about the meetings in the woods that are not so pleasing; for instance:

"The Maryland 'chigger'"
Cuts quite a ligger,
In meetings held among the trees:
It starts very low,
Then upward 'twill go,
But never will stop at the knees.

However, there is some comfort in scratching when one feels that way, and it is a poor philosopher who can't get some pleasure out of so small a thing as a "chigger."

The church building in Philadelphia is progressing, the Saints are fairly well and are hopeful. Our district conference meets here on Saturday next, and we trust a good time may be had.

In kind remembrance,
Geo. W. Rowley.

THE SEVEN PILLARS

Sermon delivered by Elder Columbus Scott, at the Washington Park, Missouri, Reunion, August 29, 1900.

The first six verses of the 9th chapter of Proverbs reads as follows:

Wisdom hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars: she hath killed her beasts; she hath mingled her wine; she hath also furnished her table. She hath sent forth her maidens: she crieth upon the highest places of the city, Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither: as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith unto him, Come, eat of my bread, and drink of the wine which I have mingled. Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding.

Wisdom begs, exhorts the foolish and those who lack understanding to forsake their way, and come and partake of the bounties of this wisdom and live. Such is the exercise of divine wisdom tonight. We all, I believe, desire to live; we desire that life that is more abundant. We desire to have the fullness of life, and in seeking to obtain it we are informed that we must follow the ways of wisdom. We are told that her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace. It seems to me that we have instruction here that will guide us in the way of pleasantness, and if we do as this divine wisdom directs, we will never be disappointed; and if we strive to do that, and find that we are not disappointed, then indeed in our experience we can demonstrate the divinity and the truthfulness of the statement that I have read. Demonstration by experience is that which the world frequently say they are clamoring for; and as we look abroad in the religious world today, and find that the theories we are invited to accept have seemingly no beginning, no ending, we therefore cannot tell anything about where the model is, as a consequence.

Now in religion or christianity, as in music or mathematics, or any other science, there is always a proper beginning; and if we will go to that foundation known as the unchangeable, impartial, infinitely just, righteous, merciful, loving God, we do not need anyone to tell us upon what the church is founded. We need not say it is founded upon any man or set of men. Wisdom hath builded her house. She hath hewn out her seven pillars.

Now when we come to examine what this divine wisdom has done, and go to the New Testament, we learn the fact the truth, that the house that wisdom hath builded is called the "House of the Lord." And in the third of Hebrews, Paul tells us that the children of God and the church as organized in his day, is that house; "Wisdom hath builded her house."

The wisdom of God directs the children of men to dig deep and found their house upon the rock. So that when the storms come and the rains descend and the winds blow and beat upon that house, it will stand. The wisdom of men or the foolishness says, "Do not be fearful about it. Just be religious; do not be industrious enough to dig deep and hew the rocks; just build, and build on the sand. But we are warned in advance that if we do that, when the storms come and the rains descend it shall fall. Everyone here tonight is building their house. Are you building on the rock, or are you building on the sand? Everyone here tonight is hoping for life and salvation, and in that hope you are building. Is your hope founded upon the great rock as a basis, and on the seven pillars which wisdom hath hewn out, or are you hoping and building on the sand? That is the question to be determined by each individual for himself. So this question comes directly home to us all.

We examine in what is termed inspiration, the foundation pillars made known in the gospel, and we have the words of Paul, or the writer to the Hebrews, like this; after these Hebrew people had left the law of Moses and the Mosaic economy, and had complied with the invitation to accept of Christ and the gospel, he said to these Hebrew people:

"Wherefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works and of faith toward God."

This is the same foundation referred to in the 3d chapter of 1st Corinthians, where the apostles, having gone down there to preach to them, said:

"Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Christ Jesus."

I, as a wise master builder have laid the foundation; let every man take heed how he buildeth thereon. They may build gold, silver, precious stones; they may build hay, wood and stubble, and when the storms descend, when the winds shall blow, when the waves shall beat against their work, or when the time comes that "shall try it so as by fire," the hay and the wood and the stubble, which stands to common experience and common sense, will be destroyed. So like Paul, as builders, we want to build gold, silver, precious stones, so that our work will stand the trial.

The foundation that Paul laid was laid by the preaching of the gospel that he had preached at Corinth. We should never confound this foundation with the rock upon which Jesus said, "I will build my church." Paul never hewed out that rock, Paul never sculptured it, he never placed it, but he could go with the principles of the gospel and he could invite people to step upon this great rock and then embrace the foundation pillars of wisdom as laid on that rock. Paul says—now do not forget it—

"Let us go on unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works."

Some people in looking at this text in the investigation of the truth, seem to see inconsistency in Paul's statement. They seem to think it is strange when he tells us what these seven foundation pillars are, that we should go on and leave them, or that we should not leave them. In one sense of the word we go on, and leave them; in another sense of the word, we cannot leave them; it is like entering into the school; for the sake of the new scholars, the teachers teach the first principles right along. It is no difference how high they go up in the science of mathematics; if they sweep around among the heavenly bodies in astronomy. If they delve into the rocks in the science of geology; if they take the principles of surveying, or tell the exact length of a standing tree by the measurement of its shadow; in the principles by which they demonstrate it, they always take first principles right along with them. There never was a scholar that became so wise, however high up he went in the way of education, but what he had to have A B C right along with him wherever he went.

So it is from the foundation to the rock. The christian takes the Son of God, takes the principles of truth, including the pillars, the foundations, right on up until they reach the crowning perfection of charity, and therefore, when they have crowned their life sufficiently with this, are prepared for celestial glory, and to enter in upon the other side.

Now I want to invite your attention to Wisdom's seven pillars. God is her backing, God has hewed them out and he has ordained that you and I shall stand upon these seven pillars if indeed we would have life and salvation. That looks like a starting point, doesn't it? Paul says, "Not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works and of faith toward God and the doctrine of baptisms." That is at least three. That would be three pillars wouldn't it? And the laying on of hands, the resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. Now all the mystery there is in the making out of the seven principles or pillars is this: in their arrangement, when properly understood, the laying on of hands come right between the two baptisms. They are separated by it, and the one is separate from the other. I have heard it argued that it takes the two to make the one, but we are informed that man can perform one baptism and God performs the other. John the baptist taught it that way. "I baptize you with water unto repentance, but he that cometh after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose, he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire."

Just a thought right here. Sometimes we are troubled over the idea of the burning of the chaff with unquenchable fire, and men start in and have to render some things mysterious. Now they divide this class that John talked to into two classes there; they are the righteous and the wicked; but if you read the language closely, it says:

"I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire: whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge [or cleanse] his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." (Matt. 3: 11, 12).

Now the thought that we want to get is this: you never in your life saw a crop of wheat raised without chaff; the chaff is on the wheat and God proposes to burn the chaff out of the sifted wheat and save the wheat. That is all the mystery there is in it. This is done by the sanctifying, cleansing, separating process of the Holy Ghost and the gospel, when men begin to become new creatures and this old Adamic nature begins to be consumed and die, those old outside leaves that were referred to on the cabbage head that turn black, they dry up after awhile and they are burned. Then men are free from the burden of them.

Let us go back to those seven pillars just a moment. I want to present this thought in this connection. I want to suggest to you and you take it as a suggestion, especially you people that differ from us here tonight, and study about it. The gospel or the plan of salvation is based on principles. "Therefore leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ." Now just think for a moment what a principle is. I am not going out into deep water. That is not the intention. I want to stay right along here where we can understand one another, near the starting point. Principles—the children learn what they are in school when the teacher draws them up before the blackboard and begins to talk to them about learning arithmetic and teaching them how to set down figures in a row, and divide them off into periods of three figures each; teaching them to enumerate. That is one of the principles; and then as they learn the worth of each figure, they learn to place the figures in perpendicular columns. They next learn the principles of addition, and still putting two numbers, the less under the greater, they learn to separate these two numbers—subtraction. That will illustrate to you what a principal is in the science of arithmetic.

Now the principles of the gospel are: faith, repentance, and the baptisms, and the laying on of hands, and the resurrection of the dead and eternal judgment. These are styled the first principles of the oracles of God. There is another thing about principles. You can never change a principle, in time nor eternity, and when a science is dependent for its existence upon so many principles, you cannot do away with one of the principles, without rendering that science inoperative. You cannot do it. You may try it, you scientific men and women who are here. Try it.

God has a divine science of salvation. You cannot have faith in God and Christ and the Holy Ghost unless you believe that they are, and that the testimony is sufficient to convince you. You will not believe in the principle of repentance and put it into practice unless you are convinced that unless you do that you are lost, and that God will not save you in your sins. He did not come to save any man in his sins, but to "save them from their sins."

Repentance is the second pillar in this foundation. It consists of absolutely ceasing to do evil, and learning to do well; and this ceasing to do evil and learning to do well, is prompted by the fear and the love of God. It must be repentance toward God. That is what it must be, and when this doctrine or principle of repentance is effectual, it indicates that faith is growing strong and as faith sufficiently increases, men will be able to lay aside their wrong doing, and growing up from the childhood, infant condition in Christ, they will be able to grow strong in the Lord, free from sin, free in the Lord; the Lord's free men.

There is another thing relating to principles, and that is, they are foundational. They are necessarily foundational, and in the great plan of God, whether in the mineral, the vegetable, the animal, the scientific or the religious world, these principles are absolutely unchangeable, and they are absolutely essential. They are there because they are absolutely essential and cannot be done away with. I have heard people before now—some times Latter Day Saints—who will go into the revival meetings, and they may be strangers there; the preacher, of course, has his exhorters passing through the audience, and inviting the people up to become specially introduced at the altar, and it is known presently that they are, after a Latter Day Saint. They do not happen to go. Ah, they say, if that man is a Latter Day Saint, you need not talk to him, you cannot make anything else out of him. Why is that, you ask? Just as simple as this. What would you think of me as a teacher, a mathematician, if I'd come to you and say, "Here, you are foolish, you believe in the essentiality of addition and subtraction and multiplication in arithmetic, why, throw them away, and go on and be perfect mathematicians. You don't need them, they are non-essential." You'd turn right to me and say, "Mr. Scott, you are a simpleton, you do not understand what you are talking about," and you'd say rightly. I was either dishonest, if I knew, or else I did not know, one of the two; and it would become necessary for you to instruct me a little. That will explain why it is when you go far enough along in the christian way to demonstrate the principles of the doctrine, that you do not need anybody to try to persuade you that they are non-essential. You see their essentiality just as you see the essentiality of these five fundamental principles in arithmetic. And so may every one who comes to God and obeys his unchangeable gospel intelligently.

Now, I do not stop to argue the essentiality of these principles particularly. You have the essentiality of them before you. If we have had faith and repented we then expect to come before God, and by faith and repentance we die to the world, we die to sin, we die to unholiness and our souls are yearning for the new birth into the realms of light, and to have communion with the Spirit of God; and of course, as the Spirit cannot take up its abode in an unholy temple, when we have reformed our character, died to the world, the Lord's minister wants to go out and hold a little funeral and bury us and let us be resurrected to a new life. So you read in the 6th of Romans:

"Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

Read that language. I am glad Paul used that word "buried." It is a word applied to the custom of burying men, and all the civilized world—and I don't care to what country you go—every time they bury a man in Russia, China, or any of the nations of Asia, or here on the Western Continent, they put the man down into the grave, and he goes out of sight until the resurrection; and the Lord has ordained this one beautiful emblem, when the soul is dead to sin and unholiness, and says, I break off my allegiance to this world, it is all folly and will end in eternal loss to serve it longer, I want to form an alliance with another, indeed, and assume obligations to the new realm, to the new world. You see here is the way, here is the very form; the manner of baptism is described, "We are buried with Christ in baptism." We, like Him, Christ, shall rise up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also, being raised up, walk in newness of life."

Jesus used a term relative to this solemn ordinance, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." Well, Paul uses the word "buried" indicative to the custom universally understood. You never in your life saw them set a dead man up against the fence, and sprinkle a handful of dust on him, and then say he was buried, did you? Never. Now Jesus says, "You must be born." You can all comprehend what that verse would imply. Born of water and of the Spirit, and unless we are born again, of water and of the Spirit, Jesus says we cannot enter the kingdom of God.

I know this is very arbitrary language; sometimes people find fault with the Latter Day Saints for hanging to that language so tenaciously; but we do not know of any other way of anybody getting into this world except by being born into it, do you? And so in regard to going into the other world. Jesus says

I cannot go there without being born of the water and of the Spirit. It is because there is no other way to get there that we insist upon this language. It is a principle. It is arbitrary. It is distinctly arbitrary. It is distinctly arbitrary because by the Almighty fiat there is no other way. That is the reason Jesus said, "Except a man be born again he cannot see the kingdom of God." That statement is like the statement, "Thou shalt not steal or rob." It does not alone make it arbitrary or binding on us because Jesus said it, but He said it because there is no other way of its accomplishment. It doesn't make it true that I shall not rob because the Bible says so, but the Bible comes and says, You shall not rob, because before it was written it was wrong that I should rob. That is the way it is presented in the divine record and the divine mind.

Following this baptism is the laying on of hands. Now to show you that there is a separation between the two baptisms: Philip, as a preacher, went on one occasion down to the city of Samaria, and preached to them Christ. And a little further along in the 8th of Acts it is recorded, "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women." Word went up to Jerusalem, some fifty miles southward, that Samaria had received of the word of God. The evidence that they had received the word of God was the fact that they had been baptized after they believed. Peter and John were sent down there, and they went that these people might receive the Holy Ghost. They called them together and held a prayer meeting, and administered the rite of laying on of hands. Now the principle that I see in that is this: The minister that lays his hand on my head is authorized of God, as well as the one that baptizes me, and if, through my humble, brokenhearted simplicity, I accept the ordinances by faith in God, it connects this authority in the minister, with God in heaven, and presently I receive the Holy Ghost. Then I am born of the water and of the Spirit. Just that separates between the two baptisms.

Then what is the other one, the one called the resurrection of the dead? the sixth one; and the seventh is the doctrine of eternal judgment. I will not try to argue these tonight. Christian people, who are professors everywhere believe in the judgment and some forms of resurrection, but merely invite your attention to the seven pillars that wisdom has hewed out, and upon which she has builded her house. God builded, divine wisdom has builded. It is strange that we found these seven attributes of infinite knowledge, wisdom, power, truth and mercy, justice and love as forming the attributes and moral principles of that eternal, independent self-existent God, that perfect God in whom we are commanded to have faith.

Well, first, when we have stepped upon this great large plank of the platform, then we are exhorted to keep the unity of the faith in the bond of peace; and then Paul goes on there and gives seven unites of the Spirit. You can enumerate them in the fourth chapter of Ephesians at your leisure, the one Lord, one faith, one baptism, the one Spirit, the one hope, and the one body, and the one God and Father of all. Says one, you seem to contradict. You had baptisms in your other text. In this you have one baptism. Well, in the one text Paul was telling what the Saints and God together would do, and in the other one he was exhorting the Saints to walk worthy of the vocation wherewith they were called—something they are to do. So that when you examine the character and nature and relation of the two texts, there is no contradiction whatever.

There is only one baptism that man can do. Man cannot baptize another with the Holy Ghost. He never did, and God's servants are commanded to go and teach all nations, baptizing them. The servants are under obligations to baptize every man and woman who receives the teachings. That is enough to make it all essential and forever destroy the idea of non-essentiality. If God has decided that it is right and ordained it, the man who stands up and tells the people it is not necessary, that you can be saved without it, is, in my opinion at least, manifesting that which constitutes the spirit of anti-Christ; and it would be setting man's judgment right up there on a level with that of the Lord. He says it is essential; so essential that he shed his blood to ratify it. That is a part of the covenant, "When I claim the benefit of the blood," says the objector, "and do away with some of the principles sanctified and ratified by the blood of Christ." Is it consistent to take the blood and only some of the principles sanctified and ratified by the blood? No.

Then the Apostle Peter comes in after we have embraced the seven principles in our faith and are ceasing to do evil, and learning to do well; we learn next to add to our faith virtue, that is one; to virtue, knowledge, that is two; to knowledge, temperance, that's three; to temperance, patience, that's four; to patience, godliness, that's five; to godliness, brotherly kindness, that's six, and to brotherly kindness, charity, that's seven. And in another place Paul says charity "is the bond of perfectness," so you see we get perfect gradually.

This modern idea of claiming perfection for humanity in a moment, and that it is a special, divine, immediate, instantaneous gift from God, is inconsistent with the idea of desiring the sincere milk of the word that we may grow thereby; can't you see? And then they go so far as to confound the idea of sanctification, perfection and infallibility, in idea, and instead of getting people sanctified by the gospel, they try to get them to think they are infallible. We must not confound the two. When we get infallible we are not liable to mistakes or doing wrong. They want to argue that we cannot do wrong, and can live without wrong doing. We may learn to do that gradually, I do not deny it, but I will tell you, we will never become infallible, absolutely, until we get along up where God is. He is the only infallible one that we know anything about, together with His Son and the Holy Ghost. I do not know any thing, any man or woman or agency below the eternal throne that is infallible anywhere. Until we have taken that sword or shield of faith, to turn aside the darts of the adversary, until we have our loins girded with the truth that we may be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might, until we are complete in Christ, who is the head of all principality and power.

May we be enabled to commence right, and proceed right, that we may end right, so that in the day of trial, when the floods shall come, the storms beat, the rains descend, we will discover that we are founded on the rock, that we have been wise in the sense in which Christ recommends wisdom, so that when this time of trial comes, we shall stand and not be overthrown. Amen.

Circumstantial Evidence.

Written Expressly for ENSIGN.

"Judge righteous judgment" is a difficult matter many times, and impossiblesometimes. Where the evidence is not clear and there is no necessity for judging, why judge? Here are two cases that happened in the church, showing how easy it is to judge unrighteously. A branch was helping, financially, a poor sister, a widow; after being repeatedly assisted, she came to church dressed in the very finest clothes, and a variety of them at that. The sisters thought if she was well enough off to buy wearing apparel that none of them could afford, she shouldn't have to be helped by the church. Investigation brought out that a rich lady supplied the sister with all her fine gowns.

There was a very faithful member in one of the branches who was ostracised by her sisters. They admitted she was faithful in all her duties but she smoked, as they could smell it on her repeatedly. One of the elders asked her if she smoked; she was surprised at such a question. Upon investigation it was found she hung her clothes in the cupboard with those of her tobacco-soaked brother's garments.

Here are some cases that show how easy it is to misjudge:

A Cincinnati judge was noted for his refusal to sentence a man on circumstantial evidence. Upon being questioned why, he related the following:

"I was at one time treasurer for a mining concern; I had occasion to travel over a sparsely settled country with considerable money on my person. Night overtook me and I knocked for admittance and shelter until morning at the only house I saw in the locality. I was not favorably impressed with the face that greeted me, but upon requesting a night's lodging, I was given my supper and shown to my room, the door of which had no locks of any kind. The, what seemed to me, villainous face of my host so haunted me that I couldn't sleep. Sometime in the night I heard footsteps on the stairs, I immediately obtained my pistol, cocked it and covered the door. Cautiously the footsteps approached and finally the door was gently opened, when, by the light of the moon shining directly on him, I saw my host, with a large knife in his hand, approaching me. My first impulse was to fire, but for some reason I didn't; as he was in about the center of the floor, he raised his knife and cut at something, then quietly left. In the morning he told me he had entered my room during the night, as one of his children was sick and there were some herbs hanging on the ceiling in my room. Instead of being on an errand of murder, he was on one of mercy. Suppose I had shot that man? Now you know why circumstantial evidence is not to be relied on, in my opinion."

Many an innocent man has been hanged on some small point of circumstantial evidence. But it is equally certain that criminals have sometimes escaped because false conclusions were drawn from such evidence, and they were given the benefit of the doubt.

A man who was once being tried for murder at the Old Bailey set up an alibi. A witness swore that the man passed the night in question at his house. He remembered the date, because on the Tuesday previous the man had signed a receipt at the same place. The document was produced, and upon cross-examination the witness admitted that the receipt was written out and signed at the same time and with the same ink, there being but one bottle in the house.

It was immediately pointed out to the jury that the body of the note was evidently written with ink of a different strength from that used in the signature, and the credit of the witness was destroyed. But a stranger noticed that the notes of the reporter of the trial were darker or lighter, according to the depth of the dips of his pen, the ink being very bad—thick at the bottom and watery at the top. The notebook was handed up to the jury, who were much interested, and, although the judge was very vigorous in denouncing this irregular proceeding, they decided the point in the prisoner's favor.

Another man was being tried for highway robbery. Witness after witness swore positively to his identity, and the whole court imagined him guilty. He asserted his innocence, but kept back his defense until the very last. Then he had produced the books of the court, from which it appeared that on the day and hour on which the robbery was sworn to have been committed, the man was on his trial at the bar at which he then stood, for another robbery, in which he also was unfortunate enough to have been mistaken for the guilty person. He was, of course, honorably acquitted.

A prisoner, on one occasion, protested that he was miles away from the scene of a crime at the time that it was committed, but as he was walking about alone he was unable to prove an alibi. The thing that saved him was the fact that he incidentally remarked that he remembered he was at a certain spot in the city of London at midnight, because he noticed that the clock of St. Paul's struck thirteen instead of twelve. The court smiled incredulously, but luckily two persons stepped forward who were not interested in the case, and swore that they also noticed the peculiar error in the striking of the clock. The man got off.

A terrible example of the dangers of circumstantial evidence occurred in a Flemish town in the last century. A man resolved to murder an enemy, but determined to fasten the crime on somebody else. The curate of the parish, who was greatly respected and beloved, had a habit of throwing off his walking coat, and substituting a cassock when he entered his own house. The coat was hung up in a lobby that was open to friend or stranger at almost any time. The villain planned his time well, selecting an hour when the curate would be shut up alone in his study, and his enemy would also be passing along a quiet lane close by.

Putting on the coat, and a neckerchief that he found near, he murdered his victim and took back the curate's property, concealing with it the dagger with which the crime had been committed. He then rushed off and accused the poor priest of the horrible deed, saying that he had himself been a witness to it. The coat, neckerchief and dagger were found concealed in the lobby, all stained with blood, and although every effort was made to get the curate acquitted, the evidence was considered too strong against him, and he was executed. The wretch was afterwards convicted of another murder, and then confessed his previous crime.

A man tried for the murder of a child was defended by Mr. Armstrong, who afterwards came to great eminence. A worsted ball was found in the possession of the murderer. The grandmother swore it was the child's. Armstrong should have said nothing, and left it to the jury. "An ordinary ball, gentleman, and hang a man for that!" But he got up and cried out triumphantly: "This is it, isn't it? Common ball enough; every child has one," and so on.

The grandmother rambled on, half talking to herself. "Yes, Jim made it for her, and wound it round a bit of Bible in the middle."

"Sh!" said the judge, the only man who heard her muttering, made her repeat it, and had the ball unwound in court. "There's a man's life on that!" he said to the marshal, when at the end they came on a piece of book cover with "Holy Bible" printed on it, forming the heart. And that little bit of circumstantial evidence hanged the man.

There is often an opportunity in branches of the church to judge unrighteously. We don't always know all the facts in the case.

Sugar Beet Industry.

The growing belief that the United States will shortly be able to produce from beets the $100,000,000 worth of sugar, which her people now annually import, seems to be shared by British Consul Wyndham, who has given the subject close attention and reported upon it to his government. The following is an extract from his report, which has just reached the Treasury Bureau of Statistics:

"The production of beet sugar in the United States is rapidly increasing, and in the Chicago Consular district there are four factories in the state of Illinois, three in Nebraska, and three in Colorado; those in Nebraska and Colorado belong to the American Beet Sugar Company, and are at Grand Junction, Rocky Ford and Sugar City, and when fully completed will employ thousands of hands.

"Statistics indicate that the United States consumes more sugar than any other nation, or approximately one-quarter of the whole of the world's product. The conditions of soil, climate, and other advantages, are quite as good in the United States, and especially in Colorado, Nebraska and Illinois, for the development of the beet, as in any of the countries of Europe or Asia. The world's production and consumption of sugar is now about 3,250,000 tons per annum, two-thirds of which is produced from beet, and only one-third from cane, while the normal consumption is estimated as increasing at the rate of 250,000 tons yearly.

"The success attending the cultivation of sugar beet in this district, has proved that it may be made a profitable and successful investment. A large factory has been built at Rocky Ford, Colorado, which cost $200,000 to build and equip. It is proposed to have it ready for the crop of the coming season. To supply it the farmers in the vicinity have contracted to grow 8,000 acres of beets a year for five years. From tests made, they estimate their beets will yield 15 to 18 per cent of sugar. The factory, when running at its full capacity, will consume daily 1,000 tons of beets, which it will convert into about 100 tons of refined sugar of the highest purity. The beets reach maturity with a high percentage, and seldom go below 15 per cent; 12 percent is taken as the basis of buying beets at the factory.

"The beets are grown by the farmers under contract with the factory, and paid for according to the saccharine contents, determined by chemical tests made of samples taken from the wagons at the time of delivery. In addition, the factory controls about 5,000 acres of land. Most of the land will be farmed by tenants, but only a portion of each farm is devoted to beets each year. Growers sell their beets based upon the sugar contents. The tests somewhat resemble the assaying of ore from the mines. Selling upon this basis encourages better farming and the raising of better beets. It is the only fair way, both to the raiser and the manufacturer.

"At Sugar City a farm of 12,000 acres has been cultivated for raising sugar beets, and a sugar factory has been built with a capacity of 500 tons every twenty-four hours. On the farm 1,000 men and women have been employed during the summer, and this season's crop will be converted into sugar. The establishment of the sugar factory at this point built the town, which a few years ago consisted of a hut or two and thousands of prairie dogs. Next year fully 4,000 acres of beets will be in cultivation. The output will be increased as rapidly as possible, and every day the demand for workmen is increasing.

"A general estimate of the cost of construction, cost of operation, and general results to be counted upon, of beet sugar factories in this district, as taken from the Rocky Ford plant, places the general average of sugar in the beets at 12 per cent. So far as the Arkansas Valley in Colorado is concerned, this percentage is being largely exceeded; the minimum percentage of sugar being about 14 per cent, while the maximum has reached 23 per cent, with a coefficient of purity ranging from 80 to 95 per cent. In stating these results, reference is especially made to the factory at Rocky Ford, built and worked by the American Beet Sugar Company, a New York corporation, which works two factories in California and three in Nebraska, the one at Rocky Ford being their fifth. The experts in charge of this last factory, all express surprise at the results of this first campaign, and they have become thoroughly convinced that this valley (Arkansas Valley, Colorado), is the ideal sugar producer, thanks to its equable climate, ample supply of water for irrigation, cheap fuel and limestone, and an unlimited extent of available land for beet culture. It is expected that the same company will erect one or more factories in addition to the one at Rocky Ford, one to build further east and the other west of Rocky Ford.

"As an example of the quality of the sugar beets produced upon this land, it may be mentioned that so far six carloads of beets from one field have been tested with results as follows: One carload 16.8-10 per cent; three carloads 18.8-10 per cent; and two carloads 20.4-10 per cent."—U. "THE Books and Utah Mormonism in Contrast," enlarged new edition, is now ready. Bro. E. L. Kelley's splendid argument against the "revelation" on polygamy is contained in this edition. Price 12 cents each; 3 for 30 cents; 15 for $1.00.

OUR AIM, MANKIND TO BLESS. DAUGHTERS OF ZION Mrs. H. B. CURTIS, Editor.

The Daughters of Zion is an organization in the church, of mothers and others who are interested in the welfare of our homes. Under the supervision of the general society, local societies are established, where they may meet to consider together their work as home makers, and as molders of character. Their purpose is to increase love for the home, to promote social purity, to study the problem of child care and development; that thus they may better prepare themselves for their responsibility as wives and mothers, and that from the home may go the influence that shall fulfill their aim, which is "mankind to bless." Have you a local in your branch? If not, can you not organize one? Send to the corresponding secretary for constitutions. The Advisory Committee will be pleased to hear from you, and will gladly furnish you any assistance in their power. Send your list of names of members to the recording secretary.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

Editor's Address, 1210 West Short St., Independence, Mo.

If we wish to mould clay or plaster of paris, or metal into any shape, we must not wait until it is half hard before we put it into the mould, for then it will be full of flaws and roughness and will not take the desired form. So if we wish to mould the heart and mind into good manners, we must not wait until a child is half grown before we begin the training. We must begin with the young child. Greet its waking with a smile and a loving word that it may learn to wake up pleasantly. Teach it to take gently what is offered it, not snatching, and to return the look and word of thanks. Teach it to share its treasures, to pity and soothe anyone who is sick or sad, to pick up what is dropped by its elders, to lend its toys, to reply kindly—indeed there are hundreds of ways to teach a little one good manners.

It is a fact that boys, after they reach the mature age of eight or nine generally have a severe attack of ill manners; they suddenly feel that good manners are girlish or babyish; that they can only be manly if they stamp, bang doors, contradict, bawl instead of speaking, tease, fight for their own way, and they call it foppish and dandyified to avoid those exhibitions. Just here is the time when maternal patience in training a gentleman must not fail; when it must be thoroughly inculcated on the boy that good manners are of the manliest of many ways; that there are a thousand gentle and engaging ways which belong to true men, and not to fops nor dandies. Frank, genial, graceful, self-forgetting manners will make up for a lack of fortune or beauty, and their possessor will be welcome wherever he goes—The Complete Home.

"From the hour you marry you assume the character of a matron; be not a childish, girlish wife. The vows of God are upon you; sustain their gravity and prudence in all things."

To Be Concise.

"Young man," said the editor to the budding journalist, who brought him a column story which could have been told better in ten lines, "when a man discovers his house is ablaze he doesn't go to the window and tell the passers-by that 'half an hour ago what threatened to be a terrible conflagration broke out in the upper story of the palatial mansion occupied by Mr. Jeremiah Dickens.' He simply rushes to the front, and shouts 'Fire!' Be concise, young man."

Remember this, sisters, when writing to the Daughter's of Zion department.

Children Rust in Summer.

"That children do rust out during the long summer vacation is unquestionably a fact," writes Edward B. Rawson in The Ladies Home Journal; "that several weeks of the already too short school year must be spent in rubbing off the rust before the advance can be resumed, all teachers know. But that is not the worst of it. When the rust is removed, the former luster is not restored. The child's brain is not in a receptive condition; it has been allowed to rust. Children prefer regular employment, provided it be interesting. However glad they are when the last day of school comes, they are quite as glad to resume their work in the fall, even if its interest is not great. A boy, or more frequently, a girl, will sometimes overwork, not because he is pushed, but because he is permitted. Very seldom will either a boy or a girl choose to do nothing. One may choose to do things other than those we require and so be called idle or lazy. But to be doing something is the natural condition, and the condition that is preferred. So strong is the instinct to be active in both mind and body that, when left to themselves, our children will find something to do in spite of us, and too frequently it is something that might better not be done."

Woman Markham Knew.

Edwin Markham, some years before he gained "The Man With the Hoe" reputation, was visiting some friends in the East. His hostess, trying to find some bond by way of mutual friendship, kept asking the distinguished thinker if he knew Mrs. Smith, or Mrs. Brown, or Mrs. Jones, and spent almost half an hour going through the list of San Francisco's "400." Markham said he was ignorant of their existence and was not well posted in the "society news," but, he irrelevantly remarked, he knew Mrs. Mary Ann Burke, the poor, old lead pencil peddler, who was always to be found at the foot of Cherry Hill, seated on the pavement there. "She had just been admitted into the work house the last I heard of her, and I have written a poem suggested by her—poor, pitiful, old figure, bowed and bent by years and illness, under the cruel sleet of a winter's night." The poem was then recited. It was instinct with the same sympathy, and humanity, and pity for a class of unfortunates, even more hopeless in their sorrows than the subject of his world-renowned poem. Every verse had the refrain, "She was so old—so old." There was not a dry eye when the poet sat down.

Afterward he told a friend: "If one's emotions could only become caught and fixed and become a part of one's nature, Utopia were already here. My hearers were one and all touched and made thoughtful for a moment; but the amiable Mr. Smart next had the floor, and he recounted some stories which threw the whole party into paroxysms of laughter, and my poor, forlorn old woman was straightway forgotten. It was, I suppose, out of place for me to recite such a poem in such a merry company. But still it is my belief that I, and all others who work for the "cause," must use every slight opportunity to keep touching and arousing and developing the latent and best emotions which every man possesses, no matter in how germinal a degree. Only this way can my dream of practical socialism ever be realized."

The Old Men and Women Do Bless Him.

Thousands of people come or send every year to Dr. Bye for his Balm Oil to cure them of cancer or other malignant diseases. Out of this number, a great many very old people, whose ages range from seventy to one hundred years, on account of distance and infirmities of age, they send for home treatment. A free book is sent telling what they say of the treatment. Address Dr. Bye, Drawer 1111, Kansas City, Mo. [If not afflicted, cut this out and send to some suffering one.]

JOTS BY THE WAYSIDE.

BY T. W. CHATBURN.

We could not reach the audience we desired with the tent for the reason that we were forced too far away from the public centers, so we finally took our canvas seats, torches and desk, went on to the market square, spread out our seats, lighted our torches, put up our charts, and under the glittering stars, to interested crowds we are telling the gospel story; we are baptizing a few. The devil is raging and the people account it a strange thing.

We are also having a controversy with the editor of the Madison Journal. He is at the present time (for the want of other material) much interested in looking up our "pedigree" as the following will indicate:

(From Madison (Wis.) Journal, Aug. 20.)

Madison readers will remember the controversy which arose some time ago over the article imputing Mormon tendencies to Preacher T. W. Chatburn. A letter to headquarters elicited the following reply:

"Chicago, Ill., Aug. 17, 01. 'Dear Sir:—Your letter addressed to the 'President' Morgan Church, Salt Lake City,' has been forwarded to us here.

"You inquire if T. W. Chatburn is authorized to present the claims of the Latter Day Saints and receive support as such, and if there is a distinction between Mormons and Latter Day Saints.

"The name of our church, as you will note by the letter head, is Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The word 'Mormon' church is a misnomer, that name being given to the church by members not of it, though by the world we are known as the Mormon people, and the Mormon church.

"Mr. Chatburn has no affiliation whatever with the church, and therefore is not authorized to represent it, nor to present its claims to the public. He is, however, I understand, a member of the Re-organized church, or 'Josephites,' as it is sometimes called.

"It and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints are entirely distinct and separate.

"As the name would imply the 'Re-organized' church is not the church that was organized in 1830 with Joseph Smith, the 'Mormon' prophet, as President.

"Our ministers have their certificates of appointment and can show them whenever necessary.

"Should you desire further information we shall be pleased to give it to you.

"Sincerely yours,

WALTER O. LYMAN,

"Pres. Northern States Mission, by M. E. Crandall, Jr., Acting Sec."

The editor is "off the trail," he may, however, strike it short-ly.

On last Sunday Bro. Robinson again troubled the waters; others are near the water and many are interested.

The good Spirit is with us and all is going well with us.

CONFIDENCE.

The most essential element with those fraternizing in the bonds of a covenant, is confidence. Both in the institution, and in the men administering the affairs of the institution, the lack of confidence in either the enterprise or those responsible for conducting the same, will soon be seen in a weakly, dragging concern. This will prove true, whether it be a political, religious, or a financial undertaking. And those without confidence might truthfully cry out in anguish of soul: "Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me, and horror hath overwhelmed me." (Psalms 55: 5)

Put in contrast the following:

"But Christ as a savior over his own house; whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end. * * * For we are made partakes of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." (Heb. 3: 6, 14). Dear Saints, are we what we profess to be? Should you answer in the affirmative, then will you undoubtedly give evidence by your works, thus establishing the fact that we are in very deed the "house" of Christ, and maintaining steadfastly our confidence as at the beginning, or at the time of our entering the fold.

Almost four months, nearly one third of a conference year, hath fled into the unreturning past, since the God of latter day Israel said: "Pay the College debt, and it is not yet paid, but on the contrary is daily increasing, by reason of the interest that debt bears, and be it understood that interest is like a cancer in the human body, until it is removed (paid), it constantly grows night and day, whether we are asleep or awake, at work or at play. God knew when He gave that revelation that His people were able to meet the demand, otherwise it was an unjust requirement made upon the church, and who will risk the displeasure of the Allwise, by charging injustice upon His part toward His struggling children? For one I can cheerfully, and heartily endorse, and recommend the exhortation of Paul to the Hebrews, as applicable to us, where he said: "Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward." (Heb. 10: 35). Saints, will you demonstrate your confidence in the word of God to us? Will it be necessary for God, in some future time, to impart unto us the information that we had received His word with doubtful heart? or will it eventuate with us as with ancient Israel: "For thus saith the Lord God, the Holy one of Israel; in returning and rest shall ye be saved; in quietness and confidence shall be your strength; and ye would not." (Isa. 30: 15). Shall we, as a people, obtain restfulness and salvation, and without suspicion or innuendo, manifest our confidence in the cause of truth by manfully rallying to the help of God's work?

Before we can lay claim to the following, we must stand justified and accepted through obedience: "And this is the confidence that we have in him, that, if we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us."—1 John 5:14.

We, as a church, plead before God with fasting and prayer for light and instruction, and in His loving kindness, and the plenitude of His divine mercy, He answered and said: "The College debt should be paid." We, the servants of God, and executors of His will, plead with the Saints, that they will put into practice that confidence that will bring salvation, and place in our hands the finance requested to make Graceland College a success, and as an institution of learning, in her station and capacity, second to none in all this land of active education.

With confidence I plead you to exercise confidence, and send along the needed dollars. Graceland's pen pusher, ROBT. M. ELVIN.

Box 224, Lamon, Ia.

Proposed Discussion.

The following agreement and rules for a public discussion between Robert M. Elvin of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and Mr. Will Ellmore of the Church of Christ, known as Disciples in the east and north and as Christians in the west and south, have been signed:

1. The discussion shall be held at Davis City, Decatur county, Iowa, commencing September 16, 1901, and shall continue for the time of twelve sessions of two hours each to be held each day as the parties shall determine.

2. Each session shall be occupied by two speeches each by the disputants of one-half hour each. The affirmative shall open and the negative shall close the debate on each proposition, but in the closing speeches no new matter shall be introduced without mutual consent.

3. Each party shall choose a moderator and they too shall choose a third if necessary, whose duties shall be the usual duties of moderators of such assemblies.

4. Six sessions of two hours each shall be given to the first proposition, and six sessions of two hours each shall be given to the second proposition.

5. Each session shall be opened and closed with prayer by the parties alternately or by selection.

6. The parties shall be governed by Hedge's "Rules of Logic" in this discussion as follows:

Rule 1. The terms in which the question in debate is expressed and the precise point at issue should be so clearly defined that there can be no misunderstanding respecting them.

Rule 2. The parties should mutually consider each other as standing on a footing of equality in respect to the subject in debate; each should regard the other as possessing equal talents, knowledge and desire for truth with himself and that it is possible therefore that he may be in the wrong and his adversary in the right.

Rule 3. All expressions which are unmeaning or without effect in regard to the subject in debate should be strictly avoided. All expressions may be considered as unmeaning which contribute nothing to the proof of the question, such as desultory remarks and declamatory expressions, all technical ambiguities and equivocal expressions.

Rule 4. Personal reflections on an adversary should in no instance be indulged in. Whatever his private character his follies are not to be named nor alluded to in the controversy. Personal reflections are not only destitute of effect in respect to the question in discussion, but they are productive of real evil.

Rule 5. No one has a right to accuse his adversary with indirect motives.

Rule 6. The consequences of any doctrine are not to be charged on him who maintains it unless he expressly avows them.

Rule 7. As truth and not victory is the professed object of controversy, whatever proofs may be on either side should be examined with fairness and candor, and any attempt to ensnare an adversary by arts or sophistry or to lessen the force of his reasoning by wit, cavilling or ridicule is a violation of the rules of honorable controversy.

PROPOSITIONS.

1. Resolved, That the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is, in organization, faith and practice, in harmony with the New Testament.

ROBT. M. ELVIN affirms. WILL ELLMORE denies.

2. Resolved, That the Church of Christ is, in organization, faith and practice, in harmony with the New Testament.

WILL ELLMORE affirms. ROBT. M. ELVIN denies.

In the discussion of questions the Bible is to be the standard of evidence, but either party has the privilege of also using whatever proofs he may bring from historical, ethnological, scientific or other works.

ROBT. M. ELVIN, WILL ELLMORE.

The Gospel Standard.

AUSTRALIA'S MISSION PAPER.

We desire to intimate to all who have promised to subscribe for the Australian Ensign, that we have decided to make a start with the publication of the paper in January, 1902. As there is already one church paper called the ENSIGN, we have decided to call ours the Gospel Standard to avoid confusion. We take this means of requesting all who have promised to subscribe to send along their cash between now and the end of the year. We are building upon your promise; do not disappoint us. Send all money for subscriptions by International Post Office Order, made payable to Walter J. Haworth, Wallsend, New South Wales, Australia, and do not neglect to send us the order, as we cannot get the money without the order, as they can in some countries where an order is given by the postal authorities upon receipt of the advice. Some have already sent along their money, for which we thank them. If there are any others who feel like helping us, we will be thankful to receive their subscriptions. It is our intention to buy a small printing plant and print the paper ourselves. At our last conference a fund was started for that purpose. If there are any who do not wish to subscribe for the paper and who desire to help us buy the plant, they may send along their mites, however small, to John Kaler, 123 Evans St., Rozelle, N. S. W., Australia. If every reader of the ENSIGN would send along a few stamps to Bro. Kaler, we would have a handsome sum. We can exchange stamps or paper money with the Herald Office when paying accounts. Large sums should, however, be sent by Money Order. Help us build up the work in this far off land, and we are sure God will bless you. Yours in the fight,

WALTER J. HAWORTH, Dist. Pres.

Convention Notices.

The Kewanee district Sunday School Association will convene at Rock Island, on Friday, Sept. 6th, at 10 a. m. Come all and help make it a profitable one. Officers please see that reports are all sent in.

Mrs. Ed. LAMB, Dist. Sec. 722 N. Walnut St., KEWANEE, ILL., Aug. 21.

The Sunday School convention of the Northeast Missouri district will meet at Bevier, Missouri, October 4, 1901, at 10 a. m. sharp, for business, and the afternoon and evening will be occupied in discussion of topics that will interest and educate the Sunday School workers, and also a literary program.

Sunday School superintendents will please see to it that your own reports and reports of schools will reach the district secretary one week before convention.

MARY RUPKIN, Dist. Supt. NYDIA THOMAS, Dist. Sec. Bevier, Mo., Aug. 26.

Two Days' Meeting.

The Saints of the Valley branch, Nebraska, will hold a two days meeting commencing at 11 a. m., Saturday, September the 7th, 1901. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

C. E. BUTTERWORTH, Dist. Pres. 2207 Farnam St., OMAHA, Neb. Aug. 22.

Two-days meetings will be held as follows: Buchanan, August 24th and 25th; Clear Lake, September 7th and 8th; Summerville, September 14th and 15th; Nicholasville, September 28th and 29th; Lansing, October 5th and 6th; Hartford, October 19th and 20th. Dear Saints, we shall endeavor to have competent preachers to attend these meetings and it will be necessary to do the best you can to defray their expenses. May success attend the efforts.

G. A. SMITH, Fremont, Ind., Aug. 19.

Fourth Quorum of Priests.

The members of the Fourth Quorum of Priests take notice. I have sent one copy of constitution and rules, one list of names and four blank quarterly reports to you. Please remember that reports are required each quarter; keep diary of all work done and also report in full annually. Brethren, we wish to make a better report than ever before. If any have missed getting these blanks, please let me know at once and I will send others. By order of the president.

FRANK PARKER, Rec. Sec. Argentine, Kas., Aug. 19.

Address Wanted.

Wanted to know the address or whereabouts of J. D. Wilftong. Please answer through the ENSIGN.

Yours fraternally, S. S. CLARK. Glenwood, Iowa, Aug. 22.

DIED.

(One hundred words free. One cent for each word over 100, and for every word of poetry. Amount should be remitted with notice, to insure publication.)

MILLS.—At Amor, Otter Tail Co., Minnesota, Sr. Elsie Mills, aged 26 years, 10 months and 5 days. She was born November 3, 1874, in Lyle township, Mower county, Minnesota, and was baptized and confirmed by Elder T. N. Roberts in 1900. Funeral sermon by Elder T. C. Kelley. She leaves to mourn her departure a husband, one child, her parents, T. K. and Nellie Johnson, two brothers and a sister.

Carlisle Indian Band.

The Carlisle Indian Band, from the Carlisle Indian School, at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, is giving free concerts at the Pan-American Exposition. The members of the band are full-blooded Indians, with the single exception of the conductor, Lieut. Joel B. Ettinger. It is a splendid organization, composed as it is of forty-five well trained musicians. They have a magnificent complement of band instruments and are handsomely uniformed in red fatigue coats with wide black band trimming and gold ornaments, red and black fatigue caps and dark blue trousers with wide black stripes down the sides.

The Inter-Denominational Council of Women for Christian and Patriotic Service, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, N. Y., has prepared petitions in sets of three, to be used in petitioning Senators and Representatives to work and vote for the proposed Anti-Polygamy Constitutional Amendment.

All friends of this movement can secure these petitions, postage prepaid, price 25 cents for 10 sets; $1.25 for 100 sets; $12.00 for 1000 sets. Address all orders to The Willett Press, 142 Fifth Ave., New York City, N. Y.

Gray Hair. "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont. There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle. Be sure and give the name of your nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

LIFE.

The desire for life is a natural instinct in all orders of the creation, and whenever danger is manifest, threatening its existence, every creature will exert all its powers to avert or avoid the extinction of its life. Every class seem to fear death, and when enemies appear, or that which to them has an appearance of being an enemy, they quickly use every means at their command to protect themselves from harm, sometimes even assuming the offensive or aggressive action in this effort. It seems to be instinct in all orders of creatures that the life they possess is something to which they alone have the right; they have a right to live and enjoy that with which nature surrounds them, and in many instances most desperate efforts are made to retain life when they are attacked.

It is often said that "self-preservation is the first law of nature," and mankind usually seeks the best means attainable to preserve his life when it is threatened by disease or otherwise. So that it seems a part of the very nature of all creatures to avoid death by every means at their disposal. And yet in John 12: 25 we have this statement of our Lord:

"He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal."

This teaching doubtless appears to some skeptical minds as paradoxical and contradictory when the natural love of life is considered; but it is only a superficial reader who would so judge. Nothing seems more certain than is the fact that life is a sacred trust, in which man is made a steward; and for the use or abuse of that which makes life prolongable, he is held accountable. The life "which now is," is simply a part of the whole.

We existed before we came here—how long we have no means of knowing—we shall continue to exist after we leave this condition. It is but a differing in experiences; a little drop in the midst of the ocean of eternity, called "time;" and that little period is fraught with consequences of the most serious and weighty character concerning our well being. Is it then to be supposed that our divine Lord intends us to understand that our life here is of no consequence, or that we should be careless regarding its preservation? Far from it. His declaration, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them," is in the highest sense indicative of His will that peace and happiness should prevail among men, and that every one should be concerned in his brother's welfare; so that to interpret our Savior's language to mean that there was to be no value attached to our existence in this sphere is clearly to misinterpret Him and do violence to His evident intentions in the instruction given.

But it is evident from the manner in which many conduct themselves that they either do not value very highly the gift of this life, or they are woefully ignorant of the object of its bestowal. It is an indisputed fact that our coming into this life is in obedience to law. A law established by our Lord for the purpose that other ends, the exaltation and glorification of the creature might be possible in the attainment of the image of the Most High, and of those attributes of which He is the perfect type. After our advent into this life experience we are still subject to laws, ordained by the same power; laws which we cannot disregard except we are visited with severe suffering and distress, in proportion to the degree of our transgression. We finally leave this life obedient to law, and we enter the life beyond, or the conditions beyond, subject still to law. It must be obvious, then, that as the law only operates painfully to us when we violate its provisions, that if we fulfill the design and desire of our heavenly Father in caring for our present existence as we should, that only good will come to us, even though by reason of the purging processes needful for our best development, some of our experiences should be painful. These painful experiences, however, are natural results of violated laws, and must be endured with patience and humility as well as in steadfastness of faith and purpose, in doing which only good will result to us.

How many there are who seem to regard this existence only as an opportunity of securing all the sensual pleasures to themselves possible. One man bends all his energies in the accumulation of this world's goods. It matters not particularly what means are used to the end, just so he is successful; the "world" never inquires too closely into the methods of the "successful" man—the man who has gathered his millions together—unless it may be to imitate them. Some of his gains may have, and often are, secured in the most dishonorable manner, abhorrent to an upright soul; but such transactions are politely (?) ignored by his admirers, and he is only known as a great financier. It matters little in the estimation of some, that he may have betrayed confidences and ruined those who trusted in his supposed integrity; they should have been more discreet in their business ventures. The unsuccessful man, the loser, neither deserves nor receives sympathy in the estimation of this class, beyond an occasional expression perhaps, that "It's a pity he did not act more wisely." Others spend their time (wisely); turning night into day in their eager pursuit of the pleasures offered them, exposing themselves in insufficient clothing to the inclemencies of the seasons, entailing upon themselves, and often their posterity, disease, suffering and premature decay. No thought is given to the higher purpose of life; no thought apparently to the responsibility resting upon them as reasoning and intelligent beings; they simply, almost as the unthinking brutes, rush on to their destruction.

Too often this spirit of "the world" (the spirit of the adversary would be a more correct term), invades the circles of the church, especially among the younger element; and there is, at times, a noticeable fretting in some, at the restraint which their holy vows make incumbent upon them, when older heads counsel moderation and care. The spirit of joyousness, "the gladness of youth," views the grave duties of life rather distastefully. "Plenty of time for that kind of thing when we are older" is the argument most in favor; and while it must be admitted that there are pleasures harmless in themselves, when indulged in by youth which would be accounted silly to the aged and more sober minded, those pleasures which minister solely to the social enjoyment of the human nature, should never, in any one, be pursued as the paramount, the all important business or object, of life. The soul which, rightly comprehending the purpose of life, gives to God its purest, freshest, earliest service, that makes that service supreme, and all other pursuits of secondary importance, is surely preparing itself for an eternity of bliss, the enjoyment of which will cause to sink into utter contempt and final oblivion the highest felicity possible of attainment to those who devote a lifetime in seeking those pleasures which pertain wholly to this world. And the purpose of our creation is that whosoever will, may have just that kind of happiness in the eternity to come, "Therefore," the apostle exhorts, "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling" [lest we fail]. (Phil. 2: 12).

What then, is the meaning of the language of the Savior referred to? Evidently He intended it for that class who, having accepted the gospel and espoused the faith of the Lord Jesus Christ, would not have sufficient love for the Master, or strength of character, to maintain their integrity in the face of the oppositions and persecutions which He well knew would be encountered by them, under the inspiration and direction of the adversary. In His parable of the sower He refers to some who receive the word into "stony" places, who "heareth the word; and anon with joy receiveth it, yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while: for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended." (Matt. 13: 20, 21). "The disciple is not above his Lord," and no promise is given that any shall enter into life eternal without the discipline necessary to form and develop such a character as may be found in the image of the eternal Father. Trial and suffering are educational factors in the life of a follower of the Lord, whose fruitage yields the richest of blessings though the trial be not pleasant "but grievous."

Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it.—Heb. 4: 1.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

The mission address of Elder M. F. Gowell is Valley Junction, Wisconsin.

Elder H. R. HARBER's permanent field address is Gay, Jackson county, West Virginia.

Elder ALMA C. BARMORE desires it known that his present field address is Chatham, Ontario.

BRO. F. M. McDONALD advises that after September 1st his address will be Montrose, instead of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa.

INDEPENDENCE STAKE conference meets at Holden, Missouri, September 21st. See notice on page 8 and get out your reports at once.

BRO. WM. BROTHERS is now located at No. 42 Barry Place, Buffalo, New York, instead of No. 356 Lyon Place. Saints attending the Pan-American Exposition may find accommodations with our brother and family at reasonable rates.

The Rhodes (Iowa) Review in its issues for August 15th and 22d, gives a very nice account of the reunion commencing there on the 15th and continuing until the 26th. We are indebted to Bro. A. A. REEDS, secretary of the reunion, for the papers containing the notices.

BRO. GEO. BUSCHLEN, in The Arthur (Ontario) Enterprise, August 22d has a good article a column in length explanatory of the faith of the church on baptism, in reply to one John Ireland, who in a previous issue criticized unfairly a tract on that subject. Bro. Buschlen's article will claim the attention of thinking people.

ELDER T. W. CHATBURN and the editor of the Madison (Wisconsin) Journal, are effectively advertising "Mormonism," so-called; although Bro. Chatburn particularly advised the people of Madison that the Reorganized church had no affiliation with the Utah church, the editor of the Journal wrote to the president to know if Bro. Chatburn was an accredited minister of that church. Of course they said emphatically, no, and this reply being published, served to further emphasize the difference between the two organizations. Bro. C. forcefully follows this advantage up in the columns of the Democrat, and the effort in getting the gospel message before the people will thus be hastened and extended.

CLARK BRADEN is out with a poster announcing that he will commence a series of lectures on Mormonism, Tuesday, September 3d, at 10 a. m. on Davis Chapel Grounds near Briensburg, Marshall county, Kentucky, subjects, "What is Mormonism, The Mormon Bible, The Inspired Creed of Mormonism, The Book of Mormon, Joseph Smith Taught and Practiced Polygamy, Joseph Smith Was an Illiterate, Ignoramus, Villainous Imposter." He states he has debated fifteen times with eight different champions of Josephite Mormonism, and later on says, "No Mormon dares to meet Clark Braden in fair, honorable debate." We cheerfully give him the benefit of this notice. We believe that in nearly, if not all, the debates he ever has held with our brethren, it has resulted in baptisms in the church his opponents represented, and we have yet to hear of one accession to his own church as a direct result of such effort on his part. He always succeeds in disgusting fair and honorable minded people by his methods.

GENERAL CHURCH NEWS.

INDEPENDENCE.

President Hulmes will be with the Saints at Chelsea Park next Sunday morning, and with the Northeast Mission, Kansas City, at night.

Bishop May has found it necessary for the convenience of his numerous callers, to establish regular hours at which he may be found at his office on Maple avenue. Hereafter those having business with him may see him at his office between the hours of 8 a. m. and 12 o'clock noon daily, except Sunday, or when he may be called away from the city. All interested should make a note of this arrangement.

Bro. and Sr. O. H. Riggs and daughter, Marie, are now domiciled at the Cordova Hotel, corner 12th street and Penn avenue, Kansas City, Missouri, where they will be pleased to welcome their friends. At home Thursdays. We are glad to hear that the genial doctor is meeting with encouraging success in his new office in Kansas City. He is a skillful and successful specialist in ruptures, having, for years, enjoyed a large practice in Cincinnati, Ohio, and other prominent cities, where he still maintains offices in charge of his son.

A good, steady boy, about 14 years old, of industrious and attentive character, a member of the church—or whose parents are members—can obtain a situation in the ENSIGN office by applying to Bro. C. Ed. Miller, the business manager, at once.

Sr. Grace Flower Brown, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, is visiting her mother, Sr. Anna Flower.

Sr. May Blatt and Mr. Harry Barton were married at the home of the bride's mother, Sr. W. H. Blatt, on North Liberty street, Tuesday evening. Bishop R. May officiating.

Some people are pretty hard to spring surprises upon, but Dr. S. R. Berg certainly was successful in surprising his better half, Sr. Berg, the esteemed president of the Hawthorne Society, when at noon, on Friday last, the members of that society, with two or three other invited guests, took possession of her pretty, little home on West Short street, during her absence, and gave her a hearty greeting with their congratulations, upon her return. The occasion was her birthday, and the wily doctor laid his plans so nicely and so quietly that not even a suspicion was aroused in Sr. Berg. A very enjoyable dinner at her parents' home, next door, Bro. and Sr. J. W. Dumbald, was the first thing on the program after the greetings, and then a pleasant afternoon was spent in social chat and visit.

The quarterly business meeting of the branch was held Monday evening, Presidents Hulmes and Garrett presiding, President J. D. White being absent from the city. In the absence of Bro. Frank Rudd, the secretary, Bro. J. Cole Moxon was chosen to act pro tem. The usual reports of the officers were read, the deacon's report for May, June, July and August showing receipts $141.42, expenditures $113.82. The auditor's report for April was read, showing $11.20 due the deacon at that time. The statistical report shows membership at last report 1070, and present number 1121, baptisms 27, letters of removal 34, other sources 5, loss 15, net gain 51. Encouraging reports from the Sunday School and Religio were read. Bishop May made a verbal report. Bro. Frank Rudd resigned as one of the auditing committee on account of being absent from city. Resignation was accepted and Bro. Chas. D. Carson was elected to fill the vacancy. Bro. Rudd also resigned as secretary of the branch, for same reason, and Bro. J. Cole Moxon was elected to take his place. Eighty-seven delegates were elected to conference at Holden, Missouri, September 21. The salary of the janitor was, on motion, made twenty dollars per month. A motion prevailed to request the Metropolitan Rail way to establish a station at River Boulevard and East Electric. Reports of Bishop's Court were read and approved, and the meeting adjourned at a late hour, subject to the call of presidency, with considerable unfinished business on hand. The adjourned meeting will probably be called for next Monday evening, and the meeting of the High Council will be postponed until Tuesday evening following.

Last Sunday was a very pleasant day. Attendance at Sunday School, 326; collection, $4 07. Bro. Orville James had charge of the exercises, Superintendent W. N. Robinson being in Michigan, and assistant superintendent, Aamon White, filling a preaching appointment some fifteen miles in the country. Bro. J. Cole Moxon reviewed the lesson. At eleven o'clock Bro. W. H. Garrett preached, and at night Bro. J. Cole Moxon occupied. After the morning sermon a subscription for Grace land was taken and about $150 00 was subscribed.

Peaches, some very fine ones, are reasonably plentiful here, and are bringing good prices, from a dollar to one fifty and two dollars. Bro. and Sr. G. H. Hulmes have about 200 bearing trees, and though the drouth has interfered considerably they have a fair crop. Some the ENSIGN force sampled were very fine in size and flavor. Bro. A. H. Mills brought one to the office weighing five ounces. Speaking of peaches, Bro. Allen Bailey, appreciating that the toilers in the ENSIGN office enjoy good fruit, brought in a peck basket of his fine flavored peaches yesterday (Wednesday). The courtesy and the peaches were both appreciated.

The Sunday School picniced at Fairmount Park Thursday of last week, and an enjoyable time was had. 300 tickets were sold and 18 donated; the fare being 10 cents for the round trip. The day was fine, and there was plenty of "Word of Wisdom" refreshments.

The second track of the Electric Railway now reaches from the square to the stone church.

The "Willing Helpers" had a meeting Wednesday of last week.

At the business session of the Sunday School Tuesday evening, after the routine business the question of a "Sunday School Circulating Library" was discussed and was favorably considered.

The workmen will probably have it completed to the Pacific bridge by the end of the week, from which point it is already double tracked to Kansas City, and has been since the road was built we suppose. The sidewalks are in a miserable condition all the way along, and it will be a relief to have the work of laying the brick in the street commence, so they can be removed from the sidewalk.

LAMONI, IOWA.

Warm days and cool nights are the order now.

The joint Sunday School and Religio meetings at Greenville Sunday were well attended. President J. A. Gunsolley was the speaker for the morning hour. At least one hundred were in attendance at the regular session of the local Sunday School in the afternoon. All the neighboring schools were represented.

At Lamoni, Elder J. R. Lambert occupied the morning hour. The sacrament service in the afternoon was in charge of Elders Wm. Anderson and J. C. Clapp, and in the evening Elder Heman C. Smith gave us the third number of the Historical Lectures. These services were all fairly well attended.

Elder F. M. Smith was in attendance at the Iowa state fair last week, and while in the city of Des Moines spent some time looking after the interests of the church as affected by the public press.

Bro. H. S. Salisbury, one of Graceland's professors, came in from Illinois Tuesday morning.

Sr. Mina Cook Hart, another of Graceland's instructors, desires to organize a gymnasium club for girls and women. We think this a step in the right direction, for without a proper development of the body, the highest spiritual development is unattainable. We trust that this opportunity may be met with a hearty welcome and liberal patronage by the sisters of Lamoni.

Elder H. A. Stebbins has been attending the Blue Rapids, Kansas, reunion, but is expected home this week. C. C.

SEPTEMBER 3.

ST. JOSEPH, MISSOURI.

Bro. Wm. Lewis occupied morning and evening at the church yesterday. The six o'clock sacrament service was quite well attended in number, yet only about twenty per cent of the whole branch was present. We spent one hour there, then hied away to mission work with our companion.

Bro. H. D. Taddicken was able to be at his post of duty yesterday, as superintendent of the South Park Sabbath School, which was well attended. The work here is growing in interest. After the school we presented the necessity of harkening to and obeying the Lord.

Bro. M. Shaw preached at the South St. Joseph mission last evening, where we expect to commence a series of meetings in a short time. The weather is now cooler and the time propitious for hard effort for the truth, so let us all work while the weather is good.

Sr. Maria Christian Johnson passed peacefully away at her home in Chicago, Illinois, on August 25th, at 7:45 p. m. She is the mother of our dear brother, Elmer E. Johnson, who has been so long time sick. Before her departure she made a detailed request, among other things, that the writer perform the funeral service, which we did on Thursday, August 29th, at the house. Her husband, Eric, and daughter, Amy M., of nineteen summers, are also left to mourn their loss. She lived a simple, fervent, christian life, attending on the wants of her household, and extending her hand to the needy. She desired to depart and be at rest with dear ones gone before. Her fervently loved son, Evar, preceded her two years and seven months. The floral offerings were excellent and numerous, and the service, though sad, was robbed largely of the gloom by the glorious hope of the Saint, presented by the elder. The singing was good, and the service, as a whole, was of an order suited to the nature and wishes of the departed. Bro. Elmer was unable to attend the service, remaining in his room upstairs. He seemed some brighter, yet quite poorly, when we parted on Friday.

We began, last night, a series of sermons, at the Aspey mission, on the divine authenticity of the Bible. We will continue them on Thursday night of each week until finished.

Our trip to Chicago, though on a sad occasion, yet was made pleasant by the happy greetings of many of our former parisheners, who insisted that we should stay with them. We attended prayer service on the South Side, also on the West. Though left without a missionary, they, of themselves, are standing firmly by the work. Bro. S. C. Good is doing a good work for the branch and Religio, though not in direct charge. Bro. R. A. Penny, as superintendent of the Sabbath School, is displaying marked abilities in that line. The Central branch is busy preparing for the district conference which meets there on the 7th. Bro. Hackett had been in the city doing street work, aided by the local brethren. We found Brn. Graves and Fuller of the colored missionary force, full of gospel zeal, and manifesting it each night on the street corners. So the good work moves.

Our household seems lonely without the music and song, as well as the lively presence of their producer, Sr. Josie Isleib, who is spending her vacation in Kansas City with friends. Two weeks of this loneliness is upon us. We miss her in missionary work also.

J. M. TERRY.

1913 Holman St., Sept. 2.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

First Chicago Branch, 8 So. Wood St., Sunday School at 1:30, preaching at 3 and 7:45 p. m.; Central Branch, 241 Cottage Grove Ave., Sunday School at 9:30 a. m., preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; West Pillman, preaching at 10:30 a. m., followed by Sunday School, preaching at 7:30 p. m.; Graves' Mission, 2488 State St.

Arrangements have been made to close the West Side hall next Sunday, September 8, in favor of the district conference to be held at 3411 Cottage Grove. A large attendance is anticipated.

The funeral of Sr. Johnson was held at the home Thursday afternoon, Bro. J. M. Terry having been called from St. Joseph to conduct the services. The many sorrowing friends present and the abundance of beautiful flowers received, spoke plainly of the deep love felt by all for the one whose life had been a round of good works.

While regretting the sad errand which brought Bro. Terry to Chicago, we could not but feel thankful for the privilege of meeting him again, and were disappointed that he could not remain over Sunday.

Sr. Mamie Penney left Saturday for a visit with relatives and friends in Beloit.

The street preaching is reported to have been very successful the past week. Large crowds gathered each night and were held in interest for an hour and a half to two hours by Bro. Hackett.

NOVICE.

September 2.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Services at "Druid's Temple," Cor. 14th and Folsom Sts., Sunday School 9:45 a. m., preaching 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sacrament meeting on first Sunday of each month at 12:15 noon. Elder C. A. Parkin presiding elder, residence 3010 16th street.

Friday evening the Religio gave an entertainment to raise funds to help buy tent for the district. The meeting was held in the parlors of Bro. J. A. Saxe, and they were crowded to the fullest capacity. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental duets and solos, recitations, and remarks by President Joseph Smith. Ice cream was also served. We cleared $16.75. The Daughters of Zion donated $5.00 for the same purpose, which gives us $21.75 towards the tent.

Sunday at 11 a. m. we had preaching by our Patriarch A. H. Smith, and at 7:45 p. m. by President Joseph Smith. Our church was completely filled at both services, quite a number of strangers and Utah Mormons being present. The sermons were fine, and much good was done by them, which will be seen in the future.

Bro. Joseph preached in Oakland at 11 o'clock, and Alexander at the same place in the evening.

There was good attendance at the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, and a good, spiritual time was had.

Bro. Gilbert and wife are here on their way to their missionary field—Tahiti. They are both well and happy.

The strike is still in existence here, and no nearer a settlement than ever. The same conditions still continue, only many of the strikers are getting very short of funds. A change of some kind must come soon.
